

Committee sketches out potential merger

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

The blue ribbon committee authorized to consider a city / township consolidation plan already has some ideas about what a combined municipality could look like.

At its March 16 meeting, the committee identified several assumptions to present to the city council and township board. Among them:

- The new organization would be a city with a council/manager form of government;
- Current city council and township board members would resign and new elections would be held:

- The city and township managers also would resign, and the new council would select the new manager;
- All board and commission members would resign and new appointments would be made by the new council;
- Current township and city staff would be retained in some capacity.

The committee agreed that the financial departments of both the city and township and Plante & Moran, financial consultants to both, will generate the materials needed "to research the ramifications of a consolidation," according to meeting minutes. City Attorney James Kohl will also be called in as needed to review legal considerations.

The aim of the research is to give voters "a thumbnail sketch of the ramifications of consolidation in an advisory election in November, 1994," according to the minutes. The committee hopes to complete all the research by mid-July.

Some specific research topics include legal issues, finances, personnel, governance, road maintenance, sewer service, police and fire departments.

The city and township are hooked up to separate sewer systems at this point, with city waste flowing through the Wayne County

Super Sewer and township waste handled by the controversial Western Townships Utilities Authority.

Council members had raised the issue of road maintenance at a Feb. 9 meeting, noting that all township roads are now maintained by Wayne County and a consolidated city would have to provide those services, along with the equipment needed to perform them, itself.

Mayor Chris Johnson presented the list of assumptions to the council at its Monday night meeting. "If we're wrong on any of those assumptions, we'll have to know that from the respective boards," he said.

Council members did not question any of the assumptions directly, though they had questioned the timing of the consolidation talks and the complexity of any union at the Feb. 9 meeting.

On Monday, Council Member Charles Keys urged the appointment of non-political members to the blue ribbon committee for impartiality, suggesting that one resident be appointed from the city and one from the township. He also suggested reviewing how other municipalities had consolidated.

District library millage varies

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

When Northville voters go to the polls May 3 to decide on a new district library, they will be asked two separate questions.

The first question will be whether to authorize the levy of up to 1 mill in property taxes to pay for the operation of the new Northville District Library. The levy would raise about $757,000 for the library district in 1994. It would be made in perpetuity, so that the district library would have a secure source of funding.

The second ballot question, and its effect on city and township millage rates, is more vague but no less important. Voters will be asked to authorize the Northville District Library to borrow up to $4.5 million through general obligation bonds "for the purpose of acquiring, constructing, equipping and furnishing a library building, and acquiring and impro-

Manager's case still a mystery

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

Those involved are sticking by their guns when it comes to not talking about why former Northville Township Manager Bill Richards left his job. They continue to refrain from discussing the matter, claiming silence is the best policy for all concerned.

One example of the general trend: "I have my opinions of why he left, but I don't want to go on the record with them. We agreed not to go down that path," Clerk Sue Hillebrand said last month.

"I just don't think throwing mud at each other (in public) serves any purpose," said another this week.

Richards, hired last summer, worked less than eight months before resigning his post in January. During that time, he and some board members clashed over sometimes private, sometimes public—and occasionally harsh—differences of opinion.

On Jan. 25 he unexpectedly requested a medical leave of absence from the board. His doctor said he was suffering from hypertension and angina and that the leave was medically necessary. Richards left work the same day—as it turned out, he wouldn't return.

Northville networks during annual expo

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

If the aim of the fourth annual Networking Northville Business Expo was to bring people together, the event was right on target.

Local merchants displayed their wares and non-profit organizations got their message out, as some 300 residents attended the fourth annual Northville Chamber of Commerce event March 16.

The visitors wandered among booths staffed by about 280 local retailers, restaurateurs and non-profit volunteers. The booths presented the displays of 45 businesses, 12 non-profit organizations and more than a dozen local eateries which kept the crowds fed by baking up samples of their cuisine.

Mike Ludwig, owner of Maliboxes, Etc. at 118 Main Centre, said several new customers stopped by his shipping store the day after the expo, looking for printed shipping labels, shipping services and copying.

"They never knew I existed or what I did before," he said.

Laurie Marrs, the chamber's executive director, added that non-profit agencies like Northville Youth Assistance recruited new volunteers during the expo.

"Everybody benefits all the way around," she said.

Marrs attributed a slight drop in attendance to several factors, including the publication of incorrect event times in a Northville Record article and parking problems at Northville

High School.

Marrs also apologized on behalf of the chamber for confusion surrounding senior citizen discounts. While some seniors were told that discounts would be offered on the $5 tickets, they were not given any when they arrived at the event.

Marrs assures seniors that the discounts will be available for next year's event.

Changes are already under way for

Forum set for Mainstreet '93

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

With the start of construction on the city's Mainstreet '93 parking deck, only weeks away, city officials want to hear from the merchants and residents who will be most impacted.

City Manager Gary Word has scheduled a public informational meeting on Mainstreet '93 for 8 a.m. Tuesday, March 29, at Northville City Hall. Word, DPW Director Ted Mapes and possibly a representative from Walbridge Aldinger, construction manager for the $4.2 million project, will be on hand to field questions and address concerns.

Under Mainstreet '93, the city will build an expandable Cady Street parking structure to replace the existing deteriorating deck, a new paved and lighted parking lot south of the deck, and a new sunken parking structure with a lower level for Main Centre residents and other leased parkers south of Main Centre.

The goal is to complete the project by sometime in December to minimize the impact on the Christmas shopping season.

The informational meeting is intended to publicize the construction schedule and identify potential areas for overflow parking while the work is under way, Word said.

"We're trying to be proactive," he

Resurfacing project passes over dissent

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

The Northville City Council recently agreed to help fund county resurfacing of Seven Mile Road and Edward Hines Drive, but not without some dissent.

Council Member Paul Folino voted against the move, arguing that the city already pays taxes to the county for road repairs. The roads are considered primary county roads and fall under county jurisdiction for maintenance and repair.

The city had rejected a similar proposal from the county in 1992 due to its financial straits, and due to criticism of the county for not funding the entire amount.

This time, the majority of the council followed City Manager Gary Word's recommendation to approve the project. Word noted that the road is deteriorating and the project cost has remained almost unchanged since 1992.

The council did discuss researching state law to learn whether local municipalities are required to provide matching funds for such projects.

The .82-mile Seven Mile Road stretch, between Edward Hines Drive and Northville Road, will cost $78,720. Resurfacing a .4-mile stretch of Edward Hines from South Wing to Sheldon Road will cost $38,400.

The city has been asked to pay one-third of the cost of both projects, for a total cost of $39,040.

The project falls under the county's internal resurfacing program, which places fresh concrete on sections of primary roads that are in "poor" or "bad" condition.

The work is scheduled to be completed in 1994.

Joint meeting brings four groups together

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

Northville Public Schools will host a second annual get-together with representatives from the city, township and chamber of commerce next Wednesday, March 30.

The meeting follows a similar one exactly a year ago in which the various officials updated each other on ongoing projects and laid the groundwork for future cooperation.

"I know that our board (of trustees) has gleaned a great deal of information from meeting with the other elected officials on projects and where we are going individually and collectively," said School Superintendent Leonard Reznierski.

Such contacts can help spur more cooperative efforts like the township's acquisition of the high-tech

Optical Imaging Systems development and community-wide programs to address alcohol and drug abuse, he said.

The meeting will be held between 7-9 p.m. at Cooke Middle School, 21200 Taft Road. Leaders of all four entities will be given the opportunity to make 20-minute presentations on their accomplishments and current projects.

Some possible topics of conversation at this year's meeting include the opening of Thornton Creek Elementary School, the city's Mainstreet '93 parking deck project, a proposed consolidation of the city and township and a proposed five-municipality consolidation of police services.

Residents are invited to attend and listen in, and voice their own concerns. Area legislators have also been invited to sit in on the discussion.

Girls' interest in science will be encouraged in a workshop at Maybury State Park in May. Inspecting samples of the park foliage are Ryam Kelly, 11, and Haylee Rose, 10. With them are event program director Betty Hancock (foreground) and chairperson Kirsten Van Riper (background).

Science workshop at Maybury

The Northville-Nowi and Livonia AAUW branches are looking for girls in grades five through eight who want to boost their skills in math and science.

The American Association of University Women is co-sponsoring an "Excited About Science" hands-on workshop at Maybury State Park in Northville.

The day-long workshop will be held Saturday, May 7, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. for girls in fifth and sixth grade, while girls in grades seven and eight will meet Saturday, May 21, at the same time.

Both Saturdays at Maybury include a free one-hour parent seminar beginning at 10 a.m.

Kirsten Van Riper of Northville, and Irene Cameron of Livonia, are chairpersons of the workshop. Sue Page and Colleen Van Riper are co-chairpersons.

"Last year when the girls left our workshop they were enthusiastic and positive about their abilities in math and science," Kirsten said. "They discovered areas where math and science are useful in the global society. We want to expand this year's opportunities to a full day of activities for both sessions."

Northville Charter Member Betty Hancock is back as head instructor. Hancock has double science majors from U of M and is an experienced leader of workshops. Her workshops fuel the enthusiasm that raises the low self-esteem many girls have concerning math and science.

Hancock says, like last year, the laboratory will be out-of-doors and girls are encouraged to wear old clothes and rain slickers if the weather is threatening.

A teacher-to-student ratio of one-to-five is expected.

The one-hour seminar for parents is new to this year's schedule. Elaine Koons of Livonia will present "Raising Daughters for Success." Koons has a master of arts degree from Eastern Michigan University and is employed in the Livonia school system as a parent outreach coordinator.

The seminar will be a down-to-earth look at parenting skills that assist girls in realizing their options, setting goals and believing in themselves.

"Today's girls need to understand and be assured that they can excel in math and science," Koons said. "Parents can help in strengthening their child's self-confidence and excitement for learning."

Tradition suggests that women are not as good in math and science as men. A study commissioned by AAUW in 1990, however, found that girls experience a drastic drop in self-esteem around the age of 11 and this is sustained throughout middle and high school. The drop in self-esteem coincides with reduced confidence and interest in science and math.

As a result, career expectations for science and technology are affected.

For over 100 years AAUW has been active in addressing equity, education and self development issues for women. The 1994 "Excited About Science" workshop is presented to dispel another myth: girls can't do well in math and science.

Middle school girls who are interested in the workshop can call for an application form or information from Winnie Fraser, 348-7264, or Kirsten Van Riper, 348-4302. Application forms are also available through the schools. Cost to the participant is $10. The event is Girl Scout badge approved.

Police News

Teen party leads to police visit

A party on Charleston Court spun out of control March 18, generating several police reports.

Police were first called to the scene about 1:30 a.m. in response to reports of a fight in progress. When they arrived, they found 10-12 people in front of the home and a loud party going on inside.

As the party was breaking up, one white male ignored a police officer's orders to stop and drove off in a blue 1987 GMC S-10 pickup truck, driving across the lawn to eastbound Lexington. The officer gave chase and followed the truck's tire tracks through the freshly-fallen snow to the Little Knoll Apartments. When he found the deserted truck, he noted that its windshield was covered with ice and snow and both windows had been rolled down.

As the officer drove past the Mobil station at Eight Mile and Taft, he spotted a white male using the pay phone, who ran when he saw the patrol car. The officer followed the suspect to Northville Gourmet & Wine Shoppe where he saw two male suspects run across Eight Mile to Northville Green Apartments. He caught them and questioned them there.

One of the teens, a 16-year-old Canton resident, said he ran because he was afraid but he did not know who had driven the truck. The other, a Plymouth resident who was the truck's owner, said a third male drove it and handed the keys to him while they were running from the police. He said he could not identify the third youth, and police never saw a third person.

While being questioned, the Canton youth complained to police that he had been assaulted while he was at the party. While leaving, he said, he was struck in the head with a glass bottle and stabbed with a knife or pole by 4-6 people.

Police observed a large bump, swelling and a small cut on the left side of his forehead above his left eye, and two small scratches on his abdomen. His flannel jacket was torn on both sides. Because he had been drinking, he was taken into custody until his father arrived to take him home.

Meanwhile, back at the party, the 18-year-old hostess told police that someone had stolen $200 from her purse during the evening. She said the party had gotten out of control when it was crashed by several Redford residents. Police told her that since there were 30-40 people at the party, they had little chance of finding the culprit.

ASSAULT AT HIGH SCHOOL: A 17-year-old Northville High School student reported being assaulted by another 17-year-old while at the school March 14. The student told police that he was walking down the hall when he saw a group of students milling around, and the suspect came out of the crowd, grabbed him and pushed him into the lockers. The suspect shook him, causing his head to hit the lockers, he said.

The two were separated by a hall monitor when the suspect returned and punched the student in the face, he said. They began wrestling again before they were separated by several teachers. The victim's account was echoed by the hall monitor, who noted that the suspect seemed enraged and that it took three to four teachers to hold him down.

The suspect, who admitted assaulting the student in an interview with city police, received an automatic three-day suspension from the school.

THIEVES RIDE OFF WITH SULKY: A $1,300 racing sulky was reported stolen from a Northville Downs barn sometime between March 10-12. The black Cheetah sulky with new plastic wheels had been chained to several others when the owner returned to find the chain broken and the sulky gone.

LARCENIES FROM CARS: In another theft from Northville Downs, $500 worth of racing equipment was stolen from a pickup truck parked in the barn area. The March 15 theft occurred sometime between 9-10:30 p.m. when someone smashed in the truck's passenger-side window and unlocked the door.

The stolen items included a brown Walsh quick-hitch harness and bridle, pair of Empire haps and hangers, black Protocol knee boots and Tanbark tendon boots.

A new Ford Mustang convertible parked in a Morgan Circle driveway was sliced open sometime between 6 p.m. March 19 and 5:45 p.m. March 20. Someone cut two holes in the car's convertible top, causing $1,000 in damage, and stole a Whistler laser/radar detector valued at $220.

OUIL: Township police arrested a Westland resident for driving while under the influence of liquor (OUIL) on March 18.

The reporting officer in the case was patrolling southbound on Haggerty at about 2:15 a.m. when he came upon a 1998 Chevrolet Cavalier. The officer said he saw the vehicle swerve repeatedly, including crossing the road's center line.

The Celebrity made a very wide right turn onto Six Mile, he added, crossing the center line of that road during the turn.

The woman driving had red, glassy eyes and slurred speech, the officer noted, and he said he detected a strong smell of intoxicants from inside the car. The woman, 35, said she'd consumed two beers that evening, police reports said, and that she and her passenger, a 64-year-old township resident, had just come from the bar.

The woman failed field sobriety tests and was arrested. Her female passenger—who also appeared intoxicated, the officer said—began to yell at him and be uncooperative. The driver was taken to police headquarters. Breathalyzer testing there showed her to have a blood alcohol level of .23 percent, more than twice the legal limit.

ASSAULT: Township police are checking out an alleged case of assault with a motor vehicle which occurred March 17.

A Jamestown Circle resident told police that her father's girlfriend had tried to run her over with her car. Both are township residents. The woman, 22, said that earlier that day the girlfriend, 48, had been verbally abusive towards her and had followed her home from her father's house.

As she drove at her, the woman said she jumped out of the way. She told police she does not want to press charges and asked them to ask the girlfriend to stop such behavior. The case remains open.

FENDER BENDER: A 56-year-old Northville man was ticketed for driving too fast for conditions March 18 after he slid into a car on Eight Mile Road at 8:20 a.m. The accident occurred in the eastbound lanes just west of Carpenter during a snowstorm that left slush on the road.

A woman had pulled to the curb on Eight Mile, turned on her flashers and exited the car to shut her trunk when she looked back and saw the man's car sliding toward her. She ran to the curb as the man's car plowed into hers, disabling it. The man was uninjured and drove his car from the scene.

Citizens with information about the above incidents are urged to call Northville City Police at 349-1234 or Northville Township Police at 349-9400.

Council backs off Downs reuse plan

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

The Northville City Council temporarily shelved the planning commission's proposal to draw up a reuse plan for Northville Downs Monday, with some council members calling the proposal premature.

The council split over the commission's desire to draw up a master plan for the racetrack's reuse.

"I think it's way too premature," said Council Member Charles Keys. "Nothing's going to happen to the track this year, or even next year."

Council Member Paul Folino agreed with Keys' assessment.

"I have to disagree," said Mayor Chris Johnson. "I don't think long-term, if the state keeps doing what it's doing, that horse racing is going to continue to be a viable industry."

Johnson cited cuts in state assistance to the horse racing industry and increased competition from Windsor casinos as bad signs for the future of horse racing in Michigan. He noted that the Ladbroke racetrack in Livonia closed early this season due to poor attendance.

"I'd hate to see the largest single parcel in the city change with some financial shift, and the city just reacting," Johnson said. "Ultimately we'll have to decide how to plan that area, even if the racetrack industry remains viable. . . and I wouldn't give anyone odds on that proposition."

The planning commission had proposed contracting with Planning Consultant Don Wortman to perform a land use study on the 34-acre parcel, which is now zoned in a special Racetrack and Related Use category. The study would cost between $3,800 and $4,800 and would involve analyzing surrounding land uses, analyzing alternative uses like residential or office, developing land use policies and amending the city's Master Plan.

Commissioners had feared that if the track was to close suddenly, despite the six years remaining on its lease, the city would have little control over subsequent developments.

Commissioner Kathleen Otton raised those same points Monday as an audience member at the council meeting. She noted that attendance at racetracks across the country has been dropping steadily.

"If we leave it to chance, I think we might regret this," she said. "I'm afraid that we're going to have the horse stolen and lock the barn door afterward."

Otton noted that a proactive stance by the city may even make redevelopment more likely. "If we can come up with an innovative plan for redevelopment of that property, it might encourage developers," she said.

City Manager Gary Word noted that the planning commission first raised the possibility of a Northville Downs master plan two years ago, and he opposed it then. "I felt it would be presumptuous to tell someone else what to do with their property," he said.

While Keys hinted that he might be in favor of an analysis that includes the strip of residential property on Center Street across from the track, Folino said he would rather see that residential strip studied than the track itself. The council will take the issue up again at a future meeting, possibly April 4.

Northville Township firefighters spray water and sweep out the flames of a brush fire on the north side of Six Mile between Sheldon and Beck. The blaze was sparked by an overheated tractor and fanned by high winds.

Grass blaze burns 35 acres

"It was grass. It caught fire. It burned." Northville Township Department of Public Safety worker

That about sums up what happened March 16 when a fire broke out in a farmer's field off Six Mile between Sheldon and Beck roads.

The March 16 incident caused no property damage but left one firefighter with a sprained ankle. The blaze started about 2:30 p.m., firefighter Guy Balok said.

"A farmer was clearing his field, and there was a problem with the tractor's gearbox. A mechanical failure there started the fire."

It took crews from the township, Salem Township and Northville City about one hour and 15 minutes to bring the blaze under control. Before it was out, Balok said, the flames had consumed 35 acres of grass.

Winds of up to 20 miles per hour helped spread the fire, officials said.

Two school board seats are available

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

Local residents looking for a greater say in how their school district operates can scarcely do better than win a seat on the Northville Board of Education.

That opportunity is fast approaching, as petitions are now available for two seats on the board. The seats' new occupants will be selected during the annual school election June 13. Up for reelection this year are Board Secretary Glenna Davis and Trustee Joseph Dunkerley. The seven trustees serve four-year staggered terms, and receive no compensation.

Aside from regular night meetings the second and fourth Monday of every month, the trustees also serve on a range of committees focusing on issues such as personnel, finances, school policy, curriculum and facilities.

Anyone wishing to run in the June 13 election must file petitions by 4 p.m. Monday, April 11. Petitions and filing instructions can be picked up at the district's business office in the 501 W. Main St. central office building.

Residents must collect at least 31 signatures on their petitions to run in the election.

The last day to register to vote in this election is Monday, May 16.

Mill Race Matters

This week the Northville Historical Society wishes to thank Donaki and Constance Wahlberg for restoration of the 1938 High School class picture, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fair for their contribution, and Chris Johnson for donation of a recent wedding fee.

Current plans are being made to purchase a photocopying machine for Society use at Mill Race Village. Contributions to this fund would be much appreciated. Donations to the Jack Hoffman memorial fund are being used to underwrite the cost of census microfilm for the Wayne and Oakland County portions of the city and for Northville Township. Contributions can be made to this fund as well.

Director Marianne Barry would like to hear from volunteers who might wish to become involved in planning this year's progressive dinner scheduled for Saturday, May 14. Call 349-5435 to volunteer.

March is Women's History Month so for the next few weeks this column discusses some of the women who helped Northville develop. Elizabeth Yerkes arrived in this community with her family early in 1827.

That same year she became the first teacher in a log hut located on the property which today holds Meijer's Thrifty Acres at Eight Mile and Haggerty. She taught 10 scholars from Northville, Livonia, Farmington, and Novi.

The following spring a second school opened in the area. Elizabeth married James Wilkinson of Novi and raised six children in the community. All six children attended Northville schools. Two of them became prominent attorneys.

Another early settler to the area was Margaret Sickles Wing who arrived about 1835 with her husband Sylvanus and small daughter Elizabeth. Her husband died within two years, leaving Margaret in the small settlement which was then only 10 years old. She also bore three sons who had died in infancy.

Margaret continued to maintain her household and raise her daughter alone. Elizabeth later married John Yerkes, who died young, and then Jacob Covert, a widower. Margaret became a founding member of Northville's New School Church in 1845 at a time when few women were listed separately for their accomplishments.

In 1850 she headed the household which contained not only herself and her daughter, but her sister and her sister's daughter. Her homestead was one block west of the center of town. In all probability the street Wing was named because it led to her residence.

City eyes grant for Griswold

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

Northville city officials are hoping that the state's Department of Natural Resources will help fund their purchase of additional land for parking and recreational use.

The city council Monday approved a grant application seeking $150,000 in DNR funding for the purchase of a 2.4-acre Griswold Street parcel. The city would have to kick in an additional $50,000 to meet the $200,000 asking price for the parcel.

The parcel is now owned by R & D Enterprises, new owners of the former Ford Valve Plant, and is now being leased to the city. The city is subleasing the parcel to McDonald Ford for storage of dealership vehicles.

As part of the complex three-way property exchange among the city, Ford and R & D, Ford donated more than eight acres to the city at the Feb. 21 closing, including the four-acre Ford Field parcel and 4.5 acres of land and waterway north and east of the plant.

The Griswold Street property was a sticking point during early negotiations between R & D and the city. From the beginning, R & D has sought to sell or lease the property to the city to help finance its purchase of the plant from Ford.

R & D's financial advisors wanted a deal whereby the company would be guaranteed a certain amount of lease revenue and an eventual sale. But a lease/purchase agreement would have precluded the city from receiving DNR grant money for its purchase. The DNR will not fund projects already under a lease/purchase agreement, according to City Manager Gary Word.

City officials also rejected initial quotes of a $350,000 sale price as too high, and Word stated last year that the city would not consider a price over $200,000.

The parcel falls in a key location for the city, with Ford Field to the west and Mill Race Historical Village to the north.

Ownership of the parcel will allow the city to provide better access to the popular Ford Field recreation area.

Essay triumvirate

Meads Mill Middle School students knew which end was up when they entered the 25th annual America & Me Essay Contest. Taking top honors in their school were Lindsay Conquest (bottom right, first place), Heather Wadowski (bottom left, second place) and Sarah Frankel (top, third place). Lindsay's essay advances to the state level from which the top 10 compositions in the state will be selected. The winners will be announced in May.

Fantasy Baseball's back

The Northville Public Library is beginning its fourth season of Fantasy Baseball. The program is a simplified version of the popular "Rotisserie-style" leagues which are active nationwide. Participants of any age or gender fill their rosters with Major League players whom they feel will perform well during the coming season.

The deadline for enrollment is April 4, after which general managers need only sit back and await the results. Six-team divisions will be formed so that everyone has a good chance to win. The action begins on opening day and will continue until the All-Star break. Standings will be updated and posted in the library each week.

If interested, visit the library and ask for an instruction/entry form and return it to the library by the deadline.

For more information, visit the library or call 349-3020.

student Stephen Selinsky.

The team's objective was to create a balsa wood and glue structure weighing less than 15 grams. Weights were added to the structure until it collapsed. Bonus points were also given for a ping pong ball's undamaged release from inside the structure when it collapsed.

Winchester's apparatus held 650 pounds and received 75 bonus points when their ping pong ball was undamaged. The team's competitors were left behind in the balsa wood dust with the next closest weight being held coming in at 195 pounds.

In addition to crushing its structure, the Winchester team performed a non-linguistic skit that related to their theme of "Set It Free." While wearing their papier mache masks to show their independence, the team separately constructed birds trying to create the one perfect bird.

Only after the masks were removed and the team worked together in an assembly line fashion did the team create the perfect bird that flew away at the end of the performance.

stacle courses, breaking balloon targets at the finish line.

Some of the vehicles had to perform unusual maneuvers on the way: curving, flipping over or being carried "piggy-back" on another team-made car. None of the cars were remote-controlled.

The Cooke non-linguistic skit revolved around a team of Teen-age Ninja Mutant Turkeys and their vehicles saving the town of Omerville from the killer blobs (represented by the balloons).

The Meads Mill team includes coaches Jay Cardinal and Marge Wisniewski and team members Kristen Cardinal, Sarah Wisniewski, Katie

Last, Greg Last, Sarah Matusz, Sarah Trist and Kristen VanTuyt.

The Meads Mill team's objective was to design and construct three devices that, when combined, would play a tune. The team's 8-minute humorous skit used an Addams Family theme with the team members creating costumes, scenery and props.

Officials decline public discussion

Both he and members of the board were tight lipped on the situation, unwilling to publicly discuss the matter at any length. Several observers privately discussed their theories as to what was happening—some of them conflicting.

"Everybody has his own take on this," Supervisor Karen Baja said last month. "But we agreed not to wage a war of words in the press. That wouldn't do anyone any good."

Meanwhile, lawyers for the two sides quietly hammered out a formal separation agreement which the board approved in closed session on Feb. 3. The two sides signed it the same day.

A Feb. 11 three-sentence press release said that both the township and Richards "stress that the separation agreement was voluntarily made and in the best interests of both parties."

Richards in the deal received reimbursement for unused vacation, sick and personal time and 60 days of severance pay—a total of nearly $17,000. The township received a guarantee of release of any legal claims from Richards—in other words, no lawsuits.

A part of the deal, some say, was a verbal agreement not to discuss the matter publicly.

Again, observers differ on their interpretations. Some call the agreement a "payoff," while others say it's a reasonable proposition: fair compensation for Richards and an understandable precaution for the township.

Days after the deal was inked, Richards started a new job. The board, meanwhile, has begun preparing the search for candidates for the manager's position.

"In effect, I want to let it drop," he said shortly after the deal was signed. "I just don't want to do this anymore."

Even after the ink was dry, members of both sides have continued to decline to discuss their interpretations of events.

"We stand by what was said in the press release," Trustee Mark Abbo said. "The agreement was in everyone's best interests."

A battle "wouldn't solve anything," one trustee added. "It would only create bad feelings all around and drag this on and on."

More than one member has suggested that The Record is, in effect, trying to "manufacture" some news. "It's a beating a dead horse," one trustee said. "Who's going to decide which version is the 'right' one?"

Disorder workshop has a goal of education

Lori Dow knows what it's like to have a child with attention deficit disorder. She has three sons, each exhibiting different forms of the hereditary syndrome.

The Northville resident's first son has ADD with hyperactivity (ADHD), the second without. When the third son started showing ADD tendencies, it was easier to spot because the family "was very educated" about the disorder.

Roberta Zarea of Northville, on the other hand, is still learning. Her 6-year-old daughter was diagnosed with ADD last March. She also has an expressive language disorder and auditory processing disorder.

"She's unpredictable; she's not consistent in her behavior and her learning skills," Zarea said. "It's very common to have other learning disorders with ADD."

Dow is president and Zarea is vice president of Children and Adults with Attention Deficit Disorder of Northwest Wayne County, which will sponsor a workshop for parents and professionals at the Holiday Inn Livonia-West on Saturday, March 26.

The workshop will focus on "Activating Parents and Professionals in the Special Education Process." Running from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., it will be presented by CAUSE (Citizen's Alliance to Uphold Special Education). The workshop will delve into such topics as the law, participation in the individual education-planning process, initiating due process, communicating effectively, resolving conflicts, and laws on adaptation of the workplace and educational environment for the disabled.

The cost is $20 for box lunch, materials and workshop; or $13 for the materials and workshop only.

CHADD is a parent-based organization formed to better the lives of individuals with ADD and the people who care for them. It also promotes teamwork and partnership between parents and schools.

"Parents and schools have to be positive and supportive of each other, rather than fighting with each other," Dow said. "And parents need to be assertive and know their rights."

"We try to educate parents and give them support; we try to educate the community. But our biggest challenge is working with the schools for the betterment of the child."

Zarea's daughter and Dow's three sons are among 1.75 million American children who have been diagnosed with and treated for attention deficit disorder. It's estimated that another 1.75 million will go undiagnosed into adulthood.

Children with ADD are characterized by symptoms of inattentiveness, impulsiveness and sometimes hyperactivity which start before the age of 7 and last for at least six months. In all, there are 14 symptoms of the disorder, and a child must exhibit several to be diagnosed with ADD.

"Impulsivity is such a factor that that's what gets them into trouble," Dow said. "They don't think before they act, and a lot of what they do isn't age-appropriate. They're emotionally immature, so they do a lot of things that aren't age-appropriate."

Children with ADD need to be taught what is acceptable and not acceptable, but a lot of the ordinary behavioral techniques don't work. One that does work is ignoring the negative behavior and emphasizing the positive behavior.

But ignoring the negative behavior can draw comments from strangers, even family members, who don't understand why a parent isn't dealing with an unruly child, according to Zarea.

Most times the hyperactivity subsides as the child gets older, but residual effects of ADD—like the inability to focus and stay on task—remain. And as the child gets older, he or she learns coping mechanisms, so ADD isn't such a disability, Dow said.

"No two children with ADD exhibit the same symptoms or require the same help," she added. "That's why it is so difficult for the schools that want to have a formula for educating these kids, so parents and schools have to work together to come up with an individualized program."

At one time there was one area CHADD chapter with some 600 members. It has since broken up into nine different chapters throughout the metropolitan area. The Northwest Wayne chapter takes in the Livonia, Plymouth-Canton, Redford Union, South Redford and Northville school districts, and has more than 200 members.

The group meets the first Thursday of the month at the Livonia Civic Center Library. Sign-in is at 7 p.m., with the meeting—sometimes featuring a speaker, sometimes a video or a rap session—at 7:30 p.m.

The April 7 meeting will feature Dr. James Windell discussing "Eight Weeks to a Well-behaved Child."

For Dow, the group was a godsend. Her oldest son was diagnosed at 8 years of age and getting involved with CHADD "gave me power as a parent."

"I can't imagine how a parent can do it without information," Dow added. "It's difficult keeping the family dynamics when you're challenged by ADD, but I couldn't imagine doing it without the good support system of CHADD and my husband."

Word noted that construction bids are due at city hall by March 30, and the council could award the bids at its April 4 meeting with actual construction to start in mid-April.

Under the tentative schedule, construction on the new parking lot would begin in May. The existing Cady Street parking deck would be closed and demolished that same month, foundations for its replacement would be poured in June and foundation work on the Main Centre deck would begin in July.

"The intent is to have the surface parking lot completed first, then the replacement deck, then the new deck," Word said. "The major portion of construction should be done in November."

A family discount will also be offered as well as the senior citizen's discount, to help turn the event into a family affair.

In addition, a large drawing will be held, Marts said, to provide "a real enticement to get people to come."

Stopping teen drinking 'is up to you and me'

(Editor's note: "Battling Abuse — The Quest for Drug Free Schools" is an occasional series examining alcohol and drug use among Northville teenagers. The name of the parent featured in this article has not been revealed to protect the identity of the family. The article is actually a letter written to Charlie Sulec, Student Assistance coordinator for Northville schools.)

The previous articles in The Northville Record about Jackie Payne and others that people have written prompted me to share my experience with you in hopes that residents in neighborhoods know more about what is going on around them and what to do about it, that parents care and know what their teen-agers (and children of all ages) are doing and so that innocent people like Kevin Payne can be saved.

It is time for people in communities like ours to realize that there are problems of alcohol and drugs and we each need to do our part and not wait for others to do it.

A few years ago, an incident happened in our neighborhood that shocked me into a new awareness. It was one of those early spring nights that reminds you of summer. Our family was having one of the first barbecues of the year.

While walking to the front yard to turn off a hose, I noticed that there were young people all over the place, on the sidewalks, on the lawns and in the street. I wondered where they had all come from and what they were doing.

Then I saw a neighbor's son and his date. I said hello to the couple.

The boy mumbled a weak hello and the girl just smiled. That is when I noticed the beer bottles in each of their hands. I then looked at the other young people walking around, and they all had alcoholic drinks of one sort or another. I was very surprised. We continued with our barbecue and games. The music drifted our way, rock 'n' roll oldies, reminding me of when I was a teen-ager.

We decided to go inside when the language turned to swearing. Some of the kids were having an argument and it was our children's bedtime anyway.

My wife and I stayed up, watching a program on TV, then went to bed after the news was over. It was about 12:30 a.m. when I first woke up.

I could hear some noise out in front of my house. I couldn't believe it — some kids were moving a locked car by half carrying and half bouncing it in the road.

I went to the window for a closer look. The kids were putting it in front of our house facing the wrong way. As they were walking back down the street, some were hanging on others and having a hard time walking.

The front porch of the house having the party was crowded with at least 10 or 12 teen-agers, most with drinks in their hands. I also could see kids on the roof, up three stories and walking on the roof.

I thought about calling the police. Would that be a good idea?

I had attended some of the Northville Action Council meetings and had learned a lot of information about the harmful effects of teens and drinking.

But if I called the police, what would I do if they asked for my name. What would I say?

What would the neighbors say if they found out? Would they be mad or glad? Would the kids retaliate in some way?

The phone weighed 5,000 pounds. I could not pick it up.

I decided to call Charlie Sulec, Student Assistance coordinator at Northville High School. The groggy voice on the other end of the line perked up when I mentioned the problem and he enthusiastically discussed what to do about the problem. He gave me the courage to do what I needed to do. Call the police.

As I said goodbye to Charlie, I could hear kids yelling. I went to the front window just in time to see a boy riding by on the hood of a car.

After that, it took no effort to make the call. The police were very cooperative and when they asked me

BATTLING ABUSE

The quest for drug-free schools

for my name, I just said I was a concerned neighbor. They understood.

The police came and talked for about 10 minutes and then the party broke up. I counted over 50 young people that came out of the house.

You could tell that many of them were trying to walk straight, but couldn't do it. I felt relieved and went back to bed.

At 2:30 a.m., a car alarm went off in the neighbor's driveway. Looking out the window, I saw a Corvette and some kids laughing.

Some of the kids had come back after leaving the party. There were now about six cars behind the house and in the driveway.

The driver came out and turned off the alarm. He looked really mad and staggering drunk.

I could hear some of his friends say he had too much to drink to drive, that he should let someone else drive. I thought that was a good idea.

The argument continued. Instead of letting someone else drive, the Corvette driver said he would show them that he wasn't drunk. He got into the Corvette and proceeded to back out of the drive, over the grass and curb. He then revved it up and burned about 40-feet of rubber going up the road.

This time it was easier to call the police. But before the police arrived back at the house, the Corvette came back twice and each time burned rubber all the way up the street.

When the police got there, the kids finally left. I prayed that the young man and all the others were able to drive home safely without being involved in an accident that killed or hurt themselves or someone else.

I relate this story to point out some important issues that parents and teens need to realize about having parties in their houses where alcohol and other drugs are consumed. If alcohol and/or other drugs are present at a party when the parents are present or not present, the parents who own the house, and possibly their teen-ager, can be held responsible for liability and criminal prosecution if those people leave your house and get involved in an accident.

One example happened in Farmington, where a family went away and a teen-ager had a party. Someone leaving the party was involved in an accident and killed the other people in the car.

Not only did the police arrest and charge the driver of the car, but through lawsuits that followed, the people who owned the house where the party was held lost their house and much of their other property.

In another case where a person was killed by someone who had left a party, the teen-ager who hosted the party was sentenced to two years in prison and a hefty fine.

When parties get out of control, damage can be done to the home and people can get injured.

There is a lot today that can be done. First, get to know your neighbors and the parents of those whom your children and teen-agers associate with and discuss the issues.

This is one of the main principles of the "Safe Homes" program that started in Northville last year. Safe Homes is a community-based effort to encourage non-drug/alcohol use and responsible parenting patterns.

Principles include: providing adult supervision for all children/teens visiting your home; provide a secure place for the storage of all forms of alcohol, firearms and other potentially hazardous materials; and not allowing young people under the legal age to use tobacco, alcohol and other drugs in your home or on your property.

Other ideas that Safe Homes emphasizes are for parents to verify the plans that their children make, and to have them check in periodically, especially if plans change. Parents should call the house where the party or gathering is going to happen to make sure that the parents will be home, that no alcohol will be present and to check if they can help in any way.

When you hear or see a party going on in your neighborhood, talk to your neighbor or contact the police department. There is an Open House ordinance that allows the police more latitude in handling these type of situations.

You will be safeguarding yourself as well as your neighbor, and all of the young people.

Imagine yourself, your family, your kids driving on the roads. Wouldn't you want the person or neighbor somewhere to have made the call that maybe will save your life, your family or someone you know?

Do not fool yourself. It can happen to you, as well as the other person.

If our streets and neighborhoods are going to be safe, it is up to you and me. Do not rely on the other person.

Local artist just enjoying the show

By BOB SKLAR
Special Writer

Northville Township's Carol Walkiewicz had never exhibited her artwork before, despite dabbling in the world of acrylics and brushstrokes for upwards of 30 years.

But Atrium Gallery's Pat Jania of Novi jumped at the chance to exhibit six of Walkiewicz' acrylics on canvas.

"It takes awhile for artists to finally make that decision to sell their work," Jania said. "She finally made that decision. And this is her first show."

"We like to present unusual styles and unique pieces," Jania added, "and these are entirely different than anything we've had because they're so contemporary—and we consider ourselves a contemporary gallery."

Four large abstracts and two smaller paintings by Walkiewicz are on exhibit through March 31 at Atrium Gallery, 109 N. Center. They range in price from $150 to $750.

The work exudes a floral feeling even though it represents just a series of short brushstrokes. Says Jania: "It's bursting forth with color, like the opening of a flower. The flow of color is quite interesting."

Despite what the eye sees, Walkiewicz doesn't set out to paint still lives. "It's more a feeling she manages to create on canvas through the movement of her brushstroke," said Jania, gallery co-owner along with Heidi Elzerman of Farmington Hills.

An art teacher at Annapolis High School in Dearborn Heights for the past 27 years, Walkiewicz flirts with realism but prefers abstraction when at the easel in her home studio.

"Abstraction lets me express myself better and, besides, I enjoy it more. Sometimes I have a theme in mind, but other times I play with colors, shapes and forms. I don't want every piece to say a particular thing."

Jania's floral interpretation doesn't surprise Walkiewicz, who likes to grow flowers in her garden. "I like natural things like plants and flowers, and that's probably apparent in my work."

As a youngster growing up in Grosse Pointe Woods, Walkiewicz loved to design and make things. Often, she experimented with different materials. She remembers transforming gift wrapping into an animal or a doll. Later, she made doll clothes from her own designs.

"I was never much of a pattern person," she said. "I've always wanted to design things."

Walkiewicz didn't start to paint until college. She earned a bachelor's degree in design from the University of Michigan and a master's in art education from Eastern Michigan.

A selection of Carol Walkiewicz' acrylics will be displayed at Atrium Gallery through March.

Over the years, she has tried a variety of crafts—jewelry, clay, leather, stained glass. "I've spent a lifetime doing art of some sort of another. But I've always come back to painting. It's my favorite."

Walkiewicz started out in oils but now works strictly in acrylics. "I like the way they work for the type of paintings I do and the colors I create."

Her inspiration has been the late American artist Georgia O'Keeffe, whose "simplicity, color and directional lines have been a big influence."

You share the same body, the same life-giving nutrients for nine months. Each of you affects the other in countless ways.

Why is it then that many hospitals treat you and your baby like completely unrelated people?

OUR NURSES SEE THEM AS STILL BEING ATTACHED

You stay in your room. Your baby stays in the nursery. And you're each cared for by a different nurse.

A better way

At St. Mary Hospital we offer a better way to begin. A personal nurse takes care of you and your baby together to encourage the best possible start. So your nurse can tell how your comfort level, moods and medication may be affecting your baby. And how your baby's behavior influences you. This new way of caring is ### called mother-baby nursing

Mother-baby nurses

With mother-baby nurses, you can learn by watching the nurse care for your newborn at your bedside instead of out of your sight in a nursery. If you have a question about your baby, the nurse can answer it immediately. You won't have to wait for the "baby nurse."

The Miracle of Life Maternity Center at St. Mary Hospital has mother-baby nursing all the time.

State parks may get new secure funding

By TIM RICHARD
Staff Writer

A reluctant Michigan Travel Bureau would be ordered to promote state and local parks under a bill before the House of Representatives.

"Our position is reasonably neutral," Travel Bureau director Tom Altemus told a House panel promoting it.

"We're concerned about being locked into supporting constituency groups rather than responding to needs of tourists. We approach it from a marketing point of view."

The bill's sponsor, Rep. Tom Alley, D-West Branch, bawled out the Legislature and Department of Natural Resources for neglecting state parks in both money and promotion.

"Fat cats" take care of the Waterways Commission and Mackinac Island Commission, Alley said, but no one fights for recreational opportunities for plain families.

"DNR is not bolsterous and does not fight for appropriations. DNR itself allowed the parks to slide. We (legislators) have been as negligent," Alley said.

A simple policy statement, the Alley bill is the first of a dozen pieces of legislation to beef up state park funding in a heavy campaign as the park system celebrates its 75th anniversary.

All members of the House Recreation and Tourism Subcommittee, including Rep. John Jamian, R-Bloomfield Township, voted to send the bill to the House floor for debate.

The bill declares it's the Legislature's intention to promote "recognition of state and locally managed recreational opportunities including camping, hunting, fishing, boating and other outdoor recreation experiences."

It tells the Travel Bureau to include that policy in its master plan.

Altemus, however, said the administration should be guided by public demand rather than suppliers' desires to sell.

"We've got to be careful the marketing program isn't so fragmented. We have changed our focus to be customer and demand oriented," he said, citing requests to promote bed & breakfast houses, urban tourism and local theater groups.

Altemus said the Travel Bureau already promotes state parks — "enormously."

In other testimony, Rick Jameson of the Michigan United Conservation Clubs urged lawmakers to establish an endowment fund whose interest earnings would pay for state park operations.

"MUCC has made this a priority — to get our state parks back into shape," said Jameson, chief lobbyist for the conservation and environmental group.

"Natural resources are a defining aspect of our state," said Jameson. MUCC wants an $800 million fund set up to be fed by $40 million from the sale of the State Accident Fund, a state-owned workers comp insurance firm, and annual contributions from oil and natural gas taxes.

Critics say that in the last 10 years, general fund support of the 100 state parks has slipped from 70 percent of their operating budget to 30 percent. The difference has been made up from higher user fees. Critics say many parks have deteriorated and that poorer people are being priced out.

The tourism policy bill is House Bill 5247. The endowment fund bill is House Bill 5064. Refer to bill numbers when writing to your state representative, State Capitol, Lansing 48909.

DeMattia's vote is legal; FBI clears Green

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

U.S. Attorney nominee Saul Green and Plymouth developer Bob DeMattia have each cleared hurdles thrown in their paths stemming from Wayne County owned land in Northville Township.

Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) officials earlier this month cleared Green of any wrongdoing. Three county figures have alleged that the then-County Corporate Counsel acted improperly on a number of occasions, including when making a decision to hire an outside law firm to represent the county in a lawsuit concerning part of the land.

Meanwhile, Green's replacement two weeks ago issued an official opinion that a multi-million dollar purchase offer which DeMattia and his partners have made for the land is legal.

The county owns nearly 900 acres of land in the township. In 1984, its Economic Development Corporation (EDC) subleased 101 acres of the parcel to a private company which wanted to develop senior and market-rate housing there. The EDC voted to break that lease in December 1989; DeMattia was chairman of the panel.

Less than six weeks later, he and County Executive Ed McNamara announced that a group of developers DeMattia led would buy the land—including the 101 acres of the sublease—for a shade under $32 million. The deal fell through after it lost financing.

Last year, however, the county again sought to sell the land, minus some acreage sold to Troy-based Optical Imaging Systems (OIS). That firm bought 30 acres for $1 and has an option on 75 more.

Among the four bidders for the remaining 800-odd acres is a group that's essentially the same as the one DeMattia led in 1990. McNamara's office will choose one for recommendation to the commission, which has the final say.

That recommendation hasn't come yet, said Commissioner Thad McCotter, whose district includes Northville. A decision "could take weeks, could take months," he added.

It was McCotter who asked County Corporate Counsel Jennifer Granholm to check into the legality of the $1 sale to OIS and of DeMattia's connection with breaking the lease and subsequently bidding on the land. Granholm last month submitted a formal opinion saying that the OIS deal was legal. Last week she said the same of the DeMattia affair.

DeMattia, she said, did not have any contract with the EDC when the vote was taken, a development which would have represented a conflict of interest under state law. The contract that he made to buy the land was done both after the lease was broken and with Wayne County, not the EDC. Granholm noted, and added that he also abstained from the actual vote.

"There is no evidence that would indicate that Mr. DeMattia used any EDC resources for personal gain or benefit," Granholm said.

The county, she added, had begun work on plans to end the sublease long before the vote.

"It was obvious by December 1989," Granholm said, "that Northville Elderly (the firm involved in the sublease) had not complied with its obligations under the development agreement."

In sum, she added, DeMattia stuck fully to the rules the county and state law laid out.

"Mr. DeMattia followed that procedure carefully," Granholm said, "and was in violation of no statute."

Green, meanwhile, is still up for confirmation before the Senate's Judiciary Committee for the post of U.S. Attorney for Michigan's Eastern District, which is mainly Detroit. A committee of prominent Metro-area citizens recommended him to Clinton for the job but his nomination has taken some knocks recently.

County Commissioner Susan Hubbard in December secretly tape-recorded two high-level county employees who alleged that Green had done a number of improper things when he was Corporate Counsel.

One of them was the way he dealt with a lawsuit that the Northville Elderly Development Co. filed in March 1993 over the broken sublease. Green hired a prominent Detroit law firm even after the commission turned down his request to do so. Joining that firm at that time was Leon Cohan, the man who at the same time was chairing the U.S. Attorney selection committee, a fact which some say is suspicious.

The nominee has steadfastly maintained that he has done nothing improper. FBI investigators, working on behalf of the Judiciary Committee, last week issued their report on the subject, which agreed with Green.

Five Mile repaving will help OIS plant

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

Optical Imaging Systems (OIS) will find the drive to its new multi-million-dollar Northville Township manufacturing plant a very smooth sail.

The state's Transportation Economic Development Fund (TEDF) is giving Wayne County a $1.5 million grant to help pay for the repaving of Five Mile Road between Beck and Sheldon. The move, state officials said, will ensure that the still-to-be-built OIS plant will have adequate access for its trucks and other traffic.

The County Road Commission is the agency that will get the grant. The total cost of the project is estimated at $2.25 million; the remaining cash will come from other sources.

Established in 1987, the TEDF seeks to spur economic growth in Michigan by helping improve the state's transportation system.

Owned by Detroit Pistons owner Bill Davidson, OIS last year decided to move its operations from Troy to the township after scouting locations in Ohio and Pennsylvania. It bought 30 acres of county-owned land off of Five Mile between Sheldon and Beck for $10.

In return, the county and township will see a $75 million to $100 million plant constructed there. The facility will mean 250 new jobs for the county, not counting the economic benefits garnered during the plant's construction.

OIS will also pay the back taxes the county owes the township on the 30 acres.

The company is the only U.S. manufacturer of active-matrix liquid-crystal displays, sold principally to the commercial and military avionics markets. The "flat-screen" devices represent the cutting edge of computer technology.

Youth contest deadline approaches

There's still time for student authors to enter the Northville Record Writing Contest.

The theme of this year's competition, "Northville and Me," is designed to allow young writers to express themselves on a wide variety of topics relating to the local community.

As with last year's contest, both essays and poems will be accepted. The deadline for submission is March 25.

The winning entries will be published in the newspaper, and hard-bound dictionaries will be given out as awards. In addition, a plaque with the names of the first, second and third place honorees will be prepared by Orin Jewelers and displayed in the Community Center.

All authors will receive special certificates recognizing their participation. The winners will be honored in a ceremony to take place at a date to be named this spring.

Students in grades 6-12 living in the Northville School District or attending a Northville school may enter. The contest is open to both public and non-public school authors.

Entries will be accepted in two categories: essays of 500-1,300 words and poems of 50-200 lines total (one poem or a group of poems).

Submissions may be on any topic related to the community and how writers interact with it. Essays and topics may touch on things to do in Northville or Northville Township, how the area might be improved, historic places, future outlook, politics, leadership roles, recreational opportunities, schools, family, shops, etc.

ELIGIBILITY:

All students in grades 6-12 living in the Northville School District or students in grades 6-12 living in other districts and attending a Northville school may enter.

CATEGORY DESCRIPTIONS:

Essay: 500-1,300 words, composed in standard essay form.

Poetry: 50-200 lines total. Poetry entries may consist of a single poem or a group of poems in any form of verse, rhymed or free, with awards being made on the merit of the total entry. One topic suggestion is to identify a unique problem or condition of life in Northville or Northville Township and propose a possible solution or describe what you like about the situation.

JUDGING CRITERIA:

Each of the two categories will be judged in two grade divisions: Middle school (grades 6-8) and senior high (grades 9-12) and will be judged on evidence of creative ability and development of the theme. Winners will be named for the first, second and third best submissions.

HOW TO SUBMIT ENTRIES:

1. An official 1994 entry form must be attached to each entry. Each composition, except in poetry, must have a separate entry form. Staple the composition and entry form together at the upper left hand corner.

2. Entry forms must be complete and neatly typed or printed. The name of the student can appear only on the entry form, not on the composition itself. Entry forms must be signed by both the writer and his or her teacher.

3. All compositions must be printed by a computer on standard letter-sized, unlined white paper. Essays must be double spaced with one-inch margins and a title on the first page. Poems must be singled-spaced and individually titled.

4. Students may submit one entry in each category.

5. Teachers should pre-screen entries for competitiveness, accuracy of form, spelling, presentation and confirmation that the entry is an original composition. Only the best samples should be entered to represent each grade division.

6. No entries will be returned. Students should retain copies of their work. Only winners will be informed of the outcome of the judging.

7. Submission deadline is March 25, 1994.

AWARDS:

An awards reception and ceremony will be held to honor the winning participants. Students, parents and teachers will be invited to attend. Trophies and certificates will be handed out. A plaque with the names of the winners will be displayed in the Northville Community Center.

Submit compositions to: The Northville Record Student Writing Contest 104 W. Main Northville, MI 48167

Featured will be the ultra low-fat dessert cookbook Sweet Nothings by Northville authors Martha Schaefer and Linda Hazell. The writers will be available to autograph copies of their book and will offer some of their special desserts to customers.

Schaefer and Hazell got the idea for their book when they decided to lose weight but didn't want to give up the sweets they love. They collected recipes from family members and friends, then gave them low-fat treatments by substituting certain ingredients.

Everything from simple desserts to gourmet torts are included in the 68 recipes in Sweet Nothings.

The book sells for $8.95.

Candidates are coming out

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

Spring officially begins on March 20, but already you can see the signs: the days get longer, the birds are back . . . and like the groundhog looking for its shadow, candidates in this election year are poking their heads out of the snow.

Several candidates have pulled nominating petitions or announced their candidacies for two key positions which include Northville: the 35th District Court and the U.S. House of Representatives 13th District.

Thirty-fifth Judge James Garber is retiring from the bench when his current term expires at the end of year. The court's jurisdiction includes both the City and Township of Northville. The election to choose Garber's replacement will take place in November, but those seeking the non-partisan position are already gearing up.

Beginning their campaigns as well are two Republicans and three Democrats who hope to win the seat of retiring Congressional powerhouse Bill Ford.

Under state law, any resident of the 35th or 13th district areas can take out nominating petitions for the seats. They must return them to state election officials with a set number of signatures of district residents—by 4 p.m. May 10 in the case of the 13th House race and by 4 p.m. July 21 in the non-partisan judgeship contest.

Those who have announced their candidacy for that race include:

Attorney Karen Woodside, Northville resident; Northville resident Maria Petito, an assistant Wayne County Prosecutor; Dennis Shrewsbury, Plymouth resident, an attorney and Plymouth City Commissioner.

Others are Canton resident Thomas Hartnett, a prosecutor for Wayne County Friend of the Court; Plymouth resident and attorney Ron Lowe; and Michael Gerou, Plymouth attorney and resident.

Two other individuals have taken out nominating petitions: Carolyn Blanchard and Robert Greenstein.

Former Bush White House staffer John Schall has thrown his hat into the GOP primary for the 13th House race. Former U.S. Congressman Carl Pursell's aide Cynthia Hudgins-Wilbanks is also in the Republican hunt.

On the other side of the aisle, Wayne County Commissioner Bryan Amann, a Democrat from Livonia, has announced, as have state House Representative Lynn Rivers of Ann Arbor and Ford's aide David Geiss.

Merger plans begin to be sketched out

Johnson noted that Battle Creek consolidated several years ago after the Kellogg Corporation "put a gun to their heads" by threatening to leave town if they did not join.

"That's not the kind of marriage we're looking at," he said.

The township board is expected to review the blue ribbon committee's proposal at its 7:30 p.m.

The blue ribbon committee is typically empaneled to mediate conflicts between the city and township over joint services like the library. The March 16 committee meeting was attended by Johnson, Mayor Pro Tem Carolann Ayers, Township Supervisor Karen Raja, Township Trustee Gini Britton, City Manager Gary Word and Executive Secretary Carol Kasprzewicz.

Library voters face questions on May 3

Northville Recreation Center. The new facility would replace the 6,000-square-foot location on the ground floor of city hall.

"The question of whether the voters want a new and better library needs to be answered now," said Board Secretary Wendy Gutowski. "It is time to say when. Too much time has already passed while we have debated the issues of what, where and how."

Gutowski argued that two yes votes are needed to assure the district of adequate library services.

"If the operating mill only is approved, we will remain in the facility at city hall—all dressed up and nowhere to go," she said. "If the bond only is approved, the library would be left without operating millage and would be unable to build a building it could not operate."

Passage of the $4.5 million question would let the district levy additional millage of roughly .5 mills over 15-20 years to pay off the general obligation bonds needed to fund the new facility. The exact millage will vary depending on the length of the payoff period and the interest rate on the bonds.

Under a 15-year repayment period, and at a 6.5-percent interest rate, the additional levy would start at .638 mills the first year and end at .422 mills the last year, for an average millage of .523.

If the same bonds were paid off over 20 years, the added mills would range from .545 to .311, for a .417-mill average over the life of the bonds.

The figures are based on an average 3-percent annual growth rate in Northville's overall State Equalized Value.

The board rejected several other ballot options. A suggestion to ask voters for a flat 1.5 mills for both operating and construction was dropped because the entire millage would be subject to rollbacks under the Headlee Amendment and if more than a half mill is needed to pay off construction bonds in any given year, the operating millage would have to be reduced.

Also, because the construction bonds would have to have been sold as limited obligation rather than general obligation bonds, the resulting interest rates would likely have been higher.

A proposal to seek one mill in perpetuity for operation and one half mill for 20 years was rejected because the one-half-mill levy would be subject to Headlee and the bonds would have to be limited obligation.

The district library board was authorized last year to seek voter approval of between 1-2 dedicated mills to fund the operation of a new district library. The library would be overseen by an elected board and, because it would be funded by a separate voter-approved millage, it would not be subject to budget cutbacks by the city or township.

The district library saga began in April, 1992, when Northville Public Library officials, alarmed over budget cuts by both municipalities, began discussing forming an autonomous library with its own funding source.

In telephone surveys conducted by the board late last year, 59 percent of the 172 respondents said they would vote for 1.5 mills to build and operate a new library, while 17 percent said they would not and 25 percent were undecided. Eighty-three percent found the Cady site acceptable.

The site had been considered for a library twice before, in 1976 and 1988. The plans were shelved in 1976 when the federal government denied funding to the project, and the 1988 Haller Library proposal squelched talk of a city facility until voters rejected it in 1990.

No arrest is made as checking continues

Service's Detroit office said this week, however, that agents had not arrested but merely interviewed the resident, who is male.

Pupillo said he could not comment further on the situation because of the continuing investigation but seemed to indicate that no charges may be filed.

"This looks like a routine investigation," he said, "but we still have got some inquiries out now and I can't comment until those are checked out."

Threatening the president or vice president is a federal offense, a felony punishable by a $1,000 fine and/or up to five years in prison.

Secret Service standard procedures require its agents to check things out when they receive any sort of information of a threat, Pupillo said.

"If someone gets on the phone and says that you, for instance, are planning to harm the president, we have to investigate," Pupillo said. "It may be nothing. It may be something, but either way we have to find out."

That keeps the Service busy, as the president receives thousands of threats every year. Many, Pupillo said, turn out to be unsubstantiated. Agents run routine checks even on those, he added, including the township incident.

"In this case," Pupillo said, "the determination was made that there isn't a major threat here and so the decision was made not to arrest."

The agent said he was not certain when the investigation would be complete and did not rule out the possibility that an arrest could be made in the case.

Senate studies pain management

By TIM RICHARD
Staff Writer

The Michigan Senate has bought the idea of "pain management" as an alternative to assisted suicide.

"We're making hospices and pain management the priority. We're attempting to break new ground," said Sen. Fred Dillingham, R-Fowlerville, sponsor of five bills that won Senate approval by 33-0 and 34-0 votes.

The bills go to the House next. Dillingham has been leading Lansing's hottest battles to regulate abortion and outlaw physician-assisted suicide. This time, however, he had a consensus to:

● Require medical schools to have a core curriculum on pain and symptom management. Continuing education for already-licensed physicians and other health professionals would be required.

● Tell the Department of Public Health to develop a written outline of pain and symptom management and to increase public awareness of pain management.

● Ensure offering of hospice care in three bills regulating different types of health insurers.

During hearings, the bills were scoffed at by Hemlock of Michigan, which advocates physician-assisted suicide, and Friends of Dr. Jack Keworkian, who said "there is no such thing as pain management."

The only debate was over amendments to the three insurance bills by Sen. John Kelly, D-Grosse Pointe Farms. Kelly wanted to mandate hospice coverage.

"I know many on the other side of the aisle don't like mandates," Kelly said, nodding toward Republicans, "but there are no costs associated with this — only savings." Every $1 spent on hospice care saves $1.26 in other medical institutions, Kelly said.

"If I didn't have to worry about a consensus," replied Dillingham, "I could support his amendments." But he vowed to watch insurers to make sure they were offering hospice coverage.

Senators voted 16 in favor and 18 against on all three Kelly amendments.

Supporting Kelly were Democrats Jack Faxon of Farmington Hills and Lana Pollack of Ann Arbor.

Backing Dillingham was Republican Robert Ceake of Northville.

Dillingham's bills grew out of discussions of the state Commission on Death and Dying, an expert panel appointed to recommend state policy when the law outlawing assisted suicide expires.

Police arrest teen for driving while drunk

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

Northville Township police arrested a 17-year-old youth for operating a vehicle while under the influence of liquor (OUIL) on March 3.

A patrol officer received a report of reckless driving in Park Place Apartments at about 10:30 Thursday. Witnesses told him that someone driving a station wagon had been going up to 50 miles per hour through the parking area, striking a carport support pole in the process.

They told the officer that the driver had parked the vehicle, gotten out and gone into one of the apartments. One identified him as a resident of the complex.

The officer went to the youth's apartment. His mother answered the door and the officer asked to speak with him. The teen was in the bathroom at the time and refused to answer his mother's or the officer's knocks, police reports said.

When he finally did, the officer continued, he had toothpaste in his mouth and on his lips. The teen's speech was slurred, the officer said, and he denied driving anywhere. The 17-year-old stumbled while talking to him, the officer noted, and held onto the door frame of the bathroom.

The youth told the officer he had drunk a fifth of vodka that evening but that a friend had driven him home from the Family Fun Center Arcade on Seven Mile. He later said he had walked home, the officer added.

When told to get dressed and come outside, the officer said the teen-ager began screaming that he didn't want to go to jail. He went into the bathroom and fell into the tub, the officer said, then got out and began to dress. When he tried to sit on the toilet seat, he missed it completely, the officer added, falling down between the toilet and tub.

The boy continued to scream, the officer said, as he told him to get dressed. He kept screaming and began banging his head on the bathroom door frame after the officer told him that he would be arrested if any witnesses identified him as the driver.

He had to grab the boy to prevent him from falling down the stairs, the officer said. When he was arrested, he added, the boy screamed that the car had not been driven and had been towed to its present spot five days before.

The vehicle, a 1983 Pontiac station wagon, had a dented and pushed in rear bumper, police said, with fresh brown paint on it. The pole struck in the carport was brown as well. The hood of the station wagon was still warm and its tires were wet, unlike those parked nearby.

While being taken to police headquarters, the boy continued to scream and cry, the officer said. Breathalyzer testing there showed him to have a blood alcohol level of .14 percent, over the legal limit.

NHS pom pon squad takes second in state

The Northville High School Pom Pon team leaped its way to a second-place finish in a statewide competition Feb. 27.

The group of 24 spirited girls took the runner-up slot in the Class A, Division 2 category, besting all opponents except division champ Novi High.

"I was really proud of the way they performed," said coach Cheri Warner. "Their hard work and dedication were evident throughout their final performance."

Warner said the girls had been practicing their routines since last July, devoting two hours a day to polishing their intricate moves.

Team members qualified for the state finals by competing successfully at the regional level. They went up against eight other teams in their division at the finals tournament, held at Saginaw Valley State University.

The 4-minute routine the team used in its presentation was choreographed by seniors Meghan Brown and Alicia Pawlack. The routine had to be an original composition which made use of certain technical maneuvers.

The Pom Pon team's 1993-94 season drew to a close with the Saginaw event. Warner said tryouts for next season will be scheduled for sometime in late April or early May.

RECORD OPINION

THURSDAY
March 24, 1994

Our Opinion

Trustees silence shuns residents' right to know

A politician's best friend in a tight situation is often the phrase: "No comment."

When pressed further, evasive public officials usually come back with something like, "It's in everyone's best interest that this matter not be discussed in the press. That would serve no useful purpose."

Enter Northville Township trustees.

Something happened to cause former manager Bill Richards to leave after only an 8-month professional association with the township, but we'll never know what it was because the only ones who can explain it aren't talking. We're told instead that there's no point in discussing it. No one has to find out.

It's fair to interpret trustees' silence as a case of mistaken identity. They apparently don't understand that they owe the residents of the township an explanation. They apparently don't realize that the people who put them in office are their employers. The voters hired them as representatives of the township citizenry. They are obligated to explain to their constituents what went wrong during Richards' tenure.

The need for an explanation is doubly crucial in that township officials have shown a pattern of argumentativeness since they took over. There is reason to believe that the Richards incident is yet another example of how personality clashes and political in-fighting get in the way of effective government at township hall.

A number of theories have been put forward about Richards' performance on the job and the treatment he received while manager. The explanations can be divided into two basic categories: one, the work environment in the offices of township hall is hostile and no one, no matter how professional or sincere, can tame it.

The second is that Richards was in over his head and was not able to handle the myriad responsibilities attendant upon his position. Which theory deserves credibility is largely a matter of guesswork and hunch.

In support of the first theory, there is the following:

When Richards was up for consideration as manager, Clerk Sue Hillebrand sent him clippings of The Northville Record that detailed some of the difficulties the board of trustees was experiencing. The stories told of instances where officials didn't appear to know what they were voting on and seemed to base their decisions not so much on what they thought was right as on what they felt their opponents didn't want them to do.

Richards thus had some idea that there were problems in the township. What he didn't know was just how serious those problems were.

When he arrived at his new job as manager of Northville Township, Richards was stunned by the resistance he encountered. Employees who engaged in rumormongering and a workforce that ignored his attempts to exert authority were formidable challenges.

Township employees, sources tell us, had a habit of deliberately making up stories that undercut other township workers. The fabricators would put their tall tales into circulation by planting them at strategic points in the rumor network. The rumors would travel with lightning speed throughout the building and quickly become the subject of whispered office gossip.

The rumors were so prevalent, it was difficult to distinguish fact from fiction. It was also impossible to know who started them.

Discipline was a problem too, we are given to believe. Office staffers made a practice of telling Richards, not asking him, when they were taking time off work. There was an overall laxness among workers, suggesting that professionalism was more the exception than the rule.

Richards, for some reason, got on the wrong side of key members of the board of trustees. His enemies began to overload him with work in an attempt to make it look like he was incapable of fulfilling his duties.

Over time, the frustrations of the job became too much for him and Richards began experiencing health problems. Though his physician stopped short of saying the problems were health related, Richards noticed that the symptoms eased when he was away from the office. He asked for and secured a leave of absence, with the intention of not going back to his job again.

The second theory goes something like this:

Richards interviews well. He has complete verbal command of management principles and talks as if he's reading from a textbook. He presented himself very professionally during the interview process, but when it came time for him to deliver while on the job he was found wanting.

One township official said Richards had a tendency to become easily flustered and was off-putting to workers. Another said his position in the city of Wayne taught him to delegate but not how to perform hands-on functions of the type that are required at the township.

Whether the first theory or the second one is correct, or whether there are elements of truth in both points of view is hard to know. What's more, we must also acknowledge the possibility that both theories are incorrect, and that another set of causes was at the heart of the friction between Richards and township employees.

We believe that township trustees were not being honest when they said there was no point in discussing the Richards matter. We think the real reason that didn't want to talk about it is that the incident was messy and could have caused embarrassment for those involved.

Their reluctance to talk is certainly understandable and human, but it can't be accepted as an excuse for absolute silence. What they should have done is given residents an honest appraisal of what went wrong, choosing their words carefully so as not to add fuel to the fire.

Township officials told us they didn't want to get into a dispute through the media. No one asked them to. What we asked them to do was to explain what happened, plain and simple. But they chose not to do that, and, through their silence, sent the message to their constituents that township matters are none of their business.

That's a funny thing for a group of employees to tell their bosses, isn't it?

Big birthday is historic date

Lee Snider

The year was 1869 and the country was still struggling to recover from the devastation of the Civil War.

Travelers leaving Northville for Detroit had to start out on buggy then transfer to stage coach in Plymouth. They then rode the stage to Wayne where they boarded a train for the final phase of the trip.

If it was Tuesday when they started out, they could expect it to be Wednesday before they arrived at their destination.

Northville itself was better established than many places in southeastern Michigan, boasting three churches and a high school that had just graduated its first senior class—if you can call one person a graduating class.

And on July 15 of that year, a farsighted son of an Irish immigrant, believing that local homesteaders needed news of what was going on in the vast world beyond their tiny hamlet, launched his own publication, an institution that has endured now for better than a century.

It was called The Wayne County Record when it first came out. Today it's known as The Northville Record. This summer Samuel H. Little's enterprise turns 125 years old.

A century-and-a-quarter of service to the community. It's got a nice ring to it. I wonder if Little, the paper's founder and first publisher, anticipated a longevity of that magnitude when he sat down at a typewriter to pound out his first story.

Anyway, I've been trying to decide how best to commemorate the upcoming milestone anniversary of this newspaper but I'm still kicking around some ideas.

The late Jack Hoffman was largely responsible for the Record's centennial edition on which, with characteristic enthusiasm and dedication, he labored intensely.

In his introductory remarks to the special section, Hoffman said he couldn't even estimate the number of hours he spent on the project. His best guess was that the effort represented two years of work.

It showed. The stories were exhaustively researched and the biography of Samuel Little was long enough to fill the pages of a small paperback.

There were separate inserts with articles about churches, schools, business and industry, government and service organizations.

The historical information I started this column with was taken from that booklet, released July 17, 1969.

Much of the kind of basic material found in the 100th anniversary edition of the Record goes into our annual Our Town directory, so there would be no need for us to include it in a commemorative edition too. Besides, that type of depth would have required launching the project back in 1992. It's a little late for that.

A number of people have offered suggestions on what we could do to mark our special occasion and some of them are good ones. One person recommended we contact some of the people who have been connected with the Record down through the years and get their reflections on how the community has evolved.

Sen. Bob Geake, in the office for a courtesy call this week, said we should consider inviting school children to go through microfilm reels at the library and find out what was happening locally on the days they were born.

We'll probably do something along those lines, but if you've got suggestions of your own, I'm willing to listen.

Hoffman's a tough act to follow. I can use all the help I can get.

Positive discipline in parenting

Mary Ellen King

After last month's article many people told me that they really appreciated the short, positive tips for parenting. Family Service America Inc. sent along more tips to share with parents.

USE POSITIVE DISCIPLINE

1. Set rules.

● Determine which rules are important. Set limits and boundaries. Make sure everybody understands the rules and consequences.

● Apply rules consistently. If you make an exception, make sure your child understands that it's a special treat (i.e. staying out later than usual).

● Rules are flexible in that they're appropriate to the age of the child.

2. Addressing the problem.

● Respond to the problem as soon as possible.

● Be firm. You're the parent. Do not underestimate your parenting ability.

● Keep calm, use your anger in a positive way. Address the problem, discuss the consequences and follow through. Don't blow up.

3. Criticize the behavior only.

● Choose your words carefully. Address the behavior, not the person. For example you could say, "I'm upset that you hit your friend," instead of "You're a bad boy for hitting."

HELP IN PROBLEM SOLVING

1. Define the problem.

● Try to help your child solve the problem, don't solve it for them. Teach your child how to problem-solve.

● Ask your child what exactly the problem is. What are their feelings about it?

2. Brainstorm about ways to solve the problem.

● Talk about every possible solution with your child. List them out. Discuss and weigh the outcomes of each potential solution.

3. Pick the best solution.

● Talk about and role play if necessary, the way you or your child will implement the solution.

4. Discuss the outcome.

● Did the solution work? Why or why not.

● If not, talk with your child about trying another solution.

If you need help in parenting, or have questions, call Mary Ellen King at 344-1618. Northville Youth Assistance is a community agency here to service you.

Mary Ellen King is the director Northville Youth Assistance, a joint service of Northville city and Northville Township.

Home's opponents are out of line

To the editor:

I would like to comment on the March 10 edition concerning a controversy over a proposed group home on Winchester.

The opponents of the planned group home should awaken to the realization that there is a huge shortage of group homes currently. Further, our society is turning out more and more disabled persons due to drugs, fetal alcohol syndrome, violence, closed brain injuries, women having babies at an advanced age, etc.

The high water mark has yet to hit.

The opponents apparently are wondering about the character of the group home residents and the caregivers. Well, if they don't want strangers from all over Western Wayne County, maybe they should join with others and myself in starting a L'Arche community.

This is a community-based system now found in Nova Scotia and France, wherein the volunteer caregivers and most of the residents are neighbors and members of the community.

What will happen to my mentally impaired son when he reaches 18 and wants to move out on his own? If he moves a few blocks away to a group home, what difference does it make to the community or property values?

These impaired or disabled persons are among us now. They are our sons and daughters and our neighbors. They should be able to remain in the community if they chose and where they have friends and acquaintances.

The group home opponents need to get informed, think, get involved, have a heart, and quit whining about what is inevitable. We shouldn't have to go through this everytime a new group home is proposed. It's going to happen unless we find a better way.

Many of us fled from other communities to the relative safety of Northville or Northville Township, also hoping that our property values would appreciate. However, there is always some risk and we can not choose our neighbors. We should not be surprised if the concentration of mentally disabled citizens increases.

Given the shortage of group homes, it also shouldn't be surprising that some of the mentally disabled will not get help until they are picked up off the streets by the police for some minor infraction. Then they will be put in a group home ahead of other deserving persons on an emergency basis. So what does it matter if they have a "criminal record."

Writer was quick to condemn

To the editor:

After reading your "letter," I am quite upset with the name withheld who wants to cruelly put the Pom Pon girls of Northville. I believe this so-called incident involved students, rather than singling out the Pom Pon girls. Quick to condemn without having the facts and obviously someone with an ax to grind.

As a parent of a Pom Pon girl, I am very proud of the efforts and hard work since July of 1993 that these girls have put forth. Finishing second in the state competition speaks for itself as to how hard they worked. Unfortunately some students made a mistake during Spirit Week.

I believe the school did what it felt was appropriate. I also believe that the parents of the girls involved took whatever measures they deemed necessary. If a small number of girls made a bad judgment, I don't see this as rampant misbehavior. There is also a saying about glass houses and a verse in the Bible about "He that casts the first stone."

This will be my fourth daughter attending Northville High School. Like her sisters, this daughter has been involved in extra-curricular activities. We have had some fears, some tears, and a lot of cheers. The majority of students and youth in the area are good kids and deserve positives, rather than negatives.

"Good kids" are not perfect and I don't suggest that drinking is acceptable—it is definitely not. These girls should be recognized for their positive accomplishments rather than for one blemish. We are all, on occasion, too quick to judge when we should be a little more understanding. We are all responsible for our actions and reactions. Congratulations to the Northville Pom Pon girls.

Library is overdue project

To the editor:

On May 3 Northville residents will have the opportunity to vote in support of a district library plan. Two proposals will be presented giving voters the opportunity to endorse the library's building and operation. This community has a long and strong tradition of library service which began over 100 years ago.

On Oct. 4, 1889, the Northville Record published a call for "a meeting of the citizens of Northville to consider the best method of securing a large and well selected public library for the use of our citizens and younger people." Northville's library remains one of the community's oldest continuous institutions.

Mary Lapham served as major engineer behind establishment of the facility. She wrote the first constitution and bylaws, served as first president of the operating organization, the Ladies' Library Association, donated the first books and finally contributed the building used for 72 years as the library facility, the New School Church (not located at Mill Race Village).

Lapham born in 1860 in a home on the site of today's library, eventually became a physician and noted authority on the treatment of tuberculosis.

The building Lapham donated served as a library until 1964 when the service moved to the new city hall. That move was considered only temporary. In 1975 the library moved again. This time to the Northville Square Shopping Mall (MAGS building) on its former site. Other sites were studied with an attempt to secure federal funding for construction.

Locations selected were: the present recreation building site, area to the rear and east of the recreation building, and the park south of city hall. That funding was denied. The library moved again, this time to the uncompleted recreation building and then back to city hall.

In 1988 the city and township appointed another site committee to research locations. Four locales were selected: the Ford Valve Plant, Fish Hatchery Park, the property behind today's Senior Center and the West Cady Street school property. Plans developed to create a new facility at Sheldon and Six Mile, but a vote defeated that plan.

Latest plans conceptualize a library at the far west end of the park behind City Hall, the land that once belonged to Lapham's family. The historic significance of her role in the library's birth presents a strong argument for building on this site.

New boundaries are confusing

To the editor:

OK, I admit it: now I'm thoroughly confused. The Northville Public Schools are going to take middle school students who are within walking distance of Cooke Middle School and bus them to Meads Mill.

They are also going to provide bus service not once, not twice, but three times a day on Wednesdays because of the restructured high school day. If this past year is any indicator, my 5-year-old will be expected to wend his way over one mile to Winchester Elementary because the schools cannot afford a bus.

Forgive me, however, I'm not being entirely fair. His other alternative is to walk almost a mile in the opposite direction from school, cross an unguarded railroad crossing and catch the bus next to the delivery dock of Adistra (with semi-trucks pulling in and out) on Northville Road, also now within 100 feet of a proposed motorcycle club.

Isn't it exciting what your tax dollars can do? But then, of course, there's the obvious solution: I'm not doing anything so I can drive him! Do I get a school tax deduction for my time and gas? Or perhaps one of the school board/administration policymakers has time to play chauffeur twice a day?

Before you all call at once, however, I must warn you: you're going to need a big car (or maybe a bus?) for this assignment. There are a lot of children in this same predicament.

Kathryn H. Peltier

New half-day is upsetting

To the editor:

As a parent of a sophomore and senior at Northville High, I am extremely disturbed at the school board's decision to implement the half-day Wednesday schedule next year. A February 28 letter regarding the subject certainly did nothing to ease my mind. In fact, it clearly states the problems I have with the plan.

Overall, it is my feeling that our teachers are fairly paid for 10 months' work, and that the school system must raise teacher quality standards by hiring and keeping fewer, better (and, thus, better-paid) teachers... not by spending money to educate them about how to teach. They were supposed to learn that in college and through experience!

As the Chief Financial Officer of a local $2 billion company, I can assure you that successful businesses in the '90s would never tolerate such a job productivity decline ("downtime," in other words).

Two-hour weekly meetings have proven to be, by and large, unproductive in the business world unless the meetings are for a temporary, specific project. As far as "increasing demands on time" are concerned, all businesses these days are faced with this, yet we continue to see job reductions as companies realize that they must get more work out of fewer people.

This is a competitive world, and our school system is certainly not exempt from these economic realities. In short, we spend enough money to educate our children... we just don't spend it efficiently and wisely.

In order for our children to compete in the global economy of the 21st century, we do need to do something different in our education process, but it's not bringing teachers together "to share ideas, backgrounds and expertise" during time that should be devoted to students.

We need to get back to basics, pure and simple! If our children don't know "the three R's," what good is it to teach them how working life will be? They won't have one!

We employ more than 600 people in my company. All I ask is that prospective employees know the basics (math, writing and spelling skills, etc.). We can train those people about the day-to-day realities of the workplace. If they don't know the basics, we don't have time to train them, and thus we don't hire them.

It's simple... educate our children. Don't put them further behind by using some misguided concept of "quality" that detracts from the core purpose of school. School time is for students... not teachers.

J. Tyler Lee

New boundaries hastily drawn

To the editor:

Shame on you.

While you collectively puff your chests with pride at the results of the Needs Assessment Committee and fill the air with rhetoric concerning the welfare of the children, one incontrovertible fact remains from your recent passage of the revised elementary and middle school boundary plans: The plans you adopted at the March 13 meeting had been formulated less than 72 hours prior to their adoption. We get more notice than that when we forget to pay the electricity bill.

I seriously doubt whether the af-

Why A passed where others failed

long, long effort to fix the basis of Michigan's tax system.

Our over-reliance on the value of real property as the best index of a family's ability to pay goes back to the Middle Ages, when land was the only asset worth talking about. Our history as a predominantly farm state in the 19th Century contributed to the assumption that property ownership defined a family's stake in the economy and, roughly, determined its ability to pay taxes.

But as time ran on, the absurdities of a tax system skewed toward real property began to show up. Retired senior citizens, living in a home they could afford while working, found they no longer could make tax payments. Farmers living near the rapidly developing suburbs suddenly found their land taxed not at its value as a farm but in anticipation of development. The final rupture of a discredited system came about when suburbanites by the tens of thousands found their assessments rising at double-digit rates.

At bottom, the real point of Proposal A was to undo an outdated an unfair taxation system that relied excessively on the value of real property. Hooray!

Second, as to political demographics. Make no mistake about it: This election was decided for good when voters living in the suburbs served by this newspaper concluded that a tax shift was inevitable and the only choice was between an increased sales tax and higher income taxes.

The numbers are conclusive. We have seen two prior efforts to vote tax changes; both were killed by suburban opposition.

In 1992, when voters in Wayne County voted on Proposal C (Cut 'n' Cap), the vote was 26 percent for and 74 percent against. And in 1993, when Proposal A was on the ballot, the local vote was 31 percent for and 69 percent against.

But the March 15 vote was quite different. Voters in Wayne County approved the sales tax increase in Proposal A by 54 to 46 percent—and the spread was even higher in the suburbs.

Why the turnaround? Simple. There is nothing that folks in Michigan dislike more than income tax increases. As long as advocates could keep the focus on the idea that Proposal A was a vote between increasing the sales tax and the income tax, they were home free.

I remember when in 1972 a labor-liberal alliance tried to override the provision in the Michigan Constitution forbidding the graduated income tax. The effort lost more than 2-1. But what was so striking to me was that it lost the biggest in blue-collar communities with large numbers of union households. It doesn't make any difference whether people are working class or middle class: Nobody likes to see his or her hard-earned income taxed in one big chunk.

Third, as to future trends. Bear this in mind: Things are seldom what they seem.

Has Gov. John Engler fulfilled his 1990 campaign promise to cut taxes big? No. He did preside over a big and worthwhile tax shift, but you won't find that kind of language in his advertising this fall.

Has Michigan found at last a stable source of school revenue? Not at all. One problem with the sales tax on discretionary consumption is that it can vacillate with the economy. Already some experts are talking about a $500 million shortfall in a couple of years.

Will the schools improve as a result of the passage of Proposal A? Not necessarily. All Proposal A did was to shift financial support for the schools from the local millage to state sales tax revenue. In and of itself, this has done nothing whatsoever for school quality.

The bottom line: Last week Michigan voters took a big step toward fixing a bad tax system. That's about all.

affected households were given adequate notice of your most recent changes. I challenge the board to defend the adequacy of that notice.

I do know that many of the speakers at that meeting, as well as the meeting a week earlier at the high school Forum, implored you to consider the matter further before a decision was made.

As Detroit Lions Head Coach Wayne Fontes says, "I haven't seen the tapes yet." Well, I haven't seen the tape of the meeting yet either but I am fairly certain that at least the first five speakers, myself included, made such an entreaty.

Although my family has no intentions of moving out of the central city area, my concern is for those in the city, whether they have children or not, who must now attempt to sell their homes and reveal to prospective buyers that they must have their children bused to a school four times farther away than to a school to which they could walk.

Tough sell. Tough luck.

This concerns the letter from Shirley Millard, complaining about Michelle Harrison not writing a story about the Russians' visit.

I am sure that she had more important matters to cover. Making dinner for a few Russians isn't that newsworthy in my opinion. I guess Shirley just needed a pat-on-the-back. I for one, had visitors from Italy for three weeks and didn't feel a write-up in the Northville Record was necessary. Let's put our perspectives in order.

Bill that restricts mall smoking passes

By DOROTHY NASH
Staff Writer

Smoking will be restricted in mall commons areas under a House-passed bill on its way to the state Senate.

"We weren't sure when we introduced it, but we had 100 phone calls—98 supporting and two against," said the sponsor, Rep. John Jamian, R-Bloomfield Township.

"Most support came from people who walk the malls and mothers with children. A problem was teen-agers who hang out in malls and smoke. A mother told us of one teen who dropped a cigarette ash on her baby.

"Several malls in the state already are smoke-free," said Jamian, co-chair of the House Public Health Committee. "At first they were fearful of competition. Then they said it was one of the best things that ever happened. They've had more compliments."

If adopted, the bill would apply to mall commons areas—corridors, lounge sections, restrooms. Restaurants are covered by a separate law. Individual stores are not affected. "If Twelve Oaks put carcinogens in its air system, they'd be shut down in a second," he said.

Jamian accepted an amendment allowing malls to establish separate smoking rooms with separate ventilation systems so that smoke will not be recycled into the mall.

The House Wednesday approved the bill 83-15. All area representatives voted yes, including Jerry Vorva, R-Plymouth, Kirk Profit, D-Ypsilanti, Susan Munsell, R-Howell, Tom Middleton, R-Ortonville, and Dan Gustafson, R-Haslett.

"This legislation infringes on free enterprise and restricts the private property rights of business persons and entrepreneurs," protested Rep. Greg Kaza, R-Rochester Hills.

"It sends yet another market signal to entrepreneurs that Michigan is a hostile environment for business. Mall owners and operators are aware of their customers' preferences."

Jamian disagreed.

"They're like town squares. They're public places," he said pointing to their art exhibits and public programs.

Smoking is severely restricted or banned in state buildings and schools. Jamian has sponsored a law to include day-care centers in the ban.

Audience members at the Northville Town Hall Lecture Series listen to celebrity speaker Allison LaLand relate anecdotes of Washington, D.C., social gossip.

Town Hall series officials unveil celebrity speakers

A former U.S. senator, a Ukrainian pianist, a wine expert and a network news correspondent are among the celebrity speakers lined up for the Northville Town Hall Series 34th season.

On Monday, Oct. 10, Sen. William Proxmire will take the podium to discuss his 30-some year career in politics.

His start was in 1950 when he was elected to the Wisconsin State Assembly. Seven years later, he was elected to the U.S. Senate in a spring election to fill the seat left vacant by the death of Sen. Joseph McCarthy.

Proxmire was re-elected four more times and retired in 1988 after dedicating his life to public service.

In 1976, Proxmire accepted no campaign contributions and spent a total of $177.73 on his campaign. In 1982, he again accepted no contributions and spent a total of $145.10.

The senator has the longest unbroken record in the history of the Senate in answering roll call votes. Since April of 1965, there have been over 10,000 roll call votes. The average senator missed more than 950 of these votes. Proxmire did not miss a single one.

Earning his undergraduate degree in 1938 from Yale, Proxmire attained his master's degree in business administration cum laude from the Harvard Graduate School of Business in 1940. He also received a master's degree from Harvard in public administration.

The author of five books, Proxmire was the chairman of the Senate Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs Committee and a member of the Appropriations and the Congressional Joint Economic committees.

Pianist Victoria Solonina is the scheduled speaker for the Nov. 14 lecture.

She has been praised by critics and musicians as a pianist with insightful and highly expressive interpretation. In her unique lecture/recital, Solonina will combine her musical talents with a compelling personal story.

Born in the Ukraine in 1957 to the family of a doctor and a mathematician, Solonina grew up as the true child of insurrection. Even though it was a long time since Russian Communists conquered her motherland, the Ukraine, Solonina's family chose to oppose communism.

Reality was painful. At school, Communists forced her to study atheism and scientific communism.

Solonina's passion for music began at age 4 when she entered the Conservatory, under the guidance of world renown pianists Ludwlg Gunzburg and Emil Gilels. She graduated with a master's of fine arts from the Odessa State Conservatory.

After graduation, Solonina was invited to join the Conservatory staff as a concertmaster and professor. While a member of the Conservatory, Solonina toured the Soviet Union with solo recitals and orchestra concerts.

In 1986, a miraculous set of circumstances allowed her a concert tour to England and leap to freedom by applying for asylum to the United States.

Her vast range of music from Baroque to Avant Garde makes her a truly rare treat.

Wine expert Michael Ashington-Pickett will speak to Town Hall ticket holders Monday, March 13.

Born, raised and educated in England, Ashington-Pickett was given his first taste of wine at the age of 3 and he has been sipping and sampling ever since.

Although a civil engineer by profession, Ashington-Pickett has traveled extensively worldwide visiting wineries and vineyards. In 1961, he moved to the United States where he founded and operated a construction company in Florida.

In 1982 he was made an "offer he couldn't refuse" for his business and he was able to concentrate on his other interests — travel, journalism and his first love, wine.

Ashington-Pickett takes the position of consumer advocate. He deplores lowering values and standards. He decided the one

A CAPITOL HOST

Allison LaLand shares her times as a Washington, DC social host

By MICHELLE HARRISON
Staff Writer

Martha Washington committed the ultimate in social sins while her husband George served as the first president of the United States.

Her parties were just plain dull, according to Allison LaLand, the leading social hostess in the nation's Capitol.

LaLand addressed a filled room March 14 at the Holiday Inn West in Livonia as part of the Northville Town Hall Lecture Series. She shared her favorite stories about social blunders and wonders occurring on the Washington scene.

"Martha sat prim and proper on a dainty love seat," LaLand said.

Most of the guests would grumble because only the wealthy were invited to the Washingtons' social ceremonies, which really resembled royalty holding court.

Martha had another problem with her social skills, or lack of them.

"She didn't know how to get people to go home," LaLand laughed.

So the first lady would announce at 9 p.m. "the general likes to retire at 9 and I usually precede him."

LaLand visited Northville to share her wit and wisdom of the White House's everchanging social circle.

A native of Atlanta, Ga., LaLand knew early on that she was to be a master in perfecting the southern tradition of extending hospitality.

"I gave parties like everyone else, but I couldn't help to notice mine were successful," she said. "Obviously, it was the thing I did best. My particular art form was entertaining."

But her dream of becoming the leading social hostess didn't come true all at once. She moved to San Francisco and shared a Pacific Heights townhouse with a girlfriend.

For four years it was evenings filled with white tie dinners and dances, symphonies and balls.

"After four years I felt I was ready for Washington," she said. "I just didn't bust in like a meteor from outer space."

She learned from the "hostess with the mostess," Pearl Mesta.

Her first event was a black tie party for Attorney General William Saxby. Surprisingly, it wasn't the attorney general, but the event itself, that captured the headlines: "Allison LaLand. Is She the New Hostess with the Mostess?"

Allison LaLand has been dubbed the "hostess with the mostess" in the nation's capital.

Of course, it hasn't been all clear sailing since then.

Early on, LaLand was labeled as a Republican hostess. When Gerald Ford and Robert Dole lost their bid for the presidency and vice presidency, respectively, the press predicted failure for LaLand, too.

One columnist went so far to say that LaLand would be banished to "social Siberia."

"Actually, I'm not a political hostess," LaLand said. "As I said, my parties are my art form."

LaLand spent a lot of time researching the White House social files and came up with the following observations:

Thomas Jefferson brought a new approach to handling social situations when he was elected into office.

"Jefferson thought all men were created equally and socially," LaLand said. "Bows were out and shaking hands became the in thing."

The 18th president of the United States, Ulysses S. Grant made the White House dinners famous with his 29-course dinners served with six wines.

Rutherford Hayes' wife Lucy changed that extravagance, downsizing the meals and beginning morning prayers and evening hymn sings at the White House. The action netted her a nickname of "Lemonade Lucy."

William Howard Taft decided to use his White House dinners to influence politicians into backing his conservative policies. His wife Helen would have two wines served at his social functions.

Volunteer

John Buckland

Library board close to volunteer's heart

By DOROTHY NASH
Special Writer

Even if you're tired of hearing that Northville needs a new library and you say you're not interested in contributing money toward building one, listen a few minutes to John Buckland, who is chairman of the Northville District Library Board.

"We have 6,000 square feet of space," he said. "Most communities our size have four or five times that." Seating is limited to 32 persons.

Hours of operation have been cut by 20 percent in the last three years. The library is currently open only 50 hours a week.

Book replacement is critical. In the last three years the book budget has been cut by 50 percent. The periodical collection is primarily funded through patron contributions.

You say you can go to a neighboring library? Well, if you do it too often, the taxpayers in those communities are going to complain. Why should they support Northville's library needs?

By getting the funding to build a new library about the size of Novis and by making it a two-story structure with elevator, Buckland said Northville can have not only the computerized catalog (INFO RAC) which was donated by the Friends of the Library but other new technologies on the market and it can also get training in customer service for the staff.

"Customer service is becoming a lost art in the Northville library," he said. "We can have someone come in to show techniques."

John Buckland has served in many volunteer capacities since he moved to town in 1968. He's been on the city council and also the Parks and Recreation Commission. But perhaps the Library Board is closest to home for him. He's a salesman for McDougal-Littel Co., publishers of middle and high school text books.

When the May 3 election comes along, he urges, vote YES, YES—the operating millage proposal and the bond proposal, both dealing with funds for the Northville District Library.

In Our Town

Folk art, colonial living topics of presentation

American folk art and colonial living expert Shirley Meyer will speak at M.T. Hunter Colonial Lighting and Furniture Store in Northville tomorrow evening.

Meyer will speak and give a slide presentation on American folk art, women's role in art and how it has changed in the 17th and 18th centuries from 7:30 to 9 p.m. at the store, located at 201 E. Main St.

"American folk art and colonial furnishings are enjoying a big resurgence," said Meyer. "The more high-tech we become, the more we inwardly rebel against that same technology. We like it in our public lives, but not our private lives."

"People want their homes to be warm and cozy, so they are reaching back to America's roots when furnishing."

Meyer graduated from Western Michigan University with a major in history and French, and has taught at East Kent High School, Kentwood, Mich., for 28 years. In 1993, she received a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities and studied 18th Century Revolutionary Leaders at Stratford Hall Plantation and Monticello in Virginia.

Refreshments will be served.

Northville women in show

Northville residents Celia Larsen and Joan Doty will be entrants in the 1994 Ann Arbor Flower and Garden Show March 24-27.

Larsen's exhibit is "Plant Society" and Doty will demonstrate "Design: A Time for Things that Matter."

The University of Michigan's Matthaei Botanical Gardens will present the best of the old and new in gardening at the Washtenaw Farm Council Grounds, 5055 Ann Arbor-Saline Road, Ann Arbor. The Garden's fifth annual show calls upon the worlds of history and fantasy to convey the theme "Once Upon a Time."

The show will feature an acre of professionally designed landscapes and more than 500 horticultural and floral design exhibits. New features will include French parterre garden pathways between buildings, and an antique garden furniture and accessories market, in addition to the regular Marketplace.

For ticket information, call the flower show office at (313) 998-7002.

PTA News/Elementaries

Silver Springs

With major issues such as boundary decisions and Proposal A behind us, Silver Springs PTA is proceeding with its usual springtime activities. On March 10, our first graders enthusiastically displayed their talents at the annual first-grade musical. Congratulations to Mrs. Salmon and her music students on a very enjoyable performance.

Our winter reading program, entitled Rock and Read, has come to a successful conclusion with 50 students earning Silver Springs patches. Many thanks to Kathy Wypock for creating, organizing and implementing this wonderful program.

This doesn't mean, however, that our students are no longer reading. March is Reading Month and Silver Springs students are reading more than ever in an effort to add segments to our growing caterpillar, Merle, who is inching his way around the school toward the Gatorade bucket.

Our principal, Kenneth Pawlowski, is nervously watching since the contents of this bucket will be dumped on him each time the caterpillar circles the school and reaches the bucket. Watch out, Mr. Pawlowski!

Hats off to our February students of the month: Hirotake Fujii, David York, Lauren Schreefel, Matthew Priebe, Scott Clausnitzer, Ilyssa Golan, Tony Parker, Girish Gunturi, Brittany Zuerlein, Marie Snyder, Matt Nagy, Leah Burt, Bethany Sprader, Garrett Knack, Kristina Kalso, Daniel Gladden, Amanda Fogliatti and Teddy Walter.

Our Arts Appreciation program is winding down for this school year. Thank you to chairperson Karen Stephens for organizing this program and to her group of volunteers, Diane DeVincent, Kathie Cole, Holly Raymond, Ann Vickers, Susan Nudi, Diane Surma and Roni McCrumb, for bringing this enriching experience into our classrooms.

The last of our fourth-grade classes have now visited Maybury State Park and have participated in the wonderful science program provided through our partnership with the park. The staff at Maybury filled our students' days with lots of science facts and fun.

A group of dedicated PTA volunteers have been working very hard and have covered 3,032 new literature books used in our language arts curriculum. Thanks to the following people, these new books are now preserved for many years of learning: Diana Stadtmiller, Diane DeVincent, Denise Anderson, Debbie Peloso and Monica Katona. Special thanks go to Jan Naigus, Julie Johnson, Karen Stephens, Mary Sant, Lynn Bial and Kathy Houslander.

Congratulations to fifth-grader Megan Gilshire, who won first place in the regional level of competition in the McDonald's "When I Grow Up" speech contest. Megan now advances to the statewide competition to be held in Lansing on March 26. Good luck, Megan!

Thank you to health chairperson Eileen Asteriou for organizing our Red Ribbon Week activities.

The Michigan Opera Theater visited Silver Springs yesterday with a delightful performance of "Cheering Up a Princess." This Junior Enrichment Series assembly was well received by our staff and students.

The date of the Silver Springs talent show has been changed to May 26.

Our last family roller skating party of the year is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. Thursday, April 21, at Skatin' Station. Come join us for an evening of fun.

Our next PTA meeting will take place at 9:15 a.m. April 19 in the music room. Babysitting will be available. We hope to see you there.

way to improve quality was to found and publish The Ashington-Pickett Airlines Report.

In 1984, a second publication, The Ashington-Pickett Travel Report came into being. Its purpose is to rate and critique the performances of hotels and restaurants in business cities and resorts worldwide.

Unable to resist the opportunity to offer practical, down to earth advice on wine to his readers, Ashington-Pickett included a regular wine column in The Airline Report. The response was so enthusiastic it led to the launching, in 1992, of The Ashington-Pickett Wine Review.

The speaker will combine both topics in his lecture.

Senior correspondent for NBC's magazine program NOW with Tom Brokaw and Katie Couric, Fred Francis is the scheduled speaker for the Monday, April 10, Town Hall lecture.

Prior to this assignment for the Wednesday night show, Francis was the chief Pentagon correspondent for nine years, serving as the network's defense and national security affairs expert.

The journalist has won the coveted DuPont award and a national news Emmy. He will continue using his expertise in international affairs on the prime time TV show.

For example, he took American hostage Tom Sutherland back to Beirut for a report on that flash point. And he reported on the mysterious illnesses of Gulf War veterans.

Francis was NBC's principle reporter during the Persian Gulf War, often breaking developments on an exclusive basis from the Defense Department where he had been posted since September 1984.

Most recently, Francis has reported on nuclear weapons proliferation in Pakistan, Iran, South Africa, North Korea and Israel. He has done extensive reporting on the prospects of American women preparing for combat roles, gays in the military and the downsizing of the Department of Defense.

Prior to his Pentagon assignment, Francis covered diplomatic and world affairs from the State Department for two years. He was also NBC's Central European correspondent for almost four years. Previously, he was a Latin American correspondent.

All lectures begin at 11 a.m. and luncheons are held at noon. Tickets are $12 each, or $48 for the entire season. Luncheon tickets may be purchased by season lecture ticket holders only.

Checks must be received no later than two weeks preceding each lecture and made payable to Northville Town Hall.

For order forms, contact Mary Louise Cutler, 349-8855.

Hostess reveals social snafus

"I know what you're thinking," LaLand told the audience. "White for fish and red for meat. Actually, vintage wine was served to the guest who Taft sought (backing from) and the less expensive for everyone else."

President Woodrow Wilson never much cared for the office White House dinners and refused to permit his home be used for political purposes, according to LaLand.

The 29th president, Warren G. Harding was most talked about for his upstairs poker parties. Despite Prohibition, alcohol was reportedly served during the get-togethers.

"Can you guess who kept bar?" LaLand asked. "The first lady."

A near social blunder on the part of a guest occurred during the Coolidge administration. A guest at a dinner party watched in horror as the president removed his cup from his saucer and poured cream into it.

Thinking that protocol dictated, the guest followed suit and removed his cup. As he prepared to pour the cream, the president bent down and placed his saucer on the White House floor for the family's cats.

The White House kitchen was especially busy during the Hoover administration as staff prepared a luncheon, two teas and dinner on a daily basis for White House visitors.

Franklin Roosevelt and his wife Eleanor paved the way for a new change in social patterns, LaLand said.

"Eleanor preferred social action to socializing, but she understood the role," she said.

It was the Depression, and the first lady boasted about the dinner she served that cost 18 cents a person. The Roosevelts were also the first to entertain with hot dogs at a barbecue welcoming the first British monarch to set foot on American soil, LaLand said.

President Harry S. Truman preferred small dinners with family and friends as did the Eisenhowers. Mamie Eisenhower did enjoy her steak dinners, though, and entertained more heads of state than any other administration in history, according to LaLand.

President John Kennedy's wife Jacklyn overhauled the White House menu when her husband took office, shortening the dinners to four courses. This allowed time for plays, ballets and concerts in the East Room following dinner.

It was "pure Americana" when the Johnsons entertained officials with the first outdoor barbecue. It was only fitting for the Texans to pull it off, LaLand said.

It was back to cultural activities when Pat Nixon planned "Evenings at the White House" when husband Richard took the oath of office.

Gerald Ford "brought a breath of spring air" to the White House following Watergate. The Fords loved to dance and often held dances.

A "big swing in the pendulum" occurred when the Carters moved into 1600 Pennsylvania Ave.

Hard liquor, white tie affairs, after dinner dancing and late nights were out, LaLand said.

The Carters did up-one her once, though, planning a party the same night as hers featuring a dance card format just like she had planned.

"I admit I'm a little upstaged," she laughed. "But who better than from the president of the United States?"

It was back to high-backed armchairs and raised platforms when Ronald Reagan took office.

"The social style was a distinct change from the Carters," LaLand said. "White ties and martinis were back in."

George and Barbara Bush receive the "utmost perfection" award in entertaining, LaLand said.

"They were well versed in all types of diplomatic and presidential planning," she explained. "They were always sparkly with glamorous events."

The social scene has only escalated with the arrival of the Clintons.

"There was a euphoria in the Capitol for five days during the inauguration," LaLand said. "Thirteen inaugural balls. And they (the Clintons) attended each one and danced."

Hillary Rodham Clinton is perhaps changing the role of the first lady forever, LaLand said, referring to her health care reform appointment.

What lies ahead on the Washington social scene remains a mystery, but the voters will dictate social behavior, LaLand said.

"Do you think it will be hymn singing or symphonies?" she asked the audience. "Hors d'oeuvres or hot dogs? ... well, the people will decide when they select the man — or woman — to run our government. The first lady — or first gentleman — will have to have the wit and sensibility to harmonize White House entertaining with the mood of America. I'm sure none of us will want to miss it."

'Sirens' studies battle between art and religion

Set in Australia's lush Blue Mountains in the 1930s, "Sirens" chronicles a proper young woman's sensual awakening in the midst of a conflict between art and religion.

Estella Campion (Tara Fitzgerald) discovers an unfamiliar and initially unwelcome side of herself at Springwood, the mountain retreat of controversial Australian artist Norman Lindsay (Sam Neill).

She is there because the Archbishop of Sydney has asked her husband, Rev. Anthony Campion (Hugh Grant), to try to persuade Lindsay to withdraw his etching, "The Crucified Venus," from an international exhibition. The work depicts a voluptuous naked woman on the cross, surrounded by scurrilous male clerics.

Anthony and Estella are a handsome couple, who have left their home in England to take over a rural parish outside Sydney. Their stop at Springwood is meant to be brief, but a train derailment strands them at the bohemian idyll, where Lindsay has just begun to paint the legend of the Sirens, the island-dwelling females fatales whose songs lured sailors to their doom.

While Anthony, who fancies himself a sophisticate, debates the moral implications of art with Lindsay and his wife (Pamela Rabe, Estella finds herself increasingly influenced by the uninhibited models — Sheela (Elle Macpherson) and Prue (Kate Fisher) — and reluctantly drawn, like the young model Giddy (Portia De Rossi), to the rugged blind man, Devlin.

By the time the Campions leave Springwood, Estella has freed herself from conventional morality and, in her way, become a siren, too.

"Sirens," a fictitious story spun around a real person's life, was written and directed by John Duigan. Principal photography began March 29, 1993, at Springwood, about 90 minutes west of Sydney, and continued for seven weeks.

"Sirens" was filmed at Norman Lindsay's estate. Like the house, his studio remains as it was when he occupied it, and his statues still inhabit the vast grounds. During Lindsay's 40-some years there, the estate stood alone in the rugged bush country, but suburbs have encroached in recent years.

The village depicted in "Sirens" offers a stark contrast to the gracious blend of nature and civilization that Lindsay achieved at Springwood.

Lindsay, who died in 1969 at the age of 90, fascinated and infuriated his public for more than 70 years. Known primarily for his often-satirical paintings and etchings, he was also a novelist, sculptor, political cartoonist, illustrator and model shipbuilder. He also worked and exhibited in London, and his work appears today in every major gallery collection in Australia.

Norman Lindsay and his world provide the context for the story of "Sirens," but not the story itself. "The film in no way pretends to be a documentary account of a few days in the artist's life," said Duigan. "With the exception of the Lindsay family, the characters are all fictitious, although the controversy around 'The Crucified Venus' is based on fact."

Duigan's intent was to make a film about sensuality, repression and the church's attitude toward sexuality, particularly female sexuality. "I wanted to do something on the church's attitudes toward sensuality because they have been a source of grief, and have generated an enormous amount of pain, anguish and violence," he said.

Duigan had strong ideas about what he wanted visually from his actors, too, particularly the three models and Lindsay's wife, Rose. "I wanted all four of the Australian female characters physically larger than life, and much taller than the English girl, Estella," he said. "I wanted her to go into this world where all the women were statuesque, with a very strong physical presence which dwarfs her."

Duigan assembled a cast of experienced actors and novices for "Sirens." He was well-acquainted with both Tara Fitzgerald's and Hugh Grant's work, and actively sought them to portray Estella and Anthony Campion.

Grant had initial reservations about his character. "I was a bit afraid of doing this straight-laced Englishman, but then I saw a way around it," he said. "Instead of being straight-laced with a classically strict morality, it would be fun if he thought he was groovy... part of the Bloomsbury set. He thinks he's quite comfortable with sex, but of course his edifice crumbles when he's confronted with the real McCoy."

Fitzgerald's character, Estella, is not burdened with pretensions. "Estella is a bit rural, but she's a nice girl," said Fitzgerald. "Her strictness with herself and her naivete came from the times. She makes an incredible, extraordinary journey, her life will never be the same—it will be better, but more difficult."

Duigan chose real models to play Lindsay's models, including Elle Macpherson in her screen debut as the provocative Sheela, who had artistic ambitions of her own.

Macpherson's preparation included gaining 20 pounds to give her body a Botticelli contour. She resumed her typical diet midway through production to prepare for her next assignment, a cover shoot for the "Sports Illustrated" swimsuit issue.

Macpherson relished her role. "Sheela is mischievous and enigmatic," she said. "She's mixed in the bohemian life and would like to be a painter like Norman, but doesn't have the talent."

Portia de Rossi, Elle Macpherson and Kate Fischer are among the sirens in John Duigan's 'Sirens'

Androsian makes all-area volleyball first team in '94

Blocking, hitting, spiking, digging—Hometown Newspapers' East All Area Volleyball First Team can do it all and then some.

Led by five Kensington Valley Conference all-league performers, our 1994 squad possesses both talent and experience. Our six seniors have more than a dozen years of varsity service and honors too numerous to mention.

Four mythical team was to take to the court, hitters like Karin Sikorski, Megan Readler and Kristin Kenny would strike fear into any coach. And with the setting of Lakeland's Alissa Korch, Hometown hitters would have plenty of opportunities.

Lets take a closer look at this year's first team as picked by the sports writers from the Novi News, South Lyon Herald, Northville Record and Milford Times.

KARIN SIKORSKI South Lyon

A third-year varsity player, Sikorski earned All-KVC honors from her middle hitter's slot. The senior helped lead the Lions to a 7-5 record and fourth place finish in the league.

"She's the most mobile middle hitter I've ever had," said South Lyon coach Ed Baldwin.

A good portion of the Lions' offense was centered around Sikorski. And for good reason. She totaled 192 kills, 31 blocks to go along with 131 aces and a serving percentage of 85 percent.

"We tried to run plays for her," said Baldwin.

An "A" student, the senior will have her pick of colleges to choose from. Her coach said she could play for the right program.

ALISSA KORCH Lakeland

Although not a vocal player for the Eagles, Korch knew how to get the job done.

A setter for Lakeland, the senior connected on 98 percent of her attempts with a 30 percent assist rate. Coach Dave Montgomery said hard work paid off for his captain.

"She did an awfully good job for us," he said. "She led by example."

Korch was an All-KVC selection by league coaches.

KRISTIN KENNY Novi

Injuries slowed the Wildcat senior at the start of the season, but she came back strong after winter break.

Kenny split time between middle and outside hitter for Novi. She was near the top of every offensive category, coach Julie Fissette said.

"She played well at the end of the season," she said. "She was a big asset for us."

Kenny, an All-KVC choice, boasted a hitting percentage of better than 90 percent while totaling 62 kills and 22 aces. She also made good on 93 percent of her passes and 89 percent of her serves.

"She was a team player," Fissette said, "and our biggest leader on the court."

MEGAN READLER Milford

Readler was the Lou Gehrig of the Redskins having played in all 49 games this season.

The senior offered a lot more than durability to the lineup, however. She scored 103 kills for an average of 2.1 per game. Readler also served at better than 90 percent and tallied 26 aces.

"She's a very aggressive player," said coach Kelly Kollar. "She's also the most determined player I've ever seen."

Readler, a middle hitter, combined her offensive skills with strong defensive ability. She had 17 blocks and 130 digs.

"She was a very good defensive player," said Kollar.

GINETT PIERRE Milford

Pierre split time between back row setter and outside hitter. Lile Readler, she was an All-KVC selection.

Among her abilities, serving may have been the best. Pierre nailed 98 percent of her serves.

"She's not a hard server," said Kollar. "Just very consistent."

Pierre also had a knack for scoring points. She had 87 kills on the season.

"She was good at tipping," said Kollar.

RENEE ANDROSIAN Northville

Some lead by example and some lead vocally. Androsian leads with her outstanding attitude.

"She was a real spark for us," said coach Laura Murray. "Her enthusiasm about the game fired the rest of us up."

Androsian was a workhorse, playing every minute of every game.

"Endurance-wise she could handle it because of her soccer," said Murray.

Androsian, who was named to the WLAA All Western Division team, led Northville in aces with 13 and points at 79. Murray said the senior also came up with many digs at critical times of games.

Krista Howe made our all-area second team this year.

Snyder, Howe land on second squad

In a lot of other seasons, Hometown Newspapers' East All Area Volleyball Second Team players would've made the top grade.

Considering the skill and experience level of our selections, perhaps we just should've had two first teams. Northville's Angie Snyder and Milford's Rachel Madden are prime examples of players who wouldn't be out of place on anybody's dream team.

Snyder helped the Mustangs to an improving season while Madden was a hard-working dynamo for the Redskins. Players like Krista Howe, Becky Oppat, Carrie Morfino and Beth Trimark also help make our second unit tough as nails.

Here's a closer look at our picks:

ANGIE SNYDER Northville

A senior outside hitter, Snyder was a jack of all trades for the Mustangs.

Besides her duties up front, she worked as a back row setter and was solid in both roles.

Coach Laura Murray said Snyder would've likely made All-WLAA if she could've left her at outside hitter.

"She would've been a great outside hitter if she could've just done that," she said.

Snyder was still able to pile up good offensive numbers. She scored 74 points to go along with 11 aces and 55 kills. Defensively, the Mustang captain had 11 blocks and 18 digs.

"She was our most versatile player," said Murray.

Snyder made honorable mention All-WLAA.

KRISTA HOWE Northville

Whenever the Mustangs needed to shut down an opponent's big offensive gun, Howe was the one they looked to.

A 5-foot-9-inch senior, she totaled 20 blocks while tipping and deflecting numerous other shots. Murray said Northville would have been in big trouble without Howe.

"She slowed down a lot of shots," Murray said, "enough for us to get to them."

The coach said Howe's timing and leaping ability made her effective at middle blocker. She also improved her hitting skills, Murray commented.

An honorable mention All-WLAA, Howe was a Mustang captain.

CARRIE MORFINO South Lyon

Morfino was one of the most effective Lions this season.

A 5-foot-5-inch senior, she played setter and outside hitter for South Lyon. According to coach Ed Baldwin, Morfino played bigger than her actual size.

"I always thought she was 5-8," he said. "She played taller."

From her setting position, Morfino totaled 215 assists.

"She was a very good passer from the back row," said Baldwin. "She was a good all-around player."

Morfino, an honorable mention All-KVC, was also successful serving for the Lions. She connected on 84 percent of her serves, scored 40 aces and aces on 15 percent of her serves.

BETH TRIMARK Lakeland

A defensive specialist for the Eagles, Trimark was honorable mention All-KVC.

Besides digging the ball, coach Dave Montgomery said Trimark had good offensive skills. He noted that the senior had a serving percentage

Junior baseball looking for help

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

Northville Junior Baseball needs your help.

The 1994 season is set to begin in early May in parks across town. But if the new Northville Community Park is to see its share of games, back stops and outfield fences must be purchased and erected soon.

"We need sponsorships," said NJB Board Member David Jerome. "We're looking to raise $37,000."

Three baseball diamonds have been constructed, irrigated and graded, according to a letter sent out by the association to local merchants. Jerome said games can't be held on the fields, which are located on Beck Road between Five and Six Mile roads, until the back stops and fences go up.

More than 1,000 youngsters between the ages of nine and 18 play baseball in the community every year. The Northville Community Park is slated to hold youth games as well as adult softball.

Northville Baseball began raising funds a few weeks ago. Thus far, Jerome said, about one-third of the needed monies have been collected or pledged.

Area businesses can help get the season rolling in several ways.

For a contribution of $750, a professionally produced 4-by-8 foot sign will be placed on an outfield fence. The signs will be custom designed with company logos displayed. Signs will be maintained for three years for the contribution.

Other options are available. Three signs, one on each diamond, can be purchased for $2,100. A double sign, at one field, is $1,400. All of the signs will be constructed on rigid board.

It will take about two weeks to erect the fences and back stops once funds are in hand, Jerome said. Any additional funds raised will go into the fields for items such as benches, scoreboards and bleachers, he added.

"It's a heck of a task to raise $37,000," Jerome said.

Those interested in making a contribution can contact Jerome at 348-4433 or Bruce Christiansen at 357-7000.

Spikers make solid strides in WLAA

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

If all goes as planned, Northville High will continue to climb up the ladder of the WLAA volleyball standings next season.

The Mustangs made solid strides in the 1993-94 season and hope to keep the momentum going. Northville finished just a game under the vaunted 500 mark after going 6-21 a year ago.

"That's a great improvement," said second-year coach Laura Murray. "My goal for next year is to finish a few games over 500."

The squad actually exceeded the coach's hopes this year. Murray said she was looking to finish about eighth.

Northville did just that in the regular season. But when tournament time rolled around the Mustangs turned some heads in the Western Lakes by taking sixth.

"I thought we could have done a few games better," she added. "But not that many."

A solid group of seniors led the team.

Renee Androsian, an outside hitter, showed great enthusiasm and hustle on the court. Angie Snyder, Krista Howe and Kate Woodrich gave Northville a solid core of experienced players.

"Losing four seniors will hurt," said Murray.

While those seniors got a lot of playing time, underclassmen did, too.

The Mustangs will be looking towards players such as Angie Groves, Lauren Poole, Jill Holloway, Renee Olin, Tami Taylor, Erin Hornberger and Sarah Gregerson, among others, to fill the void.

"Some freshmen will be brought up," Murray added. "We will still be young."

Northville was strong in several areas of the game this season. Murray said her team generally hit and blocked well.

Those should be strengths again next year. The coach said Northville will have to improve its setting if it is ever going to vie for a league championship.

Murray said she is hoping good team chemistry will carry over next year as well.

"We all worked well together," she said. "We didn't have any people that were out for themselves individually."

League champion Salem will be the favorite again next year. Murray said the Rocks are losing just one player to graduation. She mentioned Livonia Churchill as another leading contender.

AWARDS

The volleyball team held its annual banquet this week. Awards were given to: Androsian for most spirited, Poole for most improved and Howe for scholar athlete.

Novi wins state awards

By CINDY STEWART
Special Writer

Each year the Michigan Recreation and Park Association recognizes various cities for their outstanding contributions in the field of recreation and parks. This year's awards were presented at the February conference and again before the Novi City Council on March 7 to Special Recreation Coordinator Kathy Crawford, Parks Supervisor Jack Lewis and the Novi Sixth Gate Cloggers.

Novi received a Community Service Award for its Sixth Gate Cloggers. This award is for "Teamwork—the ability to work together toward a common vision. The ability to direct individual accomplishment toward organizational objectives. The fuel that allows common people to attain uncommon results."

The Sixth Gate Cloggers are a senior citizen dance group sponsored by Novi Parks and Recreation and truly deserve this award. The group was formed in September of 1988 to provide exercise and camaraderie for its members and has grown to include more than 50 dancers.

They regularly perform before schools, senior centers, nursing homes, civic organizations, private clubs and fairs throughout the Metro area, as well as provide entertainment for the Michigan '50s Festival in Novi, the Builders Show, and the Festival of Trees at Cobo Hall.

The Sixth Gate Cloggers practice twice a week at the Novi Civic Center and performed 50 times in 1993. They also participate in frequent clogging workshops throughout the United States and Canada.

"We started out as an exercise class and got hooked," said Glenna Sherman. "We all love to dance and it's a great way to have fun. Anyone can join the clogging class, but you must be over 55 to perform with us."

The Sixth Gate Cloggers practice every Wednesday afternoon from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. in the Novi Civic Center. Classes are taught on Wednesdays from 12:30 to 2 p.m. and on Fridays from 12:30 to 3:30 p.m.

Speaking of Novi Seniors... Kathy Crawford has been the Special Recreation Coordinator for the City of Novi since 1984 and certainly deserves the 1993 Program Leadership Award.

During the past 10 years, Kathy has been active both locally and at the state level playing a key role as an advocate for senior citizens. Her programming responsibilities cover a multitude of special events and instructional classes. Kathy has been instrumental in providing one of the most extensive travel programs throughout the state.

"I love working with the seniors and always look for opportunities to enhance the quality of life for senior citizens in Novi," said Kathy. "Developing senior programs is something I believe in and is the best work of life."

"Anyone aged 55 and over should stop by the Novi Senior Center and check us out. One of the seniors wore a great T-shirt that said: 'The best antiques are old friends.' Stop by tomorrow and make some friends."

Currently Kathy is working on the feasibility of the City of Novi building a senior citizen complex. She has spent many hours researching the specific details of construction, management and funding alternatives that will hopefully lead to the reality of affordable senior citizen housing for Novi residents.

Congratulations Kathy. Keep up the good work!

This year's MRPA Maintenance Leadership Award went to Parks Supervisor Jack Lewis. He has been employed by the City of Novi for the past 15 years, working his way up the ranks starting as CETA worker to his current position.

Jack has been very active in a variety of professional organizations. He served as Chairperson of the Park Resources Committee from 1987 through 1992. He has actively coordinated and hosted the Annual Fall Equipment Workshop.

In Novi, Jack oversees the maintenance of seven park sites and over 500 acres of property. He relies on and supervises two full-time and over a dozen seasonal personnel in the delivery of their maintenance duties. Another major contribution of the maintenance division is the support that is provided to the recreation programs within the department. Congratulations Jack!

Common misconceptions about drugs

Raymond
Hobbs, M.D.

"The pain is gone so I don't need the medicine anymore." Patients need to remember that pain frequently disappears before the patient is totally healed. Everyone has experienced feeling the pain of a burn then seeing the blisters and scabs form. After a few days, the pain diminishes but the scab and blisters remain. The injury is not healed.

This phenomenon occurs inside our bodies; the pain or discomfort usually goes away before healing is complete. For this reason, most medications need to be completed in its entirety, as prescribed by the physician.

"I've been taking this medicine for a few days and I don't feel better. There must be something wrong with it." It is true that sometimes a medicine might not work and may need to be changed but it is also true that many medicines may take a while to exert their full effect.

Antidepressant drugs are an example of this. A patient may need to be on them for weeks before benefits are evident.

"I have some medicine left over from before. I can take that." There can be a real danger in having old medicines in the house. Nitroglycerine pills for heart disease usually lose their potency after a few months. Keeping an old medicine around can be life-threatening if you use it and its potency is gone. In other cases, old drugs can be harmful by themselves.

"Someone gave me this medicine and said it worked for them." Never take someone else's medicine. Dosages are based on size, weight, sex, age and other factors. What might be right for one may not be right for another. Furthermore, it may not even be the right medicine for the problem.

"I can take the over-the-counter medicines at the drugstore. They must be safe. I don't need a prescription." Over-the-counter medicines are good and are safe for most people. Some people who have conditions such as hypertension, however, could be harmed by some of these medicines. The best thing is to talk with your physician and find out about your condition and appropriate care.

"I looked the medicine up in this book. It lists all of its side effects. I'm not going to take it." Many drug references list the complications and side effects of a drug without mentioning how seldom the side effects occur. If you have questions or concerns about a drug, talk with your physician or pharmacist. If you decide not to take the drug, let your physician know immediately.

Steroid use can lead to tragedies

Barry
Franklin

As a collegiate gymnast more than 20 years ago, specializing in the high bar and still rings, I was in a rigorous physical conditioning program that included weight training, calisthenics and running.

I vividly remember walking into our campus weight room one day, after a six-week injury-related layoff, and hardly recognizing a track athlete with whom I had previously worked out.

"Lou, what's happening to you?" I asked.

Although Lou had always had a superb physique, his proportions seemed to have increased overnight, like the metamorphosis of the Incredible Hulk. He said he had gained 27 pounds since I last saw him, and that his bench press had increased from 320 to 360 pounds.

"What's the secret?" I queried.

"Anabolic steroids. I've been taking Dianabol to gain weight and increase my strength," he whispered.

Lou cautiously opened his gym bag for me as if he were hiding gold nuggets or diamonds inside. I noted a small bottle of pills with no label. "Where did you get these super pills?" I asked.

"From a friend," he said.

"Can I have or buy some?" I asked.

"Nope, gymnasists don't need the strength and bulk that we shotputters do," he replied. "Besides, I need every pill that I can get."

I subsequently learned that Lou had been taking the pills like candy, with no regard for the appropriate or safe dosage.

The following weekend I went home to visit my parents. I asked my father to approach our family physician for a supply of these "wonder pills" for me.

My dad returned from our doctor's office with disappointing news. "Dr. S. won't give me the prescription for you. He feels that they don't know the long-term effects of these relatively new drugs, and claims that a few preliminary medical reports suggest they might have serious side effects," he said.

My interest and fascination with anabolic steroids continued. In 1971, during my graduate school years, I studied the effects of Durobolin, a potent anabolic steroid, on the muscle strength and body weight of laboratory rats.

Although many of my steroid-ingested rats became larger and stronger, several became ill, and others died. One rat became so mean he actually bit me during a feeding.

These adverse reactions did not occur in the rats who were injected with a placebo—a harmless, unmedicated preparation used as a control.

It was then that I first realized the potential hazards of anabolic steroids.

The revelation that Ben Johnson, Canada's Olympic gold medal winner, had used anabolic steroids was not really surprising to me. I had never seen a sprinter with such tremendous upper body development. His torso looked as if it were carved from stone.

Unfortunately, the use of anabolic steroids among athletes has grown at an alarming rate in recent years, despite the known side effects. These include severe depression, high density lipoprotein (HDL) cholesterol levels (the "good" form of cholesterol), sterility, impotence, growth stunting, cardiovascular problems, liver disorders and cancer.

There are also well-substantiated reports that steroid users in their thirties—otherwise healthy men in the primes of their lives—have died of liver tumors, heart attacks and strokes.

Two years ago, I attended an undergraduate fraternity reunion. I asked an old friend and former track athlete if he knew whatever happened to Big Lou.

"Lou died last year from a strange blood disorder. They thought it was a form of cancer," he replied.

"Ironic, isn't it?" he went on. "Lou was one of the strongest, healthiest athletes who ever graduated from this university. He was only 37 years old when he died. Hard to believe, isn't it?"

Spring sports start a week later

Scott Daniel

According to the calendar, 1994 arrived a few months ago.

But to me, the new year didn't officially begin until Sunday — the first day of spring. And for some, the sound of a robin chirping, the sight of grass turning green or trees budding is a sure sign of better

The leagues are still in the early stages of discussion and will continue to meet until September when a final decision is expected to be made. Talks will likely heat up as the school year winds down.

Perhaps it's a bit early to be throwing in my two cents, but I'm going to anyway. I think it's a done deal and I think it will be a good deal for both leagues.

Some folks have decried the distance between schools and potential matchups, among other things. I think in the long run, however, it will benefit all 19 schools involved.

It's true that some KVC teams will not be able to compete against WLAA squads right away. But districts like South Lyon, Brighton, Novi and Howell are all growing and will eventually catch up as bigger and better teams are drawn from additional residents.

Adminstrating the new league will also be difficult in the first year or two. It will be tough trying to figure out exactly which school belongs in which division in each particular sport.

Once the bugs are worked out, though, it will run like clockwork. Many of the KVC and WLAA currently play each other in the regular and post-season anyway.

A merger would reduce the number of outside games needed to be scheduled, too. Non-leagues are becoming more difficult to pick up as schools join mega conferences. It's going to be interesting to see how this unfolds over the next few months . . .

While I always look forward to the start of another major league baseball season, I must say that some of my enthusiasm was dampened last weekend.

Shopping at a local mall, I couldn't help notice all the kids walking around wearing ball caps. This isn't exactly a new trend, I know.

Yet I find it more disturbing than ever. Growing up, uniforms and caps of professional baseball, basketball and football players were special to me. It meant that those athletes were part of a select group that earned the right to wear those items.

That certainly isn't the case now. Even more troubling is what these uniforms represent in many instances—gangs. Some gangs wear team clothing, such as the Chicago Bulls or Los Angeles Raiders, as their trademark or calling card.

That's not to say every kid wearing a cap or jersey is part of a gang. I just wish they'd come up with a new fashion statement.

Scott Daniel is sports editor of The Northville Record.

things to come.

It's a time of renewal and new beginnings. So let's cast aside thoughts of winter for the moment and look forward . . .

If you are waiting for spring sports to start at the high school you'll have to be patient a little longer. The Mustangs will sprint into the new season a week later than usual this year.

Frequent rain outs and postponements in early April forced the move. Games will start the week of the 11th . . .

Merger talks between the Western Lakes and Kensington Valley conferences are moving along. The two sides met yesterday in a fact-finding session at Novi High.

At outside hitter, Oppat was one of Novi's steadiest players.

"She was a consistent performer," said Wildcat coach Julie Fiset.

"Becky's a very hard worker."

The senior led Novi in serving percentage (93) and passing percentage (96). Oppat was a valuable player in other regards, too.

Fiset said she could fill any slot on the floor and do a respectable job. She added that Oppat's work ethic was a positive influence on younger players.

Oppat was an honorable mention All-KVC.

Mortgage prepayments can save lots of money

By James M. Woodard
Copley News Service

Spring and early summer are traditionally the most active seasons for home sales. The market is expected to be particularly active in 1994, after several years of sluggishness.

As the market picks up steam, so does the variety of related service offerings.

For example, one firm now offers homeowners a product that will save thousands of dollars in mortgage interest payments and dramatically shorten the loan term, it is claimed. The information, together with an instructional cassette tape and appropriate forms, sells for $249.

The concept, based on a schedule of mortgage prepayments, is sound. But the same benefit can be achieved by individual homeowners on their own, without pay-

The Rosemead combines charm and country style

By James McAlexander
Copley News Service

Pop-out dormers add old-fashioned charm to the Rosemead, a two-story country-style house packed with contemporary amenities and rich in outdoor living environments.

A covered porch with railings and turned columns spans the front facade and wraps around to the right. Behind the house, a deck and patio offer more recreational opportunities.

The section of the porch in front of the entrance is an airlock entry. Large multipaned windows flank the doors to this enclosed space as well as to the lofty inner foyer.

Formal rooms are at the front of the home, as is traditional. But in contemporary fashion, rooms are open and richly windowed.

The dining room has a built-in china hutch. In the living room, a fireplace serves as a focal point, able kitchen/family room. French doors provide access to the deck and patio. Flames can be enjoyed from the nook or the family room.

Counters, dishwasher and sink nestle into angles of a wide window bay with a panoramic view across the deck and beyond. A walk-in pantry provides ample storage space.

Designed with the woman in mind, the sumptuous master suite has a second vanity and basin outside the bathroom. Other amenities include: a large walk-in closet, sliding glass doors that open onto a private deck, an oversize shower and an elegant two-person raised spa.

Upstairs, a landing overlooks the foyer. Both bedrooms are expanded by dormer windows and share a bathroom.

Storage and linen closets are in the hallway.

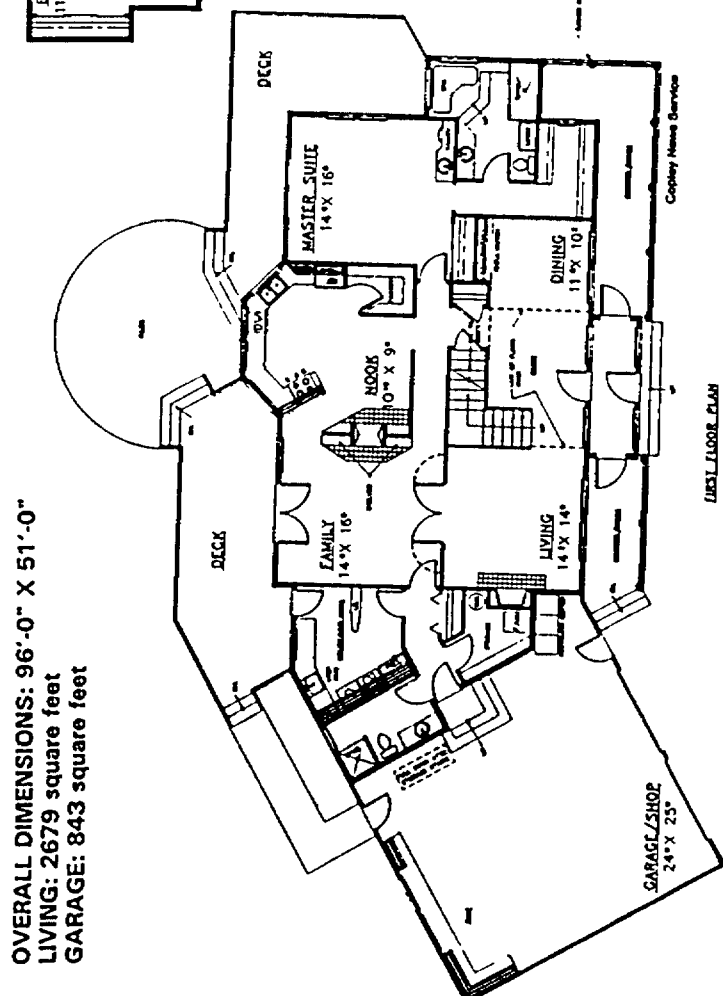

More storage, a bathroom with a shower, and a huge utility/mud room are located between the family living areas and the garage. The utility room has deck access, cabinets, a fold-down ironing board, deep sink, a counter and freezer space.

The garage has room for a shop and recycling center. Attic storage is brightened by a dormer window.

WORKING NOTING

Above, Tia Fletcher sits in the "cow-spotted" upstairs bathroom. At right, Nina Fletcher says a house should be fun and not too serious.

Local home receives national honor

MICHELLE HARRISON
Staff Writer

Being creative is a must in Nina Cambron Fletcher's career.

A greeting card designer, the Novi resident has a style all her own that stretches beyond her artist's studio and continues throughout her home.

A dining room boasts a unique paint job with a glint of gold sponged onto the walls, archways don't necessarily bear the same design as the walls above them and black "cow spots" adorn the walls in an upstairs juvenile bathroom.

"A house needs to be fun, not too serious," Fletcher said. "I like color ... people want to feel more comfortable in their homes. People are spending more time at home because it's getting too expensive to go out."

Her sense of style earned her an honorable mention in Metropolitan Home magazine's "Met Home of the Year" contest.

Although she was never officially contacted by the magazine, she noticed her name and honorable mention recognition while flipping through the New York magazine. She believes it was the slides she sent of her children's bathroom and her dining room that netted her the honorable mention.

Since Fletcher's children Tia, 9, and Max, 5, share an upstairs bathroom, Fletcher wanted something both kids would like. So, she painted the room in bright colors including turquoise and purple, took the doors off and spattered paint onto them, decorated the shower curtain rod and painted — free-hand — cow spots on the wall above the shower.

"People are so intimidated, so afraid to do something different," Fletcher said.

Her philosophy is that you can always redo something if it doesn't turn out the way you like it.

"That's the nice thing about paint," she said. "It's inexpensive and if you don't like it, you can paint over it."

Fletcher doesn't care for frilly ruffles and lace and flower arrangements. In fact, she doesn't even think everything should match.

"People are decorating more in an eclectic way," she said. "They're mixing antiques with Oriental. I don't think there are any rules. I think people get too hung up on making their house look like someone else's."

Make the patio an outdoor room

By C.Z. Guest

GARDENING

For many families, patios are outdoor living rooms, focal points of activity during the warm summer months. It's not surprising, therefore, that landscaping the patio is an national passion. It's great fun to use your imagination on what to plant, and it creates a harmonious transition between your house and the outdoors.

A good approach to patio landscaping is to create a basic structure, then fill in with favorite varieties. Start with a mix of trees, shrubs and climbers, using evergreens when possible to soften the lines of your patio. Then fill in with perennials. You also can add annuals and bedding plants. Use containers and hanging baskets so you can periodically change the design or shape of your patio.

Plant masses of color rather than little spots of many different colors. In a small patio, a single-color flower design can be delightful.

Remember, a variety of foliage can be just as effective as a variety of flowers. Consider the shape of plants you put in, and vary the mix of low-growing and tall, thin and rounded shrubs. Silver-leaved plants are not only beautiful, but they tend to be drought-tolerant as well. Dusty miller comes to mind, a fabulous silver-leaved plant.

Whether you plant roses, ivy, honeysuckle or clematis, climbers make the perfect patio plantings because of their dramatic appearance and small-growing-space habits. They also perform useful landscape functions, such as disguising unsightly views or unpleasant objects. They can be easily trained along the top of a wall or on a trellis.

Make sure any trellises or "twist-ties" (never use wire, it cuts plant stems) supporting your climbers are sturdy and allow air to circulate around the plants. If planted against a sunny wall, don't let the soil dry out.

Patio gardening

- Use a mix of trees, shrubs and climbing plants to soften the lines of the patio.
- Containers and hanging baskets allow you periodically to change the design and shape of the garden.
- Consider a single-color flower design for a small patio instead of small splashes of many different colors.
- Plant a variety of foliage, incorporating different heights and textures.

Foam helps alleviate tree roots in sewer

By Gene Gary
Copley News Service

Q. The roots of some large trees in our yard are causing trouble by stopping up the sewer lines. I went to the expense of having a plumber machine-clean the pipe. However, the problem is now recurring after only six months.

I have read about a chemical that you can put down the toilet to prevent this from happening. Have you heard of such a thing? I would appreciate any information, particularly if it can save the expense of again hiring a plumber.

A. A traditional remedy for root-infested sewer pipes is to pour copper sulfate crystals directly down drains.

This product affects the root tips growing in the sewer. However, the results are short-lived. The treatment has to be repeated every three to four months.

Although fairly effective, it is not recommended today and is not available in some areas. One problem is that it inhibits the bacterial action at sewage treatment plants.

The motorized rotating blade used by sewer service companies has been a standard control method for years. It's still the only recourse if the pipes are clogged. But it is not a permanent solution.

But there is a new remedy on the market—a herbicide foam that kills the roots growing into the pipes while leaving the trees above undamaged. The chemicals used are subject to biological breakdown, so they don't cause problems at sewage treatment plants.

Application must be done by professionals. The herbicide is usually guaranteed to keep lines free of roots for a year, but has been known to be effective up to three years.

If your sewer pipes are already clogged, the foam won't work. But once the lines are unclogged, using a sewer rod or cutting tool if necessary, the foam is a good preventive.

For information on professionals in your area who can do this foam treatment, contact Airrigation Engineering, 1620 Oakland Rd., San Jose, CA 95131.

Q. I am in the process of refinishing a piece of furniture that has a dark mahogany stain. I want to lighten the wood but have been unsuccessful with paint and varnish strippers, wood bleaches and sanding. Do you have any recommendations?

A. The two-part (A/B) bleaches found in local hardware and paint stores are the strongest wood bleaches.

ANTIQUES

tions carefully. Wear old clothes, rubber gloves and eye goggles.

The components of the two-part bleach systems are sodium hydroxide (lye) and hydrogen peroxide. Different brands call for different applications. Some brands call for the bleaching agents to be applied to the wood, one after the other. In other applications, the two parts are combined and mixed in a container prior to application. Follow manufacturer instructions carefully.

Another, less caustic wood bleaching agent is oxalic acid, also available through paint and hardware stores. Dissolve oxalic acid crystals in a small amount of water and apply the solution with a paint brush. Be sure that any traces of iron have been removed from the wood prior to using an oxalic acid.

Nail heads or even traces of steel wool will react to the oxalic acid and cause staining on the wood. If these bleaching agents fail to lighten the wood, it is likely that the pigment you are dealing with is chemically inert and will not respond to bleaching.

When using any of these bleaches, it is best to test in a small inconspicuous area to monitor results prior to proceeding.

Q. Please clarify for me the differences in the terms concrete, cement, mortar and grout. Are some of these the same or are they all different products?

A. There is much confusion about these words because people in the construction industry use them interchangeably.

Cement is an ingredient that is used in all of the others — concrete, mortar and grout. Cement is usually portland cement, a kind of cement, not a brand of it. It comes in different quantities, but the usual size is 94 pounds (one cubic foot).

Concrete is cement mixed with gravel or a similar aggregate, sand and water. Mortar is cement mixed with lime, sand and water. Grout is cement mixed with sand and water.

Concrete is the heavy-duty material used for big jobs. Mortar is mostly used for laying bricks. Grout is mixed so that it will flow easily and thus is suitable for filling cracks.

Send inquiries to Here's How, Copley News Service, P.O. Box 190, San Diego, CA 92212-0190. Only questions of general interest can be answered in the column.

Application must be done by professionals. The herbicide is usually guaranteed to keep lines free of roots for a year, but has been known to be effective up to three years.

Mortgage prepayments can save lots of money; farmland as an investment

The product, called The Mortgage Controller, is a system for helping homeowners apply their federally guaranteed "Borrower's Right of Prepayment." It enables homeowners to eliminate thousands or even tens of thousands of dollars in interest, build equity more quickly and dramatically shorten their mortgage term, according to promotional materials.

"Since the biggest part of the average American's total debt load is their home mortgage, our product is the most powerful tool available to help consumers become debt-free faster than they ever thought possible," said Fred Stewart, president of Benefit Marketing Services, Inc., producer of the product.

"For most people, the definition of the American dream is owning a home and saving enough money to be financially independent when retirement time rolls around," he said. "But currently, only 3 out of every 100 Americans achieve that dream."

The product he offers provides the purchaser with a personalized, month-by-month and year-by-year guide for accurately applying the "borrower's right of prepayment" to his or her own home mortgage. The law mandates that a mortgage-holder (lender) must follow certain specific requirements in order to wipe out interest charges for principal payments made in advance, Stewart noted.

"Our product takes all the effort out of the process. If applied properly, it is a foolproof system for assuring precise compliance."

Most people don't stop to think what their mortgage is really costing them. For example, by the time you repay a 30-year, $100,000 mortgage at 9 percent interest, you will have given the bank $289,667. That includes the $100,000 principal repayment plus $189,667 in interest payments.

If a system comes along that can realistically cut that interest cost down substantially, it should be carefully considered. And the concept of doing so with a consistent schedule of prepayments is workable, but it can be accomplished on your own.

Typically, a homeowner can achieve maximum interest cost saving by sending an extra $100 (or whatever amount they can afford at the time) with their regular mortgage payment. But it's important to include a note specifying that the extra payment is to be credited against the current mortgage principal balance only.

It's also important to make reference to the specific principal amount of the mortgage loan, as well as the currently due payment by number.

If this is not specified, the lender could credit the amount against both principal and interest, or against the balance at the end of the mortgage term. Either way, it results in more interest money collected by the lender.

Make the extra payments in the amount and at times when you can afford it. It's often the best of all investments. Now you know how to do it without spending $249.

"The practice of making regular mortgage prepayments is definitely growing," said Laura Berglund, vice president of mortgage banking for a national bank. "Only 5 to 10 percent of our borrowers now practice it, but that portion is steadily rising as people become aware of its money-saving benefits."

Berglund also stressed the importance of enclosing a note instructing the bank precisely what to do with the extra prepayment.

"With or without a note, we always use it to credit the current loan principal balance. But many lenders do not do this without the written instructions."

If you still feel you need the help of The Mortgage Controller and are willing to pay the fee, write: The Mortgage Controller, P.O. Box 986, Edison, NJ 08818-0986.

Q. Is buying farmland a good and sound investment?

A. Here's the opinion Porter J. Martin, a longtime farm broker and investment consultant.

"Today's investors can find high-quality investment opportunities in American farmland. Investors with heavy investments in stocks and bonds should take advantage of the inherent value of farmland and the current market situation to diversify their portfolios."

For specific reasons for his recommendation, Martin points to farmland values that dropped dramatically during the 1980s and are now rising.

"Since the low value point of the correction of the mid-80s, farmland has recovered 50 percent - he noted.

The passage of the North American Free Trade Agreement will further level the playing field in the Americas, providing a boost to agricultural exports and domestic farmland values. Also, the world's population is expected to grow by 3.5 billion in the next 40 years, further enhancing the demand for exported farm products from the United States, Martin said.

Questions may be used in future columns; personal responses should not be expected. Send inquiries to James M. Woodard, Copley News Service, P.O. Box 190, San Diego, CA 92112-0190.

This oak dental cabinet is about 75 years old and would sell for $1,000 or more.

Dental cabinet is crowning find

By Anne McCollam
Copley News Service

Q. We hope you can give us an idea of the value of our oak dental cabinet in the enclosed photo. The base is green marble and the knobs are clear glass.

The original milk glass dividers are still in the small drawers and inside the top section.

We think it is around 75 years old. It has never been refinished and is in beautiful condition.

A. Dental cabinets of the type and quality of yours are frequently used today to store silver flatware. Your estimate of its vintage is accurate. Oak dental cabinets are usually in the $1,000 to $1,500 range and can sometimes go as high as $5,000 in mint condition.

Q. I am curious about a glass plate that I have. It is a light-green iridescent color. There are two peacocks sitting on a fence. Below the peacocks are flowers. The edge of the plate is ruffled and the back is ribbed. It is 9 inches in diameter and in perfect condition. On the bottom of the plate is the letter "N."

Could you please tell me if this is carnival glass and what its value might be?

A. "The Standard Encyclopedia of Carnival Glass" by Bill Edwards shows a plate like yours.

Edwards says, "Often called 'Peacocks on the Fence,' this Northwood pattern typifies what Carnival glass is really all about. An interesting pattern, well molded, and turned out in a variety of appealing colors."

"Warman's Glass" by Ellen Tischbein Schroy lists the value of an ice-green "Peacock on the Fence" plate at $325.

Q. This mark is on the bottom of a porcelain figurine of a whippet dog that I have. The figurine is 8 inches wide by 9 inches high. Could you please tell me its value and vintage?

ANTIQUES

A. The Goldscheider Porcelain and Majolica Factory in Vienna, Austria, produced porcelain, faience, earthenware, and terra-cotta from 1885 to the present.

Following Adolf Hitler's invasion of Vienna, the Goldscheider family fled to the United States. They re-established operations in Trenton, N.J.

After World War II, they founded a pottery in the Staffordshire district in England. In 1950, the Vienna plant was returned to them. The word "Wien" means Vienna.

Your figurine was made sometime in the late 1930s. Its value would probably be about $250 to $275 in good condition.

Q. I have a framed Disney cel from 1939 with stickers of authenticity on the back of the frame. No, they're not signed by Walt. It is of the Ugly Duckling and measures approximately 8 by 6 inches.

Could you please tell me what the cel is worth?

A. Cels are the hand-painted drawings on celluloid that are photographed in sequence to make an animated cartoon.

Those made by Disney are hot collectibles.

"Kovel's Antiques & Collectibles Price List" shows a similar cel of the Ugly Duckling, dated 1939, at $880.

Q. Recently I inherited a "Sunbonnet Babies on Washing Day" cake plate. It is 10-1/4 inches in diameter. On the back of the plate it is marked "Royal Bayreuth." Is it true that the babies names are Molly and Mae?

I'd love to know the value of my cake plate.

A. Sunbonnet Babies Molly and Mae were created in 1902 by Berta L. Corbett, an American artist. She used these charming little figures to illustrate "Sunbonnet Babies Primer" by Eulalie Osgood Grover.

Royal Bayreuth made a complete line of china depicting the babies going about daily chores. The mark you described was used in the early 1900s.

Your plate would probably be worth about $400 in good condition.

BOOK REVIEW

"Belleek: The Complete Collector's Guide & Illustrated Reference, Second Edition" by Richard K. Degenhardt is published by Wallace-Homestead Book Co., an imprint of Chilton Book Co. It is available in antique shops and bookstores for $60.

Degenhardt, the world's foremost authority on Belleek, explains and illustrates in his second edition of "Belleek" how this elegant ware is created.

He chronicles its fascinating history, walks the reader through the manufacturing process, and devotes an entire chapter to the evolution of Belleek marks.

Most of the photographs are in color and a price guide is included for assessing values.

Belleek is not just an excellent reference book, it is also a visual delight. Degenhardt is to be commended for such a superb endeavor.

from Jackson & Perkins are clematis (Mootana Wilsonii), prized for its sweet vanilla fragrance, and climbing rose (Cecile Brunner), a splendid bloomer with canes up to 20 inches long and moderately scented pink flowers.

BEDDING PLANTS

Colorful flower beds are showing up more and more often at parks, public buildings, shopping centers and neighborhoods. Picture these flowers and their brilliant colors, velvety and silky textures and the aromas that fill the air. Chances are most of the flower beds that you see contain annual bedding plants.

Bedding plants are young plants that can be removed individually from their containers and set out as specimens or in group displays for "instant" color. Buying bedding plants allows you to have flowers, vegetables or herbs much earlier than if you had sown the seeds yourself. Also, these plants are usually healthier and fuller with more flowers than homegrown plants.

The special magic of bedding plants is the instant garden they make possible in all climates, plus the advantage of using plant material selected and grown under commercial, controlled greenhouse conditions—all ready for your garden.

The most popular bedding plant varieties are petunias, begonias, impatiens, geraniums, salvia (scarlet sage), marigolds and dianthus (garden pinks). You can purchase these small plants and have a garden in one day.

Many vegetables are offered as bedding plants: tomatoes, peppers, broccoli, cabbage and eggplant. If your growing season is short, transplants allow you to harvest vegetables sooner and for a longer period of time.

Look for plants that are stocky green and healthy; avoid those with shriveled or wilting leaves.

TOMATOES IN TRENCHES

You get strongly rooted plants with either of these two methods

• Place the seedling very deep in the hole, covering all but the few top inches.

• Or if your soil's hard, simply dig a long trench several inches deep, lay the plant in sideways and then bend back so that only a few inches are above ground.

For good luck, add a handful of compost.

Fletcher is one of 150-some freelance artists for Recycled Paper Greetings in Chicago, one of the largest greeting card manufacturers in the world. A freelance artist for about 10 years, Fletcher has worked as an art director for an advertising agency, has produced brochures for Ford Motor Company and will have a 1995 calendar featuring her work released later this year. She is in the process of licensing herself to put her designs on T-shirts and coffee mugs.

"With this sort of income, I can be more involved with my kids," Fletcher said.

Fletcher has a degree in art from the University of Michigan and would like to get back into her mixed media art projects again soon. She's adamant that big walls need big art and she has done her best to fulfill that requirement in her house.

It really didn't take that much nerve to decorate the way she did, Fletcher admits. Her husband Frederick has never doubted her ability, but has been put to work because of Fletcher's endeavors.

"Of course it means a lot of projects for him," she said of her decorating jobs. "I'll tell him I need him to cut this piece of wood—he's the fix-it man."

Fletcher advises do-it-yourself decorators to listen to their homes.

"I think you need to live in a house for awhile and kind of let it talk to you," she said.

Decorating a bathroom isn't that much different than designing a greeting card, Fletcher added.

"It's just bigger," she said. "Rather than working on 5 by 7 card, I have a wall to put my signature on."

New federal tax law will impact the self-employed

If you're self-employed and not sure whether you should grin or grimace at the new tax law, the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants offers the following information to help you decide. Although the majority of laws won't affect your 1993 tax return, the biggest change — an increase in tax rates — is retroactive to the 1993 tax year.

RATES AFFECT THE WEALTHY

The new tax law — the Revenue Reconciliation Act of 1993 — added two new tax rates, effective Jan. 1, 1993. A 36 percent rate applies to taxable incomes that exceed $115,000 for single taxpayers and $140,000 for married couples. In addition, taxpayers face a 39.6 percent tax rate on incomes in excess of $250,000. Because self-employed individuals pay taxes on business income at personal tax rates, some high-earning, self-employed taxpayers may find themselves subject to considerably higher tax rates.

CEILINGS ELIMINATED

Many self-employed individuals in higher tax brackets will also see more of their earnings subject to the Medicare tax. Previously, self-employed taxpayers paid the 2.9 percent Medicare tax only on their first $135,000 of self-employment earnings. Beginning in 1994, the new law eliminates the $135,000 cap on earnings subject to the tax. As a result, self-employed taxpayers will pay the 2.9 percent Medicare tax on all their self-employment income. Since employers share the Medicare tax with employees (each pays 1.45 percent), the elimination of the $135,000 ceiling has a greater impact on the self-employed.

DEDUCTION MAKES A COMEBACK

On the brighter side, the law retroactively reinstates the health insurance deduction for self-employed individuals. Under the prior law, which expired on June 30, 1992, a self-employed individual could generally deduct 25 percent of the premiums paid for health insurance coverage. The new law reinstates the deduction retroactively from July 1, 1992 through Dec. 31, 1993. An amended 1992 return can be filed to claim the 25 percent deduction for the second half of 1992.

BUYING BUSINESS EQUIPMENT

In the past, a business could elect to deduct in one year up to $10,000 of the cost of business equipment in lieu of depreciating the equipment's cost over a period of years. For tax years beginning after Dec. 31, 1992, taxpayers can elect to deduct up to $17,500 of the cost of qualifying assets placed in service during the year. The maximum deduction phases out dollar-for-dollar once the total cost of qualifying property placed in service during the year exceeds $200,000.

EXPENSES TAKE A CUT

Self-employed individuals will see several business deductions cut back or eliminated in 1994. The new law affects a broad range of expenses including business meals and entertainment expenses, club dues, and business travel deductions for family members.

For tax years beginning after Dec. 31, 1993, the deductible portion of allowable business meals and entertainment expenses drops to 50 percent from the current 80 percent. For many self-employed professionals who meet clients in restaurants, reducing the deduction for these expenses will add to the cost of doing business.

Beginning in 1994, no deduction will be allowed for any type of club dues, including business, social, luncheon, athletic, sporting, hotel and air travel clubs, even if the club is principally for business-related activities. However, you may deduct business expenses for meals and entertainment that occur at such clubs to the extent that they otherwise qualify as a business deduction.

The new law also imposes tougher limits on deducting travel expenses for family members who accompany you on a business trip. Prior to the new law, a self-employed taxpayer could deduct a family member's travel expenses if there was a bona fide business purpose for taking the person along. However, beginning in 1994, Congress has added another requirement: You can deduct the travel expenses of a spouse or dependent only if that person is your bona fide employee.

CPAs suggest that you thoroughly understand how the changes affect you and your business. Make the time now to determine how you can minimize the tax law's impact on your business income and, if necessary, seek the assistance of a CPA.

OH Holy St. Jude, Apostle and Martyr, near Kinsman of Jesus Christ, faithful intercessor to all who invoke your special patronage in time of need. To you I have recourse from the depth of my heart, and humbly beg to who God has given such great power to come to my assistance. Help me in my present and urgent petition, in return I promise to publish a Novena and make your name known. 3 Our Fathers, 3 Hail Marys, 3 Glories, LB.

PRAYER to the Holy Spirit. Holy Spirit, you who make me see everything and who showed me the way to reach my ideal. You who gave me the divine gift to forgive and forget the wrong that is done to me and who are in all instances of my life with me. I in this short dialogue want to thank you for everything and confirm once more that I never want to be separated from you no matter how great the material desires may be. I want to be with you and my loved ones in your perpetual glory. Amen. Thank you for your love towards me and my loved ones. Say for 3 consecutive days without mentioning your petition and your prayer will be answered. Promise to publish this prayer. Also wish to thank Blessed Mother, St. Joseph and St. Jude. LB.

REMEMBER, oh most precious Virgin Mary, that never was it known that anyone who fled to thy protection, implored thy help and sought thy intercession, was left undeserved. Inspired with this confidence, I fly on to thy, oh Virgin of Virgins, my mother, to be I come. Before the I stand sinful and sorrowful. Oh mother of the word incarnate! Dispel my pettiness, but in thy mercy, hear and answer me. Amen. LB

CAROL WILKOP, DDS

Kids like candy more than toothbrushes, but Dentist Carol Wilkop always gives the latter.

Wilkop gave away toothbrushes during Milford's Halloween festival, where she also gave free certificates for cleaning and check-ups. As a mom — her daughter, Lauren, is 5 — she thinks kids deserve a little more time and patience.

"I particularly enjoy working with children," Wilkop said. "I almost became a school teacher, because I enjoy working with children so much."

Each year, Wilkop goes to Huron Valley Schools, where she has given workshops to about 3,000 children in the past five years. In February, which is Children's Dental Health Month, she formulated a workshop for preschoolers and kindergartners.

Wilkop, a dentist for 11 years, provides a comfortable and relaxing dental office at 342 N. Main St. in Milford. She was a pharmacist, prior to becoming a dentist. And though she no longer dispenses medicines, she continues to hold her pharmacy degree. Wilkop also continues her education in dentistry.

"We do lots of continuing education in this office," Wilkop said. "Medical technology is developing so rapidly."

She is also a member of Zonta, a nation-wide women's service organization that promotes women in business.

PHYLLIS MOTLEY/HURON VALLEY AREA CHAMBER of COMMERCE

As a former Milford Village Council member and current secretary of the Huron Valley Area Chamber of Commerce, Phyllis Motley is always in the know.

Motley has lived in the village more than 40 years, and is active in the business community.

She has served the chamber eight years. She also served U.S. Congressman William Broomfield, prior to his retiring.

The chamber, at 206 E. Liberty St., serves the business, professional and residential community.

The chamber has evolved into three divisions: the Highland Business Association; the Milford Business Association; and the White Lake Business Association.

"In February, these three divisions and the Chamber of Commerce held the First Annual Expo '94," Motley said. "This was a tremendous success, and plans are under way for Expo '95."

The chamber also sponsors the Milford Ice Spectacular and the Milford Memories Summer Festival. Each year, it gives scholarships to high school business students, presents the Citizen-of-the-Year award, gives building improvement awards, provides a golf league, and delivers the President's Christmas Dinner Dance.

MONA HEMMERLING-RUGGER/POLISHED OUTLOOK

On the cutting edge of the hair care world, Mona Hemmerling-Rugger is also pampering customers with her skin care and cosmetics line and provoking them on her cable television show.

Polished Outlook Inc., 325 S. Main St. in Milford, features a full-service salon that specializes in personal service.

"We don't touch a client until we have consulted with them," Rugger said. "It's personalized service geared to each individual."

As an educator, Rugger holds seminars to teach professional advanced hair care and makeup. Her work has taken her around the world, training the Russian Olympic hair dressing team in 1992 and working with hair dressers at the 1992 World Championships in Japan.

She also produces and hosts her own cable television show, "A Polished Outlook With Mona." The show has been on public access channels in Oakland, Wayne and Washtenaw counties for a year.

Rugger's show features her special-made line of skin care and cosmetics that are aloe-based and fragrance-free. Her products are approved by acne clinics, ophthalmologists and dermatologists. Her guests come from all walks of life.

She credits her staff for the success of Polished Outlook.

Women in the Know

"Women in the Know" marks the first time that we here at HomeTown Newspapers have honored the rapidly growing number of women in the workplace with their very own publication.

We don't have to look far to realize how important women are to business and the economy. Here at HomeTown, better than 65 percent of our employees are women - and without their significant contributions, there would be no HomeTown Newspapers.

We're rather proud of this section, and hope you enjoy reading it as much as we did putting it together.

We suspect that we have missed some women who would have liked to have been a part of this section. If you're a "women in the know," or if you're a male business owner who would like to pay tribute to some of the women who help make your company prosper, give us a call and make arrangements to be part of the next one.

Finally, a special thanks to John Colone of Colone Chrysler - Plymouth - Dodge - Jeep - Eagle in downtown Pinckney. "Women in the Know" was his idea - and it was a good one.

WYNONA ALLEN/RED APPLE BOOK TRADER and COMIC SHOPPE

Wynona Allen considers herself part of a definite minority.

"It is kind of unusual for a woman to be in the comic business, especially a woman on her own," said Allen, owner of the Red Apple Book Trader and Comic Shoppe in New Hudson. "It does tend to be more of a male-dominated media."

She didn't have any real plans to get into the business, and instead acknowledges it was "completely an accident."

She and now-husband Dean Brisbois had intended to open a resale shop in the basement of the building Brisbois owned. Allen, with her education in medical technology, was only looking for something temporary since she had found herself without a job.

But about a month before the resale shop was to open, a series of events fell into place that swayed her to the idea of a book shop, and thus Red Apple was born.

Allen said she's thought about getting out of what was to be a temporary job, but now she finds she's attached to it. "It's sort of like a child; it didn't exist before you created it," she said.

She said she enjoys the variety of people who read comics, from young children to older hobbyists, but she wishes more people would take them seriously.

"They're not all junk and fluff," Allen said. "I don't think you should discourage kids from reading anything. The more you read, the better reader you become."

CAMILLE SHELLEY/KEARY'S FAMILY SAUNA and HOT TUBS

Camille Shelley is the owner and masseuse at Keary's Family Sauna and Hot Tubs located at 2757 Wardlow Road in Highland Township.

While Keary's has a primary focus on rental of private rooms for couples and families, since she took over the Sauna nine years ago, Camille has also been giving massages there and at local beauty salons.

With more than 20 years of experience, Camille feels that the benefits of a sauna to soften the muscles and open the capillaries cannot be achieved working elsewhere. A massage package for couples is a feature at Keary's which Camille is especially pleased to offer.

Few other places offer such a total stress relieving getaway. A couple can enjoy a private hot tub together followed by massages, and of course, the sauna. Another stress relieving feature at Keary's is the philosophy that a getaway need not stress your pocketbook.

SUE MORAN RAYMOND and FRAN KURTZROCK/FLOWERS & MORE

Sue Moran Raymond had 12 years experience in the floral industry but no plans to open her own shop, until her then-future husband, Greg, and brother-in-law, Bob, came to her with an itch to invest.

Flowers & More opened in the Novi Town Center in October 1989 and is a full service floral shop with gift items. Custom orders for home decorating are also available.

"It is very rewarding and we have a very good crew of 10," Sue said. "Our success is based on hard work and team effort. Customers should be treated as special. They don't have to shop here, they choose to."

Fran Kurtzrock became the store manager in September 1993 and brought with her 20 years of experience.

"My specialty is weddings, parties and interior design," said Fran. "I've been up to Mackinac Island and down to Palm Beach to design, coordinate and set-up for weddings."

"I go in-home to accessorize, not just with flowers, but candlesticks, accent tables, whatever the customer needs to finish the room."

Closer to home, Fran travels to give demonstrations and lectures on "The Psychology of Flowers" at the Southeastern Michigan Nurses Association or to the Grand Blanc Museum for a lecture on "The History of Flowers."

Flowers & More is located in the Novi Town Center, 43268 Eleven Mile Road, 347-6644.

JULIA BINDIG/LAFONTAINE GMC/CADILLAC/PONTIAC

Her aggressive style is pushing her up the ladder of success at LaFontaine GMC/Cadillac/Pontiac, 2530 E. Highland Road.

Julia Bindig, 28, started her career at 15, working as a cashier at a Metro Detroit car dealership. She worked at several dealerships before finding the "family" atmosphere at LaFontaine as a biller in 1987. Her hard work earned her promotions to bookkeeper in 1988 and administrator in 1989.

Bindig has been assistant sales manager at LaFontaine since last August, and enjoys the versatility of her work. She keeps the sales staff informed of new factory-to-dealer incentives, rebate and bonus programs and handles dealer trades. And last summer she completed a course in customer satisfaction.

"It's a very family-oriented business," Bindig said.

Bindig said Mike and Maureen LaFontaine, the owners of the dealership, inspire a family atmosphere for their employees. She said the LaFontaines are also committed to their customers and extend courtesy, service and professionalism to keep customers coming back.

ANN FREUND/TANGLEWOOD GOLF COURSE

If you're looking for championship golf in South Lyon, you'll wind up calling Tanglewood Golf Course. If you're looking to use the course's attractive facilities for anything besides golfing, you'll wind up talking to Ann Freund.

As the clubhouse manager, Freund concentrates on the food and beverage end of the business. In addition, she books and runs weddings, banquets, graduation and birthday parties.

"The most satisfying part of my job is the weddings," Freund said. "We do some from start to finish. We've had weddings performed out back by the pond and on the back patio, and then we have the reception right there."

"Weddings get emotional and you get emotionally involved. Everybody's wedding is different; they are highly individual, personal and unique."

Freund came to the position from a general business background that included accounting and real estate. When those endeavors began to slow down three years ago, her brothers recruited her into the family business.

Bob and Ken Freund run the day-to-day operations at Tanglewood, located at 53503 West Ten Mile. They and Luke Freund, a silent owner, invited her to join them at the South Lyon golf course.

"It's different," Freund said. "It's a challenge; every day I hit the ground running."

BARBARA HERZOG and SANDRA JENKINS/HEALTHSTYLES PHYSICAL REHABILITATION

Healthstyles Physical Rehabilitation is still a relatively new name in South Lyon, but the women behind it have several years of experience in physical therapy.

Barbara Herzog and Sandra Jenkins started a home-based agency in 1987 to provide contract arrangements for both short- and long-term therapy. In starting the agency, they were both business owners and working physical therapists.

In 1988, the pair opened an outpatient clinic in Taylor. They decided to move the clinic to South Lyon in 1992 because of an interest in the small-town setting.

"The town has been very welcoming and our business has continually grown," Herzog said.

They continue to operate the contract agency.

Jenkins completed her bachelor of science degree in physical therapy at University of Michigan. Herzog earned her bachelor of arts degree in physical therapy at the College of St. Scholastica in Duluth, Minn.

Herzog said she's happy to be a resident of South Lyon, and, while Jenkins lives in Livonia, she's harbored the idea of looking for a home someplace in town.

BEVERLY E. NEAL/PHILLIPS FUNERAL HOME

Beverly E. Neal isn't a psychologist, but she helps counsel many people through difficult times.

As director and manager of Phillips Funeral Home in South Lyon, she is known for her thoughtfulness and caring. Many times families have returned to thank her.

"I've had people say, 'I can't tell you how much I appreciate what you've done,'" Neal said. "You're getting them through that difficult time, and that's where my job satisfaction comes from."

Neal has been in funeral service since 1974, working for funeral homes in Plymouth and Brighton. She has been director of Phillips Funeral Home one year.

"This is a family-oriented funeral home," Neal said. "It really considers family values and stresses meeting the family's needs."

Phillips Funeral Home was established in 1889 and its current owner, Evelyn R. Phillips, is the widow of the fourth generation of her family to own the home.

Neal received her bachelor's of business degree from Eastern Michigan University in 1978, and earned her mortuary science certificate from Wayne State University in 1979.

In past years, she has been an active Civitan member and is the mother of two children, Jeffrey Jr., 8, and Heather, 3.

GRACE HAMMERS/LAFONTAINE PONTIAC/CADILLAC/GMC

After 15 years of books and numbers, Grace Hammers embarked on a new career and she's not looking back.

Hammers is a sales consultant at LaFontaine Pontiac/Cadillac/GMC, joining the dealership's staff last November. She brings with her three years of car selling experience from a Metro Detroit dealership.

"It's more like a family atmosphere than a business atmosphere," Hammers said of LaFontaine, 2530 E. Highland Road. "The showroom looks more like your living room than a car lot."

Prior to her new career, Hammers had spent 15 years as an office manager and a bookkeeper. But the work wore thin.

"I wanted something more people-oriented; I was tired of looking at books and numbers all day," Hammers said. "I decided I was a people-person, not a paper-person."

Hammers said she is impressed with the professionalism and motivation of the LaFontaine staff. Unlike some other dealerships, she said, the staff works together to serve the customer. If a sales consultant is busy with more than one customer, another consultant will assist.

"We're very customer-oriented," Hammers said. "Everybody helps everybody please the customer. It makes the customer feel very much at home, and not intimidated by any means."

LINDA FOWKES/SUNAIRE WINDOWS

Linda Fowkes keeps her family on the go.

As office manager of Sunaire Windows at 7936 Boardwalk Road she keeps the family's vinyl window frame shop competitive. Her father-in-law, Jim Fowkes, opened the shop 20 years ago. It's owned by Linda's husband, Mark. Linda offered part-time help to the family shop eight years ago, but her tasks grew.

"I volunteered to do some paperwork and it kept growing," she said. "Now I have a desk, a computer and do the whole bit."

Linda Fowkes is also a mother of three daughters: Emily, 16; Kati, 13; and Nellie, 5. And Nellie goes to work with Fowkes everyday.

"It's fun," Fowkes said of her young helper. "She's been here since she was two weeks old. The girls (Emily and Kati) worked here last summer and will probably work here this summer, too."

Keeping with family tradition, her brother-in-law, Ron Fowkes, is the shop's salesperson.

Nearly family, Lyne Nelson has been making the vinyl-framed windows in Sunaire's shop for eight years. She is also a mom of two children: Ken Nelson, 19, and Jennifer, 21.

Sunaire's installation crew, Scot Rooker of South Lyon and Kirk Miller of Livonia, also have worked for the family company eight years.

ELLEN LARKINS/SOUTH LYON PLUMBING & SUPPLY

When Ellen Larkins moved to South Lyon six years ago, it didn't take her long to fall in love with the area.

Larkins, along with her husband, Steve, decided to go into business in South Lyon. Since they already owned Cross Plumbing in Detroit, the focus of their business choice was obvious.

South Lyon Plumbing and Supply, located at 21001 Pontiac Trail, has been open for two years and Larkin is happy with the project.

"Business is moving along," Larkins said. "Every month is a better month than the one before. We're just getting our name out there."

"I like being close to home. I like the people, and we can relate one-on-one. I know most of them personally, either through schools or friends or stuff like that."

South Lyon Plumbing and Supply focuses on service and individualized attention. Because of this, Larkins feels the store is excellent for female customers.

"We get a lot of contractors and handymen, but we have a lot of vanity things, like tubs and such," Larkins said. "We take time with the women — they're the ones who have to live with the plumbing — the men fix it."

ELIZABETH CLANCY/ELIZABETH'S BRIDAL SALON

"I was looking for some extra work," recalls Elizabeth Clancy, "when I met a couple in town for the weekend to sell 1,000 bridal gowns. I sold two out of three gowns and they said I was a natural. I found out I loved it."

Clancy soon began selling gowns on consignment in her home and discovered, "People like coming into a home to purchase their gowns, but where I lived you couldn't operate a business from your home."

Elizabeth's Bridal Salon opened in 1990 in an old home Clancy and her partner Alan Brown converted into a charming European salon, with an addition to begin soon.

"My passion is decorating," explained Clancy, who has a varied background in design. "Now I'm decorating the body. I have an eye for perspective and proportion, for finding the right head piece and the right neckline, for minimizing the large and elongating the short."

Clancy graduated from Madonna University with honors, and is a member of the Northville Chamber of Commerce and the Bridal Marketing Association of America. She is also very active in the community, sponsoring a horse and carriage for the Victorian Festival and loaning dresses and tiaras to the festival queen. She also loans or donates dresses to local theaters and high schools.

Elizabeth's Bridal Salon is located in Northville at 402 S. Main Street, 348-2783.

NANCY RADEMACHER/HOMES, INC.

Nancy Rademacher, a licensed broker with Homes, Inc. of Hartland, derives great satisfaction in the role she plays helping her clients achieve their goal of finding a new home.

A lifelong resident of Livingston County and voted Realtor of the Year in 1992, Rademacher began her career in real estate sales working at her mother's real estate business in 1983. She continued to work with her mother until 1989 when her mother died unexpectedly. After her mother's death, Rademacher, then a licensed broker, joined Homes, Inc.

Rademacher's philosophy as a broker is to treat her clients the way she likes to be treated. She describes her approach as "very relaxed and very laid back," which Rademacher says, has helped her achieve the many successes she has had.

Rademacher is also involved in new construction — a totally different process, she says. Helping her clients select a builder, Rademacher guides them through the process, "calming apprehensive customers" and "reassuring them it can be a fun experience."

Rademacher and her husband Thomas, also a Realtor, are the project coordinators of the San Marino subdivision development and are involved with the Hills of Tyrone subdivision development as well.

Homes, Inc., 11518 E. Highland, Hartland, 632-5050.

BRIGID LYNCH/LYNCH & SONS FUNERAL DIRECTORS

Brigid B. Lynch is the director of Pre-Need and Aftercare Services for Lynch & Sons Funeral Directors in Milford and also serves at the firm's other locations in Clawson, Walled Lake and Plymouth.

"Working with people at this most difficult time is a challenge," Brigid said of her work. "Knowing you can help in an otherwise helpless situation is very fulfilling."

A graduate of Marian High School in 1982 and Michigan State University in 1986, Brigid had established her career in Personnel Management before her brothers, who operate the largest family-owned funeral service company in Michigan, recruited her for the family business.

Changes in the pre-need funding laws and increased consumer interest in funeral pre-planning keep Ms. Lynch busy.

Additionally, the expanded role of the funeral home in providing bereavement support and referral services has motivated her to return to school where she is finishing her master's degree in counseling.

"Brigid is a true professional," said her brother, Tom Lynch. "She cares about people and it shows."

VALERIE HAMBLETON/WILLIAM ALLAN ACADEMY

Seventeen years ago Valerie Hambleton's desire to "maximize career and motherhood" culminated in the opening of the William Allan Academy in Northville. "I wanted to incorporate my own children without diminishing my time with them," she said of her business decision.

Today, Hambleton has a staff of 13 full- and part-time employees. Students usually range from pre-school to grade five, although this year the fourth grade is the graduating class.

"We are an academically-oriented school," she remarked. "Our reading and math classes are grouped according to ability but all other subjects are taught to students by grade." Computers and Spanish are standard courses for students starting in kindergarten.

A teacher by profession, Hambleton taught in England before coming to the United States 24 years ago. She decided to become a citizen 11 years ago "because this country has given me an opportunity to do what I really wanted to do. It is still very much the land of opportunity if you're willing to work hard."

Hambleton is a member of the Northville Chamber of Commerce. She has received Northville's Special Recognition Award, the Township's Beautification Award in 1989 and several awards from the Soccer Association.

William Allan Academy is located in Northville at 49875 West Eight Mile Road, 349-5020.

SHERI HOWELL/LAFONTAINE GMC/CADILLAC/PONTIAC

Sheri Howell believes satisfied customers are the heart of her success.

With nearly 10 years auto sales experience, Howell adds a personal touch to keep customers coming back to LaFontaine GMC/Cadillac/Pontiac, 2530 E. Highland Road.

"I think people like a personal touch," Howell said. "I don't think people like a pushy salesperson. A high-pressure salesman is only working for his benefit instead of working to benefit you."

At many car dealerships, Howell said, customers are passed from a salesperson to a score of managers before driving away with a new car. At LaFontaine, Howell handles a sale from start to finish, and car buyers keep coming back for that service.

"I'm truly blessed with the most wonderful customers," Howell said. "Most are referrals or repeat customers. Anybody can sell you a car once, but when they come back you know you can take pride in your work."

Howell is a mother of four daughters: Amber, 18; Alsha, 17; Alysia, 13; and Jennifer, 2. Howell said she bought a house five minutes from work, because she plans to stay at LaFontaine.

"I'm real proud to work here," she said.

KAY CROUSE/SECRETARIAL SOLUTIONS

"I decided to do for myself what I had been doing for the businesses I had worked for during my varied secretarial career," said Kay Crouse of her decision to open Secretarial Solutions in Novi six years ago.

"I would walk into a business and get them organized, because I'm an organized person myself."

So now Crouse and her staff of three assist businesses and individuals with projects ranging from the simplest letter to the desktop published technical manual. "We also have the finest answering service in the area," said Kay.

"I like the challenge of a new project walking in the door," said Kay, whose clients start as small as "a one-man landscaper working out of his truck" to large firms.

Kay is a member of the Novi Chamber of Commerce, the United States Chamber of Commerce and the National Association of Secretarial Services (NASS). She is involved in an externship program with a vocational school in Walled Lake.

"We get two or three girls working in our office for three weeks once a year to fulfill a requirement for their office class at the school."

Secretarial Solutions is located at 42240 Grand River, Novi, 344-0098.

LISA VANDERHOOF/VANDERHOOF AGENCY, ALLSTATE INSURANCE

"We at the Vanderhoof Agency stand for professionalism, integrity and excellent customer service," said Lisa Vanderhoof, agency owner.

"We want the community to view us as a resource for insurance needs, a friendly place to conduct business and a place where they can expect a competitive price for a top-of-the-line product. We want our customers to view us as knowledgeable, courteous, professional, fair and concerned about their insurance needs.

"I receive a lot of calls from women who find me in the yellow pages. Some of them are on their own for the first time in years, due to growing up and leaving home, divorce or death of a spouse. They start out by being embarrassed for knowing little about insurance and end up thanking me for taking the time to explain it in a way that's understandable.

"We like to provide all our customers with the information they need to make decisions regarding their insurance needs."

A graduate of Michigan State University, Vanderhoof was an Allstate agent for 16 years. She opened her own agency in South Lyon on Jan. 4, 1993.

The Vanderhoof Agency is located at 22322 Pontiac Trail in South Lyon, 486-2800.

DIANE WISE/BABY BABY

Before opening Baby Baby, Diane Wise had no previous business experience, only the personal experience of watching her young daughter outgrow her clothes almost as fast as she could earn the money to pay for them.

"Northville could use a children's resale shop," she decided. So, in 1989, Baby Baby opened.

Baby Baby carries children's clothes from infant size to juniors as well as maternity clothes. The store also maintains a calling list for customers looking for special items.

"We rent special occasion maternity clothes and have expanded into professional and casual maternity wear for sale," she added.

"Price comparison is important when considering a resale shop," Wise believes. "A 'Pea in the Pod' dress may retail for $160, but one that's been worn only three times and is like new is available here for just $32."

Wise has lived in Northville for 10 years, but owning her own shop has made her "feel like I belong in Northville." She now has three employees and 3,500 consignors. After two months, unsold items are donated to Civic Concern or the Pregnancy Outreach Program.

Baby Baby was voted Best Children's Consignment Shop in 1991 by Metro Parent Magazine.

Baby Baby, 144 Alexander Court in Northville, 347-2229, is open Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., Thursday from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m.

MARGO KRAMAR/MARGO'S of NORTHVILLE

Margo's now has eight stylists, two manicurists and one facial specialist and offers advanced hair, nail and skin care treatments.

"The joy of learning is a lifelong experience, and the role of a cosmetologist is in perpetual change," said Kramar. "I'm always striving for perfection of my own creative talents." She and her staff attend over 100 hours of advanced training programs "in order to service our fashion-conscious clientele and encompass current techniques."

Kramar has received certificates in cosmetology, management and hairstyling. She was recently on Kelly & Co. with makeup artist Jeffrey Bruce.

Kramar gives back to the community through her affiliation with the Partners in Education with Cooke Middle School program and through Tivoli Fair.

Margo's of Northville, 141 E. Cady, Northville, 348-9130, is open Monday through Saturday 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings til 8 p.m.

BERNICE ROGINSKI/COLDWELL BANKER-NOLING

Bernice Roginski's brother gave her some gentle teasing when she decided in the 1960s to go into real estate.

"He said, 'women in real estate are a different breed of cat. They're tough,'" recalls Roginski, owner of South Lyon's Coldwell Banker Noling.

Her brother, also in the business, knew what he was talking about — Roginski is tough.

She started out in real estate in 1968 in Plymouth and has been active in South Lyon since 1971. When she lost her hearing in 1980, Roginski says she simply wouldn't allow it to keep her from doing what she loves.

"It's a challenge, but it's not bad," Roginski said.

When the Detroit Free Press did a story on her in October, the reporter informed Roginski that she is the only deaf broker in the country.

Although one big speedbump is her inability to use the telephone to talk to clients, Roginski has made adjustments in other areas.

She shyed away from sign language, and instead opted to learn to read lips so she could converse with people in the office.

"I've never learned to sign because nobody else does," Roginski said. "I'd be talking to myself."

And she diversified her interests — she's also involved in Noling Land Development and Tim Kourt Building — to make sure she stayed active.

"I enjoy real estate," Roginski said. "I've always said if you do what you like to do, and do it the best you can, you'll always be a success."

BECKY McLAUCHLAN/MILFORD TRAVEL SERVICE

Becky McLauchlan knows her way the world over.

She's travelled to England, Spain, Scotland, Hawaii and other enchanted places. Now, she is helping others experience the world as manager of Milford Travel Service at 411 N. Main St. in Milford.

McLauchlan returned to the workforce eight years ago, after sending her two daughters, Kimberly, 29, and Wendy, 26, off to college.

After courses at Colin Halsey Travel School in Ann Arbor in 1986, McLauchlan worked at Brighton Travel. With seven years' experience she was promoted to manage the company's Milford office one year ago.

McLauchlan said she likes being back in the workforce, but she also found great satisfaction in being a mom.

"A lot of people would say they learned to be independent, but I always felt independent," McLauchlan said. "I never felt held back by my children."

Traveling with Jack, McLauchlan's husband of 31 years, helped prepare her for her career. And in helping someone plan a trip, she gives personal insight to places many people have only read about.

"We hope to offer more personal service," she said. "We try to be friendly, and our office has many years of experience as travel professionals."

LISA SHAPIRO, JODI PERIAN and EDNA BURG/CENTER STAGE DANCE COMPANY

Lisa Shapiro and co-owner, Edna Burg, moved the Center Stage Dance Company to Northville in 1992. "The Walled Lake building wasn't expandable and I found the perfect building in downtown Northville," Shapiro said.

Burg, Shapiro's mother, handles the administrative work, while Shapiro concentrates on teaching and managing the staff of four teachers and three apprentices.

"The Apprentice Program is a nice way to give older students responsibility and show them how a business is run," explained Shapiro. "They also earn credits towards their own classes."

Shapiro met Jodi Perian at a master's tap class both were taking in 1989, and in 1990 asked her to join the business. "I always wanted to own a business, teach and dance," said Perian. "This was a perfect opportunity to have all three of my dreams come true."

"Our emphasis is on technique and entertainment, not competition," Shapiro said. Performances in the near future include shows at the Cobo Hall Bulder's Show in March, the Detroit Zoo in April, a presentation of "Cinderella" at Novi High School on April 24, the Fourth of July Parade, and the Sidewalk Sale.

Center Stage Dance Company is located in Northville at 135 E. Cady Street, 380-1666.

NANCY SMITH/WIND RIVER GALLERY

When her husband, Tim, asked her to run Wind River Gallery, located at 400 N. Main St. in downtown Milford, Nancy Smith was wary of the new career. But she quickly developed a passion for it.

"The thing I enjoy most about this place is the customers," Smith said. "We try to give real personal attention to each customer. We want each person who comes in here to be completely satisfied."

Smith graduated from Wayne State University in 1975 with a bachelor's degree in nursing. She worked five years as a registered nurse.

But Smith left nursing to start a family. And now, Smith's schedule is full, managing a business and raising Lauren, 13; Nina, 10; and Karly, 6.

The Smiths opened the Wind River Gallery in 1989, but Nancy took over as manager in January 1992.

"I definitely learned on the job," Smith said.

She purchases collectables, limited edition prints, paintings, posters, ready-made frames and invites artists to display their work on consignment.

The Smiths have also moved their framing shop from Wixom to their store on Main Street in Milford. People may watch their frames being put together on site.

SHERRY GORMAN and SUE AYERS/CONSIGNMENT CLOTHIERS

Sherry Gorman's desire for designer business suits at affordable prices led her to open Consignment Clothiers at 42947 West Seven Mile in Northville in May of 1989.

One year later, Sue Ayers became co-owner of the upscale designer resale shop, which is open seven days a week. The shop carries designer women's clothes in all sizes and children's clothes up to size 14.

"We also buy new items from boutiques in West Bloomfield and Birmingham and jewelry from liquidation sales," said Ayers. Free house calls, up-front payment or consignment, and a customer "wish list" are all services offered to cater to a clientele which is "increasing every year due to the popularity of recycling."

Recycling doesn't stop with the customer. All unsold, unclaimed items are donated to the Sarah Fisher Home and the St. Vincent DePaul Society.

"We'd been thinking about opening a household resale shop for a long time and when the shop next door became vacant we were given an offer we couldn't refuse, as they say," explained Ayers.

Consignment Clothiers is located at 42947 West Seven Mile in Northville, 347-4570.

KRISTIN GOEBEL and CONNIE ASHBURN/DISCOVERY TOYS

Kristin Goebel and Connie Ashburn aren't toying around with their business, but they're spending a lot more time with their families.

The pair sell Discovery Toys, an educational, non-violent line of children's books, toys and games. The toys promote self-esteem and decision-making and provide quality family time.

Ashburn was a director at a computer company two years ago when Goebel encouraged her to market the toys. Ashburn wanted to spend more time with her family.

"This allows me to help out at school, meet a friend for lunch, and be here when my kids get home from school," said Goebel, a mother of three.

Discovery Toys recently sent Goebel and Ashburn and their husbands on an all-expense paid trip to Hong Kong. The company also has given them incentive trips to Cancun, Mexico, and to Hawaii, twice.

The two hold demonstrations in homes, hospitals, schools, day care centers, and for corporations.

"We are a network marketing company so we're always looking for other women who are interested in their own Discovery Toys home-based business," Goebel said.

Call Kristin Goebel at 684-6604 or Connie Ashburn at 363-5760.

CAROL SAWYER/HEIN SIGHT OPTICAL

Carol Sawyer is looking ahead at Hein Sight Optical, 304 W. Commerce Road in Milford.

Hein Sight Optical is planning to expand its services and hours, because of continued increases in business. Sawyer, a certified and licensed optician, said the success of the optical center is due to the personal attention that she and her fellow opticians give customers.

"Whenever anyone comes in here there is always an optician available," said Sawyer, who has 15 years experience.

"We process the glasses on site and have a large variety of frames," Sawyer added. "And most prescriptions are available within 24 hours."

She said her career challenges her technical and people skills. But meeting new people is her favorite part of the job. Recently she made glasses for two girls visiting from Siberia, Russia. And she also makes glasses for a family of missionaries in Turkey. She mailed a new pair to them last week.

"We have a wide patient base," Sawyer said.

Sawyer is also a licensed cosmetologist.

"That extra training helps with the job," Sawyer said. "Being a licensed cosmetologist helps with the fitting of glasses — helping you know what would look cosmetically correct."

JEANNE JONES/BRIGHTON HONDA-MAZDA

Jeanne Jones has a unique distinction. As the owner of Brighton Honda/Mazda, located at 8704 W. Grand River in Brighton, she is the only woman auto dealer in Livingston County.

It's only natural that Jones should be in the auto business; she comes from an automotive family. Her uncle and father own Audette Cadillac in West Bloomfield, where she worked for five years before moving on to sell Toyotas for two years.

After that, Jones was recruited by Tom Bohlander, her partner and owner of Sunshine Honda in Plymouth. It was in June of 1991 that Jones decided to open Brighton Honda. Now, almost three years later, Brighton Honda has become Brighton Honda/Mazda and experienced phenomenal growth.

The key to success, says Jones, is good products and good service, boasting that in three years she has had only one customer she has not been able to please. "When you have a very high quality product and a fabulous service department, you are bound to be successful," she says.

Jones has been nominated by the Detroit Auto Dealers for Sports Illustrated's All-Star Dealer recognition. She also serves on the board of directors of the Detroit Auto Dealers and has worked on many benefits for charitable causes, including the charity preview of the North American Auto Show in Detroit which raised over $1 million.

Jones' hobbies include skiing, rollerblading and raising her three children.

CHARLIE PATRICOLER and CAROL EVANS/CRAFT VILLAGE

Charlie Patricoler's career path took her from computer programmer to outside sales representative before coming to a fork in the road a year and a half ago.

Faced with early retirement or relocation to California and more direct sales, Patricoler took early retirement and decided to rent space from Craft Village in Rochester to do her dried floral crafts.

When Craft Village investors began talking about a Northville store, Charlie was there.

"I love start-up and getting things in place, systems and people," she said of her decision to become store manager for Craft Village. She is now an investor and vice president in charge of marketing and promotions for the three Craft Village stores located in Rochester, Commerce and Northville.

Carol Evans, who took over as store manager after Patricoler was promoted, has been with Craft Village since it opened one year ago and is one of 60 crafters who rent space. "I fell into crafting when my son needed something homemade for the Christmas store at school," she said.

She now cross stitches "everything from clocks to pictures to clothing."

How does being a crafter compare to her previous management career in accounting? "It is very different working with crafty and artistic people," said Evans.

Craft Village is located in Northville at 100 MainCentre, 347-4639.

LISA WILLARD/SOUTH LYON CHAMBER of COMMERCE

After nearly a year as executive administrator of the South Lyon Chamber of Commerce, Lisa Willard recognizes the growing potential of the community.

"It's exciting to be in a growing community and part of a chamber with new ideas," Willard said. "Another reason I like this job so much is that it's full of diversity."

Willard said 47 new members have joined the chamber since she took her post last August. She believes the 165 members of the chamber are enthusiastic business and community leaders and expects the chamber's roster to continue to grow.

The chamber is a clearing house of business and community information, and its members plan activities and special events for the community and its entrepreneurs. Its members foster growth, retention and stability within the business community. The SCORE program (Service Corps of Retired Executives), offered by the chamber office, helps local small business owners move toward greater profitability through better management.

As part of her job, Willard publishes a monthly newsletter for chamber members and writes a column in The South Lyon Herald.

MARILYN KELLEPOUREY and ANDREA CHAPIN/CHAPIN & KELLEPOUREY MANAGED CARE CONSULTANTS

Marilyn Kellepourey and Andrea Chapin have traded in the starched-white traditional nurse's image for an office environment that requires the usual patience, but no patients.

The pair operates Chapin & Kellepourey Managed Care Consultants of Fenton, working out of their respective homes. The bulk of their business is spent using a combined 32 years of experience to, among other things, coordinate health care needs for clients injured in accidents where insurance comes into play.

"Obviously we look at it from a cost-containment point of view for the insurance company, but we're patient advocates, too," Marilyn said.

In just under two years, Chapin & Kellepourey have doubled their business after striking out on their own. Aside from their medical expertise, the partnership they share is one of their greatest assets.

"We complement each other," Andrea said. "Each of us has a different outlook, a different viewpoint on things. We also have different skills that complement each other."

JEAN ROONEY/FRIENDS, INC.

Opening Friends Inc. two years ago was "always my dream," said Jean Rooney. "I would see unique things when on buying trips for customers, but had no clients for them and had always thought if I had a store I could buy contemporary things and eventually sell them to a customer who came into the store."

Rooney had always designed for friends and lawyers when she was a legal secretary but discovered she "liked doing it a lot better than filing papers with the court." She opened a design studio in 1981, then went back to school to get an associate degree in art, with a major in interior design, and has been an interior designer since 1984.

Friends has a staff of five, including Rebecca Bond, ASID, and Danny Murphy, an artist, and is open Monday through Saturday 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. or by appointment. Residential customers account for 75 percent of its business, with 25 percent being commercial.

Friends is full of eclectic furnishings, fabrics and art. Rooney offers a full line of services, fabrics, furniture and gift items.

"Friends got its name because most of my clients are friends or have become friends," explained Rooney. "Friends helped opened the store. Some clients' children are now getting married and want Friends to do their homes."

Friends Inc. is located at 126 MainCentre, Northville, 380-6930.

MARSHA TEMIRIAN/CENTURY 21 WEST

Marsha Temirian began her career in real estate 20 years ago. "I realized that selling real estate was something you can take with you when you relocate," she said of her decision.

Temirian is now the general manager of Century 21 West, which has a staff of 25. She is also responsible for recruitment and training. "Helping people grow within their own profession and become successful is very rewarding," she commented.

For the past eight years, Temirian has also taught pre-license and broker courses at both Schoolcraft and OCC-Orchard Ridge. In 1993, she became a licensed builder in Michigan and has already done commercial construction and remodeling.

Her next venture is to start a home inspection company for residential construction. A certification program for inspectors is also in the works, which she hopes will be ready next year. "Right now there are no requirements for home inspectors and they do not have to be licensed," she explains. "All they have to do is print a card."

Temirian has been the recipient of many awards, including Honor Society and Million Dollar Club honors. She is also a member of the National Association of Realtors, the National Association of Female Executives, and Women in Business, to name just a few.

Century 21 West is located at 24277 West Novi Road, Novi, 349-6800.

DEBRA HERR-DEMPSEY/MAIN STREET WINE SHOP

Debra Herr-Dempsey has traveled the U.S. and Europe and brought its tastiest treats home with her.

"I used to travel a lot, Europe and the states, too — mostly in the West," said Herr-Dempsey, owner/operator of the Main Street Wine Shoppe in Milford.

"I'm always working to please the customer's taste, and offer the highest standards of service, high-quality products and a good value. We go out of our way to get the small things that we feel are important."

The Wine Shoppe's upscale, gourmet delicatessen features a variety of meats, cheeses and breads. Fresh, soups and salads along with carry-out dishes are irresistible to the epicure palate. She also serves coffees and espresso and cappuccino, too.

The store's shelves are lined with packaged gourmet specialties, including condiments, cookies and other foods. And she plans to expand her already wide selection soon.

"We know almost all of our customers by name and we know their palates, too, in choosing wines," she said.

Her one-time hobby of wine tasting, she said, "has become a very serious business."

The Wine Shoppe's excellent staff is credited to Herr-Dempsey's management style. She believes in teamwork with an emphasis on open communication and individual responsibility.

CINDY SCHLUSSEL/SHUMAN MOTORS

An ad in the newspaper four years ago for a salesperson at Shuman Motors made Cindy Schluskel think twice. She had "always been in positions dealing with people," had majored in psychology in college, and had a dad who had been in the car business.

She eventually was offered the position and currently is the only female car salesperson among the five sales people and two managers who make up the staff.

Schluskel is recognized as a Certified Sales Specialist and has received Chrysler's Bronze and Silver Awards for meeting predetermined sales quotas. She has also received Top Salesperson awards, and won Walkaround competitions.

"We walk around a car," explained Schluskel, "and talk about everything on the car as if we're selling to a customer, but we're competing against other salespeople and being judged by the executives."

"I get so many repeat customers now," said Schluskel, who attributes that to "making sure they're taken care of, regardless of whether they're coming in for an oil change or a new engine."

"You don't just sell someone a car, you sell them a dealership," she said. "That's the philosophy we have at Shuman Motors."

Shuman Motors is located at 1111 S. Commerce, Walled Lake, 699-2010.

BECKY MAPES, BETTY RICHARDSON, TERRY RUTKOWSKI, NANCY VADER, SHERYL BEASLEY, JENNIFER FRANKLIN, BLANCA FOX, AMBER MELKE/700 BOWL

Ask 700 Bowl owner Jerry Harris the reason for his business' success, and he doesn't beat around the bush. "We've been successful because of our employees," Harris said.

"The personality of the 700 Bowl is directly related to their attitude and what they've put into the business. People come here because they relate to my staff — you have to have that in business."

Harris' female employees constitute a major part of the staff of the 700 Bowl, located at 700 N. Lafayette St. in South Lyon. Becky Mapes, Betty Richardson, Terry Rutkowski, Nancy Vader, Sheryl Beasley, Jennifer Franklin, Blanca Fox and Amber Melke keep the place running smoothly.

Those staff members help run the counter operations and the bar.

"They basically serve all the customers with a smile and with courtesy," Harris said. "The staff is trained to do multi-purpose things; some can even help fix some of the machines."

Most staff members have been with the 700 Bowl for several years, which Harris attributes to both the workplace and the flexible scheduling. "Our busy time is in the spring, fall and winter months," Harris said. "They get a lot of time off in the summer when it's nice, so it works out well."

"They enjoy working with people in a fun atmosphere. We have a very good working relationship with owners and employees."

BEVERLY SALYERS and SHIRLEY BAKHAUS/COLDWELL BANKER CALLAN

Beverly Salyers and Shirley Bakhaus play a significant part in real estate at Coldwell Banker Callan in downtown Milford, bringing with them 18 years of successful real estate marketing between them.

"It's a people-oriented business — you care about what happens to them," Salyers said. "People trust you to help them with what is probably one of their most important decisions, and that for me is very gratifying."

Bakhaus alone brings 25 years of business experience to the duo. She was a business owner for 18 years, and she believes people are not just an appointment in a book.

Real estate is a constantly changing market and staying informed and expanding their knowledge through continuing education courses helps them as a team.

At Coldwell Banker Callan, 211 E. Commerce Road, Salyers and Bakhaus are dedicated to delivering excellent service and fostering communications with their clients, whether the clients are selling or buying a home.

GEORGIE L. KOPPIN/GLK FINE CUSTOM HOMES

As a successful real estate salesperson and relocation expert for 10 years in Texas, Georgie Koppin had accomplished all her goals in real estate sales and was seeking new challenges.

Around that same time, several years ago, Koppin's husband was transferred to Michigan. In preparation for the move Koppin began interviewing Michigan builders about building their new home.

The treatment Koppin says she encountered from the builders coupled with the sense that she was being offered very little in relation to the money that would be spent on building their new home left her very frustrated.

However, that frustration proved to be the inspiration she needed as Koppin earned her builder's license and opened her own company, GLK Fine Custom Homes.

As a builder Koppin's main goals are to build quality homes with full amenities and to satisfy her client's needs. "I hate to see people spend money and not get what they want," Koppin says.

To that end Koppin pledges consistent involvement with her clients through the entire process of building their homes whether it's listening to the client, providing top quality products, or helping with creative financing, all the while keeping the process moving in a timely manner.

JANET KINZINGER/ATTORNEY

Following in her father's footsteps, Janet Kinzinger is keeping the law at record speeds.

Kinzinger, a Milford attorney specializing in real estate and business law, is rebuilding a 1953 Allard K-3 for the race track. Like her late father, Frank Kinzinger, Jr., her passion is classic cars. She kept her father's 1923 Renault Torpedo, but feels most comfortable in her 1939 Ford Deluxe Coupe.

She volunteers at the Motor Sports Museum and Hall of Fame of America in Novi. And the 10th Annual Milford Car Show in September will be under Kinzinger's control for the eighth year.

Kinzinger, who graduated from Milford High School in 1969 and Albion College in 1973, took over her father's Milford law office and moved it to 530 N. Main St., after his death in 1978.

One of her proudest accomplishments is the revitalization of the Milford Rotary Club. In 1989, she was the first woman to join the local club and served as its president from 1990 to 1992. The club has grown from eight members in 1990 to 32 members today.

Kinzinger is also active at St. George's Episcopal Church in Milford.

DIANDREA COLT/THE COYOTE AND THE CACTUS

When Diandrea Colt was building her home six years ago she wanted to furnish it in southwest decor, but discovered to her dismay, that few stores in the area carried what she was looking for.

Her experience sparked an idea that prompted Colt to open The Coyote and The Cactus, a home furnishing store that features southwestern and western inspired merchandise last September.

Prior to moving in the store located at 211 E. Grand River in downtown Howell, Colt remodeled it to create a "warmer, homier atmosphere" to showcase her merchandise.

Colt, a former hair colorist, has always been fascinated by Indian folklore as well as western and southwestern art, and her store combines all her interests under one roof.

Colt's store, complete with a wooden Indian, stuffed coyote and full-sized cowboy, carries silver and turquoise jewelry, pottery vases, pottery, accent furniture, beds, wall-hangings and more.

Although Colt says she's "shocked" she's in retail, it's been exciting for her to have an opportunity to pursue her interests and gratifying that there has been a favorable response to her store.

The Coyote and The Cactus is closed Mondays, open Tuesday 10-5:30, Wednesday 12-7, Thursday-Saturday, 10-5:30, Sunday 12-4. 546-0303.

KATHLEEN LAYSON, GAIL CECE, KAREN PHILLIPS, MARY LYNN McDANIELS, LORI ANN GODO, JANICE DOBBIE, PEGGY CONNELLY, VERA AVERY, GAYLE HENDERSON/ERA LAYSON REALTORS

Kathleen Layson, broker at ERA Layson Realtors in South Lyon, strongly believes in the team approach in her business.

She started her career developing property with her husband, Stan, and she earned her Realtor's license in 1974. She worked with another company for three years before earning her brokers license, and she got her builders license in the 1980s. When she assembled her team at her own office, she wanted to find people who believed in her idea of teamwork.

The women of ERA Layson include:

■ Gail Cece — an associate broker and one of the founders of the Horse Farm Division at ERA. She has been the leader in sales and listings for horse farms and rural properties in the state of Michigan for several years. Cece owns and operates Deer Creek Arabians.

■ Karen Phillips — also a horse farm specialist, Phillips has been in the harness horse industry, a large standardbred farm and racing in Michigan. She is familiar with horse-related property and works in the ERA Horse Farm Division.

■ Mary Lynn McDaniels — a "homegrown" woman who has lived in South Lyon since the 1960s. She and her husband, Mark, have raised four children in the area. She is active in the South Lyon Panthers, South Lyon football boosters, South Lyon wrestling boosters, graduated from ERA's Top Gun program and is a member of ERA's Top Team and the relocation service.

■ Lori Ann Godo — a woman who learned about the Layson philosophy first hand. Godo and her husband moved into the area in 1985 and bought their dream house — an old farm house in need of major renovation — from Kathleen Layson. Seven years and two children later, Godo went to work for Layson and enjoys helping others find their dream homes.

■ Janice Dobbie — a South Lyon resident for 20 years. Dobbie has 25 years of experience in the business and 20 years in sales. She currently is finishing her bachelor's degree as a legal assistant at Madonna University. She has an associates degree in small business management and as a paralegal. She works as a part of the ERA closing department.

■ Peggy Connelly — a 15-year resident of the South Lyon area. Connelly serves as president of the South Lyon Community Schools Board of Education and is the mother of five children. She enjoys working with first-time buyers and young families to help solve their housing needs.

■ Vera Avery — a lifetime resident of South Lyon. Avery loves selling homes to families, and has three children and four grandchildren of her own. Before joining ERA, she worked in the medical field at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital for 14 years.

■ Gayle Henderson — a residential sales specialist. Henderson enjoys working with first-time buyers. She recently completed building a house on five acres and she enjoys antiques and gardening.

Getting in shape in the great outdoors

By William S. DeBelles

Copley News Service

If you haven't already, you might want to think about starting an outdoor exercise program. Here's the final word on getting motivated and getting results.

GETTING STARTED

First you must decide on a training goal that will get you motivated. Anything from a specific training achievement to an exact amount of weight or inches lost will work. If you have a physical goal, check with your doctor to set a reasonable target. Get creative: Try reducing your resting heart rate or your body fat percentage.

The best beginning to any fitness program is brisk walking. You'll get aerobic benefits without punishing your joints. Combine these walks (no lollygagging!) with simple stretching and you'll be ready for more aggressive exercise.

If you enjoy jogging, time yourself around a track at a nearby school, then try to shave 5 percent off your time. Cyclists can use weekly mileage goals as a base line for achievement.

BON VOYAGE

Another goal-setting strategy (which is my personal favorite) is to pick an active adventurous vacation, then train for it. There are hundreds of exciting outdoor getaways that involve backpacking, hiking, aquatics, cycling and many other activities.

How about an inn-to-inn hiking trip along the Oregon coast or up in the Canadian Rockies? How does a bike tour through Cajun country sound? Put down a deposit on one of these trips and you'll never have a problem getting motivated to work out. Look in the travel directories in the back of Outside or Bicycling magazines, or check with your travel agent for complete information on destinations all over the world.

WHAT, ME KAYAK?

Try kayaking for a great upper-body training challenge. There are kayak excursions to premier whale-watching areas, special winter trips and kayak schools. Workouts in preparation for a kayak trip should focus on your shoulders, hips and buttocks, in addition to jogging or other aerobic training.

There is no great mystery about how to prepare for cycling expeditions: Get on a bike, preferably outdoors, and get going. In order to get the best aerobic results, ride at least three times a week for a minimum of 20 minutes.

Similarly, hiking trips require aggressive outdoor walking and jogging workouts. When you're setting your workout goals, keep in mind that uphill mountain climbs are doubly tough because of the thinner (lower oxygen content) air.

CAN MOLLY COME OUT AND PLAY?

Remember when you got together with other kids in the neighborhood and went out to play with no particular plan in mind? The message from the outdoor cross-training front is to grab some friends and go outside and just play. Construct an obstacle course with Mother Nature's help. Run to the first tree, swing around to the back of the bushes, jump and touch the cross branches three times — all in the spirit of fun.

Apply the same philosophy and you can create a Frisbee golf course anywhere there are open spaces. Players take turns creating Frisbee holes/targets with par values based on the number of throws instead of strokes. Go over the big hill and through the trees for a brutal par five, or straight across to a flagpole for a par 3. Make sure you watch out for Frisbee-eaters such as roofs, thick trees and water hazards.

WINTER WONDERLANDS

Skiing can be a tremendously exhilarating experience — beautiful scenery, fresh, crisp air, plus the unique excitement of speed. Skiing can also be very dangerous, particularly for beginners trying to gain their first measure of confidence.

Safety on the slopes comes with knowledge and experience. You can get both by attending a ski camp or clinic, where several days of intensive instruction can help skiers at any level. Most programs include videotape analysis in addition to the sage advice of the local gurus.

There are also clinics specific to cross-country skiing and snowboarding. These sports are not just ESPN creations — they're fun, easy to learn and, like skiing, provide excellent all-around workouts.

Many ski resorts also offer a terrific low-budget way to enjoy the beauty of snow-covered landscapes — guided snowshoe tours. These aerobic workouts require little instruction and are enjoyable for all ages.

WALK THIS WAY

"Walking for Exercise and Pleasure" is a fairly comprehensive and cheap source for information about walking. Just send $1 and your name and address to R. Woods, Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, CO 81009 (request item 109Z).

The pamphlet includes illustrated warm-up exercises and advice on how far, how fast and how often to walk for best results. Remember to push yourself. Increasing your pace from 3 mph to 5 mph can give you four times the aerobic results.

TRAIL RUNNING

What does Roger Craig, known as the fittest man in football, recommend for conditioning? The Minnesota Viking running back keeps his physical edge by trail running, a helter-skelter workout through rough terrain.

Traversing challenging, uneven areas creates great intensity because of the up-and-down pacing and great variety of physical movements. Remember to use great caution. Trail running requires proper footwear (trail-running shoes are a must) and concentration to safely avoid rocks, fallen branches, etc.

IN-LINE SKATES

The popularity of this activity is still rising. The Wall Street Journal measured a 50 percent increase from '91 to '92 as more than 9 million Americans joined in the skating craze. There may be roller hockey leagues in your area, as well as other organized in-line skating activities. A good reference book for in-line enthusiasts is "The Complete Guide and Resource to In-Line Skating" by Stephen Joyner (Betterway Books).

AMORE, ANYONE?

While in-line skates are getting all the attention, don't forget about ice skating. Skating is terrific outdoor wintertime exercise and, given the right circumstances, can be quite romantic.

Swimming regularly will improve your sex life, according to a Harvard University study of 160 swimmers. People who swam regularly noted significant improvements in sexual frequency and enjoyment.

Running is still one of the most popular and convenient ways to fit exercise into a busy routine.

Staying in shape, from yoga to boxing

By Sharon Achatz

Copley News Service

For a people as fiercely dedicated to their right to cocoon as to their right to exercise, it's no surprise that many of today's most popular fitness forays are indoor pursuits.

Any type of health club workout is an indoor-exercise mainstay, and the likes of dancing classes, boxing sessions and at-home exercise videotapes fill the bill as well.

The current indoor front-runners, however, are forms of exercise designed to improve mind as well as body, with the benefits extending beyond physical fitness to include wellness attributes such as relaxation and stress reduction.

Yoga, with its deep breathing, stretching postures and mind-clearing techniques, probably could be considered the granddaddy of this fitness branch. The current rage is tai chi, a series of slow, relaxed circular motions developed in China as a system of self-defense and an aid to meditation. Karate, aikido and chi kung are other Eastern disciplines that encourage integration of mind and body.

Aside from sports specifically devoted to the mind-body connection, fitness instructors now employ mental motivational methods to almost every form of workout.

Some of the most popular are:

- Progressive relaxation techniques, which teach people to first tense and then relax all major muscle groups. The theory is that by fully relaxing the muscles, you help relax the mind.

- Visualization, which uses mental pictures to change attitudes and behaviors — for example, imagining that distracting thoughts during a workout are sailboats that sail by as you bring your attentions back to exercising.

- Guided imagery, which encourages people to imagine various scenes as an aid to relaxation — for example, walking on a quiet beach, waves rolling onto the sand, and finally throwing all your tensions into the water and letting the waves wash them out to sea.

Also popular are calisthenic-type exercises designed to improve performance efficiency whatever the sport — including stretches designed to improve body alignment, and exercises devoted to enhancing an athlete's balance.

CROSS-TRAINING

Cross-training is simply the rotation of several fitness activities on different exercise days. It helps to alleviate overuse injuries as well as potential boredom with an exercise routine.

While traditionally this type of training has focused on utilizing a variety of sports — such as cycling, running and swimming — the concept applies just as well to working out at the gym. The key is to alternate high-impact with low-impact activities every other day — such as one day of aerobics or racquetball followed by a day of stationary cycling or using a gliding machine — and to alternate cardiovascular activities with strength-training. Experts suggest you perform one strength training session for every three cardiovascular system sessions.

A variety of exercise styles can spice it up

One cross-training option that's catching on is indoor rock climbing, which is an ideal way to learn the basics of an exhilarating outdoor sport in a safe environment. Some gyms have rock-climbing walls; also check with outdoor outfitters for availability.

BOXING

While boxing techniques sometimes are used as choreography in aerobics classes, the sport itself also enjoys a strong — and growing — following of both men and women. Programs offered in health clubs and boxing gyms simulate the intense endurance and strength training boxers undergo before they step into the ring, and no sparring is involved.

Workouts typically consist of hitting the bag, shadowboxing, bobbing and weaving, skipping rope, push-ups, sit-ups and jogging.

AEROBICS

Traditional dance-style aerobics classes are becoming enlivened with the introduction of a variety of exciting equipment and contemporary dance steps and music.

Prospective aerobics students can find classes with music to suit any palate, from gospel rock and Broadway tunes to salsa and African rhythms.

Choreography ranges from country-western line dances to hip-hop moves and from shadowboxing techniques to kung fu aerobics, which is the art of learning martial arts in an aerobic fashion to music.

As for equipment, step classes are among the hottest, but jump-rope and resistive strength-training devices also are popular. And many classes now dedicate a portion of each class to strength-training workouts designed to trim trouble areas such as the abdomen, buttocks and thighs.

A new age health care offers alternative view

By Priscilla Lister

Copley News Service

People spent $10 billion in 1992, or nearly 40 percent of all out-of-pocket expenditures, for health care on alternative medicine, according to The New York Times.

Such alternatives included acupuncture, chiropractic, herbalism, massage, hypnosis and a newly burgeoning field called mind/body healing.

That impressive statistic reveals not only great acceptance for treatments once considered the domain of cults, but also tells of the eagerness with which some seek cures for chronic ills that conventional medicine may be unable to treat.

MIND/BODY HEALING

The mind/body connection is considered by some a frontier in medicine today. But the connection has been at the root of Chinese medicine for thousands of years.

Journalist Bill Moyers recently created a series for the Public Broadcasting Service called "Healing and the Mind." A book by the same name from Public Affairs Television Inc. in conjunction with Doubleday reprints Moyers' conversations with this new breed of healers who are convinced the mind has power over even a diseased body.

Ron Anderson, M.D., chief executive officer of Parkland Hospital in Dallas, told Moyers that mind/body medicine is "really the art of medicine. We've done well with science in medicine, but we've set aside the art of understanding the whole person and not just the physiological system. When you put the art in medicine, you deal with the person, the family ... the spirit."

David Spiegel, M.D., is professor of psychiatry and behavioral sciences at Stanford University. He told Moyers he's especially startled by a study he conducted in 1989 of 86 women with metastatic breast cancer, which kills most women in two years. Spiegel divided the women into two groups. Half were given standard medical treatment including radiation, chemotherapy and drugs.

The other half received that same care but in addition met once a week in group therapy sessions. The second group reported less depression, anxiety and pain, and amazingly, lived twice as long after they entered the study as the first group's members. Spiegel is conducting a second project to see if the results are repeated.

Spiegel is also known for using hypnosis as a treatment for pain.

"Hypnosis is a state of focused concentration," he told Moyers. "One of the misconceptions about hypnosis is that it's a state where you lose all control. It really is a means of heightening the way you control and regulate your inner states."

He says self-hypnosis can "help people gain greater control over whether their brain amplifies signals like pain. You have to pay attention to pain for it to hurt."

And Candace Pert, M.D., visiting professor at the Center for Molecular and Behavioral Neuroscience at Rutgers University in New Jersey, told Moyers that her research uncovered "material manifestations of emotions in peptides and their receptors," not just in the brain but all over the body, including the immune system.

"These are the biochemical correlates of emotions."

"The implications for medical practice are enormous," Pert added. "If the chemicals that are running our body and our brain are the same chemicals that are involved in emotion, we'd better seriously entertain theories about the role of emotions and emotional suppression in disease."

Reed C. Moskowitz, M.D., heads the Stress Disorders Medical Service Program at New York University Medical Center. In his book, "Your Healing Mind" (Avon/Health), he describes success in treating some of the most debilitating health conditions, including heart disease, high blood pressure, sexual dysfunction and stress, using mind-body techniques.

"Recent scientific discoveries have been demonstrating the links between our mind, nerves, hormones and immune system," Moskowitz writes. "This exciting new field called psychoneuroimmunology (PNI) holds the promise of revealing even greater healing possibilities for the future."

In treating heart disease, Moskowitz cites stress, cholesterol and the Type-A personality as factors that can increase the risk of heart attacks and high blood pressure. He discusses the benefits of relaxation training to relieve stress and high blood pressure, sometimes even reversing heart disease without surgery.

Sharp Health Care in San Diego has created the Sharp Institute for Human Potential and Mind Body Medicine to study the effect of the mind on physical health. The institute is headed by Deepak Chopra, M.D., the best-selling author of "Ageless Body, Timeless Mind: The Quantum Alternative to Growing Old" (Harmony/Crown) and an internationally recognized advocate of mind/body medicine.

The National Institutes of Health awarded its first-ever research grant for mind/body medical study ($30,000) to the Sharp Institute. The institute will research the effectiveness of massage therapy, meditation, diet and other treatments while gathering data from the Center for Mind Body Medicine, a private physicians' practice in San Diego whose physicians have been trained by Chopra.

Chopra, who was born in New Delhi, India, bases his research and practice on Ayurveda, the science of healing practiced in India for more than 4,000 years. His ultimate goal is to combine Ayurvedic and Western medicine techniques, such as the Western relaxation, aerobic exercise and dietary techniques with the Indian meditation, yoga and dietary techniques.

HERBALISM

While we've already mentioned its place in Chinese medicine, herbal medicine — using plants to heal or combat illness — "is probably as old as humankind," says "Family Guide," and every culture has used it.

Such common household herbs as basil, thyme and rosemary have been used for centuries in traditional medicine. Chinese medicine uses its own collection of herbs, as does Indian Ayurvedic medicine, and many of their herbs are unfamiliar to the West.

But "Family Guide" lists 60 such wonders as aloe vera, anise, buckthorn, catnip, cayenne, chamomile, cinnamon, ginger, ginseng, goldenseal, lavender, nettle, peppermint, saw palmetto, and turmeric, along with their uses and histories.

The book also warns that one should "never attempt self-medication for serious ailments or injuries ... be careful of your sources ... and more is not better, overdosing with herbs can have ill effects."

"Herbal Healing for Women" by Rosemary Gladstar (Fireside/Simon & Schuster) is a guide to simple home remedies for ailments from menstruation and menopause to PMS, teen-age acne, yeast infections, morning sickness and other common female health problems.

"Herbalism is definitely flourishing today," writes Gladstar. She does not espouse using herbalism in place of other forms of medicine, but rather in concert. Herbalism is seen as a female form, while Western medicine is a male form of treatment.

"The two can work very effectively together and do, in fact, complement one another," she says.

"While chemical drugs are actively killing bacteria and viruses, herbal medicines build and restore the system ... Using herbal therapy with chemical drugs often helps eliminate or lessen the side effects of drug therapies," writes Gladstar.

CHINESE MEDICINE

Traditional Chinese medicine is "both an art and science," says Barbara Bernie, president and founder of the American Foundation of Traditional Chinese Medicine in San Francisco, who also successfully lobbied the California state government to legalize the practice of acupuncture in 1975.

A former architect and interior designer, Bernie, 74, got involved in promoting the benefits of Chinese medicine 22 years ago when acupuncture she received in Canada rid her of chronic fatigue syndrome. The foundation today fosters scientific research, educational programs and provides clinical outpatient programs in such traditional Chinese techniques as acupuncture and herbal and breathing systems.

Chinese medicine "is all based on the energy system" she explains. "We say if the energy system is out of balance or blocked, that's when the body breaks down and has disease or pain."

Chinese diagnostic procedures are different from Western methods, in that they involve taking the six pulses on each wrist, each of which refers to a different organ in the body and each of which has 27 different qualities or characteristics.

"You can't feel 27 qualities on each person, but you can pick up anywhere from four to eight, and that will tell you a lot about the energy system," says Bernie.

In addition to taking pulses, Chinese medicine takes diagnosis from the tongue — its size, texture and color will reveal much about the different organs as well.

"Then the eyes, for example. The pupil of the eye tells us about your kidneys, the white about your lungs, the lid about your spleen and so on," says Bernie. "Then there is the hair, nails, your voice and odor, and of course, so much more."

A big difference between Chinese and Western medicines, she says, is that "it's very important for the Chinese practitioner to find out the cause of the problem and not just treat the symptom."

The diagnosis will determine the treatment, be it acupuncture or herbs.

"If acupuncture is called for, the diagnosis will determine the points that should be needled."

Acupuncture needling, she explains, "removes the blockage of energy and allows the body to balance itself out. That's an oversimplification, but essentially that's what it is."

Acupuncture can't cure everything, but Bernie says it has treated many women's problems successfully, including menstrual cramps, PMS, and some menopausal symptoms. And it can be effective in many headache problems, she added.

Growing numbers of people are turning to acupuncture to treat a variety of aches, pains and sources of stress.

Herbs are sometimes called for instead of or in addition to acupuncture, says Bernie.

"But diet and nutrition are very important as well. We talk about food as hot, cold, wet, dry, yin, yang, weak or strong, and we talk about sickness that way, too. Depending on your sickness, we will recommend foods that will help you get better. For example, cancer is considered a hot disease, so we would not recommend foods that are hot, like coffee, shellfish, fried or spicy foods."

Tip For Today's Do-It-Yourselfer...

Many homeowners would like to add a walkway to their landscape but think the project may be too complicated. An attractive walkway can be easily made. First, lay out a pathway and edge with border material. (Garden hoses can be used as a guide to make curved borders.) Any grass within the walkway must be treated with an herbicide; then after 24 hours, secure weed block fabric and cover with two inches of shredded hardwood mulch. Your finished walkway will be soft underfoot and will blend into the natural landscape.

Franklin Valuemark II

Your investment needs change and may grow over time. Franklin Valuemark II, a flexible premium variable annuity, was designed to help you meet those changing needs.* It offers you:

Tax-deferred long-term growth. Every dollar you earn is free from current taxes until retirement income is withdrawn.†

Freedom of choice. Franklin Valuemark II gives you the freedom to make tax-free transfers among 18 diverse investment funds.

No initial sales charge. 100% of your investment goes to work for you immediately since there is no up-front sales charge.††

*Investment results are not guaranteed. Annuity payments depend on the contract value, age of the annuitant, and the option selected at the time of annuitization. Variable option payouts fluctuate with the investment performance of the selected sub-accounts and may ultimately depend on the financial strength of the insurance company. Fixed option payouts do not fluctuate and rely on the financial strength of the insurance company.

†Any withdrawals may be subject to income tax and, prior to age 59½, a 10% federal penalty tax may apply to the taxable amount. Withdrawals from the annuity will affect both the cash value and the death benefit.

††The contingent deferred sales charge declines 5% to 1.5% over five years for each purchase payment.

The annuity is issued by Allianz Life Insurance Company of North America or by Preferred Insurance Company of New York, a wholly owned subsidiary of Allianz Life. The Valuemark Funds are managed by Franklin Advisers, Inc. The annuity is distributed by NALAC Financial Plans, Inc.
