School bells sound; time to go back Enthusiasm runs high on the first day of classes

By MICHELLE HARRISON
Staff Writer

Other than the normal struggling with locker combinations, the first day of school went off without a hitch Thursday according to Northville school administrators.

"It went smooth as silk," Cooke Middle School Principal Jeff R. Dwanski said. "We had no problems. Even the crossing guard showed up on time."

"We had a good start," Moraine Mill Principal David Longridge added. "The kids looked like they were eager to start. The staff was eager to start. The building looked great."

Moraine Mill had received a fresh coat of paint just in the nick of time, too, the school doors opened for business.

Moraine principal Mary Najarian said the inclement weather was the only down side to the first day of classes at her building.

"The rain could have held off for another 20 minutes," she said. "My hair is still dripping."

Other than the rain, things were fine at Moraine.

"According to the handbook," Najarian said, "The kids didn't seem as exhausted or as nervous."

"It's great to have them (students) back," said Winchester Elementary Principal Kathy Morhous. "You get tired of all the preparation you just want them here."

Morhous said she started her work schedule in early August with scheduling, rewriting handbooks and planning in services.

A graffiti like message written on a wall by teachers welcomed back students at Silver Springs Elementary Thursday.

"The kids had fun reading what this year's teachers wrote,"

Kenneth Pawloski, Silver Springs principal, said.

Amerman Elementary Principal Stephen Anderson said several of his staff members commented on how smoothly things went on the first day of school. Lower class sizes have made both staff and parents happy, too, he added.

"I'm looking forward to a real positive and interesting year," Anderson said.

Things weren't any different at Northville High School on the first day back.

Tentative pact reached with teachers union

By MICHELLE HARRISON
Staff Writer

The Northville Board of Education is expected to ratify a contract with the Northville Education Association at a special board meeting called for 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at Old Village School.

Personnel director R. Roy Danley said late last week a tentative agreement had been reached with the teacher's union. The Northville Education Association (NEA) was expected to take the tentative agreement back to the teachers for review and a ratification vote, Danley said.

Danley said since the two bargaining units were still in negotiations he was not allowed to disclose any terms of the pact. He did say he was guardedly optimistic an agreement would be reached by this week.

The NEA represents 211 kindergarten through 12th grade teachers and nearly 50 educators from Bryant and Old Village special education centers.

The teachers' three year contract expired Aug. 31. That contract provided teachers with average annual salary increases of 7 percent, 7 percent and 5.875 percent during its three year term.

The district is also negotiating with six other bargaining units. Danley met with representatives of the International Union of Operating Engineers Local 547 last Thursday. The union represents 97 individuals working as bus drivers, food service workers, custodians and maintenance employees.

Their contract, which has been extended month-to-month, expired July 31.

Other contracts to be settled include the Northville Association of School Administrators (expired June 30), Central Office Administrators; American Federation of Teachers (representing over 60 paraprofessionals and special education professionals); Nurses and Certified Occupational Therapist Assistants (expired July 31); Secretaries (schedule of benefits) and Teacher Assistants (schedule of benefits).

Official warns of resistance to idea of library millage

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

District library proponents may have a tougher sell ahead of them than they think, according to one local official.

Northville Township Manager Bill Richards warned the District Public Library Board that their plans to request between 1.2 mills from the community for the construction and/or operation of a district library may be doomed by voters' resistance to any new taxes.

"That's going to make it real difficult to sell any new millage, in my opinion," he said. "I don't have great faith that that's going to be a successful campaign."

The board hopes to present a millage request to Northville voters sometime early next year to set up a new district library funded by its own dedicated millage between 1.2 mills. Board members have until May 1 to obtain voter approval of the millage.

Richards also advised the board to seek professional help in conducting a survey of local residents as to what they want in a new library. A board subcommittee had drafted a survey and planned to send it out as soon as the board voted whether to seek a new library facility, but Richards warned that such a survey may be considered biased by any opponents to a library millage campaign.

Teen turnout good at youth center meeting

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

Attention, all teens.

Northville youths interested in a new activity center are invited to sign up for a special teen task force considering how and where to set one up.

The idea grew out of a landmark Community Task Force on Alcohol and Drugs conference in February where local leaders and students brainstormed ways to get and keep kids off drugs. The community was responding to a 1992 survey that showed Northville students used drugs more often than their counterparts across the country.

Already interest seems to be growing in a new teen center. After a mere seven students attended an initial July 28 meeting, 18 showed for the next meeting Aug. 25, together with 14 adults, including Northville Youth Assistance President Mary Ellen King and Student Assistance Coordinator Charlie Sulec.

At that meeting, participants listed nine potential sites for a new center and named the activities they

Township hires firm to write cable ordinance

By SHARON CONDRON
Staff Writer

Northville Township trustees hesitated Thursday night before voting to pay their consultant $3,000 to help them obtain certification to regulate cable service rates.

Treasurer Rick Engelland was the only one to vote against the motion to have the consultant process paperwork with the Federal Communications Commission that will allow the township to set basic cable rates.

"I don't feel we need to regulate rates with Omnicom," Engelland said. "I think it is in our best interests to want them to invest in their system. I don't think we need to put an undue burden in government, and I don't think they would ever gouge the community (with their rates)."

Engelland's opposition to the consultant's recommendation that the township take over regulating rates under a new federal law fell on deaf ears when the board voted 6-1 to have the consultant process the application.

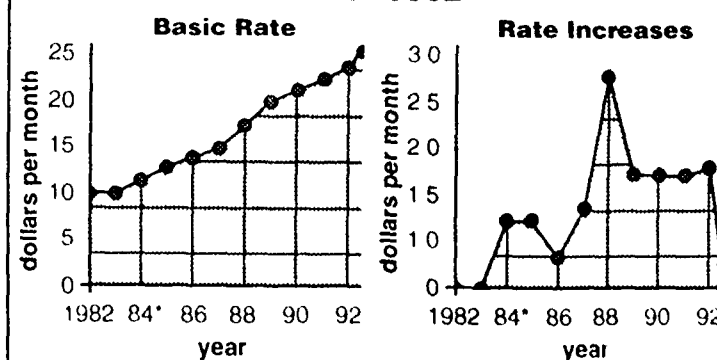

Dennis Fassett, the township's contracted cable consultant from Cable Management Associates of Belleville, was pleased with the board's vote. The consultant would be paid to file the application and draft a local ordinance that establishes regulations for setting rates.

Both actions are expected to cost the township about $1,500 a piece and are not to exceed $3,000.

Fassett said the application would meet the requirements of a federal law which went into effect last year. The law allows municipalities to set basic cable service rates if their application to do so is approved by the FCC. The only thing that would stall approval is if Omnicom challenged the application, the consultant said.

Consultant to develop cable regs of setting rates themselves, Fassett said. He was at Thursday's special board meeting to update the trustees on the impact of the 1992 cable law and to provide a terse summary of the annual audit he performed on Omnicom's service and system.

The audit was done prior to the township's decision to renew its franchise agreement with the cable carrier.

Fassett said he found few problems with Omnicom's service, but did say the pending federal legislation would require the company to update the system and improve service to township residents.

Prior to the township renewing the agreement, the consultant told trustees it was imperative they file the application with the FCC before the Sept. 15 deadline if they wanted to ground cable service rates.

He said if trustees miss the filing date, they run the risk that Omnicom, the township's cable provider, could raise its rates after a federal freeze on cable rates expires in November.

Right now, Omnicom's rates are the third highest in cost per channel in the 11 communities Fassett surveyed for the annual audit. He said township residents are paying more money for less services under Omnicom's current rates.

"Their channel capacities are low and their rates are high," he said. "Residents here are paying more and getting less service."

Fassett said without the township's certification by the FCC, Omnicom could raise its rates even higher in November.

"If you don't file by Oct. 15 to be certified, Omnicom can raise rates," Fassett said. "If you don't file and Omnicom raises their rates, the community would have to prove Omnicom's rates are unreasonable."

In November, if Omnicom's rates are higher than the forthcoming federally imposed benchmark rate for basic service, Fassett said the new ruling would allow communities the right to ask the cable provider to roll back the rates to levels that were in place under the freeze.

And if the rates are below the benchmark figure, then Omnicom could raise its rates to meet that figure. Approval of the certification application would help trustees keep cable costs contained for local subscribers.

"We still don't know what the final benchmark rates will be," he said. "So the recommendations I'm making to you are to protect you in worst-case scenarios."

Once the township's certification is approved, Fassett said the township is required to draft a local ordinance to determine a process for setting rates.

Trustees contracted Fassett to write the ordinance as well, even though some thought the township attorney could handle it. But Township Supervisor Karen Baja thought it was a good idea for Fassett to draft the ordinance since it was his area of expertise. She also said his $75 an hour rate was cheaper than the attorney's rate.

"When Omnicom came to me and tried to explain this to me, it was really very difficult to understand," Baja said.

"I would prefer to have an expert dealing with this," she said.

Victorian clothing articles to be sold

There's still time to pick up the frilly finery that's needed to be right in style for the Victorian Festival, set for Sept. 17-19.

The Odyssey of the Mind group will hold a sale of Victorian children's and adults' hats and clothes on three separate days leading up to the festival.

Donated articles of clothing and handmade hats will be available at the sales, to be held from noon to 8 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 8; from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Saturday, Sept. 11; and from noon to 8 p.m. Monday, Sept. 13.

Dresses, blouses, skirts, vests and suspenders will be among the merchandise available for purchase.

For information, call Pat Vartanian at 380-6986 or Mary Matuse at 344-4826.

Proceeds from the sales will go to Odyssey of the Mind, the international creative problem-solving competition for students in grades K-12.

The Northville School District's Odyssey of the Mind group received budgetary support from the school district until the unsuccessful millage of 1992 necessitated a cutback. Now, it is self-supported and funds are often needed to send children to locations where tournaments are held.

Security system works for schools

By MICHELLE HARRISON
Staff Writer

Security measures in Northville's four elementary schools will continue to be enforced this school year.

The district opted to tighten its monitoring of visitors in the school buildings after an intruder was found in two of the district's elementaries in April.

Effective last May, visitors must sign in at the school building's office and receive a badge.

"You can't go past a certain point in the building without a badge," explained Silver Springs Elementary Principal Kenneth Pawloski.

Once the visitor has finished with his business, he or she returns the badge and signs out.

Stephen Anderson, Amerman Elementary principal, said a security committee and the PTA helped develop the system currently in place.

"The (city) police and township police departments gave us recommendations and did a security survey for us," he said. "We hope to have the problem somewhat solved."

The intruder entered Moraine Elementary in the afternoon of April 22. Although visitors are required to check in at the office, as posted on each door in the district, the man walked past the office without stopping.

A school secretary attempted to follow the man, but he disappeared. She notified other staff members and a custodian located the man in the boys' bathroom in the hallway of the North Centrum. The custodian reportedly confronted the man and the intruder then left.

On the same day, Amerman officials believe the same intruder was seen mulling around the restroom area.

The only time the security measures get a little overwhelming are on days like the first day of school, said Moraine Elementary Principal Mary Najarian.

But parents seem to like the new security precautions.

"They love it," Pawloski said. "They're very cooperative. They understand why it's important."

"Fortunately, we're tucked in an area that's not on the main thoroughfare," said Kathy Morhaus, Winchester Elementary principal. "Still, it's better to be cautious."

Other precautions are still followed such as locking all the doors in the building except for the main door and using the buddy system when children use the bathrooms.

Students are welcomed back

"We had a good, smooth school opening," NHS Principal Thomas Johnson said. "... Our objective this year will be school pride and individual responsibility for the building. We really want to have the students really take pride in maintaining the school with the quality it needs to have."

Increased staff also made a difference in bringing about the smooth beginning.

"One staff member said looking out over the faces and seeing a full staff without a sprinkle here or a sprinkle there of a skeleton crew was a real comforting thing," Johnson said.

Charter House gets bright new look

The courtyard at the Charter House of Novi has a new, more colorful look, thanks to the Northville Branch of the Women's National Farm and Garden Association.

Four volunteers from the association planted perennial plants and fall mums in the newly decorated courtyard recently. The association will return next year to plant annuals, according to volunteer Linda Lestock.

"We like to plant flowers that residents may remember from their youth; we call them 'old-fashioned' flowers and try to make sure they have a nice scent," Lestock said. "We appreciate the hard work and dedication of the volunteers," said Sandy Spiro, owner and operator of the Charter House of Novi.

Police News

Descriptions of two church theft suspects match

City police received two reports of thefts from local churches within hours of each other Aug. 30, and descriptions of a potential suspect in each case closely matched each other.

In the first case, a black wallet embroidered with a flower and containing $10 in cash was reported taken from a purse at Our Lady of Victory School, 133 Orchard, sometime between 2-3 p.m. Witnesses saw a white man in his 20s, with a thin build, dark hair and an unshaven face, standing about 5-feet, 8-inches tall and wearing cut-off denim shorts, a white t-shirt and a dark baseball cap backwards.

The man, who was walking around inside the building, told people he was waiting to pick up his sister. He left the scene in a silver Toyota, possibly a 1985 model.

A black purse containing $40 in cash and several credit cards was reported stolen from the First United Methodist Church Aug. 30. A witness there saw a man leaving with what looked like the purse tucked under his arm at 3:25 p.m. The suspect in that case is described as a white man with a medium build and mustache, weighing 185 pounds and standing about 6 feet tall, also wearing cut-off denim shorts, white t-shirt and a dark blue baseball cap.

The purse had been in a second-floor computer office at the 777 West Eight Mile church.

SUSPICIOUS PERSON FOLLOWS CHILDREN: Four children between the ages of 6 and 12 told city police they were followed by a man in a car Sept. 1. The children said they first noticed the suspect, a white male with brown hair in his 40s, when they left Grandma Betty's Sweets-N-Treats at 124 N. Center St. about 11:30 a.m.

The man reportedly followed them to the playground area by the Northville Board of Education building, 501 W. Main St., and watched them from an adjacent parking lot while sitting in his blue Pontiac Grand Am with a red stripe on the front. He also followed them halfway home, they said.

BIKE STOLEN: A black BMX-style bicycle with green lettering was reported stolen from a North Rogers property sometime between 8 p.m. Aug. 30 and 9:30 a.m. Aug. 31. The Haro Aggro model bike, valued at $125, was unlocked at the time.

FENDER BENDER: A 68-year-old Northville woman reportedly backed into a parked car while leaving a South Ely driveway just east of Carington the afternoon of Aug. 31. She told police later that she did not realize she had hit the car. Little damage was done and no citations were issued.

LARCENYS AT MEIJER: Township police arrested three people in two separate incidents this week for stealing merchandise from Meijer. Police were called to Meijer on Tuesday, Aug. 31, by security patrol at the department store. There they found and arrested two 33-year-old men who allegedly stole four cartons of cigarettes. A week later, police returned to the store to arrest a 17-year-old Novi woman after she tried to steal $16.73 worth of cosmetics.

All three suspects were ticketed for larceny.

ASSAULT AND BATTERIES: Township police received three assault and battery complaints this week, two of which were from Northville Place Apartments. The first report stemmed from an Aug. 30 complaint filed by a 26-year-old Novi woman. The woman told police her live-in boyfriend had assaulted her five times since May, the last of which was Aug. 29.

The report said the victim showed police bruises and lacerations she had sustained from physical confrontations with the 24-year-old Northville man. Lacerations on her right hand she said were the result of the man biting her.

The woman refused to press charges and wouldn't allow police to photograph her injuries. She said she would have a third party photograph the injuries if she changed her mind about filing charges.

In a separate case in the same apartment complex, police say a 36-year-old Detroit woman claimed her live-in boyfriend beat her on Tuesday, Aug. 31. The woman said the couple engaged in an argument that escalated into a physical assault in the apartment that night after 11 p.m.

She said her 36-year-old roommate grabbed her by the hair, slapped her and then threw her to the ground. She told police she ran into a bathroom and locked the door to escape, but the man broke through the door anyway. In the bathroom she said he threw bleach on her face and slapped her again.

The woman then fled the apartment. When police questioned her about the incident the woman had no visible injuries, bruises or cuts. The man admitted there was a verbal confrontation that evening, but said he never hit her. Police have filed a warrant for the man's arrest.

A third incident occurred on Aug. 30 at a Ravina Lake home. There a 55-year-old woman said two men came to her front door to serve a summons on her and her son. After serving the document, the woman said the men — one of whom was white and the other black — returned later to her garage door. She told police the men knocked at the door and then the black man grabbed at it, forcing her to flinch forward. They left after they argued about whether or not the woman's son was at home.

Police responded to the woman's call but found neither of the suspects in the area. The woman said she is sure the men returned to the home later that night, but police again found no trail. She told police she intends to press assault charges against the black man who allegedly pulled the garage entry door open.

Citizens with information about the above incidents are urged to call Northville City Police at 349-1234 or Northville Township Police at 349-9400.

DARE officer prepares to take message to classroom

By SHARON CONDRON
Staff Writer

Northville Township Police Officer Matthew Mayes is looking forward to his first week back in school.

The town's only certified Drug Abuse Resistance Education (DARE) officer, Mayes will be starting two 17-week classes at Northville Christian Assembly and Northville Montessori Center this Wednesday.

The DARE program is a police-endorsed effort that teaches drug resistance techniques to fifth grade students. Mayes completed his required coursework to be certified in the program last year, and these two classes will be his first two stints at the head of the class.

"I'm really looking forward to starting the DARE program in Northville Township," Mayes said Friday. "The program will give me the opportunity to do something positive for fifth grade children."

"And rather than just reacting to crimes, this can help prevent things in the future," Mayes said.

In preparation for the class, Mayes was out in the community two weeks ago soliciting funds to help pay for T-shirts for graduates of the DARE program.

He and the 1993 Chevrolet Camaro that's painted with the DARE logo were parked at the Northville Car Wash on Saturday, Aug. 21, and at the Top of the Cone on Sunday, Aug. 22. The car is on loan from General Motors and is used to promote the program throughout the state.

Mayes said he raised $250 from the fund-raiser with the help of both business owners. Mayes said Tony Samotis, the owner of the car wash, donated 25 cents from each car wash on Saturday and Stanley Pierson contributed 10 cents from every item sold at his ice cream shop on Sunday.

Mayes was looking forward to hopping right into his new assignment.

"I'm going to be able to eat lunch and go out on recess with the kids so they can get to know the police officer as their friend," he said. "The best part about this program is that it catches kids before they get involved. It teaches them prevention techniques that keeps them out of the system later in life."

Northville Township patrolman Matt Mayes, the department's only certified DARE officer, took the DARE Camaro with him on fund-raising events last month.

would like to see held there.

Sites under consideration ranged from the First Baptist Church to the Scout Building on Cady Street and the vacant Hardee's Restaurant on Center. The students and adults suggested staging musical groups there on the weekends and having a disc jockey available, together with a pool table, video games, on-site peer counselors and organized activities.

"We're very pleased that the number of teens that has shown up has been as high as it's been," said Jacque Martin-Downs, prevention network coordinator for the Community Commission on Drug Abuse. "It was a nice percentage of teens to adults," she said.

The next step is to assemble an adult task force to secure a specific site and funding for activities, and to enlist the support of other students through a petition drive.

"Our hope is that teens will come next time and bring petitions back to school with them," Martin-Downs said.

She added that it would be nice to see some younger students at the meeting as well. "After all, they're the next generation that are going to be using the teen center."

The group's toughest goal will be to acquire a site, Martin-Downs said. "We have some strong leadership but we don't have enough sites or money," she said. "If anybody in town is willing to donate a site or a building, we'd just love it."

The teen task force convenes again tomorrow, Sept. 7, at 7 p.m. at the First Baptist Church, 217 N. Wing St. The meeting will be held in the second floor Youth Room.

The Northville Youth Forum, which now oversees the student and community awareness task force subcommittees, meets Wednesday, Sept. 8, at 9 a.m. in the council room at Northville City Hall. Task force members plan to update the Youth Forum on their progress.

Survey could help gauge sentiment

"This part of the project should be built, in my opinion," he said, "just as solidly as the architectural services and the legal services, etc."

He estimated the cost of a professional survey at $2,500-$3,000.

Board Member Lynn Parklan agreed to research the availability and costs of a professional survey, possibly from a local university.

The board also heard from Ron Cieslak of Merritt, McCallum & Cieslak, the architectural firm that drew up plans for a two-story library on Cady behind Northville City Hall and the Northville Recreation Center back in 1976. Those plans have become the unofficial blueprint for the future of Northville's library services, though the blueprint may need to be redrawn.

Cieslak noted that his firm's original plans called for a building with about 20,300 square feet of floor space on two floors, with library services limited to the top floor. Using both levels for library services would require reworking the building's entrances to leave one main entrance rather than two, he said.

The board meets again Thursday, Sept. 16, at 8 p.m. The meeting is tentatively scheduled at Northville City Hall.

Our Opinion

Township acts to keep rates from spiraling

Proponents of laissez faire economics wasted little time hoisting the victory flag when the federal government deregulated the cable industry back in 1984. Government had no business regulating cable rates, free traders claimed. Let the marketplace operate unfettered and prices will seek their own level. Don't impose an artificial barrier on open competition.

What the free trade fanatics didn't realize, of course, was that where cable service is concerned open competition is a myth. Cable companies enjoy monopolistic control of their markets because they are granted exclusive franchises. Consumers wanting to subscribe can't go comparison shopping. If they want to get hooked up, they have one choice and one choice only.

It took nearly a decade for federal lawmakers to understand this very simple principle, but they finally managed to come to grips with the obvious. Last year, Congress passed a law returning to municipalities the right to have a say in cable rate increases.

Northville Township officials are taking advantage of this new statute. Last week trustees took the first step toward gaining limited control over cable rates by asking Cable Management Associates to file certification paperwork with the Federal Communications Commission.

The application the consultants will complete on the township's behalf could ultimately lead to a local cable ordinance for the township. The township will pay Cable Management $3,000 for its efforts.

We believe officials acted wisely in taking this step. We embrace the time-honored tenants of the free enterprise system, but the advantages of the competitive dynamic can't work in cases where monopolies exist.

Something needs to be done. Consultant Dennis Fassett says that among 11 communities he studied, the rates of Omnicom Cable were the third highest on a per channel basis. He warned that the company would have the authority to raise its rates higher by mid November if the township didn't do something to gain regulatory control.

Deregulating the cable industry was a mistake in the first place, but it happened, due in large part to a pervasive anti-government sentiment ushered in by the Reagan administration.

Now that regulation has been reinstated and a mechanism has been established to keep cable monopolies from holding their customers hostage, it's incumbent upon local governments to do whatever it takes to stop rate escalation. Northville Township appears to be doing that and we believe the investment is worth the while.

State school aid bill surprisingly sensible

Given the reckless abandon lawmakers displayed in trashing the state property tax system recently, we were holding our breath expecting the worst when the Legislature adopted its school aid bill for the coming year. Thankfully, however, we were pleasantly surprised at the reasonableness of the measure.

The $3.5 billion bill seems to have been composed with a degree of restraint, something that was conspicuously absent from the action that pulled the rug out from under public education by eliminating school districts' primary source of funding.

Not that the measure will be painless. Sen. Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills, said it's "like taking two poison pills instead of 10." Even so, we expected to the Legislature to serve up all 10.

The bill, approved last week, contains fewer "Robin Hood" items than an earlier version, and repeals tax base sharing altogether. It forces school districts to pay a greater share of Social Security and retirement costs, but incorporates a sliding scale that is not too punishing.

Northville school officials aren't quite sure how much more the local school system will have to pay in these costs, but Superintendent Leonard Rezmierski's reaction to the bill was one of cautious optimism last week. Most experts' reading of the measure is that it won't hurt suburban school districts as much as feared.

Perhaps it was the radicalness of Senate Bill 1 that prompted lawmakers to exercise moderation in composing the state school aid bill. Representatives might have been thinking that two drastic measures in close succession was a one-two punch that shouldn't be delivered.

Whatever it was, it was a welcomed relief. The conservative nature of the school aid bill should allow Michigan districts to conduct their business in a normal fashion — at least for one more year.

Getting the last word on SB 1

Rick Byrne

Everybody's had their say on Senate Bill 1, except me.

Tim Richard spoke his piece in these pages, and Mike Malott had his say. Even Phil Jerome took a break from the cats to talk about it. Now comes li'l ol' me bringing up the rear.

That's the way I am, though. I like to digest all the information first. Then I become opinionated.

Some people have pegged Senate Bill 1 as political posturing, and I think they're the ones who have it figured out correctly.

Look at the key figures involved: candidates for governor, candidates for higher office.

Furthermore, now that some of the dust has settled, it's becoming apparent who poorly thought out this plot was. The mission was to settle the issue of K-12 funding vis a vis the state property tax. The method: strip the schools of local property tax funding, and rebuild from scratch.

It was so simple, that it seemed too good to be true. Now it's become apparent that it was.

The best evidence that this was an impulsive move by some very spooked people in Lansing lies in the consequences that they didn't consider.

The Headlee Amendment says the state can't raise more than $3.8 billion in revenues with new taxes. Oops, oh yeah.

TIFAs, or tax increment financing authorities, like Northville's Mainstreet '93, have become meaningless vehicles for capital improvement, rendering many programs penniless. Oops, oh yeah.

Special education. Oops, oh yeah.

Community college mills. Oops, oh yeah.

Debt retirement mills. Oops, oh yeah.

Municipal bond ratings from Moody's and Standard and Poor. Oops, oh yeah.

Remember that this paper's publisher, Phil Power, told us that an election isn't won or lost in the campaign season. It's decided when the agenda is set a year or two before the actual election.

Right now, the agenda is being set for November of 1994, and school finance reform will be at the top of the list.

You don't think it's that important? Think again. Last week we had Novi's state representative and state senator come to a town meeting at the new technology center on Taft Road. Folks from Lansing just don't do stuff like that.

The last time State Rep. Willis Bullard paid us an unprompted visit was before the vote on Proposal A. Before that, the last time our state representative voluntarily visited us was, well . . . hmmm. Do you see the pattern developing?

Many labels have been hung on Senate Bill 1: guts poker, Russian roulette, playing chicken, "holding our children hostage." All describe acts of desperation.

Gov. Engler is playing right along with it which tells me that he's just as desperate as anyone in Lansing right now.

Which is a shame because, apart from his signature on Senate Bill 1 and his handling of the state's mental health system, I think everything Gov. Engler has done has been the right move. He's made us swallow some bitter pills, but in the end his wisdom has been borne out.

He, however, put property taxes on the agenda for the 1990 election. Therein lies the rub. If you set the agenda, you must live with it.

Vandals preying on seniors

Phil Jerome

The lady who called me last week (she asked that I not use her name) was pleasant but upset. Very upset.

She is a longtime Northville resident. I attended Northville High School with her children back in the late Fifties and early Sixties. And she now lives in Allen Terrace, the fine senior citizen housing complex located near Northville High School.

She was upset because the cars of many Allen Terrace residents had been vandalized the previous evening. Because she knew I worked with the newspaper, she called to apprise me of the situation and see if there was anything I could do to help.

She said many of the things you could easily figure out for yourself if you thought about it for a minute, but it was important to hear them from her.

"A lot of the people up here are on fixed incomes."

"Purchasing a car is a big expenditure."

"For some of the people up here, this is the last car they will ever own."

What happened was that a vandal or group of vandals attacked at least 23 vehicles in the Allen Terrace parking lot sometime during the night of Aug. 26-27.

According to Steve Kellman's report in the Sept. 2 issue of The Record, the vandals tore the hood ornaments or trunk lock covers off all the vehicles. Several sustained hundreds of dollars worth of damage when the vandals scratched the exteriors with a sharp object.

An obscenity was scratched into the finish of one vehicle, and swastikas were carved into the surfaces of two other vehicles.

One of the damaged vehicles was a three-week-old Ford Thunderbird; another suffered an estimated $1,500 worth of damage.

Police had been very helpful, the lady told me, but they didn't hold out much hope of ever catching the individuals responsible for the damage.

I also found it interesting that she did not want her name to be used. Was she afraid that being identified would lead the rodents responsible for the damage to come back and get her again?

What she didn't ask was why somebody would do such a thing. The question was unnecessary . . . there is no answer.

Why would somebody — anybody — decide to damage somebody else's property? Why would the vehicles outside a senior citizen housing complex be victimized?

Because seniors are less of a threat? Easier victims?

What makes the incident at Allen Terrace even worse is that a Northville resident discovered 20-30 hood ornaments and trunk lock covers while walking to the high school from Buchner Hill Drive. Police later found 11 more emblems on the side of a dirt track off Baseline Road by the water tower behind the high school.

In other words, the vandalism seems to have had no purpose other than hurting somebody else.

One of the nicer aspects of the Allen Terrace vandalism is that one resident has come forward to try to find the responsible party. Clayton Myers, 71 and an Allen Terrace resident, is offering a $250 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the responsible parties. Anyone with information should call Northville City Detective Sgt. David Fendeleit at 349-1234.

Let's hope it works.

Keeping pests away means keeping clean

Just how do those little pests get into kitchen cupboards? There are many types of insects that can attack foods. Some of these pests are sawtoothed, merchant grain beetles, flour beetles, drugstore and cigarette beetles, granary weevils, rice weevils, larder beetles, Indianmeal moth.

These pests can be in the larvae or adult stage and have bored their way into tightly sealed packages. Food products left undisturbed on shelves for five to eight weeks are particularly susceptible to these pantry pests. Foods need to be rotated frequently to help prevent these creepy little critters!

When food is infested, look for the source. Check seldom used packages of cereal, flour, raisins and spices. Also check dry dog food, cat food, or bird seed. Outdoor storage is recommended for these products. If you find any infested food, wrap in heavy plastic and dispose of it immediately. Keep it away from all other foods. It is recommended that after you have had food packages or boxes for 60 days to give them a cold treatment, by putting cake mixes, spices, flour and other grains in the freezer to stop any kind of pest growth.

Store insect free foods in tightly closed glass, metal or heavy plastic containers on the cupboard shelves. A vacuum cleaner helps "suck up" any infestation, but get rid of the vacuum bag as they can live in there. Then clean with a strong soap solution.

When you purchase any food products, examine the boxes or packages to make sure they are insect-free. Infestation can happen at the plant, during shipping, while it's being stored or while you are storing it at home. Infested foods can infect other food on the shelf.

There are three common beetles that can infest stored grains, flour, cake mixes and other flour products. These are the sawtoothed, grain beetle, and red flour beetle and the confused flour beetle. If these beetles are found, you will need to discard everything, clean the cupboards thoroughly and use an insecticide to control them. Purchase an insecticide labeled for indoor use and, follow the directions carefully.

After spraying, keep all foods in containers of glass, tins or rubber sealed canisters. Boxes, plastic bags, or paper bags can not be sealed tightly enough to exclude these pests.

Granary, bean and rice weevils look similar and infest whole grain rice, wheat and beans. The bean weevil feeds on dried beans, leaving perfectly round holes in the beans. The larvae can continue to develop while being stored with the adults emerging later. If any of these are found in the kitchen, disposal of infested grains and a thorough cleanup of the area should eliminate them.

The larder beetle can infest stored products that contain a little animal protein. They are most commonly found infesting bulk-stored dry pet food. Always keep pet food stored away from "people" food to eliminate these pests. The cigarette and drug store beetle are small brownish-red beetles that chiefly infest dried plant materials. They can also be found in red peppers and other spices, tobacco, wreaths, and other dried foods.

Control of these is fairly easy, once the source is found, simply dispose of the infested food and do a thorough clean-up. Many beetles may require additional measures such as an insecticide.

Indianmeal moths are the most common of the moths that infest stored grains and other food stuffs in the kitchen. The larvae are cream-colored caterpillars, and are usually found within a webbing over the surface of the food they are infesting. It is a spiderlike silk webbing and a sure indication that the food is infested. The larvae infest stored grains such as cornmeal, flour, cereal, dry pasta, crackers, bird seed, dried fruit, dog food and many other high protein food sources.

Master the pasta-bilities

Write-in fare runs the gamut

By MAUREEN CLANCY
Copley News Service

You've got to give them credit: Home chefs are using their noodles.

A recent call to readers for their favorite unusual pasta recipes brought more than 250 responses and produced a three-way tie for first place.

Noelle Leshan Hicks wowed Copley's panel of six judges with a soothing linguine with a golden sauce of pureed butternut squash, cream, pancetta and fresh rosemary.

Carolyn Bonebright jazzed up angel-hair pasta with red bell peppers, basil leaves, balsamic vinegar and a splash of vodka.

And Patricia Berg, who is at work on a cookbook of eggplant recipes and art, contributed a top-notch fettuccine with eggplant, plum tomatoes, feta cheese and toasted walnuts.

Vegetables were in the spotlight in many contest entries. In fact, more than half of the recipes submitted were all-vegetable; others used just a bit of meat or seafood for flavoring.

There were red and yellow bell peppers galore, sundried tomatoes, garlic, carrots and cauliflower. Pine nuts and walnuts were popular ingredients, too. Anchovies showed up in about a dozen dishes; so did cannellini beans.

Most dishes took advantage of the availability of fresh herbs, using basil, cilantro, rosemary and parsley to add pizzazz to bland noodles.

Most dishes also included cheese. Parmesan was the first choice, but goat cheese, feta, fontina and ricotta were popular choices as well.

When meat was called for, chicken was the first choice. Salmon and shrimp were the most common seafood choices.

Simplicity and ease of preparation are important to readers. Most recipes had fewer than 10 ingredients; most could be prepared in less than an hour. And though there were a few lasagna and tortellini creations, most recipes used widely available and simple-to-sauce noodles such as linguine and angel hair, fusilli and fettuccine.

No longer an Italian exclusive, pasta is being treated to a cosmopolitan array of flavors. Our entries included Thai-inspired dishes with garlic, peanut butter and dried chilies; Mexican creations with Cheddar cheese and cumin, canned green chilies and refried beans; and Chinese dishes sauced with hoisin and soy.

Some folks went all out on the creativity bit. One recipe attempted an international merger of Chinese five-spice powder, Japanese horseradish powder and Indian curry powder. Another teamed chicken, mushrooms and artichoke hearts with mango, kiwi and black olives.

Not all 250-plus recipes were winners. There were plenty of cans of cream of mushroom soup and American cheese squares, some fruit-flavored yogurts and apple juice, and lots of sodium-packed seasoning mixes.

But overall, our contest netted dozens of healthful, imaginative creations.

Cape eatery like Brady's away from home

Mary Brady

was. Mary Donna, Tommy and Joey working together at "Pucci's Harborside." Our hotel room, within a few yards, wasn't ready so we went to visit right away.

When I asked for Mary Donna the barmaid questioned, "Who's Mary Donna?" "The owner."

"Oh, you mean Mary Pucci."

Eventually over the years the Donna was dropped; Tommy was Tom and Joey, Joe. The names are a bit changed, but my cousins weren't. What a great time we had over the next few days.

Their restaurant is like Brady's in many ways. A warm, relaxing atmosphere, comfortable, homey. The food is great. Especially the buffalo wings and the stuffed artichoke. The only place I've had wings that come close is in Buffalo. And, many of those don't compare. Awesome!!!

On our initial visit we shared an order. After that our lunch was a full order each and a couple of times we'd split the third order. Yes, something that simple was that good.

And the stuffed artichoke . . . another favorite. It was hard to eat anywhere else. The first evening of our stay we did dine at another restaurant. That was the last time. The coziness and great food kept bringing us back. No wonder that, in a transient town, most of their business is local. They know a good thing.

What else could one ask for? Listening to the waves hit the shore, a just-caught bass fillet and fabulous reminiscing with my cousins.

The time passed all too quickly. Our days were spent sunning, reading, whale watching and some minor hiking on the Fort Hill Trail, which, if you ever go to this area you must see.

The whale watch was a unique experience. We had decided to go on the five o'clock cruise so that our day would be free. The weather had been extremely hot, but we wore long pants and brought coats. Thank heavens. It gets cold on the ocean when the sun goes down.

After two hours of chugging out to sea we finally caught a few glimpses of whale tails. I admit, they are magnificent creatures, but I'd be hard pressed to spend four hours on a wet and chilly boat ride to ooh and aah over a sporadic peek of a mammal making a dive. Sitting on an ocean front porch in Hawaii, with binoculars sounds much better. Warner, at the least.

It is always hard when a vacation is over. Nothing was different in this instance. I had a spectacular time renewing old friendships with Mary, Tom and Joe. In reality, we had started a new relationship, one as adults. Many thanks for your hospitality. And thanks to Aunt Betty for encouraging me to make Provincetown our holiday interlude.

Northville resident Mary Brady is a certified executive chef and co-owner of Diamond Jim Brady's in Nant.

No-bake cookies a breeze

No-bake cookies are one cool way to keep cookie lovers well supplied with their favorite treat when it's too hot to bake. As an added bonus, making these fuss-free cookies is a terrific activity to enjoy with your kids — anytime.

Two cookies that require no baking fall into one of two categories: those that need no cooking at all; and those that require some cooking or heating.

The first type is the easiest, and older children with some experience in the kitchen, can make these cookies on their own. Younger children will need help measuring, but they can mix the ingredients together and drop the "dough" onto the waxed paper.

For the second type, typically chocolate and/or marshmallows need to be melted, either in a saucepan or in the microwave oven. Depending upon the age of the child, an adult will need to assist or at least supervise.

Two no-bake oatmeal cookie recipes created in the Quaker Kitchen feature kid-approved flavors: peanut butter and chocolate. To make the not-too-sweet No-Bake Oat Treats, peanut butter, powdered sugar, milk, vanilla and quick or old-fashioned Quaker oats are combined in a bowl and dropped by teaspoonfuls onto waxed paper. They're ready to eat right away and feature a variety of stir-in options — almost anything your kids can think of, from chopped dried fruit to chocolate chips.

The Chewy Chocolate No-Bakes require a saucepan to melt the semisweet chocolate pieces, margarine and marshmallows. Or, you can use the microwave oven. After adding the oats and your child's choice of stir-ins, drop the mixture onto waxed paper and chill 2 to 3 hours. These treats should be stored in the refrigerator.

Both of these fun-to-eat treats use ingredients most moms have on-hand, making them perfect for an impromptu cooking class. Since the quick and old-fashioned oats can be used interchangeably — nutritionally they're the same, the old-fashioned oats have a heartier texture — use whichever your child prefers.

NO-BAKE OAT TREATS

1 cup peanut butter
1 cup powdered sugar
¼ cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 cups Quaker oats, (quick or old-fashioned, uncooked)
2 cups (any combination of) raisins, mixed dried fruit, miniature marshmallows, coconut, semisweet chocolate or peanut butter pieces, or mini candy-coated chocolate pieces

Mix together first four ingredients. Stir in oats and remaining ingredients. Drop by rounded teaspoonfuls onto waxed paper. Store covered at room temperature. Makes about 4 dozen.

CHEWY CHOCOLATE NO-BAKES

One 6-ounce package (1 cup) semisweet chocolate pieces
½ cup (5 tablespoons plus 1 teaspoon) margarine or butter
16 large marshmallows
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 cups Quaker oats (quick or old-fashioned, uncooked)
1 cup (any combination of) raisins, mixed dried fruit, coconut, miniature marshmallows or chopped nuts

In large saucepan over low heat, melt chocolate, margarine and marshmallows stirring until smooth. Remove from heat; cool slightly. Stir in remaining ingredients. Drop mixture by rounded teaspoonfuls onto waxed paper. Chill 2 to 3 hours. Let stand at room temperature about 15 minutes before serving. Store tightly covered in refrigerator. Makes 3 dozen.

Microwave directions: Place chocolate pieces, margarine and marshmallows in large microwaveable bowl. Microwave on High 1 to 2 minutes or until mixture is melted and smooth, stirring every 30 seconds. Proceed as recipe directs.

ED CHAPMAN'S PASTA WITH CHEVRE AND ROASTED RED PEPPER SAUCE

Sauce:
2 large red peppers, roasted, peeled and seeded
1 cup parsley, tightly packed (no stems)

¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese, or more, to taste

Pasta:
3 tablespoons salt
1 tablespoon olive oil
1 pound fettuccine (or pasta of choice)

For sauce, roast peppers under broiler, turning frequently, until skin is blackened. Place in plastic or paper bag until cool enough to handle. Remove skin and seeds.

Place parsley in food processor with metal blade. Pulse 8 to 10 times until finely chopped. Add roasted peppers and process until pureed. Add chevre and Parmesan. Process until smooth and ingredients are completely blended.

For pasta, bring large pot of water to boil. Add salt, olive oil and pasta, and cook to taste. Drain pasta and return to pot. Over low heat, add sauce and toss until well blended and pasta is hot. Serve with additional grated Parmesan cheese, if desired. Yields 4 to 6 servings.

1 cup best-quality olive oil
¼ cup pine nuts, toasted
4 cloves of garlic, finely chopped
1 medium red bell pepper, julienned and slightly charred
Juice of 2 lemons
1 teaspoon balsamic vinegar

Trim stems and slice mushrooms in ¼-inch strips. Melt butter in frying pan over moderately high heat. Add mushrooms and toss gently until all butter is absorbed and begins to reappear, about 5 minutes.

Crumble Gorgonzola into pan with mushrooms and stir to melt. Add half-and-half. Simmer gently for 5 minutes.

Bring 6 quarts of salted water to a boil. Cook pasta al dente according to package directions. Drain pasta. Place in large bowl and toss with basil mixture. Place on warmed plates. Top with mushroom sauce and fresh grating of Parmesan. Yields 4 servings.

1 cup creme fraiche (available in dairy section of some supermarkets)
½ cup golden currants OR raisins
8 ounces Gorgonzola cheese
Salt and freshly ground pepper
1 pound bow-tie pasta

Bring water for pasta to a boil. Toast pine nuts in saucepan until golden. Add creme fraiche, currants, Gorgonzola and salt and pepper to taste. Cook over low heat while cooking pasta according to package directions. Drain pasta, toss with sauce and serve immediately. Yields 4 to 6 servings.

Make sandwiches something special

A healthful sandwich is more than a pile of sprouts atop layers of turkey breast between twice thin slices of bread. In fact, you may be surprised at the variety of low-fat, healthful sandwich makings that are available, said Karen Wilder, registered dietitian and staff nutritionist for Total cereal.

Preparing healthful sandwiches opens up opportunities for creativity and variety. Here are a few ideas to get you started.

● Choose enriched, whole-grain breads such as whole wheat, multi-grain, rye, oatmeal or bran bread.

● Wrap fillings in soft tortillas or spoon into pita bread.

● Prepare sandwiches with mustard, horseradish or a drizzle of plain low-fat yogurt instead of high-fat spreads, such as butter or mayonnaise.

● Substitute chicken or turkey breast, lean roast beef or lean ham for higher-fat fillings, such as salami and liverwurst.

● Sprinkle on shredded cheese instead of adding thick slices. You'll enjoy rich, cheesy flavor with less fat.

● Pile sandwiches high with vegetables. Lettuce, spinach leaves, sliced tomatoes, onions, cucumbers, radishes and zucchini add flavor and texture.

● Include chopped vegetables, such as celery, onion and green or red peppers, in chicken, tuna or egg salad.

● Spoon coleslaw, made with low-fat dressing, into chicken or turkey sandwiches.

● Top lean roast beef or turkey with mushrooms, onions and green peppers sauteed in a small amount of olive oil.

● Add a layer of crushed pineapple, sliced apples or bananas.

● Dice apples, pears or grapes and combine with chicken salad.

Wilder suggests preparing sandwiches using ingredients from at least three different food groups to add variety and help improve the balance of your overall diet.

Kitchen pests make unwelcome guests

Vacuum cupboards, wash with soap and water before using a chemical to get rid of these. Make sure you have cleaned any cracks or crevices where they might be hiding. The adults of these moths will fly to the light fixtures or toward the ceilings of the cupboards so you'll be able to see them.

These kitchen pests could come from a variety of sources. Make sure they aren't getting into already stored foods. Their entrance holes into packages are very small and hard to see, so most of the time you don't know until the packages are opened and you actually see the bugs. Avoid long storage periods of dry foods, especially grains stored on cupboard shelves. Keep them in the refrigerator freezer.

Always keep pet foods and bird seeds stored away from other foods. Practice good preventative maintenance so there are no little creepy kitchen pests.

Aikman returns, but will Mr. Smith go to Washington?

By Michael Scogin

Super Bowl MVP quarterback Troy Aikman will be strapped up and ready to play when his world champion Dallas Cowboys face off against the Washington Redskins in ABC's "Monday Night Football" season opener on Sept. 6. But will Pro Bowl running back Emmitt Smith, who at press time was still holding out, be there too?

Aikman has been chomping at the bit for more playing time this preseason after recovering from off-season back surgery. Coach Jimmy Johnson has stood firm, keeping his golden boy on ice to make sure Aikman would be 100 percent ready for the Cowboys' opener against Washington. When the injury was first diagnosed, doctors and team officials predicted Aikman could miss four to six weeks of the regular season, but Aikman's remarkable recuperative ability and his hard work during rehabilitation have expedited the process.

"He's young, and that's the best part about it," says "Monday Night Football" commentator Frank Gifford. "I had back surgery myself a few years ago, and I wouldn't have wanted to play right away."

The 'Boys won't be the same team without Smith, who has led the NFL in rushing yards and touchdowns over the past three seasons. Smith has been holding out for a contract similar to Thurman Thomas' $4 million-a-year deal. Without him, the Cowboys put the running game into the inexperienced hands of rookie Derrick Lassic, a fourth-round pick from Alabama, and Michael Beasley, who spent the past season on Dallas' developmental squad.

When Smith's holdout began, most of Dallas was sure that owner Jerry Jones would have Smith signed before the season opener, but as the summer wore on, doubts crept in. This was bad news for Aikman and wide receiver Michael Irvin, who rely on Smith's potent rushing attack to open up the Cowboys' aerial show.

The Redskins open the 1993 season with a new coach, Richie Petitbon, who takes over for the retired Joe Gibbs after a long stint as Washington's defensive coordinator. Petitbon's arrival has already been felt by Redskins followers, who have seen their team experiment with a two-back set for the first time in years.

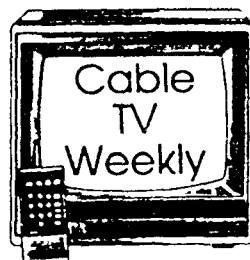

"I don't know why he hasn't been a head coach somewhere sooner, after all the big years he's had personally," says Gifford. "I just hope he's the kind of guy that can make the transition from a great assistant coach to a head coach. When you're a head coach, you've got to be half shrink, half P.R. man and 100 percent coach. Richie will have to do it in his own way."

The Redskins are trying to recover from a subpar 1992 season, despite going 9-7 and making it into the playoffs as a wild card. Last year's biggest disappointment was the performance of quarterback Mark Rypien, who fell from the heights of Super Bowl MVP to the basement of NFC passers.

"I think Rypien will probably be a lot different this year," Gifford predicts. "He went into a kind of a shell last year at the beginning of the season and had a couple of really bad games."

"As a team, I think they were embarrassed about what happened last season, but I would say that this year, they'll be the team right behind the Cowboys in their division."

CBS has high hopes for 'Angel Falls'

BY CANDACE HAVENS

It looked as though there was going to be a void in the world of prime time after CBS canceled "Knots Landing" last season. It was the end of an era for nighttime soaps. But this season CBS has come to the rescue with a new soap based on a small town in Montana, called "Angel Falls."

Will it have the glitz and glamour of "Knots Landing"? Probably not, but it does promise passion and reality.

"Angel Falls," which debuted Aug. 26, is the story of a woman, Rae Dawn Snow (Chelsea Fields). After her father dies, Rae Dawn goes home to the small town where she was raised. Once there, her life becomes intertwined with the lives of those who never left. She meets the man she was in love with years ago and realizes she still has the same passion for him.

The show's writer and co-executive producer, Joyce Eliason, knows her material. She is from a small town in Utah, and many of the things she writes about are culled from her own experiences—although she is quick to point out that the show is not based on any one particular town or person.

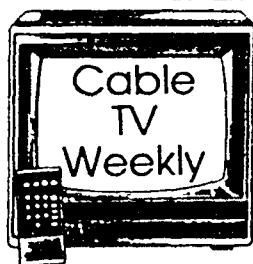

"When you are from a small town, you make these lifetime friendships because you know these people from the time you are a little child until you grow up and leave," says Eliason. "Then you go away, but you still have these dreams from when you were a child, and they are connected to this place. Whenever I go home, it is like I never left because I always have that connection. It is strange but comforting."

Eliason says there is a reason for placing "Angel Falls" in Montana. "There is kind of a mythical feeling about the American West. There are still things that are open and free there, and there is still good air to breathe and clear streams. In a way it is a little bit of a fantasy that you can go back there, find love and be a part of the wild frontier."

"Angel Falls" has an impressive cast, including Peggy Lipton, Kim Cattrall, James Brolin, Brian Kerwin and Cassidy Rae. But only time and ratings will tell if the show is a success.
