

Scams put authorities on alert

Bogus claim trys to gain cleaning fee

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

Center Street Cafe owner Mike Beshara knew something was wrong when he received a dry cleaning bill for a spilled drink Wednesday.

The bill, for $9.20, was postmarked from New York and listed damage to a purple silk sport jacket.

"I would definitely remember if it was something like that," Beshara said.

Sure enough, the bill was apparently part of an international mail scam that postal inspectors have traced to a Florida address. Beshara's 134 N. Center St. restaurant was apparently one of thousands in the United States and Canada that received identical letters last week, claiming that a customer had a drink spilled on his jacket while he dined.

The alleged victim, John Walker, wrote that he "had the pleasure of dining at your establishment with a local client. As usual the food and service were of excellent standard and I look forward to returning soon."

Unfortunately, Walker wrote, "one of your wait staff accidentally spilt a drink and soiled my blazer."

Walker enclosed the $9.20 dry cleaning bill for his purple jacket, complete with his name typed at the top but with no name of the dry cleaning service itself.

His own letterhead had a Health Advice Bureau logo at the top and listed mailing addresses in Lake Worth, Fla. and Cambridgeshire, England.

Beshara said he doubted Walker's claim immediately because he had not been told of any such incident by his staff. "The last time a guy had something spilled on him was when a bottle of ketchup popped on him. . . I paid the $3 bill when he came in and gave me the bill," he said.

Beshara became more suspicious when he noticed the New York postmark on the envelope. His suspicions were confirmed that night when he saw a segment on the evening news describing the scam. He reported the incident to city police the following

Dear Sir,

While in your area on business I had the pleasure of dining at your establishment with a local client. As usual the food and service were of excellent standard and I look forward to returning soon.

You may already be aware of the fact that one of your wait staff accidentally spilt a drink and soiled my blazer. As requested I am enclosing a photocopy of my dry cleaning bill for reimbursement.

I understand that accidents do happen and would appreciate your prompt attention to this matter.

Thank you in advance for your co-operation in this matter.

Sincerely,

morning. Since he never paid the bill, police took the letter for informational purposes only.

Postal offices around the country were swamped with inquiries about the letters Thursday and Friday. "I imagine we've probably had over 100 calls down here," said Fred Van de Putte, an inspector with the U.S. Postal Inspector's Office in Detroit. But Van de Putte said few callers had actually sent in a payment.

"I'm getting the impression not too many people have fallen for this," he said.

A woman with the mail fraud division of the Miami postal inspector's office, which covers Lake Worth, described the scam as a "mass mailing" and said the complaints probably number in the thousands.

"With most people who've received the letter, it's such an obvious fraud that they haven't paid," she said Friday.

While officials there have a suspect in the case, the woman would not say if he had been taken into custody Friday. "We know who took out that particular address and we have certain procedures that we follow to check the mail," she said. "Let's just say that we'd like to talk to him."

Each count of mail fraud is punishable by up to five years in jail and/or a $250,000 fine.

Phony drive seeks money for charity

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

Giving to charity has never been this easy, or this discreet.

Several Northville residents received phone calls last week asking them to leave $25 checks made out to the VFW in their mailboxes or taped to their door to help feed the poor. The callers, both male and female, claimed to be affiliated with Northville Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 4012 and said they needed the donations to hold a Thanksgiving dinner for area needy at the 438 S. Main St. post.

They also offered to stop by and pick the donations up to save homeowners the trouble of mailing them in.

The claims have Post Adjutant Clayton Myers hopping mad.

"We spend thousands and thousands of dollars every year on the needy locally, helping the veterans and their families and such, and to have something like this happen is very irritating," he said.

Northville's VFW Post 4012 is not affiliated with the callers in any way, Myers said. He said the VFW post has no plans for a Thanksgiving dinner for the poor and added that its only community-wide fund-raiser is for the Fourth of July parade.

City police were still investigating the fund-raising requests as of press-time Friday.

The police department received at least three calls about the callers Thursday, and Thursday afternoon police received a complaint of a man going door-to-door soliciting funds. One caller, who identified herself as Barbara, asked would-be donors to leave the checks out to be picked up Thursday evening.

The VFW post itself received five calls within an hour-and-a-half Thursday from people wondering whether the calls were legitimate, Myers said.

Myers added that local residents

Expert to address parenting problems in workshop at NHS

By MICHELLE HARRISON
Staff Writer

A parenting workshop focusing on understanding and dealing with problems facing gifted and talented adolescents and their families will be held this weekend in Northville.

Thomas M. Buescher Ph.D. will address "Parenting Skills for the Inevitable: Adolescence" from 9 a.m. to noon Saturday in the Northville High School auditorium.

The high school is located at 775 North Center Street.

Buescher brings over 20 years of experience and special expertise to his work with exceptional children, adolescents and young adults. He currently is a child, adolescent and family therapist in mid-coastal Maine.

Buescher is a former associate director for the Center for Talent Development of Northwestern University and associate professor of special education for Wayne State University.

According to Buescher, research has shown that gifted and talented youngsters generally go through developmental stages early, including puberty.

Tomorrow's seminar is designed to help parents of even young children build skills and plant the seeds for the future parenting of those all-too-soon-to-be adolescents.

Admission is $10 for members of the Western Wayne Michigan Alliance for Gifted Education, which is sponsoring the event, and $15 for non-members. Advance registration is requested, but not required.

For information, call Cheryl Gasen at 422-0784.

Mail registrations with name and address to: W 2 Alliance, in care of 9908 Berwick, Livonia, MI 48150. Names will be listed at the door.

Student enters plea in school assault

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

A 17-year-old student charged with aggravated assault for a Sept. 30 incident at Northville High School pleaded no contest to the charge at Plymouth's 35th District Court Friday.

DeVaughn Dickee Little was released on a $500 personal bond after his pre-trial appearance before Judge James N. Garber. Sentencing was set for Oct. 29 in the case.

Aggravated assault is punishable by up to a year in jail and/or a $500 fine.

Little was charged with pushing a 16-year-old female into a wire-reinforced window just after noon that Thursday. The victim reportedly told Little to stop picking on some underclassmen when he shoved her way through a crowd, grabbed her and held her against a wall.

Witnesses said she slapped him and he pushed her into the window, briefly knocking her unconscious. She was hospitalized with a concussion.

The incident took on racial overtones Oct. 12 when questions were raised at a cultural awareness group meeting about how the incident was handled by school and police officials. Some wondered why Little was suspended for 10 days while the victim only received a three-day suspension, and asked why Little was led from school in handcuffs two hours after the incident as students were being dismissed for the day.

One resident, Alan Whitt, theorized that police originally charged the suspect with felonious assault so they could hold him for 24 hours and "teach DeVaughn Little a lesson."

Others wonder why the girl was suspended at all when Little was the aggressor and laid his hands on her first.

Northville City police rejected the allegation that their handling of the case was racially motivated, saying arrest suspects are typically placed in handcuffs and arguing that the severity of the offense could have justified a felonious assault charge.

Police News

Vehicles vandalized at dealership

An estimated $1,400 in damage was done to two vehicles parked at McDonald Ford's Griswold Street lot. A 1993 Ford van had its two rear windows shattered while a 1986 Ford truck had its headlamps smashed in and the windshield and two side windows broken. The damage, done between Oct. 7-11, was apparently caused by rocks thrown at the vehicles.

DRIVER STOPPED FOR STOLEN

PLATE: City police arrested a 24-year-old Detroit man for driving with a stolen license plate just after midnight Oct. 14. Police ran a computer check on the man's license plate as he was leaving the Wagon Wheel Lounge, 212 S. Main St., after hearing he had been involved in an argument with another patron.

They discovered that the license plate was stolen, and after stopping the suspect a further computer check turned up six warrants for his arrest for misdemeanor traffic offenses. He told police he had just bought the car, with the license plate, from another Detroit resident. He was released after paying $20 toward one warrant and posting a $500 personal bond.

SUSPENDED LICENSE ARREST: City police charged a 29-year-old Northville man with driving on a suspended license after stopping him for an expired license plate Oct. 13. The man was wanted for failing to comply with two court judgments from Plymouth. He was released after posting a $500 personal bond and receiving a court date on the charge.

Citizens with information about the above incidents are urged to call Northville City Police at 349-1234 or Northville Township Police at 349-9400.

Our Opinion

A racist reaction or justifiable discipline?

The arrest of an African American student at Northville High School Sept. 30 has given rise to something not seen very often in this community: racial tension.

The student, 17-year-old DeVaughn Little, was handcuffed before being led out of the building by police that afternoon. He was ultimately charged with aggravated assault for pushing the head of a 16-year-old female into a wire-reinforced window. The girl was knocked briefly unconscious and taken to the hospital.

Little pled no contest to the aggravated assault count Friday in 35th District Court. Sentencing has been set for Oct. 29. Conviction carries a maximum sentence of one year in jail and/or a $500 fine.

As a result of the incident, cries of racial bias were vented at a meeting of A Community Organization Recognizing Diversity (ACORD) last Tuesday. Little is black, the victim white.

The disparate treatment shown Little and the girl was part of the reason for the accusation of racism. Little was booked and detained for 24 hours, and later suspended from school for 10 days. The girl, on the other hand, received a three day suspension and no criminal charge, even though she slapped Little during the scuffle that took place before the incident culminated. The use of the handcuffs and the decision to hold Little for one full day and night were also cited as evidence of racial prejudice.

While we are sensitive to how the circumstances of the case could lead to the appearance of racial discrimination, we believe a review of the facts is illuminating.

First of all, Little's assault on the girl was much more serious than her action against him. She slapped him after he grabbed her — he rammed her head into a window, knocking her out and causing a concussion.

In addition, this was not the first time school officials were forced to discipline Little. He was suspended from school on two other occasions, once for fighting and once for possession of a stun gun. Moreover, the use of handcuffs is a routine procedure during arrests, belying the claim that Little was treated with unusual harshness.

Education

It seems to us, too, that the negative reaction to the conduct of school and police officials has something to do with the fact that Little was taken from the building in handcuffs just as a black student being forcibly removed from the school in the full view of classmates gathering in doorways and on sidewalks must have been an embarrassment to everyone who witnessed it.

But there is absolutely no reason to believe that police timed their arrest in such a way as to make a spectacle of their prisoner. A few hours lapsed between the time of the incident and the time of the arrest only because it took that long for authorities to interview witnesses and talk with the suspect's mother.

We believe race was not a factor in the way school officials or city police handled the incident at the high school. It appears to have been a case in which both parties must share responsibility, but one more so than the other. Hence, there is justification for the disparity of punishment. We trust an intelligent and rational examination of the facts will help put the matter in proper perspective.

A COMMUNITY RELEASE VALVE: The Sept. 30 incident at the high school is a perfect example of the necessity and usefulness of a group such as ACORD. It is no coincidence that the issue of race first came out at an ACORD function rather than at a meeting of the Northville Board of Education. As an organization dedicated to promoting education of ethnic and racial diversity, ACORD was the appropriate venue for such a discussion.

By providing a forum for the release of tensions, ACORD performs an invaluable community service. Just how invaluable might never be known as long as the organization continues to help confine racial confrontations to verbal exchanges, no matter how heated.

Cuts threaten useful service

When your jam won't jell, or you want to know what to do with meat in the freezer after a power outage, help is just a phone call away. Sylvia Treitman, home economist for the Michigan State University, Oakland County Cooperative Extension Service, is always helpful and reassuring.

Our Refrigerator Door column has referred readers to their Food Safety and Nutrition Hot-line — 858-0904, weekdays, 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., and I've called Sylvia myself when I needed information for a feature story on food.

But who are we going to call if the line is silenced? Sylvia called here recently to tell me that the Oakland County Executive's office is recommending a 45 percent budget cut in 1994 and 1995. Under this plan, the food hot-line would be eliminated, and there would be a reduction in other services, resulting in fewer food safety classes and less printed resource materials.

Oakland County Commissioners will make their recommendations for the Extension budget at the 9 a.m. Friday, Oct. 22, at the Finance Committee meeting in the commissioner's auditorium, 1200 N. Telegraph, Pontiac.

Let your voice be heard. If you live in Oakland County, express your concern over these cutbacks and call our local county commissioner, Kay Schmid. She's in the book.

I was out doing some shopping lately, and one of the places I stopped at was Service Merchandise in the West Oaks shopping center.

Would somebody please tell me where the "service" is in Service Merchandise? You go into the store, and there are precious few people there to assist you with product information unless you're buying jewelry or home electronics. Then you fill out your own order. Then you wait in line to place your order. Then you wait in line at the cash register. Then you wait at the end of a chute for your merchandise to come out. It's more like Self-Service Merchandise.

I had a phone conversation some months ago with Michelle Cohen from Marx-Layne, a public relations agency that specializes in retail businesses. Among their clients is Heslop's, one of the country's largest — if not THE largest — retailers of china, stemware and flatware in the country, and headquartered in Novi.

It's no secret that a big portion of Heslop's business is done through bridal registry, which Ron Heslop and his staff have elevated to the level of a science.

Michelle pointed out, however, that a number of companies — some of which might surprise you — are in the bridal registry business. The Sharper Image (Twelve Oaks) has an unofficial registry in which couples to be can make a list of desired items, and the company will file it. The Coach Store, a luggage store, has the same deal.

Williams Sonoma, also in Twelve Oaks, offers a registry for its kitchenware line, and Kiddieland (a local chain that sells toys and baby furniture) offers a registry for baby showers.

Later, I learned that Damman Hardware and Builders Square offer bridal (rather, I guess it would be groomal) registry for men.

This makes sense to me. You can't start that new life together without a basement workshop full of power tools.

Coping with a queen mother

Phil Jerome

I hope all the Novi readers noticed the very large picture of the 1993 Homecoming King and Queen (Jason Fischer and Elle Johnson) on the front page of the Oct. 14 edition.

The picture of Northville High School's 1993 Homecoming Queen (Kristi Darkowski) was on the front page of The Northville Record's Oct. 7 edition.

You probably noticed but didn't think about it that much. After all, it's sort of a tradition that homecoming kings and queens get their pictures on the front pages of our papers.

At least that's the way it's supposed to be. Unfortunately, things don't always work as they're supposed to. The story behind the large picture of Novi's homecoming queen on the front page last week is that last year we missed it.

That's right, the king and queen were nowhere to be seen. We had several homecoming pictures, but a picture of the queen? Not there.

This lapse caused some consternation — not the least of which was a phone call pointing out the omission from a proud parent who identified herself as the "queen mother."

But the purpose of this column is not to dwell on past mistakes. The purpose is to give you a little insight into our values here at The Northville Record and HomeTown Newspapers.

I am happy to report that all six HomeTown Newspapers (South Lyon, Milford, Brighton and The Livingston County Press in addition to Northville and Novi) carried pictures of the homecoming queens on their front pages this year. They had to. It's now a rule.

Over the past several months we have been developing a manual which defines our news standards. It's a pretty heavy tome, and getting heavier all the time.

Basically, it's sort of a news-oriented tuckler file, reminding editors and reporters of upcoming news events (deadlines for mailing assessment notices, for example) and laying out suggestions/expectations for coverage.

One aspect of the manual is that I call the "Basic Expectations." They're hard to miss, too. They're printed in bold-faced caps and have big check marks all over them so they can't be missed.

What I thought you might find interesting is the nature of the "Basic Expectations."

There are the things you would expect — elections, board of review meetings, budget hearings. But the ones with the biggest check marks are things like homecoming kings and queens.

"There shall be a pix of the homecoming queen on the front page," reads the manual. "It may be the king and the queen, the queen and her father, the queen and her court. But the queen goes on the front page."

Other basic requirements: pictures and stories about valedictorians/salutatorians; listings of holiday (Thanksgiving, Christmas, Easter) religious services; front page stories about official trick-or-treating hours, etc.

That type of news is critical to us because we think it's critical to you. They're the types of things you should expect from a hometown newspaper, and we're going to make sure you get them.

Besides, I don't want any more phone calls from angry queen mothers ever again.

Phil Jerome is executive editor of The Northville Record and HomeTown Newspapers.

Fruit of vine tastes fine for all occasions

Grapes are a prehistoric fruit that have been known to man since Neolithic times. Grape and wine production was evident in the hieroglyphics of the Egyptians and referred to as the "fruit of the vine" in the Old Testament. Today, grapes are cultivated on six continents and are popular around the world.

Who can turn down sweet and juicy grapes from a bunch? They make great desserts, salads, snacks or as a complement to chicken or fish. An elegant way to serve chicken is to add a wine sauce with seedless grapes. Combine several varieties and colors of grapes to a fruit salad or gelatin mold. Stir halved grapes into low-fat yogurt as a treat.

Frozen grapes are a refreshing snack. Take the grapes off the stems. Place on a tray and freeze until hard, then pour into a bag. While you're making dinner pop a few in your mouth to take the edge off your appetite. Grapes can be added to your favorite cole slaw recipe, chicken salad or pasta salad. Don't forget to use them as a plate garnish to add a special touch.

Grapes are not noted for their nutrient content as they contain only moderate amounts of vitamins and minerals. There are some varieties that have some vitamin C, but all are relatively low in calories.

Grapes are sometimes classified as either table grapes or wine grapes, although there is some overlap. American varieties are sometimes called slip-skin grapes as the skins can be easily separated from the flesh and their seeds are lightly embedded in the pulp. Concord grapes are a familiar variety and are grown here in Michigan. It's interesting to note that cream of tartar is made from concord grapes.

They are also processed into jam, jelly, juice and wine as they make a beautiful dark, flavorful product. They have a sweet-tart flavor with a nice fragrance and a beautiful blue-black color. A small quantity of these are in the market, but since they do not ship well, buy them locally, of course: Michigan concords are the best. All American varieties ripen in the fall and are available in October.

The Thompson seedless grapes are the most popular fresh variety grown in the United States and are used to make raisins. The growing season is June through November. The other months they are Chilean imports. Seeded varieties of grapes are thought to have better flavor than seedless. However, most of us prefer the convenience of seedless grapes. Black Beauty are the only seedless black grapes and are spicy sweet and resemble Concords.

An Emperor grape is second only to Thompson seedless in quantity grown. These are known as European varieties that are grown in the United States. They are a little thicker skinned, ship better, stand up to consumer handling and store well. California grown are on the market from August to March and Chili imports the other months. The color of Emperors vary from red-violet to deep purple. They have a mild flavor and may remind you of a cherry.

Varities of European grapes grown in America are Black Beauty (seedless), Calmeria (sometimes called Lady Fingers), Rubier, which are sweet large blue black grapes; Tokay or Flame Tokay; Champagne (Black Corinth), and Flame Seedless, which are round deep red, sweet-tart, crunchy and a relatively new variety available in the stores.

The first grapes to arrive from California each year are Perlette Seedless. They are round, green grapes that have a hint of white on their surface. Red Globe, Queen, Red Malaga or Ruby Seedless are all varieties you may see at specialty markets from time to time.

When selecting grapes, choose bunches that have plump, unbruised fruit without spots or browning at the stems.

Avoid any grapes where the stems look brittle, limp or brown. The grapes should stay firmly attached to the stem when lifted from the top. Grapes are thinned skin and easily damaged, so handle with care. Use color as a guide for the sweetest fruit.

Chefs (left to right) Denise Caurdy of Too Chez, Kelli Lewton of 2 Unique Caterers and Mary Brady of Diamond Jim Brady's have teamed up for a fund-raiser for Schoolcraft College.

Toss out the stereotypical image of the chef as a fussy, rotund, fellow with a temper when things aren't just so.

More and more, today's chefs, though still fussy, are female, and quite svelte, thank you.

In the interest of bringing more women chefs into the industry, and more women in general into the workforce, three local women chefs will throw some of their best gourmet grub on the fire and serve it up in a fund-raiser for women's scholarships at Schoolcraft College.

Northville resident Mary Brady, co-owner of Diamond Jim Brady's, Denise Caurdy, executive chef at Too Chez, and Kelli Lewton, co-owner of 2 Unique Caterers, have organized a western-style evening of dancin' and eatin'. The event will be held 4-7 p.m. at the Sheraton Oaks-Novi on Oct. 24. Tickets are $50 per person.

Said Caurdy, "Nancy Halborg (director of the Women's Resource Center at Schoolcraft) got the idea. She contacted Mary and Mary contacted me. The three of us had worked prior to this at a Schoolcraft dinner benefit in April. That was a women chef's deal, too."

Brady, a instructor at Schoolcraft, and a former student, saw the need for women's scholarships, and supported the fund-raiser wholeheartedly.

"Many of the women going back to school are displaced homemakers," said Brady. "Their kids are grown, they're on their own, or their husbands have died. They're trying to get into the educational system, and they're women in need. There are lots of them."

"They're needy not just financially, but emotionally too," said Brady. "That's the reason I got involved. I may not be able to support them emotionally at this stage, but monetarily I can help."

Though the three organizers are chefs, the scholarships are intended for all women who attend Schoolcraft, whatever their major.

"It's for any women who want to go into any field, whether its culinary or business or nursing," said Brady. "We're not snobbish about it."

Caurdy said it didn't take long for other people to start chipping in to support the event.

"We wanted the purveyors who've supported us in our field to support this too," she said. "I went to my supplier from Sexton, and she said 'Whatever you want, especially if it's for women.'"

Realistically, Lewton said women need all the support they can get, especially when pursuing a career in culinary arts.

"This is a wicked business," she said. "You've got to love cooking to cook. It's a very physical, demanding profession."

Many women friends who attended Schoolcraft with her have gone to work in other aspects of the food industry, primarily sales. Few are still cooking.

Lewton finds it particularly rewarding to participate in this fundraiser, though, because she benefitted directly from the scholarship program at Schoolcraft while she was a student there.

"I received scholarships and funding when I was in Schoolcraft," she said. "Without the people taking the time to care for me, I would have been floundering. I have a warm spot in my heart for Schoolcraft, so I want to give something back. And I feel strongly about supporting causes that help women."

She also says it's nice to take part in a dress-down event for a change.

"Don't get me wrong, I still love the black tie stuff," she said. "But it's just nice to go where you can be casual."

Soon Oct. 24, the ballroom of the Sheraton Oaks will open up to the blue jeans and boots crowd. There'll be line dancing with instruction by The Cowboy and His Lady. The chefs scraped together a small fee for the entertainers, but everything else was donated without charge.

"Nobody's getting paid for this, from the dishwashers to the staff, to us," said Brady.

Toni Wisne, owner of Too Chez and the Novi Sheraton, was among the biggest supporters of the event. She donated the use of the Sheraton's ballroom. It had originally been slated for Tollgate Farm, but moving it to the Sheraton, said Brady, "eased everyone's minds about the weather."

The food will be spread around at four grazing stations. Each will have a different theme, but with enough variety that you could make a whole meal just by staying at one station.

Anyone who wants to tie on a feedbag at Lewton's station will have chili to dig into. She'll prepare a hearty vegetarian chili using 10 different beans. There will be a number of condiments to pile on, including sausage if meatless isn't your style.

There will also be a southwest-style caesar salad with cornbread croutons, served with or without grilled chicken.

Caurdy prepared a barbecue menu for her station. She'll offer lamb ribs or roast loin of pork with a holsin barbecue sauce that she calls "weird but good."

She'll also prepare chili onion rings and cabbage cole slaw with jalapeno peppers.

Brady will dish up quesadillas from her station. The rock shrimp quesadillas will be made to order. She'll also serve a wagon wheel pasta alfredo with a roasted garlic and red pepper puree topping.

For nibbling, there'll be a black turtle bean dip with roasted vegetables.

The women will be triple teaming the dessert table, which will overflow with "Lots of small stuff," they said. Some of the selections are sweet potato chips dipped in chocolate, nut and berry bark, dark chocolate brownies and fresh fruit fondue.

"It'll all be fun and unique," said Caurdy.

In addition, Schoolcraft will earn scholarship money from a cookbook that Brady, Lewton and Caurdy teamed up to publish in conjunction with this event. Called Real Life, Real Cooking: Women Cook for a Cause, the book was put together in record time: six weeks from start to finish.

"The book was my idea," said Brady. "It was a tremendous learning experience. We'll do more of them, and that's all I can say at this point."

The trio polled culinary professionals, businesswomen, artists, a judge, a social worker, and Brady's personal favorite, Virginia Nicoli, who lists herself as a "feminist poet." All submitted recipes for the book, which sells for $19.95, and will be available at the event.

Women cook up a winner with cookbook

a fantastic book. It is available at Borders, more main."

The cookbook sales are booming! The book was an offshoot of a fundraiser that is fast approaching. In six short weeks we were able to put together what we think is Diamond Jim Brady's, Too Chez and the Sheraton Oaks-Novi.

All of the proceeds go toward scholarships for the Woman's Resource Center at Schoolcraft.

The book itself was a tremendous learning experience. There is no way that it could have been pulled off without the help of many people. Their devotion to the project is the reason there is a book today.

From the first letter inviting women from all walks of life to participate by submitting recipes, to working out a suitable design, to photography, to seeing the final product, there have been good vibes with this venture.

I'm not so sure that I would have done it now that I know the amount of time and work involved. I've been reminded that the first time is the hardest!

Lots of great publicity has been generated too. An appearance on TV 2. Molly Abraham's recent article, a book signing at Borders in November (don't worry I'll let you know) and radio interviews. The support has been incredible.

Now we are preparing for a sell out crowd on Oct. 24th at the Novi Sheraton. A western theme will set the mood for food, drink and two steppin'. Even "The Cowboy and His Lady", the dance teachers, were kind enough to give us a deal with regards to their fee.

I certainly hope that you can find time in your busy schedules to join us for this worthy, worthy cause. Clean up your boots and iron the jeans! Call the Woman's Resource Center at schoolcraft for ticket information.

I've been getting lots of neat response to our newsletter. I mentioned that I couldn't find a definition for bistro anywhere in my books. Well a package arrived on Monday with a volume entitled Paris Bistro Cook- ery printed in 1958. The sender was kind enough to share it with me for awhile.

The word bistro is Russian for quick and dates back to the fall of Napoleon in 1815 when the allies occupied France. The story is enchanting and will be the topic of an upcoming article.

Porkribs capture Oktoberfest spirit

There's a change in the air — days are shorter, nights cooler and fall fruits and vegetables are showing up at the market.

"This is the perfect time of year to start cooking with a German accent," said Anne Roberts, director of consumer affairs for the Michigan Pork Producers Association.

What began in 1810 as a royal wedding celebration in Munich has become an annual festival celebrated around the world. Today, whether you're in Munich or a nearby German-American neighborhood, you'll find people celebrating Oktoberfest in the same way — dressed in lederhosen, singing beer-hall songs and enjoying plenty of food and drink.

"Pork has always been a delicious part of the tradition," said Roberts. "Ribs make a tasty transition from summer grilling to fall meals. For an authentic German flavor, try simmering them with some sauerkraut, onions, apples and brown sugar."

For more recipes featuring today's lean pork send a business-sized, self-addressed stamped envelope to: Delicious Dozen, c/o Michigan Pork Producers Association, 4265 Okemos Road, Suite

C, Okemos, MI 48864.

Here are some recipes to try.

OKTOBERFEST RIBS

2 pounds pork spare ribs
2 jars (32-ounce) sauerkraut, drained
2 yellow onions, peeled and cut in half
2 tart green apples, cored and wedged
½ cup brown sugar
8 juniper berries or 1 tablespoon caraway seed (optional)

Layer ingredients into a large Dutch oven in this order: sauerkraut, onions, apples, brown sugar (sprinkle evenly over) and ribs. If using juniper berries or caraway seed, bury them evenly in the sauerkraut layer.

Bring to a boil, lower heat, cover and simmer gently for 2-3 hours, until ribs are very tender. Serves six.

GERMAN POTATO SALAD

3 cups cooked red potatoes, cooled and diced

¼ cup finely chopped celery
¼ cup finely chopped parsley
4 slices lean bacon, diced
¼ cup chopped onion
½ cup water
1 tablespoon flour
¼ cup cider vinegar
2 tablespoons sugar
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
2 teaspoons poppy seed

In medium bowl, combine potatoes, celery and parsley. In large non-stick skillet, cook diced bacon, removing and discarding fat as it accumulates in pan. Add onion and saute until onion is crisp-tender.

In small bowl combine water, flour, vinegar, sugar and seasonings; stir into onion mixture. Continue cooking over medium heat until mixture thickens. Remove from heat. Pour sauce mixture over potatoes. Toss gently to combine. Serve warm or at room temperature. Serves 6.

NO MEAT CHILI by Josephine Antishin

2 cups mixed red and green peppers
1½ cups red kidney beans (16-ounce can or dried cooked)
1 16-ounce can chopped tomatoes with juice
1 cup celery chopped
1 cup onions, chopped
1 cup corn, frozen or fresh
1 cup chick peas, canned or dried cooked

2 teaspoons oil
2 teaspoons chili powder
1 teaspoon cumin powder
1 teaspoon minced garlic
¼ teaspoon celery seeds
¼ teaspoon dried mustard
¼ teaspoon ground fresh pepper

Heat oil, add garlic, chili powder, mustard, celery seeds and pepper. Saute over low heat for 1-2 minutes. Add celery, carrots and ¼ juice from tomatoes. Cook for 10 minutes covered. Add onions and peppers and cook for 10 minutes more. Add tomatoes, remaining juice, kidney beans, chick peas and simmer for 10 minutes to blend flavors and heat thoroughly.

Top with light sour cream or yogurt if desired.

Grapes go great in salads, snacks

White or green grapes are sweetest when they have a yellowish cast with a hint of amber. The sugar in grapes develops as they ripen, however they will not become sweeter once picked so the timing of the harvest is extremely important.

Store unwashed grapes in a vented plastic bag or lightly covered bowl in the refrigerator to allow for air circulation and prevent mildew. Rinse before eating. They should keep about a week. Prehistoric or modern, grapes can add a lot to dull meals.

Moraine Elementary consultant Barbara Sixt is doubling as a language arts resources teacher.

Consultant given new role at Moraine Elementary

By MICHELLE HARRISON
Staff Writer

Barbara Sixt is anxiously waiting to try on her new hat. And judging by her enthusiasm, the fit will be perfect.

Sixt, who has been working full-time as a learning consultant for Moraine Elementary, is stepping down to part-time status. The move is meant to make room for her new position as part-time language arts resource teacher.

It's not certain when Sixt will assume her added role because the district hasn't yet found a replacement for the part-time learning consultant position created by Sixt's move. It should be within the next couple of weeks, however.

If anything is for certain, it's that Sixt will have her hands full as she serves as the primary person responsible for overseeing the district's new K-6 language arts curriculum.

"We can't even begin to teach kids everything there is to know," Sixt said. "So now we have to teach them how to access the information to know everything."

"You can teach a kid a skill and he'll learn it that day and then forget it. You have to teach them to learn how to use those skills."

It took about 18 months before the K-6 language arts committee of 25 even put anything on paper. They spent that time mulling over volumes of research and attending conferences.

"I think we were smart to wait and not rush into it," Sixt said.

Now that the district has adopted the new curriculum, Sixt is anxious to fill the missing link in the resource department. Northville already has math/science, technology and gifted (Betty Parker, Barbara Fife and Gayle Fountain, respectively) resource teachers.

"This (language arts) will be the tie-in piece where we can coordinate everything," Sixt said.

Sixt plans to coordinate with her resource counterparts.

"I think it's critical that we integrate and show that we're all really teachers of language arts," Sixt said, explaining that language arts plays a role in math, science, technology and all subject matters.

Although she will have an office in the central office building on Main Street, Sixt will be spending most of her resource hours at the schools in the afternoons. She will model lessons using the new curriculum and offer support to teachers.

"I'm really going to be at their (teachers') beck and call, how can I best serve (them)?" she said.

Another major portion of her new job will be assessing the new language arts curriculum.

"That will probably be as big a job as writing the curriculum," Sixt said.

Sixt will also play a role in the language arts support committee, formed to help support those who teach the new curriculum.

Even though she is excited about her new position, Sixt is just as happy that she gets to keep her spot as learning consultant for Moraine even if it is part-time.

"I feel like I'm almost doing two full-time jobs," Sixt laughed. "If I had to leave here — this is home. I'm glad I'll be able to be here at least half the day."

As a learning consultant, Sixt coordinates all of the texts and reading materials in the building and coordinates all building-wide testing (such as the Michigan Educational Assessment Program). The department also provides Chapter 1, a federally-funded reading and math program which supports children experiencing difficulties in reading or math.

Gloria Loudy serves as a full-time assistant to the learning consultant program, which also serves Our Lady of Victory.

Sixt is hopeful her role as a resource teacher expands as the district develops a language arts curriculum for the seventh grade and beyond.

"Hopefully it will be in the not-too-distant future," she said. "... As we align everything on outcomes based education, it will (expand). You have to think big and start small. It has to come from the grassroots up."

Sixt started her teaching career over 30 years ago as a third grade teacher for Columbus Public Schools in Ohio. For many years she worked as a substitute teacher in the Detroit Public Schools before working as a substitute with Northville schools in 1980. In 1983, Sixt taught at the Bryant Center and has been the learning consultant for Moraine since 1989.

"I love (my job)," she said. "We have a lot of success here with children. The best part is seeing a student become a thinker. ... or when they come up and say 'Mrs. Sixt, I just read the best book.' That makes it all worthwhile."

Reorganization plan would shift power on state appellate court

Outstate Michigan will pick up more clout on the state Court of Appeals under a reorganization bill that has passed the House of Representatives.

The state's second highest court has 24 judges elected from three districts.

If the state Senate approves the bill, the appellate court will have 28 judges from four districts after the 1994 election. Net result: Five new judges will come from outside the metropolitan Detroit and Flint areas. Here is the new lineup:

District 1: Wayne, Monroe and Lenawee counties. It will lose one judge who will retire because of age and will not fill the vacancy in 1994.

Eliminated from this district were Livingston, Washtenaw and Jackson counties.

District 2: Oakland, Macomb, Genesee and Shiawassee counties. No judges will be added or deleted in 1994.

Eliminated from the district are the Thumb area and the Lansing area.

District 3: Livingston, Washtenaw and 14 counties stretching across southern Michigan. This district will elect four judges in 1994. The top candidate will serve 10 years; second and third, eight years; and fourth highest, six years.

District 4: Eaton, Clinton, Ionia and Ingham and all other counties of northern lower Michigan and the Upper Peninsula. It will elect one new judge in 1994 for a six year term.

Refer to House Bill 4842 when writing to your state senator. The bill is in the Senate Judiciary Committee.

'The Mommies' — taking reality TV a bit too far?

B Suzanne Gill

There aren't many countries where a couple of housewives can be clowning for the PTA one year and have their own TV series the next. And perhaps that's as it should be.

Yet that, in a nutshell, is the story of the comedy duo of Marilyn Kentz and Caryl Kristensen, a couple of car-pool buddies from Northern California who now star in NBC's "The Mommies" each Saturday night. In a mere three years, Kentz and Kristensen have taken their idea for a women's stand-up act from their kitchen tables to America's living rooms.

It all started when the older Kentz faced a mid-life panic attack and started dragging her friend off to various classes and community college events. Nothing seemed to help until the two attended a how-to-be-a-stand-up-comedian lecture and decided what today's woman needs most is a chance to laugh. Their own lives became the source of their material. The joked about childbirth, midriff bulge and other women's baking habits. They went from playing club meetings to booking night clubs. They even appeared in Las Vegas (though they sent the act down for one night and flew home to trick-or-treat with their kids). Women came with other women one night, then returned with their skeptical husbands the next.

Soon The Mommies were spotted by network scouts eager to sign the next Roseanne Arnold or Tim Allen or (even) Bob Saget, and series development offers began coming in. They accepted a deal from NBC's Perry Simon because, says Kentz. "Our whole show was about giving women a chance to see that they're not alone. And he was really behind that."

They were whisked away to Hollywood, but not, it turns out, made over. NBC encouraged them not to take acting lessons. They went before the cameras to film a series of brief "Mommie Moments," which aired last spring while the script, set and co-stars for their series pilot were being readied.

The pilot found Kentz and Kristensen folding laundry, waiting in the school parking lot or just sitting around the kitchen table, rattling off pastiche from their stand-up act.

Results were mixed. The Mommies not only haven't learned to act, in their brief history together they haven't developed a great sense of comic timing either. They just tell the truth as they see it. To some viewers, it's cathartic; to others, it's just crass. Jokes about sonograms and menstrual cycles don't necessarily make good family viewing.

Worse, to date the friends' strong bond has worked against the success of the show, making everything on the set - even the other cast members, who include the estimable David Dukes as Kentz' husband - just so much background.

At a summer press conference to promote the show, Kristensen reacted in mock horror when a questioner suggested The Mommies are a bit rough around the edges. "You're saying we're not polished? I'm so shocked." Pausing months later on the way to a story conference, she says the main focus of cast and crew is to "evolve the show into a stronger version of what it is now."

"The Mommies" debuted to better-than-expected ratings, which may be an indication that the show will catch on, like ABC's "Home Improvement," with an audience that's more visceral than polite. "Home Improvement," however, has something "The Mommies" so far lack - a strong voice on the opposite side of the gender fence.

Kentz and Kristensen, who have their husbands' support for their comic endeavors, are quick to point out that they aren't man bashers, just post-romantic realists. In an upcoming show set at a bridal shower, the pair open the eyes of the bride-to-be.

"We take it out of the jokey-joke," says Kentz, "and now we're talking about the real thing, what I really said to Caryl, not on stage." She adopts a nasal tone. "Have you ever lived with a groomer? The clipping noises in the morning, blowing his nose in the shower?"

"And that is not a joke." Maybe that's the problem.

Rolle says character comments on parenting

BY JOHN CROOK

Although Esther Rolle has what she calls "a minor role" in NBC's Danielle Steel miniseries "Message From Nam" (airing Sunday and Tuesday, Oct. 17 and 19) she feels that her character, Queenie, represents a warning for parents. "There's not a good relationship between the central character and her mother," Rolle says, "and I become a surrogate mother to the girl.

"I've never taken a job just for a job's sake," says the actress, best known for her work as Florida Evans in the CBS sitcom "Good Times." "There's a lot to be learned about parenting, and I don't fault the children for all of the awful things that are going on today. Had they been parented, they wouldn't be that way."

Rolle points to her own upbringing in Pompano Beach, Fla., as a positive example. "There were 18 of us," she recalls. "Farming and raising the children were (my parents') jobs — and they did a hell of a job with both. It was a hard but good way to grow up because we learned responsibility to one another."

Her next TV film, "To Dance With the White Dog," is a Hallmark Hall of Fame presentation with Hume Cronyn and Jessica Tandy. It airs in December on CBS. Ex-President and Mrs. Jimmy Carter visited Rolle during filming. "I was flattered," she says. "I didn't know whether they would remember me."

Gloria Loring premieres new CD

BY CANDACE HAVENS

It was almost seven years ago when Gloria Loring decided to leave her popular daytime role as Liz Chandler on "Days of Our Lives," her divorce became final and "Friends and Lovers," a duet she sang with Carl Anderson, became No. 1.

Loring's singing voice has brought her back into the daytime arena. Her ballad "Is Anybody Out There" is the song used for Mindy Lewis (Barbara Crampton) on "Guiding Light."

"I've had this song for more than four years," says Loring. "I really feel it has the same kind of appeal that 'Friends and Lovers' had. It is a beautiful song that I think really touches people's hearts. A friend of mine and I sent the song to a couple of different soaps, and then 'GL' began to play it in January. It has been getting a terrific response ever since."

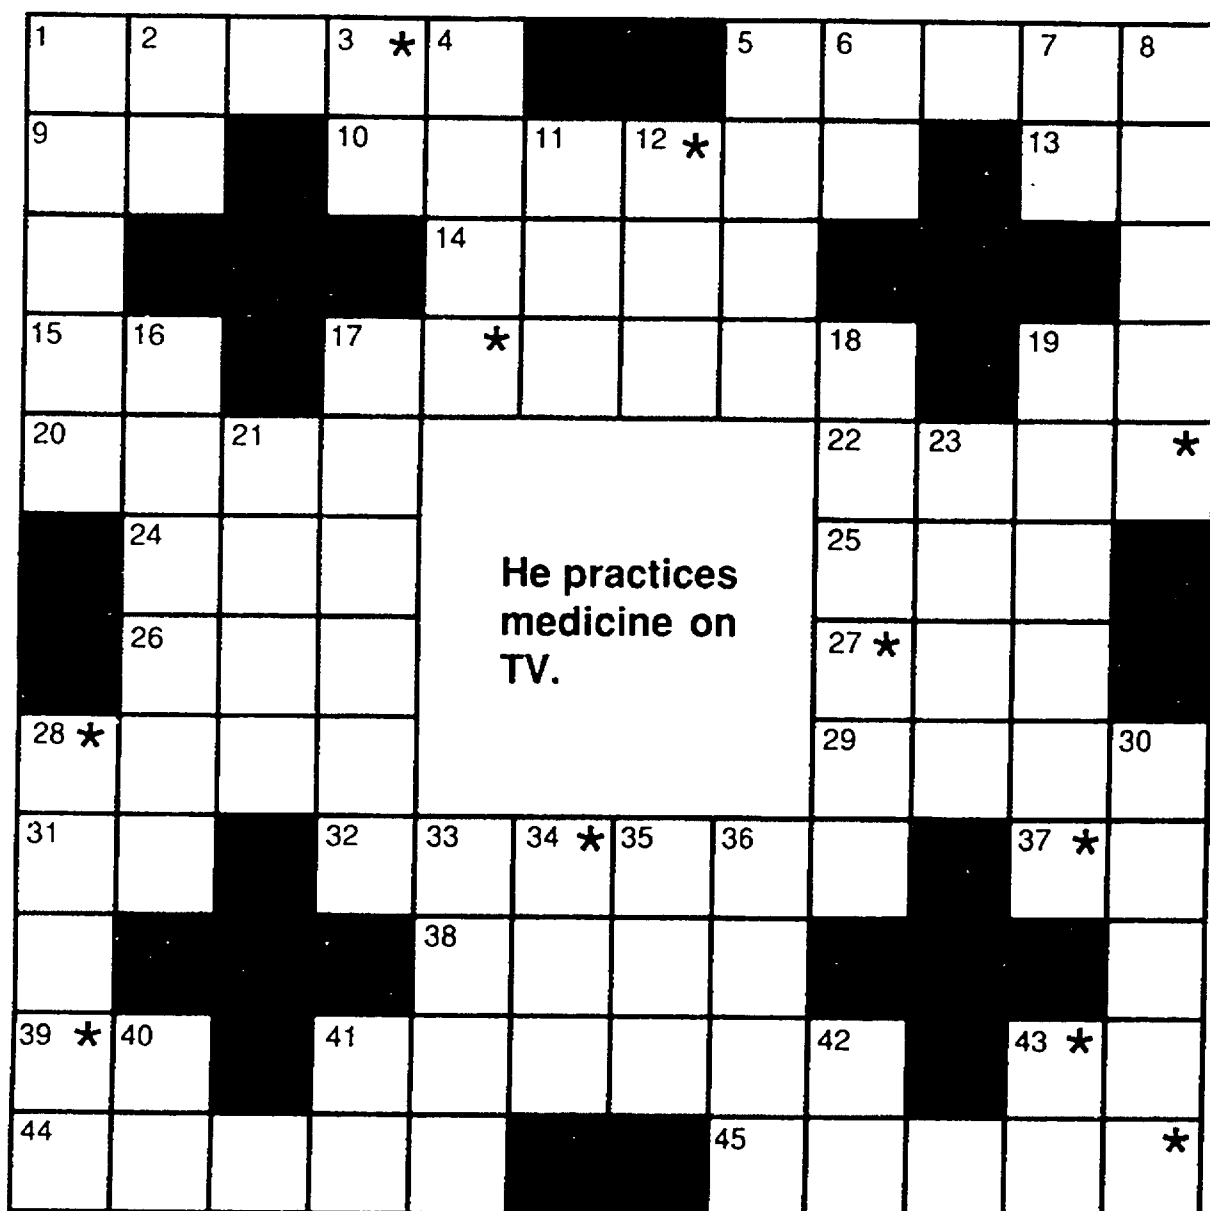

"Is Anybody Out There" is also the title song of Loring's new CD. The singer used her own money to produce the album before she toured in Australia last year. "I wanted to take a new album with me on the tour, so I had to do everything very fast. There wasn't time to find a record label."

Loring wrote many of the songs on the album, and she says writing is a very personal experience for her. "If a song touches me in a certain way, then I have a good idea that other people will feel the same things I do when they hear it."

"There was a song I wrote on a previous album called 'A Song of My Father,'" says Loring. "I had tried to write about my relationship with my father for a long time; he is an alcoholic. But I could never get focused. Then one day while I was on a plane, it happened, and I just sat there and wrote. In the song it says, 'I wanted you to be my hero, and you didn't get to, because this thing called alcoholism got in the way.' Many people are disappointed when they learn their parents are human and fallible like everyone else."

Loring's CD, "Is Anybody Out There," is available in record stores.
