Close call after party makes student seek help

Editor's Note: This is the third in a series of articles examining alcohol and drug use among Northville teenagers. The name of the Northville High School student featured in this article has been changed to protect her identity.

By MICHELLE HARRISON
Staff Writer

Lisa knew winter was on the way as the chilly, late-autumn wind made her shiver.

Twenty-five minutes past her 11:30 p.m. curfew, she asked a friend at the party to take her home. Lisa had been partying with her other friends and was a little "dizzy" from the alcohol she had consumed. She didn't know how much her driver friend had had to drink, and frankly, didn't give it a second thought.

Nothing would happen. Why should she worry? In a few minutes she would be home in her warm bed after explaining to her father why she was late.

Saying good-bye to her friends, Lisa got into her friend's truck.

"As we pulled out (of the apartment complex), the next few seconds of my life I was either going to be dead or at least hospitalized for the rest of my life," she recalled.

The wheels of the truck spun as the driver exited the complex, forcing the vehicle to swerve to one side of the road then back to the other side. As they headed straight for a tree, Lisa thought her life was ending

BATTLING ABUSE

The quest for drug-free schools

The driver avoided the tree and the vehicle flipped, rolling three times before coming to rest in a ditch filled with water.

"All I could hear was glass crashing," Lisa said. "I screamed, terrified of what was happening. I couldn't die. I was too young. I had so many goals to accomplish and, most important, so many people I wanted to say I'm sorry to."

After the vehicle came to a stop, Lisa remembers wondering "am I dead?" Her friend yelled, "Get out of the truck. Just get out of the truck," as the water was starting to drown her.

"Something grabbed me and pushed me towards the broken glass opening," she said. "I reached my hand out. The upper half of my body was out as I gasped for air and was slipping. I finally scrambled to the top grabbed her hand and the two walked dazed to find a telephone.

Soaked to her neck, Lisa's friend

"As we walked I didn't quite know if we were dead or alive and it would be a true miracle to have survived that without even a scratch," Lisa said.

By the time the two made it back to the accident site, the police were on the scene looking for the occupants of the overturned truck.

"There they are," somebody yelled from the location of the flashing blue and red lights.

A police officer questioned the driver and asked him to take a Breathalyzer test. The driver's blood alcohol content was .06, still below the point of intoxication, which is .08. A person blowing a 10 on the Breathalyzer is considered legally drunk in Michigan.

Despite the driver's test results, his judgment was still impaired due to the alcohol, Lisa said.

"You know your friend almost killed you tonight," a police officer told Lisa.

Still shocked at what happened, Lisa knew what to do when she got to school. She stopped at Charlie Stilec's office. Stilec is the coordinator for Northville High School's Student Assistance program.

"I don't have a lot of people to talk to," she said. "This is one place where I can go and feel confident."

Lisa has been attending one of

Officer's scout car smashed again

By SHARON CONDRON
Staff Writer

Northville Township Police Officer Larry Demeter is starting to wonder if someone is playing a prank on him, or if there's a magnet for careless drivers in the trunk of his patrol car.

For the second time this year in virtually the same place, the officer's patrol car has been rear-ended by an on-coming motorist while he was making a routine traffic stop on Seven Mile Road near Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital.

Thursday afternoon Demeter pulled over the driver of a dump truck and trailer headed eastbound on Seven Mile. The man was driving without a commercial license. While waiting in his car for a wrecker to come and impound the truck, a 63-year-old township woman barreled into the tail end of the officer's patrol car.

Neither the officer nor the woman were injured in accident. But she was ticketed for failure to use due care and caution, according to Township Police Lt. Gary Batzloff who assisted in investigating the incident.

Batzloff said the officer's emergency equipment had been activated and was functioning properly when the driver collided with the police car.

The accident was nearly identical to one in which Northville Record edi-

Power cheer

Mustangs cheerleader Becky Rouhan shows plenty of spirit in helping to boost the morale of the varsity gridders. Despite the high-energy sideline maneuvers and some skilled play on the field, the football team's season came to a close with a loss to Farmington Hills Harrison, 23-16.

Record Monday edition nixed

The Northville Record will cease publication of its Monday edition with the Nov. 29 edition.

The announcement to discontinue the Monday paper was made by Rich Perlberg, general manager of Home-Town Newspapers.

Publication of the Thursday edition will continue as usual.

The decision to pull the plug on the Monday papers was based on the recognition that they never found true acceptance with advertisers.

Acceptance among subscribers was mixed, but newsstand sales on Monday were below Thursday sales, even though the Monday edition also contained a TV book.

The TV book also will be discontinued.

While the Thursday edition has continued to grow in both advertising and circulation, the Monday edition never found the same acceptance. Monday editions were typically one-third to one-fourth the size of Thursday editions.

"We made the decision to discontinue the Monday edition with regret, but we have to be realistic and recognize that it never gained the acceptance we had hoped for," said Perlberg.

"By discontinuing the Monday publication, we will be able to concentrate our efforts and resources directly on the Thursday edition, making it bigger and better than ever."

Teen events aim to spur interest in new center

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

Northville's teen center task force wants to start laying the foundation for a new teen center by building up interest in the project.

With that aim in mind, the task force plans to begin hosting weekly Friday teen nights at the Northville Community Center in January. Teenagers will be invited to stop by the center for free, to participate in activities and play sports.

"That way, we'll be able to see how many teens are coming out to these organized events," said task force coordinator Jacque Martin-Downs. "One of the things we learned from the Livonia teen center is that you have to have a base of people coming to events before you set up an actual teen center. . . . People are worried that if we put up a teen center first, nobody will come."

The task force members were heartened by the turnout at a Nov. 5 "Youth Activity Night" at the Community Center, at which 30 youths showed up for a series of activities including volleyball and basketball.

"They thought that was a real nice turnout for the first time," Martin-Downs said.

Student members of the task force have also collected about 400 signatures from fellow students on a petition in favor of a teen center. Student task force leader Amanda Cole, a senior at Northville High School, is seeking permission to go into Northville's middle schools to ask students there if they are interested in the program as well.

Anti-drug group continues to battle

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

Ever since a survey of substance abuse among Northville teens found they drank more alcohol and took more drugs than their counterparts across the country, members of a Community Task Force on Alcohol and Drug Awareness have been working to reverse the trend.

The task force was formed Feb. 10 following the September 1992 release of an Alcohol and Other Drugs survey in which 42 percent of local seniors said they had used illicit drugs as opposed to 35 percent nationwide.

Those efforts continue on several fronts, said Prevention Network Coordinator Jacque Martin-Downs, a member of the Community Task Force on Drug Abuse (CCODA). CCODA coordinates substance abuse programs and runs counseling centers in several communities including Northville, Livonia and Westland.

Aside from overseeing a teen task force exploring the possibility of establishing a teen center, Martin-Downs and other Community Task Force members are also working to educate parents. She cited an Oct. 27

WHAT'S INSIDE?

Cleanup kids go at it in Maybury

Maybury State Park was recently invaded by a crew of 25 Northville High School students bent on improving one small corner of Planet Earth. Led by science teachers Mary Cullik and Robert Sharrar, the student team worked throughout a rainy Saturday morning, removing several trash dumps from the park's interior.

First on the student's clean-up agenda was the removal of 118 tires — a real eyesore sitting by one of the hiking trails.

Then it was on to another trash dump consisting of an odd assort-

Officer wonders if drivers are out to do him in

for Lee Snider rammed into Demeter's patrol car in the same place on Wednesday, June 23.

Snider was hospitalized for minor head and knee injuries and ticketed for that accident. Demeter was also treated for minor injuries.

The editor's Subaru Justy and the township police car were both totaled in the accident.

"I'm going to take the 'hit me' sign off my back before I head out onto the streets again," the officer said jokingly about the accidents Friday morning.

Demeter said the second accident occurred only 600-700 feet west of the where Snider hit him earlier this year.

"I watched this one happen in the rear-view mirror," he said. "I saw it coming and said, 'Man, this isn't going to be a good day.'"

Batzloff said a truck traveling in front of the woman may have temporarily blocked her view of the officer. The driver of the truck managed to merge into the left lane to avoid the police officer. The woman wasn't so lucky.

According to Batzloff's assessment of the accident, the woman just didn't have enough time to stop after the truck had cleared the right lane.

"I didn't get lifted up and pushed forward this time like I did last time," Demeter said because the woman was traveling at a slower speed than Snider was. "She was only going about 15-20 miles an hour."

The eight-year veteran of the township police force said the Seven Mile site of the two accidents was a dangerous place to make a traffic stop because the road has no shoulder there.

"It's a dangerous place to make a stop because there's nowhere to go," he said. "There's no shoulder and no place to pull off."

He said, however, that there's ample visibility which is why the officer finds it hard to believe that two drivers failed to see his overhead lights in time to stop.

"There's a lot of visibility right there," he said. "It's at least a fifth of a mile. That's over 1000 feet."

Despite his repeated bad luck in marked patrol cars on Seven Mile, Demeter doesn't seem to harbor any bad feelings.

"You run a lot of traffic, you run a lot of risks."

Police News

City police chase, catch up to high-speed driver

City police ran down a speeding car on Eight Mile Road after midnight Nov. 19 despite the driver's apparent attempts to elude them by accelerating to more than 95 mph and turning off his lights.

The driver, a 23-year-old Northville man, was clocked at 70 mph while heading west on Eight Mile at Whitegate at 1:48 a.m. As he passed an eastbound patrol car, the police officer heard him accelerate and turned to follow, speeding up to 95 mph but failing to close the gap between the two cars. When the officer hit his emergency lights and siren at Lanthorn, the fleeing driver turned off his headlights and hit his brakes, making a sharp right-hand turn into J.J. Zayt Trucking at 47500 W. Eight Mile, fishtailing as he turned.

The police officer followed and saw the driver and a passenger jump out of the car and run away, the driver stumbling and nearly falling as he did. The officer exited his car, pulled his revolver and ordered the men to stop.

The passenger, a 26-year-old Northville man, was quoted as saying "F--- you, this is bull---," and walking toward the officer until he was ordered to stop.

The driver was arrested for driving under the influence after failing several field sobriety tests including reciting the alphabet and counting backwards. He also refused a Preliminary Breath Test. He also refused a Breathalyzer test at the police station.

A computer check also revealed that his license had been suspended after a series of traffic infractions and misdemeanors including speeding, improper passing, careless driving, fleeing and eluding a police officer in Plymouth in 1990 and driving while impaired in Walled Lake that same year.

He was cited for driving under the influence, driving on a suspended license and refusing to take a Preliminary Breath Test, and his license was confiscated.

City police were still holding the man in protective custody as of prestime Friday. His blood alcohol level had been measured at .13 percent, well over the legal limit, nearly six hours after his arrest.

SUSPICIOUS MAN FOLLOWS GIRL: A 13-year-old Northville girl told city police she was followed to school by a man driving a large red car Nov. 15. The girl said the man followed her from Ely Drive to Jeffery, Larry and Cooke Middle School at 7:40 that morning, accelerating as she began running on Jeffery.

The man was described as a white male, about 30, with a medium build, short brown spiked hair and no facial hair, wearing a grey t-shirt. He was driving a full-size red car from the 1980s, possibly a Lincoln, with rust spots and a Michigan plate with the letter "G" in it.

ARSON AT RACETRACK: City

police responded to a Nov. 16 arson incident at Northville Downs in which a toilet paper roll was set afire. The incident occurred about 8:45 p.m. in the track's first floor clubhouse men's room. Someone apparently locked the bathroom door stall and crawled out from under it before lighting the roll from an adjoining stall.

A city police officer was nearly overcome by smoke and fumes from the burning plastic dispenser as he tried to extinguish the fire. He was taken to St. Mary Hospital in Livonia with a sore nose and throat to be checked for smoke inhalation.

WINDOWS SHOT AT: City police took two reports of residential windows being broken by BB shots last week. An Andover home had one of its windows broken sometime between 10:55-11 p.m. Nov. 15. The homeowner reported hearing a loud pop as a car drove by outside, and found the broken window just afterward. Damage to the window, on the south side of the house facing the street, was estimated at $110.

A Coldspring home had two windows broken sometime between 11 p.m. Nov. 15 and 1 a.m. Nov. 16. The windows were on the side of the house facing the street, and damage was estimated at $220.

Citizens with information about the above incidents are urged to call Northville City Police at 349-1234 or Northville Township Police at 349-9400.

Teen functions to begin in January

Martin-Downs said the weekly teen nights, to run through the end of March, would be co-sponsored by local organizations. "What we're going to do is have all the different service groups, church groups and mother's clubs help sponsor it," she said.

Service groups like Northville Rotary and Northville Action Council could take turns sponsoring the weekly activity nights, Martin-Downs said, and provide chaperones for the events.

Other potential activities include an all-night party at the high school in the spring, perhaps timed to coordinate with the Substance Abuse Awareness Month in March.

The task force also hopes to hold a Victorian Tea in conjunction with the Northville Action Council during next year's Victorian Festival in September, at the community center the morning after the Victorian Costume Ball. The money from such a fundraiser could help purchase a new teen center site in the future, Martin-Downs said.

"At some point, someone's going to come forward and say, 'You can have this building or rent that building,'" she said. "We can't start doing our fundraising then."

The task force has been meeting for months to gauge interest in building a new teen center, review potential sites and determine the form that a new teen center would take. The teen center concept grew out of a community-wide task force on alcohol and drug abuse convened last year in the wake of alarming statistics about substance abuse among Northville high school students.

speech at Northville High School by Bill Winkler, a trainer in the STEP (Systematic Training for Effective Parenting) program and a well-known consultant on parent education issues, as one example. The speech, organized by fellow task force members Barbara Flis and Sharon Ferrara, drew more than 70 parents.

"We were very pleased with the turnout and new faces," Martin-Downs said.

The task force has also recently sent a survey to scores of Northville parents to assess the types of educational programs they would like to see offered.

"We're going to tally that next week and find out what parents want in terms of education, lectures, presentations and support groups," Martin-Downs said Friday.

Task force members are also organizing a parent fair to be held at Amerman School in April, which will feature a substance abuse speaker, and participation by groups including SADD (Students Against Drunk Driving), STAND (Students Taking A New Direction) and FACE (Facing Alcohol Concerns through Education).

"This is the way that CCODA can help Northville," she said. "Northville has opened a number of doors for us to come in and help provide these programs."

Drug counseling helps students cope

Silec's stress and relationships groups.

Silec said the three groups meet once a week on a rotating basis. The kids who attend have experienced some sort of trauma related to family, friends, grades, self-esteem, etc.

"We're talking about every kid in the high school," Silec said.

Some students are invited to join, but most volunteer to attend. Drug and alcohol abuse, a "symptom" of stress-related traumas, is usually discussed, Silec said.

"Kids are going to drink," he said. "It's been proven in this community. I can't stop the drinking. So, I'm going to deal with it with an inside approach. The fabric of life is that these kids are going to drink."

"I teach them not to drink and drive. I teach them not to drink and hurt others. I teach them not to abuse alcohol. I still preach not to drink. I don't endorse drinking, but the reality is they're going to drink."

Besides seeing Silec on a regular basis, Lisa is also being counseled outside of the school.

"I didn't decide it. I was caught," she said, referring to the recovery group she attends.

Law enforcement officials suggested the individualized counseling after Lisa was found with marijuana over the summer.

"They decided to get me help," she said.

Lisa admitted it was time. "I think I have a slight problem with alcohol," she said.

It's not peer pressure that makes her drink, but "urges," she explained. It's a challenge to her and her friends. She mostly drinks beer, but has experienced hard liquor.

The last time she had a drink was a weekend ago.

It is Lisa's goal not to drink.

"I don't know if I have a problem or not," she shrugged. "I don't drink that much. I don't know if it's a problem. I don't think I have a problem because I don't think I want to drink anymore."

Monday edition to go

While the size of the Northville-Nowi staff will be reduced, all employees will be retained within the organization.

Subscription rates will remain at current levels, Perlberg said. "We have never charged subscribers for the Monday edition," he said. "The annual subscription rates for Northville and Novi are exactly the same as they are for our other newspapers — The South Lyon Herald, Milford Times, Brighton Argus and Livingston County Press, all of which are once-per-week publications."

Perlberg also noted that the decision to terminate the Monday edition at this time does not preclude the possibility it could be reinstated at some time in the future. "If we perceive a need for a twice-per-week publication in the Northville/Novi area at some time in the future, we will move to fill that need when it exists," he said.

HomeTown Newspapers began publication of a Monday edition in The Northville Record and Novi News on May 14, 1990.

ment of broken dishes, license plates and bed springs. By noon the trash dumps were no more and 25 teenagers headed for home knowing they had made a difference in their community.

The project was carried out in conjunction with environmental studies in Northville High School's earth science and biology classes.

"Students are learning to think globally about the environment in their classrooms, but they also need to find out they can act locally and really make a difference in the world," Cullik said. "Teenagers have so much energy and such a desire to improve their world. This type of project gives them a chance to make a difference."

Students in Cullik's classes have participated in past projects with Maybury State Park and have also contributed many hours to the annual Rouge River Clean-Up. Students who graduated years ago continue to return to help out with the river clean-up.

RECORD OPINION

4A
November 22, 1993

Our Opinion

Township should take cue from county reps

Wayne County has adopted a policy that Northville Township governmental officials might want to take note of.

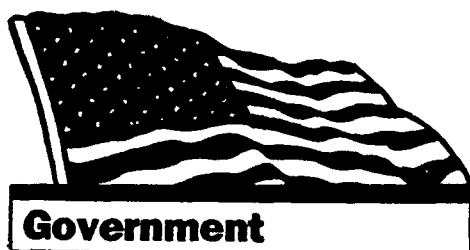

The measure prohibits the use of county-owned cars on the part of elected officials and their staffs.

Under the policy, elected county officials are not permitted to use county cars at all, and no one on the payroll is allowed to use county vehicles for personal reasons.

The ordinance was co-sponsored by Republican Commissioner Thaddeus McCotter, whose district includes the Northville area, Livonia and parts of Plymouth.

The Northville Township Board of Trustees currently is considering a similar measure of its own but can't agree on the how the policy should read. Suggestions include everything from a total ban on elected officials' use of the vehicles to a simple prohibition on taking cars home at night. The concept also includes the idea of somehow marking the cars with an official township logo.

The proposal, drafted by Clerk Sue Hillebrand, has been discussed at public meetings but to date no vote has been taken. Supervisor Karen Baja, the only elected official who drives a car on a regular basis, opposes the ban, as do trustees Mark Abbo and Gini Britton.

Two constables who drive township-owned vehicles also have asked that their access to the cars not be restricted.

We think it would be prudent for trustees to send for a copy of the new county policy and review it, possibly with an eye toward adopting some of its provisions. If it is true, as some officials apparently think, that the privilege of using publicly-owned vehicles is being abused, then clearly some kind of action must be taken.

Minor personal uses of the company car are not serious offenses and run no risk of breaking the bank. But when coupled with other questionable practices like the frivolous use of the township attorney, such abuses call out for measures that ensure greater accountability.

Youth's story justifies existence of help groups

The story of a Northville High School student's decision to seek help after her involvement in a terrifying traffic accident provides vivid testimony of the crucial function of organizations such as Northville Student Assistance.

The youth, whose true identity is concealed in the article about her that appears in today's Record, was a passenger in a friend's truck when the vehicle rolled three times, coming to rest in a water-filled ditch. The couple was headed home from a party at which they had been drinking when the accident occurred. Though the driver was not considered drunk in legal terms, neither was he was not wholly unimpaired.

Fortunately, there were no serious injuries, but the scare was enough to prompt "Lisa" to enroll in Northville Student Assistance programs. Admitting to having urges that drive her to drink, Lisa is receiving counseling for her use of alcohol and marijuana, a drug police once found in her possession.

In addition to Student Assistance, other important community groups are involved in the battle to keep area youth clean. Organizations like Northville Youth Assistance, the Northville Action Council and the Community Commission on Drug Abuse form a solid support system for teens who need help getting their lives back in order after taking a wrong turn on the difficult and often treacherous road to maturity.

Stories like that of Lisa dispel any doubt about the wisdom of restoring full funding to the Student Assistance program, a move the Northville Board of Education took over the summer. It could be said that if even one student is helped by drug abuse resistance efforts, their value has been proven. But, the fact is that local counseling programs don't just help one youth, they help dozens.

Movin' up and out — sort of

Rick Byrne

"That's the news, and I am outta here."

Dennis Miller

For better or worse, I see a lot of comedian Dennis Miller in myself: a slightly smart aleck edge, maybe using too many three-dollar words, and wearing a hairstyle that might be a couple of years too young. But on the whole, just out to have a good time and give people a few laughs. If you harpoon a little hypocrisy along the way, it's gravy.

Therefore, the words which always punctuated his Weekend Update reports seem apropos as I file the final entry of my three-plus-years stint in Northville and Novi. Yeah, it seems the bosses around here want to slap a tie around my neck and make me one of them. By the time you read this I'll be settling into my new job as editor of The Milford Times, a sister paper to the one you hold in your hands.

I wore many hats during my tenure here: copy editor, food editor, business editor, real estate editor, columnist. Some less glorious and informal titles as well: computer repairman, light bulb changer ("Gee, it must be nice to be so tall. You don't need to stand on a chair."), NCAA basketball pool administrator, staff dietitian ("Michelle, you need a raspberry chocolate brownie from Maria's.").

But I guess I didn't realize it until I sat down and reflected on it: practically every minute of the time I was here, I enjoyed myself. There may have been anxiety over deadlines, embarrassment at mistakes I'd made, or anger at the behavior of others. But those things, friends, come with the territory for a journalist (not to mention that they're a real adrenaline kick).

I'm sure somewhere along the line things I've said may have offended (again, part of the turf), but I hope it hasn't lingered. At the same time I've met many friends I didn't know I had.

With that in mind, I'd like to avoid the farewell trap and leave you with something that doesn't sound like an epitaph. After all, I may leave here in a journalistic capacity, but I'll still be on the prowl. I'll continue my search for the perfect pizza, bowl (albeit erratically) with the Novi Spirits, eat chocolate chip muffins from Crawford's and shop once every week or two (whether I need something there or not) at the Big Lots on Seven Mile.

I'll be trading wisdom and practicing the world's oldest profession (tool making, not the other) with Jerry in his shop on Eleven Mile, eating tuna pitas and chili fries from Joseph's Coney Island and lapping at ice cream cones on the bridge at Mill Race.

I'll be driving the convertible (if I ever get the engine back together) in the '50s Festival Cruise, and dusting the race cars (and dusting them again) at the Motorsports Museum and Hall of Fame.

Sometimes I'll just drive down Edward Hines Drive alone when I need to clear my head. Sometimes, wherever you go, you need a special place just for that.

I may be outta here, but I doubt I'm leaving for good.

MEA feedback — pro and con

Phil Jerome

Feedback from last week's column... another tirade against the Michigan Education Association (MEA), which I accused of being anti-student and anti-education.

ITEM I: The caller identified himself as Ted, a local resident and a teacher in Southfield. He's also active in the MEA.

"What can I do to get you to change your mind about the MEA?" he asked.

"Get rid of them," I replied. "Certainly teachers must be able to find a much more responsible organization to represent them than the MEA."

"If you're going to be that way, there's no sense in continuing the conversation," said Ted.

Ted was being reasonable and rational, so the only fair thing to do was return the consideration.

"Sorry, don't mean to sound so harsh," I told him. "But all the facts and figures against the MEA are so overwhelmingly convincing that I doubt you can change my mind. At the same time, I'm always reading to listen to reason."

"Frankly, I don't enjoy feeling the way I do about the MEA. I really and truly would like to believe that they're not anti-student and anti-education. So if you can do something to get me to change my mind, I'm perfectly willing to listen."

I didn't tell Ted that I can also make an argument that the MEA is anti-teacher. There is no question that the MEA has made teaching a financially lucrative position, but a lot of teachers — particularly good young teachers — have been driven out of the profession through layoffs and lack of job opportunities which are a direct consequence of exorbitant salaries and salary increases.

Ted said he would try to get some MEA honchos from Lansing to sit down with me to try to change my mind. I told him I would be available.

ITEM II: The woman told me she was a local teacher. "Uh-oh," I said. "I'll bet you're getting ready to tell me what you think of me."

"Not at all," she replied to my surprise. "I just wanted to tell you that you're right."

"I am just appalled at the attitudes of other teachers," she continued. "A lot of them don't do anything that isn't specifically specified in their contracts. It's really sad."

"No, there's nothing wrong with what you're writing. You're right on."

ITEM III: The Associated Press reports: "Michigan's largest teachers' union was the top contributor for Democratic candidates during 1991 and 1992 elections — giving $914,000, a computer analysis published Monday said."

The Detroit Auto Dealers Association political action committee, at $133,880, was the biggest contributor for Republican campaigns.

The Michigan Education Association gave more than 80 percent of the total campaign costs in the last two months before elections, mostly to special committees controlled by Democratic politicians. The committees are used to skirt contribution laws and target money to close races."

Practice safe habits while in the kitchen

How do you hold a sharp knife when peeling potatoes? Where are those pot handles when cooking on the top of the stove? What are you standing on to reach a top shelf?

The ordinary household is full of potential hazards, food you can choke on, space heaters that start fires, deadly electrical currents, and cleaning agents that can poison. More accidents occur in the home and particularly the kitchen, than anywhere else in the house.

Kitchen knives are one of the most harmful household utensils that cause injury and require medical attention. Use extreme caution when children are around so they cannot get a hold of sharp knives.

When using a knife, make sure your hands are dry. Always store knives where you can see them and not in a drawer where you have to feel around for them. Remember always cut away from you, never toward you. Instead of holding the food in your hand for slicing or dicing, place the food on a board and hold tight with your fingers curled back and away from the sharp blade.

Oven cleaners, detergents, drain cleaner and other household chemicals are responsible for many emergency room visits. Inhaling vapors and sprays, ingestion and skin contact are all ways of being exposed. This exposure can cause skin burns, irritation of the eyes, nose and throat, cancer, damage to the liver, kidney and nervous system.

Use these chemicals only in well ventilated areas. Avoid aerosol sprays as the particles are easily inhaled and quickly absorbed into the blood stream. Make sure these are stored away from children.

Each year some two million people are also poisoned by drugs, medicines, mushrooms and shellfish. Storage is extremely important for these products, keep any and all medications in their original containers so they can be identified easily. Picking wild mushrooms may be fun but only if you know which ones are safe and which are toxic. Shellfish frozen, thawed and held at room temperature too long can cause food poisoning.

Ranges and ovens can burn hands, arms and fingers very quickly. Avoid wearing loose-sleeved shirts around the stove, clothes should have tight-fitting sleeves or even boiling water can result in burns and a trip to the hospital. Keep curtains and dishtowels away from the range areas and never lean on the range or over it.

The range is not a storage bin for food that you're hiding or that the cupboard won't hold. Storing food inside the oven can cause serious problems if you forget and turn the oven on. Instant fire!

Neither should the top of the stove be used as a storage rack for paper, cloth or plastic. Don't store cookies or other food items above the range. You want to keep the children from climbing on or reaching over the range.

Match pan and burner sizes. If you put a small pan on a large burner, the exposed part could cause a fire or a burn.

Use sturdy, stable pots and pans with tight handles. Avoid plastic utensils that can melt, pots with loose handles, pots that are too heavy to move easily when filled with food, and pots that are too small or shallow for deep frying. The grease can spill and ignite easy. Always turn handles to the side of the range to reduce the risk of hitting them and spilling the hot contents.

If there is a grease fire in a pan, turn off the burner, cover the pan with a lid or other flat object. Don't try to pick it up and carry it anywhere. This only fans the flame and makes it burn more fiercely.

If a grease fire starts in the oven, close the oven door and turn off the heat. Keep the door closed. Leave the pan or tea kettle on the burner for a minute or two after turning off the

CHOICE CUTS

Nutritionist teaches low-fat selections

By RICK BYRNE
Copy Editor

Fitness or fatness. That's the choice most Americans face when it comes to food.

If you watch television news shows, you've probably heard about all the other nations in the world that are in better shape than Americans. In almost all cases, diet—in particular, consumption of fat—is the major difference.

"Most Americans consume more fat than we need," says Zimmerman, a registered dietitian and lecturer for Weight Watchers who spoke recently at the Novi Weight Watchers Center. "For the typical person 37 to 40 percent of their calories come from fat. Weight Watchers and many other organizations—the heart association, the cancer society—recommend that you limit your fat to 30 percent of calories."

Why follow a diet lower in fat? We've all heard the reasons, but they're worth repeating because, well, they're pretty darned good reasons.

■ A higher fat diet is linked to an increased risk of heart disease.

■ Certain types of cancers—in particular, breast, colon and prostate cancers—are linked to high fat diets.

■ Obesity occurs in people who consume high fat diets because fat contains double the calories of an equal quantity of carbohydrate.

In short, we could be making better choices. All it takes is a little education about what's in the food we're eating.

"A lot of people don't always know where the fat is in the food they eat," she says. "They know about butter and oil. But they may not know about the hidden fat in meat. There are high fat foods we don't think of as being high fat, like whole milk."

The way you cook can increase the fat content of food too. Anything deep fat fried will increase the fat calories by up to four times.

Short of consulting regularly with a registered dietitian like herself, Zimmerman says the best way to lower the fat in your diet is to read the labels on the food you buy. All food required by the government to carry nutrition labels identifies the total fat per serving in grams, and the total calories per serving.

Most people see calories and grams on a label and get confused. How do you reconcile the two? Zimmerman points out that it's easy if you know that there are 9 calories in every gram of fat.

Given the grams of fat in a food item, and multiplying that number by 9, you get the total calories from fat. Then just divide the total calories by the calories from fat and you'll know your percentage of calories from fat.

"Just divide the total number of calories by the calories from fat, and you get the percentage," says Zimmerman.

When lending her advice at area Weight Watchers centers, Zimmerman likes to stop along the way to do some grocery shopping. She picks up some visual aids to demonstrate the differences in calories from fat.

"In my teaching methods, I like to show people things," she says. "That's the best way I know to educate people. You're actually looking at the fat in certain foods."

For her visit to Novi, she brought along an Oscar Meyer Lunchables package which contained a half dozen crackers, slices of bologna and cheese, and arranged them neatly on a plate.

This popular lunch contained 480 calories, and 38 grams of fat. At 9 calories per gram of fat, that worked out to a whopping 342 calories from fat, or a heart-stopping 71 percent.

One observer piped up, "If I was at a party, I would nibble this in no time."

By comparison, she dished up a turkey sandwich with lettuce and reduced-calorie mayonnaise. The two slices of bread were 40 calories each. Then she tossed on some cucumber slices, a cup of Jello "because I like Jello," and about a pint strawberries, with some mineral water to drink.

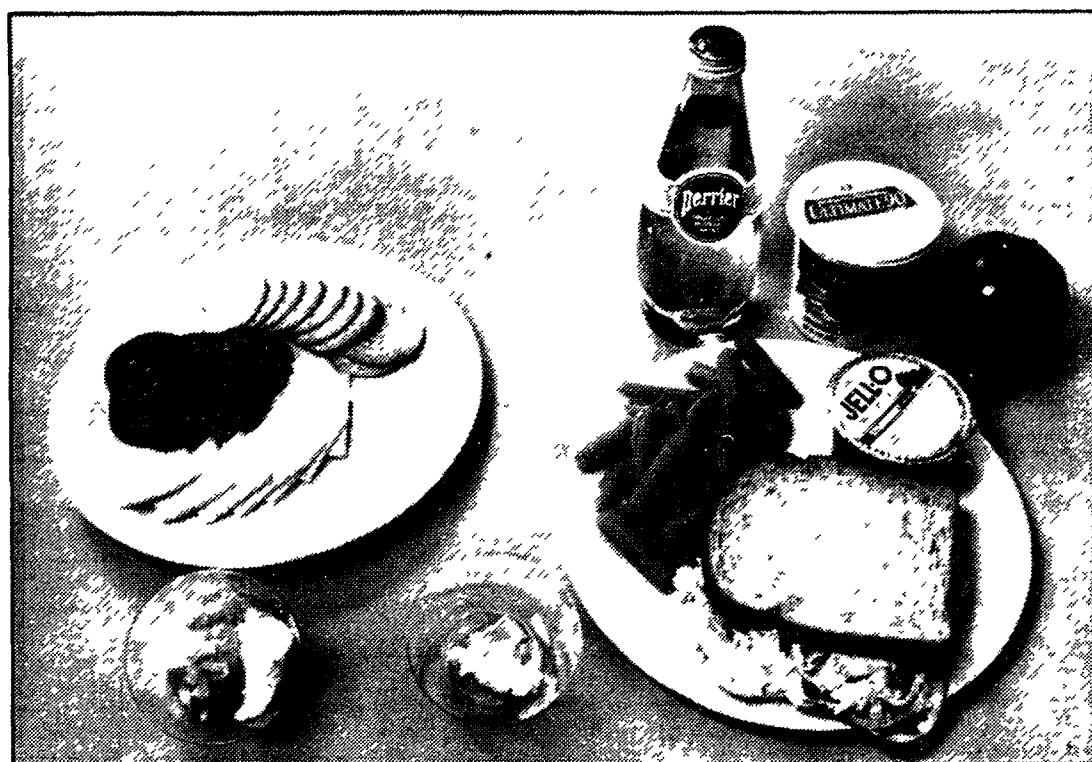

Though the healthier lunch didn't even fit on the plate, it totaled just 466 calories, similar to the Lunchables, this time, though, there were just 6 grams of fat, for a total of 11 percent of the intake.

Snacking, Zimmerman said, doesn't have to be your undoing either. There are good choices to be made at the party store.

Opening a small, 2-ounce bag of potato chips, and setting them on the edge of a plate, she announced that the measly offering was packed with 300 calories, and contained 20 grams of fat, for 60 percent of the total.

She then filled a large bowl with pretzels, pointing out that in this 2-ounce serving, there were 224 calories and a scant 2 grams of fat for just 8 percent of the total.

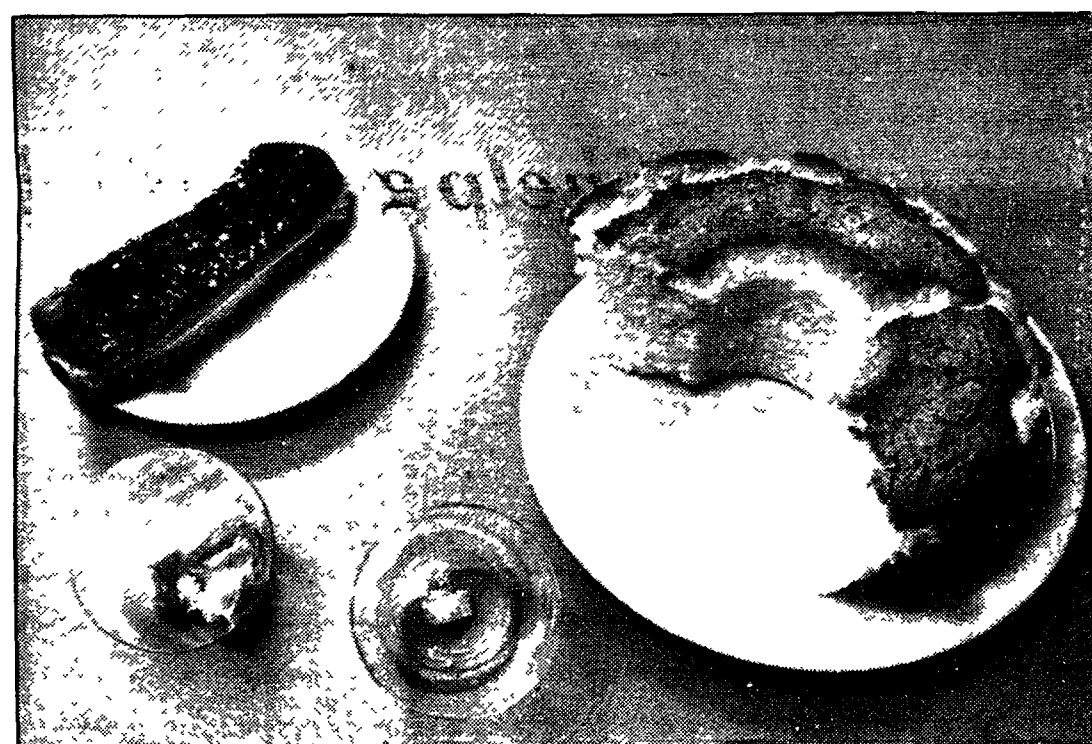

Finally, she placed a single 5-ounce chocolate eclair on a plate. It contained 423 calories, and 37 grams of fat, which translated into a ponderous 79 percent of the total.

On the plate beside it, she placed two thirds of a whole shortcake, again a 5-ounce serving. The mammoth piece of cake contained 380 calories, and just three-tenths of a gram of fat, for just 1 percent of the total.

"Now which would you rather eat?" she asked her audience. "The choice is yours."

The reactions ranged from chuckles to stunned amazement, which Zimmerman says is par for the course.

"I've done this talk about five or six times now, and everybody says the same thing," she says. "They say

"Oh, my God, I can't believe it," and "Thank you for showing us."

Zimmerman emphasized though that you shouldn't starve yourself, or torture yourself by giving up your favorite foods.

"There's nothing wrong with having a candy bar or a cup of ice cream," Zimmerman says. "The words I keep hearing among nutritionists are 'moderation, variety and balance.'"

She admits to a personal weakness for ice cream, and occasionally indulges in a candy bar at work.

Thanksgiving conjures up family memories

Mary Brady

Can you believe that the holidays are upon us?

Once again we face the agonizing tasks of gift buying, party giving, party going, menu planning, Christmas card writing and on and on . . .

I miss the days of childhood when all I had to worry about was how early my mom and dad would let us open presents. Or, trying to find them before mom could wrap them.

With seven children the Christmas tree was loaded underneath. Piles and piles of gifts. How much fun. Now, it has become ritual that we draw names on Thanksgiving and the chore of choosing just the right "something" is made easier since it is only for one.

For me Thanksgiving Day has always been the start of winter and the Christmas season. It is a time that I am reminded of all the blessings that have been bestowed upon me. A family that really, really loves one another and enjoys each others company, health, wonderful friends, and a fabulous husband.

I have a grandmother that is 92 and sharp as a tack. She wins more money at bridge than the 60-year-old spring chickens that play with her.

Never, never have I seen her look anything but elegant. Even in her PJ's she is striking.

And the memories of past years are dear too: of big turkeys and all that go with them.

Grandmother most often made the pies. And what pies they were. Pecan that would melt in your mouth. Sweet potato and pumpkin. All still warm and topped with real whipped cream. Never the canned stuff. Most times we'd have to make more because we all snuck fingerfuls on the sly.

Now, my sister Liz has taken over that duty. Mom was always up at the crack of dawn making dressing and readying a gigantic bird for roasting, peeling pound upon pound of potatoes for mashing, and preparing squash and salad.

These days dad does the dressing. He includes everything but the kitchen sink. I must admit that it is delightful. No longer do we peel potatoes. The skin stays on, more nutrients you know; buttermilk is substituted for milk and butter to cut down on the fat. Personally, I can't tell the difference. I'd rather have the second piece of pie.

And all day the great smell of roasting turkey. The last hour is torture. We are all hungry and can hardly wait. My father has always carved the bird. So far no one wants to take that job away.

Then there are all the little sides. Stuffed celery, big olives, cranberry sauce and Aunt Betty's pickled beets. Yum!

The next day always proves to be a treat also. Leftovers. Great food without the work. My favorite is a cold turkey, dressing, cranberry sauce and mayo sandwich. Simple but very satisfying.

And the soup from the turkey carcass is always incredible. Loaded with vegetables and rice it is a meal in itself. Add a green salad and bread. Magnifico.

And speaking Italian, how about turkey tetrazzini. Chunks of turkey, a sherry cream sauce and spaghetti baked until bubbly. Easy and filling.

Or, turkey quesadillas. Shredded turkey, Chevre, Monterey Jack, tomatoes and grilled onions baked in a flour tortilla. Add the extra turkey to a stirfry or make a frittata.

Don't let your imagination limit your creativity. Buy a bigger turkey and make the hectic days coming up a bit easier.

I wish you all a peaceful, heartwarming Thanksgiving.

THE CHARTER TOWNSHIP OF NORTHVILLE ORDAINS:

Section 1 Amendments to the Charter Township of Northville Code of Ordinances, by adding a Chapter 32, Emergency Response, Clean-up Costs and Expenses. The Code is amended as follows:

32 010 SCOPE: Expense of Emergency Response
The purpose of this ordinance is to protect the health, safety and welfare of the residents of the Charter Township of Northville, and further to enable the Charter Township of Northville to secure reimbursement of costs and expenses from those responsible for the leaking, spilling or otherwise allowing certain dangerous or hazardous substances or materials to escape containment and to recover costs associated with incendiary fires.

32 020 Definitions:

A. Dangerous, Hazardous Substances or Materials:
Dangerous, hazardous substances or materials are defined as any substance which is spilled, leaked or otherwise released from a container, which is harmful to the environment or human or animal life, health or safety, or is obnoxious by reason of odor, or is a threat to the public health, safety or welfare, and shall include but not be limited to such substances as chemicals and gases, explosives, radioactive materials, petroleum or petroleum products or gases, poisons, biological (biologic) agents, flammables or corrosives. B. Expense of an Emergency Response: Expense of an emergency response means reasonable costs incurred by the Charter Township of Northville in making an appropriate response to the incident, including the costs of providing police, fire, fire-fighting and rescue services, water and sewer department services, building department services, and mutual aid provided through additional police or fire services, including, but not limited to the Western Wayne County Fire Department Mutual Aid Association Hazardous Materials Response Team, at the scene of the incident. It shall include, but not be limited to: actual labor costs of personnel, including worker compensation benefits, fringe benefits, administration overhead, costs of equipment operation, costs of materials obtained directly by the Township and the costs of any contract for labor or materials.

C. Equipment Operation, Manpower Costs: Operation costs and manpower costs shall include, but not be limited to, Township Fire, Police, Building and Water Departments, Mutual Aid Departments, Western Wayne County Mutual Aid Association, Hazardous Materials Response Team, or any other agencies that may assist in the emergency response.

A schedule of equipment operation and manpower costs shall be adopted by vote of the Board of Trustees and shall be on file in the Township Clerk's Office as public record.

D. Emergency Response: Emergency response means the clean up or removal of a released hazardous substance or the taking of other actions as may be necessary to prevent, minimize, or mitigate injury to the public health, safety or welfare, or the environment.

Incendiary Fire: Of or involving arson.

32 030 Duty to Remove and Clean Up

It shall be the duty of any person or any other entity which causes or controls leakage, spillage or any other dissemination of dangerous or hazardous substances or materials to immediately remove such, and to clean up the area of such spillage in such a manner that the area involved is fully restored to its condition prior to such happening. The Northville Township Fire Department, in conjunction with the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and/or the Department of Natural Resources (DNR), will inspect said site to make sure the clean up is in compliance with Federal, State and Local guidelines.

32 040 Failure to Remove and Clean Up

If proper action is not taken under 32 030, the Township shall have the right, but not the obligation, to remove and clean up in accordance with 32 030. Any such person or entity which fails to comply with 32 030 hereof, shall be liable to and shall pay the Township for its emergency response costs and expenses, including the cost incurred by the Township to any party which it engages, for the completed abatement, clean up and restoration of the affected area. Costs under this section shall not include actual fire suppression services which are normally or usually provided by the Township.

32 050 Enforcement

If any person or entity who causes or controls leakage, spillage or any other dissemination of hazardous substances or materials fails to "remove and clean up" as required by Section 32 030, that person or entity will be responsible to reimburse the Township for its emergency response expense. The Township shall have the right to bring action in the appropriate court to collect such costs if it deems such action necessary.

32 060 Charges Against Person Liable; Collection of Debt.

The Township shall also have the right to bring an action in the appropriate court to collect costs if it deems such action necessary.

Section 2 Separability

If any section, subsection, clause, phrase or portion of this Ordinance is held invalid for any reason or unconstitutional by any Court of competent jurisdiction, such portion shall be deemed a separate, distinct and independent provision, and such holding shall not affect the validity of the remaining portions thereof.

Section 3 Savings Clause

Section 4 Repeal of Conflicting Ordinances

All ordinances or parts of ordinances in conflict herewith are hereby repealed only to the extent necessary to give this Ordinance full force and effect.

Section 5 Effective Date

This ordinance may be adopted by the Township Board of the Charter Township of Northville at their next regular/special meeting.

Cutting fat means careful choices

"I'll have ice cream a couple of times a week," she says. "So I'm not saying don't eat chocolate eclairs and croissants. Just realize what you're eating and make the choice."

Total abstinence from fat isn't necessarily healthy either, so Zimmerman recommends that if you must cook with it, look for unsaturated fat. The advantage of unsaturated fats lie in their effect on your blood cholesterol levels. Unsaturated fats are easy to spot because they are generally liquid at room temperature.

There are two kinds of unsaturated fats to distinguish between: polyunsaturated fats include soybean, safflower and corn oils, and monounsaturated oils include canola, peanut and olive oils. All can stabilize or lower your blood cholesterol levels, Zimmerman says.

"Fat is still fat," she says. "All fats still contain the same number of calories. But this is just a more heart-healthy choice. It doesn't stop obesity."

If, after evaluating what you've got in your pantry, you discover that you've been hoarding a lot of hidden fat, it's not cause to panic, Zimmerman says.

"You can make gradual changes," she says. "If you're drinking whole milk, switch to 2-percent first; then move on to 1 percent or half percent or skim. This isn't something you do temporarily, so doing it slowly will make it an easier transition."

For the fat-conscious, there is good news on the horizon, too. New federal laws will change the nutritional labeling of foods, and more products will have to be labeled.

"More information on fat content will be provided, and that should help people with their decision-making," Zimmerman says. The percentage of calories from fat will be posted, so you won't need to do the math. "If you realize what's in it, you can decide if it's worth it for you."

Wheat germ gives nutrition a boost

Vitamin E and its antioxidant partners, vitamin C and beta carotene, are being dubbed "cardio-nutrients" by some health professionals due to increasing evidence of their ability to protect against heart disease.

How does this new research translate into a daily diet? While vitamin C and beta carotene are more easily obtained from the foods we eat, vitamin E is present only in relatively small amounts. Furthermore, national food consumption data show that most adults do not get the recommended amounts of vitamin E, especially as they grow older.

Good food sources of vitamin E include wheat germ, fortified breakfast cereals, shellfish, sunflower seeds and leafy green vegetables. According to the latest FDA regulations, in order for a serving to be considered a good source it must provide 10 to 19 percent of the Daily Value (U.S. RDA).

Of all the good food sources of vitamin E, wheat germ is the most versatile. And wheat germ is easy to add to meals and snacks. It can be sprinkled on hot and cold breakfast cereal, fruit, salads, casseroles; used as a coating for poultry, fish and vegetables; and added to lean ground meat when making meatloaf, meatballs and burgers.

Here are some recipes from Kretschmer wheat germ to try.

WHOLE WHEAT VEGETABLE PIZZA

- 1/2 cup sliced mushrooms
- 1/2 cup each: red, yellow, green bell pepper strips
- 1/2 cup sliced onion
- 1/2 cup tomato sauce
- 2 teaspoons Parmesan cheese
- 1/2 teaspoon Italian seasoning
- 1/2 cup all-purpose flour
- 1/2 cup wheat germ
- 1/2 teaspoon baking powder
- 1/2 cup skim milk
- 1 tablespoon vegetable oil

Heat oven to 425. Lightly spray baking sheet with no-stick cooking spray; set aside. Place vegetables in small microwaveable container; cover loosely. Microwave at (HIGH) 1 minute 30 seconds or until crisp-tender; set aside.

Combine tomato sauce, Parmesan cheese and Italian seasoning; set aside. Combine flour, wheat germ and baking powder. Stir in milk and oil; mix well.

With lightly oiled fingers, pat dough onto baking sheet shaping into 8 to 9-inch circle with 1/2-inch rim. Bake 5 minutes. Spread sauce over crust. Top with vegetables.

Bake an additional 10 to 12 minutes or until crust is golden brown. Serves 2.

FROSTY FRUIT SMOOTHIE

- 1 carton (8 ounce) vanilla low-fat yogurt
- 1 cup sliced peaches (canned or fresh)
- 1 medium ripe banana
- 1/2 cup wheat germ
- 1/2 cup orange juice
- 1 cup ice cubes

Place all ingredients in blender container or food processor bowl; cover. Blend about 1 minute or until smooth. Serve immediately. Garnish with fresh fruit and additional wheat germ if desired. Serves 2.

SOUTHWESTERN CHICKEN

- 1/2 cup wheat germ
- 1 teaspoon chili powder
- 1 teaspoon ground cumin
- 1 teaspoon instant minced onion
- 1/2 teaspoon garlic powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt (optional)
- 1/2 teaspoon cayenne pepper
- 1 tablespoon water
- 1 egg white
- 2 skinless, boneless chicken breast halves
- Fresh prepared salsa, optional

Heat oven to 400 degrees. Lightly spray 8-inch square baking dish with no-stick cooking spray.

Combine wheat germ and seasonings; set aside. Beat water and egg white until frothy. Dip chicken into egg white mixture then into wheat germ mixture. Dip and coat chicken again in remaining egg white and wheat germ mixtures, coating chicken thoroughly. Place chicken in prepared pan. Bake 20 to 22 minutes or until done. Serve with salsa. Serves 2.

Back-to-back 'Bonanza'

tributes on NBC

By JEFF PLASS

"Bonanza: The Return," airing Sunday, Nov. 28, on NBC, is a perfect example of a good idea gone awry.

When Michael Landon Jr. came up with the nucleus of the idea which would become "Bonanza: The Return," it seemed like a good one.

"I was very excited about the fact that I would be working where my father (Michael Landon Sr.) started his career," Landon says, "I was eager to work and this seemed like a great opportunity."

However, what may have been originally intended as a touching tribute to America's second longest-running Western series, turns out to be a major disappointment, lacking both originality and character.

As a prelude to the film, NBC will be airing a one-hour special, "Back to Bonanza," which may serve as a better tribute to the original show. Memorable moments from more than 400 hours of television highlight the special. It includes scenes from groundbreaking episodes which dealt with controversial issues of that time.

"Bonanza: The Return" also includes some scenes from the original series, told in flashback. Unfortunately, these serve as a bleak reminder to the viewer just how much this movie lacks in comparison to "Bonanza."

The plot of the movie has the grandchildren of Ponderosa patriarch Ben Cartwright coming together to save their beloved ranch from a conniving tycoon. Dean Stockwell, of "Quantum Leap" fame, plays Augustus Brandenburg, the unscrupulous hombre whose intentions are to take over the Ponderosa and strip mine it for coal.

However, Ben Cartwright's dying request to his dear friend Bronc Evans (Ben Johnson) was that Bronc gather his children's offspring to take over the reins of the ranch.

Enter Benj (Landon Jr.), Sara, Josh and A.C. Cartwright.

"It's a dream come true for me," Landon says. "To get a chance to play my father's son in a Western that was a classic in its time, was just a neat experience."

"Of course, the downside would be the comparison aspect. It's not a comparison to my father when he was starting out. It's the man that became the writer-producer-director-star that I'm being compared to. But that was something that wasn't going to stop me from an experience like this."

Sadly, Landon's portrayal of Benj Cartwright could not be less comparable to his father's role as Little Joe. For starters, Landon Jr. exhibits little of the charisma, screen presence or emotive ability that his father was famous for.

In a scene where Benj's sister Sara has been knocked unconscious due to a nasty fall from a wagon, Benj kneels by her bed and murmurs, "Sara, you gotta wake up, you hear me? You gotta wake up...please!"

Making matters worse is the rest of the new Cartwright clan.

Adam Cartwright's son, A.C., speaks with an atrocious Scottish accent. Hoss Cartwright's illegitimate son, Josh, is given to melancholy outbursts such as, "I never got a chance to know my pa."

Dirk Blocker, the son of the late Dan Blocker, who played Hoss Cartwright in the original series, appears in this film as newspaper reporter Walter Fenster. He says, "Well, it was a great deal of fun, which is basically what I try to take away from anything I do. And when you're saddled with people like I worked with here, what's not to love."

Other than the finished produce? Nothing.

As one might expect, the film contains an obligatory barroom brawl, a carriage careening over a cliff and even a scene with the Cartwright grandkids throwing handfuls of filthy hay at one another.

Unfortunately, these are the highlights.

For the most part, "Bonanza: The Return" flounders around searching for a reason for being, and comes up short.

LET'S TALK

Miscellaneous Wayne films; sordid tale of tortured Walkers

BY TAYLOR MICHAELS

Q: I am a big John Wayne fan; I have collected 64 of his films on videotape. Can you tell me how many movies he made? —Virginia Walton, Turlock, Calif.

A: Well, Virginia, you've got quite a way to go before your collection will be complete, because Wayne acted in more than 250 films. However, here are some bits of trivia that may assist you in your search. In Wayne's earliest films, he appears unbilled; the first one is "The Drop Kick," in which Wayne, who attended USC on a football scholarship, plays a member of the USC football team. His other small, unbilled roles include "Hangman's House," "Cheer Up and Smile," "Rough Romance" and "The Deceiver," in which he plays a corpse. Wayne also appeared as Duke Morrison in the early days of his career in films like "Words and Music." He acted in the serials "The Hurricane Express," "Shadow of the Eagle" and "The Three Musketeers," did stunts in "Melody Ranch," produced "The Bullfighter and the Lady," and had a cameo in "I Married a Woman."

Q: I recently viewed an old "Perry Mason" rerun on a local channel. I thought I recognized one of the actors as Robert Walker Jr. In the credits, though, the name Michael Walker was given. Since the resemblance was so striking, I assume Michael is the brother of Robert Jr. and the son of Robert Sr. Am I correct? Is Robert Sr. still alive? Also, can you give me a little more information about Robert Jr.?

A: You are correct. Michael and Robert Jr. are the sons of actor Robert Sr. ("Bataan," "Till the Clouds Roll By") and Phyllis Isley (also known as Jennifer Jones in films such as "The Song of Bernadette" and "A Farewell to Arms"). Robert Jr. was born in 1940, Michael in 1941; their parents divorced in 1945. Hard-drinking

John Wayne

Robert Sr. died in 1951 of an overdose of sedatives a doctor had given him to combat his emotional outbursts. Robert Jr. first made a living playing bongos in European nightclubs before entering films in the early '60s. His film credits include "Ensign Pulver," "The War Wagon," "Easy Rider," "The Man From O.R.G.Y.," "Beware — The Blob!" "The Spectre of Edgar Allan Poe" (as Poe) and "God Bless Dr. Shagetz."

Susan Haskell shines as Marty on 'OLTL'

BY CANDACE HAVENS

It wasn't long ago that Susan Haskell, who portrays Marty Saybrooke on "One Life to Live," graduated cum laude with a bachelor of science in biopsychology from Tufts University in Boston. Haskell discovered she enjoyed acting while at Tufts and decided to pursue her dream at the American Academy of Dramatic Arts.

In January of 1992 Haskell landed the plum role of Marty, a troubled teen with Lupus. This past summer the actress was thrown into a major front-burner story line when her character, who was in a drunken stupor, was raped by three fraternity brothers. In the process of recovering from the rape and seeing her attackers sent to prison, Marty began to change her life for the better and became a role model for several of her peers.

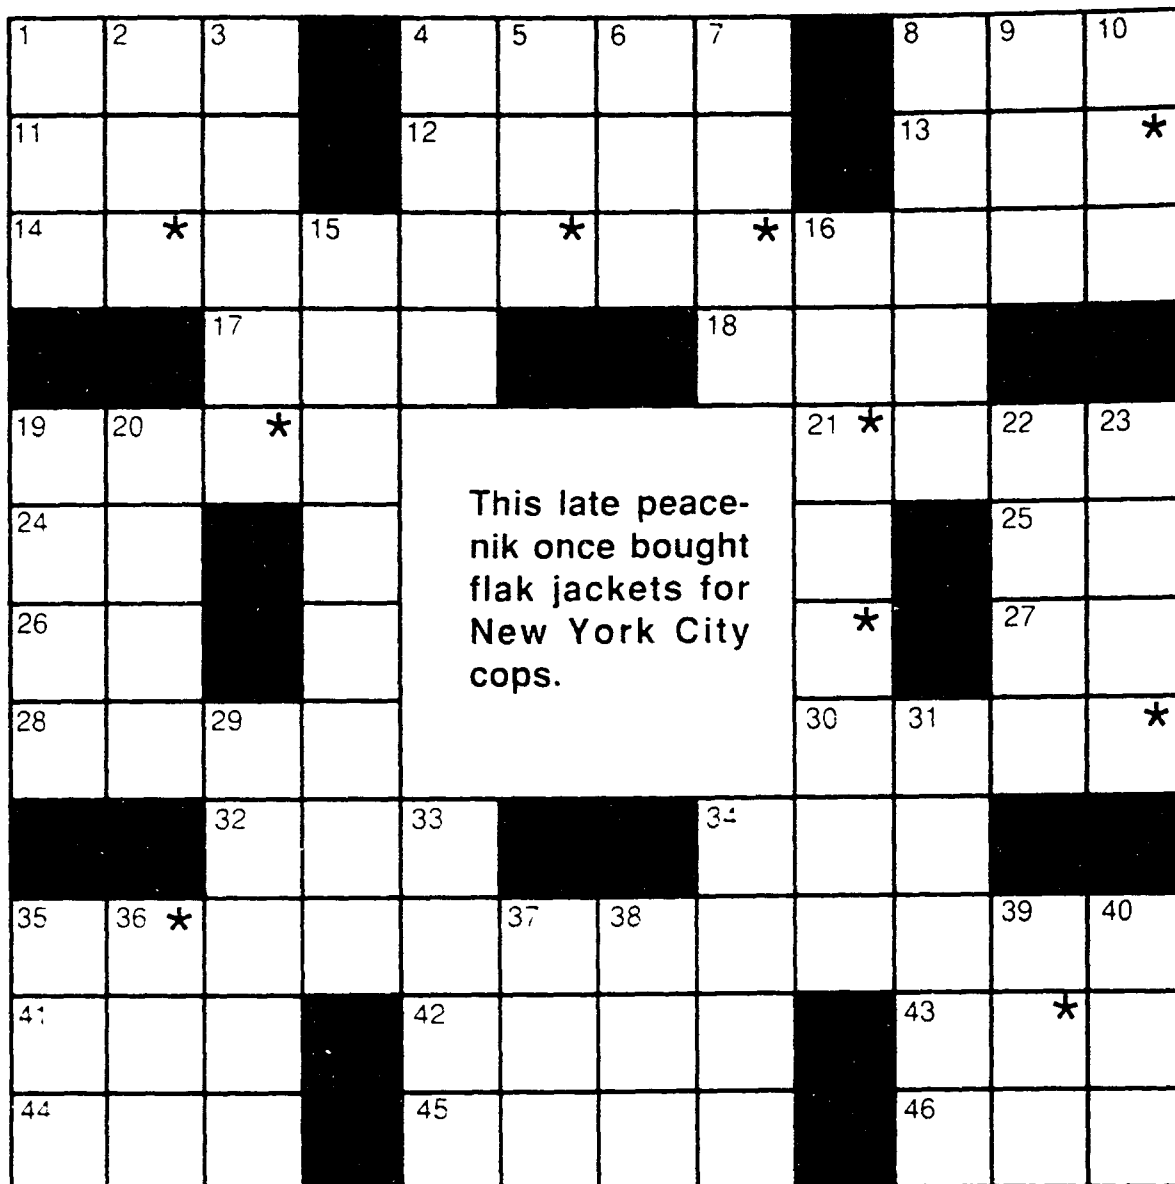

"Marty has been through a very difficult time," says Haskell, "but I think it is wonderful how the show has handled the situation. I mean, no one should ever be gang raped; it is horrendous, but as an actress playing the character it has been very exciting.

"I also enjoy working with the people on 'OLTL.' They are all so talented, from the cameraman to the producers to the actors. Everyone jokes around and teases one another, but when it is time to shoot a scene it is serious business. People are also very supportive. When it came time to do the rape scene they called for quiet on the set and then the director gave the actors time to really prepare for it."

Haskell says she enjoys acting and plans on seeing how far she can go with her career, but she is also interested in continuing her education in the field of medicine. Her boyfriend, Tom, is a doctor and he is doing his residency in Florida. The actress tries to see him as much as possible, but it isn't always easy with "OLTL" being based out of New York.

"Whenever I'm not working for a few days I head down to see Tom," says Haskell. "I love to get away from everything and just run on the beach and be with him. It is really good for my head and it helps me keep things in perspective."
