School leaders praise changes in deck plan

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

City officials were pleasantly surprised by the warm reception given their Mainstreet '93 plan Monday by a Northville school board subcommittee.

Subcommittee members thanked the city leaders for responding to their previous concerns over Mainstreet '92, the ambitious plan to re-route Cady Street and replace the existing Cady parking deck with a three-level version with three times the parking.

Mainstreet '93, in contrast, is $2 million less than last year's model while its two smaller decks and 160-space lot provide 90 percent of the parking. Downtown Development Authority Member Greg Presley told the subcommittee. By spending $25,000-$30,000 to "beef up" the footings on the Cady deck replacement, he added, the deck could be converted into the Mainstreet '92 model in the future.

"We feel that this is a compromise for the present that doesn't compromise the future," Presley said.

Mainstreet '93 would be an extension of Mainstreet '78, the downtown revitalization plan that diverted increased tax revenue to spur redevelopment and was due to expire in 1994. Under Mainstreet '93, the diversion would be extended for 11 years to pay off the new $4.2 million parking deck project.

Several aspects of the revised plan caught the board members' fancy, including exclusion of the vacant Ford Valve Plant from the tax capturing portion of the financing plan. If the plant had been included, any increase in property tax revenue when the site was redeveloped would have been diverted to pay off the project.

The financing plan also includes a special assessment on downtown properties, a payment from city coffers and a partial reversion of tax revenue to other taxing units like the school system.

Northville Public Schools in particular would see between $140,000-$150,000 a year in additional tax revenue from the downtown development district, between one half and one third of the money diverted from the schools each year.

Northville man found guilty in molestation case

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

An Oakland County Circuit Court jury last Friday found Northville resident Robert Allan Chace guilty on two counts of second-degree criminal sexual conduct.

The conviction is for Chace's involvement in a Feb. 16, 1992 incident with an 8-year-old girl.

The girl testified that she was visiting a South Lyon home owned by Chace's relatives on Valentine's Day weekend when Chace lay down on the mattress where she slept, touched her, and made her touch his genitals.

"He took my hand and touched his private with my hand," she said at an April 6, 1992 preliminary examination in Walled Lake's 52-1 District Court. "He touched my private ... my boob," she added, referring to her breast.

District Judge Brian MacKenzie found sufficient evidence in her remarks and an Oakland County Sheriff's Department investigation to bind Chace over to circuit court on the charges.

Chace, 23, stood mute at an April 20, 1992 circuit court appearance, and a not guilty plea was entered on his behalf.

His June 18 conviction followed a day of testimony from the victim, now 10, the victim's mother and two others before visiting Judge Frederick Balkwill. Chace took the stand in his own defense that afternoon, but his prior testimony worked against him, said Oakland County Prosecutor Mary Ellen Brennan.

"He stated that if he touched her, it was accidental," Brennan said. But she added that there were inconsistencies in what the defendant told an Oakland County Sheriff's Department detective and what he said to the operator of a polygraph test that he took while awaiting trial.

While he told one that the only time he touched the girl was when he was getting up to go to the bathroom, he told the other that he only touched her after falling down and reaching out to break his fall.

Chace failed the polygraph test, though its results were inadmissible in court.

The circuit court case, originally expected to go to trial last July, was rescheduled repeatedly due to witness delays and a change of judges overseeing the case. The case was first scheduled to be heard before Judge Richard D. Kuhn.

Chace remains free on a $20,000 personal recognizance bond until his July 26 sentencing before Judge Balkwill. He faces mandatory AIDS testing and up to 15 years in prison on the charges, Brennan said.

"He will have to be tested for AIDS no matter what his sentence is," she said.

Ford lines up buyer for plant

City council meets with potential owner next week

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

A short relocation for a Northville Township firm could mean the end of a long vacancy at the former Ford Valve Plant.

R & D Enterprises, Inc., 19430 Gerald Ave., soon will begin negotiating with the city over purchase of the 13.7-acre Ford Valve Plant property. R & D President Richard D. Cox said the quickly-expanding manufacturing firm must move out of its current location by November.

R & D officials already have outlined a plan with Ford Motor Co. to purchase the long-vacant plant at 235 E. Main, but the deal may hinge on a tax abatement from the city and the city's agreement to purchase 2.4 acres of Ford-owned land on the west side of Griswold from the township firm.

Under the proposed sales agreement, outlined in a June 23 press release by City Manager Gary Word, the city would immediately acquire the four acres west of Griswold known locally as Ford Field, and about four acres of land and waterway between the plant and the property's northern boundary. Word noted that the land along the Middle Rouge River could become part of a riverwalk linked to Mill Race Historical Village and would provide public access to the waterfowl that have become a symbol for downtown Northville.

"It is, I think, a good opportunity for the city to expand its employment base and tax base, and utilize an existing facility that's been a historical feature in this community for a long, long time," Word said Wednesday.

R & D Enterprises, a leading manufacturer of heat exchangers for the marine industry, hopes to relocate its light manufacturing and distribution business from Gerald Avenue to a renovated Main Street plant. The firm would be joined by Acorn Stamping Inc., a metal stamping plant now located in Rochester.

R & D and Ford officials plan to meet with the city council in a special study session June 30 to discuss the potential plant purchase and relocation. The 8 p.m. session will be open to the public.

When asked to comment on the proposal, R & D President Richard D. Cox declined to discuss specifics until the June 30 meeting.

"I really can't share the details of our plan until we've presented it to the city council," Cox said. "Let me just say that R & D Enterprises began operating and is still located about 200 yards from the Ford Plant ...

"While we know that the renovation plan has to make economic sense when compared to relocating to a new facility elsewhere, we all want to stay in Northville. We really think that this plan will have a win-win result for both R & D Enterprises and the Northville community."

R & D reportedly has been approached by several other communities willing to offer tax assistance in exchange for the firm relocating its business and 40 jobs.

The Ford Valve Plant had been mentioned as a potential site for a community library and other civic uses following a 1989 study by Quinn Evans / Architects that found the site suitable for a 25,000-square-foot library and either a school services center or small retail mall.

Last year, a consortium led by Southfield developer Pete Zervos lined up two commercial office ten-

Highland Lakes feud claims store

By SHARON CONDRON
Staff Writer

Woolly Bully's owner Mark Roman isn't the only Seven Mile Road merchant to have bumped heads with Highland Lakes Shopping Center owner Bill Autry.

Last week Michel Ansara, the owner of Michel's Jewelers, struck a nerve with Autry when he announced he was vacating the center to open shop in the city of Northville.

On Tuesday, Ansara hung a poster board sign in his store window announcing his move. The sign said he was moving to the city because of "poor conditions" at the shopping center. There was also a letter taped to the inside of the jewelry store window that detailed Ansara's gripes with his landlord.

Autry got wind of the sign and the letter, and marched down to the store and ripped them up, according to a police report filed over the incident by Ansara.

The complaint was filed by store manager Steve Reed who told Northville Township Police. Autry walked into the store and demanded to see Ansara. Reed said he told Autry Ansara was on the telephone, but he would be with him soon.

Instead of waiting to talk with Ansara, Reed said Autry turned and pulled the sign from the window and ripped it up. The store owner hung up the phone and engaged in a shouting match with Autry. After several obscenities were exchanged, according to accounts, Autry left.

Township police called Autry after the incident and asked him to respond to Ansara's complaint. The report indicates that police phoned Autry and asked him to apologize to Ansara and meet them at the jewelry store. Autry reportedly refused.

The malicious destruction of property report was filed and seeks damages for the $1.25 Ansara invested in the sign and the letter. Ansara said he intends to prosecute Autry and the charge to the full letter of the law.

The store owner said he's dismayed with how things have escalated between him and Autry. He said Autry has forced him out of the center because of the way he's handled the parking problem with Woolly Bully's. The jewelry store owner said he has lost business since Autry put up the chain link fence that divides the shopping center from the night club.

"As a tenant I don't approve of the look of the fence," he said. "We signed a lease for retail space with entrances that were to be left open. He's fenced his tenants in and people can't enter in that way."

"I think it's very ugly. In the retail business you have to look good. He's been hard-headed," he said. "Autry could have solved the problem by doing something fancier."

When contacted, Autry declined comment on the matter.

Ansara said Autry has made matters worse by hiring security guards to patrol the parking lot who have been harassing his and other center

City calls hearing to redirect funds

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

The Northville City Council on Monday agreed to call a public hearing to redirect $61,500 in unspent Wayne County Community Development Block Grant funds to avoid losing them.

But council members did not agree to one proposal for the redirected funds.

City officials had been informed by Wayne County Community Development staff that the city would lose the funds, from 1991, if they were not spent soon. The funds had been earmarked for a city hall elevator but an architect now designing a city hall renovation plan has told city staff the elevator could not be installed until midway through 1994 or later.

"We're getting close to the deadlines for the expenditure of those funds, and we are nowhere near being able to expend them on the elevator project at this time," said City Manager Gary Word.

The council agreed to a staff recommendation to redirect $41,000 of the funds toward energy-efficient barrier-free projects at Allen Terrace, the city's senior housing complex. The improvements would include replacement door handles to meet requirements of the Americans with Disabilities Act and better insulation of the complex's pipes and hot water heaters.

A proposal to direct the remaining $20,500 toward expansion of the parking lot at the 215 W. Cady St. senior center building drew words of caution from council members.

Council Member Jerry Mittman and Mayor Chris Johnson noted that a previous plan to extend the senior center lot farther south met with heated opposition from local residents, and the council agreed then to redesign the project. "We wanted to preserve the green, grassy space out there," Johnson said.

"It's not the city staff's intent to reopen healed wounds," Word said.

Council Member Paul Folino noted that the city could provide more parking for the seniors by paving an unpaved area across Cady behind the Recreation Center and installing a wide staircase between the lot and Cady.

"We're going to have to get creative," Johnson said.

The council called for a July 19 public hearing to take comments on the proposals.

Police News

Police diffuse businessman's fireworks supply

Fourth of July celebrations came a few days earlier for one Northville businessman. The owner of Six-N-Pack was ticketed by township police on June 18 for selling illegal fireworks at the store.

Police learned the store was selling fireworks from township firefighters. Once inside the store, police found a brown paper bag behind the counter. In it were 82 packs of firecrackers and 12 bottle rockets. Police also found a full case of roman candles on top of a walk-in cooler in the back room of the store.

STOLEN COMPUTER: Township police are looking for the person or persons who stole a computer off the porch of a Five Mile Road apartment building. A Northville couple reported the computer equipped with its own hard drive and monitor missing on June 18.

The couple had the computer delivered to the apartment earlier that afternoon. Police said neighbors saw the package on the porch earlier in the day. They have no suspects, but a neighbor did say she saw a 20-year-old man with dark hair in the vicinity earlier. Police aren't saying whether or not the 20-year-old is a suspect.

FALSE REPORT: Township police responded to a robbery in progress call at the Hawthorne Center on June 9 only to find it was a false report. Police say they arrived at the center and learned the call to the station was placed by a juvenile living at the center. Det. Fred Yanke said police are investigating the incident.

BOYS' MOUNTAIN BIKE FOUND: Township police found a boys' 12-speed mountain bike in the bushes near a home on Windhill Drive. The bike's value is estimated at $100.

DRUNKEN DRIVING ARRESTS: City police arrested three people for operating under the influence of liquor and unlawful blood alcohol level over the weekend. A 40-year-old Brighton man was stopped at 11 p.m. June 18 on Eight Mile near Coldspring after police noticed his car weaving and driving on the shoulder as he headed west.

The man admitted having three drinks at work and three or four more at a local bar. His blood alcohol level was measured at more than twice the legal limit. He was held in a city police department cell until 1:45 p.m. the next day, when he had sobered up and paid a $100 bond.

A 58-year-old Northville woman was arrested at 1:40 a.m. June 19 after nearly hitting a fire truck diverting traffic around a serious accident at Main and Center. A fire official notified police after the woman nearly struck his vehicle at Eight Mile and Grace, and she was pulled over on Center south of Eight Mile.

She failed three attempts to recite the alphabet and nearly fell when asked to step out of her car, according to the police report. She reportedly became belligerent and refused to take a preliminary breath test after she was taken to the curb, but agreed to take a Breathalyzer after being arrested and taken to the station.

Her blood alcohol level was measured at .17 and .18 percent, nearly twice the legal level. She was released at 9:15 a.m. after she posted a $500 personal recognizance bond and her blood alcohol level dropped.

A 46-year-old Sterling Heights man was arrested after he passed a patrol car and ran a red light June 20. The patrol car, heading south on South Main just after midnight, pulled to the side of the road to let the man pass when a police officer noticed he was driving with his high beams on. The man then pulled into the left-hand turn lane at Seven Mile when the light turned red and drove through the red light, swerving into the southbound lane.

After he was pulled over, the man told police he had had three or four beers before driving. His blood alcohol level was measured at .17 and .19. He was released eight hours later after his blood alcohol level had dropped and he posted a $100 bond.

FENDER BENDERS: City police responded to five accidents last week, one of which was still under investigation as of press time Tuesday. The other four included one in which a 32-year-old Livonia man was cited for careless driving after smashing into the back of two westbound cars on Eight Mile Road that had slowed for a red light at Center. The incident occurred at 8:40 a.m., June 18. The man's car was disabled and he was cut in the accident, but refused medical attention. A witness estimated his speed at 60 mph.

No citations were issued following a June 19 accident at South Main and Seven Mile, after a westbound driver turned into the path of a southbound driver on South Main just after 3:30 p.m. Both cars were disabled, and one driver was taken to Garden City Hospital by ambulance with non-life-threatening injuries.

A 21-year-old Northville man was cited for failing to yield from a stop sign after he drove into a westbound car on Eight Mile at 12:20 p.m., June 20. The man was heading north on Novi Street when an eastbound driver on Eight Mile stopped and waved him across. By the time the eastbound driver noticed the westbound traffic and tried to warn the other driver, it was too late.

Both cars were disabled in the resulting collision and the Northville driver sustained a cut on his knee, but he refused medical attention.

An hour later at the same intersection, a similar accident occurred involving an eastbound car. A stopped eastbound driver waved a northbound driver into the intersection but when the northbound driver pulled out, her car was struck by an eastbound vehicle in the right-hand lane. She told police she thought the vehicle was far enough behind her to pull out.

Citizens with information about the above incidents are urged to call Northville City Police at 349-1234 or Northville Township Police at 349-9400.

Dr. Smith:

On my last visit you requested that I let you know about the outcome of the Radial Keratotomy surgery. I had the surgery done by Dr. Robert D. Beitman, the results are nothing less than a miracle. I can see 20/20 without glasses and could not be more satisfied.

Dr. Beitman is an expert in the field. His staff are top quality, they treat you as an 'individual' paying close attention to the patient's needs and concerns. His prices are the best and insurance covered it all.

Enclosed is a brochure from his office. I would highly recommend Dr. Beitman for any of your patients considering Radial Keratotomy. The longer drive is well worth the quality of care.

Lack of customers reason merchants closing doors

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

Parking is not the problem for two local businesses closing their doors this week.

The owners of V & S Variety Store and Juan Carlo's Restaurant instead blamed a lack of customers.

"I don't see any (parking) problem currently," said Juan Carlo's owner John Hansen. "It used to be a problem. But businesses just aren't doing as well as they were before."

"I wish we had the parking problems now that we had them."

Hansen, who has run the business at 148 Mary Alexander Court for the past 11 years with the help of wife Laura and partner Charles Schmidt, will shutter Juan Carlo's June 28.

He said business peaked at the restaurant three to four years ago. "It's been downhill the last two or three years," he said. Hansen estimated that the restaurant is now only drawing a third of the customers it used to. Hansen, 43, said he is uncertain whether he will open a new restaurant or move north. His immediate plans include taking a month off and going fishing, he said. "I haven't had that much time off in 11 years."

Despite the recent lack of traffic, Hansen said Northville has been a good place to own a business.

"It's been a great town," he said. "The merchants have been great to work with, and everybody's worked together to try and make it go."

Owners of the V & S Variety Store at 139 E. Main planned to clear their shelves for good Saturday, June 26. Donna Black, who with husband Bob oversees the business and the Ace Hardware at 42939 Seven Mile in Northville Township, blamed the closure on a lack of customers in the city's downtown district.

"We can't be out of here too soon for me," Donna said last month while preparing to close. "The whole town is dead as far as I'm concerned. We're doing fine out there (in the township)."

The Blacks moved their hardware store from its 139 E. Main St. location in early 1991, citing a need for more parking. The V & S Variety store, one of a chain of 2,500 such stores nationwide, took its place that February as Bob Black promised to run it for 2½ years as a break-even proposition.

Last September he announced that the store was not breaking even, only drawing 80-100 customers a day when it needed 250. He said then that competition from other retailers like Arbor Drugs was part of the problem.

Black had hoped to move the variety store into a new location in Northville Township eventually.

Another downtown store, Northville Pharmacy, went out of business yesterday.

Annual Fourth of July parade set July 3, Old West is theme

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

Independence Day comes a day early to Northville this year, as the annual Fourth of July parade will be held on the third instead.

The parade, sponsored by Northville Kiwanis Early Birds and VFW Post 4012, kicks off a day-long celebration of the country's independence, and revolves around an Old West theme. Participants and spectators are encouraged to dress up in their best chaps and Stetsons, and cheer on a parade that will include covered wagons and a team of cowboys on horseback.

The Grand Marshal of this year's parade, world-class marathoner Doug Kurtis, will lead the covered wagon train.

By Tuesday, Coordinator Debbie McDonald already had dozens of floats signed up for the parade, including five musical groups like the popular local Country & Western band Willow Creek. She noted that Star Manor Nursing Home will enter its own float in the parade, called "The Old, Old, Old, Old West."

"I'm getting new entries by the moment every time I answer the phone," McDonald said.

The parade's theme was the subject of a contest sponsored by parade organizers, and local consultant Charles Keys won the contest by choosing the Old West. Keys, along with Dave Snyder of Omnicom Cablevision, will emcee the parade as it is taped by Omnicom.

To take a real journey back in time that Saturday, stop by Mill Race Historical Village after the parade.

Northville Historical Society president Betty Omar, who chairs this year's Fourth of July celebrations at Mill Race, said all the village buildings will be open while blacksmiths and weavers and basketmakers' guilds demonstrate their skills and a dulcimer musician plays. The Northville Historical Society will host its own membership drive and bake sale as well.

The 17th and 21st Michigan Infantry will perform reenactments of Civil War skirmishes following the 10 a.m. parade.

Starting at noon, Northville Jaycees will host children's games and the Sixth Gate Cloggers will perform. The Novi Concert Band and a dulcimer player will provide musical accompaniment to the festivities throughout the afternoon.

Northville Rotary's hot dog cart also will be on hand, and Northville High School will provide the dessert during its cookie sale.

Residents are invited to bring lunches and picnic on the banks of Mill Pond.

'Art in the Sun' festival set for weekend, 100 exhibits expected

Northville will be the place to be for fine arts aficionados this weekend, as the Northville Community Chamber of Commerce sponsors its annual "Art in the Sun" festival.

The festival, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, will feature a wide array of juried art displays in more than 100 exhibits, and draws artists from all over Michigan and surrounding states including Ohio, Illinois, Indiana and Kentucky.

The artisans include sterling silver jewelers, painters, potters and sculptors, as well as more unique craftsmen like a maker of rustic furniture and an ice carver, who will demonstrate his craft in front of Orin Jewelers Saturday.

Area restaurants including Rocky's of Northville and Papa Romano's will provide the food, near the Main Street Bandshell. Strollers can grab one of Chef Chuck "Rocky" Rachwitz's famous seafood specialties or an Italian selection from Papa Romano's and dine at their own open air umbrella tables along Main and Center.

Musical accompaniment will be supplied by Collecting Consort, a harp and dulcimer ensemble playing Victorian tunes.

Main and Center streets will be closed to vehicles and thrown open for pedestrians, and local merchants plan special sales to coincide with the two-day event.

The annual festival was originally known as "SummerSong," but its name was changed last year as its focus was shifted from entertainment to the arts.

McCotter on special task force

By SHARON CONDRON
Staff Writer

It's Wayne County Commissioner Thaddeus McCotter's job now to entice small and minority-owned businesses into Northville and Plymouth.

The commissioner who represents the cities and townships of Northville and Plymouth in county affairs was recently named Vice Chair of the Commission's Special Task Force on Small and Minority Business.

The task force, McCotter said, seeks to increase the number of economic opportunities for small and minority businesses. As the 10th District representative, McCotter will use his position to help steer new small and minority-owned businesses this way.

This latest appointment is supported by an earlier appointment to the commission's Economic Development Committee.

"While Northville has an enormous potential for light industrial and research and development facilities, one need only walk down Main Street to realize small business is the foundation of our community's economy," McCotter said.

"I welcome the opportunity to preserve and promote the county's small and minority businesses based upon the economic principles that have been so successful in our community."

Since his election to the commission, McCotter — who is one of only two Republicans on the 15-member commission — has also been named Chair of the Audit Subcommittee on Wayne County automobiles. In that capacity, the commissioner will be responsible for drafting an ordinance regulating the purchase, lease and use of county-owned cars.

Livingston County man takes over SEMCOG

By TIM RICHARD
Staff Writer

A longtime official from the westernmost village in the region, Fowlerville, is the new chair of the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments.

"I've seen great change, most of it for the better," said Richard Rudnicki, 62, a SEMCOG delegate since he took office as drain commissioner of Livingston County in 1973.

"I first came to SEMCOG because of the Clean Water Act. We had no representation from Livingston County in putting together the regional sewer map. No one was looking out for our county's best interests."

Livingston, a largely residential county of farms and lakes, isn't known for a high degree of interest in regional affairs. Only 36 percent of its governmental units (eight of 22) belong to the regional planning agency, the second poorest showing of any member county.

But Rudnicki insisted that "Livingston County is generally concerned with the metropolitan area and the Regional Development Initiative (to combat urban sprawl).

Growth needs to be managed."

In the last year, Green Oak Township joined SEMCOG, finally giving the township bloc enough votes to qualify for a seat on the executive committee.

Rudnicki worked his way up the SEMCOG ranks through water quality and environmental committees. His election Thursday by SEMCOG's General Assembly was unanimous. He succeeds E.A. Jackson Morris, supervisor of Pittsfield Township in Washtenaw County.

Rudnicki is the second Livingston resident in 25 years to head SEM-

COG. First was Robert Smith of the intermediate school board.

Rudnicki said local governments face problems in "rural areas struggling to retain their character" as well as older cities and suburbs. With limited revenues and challenges from taxpayers, he told SEMCOG, they must "reach consensus and avoid confrontation."

Missing from his audience was delegate Coleman A. Young who, in more than 19 years as mayor of Detroit, has never attended a SEMCOG meeting.

Except for a tour of duty in the Navy, Rudnicki has spent all his life in Livingston County. "I grew up in the newspaper business. My father died young, and I took over the family business as editor and publisher of the Fowlerville Review, a weekly," he said.

In 1972 he entered a six-way race for drain commissioner. "I ran on a dare and became vitally interested," he recalled.

Rudnicki's successor is likely to be Gail Kaess, Grosse Pointe Farms city council member who was elected SEMCOG's first vice chair.

All other vice chairs are women, too: Anita Ashford, Port Huron council member; Joan Buser, Oakland Township supervisor; Elizabeth Slinde, Macomb County commissioner; and Marjorie Thomas, president of the St. Clair County intermediate school board.

The first woman chair of SEMCOG had bad political luck. In 1988 Nancy Davis had her service interrupted in mid-term when she was defeated for re-election as supervisor of Ann Arbor Township.

Mill Race Matters

Summer has finally arrived. Visit Mill Race Village and enjoy the roses which are now fully in bloom. Rose gardener Pat Hibbard encourages all members and friends to stop in to view the flowers not only while the buildings are open, but any time.

Thanks are offered to area residents Ruth Crawford, Paul and Priscilla Wild, and Frank Von Koss for donations of additional roses to enhance the Village's growing collection. Buildings are open every Sunday from 2 to 5 p.m. Docents are on duty during this period to provide information on the Historic village.

Fourth of July festivities this year will be held on Saturday, July 3, immediately after the community parade on Main Street. The Village should open about 11 a.m. Buildings will be open, Victorian craftspeople will be displaying their skills at weaving and blacksmithing, among others, and items will be available for sale through our Country Store, the Mill Race Weavers Guild, and the Mill Race Basket Guild.

Enjoy a traditional, old fashioned holiday at Mill Race Village. Participants are encouraged to bring picnic lunches to eat on the green (no park benches) and spend a truly relaxing afternoon.

Each week a segment of this column deals with materials available through the Northville Community Archives. Oftentimes this historic data refers back to the early settlers in this area. In recent weeks reference has been made to the Native Americans who inhabited, although sparsely, this area prior to the arrival of the first permanent settlement builders. Native American tribes in this region prior to the nineteenth century were the Chippewa, Ottawa, and Potawatomi. Helen Gilbert discusses these groups in her two volumes of "Tonquish Tales," as do other Native American authorities.

Another interesting and informative book on these groups is "People of the Three Fires," written in 1986 by James Clifton, George Cornell and James McClurken. These books and others seem to indicate that these Native American ancestors inhabited this region from the 16th to the early 19th century.

Most of the earliest Anglo Saxon settlers in this region came from New York. Many had been in upper New York for only one or two generations, having moved westward just before or immediately after the American Revolution. Many of these individuals traced ancestors to the first New England colonists.

The names of many of these settlers have been forever lost to us. The 1830 and 1840 census documents list only the head of household. Frequently in that period more than one family might live in the same household. It was also not unusual for several adults to live together. Furthermore the spouses and children go unrecorded.

The names of early landholders do not correspond exactly with the names which appear on the census. Birth and marriage records were not mandatory until much later and burials frequently occurred without tombstones.

The records that exist lead one to believe that the population in the immediate Northville vicinity in 1827 was 123 in 26 households. Of those households perhaps four preceded the first granting of land in 1825, but no records exist to prove this. These facts are gleaned from a variety of sources available in Northville's Community Archives, Mill Race Village.

Council hears residents concerns

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

The city council got an earful Monday about the city's June 8 closure of the Old Novi Street bridge.

Baseline Street business owners asked the council to repair the 60-year-old concrete and steel bridge as soon as possible to keep their businesses viable, while nearby residents complained about increased commercial truck traffic through their neighborhoods.

The bridge, which spans the Middle Rouge River and links Baseline Road east of Novi Street with Griswold Avenue, was closed to all traffic after city engineers determined that one of the concrete abutments was slowly sliding into the river.

It had been closed to northbound car traffic and all trucks since last September when a routine inspection by city engineers determined that the abutment was failing, though city engineers at McNeely & Lincoln suspect that some trucks continued to use the bridge to get to Baseline Road after its partial closure.

The city applied for state funds through the Michigan Critical Bridge Program when problems with the bridge first surfaced, and updated the application when the bridge was closed entirely.

The state program, which funds projects like the ongoing Lodge Freeway repairs, would pay for 95 percent of bridge construction costs. Other expenses like engineering fees and design work would not be covered.

City officials said Monday that the repairs likely will have to wait on acquisition of state funds.

"I think we do have an obligation to businesses in the area," said City Manager Gary Word. But because of the city's current budget deficit, he added, "we need to use any outside funds available."

"We've got a real serious interest in

Baseline business owners pressed the Northville City Council to repair and reopen the Old Novi Street Bridge as soon as possible.

seeing that the bridge gets done as quickly as possible," said Parmenter's Northville Cider Mill co-owner Rob Nelson. He and partner Rich Jones noted that customer traffic often is snarled around the mill when the mill opens in September.

"There were periods last year when we had 16 people helping us with traffic," Jones said, and that was when the bridge was still open to southbound vehicles. He predicted a bigger traffic jam now that Baseline east of Novi Street has been turned into a dead-end road.

Stuart Oldford Jr. of Northville Lumber asked whether the city could proceed with temporary bridge repairs to reopen it on a limited basis. Engineer Bob Warner said that was possible but warned that the whole bridge needs to be replaced soon, and added that a closed bridge is more eligible for state funds than an open one.

"If we temporarily fix the bridge, it loses some priority, and you might lose the funds to fix it altogether," Warner said. "The fact that the bridge is obviously under distress and has been closed is what carries weight with MDOT (Michigan Department of Transportation)."

McNeely & Lincoln has estimated replacement costs for the bridge at $135,000. The money would pay for removal of the existing bridge and installation of a precast concrete bridge set on poured foundations.

Warner said the bridge type, similar to the one at the entrance to St. Lawrence Estates, can be quickly installed. "The new design would sustain modern-day trucks," he added.

State Rep. Jerry Vorva (R-Plymouth) also sat in on Monday's meeting, and said he would argue Northville's case with Michigan Department of Transportation officials. He had already alerted Rep. Willis Bullard, R-Highland, since the bridge falls within his Oakland County district.

"Since we're in the same party, we won't have to worry about building bridges to work on this bridge project," Vorva said.

Camomile Makes wrinkles almost disappear

Recently, an historic study was conducted in Europe. A group of women whose skin had been damaged by harmful ultraviolet rays of the sun applied a patented Camomile preparation.

In just 3 days, a dramatic smoothing effect occurred with a visible reduction of the fine lines and wrinkles caused by the UV rays. In just 7 days, the skin returned to its healthy, radiant look.

Now this special natural Camomile is available in a luxurious cream under the name CamoCare Facial Therapy.

Camomile does more than moisturize. It soothes and relaxes the skin -- dramatically reducing the appearance of lines and wrinkles caused by sun damage.

Police looking for culprit who sawed down old trees

By SHARON CONDRON
Staff Writer

Somebody cut down a row of trees at Five Mile and Haggerty Roads and Northville Township's chief building official isn't happy about it.

Building Inspector Michael Kruszewski said Friday he and township police are looking to find the culprits who sawed down the seven, 100-year-old trees sometime during the first week in May.

A disgusted Kruszewski said the act was not only a disgrace to the natural landscape, it also violated the township's woodlands ordinance.

"It's a crime. It's like raping the land," he said. "To me, it makes me sick. It's just very upsetting because they were all protected by our woodlands ordinance."

Kruszewski said there is and has been development moving into that corridor. But the site plan for an incoming restaurant indicates the trees were supposed to remain standing.

He said he has spoken with incoming restaurateur Bob Silverman about the missing trees, but Silverman said he had no idea who cut them down.

Silverman is clearing the land to pave the way for a new Silverman's Restaurant on the site, but claims neither he nor his construction company had anything to do with toppling the trees.

Kruszewski said a conversation with the developer of an adjacent strip mall yielded no clues either. He said he had thought about pushing for a formal investigation and contacting the township's legal counsel to pursue it further, but such action would be cost prohibitive.

"It's just too costly for the township to launch a full blown investigation," he said. "But it is really a crime. Those trees were at least each 100 years old."

Kruszewski is seeking the identity of the person or persons who cut the trees down. Anyone with information about the trees can call Kruszewski at township hall at 348-5800.

Northville Township officials are trying to find out who cut down seven, 100 year old trees at Five Mile and Haggerty.

School praises Mainstreet changes

Mainstreet '93's reduced reliance on tax capturing, and the resulting reduction in the tax revenue diverted from Northville Public Schools, is what pleased subcommittee members most.

"We did have these concerns, and most of these concerns have been addressed," said Board Treasurer Robert McMahon. "I think that needs to get out."

Not all the comments on the deck plan were positive. Incoming School Board Member Joan Wadsworth noted that it is less costly to the schools than its predecessor, but that its use of tax capturing still represents a disturbing trend for other taxing units.

She sought some assurance from city leaders that the DDA would not pursue tax capturing projects in the future.

"Tax increment financing is not the ideal way to do these kinds of projects," she said. "When is it going to end?"

Mayor Chris Johnson said he could not forecast the city's future needs, and said the council could not legally bind the actions of future councils.

Advocates for Quality Education members Irene Fleming and Barb Vacketta had several questions about the plan for city officials, including the reliability of the city's figures on tax reversion.

"The reversion is really what makes it almost palatable to the schools," Vacketta said, "but it's not acceptable if this is really not a true figure or not what's going to happen."

McMahon said he hoped the full school board would take a stand on Mainstreet '93, and Supt. Leonard Rezmierski said the board could discuss the project at its June 28 and July 12 meetings.

Board Vice President Glenna Davis suggested that the board should make its position known July 12, following a June 28 public hearing on Mainstreet '93 before the city council.

OLV principal steps into retirement

school and earn her teacher certification.

In her beginning years as a teacher, Reagan taught at a middle school in Royal Oak.

"I enjoyed my classroom experience," she said. "It really was a preparation for becoming an administrator."

While still in the classroom, Reagan went back to school herself and earned her master's degree in guidance and counseling. She soon put her new skills to work when she was hired as a high school guidance counselor at St. Alphonsus in Dearborn.

"After 12 years in that (guidance and counseling), I had the credentials at that point in time to become an administrator," she said.

Reagan's other administrative job was that of principal for St. Joseph's school in Lake Orion. She was there for two years before taking the job at

Our Lady of Victory.

The most challenging part of her educational career has been in curriculum development, she said.

"I think that is the heart of the matter," Reagan said. "My favorite part is integrating the technology into the curriculum — the technological enhancements such as computers, cable TV..."

Her role as principal at Our Lady of Victory required Reagan to wear many hats. She was responsible for curriculum leadership, tuition, the budget, personnel and management.

"There are a zillion things private schools do differently than public schools," Reagan said. "A public school district is like a GM corporation. A private school is more like being a small businessman because you're responsible for everything. Schools... like the Northville school district or the Detroit school district is a large structure with a lot of supervisory positions."

"Here, I've got to raise the money and I spend the money. Catholic schools, in part, depend on the parish."

During Reagan's tenure, the parish has provided for approximately 25 percent of the school's operational budget.

"Many individuals have come forward to make substantial gifts to the school of their time and financial resources," Reagan said. "This has permitted us to provide first-class facilities and opportunities for our children."

"It has allowed us to create an environment which has encouraged the full development of each student's moral values, power of reasoning and sense of responsibility to self, to family, to church and to the community of which the student is an important part."

There's a good chance you'll find

Reagan on the golf course now that she's retiring. She and her husband Willard (Bill), an attorney, will also be traveling to visit their children and grandchildren who are spread out across the United States.

Daughter Marilyn has just received her Ph.D. in tumor cell biology from Northwestern. The Reagan's other two daughters, Rose and Martha, work for insurance agencies. Rose is a vice president of Marsh-McLennan Insurance Agency in Boston and Martha is a partner in a Farmers Insurance Agency in Chicago.

There are also two sons, Jack, a director of financial analysis and business planning for GTE Mobile Communications in Atlanta, and Frank, an actuary with the consulting firm of Wyatt in Southfield.

"You can tell I'm really proud of them," Reagan said.

Shoppers' car windows shattered by pellet gun

By SHARON CONDRON
Staff Writer

Two Meijer shoppers called Northville Township Police last Saturday to say their rear windows had been shattered while shopping at the Eight Mile and Haggerty Road store.

In two separate incidences, police say someone used a BB gun to shoot out the rear windows of a 1992 Tempo and a 1987 Pontiac Grand Am.

Both incidents were reported within 20 minutes of each other on June 19. A 36-year-old New Hudson woman was the first of the two to file a report with township police at 10 p.m. Police found evidence at the scene that identified the weapon used to smash out each of the windows.

According to police report, officers found a small BB hole in the corner of the Grand Am's window, which remained intact despite the damage.

Twenty minutes later police returned to the Meijer parking lot to respond to the same complaint made by the 17-year-old driver of the Tempo.

Officer John Werth said he believes the incidents are related. Police have no suspects.

tenants' customers.

The jewelry store owner repeatedly stopped all cars coming into the center parking lot after 6 p.m. and asked them where they are going. He says the guards and the fence send customers the wrong message.

"As a retailer we welcome any traffic coming into the shopping center, but since the fence has gone up, we've lost business," he said.

Ansara said the dispute between Roman and Autry has caused problems for tenants in the center who have suffered the consequences of being fenced in from potential customers.

He said Autry has been insensitive and negligent to the needs of his tenants. Ansara said he intends to file a lawsuit against Autry because he's lost business from Autry's "hard-headedness."

Aside from a loss of pedestrian traffic, Ansara also believes Autry was negligent in reacting to a robbery at his store last month.

He says both Autry and his security guards were outside the store patrolling the parking lot when Ansara's alarm was ringing. Neither, he said, reacted in time to catch thieves who absconded with an estimated $100,000 in merchandise.

"I believe when I was robbed," Ansara said, "Autry and his security guards were outside when the alarm was going off and nobody did anything."

"It isn't their jobs, I know, but he didn't do a thing," he said.

"He's not sensitive to our needs and sometimes he's sensitive to collecting our rents and leasing spaces," he said. "He doesn't care about tenants' needs."

Ansara's business has been in Northville since 1974. The first nine years he operated a store in Northville Plaza, but for the past nine years he's been a tenant with Autry.

He said the whole situation has been unfortunate, but he isn't willing to let down his loyal Northville customers. That's why he's moving to the city.

Northville High student earns award in national competition

By MICHELLE KAISER
Staff Writer

If it had been up to Stephanie Clonca, she would have never entered her mixed media art piece in the Scholastic Art Award competition.

But Northville High School art teacher Brian Balcoff acted on a hunch and entered the piece anyway.

"My teacher kept telling me I was going to enter this painting," Clonca said. "I didn't want to. I fought with him."

In the end, Clonca lost her argument but won a third place award in the mixed media category. Her untitled entry had originally started as a sign she made for a friend advertising a craft fair.

"I just kind of let loose on it," Clonca said, explaining she painted on the sign and lacquered it.

This year, there were over 200,000 entries from schools across the United States and Canada for Scholastic Art and Writing awards. Each category awarded first, second and third place awards with grants of $500, $300 and $200, respectively.

Clonca's entry was selected out of 700 pieces.

Just finishing up her junior year, Clonca was enrolled in an independent art study program. Her latest project was painting a mural on the wall in the high school.

"(Independent study) is a time where kids get to decide what they want to do," Clonca explained. "If they want to round out their portfolio this is the time to do it and they have access to the supplies."

The 17-year-old plans to take a drawing and painting class as well as a pottery and metals class during her senior year.

"I want to learn pottery," she said. "I want to get into all abstracts of art."

Clonca plans to make a career out of her talent, either studying art education or illustration. She has already had a small taste of art education as she and a few other Northville High School students "taught" elementary students at Amerman.

"We taught one session at Amerman," she said. "It was fun. The kids were so cute. The second time we went there, the kids drew us and we drew them. We just taught them the basics."

Clonca plans on attending Henry Ford Community College for two years before searching for an art school.

"The Detroit Center for Creative Studies is looking pretty good," she said.

Clonca said it doesn't matter what mood she's in — she never has a problem getting motivated. Her frame of mind, however, is evident in her work.

"A lot of my work stems from my feelings," she said. "If I'm mellow one day, it (her work) will be soft. You can tell."

That's exactly why Clonca has no favorites among her projects.

"I have no favorite piece because all of them are so different," she said.

City to hear from Ford plant suitor

ants for the plant and proposed leasing the remaining space to the community for a library. That proposal fell through when a committee planning the formation of a district library found too many problems with the site.

Word noted that Ford itself shifted the focus of its plant sale efforts to light industrial clients after having little success in locating an office or retail user.

Ford first put the plant, empty since 1987, up for sale in 1990 at a price of $2.5 million, but dropped the asking price to $1.75 million early last year after receiving few serious offers.

The historic plant was one of Henry Ford's first "village industries." Ford first purchased the site in 1919, and the present Albert Kahn-designed structure was built in 1936.

Stephanie Clonca's mixed media art creation took a third place award in a contest in which over 200,000 pieces were entered.

School director says goodbye; new job awaits in Walled Lake

By MICHELLE KAISER
Staff Writer

When William Hamilton leaves his position as director of instructional services next Wednesday, he'll leave with a sense of accomplishment.

"I'm not running away from anything," he said. "I'm running to something that's going to provide me with new challenges. There's nothing I didn't like so badly that will make me say, 'I'm not going to miss that.'"

Hamilton's new position will be as director of curriculum for the Walled Lake school district starting July 1. His last day with the Northville school system will be next Wednesday.

"I'm very excited," he said. "It's a new challenge. It's a growing school district and will afford me the opportunity to be involved at a grass-roots level with major initiatives."

Hamilton said Walled Lake's population is about 11,000 students while Northville has a little over 4,000 pupils.

Several people will report to Hamilton in his new job, including Walled Lake's vocational education, special education, special services and staff development directors. Hamilton will develop all curriculums for K-12 grades and will assist in the possible implementation of an outcomes-based educational program.

Hamilton started with the Northville school district nine years ago as an assistant principal at the high school. He is best known in the district as the brains behind the technology program. He also brought in the Student Assistance Program and has developed curriculums, most recently the applied math program at the high school.

"I also did a lot of work with principals and with instructional supervision," Hamilton said. "And then there were always those administrative trivial things."

Hamilton began his career in education in 1972 as an eighth grade English and social studies teacher in Livonia. From there he directed a program for adjudicated youth.

In 1978 Hamilton took a job as job placement counselor at the Livonia Career Center and ended there as the center's vocational education coordinator.

Hamilton has also worked in the Westwood School District in Dearborn Heights and Inkster.

"Since seventh grade I knew I would be in education," he said. "I had some problems when I was a youngster. Fortunately, there were people who helped me and I wound up having a very successful high school career. From there I always had a feeling that I wanted to help kids."

Hamilton said there's no doubt in his mind he will miss some aspects of his job as director of instructional services.

"The nine years I have had here have been wonderful years," he said. "I've been afforded the opportunity to learn many, many things. I leave here with the utmost respect for the board of education, all of the administration, teachers and community."

"I've been, for the most part, treated well and have been supported in what I've wanted to do."

Two years ago Hamilton was offered a job, but said he turned it down because he wanted to make sure some of his projects got off the ground.

"I feel most of the projects I've started are at least to the point where they can be carried on," he said. "So I can leave with a sense of completion."

Hamilton, who will commute to his new job from his Livonia home, said he would offer a few words of wisdom to whomever may replace him in the future. Currently, the position has been frozen by Northville school officials as an attempt to pare down the district's budget.

"If the position were to be filled I would have (that person) spend some time understanding what's in place, what's working well, what needs to be improved," Hamilton said. "I would tell them they need to work closely with the principals and teachers to understand their needs and wants, to make decisions in conjunction with them and not in isolation of them. It's the teachers who really make it work."

"Secondly, I would tell them to look to the future with a vision that will improve the environment for everyone that is involved. As the environment and culture of the district improves, so does the future."

Hamilton eventually hopes to earn his doctorate by next summer and would like to finish his career as a superintendent.

"I will miss all of the people I've grown close to (in Northville)," he said. "I have so many wonderful friends here on all levels — the community, administration and teachers."

Walled Lake zebra mussel traps to be analyzed

By JAN JEFFRES
Staff Writer

Walled Lake is being checked for the presence of zebra mussels, pesky bi-valve critters apparently brought to the United States in 1986 by a Russian ship.

Lakes Area Residents Association member Tim Coulter, who is coordinating the Novi end of the project, said traps to collect microscopic zebra mussel larvae — if any exist — were hauled up June 15 and were scheduled for a June 16 pick-up.

The seven traps were placed at strategic locations throughout the lake by six residents. Coulter, from his West Lake Road home, laid down two.

They will be analyzed within the next month, although Coulter said there were no visible signs of zebra mussels in the local samplings.

The research is being conducted by the Connecticut-based Mystic Seaport Museum's Maritime Studies Program, which is monitoring 20 lakes in Michigan.

Walled Lake is considered to be at low-risk because it has no public access and is viewed as a "quasi-control" lake, the museum's project coordinator Paul Marangelo said last week.

Other Oakland County lakes being examined are Kent, Cass, Orchard, Pontiac, Stoney Creek, Orion and Fenton.

Typically, the zebra mussels would be brought into a lake via the hull of a boat which had been piloted on one of the infested bodies of water, such as Lake Erie, Lake St. Clair and the Detroit River.

They have not yet been found in Oakland County, he said.

"We don't really expect to find them, but that doesn't mean the possibility isn't there," Marangelo added. "Research we will do here will be of interest not only to Michigan but to other areas of the country where zebra mussels are entering the waterways."

The mussels originated in the Caspian and Aral seas in the former Soviet Union and over the past several hundred years began to spread through Europe.

It is believed they entered the United States via ballast water dumped from a Russian freighter into Lake St. Clair, but that's just the most plausible theory, Marangelo said.

Their presence was first detected in 1988.

What is known is that the mussels have an overactive reproductive capacity, with one female capable of laying one million eggs in a season. The mussels cling to boats, ships and buoys and become encrusted on lake and river beds.

When present in high numbers, as in western Lake Erie, the mussels may clog water pipes and drains, as well as impair the operations of electrical generating plants. What they do to the native lake and river habitats is not fully understood as yet.

The jury's still out on maritime ecology. A lot of people do believe they will effect the fish population. There are billions of them and they eat a tremendous amount of plankton," Mar-angelo said.

Two live zebra mussels dropped into an inland lake would not likely lead to an infestation problem, he said. "It takes a certain number — and nobody knows what that number is — to infest a lake. There's a gap in the scientific knowledge."

Within polluted bodies of water, such as the Detroit River, the zebra mussels absorb toxic chemicals — which means their corpses must be disposed of as hazardous waste, Marangelo said.

In addition, some waterfowl may eat the zebra mussels.

Traffic-related fatalities decrease in Oakland

The number of people killed in traffic accidents in Oakland County in 1992 is the lowest number reported since 1946, the earliest year for which records on traffic fatalities in the county are available.

There were 85 traffic deaths reported in the county last year according to the Traffic Improvement Association of Oakland County (TIA). The previous low number was 88, reported in 1949. Last year's fatalities represent a 23 percent decrease from the 110 deaths reported in 1991.

In addition to the decreased traffic deaths in 1992, traffic crashes decreased to 38,048 since 1970.

"These reductions in 1992 are all the more remarkable when we consider that traffic volumes, the most accurate barometer of exposure, have continued to increase — more than 100 percent in the past 30 years alone," Cardimen said.

In the state, 1,292 lives were lost in traffic fatalities, a 9.3 percent reduction from the 1,425 reported in 1991.

Nationally, 1992 traffic crashes reported a reduction of 9.2 percent from 1991. Traffic deaths were reduced from 41,462 to 40,180, continuing a downward trend since 1988.

TIA cites a number of reasons for the reduction in traffic crashes and deaths in Oakland County.

"During the past 25 years, there have been remarkable improvements in all three of the basic accident prevention categories — the vehicle, the roadway and the driver," Cardimen said.

A sizeable number of improvements by the automakers in vehicle engineering, such as air bags and other passive occupant restraints, increased safety belt use, more "forgiving" vehicle interiors, better braking systems, greater visibility and other advances were cited by TIA as some of the reasons for the reduction in traffic losses.

"There are also visible indications of traffic engineering improvements on our road network — signs, signals and pavement markings — which help keep drivers from making fatal mistakes," Cardimen added.

Efforts by the Road Commission for Oakland County, through its risk management program, to identify and eliminate the causative factors in fatal and injury-producing crashes, were given as an example of unusually progressive accident prevention work.

"Local communities have also done a remarkable job of setting sensible priorities and implementing programs for correcting hazardous conditions," Cardimen said.

Stronger, more effective traffic law enforcement, selectively applied to specific, contributing accident circumstances, has brought about a noticeable improvement in driver obedience to traffic laws, reducing the human factor in accident causation, according to TIA.

TIA cites the excellent work of the county's alcohol enforcement teams, widespread police alcohol training with subsequent increases in drunk driving citations, combined with public awareness campaigns by organizations such as Mothers Against Drunk Driving (MADD).

"We'd also like to believe that TIA has played a key role over the past 26 years in helping to reduce traffic crashes and fatalities," Cardimen said.

"We work closely with 41 local police agencies and 20 other communities in Oakland County in areas of traffic engineering, education and enforcement," Cardimen added.

Although the trend-line is down, early 1993 data on traffic crashes and fatalities indicate a slight increase.

TIA reported that the Intersection Ranking Reports and Road Link Reports were distributed to all local communities with analysis of 1,025 intersections and 2,062 road links. Intersection and severity rankings were also distributed.

Guardian Industries gets tax abatement from Novi council

By JAN JEFFRES
Staff Writer

Guardian Industries, one of Novi's biggest taxpayers, wasn't about to give up a chance for a tax abatement in its move from this city to Auburn Hills.

The Novi City Council failed to give the company its blessing in May, a requirement of Michigan Public Act 198, which governs property tax exemptions for industry.

Monday night, after prior individual discussions with Guardian group vice president Peter Walters, Council Members Robert Schmid and Carol Mason had a change of heart.

Walters, in a June 3 letter to Mayor Matthew Quinn said he was disappointed by the council's original decision and felt that he had done an "inadequate job" of explaining Guardian's reasons for the request.

Guardian was turned down when the council majority expressed a philosophical opposition to tax abatements, which were described as contributing to urban sprawl.

"Guardian has been a good neighbor. I disagree in principle with the concept, but because of the people involved, I'm going to support it," Council Member Schmid explained.

In May, the concern was raised that the new industrial complex would outrank Novi in the race for grants from the Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT).

Mason said she has since been reassured that the roads and other infrastructure were already in place at the Auburn Hills site and that more state and county tax dollars were not needed to develop the new facility.

"One thing positive has come out of this discussion. They're not going to use state infrastructure dollars. I still have concerns about Act 198," said Council Member Tim Pope, the only one to remain opposed to Guardian's petition.

City Attorney David Fried suggested that the council adopt guidelines to specify when it will and will not approve tax abatements, to avoid the potential of a lawsuit. Guardian has not threatened litigation, Fried added.

In his letter, Walters explained that the firm on Nine Mile Road, which manufactures glass and glass products, has long since outgrown its local facilities and has owned the Auburn Hills site since 1986. The 25 acres are next to the Palace of Auburn Hills and were once considered for an outdoor amphitheater.

These plans were dropped when William Davidson, owner of Guardian, the Palace and the Detroit Pistons, instead purchased Pine Knob Music Theater.

Walters said two-thirds of the Nine Mile Road building will be occupied by its current tenant, Qualex, a photo development firm. Qualex employs 220 people. Another Guardian-owned firm, the Frank W. Kerr Company, which has a staff of 170, will remain in its Nine Mile Road offices, Walters said.

He added that Guardian expects to lease the space it will vacate when it moves its 170 employees to Auburn Hills.

Auburn Hills is eager to have Guardian and its city council will likely approve the firm's application for the tax abatement, Auburn Hills City Manager Dennis McGee noted in a letter to Quinn.

Last week, a Guardian affiliate, Optical Imaging Services (OIS) week won from Northville Township a 12-year, 50 percent tax deduction. The firm plans to build a $100 million plant on 30 acres of land at Five Mile and Beck roads it purchased from Wayne County for $1.

"Sound business reasons" exist for the move to Auburn Hills, Walters noted, pointing out that "in the last several years Guardian has increasingly become a significant supplier to the U.S. and global automotive industries, and many of the auto industry's purchasing decisions are made in the northern Oakland County/I-75 corridor."

McGee noted in his letter that due to a federal court ruling 20 years ago mandating busing to achieve racial balance in the Pontiac school system, Auburn Hills, part of that district, has been unable to attract new single family residential development.

The Pontiac schools need tax revenue, McGee said, in asking for Novi to approve the tax abatement.

WELL-VERSED ON THE CHAPTERS

Those with severe debt problems should familiarize themselves with the different types of personal bankruptcy cases, which are usually referred to by the chapters of the Bankruptcy Code. Chapter 7, or "straight bankruptcy," is the simplest and most common. Although its legal name refers to the process of liquidating property, most of a petitioner's property is either tied up by liens or classified as exempt. Unlike a Chapter 7, a Chapter 13 does not involve the immediate discharge of debts. Instead, the petitioner offers a repayment plan over a specified number of years during which time the petitioner is protected from lawsuits, garnishments, and other creditor action.

In today's tough economic climate, more and more people are having to learn the ins and outs of bankruptcy law. If you have a legal matter which needs attention, RICHARD J. CORRIVEAU & ASSOCIATES P.C. are now accepting new clients. We handle a wide variety of legal matters, including personal injury, divorce and family law, workers compensation, sexual discrimination, bankruptcy, real estate law, criminal law and drunk driving. Our office is conveniently located at 426 S. Main St. (380-6800), and we see clients weekdays 9-5, other hours by appointment.

THURSDAY

Our Opinion

Conflict of interest claim doesn't hold up

Pat Custer is not a school insider. Though she sits on the Northville Board of Education she is not a member in good standing of the school district's inner circle. She might be the only one of the seven school district representatives who isn't.

Custer's colleagues on the board have charged her with conflict of interest because her husband lent professional assistance to Bob Bernard, the school administration nemesis who went to court to enjoin the district from publishing information about Proposal A in the school newsletter, School News.

At a board of education meeting June 14, trustees came out in force against Custer, claiming that she committed a breach of ethics by being involved, albeit indirectly, in a lawsuit against the very district she represents.

It appears to us that trustees were out of line in leveling this charge. While it is true Custer's husband, Fred, did offer informal advice to a legal adversary of the district, Mr. Custer was never on retainer for Bernard. In fact, Mr. Custer performed a similar pro bono service for the school district earlier this year.

When one looks closely at the concerns board members expressed at the meeting, none really holds water. One trustee, for example, said she was concerned that Bernard's association with Pat Custer might have put him in a position to secure information that could have benefited him in court.

What information? As far as we can tell, no information about the lawsuit was ever included in any of the documents school board members received as part of their agenda packets.

What's more, the board never discussed the Bernard lawsuit in a closed session or ever took a vote on any aspect of the issue. The lawsuit was not a major case against the district, and it appears the whole thing was handled by administrators in consultation with school attorneys.

The lawsuit was settled when Bernard neglected to appear in court and the case was dismissed. Bernard said he didn't attend the hearing because of a scheduling mix-up and was content with an affidavit signed by Supt. Leonard Rezmierski promising that the district would print nothing leading up to the June 2 vote on Proposal A.

As it turned out, the Northville school board decided to remain neutral on Proposal A and no information on the ballot proposal appeared in School News.

Pat Custer is friends with Bob Bernard and she sympathizes with the opposition group of which he is a part, Citizens for a Better Northville. Herein, we believe, lies the real reason trustees are cool towards her and are easily angered by her actions.

Custer is the closest thing there is to an opposition voice on the board of education. In her desire to keep tabs on the school administration, she asks questions — questions that trustees and administrators often don't like. They sometimes resent her prying, and they don't think of her as a "team player" in the way they regard the others.

We believe Custer made a mistake in not disclosing from the start that her husband was providing legal services, however minimal, to Bernard. Had she been more alert, she would have seen the potential for a conflict of interest charge and would have exercised a little preemptive damage control by mentioning what was going on.

But, the missed opportunity aside, Custer can be criticized for nothing other than being allied with Bernard, whose endless monitoring is a source of no small annoyance to school officials. It is this association, more than anything else, that set the trustees off and led to the accusations of an ethics violation.

We don't always agree with Custer or Bernard and often hear from them suspicions that don't bear out. But we don't believe the friendship between the two can be used as justification for an ethics charge. The conflict of interest claim, we think, cannot be substantiated.

Downtown change is lasting

Lee Snider

One of the stories that ran on the front page of Monday's Northville Record upset a lot of people.

The article wasn't about the arrest of crime ring operators, the discovery of a serious pollution problem or a disclosure of government waste. It was about the closing of an unassuming little store that quietly filled prescriptions and served up brownie sundaes at a soda fountain.

After a century of providing service to the community, Northville Pharmacy closed for good yesterday.

"Some of the people came in here crying," owner Bill Wright said Monday. "I'm very concerned about the demise of small towns."

Wright explained that it was a change in policy from Blue Cross/Blue Shield on March 1 that did him in. Wright couldn't afford to subscribe to the new plan, and, as a result, his long-time Blue Cross customers ended up going elsewhere.

Because prescriptions represented about 80 percent of the pharmacy's overall receipts, the business just couldn't absorb the loss. The chain stores, on the other hand, can afford to operate their pharmacies as loss leaders and were able to survive the change. Wright's inventory was purchased by Troy-based Arbor Drugs.

"It's the end of the American dream," said Wright, who has run the business for the last 14 years. "We lived the dream and enjoyed it, but it's changing."

For his part, Wright said not to worry. He has been hired, on a 90-day basis, by Arbor Drugs and will work at the Northville Arbor's.

But while he expects to land on his feet, Wright wonders what will happen to some of his regulars, like the 96-year-old shut-in he delivered prescriptions to, or the older woman who passed her mornings reading the newspaper at one of the tables near the counter.

"I can't tell you how many people said to me, 'I'm going to miss not having you here,'" he said.

Northville city planning consultant Don Wortman said the closing of the pharmacy may be a sad event, but it's an inevitable sign of the times.

"A lot of shoppers are lured by the big strip malls and nationally-identified stores. Many downtowns are reverting to office, restaurant and specialty stores."

According to Wortman, while many small downtowns are struggling to remain afloat, Northville's business district has adapted to the new market conditions and is doing quite well.

He's probably right, but you have to be saddened by yet more evidence of how the small, independent downtown shop can't be pulled from the endangered species list.

Northville Pharmacy has been an institution in this city for generations. It has an authentic old-fashioned atmosphere and a personalized service style to match.

It probably won't be long before a new business moves into the building which June Mainville, widow of one of the former pharmacists, still owns. But whatever it is, you can bet it won't be a pharmacy with a '50s-vintage soda fountain and an owner who knows the personal problems of the customers.

The closing of Northville Pharmacy is hardly a death knell for Northville, but it is further proof that the character of the city has undergone a change — a permanent one.

Gene therapy offers hope

Tim Richard

The news out of Ann Arbor was stunning. Tom Rice in Northville was elated. The religious right, however, didn't seem to notice.

My friends in the religious right, a nickname for those who hold the Bible as scientific as well as religious truth, insist Charles Darwin's theory of evolution is unproven. Not even our nation's space shots have shaken their belief that the stars are embedded in a firmament (Genesis 1:6-8 and 14-17) rather than drifting in deep space. Darwin demonstrated that evolution indeed occurred, but he didn't know how. That step was taken by an Austrian monk named Gregor Mendel (1822-84). Working in a cloister garden, Mendel gave us the idea of genes, teensyweensy units of heredity. Darwin died (1882) without learning of Mendel's work.

Tom Rice owns the Gitfiddler shop on Northville's Main Street. I met him when I acquired my banjo. Each summer he organizes a Bluegrass Festival with some of the biggest names in the country. It's a benefit for Huntington's disease.

Rice's sister, Donna Jarski, died in 1974 at 31 of Huntington's disease, an inherited, incurable and fatal disorder of the nervous system that usually strikes people between ages 30 and 50. A folk music hero, Woody Guthrie, died of Huntington's. It affects about 30,000 Americans.

The scary thing about Huntington's is that one person in 12,000 carries the gene, but doesn't know whether it will affect his or her children. Donna's three kids don't know if they're carriers.

The Bluegrass Festival this year will be Sunday, July 25, at Ford Field. Watch the entertainment pages for times, details and ticket information.

University of Michigan scientists are part of a six laboratory consortium in the United States, England and Wales doing genetic research. Headline in the current Michigan Alumnus magazine: "Scientists Finally Snare Elusive Huntington's Gene." Out of 100,000 genes in the human body, they spotted the one that causes Huntington's. It was "the most difficult gene hunt yet," said Francis C. Collins, the internationally famed leader of the U-M team.

"It's a great relief," said Rice.

Probable result: Scientists will be able to predict the onset of Huntington's — "We'll be looking into a crystal ball with clarity never before provided," said Collins.

Meanwhile, Time magazine (May 31) reported on the "first attempts to cure a disease by gene therapy." Cure! It seems they can insert genes into babies to treat genetic diseases, but now they're talking about replacing defective genes with beneficial ones. An early subject: Andrew Goba, a Los Angeles baby born with defective genes that left him defenseless against infection. A decade earlier, the kid would have had to live in a sterile bubble and would have died anyway.

Rice is hopeful that within a few years a genetic cure will be found for Huntington's.

There are religious footnotes to this tale. According to Michigan Alumnus magazine, "Some scientists think that some of the Salem witches may have suffered from Huntington's."

Laurie Jarski, Donna's college student daughter, recalls that the onset of her mother's illness came when she was in her 20s, and that people at first thought Donna was mentally ill. Donna's father died of a similar disorder that people associated with the devil. It was all genetic.

Will this be enough to shake the religious right out of bad-mouthing Darwin, evolution and genetics and insisting on the scientific status for creationism? Let us pray it does.

If the Bible is unreliable on genetics, it's still a marvelous guide in other areas. I like Exodus 20, Matthew 7:12 and Luke 10:25-37.

On July 25, join us in Northville to practice Psalm 100: "Make a joyful noise unto the Lord."

Chain link fence sets businesses apart

To the Editor:

I attended the Public Hearing on the Abatement for Guardian Glass last night and received as much satisfaction as listening to President Clinton tell how much he has done and how great things are.

I was the only one that stood up and said I was against the abatement, but I was for building the plant. Another lady asked if they were getting $50 million from the Federal Government and $20 million from the State but she did not say she was against it. The land cost $1. DeMatia paid $33 million for 900 acres and that comes to $36,666 per acre.

I pointed out that after 12 years of abatements in the City of Plymouth and Plymouth Township they are in worse shape than Northville Township and Northville Schools. They have a beautiful fire station and schools with no money to run them.

Northville too has a new school but no money to open it. Nothing deteriorates faster than an unused building. Their minds were made up before the hearing so it was just a waste of everyone's time.

Barbara O'Brien tried to make the abatement for six years but no one else had the guts to support her.

I was disappointed that our legal counsel wasn't there. I saw him leave the building after their closed meeting adjourned.

He could have helped clear up the question of what would happen if they went broke after a few years. Mr. Bill Wild didn't know and neither did the Trustees. I hope we have a better understanding than Ypsilanti had with General Motors. That is one point we should have clear before the final signing of the agreement.

The Chamber of Commerce was all for it, the school superintendent said the school board was all for it, even though they had no say in the matter.

When asked about how many employees they would have and what was the rate of pay, the answer was about 300 and the pay was $8 to $12 per hour. That was a relief as they won't increase the school population. You can't live (on those wages) in Northville with the new homes going from $200,000 to $500,000.

When the final vote was taken and the motion was unanimous, Baja let out a yell "WHOOPEE" like a 6-year-old in a cowboy suit after his first horse ride. Meeting adjourned.

Dean H. Lenhiser
P.S. Listening to a Northville Township meeting is as frustrating as watching your Mother-in-Law drive your new Cadillac over a 1,000-foot cliff.

Landlord is getting bum rap

To the Editor:

I believe the time has come to present the "flip side" to the Woolly Bully's parking nightmare. Bill Autry is not the ogre readers may have been led to believe. Since March 1 it has been an on-going problem usurping time, energy, peace of mind and money to insure safety and convenience for the customers of those of us who have been here for years. Bill Autry, contrary to hear-say, is a caring, responsible landlord. He bought this property, established the shopping center, pays the taxes and maintains it as a credit to the township. Many times he has carried tenants who were pressed to pay their rent on time. The infamous fence was installed to protect the business and income of those tenants. The ownership of Woolly Bully seems to consider everyone's property "free game" and parks cars on everyone's property. Who among the readers owning property, personal or commercial, would allow this trespass with the reasoning, "You're not using it now?" I don't believe the American way of free enterprise extends to this! Mr. Autry has been attempting to deal with Mr. Roman to no avail. Perhaps Mr. Roman believes in wearing down instead of negotiating and paying his full share for what he uses. We all hope this issue will be settled soon. For my part, it will not answer my parking problem with Woolly Bully's and I am forced to continue paying for a guard three nights a week to insure access and the safety of my customers using the automatic teller machine after hours. Think people, before you chastise a long-time property owner and applaud a newcomer usurper of private property.

Headline was misleading

To the Editor:

I recently read the "funny papers," The Northville Record, and again chuckled at the skill of its writing staff. To imply that the voters granted the recent millage "... with words of caution," was simply hysterical. In your opinion there is a "Supervoter," Lynda Baca, who, disguised as an Advocate for Quality Education, is able to speak for all voters! Well, she doesn't speak for me! Your headline was an absolute lie.

I can now understand why your newspaper subscribes to the theory of "Afghanistanism." If it was left to your reporting staff, the Muslims would be invading Bosnia and Somalia would be overfed.

Vets thank the community

To the Editor:

On behalf of the American Legion Post 147, Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 4012 and their Auxiliaries, we wish to thank the community of Northville for joining us in honoring the memory of our departed veterans on this most recent Memorial Day. We wish to thank all of you for your support despite the weather.

To all participants, it was an honor to have your enthusiasm and help. Mr. Dale Brubaker, VFW State Commander and his Color/Honor Guard, Northville and Northville Township police, Mr. Mike Rumbell and the Northville High School Band, community leaders and dignitaries, all marching units and veterans organizations from other communities, Betty Flanders and Dianne Wilder, wreath carriers, Brownies, Girl Scouts, Cub, Boy and Eagle Scouts.

To the people you don't see but manage to get the job done: Bob Hock and Jerry Olson for putting the flags up around town and down the island, Jay Sugrue and his crew for setting up at Rural Hill, Bob Hock for planting flowers in the cemeteries and Omnicom for filming the ceremonies, VFW and Legion members for the large task of "spring cleaning" at Rural Hill. A special thank you to Mr. Ray Casterline for providing ice cream for the community (an age-old tradition of the Casterline family).

Again, thank you Northville.
Sandy Myers, Secretary

One doesn't speak for all

To the Editor:

When I voted at the recent school election, I can't recall indicating on my ballot a "word of caution" to the school board. Yet, when I read your June 17 headline you stated that the "voters" had. Oh, excuse me, only one member in the entire community, Lynda Baca, expressed such concern. Since when did she speak for the electorate? I find it incredible that you would print such a misleading headline. Where are your journalistic ethics? It appears to me that you are confusing your editorial page with factual reporting. If you are going to continue reporting with such inaccuracies, the least you can do is change the name of the newspaper to The Northville Enquirer.

School trustee is in conflict

To the Editor:

To borrow loosely from the Bard, something smells rotten in Northville. If memory serves, Patricia Custer ran for the school board on a CBN-backed platform pointing the "conflict of interest" finger at Donald Klokenga because his spouse teaches for Northville Public Schools. Now it seems that Mrs. Custer's spouse is a partner in the legal firm that represents, as I understand it, two suits against NPS. Sounds like conflict of interest to me.

It also occurs to me that CBN has complained loudly about the truth in or clarity of the school district's publications and newsletters. Did anyone else read the tabloid-style flyer distributed by CBN? Talk about questionable statements! I think CBN has been taking lessons from The National Enquirer. It's a "real shame on them" to be distributing inflammatory untruths 48 hours before election time without names or phone numbers to contact for clarification.

I do not question the need for checks and balances or watch-dog organizations, especially when tax dollars are involved. I do question what would appear to be double standards and sleazy tactics by a group proclaiming interest in the betterment of our community. I think it's time for some fresh air in Northville.

Discipline begins with the parents

To the editor:

Over the past year or so, I have watched a disturbing attitude form in this otherwise pleasant community. I don't believe I am uncovering some secret when I say the school board, and perhaps the entire system, has a public relations problem. The mud has flown enough. It is time this new alumnus did some reflecting.

The problem is not entirely the board's fault. Especially in the elementary schools, I have watched parents — yes, parents — become increasingly self-centered. They will only have the very best for their little angel, and everybody else's kid (not to mention the community) can go to hell. I recall a rainy day at Winchester when I got stuck behind a minivan. This mother pulled up between a bus and parked car, stopped, got out, helped young Jenny open her umbrella while in the vehicle, and ushered her to the door. There was not enough room for me or anyone else to get around her. And my sis had to run. Thanks, lady.

I've also noticed Little Angel can do no wrong. If the little brat doesn't perform, or misbehaves, it's the teacher's, principal's and district's fault. The result is a profound lack of discipline and respect in the students. The other day as Meads Mill let out, I watched a young man leave his group, walk behind my pine tree, unzip his fly and urinate on my front lawn! People, I realize I'm no Dr. Spock, but this sort of behavior is stopped in the home, by the parents, not by Mr. Longridge (though he does try) and company.

Finally, after reading the Record, I could not help but laugh. A parent complained about class size and the board's decision to delay opening Thornton Creek. It seems our trustees understand a simple economic principle: if the money does not exist, it is unwise to spend it. The community and school system do not need a sizable debt right now. We will all end up paying dearly for it. In the meantime, I guess we'll just have to put up with that horrible class size of 31. Never mind that nearly all my classes were in the 30, +/- 2 category, and I turned out okay. While I will admit, the most productive high school class I had carried a ratio of 17:1 on bad days and about 5:1 on excellent days, I'm not sure if the learning was a result of the "individualized attention," or an intense program taught by the talented and recently decorated Mrs. Brown. I suspect the later.

We have placed our board of education in a difficult position. As a class officer, I had an opportunity to deal with these people, and I am convinced they truly have the students' best interest at heart. I also think they are a little out of touch with the community. I do not feel they have effectively communicated the stresses they have to deal with, from contractual issues to a community that continually says, "Only the best for my kid" and then scapegoats the administrators when given the bill. In short, the board hasn't complained enough.

"Who knows judges? Nobody really knows their judges."

Judged Michael Connor
Michigan Court of Appeals

Right.

And who knows Michigan State University Trustees or Wayne State University Governors? Or, by name, the judges of the Supreme Court, Court of Appeals, Probate Courts, Circuit Courts and various municipal courts?

Nobody, really.
Yet judges and members of university governing boards have an awful lot of clout in Michigan.

They send people to jail or set them free. They interpret the law, more or less. They set college tuition rates and try to make sure the football coach doesn't run the entire university. They make up a big part of the elected political subculture that collectively determines what goes in Michigan.

And they share two major characteristics: They are elected and they are almost entirely unknown.

Both stem from one fact: They are all elected in November elections in even-numbered years. Because the new media are preoccupied with more important races — presidents, senators, members of Congress, state legislators — the nature and views of the folks who run for judge or university board are almost entirely unknown. Having run for the University of Michigan Board of Regents in 1990, I know something about this bizarre system. Nobody knows who you are or what office you are running for, let alone what your credentials are or what your views might be.

One can argue that we should appoint our judges and our university board members. But we in Michigan have chosen to elect them, and the odds of changing this part of our Constitution are negligible.

Last week, somebody with legal standing and political clout took up this problem. Clifford Taylor is not only a judge on the Michigan Court of Appeals, he's one of the brightest judges in Michigan and very close to Gov. John Engler and the movers and shakers in the Republican Party.

Speaking to a roomful of judges and lawyers gathered at the Oakland County Republican Committee meeting, Taylor said Michigan TV and newspaper reporters are "so busy with the much more spicy partisan races" that equally important judicial contests are virtually ignored.

Taylor urged moving elections for judges and statewide educational posts to the spring, when the news media are not so swamped with partisan politics and have the time to inform the public fully about the views and qualifications of candidates.

Many in Taylor's audience agreed. "I think (spring elections) would put more emphasis on the candidate's background," said Oakland county Probate Judge Barry Grant. "Voters would have more time to analyze the candidate."

I agree. The news media do a lousy job of covering judicial and educational races. Spring elections would allow better and more careful coverage and give voters information on which to base their votes.

Most Michigan communities already schedule school board and local millage elections in the spring, so adding judges and education boards would be easy and cheap.

Sounds like an idea too good for the times.

Discipline of the children begins in the home

While I will not advocate an unquestioning faith in our elected and appointed officials, and I must commend the Record for its coverage in this area, I must ask that we, as a community, step back and give the school board a chance. These are not evil people out to waste all our money. They are citizens, like the rest of us, just trying to do their jobs.

Roving shots are a bad idea

To the editor:
During the last two months a few friends and I visited our newest attraction in Northville, Woolly Bully's.

One feature that disturbed us during our recent visits is what is known as the floating "shot girl." She weaves her way around the crowded bar area selling shots of alcohol from her leather hip belt that carries four of the most popular shots. As we watched her peddle her wares, we noticed two things.

One was the fact that many of these patrons who probably were not thinking about adding a shot of alcohol to their menu, suddenly found this intriguing and enticing. Jeers from friends seemed to encourage peer pressure as she stood facing groups enjoying themselves.

The second thing we noticed was that the primary server, either the bartender or waitperson, had no knowledge of what the "shot girl" served, since she floats throughout the crowd and collects cash upon pouring. At no time during the evening does the bartender/waitperson have any idea how much the "shot girl" has served their customer. This lack of control or monitoring of alcohol consumption is clearly lacking at Woolly Bully's.

I suggest that the management of Woolly Bully's review what liability and dramshop mean. Woolly Bully's may call this an attraction, but in my eyes it only puts our community at risk.

Businesses help education efforts

To the Editor:

Perhaps you have noticed the Partnerships for Education flags displayed by some businesses and schools around Northville. These flags represent hundreds of hours of work by dedicated individuals from Northville Public Schools and the Northville community working together to positively impact the education of our children. Through the Partnerships for Education program, strong relationships have developed over the past three years between local businesses and organizations that have become mutually beneficial for both business and school participants. These business/education partnerships have resulted in thousands of opportunities for the students of Northville Public Schools to have enriching learning experiences both in the classroom and in the community.

On behalf of the students of Northville Public Schools, I would like to recognize and thank the following business/organizations and school partners whose outstanding efforts during the past three years, and especially during the 1992-93 school year, have provided students with a greater understanding of the applications of their learnings and also fostered a greater understanding between the schools and the business community.

Community Federal Credit Union/Amerman Elementary; Dow Corning Automotive Development Center/Northville High School; Ford Motor Company/Northville High School; Kathryn Hoppe, D.D.S./NPS District-2nd Grade; Margo's of Northville/Bryant Center; Maybury State Park/Old Village School and NPS District-4th Grade; McDonald's Restaurants/Silver Springs

Elementary; Meijer Inc./Winchester Elementary; NBD Bank/Cooke Middle School; Senior Citizens Center/Early Childhood Center; 3PM-McKesson/Northville High School; The Northville Record/Northville High School; Pizza Cutter/Amerman and Moraine Elementaries; Society of Automotive Engineers/NPS District-5th Grade; Standard Federal Bank/Meads Mill Middle School; Tandem Computers/Old Village School; University of Michigan Health Centers/Moraine Elementary.

I would also like to recognize the efforts of the Northville Chamber of Commerce for being our partner in applying for funds through the SERVE-Michigan grant from the Michigan Department of Education to fund the Business/Education Partnership program from February to September 1993. A special appreciation is also extended to the students, parents, teachers, administrators, and business members who have served on the Business/Education Advisory Council. You've all worked together to make this a great three years for partnerships.

Katherine Johnson was one of 12 students who donned caps and gowns and graduated from the Bryant Center over a week ago. Operated by Northville Public Schools, the Bryant Center provides special education services to students in 15 surrounding school districts.

By MICHELLE KAISER
Staff Writer

Unlike most people, Bruce Tabashneck does not look forward to his weekends.

"When Friday comes I'm sad because it means I'll have to wait until Monday comes before I can get back to work," said Tabashneck, a social worker at Bryant Center. "There is so much love in this building."

The love radiates from the warmth of the staff and students, according to Tabashneck.

"The people here are very kind and sensitive," he said. "The students are appreciative of people who recognize them and are accepting. When they're outside with their peer group, they tend to be rejected... they get ridiculed and feel like they stand out."

But not at Bryant. Everyone is the same there. No matter what the disability — physical or mental, or both — the students are all accepted.

Located on Merriman Road in Livonia, the Bryant Center, formerly a Livonia junior high school, began operating over 10 years ago.

"In 1975 Northville Public Schools took over the education of residents of Plymouth Center," school supervisor Joe Blake said. "There were hundreds of developmentally disabled residents there. As those residents were placed out in the community in group homes, the Plymouth Center closed down but the education services continued."

"At one time, over 600 to 700 students were housed in five different buildings. Now, we have just two — Bryant and Old Village."

Bryant serves the older students, ages 14 through 26, while Old Village caters to younger children. It serves 15 school districts besides Northville, including Crestwood, Dearborn, Huron, Garden City, Inkster, Livonia, Plymouth-Canton, Redford Union, Romulus, Southgate, South Redford, Taylor, Wayne/Westland, Westwood and Van Buren.

The student population is 120. There are 16 teachers and 35 paraprofessionals who assist the teachers in the instructional program and education of the students.

The center also provides ancillary services in speech and language, nursing, occupational and physical therapy, psychology and social work.

"In terms of having a lot of different components, the needs of many of our students are such that ancillary services are a necessary component," Blake said.

Blake began his career as a social worker with the Northville Public Schools 18 years ago. Before being named as supervisor last September, five of those 18 years were spent at Bryant.

"When I was the school social worker I had an opportunity to work in all of the buildings," Blake said. "In the last six years I became involved in this program by doing social work, serving on a part-time basis."

"As I became more involved, I became more interested in what was going on here. It's very rewarding. It's very challenging. But I have found this is where I like to be."

As supervisor, Blake's job is comparable to what a principal does in a regular school setting.

"Just the everyday kind of running of the building and schedule," he explained. "There's a lot of liaison work with the local districts — there's a lot of different kinds of communication that needs to go on with them."

Bryant officials also have close contacts with group homes, case managers, Community Mental Health and the Department of Social Services.

"There's a lot of involvement with different systems," Blake said. "It's an ongoing challenge to try to mesh and bring together a common purpose — working together, putting together a program for the education of students."

Students report to school at 8:45 a.m. and are dismissed at 2 p.m. After school, the staff plans meetings with parents to discuss Individual Education Plans (IEP) — a state requirement for special education students — as well as discuss curriculum issues, programs and activities with their co-workers.

The class hours and time set aside for staff development are common factors in a school setting; however, Bryant still differs from the majority of schools making up the educational system.

"Our students are involved in a special education course study," Blake said. "They get no credits or report cards. In that sense, there is a difference."

Blake said goals and objectives are identified for each student in four areas: pre-vocational and vocational skills, home living, community living and leisure/recreation.

"Our hope is, to the extent they can, students will be able to find a meaningful, productive employment situation," Blake said.

A satellite class at the Northwest Skill Center helps train students for jobs. It trains students how to perform jobs in restaurant, workshop and laundry situations. It also has access to contract work.

Bryant has a job training program. Some students learn banquet set-up at the St. Mary's center next door to the school. There is also an in-house restaurant for staff and students.

Volunteer

Sherry Kemp

Kemp earns gold award in scouting

By CRISTINA FERRIER
Staff Writer

Novi resident Sherry Kemp has put hundreds of hours of volunteer work into the community.

In the past two years, she has logged more than 200 hours of volunteering at A Growing Place day care center alone. In addition to that she volunteers at Spirit of Christ church by performing various duties that include teaching Sunday school.

"And my mom delivers Meals on Wheels to seniors and I help them," she said. "And I do some work through Girl Scouts and the Interact Club at Novi High School, which is part of the Rotary."

How does she find time for all this? "I enjoy doing it so I guess I just find the time," she said.

Her work at Spirit of Christ led to a project that Girl Scouts of America felt was worthy of an award. She was recently one of 20 Detroit area girls presented with the Girl Scout Gold Award.

To receive the Gold Award, the girls must learn about themselves, explore careers, build on their talents and skills, develop leadership and conduct a service project in the community. It reflects a personal dedication and commitment to oneself, the community, the world and the future.

Sherry, 17, is a member of Senior Girl Scout Troop 1027. As a service project she planned and conducted a one week session of Vacation Bible School at Spirit of Christ.

"I did all the planning and coordinating on my own," she explained. "It was my responsibility to find a project to do, and to get it done."

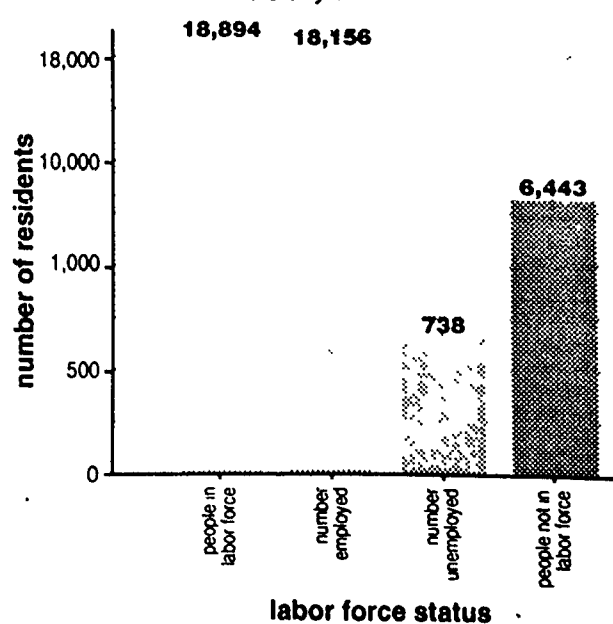

As the holder of a Gold Award, Kemp is now eligible for various Girl Scout scholarships.

"And it's a personal goal that I've now fulfilled."

Local graduate to teach at cheerleading camp

Northville resident and Class of '93 graduating senior Darcy Anne Rundell has been named to the Universal Cheerleaders Association (UCA) instructional staff for 1993.

UCA conducts training camps for cheerleaders at 500 locations, hosting approximately 100,000 participants each summer. Darcy was selected after participating in nationwide auditions to fill 600 staff positions.

She will be teaching cheerleading techniques to junior high and high school squads across the United States this summer after being named to the Universal Cheerleaders Association instructional staff for 1993.

Darcy began her cheerleading career at Meads Mill Middle School and was a three-year member of the Northville High varsity squad. She was a member of the Mustang team that won the Western Lakes Activities Association league cheerleading championship in 1990.

A knowledgeable and caring leader who maintains top physical fitness and gymnastic and dance skills, Darcy credits her coaches George and Margaret Surdu and Judy Walsh with guiding her and the Mustang team to succeed.

Darcy is the daughter of Howard and Jacquie Rundell. She will be rooting on the Spartans this fall at Michigan State University.

Musial presented "Aquifer Parameters of the Miami Well Field." Her research was sponsored by geography and geology assistant professor Michael Kasenow.

ness management/marketing at Washtenaw Community College. She is employed at R.E. Miller Inc. as business manager.

ciate's degree in nursing at Schoolcraft College.

The wedding is set for July 16.

Specializing education

Students have the opportunity to plan a meal, go grocery shopping, prepare the food, serve it and then clean up.

Other ways the students get involved in the community include a group which goes to the bowling alley and another that ice skates regularly. Another group walks to the mall and goes shopping while some students visit the Bentley pool.

"Our focus, as it is with society in general, is that once they (students) get out and become more a part of the community, they'll be integrated into what's going on in the community."

Blake said he thinks society is beginning to accept the handicapped more readily than it used to.

"I look on the other side of it now," he said. "I'm more excited about how society has responded to the rights of the developmentally disabled. Look at the American Handicapped Act program—that did wonderful things for developmentally disabled people."

"I see people involved becoming more and more involved... Some great things have happened in the last 10 to 15 years."

Tabashneck has taken over Blake's former role of social worker.

"I help students with their self-esteem," Tabashneck said. "Many times students come here hurt in terms of self-esteem. They don't have any self-confidence."

"Some come from loving families, but because of general differences—physical or mental issues—they see themselves as different and not fitting in."

Tabashneck said he also works closely with the teachers.

"They're the real saints here," he said.

Blake agrees.

"You have to have a great deal of patience," he said. "You have to be very realistic in terms of what your expectations are for your students and at the same time you have to be challenging for the student. It's a constant challenge trying to get students to reach their potential."

"Sometimes we have the natural inclination not to expect what we should. That's no different than in regular education. People involved in working with our population have to be excited about the possibilities."

Tabashneck said it's important not to forget about the parents.

"Parents need a lot of support," he said. "By the time their children reach the age to come to Bryant, parents are somewhat saddened with having to deal with many of the issues."

Tabashneck said he learned a lesson about special education students while visiting a class of developmentally disabled children in Livonia.

"It was softball day," he recalled. "I was surprised. I saw all these students taking turns on the pitcher's mound and standing behind home plate. They were calling fouls and they were calling strikes."

"They treated all of their students as normal. It was a real wake-up call for me. Even if somebody is disabled or mentally impaired, if we have low expectations of them, that's all they'll measure up to. They were all able to hit the ball and play by the rules. That taught me a lesson."

This is Tabashneck's first year at Bryant. Previously he worked for Community Mental Health and other school/counseling settings. He had also once served as a probationary officer for Recorder's Court in Detroit.

"The staff here is unbelievable," he said. "We're all in this together. Everyone really helps everyone else out. This is the best place I've ever worked."

Special effects make 'Jurassic Park' special

Dinosaurs come to life in new Spielberg flick

By JOHN MONAGHAN
Special Writer

"The special effects are incredible." I could see that his answer didn't impress my friend, who had been looking forward to the "Jurassic Park" movie long before Steven Spielberg decided to direct it.

"You mean it stinks," he said with a knowing look. "The dinosaurs are great, but the script was written by Cro-Magnons, right?"

Why mince words? After all, anything negative I have to say about "Jurassic Park" isn't going to keep him or anyone else from paying six bucks to see it. Despite the shortcomings in the script, man and dinosaur do share some exciting moments on screen.

Based on the bestselling book by Michael Crichton, "Jurassic Park" proposes the intriguing thought that genetic engineering can create a dinosaur theme park with real, live prehistoric specimens.

Laura Dern, Sam Neill and Jeff Goldblum play scientists enlisted for a Jurassic Park preview. The park's owner, a billionaire science buff played by Richard Attenborough, hopes they will write glowing testimonials before the official unveiling.

Instead, the scientists prove skeptical about reviving long-extinct plant and animal forms, and grow even more so when their electric-powered safari Jeep strands them in the middle of the park.

It's raining outside, and puddles ripple from the thundering footsteps of an approaching Tyrannosaurus Rex. After chomping down on one of the party, the deadly dino picks up Jeeps like toys and starts teething on the rubber tires.

The state-of-the-art effects, which combine models and computer animation, help "Jurassic Park" rise above your typical 1950s monster matinee. Your remember the kind — where the director filmed iguanas from low angles and had them fight to the death while the scientific party looked on in wonder.

Spielberg, who was weaned on this stuff, certainly knows how to grab your attention from the first frame. He did it in "Jaws" and "Raiders of the Lost Ark" and does it again here, when a deadly Velociraptor, the dinovillain in the movie, makes lunch out of a handler during transport.

What the director doesn't prepare us for is the boring half-hour that follows. He should realize, like the actors seem to, that the dinosaurs are the stars.

When Spielberg finally gets up to speed, the action rarely lets up.

Of course, there are kids tossed in, though their intense battles with dinosaurs will probably frighten younger viewers. Parents will be glad to know that despite a disembodied arm, the hungry dinosaur munching scenes (so graphic in the book) are surprisingly bloodless here.

"Jurassic Park" won't win Spielberg his much-coveted Oscar this year. But rest assured that, critical nitpicking aside, this will be the big summer winner at the box office. And with a wow-factor as big as a brontosaurus, who's to say that it doesn't deserve it?

A huge Tyrannosaurus rex stares down at paleontologist, Dr. Alan Grant (Sam Neill) who is protecting the teen-age Lex (Ariana Richards).

ALL-AREA BASEBALL

All-Area teams feature many Mustangs

Christenson, Busard make area's top team

Talk about Murderer's Row. This year's HomeTown Newspapers' East All-Area baseball first team makes the fabled Bronx Bombers of the 1920s look like a group of T-ballers. Headed by Player of the Year Tom Grigg, this squad can hit for average and power.

The Wildcat shortstop hit a spectacular .444 while teammates and fellow first teamers Randy Naumann and John Lahti hit .429 and .407, respectively.

Add to that the mighty bats of Milford, with Ryan Farron hitting .474 and Dave Lewicki blasting .468 for the season. Mix in a .426 by Lakeland's Bob Furmanek, and you have a recipe that's bad for any pitcher's diet.

The All-Area team is backed up by a fine pitcher. Northville's Steve Christenson turned in an excellent senior season by posting seven wins and an ERA under 3.00.

Now, let's take a closer look at the 1993 HomeTown Newspapers' East All-Area first team (some positions have been changed around to put who the writers feel are the best players on the first team):

TOM BUSARD
Northville designated hitter
Busard filled many roles in Mustang coach Tim Cain's lineup.

At the plate, the senior led Northville in batting average at .340 and RBI with 18. Busard also helped out on the mound, mainly as a relief pitcher, with an ERA under 2.00.

"He played wherever we needed him," Cain said. "He's a contact hitter that puts the ball in play, which was great with our team speed this year." Busard will attend college in Florida and play baseball and golf.

STEVE CHRISTENSON
Northville pitcher
Despite a few peaks and valleys, the senior had a solid season. He led Northville in nearly every pitching category.

"He was our big-game pitcher," Cain said. "When he was on, he was tough to beat."

The right-hander didn't overpower people, the coach commented. He relied on good movement on all of his pitches, fastball, curveball and split-finger.

Christenson will attend the University of Kentucky and continue his diamond career, according to Cain.

JOHN LAHTI
Novi catcher
The senior went from part-time status last season to being irreplaceable in the Wildcat lineup.

"We wouldn't have been league champs without him," Novi coach Brian Howard said. "He's a young man who really developed as a senior and turned into a solid player."

Lahti reached base 50 percent of the time while knocking in 11 runs. Defensively, he threw out 50 percent of would-be base stealers.

Howard said he felt Lahti's success as Novi's quarterback last fall carried over to the diamond.

"I thought he would improve since he played so well on the football field," he commented.

NATHAN SAFRAN
Lakeland first baseman

Safran pounded the ball this year, hitting .317 with three home runs and three triples. Safran, a senior, had 20 RBI.

"He was probably our most consistent player," said Lakeland coach Jerry Ganzel. "He played almost every game at first."

When he wasn't at first, he was on the mound. The senior Eagle held a 3-3 record with 27 strikeouts. Safran had a .973 fielding average.

"He was one of our mainstays," Ganzel said. "He was very reliable and very sure."

Safran was a second-team All-KVC selection.

RANDY NAUMANN
Novi second baseman

It was another rock-solid year for the senior. Besides hitting better than .400, he scored 30 runs and knocked in 15 while stealing 19 bases.

"Randy was expected to be a good player," Howard said. "But he exceeded that."

The coach said Naumann was probably the 'Cats' most consistent offensive force. He added that he played an excellent second base.

"Naumann and Grigg turned a lot of double plays," Howard said.

The senior, a first team All-KVC selection, will play for Adrian College next spring.

TOM GRIGG
Novi shortstop

Regarded as the finest player in the KVC, Grigg did it all for the Wildcats — again.

He led Novi in nearly every offensive category, batting average, RBI, doubles, triples and stolen bases. Defensively, Grigg is better than many college shortstops.

"By other coaches' assessments,"

Howard said, "he's called the best infielder in the state."

Grigg did make seven errors in the field. But, Howard pointed out, many of those were on ground balls others couldn't even get to.

"This year," he added, "his best asset was his fielding."

BOB FURMANEK
Lakeland third baseman

Furmanek was one of the best contact hitters in the league with a .426 average — all on singles except for one double. The senior had seven RBI with 15 runs.

Besides the hitting and the pitching — Furmanek was 2-1 with 26 K's — his fielding was very valuable to the Eagles.

"If we were going to be competitive, we had to have him at shortstop," Ganzel said.

Furmanek, an honorable-mention All-KVC pick, had a .900 fielding percentage.

RYAN FARON
Milford outfielder

After sitting out his junior year, this MHS senior came in and blasted the ball. He led the Kensington Valley Conference with an amazing .474 batting average, had a pair of dingers, and only struck out five times.

"He knew he was a pretty good ballplayer," said Milford coach Mike Shearer. "He was our lead-off hitter. He hit in the high .400s all year." Faron was an All-KVC and All-

District first-team pick. "He was a good centerfielder," Shearer said. "He was strong up the middle."

KRIS ADLER
South Lyon outfielder

The blazing speed of this youngster baffled catchers all year. Leading the KVC with 33 stolen bases (a new SLHS record), the Lion senior was a blur off the first-base bag.

Adler hit first often with his .337 batting average and had 13 RBI as the Lions' lead-off man.

"He's a great person to work with, he's a hard worker," said South Lyon coach Tom Jackson.

Adler was named "Mr. Hustle" for the second year in a row.

Apligian makes second squad

With so much talent on the fields this year, it was difficult to pick the HomeTown Newspapers' East All-Area second team. Experience wins out in the end, as seven of the 11 second-team spots are filled by seniors.

Defensive skill is a big factor on the second team. Northville's Fred Swarthout, Neil Yaele and Danny Walsh lead the way. Swarthout possesses soft hands and a knack for digging throws out of the dirt while Yaele is akin to a vacuum cleaner at second. Walsh is a capable center fielder.

Lakeland's Guy DuFresne anchors the hot corner while teammate Jeremy Agne, a junior, holds down the outfield.

Some positions have been changed around to put the best talent, as picked by the HomeTown sportswriters, on the field at the same time.

PAUL ROMA
Novi pitcher

The senior was a jack-of-all-trades for Novi in '93.

As a pitcher, Roma was the team ace with a 4-3 record, 2.88 ERA and 50 strikeouts. At the plate, he batted in the middle of the lineup and hit .323 with a pair of home runs and 16 RBI. Roma played center field as well.

"He was our best outfielder," Novi coach Brian Howard said. "He caught everything he got to."

The skipper described Roma as a smart player. Howard said he wasn't flashy, but did whatever it took to win ballgames.

"He's very coachable," he added.

TIM HOLLAND
Lakeland pitcher

Lakeland's top pitcher, Holland went 3-3 on the year with 55 strikeouts. The senior, who also spent time in the outfield, had a sure glove with a .921 fielding percentage.

Holland's reputation as a big hitter preceded him this year. The senior was walked 21 times, many intentional.

"They intentionally walked him a lot," Lakeland coach Jerry Ganzel

Softballers have successful spring

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

Facing some rather large obstacles, the Mustang softball team had a successful 1993, according to coach Frank Friemund.

Finishing 13-13 may not sound like a great accomplishment. But considering Northville High often had just enough players to cover the field, battled injuries, youth and a slow start, the spring campaign looks pretty good.

"My seniors were such great people that I wanted them to go out on a positive note," Friemund said, noting many of the girls suffered through long basketball and volleyball seasons earlier in the school year.

"I think by going 13-13 they did that. They had a lot of character."

The Mustangs got off to a 5-10 start in April and May. But as the second half of the season began, the squad gelled and won eight of their last 11 to finish at .500.

Friemund said he wasn't sure what to expect at the start of the season. Many of his returning players were untested and unfamiliar at the positions they would play in '93.

Northville's battery of pitcher Karl Krupansky and catcher Christi Green fell into that category.

With only some junior varsity and summer experience, Krupansky became the Mustangs' top pitcher this spring. The junior dominated at times and also experienced some frustrating outings.

"I would expect she'll be the No. 2 pitcher in our division next year," Friemund said.

To become that dominating hurler, the coach said Krupansky needs to develop either more speed or "pinpoint" control. He said he was happy with her progress this spring.

"I thought she had a good year," said Friemund.

Northville continued its legacy of strong catchers with Green. The junior replaced standout Laura Apligian, who now plays at Eastern Michigan University.

"We would have been nowhere without her," Friemund said. "Christi is a good defensive catcher."

The Mustangs developed several other talented players.

Outfielder Sara Kemp was a premier lead-off hitter in the WLAA. She led the team in runs scored, stolen bases and on-base percentage.

Senior Kristin Davis was Northville's power hitter. She led in batting average at .422, and was tops in RBI and slugging percentage.

"She developed into a dead-pull power hitter," Friemund commented. Designated hitter Sara Christenson completed the top portion of the Mustangs' lineup. The senior was a solid hitter, but was slowed by a knee injury.

"She hit the ball hard all the time," said Friemund. "But she had to hobble to first base."

Unfortunately, Northville loses many players that helped the Mustangs turn it around in the season's second half.

Green, Davis, Christenson, Lori George and Tanya Gamary, a fine defensive first baseman, all graduated.

"We lose quite a bit of everything," said Friemund.

As painful as those losses will be, the coach said Northville will return a solid core of players.

Krupansky and freshman Andrea Moretti return to the mound. Friemund said the duo comprises one of his best athletic tandems and will play everyday.

"Moretti is good," he added. "She has to play. We don't have the luxury of sitting either of them."

Virtually every other position is up for grabs. Friemund said next year's squad will begin to take shape in a few weeks when the team gathers for summer action.

"It's a matter of finding the right mix," Friemund said.

Others that will likely be seen in the Mustang lineup next year include: Kristin Moore, Jenny Sheehan, Channon Chase, Kemp, and Jamie Green.

"Next year we'll have the talent to be good," Friemund said. "But we won't have the experience. By the end of the season next year, I think we'll have both."

Outdoors offers summer fun

Summer is the season for enjoying all that great outdoors has to offer — camping, swimming, and assorted fun and games.

But you don't have to pick up the kids and go on the road to partake of these seasonal pleasures. Summer recreation may be as close as your own back yard — literally.

GARDEN GAMES

Backyard games lure kids away from the tube and into the fresh air, bringing the whole family together.

For a start, try playing some of your favorite indoor games outside for a change. A game of chess, checkers, backgammon, or cards played in a shady spot is a pleasant family activity for a summer afternoon.

But the kids, no doubt, will be interested in something involving a little more action. No problem. Your local sporting goods store stocks plenty of equipment suitable for backyard play.

A volleyball net, inexpensive and easy to assemble, provides hours of enjoyment all summer long. And the net doubles as a divider for a game of badminton.

Croquet, once considered the tiresome pastime of the elite, is enjoying a newfound popularity with the rest of the populace. Bocce ball, the game's Italian counterpart, is an intriguing cross between croquet and lawn bowling, and is also suitable for backyard recreation.

Another game that has come back into fashion is horseshoes — but take care when children are nearby. The heavy iron shoes can be dangerous.

For young children, a simple sandbox provides hours of enjoyment. A sandbox is easy to build and fits easily into small yards. Ideally, it should be about four feet square and be filled with 10 inches of sand. Cover the sandbox at night with a tarp or oilcloth to keep it clean.

Some of the best outdoor innovations come from the major toy makers. Playskool makes a colorful hassle-free picnic table that opens up to reveal a play area for sand, water or finger paints. Fisher Price makes a sturdy plastic "Teeter Round" that swings up and down and around in a circle.

One of the most enjoyable and most enduring summer playthings is also one of the easiest to make at home — an old tire secured to a solid tree limb with a sturdy iron chain makes a great backyard swing.

BACKYARD BOOKS

Some recent releases from Workman Publishing appeal to kids' natural curiosity, combining reading with learning about nature — and they needn't venture further than their own backyard.

The Bug Book and Bug Bottle helps kids identify backyard insects.

The Leaf and Tree Guide aids children in identifying trees in their yard by the shapes of the leaves.

And The Bird Book and Bird Feeder is an illustrated guide to the most common North American backyard birds.

WATER WORKS

If you are lucky enough to have a swimming pool, you have the basics for the best recreation summer has to offer.

If not, you might consider constructing an affordable above-ground model. The cost is generally about 80 percent less than that of a regular pool and you have the option of doing it yourself or enlisting the help of a professional installer.

Today's generation of above-ground pools is a great improvement over those of the 1960s and can last for many years. Models range in size from 12-foot diameter rounds to 21-by-42 foot rectangles. These pools are perfect for the limited depth — usually about 3½ feet — rules out jumping or diving.

Constipation often misunderstood

Raymond
Hobbs, M.D.

Constipation is a frequent, annoying problem for patients. Despite its commonness, much misinformation exists. This often leads to patients doing the wrong things and making their problem worse.

Constipation occurs when someone has an infrequent or difficult time with bowel movements. Although physicians may define constipation as having less than three bowel movements a week, there is a wide range of normal bowel function. Depending on age, the amount of fiber in the diet and physical activity, normal people may have as many as three bowel movements a day or as few as one to two a week.

Frequently, physicians deal with older patients who are not as regular as they were when they were younger. Although they have a more sedentary lifestyle and eat less, many older people feel they should have more frequent bowel movements. Sometimes they take too many laxatives in an effort to correct a situation which is normal, and actually make the situation worse. Many times just knowing that their frequency is normal for their age and lifestyle will help.

If therapy for constipation is needed, increasing the fiber intake and physical activity will often help. Fiber comes from plant sources and is found in vegetables and fruits. It does not come from meat. Vegetables such as beans (lima, navy, kidney), peas, corn and broccoli are all good sources of fiber. Raspberries and apples (with peel) are also good sources of fiber.

Cereals containing bran are another source of fiber. Laxatives such as Metamucil or Citrucil have the same effect by adding bulk. They tend to be more natural in their effect and are not as harsh as many of the other laxatives.

Other laxatives such as phenolphthalein (Correctol, Ex-Lax), castor oil, milk of magnesia and enemas are useful and have a place in treating constipation. However, they may be more harsh and have a greater effect on the entire body. They should be used on a short-term basis. Prolonged use can lead to significant problems such as laxative dependence.

In chronic (long-term) constipation, a physician should be consulted. Conditions as varied as thyroid disease, tumors, pregnancy, high levels of blood calcium, depression, strokes, scleroderma and nerve problems can cause constipation.

One frequently overlooked cause is drug side effects. Narcotics are the best example since all narcotics may cause constipation. Other drugs, such as antacids containing aluminum and some of the cholesterol-lowering drugs like cholestyramine and vefrapamil, are frequent offenders. If brought to the physician's attention, a simple substitution of medicine or a lowering of the dosage may help.

Ray Hobbs, M.D., is medical director and internist at the U-M Health Center in Northville. This column is coordinated by Peg Campbell and the staff at the U-M Health Centers.

MLS operations improving

James M. Woodard
Copley News Service

Multiple listing service operations are about to evolve into a new era of major change. And those changes are designed to provide more and better services for home buyers and sellers.

MLS systems are usually (but not always) owned and operated by a local board of Realtors. They have been a key real estate marketing tool for Realtors over the past 25 to 40 years.

The simple concept of sharing information on listed properties with other brokers in the same marketing area, and allowing all cooperating Realtors to participate and share commissions in sales transactions, has proven to be a highly successful means of marketing real estate.

But consumer needs and high-tech capabilities are changing. And that may strongly impact the operation of MLS systems in the future.

In many cases, the weekly or

The Wild Rose is Striking

By James McAlexander
Copley News Service

Two huge quarter-round windows crowning a rich wall of multi-paned windows, and a covered porch supported by brick columns, combine to give the Wild Rose a dramatic front facade.

Inside the spacious vaulted living room/great room, the impression created by the windows is even more striking—almost cathedral-like in its effect.

There's space here for the spirit, as well as the mind, to loosen up and relax.

And during the winter months, a tiled-hearth, brick fireplace adds fire-watching and body-warming to the relaxation options.

A wall provides full separation between the living room portion of the great room and the kitchen, but the kitchen is open to the dining area. A counter that could serve as an eating bar marks the boundary between the two spaces, while offering additional cupboard and work space.

Sliding glass doors in the dining room open onto a raised deck with built-in benches. This design makes it easy to serve meals outside in summer.

The vaulted master suite also has glass doors that open onto the deck. Its private bathroom is divided into two compartments. The section that includes the water closet and a double-headed shower has a door that can be closed for privacy, and to keep steam contained.

A dressing room with his and hers vanities is open to the sleeping area. The walk-in closet is easily large enough to accommodate all of the owners' clothing, and more.

The second bedroom is nearby—close enough to be used as a nursery when children are small. A good-size linen closet is in between.

A third bedroom and utility room are located in the wing on the other side of the great room. The utility room comes equipped with a deep service sink and is accessible from the garage.

For a study plan of the Wild Rose (401-24) send $7.50 to Landmark Designs, c/o HomeTown Newspapers, 323 E. Grand River Ave., Howell, MI 48843. (Be sure to specify plan name and number when ordering.)

Using water more efficiently in home landscaping

In any given year, there's a significant chance of a drier than ordinary summer. For that reason, as well as to reduce the costs of plant care, it makes sense to landscape with an eye to conserving water.

That doesn't mean you have to landscape with desert plants, says Curt Peterson, Michigan State University Extension horticulture specialist. It simply means becoming more efficient in using water.

If you're building a landscape from scratch, your task is fairly straightforward — you simply pick trees, shrubs, turfgrass, and annual and perennial species that do nicely with little or no supplemental watering after they're established. Of course, you need to consider the growing conditions in the intended planting site — soil type, drainage, exposure to sun and wind, available space — and such plant characteristics as hardiness, mature size, shape, presence of flowers and fruits, potential pest problems, fall color, etc.

"If some of the plants you'd like to plant because of their ornamental characteristics have moderate to high water needs, you can still use them in the landscape," Peterson says. "Just group them together to make meeting those needs more efficient."

If you're working with an established landscape, creating areas of low, moderate and high water use can be more difficult. One approach is simply to stop supplemental watering and wait to see which plants survive. Plants that can't adapt can be replaced with less demanding types. Another approach is to move plants that you know need lots of water so they're together in one part of the landscape. You can then water only that limited area.

Whenever you are renovating or adding to your landscape, include drought tolerance in your list of desirable plant characteristics, Peterson suggests. Observing native plants that thrive along roadsides and in other low maintenance areas and consulting with your local nursery operator can help you determine what plants are hardy in your area and able to survive and grow with minimal watering.

Unless you can move plants from one part of your property to another, leave wild plants where you find them, Peterson advises.

Use a field guide to identify trees, shrubs and herbaceous plants; then look for the same or similar species at your local nursery or garden center.

Because of limited root systems at planting time, most landscape ornamentals will require supplemental watering during the first growing season or two, Peterson notes. Watering then, as at other times, should be deep rather than shallow, to encourage plants to develop large, deep root systems. Such plants are more drought tolerant than similar plants with shallow root systems.

Other steps to improve water use efficiency can include mulching to slow the evaporation of water from the soil and using soaker hoses or drip irrigation to apply water when it's needed. These methods apply water to limited areas and place it right on the soil surface. Overhead sprinkling throws water through the air, where much of it is lost through evaporation, and applies a lot of water to large expanses of foliage, soil, driveways and other surfaces to apply a little to the plants' root zones.

"However you water, you want to apply about 1 inch per week in hot, dry weather," Peterson sums up. "The aim is to moisten the top 6 inches of soil without runoff. The best time to water is in early morning, while temperatures are cool. Evaporative losses increase in the heat of the day. Evening watering may leave plant foliage wet for long periods, and this may contribute to the development and spread of plant diseases."

Natural insect repellents

By C.Z. Guest
Copley News Service

Many new organic insecticides could be on nursery and garden center shelves in several years.

Chinaberry (Melia Azedarach), a plant related to neem, grows widely in tropical areas. Research in the United States, China and Philippines has found leaf extracts from this plant inhibit growth of leafhoppers, corn earworms and plant-hoppers.

Other Chinese botanical insecticides show promise, too, in controlling root weevils and cucumber beetles.

Another product from pawpaw bark extract has worked well against striped cucumber beetles and bean leaf beetles. The pawpaw tree (Asimina triloba) is native to the Eastern areas of the United States.

Similar compounds have been found in the seeds of quanabana fruit, a Central American plant grown commercially for juice.

Many odiferous herbs show promise, too, particularly tansy as an insect repellent. A 10 percent solution of tansy applied weekly repels Colorado potato beetles and other pests of the cabbage family.

The active ingredients in

tansy are camphorlike compounds. Levels may vary from plant to plant, so more research is needed to determine if climate or time of the year affect results.

Until then, you can make your own tansy repellent: Process in a blender (use an old one) 1 ounce fresh-cut tansy with 1-1/2 cups water. Strain through a triple layer of cheesecloth, then spray on your plants.

Tansy seeds are available from Park Seed Co., Greenwood, SC 29674, and Burpee & Co., Warminster, PA 18974.

The main elements of good organic garden practices include:

- Use resistant varieties. Choose plants for their ability to fend off insects, pests and plant diseases.

- Rotate crops. Keep changing where, when and how you place your plants. Don't plant the same plant in the same place each year. Diversification creates places for helpful insects to live, so get as many different varieties of plants in your garden as you can. Rotating your beds each year stymies soilborne insects and plant diseases.

Roseville vases

By Anne McCollam
Copley News Service

Q. Enclosed is a picture of a pair of vases that has been in our family approximately 60 years. The bottom of the vases reads "8-10 Roseville U.S.A."

Could you please tell me if they are of any value?

A. Your Roseville vases were made in the mid-20th century. The pattern is Dahlrose, which was first made in 1924. The pair would probably sell for around $165 to $185.

Q. I inherited a china tea set from my grandmother that consists of six cups, saucers and dessert plates. Gold leaves are painted on the rims and a spray of pink flowers, possibly old-fashioned roses, against a green background. The mark is a shield with the word "Weimar" in it, and "Germany" beneath the shield.

Do you know anything about this set, and what its worth might be?

A. Your tea set was made by C.E. Carstens Porcelain Factory, Blankenhain, Thuringia, Germany, in the mid-20th century. Its worth would be about $125 to $135.

Q. The enclosed mark is on the bottom of a porcelain figurine of a young girl holding a kitten. It is 8 inches tall and apparently handpainted.

Could you tell me who made it, and its worth?

A. This mark was used by the Duchov porcelain factory in Czechoslovakia. Your figurine was made in the third quarter of the 20th century. It would probably be worth $75 to $85.

Q. I have a Royal Doulton figurine of Lady Charmian. Could you tell me what its value is?

A. The Royal Doulton figurine was made in the mid-20th century. Lady Charmian wore either a green dress and red shawl or a red dress and green shawl.

Its value would be about $175 to $200.

Q. I have a collection of some 30 or more pieces of Irish Belleek.

Recently, I bought a cup and saucer at a flea market. The mark has the letter "L" inside a circle, and a palette at the top of the circle. The word "Belleek" is at the bottom of the mark.

I've read a little about American Belleek. Have you any insight about the age and value of this cup and saucer?

A. Your cup and saucer were made by the Lenox Co., Trenton, N.J., around 1905 to 1910. The value would probably be $65 to $75.

Q. I have a 12-gauge double-barrel Colt shotgun with 30-inch Damascus barrel in good condition.

The number is 6479, Patent Aug. 18, Sept. 22, 1882.

There is a picture of a colt on the stock, and the following information is on the barrel: "Colts of F.A. Mfg. Co. Hartford, Conn."

A. Your Colt shotgun would be worth about $600 to $900. I don't have a list of buyers.

This shotgun should not be fired with modern loads.

Home search via computer in the future for Multi-listings

biweekly MLS book (containing photos and information on each listed property) may be abandoned. In its place will be a sophisticated computer system delivering property data and color photos to MLS members instantly via laptop computers that can be carried in cars or into homes of clients and prospective clients.

Lock-boxes used by MLS members to gain access to listed homes also will be changed to high-tech electronic devices that will be much more secure and controllable by MLS management.

Also, local boards and MLS operations may become regionalized—current boundaries being expanded dramatically.

"I recently attended a National Association of Realtors meeting in Washington, D.C., where seven companies made presentations of new and dramatic computer information systems for Realtor groups," said Bob Edwards, chairman of a 620-member MLS system. "Some very progressive ideas and concepts are being studied and presented."

In the future, Realtors will be able to pull up a map on their computer screen and quickly pinpoint precisely where they want to focus a search for a home, according to Rita Kraft, chairwoman of a comparatively small 389-member MLS.

"We will be able to be much more specific about parameters for a home we are seeking for a client," she said.

The inevitable changes in MLS systems was recently discussed candidly by William Chee, president of the National Association of Realtors.

"Times have changed drastically since we first started MLS," he said. "Realtors and their clients needs have changed. Now it's time for MLS to change."

Chee feels there must be some form of public access to regional MLS systems. And the MLS boundaries that conform to "artificial" geographic lines should be eliminated, he said.

Many local boards continue to protect their MLS territories with vigor, but excessive rules, regulations and restricted territories render them vulnerable and impotent, he said.

"We must more fully understand what the consumer wants because what the consumer wants, the consumer gets—from a Realtor or from someone else," he told the NAR board of directors in a special meeting. "If we continue on our current path and do nothing to alter our course, MLS will be lost to outside organizations or businesses, and that will threaten the stability, operation and membership of this entire association."

Those "outside organizations" include AT&T and regional telephone companies that would like to provide information services for real estate brokers as a new profit-center.

In Chicago, the Tribune newspaper has teamed up with an information service vendor to provide computer on-line services for Realtors. They also provide MLS books for individual firms. In California, a plan is now being developed to provide an independent "super MLS" controlled by major brokers. Other progressive plans and concepts are on the drawing board.

The competition is getting tough and bold.

"Consumer trends are driving the market to provide more services and more access to those services," Chee noted. "MLS systems are now generally positioned at the opposite end of this trend. By having outmoded technology and making the MLS an exclusionary database, we are not only running counter to the habits and expectations of the consuming public, we are opening vast opportunities to the competition."

G. In what region is home building most active?

A. Florida, the mountain states and "oil patch" region have experienced the most home building activity in recent months, according to a report from U.S. Housing Markets. Overall, the number of building permits for residential construction has been steadily increasing in most regions of the country over since the fall of 1991.

The most dramatic increase of residential construction in a single metro area is in Las Vegas. Single-family home building permits jumped by 30 percent over last year's volume. Other big increases are reported in Denver, Phoenix, Tucson and Salt Lake City.

G. How do most homeowners feel about the value of a warranty program covering a home being resold?

A. In a survey of consumers conducted by the Gallup Organization, commissioned by the Home Warranty Association of California, 75 percent of homeowners agreed having a home warranty would give them a greater level of confidence in a home they might purchase.

Also, 79 percent of home buyers and sellers rated home warranties (home protection plans) as one of the most important consideration in buying or selling a home.

Questions may be used in future columns; personal responses should not be expected. Send inquiries to James M. Woodard, Copley News Service, P.O. Box 190, San Diego, CA 92112 0190.

Using mother nature to repel insects

• Be more tolerant of weeds. Take out unsightly ones and learn which weeds can hurt your plants, and remove them. Many weeds are actually helping your plants by attracting beneficial insects.

• Stop using pesticides. Get to know the good guys, become a student of insect types and habits and you'll start to understand the inner workings of a good organic gardening system.

• Keep feeding the soil. Regular applications of compost for the steady process of transforming organic matter into rich humus.

With the recent media blitz over the dangers of pesticides on food, the nation's organic industry is booming. More and more, state government is becoming involved in organic labeling or certification programs.

Below is a list of the states that are involved in some type of organic food program:

• States operating state-certified programs: Texas, New Hampshire and Washington.

• States cooperating with independent certification programs: Minnesota, Ohio and Vermont.

• States that plan certification involvement: Colorado, Idaho, Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

• States with organic labeling laws/rules: California, Connecticut, Iowa, Maine, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Montana, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New York (pending), North Dakota, Ohio, Oregon, South Dakota, Washington and Wisconsin.

Many more states are researching aspects of organic labeling or certification as the demand for organically grown produce grows.

Wind River Gallery owners Tim and Nancy Smith put the finishing touches on their new location.

Gallery owners enjoy customers

By Anne Seebaldt Gogolin

Wind River Gallery owners Tim and Nancy Smith agree that the best part of owning a business in Milford is getting to know the residents.

"We really enjoy talking to our customers," Nancy said.

The gallery was a necessary retail outlet for the wildlife art Tim sold and collected for six years prior to its March 1989 opening.

"Michigan Wildlife Art was the company we had formed to provide that service," Tim remembered. "Our stock had grown so much that we had to find a retail outlet."

Tim and Nancy recently relocated their business to its third site within the Village Center Mall, 400 N. Main, and expanded its area by 800 square feet. The last site they occupied across the hall was approximately 1,000 square feet.

During the past four years, Wind River's art retail items have expanded beyond the scope of wildlife art to include Southwest/American Indian art, traditional art prints, and a variety of art posters.

When the Smiths opened their business in Milford, they had no idea that framing would become an integral part of their business.

"Custom framing has been a very large part of Wind River Gallery," Tim said. "It was actually an afterthought — a service we were going to provide for our customers."

The volume of framing orders they take in changed the Smiths' minds about their plan to open a second gallery.

"Our goal is to just serve Milford and Highland. . . not to spread ourselves too thin," Nancy explained.

Nancy said that she and assistant manager Cari Cabot help customers to choose the picture mats and frames they want, which Tim then puts together at his other business. Tim is co-owner and vice president of Michigan Manufacturers Service in Wixom.

"We utilized a portion of our shop to do the custom framing," Tim said. "It gives us the opportunity to keep

School Worries?

Summer is GREAT learning time — to catch up or move ahead!

Your child can learn. You know he can. But sometimes his natural abilities seem to be "jammed up" (as one of our students put it). The same tired drill can't fix that. But a systematic program can — if it is based upon the science of learning.

If your student is having reading or learning problems, he may just need a second approach. And the best second approach is one which strengthens the natural learning process. Wehrli Performance Training does just that, improving skills like:

- following directions
- remembering
- thinking fast
- concentrating
- comprehending

What To Do

Register your student now in the amazing Wehrli Performance Training program. He will get lots of reading practice and positive feedback from certified, caring teachers. math help is available, too.

Get started now for summer. Enroll by June 30 and get two weeks FREE.

Family plans are available.

What About Adults?

We also have adult programs. If you read okay, but would like to read faster and comprehend more, there is a program here for you. Better reading skills can improve your pleasure reading or even advance your career.

our gallery clean."

Framing is an art form in itself. Tim said. Those in the framing business always are looking for new ways to present art prints.

"I want to try some new concepts in the framing area I've been working on," he said. Having the framing workshop on site at his other business is both convenient and necessary, he said.

"I can be basically on call for both businesses at the same time," Tim explained.

Like most small-town business owners, the Smiths emphasize service.

Nancy said that regardless of their customers' ages, all receive a friendly greeting and specialized assistance.

In fact, she encourages young people to look around and often helps them select presents for their parents, working within whatever budget they have.

One reason Nancy loves to have children come in the store is that she likes to see children take an early interest in art.

The Smiths have tried to promote that interest by helping the schools — Tim judged a Johnson Elementary Art Show for three consecutive years.

"I am finding children (usually aged 10 to 12) come in to browse," she said. "They enjoy the art. I think that's terrific."

Tim said that what fascinates him about children and art is that they have definite opinions about it and share them.

"They will bring in their friends and show them 'something neat,'" he added.

Prices of art items can range greatly — from $3.50 for a small item to $10,000 for a signed original oil painting. At any given time, the gallery will have approximately 1,500 prints in stock and 500 in reserve. And they are always adding new prints to keep up with art trends.

"People want to see what's current," Tim said. "It's nice when they come in and make a request and you can pull that print out of your folders."

Tim and Nancy agree that while owning their own business brings upon certain responsibilities, they would not trade the experience.

"In a small business you do everything," Tim explained.

"It's a team effort," Nancy added. "You do what needs to be done."

Tim said that Wind River Gallery has a good business niche in the Milford-Highland area, adding that they want to stay here and grow with the community.

In the future, he added, they would like to expand their stock of art forms.

Records are key to lowertaxes

You can lower your tax bill and keep your tax-return preparation fees to a minimum by organizing your financial records and providing your tax preparer with accurate and comprehensive information, according to the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants. If you don't know how to begin collecting the documents necessary to prepare your tax return, here's some guidance.

Document your income

Before you meet with your tax preparer, make a list of your various sources of income and gather the appropriate documentation. W-2 forms, provided by employers, indicate how much compensation you received during the year and how much was withheld for federal income taxes and other deductions, such as the state income tax, local income tax and FICA (Social Security).

If you own stock or bonds, you will also be receiving 1099 forms in the mail to report your dividend and interest income. Banks and savings institutions will also send you 1099s if your cash deposits earned interest. You may also receive a 1099 from your state government indicating any tax refunds received for the prior year. Finally, your stockbroker will send you form 1099-B reporting the sale of any securities.

Other types of taxable income include unemployment compensation, some Social Security or pension benefits, alimony, capital gains, rent and self-employment or partnership income.

Identify tax deductions

Draw up a preliminary list of your deductible expenses using your tax form as a guide. Then review your tax returns for the previous year or two. Note the kinds of deductions you claimed and decide whether any of these may be claimed again this year.

An easy way to locate documentation related to your tax-deductible expenses for 1991 is by referring to your checkbook register. Look for checks written to charitable organizations, doctors and dentists as well as checks written for expenses associated with performing your job or looking for a new job.

Business Briefs

MAYNES INSURANCE SERVICES of Novi and the GODDARD-TALMAY AGENCY of Walked Lake have been honored by one of Michigan's largest insurance companies.

After reviewing the performance of approximately 600 independent agencies in Michigan and Indiana that write property and casualty policies for Citizens Insurance Company, the Howell-based insurer selected Maynes Insurance Services and the Goddard-Talmay Agency for Key Agents Club awards.

The Key Agents Club award recognizes agencies for exceptional production and underwriting results.

"The success of Citizens depends in great measure on the success of the independent agents who represent the company. We congratulate (these agencies) for solid business performance on behalf of Citizens, as well as for service to our insureds that reflects the vision of the company," said Jack R. Wintermute, CPCU.

Founded in 1915, Citizens is Michigan's largest writer of property and casualty insurance through independent agents. The company provides automobile, home, boat, business and workers compensation insurance in Indiana as well. Citizens is rated A+ (Superior) by the A.M. Best Company, the leading independent analyst of the insurance industry.

If GREGORY SEMACK, who operates the Sir Speedy Printing Center at 39877 Grand River, has his way, a one-of-a-kind, 1993 silver Corvette will be parading through the streets of Novi in September. That's when the winner of Sir Speedy's Silver Celebration Sweepstakes will be announced.

"This is the most exciting sweepstakes we have ever had," Semack said. "Not only is the grand prize a customized silver Corvette, but 25 second prizes of 1,000 silver dollars each will be given away to commemorate Sir Speedy's 25th anniversary. There is no purchase necessary and people may enter as many times as they want."

To enter the Sir Speedy Silver Celebration Sweepstakes, participants must complete an official entry blank or write their name, company name, title, address and telephone number on a 3-by-5 sheet of paper. Official entry blanks and rules will be available at the Sir Speedy of Novi or any participating Sir Speedy Printing Center. All entries must be received at an Air Speedy Printing Center by August 27.

"Celebrating 25 years in business is a momentous occasion for any business," said Don Lowe, president of the California-based Sir Speedy, Inc. "As our nation's leading business printer, we are especially proud of Gregory and all our dedicated franchisees in nearly 900 locations worldwide. Their craftsmanship extends from design and typesetting to color printing and binding."

Two Novi residents are among 326 employees who were honored this month by St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ann Arbor for completing ten or more years of service in 1992. Local 10-year service award recipients are SHERYL CHOMUK and DIANE DAVIDSON.

The Catherine McAuley Health System is a not-for-profit health care provider based in Ann Arbor, Michigan. CMHS units include St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, McPherson Hospital in Howell, Saline Community Hospital, and outpatient facilities in Washtenaw, Livingston and western Wayne counties.

The WIELAND-DAVCO CORPORATION, a Lansing-based general contractor and developer, has opened its new Detroit area office at 46983 Liberty Drive in the Wixom Business Center in Wixom. Contact Kevin Wetzel or Rick Hoekstra for building information at 313-624-5582.

VICKI L. WALTER has joined Lintas: Campbell-Ewald as vice president, director of profit planning. The announcement was made by Richard D. O'Connor, chairman and chief executive officer of Lintas: Campbell-Ewald.

Responsible for the functions of financial planning, budgeting, analysis and reporting, Ms. Walter reports to Stephen J. Kuehn, senior vice president, director of financial services.

A certified public accountant with more than twelve years of financial experience, most recently with the Dial Corporation, St. Louis, Mrs. Walter earned an MBA from DePaul University, did graduate work at Boston University and earned an undergraduate degree in Business Administration from the University of Kansas.

She resides in Novi with her husband Richard. Lintas: Campbell-Ewald is headquartered in Warren and employs nearly 800 people. It is an operating unit of Lintas: Worldwide, the world's sixth largest agency network with 179 offices in 50 countries.

Doc honored for 50 years in profession

Dr. John F. Cotant of Northville was honored by the Michigan State Medical Society (MSMS) on May 1 for 50 years of service to the medical profession.

More than 180 Michigan physicians from across the state were honored for their outstanding contributions in a special reception and ceremonies before the 250 physician-delegates attending the 128th annual session of the MSMS House of Delegates at the Ritz Carlton Hotel in Dearborn.

These physicians represent 9,150 years of medical service to their patients. Beginning their careers in the middle of World War II, these physicians assumed key roles in a medical generation distinguished for its unprecedented achievements in advancing and promoting human health care.
