

WTUA grant vaults over one hurdle

By MIKE TYREE
Staff Writer

Sometimes the first step is the most important one.

And Western Townships Utilities Authorities officials certainly are happy they've cleared the first hurdle in an attempt to wrangle a $20 million federal grant for the embattled sewer project.

The U.S. House of Representatives Wednesday night voted 326-87 to authorize federal funds for WTUA as part of the Water Resources Development Act. The legislation now awaits U.S. Senate approval.

But don't start counting the money yet, said David Geiss, administrative assistant to U.S. Rep. William Ford (D-15th District). Geiss said the Senate could consider the Water Resources Development Act "at any time," but other appropriations measures — especially a tax bill — will take precedence.

With the Senate eyeing adjournment next weekend, Geiss would not lay odds on the chances of the WTUA grant making it to the Senate table.

"It's getting tight, towards the end of the session. If they run out of time, (the Senate) may not bring it up," he said. "But I believe if it gets to the

Loveday case gets new twists

By STEVE KELLMAN

Angela Hanania stopped for lunch on her way to Lansing Friday afternoon for her appearance before the state parole board.

But after stopping, she found she could not eat.

"I was shaking, I was literally shaking," Hanania said.

Hanania, from Novi, was in Lansing to argue against the release of 20-year-old Kenneth Loveday from prison. Loveday had driven his Jeep into her husband, Yusuf Hanania, and brother-in-law Albert Abdelnour in Northville June 5, 1991, killing them instantly.

Loveday was subsequently charged with manslaughter but convicted of the lesser charge of negligent homicide, and given a 15 to 24 month sentence with time off for several months already served.

Angela Hanania and Basim Abdelnour, Albert's brother, considered the lighter conviction an insult. And the state parole board added insult to injury in July when they granted Loveday an Aug. 20 release date without hearing testimony from the victims' family members, they said.

The parole decision was blamed on a procedural error and parole board officials quickly apologized, revoking

Drug-use survey stats out tonight

By SHARON CONDRON
Staff Writer

The results of a University of Michigan poll of students in Northville schools about their drug and alcohol use will be released to the school board and the community at tonight's board meeting.

The Alcohol and Other Drugs Survey was given to eighth, 10th, and 12th graders last spring with their parents' permission. On it, students were asked to respond anonymously to questions that surveyed their experience with drugs and alcohol, the frequency of use, and the type of drugs they'd been using. In addition, the survey questioned students about the availability of drugs in the community and the degree of peer pressure that surrounded their drug and alcohol use. Students were also asked where they used drugs and alcohol.

The survey was initiated by the Michigan Department of Education, designed by researchers at U.M., and administered and compiled by experts at Western Michigan University.

Bill Hamilton, director of instruction, said only the responses of the seniors are used for comparison purposes against national averages. Eighth and 10th-grade information are just recorded in the context of the survey results.

Hamilton, who coordinated the survey, said he planned to reveal the survey results at the meeting and explain their impact on the community.

"What this is saying is that we have to unite and join with the community to deal with the problem we have here."

And that is what school officials and civic groups like the Northville Action Council hope will happen with news of the survey results and the implementation of the community-wide Safe Homes project next month. NAC is spearheading the Safe Homes project which seeks a community-wide commitment to provide a drug

Group reviews budget tomorrow

By MIKE TYREE
Staff Writer

The pencils are sharpened and the books are open.

Now it's time to get to work on the 1993 township budget.

The township's lone scheduled budget review session is set for Tuesday (Sept. 29) at township hall, 41600 Six Mile. A panel of current and incoming officials will peruse funding requests and proposed expenditures totaling about $3.86 million, slightly less than 1992's budget.

Budget reviewers will attempt to carry out the bulk of their tasks in one marathon session Tuesday. Presentations from department heads are slated to begin at 8 a.m. and extend through 5 p.m.

In past years, reviewers would set aside several days at varying times to hear budget requests. The budget committee then would crunch numbers and decide where cuts should occur.

Budget members' recommendations then generally are forwarded to the Township Board. The board by law must adopt a 1993 budget prior to Nov. 1.

This year's budget review committee is comprised solely of current or incoming officials, whereas past years have featured residents with no specific ties to township hall.

Members of the 1993 budget review committee include township Manager Richard Henningsen, Treasurer Jack Homser, Finance Director Dwayne Harrigan, Supervisor-elect Karen Baja, and Treasurer-elect Rick Engelland.

The budget hearings are open to the public.

Scheduled times for specific department presentations are as follows:

- Police — 8-8:45 a.m.
- Building — 8:50-9:35 a.m.
- Planning and zoning — 9:40-10:25 a.m.
- Water and Sewer — 10:30-11:15 a.m.
- Senior Citizens and recreation — 11:20 a.m.-12:05 p.m.
- Library — 1-1:45 p.m.
- Youth Assistance — 1:50-2:35 p.m.
- Trustees, supervisor, clerk, treasurer, finance, manager, constables, hall and grounds, administration and capital outlay — 2:40-4:10 p.m.
- Fire — 4:15-5 p.m.

Jack Charles Malaney listens to court proceedings Friday.

Drug-case lawyer charges mistakes

By MIKE TYREE
Staff Writer

A Sept. 17 raid on Jack Charles Malaney's 48465 Seven Mile home reportedly netted local police agencies 30 pounds of marijuana, a dozen guns, cash, and other tools of the drug trade.

But Malaney's attorney last week said he expects charges against his client to be dismissed, based on an improper search of the Northville man's rented home.

"It was one of the worst search warrants I've seen in my life," said David Steingold, attorney for Malaney. "I'm surprised prosecutors ever authorized it."

Steingold spoke moments after Malaney waived a preliminary examination on charges of delivery and manufacture of a controlled substance. Thirty-fifth District Court Judge James Garber ordered Malaney, 34, bound over for trial at Detroit Recorder's Court.

Malaney is free on $10,000 bond. Steingold said Friday he doubts the case will go to trial. He said he will file a motion to dismiss charges within two weeks.

Steingold's claim is that police persuaded Timothy Brian Braun, 19, of Allen Park, to become a confidential police informant after Braun and floor. I doubt they'd have a problem (passing the measure)."

Geiss would not speculate on President George Bush's views of the WTUA-related appropriation, but WTUA Chairperson Thomas Yack is concerned that a Bush promise to veto seven appropriations bills could — for now — quash the federal dollars hunt.

But Yack was pleased that the WTUA grant has at least made it to the table.

"It's a multi-step process, and at least we're in the process," he said. "We never have been before."

Yack praised Ford and outgoing U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, for pushing the WTUA funding plan along this far.

"Even if we don't get it this year, it keeps the door open for possible funding in 1994," Yack said.

Grant money could play a significant role in reducing sewer project costs in the three WTUA communities, Northville, Plymouth and Canton townships. The project, with its current price tag nearing $100 million, is funded by bonds, many of which could be retired with receipt of the federal grant.

By the end of this year, WTUA will have spent over $1 million in an attempt to secure a federal grant. The WTUA commission in 1988 hired Cassidy & Associates, a federal lobbying group, in an effort to win the grant.

and alcohol free environment for students.

Hamilton said the survey was given to fulfill a requirement by federal officials to qualify for Drug Free Schools grant moneys.

"This is the first year we've done it," Hamilton said. "We had to give the survey to be in compliance with the federal laws for Drug Free Schools money."

The Drug Free Schools grant money is just one avenue that school officials had exhausted in their successful pursuit of outside funding to retain the district's student substance abuse program and its coordinator, Charlie Súlec.

Thanks to their efforts and that of Northville Action Council and others, Súlec has returned to the district on a part-time basis. School officials and NAC representatives hope the Safe Homes program will raise enough money to bring him back full time.

The school board meets at 7:30 p.m. in the board meeting room at the Old Village School.

Since curbside recycling started in February, average use of the center has dropped to 35 cars on Wednesdays and 55 cars on Saturdays.

The center is available to City of Northville residents only, and identification is checked at the gate.

City eyes Scout Building fees

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

Scout Building users soon may pay a fee for the privilege.

The Northville City Council debated whether to set fees for use of the 215 W. Cady St. facility, currently home to the Senior Citizens Center. The center's budget has been picking up the heating and electrical tab run up by other users, and fees are seen as a way to defray those costs.

City Manager Gary Word described the proposal as "a rental agreement for people using the building as well as a rental fee of $5 an hour for non-senior-citizen use of the facility."

The senior program had been housed in school facilities for eight years, where janitorial services and utility costs were absorbed by the school district. But since Cooke School reopened in 1990 and the program was forced to move into the Scout Building, those services now come out of the senior program's budget.

Combined with a $2,400 cut in its Senior Alliance grant funding, the program no longer has enough revenues to cover its expenses.

"This particular use would be on a day that the senior citizens are not there," explained Recreation Director Traci Gottschalk, whose department oversees the senior center. "The problem is evening hours or weekend hours when the lights are on and the heating is used."

"The senior citizens' program is now absorbing all of the janitorial costs, all the janitorial supplies . . . We're looking for another source of funding so the building can be opened to all these other groups."

Gottschalk estimated that the fee would raise about $600 a year, "which would pay for the janitorial services and a good portion of the cleaning bill."

While they understood the senior center's dilemma, council members objected to charging some of the other users. Mayor Chris Johnson felt that the food distribution and emergency needs service Civic Concern, "which is truly a non-profit organization," should be exempt.

"I'd hate to see that program be eliminated because of a $5 an hour charge," Johnson said.

Council Member Mark Cryderman questioned charging Boy Scout troops to use the building named after them, "because the scouts built that building with volunteer labor."

Another alternative would be for the city and township to increase their contributions to the senior citizens program, Gottschalk said. But that suggestion found little favor in the debt-laden city.

Whatever the solution, Gottschalk predicted that there would be no shortage of users. She noted that Northville Public Schools has started assessing fees for use of school facilities after 6 p.m., for the same reasons. That likely will increase demand for use of the Scout Building, she said.

Word noted that the city is considering implementing its own fees for use of City Hall space. "It costs to deliver services, and I think what Traci's experiencing at the Scout Building is what we're experiencing here."

He suggested a two-tiered fee structure rather than a flat $5 fee, with non-profit organizations charged a lower fee than for-profit ones. "There still would be a fee, however," he said.

The council agreed to postpone a decision until further review, with Council Member Jerry Mittman suggesting that the Scout and City Hall fees be considered together.

Advocates seek new approach

By SHARON CONDRON
Staff Writer

It's all in a name.

And it's a shame when the community slaps a label on you for a legacy you are attempting to leave behind.

That's how Mike Hasler, president of Advocates for Quality Education, feels about the community's response to his group's platform. Advocates surfaced last week with a booth at the Victorian Festival and with a press release about their first membership meeting, which is set for Wednesday.

Hasler and others like him in the group, whose names have appeared on the now-defunct Citizens for Quality Education roster, say they are already beginning to fight their critics and defend their position before their first meeting.

"Yes. Many of us were involved in Citizens for Quality Education. And yes, most of us are involved in all kinds of school activities," Hasler said. "Many of us are the same folks, but it doesn't mean that we are just pro-millage any more."

"But that organization (CQE) has had its time. It was a blatant pro-millage group. . . I don't apologize for that, nor does any one else who was in that group. I thought then the millage should have passed, and I still think the millage should have passed. But now it is a different environment."

Hasler said choosing a name for the organization was going to be a key component of its reception in the community.

"We wrestled with our name for hours and had considered leaving off the 'Quality for Education' but decided it was indicative of our mission statement," he said.

According to Hasler and Advocates' mission statement, this group is founded on the notion of strengthening education — in contrast to CQE's agenda, which was to get the millages passed.

In the first edition of the group's newsletter the Advocates contend they "are dedicated to promoting the highest quality public education in the Northville community."

"The idea is that we welcome all the people who believe in our goal which is to strengthen education. If you disagree then we aren't the organization for you. But if you agree that you want the highest degree of education then come and listen to what we have to say."

Their belief statements defend equal opportunities for each and every student and contend that a high-quality school system is vital to a vibrant, successful community. Beyond their philosophical view, fliers indicate the Advocates believe it takes more than just money to deliver a quality educational program.

"We believe that money alone does not ensure a quality education; quality is accomplished only through a balance of adequate funding and the commitment of educators, administrators, parents and the community."

Hasler said he hopes residents of the community will give Advocates a chance before writing them off as a ghost of CQE and come to hear their viewpoint at Wednesday's first membership meeting at 7:30 p.m. in the high school Forum.

"The environment here has changed, and we have to do something," he said.

So the group has adopted bylaws and set forth an agenda. Group members are making promises to the community to deliver accurate and complete reports of educational issues that impact Northville schools.

"That's what's been missing, is the release of objective, complete and concise information," said Hasler.

Hasler said he believed the wave of anti-incumbency and anti-tax mood played a significant role in the defeat of both millages and in the fog of misinformation that surfaced from the campaigns. He said a cloud of misinformation about district finances that was reported by citizen's groups, district officials and The Northville Record all had a hand in the millage defeats, and the upsurge of hostility and the lack of trust that thrived in the community today. That scenario is a factor that's given rise to Advocates.

"Yes, I do believe there is a credibility problem," he said. "I think people do not completely trust the information they are getting from the board or from the administration."

Hasler attributes some of the skepticism to the anti-incumbent, anti-tax mood of voters this year. There are other factors that are keys too.

"We have seen things in the Record and in the Detroit News about administrative costs. Those kinds of things have planted the seeds."

"It is not just a function of absolute dollars. I don't know if their salaries are out of line, but we intend to find out through a reasonable comparison to other districts that are similar to ours."

Hasler said the group would be delving into issues like the financial picture and other legislative actions that could hinder the district's ability to deliver quality programming.

"We aren't anti anything," he said. "We are a positive group, but our agenda stops at education."

Police News

Police investigate apparent embezzling case

City police are investigating the apparent embezzlement of more than $4,000 from a Northville business owner.

An employee, the daughter of a friend, apparently stole the money by cashing checks from the business owner's two firms in June and July. Some of the seven checks had the employee's signature on them while others had the owner's signature. The man did not recall signing them. The business owner did not discover the missing money until later, and did not report it to police until Sept. 19.

OUTLIS: A 24-year-old Plymouth man was charged with operating a vehicle under the influence of liquor early Sept. 17 after his arrest on Haggerty near Five Mile, township police said. Breathalyzer tests indicated the man's blood-alcohol level was .23 and .24, police said.

A 57-year-old Northville man was charged with OUIL after his arrest late Sept. 15 on Six Mile west of Haggerty. Breathalyzer tests pegged the man's blood-alcohol level at .10 on two tests, police said.

LARCENIES FROM VEHICLES REPORTED: A Grosse Pointe Park man told township police that someone stole a graphic equalizer from his 1982 Jeep late Sept. 16 or early Sept. 17 while the vehicle was parked on Crestview Circle near Winchester. The stolen item was valued at $80.

The owner of a 1983 Pontiac Sunbird told police that someone broke the vehicle's driver's side window Sept. 16 and stole an AM/FM cassette player valued at $200. Damage was estimated at $50. The car was parked on Lehigh Lane near Windsor Court at the time of the theft.

A Silver Spring Drive resident told township police that someone stole the license plate off her 1989 Ford Tempo late Sept. 15 or early Sept. 16.

ELECTRIC LAMPS BROKEN: A

Greenridge resident told township police that someone shot out two electric lamps stationed on the exterior of his garage sometime between Sept. 8 and Sept. 13.

A BB gun apparently was used to cause the damage. Damage was estimated at $300.

CAR VANDALIZED IN MEIJER LOT: An employee of Meijer, 20401 Haggerty, told township police that someone damaged his 1989 Ford Tempo while it was parked in the Meijer lot late Sept. 14 or early Sept. 15.

The employee told police that damages included a bent antenna, cracked windshield, dented right front fender, and a partially removed license plate tab. Damage was estimated at $300.

VICTORIAN FEST FILCHING: A Redford woman told city police someone stole a camera from her shoulder bag at last weekend's Victorian Festival.

The woman said she was near the intersection of Main and Center between 10:30-11 a.m. Sept. 19 when the Chinon 35mm camera was taken from her open bag.

FRAUD ARREST: A 24-year-old Novi woman wanted by Northville City police for fraud was arrested by Novi police last week. The woman, who was turned over to Northville police and released after posting a $250 bond, was wanted for cashing a check from a closed account, driving on a suspended license and failing to stop at an accident scene.

Citizens with information about the above incidents are urged to call Northville City Police at 349-1234 or Northville Township Police at 349-9400.

Extrication requires special equipment, skills

By STEPHEN OTT and MICHAEL ASHER
Special Writers

The homeowner was watching TV on a pleasant summer evening when his concentration on the program was interrupted by a squeal of tires, followed shortly by a loud crash of metal and the sound of breaking glass. A quick look out the window confirmed his worst suspicions: A car had smashed into a utility pole directly across the street from his house.

A call to 911 got help on the way; then the homeowner ran across the street to see what he could do. One person, the driver, was in the car. He was unconscious, but breathing, and there was a lot of blood on his head and face. The entire front end of the car had been crunched like an accordion, and jammed the doors shut on both sides of the car. As steam rose from the mangled radiator, the homeowner worried that they would never be able to get the driver out of the car.

In just minutes the rescue vehicles began arriving. Police cars blocked traffic while officers began piecing together what had happened. Firefighters pulled a hose line to reduce the risk of a fire from leaking fuel. One of the firefighters crawled into the car through a broken rear window and stabilized the driver's neck, while another worked to stop the bleeding from the driver's face and head and placed an oxygen mask over his mouth and nose. When the ambulance arrived, paramedics reached into the car and started an IV line in the driver's left arm. One big problem remained, however: How would they get the driver out of the car?

Injuries and death from auto accidents remain one of the most serious health problems facing our nation today. The causes are many, and society has moved to reduce the toll through increased use of seat belts and enforcement of tougher drunk driving laws. Still, auto accidents happen, and when they do the resulting impact will often trap occupants inside the twisted metal that was once a car.

The removal, or "extrication" of people trapped in the wrecked cars, is a job that typically falls to the fire department. The development of portable hydraulic rescue tools, such as "jaws," has greatly increased the firefighters' ability to quickly extricate trapped vehicle occupants. The "jaws," however, are just a part of the firefighter's inventory of hydraulic rescue tools. Cutters, rams and spreaders are all among the specialized tools designed to assist firefighters with the job of rescuing people who are trapped in wrecks.

The benefit of hydraulic tools comes from their ability to apply large working forces. A portable hydraulic pump, powered by a gasoline engine no larger than that found on a lawnmower, can develop working forces in the neighborhood of 15,000 to 20,000 foot pounds on some tools. There is still a place for manually operated tools at an extrication scene, however, and axes, punches, wooden blocks, pry bars and other such tools may also be used in the effort to free those who are trapped.

The fire chief arrived at the scene of the accident and was quickly brought up to speed on the situation. The ambulance company paramedics advised the chief that the driver's condition had been temporarily stabilized, but that he was in serious condition and needed to get to a hospital as soon as possible. The doors had been jammed shut on impact, and the driver's chest was tightly wedged between the steering wheel and the seat back.

As fire fighters set up the hydraulic rescue tools the chief called the dispatcher and asked to have a medical helicopter dispatched from Ann Arbor. The extrication was going to take some time, and the specialized trauma crew on the helicopter could help the patient while cutting down on transport time to a trauma center. Working with the jaws, fire fighters began the task of peeling back the metal on the door to access the point where the latch engaged the striker. Once the latch was exposed, the jaws were used again to pry the latch from the striker. The hydraulic cutter was then attached to the pump, and the "A pillars" which make up the front of the door frame on either side of the car were cut. This allowed the firefighters to peel back the roof. The jaws were then placed on the hood of the car while chains were attached to the jaws and the steering wheel and the front frame of the car. When the jaws were closed the chains pulled the steering wheel away from the driver's chest. As he was being placed in full spinal immobilization by the paramedics, the helicopter could be heard circling overhead in preparation for setting down in a landing zone marked out by firefighters about a block away.

When the helicopter took off on its way to the trauma center, the firefighters, police officers and paramedics began the task of picking up their equipment, hoping that the need to use it all again would not come too soon.

their decision in response to a consent order filed by the Oakland County Prosecutor's Office.

The board is now considering whether to grant Loveday's next scheduled parole date, Nov. 1, or keep him locked up until April 1, 1993. Acting chairman Tom Patton and board members Sandra Johnson and Marvin May listened to testimony against granting the release from Hanania, Abdelnour and Richard Thompson, chief of the prosecutor's office circuit court division Friday.

"We're hoping that they can rectify all the screw-ups they've made," Abdelnour said at a restaurant after the 30-minute hearing, when Hanania had finally calmed down enough to eat lunch.

The board will render a decision within the next 30-45 days, Patton said. That decision will be based on several factors.

"That includes information that was developed from the court, all the information that was developed regarding his stay in the institution and the information provided by the victims," he said.

The decision may be among the last made by the current seven-member tenured parole board, which will be replaced Nov. 15 by a new 10-member panel serving 2- to 4-year terms. Loveday's case was one of several, including the release of confessed serial killer Leslie Allan Williams, that spurred the changes.

Hanania and Abdelnour have not stopped pursuing other legal remedies. Hanania has filed a civil suit against Loveday, Jeep passenger Michael Gibson and others involved in the case, and is planning to file a grievance against Judge Francis X. O'Brien for his conduct while overseeing Loveday's trial.

The family members object in particular to a remark O'Brien made about having one drink too many, while returning to the bench after lunch.

"I don't want a judge... admitting that he shouldn't have had that last drink making life-and-death decisions," Abdelnour said. "Those decisions affected us."

Defense attorney expects charges dismissed against suspect in local drug case

Todd Patrick Bonner, 20, of Taylor, were arrested on suspicion of possessing more than a pound of marijuana.

Township police reports indicate that Braun discussed an earlier marijuana purchase from Malaney, and said another buy — this time for a half-pound of marijuana — was about to occur when police stopped Braun's vehicle for a minor traffic violation.

Braun's story to police apparently led officers to Malaney's doorstep and a 6:25 a.m. raid Sept. 17.

Steingold said state law requires a confidential police informant to have some credibility or standing in the eyes of the law. Braun had none of that, Steingold said.

"There's absolutely nothing attesting to his credibility," Steingold said. Township police Capt. Philip Presnell rebuked Steingold's search warrant charges.

"The point is, the prosecutor did approve it," Presnell said. "Any information on the search warrant will be defined by a higher authority than Mr. Steingold."

Defense and prosecution may bicker over procedural matters, but records indicate that Malaney is no stranger to drug-related offenses.

Township police said Malaney, the owner of a Garden City tanning salon, has been convicted three times on drug charges. His record reportedly includes a January 1986 felony conviction in Livonia on concealed weapons and cocaine possession charges.

Malaney also reportedly was convicted in July 1986 on felony possession and distribution of cocaine charges, and in September 1991 on a dangerous drug violation.

Braun and Bonner last week were arraigned on drug possession charges. The two were released on personal bond and face a preliminary hearing next week at 35th District Court.

Our Opinion

Advocates group sets an ambitious agenda

The last few weeks have seen the creation of Advocates for Quality Education, a new organization of active Northville School District residents dedicated to pursuing education issues.

The obvious question: Is there really a need for yet another citizens group in this community? We think the answer in this case is yes.

Advocates for Quality Education grew out of Citizens for Quality Education, the group organized to push for the school district's recent requests for renewals and increases of the district's property tax rate. Several of the organizers of the new group played key roles in the old one. But the Advocates are working hard to distinguish themselves from the previous organization.

They've adopted a mission statement, set up a meeting schedule and elected officers. Throughout this early activity the claim rings through: This is not a pro-millage group. This is not a support system for the school district establishment. This is an independent group out to support education, pure and complicated, whether that means going along with the school district line or not.

Some organization along these lines is probably a good idea. Particularly in the two most recent millage elections, feelings were so high and debate was so contentious that a lot of people just didn't know who to listen to. The impression, at least, seemed to be that nobody was being completely truthful.

That hurt the community, and we're still reeling from it. Advocates for Quality Education say they want to be reliable, independent, and out solely for education. They plan to take long, hard looks at a variety of issues facing the school district — everything from salaries (teachers and administrators) to programs. The goal is information — accurate, unbiased, complete, and easily understood.

It's a very admirable goal, one we at the paper fully share, and so we encourage the Advocates in their formation and early activities. Perhaps this group can help rebuild a sense of the community working together; we hope so.

In some ways the Advocates face an uphill fight. For one thing, it will be just as difficult for the new group to gather complete, accurate information as it has been for anyone else.

The group's principal challenge, however, ironically comes from what it hopes will be a strength: credibility. The key players in the Advocates all say they aren't going to be anybody's yes people, and they're certainly a strong collection of intelligent and well-informed minds.

But their genesis through Citizens for Quality Education, along with the common membership between the two groups, will doubtless make some people skeptical of anything the Advocates say which supports the school district. The new group specifically asks for its name to be shortened to the Advocates, rather than an acronym, because the initials AQE too readily recall the initials CQE. If that's true, the similarities in the full names may be a mistake, though not an insurmountable one.

If the community takes them at their word — that is, the words of their mission statement — these Advocates might prove vital indeed.

It will take wide participation. This is a group which should, by rights, attract a large and involved membership, and we hope it will come from all quarters of the community: parents, including those who choose private schools, and non-parents; people with kids not yet in schools and people with kids long out of schools; traditional PTA members and Citizens for a Better Northville activists. The first full-blown meeting is at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Forum at the high school, and we hope all these different facets of the community attend.

If that happens, the credibility concern should greatly reduce or vanish altogether. For the time being, we strongly encourage everyone interested to give the Advocates a chance. They've begun an ambitious course, and deserve a lot of credit for it. Good luck and best wishes.

Is renegotiation out of line?

"Rack-en-riken, ratzen-fratzen, GRRRRRRRR, OUCH! *%&!"

That's a quote from me, as uttered from an upside-down and twisted position behind my entertainment center. Bryan, my roommate, was going to be out for the evening and asked me to tape our favorite show, Home Improvement, so he could watch it when he got home.

In anticipation, I thought it wise to test the VCR. I tried taping part of the evening news, and what came out made Doris Biscoe look like she was broadcasting from Europe. Everything was fuzzy and colorless.

As I squeezed behind my entertainment center and cranked a wrench against a half-dozen or so coaxial cables, I began to contemplate the issues facing my cable supplier, MetroVision.

MetroVision wants to renegotiate its franchise contract with the City of Novi. The 15-year deal isn't up for another five years, but MetroVision would like to make some capital improvements (changing its cables over to fiber optics, among other things) between then and now.

As usual, money is the real issue. MetroVision wants to recoup the cost of the improvements ($2 million to $3 million), and doesn't think that will happen between now and 1997.

To sway opinion in their favor, MetroVision officials dangle the carrot of an expanded lineup of channels, from the current 54 to 79. But MetroVision's offer is as fuzzy as Doris Biscoe.

For one thing, we're not exactly getting 54 channels to begin with.

Another bone of contention: MetroVision may just have to give us more channels and other improvements anyway, with or without a renegotiation.

City Council Member Tim Pope has pointed out that the existing contract, negotiated in 1982 and amended in 1985, stipulated a commitment to state-of-the-art technology and up to 113 channels.

Most uncanny, though, is MetroVision's timing. Right now there is pending legislation in U.S. Congress that would allow competition for community cable service. The bill has been amended in such a way that it may actually raise our rates, so it may not pass. But competitive cable is coming; maybe not this time, but soon, and probably before 1997.

I think what we have here is a pre-emptive first strike by MetroVision. By locking in a new long-term contract, the company may be hoping to lock out competition.

This is happening right now in Northville, where a contract with Omnicom is about to expire. From what I hear, service there goes out every time a fat bird sits on the wire, and the Omnicom office is staffed by customer service reps reminiscent of Carla from Cheers. The people have had enough and are pressing for better service, a shorter contract and perhaps even a different supplier.

The cable industry is in a state of flux right now. By renegotiating a new contract, Novi may be pulling the plug on a better deal somewhere down the line.

Only one person was seen doing the watusi at the Victorian Festival ball.

It was a red-57-right, and

As near as I can figure it happened at the Victorian Ball in Northville a week ago Saturday.

I didn't notice anything Sunday. My mobility was just fine, thank you. But Monday morning was a different matter.

I noticed it as soon as I got out of bed. Put my right foot on the floor and promptly fell flat on my face, screaming out in agony at the same time.

"What's all that racket?" she inquired from the kitchen where she was fixing me a delicious breakfast of steak and eggs, whole wheat toast with strawberry jam and fresh-squeezed orange juice. (Not!)

"It's my foot," I howled, by this time having righted myself and commenced a one-footed, zig-zag hopping action toward the kitchen. "Whenever I try to put any weight on my right foot, I have a tendency to tumble over onto the floor."

"What do you think happened?" she asked, appearing genuinely concerned.

"Best I can figure, it must have happened at the Victorian Ball last Saturday," I replied. "Probably one of you Victorian belles managed to step on my foot, causing significant internal damage which just didn't show up until this morning."

"I'm not really sure how it happened, but I'm definitely going to try to pin it on somebody at the Victorian Ball. Maybe it was Gina Matthews. I could try to pin it on her, but the truth is that I think it was somebody who I wasn't even dancing with at the time — somebody who was going down the wrong row at the wrong time causing a collision in which the bottom of her huge Victorian shoe came down directly on the top of my foot."

"Well, you'd better go see the doctor," she advised. "I don't think I can stand to see you hopping all over the house any longer."

Having an aversion to modern medicine, I decided to tough it out and instead went directly to work — where all my co-workers expressed deep concern for the injury which had rendered me temporarily crippled.

"Ignore him," shouted Gloria as I came hopping in the front door. "It's just another one of his little tricks to get us to feel sorry for him."

"What a baby," hollered somebody else. "Don't let him get away with it," came another voice.

Chris Boyd, our genius graphics director, walked around cracking "Mr. Dillon" jokes all day, showing his advancing years by alluding to the old Gun Smoke television show.

And, quite frankly, I screwed up my only chance for a little genuine sympathy when Carrie asked what had happened to my foot.

"It was a red-57-right," I told her, "and I was supposed to pull out and lead the blocking for Barry around the right end, when all of a sudden, totally out of nowhere, one of those big clumsy Redskin linebackers . . ."

"You were right, Gloria," said Carrie before I even had a chance to finish my story. "He's faking it again."

"Okay, okay, okay," I interrupted. "I'll tell you the truth this time. I got a call from Hulk Hogan — I just call him Hoge for short, and he said he's got a big match with Ric Flair coming up and asked if I'd help him work out a little bit because he'd really like to regain the WWF heavyweight championship and, well, you'd be surprised how mad he got just because I slapped him up side of the head a couple of times and . . . Carrie, Carrie. Get back here, I'm not done yet."

City buys another Cady lot for parking deck

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

Piece by piece, city officials continue to assemble the plot of land needed for an expanded Cady Street parking deck.

The latest piece in the puzzle, 102 E. Cady St., was secured for $62,900 under an installment purchase contract. City council members approved the purchase Sept. 8, ending two years of negotiations with owner John Ashby for the key parcel.

The purchase price represented a compromise between the city and Ashby. A city appraisal of the lot in April 1990 placed its value at $45,000, while an updated city appraisal came in at $53,000. But an appraisal done for the owner found the property worth $72,000.

In June, the council agreed to buy another needed piece of the puzzle at 213 S. Center St. The $100,000 price of that property was a similar compromise between a city appraisal of $95,000 and a Northville Downs appraisal of $110,000. The city's final $107,000 purchase price included $7,000 to demolish the yellow house that sat on the lot.

The vacant red house that sits on the Cady Street lot will be torn down as well, in preparation for the new 470-space deck.

Installment purchase contracts have become the payment method of choice for the cash-strapped city. Payments are structured so that the largest ones are not due until the end of the loan.

"It's been a very handy tool," said City Manager Gary Word. "It would be very difficult for us otherwise. It buys us time to sell the bond for the deck."

The purchase costs will be covered, eventually, by the sale of bonds to finance $6 million for the new deck and other downtown improvements. City officials hope to sell the bonds some time in 1993, and are putting the finishing touches on a financing plan to do just that. The plan is included in Mainstreet '92, an update of the city's original Mainstreet '78 program.

Voter approval is not required for the bonds, because they would be paid off by captured tax revenue from businesses within an expanded downtown development district.

Executive, commission squabble over proposals

The Wayne County Board of Commissioners is battling 300 on ballot proposals.

Having voted last month to put six proposals on the November ballot, commissioners were chagrined when county Executive Edward McNamara vetoed four of them.

In his veto statements, McNamara argued that the proposals were either illegal, superfluous or attempts to usurp his authority.

Then during a spirited discussion on Sept. 10, the commission voted 13-1 to drop three of the vetoed proposals in exchange for McNamara letting the fourth one go on the November ballot.

Only commissioner William O'Neill, D-Southgate, voted against compromising with McNamara. O'Neill argued that the board should vote to override the vetoes or challenge McNamara in court. "We should have been in court a week and a half ago," he said.

The proposal McNamara agreed to allow on the ballot would require the county executive to submit an executive department reorganization plan to the commission for approval within 90 days after taking office or getting re-elected.

That means, for example, that if McNamara gets elected in 1994 and wants to change the duties of one of his employees, he would have to get commission permission.

Even though he consented to letting this proposal on the ballot, McNamara called it "merely but another attempt to again intrude and usurp the administrative authority of the executive branch."

Commissioner Bryan Amann, D-Canton, favors the proposal, but doesn't expect voters to approve it. He said voters probably won't understand the proposal and therefore will vote against it.

"It may be too esoteric for the voters to appreciate and understand," Amann said. "This proposal is fighting an uphill battle."

Commissioner Maurice Breen, R-Plymouth, whose district includes Northville, agreed with Amann. "The inclination would be to vote no on something like that," he said.

Deputy County Executive Mike Duggan called the proposal "crazy" and said McNamara will oppose it. "I don't think anyone will take it seriously," he said. "If this passes, then the legislative/executive bickering could shut down county government."

Among the ballot proposals the commission withdrew was one that would have asked voters to permit the use of "the separation of powers concept to determine the meaning of the charter as to the relationship of the executive, judicial and legislative branches of county government."

In his veto statement, McNamara called that proposal "too vague and ambiguous" and said "the proposed language does nothing to clarify the matter."

The second withdrawn ballot proposal, put forth by Kay Beard, D-Westland, would have allowed the county's auditor general to audit all county agencies, including McNamara's office.

In his veto statement, McNamara said Beard's proposal violates state law and is an attempt to "usurp the authority of the (executive)."

The third withdrawn proposal would have given the commission approval rights over the pay and benefits of all non-union executive branch employees.

McNamara said in his veto statement that executive branch employees are paid about the same as legislative branch employees, and so the proposed change is unnecessary.

Also to appear on the November ballot are two proposals that McNamara did not veto.

The first one will seem very familiar to voters because they voted it down by a 59-41 percent margin in the Aug. 4 primary. This proposal asks voters to tax themselves an additional half mill for 10 years to support health services and mental health services in the county.

Amann opposed putting the millage-increase question back on the ballot. "The action of the commission has been childish," he said. "It was disrespectful to the voters." McNamara also opposes this one, Duggan said.

The last proposal concerns a 1988, 10-year, one-mill tax. One-tenth of that money was supposed to be spent to build and operate a juvenile offender work/training institution. But that hasn't been done because of a shift in state policy.

So the proposal asks voters to allow the money raised with that 0.1 mill to be given back to Wayne County cities and townships to pay for local youth programs.

Governor appoints local man to board

Governor John Engler announced Sept. 3 the appointments of several people to the Barrier Free Design Board, including Eric Colthurst of Northville.

The board is responsible for reviewing requests for exceptions to the barrier free design requirements contained in Public Act 230 of 1972. The board also offers alternatives when exceptions are granted, reviews and acts on complaints of noncompliance, and makes recommendations to the Construction Code Commission as well. Appointments are subject to the advice and consent of the Senate.

"Each of these appointees brings a unique perspective, experience and knowledge to the board. Together they will help assure that every Michigan citizen can attain the freedom of mobility that is their right under the law," Engler said in a prepared statement.

Colthurst is an attorney in private practice who also performs magistrate duties in the 35th District Court. Colthurst earned a bachelor's degree in economics from Michigan State University and a Juris Doctor degree from Washburn Law School. He currently serves on the Michigan Paralyzed Veterans of America Board of Directors. Colthurst is appointed to request wheelchair users, replacing the late Stanley Skoczen of Roseville, for a term expiring Oct. 31.

Geake sets office hours

State Sen. Bob Geake (R-Northville) announced his new schedule for district office hours. The new schedule is as follows:

Tuesday, Oct. 6 in Northville at the Northville Public Library, 215 W. Main.

Thursday, Oct. 8 in Livonia at the Livonia Civic Center Library, 32777 Five Mile Road.

Tuesday, Oct. 22 in Northville at the Northville Public Library, 215 W. Main.

Tuesday, Oct. 27 in Livonia at the Livonia Civic Center Library, 32777 Five Mile Road.

Thursday, Oct. 29 in Plymouth at the Plymouth Public Library, 223 S. Main.

His office hours are from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Geake said in a press release that he is pleased to be able to continue his district office hours because it allows him to meet with constituents that might not ordinarily have an opportunity to meet him.

"I realize that with the schedules people have today it is often difficult for them to meet with their elected officials. That is why I like to take every opportunity to make myself available to my constituents."

Tuscan labels buck trends in winemaking

Trained in Italy, France and California, winemakers from Italy's Tuscany region are in a race to create new, artistically styled wines using transplanted French varietals or redesigned blends of classic Italian grapes. Consequently, Tuscany is considered by many to be Italy's most innovative wine region, attracting international attention to its designer vino da tavolas known as Super Tuscans.

Super Tuscans are usually aged in small French barrels. The reds are produced either from a 100 percent Italian varietal of heritage, or blended with cabernet sauvignon, cabernet franc or merlot. The white wines generally include a majority of the non-traditional varietals such as chardonnay and sauvignon blanc.

At the La Selva Estate, in the Tuscan region of Montepulciano, Avignonesi grows non-traditional varietals including chardonnay, sauvignon blanc, riesling, merlot, cabernet sauvignon and pinot noir.

"It is our intention to follow tradition as long as we can produce interesting, well-priced wines that can be showcased in the great restaurants of the world," said Avignonesi's manager, Alberto Falvo.

"We have departed with tradition because it offered us a challenge. Tuscany is not renowned for white wines, so it is important for us to demonstrate that we can grow grapes prized in other regions and make world-class wines."

While this is true, it remains a fact that the Super Tuscans are very pricey. The better buys (if you can say this about anything Italian these days) are the traditional wines. From Tuscany, you should sample more than chianti.

We're giving prices as a guideline, but do investigate because some shops have good deals currently. From Avignonesi at just under $20, we recommend the 1988 Vino Nobile de Montepulciano and 1990 Rosso de Montepulciano ($14). The latter is the younger sibling of the Vino Nobile, produced from younger vines.

Bottle aging will not however transform it into a Vino Nobile. It's delicious now and ready to drink.

At around $9, Castello Banfi's 1989 Centine Rosso di Montalcino, commonly referred to as a "Baby Brunello" is atop the best buy list. In the $8 price category, Bolla wines are consistently well made and flavorful.

Italy's Piedmont region remains fairly traditional. Here the great Barolos and Barbarescos produced from the nebbiolo grape are expensive, but generally excellent. Still available from the exceptional 1985 vintage is B.D. Vaira Barolo, Bricco delle Viole Vineyard ($34) with explosive, powerful palate fruit and rich finish.

Spanna and Gattinara, also produced from the nebbiolo grape, are better priced.

The good news from the Piedmont is that mainstream wines like Dolcetto and Barbera have been highly stylized by individual producers and provide interesting taste comparisons. To illustrate, we suggest pairing the 1991 Cordero di Montezemolo Dolcetto d'Alba ($13.50) and the 1991 Pio Cesare Dolcetto d'Alba ($18). The Montezemolo has a soft palate impression with the imprint of black cherry flavors while the Pio

GETTING SOUPED UP

It's the time of the season for a hot bowl

Soup — it's the oldest dish known to humankind and perhaps the most widely enjoyed, playing an important role in every cuisine of the world, from French onion soup and Italian minestrone to Mexican albondigas, Russian borscht, Japanese miso and Chinese egg drop soup.

Soups of all varieties microwave well. Foods that require dry heat to cook properly — crusty breads, for instance — are simply not candidates for microwaving. But the moist heat of your microwave oven is just perfect for simmering soup.

Because flavors mellow and blend with standing, soup is a good choice for make-ahead meals. Especially since reheating is so easy in your microwave — in individual mugs, ramekins or bowls, or in a microwave-safe casserole.

Heat small amounts of soup uncovered. For larger amounts, cover container tightly (with lid or plastic wrap) to hold in steam and speed heating. Microwave most soups at High (100 percent power) setting.

Soups containing milk or cream should be heated at Medium (50 percent power) or Medium-High (70 percent power) setting. (If using a temperature probe, set to 140°F.) Be sure to heat in an extra-large container, since milk tends to bubble up rapidly; watch carefully to prevent boil-overs.

To heat canned condensed soup, dilute with water as instructed. Place in a 1½-quart microwave-safe casserole, cover and microwave at High setting for five to seven minutes. To make microwaving canned soups even speedier, dilute with hot tap water.

When microwaving soups from scratch, take care to cut vegetables and meats into uniform shapes and sizes for even cooking.

Soup is versatile: serve it savory or sweet, hot or chilled, as an elegant appetizer, a hearty main dish or in a thermos for a satisfying lunch. Accompany with muffins, warm bread, a baked potato, a sandwich, a green salad — just about anything goes well with soup.

Recipes in this column are tested in 625- to 700-watt microwave ovens.

MICRO-TIP OF THE WEEK

Time for soup and a sandwich? Don't heat both at the same time in your microwave. Instead, microwave the soup first; it will stay hot during the brief time it takes to heat the sandwich.

CREAMY CARROT SOUP

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
¼ cup chopped onion
¼ cup chopped fresh parsley
1 clove garlic, minced
1 pound carrots (4 to 6 medium), peeled and thinly sliced

1 medium potato, peeled and thinly sliced
2 cups chicken broth
¼ teaspoon crumbled dried tarragon
¼ teaspoon each salt and pepper
1 cup sour cream

Yields 4 servings.

Preparation time: 15 minutes.

Cooking time: 16 to 22 minutes.

Oven setting: High (100 percent power).

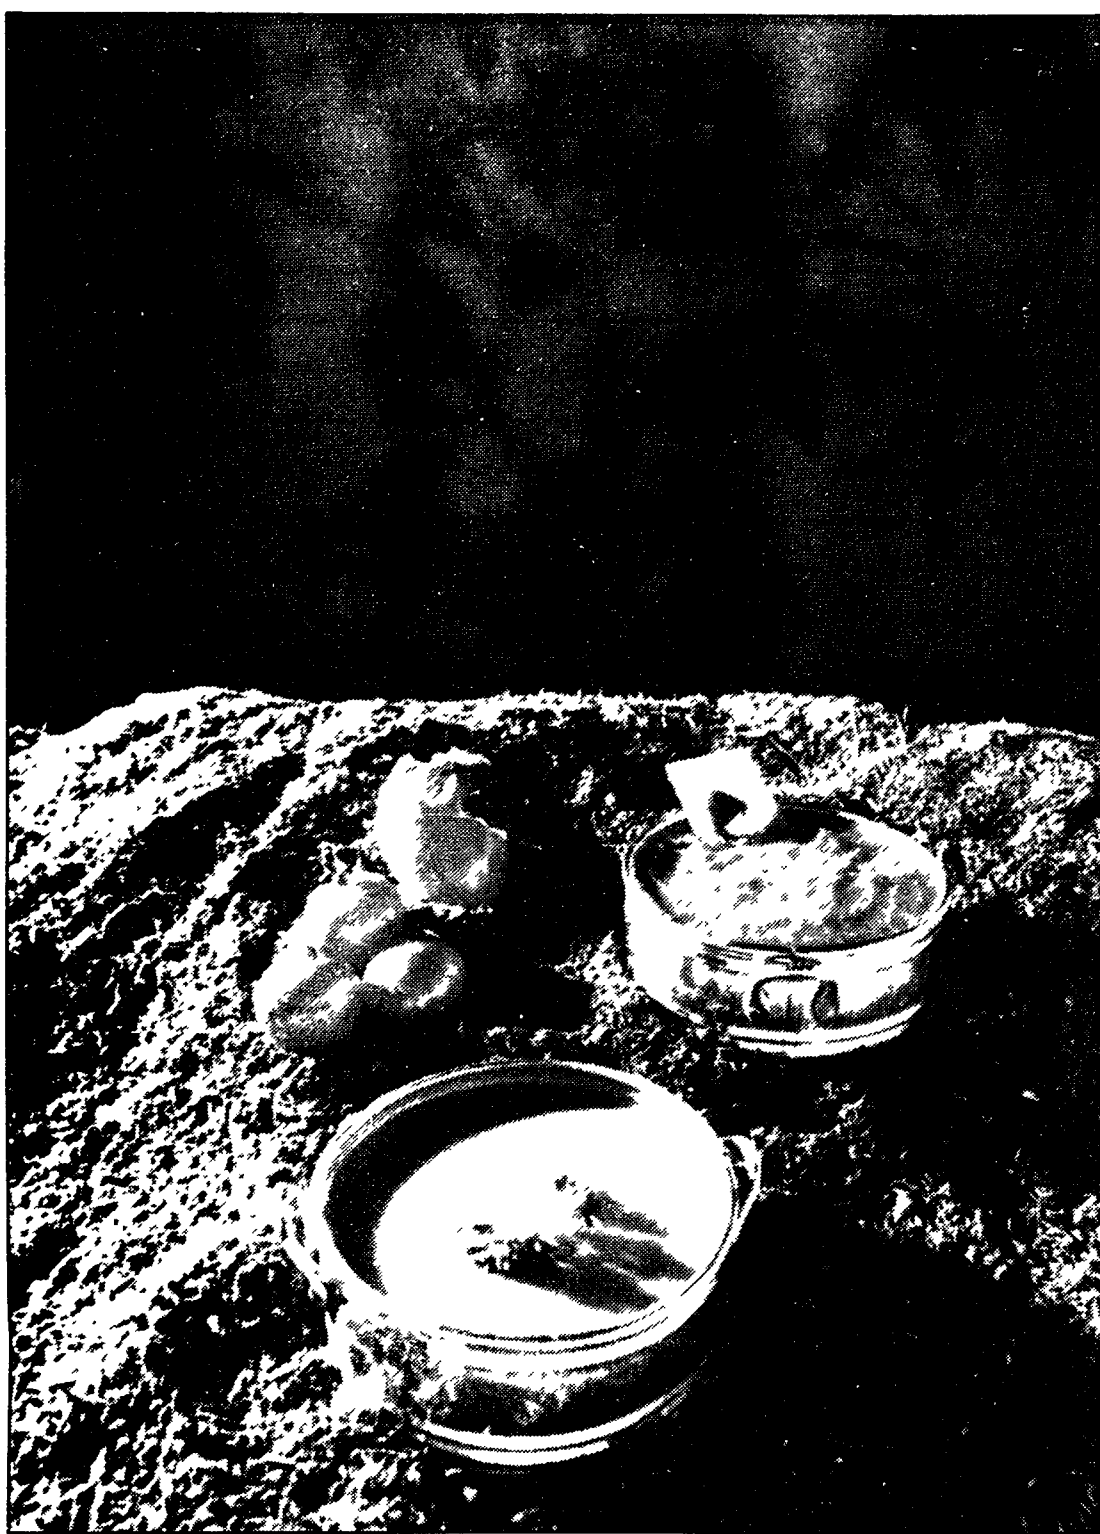

In 3-quart microwave-safe casserole, combine butter or margarine, onion, parsley and garlic. Microwave 2 to 3 minutes, or until onion and parsley soften.

Add carrots, potatoes, ¼ cup of chicken broth and tarragon. Cover and microwave 10 to 13 minutes, or until vegetables are tender. Puree vegetables in blender or food processor until smooth.

Return carrot mixture to casserole and stir in remaining chicken broth; add salt and pepper to taste. Cover and microwave 4 to 6 minutes longer to heat through. Stir in sour cream and serve immediately.

COUNTRY-STYLE FRENCH ONION SOUP

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 medium onions, thinly sliced
2 cloves garlic, minced

Souped up recipes make this worldwide favorite seem new again.

1 tablespoon all-purpose flour
2 (10½ ounce) cans beef broth (undiluted)
¼ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
4 slices sourdough French bread, lightly toasted
¼ cup shredded mild white cheese
2 tablespoons grated parmesan cheese

Yields 4 servings.

Preparation time: 10 to 15 minutes.

Cooking time: 12½ to 20 minutes.

Oven setting: High (100 percent power).

In 2-quart microwave-safe casserole, combine butter or margarine, onion and garlic. Cover and microwave 5 to 8 minutes, or until onion is tender, stirring several times during cooking to separate onion rings.

Push onions to one side of casserole; stir flour into melted butter until smooth. Add broth and Worcestershire sauce. Cover and microwave 6 to 9 minutes, or until soup boils and thickens slightly, stirring twice. Pour soup into 4 microwave-safe serving bowls. Top each serving with a slice of toasted bread. Sprinkle each serving with ¼ of cheese. Place bowls in oven and microwave 1½ to 3 minutes, to melt cheese. Serve immediately.

COTTAGE POTATO CHOWDER

3 slices bacon, chopped

1 cup chopped onion (1 large)
2 cups diced potatoes (about 2 medium)
2 (10½-ounce) cans chicken broth (undiluted)
8 ounces process American cheese, shredded or cut into small cubes

1 teaspoon paprika
¼ teaspoon each salt and pepper

Yields 4 servings.

Preparation time: 10 to 15 minutes.

Cooking time: 11 to 18 minutes.

Oven setting: High (100 percent power)

Place bacon and onion in 2½-quart microwave-safe casserole. Cover and microwave 3 to 4 minutes, until bacon is done; stir. Drain off excess bacon fat.

Add potatoes and ¼ cup chicken broth. Cover and microwave 5 to 9 minutes, or until potatoes are tender.

Transfer mixture to container of blender or food processor. Add 1 cup chicken broth, cheese, paprika, salt and pepper. Blend until smooth. Pour soup back into casserole, adding remaining chicken broth. Cover and microwave 3 to 5 minutes, or until heated through. Add hot water, if needed, to thin soup to desired consistency. Serve hot.

Chef Mary Brady

Craft Community College.

Of course I said yes. What a great opportunity, exciting. Imagine, being on a talk show with two of Detroit's finest. I was raring to go.

So I started doing my homework about women in this industry.

My first step was to contact the American Culinary Federation (ACF) in St. Augustine, Fla. This is the organization that chefs must belong to in order to become certified.

In 1929 a group of chefs met with a dream to create an association with the primary goal of upgrading the cooking profession for American culinarians. To this point in time we were classified as "domestic help."

Sixty years later the original group has grown to over 200 chapters in cities across the United States. Today membership is over 18,000 chefs, cooks, pastry chefs and culinary educators. Each year it grows by leaps and bounds.

There are numerous educational opportunities for the professional and student alike. The aspiration of making our occupation a proud one has been met. Apprentice training, culinary program accreditation and chef certification are just a few of the roles that the ACF has assumed.

Now for the "woman" part. There are over 5.4 million people in the food preparation and food service industry. 3.2 million, or 59 percent are women. Of 384,000 managers of eating and drinking establishments 41 percent are women. Not equal yet, but getting closer.

The ACF has 20,000 members and 10 percent or 2,000 are women. Of those 20,000 members, only 6,052, about 38 percent are certified and only 515 are women.

The figures are sometimes frightening to me. Even though there has been a 1 percent increase of certified females in the last year this is not enough.

Of course, there are many reasons for it. The hours demanded are not conducive to any sort of normal family life. Many men and women alike end up divorced because of the job. You see it over and over again. It is part of the program.

In most instances equal pay is not typical. Generally speaking it is much easier for a male chef to gain notoriety and become what is dubbed a "celebrity."

And then there is the misnomer that women can't do the same job because of their size or strength. I can verify that isn't true. My kitchen staff is 60 percent women and range in age from 50-something to 19 years old. There isn't one that can't do whatever is required from them.

Sometimes I think that women are more "natural" cooks than men, that it is an in-born trait. That isn't to say that they are better because they are not. The men in my kitchen are just as capable. We don't look at it as a boy-girl thing. We're all part of the team that keeps good food coming out.

Flashback to the J.P. show. I met Joe Muer on the way up to the 22nd floor of the Fisher Building. What a delightful man. We were escorted into a broadcasting booth to wait our turn to be interviewed. There were several guests before us that were extremely interesting and informative. Unfortunately for us we got the last two minutes of the show.

I'm not complaining. It was an honor to be there and fascinating to watch J.P. interview. He really knows his stuff, and can ask all the right questions. He has no airs of superiority. Just a very talented persona of radio.

I had fun. Joe and I got our message across for the gala Sunday affair. But I never got to talk about all of the talented women chefs in Detroit. Maybe next time.

Tuscan wines break from the ordinary

Cesare showcases intense berry fruit with palate richness and is a much bigger wine overall.

Two Barberas provide contrast potential. The 1987 B.D. Valra Barbara d'Alba Riserva ($28) sports intense, generous black cherry, chocolate, coffee and spice flavors with broad but straightforward palate softness. On the other hand, the 1989 (an excellent vintage) Pio Cesare Barbara d'Alba ($17) is rich and robust with palate heft and intense black cherry fruit lasting through a generous, complex finish. It's great now, but is a wine with cellaring potential from five to eight years.

To make the best food harmonies with Italian wines, there's one element to remember. Lighter red wines are knocked out by rich tomato sauces. Match styles with heftier palate impressions and rich tomato sauces or red meat dishes. To illustrate this, pair the 1990 Ruffino Aziano (a single-vineyard chianti classico) with veal, roast chicken, lightly spiced pastas and medium to rich cheeses then graciously accept the applause of those around your dinner table.

Taste of Novi offers rare chances

By RICK BYRNE
Copy Editor

Taking the smorgasbord concept to the extreme, the Novi Chamber of Commerce is presenting its seventh annual Taste of Novi on Thursday evening at the Hotel Baronette.

The Taste of Novi brings 20 area restaurants together under one roof for an evening of all-you-can-eat sampling. The dinner bell rings at 5:30 p.m. and the event will continue until 8:30 p.m. There will also be a cash bar.

Tickets are $13.50, or $11 for senior citizens, and are available by calling 349-3743, or by dropping by the Chamber of Commerce office at the Novi Expo Center. Proceeds from the event will benefit the Chamber.

According to Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Connie Mallett, every year local restaurateurs drool with anticipation as the date for the Taste of Novi approaches.

"It gives them an opportunity to gain potential diners," Mallett said. "And it also gives them an opportunity to show people who they are, where they are and what they do."

"It's become one of those things where they have to ask themselves whether they can afford not to be in it. Their absence is noticed."

■ The Taste of Novi will feature 20 area restaurants offering up samples of their food. Here's the list of restaurants that will attend:

Anthony's-Sheraton Oaks, Country Epicure, Crystal Swan-Hilton, Diamond Jim Brady's, Gallery of Cakes, Gourmet to Go Catering, Home Sweet Home, Hotel Baronette, Key Largo, Maisano's Italian Restaurant, Matt Brady's Tavern, Mountain Jack's, Periwinkle's-Radisson Suite Hotel, Red Lobster, Salvatore Scallopini, Shield's Restaurant, Bar & Pizzeria, The Olive Garden, The Pastry Place, Victor's Novi Inn, Wyndham Garden Hotel.

It's a light-hearted evening though, Mallett said, as each restaurant goes to great lengths to decorate its table. The Baronette will also contribute to the festive atmosphere with thematic decorations.

"The themes are different every year," said Mallett. "Two years ago it was tropical, and we served everything poolside at the Holiday Inn. Last year it was Italian, and we had strolling music, and umbrellas everywhere so that it looked just like an Italian sidewalk cafe."

This year, the German Oktoberfest theme will be augmented by a pianist doubtless tickling the ivories with his best Bach, and a strolling violinist.

Some restaurants have taken a cue from the Oktoberfest theme of the event, and will be dishing up German specialties. The host Hotel Baronette will serve bratwurst and spiced sauerbraten, along with hot potato salad and hazelnut macaroons. Gourmet To Go Catering is promising German pork in spicy beer sauce, sauerkraut soup and mini German chocolate cheesecakes.

Most, however, are sticking to what they do best. Mountain Jacks will serve its ubiquitous prime rib. Maisano's will feature lasagna and Italian sausage. Shield's has pledged to bring its famous deep-dish pepperoni pizza.

The first Taste of Novi was held at lunch hour in one of the local churches, said Mallett. Only a hundred or so Chamber members and their guests attended.

The second year, however, the event was opened to the public, and it was held in the evening. From the original 10 restaurants, the event has grown to include 20 eateries, and draws about 400 visitors. The variety, said Mallett, is the attraction, as well as the direct contact with the cooks.

"How many restaurants can you go in where you can get a chance to talk to the chef," Mallett said. "Chefs are creative people, and they like the interaction."

The restaurants contribute their time and the food, which can be expensive. Their good will goes a long way though, said Mallett, because the Taste of Novi is a more personable method of advertising.

The Chamber will also be providing patrons with a $2-off coupon, good at any of the 20 participating restaurants within 90 days of the Taste of Novi. The coupon allows the restaurants to track just how many customers they gained from their appearance.

"Everyone — the restaurants, the chambers, the diners — comes out happy," said Mallett.

Pizza finds favor with lamb flavor

Fall signals the return of slower paced cool weather meals. Celebrate National Lamb Month in September by including lamb in your meal planning.

What better way to learn about the versatility of lamb and the delicious mild taste of American lamb than by serving pizza. The smell of tomato sauce and basil floating through the house as the weather cools invites families to gather around the dinner table and share their stories of the day.

The "Pronto Pizza" takes no longer than the wait at the corner pizzeria. This recipe is quick, easy and for all those cooks watching the fat and sodium in their diets, this pizza says delicious and healthy.

"Pronto Pizza" is topped with lamb, vegetables, and cheese providing calcium, important vitamins such as thiamine, niacin, riboflavin, C and E plus zinc and iron and is ready in about 25 minutes. A slice of the "Pronto Pizza" contains only 245 calories per serving with 9 grams of fat and 340 mg. of sodium. Compare this to a slice of regular cheese pizza with green peppers and Italian Sausage at 453 calories, 17 grams of fat and 1108 mg. of sodium. This pizza is a winner, both yummy and nutritious.

Celebrate National Lamb Month with a delicious "Pronto Pizza." America's lamb producers are sure that once you try American lamb you will find that nothing is more versatile, convenient, lean and mild than fresh American lamb.

Harvest season brings finest herbs

Let's hear a big hurrah for herbs. This is the time of the year when lucky home gardeners are picking from luxuriant bushes. Even apartment dwellers with pots on the windowsill are snipping away at the aromatic greens and adding an extra snap to their cooking.

Herbs are at their flavorful peak when fresh. All of the culinary impact of herbs is stored in the oils that are released when crushed or cooked. There are a few exceptions, like bay leaves and oregano, that get stronger when dried.

Now is the time to take full advantage of these marvelous greens, before autumn's chill assaults them. Before going into the kitchen with your harvest of herbs, let's look around the house and see to what other uses they can be put.

These pretty leaves are nature's own best air freshener. If your crop is abundant, thrust a generous bunch into a vase and put at a strategically busy passageway. Every time anyone passes and brushes against the arrangement, the fragrant oils will be released.

Especially good at perfuming rooms are mints of all kinds, lemon balm, lemon verbena, basil, thyme, bay, rosemary, and lavender among the most common varieties. But as you walk through the garden, crush a leaf or two of other kinds and decide if its fragrance is to your liking. Mixing up a variety is a fine idea. The different characteristics of each will play together like a complete melody instead of a single note.

Little pots of herbs also make very appealing and relevant table centerpieces. This is especially true if the same herb has been importantly used in the food served. One good example is the Steambaked Zucchini With Pesto.

Stems that will stay perky are the best bet. Count on basil, mint, tarragon, thyme and rosemary. Willow dill is particularly attractive. Used singly, chives tend to flop over gracefully, but nevertheless they've flopped. Instead, tie together a dozen or so and place them for spiky effect among other branch herbs.

If you want to really give a good sudden zing of aroma to the house, throw a sprig of rosemary, thyme, or lemon balm in a hot skillet, or the oven, if it happens to be on.

Once in the kitchen, herbs really come into their own. If you want to follow the trendy crowd, make a selection of herb-infused vinegars. Just put two large sprigs of tarragon, chives or basil in a bottle of white wine vinegar. Put aside for two weeks, then splash onto steamed vegetables or add to sauces instead of cream or butter.

But the most fun in using herbs is to see how their fresh, lively flavor changes the characteristics of foods. Stir snipped chives, basil or tarragon into scrambled eggs, or sprinkle over the top of poached or fried eggs.

Chives and dill added to yogurt or buttermilk makes a snappy and low-calorie sauce for steamed potatoes. No wine sauce should be spooned onto meat, chicken or fish until it has had a good scattering of parsley, sage or rosemary.

To taste the full impact that a single herb can bring to a simple vegetable, try this easy-to-do and delicious pairing. Zucchini, also currently at its peak in home gardens, is transformed in this method. The green squash is not so much baked as steamed in its own juice. The resulting sweet flavor far surpasses regular steaming, in which the vegetable juices fall into the steaming water and are lost.

STEAM-BAKED ZUCCHINI

8 medium or 16 small zucchini
2 cups fresh basil leaves
2 tablespoons chopped garlic
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon black pepper
Approximately ¼ cup virgin olive oil.

Yields 8 servings.
Preheat oven to 350 F. Cut off root and stem ends, and place zucchini on large sheet of aluminum foil. Seal edges of foil, and make an airtight package. Place foil package on baking sheet and bake for about 20 minutes, or until zucchini are soft.

Meanwhile, put basil leaves, garlic, salt and pepper into food processor or blender. Process in short bursts to chop leaves and reduce their volume. With motor running, slowly add oil in thin stream. Makes about 1½ cups pesto. The sauce can be made in advance and refrigerated. Bring back to room temperature before serving.

Serve steamed zucchini whole; each guest splits it in half lengthwise and garnishes with pesto.

Sara Christenson and teammate Jenny Kooistra won their doubles match against Livonia Stevenson last week.

Netters whip Livonia; fall to Harrison, N.F.

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

Poor Livonia Stevenson.

The Mustang tennis team took a week's worth of frustrations out on the Spartans Thursday and slammed the Livonia school right off the court, 7-1. Northville had dropped matches with Farmington Harrison and North Farmington earlier last week.

Although the score looks a little lopsided, coach Uta Filkin said it wasn't an easy win.

"They had to win this one," she said. "We had to be on our toes."

For the Mustangs, Thursday's match was the first in more than a week for which the team was healthy. No. 1 singles player Jenny Lower, for example, was finally back to full strength after battling ear and throat infections.

Lower played her best match in weeks against Stevenson. She took on the Spartans' Irene Deluca and won 7-6, 6-3. No. 2 singles player Kiley Mills fell to Jackie Deluca in two sets.

Ellen Song got Northville back on track with a 6-4, 6-1 win over Sandy Peacock. Junior Alissa Miller came from behind to beat Andrea Khoury 4-6, 6-4 and 6-3.

"She really played nice," Filkin said. "She concentrated and didn't make errors."

The coach described Miller as a powerful player with potential. Filkin said she has had a tendency to be impatient on the court, but is improving.

"I was really pleased that she didn't give up and was able to come back," she said. "It shows that she's getting more patient."

Jenny Pollack and Lisa Wagner were two set winners at No. 1 doubles. Kristen Davis and Heather Huizing also won in two by beating Katie Christenson and Amy Wallace 6-3, 6-0.

Northville's final two doubles teams also won in two sets. At No. 3, Sara Christenson and Jenny Kooistra won as did Nanda Filkin and Julie Weix at the last doubles spot.

The Mustangs' record following the match was 3-2-1 overall and 3-2 in the Western Lakes Activities Association.

FARMINGTON HARRISON 5, NORTHVILLE 3: Filkin described the loss to the Hawks as heartbreaking. It went down to the wire with the Mustangs trailing 4-3 in the final match, but unable to secure a tie.

Northville was in a battle right from the start.

Lower was matched up against one of the WLAA's best in Stephanie Schwaib at No. 1 singles. She fell in two, 6-0, 6-1.

Mills took advantage of many unforced errors on the part of Julie Heist and won 6-3, 6-4.

"She played very well," Filkin said. "Sooner or later it will all come together for her."

Song wasn't as fortunate against Jill Beringer and lost in two sets.

Miller also lost in two (6-2, 6-2) as well.

Wagner and Pollack lost to Amy Tobe and Lisa Tomle 6-2, 6-1 at No. 1 doubles. Davis and Huizing won in three sets.

Kooistra and Christenson got the Mustangs final victory of the day by winning in two sets. Nanda Filkin and Weix fell in the final match to Lindsay Frank and Kristen Walters 6-4, 2-6, 6-3.

"They were nice players," Filkin said of Harrison. "We didn't lose it; they won it."

NORTH FARMINGTON 5, NORTHVILLE 2: Everything that could go wrong did in this home match, Filkin said.

Rain stopped play not once but three times. When the rains came a fourth time, both sides agree to call the contest with a match to go (No. 3 singles).

"We felt like we were all growing web feet," Filkin joked.

The Mustangs dropped all three completed singles matches. Lower, Mills and Miller each went down in two sets.

Wagner and Jenny McCormick lost in three sets. McCormick was injured in the match and missed the rest of the week.

Davis and Huizing lost in two sets. Christenson and Kooistra got Northville on the right track with a 6-2, 6-3 win over Heather Cornwell and Dana Serling. Nanda Filkin and Weix won in three sets to close the match.

BOTSFORD GENERAL HOSPITAL URGENT CARE

Our goal is to give you the best care as quickly as possible.

Sports are a great way to have fun and get exercise - but sports can also cause minor injuries.

When your child is injured or ill, you want the best care as quickly as possible - at a full service hospital. In most cases, children and adults with minor injuries or illnesses are cared for in under 90 minutes at our newly expanded Urgent Care Department. And to make life easier, convenient parking is provided.

Botsford's physicians are Board Certified and Residency Trained Emergency Specialists. Urgent Care hours are 10am to 11pm, 7 days a week. Emergency care is available 24 hours every day.

Save valuable time in an emergency by pre-registering. Call Community Relations at 442-7986 for an Emergency/Urgent Care pre-registration form.

STAR NOTES

Flanery enjoys playing globe-trotting hero

By Suzanne Gill

When it comes to heartthrobs, fans want to know important things like, "What does he eat for breakfast?" In the case of Sean Patrick Flanery, the answer is Cream of Wheat — a good, stick-to-the-ribs choice for a globe-trotting adventurer.

Flanery is the principal lead in The Young Indiana Jones Chronicles, airing Monday nights on ABC, playing the teenage Indy in George Lucas' history-action series.

Flanery is some years older than the character he plays, but just as wide-eyed, enjoying on-location shoots from North Carolina to Prague, his favorite European city. Despite the travel, he's still in touch with old friends at home in Houston, where he gets around town in a "20-year-old (BMW) 2002."

Though he was recently named to a "50 most beautiful people" list, Flanery frankly says he isn't popular enough to be mobbed on the streets, and he still answers his fan mail — from parents, kids and college students — himself.

As for his own idols, Flanery says he has added several, including Albert Schweitzer, to the list since the series began. Asked which historical character he would most like to encounter in an upcoming episode, Flanery knows instantly: "I'd like to meet Baron Manfred von Richthofen — the Red Baron. You know, that'd be kind of a cool story — World War I, flying aces and stuff like that." — TV Listing Inc.

Kerns, Davison face 'Desperate Choices'

Witherspoon excels in pivotal role

By Steven Alan McGaw

"This is a very 'small' movie in a way," says Joanna Kerns of her latest telefilm, "about an issue that isn't hitting the big headlines, but about the way the illness of a child hits a family, the various ways. I think it's a very well-rounded piece."

Kerns joins Bruce Davison (Longtime Companion) and Reese Witherspoon (Man in the Moon) in Desperate Choices: To Save My Child, airing Monday, Oct. 5, on NBC.

Davison and Kerns star as Richard and Mary Ellen "Mel" Robbins, a successful couple with two children: 7-year-old Willy (Joseph Mazzello) and 15-year-old Cassie (Witherspoon), Richard's daughter from his first marriage. Life seems to be going well for the Robbins. Mel is a popular local TV personality, while Richard has a solid career as a contractor. Shy Willy is adjusting to the rigors of first grade, and outgoing, attractive Cassie is a good student and a determined player on her school's coed football team.

A puzzling fainting spell alarms Cassie's coach, and her parents take her in for an examination. The diagnosis is devastating: Cassie has leukemia, and her only chance for long-term survival is a bone-marrow transplant. Richard and Mel learn that marrow is difficult to match and only Willy is indicated by test to be an acceptable donor.

Despite her love for Cassie, Mel refuses to sign the necessary papers okaying Willy as donor. She has reason to believe the boy is allergic to anesthetic. "What if we lose both of them?," Mel asks Richard, and their disagreement threatens to tear their marriage apart.

"In a way, they're both right," Kerns says. "And both wrong. Life is that way — messy. Things aren't black and white."

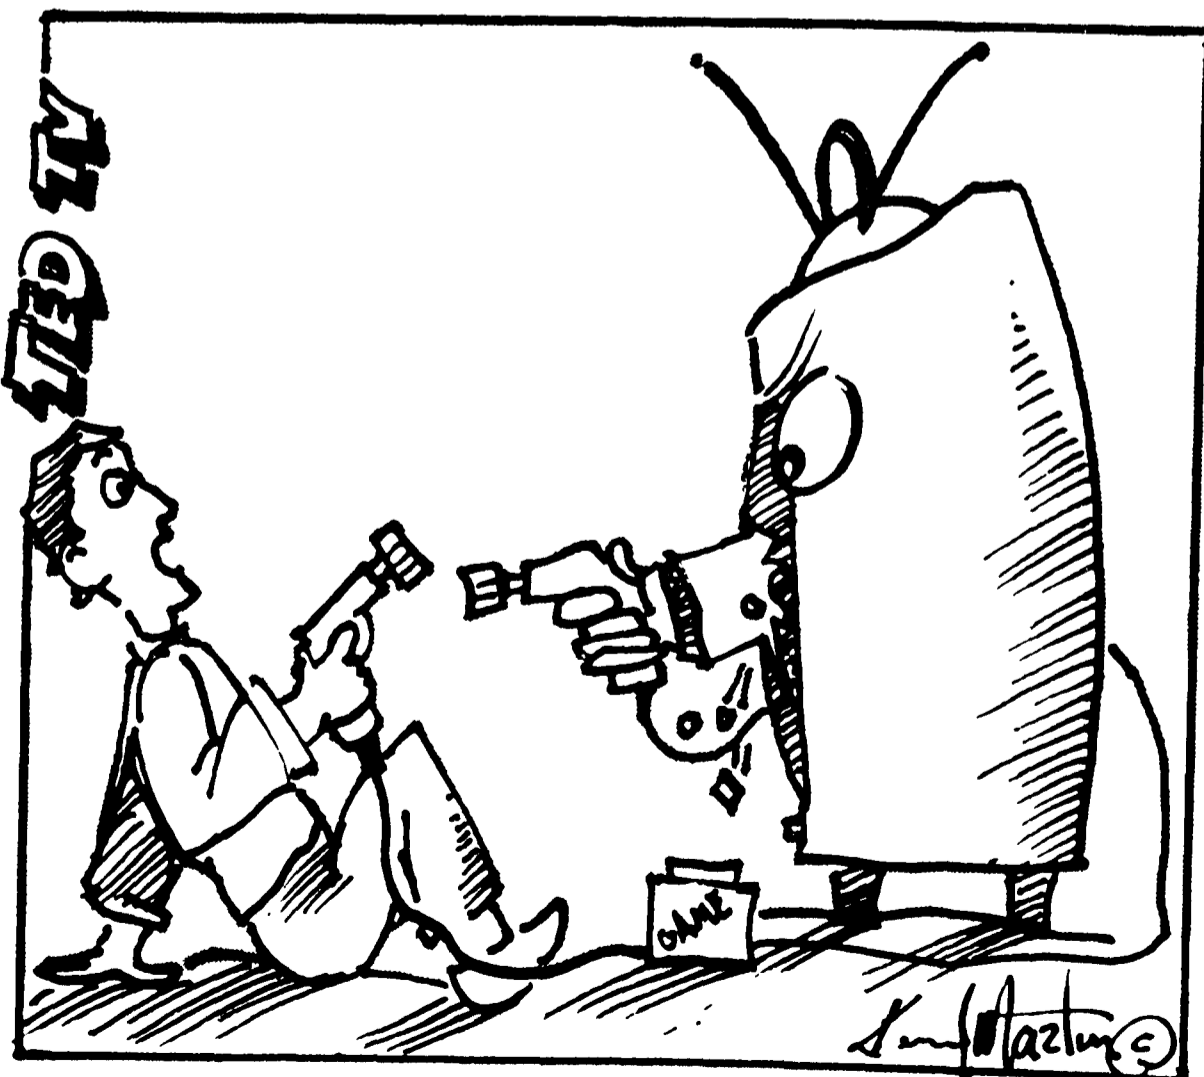

The movie skillfully examines the complex questions raised in the story, including Richard's fear that Mel cares less for Cassie because she is a step-child, and the not-insignificant point that Willy's fate is debated by everyone but Willy himself.

Kerns is warm and engaging in a role many viewers may find unsympathetic. "I took the part because of that," she says, stressing the distance between this character and Maggie Seaver, the smiling, can-do mom of ABC's long-running Growing Pains. "I don't want to sanitize myself," Kerns explains, "always playing good guys."

Thanks to his sensitive, layered portrayal, audiences will relate to Davison as the emotionally torn father, and Witherspoon delivers a powerful performance as the stricken teen. Mazzello is okay, if a little too cute, as Willy. Bruce McGill and Jeremy Sisto lend fine support, respectively, as Richard's sympathetic attorney and Cassie's would-be boyfriend.

Desperate Choices is a laudable effort, mostly for its performances and the complexity of the story. One wishes, however, for a little less hokum in the dialogue. A story as powerful as this needs no excess of sentimentality.

Leave a clean trail.

Both Lucys in the right; foggy on doggie

By Taylor Michaels

Q: My wife and I have a bet on the following question: Did Scott Valentine (Nick) ever star in a spin-off show from Family Ties? I have $20 that says there never was such a show. —Michael Lucy and Lucy Michaels Leigh (Those are really our names!), Oak Park, Mich.

A: The time now comes to split a few hairs, Michael. Valentine never appeared in a spin-off series from Family Ties as such, so you're right. But he did appear in The Art of Being Nick, a 30-minute "special" that ran in August 1987 and smells suspiciously of a failed pilot episode, so your wife's right, too.

Q: I'm a big fan of Peyton Place. I would like to know quite a bit about it. How often and what time of day did it come on? Did it do well in the ratings, etc.? —New fan of the old Peyton Place, Grenada, Miss.

A: Based on the novel of the same name by Grace Metalious (which was made into a movie in 1957), Peyton Place was, and still is in reruns on many stations, an immensely popular television series. The show's first airdate was Sept. 15, 1964, Monday at 9:30 p.m. (EST) on ABC. There were more backstabbing, illicit affairs, murder mysteries, dark secrets and failed romances in the serial than one could decipher in three lifetimes, portrayed by a constantly changing ensemble cast that would take the rest of this column to list. The first true soap opera to air in prime time (Dallas, Dynasty, Knot's Landing, etc., owe this show a lot), every one of the show's 514 episodes during the first five years was original — no reruns. This is a remarkable accomplishment, especially when considering during the first four years Peyton Place ran up to three times a week! Many of the show's regulars, including Mia Farrow and Ryan O'Neal, became superstars because of the recognition they received on the show. The last original episode aired on June 2, 1969.

Q: My best friend and I have a disagreement regarding the old Starsky and Hutch television show. It pertains to the kind of car they drove. We both agree that it was a Ford; however, he says it was a Gran Torino and I say it was an LTD II. Can you give us the correct answer and end this for us? —Virgil A. Saxon, Hilton Head Island, S.C.

A: I'll never forget what kind of car those two drove around in because my best friend's brother owned one — complete with the big white stripe down the side! Sorry, Virgil, but it was a 1974 Gran Torino.

Q: What I'm interested in is not an address or anything like that, but a cartoon character.

When I was a child, Quick Draw McGraw was a popular show. He had a donkey sidekick named Baba Looey. Then there was this dog. He wasn't in every episode, but if he was fed a dog biscuit, he would jump up in the air and float back down. During all this he would be moaning "Ummmmm" —Mary Wright, Rosemount, Minn.

A: Quick Draw McGraw, featuring invaluable sidekick Baba Looey (Remember how he called him "Quecks Draw?"), also ran shorts starring Snooper & Blabber, and Augie Doggie and Doggie Daddy. But the intermittent co-star you mention was Snuffles, a bumbling bloodhound, from whom the dog biscuits elicited such behavior. You and I both can thank Shea McNutt of Turner Program Services for her diligent research in answering this question.

Heavy toonage; inside 'Sgt. Pepper'

By Dan Rice

Welcome to the Toon Age. Thursday, Oct. 1, marks the launch of Turner Broadcasting's The Cartoon Network. The basic cable channel offers cartoons 24 hours a day, drawing from the extensive Turner-owned Hanna-Barbera library.

Comedy Central debuts its new comedy-sketch series, Almost Live!, on Sunday, Sept. 27. Look for bits like "How to Be a Video Store Clerk" and "Nerdysomething."

It's been more than 20 years since Sgt. Pepper taught the band to play. On Sunday, The Disney Channel offers an exclusive look at the creation of the Beatles' eighth album in The Making of Sgt. Pepper, featuring rehearsal footage, outtakes and an interview with album producer George Martin, whose role in the project has been largely underrated.

Take to the air with The Discovery Channel in two new series. Debuting Thursday, Skybound focuses on engineering advances and leaders in aviation. Frontiers of Flight, premiering on Saturday, Oct. 3, presents a history of aviation firsts.

Man and Superwoman: While Friedrich Nietzsche provided the philosophical inspiration for Nazi fascism, it was his sister Elisabeth who attempted to breed an Aryan master race and establish a racist utopia in Paraguay in 1886. On Friday, Oct. 2, A&E's Time Machine With Jack Perkins tells her story in Forgotten Fatherland.

Joanna Going plays a medical student in the drama Going to Extremes, Tuesdays on ABC.

The dramatic story of Charles Lindbergh's historic solo flight across the Atlantic is one of many aviation milestones featured in Frontiers of Flight, a 13-part series premiering Saturday on The Discovery Channel.

'Frontiers of Flight' focuses on aviators' lives

Series draws on Smithsonian exhibits

By Suzanne Gill

Over 90 years have passed since brothers Wilbur and Orville Wright began making annual treks from their Dayton, Ohio, home to the sand dunes at Kitty Hawk, N.C., to test their experimental gliders. In the decade just past, brothers Burt and Dick Rutan respectively engineered and flew their Voyager in the first round-the-world flight without refueling.

Frontiers of Flight, debuting Saturday, Oct. 3, on The Discovery Channel, looks at the pioneers of aviation from Wright to Rutan, including Charles Lindbergh, Jimmy Doolittle, Amelia Earhart, and Chuck Yeager. Produced in cooperation with the Smithsonian's Air and Space Museum, the 13-part series looks not only at the aircraft and the science of flight, but at the lives of the aviators as well.

The premiere episode pulls together such widely separated Wright monuments and memorabilia as the family home, which now rests in Dearborn, Mich., the Wright Bicycle Co. in Dayton, an original aircraft at the Air and Space Museum in Washington, D.C., and several stone markers in Kitty Hawk. Along with a tour of the bachelors' home is a description of family life, which they shared with their father, a widowed bishop, and their sister, who did not marry until after their father's death.

A serious oversight in the press copy of the episode is the omission of any introduction or credit for the brothers' grand-nephew Wilkinson Wright, who helps explain their work habits and demonstrates the workings of the aircraft.

Future episodes feature Donald Lopez, the Air and Space Museum's own World War II ace, and portraits of aviators whose names are not household words like Wright or Lindbergh: Lts. Kelly and Macready, who flew non-stop from coast to coast in 1923; air-race hero Wiley Post; and Col. Pete Knight, an X-15 test pilot who has flown faster than anyone else in the world. Up in the sky, these are truly super men and women.

What Happened? (NBC) – NR

There's nothing like unwinding after a tough week with a top-notch disaster or catastrophe, is there? Host Ken Howard presents the problems: Why did the plane crash, the building collapse, the ship sink? Then, with the aid of computer animation, re-creations and actual footage, viewers experience the drama and the trauma of being there. Those who survive will hear experts explain how similar tragedies can be avoided in the future.

The Round Table (NBC) – ★★

According to producer Aaron Spelling, Dynasty-style glamour doesn't work with 1990s audiences, but The Round Table is about as '80s as it gets.

A group of late-twentysomethings is climbing the professional ladder in the ever-trendy Georgetown section of Washington, D.C. One's a federal prosecutor (Roxann Biggs), and her roommate (Stacy Haiduk) is a reporter who's trying to break ties with her publisher mom (Jessica Walter) by becoming an FBI agent. There's also a rookie cop (Wade Carter), a Justice Department lawyer (Mitchell Clark), a Secret Service agent (Devereaux Jones), and – for contrast – a bartender (David Gail).

After a tough day setting the world on fire, they gather at a local watering hole to let off steam.

The Round Table is as seductive as the gospel of prosperity it embodies, and every bit as hollow.

SOAP TALK

"Oklahoma girls" love their soap

By Candace Havens

Dear Candace: A group of friends of mine and I have enjoyed watching All My Children for years. Most of us work during the day, but we tape the show and get together every couple of weeks for an AMC marathon.

We would like to know about the actress who replaced Kate Collins as Natalie. We think she is beautiful. I know this is mean, but we like her better than Collins. Would you please tell us what other shows she has been on? Also, why did Collins leave? We heard she and the actor who plays Trevor didn't get along. — "The Girls" in Oklahoma.

Dear Readers: Melody Anderson stepped into the role of Natalie when Collins decided it was time to move on. Collins felt she had done everything she could with the role. Reportedly, she didn't leave because of problems with James Kiberd (Trevor).

Anderson is best known for her work in the television series Jake and the Fatman. She had a recurring role in St. Elsewhere and appeared in the cable series Phillip Marlowe and The Hitchhiker.

Anderson is happy to have the role and plans to bring a new perspective to it.

Dear Candace: I began watching General Hospital last April because a friend of mine, Frank Runyeon, joined the show as Simon Romero. From what I understand, GH had been trying to get him on the show for about three years.

Now he is off the show and I don't understand why. Did they get rid of him because of money? I met him a few years ago and have corresponded with him since and I am concerned about his welfare. He treated me so kindly and he is just incredibly nice. Can you please tell me what he is doing now and if he has another job? — Debra Sermons, Greenville, N.C.

Dear Reader: Runyeon knew that his story line was a short-term one, so he wasn't really surprised when he received the news. There is the possibility he could return to the show at a later date and he would consider that possibility. He has moved back to his home in Connecticut, but is still interested in pursuing work in L.A.

Send your comments to Candace Havens, Soap Talk, P.O. Box 961009, Fort Worth, Texas, 76161-1009.

Delta (ABC) – ★★

Two seasons ago, Delta Burke decided she wanted to star in a Designing Women spin-off with co-star Meshach Taylor. That desire led to strife, and Burke soon found herself job-hunting. Now, ABC is giving her the starring role she wanted.

Burke plays Delta Bishop, a gum-cracking housewife who leaves her redneck husband in pursuit of a dream: to be a country music queen. She moves to Nashville and gets a job serving drinks at a bar, waiting till amateur night to get her big break.

As anchor of the network's Thursday-night lineup, Delta is apt to draw curious viewers in the season's first weeks, but it's a long shot to last.

Rhythm & Blues (NBC) – ★★

Not only have both NBC and Fox come up with comedies set at Detroit radio stations, but they've managed to schedule them to air at the same time.

Rhythm & Blues features Amen's Anna Maria Horsford as a widow who inherits her husband's black-owned-and-operated Detroit station, which is inexplicably suffering a drop in listenership to its progressive-soul format. Sight unseen, she hires kinetic Bobby Soul to pump up sagging ratings. When Bobby (Roger Kabler) turns out to be a white child of the Motown era, Horsford wants him out. To Bobby's rescue come the station's sales manager (Barney Miller's Ron

Friday

The Golden Palace (CBS) – NR

Reworking a hit like The Golden Girls is either a fool's errand or a stroke of genius. So far, it looks like a lot of work.

When The Golden Girls left NBC at the end of last season, Dorothy (Bea Arthur) got married and left her mother in the hands of their two best friends. When the story picks up again in September on CBS, the remaining trio will buy a Florida hotel and somehow find the stamina to run it themselves. (Betty White's Rose Nyland will singlehandedly supervise the housekeeping department, run the dining room and smile cheerfully at the front desk.)

In addition to the guest stars who will make a constant parade through the hotel's front doors, two new characters were added to the regular cast. Each of these has been reworked or recast over the summer, causing production of the first episode to be delayed. In the present palace, Billy L. Sullivan plays a little boy who was abandoned at the hotel before the ladies bought it, Don Cheadle is a college student who helps run the place and Cheech Marin is the chef. (Thanks, but we were thinking of eating out anyway.)

Final Appeal (NBC) – NR

After announcing last May that a pair of comedies would lead off its Friday-night line-up, NBC decided to leave the laughs to ABC and CBS, rushing two reality shows into the breach.

Final Appeal is more than a spin-off of Unsolved Mysteries – it's a kind of sequel as well. Robert Stack is host to these investigations of cases in which a criminal conviction may be subject to appeal. Final Appeal attempts to resolve nothing, only to present each case from the point of view of both the prosecution and the defense – and perhaps, to reopen old wounds.

BITS AND PIECES

PBS offers 'Higher Goals' for student athletes

For young athletes who would rather be told to hit the showers than hit the books, there's PBS' upcoming special Higher Goals, which attempts to put a new spin on that attitude. The program, airing Sunday, Oct. 11, follows two high-school athletes as they dream of playing pro basketball and struggle to graduate and get into college. By showing kids the value of an education, it encourages them to apply the principles of practice and self-discipline to academics as well as sports.

Featured guest Isiah Thomas of the Detroit Pistons offers a reality check for those betting everything on a career in sports: "The chance of you making it to the pros is like walking in the jungle and not being bitten by a mosquito."

Isiah Thomas

British actress Helena Bonham Carter, known for her roles in costume dramas including Lady Jane, A Room With a View and Howard's End, will make her American television debut this season as Marina Oswald, widow of accused presidential assassin Lee Harvey Oswald. The NBC TV movie, dubbed Marina's Story, is being filmed on locations in Texas and Russia. Asked to compare her latest role to the others, Carter quipped, "It'll be good not to be in a corset for once."

"The Vietnam of my career." That's how producer Danny Jacobson (My Sister Sam, Davis Rules, Mad About You) describes his years as writer-producer on Roseanne. "It was all very new to (Roseanne Arnold). She didn't have other shows to compare it to. I think that a lot of the stuff that y'all wrote about and heard came of fear. She didn't know what she was getting into. But I lived."

Jacobson's next project is Good Advice, a midseason comedy for CBS starring Shelley Long and Treat Williams.

Fridays on NBC, Robert Stack examines possible wrongful convictions in Final Appeal.

Mercedes Ruehl won an Oscar for work in The Fisher King, debuting Saturday on Showtime.
