Township board votes down tax hike

By MIKE TYREE Staff Writer

Truth-in-Taxation met a quick death last week in Northville Township.

The Township Board on Thursday voted 3-2 against a proposed .36-mill hike that would have propped town-ship coffers by about $168,000 for 1993.

The board last month pitched the Truth-in-Taxation concept, which is a legal maneuver designed to combat the effects of inflation on tax-collecting agencies. Faced with a declining millage rate and rising costs, the township decided to test the tax-hike waters

The idea was not well-received by the public.

Several residents voiced objections to the plan during a public hearing. Individual comments varied, but the theme was constant. Truth-in Taxation is a big lie

"I feel you're coming to the taxpayers with your hands out again without exploring other sources of revenue," said resident George Patak.

Resident Richard Bond agreed. "I'm just sick and tired of politicians coming up to me with their hand out," he said.

Tom Killeen summed up the thoughts of many of the townhip's senior citizens when he spoke of rising property assessments and fixed incomes.

A number of longtime Northville Township residents are having a difficult time right now meeting expenses of living in the township," he said.

Killeen also suggested the township pay heed to a report authored by the Northville 2000 citizens group and take a closer look at possible money savings through heightened shared-services programs. Even some incoming politicians opposed the tax hike. Treasurer-elect Rick Engelland and top trustee primary vote-getter Mark Abbo said the township should reject the increase and live within its means.

Treasurer Jack Hosmer was the major proponent of the Truth-in-Taxation hearing. Hosmer said the increase reflected a "big step in helping the township balance the budget next year and in the future."

Hosmer told the audience that Northville Township's millage rate hovers near the bottom of all the townships in Wayne County. He said budgetary woes have prompted cutbacks in some township services, and alluded to canceled gravel-roads dust treatments as an example of hard times hitting home.

Hosmer also said the outgoing board was not feather-ing its nest with the Truth-in-Taxation plan.

"This board was not re-elected . . . We have nothing Trustees James Now personal to gain by proposing this tax increase," he said. and missed the vote.

specific complaints against township officials, an employee who requested anonymity alleged that the township lacks direction and that communication is sorely lacking.

The employee - and others in township hall - pointed to Township Manager Richard Henningsen as a partial reason for the move to unionize

We just no longer could tolerate it," the staff member said. "I think he's a problem. He's a nice man, but doesn't seem to have a lot of direction

"I think there's poor communication," the staffer added. "A lot of the time, to find out what's going on, we read the newspaper."

Henningsen admitted frustration and disappointment over the union vote plans. He said he has maintained an open-door policy since he took the manager's job in late 1989.

"I did not stop anybody from coming into my office," he said. "I think the problem is that I haven't held any employee meetings, but I don't know why they can't come in and say something to me."

Township Board members on Thursday were distressed to learn of the union effort.

"Is somebody being treated oorly?" asked Trustee Thomas Handyside. "Surely they don't fee! they're overworked. There's got to be a problem somewhere we don t know about, or maybe we do know about."

Trustee Richard Ambler said the clerical employees "ought to take a careful look" at the union before making a decision.

"I guess I consider it a mistake," he said. The Michigan Employment Relations Commission will direct and supervise the secret ballot vote. which was slated for 8:30-9:30 this morning.

Churches walk to aid the hungry

By STEVE KELLMAN Staff Writer

An annual Novi fund raiser heads to Northville this year, a sign of solidarity between churches in both communities.

The 1992 Novi/Northville CROP Walk For The Hungry will raise money for local and international relief efforts. Novi churches have hosted CROP walks the previous three years, but this is the first year that Northville has been involved.

CROP, which originally stood for Church Rural Outreach Program, began 44 years ago, but has grown far beyond its original scope, said The Rev. Thomas Beagan of Northville's First United Methodist Church.

CROP events are part of the education and fund-raising efforts of Church World Service, the disaster relief development and refugee resettlement arm of the National Council of Churches. Sponsoring churches include Northville's First Presbyterian Church, First United Methodist Church and Our Lady of Victory. In Novi, the mafor sponsors are the First United Methodist Church and the Church of the Holy Family.

Beagan said the impetus for the joint program was a simple dialogue between church members. *A few people from churches in Northville and Novi got talking, and decided to do a joint one," he explained.

The resulting 10-kilometer (6.2-mile) walk will head straight south from the Novi Civic Center at Ten Mile and Taft roads to the First United Methodist Church at 777 West Eight Mile Road, just west of Taft. The walk will be held Sunday. Oct. 4. at 1:30 p.m., rain or shine.

Organizers hope to draw 200 walkers for the event, and raise $10,000 in pledges.

This is open to anybody who would like to participate," Beagan said.

Seventy-five percent of the pledge money raised will go toward Church World Service and its relief efforts in places as far as drought-stricken Somalia and the war-torn region of Bosnia-Herzegovina, and as near as southern Florida. Local relief outlets including the Cass Shelter in Detroit and Baldwin Shelter in Pontiac also receive assistance from the Church World Service.

The remaining 25 percent will be divided among Northville's own Civic Concern, the Novi Emergency Food Fund, and Focus: HOPE.

For more information, call the First United Methodist Church at 349-1144.

ity supports loan for Beck Road park

By STEVE KELLMAN Staff Writer

Recreation officials sat in on Monday's City Council meeting uncertain whether they would receive a cold shoulder or an encouraging word.

Council members told them what they wanted to hear.

The occasion was the Recreation Commission's request for tentative city approval of a plan to finance its proposed Beck Road community park. The plan, hammered out after joint meetings between township and city officials and feedback from the Township Board, would finance the difference between the park's $314,000 estimated cost and the department's $109,000 park development fund balance.

Recreation Commission Chairperson Ken Romine explained that township trustees had agreed to back a township loan to cover the $205,000 difference. But the township's attorney had sought several commitments from the city before agreeing to the loan.

The commitments sought included approval to invest park development funds in the Beck Road project and an agreement to participate in joint recreation services for a fiveyear loan period. Under the proposal, the first five-year loan would end with a balloon payment that would be financed for another five years.

The city was also asked to give up its right to the Beck Road park's assets if the city and township dissolved their joint agreement, Romine said, "the reason for that being that the township will be on the hook for the loan."

Romine added that his committee was seeking quick action on the proposal.

The timing is rather critical," he said. "In order for us to get grass seed to germinate by this fall, we need to get it in the ground by the middle of October.

If Romine was trying to convince the council, he apparently succeeded.

"Would you be interested in more than a five-year agreement, say 10 years?" asked Mayor Chris Johnson. Romine said the commission was very interested, noting that the actual debt financing would be spread over 10 years.

Council members authorized City Manager Gary Word to work with the city's and township's legal representatives and draw up the necessary paperwork, to be reviewed at the council's Sept. 21 meeting.

"It appears to us the ideas are sound," Johnson said. "We need the fields; there's no question about it."

The recycling center will no longer be open Wednesdays between 3-7 p.m. Weekend hours will be cut from every Saturday to the first and third Saturdays of each month, between 11 a.m.-5 p.m.

The move is due to reduced use of the center since the city initiated curbside collection of recycling materials, and is intended to reduce the need for overtime by DPW workers. Since curbside recycling started in February, average use of the center has dropped to 35 cars on Wednesdays and 55 cars on Saturdays.

The center is available to City of Northville residents only, and identification is checked at the gate.

The center accepts clear, green and brown glass, plastic types 1 and 2, tin cans, household and car batteries, paint, used motor oil and antifreeze, compost material, scrap metal, and newspapers. Liquids should be in sealed, clearly labeled containers. Newspapers should be stacked in brown paper bags or tied into bundles. Telephone books, magazines and road maps are not accepted.

By SHARON CONDRON Staff Writer

To coincide with the start of the new school year, Northville's Com-munity Education department will open its doors to students of all ages next week.

Whether it's completion of a high school diploma or an arts and crafts course, community education has it all. With classes available day or night, this program strives to offer students flexibility in class schesdules and course selections.

Supervisor Karen Hooper said open registration for 15-week classes which start Sept. 21 is available now at the new Community Education office in the administration building at 501 W. Main St.

Classes are held at the Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital.

The program offers free high school completion courses for qualified adults wanting to complete re-quired course work for their high school diplomas.

"I'm just wanting to make sure that everybody who doesn't have a high school diploma knows that we have the program for completion," Hooper said.

There are some people in Northville who don't have a diploma or a GED," Hooper said. "I just want to make sure that they know what's available."

Credit courses in computers, mathematics, science and social studies are free to adults with a GED certificate and without high school diplomas. Students currently enrolled in day high school programs are ineligible for free credit courses, Hooper said.

The program also offers a 15-week basis GED preparation course. Those courses in reading, math and writing double as GED preparation courses and as required coursework toward a high school diploma. Students who successfully complete the courses and meet the requirements can take the GED exam free of charge at Schoolcraft College's Garden City location.

Hooper said she recommended the GED preparation courses because they serve as foundations for the high school diploma program.

The GED is just a starting place. It really gets skills up for later coursework." In addition Hooper said she has a staff of trained literacy tutors available to help teach adults how to read. Tutoring is free and on a one-to-one

Apart from the academic side of the program, Hooper has a litany of courses designed to be informative and fun.

So whether it's boating safety or historic homes that tickles your fancy, Northville's Community Education has a class for you.

Sixty-seven different and interesting course topics await each and every interest in the pages of the fall catalog of Northville's Community Education program. Leafing through the pamphlet, there's everything from tips for new and old parents to sug-gestions for investing in bonds and mutual funds to lessons on dances of India.

For information and registration about any of these programs call Karen Hooper at 344-8447.

What are the trucks used for?

By STEPHEN OTT and MICHAEL ASHER Special Writers

Kathy was only 6 years old, but as she sat along the curb on a hot Fourth of July morning she already knew that the fire trucks would lead the parade down Main Street and bring up the rear. She heard the sound of drums somewheare down the street, and turning to get her first look at the parade, saw the big red trucks, their lights flashing brightly, slowly moving into view.

As the trucks moved past, Kathy wondered what all the different trucks were used for. There were engines of different sizes and ages, trucks with large ladders on top, tanker trucks, ambulances and large vans. They made a great sight, but Kathy and her parents could not figure out exactly what jobs each one was expected to perform.

Even with as many differences as there are in fire trucks today, there was a time when an even greater diversity of fire apparatus was in use. Today's modern fire engine actually takes the place of as many as four different pieces of equipment from the days when firefighting equipment was pulled by horses. Then, seperate wagons used to carry water, pumps, hoses, and ladders. Today, the basic fire engine will carry all of these things.

There is, however, still a need to build different types of fire trucks for special jobs. Aerial ladder trucks are equipped with large, mechanically operated ladders that are used to reach the upper floors of tall buildings that are beyond the reach of the typical "ground ladders," and can also be used to pour water on a fire from above. Tanker trucks, carrying many thousands of gallons of water, are needed to supplement the water carried by the engines in rural areas, beyond the reach of the hydrant systems. Ambulances, reflecting the Fire Department's expansion into the emergency medical services, are now a common sight. Smaller engines, often built on a pickup truck chassis, can make use of four-wheel drive capability to fight field fires or to bring rescue equipment to the scene of an emergency. Large vans, sometimes called "squads," bring extra equipment and personnel to the scene.

In large cities with full-time fire departments, the crew of each truck usually has a specific job to perform at a fire. For example, the crew of the engine will pull the hoses and attack the fire while the ladder truck's crew handles ventilation and the crew of the squad performs search and rescue. In smaller towns each firefighter has to be prepared to perform any one of these jobs, as assigned by the chief.

A couple of weeks after the Fourth of July parade Kathy and her parents drove by the fire station and saw that the trucks were pulled out and parked in front. They stopped and walked over to one of the firefighters, and Kathy boldly asked her question: "What does each truck do?" The firefighter showed each of the trucks to Kathy and her parents, and Kathy got to sit in the trucks while the firefighter explained what each was used for. Then, at the next year's Fourth of July parade, when Kathy was 7, she found herself answering the questions of her younger friends.

Tax hike plan fails, and deep cuts loom

Township residents let their feelings be known Thursday evening, as they spoke out against a hike in the township millage rate.

The dozen or so folks who showed up for the Township Board's Truth-in-Taxation public hearing said they wanted no part of a tax increase, however slight, however much it may have been needed.

They've simply had enough, and said so.

The board agreed, and scrapped the measure by a 3-2 margin, leaving some to wonder and worry about the township's financial well-being.

Some township officials, including Treasurer Jack Hosmer, favored Truthin-Taxation as a means of recouping a few of the tax dollars chewed up by inflation and Headlee rollbacks. The township's millage rate has declined every year for the past five years, and Truth-in-Taxation could have pumped about $168,000 of green blood into the township treasury's sickly body.

To be sure, the township receives only a small portion - less than 10 percent of the average resident's property tax bill. The vast majority goes to the local school district. At an estimated .36 mill, the scant increase allowed under Truthin-Taxation guidelines would have been modest at best, but still well-received by the township's financial people. More latitude in the budget means a larger fund balance and fewer difficult choices when the budget knife is unsheathed.

· But it's clear residents aren't as concerned about that. They see soaring assessments and accompanying property taxes, a terminally sour economy, and a financial black cloud that seems to loom over southeast Michigan. They want re### lief, not higher taxes.

Government

So they won a round. Now the township has to face some major decisions. Strangely enough, a sinking financial ship may signal the start of a true move to cost-effective local government.

For example, expect to see the township's big ticket departments - police and fire - absorb deep cuts in this year's budget review process. Streamlining is in, and the budget reviewers and new board are certain to carefully study ways to continue decent public safety services at a lower cost.

The best way, of course, is to push for more public safety cooperative ventures. Evidence exists of renewed talks between the city and township over police and fire dispatching, so that's a start. But no real savings will occur until the Northville political community - at the insistence of taxpayers — bites the bullet and develops one police department and one fire department. Staffers from those organizations - and some politicians don't like that kind of talk, but residents are increasingly aware that duplication of services is outmoded in this economic climate.

The failure of Truth-in-Taxation is a blow to some, but in the long run may provide the spark necessary to effect positive fiscal change in the community. At this point, we'd rather look at the cup as half-full, rather than half-empty.

Rick Byrne Police did well in stabbing case

If you can say one thing about my family, it's that there's never a dull moment around them. For better or worse, the relatives are a goofy, boisterous bunch. Moreso if they've spent the better part of an afternoon marinating in whatever came out of the blender. So it was when we all got together for a sort of mini-reunion for a week of sun, sand and surf in North Carolina last week. On the sun deck of a rented beach house, we wolfed down Mom's fabulous stuffed mushrooms and sipped wine while catching up on what was new and exciting in our lives.

The stories were long, and often loud, the wine having little to do with either. We're just that way.

Then it was my turn to tell what was happening at the paper in Northville. I told how our first murder in 10 years just happened to be committed on a week when the editor and the beat reporter were both out of town, leaving me to juggle the assignments and the coverage.

My aunt, who works at the Northville Meijer store where Michael Bebeau was killed while trying to apprehend a shoplifter, shifted nervously in her deck chair, and looked away as I retold the unfortunate tale.

I hadn't spoken to her since the incident, so I asked if she knew him,

Yes, was the one-word answer from my otherwise effusive aunt.

He was pretty well-liked, wasn't he? Yes. He was a Marine Corps vet, right? A nod.

And that was the end of the conversation. She didn't want to talk about it. It was a tragedy she didn't want to drag on any further.

It would have been nice if the other Meijer employees had felt the same way. Instead they chose the aftermath of the fatality to take an undeserved swipe at the township police force. They fired off a letter to the editor raking Chief Chip Snider over the coals for supposed lack of cooperation, and demanded that he extend condolences to Bebeau's parents. They took particular offense at the idea that Snider thought of the store as a "drain on our resources," as quoted from a Detroit Free Press story. The letter was signed by *196 grieving associates.'

Indeed, Chief Snider had already attended the funeral and spoken with the family, as he pointed out in a letter of response. Given their frequent visits to the store, Northville Township police probably knew Bebeau as well if not better than many of the store associates knew him.

Furthermore, Snider added that he and his department had always cooperated with store officials. His remark from the Free Press was, quite obviously, taken out of context.

Snider and his staff are overdue for a pat on the back for brining in a counselor to ease the shock for the Meijer employees. And we can't over-emphasize the fact that the department's rapid response helped catch the suspect in the murder.

Speaking from my own perspective, no one could have been more cooperative than Snider, Capt. Philip Presnell or the rest of the township Police Department were on the day of the murder. When they obviously had better things to do, they were on the phone to me, keeping me posted on developments in the case, and alerting us to the arraignment of the suspect so that photographer Bryan Mitchell could bring you photos of him.

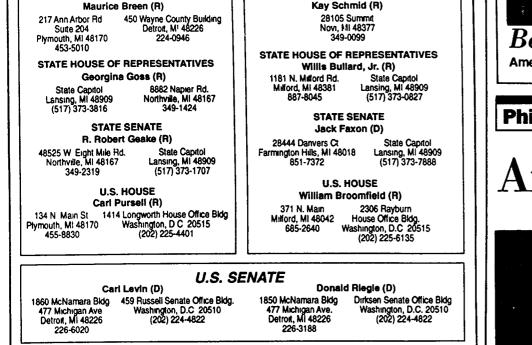

Snider and his staff didn't deserve any of the flak they took from the Meijer employees. Misery loves company, but not that much.

And now about sacred cows

"Today's the day you tell me about your sacred cows," he said.

It was John Reddy, the corporate vice president for editorial, in town for one of our regular Friday lunches, except they haven't been all that regular lately because either John or I have had more pressing matters on our agendas and we skipped a couple of weeks.

"Sacred cows?" I asked, not catching on to what he was talking about. "Sure, sacred cows," he said. "You remember. The last time I was out I asked you about your rules for running the newspaper when your fulltime job was taking care of The Northville Record, and you told me how subdivision crime is more important than big crime."

And then I caught on to what he was talking about.

Okay. Now I remember. Sacred cows.

"Sacred cows were really important when I was doing the paper every week," I started.

"But first, let me say that all community groups are sacred cows. Every church. The library. Every community group.

"The thing is that I look at our papers as having a huge responsibility to the people who live in the community. I think of newspapers as being like the town criers from long ago when there was some guy who walked around town, yelling out all the news so people knew what was going on.

"We - our newspapers - serve that function today. Instead of giving a note to the town crier, people have to be able to give their notes to us, and we have to publish them so people will know what's happening.

"If a church is having a bake sale, they have to have total confidence that we will announce it to everybody in the community for them. When the PTA is having a rummage sale, they have to be totally confident that The Record will let everybody else know about it.

"It's a sacred trust that everybody - every group in town must have with the newspaper. That's why I say all community groups are sacred cows. It's a sacred trust.

"Now, here's the next part - some sacred cows are more sacred than others.

"It's been my experience that in every town some community groups are more active than others," I continued. "In some towns, it's the Jaycees. In other towns, it might be Rotary. Or Kiwanis. And in some towns, it might be the Band Boosters or the Athletic Boosters.

"I would go a long way for almost all my sacred cows, but there's was almost nothing I wouldn't do for the sacred cows which were more sacred than others.

"If I had room for just one more story in the paper, and it was a choice between a regular news story and a story for one of the sacred cows - the sacred cow story would win 999 times out of 1,000.

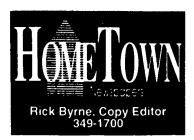

"That's a pretty good rule," said John.

You know the way you sometimes get compliments that mean a lot to you . . . more than what the person giving the compliment ever knew? Well, I got one of those once from Ed Leininger, who was president of the Novi Jaycees at the time.

"He told me that when the Jaycees have their state conventions, there's usually a seminar on how to get press releases in your local paper, and that the Novi Jaycees could never figure out why such a seminar was necessary.

They asked me how we managed to have such good luck getting our press releases in the local paper," " he told me. And I said it was casy. All you had to do was call.

"That made me feel good. That's the way it ought to be."

Chef gets into a pickle over Getzie's recipe

Anyone who's ever stopped by Getzie's Pub in beautiful downtown Northville has probably, at one time or another, sunk their teeth into one of Dorothy's incredible bread and butter pickles. I've been going to Getzie's now for way past a dozen years or so, and every year the fall harvest brings the taste of what I consider to be the best pickles I have ever tasted.

When asked her secret, diminutive Dorothy just blushes a little and says: "It's the same I've been doin' for 25 years, and it's nothing but a standard pickle recipe."

Standard recipe, my foot. Dorothy's pickles crunch and have just the perfect balance of what pickle fanciers call "tooth." I liken it to the snap, crackle and pop of my favorite breakfast cereal.

So every year when I ask Dorothy for her secret pickle recipe, every year I get in return a jar of pickled nirvana. Certainly not a bad trade-off. So this year, I checked out everything I could about the secret to great pickles. The Ball Blue Book, long the canner's bible, has more pages on pickling than any other topic.

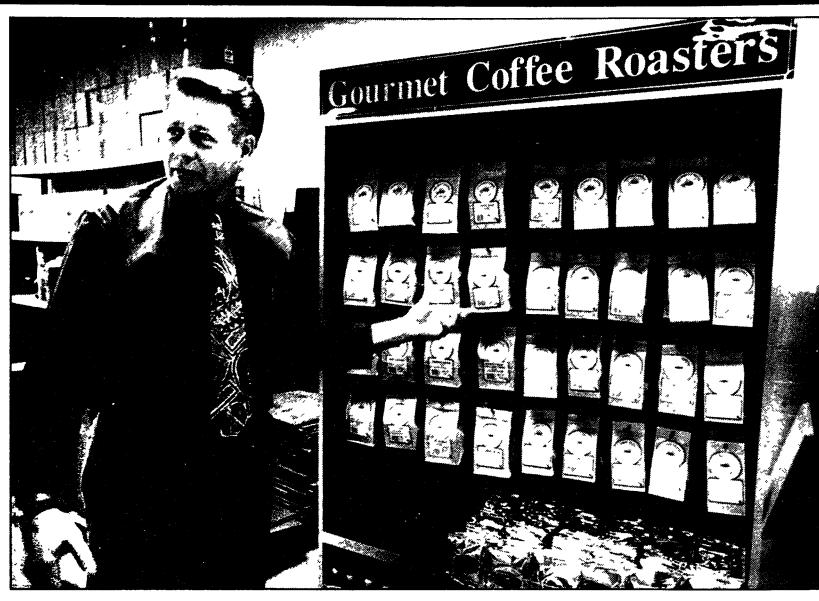

The Farm Journal's Canning Cookbook lists secret upon secret. I tried them all and have come up with the following information. Al-though my pickles have yet to come close to Dorothy's, I'm right on the fringes of your apron hem, so watch out!

Both of the canning bibles mentioned above agree that in order to make great pickles, you have to start out with great pickles. Consultant upon consultant say that it's best to grow your own.

Grow pickles? I ask. Secret number one for the best pickles start with growing your own cucumbers. Not that you want to grow cucumbers here, folks, but rumor has it that the best pickles start with the immaturest cucumbers. Slicing cukes do not make good pickles, as don't the ones from stores. You need immature pickling cukes. Preferably, fresh, immature pickling cukes that, have been picked no more than two hours before.

If that sounds like a pain, it is. It meant a trip down to the Eastern Market at 5 a.m. while farmers laughed when I asked if anyone had picked the cukes during the full light of the moon. I finally found an old babushka clad lady who assured me her pickling cukes came in late Friday afternoon. I trusted and believed. How could you not? Experts agree that it's a waste of time pickling after the cukes are more than 24 hours old. Supposedly, it makes them tough.

Dorothy uses the fresh-pack method for her bread and butters, and they do require refrigeration. The brine cured or fermented pickles are a bit softer and have a more pronounced pickle taste. Whatever method you use, the pros again

Pros use clear vinegar with a specified (on the label) acid strength of 5 percent or 50 grains. Some of the clear vinegars from the grocery store are lighter. White vinegar gives pickles their best color while cider vinegar gives off the best aroma and flavor. Yours truly used a 60-40 blend of white to cider.

Roasters indeed meet those standards. It has to be that way, he explained, because smart consumers know their favorite brew.

The reason people put cream and sugar in their coffee is to overwhelm the bitter taste, "Sewell said. "But the people who drink gourmet coffee generally put in just a touch of cream.

"It's like a wine. Each coffee has its own unique characteristics."

Unfortunately, gourmet coffee is similar to fine wines in that it can be expensive, too

Sewell estimated a pound of gourmet coffee can cost anywhere from $5 to $20. By comparison, non-gourmet coffee often is priced at between $3 and $4 per pound, he added.

The best part of being affiliated with this fundraiser is its purpose -- scholarships. These scholarships will be made available to students meeting specific requirements. For those who have gone to school because of a scholarship, please think of where you may be today without the opportunity that was given to you.

Eleanor Gebert (we remember her as Eleanor Breitmeyer, social writer for the Detroit News for many years), is my motivation for writing this column. Our friendship has spanned many decades. We be-came acquainted as fellow skaters at the "old" Detroit Skating Club in the '60s and our paths have crossed somewhat regularly ever since.

Eleanor was always a celebrity person to me. Vivacious, outgoing, and socially "in-the-know." I believe that her job was as fun as mine is. Just recently I learned that she graduated from the University of Michigan thanks to a scholarship from the Alumni Regents.

Even more interesting is the fact that she began writing for The Northville Record at the tender age of 16 and continued throughout her high school and college years. Every summer, every Christmas and every spring break William H. Cansfield, then owner of the Record, was flexible enough with his scheduling to allow her to work. When I asked what she wrote, her reply was, "anything I could get my hands on, want ads, council meetings, anything."

Her father would give her bus money to come from their farm on Seven Mile in Livonia.

Eleanor became involved with the Culinary Extravaganza because she wouldn't have been able to go to school without her scholarship. Now her time is being spent giving back. She couldn't have done what she has in her life without the Record job and degree. Schoolcraft, you are very lucky to have Eleanor and her wonderful husband, Armand, on your team.

For those of you who have yet to experience a fundraiser such as this which involves great chefs, dedicated volunteers and an outstanding cause, consider spending Sunday with us. I guarantee a good time. And, please stop by my table and say hello.

Coffee gets most from a roast their arabica counterparts. Sewell added arabica beans have half the caffeine of robusta beans. You'll still get a kick from this (gourmet coffee), but it's not as significant."

Meanwhile, long before the beans show up at the warehouse. Sewell and his son, Jeff, already would have tasted small samples to make sure they are top-notch and worthy of being processed there.

That's to certify it's the coffee we think it is," Sewell said. "That it has unique characteristics such as body, taste . . . The Kenya (blend) from Africa is a very heavy coffee."

• The coffee beans - which, upon arrival, are green, not brown - then go through the multi-step roasting cycle. Bags or barrels are emptied into a machine that separates beans from unwanted particles.

The green beans then are put into the roaster, with the heat turned up to between 300-475 degrees Fahrenheit, the latter temperature for espresso. What the intense heat does at the outset is to remove the actual coffee beans from green coverings, which are known as chaf.

The 80 pounds of beans are then roasted for about eight minutes, which effectively removes water weight (15-17 percent) from the beans, and later put through a cooling cycle.

• For flavored coffee blends, a liquid extract is poured onto the beans while they are still warm, Sewell said. The beans then are gently rolled so that they are adequately coated with the flavors.

He emphasized that the most important consideration in applying different flavors is the quality of the actual product as it is consumed. We put it on on the basis of what makes a good cup of coffee."

 Employees then package the beans in a variety of ways for home, office and restaurant use. Most are packaged in whole-bean fashion, the best way to keep the coffee until ready for brewing.

Two-ounce bags are packaged for gift-giving purposes. Sewell's company also is sending the small packages (not to mention coffee makers) to offices as part of its gourmet coffee service, which he said is a natural for Oakland County.

People who drink gourmet coffee at home and who go to the office and drink garbage are looking for this stuff.

Also assembled there are other sizes of packages of heat-sealed foll and plastic bags, with degassing val-ves designed to keep oxygen ("coffee's biggest enemy") out and freshness in for as long as eight months.

The packages then have labels affixed and are shipped to their respective destinations.

The cost factor is one reason why gourmet coffee generally is most popular in more-affluent areas

"This is a hot gournet coffee area, obviously," Sewell said. Those in middle-to-upper level incomes, they're generally the big buyers.

Sewell said he expects to soon see an explosion of gourmet coffee shops in Oakland County to meet the needs of those people. His company already supplies The Coffee Exchange, at Maple-Woodward in Birmingham.

That's a dynamite location," he said.

Meanwhile, Sewell was asked to describe who might be the kind of person to saunter into The Coffee Exchange, or similar establishments, to enjoy a cup of steaming Colombian Cinnamon?

"It's someone who's looking for the better life, someone who has

According to Sewell, about 7,000 pounds of gourmet coffee beans are processed every week at his business. At an estimated yield of 80 cups-per-pound, that means a yield experienced the better life. It's probably a wine drinker, who enjoys fine wines. Someone who entertains more frequently."

The gourmet coffee drinker also is more than likely to own a bean grinder, which Sewell sells for about $15.

"People who like gourmet coffee generally have their own grinders at home," Sewell said. "That's really the best way to enjoy it. Keep it whole bean as long as you can before you brew it, because that makes it fresher."

Sewell speaks from considerable experience, having the best of both worlds as far as coffee lovers are considered. He can indulge in arabica beans all he wants, at home and at work. He knows and loves his coffee, consuming about 3-4 cups daily.

"You've got to be, to be in this business," he said, confirming his affinity for the beverage.

of 560,000 cups.

Of course, drinking all of those cups is just about the only job Sewell doesn't have to worry about in the gourmet coffee business.

Tomatoes are ripe for light recipes

My garden is bursting with big. juicy red tomatoes! If you're like me, you may be wondering what to do with all of them. One of nature's most perfect fruits (no, they're not vegetables), tomatoes can be used to create some of the most fabulous dishes. They are absolutely wonderful to experiment with in recipes!

Not only are tomatoes full of potassium and fiber, they're so low in calories you can eat as many as you'd like. I love sliced tomatoes for dinner or as a healthy snack topped with loads of black pepper. herbs and spices or fresh onions. A simple lowcholesterol and low-sodium recipe is Classic Tomato Salad. It's perfect for a light lunch or simple dinner salad.

The first thing I do with my harvest is make Pico de Gallo (Mexican Sauce). It's great served over grilled fish or chicken and gives ordinary foods a tangy Mexican zip. Fresh Tomato Coulis adds a touch of elegance to your meals. Serve this thick. warm tomato mixture over pasta, poultry, or seafood for special romantic dinners.

Use those freshly harvested garden tomatoes for Freezer Tomato Sauce. I sometimes double or triple the recipe and store the sauce in handy onecup portions. That way, I can enjoy my homegrown tomatoes year-round.

You know, any way you slice them, tomatoes are ripe and ready to become a healthy addition to your daily menus.

Brighton bounces Northville cagers

By SCOTT DANIEL Sports Editor

It isn't a four-letter word, but in the vernacular of basketball coaches everywhere, "turnover" is akin to sailors' language.

Brighton took advantage of 30 Mustang turnovers Tuesday en route to a 69-33 victory. According to coach Bob Shoemaker, many of the turnovers, which led to easy Buildog baskets, came as the result of poor execution on offense. Improving the offense will cut down on the number of turnovers and lead to some wins for Northville, he added.

"That's been a big problem. If we can get our offense into gear, we are going to win some games," Shoemaker said.

The loss dropped the Mustangs to 0-3. Northville is in the middle of a 10-day regrouping period. The club will be back in action Thursday, going on the road for the first time against Farmington at 7 p.m. Shoemaker said he hoped to use the brief hiatus to work on the Mustang offense.

percentage shots such as layups and and short jumpers.

"We've been going one-on-one too much," Shoemaker said.

Northville had one of its better offensive quarters this year to open against Brighton.

Senior Julia Bermingham, perhaps the Mustangs' most consistent player this season, led the way. The center notched four points while four others also scored.

Brighton more than doubled that output, however, with 25. Shoemaker said the Bulldogs were able to build the 13-point margin on second shots and Northville turnovers.

"We were not prepared for a lot of things they did to us," Shoemaker said of Brighton, which plays in the Kensington Valley Conference.

The Mustangs prevented the vistors from adding to the lead by holding them to nine points in the second quarter. Northville was only able to match that total, though, as Brighton walked away with a 34-21 halftime bulge.

Bermingham led the Mustangs with eight points in the half while Beth MacLean added four. The news didn't get any better in Northville managed only eight points in the third quarter and four in the fourth. Brighton, meanwhile, scored 35 in the half to take the lopsided win.

Bermingham led Northville with nine points in the game. Gretchen Sander had six while MacLean and Lindsay Bacon each had four.

Sarah Needham led Brighton with 14 while teammate Jill Krips added 13.

Although the score doesn't indicate it, Shoemaker said his team hasn't played bad defensively this season. The Mustangs, for example, forced 25 Brighton turnovers.

English's second series a hit not to miss

By Suzanne Gill While some TV producers are fond of saying they're making "a little movie" every week, Diane English is not among these cultural effete. English, the award-winning creator of Murphy Brown and the target of election-year criticism for her characters' lack of "family values," is bringing a new comedy to CBS on Monday, Sept. 21.

But don't think of the premiere of English's Love and War as a TV show or even a movie. Think of it as an evening at the theater.

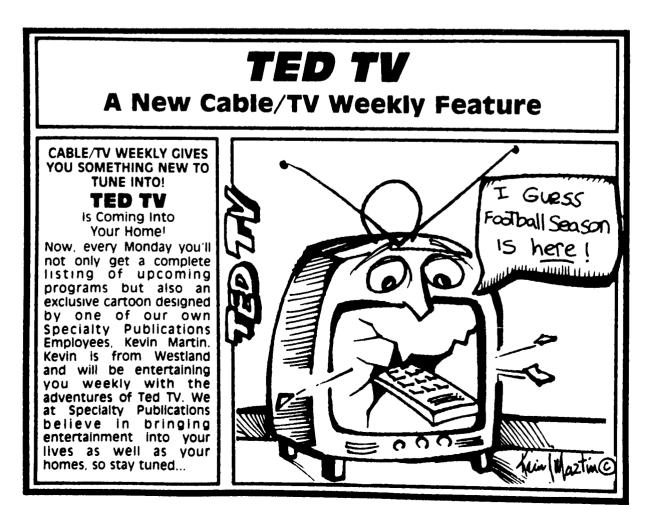

Set in Manhattan, Love and War has a Gershwin theme and the feel of a sophisticated, 1930s romantic comedy. It features Susan Dey as a just-divorced restaurateur and Jay Thomas as an opinion columnist and 42-year-old bachelor. Despite their differences and their mutual fear of new disappointments in romance, the pair begin to fall in love.

To give us a glimpse of her main characters' souls, English employs the common stage device of having them turn and speak to the audience - or in this case, the camera.

But besides such calculated theatrical elements, the one-hour premiere episode plays like a play because it was filmed that way - in one pass, with no time for retakes, extra camera angles or flubbed lines. The live-on-film effect was a child of necessity: after a 10-day rehearsal schedule and a day's delay due to union negotiations with the crew, the pilot had to be shot on the first evening of curfew during last spring's Los Angeles riots. Otherwise, English would have lost two of her actors — Dey and co-star Michael Nouri - to other commitments.

"At about two o'clock in the afternoon, the manager of the lot that we were shooting on come to us and said, 'We're evacuating the lot, and you must all go home.'

"There was no way we would postpone. So Joel (Shukovsky, English's husband and co-producer) negotiated for us, and they allowed us to shoot our show, only one pass, at 4 p.m. At 6:30, everyone had to be in their cars going home."

Even their planned studio audience was unavailable. But a tour bus of 40 teenagers (some with Super Soakers) turned away from The Dennis Miller Show was located in time.

"They weren't the people that we expected to respond to our show," English continues, "and yet we got a wonderful response from them."

Besides Thomas' Jack Stein and Dey's Wally Porter, the cast includes Suzie Plakson as Meg, an acerbic sports writer; John Hancock as Ike, the owner of journalists' watering hole The Blue Shamrock; Joel Murray as a sanitation worker who feels at home in the seedy hangout; and Nouri as Dey's exhusband, a narcissistic actor. Future episodes will include Joanna Gleason as a suburban housewife hired as a Blue Shamrock waitress.

"So we went ahead. There's some bouncy camera work here and there that we'll live with. But we kind of considered it a small miracle and are looking forward to going on from there."

"From there" includes the development of both the romance and The Blue Shamrock, which Wally buys on a kind of self-imposed dare to prove to herself and the world that she's still a success. (Her first place, Chez Wally, had to be sold in the divorce settlement.)

With top-notch writing and acting, and a premium Monday-night time slot, Love and War, Wally and Jack and The Blue Shamrock should all be long-running hits.

'Young Musicians' make concerted effort

By Chris Carpenter Assembling more youthful talent than most conductors could shake a stick at, The Disney Channel wisely hands the baton to master movie maestros Henry Mancini and John Williams, among others, for its Young Musicians Symphony Orchestra.

In an exclusive Disney premiere on Tuesday, Sept. 15, the music of Gershwin, Mozart and Beethoven is expertly rendered, not by Williams' own Boston Pops Orchestra or Mancini's pals at the Royal Philharmonic, but instead by wunderkinds who are fractions of the ages of their professional counterparts.

Williams, whose uplifting Star Wars themes were to the '80s what "M-I-C-K-E-Y" was to the '50s, says the film world owes the Mouse a musical tip of the hat.

"I remember, from childhood ... one of the photographs indelibly burned into my memory was of (conductor) Leopold Stokowski in 1939, when Dudley Moore, also a composer and conductor, is an added treat as host of the Young Musicians special, but the real bright spots are the kids.

Wednesday on CBS, Nestor Serrano plays police officer Rafael Martinez in the premiere of The Hat Squad.

TV viewers in action; Moscow welcomes 'Stalin'

"Don't be ridiculous!" is the reaction from many loyal viewers of ABC's Perfect Strangers, which the network has reduced to mid-season replacement status, ordering only six more episodes. Fans of the long-running comedy series starring Bronson Pinchot and Mark Linn-Baker have begun a letter-writing campaign in an attempt to save the show from cancellation.

Linda Kay, co-organizer of the fan front, says, "There are a lot of people who quietly watch the show and love it, but it's not a big publicity-getter. It's programs like this that really need the viewers to show their support."

Those wishing to join in the campaign may send letters of support to either Robert Iger, Stu Bloomberg or Susan Leper at Capital Cities/ABC, Inc., 2040 Avenue of the Stars, Century City, Calif., 90067.

The best things in life should be free. Formed earlier this year, the anti-cable consumer group Television Viewers of America (TVA) recently launched a petition campaign demanding a ban on pay-per-view sports broadcasts. As reported in Daily Variety, the organization claims, "At least 12 pro sports teams are taking games away from free TV and placing them on PPV, charging as much as $30 a game. There are more pay-per-view games to come if consumers are silent."

Bronson Pinchot

History doesn't have to repeat itself. On Nov. 7, the 75th anniversary of the Russian Revolution will be marked in Moscow by the world-premiere screening of HBO's Stalin, followed by a symposium on Russian television focusing on the future of the nationin-progress. Members of Russia's political, cultural and academic elite are expected to attend the symposium, which will incorporate clips from the film biography of the ruthless, genocidal dictator. Stalin, starring Robert Duvall, will debut on HBO later in November.

King opens his 'Diaries' to Showtime

By Steven Alan McGaw

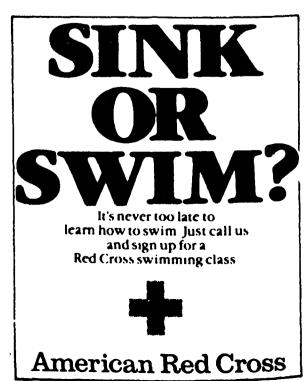

"I don't think there's ever been anything on television like it," says filmmaker Zalman King, referring to his steamy Showtime series Red Shoe Diaries. "It's amazing when you think about it," he explains, "a show made for television with full frontal nudity and really interesting characters."

Amazing for television, perhaps, but not surprising for King, who's carved a singular niche with works like 9 1/2 Weeks, Two-Moon Junction and Wild Orchid. Even King's detractors have acknowledged his rich, atmospheric way of filming erotic subject matter.

"Someday they'll talk about my stuff in film schools," King says confidently. Performers in his films "know they'll be photographed as beautifully as they can be," King asserts, "and the characters are really good, really intense." The former deep-sea diver says his films have helped the careers of Kim Basinger, Ellen Barkin and Sherilyn Fenn.

Red Shoe Diaries premiered as a two-hour film, followed by four halfhour stories, and the response has been "very good" according to King. The director believes Showtime will order additional episodes of the "intimate drama anthology." Would King ever try to construct something for one of the more strait-laced broadcast networks? "Oh, definitely," he replies. "In fact, CBS has already approached me. We'll see."

Tom Skerritt plays the amiable sheriff of Rome, Wis., in Picket Fences, debuting Friday on CBS. Julie Brown performs as part of the ensemble in Fox's The Edge, a comedy showcase airing Saturdays. September 14-September 20, 1992

A&E launches fall season

By Dan Rice Arts & Entertainment is the name of the network, and its "Premiere Week" proves that's no misnomer.

Performance artist and actress Ann Magnuson (Anything But Love) is host of Rave, the Sunday night replacement for A&E Revue spotlighting today's hottest performers. Promising "an up-to-the-minute potpourri of the entertainment world," the series' inaugural episode profiles that singer of silly sex songs, Prince.

Get away from it all with Travel-Quest, debuting Wednesday, Sept. 16. Host Alan Thicke introduces challenging jaunts in exotic locales for the "adrenaline rush-seeking adventurer," such as a hike atop an active volcano or a cruise down the Nile to the Temple of Ra.

Return to the Old West this week with The Real West, Kenny Rogers is host of the documentary series, which uses archival photographs and lithographs and original film footage to depict the myths and reality of that era in American history when individuality reigned supreme. The premiere episode, "Buffalo Bill and his Wild West," airs on Thursday, Sept. 17.

Acclaimed conductor John Mauceri is the new host of A&E Stage, which has its season premiere on Tuesday. This week's edition, Live From the Hollywood Bowl, features Star Wars composer John Williams conducting excerpts from Hook, Far and Away and • IV Listing lik

Robert Tyler: a 'Loving' Trucker

By Candace Havens Dear Candace: I recently began watching Loving and I really like it. The characters seem so much more real than on other soaps. Ally and the gang are fun to watch in the haunted house, but the person I like most is Trucker. He is so good looking. I can't believe he is not a major movie star. I want to know all the facts about him. —A fan in Oklahoma.

Dear Reader: Robert Tyler portrays Trucker McKenzie, a character that is considered to be a romantic rebel. Tyler is a native of Stockton, Calif., and is the first actor in his family. While growing up, his main interest was music, and to this day he is an avid rock 'n' roll fan.

After finishing a year of college, Tyler went to New York to pursue a career in theater. He worked a variety of jobs to help pay for acting lessons. Eventually his acting career took off, and he landed an off-Broadway spot as a would-be Eskimo in the comedy Almost Romance opposite Helen Slater. He also worked with Elizabeth Berridge in Sorrows and Sons, an intense drama set during the Vietnam War era.

In June 1988, Tyler was cast as Spence Davies, a short-term but highly visible character on As the World Turns. In fact, he actually screen tested for his current role on Loving during a rehearsal break from the other soap.

Tyler is six feet tall, and his birthday is April 19. He doesn't grant many interviews, but sources say he isn't currently dating anyone seriously.

Dear Candace: I am a soap opera fan, and my career goal is to write for the soaps. What kind of classes should I take to write for the soaps? Is there any advice you can give me? ---Rochelle Domme, Portland, Ore. Dear Reader: Through the years I've talked with writers and producers from almost all the shows, and there doesn't seem to be one set formula for the making of a soap writer. Most of them do agree that an education is the best start and a good foundation in literature is most helpful. You might also consider classes in screenwriting, acting and broadcasting.

Just what was that movie's name?

By Taylor Michaels Q: Last year I saw a movie with Doris Day and James Garner. I didn't see all of it and would like to know the name of it. Day was lost in a plane crash, and Garner thought she was dead. They had two children. He remarried the day she came back, and she saw him and his wife in a hotel. He tried to keep her from meeting his new wife. —Claudia Salter, Newport, N.C.

A: The movie of which you write, 1963's Move Over, Darling, is a remake of 1940's My Favorite Wife, which starred Cary Grant and Irene Dunne. The original, perhaps more so than the Day/Garner version, is very cleverly made and is a pure delight.

A second point of interest concerning Move Over, Darling is not who starred in it, but who didn't star in it. The original production was to feature Marilyn Monroe and Dean Martin under the title Something's Got to Give, but filming with that pair was shut down early enough in the making to reshoot the entire film with Day and Garner. As many know, Monroe did not live to see this picture released.

Q: There is a movie I saw as a child, I'd say in the mid-'50s, that I would like to see again if I knew the name of it. I think Jane Wyman played the lead. It was about a lady who was a nanny to a lot of children. At the end of the movie, there was a scene on a staircase where all of the children returned. I think it was called "Widow" something. —Darlene Terrasi, Snover, Mich.

A: The "widow" you remember was Wyman's character, Louise (whose husband was killed in World War I), in 1951's The Blue Veil. As Louise, Wyman spends virtually the entire 113 minutes caring for other people's children, after her own child dies in the opening sequence. Wyman is wellsuited to the role, but the picture's big asset is the supporting cast, which features Charles Laughton, Joan Blondell, Agnes Moorehead, Vivian Vance, Cyril Cusack, Richard Carlson and Natalie Wood. It's a real tearjerker.

had plastic surgery and proceeded to get even. I don't remember the name of the movie and would enjoy seeing it again. ---J. Shoop, Camp Verde, Ariz.

A: The movie is The Girl Most Likely To ..., a telefilm co-written in a decidedly delicious, macabre fashion by Joan Rivers!

Q: Please help if you can. Years ago, and my husband doesn't remember how many, he saw a movie on television that he would like to have very much. Unfortunately, he can't remember the name of it. All he remembers is that Dyan Cannon played Bugsy Siegel's girlfriend. With only that information, the video stores and video clubs have been unable to help. I would very much like to surprise my husband and get this movie for him. Can you help? —Janet Banda, Caseville, Mich.

A: With infamous gangster Siegel's recent bio-treatment in Warren Beatty's Bugsy and the ensuing hubbub about Beatty's personal life, I can't believe "Virginia Hill" never came up in your quest. The Virginia Hill Story, an excellent 1974 TV movie starring Cannon, Harvey Keitel, Allen Garfield and Robby Benson, is the pic you are seeking. Readers suffering from movie-title amnesia might consult a copy of Leonard Maltin's Movie Guide, a superb reference book that includes video-availability information.
