New officials ask for delay in staff hiring

By MIKE TYREE
Staff Writer

Northville Township has put its hurry-up offense in gear in an attempt to hire a superintendent for its Water and Sewer Department.

Some officials would like to fill the vacancy as early as possible, adding stability to a department one board member deemed rudderless since the death of former Superintendent Walter Holinoty.

Holinoty died earlier this year after being on extended medical leave since June 25, 1991. But some

Victorian Fest earns high marks

Better than ever, was how visitors and vendors alike described Northville's fourth annual Victorian festival.

"I would definitely say it was the largest and the best Victorian Festival yet," said Laurie Marrs, whose chamber of commerce sponsors the annual event.

Festival organizers chewed their nails Friday as Northville was soaked by heavy showers, but the sun broke through late that afternoon and fair weather held throughout the weekend.

"We figured we were doomed," Marrs said. "Actually, it turned out to be a totally gorgeous evening for a parade."

The Victorian Parade Friday evening kicked off a three-day celebration that drew an estimated 8,000 people into town with more food and more sunshine than any of the three previous festivals.

Streets were crowded with costumed entertainers and families wandering between the antique show at the American Legion Hall and events at Mill Race Historical Village, and stopping at the dozens of sights along the way.

At the corner of Main and Center, John Osborne of Westland enthralled a circle of children with his balloon animal designs, pulling the brightly colored balloons from his Keystone Cops helmet and swinging a plastic nightstick.

At Main and Wing, a crowd gathered around Akron, Ohio organ grinder Robert "Pop" Howd and his monkey, Pete. Pop's organ was abandoned on the sidewalk as dozens of squealing children and a handful of dubious adults took turns holding his small brown and grey monkey, which leapt from arm to shoulder to top of head and kissed people at Pop's command.

"You giving any kisses out to the pretty ones today?" Pop asked, as Pete stuck his tongue out and pressed his face against the nearest girl.

The Wilson family helped staff Northville Action Council's donut and cider stand on Center Street, and managed to take in several of the festival's events as well. "We saw a magic show," said 7-year-old Ashlie, referring to the daily Victorian Review performances at the Main Street Bandshell. Sister Aubrie, 9, said she enjoyed the shopping most of all.

"We've been down here for four years, every festival," said their

Fall ushers return of annual Tivoli Fair

If there was any remaining doubt as to whether fall is upon is, let it now be dispelled.

Tivoli Fair is a juried arts and crafts show the society sponsors each fall. Over 100 exhibitors will display crafts in 40 categories.

Admission is $2. As usual, all proceeds go to the restoration and maintenance work at Mill Race Historical Village, the Northville Historical Society's living historical museum on Griswold Ave.

Food and soft drinks will be available at the fair. No strollers permitted, but wheelchairs are welcome. For more information call 348-1845 between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. Friday.

TOTALLY UNIQUE!

THE THORNTON HOUSE RENEWED

In 1839 Sally Thornton planted her dream home out in the wilderness northwest of Detroit. It was a mansion for the day, in majestic Greek Revival style. Novi grew up around it. Nearby, for the last hundred years the Hawthorne mansion dominated Northville Township in similar style.

Now the actual Thorton House has been moved and is being restored and enlarged. It will look like the picture above. It is being combined with new home to be built on the Hawthorne model to recreate Novi's 19th century ambiance in a small new community called "Old Novi Green." Of the thousands of homes that will be added to Novi in the 1990s only these two combine all the following.

Do you wish for modern comfort while enjoying 19th century ambiance? .....It's only here.
Do you need a big house? .....It's here.
Do you want unusual privacy but close proximity to Novi schools and malls? .....It's here.
Do you wish for a large estate with room for horse, tennis and pool? .....It's here.
Do you wish to border a treed park? .....It's here.
Do you wish for super safe investment? .....It's here.

If you answered yes to all these dreams, early inquiry is urged. For only two houses exist that can turn your dreams into reality!

Fatal accident investigation closes

By MIKE TYREE
Staff Writer

Plymouth Township police were preparing to close the books this week on a collision that claimed the life of a Plymouth woman.

Rachel Leigh Thomason, 21, died Sept. 11 after the Ford EXP she was driving struck a vehicle driven by Beverly Jean Schoch, of Northville.

Police said Thomason was driving southbound on Haggerty Road when she apparently failed to stop for a red light at the Five Mile intersection. Her car struck Schoch's eastbound vehicle directly in the intersection, said Plymouth Township police Sgt. Steven Rapson. Early reports had reversed the direction of the two cars.

Thomason was pronounced dead at University of Michigan Hospital. Rescue workers said Thomason suffered massive chest and internal injuries.

Schoch suffered leg and head injuries and was treated at St. Mary Hospital in Livonia.

Police found no evidence that drugs or alcohol contributed to the crash, Rapson said. He said police have yet to learn the results of blood samples taken at the hospital.

No charges are being considered against Schoch at this time, Rapson said.

Meadowbrook Country Club targeted for theft

An employee of Meadowbrook Country Club, 40941 Eight Mile, last week reported the theft of almost $1,000 worth of clothing from the country club's pro shop.

The employee told township police that a woman in a wheelchair and two men perused several items of clothing at the pro shop Sept. 18. The woman and one of the men reportedly tried on some of the clothing while the other man purchased a pair of socks from the employee.

The shoppers reportedly left after trying on some of the clothing, and although the employee did not see the group conceal any of the items, she told police it appeared the woman was sitting higher in the wheelchair when she left than when she entered the shop.

The trio then reportedly drove west on Eight Mile in a red Pontiac or Chevrolet, before the employee discovered that the clothing was missing. Reported stolen were three sweatshirts, five shirts, and two sweaters. The items were valued at $920, police said.

The suspects were described as two black men and one black woman. One of the men was about 30 years old and 6 feet, 190 pounds; the other about 20 years old and 5'10", 165 pounds. The woman was around 20 years old and 125 pounds, the employee said.

WHEEL COVERS STOLEN: Two silver wheel covers were stolen last week off a van parked at McDonald Ford, 770 W. Seven Mile Rd. The 1992 Ford van was parked in the south end of the main lot when the theft occurred sometime between 5 p.m. Sept. 16 and noon Sept. 18.

The pair of 16-inch wheel covers with imitation lug nuts was valued at $150.

WATCH WINDS UP MISSING: A visitor to Northville's Victorian Festival reported the disappearance of her wrist watch while she was waiting in line for the pony rides. The woman told city police that she was standing in line at Main and Center streets at 4:20 p.m. Sept. 20 when she felt a "tickle" on her wrist. She looked down and her watch was gone.

The woman did not see anyone nearby who could have taken the watch, and a search of the surrounding area was unsuccessful.

The watch was described as a woman's gold and brown Seiko Mickey Mouse model, part of Seiko's Ambassador collector's series. It was valued at $200.

HIT AND RUN: A car parked on Wing Street just south of Cady was struck by a hit and run driver sometime before 11:30 a.m. Sept. 19. The car was parked on the west side of the road by the Northville Post Office at the time.

FOUND PROPERTY: A black mountain bike was found in trees behind a Cady Street house Sept. 20. Anyone wishing to claim it is asked to call the Northville City police at 349-1234 with a more detailed description.

OUILS: A 24-year-old Northville man was charged with operating a vehicle under the influence of liquor after his arrest early Sept. 19 on Seven Mile near Maxwell, township police said. A Breathalyzer test indicated that the man's blood-alcohol level was .13. The man reportedly refused a second test, police said.

Police reports indicated that the man had two prior alcohol-related covictions on his record, including a 1987 conviction for unlawful blood-alcohol level out of Berkley District Court, and a 1989 conviction for OUIL out of Farmington Hills.

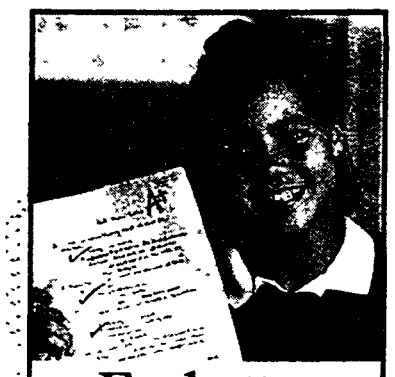

A 42-year-old Detroit man was charged with OUIL after his arrest early Sept. 19 on southbound Beck near Seven Mile, police said. Breathalyzer tests indicated the man's blood-alcohol level was .09 and .10, police said.

VEHICLE LARCENIES REPORTED: A Novi woman told township police that someone broke the door lock to her 1992 Olds Cutlass Sept. 20 and stole a cassette player valued at $150. The vehicle was parked at Meijer, 20401 Haggerty, at the time of the theft, the woman said. Damage to the vehicle was listed at $200.

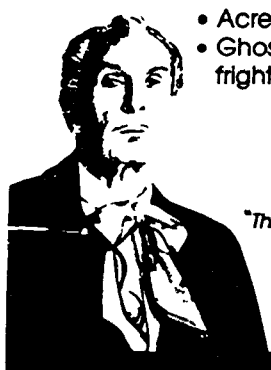

The Meijer parking lot also was the scene of a theft late Sept. 18. According to police records, someone stole four hubcaps from a Farmington man's 1989 Olds Cutlass. The hubcaps were valued at $160.

A Northville man told police that someone shattered the window of his 1991 Chevrolet Lumina late Sept. 19 or early Sept. 20 and stole a radar detector, a set of golf clubs, a tennis racquet, and a briefcase. The stolen items were valued at $1,170 and damage estimated at $250. The vehicle was parked on Northville Place Drive at the time of the theft.

Participation fees may violate honors charter

By SHARON CONDRON
Staff Writer

Northville school officials' decision to charge students a hefty fee for being in co-curricular activities may violate the charter of the National Honor Society.

If a letter from the National Association of Secondary School Principals (NASSP, the national sponsor of the society) is accurate, the district's charter is at risk for charging more money than the National Honor Society national chapter permits for membership fees.

At stake is the local National Honor Society program and the recognition some 100 high school students would have earned this year for their grades and their character.

Lonna Lemmon, a parent of a National Honor Society student, brought the issue to the School Board meeting last week. Lemmon said that under the terms of the National Honor Society charter, the district was not allowed to charge students more than a $5 member dues fee to be active in the society.

Lemmon alleges school officials are breaching that agreement by including National Honor Society on the list of co curricular activities that require students to pay $100 a semester to participate in them this year, under the newly instituted pay-to-participate plan.

A letter to Lemmon from Dale Hawley, director of the NASSP's Division of Student Activities, expresses objection to Northville's fee. "I regret to say this but it is conceivable that a school could lose its charter for failing to follow the constitution of the National Honor Society," the letter concludes.

After Monday night's School Board meeting, board President Carol Rahimi said school administrators would review Lemmon's complaint and make a recommendation if warranted.

Since that meeting, Lemmon and school officials have met behind closed doors to find out whether the complaint is valid and, if so, what action the district would take to rectify it.

The matter was a discussion item on the school board's policy subcommittee meeting agenda Monday night. It was revisited again Tuesday morning when Lemmon met with David Bolitho, assistant superintendent for administrative services, to talk about it.

"I feel that now that they have been confronted with it, they will do the right thing," Lemmon said after attending both meetings.

But what remains to be seen is what will be done and what impact any action might have on the viability of the rest of the co-curricular activities.

Under the provisions of the pay-to-participate plan for co-curricular activities the board adopted Aug. 3, high school students pay a fixed fee of $100 a semester to participate in as many of the co-curricular activities they want. School officials introduced the charge this year as part of a series of budget cuts made after voters turned down two requests for a higher school property tax rate.

In August, an ad-hoc committee that studied the issue and Superintendent Leonard Rezmierski both agreed to a flat, one-time fee as an equitable means of handling the co-curricular arm of the pay-to-participate program.

But now some National Honor Society parents object.

Lemmon said she personally surveyed the 59 juniors eligible for National Honor Society this year and found that 34 of them are involved only in National Honor Society and hold no other spots in clubs or other organizations. Twenty-eight of those 34 students are involved on a sports team and no other co-curricular activity.

That equates to about 50 percent of the National Honor Society membership that uses the society as its only co-curricular activity. She added Wednesday that the Senior Class participants show similar figures.

District officials dispute that and say it's only about 30 percent that are involved only in National Honor Society.

Among the issues are the cost of running National Honor Society, the revenues generated from its enrollment, and the inequity between the two.

School officials said National Honor Society was placed on the chargeable list of activities because it has a paid teacher sponsorship mandated by the district's contract with the teachers' union.

That sponsorship — which is split between two teachers at the high school — costs the district $1,697. That figure falls below any estimate of potential National Honor Society revenue.

If the program enrolls an estimated 100 students, those students would pay $20,000 total for a full year (two semesters) of co-curricular activities. Under Lemmon's estimate, half that amount ($10,000) would come only from honor society enrollment. Even under the district's 30-percent figure, honor society enrollment would generate $6,000 in user fees this year.

According Lemmon, the National Honor Society has no expenses beyond its paid sponsorship.

"National Honor Society incurs no other costs," she said. "There are no field trips, the kids aren't bused anywhere, and most of their activities they pay for themselves through their own fund-raisers."

Emily Serafa-Manschot, one of the two co-sponsors of the high school's National Honor Society program, confirmed that. Serafa-Manschot — who has co-sponsored the society with fellow high school teacher Marie Williams for the past seven years — said students raise their funds through flower and fudge sales.

That is what unsettles Lemmon and other National Honor Society parents whom she says disagree with the district's pay-to-participate plan too. Lemmon said she expects to have those parents at her side at Monday's regular board meeting to hear the board's discussion and Bolitho's update on the National Honor Society issue.

According to Superintendent Leonard Rezmierski, the district is just now starting to build a case. He said Bolitho is now gathering information from other districts to see what — if anything — they've done about National Honor Society charters in relation to pay-to-participate issues. Bolitho said he is also looking to get the issue back on the policy subcommittee's agenda for action at a near future meeting for further study.

Rezmierski said the board and the policy subcommittee's discussion of the matter was premature because neither body had all the facts of the case.

"We are nowhere near finalizing this issue," Rezmierski said. "We need to inform the board about this new information. Basically the policy subcommittee was jumping the gun even discussing it."

Rezmierski said school officials need to see how this issue has been handled in other districts and find out what it means.

"We know it is a concern," he said. "Judging from the response we've had, we know it's a big concern. But we need to have all the facts laid out before we go making any recommendations."

Rezmierski also suggested that some of the prestige and clout that National Honor Society once carried with college and university admissions offices appears to have dimished.

"I don't mean to minimize its importance," he said. "But its membership may not be as vaunted as it once was with university admissions officers."

Lemmon said she believes National Honor Society should be set aside from other co-curricular activities because it is not an open enrollment program and because students are selected for the honor.

"This is different because it is an honorary group," she said. "They shouldn't have to pay."

Bullard PACs in the spending for primary vote

By RYAN TUTAK
Staff Writer

State Rep. Willis Bullard of Milford ranked on the low end of campaign fund-raising among his colleagues in 1990, but he amassed donations totaling more than 10 times the collections of each of his Republican challengers in the Aug. 4 primary.

Bullard, a 10-year member of the state House, raised $63,887.41 between Jan. 1 and Aug. 24 toward a victory in the Republican primary for the new 38th District, according to campaign finance statements filed at the Oakland County clerk's office in Pontiac.

John Riley of Milford, who finished second in the race, raised $5,950 between May 22 and Aug. 24.

James Ash of Wixom, who finished last, raised $5,422.84 between April 13 and Aug. 24.

Political action committees contributed $32,015 to the Re-Elect Willis Bullard, Jr. State Representative Committee through Aug. 24 this year, including:

- $3,000 from MICHBELLPAC of Detroit;
- $3,000 in two donations from the Detroit Automobile Dealers PAC of Troy;
- $2,640 from the Michigan Beer & Wine Wholesalers Association PAC of Lansing;
- $2,500 from Michigan Bankers Association of Lansing;
- $2,500 in two donations from the Michigan Trial Lawyers PAC of Lansing;
- $2,000 from NBD Good Citizenship Committee of Detroit;
- $1,150 from Consumers Power Co. Employees for Better Government of Jackson;
- $1,000 from Manufacturers National Bank of Detroit PAC of Detroit; and
- $50 from Coca-Cola Enterprises Inc.'s Employee Committee for Good Government of Atlanta, Ga.

In contributions from local businesses and residents, Bullard received:

- $2,930 in 35 donations from Highland Township;
- $2,400 in 24 donations from Novi and Novi Township;
- $1,920 in 19 donations from Milford Township and Milford Village;
- $445 in four donations from Walled Lake;
- $290 in five donations from South Lyon;
- $200 in two donations from Wixom; and
- $110 in three donations from Holly and Holly Township.

After Jan. 1, the 38th District will include the northern part of Northville, Milford Village, Novi, South Lyon, Walled Lake, Wixom and the townships of Lyon, Milford, and Novi.

Bullard now serves the 60th District, which includes the northern part of Northville, Novi, South Lyon; the villages of Milford and Holly; and the townships of Groveland, Highland, Holly, Lyon, Milford, Novi and Rose.

Riley used $5,650 of his own money for his campaign.

The sole outside contributions were $200 from Local Union 58 PAC of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers of Detroit and $100 from a Southfield resident.

Ash gave $4,772.84 to his own election bid.

His other financial support included:

- $350 from a fund raiser at Key Largo Restaurant in Walled Lake;
- $200 from three Wixom residents; and
- $100 from a Mount Clemens resident.

As of Aug. 24, Bullard had spent $58,004.75 on his campaign, including:

- $6,470.01 on Feb. 11 and June 19 fund raisers (which attracted a total of $10,525);
- $6,465.09 on posters, signs and banners;
- $6,342.03 on unspecified services from Marketing Resource Group in Lansing;
- $6,003.74 on a July 23 golf outing at Hartland Glen Golf Course in Livingston County;
- $4,800.99 on postage and mailing expenses;
- $963.20 on advertisements in The Milford Times and The Novi News;
- $500 contribution to House Republicans of Lansing; and
- $266.24 on campaign T-shirts.

As of Aug. 24, Riley spent $5,901.98, including:

- $2,784.23 on printing expenses
- $942.63 on three advertisements with HomeTown Newspapers of Howell;
- $750 on three advertisements in The Spinal Column;
- $682.20 on mailing campaign literature; and
- $116 on stamps.

As of Aug. 24, Ash spent $5,422.84, including:

- $2,377.75 on advertisements in HomeTown Newspapers;
- $585.52 on signs and decals;
- $290 on stamps;
- $200 on the Key Largo fund raiser; and
- $171.60 on a car rental for a July 4 parade.

In 1990, Bullard raised $50,765.80, 83rd highest among the 110 state House representatives, according to a 1991 report from Common Cause in Michigan of Lansing.

Democrat Tracey Yokich of St. Clair Shores raised the most in 1990 with $158,868.95. Republican William Bryant Jr. of Grosse Pointe Farms raised the least with $7,043.39, the report found.

In the Nov. 3 general election, Bullard faces Democrat Robert Havey and Libertarian K. Mark Elsholz, both of Wixom.

Havey was unopposed in the general election and filed no report. The state only requires candidates who spent more than $1,000 in the primary to submit campaign statements.

Elsholz filed no report.

Election funding, spending detailed

By MIKE TYREE
Staff Writer

Out-of-town lobbying, development, and business interests anted up thousands of dollars to fuel Betty Lennox's last-minute campaign blitz for the Northville Township supervisor's post, while her challenger relied on two fundraising gatherings.

Lennox spent more than $13,000 in her failed attempt to defeat challenger Karen Baja in the Aug. 3 Republican primary. Lennox lost the election by about a 3-1 margin, despite receiving contributions which more than doubled Baja's donations, according to campaign finance records filed in Wayne County.

Lennox spent roughly $6,000 on five slick, multi-colored mailings that painted her as a thumbs-up candidate who had the "courage to do what's right" in Northville Township.

Her themes included one flier which featured the outgoing supervisor squaring off positions purportedly held by Detroit Mayor Coleman Young, and another that hinted at conflict-of-interest issues surrounding Baja.

Most township voters refused to buy into the Lennox advertisements. Not so for a bevy of individuals and businesses that do business in or around Northville Township.

Karoub Associates, a Lansing lobbying firm currently retained by the township, gave $500 to the Lennox camp in late July, after the early deadline for filing campaign finance reports.

Other Lennox contributors included Abe Munfakh ($500) and Alan Rothe ($200) of Ayres, Lewis, Norris & May, engineering consultant for Northville Township and the Western Townships Utilities Authority. The Michigan Racing Association PAC contributed $500 to Lennox, and six Westland business owners and residents contributed a total of $1,175.

Additionally, Blue Heron Pointe developers Dennis Park and Earl LaFave pumped $575 into Lennox coffers, and Hal Rosin, president of Dearborn Realty — a major player in Plymouth Township real estate ventures — contributed $200.

The Detroit Edison PAC kicked in $150. Out of 27 financial contributions Lennox received on or after July 20, three were from Northville area residents.

Baja spent about $5,700 on her campaign, the money coming in primarily from two fundraisers. The second fundraiser, held at a private home in Northville, attracted 21 contributors, all but three of whom are Northville area residents. Contributors included developers R.A. DeMattia ($105) and Bill Hartsock ($370), according to campaign finance reports.

Tickets are still available to hear Plymouth resident Jim Burnstein, screenwriter and author, speak at the Ninth Annual Friends of the Northville Public Library Benefit Dinner Monday, Sept. 28.

The dinner will start at 7 p.m. at Genitti's Hole-in-the-Wall Restaurant. A cash bar social hour will begin at 6:30 p.m.

The tickets are $20 and will be available at the library desk Aug. 31 only for members of the Friends group, until Sept. 14, when they will go on sale to the general public.

The annual benefit dinner, hosted by John and Toni Genitti, is the main fund-raising event for the Friends of the Library, which are not covered by the Library's budget.

Currently, the Friends plan to place Infotrac in the library for patrons' use. This is a magazine reference retrieval service. This will be a major financial undertaking for the Friends until it can become a budget-funded item. The Friends hope for another sell-out for this year's event.

Speaker Burnstein, a native Detroiter and University of Michigan graduate, has met his two ambitions: teach Shakespeare and write drama. Since 1976, he has served as adjunct professor of English and humanities at Northwood Institute's Selfridge Extension Center.

His first professional drama, Be My Guest, became the first teleplay ever produced by a local Detroit TV station (WXYZ) to be syndicated nationally. He has since written made-for-television movies. The third, Learn to Fall, was adpated for the stage and premiered at Detroit's Attic Theater in 1988.

His first feature film, Renaissance Man, has been purchased by Touchstone Pictures, and Burnstein has just completed a rewrite of this screenplay.

His latest screenplay, Me and Ali, is being considered by producers now, and another play, Second Sons, is in the works. He also is a frequent contributor to Detroit, the Detroit Free Press Sunday magazine.

Burnstein and his wife, Cynthia, have three young children and reside in Plymouth.

PART II. Conflicting Provisions Repealed
Any Ordinance or part of Ordinances in conflict herewith are repealed save that in all other respects Ordinance No. 94, as amended, is hereby ratified and reaffirmed.

PART III. Effective Date:
The provisions of this ordinance shall be in full force and effective immediately upon publication.

PART IV. Adoption.
This ordinance was may be adopted by the Township Board of the Charter Township of Northville, pursuant to authority of Act No. 184, Public Acts of 1943, as amended at their next regular/special meeting.

Publish: September 24, 1992

Section 1 Amendment to Section 18.13 OFF-STREET PARKING SPACE LAYOUT, STANDARDS, CONSTRUCTION AND MAINTENANCE:

1. The parking area shown on the site plan shall include landscaping as described in Section 18.16 LANDSCAPING STANDARDS

Section 2 Amendment to Section 18.16 LANDSCAPING STANDARDS:

1. Purpose:

The purpose of this section is to promote the public health, safety and welfare by establishing minimum standards for the design, installation and maintenance of landscaping in parking lots, as buffer zones between uses, along and within roadways, and adjacent to the building. Landscaping is viewed as a critical factor to protect the character and stability of the township and to conserve the value of land and buildings. This ordinance is also intended to integrate the various elements of the site; preserve and enhance the identity of the site; improve and enhance the character of the site; screen or filter views, where necessary; help unify the various parts of the site; blend inharmonious land uses; buffer incompatible uses, define and articulate outdoor and architectural space; control soil erosion by slowing the effects of erosive winds or water; moderate harsh or unpleasant sounds; remove air pollutants; control glare and reflection; slow the effects of erosive winds or water and promote storm water retention, thereby helping to prevent flooding; assist in directing safe and efficient traffic flow at driveways and within parking lots; to insure adequate sight distance; insure sufficient access to fire hydrants; to reduce the impacts of glare from headlights; to distinguish and separate vehicular and pedestrian circulation; to block, divert, or channel winds; to moderate the effects of climate and to create a more desirable microclimate. The standards of this section shall apply to all projects subject to site plan review.

The landscape standards of this section are considered the minimum necessary to achieve the objectives noted above. In several instances, the standards are intentionally flexible to encourage flexibility and creative design. Applicants are encouraged to provide additional landscaping to improve the function, appearance and value of their property.

It is recognized that applying these standards fully to pre-existing sites undergoing improvement or expansion is difficult and more burdensome than applications for new developments. Therefore, the intent of these standards is to gradually bring pre-existing sites into compliance with the minimum standards herein in relationship to the extent of change on the site. In any case where the building and/or parking area is being increased by at least twenty five percent (25%) over the originally approved site plan, the site shall be brought into full compliance with the landscape standards herein. In instances where the increase in building and/or parking area is less than 25%, the extent of new landscaping shall be equal to 4% of compliance for every 1% of increase in building or parking footprint (for example, a building or parking area increase of 10% requires a 40% compliance with the landscape standards).

2. Definitions:

For the purpose of this Section, the following definitions shall apply:

a. BERM: A continuous, raised earthen mound with a flattened top and sloped sides, capable of supporting live landscaping materials, and with a height, width, and slope which complies with the requirements of this Ordinance.

b. BUFFER ZONE: A strip of land often required between certain zoning districts reserved for plant material, berms, walls or fencing to serve as a visual barrier.

c. COMMON OPEN SPACE: Designated areas unoccupied and unobstructed from the ground upward except for living plant material, recreational facilities, sidewalks, bikepaths and necessary drives within a PUD, PRUD, One Family Cluster Option projects, subdivision or condominium projects designed and intended for the use and enjoyment of the public or residents of the development and/or for the protection of natural features.

d. GRASS: Any family of plants with narrow leaves normally grown as permanent lawns in southern Michigan.

e. GREENBELT: A strip of land of definite width and location reserved for the planting of a combination of shrubs, trees, ground cover to serve as an obscuring screen or buffer for noise or visual enhancement, in accordance with the requirements of this Ordinance. In some cases a wall or fence may be permitted as part of the greenbelt.

f. GROUND COVER: Low-growing plants (including grass) that form a dense, extensive growth after one complete growing season, and tend to prevent weeds and soil erosion.

g. SHRUB: A woody plant of one (1) to thirteen (13) feet in height with several erect, spreading or prostrate stems and a general bushy appearance.

h. TREE: A woody plant with an erect perennial trunk, which at maturity is thirteen (13) feet or more in height, which has a more or less definite crown of foliage. For purposes of this Ordinance the following definitions of types of trees shall apply:

1. DECIDUOUS TREE: A tree which has foliage that is shed at the end of the growing season.

2. EVERGREEN TREE: A tree which has foliage that persists and remains green throughout the year.

3. ORNAMENTAL TREE: A deciduous tree which is typically grown because of its shape, flowering characteristics, or other attractive feature, and which grows to mature height of twenty five (25) feet or less.

4. CANOPY TREE: A deciduous tree which has a mature crown spread of greater than fifteen (15) feet and a mature height of forty (40) or more feet in southern Michigan, and which has a trunk with at least five (5) feet of clear stem at maturity.

3. Incentive for Preservation of Existing Trees Not Regulated by the Woodlands Standards:

The standards below are intended to encourage the preservation of trees not protected by Section 18.34 TREE AND WOODLANDS PROTECTION, defined herein as "nonregulated trees".

a. In instances where healthy nonregulated trees exist on a site prior to development, expansion, redevelopment or change in use, the Planning Commission may adjust the landscape standards to allow credit for such trees if such an adjustment is in keeping with, and will preserve, the intent of this Section.

b. All existing nonregulated trees must first be inspected by Township Staff to determine the health and desirability. In the event trees are to be saved, prior approval must be obtained from the Township before any delimbing, root pruning or other work is done.

c. Nonregulated trees intended to be preserved shall be indicated with a special symbol on the site plan and be protected during construction as noted in Section 18.34 TREE AND WOODLANDS PROTECTION.

d. Credit shall not be provided relative to existing trees required to be preserved pursuant to Section 18.34, TREE AND WOODLANDS PROTECTION.

e. To obtain credit the preserved nonregulated trees shall be of a high quality.

f. The credit for preserved trees shall be at the following rate:

| Diameter of Trunk of Preserved Tree * (Inches) | Numbers of Trees Credited |
| 8.0 - 11.9 | 2 |
| 2.5 - 7.9 | 1 |

* Measured at a height of four and one-half (4.5) feet above the natural grade. (Diameter at Breast Height, D.B.H.)

g. To protect and encourage the continued health of the preserved trees, the ground area within the dripline of the trees shall be maintained in vegetative landscape material or pervious surface cover. The township may allow sidewalks, bikepaths, vehicular lanes and parking within the dripline upon determining the setback from the trunk is suitable to reasonably ensure protection of the tree and the public. Storage of soils or other materials during or after construction is prohibited within the dripline.

4. Required Greenbelt Along Public Street and Private Road Frontage:

a. A greenbelt shall be planted along the right-of-way of any public street and any private road serving more than two (2) nonresidential buildings or more than four (4) dwellings. The greenbelt shall include one (1) canopy tree per forty (40) linear feet of frontage. The frontage calculation shall include any openings for driveways, sidewalks or easements, with the number of trees required rounded upward at twenty (20) foot increments.

b. The Planning Commission may approve substitution of evergreen trees for up to fifty percent (50%) of the required greenbelt trees.

c. All greenbelt trees shall be arranged to simulate a natural setting such as massings or staggered rows where a fuller screening effect is desired (refer to figure 18.16 a). The township encourages using a variety of species and sizes. A greenbelt area surrounding the trees shall include only living materials except for planting beds, approved sidewalks, bikepaths, walls or fences.

5. Landscaping in Cul-De-Sacs, at Entrances and Within Medians:

Cul-de-sacs, site entrances and boulevard medians shall be landscaped with species tolerant of roadside conditions in southeast Michigan. The landscape plan shall be approved by the Planning Commission in consideration of sight distance, size of planting area, location of sidewalks, maintenance of adequate overhead clearance, accessibility to fire hydrants (see Northville Township Ordinance, Chapter 61.390), visibility to approved signs and compatibility with the visual character of the surrounding area. Plantings within fifteen (15) feet of a fire hydrant shall be no taller than six (6) inches.

6. Landscaping as a buffer zone:

The Planning Commission may require landscaping along the periphery of any development to serve as a buffer zone from adjacent uses. This buffer zone may include trees, berms, walls or a combination.

7. Parking Lot Landscaping:

Off-street parking areas shall be provided with landscaping in accordance with the following:

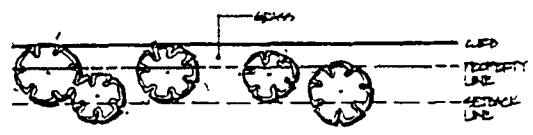

a. All of the required parking lot trees shall be placed within the parking lot envelope, described as the area including the parking lot surface and extending 18 (eighteen) feet from the edge of the parking lot, as illustrated in Figures 18.16 b. and 18.16 c. A minimum of one-third (1/3) of the trees shall be placed within the interior of the parking area.

1. In an I-1 Industrial District one canopy tree shall be required for each three thousand (3,000) square feet of the total of the paved driveway and parking lot surface. In all other districts, one canopy tree shall be required for each two thousand (2,000) square feet of paved driveway and parking lot surface, provided that in no case are less than two (2) trees provided.

2. Each tree shall be surrounded by an open land area a minimum of one hundred fifty (150) square feet to provide for adequate infiltration of water and air, and surrounded by a minimum unobstructed area of six (6) feet around the diameter of the trunk for protection. If irrigation is provided, the open land area can be reduced to a minimum of seventy five (75) square feet. Tree plantings shall also be protected from automobiles with curbing or other suitable device. Canopy trees shall have a minimum clear area between the ground and a height of four feet, six inches (4 '- 6") at maturity.

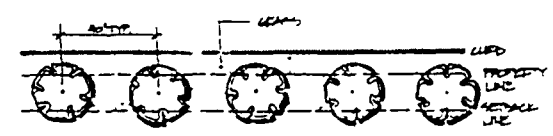

b. In no case shall the required parking area landscaping be credited toward required woodland replacement trees, greenbelts, or buffer yards.

c. Landscaping shall be installed such that, when mature, it does not obscure traffic signs or lighting, obstruct access to fire hydrants (see Northville Township Ordinance Chapter 61.390), interfere with adequate sight distance for motorists, nor disrupt drainage patterns on the site or adjacent properties.

d. Landscaping shall be dispersed throughout the parking lot in order to break up large expanses of pavement and help direct smooth traffic flow within the lot.

e. Landscaped areas shall be covered by grass or other living ground cover. A minimal amount of woodchips or similar material is permitted for planting beds, but should be identified on the landscape plan.

f. Design of Islands: The minimum standard for landscaped islands are provided below:

|---|---|
| Minimum Size | one hundred-fifty (150) square feet, seventy-five (75) square feet if irrigated |
| Minimum Width | ten (10) feet |
| Required Depth | two (2) feet shorter than adjacent parking space to improve maneuvering |
| Required Radii | Minimum Ten (10) feet at ends facing main aisles, fifteen (15) feet preferred. Minimum one (1) foot for radii not adjacent to main circulation aisles. |

8. Wall/Berm Area Landscaping (see also Section 18.17 WALLS AND BERMS, which describes which type of buffer zone, A or B, is required for specific conditions):

Landscaping for required Wall/Berm Areas shall comply with the following minimum standards. The Planning Commission may waive or adjust these standards as they relate to Section 18.17 WALLS AND BERMS.

a. Wall/Berm Landscaping Type A: Two canopy trees and four shrubs, or one canopy tree, one evergreen tree and four shrubs per each twenty (20) linear feet along the property line, rounded upward.

b. Wall/Berm Landscaping Type B: One canopy tree and four shrubs, or one evergreen tree and four shrubs per twenty (20) linear feet along the property line, rounded upward.

c. At least 50% of the shrubs shall be twenty four (24) inches tall at the time of planting, with the remainder over eighteen (18) inches. All shrubs shall be at least thirty six (36) inches high within four (4) years of initial planting.

9. Minimum Plant Material Standards:

All plant material shall be hardy to Northville Township, be free of disease and insects, and conform to the American Standard for Nursery Stock of the American Association of Nurserymen.

10. Minimum Sizes:

Minimum plant sizes at time of installation (see Figures 18.16 d and 18.16 e) shall be according to the following:

| Upright Evergreen Shrub | 2' Height |
| Spreading Evergreen Shrub | 18" - 24" Spread |

11. Plant Material Spacing:

Plantings in informal groupings to create a naturalistic appearance is desirable, to relate to Northville Township's semi-rural visual character and goals of the Master Plan. Plant materials shall not be placed closer than four (4) feet from the fence line or property line. Plant materials used together in informal groupings shall meet the following on-center spacing requirements:

15 Waiver or Modifications of Landscaping and Screening Requirements:

The Planning Commission, during Site-Plan review may determine existing landscaping or screening intended to be preserved would provide adequate landscaping and screening. The Planning Commission may also determine that dimensional conditions unique to the parcel would prevent development of required buffer zones, off-street parking area landscaping, greenbelts or required buffer zones. If such determination is made, the Planning Commission may waive or modify the landscaping provisions of this Section in consideration of, but not limited to, the following:

|---|---|
| a. | Existing natural vegetation |
| b | Topography |
| c | Existing wetland, floodplain and poor soils areas |
| d | Existing and proposed building placement |
| e | Building heights and views |
| f. | Types and distance to adjacent land uses |
| g. | Dimensional conditions unique to the parcel |
| h. | Provision of adequate sight distances for motorists |
| i | Health, safety and welfare of the Township |
| j | Future land use proposed in the Township Master Plan |
| k | Drainage conditions |

16 Installation, Maintenance, and Irrigation

a. Parking lot trees, required greenbelts, or plantings shall be planted within six (6) months from the date of completion of the building or improvement. A Final Certificate of Occupancy shall be withheld until planting has been installed and approved A Temporary Certificate of Occupancy shall be issued in the interim.

b. The following requirements for projects developed in phases: If a project is constructed in phases, the landscape may also be constructed in phases. The Township shall determine the extent and timing of landscaping within each phase based on: the necessity to buffer the proposed development from adjacent uses, anticipated commencement on subsequent phases, building heights and physical characteristics of the site such as topography or existing vegetation.

c. Landscaped areas and plant materials required by this Ordinance shall be kept free from refuse and debris. Plant materials, including lawn, shall be maintained in a healthy growing condition, neat and orderly in appearance. If any plant material required by this Ordinance dies or becomes diseased, they shall be replaced within thirty (30) days of written notice from Northville Township or within an extended time period as specified in said notice.

d. Tree stakes, guy wires and tree wrap are to be removed after one year.

e. All landscaped areas shall be provided with a readily available and acceptable water supply, or with at least one (1) outlet located within one hundred (100) feet of all planted material to be maintained.

Section 3 Amendment to Section 18.17 WALLS AND BERMS:

1. For the use districts and uses listed below, there shall be provided and maintained on those sides abutting or adjacent to a residential district, an obscuring wall or landscaped berm as required below, unless otherwise determined by the Planning Commission under paragraph 6. below. The height of the wall or berm shall be measured from the surface of the parking area or land on the nonresidential side of the wall: (Note also the requirements of Section 18.16 LANDSCAPING STANDARDS)

| | USE | HEIGHT REQUIREMENTS | WALL/BERM LANDSCAPE TYPE* |

2. In the case of variable wall or berm height requirements such as in (a), (c), (d) and (h) above, the extent of an obscuring wall or berm shall be determined by the Planning Commission on the basis of land usage.

3. Required walls shall be located on the lot line except where underground utilities interfere and except in instances where this Ordinance requires conformance with yard setback lines. Required walls may, upon approval of the Planning Commission, be located on the opposite side of an alley right-of-way from a nonresidential zone that abuts a residential zone when mutually agreeable to affected property owners. The continuity of the required wall on a given block will be a major consideration of the Planning Commission in reviewing such request.

4. Required walls shall have no openings for vehicular traffic or other purposes, except as otherwise provided in this Ordinance and except such openings as may be approved by the Planning Commission. All walls herein required shall be constructed of face brick or comparable nonporous facing materials on the exterior sides facing a residential district and shall be approved by the Chief Building Official to be durable, weather resistant, rustproof and easily maintainable and wood or wood products shall be specifically excluded. Masonry walls may be constructed with openings which do not in any square section (height and width) exceed twenty (20) percent of the surface. Where walls are so pierced, the openings shall be so spaced as to maintain the obscuring character required and shall not reduce minimum height requirement. The arrangement of the openings shall be reviewed and approved by the Chief Building Official.

5. Required berms shall be constructed as landscaped earth mounds with a crest area at least four (4) feet in width. The exterior face of the berm shall be constructed as an earthen slope. The interior face of the berm may be constructed as an earthen slope or retained by means of a wall, terrace or other means acceptable to the Chief Building Official. Whenever an earthen slope is provided, it shall be constructed with a slope not to exceed one foot of vertical rise to three feet of horizontal distance (1:3).

Berm slopes shall be protected from erosion by sodding or seeding. If slopes are seeded, they shall be protected, until the seed germinates and a permanent lawn is established by a straw mulch, hydromulching of netting specifically designed to control erosion. The berm area shall be kept free from refuse and debris and shall be planted with shrubs, trees or lawn and shall be maintained in a healthy, growing condition.

A planting plan and grading plan shall be prepared for the berm and shall be reviewed by the Planning Commission. Plant materials within the berm area shall be installed in accordance with the requirements for greenbelts and plant material as set forth in Section 18.16 LANDSCAPING STANDARDS.

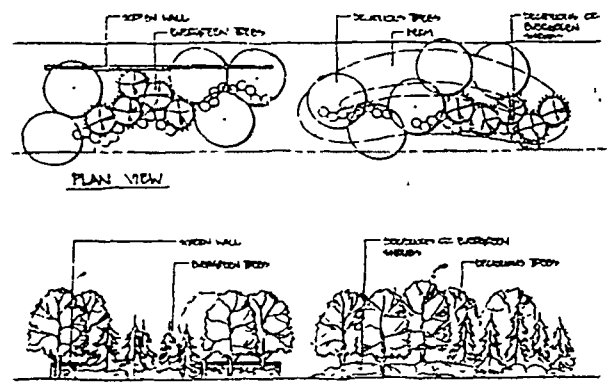

6. In those instances where the following conditions occur, the need for the wall or berm shall be determined by the Planning Commission.

a. The abutting or adjacent land is proposed on the Township Master Plan of Land Use as a use other than residential.

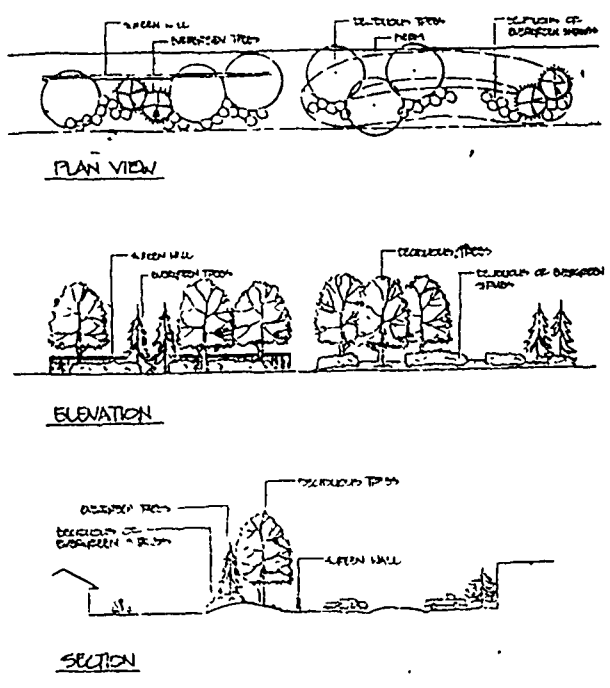

b. The abutting or adjacent land is developed for a use other than residential.

c. The Planning Commission determines that the abutting or adjacent residential district will become nonresidential in the future.

d. The abutting or adjacent residential district has physical characteristics which preclude the necessity of a wall or berm. Such conditions include but are not necessarily limited to:

WALL/BERM LANDSCAPE - TYPE A FIGURE 18.17a

Analysis estimates savings from plan

By TIM RICHARD
Staff Writer

Michigan property owners would see the value of their assets rise under the "Cut and Cap" Proposal C on the Nov. 3 ballot, says economist Patrick Anderson.

Anderson's study puts the value increase at $19 billion by 1997, the year the tax cut in Proposal C would take full effect. By that time he estimates the typical Northville home would rise in value by $5,195, with an actual cash savings on that year's taxes of $690.

"This would be over $2,000 for every Michigan resident in real, spendable wealth — a further stimulus to the Michigan economy," said Anderson.

The phenomenon is called tax capitalization. "Whenever the cost of holding an asset declines, its value increases, since the owner now will be required to pay less each year," he said.

Proposal C would cut school property taxes 30 percent over five years, requiring the state treasury to reimburse school districts for the lost revenue. It also would cap assessment increases at 3 percent or the rate of consumer price inflation, whichever is less.

Anderson is an assistant vice president at Alexander Hamilton Life Insurance Co. in Farmington Hills. He also is a senior policy advisor for the Mackinac Center, which published his study. Mackinac Center is a conservative, Midland-based think tank which opposes taxes and favors privatization of governmental services.

Proposal C is favored by Gov. John Engler, most Republicans, chambers of commerce and business. It is being fought by nearly all local governmental associations, teachers' unions, the AFL-CIO labor federation and the League of Women Voters.

For a house with a current market value of $100,000 and assessed at half of that value, a homeowner might expect to see the value rise between $4,400 and $7,400 by 1997 — over and above any normal increase due to inflation, Anderson said.

Here are his calculations for some area communities showing market valuation followed by 1997 tax bill savings:

WAYNE COUNTY
- Livonia, $5,559, $742.
- Northville, $5,195, $690.
- Westland, $7,400, $1,002.

OAKLAND COUNTY
- Farmington, $5,477, $730.
- Novi, $5,193, $690.
- Walled Lake, $6,245, $839.

"Investors in commercial properties, such as apartment and office buildings, routinely capitalize the expense and revenue streams predicted for a property when estimating its market value," Anderson says in an appendix.

For example, if an apartment building returns rents of $12,000 a month and has expenses of $10,000, its income stream is $2,000 a month or $24,000 a year. If the market value is 10 times annual income, the building is worth $24,000 times 10 or $240,000.

This explains why high-tax communities such as Oak Park and Westland would see valuation increases in the $7,400 range while lower-tax communities would see smaller valuation increases.

Total benefit to property owners by 1997 will be a net $2 billion by most estimates, including Anderson's.

Giving consumers and businesses more to spend would stimulate the economy generally, resulting in higher sales tax, income tax and single business tax revenue, Anderson said. But he did not make estimates of how much revenue this stimulation would produce.

Engler contends the state could reimburse local school districts their lost revenue by dedicating half the historical 5 percent a year growth in state revenue. He sees no need for a state tax increase.

Others are skeptical, saying some increase in state taxes would be necessary to pay for the property tax cut.

Anderson sees some disadvantages to Proposal C. One is the 3-percent "cap" on assessments. A property would be reassessed when it's sold. Thus, neighbors with identical houses would pay different tax bills.

"An assessment growth cap also creates an incentive to remain in a house long after it serves an efficient function," he said.

"The benefits of an assessment growth cap accrue mostly to stable owners in desirable areas. Renters, transient movers, young people and owners of property in less desirable areas receive less of a benefit.

"However, that is not to say they receive no benefit," he said, citing the overall benefit of a more vibrant economy.

Task force ponders police merger

By MIKE TYREE
Staff Writer

Over the past few years, local politicians talked a lot about the idea of combined city/township police services.

Historically, officials from both governments gathered, vaguely discussed the benefits of combining police dispatching, and agreed to further talks.

And after a couple of meetings, the city and township invariably split, dropping the issue amid who's-taking-over-whom disputes.

But a shift in the political and economic winds might change all that. The two police departments and their combined $3-million budgets soon could face closer scrutiny than at any point in recent memory.

One hint of movement was offered at a recent Township Board meeting, when officials announced plans to establish a task force to study township/city police consolidation.

City Council members followed suit Monday evening and gave the nod to the task force idea. Task force members will include the township supervisor and one township resident, and the city mayor and one city resident, based on early reports.

The township and city managers and respective police chiefs will serve in an advisory capacity, under the current plan.

Officials from both the city and township seem poised to scale hurdles that have stymied past consolidation talks. For one, the township's prior refusal to consolidate dispatching duties — it favored contracting its services to the city — reportedly is a thing of the past.

City officials want to consolidate, which would save some city dispatching jobs. The township reportedly is willing to negotiate the issue, which could lead to phasing out some of its dispatching employees.

Budget problems in both governments dictated renewed talks. Township Police Chief Chip Snider says his department desperately needs a new communications system. He's included a $155,000 radio in his 1993 budget request, but many in township circles consider the radio a longshot.

The city's dispatching system is only two years old, and police officials there say it could easily be modified to handle township communications. The city would stand to gain financially by releasing some — but not all — of its employees.

City Manager Gary Word said dispatching personnel decisions could be based on "seniority or some other means."

Fact-finding is the task force's main charge, Word said. No timetable has been set, but both governments hope for a streamlined process, he said.

"We need to move very quickly on dispatching," he said. "It needs to be done as soon as possible."

Township officials agree. Supervisor Betty Lennox said city and township leaders have buckled down and "finally accomplished something" after a series of false starts.

"We can't make any intelligent decisions until a study is completed," she said.

Task force findings could extend well beyond combined dispatching. But Word said complete consolidation of the two police departments hinges on a bevy of factors, including up front costs versus down-the-road savings, contract buy-outs of veteran police officers, and other issues.

Lawmakers pounce on stalking bills

Staff Writer

Four anti-stalking bills are likely to reach Gov. John Engler's desk in time to benefit both sides of the political aisle on election day.

Stalking is defined as "malicious harassment which causes substantial mental suffering or distress." It most often occurs in a husband-wife breakup.

The state House of Representatives last week adopted two bills by Rep. Dianne Byrum, a Democrat from Ingham County. She's in a tough reelection battle against the father of Engler's press secretary.

On the House floor, the bills were pushed by House Judiciary chair Perry Bullard, D-Ann Arbor, who is in a tough campaign for district judge.

House Bill 4532 creates the crime of stalking and provides for a one-year jail term and fine of $1,000. HB 6038 would allow a warrantless arrest of someone violating an anti-stalking court order. They sailed through the House Thursday on 103-0 votes.

But the House held up action on Senate Bill 619, by Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, creating the crime of "aggravated stalking," a five-year felony.

The bill sat in Bullard's committee since the Senate passed it in May and was reported out only last week. Geake is in a tough campaign battle for U.S. Congress.

Geake was unperturbed that the House failed to vote on his bill. "They want the bills to come out together," he said.

Meanwhile, the Senate Judiciary Committee reported out the fourth bill in the package — Geake's SB 1095 would allow civil lawsuits for damages caused by stalking and allow victims to obtain court orders against the stalker.

"This creates the new tort of stalking. It allows exemplary damages, court costs and reasonable attorney fees," Geake told the panel.

"Victims of domestic violence are a big percentage of the victims of stalking," said Kathy Hagenian of Safe House in Ann Arbor. "They have no remedy until the stalker takes action."

"There are 27,000 domestic crimes a year," said Kate Young of the state Department of Social Services. "They often occur when a victim has fled for safety. We think in the long run this bill will save lives."

The Senate Judiciary Committee reported out the bills to the Senate floor on a 3-0 vote. They are likely to be voted on this week.

Voting yes were Republicans William Van Regenmorter of Jenison, Dan DeGrow of Port Huron and Jon Cisky of Saginaw. Missing the vote were Democrats Virgil Smith of Detroit and John Kelly of Grosse Pointe.

Speed reader sets personal best for summer reading

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

Talk about great expectations.

Ryan Mae Kelly of Northville laughed when she heard she could win a prize for reading just 10 books over the summer, through Northville Public Library's "Read, Rock and Rap" program.

"I did that in the first two days," the precocious 9-year-old said.

The program inspired Ryan to see how many books she could finish, and the number is impressive. Ryan read 114 books in those three months, and she has the pages-long list to prove it. But the book binge is not unusual when you consider that Ryan's love of literature began before she ever hopped on a school bus.

Ryan's mother, Michelle, helped instill reading skills in her daughter early on, trying to teach Ryan to read by holding flash cards up to her from the time she was six months old.

"Everybody thought I was crazy at the time," Michelle said.

But the early word play must have helped, she said. "Ryan started reading when she was 3, and by the time she got to kindergarten, she was reading the Little House on the Prairie books."

> "I (read 10 books) in the first two days."
> RYAN MAE KELLY
> Champion reader

Books obviously continue to play an important role in Ryan's life. "She's the kind of kid that reads with a flashlight under the covers at night," Michelle said.

When she peeks out from under those covers, Ryan can admire the murals of her favorite Beatrix Potter characters that are painted on the far wall, while reaching for a selection from her well-stocked bookshelves.

Ryan has so many books, in fact, that she lends some to friends. And like a real librarian, she levies fines against late returns.

"If it's just late a few days or something, the fine is 50 cents," Ryan said. "But if it's a long time like two months, a dollar or two."

Not surprisingly, Ryan's current tastes in literature are not limited to typical fourth-grade fare.

Among her favorite books, Ryan listed Oliver Twist and Matilda, the story of a girl not unlike the Northville prodigy. "She's really, really smart, and she can read all these books including Charles Dickens even though she's only in kindergarten," the real-life Matilda said.

"She's a girl after Ryan's heart," her mom noted.

Fitness outlet hosts run, walk

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

Pavement-pounders and fitness buffs, rejoice: A new downtown running store is sponsoring a fun run for this weekend.

Fleet Feet Sports, at 141 E. Main St., will host a 5-mile fun run and 2-mile fitness walk through town Sunday, Sept. 27, to celebrate the store's grand opening.

Owner Doug Dreher has been planning a series of events including presentations on health and fitness since he opened the doors at Fleet Feet Sports Aug. 15. The events kick off tomorrow, Sept. 25.

"It's an added incentive" for shoppers, Dreher said. "They may come in to hear the speakers when they otherwise wouldn't come in to the store."

Before the games begin, Fleet Feet will host presentations on the latest research on health and fitness. Judy Swancott, a registered dietitian with Botsford Hospital's Center for Health Improvement explains current developments in sports nutrition at 7 p.m. tomorrow, and at 8 p.m. Fleet Feet vice president Tom Raynor outlines a realistic high performance training schedule, for "maximizing performance without giving up your paycheck."

New Attitude Aerobics of Northville presents a step aerobics demonstration at 11 a.m. Saturday. From noon to 4 p.m., exercise physiologist Edmund Pienkosz of Novi's Total Rehabilitation & Athletic Conditioning Center offers Micro Fit Testing sessions, including body fat analysis.

Saturday evening, sit in on a question-and-answer session with Dr. Owen Anderson, a nationally recognized expert on training, sports medicine and nutrition. Anderson, a regular columnist for Runner's World and publisher of the Running Research News newsletter, fields questions from 4-6 p.m.

The fun run starts in front of Fleet Feet at 9:30 Sunday morning and heads west on Main Street to Beck Road, south to Seven Mile and back east to Clement. On Clement, the route winds north to Bloomcrest, east to Northview and back onto Clement, where it heads east on Lexington Boulevard and Potomac.

At Rogers, the route goes south again, turning east onto Dunlap to Edward's Caterer east of Main, and finishing next to Edward's behind Fleet Feet's store.

The fitness walk heads west one mile from the front of Fleet Feet Sports, to a spot just west of Clement, before returning east on Main and finishing behind Fleet Feet.

Following the race, participants can enter random drawings for prizes from the store. Micro Fit Testing will be available again Sunday between 12-2 p.m.

Fleet Feet Sports boasts a growing selection of aerobic outfits and equipment, swimwear, and shoes for running, walking, hiking, aerobics and cross-training.

For more information on the store or this weekend's events, call 380-FEET.

PIRGIM pushes for recycling

The Public Interest Research Group in Michian (PIRGIM) is launching its Reduce, Reuse, and Recycle Campaign in Northville this week.

PIRGIM has joined with the state PIRGs across the country in this national recycling campagn, aimed at ending the "throwaway society" and building a solid waste policy based on reducing, reusing and recycling.

According to the Paige Lieberman, campaign director, "Americans are only 5 percent of the world's population, but we produce over 50 percent of the world's garbage. This garbage is choking our communities with an enormous solid-waste crisis. Congress should support the only solution that makes environmental and economic sense: reduce, reuse and recycle.

The PIRGs are focusing their campaign on Congress' reauthorization of the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act (RCRA), the nation's primary solid waste law. The Reduce, Reuse and Recycle Campaign urges Congress to incorporate three key reforms during the reauthorization:

- A National Bottle Bill (H.R. 4343 and S.2335), just like the Michigan law that has been so effective at recycling beverage containers since 1976.
- Provisions to create recycling markets (H.R. 3939) by setting recycled content standards for packaging and newspapers and by increasing industry involvement in purchasing of recycled goods.
- A moratorium on the construction of solid waste incinerators until the year 2000 (H.R. 3253). In addition to creating serious environmental hazards, incinerators unnecessarily burn materials that should be reused and recycled.

PIRGIM representatives are going door-to-door in Northville on a membership drive, speaking to residents about the garbage problem and building support for the campaign. PIRGIM also is gathering signatures on postcards to members of Congress, urging their support for these provisions. The postcards are part of a national dirve that plans to deliver hundreds of thousands of signatures to members of Congress over the next six months. The PIRG's campaign plans include an extensive door-to-door membership drive that will contact millions of Americans from Hawaii to Maine and Alaska to Florida, urging their active support for the Reduce, Reuse and Recycle Campaign.

"Recycling is at a crossroad in this country," said Paige Lieberman. "Many American consumers are doing their part by separating their garbage for recycling. Unfortunately, industry isn't using much of these recycled materials in their products. It's time for Congress to step in and create the needed markets for recyclables by setting recycled content standards and government purchasing policies for recycled goods. American consumers deserve these basic reforms to ensure that recycled materials don't just get warehoused, buried or burned."

"On the one hand, landfills are filling up and closing down, and incinerators spew pollutants into our air and land. On the other hand, recycling protects the environment while creating jobs and conserving our precious resources," concluded Lieberman.

Library plan faces review

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

Northville moved one step closer to a district library recently as city and township officials agreed to help fund a legal review of the district library proposal.

The estimated $3,200 in legal fees will be split among the city, township and Friends of the Northville Library.

The mutual agreement follows a vote by the District Library Planning Committee to retain the services of Cynthia Faulhaber of Miller, Canfield, Paddock & Stone. Faulhaber "is widely recognized as an authority on forming district libraries, and is highly recommended by libraries in this area and the Wayne Oakland Library Federation," according to a memo to municipal officials from Library Director Pat Orr.

Faulhaber's duties will include drafting the district library agreement and filing it with the Library of Michigan, and may include preparing bylaws and other rules of conduct for the library's operation.

City Council members approved allocating up to $1,100 in a proportionate share with the township at its Sept. 8 meeting, and the township Board of Trustees followed suit Sept. 10.

The city's share will come from its existing legal services budget.

Library officials raised the possibility of a district library in March, following a $72,000 cut in their operating budget and resulting cutbacks in library staff and operating hours. The City Council and Township Board approved further study and appointed a district library planning committee in April.

Michigan's Library Establishment Act of 1989 allows two or more municipalities to create a district library with its own board of elected or appointed members, funded by a special district-wide millage between 1 and 2 mills. In Northville, a 1-mill levy would raise $623,000 for library operations, while 2 mills would raise $1,246,000.

If all goes as scheduled by the district library planning committee, Northville voters could see a district library millage request as soon as February 1993.

Cady lot rezoned amid ire

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

The vitriol continued to flow Monday as a Cady Street homeowner's sons chastised the city for attempting to rezone their mother's property.

But their scathing attacks failed to dissuade the council from changing the residential property from R-3 (multi-family) to R-1B (single-family). Council members called the original R-3 designation from 1974 an example of spot zoning, and agreed that the 2.12-acre property's potential redevelopment as a 32-unit apartment complex "would have a detrimental impact on the neighborhood."

Their 4-0 vote to rezone followed a planning commission recommendation and two public hearings, one before the commission July 21 and the other before the council Sept. 8. Neighbors at the Sept. 8 meeting submitted a petition with 40 signatures supporting the change.

But George Kohs Jr., whose mother owns 473 W. Cady St., on Monday continued to charge the commission with incompetence and called planning consultant Don Wortman "a bald-faced liar," saying the consultant claimed to have completed an impact study on the property before recommending that it be rezoned. The commission also claimed that the rezoning would have "no impact" on the property's value, he said.

Planning Commissioner David Totten denied the charges, saying he did not recall those claims being made.

Kohs' brother Gary said Wortman claimed that 80 units could be developed on the site. But what Wortman actually said July 21 was, "I don't doubt that 40-50 units could conceivably be built on this property."

Mayor Chris Johnson, over George Kohs' interruptions, disagreed with his description of the planning consultant as a liar. Whether or not the Planning Commission knew the property's acreage or how many apartment units could be built there, Johnson said, the council did know and would base its decision on the correct information.

"I think you've missed the point," Johnson said

"No, I think you've missed the point," Kohs responded, his voice rising.

"I know you think I've missed the point . . . That doesn't have anything to do with the issue before us tonight," Johnson said before seeking input from other audience members.

The Kohs family also questioned why the commission dropped a proposed rezoning of several Wing Street properties from general commercial district to residential. "It bears an identical resemblance to my parents' property," Gary said.

The Kohs' R-3 property is surrounded by R-1B parcels, including a school services center and a cemetery, while the several Wing Street properties south of Dunlap abut a GCD-zoned service station and sit across from a public parking lot on the border of the city's Central Business District.

City Manager Gary Word said the commissioners decided against pursuing a rezoning of the Wing Street properties "because they felt that it did not have the same public impact that the rezoning of your property did."

The council cited Word's recommendation to rezone the property in their vote. Word had noted that R-1B zoning is consistent with the city's Master Plan and that R-3 zoning is inconsistent with the surrounding single-family residential land use.

"I consider that this particular area is . . . spot zoning, and it is inconsistent with the rest of the neighborhood," said Mayor Pro Tem Carolann Ayers. Council members Johnson, Jerry Mittman and Mark Cryderman agreed.

Council Member Paul Folino, who had suggested postponing the decision at the council's Sept. 8 meeting, did not attend Monday's session due to illness.

A Cancer That's Preventable

"Cancer!"

The very word strikes fear into the hearts of adults across the country. And, some 500,000 fellow citizens will find out this year they have cancer . . . skin cancer.

That's the bad news. The good news is skin cancer is usually the most curable of all malignancies.

What Causes Skin Cancer

Too much sun is one to the major causes of skin cancer. Too much sun also plays a vital role in causing your skin to age faster than it needs to.

Overexposure to X-rays also seems to have a direct correlation to the development of skin cancer.

It's also true blue-eyes blonds are more susceptible to skin cancer, as are people who are past middle age.

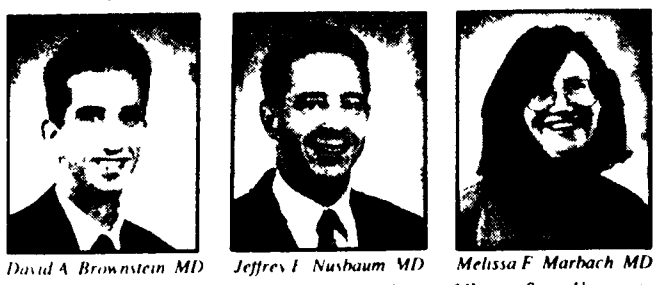

One way to help prevent skin cancer is to avoid overexposure to the sun and to X-rays. It's a good idea, too, to keep track of the health of your skin and consult your physician right away if you notice a skin problem that doesn't heal promptly and properly or if you see a change in the size, color or appearance of any moles.

If Skin Cancer Is Diagnosed

What can be done if you do develop skin cancer? Surgery is sometimes prescribed. And sometimes that surgery can be performed right in the physician's office! Radiation, too, can be called for. And chemotherapy can also be effective.

Remember: skin cancer is the most common type of cancer there is. It's also the most easily cured if detected in time.

For more information on skin cancer or any other health matter, contact the family practice physicians at Providence Medical Center-Northville — where we care for you and your family.

I was glad I'd chosen Hutzel. [illegible] pregnancy, Breanan[illegible] was described as [illegible] room-one-[illegible] and recovery [illegible] Hutzel. [illegible]

I wanted to know my baby and I would also have the most knowledgeable specialists and the latest medical technology nearby. So I chose The Detroit Medical Center's Hutzel Hospital.

To my surprise, Hutzel's private LDRP (Labor, Delivery, Recovery, Post Partum) rooms were among the most spacious and beautiful I'd seen. I was glad I could be in one—and that I'd chosen Hutzel. Because at the last minute, my baby developed complications and a team of Hutzel specialists was right there to provide the care we both needed.

Like a lot of other women, I've learned there's no such thing as a "routine" pregnancy. Thank goodness there's Hutzel Hospital.

Hold off on Water and Sewer hire, officials urge

board-elect members are questioning the township's apparent push to fill the position before Nov. 20, when the current board leaves office.

The township recently advertised the position and set an Oct. 2 cut-off date to receive resumes. The Township Board potentially could hear and okay a recommendation at its October or November sessions, thus handing the new board a department head and contract it did not approve.

Supervisor-elect Karen Baja and Clerk-elect Sue Hillebrand last week asked the township Water and Sewer Commission to hold off on a hiring recommendation until after the new board takes office.

Baja and Hillebrand called the possible hiring of Holinoty's replacement "inappropriate" in a letter to the commission. The two said a contracted interim replacement has capably handled the job and should continue in the role until the new board takes office.

Bill Anderson, an engineer with Ayres, Lewis, Norris & May, the township's engineering firm, has filled in at the Water and Sewer Department on a part-time basis. Baja and Hillebrand said they have heard "nothing but good reports" about Anderson, and see no reason for an abrupt new hire.

Trustee Thomas Handyside has served as chairperson of the Water and Sewer Commission. He recently said the water and sewer department has been "a ship without a rudder since (Holinoty) died" and that the township should move ahead with the hiring process.

Handyside this week praised Anderson's efforts, calling him the "savior of the department" but said a full-time superintendent has long been needed.

During the past few months the commission has moved to fill the position, Handyside said, and recent movement is not an indication of post-primary-election job shuffling.

"I think they began putting together some qualifications for this a couple of months ago," he said.

Handyside said he had not seen the letter from Hillebrand and Baja and did not say if he favored a decision before the new board takes office.

But he made it clear that the post should be filled soon.

"Timing is not essential, but it needs to get done," he said.

The township is seeking a candidate with a bachelor of science degree with course work in water hydraulics and sanitation, or the equivalent, and with a minimum four years experience in water and sewer system operations with Michigan Department of Public Health S-2 rating obtainable.

The salary listed in the township's advertisement, published in The Detroit News and Michigan Chronicle, is $32,000 annually, with some negotiations possible.

Many similarly sized communities are looking for civil engineers to head up public works departments. A review of a recent public works trade publication indicates that a bachelor's degree in civil engineering is a preferred — in most cases mandatory — requirement for public works supervisory positions.

Two face drug charges

Taylor Police Chief Thomas Bonner — each pleaded not guilty to charges of possession with intent to deliver slightly more than one pound of marijuana. The two were released on $10,000 personal bond and await an Oct. 2 preliminary examination.

The third suspect, Jack Malaney, 34, of Northville, was arraigned Friday and released on bond Saturday. Malaney faces gun and drug charges in the wake of an early Sept. 17 raid of his 48465 Seven Mile home that netted local law enforcement officials about 32 pounds of marijuana, 12 guns, and $6,000 cash, township police said.

Malaney's preliminary examination is scheduled for Sept. 25 at 35th District Court. Police are continuing the investigation, and are especially interested in Malaney, who one police official said "could be the tip of the iceburg" of the drug business in Northville.

Police said Malaney, the owner of a Garden City tanning salon and reportedly a booking agent for Detroit-area topless and bottomless clubs, was not targeted for investigation before late Sept. 16, when a simple driving error provided the loose thread that unraveled the case, police said.

Police said Officer John Werth was on patrol on eastbound Seven Mile near Silver Spring about 10:30 p.m. Sept. 16 when two westbound vehicles passed him. One of the vehicles — a Pontiac Grand Prix — reportedly crossed the Seven Mile center line and Werth decided to follow the cars.

The two vehicles appeared to be traveling together and continued to the Seven Mile/Northville Road intersection. The Grand Prix was followed by a 1990 Dodge Shadow, and both stopped in the left turn only lane before making a "sharp right turn" onto Northville Road, Werth said.

The vehicles turned west on Seven Mile after the short jog on Northville Road. The cars eventually split, with the Grand Prix heading north on Sheldon Road into Northville and the Dodge continuing west on Seven Mile, Werth said.

Werth followed the Dodge and stopped the vehicle near Eight Mile and Beck. Braun, the driver, acted nervous, according to police reports, and Werth asked him to step from the vehicle.

Werth said he became suspicious when Braun said he worked for a lawn service. Werth said Braun denied having any drugs in the car and agreed to let the officer search the vehicle.

Braun and Bonner both refused to let police search the vehicle's trunk, but a speaker system setup in the vehicle's hatchback area allowed an unobstructed view of the trunk, Werth said. In the trunk was a pound of marijuana wrapped in brick form in a plastic bag, police said.

Two small plastic bags of marijuana were discovered in another compartment in the vehicle, along with $900 cash, Werth said.

The two men were arrested, and later told police they were en route to a township residence to purchase another half-pound of marijuana.

mother, Kris. "It's just nice to get dressed up and pretend you're someone else, and escape reality for a while."

Northville residents Heidi and Mike Needham brought their children Emily and David to the fair Sunday, and stayed through the afternoon. "We just left straight from church," Heidi said.

The Needhams stopped in at the PTA Coordinating Council's Box Lunch Auction and submitted a winning bid to auctioneer Dr. Rudy for a well-stocked picnic basket from Amerman School. They ate their prize on the lawn at Mill Race Village.

The family was not alone at Mill Race either, sharing the village with dozens of other families enjoying the strains of dulcimer and autoharp music from the hands of Hugh and Mary Lou Battley, Valerie Karhu and Shirley Keyser. The four instrumentalists sat inside a picket fence in front of the 141-year-old Hunter House, to the delight of the curious that threaded their way through the home for a glimpse into 19th Century life.

Through it all, Michelle "Queen Victoria" Kelly strolled through town in her converted wedding gown, riding in a horse-drawn carriage or towing daughters Ryan Mae and Megan behind her in their royal wagon. "When a 36-year-old mother of four can be made a queen, what a great town," Kelly said.

It was good to be the queen, Kelly said, but it did take a while to become one. Elizabeth's Bridal Manor outfitted Kelly daily in her royal gown and tiara, and Inge Zayti of the Marquis Theater provided appropriately regal jewelry. Kelly's tresses were dressed by Studio 424 stylist Linda Stubbe in a two-hour process each day, while Mary Perna of Balardi's Hair Salon provided the final facial and make-up session.

Even so, Kelly added, the competition may be fierce for the prestigious title of Queen Victoria next year. "I probably talked to 50 women who wanted to know what they had to do to be queen."

Northville's sixth annual Art Market was expanded this year with 65 artists. Their booths offered everything from bold paintings and bronze animal busts of Sterling Heights artisan "Sam" Vogel Nowels and her son Mark, to whimsical clay figurines of dragons and chickens by Ann Arbor sculptor Eric Evans.

White Lake photographer Carl Sams II captured "Best of Show" for his expressive shots of deer in the fog, birds on the wing and a porcupine peering around a fence post. "I named her Tina because she reminds me of Tina Turner," Sams said, and the spiked porcupine did bear a striking resemblance to the wild-haired singer.

This year's fine art show was a great improvement over last year's, Sams said, especially from a meteorological perspective.

"I was here during the tornado when everybody got blown away," he recalled. "The whole street disappeared . . . It was not a whole lot of fun."

But given his popularity with both the judges and spectators, Sams predicted that he would return for the fifth annual festival. "I'll be back next year," he said. "After winning best of show, I'd better."

Entertainment and art were not the only things that the weekend's visitors had an appetite for, Marrs said. Nearly every vendor ran out of food at some point, and had to restock their supplies. "We sold 1,000 chicken breast sandwiches (through the chamber of commerce), and Kiwanis sold 2,000 sausages . . . Rotary sold out of their hot dogs twice and they sold 1,700 hot dogs," she said.

Festival organizers planned to meet yesterday to review the festival and begin laying groundwork for the next one.

"I'm already looking forward to next year," Marrs said.

For more photos of the festival, see pages 8-A and 9-A.

RECORD OPINION

Our Opinion

Mainstreet '92 plan is blueprint for future

Northville is updating its Mainstreet '78 plan after 14 years, and to no one's surprise the new version is somewhat controversial.

What may be more surprising is that the plan has not stirred up more controversy than it has. The visionary Mainstreet '78 plan that spurred downtown's face-lift was not without its detractors, especially when city streets were torn up to put power lines underground.

The new plan — titled Mainstreet '92 — would expand the downtown development district to include the vacant Ford Valve Plant and the Main Street properties across the street, as well as properties on the south side of Cady between Center and Griswold streets. The aim is to allow downtown to expand and increase the city's commercial tax base. Bringing in added tax dollars without the demand on services like schools should please all taxpayers by lightening the tax burden on them.

But the main goal of this year's model is to finance a new 470-space Cady Street parking deck. Some naysayers claim the city does not need that many more parking spaces, but that claim seems hollow.

If the city is to expand its commercial tax base as Mainstreet '92 suggests, then a new deck ought to be built to meet the need for new customer parking. Retail/office projects like CadyCentre and the Longs' Main Street proposal remain in the wings, waiting only for a healthier economy. The city should be applauded for taking a proactive stance rather than waiting to respond to a greater parking deficit.

Speaking of deficits, much of the plan's financial figures still need to be finalized. Tentative plans are to finance the $6 million in improvements through a 15- or 20-year bond issue paid off by captured tax revenue from businesses within an expanded downtown development district.

We'll withhold comment on that aspect of the plan until we see the final numbers, and hear the comments from affected taxing units like Northville Public Schools. Because the plan would use tax capturing, the school system would be foregoing inflationary increases in local commercial tax revenues over the life of the bond. Though DDA plans can be pushed through over another taxing authority's objections, school officials were generous enough to support the Mainstreet '78 plan. Their attitude may differ this time around given the school system's recent fiscal woes.

While their input is needed, we hope the schools and other taxing authorities see the wisdom of this plan and can appreciate the positive impact it will have on the city and community as a whole.

New board should be the say on hire

We've already been through this a few times, but let's try it once more: The current Township Board and Water and Sewer Commission should not proceed with plans to interview and hire a new Water and Sewer superintendent before Nov. 20, when the new board takes office.

Frankly, we're getting a bit weary of this whole business. Since Aug. 3, when local voters overwhelmingly tossed local longtime incumbent politicians from their assorted thrones, the old guard has scrambled and scraped to fill virtually every job in every nook and cranny in this political landscape.

The Western Townships Utilities Authority has been the worst and most blatant violator, handing out jobs to attorneys, spending taxpayer dollars on a "personnel policy" meant to insulate political appointees, and scheduling a hire of an operations and maintenance manager, all before August primary victors take office.

We've criticized WTUA for those moves and will add our dismay to the township's apparent attempt to fill the Water and Sewer slot. Simply stated, the public should shoot down any effort to rush a department head hire before it gets to the Township Board level.

No ifs, ands, or buts. The board needs to follow its earlier pledge to avoid making decisions that should be left in the hands of its successors. This clearly is one of those occasions to defer. A capable fill-in administrator is already in place and is good enough — in everyone's mind — to hold the Water and Sewer Department together just a few more weeks.

It's frustrating to have to waltz through this whole bit again. Don't these people get it? Don't they realize voters have seen enough of the backroom wheeling and dealing that led to the August broom?

They may realize it, but it's apparent the old cast of characters don't care, and would rather showcase in their waning days the arrogance that fostered the fall of the old boy empire.

Well, we've seen about enough featherbedding attempts. Hurry up, Nov. 20, before they sell the farm.

Waste plagues business, too

I shudder, in this political season, as candidates and plain citizens declare, "Government should be run like a business."

The Perot types assert there is much waste in government, all the way from the U.S. Capitol to the school administration — as if there weren't in business, too.

Think first of Domino's Pizza's gaudy display of conspicuous electrical consumption in honor of the Baby Jesus in December. No governmental agency, not even the Weinberger Defense Department, blew money so uselessly.

Think also of the $10-million golden parachute K mart directors have stitched together for five top execs if ever there's "a change in control."

I quote from page 13 of the proxy statement dated April 15 and ask if you've ever heard of anything like this in government:

"The Company estimates that if Messers J.E. Antonini (chairman, CEO and president), R.S. Miller (EVP of U.S. Kmart stores), G.R. Mrkonic (EVP of specialty retailing), J.R. Thomas (EVP of international and administration) and G.R. Mielke (president and CEO of the Builders Square subsidiary) were terminated in 1992 following a change in control of the Company, the total severance payments to those persons under the agreements, as described in (i) above, would be approximately $10,091,538 net of income tax."

That's $2 million per man — after taxes.

Moreover, their severance benefits include (i) cash payment of two years salary (three years for Joe Antonini), including the most recent bonus, (ii) two years life and health benefits (three years for Joe), (iii) a cash payment equal to the value inherent in their stock options and (iv) some pension benefits (also on page 13).

Under item (iii), Antonini holds stock options exercisable for 431,600 shares; Miller for 182,900 shares; and Thomas for 256,200 shares (see pages 3-4).

The benefits received by Jimmy Carter and Jim Blanchard, the last president and governor we bounced from office, are piddling compared to what they get at K mart, which is probably typical of large companies.

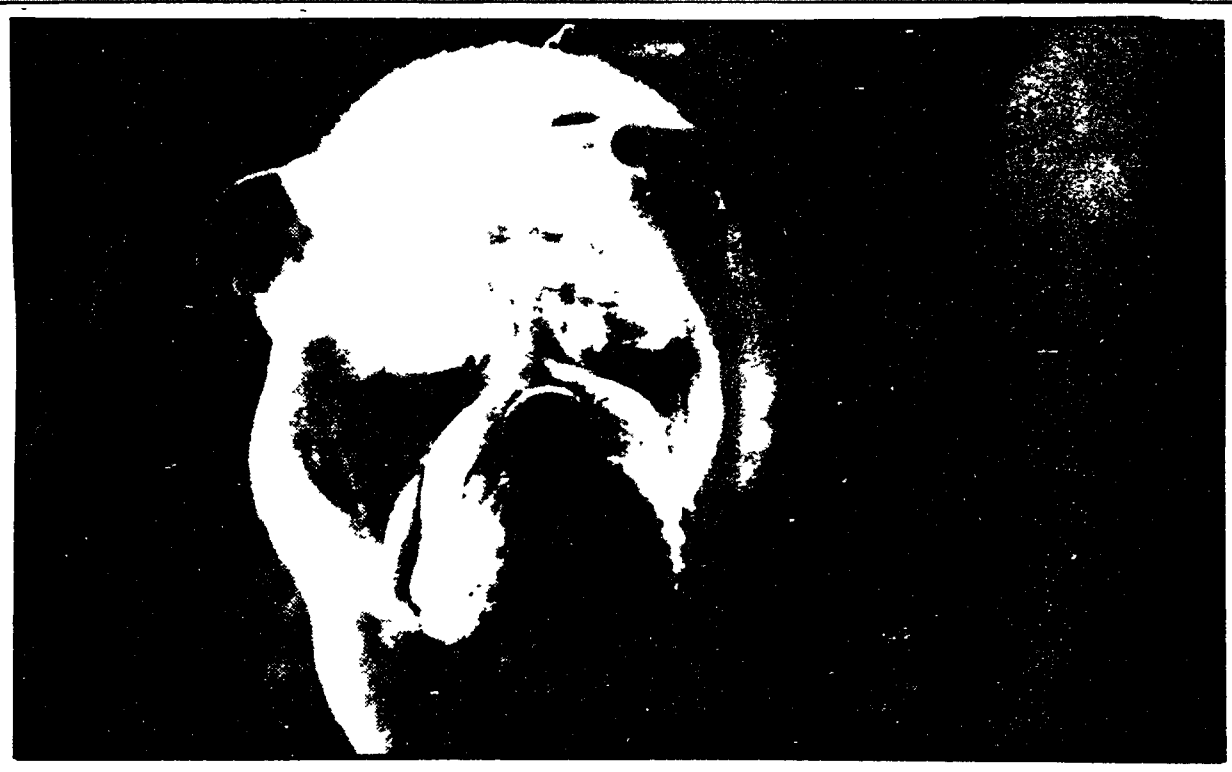

"Run government like a business" indeed!

Job training: an issue for all

Michigan, like the rest of America, is becoming suburbanized. This fundamental change in demography, symbolized so aptly here in Chrysler Corp.'s move from urban Highland Park to suburban Auburn Hills, will drive politics for at least 25 years to come.

To demonstrate, just compare the elections of 1960 and 1988.

Detroit cast 22 percent of the total Michigan vote in 1960. The Detroit vote was 71 percent Democratic, so John F. Kennedy took a 312,000-vote lead out of Detroit. The Detroit suburbs also gave Kennedy an 84,000-vote edge; and Michigan went for JFK.

But by 1988, Detroit votes had plummeted to just 8 percent of the total in Michigan. Even though Michael Dukakis got an 85-percent margin from Detriot voters and a 217,000-vote lead coming out of Detroit, it couldn't stand up in the suburbs. Now accounting for fully one-third of Michigan's total vote, suburbanites voted 60 percent for George Bush, their 320,000-vote lead wiping out the Democrats' margin from Detroit.

Another fact to show how important the Michigan suburbs have become: Bush's total margin in Michigan (290,000) was far greater than his total vote in Detroit (44,000). In other words, George Bush could have won Michigan without getting a single vote in Detroit.

From 1948 to 1960, Democratic presidential candidates opened their campaigns at Labor Day parades in Detroit. In 1992, Bush came to Canton Township.

So how do the Democrats get around the growing size and increasing anti-tax Republicanism of the suburbs? The answer is they must learn to understand and target suburban voters.

This isn't easy, especially when Democrats to win have to retain the votes from the inner cities, while Republicans can afford to virtually ignore them. Worse, Democrats have to figure out how to sell their vision of an activist government to a suburban constituency that is largely anti-tax because it is made up predominantly of property owners.

One important lesson Democrats should have learned by now is this: There's the biggest possible difference between government programs that take everybody's tax money and spend it on a minority and those that spend taxes to help out everybody.

It's the difference between social welfare programs and public works. Some examples:

- The New Deal was not a social welfare program. It was a public works program created to benefit everybody in the face of the Great Depression, a natural disaster that affected everybody. Its popularity created the modern Democratic Party.
- The War on Poverty was a social welfare program. Focused on the poor and dispossessed, and erected just prior to the Great Inflation, it was deeply unpopular. The political backlash created the modern Republican Party.
- Even though involving the often wasteful and inefficient expenditure of colossal sums, Social Security and Medicare are so popular as to be untouchable. They are entitlements, benefiting everybody. Any party that proposes big changes in these programs had better watch out.

A current example of this insight can be found in the suddenly popular field of job training.

Traditionally, politicians have looked on job training as targeted toward minorities: the illiterate, the out of work, the displaced, the unskilled. And as long as job training was conceived as a social welfare program created to benefit the few, it remained unappreciated, unpopular, unfunded.

But the notion is now being recast. Job training is needed for everybody — kids leaving school to enter the work force and all workers now on the job — because we are in international competition with better skilled economies. All of a sudden job training has become human investment, a perfectly appropriate and politically popular object of government.

(Next week: two choices.)

Don't add more long-term debt

To the editor:

The City Council and its recreation officials really know what ths city needs, yes sir; a commitment for five to 10 years of financing of $205,000 plus the use of the $109,000 park fund balance to build a park two and a half miles away and right next to a prison area.

The news reports must be wrong, the city doesn't need money, the schools don't need money because we have plenty of dollars to invest in this kind of project.

What does it take, to make our council and others in government realize that we cannot continue to spend and long-term finanace? There are times to say "no" and this is one of them.

William C. Soelhner

Class of '42 looks forward to next 50

To the editor:

We, the members of the Class of 1942, wish to thank your staff for helping us to have a successful 50th reunion.

These first 50 years went so fast it seems like only yesterday we received our diplomas.

Thank you again.

Where were you during abortion war?

To the editor:

I recently spotted an article title "What did you do during the abortion war, Daddy?" by Father James Gilhooley in Our Sunday Visitor, a paper I picked up after Mass last week. It's more or less a replica of what Dr. James Dobson says on his show, Focus on the Family, on the radio stations WCN and WUFL.

The article included a quote from Fahrenheit 451 by Ray Bradbury, "I saw the way things were going, a long time back. I said nothin. I. . . could have spoken up . . . but I did not speak and thus became guilty myself."

Gilhooley contended in his article that, "The Roe vs. Wade decision will surely be eventually overturned, just as the equally infamous Nazis were. And then, inquisitive students will begin to investigate the Catholic community in the United States. 'What did you do during the abortion war, Daddy?' They will put their research into print and film . . . These researchers will, I fear, conclude that the silence of many of us was an important part of the problem."

The trouble is that so many people are either not taking the abortion issue seriously enough or are more concerned with women's choice than about saving lives of the unborn. (Re: The Democratic Party)

The plain fact is that the women are "ALIVE" to make a choice. The bottom line is that millions of lives are being taken annually and the "powers that be" are letting them do it, from the Supreme Court on down. These "powers that be" surely are aware that they, too, have a choice: of either letting this senseless "mass killing" go on or succumbing to a "higher authority," almighty God. Because, let's face it, people — God created all of us as spiritual beings. Beneath our thick or thin skins lays the knowledge of Yahweh — or omnipotent supreme being and one day we will have to stand in front of Him and give an account of ourselves. I don't know about you, but if I wasn't a Christian, that would scare me more than my son or daughter asking me why I stood around and did nothing; or even worse, contributed to the slaughter.

Again, I say this to you: what are we teaching our children?

Northville displays good stuff

To the editor:

The residents of the Northville area not only showed us of what good stuff they are made; we feel they outdid themselves with their efforts on behalf of the Florida hurricane victims during our hurricane relief collection drive Sept. 4, 5 and 6. In those short three days with only one day's notice they donated almost $4,500 in retail value of foodstuffs, bottled water, baby and children's items and general non-clothing necessities.

We offer our thanks to the many unnamed volunteers who helped us pass out the flyers throughout the city and township area. We also specifically thank Brownie Girl Scout Troop No. 975 and Silver Springs Cub Pack 712 for their such efforts. In addition, special thanks go to Urban Partition and Black's Hardware for use of their trucks, and to InfoGraphics and Press Stock for their donations. A very honorable mention must go to the local pizza delivery businesses which included copies of our fliers with the pizzas they delivered, both Domino's and Papa Romano's. And I must say we were awed by the 70 cases of cranberry sauce delivered to us by Jan Kightlinger and Michele Platz from the downtown Northville Papa Romano's. Also, our sincere thanks to the "unknown" humanitarians who not only delivered but neatly stacked the pallet of bottled water on our truck while we were collecting at another location in town.

The collection box at Shopping Center Market established for our drive inside their store was very helpful, and, of course, the cooperation of the many Northville area merchants in allowing us to post our fliers in their windows and on their counters greatly increased the results achieved by our unified efforts.

There are a lot of great and caring people in this community. They have proven they are a can-do and will-do group of people.

Thank you all.

Attention, Normandy veterans

To the editor:

I am calling on all veterans of the Normandy invasion, in whatever capacity, to contribute their own taped oral history to the D-Day collection at the Eisenhower Center, where we are attempting to preserve the record of the common soldier, sailor or airman. For the 50th Anniversary, we plan to publish a book "Voices of D-Day," based on the oral histories. Please write me for details.

If you want to help out, participate

Scenes from the Victorian Festival.

AT THE GATE: It's starting to get busy at The Starting Gate with people stopping in for early afternoon snacks. Jimmy Rea, the owner, is attempting to assist a woman, who is standing in the middle of the restaurant looking around in all directions.

"Are you looking for something?" asks Mr. Rea politely.

"Just looking for some friends," responds the nicely dressed woman.

"Are you looking for a man?" asks Jimmy, still trying to be helpful.

The woman has a startled look on her face. "A man?" she laughs, repeating the question. "What's the matter? Do I look stupid?"

WORKING ON THE GRILL: Ray Casterline impresses the heck out of me. I'm in town Saturday morning around 11, and he's working over the hot grill at the Kiwanis Club's Italian sausage stand on Center Street.

I'm back in town around 5 in the afternoon and Ray's still there, still grilling up sausages, green peppers and onions.

Then, after spending the entire day toiling over the hot grill, Ray's at the Victorian Festival Ball which begins at 7:30 and lasts till after midnight.

I'm sure there were others who worked the entire day (Laurie Marrs and Ann Willis, for example) and then attended the ball, but Ray's the one I noticed most. I suspect a lot of Northville people take a measure of pride in the Victorian Festival, but there's typically a handful of people working their tails off behind the scenes who make it all happen.

THE GRAND BALL: I'm not proud to admit we had never been to the Victorian Ball before last Saturday. That's a poor admission from someone who believes in hometowns and the responsibility of residents to support their hometowns.

But it's the truth. And I no longer have to feel guilty because we were there last Saturday with three other couples, David and Kathi Jerome, Nels and Marie Carlson and David and Robin Poletta.

Quite honestly, it was a darn good time.

The way it works is this. You park in the lot behind MAGS and then ride in a horse-drawn carriage to the ball in the Community Center. The most pleasant surprise was that more than a few townspeople come out and sit along the route to see the people arrive at the ball in their Victorian finery.

The ball is not inexpensive. Between the cost of tickets, renting costumes and buying a drink or two, it's easy to get involved to the tune of $150 to $200 per couple. And while I acknowledge that $150 may be beyond the means of a lot of people, I also believe that it's well within the means of many others.

I hear that festival organizers were disappointed in the turnout at the ball and may not continue it next year. If it's dropped, it would be unfortunate. My point is that if you want to have lovely events like the Victorian Festival and the Victorian Ball, you have to support them.

It's not necessary to toil over a hot grill all day like Ray Casterline. Support includes participation, going to the ball and having a very fine time.

It's time to shape up, letter writers

It is not often that I come to this page to tell readers they have to shape up.

After all, when you plunked down your four bits for this edition of the newspaper, you more or less hired us to tell you the news and opinion of the day here in this community. And, well, it is not wise for a hired hand to tell his or her boss to shape up.

But I think the time has come when I'm just going to have to do it . . . just got to call it like I see it, tell it the way it is.

The subject is letters to the editor. You've got to sign 'em, guys. We simply cannot run letters to the editor which do not have signatures.

Now, we can occasionally run letters to the editor without the names appearing in the paper, if there is a good reason. For instance, if you can make a good case that there could well be retaliation — like physical violence or economic retaliation such as getting fired — we'd be willing to run the letter without your signature appearing in print. We'll just run something like, "Name withheld on request."

But in order to do that, first we have to be able to talk to you about it and find out what your concerns are. That means you have to identify yourself and let us know how to contact you.

And second, the fear of retaliation has to be real, not just a vague sense that someone might not like what you have to say. Let's be fair, especially if you are being critical of someone, even the City Council, Township Board or School Board. They have a right to know the source of the criticism.

I also find that retaliation happens a whole lot less than some people seem to think it does. Yeah, people get bent out of shape sometimes, and some get argumentative if you are critical of them. But true retaliation is pretty rare.

The frustration for me is that I think these are precisely the kinds of letters that should get printed in the newspaper. There are many functions a community newspaper serves, but chief among them is to serve as an exchange for community opinion.

In fact, I think opinion is just as important as the news we run on other pages in this newspaper. The news columns are supposed to give readers the facts about the community. The opinion pages give them assistance in formulating an opinion of their own about that news. If they don't have some feelings or reaction to the events of the day as they read the news columns, they can turn to the opinion pages where they can read about other people's opinions. One of the best ways to formulate an opinion is to listen or read someone espouse an opinion you disagree with.

One of these two mystery writers concluded by stating, "thanks for letting me vent my frustration on your time." And I guess that much was accomplished.

How much more useful it would have been if all the community got a chance to listen to those frustrations and could have judged them on their merits. They might have decided to join with this letter writer's side of the public debate. Or they might start pointing out some frustrations they have of their own.

The point to all this is that letters must be signed. Even if you want your name withheld, I have to be able to discuss it with you or I can't publish any of it in the paper.

And for all the thought that obviously went into these letters, as legitimate as those opinions were, they'll never see the light of day. They become so much ink on paper.

Sure, you can vent to the editor of the local newspaper. But that really doesn't do much. It is the public which should have the benefit of your knowledge, views and opinions.

FASHION NIRVANA

By SHARON CONDRON
Staff Writer

When 16-year-old Jessica Dedes gets ready for school in the morning, it's really a matter of finding the right oversized flannel shirt to contrast with the concert T-shirt she's laid out for that day. Whether or not those match her torn jeans or her leather combat boots is immaterial.

"It's my wear and-tear look," Dedes said. "It's kind of the outcast look.

"This is actually one of my decent looking days," she said. "Sometimes I wear weird tights and stuff. I love flannel shirts. Flannels are great. I get all of mine at Harry's Big & Tall shop."

"Strange," is the one word Dedes uses to describe her "style." That explains the dog chain that hangs around her neck secured there by a small silver padlock and accented by the weird collection of rings on her fingers.

"I wear whatever is comfortable. I don't really care what other people think."

Students at Northville High School say their fashions and styles are as individual and unique as they are. For some guys and girls, oversized flannels disguising concert T-shirts are basics to a year-round wardrobe. Leather high-tops worn with or without socks are as commonplace nowadays as girls' black leather combat boots.

Lewis' talents open doors to limelight

By SHARON CONDRON
Staff Writer

Now that her three daughters have grown and for the most part are out on their own, Mary Lewis decided it was time to do something for herself.

So she combined her musical talents as a clarinetist, pianist and singer, cut an album, and took to the open road.

"I've been a musician all of my life," she said. "The girls and I have always performed together, but now that they are out on their own, I said, 'It's my turn.' "

In June, Lewis took the first copies of her debut album, Just Mary, out on the road to perform and promote it at eight Nazarene colleges from Boston to California.

The album showcases all of Lewis' talents as a musician and singer. On it, she did all the piano tracks, overdubbed her voice for leads and backups, wrote some of the songs and arranged them all.

"It came out very well," the Northville resident said. "It was really challenging to do it all."

If writing, recording and mixing the album wasn't challenging enough, the tour was.

"It was wonderful," she said. "And yet it was the most draining and really the most challenging thing I've ever done.

"You have to be up and on all the time."

Despite the pressures, Lewis said, "Just as demanding as it was, it was just as rewarding."

And a long time coming. For years, Lewis said she's put her dreams on hold to see those of her family take off. She stood steadfast as the wife of Pastor Holland Lewis of the Detroit First Church of the Nazarene, now located on Haggerty at Eight Mile. For 25 years she was a member of her husband's staff and the mother of three. She stood beside her eldest daughter, Crystal, who left home to pursue a successful singing and acting career. Now she listens to Crystal's No. 1 hits on Christian radio and watches her on Saturday evenings on Nickelodeon.

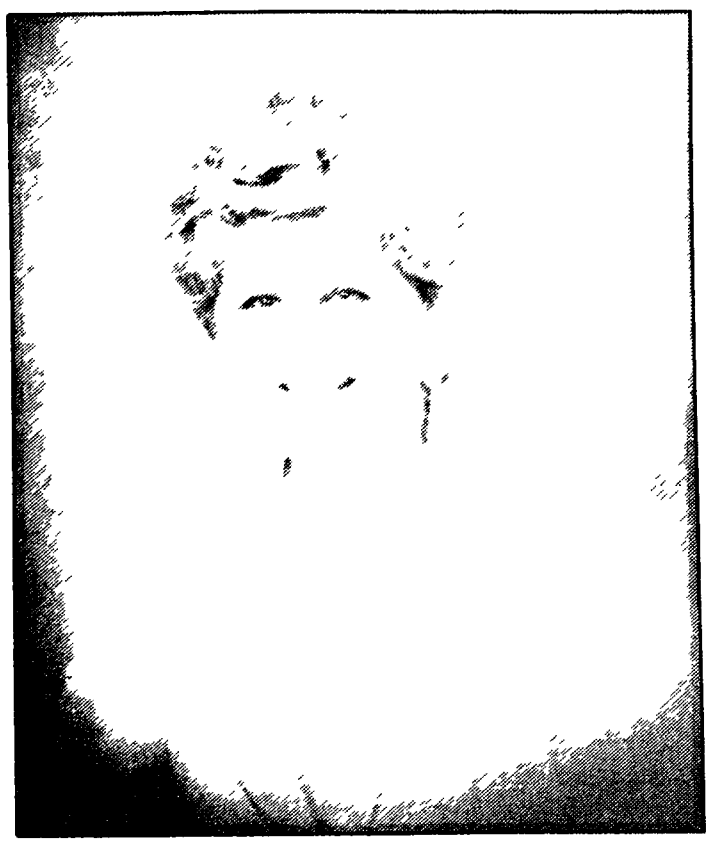

It wasn't until recently that she decided it was time; it was her time.

And so she took the dream off the shelf, dusted it off, and made it a reality.

"I turned a corner and said it's my turn now," she said. "I've always been a member of (my husband's) staff. This is the first time that I haven't had a staff position . . . It's been wonderful to have the time to let me be free to do what I want and to have doors just open up."

Today she's in demand. She's playing church services, banquets, retreats, conventions, national assemblies, and dinner meetings. She's making television appearances and recording new tracks.

Included on the local tour is an encore performance at the Detroit First Church of the Nazarene on Sunday, Sept. 27 at 6 p.m. at 21260 Haggerty Rd.

High schoolers set new trends with their styles

Ripped jeans and concert T-shirts battle against classic plaids, colored denim shorts and pants and cotton button-downs that have all made a comeback this fall.

Store windows are sporting the return of the khaki and navy chino slacks and pushing college logo sweatshirts for a casual look.

However, what's being showcased in storefronts isn't always what students are buying, high schoolers say.

More and more students who find themselves on a fixed income are shopping resale shops as opposed to browsing brand-name, higher-priced department and chain stores. Resale shops have cheaper clothes that reflect their styles, they say.

Dedes and junior Ami Orto said Value Village, a popular resale shop, provides an affordable outlet for their unique styles.

"I don't spend a lot on clothes because I have a limited budget," Orto said. "But I shop there (Value Village) because they have brand names and they have things that help me get the look that I want."

"Multi-cultural" is how she described her layered look. Dressed in an ankle-length print skirt, accented with a yellow mock turtleneck sweater, print vest and a faded jean jacket, Orto said she was ready for fall.

Senior Brian Collins sides with Dedes and leans towards flannel shirts. For him, flannel shirts, jeans and concert T-shirts are what's "hot" this fall.

"I always have a flannel shirt with a T-shirt on," he said. "And I always wear jeans and high-top Reeboks."

His earring and goatee also add a unique flair to his "look."

"This is just me trying to be mature. It's me in my rap stage — my hard-core stage."

Goatees and longer hair styles are also making a comeback for some male students. Senior Sean Harris has a sparse goatee sprouting on his chin, which complements his curly, shoulder-length brown hair

"Basically I wear whatever I feel like wearing," Harris said. "But always denim jeans — like Levi's — and the cheapest shoes on the market I can find. And a concert jersey."

While the minority of students take a more liberal approach to dressing, the majority has conformed to the latest fashion trend and stocked their closets with what's "in" this fall.

Senior Courtney Gazlay and her beau, David Valed, prefer the preppy look. For her, crisp, tailored plaid shorts work well with a solid colored matching Polo shirt to achieve the look she likes. For him, classic denim walking shorts topped with a college emblem sweatshirt and white canvas deck shoes bring out a more trendy collegiate look.

"I'd say it's preppy — sure," Gazlay said. "Preppy has always been my style."

Valed's look mirrors the trend most of the students are sporting this year. Thick, thirsty sweatshirts with college logos top off colored denim shorts that are hemmed or cut off at the thigh.

Most of the girls accentuate their outfits with ankle length slouch socks packed into white canvas tennis shoes. Guys follow suit with leather high tops in black or white.

Fashions run from the sublime to the ridiculous. Spandex bike shorts vie against denim shorts in a spectrum of colors to make student fashion statements this fall. Band T-shirts battle against cotton Oxford dress shirts to divide the masses in the classes.

Danny Walsh says he usually wears what's in style. But one day last week the senior football player was caught off guard wearing something outside his norm.

"Today I'm just a bum because I came to school late," Walsh said

When Brandon Ferrinan saw the television reports of the havoc Hurricane Andrew had wreaked on the coastlines of Florida and Louisiana, he felt bad.

As pictures of leveled homes and destruction flashed across his parents' televsion, the 10-year-old shivered.

Brandon is different than most, for instead of just feeling bad for the victims of the storm, he wanted to show them he felt bad. For him, the news reports were real, not just a TV show.

People are without homes and food and businesses. Babies have no diapers, no clothes or toys. And he knew it.

So he and two friends took the initiative. They pounded the streets of their Northville Commons subdivision asking neighbors for their empty pop cans and bottles. They combed the streets asking for returnables all in the name of the survivors.

"We would tell people we were collecting for Hurricane Andrew victims and we would get full cans," Ferrinan said as he stuffed empty pop and beer cans into a garbage can outside his home. "That was the funniest part."

Ferrinan and his buddies Joe Tracz and Armand Samoulian laughed at the story as they packed returnables into laundry baskets outside Ferrinan's garage.

"That was so funny," Tracz said. "They would give us full cans and we would have to tell them that we needed empty ones."

They've already returned some 485 bottles and cans for refunds, and they still have more to cash in.

The trio of 10-year-olds started their collection drive a week before school started. They say they won't finish until they get 1,000 cans. They have about 820 now.

The money they get back in refunds will be sent on to help the victims of the storm.

When 8-year-old Rebecca Tracz saw her brother and his friends collecting cans, she wanted to do her part too. So she began pulling the aluminum tabs off the tops of the cans and collecting those for the Kidney Foundation for dialysis patients.

"I thought it would be nice to help the people who needed it," she said, showing off the box of tabs she's collected.

Genealogists publish records of Rural Hill Cemetery listings

The Northville Genealogical Society has published an all-new reading of Rural Hill Cemetery.

Entries in the book include burials through 1990. It includes those for which there are no stones, supplied by the Allen Monument Co.

Books are available through the mail from the Genealogical Society at 42164 Gladwin Dr., Northville, MI 48167. The soft, spiral-bound books cost $20. Postage and handling for the 192-page book is $2.50.

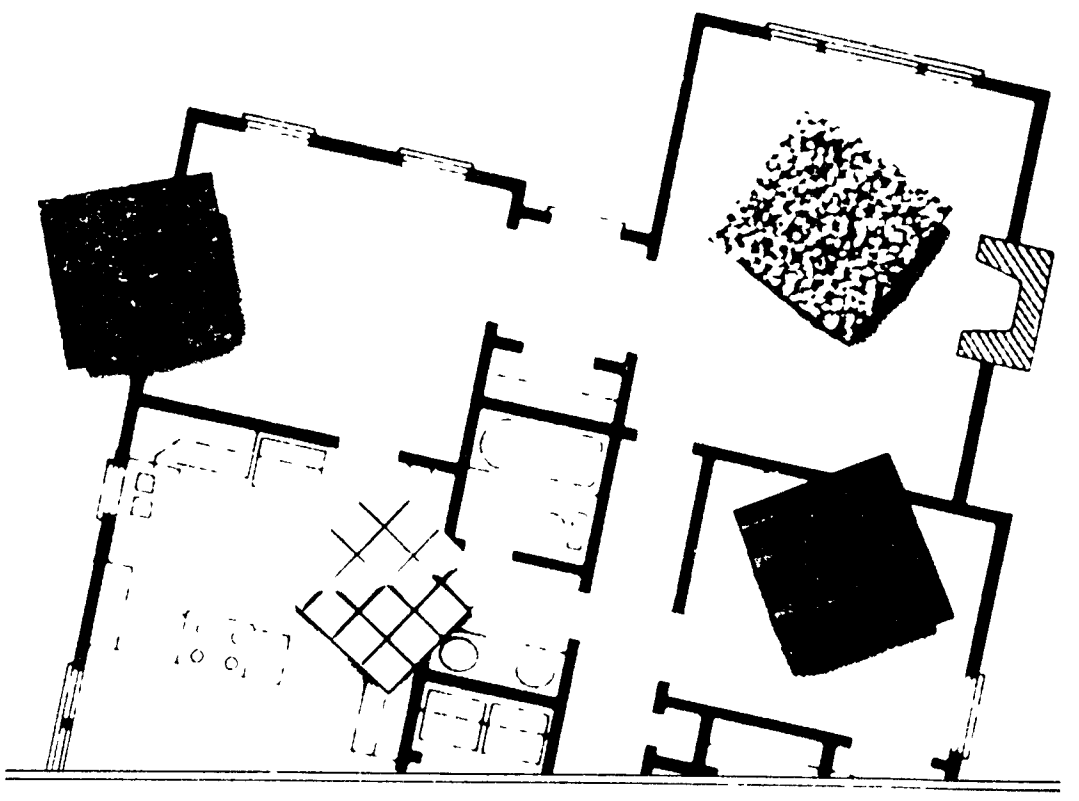

The society also has similar publications for the other local cemeteries. What follows is the book title and the cost per book: Cady Cemetery, $4; Knapp or Section 35 Cemetery, $1; Thayer Cemetery, $2; Yerkes Cemetery, 2 50, and Waterford Cemetery, $4.

Society members say the books are excellent resources for tracking down family trees

Q&A

By WILLIAM T. TOMICKI
New York Times Travel Syndicate

Q: Can you recommend a low-cost tour of Mexico that focuses on religious monuments?

A: In honor of the Dec.12 Feast Day of the Virgin of Guadalupe, which is Mexico's major religious holiday, there will be a six-day pilgrimage for travelers to shrines in and around Mexico City.

Participants will visit the Shrine of Guadalupe, regarded by Catholics as one of the holiest places in the Western hemisphere. It was the site of a 1979 visit by Pope John Paul.

Three other religious sites on the trip are the 16th-century Franciscan church and monastery of San Martin Texmelucan, the 1539 monastery of San Francisco de Huejotzingo and the Shrine of Los Remedios.

Visits to archaeological sites and museums are also on the itinerary. The trip is set for Dec. 9-14 and the cost per person, including airfare, is $629 from Dallas, $879 from Dayton, Ohio, and Portland, Ore., and $899 from Tucson, Ariz.

For more information contact Regina Travel, 100 Center St., Chardon, Ohio 44024 or call (800) 228-4654 or (216) 286-9166. Information is also available from your local travel agent.

Q: I'm driving through upstate New York this fall. Do you know of any outdoor activities?

A: You might want to check in with a hot line — (800) 225-5697 — set up by the New York State Department of Economic Development. It gives updated data on events from golfing to mountain music to fall foliage.

The hot line details getaways at bed-and-breakfast country inns, complete with antiques, colorful quilts and home-baked breads.

It supplies hiking information on back-country trips to observe the flora, fauna and topography of the Adirondack region.

It lists a weekend package for apple picking, pumpkin carving or natural-history walks in scenic Mohonk Valley. The best idea is to call shortly before your trip.

Q: Do you know of any reputable antiques fairs this fall in the Netherlands?

A: One of Europe's oldest art fairs, the Delft Art and Antiques Fair, in Delft, Holland, will be Oct. 10-18. It is held at the municipal museum, The Prinsenhof, a former 14th-century convent and cultural landmark.

A wide range of objects will include jewelry, icons, pre-Columbian art, Asiatic art, fine clocks, paintings and sculptures. Two committees of experts will review all the antiques for authenticity, quality and condition.

For further information contact the Netherlands Board of Tourism in New York (212-370-7367), in Chicago (312-819-0300) or in San Francisco (415-543-6772). Information is also available from your local travel agent.

Q: We are theater buffs going to New Orleans next spring. Any ideas for us?

A: The 7th Annual Tennessee Williams/New Orleans Literary Festival will be held March 26-28 next year. Scheduled events include appearances by major stage and film stars who have performed in Williams' plays.

There will be lectures, readings and panel discussions on the influence of Williams' ideas, along with walking tours, jazz performances, a book fair and book signings by contemporary authors.

For further information contact the Tennessee Williams/New Orleans Literary Festival, 5500 Prytania St., Suite 217, New Orleans, La. 70115. Information is also available from your local travel agent.

Visiting California's wine country

By TESSA DECARLO
New York Times Travel Syndicate

The end of summer is bittersweet in many parts of the world, but in California's wine country it's the most exciting time of the year.

The grape harvest, which gets under way in August, hits full tilt by September, with wineries shaking off their summer torpor and rushing to capture the flavor of the new vintage.

There's no better place to observe these annual rites than the Napa and Sonoma valleys, which lie next to one another about an hour north of San Francisco.

While Napa Valley can claim more wineries, more famous names and more glamour, Sonoma Valley has more rural charm, more history and equally wonderful wines.

Sonoma Valley, also known as the Valley of the Moon, includes the historic town of Sonoma, whose beautiful tree-shaded plaza was the site of both the last of old California's Franciscan missions and the 1846 Bear Flag Revolt, which marked the beginning of California's independence from Mexico.

To the north along Highway 12 are the even smaller towns of Kenwood and Glen Ellen.

On the other side of the Mayacamas mountain range the city of Napa is home to the majority of Napa Valley's people, but the vineyards and wineries are farther north, in and between Yountville, Oakville, Rutherford, St. Helena and Calistoga.

Since both places are popular destinations during harvest time, reservations are essential, particularly on weekends.

The scene at scores of wineries in the Napa and Sonoma Valleys is 100 percent sunshine and natural beauty — often good for a picnic.

SIGHTSEEING

Most wineries welcome visitors, although some smaller ones require an appointment, and many offer tours. Tastings are usually free on the Sonoma side of the mountains, while Napa wineries often charge a fee of $2 to $5.

A good general introduction to how wine is made is offered by the 45-minute tour at the Robert Mondavi Winery, 7801 St. Helena Highway, Oakville, (707-963-9611). The tour, including wine-tasting, is free, but it's wise to make an appointment.

The Sonoma Plaza would be worth a visit even if there were no wine in the vicinity. Picture-book pretty and surrounded by interesting shops and restaurants, it is central to the historic district and includes a monument marking the spot where the Bear Flag Revolt began. Across the street is a series of charming restorations that make up Sonoma State Historic Park, (707-938-1519).

The Mission San Francisco Solano de Sonoma at the north end of the plaza on the corner of First Street East and East Spain Street was built in 1824, the only California mission established under Mexican rather than Spanish rule. Alongside are the pueblo's barracks, which now house a small museum about Sonoma life in the mission era.

Also on Spain Street are the restored Toscano Hotel and, a short walk from the plaza, the elegant house and grounds of Gen. Mariano Vallejo, the town's Mexican commander. The sites are open from 10 a.m. to 5 p m. daily and the admission fee of $2 covers them all.

Jack London's aptly named Beauty Ranch, now Jack London State Park, London Ranch Road, Glen Ellen, (707-938-5216), is another historical park well worth visiting.

Near the entrance to the 800-acre park stands the House of Happy Walls, which displays mementos from the adventurous life of the author of "The Call of the Wild" and "White Fang," including South Pacific artifacts and a case filled with rejection letters.

A pleasant hike through oaks and madrones leads to the ruins of Wolf House, a vast mansion London built in 1913 only to see it go up in flames a few days before he was to move in The park is open daily from 8 a m to sunset and admission is $5 a car. Hours for the House of Happy Walls are 10 a.m. to 5 p m.

For a taste of Napa Valley history visit the town of Calistoga, whose hot springs lured visitors long before the region's wine-growing potential was discovered. The Sharpsteen Museum, 1311 Washington St., Calistoga, Calif. 94515, (707-942-5911), open 10 a m. to 4 p m. daily, offers background on the history of the town.

HOTELS

At harvest time hotel reservations are a must Prices are on the high side and weekends tend to fill up fast, but tourist bureaus in both valleys can help find a hotel or bed and breakfast. the Sonoma Valley Visitors Bureau, 453 First St East, Sonoma, Calif. 95476, (707 996 1090), and the Napa Valley Tourist Bureau, 6488 Washington St , Yountville, Calif. 94599, (707-258 1957) The Sonoma Hotel, 110 West Spain St , Sonoma, Calif 95476, (707 996-2996), is the right choice for those who really want to revel in the Sonoma Plaza's historic ambiance. Its 17 antique stuffed rooms are as close as you can comfortably get to living in a historical restoration Rates range from $70 with shared bath to $115 for suites with private bath.

The Vintage Inn, 6541 Washington St., Yountville 94599, (707-944-1112), has 80 spacious rooms, each with fireplace and private balcony or patio. Weekday rates are $134 to $174, with weekends $20 higher.

Luxury: Two of the most glamorous places to stay are Napa Valley's Auberge du Soleil and the Sonoma Mission Inn.

The Sonoma Mission Inn, on Highway 12, 2 miles north of Sonoma, is not only a luxurious hotel with a fine restaurant, but a full-service spa, reviving guests with everything from seaweed wraps to fitness training. A room for two costs $180 to $325; call (800) 358-9022 from outside; (800) 862-4945 from inside the state.

Auberge du Soleil, 180 Rutherford Hill Road, Rutherford, Calif. 94573, (800-348-5406), is a 48-room resort made up of small cottages tucked into an olive grove on a Napa Valley hillside, with beautiful grounds, a top-rated restaurant and private decks overlooking the valley. Rooms cost $300 to $760 a night for two.

Budget. The Calistoga Inn, 1250 Lincoln Ave., Calistoga, Calif 94515, (707-942 4101), is a comfortable small hotel at the other end of the price scale Downstairs is a restaurant and, for those who have had enough of wine, a brewpub, up above are pleasant rooms starting at $50 a night, with shared baths.

RESTAURANTS

The wine country might just as well be called food country, so obsessed are visitors and residents with finding, enjoying and discussing good things to eat.

Cagers beat Farmington for first win

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

A strong first half and solid defense propelled the Northville High basketball team to a 46-40 win over Farmington Thursday.

The Mustangs capitalized on 24 Falcon turnovers, many of which came in the first two quarters, to build a 30-16 halftime lead. Kari Krupansky led the winners with 12 points and Beth MacLean added eight.

It was a contest of firsts for Northville.

It was the first win of the season and, surprisingly enough, the first game on the road. For Bob Shoemaker, who owns a Michigan state championship in boys basketball, it was his first victory as a girls coach.

With all those firsts flying around, the locals probably went a little bonkers after the game, right? Wrong.

"It was nice," Shoemaker said, "but we didn't get too excited. We played well in the first half."

It was the Mustangs' best half of basketball this fall.

Shoemaker said the key to the game was his team's pressing defense. Depending on the situation, Northville used three types of presses full-court with trapping, full-court without trapping and a ¾ -court without trapping.

The result was numerous Farmington turnovers and easy Mustang baskets. Northville had its best shooting game from the field as a dividend — 32 percent.

Shoemaker pointed out that his club has shot a little better each game. The Mustangs shot just 12 percent in their first game and went to 18, 28 and finally 32 percent against the Falcons

"By the time we get to Canton we'll be shooting 1,000 (percent)," Shoemaker joked

Northville had its defense working overtime in the first quarter.

The Mustangs held Farmington to just 10 points while scoring 13 Lindsay Bacon and [illegible] Bermingham led the way with four points each in the period.

"Our press really hurt them in that quarter," Shoemaker said. "Most of our points were off the press."

The Falcons didn't fare any better in the second, as they could manage only six points. Jennifer Hayden hit a three-pointer at the buzzer to give Northville a 14-point lead at halftime.

"That was a big hoop," Shoemaker said.

MacLean did most of her damage in the second by scoring six points. Krupansky added four.

As it turned out, the Mustangs needed most of that 14-point cushion.

"I was concerned about a let-down at the half," Shoemaker said. "Unfortunately, what I expected to happen, happened."

The Falcons were able to make some adjustments and handle Northville's pressure much more effectively in the second half, he said.

Farmington cut the lead by four points in the third quarter. Higher percentage and second shots accounted for the Falcon outburst, Shoemaker commented.

Krupansky did all she could to hold Northville's lead by scoring six in the period. Four other Mustangs scored as well.

The vistors continued to hold a 10-point lead in the early stages of the fourth. But by the 3:00 mark, Farmington had cut the lead to two points.

Freshman Nicole Hayden then came to the rescue. The 5-foot-1 guard nailed a jump shot and then a pair of free throws to preserve the victory

Netters beat Western

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

Despite the absence of top singles player Jenny Lower, the Mustang tennis team cruised to an easy 7-1 victory over Walled Lake Western Sept. 16.

Northville, in fact, was well below 100 percent for the match. Several players were ill last week with fall colds or fevers, while Lower suffered an ear and throat infection.

With so many regulars down, Mustang coach Uta Filkin was able to work a few different faces into the lineup.

Erin Hornberger, Traci Stachura and Meghan Connery all stepped up to play at doubles and did well, winning their matches.

"It's nice to have them play a match at varsity," Filkin said.

Kyley Mills moved into the No. 1 singles spot for Lower and fell in two sets to one of the Western Lakes Activities Association's best players, Katie Kennedy.

"She had some good points," Filkin said of Mills, "but not enough to win."

Ellen Song got the Mustangs' first win with a 6-1, 6-0 triumph over Jessica Beagle. Filkin said Song cut her unforced errors in the match and connected on many first serves to get the win.

At No. 3 singles, Alissa Miller got her win of the season. She beat Walled Lake's Kim Angerstein 6-2, 6-1. Jenny Pollack scored a two set win over Sharon Ceglowski for Northville in the final singles match.

Sara Christenson and Jenny Koolstra kept the winning streak alive with a two-set win over Kim Toner and Beth Kearn. Nanda Filkin and Julie Weix also won in two sets (6-2, 6-0) over Aki Kysumi and Rene Woodgate.

The Mustangs grabbed two more victories at No. 3 and 4 doubles as well.

Kickers fall to Brighton

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

Northville showed Saturday why it may soon be a force on the state soccer scene.

The Mustangs played Brighton, ranked No. 4 in Class A, about as well as could be expected but fell just short 1-0.

"That was a great game," coach Bob Paul said. "It was a tough game that went back and forth. It could have gone either way."

The game's only goal came in the second half on a penalty kick by the Bulldogs. Northville was carded with just two minutes to go and Brighton made no mistake on the penalty kick.

Paul said if his team could have hung on for a tie it likely would have joined the Class A top 10.

Fortunately for Northville, the loss was to a non-conference opponent. Brighton plays in the Kensington Valley Conference.

The game will be a good tune-up for the remainder of the Western Lakes Activities Association season, Paul said. Northville has yet to play several top conference teams like Livonia Franklin.

NORTHVILLE 4, NORTH FARMINGTON 2: The Mustangs fell behind early at home Sept. 16 but played a strong second half to down the Raiders.

North Farmington dominated the first half and took a 2-1 lead into the locker room. According to Paul, the key to Northville's comeback was moving midfielder Steve Moore to the forward line for the second half.

The senior responded with a pair of goals [illegible] to help the Mustangs to victory. Moore added an assist as well.

NORTHVILLE 1, LIVONIA STEVENSON 1: The competition didn't get any easier against the No. 5-ranked Spartans.

"We knew it was going to be a tough game," Paul said, "and it was."

Both sides played excellent defense in the first half. The first 40 minutes, in fact, were scoreless.

Moore finally broke the ice with 15 minutes gone by in the second half. A Northville crossing pass was deflected out in front of the net and Moore was able to score from about 18 yards away. Bo Fowler drew the assist.

At the 25 minute mark, Stevenson was able to tie it up. The Spartans converted a deflected corner kick

Mustang runners beat Westland John Glenn

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

If you had told Ed Gabrys a few days ago that his Mustang runners were going to beat Westland John Glenn by nine points, he might have looked at you a little funny.

But that's exactly what the cross country team did Sept. 15 in knocking off the Rockets 23-32 on the road.

Northville came up 50 points behind Westland just a week before at the Schoolcraft Invitational. So Gabrys was more than a little stunned by the Mustang victory.

"That was an upset," he said. "We ran an excellent race and did the things we needed to do to do it."

The turning point of the race came about halfway through the three-mile course.

After the first mile, John Glenn had four of the top five runners. But by the end of the second mile, Northville had reversed that position and was then able to hold on to claim the victory.

Gabrys said the race showed his club's potential.

"It sort of defines our young team in what they are capable of doing," he said. "They ran a smart race."

Westland's Henry Honeycutt won the meet with a time of 18:08. Northville then claimed the next four top finishes.

Sophomore Jeff Zwiesler had the first of those with an 18:32. Nate Kirmis, also a sophomore, was next in 18:38 while Chris Smith was close behind in 18:46. Mark Ritter took fifth overall in 18:48.

Three other Mustangs finished the race. Senior Rob Kukainis placed ninth overall in 19:36. Freshman Jim Hansen was the Mustangs' sixth finisher in 20:42, and Chris Clark posted a 20:43.

Gabrys said the packing time of Northville's first four runners, which was 16 seconds, helped to win the meet. The team's goal, he added, is to have all seven runners finish within 1:30 of each other.

The Mustangs next test is today at home against Livonia Churchill. The meet starts at 4 p.m. at Cass Benton Park on Edward Hines Drive.

Golfers rebound to crush Western

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

Think playing at home doesn't make a difference? Guess again.

The Mustang golf team put its best round of the season together Sept. 14 at the friendly home confines of Tanglewood Golf Course by ripping Walled Lake Western 204-220.

"I think they felt good playing at home," coach Trish Waldecker said. "It just all came together."

She added that her team played to its potential against the Warriors.

"I think we are very capable of shooting 208-210 (every time)," Waldecker commented.

The win was Northville's first in the Western Lakes Activities Association this season. The Mustangs are are 1-3 in the conference and 2-4 overall.

Three Mustang golfers fired rounds in the 30s to seal the victory.

"Joe's a really consistent player," Waldecker said. "He plays on a very even keel."

Daisuke Ishikawa and Mike Vartanian closed the Mustangs' day as they both recorded rounds of 44.

LIVONIA STEVENSON 208, NORTHVILLE 213: The Mustangs again played well Sept. 16, but not good enough to beat Livonia.

The match was played at Whispering Willows. Waldecker said there wasn't one hole that was specifically Northville's downfall in the match. Each Mustang had a problem with a different hole, she added.

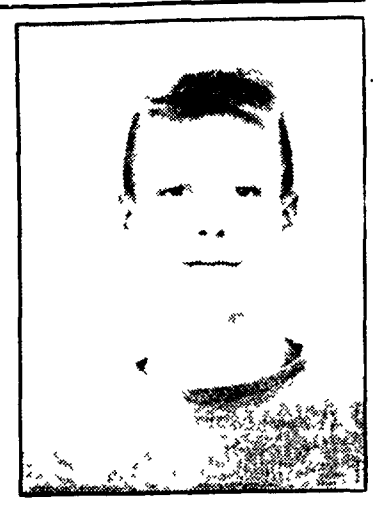

Telepo scored well with a 39 while Lemmon was right behind with a round of 40. Staknis finished at 41 while Tom Bussard broke into the Norhville lineup with a 44. Vartanian was the Mustangs'fifth finisher at 49.

"It was a tough loss after beating Western," Waldecker said. "The kids really wanted it."

Athletes of the Week

John Gatti

Steve Moore

JOHN GATTI: The 6-foot-1, 230-pound junior led the Mustangs to their second straight victory last week by collecting 10 tackles. He had six tackles for losses and two quarterback sacks. Gatti destroyed Livonia Churchill's offensive line.

STEVE MOORE: The senior midfielder scored a pair of goals in Northville's comeback victory over North Farmington last week and added the team's only goal against top-ranked Livonia Stevenson.

Tankers dunk Dearborn Edsel Ford

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

A 57-36 win over Dearborn Edsel Ford earned the Mustang swimmers a split in dual-meet action last week.

Northville dominated the Thursday meet by winning eight of 12 events.

"I was very happy with the way they swam," coach Bill Dicks said. "It was a fun meet."

Considering his team's tough practice schedule, which includes two sessions and 10,000 yards per day, it was an impressive performance.

"We don't rest for dual meets," Dicks noted.

The team of Rebecca Anderson, Tammy Cook, Mandy VanHorn and Sheila Osborne got things rolling against the Thunderbirds by winning the 200 medley relay. Northville came right back to take the top two spots in the 200-yard freestyle with Jodi Wesley and Brenda Newton.

Rebecca Anderson and Amy Kohl also took the top two spots in the 200 individual medley. In the 50-yard freestyle, Megan Goble placed second while Cook was third.

Jill Holloway won the diving competition with a total of 176 points. Sarah Carney was second with 156 points.

The Mustangs were first in the 100-yard butterfly with Wesley doing the honors. Julie Tharp was fourth.

Newton won the 100 freestyle and Andrea Moretti took third. In the 500-yard freestyle, Goble was the winner and Daneen Lang was second.

Stephanie Keetle placed third in the 100 backstroke while Cassandra Johnson was fourth. Rene Olin grabbed another third place for the Mustangs in the 100 breastroke and Chris Parry was fourth.

Northville won the final event of the day, the 400-yard freestyle relay, with Newton, Lang, Van Horn and Katie Rompel.

STEVENSON 61, NORTHVILLE 30: Senior Wesley made state cuts in the 200 IM and the 500 freestyle to highlight the Mustangs' meet.

Dicks downplayed the importance of the meet. He said the team focuses on Western Division meets more closely. Livonia Stevenson competes in the Lakes Division of the Western Lakes Activities Association.

"It was a meet that only really counted for experience," Dicks said.

Northville was second in the 200-yard medley relay in 2:02.90 with the team of Rebecca Anderson, Moretti, Wesley and Cook. Megan Goble also garnered a second in the 200-yard freestyle with a time of 2:02.50.

In the 200 IM, Wesley's time of 2:16.5 placed her second but qualified her for state action. Osborne got the Mustangs' first win in the 50-yard freestyle in 27.27.

Northville took second and third in diving as Holloway totaled 176.75 and Amy Cristof had 169.25

Rebecca Anderson was second in the 100 butterfly in 1:05.20, while Cook was second in the 100-yard freestyle in 59.8. In the 500 free, Wesley posted a time of 5:26.

Megan Goble came through with a victory in the 100 backstroke in 1:04.4 while VanHorn was third in the 100-yard breaststroke in 1:19.5. Northville took a second place in the 400 freestyle relay in 3:56.10.

Runners claim trophy with WLAA triumph

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

It may not be as prestigious as the Baseline Jug, but the girls cross country team will take the "Mustang-Rocket" trophy just the same.

Northville claimed the award by virtue of its 21-40 victory over Westland John Glenn Sept. 15.

Most schools in the Western Lakes Activities Association feature traditional city rivalries, such as Farmington and North Farmington. Since Westland and Northville don't have city foes to battle, the two schools adopted each other. Thus, a rivalry was born.

According to coach Nick Dunwoodie, the Mustangs won the meet and the award under less than perfect conditions at John Glenn.

"It was pouring rain," he said. "Conditions were terrible."

Westland boasts a rather flat, paved course for cross country. Dunwoodie said the poor weather and a number of confusing turns made the course more difficult than it should have been.

Monica Nayakwadi was Northville's top racer against Westland and finished second overall with a time of 22:15. Rachel Liedel was third in the race in 22:50 while Laura Brown was fourth in 23:43.

Erin Maloney was fifth just behind Brown in 23:55 while Adrienne Browne was the Mustangs final point-getter at 24:08. Laura Thomas finished just out of the money with a time of 24:11 and Roopal Vashi was close behind in 24:29.

The dual meet was Northville's first of the year. The only down side to the victory was that it came against a Lakes Division team.

Dunwoodie said the team to beat in the Western Division would be Walled Lake Western. The Warriors, he noted, placed six runners in the top 20 at the Schoolcraft Invitational two weeks ago while Northville, by comparison, had two.

The real battle will likely be for the second spot, Dunwoodie said. He added that the other five schools all have a chance for that position

Seniors can prevent falling

Although falling may seem like an unusual topic to discuss in a medical column, it is not. Falling is the leading cause of accidental death in the elderly. Falls frequently indicate that another medical problem is going on or that a patient may be getting too much medication. Medically they are very significant problems.

There are several reasons many younger people do not consider falling a problem. Generally it is a minor incident, leaving most people with nothing more than a bruise. It is also infrequent. Younger people usually have excellent balance, strong muscles and bones as well as good eyesight and hearing. They also have an active metabolism that rapidly disposes of drugs in their systems.

However, many of these facts are not true of the elderly. Many older people have cataracts or poor vision, which makes it easier for them to trip over things. Hearing problems are more common and many make it more difficult to hear warning sounds. Arthritis, Parkinson's disease and other conditions may all affect the way a person talks. Frequently older people do not lift their feet as high when they walk. Their gait may be wide-based or shuffling and their balance may be poor. All of these factors make falls more likely.

In addition, falls can be a warning sign that a disease is becoming more active or that someone may be getting way too much medication. Freqently as someone becomes ill they become weaker and are more likely to fall. In some cases, falling may be the only sign that someone is becoming sicker. Medication may also cause falls.

Just as children handle drugs differently and cannot be thought of as little adults, the elderly also handle medications differently. For example, a very common sleeping pill frequently prescribed for adults may have active drug breakdown products which persist in the blood of the elderly for up to 96 hours. This can make an older person lethargic and weak and more prone to falls even days later. For these reasons, a physician may choose a lower dose or a different drug when treating an older individual.

As people age, their muscle and bone strength decreases. This makes it easier to sustain damage in a fall. This is especially true of older women with osteoporosis. A study conducted several years ago indicated that one out of every four women at the age of 75 had bones weak enough that a simple fall could break their hip.

The best treatment for falls is prevention. Appropriate amounts of exercise can help to keep strength and coordination up. Medications need to be adjusted based on age and size. If someone begins falling more frequently, he or she should see the doctor. It may be an early sign of disease.

One of the most important things to prevent falls is to "fall-proof" the home. Polished floors, throw rugs, small stools and tables are easy for an older person to slip on or trip over and should be avoided. Hand rails for the bathtub and toilet may be helpful to some people. Hallways and rooms should be well-lit. Staircases should have a hand rail, excellent lighting and some indication of where the steps begin and end. Some people extend the rails to follow the leveling out of the steps. Some have even painted the landing a different color. The important thing is to look at the home to identify and corrent problems before they occur. Each home is different and may require a different modification.

Remember, falling is a medical problem and something that may be prevented.

Novi gets first grid victory 36-35 over Mt. Morris

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

John Lahti lived up to his word Friday night.

With the Wildcats down 35-28 to Mt. Morris and barely two minutes remaining on the clock, the senior quarterback told coach John Osborne he could win the game with a touchdown and two-point conversion.

Lahti made good on his promise by finiding Brian Csordas in the end zone on a conversion pass to give Novi a 36-35 win on the road. He set up that winning conversion by running four yards for a touchdown with 43 seconds left.

The winning play couldn't have been any more dramatic.

After Lahti's touchdown, Novi lined up in its power goal-line formation. The Panthers looked at the set and then called timeout. The 'Cats talked it over and lined up in the same formation after the break, but Mt. Morris again called time out.

Finally, play resumed. Lahti rolled to the outside on a bootleg and appeared as if he would be tackled. But offensive guard Greg Fortner made a perfect block to buy the QB enough time to find Csordas for the winning points.

"We were looking for (Kevin) Serra all the way," Osborne said of the play. "But when the play started, Serra wasn't where he was supposed to be."

The coach said Lahti calmly stood his ground when Serra wasn't open and found Csordas.

"He knew he had to make it work," Osborne commented, "and he did."

The win was Novi's first of the year.

"We have played hard," the longtime coach said. "Something had to give. Either we were going to go down the whole season or we would turn it around."

The 'Cats, now 1-2 overall and 0-1 in the Kensington Valley Conference, must continue to improve to turn the season around, Osborne added.

"If we can improve in some areas," he said, "we will be competitive against some good opposition."

Key among those is the kicking game.

Osborne said poor kickoffs and punting have put a big strain on the Wildcat defense. Novi is yielding 34.6 points per game — a stat that can be improved with a strengthened kicking game.

"We've played some good offensive teams, too," Osborne said.

Mt. Morris was definitely among those.

Led by standout quarterback Ryan LaVictoria, the Panthers featured a balanced attack. With several linemen in the 260 to 280 pound-range, Mt. Morris had the beef to execute its offense.

"They were big, big, big," Osborne said.

Novi was the first to show its offensive prowess, however. The 'Cats took the ball late in the opening quarter and moved to the Mt. Morris 12-yard line. On fourth down, Lahti dished to Andy Sill on an option play and the junior running back scampered in for a TD.

As the first quarter came to an end, Novi appeared it would add to that lead. Csordas intercepted a LaVictoria pass on the Panthers ensuing possession and returned it to the 20-yard line.

With the 'Cats knocking on the door, Lahti was intercepted in the end zone. Mt. Morris returned the ball to the 50-yard line. The Panthers tied the game as the second quarter began.

Novi punted after three downs on its next possession. The Panthers then scored again to make it 14-7.

As time ran out in the first half, Novi was able to tie it up. Lahti connected with his favorite target, tight end Serra, for a 12-yard touchdown pass for the tie.

"Right now he's the biggest part of our offense," Osborne said of Serra, who has four touchdowns on the year.

The teams traded touchdowns in the third quarter. Pat Whitehead got his first touchdown of the season on a five-yard run for Novi.

Just a few minutes went by in the final quarter before Mt. Morris regained the lead. The track meet continued as the 'Cats found pay dirt on their next possession.

Lahti completed a pass to Serra at the 50-yard line and the tight end rumbled all the way to the Panther 5. On third-and-goal from the one, Whitehead powered in to tie the game again.

Mt. Morris marched right back down the field and scored to make it 35-28 at the 2:08 mark.

The Panthers got a good kickoff, but Sill was able to return it the Novi 28-yard line. On first down, Lahti hit senior Ron Kane for an 11-yard gain. The two hooked up again on the next play for 55 yards.

Lahti then carried on a quarterback keeper for the touchdown with 43 seconds left. Osborne said he decided to go for the win for one simple reason.

"We were physically drained," he said. "I thought that could be a disadvantage in overtime."

The coach praised the play of his senior quarterback.

"He's been a dandy out there," Osborne said. "He's done a great job with the passing game."

Lahti went 18 of 31 on the evening for 264 yards. Kane caught 11 of those balls for 148 yards while Serra added five for 91 yards.

Sill led the 'Cats in rushing with 81 yards on 22 attempts.

Home loan may be more costly than necessary

By James M. Woodard
Copley News Service

You may be paying too much for your home mortgage loan.

For starters, don't fall for every promotional line touted by lenders who are vying for your business. For example, those "no points, no fees" loans could cost you thousands of extra dollars over the course of a few years.

Those loans typically carry an interest rate that is from three-fourths to seven-eighths of a percent higher than a similar loan where the borrower pays the normal points and closing costs. With this higher interest rate, the lender can sell the loan to a secondary loan buyer, like the Federal

High gable, fireplace gives the Wright stuff

By James McAlexander
Copley News Service

A sculptured fireplace, accented by a high gable, dominates the front of the Wright, a large and luxurious two story home designed for a rear sloping lot

Each of the two floors covers approximately 2,000 square feet The second floor, however, is below (in a daylit basement) rather than above the main floor

A huge 38 by 20 foot family room fills nearly half of the lower level, providing nearly 800 square feet of recreation space The room could easily accommodate a ping pong table and a pool table, along with whatever other toys the family enjoys A fireplace with a raised hearth spans one end of the room Sliding glass doors could be installed at the other end to provide access to the back yard

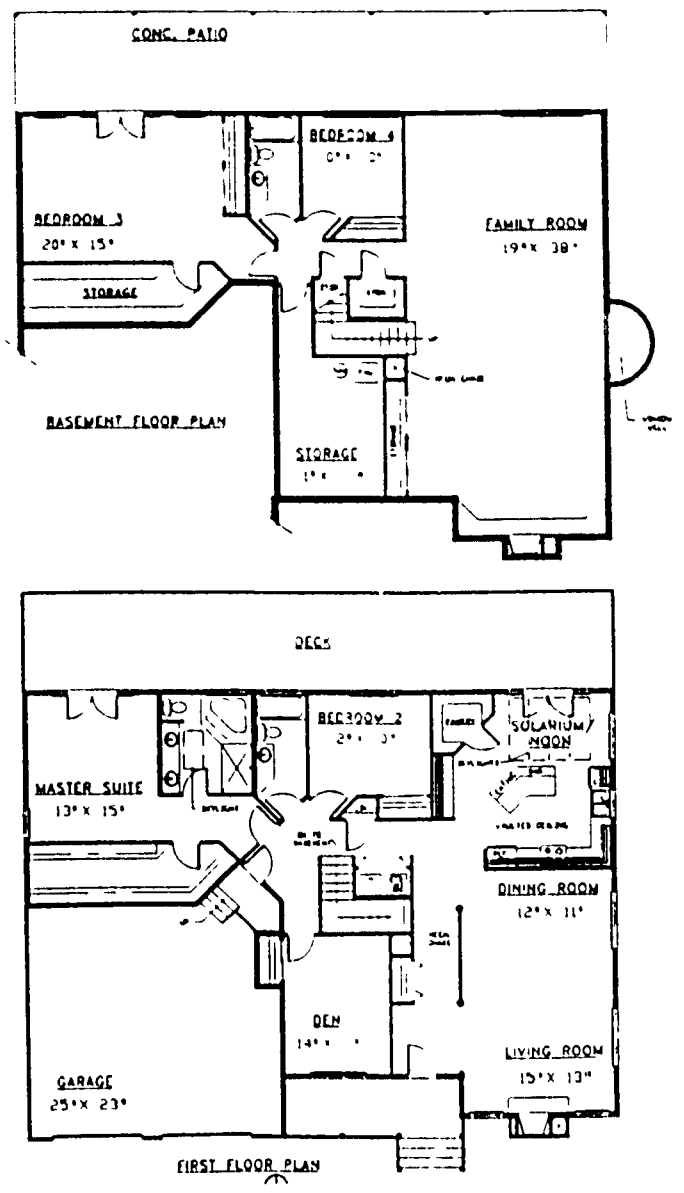

Two bedrooms, one much larger than the other, share the basement bathroom. The large bedroom has access to a 20 foot long walk in closet and has French doors that open onto the back yard Two additional storage closets and a storage room also are located on this floor

The master suite and one additional bedroom share the ground floor with a den and a spacious family living area that comprises the kitchen, dining room and living room

Hanging plants, as well as people, can thrive in the cheery solarium eating nook. Other amenities in this huge country kitchen include a work island/eating bar. French doors that open onto a raised deck and a generous walk in pantry Washer and dryer are tucked into a closet just a few steps away from the kitchen

The luxurious master suite features another 20 foot long walk in closet and a bathroom with double vanities, a skylight, a spa, and an oversize shower French doors here provide another point of access to the raise deck that runs across the back of the home

FROZE ROSE

Most bush roses are not fully hardy in Michigan. That means they need protection against low temperatures to survive the winter.

The critical point, explains Master Gardener coordinator Mary McLellan, is the graft union, the spot where the named variety was grafted onto the supporting root system. If you don't protect the graft union, the top portion of the plant will die. Shoots that come up from the roots will be very different and will not produce the quality of flower you are expecting.

Protect the graft union by mounding 8 to 10 inches of soil around it after the first hard freeze. Long canes that might whip in the wind and loosen the soil should be cut back.

After the ground freezes, pile hay, straw, leaves or some similar material over the mounded canes. To keep this material from blowing away, cover it with more soil, landscape prunings or branches from discarded Christmas trees.

"The aim here is to insulate the soil and keep the soil temperature constant," McLellan explains. "Twiggy branches or evergreen boughs will trap snow for an extra insulating layer."

You can also use tarpaper cylinders, Styrofoam cylinders or rose cones, she notes. Apply these after plants are fully dormant — after two hard freezes

If you use an open-top cylinder, tie the canes together to make it easier to slip the cylinder down over the plant. Then fill the cylinder with dry vermiculite ground corn cobs, leaves, straw or some other insulating material. Cut the tops of the canes off even with the top of the cylinder and cover with polyethylene film to keep the insulating material dry. Be sure to fasten the plastic securely so it doesn't blow off If you use a closed-top cylinder or cone, tie the canes together, shorten them as needed, cover the plant with insulating material and then slip the cover over it.

Remove covering materials in the spring after the ground has thawed and the danger of hard frost has passed, but before new growth has appeared Remove mounded soil carefully to avoid damaging new shoots Tree roses and climbing roses should be laid on the ground and covered with several inches of soil For tree roses, this means digging under the roots of the plant on one side so you can tip it without damaging the stem or root system. Remove the soil and set the plants up again in the spring, replacing the soil around the roots, after the danger of severe frost is past.

"Anything you do to protect roses against low winter temperatures is more likely to succeed if plants were properly nourished and protected against disease during the growing season," McLellan notes. "There's not much you can do about that now, but it's something to think about next year."

Winterizing plants

GARDENING

Fall is one of the best times to fertilize shrubs and trees, until the ground freezes. Food is still taken up by the roots and transmitted to the plants in early spring, but only use a low nitrogen fertilizer (for slow growth) at this time.

Deciduous trees can still be planted throughout the month of November.

In areas where only vegetables and annuals have been growing, add a complete fertilizer with organic matter and lime If possible, it is best to plow or spade this into the earth.

Newly planted evergreens need some winter protection, first by watering and mulching, then by using windbreaks made of polyethylene or burlap It's not necessary to wrap the shrubs now, but drive in the stakes before the ground freezes Apply covering in December.

Broad leaf evergreens, boxwood and other surface rooted shrubs suffer less winter damage when a heavy mulch is placed around them. Do this before the ground freezes. If planted in exposed areas, use burlap windbreaks to protect them from sun and wind damage.

Hill-up roses with 10 inches to 12 inches of soil over the base of the plant. This is the prefect winter protection for the crown.

Now and throughout the winter, saturate the gypsy moth egg cases with creosote. They can be found on fences, tree trunks, logs, etc.

Cover strawberry beds with straw or salt hay, and add a heavy mulch to your raspberries.

NATURE'S THERMOMETER

You can tell the temperature by listening to the crickets. Count the number of chirps in 15 seconds, add 40 to this figure and you will have the current temperature

BUGABOO

If you've noticed insect pests have made your lawn their vacation home this summer, it's time to offer these unwelcome visitors a change of residence. Insects that feed on the roots, stems and blades of grass can transform a lush, green landscape into a brown, patchy eyesore.

It's possible to eliminate these pesky intruders without waging chemical warfare. Lofts

Home loan may be more costly than necessary

National Mortgage Association, for a price that is considerably higher than he would receive for a conventional mortgage loan.

That increased price the lender receives—or "fee premium," as he calls it—is often about 3 percent of the total loan amount. That's more than enough to cover the cost of the points and fees. In other words, the lender often collects additional profit by selling these loans that appear on the surface to save the borrower money.

The typical no points, no fees mortgage loan, financing the purchase of a $150,000 home, will generate a fee premium for the lender in the amount of about $3,600 due to the increased interest. That's enough to cover costs of points and fees, and boost the lender's profits significantly.

That's great for the lender, but bad news for the borrower if he continues to own the home for more than a couple of years. The higher interest rate could cost the borrower thousands of extra dollars over the long term.

In most cases, it's far better for a borrower to pay the upfront points (usually from 1 to 2 percent of the loan amount in most areas) and fees when the loan is closed, and benefit from the lowest possible interest rate. It pays to analyze the figures carefully when considering a new mortgage loan.

Here's another scenario where you may be paying too much:

If you are paying on a home mortgage loan that includes a surcharge for private mortgage insurance, you can have that surcharge removed from your payments when the mortgage balance lowers to 80 percent of the current value of your home—but only if you request it from your lender.

Typically, when a home is financed with a conventional loan that is more than 80 percent of the home's value, the lender will require PMI coverage. That will cost the borrower about three-fourths of a percent of the loan amount for the first year (payable at closing) and three-eighths of a percent per year thereafter, paid with the regular monthly payments.

That monthly charge will continue throughout the term of the loan, unless you take action. When the loan amount reaches no more than 80 percent of the home's value—by the loan balance being reduced (amortized down) by your payments and/or the home's value increasing—contact your lender and request that the PMI surcharge be removed. At this point, the loan-to-value ratio of the mortgage is low enough to make the loan sufficiently secure for the lender without the insurance coverage.

If you are basing your request on the premise that your home has appreciated in value, you may have to invest a small amount for an appraisal of your property, but that may be a wise investment.

Q. What's the most popular type of mortgage loan to finance a home purchase?

A. This varies from area to area, and there are more "loan types" now being offered by lenders. Generally, the 15-year fixed-rate mortgage has become popular in many areas — for home buyers and homeowners refinancing their existing loan.

"In many cases, we are refinancing a homeowner's existing 30-year mortgage loan with a new 15-year loan, and keeping the monthly payments at about the same amount," one mortgage banker reported. "This is possible because of the lower interest rate."

Q. What happens when a homeowner loses his job and can't make his mortgage loan payments anymore?

A. We directed that question to a major mortgage lender. His response:

"When a borrower loses a job or encounters other problems that make it impossible for him to make his full mortgage payments, we try to work out a special tem porary plan for him," he said.

"This may mean cutting his loan payments by as much as half the usual amount for a period up to 18 months if that's what it takes to help him get back on his feet. The unpaid interest is added to the loan balance."

If the problem becomes more serious, the borrower is urged to sell the home before foreclosure becomes a necessity, he said.

"In some severe cases, we may have to take title to the property, but will rent it to the original homeowner. We feel it's important to work things out in a way that is most helpful to the borrower. We want to avoid a hostile foreclosure."

Wage non-chemical warfare on these lawn and garden pests

Seed Inc. has recently introduced a new group of grass cultivars enhanced with endophytes, a friendly fungus that provides lawns with natural insect resistance. As the seed germinates, the endophyte grows into the seedling and continues to live in the tissues of the mature grass plant.

So far, grasses with the highest levels of endophyte primarily are perennial ryes, but breeders are beginning to introduce endophyte-containing Kentucky bluegrasses and fescues as well.

Here are some of the common predators that, if left on their own, will feast on your lawn, roots and all:

• Armyworms travel in large groups and eat grass right down to the soil. Round, bare areas in the lawn are the result of their feeding frenzy.

• Billbugs pose a double threat. The larvae form eats the roots while the adults attack the stem and blade.

• Chinch bugs: These common lawn pests congregate in open, sunny parts of the lawn and suck plant sap. Infested grass turns yellow and patches may die off.

• Leatherworks feed on the roots and stem bases, causing yellow or brown grass patches that are most noticeable during dry weather in early summer.

• Mole crickets tunnel under lawns and feed on grass roots. Infested grass wilts and turns brown, causing irregular dark streak to appear.

• Nematodes: These microscopic worms survive in the soil or grass debris as eggs, cysts or larvae and feed on the roots of grass plants.

• Sod webworms: Hot, dry conditions and a buildup of thatch encourage sod webworms which cause irregular, dead patches in the lawn.

A walnut chair in perfect shape

By James G. McCollam
Copley News Service

ANTIQUES

This Queen Anne style armchair would sell for $325 to$335 in good condition.

Q. I have just had my great aunt's chair refurbished. I have no idea if she purchased it new or inherited it.

The chair is in beautiful condition. The center back is burl walnut. The top center has a shell pattern as do the legs just below the seat. The frame is walnut.

I would like to know how much this chair is worth, when it was made and by whom.

A. Your chair is a Queen Anne style arm chair. The maker is unknown. It was made around 1900 and would sell for $325 to $335 in good condition.

Q. I have two plates that belonged to my grandmother. One of them is marked "J.P. France."

The other plate is marked "Germany" and says "Hand Painted." will you please tell me what you can about these plates and how much they are worth?

A. The plate marked "J.P. France" was made by Jean Pouyat in Limoges, France, in the early 1900s. It would probably sell for $25 to $35.

The maker of the German plate is unknown. It was made in the early 20th century and would probably sell for $15 to $20.

Q. I have an Ingersoll Mickey Mouse watch. On the back, it has the number 7842, and there is a small square with the letters "U.S. Time." It still has the original bright-red buckle band, and it still runs.

Can you give me an idea as to the value of the watch?

A. This Mickey Mouse wristwatch was made about 1950 by the U.S. Time. It should sell for around $175 to $200 in good condition.

Q. I have a 22-inch oval fish planer with the attached mark on the bottom. The center is decorated with multicolored pike fish swimming in weeds and has a shaped rim.

I would like to know who made this and how much it is worth?

A. Your fish platter was made by the Carl Tielsch Co. in Altwasser, Germany. The mark you provided was used about 1900. It would sell for $175 to $200.

Q. My father-in-law owns a pocket watch. This watch is an Elgin, number 7307219 and is in a Keystone watchcase.

Can you tell me the approximate value of this watch?

A. This Elgin gold-filled pocket watch was made in the late 1890s. It should sell for $125 to $135 in good condition.

BOOK REVIEW

"Comic Values Annual — The Comic Books Price Guide" by Alex Malloy, publisher of Comic Values Monthly (Wallace-Homestead) lists thousands of comic books, from early Superman comics for several thousand dollars to recent Action Comics for as little as $1.00.

If you have a small collection of old comic books, this price guide will enable you to evaluate each one. It also is a manual to guide the collector in building a choice collection.

But my voice skipped and fluttered.* How do you tell a girl like this it's going to be alright? Just when my head started to swim with the idea that I might be the reason she kills herself, it hit me. She doesn't want me to have the answers, she just wants a friend. She wants me to understand because no one else wants to. I never felt so alive. And *that feeling is what brings me back here to the phones. Everyone reaches a point where they need help. ## Twelve Oaks Mall boasts new stores

The Eddie Bauer Home Collection, a newly launched home furnishings store from the famed outdoor outfitter, has opened at Twelve Oaks.

The new store, the first to open in Michigan, is among five retailers joining the shopping center this month. An entirely new Express and Bain's Deli have just opened; Bachrach's and All For One will open shortly.

"Twelve Oaks is among the first shopping centers in the country selected to premier the Eddie Bauer Home Collection," says Elaine Kah, marketing director at Twelve Oaks. "All these fine new stores underscore once again our continuing efforts to meet the changing needs and lifestyle of our shoppers."

Eddie Bauer Home Collection carries a wide selection of furniture and home accessories that reflect classic American traditions. Shoppers will find sturdy upholstered sofas and chairs, lamps with hand-fogged iron bases, beds of natural oak and a variety of hardwood tables, desks and chairs inspired by 19th century Mission and Shaker designs.

The store also features hand crafted glassware and flatware, an assortment of kitchen items and a full line of sheets and comforters, rugs and bath accessories. Unique items influenced by the company's northwest heritage will also highlight the merchandise found in the store.

Express, the international sports wear store from the Limited, features a large selection of [illegible] inspired leading [illegible] and accessories for women.

In linen, shoppers will find classic trousers, sarong skirts, blazers, shirts and X-back halter dresses. The handsomely designed store, with 10,191 squre feet of space, is decoraed with authentic French antiques, modern Philippe Starck furniture, Mannerist paintings and faux crystal chandeliers.

Bachrach's, a full-line men's clothing store with a long history, carries a fashionable collection of suits, sportcoats, shirts and slacks in both natural fabrics and blends, as well as a large selection of sportswear and activewear. Accessories include ties, belts and socks.

Founded in 1877 in Illinois, Bachrach's has remained a family-owned business. Over the year's Bachrach's has grown to 73 stores, most of them in the midwest.

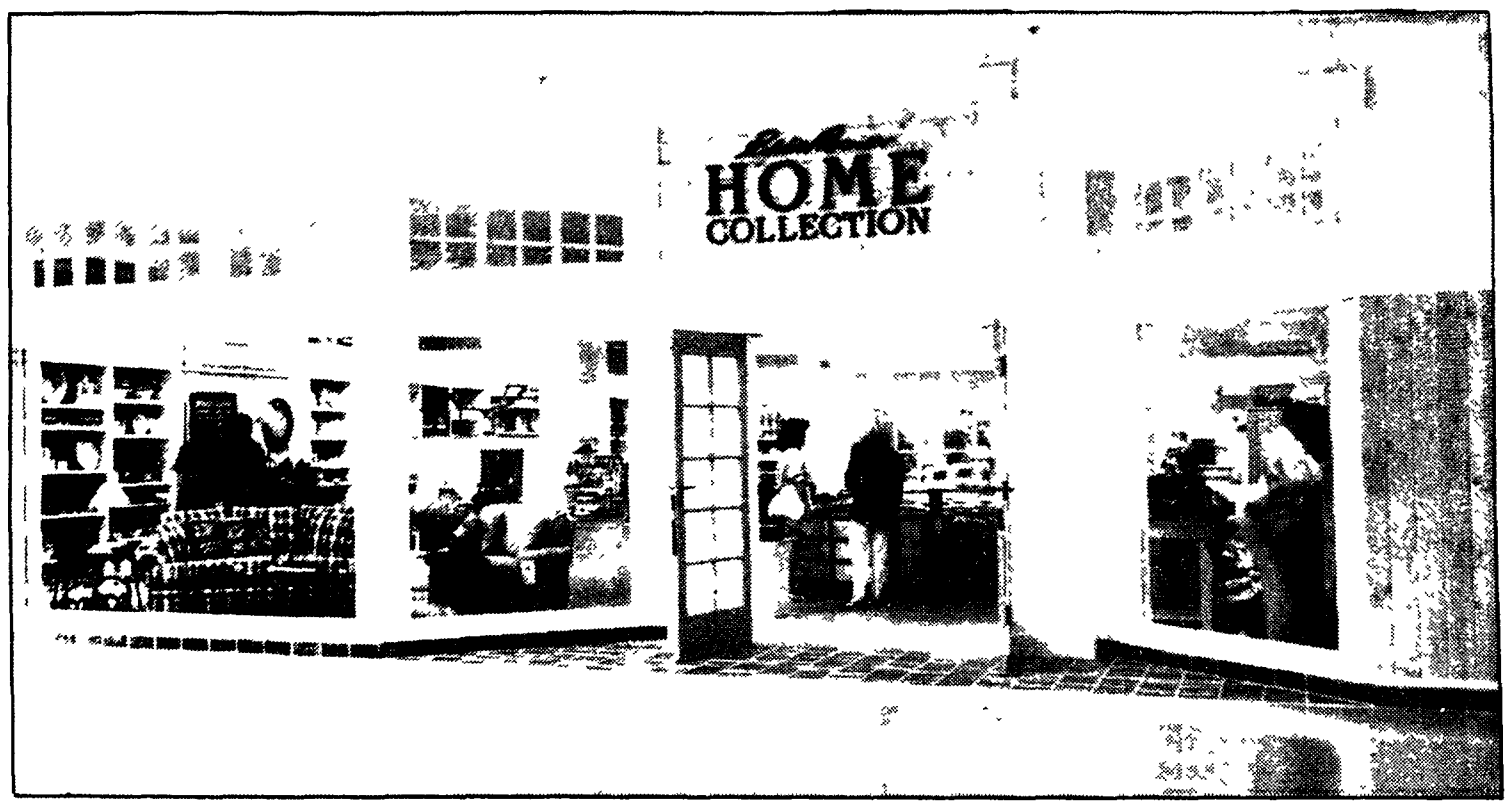

All for One is a bargin-hunter's paradise: A wide array of household goods — all priced at only a dollar — though original prices may be as high as $10. Consisting mostly of manufacturer's overruns, the merchandise includes everything from kitchen items like utensils and can openers to bath items like shampoos and soaps.

The store also features toys, baby items, hardware and some clothing. Also available are CDs, tapes and some books. All for One, with stores mostly in the midwest, started in Ohio last year.

Bain's Deli, a family owned re[illegible] that goes back to 1910 [illegible] offers hungry shoppers classic deli fare: corned beef and pastrami sandwiches, rye and pumpernickel breads and such desserts as cheesecake and carrot cake.

The restaurant, looking appropriately old-fashioned, also features a selection of hot dinner platters, salads and vegetables, as well as coffee, tea and soft drinks. Bain's Deli started out in Philadelphia and has grown to more than 80 restaurants, most of them on the East Coast.

Twelve Oaks is a major regional shopping center in Novi, at I-96 and Novi Road. The center hours are Monday through Saturday 10 a.m. [illegible] and Sunday noon to 6 p.m.

The Eddie Bauer Home Collection at Twelve Oaks is the first store of its kind in Michigan.

Express is a new division of the famous Limited chain of stores.

Money Management

Start saving early for kids' college

With the cost of college education now running more than $10,000 per year, you should think about how to finance your children's education long before it's time for them to apply to colleges. According to the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants, your savings strategy should depend on your age, the age of your child, and your income as well as your financial resources.

WHO IS FOOTING THE BILL?

Although almost half of all undergraduates qualify for some form of financial aid, the major financial demands of a college education still fall squarely on the family. With college costs rising at an average of 6 to 7 percent annually, a family now needs to set aside nearly $4,000 a year, earning an interest rate of 7 to 8 percent per year, to cover the full cost of a bachelor's degree for their newborn child.

CONSIDER YOUR CHILD'S AGE

Your investment decisions should be guided, in part, by your child's age. If your children are under 14, you can boost their college savings and minimize your taxes by shifting assets to them — thereby enabling each of them to generate as much as $1,200 in unearned income that will be taxed at a lower rate than your own.

Under the kiddie tax rules, the first $600 of your child's unearned income — interest, dividends and other investment income — is tax free. The next $600 is taxed at the child's rate, usually 15 percent. Any unearned income over this amount is taxes at the parents' highest marginal rate.

If your child is age 14 or over, the kiddie tax does not apply. You can transfer cash, property and other assets to your child and the unearned income, like the child's earned income, will be taxed at the child's highest marginal rate.

ESTABLISHING CUSTODIAL ACCOUNTS

The Uniform Gifts to Minors Act (UGMA), or the newer Uniform Transfer to Minors Act (UTMA), enables you to set up custodial accounts through which you can transfer stocks, bonds, and other property to your child. Income from a custodial account is taxable to the child, subject to the kiddie tax mentioned above.

PLAYING IT SAFE WITH BONDS

United States Savings Bonds are especially well suited to college savings plans because they produce tax-free savings that compound interest until you cash them in. What's more, their maturity can be timed to when you expect to be making tuition payments.

If the proceeds from the Series EE Bonds issued after Dec. 31, 1989, are used to pay for qualified higher education expenses, the interest these bonds earns may be tax-free for a married couple filing jointly with combined adjusted gross income below $66,200. Part of the interest may be tax-free for a couple with a combined adjusted gross income between $66,200 and $96,200. The bond owner must be at least 24 years old at the time of purchase. Additionally, the bond must be in the parent's name and be redeemed by the parent.

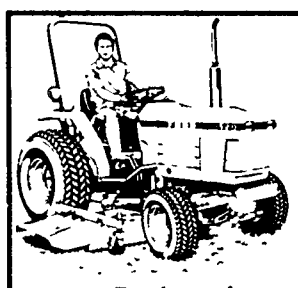

If you find your income is too high to qualify for the Series EE Bond tax break, consider purchaing College Savings Bonds, known as baccalaureate bonds. Available in more than 25 states, these bonds can be purchased at a substantial discount and you collect the full face value at maturity. They are also free from both state and federal taxes.

OTHER SAVINGS VEHICLES

The College Sure CD offered by the College Savings Bank in Princeton, N.J., is another option to consider. A federally insured, variable interest rate certificate of deposit, the College Sure pays an interest rate indexed at 1.5 percent less than the college tuition inflation rate. Maturities vary from one to 25 years, with stiff penalties imposed for early withdrawls. Interest is taxed annually as it is for other CDs.

Finally, you may want to consider guaranteed tuition plans now available in some states. To participate in these savings programs, you pay the state lump sum for four years of future tuition at a public university or college in that state.

CPAs point out that regardless of the savings mechanism you select, it's important to make saving for your child's education an integral part of your personal financial plan.

HOME IMPROVEMENT

Trends and touches suited for the '90s

By Sharon Achatz
Copley News Service

The ultimate in room design is a scheme that brings together what a person wants in furnishings, atmosphere and color.

ATMOSPHERE

Atmosphere begins with a floor plan that suits its occupants' needs. In the '90, this seems to be double duty swing rooms and transition rooms that bring the outdoors in.

Swing rooms are flexible interior spaces that can adapt to changing household needs. A prime example is a second bedroom that mimics the master bedroom suite. The second suite can be used to allow privacy for adult children or an elderly parent—or become a home office or exercise room.

Transition rooms connect indoors to out. Traditional examples include sun rooms and screened-in porches; more dramatic examples include interior courtyards or window walls that open the view onto a pool, hillside or the cityscape beyond.

Other design tricks with outdoorsy appeal include:

- Installing French doors.
- Hanging minimal window treatments, such as valances and miniblinds, rather than draperies.
- Using the same tile treatment in outside courtyards and major indoor rooms.
- Planting the same kinds of plants in the main living areas and back yard.

FURNISHINGS

As for furnishings, the '90s call for mixing comfort with designs from other times and cultures— combining several styles and personal treasures into an individualized expression.

Consider, as examples:

- A contemporary room of crisp architecture and clean lines filled with cushy sofas, chairs and otto mans that look as though they came from the library of an English country house.
- A studio apartment that combines an antique carved-wood bed with slip-covered couches and African artifacts.
- A small condominium that celebrates the outdoors by incorporating a rough-hewn wooden poster bed, wicker dining set and pine tables and armoires.

One school of design that seems particularly suited to the times is Japanese. Far East comes west with ideas for making the most of small spaces, linking indoors and out and using beautiful details that are surprisingly functional.

- Sliding shoji panels slide to divide one large room for entertaining into a guest room, play room and entertainment center.
- Showcase staircases combine storage and stairs in a compact, efficient fashion that mimics traditional tansu arrangements, from which stairs were formed by stacking storage drawers.
- Window walls roll up like overhead garage doors to open rooms to the natural beauty beyond.

COLOR

As for color, researchers long have proclaimed the power of color, but designers lament that most folks are afraid to use it. Colors have their trademark psychological pulls: greens calm, reds excite, yellows alarm, browns assure. But the bottom line is that colors should be selected that are liked, no matter what's in vogue. Colors set moods, and the colors you prefer suit your mood.

No matter the shades a person prefers, high-voltage brights are the new wave, and those colors transcend design categories. They enliven the lines of a classic sofa as easily as they zip up the curves of a contemporary chair.

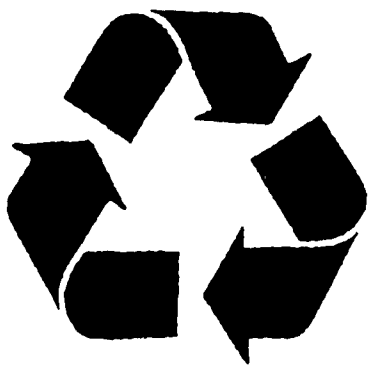

Use one-shot accessories — from pillows to framed pictures— to punch up a passive palette, or go for broke with a roomful of brights — mixed, matched or tone-on-tone. Adornment options abound in furnishing features from floor to ceiling, from textiles to tableware.

DESIGN DO'S

Other design do's and don'ts that apply no matter the thematic approach:

- Tint ceilings a hue of the wall covering rather than white.
- Hang artwork no higher than 8 inches above a sofa or other piece of furniture.
- Unite wall groupings by selecting pieces with a common color or design element.
- Use faux finishes, such as marble and granite, for floors, furniture, walls and cabinets to give super style with minimal spending.
- Avoid furniture out of scale and balance, such as a large sofa with tiny end tables.

Get smart do-it-yourself and save dollars

By Mike Dale
Copley News Service

The notion of building something yourself is frightening to most people, until it's demystified.

Homeowners once reluctant to install a garage door opener are remodeling entire homes, room by room. Warehouses, lumberyards and tool rental companies are feeding the do-it-yourself home remodeling trend with plenty of good advice.

Many national home center chains, such as Home Depot and Builders Square, offer classes for customers on the installation of ceiling tile and linoleum, how to patch holes in walls, repair a dripping faucet, build a deck or landscape a lot. Do it-your-selfers also can get assistance in an ample supply of books, magazines and instructional videos found in local stores.

Computer-assisted design programs are being adapted by some home centers to help consumers plan a new kitchen or deck. They also work with local contractors in marketing and installing fencing, doors, vinyl siding, replacement windows, screen enclosures, roofing, storage systems and home security operations.

But home improvement experts advise that the novice remodeler shouldn't tackle major structural renovations — room additions, new exterior siding or a kitchen makeover—without first consulting a professional.

The time is right for remodeling, according to the National Association of Home Builders. It's forecasting growth in home values to be 5 percent to 8 percent annually for the rest of the decade.

But baby boomers with 10 to 15 years of equity in their homes are reluctant to "buy up," cracking their nest egg on a new mortgage, closing costs and moving expenses. They're remodeling in order to increase the value of their existing home.

Some home improvements are improvements financially smart, say analysts, because they bring a near-full return of initial investment.

An example: Owners who sink $20,000 into major kitchen repairs (new appliances, floor, cabinets and increased space) will recoup 98 percent of their investment in 5 to 10 years. Minor kitchen repairs should give 100 percent return when the house sells.

Major bathroom makeovers return 98 percent of money invested, and replacing roofs, insulation and fireplaces all give a 60 percent return on your original outlay.

There are a number of ways to finance a remodel. Not all sources are right for every project, so choose carefully. You might think about:

- Refinancing your first mortgage.
- Getting a fixed-term second mortgage.
- Securing a home improvement loan, qualifying for home-equity lines of credit.
- Getting an unsecured personal loan.
- Using personal savings.
- Nabbing what are called rich-uncle mortgages, or borrowing against insurance and pension funds, like a 401K plan.

Makeovers within the four walls of your home is appropriate when your objective is not more space, but better space.

In larger homes, for example, it's often possible to combine a series of small rooms to create larger, lighter spaces that are better suited to modern living.

Adding on is preferable when you have the square footage you need, but it's in the wrong place. But before getting too excited about expansion, check local building codes and ordinances. Additions may be limited by setback requirements, height limitations or zoning.

And don't forget to increase the limits on your homeowner's insurance, which will mean higher premiums, once the renovation is complete.

Beyond simple home maintenance projects. there are many home-improvement projects easily managed by those with the Mr Fix-It chromosome. Three of the most popular do-it-yourself projects are painting, maintaining garage doors and installing redwood decks.

In the car-culture 1990s, garage doors continue to dominate the facade of many homes, so it's important that they are maintained. Wood doors require regular scraping and refinishing. Steel, aluminum and vinyl doors are low-maintenance alternatives that are easy to install with ready-made kits.

Adding a redwood deck is right behind kitchens and bathrooms as a remodel favorite.

Some tips from the California Redwood Association: plan a deck that reflects the style of your house; mix and match deck stains to complement the colors of your house; design your deck for entertaining by

25 tips for maintaining your home

By Alison Ashton
Copley News Service

'To own a home is to face ongoing repair and caretaking challenges." writes Jack Maguire in 500 Terrific Ideas for Home Maintenance and Repair" (Simon & Schuster).

Staying on top of those challenges is a daunting task, which means many of us put off small repairs until they become big projects.

Maguire s short and easy tips include everything from how to organize a workbench (it's the key to keeping up with home repairs) to disposing of toxic waste to paint techniques and pest control.

Here are just 25 home-maintenance ideas culled from Maguire's treasury.

• Organize with a shoe bag. Hang a shoe bag in the work area to store plastic bottles filled with shop liquids and hardware.

• Hardware samples. Save time searching for the right nut or nail by taping or gluing a sample to the top of each box.

• Toxic waste storage and disposal. Solvents are just one of the toxins found in the average workshop or garage. Always store chemicals in their original containers in a sealed trash container or metal locker. For instructions on disposing of toxic materials, contact your local department of environmental protection.

• Job jars. Whenever family members notice a repair job that needs doing, they jot it down on a slip of paper and put it in a job jar. Use three jars, each labeled with "now," "soon" or "plan/buy."

• Keeping hands clean. Many home jobs are messy. One way to keep your hands clean is to rub them with liquid soap (without water), wipe off any excess and don't rinse. Then scratch a solid bar of soap with your fingernails. The soap film will repel dirt.

• Lube job for drill bits. Make drill bits last longer and stay sharper by lubricating them with silicone spray before each use. The spray helps them work more efficiently.

• Bright is dull. When does a knife blade, chisel or saw need sharpening? When edge reflects light. Sharp blades are thin and don't reflect light; dull edges are wider and reflect more light.

• Safety stripes. Paint white stripes on all exposed moving parts of power tools to alert children and adults when the tool is running. Stripes should be painted perpendicular to the line of motion on every belt, chain and saw blade.

• Drill depth. Always drill to the correct depth by measuring from the tip of the drill bit the depth you want and marking it with a piece of masking tape. Stop drilling when you reach the bottom of the tape.

• How much wallpaper" Most wallcovering rolls have 36 square feet, but the actual length of the roll depends on the width. Wallcovering is usually sold in doubleroll form— the roll is the same width, but twice the length of a single roll.

Calculate your purchase on this formula: 30 square feet per roll, or 60 square feet per double roll. This allows enough for waste and matching patterns.

• Removing wood finish. Before using toxic chemical removers, try a mixture of equal parts boiled linseed oil, white vinegar and turpentine or mineral spirits. Rub it into the wood with fine-grade steel wool.

• Beautiful brass. To clean and polish unlacquered brass, wipe it with a damp cloth dipped in Worcestershire sauce and wipe again with another soft, damp cloth.

• Wool and wood. For an ultrasmooth surface on wood that you want to refinish, sand with the finest grade of steel wool instead of sandpaper. Remove any metal particles before finishing by slowly running a magnet over the sanded surface.

• Out, out, moldy spot. Siding or roofing on a shady, moist end of the house can develop patches of mold and mildew. Spray each spot with a diluted solution of household bleach. Let the solution sit for 30 minutes to an hour, then rinse it away with a hose.

• Smooth spray painting. To keep the spray gun the same distance from the surface throughout painting, tape a stick to the spray gun that is I inch short of the desired working distance from the surface. While you spray, hold the gun so the stick stays about an inch from the surface.

• When paint runs low. When you're painting a room and paint is running low, try to paint only the walls that you can cover completely. A new can of paint—custom-mixed or not — is likely to slightly different in shade. Avoid using paint from two different cans on the same wall.

• When to paint. The best seasons for painting outdoors are spring and fall, when it's not too hot. Avoid painting in direct sunlight.

• Stair stepping. When painting stairs, leave room to walk up and down while you work and while the paint dries Do this by painting every other step or by painting half of each step. Wait until the first half of the job is dry before painting the rest.

• Vitamin C for fumes. Increase your intake of vitamin C, an antitoxin, after exposure to fumes from paint, finishing solutions or thinners.

• Sticky windows. Instead of forcing a sticky window open. try running a pizza cutter back and forth in the groove that is sticky or covered with paint.

• Sliding doors. Lubricate the track of a sliding-glass or wooden door with graphite or silicone spray instead of oil, which tends to collect dirt.

• Matching molding. When you need an exact match for old molding in a room, look inside a closet in the room. Remove that molding to use in the room and replace the closet molding with another type.

• Dampness deterrents. Basement dampness is due to seepage, condensation or both. To prevent seepage, coat basement walls and floors with waterproofing paint, repair all cracks in walls and floors with hydraulic cement.

To prevent condensation, install a dehumidifier, repair plumbing leaks and insulate cold water pipes.

• Pest prevention. Keep ants at bay by spraying kitchen counters, cabinets and floors with a solution of equal parts water and white vinegar.

• Cleaning a stained chimney. When brown stains appear on the outside of a chimney, it's because the inner lining of the chimney is leaking creosote from burning wood. This is dangerous and could cause the chimney to collapse. Before using the chimney again, have the flue cleaned and a liner installed; cover stains with an aluminum sealer and repaint.

Get smart and do-it-yourself around the home

incorporating built-in benches; anticipate cooking and dining with a built-in grill or a cabinet/service counter, and note the orientation of your deck to the sun (some families enjoy shade; others prefer sunshine).

The secret to successful painting is preparation; painting is the easy part. Be sure to remove old finishes before adding new coats of paint. Chemical strippers soften and dissolve old finishes. Heat guns make old paint blister and bubble. Power sanders scratch away tough surfaces.

Exteriors should be painted in three colors: a basic field color for siding or brick, a trim color for borders or windows, and an accent color for shutters. Interiors are best left to softer shades. Bare walls, ceilings, floors and furniture are good candidates for more creative, stencil techniques.

Other popular at-home tasks include waterproofing concrete walkways, installing a fireplace mantel and water-saving toilets, repairing leaky pipes. and replacing old fashioned two-slot electrical outlets with the grounded, three-slot receptacles now required for many appliances.

Large-scale structural renovations—such as room additions— may require hiring a contractor.

Hiring someone in the field can be intimidating. But these tips should make the process smoother

• Check all a contractor's references.

• Verify that the contractor is licensed Ask him if he has liability insurance.

• Take note of the contractor's personality. If he has a shop, visit it.

• Check the Better Business Bureau office for complaints filed against him.

• Beware of hiring the lowest bidder. And get everything, even estimates, in writing.

TOOLBOX ESSENTIALS

Copley News Service

Having the proper tools makes home improvement projects go smoother. Needed tools vary from task to task, but every handyman must have the "basics"

- A ladder.
- A putty knife.
- A circular saw for cutting across the grain of wood, a hacksaw for cutting metals and a keyhole saw to cut circular openings.
- An electric drill.
- A block plane. It's used to shave wood and is handy for trimming the edges of doors.
- A hammer, vice grip pliers, a ratchet wrench and a set of open ended wrenches.
- An assortment of screwdrivers, both hand and power driven.
- Safety goggles and a dust mask.

Many other tools can be purchased for certain jobs. Home repair manuals and your home improvement store may recommend buying specific tools for such projects. Heed their advice.

Perhaps some of the pricier tools could be borrowed from a friend or acquaintance rather than purchased outright.

This floor looks loke real wood, but it's really faux-parquet vinyl with a tile border.

From carpet to tile, what's best for you

By Orlando Ramirez
Copley News Service

Choosing a wall color was easy enough. The selections were dizzying in their combinations and complications, but it was easy enough to sort out compared to choosing floor coverings.

Hardwood floors? If so, what color stain?

How about tile? Then what kind? Linoleum? Ceramic. If that, then what finish?

Maybe vinyl flooring is best, but then what pattern and color?

Better just go with carpet. What color? How deep a pile? Wool or one of those stain-resistant blends?

Before you make a decision, there are a several questions that need to be answered.

What is this room used for?

If it's a child's room, then carpeting might be better than a hardwood floor.

For a kitchen or bathroom, where spills and moisture can make for slick surfaces, then grained vinyl flooring would be the solution.

In living rooms, where elegance is the key, then hardwood or parquet flooring may strike just the right note.

How much foot traffic moves through the area?

An entryway or hall probably gets more use than a bedroom. When choosing, flooring experts suggest that a durable surface will stand the test.

Also, if you're choosing a color for your carpet, it's best to choose an earth tone for these heavy-use areas since these colors tend to hide wear better than white, pastels or melon tones.

SELECTING CARPET

Once you've made the decision to go with carpeting, then the real choices begin.

The durability of a carpet depends on three things —density, resilience and weight of the pile.

When selecting carpet in a showroom, there are two quick checks that will help you determine the quality of the carpet.

The first is to press your finger into the pile and if it recovers quickly, then it is a good-quality carpet.

The other test is to take the carpet sample and bend it. If you can see the base of the carpet through the pile, then you have an inferior carpet.

Keep in mind that the deeper pile carpet has longer strands and big loops that although more substantial looking are actually less so because they weigh less.

On the other hand, short-pile carpets are more durable because the pile is denser and therefore more resistant to wear.

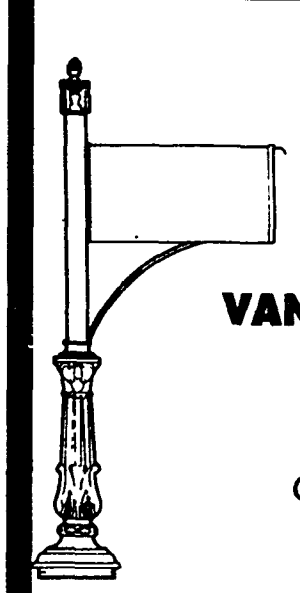

Another important consideration is the pad on which your carpet will rest. Foam padding is the cheaper and less-resistant choice. One test is to rub it between your fingers. If it crumbles, then try to find a better padding.

The best choice is rubber padding, which lasts longer and doesn't rub the backing off the carpet.

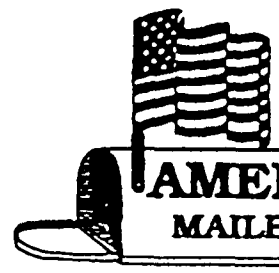

When choosing a carpet, keep these terms in mind:

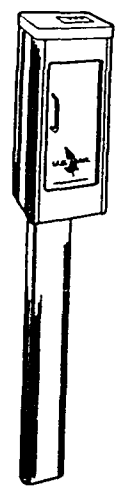

• Broadloom. This is an industry standard term meaning any carpet wider than 6 feet, although the most common size is 12 feet.

If you've been waiting to remodel your home and think you can't afford it, think again. You don't have to spend a huge sum on an interior designer to give your house a new look. Instead, you can do it yourself with the help of a few books. magazines or videos.

But the key is knowing where to look. The following books offer the novice decorator a means to transform each room from a happenstance of furniture to an intelligently designed living space that reflects his or her own personal style.

One merely needs to follow some simple but seldom observed guidelines that these design publications offer.

You don't have to spend a huge sum on an interior designer to give your house a new look. Instead, you can do it yourself with the help of a few books. magazines or videos.

DESIGNING WOMEN AND MEN

"Ingenuity and imagination can be far more productive and rewarding than a vast decorating budget at your disposal," says Mary Gilliatt in her "Shortcuts to Great Decorating" (Little, Brown & Co.).

She offers simple solutions to classic problems, with large color photos to use as a guide. Gilliatt also unlocks the secrets of decorating with colors, patterns and fabrics in one of her other books, "Decorating With Mary Gilliatt."

If you prefer the style of old country homes, the editors of Country Home magazine have compiled "Country Home Collection" (Meredith Corp.). From rustic lakeside cabins to restored Cape Cod cottages of the 1800s, 300 color photographs show you simple ways to transform your house to evoke the home and hearth of a more simple way of life.

For decorating tips at a glance, "Decorating With Southern Living' (Oxmoor House Inc.) offers simple suggestions to transform a room. For example, for a look of spaciousness, glass tabletops and clear vases create a sense of openness. Or for a crisp, cool decor. light-colored striped pillows and fabrics give a room a breezy feel.

While each publication has its own style, they all have the same message — that decorating is a rewarding experience and not necessarily a costly one.

"The difficulty, usually, is simply not knowing where to begin," say the editors of "The Better Homes and Gardens New Decorating Book" (Meredith Corp.). Their book is a compendium of approaches that show the reader not only where to start, but how to proceed until the project is finished.

For the very latest in interior decor, monthly magazines showcase the spectrum of modern design. Some of the best include Architectural Digest, House and Garden, Better Homes and Gardens, Metropolitan Home, Interior Design, Sunset, Elle Decor, Vogue Decoration and Home.

If you have little time to read, you may want to explore the world of do-it-yourself interior design on video. Most home-improvement centers offer a video service for design ideas.

For start-to-finish decorating instructions, the Hometime Co. offers videos on "Finish Carpentry," "Interior Paint and Wallpaper." and "Home Decorating."

HANDBOOK VS. HANDYMAN

For both remodeling and home repairs, the repair manual is increasingly replacing the handyman.

"Such mysteries as unstopping the toilet, fixing the doorbell and repairing the garage door are within the capability of even the most unskilled and unschooled among us," says Robert Berko, author of "Small Home Repairs Made Easy" (Consumer Education Research Center).

In his book. Berko provides a manual with step-by-step directions on fixing practically anything.

The paperback manual starts your education even before you approach the problem with an illustrated rundown of the tools you will need and how to handle them.

For the experienced repairman. the book sheds light on the more exotic home repair tasks, such as replacing cracked siding, repairing flashing and caulking roof joints.

David Owen, who writes for The New Yorker, provides another valuable source of ' fixing tips" in "The Walls Around Us: The Thinking Person's Guide to How a House Works" (Villard Books).

Al Carrell, author of the syndicated column, "The Super Handyman" and host of his syndicated radio show, tells readers that 'necessity makes you have to fix it yourself."

His book, "Best Home Hints.' (Taylor Publishing) is geared toward people "as klutzy as he used to be" and gives understandable, readable explanations for repairing common household breakdowns.

"Fix It Fast and Easy" (Master Handyman Press Inc.) according to the author Glenn Haege, serves three purposes: to make fixing things a little less onerous. to make "do-able" some of the jobs homeowners thought of as impossible, and to save readers time and money so they'll have more time to relax and read more books .

For all of the do-it-yourself repair authors, "home maintenance" does not mean simply touching up old paint, installing new miniblinds and replacing a few old roof shingles. Home maintenance means cleaning and simplifying your home on a day-to-day basis. so that breakdowns occur less frequently and homeowners remain happier.

Fabulous floor coverings from carpet to vinyl, what's best for you

• Body carpet. At most 6 feet wide, this carpet is used for narrow areas such as halls or stairs.

• Cut pile. The fibers are cut rather than looped into a base.

• Bonded. Here the fibers are glued to the base material.

• Tufted. The fibers are punched into the base. The fibers then can either be cut or looped.

• Multilevel loop. The loops are two or three different heights to create a specific raised design.

Buying carpeting can be a confusing experience. The first thing to ask is if the per-yard quote includes carpet, pad, installation and tax.

When it comes to installation, does the price quoted include furniture moving, removing and carting away the old carpet, doing stairs and hauling away remnants.

Before placing the order. have the dealer come and measure the rooms to be carpeted. This will help plan seams and pile direction of the carpeting.

During the installation, check with the installer where the seams will be. Since most carpeting is 12 feet long, it is best to have seams away from foot-traffic areas. Matching seams can be particularly difficult for patterned carpets.

Stretching the carpet is an important aspect of installation. This helps prevent wrinkles that can increase wear. Experts insist that mechanical stretching is preferable to manual stretching, particularly where high-density carpets are used.

WOOD FLOORING

Once the staple of American construction, hardwood flooring has seen a resurgence in popularity in recent years.

One of the reasons for this popularity is that this flooring is durable, making it a one-time investment that raises the appraisal value of the home.

With proper care, a hardwood floor gathers more luster with age. Also if it has a good finish, it is resistant to spills and scratches.

There are two types of wood flooring: parquet and strip (also called plank).

Parquet floors are assembled from squares (usually 6 inches by 6 inches) using a tongue-and-groove method.

Backing is important to this type of flooring. Experts recommend a foam backing between the parquet tiles and the subfloor to provide a moisture barrier.

Parquet floors are used primarily in difficult-to-fit areas like kitchens and hallways. Also, the squares can be combined in different patterns to create a dazzling effect.

Strip or plank hardwood floors are the better-known styles in which strips of wood (usually three- or five-ply) are constructed over a waterproofed subfloor.

These styles can be expensive. depending on the grade of wood and the size of the room.

Given recent trends, these floors now come in a variety of colors from ash to white to bronze, honey and traditional oak.

When selecting hardwood flooring, pay particular attention to the finishes.

The old-fashioned — and some say still the best — finishes are stains and sealers applied at the factory then buffed to a sheen under protective coats of wax.

For heavy-traffic areas, manufacturers have created the acrylic-impregnated parquet finish. Here, stain and acrylic are forced through the pores of the wood at the factory that can't wear away.

The most popular finish is the urethane finish, where coats of urethane and stain are applied to the wood, then sanded and sealed with two coats of moisture-cured urethane. A final wax finish is then applied.

TILES AND VINYL

Floor tile is the best choice when it comes to bathrooms, although it is becoming more and more popular in kitchens.

There are two types of finishes —clear finish, which is slick, and crystalline finish that has a textured surface to provide a certain amount of traction.

The American National Standards Institute has a rating system for tiles. When buying tile, look for the ANSI rating, with 1 being poor and 5 the best.

Also when buying tile, be sure to get all the sheets you will need from the same lot. Color and sometimes quality can differ from lot to lot, and many experienced installers have started with tile from one lot only to get halfway through the job and discover the remaining sheets don't match the original lot.

Vinyl tile comes in two varieties, either 12-inch squares or 6-foot-wide rolls.

Of the two, the squares are more inexpensive, although the sheeting is more durable, particularly since it is moisture resistant —a definite plus in kitchens and bathrooms.

Vinyl sheet flooring comes in either rotovinyl or inlaid types. With inlaid, the pattern and color go all the way through the flooring and stand up better to wear.

Rotovinyl's texture and color are only on the surface of the material. However, this type often has a urethane coating and a soft cushion backing.

Also, rotovinyl can be installed dry or with just adhesive on the corners. Inlaid vinyl has to be cut in one piece then glued to the the subfloor.

A well-kept exterior and landscape make a home more appealing to buyers.

Hammering in the 'sold' sign fast

By Sharon Achatz
Copley News Service

When the old homestead is on the market, there's plenty a savvy seller can do to quickly hammer in a "sold" sign on the front lawn.

First step, according to most real estate professionals, is to price the house right. Do so, and it's half sold.

Realtors are perhaps a seller's best source in determining such a figure, as they have access to a computerized Multiple Listing Service of hundreds of comparable homes for sale in the area, the prices homeowners are asking— and the prices for which the dwellings actually sell.

Home owners seeking to sell on their own can come up with a suitable selling price through research—attending open houses in their neighborhoods, asking new neighbors the purchase price of their new home, scanning classified ads in newspapers.

Aside from pricing, there are plenty of other strategies to help a home sell faster — everything from offering a home warranty to planting a few flowers out front.

COMPELLING DWELLINGS

First impressions are usually hard to overcome, so the savvy seller will cultivate curb appeal by making sure the yard is clean and well-manicured and that there are no loose railings, cracked glass or broken bricks at the doorway. He'll also fix squeaking doors and creaking floors.

Fresh exterior paint and new screens revitalize even the oldest houses, and new paint inside makes a home look and feel fresh and clean.

Cleanliness sells better than dirt, so it's time to shampoo carpeting and make sure kitchen and bathroom floors and tiles are shiny clean — with polished chrome fixtures. And don't forget to fix the drips. They make potential buyers worry about a house's entire plumbing system.

GO WITH THE PROS

Just as it's true that a few dollars invested in home repair and spruce-up can mean a big payoff in escrow, a few dollars invested with real estate professionals up front also can maximize your bottom line.

Some homeowners—especially those with unique properties or who are selling a home without the marketing help of a Realtor—hire an appraiser so they'll have an appraisal on hand to prove the value of the home.

Others hire a home inspection firm to get an up-front structural report on their home so they can correct major flaws—or offer upfront price concessions so the buyer can fix the items to his own specifications.

Most home sellers today offer to purchase for the buyer a home warranty program that covers the cost of repairing or replacing any defects that become apparent within a year after the sale—everything from leaky toilets to exploding furnaces.

IT'S SHOW TIME

When it comes time for prospective buyers to actually walk through the home, a seller should harmonize his home's elements. Some tips:

- Make sure the house is neither too hot nor too cold.
- Leave all lights on, day or night. Open all draperies.
- Play the stereo softly.
- Leave the property while it is being shown by an agent, so the potential buyers will feel more relaxed.
- Put away small valuables in a secure place.

WORKING WITH AN AGENT

Selling a home is no easy task, so most folks opt to work with a real estate agent—relying on his expertise to guide them through complicated procedures such as listing agreements, structural inspections, purchase offers and escrow.

It's wise to interview at least three top local real estate agents before listing a home for sale. To get names of the best agents, ask friends, business associates and phone nearby real estate brokerages to ask for the name of their most successful agent the previous month.

Ask each agent lots of questions. Before selecting the best agent, be sure to phone their previous clients to ask: "Were you in any way unhappy with your agent and would you list another home for sale with the same agent?'

Here are some guidelines for working with the agent you eventually select:

- Agree to have a lockbox on the house for easy access to all agents who may want to show the home.
- Ask for a colonial yard sign.
- Ask the agent to interview and prequalify prospective buyers, to assure their credibility and financial stability.
- Expect him to negotiate with buyers for you.
- Before accepting any purchase offer, ask the agent to provide a written estimate of closing costs. Often called a "seller's net sheet,' this form shows approximately how much cash a seller will receive if he accepts the offer.

Tips on buying a foreclosed home

By Alison Ashton
Copley News Service

What homebuyer doesn't want to find a real gem that's also a great bargain? In the current market, purchasing a foreclosed home may be the best way to get the best price.

But before you run out and bid on a property, there are distinct advantages and disadvantages to be aware of. Buying a foreclosed home can be very different from buying a house the traditional way — through a broker or directly from the owner.

To guide buyers through the maze of foreclosed-home purchases, there is "Keys to Buying a Foreclosed Home" by Jack P. Friedman and Jack C. Harris (Barron's). Friedman and Harris cover everything from how foreclosed homes end up on the market, buying for investment vs. home ownership and sources of foreclosed homes to buying in auction, making an offer and financing.

Copley News Service/Ken Marshall

ADVANTAGE, BUYER

Foreclosed homes are, the authors, point out, distress sale situations. That means the seller is often a lender that has a large inventory of repossessed properties to unload. That makes for a very motivated seller.

"The fact that a property has been foreclosed does not mean that something is wrong with it," the authors write.

Often it simply means that the previous owners purchased at the top of a booming market and found they could not afford high monthly payments on a property that has dropped in value.

If you're in a position to make a quick deal, you'll be all the more attractive to a seller who is sitting on a vacant home that represents a cash drain. Some holders will even offer inducements, like doing minor remodeling, paying part of the closing costs or arranging favorable financing terms.

CAVEAT EMPTOR

Buying a foreclosed home is the ultimate case of buyer beware. As the purchaser, it's up to you to learn everything you can about the property.

Foreclosed properties often are offered on an "as is" basis. Moreover, they usually are vacant, which invites vandalism and neglect. If the property is in an area where there have been a lot of foreclosures, it could mean values throughout the neighborhood are depressed.

Friedman and Harris recommend paying for a complete appraisal (about $200 to $300). This will uncover the true condition of the house, as well as give you a list of comparable properties in the area (the seller may be asking for a price that covers the balance of the loan but is still too high for the current market).

When you purchase foreclosed property, make sure you get a good title. As the authors point out, most states give borrowers who lose their homes to foreclosure the right to reclaim them if they can pay the debt, interest and costs, which means they can haunt you long after you purchased a foreclosed property. Moreover, holders often offer a special (limited) warranty deed that does not give buyers the full protection of a general warranty deed.

"If possible," they advise, "get a title insurance policy on the property."

FINDING FORECLOSURES

There are brokers who specialize in foreclosed properties. but you also can find them through newspaper ads, advertised auctions and signs on the property itself. Another source is lists generated by the Department of Housing and Urban Development, the Federal National Mortgage Association and the Resolution Trust Corporation, which are all government agencies.

Lending institutions, such as savings and loans, commercial banks and credit unions sometimes sell foreclosed properties. On the upside, these institutions are anxious to sell and might arrange favorable financing. On the downside, they can be slow to respond to bids.

Government agencies such as the Federal Housing Administration, Veterans Administration. Farmers Home Administration, Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. and Fannie Mae are other sources to consider.

FINANCING

If you can pay cash. you'll be in the best possible position to negotiate. Most sellers give priority to cash offers.

Otherwise, you'll need to arrange your financing before making a bid. Most sellers do not allow contingencies that enable buyers to seek financing after signing the sales contract and to recover their deposit if financing falls through.

For buyers, particularly first-time buyers, looking for really affordable properties, the VA will finance the foreclosed homes it sells. The loans are fixed-rate, down payments can be as low as 5 percent of the .-cost and you do not have to be a veteran to qualify.

Get expert advice for first purchase

By Sharon Achatz
Copley News Service

Buying your first home firmly establishes you in a community— and gets you involved with a community of experts eager to help you through the real estate maze.

Even before enlisting the aid of pros, however, savvy shoppers start by doing some research on their own. The book "Buying Your First Home" by R. Dodge Woodson (Betterway Publications) offers explanations and worksheets on everything from financing to making an offer to closing a deal, and "Buying Your Home" is a computer software program designed to help first-time home buyers calculate what type of mortgage is best and how much house they can afford.

That crucial piece of information also can be had by visiting a bank, credit union or other lending institution.

In fact, shopping for financing —and getting prequalified for a mortgage loan—is the best way to start looking for a home. You'll know how much home you can afford, and therefore can focus your search on appropriate properties. Also, buyers will be more willing to deal with someone they know is ready and able to buy.

Experts suggest inspecting at least 20 houses in a neighborhood before offering to buy one, so you'll be an authority as to the features, drawbacks, prices and typical sale terms in that vicinity.

Most buyers find it helpful to hire their own real estate agent, known as a "buyer's broker." Since real estate agents are paid by commission on the sale of a home —and buyer's and seller's brokers split the commission — having your own agent won't add to your expenses.

Buyer's brokers can streamline a potential buyer's home search, using a computerized listing to screen properties for sale with particular features, price ranges and within certain neighborhoods. They also can help buyers determine a purchase-offer price, preparing a comparative market analysis that lists for the buyer what comparable homes in the neighborhood have been selling for. And brokers guide buyers through the paperwork maze of purchase offers and counter offers, escrow and closing, as well.

Folks seeking to purchase previously occupied homes are wise to include in their purchase offers contingency clauses for professional home inspection, which will include a detailed examination of the home's structural, mechanical and electrical elements, from top to bottom, inside and out.

If there are major, costly problems in a house, a qualified inspector should uncover them. But just as important, a home inspection provides the consumer with a thorough analysis of the condition of the house — what is in good working order, what needs immediate repair and replacement and what will need attention over the next few years.

As for potential purchasers of a home or condominium in an area with a community association. be sure you know what you're getting into.

When you buy your home, you're also agreeing to abide by a set of rules that may dictate the number of plants you can have on your patio or even the color of curtains you hang.

You're also taking part in the collective financial responsibility for common areas, such as playgrounds, swimming pools, streets and sidewalks.

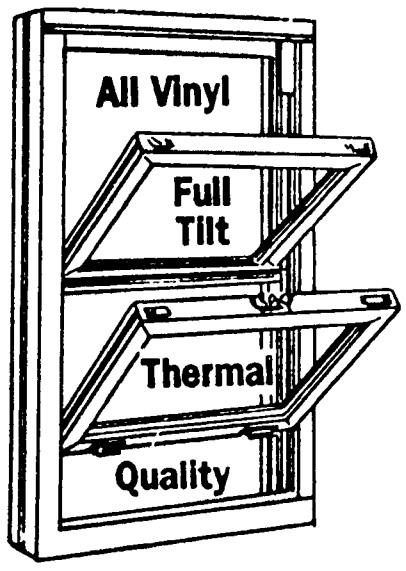

Experts suggest inspecting at least 20 houses in a neighborhood before offering to buy one

In most cases you're accepting the decisions of a governing board —made up of your neighbors — that enforces the rules and decides how much members will pay in monthly or annual assessments.

You may want to hire an attorney to review the history of the development's billing over the past few years, focusing on the budget, past increases and repairs.

Some questions to consider: Is there a budget deficit? Are reserves set aside for major repairs such as sidewalks, roofs or roads? Is there an annual cap limiting the amount assessments can be increased?

Are there any judgments against the association for which you might be liable? Is the association incorporated, to limit your financial liability in the event of a future judgment against the association?

Creature comforts and wet-and-wild ideas

By Susan Broerman
Copley News Service

Not long ago, the bathroom was considered a mundane part of the American home.

The "necessary room," as it originally was called, usually contained no more than a toilet, sink and bathtub. Homeowners never spent more time than was necessary in these basic, boxlike rooms.

These days, however, the rules have changed. In the '90s, spaciousness, style and attention to detail are the hallmarks of many of today's bathroom designs.

These rooms frequently are devoted more to leisure and comfort because home buyers want a private place to escape.

Douglas Buster, director of home design and development for a Chicago home builder, says the larger master bathroom plays an increasingly prominent role in today's double-income households, where a husband and wife must simultaneously prepare for work. And parents also have found they want bathrooms separate from their children's.

Master bathroom's contained within lavish bedroom suites incorporate such sought-after amenities as sit-down areas to apply makeup, separate showers and enclosed toilets to offer a sense of both roominess and privacy. Long, double-bowl vanities often are raised 3-1/2 to 4 inches above the norm to bring the sink area closer to its users.

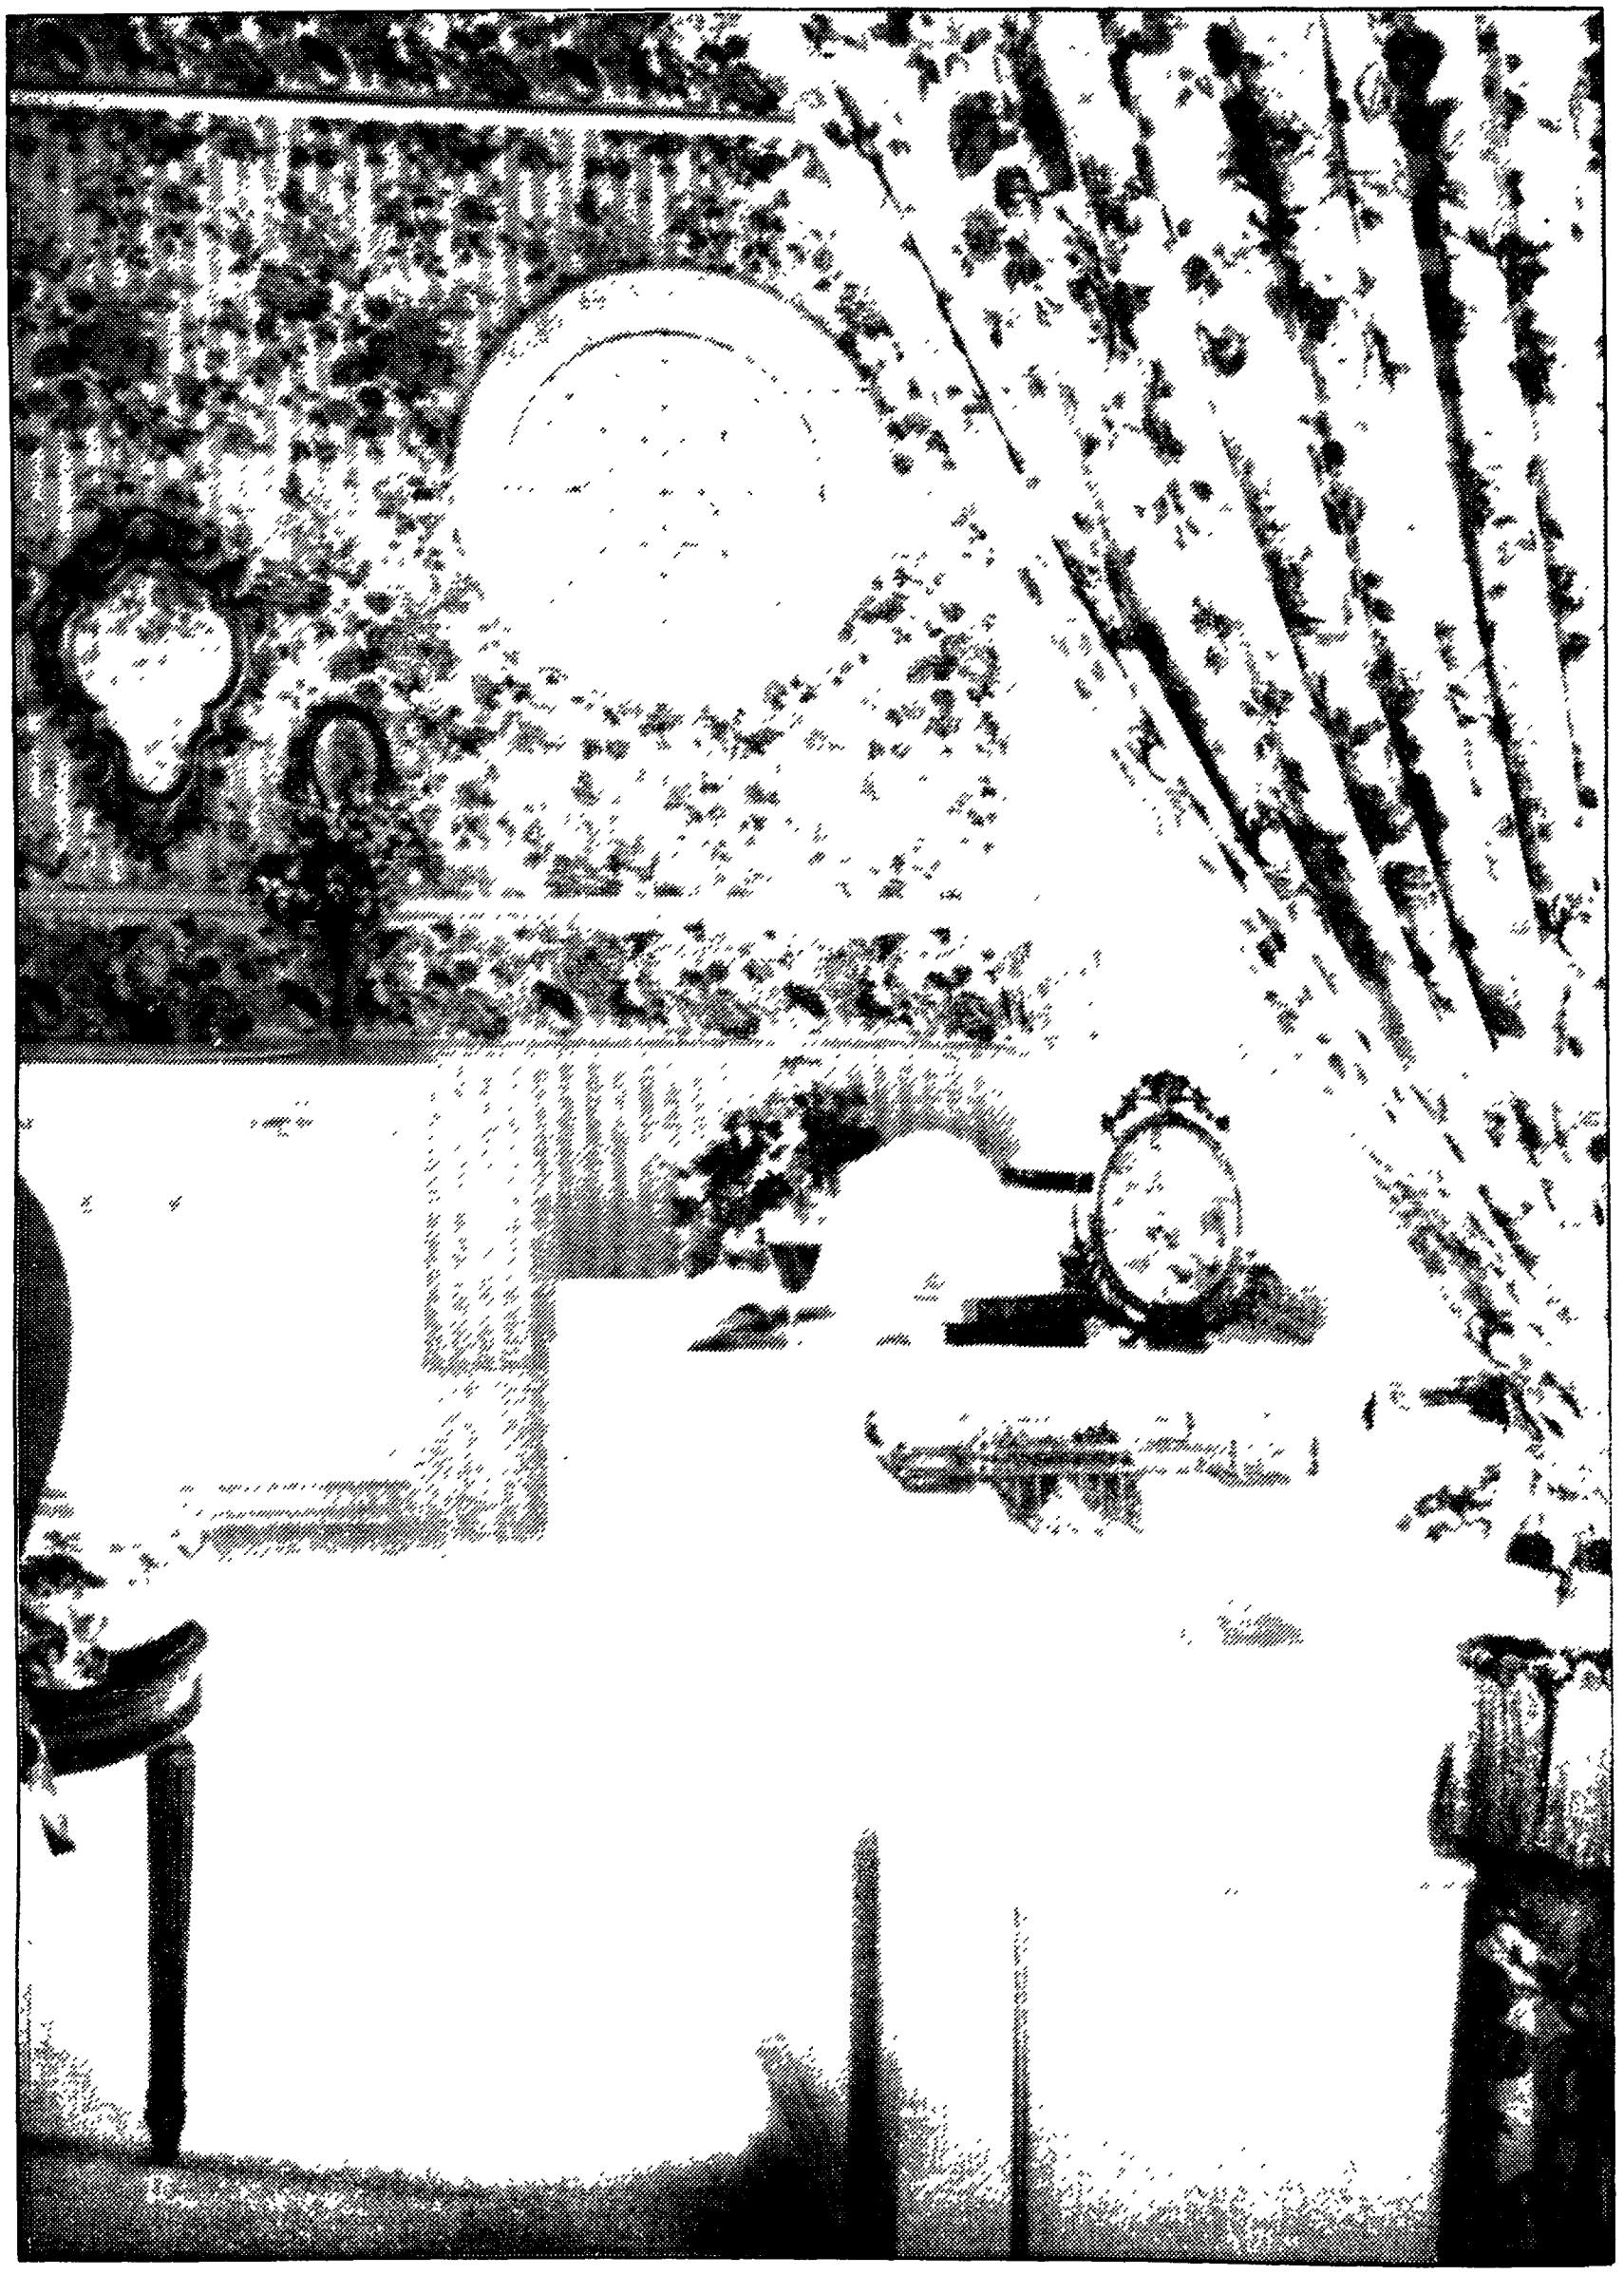

'We carefully design each bathroom to fully utilize all available space," Buster said. "Today's larger master bathrooms are no longer centered around the bath itself. Most of the master bathrooms in our single-family series and luxury town homes contain features that allow its users to unwind. relax and feel comfortable."

Elegance no longer is restricted to formal rooms, such as a living room or dining room, in the home An abundance of marble, ceramic tile and glass in the master bathroom transform a "necessary" room into an extraordinary room.

In many of today's home designs, skylights, standard windows and transom windows over tubs are prominent features in the master bath, allowing natural light to flood the room. Also, a wide use of extended mirrors creates not only more reflected light but also the impression of more space

Many home owners create comfortable atmospheres with large built-in, fiberglass garden tubs or whirlpool tubs to soak in after a hard day's work or play. Fiberglass tubs are not only economical, they come in many styles and colors And can match perfectly just about any room.

"Home buyers simply are no longer content with conventional washrooms," Buster said.

A few luxurious touches can turn any bathroom into an inviting haven.

Modern kitchens are mutipurpose spaces that combine traditional warmth with high-tech appliances.

Spruce up the heart of the home

Copley News Service

There's a lot more cooking in America's kitchens than just food.

In the past, the so-called "work triangle" created a compact relationship between sink, stove top and refrigerator. But dual-career couples and on-the-go families are demanding more from kitchens.

Now kitchens serve as a utilitarian cooking space, a meeting spot after a hustle-bustle day and a living room all in one. Designers say many kitchens serve as the heart of the home. And the evolution continues.

TRENDS

When people started knocking down walls and moving sofas and televisions into kitchen areas, they created large, rectangular rooms that were wide-open. That's even changing. Kitchen designers are now using angled elements, large window areas and clever built-ins to make multifunction kitchens as livable and spacious as possible.

Other factors previously unconsidered make kitchens "the room" for the 1990s. Americans are more concerned about the environment. The result: Modern kitchens have two waste receptacles—one for garbage, the other for recyclables.

Because of the graying of American, new kitchens are designed so they can be used for a lifetime, not just a specific age group. Entryways and doorways have been widened to accommodate the physically challenged or seniors with walkers.

In addition, Mom and Dad aren't the only ones cooking these days. Since kids are preparing meals for themselves, appliances such as microwaves are positioned lower so that children can use them.

And the kitchen of today is safer. A simple example concerns appliances: The knobs of a stove are in the front, not over it, so the cook doesn't have to reach over burners to operate them.

KITCHENS FOR ALL

Kitchens have been expanded to fulfill a variety of functions. Areas can be customized for specific activities, including a main kitchen work counter, snack bar, breakfast and dining table, desk, message center, beverage bar, casual seating, television viewing and more.

Today's well-planned kitchens also make sure the work triangle (refrigerator, sink and range) has no through traffic cutting across it. Instead family and friends can help with mealtime chores in secondary work areas or triangles.

Innovative use of satellite space expands the "live-in" kitchen into five non-cooking areas, as well.

The mudroom replaces the back door that leads directly to the kitchen. It's designed with surfaces and storage for coats, packages and books — all paraphernalia that would have landed on countertops of the kitchens of the 1970s and '80s.

The dining alcove is a change from eating at the island, which blurs the busy stage of cooking with the relaxing activity of dining.

Guidelines for remodeling your kitchen

Copley News Service

After nearly 50 years of tried and true standards, kitchen design embraces the new decade with updated guidelines from the National Kitchen and Bath Association.

Professional designers know what they are. Here's your cheat sheet:

• Provide doorways at least 30 inches wide at all entrances to the kitchen. Traffic paths through the kitchen should be 36 inches wide, even wider if they pass through work zones. All work aisles must be a minimum of 42 inches wide.

• Where possible, plan the primary food preparation area as a work triangle totaling 26 feet or less. The triangle shouldn't intersect islands or peninsulas by more than 12 feet.

• Position the microwave near the refrigerator to create a combined snack area. The microwave should be between counter height and eye level.

• Ancillary work areas should include adequate countertop space, easy access to storage, a water source and access to one or more cooking appliances.

• Where space is limited, maximize the cabinets' function by reserving them for everyday items. Also include at least five storage items to improve function and accessibility.

• Include at least 24 inches of counter space on one side of the sink, 18 inches on the other. Allow at least 15 inches of counter space on the latch side of a refrigerator, as well as 15 inches of space on one side of a cooktop or range, 9 inches on the other.

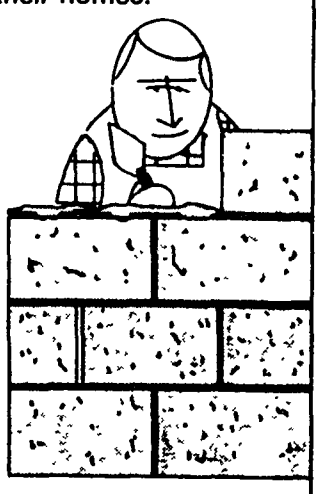

• Safety guidelines: Create bright, even lighting at all work zones; all appliances used for surface cooking must have a ventilation system; cooking surfaces shouldn't be placed below operable windows; ground fault circuit interrupters (CFCI) should be used for all electrical outlets within 6 feet of a water source; position a fire extinguisher in an accessible spot near the cooktop.

Are home improvements worth the cost?

A recent survey of more than 400 real estate brokers revealed that many home owners can have difficulty in recovering the costs of some major home improvements when reselling their homes.

| Improvement | Projected cost | 2-year recoup rate |
|---|---|---|
| New garage | $10,000 | 80% |
| Room addition | 20,000 | 65% |
| New bath | 10,000 | 60% |
| Remodel kitchen | 20,000 | 50% |
| Fireplace | 5,000 | 50% |
| Add deck or patio | 5,000 | 50% |

Liven up the heart of your home and cook a little too

The study is a place for the telephone, cookbooks, checkbooks and grocery lists.

The butler's pantry is designed as a transition to a formal dining room. It includes storage for fine china and crystal, as well as boasting surfaces for holding food about to be served.

The larder is a small glass-doored room kept at a cool temperature. It stores fresh fruits, vegetables and cheeses, reflecting the trend toward fresh foods instead of relying as heavily on canned, boxed and frozen foods.

PERFORMANCE KITCHENS

They may look traditional as ever, but today's kitchens are made of performance-oriented materials. Flooring is vinyl tile, ceilings are acoustical plank, countertops are easily sculpted solid surfacing and lighting is both utilitarian and avant-garde.

Take lighting, for example. Incandescent lamps fitted into recessed ceiling cans produce a soft light. Under-cabinet fluorescents illuminate countertops. Halogen spotlights may be used to show off decorative plates on a kitchen wall. A dining alcove could boast a handcrafted tin chandelier. The study might use a desk lamp.

Light switches, meantime, are set 40 inches from the floor—instead of the standard 48 inches— so they are within reach from a wheelchair or young child.

Other trends: Wing handles at the sink can be moved with a wrist; knobs on drawers and cabinets are oversize and easier to grasp; a roll-out shelf near the mudroom stores newspapers until collection day; and a pull-out bin next to the sink stores recyclable plastics and cans.

SNAZZY CABINETS

Family room caliber materials and furnishings have been finding their way into kitchens to camouflage their utilitarian nature.

Manufacturers are embellishing cabinets with dentil moldings, cornices, raised panels and other ornamental details formerly reserved for home furnishings such as chests of drawers, china cabinets and highboys.

Some cabinets actually resemble free-standing vintage armoires, Hoosier cabinets and Welsh dressers. Designers say the new kitchen cabinets can help add shape, dimension and texture to a room's landscape.

Other options include cabinets with doors in sold wood or framed glass. The interiors of china cabinets can be lighted. They can also be outfitted with pull-out shelves for the television and other electronic equipment such as a stereo component system and VCR.

The coup de grace in cabinetry might be incorporating an icemaker into the wet-bar compartment of the family room's entertainment center along with a mini refrigerator—both with cabinet matching front panels that disguise their presence.

UNSEEN APPLIANCES

Appliances are fading into the background, but not because they're not important in today's kitchen. Heavy metal is becoming passe.

Instead, refrigerators, dishwashers and trash compactors are being outfitted with cabinet-matching panels to camouflage their original heavy-metal character. Also, appliance manufacturers are re-engineering culinary gadgets to make them flush with cabinet fronts.

In addition, doors and handles of wall ovens, refrigerators or dishwashers no longer protrude before the face of the walls or the cabinets. The same goes for cooktops. The newest smooth glass-topped models are manufactured to be recessed into the countertop.

ARCHITECTURAL DELIGHTS

Architecturally, kitchens of today are being renovated to complement the decor of other rooms in the American home.

More architectural elements are going into the structure of the kitchen: cathedral ceilings, crown moldings, ceiling beams, hefty-woodwork around doors and windows, high-styled arched windows and French doors instead of sliding glass doors.

Meantime, living- and dining room furniture is replacing traditional "kitchen furniture." Chrome and plastic laminate breakfast tables and chrome-legged chairs are being replaced by antique pine tables and vintage Windsor chairs.

Upholstered wingback chairs and even sofas are entering the kitchen scene. More curtains and valances adorn kitchen windows. And fabric and mellow woods are helping to soften a kitchen's harsh tone.

HONEYDEWS

Recipes for easy home projects

By Alison Ashton
Copley News Service

Every house could use a little sprucing up. But if you're not naturally handy, where do you begin?

Start small, advise Katie and Gene Hamilton. authors of "Don't Move — Improve: 52 Home-Enhancement Projects That Can Be Completed in One Weekend or Less" (Henry Holt).

The Hamiltons. who have renovated 14 houses, know from experience that home projects that are short and sweet are the ones that actually get completed.

"If you can't complete the job in a weekend, don't attempt it," they write.

That's because short projects aren't too intimidating to the novice, and they're not so involved that they bore a seasoned do it-your-selfer.

The projects take advantage of every shortcut the Hamiltons have learned over the years, from using Contac paper to create a wall border to creating a shower curtain out of a bedsheet. Each project is accompanied by a supply list, detailed instructions and illustrations.

If you want to keep up with the Hamilton's latest home tips, subscribe to their electronic bulletin board, HomeLine. For more information, write HomeLine BBS, P.O. Box 1076,111 W. Chestnut St., St. Michaels, MD 21663.

In the meantime, here are five easy "recipes" adapted from "Don't Move — Improve." So when Saturday morning rolls around, get working!

PAINT A PIECE OF FURNITURE

Drop cloths, newspapers
Wood filler
Putty knife
Sandpaper
Sanding strips
Tack rag or rag dampened with mineral spirits
Polyester paintbrush
Latex semigloss paint

Protect work area with a drop cloth or layers of newspapers.

Remove any hardware, such as drawer pulls or a glass top. Survey furniture surface for scratches, dents and nicks. Apply wood filler with putty knife so surface will be smooth. When filler has dried, sand patched areas.

Next, sand entire surface with fine-grit abrasive paper. Make a sanding belt out of a narrow strip of sandpaper and tape to reach rounded surfaces, such as the leg of a table. After sanding, wipe entire surface with tack rag or a rag dampened with mineral spirits.

Use polyester brush to apply paint Stir paint with a stick until it is completely mixed and runs smoothly when stick is held over can. Turn furniture piece upside down and paint inside surfaces first. Move furniture so that you're painting on a horizontal surface to prevent runs and drips. If you do get runs or drips, allow them to dry, sand them and repaint.

Allow piece to dry completely. Apply second coat if needed. Restore hardware, and enjoy your newly painted furniture.

MIRROR IN A FRAME

Frame
Tack rag
Mirror
Cardboard
1/4-inch plywood or hardboard
Heavyweight (at least 50-pound) picture-hanging wire and screw eyes
Utility knife
Hammer
Heavy-duty stapler
9/16 inch staples
Measuring tape

Prepare frame for mirror by removing any nails, brads or staples from the back. Rub frame with tack rag to remove grime. Frame should have a recess at least 1/4-inch thick to accommodate mirror.

Cut a piece of corrugated cardboard and a piece of 1/4-inch plywood or hardboard backing to fit into the frame. Place frame face side down and put mirror into frame face side down. Lay cardboard on top of back of mirror in frame. Then lay down wood backing.

Hold parts securely in frame while you pick up frame. The mirror should be sandwiched between backing and frame. If it rattles in the frame, add another layer of cardboard between the mirror and wood backing.

When mirror and cardboard are properly aligned, staple backing to frame. Staple two sides of each corner, then space staples every 2 inches around perimeter of frame.

To install hanging wire and hardware, position two screws on back of the frame about 4 inches down from top. Then use two hanging wires to support the heavy frame and mirror.

CUSTOMIZE A PLAIN WHITE SHADE

Vinyl window shade
Pre-cut stencil design or Mylar
Tracing paper
Pencil
Masking tape
Cardboard
X-acto craft knife
Metal ruler
Spray adhesive
Acrylic paints
Stencil brush
Scrap of felt

If you don't buy a pre-cut stencil, create your own stencil from a design you draw freehand or trace from a pattern found on wallpaper, fabric, wrapping paper, stationery, etc. Use a simple design for your first project.

Copy a stencil design by drawing it on a piece of tracing paper. Tape tracing paper to a piece of cardboard. Lay Mylar over cardboard and cut out design with a sharp X-acto knife. Use a metal ruler to cut straight lines.

Hold the stencil in place on the shade with a light coat of spray adhesive. Dip stencil brush into paint (poured into a paper tray) and dab it on scrap felt to remove excess paint. When the brush is almost dry, dab it with an up-and-down motion in the cutout area of the stencil Start from the outer edges of the design, and work toward the center. Make sure to clean the brush thoroughly if you're using different colors in the same design.

Clean all paint off the stencil before repositioning it. Continue repositioning and painting until you've covered the area you desire.

INSTALL A PET DOOR

Pet door
Pencil
Electric drill
1/4 spade bit
Keyhole saw
Screwdriver
Scissors
Measuring tape

The best place to install a pet door is in a solid wood door leading to a utility room, basement or porch. Doors can be installed that allow the pet to go directly outside, but not all owners want their pets roaming outdoors — and other uninvited creatures can find their way into your house.

Trace the outline of the pet door onto the door. The pet door should be positioned at least 2 inches up from the bottom of the door. Before cutting, make sure the door is high enough to accommodate your pet. Use a pencil to mark the location of the mounting screws. Drill a 1/4-inch hole in each corner of the door outline.

Cut from hole to hole along the layout lines with the keyhole saw. Keep saw on the outside of the cutting lines.

Drill pilot holes for mounting screws; make sure the holes are straight, or the screws will angle off. Use pet-door frame as a template and drill halfway through the door. Use the other pet-door frame as a drilling template on the other side. The holes should meet in the middle.

Assemble the pet door by placing the outside frame on the "dress side" of the door; push mounting screws through frame. Slip the other frame on the other side, thread washers and nuts, check the alignment, and tighten the screws. Now Fang and Fluffy can come and go as they please.

INSTALL A WATER SAVER IN THE TOILET

Sponge
Screwdriver
Adjustable wrench
Future Flush unit

Close toilet seat so you don't drop any parts in the bowl. Remove tank lid and place it out of harm's way.

Turn toilet's water supply off at shut-off valve below toilet on the wall, turning valve handle clockwise. Flush toilet to empty tank; use sponge to mop up any remaining water.

Removing old parts is harder than installing new ones; don't be alarmed if screws or parts break when you try to remove them. The water in the tank probably has caused some corrosion.

Remove a rod and ball valve by unclamping guide from overflow tube. Then unhook rod from flush arm and remove assembly A flapper-type valve is removed by twisting off its mounting hooks or by slipping mounting collar up and off overflow tube.

Remove flush handle by loosening large nut on inside of tank If you use a wrench, remember to loosen it by turning it counterclockwise as you look at the nut from the front of the toilet.

Install the new flush assembly. which goes in place the same way the old one came out, except the nut goes on the outside of the toilet. If the flush shaft is loose in its hole, use the adapter supplied with the kit. Don't overtighten the nut. Follow Future Flush unit instructions to fine-tune the flushing mechanism to conserve water.

Paint, paper and other trendy finishes

By Brian Alexander
Copley News Service

There are so many choices for wall coverings and painting techniques these days you may long for yesteryear, when walls were white or covered with appropriately florid wallpaper.

Now you have to select from a variety of wallpapers so broad. it includes prints licensed from soft drink companies, designs based on California-Cape May-Martha's Vineyard country inns or even papers that simulate a library full of books.

And that doesn't even include the new designer materials from the likes of Geoffrey Beene and Laura Ashley.

You want paint? Fine. There are only about 100 different colors available and half a dozen techniques to apply them.

The first step in decorating your walls, then, is to sit yourself down with a piece of paper and pencil and take an honest look at the rooms you want to decorate. Ask yourself some questions.

First, how do your walls look now? If you live in an older house, you may have to lath and plaster walls.

If so, those walls may be cracked, stained or otherwise damaged. Painting those walls will not cover up the cracks so you will probably want to turn to a wall covering.

If your walls are in good shape, or if you decide to repair damaged plaster to make them look like new, perhaps painting will fill your bill. It is usually easier, cheaper and simpler to replace paint than wallpaper.

WALLPAPER

Wallpaper has been making something of a comeback since the late 1980s. Once homeowners realized all wallpaper did not need to look like the inside of an antebellum New Orleans bordello, paper designers began creating new looks that brighten rooms and serve as a rich backdrop to interior design schemes.

Wallpaper makers also wised up and began making wallpaper that is more of a wall covering. Some papers are really vinyl. Some are coated with Teflon. At least one is coated with real crushed rock. Most are washable.

This is one home decorating option that really requires consumers to shop for the style they like and can afford. With so many design possibilities, it really pays to see a lot of papers before making a selection. You may decide, for example, that simple vertical stripes fit your needs very well and you'll be happy to learn their cost is low.

One interesting way to cover walls is with fabric Fabric gives a rich look to walls because it is, well, expensive. But placing fabric on walls is a sure way to hide a multitude of flaws.

To completely hide any cracks or crevices in your walls and make a room feel almost decadent, try upholstering the walls by stapling batting to the walls then stretching fabric over the batting just like a furniture upholsterer.

Wallcoverings don't have to be splashy and colorful to make an impact; sometimes the subtle appeal works best.

Fabric can also be simply pasted or stapled onto walls. Stapling is much easier than upholstering and pasting is easier still, but with pasting the flaws in a wall are more apt to be seen.

Whether you use paper or fabric, however, be sure to have an overall theme in mind.

For example, play vertical stripes off throw cushions covered in striped fabric. Coordinate colors, but don't be a slave to color. New trends allow decorators to mix colors in the same room as long as they are from the same palette.

Remember that your walls will set the mood for the rest of the room so have a clear idea of what the other elements will look like.

PAINTING

While paint has been around since man learned to crunch berries, the paint available today is much different from the paint of just 20 or 30 years ago.

Thinner is on the way out to reduce air pollution and toxic fumes. Oil-based paints will always have at least some thinner. but the move to water-based paints, which have even less thinner. is making painting a safer,

Lamps for an illuminating design

By Sharon Achatz
Copley News Service

It's time to shed some light on the issues of home lighting design and energy efficiency.

Lighting is much more than just screwing in a bulb or selecting a fixture to match a room's decor. Today's lighting options are some of the most affordable means of enhancing the beauty, comfort and safety of a home.

For example, wall sconces add drama, spotlights accent artwork, dimmer switches change the mood, automatic timers strengthen security, scented bulbs add ambience, motion-sensors increase safety.

And whether you're going for drama or day-to-day functionality, in this world of rising utility costs, many folks are fast becoming fans of energy-saving light bulbs and fixtures.

The standard incandescent light bulb generates almost twice as much heat as light, and generally is good for only 750 hours of use.

Despite their inefficiency, incandescents are the best-selling bulbs because of their low price and the fact that most lamps are designed to hold them. Reflector incandescent bulbs are designed to direct more light where needed, so lower-wattage bulbs can provide the same lighting effect with less electricity.

Still more efficient are halogen and fluorescent bulbs. Halogens burn at significantly lower temperatures and last up to four times as long their standard counterparts. They initially sell for much more, but that cost is made up for in terms of longer bulb life and lower energy use. Due to their crisp, tightly focused light, halogens make good reading lights.

Fluorescent lights last from seven to 20 times longer than standard bulbs and use only a fifth as much energy. Because of their bright and diffused light, fluorescents are ideal for task-lighting, such as in kitchens and workshops. They cost about the same as halogen bulbs, but traditionally have come in tubes or circular lamp shapes, which may not fit everyday fixtures.

The solution to the shape situation are compact fluorescent lamps. These truncated versions of long fluorescent tubes last up to 10,000 burning hours and require 75 percent less energy to emit the same light as their incandescent counterparts. With the help of an adaptor, they fit into ordinary household light sockets.

Compact fluorescents are best for general background illumination or for low-activity areas such as hallways and sitting rooms.

In addition to bulb selection, there are ways to stretch energy efficiency even further. By attaching lamps to dimmers and other adapters, lighting can be matched to particular tasks without wasting a watt.

In the dining room, for example, dimmer switches turn down the lights—and the energy intake— for intimate dinners, and then turn them up for cards or board games. Three-way bulbs, which are also available in energy-saving reflecting models, can serve the same purpose.

Due to their crisp, tightly focused light, halogens make good reading lights.

Some light adapters are sensitive to motion—perfect for outside security lighting as well as for use in areas of the home that folks often enter with hands full, such as the laundry room, garage, or walk-in closet. Others are sensitive to sound or heat. Almost all can be regulated so that they turn on only when it's dark rather than throughout the day.

No matter the room, it's almost guaranteed that a single lighting fixture won't work as well as a combination of lamps in creating worthy and workable lighting.

For example, the best dining rooms combine dramatic exposed sources, such as chandeliers or sconces, with background lighting such as spots or fluorescents to balance overall brightness.

In the kitchen, choose light bulbs that accurately reflect color so that food is more appealing hut that also provide enough light for up-close tasks. The best bet is a combination of halogen and fluorescent bulbs — perhaps under-the-counter task lights paired with recessed reflector floodlights in the ceiling.

The family room probably is used more than any other room in the house, so its lighting must satisfy a variety of needs—including general, mood, task, and security lighting. Combine three-way bulbs with energy-saving reflectors and halogen floodlights or spotlights — along with timer switches to turn lights on and off in your absence to approximate the family's normal routine.

Bedroom lighting should enhance mood and relaxation, while specific lamps are used for nighttime reading. Choose three-way bulbs that can be used at lowest wattage for mood lights, at highest wattage for reading. Some bulbs even carry scents—such as peaches and cream — that can add to a room's ambience.

In the bathroom, balance clear, accurate lighting with good rendering of color values. A combination of vanity lights and fluorescent tubes does this perfectly. Some folks may want to add a scented bulb or a recessed heat lamp for the ceiling.

When it comes to no-nonsense work areas—whether workshop or at-home office—opt for clean bright lights with energy savings and low maintenance. Some best bets include compact fluorescent bulbs or extra-long life halogen bulbs.

Of course, the impact of lighting doesn't end inside the house. Exterior lighting provides decoration and security in the form of floodlights, spotlights —even anti-bug lights that cast a yellowish tint less likely to attract nighttime insects.

For security lights that are lit all night, low-pressure sodium is most efficient, although they cast a hazy glow that may not be suitable for entertainment areas. Mercury vapor lights provide better color qualities for such areas.

Trendy finishes for the walls of your home

less obnoxious chore.

But the paint itself is the least revolutionary ingredient of the new painting trends. It's what you can do with the paint that is most exciting.

First you'll need to go back to kindergarten when the main rule was never to go outside the lines, never to mix colors and always color with a smooth stroke.

Toss those rules out the window.

Marbling, sponging, ragging, dragging, stenciling, suppling, feathering color washing and spattering are all exciting ways to give a room contemporary flair. And don't forget the ancient art of trompe l'oeiL the technique used by painters to "fool the eye."

The idea of most of these skills is to add texture into what is normally a two-dimensional object, a wall covered with paint.

Trompe l'oeil takes this to an extreme by using shadows and artistic methods to create the impression that, for example, there is a fireplace in the center of a basic flat wall. When trompe l'oeil is done well, an observer cannot tell whether a beam or an archway over a door is the real thing or not.

"Done well" are the key words. When poorly executed, trompe l'oeil is simply a cheesy shortcut.

For a while in the early 1980s, everybody wanted marbleizing. Doors, windows, floors were all marbleized with paint to make it appear one was living at Versailles. Now some sanity has returned and marbleizing, used sparingly, has become a standard.

Marbleizing uses a clear glaze, tinted with a pigment of your choice, usually pinks and browns, that is then applied to walls and manipulated with brushes, rags and feathers to create a marble look. It may sound impossible, but some marbleized surfaces look astonishingly like the real thing. If it's good enough for St. Peter's Basilica in Rome, it's good enough for your home.

Stippling, ragging and sponging are all similar in that they involve using materials to apply paint so the paint produces a textured finish. These methods also allow you to combine two colors on the same wall for lively effects.

Usually they involve a lighter color over a darker one or vice versa. With stippling, the paint is applied generously with a brush. Then a material such as a plastic garbage bag is crumpled, held in one hand and pressed against the tacky wall. This allows the color underneath to show through in some areas and creates a textured look.

With ragging and sponging, the colors are applied with the rags or sponge. A sponge will yield a look similar to a pointillist painting. A rag will look more stenciled. A feather can be used to create a more delicate pattern.

After one color dries, you can apply another, complementary color for a modern, exciting scheme.

Dragging and color washing both involve the application of a color, then its removal with a rag, dry brush or cheesecloth. Either a colored glaze or diluted or undiluted paint can be used.

Spattering is probably the most fun technique since it lets everyone be Jackson Pollock for a day Simply prepare your surface, usually a white background, then dip a brush in vibrant colors like vivid reds, blues and greens. Stand back and flick the paint off the brush onto the wall.

Stenciling is a little more traditional. Normally stencils are used to create interest around doorways and windows. Stencils, which can be made at home or purchased, are easy to use. Just tape the stencil to the surface, paint, remove and let dry. If there are any smudges, you can touch up the design with paint the same color as the background.

ALTERNATIVES

If all that sounds like just too much work, there are easier, simpler ways to jazz up walls:

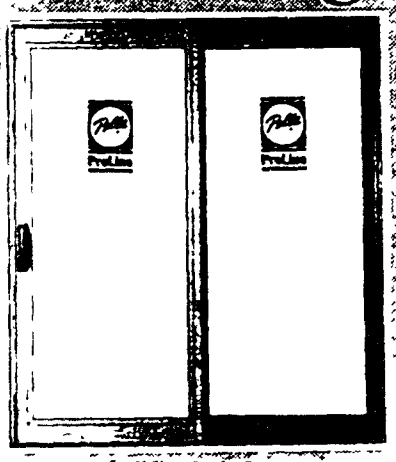

- Leave them white, or add a drop or two of pigment to white paint. Try dumping one or two cupfuls of sand into a gallon of paint for a rocky look.
- Attach an Oriental carpet to a piece of wood and hang it on a wall
- Light a large potted tree from the floor so that shadows play on the walls.
- Stretch an elaborate Japanese kimono over wire hangers and hang it on a wall.
- Buy posters from art museum openings, frame them yourself and hang those.
- Attach flat antiques to your walls. For example, try an old wooden typesetter's drawer with dozens of tiny compartments. Miniature bottles can then be placed in the compartments.

Think of your walls as a blank canvas. What you do with that canvas is only limited by your budget and your imagination.

Smart ways for staying nice and warm

By Sharon Williams
Copley News Service

Maybe Jack Frost isn't on the pumpkin yet. But there's no getting around it.

Winter and the heating season are just around the corner.

You're definitely not looking forward to the sky-high energy bills that soon will start appearing in your mail box. And you hate the idea of being an energy hog, anyway

Yet, you don't want to spend each indoor minute decked out in layers of sweaters and socks.

To ensure that you'll get through the cold-weather months as comfortably, economically and energy-efficiently as possible.

Surprisingly, it doesn't take a major investment to make a major difference. Rather, a few smart changes here and there can yield some good results in the home heating arena.

Following is a rundown of options to consider

• Worthwhile winterizing. That cold spot under the door might cost more than you think. Experts estimate about 15 percent of the energy you use for heating your home goes toward warming the air that leaks through cracks.

Lower that figure by sealing leaks around electric switches and outlets, installing door sweeps and weatherstripping around windows and doors If a sweep won't fit in the space between your door and floor, block the crack with a padded strip

If you're pondering a larger investment, consider replacing windows with 'high-E" glass, which has a greater R-value—or resistance to heat flow—than regular glass.

• The heat is on. From pilot lights to filters to service panels to heat pumps, home heating maintenance requires a lot more than an occasional dusting of the thermostat.

That's why it's a smart idea to have your system checked by a professional before cold weather sets in - especially if you've experienced problems with the furnace in the past.

A maintenance check-up now could save you the money and bone-chilling hours you'd spend on a service call — perhaps afterhours—in the dead of winter.

• Heavenly humidity. If you re tired of putting tea kettles filled with water on the stove to take the dryness out of the air, this may be the year to consider a humidifier.

Those who swear by them say the living and breathing is easier in a room filled with clean, safe water vapor. Humidity also tends to ward off the winter chill that's often present indoors even when the heat's turned up.

There are humidifiers to fit every budget and space, ranging from portable models to whole-house humidifiers that don't have to be refilled manually. Your heating and cooling contractor might offer suggestions on brands and models that are right for your home.

A lit fireplace creates emotional as well as physical warmth during cool-weather.

• Supplement your heat. As the winter chill sets in, many homeowners turn to supplemental heating appliances to prevent high heating bills.

More compact and efficient than ever, space heaters can work wonders in a chilly room. And, wood stoves lend a homey touch as they provide comforting heat.

Pellet-fired appliances, meanwhile, are the new, environment-friendly kids on the block.

These appliances often resemble traditional wood-burners, but produce less of the hazardous emissions associated with such stoves. Another earth-friendly feature: They burn pellets made of compressed sawdust, wood scraps, recycled cardboard and agricultural byproducts.

One of these appliances may fit well into your heating picture. If so, remember to follow manufacturer's instructions to the letter for installation. operation and maintenance; supplemental sources can be dangerous—even deadly—if used incorrectly.

• Warm up to fireplaces. They can create an atmosphere that's either homey or romantic. They can warm both hands and heart.They can greatly boost a home's value. And. they can give a room a much needed focal point.

Thus, it's no wonder home owners hold fireplaces near and dear —even in these high-tech times.

And, in return, fireplaces just keep getting better. You now. for example, can choose between natural wood-burning or gas-burning fireplaces, and can boost your fireplace's energy output and efficiency by adding an insert.

If you're lucky enough to already own a fireplace, take pains to have your chimney checked by a qualified chimney sweep before and after the heating season.

If you don't, consult your contractor about the possibility and cost of adding a fireplace. Or consider one of the free-standing faux models that offer psychological warmth to a room without major renovation.

• Important insulation You throw an extra quilt on the bed during winter. Why not do the same for your home?

Many heating experts say the addition of insulation — oftentimes in the attic—is a good way to lower heating costs.

You can't judge insulation on appearance alone. Rather, insulation efficiency is measured in terms of its resistance to heat flow, which is expressed as an R-value. The higher the R-value, the more effective the insulation.

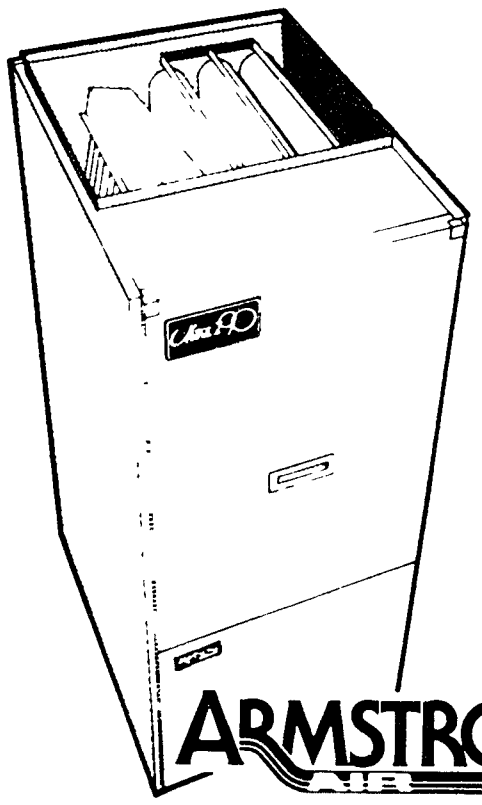

Before you start piling on the padding, find out how much insulation is already in your home and the type of insulation you ll need to improve the situation. Look to your heating contractor or utility company for facts and figures related to your area.

• Experience a setback. It's a constant battle. Someone turns the heat up, then someone else turns it down. There's no method to the madness and you suspect there's a price to pay for all the rises and falls in indoor

Ideas, equipment for a snug domicile

By Sharon Williams
Copley News Service

In the 1990s, a well-furnished home isn't necessarily measured by its furnishings, window treatments and lighting fixtures.

Rather, it's the things unseen that really make a difference.

Things such as home security equipment that protects when no one's around. Or earth-friendly accessories that assist with recycling. Or high-tech devices that make the living easier for everyone.

Such gear and gadgets aren't big on aesthetics. Instead, theirs are more basic goals—to make the home a safer, cleaner and more efficient place to live.

SAFE-AND-SOUND HOME

With crime rates on the rise in both cities and the suburbs, it's easy to see why many homeowners are concerned about security.

As a result, there's a whole spectrum of home security devices waiting to act as a watchdog while you're away. Some require only an investment of a few dollars and can be put in place by a do-it-yourselfer while others cost thousands of dollars and require professional installation.

At the low-cost end of the spectrum, you'll find heavy-duty locks for windows and doors to beef up security, peepholes for peering at unknown visitors, motion-sensitive floodlights that flash on when someone comes too close and battery-powered motion alarms that protect a single door or window.

More elaborate systems lie in the new generation of battery-powered central alarms. Homeowners begin with a starter kit that includes a control center and several doors and window sensors, then purchase additional sensors as needed.

Those willing to make a sizable investment can enter a world of high-tech protection that offers the ultimate in security.

These professionally installed systems are based on ultrasonic motion devices, closed-circuit video systems, infrared technology, microwaves and combination units, and usually are tied to telephone systems that will phone police or a private security monitoring company when trouble comes calling.

Many also can be programmed to alert homeowners to other problems, such as fire. furnace failure, freezing dangers and water leaks, or to phone for help in the case of a medical emergency-

THE INSURED HOME

No one likes the thought of a home-based disaster, such as a fire, flood or burglary.

But since such calamities are unfortunate facts of life, you need financial protection for your home. Thus, homeowner's insurance that covers your home, its contents and your personal liability to others is one of the best investments you'll make.

There are policies for everything from cottages to castles. Finding the right one is much like searching for a house—you need to do your homework first, then follow up with some heavy-duty shopping around.

The first step lies in taking stock of what you own, estimating what it would cost to replace everything from the kitchen sink to Aunt Martha's armoire.

Next, learn about the various types of homeowner's policies, then set up appointments with a number of prospective insurance representatives so you can compare costs and coverage.

Once you decide on a policy, you need to take inventory of what you own. Some tackle the task with pen and paper in hand, while others get a videotaped record of all they possess.

Adequate insurance coverage provides a certain peace of mind, most agree. Still, even those with the best policies hope they ll never have to go through the agony of replacing an entire home

That's why it's smart to take as many preventive measures as possible — and there are plenty out there to consider.

Two examples: Home safes can protect valuables and important papers, while smoke alarms in good working condition will sound the alarm in case of fire.

THE SMART HOME

Big Brother hasn't taken over yet. But you can find dozens of ways to turn your humble abode into a smart home that can do many things on its own.

A number of straightforward gadgets can bring high wizardry into your home in a relatively hassle-free way.

Light timers, for instance. make sure everything's bright when you arrive home, while intercoms let you communicate room-to-room without raising your voice.

Programmable settings allow appliances such as coffee and bread makers to deliver fresh brew and breakfast when you arise and set back thermostats to make sure that the heat is on and off at the appropriate times.

More elaborate systems give you control of the home security devices, appliances, temperature or lighting—or a combination of the above—via a touch pad.

You customize settings in terms of convenience, comfort, safety. energy savings — then sit back and relax as the system follows your commands for the appropriate times of day and conditions.

THE EARTH-FRIENDLY HOME

In the 1990s, environmental friendliness has definitely come home. People are crushing cans, saving newspapers and generally being more conscious about their impact on the earth.

And now there are dozens of gadgets and gizmos available to temperature.

A setback thermostat may be able to take away the headache.

These smart little devices can be programmed for maximum efficiency; they'll switch to a lower setting at night and during times of the day when no one is home. then back up during the height of family activity.

You rarely need to fiddle with the controls—unless you want to override the program when the daily schedule differs dramatically from the norm.

• Energy efficiency outside. Who says energy efficiency begins and ends inside? The same kind of thinking should be applied to the great outdoors.

Smart landscaping, for instance, can really make a difference in heat loss and gain.

Practical ideas range from using deciduous trees as living sunscreens that shade in the summer, then shed their leaves when cool weather rolls around so that the winter sun can shine right in, to planting shrubs and hedges in strategic spots to block the chilly winter wind

Professional landscapers, do-it-yourself books and home gardening centers can offer additional suggestions.

Another idea: Maintenance-free siding with insulation underneath also may help trim your energy bill.

Because a layer of insulation on the exterior surface of the wall is more effective than inside of the wall, say experts. the house stays cooler in the summer, warmer in the winter.

• Recruit the sun. Many homeowners longing to slash their fuel bills and their dependency on gas. oil and electricity are turning to solar power.

There now are hundreds of ways to employ both active and passive systems. Warm a pool, charge an outdoor night light or heat and cool a entire home through solar panels, heat collectors, insulating shutters and heat pumps.

Some solar projects can be tackled by avid do-it-yourselfers. Others require the skills of a contractor or solar-power professional.

• Find an energy-efficient builder. If you're thinking of building a house, why not employ the services of someone who feels as strongly as you do about a lower energy bill?

Many home builders now specialize in constructing abodes with energy-efficiency built right in. the savings begin the day you move in.

If you're considering such a builder, take a tour of a model home, ask about energy-smart features and get an estimate of the savings you can expect.

You also might talk to someone who has lived in such a home. He or she can offer first-hand information about comfort vs. a lower heating bill.

This artistic rendition of Pumpkinfest featuring local landmark the Witch's Hat Depot, as well as the dog and pumpkin below, were drawn by festival organizer Dayna Johnston, who lives in Lyon Township.

Welcome to the eighth annual Pumpkinfest, celebration, a time for the community to enjoy a variety of events and activities.

In this booklet, brought to you by The South Lyon Herald and Pumpkinfest organizers, you'll find a guide to what's scheduled during this event-filled weekend. Please note that due to its incredible growth, Pumpkinfest has moved to South Lyon Middle School from its traditional location at Bartlett Elementary. Also remember, the parade has shifted in location as well.

Pumpkinfest highlights many area folks and businesses. The festival, started eight years ago by the late Dean Sparks, is organized by a group of dedicated — and completely volunteer — individuals. Any money paid to Pumpkinfest goes directly back into the festival; it makes no money.

Join the community as it presents one of its best sides during Pumpkinfest. From arts and crafts to a carnival and bake sales, it truly offers something for everyone.

Dean Sparks, 1936-1992

By Laurie O'Dell

"We're here to make a difference in other people's lives. Once we've fulfilled that purpose the God almighty will call us home."

Those words of wisdom were spoken by Dean Sparks, the founder of Pumpkinfest, last spring shortly before his death. They were uttered during a conversation with Dayna Johnston, one of the original Pumpkinfest committee members.

For the last eight years that committee of volunteers has given the community a gift in the form of Pumpkinfest. Because Sparks is credited with founding the festival and being the motivating force behind it each year, committee members have dedicated Pumpkinfest 1992 to his memory.

"It's hard to express what he meant to me personally," said Johnston. "But what he meant to Pumpkinfest is easy. He was the calming sensation in the middle of a big hurricane. He was there to calm us down and hold our hand when there was a problem."

Sparks died April 3 at Botsford Hospital in Farmington Hills due to complications from a quadruple heart bypass operation. Although he lived most of his life in Walled Lake, Sparks spent many hours in South Lyon, both doing volunteer work and at his place of business, South Lyon Barber Stylists.

At the time of his death Sparks was the chairman of Pumpkinfest and a former president of the South Lyon Kiwanis Club and past lieutenant governor of the Kiwanis Michigan District. He is also credited with helping form Kiwanis chapters in Whitmore Lake, Pinckney, Northville and Milford.

"He was so concerned about others," said Sparks' sister Monivene Buchanen in an interview after his death. "He loved South Lyon and the people in return loved him."

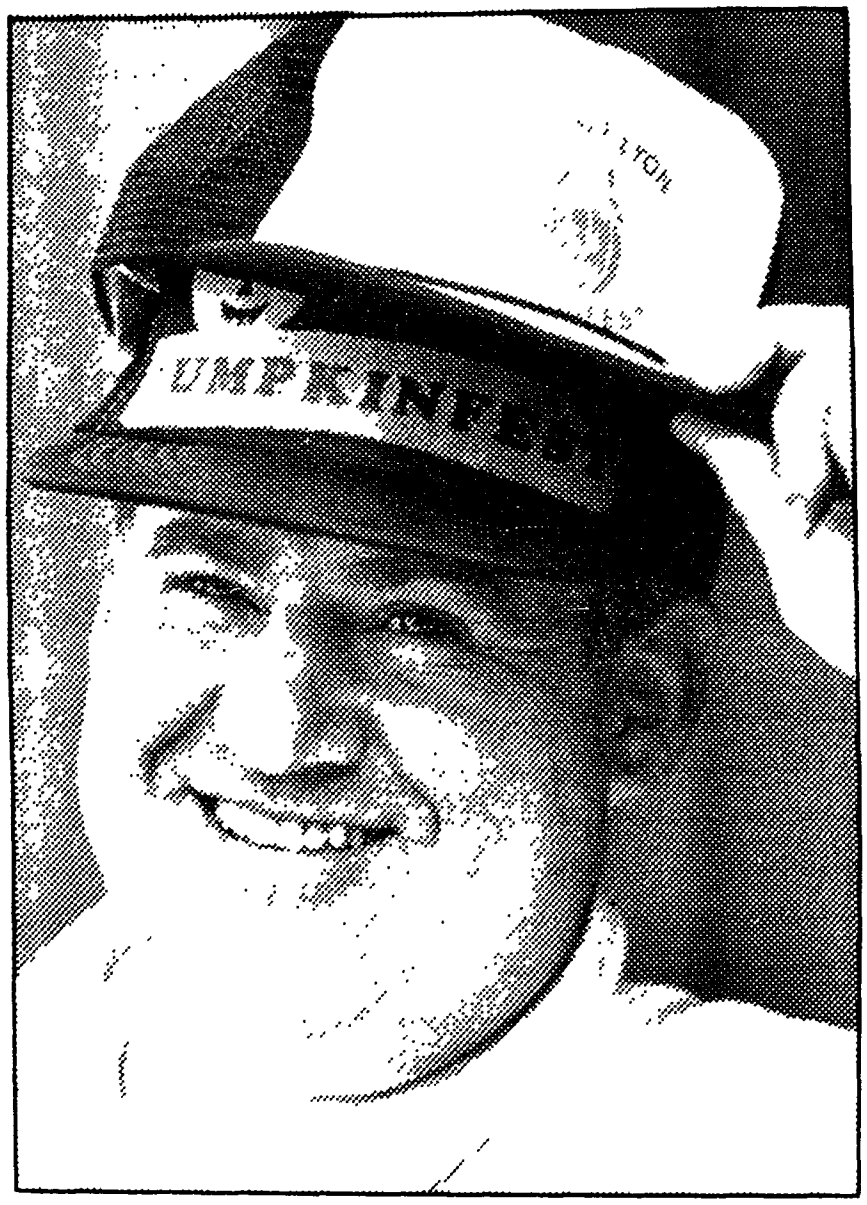

Sparks has been sadly missed by the South Lyon community, especially now during preparation for Pumpkinfest.

"For seven years he was a part of my life," said Johnston, who's taken on the bulk of the responsibility. "And now when everything's coming together I find myself turning to ask him a question or turning to call him and then I realize he's not here."

"I can say great things about Dean," agreed Lee Clair, acting Pumpkinfest chairperson. "We lost a father of the community. I lost my father and, just like with him, it will never be the same."

Johnston said Sparks could be counted on for pep talks and words of encouragement when Pumpkinfest planning hit a rough spot.

"With his big grin and sparkling blue eyes he'd say 'Dayna, it will happen. Don't worry,' " she explained.

Dean Sparks wore many different hats

Ironically, Pumpkinfest is expected to be three times as big as previous years even though the committee has dwindled from nine members to four. Those remaining members have been put to the test over the last few months juggling the planning duties.

"I think God gave us Dean for a short period of time and took him away to see how strong he'd left us," said Johnston. "Dean had remarkable strength. He walked around 24 hours a day in pain and nobody knew."

Others have recognized the gap left by Sparks and have offered their support. Johnston said she's grateful for the efforts of newly formed local clubs like the Optimists and the Jaycees who are taking a greater role in Pumpkinfest.

"Dean was our powerhouse," she explained. "I think these local clubs are starting to say 'the festival committee (Sparks) started needs us.' "

In addition to dedicating this year's festival to Sparks, the committee also plans to erect an enduring monument in his honor. During Pumpkinfest's opening ceremonies slated for 6 p.m. Friday, Oct. 2 at the Witch's Hat Depot, an oak tree and bench will be dedicated to Sparks. The committee will also place a memorial plaque at the site.

"I want it (the tree) to be a nice bright fiery color because he was such a bright person," said Johnston.

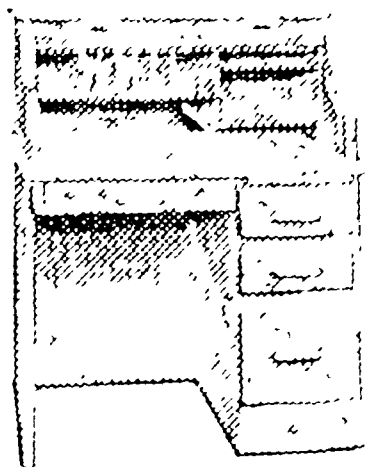

The committee is seeking donations for the memorial dedicated to the man many called "Mr. South Lyon."

"He lived for this community," explained Johnston. "He gave so much to the community and took nothing from it."

New location, new events mark Pumpkinfest No. 8

By Jim Totten

Expect the rides and the fun to double at the 1992 South Lyon Pumpkinfest coming to town Oct. 2, 3 and 4.

Due to Pumpkinfest's growth, the new location for the festival will be at South Lyon Middle School on Nine Mile Road.

"There will be twice the amount of things from the previous year," said Dayna Johnston, Pumpkinfest chairperson for the arts and crafts. "We have more night life than we've ever had."

New to the Pumpkinfest will be historic re-enactors, a complete carnival with Ferris wheel, a '50s/'60s dance at the 700 Bowl and a Las Vegas night at the South Lyon Hotel.

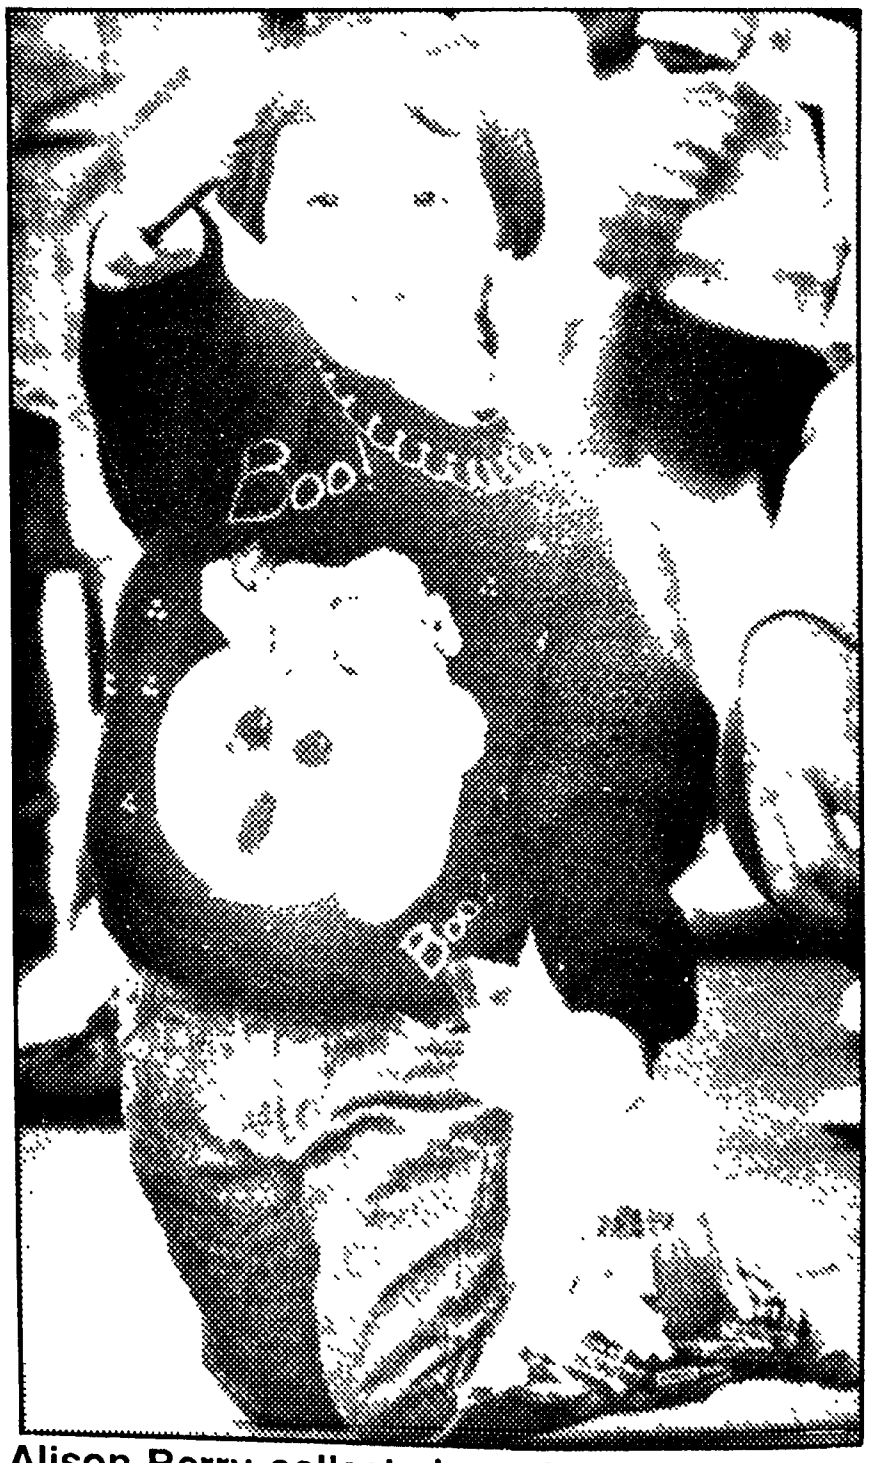

"Every year we get more people that want to get involved," said Ole Hagen, Pumpkinfest parade chairperson for the past eight years.

Although some people from previous years are not involved, Johnston said the festival has "gained some new blood." She added, "There is a wide realm of people supporting Pumpknfest."

The South Lyon Jaycees, the Optimist Cub, South Lyon Youth Assistance and the South Lyon Chamber of Commerce, Johnston said, have givenstrong support this year.

The festival will kick off on Friday with a tree dedication to Dean Sparks, a former festival committee member who passed away this year. A pin oak tree will be planted at McHattie Park at 6 p.m. Donations for the tree are still being accepted. For more information, call Dayna Johnston at 437-5046.

"He will be very, very missed," said Johnston.

New parade routes

Amidst the heavy organizational work for previous Pumpkinfests, Johnston said Sparks was "the calming force in the middle of the hurricane."

Also, the "Old Meets the New" parade will start at Bartlett Elementary School and finish at Centennial Elementary School on Nine Mile. After the Jaycees line up the parade at the parking lot on Second Street, the parade will travel down Warren Street to Ten Mile, and then east to Pontiac Trail and down to Nine Mile and finish at Centennial Elementary. The parade will start at 10 a.m. on Saturday and finish about noon.

This year's parade for the first time will include the popular Plymouth Fife & Drum Corps, sponsored by South Lyon Lodge #319 F&AM, Entre Nous chapter 38 Order of the Eastern Stars, Michigan National Bank, Goodie's Ice Cream and Sweet Shop and South Lyon Pharmacy.

One new event will bring history to life for festival-goers. Living in an 1800s pre-Civil War village and sleeping in tents, Rendezvous will perform historic re-enactments to capture the atmosphere of that time period. Residents will also have an opportunity to participate in a frying pan toss and tomahawk throw.

Residents can dress in '50s clothing and shake their stuff at the '50s/'60s dance Friday evening at 700 Bowl. The local band, Innuendo, will perform and give residents a chance to display their skills in a dance contest.

In addition to the dance, the Jaycees will sponsor bingo Saturday and Sunday at the 700 Bowl.

The carnival at this year's Pumpkinfest, Hagen said, should have "three times the rides in the past." Hagen said the Pugh Carnival has previously stopped at Showerman's during Kids Week in the spring. The carnival includes both adult and children's rides.

The fun continues Saturday with "Las Vegas Night" at the South Lyon Hotel. The Lions Clubs will sponsor the event.

Tables of blackjack, roulette and craps games will provide plenty of excitement during the evening.

A calliope, sponsored by the South Lyon Hotel and Cabbage Rose Ltd. Antiques, will also be whistling sweet music during the festival and parade.

ION NITRIDING
and # PRECISION HEAT TREATING

The Largest Commercial Source for Salt Bath Heat Treating and Ion Nitriding in the U.S.

Ion Nitriding — What Is It?

A new and highly developed process for surface hardening engineering components of alloy steel or cast iron can be given greater wear resistance and durability. The hardening takes place in the plasma of a current intensive glow discharge. Nitrogen or other elements with good diffusibility are occluded in the surface of the workpiece. There is a great variety of treatments possible.

The Principal Advantage of Ion Nitriding:

To a large extent, the structure, thickness, hardness, and homogeneity of the compound and diffusion zones can be controlled independently of each other This allows the optimum properties to be produced to suit the service requirements. Wear of moving parts is greatly reduced and the fatigue strength is significantly increased.

Services Offered:

Annealing: cycle, process, stress relieve Austempering
Hardening: HSS, air, hot-work, alloy, temper, age

Prime pumpkins await prizes

If you want to get a practice run for Halloween or just feel creative, don't miss the annual Pumpkinfest pumpkin decorating contest.

The pumpkin judging takes place at 4 p.m. on the veranda of the South Lyon Hotel. The theme this year is "Old Meets New," which is the theme for many different Pumpkinfest events.

Prizes will be awarded for the most beautiful, ugliest, most unusual and most innovative entries. With that range of categories, kids of all ages are bound to find an idea for their pumpkin.

Pumpkin entries will be displayed throughout the weekend at Pumpkinfest, located this year at South Lyon Middle School. The pumpkin judging is followed by the South Lyon High School Homecoming Parade, which winds its way through town at 4:30 p.m. A carnival at the middle school opens at 5 p.m.

Opening ceremonies for Pumpkinfest take place at 6 p.m. at the Witch's Hat Depot. This year, the event begins with a tribute to the late Dean Sparks, organizer of Pumpkinfest, who died earlier this year.

Rides for kids, adults at carnival

A high-quality midway and adult rides as well as children's are new and welcome additions to Pumpkinfest.

A full-sized carnival is coming to town the first weekend in October. It will be located at South Lyon Middle School during Pumpkinfest activities.

The carnival, brought by Pugh Shows and Metrogroup Productions, is the same carnival which sets up in Showerman's parking lot for Kids Week in the spring. At that time, some of the proceeds are donated by carnival to the All-Night Senior Class party; this fall, some proceeds will go to Pumpkinfest, so organizers can provide more activities and entertainment.

The carnival opens at 3 p.m. Friday and runs until midnight; its hours Saturday are noon-midnight and Sunday, noon-11 p.m.

Brian Sprague, of Metrogroup Productions, said that adults as well as children will find rides and other amusement at the carnival. Previous Pumpkinfests offered only kiddie rides, he pointed out.

Jared Micks played peek-a-boo

Sprague also added that ride tickets will be available as well as all-day passes; a coupon for free merry-go-round ride as well as a discount coupon for all-day passes will be published in the Sept. 24 and Oct. 1 issues of The South Lyon Herald.

'Old meets new' in window displays

Area merchants can get into the fun and spirit of welcoming people to South Lyon's Pumpkinfest by decorating their store windows. This year the theme will be "Old Meets New."

Last year's winner was Josephine's Threadneedle St., who did a wonderful job illustrating "There's No Place Like Home."

This year, the South Lyon Jaycee sponsor the contest, and members urge area merchants to have fun decorating your windows and try to win the trophy for the best decorated window. A traveling trophy will be presented to the winner in addition to a plaque to keep.

Windows will be judged on originality, color and theme. There will be a second juding on outside store displays for those who do not have windows but still wish to participate. Judging will be Thursday, Oct. 1, and the trophy will be awarded during opening ceremonies Friday, Oct. 2.

Good luck, and may the best display win!

To enter or for more information, contact Dawn Needham, editor of The South Lyon Herald at 437-2011.

This bike race is just one of many events offered for children

Crawling kids will compete in derby

Area babies are invited to crawl their way to fame during the annual Pumpkinfest Diaper Derby.

The eighth annual Diaper Derby will be ready for crawlers between 2:30 and 4 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 4, in the choir room at the South Lyon Middle School on Nine Mile Road.

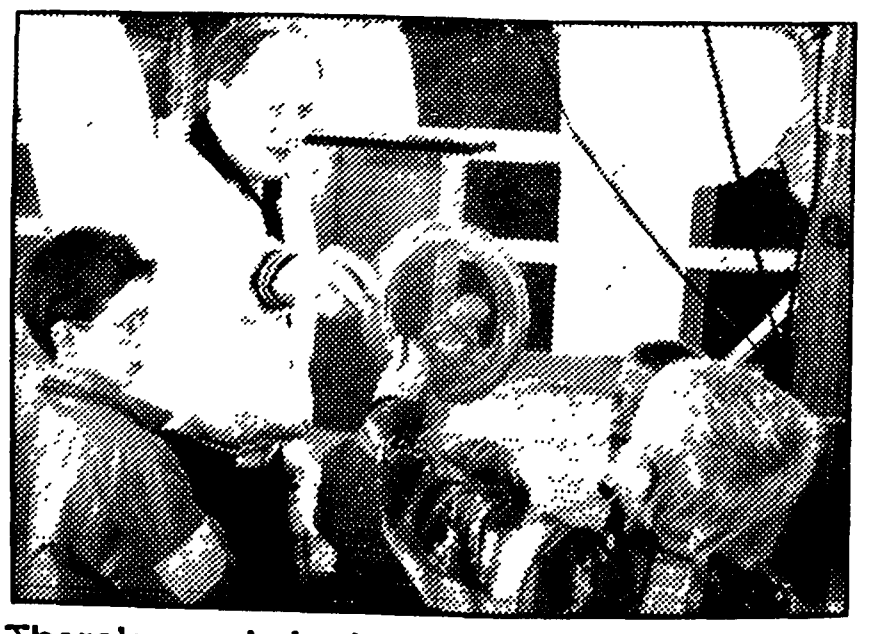

Parents of all babies who have not yet learned to walk are encouraged to bring their offspring to this year's contest.

Each baby entered will receive a participation ribbon. A set of prizes will be awarded to best girl and boy crawler.

Sponsored this year by the South Lyon Jaycees, there is only one rule — all babies must crawl to mom or dad from the starting line with no walking allowed.

All entries are encouraged to show up about 15 minutes before the contest begins.

For more information, contact Dean Brisbois at Country Water Feed, 437-9136.

Queen to preside over festival

Terrie Richards of Green Oak Township was crowned Miss Pumpkinfest 1992 during the annual Depot Days celebration. The South Lyon High School junior will preside over many events during Pumpkinfest Oct. 2, 3 and 4 this year.

Terrie was chosen from a field of seven candidates. Theresa Fetelea was selected as first runner up and Angela Bennett was named second runner up.

As Miss Pumpkinfest, Terrie received a crown and banner, a bouquet of flowers from Wesley Berry Florist, a Dancers Fashions gift certificate for $20, dinner for two, a Goodie's Ice Cream and Sweet Shop gift certificate, movie passes and a gold bracelet from Shifrin's Jewelers. She will also receive a sweatshirt made especially for her, a Pumpkinfest cap and T-shirt and perfume fragrances and a makeover.

Miss Pumpkinfest 1992 will have the opportunity to ride in over seven parades and participate in Miss State Fair 1992. At the end of her reign, if all of her obligations are met, she will receive $150 in cash from the Pumpkinfest committee.

The following year, Miss Pumpkinfest is invited to preside over the Fourth of July parade of Miss July 4.

Youth Assistance offers variety

South Lyon Area Youth Assistance marks its Pumpkinfest debut this year by presenting comedy and musical revues Saturday, Oct. 3. Starting at 1 p.m., on the hour for 45 minutes each time, the community can see some great entertainment. Tickets for the variety shows are $1.

In addition to the entertainment, SLAYA will offr tables of pumpkin pies, button making, crafts, paint-a-face and photo funnies.

Youth Assistance is made up of local citizens who, since 1962, volunteer their time and skills to provide programs designed for parents, youth and families in our community.

The main goal of SLAYA is the prevention of neglect, abuse and delinquent behavior by providing programs that offer support and education. They also provide such programs as family education, summer camp, P.L.U.S. (People Listening Understanding, Sharing), and Summer Youth Activities.

South Lyon Area Youth Assistance volunteer Linda Stevens, with Tim and Nicole Niles

Be sure to stop by the band room at the Middle School to enjoy the South Lyon Area Youth Assistance attractions and to support this fine organization.

Pick your form of entertainment

There will be truly be something for everyone at Pumpkinfest this year, with a wide selection of entertainment sure to please audiences of all ages.

Once again, this year's celebration offers a variety of exciting and entertaining acts featuring an array of talent.

The entertainment this year will be held at the old South Lyon High School cafeteria on the stage.

At center stage beginning at noon Saturday, Innuendo will play a variety of musical selections from pop tunes to golden oldies. The band performs at a number of clubs throughout this area. In conjunction with the music, the Kiwanis Club will serve lunch in the cafeteria.

At 3 p.m. will be Science Discovery, an exciting live animal show that is new to the Pumpkinfest this year. Steve Yauch, a biology teacher and the creater of the show, has presented his act to over 400,000 people. His program is a main attraction at Boblo Island Amusement Park in Ontario. The wide variety of animals and a hands-on program makes the show very entertaining. Steve will also present his "Back to Bones" program Saturday on stage from 3-4 p.m.

The Sixth Gate Cloggers will perform on stage at 4 p.m. The lively dance group performs for many festivals including the Cobo Hall Builders Show, the Southfield Freedom Festival and the Fowlerville Fair, among others. The group is composed of seniors, who dance like teenagers. They are sponsored by Novi Parks and Recreation Department.

Jim Tate, a disc jockey from South Lyon, will take the stage to provide dinner music from 5-7 p.m. for those dining in the cafeteria. Jim will play easy listening music.

Sunday, Ed Bardyga, a South Lyon favorite accordionist, will also provide a variety of musical selections for your dining pleasure as the Kiwanis Club serves lunch starting at noon in the cafeteria.

At 12:30 p.m., Bethany Mehr will be singing pop tunes, country and gospel music. Bethany's music has taken her throughout the United States, Hawaii and the Soviet Union. She has recorded several albums and has a weekly TV program on Lansing cable TV. She will perform on stage from 12:30-1 p.m. and again at 1:45-2:15 p.m. Sunday.

Bethany Mehr

Debbie Barker's Step and Workout Aerobics will work out on stage from 1:15-1:45 p.m. Debbie has performed previously for Pumpkinfest audiences and provided an exciting program set to music. She has taught aerobics for the South Lyon Community Education program for 13 years and will begin a new program this fall.

Mike Thornton, magician extraordinaire, will be center stage performing his magical act from 3-4 p.m. Sunday. Mike's show will be filled with audience participation, rabbits, and lots of laughs. Mike has been performing magic for 20 years and is a graduate of the Chevez School of Magic located at the magic capital of the world, Colon, Michigan.

Animals of all sizes

Potter Park Zoo and its animals extraordinaire will once again visit the 1992 South Lyon Pumpkinfest.

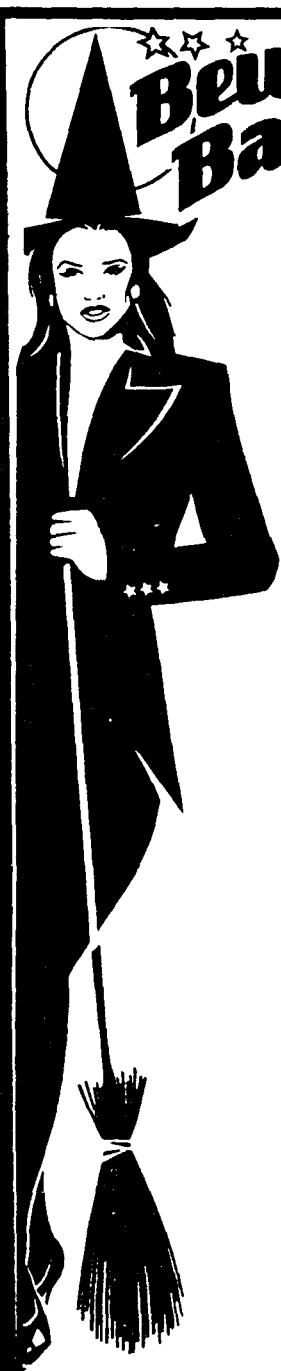

Coming to the area from its location at 1301 S. Pennsylvania Ave., five miles from downtown Lansing, Potter Park Zoo was a donation from James W. Potter in 1913, although it wasn't dedicated until 1918. The zoo's first residents were a raccoon, an elk and a deer.

Today, Potter Park Zoo contains more than 400 animals ranging from 124 species, including 13 animals on the endangered list.

Visitors to this year's Pumpkinfest can expect to see ferret, chinchilla, rabbits, snakes and opossum. Be sure to look out for Princess, the spider as well.

Viewing times for the animals will be 10 a.m.-3 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. Ms. Kelly will be on hand to answer all types of questions. There will also be a display on products used by and/or taken from endangered animals.

The zoo has an outreach program, an adult lecture series and children's day camps that teach children how to care for all kinds of animals.

Kids try to pull tractor weight

Pumpkinfest offers a great deal for everyone, and kids are not left out in the planning process.

One event that draws crowds of kids — and parents as onlookeers — is the Kids Tractor Pull, slated from noon-3 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 4.

Area youngsters from 3-8 (ages 9-10 are optional) once again have the opportunity to "put the pedal to the metal" as they strive to pull a progressively heavy weight (transfer sled) behind John Deere tractors.

Equipment is provided to give all children an equal chance.

Each contestant must wear shoes and be able to pedal tractors without assistance. Each will be given two chances to get the miniature transfer sled (weight), attached to the tractor, moving from the starting line.

The pulling tractor must stay between the lines of the pulling lane and the contestant's feet must remain on the tractor pedals.

Distances of each pull will be measured from the starting line to the point where the contestant's feet touched track surfaces.

In case of a tie, there will be a a pull-off to determine the winner. Ribbons, trophies and uniformed personnel to run the tractor pull will be provided by Al Aldrich of Ann Arbor, representing the sponsors.

Winners will be determined by who pulls the weight the longest distance.

To participate, all contestants must be present at the time of the pedal pull with a signed permission slip in hand. The parent or guardian must accompany the child and sign the slip.

Classes are 3-4 year olds, 5-6 year olds and 7-8 year olds with a class for 9-10 year olds if enough interest is shown.

The tractor used is a toy pedal riding tractor which relies solely on muscle power.

The pedal tractor itself comes from Saline with an official adminstrator of the pull. Children compete in eight different classes which are bsed on age.

The kids pull a weight sled just like in the regular tractor pull — the farther they go the heavier the load.

In keeping with a tradition, Thesier Equipment Co. of South Lyon will again sponsor the Kids Tractor Pull.

Jim Thesier, owner, said the business prides itself on service to the customer after a sale is made.

Kids can really pull some weight at Pumpkinfest

The business, located at 28342 Pontiac Trail, sells primarily John Deere equipment.

Over the years the business has transformed into a commercial lawn mower business offering tractors up to 60 horsepower and turf maintenance equipment for homeowners, commercial businesses and golf courses.

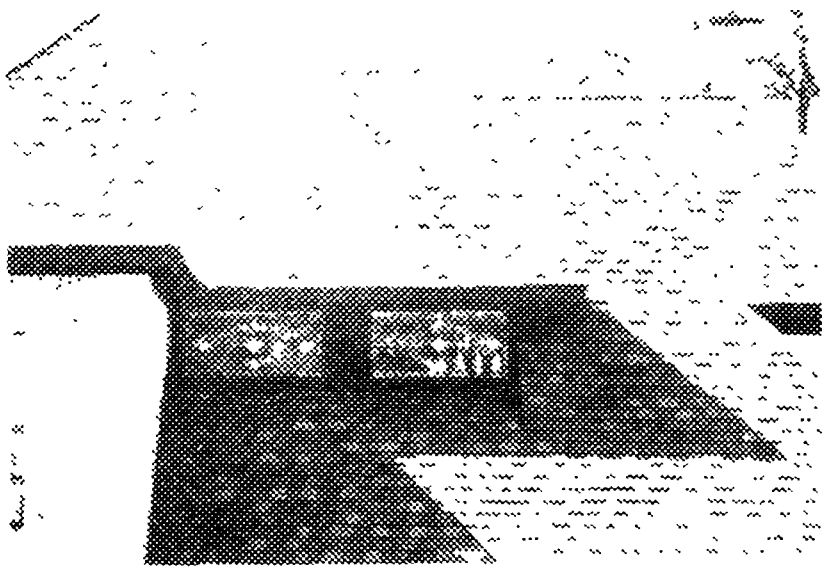

Although the primary line of equipment is John Deere, Thesier said he has expanded into a few other lines including Snapper, Echo and Skag, which is a commercial line.

Paul Baker, South Lyon Hotel owner

Change for better at the Hotel

Renovation, changes and promotion have been the themes of the South Lyon Hotel while community spirit and enthusiasm has been the catalyst . . . that's how owner Paul Baker describes the South Lyon Hotel, located on Lafayette in the heart of South Lyon.

After teaching and owning businesses in the South Lyon area, the South Lyon Hotel was a comfortable spot for Paul to be. Also, knowing that there is never room for just "another" bar or restaurant but always room for a good one, Baker constantly tries to upgrade service, food and facility.

That effort is immediately visible in the tremendous renovation job done by Plave Construction of South Lyon, to restore the look of the historic building.

Contributing to community and offering a facility that can be a gathering place is always a priority for Baker. Together with building a lounge/restaurant and having banquet facilities the South Lyon Hotel offers enough versitility to be an integral part of the South Lyon community.

Baker's commitment to the community and to providing a quality establishment was noted this year by the South Lyon Area Chamber of Commerce, which named the Hotel its Business of the Year.

Register those dogs for Jaycees' show

History comes to the festival

A new Pumpkinfest event will allow those attending the festival to travel back in time to witness pioneer-era life.

This will mark the first year for the Pumpkinfest Rendezvous, but hopefully not the last.

A rendezvous, according to Mr. Webster, is an agreement between two or more persons to meet at a certain time and place. This year, meet at South Lyon Middle School to celebrate the coming of fall and another year gone by.

The living history encampment is being presented to the folks of South Lyon in memory of Tim Mills, who moved here three years ago and six months later was killed in an accident on I-275. Tim was a buckskinner who really didn't get a chance to share his hobby with his new home town. So his younger sister Beth and her husband Warren Shopp have taken over where Tim left off. The people here are special people who knew Tim and of his dream.

There will be crafts people demonstrating tinsmithing, blacksmithing, silversmithing and Indian crafts and open fire cooking. The living display will demonstrate how people relaxed after a hard day of trapping and hunting by throwing tomahawks and maybe even throwing a frying pan or two.

To find out about the people and the way they dressed in the 1700s, visit a fashion show, which will be held both Saturday and Sunday in the center of the encampment. Feel free to come and see how people lived in the late 1700s while away from their homes. There will be traders with goods of all sorts to share with you, so please remember the Rendezvous is at the middle school Oct. 2, 3, and 4.

Rendevous' encampment at a Port Huron festival

Rock around clock at dinner dance

"Evening in October" is a dinner-dance to be held Saturday, Oct. 3, during the 8th annual Pumpkinfest.

The dinner-dance will be held at the St. Joseph's Parish Activity Center located at 810 S. Lafayette in South Lyon.

The evening will begin at 5 p.m. with a liturgical music mass by Marshall Lackowki (Polka Mass). Cocktails will follow at 6:30 p.m. with dinner at 7:30 p.m. and dancing at 8:30 p.m.

Dinner will be prepared by the E&E Enterprises. The buffet will include stuffed pork chops, California-blend, red-skinned potatoes, and for dessert, chocolate mousse.

Music for the evening wil be provided by Big Daddy Lackowki and his La-Dee-Das Orchestra.

Tickets are $30 per person. For reservation information, contact Bill Urban at 349-4644, Steve Schuldt at 437-5389 or Frank Urban at 437-0311.

700 Bowl is site of two festival activities

Pumpkinfest doesn't confine itself to downtown areas. This year 700 Bowl will provide space for two different activities.

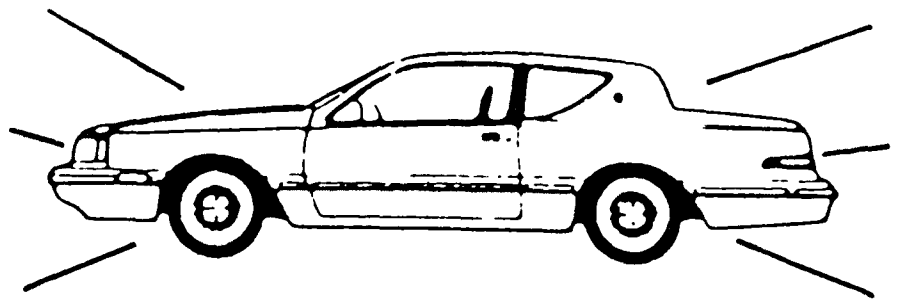

First on the agenda will be a '50s-'60s dance Friday, Oct. 3 from 9 p.m.-2 a.m. There will be dance and costume contests with prizes to be awarded. This is a no cover charge-cash bar affair with live music provided by Innuendo.

Next up, the South Lyon Jaycees will call out a bunch of B-3s and G-52s right in the bowling alley. Bingo hours will be from noon-midnight Saturday and from noon-9 p.m. Sunday.

So mark down these dates and times and join in the fun at the 700 Bowl, 700 N. Lafayette.

Relieve Sticker Shock.

The prices of cars these days can be rather shocking. And with one dealer claiming to have the lowest prices, another the best rebates, and others claiming they won't be undersold, where do you go to get your best deal?

Simple: Come to D&N Bank, and apply for one of our low-interest auto loans. When you do, you'll not only get an answer in about two hours, but you'll also get one of the lowest rates around. On new cars, as well as used cars.

In fact, these low rates apply to any car you want to purchase—not just a few select models. All of which gives you affordable monthly payments, and lowers the total price you pay on the car you really want.

So if you're looking for a great deal on a new or used vehicle, run to D&N Bank and talk with a D&N Personal Banker. Our low rates could be just the shelter you need to protect yourself from sticker shock.
