Big plans

The publicity committee for this year's Victorian Festival got together last week for the first of many meetings. Above, Northville Record account executive Anna Lipar, Northville Community Chamber of Commerce executive director Laurie Marrs, and publicity co-chairs Patricia Thull and Kevin Paulina discuss plans for the event, to be held Sept. 17-19. Paulina, a food stylist, will design the cake that will be the centerpiece of the sweet table.

Budget revised to clarify city's deficit picture

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

With a week left in the budgeting period, the Northville City Council has agreed to amend the city's 1992-93 budget.

City Manager Gary Word said the amendments are an attempt to draw a clearer picture of the city's budget situation since the state's withholding of racetrack revenue in 1991 helped throw the city $1 million into debt.

Word directed Finance Officer Mark Christiansen to "clean up" the other funds, he said, "to give a much clearer picture of the deficit in the general fund."

"With the adoption of the amendments, all of the funds of the city would have a positive fund balance except for the general fund, which we hope to address through the ongoing deficit elimination plan," Word said.

He added that the new budget will look better to municipal bond rating firms like Standard & Poors that want to assure the city has its fiscal house in order.

"A lot of this is just housekeeping stuff to keep the revenues where they belong and the expenditures where we think they're going to come in," Christiansen added. "Some are up, some are down."

Complex tenants applaud changes, ask for more work

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

Tenants at 525 Fairbrook are happy to see improvements being made to unoccupied units in their 28-year-old apartment complex.

But some are beginning to wonder when their own apartments will get long overdue attention.

Fairbrook Apartment residents formed their own tenants association in May to demand improvements to the complex, following complaints of poor maintenance that included loose windows and broken fixtures. Since then, workers have reshingled the roof, repainted hallways and replaced appliances, but not in many of the occupied dwellings.

"The unoccupied apartments have the new refrigerators, new sinks and new toilets, and the complaints of the current tenants are not being addressed," said resident Kathy Nunez.

She said the tenants are still considering withholding their rent and placing it in an escrow account, but hope complex owner Paul Johnson of Paul Johnson Properties Inc. will address their ongoing concerns before that step becomes necessary.

"Even though he hasn't responded to us personally, we feel like he is making an effort," Nunez said. "We are still optimistic that things are going to get done."

The tenants association sent a letter to Johnson June 8 that thanked him for the continuing improvements but asked that their own apartments be included, and listed specific areas of concern. Johnson was scheduled to tour the complex Friday afternoon, after the Record's deadline, and hear from the tenants themselves.

Curtis Road residents to be assessed

By SHARON CONDRON
Staff Writer

Northville Township Trustees will assess Curtis Road property owners for a new storm sewer.

The new $30,000 sewer is needed to control sewer overflows that have come from the four homes that have been allowed to connect their footing drains to the township's sanitary sewer.

But now that it's illegal to tap into sewer lines through footing drains and with the Western Township Utilities Authority (WTUA) sewer nearly on-line, the township had no alternative but to cut the overflows and vote to install a separate storm sewer for Curtis Road residents.

Trustees voted 7-0 on June 17 to front the bill for the expense of the new sewer and to assess the four affected property owners for the $30,000 expenditure.

In a March 19 letter, township engineers urged trustees to rectify the situation because overflows into the township's sanitary sewer system were becoming excessive. Engineers said four homes on Curtis Road were allowed to connect their footing drains to the sanitary sewer before it became illegal to do so in 1969.

Prior to that, the connections had little effect on the township's sewer system because groundwater levels in that area were controlled by a water well system that fed drinking water to the city of Plymouth. Since then, Plymouth city officials have abandoned the well to tap into the Detroit Water and Sewer system.

Over the years, groundwater levels have risen and simultaneously caused the water table in the area near Curtis Road to rise and infiltrate the township sewer.

As a means of controlling combined sewer overflows, the township also signed an agreement in the mid 1980s with the Department of Natural Resources to do what it could to eliminate overflows in the township. The only area inside the township boundaries affected by the pact is Curtis Road.

In the mid-1980s the township and the DNR agreed that the only viable solution to the problem was to install a separate storm sewer to accommodate the overflows.

After months of volleying back and forth, township trustees last week gave in to the DNR's demands to install a gravity-fed sewer.

According to the engineer's report, there are four homes on the street that are mostly at fault. Two of them have sump pumps attached directly to the township's sanitary sewer lead. The other two have cracks in the sanitary sewer lead pipe that need replacing.

Two months ago, township trustees sent notices to all township residents who may have had sump pumps connected to the township sewer line reminding them that those kinds of connections are illegal and costly to the township. Overflows from sump pump connections will be charged back to the township once the WTUA system is up and running

Rahimi lowers gavel for last time tonight

By MICHELLE KAISER
Staff Writer

Don't be surprised if Carol Rahimi sheds a few tears at tonight's Northville Board of Education meeting.

As president of the board, this will be Rahimi's last meeting.

"It's going to be hard," she said. "I didn't think it was going to be until I went to the district retirement party and I looked around the room and realized I was leaving. I've made a lot of close friends."

As soon as she sells her Northville home, Rahimi will be relocating to the Chicago area to be with her husband. He took a job as vice-president of Northwestern University in Illinois last September.

The Rahimis moved to Northville from East Lansing 12 years ago. She has served on the board for five years, serving as treasurer for two terms, and secretary and president for one term each.

Rahimi said her first year on the board was probably her favorite.

"It was exciting," she said. "There was a lot to learn. There was a lot going on, too. That was the year we made the decision to build Thornton Creek."

The board member did say that her favorite part of the board meetings was watching all the presentations put on by students in the district. She particularly enjoyed a recent program at Silver Springs where board members actually got the chance to participate in activities with the students.

Every other meeting of the board of education is held at one of the school buildings to let board members know what's going on outside the board conference room.

"The district has done that for a very, very long time," Rahimi said. "It helps to keep us in touch with what's Township police investigators survey the scene in which Northville Record editor Lee Snider was hurt when he drove his car into a patrol vehicle that was stopped in the right lane of eastbound Seven Mile.

Record editor hurt in crash in township

By SHARON CONDRON
Staff Writer

Northville Record news editor Lee Snider was injured Wednesday afternoon when the car he was driving collided with a Northville Township Police car on Seven Mile Road just after noon.

Snider suffered facial and knee injuries after his 1989 Subaru Justy rear-ended a township police cruiser that was stopped in the eastbound curb lane on Seven Mile near Pierson Road. The officer had pulled over the driver of a pickup truck for a routine traffic stop.

The editor wasn't wearing a seat belt, and his head crashed into the windshield upon impact. He was treated at St. Mary Hospital in Livonia and released Wednesday evening.

Officer Larry Demeter was taken to Providence Medical Center in Novi where he was treated for minor abrasions on his head and right leg. He was released that same afternoon.

The driver of the truck who had been stopped by Demeter was not injured.

According to the police report, Demeter had stopped a motorist in the eastbound lane of Seven Mile just before Snider smashed into his police vehicle. At the time of impact, Demeter was in his squad car running a check of the motorist's license when Snider hit him from behind. Demeter said he had his overhead lights on when he made the traffic stop.

Snider told police he saw the squad car in the eastbound lane, but thought it was moving. He also told police he didn't see the overhead lights on before he crashed into the squad car.

"I'm not sure exactly what happened, it all happened so fast," Snider said. "Car motion tends to make me drowsy and I might have dropped off for a few seconds, just long enough to break concentration.

"I'm just really lucky I wasn't seriously hurt."

The impact sent the squad car rolling forward into and underneath the rear bumper of the pickup truck.

There was no damage to the truck, but Police Lt. Gary Batzloff said there was extensive damage both to Snider's car and the squad car.

The report and statements taken from four witnesses at the scene indicate the officer did have his overhead red and blue strobe lights on when

Budget amended to help clear up finances

Though he said he had not reviewed the amendments, which were handed to the council that Monday, Council Member Paul Folino agreed to them and moved for their approval. Approval was needed that night, Word said, since Monday's meeting was the last regularly-scheduled meeting during the 1992-93 fiscal year.

The motion was approved unanimously.

The amendments reflect significant progress toward erasure of the city's $1 million debt. While all other funds will be deficit-free, the general fund still will have a $108,000 deficit at the end of the fiscal year June 30.

That debt will be erased in the 1993-94 fiscal year, Word said.

The city also has received $362,845 in state-returned racetrack revenue this fiscal year—a fraction of the $900,000 that the city is slated to receive under the State Racing Statute of 1980, but a boon to city coffers nonetheless. The current budget is based on no return of racetrack revenue.

The council agreed at the start of the elimination plan in 1991 to earmark any racetrack revenue toward deficit reduction.

Other amendments include a $427,223 contribution from the city's Downtown Development Authority bond reserve fund to its parking deck fund and a $106,074 contribution to its public improvement fund, to cover expenses incurred in the city's ongoing attempt to construct new downtown parking.

When questioned by the council, Word attributed an $82,000 shift to the city's parking fund to years of underfunding of the fund.

The council also has asked to see a comparison between the latest round of amendments and the city's original deficit elimination plan.

Snider is hurt in auto accident on Seven Mile

Snider hit the squad car. Witnesses also said Snider made no attempt to brake or merge into the left lane to avoid the crash.

Batzloff said there was no evidence at the scene to indicate that Snider had attempted to brake before colliding with the squad car. There were skid marks left on the pavement, but they were at the point of impact, he said. Eyewitness accounts of the accident concur with Batzloff's findings.

A driver traveling behind Snider said he had slowed down to give Snider an escape route, but said the editor never did merge into the left lane.

Snider said he had just left the office in downtown Northville and was headed out to the newspaper's plant in Howell just after noon. He said he had taken his eyes off the road for a minute to glance at a newspaper resting on the passenger seat.

Then he said he looked back up and realized the police car was stationary. Snider said he attempted to brake at the last minute to no avail.

Township police had requested a mechanical inspection of Snider's car to see if his brakes had failed, but the brakes were found to be in working order.

Police have yet to conclude their investigation, but Batzloff said they expect Snider will be ticketed.

Locals send supplies to troubled spots

By MICHELLE KAISER
Staff Writer

The crutches used by a child in Somalia may have come from Northville, as well as the medical supplies being used to set up a hospital in Bosnia.

Last Monday, Sandy Zuchlewski headed up a crew of volunteers from Old Village School and the Bryant Center to load a semi truck with 49 wheelchairs, 35 walkers, 30 pairs of crutches, a hospital bed and mattress, medical supplies, tables and other miscellaneous equipment. The supplies are headed toward Bosnia, Somalia and Kenya as part of the "Feed the Children" campaign, based in Oklahoma.

Zuchlewski first learned of the campaign two years ago in March while watching a TV special. Among others, the program profiled an orphan from Kenya who, at the time, had braces on his legs but no crutches to walk with.

"I thought of our special education program," Zuchlewski said. "We tend to store old equipment when the kids get new ones."

So, Zuchlewski asked local school districts to clean out their equipment closets and donate to her first drive held two years ago.

This year, Detroit's Burkley and the Wayne-Westland school districts, as well as a few others, donated equipment. The J.A. Preston Company in Jackson also donated the crutch tips and underarm pads for the 21 crutches being shipped out.

Monetary contributions Zuchlewski received were used to purchase eight cases of diapers and 10 cases of powdered milk. All in all, the estimated value of equipment donated amounted to over $16,000, Zuchlewski said.

"It's nice to know that Northville takes an interest in helping other kids," she said. "Some of that equipment has been in storage so long. The kids who are going to receive it will be thrilled with it."

Zuchlewski said the "Feed the Children" organization sent her pictures two years ago of the children in Kenya using the equipment donated then by Old Village and Bryant schools. She requested the organization send her photos of the children benefitting from this latest drive.

Zuchlewski, a physical therapist at Old Village, said she would start collecting immediately for the next drive, to be held in two years.

"It will be an ongoing process, instead of something that just takes a couple of months before (the drive)," she said.

If anyone would like to donate any equipment that might be of use to orphaned children, call Zuchlewski at Old Village School, 344-8460.

Tip #6-Avoid Tailgating

Avoid tailgating. By following too closely, car drivers increase their chances of a rear end collision with a truck. Car drivers should always keep a 4 second following distance. In foul weather, increase your following distance to 6-8 seconds.

Please wear your safety belt at all times, someone cares.

Golf cart is stolen from Brickscape Gardens

A tan golf cart with a tan canopy was reported stolen from Brickscape Gardens, 21141 Old Novi Road. The cart, valued at $2,000, was taken sometime between 9:30 p.m. June 22 and 4:30 a.m. June 23.

The owner had been unable to locate the cart's ignition key earlier, and told city police someone might have taken it and returned that night to take the cart itself.

STAMPS TAKEN FROM POST OFFICE: A postal official told city police that a patron stole $27.80 in 29-cent and 52-cent stamps just after noon June 18.

The patron was described as a 40-year-old woman with blond hair and a medium build, who stood 5-feet, 4-inches tall and weighed 135 pounds and wore large plastic-rimmed sunglasses. She reportedly ordered the stamps and then told the clerk she had to get money from her car, and took the stamps off the counter when the clerk turned away.

MINIVAN WINDOW SMASHED: City police received a report that someone smashed in the window of a 1987 Dodge Caravan sometime between 12:20-4 p.m. June 22. The vehicle was parked at the Northville Board of Education building, 501 W. Main St. at the time, on the south side of the lot near West Cady. Damage was estimated at $130.

HOME UNDER CONSTRUCTION VANDALIZED: A home under construction on Coldspring was vandalized sometime between 9 a.m.-5 p.m. June 13. Someone apparently went inside the house and shot a BB through a double-pane window, causing $350 in damage. The BB was found between the two panes.

STOP SIGN STOLEN: A $60 stop sign at Coldspring and Andover was stolen sometime before 3:20 a.m. June 23. A city police officer noticed the sign missing while on patrol.

FENDER BENDER: City police issued a ticket to a 48-year-old Northville woman June 23 after she drove into the back of another car on westbound Eight Mile Road. The accident occurred about 2:07 p.m. at the Novi Street intersection, and the other driver had slowed to turn south on Novi. The woman's car was disabled in the crash and she complained of injuries but refused medical attention.

Citizens with information about the above incidents are urged to call Northville City Police at 349-1234 or Northville Township Police at 349-9400.

Chris Lemmon, a graduate of Northville High School, has continued his amateur golf career at Michigan State University.

Lemmon doing well at MSU

Ever wonder what happened to that outstanding high school student you used to read about on the pages of The Northville Record or The Novi News? So did we. So, in an effort to find out what they're doing now, we're starting a weekly summer series featuring a recent Northville or Novi High School graduate and his or her continued scholastic, athletic, or personal success story. Enjoy catching up with some of your former local celebrities.

By JENNY BEYERSDORF
Staff Writer

Bob Hope once joked that, "If you watch a game, it's fun. If you play it, it's recreation. If you work at it, it's golf."

Michigan State University junior and 1991 Northville High School graduate/golf star Chris Lemmon just might agree — especially after finishing the last couple months of this school year.

Lemmon is one of 11 members of Michigan State's varsity golf team, the best university squad of its kind in Michigan. He receives scholarship money and other perks that go along with varsity athletics at a Big Ten school.

But he says sometimes even the free trips, meals, clothes, and, yes, even golf can get a little tiring. Especially when you're a full-time student trying to maintain low weekly tournament qualifying scores and a high overall grade point average.

Lemmon, however, seems to manage both successfully. He was consistently one of MSU's top five golfers last season and has maintained a 3.68 grade point average as an economics major in his first two years at State.

Such dedication to golf and academics is not easy, and Lemmon says he pays the price in what he gives up — such as weekends at school, involvement in other college activities, and a "normal" college experience.

The golf season lasts from September to June, and Lemmon spends most weekends at tournaments. The busiest months, though, are April through June, when Lemmon's typical weekly calendar looks like a mix of Alex Keaton's and Arnold Palmer's — with the pace of a manic depressive on the upswing to compliment the split personality.

Mondays and Tuesdays Lemmon spends on the fairways, competing against other MSU team members for one of the five traveling spots at that weekend's tournament. He crams in a week's worth of studying and making up for missed classes on Monday and Tuesday nights, then leaves Wednesday evenings for the tournament — at which he typically golfs four days (no time for sightseeing or studying, it's all golf, he says) then returns to East Lansing on Sunday nights. Only to do it all over again the next week.

"People think it's the glamorous life," says Lemmon of the travel, "but there are days you get sick of it. You wake up, eat, practice, play. You get in a routine where you feel like you're a walking golfer with no social life."

Not that he'd rescind his college golf career for Friday nights at the bars or watching The Simpsons with the guys, though.

"I'll look back and be glad I did it," says Lemmon, who hopes to be an academic All-American next year.

He says that while it can get tough, especially during the busiest last two months of the season, playing on the team has its benefits. In addition to the travel — MSU flies players to tournaments in Texas, New Orleans, Kentucky and South Carolina as well as at universities all over the nation — Lemmon says he enjoys the opportunity to play with some of the nation's best young golfers.

"These are the people who are going to be on the PGA Tour in a couple of years," he says. "It's exciting. At the regional tournament this year, I played right behind the national amateur champion."

Lemmon says the level of competition, while stressful, is good for the ego.

"Sometimes you feel like you're the best, but then going to tournaments and playing against some of the people we do, you realize there's lots of room for improvement."

Unlike other college athletes, golffers are a pretty humble breed, according to Lemmon. He says it's because of the individual nature of the sport.

And unlike high school competition, where Lemmon received accolades as a three-time all-conference selection and a member of the All-State team his senior year, Big Ten competition is "the real thing," he says, where awards and congratulations are fewer and farther between.

In fact, the same high school standout — about whom former Northville High School golf coach Don Morgan once said, "I don't think there is any doubt that he is up near the best players in the state" — only considers himself "in the middle of the pack" of golfers at the college level.

Lemmon chuckles when asked about the differences between high school and college level competition.

In college, he says, "they (the coaches) yell at you if you're not doing well. They expect results. It's a lot of stress."

"(MSU coach) Ken Horvath is very demanding," he says. "He's not going to be your best friend. I respect him, but I had to earn his respect. With college coaches, if you shoot low they're your best friend. If not, they won't even talk to you."

Horvath talked to Lemmon this year. The 6 foot, 3 inch junior placed third out of over 100 golfers at the Ohio State University tournament and helped lead MSU to its first berth in the national tournament in 20 years.

Next year, with leading MSU seniors Heath Fell and Mike Spencer gone, Lemmon will compete for the number one or two spot on the team.

So what are his plans for the future? Right now he's home for the summer, taking a month off of golfing ("I'm burned out," he says) then teaching a golf clinic at MSU.

In the big picture, Lemmon foresees a career in business after getting his MBA. And golf.

"I'll probably play it all my life," he says of the game.

Even if right now it seems like work.

going on in each building. When I was involved in the PTA and president of the coordinating council, I was a lot more involved on a building level. When you get on the board, you kind of lose touch with that daily level."

Rahimi said she wasn't sure if she would become active in the school district of her new home.

"First I have to get relocated," she said. "I haven't even sold the house yet and that concerns me. Right now we're kind of living disjointed lives."

Tenants look for more improvements

Last month's complaints by residents were followed by a May 14 inspection of the complex by the city's building official and fire chief. Paul Johnson Properties Inc. was given 30 days to correct a list of violations including loose and cracked windows, roof leaks and unchanged fire extinguishers.

Nunez said she hoped the workmen would shift their focus to the occupied units after they make the repairs requested by the city.

Johnson declined to discuss the case Friday, saying that his firm was preparing to respond to the city's concerns later this week. "I think by the end of the week we should have all our ducks in a row and everything in order," he said.

But he continued to insist that problems at the complex have been exaggerated.

"The whole thing is way out of proportion," he said.

Our Opinion

Ford Plant purchase looks good initially

The announcement of a potential buyer of the blighted former Ford Valve Plant is truly exciting news. City officials announced last week that the Northville Township firm R & D Enterprises is considering purchasing the old plant for use as a manufacturing facility.

R & D makes heat exchangers for the marine industry and is experiencing growing pains in its current facility on Gerald Avenue. The company needs more room, and, to its credit, is looking to remain in the community.

In a complex three-way arrangement, the city would be required to grant a tax abatement to induce the firm to relocate. It would also have to agree to purchase Ford-owned land west of Griswold, as well as four acres of property and waterway adjacent to the plant.

The waterfront acreage could be linked to Mill Race Historical Village and made into a riverwalk with public access to the waterfowl that have become so closely associated with the city.

It all sounds great. The old plant is an eyesore that strikes a harsh chord of disharmony when compared to the rest of beautiful downtown. The prospect of a reliable company cleaning up and occupying the building is, indeed, an attractive one. The old plant could be seen as one of the last remaining pieces in the downtown equation.

Some questions remain to be answered, however. For example, we have not yet heard the sale price of the land the city would be required to purchase. And when the price is disclosed the question of affordability will have to be addressed. The city is still trying to dig itself out of a deficit situation, which, though no fault of its own, is still a matter requiring close attention.

Hopefully, more details of the proposal will become known at a special study June 30. The meeting will take place at 8 p.m. and will be open to the public.

We hope that the city's purchase of the Ford land will be seen as a feasible undertaking and the long saga of the vacant building can be brought to an end.

Rahimi earns laurels for her contribution

Northville Board of Education President Carol Rahimi gavel her last board meeting to a close tonight.

After five years of serving as an elected representative of the school district, Rahimi resigns her board seat effective June 30.

Tonight's will be the last voting meeting over which she will preside. She will soon relocate to the Chicago area, as her husband has been hired as a vice president of the prestigious Northwestern University.

Rahimi deserves high praise and gratitude for her years of service to the school district. Northville Board of Education members are not paid for their efforts, and the long hours, considerable grief and endless second guessing to which they are subjected are enough to discourage many less committed individuals.

There is no way of securing figures on it, but we suspect the thankless nature of the job does, in fact, deter a lot of people from running for the board of education. The position can involve crushing pressures from parents and media critics whose vantage points on the other side of the board table often provide only an incomplete picture of the problems at hand. The temptation to disregard the best interests of the students and give in to outspoken adults has to be enormous.

But, in spite of all its stresses, is the job really thankless? Not to Rahimi and people of similar conviction who always seem to have a ready answer when asked why they do it. They become involved, they'll tell you, because they believe they can make a difference in the lives of young people. To do something they think will benefit the next generation of citizens, they willingly shoulder a responsibility that includes forfeiting free time and being disturbed at home.

This is not the place to wax poetic about the character of someone like Carol Rahimi who makes personal sacrifices in order to make a contribution to the community. Instead, we'll just say: Thanks.

Rick Byrne

Swan treatment reflects poorly

Rick Byrne

It's a phenomenon of nature that, among humans anyway, the females tend to be the protectors of the young.

It's not necessarily true of all species. Among some species, the young are nurtured by the males, some animals trade off parental duties between the sexes, or, as is the case among sea turtles, some aren't nurtured at all. They fend for themselves the moment they hatch, probably never knowing their parents.

If I sound a little bit like Wilson from Home Improvement, it's probably intentional. Wilson imparts his arcane knowledge to Tim Taylor to promote understanding in the Taylors' TV household. So too I provide this information to perhaps help you understand the behavior of the swans around Walled Lake.

Already there's been one swan killed by a reckless jet skier on Walled Lake. Now some folks are trying to have the remaining nesting pair and their babies removed.

Residents of the Windward Bay condo complex have complained of being chased and hissed at by the male, who is apparently protecting the nest. Somehow, though, the chasing and hissing have been described in terms that make the swan sound like something out of Jurassic Park.

I encountered the swan paternal instinct while living at Woodland Glen Apartments in Northville. There, a pair of gorgeous black Australian swans returns each summer to live on the pond, thanks to the complex owner who places a similar pair at every complex he owns around the state.

Woody and Glenda hatched and raised a brood of cygnets there each of the last two summers. They also spawned a faithful following of swan-watchers, of which I was one. Interestingly enough, the birds took turns sitting on the eggs. But when they perceived a threat, it was always Woody who faced up to it.

If an intruder made a move toward the nest, Woody would step (well, waddle) into action.

On land, his head came just about waist high on me, but he did other things to make himself appear larger and more intimidating. He'd flare the feathers on his back and wings, arch his neck, and approach sideways if he could.

He'd also make that mean, horrible hissing noise that put the fear of God into lower life forms like the ducks and geese. But thanks to our monthly newsletter, we learned that it's mostly bluff.

Their habits, I'm told, are similar to those of bears.

Experienced hikers and campers know that when you encounter a bear in the woods, and you're not in imminent danger, you don't run away. You back away slowly and deliberately. If you run, they will chase, and then you've got trouble.

Same, more or less, with swans. If you stand your ground, they will relent. They'll keep a close eye on you, watching for a threat to the nest. But they won't attack or peck or bite.

If you run away, though, a swan will follow, and maybe flap his wings. As long as records have been kept, the DNR has no record of a swan injuring a human.

To use the bear analogy again, hikers and campers accept the fact that you don't put yourself between a mother bear and her cub. Why is it, then, that when the animal in question is a swan, we feel justified in tormenting, traumatizing and even killing them?

C'mon folks. If we're supposed to be the superior species, why don't we act like it and find a harmonious solution that doesn't require taking the animal from its environment.

Tears and hugs

Bill, Keith and Joyce Wright mourn the closing of the Northville Pharmacy after 100 years in business.

Phil Jerome

An evolution on Main Street

Phil Jerome

Are old-fashioned Main Streets worth saving? Or is the demise of Main Street USA an economic inevitability?

Although the two questions would seem to be at direct odds, I'm tempted to answer them both in the affirmative.

What brings this on is the news that Northville Pharmacy owner Bill Wright has decided to call it quits.

As Reporter Steve Kellman wrote in a front page story in the June 21 edition of The Northville Record: "A century of pharmaceutical services at 134 E. Main St. ends Wednesday (June 23) as Northville Pharmacy owner Bill Wright closes his doors."

Wright had owned the business 14 years and was responsible for installing the popular soda fountain and ice cream parlor which had added another element to the charm of Northville's central business district.

Wright said his decision to close the pharmacy was symptomatic of the death of traditional downtowns at the hands of large retail chain stores. The K marts, Wal-Marts and Meijers of the world are tearing small towns apart, he said.

That traditional downtowns are an endangered species is hardly news. The threats facing Main Street USA have been chronicled in most major news magazines.

But that doesn't mean I like it. It depresses me to see one downtown merchant after another closing up shop in Northville. Brader's, Schrader's, Freydl's, the D&C, Northville Pharmacy. All these mainstays of Northville's central business district are no longer around — many of them after more than 100 years of service.

My heart tells me to try to stop it; my heart tells me to advocate measures to try to save traditional downtowns. And I'm optimistic enough to believe that it could be done. It would take a heavy commitment. It would be necessary to take zoning policy away from local control and turn it over to an automatic but enlightened regional zoning authority.

But, realistically, that just isn't going to happen. Not as long as government needs tax base to finance its operations and not as long as the numerous governmental entities continue fighting for more than their fair share of the pie.

Besides, the result would be artificial. It would be the result of governmental regulation instead of the free enterprise system.

So instead of attempting to wage an uphill fight to preserve traditional downtowns, perhaps it's better to let the marketplace decide.

If there's more parking, more selection and lower prices on the outskirts of traditional downtowns, then perhaps those areas deserve to win out in the end.

As to the second question — is the demise of Main Street USA an economic inevitability? — the answer might be yes, but only so far as "traditional" downtowns are concerned.

Main Street will survive but it will take on a different form . . . it will find a different niche in the marketplace and transform itself.

Freydl's will move out, but John and Toni Genitti's Samuel Little Theater will move in. Schrader's will shut its doors but La Belle Provence and the Atrium will take its place.

The transformation of the traditional Main Street seems to be taking place in Northville at the present time . . . and it's a fascinating process to watch.

Public hearing set on designs for park

By JAN JEFFRES
Staff Writer

What Iva Fuerst, a farmer turned millionaire, wanted for her hometown of Novi is on its way to becoming a reality.

Tuesday night, the Parks and Recreation Commission is holding a public hearing for designs it's produced for the Ella Mae Power Park, behind the Novi Civic Center.

If all goes well, construction will begin this fall and the playing fields and other amenities will be open to the public in June 1994, Parks and Recreation Director Dan Davis said.

Input on the park is sought from all Novi residents, but especially from those living in the adjacent Orchard Ridge subdivision.

"It's going to impact them (Orchard Ridge) residents maybe a little bit greater than anybody else in the city. We did a direct mailing to them. We're going to be extremely sensitive to what their thoughts and feelings are," Davis added.

"It's just a public hearing. Nothing's concrete. We're always open for any comments or suggestions anyone might have."

On display at the hearing will be an architect's rendering showing three new youth softball fields, a building which would combine an outdoor picnic shelter with indoor restrooms and a small concession stand, an asphalt basketball court, handicapped accessible playground equipment, a new 235-space parking lot, walking trails and woodlands nature paths on 10 acres of land.

The proposed ballfields are located southeast of the existing softball fields and the concession stand is sandwiched between them.

While the project has not been put out to bid, Davis estimates the work will cost about $400,000. The city has $386,000 in hand from Iva Fuerst.

"We've got the money. We might as well spend it," he said.

The public hearing will be held at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the Novi Civic Center.

The Power Park blueprint will then move to the planning commission for preliminary and final site plan approval. From there, construction of the project will be placed out for bids.

Fuerst, who used to sell her home-grown produce from a roadside stand, with her sister Ruby in 1974 sold the school district and city the farm land southeast of Taft and Ten Mile roads that Novi High School, Novi Civic Center, the library and Power Park now stand on.

Fuerst died in January 1991 at age 93, leaving an uncontested estate of about $850,000. Most of the money was left to the city and the school district, with the instructions that the city's share be used to improve Power Park.

A trial may be held this fall to determine whether the city and school district will also benefit from bequests made in Ruby Fuerst's first will or whether the bulk of her $1 million will go to her caretaker, as specified in a second will.

Bill in state House would raise fines for deadbeats

Deadbeat fathers and mothers will face stiffer child support obligations under legislation reported out of the House Judiciary Committee last week.

State Rep. Bill Bullard, R-Milford, is the sponsor of legislation which would amend the Support and Visitation Enforcement Act to require that interest be added to unpaid child support payments. Bullard's bill is labeled as House Bill 4276.

"An order for child support payment in a divorce judgment is no different than any other financial obligation," Bullard said. "Interest should be charged on back payments of child support, as with any other overdue payment."

The bill specifies that a 10-percent interest charge will be added to unpaid child support payments the first of every January and June, Bullard explained. The bill also provides that a support order in divorce judgment will also be required to specifically state that interest will be added to support payments that are past due.

"Other states have similar laws for attaching interest to child support arrearage," said Bullard. This bill codifies a Michigan Appeals Court decision which held that statutory interest must be added to delinquent child support orders entered after July 6, 1987. Several years ago the Legislature also stated that a support judgment was just like any other financial obligation, contained in a court judgment. If you are past due, you are going to owe interest."

The bill now goes to the full House for consideration.

Michigan's Best Community Newspaper . . . Again

That's right, again. For the second consecutive year the Michigan Press Association bestowed its prestigious 'Michigan's Best' Award on the Northville Record in its 1992 Better Newspaper Contest. (For weekly newspapers with 5,000 to 15,000 circulation). And we're even prouder to be a two-time winner of the 'Michigan's Best' award than we were the first time we received the honor in the 1991 Better Newspaper Contest. And here's another thing that hasn't changed. Our greatest satisfaction continues to come from being an integral part of the Northville community . . . giving you the type of newspaper you want and need. In other words, we're proud to be your hometown paper.

Aussie wines packed with bold flavors

In the 1980s, Americans became infatuated with everything Australian. With the exception of vegamite, we really took to Crocodile Dundee, Greg Norman and the America's Cup yachting challenge the Aussies gave us in the waters off Perth in Western Australia.

We even began to drink their wines and started throwing shrimp on the "barbie" which is really something the Aussies don't do!

Australian wines fit the mold of the native Aussie — flavorful and bold with no holds barred. While California winemakers were trying to tame their wines, making them more elegant and food-worthy, the Aussies were trying to figure out how to pack in more flavor using heavy toasted barrels and malolactic fermentation.

However, it's fair to say that in the past two years, the 1980s enthusiasm for wines from The Land Down Under has diminished — until now.

Black Opal has emerged as the current, most innovative Australian wine producer causing a wave of enthusiasm not seen since the 1980s. The wine packaging is creative, and the wines are loaded with flavor and fragrant oak.

Australia grows grapes and makes wine in each of its six states and two territories, with the major growing areas located across the southern one-third of Australia, in the states of New South Wales, South Australia, Victoria and Western Australia.

In the southern hemisphere, harvest begins in January in the warmer wine regions and continues into May in the cooler regions. It is best to keep this in mind when planning a trip to the Australian viticultural areas.

In this land of open spaces, approximately the size of the United States, the Australian wine industry has strong links with European wine traditions since most of their grape varieties came from the great vineyards of France and Germany.

Five years ago, the Black Opal brand of Australian wines was launched in the United States by Australian Benchmark Wines Inc. The range of wines includes three whites — semillon, sauvignon blanc and dry riesling — and three reds — cabernet sauvignon, cabernet-merlot and shiraz.

Winemaker and Black Opal brand owner Mark Cashmore conceived and launched his idea of a "lifestyle" white wine known as a Black Marlin. According to Cashmore, it is the ideal accompaniment to seafood, pasta and a variety of lighter contemporary cuisine. The wine is a blend of chardonnay, semillon and sauvignon blanc marketed in a bottle with the image of a marlin affixed with a ceramic printing process.

The third in the "black" trilogy is now available in Michigan. Black Silk is a white wine with a secret varietal blend. The package showcases a 360-degree ceramic design that strongly evokes association with today's cuisine.

According to Don Barry, president of Australian Benchmark Wines Inc., "the objective was to produce a wine in step with today's health-conscious environment."

The packaging shows off the industry's most innovative marketing style, and the wine is fruity and delicious.

WINE SELECTIONS OF THE WEEK

Black Opal presents a broad spectrum of wines pleasing to every palate. The quality/price ratio across the board is hard to beat.

● 1990 Opal Sauvignon Blanc ($9) is a perfect summertime wine. Try it with seafood salads and enjoy its attractive oak and grapefruit accents.

● 1989 Black Opal Dry Semillon ($9) shows vanilla oak over fresh figs in a full bodied style to accompany grilled seafood.

● 1992 Black Opal Chardonnay ($11) is cast perfectly in the role of matching the American wine drinker's concept and preference for an oakier version of this popular varietal.

● 1989 Black Opal Cabernet Sauvignon ($11) boasts blackberry and black cherry fruit with balanced oak and hefty tannins to accompany a wide variety of charbroiled meats.

Foreign fare has veggie flair

By TERSHIA D'ELGIN
Copley News Service

Ethnic cuisine provides steady inspiration to many fine vegetarian cooks. Dishes originating in North Africa, the Middle East, South America and the Orient have been a colorful, tasty influence on meatless cooking in this country.

First, they are exotic. Ingredients that are less familiar to the traditional American palate create an instant curiosity. Also, people in other countries can prepare what we consider everyday ingredients in fresh, surprising ways. Consider the presence of Morocco's couscous oiled by tumeric, filo doughs and tabouleh from Greece and Israel and the abundant burritos and tacos in our vegetarian diets.

With all the Japanese, Thai food and stir fries, the impact of the Far East seems pervasive, too. But we in the United States have just begun to tap the wealth of Oriental food heritage.

Cursory examination of Third World Cuisine reflects healthier regimens. In some cases, to be sure, food is scarce and the people undernourished. But what they are eating is, in many cases, better for them than an American diet laced with additives and fat. Fewer preservatives, less fat and fewer calories characterize many of these far-flung confections.

One has only to read about studies of heart disease that include the Chinese to recognize the wisdom of cooking that relies heavily on grains and vegetables.

Further, de-emphasizing protein and eliminating meat corresponds to the new food pyramid which is composed of grains. Embracing ethnic fare, we realize this means not just rice and potatoes, but includes a far broader spectrum. We can explore all kinds of beans and legumes as well as grains like millet, cracked wheat, quinoa and amaranth.

Cooking from many other countries uses less butter and other saturated fats. The use of olive oil, canola oil, sesame oil and nut oils significantly lightens a cuisine. Some studies indicate that substituting lower saturated fats in cooking can influence metabolism as well as lower the risk of heart disease.

In India, an ancient system of health care called ayurvedic medicine goes so far as to designate three main body types and prescribe emphasis on different foods to maintain optimum weight and health. Perfect Health by Dr. Deepak Chopra (Harmony) shows how choosing whether to eat pungent foods or mild foods can determine how well you digest and metabolize your calories.

It's certainly just as possible to plump up on vegetarian cooking. To avoid it, use the precepts of meatless cooking that require more roughage, and cooking that relies less on butter and other animal fat and more on lighter, low-saturated fats; you'll feel purer, more healthy and lighter.

The Cole Group's book Elegant Low-Calorie Cooking (available from the publisher, 4415 Sonoma Highway, Santa Rosa, CA 95409, 800-959-2717, or your local bookseller, $9.95) focuses specifically on weight control with sensible recommendations for modifying your diet, exercise and attitude.

It cautions against high-fat foods, sodium and sugar and provides easy-to-read charts on optimum weight and calorie burning. Many of the recipes are vegetarian.

With both vegetarianism and weight control, personal psychology is key. You must have a commitment to both meatlessness and good health. Nothing encourages this commitment like scrumptious food.

Impressions of vegetarian cooking that produces big, brown vats of lifeless grain have turned many potential vegetarians on their heels. However, in the last few years, there have been many imaginative health-conscious cookbooks with attractive vegetarian recipes.

The Greens Cook Book by Deborah Madison (Bantam), The Enchanted Broccoli Forest by Molly Katzen (Ten Speed Press) and Friendly Foods by Brother Ron Pickarski, O.S.M. (Ten Speed Press) are great resources for meat-shy gourmets.

Relying on foreign solutions to the protein issue is an adventure. There are endless adaptations for tofu, nuts, cheeses, grains and legumes. And though often a labor-intensive exercise, food-combining along the line of Francis Moore Lappe's classic Diet for a Small Planet provides plenty of protein. Combinations of corn, beans and some dairy sustain many communities south of our border.

How have vegetarian cooks in other parts of the world overcome the need for meat, not just as a source of nutrients, but for flavor? Creating "body" in different dishes is a matter of some experimentation. Sherry and other wines and vinegars add substance; different chilies and peppers, dried tomatoes, brewer's yeast, hijiki (Japanese seaweed), seeds, ginger and coconut milk are some options. Roasting ingredients like garlic or dried herbs before adding them imparts more flavor.

Some people feel that meals without meat are less satisfying because they seem less substantial. Knowledgeable vegetarian cooks overcome this problem by centering meals around heavier foods. For example, in the recipes from Elegant Low-Calorie Cooking that follow, you'll find the eggplant is a sturdy substitute for meat. The black beans are as rich and powerful as any beef chili.

Eggplant and zucchini are ideal for stuffing and baking. You can then serve them as entrees or side dishes.

This Mediterranean-style stuffed eggplant carries the flavors of tomato, garlic, olive oil and peppers. Steam, bake or blanch the eggplant before using so that the texture is as soft as the filling. This vegetable dish will keep two days in the refrigerator before baking if tightly covered with plastic wrap.

MEDITERRANEAN STUFFED EGGPLANT

- 2 medium-size eggplants
- 2 teaspoons olive oil, plus oil for greasing pan
- ¼ cup dry sherry
- ¼ cup chopped onion
- 3 to 4 cloves garlic, minced
- 1 cup coarsely chopped plum tomatoes
- 1 green onion (including greens), chopped
- ¼ cup seeded and chopped bell pepper
- ¼ cup black olives, chopped
- 1 teaspoon minced fresh basil
- ¼ teaspoon oregano
- Herbal salt substitute and freshly ground pepper, to taste
- ¼ to ½ cup whole-wheat bread crumbs, plus finely ground whole-wheat bread crumbs, for topping
- ¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese
- Chopped fresh basil or parsley, for garnish

Preheat oven to 350 F. Slice egg-plants in half lengthwise. Place eggplant, cut side down, on an aluminum-foil-lined baking sheet. Brush outside of eggplant with olive oil. Bake until knife inserted into skin pierces easily (about 20 minutes), then remove from oven and let cool.

With sharp-edged spoon, scoop out insides of eggplants into bowl. Place eggplant shells in lightly greased baking dish, wedging them together so they stay upright.

In skillet, heat sherry and saute onion until onion is soft but not browned. Add garlic, tomatoes, green onion, bell pepper, olives, basil, oregano, salt substitute and pepper and saute for 5 minutes, stirring frequently.

Remove from heat and stir in bread crumbs and Parmesan cheese, adding enough bread crumbs to form a thick filling.

Stuff filling into eggplant shells and top with finely ground bread crumbs. Season, if desired, with salt substitute and pepper.

Bake stuffed eggplants until browned and bubbling (about 25 minutes). Serve hot, garnished with basil or parsley. Yields 4 servings.

A favorite dish at Green's at Fort Mason restaurant in San Francisco, this Southwestern chili has been influenced by South American cuisine. Black beans are savory and hold their shape while cooking. In this recipe they are blended with cilantro, grated onion and low-calorie cheese for a meal in one dish.

BLACK BEAN CHILI WITH CILANTRO

- ¼ cup dry sherry
- 1 tablespoon olive oil
- 2 cups chopped onion
- ¼ cup chopped celery
- ¼ cup chopped carrot
- ¼ cup seeded and chopped red bell pepper
- 4 cups cooked black beans (approximately 3 ¼ cups raw)
- 2 cups Vegetarian Stock (recipe follows) or water
- 2 tablespoons minced garlic
- 1 cup chopped tomatoes
- 2 teaspoons ground cumin
- 4 teaspoons chili powder, or to taste

Flavors of fish prove you are what you eat

Mary Brady

As you're reading this I'll be attending "fish school" in Boston.

Naturally, the learning experience will be the topic of a future article. In a recent newsletter from Foley's, the head fish-monger, Mike the harvester," he says. "The oceans contain multiple fishing grounds that are like vineyards. The flavor differences between competing fishing grounds are substantial and are attributable to the differences in 'feed' that the fish diet on."

For example, cod from George's Bank taste better than that from the Browns Bank, and mussels from Snug Harbor are plumper and richer tasting than mussels from the Gulf of Maine. The age-old adage "you are what you eat" definitely applies to fish.

Taste comparison sessions will be presented to point out the differences. At the end of the seminar, Tom is meeting me and we'll spend the Fourth of July with my cousins in Provincetown where they own a restaurant. I promise to eat lots of fish.

Speaking of wine... we've started mini wine tastings for anyone on our staff which are held once a month, usually on a Monday afternoon for a couple of hours. Last week we sampled some Oregon wines that were outstanding. These tastings are not mandatory. Staffers just show up if they want.

The turnout was great. I commend my waitstaff for giving up a beautiful sunny afternoon to augment their wine wisdom. We had a fun time and learned a lot to boot. I think they finally believe me — the more you know about a product, the easier it is to sell.

Ever since attending the Sterling Vineyard's wine class a few months back, I've definitely paid more attention to wine service. So does everyone else. In fact, we're chomping at the bit to gain more information and even considering a captain's list of higher end wines for those of you that have asked. Please bear with us as we research (the fun part). Maybe we'll do a tasting some evening to introduce the wines to you.

Sometimes I get a gut feeling and it is all wrong. Other times, it is all right. Well, the pit of my stomach said to feature a vegetarian entree every night, while my mind said "no way, that will never sell." Yeah.

I was accurate in my assessment that vegetarianism is not just for Hari Krishnas. We've offered everything from a vegetable cassoulet to red lentil burritos. They've all been great. I've tried very hard to keep the fat content down and the flavor up. So far, so good.

I'll sign off with these words of wisdom for my wonderful team. Thanks for making it possible for us to feel comfortable with taking some time away from the restaurant. Have a wonderful few days over the Fourth. (We're closing two days in a row for the first time ever). And remember, I've got eyes behind my head.

"It's flavor depends on the nutrients in the soil, sunlight, the tidal movement and

1/4 teaspoon oregano
1/4 cup chopped cilantro
2 tablespoons honey
2 tablespoons tomato paste
Yogurt, grated onion and grated low-calorie Monterey jack cheese, for garnish

In large, heavy pot, heat sherry and oil and saute onions until soft but not browned.

Add celery, carrot and bell pepper and saute 5 minutes, stirring frequently.

Add remaining ingredients except garnishes and bring to a boil. Lower heat and simmer for 45 minutes to 1 hour, covered. Chili should be thick with all water absorbed. Garnish with grated onion, cheese and a dollop of yogurt. Yields 6 to 8 servings.

Every low-calorie diet can include an occasional treat. This recipe calls for a rich French cheese, but you can make a softer quiche with less calories by substituting farmer cheese for the Gruyere.

Onion tarts are very common in French bakeries, and the secret of the caramelized onions is in the slow cooking.

Once baked, this tart can be frozen.

FRENCH ONION TART WITH MUSHROOMS & HERBS

2 teaspoons safflower oil
1/4 cup dry sherry
2 cups thinly sliced onions, preferably sweet onions
1/4 cup sliced mushrooms
1 teaspoon minced fresh tarragon (optional)
1/4 cup non-fat milk
1/4 teaspoon grated nutmeg
1/4 teaspoon white pepper
2 eggs
1 whole-wheat pie shell (store-bought), unbaked
1/4 cup grated Gruyere cheese

Preheat oven to 400 F. Heat oil and sherry in skillet — add onions. Saute 20 minutes, at medium heat, stirring frequently. Onions will become very soft, almost mushy, then begin to lightly brown.

Add mushrooms and tarragon (if used); cook 3 minutes. Remove from heat.

In small bowl, beat milk, nutmeg, pepper and eggs.

Spoon onion mixture into pie shell, sprinkle with cheese and carefully pour milk-egg mixture on top of them.

Bake tart until it sets and becomes lightly browned (about 4 minutes).

Let it cool slightly and slice into 8 wedges. Serve hot or cold. Yields 8 servings.

Asian flavors blended with the subtle texture of noodles create a spicy pasta salad. The pasta in this recipe can be found in most health-food or Japanese stores.

Szechuan Noodles tastes best when left to marinate for at least 45 minutes before serving, although they can be stored for up to 48 hours.

Add peanuts (a good source of protein) at the last minute so they hold their crunchy consistency.

SZECHUAN NOODLES

12 ounces cooked Japanese udon noodles
2 tablespoons grated fresh ginger
5 ounces sliced water chestnuts
2 cups sliced mushrooms
2 tablespoons chopped peanuts
1/4 cup dark sesame oil
5 cloves garlic, minced, or more to taste

6 green onions (including green part), minced
1 to 2 teaspoons cayenne pepper, or to taste
1/4 cup low-sodium tamari or soy sauce
1/4 teaspoon honey

Lettuce leaves, for lining bowl (optional)

Place pasta in bowl. Mix together remaining ingredients except lettuce and toss with pasta.

Let marinate for 45 minutes before serving.

Serve in lettuce-lined bowl, if desired. Yields 8 servings.

You'll find in this recipe many of the subtle seasonings of the island of Jamaica. Fish steaks (such as swordfish, salmon or shark) are simmered with green onions, tomatoes, red bell pepper and spices.

Traditionally, this dish is served with cooked rice or crusty bread.

JAMAICAN ESCOVEICH FISH

4 fish steaks
2 teaspoons olive oil
1 bunch green onions (including greens), chopped
2 large tomatoes, chopped
1 red bell pepper, seeded and chopped

1 teaspoon herbal salt substitute
1/4 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
1/4 cup white wine vinegar
1/4 teaspoon dried thyme
1 tablespoon honey

Wash fish steaks and pat dry with paper towels. Carefully remove and discard any bones you find.

In skillet, heat oil; add fish and brown quickly on both sides at high heat. Add green onions, tomatoes and bell pepper. Cover and cook 5 minutes.

Add remaining ingredients and continue cooking, covered, for 15 more minutes.

Serve immediately. Yields 4 servings.

Pasta gets a summer makeover

For great-tasting, summer-easy suppers, think pasta — but with a seasonal switch in strategy.

Sidestep the long-simmered sauces of winter and go for light, fresh and fast pasta toppers starring the season's finest vegetables.

Two crowd-pleasing new recipes from the Pace Picante Sauce Test Kitchens make the most of summer's bounty and go from start to serving in less than 30 minutes.

Brightly colored, boldly seasoned and easy to make just as mellow or spicy as you wish, they take their garden-fresh flavor and lively jalapeno heat from mild, medium or hot Picante Sauce.

Pairing perfectly with pasta and a wide range of savory seasonings, the versatile sauce makes a super starting point for pasta suppers. And at only 5 fat-free calories per flavor-packed tablespoon for the Pace sauce variety, you can pour on all you wish.

Raid the garden or the produce department for Picante Four-Pepper Pasta. Inspired by popular Mediterranean flavors, it combines onion, garlic and seasonings with red, green and yellow bell peppers — enhanced by the picante sauce's tongue-tingling jalapenos. A splash of balsamic or red wine vinegar and a sprinkling of parmesan cheese completes the dish.

Pronto Pasta Picante takes its flavor cue from deep in the heart of Texas. Teaming the cook's choice of pasta with tomatoes, onion, ripe olives, garlic, picante sauce and seasonings, it takes a last-minute sprinkling of Monterey Jack cheese and cilantro for added Tex-Mex appeal.

Serve either recipe with crusty bread or bread sticks and a tossed salad for a delicious dinner in nearly no time.

Makes 4 to 6 servings.

PRONTO PASTA PICANTE

1 medium onion, quartered lengthwise and thinly sliced crosswise
3 cloves garlic, minced
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
4 medium ripe tomatoes, seeded and chopped (3 cups)

1 green pepper, chopped
1/4 cup Pace Picante Sauce
1 can (2 1/2 ounces) sliced ripe olives, drained
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon ground cumin
1/4 teaspoon chili powder

8 ounces mostaccioli, rotini or other favorite pasta
1/4 to 1 cup (2 to 4 ounces) shredded monterey jack cheese, as desired

Chopped cilantro (optional)

Cook onion and garlic in oil in 10-inch skillet until onion is tender but not brown. Add tomatoes, green pepper, picante sauce, olives, salt, cumin and chili powder. Bring to a boil; reduce heat and simmer, stirring frequently, 10 to 12 minutes or until peppers are tender and sauce has thickened.

While sauce simmers, cook pasta according to package directions; drain. Spoon sauce over pasta; toss. Top with cheese and, if desired, cilantro and serve with additional picante sauce. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

PICANTE FOUR-PEPPER PASTA

8 ounces mostaccioli, rotini, or other favorite pasta

1 large onion, quartered lengthwise and thinly sliced crosswise

1 large green pepper, cut into short, thin strips

1 large red pepper, cut into short, thin strips

1 large yellow pepper, cut into thin strips

1 tablespoon minced garlic

2 tablespoons olive oil

1 teaspoon dried basil leaves

1/4 teaspoon dried oregano leaves

1/4 cup Pace Picante Sauce

2 tablespoons balsamic vinegar or one tablespoon red wine vinegar plus 1/4 teaspoon sugar

1/4 cup grated parmesan cheese

Cook pasta according to package directions; drain. While pasta cooks, cook onion, peppers and garlic in oil in large skillet over medium-high heat, stirring frequently, 5 minutes. Sprinkle basil and oregano over vegetables; continue cooking, stirring frequently, until vegetables are tender, 6 to 7 minutes.

Add picante sauce and vinegar; cook and stir 2 minutes. Spoon pepper mixture over pasta; sprinkle with cheese. Toss. Serve with additional cheese, if desired, and additional picante sauce.

Safety counts during picnic season

Summertime brings with it an increased risk of foodborne illness due to the proliferation of bacteria at higher air temperatures, as well as the use of alternative methods of cooking food, most notably the barbecue.

According to the Michigan Department of Agriculture, these simple rules of food safety should be applied to barbecuing to prevent any illness or discomfort that might spoil a summer meal.

- When transporting food from the grocery store to home, or to a picnic site, keep it cold to minimize the growth of bacteria. Pack meat and other perishables in coolers containing ice or cold packs.

- Keep the cooler in the shade and avoid opening the lid too often. If you are bringing a lot of beverages, use a separate cooler for the bottles or cans.

- Marinate meat and poultry in a glass dish in the refrigerator not on the counter. Reserve some marinade for basting and be sure it hasn't touched raw meat. And don't reuse leftover marinade used to baste meat unless it is boiled.

- If you precook meat, grill it immediately. If it won't be grilled right away, cook it until it is done. Bacteria can proliferate in partially cooked meat.

Rice stakes its claim as our amazing grain

On a hot, humid summer day, the last thing most of us want to do when we get home from work is cook. But you've got to eat, and Marie Simmons, author of "Rice, the Amazing Grain — Great Rice Dishes for Every Day" (Henry Holt, April 1993, $14.95/paperback) has a solution — salads.

"Rice salads are simple, they add variety. I find rice — like pasta — a perfect canvas when I am feeling creative in the kitchen," she said. "At some time or other vegetables, meats, nuts, fruits, herbs and spices all find their way into the rice salad bowl. Add meat, fish or legumes and it becomes a delicious main dish; add just vegetables, and you have a tasty, convenient and healthy side dish."

Simmons was in the metro Detroit area recently to promote her book, and visited the Observer & Eccentric Livonia office. Anticipating her arrival, I made the two rice salads that were photographed for this article in the morning before leaving for work. The results were delicious.

Rice salad with chick-peas, feta and black olives, and summer rice salad didn't take long to make. You could make them in advance, though Simmons says she prefers making salads with a batch of freshly cooked rice.

"Rice that has been refrigerated gets hard," she said. "Heating the rice to room temperature by steaming in a foil packet at low temperature in the oven or heating in a microwavable container for two minutes in the microwave will soften the rice slightly. But the grains are never as moist and tender as when rice is freshly cooked and served at room temperature."

Simmons said rice salads that don't contain meats or dairy products can be made ahead of time and stored safely in a cool dark place like a kitchen cabinet for several hours and even overnight. Refrigerate perishable portions, and add them to the room-temperature rice before serving.

Here are a couple of time-saving tips that worked for me — chop and measure vegetables and rice the night before, and leave a pot with water to cook rice in on the stove before you leave for work. When you come home, hit the kitchen running and turn on the stove. Organize salad ingredients while water is boiling. When it's boiling, dump the pre-measured rice into the pot, and heed Simmons' advice.

"Just stir it once and forget it. I've come to the conclusion that people worry about rice. They keep wanting to check it, take off the lid, and stir it. Don't stir it."

White rice cooks in about 15 minutes; uncover the pot, and take it off the burner to cool. While it's cooling, whisk salad dressing ingredients. Then toss and serve.

Making rice salads is a good way to become familiar with this convenient, economical and versatile grain. Almost everyone has a box of rice in their kitchen cupboard, but if you're like me, you seldom reach for it.

Simmons' book, also contains recipes for soups, main dishes and desserts, and explains how to cook different kinds of rice. While reading the book I learned rice is a staple for more than half the world's population, but not the U.S., which is the 12th largest rice producing country, and second largest exporter in the world. We don't eat what we grow. Our rice consumption has doubled in the last decade to 22 pounds per person per year, but hardly compares to the average Burmese individual who consumes 500 pounds a year, or 1 1/4 pounds per day.

"People are learning to bring starches to the center of the plate," said Simmons. "Rice is a very good source of complex carbohydrates, and contains no fat, sodium or cholesterol. It's pure food in its purest form. With dietary authorities recommending that we get 50 to 60 percent of our calories from carbohydrates, rice has a big nutritional role to play. All varieties of rice contain valuable protein, vitamins and minerals."

For calorie counters, a half cup serving of rice equals 82 calories. Rice is good for you, and summer is a good time to discover what most of the world already knows. Reach into the back of your kitchen cupboard or look on the top shelf where there's a bag of brown rice that you keep meaning to cook, and get started.

Enjoy Mediterranean meals in a hurry

Great-tasting, healthful and convenient are the watchwords for right-for-today dinners. Nutrition, taste, and time-conscious cooks want easy-to-fix foods with fabulous flavors that fit the lighter, healthier way most of us are now trying to eat.

Two new recipes from home economists at Uncle Ben's were created with today's savvy cooks in mind. Each recipe teams bold Mediterranean flavors with new Uncle Ben's Country Inn Recipes Rice Dishes for delicious, low-fat dinners that can be brought to the table in about half an hour.

When prepared, the new rice dishes have all the great taste and wholesome country goodness of Uncle Ben's previous recipes, but they now have only 1/4 the fat.

Mediterranean Fish Fillets with Broccoli & White Cheddar Rice features the cook's choice of fish fillets topped with basil and Parmesan cheese. The fish bakes briefly while the Broccoli & White Cheddar Rice simmers to perfection in just 20 minutes.

Plum tomatoes and green onions, added just before serving, add bright color and flavor contrast to the rice, and lemon wedges add tangy-fresh taste to the fish.

Basil-Pepper Beef with Broccoli Rice Au Gratin begins with beef tenderloin slices coated with garlic, basil and pepper and quickly cooked in a skillet as the Broccoli Rice Au Gratin simmers. The beef is topped with bell peppers seasoned with a splash of balsamic vinegar, and chopped tomato brightens the creamy broccoli and 3-cheese rice dish. Ready to serve in short order, the satisfying dinner "weighs in" at only 272 calories per serving.

MEDITERRANEAN FISH FILLETS WITH BROCCOLI AND WHITE CHEDDAR RICE

1 package (4.9 ounces) Uncle Ben's Country Inn Recipes — Broccoli & White Cheddar Rice
4 (4-ounce) orange roughy or red snapper fillets or other favorite fish fillets
1/4 to 1/2 teaspoon dried basil leaves, crushed, as desired

4 teaspoons grated Parmesan cheese
2 plum tomatoes or 1 small tomato, diced
2 tablespoons thinly sliced green onion with top
Lemon wedges

Cook rice according to package directions. While rice simmers, preheat oven to 450°F. Place fish in 11 by 7-inch baking dish. Sprinkle evenly with basil and cheese. Bake fish 10 minutes per inch of thickness or until cooked through. Stir tomato and green onion into hot, cooked rice; serve alongside fish with lemon wedges. Makes 4 servings, 286 calories per serving.

BASIL-PEPPER BEEF WITH BROCCOLI RICE AU GRATIN

1 package (4.5 ounces) Uncle Ben's Country Inn Recipes — Broccoli Rice Au Gratin
4 (3-ounce) slices trimmed beef tenderloin, about 1/4-inch thick
2 cloves garlic, minced
1 1/2 teaspoons dried basil, crushed

1/4 teaspoon freshly cracked black pepper
Vegetable oil cooking spray
1 cup short, thin red and green bell pepper strips
1/2 cup beef broth
2 tablespoons balsamic vinegar
1 small tomato or 2 plum tomatoes, chopped

Cook rice according to package directions. While rice simmers, press garlic, basil and pepper into both sides of meat. Spray skillet with cooking spray; heat over medium heat. Add meat and cook about 3 minutes per side for medium-rare.

Remove meat from skillet and keep warm. Add peppers, broth and vinegar to skillet; cook and stir 4 minutes or until peppers are tender and most of liquid has evaporated, adding any accumulated meat juices during the last minute of cooking. Spoon pepper mixture over meat.

Stir tomato into rice; serve alongside meat. Makes 4 servings, 272 calories per serving.

Care must be taken with barbecue food

"The recent outbreak of 'e. coli' food poisoning in the Pacific Northwest reminds us of the importance of food handling practices," said Sylvia Treitman, home economist for the Oakland County Cooperative Extension Service.

"Food doesn't have to smell, or even taste bad, to be a source of food poisoning," she said. It is very important that food is handled safely. Personal hygiene is very important in the prevention of food-borne illnesses. "Careless handwashing can be a source of food poisoning," said Treitman. Hands should be lathered for at least 20 seconds and rinsed well before handling food.

Here are some other food safety tips:

● Teach children to wash hands after visiting the restroom and before eating or touching food.

● Cook all ground beef products until center is light gray and juices run clear (160 degrees).

● Keep all food preparation areas clean. Wash surfaces and utensils that touch raw meat thoroughly before next preparation.

● Keep raw hamburger in refrigerator only 1 to 2 days.

● Do not reuse same dish and utensil that were used with raw meat for other cooked food without rewashing thoroughly.

● Keep cold foods cold 40 degrees or less — keep hot food hot — (higher than 140 degrees).

● Do not thaw foods at room temperature.

For any other information on food safety, food and nutrition, or related areas call the Food and Nutrition Hotline, 858-0904, Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.
