New group on downtown gets to work

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

The first meeting of the Northville Strategic Planning Group brought together a number of diverse interests, all with an opinion on the Downtown Development Authority's Mainstreet '92 proposal.

The group's task now is to assure that those diverse interests do not divide the community.

Mayor Chris Johnson called for the group's formation following a tumultuous public hearing which saw Mainstreet '92 criticized for its continued diversion of downtown tax revenue from taxing units like Northville Public Schools, toward funding a new Cady Street parking deck. The planning group, which includes representatives of the school system, local parents and the downtown business district, is charged with considering funding alternatives to the controversial tax capturing plan.

Members may have their work cut out for them, judging from the varied opinions expressed at Thursday night's meeting.

Mainstreet '92's tax increment financing plan currently proposes to fund the near-$7 million project by extending the original Mainstreet '78 program for another 20 years. That would continue diverting increases in downtown property tax revenue since 1979 to the DDA, to pay off the 20-year bonds.

The move would also deny Northville Public School system a $300,000 jump in its annual tax revenue from the expiration of Mainstreet '78 in 1994, though its tax revenue from downtown Northville would begin to climb slightly within several years.

Northville Superintendent Leonard Rezmierski warned that his school system's fund equity is at an

Board fills many slots on township groups

By SHARON CONDRON
Staff Writer

Township committee appointments are in, with the exception of the three people who will sit on the Board of Review.

Even though six of the seven Township Board members were polled prior to Township Supervisor Karen Baja making her recommendations Thursday, there was still some discussion about the Board of Review seats.

At the Dec. 3 board study session, Baja had asked her board colleagues to review the applicants and pick their own choices for committee seats. She used those lists as a basis for her recommendations.

Baja had suggested three new faces for the Board of Review, but Trustee Russell Fogg encouraged her to reconsider other applicants who had prior experience and knowledge of the board. His approach was backed by Trustee Barbara O'Brien. Fogg sat on the board before his election to a trustee post in November.

Without a consensus on the applicants, Baja opted to table the Board of Review appointments until the applicants could be reviewed once more.

But that didn't stop the board from making the rest of the appointments which meant eight at-large positions and 16 board liaison assignments.

Board seeks options in BFI pact

By SHARON CONDRON
Staff Writer

Township Supervisor Karen Baja offered little hope Thursday that the township could back out of a contract it holds with Browning-Ferris Industries.

The contract, which was stuck between the trash hauler and the former Township Board last spring, poses some serious questions for the newly elected seven-member board.

Baja met with attorneys last week to assess the contract. "We may already have a done deal," she told board members and a resident who brought the matter up at the Thursday's meeting. "I'm not so sure at this point that we have no legal out, but we are looking to see what we can and can't undo."

"But right now the picture isn't looking too good and our fanny may be in the slinger," she said.

Township resident Jan Mueller raised the question after the board finished its agenda and asked for public comment.

"I am concerned about that BFI contract," he told the board. "I think you have to look at it very carefully and see if the numbers are justifiable . . . As a new board you need to look at it very close and run over the figures to see just how much they are spending."

"That whole thing was an incestuous relationship from the beginning," he said.

The board echoed Mueller's concerns about the contract. Clerk Sue Hillebrand questions the validity of the contract, which is dated July 31, 1992, and is signed by the former township supervisor and a former township trustee who is now employed at BFI. Hillebrand was also concerned that there were no witnesses to attest that the contract was signed the day it was dated.

The contract leases capacity in the township's portion of the Western Township Utilities Authorities sewer line to BFI to pipe leachate — a landfill byproduct — to a treatment plant in Ypsilanti. In return for capacity in the line, BFI agreed to provide the township with 48 months of free curbside recycling, $1.3 million in capital connection fees and four annual payments of $65,000 to the township's general fund.

Other board members echoed Hillebrand thoughts. They too are bothered that the contract was negotiated and signed by Thomas Handyside, who at the time of the contract talks was both a township trustee and chairperson of the Water and Sewer Commission. Handyside has since left township office and is employed at BFI as a division manager.

Mueller and others also have their doubts about whether the portion of the sewer line that BFI is entitled to tap into under this contract was ever part of the original blueprint for the WTUA sewer line. Critics like Mueller argue that the WTUA sewer line was altered only to serve BFI.

Baja said she'll continue to work with the attorneys to try to find a legal loophole.

"We are going to keep looking into it," she said.

Strategic Plan review continues

By MICHELLE KAISER
Staff Writer

Dolly McMaster is a firm believer in the adage, "You learn from past experiences."

The assistant superintendent for instructional services for Northville Public Schools said last year's volunteer team, which worked on the school's strategic plan, was a little gung-ho when it established eight strategies and 75 action plans. Realistically, only 17 of the plans could be implemented.

"We about fried everybody's mind with all that work," McMaster said. "But you know they say learning is a developmental process."

For the 1992-93 school year, almost 100 volunteers will dedicate their time to establishing action plans for three strategies. They are:

- 1. Essential learning outcomes, performance standards and assessment.
- 2. System design for challenging all students.
- 3. Structure organization along principles of total quality.

On Dec. 3 the volunteers — consisting of parents, senior citizens, people from the community without children, teachers, administrators, business people, School Board members and high school students — met at the high school for the first of many meetings in an effort to improve their school district. McMaster served as internal facilitator, helping to train the volunteers.

Before the night was over, volunteers had split into three action planning committees. Each committee will be responsible for developing eight to 15 action plans.

"The action plans basically breathe life into the strategies," McMaster said. "If we achieve our strategies, then we're basically meeting the mission of the school district."

The district's mission statement is "to ensure all students demonstrate the skills, knowledge and attitudes to achieve personal success and to become responsible citizens through a partnership of staff and community in a caring, challenging environment."

The district adopted the mission statement in 1988 when it started developing a long-range plan. In 1990, Public Act 25 was adopted by the state Legislature, requiring school districts to, among other things, establish goals as well as a mission statement of their intent.

"We had established a strategy plan before P.A. 25 was enacted," McMaster said. "After implementing our own district improvement plan, the function of both meshed together."

"Everybody has room for improvement. In fact, we just aligned our math curriculum with P.A. 25's core curriculum. We found we had some holes that needed plugging."

Specifically, the district realized it was concentrating on statistics and probability problems more than it should in the elementaries and beefed up its pre-algebra lessons as suggested by P.A. 25. At the high school, on the other hand, it was vice versa, as Northville's curriculum was overdoing it on the algebra lessons and not placing enough importance on statistics and probability.

McMaster noted, however, that Northville is doing more than P.A. 25 requires in many instances.

The volunteers on the action planning committees will have until April to come up with suggestions before sharing them with the strategic planning team, a core group of 25 members. After all ideas are exchanged, the board of education will review the plans at a study session. The planning team is expected to bring the entire plan to the Board of Education at its April 19 meeting. Whatever plans are adopted at the meeting will be assigned by the superintendent to central office administrators to oversee implementation.

"If schools are going to be customer-driven — we serve the customer; our client is the student — then what kind of system are we going to put in place to ensure customer satisfaction?" McMaster asked. "This is a new feel for education."

McMaster said she has seen nothing but positive things come out of the strategic planning sessions since the district began work on them several years ago.

"A lot of people have become much more aware of how the schools function, how they're financed, about accreditation, contracts and evaluation," she said.

As far as reaching the day when the school district meets all of its goals, McMaster said it will never happen.

"If you believe that learning is a life-long process — we believe every person has an unlimited potential for learning — if we really do believe that, then we know that knowledge is constantly changing and technology is constantly changing," she said. "There's always room to grow, to change and improve."

Teller at track intercepts counterfeit $50 bills

A Northville Downs teller noticed several counterfeit $50 bills Nov. 21, which led to the interception of eight such bills.

The teller showed the suspect bills to a city police officer stationed at the track that night. The bills all had the same serial number and lacked the texture of normal money.

Police tracked them to a 46-year-old Pontiac man who said he had won them the day before at the Ladbroke DRC racetrack. The bills were turned over to the Secret Service. If the Secret Service declines to investigate, the case will be turned back over to the city.

POSSIBLE POLICE IMPOSTER: Township police are investigating an incident of a person who may have posed as a police officer.

On Dec. 9, the department received a call from a woman who said her daughter had called her from Meijer at Haggerty and Eight Mile, saying she was scared because she had been stopped by a police vehicle at Six Mile and I-275. The 23-year-old woman told her mother she was being arrested and dropped the telephone.

The mother, fearing abduction, called several police departments, all of which said they had had no contact with the daughter.

Township police then checked the Meijer parking lot before finding the woman with her vehicle on northbound I-275. The woman thinks the person who stopped her, took her to Meijer and then back to her car may have been an imposter.

TWO CITED FOR DRUG PARAPHERNALIA: A 19-year-old man and his 17-year-old passenger were cited Dec. 9 for possession of narcotics paraphernalia.

A township officer was northbound on Hines Drive, south of Seven Mile, when he observed a 1978 Ford, also northbound, with a loud muffler. He made the traffic stop and asked for the driver's registration.

Both the driver and passenger began looking under the seat for the registration when the officer explained, due to safety reasons, both would need to exit the car and sit in the patrol unit while the officer looked under the seat for the registration. While doing so, the officer smelled marijuana and, upon further investigation, observed what appeared to be seeds and stems of marijuana on the floor. He then found a shoe box, which reportedly contained a 6-inch plastic pot pipe and a roach clip with a burned end.

BUSINESS BROKEN INTO: Town & Country Cyclery at 148 N. Center was broken into sometime between 1-3:30 a.m. Dec. 10.

A city police officer noticed the business' glass rear door broken and notified the owner, who was uncertain whether anything had been stolen.

SUSPENDED LICENSE ARREST: City police charged a 38-year-old Novi man with driving on a suspended license Dec. 7, after stopping him for expired plates.

The man's license was suspended for failing to comply with three court judgments and failure to appear in court on an improper license display charge. He was arrested, a new court date was set and he was released after posting a $100 cash bond.

PERSON INJURED ON BUS: A 62-year-old Shelby Township woman was injured Dec. 9 when she fell off the seat of a bus while she was turning.

The incident occurred on Seven Mile. The subject was transported to St. Mary Hospital.

WATER VALVE OPENED: Township police assisted fire department officials in closing a water valve on Sheldon Dec. 8. The valve was opened by an unknown person.

NO INJURIES IN COLLISION: No injuries were reported following a two-car accident Dec. 8 at Haggerty and Eight Mile roads.

A 26-year-old Detroit woman was ticketed for failing to yield when she made a left turn onto Haggerty in front of a car driven by a 29-year-old man.

Citizens with information about the above incidents are urged to call Northville City Police at 349-1234 or Northville Township Police at 349-9400.

Fire drills at home can help survive a tragedy

By STEPHEN OTT
and MICHAEL ASHER
Special Writers

Jack stood in the second-floor hallway while Betsy, his wife, watched from their bedroom. The children, Paula and Bill, lay on their beds pretending to sleep. When all was ready, Jack hit the test button on the hallway smoke detector, sounding the alarm.

Jack and Betsy's family was starting a home fire drill. A good deal of planning had led up to this moment. In the week before Betsy had replaced the batteries in all of the family's smoke detectors. With the children they had walked through the house, looking at alternative escape routes, including two separate routes from each bedroom. They had discussed things the children had learned at school, such as the need to crawl low in smoke and to feel doors before opening them to determine if there was fire on the other side. They had also arranged for a place to meet outside the house in the event of a fire. They felt ready, but they didn't know for sure until they tested their plan.

According to the National Fire Protection Association, more than 4,000 people die in home fires each year. Tens of thousands more are hurt.

The key to surviving a fire in your home is early warning, such as a smoke detector provides, and getting out, quickly. In a fire, however, it may not be easy to get out. Thick smoke may make it impossible to see or breathe, and exits may be blocked by the fire. Crawling low to the floor improves visibility, and it will be cooler, and the air clearer, near the floor. Planning alternate escape routes means there will be a second choice, if your first choice is blocked.

Some people overestimate the amount of time they have to escape, and waste precious seconds trying to save pets and belongings. Do not forget: If there is a fire in your house you must get out quickly. Having a place to meet arranged in advance helps to account for all members of the family. This way, firefighters can more quickly find out if there are still people trapped inside the house.

When the smoke detector's alarm sounded Paula and Bill both rolled out of their beds and crawled on their hands and knees toward their bedroom doors. Paula reached up and felt the door handle with the back of her hand. It was cool to the touch and so she opened the door, slowly, to check for smoke. Her father was standing outside the door and told her to pretend there was light smoke in the hallway. Paula stayed on her hands and knees, crawling down the hallway, keeping one hand in contact with the wall to feel her way. When she came to the stairs she slid down in a sitting position, and ran out the front door of the house.

Meanwhile, as Bill felt the door to his room was hot. This required Betsy to look for the second way out of the bedroom. As arranged with his parents, Bill crawled over to the bedroom window, unlatched the lock and raised the sash. Bill had to practice opening the window with his eyes shut, and knew just what to do. His bedroom was on the second floor, but the window opened onto the roof of a porch, giving him a way out. As he crawled through the window his father watched from outside. Jack told Bill to go back inside and exit down the stairs.

As the children practiced their escape routes under Jack's watchful eye, Betsy returned to the master bedroom, opened the window, and practiced lowering the chain-link escape ladder stored under the bed. She noted how the hooks at the top of the ladder fit over the window-sill, with the ladder reaching a point about a foot off the ground. For this drill Betsy did not actually climb down the ladder, but was able to make sure the ladder would work if needed.

When everyone was out they met in the neighbor's driveway, as arranged. If this had been a real fire, they would have called the fire department from the neighbor's house. The family talked over what had worked, and what they might need to change in their escape plan. They agreed that, if ever the real thing should occur, they were better prepared to get out alive.

all-time low of 1.3 percent, equal to two days worth of operating funds. The school board's goal is to be at or over 5 percent, he noted.

"We're on a razor's edge right now," he said.

Given that and more potential threats to school funding from Lansing, Rezmierski said he doubted the system could handle an additional burden like Mainstreet '92.

"Could we absorb a known loss right now? I don't think we could," he said.

School officials may disagree, but Johnson said he believed any Cady Street parking deck project will have to incorporate some measure of tax capturing. He asked Rezmierski whether the schools would agree to a proposal by DDA member Greg Presley to split the funding among tax capturing, a special assessment on downtown businesses and a .6-mill tax levy on the entire city.

Rezmierski said the schools had not yet analyzed the proposal.

Advocates for Quality Education member Joan Wadsworth suggested that the strategic planning group broaden its focus to review school and library funding needs, since the community may soon face more millage requests from both programs as well as a funding request from the DDA. Wadsworth also sits on a committee that is considering setting up a district library for Northville.

"It seems like all three groups are going to be coming to the community with their hands out," she said.

School Board member Jean Hansen agreed, saying, "In a sense, we're all competing for the same limited tax dollar, and it's got to be more of a cooperative effort so we all don't get pitted against each other."

But Johnson, while recognizing that the strategic planning group would have to keep the school system and library in mind, was wary of making their concerns a formal topic for the group to review.

"Before we deal with all the problems of the world," he said, "I think we should look at the one now before us."

Wadsworth also called for an in-depth review of the DDA proposal itself, including the reasons that the deck is planned to include 480 spaces. "Why this deck, why now?" she asked. "Is it possible to go back to the drawing board a little?"

Local business owner Charles Lapham warned that the deck is needed now because the current Cady Street parking structure is in danger of falling down. Its destruction could drag down nearby businesses, he warned, including his own.

"If that deck collapsed tomorrow, it would take years to build a new one and I don't know what the survival rate would be (among businesses) downtown," he said.

Our Opinion

Open talk about issues serves everyone best

With an entirely new Township Board just taken office, we'd hate to see anything get off on the wrong foot. And although certainly no permanent harm came from the school district's recent refusal to address the new board on the DARE program, the schools' response seems disappointing.

Drug Abuse Resistance Education is a cooperative program between schools and police, used across the state, to encourage students not to abuse substances and to resist pressure to do so. Fresh from their induction, the new Township Board members heard a push for the DARE program from a township resident who works as a DARE officer in Ann Arbor. Their own chief of police backed up the presentation, encouraging the township to pursue DARE with school officials.

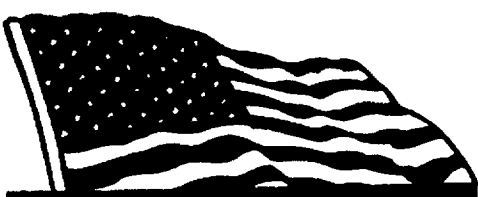

That led the board to invite someone from the school district to attend a board meeting and discuss the issue with them. Particularly after the chief's comments, it would almost have been remiss of the board not to do so.

But the schools declined, suggesting instead a one-on-one session between Township Supervisor Karen Baja and Assistant Superintendent Dolly McMaster. That meeting was held last Wednesday, and may well have resolved the issue as far as the Township Board is concerned. But the shift in approaches seems disturbing.

To back up a bit, the school district sees DARE as a dead issue. It has considered the program through its own channels and found no real need to implement it; the controversial Michigan Model for health education used in Northville includes lessons about drug abuse. DARE, according to the schools, would only take time away from other valuable lessons while duplicating curriculum already in place.

That may or may not be the case; obviously, we're not experts in such matters. What does seem clear to us, though, is that one local public body asked for a discussion with a representative of another — and got turned down for no good reason.

Yes, the agreement to meet one-on-one sort of met the township half way. But we can't understand why the schools couldn't simply honor the township's request.

The stated reason was that the School Board did not want a representative of the district put into the position of defending school curriculum. Well, from our perspective, defending school curriculum is not an inappropriate thing for school officials/employees to do — particularly when the ones with the questions are also public officials, new in their jobs, who have some understandable concerns.

Obviously curriculum is the concern of the school district. That, by and large, is what it's there for. We are in no way suggesting the schools give up that vital authority, or that they must answer to other governments for decisions they make.

The DARE question is hardly a typical curriculum matter, though. It is very much a concern of the local governments in places where it's used; police staff the program.

It's worth remembering, too, that when the school district released the startling survey results on drug and alcohol use earlier this year, consensus said that this problem belonged to the community — not only to the school district. Well, here the Township Board asks about a possible approach, and is essentially told by the schools, "We'll handle it."

School representatives are more than willing — anxious, even — to attend meetings and answer questions about topics like millage votes or the district's strategic plan. It seems like the same approach should apply when the topic is drug education.

Museum quickly taking shape

My brow is furrowed, and I'm a little bit parched from breathing dust because I've just spent three hours cutting boards on a scroll-saw. But I've got an ear-to-ear grin, too.

That's because the Motorsports Museum and Hall of Fame is quickly taking shape. In the past two months new volunteers have been crawling out of the woodwork to join SPARK, the working group that supports the museum. I'm the secretary for the group, and it seems like I've been updating our phone list every two weeks.

As I wander around what was once an empty 20,000-square-foot cavity at the Novi Expo Center, and see what our group has accomplished with almost no money, the words keep ringing in my ears: "Many hands make light work."

Mike Reilly of Novi has been a godsend. He could show Bob Vila a thing or two about hanging drywall, and has been supervising work crews to get the various walls in place. Bob Chubb — whose wife, Rosie, is a mail carrier in the neighborhood of Grand River and Meadowbrook — has had his hands in the drywall hanging too.

Rosie herself has been pitching for door-prize donations, along with Jean Petrie and Elaine Kaiser, who come from Detroit and Westland respectively, to join us. Their family owns Jet-Way, a Wayne-based company that owned and sponsored various Winston Cup stock car teams in the 1960s and 70s.

On lead scroll-saw is Jim Klima, a Novi tool maker and ex-racer. He's joined by Arnie Ahrens, another Novi neighbor, and yours truly, Kevin Pranger, who visits us occasionally from Sterling Heights, can't always be present because of job-related travel, but he's been nice enough to leave us his saw. When we're done, we'll have carved out the names of all 37 inductees to the Hall of Fame.

Dave Poulson, who works at McDonald Ford in Northville, Bob Sanzi, another long-distance traveler from Sterling Heights, and Tom Duncan of Novi pitch in anywhere they're needed. Tom's son Jim has been our mole among the Twelve Oaks merchants.

Not only that, but now that the bricks and mortar are starting to fall into place, big corporations are starting to take notice. This illustrates the more tangible meaning of the line from Field of Dreams, "If you build it, they will come." Ford Motor Co. just handed us a check for $25,000 and said, "Build it."

Local firms are putting a stake in the museum, too. In addition to the scores of merchants who have donated door prizes, Guardian Industries donated huge sheets of tempered glass that will make our striking lobby. Harmon Glass contributed the installation service.

JCK & Associates loaned us architect Al Hall, who has put together designs and specifications for the Museum. Bob Bedzyk of Bedzyk Brothers Inc. general contractors in Livonia provided materials, labor and supervision.

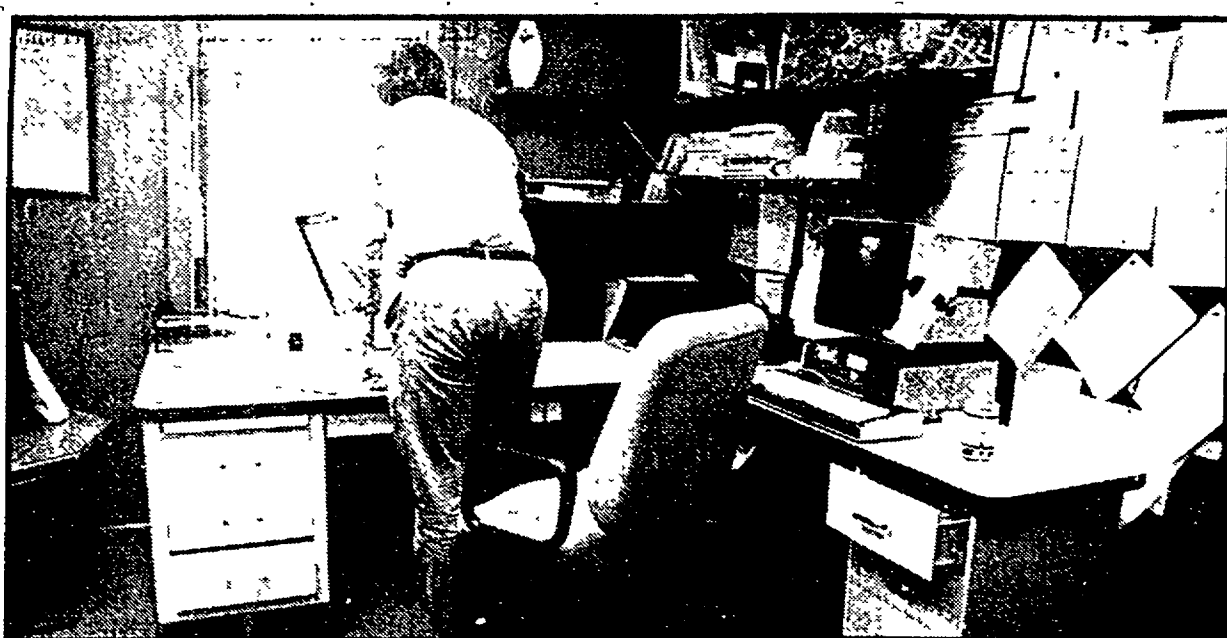

Don Fee of Exhibit Works in Livonia is again donating his services to make the place look fancy for our Grand Opening party, car show and benefit auction on Jan. 9. He performed the same service for our January event last year, and when the Museum officially opens to the public on Tuesday, Jan. 12. The displays and exhibits will be of his design as well.

So many companies have stepped up to help us — heating contractors, electrical contractors, retailers of building materials — that they'd probably fill this page if I listed them.

Suffice it to say that many hands make light work.

The 'secret' about Santa

One of the world's better Santa Clauses came out of retirement last week to make an appearance at a Cub Scout meeting.

Okay, that's somewhat immodest, and I'm willing to admit I may not be one of the world's better Santa Clauses. But I'm not bad either.

What happened is that former Record photographer and current graphics guru Chris Boyd waited for the right moment to ask a favor.

I was in one of those high-energy moods when I attack any and every project put in front of me . . . one of those moods when I can hardly wait to finish one project so I can tackle the next.

"I need a favor," said Boyd, walking into my office.

"No problem, Chris," I replied. "You name it; it's done."

"This is a big favor," he said.

"Name it, mi amigo," said I.

And that's when he told me he needed somebody to play Santa at his son's Cub Scout meeting.

He didn't need to add anything else. But he clinched the deal by saying, "Of course, you're going to need a pillow; you're too thin to be Santa without a pillow."

The plan was that I was to show up at six-fifty — 10 minutes before the pack meeting started. Chris would supply the pillow and the Santa costume; all I had to do was get dressed, wait for my cue (when the Cubbies sang "Here Comes Santa Claus"), walk in and hand out the presents.

"That'll be about seven-fifteen. By seven-thirty you'll be done," said Chris.

I arrived early and by seven o'clock was fully dressed in full Santa regalia and ready to take the stage.

Anyone who has ever played Santa knows that the suits are hot and the beards are itchy. I was experiencing those feelings when Chris knocked on the door at seven-fifteen.

"Thank goodness; it's time," I thought.

"The meeting hasn't started yet," said Chris.

I spent another 30 minutes in the green room, waiting for my cue and wondering how many people had worn the Santa beard before it got to me, but eventually the time arrived.

"Merry Christmas, boys and girls," I ho-ho-hoed as I strode into the room. "I just flew in from the North Pole . . . and, boy, are my arms tired."

The whole thing came off pretty well. Sure, some of the larger Cubbies were a little skeptical about whether I was the real Santa. And a couple even told me that they could see the Scotch tape I had used to stick the beard to my face.

But the best part came after I had finished the gig and changed back into my civvies.

As I was walking toward the parking lot, I passed a Cub and his mother headed in the same direction.

"Excuse me, but was there a Cub Scout meeting here tonight?" I asked.

"Yes," they confirmed.

"And by any chance was Santa Claus at your meeting?"

"Yes," again.

"I thought so," I replied. "I thought I saw his sleigh up in the sky as I was driving in."

The mom kind of chuckled, but the Cubbie was rather skeptical.

"Hey, mister," he said quietly. "I know the secret about Santa Claus."

Tailoring wine gifts to a recipient's taste can be fun, even if you believe you don't know much about wine. Relax, all you need to know is how much you wish to spend. In general, wine enthusiasts are easily pleased.

Wine lovers enjoy reading about wine almost as much as they like drinking it. The latest vintage of wine books released for the holidays is above average.

Three books by the British writer Hugh Johnson, published by Simon & Schuster, top the list. Vintage: The Story of Wine (paperback $25) is an outgrowth of the basic work Johnson did for the PBS masterpiece of the same name. Within the nearly 500 pages with 200 four-color photographs, Johnson traces the history of wine from biblical times to the present. The reader is left with a great appreciation of the importance of wine on civilization.

In The Vintner's Art (hardcover $40), Johnson teams with Australian vintner/writer James Halliday to explain how technology has, in the last two decades, revolutionized the art of wine-making. In clear and understandable language, but with accurate detail, the authors explain how great wines are made.

Every wine enthusiast who has fantasized about making wine and owning a winery will enjoy reading about the technological advances available in the vineyard and winery enhancing the winemaker's skills.

Over the years, Hugh Johnson's Pocket Encyclopedia of Wine ($11.99) have sold more than three million copies. The 1993 edition offers a brief but complete look at wine-producing countries, vintages, grape varieties, wine types and basic food complements. The book's size makes it a perfect stocking stuffer.

Cheese is one of wine's favorite matches and many area wine merchants stock a dazzling array. The Simon and Schuster Pocket Guide to Cheese by Sandy Carr ($13) is, as the subtitle suggests, a complete guide to the cheeses of the world. It includes, in addition to interesting facts about the world's stock of cheeses, hints on buying, storing and serving them. The tips on harmonizing wines and cheese cover a brief half page and is the book's drawback for a wine connoisseur.

In every wine vintage, some bottlings just don't make it. Some wine books are the same. Making Sense of California Wine by Matt Kramer (Morrow, $20) falls short of his 1990 work Making Sense of Burgundy. Kramer, a Portland, Ore. resident, must not have spent much time in California wine country. His book, although offering a fresh perspective from the appellation point of view, omits wineries of significance.

Kramer also needs to study California geography and learn the correct spelling of winery names. We don't agree with its advance billing as the must-read wine book of the year.

To add to the wine enthusiasts liquid assets, a fine bottle of champagne or sparkling wine will always be welcome. Champagne prices have come down over last year, but they still bear a pricey tag. If money's no object, the 1985 Champagne Taittinger Comtes de Champagne Blanc de Blancs ($90-95) is an exceptional chardonnay pour produced exclusively from 100

A Dickens Christmas treat

Plum pudding brings home holiday flavor

By CHARLES BRITTON
Copley News Service

If you've been shopping in downtown Northville this season, you know all about the Dickens Christmas atmosphere the merchants have worked hard to portray.

Now you can bring a little more of that atmosphere into your home with authentic British plum puddings. Few practitioners of plum pudding creation exist in this country, but they are in demand wherever they are found.

About this time of year, the heady perfume of spices hangs heavy around the old Robinson School in Manhattan Beach, Calif.

"I drive them crazy with this aroma," Pat Garity said about her neighbors around the former cafeteria kitchen.

She lifted a massive lid to reveal the source of the seductive smell: perhaps three dozen plum puddings, steaming away in what looked to be a stainless steel laundry sink. These were part of the 7,000 or so that she makes during pudding season from September to December.

A few of the puddings get no farther than the offices next door, for Garity often gives a taste to those who share the building. But most of them will end up on holiday tables all over the country.

Plum puddings were hardly a part of the Garity Christmas tradition — not at first.

"I read about them in Dickens as a child, and I always wondered what they were," she said. "One year I came across a recipe, and I made one. And it was the worst thing I ever tasted."

The truth, as Garity discovered, is that plum pudding can be pretty awful. Some recipes call for the bitter addition of stout, and the flavor of the finished product can have a horrid resemblance to cough syrup. But, she felt, there must be some reason for eating them.

The next year she found another recipe and tried again. The result was the same. But Garity was nothing if not persistent, a trait that stood her in good stead when she went into business.

"I kept trying for seven years," she said, "and on the eighth year — jackpot."

This recipe was a success. Garity will only say that she found it in a well-known source and that she has since modified it into her commercial formula, which remains secret.

As dreadful as plum puddings can be, good examples can delight — similar in many ways to mince-pie filling or a fine fruitcake. Even to people who have never before tasted the dish, it says "Christmas" like little else.

Garity's discovery of a tasty plum pudding came some 15 years ago, and at first she scarcely suspected that it would turn into a business that has her tending restaurant-size steamers more than three months out of every year. She started out making plum puddings for friends on her holiday gift list.

Garity can start the plum pudding season in September because the dish not only keeps well, it positively needs time to age.

"My plum pudding will keep indefinitely," she said. "I think they're best after being stored at room temperature for several weeks."

"After Christmas, they should be kept in the fridge. Every year I hear about people finding one in the back of the refrigerator, where it has been for years. And it's still good."

Culinary lore tells of cooks who traditionally make plum puddings only every other year, even once in five years, carrying over a batch from one Christmas to the next.

Two factors contribute to the self-preserving qualities of the plum pudding: First of all, the dish is steamed far longer than the novice thinks probable, four hours or so for a typical size, all day long for a really big example. Then the recipe calls for suet, beef fat, preferably from around the kidney, perhaps the most characteristic ingredient of British cookery.

Suet is noted for keeping extremely well. The long steaming, Garity says, causes the gluten in the flour to combine with the suet in a way that keeps longer still.

Puddings once were wrapped in clean dish towels and simply dropped into boiling water. Nowadays, the mixture goes into a mold of some kind — the traditional British "pudding basin" looks like a glazed version of a flower pot — and then either steamed above the boiling water or half immersed in the water, like a custard.

Once cool, the pudding can be wrapped in a brandy- or rum-soaked cheesecloth, the alcohol adding another measure of preservative effect. Then the dish can be doused with more brandy or rum while awaiting the big day. The pudding traditionally has brandy or rum poured over it and is set alight.

The traditional accompaniment is hard sauce, butter beaten with powdered sugar and, again, more brandy or rum.

Where are the plums in plum pudding? They're in the form of dried and candied fruit. Originally, plums in this sense referred to dried plums, what we today call prunes.

By the 17th century, the word plum had been extended to cover dried and candied fruit in general, the latter being called "sugarplums."

Up until the introduction of canning in the 19th century, drying and candying were among the few methods by which fruit could be preserved so that it could be enjoyed later. Hence the prevalence of such ingredients in older recipes.

Although Garity's plum pudding formula remains a trade secret, we have another recipe that makes a result we can vouch for. Make it soon, and it will be ready to provide the grand finale for your Christmas Dinner. This recipe is attributed to the cook for George V of England.

The recipe seems somewhat darker in taste than Garity's, but it has been a success when served at the end of a holiday dinner. It appeared in a 1976 book by Craig Claiborne, former food editor of The New York Times, credited to Mrs. Sam Emison of Houston.

Perhaps the hardest aspect of this recipe is figuring out how to cook it. The formula makes about 18 cups of batter, enough for three 6-cup molds.

For steaming the pudding, a large turkey roaster works well. Place a rack on the bottom; the molds should not rest on the floor of the pan. You can steam the pudding in batches if you have to. The recipes call for the puddings to be steamed eight hours. Unless you use a very large mold — say, 10 cups or so — this seems unreasonable. I steamed 6-cup molds for six hours and called it a day.

The puddings need little attention during the steaming, but you have to monitor the progress to replenish the water as necessary. The pan should never come near boiling dry.

Experimenting can turn oldies into goodies good amount of reading done. For once Tom had more than one day to get through his New York Times. Even I finished the magazine section. Usually I just get to the food article.

And there was a wonderful holiday book guide that critiqued the best new books coming available. Several of the cook books looked great. Not really what I need but will probably end up with. Grand Haven is certainly a sleepy town this time of year. After two nights we were ready to head back to this side of the state. Too much relaxation is sometimes worse than too little.

I will have to say that we had a great meal at the Kirby Bar and Grill, the rough, old brick walls and a big clippy, comfortable bar in the middle. The menu was very adventuresome. Not trendy, just good solid food.

We chose the duck egg rolls and artichokes in phyllo as starters. Both were surprisingly good, especially the duck. Personally, duck is a favorite. Egg rolls aren't. They were very tasty. Served with a spicy dipping sauce and pineapple salsa as accompaniments an "okdy" became a "goody". Just a little bit different.

Fruit sauces, purees and coulis are becoming popular. We have started to use fresh fruit in our stir-fries. It really lightens up the dish and adds another dimension. Whenever I design plates, or food, I must consider much more than just taste. Texture, nutritional content, varying flavors and ingredients all play a major role.

Take for instance the egg rolls. Duck is definitely not something that you see prepared this way on a regular basis. That makes it interesting right off the bat. Then add crispy oriental style vegetables, ginger, garlic and a dash of red pepper flakes for a melding of spices and the crunchiness won't skin gives a snappy change of feel in the mouth from the softer vegetables.

Imagine now the pineapple salsa, with a touch of cilantro, drizzled over the steamy hot roll that you've just cut open. Ummmm . . . Sounds good doesn't it? Take my word, it was. I'll have to try a similar version sometime soon.

Let's get back to the use of fruit and vegetable purees. Citrus fruits, kiwis, mangos, apples, bananas, pineapples and root vegetables are at their peak right now. Citrus is one of my choices because of its refreshing tingle. Heated with a bit of kiwi puree and poured over a nice piece of fish the combo can't be matched. And look mom, there is no fat.

Sliced, sauteed apples are a real treat with meats, chops and poultry. Mangos and papayas are outstanding as a puree or diced and mixed with fresh herbs.

Try a dash of rice or raspberry vinegar to spark up the herbs. Serve tossed in a salad or as a side dish with just about anything. Don't let the prices of the fruit scare you away. A little bit goes far and will hold refrigerated for several days. Try something new. Experimenting adds spice to a cook's life.

1 tablespoon ground allspice
4 teaspoons ground ginger
¼ teaspoon grated nutmeg
½ pound (2 cups) flour
1 pound seedless raisins
4 ounces mixed candied fruit, cut up (see note)
1 pound currants
1 pound golden raisins (sultanas)
6 ounces sliced, blanched almonds
1 pound dry bread crumbs, preferably fresh made

1 pound ground suet (see note)
1 pound brown sugar
1 pound tart apples, cored and finely cubed (about 1½ pounds whole) grated zest of 1 lemon
¼ cup dark rum (or bourbon, though it's not traditional)
6 to 8 eggs (1½ cups), well beaten
Rum, brandy or bourbon for flaming
Hard sauce (recipe follows)

Yields 10 to 12 servings.

In mixing bowl, combine salt, baking powder, allspice, ginger, nutmeg and flour. Sift 7 times, or until spices are evenly distributed. Drop raisins into flour mixture. Mix and toss until all raisins are coated. Add candied fruit, again mix and toss until all fruit is coated.

In large bowl or soup kettle of about 4-gallon capacity, place currants, sultanas, almonds bread crumbs, suet, brown sugar, cubed apples, lemon zest and flour mixture. Using your hands, mix thoroughly, reaching all the way to the bottom. Add rum and again mix thoroughly; let stand for several hours or overnight.

When ready to cook puddings, mix in eggs, stirring to bottom to assure an even distribution. Butter molds you are going to use and fill with batter. It doesn't really matter that one isn't full all the way, but most molds should be rounded a bit over top because mixture will shrink as it cooks.

Cover each mold tightly with a double layer of foil. Tie foil into place with a length of string around rim of mold. Place each mold on a rack or trivet in the implement you have chosen for steaming. Add an inch or two of water. Start cooking with high heat, lowering it to a gentle simmer as the steam begins to escape. Steam, covered, 6 to 8 hours, depending on the size of the molds, replenishing water as needed. After steaming, set aside at room temperature for several hours. Remove from molds.

If you like, you can wrap puddings in rinsed cheesecloth that has been thoroughly moistened with brandy. Wrap well in foil. Although puddings should keep at room temperature, you can refrigerate them. For longer storage, freeze.

To serve, steam each pudding again for about two hours. Turn onto serving plate, decorate with holly, if available. Pour over about 4 tablespoons of rum, brandy or bourbon. (High-proof liquor works best for this.) Standing well back, set alight and present to guests.

Note on candied fruit: Many people who profess to dislike fruitcake actually can't stand citron, a citrus peel included in prepared fruit mixtures. You can make your own mixture by combining chopped candied cherries, pineapple and orange peels in roughly equal quantities.

Note on suet: Suet may be available on meat counters at this time of year. Otherwise, you can ask the butcher for it.

HARD SAUCE

¾ pound (2 sticks, 1 cup) butter, softened
1 pound (4 cups sifted) powdered sugar
1½ tablespoons dark rum
2¼ tablespoons brandy
1 teaspoon vanilla

Yields 4 cups, or 16 servings

Beat butter while gradually adding sugar. Beat until fluffy. Gradually beat in rum, brandy and vanilla.

Store, well sealed, in refrigerator. Hard Sauce keeps indefinitely and can be used on other desserts.

To serve, bring to room temperature. Pass in bowl for each guest to add to taste.

percent grand cru vineyards. This cuvee rested on the yeast for a full seven years before being recently disgorged.

Some champagnes come gift packaged with one or two invariably overpriced wine glasses. This may be an attractive gift, but an unwise purchase.

Tasting very similar to the real bubbly from Champagne is Domaine Chandon's California bottling Etoile ($22.50). Essentially, it comes with its own gift bagged 750-ml. bottle inspired by the antique Saran Nature bottle from the French parent company Moet et Chandon and decorated by hand in 22kt gold, silk screened letters.

California's ultra-premium sparkling wine producer Schramsberg has released a stellar bubbly named J. Schram ($50). It is a limited production wine with the first release from the 1987 vintage about 2,000 six-bottle cases. This reasonably rare bottling also comes handsomely packaged with an exquisite fabric gift bag. The bubbly contents represent the 25-year sum of acquired knowledge at Schramsberg and are described in one word, excellent.

Mustangs whip Livonia Churchill 77-64 at home

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

It didn't take long for Northville High School to assert itself in the WLAA as the host Mustangs easily defeated Livonia Churchill 77-64 Tuesday night.

Mike Maschek and John Farrar combined for 43 points to lead the way over the Western Division rival. Despite a few too many turnovers on the part of his Mustangs, coach Larry Taylor was happy with the team's opening-night effort.

"For the first game we did really well," the first-year coach said. "Offensively we did well, but our defense needs a little work."

Taylor added that it was nice to get his first varsity victory as well.

"You like to get it as quick as possible," he said.

NHS had a tremendous size advantage in the game. With the 6-foot-8 Maschek and 6-foot-7 Kieran Williams in the starting lineup, the Chargers simply couldn't match up. Churchill, in fact, didn't have a player taller than 6-foot-2.

Maschek used his height for an excellent first quarter. The senior scored eight points from the low post on a variety of jump shots and rebound opportunities.

Northville led 25-15 after one period. Farrar had five in the quarter and Marc Chaisson added four.

"For the first game we did really well. Offensively we did well, but our defense needs a little work."

LARRY TAYLOR
Northville Basketball Coach

The Chargers used a half-court press to rally in the second. The Mustangs made several turnovers caused by the pressure as Churchill cut the lead to seven by halftime, 38-31.

Northville turned the tables in the third.

"We came back out and pressed full-court," Taylor said. "I wanted them to get a little more intense. We became tentative with that 10 point lead in the second quarter."

Maschek and Farrar played inside-outside in the quarter. Point guard Todd Rabourn threw the ball over top Livonia's defense to Maschek in the post. Maschek responded with eight more points.

When the forward was double-teamed, he found Farrar open on the outside. The junior forward had nine in the period.

The Mustangs had the game on ice by the end of the quarter, 59-45.

"I felt comfortable that if we didn't let up defensively we could control the game," Taylor said.

Churchill scored 19 points in the final frame, but never got closer than seven points. Northville made 10 free throws in the quarter to help keep the game out of reach.

Charity tosses were vital in the game. Northville made 24 of 30 attempts.

Besides Maschek and Farrar, the Mustangs got some other good efforts. Senior Rick Biermann scored 12 off the bench will Rabourn added four and a number of assists.

"It was a good first game," Taylor said.

The team did commit 23 turnovers.

"We will turn the ball over in our style of play," Taylor said.

The coach added he would like to get that number down to 10-15 per game.

The Mustangs are off this week. They get back into action next week at the Novi Christmas tournament.

Mike Maschek scored 22 points to lead the Mustangs.

HOROSCOPE

By C.C. Clark

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21)

If you think someone is taking advantage of you, speak up about it. Keep control and the situation will change.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19)

You may receive unfavorable news, but things might actually turn in your favor. Take your time making important decisions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18)

This is a good time to start learning a new skill or profession. Obstacles may soon be removed and you will see things in a new light.

PISCES (Feb. 19 - March 20)

Good news is on the way for you. Relationships will get better. Be prepared to accept another person's ideas.

ARIES (March 21 - April 19)

You shouldn't worry so much about appearances. It is possible you could receive a message concerning a love relationship.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20)

You may see an old friend, and it will make your day. An unexpected windfall may help you out of some financial troubles.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20)

Be sure of what you are doing before making any major changes in your lifestyle. There could be a surprise on the way.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22)

Be wary of sharing secrets with those you don't know well. You will need a great deal of strength and an open mind to get through coming events.

LEO (July 23 - Aug. 22)

An unexpected event may change the way you think about certain situations. You may be mistaken about someone's attitude.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22)

You desire the best of all worlds, but you are not willing to make the necessary sacrifices to get what you want.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22)

You need to get out of your present situation and relax for a while. An argument with a loved one is futile. Counseling may be needed.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21)

Rely on your own intellect and retain your crucial inner balance. Good things are definitely in the works for you.

It's a wonderful week for holiday TV

Fun, music, parade in store for family

By Dan Rice

Traditionally, too much Christmastime TV programming has "borrowed" a moralistic theme from one of three sources: Charles Dickens' A Christmas Carol, O. Henry's The Gift of the Magi or Frank Capra's It's a Wonderful Life. Many viewers understandably dread the season with its plethora of sitcom characters visited by the Ghost of Christmas Past or struggling with the question of what life would have been like had they never been born. Fortunately, the Yule tube has some worthy offerings as well.

There are two big network holiday specials for the week beginning Sunday, Dec. 20. CBS' Holiday Greetings From Ed Sullivan, airing in prime time Sunday, is a collection of holiday-themed performances from the 20-year span of the late showman's variety series. Bob Newhart serves as host of the two-hour special. ABC offers the best bet for Christmas morning (Friday, Dec. 25) with its Walt Disney World Very Merry Christmas Parade. Hosts Joan Lunden and Regis Philbin welcome Golden Palace stars Betty White and Cheech Marin.

Several network series features new episodes related to the holidays this week. On Sunday, Fox presents "The Dysfunctional Family Christmas" on In Living Color, followed by a holiday baptism on Roc and an episode of Married...With Children that finds Al working as a shopping mall Santa. Tuesday, Dec. 22, on CBS, a paramedic dressed as Santa Claus delivers a baby on Rescue: 911.

Children will enjoy the CBS rebroadcasts of two animated specials Thursday, Dec. 24. 'Twas the Night Before Christmas, a musical adaptation of Clement Moore's poem, is followed by A Wish for Wings That Work, in which Bloom County's Bill the Cat helps Opus the penguin contact Santa Claus with his special request.

As always, The Disney Channel can be depended on for a full slate of holiday programs for the kids, including Babes in Toyland, starring Annette Funicello, on Sunday and Thursday.

Children and adults alike will appreciate two documentaries airing Friday on The Discovery Channel. First, the people of the Finnish village of Santa Claus can be seen caring for their reindeer herds in The Daughter of Santa Claus. Then holiday dessert is the subject of the lighthearted special Fruitcake.

Both traditional and contemporary holiday music brighten the week. Tuesday on A&E Stage, the 250th anniversary of Handel's Messiah is honored with a gala performance in Dublin, Ireland, featuring world-class soloists. The Learning Channel goes to Oxford, England, on Friday morning for Carols From Christ Church. The Nashville Network's The Twelve Videos of Christmas airs Thursday and Friday, while VH-1 offers The Soul of Christmas, with host Vanessa Williams, on the same days. New Vision Christmas, airing Friday on VH-1, features the music of Leon Redbone and Joan Baez.

SOAP TALK

Paige had long career before 'SB' role

By Candace Havens

Dear Candace: I need an answer desperately! Please tell me who stars as Minx Lockridge, the mother of Lionel, on Santa Barbara. It is driving me crazy because I can't figure it out. —Karen Coretski, Port Austin, Mich.

Dear Reader: Janis Paige portrays the matriarch of the Lockridge clan. She is a talented actress and has successfully worked in a variety of entertainment media. You may remember Paige from films such as Hollywood Canteen, Silk Stockings and Please Don't Eat the Daisies.

On Broadway, she created the role of Babe Williams in The Pajama Game and also starred in several other shows, including Remains to Be Seen.

Paige made her TV debut on The Bob Hope Show in 1950. Then came the starring role in the sitcom It's Always Jan, followed by roles on Lanigan's Rabbi, Gun Shy, Baby Makes Five, Eight Is Enough and Trapper John, M.D. She appeared as a waitress on All in the Family, and last season she did two episodes with Linda Lavin on Room for Two.

Paige was no newcomer to daytime TV when she joined the cast of SB. She had portrayed Laureen Clegg on the soap Capitol and did a brief stint as a heart-transplant patient on General Hospital.

Dear Candace: I seem to remember on As The World Turns after Bob and Kim had their brief affair and she got pregnant that their child, Sabrina, lived and was raised in England. Bob and Kim were reunited with her when she was a young adult. Their other daughter, Frannie, and Sabrina were very close in age. —Jeanne Bailey, Hugo, Okla.

Dear Reader: You are correct; what a great memory you have! Kim believed the baby was dead, but the unscrupulous hospital director had taken the baby and given it to a wealthy, childless couple.

When Frannie went to England to study, she discovered a young girl who looked just like her.

Through a strange series of events the truth was discovered and the young girl turned out to be Sabrina. The Hughes welcomed her with open arms.

STAR NOTES

Lahti prepared for 'Good Fight'

By Dan Rice

In casting Christine Lahti, Lifetime has chosen a real contender as its protagonist in The Good Fight, debuting Tuesday, Dec. 15. Lahti plays a divorced lawyer "who has settled for the safe, predictable life," only to be re-energized when a family friend contracts oral cancer from using snuff and she stirs up a battle with the tobacco industry. Lahti believes the telefilm has a positive message.

"I hope (viewers) get inspired by a character who has the opportunity for a second chance in life and seizes it and rediscovers her passion."

A native of Detroit, Lahti was fortunate enough to study under the accomplished actress Uta Hagen.

"That's where I really developed my craft. I was waitressing in New York at the time and doing a lot of off-off-Broadway plays for no money."

Lahti eventually starred in such Broadway productions as Locse Ends, Division Street, Scenes and Revelations and Present Laughter. Following her first feature film, 1979's ...And Justice for All, she moved on to the big-screen productions of Whose Life Is It Anyway?, Swing Shift, Just Between Friends, Running on Empty and others. Her other TV credits include The Executioner's Song, Amerika, Crazy From the Heart and The Fear Inside, for which she has been nominated for a CableACE award this year.

FAMILY FARE

PBS special aims to keep kids off drugs

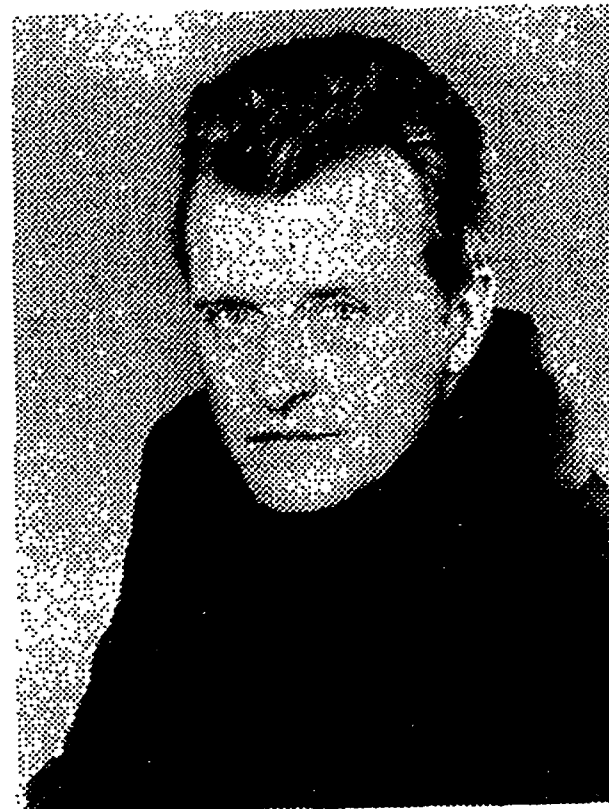

By Chris Carpenter

Other than the overworked analogy to a fried egg, do children have a healthy understanding of what dangerous drugs can do to a helpless brain cell?

A new 3-2-1 Contact Extra titled "Brainstorm: The Truth About Your Brain on Drugs" plays better than a speech from mom or dad and is much more fun to watch. Premiering Monday, Dec. 14, in prime time on most PBS affiliates, "Brainstorm" gets directly to the gray matter at hand by skillfully weaving sight, sound and science into a package children will understand and enjoy.

Stephanie Yu and Z Wright do a fine, understated job as hosts of the special by avoiding the somber melodrama that generally accompanies such serious matter. Armed with plenty of intriguing experts and gigantic, flashing models of neurons, endorphines and the like, Yu and Wright let the facts speak for themselves. The only real editorial comes in short interviews with recovering children, who seem too humbled by their experiences to do more than simply relate the tragedy of addiction.

Powerful footage of brain surgery in progress and an eye-opening chemical breakdown of street heroin also effectively convey the program's message. Children have always been told that drugs are poison, but on "Brainstorm," they're told exactly why.

Rutger Hauer plays a recently paroled murderer in the thriller Past Midnight, Wednesday on USA.

Get to know 'Santa' on Learning Channel

By Dan Rice

Ho, ho, ho. The origin and evolution of Father Christmas is the topic Thursday, Dec. 17, on The Learning Channel's Beliefs anthology. Santa reveals that the modern notion of a jolly sled-driver resulted from a combination of three traditional sources: St. Nicholas, Cable/TV Weekly the patron saint of children and the poor; a Northern white-bearded benefactor of the needy; and the birth of the Christ child.

There's holiday cheer on The Nashville Network this week, notably Charlie Daniels: Christmas Time Down South, airing Wednesday, Dec. 16, and Christmas With The Gatlins on Thursday.

Blues great John Lee Hooker, now in his 70s, demonstrates his Grammy-winning guitar licks Sunday, Dec. 13, on A&E's Rave. The performance special also features Bonnie Raitt, Ry Cooder, Robert Cray and Charlie Musselwhite.

December 14-December 20, 1992

Dana Carvey is the host of The 15th Annual Young Comedians Show, airing Saturday, Dec. 19, on the HBO Comedy Hour. The comedy newcomers include Janeane Garofalo of The Ben Stiller Show.

The Sci-Fi Channel debuts its first original movie on Saturday. The futuristic thriller Homewrecker stars Robby Benson.

Lifetime also has a new movie to air. The Good Fight, starring Christine Lahti and Terry O'Quinn, debuts Tuesday, Dec. 15.

BITS AND PIECES

Game show return to NBC; Malcolm X on CD

NBC's daytime schedule will be changing after the new year. With the demise of the soap opera Santa Barbara and the health/talk show Doctor Dean, NBC is sending in Scrabble and Scattergories to fill the midday schedule beginning Monday, Jan 18. Scrabble, with host Chuck Woolery, returns after a two-year hiatus, while Scattergories, also adapted from a board game, debuts with Dick Clark as host.

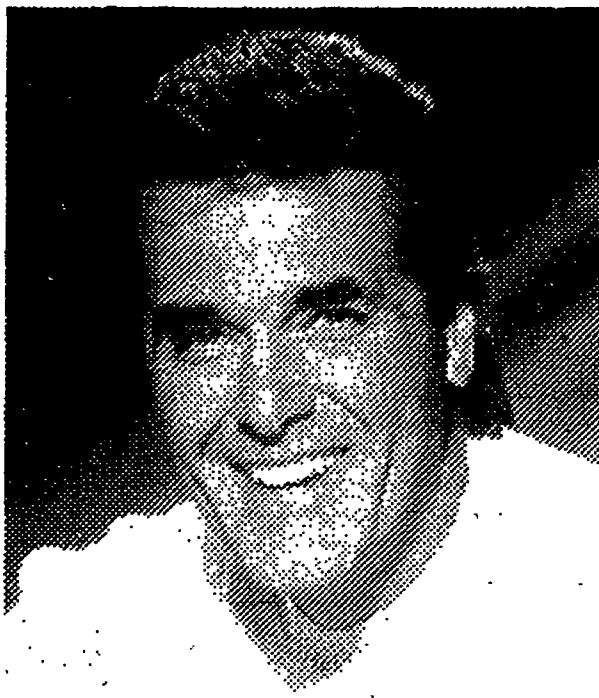

The peacock network seems prepared to shed more old feathers in June, when a new daily talk show featuring Entertainment Tonight hosts Leeza Gibbons and John Tesh will take to the airwaves.

The renewed interest in Malcolm X brought about by Spike Lee's biographical film on the slain Black Muslim leader has inspired the release of Words From the Frontlines: Excerpts From the Great Speeches of Malcolm X by RCA. The 70-minute compact disc, available beginning Dec. 15, presents the speeches in chronological order.

Macauley Culkin stars in The Good Son, a Fox suspense thriller that recently began production. Wendy Crewson, David Morse, Ashley Crow and Macauley's sibling Quinn also star in the story of a boy who goes to live with relatives after his mother's death and falls under the influence of a malevolent cousin.

Friday on NBC, Rita Rudner joins the fun on the Bob Hope Christmas Special. Clint Black also guests.

Chuck Woolery

Feeling malled? You're not alone: There's hardly an American who hasn't spent long hours in the consumer cocoon of a shopping mall, especially during the holidays. Get a little perspective on the many functions of the mall in America's at the Mall, an hourlong special airing Wednesday, Dec. 16, on PBS.

The Irish band U2, ever embracing new technology for its "Zoo TV" concert shows, has added Philips Electronics' Compact Disc-Interactive (CD-I) to its onstage gadgetry. The CD-I enables lead singer Bono to click on big-screen images of himself and messages for the concert audience.

Roy Orbison is the focus of the latest edition of VH-1 to One, premiering Sunday.

HBO corners boxing's greats outside ring

By Michael Scogin

Through the years, many champions have worn the heavyweight boxing crown, but only a few have transcended the sport to become American institutions. On Sunday, Dec. 13, and Thursday, Dec. 17, HBO chronicles some of these larger-than-life figures in In This Corner ... Boxing's Legendary Heavyweights.

George Foreman is the host of the unusual boxing documentary, which uses never-before-seen footage and in-depth interviews with boxing historians, trainers, authors, fighters and announcers to focus on the character and personalities of six champions of the ring. From John L. Sullivan to Muhammad Ali, all began their careers as mere mortals but ended them as American icons. In This Corner doesn't linger on the wins and losses, height, weight and reach of the men, but the character each exhibited.

All the boxers are well represented in the hourlong special, from Ali, the showman and humanitarian, to Jack Johnson, the controversial figure who was the first black athlete to cross the color barrier. Joe Louis is seen as a gracious champion who put his country first in time of war, and Rocky Marciano is the blue-collar bruiser who became a hero to America's underclass. John L. Sullivan was the nation's first post-Civil War hero, while rugged Jack Dempsey had a renowned weakness for Hollywood's leading ladies.

Damone, not Dean, got girl; soap vets reach 'The Heights'

By Taylor Michaels

Q: Please settle a dispute between my sister and me. She says singer Vic Damone's first wife was singer and actress Anna Maria Alberghetti. I say he was married to Pier Angeli, they had one son and she committed suicide at the age of 39. I would appreciate it if you would let me know who's right. —Mary A. Campisi, Casa Grande, Ariz.

A: Vic Damone was born Vito Farinola on June 12, 1928, in Brooklyn, N.Y. He broke into show business on Arthur Godfrey's Talent Scouts show, which aired in the 1940s, tying for first place on one night's competition. His good looks and singing voice landed him the romantic lead in a number of subsequent films and attracted the attention of Pier Angeli (Anna Maria Pierangeli), an aspiring Italian actress who had also dated James Dean. Damone and Angeli were married in 1954 with a jealous Dean petulantly revving his motorcycle outside the church. The marriage was short-lived, and after their divorce just four years later, Angeli moved back to Europe. She died of an overdose of barbiturates in 1971.

Perhaps your sister remembered Angeli's given name, Anna Maria, and confused her with Alberghetti. Take it easy on her — she is your sister.

Q: I am a big fan of the Dallas Cowboys. My favorite player is Troy Aikman. I was hoping you could tell me where to write him and tell him how big a fan I am. —C.C., Nacogdoches, Texas.

A: You may write to Aikman in care of Cowboys Center, One Cowboys Parkway, Irving, Texas, 75063.

Q: On the show Saved by the Bell, an actress named Lark Voorhies plays a character named Lisa Turtle. How old is Voorhies and where did she make her acting debut? How can I write to her? —Alain H. Daniels, Brunswick, Maine.

A: Voorhies is now 18 years old and grew up an only child in Pasadena, Calif. She worked as a child model in a number of television commercials before landing her first guest-starring role on the series Small Wonder. She went on to appear on The Robert Guillaume Show and Good Morning, Miss Bliss. Her hobbies include singing and practicing the violin, cello and piano. You may write Voorhies in care of Saved by the Bell, NBC, 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York, N.Y., 10112.

Q: I would like to ask you to solve a question that has been going through my mind. Two young women on The Heights who play Hope and Jodi look like the two women who used to be on Days of Our Lives. I believe one played Eve Donovan and the other played April. Please let me know the truth and put my mind at ease. —Rodney Summers, Chanute, Kan.

A: You're right about Hope, Rodney. Charlotte Ross, who now plays Hope, once starred as Eve on Days of Our Lives, where she earned two Daytime Emmy nominations. However, Tasia Valenza, who plays Jodi, appeared on All My Children, in the role of Dottie, for which she won a Daytime Emmy. It was Lisa Howard who played Days' April Ramirez.

Q: My friends and I have always wanted to know what the acronym S.P.E.C.T.R.E. stood for in relation to the evil organization that terrorized James Bond. Do you have any idea? —Jason Gill, Saginaw, Texas.

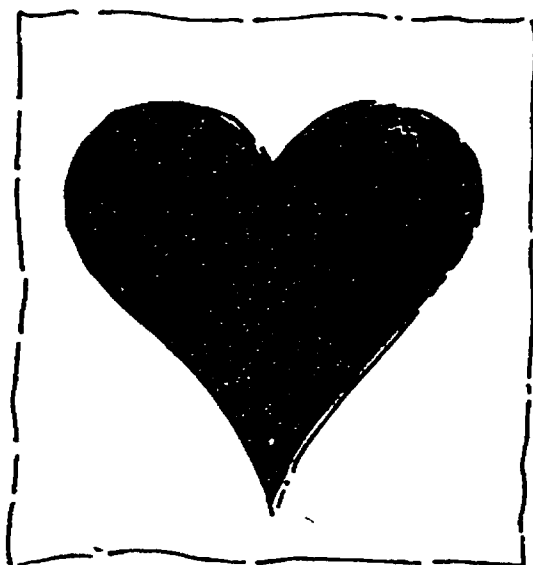

A: As a S.P.E.C.T.R.E. agent, you must run the full gamut of evil, for you are a Special Executive for Counterintelligence, Terrorism, Revenge and Extortion.
