Summer classes fill up

By MICHELLE HARRISON
Staff Writer

Summer school programs in Northville have increased in enrollment by 70 percent since 1990.

"It's been growing over the years," Barb Sixt said. "People see the need for continuing education. You don't just stop learning and take the summer off."

Sixt, recently named as the district's part-time language arts resource teacher, said this year's session also fulfilled a personal goal of hers.

"This was the first year we didn't have to drop a student for attendance reasons," Sixt told board of education members last week.

In all, 28 classes were offered including three enrichment classes — Living Science, Safety Town and Science Grant.

Sixt said the district has accommodated the Living Science Foundation for its Living Science program for the five years she has been operating the summer school sessions. Live sea animals are brought in during the week-long day camp.

Safety Town is operated in conjunction with the Northville Parks and Recreation Department. It's designed to teach children safety tips before they start school. Local firefighters and police officers visit the children during the session.

The Science Grant program is sponsored by the Wayne County Regional Educational Service Agency. It combines technology, science and math and allows students to communicate to each other via the technology.

Sixt, who is also a part-time learning consultant at Moraine Elementary, said the regular classroom summer school programs also provided some unique learning experiences for students.

In one government class, students were required to learn how to register to vote. Some students had the chance to listen to a Libertarian party member.

In the English department, mythology was the topic of discussion. Five members of the Renaissance Society came dressed in knight wear to demonstrate their jousting abilities to K-12 students.

"It was fun to see the kindergarten through 12th graders interact together," Sixt said.

City clerks file labor complaint

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

A disagreement between Northville City and the city's 13-member clerical union has resulted in the union's filing of an unfair labor practice complaint against the city.

Union members disagree with the city's recent decision to seek township and library board input into the fate of clerical workers who work in shared services between the city and township — particularly those who work for Northville Public Library.

At the heart of the dispute is a disagreement over the library clerks' loss of hours last year, when the rest of the city's clerical union agreed to a 10-percent cut in their hours to save a clerk from layoff.

That voluntary agreement ended June 30 but the three library clerks, whose hours were ordered cut back by the library board when the other clerks agreed to reduce theirs, are still operating at reduced hours.

City Manager Gary Word said he was informed by the city attorney that the city had an obligation to give the township and library board the opportunity to have a say in decisions affecting shared services employees.

"I think it's just an honest disagreement, for lack of a better term, as to who should represent certain employees," Word said. "It's a representation issue."

Ron Palmquist, a labor relations specialist with the Michigan Association of Public Employees who represents the Northville union, said MAPE is just trying to make the city abide by its agreement when the clerical union joined MAPE earlier this year to renegotiate its recently expired contract.

Twp. trustees question bills by legal firm

By SHARON CONDRON
Staff Writer

A $250,000 bill for legal services rendered by the Northville Township attorney has raised the eyebrows of at least three members of the township board of trustees.

The bill reflects total services rendered by Vanderveer Garza since the firm was hired by the board in February.

"That's a hell of a lot of money," said Treasurer Rick Engelland at Tuesday night's budget review committee meeting. "My personal opinion is that we are calling the township attorney way too much."

At the request of Township Clerk Sue Hillebrand and the dismay of Engelland, trustees will review their bills from Vanderveer Garza at its Oct. 21 meeting.

Monthly bills submitted to the township by Leonard Krzyzaniak have caused a stir among board members for the past few months, according to the clerk.

In the last two months, Vanderveer Garza has billed the township $29,405 for legal services for July and $30,957 for August.

It is those bills that prompted Hillebrand to force a discussion about Krzyzaniak's bills and the township's attorney's use policy by putting the issue on the October meeting agenda.

The clerk said she wants the board to review the bills and the policy that provides township department heads easy access to Krzyzaniak.

On Sept. 15, Hillebrand sent a memo to Township Supervisor Karen Baja questioning several of the items that Krzyzaniak had billed the township for in July.

Those included:
● A $500 bill for five office hours at township hall on Sunday, July 4, when township hall was closed;
● A $330 expense for legal research done about appointing a Water and Sewer department head;

State panel gives initial approval to title transfer

By SHARON CONDRON
Staff Writer

Northville Township officials are crossing their fingers, hoping that Tuesday's 4-0 favorable vote of a state Senate subcommittee means the township is one step closer to acquiring the Wayne Community Living Services building.

The subcommittee lent its unanimous support to the request of Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, to transfer the deed to the building to the township. The building once housed a state hospital before it was given to the non-profit agency that occupies it now.

Northville township is seeking the five-story building and the 13 acres of land surrounding it for a new home for township offices. It is large enough, officials say, to consolidate all of the township's departments into one facility.

"The flavor of the vote was very positive," said Township Supervisor Karen Baja. "We didn't hear any discontentment. And we are fortunate that there was none."

Baja said the support of the Senate subcommittee was the first step in a four-step process. She said Geake's bill will be introduced next to the full Senate and later to a subcommittee in the House of Representatives. The full House will have the final word on the issue once it's passed through the other hearings.

The deed transfer will need a two-

Lawmakers plan visits to Northville schools

State Rep. Willis Bullard, R-Milford, will visit Cooke Middle School Tuesday instead of today as previously planned.

Bullard will talk with staff, students, parents and PTA members during his tour of the school, scheduled from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m.

State Rep. Jerry Vorva, R-Plymouth, will tour Meads Mill Middle School Oct. 22 and Sen. R. Robert Geake, R-Northville, will visit Amerman Elementary Oct. 25. Sen. Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills, will take a look at Northville High School Oct. 29.

The district has invited each of the legislators to tour its buildings and talk with staff and parents in an attempt to make an impact before legislators cast votes in the areas of educational reform.

Community members are invited to attend, but should check with the building principal of the designated school for scheduling considerations.

Senate vote first step in land transfer title thirds majority vote in both the Senate and House to pass, Baja said.

The supervisor said she intends to follow the bill through the legislative hearing process. But she said she hopes the process moves quickly since the building will be vacant soon.

"We are hoping they will do it with quick speed because by Nov. 1 nobody will be in there," she said.

Wayne Community Living Services is moving its operation to the city of Wayne this week and township officials are hoping legislators will move as swiftly as they did Tuesday to get through the rest of the deed transfer process.

Public Safety Director Chip Snider accompanied Baja to the hearing. He said he was glad the hearing passed without incident or opposition and hoped the same would happen on the Senate and House floors in two weeks.

He said he was eager to acquire the building and worried that if it stayed vacant too long it could become the target of the vandalism that's destroyed several other abandoned buildings nearby.

"It's the answer to our space problems," Snider said about the building and the cramped quarters in the existing location of township operations on Six Mile Road. "We will need to have someone in the building to offset vandals. In the past vacant buildings in that area have been vandalized really quickly."

Baja said even if the deed transfer passes through the hearing process, the transfer itself could be delayed by three months to a year. Meanwhile, township officials are working with a leasing agent to see if it is possible to lease space in the building for police services to protect it while it's unoccupied.

"The state is aware that there is a vandalism problem," she said. "But we are working with a leasing agent to have at least space in it for a police presence there."

Summer courses draw adult students

In U.S. history class, a Vietnam veteran shared his war experiences with students.

"They (students) sat there for about an hour and a half listening to him," Sixt said. "You could've heard a pin drop the whole time. He told them history as he lived it."

A concentration camp survivor also spoke to a U.S. History class.

Three computer classes were also taught, the youngest student being 4-years-old. An elementary art class also held an art show.

"We became a real community over there at summer school," Sixt said.

Five of the 12 teachers instructing this year's summer school session were regular Northville classroom teachers. In all, 533 students participated in the program, which included nine elementary, two middle school and seven high school classes.

The total cost of the program was $33,687 while revenues were $34,240. Despite the $552 surplus, there were no increases in tuition this year.

NHS starts the year on fresh note

By MICHELLE HARRISON
Staff Writer

Northville High School principal Thomas Johnson would just rather forget about last year.

"Last year was so difficult," he said, referring to the reduction in both teaching and custodial staffs. He also had to deal with the headache of having a pay-for-participation athletic and co-curricular program as well as the absence of several hall monitors.

In his third year as principal at the high school, Johnson is looking forward to a great year. And although state law mandates annual school improvement reports, Johnson has a few goals of his own he would like to see accomplished this year.

Some of the goals include:

- An emphasis on student responsibility, self-esteem and school pride. The first rule made in this category was the elimination of pop and food in the hallways. Students are also expected to clean their own tables in the cafeteria.

"That was a real problem with the number of students due to increased enrollment," Johnson said. "We can't have teachers going around with garbage cans throwing trash away."

Also, Johnson is trying to put a halt to students sneaking smokes in the bathrooms or on school grounds. Not only are students breaking the law by smoking on school property due to the recent approval of Public Act 140, it is also against the law for minors to smoke or purchase cigarettes.

In an attempt to extinguish the smoking problem, Johnson said students caught puffing will either be required to complete an in-school suspension or enroll in a four-hour smoking cessation class taught by Student Assistance coordinator Charlie Stilec. Since smoking at the school is now considered a misdemeanor, students could also be referred to juvenile authorities or referred to court for a possible fine.

As far as enhancing student self-esteem, Johnson said special assemblies geared toward motivating students will be presented. Staff will also take part.

Northville High School Principal Thomas Johnson is looking forward to a better year now that staffing levels have returned to normal.

"We're looking at ways of inservicing our staff, too," Johnson said. "Many times students come to us as damaged goods... Teachers will be trained in how to look for signs to enable us to intervene with assistance for those students."

- Minimizing suspensions. Again, Johnson will turn to his staff for help.

"We want to look at ways which our teachers can be in-serviced to identify potential problems we can bring to a resolution or intervene quickly enough," Johnson said. "We want to find more effective ways to interact with kids."

- Expanding parent participation. The PTSA has already gotten a head start on that goal as the former parent advisory group has joined affiliation with the PTA. So far about 175 people have registered to participate, Johnson said.

- Making the school a "friendlier" place. High school parent Martha Nield has a jump on this goal with her work of restoring old composite pictures of former graduating classes of Northville. She has most of the photos dating back to 1914.

Johnson said he thinks students would enjoy looking at the photos, which will be displayed at the high school.

Students will also be called upon to design more murals for the high school hallways and the Mother's Club will be asked to underwrite the cost to put up signs letting visitors know where they're at in the high school. For example, signs would be placed near the auditorium and pool areas.

Johnson is also seeking an inside, digital blinking sign which would update students and visitors of upcoming activities as well as the activities of student clubs.

And, for the creme de la creme, Johnson is crossing his fingers for a lighted marquee sign outside of the high school to announce events to passing motorists.

Other challenges facing the high school improvement team are the use of weighted grades (should pluses and minuses be added in determining grade point averages), restructuring of the high school day, maintaining positive community relations, continuing to develop programs that meet educational needs of all students and monitoring the increase of the high school's minority population to develop programs to ensure they are accepted as integral members of the student body.

The high school's 1992-93 school improvement team is made up of staff members Nancy Arnold and Carolyn Bovair from counseling; Jim Conzelman, industrial technology/social studies; Sue Couzens and Bo Hall, English; Ron Meteyer, science; Steve Romba and Lisa Rohde-Barbeau, foreign language; Vicki Zydell, math; Carla Tibble, life skills; students Tom Pump and Tracy Stachura; parents Sharon Ferrara and Martha Nield; and Johnson.

The team is currently monitoring the following goals:

- To develop a transitional school day that affords the opportunity to study a reconstructed day to better meet the needs of students.
- To ensure course content is presented to each student.
- To increase student satisfaction with the school.
- To use the results of the assessment to improve the counseling program at each level.
- To increase involvement in athletic and co-curricular activities.
- To assess personal adjustment of students moving from the middle school through their ninth grade year.
- To create more course options.
- To implement honors and advanced placement courses.

Union issues complaint

"In looking at the contract, there was no mention of reduced hours for the shared services workers, in particular the library workers," Palmquist said. "When we got to the table for negotiations, one of the first questions I had was why are these folks on reduced hours? It's not provided for."

The clerical union's contract expired in June. The clerks staff the city's front office, tax department, library and Department of Public Works, among others.

The union's complaint will be heard by the Michigan Employment Relations Commission Jan. 13, Palmquist said. The commission will probably take at least six months to make a decision following the hearing, he added.

"Everything's on hold until then," Palmquist said. "We're kind of at a deadlock here, which is unfortunate."

Our Opinion

School meeting times should avoid overlap

Members of the Northville Board of Education have launched a commendable effort to streamline their meetings and make them more "user friendly."

The purpose of the proposed time-conscious and informative agendas is to encourage attendance. Arriving for meetings 30 minutes early and keeping the sessions shorter will allow board members to make themselves available to residents who have comments and concerns, both before and after the meetings.

Conducting all meetings on Monday evenings could also enable residents to become familiar with the schedules of both full board and subcommittee meetings, and afford school board members and interested residents a chance to prepare for upcoming meetings.

In view of this new emphasis we find it ironic that two subcommittee meetings have been scheduled for the same time tonight. Both the curriculum and facility subcommittees will meet at 6:45.

Both agendas hold potential interest for residents. The curriculum subcommittee will discuss the office of instruction's 1993-94 budget while the facility subcommittee's agenda includes information about a proposed land transfer from Novi Community Schools.

Not only does the decision to piggy-back the two meetings limit a resident's opportunity to learn more about the goings-on of the school district, it also creates conflicts in board members' assignments. Two board members are on both subcommittees, so alternates will have to sit in to make sure each subcommittee will have three board members present.

While it is usually not a problem for board members to volunteer to attend these meetings — all board members show up for most of the meetings anyway — the board member assigned to a particular subcommittee should have the opportunity to attend each session.

Although we applaud the board's attempt to involve more people in school business, we would suggest the board rethink its scheduling procedure in the future to avoid the overlapping of meetings.

We would also hope the residents of the school community pick up on the board's cue and respond to the district's invitation to learn more about their schools.

OM program offers showcase opportunity

The Northville Odyssey of the Mind (OM) program will kick off its 1993-94 season with an orientation meeting at 7 p.m. tonight at Meads Mill Middle School.

All interested students, parents and coaches from grades K-12 are invited to attend. OM is an international creative problem-solving competition that stresses creativity, brainstorming and teamwork. Teams of five to seven members compete in three divisions: grades K-5 in Division I, grades 6-8 in Division II, and grades 9-12 in Division III.

OM students match wits with students from school districts around the country and around the world, and, in keeping with the exceptional quality of the local product, Northville students traditionally do quite well.

The five competitive problems for the 1993-94 year are:

- MTV (Mini terrain vehicles) — for divisions II and III. The team designs, builds and runs three vehicles (no larger than 8 by 14 inches) that must overcome obstacles, reach their finish line and break a balloon target.

- OM Believable Music — for all divisions. The team must design and construct three devices that, when combined, will play a tune. They must also create three illustrations for each device.

- Classics: The Iliad — for all divisions. The team will create and present a performance of two scenes; one from a chapter from The Iliad and the other a 20th century historical scene using gods and goddesses from The Iliad scene. Artwork will be included in both scenes.

- Set It Free — for all divisions. The team designs and builds a structure made of balsa wood (15 grams or less) that can hold weight while protecting a ping pong ball.

- Furs, Fins and Feathers — for divisions I and II. The team creates and presents a humorous performance depicting the life of an animal from the animal's perspective. The performance will include the animal (displaying four feelings/emotions) and an interaction between it and one or more human beings.

Teams organizing with coaches will have their first choice of problems. The cost per team is $30.

Northville parents and school officials can indeed be proud of the school district's record of achievement in OM competitions, and we hope the tradition continues. Maximum participation will help ensure that it does, and we would encourage parents and students to become involved.

Registration forms have been sent home with students by their teachers in K-8 grades and are available at the high school office for grades nine through 12. For additional forms, or more information, call Sharon Romine at 420-4451.

Something old is new again

Rick Byrne

When I was still in high school, my auto shop teacher told me, "There's nothing new under the sun."

By that he meant that anything that was mass marketed, in particular automotive technology, had already been done at some point.

I think he was overstating his case a little bit. You've got to remember, this was 1979, and MTV, CD players and the Home Shopping Club were yet to come.

But to some extent, Mr. Kobaski was right. In 1979, front-wheel drive on cars was all the rage. Yet he pointed out that front-wheel drive was standard on the Cord, which was built in the 1930s. Fuel injection? It had been around forever. Electric cars? They'd been around since before World War I.

So now we heard this announcement last week that Ford, General Motors and Chrysler were going to work together with the U.S. government to build an extremely high-efficiency, low-emissions car.

I've got news for you. It's already been done, as far back as the 1930s.

Adolf Hitler, of all people, brought Porsche, Auto Union and Mercedes to the table for the purpose of creating a car for the masses. The result was the Volkswagen Beetle.

Considering how successful the Volkswagen became, I'd say the U.S. program ought to do well.

I'd add two further comments, however. First, I find it ironic that we'd have to use Adolf Hitler as a benchmark for anything.

Second, all those civil libertarians and arch right-wingers who think government can't work efficiently and ought to keep its nose out of everything should stick a Volkswagen in their pipe and smoke it.

BEST-KEPT SECRETS: I'm going to reveal a couple of my best-kept secrets, which after this is written, won't be secret anymore.

- The most overlooked shortcut for anyone traveling south or east out of Northville is Edward Hines Drive. Even though the speed limit is only 40, there's never any traffic, and — I figured this out — there's an average of only one traffic light for every three miles. There's one at Seven Mile and Sheldon, and then you don't see another one until you're in the area of Ann Arbor Trail and Haggerty. There's another one at Newburgh Road, another at Wayne Road, and another at Inkster.

Even at the height of the rush hour, I can get to my Grandma's house in Westland in 20 minutes. Less, if I make all the lights — both of them, that is. I've seen people spend 20 minutes just getting to I-275 from downtown Northville.

- The best brownies anywhere are the Chocolate Raspberry variety at Maria's Italian Bakery at Ten Mile and Meadowbrook in Novi.

- You want to order flowers for someone? You'll have a hard time of it in Novi. Livonia, Farmington, Walled Lake, Plymouth and Northville all have florists popping up like weeds, but in Novi I can think only of Flowers & More in the Town Center, Flower Depot near Bates Hamburgers, and Dinsler's way out on Wixom Road. I find it hard to understand how a city of 35,000 people gets by on just three flower shops.

Moments

By BRYAN MITCHELL

Our Gang

This group of Novi youngsters takes a ride in the rain.

Braced for angry phone calls

Phil Jerome

We were braced for an onslaught of angry phone calls.

In the first place, we felt our coverage might upset some people, but decided to go with it anyway.

Secondly, our unofficial warning system kicked in. As the people in the composition department were putting together the pages, they found the story we were concerned about and expressed their disapproval.

"You're not really going to let that go in the paper," said one.

We were so concerned that one of the last things Editor Mike Malott and I did after finishing last Thursday's edition of The Novi News was discuss our response when the complaints started coming in.

"How many calls you expecting?" I asked.

"A couple of hundred," he estimated.

What happened is this: Shortly before 5:30 a.m. on Sunday, Sept. 26, Novi police received an emergency 9-1-1 phone call from a woman who reported that her husband was trying to kill her with a butcher knife.

The call was made by Theresa Watkins, 68, a resident of the Country Place Condominiums on Eight Mile. She and her husband Frederick "Skip" Watkins, 76, had been married 47 years and, by all accounts, had enjoyed a relatively happy marriage.

In fact, they had been to a party the evening before the fatal attack and seemed to enjoy themselves.

It was a most unusual incident. What had happened to prompt the attack? There had been no prior signs of any trouble... just all of a sudden a brutal attack.

We reported the story, of course. People expect that. The part of our coverage that we felt might prompt angry phone calls was the decision to print a portion of the transcript of Mrs. Watkins' call to police.

It was an eerie, troubling transcript.

"Why are you doing this, honey?" she asked. "Please stop. No more. No more, honey."

Nowhere on the transcript was there any indication that her husband had said a word. You could hear police arriving outside the Watkins home, and you could hear police yelling through the door. But there was no indication that Mr. Watkins had uttered a single word throughout the attack.

There will be more to this story. What caused Mr. Watkins to snap? Did the fatal attack have anything to do with the medications he was taking?

It's interesting to note that police said Mr. Watkins seemed dazed when they arrived at the scene. Further, they said he was surprised to learn his wife had been murdered when arraigned the following day.

Why did we print the troubling transcript. Because it was troubling. That's one of the reasons.

We also felt it said something about violence. Media is often accused of glamorizing violence. Not us; not this time. We reported the grisly proceedings as depicted on the tape.

And we're also concerned that the murder might have had something to do with those medications. If this type of bizarre incident can happen to "normal" people, it's something we all need to be aware of.

I checked with Malott at the end of the day Friday to see how many angry calls we had received. "I can't believe it," he said. "Not one."

Police News

Search continues for missing township resident

Township police are still looking for a 32-year-old man who was reported missing from his Northville home on Tuesday, Sept. 28. The man's father told police he has not seen his son since Sunday, Sept. 26. The father told police his son has a drinking problem and was drinking when he left their home in a 1982 Olds Cutlass that he was not allowed to drive.

The missing man has been arrested for drunk driving in the past and has several outstanding warrants against him, police said. The man's father said he wasn't willing to press charges against his son, but did ask police to impound the car if they found it.

POLICE CHASE: A Northville township patrolman saw the driver of a white Corvette take a swig from what appeared to be a beer can while driving east bound on Eight Mile Road near Haggerty Road on Tuesday, Sept. 29. The officer was headed west when he saw the driver and his passenger stopped at the red light. He made a quick u-turn and began to follow the driver.

According to the police report, the officer was three cars behind the Corvette when the driver made a left turn onto Haggerty Road. The officer followed the driver down Haggerty with his lights and siren operating. The car in front of the patrolman pulled to the right while the Corvette sped off and disappeared before the officer was able to stop him.

Citizens in the area directed police to a nearby subdivision where police located a similar make and model car parked in a driveway. But the owner of the car was not the driver police were looking for. Northville Township alerted officers in Farmington and in Novi about the incident.

SHOPLIFTING AT MEIJER: Township police arrested two shoplifters in separate incidents at Meijer last week. The first was a 36-year-old Farmington Hills woman who was arrested Sept. 25 for stealing a pair of leather high-top tennis shoes valued at $44.96. The second was a 16-year-old male who allegedly stole $38.75 worth of merchandise, including a Sharp electronic organizer and a roll of Pillsbury cookie dough and cinnamon rolls the next day.

YOUTH WAVES TOY GUN: A woman told city police that a youth waved what appeared to be a handgun at her 9:20 p.m. Sept. 27 while she was driving through the Main/Center intersection. Police found three Livonia males, ages 16, 17 and 20, sitting on a bench outside the MainCentre Building shortly after the incident. While patting down the 17-year-old, a police officer found a black plastic gun.

The three said they were just goofing off and never pointed the gun at anyone but each other. The woman declined to sign a complaint and the toy gun was confiscated and destroyed.

FENDER BENDERS: City police issued four traffic citations during three traffic accidents last week. Police charged a 31-year-old Southfield man with reckless driving after he allegedly ran another car off the road at Griswold and Cady Sept. 28. A witness said the man was tailgating the victim south on Griswold from Eight Mile, and pulled to the side when the other driver attempted to pull to the side and let him pass.

The Southfield man ran a red light at Main to follow the other driver, pulled alongside the other car just before Cady, and veered to the right, forcing the other car into the curb, the witness added.

A noon accident Sept. 28 resulted in two citations. A driver heading west on Eight Mile apparently tried to pull out of the way of another car that was accelerating up behind her, and her car was struck by the other driver's at Whitegate. The first driver, a 37-year-old Northville woman, was cited for making an improper right turn. The second driver, a 33-year-old Northville woman, was charged with speeding. Her station wagon left about 85 feet of skidmarks at the scene.

City police cited a 24-year-old Northville man with failing to yield after he pulled in front of a westbound car at Eight Mile just east of Taft. The man was pulling out of the Mobil station at 710 W. Eight Mile. His vehicle had to be towed from the scene.

Citizens with information about the above incidents are urged to call Northville City Police at 349-1234 or Northville Township Police at 349-9400.

Trustees express concern over high legal bills

● A $825 bill to send an attorney to a Michigan Township Association seminar in Lansing;

● And $7,900 worth of work done on a case involving Northville Township and the South Canton Citizens Association.

"Since May we have... spent $7,900 on the South Canton Association versus Northville Township," Hillebrand wrote in the memo to Baja. "I was under the impression that we had received a judgment and were under appeal. What is the status of this and could it be cheaper in the long run to settle?"

Some of the items were reconciled by Krzyzaniak as billing errors. Hillebrand said, while others remain unanswered by Supervisor Karen Baja, even though Baja approved the bill for payment on Sept. 15.

The clerk said she would have discussed the items in question with the supervisor before the bill was paid, but she hadn't seen it before it was stamped with Baja's approval.

At the end of the clerk's Sept. 15 memo, she asked that the township drop Krzyzaniak's in-house weekly office hours as one way to reduce the bills.

"In light of our high attorney bills, I think we ought to cancel the weekly office hours, averaging 5 to 5½ hours per week, and see how that goes for awhile," she said.

That was a suggestion that didn't sit well with Baja, who responded to Hillebrand in a separate memo.

"I feel that the office hours spent at Township Hall by the attorney are beneficial, cost effective and monies well spent," the supervisor wrote. "We get many questions answered, items addressed and updates at a much cheaper rate versus calling the attorneys and waiting for written responses. This also offers ease of access for our busy department heads."

Engelland noticed Krzyzaniak's bills were increasing after the budget review committee he chairs began to look at building a new budget.

"It is a phenomenal increase over last year," Engelland told the four other members of the budget review committee and Baja Tuesday night. "It is a lot more than we anticipated. It's been a budget buster for us and one of the reasons we are in trouble."

The treasurer said the township allocated $150,000 for legal expenses in 1992. A year later, $210,000 was proposed for the new calendar year, but legal fees have already exceeded the budgeted amount with three months left in 1993. Costs could soar as high as $300,000 before the year's over, according to Township Finance Director Dwayne Harrigan.

"To me that's a large increase," Engelland said. "We need to get our arms around this very quickly."

Township Manager Bill Richards said Tuesday he is aware that the fees need to be contained.

"This is an area that the management team is very concerned about," he told the committee. "We have already been having dialogue about how we can control this... Lenny has been responsive and he is open to discussing how he can help contain those costs."

Richards sided with Baja in defending a portion of Vanderveer Garzia's costs.

The two chief administrators attributed a portion of the soaring legal costs to a number of active lawsuits that need Krzyzaniak's attention.

"It is a major, major part of our budget," Baja told committee members Tuesday. "But when you look at the services we are getting for the amount of money we are paying, we aren't getting screwed. We inherited 7-8 cases from the previous administration, too."

Richards said trustees should expect to see an increase in legal fees now because three of the township's employee unions have yet to reach contract agreements. But most of those costs are billed to the township from its labor negotiations firm, Barlow & Lange. The manager said the bills from that firm are right on the mark and are in effect one-time fees for contract services.

"My sense is that we have been extremely prudent in our labor negotiations," he said.

Richards suggested that either the administration or the township board review the attorney use policy to see if there are ways the staff's access to the township attorney could be limited and monitored.

"My sense is that we need to get better control of how the money is being spent," he said. "Right now I don't have a sense of what questions are being asked of the attorney from the staff and whether or not more than one person is asking the same question."

"We need to have some kind of policy that limits access," the manager recommended.

Hillebrand agreed and offered up a recommendation in a memo that will be distributed to the board on Oct. 21. Her memo asks that all attorney contacts and requests for work be initiated, monitored and approved by the Township Manager before a staff member telephones the attorney firm.

The memo also asks the board to consider reducing or eliminating the attorney's weekly visits to township hall. She also is requesting the firm install a local phone number to cut down on long distance calls to Vanderveer Garzia's Detroit office.

Engelland agreed with that recommendation to install a local line.

"He (Krzyzaniak) is charging us for a line charge that when he came on board he said he wasn't going to charge us for," the treasurer said. "And he hasn't opened the local office here that he said he was going to either."

After reviewing the bills with the committee and tossing around some ideas to reduce them, Engelland said he expected there would be fallout from the high bills.

"As an elected official I can see us getting criticized for firing the former firm for charging us $150,000 and hiring another firm who charges us $210,000."

A to Z cooking is the style for today's cook

A to Z eating is the "in" thing to do! Everyone is becoming knowledgeable about the newest research on antioxidants to zinc. Books and papers are being written and published on the alphabet of nutrition and food issues.

Antioxidants, like beta carotene may help protect our bodies from lung cancer, cataracts, strokes and heart attacks. More research is needed to find out the exact amount of beta carotene needed by the body for maximum protection. Unlike vitamin A, beta carotene is non-toxic, the worst that can happen is that it would turn your skin yellow or orange if you ate great, enormous quantities.

The more intense the green or yellow-orange color the more beta carotene. Good sources are carrots, sweet potatoes, pumpkin, orange winter squashes, spinach, broccoli, apricots and most dark green leafy vegetables.

Carrots are rich in beta carotene. When eaten, it's converted into vitamin A by the body, but it's possible that beta carotene may have its own effect apart from the vitamin A conversion. Most of the vitamin A comes from plant sources, namely dark green or yellow vegetables and fruits that contain beta carotene. However, vitamin A is in animal foods, too, such as cod and halibut fish oil, liver, kidney and other organ meats, milk, cream and cheese. A real disadvantage of these are the fat and cholesterol whereas the fruits and vegetables contain no fat and cholesterol.

C and E vitamins along with beta carotene may also play important roles in averting coronary artery disease, cancer, cataracts, delay aging and other ills.

Scientists are still not sure how this all works but believe vitamin C is necessary in formation of healthy bones, teeth and skin. Also C helps to heal wounds, resist infections, metabolize some amino and folic acids and help the body absorb iron. Citrus fruits, strawberries, tomatoes, broccoli, turnip green and other greens, sweet potatoes and cantaloupe are all good sources of vitamin C.

Vitamin C is vulnerable to air and heat and is water soluble so leaches out of the food into the cooking water. Always cover containers of juice, cut fruits and vegetables with lids, foil or plastic wrap. If at all possible keep the skins intact, avoid chopping or paring, the longer the surfaces are exposed to air the greater the loss of the vitamins.

Many health claims have been made for Vitamin E and as a protector against heart disease and other conditions. Research is under way and it's possible the daily requirement for vitamin E will be re-evaluated. Vitamin E is abundant in vegetable oils, whole grain products, wheat germ, liver, nuts and leafy green vegetables.

Kale, kohlrabi, Brussels sprouts, cauliflower, cabbage and other members of the cruciferous family are all possible cancer fighting vegetables. Kale is a dark bluish green leafy nutritional powerhouse of vitamin C and beta carotene, calcium, potassium and fiber. Cook kale leaves in a minimal amount of water to preserve nutrients.

Folic acid (folacin) is associated with protecting a fetus against some birth defects and maybe helpful in preventing cancer of the cervix. Many doctors are prescribing over and above the normal dose for women trying to conceive or in the beginning of pregnancy or those that have precancerous cervical or lung cells. Foods rich in folic acid include leafy greens, whole grains, dried beans, oranges and grapefruit.

Garlic keeps vampires away and maybe some close friends. Research is under way on the medicinal use of the sulfur compounds that give garlic its potent aroma. Garlic may protect against cancer, heart disease and stroke and reducing cholesterol but all the facts are not in yet. The problem comes from knowing how many garlic supplements you need. The best source is raw garlic, the supplement may not

Buttery Corn Clouds with Salsa served with onions, peppers and avocado cubes are the perfect complement to a glass of icy Mexican beer.

ETHNIC APPEAL

Sample from global roundup of tastes

By TERSHIA D'ELGIN
Copley News Service

How often do you opt for a couple of appetizers instead of a main course? Do you often drop by a bar for a few tapas or hors d'oeuvres? If so, you're part of a trend.

People are eating less, in less time, and under more casual circumstances. But they still seek variety, flavor and ingenuity in their food, even in small portions.

When preparing hors d'oeuvres for party, turn to ethnic cuisines for the unusual. You'll find exotic ingredients that are perfect for feasting. Even if the ingredients are ordinary, the combination of flavors may be new. You might choose to center your event around food from one specific culture or country. Or maybe a mix serves your purposes better.

SOUTH OF THE RIO GRANDE

Mexico has more than chips and guacamole to its credit. Seviche, while perishable, makes a refreshing hot-weather tapa (Spanish for hors d'oeuvre). It's easily prepared and requires no actual cooking since the fish "cooks" while marinating in the lime juice.

One version marinates firm fish fillets in coconut milk, red pepper, tomatoes, parsley and green onions. Serve seviche on soft of quick-fried tortillas.

Squid, lightly sauteed in wine, garlic and herbs and finished in fresh chopped parsley is another great, light taste from Central America.

JUST BEYOND THE TIP OF ITALY

Pizza is the traditional tavern food in Sicily. There are limitless topping possibilities: artichokes, anchovies, dried tomatoes, sausages, tuna, salmon, Italian bacon, toasted garlic, mushrooms, olives and Italian cheeses like Gorgonzola, mozzarella and Romano.

Two or three toppings make it more manageable for cocktail food. A large tin of pizza can be sliced into easy-to-eat portions and served with a hearty red wine.

Many simple snacks are the accident of peasant customs. Serve caponata, made of minced eggplant and tomatoes, on Italian bread. Sicilian Tomato Spread is little more than dried tomato sauce. Try it on Toasted Bread Rounds.

THE MIDDLE EAST

For variety, particularly in vegetarian regimens, Middle Eastern specialties can't be beat. Consider the many fillings for pita — hummus, falafel, tabouli, cucumbers and yogurt, feta. Grilled vegetables like eggplant, peppers, tomatoes and onions, brushed with olive oil, are terrific right off the barbecue in pita.

THE ORIENT EXPRESSION

In the last decade, Japanese sushi and sashimi have swept America. Their preparation by a trained sushi chef seems nothing short of a miracle. Nevertheless, these feats are not beyond the reach of a good knife, the right ingredients and a little practice.

Indonesia has its own spicy, tropical flavors that are particularly appropriate for warm evenings. And we're not just talking ramak. Try Lime and Ginger Scallop skewers, in which the scallops are marinated rather than cooked. For an outdoor party, try chicken skewers, grilled on the spot. Chutneys of peppers, cucumber, cilantro, mint and shallots give shellfish a zing.

Don't forget fruits. Pineapple, figs, melon, mango, papaya and pears alternate in season. They can be plumped up with liqueurs or sweet wines to make stunning partners with smoked meats or cheese. Or try them with seasoned nuts.

REGIONAL AMERICA

American hors d'oeuvres have plunged ahead far beyond meatballs and cheese balls. America has its own ethnicity, most recently Southwest. This cuisine, a mix of Mexican and American specialties, shows allegiance to a wide array of chilies, black beans, several strains of corn and corn products, cilantro and tomatoes of every shape and color.

For example, flour tortillas stacked with chilies and cheese and served with margaritas is not authentic popular. Corn Clouds are another example.

African-American culture, with roots in Africa and the South, has its own distinctive recipes. Some of it's Cajun style, blackened or seasoned with gumbo. Others are Southern favorites like pickled okra. This can be kept in sealed jars for many months and is great served with beer or iced tea. Small barbecued ribs, little crab cakes and fritters are part of this heritage.

TO KEEP IN MIND

- Appetizers are "finger food." Keep the proportions small.
- Avoid runny sauces since these are to be eaten while standing or without a table.

- Stay away from complex combinations. Use three main ingredients, tops.
- Seldom are forks or chopsticks involved. Think about "containing" the food — on toast, in a mushroom, nestled in an endive or spinach leaf, baked in pastry, etc.

- Appetizers are best when they have both smooth textures and crunchy textures combined.

- Your menu will be more visually appealing if contrast is built into each hors d'oeuvre. Top them with nuts, chopped herbs, a leaf of mint, basil or parsley, a dollop of sauce. Display them on a color differing from the hors d'oeuvre color itself.

YOUR APPETIZER LARDER

Develop a few favorite appetizers and keep the ingredients on hand. You'll be able to produce appealing offerings at the last minute. These needn't be complicated. There is nothing more gracious

Chefs named sous keep the boss happy

Mary Brady

Both are sous chef related. I've written about sous chefs before. They are the assistants to the chef, responsible for keeping the chef, yours truly, happy.

Lots of things have been happening around Brady's, so it's time for one of those "Moanin'" columns. Not really moanin'; just a Bob Talbert format.

Foremost on the list are some exciting employee notes.

The job is a big one. Not easy, but rewarding. A large part of the day is spent guiding other kitchen members, ordering, and food preparation. They must be aware at all times of what is on hand, and each and every shift "go through the walk-in" and organize.

We have very limited storage space so serious attention is given to perishables. Much of the food has a short shelf life and must be treated with extreme care. Almost "baby-sat."

Keeping a kitchen usch as ours organized is a major task. Mind-boggling at times. Prep lists are done twice a day. Major cleaning tasks are performed daily. Bottom line, there is a lot of work.

Anyway, for several months we've been waiting for the right person to take over the pantry station at lunch. My thought was to free up Pat Wzolek, our day sous chef, who has been "working a station" in addition to everything else.

And one day along comes Dorothy Mortenson. Her background is one of golf courses. Fast food, fast pace. I was more than willing to give her a try. A hunch paid off. She's been with us nearly a month and has fit in with our crew very well.

Additionally, Pat is able to do more of the "Keeping Me Happy" scenario. Keep up the good work, Dorothy.

Also I'd like to announce the promotion of Sharon Jeurgens to night sous chef. Sharon has worked hard to attain this position. "Paid her dues," so to speak. She is a graduate of Schoolcraft's Culinary Arts Program, and has worked with us for nearly two years.

Very few persons her age (young) have the distinction of being the second in command. The rest of the staff is happy with her advancement and they — along with me — will do whatever they can to make the job easier. Congratulations. You'll do fantastic!

Last but not least, welcome George Hamiel. George was brought on staff to take over Sharon's sautee position. He is a certified working chef, and a graduate of Oakland Community College's apprentice program. We are thrilled to have him working with us.

Our second newsletter was mailed on Wednesday. What a tremendous sense of accomplishment. Some highlights include a wine and beer dinner celebrating Michigan wine month and October fest will be held on Oct. 11.

We are pairing food with Michigan wines and Octoberfest brews from around the world. I think the menu is outstanding. One caution: Don't eat at least eight hours before coming. Call for more information.

Oh no! Not enough room to expound on all the news bits . . . I'll continue with more exciting high points next week.

Northville resident Mary Brady is a certified executive chef and co-owner of Diamond Jim Brady's restaurant in Novi.

WARM UP TO FOOD SAFETY: That's the message from the United States Department of Agriculture which warns there are more cases of food poisoning during the warm weather months. Here's some food for thought.

■ Don't use food from damaged containers. Check cans and glass jars for dents, cracks or bulging lids, paper packages for leaks and stains.

■ Serve food quickly from the cooler and replace it inside the cooler fast.

Food can be fun just for starters than a nice cheese and tempting nut bread. Or it might be Italian fare like salami, cured olives and a thin sliced loaf.

Something different but simple like freshly roasted plump chestnuts served with sherry or cider has European style. In France, every inn serves its own pate with cornichons. Pate can be kept in the fridge almost indefinitely.

These recipes are from the Cole Group's California Culinary Academy Series cookbook "Appetizers & Hors D'Oeuvres," available from the publisher, 4415 Sonoma Highway, Santa Rosa, Calif. 95409-2717, or your local bookseller ($11.95).

For Corn Clouds with Spicy Salsa, fluffy cornmeal batter turns into buttery corn "clouds" to be topped with sour cream and salsa. Or put a platter of these dollar-size clouds beside a selection of garnishes—cubed avocados, chopped tomatoes, marinated red onion slices, chopped red pepper, chopped green onion—and let guests help themselves. Serve when fresh corn is at its peak, as a partner to cocktails or cold Mexican beer.

CORN CLOUDS WITH SPICY SALSA

1½ cups flour
¼ cup cornmeal
1 teaspoon baking powder
6 eggs, separated
6 ounces cream cheese
1½ cups milk
¼ cup unsalted butter, melted
¼ cup minced green onion
1 cup corn kernels cut fresh from the cob
1 teaspoon salt
Hot-pepper sauce to taste
1 teaspoon butter
1 teaspoon corn oil
Salsa Verde (recipe follows)
Sour cream

Sift together flour, cornmeal and baking powder. In large bowl of electric mixer, cream egg yolks and cream cheese. Add cornmeal mixture, then slowly add milk. Stir in melted butter, green onion, corn kernels, salt and hot-pepper sauce to taste.

In separate bowl, beat egg whites with a pinch of salt until they are stiff but not dry. Fold one third of whites into batter. Then gently fold batter into remaining whites.

Grease non-stick frying pan with 1 teaspoon butter and corn oil. Heat pan until butter foams. Drop batter into hot fat by rounded tablespoons and cook until bubbles form and burst on top. Turn cakes over and cook an additional 30 seconds. Transfer cakes to a warm platter and dot with salsa, sour cream, or both. Yields 5 dozen.

If you make this salsa several hours ahead—there's no reason not to—don't add salt until just before serving. That way the tomatoes, onions and green onions will stay crisp and firm. Salsa Verde complements any seafood; it's particularly delicious with raw or grilled oysters.

SALSA VERDE Green Tomato Sauce

1 pound tomatillos (Mexican green tomatoes, available in Hispanic markets), canned or fresh
¼ cup minced cilantro ¼ cup diced white onion
2 to 3 serrano OR jalapeno chilies, minced
2 green onions, minced
Lemon juice to taste
Salt to taste
Additional minced cilantro, for garnish (optional)

Drain tomatillos if canned. If fresh, husk them and blanch them in boiling water to cover until tender, about 12 minutes. Core tomatillos and mince.

In small stainless-steel, glass or ceramic bowl, combine tomatillos, cilantro, onion, chilies, green onion and lemon juice.

Add salt to taste. Garnish with minced cilantro just before serving. If desired. Yields about 3 cups.

To make in food processor: Put tomatillos, cilantro, onion and chilies in work bowl fitted with steel blade; process briefly. Mixture should be slightly chunky. Stir in green onion by hand; add lemon and salt to taste just before serving.

Strips of chicken marinated in a sweet and peppery peanut sauce are threaded on skewers with red peppers and grilled until crisp and juicy.

INDONESIAN CHICKEN SKEWERS

3 whole chicken breasts, boned, skinned and halved
1 cup crunchy peanut butter
¼ cup chopped cilantro

½ cup chili sauce
1 tablespoon salt
¼ teaspoon cayenne pepper
¼ teaspoon black pepper
¼ cup lemon juice
¼ cup brown sugar
¼ cup soy sauce
8 green onions, minced
3 tablespoons minced garlic
2 sweet bell peppers, red or green, cut into ¼-inch cubes
Minced parsley, for garnish

Slice each half-breast into four lengthwise strips. Set aside.

In stainless steel, glass, or ceramic bowl, combine peanut butter, cilantro, chili sauce, salt, cayenne, black pepper, lemon juice, sugar, soy sauce, green onion and garlic. Add chicken strips, cover, and let marinate overnight or up to 2 days.

Preheat broiler or prepare charcoal fire. On 6- to 8-inch bamboo skewers, thread chicken strips like serpents, with pepper cubes interspersed. Broil or grill for 5 to 6 minutes, turning once. Serve garnished with minced parsley.

Yields 2 dozen kebabs.

ZUCCHINI FRITTERS

8 medium zucchini, grated
1 carrot, peeled and grated
3 cloves garlic, minced
3 whole eggs plus 2 egg yolks
5 green onions, minced
2 tablespoons minced fresh dill OR 1 tablespoon dried
¼ cup chopped parsley
¼ cup fresh basil leaves
2 tablespoons fresh tarragon OR 1 teaspoon dried
¼ cup grated Jarlsberg or Gruyere cheese
2 tablespoons lemon juice
salt and black pepper to taste
pinch cayenne pepper
¼ to 1 cup flour
1 to 1½ cups peanut oil
creme fraiche or sour cream

In blender or food processor, place zucchini, carrot, garlic, eggs and egg yolks, green onions, dill parsley, basil, tarragon, cheese, lemon juice, salt, pepper and cayenne. Process to blend well, then transfer to large bowl. Add flour, ¼ cup at a time, until mixture holds together and is not "gluey."

Heat ¼-inch of oil in medium saute pan. When oil is almost smoking, drop large spoonfuls of batter into pan. Flatten each round slightly, then saute quickly, 30 to 45 seconds on each side. Drain fritters on paper towels and keep warm while you fry the remainder. Serve immediately, with a dollop of creme fraiche or sour cream.

Yields about 4 dozen.

SICILIAN TOMATO SPREAD

¼ cup tomato paste
1 teaspoon red wine vinegar
1 tablespoon olive oil
¼ teaspoon chopped fresh thyme
1 large clove garlic, minced

Combine all ingredients thoroughly. Pack into small crock. Serve immediately or cover with thin film of olive oil and refrigerate.

TOASTED BREAD ROUNDS

¼ cup olive oil
2 tablespoons unsalted butter
2 garlic cloves, minced (optional)
1 long day-old French baguette or similar French-style bread

Preheat oven to 350 F. Heat oil and butter together with garlic (if used) until butter is melted. (The garlic can steep in the oil for several hours, if desired.)

With sharp, serrated knife, cut bread into ¼-inch-thick slices on diagonal. Brush slices liberally on both sides with butter-oil mixture and place on baking sheet.

Bake until golden (about 10 minutes). Makes about 40 rounds.

Michigan's lakes make for good eating fresh catch

The tepid waters of inland lakes makes fishing for food an interesting task. The temperatures and depths of local fishing holes seldom get low enough to sustain cold water salmon or tasty brown trout, two of Michigan's best known fish.

According to Bill Blacha of Lake-side Fishing Shop in Farmington, what you may catch is bluegills, panfish, perch, walleye, trout or bass. "Most people who fish on inland lakes primarily try to catch bass because it is a larger fish," said Blacha. "The problem is that bass is not a good table fish."

The smaller fish are actually better tasting, said John Giordano, owner of Annie Up Charters in Royal Oak.

They are also safer to eat according to the Michigan Public Health Department. Bluegills and other sunfish are much less likely to have unsafe amounts of mercury in them because they eat insects instead of other mercury carrying fish.

Growing up fishing on Kent Lake in Kensington park and on Pontiac Lake gave Giordano a great fondness for the smaller panfish.

"Panfish are basically bluegills, crappies or other types of sunfish," said Giordano. "They just happen to be the perfect size for a pan and they taste great."

The problem with bluegills and other panfish is that it is hard to make a really healthy meal with them, said Giordano who prefers to batter fry them.

Chef Pascal Pavianni, manager of Scallops in Rochester, disagrees.

"There are many things you can do with panfish," said Pavianni. "They can be sauteed over a campfire with a little olive oil and fresh herbs such as dill or thyme."

For a more gourmet approach, Pavianni, who was trained at the Culinary Academy of Paris, suggests sauteeing shallots and capers with your fish in a teaspoon of butter. Add white wine and lemon juice, let the liquid reduce by half and serve.

To reduce the fat and cholesterol when frying your fish in batter, Giordano recommends using Egg Beaters or egg whites only to moisten the fish, dip it into seasoned flour and fry.

Bob Mitchell, known as the Hangman on local lakes, has been fishing for 44 years. He suggests deep frying bluegills.

"I clean my fish thoroughly, pat it dry with a paper towel and dip it in a thick pancake batter made of Bisquick. I use ginger ale instead of milk or water and I add a pinch of salt, white pepper and garlic powder to the mix. Then I deep fry the fish until they are crisp and ready to eat."

According to Mitchell, the most important thing to remember when preparing fish is to not over cook it. The second thing is to keep it fresh once you've caught it.

"Don't put the fish on a string or toss them in the bottom of the boat. Kill them instantly and pack them in a cooler full of ice," said Mitchell.

"The instant a fish strikes a lure and begins fighting his body creates an acid build-up in the muscle tissues that can affect the taste of the meat. It is similar to adrenalin in people."

Once the fish are safely in the kitchen, Mitchell separates his large fish from the small, filets them and follows one of his freezing processes.

The first is for large fish like pike, salmon and trout. He calls it — Three Stage Wrapping Process. Mitchell rinses the filets thoroughly with cool water then wraps them in two layers of plastic wrap, a layer of aluminum foil and finishes them off with a layer of freezer paper.

"Be sure to label and date the freezer packages," said Mitchell. "You don't want to keep them more than six months."

The second process is for small fish like bluegills, crappies and other panfish. Mitchell doesn't have a name for this technique, but it is just as effective at preventing freezer burn as the Three Stage Wrapping Process.

Mitchell begins by rinsing the small filets thoroughly and placing 12 pieces in a freezer bag.

"Make sure to squeeze all the air out," said Mitchell. "Freeze the bags overnight. The next day take the bags from the freezer and drizzle a small amount of water over the fish in the bag. Just so they are damp. Freeze over night and repeat the process two more times. It creates a fine coating of ice which prevents freezer burn."

Mitchell's favorite inland lake fish is pike. Its pure white meat and mild flavor is perfect accompanied by a minimum of spices.

"White pepper is much better than the standard black variety for pike," said Mitchell. "Sesame oil instead of butter also enhances the flavor."

Mitchell recommends placing the top of a roasting pan on a barbecue grill to prevent the fish from overcooking. Before placing the fish on the grill, brush it with sesame oil and cook three minutes on each side.

The only problem with pike, ac-ording to Mitchell, is learning how to remove the Y bone in the back of the fish. It takes quite a bit of practice, but it is well worth it. Pike is one of the least fatty fish in local lakes.

Removing the fat from your fish is very important because that is where many of the toxins reside, said Mitchell.

"Since pike doesn't have much visible fat, check for dark flesh on the meat," said Mitchell. "That is where the fatty content is. Leaving it on adds a negative flavor as well as toxins to the meat."

Another thing to remember when cooking fish is that bigger is not necessarily better.

"Fish that live to be make more size, deserve to be let go to make more fish," said Mitchell. "Plus it's better for the environment to take several small fish versus one large. It keeps the fish from over populating."

Taste is also an issue. According to Mitchell and Giordano, small fish taste better than large fish.

If you catch walleye, keep the one to three-pound fish and throw the others back, said Mitchell. Pike should be between three and 10 pounds to be considered keepers.

Mitchell offers this mouth watering cajun recipe for local trout that can also be used on big lake salmon. He begins by carefully cleaning and filleting the fish. Pat it dry then rub a mixture of salt, garlic powder, white pepper, black pepper and cayenne pepper into the meat. Put that aside and place sesame oil in a cast-iron skillet, be sure to get the oil smoking hot.

"The hotter it is the better it works," said Mitchell. Cook the fish for only 30 seconds on each side. This sears the flavor. Then place the fish in a broiler pan and bake at 350 degrees until done, allowing the fat to drip off into the pan.

Fresh garlic or garlic powder to taste
1 chopped onion

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Pour two cups spaghetti sauce into the bottom of a baking dish, sprinkle 1/2 cup of mozzarella, a tablespoon of Parmesan, and onions into the sauce. Lay filets on the cheese and continue layering the pan with sauce, cheese and fish. Save a layer of mozzarella. Top with seasonings and bake for 30 minutes.

Sprinkle the top with remaining mozzarella and broil until cheese is lightly brown and bubbling.

To create a lasagna effect just add cooked lasagna noodles then layering the fish, cheese and spaghetti sauce.

Recipe submitted by John Giordano.

KEN'S FAMOUS FISH CHOWDER

The catch of the day filleted and cut into chunks
2 medium potatoes, diced
1 medium onion, sliced
1 quart of half-and-half
Flour
Salt and pepper to taste

Boil a half a pot of water, add potatoes and cook until almost done. Add fish chunks and half-and-half. Bring nearly to a boil. You don't want the ingredients to come to a full boil because it will scald the milk. Thicken with flour and water mixture. Salt and pepper to taste.

Charitable chefs wear white hats

They say the good guys wear the white hats, but the same can be said of the gals, too.

On Sunday, Oct. 24, three local women chefs will cook up their best gourmet grub in a fund-raiser for scholarships through the Women's Resource Center at Schoolcraft College. Chefs Mary Brady, Denise Caurdy and Kelli Lewton have teamed up for an evening of food and fun Western Style, from 4-7 p.m. at the Sheraton Oaks-Novl.

Everyone is invited to turn out in their best denim, boots and cowboy hats for some grazing, and the Texas Two-Step, the Tush Push and more (that's Western for food and dancing). Even those with two left feet are encouraged to attend. The Texas Two-Step and other line dances are easy to learn. The Cowboy and his Lady will be on hand to give lessons to the uninitiated. Watchers are welcome, too.

Tickets are $50 per person. Reservations are requested by Oct. 18. You may mail your check, payable to Schoolcraft College, to the Women's Resource Center, 18600 Haggerty Road, Livonia, MI 48152. You may also phone an order with Visa or MasterCard to Carolyn, 348-5474, or Elaine, 462-4443. All tickets will be held at the door.

Mary Brady, a Northville resident, is owner of Diamond Jim Brady's in Novi. Denise Caurdy is executive chef at Too Chez in Novi, and Kelli Lewton is co-owner and chef of 2 Unique Catering in Bloomfield Hills.

These three talented chefs have edited and published a cookbook, Real Life, Real Cooking: Women Cook for a Cause. It's a collection of recipes from local people who love to cook, both for a living and for fun. The book is filled with the kind of recipes you'll be proud to prepare for your family and friends. It will be available for sale at the event, and proceeds from the book also go to support the scholarship fund.

The book is also available locally at Diamond Jim Brady's, the Sheraton Oaks-Novl, Too Chez, the Northville Chamber of Commerce, Judy's Decorating Shop in downtown Northville, the Women's Resource Center at Schoolcraft College and Bookstall on the Main in downtown Northville. To order one by phone, call Carolyn at 348-5474.

Zinc is an essential mineral that speeds healing of wounds, as well as proper functioning of the immune system. A diet rich in zinc is thought to slow deterioration of the eyes retina, common in older people. Good sources of zinc are beans, tofu, meat, poultry, and leafy green vegetables, wheat germ and whole wheat bread. We only touched one part of the alphabet but I'm sure you can see a trend.

Is Barney really that bad?

BY SCOTT WHITE

The nation resounds twice a day with the flapping footsteps of parents scrambling to vacate their purple-dinosaur-infested living rooms to the strains of "I love you, you love me..."

Since Barney seemingly exploded on TV screens some 16 months ago, he has become a preschool sensation on the level of the Muppets or the Peanuts characters. But how much of the rabid dislike of Barney by many adults is really justified and how much is merely reactionary? With 18 new episodes, the question must be asked: Is Barney really all that bad?

First, some background about the dinosaur. Barney is anything but new. he was created five years ago by Sheryl Leach, a Texas schoolteacher with a master's degree in education. Frustrated by a lack of quality entertainment for her 2-year-old son, she came up with the concept of an interactive video series based on a stuffed toy who comes to life and plays with children. The toy was initially a teddy bear, but became Barney the Dinosaur after Leach's son responded especially well to a traveling dinosaur exhibit.

Leach brought her idea before her former employer, DLM Inc., an educational publisher, and was given the green light. She teamed up with teacher/mother Kathy Parker and video producer Dennis DeShazer, and they produced a dozen "Barney & the Backyard Gang" videos.

Over the next three years, the video series constantly gained momentum. (The first three episodes, starring Sandy Duncan, were removed from the marketplace last December, making them collectors' items.) The videos caught the eye of a PBS programming executive in Connecticut, who then introduced the series to the network as a prospect for a new children's show.

"Barney & Friends" hit the airwaves in April 1992, faltered because of funding difficulties, and was righted by a parents' movement determined to keep the show on the air. Today, the Barney fan club counts more than 600,000 members, with new enrollments running at around 18,000 to 20,000 a week. "Barney" receives thousands of letters each week from parents who heartily endorse the show, which has also garnered a pair of day-time Emmy nominations.

So where does the dino dislike come from? Adults seem to find something pretentious about the show's unpretentious focus on its target audience - preschoolers. They resent the fact that "Barney" is not written for them.

Simple, repetitive songs and dances just right for absorption and enjoyment by 2- to 5-year-olds can be excruciating for an adult. Other shows, such as "Sesame Street" and many mainstream animated works, compensate for this by workign more sophisticated humor into the program. "Barney" makes no such attempt, and that makes it a target by frustrated adults.

The new programs deal with more real-world topics than before, such as grandparents, exercise and safety. Single-parent families and job loss are discussed on occasion.

There is even a show focusing on a child character's broken arm. Additionally, children with physical and mental handicaps appear in the cast.

However, the format of the show stays the same in the new season, much to the chagrin of the Barney bashers. Once again, are adults so childish that they view a show written about them in mind as an affront?

Barney foes would be wise to remember that adults often (very often) watch programs solely for their entertainment value. What, then, is so wrong with one designed specifically for the entertainment of kids? In addition to being consistently clean fun, the program emphasizes imagination, resourcefulness and positive social interaction. It is a celebration of how wonderful childhood can be. While some grown-ups may wish there were a more palatable option than Barney, television can certainly be a lot worse.

"Barney & Friends," featuring America's favorite six-foot, purple dinosaur, begins its second season on PBS. Topics covered in the new season include exercise, colors and going to the dentist.

Louise Sorel: So good at being bad

BY CANDACE HAVENS

Louise Sorel portrays the wicked and manipulative Vivian Alamain on "Days of Our Lives," and viewers love her for it. The character has buried Carly alive, injected innocent patients with cleaning solutions and gotten away with it all.

The actress is the first to admit she is surprised her character is still around. "I just can't seem to get out of there," says Sorel. "I didn't think there was anywhere else for the character to go after what she had done, but she has made an amazing turnaround."

Sorel says she was surprised by fans' reaction to her character's terrible deeds. "I had a lot of reservations about the story line where Carly was buried alive. At first I told the producers I had better start wearing a bullet-proof vest. But I never received one piece of hate mail."

Sorel says she was deeply affected by the dismissal of Michael Sabatino (Lawrence). "It has been a seesaw with all the extreme changes," says Sorel. "Losing Michael is just breaking my heart. I'm so happy that he got a job on 'The Bold and the Beautiful.' But I really can't imagine working at 'Days' without him."

The writers have promised Sorel she will be involved in another shocking story line in the near future. "I think they are going to send Vivian to some asylum to get the herbs (that supposedly caused her to do all the evil deeds) out of her system. Once there, she meets Laura Horton, and the producers won't tell me any more because I can't keep a secret. I do know that Vivian will be involved in Kate and Victor's relationship."

Sorel says she isn't sure how much longer her character will be on the show. "It is funny," she says. "Last February they were trying to throw me off the show. Now every time I think I'm going to leave, they find a way to redeem Vivian. I think the only thing left for her to do is chop someone up and eat them. I turned to Deborah Adair the other day and said, 'Don't worry, darling, everything is going to be OK, because I'm going to eat you.' I mean really, what else is left?"
