City secures funding for barricaded bridge

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

Christmas has come early for Baseline Road residents, but they may not be able to open their new present until next summer.

City officials learned recently that the city has won state and federal funding to repair the closed Old Novi Road bridge that links Baseline and Griswold Avenue.

The 60-year-old bridge, which spans a narrow stretch of the Middle Rouge River, was closed to northbound traffic last September when city engineers determined that one of its concrete abutments was sliding into the stream. It was blocked to all vehicular traffic in June as the shifting continued.

Residents pleaded with city officials then to expedite its reopening, citing safety hazards presented by increased truck traffic in residential neighborhoods west of the bridge. Business owners protested that the closure would keep customers away.

City engineering firm McNeely & Lincoln submitted grant applications to the state's Critical Bridge Program in June, but Engineer Maureen Turner said then that the city may be low on the list of priorities for funding.

DPW Superintendent Ted Mapes received word July 19 from the Michigan Department of Transportation that the city had qualified for the funding. The state- and federally-funded grant program pays 95 percent of the construction costs to repair dangerous bridges. The city still must pay all design, inspection, materials testing and construction engineering costs.

Replacement of the concrete and steel bridge has been estimated to cost $135,000. City engineers plan to submit a more detailed project cost in September.

Engineer Bob Warner estimated a six-week construction timetable, and said construction should begin next spring or summer depending on the river's water level and acquisition of right-of-way agreements. He noted that the river will have to be straightened slightly as well, to correct water flow problems that contributed to erosion of the bridge's south abutment.

"We could be ready to go out for bids in December, but then of course you're out of building time," he said.

Budget meeting moved up by board

By MICHELLE HARRISON
Staff Writer

A Northville Board of Education study session set to review school budget priorities has been bumped up a week.

The board will meet in its study session at 7:30 p.m. Monday at Old Village School. The session had originally been set for Aug. 30.

Supt. Leonard Rezmierski said if the board continued to balance its every move on what the legislators are doing, then "everyone's hair will just get grayer."

"I don't believe we can do everything, but there are at least some things we can take care of," he said.

One item on the agenda will likely be to study the composite of responses submitted by members of the community at the board's invitation about what should be priority items in the general budget. Some big-ticket items include the pay-to-participate athletic and co-curricular and student assistance programs.

The board may have to wait before actually implementing whatever priorities it approves, though.

"I would hate to have something approved in August only to have to repeal it in the middle of September," Rezmierski said.

The district is still waiting to see how much it will receive from the State School Aid Act. Rezmierski said the latest he heard is that it may be late September before the Legislature approves any such funding.

Clean me, please

The Friends of Northville Parks and Recreation had a field day — of sorts — during the annual Ford Field cleanup Saturday. Volunteers worked from 8 a.m. to noon painting benches, scraping bleachers and cleaning weeds. They even removed a flag pole in the outfield of the ball yard. Twelve-year-old Casey Ronk, left, 13-year-old Charles Fan and 10-year-old Katie Last were among those lending a hand.

Council sets up tax abatement district for firm

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

The Northville City Council has taken a first step toward granting a tax abatement to R & D Enterprises of Northville Township, by establishing a plant rehabilitation district around the vacant Ford Valve Plant where the light industrial firm hopes to relocate.

But in another unforeseen impact of the state's decision to wipe out school funding by property taxes, this one positive for city hall, the abatement may no longer be needed.

City Manager Gary Word noted Tuesday that since the state Legislature voted last month to end property tax funding of Michigan schools, property tax bills will be cut in half anyway.

"The real purpose behind a tax abatement is no longer necessary," he said.

That may be a fortunate development for city tax revenues. When the council voted 5-0 to adopt a resolution establishing the plant rehabilitation district Aug. 2, it unknowingly opened the door to a potential property tax freeze on the vacant plant.

City officials had been operating under the assumption that R & D could ask for no more than a 50-percent tax abatement under Michigan Act 198 of 1974. But according to Gary Nelson, a tax abatement specialist with the Michigan Department of Commerce, firms that reuse existing buildings like the former Ford Valve Plant can qualify for a 100-percent abatement on any improvements put into the structure. The effect would be similar to a tax freeze on the property.

"It's to encourage them to move into old, run-down buildings and renovate them," Nelson said.

The city collected $16,295 in taxes off the vacant Ford plant in the past year, $8,637 of which went into city coffers or to pay off outstanding bonds on city projects like street repairs. The building has a State-Equalized Value of $515,000.

Nelson said the city's options once a plant rehabilitation district is granted are to approve or deny the requested tax abatement at the percentage requested. If the request is denied, the company can appeal the denial to the Michigan Tax Tribunal and take the matter out of the municipality's hands altogether.

"If they (city officials) don't want to give a tax abatement, they shouldn't set up a district," Nelson said. "There's no appeal of the district."

Where a municipality does have a say is in the number of years that the abatement runs. The city can limit

Manager barely wins renovation approval

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

After encouraging Northville City Manager Gary Word to proceed with an overhaul of City Hall to increase efficiency, the city council barely approved the award of $21,132 in bids to renovate the front office.

Council members voted 3-2 Aug. 2 to award $4,815 to Professional Interiors of Walled Lake for architectural work and $16,317 to Business Resources Inc. of Ann Arbor for furnishings. The combined amounts fall within the $26,500 authorized by the council in May.

Council Member Jerry Mittman, while agreeing to the need to make city hall operate more efficiently, questioned the wisdom of spending the money now before voting against the bid award motion Aug. 2. Council Member Paul Folino joined him in opposing the motion.

The work involves installation of four workstations in the main clerical office by the front door of city hall, and removal of a vault door to open up a storage space off the office.

"The vault door is so large, and takes up so much room, that it'll actually make room for four people to operate in there," said City Clerk Delphine Dudick. "It's a big room, really."

Word said the improvements are designed to improve the office's layout and allow its occupants to operate more effectively.

"We feel it'll free up the employees to better serve the public," he said.

The renovations are being designed by John Allen Architects, Inc. of Farmington. They came out of a larger planned overhaul of municipal offices that was scaled back due to the city's budget constraints.

The renovations should be completed within the next two months.

Chamber seeks Victorian Festival funds

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

With just over a month to go, the Northville Community Chamber of Commerce is kicking its Victorian Festival preparations into high gear.

But the fifth annual festival, scheduled for Sept. 17-19, may not be as big as its predecessors if the funds don't start rolling in.

"Donations are down considerably and they're especially down in the downtown area where the retailers benefit most," said Executive Director Laurie Marrs. "Unless we get more donations, it's going to be a lean festival and we certainly don't want that to happen. The whole community benefits from it."

Several local businesses and business owners have plunked down $200 or more for the festival, and earned the title of Gold Crown Sponsors. Those include Northville resident Bob Beson, owner of the Farmington Hills-based marketing services firm The Phoenix Group, who is sponsoring the return of the crowd-pleasing Great Wallendas high wire act to the festival; Comerica for sponsoring the festival's parade; Papa Romano's for its sponsorship of the outdoor cafe; and University of Michigan Health Centers for bringing back Dr. Rudy the Medicine Man "so he can spruce up his wagon and get all his remarkable roundies ready," Marrs said.

Free horse and carriage rides will be provided by Community Federal Credit Union, NBD, Shopping Center Market and Elizabeth's Bridal Manor. The former Northville Trolley will return from its new home in Wyandotte for the occasion, thanks to a contribution from Ambler Enterprises. Bright Bar Steel Co. and MaunCentre each are bringing a clown to town, while Michigan Bell is sponsoring a dulcimer act.

The Northville Record will host this year's Crow's Nest information booth at the corner of Main and Center, and the Northville Arts Commission has lent funds to help publicize the event.

The chamber still seeks patrons for its annual Victorian Ball and for entertainment acts like jugglers and musical groups. Marrs noted that only eight of the 60-odd downtown merchants had contributed to the event by the end of last week.

Last year's Victorian Festival cost about $18,000 to book the acts, rent the equipment, and advertise on radio and in print, Marrs said.

Donations to the festival itself go directly toward the festival, she added, pointing out that the Victorian Ball is the only festival event that also serves as a fund-raiser for the chamber.

Injured boy improves after 7 Mile accident

Injuries a 9-year-old Northville Township boy sustained in a Monday evening accident weren't quite as bad as originally diagnosed.

Northville Township Police Officer Matthew Mayes said the boy was listed in critical condition after being flown by Med Flight Helicopter to the University of Michigan-Mott Hospital following the 6:20 p.m. accident.

On Tuesday his condition was upgraded to fair. He had no broken bones, but doctors thought he might have had a mild concussion, Mayes said.

The accident occurred when the boy's father, a 32-year-old township resident, failed to yield for a west-bound Seven Mile Road motorist as he turned left onto Silver Springs. Police were not releasing the name of the father until the mother of the child had been contacted.

The child's name is not being released due to his underage status.

The driver of the second car, Patrick Sullivan of Wixom, had his two children, ages 6 and 7, as passengers in his car. One of the children bumped his head and was treated and released at the scene. No other injuries were reported.

The accident is still under investigation, said Mayes. The township man said a van waiting to turn left into the Highland Lakes Shopping Center had blocked his view.

Police are looking for a nurse who was one of the first to stop and help at the accident scene.

"We would like to find out her name so we can send her a thank you," Mayes said.

Board omits gang insignia clause

By MICHELLE HARRISON
Staff Writer

Language restricting students from wearing what might be perceived as gang insignia was omitted from a revised Student Code of Conduct approved by Northville Board of Education members Monday night.

Board members had earlier reviewed a clause in the code which would have prohibited students from wearing or possessing any "clothing, jewelry, symbol or other thing that may be reasonably perceived by any student, teacher or administrator as evidence or membership in or affiliation with any gang."

Secretary Glenna Davis suggested the change at the board's policy subcommittee meeting Aug. 3.

"I think if you focus on the symbols you're doing a disservice," she said. "We need to address gang behavior. The signs may really just be innocent — a teen statement. People can really get bent out of shape (over teen dress). Kids will just be kids."

For example, Davis said if she wore some Egyptian jewelry would people think she was in a gang because it was different?

Treasurer Richard Brown agreed, saying that the outward signs are only secondary to the actions of a gang.

"I've lived through some periods where kids have really dressed strangely," Davis said. "... I would rather have the English department deal with symbolism than us. If we're looking at a student's outward appearance we're pre-judging."

"Kids really want to be judged for their inner self and they'll go to extremes with the outside."

Brown added if a group of kids at the high school all wore skulls, they should only be considered disruptive if they were actually causing problems.

"Just because some kid comes in wearing a skull earring why does that have to mean he's being disruptive, and it's not because he likes to wear funky jewelry?" Davis asked.

The board decided to revise the Student Code of Conduct after hearing reports that gangs were moving into suburban areas. Supt. Leonard Reznierski maintains there is no gang problem in the Northville school district, but thought it best to have a policy dealing with the issue.

The new clause regarding gang activity reads: "A student shall not commit any act, verbal or non-verbal, in furtherance of the interests of any gang or gang activity, including, but not limited to, (a) soliciting others for membership in any gang or gang related activity, (b) requesting any person to pay protection or otherwise intimidating or threatening any person, (c) committing any other illegal act or violation of School District rules or policies, or (d) inciting other students to act with physical violence on any persons."

"The term gang... means a group of two or more persons whose purposes or activities include the commission of illegal acts or violations of school district rules or policies."

The penalty for violation of the policy ranges from administrative intervention to expulsion.

Another new provision in the Student Code deals with trespassing and loitering. This would prohibit students from being on school property except at authorized times.

A second, and final, reading of the new code is expected to be approved at the Aug. 23 board meeting.

A city police officer noticed a broken window in a car parked on Morgan Circle just before 3 a.m. Aug. 7. The car had been parked there since 7 p.m. the night before. Damage in that case was estimated at $100.

TRESPASSING ON LAKE SUCCESS: City police charged two pairs of fishermen with trespassing on Lake Success Aug. 6. Two 23-year-old men, one from Garden City and the other from Hudson, were ticketed at 2:25 p.m. Two Livonia youths, 17 and 18, were cited at 2:50 p.m. after police saw them leaving the lake with fishing rods. They told police a friend had said it was all right to fish there, but they had no formal permission.

BARBIES LEFT BEHIND: The owner of Country Basket, 137 E. Main St., turned four Barbie dolls in "assorted colors" over to city police July 29. The dolls apparently had been left behind by a small girl who was in the store with her mother, but they had not returned to claim them.

Anyone wishing to claim them can call the Northville City police at 349-1234 with a more detailed description.

FENDER BENDER: City police cited a 17-year-old Lake Angelus girl for failing to stop within an assured clear distance ahead, after she drove into the back of another car on westbound Seven Mile Road at 7:45 p.m. Aug. 7. The cars were at Seven Mile's intersection with Edward Hines Drive.

Citizens with information about the above incidents are urged to call Northville City Police at 349-1234 or Northville Township Police at 349-9400.

Patience is a necessary virtue if you teach driver's education

By MICHELLE HARRISON
Staff Writer

You have to be a saint to be a driver's education instructor, according to Northville High School principal Thomas Johnson, Northville High School principal.

Harry Rosinski, a driving instructor for Northville High School, would agree. Instructors have to deal with motion sickness, abrupt stopping and starting and occasional danger during the couple hundred miles they endure each day.

"You're never relaxed," Rosinski said. "You are always driving. You never know when you'll have to hit the brakes. Some things happen so fast."

"You are never not driving. You're certainly not looking at the scenery."

Both Rosinski and fellow Northville driving instructor Jim Daniel agree they've hit every bump in Northville, Novi and Livonia since the session began. Rosinski, who has been a driving instructor for 19 years for Northville schools, taught only in the last summer session this year while Daniel taught both summer driving sessions. Daniel has been teaching students how to drive for four years.

"I felt it was one of the most beneficial things I could do with students," said Rosinski, a teacher consultant for Northville's special education program. "I believe in safety . . . this is a beneficial course in the high school that you immediately see the results from."

Daniel said he became an instructor because he was concerned that the leading cause of death among 16- through 24-year-olds is traffic accidents.

"We figure if we can get them past the age of 24 they have a pretty good chance," Rosinski said.

Another statistic the instructors warn their students about is that one out of three of them will be pulled over by a police officer within their first year of driving.

Before coming to Northville, Daniel taught at a private driving school. Both instructors agree the public schools have a far better driver's education program.

"I've never seen a student able enough to take a car out by themselves after only two driving sessions," Rosinski said.

Daniel said very few programs would hold up to the standards set in Northville. Students have to complete 30 hours of class time and spend six hours behind the wheel.

The instructors use a variety of teaching methods, including bringing in speakers such as Trooper Richard Rule, a DARE officer with the Michigan State Police; John Foley, a former Northville High School graduate who was involved in a car accident; and Albert Camp, a CSX railroad engineer who works out of the Plymouth yard.

"From the feedback I've gotten they (students) have really enjoyed (the speakers)," Daniel said.

Both instructors teach from the "Drive Right" booklet.

"It's a pretty standard book," Rosinski said. "We hit upon everything a driver should know. We give tests, lectures, show videos. They also take a practice Secretary of State test."

In Daniel's class, students also review articles on different aspects of the automobile.

Rosinski's students fill out logs, turning them into projects that deal with vehicles, driver safety, and consumer awareness within the motor industry.

Instruction for the teachers themselves has changed, too. In the past 20 years.

Rosinski took three classes from Wayne State University while Daniel completed an eight credit-hour program from Eastern Michigan University.

"I don't think as many people want to get certified these days because that's well over $1,000 in tuition there," Daniel said.

"There are easier ways to make money," Rosinski said. "Most of the retired (instructors) find some other type of summer work."

And some instructors just reach their stress level and decide to call it quits, he added.

In his 20 years of instructing, Rosinski has been involved in one accident while teaching a student how to drive. Driving down Main Street in Northville, Rosinski pointed to a bar and told the students that they should always be careful when driving by bars because of the potential danger of drunk drivers.

"That no sooner came out of my mouth when some guy coming out of the bar threw it into reverse and drove into us," Rosinski said. "We were in the wrong place at the wrong time."

Nobody was injured in the accident, though the driver was pretty shaken. That's when an instructor relies on his number one skill.

"You have to have a lot of patience," Rosinski said. "You have to talk them through situations . . . always keep them relaxed."

"You have to make them feel comfortable," Daniel added. "If you get a student who is too tense they tend to make a lot of mistakes. You have to be accepting of mistakes."

Daniel has been lucky enough not to have been involved in any mishaps while on the road with his students.

"I've had a lot of touchy moments," he said. "I've gotten into a lot of sticky situations that have raised my heart rate a bit."

During Rosinski's on-the-road instruction, he has the student concentrate on highway driving, backing up between cars, and uphill and downhill parking.

Daniel prefers to strengthen the young driver's skills in more life-threatening situations such as left-hand turns, lane changing, and city and expressway driving.

"I don't put much emphasis on the things they'll learn in time that are not life threatening," Daniel said.

"With experience, they'll learn those things on their own."

Daniel, a physical education teacher for the Wayne-Westland school district and coach for a variety of sports, said it's not uncommon to put in 55 to 58 hours a week during the summer driving sessions.

"You have to have a lot of endurance," he said. "This job can get very fatiguing after a couple of weeks."

Golf event to benefit charity

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

If all goes as planned, the third annual Ronald McDonald Children's Charities Hole-in-One Shoot-Out will raise more than twice the amount of last year's contributions.

According to RMCC Board President Eren Cavazos, the Skillman Foundation will match every dollar raised by the golf accuracy contest this month. The Detroit-based foundation, he said, grants thousands of dollars to Michigan charities each year.

"It was an unexpected surprise," Cavazos said of the foundation's participation. "A good one."

The hole-in-one contest raised about $60,000 last summer. Cavazos said he expects the shoot-out to raise $75,000 on its own this year—a sum that will turn into $150,000 with Skillman's matching funds.

"We're very excited about it," he commented.

The event has become a major part of the RMCC of southeastern Michigan's yearly budget. Cavazos said the shoot-out provides about 35 percent of the chapter's funds.

"It's one of the largest (fund-raisers) we have," he said.

The organization helps to fund many different charities.

Boysville of Michigan, Alternatives for Girls and Children's Hospital of Michigan are just a few of the RMCC beneficiaries. Since being founded in 1989, the local RMCC chapter has awarded more than $240,000 in grants to local non-profit organizations.

This year's contest begins tomorrow and runs for 10 days at Country Club Village on Haggerty Road. Nine days of qualifying rounds will be held before the finals on Aug. 22.

The shoot-out is open to all non-professional golfers. A $5 daily entry fee gets participants three shots at the 110-yard qualifying hole. Additional balls are $1.

At the end of each qualifying day, the five shots closest to the pin send golfers to the finals. A total of 45 finalists will have a chance of winning a million dollars, $10,000 and a $200,000 home.

The first finalist to get a hole-in-one wins the million dollar grand prize. If nobody gets an ace, the finalist closest to the pin wins $10,000.

A bonus round will be played for the chance to win the home. The first finalist to hit a hole-in-one in the bonus round wins the house.

Holes have been shortened to give golfers a better chance at winning the grand prizes.

Men finalists will shoot from 160 yards while women shoot from 150 yards. Distances were 175 and 160 yards previously.

Cavazos said the RMCC contest has remained at Country Club Village for a good reason.

"The facility works well for us," he said, "because they close the course for the entire week."

Sponsors for the event include: The Detroit Free Press, Coca-Cola, Dean Witter, Home Window, McDonald's Restaurants of South-eastern Michigan, Pulte Homes of Michigan and WDIV-TV. For more information, call 420-0144.

Township holds up inspection pact

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

Reports that Northville City had contracted with the township for building inspection services were a bit premature.

While the city council voted not to renew part-time building inspector Joseph Attard's contract July 6 in anticipation of an imminent agreement with the township, that agreement was not in place by July 19 as the city administration had estimated it would be.

City Manager Gary Word attributed the delay to township concerns over the proposed fees, insurance and indemnities.

The original proposal called for township inspectors to be paid $17.50 an hour for their services.

The township would review site plans and building permit applications, recommend issuance of building permits where appropriate and inspect construction and demolition work.

The city's planning consultant firm, Carlisle & Associates of Ann Arbor, would perform administrative duties including drafting ordinances, assisting building permit applicants and evaluating site plans. City Clerk Delphine Dudek will coordinate the inspection services.

The city will continue contracting with Attard for electrical inspections.

"Over the past four weeks, the township staff and city staff have been negotiating over several differences," Word told the council Aug. 2.

Those negotiations resulted in a revised plan that won council approval that night. Under the revised agreement, the township's hourly rate would be $20 and the township would be given 75 percent of plan review fees in certain situations.

The township board will consider the proposal at its regular meeting tonight.

The council had agreed not to renew Attard's six-month contract due to the declining need for an in-house inspector as the city's lots fill up. Attard's job had been changed from a full-time salaried position to a half-time contracted one six months ago.

His seven-year stint at Northville followed 15 years as Plymouth Township's inspector.

Organizers of this year's Ronald McDonald children's charity shoot-out are hoping to more than double the funds raised last year.

Library publishes first volume of index to paper

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

Lost cows, bumper crops and Civil War casualties may not mean much to today's Northvillians.

But they were front page news in 1869.

That's one of the lessons learned in a quick glance through the Northville Public Library's latest publication — an index to early issues of the Northville Record. The 185-page volume covers the years 1869 through 1879.

The simple orange book with its plain pages and uninterrupted columns of text does what no one has tried to do before — codify Northville's paper of record one entry at a time. It's an exhaustive task and publication of the first volume is only a small, though significant, step toward its completion.

The alphabetical list of entries range from the amusing to the macabre.

Look up the name Amasa Mathews and you'll find an 1870 entry about how he was "chased by Indians in Kansas." Another listing for that year, on the Booth House, identifies it as the "site of the horsewhipping of Jimmy Hand." A visitor to Mead's Mill made a gruesome discovery that same year, having "found human bones under (the) floor."

Northville's link to the outside world was strengthened in June of 1871 with the erection of telegraph poles, and took a giant leap forward that October with completion of the Holly, Wayne & Monroe Railroad. The issue was one that the local newspaper supported through its editorial page and public pleas for donations.

In 1872, Joseph Chambers was the proud owner of a "new tooth at age 73."

More than one man is identified as a "hero of bucket brigade" while several others are described as "said to have enlisted in the army," a significant event for a nation still rebuilding after a war between its own people.

The pages of the Record in those days were filled with the work of poets, including G. R. Blanchard, A. J. Buell, Frankie Callaway, W. D. Howell, Tilla Hirsch, P. S. Pennell, A. M. Randolph, Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Stout and Camilla Swift. The Rev.

Luther Lee wrote poems honoring both Dora Kellogg and the Record itself in 1872.

Edson Covert may not be happy to know that he'll go down in history as the man who, in 1870, "shot (his) own foot in Hungerford's store." Others are identified as "abolitionist leaders," and William A. Wheeler was cited as the town's "new colored barber" in 1871.

Entertainment in those days included performances by cornet bands and brass bands, and bell ringers seemed one of the most popular diversions as the Miner Family Bell Ringers, Leavitt's Bell Ringers, and Peak Family Bell Ringers all earned mention in the Record's columns.

A more serious entry noted that in 1879, "half of town sick with fever, ague."

Familiar local names, many of which have since been immortalized in street signs, dot the list, including Allen, Beal, Dubuar, Horton, Hutton, Lapham, Long, Northrop, Parmenter, Perrin, Randolph, Taft, Thayer, Thornton, Westfall and Yerkes.

In March, 1870, the paper's own name changed from the Wayne County Record to the Northville Record. Later that year, in December, the twice-a-month paper doubled its publication rate to once a week, where it remained until 1990.

Library Director Pat Orr said she and fellow librarian Al Smitley were taken aback to learn there was no index to the community's paper of record when they first came to Northville in 1986.

"We were very much surprised when we got here and saw there was no coordinated collection of Northville source material," Orr said. "When we realized there was no historical index except for the Hoffman book (Jack Hoffman's Northville — The First 100 years), we decided to come up with something."

Orr's own background proved invaluable to the task. Prior to becoming Northville's chief bibliophile, Orr spent two years as a reference librarian at what was then Madonna College, and got her first taste of indexing assembling a directory to the Michigan Catholic. Before that, she worked at the research library in Greenfield Village.

Smitley drafted the actual worksheet used to decide what to catalogue and what to ignore.

"I had the idea and he made it work," Orr said.

Over the years, the staff has relied on help from a team of more than 50 volunteers assembled by former Northville elementary school librarian Mernie Hines. The cataloguers got a break last year when they received a $17,000 federal grant under the auspices of the Library Services and Construction Act.

"That bought us computer hardware and another microfilm reader, and some temporary help to do data entry," Orr said.

But the task is far from complete. "There's a big backlog of unread microfilm," she said. "It is extremely time- and labor-intensive, and we just couldn't do it without the volunteers and without help from the Friends (of Northville Public Library)."

The index, combined with the recent transferral of every Northville Record issue from the original issues on to microfilm, will serve as an important research tool, Orr said. Residents seeking genealogical information will find its alphabetical list of names invaluable, while property owners can trace the history of their land holdings.

"When the third graders come looking for information, it's very important for school projects," Orr added.

Last year, for example, library staff members reeled their way through spools of Northville Record microfilm, culling pictures of Victorian-era dresses from the advertisements and reproducing them for the students.

"It went over very well," Orr said. Copies of the first volume already have been snatched up by the South Lyon Area Historical Society, Walled Lake Public Library, Detroit Public Library's Burton Historical Collection and the Library of Michigan, while work is under way on Volume Two.

"I just hope it doesn't take another six years," Orr said with a laugh.

Novi growing in all the right ways, report says

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

Novi's on the move — and for the most part in all the right directions. A report city planning department staffers and consultants put together — released last month — paints a picture of a city growing in development, population and a host of other factors. Novi, in fact, leads or is close to leading the southeastern Michigan area in several categories.

The city's building department confirmed that trend with its own report as well. Novi led the seven-county region in residential home construction last year, keeping city staffers busy.

"The building activity for the fiscal year of 1992-93 has proven to be an active year as well as providing a noticeable increase in revenue," building official Donald Saven said in his report. "Although the water moratorium still exists, single family housing starts remain constant."

Construction figures for the city during the month of June prove the point. Officials gave 18 permits for commercial facilities during that 30-day period. Their total valuation came to $1,172,626. Some 46 permits were approved for single family homes; total valuation: $5,455,477. Other additions — garages onto a home, for example — totaled $386,314 for the month.

Development, the trends report said, "reflects a commitment to thoughtful planning guided by the city's master plan."

Many of the facts in that report rely on Novi's most recent land use survey, completed in 1990. The report compares its results to one done in 1986.

OVERALL

There were 963 acres of new development in the city in that four-year period, about two-thirds of it for residential use — and the rest for commercial, industrial and quasi-public use. The city was 37.3 percent developed in 1990, compared to 32.6 percent in 1986.

Residential use zoning accounts for 83 percent of the city's area, including public and quasi-public uses, the report said. Three quarters of that land, however, was still vacant two-and-a-half years ago.

The city has ranked consistently in the top five among communities in the seven-county region for residential construction permits, the report said. In 1992, Novi led the region in new home construction.

Single family residential zoning areas were about 18 percent developed, the report said, and multiple-family residential zoning areas about 87 percent developed. Commercially zoned areas — including office space — comprise about 7 percent of the city in total, of which 50 percent is developed. Industrially zoned areas, totaling about 10 percent of the city's area, were 37 percent developed, the report said.

POPULATION

Novi saw 10,463 more residents from 1980-1990, the report said — a 46.5 percent increase. That represents the third highest percentage growth rate among Oakland County communities, behind only Bingham Farms and Rochester Hills. The amount of developable land, as well as Novi's location to shopping, jobs, the school system and strong tax base are all reasons the report cites for the population increase.

The Southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG) recently prepared a population forecast based on several trends for Novi. Their highest of three estimates put the city's population at 83,688 by the year 2010; the lowest estimate was 52,024. City officials in the report said that the best scenario seemed to be the middle one of 68,727 people by the year 2000 and 60,534 by the year 2010.

Planning Consultant Brandon Rogers said that the city's population would reach 60,000 by the turn of the century and be about 64,000 at buildout in the year 2010. That's down from the 1988 master plan estimate of 72,000 at buildout.

The median age of the population in Novi increased during the 1980s from 29.7 years to 32.5 years, the report said. Those over 65 years of age in Novi increased their numbers by 92 percent during that time, and are now about 8 percent of the total population. Those under 18 years of age increased by 27 percent in the time in question. Though their total numbers increased, their growth was outpaced by older folk. Children comprise just 25.5 percent of the total population now (down from 29.3 percent in 1980).

The city's minority population increased from 2.2 percent of the total to 4 percent in 1990, the report said.

HOUSING

The city had some 14,589 dwelling units in December 1991, the report said, of which 44.9 percent are single family homes, 12.7 percent are mobile homes and 42.4 percent are multiple dwellings.

Now-pending units, which have received preliminary city approval, include 5,289 total dwelling units, the report said. Some 51.1 percent of that total are single family homes, and the rest multiple dwelling units. The report said that Novi experienced a 586-percent increase in dwelling units from 1960 through 1990. Novi's total housing level will be at about 26,000 by the year 2010 and about 27,864 at buildout.

The median home value in 1980 was $80,100 in the city, the report said. That increased to $127,900 in 1990. The median rent level in 1980 was $304 a month, and in 1990 rose to $602 a month, the report said. A need to provide affordable housing for senior citizens is under study, the report added.

ROADS AND TRAFFIC

Generally, 80 percent of travel takes place on 20 percent of Novi's roads, the report concluded. Traffic volumes vary. As many as 100,000 vehicles pass through Novi every day on I-96 while many local streets see less than 100 cars a day. Over 100,000 vehicles enter and exit the city every day, the report said, excluding I-96 traffic.

The highest-volume roads include Eight Mile (37,000 vehicles daily) and Novi Road north of I-96 (62,000).

The city constantly reviews traffic intersections to identify which are the most dangerous and need to be studied. From 1988 to 1990, the report said that the Beck Road/Twelve Mile Road intersection had the highest number of accidents per million entering vehicles per year. The Grand River Avenue/Novi Road intersection had the highest number of accidents of any intersection in that time.

RETAIL/COMMERCIAL/OFFICE

In the retail commercial and office sector area, Novi is also doing well, the report said.

"Novi has a strong commercial base," it reads, "anchored by major shopping centers in the vicinity of I-96/Novi Road, which serves a regional trade area of over 50 miles radius. Commercial land uses have increased from 99 acres in 1974 to 516 acres in 1990, occupied by 835 business establishments."

Twelve Oaks Mall ranks No. 1 in sales volume of all Michigan shopping centers, the report said.

Judge grants senator access to fund's records

By TIM RICHARD
Staff Writer

Democratic state Sen. William Faust has won access to Accident Fund records withheld by the Engler administration.

Ingham Circuit Judge William Collette ruled last week that state Insurance Commissioner David Dykhouse is required by the Freedom of Information Act to disclose contents of a financial analysis of the Accident Fund, a state-owned workers comp insurer.

"We believe that Gov. John Engler and Senate Republicans are covering up the fact that the fund is keeping rates higher than the law allows, and is hiding a windfall profit of millions of dollars that would go to the purchaser of the fund," said Faust, of Westland.

Engler wants, and the Senate has passed, bills to allow sale of the Accident Fund, founded in 1912. Engler contends government shouldn't be in the insurance business.

Faust and some Democrats have fought the sale, arguing it would be a financial windfall to a favored buyer. The accounting firm of Coopers & Lybrand made the financial analysis in 1991. The administration denied Faust's request on the ground that the Senate or a committee — not individual senators — should have filed the request.

The administration also denied access on the ground that confidential information was involved. Faust argued that the Accident Fund, as a state agency, was subject to FOIA, not the Insurance Code.

Meanwhile, debate raged in House corridors about whether Blue Cross-Blue Shield should be allowed to bid on the Accident Fund, as allowed in a Senate bill.

Doug Cruce, president of the Michigan Insurance Federation, opposes a Blues bid.

"Blue Cross was set up by state law and given special protection from competition to carry out a specific function — provide general health care to the widest possible group of Michigan residents. It was not established to provide workers' compensation insurance to state businesses," said Cruce, a former state senator from Troy.

MIF argues that Blue Cross is a quasi-public company with a board of directors appointed by the governor. Nancy McKeague, lobbyist for the Michigan Chamber of Commerce, said that selling to the Blues would fail to achieve the goal of privatizing the Accident Fund because the Blues "operate under legislative control as a quasi-public tax-exempt institution."

Under Blues ownership, she said, the Accident Fund "would continue to be subject to the same political pressure and premium manipulation the chamber first criticized under the Blanchard administration."

E.L. Cox, executive director of the Accident Fund, would not comment on the fund's value.

The Senate bills ask a minimum bid of $100 million. Legislative analysts peg the value at $275 million. The Blues reportedly has placed the value at $250 million.

Cox said six bidders have expressed interest in buying the Accident Fund.

Cox was an insurance executive who came out of retirement to head the fund.

The bills are in the House Insurance Committee. When writing to your state representative, refer to the key bill, SB 345.

Mill Race Matters

This week the Northville Historical Society wishes to thank Wanda Huber for again coming to our aid and donating additional computer equipment for use in preparation of Mill Race Quarterly and other society publications.

Wes Henrikson also receives thanks for the donation of bricks to add to the base of Mill Race Village's sculpture/sign.

A third thank you this week goes to the Corporate Library of Comerica Bank for the donation of several used reference books to enhance the archive collection.

Last week's discussion of recent community history focused on the establishment of Mill Race Village. This week's column continues that discussion.

After City Council acceptance of the village's master plan in 1972, Historical Society volunteers went to work renovating and restoring the first two buildings on the site (Hunter House and New School Church). In 1975 the city added lighting and sewer service and completed the parking lot.

About this time three additional buildings — Wash Oak School, Yerkes House, and the Cottage House — were added. The school was donated by private individuals. Yerkes House came from Northville Downs owners as their parking lot expansion was planned. Cottage House, also sometimes called Weavers' Cottage, was donated by Mr. and Mrs. Paul Folino and they planned the rebuilding of their insurance agency on the site of its former location.

Then society board members got students from John Glenn High School in Westland to make desks for the school and to construct the gazebo from plans of the Victorian era. The Northville Mothers Club worked on developing the Wash Oak School as one of their projects. The Northville Chamber of Commerce collected donations to build the Village's bridge and stone memorial access.

Most of these plans were in place by the time of the official opening and dedication in celebration of America's bicentennial on July 4, 1976. All the work was a long way from being completed. The second floor of Yerkes House was not completed until the winter of 1992-93.

Volunteers began construction of the Hirsch Blacksmith building in the early 1980s. The Blacksmith Shop/Country Store is the only village building which is a new construction. That building was completed in 1987 just about the time that the city decided to donate Cady Inn. Cady Inn was moved to the site in the fall of 1987 and, after some early foundation difficulties, moved to its present site in 1988. Volunteers again began the long process of restoration and renovation.

Cady Inn was completed in 1992. Also during this period re-landscaping was done. This re-landscaping included the addition of special gardens and sugar maple trees to line the gravel lane.

Over the years, the Northville Historical Society has received several gifts and annuities to aid in the maintenance of the village for posterity. These funds have been placed on deposit to insure the continued operation of the village. To date, they provide about one quarter of the operating budget. It is therefore necessary to continue fund-raising endeavors.

Tivoli Fair held each fall (Oct. 1 and 2 this year) still provides about 40 percent of the annual budget. Approximately 10 percent comes from wedding and school usage and the remainder comes from member and friend donations. No admission is charged, but donations are encouraged. The village is open from 2-5 p.m. Sundays.

House delays action on Clean Air Act

By TIM RICHARD
Staff Writer

Regional and business leaders are getting nervous as the state House of Representatives delays voting on a local version of the federal Clean Air Act.

"It doesn't have any support," said Rep. Greg Kaza, R-Rochester Hills, of the bill that is languishing on the House calendar after months of committee work.

Gov. John Engler supports a clean air bill, though reluctantly. "We're caught in a squeeze play — Washington mandates that west Michigan clean up its air by 1996 or face stiff sanctions," Engler said.

Service station dealers are opposing it. An aide to Rep. Mary Brown, R-Kalamazoo, says the bill is a must-pass measure that needs an education effort.

Under the 1990 federal Clean Air Act, Michigan must clean up its air some more. The list of "non-attainment" counties is up to 10 and includes three near Lake Michigan — Kent, Ottawa and Muskegon.

The western counties are balking because they say their dirty air comes from the Chicago area. "Residents in this area should not be mandated to clean up problems over which they have no control," said Rep. Harold Voorhees, R-Wyoming.

For the seven counties in southeastern Michigan, the federal law means they must reduce air emissions 15 percent below 1990 levels.

Currently in the tri-county area, 1,400 auto service stations perform the annual $10-per-car chore of checking auto emissions levels. Under the Brown bill, advocated by the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments, centralized testing facilities would administer tougher emissions tests at a cost of about $30 every two years. Local stations would lose the work.

"Asking consumers to wait for hours for the test, pay three times more for it and drive miles just to get one — all for a program that may not work — is ludicrous and bad policy," said Terry Burns of the Service Station Dealers Association.

If Michigan fails to meet federal standards, say SEMCOG chiefs, three bad things can happen:

- The state can lose $500 million in federal highway aid.
- Smokestack permits for industries can be halted, throwing a monkey wrench in the state's economic recovery.
- The federal government would impose its own program.

In floor debate last month, Rep. Vincent Joe Porreca, D-Trenton, objected: "We're doing this for industry. It's not fair to my constituents to have to stand in line three hours so someone (industry) can be left off the hook."

"I don't much like this bill," added Rep. Maxine Berman, D-Southfield. "I don't know if I'll vote for it, even if my amendments are adopted."

The bill was shoved aside late in July as the House passed 1994 budget bills and the school tax cut.

Michigan has until Nov. 15 to show the feds it is complying, and the clock is running. SEMCOG is fighting back, charging the service stations with a "self-serving scare campaign based on half-truths."

Joining with SEMCOG, the seven-county regional planning agency, are the American Automobile Manufacturers Association, the Michigan Association of Manufacturers, Michigan Chemical Council, Michigan Chamber of Commerce, Detroit Edison Co. and Consumers Power Co.

So are several environmental groups: the Michigan United Conservation Clubs, the Eastern Michigan Environmental Action Council and the Sierra Club.

John Amberger, SEMCOG executive director, offered this rebuttal to the service station dealers:

"The current AET test is outdated and produces a false failure rate as high as 30 percent because of significant engineering improvements in vehicles made in the past several years. The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency — charged with enforcing the Clean Air Act — will not count results of the current or basic AET program against the 15 percent required emissions reduction."

"If a significant portion of the 15 percent is not realized from this AET program, then severe and costly restrictions on industrial emissions will be required."

To the dealers' charge that drivers will face long waits for tests, Amberger said drivers in Minnesota, which has centralized tests, wait an average of two minutes. Most testing areas can be located within 10 minutes of residents.

While the test may cost more, it will be required every two years instead of the current once-a-year. And in a 1991 survey, 96 percent of Minnesotans rated the waiting time good or very good, Amberger said.

Writing club plans its first meeting tonight

Budding and accomplished authors alike are invited to participate in a new writer's club that's forming locally.

The club was the idea of Allen Moore of Livonia and Brian Anderson of Plymouth. The two men met in a fiction class they were enrolled in last spring at Schoolcraft College and started kicking around the idea of meeting with other writers in an organized setting.

The pair decided to form their own club when they couldn't find one to fit their needs.

"The only one is at Cranbrook, and that's a lot more upscale than we want," Moore said.

The club will meet next at 6:30-8:30 p.m. today at the Plymouth Library, Main Street at Church.

Meetings are planned for the second and fourth Thursday of each month.

For more information, call Moore at 422-8364.

City encourages staff in savings plan

By JAN JEFFRES
Staff Writer

Guess what the acronym of New Outstanding Valuable Ideas is?

If your answer was NovI, you have your thinking cap on. Which is just the sort of headgear the city hopes its staff will don when it starts up Project NOVI.

If the city council goes with the agenda, NovI personnel technician Mary Ferris said the program could begin in August.

For months, both the city council and city administration have debated plans to save money which would include some sort of incentive for municipal workers who come up with all the bright ideas. (A light bulb is the symbol of the project.)

What's being asked of staffers is to devise ways and means to upgrade their work environments, cut costs and save money while improving service to citizens.

A winning suggestion must save time or material, provide better policies or procedures, or increase efficiency.

Once that brilliant suggestion is found, it will be judged by how feasible it is and how much money is likely to be saved over the next three years.

All city employees except members of the administrative staff are now invited to submit suggestions, which will be evaluated every three months by the Project NOVI Awards Committee. "I haven't received much feedback because I don't think too many people know about it yet. We just hope it's going to be a success, and we're eager to get it implemented," said Ferris, who will be in charge of the program if it's adopted by the council.

Over the past year, the city council has mulled cash rewards or gifts such as restaurant dinners or theater tickets for those who come up with blue ribbon proposals. Savings bonds are now suggested as prizes because that will be save the city bucks, Ferris said, adding that a $100 savings bond is purchased for $50.

An employee would win a plaque for paring city costs by $100 to $499; a $100 savings bond for a $500 to $999 plan; a $250 savings bond for cost-cutting worth $1,000 to $4,999 and a $500 savings bond for brainstorms worth $5,000 and up.

Good proposals which don't have a dollar value will be placed in one of the above categories by the committee.

Staffers chock full of ideas will be steered away from one area: improvements to their own wages and fringe benefits.

Project NOVI committee members will include NovI's personnel and finance directors, a department head and four members of the administrative staff.

Former grad studies in Africa

By JENNY BEYERSDORF
Special Writer

Where Are They Now?

Jason Baker's career development in Africa is just one of the things that make him a not-so-typical Northville High School graduate.

Although he wasn't valedictorian or a football hero in high school, Baker had a significant impact on NHS life during his four years on the hill.

More importantly, he is still making his mark. His efforts on behalf of human and animal rights continue to affect both Northville High School and the other academic institutions he has touched with his energy.

Not only did Baker begin the still-active NHS environmental organization Students Aware of the World during his junior year of high school, but he started a similar organization (also dubbed SAW) and an animal rights group at Grand Valley State University, where he attended his freshman year of college.

At Kalamazoo College, where he transferred his sophomore year as a political science/economics major with a concentration in environmental studies, Baker has also been intensely involved in the campus environmental group.

He sits on several school-wide committees regarding nutrition, health, and food service, and last year he was the high school coordinator for Michigan's Student Environmental Action Council.

Baker also lives in a vegetarian suite at Kalamazoo and plans to do his Senior Individualized Project in Washington D.C. with a vegetarian resource group.

Long a political activist, Baker has recently begun to dabble in establishment politics. He was just elected Kalamazoo College's Student Body President and recently announced his campaign for Kalamazoo City Commission.

While it may appear he has entered the mainstream, Baker is far from middle of the road — in anything he does.

A self-proclaimed radical, Baker became interested in politics after the Tiananmen Square massacre in China during his junior year of high school. Following the event, he came to school in a hand-made T-shirt reading "to hell with the Chinese government."

He says that incident and the reaction he got from his outspokenness inspired his political involvement.

Jason's main interests are human and animal rights, and he would like to pursue a graduate degree in those areas.

As of now, however, his main focus is on his role as student body president and his campaign for city commission — a seven-person board whose high vote getter will become the next mayor of Kalamazoo.

"I am running to raise issues," Baker says, "mainly homelessness, hunger, poor education and violence against women in Kalamazoo." But, he emphasizes that, "I am definitely running to win."

Baker says there is another Kalamazoo College student running for the board, as well as a graduate student from Western Michigan University.

"It would be kind of funny if I were the next mayor," Jason laughs.

Maybe he shouldn't laugh too hard. If he can fly to Africa without a place to stay or a job, he just may be able to win a municipal election.

Jason Baker: college student, world traveler, mayor. It might be a nice addition to this not-so-typical student's resume.

JASON BAKER

Baker still makes his mark as environmentalist

By JENNY BEYERSDORF

The sun rolls over and pushes its snooze button, but the 21-year-old American has already set off on foot down a dusty, remote road in "out-country" Sierra Leone, Africa.

It is not quite 6 a.m. and the government-imposed curfew is still in effect. Technically, the young college student is breaking the law. But he has a 60-mile journey ahead of him, from a national park where he has been doing research to Freeport — the African city he has made his home for three months.

He decides to risk breaking the curfew in favor of making good time.

Approaching village after village of native Sierra Leoneans, the American quickly learns it is easier to travel before the 90 degree sunlight of the morning. He also learns he should detour around the towns.

As a white man, he is too conspicuous to make good time. The locals run out of their homes as he approaches and children follow him through the streets like religious zealots after David Koresch.

The attention finally proves beneficial when the locals help the young man cross a river in a dug-out canoe and some local soldiers offer him a ride back to Freeport — a 56-mile trip which takes seven hours and involves numerous stops at military checkpoints.

Finally, the weary foreigner reaches his apartment in downtown Freeport. Mission accomplished.

Although this may sound more like the introduction to the latest Romancing the Stone film than a day in the life of a college student, for Kalamazoo College senior and 1990

Northville High School graduate Jason Baker it is simply one story from a typical day during his spring term in Africa.

Well, maybe this wasn't such a typical day.

Baker admits that this particular adventure — a result of a missed ride back from an out-of-the-way national park — was one of the more exciting ones he had during his three-month career development. Still, on the whole, Baker's entire experience sounds like something out of an adventure movie.

As the first Kalamazoo College student to do a career development in Africa, Baker flew to Sierra Leone alone, with no job lined up, no place to stay, and no contacts when he arrived this past January.

Lest you wonder what kind of program Kalamazoo is running, Jason points out that this is not normal procedure for most student Career Development Internships — a required part of Kalamazoo College's "K-plan." Usually, students arrange for jobs prior to leaving campus.

In Jason's case, however, he assured the school he would work with Liberian refugees or at a national park if he could not get a job in a human-rights related organization. The school not only let him go, but they gave him a fellowship which paid his plane fare.

As it turned out, Baker did get a job with a human rights organization — through a man he met on the beach his first day in the country.

Baker worked for a group called OREINT, an organization he describes as "an indigenous, non-governmental, sustainable institution" helping local farmers' efficiency and productivity.

And like the rest of his high-risk adventure, things worked out so well for Baker at the job that he is currently attempting to establish a permanent Kalamazoo student internship with the group.

"I loved it," he says of his work helping farmers learn better land management and introducing OREINT to American ideas and elbow grease.

"I lived right on the ocean, the people were friendly and the country was beautiful," he says of his stay.

He admits that the experience was much more demanding than a European study-abroad experience or a more typical career development.

Sierra Leone, with locals speaking both English and a language called Krio, is "an extremely poor country," run by a military regime and plagued by rebel violence, says Baker.

He points out that in 1990 Sierra Leone was listed as the least developed country in the world, and although conditions have improved somewhat since then, the things people there live without would make many Americans who can't live without cable television or air conditioning blush with embarrassment.

"I stayed at the YMCA when I first got there, for example," says Baker. "It was a pretty nice area because we had power two times a week."

Not until Jason moved to an apartment with two other Americans in "a really nice area" did he have power every evening. Most of the country doesn't have electricity at all, he says, nor the luxuries of hot water, refrigerators or ovens — all of which Baker went without during his stay.

"It was both educational and really exciting," he says of his career development. "It was very unique what I did."

RECORD OPINION

THURSDAY
August 12, 1993

Our Opinion

Why has city opened door to abatements?

Events in Lansing seem to be overwhelming Northville city officials these days.

When the state Legislature decided in July to remove property taxes from the school funding system, it stalled the city's Mainstreet '93 parking improvement program just before the program won a local vote of confidence.

In further fallout from the property tax decision, a township firm's request for tax abatements may turn out to be irrelevant. R & D Enterprises is seeking an undetermined abatement to move into the city's long-vacant Ford Valve Plant, but as City Manager Gary Word has pointed out, the firm in effect already has been handed at huge tax cut by the state along with every other property owner in Michigan.

Since the firm first sought a deal with Ford and the city before the state Legislature took its action, its financial picture must look a little rosier these days.

So why did the city council even approve a plant rehabilitation district in the first place? As a tax abatement specialist with the Michigan Department of Commerce made clear, that Aug. 2 approval opened the door to a tax abatement request from R & D, a request city officials have said they would consider only reluctantly.

The council and city staff also were unaware that Michigan Act 198 of 1974 — the state act that authorizes tax abatement requests — allows firms reusing existing plants to request a full 100-percent abatement on building improvements. R & D President Rick Cox has said his company plans to spend more than $1.5 million to renovate the historic structure, which is only assessed at $515,000. (Assessments in Michigan are intended to match 50 percent of a property's actual value.)

The ball is now in R & D's court. The firm can request an abatement of any size and the city council's only say in the matter, other than to approve or deny the request, is to limit the number of years for which it is granted. If R & D wants to play hardball — which the firm has shown no sign of doing to this point — it can appeal a council denial to the state tax tribunal and strip city officials of any say in the matter.

We believe elimination of the property tax raises serious questions about the value of granting any abatement whatever to R & D, and should cause city officials to rethink the firm's request. The prospect of a responsible local company renovating and occupying the blighted Ford Plant is an exciting one, but could hardly depend on a tax cut now that property taxes statewide have been reduced by roughly 60 percent.

Index volume emerges after long preparation

The first tangible result of the monumental effort to index the entire catalogue of Northville Record issues dating back to the newspaper's inception in 1869 has finally seen the light, and we couldn't let the occasion pass without mention.

Six years of tedious work have at last produced the first hardbound subject index volume, covering the newspaper's early years of 1869-79.

Many volumes will follow and much work still needs to be done, but, by the time the project's finished, residents and history buffs will be able to find any story included in any issue of the newspaper and bring it up on one of the microfilm readers in the Northville Public Library.

Copies of volume one have been purchased by the Library of Michigan, the Burton Historical Collection of the Detroit Public Library, the South Lyon Area Historical Society and the Walled Lake Public Library.

Though the effort's far from complete, this first volume represents something of a breakthrough, a christening of sorts, and we couldn't be prouder.

Congratulations are in order, and we send them out to Library Director Pat Orr and Reference Librarian Al Smitley, the driving forces behind the project; volunteer Mervin Hines; and many, many indexers, particularly Jane Bowser, Anne Cox, Margaret Dawson, Jean Stabler, Diane Rockall, Ellie Taylor and Sheila Welch.

This project will give permanence to an otherwise perishable information source and lend new meaning to the expression "on the Record."

Representative was real gem

Lee Snider

Thoughts about politicians and people.

I was moved and saddened by the recent death of Congressman Paul Henry, Republican of Grand Rapids. The five-term representative died of cancer a few weeks ago.

I knew Henry when I was a radio reporter at WOOD-AM in Michigan's second largest city back in the early 1980s. He was a rare, well-rounded individual who defied the restrictive political labels we like to use as mental shortcuts.

Religious yet open-minded, spiritual but world-wise, honest yet nobody's fool, Henry was impossible to pigeonhole. Decency ran so deep in him you wondered how anyone like that could have escaped the influences of an obsessive, self-centered culture like ours.

Henry was 51 when he died and such an untimely passing makes you think about the injustice of a world in which bad things happen to good people. There's no knowing why it happened, of course, but I have a feeling Henry would say that if life has to make perfect sense to you before you can have faith, there's little hope you'll ever believe in anything.

Northville Township community activist Jim Petrie likes to think he's the only Democrat around, but I happen to know there's one other: Alfred Galli, a retiree who writes us letters about everything from Oliver North to the dubious human rights record of people around the globe.

Anyway, the local GOP supermajority should be put on notice: the Petries are building a Democratic dynasty. Jim's daughter, Lindsay, a high school junior, has just been awarded a congressional pageship from Rep. William Ford, who represents the Northville area. Pageships are extremely competitive positions and you have to work awfully hard to get one. Way to go, Lindsay!

Lindsay will now go off and live in the D.C. area, attending school in the morning and sprinting up and down the aisles of the House relaying dispatches for the Democrats in the afternoon. We'll have a story about her after she returns from her counseling duties at a camp for diabetics.

Talk about youthful achievers, our summer temp Jenny Beyersdorf reads, runs, and writes — all with a good deal of proficiency.

Since Jenny joined the The Northville Record staff in June, it's been virtually impossible to keep her name out of the paper. She's been mentioned in our campus notes for earning a perfect 4.0 grade point average at Miami University and in the sports pages for finishing the RoadRunner Classic 8-K run in downtown Northville July 24.

Jenny, a 1990 Northville High School graduate, also has written stories that appeared in the Novi '50s Festival circular and in the A-section of the Record. She's penned a personal column for today's edition. Find it on this page, "below the fold." Unfortunately for us at the newspaper (and for our readers too), it's back to school for Jenny at the end of next week.

Duck fancying speaks volumes

Jenny Beyersdorf

At school, whenever I describe Northville to my friends from other states, I tell them about the popularity of ducks here.

In my mind, ducks are the perfect metaphor for the place I grew up in, and Northville's worship of the little animals seems to encapsulate the spirit of a place I'm never quite sure how to characterize.

It's not always accurate to call Northville a small town. I have friends from West Union, Ohio, who would call Northville a booming metropolis. And while I used to describe Northville as pretty rural, I realized everything is relative when my roommate told me she was related to everyone in her county.

So, instead of describing my home by size, I now tell my friends about the ducks here: how we have our own colony of them at the old Ford Plant and how traffic will stop dutifully as they cross the road; how most homes in the area have incorporated ducks into their main decorative scheme; how ducks are on nearly every piece of Northville memorabilia that the busloads of tourists buy downtown on weekend outings or at one of the assorted festivals Northville hosts every year. How even my own family has a duck phone that quacks instead of rings.

Some people I tell about the ducks have no idea what it reveals about Northville. Yeah, but what's your town like? Is it big or small? What are the people like? They still ask after my duck tales.

Most of these people are from New York or Chicago or other regions diametrically opposed to places like Northville. They don't see the implications of our concern for fuzzy fowl. They don't see how the fact that people here reverie ducks tells them anything about the place.

I wish I could bring some of these friends home with me for a summer. If they lived here for three months they'd no doubt realize the parallel between our fascination with ducks and the fact that people in Northville seem to know everything that's going on with each other, that even after three years away at school I can still walk into Arbor Drugs and run into six people I know, and that no matter if there is rioting in Los Angeles, a massive drug problem in Detroit, or unspeakable brutality in Bosnia I can always count on there being 10 people in line (four of them in baseball uniforms) at Custard Time.

I don't always think that concern for ducks (and all of those unexplainable aspects of this community wrapped up in that description) is necessarily one of Northville's most positive traits. In contrast to some of the more pressing world and national concerns, life in Northville seems pretty cocoonish sometimes. But it does give me a warm, safe feeling when I'm here.

Working at the newspaper this summer pretty much means immersion in the duck-loving spirit that's so much a part of Northville's character. Nearly every press release or engagement announcement I've typed this summer, for example, involves some family I know.

And after doing a couple of stories on graduates of NHS, I feel like a local celebrity myself. I got a note from a former high school English teacher and a call from my under-12 soccer coach after each of them read something I wrote. Of course, along with the comments and encouragement come the inevitable suggestions for story ideas.

The most classic one was from my mom, who was all excited after returning from the July 4th parade — another one of those annual Northville traditions included in all that ducks stand for in my mind. She'd witnessed a group of about 10 people rescue (what else) eight ducklings who had fallen through the grates in a sewer. She thought it'd be perfect for a story in The Northville Record — and she was probably right.

As an aspiring, serious-minded journalist, however, I failed to share her excitement at the prospect of a breaking story on duck-rescuing.

But I did get an additional anecdote for my method of hometown description.

And a reminder of why I love Northville's cocoon so much. Long live ducks.

Jenny Beyersdorf is working as a summer intern for The Northville Record.

Live and learn with tax abatements

To the Editor:

It looks like the Northville School Board received a wake up call. I wonder what they will do now.

I'm not stupid enough to believe that it isn't going to cost me the same amount I'm paying now, only in different ways.

Let's put the large share of the blame on the school board. I knew when you add 6 to 7 percent for six years that you would be in deep trouble. Can't someone with a doctoral degree figure that out?

I wonder where the township is getting all the money. A few months ago they could not figure out where to get $40,000 for the dust problem on the dirt roads.

Now we have found the money for that, $473,000 to bring in water for our latest free-loader, OIS, and $73,000 for the soccer field. It makes you wonder what to believe. I know when you borrow money, you have to pay interest and that puts you deeper in the hole.

It makes as much sense as listening to President Clinton and his debt reduction plan.

I sure hope the Township Board has a good understanding with OIS regarding the tax abatement. General Motors sure played dumb and the courts agreed. There is no question about the guts that GM has.

At a meeting when all the heads of OIS were attending, they still didn't have their contract with the government, so I think before I signed all the tax abatement papers, they would show me a signed contract.

Today in The Free Press, they favored cutting out all abatements as they don't help the local communities. Proof of that is the City and Township of Plymouth. They have been giving the Good Old Boys abatements for over 12 years and they are in worse shape than Northville.

Aren't we supposed to live and learn?

Dean H. Lenheiser

Watchdog is hurting himself

To the editor:

I had to laugh at the front page story of Robert Bernard's latest attempt to take money from my children's education to go into his need for publicity. He has filed another lawsuit against the school district.

I wonder if he'll be there for this one?

He is quoted as saying, "I believe that Dr. Rezmierski is making these derogatory statements solely to discredit my efforts, and defame my name and reputation within the community."

Given his frivolous and costly lawsuits against the district, his attempts to keep Northville residents from learning the Board's views on matters that effect the schools, his wild statements in materials passed out and in statements made, I'd say he has done an excellent job of discrediting his efforts and of defaming his name and reputation within the community all by himself.

Northville voters ignored him in the last election.

Item 9 likely to shake up the MEA

Tim Richard

Back in March, when state legislators were negotiating Proposal A, I obtained an outline of one of the plans where item 9 was crossed over with black lines and labeled "OUT."

"That," said a lawmaker, "is what Engler wanted." Item 9 was labeled "Legislation to help contain K-12 operating costs."

Voters flushed down Proposal A on June 2, so now lawmakers have started over by repealing $6 billion in school operating property taxes. Gov. John Engler's item 9 is very much alive. And the Michigan Education Association should be sweating.

Now, to understand collective bargaining, you need to grasp that there are three parties: management, the union and the workers. The union bargains not only for what workers want, but for what the union wants.

So it is with MEA. The school employees' union bargains not just for health care benefits, but for the carrier. It insists the carrier be its subsidiary, MESSA, for Michigan Education Special Services Association.

I don't comprehend all the details, but it seems MESSA, with a staff of 200-plus, markets Blues health care. Then MESSA buys $8 million in computer services from another MEA subsidiary. (I draw this data from the famed June 7 Forbes magazine article.) MEA, MESSA and the data subsidiary share the same switchboard.

So you see that MEA staff jobs, not just teachers' issues, are at stake here.

Engler has promised to reduce property taxes along with a net reduction in the cost of government in Michigan. Therefore, he cannot agree to replacing all $6 billion in lost property taxes with other taxes. There must be a net reduction for him to use the slogan "Promises Made, Promises Kept."

The first point under item 9, containing school operating costs, is "Requirements to bid out health care insurance for school employees."

Next point is to "Reform teacher tenure laws." Senate Republicans have pushed through those bills. They would: 1) lengthen the probationary period to two years; 2) require annual performance evaluations during probation; 3) require individual development plans for the teacher; and 4) revise the hearing process in teacher tenure cases, shortening it to 300 days from nearly 1,600 days. In the last point, the goal is to keep school boards from "buying out" bad teachers in order to avoid the prolonged hearing process.

The third point is to require school districts to bid out such work as busing, maintenance, driver's education, nursing and social services rather than hire school employees (represented by MEA).

Fourth point is to penalize districts for 1/180th of their state aid for every day of a teachers' strike. As it is, MEA strikers are assured 180 days of work a year, unlike auto, steel and utilities workers.

Those are Engler's agenda points, not necessarily mine. If I were running the show, two other goals would emerge:

- Reduce the number of school districts from 562 to maybe 200. The average school district in Michigan has 3,500 pupils and supports a superstructure of administrators and principals. A 200-district plan would save money and allow the offering of a more specialized high school curriculum.
- Prohibit school district employees from serving on any board of education, college board or in the Legislature until 10 years after they have left the school payroll. We have too many school people sitting on both sides of the bargaining and budgeting tables.

Engler and the Legislature, by cutting school property taxes, have taken the most dramatic step in Michigan government since passage of the sales tax during the Great Depression. Even bigger changes are coming.

Tim Richard reports on the local implications of state and regional events. His office phone is (313) 349-1700.

Program provides valuable help

Charles Stilec

The student assistance program at Northville High School was implemented in November 1987. It is a school-based program which provides education, support and awareness in order to intervene, identify, assess and refer students and families around the issue of chemical abuse and dependency.

Students can be referred by families, staff or can be self-referred. Most students involved in this program are seen weekly on a rotating hour with teacher and parent permission.

At Northville High School, the Student Assistance Program Coordinator is responsible for:

- Interviewing identified students

- Facilitating support groups
 - Working with individual students
 - Co-facilitating SADD (Students Against Driving Drunk)
 - Speaking to various community groups
 - Speaking to high school groups
 - Serving as a referral source for staff
 - Co-facilitating community and parent support education groups as needed
- Readers should be aware of what a typical day looks like behind the scenes. On any given day these groups are run to support students:
- Aftercare — recovery groups
 - Chemical awareness group
 - Relationship stress group
 - Fresh start stop smoking group
 - Concerned persons (children of alcoholics) group
 - Keeping a balance group
 - Grief and loss group
 - Eating disorders group
- Students are also seen individually as needed and referrals to outside counseling are made if deemed necessary and appropriate. Since the inception of this program, hundreds of students have been seen and helped.

The key to the program is consistency, high visibility and availability to the students, the parents, and the community.

Each year it is apparent how important it is for hundreds of students to trust and talk to someone. Talking, support and sharing may take one session or may last for years. Students and families need to be heard, and our schools provide this service in one very unique program which is "student assistance."

For further information on the student assistance program or to answer concerns, call me at 344-1825.

Charlie Stilec is the student assistance program coordinator at Northville High School and a prevention specialist with the Community Commission on Drug Abuse, an agency which is funded, in part, by SEMSAS.

CATS

When a cat exposes its underside, it is signaling that it trusts those in its presence.

America's favorite pets remain kittens at heart

By CRISTINA FERRIER
Staff Writer

The cats are taking over.

With an estimated 57.6 million domestic cats to 54 million domestic dogs in the United States, cats have usurped the latter species' title of "man's best friend." Or, at least, they can lay claim to being the most popular.

Cat lovers list many reasons for the popularity of their feline friends. Besides being furry and warm and cuddly and soft, they also require less care than dogs.

Cats are usually litter trained in a matter of hours or days, while some dogs can take years to learn the ins and outs of housebreaking.

If one is planning to leave home for a few days, a cat can take care of itself if left with a proper supply of food and water. And a cat will never chase the mailman, keep the neighbors awake with its barking, or chew up your favorite pair of shoes.

There is even evidence that shows cat owners tend to be healthier than other people. Friendly physical contact with cats has been shown to reduce stress. Cat owners have been wired in scientific laboratories to test their biological responses as they stroke their pets, and it was found that their body systems relaxed significantly. It has also been found that violent, mentally ill patients often calm down when they are near a pet cat. And in an early-1980s study of stress-related heart problems, researchers discovered that cat ownership sometimes lowered blood pressure.

Yet there are still dog lovers or, perhaps, cat haters, who dispute the value of kitties. They point to the unquestioning loyalty of dogs — their desire to protect their owners and to learn silly tricks at their master's whim.

Some are even so gauche as to point out that cats will claw up the furniture or litter your front porch with dead mice.

But in the book Cat Watching by Desmond Morris, many of the animals' most perplexing habits are explained and, the author points out, many of a cat's actions show an intense loyalty and love toward their human owners.

Morris, an animal expert and zoologist, spent years observing domestic and wild cats to gain an understanding of their odd behaviors.

"The domestic cat is a contradiction," he writes in the book's introduction. "No animal has developed such an intimate relationship with mankind, while at the same time demanding and getting such independence of movement and action. The dog may be man's best friend, but it is rarely allowed out on its own to wander from garden to garden or street to street. The obedient dog has to be taken for a walk. The headstrong cat walks alone."

Cats, which have been domesticated for 3,500 years, live and react in a way that bounces between that of an overgrown kitten to that of a fierce hunter in the wild, Morris writes. Much of their behavior can be attributed to either of those kitty mind-sets.

For example, why does a cat purr? Most people believe that a cat purrs because it is happy, but Morris writes that cats in great pain, injured, in labor or even dying have often been known to purr loudly for long periods of time.

Purring, instead, comes from a primal instinct that goes back to the time when the cat was a tiny kitten. Kittens begin to purr when they are just one week old and it usually occurs while they are suckling. Their purring acts as a signal to the mother that all is well. The mother cat can listen to their purring and know without looking that her babies are all there and everything is fine.

When the kittens grow up, they continue to purr when they are feeling friendly and social or, in the case of an injured cat, they need care and attention.

An adult cat is a cross between a helpless kitten and a fierce hunter. It is able to hear in the ultrasonic range far above the human ear; to smell scents undetectable to the human nose; and to see in one-sixth of the light required for the human eye.

Salon hopes event will help in AIDS research

By DOROTHY NASH
Special Writer

Whether or not you have contributed money for AIDS research, you have a special opportunity to do so during the Victorian Festival, Sept. 17 through 19, between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m., at Balardi's Hair Salon on Center Street in Northville.

And you will get something personal in return.

Tammy Hambrick, who is a stylist and public relations head of the 17 employees at the salon, said that all of them will be available at staggered hours taken off from their scheduled appointments — indoors and out, depending on the weather — to do things for you like recutting or restyling bangs and applying tattoos (the semi-permanent kind that are removable with baby oil).

All you do is make a contribution for AIDS research. You name the amount.

Then there will be a display of Victorian hats made by Tammy's co-workers. You are invited to vote for the one you like the best — putting your name in a fishbowl and making an AIDS contribution.

The Victorian hats will be on display in the salon windows, starting Aug. 22. You may vote that early rather than wait until Festival days.

On the last day of the festival, names will be drawn from the fishbowl and prizes awarded — prizes like a manicure, mini-facial, haircut, and hair products.

Of course if you want to buy one of the hats, you are welcome to make an offer.

The red ribbons pin you will receive for your contribution says, "Gift for life" on its face and also "fighting AIDS through research and education."

The parent organization for the charity, Tammy said, is AMFAR (American Foundation for AIDS research) located in Miami.

Incidentally, the owner of Balardi's, Tammy said, will match the total amount contributed.

Wedding

Amaris Hyla/Sean Cordone

Amaris Anna Hyla of Northville, and Sean Scott Cordone of Milford, were married July 9, 1993.

Amaris Anna is the daughter of Mr. Jan Antoni Hyla and Mrs. Bozena Anna Hyla of Heathrow, Fla. Sean Scott is the son of Mr. Warren Paul Cordone and Mrs. Linda Hazel Cordone of Milford.

The small, private ceremony took place at 2 p.m. at the Cranbrook Gardens in Bloomfield Hills, and was officiated by the honorable Judge David Laudani of Harper Woods. Two close friends, Bethany Celeste Moole of Chicago and Richard Tomas Berner of Pontiac served as the couple's witnesses.

Immediately following the ceremony the couple traveled North to the Garfield Inn, an historic bed and breakfast in Port Austin, Mich., where they dined and spent their wedding night.

The couple met in 1986 while attending Adelphi Academy, a private boarding school in Holly. Together they attended Oakland University in Rochester, where the groom received his double degree in physics and engineering this spring. After graduation, the groom was awarded a Fulbright grant to study physics in Germany for one year.

The couple will be departing for Europe on Aug. 30, where they will honeymoon in Amsterdam and Paris until Sept. 15, after which time they will settle in Osnabruck, Germany, until August 1994.

There will be a marriage celebration and bon voyage in honor of the couple on Sunday, Aug. 15 in the garden of Warren and Linda Cordone's historic Milford home.

Why are cats such peculiar creatures?

According to Morris, adult cats look at their human owners as substitutes for the mother cat. Their desire to be stroked and petted by their owners is a throwback to their earliest days when their mothers would repeatedly lick their fur.

"To the kitten, the mother cat is the one who feeds, cleans and protects," Morris writes. "Because humans continue to do this for their pets long after their kitten days are behind them, the domesticated animals never fully grow up. They may become full-sized and sexually mature, but in their minds they remain kittens in relation to their human owners."

Most cats develop a deep trust in their owners, and will allow them to become physically closer than they would a stranger. That's why a cat will often greet its owner by lying on the ground and rolling over to expose its belly. Such a position knowingly places the cat in a very vulnerable position and it is demonstrating its trust by lying down in that way.

Similarly, a cat may greet its owner by rubbing the length of its body against his or her legs. Often the cat will follow that, rubbing by pushing the side of its mouth against the owner's hand and, eventually, walking off to sit down and start washing its fur.

That behavior, Morris writes, is a "scent exchange" between the cat and the human, although the human is generally unaware of what's taking place.

There are scent glands on the cat's temples and along the side of its mouth, as well as the root of its tail. When the cat rubs these glands against the human, the human is "marked" with the cat's individual scent and the cat picks up some human scents. When the cat walks away and begins licking its fur, it is sampling the human scent it has just picked up.

A cat is easily litter trained because subordinate cats naturally bury their feces in order to reduce their scents. They do so because they don't want to pose a threat to the dominant animals in their lives.

In the case of domestic cats, human owners are the dominant animal.

Robert White and The Candy Mountain Express

They're pickin' to beat the devil

Why go to Nashville when Ypsilanti's just a hoot and a holler away? Some big names from the old-time music circuit will be trucking to town for the 13th Annual Bluegrass and Peach Festival at Wlad's Orchard from Aug. 19-21.

The hoedown, one of the tops in the country, has been bolstered with the addition of two music legends — Bashful Brother Oswald, who for 60 years performed on the Grand Ole Opry with Roy Acuff, and Carl Story, billed as the oldest bluegrass gospel singer in the country.

Concert-goers will also have a chance to tap their toes to bands which were showstoppers in past festivals. The music starts at noon daily and continues through the evening, with a supper break.

Here's the line-up:
August 19 — Jimmy Martin and the Sunny Mountain Boys, Ralph Stanley and the Clinch Mountain Boys, Bill Harrell and the Virginians, Bashful Brother Oswald, Gary Adams and the Bluegrass Gentleman and Robert White and the Candy Mountain Express.

August 20 — The Osborne Brothers, Raymond Fairchild and the Maggie Valley Boys, Robert White and the Candy Mountain Express, Carl Story, the Stevens Family, Beaver Creek and the Fritts Family.

August 21 — The Lewis Family, Jim & Jesse and the Virginia Boys, the Bluegrass Mountaineers, Raymond Fairchild and the Maggie Valley Boys, Gary Brewer and the Kentucky Ramblers, Mike Stevens and Robert White and the Candy Mountain Express.

Advance tickets are $35 for all three dates, $40 at the gate. Individual day tickets are $13 for Thursday and Friday and $17 for Saturday. Bring lawn chairs and your own country cookin'. Or buy your meals there at the hog roast. In case of rain, shelter will be provided.

It's possible to camp out at Wlad's Orchards, which is located at 5565 Merritt Road in Ypsilanti. For reservations, call (313) 482-7744. For advance tickets, send a self-addressed stamped business-size envelope to Robert White, Post Office Box 5111, Toledo, Ohio, 43611.

REDUCE - REUSE RECYCLE

A story about friendship

'Free Willy' offers a family film about trust and friendship

Two different worlds define our planet.

One is the familiar terrain of earth, people, cities. The other remains an enigma to most of us . . . the oceans, their infinite depths filled with mysterious creatures which defy logic and confound expectations.

But sometimes these universes meet. Sometimes, where water and land are divided by mere inches, and we are faced with life forces as vital as our own — magic can happen.

There is Willy. Alienated, angry, aggressively anti-social, but searching for family and home.

There is Jesse. Like Willy, he is also homeless, abandoned, tough, uncooperative, unwilling to bend.

They have a lot in common. However, Willy is a 22-foot-long, 7,000-pound orca, the sea's most indomitable predator. And Jesse (Jason James Richter) is a 4'8", 95-pound, 12-year-old boy.

Captured and separated from his family pod in the wild and confined in an inadequate-sized tank in the faded North West Adventure Park, Willy is sullen and determined not to perform the tricks expected of him by Dial (Michael Ironside) and Wade (Richard Riehle), the park's greedy owner and obsequious general manager, respectively.

Forfeited by his mother to a succession of caretakers, Jesse is living on the streets, a prime candidate for a hopeless future.

When he's snatched by the cops on a midnight graffiti raid on the adventure park, Jesse faces a choice—stay with a new set of foster parents, Glen (Michael Madsen) and Annie (Jayne Atkinson) Greenwood, and work off his guilt by cleaning up the graffiti at Northwest Adventure—or go directly to juvenile hall.

Neither prospect thrills Jesse, but he opts for what he considers the lesser evil.

What Jesse doesn't expect is to make friends with animal trainer Rae Lindley (Lori Petty) and handyman Randolph Johnson (August Schellenberg) . . . and especially with the park's notoriously unfriendly inhabitant, Willy.

A bond of mutual trust and affection slowly develops between the two misfits—human and crustacean—as Jesse learns how to communicate and gain the trust and friendship of Willy, and the magnificent orca responds with a series of awesome flips, rolls, dives and leaps.

But when Jesse discovers that Dial and Wade have grim plans for the majestic animal, he knows that only one option is open to him.

Against all odds—and even reason, Jesse must rely on his strength, resilience, instincts and faith in his new acquaintances to help him try to do the impossible. Free Willy.

Warner Bros.' "Free Willy" is a stirring adventure for the whole family, and about family . . . human and otherwise. The film is directed by Simon Wincer and produced by Jennie Lew Tugend and Lauren Shuler-Donner.

"Free Willy" is the culmination of seven years of faith, dedication and passion by its creators and producers, combined with the hard work of a bi-national crew quickly swept into that same spirit of creative exuberance. The driving force is the desire to tell a story at once timeless and remarkably timely . . . about the mysterious bond that can develop between members of two different species.

But how many of us have actually been friends with a killer whale? This was the idea that occurred to actor/writer Keith Walker in 1984 when he was on location in the small, picturesque town of Astoria, Oregon, as a performer in Richard Donner's "The Goonies." It was a concept that had immediate appeal to Donner and his production team.

"It was clearly a beautiful story," says Jennie Lew Tugend, producer of "Free Willy" and a longtime associate of executive producer Dick Donner.

"The picture had to be made," confirms Donner.

Jesse amuses Willy with harmonica music in Warner Bros.' family drama, 'Free Willy.'

New York wins NABF title

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

A 7-5 victory over Dearborn gave the Bayside Yankees the National Amateur Baseball Federation Junior World Series title Saturday in Northville.

The team, from Whitestone, N.Y., swept through five games en route to the championship. It was New York's third NABF title in 10 years.

The Yankees advanced to the Super Series in Texas by winning the Northville tournament. Bayside will compete with five other squads for the national championship Aug. 19-26.

Dearborn Slitt, which included Northville's Ryan Kelly, stood as New York's final test Saturday. The contest looked like a pitcher's duel in the early stages.

Bayside's Richard Jelovcic struck out the first two batters of the game and then got Delano Voletti on a fly ball to center field. Lefty Terry Bigham surrendered a single to New York in the first inning but escaped without allowing a run.

The Yankees broke through in the second inning.

Brad Kata and John Penatello reached base on an error and walk to start the rally. New York then executed a double steal to perfection, and went up 1-0. The home team then added a second run on a double to right center by Tony Solimando.

Dearborn tied the game in the third inning. Four straight singles brought in Slitt's first run. Then Ed Roman drew a bases-loaded walk to push across the tying run.

New York put the winning rally together in the fourth inning.

With the game tied at three, Robert Milano doubled home two runs. Two batters later, Dan Blednick crushed a fastball for a two-run homer over the leftfield fence.

Dearborn rallied for a run in the fifth inning and looked for more in the seventh.

Voletti singled and Tom Hartley walked to start the inning. Then with two out, Roman singled home one run to cut the lead to 7-5. But Rene Vega got Aaron Shrewsbury on a liner to second base to end the game.

Vega earned a save, going three innings in relief of Jelovcic. The starter pitched through the fourth and struck out eight in his pitching stint.

A total of eight teams competed in the tournament. Defending champion Lexington, Ky., was eliminated by the Yankees in a semi-final Saturday.

Northville pitcher David McCulloch fires a pitch in Thursday's game with Bainbridge Island.

Northville falls 5-4 to Ohio team in World Series

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

A 5-4 loss to Warren, Ohio, dropped the Northville Mickey Mantle, squad from the National Amateur Baseball Federation Junior World Series Friday.

Trailing 5-0 after two innings, Northville chipped away at the visitors but couldn't make a full comeback. The rally was led by Brian Crumley, Chuck Yessalan, Tom Willer and Aneal Kersey, each with an RBI.

Northville finishes the season with a 12-10 overall record.

Facing elimination Friday, Crumley got the call for the locals. The left-hander retired Ohio easily in the first inning but ran into trouble in the second.

With a runner on first and one out, Crumley walked Evan Rees and surrendered a single to Jason Johnson to load the bases. Then with two outs, Warren scored all of its runs on a walk and a pair of two-run singles. Justin Marcis relieved and got the final out.

Northville put on its rally caps starting in the third inning.

Kersey and Chris Gomersall led off with singles. Crumley followed with a single to rightfield to score Kersey. A sacrifice fly from Yessalan cut the lead to 5-2 by the end of the inning.

Northville scored single runs in the fourth and fifth to make it a tight ball game. An infield single by Kersey scored Marcis in the fourth inning. Willer drew a bases-loaded walk in the fifth for his team's final run.

Yessalan doubled with one out in the seventh but was stranded to end the game.

Marcis pitched well in relief for Northville. He tossed nearly six innings without allowing a run. BAINBRIDGE ISLAND 9, NORTHVILLE 2

Northville started the tournament Thursday on a sour note, scratching out just one hit against the squad from Washington state.

Bainbridge Island's John Mattson and Forrest Schindler combined to handcuff the locals with 13 strikeouts. Yessalan got Northville's only hit.

Washington scored five runs in the second inning to take a commanding lead. The visitors added a run in the sixth and two in the seventh.

Northville scored without the aid of a hit in the second inning. Yessalan walked and advanced to third on a wild pitch and passed ball. He later scored on an error.

The home team got its final run in the fourth inning. Northville put runners on second and third as Crumley reached on an error and Yessalan doubled. A wild pitch then scored Crumley.

Youngsters enjoy baseball games

Scott
Daniel

Odds and ends on a warm summer evening...

Some rode their bikes in, some walked. In all, a dozen youngsters gathered behind the center field fence at Northville High last Thursday for the National Amateur Baseball Federation World Series.

Many of the boys frolicked, not paying much attention to the ball games going on in front of them. Others roamed down towards left field hoping to catch a home run. A few simply sat Indian-style, looking and wishing, perhaps that they were on the field.

Some left after an hour or two. But most returned for all three days of the tournament.

This may seem a little insignificant, but I don't think so. Those of you with children know just how many things there are to grab their attention — Nintendo, the latest CD, M-TV, etc. . .

The fact that these youngsters would want to come back every day says a few things about the Series.

● The baseball was good. Most of the games were close and well-played. Pitching was outstanding at times and enough runs were scored to make it interesting.

In relay events, the team of Nicol, Brandy Mohr, Utley and Mocerri was sixth in the 200-meter freestyle. Domin. Zerber, Charlie Rozum and Derick Land were sixth in the 200 meter freestyle.

The team of Kern, Marti McKenzie, Kristen Derwich and Megan Mocerri were fourth in the 200-meter relay. In the girls 800-meter 13- to 14-year-old division, Marla McKenzie, Katy Nicol, Moretti and Gina Palmeri were eighth.

The 15- to 17-year-old boys team of Orris, Fisher, Cobb and Ench Kelly was fifth in the 400-meter medley. Orms, Fisher, Sopha and Kelly were fourth in the 800-meter freestyle.

Basketball tourney to benefit cancer patient

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

Northville residents will have a chance to put their basketball skills to good use later this month.

A three-on-three tournament will be held Aug. 21-22 at Marty Feldman Chevrolet in Novi to benefit cancer patient Jason Stewart. Proceeds of the event will go to help with the 19-year-old's medical bills and college education.

According to Jason's mother Cindy Stewart, who works for the City of Novi as its public information director, there is no specific fundraising goal for the tournament.

"Whatever they want to do for him I think is wonderful," she said.

Stewart was diagnosed with bone cancer in September of 1992. Since then he has undergone extensive treatment, including chemotherapy.

Surgery was required to remove cancer from his right femur. A major portion of the leg-bone was removed and replaced with metal rods.

"He's keeping a positive attitude," said Cindy. "It's amazing with all he's been through."

The family is hoping that the latest round of chemotherapy will provide a cure to the cancer. The treatment will conclude in November.

Jason was enrolled in his first year of college when cancer was diagnosed. Concordia College had offered him a partial basketball scholarship and he had also received grants from Schoolcraft College in Livonia. Because of the illness, Stewart lost the scholarship and grant offers.

Stewart plans to resume college at Michigan State University in January.

"He wants to get into elementary education," said Cindy.

The tournament will feature four age divisions. Youngsters can hoop it up in the 18-and-under bracket while other divisions include: men's open, men's 30-and over and women's open.

Individual and team awards will be handed out at the tournament, which is sponsored by Marty Feldman Chevrolet, Shield's Pizza and the South Lyon Hotel. Teams can register at the Novi Parks and Recreation office in the Civic Center until Aug. 19.

Teams must pay $50 to enter. For more information call the department at 347-0400.

Cattails leaves lasting impression on area golfers

By SCOTT SIGLER
Sports Writer

You can always count on Cattails Golf Course to make a lasting impression.

The South Lyon course redefines the term first-class operation. Immaculate and perfectly groomed, this course provides some of the most demanding golf in Oakland County.

Cattails is a mixture of a public and private course. Club memberships are available, but the links are open to everyone. The course gives the public golfer the private club treatment — someone picks up your bags from your car, loads them onto a cart, cleans them when you're finished and then carries them back to the car.

And the course itself is private-club caliber. Meticulously carved from swamp and wetlands, golfing Cattails is a gorgeous experience. Packed with ponds, reeds, cattails, trees, and wetland birds, these links provide a serene outing — as long as your game is going well.

When it's not going well, as is known to happen at Cattails, you probably won't find the natural scenery so attractive. The Cattails builders went to great lengths to keep much of the natural beauty intact, but that beauty also makes the course tougher than a fairway goose.

Cattails is full of hazards — all those chunks of natural splendor have a darker side. Cattails is not for beginners. If you don't know what you're doing, you'll probably have a lot more fun staying home and watching The Masters on TV.

Hole No. 10

One of the most celebrated holes in the area, No. 10 has gained statewide fame. Nicknamed "Aquaphobia" by Dave Seanor, managing editor of PGA Magazine, the hole wraps around a large chunk of wetlands on the right of the fairway. You can hit to the edge of the wetlands and try to go over on the second shot, or you can play it safe and go around the narrow fairway.

Either way, you'd better know your distance and be highly accurate — or bring extra balls.

Hole 11 & 12

These two holes end with glass-like greens. The greens are very fast and they're slightly tilted — a tad too much energy and the ball sails 15 feet past your target.

Final summer concert tonight

Tonight is the last of the 1993 Sounds of Summer Concert Series and we're going out with a bang! For your listening pleasure we present our very own Novi Concert Band outside of the Novi Civic Center at 7 p.m.

The Novi Concert Band has performed annually at the Summer Concerts and is always welcomed back with open arms. The 60 members that make up the woodwinds and brass band are your neighbors and friends from Novi and the surrounding suburbs. The concert band has been in existence since 1982.

Tonight's concert will feature a mixture of marches, light classical pieces and show tune selections from Oklahoma and Show Boat. It will be a 90-minute performance outside the Civic Center (weather permitting). The location was moved from the new Providence Hospital site. Jack Kopnick, retired music director from the Allen Park School system, is the new conductor.

The Novi Concert Band has been very busy this year performing at the Novi, Northville, Farmington and Wayne Summer Concert Series. They performed in Northville three times this summer drawing 300-400 people each time.

Tonight is the last summer concert.

FILE PHOTO

Their Christmas and Spring concerts are also well attended. This spring at Furst Auditorium the Concert Band performed the Grieg Piano Concerto with guest soloist Dr. John Kollman from Providence Hospital. The Novi Concert Band is always looking for serious-minded musicians interested in joining the band. Rehearsals are every Tuesday evening from 7:30-9:30 p.m. at Novi High School.

For information on joining or a schedule of future concerts, call Warren Ledger at 348-2955. Extra special thanks again to Border Cantina, Honey Tree, Leon's, Olive Garden, Red Robin, Ruby Tuesday and Salvatore Scallopini for donating the "Lunches for 2" that were given away as prize drawings during each concert. The free lemonade, pretzels, balloons and blowing bubbles were also a big hit with the kids. While the end of the summer concerts means that summer is slowly winding down, Novi Parks and Recreation never takes a rest from providing activities, programs, classes and events for you and your family to enjoy. See you at 7. Watch your mail at the end of August for the next Novi Parks & Rec brochure filled with more great activities.

Dental insurance is common benefit

Dr. Kathryn Hoppe, D.D.S.

Dental insurance coverage, all but unheard of just 30 years ago, has evolved into our nation's fastest-growing employee benefit. Americans have come to expect dental insurance coverage, especially when being employed by a large company.

Most dental insurance plans focus on prevention. These plans pay a greater percentage on preventive services such as teeth cleanings and examinations. The patient, however, is expected to pay a portion of restoring teeth with cavities or fractures. This encourages patients to be prevention-oriented and get regular dental check-ups and examinations every six months.

Like any insurance plan or policy, dental insurance plans do have limitations. The plan coverage is determined by the "insurance package" purchased by the employer. For example, if "root canal therapy coverage" was not purchased in the plan, then a root canal operation will not be a benefit no matter how great the need is for a particular person.

Another item of confusion on dental insurance plans is deductibles. Some plans have deductibles and others do not. Again it depends on the package purchased by the employer. A deductible is the first portion or amount the patient must pay on dental services. Then the insurance plan covers their percentage of deductible per family member each year. Others may have a $100 deductible per family each year. Others have no deductible at all.

The term "calendar year" also causes confusion. It refers to the date of the year that the dental insurance plan renews each year. Most run from Jan. 1 to Dec. 31. But a very large percentage of plans start March 1 or July 1, for example. In a calendar year, one has a certain dollar amount for dental services. If you do not use it, then you lose it for that year. In the next calendar year, your benefits renew again, with the dollar amount determined by your plan.

Most dental insurance plans cover a certain dollar amount for a service and do not follow the percentage rule. Some plans also require a year's employment before certain services, such as crowns, are eligible for coverage.

If you had dental services provided by a dentist and have been having difficulty with your insurance covering those services, you may write to the Michigan Insurance Bureau. It will help resolve the problem. You may phone my office at (313) 348-5151, and we will be happy to give you the complete address.

The most important issue regarding dental insurance coverage is to "know your policy." While we in the dental office will try to help you, it is your policy that your employer purchased for you. There are hundreds of plans that keep changing all the time. Your personnel department where you work should be able to help you or direct you to those who can.

Dr. Kathryn Hoppe has a dental practice located in the Novi Professional Village, 23985 Novi Road in Novi. This column is coordinated by Peg Campbell and the staff of the U-M Health Centers.

VICTORIAN COSTUME MAKING: "I haven't got a thing to wear!" Does this line sound familiar when you are preparing for the Northville Victorian Festival? Worry no more. Northville Parks and Recreation is offering a class on how to prepare for this annual event. Victorian costume making will consist of two nights of learning the ins and outs of Victorian-style garb.

The classes will be held on Wednesdays, Sept. 8 and 15, from 7:30-9:30 p.m. The first night will be devoted to a lecture and slide show. This will enable you to get new ideas in putting together a stylized period costume that will not cost a fortune in time or money.

The second night you will have something to take home with you. Hats and headgear to match your gown will be designed, taking a modest straw hat and turning it into a Victorian Fantasy.

The cost for material is estimated at $10 and is not included in the price of the class. This two-day class costs $20 and will be held at the Northville Community Center at 303 W. Main.

GOLF TRYOUTS: The Northville High golf team will be holding tryouts Aug. 16-18 at South Lyon's Tanglewood golf course. Candidates should report at the course at 1 p.m.

TENNIS TRYOUTS: Tryouts for the Northville High girls junior and varsity teams will be held Aug. 16 at the high school courts at 9 a.m.

COLTS: The Novi/Northville Colts is accepting registration for its varsity football team. Practice begins next month and the season starts after Labor Day. Interested boys ages 12-14 can contact Tim May (348-4418) or Jeff Cook (347-7776) for more information.

GOLF OUTING: The Northville Athletic Boosters will be holding an outing Aug. 13 at Braeburn Golf Club. An $80 donation gets 18 holes of golf, one bucket of range balls, four beverage tickets during golf, a hot dog at the turn, a full barbecue dinner, four hours of open beverage service, door prizes, and a chance at a hole in one for a new car. For more information call 344-8403.

● The Series ran like clockwork. Tournament director Bob Frellick kept games on schedule and selected excellent umpires to call the games.

● The field was in great shape. Not in any other sport is the condition of the field so important. A good baseball field should be pleasing to the fan's eye. It was.

Not only did the kids enjoy the Series, so did the adults. Several out-of-town parents told me they were pleasantly surprised by the quality of the tournament and how much they liked Northville. . .

I had a chance to go to the final round of the Bulek Open Sunday in Grand Blanc. What a production. Miles of cable lines. Cameras everywhere. Heck, even the blimp was there. Sometimes I wondered, though, if the folks running the tournament would have liked to usher the huge gallery off the course to make things more efficient for the TV network.

Aske from the showbiz aspect, it was a real treat watching the best players in the world have at it. I watched all the big names tee off at No. 1: Tom Watson, Greg Norman, Payne Stewart, Fred Couples, Corey Pavin and Fuzzy Zoeller. Without a doubt, Norman was the most impressive of the bunch.

All of the pros had good swings. Balance, tempo, follow-through, all the elements were present.

But the Shark was off the map. The arc of his swing was much wider and broader than any of the others. Norman swung so the ball sounded like it had been shot out of a cannon when he made contact.

If you've never been to a pro tournament make it a point to go to one.

Successful season

REAL ESTATE

Building by computer

By James M. Woodard
Copley News Service

I've toured many homes over the 22 years I've been writing this real estate column. But the tour I recently experienced was different from the others.

The home was creatively designed by architect Jack K. Shaffer, AIA. It's not a huge structure, just 2,800 square feet. But the contemporary Mediterranean-styled residence had some particularly interesting features.

Shaffer first guided me through a unique octagonal-shaped entrance. We then entered the living room with impressive fireplace and loft.

We looked down from the loft, providing an ideal perspective for considering the best positioning of living room furniture. And from this vantage point we had a captivating view of the ocean through large picture windows.

We viewed each room, from the entrance door and a point near the ceiling looking down on the room. We then looked at the exterior of the home from many perspectives — including an aerial view, as from a helicopter.

The most interesting aspect of the tour was that the home didn't

The Duchess is just another farmhouse...not!

By James McAlexander
Copley News Service

From outside, the Duchess looks like a basic country-style home, a little on the large size. But a closer look at the exterior, and a glance inside the lofty sky-lit foyer tells you that this is no old-fashioned farmhouse.

The wide wraparound front porch is country, but the wide custom door isn't. It's flanked by side-lights and crowned, on the second floor level, by a huge haU-round window. This wealth of glass increases street appeal and combines with the skylights to create a strikingly bright entry area. Add a few potted kees, and you've got an atrium.

At the back of the foyer, a graceful polished wood balustrade curves up to reach the three bedrooms on the second floor, where a landing overlooks the foyer.

Two bedrooms have walk-in closets.

Linen storage is in the hallway, and the sky-lit bathroom has two basins in an extra-long vanity.

The master suite has a huge walk-in closet, two basins in the bathroom and another vanity in the dressing area.

Following tradition, the formal dining room is on one side of the foyer and the living room (or parlor) is on the other. But the rest of the lower level is contemporary.

A small bathroom and a long closet are close to both the entrance and the kitchen.

The kitchen is huge, expanded by a garden window and a sun-brightened nook with a sliding door that opens onto the deck. A raised eating bar wraps around three sides of an extended work island with a centrally located cook top. Face framing on one side of the walk-in pantry provides direct access to some of the shelves.

The generously sized utility room has everything — a deep sink, fold-down ironing board, closet, counters for folding clothes and space enough to house a sewing machine. Its location, between the garage and the kitchen, is handy for hauling groceries in from the car, or shucking off messy footgear to avoid kacking carpets.

Skylights brighten the vaulted family room, and a fireplace, or wood-burning stove, nestles in the back corner.

OVERALL DIMENSIONS: 87' 6" X 67' 0"
LIVING: 2,987 square feet
GARAGE: 808 square feet

BUGGED?

CRIMINAL: Caterpillars, AKA cut-worms, army-worms.
RAP SHEET: Mass property destruction — they eat more than their weight every day.
WARNING SIGNS: Conspicuous by their size, they can be witnessed in their criminal capers. Holes in leaves or sawed-off shoots. Sentence: Wildflowers, bushes, trees and hedgerows can attract predatory birds. Cover plants with lightweight, clear plastic in early season, or buy Trichogramma, a tiny, parasitic wasp that is harmless to humans but a death machine for the caterpillars.

CRIMINAL: Japanese beetles.
RAP SHEET: Shredding leaves and blossoms.
WARNING SIGNS: Easy to spot, the beetles are about a half-inch long with an iridescent blue-green thorax and copper wing covers.

SENTENCE: Pick or shake them off the plants and collect the bugs for disposal (there's even a vacuum cleaner specifically made to do the job). A bird-feeder, shrubbery or wildflowers of the carrot family will attract predatory birds. "Milky spore disease," which kills only the beetle grubs, can be bought at stores, as can predatory nematodes.

CRIMINALS: Slugs and snails, AKA the Munching Mollusks.
RAP SHEET: Loitering under leaves, eating plants, fruits and vegetables.
WARNING SIGNS: Look for ragged holes in fruit, leaves and stems as well as nasty slime trails both leave in their wake.

SENTENCE: Removing mulch (they like the moisture) or attracting predatory birds with cracked corn or sunflower seeds. You can leave a dish of beer — the snails and slugs crawl in to drink and drown. A ring of diatomaceous earth (ground-up fossilized plankton) will cut the slug's skin and cause them to dry up and die.

You reach for that perfect tomato, glowing with a firm opulence of health and taste. Snapping it off the vine, you beam at the final result of a season of intense labor. Turning it in your hand, you examine the shape, the color, the texture — the slug (eww!).

With an endless list of vital tasks to insure a healthy crop, it hardly seems fair that the bugs are the first to taste the fruits of your labor.

Insect pests are the foil to heroic gardening efforts. Consider the garden a summer-long movie, and these little guys are the villains. Like any good protagonist, if your efforts are to be a success, the bad guys have got to go.

But before you play the part of a pesticide Rambo with these dastardly destructors, you have to remember every action has a reaction. Dousing you garden with sprays and poisons may work in the short term, but there are detrimental effects.

Pesticides kill the bad guys, but they also kill all the beneficial insects, including the ones that eat the pests. Pesticides build up on your crops, they are a danger to animals and children, and if used enough they can seep into the groundwater.

Not to mention the fact that bugs can develop resistance to pesticides. The ones you don't kill breed hordes of superbugs that shrug off the effects of the pesticide with a sinister laugh between tomato-leaf bites — and there aren't any good bugs left to stop them (they perished as collateral damage, remember?).

So what exactly can you do? How about not only having a green thumb, but a green mentality as well.

There are many ways to control garden pests without touching a bottle of insecticide. One of the best ways to stop the little villains is to attract natural predators. Birds, in particular, are great at munching your troubles away.

Planting bright wildflowers around and in your garden attracts predatory birds, as does leaving cracked corn and sunflower seeds around the area. Birds come in for the bait and discover a buffet of tasty bugs.

Good bugs are a great answer to the bad ones. Larvae of ladybugs and praying mantises are available through mail-order catalogs. Ladybugs are a highly-touted answer, although they are highly

CRIMINAL: Aphids, AKA the Green Mob.
RAP SHEET: Munching plants without a permit and assembly-line breeding.
WARNING SIGNS: Yellowing, curling leaves and/or a sooty mold on stems. Aphids are very visible if you look close at the stems.
SENTENCE:

Hosing down plants at least twice a week knocks aphids to the ground where predators can eat them, or you can brush them off by hand. Also try natural predators — lacewing larvae can eat 60 aphids per hour.

CRIMINAL: Whitefly larvae, AKA insect delinquents.
RAP SHEET: Assault on azaleas, cabbage, tomatoes and brussels sprouts.
WARNING SIGNS: Use a magnifying glass to check older leaves for larvae (translucent, stationary dots) and eggs (greenish-white pointed tubes that hang from the leaf).

SENTENCE: Make a trap by painting a board yellow and covering it with sticky (whiteflies are attracted to yellow) or buy a ready-made trap. Also use the same methods that stop aphids.

CRIMINAL: Mites, which are arachnids (like spiders).
RAP SHEET: Mass murder of several plants — spider mites aren't picky.
WARNING SIGNS: Small webs under leaves, needle-like holes under leaves, yellowing and falling leaves. Tap leaves over a piece of white paper and look for tiny specs.

SENTENCE: Keep plants shaded and moist. Use a mulch to increase humidity near plants and mist them on hot days. Spacing plants may prevent rearing. If that doesn't work, you may have to resort to insecticidal soap or chemicals for severe infestations.

GARDENING

If you're a pet-owning gardener, chances are you've spent hours in hot pursuit of a mischievous cat or dog that has chewed up (or eaten completely) your favorite houseplant, garden flower or vegetable.

Instead of struggling to keep the rascals out, I suggest that you plant a garden expressly for your animal friends.

Since most animals require a certain amount of greens in their diets, it's best to provide some for nutrition purposes. This will keep them from invading your garden or houseplants.

A "pet" garden could either be a small patch or container inside, or both.

Find your pets' personal preference (you may know from bitter experience). But, in general, you can count on certain plants to appeal to your animal, such as a bit of the variety that your dog is always going after in your garden.

• Suggested dog gardens: a patch of bare soil for digging; oats — dogs love to munch on them; "dog hole" in hot weather — dogs will dust themselves with the dry soil; a patch of fescue for grazing.

• Suggested cat garden: Plant catnip, also oats.

Cats prefer the young, tender leaves of oats, so plant for successive sowings. If you plant catnip in the garden, start with a few plants in an isolated area, as it tends to take over!

A few plants will make even a stuffy old feline feel his oats and act like a kitten again!

There also are kits of "cat grass" available through some catalogs. These make marvelous presents for cat-owning friends. Some catalogs also offer containers that will sprout birdseed in the cage for your flying friends. After all, birds need their delicacies, too!

• Rabbits: are much less choosy about their garden delicacies; they'll munch on just about anything in your regular vegetable garden, so plant their garden with a good mix of legumes and leafy greens.

WONDERFUL ROSES

The 1993 crop of All-American Rose Selections award-winners promises to be a standout in home gardens from coast to coast. Exciting color is here, along with the elegance of classic rose flower form.

And these rose bushes are Making pressure-treated wood last longer below ground

By Gene Gary
Copley News Service

Q. I am about to replace a wooden colonial-style post in our front yard.

This will be the third time I have replaced this fixture because the base has rotted below ground.

About 2 feet of the lamppost goes underground. An open shaft runs through the center of the post and carries the electrical wiring that is connected by an underground conduit.

What is the best method of installation that might prevent rotting of the post below ground? Any assistance you can give would be greatly appreciated.—R.J.R.

A. Wood that is best-suited for ground installation outdoors is cedar, redwood, CCA pressure-treated lumber, or wood that has been treated with borate. These woods are least susceptible to wood-boring insects and decay fungi.

CCA pressure-treated lumber is the least expensive and most widely used. It is a chemically treated wood that is fairly safe once treated and dried. However, there are a few precautions that must be taken with the wood, and any waste product, for health and safety.

When purchasing pressure-treated woods, be sure and pick up the consumer information sheet that lumberyards are required by law to distribute with each sale. The information includes warnings on how not to use the wood: construction of countertops where food is prepared, cautions against burning scraps and sawdust, which can release arsenic and other toxic ingredients that are bonded in the wood, etc.

CCA-treated lumber should be used only when protection against rot and wood-boring insects is a priority.

If your lamppost comes to you already made up and not treated, you can treat the wood yourself with an EPA-approved borate-based Bora-Care, manufactured by Perma-Chink Systems (1605 Prosser Road, Knoxville, TN 37914; phone (800) 548-3554).

Follow manufacturer's directions carefully when working with this liquid wood preservative.

In addition to assuring that the wood is treated for protection against rot, the way the post is installed is very important. Use a posthole digger (which can be rented) and dig a hole about 2-1/2 to 3 feet deep and a minimum of 6 inches wider than the diameter of the post.

The bottom of the hole should be twice as wide. This wider section should begin about a foot from the bottom. Shovel about 4 inches of crushed stone into the hole (be sure to run a piece of pipe up the center to accommodate the electrical conduit).

Compact the stone, tapping into place with a sturdy piece of lumber.

On the crushed stone, put larger stone that is reasonably flat, brick or fragments of concrete. This will help keep the post from settling.

Place the post in the hole. With a helper to steady it, hold a carpenter's level alongside the post, first on one side and then 90 degrees away, on another side. When the post is vertical at both locations, shovel more crushed stone into the hole and tamp it into place within about 8 inches of the surface. Fill the remaining portion with concrete. Above ground level, the concrete should slope away from the post to aid drainage.

Both quick-setting concrete for fence posts and crushed stone are available at building supply stores. Be sure to protect the upper portion of your post with a wood stain, wood preservative or a quality paint over a recommended primer.

Depending on the wood you have used, i.e., pressure-treated and kiln-dried, treated with Bora-Care or air dried, you will need to make sure the wood is thoroughly dry prior to application of a protective coating. This can take several months. Consult your lumber dealer and your local paint dealer for recommendations.

Walking through homes, buildings almost a virtual reality with the computer yet exist. Construction hadn't started. In fact, the planning phase was not completed.

The entire tour was viewed on a color computer screen, using a state-of-the-art software program that produces three-dimensional drawing visualizations. The program — Virtus Walk-Through — was recently developed primarily for architects and designers to provide the capability to explore varying design ideas from many perspectives before finalizing the plans.

"With this program, I can prototype different design ideas and show clients how it would look," Shaffer said. "Using the computer cursor to navigate, we can look underneath, climb over or go inside any object. And we can quickly make changes and evaluate various design options with immediate visual feedback, saving both time and money.

"I can even change a room's color with a flick, or squeak, of my computer mouse."

Shaffer, owner of a firm called Architectonics, recently purchased the program from the Virtus Corp., based in Cary, N.C. It's the first and so far only program that allows such visual flexibility, according to Tom Steagall, a Virtus executive.

Architect Shaffer is now using the new Walk-Through program extensively for new design assignments. This includes the design of homes, commercial buildings and major remodeling projects. He also uses it in planning tenant improvement projects in office or other commercial structures.

"It's a very effective method of manipulating space and design concepts," he said.

The development of the Walk-Through computer program for architects and designers was inspired by the "flight simulator" program for airline pilots, and the "lunar landing simulator" used to fine-tune the planned spacecraft landing on the moon.

Now that the program for architects is available, it has opened the door to more uses.

For example, it recently played a key behind-the-scenes technical role in the filming of the movie "The Firm."

The Walk-Through program was used to plan each day's shots, develop sets and pre-visualize individual scenes. It helped to make quick and correct decisions about lighting, camera angles, movement, space design and other production and creative issues.

"It gave me a big advantage in getting the feeling of movement and a visual perspective before going onto a set to shoot," said director Sydney Pollack.

"I can use my little computer to assign any focal length I want for the camera, and I can preview and record angles and shots. I can do it all before the set is built, saving a lot of money."

Another increasingly frequent use of the new program in the movie industry is to storyboard key scenes in a proposed new movie. Previously, a long series of individual sketches comprised the storyboard. Now, a fast-moving sequence of color three-dimensional scenes can be viewed on a computer screen.

Still other example uses for the fledgling design program are to plan a factory or store floor layout, planning a crime scene re-creation or exploring the latest space station design, according to Virtus Corp.'s Steagall.

For consumers, the most visible impact of the recently developed computer program will be when architects invite buyers to view advance three-dimensional scenes of the house they are planning. They will see many perspectives of the exterior, as well as each interior room.

It will allow design changes with a flick of a few keys, or roll or a restless mouse. And it will provide input for the best possible placement of furniture.

Q. What's a good source of information about refinancing a home mortgage loan?

A. The best rve seen is a 140-page book by Jack Friedman titled "Keys to Mortgage Financing and Refinancing."

The book clearly explains how to shop for a new mortgage and refinance an existing loan. It points out how to avoid common pitfalls. In addition to being a basic how-to book on conventional mortgages, it covers second mortgages and mortgage-related tax considerations.

vigorous, bred to grow in any U.S. climate. Like all AARS winners, they have already proved themselves for two full growing seasons in AARS-sanctioned gardens located across the United States.

The newest winners are:

- Solitude: a grandiflora colored with all the shades of sunset.
- Rio Samba: a hybrid tea that flowers in brightest yellow with orange tones.

OLD SEEDS

Keep watch on last year's seeds. Check the date on old seed packets of flowers and vegetables before throwing them away. Of course, some seeds can last several years. However, leftover seeds should have been stored correctly in a cool, dry place.

You can safely store seeds of hollyhock, gourds, sweet pea and zinnia for up to five years and still expect at least half of them to flower.

The same results from seeds of marigolds, petunias, alyssums and snapdragons will last stored properly from three to five years.

Unfortunately, seeds of foxglove, begonias, pansies and phlox will last only one to two years.

If you don't know how leftover seed was stored, forget it: as fresh seed from garden centers and catalogs isn't that costly and offers you immediate results.

A. When carbon dioxide accumulates in the atmosphere, it prevents the return of the sun's heat to outer space. Instead, the heat is trapped in the air and promotes a general warming of the climate.

Trees, however, can combat this phenomenon, because they take in carbon dioxide and store it, while at the same time letting out the healthy oxygen back into the air.

So, if we and our neighbors all plant a tree or two, we can do wonders for the atmosphere (greenhouse effect)—100 million newly planted trees is the goal.

ANTIQUES

Q. I am writing to ask about the value of the pottery tankard and six mugs in the enclosed picture. My father got them from a friend many years ago when an estate was settled; he says they are worth something.

The marking on the bottom of each piece is a buffalo atop the words "Ye Buffalo Pottery" and "1908." Below these are the words "Deldare Ware Underglaze."

The inscription on the tankard is "The Great Controversy." On one of the mugs are the words "Ye Lion Inn"; on two of the mugs "At the Three Pigeons," and on three mugs "The Fallowfield Hunt."

All are in perfect condition.

A. Buffalo Pottery was established in Buffalo, N.Y., in 1901 by the Larkin Co., a famous soap manufacturer.

Deldare ware is the most sought after and best known of their line. The khaki-colored earthenware is decorated with transfer prints or decals. The hunting and tavern scenes were produced from 1908 to 1909.

Your Deldare tankard and mugs would probably sell for about $2,000 to $2,500.

Q. I have a 23-jewel Howard pocket watch, with a 10-karat goldfilled case. Engraved inside the case is as follows: "E. Howard Watch Co. Boston — patented G.W.G. Co. — crescent and star engraved — serial No. 1976610 — warranted crescent 25 years."

The main spring needs to be replaced. Can you tell me the age and potential value of my watch?

A. The Howard name was purchased by the Keystone Watch Case Co. in 1902. They continued to mark the watches "E. Howard Watch Co. Boston."

The warranted crescent 25 years indicates the watch is gold filled. According to the serial number, it was manufactured in the early 20th century.

Your 23-jewel Howard pocket watch with a 10-karat gold-filled case would probably be worth about $600 to $700 in good condition.

Q. I have a washbowl and pitcher that are white, and decorated with a blue floral design. The pitcher is 11 inches tall and the bowl is 16 inches in diameter.

The mark is a Viking ship with five shields with oars. Also, on the bottom are the words "Furnivals Ltd." and "443969." I would like to know the value.

A. Furnivals Ltd., Cobridge, Staffordshire, England, is the manufacturer of your washbowl and pitcher. This company was in existence from 1890 to 1964.

The mark you describe was used from 1905 to 1913. The registry number indicates your set was made sometime in 1905.

Your bowl and pitcher would probably be worth about $165 to $185.

Q. I have a Royal Doulton figurine of the Puppetmaker. He is wearing brown trousers, a green vest, white shirt, a small cap of brown and tan; the boy puppet's costume is red and green, and the girl's dress is green with an overdrift of light and dark blue. The height is 8 inches. It is marked "1961—Doulton and Co. Limited—HN 2253."

Could you please tell me the value of my figurine?

A. Royal Doulton copyrighted the Puppetmaker in 1961, but manufactured this figurine from 1962 to 1973.

The value would probably be about $400 to $500.

BOOK REVIEW

"The Price Guide to Flea Market Treasures, Second Edition," by Harry L. Rinker Jr., Wallace Homestead Book Co., an imprint of

This Deldare tankard and mug set would probably sell for $2,000 to $2,500

Chilton Book Co., is available in bookstores and antique shops for $14.95 (paperback).

This book is chock-full of expert advice and valuable information on how to land a good buy.

If you've ever been in a quandary over questions like these: "Is it a reproduction or a fake?" "What's a fair price?" "What type of dealers are there?" (three according to Rinker) or, "Should I haggle?"—then this book is for you.

It includes everything you've ever wanted to know about honing your flea market skills.

The detailed price guide ranges from the traditional, such as furniture, pottery, dinnerware to the newer collectibles, which include Pez dispensers, Hot Wheels and "Star Wars" treasures.

Rinker's expanded second edition has more listings, and over 40 categories. It not only offers brief histories, information about collectors clubs, and periodicals, it also provides a flea market survival guide.

When you head out for the flea markets, don't leave home without it.

BUGGED? Some ways to deal with the little critters mobile and unlikely not stick around. Preying mantises are another reputed remedy, but they eat every bug in sight, including the good ones and each other.

Lacewing larvae are a great predator, as they can consume up to 60 aphids and hour. A late trend in organic pest control is the microscopic nematode. Nematodes crawl inside bugs and release a bacteria. Xenorhabdus sp., which is highly fatal to most insects. Both of these bug-killers are also available through mail-order shops.

Many solutions are much less exotic. If slugs are your ailment, as they are for many in the area, put a soupcon or bowl of beer in the garden. Slugs crawl in to drink and they drown.

Planting companion crops can also dissuade bugs from attacking your main crops, as in the common practice of planting marigolds amongst tomatoes. Eliminating bare soil with a cover crop, such as clover, can also be a great weed preventer.

Experts say sex pheromone traps or floral lures aren't really effective — they attract more neighboring bugs to your property than they actually kill.

On top of the organic means of controlling pests, many people are finding that little, if any, control is needed at all.

"The prevailing thought in the industry is most people should just deal with insect damage," said Steve Warren of Cheryl's Garden in Milford. "Bugs may make the plants look unsightly. Most people see bugs and think the plant is going to die, but in but 99.4 percent of the cases that's not true."

"Most plants were around a long time before humans were around and they took care of themselves. Some plants just play host to the bugs as part of their life-cycle."

Finally, if all else fails, you may have to resort to chemical sprays. Some problems are very difficult to solve without pesticides, so the important thing when using this last resort is looking for the "least-toxic" solution. Look for the words "caution," "warning" or "danger" on the label. Chemicals labeled "caution" are the least toxic and pose the least hazard when used as directed on the label. Those labeled "warning" are moderately toxic, while those labeled "danger" are highly toxic.

One tip is to look for an organic pesticide. They aren't necessarily any safer than synthetic varieties, but they do break down faster.

Controlling your pesticide use is important because homeowners are the biggest source of pesticide pollution.

"Farmers cover a large area, but they're using one-tenth the strength homeowners use," Warren said. "With pesticides and lawn fertilizers, homeowners are using five to ten times what the farmers are using."

The bottom line? If used properly, pesticides are safe and they do get the job done. You can, however, control the problem without them — eliminating the pollution and hazard.

And that's a happy ending most gardeners would love to watch.

Which BTU is best for you?

A BTU, or British Thermal Unit is the amount of heat necessary to raise the temperature of one pound of water one degree fahrenheit.

The BTU rating of an air conditioning unit indicates the amount of heat it can remove from the air. The higher the BTU rating, the more heat a unit is capable of removing.

Realty firm finds Northville niche

By RICK BYRNE
Copy Editor

Sometimes small is better. That's what Jerry Delaney figured a year and a half ago when he opened J.A. Delaney and Co. real estate in Northville. His hunch has proven correct as the firm has grown into such diverse areas that the breadth of service belies the quaint exterior of its quarters, a restored home at the corner of Rayson and Center streets.

Though Delaney started off managing single-family homes as income properties and condominium developments, he recently added commercial property management to his menu, years ahead of schedule.

The company coordinates and supervises maintenance and repairs, collects rents, pays utilities, insurance and taxes, and provides monthly statements for owners of income property. Peter J. Light handles the commercial side of it.

"I had some plans to do commercial management after a couple of years when I opened this company 18 months ago," said Delaney. "But I got talking with Peter and he said why not do it now?"

Light came to Delaney a year ago, after eight years with a large commercial development firm in the area, and helped develop the commercial end of J.A. Delaney and Co. Among the properties the company now handles is The Northville Record building at Main and Center streets.

In addition to the newspaper, the 8,700-square-foot building houses the Bookstall on the Main, First Impressions Landscape Design and the offices of Philip Ogilvie, attorney. The red brick building has been a landmark in Northville since its construction in 1921.

J.A. Delaney and Co. also has joined forces with The Smith Company, owned by residential builder Anne Smith. A Northville resident and a licensed builder since 1987, Smith has done extensive remodeling on historic homes in the North Woodward Avenue communities and resort homes in New Buffalo, Mich. She takes greatest pride, however, in new construction projects she's directed in Grosse Pointe and Northville.

A big favorite is her recent project on West Main Street between Rogers and Orchard, near Our Lady of Victory.

"There are sloping lots, hillside lots and deep-ravine lots. This one is more like a canyon," said Smith of the site.

Delaney draws on diversity

"Unlike the more conventional sites I have built on in Pheasant Hills here in Northville and Grosse Pointe, the West Main location was so steep and so deep it inhibited access and required a road to be built for the foundation engineers and their equipment and the more than 3,500 cubic yards of sand. Extensive grading, retaining walls and landscaping will enable the home to conform naturally to its wooded valley setting."

Delaney acts as the agent, while Smith does the building. Such was the case on the West Main Street home.

"I actually sold her the lot a couple of years ago, and owned the house next door," said Delaney. "She approached the new one differently. Then the Davises on the other side built a new house. Their approach was different as well. So you have three homes on this one ravine and they're all different. It was fun to watch them be built."

That Jerry Delaney should foster such a diverse company would seem no great surprise. In a 24-year career, he's worked in practically every aspect of the real estate business. He was a broker/manager at a large company for 11 years. He also gained experience as a developer on the Wa-beek project in Bloomfield Hills.

Early in his career, in the 1970s, Delaney also worked in commercial and industrial development.

A Northville resident since 1972, Delaney believed that an independent company could make a go of it against the national franchise companies. Not that he was knocking the success of the industry giants. He just liked the idea of offering more personalized service.

"I think I've proved to myself I was right about the importance of Northville, and the viability of an independent real estate company," Delaney said. "We're truly independent and able to serve the customer more personally because of that. All of the agents and staff are local people who've been in the area for several years. Their average experience is 10 years."

Ten agents, eight active and two referring, are affiliated with J.A. Delaney and Co.

"We have a fun group of closely knit people," said Delaney. "There are three things that best typify what our agents offer: experience, integrity and enthusiasm. It's been a wonderful beginning in building a small company."

Yet they still offer all of the technical advantages that customers ask for. Inside that old Victorian home are state of the art computers with photo capabilities and other options not normally found in real estate offices in the area. Delaney's computer program can handle up to 10,000 properties. The firm has also joined All Points, the national relocation company.

J.A. Delaney and Co. is at 103 Rayson Ave. Call 349-6200 for more information.

Anne Smith goes over some plans for her building firm, The Smith Company.

One-Day Scrub Attack Rejuvenates Cabinets

Maybe your kitchen cabinets don't need to be replaced. Maybe they just need a day at the spa. Kitchen Tune-Up® is a national franchise that revives worn cabinets. It's done in one day, and you don't even empty the drawers. First, workers scrub off the gunk with a surface cleaner. Then they rub in a wood stain. Next they touch up problem spots and treat the wood with KTU Oil. They also polish and clean your counter tops and align hinges and drawer slides.

Are Your Kitchen Cabinets Showing Their Age?

We offer FREE No Obligation demonstrations so you can see the results for yourself.

The Tenth Annual Great American

August 14th & 15th, 1993
Downtown Brighton

Folk Art Show
Arts & Crafts

Sponsored by The Greater Brighton Area Chamber of Commerce

Celebrate Our 10th Annual Folk Art Festival!

We are a special place, where families are raised in natural, wooded surroundings. A place where specialized industries and residents work together.

Brighton is located at the crossroads of Southeastern Michigan; it's a place that stands ready for the challenges of tomorrow, while preserving the rich heritage of its past. Brighton is where quality is a way of life.

The 1993 Great American Folk Art Festival gives us the opportunity to show-off all that we have to offer. We are putting our best foot forward during this special weekend. So, if you are a long-time resident, regular visitor, or have never been to the Brighton area, there are many things for you to discover during the Folk Art Festival weekend—all planned with you in mind. Enjoy and celebrate Brighton.

Most Prestigious Selection of Artists Ever!

Downtown Brighton will celebrate the 10th Annual Great American Folk Art Festival will be the best festival ever. According to G.G. Havens, chairman of the Folk Art Festival, 130 artist booths will line the streets of downtown Brighton on August 14th and 15th.

This is downtown Brighton's original arts and crafts show. Over the years it has grown from just a few craft booths along the sidewalk to the current number of 130. This show is a juried show, meaning we require the artists and crafters to submit pictures of their work so we may select the best work and best balance for our show. This year's selection was a quite pleasant challenge because of the large response. We have artists from as far away as Arizona.

Our show will offer something for everyone. We have handwoven rugs, tole painting items, unique pottery, porcelain, jewelry, baskets, hand carved duck decoys, stained glass, watercolorist, and much more.

The Folk Art Festival runs from 10:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. Saturday, August 14th and 12:00 noon to 5:00 p.m. Sunday, August 15th.

Presented by: The Livingston Lakes chapter of the Embroiders Guild of America

The Livingston Lakes Chapter of the Embroiders' Guild of America, Inc. will present its annual needlework exhibit at the Brighton chamber of Commerce Building during the 1993 Folk Art Festival.

This display includes examples of quilting, cross-stitch, tatting, crewel, smocking, hardanger, and Brazilian Embroidery, and many other types of needlework. Our 1993 theme and several of the stitched items is "samplers".

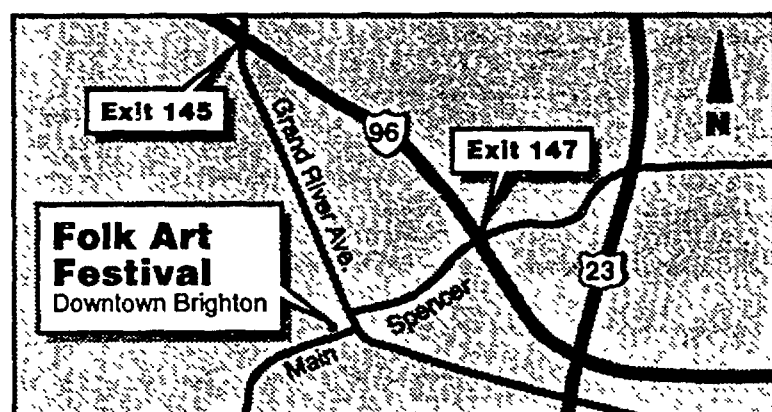

Some of the exhibited pieces are judged while others are on display to show the public some of the Guild Member's talent and also the types of classes and stitching done in our Guild. The public will have an opportunity to vote on a favorite piece. Included in this year's presentation are door prizes.

The exhibit will be open during the regular hours of the festival.

Will Tempt You.

Natural Transitions
The New American Look
That's More Than 200 Years Old.

The Shakers created a style of furniture, during the 19th Century, notable for its clean design and graceful lines. In accordance with their beliefs, Shaker craftsmen stripped away unnecessary or worldly ornament "which add nothing to goodness or durability" and concentrated on quality workmanship, superior materials, and exceptionally smooth finishes. Harden continues this tradition with Natural Transitions.
