School head seeks least harmful plan

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

In adding up the things he dislikes about Proposal A and its statutory backup plan, Northville Public Schools Superintendent Dr. Leonard Reznierski was hard-pressed to make a choice between the two.

But because it gives the school district slightly more flexibility, Reznierski said, he believes the statutory plan "less negatively affects public education."

That's why when he pulls the curtain in the voting booth next Tuesday, March 15, Reznierski will probably vote against A.

Under the statutory plan, the state income tax would be increased from 4.6 percent to 6 percent to help fund public education. The ballot plan known as Proposal A would amend the state constitution to raise the sales tax rate from 4 percent to 6 percent and cap property assessment increases.

Under the statutory plan, a 12-mill state property tax will be levied on all non-homestead properties, and local school districts will be allowed to levy up to 12 additional voter-approved mills on all property subject to Headlee rollback requirements.

Under the ballot plan, the state property tax would only be 6 mills but would be levied on all property, and local districts would levy 18 mills on non-homestead property only. A homestead property is a primary residence owned by the resident, not a second home or business.

The superintendent admits that the backup plan has a few flaws of its own as far as public education is concerned. But he noted that it allows a few more options in terms of levying enhancement millages and issuing bonds to pay for infrastructure improvements.

Irate parents protest attendance boundaries

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

Parents from all over the Northville school district were united on one point Monday — their dissatisfaction with proposed elementary and middle school attendance boundaries.

What they divided over was how to rearrange proposed boundaries to address all their complaints.

For nearly three hours, irate residents lined up at two microphones in the Northville High School Forum to register their dissatisfaction with the school administration's proposals for the 1994/95 school year.

The school board was on hand at the 7:30 p.m. meeting to hear the complaints and review them before considering a final proposal March 14. The board had hoped to make a final decision at that meeting.

Dozens of parents and two middle school students stood up to plead that the administration let the few students in their household or on their street stay in their current school district, or be transferred to the same middle school as the rest of the neighborhood's kids when they move up from the elementary level.

Transferring to a new school could damage their children's self-esteem by taking them out of their peer groups, the speakers argued, and made no economic sense in areas where the children can now walk to school.

Parents also questioned optimal school capacity figures proposed in January by a committee of local residents who spent four months studying the school system.

The most controversial plan was one to transfer many students now attending Cooke Middle School to Meads Mill, including some who are now within walking distance of Cooke. Under the proposal, all students west of Beck and those within an area bounded roughly by Eight Mile, Rodgers, Main and Griswold would go to Meads Mill.

The change in the central city middle school boundaries was made after the deadline for last week's Northville Record article and graphics describing the new boundaries. Proposed elementary boundaries designed to incorporate the new Thornton Creek school remain unchanged from last week's issue.

Administration officials apparently added to the anger and confusion last Friday when they considered adding Brookland Farms residents in Novi Township to the new Meads Mill attendance boundary area.

David Bolitho, assistant superintendent for administrative services, sent a map home with Amerman students that day showing the potential change but did not incorporate it into the final proposal.

Lake Street resident Marlene Curlew asked why the middle school changes impacted her Cabagetown neighborhood after her neighbors had organized a letter-writing campaign against a similar proposal last year.

"The board told us then that we moved close enough to Cooke not to have bus service this year," she said. "Now you're going to put us to Meads Mill? Who did you accommodate since the last meeting so you're not accommodating us anymore?"

Bolitho said the changes were based on further review of student enrollment projections rather than the administration's attempt to accommodate any one group.

"No matter how we cut this thing, we're going to affect a small group of kids," he said.

Members of the Holland family will lose their Eight Mile home when Novi's new sports park is built.

Family may lose home as result of municipal park

and JAN JEFFRES
Staff Writers

Good news for the Novi community could be bad news for one Novi family, who may be forced out of their rented home when the city's new sports park is built.

While Novi officials were assembling parcels of land for their new 72-acre sports park at the northeast corner of Eight Mile and Napier roads, they purchased the 51,000 Eight Mile Road property that's been the home of the Holland family for the past two years.

No decision has been made on the property, said Novi Parks and Recreation Director Dan Davis. The city is still seeking requests for proposals to design the new park.

"Is it in good enough shape that it can be used for park purposes?" he wondered.

In the meantime, the City of Novi is the Hollands' new leaseholder, and the family is paying the city $200 per month on a month-by-month basis under the same terms they had with previous owner B & R Associates. The understanding with the previous owner appeared to be that they do some work to fix up the place, Davis said.

"At this point we do not have any definite deadline nor did we give them any notice at this point. . . . We'll keep them posted as to what we're doing and we'll give them as much notice as possible," he said.

This will not be the first time the Hollands have been left without a home. A January, 1992, fire in their former Eight Mile rental property destroyed much of the farmhouse and all of the Hollands' possessions. The Northville-based relief organization Civic Concern stepped in at that time to help the Hollands find their new home.

Now the family is wondering where to go again.

"It's me and my wife and three kids and my mother-in-law, and I don't know where I could take six people," said Don Holland. He noted that his salary from construction and landscape work at South Lyon's Tanglewood Golf Course does not leave much room for a higher rent. "I don't think I can afford much over $500," he said.

Don's wife Maxine noted that the family has forged strong bonds in the Northville area. Aside from past help by Civic Concern, she said, their three children, ages 12, 10 and se-

DSS ducks questions about new group home

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

There's likely to be a new group home in Northville Township soon — and there's not much its opponents can do about it.

That's the bottom line members of the board of trustees, the township's lawyer and its state legislators gave to a standing-room-only crowd at a March 3 public hearing on the subject.

Michigan's Department of Social Services (DSS) has the final say on whether the home, proposed for an existing house on Winchester, will be approved. It also licenses and regulates the private firm which wants to open the group home. Officials said that the state holds all the cards in this case and the township has few realistic options.

Options.

The board must respond to the state's notification of the group home plan by March 29; it's expected to make a decision as early as tonight's meeting.

The Mizpah Group Home Inc., a Detroit firm, has leased the home from its owner. It will become the home of four mentally disabled adults if the state approves, Supervisor Karen Baja said. Hard facts about the situation are hard to come by, she said, because state officials are not answering the township's questions.

Despite repeated requests, no one from the DSS would attend the hearing. Township officials had many questions, such as: the background of those selected for the home, the backgrounds of the staff, regulation of its

Township releases terms of settlement

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

The separation agreement between Northville Township its former manager is, in a word, a tradeoff.

Township officials last week complied with The Northville Record's Freedom of Information Act request for the written contract which ended Manager Bill Richard's employment.

Richards resigned his post effective Jan. 31 after requesting a medical leave of absence just days before. The situation gave rise to much pri-

News Briefs

NEW HEARINGS ON RESTRUCTURED HIGH SCHOOL DAY: Northville High School Principal Dr. Tom Johnson has scheduled two additional open forums on the district's plan to restructure the high school day. The forums, scheduled for Tuesday, March 15, and Wednesday, March 30, will be held at 7 p.m. in the high school forum. Under the restructure plan, teachers will brainstorm curriculum improvements in a two-hour conference period each Wednesday morning, and classes will not start until 10:40 a.m. The one-year pilot program begins this September.

PARKS AND RECREATION FUND-RAISER: Local Realtors Roger and Joan Kolassa are conducting a unique fund-raising event for the Friends of Northville Parks and Recreation. The Kolassas, who work out of the Century 21 office at 33607 Seven Mile Road, will donate $100 to the group whenever any resident lists their home or buys a home with them. The money will be forwarded to the Friends on the closing date.

The offer is good through July 1. The Kolassas can be reached at 477-1800 or 1-800-521-4921.

ARTS SERIES: The Northville Arts Commission is again sponsoring its Michael Farrell Lecture series. Farrell, an associate professor of art history at the University of Windsor, will speak on the 17th century masters Jan Vermeer and Rembrandt on March 17 and April 14, respectively. The Rembrandt lecture was rescheduled from Jan. 19. All lectures will take place in the Northville High School Forum at 7:30 p.m. Season tickets are $15, available in advance. Individual tickets sell for $6 at the door. For information, call 349-6104.

ARTS COMMISSION SEEKS MEMBERS: The Arts Commission is seeking new members to round out its 15-person board.

The commission meets the third Tuesday of the month at Northville City Hall. Members plan cultural events that take place in the area. In addition to needing permanent members, the commission is also seeking help on two special projects: the Art Market and the Summer Music Series.

Those interested in joining the commission or volunteering for the special projects can call Kathryn Peltier at 348-7026. For information about Arts Commission activities, call 349-6104.

Business Expo to showcase locals

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

The fourth annual Networking Northville Business Expo, showcase for the community's retailers and restaurants, returns to Northville High School next Wednesday, March 16.

The exposition, sponsored by the Northville Chamber of Commerce, is a way for local merchants to swap stories and meet their potential customers firsthand, and for local residents to sample the wares offered by their hometown retailers.

The 7-10 p.m. event will be held in the high school's food court. Admission is $5 per person.

Along with the 45 businesses and 12 non-profit organizations that have reserved display tables for this year's event, more than a dozen local eateries will be baking up samples of their cuisine, said Chamber Executive Director Laurie Marrs. She noted that the evening gives local businesses a chance to show off new products while restaurants can taste-test new menu items.

"The non-profits benefit from the exposure, and the businesses certainly benefit because some of the residents don't even know they exist," she said.

Business owners will give demonstrations of their products and services, Marrs said, from nail painting and hair styling to aerobics. Many retailers will be handing out free gifts as well.

The eateries include Caffe Bravo, Crawford's Restaurant under the new ownership of Jim Pawlina, Crawford's Bakery Connection, Edward's Caterer, Good Time party Store, Hungry Howie's, Heavenly Bakery, Northville Gourmet and Wine Shoppe, Papa Romano's, Rocky's of Northville, Sundowner and Woolly Bull's. The brand-new Wooden Roast Restaurant will also be on hand serving Persian chicken and other exotic delights.

"Where else can you go for $5 a person and get this kind of entertainment, food and exposure," Marrs asked. "You can spend three hours there, and so many people do."

Between 400-500 people attended last year's exposition, and Marrs said even more are expected this year. Expo organizers have also taken steps to assure that this year's attendees are more comfortable.

"One of the biggest complaints last year was that it was too crowded," Marrs said. "We're going to take some tables out so we're not quite as packed this year."

Chef Chuck Rachwitz, the owner of Rocky's, will whip up some of his specialty dishes for the Business Expo.

Man arrested, found with drug pipes, needles

Township police arrested a 34-year-old Detroit man for larceny and possession of drug paraphernalia at Meijer's on March 3.

Store detectives stopped the man after they saw him put a $100 cordless drill in his coat and and $16 worth of batteries in the pockets of his jeans, reports said. While frisking the subject, they found two crack cocaine pipes, a hypodermic needle and teaspoon in his coat pocket, reports continued.

The suspect admitted his stole the merchandise, the responding township police officer said, and said there were more needles in his 1985 Chevrolet Celebrity in the parking lot. He pled guilty in 35th District Court to both charges and was sentenced to an area correctional facility.

SUSPENDED LICENSE ARRESTS: City police arrested three people for driving on suspended licenses last week.

A 25-year-old South Lyon woman was picked up at 12:45 p.m. March 1 after she was stopped for speeding. Her license had been suspended for failing to appear in a Farmington Hills court on a charge of driving with an expired license. She was also wanted by Detroit police for an outstanding fleeing and eluding charge.

City police released the woman after she posted a total of $200 in cash bonds.

A 35-year-old Ann Arbor man was arrested later that afternoon after police stopped him at Eight Mile and Taft for speeding. The man had failed to comply with a court judgment in Ypsilanti Township. He was released after posting an $80 bond.

At 6 a.m. March 7, city police arrested a 26-year-old Farmington woman after stopping her for speeding on Eight Mile west of Center. Aside from the failure to comply with a Walled Lake court judgment that resulted in her license being suspended, the woman's record contained charges of speeding, reckless driving, disobeying a traffic signal and making a prohibited turn.

Her license had been suspended once before for failing to comply with a court judgment for a speeding offense in Allen Park.

She was released after posting a $500 personal recognizance bond.

OUIL: Township police arrested a Farmington Hills resident on March 7 for operating a vehicle while under the influence of liquor (OUIL).

The reporting officer in the case said he saw the 45-year-old man driving his 1989 Cadillac at 65 miles per hour eastbound on Eight Mile. When the officer stopped him, he noted an odor of intoxicants from inside the car. The man had slurred speech and had difficulty completing his sentences, the officer said.

The man admitted he had been drinking. When asked how much he had, the man replied "probably too much," reports said.

He failed field sobriety tests, was arrested and taken to police headquarters. Breathalyzer testing there showed him to have a blood alcohol level of .17 percent, over the legal limit.

DOMESTIC DISPUTE LEADS TO WARRANT ARREST: City police responded to a report of family trouble just before midnight March 2 and ended up arresting a 47-year-old Northville man. The man was wanted by Detroit police on a misdemeanor warrant for open alcohol in a motor vehicle. He was turned over to the Detroit police department.

OUIL: Township police arrested a Metamora resident for operating a vehicle while under the influence of liquor (OUIL) on March 6.

The reporting officer was going eastbound on Seven Mile near Northridge when he came upon the man's 1993 Ford Taurus traveling in the same direction. The vehicle was speeding, the officer said, and crossed the white dotted line separating the two eastbound lanes. After turning left onto Haggerty the vehicle again began speeding, reports said.

The officer pulled the man over on Haggerty just north of Eight Mile. The 32-year-old man had slurred speech and red eyes, the officer said, and his breath smelled of intoxicants. He said he was coming from a birthday party at Woolly Bully's and had been drinking.

The man failed field sobriety tests and was arrested. Preliminary breath testing at the scene showed him to have a blood alcohol level of .17, above the legal limit. The man refused to take the regular Breathalyzer test at police headquarters.

While making his decision, the officer said, the man repeated several times that he "was screwed either way." The man also told police the birthday party was for a cop. They were buying him shots, the man said, so what could he do?

CHILD NEGLECT CHARGE: A 42-year-old Plymouth man arrested at Northville Downs March 5 was released after he posted a $906 cash bond. The arrest warrant and bond were for a child neglect charge.

Citizens with information about the above incidents are urged to call Northville City Police at 349-1234 or Northville Township Police at 349-9400.

Petrie sees Washington up close as a House page

By LEE SNIDER
Editor

Northville High School junior Lindsay Petrie witnessed the workings of the federal government up close and personal, and — lo and behold — she was impressed.

"I thought everything worked so efficiently," said Lindsay, who served as a page in the U.S. House of Representatives for several months last fall and this winter. "Everything fit together and was so well organized. I feel they (in Congress) get a bad rap."

Lindsay was recommended for a pageship by Congressman William Ford, who wanted to reach out to Democrats in the Northville area, a community he didn't represent until after the recent redrawing of congressional districts.

Lindsay's father, Jim, a Northville Township resident, is an active Democratic partisan.

As a page, Lindsay lived in a special dorm and started school at 6:45 a.m. Her classes were dismissed before noon and she was allowed to report to her position on Capitol Hill during late morning.

The teen performed a number of official duties for elected officials, running dispatches to members of the House and serving as an assistant in the office of Speaker Thomas Foley.

She also stood on the floor of the House when President Clinton delivered his State of the Union address in January.

"He was great, he knew his politics well," she said of the chief executive. "I was impressed with everybody's level of knowledge."

One of the most exciting events Lindsay said she attended was the ceremony commemorating the bicentennial of the Statue of Freedom, the monument that bestrides the Capitol Building.

But the fast pace of activity and the swarms of international press people in and around Congress made for an invigorating experience everyday she was in Washington.

"It was really great. You just learn so much over such a short period of time. You feel like you're overwhelmed," she said.

According to Lindsay, there are three types of pages: runners, who shuttle dispatches from one office to another; cloak room pages, who bring telephone messages to members of Congress on the floor; and documentarians, who ring the bell after roll call votes and bring vote tallies to an office for recording.

There are three congressional office buildings, all linked to the Capitol by an intricate tunnel system.

Lindsay said despite representatives' busy schedules, many members of Congress were willing to spend a few minutes with her and the other pages.

"The Congressmen were very nice, they always stopped to talk to us. I had conversations with a lot of them."

Lindsay Petrie of Northville Township returned from her stay in Washington with a number of souvenirs.

Lindsay's term in Washington was an especially eventful one, and came at a time when the North American Free Trade Agreement and the Brady Bill were being debated.

In addition, Congressman Ford announced he was ending his 30-year congressional career while Lindsay was working for him.

The earn a pageship recommendation, students must maintain at least a 3.0 grade point average and be active in their schools and their communities.

Lindsay was sophomore class president last year and has worked on the yearbook staff.

Though her experience as a page was terrific, Lindsay said she's not quite ready to sign on to a career in public life.

"It does make you want to go into politics, but I'll have to see what happens. I'm really not sure."

Board, Henningsen come to terms

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

Northville Township's new administrative consultant is ready to begin work as the board of trustees turns its attention to the hunt for a new manager.

The board at its Feb. 24 meeting voted to see if former manager Dick Henningsen would come on board as a temporary manager. His job will be to handle specific projects the board assigns him left on the back burner because of former manager Bill Richards' departure.

The move, supporters say, will give the township some breathing room while it decides what to do in the long-term.

The board at its March 3 study session indicated that a contract outlining the terms of Henningsen's employment and a list of projects for him to work will be on the board's agenda for tonight's meeting (March 10). Henningsen at the study session indicated all systems are on his end, and he is expected to start on Monday.

"I appreciate your confidence in me," he told the board. "Certainly I can do some things to take the pressure off you. I'm eager to start."

Among them are things like the ongoing consideration of roof repairs to Township Hall, planning remodeling of the Hall to comply with the federal Americans with Disabilities (ADA) Act, towing bids and cable rates.

Henningsen served as township treasurer for many years and as manager before Richards was hired. Richards resigned his post last month.

The board also bounced around ideas of how to fill the vacant post on a permanent basis. Trustee Mark Abbo proposed seeing if Plante & Moran, the township's accounting firm, would help out in the search for a new manager.

The firm, one of the largest around, could help spread the word of the job opening, Abbo said, and be involved in the review and interview process. It could even shortlist some finalists, Abbo said. The firm has helped out in the past when the board looked for finance directors, Henningsen indicated.

He agreed to contact Plante & Moran and get their feel for the idea, and is expected to update the board at tonight's meeting.

Some board members wondered how the possibility of Northville's consolidation might affect the situation.

If the City and Township were likely to or actually did become one municipal unit, they asked, would that deter manager candidates from applying? Would there be a job for the manager in the new single municipality?

Those and other questions await the board as they look for a new tenant for the corner office at Township Hall.

Richards and township agree to sign a tradeoff

vate speculation as to the reasons for his leaving. Both he and members of the board of trustees have refrained from commenting on the matter publicly.

The four-page agreement finalizes Richards' resignation. It was signed last month by him and Supervisor Karen Baja on behalf of the township. The contract gives Richards monetary compensation and the township immunity against any future legal dangers.

Under the terms, Richards receives 60 days of severance pay, as well as pay for his remaining sick leave, personal and vacation days. When calculated against his yearly salary, the settlement works out to approximately $16,000-$18,000.

In return, the former manager agrees to give up any right to pursue legal action against the township related to this issue—a "full and final release of all claims" in the legalese of the contract.

Township firm takes ownership of Ford plant

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

R & D Enterprises of Northville Township is now the official owner of the former Ford Valve Plant, following a recent property closing with Ford Motor Co. and the city of Northville.

The complex deal also resulted in Ford's donation of more than eight acres in recreation land and waterway to Northville City.

Ford spokesman Ray Scheich noted that the closing had been pushed back three times before it was finally held Feb. 21 at the First American Title Co. offices in Troy.

The closing took more than five hours and involved 14 people and a dozen separate transactions, he said, due to the volume of paperwork involved and the complex nature of the land and property transfer among Ford, R & D and the city.

Under the terms of the three-way deal, the city of Northville received:

- The 4-acre baseball field and recreation area known as Ford Field;
- Another 4.5 acres including the waterway and pond east of Griswold, land north of the pond and the corner of property southeast of the Ford Plant waterwheel where local residents feed waterfowl;
- Lease rights with option to buy the 2.4-acre Griswold Street parking area west of the plant.

Ford, which had been seeking between $1.75 million and $2.5 million for the total 13.7-acre property, would not release the final sale figure.

"We're just really happy that everything worked out to everybody's advantage, and we did our best for the city of Northville," said Ford spokesperson Carol Goll. "It was really the best deal we could do for the city."

"The great credit goes to the cooperation of our purchaser, (R & D President) Rick Cox," Scheich added. Ford officials spent much of the previous Thursday walking the 235 E. Main St. property with Cox and building contractors, planning its rehabilitation. Cox noted that the process could take some time.

"We know it will take between three and four months minimum to get the building to where it is occupiable," he said. "The first issue, of course, is to get a new roof on that building. The water's pouring in there right now... Then and only then can we get inside and start working."

"We will spend just over $1 million on our section of the building," Cox added.

Cox said he still hopes to begin moving his manufacturing company into 20,000 square feet of the building by June. While Acorn Stamping Inc., a Rochester-based metal stamping firm, had backed out of a potential lease deal last November, he said, the firm is now discussing the possibility of moving part of its operation into the plant with R & D. R & D is also negotiating with other compatible businesses about using portions of the 78,471-square-foot plant. "Our intent is to occupy the building fully this year," Cox said. "We hope to move people in who will help us grow faster."

The 28-employee firm builds heat exchangers for the marine engine industry, and Cox said the business just inked a contract with industry leader Mercury Marine.

The firm has been forced out of its existing 9,600-square-foot quarters at 19430 Gerald Ave. due to its expanding operations. But Cox noted that the move will not leave Northville Township with another vacancy since his next-door neighbor, Urban's Partition & Remodeling at 19424 Gerald, has agreed to rent R & D's current home.

The Ford Valve Plant was one of Henry Ford's first "village industries." Ford first purchased the site in 1919 and the current Albert Kahn-designed structure was built in 1936.

After more than 50 years of continuous operation creating various automotive parts, the plant stopped producing gas tanks and locked its doors in 1987.

Precincts for Prop A

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

Michigan voters face their biggest decision in years concerning taxes and public education on March 15 — just five days from today.

After months of debate, Proposal A, the controversial ballot measure to alter school financing, goes before the citizenry for a final decision. City and township voters will have their chance to pull the lever on A on Tuesday. Polls will open at 7 a.m. and close at 8 p.m.

Township residents can vote at the following locations:

- Precincts 1 and 3: Moraine Elementary, Eight Mile.
- Precincts 2, 8 and 9: Silver Springs Elementary, off Silver Springs Road.
- Precincts 4 and 7: Meads Mill Middle School, off Franklin Road near Six Mile.
- Precinct 5: Kings Mill Clubhouse, Kings Mill, off Northville Road.
- Precincts 6 and 10: Winchester Elementary, off Winchester.

City voters residing in Wayne County will cast their ballots at City Hall on Main Street. Oakland County Northville residents vote at Amerman Elementary, located at the corner of Center and Eight Mile.

Vorva bill gets missing in the system

By TIM RICHARD
Staff Writer

Jerry Vorva recalled the time when, as a Plymouth police officer, he saw a young man standing on a road overpass.

"I said to my partner, 'Let's check this out.' My partner hadn't noticed him," said Vorva, now a state representative.

"The young man took off. We didn't pursue him."

"Hours later, we learned he had died in traffic after falling from the bridge. We also learned his mother had filed a missing persons report on him that morning."

Vorva chatted in the House chamber as 98 other representatives pursued his bill to require that law enforcement agencies immediately enter missing persons reports into the Law Enforcement Information Network (LEIN) computer system.

There were no questions. There was no debate. Vorva's bill sailed through 99-0.

"Different departments have different policies," said Vorva, whose district includes the city and township of Northville, the city and township of Plymouth and part of Livonia. "If we do it for autos [enter auto thefts into the LEIN system], we should do it for people."

"Officers would hear it broadcast on the car radio. A hard copy would appear at every LEIN terminal."

"Often he [an officer] will stop a car, and something just doesn't look right. He may even see the missing person. But if the report isn't in the LEIN system, precious minutes are lost," he said.

Missing persons reports fall into two broad categories: errant adults off on a spree, often with a person of the opposite gender, and children.

"Many missing adults don't want to be found. When they are, they can just be deleted from the LEIN system," Vorva said.

Children are another matter.

Vorva recalled a California case where a girl was reported missing and a description given of her suspected abductor.

The report didn't get into the LEIN system. While the girl was still alive, police stopped the abductor on another matter but had no reason to hold him. By the time the abductor was apprehended, the girl had been killed.

"Police with LEIN information could have caught him before she was killed," Vorva said.

Under the ballot plan, local districts could levy 3 enhancement mills until 1997, at which time enhancement mills could only be levied by the intermediate school district.

As it stands now, the still-evolving Proposal A would severely limit the district's ability to bond for new technology and infrastructure improvements, Rezmierski added. A statement in the proposal forbids any district from selling bonds to finance building improvements unless they are part of a complete restoration.

The ballot plan also would cap annual property assessment increases at 5 percent or the rate of inflation, whichever is less, until the property is transferred.

The ballot plan also locks school districts in at their current special education and vocational education payments, Rezmierski noted. "That could cause some problems because [special education] center programs like the one we operate serve a lot of school districts," he said. As the need increases and the resources are capped, more money may have to come out of the district's operating fund to pay for the program.

Locally, Northville City's decision to reconfigure the finance plan for its $4.2 million Mainstreet '93 parking deck program has had an unintended effect on the school district.

When the plan was to be largely financed by diverting downtown property tax increases to the project, including tax revenue that was slated for the schools, the city had agreed to return part of that tax revenue to the other taxing units including the schools.

Now that the plan does not rely on captured school taxes, the city has done away with the reversion.

But that could reduce the school district's funding for the foreseeable future, Rezmierski said.

The district's 1994/95 budget had included about $130,500 in tax reversions from the city, he said, and the state's new school funding formula will be based on each school district's estimated revenue for that 1994-95 budget year. If the city does away with the reversion, the Northville district's subsequent annual revenue could be reduced by that amount.

School and city officials are still negotiating what to do over the reversion.

No matter what the outcome of Tuesday's vote, the Northville school district is still slated to receive between $6,593 and $6,637 in per-pupil revenue next year, Rezmierski said. This year's roughly $25 million in school revenue translated into $6,432 per pupil.

Local districts still could mount their own millage campaigns for "hold harmless" mills, designed to insure that the district's per-pupil spending is not cut by the finance reform. In Northville's case, the district could only levy an additional .45 mill under the ballot plan or .63 mill under the statutory backup.

According to a district-by-district analysis prepared by the Senate and House fiscal agencies, the estimated 1994-95 millage level for Northville Public Schools under the statutory plan is 12.45 mills for homestead properties and 24.45 mills for non-homestead properties like second homes, commercial and industrial properties.

Under the ballot plan, the millage level would be 6.63 mills on homesteads and 24 mills on non-homestead properties.

The current Northville Public Schools millage rate for the 1993-94 fiscal year is 29.50 mills.

How does it hit the pocketbook?

Here's a look at some scenarios that may help you decide

By Rick Byrne

Despite the constant inclusion of schools in the discussion on Proposal A, education has very little to do with the ballot question. Conversely, taxes have practically everything to do with it.

Whether you realize it or not, your vote on Tuesday, March 15, will dictate where your taxes come from, and how much it's going to cost you.

Proposal A is a constitutional amendment to direct a 2-cents-on-the-dollar sales tax increase (and several other taxes) for school funding while reducing property taxes.

If the proposal is defeated, the Legislature has "Plan B" at the ready, a statutory change to raise the income tax from the current 4.4 percent to 6 percent. That money, and a single business tax hike would compensate for a somewhat smaller, though significant, drop in property taxes, with the revenue earmarked for schools.

Voters can find many different motivations for casting their ballots one way or the other, but for many it's simply a bottom-line issue. Which plan will give me a lower tax bill? How will the two alternatives hit me in the pocketbook?

Unfortunately, both Proposal A and the backup plan are exceedingly complex. When people sit down to calculate just how much Proposal A will cost them, they're usually left with more questions than answers.

We've made an attempt to put all the figures in order for you. The Lansing firm Public Sector Consultants published a comparison of the statutory proposal versus Proposal A in three sample municipalities. They then provided tax figures for nine different socioeconomic groups.

The millage rates in the study were remarkably similar to our own, so we created five fictitious families so you could see how the plans might hit you in the wallet.

Remember, however, that the fictitious families who are profiled here are only samples. We couldn't even begin to show you all the possible breakdowns for deductions, exemptions and individual home assessments. All we've tried to do here is get you in the ballpark.

Read the tales of these sample families, and find the one that's most like yours. Then adjust the numbers up or down to fit your situation. With a little luck it should give you an idea of whether you stand to win or lose under the respective plans.

Some things to remember while reading through these profiles:

- These numbers are presented for comparison. For a completely accurate picture of your own tax situation, contact your personal accountant.

- The percentage of income spent on taxable items comes from the Bureau of Labor Statistics 1991 "Consumer Expenditure Survey" and was provided by Public Sector Consultants. Your actual taxable consumption may vary. If you think you spend more on taxable items (such as eating out a lot, or making some big ticket expenditures like a car, furniture, appliances or home remodeling), your sales tax paid may be higher. If you're more frugal (perform your own household and car repairs, rarely eat out), sales taxes may be lower for you.

- The tax on cigarettes increases 50 cents a pack under Proposal A, and 15 cents a pack under the statutory option.

- We have given the 1993 millage rates for the Wayne and Oakland County portions of the City of Northville, and the portions of Northville Township served by Northville and Plymouth schools. However, for all intents and purposes, these figures no longer exist. They were established under the former tax and school funding formula which was abolished with the passage of Senate Bill 1 last year. They are used here for comparison and information.

- Bottom line tax expenditures for the five families represent their net tax bills, with the credits included where stated.

Pete and Paula Peters, with a combined income of $30,000, rent their home.

They're not unlike people in Northville Township, where the bulk of the area's apartments are found.

But all this talk of property tax cuts, all this posturing for and against Proposal A, has them wondering: As renters, what does it mean to us?

Depending on whether the ballot (Proposal A) or the back up (statutory) plan passes, the Peters will pay slightly more in taxes each year or slightly less.

Under Proposal A, the Peters will pay about $31 more than they did last year in taxes, according to figures provided by Public Sector Consultants. Under the statutory plan, they'll pay $65 less.

But first, who are they Peters? They are the parents of two youngsters attending the local schools.

They pay $8,400 a year in rent, or $700 a month. Their taxable consumption is estimated at $11,250. As a percentage of their income, their taxable consumption stands at 37.5 percent.

In Northville Township, about 49.65 mills are levied by Northville schools, and 51.46 taken by Plymouth schools. For renters, these numbers only factor into the equation when determining their homestead credit. The Peters' figures were based on 50 mills.

Under the current system, their total taxes amount to about $1,217 each year.

A change in the state sales tax under Proposal A, from 4 percent to 6 percent, will boost their expenditures slightly — from the present $450 to $675.

They'll see a small savings in income taxes under Proposal A, paying $994 currently and $950 under the new system. But overall, their total taxes rise $31.

Similarly, the statutory plan holds small increases and decreases in different areas.

Where the Peters previously paid $994 in income taxes, they'll pay $1,080 under the backup plan. But the sales taxes they pay remain the same, while their homestead credit would capture $151 more for them than the current system.

All told, they'll save about $65 under the backup plan.

The Baxters, James and Reida, live on a fixed income like many senior citizens residing in the City of Northville.

Their income is about $20,000 per year, and they live in a home valued at about $65,000. In a typical year, they spend about $8,600, or 43 percent of their income, on taxable items — clothing, big-ticket items, entertainment, etc.

They live in an area with a similar millage to that of Northville. They pay 58 mills in property taxes to various sources (Northville residents in the Oakland County portion pay 59.37). The Baxters do not have children in the local schools.

Under the current tax formula, they pay roughly $1,885 in property tax a year, but they receive a homestead tax credit of $1,185. Tax on their income at the existing 4.6-percent rate totalled $37.

Under Proposal A, their property tax would be cut in half — to $975. Plus, they would receive a homestead credit of $275. The Baxters income tax would reduce only slightly to $35.

The Baxters would also be allowed to deduct $110 from their federal taxes.

Under the current 4-percent sales tax they pay $344 on $8,600 in goods and services. Under Proposal A's 6-percent sales tax, they would pay $516 in sales tax on $8,600 in taxable items.

If Proposal A is voted down and the statutory plan takes effect, their property tax would be the same as it would be under Proposal A, because their homestead credit is larger. Under the statutory plan they would pay $1,170 in property taxes, but would receive a $470 homestead credit. The homestead credit brings the total property tax to $700. They would pay none of the 6-percent income tax.

The 4-percent sales tax would be unchanged under the statutory plan, so they would continue to pay $344 each year on $8,600 in taxable items.

Under Proposal A, the Baxters would pay $1,141 each year, including property taxes, sales taxes and income taxes.

Under the statutory plan, the Baxters would pay $939 in taxes.

Under the current system, the Baxters' total tax bill is $1,234 each year. That's an increase of $171 under Proposal A, and a tax cut of $31 under the statutory plan.

The Reeds, Jeff and Cindy, are not unlike the median Northville couple.

Their income is about $50,000 per year, and they live in a home valued at about $100,000. In a typical year, they spend about $16,000, or 32 percent of their income, on taxable items — clothing, big-ticket items, entertainment, etc.

They live in an area with a similar millage to that of the Oakland County portion of the city. They pay 58 mills in property taxes to various sources (Northville residents in Oakland County pay 59.37). The Reeds have two children in the local schools.

For them, as homeowners, the two plans yield different results. The question is, which gives them a bigger break? Let's see how it shakes out.

Under the current tax formula, they pay roughly $2,900 in property tax a year, but they receive a homestead tax credit of $690. Tax on their income at the existing 4.4-percent rate totalled $1,914.

Federal income tax deductions on their state taxes totalled $1,155.

With $16,000 in expenditures on taxable items, the Reeds paid $640 in sales taxes last year.

Under the current tax plan, the Reeds' net tax expenditures ran about $3,609.

Proposal A would trim the Reeds' property taxes to $1,500, but they would no longer be eligible for the homestead credit. Their federal deductibility would be hurt, too. It would fall over $200 to $933 a year. Sales tax expenditures at the 6-percent rate would rise to $960.

At an income tax rate of 4.4 percent, though, they would pay only $1,830. Their net tax savings under Proposal A: $251.

The backup plan would knock the Reeds' property taxes down to $1,800. A homestead credit would return just $30 to them. Income tax levied at the new 6-percent rate would total $2,280. Federal deductibility would return them $1,134. Sales taxes would remain at the same $640 they previously paid.

As a result the backup plan would cost the Reeds a net amount of $3,556 in taxes per year, $53 less than they currently pay.

The Garners, Donald and Livia, fit the profiles of wealthier couples living in the City of Northville.

Their income is about $200,000 per year, and they live in a home valued at about $300,000. In a typical year, they spend about $40,000, or 20 percent of their income, on taxable items — clothing, big-ticket items, entertainment, etc.

They live in an area with a similar millage to that of the Oakland county portion of the city. They pay 58 mills in property taxes to various sources (Northville residents pay 59.37). The Garners have two children in the local schools.

Regardless of whether Proposal A or the backup passes, the Garners will see a net decrease in their total tax bill. The only difference is in how much of a cut they get.

Under the current tax formula, they pay $8,700 and receive no homestead tax credit. Tax on their income at the existing 4.6-percent rate totalled $8,814.

The Garners also pay $1,600 in sales tax on the goods and services they purchase.

Under Proposal A, the Garners' property taxes would be cut in half to $4,500, even though they receive no homestead credit. As a result, their federal deductions would be reduced (from $6,305 under the current system, to $4,655 under Proposal A). Their income taxes at 4.4 percent would drop to $8,430.

The proposed 6-percent sales tax would increase the amount of sales tax the Garners pay to $2,400 on taxable items.

Under the statutory plan, the Garners would pay more property taxes than if Proposal A were passed. Paying on 36 mills — instead of the 30 mills, under Proposal A — the Garners will pay $5,400 in property taxes.

With the statutory plan's proposed 6-percent income tax, the Garners would also pay more income taxes than they would under Proposal A. They would pay $11,280.

The Garners would pay $1,600 in sales tax, under the statutory plan, as they do currently.

Under the statutory plan, however, they would be able to deduct $6,005 from their federal income taxes.

Under the current tax system the Garners pay $12,809 total in taxes, including property taxes, income taxes and sales taxes.

The Garners will pay a total of $10,675, if Proposal A is passed by voters March 15, a savings of $2,133. Or they will pay $12,275 in taxes if the statutory plan is enacted, $534 less than they pay under the current system.

When Michael and Rachel Murphy scraped up enough for the down payment on their first home, they chose a small, $50,000 bungalow in a community similar to the Plymouth Schools area of Northville Township.

The payments on the house were just about what they could afford on their tight budget, with two children and a household income of $25,000.

And now, with the Proposal A election coming up, the Murphys are wondering which tax plan will be in their financial best interest. They've heard people say they could afford on their tight budget, so they're going to decide by looking at the figures.

In the Murphys' situation, regardless of whether Proposal A or the backup (statutory) plan pass, they will probably pay fewer taxes next year.

Here are some facts about the Murphys that further show how and why the tax changes are likely to affect them that way.

The Murphys have two children. Their taxable consumption, or the amount of money they spend on taxable items, is about $10,000 per year, or 40 percent of their income.

The Murphys currently pay 50 mills per year in property taxes, which is similar to the 51.46 mills paid in the Plymouth district of Northville Township.

Under the current system, their total taxes amount to about $1,250 each year.

A change in the state sales tax under Proposal A, from 4 percent to 6 percent, will increase the amount they pay in the form of sales taxes from $400 to $600.

They'll see a small savings in income taxes under Proposal A, paying $764 currently and $730 under the new system. With the increased sales tax, their non-property taxes will rise by $166.

Balanced against the reduction in property taxes under Proposal A (from $1,250 to $775), the Murphys will come out ahead. All told, they will wind up paying about $1,880 compared to their old total tax bill of $1,920. That will save them about $41.

The statutory plan, however, will probably save the Murphys even more money.

Where the Murphys previously paid $764 in income taxes, they'll pay $780 under the backup plan. Their property taxes will go from $1,250 to $925. The sales tax they pay will remain the same.

Under the statutory plan, the Murphys will go from a total tax burden of $1,920 to $1,824, saving them $97.

All told, they'll save about $56 more under the statutory plan than they would under Proposal A.

Bikers seek township clubhouse

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

Will Northville Township become the new home of a Detroit motorcycle club?

Not if we have anything to do with it, say those opposing the plan, saying a cycle clubhouse would cause all sorts of problems, especially given the fact that it would be near homes and a school.

"This would be like placing Woolly Bully's across from the rec building in the City of Northville," said the authors of one letter the township's planning commission received last week.

Other letters and every resident who spoke at the commission's March 1 meeting echoed their concerns.

Bill Kuczek of the Forbidden Wheels Motorcycle Club said that folks didn't have to worry: his group isn't a crazed gang of outlaw bikers. They're normal, law-abiding people and they're willing to work out any problems that might occur.

Forbidden Wheels wants to build a clubhouse on land it owns on Northville Road about halfway between Five and Six Mile. The 16-member group wants to leave its Detroit home because the neighborhood is no longer safe. The new clubhouse would host Forbidden Wheels' bi-monthly meetings and other social activities.

The property is an industrially-zoned district. Because of that and the fact that township ordinance doesn't specifically deal with motorcycle clubs, the Forbidden Wheels plan needs a special land use permit.

The fine print of zoning rules didn't interest the plan's opponents nearly as much as the problems some said a cycle club could bring: booze, drugs, loud parties and roaring Harley's at all hours of the day and night — all of it near homes, two school bus stops and Meads Mill Middle School.

Kuczek — a husband, father of two children and owner of his own Southfield construction business — said Forbidden Wheels wasn't that type of organization.

"We don't follow the pattern of outlaw gangs that you see in movies or read about in the newspapers," he said. "We're just like you. We're exactly like you."

Motorcycles don't necessarily mean wild and crazy people, Kuczek said. Forbidden Wheels' members are regular Joes who happen to like bikes — no leather jackets bedecked with swastikas and chains to be found.

"Bikers are very stereotyped," Kuczek continued. "I attend dinner meetings for my business in a suit and tie. Sometimes a biker walks in and I hear the (negative) comments."

Forbidden Wheels' clubhouse will be a place for the group's meetings, for wives' and girlfriends' aerobics classes, for catching Monday Night Football over a beer or two.

It would be used almost always at night — "we all work during the day, just like you," Kuczek said — and more in the winter than the summer, the best time for motorcycle riding.

"We don't want to throw beer bashes and have 300 people there," he said. "We want to be in an area safe for kids," Kuczek said. "We have kids, too."

The Detroit location that has been the club's home for over two decades is a bad neighborhood now, Kuczek added.

The clubhouse would include a gym, office and storage space for camping supplies which the group uses on trips up north. It would have a large common area for a big screen TV and fireplace, outdoor landscaping and a picnic table or two at the rear of the building. Motorcycles won't be stored there.

Forbidden Wheels is ready to put $300,000 into the project to make sure it's a nice facility, Kuczek said.

A closed membership of 16 riders makes up the club, including one member from Northville Township. The rest are spread out over the suburbs west of Telegraph, Kuczek said. The club does not associate or hold get-togethers with other groups, Kuczek said.

Kuczek seemed to make his point on that issue. Many residents and commissioners, however, said they still had problems with the plan. Several questioned whether the site was an appropriate spot for a cycle club because of nearby homes and the school — and especially because of the noise it might create at night.

"I live directly behind your site," Franklin Road resident Marcie Colling said. "The noise issue is number one with me. At night, every sound made down there comes right up into our windows."

Kuczek acknowledged that the group would be using the clubhouse sometimes until midnight. He added, however, that Forbidden Wheels would abide by the township's noise abatement ordinances and was ready to work with nearby residents if a problem developed.

"I think we can make consideration for each other," he said. "We've done that before. We try to be good neighbors."

The township could face another problem if it approves the clubhouse, some commissioners noted. By allowing the special land use for Forbidden Wheels, planning officials pointed out, the township could not deny it for other cycle clubs who might seek to build clubhouses in industrial zones.

Commissioners tabled Forbidden Wheels' request for special land use pending further investigation. The matter is expected to be on their agenda in a meeting in coming weeks.

Novi's going out for bids on an ice arena

By JAN JEFFRES
Staff Writer

Novi Parks and Recreation Director Dan Davis wasn't skating on thin ice when he asked the Novi City Council Monday to okay contacting firms which might be interested in building a two-rink arena here.

The council agreed with no discussion.

A request for proposals will be sent out to firms, individuals or partnerships who might want to put up the skating facility as a joint public-private operation. Novi is expected to provide six acres on one of its park sites.

The arena could be as much as a $6 million investment, possibly paid for by city bonds or a building authority. However, Novi doesn't plan to add Zamboni operators to its staff. Running the arena would be the private developer's task.

The companies will be asked how they would design, construct, maintain and operate such an enterprise and must submit their response by an April 8 deadline. Floor plans, building designs and designs for items like the refrigeration system and the parking lot will be expected.

More importantly, the prospective entrepreneur will be asked to summarize how much financial participation from the city will be desired, how much community programming time will be given to Novi, what tax status the rinks will need and what percentage of the profit the city might bank.

The proposal package was put together by the Ice Arena Implementation Committee, a group which has been researching the project since the city was approached by hockey parents who wanted a place for their children to play.

A survey of Novi schools found parents very interested in a place where they and their budding Tonya Hardings can take figure skating classes and enjoy free skating.

The committee will evaluate and rank the submissions, with the council expected to make the final choice on a firm based on "the apparent greatest benefit to the City of Novi."

Brady bill won't mean extra work

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

The Brady Handgun Violence Prevention Act took effect last week and for most other states it means a lot of change. Michigan, however, is a different story.

Northville's top cops say the new national law governing handgun purchases won't mean extra work for them or a longer wait for would-be firearms owners. The state's existing regulations supersede the Brady provisions.

The law, named for former President Ronald Reagan's press secretary Jim Brady, took effect Feb. 28. President Bill Clinton signed it in November 1993, capping a fierce political battle that raged in Washington ever since it was first proposed in 1986.

A bullet fired from a handgun crippled Brady during a 1981 assassination attempt on Reagan. Brady and his wife have been strong advocates of gun control legislation and led the fight for passage of the law that bears his name.

Unlike earlier versions of the bill, the actual Brady law does not require a five-day waiting period to buy a handgun, a provision that was dropped during Congressional negotiations.

What the Act does do is give local law enforcement agencies five days to conduct background checks of those applying to buy a handgun. Those with criminal histories or mental illnesses are barred from handgun ownership under the law.

Police can take up to five business days to complete the check, a necessity for some rural areas. Agencies with the proper technology, however, can complete the check and approve a handgun purchase within minutes, some law enforcement officials say.

For states with less demanding handgun purchase laws, especially in the West and South, Brady means extra work for local police departments. Three or four states and some of America's largest cities, however, have laws already on the books that are as strict or stricter than the Brady law. Michigan is one of them.

"Our system is about three rungs up the ladder above Brady," Northville Chief of Police Rod Cannon said. "There's virtually no impact here."

"I don't think it will have any impact on how we do business at all," Northville Township Director of Public Safety Chip Snider said. "I don't see us or township residents really seeing a difference."

The state's existing regulations qualify it for exemption from the Brady law, Cannon said. The new legislation will give police a little extra paperwork nonetheless.

Multiple-weapon purchases or attempts to buy what the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms (ATF) classes as "destructive weapons" require local police to send the federal agency a notification form, officials say.

The form will be sent when someone buys two or more handguns in a five-day period or when someone applies for purchase of certain unusual weapons.

"Those are like the Arnold Schwarzenegger-type firearms," Cannon said.

But all things considered, Michigan citizens really won't see a difference when they try to buy a handgun now. Residents of other states, however, are in for a change.

"It's a different story for places like Ohio," Snider said. "Before Brady you could go down there and buy a handgun over the counter in any hardware store right there. They're going to have to deal with a whole new situation now."

Ordinance stalls at city council level

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

The Northville City Council had no more luck coming to a consensus on a proposed home occupation ordinance than the city's planning commission.

The council met with commission members Feb. 28 after the commission passed a proposed ordinance Jan. 4 by a bare 5-3 majority. The commissioners had deadlocked over whether to allow home occupations in accessory buildings like garages.

Mayor Pro Tem Carolann Ayers, serving as mayor in Chris Johnson's absence, explained the council's concern. "When council looked at your recommendation, we had quite a few questions," she said. "We felt we needed to hear your reasoning . . . We noticed it was far from a unanimous decision."

The commission's final recommendation, made after more than nine months of debate over different draft proposals, was to require home occupations to be located entirely within a home or accessory building with no visible evidence on the outside like business signs.

The business would have to be "incidental" to the property's main use as a residence, and it could take up no more than 25 percent of the home or 50 percent of the accessory building.

The final draft followed more restrictive versions that would have banned specific home occupations or prohibited accessory building use altogether. Current zoning requirements forbid accessory building use but allow placement of a small business sign.

"The problem that the planning commission wrestled with was how far do we go with enforcement," said Planning Consultant Don Wortman.

While council members were concerned about the apparent dissension among the commissioners, after an hour of discussion it became apparent that the council itself was divided on how restrictive a new home occupation ordinance should be.

Council Member Paul Folino sought tighter restrictions on pickup trucks allowed in residential neighborhoods, calling the proposed 9,500-pound limit "far too big."

He also suggested limiting accessory building use to a certain square footage rather than to 50 percent of the building's size, fearing that the percent limit would encourage homeowners to build huge garages to maximize the space available for a home business.

Folino noted that the current ordinance "wasn't worth a damn in court," referring to the dismissal of city zoning violation charges against a Grasmere Street landscaper in 1992. While property owner Allan Ingel twice paid fines of $50 over storage of landscape supplies and an equipment trailer in his residential neighborhood, a more extensive series of violations was thrown out of court.

Council Member Chuck Keys countered that the problem is with enforcement of the current ordinance rather than the ordinance itself.

Ayers added, "I don't see why we're changing it (the ordinance) as much as we are."

When Keys asked the commissioners whether they wanted to take the proposal back to rework it, Commissioner Chris Gazlay responded, "Absolutely not," while Commissioner Michele Kelly added, "Never."

Fantasy Baseball returns to library

The Northville Public Library is beginning its fourth season of Fantasy Baseball. The program is a simplified version of the popular "Rotisserie-style" leagues which are active nationwide. Participants of any age or gender fill their rosters with Major League players whom they feel will perform well during the coming season. The deadline for enrollment is April 1, after which general managers need only sit back and await the results. Six-team divisions will be formed so that everyone has a good chance to win. The action begins on opening day and will continue until the All-Star break. Standings will be updated and posted in the library each week.

If interested, visit the library and ask for an instruction/entry form and return it to the library by the deadline.

For more information, visit the library or call 349-3020.

Mill Race Matters

Tivoli Fair will celebrate its 25th anniversary this fall. To commemorate the event the Juried Arts and Crafts Show will be adding an Antique Alley. The Northville Historical Society wishes to thank Margaret Zayt and Northville Downs for opening more space in order to make this possible. Antique dealers interested in participating can call 348-1845 for details.

This year's Progressive Dinner will be held Saturday, May 14. The planning committee is now organizing. If you would like to be involved in this activity contact Marianne Barry at 349-5435. The group meets with some regularity testing recipes and wines providing a great way to become active while meeting others socially.

In recent weeks this column has been featuring articles about the communities' earliest settlers. Gideon Benton, holder of the first land patent in the area, David and Perna Phillips, parents of Northville's first baby, and Abraham Markham, first tax collector, have been featured. All three took up residence near what became the early settlement of Waterford. Today we call it the Meads Mill area.

Recent arrivals to the region may think that name derives from the middle school located there. Actually the school took its name from the mill which first rose in 1834. The Mead brothers (Marshall, Wadsworth, and Samuel) who had purchased property from Gannett Ramsdell operated the grist mill.

Gannett and his brother Dyer established the community of Waterford which was platted by Dyer in 1837, three years before Plymouth or Northville. At that time all three villages were within Plymouth Township jurisdiction. For many years the village's post office was known as Meads Mill, but when the railway station opened in 1871 it again became Waterford, due to its fine water power.

Ramsdell platted the village with wide streets and parks. He donated part of his property for a school site and a cemetery. A log school existed on Franklin Road near where today an entrance can be made to Meads Mill School. That school later served as township hall.

The first mill succumbed to fire in the late 1840s. A bigger mill alleged to have been largest in the state, propelled by a wooden water wheel 18 feet in diameter replaced it in 1849. Seven years later the new five story mill burned to the ground. Reports claim flames were visible in Detroit and Ann Arbor. It was not rebuilt. The labor force began to relocate to Northville and Plymouth which had begun developing factories and business places.

In early years the village boasted three cooper shops, a country store, a foundry for manufacture of farm implements, a sash and blind factory, a profitable sugaring operation, and a saw mill in addition to the flour mill. By 1873 only 29 dwellings remained. The foundry made plantation bells. Not much later the country store, post office, and railway station had disappeared. Soon the Waterford designation vanished from the State Gazetteer and post office records.

Police contract talks continuing

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

Efforts continue to come to terms on a new contract for Northville Township's police force, a process that began more than a year ago.
"It's a slow-going process," said Detective John Werth, representative for the officers in their discussions with township officials about the deal. "The past contract talks have never taken this long."

Negotiators for both sides will go before a state-appointed mediator later this year, with a final decision expected in September, unless they work out a contract on their own before then.

At issue, Werth said, are three major things: wage levels, pension benefits and longevity pay, money given to an officer based on number of years served.

Township police officers have worked without a contract since March 31, 1993.

Supervisor Karen Baja said the signs may indicate a resolution could come within weeks.

"We feel we're very close to a deal," she said. "Hopefully, it could even be completed by the end of March if all goes well."

"The talks are continuing," Werth said. "There's an open line of communication between us."

ST. MARY HOSPITAL

You share the same body, the same life-giving nutrients for nine months. Each of you affects the other in countless ways.

Why is it then that many hospitals treat you and your baby like completely unrelated people?

OUR NURSES SEE THEM AS STILL BEING ATTACHED

You stay in your room. Your baby stays in the nursery. And you're each cared for by a different nurse.

A better way

At St. Mary Hospital we offer a better way to begin. A personal nurse takes care of you and your baby together to encourage the best possible start. So your nurse can tell how your comfort level, moods and medication may be affecting your baby. And how your baby's behavior influences you. This new way of caring is called mother-baby nursing.

Mother-baby nurses

With mother-baby nurses, you can learn by watching the nurse care for your newborn at your bedside instead of out of your sight in a nursery. If you have a question about your baby, the nurse can answer it immediately. You won't have to wait for the "baby nurse."

The Miracle of Life Maternity Center at St. Mary Hospital has mother-baby nursing all the time.

More support, more education.

It's a better way of caring.

Insanity defense may not stay as is

Staff Writer

Defendants in criminal trials would have a tougher time using the "not guilty by reason of insanity" defense if a bill before the state House of Representatives becomes law.

The House Judiciary Committee Tuesday reported out the bill on a 12-4 vote. Among opponents were Democrats Kirk Profit of Ypsilanti and David Gubow of Huntington Woods.

The Senate-passed bill would shift the burden of proving insanity onto the defense attorney, as in half the other states. Currently, Michigan law requires the prosecutor to prove the defendant sane when the insanity plea is raised.

"Even as a defense attorney," said Rep. Michael Nye, R-Litchfield, "if I present the case my client is insane, then I should be able to prove it." Nye, co-chair of the Judiciary Committee, supported the measure.

Profit disliked the bill because he was unsure of its impact on the mental health system versus the prison system.

Michigan law says a person is responsible for his acts unless he lacks either "cognition" (the ability to know the nature of the act or to know it's wrong) or "volition" (the ability to control conduct).

When the defense attorney raises the insanity defense, the burden of proving sanity shifts to the prosecutor. Legal critics say this puts the prosecutor in the untenable position of: (1) having to prove sanity during a criminal trial, and then (2) having to prove the accused is mentally ill if there's a subsequent commitment proceeding.

The new bill, by Sen. Chris Dingell, D-Trenton, would place the burden of proof on the defense attorney.

When writing to your state representative about the insanity defense, refer to Senate Bill 202.

and historic qualities.

Maxine noted that the family has put a lot of sweat equity into the property over the past two years.

Since they've moved in, she said, the family has installed new windows and doors, renovated the interior, replaced a water heater and some water pipes, fixed the front porch and removed piles of garbage from behind a shed.

"It's an older home but we've done a lot of work on it since we've been here," she said. "It's home."

Politicos disagree on letting banks insure

Staff Writer

Bankers and insurers — two groups politicians love to hate — are fighting in Lansing in what one lawmaker calls "a turf battle."

The House Insurance Committee is considering a bipartisan package of bills to prohibit banks, savings and loans, credit unions and other financial institutions from selling insurance.

On the fence, but leaning toward the bankers, is Rep. Jerry Vorva, R-Plymouth. Vorva, whose district includes Northville, believes that government shouldn't interfere in the marketplace, competition is good for consumers, and "that's the American way."

Insurance agents who want Vorva's vote will have to convince him that there's something overwhelmingly evil in letting banks sell insurance.

On the bankers' side, opposing the bills, is Rep. William Keith, D-Garden City, a former banker. "The national banks can sell insurance," Keith said, citing a court opinion. "State-chartered banks can't compete on a level playing field."

Supporting the insurers' view is Rep. John Jamian, R-Bloomfield

Township, a co-sponsor of the bills. "There are insurance agents all over the state. I don't know how allowing a bank (to sell insurance) is going to make much of a difference (in its availability)," said Jamian.

Detroit Democrats dislike both industries. They see insurance agents abandoning their city for Flint and Saginaw, leaving them without coverage.

"But at least with financial institutions," said Rep. Nelson Saunders, D-Detroit, "we have a hammer — the Community Reinvestment Act. They (banks) became much more diligent in complying (by making loans in the city). But we don't have that hammer with insurance companies."

Rep. Bill Martin, R-Battle Creek, saw banks as the greater evil. "You go to a bank and give them your life history, your next life's history, your children's history. It's these practices that make this (banks selling insurance) so difficult to swallow."

"Banks keep saying 'competition, competition,' competition," said Martin, noting that big banks are acquiring smaller banks and reducing competition.

Seven Democrats and three Republicans are sponsoring the bills. They would prohibit a financial institution from getting into "the insurance or surety business as a principal, underwriter, agent, broker, solicitor or insurance counselor." The bills also prohibit financial institutions from buying "shares of a corporation engaged (in) the insurance or surety business."

Don Anderson, who handles NBD Bancorp.'s South Bend insurance operation, said banks are good for the business. "We represent a number of insurance companies. We have contracts with 35 different insurance companies. We bring to the table access to all carriers."

Polly Reber, of the Small Business Association of Michigan, supported the ban because "lending institutions hold a great deal of power over small business."

Reber foresees banks using their lending power as a "subtle, coercive" influence to make borrowers buy their insurance from the bank, too. That would harm the 60,000 licensed insurance agents, many of whom serve rural communities that banks don't serve. "Insurance agents are at a competitive disadvantage," she said.

Refer to House Bills 5281 to 5284 when writing to your state representative. The bills are still in the House Insurance Committee.

Twp.'s Ray Walsh named head of Western office

Wayne County Prosecutor John O'Hair has promoted Raymond Walsh of Northville Township, a 20-year veteran of the Wayne County Prosecutor's office, to the position of chief of the prosecutor's Western Wayne office.

Walsh replaces Howard "Mickey" Philippart Jr., a Redford Township resident who is retiring in April after 26 years with the prosecutor's office, the last two years as chief of the Western Wayne office.

Walsh will assume his new post April 1.

"I'm kind of impatient for the four weeks to fly by," he said. "I'm out trying to meet everyone and let them get to know who I am."

The prosecutor's Western Wayne

Office, located at 3000 Henry Road in Westland, handles the screening and approval of requests for arrest warrants from suburban police departments and the preliminary examinations in the out-county area's 24 district courts on felony cases originating outside Detroit.

Walsh is a graduate of Northern Illinois University and of the Wayne State University School of Law. He has extensive experience in criminal trials and appeals. For the last five years he has specialized in warrant approval and has been the assistant prosecutor assigned to work directly with the Detroit Police Department on its campaign against illegal drugs.

Walsh's professional affiliations are numerous, and include: Past elected member of the Michigan State Bar Association Criminal Law Section Council, secretary and treasurer; member of Wayne County government and Bar Association Board of Directors; Man of the Year, state Department of Agriculture, 1987, for his work in prosecuting gasoline station operators for shorting customers in the sale of gasoline; and many others.

In announcing the appointment, O'Hair said: "Our Western Wayne office has been very fortunate in having had excellent leadership from committed public servants during my tenure as prosecutor."

Boundary plan criticized

Curlew argued that the administration should take into account the desires of existing residents rather than the potential needs of planned subdivisions.

"We've been there forever, and now you're saying, 'You have to go out of your way so we can accommodate new growth,'" she said. The remark drew a burst of applause from the audience, one of several during the parents' comments.

Several parents noted that their students already have been transferred to new schools, and thought it unfair that their neighborhoods were again taking the brunt of the redistricting.

They listed several suggestions to respond to their criticisms, including "grandfathering in" existing students so they would not be transferred to new elementary or middle schools, and allowing "open enrollment" to all the elementary and middle schools, even those like Cooke which are fast approaching their optimal capacity. One even suggested changing Moraine to a middle school.

Time after time, parents got up to describe how the new boundaries would tear their children from established peer groups and after-school activities. One parent's daughter had just won a slot on her school's volleyball team, he said, and he wondered whether she would win a similar slot at a different school.

Gary Fisher of Beck Road, whose daughter is in the sixth grade at Cooke, argued that students in her position should be allowed to finish out their educations there. "The sixth and seventh grade classes that are there now should be allowed to stay," he said.

Also in favor of keeping Cooke students where they are was Cooke Principal Jeff Radwanski. "Whatever decision he board makes is not going to be a popular one because someone's going to be affected," he noted. But he urged board members to give Cooke students the option of staying at that school.

"These are my children you're talking about, and you're introducing them to three schools within four years," added Sunset resident Sue Niehoff. "That's unacceptable."

The criticism prompted several members of the Future Facilities Use Committee that established optimal school population figures to defend their work. Committee members argued that the figures were intended to assure that the schools are able to provide quality education without overcrowding.

Committee Member Mary Rupley of Edenderry, discussing the figures that show Cooke is already reaching its maximum effective capacity, noted that the new boundaries affect her as well.

"Everyone who's here tonight is here because we're all resisting change... but more kids have to be moved out of that school," she said. "If you think that walking to school is more important than the quality of the educational program, then you should direct your school board to change its priorities."

Committee Member Gregory Pelc added that the committee would have appreciated more input from residents when they were drafting their 86-page report. "We worked hard on this and we needed the input then," he said. "I would like the rest of us to get involved so we don't have to go through this every year."

Pelc also urged the parents to come together over a single plan rather than bicker over the differences.

"We can't be against each other, rearranging boundaries just to suit our kids," he said. "Let's concentrate on educating our children, not fight about where they're going to go."

Board President Robert McMahon instructed Bolitho to prepare final elementary and middle school boundary recommendations by Friday so board members can consider them before their Monday night meeting at Old Village School.

On Tuesday, Bolitho said that possible middle school options include grandfathering in sixth and seventh grade students at Cooke so they can finish out their middle school educations there, but he noted that could result in some parents of fifth graders having middle school students at two separate schools next year.

Other options would be to ignore the optimal levels for a year or redraw the boundary lines again, he said.

Board members will also decide Monday whether to extend the deadline for open enrollment registration from April 15 to May 1. Under open enrollment, parents are allowed to enroll their students in any school within the district that is not at its optimal capacity.

Twp. must respond soon to group home operation and reporting of any problems — even how the initial approval process works. No answers were forthcoming yet, she said.

The residents of the home cannot have prison records or be criminally insane, Baja said she was told, and they are considered to not be a threat.

DSS officials would not comment on the matter to The Northville Record.

Many of the 85 or so people at the hearing raised concerns about the plan, in particular over safety and property values. Some officials said they heard and saw — and even felt themselves — those same concerns, which don't always prove justified.

Even if they are, it seems that the township has little choice but to deal with them. Township attorney Len Krzyzniak is checking on the township's legal options to block or regulate the home, but he wasn't optimistic.

"The state has made things very difficult for local municipalities to challenge it," Krzyzniak said. "It has made the decision that nobody wants group homes but that somebody has to have them and that the good done for those people outweighs other issues."

"We can spend a lot of tax dollars to fight it but there's not much chance to win the case," he said. "Can we delay them? Yes. Can we stop them? Unlikely."

Preliminary estimates of a legal battle against the state come in at $20,000 minimum. A $100,000 tab is possible.

The township is considering trying to convince the state that it has too many mental health facilities now, a strategy that hasn't worked in the past. It's not gotten the state to deny a group home but has gotten it to move the home to another location in the township, officials said.

Four active group homes, a mental hospital, a prison and other facilities make the township over concentrated with those living under the state's umbrella, officials said. Some 814 mentally impaired persons reside at state facilities in the township.

At a total 1990 population of 17,313, that's a ratio of 21.5 to one. That figure does not count the 775 or so prisoners at Scott Regional Correctional Facility at Five and Beck which would drop the figure to 10 to 1.

The state, however, has no set rules on concentration of people or facilities in a local municipality, other than that group homes can't be within 1,500 feet of each other.

State Sen. Bob Geake and State Rep. Jerry Vorva attended the hearing and were equally pessimistic.

"This is like reliving history here," Geake said. "About six or seven years ago there was a group home going in on Scenic Harbour Drive and there were the same questions and the same fears."

The state denied the township's plea of over-saturation of facilities then too, Geake said, but the home, which still operates today, produced no problems of crime or lowered property values.

"None of the things we thought were going to happen happened there," Trustee Russ Fogg said.

Vorva was more direct. "We don't stand a ghost's chance of doing something about this," he said.

The state rep added, however, that he lives near one now and used to live near one in his old home and has not experienced problems of any sort.

Baja said she lives near one now and remembers she had concerns of safety and lowered property values, just as many residents do now.

"I can say that it's been a positive experience now," she said.

According to the state, she later added, there is no proof that a group home nearby lowers property values. Many members of the audience disagreed with that assertion.

Many left Township Hall in an angry mood last Thursday.

"Well, grin and bear it, guys," one man said as he stood up to leave the hearing. "It's a done deal."

Homestead tax form deadline pushed back

Homeowners will have until May 1 to file affidavits for a reduced property tax rate.

Two months. Senate action came on a 34-0 vote Tuesday.

Gov. John Engler promised to sign the measure.

A is rejected, 12 mills.

The postponement was prompted by slow delivery of affidavit forms to homeowners in some sections of the state and by the need to get the word to Michiganians on long sun-belt vacations. The affidavit takes less than a minute to fill out.

The reform laws place a 24-mill state property tax on all property except the principal homestead. If voters approve Proposal A on March 15, the homestead rate will be six mills; if

The House gave the bill 102-0 approval, although the bill had been opposed in the Taxation Committee by Democratic gubernatorial hopeful Lynn Jondahl of Okemos.

RECORD OPINION

Our Opinion

Don't slam schools for planning ahead

Among the strangest comments heard at last Monday's heated hearing on proposed school attendance boundaries was this one: "Perhaps this is a time to not plan so far in the future."

The remark, made by one of many parents furious over the district administration's proposal to send their kids to a different school, reflected the parent's suggestion that the district not attempt to establish a long-range plan for school attendance boundaries this year. She was one of several arguing that maybe the district should just deal with this year's boundary problems, and address this year's parents' complaints, rather than try and establish long-range attendance goals.

It's the first time we can recall hearing parents urge school administrators to be short-sighted.

Admittedly, the middle school plan may have been mishandled, with last-minute changes rushed out to some parents last Friday and then pulled from the final plan. Maybe the plan could have been given more thought to assure that long-time residents who have felt the brunt of previous redistricting efforts were not as impacted by this one. And, although it's a stretch, perhaps educational alternatives like charter schools will throw off the district's enrollment projections so much that its long-range plan is useless.

But don't fault the administrators for trying to limit overcrowding in the Northville school system, and for trying to avoid a situation where the district boundaries have to be redrawn every year.

While one parent pointed to the 85-member audience as evidence that the administration's proposal failed to satisfy the majority of the district's residents, the fact remains that the large majority of residents did not attend the hearing.

A screen of distortion

Proposal A looks better and better as the TV campaign against it gets dirtier and dirtier.

The chief issue next Tuesday is not the sales tax or the income tax or the lottery. The chief issue is protecting school funding. Proposal A does this by locking the 2-cents increase in the sales tax into a constitutionally-protected school aid fund.

The Legislature can't raid that fund for prisons, perks or pensions. The fund is reserved for public schools. Proposal A not only cuts property taxes but corrects the real problem we've faced for 25 years — heavy local pressure on the property tax because of declining state school aid.

Plan B, the legislatively-approved "backup plan," is merely statutory. The Legislature wrote it, and a future Legislature can change it. That bodes ill for public schools.

For that reason alone, Proposal A deserves a yes vote. And there are other good reasons to vote yes:

- Proposal A will cap most of our school operating property taxes. It would amend the Michigan Constitution to say those rates may be changed only by a 75-percent supermajority in both chambers of the Legislature. We suspect that is the real reason Proposal A is opposed by leaders of the Michigan Education Association. MEA contributions may be able to win 51 percent of legislators' votes, but they'll never get a 75 percent vote to hike property taxes.

- Proposal A keeps the single business tax (SBT) at 2.35 percent. Plan B raises SBT to 2.75 percent. If there's anything business investors hate worse than a plague, it's the SBT. We can't guarantee that keeping SBT at 2.35 will bring more jobs into Michigan, but we know that Education

The simple fact is that no redistricting plan will satisfy everyone. When a district like Northville expands and has to add a new elementary school like Thornton Creek, children have to be moved. When population growth results in an overcrowded middle school like Cooke, changes have to be made if we value manageable class sizes where each student gets the individualized attention he or she needs.

Several suggestions made Monday night should certainly be considered by the school board, including the possibility of "grandfathering in" existing Cooke students or allowing some minor deviation over the optimal building populations set by a committee of local residents earlier this year.

But parents must realize that those changes and others, like one mother's suggestion to add portable classrooms at Cooke rather than dividing up the school, could result in less effective teaching. They have to decide for themselves whether the changes are worth it.

At least one parent was able to find a silver lining in the middle school fiasco — he noted that if his son transfers from Cooke to Meads Mill he will have been exposed to every classroom in the district by the time he reaches Northville High School. The same parent also noted that his youngest son, an outgoing elementary school student, will land on his feet socially wherever he attends school.

We should all have such faith in our kids.

taxing businesses more can't possibly help.

- Proposal A will result in a bigger property tax cut for homeowners — 6 mills instead of 12 under plan B. (Both are a vast improvement over the current statewide average of nearly 35 mills.)

- And if rising assessments are your worry, Proposal A would cap them at 5 percent a year. Plan B has no assessment cap.

There are a hundred small details we could nitpick in the State Capitol machinations that produced Proposal A and plan B. School finance reform is the classical camel — a horse designed by a committee. It's ugly. Yet it's a very functional beast, better at its job than a donkey or elephant.

Those who would like to vote "none of the above" are in the wrong.

The Michigan Legislature finally has stepped up to its constitutional responsibility — funding a public school system. It has taken much of the burden of school finance off property. For all but a relative handful of districts, it has taken the burden of high-pressure millage campaigns off local school boards. In outstate Michigan where many districts are starving, eventually it will guarantee $5,000 per pupil.

Essentially, all Michiganders now are responsible for all students in all public schools. No more of this "we've got ours and the rest can go hang."

Is the job done? Of course not. Eternal vigilance is the price not only of liberty but of controls on taxes, accountability in schools and better quality teaching.

Proposal A deserves a yes vote on March 15.

And don't watch too many TV commercials.

Steve Kellman

I never thought it would be this tough to keep a secret.

But from the moment I learned my wife was pregnant, I've had an overpowering urge to tell the world. When an ultrasound session a few weeks ago found not one but two incubating babies, the urge became almost unbearable.

After that unexpected development, I found myself blurting out the news at the most unexpected moments, in the middle of an interview for a story, for instance, or while fielding phone calls at the newspaper's front desk.

A typical conversation would go like this: "Good morning, Northville Record and Novi News... by the way, did you hear I'm having twins?"

But for the most part, the people I told early on were those whose opinions I respected, whom I trusted to have words of wisdom on the subject or at least a different perspective.

Most laughed when I told them, perhaps struck by the thought of this already-harried reporter faced with the task of placating two small infants as well as irate community leaders. My favorite restaurateur and ship mate, John Genitti, went so far as to share our news with the rest of the dinner guests at a recent Murder Mystery dinner, and pressed a bag full of cannolis on us to satisfy Barb's late night cravings.

It's funny, the advice you get as expectant parents. We've learned that the universal cure for every pregnancy ill, more powerful than any antibiotic, seems to be a box of Sallines by the side of the bed. But Barb has found her own range of remedies for the first trimester blahs, from Werther's candies to lemon juice.

The advice you get as an expectant father is different. Our sales manager, Gary Kelber, advised me to sleep away from the bedroom door and convince Barb to nurse the kids for as long as possible. That way, he explained with a wink, I wouldn't have to get up in the middle of the night.

Somehow I don't think that will be an option with two infant children.

In retrospect, I'm glad that I couldn't keep this a secret. Telling people you're expecting seems to gain you entrance into a larger community of caring where everyone claps you on the back and offers encouraging words.

While all the attention is sometimes overwhelming, it's also comforting somehow to have friends take such interest in one couple's struggles to bring new life into the world. It's as though they sense that the task is ultimately too great for two people.

It's nice to know that, in some small way, we won't be going through this adventure alone.

Tell-tale signs of drug use

Charles Stilec

Parents of teenagers, have you observed:

- School tardiness, truancy, declining grades;
- Loss of motivation, energy, self-discipline;
- Loss of interest in activities, hobbies;
- Forgetfulness, short or long term;
- Short attention span, trouble concentrating;
- Agression, anger, hostility, irritability;

- Sullen, uncaring attitudes and behavior;
- Family arguments and strife with you or siblings;
- Disappearance of money, valuables;
- Unusual mood swings;
- Changes in friends, evasive about new ones;
- Unhealthy appearance, bloodshot eyes;
- Changes in personal dress or grooming;
- Trouble with the law in or out of school;
- Unusually large appetite;
- Use of room deodorizers and incense;
- Drug related graphics and slogans;
- Pipes, small boxes or containers, baggies, rolling papers or other unusual items;
- Smoking or associating with others who smoke;
- A family history of alcoholism, drug addiction or nicotine use?

If you checked any of these items there is reason for concern that your child may be using drugs or is at risk to begin using. Peer pressure encourages young people to begin drinking and using other drugs at the elementary school level. Studies indicate that young people use drugs for two years or more without the knowledge of their parents. (Above information supplied by Pathway Family Center.)

What do you do next? My suggestion is to seek out a professional in the field of chemical dependency through questioning friends, family, associates. There are many qualified psychologists, social workers, etc., in the field but few that are able to deal effectively with adolescents and families in a positive, ongoing manner.

Try a couple of different choices, check out your insurance and/or money situation because ongoing counseling therapy can be costly. My point is, know going in that a beginning assessment or evaluation is usually only the beginning of the roller coaster process of recovery for the whole family. Unless all primary members of the family are willing to get involved in the therapy process little will be accomplished except in isolated cases.

Lastly, as this process takes place try to include other key people such as school personnel, church youth ministers or trusted others. This is a key element so there is consistent support and communication between all parties on an as-needed basis. Confidentiality is also important so that the person and family can have the most caring environment in which to make progress.

One of my favorite sayings is: "Deal with it before it deals with you!" As a concerned person I am aware of several good local resources and treatment centers. One of these, Northville Counseling, 347-3470, is offering a Free Initial Consultation and a drug screen for $25.

If you have suspicions about your teen's drug use or have seen the signs, please contact Northville Counseling Supervisor Jerry Kwas for an appointment today. Don't play around with this stuff! It can destroy a family and your child's life.

Support teachers on new school day

To the editor:
I am disturbed by your recent attack of the Northville High School Restructured Day. Your original article of Feb. 10 contained the error of providing a lunch for students who arrive at 10:05 on Wednesday mornings. In actuality, the published schedule was for the teachers.

The student morning starts at 10:40 a.m. This was made very clear at the Monday, Feb. 7, School Board meeting attended by your reporter Steve Kellman, whom I sat next to.

This error, instead of being corrected in the Feb. 17 edition was perpetuated in your editorial slamming the Northville Public Schools for its Strategic Planning effort and insinuating the community cannot trust the staff at Northville High School to study and learn at the same successful levels pursued by our exemplary elementary and middle school staffs.

Our schools need to change, as the Record has pointed out on so many occasions, to reflect the changes in our global economy. Our high school staff has voted to add studying changes and ways to implement them in Northville to their regular duties as teachers to 150 students per day.

The Steering committee is charged with reporting out weekly on all the activities of all the teachers. All teachers will participate in a study group. No teacher will be preparing lesson plans, grading papers, taking phone calls, tutoring students, or helping a sponsored club activity during these two hours on Wednesday. The entire pilot program will be evaluated by March 1995.

The teachers at Northville High School need our support and nurturing during this time of change. They need our questions and study topic ideas. They need carefully thought out responses to their proposed changes. We, the community and especially the media, need to listen and make sure we understand the process before we attack.

We all must believe in the need for change before we can make it happen.

'Son' smiles over new school day

To the editor:
Here's my side of a recent dinner conversation with our Northville High School (NHS) student:

"What's troubling you now, son? Mom and I agreed that with the new school day you can stay out with your friends until after midnight on Tuesday nights. We want you to interact with colleagues and to explore multi-disciplinary opportunities. Just like the weekend."

"You still look worried, son. Are you concerned that I might go up to the Forum and make a fool of myself by asking questions? Are you afraid that I will embarrass you and ruin your Northville High School career by speaking out against the new school day?"

"Well, don't worry, son. I think I understand it now that I've read the explanations from the administration and the PTA letters in the Record. It's really quite simple. NHS students will learn more because cheerful teachers will teach less and continue to collect their world class salaries. NHS is a 'world class' high school of the '90s because the weight room is open several more hours than the library."

"You're smiling, son. I guess that's because I finally do understand!"

Do right thing for the students

To the editor:

Monday night's meeting on the attendance boundaries for the middle and elementary Schools frankly left me with a very empty feeling about the decision that will determine which children go to various schools and which ones stay in their familiar surroundings. I do want to commend Mr. Bolitho for his presentation and the work he has done with this project.

Optimal (most advantageous or favorable — Webster's dictionary) was the key word in the meeting, relating to the number of kids that would be allowed at Cooke to maintain the optimal quality of education.

The optimal at Cooke by the study is 450, the maximum 550. Last year the class size was 38 and this year it is around 28. The number of students affected in all of the areas is only 40. Extraction of the proposed students would meet administrative quotas but no student emotional quotas. The children would be unnaturally separated from their core community in a non-symmetrical intrusive slice.

The parents, the paper, and the public have been affected by the publishing of different plans. The plan in the paper was from Feb. 28, but it was changed before the paper hit the streets. Mr. Bolitho indicated on Friday that the plan had been changed (before Friday), now the fifth graders and subsequent grades from Bookland Farms and the Central City area would be bused to Meads Mill.

On Monday afternoon the plan had been changed to eliminate the move of Bookland Farms kids, and that the existing sixth graders at Cooke and the fifth graders at Armerman would be going to Meads Mill from the city.

The numbers are 17 fifth graders and 12 sixth graders, that means these kids could be in a class or several classes without kids they know.

What would you feel like when at the start of school you get off a bus, go into a school where you don't know anyone, sit in a class where all of the kids are buddying around about their great summer, but you are the one you doesn't know anyone?

Four parents in the city would have a seventh grader at Cooke and a sixth grader at Meads Mill. It is not healthy to take the current sixth and/or seventh graders that have made the important transition from elementary school to middle school at a time when puberty and adolescent tendencies begin. This move could have a negative effect on the self-esteem of the children as well as the parents.

Comment after comment was made by concerned parents about the affect on their children if they were moved from the existing area of Cooke to Meads Mill. All of the areas considered are the lowest children population density areas.

In the city, the area considered is north of Main St. south of Eight Mile and between Griswold (east) and Rogers (west). This is the area which has impacted the growth of our surrounding community, families that have moved into 100 year old homes, renovated them, and created a downtown area that people flock to from all over lower Michigan.

The school psychologists and social workers in the Northville school district should be asked to give an assessment of the impact on the kids being moved. These areas will have the most disruption of relationships and friendships because there are no children living in their area, so over the years they have made best friends in other parts of the community.

There are many options that should be considered before busing. What is the cost of portable classrooms versus busing kids across town? If class size was at 38 last year and is now 28, then compromise at something in between so that the middle school kids could be maintained without busing.

One of the most important considerations seems to hinge on the proposed development of the Novi Area. The number of kids being affected is based on a projected number of kids moving into homes (many not built) in Novi. It would be wiser to bus these kids, who are moving into a new area anyway, to Meads Mill. If these houses are not built for whatever reason or the families moving in do not have kids, then the affected areas would not be affected.

When my family moved into Beverly Hills, Mich., in 1949, our house was in a new subdivision. The city of Birmingham, bused the new families to the schools and left the existing city in place. I went to four different elementary schools, and three different middle schools. The same should be true for Novi. Northville Public Schools should create an "Optimal Standard Boundary Plan" using a committee that's assigned this task.

Above all we must do the right thing . . . for the right reason. Remember the child as your first priority.

NHS suspension was too light

To the editor:

Pom Pon girls do no wrong! If you want to skip school and get drunk, join the Pom Pons of Northville. I was surprised to hear that these young girls who are representing Northville High School, and are under the legal drinking age could actually skip school, go to a student's home where they were served drinks.

I'm more outraged to find out that these kids were told to get back in their cars and return to school, even though they had been drinking. Nice message: Drinking and driving is acceptable at Northville.

The action that was taken: was just a slap on the wrist! One day in house suspension. What in the world is in house suspension? A vacation? And what in the world are you as administrators trying to teach our children.

You're setting double standards. If you're a Pom Pon girl, your privileges and rights are different from everyone else. I know many students at N.H.S. are also outraged and disgusted. Deal with the problem, the girls and their drinking.

It is sad that you cannot take a stand and see that these kids get some help. It is true that these things start in the home.

Parents, pay attention to the needs of your children and know where they are and what they're doing. You are responsible. If you allow your under aged children to drink, shame on you, you're teaching them it's OK to break the law.

Name withheld by request

(Editor's note: While the high school administration admits there was evidence of alcohol use at the home, they said there was no way of linking specific students with drinking.)

Public comments were disturbing

To the editor:

It is with a great deal of sorrow and disappointment in my fellow residents that I write this letter. I am referring to the March 3 Northville Township public hearing concerning a proposed group home.

The purpose of this meeting was to hear concerns and answer resident's questions. Instead, what I witnessed was a group of residents immersed in ignorance about people with special needs and the fact that they also have rights.

The overwhelming message sent in this meeting was that this group home would have a negative impact on the neighborhood and the community. Only once, and briefly, was there any mention of the positive impact of such a home. These individuals have the right to live and work in the same safe environment that we enjoy.

As for comments about the possible threat these individuals would pose to our children, what assurance do I have that a current resident is not a danger to me and my family?

The owner of the house can be fined and the group home can be delayed indefinitely. However, the people who are being hurt the most are the most innocent. They are handicapped through no fault of their own and rely totally upon us as a community and as a society.

I would hope that compassion and intelligence would override ignorance in the resolution of this matter.

What if 'A' doesn't pass?

To the editor:

Imagine what could happen if voters decide to reject Proposal A. Within a few days after the election a frightening scenario will unfold in Lansing as pressure intensifies to return to mediocrity.

Some state representatives will agree to lower the income tax in a blatant attempt to satisfy wealthy constituents back in their districts. Many state senators will huff and puff about state budget cuts while holding our kids hostage in a dangerous game of financial roulette. Gridlock will become the norm in Lansing and state legislators will thrash about while searching for a solution.

Meanwhile wolves from selfish pressure groups are panting gleefully over the opportunity to bite off huge chunks from the school finance pie. Do we want to give the champions of greed and avarice another opportunity to destroy a modest reform package?

If we assume the Legislature will be responsible enough to break the gridlock, then we have been sipping too much wine and inhaling fumes from the hemp plant.

Stop tampering with the 'A' plan

Phil Power

In this age of special interest politics, an occupational hazard for politicians is to confuse support from leaders of vocal interest groups with approval of ordinary folks who actually vote.

Gov. John Engler now is in the process of falling prey to that ailment as he continues to tinker with Proposal A, trying to tack on support from various lobbies by ceaselessly fiddling with the content less than a week before next Tuesday's vote. Here's a short list of examples:

● The original ballot plan called for taxing rented farmland at the business rate of 24 mills. The Michigan Farm Bureau threatened opposition. Engler immediately promised to push legislation to allow all farm property to qualify for the lower rate of six or 12 mills.

● Engler originally recommended a 4-percent real estate transfer tax. In order to pass the legislation, the tax was negotiated down to 2 percent in the ballot plan and 1 percent in the backup statutory plan. Still nervous about support from the real estate industry and citing "increased state revenue expectations," the governor then pushed through a bill to reduce the tax to 0.75 percent.

● A video lottery game, Keno, was originally supposed to raise $100 million a year. But Engler now says it won't. He wants a different game in the mix, something called Powerball, a multi-state lottery.

State elections director Chris Thomas said over the weekend he has "never seen" so many last-minute changes in a state ballot plan so close to the vote.

Partly in response to this pattern, the political rumor mills are speculating about two other major changes in Proposal A, both designed to buy special interest support:

One story is that if Proposal A passes, Engler will push legislation cutting the sales tax on new and used cars, costing something like $250 million in annual revenue and locking in support from the Michigan Automobile Dealers Association.

The other deal supposedly in the works is to get Detroit Mayor Dennis Archer's support by changing the way the ballot plan treats tax increment financing authorities (TIFAs), right now the preferred method of fixing Detroit's budgetary ills.

Taken together with what is certain to be a confusing and manipulative ad campaign against Proposal A put on by the strange alliance between the tobacco industry and the teachers unions, all this last-minute insider finagling is likely to confuse voters already confused enough.

Worse, it illegitimately penalizes those responsible folks who have already voted by absentee ballot. Elections director Thomas estimates that at least one-third of absentee voters already have mailed in their ballots. Most observers figure there will be around 300,000 absentee votes, so as many as 100,000 voters could have made up their minds on proposals whose terms have been changed after they cast their ballots.

That's dirty pool and bad politics combined — the worst of all possible worlds.

This newspaper in the past has supported Proposal A, largely on the grounds that it locks in support for schools in a way that can't be tampered with by future legislatures and because, all things considered, increasing the sales tax is less damaging to economic growth than hiking the personal income tax.

But we are very concerned with the way the governor is going about selling it.

If a picture is worth a thousand words, sisters Millie Rabchuk, Marge Grace and Marie Gartrell have a lifetime of conversation captured in their memory books.

Each year, on Memorial Day, the three sisters have had their photograph taken together to add to their individual photo albums. The tradition was started by the siblings' father Joe Shader.

The oldest, Gartrell has 76 pictures to mark the 76 years of her life. Grace is 74 and Rabchuk is the youngest at 73.

"I've never missed a year," Gartrell said.

Even if it meant flying home just to have her photo taken like in 1944. Her husband was in the service and the couple were living in East Port, Maine, at the time.

Rabchuk almost skipped the annual photo-taking in 1949 after her house caught on fire. A diaper had caught fire after Rabchuk placed the cloth over a lamp to shield the light from her newborn's eyes.

Even though Rabchuk had been up all night and had just given birth a week before, she ended up joining her sisters in getting their photo taken despite her initial resistance.

"She still looked better than we did," Gartrell laughed.

Some of the outfits the sisters wore in the earlier photographs were sewn by their mother. In 1953, their father bought them each a photograph, album in which they were to mount their Memorial Day pictures.

While their father was alive, the photos were always taken at 10 a.m., rain or shine.

"Now we wait until about noon," Grace said.

And photos are now taken inside if the weather is inclement, unlike in 1931 when the girls lined up in the pouring rain while their father snapped a quick photo.

"Rain has never threatened our hobby," Grace said.

The tradition was threatened during World War II when film couldn't be found.

"Our father wrote Kodak and they sent film special delivery," Gartrell said.

And in 1974, the company quit making the type of film for the old-fashioned tripod camera that was used in recording the memories since 1918. That year, the sisters began using color photographs.

After their father died in 1955, the photos were taken by Gartrell's husband Harold (now deceased), Rabchuk's husband Walter and Gartrell's son Jimmy.

The sisters like to make an event out of the Memorial Day recording, and have planned overnight trips to find that special place to get their photo taken. Last year they traveled to Frankenthum to find a suitable site.

"We try to stay in Michigan," Gartrell said.

Known as the "Three Ms" while growing up, the sisters performed with their banjos on radio stations WEXL in Royal Oak and WXYZ in Detroit. They also played for schools and political functions, including galas for former Gov. James Blanchard and former Mayor Coleman Young.

"Our whole family was musical," Rabchuk said. "Our father insisted we play together."

In 1937, the sisters took first place in a competition at the Fox Theatre. Sponsored by R.G. Dunn Cigars, the girls bought a swing for their parents' front porch with their $9 winnings.

"We won because we were (an) unusual (act)," Rabchuk said modestly. "In those days, everyone sang and tap danced. We won because we were a novelty."

Gartrell and Rabchuk are still members of Banjos of Michigan, a group that meets to promote the interest of the banjo. Rabchuk was once president of the group. She is still also a member of the Fretted Instrument Guild of America and the Great Lakes International Banjo Society.

These days, Gartrell keeps busy with her many club duties. She is a volunteer and treasurer for the Disabled American Veteran Post 113 in Redford, belongs to the Women of the Moose Lodge 378 in Dearborn Heights, is sergeant of arms for the Stitt Post American Legion Auxiliary and belongs to the street representation committee for the Far West Civic Association.

Grace enjoys spending her time giving to charities, and is especially fond of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, Detroit Institute of Arts and Channel 56. She also helps prepare funeral dinners for area churches and is "president of the Shop 'Til You Drop" Club, according to sister Gartrell.

Rabchuk still enjoys being active in her various instrument clubs and occasionally still plays. She can also play the ukelele, piano and trumpet.

Sisters (left to right) Millie Rabchuk, Marie Gartrell and Marge Grace are still pickin' and grinnin'. Called the "Three Ms," the trio have performed with their banjos at school and political functions throughout each of their 70-some years.

This was one of the first photos of the three sisters taken together in 1923. The photos were always taken at 10 a.m. each Memorial Day by the siblings' father until his death in 1955.

Volunteer

David Vincent

Vincent enjoys visiting youth

By DOROTHY NASH
Special Writer

If you enjoy kids and want to contribute something to the community, David Vincent suggests you volunteer for Northville Youth Protective Assistance as a special friend for a boy or girl between the ages of seven to 16.

To do this, there's no age limit and no special background required. "Just be a human being interested in helping kids," he said.

As for himself, he has sons who are grown and away from home, and he's busy from nine to five each day. He should be, he's president of UTAK Technologies Inc. in Farmington Hills.

For a year Vincent has been a special friend — call it counselor, if you like — to a boy who is now 8½ years old. The boy's mother had suggested he needed a male relationship. So after taking about eight weeks of training, Vincent was told about the boy and then introduced to him in his home.

And since then the two of them have been getting together at least once a week — sometimes more.

"He's a good little athlete," Vincent said. So they've gone bowling. He likes to read. So they go to the library. He likes animals. So they've gone to the science museum at Cranbrook.

Before Christmas the boy told Vincent his school was putting on a play. Would he like to go with him? "So we went," Vincent said, "and he showed me his desk, too."

"I can't say enough nice things about him," Vincent said. "He's a bright little guy, has natural curiosity. I enjoy the relationship as much, maybe even more than he does."

Once you are in the program, Vincent said, you write a monthly report on your relationship, and you also have an opportunity to compare notes with other special friends or counselors.

Schools' plumber 'does time' for good cause

SUBMITTED PHOTO

Northville Public School employee Thomas Merhman was arrested last Friday, but it was for a good cause.

Merhman, a master plumber for the school district, was in complete shock when he learned that the Livonia police officer who came to the maintenance garage had a warrant for his arrest.

The warrant was issued by former Northville school employee Craig Whipstock and the American Cancer Society. The highly trumped-up count of "charging his side-line customers too much" was a relief of perplexed anxiety for Merhman.

After learning that he didn't commit any violations, Merhman was delighted to call for donations to settle his bail. He raised approximately $200 for the American Cancer Society during his lunch-time jail sentence.

Luckily, Merhman was good-natured and happy to help the worthy cause. The only thing he wants in return is the lunch that Whipstock promised when he set him up for the arrest.

Artist gets awards

During the past few months, three national painting exhibitions have honored Northville resident Linda Banks Ord, bringing the total number of state and painting awards she has received over the past six years to 27.

The Philadelphia Water Color Club, in an international exhibition held at The American College in Bryn Mawr, Penn., selected Ord's painting Confirmation Series, #6 for an award of excellence. The painting utilizes imagery from Ord's western ancestry and is quite realistic with strong abstract qualities. The painting has also appeared on the cover of the Michigan Bar Journal.

Additional awards were received from the North East Watercolor Society's National Exhibition, held at the Trotting Horse Museum in Goshen, N.Y., and from "The Medicine Show," a national exhibition at Buckham Gallery in Flint.

Ord is currently a professor at the University of Michigan School of Art and is a member of the Alumni Board of Directors of the University of Michigan. She is also a past chairperson of the Michigan Water Color Society. Ord and her family have lived in Northville for the past 16 years.

Second pageant win for Novi girl

By MICHELLE HARRISON
Staff Writer

Mikhila Humbad has another crown to add to her collection.

This time, though, the trophy she earned in the Miss Jr. Pre-Teen pageant is taller than her own 3-foot-6 stature.

Mikhila, an 8-year-old student at Northville's Moraine Elementary, placed second in the national competition. She competed against 104 girls from Canada and the United States in her age division in the personality pageant.

"We didn't expect it," Sunetra Humbad, Mikhila's mother, said. "We were amazed."

Mikhila advanced to the national competition, held in Orlando, Fla., after placing in a Detroit contest. She entered the pageant just to "get some experience."

The Novi resident learned about the contest from her brother Shallesh, who noticed an advertisement in the newspaper.

"I told Mom and she called about it," Shallesh said, adding that he was very proud of his sister.

Shallesh got to watch his sister compete in the Detroit pageant.

"She was good with it," he said. "Actually, I was surprised at how good she answered the questions. She didn't seem nervous at all when she answered the questions."

At the national competition, Mikhila was asked, for the second time, what she would do if she could do anything for a day. She answered that she would get all her friends together and have a party.

She also competed in a sports-wear, evening gown and princess gown categories.

"I felt really happy," she said of her second place finish. "I just didn't know my name would be called."

The funnest part of the competition was walking in front of a big audience, she said.

"I did make a lot of friends there," she said. "It was a good experience."

Mikhila credited her family — parents Niranjana and Sunetra and brothers Nilesh, Shallesh and Parag — for their support and her success.

After Mikhila gives her crown and banner away at the Detroit pageant next year, she thinks she'll wait a year before entering any more pageants.

Mikhila Humbad of Novi placed second in a national pre-teen pageant. This is the second crown for the 8-year-old who attends Moraine Elementary School in Northville. She says the pageants have provided her with valuable experiences.

'Charlotte's Web' opens at Marquis

By MICHELLE HARRISON
Staff Writer

Three rotating casts could prove to be difficult in a performance, but not for the crew of Charlotte's Web.

"It is challenging," said Cindy Zeitz, assistant director for the Marquis Theatre's spring production. "You have to be very organized, which we've managed to be. The kids are so good, talented and well-behaved."

The Marquis is located on Main Street in downtown Northville.

Directing the musical adaptation of the story by E.B. White is veteran actor George Valenta. He has 70 performances of Charlotte's Web under his belt. He has directed plays for seven years, including some as the owner of Triangle Productions, a "truck and bus outfit" which traveled from one performance to another.

He has also directed plays for community theater groups in Grosse Pointe, Troy and for the Detroit Center for the Performing Arts.

In Northville, he has performed in Charlotte's Web, portraying the old sheep; was Captain Hook in Peter Pan; and portrayed Scrooge in 40 performances at the downtown historic Marquis Theatre.

Valenta said he's not sure if he prefers directing over acting. Since he's "older than he looks," he said he's forced to direct many plays.

"For a person my age, the parts are not as frequent," he said. "Youth takes over and God bless them."

"It's a close call, there's really not a preference. I just love theater."

Valenta said his cast is excellent and, despite inclement weather which has cancelled several rehearsals, they are ready to dazzle audiences.

"We've had enough bad weather strategically placed that it could have had an effect on the product," he explained. "But the morale is high and everyone is having such a good time. We'll see that everyone who comes will have a good time."

"Northville children, especially here at the Marquis, are an exceptional group," Zeitz added.

Some past performers at the Marquis have gone on to become big stars. At least three have gone on to appear on Broadway in New York, Zeitz said.

One has returned to appear in Charlotte's Web. Tracey McCoy, who is a professional actress with her actor/husband in Chicago, will appear as Charlotte the spider.

Sharing the role of Fern, the little girl who saves the life of young pig Wilbur, are Carla Freshwater of Canton and Laurie Boloven of Northville.

Freshwater, 13, said she's always nervous about a show's opening, but has performed in 19 other productions. Aspiring to some day become a pediatrician, Freshwater has acted for about five years at the Marquis.

Twelve-year-old Boloven, appearing in her 12th show, plans to take her acting career all the way to Broadway.

"I'm always nervous for the first couple of shows, but it always goes away," she said.

Appearing in the children's chorus are Elizabeth Fillos and Emily Zahn of Canton; Emily Liddell, Erin Martell and Delaney Coyne of Livonia; Katherine Superfisky, Mike Superfisky, Rachel Conant, Andrew Martin, Lars Kvalvaag and John Kohl of Northville; Amber Lahoe, Allison Szafarczyk and Gina Szafarczyk of New Hudson; Aimee Garrison, Danielle Franz and Tim Kava of Novi; Taylor Roberts and Robyn Ellison of Plymouth; Deirdre Skiles of Pleasant Ridge; Dane Joseph of Southfield; and Laura Cupchak, Lindsey Mergener, Erika Alpert, Leigh Babiasz, Lauren McCabe, Kalli Fortune, Lindsay Fortune, Lauren Fisher and Jackie Washburn, all of Farmington Hills.

Adult roles include: Rebecca Shafner as the goose; Dan Jaraslow as Templeton the Rat; Mark Von Drak as Uncle Homer; Bruce Blake as three characters — Mr. Lurvy, Arable (Fern's father) and as a newspaper reporter.

The role of Wilbur will be shared by Jeffrey Weiner of Farmington Hills and Alison Reiter of Dearborn.

A recipient of the 1993-94 Ous Award for his volunteer work in public broadcasting, Valenta said he tried to get the very best people for the performance.

"Each one of the people here are

Rude awakening for post-Baby Boomers

'Reality Bites' explores the problems of coming to grips after the crazy '70s and greedy '80s

It's graduation day, 1994, and Lelaina Pierce is taking her first, bold step into the final frontier — reality. Unfortunately, her future seems to have moved away without leaving a forwarding address.

Ben Stiller, creator and host of television's short-lived but critically admired "The Ben Stiller Show," makes his feature directing debut with "Reality Bites" — a fresh, irreverent comedy about life and love for post-Baby Boomers.

The film stars Winona Ryder and Ethan Hawke along with Janeane Garofalo and Steve Zahn as a circle of friends who, facing some hard facts about life after college, are mapping out their own offbeat survival guide for the 1990s.

Screenwriter Helen Childress makes her feature debut with her original script for "Reality Bites," which co-stars Swoosie Kurtz, Joe Don Baker and John Mahoney.

The film also features cameo appearances from such twentysomething icons as MTV veejay Karen "Duff" Duffy, David Permer of Soul Asylum and Evan Dando of the Lemonheads. Danny DeVito and Michael Shambert ("The Big Chill") and "A Fish Called Wanda" are producers, with Stacey Sher and Wm. Barclay Malcolm as executive producers.

"When I got out of college, there were plenty of jobs and you knew you could get a good one," said Shambert. "Reality Bites" is about characters who are growing up in tougher times. They have to figure out how they're going to support themselves and still live true to their goals and ideals."

Director Stiller said the film is about characters who have one thing in common — they watched a lot of television growing up. "It made us feel safe to watch an episode of 'The Brady Bunch' and see that Ann B. Davis was still chopping meat. We knew that meant everything was okay. But the real world is a rude awakening. Fortunately, they've got their sense of humor, they've got their friends, and 'The Brady Bunch' is still on TV six days a week."

As "Reality Bites" begins, college valedictorian Lelaina Pierce (Winona Ryder) has just graduated, and she's lucky enough to have a decent job. For Lelaina's friends, there's not much to look forward to except low-paying retail work. '70s sitcom reruns and the bad aftertaste of the greedy, hypocritical '80s.

Lelaina works at a local TV station, but she's making a video about her circle of friends that just might get her above entry-level — assuming she's ready to compromise her personal loyalties. Along the way, she has to choose whether to give her heart to Michael, a charming but materialistic video executive (played by Ben Stiller) or her uncultivated but cool friend, Troy (portrayed by Ethan Hawke).

When Michael declares his love for Lelaina, the pressure's on Troy — does he drop his mask of indifference and risk rejection or play it safe and risk losing her?

"Reality Bites" was written by newcomer Helen Childress, who brings her own exhilarating, sideways perspective to the modern-day balancing act between career ambitions and personal loyalties. At the encouragement of producer Shambert, Childress wrote the screenplay to reflect the lives and concerns of people her own age.

"The characters are based on a few friends I had in college," said Childress. "We all lived together in an apartment my junior year. It struck me that they were smart and together people with college degrees and yet they were all working these retail jobs instead of something with a little more impact on society."

The project took off quickly once Shambert signed Ben Stiller to direct.

"Ben and Helen had similar ideas about the film," said executive producer Wm. Barclay Malcolm. "They wanted it to be a story about a generation and didn't want to be flip about it."

As played by Ryder, Lelaina Pierce is a recent college graduate and aspiring filmmaker who's trapped in production assistant hell at a local morning television show in Houston, Texas. During her free time, she's busy documenting the surprising and often hilarious "bites" of the everyday reality of her friends: part-time musician and fulltime cynic Troy Dyer (Ethan Hawke), '70s aficionado Vickie Miner (Janeane Garofalo) and sexually repressed Sammy Gray (Steve Zahn).

The characters in "Reality Bites" depend on humor — and each other — to get through the daily obstacle course, starting each day off with a healthy dose of irony.

Meanwhile, each of them is discovering the complex and often bizarre rules of sexual politics in the '90s. Their parents aren't much of an example — most of them are divorced and, so far, it seems the best way to deal with relationships is not to deal with them at all. Lelaina and Troy may be in love, but neither wants to jeopardize their friendship by having sex. Vickie walks out on the men in her life before they can walk out on her, while Sammy has found the perfect solution to all romantic dilemmas — celibacy.

The film's soundtrack album offers a rich variety of nostalgia favorites from the '70s and '80s, seasoned with new numbers by contemporary bands: The Knack's "My Sharona," "Spin the Bottle" performed by The Juliana Hatfield 3, "Bed of Roses" performed by The Indians, "When You Come Back to Me" performed by World Party, "Going, Going, Gone" performed by The Posies, "Slay" performed by Lisa Loeb, "All I Want Is You" performed by U2, "Locked Out" performed by Crowded House, "Spinning Around Over You" performed by Lenny Kravitz, "Turnip Farm" performed by Dinosaur, Jr., "Revival" performed by Me Phil Me, "Tempted" performed by The Squeeze and "Baby I Love Your Way" performed by Big Mountain.

Childress hopes "Reality Bites" will reach others her age — "people who have the same problems, hopes and fears" — and let them know "they're not alone in what they're going through. I think people today are looking for a simple way to live. Life isn't as mapped out for you as it was in the '50s, not as crazy as the '70s and not as greedy as the '80s."

"Essentially, all of these characters are dealing with life without a road map," said Stiller. "The fun comes from watching them make it up as they go along."

Sister Act 2: 'A bad habit'

SISTER ACT 2
By Heather Wadowski
Northville

The best thing I can say about "Sister Act 2: Back in the Habit" is that I didn't break a nail waiting in line to see it.

"Sister Act 2" basically continues where the original, and may I add winning, "Sister Act" left us off. But this time, Sister Mary Clarence is to teach music to a bunch of teenagers instead of a bunch of seniors.

The music, acting and plot of this movie stinks. This is Whoopi Goldberg at her worst. She's known as the comedy queen, but there wasn't a funny moment in this movie.

All I can say is I wish I stayed home and gave my dog a flea bath.

So, if you haven't seen "Sister Act 2: Back in the Habit," you're smarter than I was.

And a word to the wise. When "Sister Act 2" comes on TV in two weeks turn the TV on to Barney and Friends.

Northville and Novi high schools' border rivalry may take on new significance in the near future.

Talks are under way that could bring the Kensington Valley Conference and Western Lakes Activities Association together as one super-league as early as the 1995-96 school year. Some 19 schools would be involved in the move which would encompass communities from Wayne, Oakland and Livingston counties.

"We've been meeting since January," said Northville High Principal Tom Johnson, who is acting as the WLAA's spokesperson. "We are trying to determine if it would be in the best interest of our students, if it would level the playing field."

According to Bruce Gilbert, Millford High principal, the KVC initiated talks between the two leagues. He said the primary reason for exploring a possible merger was "because of the wide disparity of our schools' enrollment."

"I think the WLAA has the same problems," the KVC spokesperson added.

Both Johnson and Gilbert stressed that talks are in a very preliminary stage with both sides trying to decide if the move would be feasible economically and philosophically.

Representatives from the conferences will continue to meet this school year and into the summer months.

"A decision will be made by Sept. 15," Johnson said.

If the leagues do decide to merge, the superintendent of each district will have the final say as to whether their high school participates.

Both the KVC, which Novi belongs to, and the WLAA are a little more than a decade old. But it appears that smaller, local leagues like Western Lakes and Kensington Valley are on the way out in Michigan.

In recent years, mergers have become more commonplace. In the metropolitan area, for example, the Macomb Area Conference and Michigan Mega Conference have formed and now boast nearly two dozen schools each.

Wayne Memorial High joined the Mega Conference, in its first year of operation, this season along with the rest of its Wolverine A associates. Athletic Director Bill Hawley said the new league is working well thus far.

"We feel very good about it," he commented. "It's providing balanced competition."

The conference is divided into three divisions, red, white and blue. Hawley said divisional alignments vary depending on the particular sport.

"We wouldn't want a Class AA school playing a Class C," he said.

The AD added that the new league is providing many advantages, chief among them scheduling. With such a large pool of schools to draw from,

Spikers beat Novi, fall to Salem in district tourney

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

Northville High's volleyball season drew to a close Saturday in state tournament action.

The Mustangs made it to the semi-finals of districts but were whipped by eventual champ Salem in two games. Coach Laura Murray said the Rocks were on fire all day.

"I respect them as a team," she said. "They deserved it."

The coach said she's happy about how her team's year went, though.

"It was a good season," Murray said. "The girls were disappointed that they didn't have a chance to play with (Salem)."

Northville lost both games by identical 15-1 scores. The Rocks led 14-0 in both games before the Mustangs could score.

"We couldn't get anything going," said Murray. "But we made them work for it."

Salem's serving, setting and spiking was nearly perfect, the coach added. The Rocks smashed campus rival Canton to win the district and advance to this weekend's regionals.

"They are extremely talented," said Murray. "They could've beaten anybody in the state Saturday."

Northville started the tournament on a happier note. The Mustangs beat Baseline rival Novi in three games.

It looked as if the Wildcats' season would be extended early on Saturday and not Northville's.

After falling behind 3-1 in game one, Novi stormed back. Ursula Place cut the margin to one on her serve as senior Kristin Kenny recorded a kill shot for the point.

Minutes later, the senior came up to serve with Novi down 4-2. But Kenny then ran off seven straight points to put her team in command.

"She hit (and served) very well," said Novi coach Julie Fisetle.

"We couldn't stop her from hitting," Murray said. "That kept them in it."

After several sides out, Northville staged a small rally. Erin Hornberger, a junior, served for a single point to make it 9-5 in Novi's favor.

Junko Matsunaga came on to close the game out on her serve for the Wildcats. The sophomore tallied five straight points as Novi won easily, 15-5.

The Wildcats got good all-around play from Kenny, who had eight points and four kills, as well as Place and Katie Shaw. Fisetle was also very pleased with senior Michelle DeWitt.

"Michelle is a very hard worker," she commented. "She's a truly coachable kid."

After a 2-2 tie, Northville dominated game two.

The Mustangs' Krista Howe scored four points from her serve to give her team a quick 6-2 lead. Novi cut that lead to one on an Oppat serve.

Angie Groves made it 12-7 on her serve for Northville. An ace from Sarah Gregerson ended the game at 15-10.

Murray said her team got more hitting attempts in game two, which helped lead to victory.

Novi was never in the rubber game.

The Mustangs took a 4-1 lead with help from Angie Snyder and Renee Androsian. Kenny garnered Novi's last point of the match and year to cut Northville's lead to five. Seven unanswered points ended the game at 15-3.

"We're consistently inconsistent," Fisetle said after the match. "We can play a good game then go out in the second game and play totally different."

"I think our passing failed us in games two and three," Fisetle said. "We couldn't get our passes off the net."

The coach said her team allowed too many Northville streaks.

"When we did serve we could capitalize," Fisetle added.

Kate Woodrich and the rest of the Mustangs were dropped from the state tournament by Salem Saturday. The Rocks eventually won the district title.

Tankers prepare for state finals

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

If everything goes as planned, Northville High could have several all-state swimmers by this time next week.

A host of Mustangs will be competing at this weekend's state finals meet at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor with an eye on capturing glory. According to coach Mark Heiden, any of his swimmers are capable of earning all-state honors.

The coach is hoping Northville will place highly as a team, too.

"I hope so," Heiden said. "One of our goals is to place in the top 10."

The championships begin Friday with preliminaries. Swimmers must finish in the top 12 of their event to make Saturday's finals.

The top six finishers Saturday are "all-state."

Jason Fisher and Dave Wesley will get Northville's first chance in the 200-yard freestyle. Both will have to drop a second or two from their current best times to finish in the top six.

"It's going to be a really fast event," said Heiden adding that a time of about 1:43 will be needed for top showing. "Dave's been closer to that. But Jason is really excited about that race and will be geared up for it."

Divers Mike Malloure and Chris Anderson will have to be in top form. Heiden said Malloure has already posted some of the best diving totals in the state this season.

"Mike is in a group of about 10 divers in the state that are all comparable to each other," the coach said. "If he dives well he could do well. I think he has the potential to win it."

Wesley should make a serious run at all-state in the 500-yard freestyle. His time of 4:41 at the WLAA meet a few weeks ago is among the fastest this year.

Heiden said he expects the race to be even faster than that, however.

"That will be the fastest 500 the state has ever seen," he said. "I'm sure Dave is capable of swimming whatever time requirement is to make the top six."

In the 200-yard freestyle relay, Northville will likely use the team of,

Canton ends cagers' season 73-65

By SCOTT DANIEL AND DAN O'MEARA
Staff Writers

You can't play catch up against a champion.

That's exactly what Northville High tried to do Monday night in the opening round of districts. Despite a frantic fourth quarter comeback attempt, WLAA champ Plymouth Canton eliminated the Mustangs 73-65.

Trailing by 16 points at the start of the period, Northville outscored the Chiefs by eight, 33-25. The Mustangs pulled to within seven with just 30 seconds left, but Canton star Matt Paupore drilled four straight free throws to put the game away.

"We just didn't play tough early," said Northville coach Larry Taylor. "We played tough late."

The two teams met Feb. 18 with Northville taking a come-from-behind 70-53 victory. The Mustangs used their size and strength to beat Canton in that contest.

Chief coach Dave VanWagoner said his team attacked Northville differently the second time around.

"We wanted to front the post instead of playing behind," he said,

"and play more aggressively with our guards. We felt like we could get after their guards."

That strategy worked. Canton continually pressed throughout the game, but especially hard in the first half. The Chiefs forced numerous turnovers and took Northville out of its offense in building a 35-23 lead by halftime.

"We just had one great defensive effort tonight," said VanWagoner.

Paupore, who led all scorers with 31 points, dropped Northville further in the hole at the start of the third quarter. The senior forward swished two straight three-pointers to put Canton up 41-23.

The Chiefs led by 23 before Northville went on a 7-0 run to close the period. Senior Kieran Williams came off the bench to score four straight points before the horn.

Northville began its fourth-quarter comeback with about five minutes to go.

Down 56-38, Marc Chiason scored three straight points. Another Chiason basket at the 4:08 mark made it 58-46.

Canton was then able to hold its 12-point lead over the next few minutes.

"We wanted to front the post instead of playing behind and play more aggressively with our guards. We felt like we could get after their guards."

notes. Josh Williams brought Northville to within 10 with 1:28 left.

Senior Neil Yackie then made it 67-60 with 30 seconds left with a three-pointer. But Canton made six straight free throws to hold on.

Canton made 11 of 12 free throws in the fourth quarter. Taylor said with his team down so far late in the period they had to play more aggressively on defense — which led to many of the fouls.

"We were trying to get some steals and see what might happen," he said.

Chiason led Northville with 14 points while John Farrar added 13 and Josh Williams 10. Ron Hunter added 21 for Canton to go with Paupore's 31.

SALEM 63, NORTHVILLE 55

The Mustangs closed their WLAA and regular seasons Friday by falling to the Rocks at home.

Salem overcame a 42-41 Northville lead in the fourth quarter to outscore the Mustangs by nine points in the final frame. The Mustangs finished fourth in the conference as a result of the loss.

"We were not too concerned about the outcome," said Taylor. "We wanted to play competitively but not make it life or death."

The coach said he was more concerned about preparing for Canton. To that end, Taylor played the entire and officials costs, he said. For smaller school districts that may not employ a full-time athletic director, it makes putting schedules together much easier, Hawley added.

WLAA, KVC consider merger

"For the most part," he said, "it's done what we wanted it to do."

Johnson mentioned many of Hawley's points as possible benefits to a combined WLAA-KVC.

Non-league games are difficult to schedule and will become even more so as schools are gobbled up by bigger conferences, he said. A combined conference would eliminate many of those problems.

Like the Michigan Mega League, Johnson said divisional alignments would likely vary from sport to sport.

School enrollments and team records might be used to determine those alignments.

"We're still in the talking stage," said Johnson.

The differences and similarities of the two leagues will go a long way to determining if the merger happens, he added. Other areas that will be addressed include: transportation costs, the fit of each school into a super-league, school sizes and coordination of non-athletic activities such as debate.

Reaction to the possible merger has been positive.

"I would like to see it," said Novi football coach John Osborne. "We have a lot of things in common with (the WLAA)."

Indeed.

Novi is surrounded by Western Lake schools. Northville lies to the south, Walled Lake Western and Central to the north and the Farmington schools to the east.

Osborne said such a conference would have more clout with the Michigan High School Athletic Association than the KVC or WLAA by themselves. That body governs athletics in the state.

Osborne also echoed Johnson's thoughts about non-league games.

"Outside league games maybe tougher to come by," he said.

"It seems to be the wave of the future," said Northville basketball coach Larry Taylor. "A lot of schools are doing it."

Taylor came from Roseville High, which is part of the giant Macomb Area Conference. As far as basketball is concerned, he said it wouldn't make much difference to his team.

"The only advantage would be playing schools that are our size," Taylor added.

Mustang swimming coach Mark Heiden is taking a wait-and-see attitude.

"It would depend on how they did it," he said, "if it would be good or bad."

There is no name as of yet for the proposed league.

Mother-Son Spring Hop on tap

By CINDY STEWART
Special Writer

Since all the Novi Dads and their daughters had a terrific evening at the Valentine's Dance, it's time for all Moms and their sons to kick up their heels at the 5th Annual Mother-Son Spring Hop, Saturday, March 19.

After the first Daddy-Daughter Dance held at the Novi Civic Center in 1989, Novi moms demanded equal time for a special evening out with their sons. It gives moms a chance to spend quality time with their boys, dancing and enjoying one another's company.

The annual Mother-Son Spring Hop has now become as popular as the Daddy-Daughter Valentine's Dance. The event includes dinner from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. followed by the dance from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. mom's dinner is lasagna, salad, rolls and cake; and for the boys it's pasta, meatballs, salad, rolls and cake. Cost is $8 for mom's dinner and $6 for son's dinner. (You may attend the dance without the dinner.)

This is the second year for Louise and five-year-old Daniel Coleman. "Daniel was a bit intimidated last year, but this year he promises to "dance his brains out." His only condition is he wants to dress casual," said Louise. The Colemans "double-date" with Carol Szalony and her two sons, 13-year-old Andrew and 9-year-old Steven, who love going to the annual dance.

"They say it's their special night out with mom. This is our fifth year and my boys always ask me if we're going," said Carol. "They treat me like a queen, we dance every dance and last year Steven even requested a special song for us to slow dance to."

"When Parks & Rec had two dances, I had to take Steven one night and Andrew the next because they didn't want to share me! I'll go as long as they want to."

Nine-year-old Steven Duda also looks forward to the Mother-Son Spring Hop every year. "I like dressing up and going with my mom every year. The DJ plays all kinds of music and we like doing the Hokey Pokey," said Steven.

"We go with a group of neighbors making it a fun, annual event for everyone," said Susan Duda. "My husband has taken our 5-year-old daughter Lauren to the Daddy-Daughter Dance since she was 1½ years old. We enjoy all of the Parks and Rec activities offered throughout the year."

This is the third year for Kathy Hammill and her 8-year-old son, Mark.

"This is such a great night out for Mark and I. It's a fun way for mothers to spend time with their sons," said Kathy. "My husband Kim and 5-year-old daughter Ann went to the Daddy-Daughter Dance last month and had a great time. Now it's our turn."

"We always go with some of our neighbors and make it a very special evening for the boys. The biggest hit with our group is the refreshments, the 'Chicken Dance' and the Hokey Pokey. I'll keep going to the dance as long as Mark wants us to."

The fun evening also includes refreshments, flowers for mom, photos in a nice acrylic refrigerator magnet frame, gifts for everyone and great music by D.J. Willie.

"We're always looking for new ways to improve on our popular activities," said Marilyn Trashak, Recreation Coordinator. "We want to try new twists on old themes to encompass the changing status of today's families."

"Surveys may be sent out to Novi families to check out their interest in new dance ideas for different populations such as older sons and moms, older teen-age daughters and dads, or even single parents and their children. We want to be able to include everyone, regardless of their family situation."

Most moms agree that the Mother-Son Dance is a great activity that holds wonderful memories for them. Their lives are so busy with work, school and sports activities that it's nice to have a special evening for moms and sons to spend quality time together.

Tickets are now on sale at the Parks and Recreation Department at the Novi Civic Center. Dance tickets are $5 per person. Dinner is $8 for moms and $6 for sons.

Purchase your tickets before they're all gone! It's a special event neither mom nor son will soon forget. If you've never been, it's time to start building those quality memories for years to come. And don't forget, it's always fun doing the Hokey Pokey and the Chicken Dance.

Colon cancer easier to detect than some

Since the colon is not necessary for food absorption (that process takes place in the small intestine) nor is it necessary for life, colon cancer can often be removed with near a 100-percent cure rate.

Cancer of the colon and rectum accounts for 15 percent of all cancers and is the third leading cause of cancer deaths in the United States. It is infrequent before age 40 and becomes more prevalent with increasing age. By age 75 it becomes the most common fatal cancer in men and the second most common fatal cancer in women.

There is about a 6-percent chance of an individual developing it at some time during his or her life.

What causes colon cancer?

The cause is not precisely known, although physicians have identified definite risk factors which make its development more likely. Many studies have found colon cancer to be more common in industrialized societies that consume a low-fiber, high-fat diet, such as many Americans eat. There is also evidence that large amounts of alcohol, particularly beer, may make the development of this cancer more likely.

Heredity also plays a role in predicting who will develop the disease. If an individual has more than one close relative, such as a parent or sibling, with colon cancer or if the relative developed it before age 40, he or she has a higher risk and should be carefully watched and evaluated by a physician.

Other causes include ulcerative colitis, pre-

How does colon cancer start?

Colon cancer usually begins as a small tumor in the bowel and may appear as a polyp, a small growth projecting upward like a finger or be more flat and spreading like a small cauliflower. Most polyps occur on the left side of the colon near the rectum. This is important because the location favors early diagnosis since it is easily accessible to the physician.

Not all polyps are cancerous, but all should be evaluated since some benign polyps can become cancerous with time. At this early stage, even if the polyp is cancerous, it can be easily removed with simple techniques without the need for major surgery. If it is not detected and spreads outside the colon, the cure rate becomes very poor.

Waiting too long can make a curable cancer an incurable one that kills.

Why is screening helpful?

The best way to prevent colon cancer is through periodic examinations by a physician. Since colon cancer is infrequently seen before age 40, most physicians do not routinely screen younger people for it unless there is a strong family history or a reason to suspect it may occur at an earlier age.

Screening tests are done in healthy people who have no evidence of colon problems. The entire purpose of a screening procedure is to identify those individuals who have a problem before it is obvious and while there is still time to cure it.

Anyone who still doubts the validity of screening should remember how effective Pap smears (a screening procedure for cancer of the cervix) have been in preventing cancers in women.

What tests can tell if I have colon cancer?

Physicians screen for colon cancer using two tests. The first is a simple chemical test for blood in the stool. Since polyps may bleed, very small quantities of blood may be found in the stool of people with them. These quantities may or may not be visible to the naked eye.

During the test a small amount of stool is placed on a specially made piece of cardboard and a developing chemical is added to it. If the card turns bluish, it indicates there may be blood in the stool. This test does not prove that a cancer is present. It indicates a potential problem and that other testing is necessary. The American Cancer Society recommends yearly hemocult testing after the age of 50.

The benefits of this test are considerable. It is inexpensive, easy to do and gives very useful information. In addition, the testing kits can be taken home by the patient, used and mailed back to the physician. Diet and medications may need to be modified for a few days before taking the test.

The second test is a flexible sigmoidoscopy. This involves examining the lower part of the bowel with a soft, flexible tube that the physician looks through. This test does not examine the entire colon but does directly examine the area where colon cancer occurs 60 to 70 percent of the time.

The test is done in a physician's office and is much more comfortable than the older techniques using rigid scopes. The American Cancer Society recommends that everyone after age 50 have a flexible sigmoidoscopy done every three to five years.

What if the tests show a problem?

If a problem is identified by either of these two methods, further evaluation is warranted. Although blood tests and special radiological procedures may be done, many doctors request a complete examination of the colon using a colonoscope.

This instrument is a larger, longer and more complex version of the flexible sigmoidoscope. Using it, the physician can remove polyps and small masses with minimal discomfort and without major surgery. In cases of extensive cancer, surgery and chemotherapy or radiation therapy may be warranted. Fortunately, modern therapy is the best ever. It must not be forgotten, though, that prevention by early detection is much better and more effective than treating disease after it has spread too far.

Vigorous exercise can be fatal to bad heart fatal heart disease.

Such was the case with Jim Fox, the running guru who collapsed and died during a run. It was subsequently learned that Fox smoked cigarettes and was overweight in his younger years; that he had a strong family history of heart disease (his father died of a second heart attack at the age of 43); and that he developed chest pains a short time before his death — symptoms he chose to ignore.

Yet, Fox's death was a shock.

So was the death of "Pistol" Pete Maravich, who collapsed while playing a pickup game of basketball. An autopsy on Maravich, who was just 40, revealed that his heart had no coronary artery — a rare finding. Fox, on the other hand, had severe heart disease.

Reports of exercise-related cardiovascular complications have appeared in both medical literature and the popular press, suggesting that strenuous physical activity may actually bring on heart attack or sudden death in some people.

Consequently four important questions regarding the value of exercise have recently emerged: 1.) Is exercise risky? 2.) Does the benefit of regular exercise outweigh the risk? 3.) Why do complications occur in "apparently healthy" adults? 4.) Can the individual "at risk" be accurately identified? IS EXERCISE RISKY?

When a person dies of a heart attack while running, the public frequently assumes the exercise caused the death.

However, given the millions of Americans now running, some number of them could be expected by chance to die during exercise — just as some die while eating, reading and sleeping.

The critical question is: Does strenuous exercise temporarily increase the risk of cardiovascular complications as compared to less vigorous activity?

The answer appears to be "yes."

Exercise-related cardiovascular complications are extremely rare in the general population. A landmark study in 1982 reported only one jogging death per year for every 7,620 joggers in Rhode Island, corresponding to an hourly death rate for jogging of 1 per 396,000 hours.

Nevertheless, this rate was almost eight times the hourly death rate of 1 in three million for non-vigorous activity. The higher rate suggests a causal relation between jogging and sudden death in susceptible people.

For heart patients, the relative risk of exercise-related complications is estimated to be even greater.

BENEFIT vs. RISK

These reports seem contradictory to those of us who have been led to believe that regular exercise reduces the risk of heart disease and its complications.

The problem, however, is to determine if the benefit of regular exercise outweighs the risk.

Research indicates that a person is far more likely to experience a heart attack during vigorous exercise than during a comparable period of inactivity.

On the other hand, if that individual is a regular exerciser, he is at a lower overall risk for a cardiac event.

Canton ends Cagers' season 73-65 as Paupore stars

"I didn't think we played exceptionally well," he said. "I would have liked us to play better."

Salem used a quick start in the fourth quarter to take control of the game. The Rocks scored five straight points to make it 46-42 with about six minutes left.

After that the teams traded baskets until the final few minutes.

Wesley, Jeff Steving, Jason Lennig and Peter Anthony.

"That's our fastest group this year," said Heiden.

Fisher finished in the top 12 last year in the 100 backstroke. Heiden said the senior could move up several notches this time.

"He's going for all-state this year," he added. Fisher owns the school record in the event.

Joel Elsesser and Steving will compete in the breaststroke. Steving made the state meet in the 100-yard event last winter and just missed finishing in the top 12.

"There are not a lot of kids faster than him," Heiden said. "There are some that are about the same."

Northville closes the meet in the 400-yard freestyle relay with Wesley, Steving, Fisher and Lennig. Making the top 12 will be difficult for the Mustangs.

The team's best time in the event this season is 3:19. Heiden said it will likely take a 3:14 to finish in the money.

"That's one second per man," he said. "It can happen."

"I'd like to see us get a new school record."

Novi wins district opener

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

Bombs away!

Novi High used a deadly long range attack to whip Livonia Stevenson 64-56 Monday night in the opening round of the state playoffs. The Wildcats connected on nine three-pointers — the most triples the team netted in any game this season.

"They played a lot of zone and gave us nothing inside," coach Pat Schluter said in explaining all of the threes.

Novi advanced to the district semi-final Wednesday against Livonia Churchill (after Northville Record deadline). A win there would put Novi in the final against the winner of the Salem-Canton semi-final tomorrow at 7:30 p.m.

The Wildcats led from start to finish Monday night.

Senior Greg Piernan got his team rolling with a three-pointer at the 6:10 mark of the first period. Novi led 8-0 before Stevenson could get on the scoreboard.

The 'Cats ran up a 32-21 lead by halftime behind Piernan and junior Jason Fannon. The backcourt duo combined for 23 points in the half.

About the only serious trouble Novi faced came early in the third quarter.

Livonia went on a 9-0 run to cut the Wildcats' lead to 32-30. Schluter said Stevenson's run was caused by his team's sluggish play.

"We didn't protect the ball very well," he said.

Junior John Wroe knocked down a three-pointer and forward Shawn Kelly added another to make it 38-32 with 4:13 left.

"Both of them really stepped up," said Schluter.

Novi's lead was back up to 49-36 by the end of the quarter due in part to sophomore Chad Dicken. He scored seven of his 10 points in the third quarter.

Livonia never got closer than 13 points to Novi in the fourth.

Piernan led Novi with 18 points while Fannon added 13. Kelly and Dicken each had 10. Stevenson was led by 12 from Brett Ferris.

MILFORD 59, NOVI 35

The Wildcats closed the regular season Friday by absorbing a pounding at the hands of Milford.

Playing at home, Novi fell behind 20-7 after a quarter and never got back into it. Bob Kofahl led the winners with 16 points while center Dan Blue added 13.

Novi finishes the Kensington Valley Conference season in fourth place with a 5-7 record. Milford and Brighton split the league championship.

It became evident early on Friday the Redskins would have little trouble claiming a share of the crown.

Salem was able to pull away by connecting on six of 10 free throws in the final minutes.

Rocks' star James Head missed the game because of illness. Salem was led by James MacDonald's 18 points. Josh Williams played strong for Northville with 15, all in the second half.

FARMINGTON 61, NORTHVILLE 53

The Mustangs needed a win over the Falcons March 1 to advance to the league finals, but came up short.

Farmington, the smaller, quicker team, forced Northville out its zone defense and was able to get inside. That often resulted in the Falcons going to the free throw line where they actually won the game. Farmington sank 20 of 26 from the charity stripe, Northville four of 10.

"We wanted to get them to match up and play us man-to-man," said Falcon coach Denny Mikel. "If we could do that, we thought our quickness would really kick in and we would have an advantage."

The Falcons used a delay game at midcourt, passing and dribbling until the Northville defenders came out to challenge them. That usually left the middle open for Stan Lewis or Scott Menser to drive the basket.

Menser scored 17 points to lead Farmington and Lewis got most of his 14 at the free throw line where he made 10 of 13.

Josh Williams had 17 for the Mustangs but nobody else reached double figures. John Farrar had seven points.

"I think their stalling tactic was the biggest factor," Taylor said. "I don't think their quickness hurt as much as their holding the ball and waiting for us to come out. They were able to get behind us for easy baskets."

"I think they knew they couldn't play with us if it was a full-court game. They couldn't match up in terms of speed and height. I've never seen them play like that, so I think it was a tactic they felt they needed to beat us."

Farmington led 15-5 after one quarter, but Northville rallied to with 25-20 by halftime. The Falcons led 49-43 after three periods as well. The Mustangs got it down to 51-49 with two minutes left but could come no closer.

Seniors can postpone paying taxes on homes

By James M. Woodard
Copley News Service

Death and taxes may be inevitable, but you might be able to postpone the taxes until the time of death. At least that's sometimes a possibility for property taxes.

A little-known law in 19 states now allows many senior homeowners over age 62 to postpone payment of taxes on their home until their death. The accumulated due tax, plus interest, is then paid out of the homeowner's estate. Similar laws are being considered in additional states.

What a deal. No more property taxes for qualified seniors. Like a "reverse mortgage," it can result in more available cash each month for other expenses. And that could lead to an enhanced retirement lifestyle.

Stateliness and drama underscore the Abby

By James McAlexander
Copley News Service

Brick columns and a wide, custom-detailed front door give the Abby an initial image of stateliness. But that impression is softened somewhat by a series of arched, multipaned windows that also add drama to the vaulted living room.

The floor plan is informal, with one room flowing into another. All of the living spaces are rich in windows, but the kitchen/nook/family room is the brightest.

Glass fills most of the back wall, in one form or another. In the kitchen, a garden window provides a narrow ledge for flowering plants and other greenery. The eating nook is expanded by bay windows, and in the family room, four tall panes stand side by side to form a wide picture window.

Range and oven are built into a dogleg-shape counter that also serves as an eating bar. This allows adults, or anyone, working in the kitchen, to participate in whatever is going on in the rest of this large family living area. Pocket doors on the far side of the space open to reveal a spacious utility room, complete with fold-down ironing board, cabinets and a counter for folding clothes.

Two coat closets and a small bathroom, as well as stairs to the upper level and the basement, are all just a few steps from both the front door and the garage entrance. The two-car garage is expanded to include storage shelves and a workbench.

The master suite is downstairs, an arrangement that allows empty-nesters to confine their daily living to the lower level, leaving the upper floor ready for visiting grandchildren and other guests.

A huge skylight, over the raised tub, bathes the master bathroom in natural light. Other amenities in the master suite include a large walk-in closet and a second vanity in the dressing area.

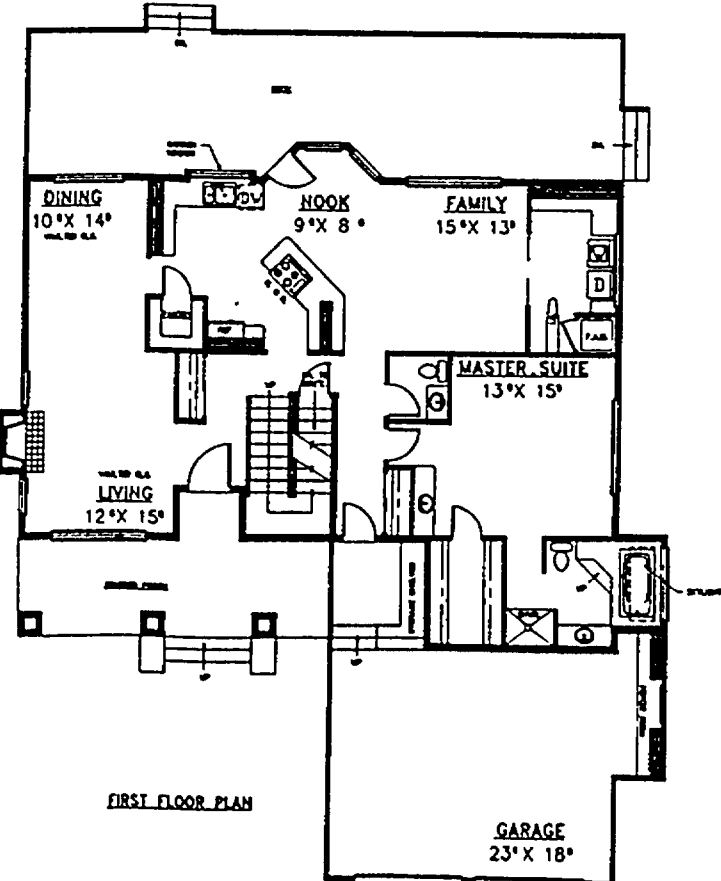

A landing at the top of the stairs overlooks the entryway and living room.

Two bedrooms share a bathroom with twin basins. A third room on this level, is designed with an open railing that also overlooks the vaulted areas below. It could be used as a library, hobby room, office or even enclosed to become a fourth bedroom.

PROPER PLANNING PROPAGATES PLANTS

By Anne Seebaldt Gogolin
Special Writer

Research and careful planning will yield a healthy and beautiful ornamental garden, and according to local horticultural experts, that planning process can be extremely rewarding by allowing gardeners to look forward to spring.

Gretchen Voyle, home horticulturist for Michigan State University's Cooperative Extension Service of Livingston County, said that reading books about gardening can yield valuable information — such as the intensity level of light needed for optimal growth of a plant.

Voyle added that many of the gardening books give sample garden plans for shade-seeking or sun-seeking plants. These publications also give valuable information about the type of soil needed to grow certain plants in.

Laurie Zabrosky, master gardener for Brainer Greenhouse Inc. in Lyon Township, agreed that planning is vital to gardening success. Part of her job is to help people select the appropriate plants for their gardens. However, some advance planning by the prospective gardeners makes her job easier.

"The first thing you have to do is lay out the area and decide how much garden you want," Zabrosky said.

No matter how creative a person is, Voyle believes that they can obtain valuable ideas from others through print and personal communication.

Researching the vast amount of gardening information available also motivates gardeners, she said. Planning a garden and the subsequent anticipation of its beauty can be an enjoyable way to spend the cold winter months.

Harmon Beaty, co-owner of Beaty's Greenhouse and Florist in Highland, said that he would recommend the Ortho line of garden books as an excellent source from which to obtain gardening information.

"If you want to use perennials, you should know what they will do," Beaty says.

Studying gardening publications is one way to ensure that perennial gardens will bloom from spring through the fall. For example, Beaty explained that another option is to intermingle annuals with the perennials.

"Most annuals will bloom all summer," he explained.

Zabrosky said that annuals are a good way to add "instant color" to a garden.

Once again, gardening books and magazines are a good source of information as to which floral combinations work well together.

Voyle said, "Your best bet if you decide to use perennials is to figure out how tall they will get, their colors, and how they will bloom. The good thing about perennials is that you can dig them up and shift their positions." Some perennials — such as peonies — "dislike being moved intensely."

Gardeners also should keep in mind that early spring bulb plants such as tulips should be planted in the fall, Zabrosky said. She added that she keeps a sketch of where she planted which bulbs to track what blooms and what doesn't.

Voyle suggested that gardeners who want to move perennials take this into consideration. She added that the best times to move perennials are September and spring when they have time to adequately redevelop their root systems.

Some nice, colorful additions to ornamental gardens include flowering fruit plants such as strawberries and cherry tomatoes and herbal plants.

Voyle notes that taste in gardening changes over time. For gardening inspiration, she said, "I do the Saturday garden tour." She explained that she travels to plant nurseries and greenhouses to see what is available locally. She added that it is a good idea not to limit your sources of flowers to chain stores. Serious gardeners also should check out independent "Mom and Pop" businesses before obtaining flower flats.

The best thing to do while planning the garden is to sketch it on paper, Voyle said. Measure the space available, note what

GARDENING

Home gardeners can ensure the success of their careful garden planning by taking the step now of buying seeds either through seed company catalogs or from seed racks at nursery centers and raising their own transplants.

Having just the right plants that are ready for transplanting on the optimum date is a primary reason gardeners grow from seed.

Gardeners who do a good job start their own seeds. I hope more people will start their own seeds for an early season and hard-togrow crops.

Northern gardeners who raise their own seedlings often point to the frozen outdoors as the reason for their efforts. Any excuse to get their fingers into some form of soil will suffice.

Warm-weather gardeners start seeds indoors to be able to protect the seedlings from chilly nights and to keep cutworms, slugs, snails and other perils from ruining crops before they are able to get started.

It doesn't take a vast outlay to get started. Seeds can be started in almost anything that will hold potting mix, from egg cartons to "recycled" plastic-foam coffee cups. "Bottoms" of containers work well, too. Both cardboard and plastic milk cartons can be cut down to serve as pots, as can the bottom several inches of a large plastic soda pop bottle. Make sure all "pots" have drainage holes punched in the bottom.

Recycled six-packs, flats or other plastic or clay pots from previous years are also excellent as long as they are thoroughly washed and soaked in a solution of one part bleach to nine parts water to kill pathogens.

Many gardeners use their own potting soil or compost to start seedlings, but I recommend buying a soilless commercial mix that is sterilized and contains enough perlite or vermiculite to make it light and porous to promote fast drainage.

The mix should be wet before seeds are added and should be kept moist, not sopping wet, from then on.

In general, the smaller the seed, the less soil should cover it. Larger seeds should be planted no deeper than three or four times their

- Try a soilless commercial mix with enough perlite or vermiculite to promote fast drainage.
- In general, the smaller the seed, the less soil needed to cover it.
- Avoid starting seeds indoors too early by working back from the outdoor planting date.
- Some crops, such as tomatoes and most annual flowers, can be started in close quarters. Others are better started in individual units: eggplant, cauliflower, cabbage and brussels sprouts.

Removing water stains from large windows

By Gene Gary
Copley News Service

G. We have some large picture windows that over the years have become badly stained with water spots. I have tried various commercial glass cleaners to remove these stains. They haven't made any difference. Do you have any recommendations on how to remove this staining? New window glass is much too expensive to consider.

A. Most stains of this type are caused by minerals in the water. Mineral stains can sometimes be eliminated or improved by applying a poultice made by soaking folded paper toweling or a cloth in vinegar.

Tape into place against the window glass and keep wet for a day or so. Wipe dry.

Experiment with this and if it doesn't improve the staining, try a cleaning solution of muriatic acid diluted with water. Use 1 part acid to 9 parts water.

Use a sponge or a soft brush to apply this solution, being careful not to splash any on the surrounding area. Rinse with clear water.

Use great care when working with acids. Pour the acid into water, never the reverse. Wear rubber gloves, old clothes, eye goggles.

pound. Use an electric buffer and a light to medium liquid rubbing compound such as that made for fiber glass boats.

This will often remove persistent water deposits, although the abrasions in some of these products can tend to scratch the glass surface. Minute scratches, however, are often easier to live with than glass that is severely stained.

In the buffing process, use great caution not to apply undue pressure that might break the glass.

If this treatment is unsuccessful, your window glass probably is pitted and etched, and uncleanable.

If you do have success in cleaning the glass, apply a protective coating such as Rain-X or Window Maid. These products create a surface where dirt will not adhere as much to the glass and they are also effective in preventing the buildup of water deposits. The protective coatings have to be reapplied periodically.

G. My front entrance is a terra cotta tiled floor. When I step on the tiles, three of them in different locations seem to be loose. I have tried to lift them, but it seems like the grout is holding them down. Is there any way to glue these tiles down? How do I get glue around the grout? I have not washed the floor because I do not want to get water trapped beneath the tiles.

A. If the tiles are loose, you will have to remove the grout that surrounds them and reset the tiles with adhesive.

You can remove the grout with a sharp instrument such as a screw driver or a special grout remover available from a tile dealer. Once the grout has been removed around the loose tiles, you can pry the tile free.

Reset these tiles with tile adhesive and then regout with a grout that matches the existing grout.

owners are taking advantage of this opportunity.

"Few senior homeowners are aware of this tax postponement opportunity," said Harold Pittman, a tax collector in California.

California has about 12,000 have signed for the program. It's estimated that about 900,000 are eligible for it. And that number is steadily increasing. Similar response is reported from other states.

"When you postpone your taxes, an account is set up at the State Controller's Office in your name," Pittman explained. "Since the state pays the property taxes for you, a security document in the form of a 'property tax postponement lien' will be recorded on your home."

In other words, the equity the senior holds in his home is used as security for the ultimately due taxes and interest. The interest rate changes each year, but is always a below-market rate.

To be eligible, the senior must have equity in his home amounting to at least 20 percent of its value. That means all current loans against the property cannot add up to more than 80 percent of its value.

The home's value, for this purpose, is the full value as shown on the property tax bill—not necessarily what the home is worth on the current market.

The accumulated taxes and interest will be due and payable to the state when the senior sells or moves from the property, or when he or she dies. It will then become a recorded lien against the property.

There also is an applicant income requirement. To qualify for the program in California, for example, the senior cannot have an annual income exceeding

Some seniors may be reluctant to sign up for the program because they are concerned about decreasing the amount of their estate to be passed along to their offspring or other heirs.

"But where does it say you have to leave everything for your kids," asked Ken Scholen, director of the National Center for Home Equity Conversion.

Of the 19 states that now have a property tax deferral laws, six states do not impose an income limit for applicants. In some states, the law also applies to homeowners of any age who are blind or disabled at the time of application.

Another assistance program for senior homeowners provides reimbursements by the state of a portion of the senior's property tax. Sometimes called a "circuit breaker program," the American Association of Retired Persons describes the program this way in a special report:

"The program provides a property tax credit in which benefits depend on both income and property tax payments. There are two types of offered program—sliding scale and threshold.

"Sliding scale programs rebate a percentage of property tax liability with the rebate being larger for low-income people. Threshold programs rebate the amount of tax that exceeds a certain percentage of income."

This program includes more stringent qualification requirements. In California, the applying senior must be at least 62 and cannot have an annual income greater than $13,200—or a gross household income of more than $24,000.

For detailed information on either of these homeowner assistance programs in your area, contact your county Tax Collector's Office. In most areas, a free informational brochure is available on the programs.

G. Are mortgage delinquencies expected to increase this year?

A. No. According to a report from Mortgage Bankers Association, mortgage delinquencies are now at a 19-year low and will likely continue decreasing as the economy improves and interest rates remain low. Despite recent action by the Federal Reserve to raise interest rates, most real estate experts feel mortgage rates will rise only slightly, remaining low through 1994.

The proportion of homeowners who are late in paying mortgages fell to 4.2 percent in 1993, MBA reported. This year it will probably be lower.

G. How can a person market a residential property that is too large and expensive for most prospective buyers?

A. One success-proven method for selling such a property is to offer it as a "corporate retreat."

I recently received information on such a property from Denver-based Selected Properties International, Inc. This firm recently listed a property in Colorado Springs known as "Penrose Shack"—a very large residence built by Mrs. Spencer Penrose, wife of the founder of the well-known Broadmoor Hotel in Colorado Springs. It's priced at $2.6 million.

Several recent inquiries have been from company executives interested in using the property as a corporate retreat for its staff and key customers, according to H. Bob Fawcett, president of Selected Properties International.

Questions may be used in future columns; personal responses should not be expected. Send inquiries to James M. Woodard, Copley News Service, P.O. Box 190, San Diego, CA 92112-0190.

Certain crops can be started in close quarters and carefully pricked out and replanted in bigger surroundings when the first set of true leaves form. These include most annual flowers and the ever-popular tomato.

Others are best started in individual units—in one pocket of a six-pack or in a Jiffy-7 peat container—and grown there throughout the seedling stage so that tender root systems are not shocked beyond recovery when it is time to set the plant in the garden. These include eggplants, lettuces, peppers and the cold crops—broccoli, cauliflower, cabbage and brussels sprouts.

Once the necessary "ingredients" are assembled, it's time to plant, right? Not necessarily.

The "cabin-fever" syndrome creates one of the biggest problems. I feel most people start seeds too early indoors. Look at the packet to determine when you can plant outdoors and work backward from that.

In wintry areas, gardeners should keep a close check on the average frost-free date, so they know when certain crops can be planted and when others should get started indoors.

It's important to not plant too thickly, so thin out soon so the seedlings don't have too much competition. If you have two seedlings in a six-pack pocket, always clip off the less healthy one.

Gardeners must defend themselves against slugs and snails in much of the country, so many crops are started in flats to get a good start in life.

I recommend starting almost anything in flats, particularly tomatoes, eggplants and peppers. I also start cool-season vegetables—broccoli, cabbage and cauliflower—and even peas, corn and beans in flats.

Home heating solutions for seedlings can range from placing seed trays on top of a refrigerator or a hot water heater to a heating pad. Humidity is important, and seeded containers can be covered with plastic, whether a simple bag with a twist-tie or a "bubble" available at garden centers to fit plastic trays.

Light isn't that important until the plants germinate, then it becomes crucial. It is also crucial at this stage to remove the plastic to get sufficient air circulation around the plants to avoid a complex of fungi known as damping off that can wipe out an entire flat of seedlings.

Once growing, the seedlings need to be watered every day in many instances. I believe in bottom watering followed by complete draining, to keep foliage from becoming wet and starting a fungal disease.

With home heating systems, air circulation is minimal in many Northern homes. I recommend watering the plants with a fine mister on a hose in warmer climates since foliage will have time to dry by nightfall if it is outdoors during the day.

The general rule is never to put a plant to bed wet. Potting mix should remain moist, not wet, and should never be allowed to dry out.

The biggest problem the home gardener faces is getting enough light and a cool enough growing temperature to keep seedlings from stretching and becoming leggy. A fluorescent fixture works well if you have one.

Like humans, plants need to eat, so use a slow-release fertilizer to be worked into the potting mixture at planting time, and a supplement of liquid fertilizer every two weeks after the seedlings are up.

When it approaches time to set the plants in the garden, they need a period of adjustment to the harsher realities of sun, wind and rain.

Known as "hardening off," the process can take place in the back of a car as long as you leave the windows cracked about 1 inch, under a tree or in a cold frame. Each day, the plants can take a little more exposure until transplanting to the garden.

This cherry bureau washstand was made in the late 1800s and could sell for between $450 to $475.

Washstand made in 1800s

By Anne McColam
Copley News Service

Q. Enclosed is a picture of a cherry bureau that I inherited from my grandmother years ago. It was given to her by a friend who lived in the farm area around Lake Erie in upstate New York.

What can you tell me about my bureau?

A. Your cherry bureau washstand was made in the late 1800s. Washstands were available either as a three-drawer chest type or as a commode with a drawer and two doors.

They typically had back splashes and towel racks.

It would probably be worth about $450 to $475.

Q. I have a Royal Doulton figurine of "The Love Letter." It is marked "HN 2149."

There are two figures sitting on a couch.

One is dressed in a blue gown trimmed in black, the other has a gown of red and white trimmed with gold.

One of the figures is holding a letter. It is 5 inches tall and in perfect shape.

Could you please tell me its vintage and value?

A. "The Love Letter" was made by Royal Doulton from 1958 to 1976. It was designed by Peggy Davis.

The value is currently listed in the $330 to $400 range.

Q. The enclosed mark is on the bottom of a set of porcelain cups and saucers that I recently purchased.

They are blue and white and have a flower design on one side and also inside each cup.

Could you please tell me their age and value?

A. Your cups and saucers were

ANTIQUES

ENGLAND New Stone FITZHUGH

made by W.T. Copeland in Stoke, Staffordshire, England. This mark was used on porcelain around 1920. "Fitzhugh" is the name of the pattern.

Each cup and saucer would be valued about $45 to $55 in good condition.

Q. I am curious about a 1930s gas station globe that I have. It is in the shape of a crown and has a metal frame around the glass insert. The height is 16 inches.

Is this worth anything?

A. Gas globes of this type were used from around 1915 to the 1930s.

The demise of the independently owned gas station has pumped up the price and popularity of gasoline memorabilia. Gas globes similar to yours can start at $500 and go up.

Q. My grandmother gave me a clear glass console bowl and matching candelabra. She told me the set was given to her around 1940.

They were made by Fostoria and the pattern is "Baroque." Each candelabrum holds three candles. The bowl has handles and measures 10 by 11 inches.

Could you place a value on it and tell me something about Fostoria?

A. Fostoria Glass Co. was founded in 1887 in Fostoria, Ohio. In 1891 it relocated to Moundsville, W.Va. They manufactured fine-quality glassware in a wide range of items and colors.

Lancaster Colony Corp. purchased the company in 1983 and still operates under the Fostoria name.

Your console set would probably be worth about $145.

Proper planning propagates plants

you have to work around (including existing trees, shrubs, and utility meters), and write down the plan.

The shape and style of a garden is very much a matter of personal taste, Voyle said. "A lot of people prefer curving, informal (flower) beds," she said.

A good way to minimize lawn maintenance problems with a curved flower bed is to take the garden hose and use it to form the pretend edge of it. Then take whatever kind of mower you use and make sure you can cut all the way around the flower bed.

Another extremely important aspect of garden planning includes soil assessment and any necessary treatment.

Beaty said: "Perennials can be a real headache if you don't know what kind of ground you're working with."

He recommended mixing sandy soil with peat moss for enrichment and loam soil to increase water retention.

Clay-like soil should be mixed with sand and perlite in order to make it more amenable. This mixture allows water to flow through the soil.

In addition, plants should be matched to soil types and the optimal lighting levels whenever possible.

Beaty warns: "If you want to use fertilizer, use it on established plants, not on plants right out of a flat." When using liquid fertilizer, it also is important to be sure that the plants have a good root system.

Beaty explained that gardening of any type has its share of surprises.

"Sometimes it's trial and error," he said. "What should work in your ground sometimes doesn't."

Voyle said that gardeners also should consider the amount of time they are willing and able to spend maintaining their plots. Any gardener can make the mistake of overplanting.

"It's better to do a little bit really well than a whole lot poorly," she added.

Softub brings paradise to any room in house

A small plume of steam rises lazily over the dense greenery as you step into the magical, inviting warm water. Suddenly all of your cares drift away as your muscles unlock and a sense of ease pervades your body.

You need not hop on a plane to some tropical destination to find paradise. It can be as close as your spare bedroom or family room with a Softub from Tension Tamer in Novi.

Greg and Teresa Shmanske opened shop at the Novi Town Center Feb. 1 with the idea of bringing affordable, comfortable spas to the western suburbs.

"Sales have been good," said Greg Shmanske. "Between the Novi Expo Center and (the shopping facilities) we thought it was a remarkable area."

The couple opened their first Softub retail store in Rochester Hills a little more than three years ago. With a lot of hard work and a little perseverance, the business took off and allowed the Shmanskes to branch out.

"If you want to do a good job you've got to do it yourself," said Greg.

Teresa said they had been considering a move to Novi for about two years before finally landing at the Town Center.

"We waited by choice," she added, "to make sure things were stable."

Besides the prime location of the shop, the Expo Center was another consideration in coming to Novi.

A large percentage of their business comes from doing shows, such as the recent Silverdome Home and Garden Show. Taking the tubs to a dozen or more events every year gives potential buyers a perfect opportunity to check out the product.

"If we relied on paper ads and sat in the showroom we'd be in trouble," said Greg. "People have to see it and feel it to get the idea. That's my secret."

Having an excellent product to sell doesn't hurt either.

Each spa is constructed of more than 30 layers of polyolefin foam. The layers are fused together to make a water-tight, lightweight user-friendly spa.

"It has incredible strength without much weight," said Teresa.

All three Softub models are less than 100 pounds. Most folks, in fact, can move the spas around without help.

"These tubs are so compact they will roll through any doorway," added Greg. "They compress to go around corners and down stairs."

And, the owners maintain, will fit in just about any room in your house, condo or apartment. Greg said if they can't set up the Softub in the room of your choice, Tension Tamer will return your deposit plus $100 cash.

"We haven't been skunked on that ever," he commented.

Once the unit is set up getting it going is easy.

A simple garden hose can be used to fill the Softub. Bringing the water up to snuff is then as simple as turning the thermostat to the desired temperature and letting it heat overnight.

Keeping the water just right is easy with the air-tight Softub lid. Greg said running the spa continuously adds only $5 to $15 to your electricity bill.

The tubs are also very durable and rarely ever need servicing, he said. Any problems that do arise are covered 100 percent for five years.

"Every stitch to every wire," he said.

The spas come in 27 colors. If you get tired of the color you've purchased or are redecorating, Teresa said the tubs can be changed to match your decor.

Prices range from $1,999 to $2,899. The least expensive spa holds two people and about 145 gallons of water while the largest unit holds six and 300 gallons.

Tension Tamer offers financing for purchasing the spas. Teresa said monthly payments average less than $100.

Deductions for business travelers

Whether you're an employee or work on your own, business travel comes with a hefty price tag. If traveling across the country or even around your state as a necessary part of your business, you are entitled to some tax deductions that can help offset your expenses, points out the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants.

Be aware that travel expenses of employees are subject to different rules than travel expenses of those who are self-employed. Unreimbursed employee travel expenses are considered miscellaneous expense and as such, are only partially deductible.

If you are an employee, you may deduct only those unreimbursed expenses that together with other miscellaneous expenses exceed two percent of your adjusted gross income. This restriction does not apply if you are self-employed.

TRIP DEDUCTIONS

Most expenses incurred on a business trip away from your business home are tax-deductible, depending on the length of your stay. These include transportation costs, such as rail or airline tickets, cab fares, automobile expenses, meals, lodging, laundry, tips, telephone charges and fax charges. The cost of taking a spouse along on a business trip is not deductible unless it can be shown that the presence of the spouse serves a bona fide business purpose.

Money Management

On one-day business trips within the general area of your employment, you may not deduct the costs of lodging or meals, unless you are working with a client during that meal. Meals and lodging are generally tax-deductible on a business trip that requires an overnight stay.

MEAL COSTS

Even if you meet the overnight tests for meal costs, tax law limits the deduction of meal costs to 80 percent of the actual cost. This rule applies whether you are eating alone on your trip or entertaining a client.

If you didn't keep accurate records of meal costs on your business trips, you can claim the standard federal meal and incidental expenses (M & IE) rate. For travel within the continental United States, the daily meal allowance is generally $26. In high-cost areas specified by the IRS, the meal allowance is $34.

AUTOMOBILE EXPENSES

If you travel by car on most of your business trips, you may claim either the statutory rate of 28 cents per mile or the actual expenses incurred. Actual expenses include costs for oil and gas, parking fees, repairs, insurance and tolls. To verify your deductions for these types of expenses, make sure you maintain accurate records.

You cannot take a deduction for the expenses of driving to and from your regular place of business. If you work two jobs, the IRS will allow you to deduct the costs of commuting between the jobs, as long as you don't stop home to have a meal before you go to your second job.

CONVENTIONS

To deduct expenses associated with attending a convention, you must demonstrate that the convention was connected with your business or may help to benefit or enhance your position. Legitimate expenses include the cost of traveling to and from the convention, lodging, tips, and even room costs for product expositions. In most cases, you may not claim deductions for a spouse traveling with you to a convention, nor can you claim deductions for recreational expenses.

BUSINESS/VACATION TRIPS

If you travel to a three-day convention, and spend another four days vacationing, expenses incurred during that vacation time are not tax-deductible. However, you can deduct the costs of your transportation to and from the resort, your lodging, and 80 percent of meal costs as long as the main purpose of the trip was to conduct business.

The rules in this area are strict. According to the Michigan Association of CPAs, the best way to ensure that you get the deductions you deserve is by keeping a diary of all your business-related travel expenses.

'Employee of choice' is named at Five Star Supply

Five Star Supply, located at 1135 S. Milford Rd. in Highland, proudly announced that Mike Pollard has been selected as their "Employee of Choice" for the month of January. Mike, a resident of Highland, has worked for Five Star Supply for almost three years now. In May of 1991, he started working there while he was a junior at Milford High School.

Mike, a sales consultant, "is always ready to help the customers when they come into our store," said one of the employees. This is one reason why Mike was selected as "Employee of Choice."

"He also shows up promptly for work," said another. You never know where Mike might show up next. He might be straightening the shelves or loading salt for a customer. You might even find him unloading the delivery truck or selling a water softener. But no matter where he is, he's always doing a great job.

Program makes student loan payment ease

To make student loan repayment easier—and encourage timely payments—Sallie Mae has announced that it is offering the Direct RepaySM plan, a repayment benefit that allows student loan borrowers to authorize a transfer of money from their checking or savings account directly to Sallie Mae for their monthly loan payments.

Beginning May 1, 1994, borrowers who elect to use the Direct Repay Plan will receive a 1/2 percent interest rate reduction on their loans paid electronically for as long as they continue in the plan.

"Direct Repay is checkless, so on-time payment is guaranteed every month provided borrowers have sufficient funds in their accounts," says Lydia Marshall, Sallie Mae senior vice president. "This helps borrowers avoid missed payments, makes it easy for them to maintain a good credit rating, and allows them to pay less on their student loans."

Marshall said that Sallie Mae can offer the interest rate reduction because loans that are paid electronically are less costly to administer.

Through Direct Repay, the corporation will pass savings it realizes in servicing costs on to participating borrowers.

The plan will be available initially to those Stafford loan borrowers whose loans are owned by Sallie Mae, are in repayment, and are serviced at one of its loan servicing centers. The plan will be available to all PLUS and SLS borrowers in July 1994.

In addition to Direct Repay's automatic 1/2 percent interest rate reduction, eligible Stafford borrowers can reduce their rate further by qualifying for Sallie Mae's Great RewardsSM benefit—a rate reduction of an additional two percentage points for borrowers who make their first 48 scheduled payments on time.

Borrowers with a $5,000 loan balance would realize approximately $327 in savings with the combined 2 1/2 percent Direct Repay and Great Rewards interest rate reductions. Students who borrowed each year as undergraduates—totaling as much as $23,000 in Stafford loans—would save more than $1,500 over the life of the loans under both programs.

Sallie Mae, which buys education loans from originating lenders, owns one in three guaranteed student loans outstanding today, representing financing for 5 million students and their parents.

Borrowers who are current with their payments may sign up for Direct Repay at any point in their repayment period. For more information on the Direct Repay plan, borrowers should call their Sallie Mae loan servicing center.

Many take advantage of open door policy

Governor John Engler announced today that nearly 700 Michigan citizens have taken advantage of his "open door" policy that allows every Michigan citizen the opportunity to meet with the governor.

"I'm ready to talk with anyone who loves Michigan and wants to help make our state a better place to live, work and raise a family," Engler said.

Since taking office, Engler has met with constituents in his office to talk about hundreds of topics, including school reform, crime, the environment and economic development.

In addition, Engler has logged more than 150,000 miles on state roads and highways, over the past three years, fulfilling his promise to visit all 83 Michigan counties each year.

"It takes common sense, good ideas and basic values to raise kids right, make ends meet and prepare for the future. That's why the input of homeowners, taxpayers and parents from all across Michigan is so important to making the right decisions at the State Capitol."

Citizens interested in meeting with Governor Engler should write to "Open Door," Governor's Office, P.O. Box 30013, Lansing, Mich. 48909. They will receive a form that must be returned in order to schedule a visit.

Engler also has recently signed legislation extending the availability of the Homeless Shelter and Food Bank Credit for the 1993 and 1994 tax years. The bill had passed the Michigan Legislature with unanimous bipartisan support.

"Michigan's job providers have always been generous in their support for families in need," Engler said. "This credit will continue to encourage that generosity and give more companies an added incentive to be good neighbors."

Under the credit, a business is allowed a credit of up to 5 percent of their Single Business Tax liability or $5,000, whichever is less. The legislation also removes the $1.5 million cap on total single business tax and income credits claimed through this program.

Engler also pointed out that Michigan has an innovative partnership with the Salvation Army to provide shelter for anyone who needs a place to stay. Another public-private partnership—the Michigan Harvest Gathering—has raised more than 1.5 million pounds of food and over $900,000 to help feed Michigan's neediest families.

"Working together, we're making sure that no one in Michigan need be homeless or hungry," Engler said.
