

Shopping plaza parking divides businesses

By SHARON CONDRON
Staff Writer

Acting against the recommendation of township department heads, planning commissioners Tuesday night allowed the owner of Highland Lakes Shopping Center to erect a fence on his lot to block out traffic from a neighboring night club.

By a narrow 3-2 vote, planners gave Bill Autry the green light to put up a 600 foot fence on the western boundary of his shopping center lot to keep patrons of Woolly Bully's from gobbling up parking spaces in the center's lot.

Autry contends he needs the fence to fend off traffic from the crowds that frequent the night club. His tenants, who were also at Tuesday night's meeting in droves, say parking has been a "holy nightmare" since the Woolly Bully's opened in early March. They say the constant parking problems have caused hardships and financial losses to their struggling businesses.

"I was on vacation when Woolly Bully's opened," Autry told planners Tuesday. "But ever since then my life has been a nightmare."

The shopping center owner came to the meeting armed with angry tenants, his attorney and a court stenographer. One by one each of the late tenants stood up and shared their frustrations about the parking problem and their desire for the fence. They say they are fed up with patrons of Woolly Bully's drinking alcohol in their cars until the crack of dawn, littering and urinating in their lot, and asking to use their restrooms while waiting in long lines to get into the bar.

Most of the shopping center tenants have been thriving Northville business owners for the past 10 to 15 years and they say their businesses and their livelihoods are being jeopardized by the parking problem caused by the new business in town.

"I know how hard these people work, many of them are customers of mine," said Darlene Feucht, branch manager of Michigan National Bank, one tenant of the center. "It seems so hard to believe that one business can cause so many problems and so much grief and a loss of business."

Paul Foster, the owner of Canterbury Cleaners, agreed. He said his cleaner comes to his store every morning between 4 and 5 a.m. He said she's scared to walk through the parking lot now because there are still people drinking in their cars at that hour. He says lingering patrons of Woolly Bully's have frightened his staff and customers away.

"On Saturdays it starts early," he said about the bar patrons flocking to the parking lot. "And if I don't have a good Saturday then I don't have a good week."

"I've been here for 13 years and I like this community but (I'm wondering now) should I trust its government?"

Restaurant owners at Cindy's and Wing Hing say they've lost business because their patrons can't park close enough to their stores to eat in or take out.

The same holds true with complaints from the florist, salon and the tobacco shop owners who say their businesses thrive on one-stop shoppers who enjoy the convenience of close parking. They say because of Woolly Bully's traffic it's no longer convenient for their patrons to shop at their stores.

Janet Zuyus from Trader Tom's

Tobacco Shop said she's lost business because what used to be a quick, convenient stop for her customers has been likened to a shopping trip to the mall.

"My customers are saying, 'If we have to park this far we might as well go to Twelve Oaks,'" she said.

Woolly Bully owner Mark Roman sat quietly Tuesday night and listened to the allegations against him and his business. Roman contends he's done everything in his power to try and strike a deal with Autry over the parking fiasco. He said he's offered to post a parking attendant, place signs and rope off the area, all at his own expense but Autry was unwilling to compromise.

Closer ties discussed in joint meeting

By STEVE KELLMAN

Tuesday's joint meeting of city, township, schools and chamber of commerce representatives served to remind community leaders how closely their boards already are, and how far they have to go.

Northville Schools Supt. Leonard Rezmierski noted that the meeting grew out of recent conversations with other officials over the need for a shared vision for the community's future.

"We were concerned because it seemed we were all in competition for the same famous tax dollar," Rezmierski said.

The point of Tuesday's forum was to acquaint the various elected and appointed heads with each other, "and have a better understanding of what each body is trying to do, because we're all in the same community," he said.

School Board President Carol Rahimi noted that the latest threat against Northville Public Schools' tax dollars comes not from local sources but from Lansing.

"We'll take the whole tone of the evening right down," Rahimi said, as she launched into an explanation of the latest property tax reform proposal that was being debated on the state house floor even as she spoke.

"It does not look real promising for Northville Public Schools," she said. "Some of the things that we had to cut

Molesting charges lead to inquiries

By MICHELLE KAISER
Staff Writer

Northville Township police have received only a few calls following a weekend mailing of letters informing parents about a former Northville Public Schools' latch-key aide being charged with criminal sexual conduct.

"We've started to get some calls," Capt. Philip Presnell said Tuesday morning. "We're sorting them out and investigating information to see where things will lead us."

Over 80 families whose children may have been in contact with the aide during his employment with the school district were invited to a special meeting Wednesday night. Police were scheduled to review what they could about the case, in which David Thomas Broad was charged with seven counts of criminal sexual conduct. All charges involved sexual contact with two 8-year-old girls.

The police department's psychologist, Dr. Ron James, and a school psychologist, were also scheduled to be on hand to answer questions.

Northville school officials also sent letters last week to the families of potentially affected children. In addition, Early Childhood Specialist Mary Kay Gallagher attempted to contact all the families by telephone Friday and Saturday and tell them to expect the notices in the mail.

"I didn't want the parents to receive the letters over the weekend and not know where to call," she said. "Certainly, the parents are concerned, but it's my feeling that they have been very calm and handled the situation very well and talked to their children."

Gallagher said she was able to speak with about 60 of the families and left messages with many of the others. She said the advanced contact might have helped keep down the number of inquiries the parents made.

Although Presnell did say he has received about five or six phone calls related to the case, he declined to comment regarding what the calls were about.

"We're exploring various avenues with the information we have received," Presnell said. "Something isn't going to happen quickly. It takes time to sort things out."

The 24-year-old Broad entered a plea of not guilty and is awaiting trial at Wayne County Circuit Court. He

State tax plan stalls Mainstreet '92 schedule

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

Mainstreet '92 has run into a roadblock in Lansing.

Downtown Development Authority members agreed Tuesday to delay jump-starting the stalled plan for a new Cady Street parking deck, due to a property tax reform plan that seems to be speeding toward approval by state lawmakers.

The plan would roll back school operating millage rates and raise the state's sales tax from 4 to 6 percent.

It would also throw the financing plan for Mainstreet '92 into disarray by limiting the amount of property tax revenue that could be captured to finance the $6.2 million project.

"It seems like every time we get cranked up and ready to go, the state does something else to us," a frustrated Mayor Chris Johnson said Tuesday morning.

"It would have a dramatic downward effect on available resources," agreed Chief Financial Officer Mark Christiansen.

Northville Schools Supt. Leonard Rezmierski was at the meeting to give DDA members the low-down on the Lansing plan, which could have dire consequences for out-of-formula school districts like Northville.

"It's a precarious time," he said. "A good scenario is we could break even, get no (revenue) increase whatsoever. For a growing district like us, that's not good."

More likely, the district would have to seek additional millage from the voters by June 1, he said.

The DDA's decision to wait on Mainstreet '92 shelve an ambitious implementation schedule proposed by City Manager Gary Word. Word had hoped to put the deck plan back on the fast track.

"How can we proceed with a finance schedule in this economic climate," said DDA Member Greg Presley.

"My intent is to force the issue," Word said. "It was my intent to go to the council next Monday, April 5, and ask for a public hearing May 3. . . . There's a lot of uncertainty out there, and I just think collectively that we've got to make a determination to go forward or to stop, if we've got a good reason to stop."

The DDA scheduled an April 20 meeting to review the tax plan's status and its impact on Mainstreet '92.

Johnson also appointed a subcommittee Tuesday to review previously-voiced concerns about the DDA's plan to levy a special assessment on downtown businesses, to finance part of the deck. Some had criticized the flat-rate assessment in its original form and suggested a fee based on proximity to the new deck.

Presley cited two new possibilities, basing the assessment on a businesses parking needs or on its state-equalized value.

Johnson directed the subcommittee, made up of Word and DDA members Presley, Dave Larsen and Dee Richardson, to consider "some policy direction options" and report back to the DDA April 20.

Cuban excursion turns into relief effort

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

It started out as a simple boating excursion.

Now Stewart Oldford, Sr. and John Genitti just want to get through it without sparking an international incident.

Oldford, owner of Northville Lumber, originally planned on cruising over to Cuba April 18 for a leisurely one-week boating trip, but he has since been recruited into a flotilla bringing humanitarian aid to the beleaguered island nation.

The crossing, aboard Oldford's 42-foot trawler, has been in the works for more than a month. Genitti said he talked his way aboard when he overheard Oldford's son discussing the trip at Northville Lumber. He called Oldford on the spot, introduced himself and mentioned that he owns an identical boat. He was then invited along for the ride.

It was when Genitti began phoning friends for information on Cuba that the trip took a turn for the weird.

He first called a friend in Key West, who hooked him up with John J.

Young, editor and publisher of a Key West newsletter called the "InCUBA-tor." The publication bills itself as "A Caribbean newsletter hatching ideas for progress in the Florida straits."

"I got John Young's phone number and I called him, and my life hasn't been the same ever since," Genitti said.

Young provided Genitti with plenty of background on the island, but then asked if he would mind bringing a few over-the-counter drugs across on the trip, since the island is plagued by shortages of medical supplies. Genitti agreed.

Young already had flown a shipment of aspirin, antibiotics and other medicine to the island and hand-delivered them to a provincial hospital in Matanzas, in apparent defiance of a U.S. embargo on trade with Cuba. Now he is recruiting several boaters into the effort, but this time he is seeking the necessary licenses from the U.S. Office of Foreign Assets Control.

The travelers could have expected some complications from the start.

Relations between Cuba and the United States have been icy ever since the Cuban Revolution in 1959 ousted the Batista regime and Fidel Castro took control. The communist country has been off-limits to U.S. citizens on and off ever since the revolution, and travel is only permitted to certain U.S. citizens including government employees on official business, newpeople on assignment, and scholars conducting professional research.

Northville businesses network at 3rd expo

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

The Northville Community Chamber of Commerce mixed local businesses with pleasure at the third annual Networking Northville business expo.

Seventy-five businesses lined the walls and filled the floor in Northville High School's cafeteria, including 13 restaurants and food vendors. Chuck "Chef Rocky" Rachwitz, of Rocky's of Northville, sauteed skate fillets coated in a seasoned flour and garnished with capers, while Papa Romano's filled two booths with chicken, ribs, pizza, pasta salad and garlic bread.

Outside the cafeteria, 16 non-profit booths vied for attention.

The chamber's executive director, Laurie Marrs, estimated attendance at the third annual event to be near 500. A steady stream of people meandered among the booths from the 5 p.m. opening until the 8 p.m. close.

"We had people, literally, that we had to kick out at 8 o'clock," she said.

One change this year was that business owners were encouraged to set their booths up between 3-4 p.m., and spend the next hour circulating before the expo officially opened.

"The businesses really enjoyed seeing the other businesses — they learn from each other," Marrs said.

Space was tight in the cafeteria this year, and not all the businesses that wanted booths received them. "We did eke out three more around the perimeter," Marrs said.

Still, she said, 14 people were on a waiting list for the coveted spots. The spots were handed out first to chamber members, and then to non-chamber members.

The reduced price for booth space even convinced eight merchants to sign up with the chamber, she said. Only two non-chamber members made the final cut.

The popular event may be moved into a larger space at the high school next year, to accommodate more booths and visitors.

A more extensive and more timely advertising campaign is also planned to draw out the crowds.

"Next year, I would like to see 800 participants," Marrs said.

Township flexible on disposal fees

a fixed budget who typically go to Florida for the winter.

For a one-time fee of $30, winter vacationers can jet off to the sunny south and not worry about paying the township's monthly bill for curbside garbage pick up.

Water and sewer commissioners have recommended the township drop winter vacationers from the curbside garbage collection program while they are out of town and then reinstate their service once they return. Vacationers would be dropped from the township's garbage program while they are gone and charged $30 to be reinstated upon their return.

The $30 fee recommendation will go before the township board on April 8, but it won't be the first time trustees have gotten wind of it.

The fee idea surfaced at the board's meeting last month but was nixed when two trustees thought the original recommendation for a $40 fee was too high for residents on a fixed income.

Treasurer Rick Engelland and Trustee Barbara O'Brien objected to the $40 fee and went to the March 17 water and sewer commission to voice their concerns about it. At that meeting, commissioners heard and responded to the board members and lowered the fee by $10.

"I'm opposed to something that high," Engelland said at the board's March 11 meeting. "I think it's too high for some residents like those on Township Clerk Sue Hillebrand said the fee stems from complaints some vacationing residents had over paying for garbage pick up when they weren't home. She said the township has never had a fee like this in the past but added that she hopes imposing it will help discourage some residents from jumping on and off the system.

"This is a request from citizens who want to be dropped from the township's solid waste collection program," she said. "We have numerous citizens complaining about it. They leave the community for six months or longer and all they want is to be disconnected from the solid waste pick up (program)."

Hillebrand said imposing the one-time fee will free township residents from the monthly bill of $10.50 and allow them to reconnect to the system once they come back from vacation.

The township clerk who favored the $40 fee said the reduced charge "would just barely cover our costs. In my opinion, $40 was a fair amount."

"We can't go on like this because it's an administrative hassle," she said. "It's barely enough to substantiate the program and cover the costs of enforcing the program."

Two arrested for drunken driving in township

Township police arrested drivers in two separate drunken driving incidents, stopping the motorists within minutes of each other last Saturday.

In the first incident, an officer finishing an accident report in the parking lot of Woolly Bully's watched a GMC pickup pull from the lot spinning and squealing its tires, fish tailing out of control as it exited to eastbound Seven Mile Road. After making the 2:13 a.m. traffic stop, the officer noted a strong odor of intoxicants coming from inside the vehicle. The driver, a 26-year-old Redford Township man, reportedly said he had drunk five or six beers.

After performing several sobriety tests, the driver agreed to take a portable breath test which registered his blood alcohol level at .15 percent, according to reports. He was placed under arrest and transported to the station where a breathalyzer reportedly measured his blood alcohol content at .15 percent also.

The driver was released at 9:05 a.m. after posting a $100 cash bond. In the other traffic stop, occurring at 2:14 a.m. on Seven Mile and Haggerty roads, an officer arrested a 24-year-old Canton man for driving under the influence of liquor.

The officer was behind the vehicle, a Ford pickup, on eastbound Seven Mile when the truck crossed into the left lane from the right about four times. The officer paced the driver's speed up to 60 mph in the posted 45 mph zone.

After making the traffic stop, the officer noted the driver's eyes were red and his speech was slurred. When asked how much he had had to drink, the man replied "two beers," according to reports. The driver performed several sobriety tests before consenting to a portable breath test, which measured the man's blood alcohol level at .26 percent, reports state.

The passengers in the extended cab truck, all of whom were reportedly too intoxicated to drive, were transported to a phone at Schoolcraft College while the driver was placed under arrest and taken to the station.

A breathalyzer there reportedly registered the man's blood alcohol content at .26 and .27 percents.

At 12:35 p.m. the driver blew a 12 still over the legal limit, and was lodged until 3 p.m. when his blood alcohol level measured .07 percent. He was then released on a $100 cash bond.

REVOKED LICENSE ARREST: City police cited a South Lyon man 41, for driving on a revoked driver's license March 25. The man was stopped for driving with expired plates while heading west on Eight Mile at 4:40 p.m., and police discovered that the license plate tab had been altered.

The man was arrested and released on a $100 cash bond after a court date was set.

CAR KEYED: A vehicle parked on Cady Street was vandalized sometime between 7 p.m. March 27 and 9 a.m. March 28. The vehicle, a maroon 1988 Ford Explorer, has its driver's side door and rear panel scratched with a sharp object, causing about $150 in damage.

TWO INJURED IN CAR ACCIDENT: Two Plymouth residents were injured following a two-car accident at 8:50 a.m. March 26 at Haggerty and Five Mile roads.

Both motorists were westbound on Haggerty, slowing for a traffic backup, when a 19-year-old woman driving a 1987 Ford Tempo failed to stop in time, striking a car in front of her. The woman was transported to St. Mary Hospital while the other driver, a 63-year-old man, refused treatment. The woman was cited in the incident.

Citizens with information about the above incidents are urged to call Northville City Police at 349-1234 or Northville Township Police at 349-9400.

this year, that we were hoping we could restore, we may not have that option anymore."

The proposal, as it stood Tuesday, would roll back the state-equalized value of all property to its 1991-92 level and limit schools to an operating millage of 18 mills. Local voters could allocate up to nine mills more, but some of the additional millage would go to the state.

"We're a growth district, and this penalizes growth districts from our analysis," Rezmierski said. "It affects all of us."

The proposal also affects the city, said Mayor Chris Johnson, because of its impact on the Downtown Development Authority's proposal to build a 469-space Cady Street parking deck. The plan, known as Main Street '92, was initially criticized for its heavy reliance on tax capturing.

"That plan has been modified substantially," Johnson noted. "However, we're still not ready to run it up the flagpole for a final resolution."

On the bright side, Johnson noted that the city and township had been actively involved in a five-municipality review of potential shared services among the Northville, Plymouth and Canton communities.

"I think (Township Supervisor) Karen (Baja) shares the same enthusiasm for this project as I do," he said, drawing a nod of agreement from across the room.

When asked why the review did not include other communities, Johnson said, "We will welcome Novi, Livonia, South Lyon or any other groups into the process if they want to join."

Baja agreed, saying, "We're not trying to exclude anyone, but you've got to start somewhere."

considering closer ties between the city and township.

"One of the things we feel it's time for is to start looking in different directions, maybe become a little more visionary," said Chamber President Al Ferrara. "Maybe it's time for Northville Township residents and city residents to put aside their geographical differences and come together as a community... Perhaps the rallying cry could be 'One Northville, one future.'"

Ferrara said a merger could take the form of increased shared services or a full consolidation of city and township governments. "Those are the decisions that we could leave to some sort of task force," he said.

"The issue of merger has been looked at as long as I've been in this community, and it's always been an interesting topic," said School Board Treasurer Robert McMahon. "Maybe this is the time..."

School issues need to be decided on a local level — Ford

By LEE SNIDER
Editor

The federal government should play a supportive role in education but leave the decision making to those at the local level.

That was the view of Congressman William Ford, D-Ypsilanti, who addressed an audience of some 60 people at a town hall meeting Sunday in Northville.

"I spent almost all of the last 12 years arguing with people who are orthodox conservatives insisting that they knew better in Washington what you ought to teach in schools and how you ought to teach it than the local and state authorities did," he said.

"You'll find (representative) Dale Kildee of Flint and Bill Ford arguing the way the conservatives used to argue 30 years ago in Congress to keep your paws off local decision making."

Ford's visit was sponsored by Advocates for Quality Education, an activist group that promotes understanding of issues relating to education. The congressman opened the session with an impromptu speech, then fielded questions from members of the audience. The event lasted 1½ hours.

Ford, chairman of the House Committee on Education and Labor, said he has offered President Bill Clinton some suggestions on the approach to education he'd like the president to take.

"We have been cautioning this new administration that they're going to have difficulty with my committee on both the Democrat and Republican sides if they repeat the mistakes of their predecessors by coming in with propositions that try to dictate to state and local people what education should be in their communities."

Ford, who was a school board attorney before beginning his congressional career 28 years ago, spoke with authority on several topics pertaining to education. Advocates president Greg Purtell said.

"I thought it went extremely well," Purtell remarked. "He answered the questions thoroughly and spoke his mind. He said so many things I didn't know."

The meeting, held at Genitt's Samuel H. Little Theatre, was video taped and will be shown at 7:45 p.m. tonight and April 8 on Omnicon cable channel 15. It will also be broadcast at 6 p.m. April 21 on Metrovision channel 12.

Ford said that while per-pupil spending averages $4,651 in Wayne County, there are wide funding discrepancies between the various districts.

"That means that children living on one side of the street have $6,500 being spent on them and on the other side of the street $2,000 less. That kind of a discrepancy indicates that one of those school districts is having a little tougher time dealing with quality education."

Though Ford was first elected to Congress in 1964, he only began representing the Northville community after last November's election. The change was the result of the redistricting that followed the 1990 census.

"I have never met a person without an opinion on a school tax," the congressman said in broaching the issue of voter apathy. "It really fascinates me to note that when he have school board elections and millage elections across my district a turnout of 8 or 9 percent of the total eligible voters is not unusual."

"It puzzles me because if it's important enough to discuss in every bar and country club why in the world isn't it important enough to go out and vote?"

Ford offered some alarming statistics on the cost of secondary education, saying tuition at the University of Michigan increased 195 percent during the 1980s, making U of M one of the most expensive public universities in the country.

He said of the eight secondary schools in his district, Michigan's 13th, Madonna University receives the most federal aid dollars due to the high percentage of nursing students the Livonia school trains. He said many low-income students are pursuing nursing careers, accounting for the high federal grant outlay.

Ford's tone was congenial throughout most of the exchange but suddenly became defensive when a questioner compared public education in the United States unfavorably with the system of schooling in Japan.

"You've made an invidious comparison," Ford insisted. "I've been in Japan a few times and I've learned enough about the Japanese system so that I'm no longer impressed that it's all that much better than anything — the only thing we know it's better than is what they had before we imposed the American system on them during the occupation of (General Douglas) MacArthur."

Ford added that the youth suicide rate is higher in Japan than anywhere else in the world, a fact many experts attribute to the rigorous system of testing imposed on Japanese students.

"They excel in math and science, but when you ask them to conceptualize a plan for the future you're running into a brick wall. Our kids that can barely read can conceptualize the end of the Earth and its reconstruction because it's our approach that we ought to develop minds to be independent and probing."

In addition to the cablecast dates, copies of the video tape of the Ford town hall are available on loan. Call Janet Thurber at 348-8319 for more details.

Senate approves auto insurance reform bill

By TIM RICHARD
Staff Writer

The result was a foregone conclusion, but the Michigan Senate spent a full day reaching it.

The Senate has approved, 20 to 17, the auto insurance reform bill aimed at cutting costs and paring premiums an average of 16 percent statewide.

Rejected were 23 amendments. If House Bill 4156 had been amended at all, it would have had to go back to the House for concurrence — and the four-year debate may have been reopened.

"The trial lawyers almost got away with another one," said Sen. Don Kolvisto, D-Ironwood, floor manager of the bill. "For decades they've bottled up auto insurance, and they almost succeeded again."

The law curbs lawsuits and jury awards. It was bitterly resisted by many attorneys, organized labor, and most Democrats. It was supported by most Republicans and moderate Democrats.

A complication arose when the Senate failed to muster a two-thirds majority (26) to give the bill immediate effect. Instead, it takes effect the first of April 1994. Some lawmakers feared it would give insurers time to raise premiums before being forced to lower them.

The bill, which Gov. John Engler is expected to sign promptly, was supported by 19 Republicans and one Democrat; opposed were 14 Democrats and three Republicans.

Here is how local area lawmakers voted:

YES — Republicans Robert Geake of Northville, Michael Bouchard of Birmingham, Mat Dunaskids of Lake Orion.

NO — Democrats William Faust of Westland, Jack Faxon of Farmington Hills, George Z. Hart of Dearborn and Republican David Honigman of West Bloomfield.

Faust broke ranks with Democrats on the vote to give the law immediate effect.

An attorney, Honigman broke ranks with the GOP, as did Doug Carl of Utica and Fred Dillingham of Fowlerville.

Faxon made a formal objection to the majority's rejection of all amendments: "How shocking! How outrageous! How disgraceful!" he said. "There was not one worthy thought to be found among the entire lot of all of you — 38 members barren."

Hart, whose district contains the offices of AAA Michigan, author of the 1992 insurance ballot proposal, said, "I voted no because it has only been a short three or four months ago that the voters, by a two-to-one margin, voted against Proposal D. There is not much different here today."

Both D and HB 4156 were aimed at cutting costs. But D contained a $250,000 floor on catastrophic claims while HB 4156 placed the floor at $1 million. HB 4156 also contains rules to stimulate competition and insurance sales in Detroit.

Deadline is tomorrow to enter writing contest

There is still time for all middle and high school students in Northville to enter a new writing contest sponsored by The Northville Record.

With the theme, "Let us Play," the competition is designed to provide a chance for young writers to express their creativity with thoughts about recreational needs in the Northville community. The deadline for submissions is tomorrow.

Winning writers will have their efforts rewarded with small cash prizes and publication in the Record, and all participants will receive a token gift. Everyone involved in the competition — including entrants, parents, and teachers — will be invited to a special recognition ceremony the evening of May 13.

After the contest, a plaque with the names of the winners and their teachers will be displayed in the Northville Parks and Recreation building.

Any student living in the Northville School District currently in grades six through 12 may enter the contest. Entries will be accepted in two categories: essays of 500-1,300 words and poetry of 50-200 lines total (one poem or a group of poems).

Entries must adhere to the theme of "Let us Play!" The theme may be addressed in any way that expresses concern with recreation or how it affects the quality of life in Northville.

PURPOSE:

The 1992-93 Student Writing Competition is designed to help students apply their creative writing skills while focusing on community understanding of the need for recreational facilities.

The competition is designed to generate creative efforts and provide an opportunity for young writers to express their concerns for recreation and its impact, and how to improve the quality of life in the community.

THEME:

All entries in the 1992-93 writing program must be directly related to, and expressive of, this chosen theme, "Let us Play!"

ELIGIBILITY:

All students must live in the Northville School District, grades 6-12.

CATEGORY DESCRIPTIONS:

Essay: 500-1,300 words
Poetry: 50-200 lines, total

An entry may be a single poem or a group of poems in any form of verse, rhymed or free, with awards being made on the merit of the total entry. One topic suggestion is to identify a problem or dilemma related to personal or community recreational needs, and propose a creative solution.

JUDGING CRITERIA:

3. All compositions must be printed by a computer on standard letter-sized, unlined white paper. Essays must be double spaced with one-inch margins and a title on the first page. Poems must be single spaced, and individually titled.

4. Students may submit one entry in each category.

5. Teachers are expected to pre-screen entries for competitiveness, accuracy of form, spelling, presentation and affirmation that the student's entry is an original composition. Only the best samples should be entered to represent each grade division.

6. No entries will be returned. Students should retain copies of their work.

7. Delivery deadline is April 2, 1993.

Millage question still up in air

By MICHELLE KAISER
Staff Writer

The latest tax reform proposal is going to "confuse the living pajeobles out of everybody," according to Northville's top school official.

The proposal is already causing school officials to sweat over setting a millage renewal date.

"Trying to explain it to the citizens will be an awesome task," Supt. Leonard Rezmierski said.

The School Finance Reform and Property Tax Relief compromise proposal calls for a statewide vote June 1 to request a 2-cent, or 50 percent, sales tax increase. The additional 2 cents would be dedicated to the school aid fund effective this October.

If the sales tax increase does make a June 1 ballot appearance, Northville officials are already uncomfortable with the possibility of holding its local election as soon as two weeks later. They really don't have that much of a choice, however, since the district's 29.86 mills are set to expire June 30.

It is not certain if the district will ask for a millage increase in addition to the renewal, and no date has been set for an election. There has been some indication the millage question may be included in the June 14 annual school election, where voters will also decide on two school board positions, but nothing has been confirmed.

Rezmierski said the board of education should have some position on a millage date by the end of April since the ballot wording has to be approved 45 days prior to an election.

"What do we write on the ballot — 'please vote for this if . . . '," he said. "I hate to sound facetious, but I would like to see this (reform proposal) spelled out dollar by dollar (before the millage vote). I want to see the real legitimate (explanation). You can see the dilemma we're in."

To make things even more confusing, the new proposal would require Northville school voters to approve the millage renewal before the district would qualify as a "charter" school district. Districts now levying more than 20 mills, such as Northville, would be rolled back to 20 mills. Voters then could approve up to 5 extra mills for enrichment purposes. However, no school district will be allowed to levy more than 25 mills.

"It's just not clear," Rezmierski said. "We'll have to go back to the voters before and ask for all our operational mills. Then it's confusing because we'll then have 20 charter foundation mills. How are we going to separate that in people's minds?"

Another drawback for Northville in the proposal is an equalization of $100 per mill on the enrichment mills. To break even in Northville, the equalization would have to be at least $180 per mill due to Northville's higher state equalized value. If the $100 per mill equalization rate was approved, that would mean $80 generated from each mill would stay in Lansing to be shared with other school districts.

Rezmierski is also questioning the length of the charter and enrichment millages.

"Will this have to be an annual vote?" he asked. "Theoretically, a charter means you never have to come back again, but what about the 5 extra mills? We have a significant number of questions."

Another question local school officials are asking is, why the sudden hurry? Rezmierski said legislators should come up with a solid plan for the voters to consider in September or October which should allow for a good proposal to be in place by July 1994.

"Other than politics, I can't see why they're going so fast," he said.

On a positive note, the superintendent is glad school finance and property tax reform have been the topics of discussion on many legislators' agendas lately.

"The fact that we've got a compromise, yes, I'm optimistic," he said. "However, I am concerned how the schools will pick up revenue. And if the proposal isn't successful, how are we going to explain it to people between June 1 and June 14, if that's the date we select (for a millage vote)? We still have to pass a budget, settle contracts, do some hiring and buy supplies."

Mill Race Matters

Northville Historical Society members and friends gather Saturday, April 3 for the annual Progressive Dinner, this year with an Italian theme. The event begins at Mill Race Village and continues on to area residences for an evening of fine food and camaraderie. A rose pruning clinic is scheduled for the Rose Garden at Mill Race on Saturday, April 17 from 1 until 3 p.m. The clinic is open to all. You need not be a member of the Historical Society to participate.

May provides opportunities to meet and share with active members at the annual meeting. It occurs on Thursday, May 21 and begins with dinner. Also featured will be the annual Key People awards and the election of new board members. A speaker is planned as well. More details will follow, but circle the date now. The Village will reopen for the summer in mid-May on Sunday afternoons from 2 to 5 p.m.

Recently, Boy Scout Pat Roach completed his Eagle Scout badge by coordinating a project for the Northville Oral History Project which expanded the transcription of Oral History in 1988-89. Some audiotapes remain to be transcribed and the entire series now needs editing and retyping. Those interested in volunteering to work on this project should call Diane Rockall, 349-9005. The project is a great way to learn about the history of our community and participate in a unique volunteer experience.

In continuing to organize the materials held by the Historical Society for our archives a collection of snippets preserved by Jack Hoffman for his book, Northville: The First 100 Years has been located. The following is a sampling from them:

"By 1832 settlement of western Michigan had progressed so far that $3500 were appropriated for the survey of a road to the south of Grand River."

"In 1845 the Grand River Road was the great thoroughfare and although in very bad condition from Aug. 13 up to November, an average of 124 wagons came over it daily."

"In 1848 a general plank road act was passed — Grand River-Detroit-Lansing was among the most important at the time."

"The Detroit and Howell, by way of the Grand River Road, i.e. fifty miles long and has 10 gates, and was open in October 1851."

School chief uneasy with latest tax reform plan

By MICHELLE KAISER
Staff Writer

State politicians have taken another step toward school finance and property tax reform, but local school officials aren't sure if they're headed in the right direction.

A recent school reform recipe calls for one part of Gov. John Engler's original property tax cut plan and a pinch of ideas from the bipartisan legislative team (BLT) proposal. Mix well and sprinkle in parts of other tax reform plans for good measure.

Local school officials from the Michigan Out of Formula Districts Association, including Northville School Supt. Leonard Rezmierski, met with legislators last week to discuss the proposal.

Highlights of the compromise proposal include:

- Freeze to state equalized value at 1991-92 levels with an allowance for consumer price index (CPI) increases. Rezmierski said the CPI, or rate of inflation, would probably hover around 3 percent with a maximum rate of 5 percent. Overall, property tax assessments would be reduced an average of 10 percent, taking away $1.9 billion in school revenue, he added.

- Increase the sales tax from 4 to 6 cents on the dollar. State residents could vote on a sales tax increase as early as June 1.

Rezmierski said he thinks legislators may be fooling themselves, referring to past ballot defeats of sales tax increases.

"We on the schools' side certainly have more questions than there are answers for right now," he said.

If the state does hold an election June 1, it could put the local school district in quite a pickle if it decides to hold its millage renewal two weeks later in the June 14 annual school election. And if things weren't already confusing enough, the alternative plan would also provide:

- An 18-mill operating limit. This would qualify districts for a charter which would then allow them an option of requesting up to nine mills for enrichment purposes. The extra mills would be equalized at $100 per mill.

Rezmierski, commenting at a time when the fast-developing proposal included a limit of 20 mills rather than 18, and an enrichment potential of five mills rather than nine, said the plan could put the district in a tough position.

"All of our mills are up in June — there are 29.86 in question of which 7.23 are county allocated. As we understand this process, if this passes June 1, then we have to have a millage vote approved of 22.63 mills. We have to have it passed in order to qualify for the charter and the enrichment."

The tricky part is that in order for a district to have the same spending rate per pupil in fiscal year 1993-94 as in 1992-93, it must levy 25 mills.

In addition, if Northville does qualify for the enrichment mills, it would have to be equalized up to $200, rather than $100 as the plan calls for. "We'll fight for this if this goes through," Rezmierski said. "The equalized amount has to be more than $100. In Northville it would have to be at least $180."

However, with only $100 being equalized, that would mean that the remaining $80 would stay in Lansing.

The superintendent said the "equalization" was merely another attempt at the "Robin Hood" plan, which took monies away from affluent districts for redistribution to poorer schools.

"We're not about to go out and ask for citizens' money that can't be retained in this community," he said.

- A constitutional guarantee of $5,000 per pupil in districts that levy 20 mills for school operating purposes. The $5,000 amount would be indexed to automatically change annually with changes in sales tax and lottery revenues.

Districts below the $5,000 level would be limited to an increase of 10 percent per year until they reach the $5,000 per-pupil spending level. This year's per-pupil expenditure for Northville is $5,739, almost $700 over the proposed spending level.

"We would be harmed because we have more kids," Rezmierski said. "Therefore, there would be no accounting for our growth. If we did have a district that was plateauing or declining in enrollment, then we would have a benefit."

The proposal would hold Northville harmless, though, for spending more than $5,000 on a per-pupil basis.

Since the guaranteed $5,000 foundation would cover all costs associated with K-12 education, categorical funds to cover FICA, school employees retirement, special education, adult education and transportation would be eliminated.

Rezmierski said he fears the school districts will be responsible for making up funds to pay for retirement and FICA.

"We would need to set aside $300,000 a year for the next three years to pay for the lost support from the state," he said. "... Is this another example of shifting the burden to local districts? This alone could be a financial drain on our district for years to come. We cannot support or accept this notion under the current guidelines."

- A 5 percent or CPI cap (whichever is less) per year would be placed on state equalized value growth, beginning with 1993 taxes. The appeals process would also be improved by basing 1994 property taxes on the Dec. 31, 1992, assessment value. This would allow more reasonable time periods for taxpayers to appeal increases before paying the higher assessed value.

- Cost containment aide in health care bidding and strike legislation. "There's got to be a better way (to bid out health care)," Rezmierski said. "There has to be a lot more clout that comes from 550 school districts instead of one."

There's also talk about bidding out general transportation, maintenance and grounds services and additional support services such as driver's education, nursing, social services, etc.

Rezmierski said bidding out such services would require further exploration, weighing unemployment costs and the faithfulness of loyal employees.

The plan also calls for legislation which would take away 1/180th of a district's state aid for each day of a teacher's strike.

"That's penalizing the school districts for a strike by the teachers," Rezmierski said. "We thought strikes were illegal anyway."

The alternative proposal would also include researching special education issues. Up for scrutiny may be the length of the school year and age for special education students as well as other laws.

"We're not out to change a quality program, but make it an equal program for all kids," Rezmierski said. "Is it fair to say because a student is multiply handicapped he should go to school longer? There's no research that says they should go to school from zero to 26 years. We need to re-examine this."

Until they get more answers, Rezmierski said it would be hard for local school officials to back the current school reform proposal.

News Briefs

LIBRARY NEEDS VOLUNTEERS: The Northville Public Library is recruiting volunteers for its ongoing Northville Record newspaper indexing project. Those who would enjoy stepping into Northville's past for at least one hour a week, call the library at 349-3020.

DEAF CAN ACCESS CITY HALL: Telephone Devices for the Deaf (TDD) have been installed at the Northville City Police Station, and are being installed at Northville City Hall. The new devices will allow hearing-impaired people with their own TDD equipment to communicate directly with city officials.

CROSSING GUARDS NEEDED: Northville Public Schools, in cooperation with the Northville city and township police departments, is in need of substitute crossing guards. Anyone interested in learning more about the positions should call 344-8441.

FESTIVAL PHOTOS WANTED: The Northville Community Chamber of Commerce keeps a photo album of the annual Victorian Festival and is looking for contributions. Those with photos they would like to donate from the 1992 festival are asked to drop them off at the chamber office. If you stop by during non-office hours, they may be put in the mailbox. Photos of any of the festival activities are welcome.

NORTHVILLE SHIRTS: Brightly colored and very attractive Northville T-shirts and sweatshirts are now available at the Northville Parks and Recreation Department. This year's shirts feature teal or maroon T-shirts for $12 each, and gray sweatshirts at $18 apiece. Act fast and you can be the first person in your neighborhood to display your support for the Northville community. The shirts are available at the community recreation building, 303 W. Main in downtown Northville.

FOR RENT: Got some office space for rent? The Northville Community Chamber of Commerce wants to hear from you. The chamber maintains a list of available office space in Northville as a service to anyone interested in renting. The chamber can function as a referral service, connecting landlords with space to potential tenants. Chamber Executive Director Laurie Marrs said the chamber regularly receives phone calls from people looking for office space in Northville. Available with space available should call 349-7640 to get on the list.

CITY RECYCLING CENTER HOURS: The city council recently voted to reduce business hours at the Northville City recycling center, located inside the Department of Public Works yard at 650 Doheny Drive. The recycling center will no longer be open Wednesdays between 3-7 p.m. Weekend hours will be cut from every Saturday to the first and third Saturdays of each month, between 11 a.m.-5 p.m. The move is due to reduced use of the center since the city initiated curbside collection of recyclable materials, and is intended to reduce the need for overtime by DPW workers. Since curbside recycling started last February, average use of the center has dropped to 35 cars on Wednesdays and 55 cars on Saturdays. The center is available to City of Northville residents only, and identification is checked at the gate. The center accepts clear, green and brown glass, plastic types 1 and 2, tin cans, household and car batteries, paint, used motor oil and antifreeze, compost material, scrap metal, and newspapers. Liquids should be in sealed, clearly labeled containers. Newspapers should be stacked in brown paper bags or tied into bundles. Telephone books, magazines and road maps are not accepted. For more information, call DPW spokesperson Becky Dozier at 349-3271.

'A taste of Northville' set for May

The Friends of Northville Parks and Recreation will sponsor "A Taste of Northville," a fund-raising event for the parks department Saturday, May 1.

The event will include food samples from several restaurants and silent and live auctions. According to merchandise chairman Bob Prom, some 170 items will be auctioned off and given away, including two airplane tickets to anywhere in the continental United States. A bonus raffle will be held with the prize being every item being displayed in the window of Crawford's Bakery. Items include a rocking chair and table, a throw rug and blanket, a duck decoy, a lamp, bronzes and prints.

The event will be held in the Waterman Center at Schoolcraft College, and all 200 tickets have been sold. According to Prom, however, the Friends are accepting standby names in the event of cancellations.

Radio personality Dale Conquest will serve as auctioneer.

Nancy and Richard Gray of Northville Township were the lucky winners of 100 raffle tickets in an early bird drawing.

"A Taste of Northville" is being held to raise money to apply toward matching funds if a grant the parks department has applied for is accepted. The grant would be used to help renovate Fish Hatchery Park.

Meads Mill teacher named outstanding out-county educator

Meads Mill Middle School teacher Shirley Klokenga has been selected as the 1992-93 Out-County Outstanding Middle School Teacher in the seventh annual Newsweek-WDIV Outstanding Teacher awards program.

Klokenga began her career in 1963 as a seventh and eighth grade English and home economics teacher in the Inkster school district. She taught two years there and didn't resume her teaching career until 1974 when she took a job as a vocational supervisor at Purdue University in Indiana.

In 1980, Klokenga came to Northville, taking a job in adult community education. From 1986 to 1987, she served as advisor and sponsor of the freshmen class the same year she taught nutrition and clothing classes.

In 1991, Klokenga started coaching the seventh and eighth grade cheerleading squad in addition to coaching the sixth through eighth grade forensics teams, a duty she has held since 1988.

Klokenga has held her position as an English teacher at Meads Mill since 1987.

The teacher was nominated for the Newsweek-WDIV award by Norm Hannawald, who wrote: "There are three kinds of people: those that make things happen, those that watch things happen and those that wonder what happened. This banner greets Shirley's students the first day of school. It symbolizes her classroom philosophy throughout the year. Her students soon realize that she expects them to make things happen in their seventh grade English class. They are soon introduced to the corollary, 'to write clearly, you must think clearly.'"

Every day Klokenga teaches and motivates 140 students ranging from gifted to special education. She makes time for students needing help before and after school and during lunch. She phones them or invites them to drop by her home if they're having trouble with homework. In fact, Klokenga has even established her own homework hotline, inviting parents and students to call her at home for information on assignments.

Klokenga's creativity in the classroom is measured by the response of students who are required to write autobiographies. The project is encouraged to involve the family.

"You taught me not just to say something, but to feel something," former student Rochelle Rosser told Klokenga regarding the autobiography assignment.

Other classroom projects Klokenga has led include a letter-writing campaign to soldiers in the Gulf War, writing personal notes to Magic Johnson on a wall-sized poster, sending student letters to former President George Bush on the issue of the economy and the imbalance with Japanese trade, and collecting pull-tabs from aluminum cans that can be recycled to purchase medical machines for children's hospitals. She's also involved her students in supporting the Coalition on Temporary Shelter (COTS).

"Shirley Klokenga is a tireless teacher who has the courage to seek new and innovative ways to present a curriculum to her students," said Dave Longridge, principal at Meads Mill Middle School. "She is never satisfied with her presentations, but is always searching for ways to improve already outstanding lessons."

Highlights of Klokenga's career include:

- Elected as state delegate to Indiana Democratic state convention, 1976.

Metrovision to air ongoing series on medicinal choices

According to a New England Journal of Medicine report, one in three Americans uses alternative medicine.

That intrigues Dr. Philip Singer, who has done his own investigation of the subject.

The medical anthropologist and Oakland University professor as put together an ongoing series, Complementary Health Therapies, which is being shown on MetroVision.

The series covers a wide variety of alternative medicines, including spiritual healing, acupuncture and homeopathy. Singer filmed the project at National Service Hospital in England, where some of these unorthodox methods are practiced.

Singer, a Southfield resident, interviews doctors, therapists and patients. The documentary is neither pro nor con.

"My view as a medical anthropologist is describing, as accurately as possible, things as they are," said Singer, who teaches in OU's School of Health and Science. "So I'm not coming out on one side or the other. I'm just describing what is taking place."

"Complementary Health Therapies" is a timely topic.

Americans made 425 million visits to unconventional medical practitioners, according to the New England Journal study. That compares to 388 million trips made to primary care physicians.

Many of the people using such methods fall into the 25-49 age range, Singer said.

Also, the National Institute of Health recently opened an office dealing with the research of alternative medicine.

Singer's series coincides with the PBS series Healing and the Mind dealing with the same subject.

Unlike his work, though, Singer said the program hosted by Bill Moyers takes a positive view of alternative medicine. Also, Singer notes that he paid $10,000 out of his own pocket to produce this documentary.

"From watching the PBS series they will draw the conclusion: Indeed, if you're not satisfied with your primary care physician — and many people are not — you can go to one of these unconventional doctors," Singer said.

"If you watch the one on SWOCC (Southwestern Oakland Cable Commission) you will know there are things going on that are interesting ... and need to be looked at."

"If they're shown to be worthless, we should not support them."

Last year, Singer went to Devon, England, to videotape the project. He received a fellowship after writing to the University of Exeter, which offers master's and doctorate degrees in complementary medicine.

Singer noticed a cultural difference in how it's practiced.

For example, the British used spiritual therapies in a low-key manner, whereas in the U.S. such methods take on the "MTV look" of televangelism.

The programs vary in length from 20 minutes to nearly an hour and a half. Six are edited. More are on the way.

Todd Whitman co-produced the series. He said response so far has been positive.

"People are very concerned with health issues in general," Whitman said. "Some people feel, 'I don't care if I got to stand in a bucket of guacamole; if it cures cancer then thank you.'"

Singer credits Whitman and MetroVision for taking his work beyond classroom material stage.

He offered the program to Channel 2, but they wanted to edit it into a two-minute segment. Singer pitched the idea to Lark Samouelian of SWOCC.

"Really, community access is the technological town hall of the 21st century," he said.

Someone to Lien On

Consider the case of the happy homeowner who has just found a buyer willing to meet his price. Suddenly, the proceedings come to a grinding halt when the seller is informed that the title to the property cannot be guaranteed due to a mechanic's lien. As the seller searches his mind, all that can be recalled is a home improvement project done some years back for which the contractor was paid in full. However, what the homeowner did not anticipate was that one of the subcontractors failed to be paid for his work by the contractor. It was then the subcontractor's right to place a charge (lien) upon the property for the amount owed him. Homeowners may avoid such problems by insisting upon a provision in home improvement contracts that entitle them to a Waiver of Mechanics Lien Rights.

It is wise to consult with a seasoned attorney about laws which may affect you before embarking on any significant home improvement project. If you have a legal matter which needs attention, RICHARD J. CORRIVEAU & ASSOCIATES P.C. are now accepting new clients. We have over 15 years of aggressive corporate and private experience. Businesses could have opted for compromise

The Northville Township Planning Commission buckled under the pressure of the moment Tuesday and voted to approve a fence permit for the Highland Shopping Center parking lot. Highland Lakes tenants, led by building owner Bill Autry, applied considerable heat to commissioners at the Tuesday night meeting, prompting officials to cast their ill-advised vote.

The fence, installed yesterday, partitions a portion of the parking lot of Woolly Bully's, the novel new diner/rock club that's drawing enormous crowds on the weekends. The place has been so successful in attracting customers that patrons' cars have been spilling over into the adjoining parking lot of the plaza, causing complaints from the other businesses in the area. Tenants say Woolly's customers are taking over the parking lot and scaring away Highland Lakes patrons by dumping debris and by drinking in their cars until well into the morning hours.

There's certainly some validity to the business representatives' complaints, but Woolly's owner Mark Roman has tried hard to be accommodating. He proposed roping off a portion of the lot during certain hours of the day, and agreed to pay for signage and lot attendants who would monitor compliance with whatever rules were put in place. Unfortunately, his attempts to reason with fellow business operators fell on deaf ears. His neighbors demonstrated a single-minded unwillingness to sit down and work something out, short of having the fence go up.

The Planning Commission's decision to approve the fence permit went against the better judgment of the township chief of police, the fire chief and the building inspector, all of whom urged commissioners to reject the request. Public safety officials maintained that fencing off a portion of the lot could impede the progress of emergency vehicles on medical runs and hinder police attempts to catch suspects or shoplifters fleeing through the parking lot on foot.

But three commissioners, intimidated by the large turnout of irate Woolly's opponents, didn't have the courage to hold off and allow more time for discussion of a less drastic solution. The 3-2 vote on the request for the fence permit means the problem will almost certainly end up being resolved by the courts.

Before Woolly Bully's opened, many complaints were heard from residents deploring the garish appearance of the exterior of the building. Now, not one month after opening, the owner of the establishment finds himself embroiled in a hostile dispute with other business operators in the vicinity. Our hope is that people will soon come to realize that owner Mark Roman has made almost a $2 million investment in his place and is working hard to become a contributing member of the local business community. His establishment employs over 100 people and just this week began a program to regularly provide free meals to low-income local residents.

Serious entrepreneurs whose businesses regularly draw large crowds into the area ought to be encouraged and welcomed by a grateful community, not forced into a position to fight for their financial survival. More of an effort should have been made to arrive at a parking arrangement that everyone in the Seven Mile shopping plaza could have lived with.

Tales of lore go largely untold

That New York World Trade Center bombing — six dead, a thousand injured — is being hyped as one of the greatest explosions in American history, but it can't match a Michigan disaster that killed 44.

In May 1927, the same month Charles Lindbergh flew solo across the Atlantic, Andrew P. Kehoe, 56, dynamited the school and his farm buildings in Bath, a tiny village about 10 miles north of Lansing.

Strangely, historians ignore the incident. Willis F. Dunbar, author of the landmark "Michigan: A History of the Wolverine State," never mentioned it. F. Clever Bald, in "Michigan in Four Centuries," kissed it off in a fraction of a sentence:

"In 1927, when a maniac blew up the consolidated school at Bath, Clinton County, killing 38 pupils, Senator (James) Couzens paid for a new building, and money from the Children's Fund was used to help care for the injured."

Perhaps we shouldn't be surprised. History books also slide past the fact that 23 Michigan legislators were convicted in 1945 of taking bribes, and give the murder of state Sen. Warren Hooper a sentence or so.

Newspapers bring up the Bath school explosion in Sunday features from time to time, I'm told, but somehow I always missed the articles.

The matter was brought to my attention by a Christmas gift from Gundella the Witch, a lady who has occupied a corner of Michigan for 62 years and taught school for 20 of them. Gundella never had heard of the Bath tragedy until she bumped into "Mayday: The History of a Village Holocaust" in Okemos on an autograph expedition for her book of ghost stories.

Kehoe was a farmer, Democratic political hopeful and embittered member of the Bath board of education. In those days, the school superintendent ran the education end of things. The school trustees personally ran the business end, talking to bus drivers about tire problems and performing maintenance on the building.

Kehoe was an expert mechanic, and other farmers sought his help in blowing out stumps. He had access to the school basement, and no one raised an eyebrow when he purchased large quantities of dynamite.

I said Kehoe was embittered. He didn't think Bath needed to consolidate, build a high school, try to meet University of Michigan accreditation standards and raise taxes — particularly when the farm economy was going to pot as Europe recovered from the Great War. Note well: Every single one of those problems exists today except the need for more school construction.

Kehoe timed two explosions to go off simultaneously on a Wednesday morning — one under the school, the other on every building on his farm. Apparently he killed his wife the night before. Unable to sell or give away two horses, Kehoe blew them up, too.

Then he drove his Ford truck to town as rescue work was going on and blew up himself and the hated superintendent.

Dollars versus death delayed

With Tipper Gore pinchhitting for Hillary Rodham Clinton, the national road show of town meetings on health care came to Dearborn last month.

Testimony was serious, thoughtful, sometimes heart-rending.

Our health care system is truly absurd, simultaneously consuming 14.7 percent of our gross domestic product, increasing in cost at nearly triple the base rate of inflation, and leaving more than 35 million Americans without access to medical insurance.

How is such a perverse set of outcomes possible?

Among the culprits, consider the astonishing success of medicine itself. Two examples from my own family make the point.

When my grandfather died in 1954 of a burst aneurysm in an artery, there was no such thing as arterial transplant surgery. He just died, and that was all there was to it.

By contrast, my mother suffered from cardiac arrhythmia, corrected for 17 years by a pacemaker. She contracted pericarditis, a life-threatening infection of the heart, and survived thanks to literally quarts of antibiotics. She had Parkinson's Disease, slowed and mitigated by a bit of dopamine drug therapy.

The fact that my mother died at the ripe age of 90 is testimony to the amazing ability of modern medicine to keep almost anyone alive, even without the heroic measures of intensive care units.

All this, of course, is very expensive. But we have arrived at the point where it is conceptually possible to make a kind of gruesome trade off: money spent versus death avoided, for a while at least.

Sooner or later, while talking with any thoughtful physician, you'll hear something like: "And you must realize that approximately 50 percent of all health care expenses are undertaken in the last six months of life."

What's that? The biggest part of our health care expenditure stems from the wholly natural instinct to buy at very great cost another few months of life for our loved ones!

This is such a shocking statistic — and so remarkably pervasive among the doctors I have talked with — that I spent considerable time rummaging through a lot of medical literature. I found only two relevant studies.

A 1984 study on Medicare services reported that those who died made up 5.9 percent of the study group but consumed 28 percent of Medicare expenses. For patients who died, 46 percent of costs were spent in the last 60 days of life.

A 1989 study examined people aged 65 and over, making up 12 percent of the U.S. population. They consumed 20 percent of physician contacts, 35 percent of hospital visits (and nearly 50 percent of hospital days), and 33 percent of national expenditures on health care.

If my research is any guide, the factual basis for rational discussion of health care policy is largely lacking.

On one hand, we have hopeful politicians saying we can cut enough health care costs to extend coverage to those who lack it by slashing paper work, waste and so forth.

On the other, we have many, many doctors who assert as fact that getting at health care costs will require us as a society to face, for the first time in human history, the complex moral tradeoff between dollars spent and death avoided.

Novi responsible for Quail Ridge

To the editor:

Re: Quail Ridge
Should Novi be held responsible for the real estate development that affects neighboring homes, property or possible health hazards? Certainly, because these homes were here first. The developers screwed up. These people should not have to suffer for someone else's mistakes. All of the board members gave their approval to the letter to Novi expecting them to foot the bill. I commend the board members for taking such action to preserve and protect the citizens of Northville Township.

I feel confident that our board members will support and defend the rights of hundreds of homeowners in the Park Garden sub who have also fallen victim to the developers and poor planning that had a devastating effect on our environment, our health and safety. You see, I live in Park Gardens on Park Lane, a gravel road. In the 23 years I've been in this area I've seen developers like Greenspan that built Northville Colony Estates begin to build from Six Mile Road, but soon the new homeowners were very disturbed over having his heavy equipment, thundering by their new homes so he began to open dead end streets off Five Mile in Park Gardens to bring in his gravel and cement trucks and continued for a couple of years, destroying the base of our road. Who authorized the opening of this road? Developers are still building dead end roads in the Township. With no turn arounds some of these roads back up to Northville State Hospital. We have two newer subs, Northville Colony Estates and Country Club Village right beside each other, yet have no roads joining them together.

Stand on the corner of Whitehaven Road and Whitty Road, look east in Northville Colony Estates. You'll see a dead end street with a new home built across the end of the road. Now talk about poor planning, check that one out.

Just as the Quail Ridge residents have chosen their place to live would we treat them the same way as the Park Garden residents have been? Would anyone dare to suggest a special assessment area for the Quail Ridge residents to correct the damage done by poor planning and development?

I truly hope our newly elected officials have the grit to stand up and fight for all of these homeowners and not ask the affected only to pay for the mistakes.

Planning is costly project

To the editor:

Strategic Planning — derived from the word strategem, which Webster's defines as "a subtle piece of planning designed to trick or gain an end."

By definition, the Northville Public Schools have done well in strategic planning. Parents and taxpayers in the district probably didn't even notice that over a five year period, we've paid $62,013.39 to develop a strategic plan. More than $8,600 was spent last October alone, and this does not include the cost of administrators' time or the disruption and cost of the 55 substitute teachers required while strategizing. It does, however, include Milk Duds, pretzels and even water at a dollar per pitcher.

But what has this strategy really cost? Perhaps we could have retained two of the laid off teachers; or perhaps we could be better utilizing a few of the idled school buses; or perhaps the "pay to participate" program could be less restrictive; or perhaps...

Instead, we have another strategic planning session scheduled for this Sunday from 7 a.m. to 10 p.m. and Monday from 8 p.m. to 5 p.m.

Robert Bernard

Citizens asked to participate

To the editor:

During October, 1992, I participated in the Second Annual Update of Northville Public Schools' Strategic Planning. I joined in with a total of 25 individuals who comprise the Strategic Planning Team. This team consists of two Board of Education members, five Central Office Administrators, one principal, four teachers, citizens and students. The process of Strategic Planning is, and has been, facilitated by Howard Feddema, an educational consultant who has provided consultation service to NPS for five years.

In October, three strategies evolved which recommended: 1. Move the District toward outcomes-driven teaching (or outcome-based education); 2. Design a system challenging all students; 3. Structure the organization along principles of Total Quality Management (TQM as it is known in the private sector.) The three strategies are not unique to Northville, other school districts currently utilize Outcome Based Education, GM, Ford, Michigan Bell, etc. are incorporating TQM into their businesses. And Special Education teachers and support staff often are required to individualize student goals, rather than rely on standard performance measures.

This weekend the Strategic Planning Team is meeting again to review the recommendations and findings of the administrators, teachers and citizens who worked on one of the three Action Teams for Strategies 1, 2 and 3.

I would like to urge those citizens, both those who were involved on the Action Teams, as well as those who were not, to become informed regarding the recommendations which evolve from this weekend's session. These recommendations will direct the future of education in Northville Public Schools. I further urge citizens to become informed regarding the cost of the Strategic Planning Team's recommendations. I know the Board of Education is very interested in hearing citizens' views regarding the future direction of education and the cost, which this direction requires. Finally, I urge citizens to present their views to the Board of Education at future board meetings. The next meeting is April 19, 1993 at the Old Village School.

Library plan has problems

To the editor:

I attended the Public Hearing on the District Library proposal on March 20. The problems associated with operation of the Northville Public Library were well expressed. It's clear, very clear, that there has been a problem for permanent solutions to the Northville Public Library. I have concerns about the proposed District Library solution and certainly the location presented.

The District Library proposal is scheduled to come up before the voters in a few months. If the proposal is passed, it will create a separate tax millage for District Library function. I object to this. I object because it would become another independent taxing unit under its own administrative control laid upon the property owner.

I have another problem with the favored site selection for a library, the vacant Ford Valve Plant (the main reason for my attendance). The location is second rate in being attractive and accessible for a library purpose. Also the proposed investment for this property is very high. The Ford Valve Plant was a "red-herring" promoted to counter the Haller proposed by powerful political advocates of a downtown location. It's too bad that this hang up exists for a squeeze downtown location.

The proposal for a basement site in the Ford Valve Plant is leased to purchase plan for a total cost of $5,758,000 over the term with the asking price by Ford of $1,700,000 for the site, it could appear the developer is leveraging his purchase and development costs upon this library lease to purchase agreement.

In addition to the poor location and cost, the township's chief building inspector, Mike Kruszewski, viewed the building and his inspection revealed many visible and invisible areas that provide real concern for use of this vacant building as a library site.

I would support committing specific community millage for a library and assume 1 mill (generating $710,000 annually from combined communities) will be required to meet existing and foreseeable needs. I can't support another layer of taxing government the District Library represents. Also, I find unacceptable the driving element enforcing the location of our Northville Library within the Northville city limits lowering the ability to find the quality proposal for such a significant investment.

My family and I use and support the libraries. The Northville community made a mistake in the past in rejecting Frieda Haller's gift of quality library site as part of 72 acres at the northeast corner of Six Mile and Sheldon to address this problem. The proposal here included a large multi use facility which addressed a combination of public needs. The rejection was an insult to common sense. Now the library problem is much more complex and more costly to deal with. Much more costly.

Survey results predictable

To the editor:

The Citizens District Council already knows the answers to this questionnaire and so do the residents in this area.

We all know most of the residents (156 out of 200) living at Main Centre, who are probably living on a fixed income, favor a special assessment. Why, the proposal would have no effect at all on them. Most would say double it. Of course they have school age children, why do you think they live there, a car? Why, they have two cars. Why, yes they'd use the deck. Why, they'd drive from Main Centre to the deck daily. Come to think of it, they'd use the deck 24 hours a day.

To the CDC Chair: 1. No new taxes; 2. No capturing.

Cloud of suspicion victimizes all

It's no simple thing to know just when to take action to avert a potential disaster. Sometimes, if you wait too long, the consequences can be tragic. Other times, if you move decisively to prevent something you think might occur, innocent people can get hurt and good intentions can be snuffed out.

The truth of this was driven home to me a few years ago when my aunt became seriously ill and had to be admitted to a local nursing home. Her sons, her only surviving relatives, lived in California and were unable to oversee her care. It fell to me to supervise her treatment and I became her legal guardian.

For the last 3 1/2 years of her life, I visited my aunt in the convalescent center, going to see her about three times a week. She was a medicated patient and, as such, had to be provided with cost-saving accommodations. She was required to live in a room with three other female residents.

Several times, due to personality conflicts or considerations of space, my aunt had to be transferred from one room to another throughout the various wings of the building. Often, when I would show up for visits, I would spend a few moments with the other women in whichever room my aunt was in at the time, and by this circumstance I eventually got to know residents in several different rooms of the home. All of them were elderly women.

After a while, I developed a deep affection for many of my new friends and got it in mind to visit them as well as my aunt whenever I stopped in to the nursing home. I got into the habit of room hopping, and it was not unusual for me to stop off to pay brief visits to five or six residents on my way out of the building after seeing my aunt.

The visits provided the women with much-welcomed companionship. Usually, I did little more than spend a few minutes listening to their conversation, which was equal parts polite small talk and senseless babble; but, though the investment in time and effort was minor, the reward in terms of personal gratification was great.

Most of the women I visited were fearful of their surroundings and confused as to where they were. Some of them would repeatedly call out the names of relatives who were not around, while others would just emit quiet moans of anguish. My presence at their bedsides calmed their restlessness, at least for a few moments, and they showered me with praise for going out of my way to spend time with them. Some of them would plead with me not to leave.

One day as I was headed into a room to visit one of the residents I knew, I walked in on an orderly putting night clothes on a woman at a second bed in the same room. The resident was sitting, half undressed, on the edge of the bed and was clearly startled when I walked in. So was the orderly. I quickly left the room and waited in the hallway until I saw the orderly leave, then I went in to pay my visit.

It wasn't long after that that I was contacted by the administrator of the home and given the word: I would no longer be allowed to enter the rooms of any of the residents other than the one in which my aunt stayed. The administrator was evasive as to the precise reason, saying only that the home was obligated to preserve the "dignity" of the people who lived there.

I was outraged at her decision, and protested that there was nothing dignified in preventing a caring visitor from bringing a moment or two of relief to the terrified people who were confined to the home. Nevertheless, the order stood and, with the exception of my aunt, I never saw any of my older friends again.

One day while venting my anger over this injustice, my mother pointed out something that helped me come to terms with what had happened. She explained that officials of the home were probably concerned about just what my intentions were in going to see so many elderly women. It had to be admitted, after all, that it's a little unusual for a young man to spend time with older people who were not related to him; it could be, she said, that the administrator was worried that I might take advantage of the residents to satisfy some perverse purpose I had in mind.

Why this hadn't occurred to me, I don't think I'll ever know. Perhaps I was too busy being angry to take the time to think it through calmly. She, of course, was right. The administrator wasn't sure what I was doing when I would disappear into the rooms to see people who probably wouldn't have been able to explain what had happened to them if they had been abused.

I later sat down with myself to think about the situation and I realized I could keep the full head of steam I had worked up, I just had to direct it. Instead of being angry with the nursing home officials, I was perfectly within my rights to be outraged at the monsters whose despicable acts had created the climate of fear and distrust that kept me from doing something truly worthwhile three times a week.

Leisurely excursion plans turn into relief effort

That did not deter Genitti, who was granted press credentials by The Northville Record and plans to file articles on the trip upon his return.

Oldford said the idea for a trip to Cuba came to him several months ago as he was wondering where to take his 48-foot Grand Banks, the Newfie Bullet.

"I've been to the Bahamas four or five times, and I've been around the Keys," he said. "I got to thinking, where else is there to go?"

The allure of the island republic is not its political turmoil, he said.

"I'm not interested in the political situation as much as I'm interested in the island and going to a new place . . . You go there to meet the people and see what they're like."

"Someday when the country opens up there'll be a fleet of boat traffic over there. I think we're probably just a little bit ahead of where everybody else is going."

Oldford also brushes off comparisons of this trip to the recent ill-fated voyage of another local entrepreneur.

Restaurateur Chuck Muer, his wife Betty and friends George and Lynn Drummey of Grosse Pointe Park have been missing since a massive storm struck the east coast two weeks ago. Muer's 40-foot sailboat, Charley's Crab, was last seen leaving a Bahamas marina March 12 and an unintelligible 911 call was received from his cellular phone just before dawn March 13.

Muer is the former owner of Rocky's of Northville at 41122 West Seven Mile Road. The eatery, then known as Northville Charley's, was the first of what has since grown into a 22-restaurant chain of seafood restaurants from Michigan to Florida.

Oldford said he last cruised the Bahamas in November, "quite close to where (Muer) was."

"We were down in August, too, when Hurricane Andrew started coming our way. We high-tailed it back to shore and headed over to Ft. Myers to avoid it."

Oldford himself has ridden out several storms in the Newfie Bullet. "I've been out there in 10-12 foot seas and 30-mph winds," he said. "I wouldn't want to be out in any worse weather than that."

Oldford said his ship, a full-displacement trawler with a deep keel for stability, is well-suited to rough weather. "It's a good old slow boat, but quite seaworthy," he said.

The Newfie Bullet carries an inflatable life raft, single sideband radio, UHF radio and navigational equipment including Ioran (Long Range Navigation) that uses radio signals from ground stations to pinpoint a vessel's position, he said.

"For our purposes, I feel we've got plenty of communications equipment," he said.

Oldford said he is more concerned about the political climate upon his return than the weather at his departure.

"Believe me, we won't leave port until we get a good weather clearance," he said. "The main problem's getting back through customs and it's a sad situation. It's not like we're subversives or anything."

The 90-mile crossing, from Key West to Havana, Cuba, should take about 10 hours.

WHAT A RACKET!

Northville's Mark Schwagle loves classic rock and tennis

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

If the disc jockies at WCSX ever come up short on a classic rock request they just may want to consult Mark Schwagle. It wouldn't be fair to say the Northville resident has a collection of 1960-70s CDs. He has a library of more than 100 CDs ranging from the Doors to Led Zeppelin. But that shouldn't come as a surprise. The Mustang senior finds the Age of Aquarius a stairway to heaven. "That whole time period I love," Schwagle says. "I love tie-dye."

Music isn't the 18-year-old's only passion, however. He hopes to turn a love of science into a career as a family physician. And the devotion and dedication he's shown to tennis over the years, well, that's already earned him a spot in Michigan State University's lineup next fall.

"We consider Mark one of the finest players in the country," Spartan varsity tennis coach Gene Orlando said. "He will be an impact player at MSU right away."

Schwagle has had quite an impact in his first three years at Northville High School.

Last spring, he led the Mustangs to their first outright Western Lakes Activities Association title in nearly a decade. With Schwagle at No. 1 singles, Northville went 12-0 overall and 10-0 in the conference.

"Overall, Mark has the best game of anybody I've seen go through Northville," said Mustang coach Dick Norton, who has guided the team for nearly two decades.

Only one piece of the puzzle seems to remain. In each of his three seasons, Schwagle has made it to the Class A finals only to fall a whisker short of being crowned state champ.

According to Norton, the odds should be on his player to grab that elusive honor this year.

"He's hitting the ball so much harder now," the coach commented, "and still keeping it in play. It seems like he's more involved in getting a whole game."

Schwagle agrees.

While ground strokes have always been his strong suit, he said he's worked hard on other parts of his game. Developing a more powerful serve, for example, has been a main objective.

"It really saves you energy for tougher points," Schwagle explained. "I think my serve has become a weapon."

Baseballers aim for Western Division title

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

Question: What do the Detroit Tigers and Northville High School baseball teams have in common?

If your answer was, not much, you're right. That's because the Mustangs almost assuredly have a better pitching staff than the gang at the corner Michigan and Trumbull.

And while the Tigers will probably finish near the bottom of the American League standings, Northville is aiming for a Western Division title. With a veteran group leading the way, second year Mustang coach Tim Cain said he may have the team to beat.

"If we work hard," he said, "we will be one of the teams to beat in the division."

Northville is coming off a solid 1992 campaign. The Mustangs posted an 18-14 overall mark, took second in the Western Division and fourth in the Western Lakes Activities Association.

Just two members of that team graduated, infielders Tim Petrosky and Jerry Birdsall. Northville has more than a half-dozen senior this spring.

"The experience will help a lot," Cain said. "We lost a few games because of our lack of experience last year."

Pre-season practice has been a bit smoother the second time around, the coach added. Players came in knowing what to expect.

"It's helped a lot because they know my system," he commented. "I'm just adding in things now instead of building from the ground up."

The Mustangs will carry 16 varsity players this spring.

Behind the plate for Northville will be Chuck Apligan. The scrappy junior will be joined by sophomore Ryan Kelley.

Fred Swarthout will provide a lot of offensive punch from his first base position.

"Defensively he's as strong as ever," Cain added.

Another top gloveman will be Neil Yaekle. The junior is penciled in as the Mustangs' second baseman.

Cain said defense will be very important for a successful season. He explained that high school teams making less than two errors per game win most of the time.

"Our defense will be awesome," Cain said. "I don't see a weak point on our defense. If the pitchers can keep it in the park, we'll be successful."

Senior Eric Shaw claims the middle of the diamond at shortstop. Jeff Luterek will also play at short.

Transfer student Jason Mavel is a candidate for third base. He will battle Jason Rice for the position.

Danny Walsh heads the list of outfielders. The senior will patrol center field and be flanked by Kevin Shaw in left and Rick Biermann in right. Tom Busard and Dean Frellick will also see time in the outfield.

A total of 11 Mustangs will pitch this season.

Steve Christenson will be the top starter for Cain. Mavel, Luterek, Eric Shaw, John Buser and Kelley will also start.

Relief pitchers will include Busard, Apligan and a host of others. Joe Staknis will start as the Mustangs' closer out of the bullpen.

The senior, who has been slowed by a gland problem, could be a key for Northville, Cain said. Staknis was the ace of the pitching staff last season and hit cleanup as well. Cain said his role this season will depend strictly on his health.

"If he comes back I'd put the money on us for the division," he added.

In any case, Cain said his team is much improved.

"We are stronger than last year," he said.

Plymouth Canton is viewed as Northville's biggest challenge in the Western Division. Westland, John Glenn, North Farmington and Walled Lake Central are the Lakes Division top schools.

Tracksters could have 'best team' ever in 1993

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

Don't look now, but the fortunes of the Mustang girls track team are on the rise.

A year after finishing near the bottom of the Western Lakes Activities Association, Northville appears poised for an upward climb. According to head coach Ann Turnbull, the Mustangs head into the '93 campaign with a full compliment of athletes.

"It's the biggest team we've ever had," she said, noting that 53 students are participating. "It gives us more depth and more spirit to the team."

In years past, Turnbull said, a lot of pressure was placed on a few athletes to do well in many events. With the larger squad that pressure should be removed, she added.

Northville got its first chance to practice on the outside

"I think it's the best team we've fielded ever. We are a lot stronger. A lot."

ANN TURNBULL
Track coach

track last weekend. Turnbull said, inside or outside, her team is doing all it can to prepare for the season.

"The girls are working together," she commented. "They want to do well."

The Mustangs open the season today at home against Novi and Redford Union.

Northville should score well across the board this season. In the long jump, for example, Wendy Forster Marci Bolger and Alana Bradley appear strong. Forster competed at the state meet in the event.

The Mustangs' top high jumper will be Tammy Cook. Neeta Saran, Jenny Sekerka and Christine Werda will throw shot put. Michelle Fetterman returns to compete in the discus.

Sara Kolb and Melannie Hulmer will be the primary hurdlers.

Sprinting events, which include the 100, 200 and 400-meter runs, will see Forster, Bradley and Carrie Diaz. Adrienne Browne, a sophomore, could lead the group.

Laura Brown and Bolger will work in the 800-meter run. Other long distances duties will be handled by cross country star Rachel Liedel along with Michelle Splan, Roopal Vashi, Monica Nayakwadi, Jodi Clark and Sara Goshorn.

Turnbull said relay teams aren't set.

Besides the returning runners, Northville will have a good crop of freshmen. Nicole Weyer, Katie Rempel, Abbie Sherman and Kelly Hough will all compete, Turnbull said.

"We have a very young team," the coach said, "with only two seniors."

Fetterman and Tanya Williams are the Mustang seniors.

Turnbull said talent is spread throughout the roster. The key will be to maneuvering it to Northville's best advantage.

At any rate, Turnbull laid some heavy praise on this year's squad.

"I think it's the best team we've fielded ever," she said. "We are a lot stronger. A lot."

Best wishes to the student athletes of Northville High School We wish you an enjoyable and successful season

Kickers on rise

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

Soccer coach Bob Paul is hoping a talented blend of youth and experience will add up to a winning combination for the Mustangs this spring. Players such as Valerie Schuerman, Regan Wiseley and Suzi Morton will provide veteran leadership for Northville while young guns like Renee Androsian, Emily Lawrence and Kristen Wasolaski will help shoot down WLAAs rivals.

According to Paul, the Mustangs have one of their most solid rosters in years.

"I think our starting lineup doesn't have a lot of stars," he said. "But this year we seem to have a lot of talent at each position."

And Northville will need all of that talent to compete in the WLAAs — the state's best soccer league. Paul said nearly half the conference's schools routinely end up in Michigan's class A top 10.

The Mustangs begin the campaign rated No. 9 by virtue of an outstanding 1992 season. Northville went 10-3-3.

Maintaining those high standards will depend on one factor, Paul said.

"The question is," he said, "will our younger players play with the confidence to do well. If we play with confidence early, it should be a strong season for us."

A strong test of that confidence will come tonight as Northville starts its season against Troy Athens at home, 7 p.m. The Red Hawks handed Northville a 4-1 setback to start last season.

"We've got revenge on our minds," Paul said. "It's a loss we remember well. They beat us soundly."

The coach went over his starting lineup for tonight:

At forward, Schuerman leads the way. The senior right winger netted 13 goals and 18 assists last season.

Paul said he will change strategy a bit this year to take more offensive chances.

"We will definitely be more offensive minded," he said. "We want to take advantage of our speed up front."

Wiseley and Krista Howe will see plenty of action at forward as well. Morton heads the list of midfielders. The senior will share time with super sophomores Lawrence, Heather Hutzing and Katie Kohl.

Renee Androsian is a top returning forward for Northville.

Standout Jessica Jones returns at goalkeeper. The sophomore tied the record for most shutouts in a season last year.

"She's recognized as one of the top goalies in the state," Paul said.

Senior Karyn Schwartz will back up Jones.

Northville will feature a strong group of reserves.

Juniors Amy Venemear and Colleen Litzelman will play forward and fullback positions. Sophomore Lindsay Schulenberg and freshman Amy Heckemeyer will concentrate on fullback.

Tracksters seek repeat of league championship

By SCOTT DANIEL

Following up on perfection isn't easy.

But that's what this year's Northville High boys' track team has to do. Okay, the Mustangs weren't perfect a year ago, they did lose one dual meet.

Other than that, Northville sailed through the season and captured the school's first-ever Western Lakes Activities Association title. The squad went 10-1 overall.

Jamie Miller, Chris Lehr, Brandon Cuadra and Ryan Huzjak have all departed the scene. As if replacing that talented group wasn't enough, Northville coach Dennis Faletti must also deal with a smaller team this season.

Numbers are down slightly because of pay-to-play, Faletti said. Northville usually has 50 to 55 students in track. That number has dipped to 40-45 this spring.

"I didn't think it would be this much of a factor," Faletti said.

With a smaller team, he said it will be very important to avoid injuries and illness. The Mustangs will need everyone to remain a top club in the conference.

"We will be okay if everyone is running and jumping to their abilities," Faletti said. "We should have a good season but it will be hard to replace the losses."

Northville begins its season today against Novi. The coach said cold weather has kept his team off the track. Faletti said he wasn't sure what to expect against the Wildcats.

"Your guess is as good as mine," he said.

The Mustangs do have an influx of young performers. A total of 16 freshmen and sophomores came out this spring, all of whom will be spending their first spring on varsity.

Many of Northville's returning tracksters are young as well.

In the long jump, for example, Chris Gomersall, a sophomore, looks like the main man along with junior Brian Dogonski. Bernie Tomsa will work the high jump.

Two pole vaulters return. Bo Fowler and junior Jason Petrie should score well for Northville.

WLAAs shot put champ John Gatti returns. The junior will throw the discus as well. Bryan Kelley and Rob Subotich will also throw the shot.

A pair of Justins will run the hurdles. Cataldo and Lankes will try to replace graduated Brian Butz.

The Mustangs will be strong in sprinting events.

Dogonski will be the top 100-meter sprinter, Rick King runs in the 200 and defending 400-meter WLAAs champ Subotich is back.

"He looks real good," Faletti said of Subotich. "He was sick most of last year. This year, hopefully being healthy early will help."

In the 800, Todd Zayti, Marc Golden, Matt Hamister and Petrie are strong runners. Chris Harrison, Eric Goerke, Jeff Zwiesler and Marc Ritter are top long distance men.

The picture is still a little fuzzy for the relay events. Faletti said some spots are filled.

In the 400-meter relay, Bob Oiler and Farb Navi will join King and Dogonski. Fowler, Brian Jackson, Hamister and Petrie will run the 3,200-meter relay.

Golden, Zayti, Petrie and Subotich appear set in the 1,600. Faletti said he wasn't sure who would run the 800-meter relay.

The coach said his team's strengths will be in the shot put and discus with Gatti and sprints. Faletti said its hard to tell where other strengths may fall.

"We haven't been on the track yet," he said. "Every year in high school you graduate so many kids its hard to tell what your strengths are (early)."

Best wishes to the student athletes of Northville High School We wish you an enjoyable and successful season

Seniors dominate softball squad

With the loss of stars like Laura Apligian, Kara McNeil and Stacey Nyland, 1993 figures to be a rebuilding year for the Mustang softball team.

NOT! Northville coach Frank Friemund said the loss of those three, all of whom have gone on to play college athletics, will hurt. But the Mustang skipper believes his team has the talent and proper attitude to remain competitive in the Western Lakes Activities Association.

"I think most teams, given what we've lost, would be rebuilding," Friemund said. "But my seniors are providing such great leadership and are setting such high standards. . . (that) I'm looking for a good year."

Northville finished with a 15-12 mark last season, which included 13 wins in the 18 games, and tied for second place in the tough Western Division.

Apligian, McNeil and Nyland provided about half of the Mustangs' offense a year ago. Nyland also dominated from the pitchers mound as did Apligian at catcher and McNeil at second base.

Friemund said his younger players learned a great deal from those three.

"We learned how to win," he commented.

Senior Christy Green moves behind the plate from her shortstop slot of last year. Friemund said she is a natural for the position.

"She's got great tools," he said. "A quick release, strong arm and a terrific understanding of the game. I think she could be one of the best in the league."

Green's battery mate will be Karl Krupansky. The junior has improved her velocity from a year ago and is adept at hitting specific spots in the strike zone.

"She's worked really hard," Friemund said. "We expect that she will have a good year."

Tanya Gamary returns to first base. Also a senior, she is a vital cog in the Mustangs' offense. Northville went just 2-6 with Gamary out of the lineup last year.

"As long as she can stand up she will be at first," Friemund said. "We are a different team without her."

Second base is unsettled at this point. Senior Sarah Christenson or sophomore Jamie Green could open at second, depending on where Friemund goes at other positions.

Lori George slides over to shortstop from third base a year ago. The senior is outstanding defensively and has a rifle for a throwing arm, according to her coach.

Junior Jenny Glineski and Christenson are working out at third base. In the outfield, a couple of positions appear set.

Junior Sara Kemp and senior Kristen Davis have earned spots, Friemund said. A host of Mustangs, Juniors Jennifer Marshall, Chanan Chase and Kristin Moore, could take the third outfield position.

Friemund said very few field positions are set in stone. He said it will take awhile longer before an everyday lineup is established.

"At this point," he said, "anything can happen."

A pair of freshmen will see varsity action later on in the season.

Pitcher Andrea Moretti and catcher Jennifer Sheehan are excellent prospects for the Mustangs, Friemund said. Both have shown ability and determination in their short time with the program, he added.

Linksters look to continue winning wats

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

In just two short years, the girls golf team has established a winning tradition at Northville High School.

The Mustangs went to the state finals in their first year and last season took the Western Division title. Coach Trish Waldecker is confident her squad can uphold the program's winning ways this spring.

With five of the WLAA's eight schools in the Western Division, she said another division crown is tops on her list.

"I think winning the division is more prestigious than the conference," Waldecker said.

Northville went 12-3 last season with all of the setbacks coming out of the conference. The Mustangs were third overall in the WLAA.

Three golfers graduated from the program. Top player Kelli Woodsom is now at Miami of Ohio University while Kate Crawford and Stacey Howe moved on as well.

The Mustangs do have a talented group of returning players, however.

Seniors include Kristine Arnold, Maria Candela, Kelly Casterline, Beth MacLean and Becky Zeppa. Casterline and Candela will likely take the No. 1 and No. 2 spots in the varsity lineup while first-year player MacLean may crack the lineup as could Arnold and Zeppa.

"I expect some good rounds from her," Waldecker said of MacLean.

"She's a good all-around athlete," Katie Kernohan and Megan Bataran head the list of juniors.

"She's put a lot of time into her game," Waldecker said of Bataran. "She has a good mind for the game."

Sophomore Lindsay Casterline will be among the team's top four players, Waldecker said. Jodi Fischer, Kyle Mills and Heather Nix will contribute as well.

Freshmen Amy Kohl and Jenny Dixon round out the squad.

"I think you'll hear about her," Waldecker said of Dixon. "She has a beautiful golf swing."

Six players compete in varsity matches, with the top four scores counting toward team totals. Waldecker said golfers will have to earn their spot among the top six from week to week.

"Shoot the scores and you will play," she said.

The coach said she will be pleased if her team can come in at 215 or less for nine holes.

"Anything under 220 in the early spring is good," said Waldecker.

Livonia Stevenson, league champs a year ago, is probably the team to beat, the coach said. Other strong clubs will include Livonia Franklin and Canton. But that doesn't mean the Mustangs should be counted out, either.

"I think Northville will be dominant," Waldecker said.

Northville opens the season April 19 against Ladywood.

a mandatory manager's meeting will be held April 28. For more information call 349-0203.

FLOOR HOCKEY: The 1993 Northville Parks and Recreation spring floor hockey season will be starting soon. Teams may register now until April 6 at the department for the men's over-18 league. Games are played at the community center gym on Main Street. For more information call 349-0203.

UMPIRES NEEDED: Northville residents interested in umpiring high school and summer league baseball should contact the Wayne-Oakland Balls and Strikes Association through Matt Burnash at (313) 532-8986 or (313) 328-0478. You must be at least 18 years old.

SOCCER: Girls premier soccer players who have no team to play for in the spring '93 season, call Tom Coyne at 427-3336. For players with a birthdate of Aug. 1, 1976, and younger who have no team to play with, Linda Hamilton, USA Women's National Team, and Tom Coyne, USYSA National Championship, will provide an opportunity for girls premier soccer players to train and compete this spring season.

WATER FITNESS: Need some exercise but hate to sweat? Water fitness is the way to go. Designed for adult swimmers and non-swimmers who want to lose excess pounds and inches without the strenuous exercise of aerobics, water workouts use the resistance of the water to firm and tone your muscles. The class is for adults, ages 14 and over. Cost of the program is $30 and will be held Mondays and Wednesdays at the Northville High School pool. Call Northville Parks and Recreation at 349-0203 for more information.

Mark Schwagle will attend Michigan State University in the fall.

Tennis, medicine in Schwagle's future

Since having a cast removed from a broken finger a few weeks ago, he has been practicing twice a day. He often hits with his father, Tom, before school and then with the Mustangs or brother Matt in the late afternoon.

"I try to work on everything," Schwagle said.

The senior said he is working to make up for a nearly two month layoff with the broken finger. Norton said Schwagle hasn't missed a beat.

"I think he's ready to go," he added.

Schwagle began playing tennis as a 2-year-old toddler. Tom Schwagle would throw Mark and Matt tennis balls and let them hit into the wall — or off his head.

"Dad would wear a laundry basket over his head so we could hit harder," Mark said.

By the age of 11, he was entering United States Tennis Association tournaments. Schwagle placed third in a national event as a 12-year-old.

His USTA experience has given him the opportunity to travel around America. He's been to California, Texas and major cities such as Atlanta and Boston.

"You get to see a lot of the country," Schwagle said, "which is nice."

The senior could have gone to any corner of the USA to continue his tennis career.

Minnesota, Notre Dame, Miami of Ohio, UCLA, Georgia and Duke are just some of the universities that recruited him. Schwagle said he chose Michigan State for a couple of reasons.

"I wanted to stay within the area," he said. "I like the midwest a lot."

The 18-year-old added that he wanted to remain close to friends and family. Nobody was more ecstatic about Schwagle's decision than Orlando.

The second-year coach said he's in the process of restoring the Spartans as a Big Ten power.

"We want to bring tennis back to MSU," Orlando said. "Bringing a player like Mark in will help."

Unlike in high school, he said Schwagle will be eligible to play both singles and doubles. Orlando said he will likely play both as a freshman.

The Mustang certainly has the poise to do both.

Schwagle plays with a poker face, rarely revealing his thoughts or feelings to an opponent. He says it's this even temperament that allows him to compete at his best.

"I really don't like to show much emotion on the court," Schwagle said. "I tend to lose my concentration if I do that. It's never really suited me."

Staying low key carries over to his personal life as well. He said he enjoys doing relaxing things like listening to classic rock or hanging out with friends.

"I guess I'm kind of a laid-back guy," said Schwagle.

HPV infections common in U.S.

By ELLEN MOZURKEWICH
Special Writer

Human papillomavirus (HPV) infections are the most common sexually transmitted infections in the United States today. Up to 30 percent of sexually active adults have been infected with the HPV virus at some time in their lives. Most suffer no long-term ill effects from the infections.

HPV infections, however, do contribute to the development of cancers of the cervix, vulva and penis in a small fraction of infected people. This association has caused public interest in HPV viruses.

Most HPV infections are acquired through sexual contact. Infections can rarely be spread through close contact with inanimate objects bearing infectious secretions. Epidemiologists have documented transmission of HPV infections by contact with poorly sanitized tanning booths and by sharing underwear.

Scientists have discovered more than 50 different viral types of HPV. Of these, some are responsible for the warts seen on non-genital skin. Others cause visible warts in both female genital areas. There are several "high-risk" virus types that tend to be found in pre-cancerous and cancerous cells on the cervix, vulva and penis. Along with other factors like cigarette smoking, these "high-risk" viruses play an important role in causing genital tract cancers.

It takes an average of 27.5 years for a person infected with a high-risk HPV virus to develop cancer. The majority of persons infected with these viral types will never develop cancer. For those whose infections lead to abnormal cell changes, regular examinations and Pap smears will reveal these changes at a stage in which they can usually be cured in an office or outpatient setting.

Although medicine cannot get rid of the virus from an infected person, the virus can nearly always be rendered dormant by medical treatment. Topical agents, interferon injections, laser surgery and cryosurgery (freezing) can be used to treat skin warts. Cryosurgery, laser surgery and diathermy loop excision are used to destroy abnormal pre-cancerous cells.

A person can reduce the risk of acquiring HPV by limiting the number of sexual partners and by using condoms. Condoms don't always protect against HPV infections. Females who contract HPV infections are more likely to develop cervical cancer if they get the virus during their teenage years or if they smoke cigarettes.

Although scientists are working toward the development of vaccines against the HPV virus, prevention must be aimed at delaying first intercourse, avoiding cigarette smoking and practicing monogamy.

Q&A

By WILLIAM T. TOMICKI
New York Times Travel Syndicate

Q: My husband and I would love to go on a safari but cannot afford to go to Africa. Are there any places in the United States that offer this kind of experience?

A: The Fossil Rim Wildlife Center in Glen Rose, Texas, is an organization dedicated to the conservation and propagation of endangered species. It offers the excitement and adventure of a safari right here at home.

The Foothills Safari Camp is situated in the middle of Fossil Rim, which spreads across 3,000 acres of valleys and savannas and is home to more than 1,000 animals representing 32 species.

On the safaris guests can view such animals as rhinos, cheetahs, giraffes, zebras, antelopes and wolves and are accompanied by naturalists who explain everything.

A three- or four-day stay in the Safari Camp includes private, centrally heated and air-conditioned tents with baths, all meals, Land Rover journeys into the "bush" to see the animals in the wild and behind-the-scenes tours of the facilities for the rare and endangered species.

Prices for a three-day safari start at $375 for adults and $300 for children ages 2 to 6; four-day safaris start at $562.50 for adults and $450.00 for children.

Luxury accommodations in the five-bedroom lodge and day trips are also available at Fossil Rim.

For more information write to the Fossil Rim Wildlife Center, P.O. Box 2189, Glen Rose, Texas 76043; or call (800) 245-0771. Information is also available from your local travel agent.

Q: I have always wanted to go to the Monte Carlo Grand Prix but am unsure about making all the necessary arrangements. Is there a luxury package or tour that will take care of both my hotel accommodations and admission to the race?

A: For the second consecutive year Annemarie Victory Organization Inc., a luxury travel tour company, is coordinating an exclusive tour package which combines the excitement of the Monte Carlo Grand Prix and the pampering elegance of the Hotel Bel Air Cap Ferrat.

The tour departs from New York for Nice, France, on May 27. Upon arrival guests are treated to a welcome dinner in the hotel's terrace restaurant.

The day before the race guests depart by private boat for Monte Carlo and the Hotel de Paris, where a table has been reserved for guests to enjoy lunch and the daylong Grand Prix practice races.

The following day participants sail back to Monte Carlo and watch the big event from the same reserved table.

The total cost of the tour, including a farewell dinner, is $4,850 for two. Air fare is additional.

For more information contact your local travel agent or write to Annemarie Victory Organization Inc., 136 E. 64th St., New York, N.Y. 10021; or call (212) 486-0353.

Q: Why is Indiana known as the "Hoosier State?"

A: Many explanations have been given, but the most logical seems to be the one about Samuel Hoosier, a contractor on the Ohio Falls Canal at Louisville, who in 1826 gave employment preference to men living on the Indiana side of the river. The men in his work crews were called "Hoosier's men" and then, simply "Hoosiers."

Readers are invited to submit questions to William Tomicki, P.O. Box 5148, Santa Barbara, Calif. 93150. Although he cannot answer each query individually, selected questions will be included in his column.

Adventurous travelers to Europe can save money by renting a recreational vehicle, such as this one offered by Global Motorhome Travel

A new way to travel in Europe

Renting an RV can cut travel, lodging costs of a European vacation

By EVERETT POTTER
New York Times Travel Syndicate

This is the time of year when many people try to chase away the winter blues by planning a summer vacation.

One of the most popular destinations is Europe. Unfortunately, it's also one of the most expensive — because of the high prices charged by European hotels and car-rental companies.

Adventurous travelers who want to cut costs should consider renting a recreational vehicle (RV) or camper.

RVs solve accommodation and transportation problems in one fell swoop. They also provide travelers with mobile kitchens that let them drive past high-priced restaurants.

"It's definitely the least expensive way to see Europe," says Bernard Hess, president of Global Motorhome Travel, Inc. (GMT), a family-owned company with offices in Frankfurt, Germany, and Manhattan Beach, Calif.

"RVs are far cheaper than hotels," Hess says. "And they mean freedom. You pick up your RV in Frankfurt, which is geographically the center of Europe, and then take it anywhere you want, when you want. In four days you can be in Moscow, for example."

There are more than 6,000 campgrounds in Europe that charge, on average, between $5 and $10 per night per vehicle, Hess says.

But he estimates that 70 percent of the travelers who rent RVs do not use campgrounds.

"The size of the vehicle allows the driver to park it in a normal parking space," he says. "The RVs are self-contained, with propane gas for cooking and heating and cassette toilets that can be emptied in any public toilet. They do not need hookups in order to function."

GMT rents German-made Knaus and Hymer RVs that are generally no more than 3 years old.

The company offers four types of motor homes. The least expensive is a category I — an 18-foot vehicle with a five-speed, manual-shift transmission and a diesel engine. It can accommodate up to four adults or three adults and two children.

This type of motor home rents for $159 a day in high season (June 15 to Aug. 30), $119 during the shoulder season (March 15 to June 14 and Sept. 1 to Nov. 15).

At the other end of the scale is a category IV, a 24-foot vehicle that sleeps five adults and has a turbo diesel engine, automatic transmission and air conditioning. It rents for $235 a day in high season, $199 during the shoulder season.

All prices include linens, 14 percent value added tax, full insurance and unlimited mileage.

For true comfort for a family with two adults and two children, Hess recommends a category II — a 20-foot vehicle with a five-speed manual-shift transmission and a turbo diesel engine.

In high season the vehicle rents for $179 per day, which means that a two-week rental will cost $2,506. During shoulder season the daily rate drops to $139.

The least expensive vehicle GMT offers is a five-speed, manual-shift Volkswagen Camper with a diesel engine. This 15-foot camper sleeps two adults but has no toilet or shower facilities. It costs $125 per day in high season, $105 per day during shoulder season.

All of GMT's vehicles use diesel fuel, which, unlike unleaded fuel, is widely available in former Eastern Bloc countries — a destination for at least 40 percent of GMT's customers, Hess says.

"A motor home is a great way to see those countries," Hess says, "especially since many cities are suffering from hotel shortages."

A 25 percent deposit is necessary to reserve any GMT vehicle. All rentals require a refundable $500 security deposit.

The company provides transfers from Frankfurt Airport to its headquarters in suburban Neu Anspach.

RVs also can be picked up or dropped off at major airports in Amsterdam or Paris. (There is a $35 per day surcharge to do this.)

For Sunday pickups, the company adds a service charge of $49. A $150 charge is added to vehicles rented for less than nine days.

Travelers who rent for more than 28 days get a 5 percent discount. Those who rent for more than 56 days get an 8 percent discount.

"Book early," Hess says, noting that some clients reserve their RVs six months to a year in advance.

For more information, contact Global Motorhome Travel, Inc., 1142 Manhattan Ave., Manhattan Beach, Calif. 90266; telephone (800) GMT-EURO.

Two other companies that rent motor homes in Europe are Foremost Euro-Car and Avis Rent A Car.

Foremost rents RVs in Frankfurt, Amsterdam and Paris using GMT as a supplier. Their vehicles, offerings and prices are virtually identical to GMT's.

For more information, contact Foremost Euro-Car, 5430 Van Nuys Blvd., Suite 306, Van Nuys, Calif. 91401, telephone (800) 272-3299.

Avis rents diesel-powered campers and RVs in France, Holland and Switzerland, with restrictions varying from country to country.

A Group 2 RV — an Atlantis 39 Citroen suitable for a family of four — rents for 12,750 francs, or about $2,300, for two weeks in July. The price includes 18.6 percent value added tax, but collision damage waiver and linens are extra.

Avis vehicles cannot be driven into former Eastern Bloc countries.

For more information, contact Avis Rent A Car, Inc., 4500 S. 129th East Ave., Suite 100, Tulsa, Okla. 74169; telephone (800) 331-1084.

Tour company plans Alaska trip for grandparents and grandkids

By GENE and ADELE MALOTT
New York Times Travel Syndicate

DEAR TMT: I am planning to take my 7-year-old grandson on a trip to Alaska. I'm 75 years old but get around very well. He is looking forward to this trip. Do you have any travel ideas for us?

Ann Kantor,
Boynton Beach, Fla.

DEAR A.K.: Grandtravel (800-247-7651) is planning a 14-day Alaska tour this summer for grandparents and grandkids ages 7 to 11.

The trip, which begins June 20 in Juneau and ends in Anchorage, includes stops in Nome, Fairbanks and Denali National Park. It costs $4,780 per mature traveler (based on double occupancy) and $4,570 per child, plus round-trip airfare to Alaska.

We think that's a bit expensive, but some grandparents may opt for this tour because it's an easy way to visit our 49th state. The trip also provides a built-in support group that can help a grandparent deal with an active youngster.

If you and your grandson decide to visit Alaska on your own, make sure your itinerary includes a stop at the Mendenhall Glacier in Juneau (preferably the helicopter ride to the top of it) and a day in Glacier Bay where the glaciers calve.

You'll also want to take the elegant Dome train from Anchorage to Denali, where you can spend the night. The next day you can take a bus into the wilderness of Denali National Park, where you'll see all sorts of animals. (For more information about the park, call 907-683-2294.)

Outdoor activities are the pride of Alaska. One that you and your grandson might want to try is kayaking. In Juneau, you can take a trip with Alaska Discovery, a company that rents kayaks and conducts guided day tours. For more information contact Alaska Discovery, 234 Gold St., Juneau, Alaska 99801, telephone (907) 586-2480.

Be sure to check with your travel agent for other ideas.

DEAR TMT: What constitutes proof of age? The only thing I carry in the United States is a driver's license. I also carry my passport when I am out of the country. Are these sufficient?

Bill Davis,
Norristown, Pa.

DEAR B.D.: Most states put the driver's age on the license, and that is usually sufficient proof in the United States. When traveling abroad, a passport is an absolute must.

Two other cards that can come in handy are those that identify members of Mature Outlook and the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP). Many restaurants, hotels and other travel vendors offer discounts to members of these organizations.

If you do a lot of traveling, you should consider joining one. Think of their membership cards as union cards for mature travelers.

To join Mature Outlook, check for applications at your local Sears store or write to Mature Outlook, 6001 N. Clark St., Chicago, Ill. 60660, telephone (800) 336-6330. Membership dues are $9.95 per year.

For AARP, write to the AARP Membership Center, P.O. Box 199, Long Beach, Calif. 90848-9983, or call (collect) (310) 496-2277. Membership dues are $8 for one year, $20 for three years.

Readers are invited to submit questions and comments to Gene and Adele Malott, c/o New York Times Syndicate, 130 Fifth Ave., New York, N.Y. 10011. Send the Malotts a postcard from your trip with ideas, questions and information on the bargains you find for seniors. The Malotts are the publishers of THE MATURE TRAVELER: Travel Bonanzas for 49ers-Plus, a newsletter for mature travelers.

Planning commissioners are up in arms over a Chamber of Commerce proposal to turn downtown Northville into a shoppers' paradise.

Business leaders hope the plan, to wall off the four-block downtown and erect a plastic dome over it, will draw more tourists into the city by providing a climate-controlled shopping environment for their pleasure.

The idea is to compete more directly with shopping centers like Novi's Twelve Oaks Mall, said City Manager Gary Wordy. "We decided, 'Hey, if you can't beat 'em, join 'em.'"

A few bugs still need to be worked out, including how to direct traffic around the new Northworld Mall. One suggestion is to build a four-lane loop road with banked curves.

"We're also not sure where we're going to park all the cars," Wordy said. "Maybe we'll put up a deck or something."

The planning commission howled in protest over the plan, calling it a blatant violation of the city's recently-enacted building height ordinance.

"It's a bubble, not a building," Wordy said. "It's not like it blocks anyone's view, because you can see right through it."

GARY WORDY
City Manager

"What's all this," said Planning Commissioner David Totter, when first confronted with a diagram of the 60-foot-high bubble at the heart of the plan. "It looks like the Roman Coliseum."

Wordy disagreed.

"It's a bubble, not a building," he said. "It's not like it blocks anyone's view, because you can see right through it. Besides, it'll help keep those pesky pigeons off the Comerica building."

Lawmakers take bets on taxes, school finance

By MICHELLE KAISER
Staff Writer

State legislators have made a breakthrough in school finance and property tax reform.

The new proposal, labeled as the "If You Believe This, Then You Are Really Stupid" plan, will reduce property taxes to non-existent levels, but provide schools with a $10,000-per-pupil guarantee.

How will the state replace the revenue lost through property taxes? By starting a new lottery.

Dubbed as the biggest jackpot to hit Michigan, the newest lottery is called the "Bet on Anything, Anytime" game. The new game will let players reminisce of yesteryear with the frog races (from the good ol' Mark Twain era) as well as take a look into the future by allowing contestants to place wagers on where the next U.F.O. will appear.

Television viewers can bet on how the Sunday night movie ends, work-aholics can place wagers on who completes the most paperwork, etc.

"Just like the game says, you can bet on anything, anytime," said the state's newest lottery commissioner Ivana Bet.

The new lottery game has not been without controversy, however.

"This lottery thing is just getting out of hand," said the Rev. Jimmie Stagger. "I bet it doesn't last."

Stagger wouldn't comment on just how much he did bet.

Some school officials are also concerned the state won't follow through on its promise to replace school revenue funds.

"It's risky business," said Leonardo Rezmeirski, superintendent of schools. "I hope we can depend on the state to come through."

"Why wouldn't we come through?" Bet asked after hearing Rezmeirski's comment. "Wanna bet on it?"

Roman bullies his way onto county land

By SHARON CONDRON
Staff Writer

The secret's out and the news is shocking.

Township officials have named Woolly Bully owner Mark Roman as the elusive developer who is bargaining with county officials for the purchase of the 923-acres of county-owned land in Northville Township.

Township Supervisor Courtine Baja said Monday Roman lifted his veil of secrecy and revealed his identity to township board members during secret, one-on-one meetings last week.

Baja said Roman was initially unwilling to identify himself as the developer because of the upheaval he's caused in the community since opening the doors to his flashy Northville restaurant 25 days ago.

"He's a little shy these days because of all the publicity," Baja said. "But I think it's a great use for the site. It will really cheer up that corner."

Baja said Roman's site plans for his four-story, 325,000 square foot world headquarters have already won the support of township planners. The plan heads to township trustees later this month.

Roman envisions three or four buildings occupying the site. Each will carry on the infamous Woolly Bully theme and be decked out in exterior architecture similar to the Northville site. A 12-foot cement statue of Woolly Bully will welcome guests to the 923-acre industrial park and serve as the landing station for the monorail that's intended to transport guests and employees to and from the Five Mile facility to the Seven Mile site.

"It will be bigger and better than any of our other places," Roman said. "It's a living monument to Woolly Bully's name and legend."

Owner of Woolly Bully's

"It will be bigger and better than any of our other places," Roman said. "It's a living monument to Woolly Bully's name and legend."

A portion of the 923-acre site is zoned for research and development. Roman plans to use those 30 acres to concoct new frothy drinks to add to his already extensive drink menu. He will store the drink mixes in silos on the back 50 acres of the land.

Roman said the success of his Northville location and the camaraderie he's enjoyed since taking up residency here prompted him to consider the site for his monstrous headquarters facility.

"People want us here," he said. "They like how we look and what we are doing to enhance the decor of the town."

The guitars that grace the front of the Northville Seven Mile location are nothing compared to what's being planned for the Wayne County land.

Chamber puts end to festival

Proclaiming out with the old and in with the new, the Northville Chamber of Commerce has permanently changed the theme of the Victorian Festival, the community's beloved annual event and renowned tourist attraction.

The new theme will be "Those Sinister Sixties" and will focus on the tune-in, turn-on, drop-out counterculture of the hippie era that preached the anti-establishment message of flower power and defiance of authority.

"That Victorian thing was just too old," Chamber executive director Laurie Marrs said. "I mean, 'cmon, it wasn't even from this century. Some people might say we're dredging up a period in our history that isn't universally cherished, but, hey we're just tryin' to do our own thing."

Marrs pointed out that a lot of the current-day outdoor festival trends, such as face painting and dressing out of period, actually originated during the hippie era. "They wore granny glasses and braided hair, didn't they?" Marrs added. "Peace."

PTA News/OLV

Our Lady of Victory students have been participating in community service projects during Lent. The Math-A-Thon in which they participated raised $6200 for St. Jude's Children's Research Hospital. The money was sent to the hospital in Memphis, Tenn. this week.

Another community service project which has brought the students lots of pleasure is their pen pal exchange with senior citizens in the Northville Community. Each class has adopted one or more pen pals, many of these are shut-ins. The students have made Valentines, St. Patrick's Day, and Easter cards for them and have written notes. This project gives the students a real sense of making a positive contribution to the community of which they are an important part.

OLV students are celebrating March as Children's Reading Month by participating in a wide variety of activities at Camp Library. School librarian, Mrs. Virginia Krozek, is pleased to announce the winners of the Bookmark Contest which has taken place during March. Winners include: James Droze, kindergarten; Sheena Joychan, grade one; Leah Andersen, grade two; Elizabeth Bahra, grade three; Mark LaRosa, grade four; Jennifer Cousins, grade five; and Kristin Shea of the Middle School. These students received a special prize ribbon for their efforts and each was awarded a new book of his or her choice.

Congratulations to the seventh and eighth grade Science Olympiad team from OLV. They won medals in 10 events: Lecia Harmer took first place in Bridge Building; the team of Denise Larabell, Sarah Wright, Kristy Hoffman, and Lauren Gugala took first place in Write-It-Do-It; Jeff Brazunas and Rick Hoeg took second place in Road Rally. Third place medals were taken by Jeff Brazunas for Get Your Bearings, Thomas Sirgedas and Ted Stapleton for their Mousetrap Vehicle, and Jeff Brazunas and Rick Hoeg for Measurement. Sarah Townsend and Lecia Harmer took fourth place for Name That Organism. Fifth place medals were won by the teams of Chrissy Buser, Lauren Gugala, Jeff Brazunas and Rick Hoeg for the Pentathlon and Denise Larabell and Kristy Hoffman for Simple Machines. A sixth place medal was won by Rick Hoeg for Metric Estimation. OLV is very proud of all the team members. With or without a medal, they are champions.

VALERIE BASSIN, a senior at Northville High School, has been selected to participate in the 1992-93 Michigan Youth Chamber Singers, part of a youth program at the University of Michigan School of Music.

Valerie, the daughter of Barbara and Albert Glover of West Main in Northville, sings alto and is a member of the Northville Singers, ACDA Honors Choir and the State Honors Choir. Valerie was one of 45 students selected in mid-September to participate in the Michigan Youth Chamber Singers.

The youth ensembles, conducted by full-time U-M faculty, include the Michigan Youth Symphony, Michigan Youth Band, Michigan Youth Chamber Singers, and the Michigan Youth Jazz Ensemble. A combined total of 240 students from 59 Michigan cities were selected from a talent pool of 450 musicians.

Along with the chance to perform, students are offered college counseling and master classes and recitals by additional U-M faculty, as well as opportunities to audition for School of Music and Interlochen Arts Camp scholarships.

RICK JACKSON of Northville, a student at Schoolcraft College in Livonia, won third place in Schoolcraft's The MacGuffin annual creative writing competition. Jackson's poem, "Romance," awarded him lunch for two at the college's American Harvest restaurant.

BILL TAYLOR of Northville completed requirements for an associates degree in pre-pharmacy at Ferris State University.

REAL ESTATE

Getting the right price when selling your home

By James M. Woodard
Copley News Service

"How much is my home really worth in today's market?"

That's the most frequently asked question by homeowners when they are thinking about selling. It's an important question. If the home is expected to sell within a reasonable time for a fair price.

If the list price is too high, the property will probably remain on the market for a long time. Some current listings that fall into that category in many areas of the country have been listed by one or several brokerage firms for more than a year. And the longer the owner persists in asking for an unrealistic price, the more widespread will be its reputation within the local real estate industry as an overpriced property.

On the other hand, if the price is too low, the owner could lose thousands of dollars that rightfully should come to the seller family. It will probably sell fast (often to an investor), but the potential loss could be substantial.

Determining the right asking price involves research. It often starts with a "market analysis report" prepared by a broker who has or wants the property listing. This includes a list of prices and basic data about comparable homes that have sold, usually culled from the regional MLS computer database.

These listings should not be taken at face value. The properties and related transactions may not really be comparable. Look at each "comparable property" as a professional appraiser or institutional lender would consider it.

Ask these questions: Are the homes similar in size, age and features? Are they in the same neighborhood? Values can be different for similar homes on opposite sides of the same street.

Did the comparable properties sell within the past few months? Lenders usually insist on recent sale comparables. Is the financing method comparable? Homes where the owner carries the mortgage loan and only requires 5 percent down payment can sell for more than a home financed with an institutional mortgage loan.

HOME DESIGNS

The Marianna offers much more than meets the eye

By James McAlexander
Copley News Service

From the front, the Marianna looks almost like a ranch-style home with two bay windows and a gabled front porch. But what you see is only half of what you get.

This floor plan is designed for construction on a lot that slopes down at the back and to the left. All of the family living space is on the main floor, the portion of the home that's visible from the street.

But there's also a full daylight basement below. One section of it is a garage and workshop; the rest is unfinished and can be used, as is, for storage. But plumbing and wiring are already in place for further development when needed.

A wide deck wraps around three sides of the house, inviting outdoor living when weather permits and offering multiple vistas to the left and the rear.

The living room is also richly windowed to take advantage of these same views. The far end of the room is warm and bright, with skylights providing additional illumination and a wood-burning stove radiating heat during the chilly seasons.

The large country kitchen faces out toward an eating area expanded and brightened by a bay window. An eating bar provides separation and doubles as a buffet on special occasions. The kitchen sink faces the street, allowing parents of young children to keep an eye on the neighborhood during meal preparation and cleanup.

Bedrooms are clustered together, another feature appreciated by parents with little ones. The master suite has a bay window, private bath and large walk-in closet. One of the other two bedrooms also has a walk-in closet.

In fact, generous storage space is spread throughout the home, with a closet in the dining room, a large walk-in linen closet and an additional closet in the hallway.

The utility room, tucked between the master suite and a bedroom at the right end of the house, also has an exterior door that connects with the carport.

For a study plan of the Marianna (400-05) send $7.50 to Landmark Designs, c/o HomeTown Newspapers, 323 E. Grand River Ave., Howell, MI 48843. (Be sure to specify plan name and number when ordering.)

Northville architect is part of team that wins national award

By RICK BYRNE
Copy Editor

Architects come from several of schools of thought, but rarely does an architect take an actual shawl as his inspiration for designing a home.

Rarer still is the architect who earns national recognition for forays into such frontiers. Walter Coponen, of Coponen Architects Inc., in Northville was recently honored for his work on Cranbrook Chase, a condominium development in Bloomfield Hills. Cranbrook Chase earned the ninth annual "Best in American Living Award," sponsored by Professional Builder & Remodeler magazine and the National Association of Home Builders.

Sharing the award with Coponen were the builders Holtzman & Silverman and The Fisher Group; interior designers Brian Killian & Co.; and land planners John Grissim & Associates.

"We do a lot of housing — condos and apartments. We did Blue Heron Pointe in this area, which won two awards in the state of Michigan," said Coponen. "But this is a national award, which makes it kind of exciting."

Such accomplishments don't come easily, but Coponen felt from the beginning that this project would be something special. "The problem is that every architect starts with a project that has the prospect of being an award-winner," said Coponen. "But there are so many influences that come along to compromise it." Cranbrook Chase was different though. The developer didn't want any compromises.

"They really wanted to do a quality project," said Coponen. If the unit interiors look vaguely familiar, that's because they're styled to look like the Cranbrook School. Thanks for the influence can go to The Fisher Group, which is owned by the Fisher family, great supporters of Cranbrook.

But the similarity to Cranbrook School goes far beyond the facade, Coponen said.

"We researched Cranbrook, the materials that were used for it, and how they used the materials," he said.

The Eero Saarinen-designed school with its brick exterior walls and slate roof is mimicked by Cranbrook Chase, though wood shakes were used as roofing material.

"Wood shakes are the closest thing in appearance to slate," said Coponen. "There aren't to many artisans doing slate roofs anymore."

The old meets the new on the inside, however. Weathered created windows that imitate the original. Yet in the

GARDENING

The key to good production of garden plants indoors is to begin with a very good soil mix. The potting medium should have adequate drainage, good water-holding ability, ample fertility and should be sterile so that it is free of possible disease, seeds or insects.

You can buy very good medium mixes — everything is prepared for you and ready to go into containers.

Starting houseplants from seed isn't any different from starting garden plants. Provide ample light and moisture, as well as correct temperature, and you will have very few problems with your baby seeds.

Most seeds sown as houseplants can be started at any time of the year. However, you'll get best germination results when you start during the spring. The effect of the natural lengthening of the day aids the germination process.

Some common houseplants can be purchased as seeds from catalogs, including many cactus and cactus mixes, African violets, geraniums, impatiens and begonias, to name a few. Many of these are annual plants, which will eventually fade.

Good care and periodic pruning will help extend the life span of these garden houseplants. Seeds from these plants can be bought through garden catalogs and on seed packet racks in garden centers.

Of course, the pride one feels when admiring a well-cared-for plant is doubled when that gardener remembers that it was once a tiny seed in the palm of her hand! (With Graphic—Garden Tips: Houseplants From Seed)

LASTING BOUQUETS

The most effective way to prolong the life of cut flowers is to arrange them in a clean vase (in lukewarm water) that has been disinfected with household bleach.

After the vase has been washed and all soapy residue rinsed off, pour bleach to an inch or two in depth and fill the vase with water. Allow it to stand for several minutes, rinse again, and you'll have a fabulously clean, bacteria-free vase ready to be filled with a fresh bouquet of flowers.

The proper care of flowers freshly picked from the garden begins at the moment you pick

Plastic items contains things that damage wood finishes

By Gene Gary
Copley News Service

Q. I used a plastic plate mat underneath a serving dish on my wood dining room table. When I removed it, I found that it had left ugly stains on the wood surface.

remove these stains?

A. Plastic items contain ingredients to keep them soft and pliable that can react with finishes. This reaction is called "plasticizer migration," which occurs whether or not the furniture is polished.

If the stain is not too severe, using the following rub-it-out method recommended by the makers of Pledge may remove it.

Using a very gentle abrasive and lubricant, rub the damaged area with the grain, until the blemished area blends with the surrounding, undamaged area. Be sure and rub very gently to make sure you don't rub through the finish, and stop frequently to wipe away the abrasive and lubricant, checking on how the spot compares with the surrounding area.

Most abrasives and lubricants used for this method can be found at paint or hardware stores. One of the most gentle is No. 0000 steel wool dipped in paste wax, followed by buffing with a clean, dry cloth. I powdered abrasives, rotten-stone or pumice can be used with mineral or salad oil. A few drops of oil should be applied to the stained area. Then shake on abrasive powder to make a paste and rub gently, using a clean, soft cloth.

Another paste abrasive you can use is automotive polishing compound, applied with a soft, clean cloth. If the stain is severe, the tabletop will probably have to be refinished.

kitchen you'll find Canac/Merillat cabinets and high-tech Whirlpool appliances.

The units are in the $300,000 range, and are targeted to appeal to divorced people, empty nesters, and professional couples without children as evidenced by such amenities as on-call service representatives. But with projects of such quality, Coponen said, marketing seems to take care of itself.

"You can do demographics and market studies, but you never really can know if it's going to hit right on the money," Coponen said. "But if you have a really high quality project, it will be successful."

The award was earned for the Devon unit, although three other unit styles are available in two- to four-bedroom configurations. Furthermore, many buyers have been custom-designing their units.

"I'd say of the 42 units, about half of them are custom designed," said Coponen.

The Devon features a private entry to the first floor, and a lower level that can be customized. There's a private master suite with an adjacent study or den, and a bathroom with bathtub and shower. The second bedroom has its own private bathroom as well.

dining room, and the spacious kitchen is adjoined by a breakfast nook with its own bay window.

The model we saw had the lower level finished with a game room and fireplace, a workshop and a media room with wet bar. The game room and media room are separated only by columns. Also on this level are a third full bath with shower, and storage space. All together, there's 4,200 square feet of useable space.

Coponen's office space at 108 N. Center St. looks like a place where you'd expect such creative ventures to come from. No doors separate the offices. Only unique triangle-shaped archways.

Coponen, a Lawrence Technological University graduate, has served on Northville's Historic District Commission. He's lived here since 1971, and opened his own office here 10 years ago.

"Before that, I had worked in a large corporate office," he said. "I'd dreamed of starting by own office, and finally I took the plunge."

Now, projects like Cranbrook Chase come from a staff of just five people. More intimate contact with the customer is a welcome bonus from keeping the business small.

"We were talking in the office the other day, and we said you can receive an award for a project, and it's great to receive them from your peers," Coponen said. "But the real honest-to-goodness gratification comes when you get a call from someone you don't know about a year and a half later. They'll say, 'You don't know me but I live in such-and-such unit in such-and-such development, and I just love it.' Then they'll go on to tell you why they like it, and that's great."

them. It's best to pick flowers early in the morning, later afternoon or early evening.

Bring a container of water with you into the garden and place the flowers immediately into the water after cutting them. The cut flowers should be allowed to stand several hours in deep water in a cool spot before you arrange them.

line should be stripped from the stems because they decay quickly under water.

Q. Is it true that the leaves of the tansy herb get rid of garden insects?

A. The tansy leaves are famous as an insect repellent in the garden, stable, patio or a picnic table.

The refreshing camphorlike aroma will discourage flies and ants.

In times past, tansy puddings and cakes were an Easter tradition thought to restore and purify the body after the long, limited fare of Lent.

Plant outdoors in spring or early fall or start indoors any time and transplant into the garden. Cover seeds ever so lightly. Keep evenly moist until the baby seedlings are well established.

Sterling-silver fish knife and fork

By James G. McCollam
Copley News Service

Q. Enclosed is a picture of a sterling-silver knife and fork. Can you tell me what purpose they served? I would also like to know when they were made and their value.

A. These are individual fish knife and fork. They were popular about 1900 when silversmiths got carried away with their creativity and produced an endless variety of specialized pieces.

The two pieces would probably sell for about $125 to $135.

Q. What can you tell me about my antique vase? It is 12 inches tall and has two handles. It is brown with a picture of a lady's head and shoulders.

The markings on the bottom are as follows, "IOGA" over the head of a knight and under that is "WARWICK."

A. Your vase was made in Wheeling, W.Va., about 1900 by Warwick China Co. It might sell in the $125 to $135 range.

Q. The attached mark is on the bottom of a vase. It is 6 inches tall and 4 inches in diameter. It is pear shaped with a flared rim. The glaze is semigloss over a deep-blue base.

I would like to know the name of the maker, its vintage and value.

ANTIQUES

A. This vase was made by the Marblehead Pottery in Massachusetts between 1915 and 1935. It would probably sell for about $275 to $300.

Q. I have five Delft plates. They have scenes of a man and woman in various activities with a floral border—all in blue or white. They are marked "Royal Sphinx," a picture of a lion, "P. Regout—Made in Holland—Maastricht, Delft."

Please tell me how old they are and their value.

A. Your plates were made in Maastricht, Holland, by Petrus Regout in the early 20th century. "Delft" is the name of the style; they are not genuine Delft plates.

The value would be about $25 to $35 each.

Q. I bought a vase at an auction about 35 years ago. I would like to know something about it, including its value. It is 13 inches tall and 10 inches in diameter.

It is trimmed with gold with a background of blue and white. On the base is "Boch Freres—Keramis—Made in Belgium."

A. Your vase was made by the Boch Brothers in La Louviere, Belgium, during the early 20th century. It would probably sell for $75 to $100.

The company was founded in 1841 by Victor and Eugene Boch and is still in business.

BOOK REVIEW

"The Beswick Price Guide" by Harvey May, published by Kevin Francis Ltd., and distributed by the Chilton Book Co.

This book provides reliable information about the entire output of Beswick Pottery. All items are priced and most are illustrated.

This is an ideal field for the beginning collector. Beswick figurines are well marked and the prices are moderate—most items sell in the $25 to $500 range.

value, your best bet is to shell out $200 to $300 for the services of a qualified appraiser. He will not only inspect the property, but will review those computerized lists of comparable property sales, research tax rolls, plat and flood maps.

He will also research zoning requirements to be sure the property meets all requirements — setbacks, size, etc. He will consider proximity to shopping, schools and freeway access. He will consider possible negative factors, such as area noise or air pollution. He will study the neighborhood makeup.

The list of things to consider seems almost endless. But they are all important to the final determination of a realistic price.

"The appraisal process is a combination of both art and science," said Larry C. Lynam, SRA (senior residential appraiser), an active appraiser for the past 14 years. "Appraising is a structured process based on theories and economics

Many steps are involved in the process. Each is important in obtaining an accurate appraisal.

One of Lynam's pet peeves is for homeowners or mortgage brokers to call and request a quick estimate 'of a home's value.

There's really no shortcut in the appraisal process," he said. If a quickie is granted under pressure from a client, the risk of negative repercussions is very real.

Another seasoned SRA appraiser, Steve Millbern, shares Lynam's views on the quickie appraisal.

"The long-standing unwritten 'good old boy' practice still common today is for clients to request a 'verbal estimate of value' before a full appraisal is ordered," Millbern said. "We all get these calls, usually from a representative of a mortgage company.

"Times in the appraisal profession are changing. To my frustration, it seems that some lenders and mortgage companies are not well-educated about these changes. The burden of educating them seems to fall on appraisers by default.

"Therefore, they will most likely continue to request dumb or even unethical things of us. It is up to us to explain what we can and cannot do under the rules as they are now laid out."

Q. What happens when a corporate employee is transferred and must sell his house at a big loss due to declining values in his area?

A. Either the employee or his corporation takes the loss. An increasing number of corporations now offer a loss-on-sale program for their transferring employees. It assures the employee that he will be reimbursed for any loss incurred in selling his house.

The average loss-on-sale per employee is now about $18,069, according to a survey by Runzheimer International, a national research and consulting firm.

Bakery wakes up the taste buds

By Marilyn Herald

If you're wide awake at 4 or 5 a.m. and don't know what to do, the owners of the South Lyon Village Bakery think they have the answer. Come down to their shop at 222 S. Lafayette and join other local residents for coffee and doughnuts or any other "sweet thing" that turns on your taste buds.

Traffic at the bakery begins early and lasts throughout the day. "This is the news center of this end of town," laughed regular customer Bob Mitchell of Centennial Farms as he enjoyed an afternoon coffee break. "It's always friendly here."

For 14 years this hometown business has grown steadily under the loving guidance and dedicated efforts of owners Bill and Lepa Stevanovic of Green Oak Township.

In fact, the Stevanovics marked March 1993 as their 14th anniversary in business, although there is a running joke between them as to the exact date the bakery was established. Bill holds out for a starting date of March 15, 1979, because that's the date on the license displayed on the bakery wall. Lepa staunchly states that she knows she was opened Feb. 29, 1979.

Chief baker Lepa works the midnight shift, arriving at the witching hours six days a week and opening the door to customers at 4 a.m. Monday through Saturday. By 9 a.m. weekdays, 30-40 dozen doughnuts and sweet rolls, along with numerous cups of coffee, are handed across the counter to regular customers. Saturdays, the total is upped to around 60 dozen.

Just how much their business has multiplied in the past 14 years was proven to the Stevanovics on the recent "Fat Tuesday," the day before the beginning of Lent and its fasting.

"By 10 a.m. that day we were sold out of paczki (the favorite filled Polish pastries)," Bill recalled. "Our daughter Susan, who manages the store, took orders for 20 dozen more in a half hour so we started making them again. We sold over 500 dozen in one day."

"Our first year, we sold six dozen and last year it was over 400 dozen."

"We had eight people making paczki from 4 p.m. Monday until 1 a.m. Tuesday and then we went back and made lots more," Bill noted.

By the way, Lepa said raspberry filling was the top best seller this year.

"We have the original Hamtramck mix recipe, not a doughnut mix," she pointed out, adding that she made nine filled varieties and one batch of plain paczki for those who didn't want filling.

When the Stevanovics moved to their Dixboro Road home in 1977, Bill continued his work as a machine repairman for General Motors Corp. in Livonia and Lepa still helped her dad at his Westland bakery.

"I was driving home from work one day when I saw this building was for lease," Bill recalled. "I went home and asked Lepa how she'd like to open her own business. We worked it out to pick up the baked goods from her father and sell them here."

It was a busy time for the family, with Lepa still baking in the early mornings with her father and hurrying back to South Lyon with pastries to please her customers at the Village Bakery.

After Lepa's father died two years ago the family decided it was time to expand the business and do their own baking. A year ago in January, they moved the bakery right next door to the original store, more than tripling the space. The 2,000-square-foot building at 222 S. Lafayette allows them plenty of room to produce their customers' favorites such as sweet rolls, bagels, cakes, pies, cookies and bread, including pizza bread.

Wedding cakes, by advance order, are Bill's specialty. "He does the baking of cakes and the decorating," Lepa said with a wide smile.

"We're going to use the center room here for a display of cakes and decorations so that people can come in and select what they want to order," Bill explained.

Lunch favorites at the bakery are sandwiches made up of Kowalski meats tucked neatly between slices of Lepa's breads. The featured soup of the day is also made in the bakery kitchen. Customers can eat in or carry out.

Always looking for new ways to please the palates of the public, the Stevanovics recently added Lepa's handmade pasties to the long list of baked items and sandwiches available. Thursday is pastie day.

"I use a pastry recipe for the pasties that I got from the Upper Peninsula where pasties are so popular," Lepa said.

"We use all fresh vegetables and chop them up here, like rutabagas, potatoes, onions and celery," Bill added. "We have fresh ground meat in them too."

Although it seems the Stevanovics would have no time for hobbies, Bill has coached high school soccer in South Lyon for several years and Lepa has a flower garden that draws lots of admiring comments every summer.

"Right now I'm here from midnight until afternoon every day but when the weather warms up, I'll be with my flowers from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m.," Lepa added.

Sales point to strong market for coming year

Local sales of previously owned homes in January closely paralleled increases reported nationwide, according to the Western Wayne Oakland County Association of Realtors, the state's largest realty association.

This compares to a 14.9 percent national increase and ranks above the 11 percent reported for all of the Midwest.

"Early indications point to continuation of a strong market through the year," said William Deacon, WWOAR president.

"While a broad choice of available properties will remain, buyers will not have as many to pick from as a year ago. During the past six months, the number of listings has dropped six percent and we think this trend will continue."

The median price in January, with half selling for more and half for less, was $84,500, down from $86,000 during the same period a year ago. Compared to the national median of $103,700 in January, this area remains among the most affordable in the country.

Deacons said he expected that the recent announcement of property tax increases may serve to delay some purchases, particularly among first-time buyers, but will not be a strong impediment to sales growth.

"Part of the increase will be offset by declining mortgage interest rates and an additional portion by increased deductions on federal taxes and higher returns from the state's homestead property tax credit," he said.

Deacon said increased sales activity is stemming not only from more first-time buyers, but from added numbers of homeowners ready to move up the housing ladder.

"Favorable market conditions for the spring selling can be expected to attract more sellers into the market and we plan a special program to assist many of them," he said.

On Thursday, March 25, WWOAR had a panel of experts discuss all aspects of the home-selling process in a free seminar at the Holiday Inn Livonia-West. Attendees were asked to bring a donation of canned food as a contribution to the Salvation Army.

Todd D. Knickerboker, a registered representative of Edward D. Jones and Company, has been named to The Leader board of Xerox Life. Todd D. Knickerboker, who has offices at 555 Seven Mile, Northville, has been a representative of Edward D. Jones for five years.

Membership in the Leader Board is conferred by Xerox Life upon its top producers. Xerox Life creates market-sensitive annuity and life insurance products designed to be sold primarily by security firms. Xerox Life is part of Xerox Financial Services, Incorporated, a wholly-owned subsidiary of Xerox Corporation.

Northville resident Diane Martin has started a unique picture framing business - one that brings the service to the customer.

Calling herself the "itinerate framer," Martin will come to a customer's home or office, bringing with her over 500 frame and mat samples from which to choose.

"Doesn't it make sense that picture framing be done in the environment in which it is going to be displayed?" she asks. "We can put together the right look for any client, and can accommodate large or small, new or existing artwork."

Martin says she works independently or in conjunction with designers and decorators. She has several years of picture framing experience in area galleries and is a graduate of the Larson-Juhl framing school in Chicago.

In Stock Wallpaper, 41810 W. Ten Mile Road in Novi, is sponsoring a $5,000 Shopping Spree Sweepstakes in celebration of National Wallpaper Month.

To enter the sweepstakes, shoppers simply choose their favorite Waverly and Village wallpaper patterns from the wide selection at In Stock Wallpaper. The sweepstakes winner, determined by a random drawing in April, will win a $5,000 shopping spree from the Spiegel Catalog.

"Waverly and Village are two of our hottest-selling wallpaper lines," said a spokesperson for Stock Wallpaper. "You can choose from traditional, country, contemporary, and juvenile designs in today's most popular colors. And now you have a chance to win a $5,000 shopping spree - just by choosing your favorites!"

According to the spokesperson, the sweepstakes is offered at In Stock Wallpaper throughout March, which has been declared National Wallpaper Month by the Wallcoverings Association.

CPAs suggest a several ways to cut federal taxes

Smart ways to cut your tax bill
The Michigan Association of CPAs suggests that there is still time to assess your tax situation and take advantage of some tax-saving options. Adjust your withholding and estimated tax payments.

If you're accustomed to getting large refunds from the IRS, you may want to reconsider your tax strategies. It's better to invest available cash in an interest-bearing account than it is to let the IRS use your money interest free.

In addition, keep in mind that as a result of the president's instructions to the IRS, you may be subject to new rules for estimating taxes. Determining how you may be affected by any tax law or changes will help you avoid any unpleasant surprises come tax-return time.

Take advantage of retirement plans
If your company has a 401(k) plan, make the most of it. Typically, you can sock away a percentage of your pre-tax salary. Your contributions reduce your gross income and the interest or dividends your account earns are tax-deferred.

If you have any self-employment income, you can set up a Keogh plan or Simplified Employee Pension (SEP) plan. Either plan lets you make tax-deductible contributions of up to $30,000 annually.

You're never too young for IRAs
IRAs offer taxpayers a tax-deferred savings opportunity. You can make contributions of as much as $2,000 a year if single, or $2,250 a year if you are married to a non-working spouse and file a joint return. If you and your spouse both work, you may be able to contribute up to $2,000 cash.

If you are not a participant in an employer-sponsored retirement plan, you may deduct your IRA contributions, regardless of your income. If you or your spouse actively participates in a qualified retirement plan, you may still be eligible for a tax deduction, depending on your income.

Don't waste dollars on non-deductible interest
If you received a tax refund last year and deposited it in the bank, consider using the money to pay off the balances on your credit cards. You may also want to consider consolidating your debt by taking out a home-equity loan. This may enable you to convert non-deductible personal interest into fully deductible home-equity interest.

George Burns

By CARRIE YOUNG
Executive Editor

"Hello Mr. Burns."
"Hello Carrie."
"Cut!"
"What?"

"That's show biz' talk for let's start over, kid."

"...You can call me George."

"Hello George Burns."

"Just George."

"Hello George."

"Hello Carrie."

"Oh God."

"You can call me that, too. You know I played him." (Burns had the title role in the 1977 movie release of "OH GOD!" The sequel to that box office smash "OH GOD - Book II", saw its release in 1981. In 1984, he starred in "OH, GOD, YOU DEVIL!" one of Warner Bros. most successful films of that year. "OH, GOD IV" is now being written).

Meanwhile, this interview is a touch of heaven on earth.

Knees don't fail me now, because I am standing inches away from veteran entertainer
George Burns: Television star, motion picture icon, radio celebrity, recording artist, and best-selling author of nine books—his latest,
"Wisdom of the 90's".

"Mr. Burns," I glance at my watch. "Isn't it souptime?"

"How'd you know that, kid?"

"In all modesty, Mr. Burns: You were born Jan. 20, 1896. At 97 years of age, you have sustained the same daily habits for more years than I am old."

The George Burns' inimitable "daily double martini" prescription for happiness is about as widely known as Burns' unmatched mark in the multiple mediums of the entertainment world.

With all the smoothness of a puff on his

Willie Mosconi: The Babe Ruth of pool

'PEAK PERFORMERS'

By Del Reddy
and Eileen Courter

Willie Mosconi worked as technical advisor to Jackie Gleason and Paul Newman.

Remember The Music Man? When smoothtalking Professor Harold Hill wanted to stir concern among River City parents, he knew just what to say:

"We got trouble. Right here in River City. It begins with 'P' and it rhymes with 'fool' and it's pool."

In real life, Willie Mosconi has been fighting that pool-halls-as-dens-of-iniquity image for decades. And if anyone knows his way around a pool table, Mosconi certainly does. He's been described as the Babe Ruth of pool, the most skilled player the game has ever produced.

Some of his feats seem almost incredible. But they're real. For instance, there was the time he ran 526 balls. In case you didn't spend your youth hanging around pool halls, it means he sank 526 balls in a row, first designating the ball he would sink and the pocket he would send it into.

His record still stands. Pool aficionados find that legacy all the more outstanding because it was set back when pool tables were 5 feet by 10 feet. Today's standard is 4 by 8.

"It makes the game a heck of a lot easier," Mosconi observes.

His skill earned him 15 World Pocket Billiards Champion titles between 1941 and 1957. It also gave him the opportunity to serve as a goodwill ambassador and role model for the sport he loves.

Mosconi's biography, written by Stan Cohen, is due out this year. He still gives exhibitions, and CONQUEST caught up with him in Boston where he was proving even today he can wow a crowd.

Ask a sports legend how they became involved in their sport, and odds are the answer will begin somewhere in their childhood. Mosconi fits the pattern.

"My father owned a pool hall in Philadelphia, where I was born in 1913," he says. "I saw all those guys throwing the balls around, so I threw them around too."

Actually, Mosconi's father tried to keep him away from pool. He envisioned his son becoming a vaudeville dancer, like two of his uncles. But when Willie couldn't get his hands on a cue or balls, he simply substituted a broomstick and potatoes.

Mosconi's father surrendered. By the time Willie was six, he was already competing in exhibition matches.

"I got into it heavily between the ages of 7 and 17," Mosconi recalls. "Of course, I had to go to school, too. When I was 17 I entered a tournament. Fortunately I finished first, and that got me into some playoffs. That was the beginning of my career."

Brunswick Corp. executives soon spotted Mosconi and signed him as a member of their billiard staff, recruited to promote the company's billiard tables and boost interest in pool.

"Humm," the 18-year-old Mosconi mused. "Maybe I can earn money and make a career playing pool."

Back in the Depression-pinched 1930s, the idea of a regular paycheck was something to be taken seriously.

"It gave me a job—$600 a month and my expenses," Mosconi says. "That was a lot of money back then. I supported my whole family."

"We had a table in the basement. I'd go down to the basement, break the balls, and clear the table. Then I'd do it again. And again. It just got to be a natural thing."

After a little practice—oh, a decade or so—Mosconi found that like a skilled chess player he could look many moves ahead.

"You got so you knew you had two or three balls you could depend on around that one ball. Then you picked the whole rack. You could regularly see what was going to be next," he says.

Mosconi figures he was also fortunate to launch his career during what he considers the golden era of pool, competing with players such as Ralph Greenleaf, Willie Hoppe and Walter Cochrane.

"Everyone would ask Willie, 'How can I get to be a good pool player?'", recalls Mosconi's wife, Flora. "He always said, 'Play someone better than you.'"

Flora and Willie were married in 1953.

"She was one of my hustlers when I got into championship play," Willie teases. "She helped me with the scheduling. She counted the money, too."

Flora takes the bantering in stride. After all, she says, "He's given me a life I really like. That's the best part."

Mosconi has always been concerned about the image of pool. That's why he wore a jacket and tie when he played. Flora shares his concern.

"It (pool) was always looked on as having something of a stigma. But it's a beautiful, beautiful game," she emphasizes.

Perhaps the chance to improve the game's image explains why Mosconi enjoyed spending several years on what he calls "the college circuit," visiting campuses around the nation to promote and teach pool. His tour was sponsored by the Association of College Unions.

That's the only real teaching he ever did, Mosconi says. Then he pauses. Well, he continues, there was his work as technical advisor for the movie "The Hustler." The film, starring Jackie Gleason and Paul Newman, depicted two pool sharks dedicated to fleecing unsuspecting opponents.

"Some of the actors had never picked up a pool cue before," Mosconi recalls. "It was up to me to make them look good. I was with the cast for about four months. Gleason used to come over every day and I'd show him how to make certain shots. Gleason had runs as high as 50 or 60," an impressive pace.

As for Paul Newman, "He tried," Mosconi says politely.

Other pool fans honing their skills today can take comfort from, or can worry about, Mosconi's final remarks.

"I'd say the level of play in the sport today is as good as it ever was. If the competition and the right people are there, you can get the interest."

SENIOR FOCUS

TV MAGAZINE

By Carrie Young
Executive Editor

If you believe the world of television advertising, older people can't open medicine bottles because of their arthritis. They can't eat steak because their dentures might slip. And they need special undergarments for a trip to the grocery store.

Meanwhile, their baby boomer kids wonder if it's okay to leave mom and dad home alone.

"Tune out the commercials," says Maureen McCarthy. "All older people are not weak and helpless. The vast majority are very active...and what's more, they see themselves as active and capable."

Tune in, instead, to: "Senior Focus," Michigan's own award-winning TV Magazine Show for and about the active lifestyles of older adults.

Currently, Senior Focus can be seen on WTVS, Channel 56 every Tues. at 5 p.m., with a viewership estimated at more than 2 million.

Senior Focus Executive Producer Maureen McCarthy believes the tv show's success can be attributed to understanding the cold truth about where older adults spend their time — anywhere but home.

"We're talking about a person who retires at 65, and has another 20 to 25 years of life," McCarthy says. "Of course health care issues will be important. But so will travel, hobbies, later-in-life careers and other activities that exercise both the mind and the body."

Senior Focus recently began featuring older celebrities — Ernie Harwell, Virginia Graham, Nanette Fabray, and Debbie Reynolds, for instance — who embody active lifestyles that mature adults can relate to.

It seems to work.

In the past three years, Senior Focus has produced and aired more than 60 shows over cable tv in Oakland County, and prior to joining PBS's Channel 56 tv., Senior Focus has been recognized for its quality and excellent by two consecutive national first place awards from the National Federation of Local Cable Programmers.

McCarthy credits its older adult viewers for the tv magazine's success. "We often go on location to cover the stories which are suggested to us by senior organizations, agencies, sponsors and from persons who share the belief in the need for senior programming," she noted.

Seventy-two-year-old Lee Murray is the host of Senior Focus. The veteran female broadcaster is symbolic of Senior Focus' upbeat, positive slant on senior living.

Murray is an award-winning broadcast journalist formerly reporting at WKBD-TV, Channel 50, and as a host/producer at WJR, Detroit Talk Radio.

There are no advertisers at Senior Focus, but McCarthy says sponsors "Charter Bus Unlimited" and "Balian EyeCare Center" make it possible for local, on-site coverage of issues and events.

"We've covered stories that range from the Michigan Senior Olympics and Senior Softball to interviews with former Governor George Romney, consumer advocate Ralph Nader, Lee Iacocca, and Hugh Downs," McCarthy told CONQUEST.

Jack Lightcap, senior sales manager for Senior Marketing, at Charter Bus Unlimited, is a strong supporter of Senior Focus.

George & Gracie

A Love Story

vaudeville and radio sensation, to Oscar and Emmy winner, and to picking up a Grammy and penning books. Truly an artist for whom there are no barriers, nor restrictions.

In the business of entertainment, Burns is known for being a "transition man" for his unique ability of mastering all five mediums.

What's Burns' secret for legendary success?

He says it's his love of life. But more importantly, it is the love of his life, his late-wife, Gracie Allen.

"I give full credit to Gracie," Burns said. "I'd be in show business, regardless. But I never would have made it without Gracie."

In vaudeville Burns had a constantly changing act until 1923 when he teamed with Gracie Allen, a then unemployed 17-year-old, Irish-American actress.

"I started out as the comic and Gracie was the 'straight' woman," Burns smiled. "But after our first performance the roles were reversed. Gracie got all the laughs. The audience loved Gracie. Everybody loved Gracie....I loved Gracie."

After performing together for three years, they were married in 1926. Burns and Allen graduated from vaudeville to radio. By 1929, they were starring in the motion picture one-reeler, "Burns and Allen in Lamp Chops."

By 1950, they had starred in 14 movie shorts. That year the Burns and Allen tv show premiered on CBS. In 1955, Burns and Allen founded the McCadden Corporation to produce their own show as well as "The Bob Cummings Show," among others.

Their own show ran until 1958 when Gracie retired.

"I was retired when I worked with her," Burns laughed. "When she retired, I had to go to work."

Onstage she was lovable, confusing Gracie, who believed horses must be deaf because she saw so few of them at concerts, and who decided to cut her vacuum cleaner cord in half so she could save on electricity.

"Offstage," Burns confided, "she was a devoted wife, and loving mother of our two adopted children."

"Gracie suffered from crippling migraine headaches that were so bad she could barely get out of bed. She also had a bad heart. But she never missed a show...not a single one."

In 1964, Gracie died of a heart attack. Surviving her death was the most difficult transition period of Burns' life.

There was a love story.

"I'd spent our life together believing Gracie was eternal. I couldn't imagine life without her," Burns spoke softly.

There is a love story so strong that it has endured almost 30 years after her death.

"I go to Forest Lawn Cemetery once a month to see her," Burns reveals. "...and I tell her everything that's going on."

"I don't know if she hears me," he assured, "but I do know that every time I talk to her, I feel better."

Since Gracie's death, Burns has immersed himself in his work, applying his same secret for a successful marriage to his lasting career: "Love and laughter."

"I'd rather be a failure at something I'm in love with than be successful at something I hate," Burns noted. "I'm very fortunate, because I'm doing well in a business I've always loved. I've always been in love with show business, and I still am. I love it today as much as I did for the 20 years I flopped at it."

In the 1970s Burns began a new film career. "The Sunshine boys" was released in

'I don't know if she hears me. But I do know that every time I talk to her, I feel better...'

— George Burns

1975, and it broke all-time, single-day box office records. Burns won an Oscar for Best Supporting Actor.

He has done tv specials with guests, such as: Walter Matthau, Ann-Margaret, John Denver, Goldie Hawn, Johnny Carson, and Bob Hope.

Since he turned 80, Burns has turned into a best-selling author with such books as: "How To Live To Be 100-Or More," "The Ultimate Diet, Sex and Exercise Book," "Gracie: A Love Story," and his latest, "Wisdom of the 90s."

Along with his advice books, does Burns have advice for younger comics?

"You mean like Milton Berle?" Burns quips.

Burns still finds time for sell-out engagements in theaters and night clubs. In Nevada's depression-plagued Las Vegas in 1983, he sold out eight performances at the Sahara Hotel, turning hundreds away every night. He followed that engagement with seven years at Caesars Palace.

At the age of 95, Burns signed a five-year contract with the Riviera Hotel in Las Vegas, and will celebrate his 100th birthday at the Riviera.

"I'm looking forward to that," Burns winked. "I only hope they last that long."

Statewide march to the capitol

The 4th annual "Event" 1993 is scheduled for May 24 and 25 in Lansing, where persons with physical challenges from across Michigan meet for a statewide conference, and march to the state capitol.

The "Event", a political and educational rally for handicappers of all ages, was introduced to the state capitol scene the summer of 1990.

That year 600 handicappers participated.

Event 1993 is expected to draw more than 1,200 handicappers. The two-day event's first day is assigned to opening remarks, and workshops. Second day is devoted to a march/rally down Lansing's Capitol Ave., where handicappeds celebrate their similarities and differences, while sharing their political views with state leaders.

The controversial issue of Medically Assisted Suicides is being considered as one of the workshop topics, according to Don Anderson, Event chairperson.

Other areas of interest will include: Enforcement of the American Disabilities Act, a new far-reaching law that bars discrimination based on disability; Employment; Housing; and Auto Insurance Reform.

"The goal of the Event," according to Anderson, "is to empower handicappers to fully exercise their rights and responsibilities."

He added that the Event "is also intended to help handicappers to achieve full independence, integration, and inclusion in the social, economic, and political life in our state."

Celebrity speakers are to be announced, Anderson noted.

For pre-registration and brochure information on the Event, persons should write to: The Event, c/o the Ann Arbor Center for Independent Living, 2568 Packard, Ann Arbor, MI 48104.

Or persons should call: (313) 971-0277, TDD (313) 971-0310.

HOTEL checks in AHEAD of THE REST

Editor's Note: CONQUEST introduces "Challenges," a column geared towards the needs and interests of Michigan's 1.2 million handicappers.

We welcome Paul Novoselick, writer for Challenges. Novoselick was diagnosed with Multiple Sclerosis in 1984.

There I was, sitting in my wheelchair having what must have looked like a polite conversation with a four-foot high check-in counter.

"The Event," Michigan's premier annual rally of people with disabilities, was being held last year at the Radisson Hotel in Lansing. A friend and I were there planning to stay overnight.

After I rolled in and found myself face-to-face with the counter, a tiny head popped up over the top.

"Can I help you?" the woman asked.

"Yes," I thought. "Give me a chain saw so I can cut this check-in counter down to size."

But, in the interests of civility I just smiled and told her that we wanted to check in. The woman — short in stature as she was — then lurched over the counter and handed me a clipboard with a registration form attached.

I filled it out, signed it, and passed it back. We exchanged pleasantries and went our separate ways.

I haven't given much thought to my encounter with that check-in counter since I was at the Radisson last spring — until last week. That's when I read a column on, of all places, the Wall Street Journal editorial page.

The column was written by Clyde E. Culp, president and chief executive officer of Embassy Suites Hotel Division of Promus Companies, and his spokesman has given me permission to quote from it.

"At Embassy Suites we plan to remodel our older properties to provide a lower counter at the front desk to accommodate guests in wheelchairs," he wrote in the column.

"Until each hotel can provide that accommodation, we are instructing our personnel to come around the desk with a clipboard and sit down beside the guest to complete check-in and check-out."

Embassy Suites is the nation's largest chain of all-suite hotels with properties across the U.S., including two in Michigan. The upscale chain has embarked on an ambitious plan to make its hotels more accommodating to people with disabilities.

Embassy Suites appears to be far ahead of the hotel industry competition in complying with the Americans with Disabilities Act, a new far-reaching law that bars discrimination based on disability. Culp offers the following tips to other businesses who may not be so understanding of the ADA and what it seeks to achieve:

■ Provide job opportunities.

Regulations aside, hiring employees with disabilities causes other employees to become more comfortable working for and serving customers with disabilities.

"I've heard a lot of my fellow executives grumbling about the cost and effort the law requires," he said. "If you consider compliance as an opportunity rather than a necessary evil, you'll find good reasons to muster more enthusiasm."

"Americans with disabilities represent a sizable consumer market (that) merits some thoughtful attention. We have learned...those consumers appreciate sensitive service — and when they find it, they spread the word."

Even when it comes to the height of hotel check-in counters.

SENIOR POWER DAY

Mark Thursday, May 20, 1993 on your calendar. That day is designated Michigan Senior Power Day, when 7,000 older adults from across the state are expected to invade the state capitol city, Lansing.

They'll come in busses, and caravans to meet at the Lansing Civic Center for the 19th annual senior rally where as in years' past they will lobby state legislators on legislative issues of importance to them and future generations.

Health care is still the top priority this year, followed by housing and transportation, according to Jane Schoneman, executive director of Senior Power Day.

"We plan to have a number of different activities taking place at the same time to allow for the greatest number of participants possible," Schoneman said, "There will be workshops as well as the formal main event."

"It's a new day for Senior Power Day," however, says Schoneman. "It's always been on Tuesdays. But this year we've moved it to a Thursday."

Still, the purposes of Power Day remains the same.

"The event is designed to help older adults learn about and advocate for senior citizen issues and to have direct input with their elected officials," Schoneman said.

There will be the traditional public hearings and "show of strength" march to the state capitol, as well as the ever-popular Consumer Fair.

Free tickets to the event are distributed through the state's 14 Area Agencies on Aging.

"The easiest way to learn more about Power Day and to be included is to go to your local senior citizen center, or call your city hall," Schoneman advised.

"The doctor of the future will give no medicine, but will interest his patients in the care of the human frame, in diet and in the cause and prevention of disease."

Oakland County Services for Older Persons:

Here is a select listing of services to older adults in Oakland County, one of six counties through Area Agency on Aging 1-B, (AAA 1-B). Other counties include: Livingston, Macomb, Monroe, St. Clair and Washtenaw. Bear in mind that this list is by no means exhaustive.

"Our information and referral database has more than 1,500 services offered by nearly 600 providers," says Kay LeMon, director of communications for AAA 1-B.

The following lists current contractors who receive funding from AAA 1-B, and a few additional agencies and services.

"We encourage individuals to call the AAA 1-B information and referral line for a match that best meets their needs," Lemon says.

THE GOLDEN GLOBETROTTERS

DON'T MISS: Trends, tips, and assorted travel tidbits to be featured in GOLDEN GLOBETROTTERS.

There was a time, not too long ago, when the only decisions you had to make when signing up for a cruise were, "Where does it go?" and "What is the ship like?"

But, with the recent explosive growth of the cruise industry powered by the steady stream of new ships coming into service — more than 10,000 more berths became available during 1992 and thousands more are due this year — things have changed.

Scrambling to fill their ships, cruise marketing executives are using a proven tool: a voyage that features activities specifically geared to attract passengers with a particular interest in common. These "theme cruises" range through a spectrum as broad as the oceans over which the passengers sail.

Sports are particularly attractive as a theme, especially golf, because the itinerary is arranged so that aficionados of the pastime can play on famous courses along the route.

Music — ranging from opera to country/western — attracts those who want to see and hear, for instance, a renowned string quartet play as the ship sails at sea. Big Band orchestras on board ship are especially popular with mature adults, many of whom danced and romanced to the sounds of Tommy Dorsey, Glenn Miller, Benny Goodman and the rest.

Other popular themes that your travel agent can provide information on include theater, magic, wine tasting at sea, memories of the 1940s (or-50s, or 60s), anniversary cruises, and fitness/health sailings.

One organization, Fan-to-Sea Cruise Club, founded by retired California banker Egil Oftedal a couple of years ago, puts a strong emphasis on Big Band themes (he's a devoted Big Band buff) and, with a new twist, lets condo timeshare owners trade their time for a cruise.

He mentions Norwegian Cruise Line's SS Norway and its Big Band Cruise and another cruise for jazz lovers. (Call 1-800-327-7030.)

Royal Cruise Line has a Big Band Hall of Fame orchestra that features former top musicians with famous orchestras aboard the line's Royal Odyssey. (1-800-227-4534.)

TIPS FOR MATURE TRAVELERS

The suggestions cover a range of situations, from steps to take to protect personal safety on the road, to details of hotel security, with helpful advice on how to be comfortable about traveling and, especially, how to relax in one's hotel room. WATER EXERCISE

A wonderful, wet workout! You don't need to be a swimmer to exercise in the pool. All work is done in the shallow end. We work you hard enough to get your heart and lungs in shape, but the buoyancy of the water takes all of the impact away. The class helps you increase flexibility and muscular balance and coordination, too.

POWER WALLYBALL

Enjoy some good competition in this exciting game! A cross between racquetball and volleyball, wallyball can be enjoyed and mastered by all. Space is always limited because it is played in a racquetball court. Grab some friends or co-workers and join in the fun.

WOMEN'S WEIGHT TRAINING

A class to assist the participant in developing proper techniques for lifting both machine and free weights. Assistance in designing a program will be given.

BEGINNING WATER EXERCISE

A NEW class for those with specific needs. (Arthritis or other health problems.) This class will help increase your range of motion and your basic fitness level.

JOIN THE HEART AND SOLE RUNNING CLUB!

We welcome runners of all abilities - from beginners to marathoners. Come see what we're all about! - We run on Monday at 6:30 p.m., Wednesday, 6:00 p.m. and Saturday 9:30 a.m.
FOR MORE INFORMATION: Call 261-2161, and leave a message for Gary Plank, Running Club Coordinator.

MARTIAL ARTS

BEGINNING KARATE

Introduce yourself to the world of Tang Soo Do, a form of Korean Karate. Karate is an exciting and very disciplined art form. Train and learn with high level Master Dan! Students under 14 must attend first night orientation with parents.

KARATE CLUB

Be a part of an elite club of students who are striving to be the best! Club participants follow a rigorous training program and advance to various belts at their own pace. Various registration and association fees required and there are mandatory clinics for advancement. Taught by Master Romines, 6th Dan.

AIKIDO

Aikido is a non-competitive art based on the philosophy and martial arts of the Japanese samurai. It is an excellent fitness activity, effective self defense and a way of improving our relationships with others. Aikido teaches us not to defeat others, but to learn to control ourselves.

SCREENING REQUIRED FOR ALL FITNESS PARTICIPANTS

SUMMER fun

Meet Coolidge the "Cool" Chameleon. He's the YMCA symbol for red hot fun this summer. Coolidge represents the rainbow of choices available to children at a YMCA Camp. Programs like:

- ◆ Sailing
- ◆ Windsurfing
- ◆ Horseback Riding—Western & English
- ◆ Archery
- ◆ Nature Hikes
- ◆ Arts & Crafts
- ◆ Teen Adventure Trips
- ◆ AND MUCH MORE!

With two camps—Camp Ohiyesa and Camp Nissokone—and over 425 acres of unspoiled lakes, streams and forests to choose from, we have a camp for every kind of kid. Take a look at some of this year's programs:

- Parent and Child
- Art Exploration
- Journalism Camp
- Frontier Camp
- Boots and Saddles
- Performing Arts
- Wilderness Adventures
- Windsurfing

Camp Ohiyesa

Located in the northwest corner of Oakland County, on Fish Lake, Camp Ohiyesa offers kids, 4—16 years old, all the adventure, fun and learning of a resident camp experience less than one hour's drive from the Tri-County area.

Camp Nissokone

The Huron National Forest provides the backdrop for this breathtaking camp on the shores of Lake VanEtan, in Oscoda. Kids, ages 10-16, can choose swimming, sailing, hiking, fishing, riding and one- or two-week "on-the-road" travel adventures.

Kids have many needs when schools dismiss for the summer. YMCA Summer Camp meets those needs with personalized attention, caring trained staff, exciting well-planned activities and strong Christian values. We take kids seriously, helping them to grow through success, using their minds, bodies and hearts. Your kids belong at YMCA Camp.
