Board looks to beef up current library first

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

The newly-empowered Northville District Library Board sat down over leftover pastries and brownies last Thursday and began planning the next steps in their goal to build Northville a new and autonomous library.

The sweets, brought by board member Anna Sarkisian, were from the Sarkisians' Tuesday night party where library supporters had celebrated their win at the polls earlier that day.

When voters passed board requests to levy up to 1 mill in perpetuity for operations, and bond up to $4.5 million for construction and furnishings of a new district library, they set in motion a process that should culminate in the opening of a new two-story, 25,000-square-foot facility in 1996.

City and school officials have given their approval to a location on Cady Street behind city hall and the school-owned recreation center.

Among the next steps—certifying the election and formally requesting that the city and township put the 1-mill levy on their tax rolls, selecting a financial institution and attorney to oversee the sale of the $4.5 million in general obligation bonds, and selecting an architect and contractor to design and build the facility.

In the meantime, the district library board hopes to use its new operating millage to improve services at the existing 6,000-square-foot facility in the basement of city hall.

Library Director Pat Orr noted that her phone has been ringing constantly since the board's two-vote proposal passed by a 59-percent margin. "All we did yesterday was answer the telephone," she said.

The calls are coming from would-be architects as well as the the Library of Michigan, Michigan Library Association and other communities like Redford and Southgate that are contemplating holding their own district library votes and wondering how Northville library proponents sold theirs to the voters.

The effort was a grass roots one, fueled by fluorescent lawn signs urging a "Yes, Yes" vote and 50 speaking engagements to just about every local group that would host one.

The Northville Library Campaign Committee raised $5,000 in the process, most of that through a Phantom Library Ball fund-raiser held on April 1. Since only $3,500 was spent on the election itself, the remaining $1,500 will be turned over to the just-renamed Friends of the Northville District Library to be spent on improving library operations.

Now comes the hard part.

"We were a shared service; now we're on our own," noted Board Chairman John Buckland. Now that they are on their own, the board is responsible for items like budgeting and employee negotiations.

Leaders debate drug use response

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

Once again, Northville's leadership has met to debate the question of rising alcohol and drug abuse statistics among its youth.

Once again, the answers seem less obvious than the questions.

An estimated 64 people, including more than a dozen Northville High School students, attended a 7:30 a.m. summit meeting at the Samuel H. Little Theater May 4. They discussed ways that local municipal and civic organizations can better send the message that substance abuse is dangerous, and selected a smaller task force of community leaders to explore the possibility of forming a Zero Tolerance Community.

The sobering meeting started with Special Education Director Robert Somson's presentation of recently-released substance abuse survey results that show Northville students drinking more alcohol and taking more drugs than their counterparts across the country. The survey results also show more abuse locally than a similar survey conducted in 1992.

According to students at the Wednesday morning meeting, teens practicing sobriety are in the minority in Northville.

"There are a few kids who don't tolerate it who don't have any power over those who will tolerate it," said one.

"If you don't do these kinds of things, you're basically a minority now," said another.

When asked whether presentations about the dangers of substance abuse have an effect on teens, the students gave a mixed answer.

"For people who don't drink, it has a great effect," said Laura Genitti. "But for people who do drink, it's a

Search for new manager gets under way

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

Northville Township's hunt for a new manager has begun.

The board of trustees at its April 28 study session met with the head of the firm the township has hired to coordinate the effort. They reviewed the process and agreed to allow Jerry Habelmann to advertise for the position in regional newspapers and magazines.

The manager's job has been open since its last occupant, Bill Richards, resigned in February. Habelmann is president of Habelmann and Associates, a Farmington Hills company which specializes in assisting in executive searches. He estimated that selecting a replacement will take at least 90-120 days.

Things kicked off earlier this month with advertisements in The Detroit Free Press and The Detroit News and municipal trade magazines.

Habelmann will be paid an hourly fee of $100 for his services, up to $10,000 at most. In return, he offers assistance on developing a list of qualifications for candidates, advertising the job, coordinating applications and interviews, verifying credentials and helping out in negotiations.

Raucous party leads to test case for ordinance

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

In the first case of its kind, Northville police have cited a teen-ager under the city's three-year-old open house party ordinance.

Eighteen-year-old Deanna Dawn Stepchuk was arraigned March 25 on one count of violating the ordinance following a March 18 party at the Stepchuks' Charleston Court condominium that spawned several police reports.

A pre-trial was held April 27 but rescheduled so Stepchuk could consult with a court-appointed attorney. A plea of not guilty was entered on her behalf. A June 1 bench trial has been scheduled before Judge James Garber.

City police were called to the Step-chuk residence at 1:30 a.m. March 18 in response to several reports of a party and fight in progress. Though they saw no fighting when they arrived, they found 10-12 people milling about outside and a loud party going on inside with 20-25 teenagers.

Several dozen empty beer cans and bottles were found inside as well.

Stepchuk told police she had invited a few friends over but the party had gotten out of hand as the word spread. She said others attending the party had brought the alcohol. Her father was away on vacation, she added.

Outside the residence, police chased a white male who ignored their orders to stop and drove across the lawn in a blue pickup truck, fol-

Illegal hookups to raise sewage treatment costs

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

Sump pumps in two Northville Township subdivisions are under scrutiny as the board of trustees considers what to do about illegal and expensive water discharges into the local sanitary sewer system.

The pump discharges will cost township sewer users about $35,000 this year alone, Water and Sewer Department officials estimate.

To correct the problem, the board is considering a plan to hook some or all of the homes in Northville Commons and in Northville Colony Estates Nos. One and Two up to new storm sewer extensions. That could mean thousands of dollars in charges over the next few years for those homeowners.

The board at its April 28 study session reviewed the situation with Bill Anderson, the township's director of public utilities. It hasn't made a decision on what to do and isn't expected to until July at the earliest, observers say.

Water and Sewer officials will meet with the homeowners in those two subdivisions on May 26 at 7 p.m. at Winchester Elementary to hear their comments and answer their questions.

"A lot of people didn't even know it's illegal to hook your sump pump into the sanitary sewer . . . We're looking to work with the homeowners to fix this problem."

BILL ANDERSON
Director of Public Utilities

The problem stems from sump pumps in the two subs which are hooked into the township's sanitary sewer system. That is a violation of state and federal law. It also increases township sewer users' bills, since the water—which does not need to be treated—raises sanitary sewer flow levels.

Sump pumps normally deliver collected water from a home's basement

Sewer line project may get monitored

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

Northville Township may become Wayne County's overseer on a sewer construction project which both municipalities say they want completed as soon as possible.

The township's board of trustees at its April 28 meeting gave conceptual approval to the plan. It calls for the township to supervise the building of a sanitary sewer system for the soon-to-be-built headquarters of Optical Imaging Systems (OIS). The county says that the sewer project can avoid months of red-tape delay if the township shepherds it.

"Wayne County is asking us to be the general contractor for this project and sub-contract with Ayres, Lewis, Norris & May (the township's engineering firm) to see that all the work gets done," Supervisor Karen Baja said. "The question is do we in concept want to do this?"

The vote was 6-0 that they did, with Trustee Gini Britton absent. That approval is contingent on the board approving a formal contract, expected to come before them in the next few weeks. Lawyers for both sides are hammering out its final shape, taking into account concerns board members raised at the meeting.

Construction of the sewer won't have to be back-logged pending

The New Life Center at Providence Park

Where families are born...close to home

The New Life Center at Providence Park thanks the many families who came by our open house on May 1. Hundreds of families toured the comfortable, home-like rooms, learned about family-centered care and enjoyed refreshments and entertainment.

You'll find the choices are many at Providence. From the moment you choose to have your baby with us, many decisions are yours. You may choose to go natural or have an epidural. You may also prefer to share the event with your loved ones. But the best part is giving birth in a relaxed, home-like atmosphere and having your baby by your side. And think about being able to go home 24 hours after your baby is born. What's more, a nurse will come to your home for private, follow-up visits. That's the kind of extra care, attention and education families receive from Providence.

If you are thinking of having a baby, call us for a tour at 1-800-806-BABY. Come see for yourself what the New Life Center at Providence Park has to offer expectant families.

News Briefs

HISTORICAL SOCIETY MEETING: The Northville Historical Society's annual membership meeting will be held on Thursday, May 19, at 6:30 p.m.

The evening will include a potluck dinner, a speaker and a slide presentation.

For further information, call Marianne Barry at 349-5435.

CORRECTIONS: A caption to a photo of three seventh-grade students that ran in last week's edition should have said that Laura Grider shadowed Chamber of Commerce Director Laurie Marrs for a day, while Precious Shah followed Northville Township Supervisor Karen Baja.

An article in last week's paper on Mill Race Village identified Fran Gazley as the president of the Historical Society. Gazley is head of maintenance for the society, while Betty Omar is the president of the society board.

SALVATION ARMY PROGRAM: The Plymouth Salvation Army Tiny Tots program is accepting registrations for its fall pre-school classes. There are openings in the Monday and Wednesday morning 3-year-old class and the Tuesday and Thursday morning 4-year-old class.

Registration is $35 and the monthly fee is $45.

The pre-school serves families in the Northville and Plymouth-Canton areas. For information, call 453-5464.

Passing a law is one thing. Putting money into it is another.

Ask the state legislators who represent cities with horse racetracks.

"We passed a law on this years ago," said Rep. Lyn Banks, R-Redford. "We were only asking them to follow the law."

But the House of Representatives rejected an amendment by Reps. John Freeman, D-Hazel Park, Banks and Republicans Willis Bullard of Milford and Jerry Vorva of Plymouth to restore state funds to cities with racetracks.

Call GREEN SHEET CLASSIFIED
(313) 348-3022

NR/NN

House rejects added track money

Instead, the state Agriculture Department budget will give $1.7 million to those cities instead of $3.35 million the four had proposed in an amendment.

The House rejected the Freeman amendment 53 in favor to 47 against, with 58 needed for passage.

Voting yes: Republicans Bullard and Vorva and Democrat Kirk Profit of Ypsilanti.

Voting no: Republicans Tom Middleton of Orionville and Dan Gustafson of Williamston.

Absent: Republican Susan Munsell of Howell.

Banks, a member of the House Appropriations Committee, said the bill would give $450,000 apiece to Northville, Livonia and Hazel Park instead of the $900,000 they were getting in the early 1980s. The bill went to the Senate and then is likely to go to a joint House-Senate conference committee.

Gov. John Engler would like to zero out entirely the subsidies to race track cities. He sees "no justification" for such a subsidy from state taxes on the tracks when they already have property taxes on hand.

Banks said Democrat Freeman didn't help the cause among Republicans by holding a press conference "bashing the governor."

Horse race tracks take up large acreages that provide relatively little property taxes because they consist of grandstands, barns and parking lots.

Northville's track on Seven Mile Road backs up to the downtown shopping district. Livonia's DRC track sits in the "golden mile" industrial belt south of Schoolcraft Road and next to a railroad. The cities also argue that traffic from track patrons and crime runs up their police bills, justifying their cut of state racing taxes.

Reaching for the top

Parks and Recreation Department Director Traci Johnson had to stretch a bit in filling in the thermometer at Fish Hatchery Park. A fund-raising goal to provide matching monies for park renovations was met when the April 23 Friends of Northville dinner/auction raised the $16,500 needed for the local portion of the funding. With contributions from the city and township, the department now will be able to secure a federal grant.

Mill Race seeks docents

Mill Race Historical Village will conduct a training session for new docents on Saturday, June 4, starting at 1 p.m.

Interested persons can either call the village office at 348-1845 or just show up at the village on Griswold that day.

Mature young people as well as adults are invited to serve as docents at the village this year. Docents will be asked to act as tour guides for two or three Sundays over the course of the season. The 1994 season begins Sunday, June 5. The village will be open every Sunday through October from 1 to 4 p.m.

Mill Race is a historical complex consisting of seven 19th century buildings and one exact replica.

Police News

Shoplifter gives his identity away

Township police arrested two Detroit men for shoplifting at Meijer and charged one of them with interfering with a police investigation after he gave a false name on May 2.

Police reports said the two men, ages 31 and 34, are related. They put on shoes, jeans and shirts worth $182, reports said, and then tried to leave the store without paying for them. Store detectives detained the men, who were later arrested.

One of the men was found to have an "extensive criminal history," police said. They could find no record of existence for the second suspect, police added, which led to them suspecting that the man had given them an alias.

After fingerprinting the suspect, officers asked him to sign the print card. The man did so, signing his real name, then crossing it out and re-signing with the alias, police said. He soon admitted giving the false name.

Both men were cited for larceny, given a date to appear in 35th District Court and were released. The stolen property was recovered.

DRIVING UNDER THE INFLUENCE: Alert drivers cut off a 38-year-old Redford woman who was driving under the influence May 8, blocking her car into an apartment complex parking lot until city police could arrive.

When police arrived at the Randolph Street complex around 9 p.m. that night, they found the woman still behind the wheel with her car in gear, hemmed in by another car and an ambulance.

The other two drivers, who had been in front of and behind the woman as she drove east on Eight Mile, said they had seen her crossing the center lane and driving onto the shoulder. She had to slam on the brakes to avoid hitting the forward driver as he turned on to Randolph.

The woman told police she was driving from Southfield to Redford, and did not know where she was. She failed field sobriety tests including reciting the alphabet and was arrested. Her blood alcohol level was measured at .26 percent, more than twice the legal limit.

Her driving record included charges of driving while impaired in 1984 and driving while intoxicated in 1985.

GUN SIGHTING LEADS TO ARREST

Two Detroit men were arrested near the Northville Rotary Well May 7 after a passerby reported seeing one with a gun. Police responded to the scene just before 11 p.m. and ordered the men to keep their hands in the open and make no sudden moves. The men were patted down and no gun was found.

The men, who had open containers of Mickey's Malt Liquor nearby, told police they were just having a drink before they headed home to a relative's house nearby. They were cited for having open intoxicants in a public place and obstructing justice for giving police false names and dates of birth.

One of the men was turned over to Kensington Metro police on two of five outstanding warrants. The other three warrants were for traffic infractions in Detroit.

OUIL: Township police arrested a Redford Township woman for operating a vehicle while under the influence of liquor (OUIL) on May 5.

The 23-year-old female was seen speeding on Seven Mile by an officer on patrol. He said he also saw her 1994 Ford Thunderbird cross the center line of Seven Mile before he pulled her over. The woman told the officer that she had "only drank a couple of beers" that night.

She was arrested and taken to police headquarters. Breathalyzer testing there showed her to have a blood alcohol level of .13 percent, over the legal limit. She was given a date to appear in 35th District Court and released when she sobered up.

OUIL II: Township police arrested

a Livonia woman for OUIL on May 6. Reports said that the woman, 32, was swerving, weaving and straddling the center yellow line while driving her 1991 Chrysler LeBaron east on Seven Mile. The arresting officer said that he smelled intoxicants in the vehicle and that the woman had to balance herself against the car as she got out after being pulled over.

She failed field sobriety tests. Breathalyzer testing at police headquarters showed her to have a blood alcohol level of .19 percent, nearly twice the legal limit. She was given a court appearance date and released when she sobered up.

FENDER BENDERS: City police reported two traffic accidents last week.

A 30-year-old Howell man was cited for failing to yield from a stop sign May 4 after he pulled west onto Eight Mile from northbound Novi Street and was struck by a westbound car. He told police he did not see the car because of eastbound traffic.

The other driver, a 57-year-old Howell woman, was injured in the crash but refused medical treatment. Both cars had to be towed from the scene.

A May 6 accident resulted in a failing to yield citation to a 69-year-old Novi woman after she drove into a turning vehicle at North Center and South Ely. The woman was heading south when she pulled from a stop sign into the other vehicle.

LARCENY: Township police are investigating the theft of a dictionary worth $122 from Meijer on May 2.

A store detective told the investigating officer that she saw a man, later identified as a 38-year-old Detroit resident, try to leave the store without paying for the dictionary, which was concealed under his coat. When she tried to stop him, the detective said, the man ran for a blue Chevy Cavalier and drove off onto southbound I-275.

Police contacted the registered owner of the car, who said she'd loaned it to her son. The description of that individual matched that of the suspect, police said. The woman was advised to ask her son to contact police as soon as she next saw him.

The woman later called back and said that she had not seen him and had filed a missing person report with Detroit police. The case remains open.

ATTEMPTED B & E: Township police checked out two cases of attempted breaking and entering which occurred last week.

A Muirfield Lane resident on May 4 and a Dorland Drive resident on May 5 each reported that unknown persons had unsuccessfully tried to pry open their front doors. The Muirfield home sustained $300 in damage. The Dorland home $60.

Police arrested two 21-year-olds, one from Southfield and one from Detroit, who were in the area at the time of the break-ins. The men also face B&E charges in Livonia.

INDECENT EXPOSURE: A Plymouth woman told township police that a man had exposed himself to her on Hines Drive on May 7.

The woman, 33, said that the man committed the act near a cross-country running trail in Hines Park. She was not close enough to see his face clearly, the woman said. She did, however, provide police with a general description.

The woman said that the same man had also exposed himself to her at the same spot at same time of day last year.

Citizens with information about the above incidents are urged to call Northville City Police at 349-1234 or Northville Township Police at 349-9400.

Candidates line up for coveted posts

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

And they're off and running. . . The deadline for candidates who want to join partisan races across Michigan arrived at 4 p.m. on Tuesday, setting the stage for several very interesting primary challenges.

Democrats and Republicans will face off within their own parties in an Aug. 2 primary election. The top vote getters in each party will then battle each other in the general election on Nov. 8. The slate can still change, however. Candidates have until 4 p.m. Monday to pull their names from the ballot.

For Northville, the most hotly-contested race will likely be for the seat of retiring U.S. House of Representatives powerhouse Bill Ford.

His district includes Northville Township and the Wayne County portion of the City of Northville.

Other races including those areas are for the 20th State House district, the 9th State Senate District and the Wayne County Commission 10th District.

City residents who live in the Oakland County portion of Northville will have to wait for November before things get interesting. One Democrat and Republican each have filed for the four districts which represent them: the 17th Oakland County Commission District, the 38th State House District, the 15th State Senate District and the U.S. House 11th District.

Here are the list of candidates: ● In the U.S. House 13th District, three Democrats are in: Ann Arbor attorney Fulton Eaglin, David Geiss and state Rep. Lynn Rivers. The winner there will face the winner among four Republicans: former Bush aide John Schall, Dennis Fassett, Cynthia Wilbanks and perennial candidate Glen Kassel.

● In the State House 20th District, incumbent Jerry Vorva (R-Plymouth) will face a primary challenge from former state Rep. Gerry Law. The winner will face Democrat Carolyn Blanchard.

● In the state Senate 9th District, GOP Sen. Bob Geake will battle Richard Arlen and John McGraw Jr. in the primary. Democrats Mary Haney and Patrick O'Neil will square off to face the winner in November.

● Incumbent Wayne County Commissioner Thad McCotter (R-Livonia) faces no primary opposition. Neither does Democrat Carl Burnett.

● In the state House 38th District, incumbent GOP Rep. Willis Bullard Jr. and Democratic challenger Bob Harvey are unopposed in their primaries.

● The state Senate 15th District sees no opposition for either Democrat Vicki Barnett or incumbent GOP Sen. David Honigman.

● In the 17th District of the Oakland County Commission, incumbent Kay Schmid (R-Nowi) faces no opposition, and neither does Democrat Michael Meyer. Meyer, a Novi resident, is a member of the Novi school board.

● The U.S. House 11th District will also see a quiet primary. Incumbent Joe Knollenberg (R-Bloomfield Twp.) and Democrat Mike Bershold face off in November.

An era ended Saturday when Grandma Betty dealt out her specialty items for the last time.

Grandma Betty steps down from candy store business

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

Grandma Betty may not be behind the counter anymore, but her store remains open for business.

Elizabeth Burch, 69, owner and operator of Grandma Betty's Sweets-n-Treats, has sold the store and retired from the sweet-tooth business. Her last day was Saturday.

But purchasers of the penny candy that became her stock in trade need not fear—the store will remain open for business as a candy store.

Burch, who just completed negotiations with a new owner, noted that the search for the new "Grandma Betty" was a lengthy one. "It took me a long time to find the perfect person," she said.

She found that person in Renee Hunt, owner of Chocolates by Renee in Walled Lake and a supplier of chocolate candies to Grandma Betty's.

"I know she's got some great ideas," Burch said.

Grandma Betty's has become a much-loved tradition to local children over the years, and the loyalty of her young customers has impressed Burch.

"I'll miss the kids," she said. "In fact, I told Renee that if she needs someone to help out, I'll be around." Burch noted that the decision to sell was not an easy one. "I've been debating for two years whether to sell or not," she said.

The decision followed the retirement of her husband, Dr. Harold Burch, from his Dearborn dental practice in December. "That's why I finally decided to sell," she said. "We just want to be able to do some things."

The Burches, longtime supporters of Habitat for Humanity, were recently accepted to work on an upcoming construction project on a South Dakota Indian reservation. Retirement will also give the couple more time to visit their two sons and grandchildren in Massachusetts.

The couple plan to remain in Northville.

In its eight years at 124 North Center, Grandma Betty's changed with the times while remaining true to its youngest customers.

After buying the business from the Derrington family eight years ago, Burch did away with items like tobacco and modeled the shop after an old-fashioned country store. As shops selling similar items moved into town, she narrowed her focus to items like candy, gourmet coffee, spices and teas.

High school choir hits released

The Northville High School Choir Department has just completed a recording featuring a variety of pieces, including spirituals, music of the Renaissance, works from the 20th century and songs from South Africa.

The recording was made in two sessions by the Concert Choir, Northville Singers, Girls' Ensemble, TrebleMakers and Dischords. This keepsake recording is a source of pride for the department and for the Northville community.

The recording is available on compact disc and cassette. CD's run $15 and cassettes sell for $10.

To order, send checks payable to NHS Choir, to: Mary Kay Pryce, Northville High School, 775 N. Center, Northville, MI 48167.

Township grants most of parade committee's request

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

The Fourth of July parade committee came looking for Northville Township's help and got it—or most of it, at any rate.

The township's board of trustees at its April 28 meeting voted 5-1 (Trustee Gini Britton was absent) to donate $1,300 for this Independence Day's parade, contingent on the city of Northville's similar donation. That's less than the $1,950 the city has already approved and less than the committee was asking for.

Board members said they supported the parade but urged committee chair Debbie McDonald to see if the group could raise a third of the $3,900 needed from area businesses instead of splitting it between the city and township.

The group has been raising money for the parade for the past three years. Local non-profit groups and businesses have helped in the past.

McDonald said, but funds are getting harder and harder to find these days—hence the request for municipal help.

"We ask for your support for this tradition," she told the board.

The parade route begins and ends at the Northville Downs parking lot, staying within the city limits throughout. While some on the board said they wouldn't mind seeing part of it go through the township some year, they still supported the event.

"It's a community parade, regardless of whether it goes through the township or not," Supervisor Karen Baja said. "It's a neat part of our charm."

Most of the $3,900 covers fees or donations for bands which participate in the parade ($2,600).

The Northville City Council has approved a $1,950 donation contingent on the township's approving the same thing. Given the April 28 vote, the council is expected to consider the matter again soon.

The council also indicated that it donates about $2,400 in police and Department of Public Works manpower to the parade each year, McDonald added.

Treasurer Rick Engelland alone voted against the $1,300 donation, citing the fact that the money is not a budgeted item.

"I have philosophical concerns over the role of government in sponsoring this type of thing," Engelland said. "That's what we have chambers of commerce for."

Other members of the board agreed to some extent, reducing the request to the $1,300 mark and asking McDonald to seek other sources of support for the event.

The committee has received some money this year from local organizations and businesses, McDonald said, and added that the effort would continue.

"We're going to do what we have to do," she said. "We'll raise it if we can. If we can't find enough, we may have to do something else."

Swingin' for the fence

Bob Lattin gets in some batting practice as he prepares for the opening of the senior softball season. Northville seniors play at Fish Hatchery Park and will participate in the first game of the year May 16 in Livonia. The first home game is scheduled for May 18.

Historical society annual dinner

The Northville Historical Society's annual Progressive Dinner is set for this Saturday, May 14.

The evening will begin at 7 p.m. with appetizers at one of two homes in Edenderry Subdivision.

Dinner will be at an assigned home in Northville and dessert will be at the church at Mill Race Village. Music and dancing will close the evening.

Participants should have already received their evening assignments and menu packets. For further information or questions, call Marianne Barry at 349-5435.

The dinner is a fund-raiser for the Northville Historical Society, which operates Mill Race Historical Village, a museum complex of eight 19th-century buildings on Griswold in Northville.

The village will open for the 1994 season on Sunday, June 5.

Partisan campaign reform bill targets Democrats

By TIM RICHARD
Staff Writer

Legislative Republicans gleefully passed a campaign reform finance bill that will drastically curb organized labor's contributions to Democratic candidates.

"Rank partisanship," said Sen. Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills.

"This really does destroy the playing field. I think it is wrong. It makes me sick," said Sen. Fred Dillingham, R-Fowlerville, the only Republican to vote against the measure. A few days later, Dillingham, facing a stiff primary challenge, announced he would retire from the Legislature.

"It will let people know who sponsors a PAC (political action committee)," said Rep. Frank Fitzgerald, R-Grand Ledge, No. 3 in the GOP hierarchy. "Groups under similar control will be limited to a $5,000 contribution to House members."

The guts of House Bill 5416, now on its way to Gov. John Engler's certain signature, include a restriction that a parent union could give no more than $5,000 to a candidate. Locals of the same union would be unable to donate. The bill also would limit union dues checkoff procedures.

"So there is one PAC limit for the entire union for the whole state," said Sen. Debbie Stabenow, D-Lansing. "That union can be working in thousands of corporations. Each corporation is allowed to set up their own PAC. So you have thousands of businesses that can each set up their own PACs and, at most, 100 PACs for unions."

A gubernatorial hopeful, Stabenow said the bill would limit United Auto Workers to one PAC but give Chrysler, General Motors, Ford and individual companies one PAC each. "So now every single insurance company in the state can have a PAC," she said.

Rep. Kirk Proffitt, D-Ypsilanti, said the GOP bill will make campaigns more corrupt.

"The primary cause of corruption," he said, "is the excessive amount of money flowing in exponentially increasing amounts into candidate committees and officeholder expense funds. This will actually increase the amount of money in the election process," said Proffitt, a declared congressional candidate.

The Senate passed the bill with 20 Republican votes against 14 Democratic and one Republican votes. Two Democrats were absent.

Late the same evening, the House beat a dozen Democratic amendments and passed the bill by 54 Republican votes to 40 Democratic votes.

All area representatives voted with their parties.

Republicans kept one session going until 1:10 a.m. to pass another anti-Democratic measure, Senate Bill 3, which removes political parties, candidate committees and ballot issue committees from the list of charitable groups eligible to run bingos.

The 55-40 House vote also followed party lines.

That bill, previously passed by the Senate, is expected to cost Democrats from Oakland and Macomb counties millions in revenue. In most major counties, the Democratic Party outranks churches and civic clubs as the biggest operator of bingo games.

House action on the two campaign bills and the bill to curb teachers union bargaining power came while the GOP had a temporary 55-52 majority due to three vacancies in districts held by Democrats. Voters last week filled those seats with Democrats, restoring the 55-55 logjam that existed previously.

Former mayor hit with recall effort in new position

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

Former Northville Mayor Paul Vernon—who moved north six years ago hoping to enjoy his retirement from elected office—instead has found himself embroiled in controversy as the township supervisor of Central Lake.

Vernon is the subject of a recall petition stemming from his support of an anti-blight ordinance and other planning and zoning efforts in the small Antrim County community of less than 2,000.

Petitioners have just under six months to collect 157 signatures to put the recall to a vote.

The controversy stems back more than a year, when a previous recall effort against Vernon and three other township officials died for lack of support.

A fifth official, former township clerk Marilyn Lucas, was ousted last August in a special recall vote following clashes with Vernon over the right of the clerk's office to purchase items without prior approval and charges that she used a township credit card for personal purchases and prepared an inaccurate budget report.

The recall petitions state that Vernon "does not have the township's best interests in mind, with his continuing support of a planning commission, zoning board and anti-blight ordinance."

"At least to me, it seems that he's representing resorters more than the average Joe that lives up here," said Central Lake resident Pat Hanlon.

Hanlon cited Vernon's support for an anti-blight ordinance that would regulate the storage and placement of firewood on people's properties, among other things.

"We don't live like that and we don't want to live like that," Hanlon said. "We live in a rural area."

The proposed ordinance was shelved following public opposition at two township meetings.

Vernon said the recall effort is the work of a small group of people who disagree with him on planning issues.

"To me it's a misuse of the recall process," he said. "A recall is intended to remove somebody from office for a wrongdoing, not over a difference of opinion."

Vernon said he had no intention of becoming supervisor when he first moved to Central Lake, but agreed to be appointed to the post after the previous supervisor resigned suddenly. He stood for election to the post in 1992, he said, when no other viable candidates came forward. He was elected over the one other candidate by a wide margin.

Now that he holds office, Vernon said, he will not surrender it because of a vocal minority's complaints.

"I will not be intimidated by this effort to recall me," he said. "I intend to fight this to the end, now that they've made an issue out of it."

Vernon served as Northville mayor for 10 years and was a driving force behind the Mainstreet '78 renovations that transformed the city's downtown. He was first elected in 1977 following the retirement of A. Malcolm Allen. Voters returned Vernon to the two-year post four more times before he decided to retire.

His departure capped years of public service in Northville including six years as city council member before being elected mayor, and stints on the Downtown Development Authority, Historic District Commission, Beautification Commission and as president of the Northville Rotary Club.

Vernon's wife Norma was also active in the Northville Beautification Commission.

The New Life Center at Providence Park

Where families are born...close to home

A COMFORTABLE ATMOSPHERE

Imagine giving birth in a comfortable, home-like atmosphere where you make many of the decisions about your birth experience. And then, think about being able to go home within 24 hours after your baby is born. Well, the New Life Center at Providence Park in Novi offers all that, and it's just minutes from home.

A UNIQUE APPROACH

It's a new beginning. A new way of thinking. And an alternative to traditional hospital births*. The New Life Center at Providence Park was born from the success of the New Life Center at Providence Hospital, where for generations, thousands of women have had wonderful, nurturing, family-centered birth experiences.

THE CHOICES ARE MANY

From the moment you choose to have your baby with us, many decisions are yours. You may choose to go natural or to have an epidural. You may also prefer to share the event with your loved ones. But the best part is giving birth in a relaxed, home-like atmosphere and having your baby by your side. What's more, a nurse will come to your home for private, follow-up visits. Because that's the kind of extra care, attention and education people expect from Providence.

COME SEE FOR YOURSELF But don't take our word for it. Call 1-800-806-BABY for an appointment to see what the New Life Center at Providence Park has to offer expectant families.

Outdoor movie series planned for local teens

By STEVE KELLMAN
Staff Writer

While community leaders debate how to respond to rising rates of substance abuse among local teens, the Northville Teen Task Force and Northville Action Council have a few ideas of their own.

The ideas involve giving teenagers an alternative to drinking alcohol and doing drugs.

Jacque Martin-Downs, Student Assistance Director for the Community Commission on Drug Abuse, announced the formation of an outdoor movie series for local teens, entitled "Nights Under the Stars." The eight-week program, based on a similar series in Ann Arbor, involves showing movies on the outside wall of Old Village School on Friday nights.

Local service organizations can sponsor specific nights by paying the $90-$200 rental costs for the films and providing chaperones for the event. They will be given the opportunity to set up fund-raising concession stands on the nights they sponsor.

An advisory meeting on "Nights Under the Stars" has been scheduled for 7 p.m. Thursday, May 19, at Northville City Hall. Teens and adults alike are invited to attend.

A juried student art market will be held those nights as well, at the Main Street Bandshell, in conjunction with the summer concert series. Movie series sponsors can call Roxanne Casterline at 349-1237 for more information.

Martin-Downs noted that the idea for the film festival grew out of the task force's original concept of a free-standing youth activities center. That idea has been shelved while the task force attempts to gauge youth interest in events like "Nights Under the Stars."

The task force will hold its year-end meeting at 9 a.m. June 8, at Northville City Hall.

Task force wonders how to cut drug abuse

joke. They don't think it'll happen to them."

Community Commission on Drug Abuse (CCODA) Director John Farrar suggested the establishment of a Zero Tolerance Community Model in Northville in light of the survey's results. The model, he explained, involves gathering key community leaders together to come up with ways for groups like police, the recreation department, schools and the business community to encourage zero tolerance of alcohol and drug use among youths under the age of 21.

Participants in the May 4 meeting selected the community leaders they thought should be involved, including the mayor and supervisor, a chamber of commerce representative, church pastor, school superintendent, 35th District Court Judge and PTA president.

The students suggested representation from a student recovering from alcohol or drug use, a parent of a recovering student, and a "regular" student. Summit members decided to establish working committees that could include those people.

While all agreed that something should be done, there was some dissension over the level of response needed and where the response needs to start.

School board candidate and former township manager Bill Richards noted that advertising on billboards and at liquor stores often glamorizes alcohol consumption, and suggested that more restrictive sign ordinances and public protests could be used to get such signage removed.

Local attorney David Jerome added that tougher laws regarding alcohol consumption would help.

"Right now, if you're charged with drunk driving, you can automatically plead it down," he said, suggesting that forbidding plea-bargaining on such arrests would go a long way toward eliminating the problem of drinking and driving.

Local law enforcers noted that cracking down on alcohol abuse is not as easy as enacting an ordinance, though that's what the community tried in 1991 with the passage of an open house party ordinance that holds adults responsible for parties at residences under their control.

"It's been used rather sparingly," said City Police Chief Rod Cannon. Cannon noted that the city is just now prosecuting its first case under the ordinance.

"We're watching the outcome of that," he said.

"I will suggest to you that there's a lot of dissent over the ordinance," added Township Public Safety Director Chip Snider, in whose jurisdiction the legislation has been used twice. "It's not been all positive."

Snider added that any new programs cracking down on substance abuse will have to have the support of elected municipal leaders as well as department heads like himself.

"I know I need political support. When these calls come to the board members, I need to know they support the concept," he said.

Township Supervisor Karen Baja suggested tighter control over alcohol consumption rather than banning it outright.

"Not to seem a naysayer, but they tried outlawing alcohol once and it wasn't successful," she said.

Mill Race Village opens June 5

Mill Race Historical Village will inaugurate its 1994 season on Sunday, June 5.

The museum will be open every Sunday through October from 1-4 p.m. Guided tours will be available from trained docents. Admission to the village is free, and donations are appreciated.

To celebrate opening day this year, several writers and local historians will be on hand.

Helen Gilbert, who wrote Tonguish Tales, Jean Fox, the author of several books on the history of Farmington, and Barbara Louie, who wrote No. 17

On the Trail, a history of Novi, will all be available to discuss local history and autograph copies of their books.

Photographer Renee Brown also will visit as will members of the Farmington Historical Society.

All buildings will be open for viewing.

The village will offer longer office hours this year, with a staff person in the office from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Monday through Friday 9-1.

Mill Race is a compound of eight 19th century buildings located on Griswold in Northville. There are two ex-residences, an old school house, a former church and an exact replica of a blacksmith's shop, among other structures.

The authentic buildings were moved from various locations in the city to the village site.

Party ordinance gets first trial

lowing the truck's tracks through freshly-fallen snow to a nearby apartment complex. The deserted truck was found with its windshield covered with ice and snow and both windows rolled down.

Police caught up with the truck's teen-age owner and a friend minutes later at a pay phone at Eight Mile and Taft. The owner, from Plymouth, said a third youth had driven the truck and handed him the keys as they ran from it, but he could not identify the youth.

The truck owner's friend, a Canton youth, told police that he had been assaulted at the Charleston Court party when he walked outside and was struck in the head with a glass bottle and stabbed with an unknown object. The youth had a large bump and cut on his forehead and scratches on his abdomen. Because he had been drinking, he was taken into custody until his father arrived to pick him up.

Back at the party, Stepchuk told police that someone had stolen $200 from her purse that evening. Because of the crowd of people attending the party, police told her there was little chance the culprit could be found.

Those are not the only losses Stepchuk faces. She could be ordered to pay $500 in fines or spend 90 days in jail if found guilty of violating the ordinance.

The 1991 ordinance makes it illegal for anyone 17 or older to host a party where alcohol or controlled substances are consumed by minors. It mirrors an ordinance passed that same year in Northville Township that has been used twice in the past three years.

City Police Chief Rod Cannon noted that the ordinance was used in the Stepchuk case because the ordinance was "satisfying the ordinance," he said.

Those ingredients included an unsupervised party, uninvited guests, alcohol and complaints from several neighbors.

Cannon said the charge, which the Stepchuks are contesting, could become a test case for the ordinance. "We'll see if the system works," he said.

The Stepchuks could not be reached for comment.

Their adoption followed a Northville Township teen-ager's party in February 1991 that drew an estimated 300 invited and uninvited revelers and resulted in more than $42,000 in damages to the property.

The teen's parents returned from a vacation to find their home devastated, with hundreds of beer cans and bottles strewn around, vomit stains and cigarette burns on carpeting throughout the house and holes punched in the walls.

The local ordinances will be supplemented by a new state law that takes effect June 1.

Under the new law, any adult hosting a party or renting a room or limousine to alcohol-drinking high school students faces a $1,000 fine or 30 days in jail for a first offense. A second offense could draw a 90-day jail term.

Manager hunt process begins

pectations and to discuss the process of selection," Habelmann said at the meeting.

The reason things are likely to take so long, he explained, is because "things are slower in the summer and because your candidate will need to give notice at his or her other job," he said.

Two important steps, Habelmann said, are for the board to produce a "candidate specifications profile." It will describe the job's exact responsibilities and include board members' list of the qualities they're looking for in the person to fill the open slot.

In order to make advertising deadlines for the June issues of the trade magazines, Habelmann asked board members to expedite their comments to him so that he could craft an ad to submit for their approval.

Resumes should begin to come in soon, he indicated. His company will coordinate with the board's executive search committee on reviewing applications and lining up interviews, Habelmann said. That part of the process should begin in earnest at the end of June or beginning of July, he said.

After shortlisting a group of finalists and interviewing them, the board can then explore detailed negotiations and strike a deal. A new manager could be on board by August or September, depending on how things go, Habelmann said.

What about the possibility of a township/city consolidation, some on the board asked?

Habelmann agreed with them that the township "should be up front about that," but suggested discussing it in detail only once the board has a short list of candidates.

Library board eyes post-passage moves

Some board members quibbled over how much work the seven-member appointed board should do before they stand for election in November. Others wondered how soon the board could levy its 1 mill for operating expenses, to extend hours of operation at the existing library and improve programs.

Current city and township millages to fund library services under the shared services arrangement run through the end of this year.

Whatever their decision on those issues, board members agreed that their first order of business is to beef up services at city hall.

"We have to think about running this thing without a building," said Board Member William Brown.

The board meets in a special session tonight at 7:30 p.m. at city hall to continue that process.

The Cady Street site that is the probably location of the new library is owned in part by the city and in part by the school district.

Both entities have agreed not to charge the library board to either lease or purchase the land.

OLV Olympians

A team of seventh and eighth grade students from Our Lady of Victory School recently represented Wayne County at the state Science Olympiad. The competition was held April 23 at Michigan State University. Forty teams of students from around the state competed in the junior high school division of the meet. OLV qualified by placing second at the county tournament held in March. The student team, in no particular order, was composed of: Ted Stapleton, Joe Hubert, Danielle Raub, Leigha Agoston, Rick Hoeg, Anne Obrecht, Jeff Korreck, Jeff Brazuinas, Amadeo Sturla, Erin Roberts, Sarah Townsend, Mary Lu Hemme, Hughean Roseberry, David Nay and Matt Walle. The team placed third in Mousetrap; fourth in What Are You Trying to Tell Me? Earth Science and Water Quality; and sixth in Write It, Do It. The team finished 17th out of 40 in the overall ratings. Coaches were Donna Valente and Linda Okasinski.

Preschool is offering new classes for this fall

Northville Co-op Preschool is offering two new classes this fall.

A Tuesday and Thursday morning class for 4-year-olds and a Tuesday and Thursday afternoon class for young 5-year-olds have been scheduled.

For more information, call 348-1791.

The school is a non-profit cooperative which uses rooms in First Presbyterian Church, 200 E. Main. Parents with children in the school must agree to spend time working in the classroom and are assigned one additional job to perform.

Tuition goes to pay for rent, teachers' salaries and materials.

Sheep are sheared at Maybury this week

"Baa, baa black sheep have you any wool? Yes sir, yes sir, three bags full."

The nursery rhyme may sound all too familiar to most but to witness an actual sheep shearing is not an everyday event.

On Saturday and Sunday, May 14 and 15, and again the following weekend on May 21 and 22, Maybury State Park will feature sheep shearing demonstrations at the Living Farm from 1 to 4 p.m. The Living Farm is open daily from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m.

Auto care Q & A is planned for May 17

Questions about automotive care will be answered free of charge at the Tuffy Service Center in the Highland Lakes Shopping plaza Tuesday, May 17.

A mechanic will be on hand to field motorists' questions on a variety of topics, including overheating, changing a tire, driving in inclement weather, programming a radio and checking belts and hoses.

The question-and-answer program begins at 7:30 p.m. and will run until all questions are answered.

Coffee will be available. Highland Lakes is on Seven Mile east of Northville Road.

BOTSFORD GENERAL HOSPITAL

People are talking...

As we celebrate National Hospital Week, we want to recognize our employees and staff, who create the team that brings to this hospital and to this community excellence in patient care.

This appreciation is best expressed by those who experience this caring and commitment first hand... our patients.

"Your Medical Social Worker entered into our lives and without her I don't know if I could have handled the situation."

"During all aspects of my wife's peri-operative experience, I observed a very caring and professional staff."

"The radiology technician who was assigned to my case exuded an air of professionalism that reflected well on your hospital."

"To all those patient and cheerful therapists, the ever-willing-to-help nurses, all the friendly personnel, the food service staff, and the day-brightening volunteers. God bless each and every one! They have our admiration and gratitude."

"My wife and I cannot find the adjectives to fully express our appreciation for the attention and care I was given from the time we arrived in the Emergency Department to the day of discharge."

"Your Diabetes Program was a very good program. While some lifestyle changes will take longer, the class has given me an advantageous and positive direction to go!"

"I was especially impressed with the staff of the Acute Care Unit."

"From Pre-Admission Testing, to leaving the hospital, to the call from Recovery to check how I was doing, I was impressed — your staff is remarkable."

"We want you to know how much we enjoy the special meetings and luncheons sponsored by ElderMed at Botsford."

"First, I would like to commend you and the board of directors on your choice of administrative policies that affect the patients that you serve at the facility. All of my experiences with your entire staff were of a "positive" superb quality."

We thank you for being part of a mission that commits our organization to compassionate, quality health care.

Homes 'fore' Brooklane golf course

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

Could homes soon surround Brooklane Golf Course?

An area developer has bought up land near the intersection of Six Mile and Sheldon, including Brooklane, which occupies its southeast corner.

Plans are under discussion for a single-family subdivision, Northville Township Director of Planning Carol Maise said. She said that the plans include keeping the golf course open.

Grand Sakwa Properties of Farmington Hills is said to be the buyer. Company head Gary Sakwa this week declined to comment on the situation.

Members of the township's planning commission are scheduled for a walking review of the site later this month and are expected to see specific development plans in coming weeks.

Where Miracles Happen Every Day

National Hospital Week

May 8-14

Thanks for the miracles!
...to the health care staff that makes them happen.
and to our community for your support...

Pick a day—any day—in the life of a hospital. How many miracles do we see? Can we count them all? And just because we see them every day, are they any less miraculous?

Miracles are born of spirit and dedication, knowledge and perseverance, commitment and care. And we're fortunate, each of us, to be more than a witness to it — we are part of it.

One exceptional week a year we take the time to salute you—our health care staff who helps bring about the miracles we see at St. Mary Hospital every day.

And to the community we serve—the individuals, organizations, businesses and schools which provide a network through which we deliver health care.

We thank each of you for your devotion to our patients, our cause and our hospital.

Outstate counties seek fair share for courts

By TIM RICHARD
Staff Writer

State government would take on a larger burden of court funding under a reform movement taking shape in the Legislature.

That's fine with Rep. Willis Bullard and District Judge Michael Batchik. They praised Chief Justice Michael Cavanagh when he urged them to assess the proper balance for the sharing of costs between local and state funding sources. Cavanagh held an olive branch of cooperation in place of the long-standing battle lines between the courts and the rest of government.

"Think of your recent accomplishments," said the complimentary Cavanagh, referring to the massive transfer of school funding responsibility from local property taxes to the state. Cavanagh, in his second year as chief justice, last Thursday made his first "state of the judiciary" address to a joint session of the House and Senate.

"It won't happen this year, but it will be faced," said Rep. Frank Fitzgerald, R-Grand Ledge, third-ranking Republican in the House.

The state pays about 31 percent of the cost of circuit, probate and district courts. Under a deal cut with Gov. William Milliken in the early 1980s, the state picked up the entire cost of Wayne County and Detroit courts the first year. In later years, it was to pick up the cost of suburban Wayne and the 82 other counties' courts.

"Tomorrow" never came, however. Outstate counties are suing for equity, and their lawmakers last week began the debate.

"They need some (additional) funding," said Bullard, R-Milford, an attorney and former township supervisor. "When we enact laws, we need to give more tools to the judiciary."

Bullard noted the Legislature already had redistricted the Court of Appeals and added four judges.

Bullard said he voted for the budget amendment to put more state money into the other 82 counties' courts because "we can't fund just one county's courts."

"His tone was conciliatory and cooperative," said Batchik, judge in the 52nd District Court-2nd Division, covering Walled Lake, Novi, the South Lyon area and the Milford area. "There's no doubt some courts need help in financing."

"He stressed cooperation between the branches," said William Hampton, former state senator and Oakland circuit judge, now in private practice. "The Legislature has to be cognizant that when they enact new crimes and causes of action, the reporting requirements will have a ripple effect into the judiciary."

"I wonder how the justices and Court of Appeals judges feel about our taking away their cars," said Rep.

Jerry Vorva, R-Plymouth.

Vorva, whose district includes Northville, supported a budget amendment designed to take away state-paid autos from Supreme Court justices and Appeals Court judges. His group argued that judges are paid more than $100,000, have generous health benefits and will get pensions free from the state income tax.

Cavanagh, making his first "state of the judiciary" address to a joint session of the Legislature in his two years as chief justice of Michigan's Supreme Court, said courts need more money because they must:

- Deal with drunk driving cases as a top priority in 77 days.
- Collect traffic ticket surcharges and distribute them.
- Collect crime victim assessments and restitution.
- Collect health department fees in paternity cases.
- Collect forensic lab fees in criminal convictions.
- Facilitate entry of probation conditions on police computer network.
- Provide interpreters to "persons who are not native speakers of English as well as the hearing impaired."

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING ON INCREASING PROPERTY TAXES

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that on May 18, 1994, at 7:30 o'clock p.m. DST, at the Board Room, the Board of Trustees of Schoolcraft College will hold a public hearing on the levying in 1994 of an estimated additional proposed millage rate of .0534 mills for operating purposes pursuant to Act 5, Public Acts of Michigan, 1982.

The Board of Trustees has the complete authority to establish that 2.27 mills be levied in 1994 from within its present authorized millage rate.

The maximum additional proposed millage rate would increase revenues for operating purposes from ad valorem property tax levies in 1993 otherwise permitted by Act 5, Public Acts of Michigan, 1982, by an estimated three and one-half percent (3.5%).

The figure for increase in revenue for operating purposes is based on the latest estimate of state equalized valuation of property located within the College District. In the event that state equalized valuation as finalized is for any reason higher than the estimate used for this hearing, the Board of Trustees must hold another public hearing before levying millage on any higher valuation.

The purpose of the hearing is to receive testimony and discuss the levy of an additional millage rate. Not less than seven (7) days following the public hearing, the Board of Trustees may approve all or any portion of the proposed additional millage rate.

This notice is given by the Board of Trustees.

Mill Race Matters

Members and friends of the Northville Historical Society will gather Saturday evening to once again share one of the many highlights of Northville's year, the annual Progressive Dinner.

This year the event will begin with appetizers in local homes, move to additional residences for the main course and then conclude at Mill Race Village for dessert and entertainment. By now those who have registered should have received their instructions for food preparation and meal destinations. Hope everyone has a great time.

Next Thursday, May 19, members will meet for the Society's annual meeting/potluck supper which begins at 6:30. Bring a dish to pass. The evening will be highlighted by a presentation from Jo Marie Soszynski who will talk about creating Victorian costuming from items available in your homes. Members will also receive an overview of the year's activities and hold election of officers for the coming year.

Thank you this week go to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Drew and the Paint Creek Quarters for their donations and to the Waterford Bend Quarters for their memorial in honor of Marian Roller, a charter member of that organization. Thanks also to Richard McCoy for the lovely aerial photograph of the Village. Also a special thank you to Pam (nee Parmenter) and Mirilla Berryman for passing on the girl graduate book from 1921.

Look for a special Mill Race opening this spring on Sunday, June 5. The Village returns to its previous 1 to 4 p.m. schedule. On the first Sunday local area writers and photographers have been invited to share their work. Autographed copies will be available for sale. All buildings will be open for viewing. The Historical Society looks forward to welcoming all members and friends on that Sunday.

In preparation for the June 5 opening a training session will be held on Saturday, June 4, beginning at 1 p.m. for anyone interested in working as a volunteer docent during the summer.

This year mature young people are being encouraged to join former docents in presenting the historic village to visitors. Mill Race Village serves as one of our community's most valuable assets and should be presented enthusiastically. If you are interested in participating call 348-1845 or join us on June 4. Let's show our visitors what a truly friendly community Northville is.

Board agrees to oversee OIS sewer

the county commission's final approval if the township agrees to the plan. That means that work can begin during this summer's prime building season.

While members of the board expressed their support for the speedier schedule, they said they wanted to make sure that the township wasn't going out on a financial limb for it.

The county is picking up the tab for all the work. Board members raised concerns, however, over what might happen if it was late in paying.

At issue is when a new OIS manufacturing plant can be opened in the township, something officials on both sides say they want to see happen as quickly as possible.

Now based in Troy, OIS last year announced that it was moving to the new site. It bought 30 acres of land in the township from the county for $10. The plant that land will host is going to build flat-panel computer screens for the Air Force.

The land is part of some 840-odd acres the county owns between Beck, Sheldon, Five and Six Mile Roads. Officials said the $10 sale will pay off by bringing millions of dollars in investment and hundreds of new jobs to the area.

Before that can happen, however, the plant has to open. Before it can open it needs a sewer line. The fastest way to get one built, county officials say, is to have the township handle the project. They want the township, through the engineering firm, to take over the bidding, approval and supervisory processes of the job.

The county will pay the bills, officials say, and the draft contract the trustees considered at the April 28 meeting clearly states that fact as well. What concerned some members of the board was what would happen if the county was late with payments for the $1.2 million project.

Some trustees questioned if work would have to stop while firms waited for their money. Others said they wanted to minimize the chances that the township would have to dog the county to make sure payment was made, meaning a lot of administrative headaches and attorney fees. Most of all, they wanted to make sure that the township couldn't get stuck for any part of the sewer's cost if the county didn't pay.

"I don't see the vendors ever thinking that we're responsible for their bills. The county is," Trustee Barbara Strong O'Brien said.

The board discussed some ideas to make sure a problem didn't develop. Clerk Sue Hillebrand proposed that the township demand that the county put up the entire $1.2 million in advance, instead of the $400,000 now proposed.

That can't happen, a county spokeswoman said at the meeting. The $400,000 is coming from the county's general fund, she said, which doesn't have any more to spare for the project right now. It was planning on giving the township the money for the project in phases as the bills came due.

The commission has given conceptual approval for a bond sale to cover its $1.2 million cost. Once the bonds are sold, the county plans to reimburse its general fund.

Director of Public Utilities Bill Anderson said that it would take about 30 days to bid the sewer project jobs out and 60 more days to complete the work. Waiting for final approval of the bond issue would push that timeline back another two months at least, officials estimate.

Trustee Mark Abbo suggested a compromise position.

"We trust you once," he said. "If you're late, that's it. We stop work and say that you deposit the whole amount or the deal's off."

The contract should require the county as well to cover any of the township's administrative or legal costs if it was late with payments, Abbo said.

"And that the sewer does not flow until we're totally paid off," Strong O'Brien added.

The spokeswoman appealed for a kinder, gentler attitude.

"We need to feel we're working together on this," she said, "to get sewer service to a property you and we both want developed."

"I'm just disturbed that the county isn't further along in the process," Hillebrand later said. "This didn't happen last week."

Choir heads to Chicago to sing at Cubs game

The Northville High School Concert Choir will leave on Friday, May 20, for a four-day tour to Chicago. While in Chicago the group will attend performances of the Medieval Times dinner theater and Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat.

Choir members will also tour the Shedd Aquarium and the Art Institute of Chicago.

The choir will perform the National Anthem at Wrigley Field for the Chicago Cubs baseball game. The game will be televised so the Northville community will have a chance to hear the students sing. The group will also be performing an exchange concert with the students at Hinsdale High School outside of Chicago.

Fifty students and 10 adults will be on the trip that will be topped off with a cruise on the "Spirit of Chicago."

Schoolcraft holds tax hearing

The Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees will hold a Truth-in-Taxation hearing Wednesday, May 18.

The open hearing is meant to inform the public about the school's rate of taxation for the coming year.

Property owners in the Schoolcraft district are currently assessed 1.88 mills of property tax to provide funding for the 2-year college. The proposed new rate is 1.873 mills, down approximately .007 from fiscal year 1993.

Despite the decline, the amount of revenue the college will collect will increase, due to higher property assessments and new construction within the district. The higher revenue total obligates the school to hold the Truth-in-Taxation hearing.

School districts in the Schoolcraft community are Northville, Plymouth-Canton, Garden City, Livonia and Clarenceville.

The Truth-in-Taxation hearing will take place at 7:30 p.m. in the board room of the Grote Administration center.

Radial Keratotomy Institute of Michigan

Specializing in Refractive Surgery

A LEADER IN CORRECTIVE EYE SURGERY

Radial Keratotomy is an amazing procedure which can quickly and safely correct nearsightedness and astigmatism. RK has made a dramatic difference in the lives of millions of people and may do the same for you. If you would like to learn more, call us day or night at 1-800-826-3937 to schedule a free, on obligation consultation with Dr. Robert Beitman.

Dear Dr. Beitman

I would like to commend you and your staff on a job well done. I am very pleased with my experience with you and your staff. Being a Manager of a Customer Support Department, I expect the best from my employees when it comes to providing good customer service. I also expect excellent service whenever I am the customer. I felt that the service received at your office exceeded my expectations.

Starting with my initial phone call requesting a consultation, my experiences were very pleasant. After watching the video, reading the various pieces of literature and talking with Peggy and yourself, I felt very comfortable with my decision to have RK performed at your office. Julie, Carla, Nat and Sue just made the experience even more pleasant. (I hope I remembered all their names correctly). The personalities of these individuals actually made the experience fun. (It's hard to believe that going to a doctor's office can be fun). During the tests and examinations, your staff was professional and personable. The conversations and joking that we had made the testing process go very quickly.

The actual surgery itself was painless and much quicker than I had imagined. I am definitely a "big chicken" when it comes to having anyone (including me) near my eyes. I was amazed that I made it through the surgery on my first eye, and still had the desire to have my second eye done. In the back of my mind, I thought for sure that I might not have enough nerve to return to have my other eye done. Considering I actually was looking forward to my second surgery, you and your staff must have done a good job.

It has really been fantastic to be able to do whatever I want without wearing glasses. I am still not used to going through the day without them. I find myself trying to adjust my glasses, even though I am not wearing them. Hopefully, I will be able to break this habit soon. Having people watch me reaching for glasses that don't exist is getting very embarrassing. I would be happy to talk to any of your future clients regarding you, your staff and RK. Feel free to give them my number.

Sincerely, Joseph K. Chriss

Connection plans for pumps possible

to its yard or directly into a storm sewer, Director of Public Utilities Bill Anderson said—a situation that has changed in the two subdivisions under scrutiny.

"The gist of the situation is that some people's sump pumps in that area ran so much that the water was destroying their lawns and creating problems with icing of the roads in the winter when it overflowed," Anderson said. "To alleviate that, some people hooked their pumps up to sanitary sewers."

Water and Sewer surveyed the 574 homes in the two subdivisions in November, asking where their sump pump discharged. Nearly 90 percent responded.

Some 112 homeowners said their sump pumps were connected into the sanitary sewer system (almost 20 percent of the total); 390 said they weren't; 11 didn't know and 61 didn't return the form.

"A lot of people didn't even know it's illegal to hook your sump pump into the sanitary sewer," Anderson said in describing the surprise of some of the 112 homeowners.

He hastened to add that township officials aren't looking to nail people for violations.

"We're looking to work with the homeowners to fix this problem," he said.

A solution has to be found, officials say, because of the law, the cost and a mandate from the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (MDNR) to eliminate excess clear water from sanitary sewers.

"We have to do something," Anderson said. "That water doesn't need to undergo the expensive treatment processes that the sanitary sewer flow does."

His department's solution: extend new storm sewer lines in the area off of existing lines and connect some or all of the homes there to them. To pay for it, a special assessment district (SAD) would be set up.

That raises a controversial question for the board: should such an SAD include only those who are connected to the sanitary sewer and those who voluntarily decide to join it to avoid potential future problems? Or should the township force all 574 homeowners to hook into the new system, regardless of whether they have a problem or the potential for one?

Normally, a proposed SAD requires a majority of the property owners within its boundary to approve it. The township can, however, force owners to participate in an SAD if the board decides that the proposed improvement is necessary for the safety and welfare of the community.

The question of voluntary or enforced participation is a contentious one. A Water and Sewer report said that if an SAD were applied only for the construction costs involved and only to the 112 homeowners who said they're illegally connected, the total cost of the project would be $375,000. That works out to $3,350 per home or $400 a year for 15 years.

Other costs homeowners would face include hiring a plumber to redo the connections, which can run anywhere from $100 to $1,000.

The report suggests that the township agree to cover the costs of engineering review and design and legal costs involved in pursuing easements and so on. One estimate put that cost at $70,000.

Township utility users as a whole, however, would save tens of thousands a year if the connections were made, the report said. The discharges will run about $35,000 this year, it said, meaning a net cost of more than $1 million over the next 25 years if that figure remains constant.

Anderson said that the cost of the project per house would not go up much if some homes are left out of the SAD. The work that's required to hook up 112 homes isn't that much more than what it would take to hook up all 574, he said.

That led to concerns from some on the board about what the best move was.

Teacher wins in mental stress case

By TIM RICHARD
Staff Writer

"Crazy old loony!" said the defiant student at Detroit's Cooley High School after his art teacher told him to close the door.

"Crazy old loony, crazy old loony!" chanted the rest of the class.

That was the end for Thomas Boyle of Garden City. On Jan. 4, 1984, he ended his increasingly unhappy, 30-year career with Detroit Public Schools. Boyle applied for mental disability benefits under the workers compensation law.

Ten years later, Boyle won those benefits in the Michigan Supreme Court. It said he must be compensated for a mental injury the same as for a physical injury.

The "crazy-old-loony" chant was the straw that broke him. Since the 1970s at Cooley, "student conduct had markedly declined, and his art class became a 'dumping ground' for problem students who were falling other subjects. He flunked 80 to 90 percent of his students in some classes because of high absenteeism or inattention," said Chief Justice Michael Cavanagh's majority opinion.

Students straggled in 30 or 40 minutes late. Boyle's advanced classes—"the bright spot of his day"—were cancelled. His complaint that another teacher let students carve up tables and drip paint on furniture went unresolved. He considered it unprofessional conduct when other faculty had sex with students.

He drank heavily for several years and one day "destroyed his apartment and apparently attempted suicide," the high court said. He spent three weeks in a hospital for alcohol dependency and psychiatric counseling.

A work-related mental disability? No, said the Workers Compensation Appeal Board. Those events were "general allegations of stress and anxiety," not "actual events" required by law to prove mental disability.

No, agreed the Court of Appeals.

Wrong, said a 5-2 majority of the Supreme Court last week. It sent Boyle's case back for determination of workers comp benefits.

In the same opinion, the court ruled in favor of a Flint school secretary and a Van Buren school janitor who also claimed mental disability on the basis of events at work.

Dissenting were Justices Dorothy Comstock Riley and Robert Griffin. They said "the majority advocates a highly subjective standard for work-related mental disabilities," adding:

"The effect of the majority view would be to make employers the insurers of their workers' wage losses for mental disabilities without necessarily establishing an adequate causal link."

Justice James Brickley agreed with the majority on art teacher Boyle and the Van Buren janitor but would have ruled against the Flint secretary.

Veteran Detroit labor lawyer Theodore Sachs argued Boyle's case before the justices.

Cavanagh's majority opinion will send a message to school employees, in particular, that losing a finger in a machine is not the only kind of injury a worker can suffer.

RECORD OPINION

THURSDAY

Our Opinion

Clearing continues, though most object

More than one Northville Township resident has recognized the irony of what is happening at the northwest corner of Seven Mile and Haggerty roads.

That side of the intersection, once a dense wooded range of earth, is now a busy construction site with machines clearing the way for a home improvement retail store and a sprawling residential development.

Where once tall trees and thick foliage grew, felled logs now form heaps of rubble, digging equipment has opened large depressions in the ground and a rising pile of wood scraps overlooks the scene.

Adding insult to injury, a sign in the foreground reads: "Welcome to Northville Twp.—Tree City U.S.A."

Upset residents have called our office asking us to photograph the corner as a testimonial to what they fear may be an unstoppable trend in the township: the wasting of the natural environment in favor of concrete and mortar.

One reader didn't wait for us to take a picture—she sent us one she took herself, reproduced in the column at right.

It is certainly easy to understand the consternation of people who see their surroundings changing rapidly before their eyes. Many people who bought homes in Northville Township no doubt chose to settle there because of the community's semi-rural character. Now, they see a proliferation of new restaurants, businesses and neighborhoods and hear how a parade of developers is drooling over the commercial possibilities of the prized Haggerty Corridor.

But while it is easy to sympathize with township preservationists, it is also well to point out that government has no right to deny land owners the opportunity to develop their property. This is still a free country and as long as people meet all reasonable restrictions relating to infrastructure and zoning, their right to do what they want with the land they own cannot be abridged.

Township residents who lament the sacrifice of the environment at the hands of exploitative developers are entitled to yearn for quieter times when great tracts of virgin forest were everywhere in evidence, but they shouldn't blame their governmental representatives for failing to stop the building. Only so much can be done to ensure responsible development, but at some point a person's rights of ownership take over and nothing more can or should be attempted.

Hopefully, planners and elected representatives will always treasure the township's natural beauty and work to safeguard the environment for current and future generations.

But no one should expect construction to completely grind to a halt, even if it means finding more appropriate locations for the township's "Tree City" signs.

Up to my elbows in paper

Lee Snider

Page from an editor's notebook (hope the scrawl is legible).

I got a feel for what teachers have to go through recently when I acted as a judge in this year's Northville Record writing contest. I read essays and poems submitted by middle school students, then rated them on the basis of certain criteria. We'll announce the results shortly. An awards ceremony for the winners is planned for early June.

At one point in my judging, I spread a mound of papers out on the desk in front of me to survey the task ahead. I began to feel like a computer into which an overload of information had to be stuffed. Memorizing the Yellow Pages would have been less time consuming. I didn't think I'd ever see the bottom of the stack.

Somehow I got through it all and I have to admit some of the submissions were so good they were scary. It was hard to believe they came from the minds of 12 and 13 year olds. In fact, I asked friends to eyeball a couple of the compositions and tell me if they thought the authors hadn't gotten the help of a ghost writer—like Salman Rushdie. The maturity of the writing was astonishing.

When I was that age, I think my literary interests were limited to reading the backs of baseball cards. I thought Jughead and Archie were well-constructed characters.

On a related subject . . . I can hardly keep up with the number of calls we're getting about area school kids winning awards. Seems like they're coming in two at a time.

The most impressive honor I heard about was from Cooke Middle School where a team of 16 students finished first in the state in this spring's Knowledge Masters Open, a trivia-type quiz covering the whole gamut of subject matter. There's a story about it in today's B section.

In addition to finishing first among 56 teams in Michigan, the Cooksters placed an amazing 28th out of 1,470 teams nationwide. That's in the 98th percentile. Wow!

If these kids ever got on Jeopardy the show's producers would have to call LAPD to remove them from the set. They'd never lose.

Boy, do they ever know how to prepare a steak at the VFW hall. I ate dinner over there April 24 at the annual public safety honors ceremony where they served filet (oh, the sacrifices I have to make).

After a dignified series of presentations to officers and firefighters of the year, we cast off airs and proceeded to gorge ourselves at the banquet table. I'll spare you the gory details other than to say that I made the right decision to starve myself earlier in the day. I plan to volunteer for the event again next year, only this time I'll bring my own doggie bag—one of those 30-gallon jobs from the kitchen pantry.

From the small world department:

While at the hall I had the chance to meet longtime Detroit City Councilman Mel Ravitz, who attended the awards ceremony because his son-in-law, state Trooper Norm Harrington, was one of the honorees. Mr. Ravitz knew my late father from the time the two of them worked at radio station WJLB in the mid 1940s (pre-Strong Song era).

According to Mr. Ravitz, I inherited my father's looks, though not necessarily his vocal prowess. I guess as long as they never make talking newspapers, I won't have to worry. Lee Snider is editor of The Northville Record.

Would teachers put up with it

Mike Malott

Imagine for a moment that the students of Novi High School had a food fight in the cafeteria. What kind of punishment do you think they would draw for that? Detention perhaps? Clean up detail in the cafeteria?

And let's say that the next day they did it again. And the day after that. And the day after that. I'm willing to bet teachers would get rather cranky about it in a big hurry, and chances are they'd toughen the penalties.

ties paid by the food fighters pretty quickly. Teachers don't like to take much guff from students.

Now, for the sake of argument, imagine that the students started picketing and calling the teachers Nazis because of that crackdown. How long do you think teachers would put up with that?

So I was somewhat amazed by the reaction of teachers to the state Legislature's recent adoption of amendments to the Public Employment Relations Act, toughening the penalties for teachers who go out on strike. Things got downright ugly elsewhere in the state. Teachers walked around for days wearing "Engler hates me" buttons and some even went picketing with signs calling the governor a Nazi.

I have to give teachers in Novi credit for keeping their objections to the bill well within bounds. Sum and total of the local protest consisted of Novi Education Association President Martha Franchi and a school district resident getting up in a recent school meeting to complain about the Board of Education's adoption of a resolution supporting the passage of the bill. Franchi mainly expressed disappointment and anger, contending that it was her feeling the board and union have worked cooperatively in the past. Board President Ray Byers simply responded that the measure was seen by members as a cost containment measure.

But something Franchi said in her comments perked up my ears a little. She talked about how the bill (which has now become law) would eliminate "protections" for teachers, which I thought was a pretty curious way to refer to a law that, as I understood it, made teacher strikes illegal.

As it turns out, there were indeed "protections" for teachers in that old version of the law, which explains a lot about the final shape of the amendment, and which I don't think the media has explained very well so far.

One was that teachers who went out on strike could do so without risking losing any pay. Since teachers are paid an annual amount, when they returned to work their paychecks were simply recalculated in order to get them their full yearly salary. That's one reason the Legislature set the fines to be worth roughly a day's pay for each day the teachers are on the picket line. It also explains why other unions did not rush to teachers' defense. Paid hourly, members of other unions already have to gamble that they'll win enough in wage increases to make up for the time they lost on the job. So they are not particularly sympathetic.

I had always marvelled that judges seemed so reluctant to crack down on striking teachers when the law said such strikes were illegal. Novi Superintendent Emmett Lippe explained to me that the reason was that technically they weren't on strike. Since the school year calendar was a negotiable item, if there was no contract finalized to set the starting date, teachers weren't really failing to report to work.

You could certainly count that as a "protection." And it is also one of the main reasons the Legislature sought to remove the school calendar from the list of negotiable items in the recent changes to the law.

Letters

Neighbor says dog attacked before

To the editor:

This letter is in regards to the two newspaper articles that appeared in The Northville Record, Thursday, April 29 and May 5, editorializing on the response and conduct of one of your officers, namely, Officer Cole.

I do not know Officer Cole, or any other officers on the Northville, Northville Township Police Department nor do I have any friends or relatives that are in law enforcement. I did not witness the problems that occurred April 27 at the Plante residence. I know only what I read in The Northville Record.

I was, however, involved in an incident with Mr. Plante and his dog.

The incident occurred on a Saturday morning—the winter before last—as I was shoveling snow off of my driveway. My wife was in the garage. As I was shoveling my wife yelled, "Don, the dog." I looked up to see the Plante dog in a full charge, barking, snarling, growling, with fangs showing. My wife screamed and ran into the house.

I raised the snow shovel to keep the dog at bay. The dog was in a definite attack mode—snarling, showing fangs, lip quivering charging back and forth.

I yelled for Mr. Plante, who was in his garage/yard. Mr. Plante came running and yelling for me to drop the shovel. Plante yelled to me two or three times to drop the shovel, making no attempt to back the dog off. I was very concerned, afraid. I yelled "stop the dog or I'll kill it"—believe me, Chief, if I would have had a gun I would have shot it and by no stretch of the imagination would I have been over-reacting.

Finally Plante subdued the dog. The dog was in such a vicious state I believe Plante was afraid to get a hold of the dog.

After he did have control—he scolded me for not dropping the shovel then left without an apology or expressing any concerns or regrets for his or his dog's actions.

There was a second occurrence that took place this past summer. My little granddaughter was on our rear deck with my wife. My wife came running into the house, granddaughter in tow. I asked her what was the matter. She said "that dog is out by our deck." I looked out and saw the Plante dog.

I walked down to the Plante's residence. Mrs. Plante came to the door. I told her that their dog was loose and in the back of our condo by our deck. She immediately apologized for the dog being loose and got the dog off our deck. As she was returning to her condo with the dog, Mr. Plante came running up and asked, "What's the trouble?"

I told him his dog was loose again. He gave me a look like "big deal," showing no concern, and again, no apology.

My wife witnessed both incidents. She has always been afraid of large dogs and after the Plante incident she is absolutely petrified of their dog. She will not take the trash out in the mornings anymore (the most frequent time the dog runs loose). I have bought her "Defence," a repellent she can carry on her key chain to repel dogs which I hoped would put her more at ease.

I believe that Officer Cole was facing what I was facing—and from the newspaper reports I believe that to be true—he should be commended for his actions in defusing what could have turned into a tragedy. In my opinion a letter of merit put into Officer Cole's file would certainly be in order. He did his duty as a Police Officer.

who could have been shot. I sincerely doubt that the officer was so trained as an expert shot that he could have guaranteed that only the dog would be hit.

I do hope these wonderful men (and I am not being facetious) will be required to attend workshops which address proper behavior in crisis calls, animal incidences and family related disputes.

Northville is not a high crime area. These are what most calls are about. Rarely should a gun need to be drawn. Please continue to be the Department Northville is so proud of. Please use restraint and care.

Mary Braddock

Congrats to library workers

To the editor:

My congratulations to all involved in the Northville Library Campaign—workers, contributors, and supporters. I feel that in the long term even many of those who didn't vote for that proposal will appreciate all that those involved have done.

I wish I could single out many who in an outstanding way contributed to this campaign but I can't. I've tried.

Some contributed time and work, some money, some encouragement, some constructive criticism, and some all of the above. Every time I tried to list our outstanding people and put some sort of a priority on their input, I failed. But we know who you are, you know who you are, and we thank you for the great job you've done.

Phil Smith, former Chairman
Former Northville
Library Campaign

Library taxes will now soar

To the editor:

Congratulations Northville! Two weeks ago, we were a distant fourth in per-capita library expenditures compared to our three neighboring communities. When last week's millage and bond approvals are fully implemented, our library taxes will be about $50 per capita.

That's nearly triple its current rate and 67 percent higher than Novi, 56 percent higher than Plymouth, and 39 percent higher than Livonia. The question now is when will the level of service at the Northville Library exceed Novi's, Plymouth's, and Livonia's by the same rates?

It better be soon. Because as our nation is little being taught that we spend too little time on the basics of education in too short a classroom period, Northville Schools are implementing even shorter school days and shorter classroom periods.

We can only hope that our new library will fill the growing void being created by our schools.

Robert Bernard

Send in your Vernon stories

To the editor:

Friends of Northville . . . Paul Vernon has retired to the small town of Central Lake, Mich., where he has managed to become Township Supervisor.

We were a sleepy little town, but have awoken to fight for our rights and freedom as we know them. Central Lake citizens want to safeguard those rights and freedom for our children and their children.

The news media is involved and a petition is in progress.

I would appreciate hearing from you.

Campaign help are thanked

To the editor:

I would like to thank all the people who donated to the Northville Library Campaign Committee. We covered all our expenses and we will have a positive ending balance which will be donated to the new library.

The people who worked so hard on this campaign should also be given a round of applause. Phil Smith and Lynn Parkkian were the cornerstones in making this campaign the success it was, but there were numerous others who also put in a great deal of effort.

Just a few of them were Janine Bauchtat, Joan Wadsworth, Anna Sarkisian, Betty Griffin and Sue Anker. Their spouses and families also should be thanked. Connie Smith could probably have started charging meeting room rent because there were so many of them at the Smith's house.

The Library Board of Directors knows they now have their work cut out for them, but they are very enthused about the whole project. I know they are going to put in the same diligence that they did on this campaign and Northville is going to have a model library.

Exiting reporter will be missed

To the editor:

Last week I was informed that Steve Kellman will soon be leaving The Northville Record. Steve has accepted a position with the Traverse City daily newspaper starting June 1, 1994. In addition to this change in his life, fatherhood will soon be bestowed upon him twice! Steve and his wife, Barb, are anxiously awaiting the arrival of their twin babies this summer.

I am very happy that Steve has acquired the position in Traverse City, but I am saddened by his leaving. I have dealt with numerous newspaper reporters (not just from your newspaper) in my last 15 years with the Northville Police Department, but never one like Steve! Even though they have all been courteous and cordial, Steve always went beyond that point. I have always found him to be friendly, thorough, compassionate, humorous, interested in the community and its affairs, and above all very professional. I consider Steve a true friend.

I would like to take this opportunity to wish Steve good luck and continued success with his career, and congratulations to Steve and Barb on the upcoming birth of their babies. Steve Kellman—you'll be missed!!

Slam of lawyers done in bad taste

To the editor:

I enjoyed reading your little story about your daughter using "Daddy's newspaper" to wrap up her show and tell item. However, I became disturbed when you wrote that "All parents are proud of their children . . . as long as they don't sell drugs, become serial murderers or try to pass the bar exam."

Not funny. I am a lawyer married to a lawyer and I am proud of both facts. The lawyers in this community donate a great deal of time, money and effort to Northville, and are also parents, coaches, planning commissioners, hospital volunteers, little league sponsors, PTA members, Rotarians and mayors, as well as local advertisers in The Northville Record.

Do not put lawyers in the same category as murderers and drug dealers. I would be very proud if any of my four children chose to become an attorney or even a managing editor of a local newspaper as long as they are happy and productive citizens.

Michele D. Kelly

Drug forum was productive event

To the editor:

The Northville Youth Forum—Teen Task Force recently sponsored a three-part series by Henry Ford Hospital—Marygrove Community Education entitled "Are You Concerned—Alcohol & Drugs: Use & Misuse."

As a conclusion to this program, 65 student and community leaders came together at a breakfast meeting to review what can continue to be done within the community to face this issue.

We want to thank the staff from Maplegrove Community Education—Nancy Schutte, Deb Gough, Sis Wenger and Mary Kay Meier did an outstanding job. Also thanks to student leaders Amanda Cole, Lindsay Casterline and Ted Downs for their program introductions, and to Andrea Troshchinetz and Cadet Troop 122 for providing the babysitting.

Certainly our Community Leaders' Breakfast would not have happened without the work and generosity of Toni and John Genitti of Genitti's and Sue Poster from Crawford's Bakery.

These are people who are concerned about our youth. We thank them for their continued support.

Petition people are ill-informed

To the editor:

I had the opportunity to sign a petition this week urging the Northville Board of Education to reverse its decision to shorten the high school day next year (one-half day per week) in order to develop a school improvement plan. I would not sign the petition and urge the board of education to hold fast to its decision.

The merits of the plan notwithstanding, what I would like to respond to are the underlying assumptions about teachers that were evidenced in the petitioner's response to my refusal to sign the petition: "I work 260 days a year. So should teachers. They can do this planning after the school day."

These sentiments are right up there with other check-out line analyses like "teachers are over-paid and underworked" or "they get paid for a 12 month job when they only work nine months." Actually, it would be more correct to say that teachers work 12 months during a nine month school year. The families of teachers know this to be true.

Teachers only receive a salary in the summer because they prorate their nine-month pay over the year. To suggest that teachers are over-paid and underworked reveals a lack of appreciation for their role; misinformation about the conditions under which they work, the time devoted to helping young people and their personal commitment to professional growth.

To suggest that teachers can develop a plan to restructure the high school at the end of the school day reveals a misunderstanding about the exhausting demands of teaching; the fact that there are lessons to plan and assignments to evaluate in the evening; and the fact that teachers volunteer to sponsor clubs and tutor students after school, or are paid a pittance to coach athletic teams.

Jerry J. Morris, Ph.D.

Cooke staff is dedicated to kids

To the editor:

Two weeks in a letter to the editor last Cooke Middle School parents complained about elitism regarding a field trip that was offered only to gifted students (as identified in elementary school) at Cooke.

The field trip in question was part of a water quality project geared toward high school students. Given the advanced nature of the project, some criteria for selection of participants (other than a lottery) would make sense.

If the Voytals feel that different criteria (e.g., teacher recommendations) should have been used, that point could certainly have been raised with the teachers who organized the project.

Where I differ with the Voytals (based in part on Mrs. Voytal's comments to the Cooke PTA) is in their seeming criticism of any separate programming for ALPS students. To me, equity in education means meeting the needs of each child, not providing an identical education for each child. Why is it that no one bats an eye when athletically gifted students (i.e., those on sports teams) are given coaching, equipment, and transportation paid for by the district?

Not everyone qualified for those teams: would anyone seriously suggest that a starting quarterback be chosen by lottery? Presumably, however, everyone has an equal opportunity to try out for athletic teams. Similarly, all students are eligible to apply for ALPS, although not all will qualify.

Does this mean that students who are not in ALPS should not receive enrichment? Of course not. All students should have field trips, as they did before the 1992-93 budget cuts. All students should be challenged academically, to the best of their ability. Let's work with the administrators and teachers in our district to make sure that happens.

Finally, the Voytal's suggestion that educators in this district will not "guard the rights of your children" was a cheap shot at the dedicated principal and teachers at Cooke Middle School. All districts should be lucky enough to have such a caring, talented staff.

Valedictorians

Richard Bell

Sonja Gupta

Krista Howe

Mary Lynch

Urvi Mujumdar

By MICHELLE HARRISON
Staff Writer

Because there are 15 valedictorians at Northville High School this year, their speeches will be published, and not spoken, as part of commencement ceremonies.

"We're quite proud of the kids, but we also want to think about the 5,000 in attendance (at graduation)," Northville High School Principal Thomas Johnson said.

Novi High School's 12 valedictorians, however, will work together on one speech, a part of which will be delivered by each one of the 4.0 students.

"They know they have a certain amount of time," said Janie Baird, a counselor at Novi High. "They work together as a group and determine who says what. It's one speech delivered by all of them."

The perfect grade point average students at Northville will submit essays of 50 words or less, reflecting upon their high school years.

"They can use that to thank someone or relay any message they want," explained Johnson.

It's not uncommon to have a dozen or so graduating valedictorians, said Baird. Last year, there were six and the year before there were 10, she said.

"We have had high numbers before," she said. "... It (the class of '94) is a very bright class. It's important to recognize that two of these kids are going to MIT, one's been accepted to Harvard, one to West Point and several to Northwestern. It's a really high achieving class."

"I've never seen a group of kids like the ones we're looking at now," said Arthur Miller, Novi

High School Principal. "We're talking about some heavy hitters."

Miller said he felt it was unfair to be critical of the high number of achievers the school is turning out.

"When the school preaches excellence, then why complain (when it reaches it)?" he asked.

Automobile manufacturers are allowed to have more than one excellent car, so why can't schools be allowed to turn out more than one 4.0 grade point average student, he asked.

In Northville, the number of valedictorians is increasing because the school is getting ready to change its honors system in 1997.

In January 1993, the board of education approved new designations for honor students in an attempt to encourage more high school students to take risks in planning class schedules.

Beginning in 1997, students graduating with a 3.8 to 4.0 grade point average will earn magna cum laude status; cum laude for those earning averages between 3.5 and 3.79; and honors for students with 3.0 to 3.49 grade point averages.

When the board of education first discussed revamping the honors system, Dolly McMaster, assistant superintendent for instructional services, said the change was needed because students were not "seeking risks" by experimenting with subjects other than what they excelled in for fear of lowering their averages.

"As we celebrate more kids, we'll get out from under (the valedictorian, salutatorian titles)," Johnson said. "We're just waiting it out until 1997."

Ceremonies set for June 10 graduation

There will be 279 graduating seniors in the Northville High School class of 1994.

Graduation is set for 7 p.m. Friday, June 10, at the football stadium.

The senior breakfast, sponsored by the junior class, will take place at 8:15 a.m. June 9. There, seniors will receive their caps and gowns and information pertaining to the all-night party. The senior party begins after graduation at the high school.

Senior class sponsor Chris Ford said the valedictorians and salutatorians will be the first to graduate, followed by the remaining members of the class in alphabetical order.

Four class officers will speak during commencement: Ted Downs, president; Julie Romine, vice president; Sonya Gupta, treasurer and Brenda Newton, secretary.

Superintendent Leonard Rezmierski and the selected Distinguished Alumni (yet to be named) will also speak.

"We're hoping to keep (commencement ceremonies) around an hour and 15 minutes," Ford said.

After graduation, the valedictorians and salutatorians will lead the class out.

City blooms thanks to local volunteers

By DOROTHY NASH
Special Writer

The flowers that bloom in the spring, tra-la—and also bloom all summer long in downtown Northville—don't just pop up by themselves, according to Andrea Graham, vice-chairperson of the City Beautification Commission.

She and nine co-members meet once a month, except in July and August, to plan and order the supplies they'll need for spring and fall planting.

So what's new?

"We try to buy something different each year," she said, and this year they looked for "things that don't need much sun or much water." After all, there's quite an area to cover to make downtown Northville ablaze with color around the clock, the bandshell, the boulevards, and in the 160 tubs.

No, the Commission members don't do all the work.

First, the Department of Public

Works has the weeds pulled out of the tubs and the soil prepared for planting.

Then volunteers from the garden clubs come to help plant. She's there, too, with other commission members to supervise and help.

Something else new that commission members decided on for this year is red rather than of pink geraniums.

"Red won't fade the way pink does," Graham said. "And besides, it's more Victorian."

Putting living color into downtown Northville is a lot of work, and Graham said she does so much planting herself in the boulevard in front of the VFW Hall that she gets tired of planting. But "it's a nice feeling when people stop and say it looks nice."

If you want to know more about the Northville City Beautification Commission, you're invited to attend a meeting on the second Tuesday of the month at Northville City Hall at 7:30 p.m.

Local poet planning retreat to inspire writers

Over 700 students, parents and guests attended Our Lady of Providence's annual Susie's Dance, a fund-raising dinner/dance and silent auction held recently at Laurel Park Manor.

The theme of this year's event was "You Are Our Sunshine," despite the rainy weather outside.

A highlight of the evening was the concert by the Our Lady of Providence Resident Band—their program included the fight songs of both Michigan State University and the University of Michigan, much to the delight of their respective fans.

While the silent auction tables were filled with many great items, the black Labrador puppy created the most interest.

Attending from Northville were Terry and Linda Heaton, John and Carol Sassaman, Larry and Terry Woods, Jim and Shelly Rybarsik, Tom and Gwen Hahn, Wes and Sally Henrikson and the Barney Grunheids.

McMaster educator of year

Dolly McMaster, assistant superintendent for instructional services, received the Educator of the Year award from the Phi Delta Kappa chapter of Michigan State University recently.

Louis G. Romano, MSU professor and officer of Phi Delta Kappa, a national honorary educational organization, said he found McMaster as one of the leaders in the movement to change the junior high schools into middle schools.

"She has the vision and leadership skills which are an inspiration to those who work at the middle level in public education," he said. "While as an assistant principal at Maltby Middle School in Brighton, she was instrumental in managing and evaluating staff for the purpose of improved performance."

"Her impact has continued to be felt as an administrator in the central office of the Northville Public Schools. Her work in the area of instruction and devising a cyclical plan for curriculum review, revision and implementation was many years ahead of the Department of Education."

"Fortunately, she has the skills to organize the teachers to move toward planning educational programs to maximize learning for boys and girls."

Especially noted among McMaster's accomplishments were: her role as president of the Michigan Association of Middle School Educators; an award winner in the Michigan Association of Middle School Education Hall of Fame; Outstanding Administrator's Award (Michigan Association of Secondary School Principals); published an outstanding doctoral dissertation, "Problems Affecting the Superintendency as Experienced in Michigan Public Schools during the Period 1972-1984;" chair of the Wayne County Instructional Leadership Council, 1988-90; Administrative Service Award from the Michigan Association of Media Educators (1992); and appointment to a number of state Department of Education Committees, namely the Task Force on Secondary Education and the Middle School/Junior High School Task Force.

Poet plans retreat

Kathleen Ripley Leo, a Northville resident and author of Town One South, Northville Poems, will lead a poetry retreat from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, June 4, at the Hibbard Tavern Bed and Breakfast in Milford.

A poetry retreat is an intensive one-day writing workshop for people who are interested in developing the art and craft of contemporary poetry. A desire to learn about your creative self and to explore avenues of poetry writing are all that's needed.

Poets of all levels have taken this retreat. Here, you'll interact with other poets, and have many opportunities to write poems. Be acute observers, write about what you know, and lead your readers to vibrant and imaginative discoveries through poems.

Bring along a good appetite as the menu accompanying the writing sessions proposes to delight the palate as well as the poetic psyche with offerings such as salad, country pate, herbed butters, fruits and cheeses. At the end of the day, a poetry jam session—where you can bring your poetry to read or share—is combined with hors d'oeuvres and light desserts. Refreshments will be available all day.

The retreats came about as a suggestion from Terry Thayer and Steve Czarniecki, students in one of Leo's writing workshops. They wanted to help create an event where a whole day could be devoted to writing contemporary poems, starting out with loosening up writing exercises and proceeding to substantial and in depth strategies. A brochure outlines the session for the individual seminars throughout the day.

Leo was commissioned by the Northville Arts Commission to write Town One South, Northville Poems for the sesquicentennial of Michigan. The commission received a grant from the Michigan Council for the Arts to help with the project.

Leo has published an additional volume of poetry, The Old Ways, by Sun Dog Press. She is also a featured poet in Three from Schoolcraft, a chapbook of poems published by Schoolcraft College. She teaches writing workshops throughout Michigan as a writer in residence, and at Schoolcraft and Macomb Community colleges.

For more information about the poetry retreat, call the Hibbard Tavern Bed and Breakfast, 685-1435. Or, call Thayer, 454-3443, or Czarniecki, 459-7012. Registration deadline is June 1.

Women and art

The First Presbyterian Church will present "Women and Art," presented by Beverly Hall Smith, at 7:30 p.m. May 19 at the church, 200 E. Main St., Northville.

Smith is an assistant professor of art history at Marygrove College, and an adjunct professor of art history at the Center for Creative Studies in Detroit. She teaches courses in art history survey, Greek and Roman art and architecture, baroque and rococo art, 20th Century art, the history of women artists, and iconography and mythology in art. She also lectures on art appreciation at the Dearborn campus of Spring Arbor College.

Previously, Smith was assistant professor of art at the Northern Virginia Community College in Annandale, Va., a suburb of Washington, D.C. There, she also served as assistant division chairman for art and as campus gallery director.

A graduate of Towson State University in Baltimore, Md., with a degree in English and art, she earned a master of arts degree in art history at Northwestern University in Evanston, Ill.

Smith currently resides with her husband Kurt in Birmingham. The public is invited to attend the seminar. For more information, call the church at 349-0911.

Weddings

Karie Jones/Michael Ventura

Karie Ann Jones and Michael L. Anthony Ventura will be married May 13, 1994, at Martha Mary Chapel in Greenfield Village, Dearborn. Michael Macchiarella will officiate at the candlelight ceremony.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Richard and Sheila Jones of Troy. The prospective bridegroom is the son of Anthony and the late Ethel Ventura of Northville.

The bride will wear a white beaded full-length gown by Mori Lee.

Matron of honor will be Mrs. Laura Hansen. Bridesmaids will be Mrs. Amy Anger, Ms. Julia Hartman, Ms. Tracey Turner, Ms. Amy Embo, Ms. Danielle Corallino. The attendants will wear raspberry shantique, full-length dresses by Alfred Angelo.

The bestman will be Stephen Ventura. Marc Jones, David Brandon, David Kehoe, James Cleavland and Jeffery Hoster will serve as ushers.

Other attendants will be Scott Anger, reader; and Todd Anger, candlelighter.

A reception will follow at Lovett Hall in Greenfield Village for 200 guests.

The couple will take a Caribbean Cruise as their wedding trip.

The couple, who met at a Halloween party in 1992, reside in Deerfield Beach, Fla.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Wayne State University with a bachelor of science degree in nursing. The future bridegroom graduated from Ferris State University in 1990 with a bachelor degree in criminal justice.

Susan and Kenneth Larson

Susan Elizabeth MacDonald and Kenneth James Larson were married Sept. 4, 1993, at First United Methodist Church of Dearborn. Rev. Shawn Lewis-Lakin officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Judge and Mrs. John E. MacDonald of Northville. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter A. Larson of San Diego, Calif.

Preceding the ceremony the music of Chopin and Schumann was played by pianist Ann MacDonald, mother of the bride. The Westminster Chimes were then played, followed by the chiming of the hour.

Organist Edna Mae Fisher of Dearborn and Trumpeter David Roof of Ann Arbor played selections from Bach, Beethoven and Purcell during the ceremony. The trio then accompanied the congregation as they sang "Joyful, Joyful, We Adore Thee."

The bride wore a white peau-de-soire gown with off-the-shoulder sleeves adorned with handsewn rosettes, a V-back cascading to a fitted waist embellished with bow and rosettes, and a full skirt and cathedral train.

The headpiece, designed by the bride and mother of the groom, also featured white peau-de-sole and handsewn rosettes with a cathedral-length veil. The bride's flowers were two dozen fully-opened roses in fuschia, pale pink and white tied with greens and cascading tulle.

The matron of honor was Candace DiComo Keaser of Northville. Bridesmaids were Jane Nixon of Ann Arbor, Natali Cracchiolo of Atlanta, Ga., and Kelly O'Melia of San Diego, Calif. The bride's niece, Anne MacDonald of San Diego was the junior bridesmaid. The flower girl was Sharon McDonald of Holland, Mich.

The matron of honor and the bridesmaids wore Laura Ashley short-sleeved dresses in duck egg blue with matching wide-brimmed hats. Flowers were white Calla lilies and purple irises tied with tulle.

The best man was John Herniup of Los Gatos, Calif. Ushers were David, Steven and Scott Larson, brothers of the groom, and Matthew Gorski, friend of the bride and groom.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Dearborn Inn, which included guests from Virginia, California, Georgia, Colorado and Massachusetts.

The couple honeymooned on the island of Maui in Hawaii.

The bride is a graduate of the University of Michigan with a bachelor of arts degree in Spanish. She is a member of Sigma Kappa Sorority and is employed as a field representative for California Leisure Consultants, a convention /tour management group.

The groom is a graduate of San Diego State University with a bachelor of science degree in aerospace engineering. He is employed as an engineer for Martin Marietta Advanced Technologies Operations.

The couple reside in San Diego, Calif.

Linda and Cameron Ramsey

Dr. and Mrs. Stewart E. Pursel of Bingham Farms, Mrs. L. Diane Larsen of Novi and Mr. Charles F. Ramsey of Bloomfield Village have the honor of announcing the marriage of Linda Ann Pursel and Cameron Randolph Ramsey on June 26, 1993, at Northbrook Presbyterian Church of Birmingham.

The afternoon wedding was followed by a reception at the Detroit Golf Club. Following the wedding, the newlyweds honeymooned in Greece.

Linda is a 1985 graduate of Bloomfield Hills Andover. She graduated from Michigan State University in 1989 where she majored in communications and was All Big-Ten on the Women's Tennis Team. Linda is an advertising sales representative for Crain Communications, Inc.

Cameron graduated from Birmingham Seaholm in 1985 and from Michigan State University in 1990 where he majored in history. Cameron is a pharmaceutical sales representative for Rhone-Poulenc Rorer.

The couple make their home in Huntington Woods.

The Long And Short Of Making More On Your Money, Whatever Your Economic Outlook.

Rising Rate CD For The Long Term.

FirstRate Fund For The Short Term

The economy is recovering. But even the experts can't agree on what interest rates will do.

So First of America has two shrewd ways for you to earn a great rate. No matter what your strategy.

The long view.

If you think rates will drop or stay flat, you should go with a longer-term deposit and get a rate guaranteed to rise every six months over the next two years. The Rising Rate CD.<sup>SM</sup>

It starts at 3.50% APY. And you'll end up earning 6.00% APY for the final term.* During the initial two-year term, you can withdraw part or all of your money in the first ten days after every six-month interval without penalty. All it takes to get started is a $1000 deposit.

Plus, you can get a no service charge personal checking account.

The short view.

If you predict rates will keep going up this year, deposit short term in the FirstRate Fund. The interest rate on balances of $10,000 or more is based on the 91-day Treasury Bill. So if the T-Bill goes up quickly, you'll continue to benefit from it.

An opening deposit of $10,000 is required.

It's a respectable rate of return plus liquidity in these uncertain times. Plus you can get a no service charge personal checking account.

Of course, your deposits are FDIC insured up to $100,000 per depositor.

The Refrigerator Door

Gourmet food ala light style

If you still believe that all gourmet cuisine is fattening, covered with heavy creams and sauces, guess again.

Four premiere chefs from the metro Detroit area will show you otherwise.

Chefs Hamad Kouka of Ristorante di Modesta in Southfield, Matt Prentice of Morels in Bingham Farms, Marty Wilk of Excalibur in Southfield and Jeffery Smith of 4th Street Bakery in Royal Oak will demonstrate their own delicious recipes, altered to fit into healthier lifestyles, at Weight Watchers third annual Health Gourmet Cooking Series.

Anyone who likes to cook or just eat healthy, and wants to learn from the experts, is invited to join the chefs from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Tuesday, May 24, at the Weight Watchers test kitchen in Farmington Hills, 28555 Orchard Lake Road (between 12 and 13 Mile roads).

Admission to each session is $12 in advance or $15 at the door. A portion of the proceeds will be donated to The Detroit Institute for Children, a non-profit organization which provides care for disabled children.

Reservations are required as seating is limited. Call 1-800-487-4777, ext. 294, to purchase tickets in advance and reserve your space. There will be tasting after the demonstrations, door prizes and recipes for those who attend.

Storing designer and convenience foods

"There is a whole new world of foods on our grocery shelves nowadays," said Sylvia Treitman, home economist for the MSU Extension—Oakland County.

Many new types of packaging materials are being used now that were unheard of a few years ago, she said. Also, many sugar and fat substitutes are incorporated into our food.

"It used to be simple to know which groceries should go in the refrigerator or in the cupboard, and how long to keep them," Treitman said. "Today, however, the new ingredients and packaging makes it very confusing. The new shelf stable microwave meals are an example of modern technology. They can remain on the shelf for 18 months because of special packaging."

Since storing these new foods can be confusing, the following information may help you to keep your foods safe:

1. Look for the words "refrigerate" or "freeze," "do not freeze" or "refrigerate after opening."
2. "Sell by" means the last day the item should be sold by the store.
3. "Best if used by" means the food should retain top eating quality until that date.
4. "Expiration date" means the last date a food should be eaten or used.

To help you with ways to store some of today's convenience foods, a new bulletin (#E2297 Storing Designer and Convenience Foods) is now available. To order, send $1.25 to cover postage and handling, specifying booklet name and number, to MSU Extension—Oakland County, 1200 N. Telegraph Road, Dept. 416, Pontiac, MI 48341-0416.

Call the Food and Nutrition Hotline at 858-0904 for help with all food storage, safety, preservation or other food and nutrition questions or concerns.

Enrich your health with fruits and vegetables

Did you know that a cup of strawberries has more vitamin C than an orange?

Are you aware that broccoli has at least four cancer-fighting nutrients?

Do you get enough of the kind of fiber that only comes from fruits and vegetables that you can't get from grains?

There's a wealth of health benefits we can get from eating a diet rich in fruits and vegetables. Unfortunately, most Americans eat only half the amount of fruits and vegetables they need each day, missing out on many vitamins, minerals and fiber that are essential to good health.

With all the news about rising health-care costs, it's important to know that a primary source for guarding your health is in the fresh produce section at the grocery store.

Health authorities like the National Cancer Institute and the American Institute for Cancer Research advise us to eat five servings of fruits and vegetables each day. That may sound like a lot, but one serving equals just one whole piece of fruit or a half-cup of chopped or small-sized vegetables (like corn or peas).

So, fruit on your breakfast cereal, a piece of fruit for a snack, salad-bar veggies for lunch and a cup of vegetables with dinner all stack the odds in your favor for good health.

There are lots of ways to add fruits and vegetables to your daily diet. Add them grated, chopped or pureed to soups, casseroles and stews; add them as garnish to your entrees; keep a bowl of fresh fruit nearby for snacking; buy bags of frozen chopped vegetables to use in small portions and to save preparation time.

For a free booklet of delicious fruits and vegetable recipes, send a stamped (52 cents postage), self-addressed envelope to AJCR, Dept. AP, Washington, DC 20069.

LABEL AWARENESS

Nutritional information is standardized

Area grocers aren't seeing much of a reaction from customers about the new FDA-required food labels appearing on store shelves.

The new food labels, which require manufacturers to place easy-to-read "Nutrition Facts" on all products, began appearing on packages earlier this month. The regulations went into effect Sunday.

"The new label will make it easier for people to choose good foods that fit into a heart-healthy diet," said R. Clinton Webb, president of the American Heart Association of Michigan. "Shoppers will be able to quickly compare products side-by-side to find the amounts of fat, cholesterol, sodium and other nutrients in a standard serving of those products."

The American Heart Association worked with a coalition of 20 health and consumer groups to urge Congress to pass the Nutrition Labeling and Education Act of 1990. The association then worked with the FDA and USDA to develop guidelines to improve food label guidelines.

The new food label usually appears on the back or side of the product and will list key ingredients, including total amounts of fat, saturated fat, cholesterol, sodium, dietary fibers, sugars and protein per serving.

Calories (as well as those from fat content) will also be listed. This information can help consumers limit their total fat intake to no more than 30 percent of calories per day, the American Heart Association's recommendation for heart-healthy eating.

"Today, people want to cut down on fat, especially saturated fat and cholesterol, to reduce the risk of heart disease. With the new label, they can see at a glance which food products are low in fat," said Webb. "And people with high blood pressure who want to stay away from salty foods can find the amount of sodium in an instant. It's good nutrition, made easy."

For consumers who need help determining what constitutes a healthy diet, the label lists the upper limit of fat, cholesterol, sodium and other nutrients you can safely have every day, if you normally eat 2,000 calories. These numbers are called daily values.

For example, if your food product package lists the percentage of daily value for total fat as 5 percent, you know you have 95 percent of your daily fat allowance still available. If the package lists the percent of daily value for total fat as 60 percent, you know you have only 40 percent of your daily allowance left.

In addition to the new label, the FDA has come down on manufacturers who use health claims such as "light," "low-fat," "calorie-free" and "low-sodium" lightly. Now, the product must meet strict guidelines in order to bear those claims.

For more information on the new food label awareness and education program, contact the American Heart Association of Michigan at (810) 557-9500 or 1-800-242-8721.

Anyone who doubts the allure of fiery cuisine should make a point of watching the art-house film, "The Story of Qui Jou."

It's the tale of a Chinese peasant who seeks legal retribution on behalf of her humiliated husband. To fund her trips to the big city, to plead her case before high officials, she loads her bicycle with huge, vibrant red wreaths of dried chilies.

Much is made of the chilies' value, especially as you watch Qui Jou barter with sidewalk merchants, who are later seen grinding the chilies into a fine, precious powder.

Though you won't find it much in evidence in, say traditional French cuisine or German cooking, chili is an integral part of many of the world's cuisines.

It lends zip to Mexican seville, as well as Chinese Sichuan and other Asian specialties. Southwesterners love their scrambled eggs with a dash of Tabasco, and smart chefs use chili to impart piquant flavor or create fire in the belly of lucky diners.

But why didn't hot foods originate in Scandinavia instead of in warmer climates? Probably because in hot climates, food spoils quickly. Pungent seasoning helps retard the process, and camouflage the flavor of food that's past its prime.

The chili, actually, is not so exotic. Part of the Capsicum frutescens family, it is a cousin of the tomato and eggplant. But Europeans weren't introduced to its robust charms until Christopher Columbus brought it back from the New World and Magellan brought it to Africa and Asia on his travels.

How hot is too hot? There's no such thing, contends Geraldine Duncann in Some Like It Hotter (101 Productions). She loves her food hot, hotter, hottest and advises some chefs to make food as hot or mild as they like.

If you have a sensitive palate, use chili judiciously. If you love your food so hot that your nose runs, be generous with the seasonings.

Ideally, you'll use fresh chilies and Duncann suggests cooking with whatever variety is available. Vitamin C-rich sweet peppers—the large green or red bell shapes—probably are quite familiar. But yellow and orange varieties are becoming more common. They add flavor, but not fire, to a number of dishes.

For flames in your food, you'll need to experiment with different varieties of chili peppers—the small, long capiscums that come in a rainbow of hues. Generally speaking, the smaller, the hotter.

NoVICES can start with the milder 3-inch-long red or green chili peppers. The more adventurous can try the hot little West Indian, or cherry pepper, or the copper-colored bird pepper. The long, thin, red cayenne pepper also has a sharp flavor.

Of course, jalapenos and serranos are an integral part of Mexican cuisine. More exotic types include the ancho, chipotle, piquin and malaguetta, each with its own distinctive flavor.

You can turn down the heat in chili peppers by removing the seeds or soaking them in cold, salted water. When working with hot chili peppers, remember that the oil, which gives them their flavor, is irritating to eyes and sensitive skin, so always wash your hands after chopping a chili.

Plan your menu with what Duncann calls "fire extinguishers," mild items to complement and counteract these fiery dishes.

For example, serve beer as a hearty accompaniment with hot dishes that would normally overwhelm wine.

Other fire extinguishers include smooth yogurt and cucumber dips, fruit salads or a Mexican drink of cold water and minced fruit.

For some hot dishes, try the following:

Seviche

Seviche requires no cooking (the lime juice performs a similar function). In some regions of Mexico, clams and cooked shrimp are added to the raw fish. This is a dish that can cost as much or as little as you wish.

2 lbs. firm-fleshed boneless fish or shellfish, such as butterfish, sole, salmon, scallops, shrimp or a combination.

1/2 cup freshly squeezed lime juice, or more, if necessary

1 red onion

1 large or 2 small tomatoes, diced

4 green onions, including tops, finely chopped

1 small bell pepper, seeded and cut into thin strips

1 small fresh hot chili, or more to taste, minced

4 cloves garlic, minced

1 tsp. minced cilantro

1/2 tsp. ground cumin

1/2 tsp. sugar

1/2 tsp. coarsely ground black pepper

Salt to taste

Yields 12 servings as an appetizer; six as an entree.

Dice fish into smaller than bite-size pieces. If scallops are large, cut in half. Shell shrimp. If large, cut into pieces the same size as fish.

Combine seafood in large bowl and cover with lime juice (add more juice if necessary; seafood must be covered). Mix thoroughly and refrigerate at least two hours.

Dice half of red onion; slice other half into thin rings. Add red onion, tomato, green onions, bell pepper, chili, garlic, cilantro, cumin, sugar and pepper to fish. Season to taste with salt, and refrigerate for at least one hour. Taste and add more fresh chilies if desired.

Serve chilled.

Pasta fattening? Depends on the combinations

Lydia Rizzo

When well-endowed comedienne Roseanne Arnold returned from a trip to Italy about a two years ago she proclaimed, "There are no fat people in Italy!" For that reason, she said, she felt out of place there and couldn't wait to get out of the country.

Roseanne probably had the mistaken notion that because native Italians eat a lot of pasta and bread, they're typically obese. She found out it's not true of the general population. The fact is the pasta and Italian bread (made only with yeast, flour, water and salt) per se are not fattening. The culprits are the fatty ingredients many people combine with them.

True, northern Italians tend to use more butter and cream, such as in fettuccini Alfredo, but this is counteracted by the cuisine of southern Italians who combine a variety of vegetables with pasta, a mixture which is free of cholesterol and saturated fat. And Italians don't slobber their bread with butter. (By Italians, we mean those living in Italy, not those in other countries where they've acquired local eating habits.)

It might be said a pasta a day keeps the doctor away. Ask Jane Brody, award-winning writer on nutrition. She writes, "Southern Italians who eat very little saturated fats but lots of carbohydrates in the form of bread and pasta, typically have far lower levels of triglycerides and cholesterol in their blood than northern Europeans, who eat fewer carbohydrates but more animal fats."

That's substantiated by studies showing southern Italians have one of the lowest rates of heart disease in the world. Pasta, basic bread, lots of vegetables and fruit, and olive oil contribute to their good health.

Professional athletes know pasta is a high-carbohydrate food that provides great energy. But there are a few facts one needs to know about getting the more wholesome results from pasta.

The best kind of pasta is made with semolina, a high protein, low gluten flour derived from durum wheat, and enriched with iron and vitamins B1 and 2.

However, although semolina pasta contains 7 to 8 grams of protein per two ounces of servings, this protein is considered "incomplete" and requires the addition of meat, eggs, milk products or legumes to make the protein "complete."

To avoid saturated fats and cholesterol the pasta should be combined with legumes—dried beans, peas, lentils, chick peas—rather than with meat and dairy products.

Dried legumes supply essential minerals and vitamins and contain a small amount of vegetable fat and no cholesterol. But by themselves, they are also "incomplete" protein and need to be combined with pasta, or with rice or other whole grains for that matter. (Why dried legumes? Fresh beans and peas are not rich in protein because they are not mature seeds.)

Of course, for ages Italians didn't know these nutritional facts, and some still don't. They just know this combination is satisfying, inexpensive and tastes good.

Yes, Italians use a generous amount of parmesan or romano cheese on their pasta, milk products that provide the other proteins but do contain animal fat and cholesterol. However, this is outweighed by the large portions of low fat nutrients they eat. And it's especially important to add cheese if the pasta contains vegetables other than legumes, in order to get complete protein.

It's amazing how many international dishes have been created with pasta and a variety of vegetables and herbs. At the Sheldon Roadhouse Restaurant the three pasta entrees do just that. The Pesto Pasta, the Pasta Concasse and the Indonesian Pasta—yes, Indonesian—all are cooked with various vegetables and herbs and then topped with parmesan cheese.

Different vegetables and herbs give each dish its own unique taste. They're satisfying, tasty, wholesome dishes we're sure Roseanne would enjoy with gusto.

Plymouth wraps up the season

The Plymouth Theatre Guild will present its final show of the season, Isn't It Romantic, at 8 p.m. May 13, 14, 20 and 21 with a special Sunday performance at 6 p.m. May 15.

The play is being performed at the Water Tower Theatre, located on the campus of the Northville Regional Hospital.

Isn't It Romantic, by award-winning playwright Wendy Wasserstein, is a warm and witty story of two post-graduate women as they struggle with personal independence and romantic fulfillment in Manhattan.

Told in a fast-moving series of alternately hilarious and touching scenes, this stirring play tells the characters' stories and searches for answers to love, career and, of course, those domineering parents.

The cast includes Susan Odom of Plymouth as Janie Blumberg; Heidi Schuster of Southfield as Harriet Cornwall; Rami Farhat of Canton as Marty Sterling; Julie Vorus of Gregory as Tasha Blumberg; Jerry Salas of Northville as Simon Blumberg; Wendy Sielaff of Canton as Lillian Cornwall; Dan Sperling of Farmington Hills as Paul Stuart; and Ken Pletzer of Livonia as Vladimir.

'With Honors' gives students new view of life

Monty Kessler (Brendan Fraser) is a Harvard scholarship student well on his way to graduating summa cum laude. Driven to succeed, Monty panics when a severe winter storm causes his computer drive to crash and takes with it his senior honors thesis.

As he rushes to the library to copy the existing pages of his draft, Monty begins a learning experience that's different from anything he's experienced at Harvard.

Simon Wilder (Joe Pesci) has a cozy home in a highly desirable neighborhood. Centrally located in Cambridge, Massachusetts, in the midst of Harvard University's historical Quadrangle, the only thing missing, perhaps, is a view. Though technically homeless, Wilder has created a safe harbor against the frigid winter outside ... in the basement of Harvard's Widener Library.

Monty unexpectedly meets Simon after dropping the only copy of his senior thesis through a sidewalk grate — into the lap of Wilder in the basement below.

That sets the scene for "With Honors," a Warner Bros. release starring Joe Pesci, Brendan Fraser, Moira Kelly, Patrick Dempsey and Josh Hamilton with a special appearance by Gore Vidal.

Directed by Alek Keshishian and produced by Paula Weinstein and Amy Robinson, "With Honors" is a story about four ambitious Harvard students who encounter and eventually befriend an acerbic homeless man, which causes them to reexamine their values and beliefs.

Kessler's discovery of Wilder's quarters results in the older man's eviction from his "home" by campus security. Desperate to get his thesis back, Kessler makes a deal with Wilder — for every accommodation he grants Wilder, he will receive one page of the thesis from the now truly homeless man. Kessler begins by offering Wilder shelter in an abandoned VW van parked in Kessler's own backyard.

What begins as a trading-off for necessities becomes a discovery that life's most important lessons are not necessarily learned by the book.

Academy-Award winner Joe Pesci is Simon Wilder. Starring with Pesci are Brendan Fraser as Monty, Moira Kelly as the highly competitive Courtney, Patrick Dempsey as Everett and Josh Hamilton as Jeff.

Acclaimed writer-actor-political commentator Gore Vidal makes a co-starring appearance as the feared and revered Professor Philip Hayes Pitkannan. A Nobel laureate, he has the authority to recommend or deny a student's cum laude — with honors — status at graduation.

Producer Paula Weinstein first read "With Honors" at the request of Warner Bros., where the film had been in development for several years. What she liked about the project "was the idea of dealing with the issue of a homeless man on one of the most elite institutions in America."

"It was an opportunity to open the eyes of these students, who generally feel they are ordained for greatness by having been accepted at such a prestigious school," said

Monty (Brendan Fraser) listens as Simon Wilder (Joe Pesci) uses the Constitution to make a point in Warner Bros.' "With Honors"

Weinstein. "We wanted to show what would happen if real life really pushed up against these kids. Simon stops them mid-track and forces them to find their own way — so that they could become not just great leaders, but also great citizens."

When the highly-praised Madonna documentary, "Truth or Dare," was released, Weinstein had met with its director, Alek Keshishian in the hope that they might be able to find a project together. Shortly afterward, he called to say that he had heard about the script for "With Honors" and was interested in directing it.

"To begin with, I was intrigued because it was Harvard," said Keshishian, who graduated summa cum laude from Harvard in 1986. "Secondly, I liked the premise of four students coming of age in college and the idea that an education isn't something you just learn with your head, it's something you learn through your heart as well."

Weinstein, who previously helped guide first-time director Steve Kloves through his debut film, "The Fabulous Baker Boys," feels that "as a producer, what you dream for, and should dream for, is to have an extraordinary established director or someone new who has a burning passion and vision for your film."

"From our first meeting, I saw that Alek had the story in his head and that he understood what it was about," she said. "He had lived those years, was critical of those years and enjoyed those years. By the time he said 'action,' I was very confident."

"We both felt," she continued, "that the film had to be an ensemble piece, with Monty and Simon's relationship at the center. But for Monty's character to work, we have to see the other students ... the world he lives in. Alek made it a more balanced piece."

"In the ensuing conflict between this man and these Harvard students," said Keshishian, "the students learn a lesson about life and love ... about forgiveness and compassion. Thematically, that fascinated me."

"On another level, it's also about appearances. In its most obvious form, it's the privileged Harvard student and the man who's failed by culture's standards. But below that surface you realize that appearances are deceptive — because Simon Wilder is actually the greatest professor Monty could ever hope for."

T. Ryder Smith stars as the Trickster in "Brainscan"

'Brainscan' explores high-tech terror

Imagine committing a series of murders in virtual reality only to discover they may in fact be real.

That's the living nightmare that one teenage boy, played by "Terminator 2" star Edward Furlong, faces in Triumph Releasing's high-tech suspense thriller, "Brainscan."

It all starts innocently enough when 16-year-old Michael (Furlong) is introduced to a CD-ROM interactive virtual reality game called Brainscan, that promises to give him the ultimate experience in terror. A devoted horror fan, Michael is intrigued, but skeptical.

After a blinding flash, Michael finds himself in the backyard of a dark suburban house. He creeps silently into the house and takes a knife from a kitchen drawer. He steals up a flight of stairs and stands in the doorway of a bedroom where a man lies sleeping.

His heart pounds. His hands shake. He move toward the man and kills him. When he's sure the man is dead, he leaves the house as stealthily as he entered. Michael awakens with a start — panting, dripping with sweat. It felt so real. What a game. He has never been so exhilarated in his entire life.

But exhilaration soon turns to horror when Michael hears on the TV news the next day that a brutal murder has been committed in his neighborhood. He watches in growing terror and shock as he recognizes the yard, the house, the man. It can't be. Did the murder actually happen? Was it a game, or was it real?

When a second CD mysteriously arrives in the mail, Michael hurls it against the wall, determined to end the madness. Enter the Trickster — the mastermind and embodiment of Brainscan itself, who materializes in Michael's room through his computer screen.

A cross between Count Dracula and Mick Jagger, the Trickster cunningly convinces Michael that he must continue to play the game ... that he must experience the second CD.

"What happened?" Michael screams "What was on that CD?"

Michael refuses to play the game, afraid. He threatens to go to the police. The Trickster laughs. He convinces Michael the police will consider his bizarre story a confession. Besides, there were witnesses, the Trickster warns him. "It's only a crime if you get caught," the Trickster chuckles.

Thus, Michael is drawn into the game a second, third and fourth time. Each time he tries to stop, the Trickster reappears, cajoling, tormenting and tempting Michael to face his deepest fears and fantasies. Michael is trapped by the game's hypnotic spell from which there appears to be no escape. He can no longer distinguish fantasy from reality. The Trickster and the game are now in control.

"Brainscan" also stars Tony Award-winning actor Frank Langella as Police Detective Hayden, who relentlessly pursues Michael as a prime suspect, and T. Ryder Smith as the evil Trickster.

Directed by John Flynn, "Brainscan" takes the viewer into a virtual reality, creating a combination of suspense, red-herrings and unique characters. The whole project fell together after Flynn's first meeting with producer Michel Roy.

"His take was exactly the same as mine," said Roy. "Both of us were looking at a film that was not a horror movie per se, but a very well-paced suspense thriller. And we got along very well. I didn't go after 25 people; John Flynn was the one, and bingo — we shot the film."

Roy sees the film as a little bit of everything — horror, suspense, thriller. "It has its own genre," he said.

Flynn said he made the film "to allow the audience to experience fear. The mood was one of tranquility gradually turning into menace, and then turning into sheer horror," he explained. "The violence of this movie is channeled through this vulnerable and lonely young man."

As originally conceived, Michael's tormentor, the Trickster, was a hologram — half man, half beast. During pre-production sessions, however, it was decided to transform the hologram into a real person and T. Ryder Smith was selected for the role.

'King of Comedy' anything but a comedy

KING OF COMEDY
By Helaine Binstock
Novi

You'll undoubtedly find this in the comedy section of the video store, but it's anything but that. Considering its title and having Jerry Lewis as a major performer, people who haven't seen it might be deceived. Instead, it's a heavy psychological drama.

Jerry Lewis, not one of my favorites, does the greatest piece of serious acting of his career. He impeccably underplays his role of a late-night host revered by his throngs of followers, yet strikingly lonely when retreating to the privacy of his home.

This might also be the finest role Robert DeNiro has ever executed. He's great in whatever he does - but he's sensational here as a driven, somewhat deranged, would-be stand-up comic looking for a break. He is creepy and menacing and will stop at nothing to further his career. If only he were as ready for stardom as he feels he is. His performance is riveting.

READER MOVIE REVIEWS

Directed by Martin Scorsese, "King of Comedy" flawlessly demonstrates performers' fantasies, some not too talented, who feel rejected and rebuffed when ignored. He introduces you to crowds of people who revere luminaries to such extremes, they devote entire lives to collecting their signatures. You will not complete this movie without having to discuss its ending as it has several different interpretations. A must see.

MRS. DOUBTFIRE
By Heather Wadowski
Northville

The magic of "Mrs. Doubtfire" is now on home video, and can be yours to watch again and again.

After getting a divorce from his wife, Miranda (played by Sally Field), Daniel Hillard (played by Robin Williams) is told that in 90 days he must get a job, keep it and find a suitable living space for himself and his children in order to have a fair custody trial.

So, when Miranda places an ad for a housekeeper, he does what anyone would do and becomes Mrs. Doubtfire.

But what was supposed to be a simple housekeeping job ends up becoming an obsession ... not only for his kids, but also for Miranda.

The movie not only keeps you laughing, but it pulls a few tears out of you, too.

So, if you have seen "Mrs. Doubtfire" already, see it again.

And, if you haven't, what are you waiting for?

Tracksters dump Churchill 72-46 to improve record

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

A 72-46 victory over Livonia Churchill Thursday at home pushed the Mustang girls' track team to 2-3 in the Western Lakes Activities Association.

Strong performances from relay teams and in the field events gave Northville High the easy win. The Mustangs improved to 4-3 overall. Tammy Cook got Northville rolling in the high jump. She grabbed first place by clearing 4 feet 10 inches. Anne Bondy was third with 4 feet 4 inches.

Northville won the 3,200-meter relay in 10:54.70 with the team of Marci Bolger, Amity Heckemeyer, Laura Brown and Adrienne Browne.

In the 110-meter high hurdles, Jenny Sekerka was first in 17.9 while Jessica Reimer was third in 18.9. Northville's Carrie Dalziel won the 100-meter dash in 13.3, a personal best.

A time of 1:53.70 was good for first place in the 800-meter relay. The team of Katie Rempel, Melissa Poole, Wendy Forster and Alana Bradley ran that race.

Northville swept the shot put. Renee Olin was first with a toss of 29 feet 2 1/2 inches, while Kris Werda was second and Sekerka third.

Sekerka came back to win the discus as she threw 104 feet 6 inches. Werda was third with 84 feet 4 inches.

In the 1,600-meter, Monica Nayakwadi was first in 6:27.3. The Mustangs, behind Rempel, Poole, Forster and Bradley, won the 400-meter relay with a time of 53.6.

Poole placed second in the 400-meter race in 1:09.5. Reimer was second in the 300-meter low hurdles in 54.4 and Bolger was third in 55.5.

A time of 2:35.6 won the 800-meter for Adrienne Browne. Laura Brown was third in 2:41.30.

Bradley had her personal best and won the 200 dash in 26.3. Alissa Nadeau placed third in the 3,200-meter in 14:22.

The team of Bolger, Heckemeyer, Browne and Brown won the mile relay in 4:323.6.

FARMINGTON HILLS HARRISON 73 1/2, NORTHVILLE 54 1/2

Mustang coach Ann Turnbull was a little surprised about the outcome of the May 3 home meet.

"I thought it would be a little closer," she said. "But they are a good dual-meet team."

It was the second time Northville has seen Harrison this season. The Hawks won the Novi Relays in April.

Originally, the two schools were to meet today for the dual meet, but Turnbull said both sides decided to move it up because of the open date on their schedules.

The coach said she knew her team was facing an uphill battle against Harrison. Turnbull said Farmington Hills dominated long distance events in winning the meet.

"We need to get points in the mile and two mile that we aren't getting," she added.

Northville started strong, at any rate.

Cook and Bondy took first and third, respectively, in the high jump. The Mustangs then swept the long jump as Bradley led the pack with 16 feet 11 inches.

"Alana's out to be the best long jumper this season," said Turnbull.

Forster finished second with a leap of 15 feet 11 inches and Poole was third at 14 feet 7 1/2 inches. The 3,200-meter relay team of Bolger, Heckemeyer, Browne and Brown were first in 10:34.50.

In the 100-meter sprint, Dalziel was second in 13.6 and Poole was third in 14.2. Dalziel, Rempel, Forster and Bradley won the 800-meter relay in 1:51.20. That same group also took first in the 400 relay.

Browne's 1:06.9 took third place in the 400-meter race. Low hurdler Reimer finished third against the Hawks in 53 seconds.

Mustangs sweep pair from Livonia

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

Dominate. Humiliate. Destroy. Pick out a few more adjectives and you might come up with exactly what the Mustang baseball team did to Livonia Churchill Friday in a road doubleheader. Northville blew the Chargers right off the map in taking a 6-1, 11-0 sweep.

Excellent pitching, great defense and a ton of hitting marked both games.

"This team gets up for the big games," said Northville coach Mickey Newman.

The sweep put the Mustangs in first place in the Western Division of the WLAA going into Monday's games. A win over Canton Monday and Livonia Franklin today would put Northville, 5-1 in the division and 9-5 overall, in the driver's seat for a Western title.

Newman said a team effort has helped push Northville toward the top of the standings.

"Part of the key is that every time I call on someone to come in," he added, "they contribute. Everyone's pitching in."

Jason Mavel pitched in bigtime Friday. The right-hander shut the door on Livonia in the opener. Although allowing more than a half-dozen Churchill hits over seven innings of work, Mavel was never in serious trouble.

"He's a great pitcher," said Newman. "No doubt about it."

The hurler got good support in the field, too.

In the sixth inning, for example, Churchill had runners on first and third. Shortstop Jeff Luterek took away what looked like a single to left and turned it into a double play with the help of second baseman Trevor Surdu.

"Our fielding has been outstanding," said Newman. "We work on the double play a lot. There's not a lot of opportunity for them but when you get one it's a momentum changer."

Livonia led 1-0 after an inning. Northville, which was considered the home team because the game was a make up of an earlier rainout, rallied for five in the bottom of the second.

Chuck Yesslan reached on an error to start the rally. David McCulloch singled and Surdu followed with a walk to load the bases.

Chuck Apligian then promptly singled two runners home. Northville added three runs on a two-run single by Jason Rice and a Livonia error.

Northville made it 6-1 the next inning as Apligian got a run home with a ground out. The senior catcher went two-for-three with two RBI in the game.

The Mustangs mercied Churchill in the nightcap, 11-0 after five innings.

Northville scored four times in the first inning, a single run in the second and then five more times in the fourth to blow the game open. Jason Edwards keyed that big fourth inning rally with a triple.

McCulloch took advantage of all the support to win the game on the mound. He allowed just three hits and no walks while striking out two.

"He challenged the batters when he had to," said Newman.

As it turned out, first baseman Fred Swarthout was the hitting star of the sweep. The senior pounded out six hits in eight at-bats to go along with five RBI.

Linksters beat Salem 214-222

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

The Northville High golf team improved its Western Lakes conference record Thursday by knocking off Plymouth Salem 214-222.

Playing at their home course of Tanglewood in South Lyon, the Mustangs moved to 5-1 in the WLAA. Lindsey Casterline led the team to victory with a solid round of 49.

"Everyone's falling into the groove," said Northville coach Trish Waldecker. "I'm starting to see results."

Waldecker was referring to the improvement of her team's chipping and putting in recent weeks. While the Mustangs were giving away strokes on and around the greens early in the season, hard work has helped the golfers in recent matches.

"We have been doing nothing but putting and chipping, chipping and putting," said Waldecker. "That practice has really started to pay off."

"Putting is confidence. Once you've got it you can sink anything."

Casterline certainly had confidence Thursday. She needed only 16 putts to complete the nine-hole round. Waldecker said anything below 18 putts per round is very good.

Monica Prasad and Jodi Fischer came in behind Casterline at 54. Kylene Mills rounded out Northville's team score with a 57.

Waldecker said it was a fine effort by her team considering the weather conditions.

"It was cold, it rained, it got hot, it was windy," she said. "But you have to be able to play in anything."

The coach said the team had improved from last season.

"Last year they shot a higher score of 243," Waldecker explained. "It was closer than I anticipated."

Netters poised for league title with wins over Franklin, Salem

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

A trio of victories last week has put the Northville High tennis team a step closer to its third straight WLAA title.

The Mustangs trounced league rivals Livonia Franklin, Plymouth Salem and Walled Lake Central to remain undefeated. According to coach Dick Norton, his team is in the driver's seat for the conference championship.

"We are in first place going into the league meet," he said. "That's 50 percent of the total you have to have."

The WLAA counts the dual meet season and the league meet as 50 percent each in determining a champion. With a perfect dual meet record, Northville must place at least second at the May 17 conference finals to take the crown.

Considering the injuries the Mustangs have had to key players like Ryan Moak, Brad Smith and Jeff Wofahl, Norton is very proud of the position his team is in.

"I'm extremely pleased with the way the season has gone so far," he said. "This team has been able to come through."

Having the players to fill in for regulars has been the difference, Norton added.

"As far as depth, this is one of the best teams I've had," he said.

Northville concluded its week Friday at Walled Lake Central with an 8-0 win.

Norton used a singles lineup of freshman to beat the weak Viking team. David Anderson moved up to No. 1 and took care of Thad Chmielewski 7-5, 6-1.

Ganesh Nayakwadi took a two-set victory at second singles as well. Nick Sriraman defeated Craig Bellingier 6-0, 6-0. Mike Bush closed singles action out with a 6-1, 6-1 win over Dave Gilles.

At top doubles, Ravi Mujumdar and Matt Telepo defeated Reynaldo Rodriguez and John Crutchfield 6-2, 6-2. Nate Connell and Desmond Liang were 6-2, 6-2 winners over Mike Hammond and Jason Becker.

The No. 3 doubles team of Anthony DeBenedet and Ryan Steinhauer got a 6-4, 6-0 victory over Shane Manning and Dave Rowden. Vik Srinivasan and Jeff Davis were two-set winners over Sean Harris and Marquart.

Northville moved to 8-0-1 in the conference by beating Walled Lake. The Mustangs are 9-0-1 overall.

NORTHVILLE 8, SALEM 2

Norton expected a tough match from the Rocks, which were undefeated in the WLAA going in. But the Mustangs handled the visitors quite easily May 4.

Matt Schwagie took a hard-fought 7-5, 6-3 win against Xinning Li.

"Xinning Li played a good match," Norton said.

Moak returned to the lineup from wrist and tailbone injuries and fell 6-3, 6-1 to Harry Lee. Norton said he may have brought his player back a little too soon.

"He said he had no feeling in his wrists after the match," the coach commented.

At third singles, Nick McCreedy dropped a 6-3, 6-3 decision to Gabe Bernstein. Anderson won in two sets over Matt Potter.

Northville swept doubles. Mujumdar and Telepo, Vik Srinivasan and Scott Anderson, and Arjun Srinivasan and Nayakwadi all won their matches in two sets. Liang and Connell needed three sets.

NORTHVILLE 8, LIVONIA FRANKLIN 0

The Mustangs hit the road May 2 and walked away with a very easy victory, Norton said.

"I knew going in they would be pretty weak," he added.

McCreedy, Dave Anderson, Sriraman and Bush picked up singles victories.

Kickers stop Livonia 3-1

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

Renee Androsian wasn't taking any hostages May 4.

The Mustang senior forward scored a pair of goals and assisted on another to lead Northville High to a 3-1 road victory over Livonia Franklin.

According to coach Doug Lyon, it was Androsian's best game in the past few years.

"She has really stepped up the last few games," he said. "She was just dominating the field."

The win moved Northville to 7-2 in the Western Lakes Activities Association and 9-2 overall.

Livonia actually scored first. The Patriots put a shot past freshman Northville goalkeeper Meghan Cauzillo with about 18 minutes gone by in the half.

Northville pressed but was unable to break through until just six minutes remained in the first half. Androsian got the first of her goals after taking a pass from Katie Kohl.

The half ended with the teams tied at one. Lyon said he got on his team a bit at halftime.

"They weren't playing as a team, as a whole team," he commented.

The Mustangs responded to the pep talk.

Northville dominated play in the opening minutes of the second half. Androsian then tallied again, at the 15 minute mark, this time with an assist from Sue McQuaid.

Kohl finished the scoring with 25 minutes gone by. Androsian assisted.

Lyon said the difference is night and day when the Mustangs play as a team.

"When we play together," he said, "we move the ball well."

The coach, in fact, believes Northville can play with any team. The Mustangs' two losses against Livonia Stevenson and Livonia Churchill are ones they could've been won.

"Mentally we beat ourselves (in those games)," said Lyon.

When Northville is on, "there's not a team that's better," he added.

The Mustangs' win over Franklin was one of three last week.

Northville beat Farmington Friday night on the road, 3-0, in a makeup game. Lyon said the Mustangs played very strong early, scoring all three of their goals in the first 15 minutes, then coasted.

Farmington outplayed Northville in the second half and had a number of scoring chances. But Cauzillo was able to hold the Falcons off the scoreboard.

"They dominated the second half but I wasn't worried," said Lyon.

Northville's easiest win of the year came May 2 against Farmington Hills Harrison, 5-0. Lyon said in addition to all of the offense, Lisa Bernardo played a great game on defense.

Linksters beat Salem in WLAA dual meet

Northville is now 5-2 overall on the season.

NORTHVILLE 219, LIVONIA CHURCHILL 248

Playing at Idle Wyld golf course in Livonia, the Mustangs easily whipped Western Division rival Churchill on May 4.

Strong green work was again the difference. All four Northville players had under 19 putting strokes.

Mills was the low shooter against the Chargers. She finished with a score of 51 while Casterline was next with 52.

"She's been playing very consistent golf," Waldecker said of Casterline. "She's put a lot of time into her game. A lot of mental time."

Prasad fired a 57 while Megan Bataran and Brittney Ahern each shot 59.

The dual meet season was scheduled to close Monday against Walled Lake Central. Northville will compete in the WLAA meet May 17 and in the regionals May 20.

"I think our team is strong enough to win the conference," said Waldecker.

Like a pair of old fashioned gunslingers, today's boys' track meet between Northville and Farmington Hills Harrison promises to be a shootout.

The two bitter rivals meet at Harrison High School to decide the Western Division title for 1994 at 3:30 p.m. According to Mustang coach Dennis Faletti, the showdown could go either way.

"We could win by 20 (points) or they could win by 20," he said. "We've got to do it (today)."

Tracksters face showdown with Harrison

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

A win over the Hawks would provide a measure of revenge. Farmington Hills gave the Mustangs its only two losses on the gridiron last fall.

"I think we have the ability to beat them," Faletti said. "I think we will win the meet."

However the meet turns out, the coach is happy with his team.

"I think this year's team is the most well-balanced we've had since I've been in Northville," Faletti said.

The Mustangs kept their league record perfect (5-0) for the showdown by trouncing Livonia Churchill 78-59 on the road Thursday.

Performances were a little bit off despite the easy victory, but for good reason. Faletti put the team through a tough week of workouts in preparation for the league championship meet (May 31) and regional (May 20).

"The kids were sore going into the Churchill meet," he said. "They aren't used to being sore."

Aching muscles or no, Josh Williams won the long jump with a jump of 19 feet 5 1/2 inches. Farb Navi was third at 18 feet 11 inches.

In the discus, John Gatti was third with a throw of 139 feet 4 inches. The 3,200-meter relay team of Jeff Zwiesler, Shaun Hollister, Marc Ritter and Todd Zayti were first in 8:36.8.

Williams cleared 5 feet 10 inches to win the high jump while Carl Tune was second at 5 feet 6 inches. Brian Dogonski finished first in the 100-meter dash in 11.3 seconds and Eric Moore was third in 11.6.

Northville's team of Chris Gomersol, Pat Gordon, Navi and Bob Oller was first in the 800-meter relay with a time of 1:35.7. The Mustangs swept the mile race as Scott Lloyd won in 4:46.7, John Woodsum was second with 4:55.7 and Chris Harrison third at 4:55.8.

Gomersol, Moore, Oller and Dogonski won the 400-meter relay in 47 seconds.

Camp Lakeshore registration coming

By CINDY STEWART
Special Writer

Summer's almost here—picnics at the lake, backyard barbecues, swimming, vacations and warm weather! Sounds great, but there is one small problem with summer... summer vacation for the kids. What do they do? How many times do parents want to hear "I'm bored," "There's nothing to do,"

Well, once again Novi Parks and Recreation has the solution for you and your kids—Camp Lakeshore. This great summer day camp program has been going on at Lakeshore Park for the last 10 years. Saturday, May 21, from 8 a.m. to 12 noon is the day for special "early" registration for Novi residents only.

The doors at the Civic Center will open at 7:30 a.m. You will receive a number upon arrival and registration begins at 8 a.m. You may register for your immediate family only and may register for no more than two sessions (you will be placed on a waiting list for additional requests).

This year promises fresh new programs, activities and many new staff. Back by popular demand is a trip to the Oakland County Wave Pool.

Your kids won't want to miss out on all the wonderful activities that Marilyn Troshak and her camp counselors are planning. There will be no dull moments as kids and counselors have fun with arts and crafts, swimming, games, sports and field trips.

"Even kids who have been to Camp Lakeshore in the past will want to sign-up this year because the program has been revitalized for the summer of '94," said Marilyn Troshak, Recreation Coordinator.

"The new programs and activities will be great but that's not what makes Camp Lakeshore so fantastic," added Troshak. "The best thing about Camp Lakeshore is the experience the campers have because of the dedicated counselors. Many of the counselors are considering careers in teaching or recreation and their love for children is so obvious. The kids 'adopt' the counselors as big brothers and sisters."

"If they had camps like this when I was younger, I would have gone," said Counselor Jason Stewart. "This is the best summer job I've ever had. It's hard to believe they pay me for having fun with the kids. I'm looking forward to getting attacked in the lake everyday. This is a great experience for me because I'm studying to be an elementary school teacher."

This year Camp Lakeshore is back to four two-week sessions staffed by one supervisor, four leaders and three junior counselors. There will also be more small group activities this year, both in the water and at the park.

Marilyn gets a lot of calls from other cities and they have modeled their summer programs after Novi's Camp Lakeshore and the Recreation Station. Novi staff takes pride in offering quality programs to its residents again and again.

The two-week Camp Lakeshore sessions are June 20 through June 30, July 5 through July 15, July 18 through July 28, and August 1 through August 11, from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Remember to mark your calendars for the special Early Registration for Novi residents only on Saturday, May 21, from 8 a.m. to 12 noon.

Regular registration begins Monday, May 23, at 8 a.m. For more information call Novi Parks and Recreation at 347-0400.

Parents should take a stand on parties

John
Farrar

It's time for parents to take a stand.

For those of us who are the parents of teen-agers, particularly high school seniors, spring means more than the annual budding of trees and the moving of clocks forward one hour. It means doing our part in preparing for two "once-in-a-lifetime" experiences for our sons and daughters—senior prom and high school graduation.

Many of us will confine our involvement to financial assistance. We will "lend" money for prom tickets or formal, recognizing that the debt is unlikely to be repaid and not really minding if it isn't.

Many of us will assume a more proactive role with respect to graduation or the prom, however. We will agree to host a pre-prom party or plan a graduation party designed to provide a social outlet for 50 other seniors, and not Aunt Doris and Uncle Wally from Okemos or Dearborn Heights.

If we choose not to host such events, almost certainly our senior offspring will be attending functions given by other parents who do.

The problem that each of us may choose to ignore is the role that alcohol and other drugs play in these two significant "rites of passage" events for our children. Whether we recognize it or not, the problem of adolescent drinking and recreational drug use is rising once again after a period of modest decline over the past several years.

This article is not about assigning blame, but discussing shared responsibility. During the past 12 years, most local school districts have implemented broad-based curricula which address topics related to chemical dependency.

Educational specialists have been added (dare assistance specialists, SAFE workers, DARE officers) to work with students on this issue. Community-based organizations have networked into task forces aimed at seeking ways to change the climate of our neighborhoods and discourage substance abuse.

Ultimately, however, the most important and effective monitors of our children are their parents. We have the uncontested power and authority to create a safe environment and set of expectations for our kids. With that in mind, I would like to suggest a few guidelines for parents to consider for senior prom and graduation festivities:

1. State unequivocally that no illegal substances will be served or tolerated in your home (alcohol is illegal for 18 year olds).

2. Inform your child that you expect that he/she will not be using those substances in the homes of others, and that they will not be part of their prom or graduation experience. The limo to the prom is meant to be an elegant means of transportation—not a traveling bar.

3. Discuss these issues with the parents of your son's or daughter's prom date or with parents hosting a graduation party. You may be pleasantly surprised to learn that they share your concern.

If these suggestions make you uncomfortable or seem out of date, consider what those thoughts and feelings may be saying. If it is difficult to follow through with our own beliefs about adolescent use of alcohol and other drugs, then let's at least recognize that peer pressure and the desire to be liked have a powerful negative influence on adults as well as kids. Dr. John Farrar has been an employee of the Livonia Public Schools for 23 years and the Executive Director of the Community Commission on Drug Abuse (CCODA) for 14 years. He and his wife Anita are the parents of two teen-agers, including a graduating senior. This column is coordinated by Peg Campbell and the staff at the U-M Health Centers.

Hypertension is a silent killer

Franklin

Your blood pressure is gauged by two numbers, expressed in millimeters of mercury, that measure pressure in your arteries. They are keys to diagnosing hypertension.

The higher one is recorded during the heart's pumping stroke and is called the systolic blood pressure.

The lower number is the pressure while the heart is relaxing between beats and is called the diastolic pressure.

When recorded in a relaxed, resting subject, normal systolic pressure is around 120 millimeters of mercury, whereas normal diastolic pressure is around 80.

This is expressed as "120 over 80."

A systolic pressure between 100 and 140 is considered normal. In elderly people, however, a slightly higher systolic pressure may be within normal limits. Normal diastolic pressure lies between 60 and 90 millimeters of mercury.

When the resting pressure is consistently above these ranges, high blood pressure (hypertension) is diagnosed.

Unfortunately, there are no symptoms which indicate the presence of hypertension. For this reason, it is frequently referred to as the "silent killer," often resulting in kidney disease, heart disease and strokes. Have your blood pressure checked often.

Once hypertension is diagnosed, it is important to determine whether it is the common "essential" type, meaning the cause is unknown, or whether it is due to other factors, some surgically or medically correctable.

Fortunately, there are excellent drugs currently available for treating hypertension. These fall into two major categories: those that cause blood vessels to dilate or relax, lowering blood pressure, and those that work by eliminating excess sodium and fluids from the body (diuretics).

High blood pressure can sometimes be managed successfully without resorting to anti-hypertensive drugs — through modifying diet, exercise and behavior.

The overweight person with hypertension may be placed on a reducing diet and exercise program by his or her physician, for blood pressure often decreases with weight loss.

A diet low in sodium (ordinary table salt is the most common form) also may help to lower blood pressure. Sodium restriction curbs fluid retention by the body and tends to reduce blood volume and pressure.

You can decrease the salt content of your diet by avoiding such salted foods as peanuts and pork products and not adding extra salt to other foods.

Many processed foods, including lunch meats, canned soups, snack foods and many others are very high in sodium. Learn to be a food-label reader. Your detective work will quickly reveal which packaged foods are high in fats, salts and other ingredients.

Finally, learning to relax and cope with stress and tension is extremely helpful. Stress reduction courses are often offered at your local college or continuing education department. They are inexpensive, amazingly easy to learn and effective.

Hypertension is a life-shortening disease which can be medically managed quite effectively. There's no excuse to ignore it.

Endowment mortgages

By James M. Woodard
Copley News Service

A home mortgage loan that pays off big money at the end of its term could be the next major new product in mortgage offerings.

This new home mortgage loan is about to be introduced—a concept that could dramatically change the mortgage market in the United States.

With this loan, the principal balance does not amortize (reduce) with each payment. It remains the same throughout the loan's term even though the monthly payments are the same as would be paid with a conventional mortgage.

The money that would normally be used to reduce the principal is, instead, fed into a life insurance

The Toucan offers country flavor with ranch dressing

By James McAlexander
Copley News Service

A farmhouse porch adds a dash of country flavor to the Toucan, a one-and-a-half-story contemporary ranch-style house designed for a family with older or grown children.

The owners' suite is downstairs, so adults can meet all their needs without ever climbing stairs. This leaves the upper rooms for children, grandchildren or other guests.

Not that there's anything inferior about the second floor bedrooms. Far from it. Both bedrooms have skylights, vaulted ceilings and walk-in closets, one of them quite large. A walk-in linen closet is tucked into an alcove in the hallway and the sky-lit, compartmentalized bathroom has twin vanities.

Descending the stairs into the high-ceiling, vaulted entry, you can enjoy the view through a dormer window above the front door. A plant shelf on top of a closet next to the woodbox provides a space to display art objects or hanging plants.

Basement access is directly under the main stairs.

On the main level, vaulted ceilings give an open, spacious feeling to the already large family living and entertainment areas. The tiled-hearth, see-through fireplace provides a cheerful focal point in both the dining and living room. Sliding glass doors brighten the dining room and allow easy access to a small deck.

Windows cover most of the bayed back wall of the kitchen, creating a bright, welcoming work area for informal gatherings. Counter space is augmented by a central work island, and a walk-in pantry adds to the ample storage capacity.

A small bathroom is between the kitchen and the family room, convenient to all of the family living areas.

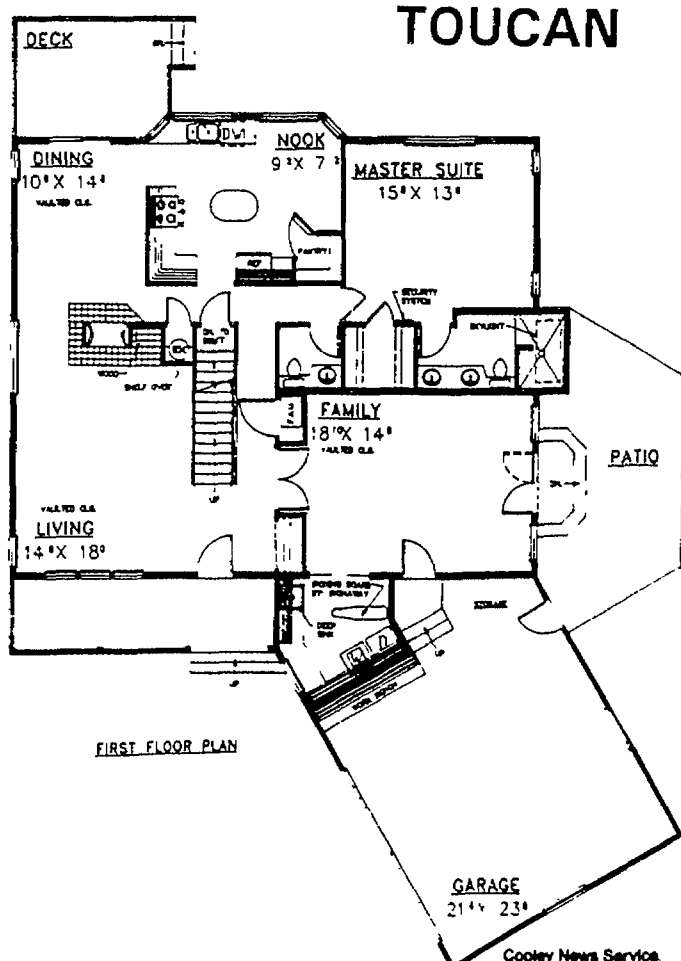

The isolated family room allows teens to shut the doors, crank up the volume on their favorite tunes, and enjoy themselves without causing pain to their parents. Utilities, a deep sink, counters, cabinets and a fold-down ironing board are hidden behind pocket doors in the family room.

The master suite is buffered from the sound by its walk-in closet and a private bathroom with twin vanities. Another notable feature is the luxurious sky-lit, over-size shower.

AU NATUREL'

A few tips for those of you who are organically inspired

By Catherine Nastase

Healthy soil, regular fertilization, plant diversity, crop rotation and encouraging natural predators — all contribute to achieving a successful organic garden.

As you launch your spring garden you may want to consider the organic method in order to establish thriving plants and to perpetuate healthy soil. Here are a few tips for aspiring organic gardeners.

Healthy soil — the blacker the better. If you are looking for quick results, organic soil enhancers are not for you. "Granulated inorganic fertilizers are very water soluble and highly concentrated — they work instantaneously," said Patricia Hopkinson, Director of the University of Michigan's Botanical Garden in Ann Arbor. "But they do not build up the soil. They will wash away after a good rain and so must be applied with greater frequency than organic fertilizers."

"Organic fertilizers such as humus or composted manures are worked into the soil and become part of it. They help to fluff up the ground. They add airspace and create conditions that hold moisture and nutrients are near the plants roots where the plants can reach them," Hopkinson said.

The darker the soil, the more nutrients it has in it, Hopkinson said, and one way to enhance the nutrient level of your soil is to clip away last year's growth in flower beds and put this compost around perennial plants, using it as a mulch.

"The earthworms will help you mix it in," Hopkinson said.

The three most important elements to plants are nitrogen (N), phosphorous (P) and potassium (K). "The most common source of nitrogen is any decomposed protein," Hopkinson said.

Composted — that means mostly decomposed — chicken, horse or cow manures are good sources of nitrogen. A good organic source of phosphorous is bone meal. And the wood ash from your fireplace or wood stove can provide the potassium, according to Hopkinson, who said all that is usually necessary is a light sprinkling over the garden.

Healthy soil is important for the organic garden to succeed. There are other non-chemical methods of controlling garden insects and disease, as well.

Below is some advice selected from Barbara W. Ellis' and Fern Marshall Bradley's book, "The Organic Gardener's Handbook of Natural Insect and Disease Control." The book is published by Rodale Garden Books.

Regular fertilization — improve your plants' resistance to insects.

Annual vegetable and flower crops should be well-fed when they are young. The editors recommend fertilizing in the first third of a plant's active growth, which is in spring. They do not recommend fertilizing late in the season as this can stress the plants by encouraging new growth that might be killed by the first frost.

They also recommend that more fertilizer is not necessarily better. Overfertilized plants can create odd growth and perhaps worsen problems with garden pests, Ellis and Bradley noted.

Crop rotation — reduce your pest population.

A field planted year after year with the same crop attract the same insects who find the area, eat, and leave the next generation there to appear next spring. And those offspring go to work doing the same thing, thereby creating a well-represented population.

By rotating crops — that is taking away the pest's host plant — you force the pest to look elsewhere for its meal.

Plants flourish in all-purpose soil mix

By C.Z. Guest

GARDENING

Annual repotting of your favorite plants can help encourage new root development and rejuvenate lush, green growth. A pro-mix, ready-to-go potting soil is ideal for ensuring your plants get the boost they need to keep them happy, healthy and growing properly.

Water your plants at least two hours before repotting. When ready, invert the pot, support the plant and tap gently to release it. Partly fill the next size pot with pro-mix and place the plant in the pot. Fill the remaining space with the mix and water thoroughly.

To begin your garden from seed, start with the conventional small pots or flats. Fill the containers with an all-purpose potting mix soil and tap it down with a fork and water carefully and gently. Sow two seeds each in individual cells with the weaker seedling to be removed after both have sprouted.

You can easily sow all but the very fine seeds by picking one up between your finger and thumb and gently dropping it on the soil surface. For fine seed, pour the package contents onto a spoon and push as many as needed with your fingernail.

Seeds should be sown directly on top of the potting mix, then covered according to the depth directions on the package. Mist the mix until saturated so the tiny seeds aren't washed out of place. From then on, water only when the mix feels dry or the seedlings look limp.

Your seedlings will benefit from the start with an all-purpose soil mix, a complete ready-to-use formula containing an ingredient mixture invented especially for plant growth.

With this formula there is no need to add other nutrients as the pro-mix soil promotes plant development that cannot be matched by ordinary soil or home-brewed mixes because the specially blended, sterile formula gives your seeds a good start in life with healthier, better-looking plants.

GARDEN TIPS

Repotting plants

- Water plants at least two hours before repotting.
- Use a pro-mix potting soil.
- Partly fill new pot with soil; place plant in pot.
- Fill remaining space with soil and water thoroughly.

Painting bathroom tile is a tricky task

By Gene Gary
Copley News Service

Q. We recently moved into a home that has a bathroom tiled in pink and maroon ceramic tile. I can't stand this color combination. Is it possible to paint tile? We can't afford tile replacement at this time.

A. Ceramic tile can be painted, but it is not recommended. There are two problems with painted tiles: surface preparation is difficult and it is a key to a successful paint job; the durability of painted tile is unpredictable.

But it can be done. The life of the paint job will depend on wear and tear as well as proper preparation and the type of paint applied.

A two-part epoxy paint is recommended because of its resistance to chemicals such as household detergents. Epoxies dry to a hard finish and are abrasion resistant. They adhere to the smooth ceramic surface better than other paints.

Proper surface preparation is essential. Thoroughly clean the existing tile and let the surface dry. Proceed by roughing up each tile and the grout between. Use sandpaper or steel wool or pumice that cleans and roughens the surface. Vacuum or brush away the dust and grout produced by sanding. Clean up any remaining residue with a tack cloth.

If you don't want painted grout, carefully tape over the grout (various tape sizes are available from art supply stores).

Another simpler method might be to remove some of the existing grout (1/8 to 1/4 inch), paint, scrape the grout and regrout as a final step. However, both of these methods are painstaking procedures and you may decide that painted grout lines are acceptable.

Check with a reputable paint dealer, one that deals in various brands and types of paint, for a recommended epoxy. Marine supply stores often have knowledge of epoxies if you find your regular paint dealer provides insufficient information.

Purchase a recommended primer for the epoxy you choose, along with the recommended solvent. Use of primer is a must to assure adhesion of the top coat.

Allow the primer to dry overnight before applying the topcoats. Follow manufacturer's directions carefully, and clean up any spills or splatters as you go. Epoxy dries fast and hardened paint is difficult to remove.

Two-part epoxies usually come in two equal amounts that require mixing just prior to use. They tend to thicken within several hours, so mix only the amount required and use immediately.

Be sure the room is well-ventilated. Epoxies are volatile and flammable.

Apply the epoxy in a thin even coat. Heavy applications tend to sag, drip and cause curtains. The epoxy will dry within 15 to 20 minutes and harden to touch within an hour.

The paint will continue to cure and harden for about a week. It is best not to use baths and show stalls during that period.

Q. We had to replace the toilet in our tiled bathroom. The new fixture is a different configuration than the previous one. My problem is the mosaic wall tile behind the new toilet (which is smaller than the old one) does not cover all of the bare wall. This same tile covers the walls above the bathtub and sink. I have tried to find a matching tile, but have not come even close to the existing tile color.

Is it possible to successfully paint tile? This way I can tile the bare spots and paint all of the tile one matching color.

A. Because of painting problems outlined above, I would consider painting the tile only as a last resort. There may be easier, more successful solutions.

Consider replacing some of the current tile with a different color border, such as above the tub area, as a colored border to frame an existing mirror or a decorative border along the wash basin. You can then use the removed tiles for the repair job behind the new toilet.

Endowment mortgages may be wave of the future

fund that builds in value for the borrower with each payment. At the end of the term, there is enough cash value accumulated in the fund to pay off the loan, plus a substantial cash payment to the borrower.

That extra cash can be used by the borrower as part of the down payment on another home, or it can reduce the term of the mortgage. Typically, a conventional 30-year loan can be paid off in 20 years using this system if the cash value is used for that purpose.

Another advantage is a significant tax benefit. Since the principal balance does not reduce, the tax-deductible interest portion of each payment remains high. Also, in most cases these loans are insured. If the borrower dies during the mortgage term, the loan is paid off by the insurance company. If and when the borrower is out of a job, the cash can be used to make interim payments.

These loans, known as "endowment mortgages," are new in the United States, but not in Europe. They are the "mortgage loan of choice" in the United Kingdom, comprising about 80 percent of all home mortgage loans.

"This new mortgage product could become very popular in this country in coming months and years," said Tom Criser, an office manager for Norwest Mortgage Corp.

"We're studying the concept and watching its development."

Fannie Mae (Federal National Mortgage Corp.), the nation's leading buyer of existing mortgages, also is studying the concept.

"It looks like a promising new product and we have no negative reaction to it at this point," said Dennis Godfrey, director of product development for Fannie Mae. "It could be great for the borrower to have this extra asset earning for them."

"We want to be sure the servicing agent for these mortgages has a secure system of making proper payments to the insurance fund each month, as well as other cash distributions. If there is strong consumer demand for this type of mortgage, it will probably become a standard Fannie Mae product in the future."

Godfrey said Fannie Mae has not yet received any purchase requests from lenders. In fact, he doesn't know of any lender who now offers these mortgage loans, but several firms are gearing up to make such an offering.

One firm in Atlanta was formed for the specific purpose of marketing endowment mortgages. They will call their product the "Money-back Home Loan," according to the firm's president, who asked that his name and that of his company not be used.

"Our mortgage product will be based on the success-proven concept in the U.K., but some of the details will be adapted to the U.S. market," he said.

In most cases, a borrower who retains one of these mortgages for a 30-year term can accumulate from 25 percent to 35 percent of the loan amount in cash value, he said. For example, if the loaned amount was $100,000, the borrower could receive from $25,000 to $35,000 in cash at the end of the term. Or the funds could be used to cut about 10 years off the mortgage term.

This concept started in the United Kingdom before World War II and has steadily increased its share of the total mortgage market. The endowment mortgage is primarily used to finance residential properties, but is increasingly selected for commercial mortgages in the United Kingdom.

There are variations on this basic concept, and that's a concern for Fannie Mae, Godfrey said.

"We need to know precisely what the primary lender offers before we can consider the purchase of an endowment mortgage from him. It will probably take a lot of consumer education before the product is widely accepted in this country."

One somewhat related product is a special insurance policy now offered by The Prudential Insurance Co. of America. It basically is a life insurance policy, but designed for the needs of mortgage borrowers, according to Chris Sullivan, an office manager for The Prudential.

It accumulates a cash value while insuring that the mortgage payments will be made if the borrower temporarily lacks an income. And it pays off the mortgage if the insured dies. However, it's not directly tied to the mortgage and is transferable to other properties, Sullivan said.

The new endowment mortgage concept, soon to be unveiled in this country, carries a tremendous potential for consumer acceptance and growth.

Reflowering potted tulips; getting messy rose bushes in shape

Q. How can I reflower potted tulips?

A. To reflower your bulb plants, remove the faded blooms and keep the plants watered in a cool, bright location until the foliage matures and dries out. Plant the bulbs outdoors in spring, after danger of frost is past, two to three times deeper than their diameter.

Have patience; they should bloom in a year or two during their normal season.

Q. I've just moved to a new property where there are several rose bushes mixed in with some very neglected overgrown shrubs that I can't seem to identify. How do I go about getting this mess in shape?

A. It really comes down to what you want to save most: the shrubs or roses. I'd try rejuvenating the shrubs at the cost of the roses, which through neglect may not look too vigorous.

Simply dig out the rose bushes and plant new ones in a newly prepared bed. Try the disease-resistant varieties that are becoming so popular.

As for the overgrown shrubs, prune out all of the old, dead and diseased wood, including suckers. Hopefully, the plants will flower so you can identify them.

Once you know what they are, the timing of future pruning is a cinch. If they turn out to be early bloomers, April through June (azaleas, for example), prune immediately after flowering. If they're late bloomers, July through October, prune in early spring.

Tips for those organically inspired

Encourage natural predators — beneficial insects and birds

Arachnids, such as spiders and mites, are very beneficial to your garden. Lady beetles and honey bees are beneficial. The bees spread pollen and help plants reproduce. Other effective insects are lacewings and assassin bugs.

Birds are also very efficient insect predators. By planting trees and shrubs and providing food, shelter and water for birds you can encourage them to live in your yard and help you manage your pests.

Before you get started with your organic gardening, contact your local Cooperative Extension Service to find out about a soil test. The MSU Extension Oakland County Garden Hotline is (810) 858-0880, and it is there that you can get help to diagnose your soil's characteristics and fertility levels. Then you can decide whether you need to add compost, lime, or organic soil supplements and fertilizers.

Hopkinson said that the main idea behind organic gardening is, "To add organic material to soil to increase its fertility." The reason for doing this, Hopkinson said, is that, "Organically grown plants are healthier and more resistant to disease.

"In poor soil, plants are less healthy and more stressed. Plants in the best soil are most resistant to insects and disease," Hopkinson said.

According to Hopkinson, recently completed studies done by researchers at the University of Michigan show that insects and disease will attack a stressed plant first.

"It's like human beings," Hopkinson said, "When we are stressed we are more likely to become sick."

Poor man's stained glass

By Anne McCollam
Copley News Service

ANTIQUES

Q. Enclosed is a picture of a lamp that I have. It looks like a Tiffany but has no markings. It is in perfect shape. Could it be a lamp he made before he became famous?

Do you think it is a Tiffany lamp and what is its monetary value?

A. Although this is a handsome example of a slag glass lamp with a metal overlay, it was not made by Tiffany. All Tiffany lamps were signed.

In the 1890s Louis Comfort Tiffany began designing and producing lamps. The bases were bronze and the shades were made of leaded stained glass. As the popularity of these lamps grew, other firms made less expensive copies.

Slag glass with metal overlay to create the design were used rather than the leaded stained-glass method. Solid bronze bases were replaced by bronzed metal.

Your lamp was made in the early 1900s. It would probably be worth about $500 to $525.

Q. The enclosed mark is on the bottom of an earthenware pitcher that I recently inherited. It is decorated with orange, purple and violet crocuses. There are no chips or cracks, it is in excellent shape.

Who is Clarice Cliff, and when was my pitcher made?

A. Clarice Cliff was a designer for A.J. Wilkinson Ltd.

in Burslem, Staffordshire, England, in the early 1920s. It was the Jazz Age and the art world was still reeling from the unprecedented cubism of Pablo

Picasso and Georges Braque.

Cliff was experimenting with geometric shapes, and bold, vibrant colors. She also found inspiration in the art of ancient Aztec and Egyptian civilizations. "Crocus" was the name of a pattern she used to decorate her Bizarre ware.

With the assistance of a group of women artists, known as the "Bizarre Girls," she designed and decorated her hand-painted ware.

The popularity of Clarice

Cliff earthenware grew like wildfire in both England and America. Most pieces were signed and included the name of the pattern.

Your pitcher was made around 1928 to 1937. Its value would probably be about $500.

Q. I am curious about a cup and saucer that I have. They are decorated with large open blossoms in yellow-gold and red with green leaves. Each is marked on the back "SMF-Schramberg-Ger-many."

Can you tell me when they were made and an estimate of the current value? Is this pattern still available for purchase?

A. Your cup and saucer were made by Schramberger Majolica Factory in Schramberg, Wurttemberg, Germany. The firm opened in 1918 and has been manufacturing stoneware, porcelain and majolica ever since.

Much of their ware was hand-painted and was decorated with unconventional shapes and equally unusual garish colors. Because of the bizarre shapes, vivid colors, and less expensive price range, it was sometimes called the "poor man's Clarice Cliff."

Your cup and saucer are 20th century pieces. To find out if it is still being produced you could write to the company.

The two pieces would probably be worth about $45 to $55 in good condition.

Letters with picture(s) are welcome and may be answered in the column. We cannot reply personally or return pictures. Address your letters to Anne McCollam, P.O. Box 490, Notre Dame, IN 46556.

This slag glass lamp was made in the early 1900s and might sell for $500 to $525.

Why just give a present, when someone special to you celebrates a birthday, wedding, the birth of a child, the holidays or any other special day? Instead, give a gift that's as special as the day itself — a U.S. Savings Bond.

After all, when you can give someone a piece of the future, you show you care today — and tomorrow. Get U.S. Savings Bonds at your bank, and be sure to ask for a U.S. Savings Bond gift certificate. Then, when someone special to you celebrates a special day, give U.S. Savings Bonds. You'll give a piece of the future.

McLaughlin's opens third store in town center area

By SCOTT DANIEL
Staff Writer

Novi's newest furniture store will pride itself on two things: quality and service.

Looking to carve out its own niche in one of metropolitan Detroit's fastest growing communities, Thomasville Home Furnishings by McLaughlin's opens today at 42200 Grand River. According to Manager Dan McLaughlin, the store, which is adjacent to the Novi Town Center, will be service oriented.

"We will bend over backwards to see our customers happy," he said. "We aren't happy until the customer is happy."

Today's opening marks the arrival of McLaughlin's third store. The Downriver-based family business also features shops in Wyandotte and Southgate.

McLaughlin, who is the son of founder Ken Sr., said his hopes are high for the new venture.

"We hope that we'll see an increase in sales by 50 percent," he commented. "We think Novi is a great location that has great potential with all of the growth that's going on."

The first McLaughlin furniture store opened in Lincoln Park in the early 1950s. The business developed slowly and eventually moved to Southgate in the late 1960s. The Wyandotte store followed about a decade later.

The family had been looking at Novi for about two years before purchasing the Cedar Ridge Plaza in January, McLaughlin said. A sizable shopping mall at 30,000 square feet, the furniture store will occupy just more than half of that space.

McLaughlin said his family is working closely with Thomasville in opening the Novi shop.

"Thomasville wanted one here," said Dan. "We're hoping to cement our relationship with Thomasville with hopes of putting another store in the Detroit area."

Thomasville is based in North Carolina and noted for the manufacturing of fine furniture pieces. McLaughlin said the new Novi outlet will only be Thomasville's second in Michigan.

"We will have something the other stores in the area don't have," he added.

Thomasville Home Furnishings by McLaughlin's will carry only Thomasville products. Dan, who is the manager of the Southgate shop, said prices will range from the mid to high end.

"We feel this market is so strong," he commented. "We're very excited."

Nearly every style of furnishings, country, contemporary and traditional, will be stocked for living rooms, dining rooms, office and dens. Oak, cherry and mahogany are just a few types of the materials used in construction.

McLaughlin said an atmosphere of comfort will make shopping at the store a pleasurable experience for customers. To that end, the Novi store will have several special features.

A kids room will be available for family shoppers while a coffee bar will give everyone a chance to relax and think about their purchase decisions. A theater room will feature a 50-inch projection TV that will show informational videos about the Thomasville line.

Thomasville Home Furnishings by McLaughlin's will be open seven days a week to serve the area. On Monday, Thursday and Friday, store hours will be 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Tuesday, Wednesday and Saturday, the shop will be open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday hours are noon to 4 p.m. For more information, call (810) 344-2551.

Business Briefs

The JERVIS B. WEBB COMPANY has announced the selection of GLORIA JAYNES as Quality Achiever of the month. Jaynes resides in Milford. She has been employed with the company for 17 years and currently holds the position of Business Analyst in the Information Services Department.

The Business Analyst's job is to work with employees to solve business problems through the use of computer and communications technology. Gloria is a key member of a "quality work group" which has the responsibility for replacing all of Webb's business applications with a new integrated client server computer system. All of the Webb facilities, including their division and subsidiaries, are implementing this financial and manufacturing software.

To add users in doing their jobs efficiently, Gloria is now supporting both the project accounting and cost accounting applications. Gloria's attention to detail and commitment to the quality improvement process make her valuable asset to the Webb quality team.

The Novi-based TECNOMATIX TECHNOLOGIES INC. has completed its acquisition of VALSYS CORP., a Santa Clara, Calif.-based company that develops and supports software tools for the design, measurement and control of quality in manufacturing.

Tecnomatix is a leader in "virtual manufacturing," a high-growth software field. Virtual manufacturing enables engineers to design, program and test multi-million dollar robotic factory production systems with the help of lifelike, fully animated, 3D computer imaging. The objectives are to reduce costs, assure quality and move products more rapidly from the design stage into production.

Northville-resident DAVID L. HAMILTON has joined GEORGE W. AUCH COMPANY as President and Chief Operating Officer, as well as being a stockholder.

Hamilton has been in the construction industry for 29 years and is active in several industry organizations. He currently serves as chairman of the executive committee of the Construction Innovation Forum and is a member of its board of directors.

The Novi-based GUARDIAN INDUSTRIES CORP., recently announced the commercial operation of a recently installed mirror manufacturing line at its float glass manufacturing facility in the State of Gujarat, north of Bombay, India. This new mirror line represents a tremendous technological leap forward for the indian mirror industry, as previously all mirror production in India has been done on a batch basis producing small quantities of mirror. The Gujarat Guardian line will be India's first state-of-the-art automated continuous process mirror production line. The hourly production is expected to be 3,000 square feet and mirrors will be sold throughout India.

Guardian, founded in 1932, is a leading manufacturer and fabricator of flat glass products used in construction and automotive applications. The company currently operates 14 float glass production lines in North America, Europe, South

COUNTRY NOOK recently opened its doors in Novi. Solid oak and pine furniture in the traditional country style is the store's specialty. Owner and operator MICHI ROTTET, who was a partner at Hinkle Oak Furniture in Livonia for eight years, has a eye for style and enjoys working with customers to create their dream rooms. For more information about the store, which is located at 39799 Grand River, call 471-3190.

JUDY EVOLA of Highland has joined STONE, AUGUST, BAKER COMMUNICATIONS COMPANIES as Public Relations Account Executive. The announcement was made by Jim Grossman, vice president, Public Relations, Promotions, and Special Events.

Previously, Evola had been press relations manager for Applicon, Inc., Ann Arbor, and public relations manager for the Society of Manufacturing Engineers, Dearborn.

TWELVE OAKS MALL in Novi won top honors in Michigan Living magazine's fourth annual "Best of Michigan" Treasure Awards, announced in the April issue. The mall earned first place in the "Best Shopping Mall" Category.

PRAYER to the Holy Spirit. Holy Spirit, you who make me see everything and who showed me the way to reach my ideal. You who gave me the divine gift to forgive and forget the wrong that is done to me and who you are in all instances of my life with me. I, in this short dialogue want to thank you for everything and confirm once more that I never want to be separated from you no matter how great the material desires may be. I want to be with you and my loved ones in your perpetual glory. Amen. Thank you for your love towards me and my loved ones. Say for 3 consecutive days without mentioning your petition and your prayer will be answered. Promise to publish this prayer. Also wish to thank Blessed Mother, St. Joseph and St. Jude. LB.

PRAYER to the Holy Spirit. Holy Spirit, you who make me see everything and who showed me the way to reach my ideal. You who gave me the divine gift to forgive and forget the wrong that is done to me and who you are in all instances of my life with me. I, in this short dialogue want to thank you for everything and confirm once more that I never want to be separated from you no matter how great the material desires may be. I want to be with you and my loved ones in your perpetual glory. Amen. Thank you for your love towards me and my loved ones. Say for 3 consecutive days without mentioning your petition and your prayer will be answered. Promise to publish this prayer. Also wish to thank Blessed Mother, St. Joseph and St. Jude. DMG.

PRAYER to St. Theresa: St. Theresa, Little Flower of the Child Jesus, please send me a flower from your heavenly garden. Please grant the favor I ask of you and so that more people will come to know and love Jesus. I promise publication. 3 Hail Mary's, 3 Our Fathers, 3 Glory Be's. Say prayer daily. Within 7 days you will see or receive a rose as a sign your prayer will be answered. Publication must be promised. LB.

THANK you to all our families, friends and neighbors for their kind gifts of flowers, food, memorials & prayers during the loss of our mother Delene Davis. Thank you, too, Pastor Walker for a wonderful service and a special thank you to Keith and Karen Liberman who were wonderful in taking care of everything that had to be done. Again, thank you all so very much. Ruth and Ray Bessert, Duane and Jean Davis, Nancy and Dabir Shattuck, Darlene and Gary Schombert, Jerry and Vickie Davis, Pat and Margie Davis, Betty Jane Davis and Charles Davis.

When it comes to old furniture, yesterday's trash is truly today's treasure. Smart both environmentally and economically, furniture recycling and refurbishing are among the hottest decorating trends going today.

Both also offer loads of opportunity in the way of creativity since there are dozens of ways to refurbish and refinish a wooden piece. To get started:

- Find a great piece. Search for great possibilities. Check the classified ads, and search flea markets, garage sales, antique stores, thrift stores, estates sales, swap meets and auctions for secondhand finds. Don't overlook unfinished furniture stores.

Who knows? You might even uncover something worthwhile in your neighbor's trash heap.

- Read up. It's easy to get an education on practically any area of the restoration process. Magazine articles, home decorating books and do-it-yourself manuals are filled with great explanations and step-by-step instructions for painting, stripping, staining, repairing — you name it.

Two great tomes to start with are "The Complete Guide to Restoring and Maintaining Wood Furniture and Cabinets" by Brad

REFINISHING FURNITURE

Search for great possibilities. Check the classified ads, and search flea markets, garage sales, antique stores, thrift stores, estates sales, swap meets and auctions for secondhand finds.

Hughes (Betterway) and "The Wood Finisher" by Bruce Johnson (Ballantine).

You also could learn all the basics through a class taught at your local college, craft emporium or through community education.

- Make a decision. At some point, you'll have to decide what you're going to do. Will you, for instance, revive a distressed or worn piece of furniture by restoring its original finish, or create a brand-new one through refinishing?

Or perhaps you hope to work magic with paint by applying a sponged, stenciled, faux or antique finish.

From there, it's off to the home improvement or craft store, where you'll find a wide array of strippers, paints, stains and sealants — some that are environmentally friendly — tools galore and a bevy of brushes and sponges for application. In other words, there's everything you need to get down to business.

- Turn the job over to a pro. After some thought and close inspection of your piece, you might decide to take a hands-off approach. It's an acceptable and oftentimes wise move — considering that many projects can greatly benefit from a professional's touch.

You could, for instance, hire a professional to strip your piece, or let him or her take the entire job start to finish. If you're thinking of re-covering your piece, consider an upholstery professional who can hide sins of the past with the fabric of your choice — something that fits perfectly into your present scheme.

How to decorate on a budget

By Sharon Williams

Copley News Service

Time once was when a room that looked like a million bucks probably cost about that much. Perhaps a little more, perhaps a little less. But the thinking behind it all was that high style carried a high price tag.

Today, the sky is hardly the limit for most homeowners. And design trends have followed suit by coming considerably more down to earth.

Simply put, budget design, frugal decor and shoestring chic are the names of the game for those who want a great room without great debt.

Today's home designers, owners, renters and decorators are stretching their dollars and their imaginations as they shop for bargains, embrace do-it-yourself projects, find innovative ways to make use of what they have and search for low-cost, high-quality objects and materials for the home.

Inspiration and ideas come from magazines, books such as "Decorating on a Mini-Budget" by Brenda Gitlin and Leslea Harellick (Granite Press) and interior designers themselves.

All are full of money-smart ideas — so many, in fact, that they're practically a dime a dozen. And worth every penny in terms of impact and aesthetics.

If you plan to tackle a decorating project in the coming months, you can achieve some marvelous money-saving results.

Following are some suggestions for getting the most for your decorating dime.

FURNITURE FINDS

Furniture often is the obstacle blocking the way into an otherwise great-looking, low-cost room. After all, good pieces are expensive, while economy ensembles often smack of a low-end showroom.

There are, however, some creative ways to acquire fantastic home furnishings. Smart suggestions include:

- Find a piece with "good bones." If your budget is tight, purchase one classic piece of furniture, then decorate around it with inexpensive finds from a flea market or your attic. Over time, the piece will grow with you and fit into any scheme you decide to play out.

If you can't afford to buy it, you probably can rent it. Check out rent-to-own emporiums and comparison shop for the best deals.

- Create folk-art furniture. Let your creative muse run wild as you transform a piece of unfinished or secondhand furniture — such as an end table, sideboard or chair — with painted-on patterns and motifs.

For a more traditional, toned-down look, consider stenciling, sponge-painting or brushing on a faux finish.

Or simply highlight interesting features by using contrasting colors.

- Get a "head" start. If you don't want to splurge on a headboard, create one instead. Look for details in do-it-yourself and decorator magazines.

Make a padded fabric headboard, for instance, with plywood, a staple gun and fabric. Camouflage an existing but unsightly headboard with a fabric slipcover that matches dust ruffle and cushions or turn something unexpected — such as a portion of an old fence or an old window frame — into an innovative headboard.

- Give your furniture the slip. Breathe new life into worn upholstered chairs, footstools and sofas by creating — or commissioning — slipcovers for your beloved pieces. Slipcovers usually are less expensive than having the furnishings re-covered.

If re-covering the pieces is what you really want to do, look for labor-free sales offered periodically by department stores, furniture emporiums and upholstery shops.

- Table the issues. Fill empty corners or spaces alongside the sofa with skirted round tables.

Use any kind of base to support a padded plywood top, then cover with tablecloths of varying sizes and patterns.

- Seek out secondhand finds. To make your decorating dollar go the distance, scan the classified ads for secondhand furnishings, attend auctions and estate sales if you're looking for antiques and keep abreast of the sales.

Bargain buys that have seen better days often can be revitalized through refinishing or reupholstery — with the total price still

Successful garden takes year-round care

By Sharon Williams

Copley News Service

In the garden plot, some seasons are busier than others. But frost on the pumpkin doesn't mean you have to drop your favorite hobby until warmer weather arrives.

And even when you are knee-deep in the soil with planting and harvesting during spring, summer and early fall, you can't ignore routine chores such as fertilizing, composting and maintaining your garden.

Thus it's no wonder that so many gardeners take a year-round approach with their own personal Edens. And why not? By keeping the calendar full of garden-related tasks ranging from mulching and planting bulbs to planning next year's plot and ordering seeds, you'll wind up reaping the most in terms of yield, crop quality and personal fulfillment.

In fact, some gardeners go so far as to plant a year-round garden. In her book "The Four-Season Landscape" (Rodale), author Susan A. Roth offers instruction on how to bring color and life to the garden season by season.

Nancy Bubel's "Handbook of Garden Projects for All Seasons" (Rodale) is filled with inspired projects to keep gardeners busy all year long.

Seasonal gardening assignments depend largely on factors such as where the plot is located, the regional climate, the plot size and the type of garden. Gardening books and magazines are filled with year-round tips and suggestions for success.

Following are a few general ideas to get you growing around the calendar.

SPRING

Give plants a head start. In most areas, spring is too nippy for fledgling annuals and vegetable seeds. But there are ways to give seedlings a head start. A cold frame, for example, will easily add 10 to 15 degrees to the air temperature during daylight hours.

Or consider a greenhouse or greenhouse window that will allow you to pamper your plants indoors all year-round.

Bet on bulbs. When most gardeners think of bulbs, they think of tulips, crocuses and daffodils. But bulbs planted in spring can result in some beautiful summertime blossoms, among them calla lilies and gladiolus.

Remember to refrigerate bulbs for six weeks for the requisite pre-planting chill before setting them out. Use mulch to protect new shoots if frost is a danger.

SUMMER

Gather herbs to dry. In her book, Bubel suggests that summer is a prime time to dry herbs. Next winter, you'll be glad you saved some of summer's abundance.

For best flavor, gather herbs while they're still in the bud. Dry in a spot that offers heat, dry air, darkness and good circulation — such as a shed, garage or covered porch.

If herbs have stems long enough to gather in bunches, hang them in bundles to dry. Be sure herbs are thoroughly dried before you store them. Strip dried leaves from stalks, then store in tightly closed, labeled jars and keep them in a dark, cool place.

Keep composting. Since compost — or well-decomposed organic matter — can add needed nutrients to your soil and works well as a mulch, it's vital to keep turning the compost pile during the summer growing months.

There is a wide selection of composting bins to buy or make yourself that will make your compost heap much easier to manage. A compost thermometer will help you keep an eye on the temperature — which will reach around 140 to 170 degrees inside the bin.

It's also wise to place your compost pile near a water source so you can add liquid if it gets too dry during the dog days of summer.

FALL

Consider a cold-weather garden. Just when most are ready to call it quits for a season, a few hardy gardeners in some areas are tending to some equally hardy plants that they hope to harvest in late fall, winter or early spring.

While techniques and tricks of the trade vary according to climate, most cold-weather gardeners stick to plants known for their ability to survive colder temperatures.

Choices include members of the brassica family such as cabbage, broccoli and kale, underground crops such as beets and carrots and other crops such as corn salad or radichio.

Planting dates vary with crop and climate, but usually, the goal is to give plants enough time to reach maturity before the first hard frost hits. Many gardeners start their plants inside, then move them into the plot when they're strong enough to withstand the warm temperatures of late summer and early fall.

Later down the road, plants can be protected from light frosts with row covers, cloches or mulch.

Prepare the plot for next season. There are many ways to give your garden a much-needed boost during the "off-season." To increase the soil's all-important organic content, hoe or till most of your spent plants into the beds they've been grown in, or grow a cover crop such as Elbon rye or fava beans that will produce a lot of organic matter.

By spreading a mulch of decomposed leaves on your beds, you'll limit soil compaction from heavy rains, stop erosion and create a habitat for many beneficial soil organisms. Trim perennial shrubs, trees and flowers of their dead, diseased, crossed and parallel stems to keep them in prime shape for the growing season.

Kitchens today mean more than work

By Priscilla Lister

Copley News Service

Kitchen design has undergone a transformation in the last 25 years, says Ellen Cheever, ASID, vice president with Heritage Custom Kitchens Inc.

Where the kitchen was a walled-off space designed only for work by a full-time homemaker, today "it is an open area that interacts with adjacent living/gathering/socializing areas," Cheever says in The ASID Report, the publication of the American Society of Interior Designers.

Contemporary kitchens also respond to today's nesting instincts, believes Regina Kurtz, ASID.

"We literally live in the kitchen," she says in The ASID Report. "People are looking for warm, inviting, livable-looking spaces that provide convenience and function."

Interviews with designers across the United States might suggest some ideas you can use to make your kitchen a warmer, more inviting room.

NEW IDEAS

"We see predominantly more wood flooring, which is warmer, quieter and more comfortable underfoot than tile, and gives the room a feeling of being like every other room in the house — a place where you can be with family and friends and entertain as well as work," says Carolin Schebish, ASID, of Design Exchange in Fairfax, Va.

"We wouldn't necessarily recommend it for a family with young children, but for most people it's a workable solution. As an alternative, we'd go in a minute with sheet vinyl flooring for its practicality, ease of maintenance and comfort underfoot — and it's so much prettier now than even five or six years ago," Schebish said.

She chooses ceramic tile for back-splash areas, "because it's easy to clean and the patterns and colors available are absolutely gorgeous."

For counter tops, Schebish prefers solid surfaces, from granite to Corian, Shirelle or Gibraltar, for ease of maintenance and for the "luscious colors available" today.

"Islands are a very big thing," says Schebish. But you need enough room to allow passage, at least 36 to 42 inches of clearance around it, she added.

For cabinets, "there is a trend back to medium wood tones, again because we're all trying to warm up our homes and make them cozier," Schebish said. "There are still white kitchens out there, but many clients, especially on the East Coast, seem to want wood."

LIGHTING CHANGES

As for lighting, Schebish says "everyone still loves to have a window in the kitchen, particularly by eating areas or over sinks." But as for fixtures, "we walk a fine line on lighting for kitchens. It has to be strong enough to provide for safe use of the kitchen.

"Yes, we know we should be using fluorescent lighting and we do use a lot of it in kitchens, because it's better for the environment as it uses less energy. However, it doesn't make food and people look as wonderful as incandescent," she said.

Schebish often chooses deluxe fluorescent tubes that attempt to duplicate the color of incandescent lighting, and often uses recessed down lighting on work surfaces.

The last two kitchens Rita Carson Guest, ASID, of Carson Guest Inc. in Atlanta, has designed have been anchored by white cabinets and black granite counter tops.

"We're seeing bigger and bigger kitchens, large islands, and we're continuing to use appliance garages, which probably

Small spaces yield big rewards

By Priscilla Lister

Copley News Service

You don't need a huge yard to enjoy the rewards of gardening. In fact, you don't need a yard at all.

In the smallest of spaces, whether a patio or rooftop deck or window box or doorstep or curbside median strip, you can grow an abundance of plants. They can yield restorative color, aromatic fragrance, a buffer from winds or noise, or even fresh produce for your family's table.

All you need really are some containers filled with soil or a strip or patch of soil, some sun — and sometimes very little of that — some water, some fertilizer, and occasionally some methods of controlling pests, and you'll grow in wonder at the wonderful things you can grow.

CONTAINER GARDENS

I have lined the 4-foot-by-10-foot patio of my Southern California condominium with variously shaped terra-cotta containers that hold a bounty of blooming flowers. I have experimented over several years to learn what works best in my neighborhood and on my patio, which is shaded by the patios of the several floors above me and which gets hefty doses of sea breezes.

I have little patience for pests, so I tend to pick flowering plants that resist those predators, having weeded out my choices after some striking failures.

I now know that container gardens typically require more frequent watering and fertilizing than large yard gardens, and I have learned these truths and many more from my trusty garden supply store.

What I am rewarded with today are pots filled with bright red and purple geraniums all year long, coral-colored begonias that also last all year long, dark purple and cascading lobelia mixed with bright white alyssum, and a prized cymbidium orchid plant whose annual blooms in the deep of winter make anyone sit up and take notice.

Rounding out this color, I have a large fan palm growing in a big, deep 12-inch pot and a towering ficus tree flanking another corner. And just because I find them uniquely fascinating, I have two pots filled with donkeys' tail succulents that trail way down over the sides, the best for hanging. And I planted the second pot of donkeys' tail simply with branches that fell off the first pot — ah, the wonders you'll see.

Go to your own neighborhood garden store to find out what works well in your area in containers. In general, if your spot is sunny, good flowering plants include asters, daisies, petunias, phlox, stock and roses. If your spot is shady, you'll do better with tuberous begonias, cyclamen, impatiens, primroses and even simple foliage plants like ferns or coleus.

Plan to replace your favorite plants that last only a few months with others that bloom later in the season. Early bloomers include geraniums, pansies, petunias and snapdragons, while later bloomers — going into early fall in even cold climes — include marigolds, zinnias, asters and some chrysanthemums.

And don't overlook doing your own landscaping within any particular container. Some of the finest floral shops now sell what they call European Gardens, which are miniature container versions of big, classic gardens. These are often kept indoors, but the concept can translate anywhere — mix a variety of your favorite plants, flowering and foliage, to simulate your own unique landscape.

You might even place a few rocks appropriately or a miniature trellis to add to the illusion. Pay attention to design elements, including height and depth, and whether some plants will cascade off the sides of the pot.

WINDOW-BOX GARDENS

"For real dash and zest, window gardening is hard to beat," says David Joyce in his new book, "Windowbox Gardening" (Globe Pequot). You must take into account height, proportion and size when planting window boxes, but the plant choices are still myriad.

"As a general point, it is worth noting that the best effects are generally achieved when plants of different habits are brought together: trailers to mask the hard edges of containers combined with more upright plants, for example, or loose-limbed sprawlers with plants that are dense and bushy," he says.

The formal style in a window box is typically symmetrical or classical, Joyce says. Perhaps the largest plant is placed in the center with identical groups of plants to either side. Or plants that can be trimmed, especially the box (Buxus sempervirens) for topiary window gardens, will define the formal geometry.

Cottage-style window boxes are much more casual in scheme — "Plants appear to have been brought together almost randomly," notes Joyce. You might succeed with nothing more than variously colored petunias, or with mounds of busy Lizzies flanked on the bottom by trailing purple lobelia.

Mediterranean-style window boxes might actually gather a collection of terra-cotta pots on a windowsill, filled with nothing other than geraniums, whose dark ivylike leaves add to the effect, or with dark-red impatiens.

"The most appropriate material for a Mediterranean-style window box is terra cotta. ... Also in keeping are improvisations, including plants in painted tins," says Joyce.

FOOD FROM POTS

Of course, you can grow quite a few fruits and vegetables in container gardens, and here your rewards will be tastier, more chemical-free meals that you earned from your own hands.

Nothing comes to mind faster than strawberries, which have their own pots named after them. A strawberry pot filled with vines of the ruby-red fruit bursting out of the many holes on its sides as well as the top will yield a substantial number of the precious berries.

"In the spring, small pots, 6 to 8 inches in diameter, might contain red-leaf lettuces, red mustard and arugula interplanted with baby carrots," offers Susan McClure in "The Harvest Gardener" (Garden Way Publishing).

"The next tier of pots, 10 to 14 inches in diameter, could grow purple cauliflower, followed in summer by pink and white eggplant and Butterblossom summer squash, which is grown for its edible flowers.

Forty-gallon garbage cans might hold trellised yellow tomatoes with purple basil."

She advises planting these vegetable-growing containers with a synthetic soil mix consisting of peat moss, vermiculite and perlite, enriched with compost.

"This blend will not compact into a bricklike block as the summer progresses," she says.

But it will dry out quickly and needs frequent watering and fertilizing.

Herbs do especially well on windowsills because the window reflection adds extra sun benefits, says Louise Riotte in "Successful Small Food Gardens" (Garden Way Publishing). Herbs that do well in shady or partly shady spots include basil, which has become a gourmet treat as a pesto sauce; mints and tarragon. And how easy it would be to pick fresh herbs from your kitchen's windowsill.

Chives grow well in relatively small, 6-inch pots, says Riotte, while radishes, onions and miniature tomatoes (Tiny Tim variety) do well in 10-inch pots. Five-gallon plastic trash cans or 1-bushel baskets can accommodate larger vegetable plants.

You can grow all these vegetables in planter boxes: cabbage, carrots, chard, eggplant, endive, lettuce, peas (include a trellis), spinach or turnips. You'll need a 5-gallon container for cucumbers, pumpkins, squash, regular-size tomatoes or watermelon.

Put your green thumb to work no matter how small your outside area — even if it's planting flowers around the city's trees on your sidewalks — and you'll reap rewards, whether beauty or bounty, from your efforts.

Decorating on a real tight budget

coming in at less than the cost of a brand-new piece.

TERRIFIC TREATMENTS

Windows, walls and floors all pose tremendous money-saving possibilities for the budget-minded decorator — especially do-it-yourselfers. Ideas include:

- Place something underfoot. Deck out a ho-hum floor with a canvas floor cloth or inexpensive sisal.

Dress either one up with stencil painting, or adorn the floor cloth with the patterns or graphics that suit your scheme.

You also could invest in some inexpensive area rugs to cover the bare or cold spots until you can afford a more substantial investment.

- Open up a world of windows. From lace panels and swags to miniblinds and balloon shades, it seems the affordable wonders for window treatments never cease.

Today's trend toward breezy, light-filled windows open the curtain on an array of penny-wise possibilities that the do-it-yourselfer can easily tackle — among them smart cafe curtains, breezy fabric panels and flounced and fluffy valances that require little or no sewing.

- Add architectural impact. It's easy to add inexpensive decorative moldings or chair rails to a boring room, or to create divinely draped window treatments with the installation of tiebacks in interesting shapes.

Paint in contrasting tones or bright white can bring out the best in trim, enliven dull rooms or enhance flow throughout the house. Free-standing screens can help define boundaries in open floor plans, pictures and photographs can be propped instead of hung for aesthetic appeal and new knobs can revitalize tired kitchen cupboards without a major remodel.

- Spread the sheets. For lots of washable, long-wearing yards, use sheets for duvet covers, folding screens, dining room appointments, decorator pillows, cushions, bedroom ensembles, window treatments, slipcovers, shower curtains, bed canopies and such.

Inexpensive yet commanding fabrics such as muslin or decorator fabric designed to be tossed throughout the house also present yards of possibilities.

"Simplicity's Simply the Best Home Decorating Book" (Fireside) is filled with ideas for decorating with fabric.

AFFORDABLE ACCENTS

An extra hour or so and some spare change is often all that's required to pull together a great accessory. Possibilities include:

Frame or shade it. Make-them-yourself picture frames and lampshades are two hot and haute accents on the home design front. Craft classes, home decorating books and magazines are filled with ideas and how-to tips.

For frames, faux finishes, painted-on designs and unusual materials such as buttons, cutout illustrations, canceled stamps and objects of nature such as pine cones and seashells are all the rage.

With lamps, meanwhile, fabrics, stenciled-on designs and ornate trims such as fringe and beads transform an ordinary shade into something spectacular.

- Acquire some artistic inspirations. Forget the uptown galleries. If you've a spare art book, dismantle prints or photographs, then mat and frame them for a unified presentation in a hall or entryway.

Flea markets, garage sales and estate sales often are meccas for interesting prints, drawings and paintings that might mesh with your decorating scheme.

Or if you've an artist in the family, consider putting his or her works in the spotlight. Your child's kindergarten masterpieces will take on new importance when they're given a frame and a place to hang.

- Say it with flowers. Flowers are among the most affordable — if not somewhat temporary — accessories around. Wreaths of dried flowers, bulb vases with new blooms, bowls brimming with potpourri and simple arrangements of garden-fresh flowers are just a few of the many stunning and scented possibilities.

- Hire a pro. Since you're on a budget, you'd never think of hiring an interior designer, right? Try again. In most instances, design professionals can actually help you save money — at the very least usually enough to cover their fees.

Most have a knack for finding inexpensive treasures and revitalizing the objects that one already owns through artful reintroduction and rearranging. Additionally, many design professionals have insiders' access to merchandise, labor and materials sources that are out of reach for the average consumer.

Bathrooms made to pamper

"The bathroom has become the most frequently remodeled room in the '90s," says Barb Machowski and the editors of Consumer Reports Books in "Complete Book of Bathroom Design" (Consumer Reports Books).

Today's bathroom has become more than utilitarian; it has also become a place to relax, perhaps the only room where you can be truly private.

Machowski cites several bathroom design trends for the '90s that may help you plan one of your dreams.

- "Universal design trends emphasize easy-to-use bathrooms for all generations, from children to aging adults," writes Machowski. Such concerns point to wider doorways and easily activated faucet levers and lighting controls.

- "Bathrooms are designed to fit the human body." Ergonomics is finding its way into the bathroom as equipment designers take note of how our bodies move. New ideas include raising the vanity and sink and even toilet for tall folk or installing grab bars at the tub and shower.

- "Conservation concerns have extended to the bathroom," Machowski points to low-flush toilets, which have been made law in many areas, low-flow shower heads and fluorescent bulbs that use less energy than incandescent bulbs and today fit into standard fixtures.

- "Safety issues have affected bathroom planning and product development." Non-slip surfaces, soft tubs and anti-scald faucets are current products.

- "New standards for bathroom design professionals have become increasingly sophisticated." The National Kitchen and Bath Association now offers specialized training that leads to the designation of Certified Bathroom Designer.

Current looks are at home on the range

By Sharon Williams

Copley News Service

Step into a room that follows one of today's decorating trends and you're instantly transported into a different time and place.

Perhaps you've landed in a humble countryside cottage or the tony apartment of a New York socialite.

Then again, you might find yourself in old Santa Fe, surrounded by rugged, cowboy- and Southwestern-inspired furnishings.

If you feel that you're suddenly somewhere else, then you're right at home. Today's trends are all about the celebration of the best in American style — a style that embraces many moods, motifs and time periods.

Each trend is distinct and different in terms of furniture, accessories, floor, wall and window treatments. Yet, all allow home owners the freedom to express their own personal tastes in a variety of themes and variations.

Ready for a home tour? Here's a run-down of a few of today's top design trends, followed by some tips for finding which one is best for you.

COUNTRY GOES MODERN

In the 1990s, country chic is still all the rage. Instead of piles of chintz pillows and cheerful clutter, today's twist lies in the clean, pure lines of modern country.

Yes, the feeling is still welcoming and homey. But, it's also simple and streamlined. Neutral walls, floor coverings, window treatments and contemporary lighting, along with some traditional additions such as tile, exposed wood floors, shutters and wood beams create the perfect backdrop for a most refreshing eclectic look.

The furnishings in a modern country room can be borrowed from practically any style — even the here and now — so long as the lines aren't too extreme.

When arranged in a casual, airy manner, weathered farm tables, simple pine armoires and Shaker-inspired chairs can live happily beside thoroughly modern sofas and chairs or a stylish stereo or computer system.

Dominant colors or patterns are used to pull the room together visually, and accessories are spare and to the point.

Choices might include painted shaker boxes, small sculptures, clean-lined pottery and simple pieces of folk art.

COTTAGE INDUSTRY

Blame it on a craving for a simpler time or a back-to-basics approach to life in the 1990s. Whatever the reason, plenty of home owners are taking their cues from the humble, rural homes of years gone by.

There's truly a lot to like about cottage style. Efficient without sacrificing charm, and comfortable without the clutter, this theme manages to be both lively and livable at the same time.

It's also affordable, thanks to the fact that the country look is built upon flea-market finds, unmatched furniture, loose slipcovers and simple antiques. Furnishings handcrafted from pine, twigs, wicker and rattan are among the top picks.

Accessories depend largely upon the cottage variation for which you're aiming. In a room inspired by Adirondack ambience, for example, you'll find lots of peeled logs, splatterware and decoys, while a farmhouse room wouldn't be complete without a butter churn, quilts, a milk stool and folk art.

Other popular cottage accents include braided throw rugs, botanical prints, quilt racks or ladders, wrought-iron lamps, lace curtains and panels, fishing reels, pine cones, shells and dried wreaths arrangements — depending on how formal or casual you

HOME ON THE RANGE

If you're trying to rustle up a look that's fashionable without frills and fuss, set a spell with this year's take on the perennial Southwestern theme.

They call it Western style, partner — an ambience that's part "Little House on the Prairie" and part John Wayne.

As exciting as a rodeo and as cozy as a coffee pot on the fire, this look starts with big, comfortable pieces of furniture crafted from rugged wood, aged metals and weathered upholstery.

Log or wood-with-iron beds are strong enough to support thick, cozy Southwestern-inspired bed ensembles — which can be coordinated with matching wallpaper borders, shower curtains and window treatments.

Key accessories might include tin lamp shades with cowboy cutouts, cowhide throw

Dress up your garden with flowers

By Terشيا d'Elgin

Copley News Service

Where the blood of Adonis fell on the earth, anemones sprouted. When Narcissus wasted away from unsatisfied desire for his own image in a pool, he was turned into a flower. From Hyacinthus' blood sprang the hyacinth after he was killed by Apollo.

Just as mythology gave names to flowers, we gardeners can develop a personal mythology to accompany our plant selection.

Attributing meaning to certain flowers is easy. Pansies may remind you of your grandmother, peonies of extravagance, orchids of jungles and so forth. Different flowers evoke all kind of responses — emotional, sensorial and even intellectual.

Your garden will ultimately be more personal, more lush with innuendo, if you take time to meditate on its potential constituents.

However, every gardener knows what it is to be swept away by the nursery experience. We step through the gates and are besieged by mountains of color: Bold gerbers sway in hot colors under our noses. Embroidery-fine alyssums are spread out like white and lavender linens. Fuchsia trellises dangle with a full repertory of dancers.

You want to take the whole breathtaking display home with you, so you amass roughly three times what you can afford and make for your own back yard, dizzy with possibilities. Whoa! You've got actual lives in your hands.

What are these creatures you've acquired? How do they fit into your soil condition, exposures and growing season? Which part of your garden do they yearn for and which other plants will they most readily complement?

All these questions should have been pondered before you fell prey to narcotic nursery experience. Research and planning is highly recommended.

Look at magazines and books like "The American Mixed Border" by Ann Lovejoy (Macmillan) and "Beds and Borders" by Wendy Murphy (Houghton Mifflin) for ideas.

By fleshing out your appreciation for the fragrance, growing habits and history of individual plants, reading can help you build a repertory of personally meaningful plants.

Reference books such as Sunset's garden books and "The Bedding Plant Expert" by Dr. D.G. Hessayon (PBI Publications) can confirm whether favorite plants are appropriate to your conditions. Most of all, meditate on why you like certain plants. What will they bring to your garden atmosphere?

TREES AND SHRUBS

Often overlooked is the ability of flowering trees and shrubs to wallpaper the upper regions of your garden with color. Dogwoods, apple trees, magnolias, jacarandas, rhododendron, forsythia, bottle brush, camellia — the list is endless.

These larger plants bring stability to a garden, but their size and shade also dictate what can be planted underneath.

Check with the people at your nursery to better understand what kind of conditions the trees need and how they will affect the rest of your planting. Also helpful are community arbor groups that work vigilantly to reinforce the importance of tree planting both environmentally and aesthetically.

PERENNIALS

Perennials are a garden's continual residents, often out-living the people who own the property.

Since their presence is not transient, it makes sense to make their living conditions as pleasant as possible; preparing the soil, choosing vigorous plants, planting at recommended times and providing regular TLC and water.

In an optimum environment, perennials will be effusive enough to share cuttings and divisions with other gardeners. There is much to be learned from studying some perennials, like salvia, penstemon, lupine and columbine, in their native environment.

A new book, "The Ultimate Rose Book" by Stirling Macoboy (Abrams) is, though smaller than a Pasadena parade float, almost as heavy with roses — 1500 of them. It includes classifications, terminology, history and cultivation procedures. It's a must for anyone who loves roses.

BULBS

Flowering bulbs harbor your garden's mysteries. Gathering forces once a year, treasures like crocus, paperwhites, freesias, gladiolas and lilies treat you to an abundance of fragrance and hue.

Even though they are not always visible, bulbs take up room and it is a real science developing companionate planting schemes.

Gardening expert Jerry Baker recommends giving bulbs a "bath before bed" in his book "Jerry Baker's Flowering Garden" (Collier). By this, he means to bathe (not soak) them in a 2-gallon solution of soap, water and a tablespoon of 44 percent chlor-dane before planting them. This small effort will steel the bulb and plant against pests.

ANNUALS AND BIENNIALS

The evanescent petunias, poppies, cosmos, four-o'clocks, snapdragons, phlox and other annuals move into your garden ready to spangle it with a profusion of blossoms. Suitable for those fast fixes of flowering, they demand little except watering in maintenance.

Many annuals bloom longer and more abundantly than perennials. You may have to rely on annuals for summer color since most perennials are spring and fall blooming.

Placement can not be done randomly with reliable results. Like all garden denizens, annuals must be provided for in advance of their arrival. Some annuals, like calendulas, scarlet runner beans and nasturtiums, either reseed themselves or can be planted from seeds you harvest.

EDIBLES

In some cases, it's not only a flower's scent and good looks that beckon. Even as they were fashioning stories of gods and flowers, the ancients were also busily nibbling at their petals.

Lavender blossoms are used to perfume some desserts according to culinary expert Kitty Morse, creator of a new edible flower poster from Ten Speed Press.

A native Moroccan, Morse said North Africans float orange blossoms in the tea and make jam from rose petals. Elegant Chinese dishes commonly call for chrysanthemum petals.

Cathy Wilkinson Barash's new book "Edible Flowers from Garden to Palate" (Fulcrum) showcases 280 recipes and gardening advice for 69 flowers.

Traditional club chairs, for instance, head west when covered with buffalo checks and blanket-stitching, as does a leather sofa when accented with cowhide pillows.

Log or wood-with-iron beds are strong enough to support thick, cozy Southwestern-inspired bed ensembles — which can be coordinated with matching wallpaper borders, shower curtains and window treatments.

Key accessories might include tin lamp shades with cowboy cutouts, cowhide throw rugs, Navajo blankets, sturdy fireplace tools, woven baskets and real-life accessories such as spurs, ropes and a weathered 10-gallon hat — lest the neighbors think you're a drug-store cowboy.

CITY CHIC

You don't have to live in a major metropolitan area to enjoy high style.

Instead, acquire some classic furnishings, such as a four-poster bed, camelback sofa or a metal bistro chair, then surround them with luxurious parquet floors, checkerboard marble tiles, opulently draped windows and neutral walls for a sophisticated, citified look.

Because the timeless lines of such furnishings never look dated, they're always a good investment. And you can always liven things up by dressing them in bold blocks of the hottest hues.

Accessories and floor lighting contribute the most when they're clean-lined and toned down. Simply-framed prints, a fruit still life, original art work, adjustable halogen task lamps and neat stacks of books and magazines are just some of the extras that underline the impeccable look.

HUES NEWS

Great design trends always begin with great color schemes, and the present offerings offer a pleasing paint box of possibilities.

For countrified styles such as cottage, the palette includes a spectrum of greens ranging from celery and avocado to hunter and pine, blues inspired by the sky, sea and the Great Smokey Mountains and yellows in an array of warming, mellow tones.

A neutral palette with colors such as sand, gray and bisque, meanwhile, can be a perfect and timely complement to country modern or citified ambiances, while reds are red hot in tints of blush, coral, watermelon and cherry for rooms that range from classic to cowboy.

FIND YOUR STYLE

The trends above represent just a few of the many themes on the decorating front, and many more await inspection in home decorating books and magazines.

To find your style, clip or copy photos or descriptions of the rooms, furnishings and accessories you like until you start to see a pattern. Once you've developed a decorating attitude — perhaps one you can put a name to — work to pull all the parts together into one beautiful decorating scheme.

Safe, planet-friendly gardening practices aren't a lot of extra work.

These methods make garden vigorous, safe

By Jennifer Plantier

Copley News Service

Even many of the largest agricultural companies are finally realizing the benefits of working with the natural forces of the Earth, as opposed to trying to control them.

The wide use of chemical pesticides and synthetic fertilizers for farming in the last 50 years has caused quite a break in the chain of life.

They deceptively and temporarily created healthier and more abundant crops, but left us with higher production costs, more erosion, less fertile land, polluted drinking water and an eco-system in disarray.

It is only now that we are discovering the whole range of damage to the health of not only humans, animals and even plant life, but the entire planet.

In fact, experts insist that the use of harsh pesticides and synthetic pesticides is not just a catastrophe waiting to happen, it is completely unnecessary.

Proponents of the movement for organic gardening, agriculture and even landscaping claim that their products and methods work just as well, cost little and are easy to adopt.

ORGANIC THINKING

Don't assume that you can trade in your old weed killer for a safer one allows you to call yourself an aware green thumb. Experts say it requires quite a shift in thinking about Mother Nature. Organic philosophers see the need to understand and bow to nature's systems. Keep in mind that all "chemicals" are not necessarily harmful (most all substances are chemical in nature) and many "natural" products are very, very toxic.

The key to an organic approach is working with natural systems to keep soil rich and healthy, and relying on only the safest and most environmentally correct products around.

- Soil balance. The important thing is reaching a chemical balance in the soil. The pH should be between 6.2 and 6.5, minerals and chemical nutrients (magnesium, sodium, potassium), and trace elements should be present at the correct levels.

Balanced soil should end up with just the right amount of living organisms, and is perfect place to start growing healthy plants. It also requires less fertilizer — opening the door for simple and regular organic maintenance methods to finish the job.

- Soil maintenance. Once a healthy balance is reached, take some steps to keep it that way. Remember that healthy soil produces robust plants with a natural resistance to diseases and pests. Choose plants that will grow well in your area and plant them at the correct time of year.

Stop using synthetic pesticides and fertilizers, opting instead for compost, rock powders and natural fertilizers. Resort to the use of the least toxic pesticides only when faced with a specific pest control problem. Mulch all bare soil to keep it moist, balanced and rich with living organisms. Water thoroughly and deeply, but less frequently.

BOTHERSOME BUGS

Earth-friendly pest and disease control is not as simplistic as wiping out your most frustrating enemies— whether they be slugs, aphids or die-hard beetles. Experienced gardeners suggest the following tried and true strategies.

- Prevention. Cut insects off at the pass by planting healthy specimens to begin with. Select naturally pest-resistant varieties as suggested by growers or other experts in

Growing the best vegetables and fruits

By Priscilla Lister

Copley News Service

A vine-ripened tomato picked from your back yard will make that salad burst with flavor you've rarely enjoyed.

Sweet corn boiled just minutes after being picked will live up to its name better than any store-bought variety.

Snap peas that cost up to $4 a pound in the supermarket are as easy to grow as their name implies.

And when you taste those strawberries you've cultivated, your reward will be sweet indeed.

Grow your own vegetables and fruits and you'll not only eat more flavorful foods, you will receive more nutrients because you can use fewer hazardous chemicals than commercial growers. You can save literally hundreds of dollars a year on your produce bill. And perhaps best of all, you can exercise, reduce stress and know the satisfaction of producing something that's truly good for you and your family.

"You can grow better-tasting and more nutritious produce for a fraction of the cost of store-bought food," asserts Susan McClure in "The Harvest Gardener" (Garden Way Publishing).

She cites an Ohio State University study that showed the average 10-by-15-foot garden yields 210 pounds of produce annually. McClure feeds her family of four from her 50-by-50-foot garden about half the year, producing enough extra food to donate to her local food bank, while saving her about $550 a year on her market bills.

"I estimate that for every dollar I spend on seeds and supplies, I reap about $10 worth of food," McClure says, "...better than a savings account."

PLANNING YOUR GARDEN

The first gardening points to consider before you dig that first hole are: location, climate and soil.

"A vegetable garden should be at least 50 feet from a busy street and shielded from the road by a hedge or fence to lessen the effect of exhaust," advise Paul Doscher, Timothy Fisher and Kathleen Kolb in their book, "Efficient Vegetable Gardening" (Globe Pequot Press).

They also suggest the location should be readily accessible for such things as deliveries of fertilizer and mulch as well as easy picking from your kitchen. And the area should drain well, though not be located on such a steep slope that erosion is likely.

Naturally, you must know your region's climate and the length of its growing season, the latter "defined primarily by the dates of the last spring frost and the first fall frost," says McClure. And while your zone number as identified by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's zone map will steer you to the vegetables and fruits that grow best in your area, you must also pay attention to your plot's microclimate, says "Efficient Vegetable Gardening."

"Your garden site is part of a smaller zone that may not answer to the generalized description of the large USDA zone. Your pocket zone, or microclimate, may be significantly warmer or colder, wetter or drier than surrounding areas because of solar and wind exposure, water and air drainage, elevation, topography and other considerations," say the gardening authors.

And one of the most important factors for any size garden is its soil.

Your soil may not be corrected simply by dumping lots of fresh manure on it. You must also pay attention to its drainage and aeration properties, its humus content, and its pH balance as well as its nutrients.

You can improve all these properties by first testing your soil, and then correcting whatever problems you discover.

CHOOSING VEGETABLES

First and foremost, choose vegetables to grow that you really like to eat.

You'll be more motivated to take care of them and you'll be more rewarded for doing so.

If you have small space for a garden, you still have many choices for plots and may find new creative ones as you become more adept as a gardener.

"Beets, carrots, leaf lettuce, onions, early peas, radishes and spinach can be planted in rows 1 foot apart... Other vegetables need more room," says Louise Riotte in "Successful Small Food Gardens" (Garden Way Publishing).

Tomato plants need to be at least 2 feet apart in rows 3 feet apart; sweet corn should be planted in hills 3 feet apart each way or in rows 2 feet apart with each plant 1 foot apart, she says.

"Cucumbers, melons and squash require a good 2 to 5 feet of space in all directions," Riotte says. "But cucumbers can be grown on a fence to save space."

Different vegetables also require different amounts of sun and shade.

Fruiting vegetables need full sun, and include tomatoes, melons, eggplant, pumpkins, corn, peppers, beans, zucchini, okra and cucumbers, says Riotte.

Those vegetables grown for their leaves, roots or stems, including beets, turnips, carrots, cauliflower, cabbage, Brussels sprouts, spinach, parsnips and lettuce, prefer partial shade. You might be able to plant some of these to shade others, such as intertwining corn rows with lettuce in the middle.

THEME GARDENS

The salad garden is Dorothy Greenlove's choice, according to "Efficient Vegetable Gardening." She dedicates a small 10-by-15-foot area in her back yard containing 2-by-10-foot raised garden beds in which she grows greens, tomatoes, peppers, carrots, spinach and some herbs.

"One big advantage of growing your own lettuce," according to Dorothy, "is the great variety of shapes, textures and colors you can produce."

And her favorite tomato after many tries is the cherry tomato, specifically Sweet 100s and Gardeners Delight.

"You just can't find more productive and sweet-tasting tomato," she says.

Another theme garden idea in the book is The bathtub garden, such as Simon Koch's on his Brooklyn rooftop. An old cast-iron claw-footed bathtub is now home to sugar-snap peas, lettuce, spinach, parsley, dill and basil during the early growing season, replaced for the later season with green peppers and tomatoes, both staked, and cucumber and zucchini, both trained to droop over the side of the tub.

CHOOSING FRUITS

Strawberries will thrive in every part of America, including Alaska, declares Louise Riotte in another of her gardening books, "The Complete Guide to Growing Berries and Grapes" (Taylor Publishing).

They do require good drainage and full sun, however. If drainage is a problem, grow them in a raised bed, she advises.

And while ample sun is necessary, in an extremely hot, dry climate, they do better with some afternoon shade.

Raspberries ripen slightly later than strawberries and well-cared-for plants can reap good bounties for 10 or more years. Find out what varieties grow best in your area by checking with your local county agricultural agent or garden supply store.

"One-year-old, No. 1 grade plants are best for establishing new plantings," says Riotte.

Blackberries, which still grow wild in many parts of North America, have now been happily domesticated for home gardens. Riotte says the Cascade Blackberry is a strong, sturdy grower whose taste most resembles the wild ones.

"But it will take over if allowed to have its own sweet way," says Riotte.

Keep it high up on a trellis so as not to allow trails on the ground to take root.

The Thornfree Blackberry is another breed that has no thorns, making harvesting pain-free. The Darrow Blackberry is currently the general favorite for most areas and is good for eating out of hand or for making jams, jellies and even wine.

Don't forget fruit trees for your home garden, says Stella Otto in "The Back Yard Orchardist" (Otto Graphics). Here are some of her top picks according to region:

- Pacific Northwest: Plant apples, peaches, pears and cherries.

- California: Apricots, plums, peaches.

- Mountain States: Hardy apples, pears and plums.

- Southwest: Low-chill apples and pears.

- Plains States: Hardy apples and plums and pears.

- Great Lakes: Apples, cherries, pears and hardy peaches and apricots.

- Mid-Atlantic: Apples, peaches, hardy apricots, tart cherries and pears.

- New England: Apples, pears and the European plum.

- Southeast: Low-chill apples and peaches, European pear and plums.

Simple steps for growing a great lawn

By Sharon Achatz

Copley News Service

While the great springtime quest is for a lawn that's green, often it turns out that the gardener gets green instead — feeling ill at the prospect of another annual fight with the fescue or battle with the bluegrass.

To borrow a phrase from best-selling author and syndicated garden expert Jerry Baker, for many people lawns are just a pain in the grass.

Which may help explain the current trend toward people reducing the size of their lawns, interspersing or surrounding the grass with areas of alternate ground covers such as bulbs, shrubs, wildflowers and creeping vines.

Some people choose to remove their turf entirely, planting instead an entire yard with a cottage garden look of native shrubs and flowers that attract birds and butterflies.

Experts suggest that if you do convert some lawn area to shrubbery, be sure to mulch heavily any bare ground around the base of these plants to help retain moisture.

Regardless of whether your lawn blankets the property or is merely a patch of green amid a sea of shrubbery, experts agree on several simple steps to growing and maintaining a great lawn. Among them:

- Aerate. Compacted soil is one of a lawn's most common problems, and aeration is the cure. You can hire a professional or rent a machine to pull out small cores of soil every 3 to 6 inches across the lawn. This process encourages deeper rooting, provides better drainage, and helps fertilizer to penetrate where it needs to go. Leave the cores on the grass surface, where they'll help break down thatch.

- Dethatch. Thatch is a mat of dead, lazy surface roots and fibrous material that forms between the soil and the roots of the grass — damaging both. While up to a half-inch of thatch can be beneficial for water retention, any more than that can choke your lawn. To remove thatch, use a dethatching attachment on the front of your mower or a dethatching rake and scratch the earth's surface thoroughly.

- Overseed. After you've removed thatch, top dress the lawn with sifted compost and overseed the lawn to thicken things up and fill bare spots. Be sure to select a mixture of grass seed appropriate to your area.

- Feed. Fertilize no more than twice a year — once in the spring, and then a heavier feeding in the fall. The fall feeding ensures that nutrients go to root growth rather than top growth. Select an organic fertilizer and top dress your lawn. Organic mixtures are more expensive than synthetic, but generally contain more trace elements and help build up soil to cure thatch.

- Water. Lawns almost never need to be watered more frequently than once a week, and overwatering promotes fungus and rot. The simplest test for determining if a lawn is ready for watering is a walk in the grass — if your footprints remain, it's time to turn on the sprinkler. The best time to water is during early morning hours, when humidity is high and the water will evaporate slowly. If you're not an early riser, install an electronic timer that will turn on the water for you.

- Mow properly. Cutting off too much grass at once leads to shallow roots and a lawn subject to disease. In general, mow off no more than one-third of the blade height at one time. Leave clippings on grass to enrich the soil. If possible, mow in a pattern that blows clippings on the unmowed side so you'll go over them a second time.

If even these simple lawn-care techniques leave you feeling ill, consider hiring a professional gardening service. Ask for references, and go to look at the properties they maintain. Ask about the types of fertilizers and treatments used, as well as the experience of employees. Will the same employees tend to your lawn each time you receive service?

Sign a written agreement that specifies exactly what services are included, and which — such as tree trimming, planting annuals, etc. — will require additional payment.

Kitchens today mean more than work

started about 10 years ago," Guest said. "They're a clean, nice way of handling all the appliances we have today."

Guest usually uses incandescent lighting in a combination of low voltage and regular fixtures.

"And we use parlamps over stoves — a type of incandescent light that projects down onto the work surface in a concentrated light so you get very well lit surfaces, which of course you need in a kitchen."

She also used a low-voltage track lighting fixture over an island recently.

"This is a very contemporary looking fixture that hangs down on a stem with tiny heads that contain MR16 lamps that can be adjusted to project light down onto the island top," said Guest. "It's a really nice, up-to-date contemporary look instead of hanging pots over the island."

For those white cabinets, Guest chooses painted lacquer on wood with Melamine inside for easy cleaning.

"And on the floor, we like a new product that Armstrong makes called Components. Components are basically 9-inch-square tiles that come in quite a few different colors that you can lay out in patterns or grids to make it interesting," said Guest. "And it's a soft floor, easy to stand on and to keep clean."

AMAZING STORAGE

"There are amazing things going on in storage units," offers Ruth Stanton, a design partner in Ross Thiele & Son in La Jolla, Calif. "For example, in little tiny corners where we used to have to find spots to build in places for cans, now they're making storage units that will fit right into little corners, even those 6 inches wide.

"And there are beautiful units that pull out from the wall, some even made to look architectural, like columns on either side of the cabinets that actually pull out and inside are just like pantries," said Stanton.

She also points to new cook tops available "where you can take the actual counter-top material you're using — say granite or tile — and into the center of that material you place the burners so the whole counter top looks the same."

She also likes the convertible burner units that can combine gas and electric features, such as gas burners and an electric barbecue or rotating skewer. Stanton said the glass stove-top units today have improved since they first came out and "are very contemporary, very sleek, in black or white."

"There are some marvelous new tiles on the market," said Stanton, "that give a wonderful kind of old French Provincial or Italian country look."

In her own condominium's kitchen, which has limited storage space, Stanton has placed a "beautiful old Welsh dresser on one wall where I put canned things, pasta, pretty herbed vinegar bottles, with cookbooks on the top shelf and a wine rack.

"It makes people want to come in and cook. It's a way you can create charm but still maintain storage space."

She also uses an old flour bin from England for her wastepaper basket which she found in an antique store.

"You can do a lot of things like that to add interest to a kitchen," Stanton said.

"And one thing I love to use, depending on the feeling of the room, is rugs on a kitchen floor. Whether ethnic, like Guatemalan rugs or Oriental runners, they work well because they don't show a lot of dirt. But in a contemporary kitchen, I might not be as apt to use something like that."

Stanton uses lighting experts for many of her jobs.

"Lighting is so interesting for the ambience you can create today. It's become so specialized and not expensive that you can create real moods in a kitchen."

"We did a house high up in the Colorado Rockies where they had a whole system of mood lighting. You'd walk into the kitchen and press a button to turn on certain spotlights on the centerpiece or on a cabinet where they had an interesting display of pottery. Lighting can be bright or very soft and muted, giving a whole overall background to the room."

REMODELING COSTS

As for what kitchen remodeling jobs cost today, Schebish says "you can have an effect for $5,000. You could easily spend $50,000 to remodel a kitchen, and I'm not sure it would be difficult to spend twice that, depending on appliances and surfaces you're using."

Guest estimates most kitchen remodeling jobs cost from $20,000 to $25,000, "and a lot depends on what kinds of appliances you get. But it's a lot easier to spend less on your kitchen than you had to, say, five or six years ago to get a similar look."

Whether you seek a traditional, old world or contemporary style, the kitchen has become a family focal point and that trend is likely to continue for a long time.

your area. Keep your garden disease-free by using sanitized tools and get pest-ridden debris out of the way quickly. Rotate crops yearly to keep disease from building up a large population on one area.

- Extend an invitation to good bugs.

Many types of beneficial insects can help keep down the population of pests — lady bugs, bees and lacewings to name a few. Offer them a cool drink, they are often attracted to a source of water. Grow small flowering plants in the vicinity to attract bees, wasps and flies. A bulky mulch provides a home for hungry spiders.

- Build barriers. Check into the many and varied devices on the market, or design your own clever barrier or trap.

- Sprays and dusts. The organic-minded use them only when all else has failed. Buy a fairly safe insecticide such as BT or Precor.

YARD CARE BASICS

Even if you aren't an avid gardener, organic methods can help to keep your yard in the best possible shape without endangering your children or pets.

When mowing grass, keep it 2 inches or taller, and mow only one-third of its height at one time. Mowing it too short increases its need for food and water and makes it easier for weeds to invade. Also, it's important to leave grass clippings on the lawn, so that they may break down into food for the soil.

Aerating the soil increases the amount of oxygen entering into it. Machines can be bought or rented, or you can simply punch holes in the ground with any sharp tool. Use only organic fertilizers 2 or 3 times a year.

Get rid of pests with a fish emulsion/liquid kelp mixture or baking soda spray. Control weeds by mulching and composting. When all else fails, use organic products — but remember that few weeds will actually grow in a very healthy soil.

COMPOST CLUES

Composting is the process of recycling household and outdoor wastes into a helpful organic fertilizer and soil conditioner. This decay process occurs very slowly in nature, but we can speed it up by setting up our own home composting method.

Even small yards have space for a handy compost pile, but farms or larger areas of land may call for larger or more sophisticated containers.

It will beef up soil structure, feed healthy plants, and reduce the amount of house waste that ends up in landfills.

Start your pile with a starter culture of rich soil or a commercial compost activator. Add a wide variety of materials of living origin. Layer green or high-nitrogen materials like coffee grounds, leaves, manure, vegetable scraps and grass clippings with brown or high-carbon materials like hay, paper, cornstalks or straw.

It can be as simple as small pile in the corner of a garden, or as complicated as a large commercial tumblers. Whatever you mix it up in, compost requires the same vital elements.

- Moisture. Compost should stay about as damp as a sponge; too much water washes away nutrients.

- Aeration. Frequent turning is the easiest way to make sure all areas get enough air to spark decomposition.

- Temperature. A minimum size of 3 feet square is required for heating to take place.

Current looks are at home on the range

rugs, Navajo blankets, sturdy fireplace tools, woven baskets and real-life accessories such as spurs, ropes and a weathered 10-gallon hat — lest the neighbors think you're a drug-store cowboy.

CITY CHIC

You don't have to live in a major metropolitan area to enjoy high style.

Instead, acquire some classic furnishings, such as a four-poster bed, camelback sofa or a metal bistro chair, then surround them with luxurious parquet floors, checkerboard marble tiles, opulently draped windows and neutral walls for a sophisticated, citified look.

Because the timeless lines of such furnishings never look dated, they're always a good investment. And you can always liven things up by dressing them in bold blocks of the hottest hues.

Accessories and floor lighting contribute the most when they're clean-lined and toned down. Simply-framed prints, a fruit still life, original art work, adjustable halogen task lamps and neat stacks of books and magazines are just some of the extras that underline the impeccable look.

HUES NEWS

Great design trends always begin with great color schemes, and the present offerings offer a pleasing paint box of possibilities.

For countrified styles such as cottage, the palette includes a spectrum of greens ranging from celery and avocado to hunter and pine, blues inspired by the sky, sea and the Great Smokey Mountains and yellows in an array of warming, mellow tones.

A neutral palette with colors such as sand, gray and bisque, meanwhile, can be a perfect and timely complement to country modern or citified ambiances, while reds are red hot in tints of blush, coral, watermelon and cherry for rooms that range from classic to cowboy.

WE INSTALL

Don't know where to start? Here are the basic steps of wood fence installation:

STEP 1:
Use string to plot the location of the fence line. Calculate space between posts and stake out location of fence posts.

STEP 2:
Dig postholes and set posts. Use a level to make sure the posts are set perfectly vertical.

STEP 3:
Attach fence panel sections to posts.
Use a level to be sure the fence sections are horizontal.

STEP 4:
Install gates and any accessories.
Protect wood with paint, stain, or sealer of your choice.

Our treated lumber is warranted for as long as you own your home.
Warranty covers damage by termites or decay that would make the lumber structurally unfit for the application

PAPA ROMANO'S

The original Papa Romano's was born April 1, 1970 at Nine Mile and Telegraph in Southfield, Michigan. It did not take long for word to spread that Papa Romano's had the best pizza for miles around. Competition was tough. It wasn't long before people tried to copy Papa Romano's pizza, but none could measure up. They had to sell two pizzas for the price of one to compete with Papa Romano's. But Papa always said, "ONE OF THE BEST BEATS TWO OF THE REST!"

Still today at the many locations throughout Metro Detroit, Papa Romano and his staff of highly trained pizza makers make his homemade pizza dough the old fashioned way – fresh every day. Mama's secret tomato sauce recipe is still made the way Mama used to make it. And each pizza is hand stretched and baked to perfection in a stone hearth oven for each customer in each location; Papa Romano insists on it.
