Cryderman, Keys win in three-way city race

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

Incumbent Mark Cryderman won his first full four-year term on the city council Tuesday while Planning Commissioner Charles Keys won the seat being vacated by Jerry Mittman in a low-key city election.

Just over 16 percent of the city's 4,780 registered voters turned out for the election, in which the council and uncontested mayor's race were the only ballot questions.

Cryderman and Keys had faced off against local businessman Kevin Hartshorne for the two available seats, and the three candidates have spent recent weeks going door-to-door and distributing flyers throughout the city. Cryderman, a former planning commissioner himself, was named to the council last September when long-time member G. Dewey Gardner moved to Brighton, while Keys was named to the planning commission shortly after Cryderman left for the council.

Hartshorne, a former president and board chairman of the Northville Jaycees, had run for the council twice before.

Cryderman, who won 75 percent of the vote, said he was pleased to be voted into office for the first time. "It's one thing to be appointed," he said. "It's another thing to be elected, to have a vote of confidence, so to speak."

Keys, who garnered 60 percent in his win, cited his admiration for outgoing council member Jerry Mittman, who steps down Nov. 9 after six years. "I hope I am able to continue what Jerry did on the council, which was saving money and keeping the city out of debt," he said.

Hartshorne, who pulled in 44 percent of the vote in the three-way race, said he was disappointed by the election endorsement in the Northville

Record, which chose Cryderman and Keys over him and criticized him for failing to attend many council meetings. He noted that his evening shift at Ford's Wixom plant keeps him from attending most meetings, and added that he had planned to change shifts if elected.

Though upset with the newspaper, Hartshorne was magnanimous to his fellow candidates. "John W. Gardner once said, 'Some people strengthen the society by being the kind of people they are,'" Hartshorne said. "I think that of both of my opponents, and I wish them luck."

Mayor Chris Johnson, who ran unopposed, won 642 of the 772 votes cast in a symbolic vote of confidence. This was the mayor's third unopposed election since being elected to the council in 1987.

School officials plan session to study tax reform

By MICHELLE HARRISON
Staff Writer

What school officials learned yesterday at an educational reform rally will more than likely be old news by next week.

The Northville Board of Education, however, is tentatively planning a study session to sort out what exactly is going on in Lansing these days.

Wednesday's rally, held at the capitol in Lansing, was put on by the Michigan School Boards Association, Michigan Association of School Administrators and PTA members across the state.

"They're planning an overview of where things are, which are now in a quandary," Northville Schools Superintendent Leonard Rezmierski said Monday.

Rezmierski, Northville Board of Education President Robert McMahon and about a half dozen other Northville school representatives were scheduled to meet with their legislators after attending the 9 to 11 a.m. rally.

"We'll spend the whole day there, networking and district lobbying," Rezmierski said.

News of the rally arrived just late last week as school officials tried to sort out the latest slew of proposals and packages of bills being introduced in school reform. Yet, with all the new proposed legislation, school representatives still don't have a clue as to what will happen to education as they know it next school year.

"The governor is not getting the support, both in financing and restructuring."

"It all depends on what package of bills you're reading," Rezmierski said.

For example, one proposed package eliminated all categorical aid except for pre-school and special education funding. But as of last Friday, another proposal would add the gifted and talented aid back into the categorical funding package.

"Another (proposal) deals with restructuring," Rezmierski said. "There's more mandated require-

Overbilled residents seek refunds, meters

By SHARON CONDRON

Residents of the Edenderry neighborhood came out in droves last Thursday to see what Northville Township Trustees were going to do to remedy a decade of overcharges on sewer bills.

Township Manager Bill Richards and Water and Sewer Superintendent Bill Anderson began reviewing the rates sewer-only customers were being charged after Trustee Barbara Strong O'Brien, an Edenderry resident, raised a stink about her bill in August.

The rates billed to the township's sewer-only customers are based on a per-gallon figure handed down from Wayne County. Prior to O'Brien's August inquiry, sewer-only customers were being charged a flat rate based on the county's sewer usage estimate of 200,000 gallons a year.

Township records indicate that in 1984, the board of trustees lowered the sewer usage figure to 150,000 gallons per year after county officials did the same.

While minutes of the trustees' meeting in May of 1984 reflect that

Plymouth landlord buys city tenement

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

The venerable but run-down Winner's Circle building at 109 113 W. Main St., whose upstairs rooms are home to many of Northville's more impoverished residents, has been sold to a Plymouth resident with a good reputation as a landlord.

Richard Kirchhoff, who owns a similar building in Plymouth, purchased the Northville rooming house Oct. 29 from Novi resident Vernon Huntoon. Kirchhoff and wife Rainy,

Crowd gets twp. to amend budget

By SHARON CONDRON
Staff Writer

With an angry crowd seated in front of them Monday night, there was no way Northville Township Trustees were going to accept a budget committee's recommendation to freeze allocations for shared services.

A jam-packed board room composed mostly of senior citizens turned up the heat on trustees who eventually gave in and granted the original funding requests for the four shared-service departments.

After about 45 minutes of public comment, Treasurer Rick Engelland moved to amend the proposed 1994 budget to increase the township's expenditures by $36,387 to cover the shared services' requests next year.

Without discussion, trustees passed the amended budget 7-0. The expenditure increase includes the 6 percent hike for Northville Parks and Recreation, and the $3,421 the Senior Center sought for this year. It also includes the $6,447 Northville Youth Assistance asked for, along with a $12,714 increase for the Northville Public Library. The Beautification Commission also netted a $900 increase.

The township's building department was given the $5,000 increase it needed to lease a new four-wheel drive vehicle. And the salaries for the trustees who serve as liaisons on the planning commission and on the zoning board of appeals was restored to the 1993 level of $1,000.

Engelland also asked trustees to approve a $100,000 transfer from the general fund to the capital outlay budget to help pay for additional items that may be needed in the future. The transfer will not affect the expenditure side of the 1994 budget, the treasurer said.

"The net increase in expenditures for these expenditures is $36,387," Engelland told trustees after he listed the amendments to the original budget he co-authored with four other members of a budget review committee. "That would basically take our ($40,000 budget) surplus down to $3,600."

Nine residents came forward during the public hearing portion of Monday's special meeting to express

Resident asks township to review budget process

By SHARON CONDRON
Staff Writer

There's been talk around Northville Township hall that the township's budget review process may be changed next year.

That couldn't be good news for Marv Gans who's been balking at the current process since he got wind that the township was considering freezing budget allocations for shared services this year.

Gans, who chairs the Friends of Northville Parks and Recreation, has blasted trustees during two recent meetings about the current process that in the aftermath gave residents a

Chase ensues before man arrested for OUIL

A 28-year-old Northville man led a city police officer on a chase just after midnight Oct. 30 before pulling over and being arrested for driving under the influence.

An eastbound police officer first spotted the man speeding west on Eight Mile east of Whitegate Drive. When the officer turned around to follow and hit his overhead lights, the man turned north onto Whitegate and accelerated to more than 50 mph through the residential area, running the four-way stop at Andover before turning west on Elmsmere.

The police officer switched on his siren after the man ran the stop sign, but he continued on until he turned onto East Chigwidden and braked sharply. The officer saw him throw open the car door as soon as he stopped.

The officer called for a backup unit and ordered the man to get out of the car and put his hands on the roof, which he did, holding onto the car door for support and staggering into position. When backup arrived, the officer patted the man down and had him perform several field sobriety tests, which he failed. When asked how much he had been drinking, he said, simply, "six."

His blood alcohol level was measured at .17 percent, nearly twice the legal limit.

He was arrested and held for 10 hours until he sobered up and posted a $500 personal recognizance bond.

RACETRACK COMPUTER VANDALIZED: A tote machine in the upper grandstand at Northville Downs was broken sometime before 11:10 p.m. Nov. 1. The blue Amiot machine, valued at $3,500, had its cathode ray tube shattered.

HUBCAPS STOLEN: Four chrome spoke hubcaps valued at $200 were reported stolen from a car parked on High Street between noon Oct. 30 and 3:40 p.m. Nov. 1. The hubcaps were taken off a 1992 Chevrolet Lumina.

HANDBAG STOLEN FROM CAR: A handbag and items valued at $180 were stolen from a car parked to the south of 112 E. Main St. last week. The brown Capezio imitation leather handbag contained a black Perry Ellis wallet, about $50 in cash, black Oakley sunglasses, credit card and a paycheck. The car was unlocked at the time.

POLITE TRESPASSERS CHARGED: Four youths from Livonia high schools were caught trespassing at Northville High School the morning of Oct. 29, during school hours. The two males and two females said they were on campus looking for information on two prior incidents in Livonia involving property belonging to them, but admitted that they had not gotten permission from Northville school officials.

They were issued citations by the city police department and their school officials were notified. One police officer noted how polite the youths were when they were questioned.

DRIVING UNDER THE INFLUENCE: City police arrested a 44-year-old Northville man for driving under the influence Oct. 31 after seeing him pass another car in a no-passing zone on westbound Fairbrook Street. Police began following the man about 1:30 a.m. when they noticed him tailgating the other car, and saw him cross the center line and then pass the other car on a curve at city limits. When they pulled him over, he said he had had "a couple" of drinks with friends.

He failed field sobriety tests and was arrested, and was allowed to speak to an attorney before agreeing to take a Breathalyzer test. The test measured his blood alcohol level at .13 percent. He was released eight hours later after he had sobered up and posted a $100 cash bond.

SAILBOAT RIGGING PULLED FROM PICKUP: An estimated $1,400 in sailboat rigging was reported stolen from the bed of a pickup parked on Allen Drive between 6:30 p.m. Oct. 23 and 9:30 a.m. Oct. 24. The rigging consisted of 14 chrome and black pulleys between three and eight inches in diameter.

FENDER BENDERS: City police responded to three accidents last week, none of which resulted in injuries. A 39-year-old Milford man was cited for failing to stop after driving into the back of a car on northbound North Center by Northville High School the morning of Oct. 30. He said he was distracted by high school students waving flags for a free car wash.

On the morning of Nov. 1, a 29-year-old Ypsilanti man ran a red light on westbound Eight Mile and Taft and struck a southbound vehicle. He was cited for running the signal. Both cars were driven from the scene.

Later that day, an 83-year-old Northville man drove into the back of another car while heading south on Hutton Street north of Main. He was issued a citation.

MALICIOUS MALES MAIM MAILBOX: Township police have found the four youths responsible for destroying three mailboxes on Smock on Thursday, Oct. 28. A homeowner on the street saw the youths pile into a 1986 Plymouth Voyager van after they hit one of the boxes with a baseball bat. The man called police and gave them a description of the van. An officer later saw the van and pulled it over. The driver admitted batting two of the boxes.

Police confiscated the bats from the van and then required the Redford youths to repay the homeowners for damages by Nov. 7.

WOMAN TICKETED FOR CONCEALING JUVENILE: A 25-year-old Northville woman was arrested Thursday after she drove a runaway to her home and concealed the 15-year-old girl from her biological mother and township police. The girl's mother called police after the woman lied to her about picking her daughter up from a youth home in Dearborn Heights and bringing her back to her Northville home.

After watching the woman and the girl drive into the driveway and then walk into the home, the girl's mother called the woman and asked if she had seen her daughter. The woman told the mother she hadn't seen the girl. The mother reported the other woman to police who went to investigate the complaint. Police asked the woman if they could search her home after she told them the girl was not there. Minutes later the police found the girl hiding in a utility room.

The woman was arrested and the girl was taken to a different youth home in Detroit. The woman said she concealed the girl because she believes the girl's parents have abused her in the past. She will face charges in court on Nov. 18.

BETWEEN A ROCK AND A HARD PLACE: A Northville man says a Garden City man came to his home on Oct. 22 and gave him an estimate to lay cement. The cement layer took a $1,275 check from the Northville man as a down payment for work he intended to do. The Garden City man said he would come back on Oct. 25 to complete the work, but never did. Despite repeated calls from the Northville man and numerous excuses from the cement layer, the work was never done. The Northville homeowner reported the case to township police who contacted the man who agreed to return the money.

AUTO THEFT: A West Bloomfield woman told township police her 1991 gray Lexus was stolen from the parking lot at Meijer on Saturday, Oct. 30. Inside the locked car was a hand held telephone. The woman told police the car was locked but its alarm had been activated.

MDOP: Township police are looking for four males who allegedly used a baseball bat to smash the driver's side window and taillights off a 1985 Pontiac Grand Am on Sunday, Oct.

31. The car was parked on Beacon Tree Court when the incident occurred sometime after 1:05 a.m. The homeowner said she saw three male subjects exit a dark-colored two-door car with a red interior right before they walked up to the car and bashed in its window.

The three fled, but not before the car owner could get a description. The owner described the suspects as three young men approximately 16 years old wearing short hair and baggy jeans. There was another male at the scene who has yet to be identified.

The car belonged to the witness' son, who was home for a weekend visit.

ANCHOR AWAY: A Northville Township resident told police somebody walked off Sunday morning with the large boat anchor that used to grace his front lawn. The lawn ornament was valued at $800.

Citizens with information about the above incidents are urged to call Northville City Police at 349-1234 or Northville Township Police at 349-9400.

Football fan dies in stands at Northville/Novi game

By CRISTINA FERRIER and MICHELLE HARRISON
Staff Writers

A Novi woman known for her strong support of the Northville High School football program died at the game Friday night against Novi High School.

Jeannie Pierman, 48, whose son Rick played football for Northville High School, suffered a sudden and massive cardiac arrest before the game began. She was attending the game at Novi High School with her son and other family members.

Novi Fire Chief Arthur Lenaghan said Pierman went into full arrest and collapsed around 7:45 p.m. Firefighters arrived at the scene, where Community EMS workers were already working in a vain attempt to revive her.

"We cleared the scene seven minutes after we arrived," Lenaghan said. "They had an ambulance already at the football game."

One firefighter accompanied Pierman and performed CPR en route to Botsford Hospital, but the victim was pronounced dead shortly after arrival.

"It (happened) in our part of the bleachers," Dennis Colligan, athletic director for Northville Public Schools, said. "By the time anyone got my attention, Mr. (Ralph) Redmond (assistant high school principal) and one of the EMS attendants were already there."

Colligan said since the woman collapsed at the beginning of the game, he rerouted the crowd as people walked in.

David Bolitho, assistant superintendent for instructional services, was at the football game and tried to console Pierman's son, Rick.

"It was really unfortunate," Bolitho said. "It kind of makes you realize how important some things are. It was really a shame."

Rick Pierman graduated from Northville High School in 1981.

"She (Pierman) was a very active parent while her son played football," Colligan said. "She did a lot of positive things with the boosters."

Pierman, who was born June 23, 1945 in Cleveland, Ohio, lived in Novi for 17 years. She and her husband Richard were married for 28 years.

She worked as a secretary for St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ann Arbor, was a member of Holy Family Church, and loved gardening, cooking, shopping and skiing.

In addition to her husband and son, Pierman is survived by two daughters, Laura Kaffla and Julie Pierman, who also went through the Northville school system.

She is also survived by her parents, Francis and Laura Ponikvar, and sisters Loretta Cergol and Michelle Picciano.

Funeral services were held Tuesday, Nov. 2, at Holy Family Church in Novi, with Fr. John Budde officiating.

Non-union personnel get wage hike in city

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

The Northville City Council gave approval to an average of 3 percent wage increases for the city's non-union employees Monday night, and OK'd a similar wage hike for City Manager Gary Word in a separate action.

Included in the increases are improvements in the employees' retirement benefit plans. Non-union employees include the city clerk, executive secretary, supervisors like the police chief and DPW superintendent and part-time personnel like the fire chief, firefighters and the city's code enforcement officer.

"It's been nearly two years since non-union personnel received a salary adjustment," Word noted. He added that the city's personnel committee, composed of Council Member Jerry Mittman and Mayor Pro Tem Carolann Ayers, have reviewed the increases and support them.

The council agreed to allow Word some flexibility in exactly how great a pay increase to grant each non-union employee. He asked for the flexibility to let him award some employees slightly more depending on their performance and other factors.

"For the most part, I would expect we would stick closely to the 3-percent figure," Word said.

He added that the total increases, including fringe benefit increases, will cost the city no more than $20,247.

Mittman presented the request for a 3-percent pay hike for Word, noting that the city manager has not received any increase in his $58,000 salary since being hired more than two years ago.

"That's despite his excellent performance reviews," Mittman said. "The 3 percent is not what we feel the city manager deserves, but it's in recognition that we're still in a deficit recovery situation."

Under the proposal, Word's salary rises to an annual $59,740 and his deferred compensation, previously 4 percent of his base salary, is increased to 6 percent.

"That's really in recognition of the fact that the city manager's compensation package is really not comparable to industry standards," Mittman said. He and Ayers recommended that the city perform a comprehensive review of the manager's entire wage and benefit package before July 1, 1994.

Both proposals passed unanimously. The increases will not take effect before Jan. 1, 1994.

High school students start hashing out differences

By MICHELLE HARRISON
Staff Writer

About 60 Northville High School students broke into sub-groups last Thursday to begin hashing out racial and cultural problems going on in the building.

The meeting was the first of a series to be held following an hour-long forum two weeks ago which produced tears and shouts as students painfully recalled past taunts and racial slurs.

Principal Thomas Johnson said between 85 to 90 students showed up at the after-school forum last week. About 30 of them drifted away, however, when the group split up. He didn't know the reason why those students decided to leave.

At today's forum school officials may leave the students in one large group and ask them to write about how they can initiate understanding regarding cultural diversity.

Other steps the school is prepared to take in resolving conflict within the hallways include a school exchange and peer counseling.

"We want to do a school exchange on a more extensive basis," Johnson said, adding that Northville students do participate in four to five student exchanges with schools different from their own.

A school exchange is currently being considered with Renaissance High School in Detroit, a predominantly black school.

Peer counseling is another area Johnson is studying. Select students would be in-serviced in conflict resolution so they could work with other students to resolve tensions.

Center Stage troupe to perform in Detroit area

The Center Stage Dance Co. will perform benefits this holiday season.

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

The young hoofers at Center Stage Dance Company will be spreading holiday cheer around the Detroit area this Christmas season, as they have for the past six years.

Center Stage co-owner Lisa Shapiro said her 65-member dance troupe will take the show developed for a Nov. 21 performance at Cobo Hall's Festival of Trees and will hit the stage at the St. Vincent and Sarah Fisher Center in Farmington Hills Dec. 1, performing for the center's young residents.

The costume- and song-filled performance by dancers between 3 and 17 years old includes elements of tap, ballet, jazz, hip hop and Hawaiian dance. "We've got one dance that will have 22 children in it," Shapiro said.

The St. Vincent and Sarah Fisher Center, which provides residential foster care and adoption services for abused and neglected children, was delighted to provide a willing audience for this year's yuletide production.

"Christmas is a difficult time for our children, many of whom no longer have a family to celebrate the holidays with," noted Betty Speyer, the center's director of agency relations. "We're lucky that at Christmastime, groups do think of us. It's great to have special activities to entertain them."

Since 1989, the dancers have staged a Christmas production for the Festival of Trees, the annual holiday fundraiser for Children's Hospital of Detroit held at Cobo Arena. In more recent years the dancers have taken their show on the road to area nursing homes and senior centers.

"Since we spend so much time and effort putting the show together, we decided to take it elsewhere," she said.

Other stops on this season's tour include seven nursing homes, a neighborhood Christmas party in Walled Lake, and Our Lady of Providence School in Northville Township.

The dance troupe is well-received wherever it performs, Shapiro said.

"They don't even have to dance; they just walk in and the residents are so happy," she said. "We get them to smile."

Shapiro said Center Stage wanted to extend its good cheer beyond the holidays, so the studio has opened its doors at 139 E. Cady St. to the children of the St. Vincent and Sarah Fisher Center. Starting in January, center personnel will transport the children to the studio for free dance lessons.

To make the program work, the center needs donations of dancewear and dance shoes. Individuals and organizations wishing to support the program can send donations in care of the dance fund to St. Vincent and Sarah Fisher Center, 27400 W. Twelve Mile Road, Farmington Hills, MI 48335.

Winner's Circle building sold to new landlord together with daughter and son-in-law Krista and Mike Jewett, are the building's new co-owners.

Kirchhoff said he had been negotiating to buy the 71-year-old brick building for the past two years. Its asking price had been listed at $600,000, though the final sale price was somewhat less, he said. He would not give the exact figure.

Run-down conditions at the Winner's Circle were described in a 1991 series of articles in the Northville Record. City inspectors had compiled a long list of building code and fire safety violations, including uncharged fire extinguishers, blocked exits, bare wires in the bathrooms and an inoperable shower stall, one of three that serve the 24 rooms on the building's top floor.

Huntoon had gone months without making corrections demanded by the building department, and had to be taken to court in April 1991 before he responded to a long list of complaints from the city's building and fire inspectors.

Huntoon had owned the building since 1980.

Before purchasing the building, Kirchhoff requested inspections by the city's building officials and hired a private firm for an additional inspection.

In the course of a Sept. 27 visual inspection performed at Kirchhoff's request, building official Mick Kruszewski, electrical inspector Joe Attard and plumbing and heating inspector Enzo Papi came up with a three-page list of recommendations ranging from installation of new smoke detectors in all the residential rooms to an overhaul of the three bathrooms.

A separate 12-item list of deficiencies by Fire Chief Jim Allen found too few exit lights and fire extinguishers.

Few problems were noted in the two commercial rental spaces, now occupied by ERA Country Ridge Realty and Joseph's Coney Island.

Kruszewski, chief building official for both the township and city, seemed shocked by the rooming house's conditions shortly after his inspection.

"In my opinion, it's going to be very expensive to bring it anywhere near code. . . . There's a lot of safety hazards that need to be taken care of," he said then.

But more recently, the building official said he has been pleased with the results of negotiations with the new owner. Kruszewski noted that he cannot require that the building be brought fully up to the city's current building code, adopted in 1985, since it is an existing building and its use will remain the same.

"Still, we're getting quite a bit," he said.

Kirchhoff plans to completely renovate the apartment complex's three upstairs bathrooms with new tile and fixtures, good news to residents who have gone years with a sub standard bathroom facility.

Other planned improvements include a fire suppression system in the upstairs hallway and mechanical rooms, new fluorescent lights, new beds and carpeting in the rooms and repairs to the narrow front staircase that leads to the upstairs apartments.

"We'll put $150,000 into it anyway, just to bring it up to where it should be," Kirchhoff said. "This has got to be turned around."

By Tuesday, hallway walls had already gotten a fresh coat of paint and Kirchhoff had set up a manager's office on the top floor to field calls from prospective renters and take comments from residents. A bulletin board near the manager's office boasted a list of "House Rules" for residents to follow, and a new safe was installed to accept rent deposits.

"I just had a tenant say 'My God, you've done more in the last two days than the former landlord did in the last 10 years,'" Kirchhoff said.

Kirchhoff also owns The Inn on the Trail in Plymouth, a rooming house he purchased and subsequently renovated around 1976. "When I bought it, it was in such horrible condition that the city was trying to condemn it," he said.

That building has passed its yearly inspections by the Plymouth City building department and is up-to-date on its occupancy code requirements, said a department spokesperson. Building Official James Penn added that he has heard no complaints about the 369 W. Ann Arbor Trail complex in his 10 years with the department.

Kirchhoff said he also owns two duplexes in Plymouth and a three-unit apartment building in South Lyon.

His latest acquisition at 109-113 W. Main St. in Northville took its nickname from the bar that was housed on its first floor until 1985. Kirchhoff said he plans to rename it The Inn on Main Street.

Study session set to sort school reform proposals ments from high school graduation to using non-licensed teachers under the charter school concept."

McMahon said a group of 12 is trying to revise the Bipartisan Legislative Team plan, originally introduced before the governor's tax reform proposal.

"The governor is not getting the support, both in financing and restructuring (of his plan)," McMahon said.

Legislators will have to act quickly, too, if a sales tax increase question is to be placed on a Feb. 8, 1994, ballot. That means some type of educational reform package would have to be approved by Dec. 8, McMahon said.

The strongest school reform push started in July when lawmakers yanked $6.3 billion from public schools by slashing property taxes by approximately 60 percent. The action took less than 48 hours to complete.

Northville, an out-of-formula school district, receives approximately 96 percent of its revenue from property taxes.

Then in early October, Gov. John Engler jumped on the educational reform bandwagon with his 57-page proposal. Highlights of the governor's plan include a sales tax increase from 4 to 6 percent, raising the single business tax to 3.85 percent; imposing a 16-percent levy on second homes owned by both out-of-state and Michigan residents; imposing a 4-percent real estate transfer tax; and guaranteeing a $4,500 foundation grant per pupil. Northville currently spends about $6,200 per pupil.

Rezmierski said the board is shooting for Thursday, Nov. 11, as a date to meet and publicly discuss all the up-to-date school reform information it has received. It will also discuss its views on the proposed legislation.

"We'll try to develop the stages of our position," Rezmierski said. "Right now, we just have to take everything with a grain of salt."

The meeting is tentatively scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in the board of education meeting room at Old Village School, 405 W. Main St.

Sornson worried for program

By MICHELLE HARRISON Staff Writer

At least one Northville school administrator is confused and anxious about the daily deluge of educational reform proposals coming out of Lansing.

Robert Sornson, director of special education for Northville Public Schools, is worried. He's afraid his center programs, which depend on county funds, will be affected by whatever changes in school finance are handed down from Lansing.

Northville Public Schools' center programs include the Bryant Center, which caters to students ages 14 through 26 and is located in Livonia, and Old Village School, designed for younger students and located in downtown Northville.

More specifically, lawmakers may be looking at eliminating intermediate school district (ISD) funding, or in Wayne County's case, the Regional Educational Service Agency (RESA), according to Sornson.

"Depending on the financing for RESA or ISDs, we could or could not exist," Sornson said. "It depends on what educational reform package you read. It changes from day to day. A couple of weeks ago, ISDs were OK."

Fourteen school districts, including Crestwood, Dearborn, Huron, Garden City, Inkster, Livonia, Plymouth-Canton, Redford Union, Romulus, Southgate, South Redford, Taylor, Wayne/Westland, Westwood and Van Buren, send their students with special needs to Northville's center programs.

"One of my fears is that all of a sudden we'll find ourselves in a situation where we'll have no funding mechanism of that kind (county-allocated mills)," Sornson said. "We serve a lot of school districts."

But rather than sitting around worrying about it, Sornson has decided to defend the special education program by inviting area legislators to view the center programs. He has also developed a letter which parents and other individuals can send to their legislators expressing their concerns.

In addition, Sornson is looking at the possibility of teaming up with the different agencies serving the special education students and lobbying for the program.

Officials mull ways to resolve sewer overcharges

the board passed a resolution to lower the rate, action was never taken by staff to reduce it.

Instead, township staff have been billing sewer-only residents at the 200,000-gallon rate since 1984 even though the township has only been paying the county for 150,000 gallons.

The decision trustees face now is how they will remedy the former board's lack of action on the rate reduction and what restitution—if any—the new board will have to provide because of the oversight of the old board.

After meeting with several of the affected sewer customers, township Manager Bill Richards was looking Thursday night for trustees' input on how the board was going to resolve the issue.

He provided trustees with a summary of the discussions and meetings he's had with O'Brien and other homeowners since the issue was first raised. Then he asked the board to consider whether the township would provide refunds, credits or do away with the entire flat-rate fee schedule by installing meters on residents' sewer lines.

The manager also suggested that the township could provide an equitable solution by offering residents a cheaper rate to install meters or waive plumbing permits.

The issue prompted mixed reactions from the board.

Township Treasurer Rick Engelland questioned the township water and sewer commission's decision to follow the county's rate rather than set their own.

"We owe it to ourselves to come up with our own estimate instead of relying on the county's as gospel," he said.

But the discussion to base sewer usage rates on township or county figures was minimal compared to that of how the trustees might remedy the over-billings.

"I think we should do some refunds," said Engelland. "If we overcharged based on the law that was in effect we should do some refunds, but I don't know to what extent."

Trustee Russ Fogg was opposed to the idea of refunding any money.

"I would be in favor of going forward from this point on," he said.

Township Supervisor Karen Baja feared that providing refunds would set a precedent the township could not afford.

"We could spend a lot of time and staff hours going back to see if mistakes are being made," she said. "But for us to try to go back and make amends... I mean how far do we go back in time to find the errors."

"I think this is setting a precedent," she added.

Richards feared the board would want to stray from the responsibility he thinks it has to the taxpayers.

"If the board believes it has a responsibility to the customers, we need to find a reasonable means to notify present and past customers. It would be futile to try, and not a good policy," he said.

"But I think we have an obligation to all customers since 1984," he added. "I think we should offer some refunds and try to find some more creative options that are more equitable."

Andy Paredes, who lives in the 18200 block of Arselot in Edenderry, said he has always thought his $300 a year bill for sewer service was too high. He told trustees he checked on the sewer rates other communities were charging and found that Northville Township's was the highest.

"We should be given the option of either putting meters on or given the reduced rate," he said. "I would also like to have the rebate back to 1984."

Fellow Edenderry resident John O'Reilly echoed Paredes' thoughts.

"Clearly there's been an error made and it's not this administration's fault," he said. "I would hate to see more legal bills and time spent to get to the appropriate thing to do and that is to give the refunds."

"You know what the dollar amount is; it's about $100,000. So pay it back," he added.

Another Edenderry resident, who didn't give her name, favored the installation of meters as a way to end the debate over usage and costs.

"We are angry about it," she said. "It isn't your fault but it costs us a great deal of money. I'd have to be in the shower for eight hours a day to use the amount of water my bills show."

"I'm pruned enough," she said. "I want a meter."

Richards said he brought the issue to the board's study session so trustees could offer him some direction for staff to pursue. The manager said he has already directed the staff to lower the rate to the 150,000 gallon level.

"We are just seeking direction so we can take it to further study and make a recommendation more consistent with your direction," the manager said.

City seeks loan despite reduction in deficit

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

Just because the city has almost completed its deficit elimination plan doesn't mean that it is out of the woods financially, City Manager Gary Word said Monday.

"It does appear that we are in a need to borrow some money this year for cash flow purposes," he said.

Word obtained city council approval to seek state permission to sell a half-million dollars in tax anticipation notes, one-year loans repayable by the coming year's tax revenue to cover expenses in that year.

The sale of tax-anticipation notes has become a yearly ritual for the city since the state's withholding of some $735,000 in anticipated racetrack revenue in 1991 helped plunge the city into a million-dollar deficit.

Last year, the city sold $1.4 million in tax and revenue anticipation notes, and paid them off in October. The year before that, the city sold and paid off $1.03 million in such notes.

Word noted that the city's general fund would be running a deficit of $243,000 by next July if no tax anticipation notes were sold for the current fiscal year. He added that the future of other state revenue sources including income, single business and personal property taxes was still uncertain as Lansing continues to struggle to replace the nearly $7 billion in state public education revenue lost by dismantling the school property tax system.

"That ($500,000 in tax anticipation notes) should easily get us by in the event that some of those revenues are kept from us," Word said.

The city staff now must notify the Michigan Department of Treasury of its intent to issue the notes. The council will likely vote on a resolution to actually issue the notes Nov. 8, and bids will be sought from financial institutions after that.

Word was confident that this will be the last time the city seeks the short-term notes since 1994-1995 fiscal projections are based on a worst-case scenario including the return of no racetrack revenue.

The city has been receiving about one-third of its allocated amount of racetrack revenue from Northville Downs in the past few years, about $300,000 a year.

Speaker will talk on Jews for Jesus belief

Dr. Moishe Rosen, founder and executive director of the Jews for Jesus evangelistic agency, will speak at First Baptist Church, 217 N. Wing St., on Sunday, Nov. 14, at 6:30 p.m.

Rosen founded the Jews for Jesus organization in 1973. He is trying to get fellow Jews to use a new model of what it means to be Jewish. Rosen feels that the Jewish people must undergo a shift in the way they see themselves.

Rosen now manages a staff of more than 100 people working out of permanent North American branches. The organization has branches in San Francisco, Los Angeles, Chicago, Ft. Lauderdale, Miami, Dallas, Boston, New York City, and Washington, D.C.

Rosen and his staff distribute over five million gospel pamphlets a year. Their traveling music group, The Liberated Walling Wall, uses music and drama in a Jewish style with a Christian message to make its point: that being Jewish and believing in Jesus go hand in hand.

The public is welcome. For information, call 348-1020.

Mill Race Matters

One of the many ongoing projects of the Northville Historical Society is the establishment of a community archive. The Archive Committee has been working for four years to organize and catalog materials on community history.

As part of this project some items are being added to microfilm. One batch has been completed and another is currently being processed. A third group of materials will be sent for processing early next year.

The Archives Committee hopes to include copies of The Palladium, the Northville High School yearbook, in the next filming batch. Both the Historical Society and the Library are seeking Palladiums to make up complete sets. The library set is much nearer to completion. Both organizations are working together to preserve the history of this community.

The Historical Society still needs the following issues to complete its set: 1926, 1934, 1935, 1937, 1939, 1941 through 1956, 1959, 1961, 1965, 1966, 1967, 1972, 1979, and from 1983. Donations would be much appreciated. The Archives is open for research by appointment. Call 348-1845 for more information. A number of materials of community significance have already been preserved.

Mill Race begins to plan for Christmas activities. The annual Christmas walk is scheduled for Nov. 20 and 21. Additional holiday activity includes the annual wine tasting event. Parents should also begin to plan for the traditional Children's Christmas Workshop held the first weekend in December. The fourth Quarterly of the year also arrives in December and members will be receiving dues renewal notices. More details will follow in the weeks to come.

The Northville Historical Society has been in existence for 28 years and has operated Mill Race Village on city land for 20 of those years. The society maintains, restores, and shows the village using almost exclusively volunteer help. There is always work to be done and financial assistance is always needed for the endless collection of projects and suggestions.

All interested parties are encouraged to join and to actively participate. Membership information is available from 348-1845. Members receive a subscription to the Mill Race Quarterly, an opportunity to participate in a variety of social activities such as the Progressive Dinner and the wine tasting, and the chance to help preserve the community's past.

Lawmakers to reveal reform stances

By MICHELLE HARRISON
Staff Writer

In an attempt to keep up with the latest news on the educational reform front, the Legislative Action Network (LAN) has scheduled a town meeting with four area lawmakers.

LAN, a branch of the Northville Coordinating Council of PTA/PTSA's, has received RSVPs from Rep. Willis Bullard, R-Milford, and Sen. Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills, and Robert Geake, R-Northville.

Rep. Jerry Vorva, R-Plymouth, has also been invited to the town meeting which will take place from 7:30-9:30 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 16, at Northville High School.

Each of the legislators will be asked to present an update as well as their opinions on the various school reform packages.

"We're asking questions that aren't being answered," Sharon Ferrara, co-chairperson of LAN, said. "Sometimes they're not being answered because it's not being addressed and sometimes because it's in such a state of change."

Ferrara said LAN's goal is to keep abreast on what is happening in Lansing.

"... To filter it down so we know what the impact on Northville will ultimately be," she said. "And to keep people in Northville, especially parents, informed of what's going on."

LAN has developed a list of criteria it feels is important in deciding the fate of educational reform. Divided into quality, financing and cost containment issues, LAN developed the criteria before the governor released his plan in early October.

"Those were the issues we felt should be the items we were looking for in any proposal coming out," Ferrara said.

That doesn't mean LAN won't support any plan that doesn't follow its criteria to a T.

"It's hard to be really pro-active right now because it appears the Legislature is taking the governor's proposal and working from that," Ferrara said. "Now, all of a sudden, new things are being put on the table. It's hard to say you support it or you don't support it when things are in a constant change mode."

LAN will meet prior to the town hall meeting at its next regularly scheduled meeting, 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 11, at Northville High School. The group will review legislation updates and how they relate to the financial picture for Northville schools.

The public is invited to both the LAN meeting and the town meeting. Residents will have the opportunity to discuss issues and express opinions with legislators one-on-one as break-out sessions have been scheduled.

LAN develops criteria for school reform

The following are the criteria the Legislative Action Network believes should be considered in any educational reform package.

Quality Issues

1. Local control must be maintained in each school district over how schools deliver educational opportunities to students, including curriculum and textbook selection, calendar and school day scheduling, personnel, graduation requirements, budgeting, transportation and facilities.

2. Any school choice program should: a) protect children's rights to attend neighborhood schools within their local district; b) not burden districts with transportation costs; c) protect the local district's right to determine the number of outside students; and d) focus on public K-12 education.

3. Any state mandates must be based on validated research and pilot programs in the affected district. All present and future mandates will be reviewed and only those proven effective will be continued.

4. Consider a program fostering statewide investment in educational facilities, infrastructure and technology which would help the poorest districts increase their infrastructure more rapidly.

5. Encourage parental involvement as an essential input at every stage of the school improvement process.

6. Recognize that staff development is an ongoing component of quality education.

Financing Issues

1. All school districts must be fully reimbursed for funds lost to Public Act 145 (Senate Bill 1).

2. Legislation should allow a majority of voters in a local school district to approve enrichment revenues from local tax sources, with no reductions in state funding (recapture).

3. Lawmakers should take immediate action to reduce funding disparities across the state, with the longer range goal of equity that takes into account regional economic differences.

4. Mandates from the state legislature to all school districts must be fully funded from state revenues.

5. Public dollars must be spent for public schools.

6. Needs for adequate funding for pre-school, special education and adult education must be recognized.

Cost Containment Issues

1. Consider regional cooperation on collective bargaining and other issues where cost savings might be achieved without diminishing local control of decision-making.

2. Any district consolidation program should: a) be voluntary and allow for local input into the consolidation process — state mandated consolidation plans are opposed; b) allow each region to determine whether it can achieve the best cost containment through consolidation, centralization, cooperation or privatization of essential services.

Phone lines will be open

Northville Board of Education members are reviving their phone-in sessions.

The first is scheduled for Monday, Nov. 8. All sessions will take place prior to the first board of education meeting of the month, from 6:30-7:25 p.m.

Residents are invited to call a board member with any issue they would like to discuss.

Superintendent Leonard Remziarski said a log of the calls will be kept so the district can maintain a record of the issues being addressed.

The phone-in schedule is as follows: Dec. 6; Jan. 10, 1994; Feb. 7; March 14; April 11, May 9 and June 13.

The number to call is 344-8444.

Benefit set for teacher

A turkey trot will be held to benefit Meads Mill Middle School teacher Robert Kucher.

Proceeds from the event will be used to help pay Kucher's medical expenses. A physical education teacher, Kucher has been suffering from cancer.

The turkey trot will be held at 9 a.m., Nov. 13, at Meads Mill, 16700 Franklin Road.

Coffee and donuts will be offered and a raffle will be held. For more information, call Bryan Masi at Meads Mill, 344-8435.

Residents may pay snow removal costs

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

Northville residents who fail to shovel their snowy sidewalks this winter could face much stiffer penalties.

The city council on Monday took a first look at an amended zoning ordinance that will let the city charge residents for the cost of removing snow and ice from their sidewalks if the property owners do not remove it themselves within 24 hours.

"Our intent is not to be punitive to the residents; our goal is to have them take care of their own removal," said City Manager Gary Word.

For a first offense, a property owner or occupant would be notified by the city's ordinance enforcement officer if the snow or ice had not been removed on time. If the sidewalks are not cleaned up after the notification, the owner or occupant would be liable for the cost of city removal, including costs of notification, enforcement and administration.

After a first offense, the city would no longer be required to notify the property owner before taking action and charging the owner for the cost.

The city could add a 10-percent penalty to the charges if not paid within 30 days of their due date, and add another 10-percent to the total charges if not paid within six months. At that point, the fine would be placed on the city's property tax rolls and the property owner would pay it through his or her tax bills.

Council Member Jerry Mittman suggested that the ordinance's requirement to remove "any snow" should be changed to set a specific amount of snow. Word noted that the ordinance does allow some discretion on behalf of the city and property owner.

Council Member Mark Cryderman was unhappy with another provision of the amended ordinance, that calling for up to a 90-day jail term for noncompliance.

"What, are we going to take away the little old lady with the broken hip while the drug dealer next door gets out on a technicality," Cryderman asked. "I don't like it."

Word noted that the language is common in city ordinances, and would probably never be enforced to that degree. The language, which also provides for a fine up to $100, is unchanged from the current ordinance.

Mayor Chris Johnson made another point. "Before we start enforcing the ordinance, we should make sure that the city properties are cleaned up," he said.

Our Opinion

Good move in hiking shared service budget

There may be some truth to the claim that you can't fight city hall, but it's just as true that you can turn the heat up on officials and back them into an uncomfortable corner.

That is apparently what happened Monday night when several residents showed up at the Northville Township Board of Trustees meeting to contest a proposed freeze in the township's portion of the shared services budget.

Township advisers had recommended maintaining existing funding levels for the library, the parks and recreation program, the senior center and Northville Youth Assistance. For a while trustees appeared ready to act on that suggestion, but public outcry seems to have changed their minds. Board members ended up approving an expenditure increase of $36,387 for the four services which are the joint responsibility of the township and the city.

No doubt the loud protests of community activists exerted considerable influence on trustees, but, even so, we think township representatives did the right thing Monday.

The additional funds do not represent a major expense for the township and are needed to maintain minimal service levels. The parks and rec department, for example, needed more revenues in order to continue employing a staff person hired to work at the new community park.

Other programs are in need as well, such as the cash-strapped library which has been struggling with reduced hours and outdated resource materials, and Northville Youth Assistance, which was threatened with service reductions under the freeze.

Moreover, as parks friend Marv Gans pointed out, the township's projected surplus of $508,000 provided a more than adequate rainy day fund, and the millage increase trustees approved under the truth-in-taxation provision last summer obviated the need for a tight-fisted approach.

Kudos to those whose pressure tactics got township trustees to loosen the purse strings and congratulations to trustees for knowing when to bow to the wisdom of constituents.

Maybe you can't fight city hall, but there are times when you can join with it to bring about an improved result.

Congrats to candidates, voters who got involved

Tuesday's Northville city election was characterized by low participation rates, both on the part of candidates for office and on the part of voters turning out at the polls.

All the more reason to congratulate those who did become involved.

The names of four people appeared on the ballot: those of city council candidates Mark Cryderman, Charles Keys and Kevin Hartshorne, and that of Mayor Chris Johnson. Cryderman and Keys won seats on the council, while Johnson ran unopposed to ease into his fourth term.

The campaign was clean and reflected the sincerity of the candidates. All four men obviously care about the city and were willing to give of their time and energies to help guide its future direction.

Annual stipends of $600 for the mayor and $500 for council members hardly begin to compensate representatives for the work they do in attending meetings, listening to constituents' concerns and studying the issues. All candidates, whether successful or not, should be thanked for their willingness to serve on the city's policy-making body.

It's anything but a glamorous job, but somebody's got to do it. The community owes its gratitude to those who subject themselves to the verdict of the voters.

Where was the name calling?

Lee Snider

Now that the election is over I'm wondering if the low-key campaign we just came off of is typical of Northville politics. This was the first election I've seen here up close and I have no way of knowing: are they all like this?

If so, what in the name of John Dean is going on? Where were the mudslinging, the tales of strange bedfellows, the threats, the public airing of dirty laundry? Heck, there weren't even any reports of thefts of campaign signs. Why, it's positively . . . unAmerican.

Some of the local elections I've covered over the years have been real beauts, all out of proportion to what was apparently at stake.

In one township, for example, I reported on a incident where the clerk happened to arrive home just as an intruder was loading her lawn signs into his pickup bed. The clerk ended up chasing after the guy in her Mustang — one hand on the wheel, the other clasp the cellular while she talked with police.

The would-be thief was eventually caught, and he turned out to be an employee of a construction company owned by someone who was financing the campaign of the opposition candidate for supervisor.

We were never able to establish if the guy was acting on orders from his boss. He wouldn't talk and the boss (surprise, surprise) denied all knowledge of the incident. Perhaps out of genuine outrage, perhaps for reasons of public display, the employer canned the worker. The opposition candidate went on to win the supervisor's race.

Another time, a little not-so-subtle persuasion was used to convince the city treasurer not to seek reelection. It happened at a when the treasurer was involved in personal litigation that he preferred to keep to himself. The lawsuit was a particularly difficult one for him and his family and he didn't want publicity adding to the stress.

Certain members of the community, however, had other ideas. They threatened to use the anonymous newsletter they were slipping into people's mailboxes to run the treasurer's reputation through the wringer. They could have done it without libeling the man or even distorting the truth. Just a simple reporting of the facts would have been enough to cause him profound embarrassment. He opted out.

In yet another case, city workers were caught rummaging through the mayor's trash in search of love letters or incriminating memos or notes — anything that could have made it impossible for him to return for another four years of miserable mismanagement.

I've also heard of instances where people trailed candidates in their cars and made death threats to those who took unpopular positions — like liberalizing the city's privacy fence ordinance!

Ah, local politics. It's all good clean fun. Well, maybe it isn't clean, but for a reporter looking for something interesting to write about, it sure can be fun.

Here, however, things are disappointingly different. This election was so devoid of ill will I got the feeling a scandal would have erupted if someone had upset a danish tray at a candidate's coffee reception.

All kidding aside, the clean nature of the campaign speaks favorably of the community and of the candidates who ran for city council. But, I can't help but lament, it made for awfully dull news gathering.

Do me a favor, the next time there's a city election, think of us here at the paper and remember: you owe us one.

Risk heightens as deadline nears

Phil Power

When the state Legislature passed and Gov. John Engler signed the famous Senate Bill 1 eliminating property taxes as the 1994 funding base for Michigan schools, most folks reacted with a mixture of hope and alarm.

They hoped the political establishment, facing financial meltdown at the certain loss of nearly $7 billion in revenue, would be forced at long last to do something far reaching about both finances (un-equitable) and quality (poor).

They were alarmed that a combination of special interests, ideological bickering and partisan positioning would make it impossible to get anything sensible and coherent adopted before chaos sets in.

Chaos in this case is scheduled to descend near year end. In order to put a sales tax proposal on the ballot in February 1994, legislative agreement must be reached some time this December. Otherwise, school districts will begin running out of money next March because they can't borrow against the July 1994 property tax revenue that SB 1 eliminated.

With fewer than 60 days to go before the Dec. 31 deadline, alarm is gaining ground on hope.

Best evidence: Last week the special Senate committee working on school finances threw up its hands and adjourned, unable to agree on anything.

Conservative Republicans, infuriated that Engler's plan doesn't include a big tax cut — their reflexive cure for whatever ails the body politic — are sitting on their hands.

Legislative Democrats, under pressure from the teachers' unions, are pretending — against overwhelming evidence that spending on schools has increased enormously with little corresponding gain in achievement — that nothing's basically wrong with the system.

The two people most responsible for bringing things to this situation — Gov. Engler and Debbie Stabenow, a Democratic senator and candidate for governor — have produced nearly identical funding proposals.

Both would provide all school districts with an identical per-pupil base grant, to be funded by a mix of property, sales, income and nuisance taxes. Perversely, the governor's proposal would most increase funding for rural school districts whose students are doing relatively well in the MEAP test and shortchange urban districts where children are performing poorly.

To top it off, there are signs that Engler's re-election team has polling data showing voters in wealthy districts in Oakland County — Birmingham, West Bloomfield, Troy — don't much like what the governor proposes to do to their locally-supported schools.

Readers with long memories will recollect that Proposal A, the 2 percent sales tax rate hike, was defeated last June by precisely such suburban voters. They also will remember that it was by running well in precisely such suburban districts that Engler won his upset victory for governor three years ago.

These voters are the folks who for years have been willing to pay the taxes required to sustain the quality of their schools. They don't understand why their schools and their children now should be put at risk by the political system.

And I don't blame them one bit. Phil Power is chairman of the company that owns this newspaper. His touch-tone voice mail number is (313) 953 2047 Ext. 1881.

Short of putting video cameras in every room of a house, there's really no precaution parents can take in preventing teen-agers from throwing parties.

"If they (teen-agers) want to do it, they're going to do it," said Charles Stilec, the coordinator of Northville High School's Student Assistance program.

About the only step a parent can take is to initiate serious discussions about the consequences teens may face if rules are broken.

"You have to discuss positive behavior ... responsibility and trust so the parameters are set," Stilec said. "And never leave the house unattended."

Mary Ellen King, director of Northville Youth Assistance, agrees. "I'm realistic when it comes to parenting," she said. "Even if you tell them what to do, when you leave home they're going to do what they want to do anyway."

The key is developing a good relationship with children while they're young, King said.

"Trust has to be built up over the years. If a good relationship hasn't developed by the time the kid has turned into a teen-ager — well, you've just got to start when they're really, really young. That way when you do leave, you won't have to worry about (the house)."

Both Stilec and King feel parents should take parenting classes to strengthen their skills.

"You have to take pre-marital tests before you can get married, you ought to have to take parenting classes before you have children," King said.

"For a lot of kids there aren't any consequences because the parent doesn't know what they're doing," Stilec said. "And when there are consequences, and hopefully they're not tragic ones, the parents did know the kid smoked a little bit and drank a little bit."

"Don't get me wrong. There are a lot of parents out there struggling with this and are trying to do the right thing. But there is also a lot of room for improvement. None of us were ever trained."

Parenting classes teach parents consistency in building trust and mutual respect in parent-child relationships as well as how to listen to their children.

"Listening is the key," King said. "Hear what they have to say."

King added that parents have to put themselves on the back burner of sorts and make their children their priority. And that has to happen while the child is young.

Stilec said his job enables him to hear about all the parties and accidents that occurred during the prior weekend.

"A lot of parties start out innocently enough with a few friends, but some are not so innocent because they have the intent to drink," Stilec said.

Teen-agers are skilled at organizing parties at the last minute, he added.

"I've heard a lot about houses being trashed because a friend brought a friend and then someone brings alcohol," Stilec said.

The situation is frustrating because no matter how much the police, schools and community assistance programs join together, the problem is not going to go away if parents don't take disciplinary action over their own children.

"These kids are still being allowed to be in unsafe conditions," Stilec said. "They're running loose on Friday and Saturday nights."

A lot of students travel to Detroit or Ann Arbor to get away from

#HOUSE PARTY

Rules and guidelines are an effective tool when party time comes for your kid home, he added.

"Parents need to get tougher,"

Stilec said. "...

Our kids need to know what the rules and regulations are."

On the practical side of it, the only advice King and Stilec could offer parents wanting to avoid the teen-age party trap was to stay home.

"If you leave a kid alone at home or in a situation that can get out of control, you're just asking for problems," Stilec said.

King suggested taking the responsibility off the teenager and making arrangements to have a relative stay with the teen or the teen stay with a relative.

The Police Officers Association of Michigan also offers the following tips on teenage parties.

How to host a party

• A parent should always be visible and aware at parties. Decide what part of the house will be used.

Choose one where guests will be comfortable and proper supervision can be maintained.

Bring in snacks and non-alcoholic beverages.

Your presence will keep the party running smoothly and will let you meet your teen's friends.

• Teens frequently throw parties while their parents are away.

Make arrangements for quality adult supervision to ensure protection for you and your children.

Set party rules beforehand. Let them know what you expect and agree to the rules ahead of time.

Stress the shared responsibility for hosting the party. This lets both of you express concerns and feelings.

Limit attendance and hours. Agree to a guest list and send out invitations.

Let it be known that party-crashers will not be allowed. Set the hours so teens will be home at a reasonable time.

Avoid open house parties. They are difficult to control.

Discourage guests from leaving the party early and returning. They may go elsewhere to use drugs and then return.

Be aware of problem guests.

• It is illegal to offer alcohol to guests under 21 or to allow guests under 21 to use drugs in your home. You may be brought to court on criminal charges and may have to pay damages in a civil action if you furnish minors with alcohol or other drugs.

Be alert to signs of drug use. Teens who try to bring in alcohol or other drugs or who refuse to comply with party rules should be asked to leave. Notify their parents. Call the police if unwanted guests refuse to leave or if their parents cannot be reached.

Notify the parents of any teen who arrives at the party under the influence of drugs. Find the teen a safe ride home.

Notify police when planning a large party. This helps them protect you, your guests and your neighbors.

Tell your neighbors about the party.

Encourage your teen to call the neighbors to tell them.

Other ideas:

Avoid access to alcohol and other drugs in your home.

Serve food and non-alcoholic drinks.

Alert other parents of any local alcohol or drug problem that might affect their children.

Encourage chaperoning. Get to know your teen's friends and their parents.

Parents and teens should realize that these guidelines are in effect for all parties.

PARTY GUIDELINES

Guidelines for parents of teens attending a party

• Know where your teen is.

Get the address and phone number of the host. Tell your teen to notify you if the party moves.

• Contact the host's parents to verify time, date and location, make sure a parent will be present, make sure alcohol and other drugs are prohibited and offer to chaperone.

• Know how your teen will get to and from the party.

• If he or she is uncomfortable, make it easy for your teen to leave the party.

Furnish phone numbers of other adults he or she may call if you are unavailable.

• Discuss with your teen when he or she should call. Tell your teen there is no punishment or restriction for a call letting you know that things are out of hand.

• Urge teens never to drive home with someone who has been drinking.

Tell them to call you or another adult for a ride home if necessary.

• Greet your teen when he or she comes home from the party.

• If your teen is staying the night with a friend after a party, check with the parents of the friend to confirm that they want your teen to spend the night, that they will be home and that you agree with house rules.

• Call the hosts the next day to thank them.

Marilyn Boland

Boland works to keep them happy

By DOROTHY NASH
Special Writer

"This is my second home," said Marilyn Boland as she sat in the lobby of Allen Terrace, the senior citizen housing facility in Northville.

"I come here almost every day."

Showing up at Allen Terrace might be a near-daily occurrence for Boland, but she isn't able to do it until after she has worked until 2 p.m. in the kitchen at the high school or before going home to keep house for her husband and a grown son.

"I see 12 to 14 women here each week," she said, to talk to, to take shopping, to help buy groceries, to have prescriptions filled, and to keep doctors' appointments.

She takes some women to the hospital too, when they have to go — those who don't have family to do it for them.

Ages? "They're from 62 to 96," Boland answered.

On Mondays at 3 p.m., as authorized by Our Lady of Victory Church, she brings communion to the multipurpose room on the fourth floor. She takes them to church on Sundays too.

Twelve to 17 people, mainly Catholic, come. "Two of them are men," she added.

Once a month, Boland said, a priest comes to conduct a mass.

"There are also four shut-ins," Boland said, "and I see them once a week."

She's been doing this "for years," visiting senior citizens in a project sponsored by Our Lady of Victory Church, even before Allen Terrace came into existence in the 1970s.

Why Marilyn Boland has been doing it came out like this:

"I don't know. I just have that pull that I should do it. There's a big need out there."

And she added, "I enjoy it."

"They're friendly, very nice people. They just want to have someone to talk to and to see a face with a smile."

Also, "It takes people to make people happy."

Moraine student earns crown in pre-teen pageant in Detroit

Mikhila Humbad of Novi was recently crowned Miss Junior Pre-Teen Detroit 1993 in the East Coast Pageants competition held in the Scottish Rite Auditorium at the Masonic Temple in Detroit.

The East Coast pageant was the first for Humbad, an 8-year-old third grader at Moraine Elementary in Northville. She is the daughter of Nir-anjan, a climate control division engineer at Ford Motor Co., and Sunetra, an Indian cooking instructor.

Humbad now has the opportunity to attend the 1994 Cities of America National Pageant in Orlando, Fla., in January 1994. There, she will compete with girls from across the United States and Toronto, Canada.

As Miss Junior Pre-Teen Detroit, Humbad won an expense-paid trip to Orlando, hotel and accommodations for the national pageant, her entry fee, a dress watch, modeling scholarship to John Casablancas modeling school, banner, crown, flowers and title for the year.

Humbad decided to enter the pageant just to see what a pageant was really like. She won her title over the contestants in the 7-9 age category. Over 180 contestants in four different age groups competed in personal interviews with the judges, sportswear and evening gown competitions, and an impromptu question and answer period on stage.

All the contestants were first selected from an interview of those who entered the contest in the Detroit area. East Coast Pageant Productions stresses personality as the most important part of the competition.

Sponsors for Humbad's Detroit trip included Smitco Oil, Inc., John Busch and Stephen Pyron from Kentucky; Ellen Billiter from Maryland; Sounds of India; Maryanne Wilson; Harish Dang; Amy Bogor, Carol Collins; Yumiko Miyatake; Penny Pitts; Sandra Kelly from Massachusetts; Ray Farah; N.J. International; J.B. Mistry; Mahendra Shah; Ashok Choksi; Kathy Gosney; Berkley Ruschae; and Goldsmith Galleries from Michigan.

Humbad is a well-rounded creative student in school. She likes Indian classical dancing and ballet, and enjoys reading and writing in her spare time. She also watches TV and enjoys spending time with her friends Alaina and Kathy. Humbad also speaks two languages: English and Marathi, an Indian language.

Although Humbad won the expense-paid trip to Orlando, she has many other expenses to get ready for the national competition. To become a sponsor, call 344-4804.

PTA News/Private schools

OUR LADY OF VICTORY

The Students of Our Lady of Victory School have been busy with their annual fund-raising drive. The school experienced 100 percent participation in this project again this year. Students sold candy, cheese, sausage and wrapping paper. Total profits will be approximately $20,000. We anticipate using these profits to offset our budget as well as to purchase additional computer equipment for our school. We appreciate the efforts of everyone involved in this project.

The students in grades six to eight held elections this past month for class officers. The newly elected officers are: grade six, Kristi McDonald, Christopher Price, and Greg Brazunas; grade seven, Rebecca Andersen, Christine Price, and Brent Zak; and grade eight, Rick Hoeg, Fred Lyons, and Sarah Townsend. These officers will direct their classes in fund-raising and service projects.

We are currently contacting nursing homes in the area in order to develop a pen pal project with residents in the homes. The class officers are also determining the possibility of designing a recycling project in the school. Their first social event will be a bowling party in mid-November.

Faculty and students got into the spirit of the U of M and MSU game in early October. The colors of maize and blue and green and white were very evident in the school on Monday, Oct. 11. The teachers and students proudly wore their favorite school colors and sweatshirts for the day. Even though U of M lost the game, their colors were very proudly displayed. It was a fun day for all.

The end of the first quarter is upon us already. Friday, Oct. 29, ended our first quarter. Report cards and conferences followed the next week. We met with our parents in order to evaluate individual student progress.

All Saint's Day was celebrated at our school on Nov. 1. Parents, teachers, and students assembled in church that morning for mass followed by a play. The students in grades four and six were directed in a play by their teachers, Mrs. Nancy Palmer and Mrs. Kathleen Kohlert. We learned about the saints of the past and how each of us can be a saint in the present.

The OLV PTA is sponsoring a citrus sale. Orders will be taken on Nov. 6 and 7, with deliveries on Nov. 13 and 14. This project is the major fund-raiser for our PTA. The money that is made from the citrus sale will go directly toward enhancing our children's education.

A killer of a whale shot by Northville photographer Rick Denomme.

Photographer has wildlife style

By JAN JEFFRES
Staff Writer

How many millions of people dream of quitting their jobs and supporting themselves by doing something they really love?

And how few do what Northville resident Rick Denomme had the nerve — and the talent — to do 18 years ago.

He submitted his resignation to Farmer Jack's and took up his camera on a full-time basis.

The former hobbyist and his wife, Connie, now earn their keep selling his wildlife photographs at weekend art fairs.

They'll be at "A Celebration of the Arts" on Nov. 13 in Northville — an annual juried fair featuring 70 artists as a benefit for the New Morning School in Plymouth Township.

While Denomme gets a lot of his shots not too far from home — like his best-selling prints of the deer, songbirds and raccoons caught at Kensington Metropark in their early morning routines — he needs to travel to get those freeze-frames of more exotic species.

His photos focus on polar bears frolicking in the Canadian Arctic snows, baby seals, lynx, birds of prey, killer whales in British Columbia.

Following the trail of 28 or so art shows a year, the Denommies put about 30,000 miles per year on their van. For the photo trips, they jet to places like Mexico for the gray whales or Glacier National Park in Montana for the wolves.

A jaunt to Hudson's Bay is where he saw the polar bears. He traveled with a group in a special vehicle equipped for the snow.

"The polar bears are fairly easy. They know where they congregate. But you have to be sure your scarves and camera straps aren't hanging out," he said.

On other trips, he employs the services of a guide.

"On your own, you'd probably never get to see them (the animals)," Denomme explained.

Denomme is a self-taught photographer.

"I learned as I went," he said, adding that he's read an extensive collection of photographic and wildlife books.

The couple mat and frame the pictures themselves.

"While others are at their desks in January, the Denommies will be on a working trip to Yellowstone Park. In May, they'll be off to Colorado to photograph the golden eagle and other birds of prey.

They've discussed a wildlife safari in Africa but have ruled it out so far. "There's so much to see here," Denomme explained.

He isn't the only Northville artist to exhibit at the show, which is now in its third year.

Others are David Tiennan, who works in collage, mixed media and watercolors; Cathy Geron who will be bringing her bonsai trees; and Denise Catt, who specializes in adult wearable art.

"The interesting thing about the show is that it is not a country craft show. Several of the artists have their work in galleries and have received special recognition for their work," event organizer Leslie Stolaruk said.

A full array of art will be on sale just in time for Christmas shopping, including paintings; watercolors; pottery; bird houses; carved wildlife figures, dolls and santas; fine and costume jewelry; metalwork; glass; fiber art including knits and weaving; toys; baskets and porcelain dolls.

Friday, a show preview will be in place as examples of the art go up at the Book Stall On The Main in downtown Northville and at Wiltzi Pharmacy on Main Street in Plymouth.

Admission to the Nov. 13 event is $1.50, with the proceeds helping out the New Morning School for preschoolers through eighth graders. Hours are 9 a.m. to 4:40 p.m. at the Northville Recreation Center, 303 West Main Street.

For information, call 420-3467.

Detroit Chadsey coming to town

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

Saturday's state playoff matchup with Detroit Chadsey may feel like déjà vu for the Mustangs.

According to Northville coach Darrel Schumacher, the Explorers are very similar to conference rival Farmington Hills Harrison. Like the Hawks, Chadsey features great team speed and a great running back.

"They have the quickness of Harrison but not the same number of weapons," said Schumacher. "They have a bunch of athletes that can run. Speed is always what you worry about."

The two squads meet Saturday at Northville High at 1:30 p.m. in the first round of the playoffs. It's the Mustangs' second straight appearance in the big show.

Northville was bounced from the playoffs in the first round last fall by Walled Lake Western.

The Mustangs, 8-1, will have to stop Detroit's Raphael Cooper to advance this year. A senior halfback, Cooper rushed for more than 1,000 yards leading the Explorers to a 6-3 record.

"The kid is phenomenal," said Schumacher. "He's got good size and can run over people."

Chadsey coach Chuck Spann said his team will rely on Cooper much of the time.

"We throw some," he commented, "but we're mainly a running team."

Detroit last made the playoffs two years ago. Spann said the Explorers haven't had a great year but one that was "good enough" to get to the playoffs.

Defensively, Chadsey may offer

Bryan Kelley rushed for more than 100 yards against Novi.

Northville its biggest test to date. Schumacher said the visitors will use an eight-man front to slow down Anell Kersey and Bryan Kelley.

"I think we'll have to do something off the pass," he added. "But we've got to be able to run it or it will be a long day."

Defensive back Raymond Hill is Detroit's best defender. He supports against the run very well, Spann said.

"They have better speed in the secondary than anybody we've faced," Schumacher said. "It may be tough for us to get open."

Spann said the contest will come down to a couple of things.

"It's going to be who executes better and makes the fewest mistakes," he said.

If Northville wins the game, the Mustangs would face either Dearborn Edsel Ford or Harrison. The Hawks gave Northville its only loss of the season on Sept. 17.

Schumacher said playing Chadsey would give his team an advantage in a rematch with Farmington Hills.

"We would prepare the same way for two weeks," he said.

Gridders crush Wildcats 28-0 for Jug triumph Mission accomplished.

Northville High regained the Baseline Jug Friday night by routing Novi 28-0 on the road. It was the fifth time in six years the Mustangs have walked away with the Jug and it was also the largest margin of victory for either school in that span.

"I thought our defensive line did an exceptional job of getting pressure on the quarterback," said Northville coach Darrel Schumacher. "That was the big factor."

John Gatti, Jason Holman, Adam Davis and Scott Hartsough made life miserable for usually resourceful Novi quarterback Kevin Serra. They hurried his throws, sacked and contained the Wildcat senior when he tried to run.

Northville's bull-rush led to what turned out to be the winning touchdown in the first quarter.

Novi faced a first down on its own 13-yard line with 8:19 to go. Serra dropped back to pass and was forced to throw early. Mustang defensive back Marc Golden made an easy interception and then raced 15 yards for the touchdown.

"That interception set things up pretty good for us," said Schumacher.

Novi never really got untracked and gained just 92 yards of total offense. Schumacher said he felt shutting Serra down was the key to winning.

"We wanted to keep Serra inside," the coach added, "so we brought the kids from the outside. We just had so much pressure on him he didn't have enough time to get set and throw."

"They had a good scheme," said Novi coach John Osborne. "Their pressure on Kevin was tremendous. We couldn't handle it. We couldn't run or pass on them."

Northville finished the regular season at 8-1 while Novi closed at 4-5. The Mustangs will go on to the state playoffs Saturday against Detroit Chadsey (see related story).

"The kids worked hard and wanted (the Jug) for a positive attitude going into the playoffs," said Schumacher. "They weren't going to leave the field until they got it."

"It was brutal," Osborne said of the game. "I felt bad that we couldn't compete with them."

Novi started the game in a hole and never climbed out.

The Cats took the opening kickoff at their own 25-yard line and immediately went backward five yards on an illegal procedure call on first down. John Wroe got six yards back on a reverse on second down. Serra missed Andy Sill on a third down pass and Novi was forced to punt.

Northville was also ineffective on its first possession. Anell Kersey ran twice and Bryan Kelley once before the Mustangs punted.

Mark Scholz 54-yard punt pinned the Wildcats back at their own 2. Sill and Serra combined for a first down and some breathing room with three straight running plays. Golden then made his interception on first down.

Osborne said the play took the wind out of his team's sails.

"It sure seemed like it," he said. "That hurt, but we've been behind all year. It's generally not affected us."

Canton downs Northville 47-35 despite top effort

Even to a casual observer, the prospects for Northville High's basketball squad didn't look good heading into Thursday night's road game with Plymouth Canton.

The Mustangs had lost seven of their last eight and won only once away from home all season. And, even more importantly, the Chiefs went in as Class A's No. 4 ranked team.

So, as might be expected, Canton won the game 47-35. But according to coach Gary Schwan, it was anything but an easy victory for the Chiefs.

"We were right there," he said. "It's the best we've played all year."

An excellent defensive performance by all the Mustangs kept the game close, Schwan said.

"If we could play like that every night we could have some success," he said. "More importantly, I think the girls are starting to realize what it takes (to win)."

Northville played the Chiefs almost even in the first quarter. Canton led by just two at the end of the period.

The Mustangs went into a shooting funk in the second quarter and trailed 21-11 by halftime. Schwan said his team has had trouble with second period for some time known reason, most of the year.

Canton maintained its lead in the second half. Northville never got closer than 10 points.

Samantha Leger provided much of the offense with 17 points.

"It was her best game by far," said Schwan.

Senior center Krista Howe had a strong game with six points and 11 rebounds. Gina Chiasson had seven points and Karl Krupansky six.

"We went into the game talking about gaining Canton's respect," Schwan said, "that we can play basketball. I think we did that."

Northville completed the Western Lakes Activities Association season with a 3-8 record. The Mustangs, who are 6-10 overall, will host a conference playoff game tonight at 7 p.m.

NORTH FARMINGTON 56, NORTHVILLE 45:

The Mustangs cut an 11-point margin to four in the final quarter of the Oct. 26 game but couldn't complete the comeback.

Three-point shots wouldn't fall for Northville near the end of the contest. The Raiders converted on late free-throw attempts to take a comfortable victory.

"We had an opportunity to win," said Schwan, "but didn't."

North Farmington led 22-17 at halftime. Both teams pumped up the volume in the third period as the Raiders outscored Northville 22-16.

Howe helped her team come back in the fourth quarter. For the game, the senior had a season-high 11 points and 12 rebounds.

"She's gotten a lot more aggressive on the boards," said Schwan. "I'm happy to see her have some success before she graduates. She's never missed a practice and has worked her butt off."

Chiasson and Leger each had 10 points.

Kickers end season in district action

The 1993 soccer season came to a close for the Mustangs Oct. 25 as Western Lakes rival Livonia Churchill beat Northville 3-0 in district action.

The Chargers led 1-0 at halftime and dominated the home team in the second half. The loss left Northville with a 9-7-3 record on the year.

"Churchill came out with the talent and desire," Mustang coach Doug Lyon said. "It's what they should have done all year."

Livonia possessed perhaps the best talent in the conference this season. Lyon said the Chargers played sporadically throughout the year.

"They've been up and down all season," he added. "But so has everybody else."

Churchill was at the top of its game against Northville. Lyon said the Chargers passed very well and didn't give his team many chances.

"You have to give them a lot of credit," he said.

The squads played a fairly even first half. Livonia got the only goal about eight minutes into the half.

Northville had a few chances in the second half, Lyon said. But shots either sailed wide or off the goalposts.

Livonia scored two more goals on breakdowns by the Mustangs. Quick Charger passes left Northville out of position on both, Lyon said.

Tankers beat Walled Lake Newton, VanHorn, Anderson star

By SCOTT DANIEL

A combined Walled Lake swim team was still no match for Northville Thursday as the Mustangs won big, 132-54.

Brenda Newton, Mandy VanHorn and Rebecca Anderson were among those to turn in top performances against the team composed of swimmers from Western and Central high schools. No additional state cuts were made, however.

"I expected more to have qualified by now," said coach Bill Dicks. "But I'm not worried. We'll make it at the conference."

The Western Lakes Activities Association is holding its championship today and tomorrow. Dicks said he hopes the 200-yard and 400-yard freestyle relay teams will make the state meet this week.

As for WLAA title hopes, the coach said chances are remote.

"Livonia Stevenson has way too much for everybody," Dicks commented. "But two through five are up for grabs."

Thursday's meet with Walled Lake was certainly not up for grabs. Northville won nearly every event despite changing its lineup around.

The Mustangs took the top two spots in the 200-yard medley relay. The team of Anderson, Andrea Moretti, Sheila and Gwen Osborne was first in 2:05.99 while Kara Lyczak, Jill Walro, Tammy Cook and Katie Rompel were next in 2:07.30.

Newton had one of her best times in the 200 freestyle with a 2:07.5. Amy Kohl was second and Missy Hayes third.

IM was Walro in 2:44.4. Lyczak was first.

Cook won the 50-yard freestyle in 26.2. VanHorn had her personal best in 26.5 and Jodi Brown was fourth.

"This is typical of our season," said Dicks. "We've got good solid times, but to get into the 25s... we're just on the edge."

Sarah Carney won the diving competition with 210.7 points. Jill Holloway was second and Amy Cristof third.

In the 100-yard butterfly, Amity Heckemeyer won with a time of 1:03.50. Newton's 58.8 was first in the 100 freestyle.

Kohl was first in the 500-yard freestyle. Northville took first, third and fourth in the 200 freestyle relay.

Rompel, Brown, Gwen Osborne and Lyczak were first in 1:51.33. Katie Varley, Stacey Vilisides, Sharp and Whitney Anolick were third while Stephanie Kettle, Sara Roth, Margaret Lapham and Allison Anty were fourth.

Lyczak won the 100 backstroke in 1:11 and Anderson the 100 yard breaststroke in 1:17.5. The team of Cook, Moretti, Newton and Heckemeyer won the 400-yard freestyle relay to close the meet.

NORTHVILLE 121, NOVI 65

The two Baseline rivals met in the pool Oct. 26.

Unlike the football rivalry, Dicks said there's no extra emotional involvement for his swimmers. The coach said the Mustangs had an average meet.

"They swam OK," Dicks said. Anderson, Gwen Osborne, Moretti and Rompel won the 200 medley relay in 2:05.44. Kohl's 2:08 was good for first in the 200-yard freestyle.

Northville swept the 200 IM. Anderson won, VanHorn was second and Lyczak third. Dicks said VanHorn and Lyczak both had good swims.

The Mustangs top finish in the 500 freestyle was Cook's 26.7. She was second.

Cristoff was the winning diver with a total of 203.4 points in the 100-yard butterfly. Heckemeyer was the winner in 1:03.1. Karen Handley was fourth in 1:18.40.

Cook finished fourth in the 100-yard freestyle in 59.1. Kohl won the 500 freestyle in 5:42.50.

Heckemeyer, Cook, VanHorn and Rompel won the 200-yard freestyle relay in 1:46.2. Anderson won the breaststroke, and Walro finished first in the breaststroke.

Northville finished first and third in the 400 freestyle relay.

momentum.

Novi started again on its own 20-yard line. Serra tried another first down pass and, again, Golden intercepted it. Defensive back Brian Jackson tipped the pass and Golden went low to catch the deflection.

The Mustangs took the ball at Novi's 36-yard line and scored in nine plays. Northville pushed the Wildcats off the ball and ran between the tackles on a slow, methodical march. Golden scored from four yards out on a keeper to make 14-0 at the 2:18 mark of the first quarter.

Northville made it 21-0 at the start of the second quarter. Kersey capped a 70-yard drive with a three-yard TD run. The drive took nearly five minutes off the clock.

"We lost the battle on the line," said Osborne. "It was difficult for us even to stop them."

The Mustangs finished with more than 300 yards of offense, all but 12 of them on the ground. Kelley rushed for 103 yards and Kersey 91.

The first half ended with Northville up 21-0.

The Mustangs got their final score with 1:14 left in the third quarter. Kelley took a pitch from Golden as Northville swept left on fourth down and inches at Novi's 36. The senior fullback made it to the endzone nearly untouched and Northville had a 28-0 lead.

The Wildcats' best drive of the frigid night came on their following possession.

Starting on their own 27, Novi began using Northville's rush against them. Sill got 10 yards on a first down draw play.

Serra then connected with Pat Dunn for 10 yards and Derek Gavagan on a 14-yard screen pass to move the ball to the Mustang 37. Novi then faced a fourth down and seven.

Serra hit Brian Csordas on an eight-yard screen for the first. The duo connected again moments later on fourth down and 19 but Csordas was stopped for no gain.

Tips on outdoor preservation

Any forest ranger or environmentalist will tell you that everyone loves nature. Some of us, however, are loving it to death.

If you're conscientious about recycling at home, you're off to a good start. Just don't forget those good habits when you take to the great outdoors.

That doesn't mean the great outdoors is forbidden. It means all of us have to break bad habits and learn new ones that will allow us to enjoy the wilderness without ruining it.

SMART CAMPING

Majorie Lamb offers tips for environmentally low-impact camping in "Two Minutes a Day for a Greener Planet" (Harper).

"Those who are privileged enough to spend time in the wild have a responsibility to keep it as nearly pristine as possible," says Lamb. "By pristine, I mean a state of wilderness without human interference."

The first step is remembering that the wilderness is home to a huge variety of plant and animal life and that seemingly harmless activities have an impact on the area's ecosystem.

Wash your hair and clean the dishes at least 50 yards away from a lake or river.

Eat an orange to avoid using pesticides. Insects don't like the scent our bodies put off when we've been eating citrus fruits. Also wear light-colored clothing in the woods to repel insects.

Stick to established campsites and don't try to customize a campsite by chopping foliage or digging in the ground. Limit the number of people at the site. Smaller groups have less impact.

Use only fallen, dead wood for campfires. Using a lightweight camp stove is even better.

Carry out any waste you don't burn.

Use soap instead of detergent to bathe, shampoo and wash dishes. Dump waste water at least 50 yards from open water.

Don't widen hiking trails, take shortcuts or try to beat a new path.

Leave plants, trees, flowers, and animals where they are. Don't strip tree bark. And don't ever feed animals, even if they look like something out of "Bambi." (Innocent-looking deer have been known to kick small children when they run out of potato chips.)

PRESERVATION PICNICS

Many of the same rules apply even when you're just having a picnic at the local park — when your picnic is over, it should look as if you were never there.

Use trash containers, and if there aren't any, take your trash with you: pack trash in a paper bag instead of a plastic sack. Better still, take home any recyclable cans, bottles and plates. Dispose of barbecue coals properly.

When you're picnicking, create as little trash as possible by using plastic containers for food, as well as washable plates, cups and cutlery, as well as cloth napkins, tablecloths and towels.

If you must use disposable picnic items, opt for biodegradable waxed paper, paper plates and cups.

WILDERNESS AT HOME

You don't have to go camping or hiking to enjoy the great outdoors. It's possible to enjoy nature in your own backyard. And turning the yard into a nature preserve is a wonderful project for kids.

The EarthWorks Group, which has published a number of books on recycling and conservation, offers a number of projects in "50 Single Things Kids Can Do to Save the Earth."

Birds of every feather will flock together at a backyard bird feeder or bird bath. A pinecone smeared with peanut butter or orange peels hung from a tree will attract birds.

Gardening is always a plant-friendly activity (if you avoid toxic pesticides). The family can plant a tree or start a small vegetable patch.

Glaucoma blindness preventable

Reg Pareja

Glaucoma is the most common cause of preventable blindness in the United States. About 2 million Americans have glaucoma, but not all of them know it.

There are two types of glaucoma: open-angle and closed-angle glaucoma. Fluid is made by a structure in the eye called the ciliary body. This fluid travels from behind the iris (the colored part of the eye), through the pupil (the hole), and into a drainage system near the angle made by the iris and the cornea (the clear dome over the iris and pupil).

With closed-angle glaucoma, fluid accumulates because it cannot reach the drainage system. With open-angle glaucoma, the drainage system is abnormal. In either case, the pressure from the fluid increases and causes damage to the retina and the optic nerve.

There are usually no symptoms in the early stages of open-angle glaucoma. Vision is lost gradually from the periphery to the center of vision. It is a painless but insidious disease and a person can be losing their vision and not notice it.

A person with closed-angle glaucoma usually experiences severe eye pain, red eye, blurred vision and even nausea and vomiting. People with these symptoms usually recognize their need for medical attention.

Glaucoma is more common in African Americans, in people who have a family history of glaucoma, in those over 40, and in people who have diabetes, hypertension, or myopia (nearsightedness). All people older than 40 years of age, especially those with any of the risk factors mentioned, should see an ophthalmologist regularly.

Treatment of glaucoma includes medications — usually eye drops to decrease eye pressure — and regular eye exams. If the medications are not adequate, laser treatment or surgery may be considered.

Glaucoma can lead to permanent blindness if not detected and treated. However, with treatment, glaucoma sufferers can maintain good vision. For more information, contact your physician.

Mustang runners fail to advance from state regionals

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

You might say the Mustang boys cross country team went zero for two Saturday.

Northville High failed to advance out of state regional competition at West Bloomfield. Competing at Marshbank Park, none of the Mustangs ran fast enough to qualify individually, either.

"It didn't happen," coach Ed Gabrys said. "We had a fast field, a really competitive region."

Ann Arbor Huron, Ann Arbor Pioneer and Detroit Catholic Central advanced from the state's toughest region. Northville was 14th out of 18 schools.

Junior Nate Kirmis was the Mustangs' top finisher. He was 39th in 17:55. Gabrys said Kirmis would have had to run about a minute faster to make state finals.

Scott Lloyd was 44th in 18:03 and Jeff Zwiesler 81st in 19:03. Dwight VanTuyl was 83rd in 19:09 and Mark Ritter 107th in 20:10. Gabrys said a cramp slowed Ritter down.

"He was disappointed," he said. Chris Shifter was Northville's sixth finisher in 20:11 while Jeff Luterek placed 117th in 21:50. The regional competition closed the season for the Mustangs.

Gabrys described 1993 as a decent season for his team.

"It was a season of qualified success," he said. "We did the things we should've done, but we wanted more than that."

Beating Westland John Glenn and improving racing times were main goals, Gabrys added. But, he said, he thought a winning dual meet season was possible.

"We missed it by a point," said Gabrys, "so we were not able to accomplish everything. It gave the season a bittersweet tinge."

Northville went 3-3 this year. The Mustangs lost to Farmington Hills Harrison by a single point in late September.

Hopes for a brighter 1994 exist.

The team's main runners, excepting Ritter, will return next fall.

Kirmis, VanTuyl, Zwiesler and Lloyd will give Northville a solid lineup. Gabrys said he must find a strong fifth runner to balance the lineup.

"We need a closer," he said. "I think we'll be similar to this year, but better because we're older. I'm hopeful."

Kickers close fall season loss, the coach said it was a good season for the Mustangs.

"I was very happy with our season," Lyon commented. "The kids never gave up. We played for the division title until the last game."

Northville, like the rest of the WLA, played well at times and poor other times.

"Our top priority (for next season)," said Lyon, "is to play steady soccer. Not so up and down."

That may be a tall order considering Northville's graduation losses.

All-league performer Bo Fowler and stopper Rob Nelson will be difficult to replace, according to Lyon.

"It's a big hole," he said of Nelson's departure. "He's a leader on and off the field."

Steady Chad Toldstedt will also leave next spring, along with Brian Dogonska, Chris Harrison, Mike Kapusky, Ananual Libenand Dave Rossing.

"We will certainly miss all of them," said Lyon.

Players such as Ty Fowler, Jason MacIver and Matt Schwagle will have to step up, Lyon said he hopes for some junior varsity players to make the jump to varsity.

Novi falls in finals to Salem

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

Cinderella made it to the ball but the clock struck midnight before she could dance with the prince.

Plymouth Salem put an end to the Wildcat soccer team's storybook season Saturday by beating Novi 4-1 in the district final at Northville High. Ronny Mashni scored a pair of goals to lead the Rocks past Novi.

"They were a good team, no question," said coach Larry Christoff. "They sure outplayed us. Our bubble burst."

It was Novi's first appearance in a district final. The Wildcats finished 15-4-1 on the season.

"I told the kids they had nothing to be ashamed of," said Christoff. "We didn't play our best but we made it to the final. They did a heck of a job."

Salem took the early lead on the 'Cats and never looked back. Doug Herriman scored on a header at the 37:30 mark of the first half after a quick scramble in front of the Novi net.

Novi never got untracked offensively. Christoff said the Rocks were simply more aggressive Saturday.

"They beat us at our own game," he said. "The hustling game."

Salem controlled play most of the opening half even though both teams made rushes at the net. Mark MacInnis made it 2-0 on a controversial goal at the 16:31 mark.

The Salem player collided with Wildcat goalkeeper Joe Meyer as the ball went in the net. MacInnis appeared to be in the net himself when he made contact with the ball and Meyer. But officials allowed the goal and the score was 2-0.

The Wildcats got their only goal with just more than 12 minutes left in the half. Kevin Sitts was in the right place at the right time and tapped in a rebound from a corner kick to cut Salem's lead in half.

Mashni got his first goal with 1:42 left in the half to make it 3-1. That half ended with the Rocks up by two.

Christoff said his team failed to clear the ball too many times against Salem.

"Every time we got the ball they were on us," he added.

Salem got the second half's only goal at the 18:54 mark. Mashni was left wide open in front of the net and beat the Wildcat keeper to make it 4-1.

"We made some very elementary mistakes," said Christoff.

NOVI 2, PLYMOUTH CANTON 0

The Wildcats made it the final by beating Canton Oct. 27 on the road.

According to Christoff, Chris Young was the star of the game.

IRS form causes stir among loan applicants

By James M. Woodard
Copley News Service

Many mortgage loan borrowers proclaimed it was an invasion of privacy for a lender to examine the income tax data they sent to the Internal Revenue Service.

This should not be a requirement of lenders when closing a new mortgage loan, they said in response to loan officers who asked that a form be signed authorizing the lender to obtain a copy of the borrower's tax return forms directly from the Internal Revenue Service.

Today, most people seem to agree with rationale for the requirement.

The IRS authorization form is usually signed at the closing table, after the borrower is qualified and before the loan is finally approved and funded, because the authorization is only valid for a 60-day period. In most cases, if the borrower refuses to sign, the loan is denied.

Most mortgage lenders now require the signed authorization form because the major secondary buyers — the organizations that buy home mortgage loans from primary lenders — now insist that the form be part of any mortgage package they buy. And they periodically re-verify all documents in those packages, including forms they obtain from the IRS.

It's done in the interest of reducing fraud in mortgage loan applications. That problem has grown into a monster in recent years, as computerized tax information has made it only too easy to alter the numbers and overstate an applicant's income.

If the applicant knows the IRS tax forms he actually sends to the

The Camelot is long on porches

By James McAlexander
Copley News Service

Whether you call this cool exterior passage a covered porch or a veranda, the Camelot has a long one.

It begins in front of the utility room, sweeps past the dining room, living room, entryway and den before wrapping around the master bathroom and terminating at the deck next to the owners' suite.

Inspired by the sweltering summer days of the Deep South, this feature allows plenty of space for catching the breezes while avoiding the direct rays of the sun. There's room here for wicker furniture, lounge chairs and even a porch swing.

The interior is equally spacious. None of the rooms are cramped and, some, such as the master suite, family room and living room, are quite large.

Luxury amenities in the master suite include a skylight, an elevated custom spa, twin basins, a walk-in closet and an additional vanity outside of the bathroom.

Each of the three additional bedrooms have walk-in closets. The guest bedroom has a private bath. Each of the other two bedrooms has its own basin, and shares access to a separately enclosed tub and toilet.

A vaulted den, or office, is the only other room to the left of the entryway. Family living areas are at the center of the home, children's bedrooms and guest suite are to the right.

Plants flourish in the garden window in front of the kitchen sink. A lengthy raised eating bar with a vegetable sink provides partial separation between the kitchen and family room. Ovens, cook top and dishwasher are all built in. If desired, a desk could be tucked into the alcove between the ovens and the refrigerator.

A small powder room is nearby, close to the nook as well as the entryway.

Fireplaces — two of them — warm the family room and the bay-windowed living room. The one in the living room has wood boxes on both sides of it, with shelves overhead.

Amenities in the large utility room include a deep sink, fold-down ironing board, closet, freezer and step-in storage space.

WINSOR'S CASTLE

By Catherine Nastase
Special Writer

Carol and Steve Winsor live in a lovely Italianate home built in 1872 on E. Liberty Street in Milford. Since they bought the house in late 1991, most of their restoration efforts have been focused on the exterior of the house.

The decision to buy the house was an emotional one. "It was a spur of the moment decision. It was not a financial move," said Carol Winsor.

The Winsors had resided just opposite their current home on E. Liberty Street for several years when they decided to move their young family to Lake Sherwood.

A year and a half later when they heard that the house at the southeast corner of E. Liberty and Hickory Streets in Milford might be sold they called the owners — their former neighbors — and asked to see the house.

After viewing the Victorian-era home,

Winsor's castles with the exterior renovations.

they made an offer. And the deal was done.

"We like the neighborhood and living in the village where the kids can ride their bikes and where we are within walking distance of the bakery, post office and schools," said Carol Winsor.

The Winsors are dedicated to a historical restoration of their home with the considerations of maintenance and price being important. They have had several architectural drawings made for a remodeled kitchen and for the exterior of the house.

The Victorian storm doors recently added to the exterior of the home add grace and charm. The doors are framed with hand-milled wooden scrollwork patterned on a design from the 1850s.

These doors were recently created and installed by Paul Elsie of Specialty Woodworks in Howell. Elsie also made the exterior wooden gates from the house.

There is much appealing detail to marvel at upon entering the Winsor's home. The original double doors on the front of the house are wooden panel and glass.

Preparing lawns for a hard winter

By C.Z. Guest
Copley News Service

If meteorologists' predictions come true this year, much of the country will suffer bitter-cold temperatures and tremendous amounts of snow. This weather could prove stressful, even deadly, to lawns everywhere.

However, your lawn doesn't have to take a beating this winter since proper preparation this fall will spare it from the ravages of ice and snow and help it return strong, healthy and with deep-green color in the spring.

I offer the following tips to make time spent on the lawn this fall effective, efficient and easy.

OVERSEEDING

If the summer months have thinned your lawn, fall is the time to thicken it by seeding over the existing lawn, a process called overseeding. Before applying seed, use a sturdy rake to remove leaves and to loosen thatch and soil.

Spread the seed by hand for small areas. For large areas, use a cyclone or drop spreader at the rate of 2 to 3 pounds of seed for every 1,000 feet.

Rake lightly until soil barely covers the seed. Water as frequently as needed to keep the soil surface moist until the new grass grows in. Then mow as usual to keep the grass at a height of 2 to 3 inches.

SPOT PATCHING

If there are bare, dead or damaged sections in your lawn, spot patching will return the green to these areas.

Using a sturdy rake, form grooves in the soil surface in affected areas. Add a small amount of fertilizer and rake the area smooth. Then apply seed and rake. Tap lightly with a spade to firm up the soil. Keep the seeded patch moist until the seedlings germinate.

Mow the existing grass around the patch as often as needed to keep it from shading the new seedlings. As the new grass develops, cut it at the same height intended for the entire lawn.

DORMANT SEEDING

Dormant seeding is an old trick of the trade for landscape professionals, but it is a practice that few homeowners know about. Basically, dormant seeding is seeding a lawn in fall and winter when the earth is cold or frozen, preferably just before the first snow. It works best in parts of

Prepare your lawn for winter

■ Thicken a thin lawn by overseeding in the fall.

- Before seeding, use a rake to remove leaves and loosen soil.
- For small areas, spread seed by hand; for large areas, spread by cyclone or drop spreader, using 2 to 3 pounds of seed for every 1,000 feet.

the country that have traditionally cold winters with lots of snow, such as in the north.

The reason why dormant seeding works so well is that the normal freeze-thaw process of winter settles the dormant grass seeds deep into cracks and crevices in the earth. It works ideally if snowfall then blankets the seeds to protect them from the drying wind.

As winter ends, the dormant seeds awake in good contact with the soil and are ready to germinate with the first rain of spring.

WEEDING, FERTILIZING AND MOWING

Weeds are a nuisance to every yard owner across the country. Keep in mind, weeds grow faster than grass, they're unsightly and some spread faster than a virus.

Fortunately, fall is the best time of the year to rid your yard of weeds and keep them from returning in spring.

The best way to kill a weed is still to pull it out by hand. Grasp the crown of the weed just above the soil surface and gently pull it straight up. Try to pull all visible weed roots out of the soil as well.

If you have too many weeds to pull them all by hand, select a few to take into a garden center or hardware store and ask a gardening professional to recommend a commercial herbicide that will kill the weeds, but won't harm the grass or surrounding plants and trees. Use the herbicide with caution and according to label directions.

The best defense to keep weeds from returning in the spring is to grow a thick, healthy lawn. Densely planted grass will naturally squeeze weeds out and prevent them from returning. And healthy grass is more immune to weed and disease attacks.

When you get the weeds in your yard under control, it's time to fertilize. Lawns in most parts of the country require two fertilizations per year, one in spring and the other in fall. This fall fertilization nourishes grass plants through the winter, helps them to grow deep roots and gives them a boost for lush spring growth.

Organic or all-natural fertilizers are recommended as they provide long-lasting, time-released nitrogen and other nutrients to the grass. Use a drop spreader to distribute fertilizer evenly and follow directions on the fertilizer package to apply the proper amount.

Applying too much fertilizer, regardless of its chemical or organic origins, can cause runoff into water systems and may harm aquatic or plant life elsewhere.

Finally, how you groom your lawn this winter can make the difference between your lawn returning dense and green or thin and brown in the spring. As always, mow the lawn with sharp mower blades to cleanly cut the grass, not tear it as dull blades do.

In cooler climates, the lawn should get a final fall cut before putting the mower in storage. The last mowing should trim the grass to a height of about 2 inches. Letting the grass grow taller can make it more susceptible to winter diseases.

In warmer climates where the grass continues to grow through winter, the lawn should be trimmed as necessary to keep it at a height of about 2 inches, which should enable healthy grass to survive an unexpected frost.

Working with ceramic tile

By Gene Gary
Copley News Service

G. I plan to install ceramic tile in our bathroom. I think I can handle the job fairly well with one exception. There are several places on the wall where I have to make small holes in the tile in order to mount new fixtures. Some years ago, I watched a professional do this with a screwdriver, but I don't remember exactly how he did it. Can you help me?

A. Today there is a much more efficient method of drilling smooth holes into ceramic tile. Black & Decker markets a Glass & Tile Drilling Set that includes four drill bits that will fit any 1/4-inch or larger portable drill.

A variable speed drill, with its lower speed settings, will give best results. Application of a lubricant, such as mineral spirits, to the bit is recommended to keep it cool.

Since you inquired about the screwdriver method, following is a description of that procedure: To make a hole in ceramic tile, first place a nail set at the spot where you want the hole to be. Then tap the nail set lightly with a hammer. This will gradually chip away the glaze at that spot until there is a small indentation.

Place the blade of an old screwdriver in the indentation, holding it straight up and down. With a twisting motion, keep working the blade into the opening. Do this carefully and without haste. In a few minutes the blade will come out the other side of the tile.

121 year home gets the royal treatment in Milford

Steve Winsor demonstrated, with no little surprise, that the attached doorbell actually works. "That was the first time it rang," he exclaimed. It is a mechanical brass bell that rings after being wound.

The ceilings in the house are 9 feet, 10 inches high and create a grand feeling of spaciousness.

A graceful wooden stairway with unique hand-turned spindles invites the entrant upstairs.

To the left of the entry way is the family room. In the center of the ceiling is a plaster medallion painted in gilt, rose and cream. A painted floor canvas — literally a piece of canvas painted to resemble a rug — covers the floor.

Carol's sister, Debbie Engel, created it especially for their family room.

According to Carol, painted floor canvas was used in place of woven rugs in many Victorian homes.

"The more cracked and worn the floor canvas, the better," she said.

Her floor covering is in perfect condition, with a forest green border and cream colored interior. It's painted in the center with a bouquet of flowers. Carol's sister Debbie also plans to paint a trompe l'oeil carpet runner down the center of the wooden stairway.

The family room has finished blonde pine flooring, which helps make the room warm and inviting. This room is unique for its interior shutters on the floor-to-ceiling windows. Interior shutters were original to the house when it was first built, but were taken down when the previous owners of the house installed new ones.

A large purple overstuffed chaise longue and footrest, a couch and a television set look welcoming in the large space.

In the living room a lovely brass gas lamp hangs from the center of another plaster medallion. Photos of the Winsor's children — Scott, age 5-1/2, and Angela, age 3-1/2, cover a grand piano. They are expecting another child in two months and part of their remodeling efforts are oriented to accommodating their growing family — especially as far as remodeling the kitchen goes.

"Right now I have to run from the kitchen, through the dining room to get to where the children eat," Carol said. "Once we move the wall into the dining room and open up the kitchen space, I will be able to see the kids while I'm cooking."

The kitchen has an original tin ceiling with a Greek key design border, which the Winsors hope to retain and enhance during future remodeling.

The Winsor's home is very warm downstairs in the winter. But they hope to update their present heating and ventilation system, which now only provides heat to two upstairs rooms: the master bedroom and Angela's room. Scott's room is heated by warm air that passes from the downstairs play room through an ornate iron grill which opens onto the floor of his room.

The yard at the Winsor's has been extensively updated. They have poured a new concrete sidewalk from the garage to the house, built a kids' play area complete with Sky Fort and sandbox. They have cut in undulating garden beds and planted antique perennials. They've added a large wooden deck on the back of the house that rings an old tree. The deck is surrounded by a spindle railing.

The Winsor's house is part of the what was long ago referred to as Business Man's Row, because the prominent men of Milford began erecting their homes there in the 1890s. According to an article in the Milford Times dated May 18, 1872, "Mr. C.L. Northrup has commenced active building operations ... on what is today the Winsor's home. Carnot Northrup was the first council president of the Village of Milford. He also owned a hardware store at 404 N. Main Street in Milford, which is now a shopping mall.

In the last 121 years the house has undergone numerous changes. The front porch was added after 1898 by a Mr. Judson Fielding, the second owner of the house. In the 1930s, the house was altered to accommodate additional tenants.

According to Milford Historian Barbara Young, because of the restoration in the last 20 years, the homes of Liberty Street have regained their earlier glory and Liberty Street is once again an enviable address.

IRS authorization form causes stir among loan applicants

IRS may be reviewed by the lender, he is much less apt to take liberties with the figures. It tends to keep him honest. And that saves big bucks for lenders that might otherwise have to deal with bad loans.

The requirement usually applies only to self-employed loan applicants. The income of salaried individuals can be easily verified.

"I advise my loan applicants, in writing, that the lender will probably require them to sign the IRS authorization form," said Jim Thompson, owner of the mortgage brokerage firm of Allen/Thompson Financial Services.

"I don't want to deal with borrowers who are intent on giving me fraudulent tax forms and other misleading information," he said.

"In many cases, when a lender discovers fraud in a loan application package, they ask the mortgage broker to buy back the loan even if the broker had no knowledge of the fraud. As a small businessman, I can't afford to deal with people who want to commit fraud."

Fraud committed by borrowers costs the mortgage industry millions of dollars each year, Thompson said. Lenders are actively taking steps to ensure that the loans they make are to people who are really qualified for their loan. In the long run, this will save big money for both lenders and consumers.

Laura Berglund, vice president of mortgage banking at a major bank, said her bank's policy is to obtain the IRS authorization form from all self-employed mortgage loan applicants. While there was initially a lot of reluctance on the part of applicants to sign the form, there has been little resistance to the requirement in recent weeks, she reported.

The requirement applies to new refinancing mortgages as well as home purchase loans, she said.

Tom Cross, sales manager for the mortgage loan department of First Nationwide Bank, said his bank also requires the form from all self-employed mortgage applicants.

"Requiring the IRS authorization forms is part of quality control," said Brian Chappelle, vice president of the Mortgage Bankers Association. "Lenders may never use that information, but it gives them the capability to spot check a borrowers qualifications when needed."

He said that the practice hasn't yet been tested in court, but he sees nothing wrong with it.

Q. Is this a depressed year for home builders?

A. The year is shaping up to be active for home builders. At this writing, housing starts are rebounding in most areas of the country.

In some regions, home building is now at the highest level of activity of any period in recent years.

"This is good news for housing and our economy in general," said Roger Glunt, president of the National Association of Home Builders.

"Recent activity is encouraging after the disappointing showing in midsummer when starts fell slightly. The lowest mortgage loan rates in more than 25 years are fueling the housing recovery inducing many young Americans to switch from rental housing to home-ownership."

Q. Are commercial real estate rental rates increasing or decreasing this year?

A. Retail commercial rents are increasing in all areas of the country following several years of decline, according to the Greenberg Group research and consulting company.

decreasing this year?

A. Retail commercial rents are increasing in all areas of the country following several years of decline, according to the Greenberg Group research and consulting company.

Rents in downtown business districts declined from an average $80 per square foot in 1989 to $40 per square foot this year but are now swinging back up. The Greenberg Group predicts rates will continue to increase through the remainder of 1993 and into 1994.

U.S. Savings Bonds will help them do one thing with their retirement: Enjoy it.

U.S. Savings Bonds are helping millions of Americans save for their retirement — easily and safely.

When you buy U.S. Savings Bonds, you'll know your money will be there when you retire. Your investment is backed by the full faith and credit of the United States.

U.S. Savings Bonds are an easy, affordable way to save. Buy them for just a few dollars each payday through your employer's U.S. Savings Bonds Payroll Savings Plan or for as little as $25 each at your bank. What could be easier?

There are other advantages, too. The interest earned is exempt from state and local income taxes, and it can be federally tax-deferred. Bonds earn a guaranteed return, and they're eligible to earn competitive, market-based interest, compounded semiannually, when held five years or more. And you can redeem them anytime after six months from the issue date.

Whatever your plans for retirement, U.S. Savings Bonds can help you enjoy them. For more information, ask your employer or bank, or write: U.S. Savings Bonds Division, Department of the Treasury, Box 933 N, Washington, DC 20226.

Resale shop holds bargains

By ANNE SEEBALDT GOGOLIN
Special Writer

Laura Piscopink said that an early interest in resale shops influenced her snap decision to purchase "Too Good To Be Thru Resale Shoppe" in Highland and relocate it within the township.

"It was something going through my mind for years," she said. "I've always wanted a shop like this."

Piscopink, a long-time Highland resident, initially bought the store's contents by herself. Now, however, she has a partner, Thad Sundrala, a long-time Milford resident who lives primarily in Washington, D.C. (he works for the Pentagon), and part-time in Milford.

The new partners relocated the store from its former site at the intersection of Duck Lake and Wardlow roads to 1449 S. Milford Road in Highland Township.

Piscopink, who has managed an office and worked as a medical receptionist, said the decision to try running her own business was simple. She previously had been interested in purchasing that business.

"I saw one day that this store was up for sale and a few days later, it was mine," she said, adding she was surprised when the owner accepted her offer. "I've never regretted my decision. Some things, if you think and think about it, you never do it."

"If we follow our instincts, usually they're right. I believe I couldn't have gone wrong opening a store in this community. It's a wonderful place to have a business and a family."

Piscopink sells just about any type of clothing, jewelry and other accessories, household goods, sporting equipment, and baby items.

"If it's just like new, we'll sell it at Too Good To Be Thru," she said.

The store takes clothing in excellent condition for children, men and women of all sizes.

"We cater to the hard-to-fit," Piscopink commented.

Bargains found while browsing through her store included a lighted musical tree for $4, a boy's authentic Laura Piscopink takes pride in like-new merchandise at Too Good to Be Thru, a Milford resale shop.

Air Force flight jacket, a $125 complete cross-country ski set, a $16 Graco baby walker, and a size 10 Saks Fifth Avenue burgundy pin-stripe suit for $7 — all in excellent condition. Some items, which still had the original price tags on them, had obviously never been worn.

One of the things Piscopink has tried to do is work with area residents who make hand-crafted items such as jewelry. She carries a large number of these items and can take orders for hand-made jewelry crafted to complement a special outfit.

"It's a wonderful time to have a resale shop," she said happily. "You can sell almost anything you want."

In order to ensure she gets in popular or specific items for her customers, such as petite clothing and camouflage outfits, Piscopink prominently displays a "wish list" on a store wall.

Piscopink said she enjoys her work, adding that her daughter Cris-tin, age 7, is a big help to her. And son, Robert, who is nearing the 2-year-old mark, acts as the store's greeter. He says hello and goodbye to all the customers.

"A satisfying aspect of this job is that I see someone's face light up when they find that special item and they don't have to pay a lot for it," said Piscopink. "That's why a lot of people come here — to find unique items."
