Second board needed to hear property cases

By SHARON CONDRON
Staff Writer

Township resident Diane Patrick has had to appeal her property assessments every year since she's lived on Park Lane in Northville Township.

The Northville Colony Estates resident said the township has always assessed the homes on her street by $8,000-10,000 more than what they are actually selling for on the open market.

"We live on a street that the township has over-assessed every year," she said Thursday afternoon. "So every year I have to go and appeal the assessment. It's a real inconvenience."

Even though Patrick said township officials have promised Park Lane residents their street would be reassessed, officials haven't delivered.

Having to appeal the assessment every year is an annoyance, Patrick said, and is causing her threshold of tolerance for township officials to wear thin.

Last Tuesday she made her annual trek to the first day of the township's board of review hearings. Upon her arrival, she found officials had done away with scheduled appointments as in years past and instituted a first-come, first-served system.

Thanks to the new system, Patrick had to wait two to three hours to plead her case.

"I just can't believe they expect us to do this every year," she said. "And then I had to wait two to three hours to have my case heard."

"It's so inconvenient. I myself have to get a babysitter so I can do this and then I found out it could take that long. It just isn't fair to the citizens of the township."

Township employee Nancy Molloy, administrative assistant in the treasurer's office, said Patrick isn't the only resident complaining about the walk-in service the township is using this year for tax appeal cases.

"We've had some complaints here at the counter about the process," Molloy said. "But I'm holding judgement on how the walk-in system is working until we get through the heaviest days this week."

Molloy said 54 residents came to Tuesday's first session to plead their appeals.

Red Ribbon Week

Northville Public Schools observed Red Ribbon Week last week, just one component of the district's efforts to educate students about the dangers of substance abuse. At Silver Springs Elementary on March 4, Marc Thomas, above, sings to students about self-esteem. Last Wednesday, Chuck Elstone of the Wayne County Sheriff Department, right, brought Nikki, his explosives-sniffing dog, to Cooke Elementary.

Ford site still on library board list

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

The District Library Board's site committee will present several options for library sites, including one for the Ford Valve Plant, at a March 20 meeting.

The committee reviewed the benefits of several potential library locations at a Thursday morning meeting.

"Obviously, the Ford Plant seems to be closer to reality than any other location," said committee member and Mayor Pro Tem Carolann Ayers.

The committee decided to present several sites for consideration at a March 20 meeting of the Friends of Northville Public Library, including the plant and a site behind Northville City Hall that was first proposed in 1976. Several other sites were crossed off the list, including Open Door Christian Church and the First Baptist Church at Wing and Randolph.

The March 20 meeting will serve as a first public hearing into the possibility of a new district library.

The committee will also propose seeking a 1-mill allocation to operate a district library from the library's current site at city hall and investing part of the allocation to acquire a new site in the future.

State law allows a district library commission to levy between 1-2 mills for the acquisition and operation of a library facility.

Thursday's meeting follows a new proposal from the Northville Development Group, a consortium that has proposed buying the plant and leasing part to the community for a library. Two commercial tenants

Advocates propose merit pay other changes for local schools

By MICHELLE KAISER
Staff Writer

If the Northville Public Schools' negotiating team and members of the Northville Education Association take suggestions from a local group's position statement to heart, teachers may soon be compensated based on merit.

Salaries and benefits would also be linked together in one package to help maintain costs.

Advocates for Quality Education recently released its seven-page position statement on contract negotiations, saying the recommendations were prepared in a "constructive spirit."

"We think parents and residents, not just us, are interested particularly in both sides' views," Jerry Rupley, a member of Advocates, said.

Rupley said although the group realizes it can't mandate what the bargaining units do, he hopes they will consider what community residents have to say.

The position statement begins with assumptions and principles. It states the contract must encourage and enhance teaching effectiveness by providing:

- Recognition and rewards for superior performance.
- Staff development programs to encourage and support enhanced performance by teachers; and
- Identification and correction of areas needing improvement for an individual teacher's performance.

The Advocates also feel that poor performance on any teacher's part

County training home site goes out to bid

By SHARON CONDRON
Staff Writer

Wayne County has put its former training school property in Northville Township back out on the bidding block, according to one county official.

Deputy county executive Mike Duggan said the county put the 933-acre county-owned lot on Five Mile Road between Sheldon and Beck Roads back on the bidding block last week and expects to sell it off piece by piece.

Duggan said the county has abandoned the idea of developing the land as one large project because of the slowness of the economy. He said county officials have reached the conclusion that no one developer will be able to raise the capital needed to develop that large of a parcel in the current economic climate.

So, rather than let the acreage sit unused and abandoned, county officials have decided to seek a master developer to help the county develop smaller, individual parcels.

"We are looking for a master developer," he said. "We are looking for someone to help the county manage the development of that land."

Duggan's news surprised some township officials who thought the county was nearing an agreement with Plymouth developer Robert De Mattia to resurrect the Huntington Falls project, a planned unit development that would have offered a mix of residential, light industrial and recreation uses. That plan also included a championship golf course.

But in the aftermath of several unsuccessful development attempts, the golf course may be the only remnant of the county's original plan.

Township Supervisor Karen Baja said Friday she knew the county was putting the property back on the market, but was disturbed to learn it was not being offered as a single development like it had been before.

"It doesn't bother me that they are going out for bids," she said. "What disturbs me is that they are bidding a project that is being altered in scope."

Baja said whether the land is developed as a single parcel or divided up will have little impact on the township. What matters is who owns the developments that will go in the parcel.

She also said she's not convinced that DeMattia's inability to secure financing for the ambitious project doesn't mean another developer or a consortium of developers couldn't pull off a project similar to the Huntington Falls plan. She said it's only fair that the county bid out the same project to see if anyone else would come forward, or if a joint venture could be pulled off.

Either way, she said she's concerned that the township will lose out if the land remains in the county's

Michigan's Best Community Newspaper ... Again

That's right, again. For the second consecutive year the Michigan Press Association bestowed its prestigious 'Michigan's Best' Award on the Northville Record in its 1992 Better Newspaper Contest. (For weekly newspapers with 5,000 to 15,000 circulation). And we're even prouder to be a two-time winner of the 'Michigan's Best' award than we were the first time we received the honor in the 1991 Better Newspaper Contest. And here's another thing that hasn't changed. Our greatest satisfaction continues to come from being an integral part of the Northville community... giving you the type of newspaper you want and need. In other words, we're proud to be your hometown paper.

Roads were snow covered and slippery Friday, contributing to this accident at Novi Road and Allen.

Winter onslaught leads to accident

By STEVE KELLMAN

icy roads contributed to a Friday morning accident that left one driver injured and his car totaled.

The accident apparently was caused when a southbound driver, a 32-year-old Lansing man, slid off the side of Novi Road south of Allen Drive about 9:15 a.m. He reportedly lost control of his car and crossed the center lane into the path of a northbound pickup truck. His Chevrolet Corsica was heavily damaged in the ensuing crash, while the truck received less damage.

Northville city police and fire personnel responded to the accident, and the southbound driver was taken to Botsford Hospital by Community Emergency Medical Services.

He was reported in stable condition in the emergency room Friday morning, and discharged later that afternoon.

Advocates proposal could add merit pay

reflects badly on the entire staff, and all teachers should be required to demonstrate reasonable levels of commitment and performance.

Specifically, the plan calls for positive performance evaluations, and accountability from top to bottom—including administration. Advocates also believe the district should begin moving toward some type of merit-based compensation, possibly by using merit career steps or a bonus pool.

Further, the group recommends that standards should be defined in teaching performance.

"That's only logical," Rupley said. "If you're going to base somebody on their job performance, it's important to state clearly what that job is."

"We're not coming in and saying you should use this specific procedure. There need to be alternative ways of evaluation. These are merely suggestions."

Currently, tenured teachers are evaluated by an administrator every other year, and on the alternate year submit self-evaluations to a building administrator.

As far as economics are concerned, the Advocates have taken the position that salaries and benefits should be linked together in a single package and limited to a specific increase over the life of the contract. Rupley said spiraling health care costs contributed to that position.

In the current contract, the school district provides medical coverage for all full-time employees and their immediate families under Blue Cross-Blue Shield MVA II with a master medical prescription drug rider, first aid emergency rider and voluntary sterilization rider.

The district also pays the premium for dental benefits such as diagnostic and preventative services, oral surgery, restorative services and construction of replacement of dentures and bridges. The benefits are provided at a level of 75 percent to full-time teachers and their eligible dependents after the teacher has completed one year of employment.

A basic vision package is also provided, with a $6.50 deductible for vision examinations and an $18 deductible for lenses and frames.

Other benefits for full-time employees include a $40,000 life insurance policy, long term disability, worker's compensation, retirement, tuition reimbursement and extra credit pay (which provides incentives for those completing further education). Longevity benefits are also available providing up to $2,700 a year after 25 years of service with the district. Longevity benefits begin after 12 years of service, currently at a rate of $450 a year.

Regarding salary increases, Advocates proposes placing or maintaining Northville teachers in the middle of the wage scale compared to neighboring districts.

"It was our conclusion that after comparing Northville to those comparable districts, Northville probably wasn't out of line, but actually in the middle," Rupley said.

Compared to the Novi school district, which has a student population of 4,111 compared to Northville's 4,021 students (based on 1991-92 school district data gathered by the Advocates), school teachers in Novi with a bachelor's degree can receive a maximum salary of $48,541. Northville teachers in that category can make up to $48,983. Salaries in West Bloomfield, Farmington and Livonia average near $50,000. However, their student populations are relatively large at 4,936, 10,550 and 16,623, respectively.

In the Plymouth-Canton district, which has a student population of 14,948, teachers can receive up to $48,063 in wages, about $900 less a year than Northville teachers if they hold a bachelor's degree.

"Other districts are negotiating as well right now," Rupley said. "Clearly, I don't think anyone would deny there needs to be an increase, however, significantly lower than in the past. We're just not in the position to specify (how much of an increase)."

In their current three-year contract, which expires Aug. 31, teachers received average annual salary increases of 7 percent; 7 percent and 5.875 percent, respectively.

In the last version of its position statement, referred to as quality issues, the Advocates state the contracts should reflect commitment to the district's Strategic Plan.

Ford site still on library's 'A' list

would take the upper floor while the library would be located in the lower level's 21,669 square feet of space. The library would pay $19,195 a month for the site, and would own it outright after 25 years.

Like its first proposal late last year, the consortium would still turn Ford Field and the other Ford-owned land west of Griswold over to the city, along with the waterway north of the plant and the land north of the waterway.

Committee members had several questions Thursday about the consortium's offer. Board member Wendy Gutowski noted that the consortium's previous proposal had included a cost of living increase in the lease rate, and wondered whether the latest proposal did as well. Committee member and Township Trustee Gini Britton asked whether the deal included library ownership of the dam just east of the plant, and noted that a similar dam in the township gave way last year, draining Waterford Pond. "I would not recommend taking ownership of that dam, after what happened to our dam," she said.

Library Director Pat Orr said she had reviewed diagrams of the plant with Dick DeBear of Library Design Associates Inc., a Plymouth-based planning and engineering firm.

"He didn't say 'This is a good proposal' or 'This is a bad proposal,'" Orr said. "He said 'These are the things you need to keep in mind when you're making your decision.'"

Those things included the low ceiling height in the plant's lower level which would restrict the adult bookshelves to certain areas, and the amount of parking that would be available for library patrons. That amount has not been specified.

Committee members agreed that other sites including the two church properties would probably be inadequate for a new library. A previous site committee had determined that the Open Door Christian Church would have to be torn down because the existing structure was too small and too frail to hold the weight of books and patrons, and the latest committee feared the same thing about First Baptist Church.

The latest proposal to capture the hearts of the committee was one made in 1976 for a two-story facility behind city hall. The 25,000-square-foot facility, located on Cady Street, would be just west of the Cady Street entrance to the parking lot behind city hall. Because it would be located partially on school-owned property behind the recreation center, the library board would have to obtain permission from Northville Public Schools.

Orr noted that the proposal had to be updated to reflect current building codes and library design standards. "So many things have changed in 20 years that it would be a whole new proposal," she said.

Cogo was given credit for time already served in Wayne County Jail, where he had been held since his Jan. 15 arrest.

He was sentenced under Public Act 511, a recently-enacted law that established an alternative to imprisonment for non-violent felons. The alternative is a structured probation program that requires close monitoring, community service and vocational training from the participants.

Cogo and a 16-year-old Northville youth broke into Meisel's sometime between 8:30-9 p.m. Jan. 11 "to commit a robbery," according to the youth's testimony at a Jan. 29 hearing at 35th District Court. The boy's case has since been turned over to Wayne County Juvenile Court.

Tennen sentenced Cogo to two years of probation March 3, including 90 days in a state-run "boot camp" program with 120 days of follow-up. He was also ordered to make $300 in restitution and serve 250

Crome after city police discovered an answering machine tape that recorded the burglary in progress. The tape, apparently triggered to record after being knocked off a desk, recorded the sound of one of the burglars calling another by the name "Josh."

The antique store break-in was one of a string of burglaries in downtown Northville in the past two months. Police are still investigating the others.

Police News

Drunk driving suspect leads cops on chase

City police arrested a 50-year-old Novi woman for driving under the influence March 1. The woman, heading west on Eight Mile between Coldspring and Beck about 9:30 p.m., was clocked at 62 mph in the 45-mph zone by an eastbound police car. The officer turned to follow and the woman turned south onto Beck, reaching speeds of 75 mph as the officer attempted to catch up.

The woman kept driving for more than a mile, even after the officer pulled within two car lengths and activated his emergency lights, spotlight and siren. She finally turned onto Blue Heron Drive and drove through the neighborhood, crossing into the oncoming lane twice before she stopped in the middle of the road. The woman failed several field sobriety tests and was arrested. She told police she had a couple of glasses of wine to drink in Novi, and when asked where in Novi, she said on Orchard Lake Road. Orchard Lake runs through Farmington Hills and West Bloomfield, not Novi.

The woman had to be told several times to blow into the Breathalyzer properly. She told police she had asthma, but had never been diagnosed with it or treated for it. Her blood alcohol level was measured at .16 percent.

WARRANT ARREST: City police arrested a 39-year-old Melvindale man at 8:30 a.m. March 2 after his semi truck was found blocking Eight Mile Road east of Randolph. The truck had a rock wedged under the trailer that apparently had severed the air brake lines. A computer check revealed that the man was wanted by Wayne County authorities on a civil charge. He was arrested and turned over to Wayne County.

BAD CHECK CASES: City police are investigating two recent bad check cases. A 24-year-old Livonia woman reportedly wrote a check to Northville Parks and Recreation at Northville City Hall Oct. 23. The $91 check, for tickets to the parks department's Haunted House event, was returned to the city twice due to insufficient funds in the account.

A 28-year-old Southfield man wrote the city a check for $73 Sept. 21, and it, too, was returned twice due to insufficient funds. The man was sent a notice by registered mail Jan. 18 and reportedly claimed it Jan. 25, but had not responded as of press time.

FENDER BENDERS: City police reported three accidents last week. A 28-year-old Northville woman was cited for improper backing after hitting a car behind her at a stop sign. The incident occurred just after 5 p.m. March 1 at Cady and Center streets.

On March 2, a 17-year-old Northville man driving south on Novi Street just before 7 a.m. struck a parked car for no apparent reason, disabling his own car. He told police he must not have been paying attention. He was cited for careless driving.

Later that day, at 5:15 p.m., a 16-year-old Northville boy driving a pickup truck west on Edward Hines Drive west of Wing caused an accident when he pulled over to the shoulder. The boy was hauling an unsecured off-road vehicle in the bed of the truck when he pulled over to secure it. His vehicle was struck by another westbound car behind him. He was cited for improper lane use.

BOY INJURED IN CAR ACCIDENT: A 12-year-old township boy was injured following a two-car accident at Sheldon and Six Mile roads March 1.

According to reports, a car driven by a 36-year-old Northville man struck the vehicle the boy was riding in head on as the driver attempted to turn left at the intersection. The man told police the light was yellow for him. The driver of the other vehicle, a 41-year-old Northville man, told police he made the left turn on a yellow, and didn't see the other car.

Both drivers were ticketed, the 36-year-old for disobeying a red light and the other for failing to yield. The boy was taken to St. Mary Hospital with a broken leg, according to police reports.

Citizens with information about the above incidents are urged to call Northville City Police at 349-1234 or Northville Township Police at 349-9400.

New school borders to be decided this month

In the next three Thursday editions, The Northville Record will publish the Northville Public Schools elementary and middle school boundary options under consideration for the 1993-94 school year.

Elementary Option One

Thornton Creek Elementary boundaries (estimated student population 366):

The north boundary is Nine 1/2 Mile from Chubb to Novi Road. The east boundary is Novi Road to Nine Mile, following Nine Mile west to Taft, south on Taft including Dartmoor, Galway and Winchester drives as well as Lancaster, Paddington, Windemere, Norfolk, Dartmouth, Carlisle, Daleview, Sheffield and Roxbury Courts, Erin Circle and Princeton Boulevard, Coldspring Court north of Mill Pond Court, Springfield, Fairfax and Bradburn. The next eastern boundary is Beck Road to Eight Mile, which comprises the southern border to Chubb.

Moraine Elementary boundaries (estimated student population 358):

The west boundary of Chubb Road extends from Eight Mile to Five Mile. The northern boundary of Eight Mile jogs up to Eight 1/2 Mile to include Elmsmere, Holmbury, Stanstead, Summerside, Battleford, Grasmere, Chigwidden, Dunsany, Lanthorn, Shannon, Glenhill, Coachford, Andover, Portsmere, Whitegate, Abbey, Pond Island, Bristol, Saratoga, McDonald, Coldspring (south of Mill Pond Court), Washington, Concord, New Haven, Charleston, Williamsburg, Yorktown and Revere. Deadline for writing contest is coming up in a hurry

All middle and high school students in Northville are encouraged to enter a new writing contest sponsored by The Northville Record.

With the theme, "Let us Play," the competition is designed to provide a chance for young writers to express their creativity with thoughts about recreational needs in the Northville community.

Winning writers will have their efforts rewarded with small cash prizes and publication in the Record, and all participants will receive a token gift. Everyone involved in the competition — including entrants, parents, and teachers — will be invited to a special recognition ceremony the evening of May 13.

After the contest, a plaque with the names of the winners and their teachers will be displayed in the Northville Parks and Recreation building.

Any student living in the Northville School District currently in grades six through 12 may enter the contest. Entries will be accepted in two categories: essays of 500-1,300 words and poetry of 50-200 lines total (one poem or a group of poems.)

Entries must adhere to the theme of "Let us Play!" The theme may be addressed in any way that expresses concern with recreation or how it affects the quality of life in Northville.

PURPOSE:

The 1992-93 Student Writing Competition is designed to help students apply their creative writing skills while focusing on community understanding of the need for recreational facilities.

The competition is designed to generate creative efforts and provide an opportunity for young writers to express their concerns for recreation and its impact, and how to improve the quality of life in the community.

THEME:

All entries in the 1992-93 writing program must be directly related to, and expressive of, this chosen theme, "Let us Play!"

ELIGIBILITY:

All students must live in the Northville School District, grades 6-12.

CATEGORY DESCRIPTIONS:

Essay: 500-1,300 words

Poetry: 50-200 lines, total

An entry may be a single poem or a group of poems in any form of verse, rhymed or free, with awards being made on the merit of the total entry. One topic suggestion is to identify a problem or dilemma related to personal or community recreational needs, and propose a creative solution.

JUDGING CRITERIA:

These categories will each be judged in two grade divisions: Middle school (grades 6-8) and senior high (grades 9-12), and will be judged on evidence of creative ability and development of the theme.

HOW TO SUBMIT ENTRIES:

1. An official 1992-93 entry form must be attached to each composition. Each composition, except in poetry, must have a separate entry blank. Staple the composition and entry blank together at the upper left hand corner.

2. Entry forms must be complete and neatly typed or printed. The name of the student can only appear on the entry form, not on the composition. Entry forms must have both teachers' and students' signatures.

3. All compositions must be printed by a computer on standard letter-sized, unlined white paper. Essays must be double spaced with one-inch margins and a title on the first page. Poems must be single spaced, and individually titled.

4. Students may submit one entry in each category.

5. Teachers are expected to pre-screen entries for competitiveness, accuracy of form, spelling, presentation and affirmation that the student's entry is an original composition. Only the best samples should be entered to represent each grade division.

6. No entries will be returned. Students should retain copies of their work.

7. Delivery deadline is April 2, 1993.

AWARDS:

An Awards Reception and Ceremony will be held to honor all participants including students, parents and teachers on May 13. Cash prizes, trophies, gifts and certificates will be awarded. A plaque with the names of the winners and their teachers will be displayed in the Northville Parks and Recreation Department building.

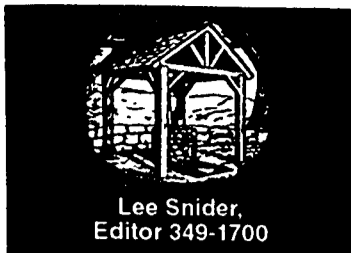

Also award-winning compositions will be published in a special section of The Northville Record.

Submit compositions to: The Northville Record Student Writing Contest 104 West Main Northville, MI 48167

Our Opinion

Merit pay plan ought to be a topic of talks

The organization Advocates for Quality Education has made a suggestion which, while anything but radical or novel, is usually regarded by teacher groups as a threat to the very underpinnings of public education.

Advocates is recommending that the Northville School District begin looking at ways of compensating teachers based on the quality of instructors' performances. That's right, the sinister merit system.

In its thoughtful seven-page position paper released on the eve of contract negotiations with the district's faculty union, Advocates recommends that the school administration and teachers association examine the options available to them in implementing a merit pay plan. Few specifics are mentioned — the group simply suggests that a system for rewarding dedication and discouraging mediocrity be considered. The proposal is put forth as a philosophical proposition, embracing the theory that teachers should be paid according to their abilities and their effectiveness in delivering relevant education to young people.

"NPS should begin moving toward some form of merit-based compensation for teachers," the position paper maintains. "This could ultimately be accomplished through . . . establishment of merit based career steps, establishment of 'bonus' pools to be awarded by a committee of teaching peers and administrators, or a number of other procedures."

Though the idea of compensating employees on merit is eminently sensible and widely practiced in the private sector, we won't hold our breath waiting for school officials to try to include it in the new three-year contract with the Northville Education Association. The mere mention of merit pay incenses faculty association representatives and sends them scurrying for cover under the claim that teachers need total job security before they can be free to concentrate on their lesson plans. School district negotiators might disagree with that, but they probably won't have the fortitude to raise the topic at the bargaining table. They'd be in for the fight of their lives.

Programs of merit compensation don't have to represent a radical departure from current practice and can be used to supplement seniority-based methods. Few observers would suggest that merit pay be implemented as a wholesale replacement of arrangements that have been in place for generations. To minimize problems, new compensation methods can be phased in over several years' time. Moreover, there are many varieties of merit programs and many ways of working the concept into mechanisms for determining instructors' pay.

This, it seems, is what Advocates is suggesting: a reasonable system of compensating teachers that takes into account instructors' effectiveness on the job. Hardly an extreme position. At a time when increased global competition has brought to light the many shortcomings of the American educational system, merit pay for teachers is an idea whose time has come.

But, in spite of the timeliness of Advocates' suggestion, we fear the subject will be ignored during the upcoming negotiations. After all, who would want to upset the genteel tone of the talks by introducing a good idea?

Assessment appeals process was botched

Northville Township officials have a real mess on their hands. Rather than taking property assessment appeals on the basis of appointments, the township decided to accept them as walk-ins this year.

Coming off last year's statewide freeze on property assessments, now was not the time to switch to a haphazard, catch-as-catch-can system. The change has resulted in considerable disorganization at township hall, and has prompted several property owners to register complaints with this newspaper.

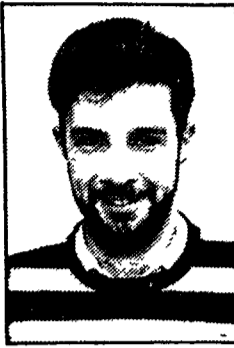

To their credit, township officials have attempted to accommodate the overflow by offering extra appointment hours and by hastily establishing a second Board of Review to hear appeals. It's clear they are doing what they can to make the most of a bad situation.

But many of the scheduling problems have been avoided in the first place if the township had directed property owners to schedule their appointments in advance. The confusion resulting from having a double assessment tacked on to property owners' last notices is something they could have seen coming.

Even bomb can't coax Mom

I've been trying to coax Mom into moving to Michigan for a couple of years now.

In the 10 years since I moved away, her apartment's been burglarized and she's had her purse snatched twice. The city in which I was born and raised, I told her, was getting dirtier and more violent.

But in an odd case of turnabout, the parent is giving the child excuses. She thinks she won't be able to get a job at her age. Never mind that she's only in her mid-50s and is treasurer of an economic consulting firm.

She doesn't want to leave her friends, she says, despite the fact that she makes friends everywhere she goes.

I guess the biggest road block, if you'll pardon the pun, is that she doesn't drive. Her car got stolen in 1974, and she's never bothered to replace it, relying on public transportation instead. All the more reason to move, I say. Out here they don't steal cars quite as often. Well, at least not eight-year-old Volkswagens.

To move out here, where only the destitute and the institutionalized don't own cars, she'd likely have to go to the expense to buy, register and insure a car. Then she'd have to learn how to drive it.

After the events of Feb. 26, though, it may not seem like such a bad deal. Mom, you see, works on the 28th floor of the World Trade Center in New York. At about 12:30 that day, a terrorist bomb blew up in the underground parking garage below the towers.

I didn't hear about it until about 1:30 in the afternoon, and even then, the details were still sketchy. The building was burning, they said.

I needed to find out what was going on. Never one to overlook the obvious, I tried calling Mom's office. No answer.

I rushed out of the office and headed home, hoping CNN could give me some information. The all-news channel was stuck in the middle of its Sonya, Lue show, and Headline News was into its sports segment.

Fortunately, WWOR, the New York-based super station, had cameras live on the scene. From the footage I saw, I could surmise that Mom was okay. They showed that the damage was confined to the garage — no place for a lady with no car — and the PATH subway station. The PATH trains go to New Jersey, and my Mom hates New Jersey.

It was still the scare of her life, she told me when I reached her at home later that afternoon.

"The whole building shook, and then all the lights went out," she said. "My boss wanted to stay and wait, but I said, 'Get your coat on. We're leaving. NOW!'"

She'd used the same words on me with equal authority many moons ago, so I could guess that he complied.

The stairways to the street were packed with people, especially on the lower floors. There were no lights, not even daylight, and thick smoke made breathing difficult.

"The firemen gave me oxygen when I got outside," she said. "It was a good thing I wore a scarf. I was able to wrap it around my nose and mouth. A couple of people passed out on the stairs."

Soot from the fires covered everyone. My Mom, always colorful in her speech, said, "I looked like something from a minstrel show. There was black soot all over my face, in my clothes, in my hair."

Things are back to normal now, if normal means working in the Knight-Ridder offices for the next month or so.

From where I sit, nothing seems normal in New York City anymore.

'Done deals' just aren't right

Novi's Board of Education ratified a contract with the Novi Education Association (NEA) at its last meeting.

This column is not, however, about the Novi school board any more than it is about the Northville school board or any other school board.

Here's what happened:

Negotiators for the Novi school board and the Novi teachers' association have been working toward an agreement for some time. Eventually, the two negotiating teams hammered out a tentative agreement and sent it back to the teachers and the school board for ratification.

After the teachers okayed the tentative accord, the pact was brought to the school board which also voted approval.

Now here comes the reason for concern.

The terms of the proposed settlement were not released for public scrutiny until after the pact had been signed, sealed and delivered . . . until after it was absolutely too late to do anything about it.

We tried to get somebody to tell us the terms of the proposed settlement before it had been ratified, but neither side would say a word. In fact, the school board president (Ray Byers) seemed a little miffed that we would make such a request, saying there was no way he was going to allow the contract to be negotiated in the press.

My suspicion at this point is that some of you may be asking why I'm upset. After all, this is the way these matters have always been handled. And, yes, everybody knows it's wrong "to negotiate contacts in the press."

So now I'm going to tell you what's wrong with the process. A lot of people are upset about their property taxes and want to know why they're continually increasing.

In the past, attempts have been made to blame property tax increases on rising assessments. And while it's true that assessment increases may, in fact, lead to higher taxes, the biggest problem is the other half of the property tax equation — the millage rate, which is a direct reflection of expenditures.

Point One: By far the largest portion of your property taxes go to the schools.

Point Two: By far the largest portion of the tax revenues collected by the schools goes for wages and fringe benefits. Typically, somewhere between 80 to 90 percent of any school district's budget goes for wages or fringe benefits.

Point Three: By far the largest portion of school wages and fringe benefits are paid to teachers.

School boards are often criticized for cutting things like busing and athletics when they need to balance their budgets. But, as a practical matter, that's about all that's left to cut after you remove from consideration the 80-90 percent of the budget that goes into salaries and fringes.

School boards are required by law to hold public hearings before they adopt budgets for the upcoming fiscal year.

But, when you stop to think about it, those hearings are really something of a charade when the driving force in any and all school budgets is the pay increase handed out to employees — particularly to teachers who are far and away the largest employee group.

In light of all that, it seems inherently anti-democratic to permit contracts to be ratified and wage increases established with no public scrutiny whatsoever.

The way things are right now . . . with no public disclosure before the contract is a done deal, the public has little chance for any input on the single most important factor in determining their property taxes.

And that ain't right.

hands, and if the county proceeds with its plan to build and operate a championship golf course.

The supervisor said Wayne County Executive Ed McNamara has not made it a secret that he wants to see a county-owned golf course somewhere on that site. If that's the case Baja intends to do all she can to see that the township derives some financial benefit from it.

"McNamara has insisted on a county-owned golf course. That's hard for me to accept because the township gains nothing from it. We don't really have a say in it but we will sit there and our police and fire will have to respond to it without getting any revenues from it.

"We have very little say or input into whether it would be a public or private-owned course," she said. "The township doesn't have a lot of direct control over it because we aren't the property owners."

"But if I had my way, I would like to see it privately developed."

Baja said the only real control the township has over the land use lies in the zoning of the property. And township planners showed their willingness to support the county's intention to develop the land by granting the county's request for rezoning 50 acres of the land from residential to research and development two weeks ago.

Duggan said the county needed the rezoning to help pursue an aerospace and defense manufacturer to relocate its facility to Northville Township. With the rezoning in hand, he said the county is pursuing negotiations with that manufacturer.

"We hope to land a major company here," Duggan said. "It's a high-tech company who does research in the defense department and other related research."

Baja said Wayne County Commissioner Thaddeus McCotter told her the Wayne County Commission insisted the property be put back out to bid.

Geake holds office hours

Sen. Bob Geake (R-Northville) has announced a new schedule for district office hours.

The new schedule for district office hours, the locations of which will be rotated among the various communities in the Sixth Senate District, is as follows:

Friday, March 12, in Plymouth/Township at the Plymouth Public Library located on 223 S. Main St.

Friday, March 19, in Northville/Northville Township at the Northville Public Library located on 215 W. Main St.

Friday, March 26, in Livonia at the Livonia Civic Center Library located on 32777 Five Mile Road.

Friday, April 16, in Canton Township at the Canton Public Library located on 1200 S. Canton Center Road.

Monday, April 19, in Redford Township at the Redford Public Library located on 15150 Norborne.

The hours for all the above dates are 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

"There are presently many important issues before the legislature and I want to give my constituents a chance to let me hear how they feel on the various issues," Geake said.

"Too many times people feel that their opinions are not heard. By holding district office hours in the various communities in my district the people I represent can be assured that their opinions are being heard."

The Northville Record

Vorva mulls vote on no-fault bill

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

State Rep. Jerry Vorva has a decision to make Tuesday, and he wants his constituents' help.

Vorva, R-Plymouth, who represents Northville, Plymouth and part of Livonia as the 20th District representative, is looking for feedback on the need for auto insurance reform. House Bill 4156 would change the state's current no-fault insurance system to make it harder to sue in an auto accident and limit the amount of personal injury protection coverage a litigant could receive. The current no-fault system, enacted in 1973, offers unlimited medical benefits.

The house bill is similar to last year's Proposal D, the AAA proposal that was soundly defeated Nov. 3 after fiercely fought publicity campaigns by both proponents and opponents.

The bill would limit the right to sue by setting higher standards for injuries. Drivers more than 50 percent at fault would be barred from collecting damages.

The new bill would also require auto insurance companies to reduce their premium rates by 16 percent for drivers opting for the minimum coverage, and maintain those lower rates for at least six months.

But unlike Proposal D, which would have limited minimum personal injury protection award to $250,000, HB 4156 would set the minimum level at $900,000. Added coverage up to $5 million could be purchased at additional cost.

The bill, introduced by Rep. Michael J. Griffin, has worked its way through the house insurance commission on which Vorva sits and comes to a vote before the entire house tomorrow, March 9.

"This is a major change in the law," Vorva said Friday. "There are good arguments for changing it and there's good arguments for not changing it. I've heard arguments from all the concerned groups except the citizens."

"I've heard from lawyers, insurance companies, doctors, clinics and hospitals, and I thought it would be a good idea if some average citizens called. I've been bombarded by everyone else."

The bill is scheduled to be heard on the house floor 2 p.m. Tuesday, but Vorva predicted it would be hotly debated before coming to a vote.

"This is going to be an all-nighter, because it's such a major change," he said. "I don't see us getting out of there before midnight."

To register your opinion, call Vorva's Lansing office at (517) 373-3816.

Residents appeal taxes

She said since the township has foregone appointments this year, she really has no idea how many residents will attend sessions today and tomorrow. But with the thawing of the one-year property assessment freeze, Molloy said she expects more people than usual to come through the process — even though township assessments haven't jumped as high as forecasters originally projected.

Assessments in the township jumped an average of 7.85 percent over the two-year period. That's well below the alarming double-digit figures some Northville city residents and taxpayers in surrounding communities have been stuck with.

"It's been fairly busy and with the freeze coming off, there seems to be more interest," Molloy said. "There's been so much publicity in the media about taxes this year because of the freeze coming off, but I think more people are using this as a way to express their feelings about paying taxes than anything else."

Molloy said even though last Tuesday's session hadn't run as smoothly as the township had hoped, she believes the process will get back on track today with the addition of a second Board of Review to hear cases.

Molloy and Township Supervisor Karen Baja hope the second three-member panel will alleviate the long lines and the long waiting period residents found last week.

"With only the one board working last Tuesday, it was really difficult," Molloy said. "With the second board this week it should go much smoother and quicker."

Baja said she made the decision to do away with appointments and bring on a second board in light of the property freeze being lifted this year. She said in years past, township residents have abused the appointment system by coming late for scheduled appointments or by not showing up at all.

"We knew it would be busy because the freeze would come off, Baja said. "But before so many people had abused their appointments. And we thought with the increasing number of people this would be the fair decision."

Baja said she had hoped to have the second board prepped and ready to go at the onset of the hearings last week, but she couldn't get enough volunteers to fill the three slots on the panel.

Baja said the three people who finally came forward to form the second board were former township manager Richard Henningsen and township residents Susan Vlangos and Judy Whiteley.

She said both boards will be up and running for today's hearings which are set for 1-5 and 6-9 p.m.; and tomorrow's which are scheduled for 9 a.m.-noon, and again from 1-5 p.m.

Young wines drink well but age gracefully

Sonoma County, California, has taken the French concept of wine appellations and designated 11 distinct wine growing regions within its borders. The smallest of these appellations (in the U.S. they are known as American Viticultural Areas, AVA) is Sonoma Mountain. Here, Patrick Campbell makes extraordinary estate-grown cabernet sauvignon in the tradition of a Bordeaux classified growth.

"I planted the three principal Bordeaux varietals — cabernet sauvignon, merlot and cabernet franc in 1968, and began making wine without formal training in 1981," Campbell recalls. "My lack of formal training in enology was an advantage."

He says this because wine is a natural product that should not be over-handled or manipulated. Campbell believes that winemakers educated at the University of California at Davis tend to strip wines of flavor and texture by performing too many unnecessary manipulative procedures on the wine.

"In the early years, whenever I needed advice, I would telephone a neighboring winery," said Campbell. "They were always willing to discuss options that afforded minimal handling of the wine."

Campbell divides the evolution of the Laurel Glen style into three periods. He refers to the wines of 1981-84 as his amateur winemaking days. From 1985-87 he admits that he really began to get a handle on making Bordeaux-style wine. From 1988 to present, his wines made a quantum leap in quality because he, like most of the great chateaux of Bordeaux, began to produce a second label called Counterpoint.

The importance of the second label cannot be overstated. It allows Campbell to make Laurel Glen Cabernet Sauvignon the best wine he can in any given vintage. The key is that all of the wine is treated exactly the same, but barrels lending themselves to earlier enjoyment are put into Counterpoint while the very best are reserved for the Laurel Glen.

"Since lot selection is not made until close to the bottling," Campbell explains, "Counterpoint is necessarily vinified in the same manner as the Laurel Glen — no corners are cut, the same new barrels are used."

Unfortunately, starting with 1988, Laurel Glen will be scarcer because of increasingly stringent lot selection. The 1988 vintage yielded only 20 percent of the 1986 vintage and only 33 percent of the 1987 vintage.

"I feel that it is absolutely imperative to make the best statement with the Laurel Glen," Campbell emphasizes, "even if it means that in some years we may make little or none at all."

This also means that the consumer can buy the Counterpoint ($17) for about half the price of the Laurel Glen ($30). Counterpoint is a more forward wine, rich and moderately tannic, full of the cassis and berry flavors typical of the fruit grown in Campbell's Sonoma Mountain vineyards.

An appellation concept emphasizes the importance of vineyard site and its accompanying soil and climate. It is the unique combination of his Sonoma Mountain site and Campbell's philosophy of gentle handling that defines the particular taste and aroma of Laurel Glen.

The Sonoma Mountains form the western boundary of Sonoma Valley. (Sonoma Valley is an AVA and Sonoma Mountain is an AVA within Sonoma Valley. It is no more confusing

WINE SELECTION OF THE WEEK

1990 Terra Rosa ($10) is bottled by Laurel Glen from wine not grown on the estate, but blended and celled by Patrick Campbell. It represents one of the most drinkable and delicious cabernets with character in this price range.

Traditional cooks use their hands and a double-chamber steaming vessel to prepare tender couscous.

Getting couscous right Cook this new-age pasta the old world way

By CHARLES BRITTON
Copley News Service

Recipes undergo a curious change when they travel from one culture to another. Couscous provides a case in point.

From its North African home, this form of pasta that looks like a grain has made inroads in the American consciousness, to the point that you might find it on a party buffet or commercial salad bar, served cold, moistened with salad dressing and studded with crunchy vegetables. In its homeland, couscous would never be given such a treatment.

Rather, it would be served hot as the primary starch of the meal, like pasta in Italy.

Another strange thing about couscous: The package instructions for making it are all wrong. Well, maybe not wrong but certainly a shortcut designed for mass consumption. These directions call for a quick soaking in hot water, and the result, while perhaps acceptable, is a sodden mass, a far cry from tender, light, delicate texture of couscous made according to the true method.

The difference is rather like that between instant rice on the one hand and properly cooked rice on the other. The texture of a fine couscous is particularly seductive, reminiscent of the crumb of a good corn bread, but lighter and more separate.

Like many traditional recipes, true couscous does require some time. It's a process of moistening, steaming and working the grains with your hands. That's why we propose it as a weekend project.

The key to the traditional method is the handling of the grain.

It is repeatedly rubbed through the hands with a gentle pressure. The effect is to separate the grains and to aerate the texture. Primary rehydration is by steaming rather than soaking, this gives the couscous a dry yet tender feel, the North African equivalent of al dente.

The couscous grain is in fact made of a paste of semolina flour and water, much the same as for pasta. But in this case, the paste has been worked into small particles.

In traditional households, this is still done by hand, the kind you see in the store is machine made. You will find it on the shelves of most supermarkets these days, usually imported from France, where the dish is widely popular, a culinary relic of that country's imperial past in North Africa. There is also a whole wheat version, but this is less broadly distributed.

Most couscous seems to be medium grain (moyen in French), which somewhat resembles cornmeal. You might also come across a larger form of it, with spherical grains about the size of a BB shot.

All couscous we have seen has undergone a steaming stage that precooks the grains. This makes it possible to use the shortcut method of rehydrating the grains familiar to most American cooks.

In North Africa, couscous is served with a savory stew and a bowl of hot sauce, the whole assembly also is given the name of "couscous." We offer some recipes for the stew, too, including a classic that calls for seven vegetables (more or less, depending on how you count them).

Couscous goes particularly well with highly seasoned gravies, as, for example, in goulash. As a Mediterranean foodstuff, it goes quite well with many Italian and Spanish dishes, and some New World preparations are candidates too.

Try it sometime with your favorite chili recipe. It's great that way.

Preparing couscous grain is simple enough, but the steps are unusual. We begin with some preliminary considerations. (For those who wish to use it, the short-cut method is included at the end.)
● Equipment: Besides everyday items, the cook will need some means of steaming the couscous. Traditionally, this is accomplished in a double-chamber cooking pot called a couscoussier. The stew simmers in the lower half. The upper half has a perforated base to allow the steam to rise through the couscous.

The grain can be cooked just as well over simmering water as in any kind of similar steaming apparatus. Another choice would be a wok with a steamer insert. You will need cheesecloth to spread over the holes to keep the couscous from dropping through.

● Timing: It takes two or more hours to prepare couscous in the classic manner, but the cook is actively involved only now and then. About the same time is required for making the accompanying stew.

The following method for preparing the couscous is adapted from Paula Wolfert's "Couscous and Other Good Food From Morocco" (Harper), still the best treatment of the subject. The recipe does not depend on the amount of couscous you prepare. One cup of the grain (about 6 ounces) yields around 2 cups of finished couscous.

● Moistening and drying: Measure the couscous in a large bowl. Add 3 parts cold water for each part of couscous. For example, 6 cups water to 2 cups of the grain. Immediately stir and drain.

Spread the couscous in a large flat pan. Allow to stand 10 minutes, then rake through the grain with your fingers to lighten it and break up any clumps. Pick up small handfuls of grain and rub it gently between your hands, allowing the grains to fall back in the pan.

● First steaming: Set up your steaming apparatus. If using a wok, for example, place water in the wok and bring to a boil. Insert the steaming rack, making sure the water does not touch it. Arrange a layer of cheesecloth over the holes.

Using the same rubbing action as in the previous step, drop about a third of the couscous onto the cloth, allowing it to form a soft mound.

Steam for 5 minutes, uncovered, over brisk heat. Then add the remaining couscous in the same manner. Over moderate heat, steam the couscous, uncovered, for 20 minutes. Be careful not to allow the steamer to boil dry.

● Second drying: Dump the couscous back in its pan, spreading it out with a large spoon. Sprinkle a few tablespoons of cold water over the grains. When the grain is cool enough to handle, rake through it with your fingers and then rub it to loosen the texture as in the first step. This time, though, oil your hands.

If the couscous seems excessively dry, sprinkle on a few tablespoons more water and rake it again.

● Holding for later service: You can prepare couscous ahead of this point. Cover

Chef Mary Brady

Education proves to be a two-way street

Fourteen years ago on March 4, 1979, the Southfield location of Diamond Jim Brady's was opened.

I have been working with Brady's for 15 years now. At that tender age I never imagined that I'd be at any job for this long. It's funny how things turn out . . .

Back in those days, my expertise was more of a managerial sort. Although cooking was a hobby and had paid my way through school, I didn't want to make my living at it. So instead, I concentrated on learning P and L statements, inventories, pricing, menus, hiring, training and the day-to-day task of directing the staff.

The latter was much more difficult then, as being a friend with everyone was much more important than being a boss. I was younger than many of the people working for me, and honestly, not as "restaurant-wise."

Thankfully, there were enough of them who became teachers and friends. They were kind enough to pass on their years of experience and smart enough to at least listen to what I had to say. Hopefully, they learned something from me, too.

Then came the opportunity for me to teach a management class at Schoolcraft. The first was the toughest. The students were constantly testing my knowledge. It forced me to be on my toes at all times. I learned what it means to be humble.

The second term at SCC was when my love affair with food and sophisticated cooking began. For the next two years, I spent much of my time experimenting, competing and building towards certification. The support of the culinary staff helped me to attain a very wanted goal — certified executive chef, the only female in Michigan and one of 16 women in the United States.

Although I'm proud of my accomplishment, I'm also sad that more women do not just "go for it." I moved from teaching management to directing the American Harvest and finally to developing a breakfast class that was strictly cooking and being creative with food.

During this time I was fortunate enough to compete in major world contests in Singapore and Luxembourg and to attend a classical cooking class in Ireland. The opportunities to expand my wisdom were limitless.

Getting older has meant getting better. The little things don't bother me. Patience has become a virtue and I truly believe in doing unto others as I'd have them do unto me. Respect of others means much more than being liked. Respect, appreciation and esteem are mottos.

And, reflecting back over the years, I realize how many wonderful things have happened to me. Through a combination of work, excellent teachers and friends, public support, love, great students, blood, sweat and tears, and great employees, I've been able to attain goals that I never thought possible.

And maybe, just maybe, the luck of the Irish had something to do with it, too.

CHEF'S SEMINAR: On March 8, Schoolcraft College's Fifth Annual Chef's Seminar will be held from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. in the Waterman Campus Center. Eight different cooking workshops will be offered, featuring Detroit's best chefs. The $150 fee includes lunch. To register call Continuing Education Services at 462-4448.

KITCHEN GLAMOR CLASSES: Novi's Kitchen Glamor store hosts a series of drop-in classes Tuesdays at 1 and 7 p.m. during the next several weeks. The fee for most of the classes is $3.

With all of the classes, recipes are provided free, and there will be small portion tasting. Everyone is welcome.

Kitchen Glamor is located in the Novi Town Center. Call 380-8600 for more information.

STAR CLIPPER RIDES RAINBOWS: With any given reservation on the Michigan Star Clipper dinner train during the months of January, February or March, the reserver's name will be put on an honor roll list. This will automatically enable an oncology patient from Children's Hospital to come to the railroad in July for the Christmas in July celebration with Santa Claus. July train rides will be funded by the Coe Railroad, organized by the Rainbow Connection.

OLGA'S: Olga's Kitchen has decided to sell its popular salad dressing in 12.6-ounce bottles. For each bottle sold for $3.29 in any of its restaurants, Olga's Kitchen will donate 25 cents to a local food bank in the Detroit metro area.

OLIVE OIL HOTLINE: If you've ever wondered about the "heart-healthy" benefits of olive oil, call the International Olive Oil Council hot line. The hot line is open 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, Eastern time, call 1-800-232-6548.

AMERICAN HARVEST OPEN: Schoolcraft College's American Harvest Restaurant is open for weekday lunches. The on-campus restaurant, which features gourmet specialties prepared by Schoolcraft's Master Chefs and Culinary Arts students, is open to the public from 11:45 a.m. to 1:15 p.m. Friday's meal is a buffet. Cost is $8.25 per person. For more information, call 462-4488.

KNOW THE FOOD PYRAMID: Want to know what you should eat to stay healthy? "The Food Guide Pyramid, beyond the Basic Four," a new brochure, helps answer this question. The brochure condenses the information from the U.S. Department of Agriculture's (USDA) booklet "The Food Guide Pyramid" and features the new food guide graphic on the elements of a healthy diet.

The brochure was developed by the Food Marketing Institute in cooperation with the USDA. For a copy: send a check or money order for $1 payable to the Superintendent of Documents, to Consumer Information Center, Department 159-Y, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

RECIPES WANTED: A new feature is appearing in the Creative Dining section of this paper. Known as HomeTown Cooking, it will feature recipes contributed by readers. With that in mind, we'd like to take this time to ask that anyone with a recipe that they'd like to share with all their neighbors in the Northville/Novi area please send it, along with your name, address, and phone number, to HomeTown Cooking, 104 W. Main St., Northville, MI 48167.

Any recipe will do. Perhaps you have a dinner-time favorite, or a recipe for bread that's been passed down through your family for generations, or maybe just a good, fast work-night cost-cutter. Send it in, and we'll feature it on these pages.

PRETZEL SNACKS: Borden has introduced Snacking Turtles Pretzel Snacks. Bite-sized pretzels that provide a low fat alternative to regular chips. The 10-ounce family size bag, suggested retail $1.29, is available in supermarkets.

NEWSALSA: Enjoy the just-made fresh taste of Sonora Valley salsas, cheese sauces and dips, found in your grocer's refrigerated case. Sonora Valley Authentic Recipe Salsas mix the garden-fresh crunch of zesty peppers and savory onions with the richness of red ripe tomatoes to create a fresh taste and just the right amount of spice. New Sonora Valley Guacamole is made with 100 percent California black-skinned Hass, the finest avocado available. The Sonora Valley family of Mexican foods also includes nacho Cheese Sauce, Chili con Queso Dip, Bean and Cheese Dip, Fajita Mix and western-style Pico de Gallo-type salsas. Look for them at A&P, Farmer Jack's and Kroger.

AUNT JEMIMA BISCUITS: Detroiters are among the first in the nation to taste the new fresh baked, Ready-To-Eat Aunt Jemima Premium Biscuits. Available in both Premium Buttermilk and Cinnamon Raisin, the biscuits contain real buttermilk. The biscuits need only be reheated in an oven or microwave. They are sold in packages of six with a suggested retail price of $1.29.

PRETZEL SNACKS: Borden has introduced Snacking Turtles Pretzel Snacks. Bite-sized pretzels that provide a low fat alternative to regular chips. The 10-ounce family size bag, suggested retail $1.29, is available in supermarkets.

SWISS CHOCOLATE: If you're looking for the perfect hostess gift, consider Kambly's prize-winning specialty cookies from the Emmental region of the Swiss Alps. Available at Jacobson's, Merchant of Vino and Nelman-Marcus. There are 11 different kinds, that combine, old-world Swiss tradition, culinary artistry and craftsmanship with 20th century production.

"The Refrigerator Door" is a list of coming events and short notes about food and drink. If you have an event planned or a brief announcement you would like included here, send it care of this newspaper, 104 W. Main Street, Northville, Mich., 48167. Photos or other artwork welcome.

Local chefs featured in seminar

Cooking is a lot like sewing — it's easier when someone shows you how to do it. Do you remember how frustrated you were the first time you whipped egg whites for a cake.

These questions raced through your mind as you energetically beat the whites with a brand-new whisk in a stainless steel bowl. "How long are you supposed to whip them? What are they supposed to look like? What does it mean when a recipe says 'whip until light'?"

"Cooking is visual," said Chef Marcus Haight of the Lark Restaurant in West Bloomfield. "When people see how something is supposed to be done once, they can do it themselves. When I show people how to whip egg whites, I pass the bowl around so they'll know how something should look."

Haight found his way through the snow and sleet Sunday, Feb. 21, to teach a class in the "Michigan Chef Series — Your Recipe For Success," at the Kitchen Glamor store in West Bloomfield.

He is also one of eight popular area chefs who are participating in the "5th annual Chef's Seminar for Sophisticated Cooks," 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. today, March 8, at Schoolcraft College, 18600 Haggerty Road in Livonia. (See Cooking Seminars chart inside for details).

Also participating are Chef Mary Brady of Diamond Jim Brady's, Novi; Chef Milos Cihelka of the Golden Mushroom, Southfield; Brian Polcyn, The Pike Street Restaurant, Pontiac; and Ed Janos, presently a chef without a kitchen, but late of Too Chez in Novi. He plans to open his own restaurant "Avenue Diner" in the former Juke Box restaurant in Royal Oak in June.

"It's fun to share your knowledge. You learn a lot by teaching," said Janos, who teaches in the Kitchen Glamor series. "If you teach, you're also teaching yourself."

Other chefs in the Kitchen Glamor series include Peter Loren of Opus 1, Detroit, 12:30 p.m. Sunday, March 21; Kathy Ruis, Rowe Inn, Ellsworth, 12:30 p.m. Sunday, April 18; Brian Polcyn, Pike Street, Pontiac, 12:30 p.m. Sunday, April 25, and Chef Milos Cihelka, 6:30 p.m. Monday, May 3.

Chefs who teach do it because they enjoy it. Teaching isn't easy, it's a lot of hard work. Haight said he spends three hours of prep time for every cipes. The seminar at Schoolcraft College includes lunch.

Many area chefs teach classes at the Les Auteurs School of Cooking in Royal Oak. Participants receive recipes, tastings of each dish prepared, and a glass of wine.

Upcoming classes on Saturdays, 10 a.m. to noon will feature — Peter Ashcroft, Chuck Muer Corporation, March 6; Dan Rowlison, Oakland Community College Culinary Arts Program, Farmington Hills, March 13; Tim Cakra, Morels, Birmingham, March 20; and James Stawara of Oakland Community College, April 3.

Tuesday 6-8 p.m. classes will feature — Lorraine Platman, Sweet Lorraine's, Southfield, March 9; and Michael McFarlen, Beverly Hills Grill, Beverly Hills, March 23.

Thursday 6-8 p.m. classes will feature — Jeffrey Drew, Cocina Del Sol, Southfield, March 11; and Jeffrey Gabriel, Schoolcraft College, Livonia, March 18, March 25 and April 15.

SILVER HAKE WITH POTATO-VEGETABLE CRUST

Hake (or any firm fleshed fish), about 2 pounds
Shrimp Mousse (see below)

1 medium potato
1 medium zucchini
1 carrot
Oil or butter for browning fish

Spread Shrimp Mousse over fillets. Peel, julienne and blanch vegetables. Press julienne vegetables into mousse. Heat oil or butter in skillet. Add fish, vegetable side down. Brown and finish in 350 degree oven. (Figure 10 minutes cooking time for every inch of fish thickness. About 8 to 10 minutes).

Serve with pea pods and a butter or vegetable sauce. Serves 6-8.

SHRIMP MOUSSE

1 pound shrimp, raw
2 egg whites
1 cup heavy cream
diced dill, to taste

Puree shrimp in food processor, add whites and incorporate well. Slowly add cream until mixture is thick and creamy. Add dill to taste.

Couscous need not be soggy stuffer

with a damp cloth; it can remain several hours.

● Final steaming: Replace the cheesecloth on the steamer and, using the rubbing action, return the couscous. Steam 20 minutes, uncovered. The couscous is now ready to serve.

Traditionally, it is mounded on a platter and the elements of the stew are arranged on or around it. If you like, you can sprinkle the couscous lightly with cinnamon.

A good reason for the popularity of the shortcut method of preparing couscous is that it is very fast. You can have a pot of couscous ready in less time than it takes to make the dishes that go with it. In general, the procedure is this:

Couscous (Shortcut Method): For each cup of couscous, bring 1 1/4 cups of water or stock to a boil. If you like, add 2 or 3 tablespoons of butter or olive oil. Add couscous, stir quickly and immediately turn off heat. Set the pot aside, covered, for five minutes. Fluff with a fork to break up lumps.

The couscous grain can be used as a starch in any menu, particularly as an accompaniment to a stew with a savory gravy. In North Africa, any number of preparations have been evolved to accompany the grain.

Many of the recipes produce enough food for a small crowd; the following, adapted from Paula Wolfert, is sized for a smaller household.

COUSCOUS WITH CHICKEN

1 pound couscous made according to instructions for the grain
1 chicken, cut up, with or without giblets as you choose salt, pepper to taste
1/2 teaspoon ground ginger
3 pinches saffron powder (be more generous if using saffron threads)

1 onion sliced
several sprigs parsley about 3 cups chicken broth
1/4 pound black raisins
1 pound red onions
1/4 cup unsalted butter
1 teaspoon cinnamon
2 tablespoons sugar
2 tablespoons honey
1/2 pound blanched almonds, toasted or sauteed until brown

Prepare couscous in time to be ready when stew is finished.

Trim chicken pieces of excess fat and skin; trim giblets if using.

In large saucepan, place chicken, salt, pepper, half the ginger, saffron, sliced onion and parsley. Add chicken broth. Simmer about 20 minutes, until tender.

Soak raisins in water to cover. Slice red onions; place in heavy-bottom pan with butter.

Cook uncovered for 10 minutes; add remaining ginger and pepper to taste. Stir in cinnamon and sugar. Cook another 15 minutes, covered, then add about 1/4 cup of chicken cooking liquid. Cook uncovered, until thick and syrupy.

Drain raisins and add to onions. Reserve.

Preheat oven to 450 F. Remove chicken from its cooking liquid and allow to drain. Brush chicken with honey and set in the oven for a few minutes to glaze.

Arrange couscous on platter. Arrange chicken over grain; pour onion-raisin sauce over chicken. Sprinkle with almonds.

Serve broth separately for each guest to spoon over couscous as desired.

Yields 4 to 5 servings.

One of the most famous Moroccan preparations is this, adapted from Robert Carrier's Taste of Morocco (Potter).

Laurel Glen aging well

than Hamtramck being a city within Detroit.) The well-drained, rocky clay-loam soils on the eastern slopes provide a diverse and complex range of growing conditions even within single vineyards.

Laurel Glen's vineyards face east, as do most of the great vineyards of the world. We cannot think of a single great vineyard that has a western exposure. The vineyards face the rising sun and warm up early, yet face away from the intense afternoon sun. This gives the grapes a relatively constant daily temperature and a moderate climate with a slightly longer growing season promoting even ripening and full grape maturity.

Still, uniqueness does not necessarily equate to quality and if this uniqueness does not yield excellent wine, then there is no story.

The Laurel Glen story destroys the myth that a great cabernet sauvignon must be a hard, tannic, blockbuster wine in its youth to be ageable. Laurel Glen cabernets taste good when young. They have the aroma of black currants, blackberries and cherries with smooth, rounded tannins and a persistent finish. The same balance of fruit, oak and tannins that make the wine attractive when young, also give it the requisite structure to age gracefully.

Hoopsters sink Western 76-63; head to districts

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

The Mustang basketball team used an explosive first quarter to cruise past Walled Lake Western 76-63 in the second round of the WLA playoff Tuesday.

Rick Biermann and Todd Rabourn each scored six points to lead Northville to a 13-point margin at the end of the first frame. The home team had no trouble holding that lead until the final buzzer.

The Mustangs were to face Plymouth Canton Saturday in a battle for fifth place in the conference. Northville coach Larry Taylor said finishing in the top half of the 12-school conference would be nice, but today's first round district game with Novi is much more important. "We will go out and try to win it," Taylor said. "But our most important game is Monday with Novi."

"It's a whole new season." Northville will play the Wildcats at Plymouth Salem High School tonight at 6 p.m. A win over Novi would send the Mustangs into action Wednesday against Livonia Churchill. The district's championship game will be held Friday night.

"If we can get by Novi," Taylor said, "we should have a good chance to get to the final."

Northville will have to play as well as it did against Walled Lake last week to make to the district final.

Using an up-tempo style, the Mustangs came out gunning Tuesday. A full-court press forced several Warrior miscues and lead to several easy baskets.

"We were hoping to wear them down and keep the pressure on them," said Taylor.

Six Northville players scored in the period. Biermann hit two three-pointers.

That lead expanded to 46-31 by halftime. Taylor said play got a little sloppy in the quarter.

"We will go out and try to win it. But our most important game is Monday with Novi. It's a whole new season."

LARRY TAYLOR
Northville basketball coach

"I didn't think we played that well," he commented, "but when you lead by 15 you're doing something right."

Biermann led the way with seven points in the quarter. Mike Maschek added six.

Western never challenged in the second half.

Taylor said he was pleased with the defensive effort in the third quarter. The Mustangs limited Walled Lake to just two field goals in the period.

The fourth quarter saw the teams simply exchange baskets. Taylor said he was happy to play Western at home.

"We always have trouble winning over there," he added.

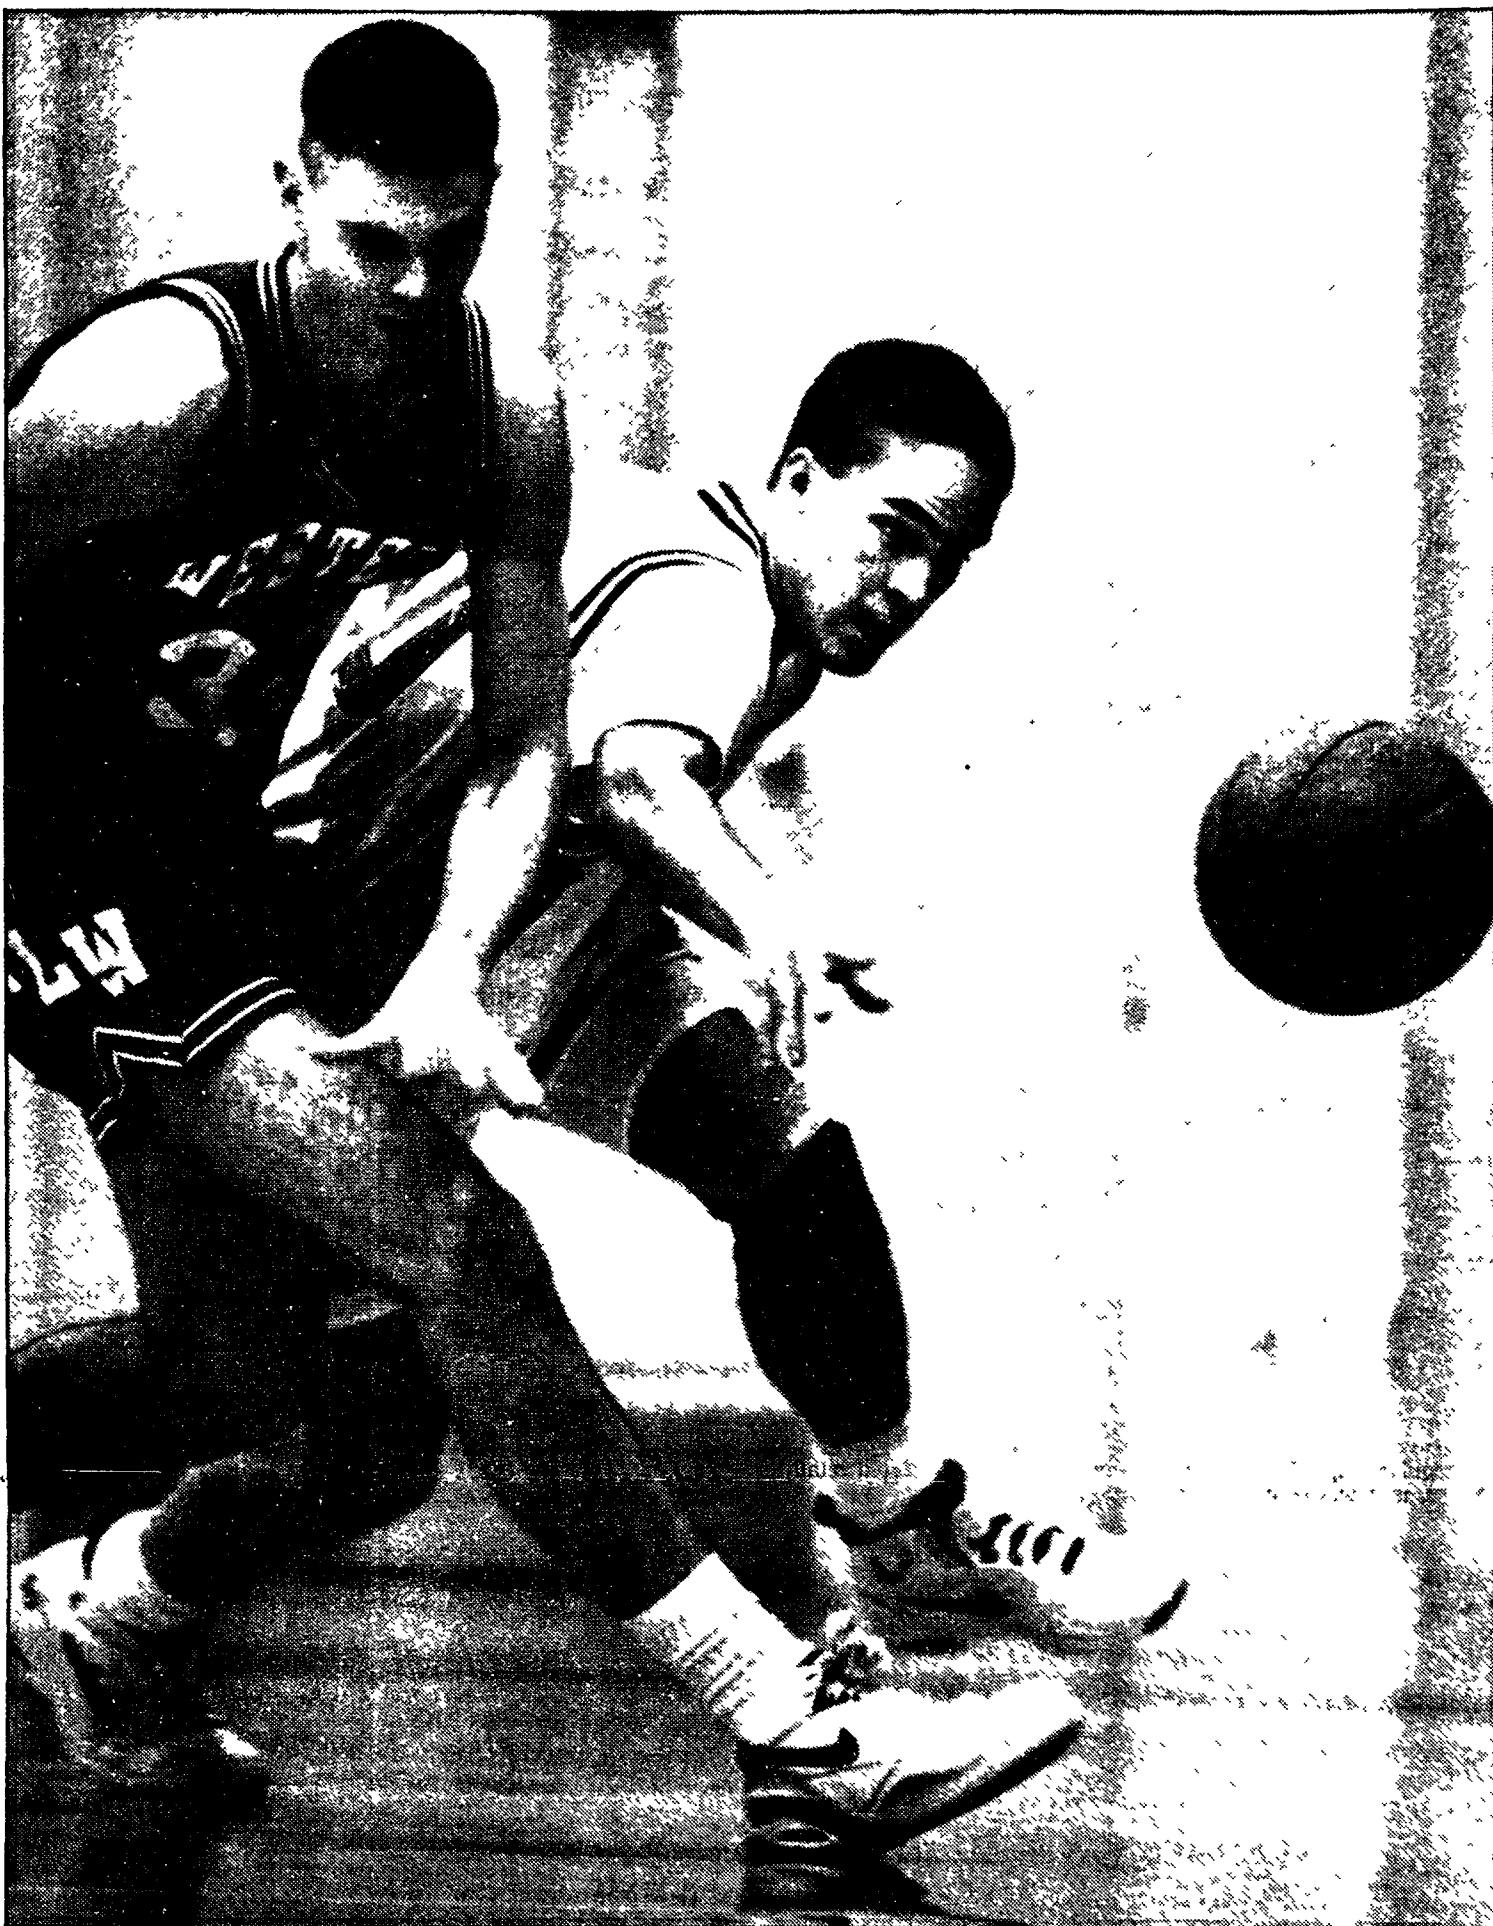

John Farrar quietly led Northville with 17 points.

"He's been one of our most consistent scorers," Taylor noted, "and he's playing better defense than before. He's doing a lot of good things now."

Maschek had a solid game with 16 points and 16 rebounds. Rabourn had 15 and Biermann 13.

Tonight's district matchup with Novi will be the third meeting between the schools this season. The Mustangs won the other two.

"I don't think we will do anything different offensively," Taylor said. "Our adjustments will be on defense."
