Revived Mainstreet '93 to be focus of hearing

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

Like a phoenix from the ashes, the city's Mainstreet '93 plan will rise again at a special joint hearing this Wednesday.

The Northville City Council has invited members of the city's planning commission, downtown development authority, historic commission and chamber of commerce board of directors to the Wednesday meeting, to be held at 8 p.m. at city hall. The meeting is open to the public.

The $4.2 million parking deck plan, which went through several incarnations before being narrowly approved by city voters in a special July 27 election, was shot down when the state ended property taxes as a source of school funding that same month.

Most of Mainstreet's funding was to come from tax capturing, the diversion of property tax increases from the city's Downtown Development District to pay off the bonds that fund the project.

Since about half the property taxes collected by the city have gone to Northville Public Schools, the state's action effectively cut that revenue stream in half.

City officials had hoped the state Legislature would make other provisions for tax-capturing projects like Mainstreet '93, but with no such provisions in place by now the city has decided to rework its financing plan without the lost funds.

While reluctant to reveal details of the resurrected proposal, City Manager Gary Word said Friday that it is based on a longer financing period and that a provision in the prior plan to return part of the captured taxes to Northville Public Schools is no longer needed, since the schools will no longer be funded through property taxes.

A special assessment on downtown property owners also remains unchanged.

"It's the same scenario," Word said. "The only difference, of course, is that we've had to subtract out the school property taxes."

Under the scenario, the city will ante up $247,500 from city coffers, downtown businesses including Singh Development will pay a total of $247,500 in special assessments, and Singh will pay an additional $493,400 in parking assessments to cover its MainCentre and proposed CadyCentre buildings.

Changes have also been made to one of the two parking decks that the plan will fund.

Word said. The Michigan Association of Gift Sales had objected loudly to the planned placement of a tabletop deck on the parking lot south of their building, and MAGS officials had threatened to vacate their building if the plan proceeded.

Singh Development Co., owners of the MainCentre building, had complained that the new plan required changes to their commercial structure. The upper level of the tabletop deck was to be reserved primarily for MainCentre residents, to fulfill a prior contractual agreement between the city and Singh, and the residents were supposed to have access to MainCentre via a covered walkway connected to the building.

Under the prior Mainstreet '92 plan, the building would have been accessed by a covered pedestrian bridge spanning Center Street from a greatly-expanded Cady Street deck.

Word said he hoped recent design changes to that deck "will somewhat address MAGS' concerns and Singh's, and make it more aesthetically pleasing for the entire city." But he added that the city is still negotiating with the various parties involved.

He said the new design still involves a two-level rectangular deck south of the MainCentre complex, though he said the number of parking spaces provided has decreased slightly since the last plan. Plans for a rebuilt and redesigned Cady Street parking deck and a 145-space lighted, paved parking lot on the south side of Cady remain relatively unchanged.

Programs seek to curb drug use with education

BATTLING ABUSE
The quest for drug-free schools

Editor's Note: This is the first in a series of articles examining the use of alcohol and drug use among teenagers in the Northville community. The intent of the series is to make the community aware of drug abuse problems and contribute to the goal of four community assistance programs in reducing the incidents of drug use, as reflected in the Alcohol and Other Drugs Survey. In this article, two of the four assistance programs are profiled.

Staff Writer

Four community assistance programs have joined forces to achieve one common goal: reduce the numbers in next spring's Alcohol and Other Drugs School Survey.

"I'd love to see those numbers come down," Charles Stille, coordinator of Student Assistance, said. "We really want to hit this thing."

A statewide initiative of the Michigan Department of Education, the alcohol and drug survey was last conducted in 1992. It was administered and analyzed by Dr. Stanley Robin and his staff at Western Michigan University.

Students in grades eight, 10 and 12 participated in the anonymous survey.

The results of the survey showed that 73 percent of the participating

Even Northville Township Manager Bill Richards was skeptical at first about moving township offices into a former state mental hospital.

But his skepticism changed after he toured the building which recently housed the Wayne County Living Services at Five Mile and Sheldon Road.

Now he's "generally favorable" about the move that could take place if the state transfers the deed for the four-story, 102,000 square-foot facility to Northville Township.

"I was skeptical at first because it was a former hospital and wondered how it would work for office spaces," he said. "But then I saw that the first floor had been built and designed to function as an administrative floor."

"I was quite surprised to see how well the building had been adapted by Wayne County Living Services for administrative uses," he said.

Richards said the building was in better shape the first time he toured it than it was last week when he and five of the trustees and several department heads walked its halls again.

But nonetheless he remains "guardedly optimistic" about the building's potential.

Volunteers in the Northville Commons subdivision assembled the neighborhood's new playground set, shaving some $3,500 off the project's cost.

Playset ready for ultimate test: the kids

By volunteering their time, members of the Northville Commons Association were able to save in excess of $3,500 in installation expenses.

Reichard and Jim Stevenson

Phases two and three of the Common's Playground Equipment Project will involve the renovation of existing play sites and equipment. These phases as well as related funding requirements will be addressed in the spring.

Several thousand dollars were donated by homeowners and Meijers donated $100 to phase one of the neighborhood project. Even the kids in the neighborhood got involved. Emily Stevenson, 10, organized a dog show and raised $7.

Betty Kniceley used her position with a landscape architect to connect the association with a supplier offering a great deal. Anne K. Hillner, a professional landscape architect, also donated her expertise in preparing plans for the playground area

Project to raise funds for park building

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

The Friends of Northville Parks and Recreation are holding an unusual fund-raiser next week — for a project that's already complete.

Friends Chairman Marv Gans explained that the non-profit group had to dip into its reserve fund to pay for a new roof on a storage facility at the Beck Road Community Park recently, in order to get the roof built before winter sets in.

Genitti's night to help raise park funds

The old cinderblock building, which used to house water pump equipment for Plymouth, now shelters operating equipment to run the automated sprinkler system that will keep the park's seven fields watered. It will also house maintenance equipment once the park is up and running next spring.

But because the building's flat roof leaked, it had to be replaced with a peaked version. Workers were busy shingling the roof last Wednesday.

The total cost of the project is about $4,600, Gans said, and the Friends hope to raise about half that amount through a fund-raiser co-sponsored with John and Toni Genitti.

The Genittis have agreed to donate half the price of their $35 tickets to the Nov. 18 performance of their Murder Mystery Dinner to the effort. The evening's entertainment begins at 7:30 p.m. with dinner, and the Murder Mystery performance follows the meal in the Genittis' 132-seat Samuel H. Little Theater.

Other funds for the project came from last year's Taste of Northville fund-raiser, Gans said.

With nearly half the tickets already sold last week, interested patrons of the arts and the parks are encouraged to call either Marv Gans at 462-4413 or Genitti's Hole-in-the-Wall Restaurant at 349-0522.

Because the Friends of Northville Parks and Recreation recently earned a classification as a non-profit organization, all donations including the price of the Genitti's ticket are tax-deductible, Gans said.

Last month, the parks supporters and Friends of Northville Public Library argued that they are being called upon to pay an increasing share of their respective beneficiaries' costs, as city and township contributions to the parks department and library fail to keep pace with the programs' costs.

CHARTER TOWNSHIP OF NORTHVILLE BOARD OF TRUSTEES — SPECIAL MEETING SYNOPSIS

Date: Monday, November 1, 1993

Time: 7:30 p.m. or as Soon Thereafter as Possible

Place: 41600 Six Mile Road

1. Call to Order: Supervisor Baja called the special meeting to order at 7:28 p.m.
2. Roll Call: Present: Karen Baja, Supervisor, Sue A. Hillebrand, Clerk, Rick Engelland, Treasurer, Mark Abbo, Trustee, Gini Britton, Trustee, Russell Fogg, Trustee, Barbara Strong O'Brien, Trustee. Also Present: Approximately 40 visitors.

3. Adoption of the 1994 Budget. Moved and supported to adopt the 1994 budget as indicated in the amendment. To increase contribution to Recreation from the current assigned amount that is in the budget of $6,900.00 to a total of $118,439.00. This would satisfy the Recreation's concern about the promise we made to them earlier this year. This is the 6% requested and reinstate the budget to the amount requested. To increase Township contribution to Senior by $3,421.00 to a total of $19,404.00. That would take them to the number as requested. To take Youth Assistance up by $6,447.00 to a total of $24,090.00, which was the amount requested. To take Library contribution up by $12,714.00 to a total of $201,750.00, which would be the original request less our share of the $10,000.00 for the millage election which has been determined that it is not going to be held other than with the General Election. Basically, because if they get a free election then there is no use in them having $10,000.00 in the budget for an election. To increase the Building Department new vehicle by $5,000.00 which is the estimated cost to lease a new vehicle for the Building Department. To also increase Planning Commission salaries by $600.00 and ZBA by $400.00, which would keep us at the current 1993 levels in those two departments. To increase Beautification expenditures by $900.00 to take it to $1,400.00. That falls under the Hall and Grounds. To transfer $100,000.00 from the General Fund to the Capital Outlay budget to help fund some items we may have coming up in that budget. Roll Call Vote.

4. Off Drilling — Ordinance. The board favored the idea of sending letters, reviewing the ordinance and regulating some businesses.

5. Adjournment. Moved and supported to adjourn the meeting. Voice Vote Motion carried. Meeting adjourned at 7:55 p.m. THIS IS A SYNOPSIS. A TRUE AND COMPLETE COPY may be obtained at the Northville Township Clerk's Office, 41600 Six Mile Road, Northville, Michigan 48167.

News Briefs

PAPER DELIVERY: Veterans Day, Thursday, Nov. 11, is a federal holiday, and no mail delivery will take place that day. As a result, Northville Record subscribers who receive their newspapers through the mail should expect to get their copies one day late, on Friday, Nov. 12.

CORRECTIONS: Due to an adding error, election results in the Thursday Northville Record contained an inaccuracy. Council candidate Kevin Hartshorne received 336 votes in the three-way race, not 436.

Also, the Plymouth Theater Guild's general membership meeting will be on Tuesday, Nov. 9 at 7:30 p.m., not on Nov. 5 as incorrectly reported in the Record.

The meeting is at the Water Tower Theatre on the campus of the Northville Regional Hospital, 41001 W. Seven Mile Road, Northville, between Haggerty and Northville roads. For information, call 349-7110.

ACORD TO MEET: A Community Organization Recognizing Diversity (ACORD) will meet at 7 p.m. Tuesday at Northville High School. A speaker from the Wayne State University center for peace and conflict studies will address conflict resolution. The meeting is open to the public.

Economist McCracken will address Townhall

Economic guru Paul W. McCracken will speak at the Northville Town Hall Series at 11 a.m. today at the Holiday Inn West in Livonia.

McCracken has earned distinction as the Edmund Ezra Day Distinguished University Professor Emeritus of business administration, economic and public policy at the University of Michigan. He is also a former chairperson of the President's Council of Economic Advisors and has been a member of the faculty of the School of Business Administration at U of M since 1948.

McCracken was on leave from the university from 1956-1959 when he served as a member of the President's Council of Economic Advisors. He returned to the council at the beginning of 1969 to serve for three years as its chairman. He was also a member of former President Ronald Reagan's economic policy advisory board.

A trustee of the National Bureau of Economic Research, the American Enterprise Institute for Public Policy Research, the International Management and Development Institute and the German Marshall Fund, McCracken is also a member of the president's council for Berea College.

McCracken has been a director of Dow Chemical Co., Johnson Controls, K mart, Lincoln National Corporation, Sara Lee and Texas Instruments.

Author of periodic opinion articles for the Wall Street Journal and of numerous papers and monographs on economic and financial policy, McCracken has lectured and travelled throughout the world and participated on national and international economic commissions, task forces and conferences.

Police News

Arrested driver had prior history

When city police arrested a 35-year-old Northville woman for driving under the influence Nov. 2, they discovered several similar arrests on her record.

The woman had already been charged with driving under the influence in Plymouth in 1992 and driving while impaired in Bloomfield Hills in 1990, and she had racked up two drunk driving charges within 18 months of each other in Texas in 1984-85. Her license had been suspended after the Plymouth arrest.

Police first noticed the woman when she pulled out of the Wagon Wheel Lounge at 212 S. Main St. onto northbound South Main just before midnight, and was nearly struck by southbound traffic. They followed her onto northbound Griswold and noted she was driving 5-8 mph below the speed limit the entire way.

After police saw her cross the center line and the white line, they pulled her over and had her take several field sobriety tests, which she failed. A preliminary breath test measured her blood alcohol level at .15 percent, but the woman refused to take a Breathalyzer test on her lawyer's advice.

She was released at 8:35 a.m. the next day after posting a $200 cash bond.

HITCHHIKER GETS LIFT FROM

POLICE: City police arrested a 37-year-old Ann Arbor man after they spotted him trying to hitchhike at the corner of Main and Center streets Nov. 5, when they discovered a warrant for his arrest.

Police saw the man, who appeared intoxicated, standing at the southeast corner of the intersection at 3:25 a.m. He was wanted by the Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department for driving under the influence.

He was released after posting a $23 bond.

WINDOWS BROKEN AT SOUTH

MAIN BUSINESS: City police have responded to two reports of broken windows at Mach II Enterprises, a business at 200 S. Main St. A police officer determined that a Nov. 1 incident in which a small rock broke a window sometime between 9:15-9:30 p.m. was probably thrown accidentally by a passing vehicle. But a Nov. 4 incident in which a window was shattered sometime between 11-11:50 p.m. was listed as malicious destruction of property.

CORNER FLORIST'S WINDOW

BROKEN: A window at Sparr's Flowers, 156 N. Center St., was broken sometime between 6 p.m. Nov. 1 and 1:15 p.m. Nov. 2. The window faced Dunlap Street. Damage was estimated at $200.

Citizens with information about the above incidents are urged to call Northville City Police at 349-1234 or Northville Township Police at 349-9400.

Old building eyed as township office site

"The possibilities for this building are limitless," he said after touring the place again last week.

Since township officials have been toying with the idea of acquiring the building to relocate township hall and township services, several of them have been doing some informal brainstorming about other uses for the spacious building.

Richards said if the building was deeded to the township, the transfer would include a contingency that the building be limited to governmental uses. That doesn't scare Richards who believes there are endless ways to fill the vacant offices and hospital rooms.

The manager said he can see the building serving as a centralized location for a five-community consolidation of joint services. If Northville Township owned the building, he said, it could lease storage space.

"We could lease other communities storage rental space," he said.

"For record storage, the shape of the room or the fact that the room was a hospital room doesn't matter much."

Richards said he might also consider trying to attract other governmental agencies into the building.

"Like the Secretary of State, or the DNR. They rent offices here locally and maybe we could lease it to them and give them a better deal."

The manager might even consider a child care service for township and other governmental employees' use as one way to defray costs of operating and maintaining the facility.

"There are a number of possibilities and we are not really committed to any one of them," he said. "But we need to be very creative to find other uses for the building."

At first glance, the manager said he was concerned about the cost of operating and maintaining the facility which is quite a bit larger and older than the current township hall. And while Township Supervisor Karen Baja and State Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, are tugging at lawmakers' shirtings in Lansing to approve the transaction, Richards is working at getting estimates to see what it would cost to operate and maintain the facility.

"We have asked for the records of the operational costs of the building," he said. "We want to know about the heat, lighting and boilers. And we want information on the maintenance of the building, including the condition of the roof and the plumbing."

Richards said state officials familiar with the building have assured him that the site is not contaminated even though it rests near land that is tainted across the street.

"We've asked whether there are any known environmental concerns and we've been assured that there are not," he said.

Even though the building has not been totally abandoned, Wayne County Living Services has moved most of its operation out of the building and into its new home in the city of Wayne.

The patients who once inhabited the hospital were all transferred to the state hospital on Seven Mile a year and a half ago. Left behind are considerable office debris that lined the hallway in the basement and vacant offices in the upper floors.

Birds have managed to inhabit the large day rooms at the north and south ends of the upper floors. Their droppings layered the window sills and a carcass was left dead on the floor. Stained and soiled pillows still rest on the cold cots in the cold, eggshell colored rooms. Unisex shower rooms with rusted faucets have been left untouched and unattended.

But in spite of the present condition, some township officials were optimistic about the potential inside and outside the walls.

Parks and Recreation Director Traci Johnson stood in a far northeast corner of the facility and looked out at the barren land that spreads out from underneath the building. The 13 acres of land that surrounds the building could also be tied into the deed if the state approves the deed transfer. That was good news to Johnson who had already chalked off several new soccer fields in the back of her mind.

Our Opinion

Confronting problem is mature approach

Positive efforts aimed at promoting tolerance continue to take place at Northville High School.

Ever since an African American student was arrested for harming a white female Sept. 30, school officials and students have taken commendable, proactive measures to help ease tensions and stave off further trouble.

As part of the ongoing effort to foster tolerance, Jim Tuman, national speaker and director of the Royal Oak-based Positive School Support Program, will address the student body at Northville High School from 9:15 to 10:30 a.m. Wednesday in the high school gymnasium.

Tuman's speech will focus on emphasizing the positive aspects of school and on cutting negative sentiment in the hallways. Student groups from Westland and Livonia are also expected to attend the presentation.

That same evening, Tuman will talk on "Taking the Fear Out of Parenting" from 7 to 9 p.m. in the high school forum. All parents are invited to attend.

Tuman's appearance is only one in a series of events meant to reduce friction among students whose groups look askance at "rivals." Other efforts include the formation of a student version of ACORD (A Community Organization Recognizing Diversity), a student exchange with a predominantly black Detroit school, a spring awareness retreat and a day of visits from black Jews.

These efforts are inherently problematic in that the students who are the most likely to participate in them are youths who are the least given to bigoted thinking. Those who hate others for reasons of ethnicity, race or personal identity — unless required to take part — are likely to stay away.

Education

Still, something must be done and the steps students and administrators are taking could go a long way toward contributing to a general climate of open mindedness.

Jocks, freaks, skinheads, black, white and yellow all are designations which tend to create polarities and give rise to prejudicial thinking. If progress is to be made toward the goal of breaking down barriers to understanding, it must come through the initiatives of those most directly affected.

Students and school officials should be applauded for taking the enlightened view that ignoring a problem will not make it go away. Often, people choose to deal with unpleasant and difficult situations by turning away from them, as if not seeing is the equivalent of non-existence.

But the ostrich approach rarely works, and more often than not backfires when a simmering problem is allowed to reach the stage of boiling over.

We hope the fine efforts at Northville High School receive wide support from students and parents alike. The way to deal with racial, ethnic and class intolerance is to confront it and recognize it for what it is: a scourge that dehumanizes both the sender and the receiver.

Cassis doth arouse suspicion

Rick Byrne

"You noble Cassius has a lean and hungry look about him."
from Shakespeare's
Julius Caesar
Act I, Scene III

The line above appears early in Shakespeare's play Julius Caesar. It is spoken by Caesar himself in a conversation with Mark Antony in which he describes what makes him secure in his position.

Caesar says he wants men around him who are fat and satisfied. The logic is that someone who's complacent lacks ambition, and therefore isn't a threat.

But Cassius has a "lean and hungry look about him," which makes Caesar both uncomfortable and suspicious.

Now let's fast-forward a couple thousand years to Novi, circa November 1993.

I can't help but express my surprise that Nancy Cassis wasn't elected mayor of Novi. I should say from the outset that I don't want to take away anything from Kathy McLallen. She certainly deserves to be mayor of Novi, and I'm certain she'll use her intelligence, diplomacy and people skills to pick up right where Matt Quinn left off. McLallen will do us proud, of that I'm certain.

But let's be honest. From everything I heard, Cassis was the pre-race favorite.

She came into the election with a lot to recommend her. She boasted plenty of experience in city government, having first been elected to the city council in 1985.

She earned re-election over and over again, and in the last round of elections, she was the top vote-getter.

During her tenure, Cassis won herself many friends. She championed the cause of the anti-trail faction; those favoring preservation of Eleven Mile road as an unpaved thoroughfare supported her; she also favored creation of a serious downtown in Novi, which certainly won her some votes.

Cassis had many friends in the business community. Indeed, her candidacy was the best-funded of the bunch, thanks to the generosity of her supporters.

Interestingly enough, polls showed that one of the primary issues of this election had nothing to do with taxes, roads or sewers. It was the conduct of the council itself, and the way council members treated speakers. For her part, Cassis was always gracious and courteous to those who spoke before the council.

How, then, did someone who had so much going for her not get elected? I'm sure a lot of people have their own theories, which will doubtless be spoken over the coming weeks. I have my own.

If there's one thing that's certain about Nancy Cassis, it's that she wanted nothing more than what was best for the people of Novi. She stated that often, and somehow, you knew she meant it.

Everyone that knows Cassis knew she wanted to be mayor very badly, to make Novi a better place for people to live.

You noble Cassis was no Cassius, a foul conspirator bent on murder. But our noble Cassis did have a lean and hungry look about her when it came to running for mayor. And for that reason, she may have aroused the suspicion of Caesar.

If I'm right, I feel badly for Cassis because it doesn't seem fair. But I know that someone so dedicated to the well-being of the citizens of Novi won't stay down long.

About those voter turnouts

Phil Jerome

A number of years ago I was covering the Novi Jaycees' annual Easter Egg Hunt at the Civic Center when I heard one of the Jaycees estimate that over 1,000 kids had participated in the annual event.

My first reaction was that it was a lot of kids.

But then a different thought struck me.

I seemed to recollect that 1,000 kids was a lot higher than the number of voters who had shown up at the polls at the previous city election.

So, I checked it out.

And, sure enough, the number of kids at the Easter Egg Hunt had far exceeded the number of voters in the previous city election.

The difference between Easter Egg hunters and city election voters was so great that I decided to go back a little farther — to the previous year's school board election.

Guess what? Easter Egg hunters far exceeded school election voters. In fact, the number of Easter Egg hunters was greater than the number of voters in the previous city and school elections combined.

Since that time, I have always made a note to check on voter turnout percentages.

Which is why I was particularly interested in seeing the voter percentages in the Northville and Novi city races last week.

It was a relatively quiet race in Northville with Mayor Chris Johnson running unopposed and three candidates for two council seats, so I really wasn't expecting much in the way of voter turnout.

I was right. A whopping 16 percent of Northville City voters turned out to reelect Johnson and elect Mark Cryderman and Charles Keys to the city council.

But Novi . . . I had high hopes for Novi with its red-hot mayor's race of four candidates and an equally active council race of seven candidates for three positions.

It's the same race I wrote about last week. The race with the mud-slinging. The race with the name-calling. The race with its own little Tail-gate Scandal.

So, guess what kind of voter turnout they had in Novi?

Twenty-two point four percent. That's right, 22.4. Those two figures for the local races — 16 and 22.4 percent — were far lower than the last presidential election when voting percentages were three and four times as high.

The thing that causes me to ponder is that the figures seem to fly in the face of conventional wisdom, at least as far as the newspaper business is concerned.

The watchword nationally is that major dailies are losing circulation, while local weeklies are growing. That's certainly the case in this area — our papers are growing while the Detroit Free News seems to be headed in the opposite direction.

But I also wonder if there's a lesson to be learned from such figures. We typically try to provide very thorough coverage of local political races. But what if that's the wrong way to go? What if people just aren't interested?

The figures seem to indicate that local political races don't draw the attention that national races do. Perhaps what we need to do is change our strategy.

Come next April, folks, watch for our extensive coverage of local Easter Egg Hunts.

Florine Mark/Weight Watchers

Rice teams up with world's great cuisines

Rice plays a major role in the healthy diets of many countries around the world. Today, with health experts advising us to eat more grain foods each day, it may be a good idea to imitate some international cuisines.

To prove the point, Weight Watchers has come up with a trio of rice dishes, as different as they are delicious. Tour the world's cuisines this month and try Betty's Fried Rice — a terrific Chinese side dish. Then move on to Garlic Parmesan Risotto, and find out that Italy has more to offer than pasta. Finally, have a Spanish fiesta and sample Julie's Spanish Paella. All recipes are from Weight Watchers "Favorite Homestyle Recipes Cookbook."

JULIE'S SPANISH PAELLA

- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 6 ounces long-grain white rice
- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- ½ cup chopped onion
- 3 garlic cloves, minced
- 4 ounces skinless boneless chicken breast, cut into strips
- 1 dozen littleneck clams, soaked and scrubbed
- ½ cup chopped tomato
- ½ teaspoon saffron
- 5 ounces shelled deveined shrimp
- 1 cup frozen peas
- 4 ounces cleaned squid, cut into ½-inch rings

In large nonstick skillet, bring 2 cups water and the salt to a boil. Stir in rice; reduce heat and simmer, covered, 5 minutes.

In medium nonstick skillet, heat oil; add onion, garlic, and chicken; cook over medium heat until chicken is cooked through, about 5 minutes. Set aside.

Stir clams, tomato, and saffron into rice; cover and cook over medium-low heat, 10 minutes. Add shrimp and peas; cover and cook 3 minutes. Stir in squid and reserved chicken mixture; cook, covered, until shrimp are opaque and firm and clams have opened, about 2 to 3 minutes. Discard any unopened clams.

Serves 4. Each serving provides: 1½ Fats; 1½ Proteins; ½ Vegetable, 2 Breads on the Weight Watchers Food Plan. Per serving: 374 calories; 27 g protein; 9 g fat; 44 g carbohydrate; 74 mg calcium; 280 mg sodium; 146 mg cholesterol; 2 g dietary fiber.

BETTY'S FRIED RICE

- 2 tablespoons peanut oil
- ½ cup chopped onion
- 1½ cups cooked brown rice
- 2 cups shredded carrots
- 1½ cups shredded Napa cabbage
- ¾ cup canned sliced water chestnuts, rinsed and drained
- 2 tablespoons low-sodium soy sauce
- 2 large eggs, lightly beaten
- ½ cup frozen peas
- ¼ cup frozen whole-kernel corn
- ¼ cup frozen bean sprouts
- 12 ounces broiled lean sirloin or rib-eye steak, diced

In large nonstick skillet, heat oil; add onion and cook over medium heat until softened, about 2 minutes. Stir in rice, carrots, cabbage, water chestnuts, and soy sauce; cover and cook over medium-high heat 5 minutes.

Meanwhile, spray medium nonstick skillet with nonstick cooking spray; add eggs and scramble over medium heat, stirring frequently, until eggs are firm, about 2 minutes. Set aside.

Stir peas, corn and bean sprouts into rice mixture. Cover and cook over medium-high heat 3 minutes. Stir in scrambled eggs and diced sirloin; cook, stirring occasionally, until meat is heated through, about 2 minutes.

Tricia Alberts serves lunch to cookbook author Patricia Wells (center) and Tom MacKinnon at the Northville restaurant that bears his name

Simply the best

Author uncovers Italy's family treasures

By RICK BYRNE
Copy Editor

Paris, Florence, New York . . . and now Northville.

Patricia Wells, world-renowned food writer and restaurant critic, came to town last week as part of a two-month tour promoting her latest cookbook, Trattoria.

She began a busy Monday with a taping of Tom MacKinnon's cooking show, then joined MacKinnon at his restaurant in Northville for lunch before stepping down the street to Bookstall on the Main to sign some volumes for visitors.

Formerly the food writer for The New York Times, Wells has also authored Simply French and Bistro Cooking.

Her latest opus takes readers on a tour of the menus of some of Italy's best trattorias, the name for that country's small, family-owned restaurants where the food is simple, yet delicious. Even before she ventured into her first trattoria, Wells knew the subject well.

"My mother is Italian," said Wells, "so I grew up with Italian food at home. But the book is based on my last two years of travel."

Travel in Europe comes easily for Wells, based now in Paris as a writer for the International Herald Tribune. Though she's reviewed restaurants all over the world, she said the "real world" nature of trattoria cooking drew her to study the phenomenon in depth. It seemed only fitting that Wells, as down-to-earth as any globetrotter you'd care to meet, would choose to honor family-owned establishments for their homey, unpretentious fare.

"I researched it backwards," she said. "I didn't go trying to find a specific dish. I went for the restaurant instead, and wrote the cookbook from what I found."

"I've gotten raves for the book," said Wells. "I worked very hard on it, and it's a real book. I think it's the best I've done so far."

"Anyone could do the recipes in here. Most of them only have five or six ingredients. The most difficult thing in there is eggplant parmesan."

Though combing the Italian countryside took her to some unique restaurants, Wells admits that she doesn't put much emphasis on the atmosphere. Whether she's reviewing a trattoria in Tuscany, or a nightspot in Los Angeles, the food is of foremost importance.

"Ninety-nine percent of it is the food," she said. "The setting is just a nice complement. I've often said that I'd rather eat a great meal in a tent than eat a crummy meal in a nice place."

Though she's had no formal training in culinary arts, Wells has the chef's respect for food. It's something she says stays with her when she cooks at home. And each cookbook she writes adds to her ability.

"After this book, my food tastes the best it ever has," she said.

For MacKinnon's show, Wells prepared what she calls "the tour dish," Penne with Vodka and Spicy Tomato-Cream Sauce. MacKinnon was especially impressed by the use of vodka in the dish, and was happy to have Wells take over the cooking chores.

"She's my favorite kind of guest because it means I don't have to work," he said with a chuckle.

The penne with vodka is a favorite in the Wells home, and said the author, "I'm sure only one out of a thousand people would guess that vodka is the secret ingredient."

The recipe comes from La Vecchia Betolla, a lively, elbows-on-the-table trattoria in Florence, where you squeeze onto rough wooden benches and ultimately share in conversation with your neighbors, always close at hand.

The Sardinian Parchment Bread featured here is another irresistible selection from the cookbook, and making it is "child's play" said Wells. It goes alternately by the whimsical name "carta da musica," or sheet of music paper. It is the traditional bread of she-

Ghoulish goings-on rouse restaurateur

EDITOR'S NOTE: Despite the embellishments, what follows is a true story from the recently passed Halloween, submitted for your enjoyment by restaurateur Tom MacKinnon of Northville.

By CHEF TOM MACKINNON
with EMILY ZINN
Special Writers

A slight chill hung in the air that Halloween morning. With the eve of Halloween fast approaching, pumpkins lined the streets grinning eerily at passersby as if they knew the fate awaiting each mortal on the spooky night of haunting ghosts, lurking goblins, and the occasional airborne, spell-casting witch.

I tend to shy away from brooms this time of year. Vacuum cleaners are significantly safer, as they must be plugged in, limiting flying range dramatically.

As I approached the Farmers' Market that fateful day, I hesitated to stop, wary of the cornstalks which conjured up mental echoes of Children of the Corn. I don't feed my children corn in October. Apples are safer, but only when fresh. In making candied apples, they test for freshness in the same way they test for witches: if she floats, she's a witch, and you know what they do to witches. They burn them.

With these visions of hauntings dancing in my head, I ventured to work at the restaurant that bears my name, wondering exactly what kind of Halloween decorations are safe. I decided to wander over to the card shop next door, as the ladies there always find the means to carry out my twisted plans. Rummaging through the Halloween section, I veered away from the broom-bearing witches and the bats which flapped just above my head. Bats bite, don't they?

A smiling skeleton seemed like a safe choice. Skeletons are dead, so they couldn't possibly hurt me, could they? Happy pumpkin posters also seemed harmless; paper reproductions couldn't leer at me like the real things.

After hanging my safe but spooky decorations, I continued with my daily business, secure in the knowledge that I'd done justice to the howling holiday. Between keeping up with the holidays and keeping up with the Joneses, it's a wonder I'm still sane. Maybe . . .

Fish stock can make cold nights soup-erior in fat and calories but pack a punch when it comes to making you feel good. They are pure essences. Lavish without being rich. Not many of us would go through the bother of making one of these wonderful

This is the time of year that I start thinking soups. Any soup will do, although they all have their place.

When I need revitalizing I contemplate sipping a clear broth or consommé. Consommés are low broths at home. Although not hard, they are very time consuming. I think it's worth it.

The base of any good soup is its stock. Whether it be a meat, chicken or fish, start with the best. I realize that there are bases and canned products available, but cringe at the thought, even for convenience sake, of using them. Many contain MSG and are loaded with salt or fat. Not really healthy.

Preparing a chicken stock or fish fumet is not only easy but fairly quick. My favorite fumet uses shrimp and lobster shells and fish bones.

In the past I've asked the local fish monger to save me the fish bones and he has happily agreed. If cleaning shrimp or eating lobster, save and freeze the shells until you are ready to use them.

For a nice fumet, I stew a bulb of onions, carrots, celery stalks, a bunch of fennel, and a clove of garlic until translucent. Do not brown at all. Add your chopped bones, a couple of pounds will do, and sweat for an additional ten minutes. Add a half bottle of white wine, a sachet of pepper corns and bay leaves, and cover with water, about several gallons. Bring to a boil, skim and simmer approximately one hour. Strain and cool.

This is virtually fat free. The only fat used would be in the beginning to sweat the veggies and this can be skipped by the substitution of a bit of the wine. I like to add a few threads of saffron for additional flavor.

This is the base for one of my favorite main dishes, a beautiful piece of grilled sword fish presented over oriental veggies and rice noodles. A half ladle of the fumet adds just the right touch for a terrific dinner.

I also use it as a base for a flavorful jambalaya or clam chowder. The possibilities are countless. This is also a wonderful liquid to use for poaching fish. And remember, minimal in calories, with a fantastic flavor.

There is little that can compare. It can also be used in numerous sauces to serve with fish or to cook your starch that will accompany the dinner. Rice, risotto, lentils or barley soak up the great elixir and adds a depth that is impossible to duplicate with anything but a home-made fumet.

The best part is this: packed in air-tight containers any stock freezes extremely well, and the shelf life in a refrigerator is about one week. Work clean, don't contaminate cutting boards, and wash your hands to eliminate bacteria. Remember, those little devils can even multiply under refrigeration or in the freezer. If they're there, they'll grow.

A fumet is the easiest way to start making stocks. If you are interested in healthy, unadulterated food, this is a simple way to begin. For the next few weeks, I'll expound on the creation of the other stocks and sauces that they generate.

The Refrigerator Door

"The Refrigerator Door" is a list of coming events and short notes about food and drink. If you have an event planned or a brief announcement you would like included here, send it care of this newspaper, 104 W. Main Street, Northville, Mich. 48167. Photos and other artwork are welcome.

NEW RESTAURANT OPENING: The Trattoria Bruschetta, located in the Hotel Baronette, 27790 Novi Road, hosts its grand opening on Wednesday, Nov. 10 at 7 p.m. The dinner will cost $75 per person with 100 percent of proceeds going to benefit the St. Vincent and Sarah Fisher Center.

General Managing Partner Keith Scofield is in a quandry, however. The new upscale eatery is facing a staffing shortage. Though 25 waitstaffers are needed, there has been a dearth of applicants. It's hard to understand why. The new restaurant will offer full benefits — health insurance and whatnot — for all waitstaff after 90 days. All employees are put through a complete training program. Trattoria Bruschetta is the latest in the Unique Restaurant Corp., which also owns Morels and Deli Unique.

They are taking applicants seven days a week, practically anytime. One needs only go to the Hotel Baronette front desk for an application. Scofield is interviewing every day from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., and all applicants are religiously called back.

KITCHEN WITCH HAS SPECIAL PASTA: The Kitchen Witch, located at 118 E. Main St. in Northville has the Christmas Tree pasta in stock. This is not only great-tasting pasta, but makes a great stocking stuffer, hostess gift or basket filler.

PROFESSOR'S PANTRY THANKSGIVING SPECIAL: Why slave over the stove making that special Thanksgiving meal for the family when the Professor's Pantry, Schoolcraft College's on-campus food shop, can do it all for you. For only $59, the Professor's Pantry will prepare a fresh turkey feast, ready for your oven, which includes 14-16 pounds of fresh turkey, 4 pounds of savory stuffing, 4 pounds of fresh vegetable medley, 4 pounds of candied yams, 1 pound of brandied cranberry orange reslish, and 1 quart of giblet gravy. In addition, fresh baked pies, breads, cakes, extra stuffing, gravy, vegetables and reslish will also be available. Call the Professor's Pantry by Nov. 19 at 462-4491 to place your order.

KNOW THE FOOD PYRAMID: Want to know what you should eat to stay healthy? "The Food Guide Pyramid, beyond the Basic Four," a new brochure, helps answer this question. The brochure condenses the information from the U.S. Department of Agriculture's (USDA) booklet "The Food Guide Pyramid" and features the new food guide graphic on the elements of a healthy diet. The brochure was developed by the Food Marketing Institute in cooperation with the USDA. pherds, who take it with them when tending sheep.

It comes out slightly puffed if made on a baking stone, but cookie sheets work just as well, Wells said. A good, heavy-duty rolling pin is useful but not essential.

PENNE WITH VODKA AND SPICY TOMATO-CREAM SAUCE

¼ cup extra-virgin olive oil
4 plump fresh garlic cloves, minced
¼ teaspoon crushed red peppers (hot red pepper flakes) or to taste
Sea salt

One 28-ounce can peeled Italian plum tomatoes in juice or one 28-ounce can crushed tomatoes in puree

1 pound dried Italian tubular pasta, such as penne
2 tablespoons vodka
1 cup heavy cream
¼ cup fresh flat-leaf parsley leaves, snipped with scissors

In an unheated skillet large enough to hold the pasta later on, combine the oil, garlic, crushed red peppers and a pinch of salt, stirring to coat with the oil. Cook over moderate heat just until the garlic turns golden but does not brown, 2-3 minutes. If using whole canned tomatoes, place a food mill over the skillet and puree the tomatoes directly into it. Crushed tomatoes can be added directly from the can. Stir to blend, and simmer, uncovered, until the sauce begins to thicken, about 15 minutes. Taste for seasoning.

Meanwhile, in a large pot, bring 6 quarts of water to a rolling boil. Add 3 tablespoons salt and the penne, stirring to prevent the pasta from sticking. Cook until tender but firm to the bite. Drain thoroughly.

Add the drained pasta to the skillet with the tomato sauce. Toss. Add the vodka, toss again, then add the cream and toss. Cover, reduce the heat to low, and let rest for 1-2 minutes to allow the pasta to absorb the sauce. Add the parsley and toss again. Transfer to warmed shallow soup bowls and serve immediately (Traditionally, cheese is not served with this dish). Yield: 6 to 8 servings.

Wine Suggestion: A good-quality red that can stand up to the spice and cream is ideal here, such as a 2- or 3-year-old Chianti Classico from Tuscany or a California Zinfandel.

SARDINIAN PARCHMENT BREAD

2 cups unbleached all-purpose flour
1 cup fine semolina flour
1½ teaspoons fine sea salt
About 1½ cups lukewarm water

At least 40 minutes before placing the dough in the oven, preheat the oven to 450 F. If using a baking stone, place it in the oven to preheat.

In a large shallow bowl, combine the flours and salt, with your fingers, mix the ingredients thoroughly. Slowly add the water, stirring with a wooden spoon, until the mixture forms a soft dough. (You may not need to add all the water.) With your hands, work the dough into a ball. Transfer to a clean, floured work surface, and knead gently for about 12 minutes. The dough should be firm and pliable, and not sticky.

Divide the dough evenly into 12 balls. Place the balls on a lightly floured surface and cover with a clean, damp cloth. Flatten each ball into a thick 4-inch pancake. Generously flour the work surface, and, with a heavy-duty rolling pin, roll each portion of the dough as thin as possible into an 8- to 9-inch round. These breads are meant to be rather roughly shaped. Thinness is more important than shape here: dough should be thin enough to see your hand through it.

Place several rounds of dough on an ungreased baker's paddle. Bake just until the top of the bread is firm and lightly browned, about 3 to 4 minutes. (Baking time will vary from oven to oven and will depend upon the number of breads placed in the oven. I find variations between 2 and 5 minutes, depending upon the oven. Watch the bread carefully, and don't leave the room to answer the telephone! It helps if you have an oven with a glass window.) With tongs or with your fingers, turn the bread over and bake until the other side is lightly browned, 3 to 4 minutes more. (The bread should be rather bumpy, puffy, and irregular, with occasional huge pockets full of air.) Transfer the bread to a wire rack to cool. Repeat the procedure with the remaining rounds of dough.

The bread cools almost instantly and can be served immediately. To serve, stack the breads in the center of the table or in a large basket. (The bread may be stored for 3 or 4 days, in a metal container or zipper-lock bag at room temperature.)

Halloween turns into a fright night

That evening, I had just curled up in front of my favorite late night show and a roaring fire, only to be interrupted by the shrieking of the phone. The police officer on the other end of the line informed me that the restaurant's motion detector had alerted the Northville police to the presence of a nocturnal intruder. I sped through the crisp, moonless evening and met the officer at the restaurant's front door.

As I followed the officer's flashlight beam around the darkened restaurant, my nerves were all aquiver. After the patrons and employees have left for the night, a restaurant can be a very spooky place.

The refrigerator compressors turned on and off, mimicing ghostly footsteps. The glass racks over the bar cast eerie shadows. Each creak of the floors made me twitch, and when five pounds of ice crashed into the ice-maker bin, I jumped three feet into the air.

A quick dash through the dining room proved that everything was locked up, turned off and thoroughly cleared.

As I re-entered the bar, I felt a bone-chilling blast of air on my neck. My momentary shock was soothed when I recognized it as the air conditioning, left running by a careless employee.

As I turned the air conditioning off and headed back toward the front door, I was confronted with the horrifying fact that my "safe" tribute to Halloween wasn't so safe after all. The smiling skeleton had hung itself in front of the motion detector, tripping the alarm. In the cold blast of the air conditioner, the skeleton gently waved at me.

eight graders had tried alcohol, 38 percent had smoked at least one cigarette and 6 percent had experimented with marijuana.

Among 10th grade students, 87 percent of those surveyed had tried alcohol, 69 percent cigarettes and 18 percent had used marijuana.

The use levels of alcohol, cigarettes and marijuana were higher among 12th grade students at 90, 69 and 41 percents, respectively.

Student Assistance

"At the high school the atmosphere is totally different than last year's," Stilec said.

The coordinator for the Student Assistance program said he believes the change is due to a higher visibility level than last year. After a one-year hiatus on a part-time basis due to budget cuts, Stilec is once again manning a full-time program.

Stilec also credited the use of hall monitors who provide more supervision in the hallways and bathrooms as a reason for the decrease in student smoking.

A former therapist for chemical dependency treatment centers for 16 years, Stilec was hired by the district in 1987 to oversee the program, which "provides education, support and awareness in order to intervene, identify, assess and refer students and families around the issues of chemical use, abuse and dependency."

His responsibilities include interviewing identified students, facilitating education and support groups, working with individual students, co-facilitating SADD groups and serving as a referral source for staff, students and the community.

The Student Assistance program also depends on the community for support. The Mother's Club and Northville Action Council donated money to buy the bean bags that adorn the meeting room of the Student Assistance office.

Donations from the community have also purchased booklets on topics from alcoholism, depression and divorce to anger, smoking and AIDS.

"This area represents an office," Stilec said, referring to the two rooms tucked inside the east wing of Northville High School. "It's also a resource room for the schools and the community. It's sort of like a library."

Stilec confers with five to seven groups a week. Eight to 10 students make up a group.

"The downer is that I'm only here two days," Stilec said. "The good thing is that the other two days I'm at the middle school."

When Stilec worked for Riverside Middle School in the Crestwood School District last year, he realized the importance of a middle school student assistance program at that level.

"The sooner you work with these kids and intervene, the better," he said. "... By the time they get up here (high school), there's a lot of intervention. There's a difference between prevention at the middle school and elementary levels and intervention here."

"The smoking, drinking and drugs have probably been going on for years and (they've) developed a life (habit). Crisis counseling is a good name for what we do here."

Stilec said his goals, besides lowering the statistics on the alcohol and drug survey, are to service the high school four days and spend half-days at the middle schools each week. He also wants to provide more community education through the annual Red Ribbon campaign and Northville Youth Forum.

The coordinator also plans on being more visible to groups and organizations to help keep a pulse on what's going on in the community. Stilec is happy that his program is now under the direction of special education director Robert Sornson.

"Now I fit somewhere," Stilec said. "As a special program, this makes me happy as can be because someone there's someone I can talk to and check in with. There's someone who can evaluate me."

Northville Youth Assistance

What started out as a diversion program for first-time youth offenders, Northville Youth Assistance has since expanded its services in its almost seven-year existence.

Today, the program offers support to any child in need of attention, according to director Mary Ellen King.

"It's not that they're troubled or in trouble," she explained. "It's just that they need a special friend."

King's job is to match these students with volunteers.

"I just matched a little girl who lives with dad and sees her mom every two weeks or so," King said. "I matched her with a young woman who is spending quality time with her."

Volunteers are required to complete 15 hours of training after going through a rigid background check as well as a 90-minute interview with King.

"The main criteria is that you have to want to help Northville kids," King said, not to mention possessing "caring, concerned and committed" personality traits.

Volunteer training sessions are held twice a year. After completing training, volunteers are placed on a waiting list. So far, Northville Youth Assistance has trained over 250 volunteers who have donated 9,000 hours of their time.

King said volunteers are asked to give a one-year commitment to the program. However, some volunteers are still going strong after three years.

One volunteer took his matched student up north to his cottage during the summer while another took his students to summer school every day.

There are 22 youth assistance programs in Wayne County and King considers her program as one of the more successful.

"We're very fortunate because a lot of people here step forward," King said, explaining that other agencies have a hard time recruiting volunteers.

Northville Youth Assistance is located in Northville High School and is funded by the city and the township of Northville. The school district provides rent-free office space for the program.

King works 25 hours per week as does a secretary.

Last year was the program's biggest year, serving 74 kids ages 6 to 17. To date, almost 400 students have been matched with volunteers.

"We're living in a transient society today," King said. "A lot of times an extended family is not available because both parents are busy at work. Neighborhoods used to take the place when people were home and you always knew somebody would be there ... Now, kids are alone a lot. They need a lot of attention."

Student ACORD group hopeful of good turnout

By MICHELLE HARRISON
Staff Writer

Meghan Cross is hoping the "troublemakers" will show up for the first student ACORD meeting to be held after school Wednesday.

The get-together, which will be based on the adult version of ACORD (A Community Organization Recognizing Diversity), was scheduled because of the growing dissension over cultural and racial intolerances at Northville High School. School officials have been taking steps themselves to put a halt to the racial slurs and shoving matches going on in the hallways by hosting after-school forums.

"I don't want just the people who get picked on to come," Cross said. "I want the people who make trouble to go there, too. But I doubt if they will. Basically, I want everyone to talk and not to hold anything back."

Al Qualman, president of ACORD, will help the students run the meeting. Jim Tuman, national speaker and director of the Royal Oak-based Positive School Support Program, will also be on hand as will be several other school administrators and faculty.

Qualman said an agenda really hasn't been set for the first student ACORD meeting.

"I think we'll play it by ear," Qualman said. "There will certainly be a discussion time for kids to express themselves."

Tuman is scheduled to address the entire student body that morning so Qualman expects discussion will play off that. Students may possibly discuss the next step in establishing racial and cultural harmony.

Cross said she has gotten confirmation from about 20 students that they will be at the student ACORD meeting.

"I would like to see more, but for the first meeting there will probably be less," she said.

The meeting has been scheduled to last an hour, however, will run longer if students desire.

Cross, whose Asian background makes her a minority at the high school, said she's glad officials are recognizing that cultural intolerances are taking place.

"I'm glad things are finally starting to happen," she said. "Whether it's good or bad, people are starting to notice."

Cross said after the first student forum was held several weeks ago, where members of the media were invited, participation in the forums has decreased. She felt it was because the meetings were not getting as much publicity as the initial forum.

"There are few optimistic people," she said. "We need a lot of optimistic people. Some just wanted it to be a shouting match."

Cross said she hopes the student ACORD group will flourish. A junior, she hopes younger students will take over the group after she graduates.

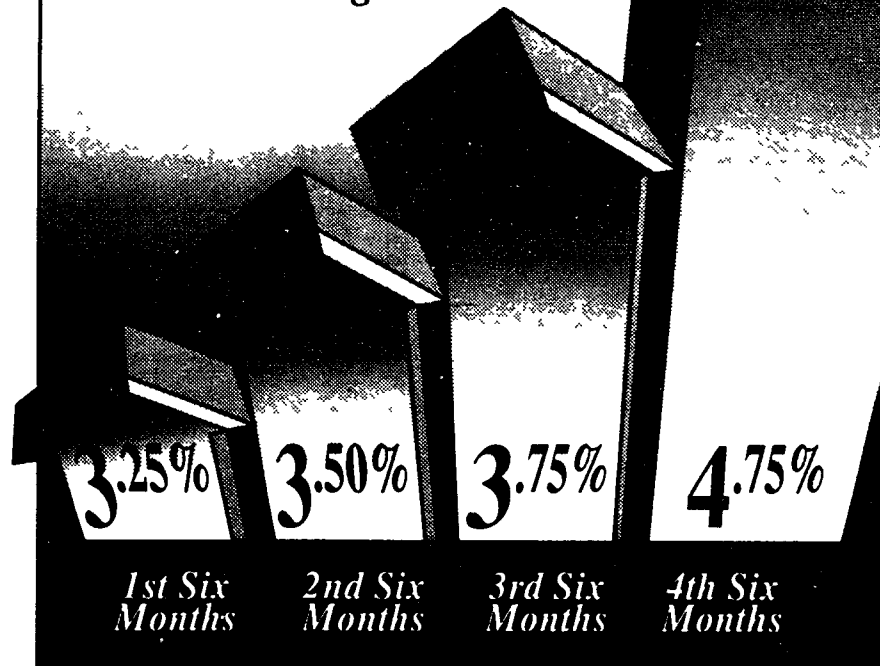

Qualman said it's really hard to tell what direction the new group will take. It may develop guidelines similar to ACORD or may come up with its own unique mission.

"I think if the kids can come together and do the similar types of things we do with ACORD—possibly be a resource for other programs in the school and celebrate the differences and likenesses of kids without fostering harm... they'll build a common awareness," Qualman said.

Although it's not certain where the meeting will take place, the student ACORD will meet at 2:05 p.m. Students should check with Cross or the high school office for confirmation of a meeting place.

Lock up a rising rate with a CD that won't lock you in.

RIISING RATE CD® Annual Percentage Yield

A guaranteed rate increase with a no-penalty withdrawal option every six months.

Whichever way interest rates might go, the Rising Rate CD is a smart investment bet. Because if interest rates remain flat or drop, you'll still get a guaranteed raise in your CD rate every six months. But if interest rates begin to climb, the Rising Rate CD gives you the liquidity to pull out once every six months of its initial two-year term without penalty.

The rate earned for each six-month period rises as the chart above indicates, climbing to a 4.75% APY during the final six-month period.* You have the option of withdrawing all of your investment within the first ten days of any six-month interval during the initial two-year term without penalty. Or you can take out any portion of it as long as a $1,000 balance is maintained.

The Rising Rate CD. The liquidity you want, the guaranteed interest growth you need. To open yours for as little as $1,000, call or visit any participating bank office.

LET'S TALK

Shore and his chillin' mop; 'Exposure' Alaska really Washington

BY TAYLOR MICHAELS

Q: I am highly interested in Pauly Shore, the actor who starred in "Son-in-Law." Could you please tell me a little bit about him? Also, could I have an address where I can write to him? —S.M., McCook, Neb.

A: Shore, a popular MTV personality, was born and raised in Hollywood, Calif. According to MTV publicity, "he stands 5' 9 1/2" tall and weighs 145 pounds with a mop chillin' on top." Comedy is in his blood: His mother owns the Comedy Store nightclubs in San Diego, Las Vegas and Hollywood; and his father, comedian Sammy Shore, opened for Elvis Presley in the '60s and '70s. "I remember one time sitting on Elvis' knee," Pauly recalls. "That's how I got the scar on the side of my eye. Elvis was bouncing me. I said, 'Hey, Elvis, chill dude, your sideburns are twiggling my eye area.'" The 19-year-old's first comedy album, "The Future of America," is due out soon, and will be the first of a four-album deal with CBS/WTG Records. Write to him in care of MTV, 1515 Broadway, New York, N.Y. 10036.

Q: I enjoy the game show "Caesar's Challenge." Where can I write to Ahmad Rashad, host of the show, and his sidekick, Dan Dordie? —Barbara Poindexter, Harvey, Ill.

A: Write Rashad and Dordie in care of the show, NBC Television Network, 3000 W. Alameda Ave., Burbank, Calif. 91523.

Q: I'm a big fan of "Days of Our Lives" and have been enthralled by the Carly story. I heard she has left the show for good. Please say it isn't true! —Angela Wilpula, Ashtabula, Ohio.

A: Weary of the rigors of acting, Crystal Chappell, who plays Carly, has indeed left the show. Whether or not she will return to acting is uncertain at this time.

HOROSCOPE

By C. C. Clark

Aries (March 21 - April 19)

Problems will make you feel like shutting down completely. Try to focus on the most positive aspects of your life. You will be busy at work.

Taurus (April 20 - May 20)

You may not think so, but you are on the verge of a new relationship. There is also a chance you will be working on a new project.

Gemini (May 21 - June 20)

Things may seem tough right now, but eventually you will surmount all obstacles and come out on top. Make time for the things you enjoy.

Cancer (June 21 - July 20)

A weird situation could turn into a lucky break for you. You may not be in control of the situation, and it might be best if you follow someone else's lead.

Leo (July 21 - Aug. 21)

You may have to make corrections to something you have worked hard on, and it will not be easy for you. You could make a change in careers.

Virgo (Aug. 22 - Sept. 22)

You may begin to feel lonely and sorry for yourself. Pick yourself up and do anything but sitting and brooding. Life is much better than you think.

Libra (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22)

You may find it hard to trust someone close to you. You may have to make some uncomfortable but necessary changes in your life.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 - Nov. 22)

You need to make a fresh start with financial matters. You may begin to think about traveling or changing your residence.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23 - Dec. 20)

Exercise your personal integrity in everything you do, and you will be successful. A disagreeable situation will soon end.

Capricorn (Dec. 21 - Jan. 19)

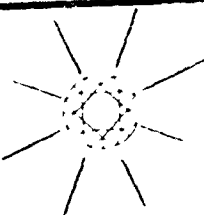

You could receive money or news concerning finances from an unexpected source. Things could work out very well for you.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18)

You could find something you thought was lost forever. You will have mixed emotions about an unusual situation, and you will need time to adjust.

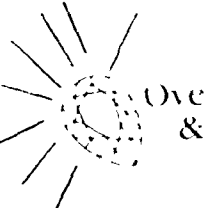

Pisces (Feb. 19 - March 20)

You may be caught off guard by someone close to you. You may need to find an appropriate outlet to vent your frustrations.

HIGHLIGHTS

PBS examines the life and times of Dwight D. Eisenhower in "The American Experience," airing Wednesday, Nov. 10, the day before the observance of Veterans Day.

The two and a-half hour documentary examines Ike's career as both a soldier and statesman. It includes archival footage from World War II, excerpts from the president's diaries and interviews with biographers, historians, and members of the Eisenhower family. Pulitzer Prize winning author and historian David McCullough narrates.

GIVE BLOOD, PLEASE

Musician turns detective in CBS' 'South of Sunset'

By Sara Bennett

"South of Sunset," which premiered Oct. 27 and airs Wednesdays on CBS, presents Glenn Frey with his first opportunity to win over those who shudder at the thought of musicians taking to the screen as actors.

Frey made his television debut in an episode of "Miami Vice" in 1985 but hasn't done much acting in the interim. "South of Sunset," which takes place in and around Los Angeles, represents the first series role for the veteran musician. Frey, who helped found the Eagles and has had much success as a solo artist since the breakup of the band, admits he has little left to do on the musical front.

"I don't have a lot to prove in the music business," Frey says. "I have a tremendous amount to accomplish and improve myself in this sort of work."

Frey, however, wrote and recorded the "South of Sunset" theme song, and work is under way to attract a varied group of musicians to score the episodes.

"Joe Walsh said he would score an episode," Frey says. "I think that would be a very interesting guitar sound that we could get on the show."

Series co-creator and executive producer Stan Rogow emphasizes "the continuing motif is going to be guitar." Tom Petty, Jeff "Skunk" Baxter, Tony Braxton and Tag Team can all be expected to contribute during the season.

Aside from the music, which can be heard as a backdrop in many scenes, a better-than-average series emerges to beef up CBS' lineup. Frey portrays Cody McMahon, a former chief of security at a Hollywood studio who fell out of favor after busting his company's CEO. Now Cody, a good guy from the get-go, makes his living (far below his former standards) as a private investigator who isn't content to stop there. He gets over-involved in his cases and clients' lives, but he does it with style, humor and the help of a crackpot staff.

Cody works out of a mini-mall office with a suspect Beverly Hills address. Upon entering the small office, clients often say, utterly confused, "Your ad in the yellow pages says you're in Beverly Hills." Cody responds dryly, "We're on the town line." The investigator employs Ziggy Duane (played by comic Aries Spears) a 20-year-old jokster from South Central Los Angeles who prefers his rap music to a Don Henley song Cody plays to broaden the kid's horizons.

"What you're looking at are his first days at being in front of the camera," Rogow says of the 18-year-old Spears. "There's a fair amount of improvisation that goes into his work. You can't teach someone to do that."

Cody and Ziggy chase the bad guys and rescue the children, while Gina (Maria Pitillo, "Chaplain") tends to the office between movie auditions. The men protect the aspiring actress like a sister, and even (in a pinch) assign her to cases that shouldn't involve too much danger. (Of course, they always do.)

The mismatched trio has about as much collective experience acting as their characters have sleuthing. Perhaps this is why they pull it off. "If people say, 'I want to see what Cody and Ziggy and Gina are up to this week,' that's as important as them saying, 'I want to see what mystery they're solving this week.' That was our intent," Rogow says.

Although it can be difficult to maintain all aspects of the comedy action drama series genre, "South of Sunset" comes as close as possible with few lapses. Spears' character in particular makes numerous comparisons to real-life musicians and movies, which forces the humor at times. The funniest moments occur in situations affecting all the characters. In one scene, an angry client demands that Gina stay away from the cheating husband the woman orders Cody and Ziggy to follow. She adds "...or I'll revoke your license!" Whether the private eyes see the humor in the moment is unclear, but viewers may laugh at the idea of these guys actually being licensed.

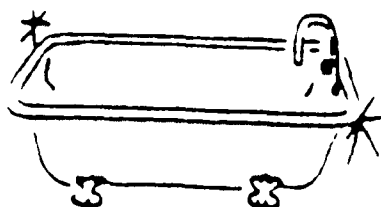

"Hopefully," Rogow says, "it's just the chemistry of the people who make it (the show) believable."
