Hopefuls say success lies in communication

By YVONNE BEEBE Staff Writer

Whether the topic was drugprevention programs in the classroom, accelerated programs for gifted students or the shortened high school week, Northville Board of Education candidates agreed communication is the key to a successful district.

Four of the five candidates vying for the two board of education seats up for grabs June 13 attended a public forum, sponsored by Advocates for Quality Education, May 31 to discuss school-related issues.

The participating hopefuls were in forming a strong and unified Barb Bennett, Tom Gudritz, Martha Nield and Bill Richards, Mike Wil-trust. liams, the youngest candidate at 19,

Candidate voting reflects community involvement

By YVONNE BEEBE Staff Writer

Four of the the five candidates running for the Northville Board of Education have racked up fairly solid school voting records while one candidate hasn't had much of a chance to compile one, a check of voting histories shows.

Mike Williams, this year's youngest candidate at 19, was not eligible to vote until 1993. However, last year the 18-year-old missed the election when Northville voters narrowly passed the 5-year 22.63-mill millage request and instated Trustee Joan Wadsworth and reelected Vice President Jean Hansen to the board.

Candidate Barb Bennett has voted in every election since she moved back w Norinville in 1539 eacept an uncontested school election in June 1990. Candidate Martha Nield has including the 1989 and 1990 bond tested 1990 election.

Both Bennett and Nield said voting is a civic responsibility they do not take lightly. "I am very interested and involved in the Northville community," Nield said. "It's my responsibility to vote in all the elections."

WindRidge sub moves ahead but J. Alexander's is delayed

By RANDY COBLE Staff Writer

The under-construction WindRidge subdivision is proceeding apace, but a planned-for nearby restaurant is having a few setbacks these days, Northville Township planning officials say.

Both are part of the WindRidge Haggerty Road Planned Unit Development (HPUD) option which the township's board of trustee's approved in December. The 101-lot subdivision, 7,300 square-foot J. Alexander's restaurant and a 100,000 square foot Home Depot store are all part of a single site plan now being built on the northwest corner of Seven Mile and Haggerty. "Things are moving pretty quickly," Director of Planning Carol Maise said of work on the subdivision. "They're hoping to have some models up by the end of the year." Home prices are expected to begin in the $250,000 range.

Occupying part of the site and sharing parking with Home Depot will be J. Alexander's, which company representative Gaylor Cole described as "an upscale casual dinner house," comparable to Grady's in the Novi Town Center.

J. Alexander's advantage, Cole said, comes from better food and better service than its competitors. Menu items range from a $6 burgerand-fries to a $17 prime-rib dinner. The restaurant won final site plan

Planners will have second look at rezoning

By YVONNE BEEBE Staff Writer

Send it back.

That's what Northville City Council members said Monday after an hour's worth of deliberation and debate over a proposal to rezone a portion of North Center Street.

The plan, which would rezone the area of North Center south of Walnut Street and north of Randolf from Central Business District to Local Commercial District, was sent back to the planning commission after council members and citizens expressed concern over details of the proposal.

Councilman Charles Keys suggested the planning commission work with citizens who have misgivings about the zoning change.

'If we are going to send it back to them, let's give them some direction, let's be specific," he said.

ing the public hearing, the third one on the issue this year, spoke in opposition to the plan. Among them was Jim Bress, who said he feels the commission plans to rezone the business and residental area solely for the sake of change.

"I was appalled at the need for the planning commission to do something without a plan," said Bress, who owns several lots on North Center. "I have a little bit of difficulty understanding why we have to do something when we don't really have a plan as to where we want to go with these businesses."

Other businessmen said they feared the rezoning would stunt potential growth for their businesses.

"I am concerned with further building restrictions," said Richard Probst, who owns land at the corner of Randolf and Center Street. "You are going to restrict any development in the area rather than encourage it."

Planning commission consultant Don Wortman told council members that the proposal would allow for continued growth and commercial expansion of North Center businesses.

LCD zoning would impose a ceiling on building heights at 30 feet while CBD regulations allow heights of 42-48 feet. The zoning change would also require a 25-foot front set back, 10-percent landscaping minimum and on-site parking, unlike CBD zoning.

Wortman said the rezoning would actually free up land-use that CBD zoning prohibits. Proposed LCD zoning uses that would not be allowed in CBD include drive-in restaurants, takeout and delivery restaurants, single- and double-family dwellings, child-care centers, convenience Continued on 13

NORTHVILLE PUBLIC SCHOOLS ELECTION

1: Why do you want to sit on the school board, and what do you see as the board's role in shaping the quality of education in Northville?

2: What are your feelings on the overall impact of school funding and school quality reforms and what those effects might be on Northville?

3: What's your stance on the one-year pilot program for Wednesday morning teacher conferences at Northville High School?

4: Do you think the school district's current committee and subcommittee structure is an effective one?

5: In light of the recentlyreleased Alcohol and Other Drugs survey, what do you see as the school district's role in substance abuse education and prevention? Should the district's current role be broadened, and if so, how?

MARTHANIELD

Martha Nield. 42, is a homemaker with a bachelor of arts degree in mathematics from the University of Michigan. She and husband Jun have two children, Stacev. 19, and Jeff, 16, a sophomore at Northville High School Board's role? I believe a quality school system is needed to have a quality community, and I have the time and the experience. I've been an 11-year volunteer in the schools and have the ability to listen to my friends and neighbors and hear their concerns and their interests.

The board creates policy and leaves those desires, those policies up for administration by the superintendent. I think the board has a big job also to make sure that the Strategic Plan is followed so that the school board is acting proactively rather than just reacting to each little issue that comes up.

In this last year I think they're reacting a lot. On the (elementary and middle school attendance) boundary issue, they had over a year to create that boundary plan and yet in the final analysis it came down to a 72-hour decision. Some of that's good. You need to be responsive to the community but I think you also need an overall thoughtful approach.

School funding? I think we have to be very careful of school funding. The whole picture's changed from education being locally controlled and funded to now having state control. In one respect it's nice that each child that comes into the district comes with $6,500; the other side of it is we have to conform to mandates and quality issues, some of which we're already doing, but we're now going to have to go through the busywork of processing the papers to make sure that we don't lose our five-percent penalty.

I do have a lot of concerns that the money might not come as they plan on it, if there's a downturn in the state economy, and with the whittling away that's taking place. You know, they pass a little bill and then the farmers don't have quite as much taken away, or whatever special interest group gets the bills passed. The pot is already not as large as it was March 15.

Wednesday morning teacher conferences? I worked very hard for changes at the high school last year and this year, and I do believe change is necessary. It's unfortunate that the board and the administration had to agree to that Wednesday morning time because of the teacher contract, and I certainly would hope that within a year, the teachers would like the process so much they would be willing to give back time. That has happened in other districts.

As a parent, I'm working to find activities for the kids on Wednesday morning. We met as a committee and got all the surveys from the parents and the students on what they would like to do. We will probably have what we want to do in place by the end of June so that when the August packet goes out to the students they can give all the options to the kids on what the kids want to sign up to do.

There was a lot of interest in having the library open and the weightroom open, and having intramural sports. It was very interesting how many kids wanted to be a part of the yearbook staff, or a part of the newspaper staff, or a part of student leadership and meet during those Wednesday mornings. And none of those require teachers to be there unless the teacher's a sponsor.

District's current committee and subcommittee structure? I noticed when I went through the five-year annual reports how much more frequently those committees were meeting this past year than they did, say, four years ago. Maybe it's a symptom of the times.

I think it's very effective to elicit citizen input on these various committees. For example, they're going to create a new committee next month for studying whether or not we go for enhancement mills.I do like to see the citizen input but I also see where there's a lot of committees and there may be duplication of efforts.

We've got school improvement committees, we've got strategic planning committees and action groups. I guess we're lucky because we have so many people who want to be involved.

Other school districts, I know, are very envious of that fact.

Substance abuse education and prevention? I think that the school district needs to reexamine its curriculum, which they are doing right now, and we need to look at how effective what we are teaching is. But the concern I have is that the kids are only in school 19 percent of their time. The community, I think, is on the right track by saying that it's a community problem and we all have to be involved, churches, businesses, schools and parents, and worry about that other 81 percent.

The students say in that survey that they know the penalties at school, they're not using it at school, but we have to worry about that time outside of school.

I think the schools can help with more parenting education in the evenings, and just being supportive of what everyone else does, just making sure that the policies that we have are enforced consistently.

There's a deeper reason why all these kids are using so much, and I think we need to look at that. Maybe they're not feeling challenged enough, or maybe they're not feeling that anybody's listening to them enough, and maybe that's something we all need to do, make kids our first priority instead of our fifth or sixth.

Barb Bennett, 37. is a former teacher and currently a homemaker, along with husband Alan, to sons Scott, 8; Steven, 6; and twins Tom and Jeff, 31/2ea. She holds a bachelor of science degree in child development and teaching from Michigan State University and has done graduate work in special education at MSU.

also for their careers and their role as citizens. The board has to take an important stand in establishing that, and making sure the funds that we do have are all focused on our core mission, and that's to educate our students. I think the board also has a very important role in hiring a leadership and administration that will move us to improving quality. Northville has a very good program, but there's always room for growth and improvement.

School funding? It will change the way our schools have done business. I think too often the school system's attitude was, when things were tight, how do we get more revenue rather than how do we control costs. I think that's a good and I firmly believe in the concept of collegial planning time. We've seen the results of that in the elementary and middle school.

But I'm still uncomfortable with the shortening of the school day as the answer to get the time. If I had been on the board I would have wanted clear direction on what we would do to enhance the programs for the kids on Wednesday mornings, and if this indeed was the only time we could get the collegial planning time.

The other thing I would have wanted to see before I could have voted on that was a clear picture of the evaluation process. I know that they're still working on what that will be, but I want clear, measurable objectives. I know that a lot of the growth that we will see through this program might not show up on a hard evaluation, but I think there are a lot of things that we can clearly evaluate. If the administration says we think we will see improved attendance and less suspension, then let's have that system in place so we can see if that's the case.

was similar to ours, and I think ours far surpassed it with no cost to the district, so I see using the wealth of information and experience we have from the citizens in this community as a cost-saving effort.

Substance abuse education and prevention? I think the school district certainly has a role, and we do have drug education in our schools now through the Michigan Model. If we are seeing through the results of these surveys that what we are doing is not improving the situation, we need to very specifically look at the curriculum we are offering, as we would any other part of our curriculum, and Board's role? Public education in Northville is very important to me with four kids in the system. I feel that with my background in education and thorough research into issues, I can have input on decisions that are made that do affect the quality of our education.

The board establishes the curriculum, and I believe in a strong curriculum that really teaches the fundamentals of our society, makes our students culturally literate and prepares them well for college but direction to be taking because I think there are ways that we can have a more cost-effective operation.

I think we can make some cost reductions in our non-education portions and make sure we're focusing the money we do have on our core mission which is to educate our kids.

I'm a firm believer that class size is an important determiner in the quality of the education the kids receive. I know that when such a large portion of the budget is on your staff, that is an easy way to go, but we'd better look and make sure we've reduced everywhere else we can before we go to something like that.

Wednesday morning teacher conferences? I've read a great deal of the research that the (school day) committee used,

District's current committee and subcommittee structure? As a member of the Future Facilities Use Committee, I'm very proud of the work that we did and the fact that it was a true citizen's committee. The call went out to the public, people that wanted to be involved were involved. It was not a hand-picked, chosen group of people. In our community we have such a wealth of knowledge and experience and people that are so committed to the school system that I think the committee structure is good.

Our committee used a hired consultant's report that make changes.

I think we should look at other districts, see what curriculum they're using, what results they're getting. and how can we improve that specifically.

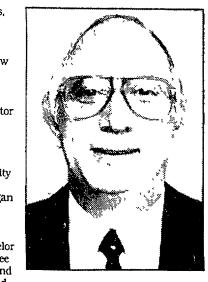

This is a community problem, I agree with that, but the school system does have the kids a great deal of time, it is where the peer groups are formed, so our role is an important one.

I would also like to see a drug resistance program, not just a drug education program, and I would definitely research DARE (Drug Abuse Resistance Education) and any other programs.

I'm not necessarily saying that we need to put more and more hours into this, but how do we change the hours that we're already using for drug education to improve it. We now see that the eighth graders in that study were through the full course of the Michigan Model and I didn't see improvements. We need to try harder.

BILL RICHARDS

Bill Richards, 42, the former Northville Township Manager, is now a public administrator and assistant executive director with the Downriver Community Conference A former university educator at Eastern Michigan University and Wayne State University, he earned a bachelor of science degree in public law and government and a master of arts in communication from EMU. He and wife Carolyn have two children; Alison, 11 and Jeffrey, 7.

Board's role? I have dedicated a substantial portion of my adult life to public service. My two reasons for moving to Northville were because of the quality of the schools and my desire to perform public service, and that continues to be a principal focus in my life.

I think that the purpose of the board is to focus broadly on the public policy issues, and I think I'm uniquely qualified to speak to that issue, having been involved in public service and having a very keen appreciation of the difference between public policymaking and public administration. They are often referred to as being the same or similar, and they really are not.

I also have some very well-defined ideas on how it would be appropriate for them to complement one another and be collaborative, because I think the principal mission between policy-makers and administrators is to work together toward the same ends. I guess synergy is the term.

School funding? There's great uncertainty about it. Superintendent (Leonard) Rezmierski has spoken on several occasions to the fact that we're a system in terms of school funding that's in flux right now. I don't think anyone knows where that's going to wind up, so I think being involved in the process is what's important right now.

In terms of the educational outcomes, I think we need to move as rapidly as possible, diligently but thoughtfully, to what's referred to as Outcome-Based Education.

There are two principal components of that concept for me. One is a shifting of focus from teaching to learning. It's really a paradigm shift in which we're going to focus more on the learning of the students and less on the delivery systems of the educational process.

The other component is on developing criteria to demonstrate acquired competencies, so I think there needs to be a lot of discussion on what those competencies are going to be. I think we need to look at what new concepts can be brought to bear on the demonstration of acquired competencies.

conferences? I'm an advocate of a broad of the survey that was taken of the students which library and SAT preparation.

The other side of the coin is some of that's discouraging when you see one of the principal categories is weightroom use. I can't be an advocate of giving people class time out of the classroom for weightroom use. If we can't find productive, educationoriented use for that time then we ought to return it to the classroom. Whatever takes place during the school day ought to be educationally focused.

District's current committee and subcommittee structure?

I think it needs to be expanded and increased to include parental and community involvement in the public policy decision-making process ... I don't have any problem with where it's evolved to, I think we need to take it to a higher level of community involvement.

Substance abuse education and prevention?

I think it should be broadened. I'm a strong advocate of DARE (Drug Abuse Resistance Education) in the public schools. There's lots of evidence including a recent Gallup poll which indicates that there is an effective program, there's a 10-year record on DARE so it can be independently evaluated on its effectiveness.

I have seen how the involvement of students in the DARE program has the unique opportunity of bringing parents into the loop of substance abuse education and resistance, so I think the DARE program is uniquely qualified to obtain increased involvement by students and parents and the community.

I think it's also an important gateway to the concept of community-oriented policing because it begins to break down those barriers that exist between young people and the community and law enforcement.

This is an issue that's very close to me for a couple of reasons. My natural father drank himself to death by too often looking in the bottom of a bottle. I had a sister who was killed by a fellow who was a member of the substance abuse culture, so it's very real to me.

I hope that other people don't have to experience the tragedy and the pain that I have to really get serious about this issue of alcohol, tobacco and other drugs. It's a real issue and the bottom line is people can't learn if they're in the classrooms high to the extent that our AOD report indicates that they are.

discussion including parents and the community on that issue. My sense is that many members of the community feel that discussion was incomplete and needs to be continued. I think we need to very seriously look at how any time out of the classroom would be spent by the students. I'm encouraged to some extent when I see the results indicates that a lot of them would appreciate the use of that time for things like the use of the

TOMGUDRITZ

Tom Gudritz, 44, is an employee with the Digital Equipment Corp. with 21 years of experience in the computer industry. He holds a bachelor of arts in history from Michigan State University and a master of business administration in finance from the University of Michigan. He and wife Justine have three children: Molly, 19; Katy, 16 and Nathan, 11.

Board's role? I want to be on the school board, basically, because of the two years I've spent up to now on Advocates (For Quality Education), getting involved in areas of finance and collective bargaining. Looking at the Northville budget and also comparing it to other school district budgets as well as being part of the subcommittee that wrote up the white paper on the collective bargaining issues, I had a role in trying to shape it from outside the school board.

I don't think that we have been assertive enough in our finances. We're going to have to have people on the board who understand finance and can really look at our budget very, very closely and creatively to make sure that the services the schools need to provide can be provided.

To the extent that we can afford to look at mandates that come down from the state and question the necessity of complying, I think we're going to have to do that. For the good of our kids and the good of our district, we're going to have to look at everything that comes from Lansing and say, 'How important is this really?

Wednesday morning teacher conferences? There are definitely problems at the high school that really relate to the culture in that school. I think it's analagous to a college in the sense that you have teachers who come in, go into their rooms, lecture, kids take notes and tests and move on to the next subject. Not all teachers do that, and I've found that some of the best ones don't do that, but many of them do. And they don't really have an opportunity to work together. I think what's going to be going on vis-a-vis the teachers is going to be desparately needed and has been for a long time.

A44

From that perspective, I think it's excellent. I think it's very unfortunate that it had to cost the kids two hours of their time to do it. I worked on that collective bargaining subcommittee with Advocates (For Quality Education), and knowing that contract thoroughly I understand why it had to be done that way, but I think it's unfortunate.

District's current committee and subcommittee structure?

It seems to work, but the standing subcommittee structure may need to be looked at in terms of areas where we could use some more thought, especially in the area of curriculum as we look at changing the way we teach some subjects.

One of my real focal points for obvious reasons is in the area of technology, because although this district has an outstanding computer system-one of the better systems in the state-the technology itself is an external adjunct piece to education. You go to computer class, or maybe you use a computer to type a report. The technology itself is not an integral part of learning. Technology, in my view, is not going to be used effectively until it's an integral part of education. Your curriculum needs to include technology, not simply teach technology as a piece.

I think the role of the school district with regards to alcohol and drugs is to provide the information to the kids in terms of what the effects of those substances can be on their lives and their health, and to give them ideas on how to be in control of their lives. We currently are doing that through the Michigan Model health plan. Whether or not the Michigan Model is working, whether or not some other program might work better is an issue that the district is currently looking at.

I am opposed to increasing the amount of money or the amount of time being spent by students for drug education, taking away any money or any time from current academics. I don't think we have enough time now as it is.

But I think the most important thing that came out of the AOD (Alcohol and Other Drugs) survey, is that it was absolutely crystal clear from our tenth and twelfth graders that the school district has provided them with the information about the effect of drugs. They don't care. They're not listening.

This isn't a school problem. Schools play a role, absolutely, and a crucial role. This is a community problem, it's really a U.S. problem, and this community has got to band together and fix it.

The Engler policies haven't been the best for Northville. He is a supporter of Robin Hood and that goes back to the beginning of his tenure as governor, and that didn't help us. We all know our property taxes are too high, but that's not really relevant to a school board campaign. Northville Public Schools really doesn't have a whole lot to do with businesses moving to Ohio. As for school quality. I believe that we can take care of our own quality. I don't think that we need to get the state's approval for that. I think that they'd be, if you will, maybe breathing down our necks too much on that. I think the schools need to be a local situation, not a statewide thing, and we need to be responsible for ourselves.

It's really not an issue for the school board because that's a Lansing thing, that's the state Legislature that did that. There's really very little I cafi do about it, except write a letter, I guess. 0.054 tut of CO

I also think the DARE (Drug Abuse Resistance Education) program was a good idea. Having adults come in to speak to high school kids, obviously they're not going to be extremely receptive to that, but something has to be said that if you drink yourself to death, it's not a good thing. Somebody has to say it, whether it's DARE with the police officers or the drug counselor. Somebody's got to make the point. I would like to take another look at DARE.

Even though some would say it's not the school's business, we have to dispense information somehow, or we're going to face the consequenses for it.

Police News

Woman's parking protest is sheerly cosmetic

Township police checked out a case of alleged disorderly conduct involving a lipstick-wielding 72-yearold woman on May 28.

A 51-year-old Farragut Court woman told police that the elderly resident, also of Farragut Court, had defaced her 1986 Olds Cutlass.

The investigating officer found the phrase "please park this car in your assigned space" written on the windshield in pink lipstick. The message was continued in lipstick on the driver side window: ". . . or in the (Highland Lakes) clubhouse lot."

On the rear window, the officer said that the phrase "this spot is not for your exclusive day and night use" was printed in black marker.

The car was parked lawfully when he arrived, the officer said.

The woman admitted to doing the writing, the officer continued, alleging that the car had been parked in the spot for 10 days when it should not have been.

When told she should have contacted police or the clubhouse management, the woman said she didn't want to do something like that "over something as ridiculous as this."

Family

Considerations

The woman offered to clean the car, but said she'd only do the black lettering on the back, the officer said. When told that all the lettering must be removed, he added, she returned to her home, saying she would call a lawyer.

The Cutlass owner said she wants to press charges; the case remains open.

LARCENY: Township police are investigating the theft of a mini-bike from a Seven Mile home which occurred last month.

The 13-year-old boy who owns the bike said that it was stolen on May 15; it is valued at $190. The family did not file a police report at that time.

A neighbor told them that a 15-year-old Beck Road resident had the bike, the boy's mother said. They had no luck in contacting the boy's family, she added, but said that she saw the missing bike in the garage.

The investigating officer said that to date he has also been unsuccessful in contacting the family about the matter. He said that he saw a minibike which "perfectly" fit the description of the one missing in their garage. The case remains open.

DRUNK DRIVING: A 38-year-old Redford Township man was arrested for drunken driving after he was pulled over for driving 58 mph on Eight Mile Road, a 40 mph zone.

The man registered .14 bloodalcohol content, according to police. The legal limit is . 10. At the police station the man said he had left an envelope containing $3,000 under the driver-side seat. Police did not find the envelope in the car.

The man was released on $100 bond after sobering up.

VANDALISM: A 17-year-old Northville High School student told township police her car had been vandalized while she attended a senior sleepover party last weekend.

The girl said that unknown persons keyed the right side of her showquality 1975 Volkswagen Beetle while she was at the party, held May 28 at a Seven Mile home. She esti-mated that about 150 people attended the party.

LARCENY II: An Innsbrook apart- Ford Bronco parked in front of his paments resident told police that some- rents' home on Sutters Lane on May one had stolen $500 in cash from a desk drawer in his residence on May

The man said he called police after asking a friend who was visiting him to get $10 from the drawer and the friend returned saying there was no money there.

The responding officer asked to search the pockets of the visitor and the purses of the man's two female roommates. He received permission to do so; the money was not found. The man indicated that five other people had been in his apartment recently. He said he did not wish to press charges if his property was recovered.

VANDALISM II: A Brookside resident reported a case of vandalism and malicious destruction of property to township police on June 1.

The man said that he left his 1988

28. When he returned to it on May 31. he founded the rear passenger window damaged and his rear tire punctured. Someone had also stolen the cover on the Bronco's spare tire, the man said.

LARCENY III: A Gladwin resident told police that someone had shattered the passenger side window of his 1989 Cheroviet Blazer when he visited his girlfriend at her Northville Place home on June 2.

The man said that the unknown vandals also stole the woman's briefcase and personal planner from the Blazer. The items are valued at $320; damage was estimated at $200.

OUIL: Township police arrested a Warren man for operating a vehicle while under the influence of liquor (OUIL) on June 4.

The reporting officer in the case said he observed the man driving his 1986 Ranger erratically on Northville Road at about 4 a.m. The officer was southbound on Northville Road south of Six Mile and said he had to swerve to avoid being hit by the northbound Ranger.

After turning around and follow-ing the vehicle, the officer said he saw it swerving, hitting the lines on both sides of the road.

The vehicle was stopped and the driver, 31, was arrested after he failed field sobriety tests. He was taken to police headquarters, where he refused to take a Breathalyzer test. Preliminary breath testing at the scene showed him to have a blood alcohol level of .27 percent, more than twice the legal limit.

Citizens with information about the above incidents are urged to call Northwille City Police at 349-1234 or Northville Township Police at 349-9400.

Breen knocked out of 35th district judge race

Maurice Breen has been knocked ter spotting inaccuracies while reout of the 35th District judge race, due in part to a challenge from fellow candidate Ron Lowe.

The state board of canvassers in Lansing ruled that Breen had not filed enough valid signatures to keep his name on the Aug. 2 primary ballot.

They follow their own policies, I have to live by them," Breen said. "I'm disappointed. It'll be a less cluttered summer."

Breen declined to comment on Lowe bringing the challenge.

Lowe is the Plymouth city attorney, serving in that capacity since 1985. Breen was Plymouth Township supervisor from 1980-91, and served as a Wayne County Commissioner in 1991-92.

While the judge race is non-partisan, both have been active in local Republican Party politics, and Lowe had supported Breen in the latter's campaigns for township office.

Lowe recently challenged some petition signatures filed by Breen af-viewing candidate filings in Lansing, he said

Lowe said Breen's filing stood out partly because he'd filed the fewest petition signatures - around 200, with 162 required.

"It was difficult to challenge Maury because he and I had spent so much time in the Republican Party, trying to achieve that party's goals," Lowe said.

On further examining Breen's filing, Lowe said he and his brother Chuck, also an attorney, noticed some who signed the petitions were not registered to vote in the 35th judicial district.

"We pointed that out to bureau of elections staff. We were informed nothing would be done with that unless a formal challenge was filed," Lowe said

Lowe said he and his brother discussed whether or not to challenge on the drive home.

"Certainly, as leader of the local party, he was one I learned lessons from; it was difficult to challenge on that regard," Lowe said. But I kept running into one problem: The law is pretty clear on this. I'm asking people to hire me to be judge, and in that role I'm asked to apply the law as it is written.

"I was in a position where I saw no alternative."

Bradley Wittman, director of information for the state elections bureau in Lansing, said the board, made up of two Republicans and two Democrats, voted unanimously to deny Breen access to the ballot because of the "insufficiency of his petitions."

Wittman said some signatures were ruled invalid, bringing Breen's total below the minimum needed to get his name on the ballot.

In addition to Lowe, the other candidates for judge are:

Edward Želmanski Jr. of Canton Township, managing attorney for UAW-GM-Ford Legal Services.

Stephen Boak of Plymouth Township, a former Wayne County prosecutor and a partner in the law firm of Sempliner, Thomas and Boak. Jacqueline George of Plymouth, who has a law firm with offices in Plymouth and Detroit.

 Michael Gerou of Plymouth, who has a Plymouth law practice and is a former staff attorney for the Legal Aid and Defender Association.

• Victoria Hariri of Northville, a practicing attorney in the 35th district and a panel member for the Attorney Grievance Commission. Carol Levitte of Plymouth Township, who has a Plymouth law pracing officer for the Public Service Commission.

 Maria Petito of Northville, a Wayne County assistant prosecuting attomey.

 Dennis Shrewsbury of Plymouth, a Plymouth city commissioner and past president of the Suburban Bar Association.

Two students from Northville High School have been named to Home-Town Newspapers' fourth annual All-Area Academic Team.

Nathan Connell and Roopal Vashi tied for fourth and sixth places, respectively, on the team which includes the Northville, Novi, South Lyon, Lakeland and Pinckney school districts.

INTRODUCING The New Life Center at Providence Park Where families are born...close to home

A COMFORTABLE ATMOSPHERE

Imagine giving birth in a comfortable, home-like atmosphere where you make many of the decisions about your birth experience. And then, think about being able to go home within 24 hours after your baby is born. Well, the New Life Center at Providence Park in Novi offers all that, and it's just minutes from home.

A UNIQUE APPROACH

It's a new beginning. A new way of thinking. And an alternative to traditional hospital births*. The New Life Center at Providence Park was born from the success of the New Life Center at Providence Hospital, where for generations, thousands of women have had wonderful, nurturing, family-centered birth experiences.

THE CHOICES ARE MANY

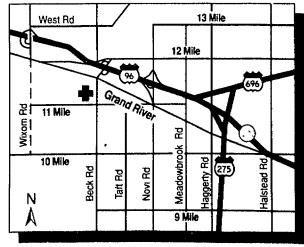

From the moment you choose to have your baby with us, many decisions are yours. You may choose to go natural or to have an epidural. You may also prefer to share the event with your loved ones. But the best part is giving birth in a relaxed, home-like atmosphere and having your baby by your side. What's more, a nurse will come to your home for private, follow-up visits. Because that's the kind of extra care, attention and education people expect from Providence.

COME SEE FOR YOURSELF But don't take our word for it. Call 1-800-806-BABY for an appointment to see what the New Life Center at Providence Park has to offer expectant families.

Anti-abortion group blocks welfare cut

By TIM RICHARD Staff Wnter

Don't call Right to Life "conservative."

The anti-abortion lobby pulled the rug out from under conservative state representatives trying to curb state grants to welfare mothers who have more children.

First the House adopted, 62-39, an amendment to the social services budget aimed at discouraging welfare mothers from having more outof-wedlock children. Later in the day, at RTL's urging, the House removed the amendment on a 35-61 vote.

"Right to Life considered it an incentive to abortion," said the amendment's unhappy sponsor, Rep. Jack Horton, a Republican from suburban Grand Rapids and a clergyman.

Rep. Jerry Vorva, R-Plymouth, a fiscal conservative but pro-choice. said the anti-welfare amendment is part of the conservative agenda. They (those voting yes) stood up to a formidable interest group."

Rep. Deborah Whyman, R-Canton, voted for the Horton amendment both times. "The amendment was in the book a long time, but Right to Life was silent," said Whyman, usually an RTL supporter. Then Right to Life shows up. They turned around 30 votes.

(6-9-94 NR, NN)

"I went into the corridor to talk to them. I told them I thought it was good policy. They maintain the practice (levelling welfare benefits) in-creases the demand for abortion. I asked for the numbers. They didn't convince me," said Whyman.

Not all conservatives were happy about the Horton amendment. Rep. Beverly Hammerstrom, R-Temperance, objected it would "deprive innocent children of base needs. It does nothing to address the issue of lack of responsibility in the parents' actions."

Here is how HomeTown lawmakers voted:

Yes both times --- Willis Bullard, R-Milford, Susan Munsell, R-Howell, Vorva, R-Plymouth, Tom Middleton, R-Ortonville.

No both times - Dan Gustafson, R-Haslett.Rep. Kirk Profit, D-Ypsilanti, missed the first vote and voted no the second time.

Other Horton amendments won majorities, although the secondterm lawmaker fears they may be cut after the Senate works on it and it goes to conference committee.

"The thrust of my amendments was that for too long, we have focused on alleviating material poverty and neglected behavioral poverty. In essence, we've been handing out cash grants without acknowledging the negative effects they have on the behavior or recipients," he said. The House approved:

Horton's amendment to deduct 10 percent from monthly welfare grants to pay for damages to rental property when the landlord obtains a court judgment. Horton said many welfare recipients found a loophole: They would agree to "vendoring" (allowing the state to pay the landlord directly), then unilaterally cancel the arrangement, knowing their wages couldn't be garnished since they have no wages. The amendment allows the landlord to collect rent and damages. It passed 77-21.

• Denying disability benefits in substance abuse cases. The amendment was co-sponsored by Jamian and Horton. It passed 76-19.

• An amendment to deny public assistance to illegal aliens. Approval was on a voice vote.

Lawsuit looms for Rosselle

By RANDY COBLE Staff Writer

Local officials are standing firm: ex-fire chief Ricke Rosselle doesn't ---and won't - work for Northville Township. Rosselle, however, seems equally determined to pursue legal action to get his job back.

On May 16 Rosselle signed a letter of resignation in Director of Public Safety Chip Snider's office. Supervisor Karen Baja said she asked for the resignation after job performance went unresolved. The ex-chief, however, said that personal differences were the real reason.

In a May 27 letter to Baja, Rosselle said he signed the letter under duress and now disavows the resignation. He's still fire chief, he said in the letter, and won't step down.

The May 27 letter alleges that township officials' actions violated

Rosselle's rights under state and federal laws and constitutions. Rosselle used the phrases "force and coerce" and "threat, intimidation and ultimatum" to describe how his resignation came about.

Those claims don't change the situation, Baja and Snider maintain. "I took his resignation at face value and acted accordingly," Baja said. "I consider his resignation to be final." A letter sent this week from the township to Rosselle reiterates that fact, she added. It directs Rosselle to send any further letters to the township's labor attorney.

Picking up the phone Monday morning, Snider found Rosselle calling him, asking where and when he should report back to work.

"I informed him not to come in and that he didn't work here any more," Snider said.

Both he and Baja declined to comment on the allegations in the letter. Despite the township's position, Rosselle said Tuesday he's "still plan-" ning on pursuing this.

"I'm going to the attorneys today." he said. They're going to handle it from here on in, I suppose. It's too' bad that it has to come to this. I tried, to be as nice as I could about it."

In a related development, the board of trustees will consider Snider's recommendation to make Acting Chief Bill Zhmendak the new permanent chief at their meeting tonight.

*Bill Zhmendak has created a spark that will ignite this organization." Snider said in a memo to the board. "The Chief will strive to develop individual members while continuing to contribute to the community through his department."

Lawmakers flirting with topless dancing ban

By TIM RICHARD Staff Writer

Local governments could ban topless dancing under a package of controversial bills before the state House of Representatives.

The bills barely got through the House Local Government Committee on a 7-3 vote with one abstention and Rep. Willis Bullard, R-Milford, missing the meeting.

"Are we talking about beaches?" asked Rep. Penny Crissman, R-Rochester, a former mayor. "Is your own back yard a public place? I recall charges brought in Florida against a couple in a hot tub. If a couple has a hot tub and there's an apartment building behind them, is that public?"

Crissman, who abstained, and newcomer Lynne Martinez, D-Lansing, were unhappy with the answers they received from John Dolan, attorney for Clinton Township in Macomb County. Clinton is pushing for the power to ban topless dancing.

"I'm against this," said Martinez, who voted no. "I'm with Rep. Crissman until these questions are resolved."

"You're regulating public nudity, not obscenity," answered Dolan. indicating the bill could apply to public beaches and golf tournaments.

Added Rep. David Anthony, D-Escanaba: "I'm not a lawyer, and I'm uncomfortable with this." But his effort to send the bills to the House Judiciary Committee, which handles icipal League and Michigan Townmost crime legislation, failed.

Three bills are involved - one each for cities, villages and townships. The key paragraph redefines "public nudity" as "knowingly or intentionally displaying in a public place, or for payment or promise of payment. . . a female individual's breast with less than a fully opaque covering." It adds: "A mother's breastfeeding of her baby does not under any circumstance constitute nudity . . .

Existing Michigan law already defines public nudity as display of the genitals.

The bills were sponsored by Sen. Gil DiNello, D-Eastpointe, and have been passed by the Senate. They were endorsed by the Michigan Munships Association.

and and the second standards and the second standards and an an analysis and the second standards and second in We've had calls from several townships. They see a migration of these facilities from the cities to the townships," said Pat McAvoy of the townships association.

Raquel Bowles, of Macomb's Right to Decency organization, derided the notion that topless dancing is "a career choice. It's commercial exploitation of women." She quoted studies and an interview with the owner of a topless bar that 90 percent of the dancers were either abused or raped in early life.

Dolan quoted a police report in which a dancer told an undercover officer that the only way she could gain access to other clubs was to dance in the topless place. Replied Rep. Martinez: "Exploitation of women has no bearing on how to sunbathe."

Meanwhile, Clinton Township is proceeding before the state Liquor Control Commission against owners of Shooters, a Class C liquor licensee on Groesbeck Highway. It charged the bar permitted "nudity, prohibited sexual acts," and simulation of masturbation and sexual intercourse involving eight women on Sept. 18 and 19 and Oct. 9, 1992.

Dolan, the township attorney, told the House panel that bans on public nudity are of "ancient origin" and widely accepted as a protection of public order. He said the U.S. Supreme Court in 1991 upheld an Indiana law requiring dancers to wear pasties and Gstrings.

湖市 鱼酸氢酶

Current legislation, Dolan said, avoids the question of obscenity and instead defines public nudity. Current Michigan law bans bottomless dancing, he said, leading topless bar operators to argue the law is "a green light" for topless dancing.

Clinton Township has tried to restrict topless bars under its zoning ordinance and was upheld in Macomb Circuit Court, Dolan said. But a federal judge blocked enforcement of the ordinance.

"That's going slow," she said. "They may even decide to change their site plan, which would mean they have to come back to the commission for a new approval."

The delays are likely to set back the restaurant's plans to open by the end of the year. "That's going to be tough, but any-thing's possible," Maise said. The building is planned to have seating for 230 customers, including some on a patio area. A small publike alcove would seat 13 customers; liquor would be served in the restaurant. The entire project is estimated to cost $3.1 million.

Teachers will need higher test scores to be certified in specialty areas, the state Board of Education has decided. New standards will take effect in the fall of 1994.

The state board approved the recommendation of a technical advisory committee to raise passing scores in the areas of politicial science, chemistry, home economics, library science, emotionally impaired and learning disabled.

In March the board raised standards for language arts, geology-earth science, early childhood education, art education and basic skills reading.

• Public confidence in Michigan • Public confidence in Michigan schools slipped for the first time in five years, the Department of Educa-tion reported. The weighted average showed public schools got a 2.3 grade point average (C-plus) com-pared to the B-minus last year.

"The most dramatic decline in the grades given to public schools is among African Americans and Detroit residents," the state board of education reported.

Many teachers are "outraged" that the Michigan Education Association endorsed Larry Owen for the Democratic nomination for governor. They held a rally in a Battle Creek high school parking lot on behalf of Howard Wolpe.

Owen, a former East Lansing mayor and Michigan State University trustee, was endorsed by the MEA, the union of school administrators, teachers and support personnel.

The state AFL-CIO is supporting former U.S. Rep. Howard Wolpe. The continued rift between the federation and the MEA is likely to further dampen MEA's effort to dominate the Democratic Party.

It's a whole new world for grads

By YVONNE BEEBE Staff Writer

Following Northville High School's commencement services Friday evening, the "U.S.S. Mustang" will transport jubilent graduates to "A Whole New World" during this year's all-night party.

The high school's ever-familiar halls will magically transform into the hull of a ship and various exotic islands, complete with palm trees to help students celebrate graduation in a creative and safe way.

Well, maybe the transformation is not quite as magical as it may seem. This year's all-night party has been the result of hard work from more than 150 parents who have been diligently brainstorming and construct-ing decorations since October.

"I've been counting down the days until graduation too," organizer Cindy Wagner said with a chuckle. She estimates that her committee has been making decorations and working about 20 hours a week lately to prepare for the party.

The party's theme was unveiled at 8:15 this morning in the high school cafeteria during a senior breakfast sponsored by the junior class. A sign with the U.S.S. Mustang on it and the party's logo, "A Whole New World," was presented to the seniors with parent Doug Bingham dressed as a cruise-ship captain.

Entertainment for the night will include a disc jockey, karaoke, beach volleyball, a magician, a caricaturist, a casino featuring roulette and other Las Vegas-style games, shuffle board and a Velcro wall.

Students can win prizes ranging from portable compact disc players to items essential for a typical college dorm room at the casino, which will be open from midnight to 3 a.m. Any prizes not won at the casino will be raffled off at the end of the night. Students can begin arriving be-tween 9:30-10:00 p.m. The party will last until 4 a.m. and if students leave they cannot return. Sue Krupansky, head of promotions for the party, said she expects about 85 percent of the 279-member graduating class to attend. "It's going to be a fun night," she said.

Principal Thomas Johnson said the all-night party is not only an effective way to keep students from drinking and driving during postgraduation celebrations, it communicates an important lesson as well.

"The initial intent was not only to cut down on drinking after graduation, it shows students that there is an alternative way to have fun," Johnson said. "The kids really take advantage of it. It's not only a positive because of the safety factors, there's nice gifts for the kids, a casino and you can eat yourself to death."

Candidates debate school issues

Nield said the board will need to stay on track in meeting its objectives. "We need to be sure we are all rowing our boats in the same direction," she said. Nield added she believes the community must stand strong and resist outside pressures to determine what is right for the Northville school district.

Richards said he feels the board must address the high school's Wednesday-morning planning sessions and open discussions with the community on the subject.

Candidates addressed a concern many parents and school officials have been grappling with lately: how high school students can spend their time productively during next year's whittled down school day on Wednesdays.

The first class period that day will start at 10:40 a.m. Teachers will hold conferences during the early morning hours to generate ideas about team teaching and other concepts.

Candidates expressed concern that high school students would begin classes three hours later than usual on Wednesday, amounting to approximately 87 hours of lost class time next year.

Nield acknowledged that the shortened school day poses a problem; however, she said the collegial planning time for teachers would be productive.

"I do not support the fact that our kids will be out of school Wednesday mornings next year," she said. "(However) teachers need time to talk to each other, to get to know each other, to have staff development and to discuss restructuring this high school. I hope that the teachers like the program so much that they are willing to give the time back."

Nield suggested study sessions for the MEAP or ACT tests, peer tutoring and the use of the weightroom or pool during the lost class time.

Richards took a more adamant stance against the weekly planning

きず

"We are simply gearing ourselves down the path in the opposite direction of the rest of the Western world." he said. "I cannot support the use of the weightroom as a responsible option."

Bennett said her main priority for the program would be planning productive activities for the students on Wednesdays, which would require a monitary investment. Gudritz said he favors regaining the classtime. Kids aren't in school long enough as it is," he said.

Candidates agreed that ALPS, the accelerated learning program for gifted children that has sparked controversy among parents recently, should be continued as long as children's needs in the regular curriculum are not overlooked.

"All students learn in different ways and different rates and we need to challenge each of them so they can reach their full potential, Bennett said. The ALPS program is a very cost-effective way to meet the needs of the children who need to be challenged."

Gudritz said he believes the program should continue, but also be reviewed to make sure it achieves its goals. At the same time, he added, it is important to meet the needs of all children in the district and assure that funds for the program are used equitably.

Clearly we must meet the needs of our best and brightest," Richards said. "I would be happy in continuing the ALPS program. Frankly I think it ought to be expanded."

There is a lot of misinformation. rumors out in the community that desperately need to be cleaned up,' Nield said, adding that ALPS, like all other school programs, needs to be periodically evaluated. "The original issue here, behind the controversy. was a field trip request and I do support the need for field trips to be brought back to all students."

Using the Drug Abuse Resistance Education program-where police officers teach students about drug abuse and prevention at the kindergarten through fifth-grade and highschool levels-has been another topic of debate ever since the board voted in January to maintain the Michigan Model of drug education, which is taught by a certified health instructor from kindergarten through eighth grade.

"If information can be brought forth that shows a different program can work better than the program we have, I would be 100-percent behind it," Gudritz said, adding that he would not support a reduction in academic time or devoting additional funds to drug education. Student drug use is not only the schools' problem, but the community's problem as well, he said.

Richards said he plans to work toward integrating DARE into the school system.

"I am in strong support of the DARE program. I come from a community which has a very strong DARE program, it works wonderfully there," Richards said. "I would work diligently to see to it that we have the DARE program in Northville Public Schools."

Nield stressed community involment in addressing the drug problem in Northville, adding that she would be interested in looking at DARE and other drug-education strategies.

"It would be my hope that the schools would offer a challenging and enriching curriculum with lots of options and opportunities," she said. "So these kids will feel better about themselves and forget about what they've been doing in the past."

Bennett said she is willing to look at other communities with different drug-education curriculums and assess whether they would work for the Northville community.

'We need to teach the kids not just that drugs are bad for them but how do you resist them, how do you say 'no.' " Bennett said.

Another topic that concerned parents and candidates was how to launch students into the 21st century through technology.

and the second second second and the "Most of the schools today are using technology as a course; in other words, you come in and learn keyboarding and word processing," Gudritz said. "I believe technology should be used in the classroom simply as a tool to accomplish a goal that a student has.

"We use the technology to gather data, synthesize data and report on data - that's what the real world is requiring of us, whether we are citizens or professional people that's how technology is being used, that's our obligation to teach our children that technology," Gudritz said.

Nield suggested a check-off list for all instructors in the district marking the level that students have reached in technology knowledge and knowhow.

"I would like to see more use across the district and between buildings," she said. "It is one of the more creative ways that we can look at in the future to save money."

Bennett suggested individualized technology instruction for students. We need to really challenge each child so they can reach their fullest potential," she said.

Richards agreed that the key to effective technology instruction lies in teachers catering to students' individual needs. "We must distinguish and provide for individual difference in application of that technology, which is as different as the field itself," he said.

Voters will go to the polls June 13 to fill the two vacant seats on the board, which are uncompensated positions of four-year duration. Incumbent trustees Glenna Davis and Joseph Dunkerley are not seeking reelection.

For those who missed the public forum, a video tape of the meeting will be shown on Omnicom cable June 10. Check local listings for times. The video tape will also be available at the Northville Public Library.

The class of '94 will take center stage Friday night

By YVONNE BEEBE Staff Writer

More than 250 Northville High School seniors will close an important chapter in their lives Friday night.

With family and friends watching at 7 p.m. at the Mustang football field, Northville High School commencement will honor 279 seniors as they walk across the platform, receive their diplomas and say goodbye to the high, school hallways.

Because there are 15 valedictorians and 8 salutatorians this year, the school will forego honors students' traditional speeches and settle for brief written messages in the commencement program.

Forty-eight central office and faculty members will march in cap and gown along with members of the class of '94. Northville Board of Education President Robert McMahon will hand out diploma jackets to the students during the ceremony, which will last about one hour and 15 minutes.

After the ceremony, students will go to the concession stand to return their caps and gowns and pick up their diplomas from volunteer teachers.

If the weather is rainy, the ceremony will be held inside the high school gymnasium.

Principal Thomas Johnson estimates that almost 94 percent of the graduating class will go on to a 4-year or 2-year college or univer-sity or a trade school.

The class of '94 has acquired other honors, including $404,193 in university scholarship money, $17,350 in local scholarship money, 136 honor students (a 3.0 gpa and above), 39 Phi Beta Kapa students (a 3.75 gpa and above) and 61 National Honor Society members.

House to consider banning expense funds

By TIM RICHARD Staff Writer

Lansing's rebellious freshmen won a major victory when the House of Representatives agreed to take up a bill banning officeholder expense funds (OEFs). "This was the first time the freshmen caucuses worked together," said Rep. Dan Gustafson, R-Haslett, sponsor of the bipartisan bill.

Rep. Greg Kaza, R-Rochester Hills, was ready to embarrass the leadership by pushing a discharge petition

"We ran out of patience with prom-ises of 'next week,' " Kaza said after the committee finally voted unanimously. Gustafson was the lone speaker as the committee held a brief public hearing. Battleground was the House Oversight and Ethics Committee, co-chaired by No. 3 ranking Republican Frank Fitzgerald of Grand Ledge and No. 2 ranking Democrat Pat Gagliardi of Drummond Island.

Of the bill's 25 sponsors, 24 were first-termers, including Jerry Vorva, R-Plymouth, whose district includes Northville, and Gustafson, whose district includes western Livingston County. The old-timer signing on was Rep. William Bryant, R-Grosse Pointe.

Local members said the freshmen caucuses meet "irregularly" but wield great influence when they decide to act.

The bill would amend the 1976 state Campaign Finance Act, which currently allows OEFs. It would take effect next Jan. 1. Existing OEFs would have to be given to charity or the money returned to donors.

"There were lots of abuses," said Vorva. Some lawmakers were collecting their $8,000 a year for traveling to and from Lansing but using OEF money to lease cars, he said.

"They were also paying for compu-ters for personal use," Vorva said. Like many other freshmen, Vorva said he campaigned on the issue of leadership insisted on retaining that stopping lawmakers from using their provision. offices to help get re-elected. Gustafson said he ran on the same issue.

Among other provisions: • Lawmakers could still have district offices but must pay for them from campaign funds rather than OEFs.

• They could not pay for spouses' travel, lodging or meals while attending unreimbursed conferences.

 But they could continue to give up to $100 to other candidates' fundraisers. Gustafson said the House

Talk-dial network set to go on-line

Ameritech customers now can let their voices do the walking when making telephone calls. The company anounced that it is testing Voice Calling, a voice-activated speed dial-ing system, in the Northville and Novi areas

With Voice Calling, residence and small-business customers dial by speaking the name of the person or place they wish to call. The service works from any phone in the home or office, allowing customers to create and store up to 50 names and phone numbers.

Voice Calling offers virtually hands-free access to frequently called telephone numbers.

The service is provided through Ameritech's network so customers don't need to buy additional equipment or special phones," said Steve Markov, director of marketing communications for Ameritech's consumer services unit.

"In addition, Voice Calling is a very , flexible and versatile service," Cawley continued. "It works on any telephone and does not require the purchase of additional office equipment.

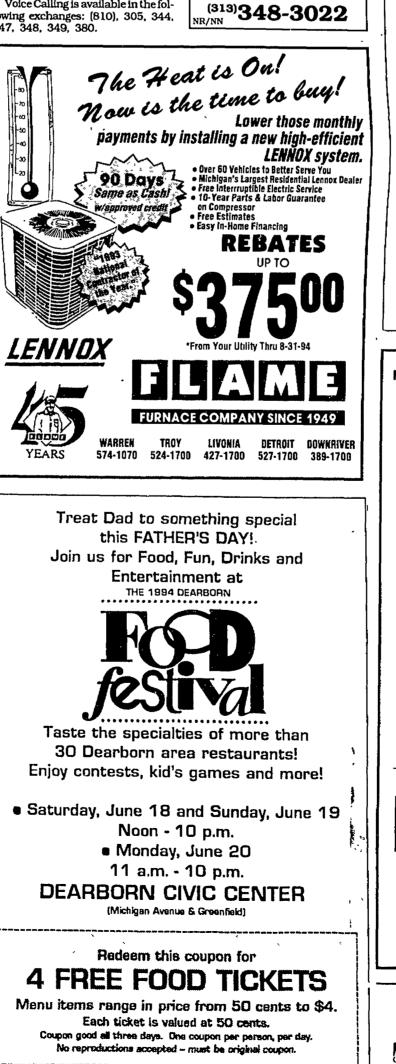

The virtually hands-free feature will be especially attractive to customers with visual or physical impairments.

Here's how Voice Calling works: A customer picks up the receiver and within two seconds hears a beep. The customer then tells the phone — "Call Mother" or "Call office," for example. A computer software program recognizes and matches the name to a stored speech pattern programmed by the customer.

Customers at any time may override the Voice Calling feature and manually input telephone numbers. Voice Calling costs $5 a month per line for resident and small-business customers.

Voice Calling is available in the following exchanges: (810), 305, 344, 347, 348, 349, 380.

House candidates debate health care reform

By RANDY COBLE Staff Writer

Democrats and Republicans gunning for the U.S. House of Representatives seat that includes Northville agree on one thing: America's health care system has problems. Just how bad they are --- and how big any solution should be -- is where they don't see eye to eye.

Perhaps the hottest political topic in this election year, health care reform was the subject of a debate held June 4 in Ann Arbor. Participating were six of the seven candidates in the House 13th District race, which includes Northville Township and the Wayne County portion of the city.

Three Democrats and four Republicans will face off within their own parties in the Aug. 2 primary. The top vote-getters in each party will then run against each other in the general election on Nov. 8.

About 50 people sat under the shade of a picnic shelter in sunny Gallup Park to hear the exchange, which the Gray Panthers, a senior citizen political group, sponsored. They heard from Democrats Fulton Eaglin, an Ann Arbor attorney; Ann Arbor area State Rep. Lynn Rivers; and House Rep Bill Ford's chief of the Double Color staff David Geiss.

On the Republican side were cable television businessman Dennis Fassett; former Bush aide John Schall; attorney Cynthia Hudgins-Wilbanks; and Glen Kassel, who did not attend the debate.

The two most interesting things which came from the debate were the areas where candidates for both sides disagreed and where they came together.

٠ř٠ ŝ

Each of the three Democrats said they supported a "single-payer" health care system where every American would receive coverage and the federal government would be responsible for its administration. All three agreed, however, that such a plan was politically impossible to get passed in Congress. Single-payer, the Democrats said, would save money from cuts in paperwork, redtape and abuse while preserving choice of doctors and treatments. The three Republicans. however, said that's fiction.

Government-run health care, they maintained, would be inefficient, restrictive and more expensive than the system is now. They advocated a variety of less sweeping changes to fix what they say are the few problems that exist in an otherwise-excellent care system.

All six candidates, however, came together in supporting two reforms: one, ensuring portability of health care coverage - meaning you can take coverage from job to job; and two, prohibiting insurers from denying someone coverage because of a pre-existing condition.

Here are a selection of the candidates' remarks:

Lynn Rivers:

Rivers said she supports a singlepayer model where the government administrates - but does not fund the system.

Although single-payer gets a bad wrap, she said, it's not because people don't like its mechanics, as opponents claim. Rivers said that it is people's distrust of government that raises doubts about single-payer. Government administration of the system would allow a better, more

All six candidates came together in supporting two reforms: one, ensuring portability of health care coverage - meaning you can take coverage from job to job; and two, prohibiting insurers from denying someone coverage because of a preexisting condition.

problem-preventing approach, Rivers indicated.

"Health care is a pay-me-now or pay-me-later proposition," she said. "We will pay for those that are not covered at some point."

An advocate of the rights of the mentally ill in Lansing, Rivers also said she wanted full coverage of mental health problems. Her sentiment was later echoed by other candidates.

David Geiss:

He's supported single-payer models in the past, Geiss said, but stressed that it wasn't going to happen given the political climate in Washington."

Geiss cited a number of key reforms that any plan which eventually wins approval must have, including universal coverage while keeping the freedom to choose your doctor and to receive different types of treatments.

The Republicans have their heads in the sand, just like they did in the 1930s over Social Security," Geiss said. "They're trying to continue the big lie that there isn't a problem."

The current system has to change,

Geiss said, because it takes up 14 percent of the national economy. A good chunk of that 14 percent - one third - Geiss said, is money insurance companies spend for things like advertising and overhead. That's compared to a figure of 1.5 percent for Medicare, he said.

Fulton Eaglin:

A supporter of single-payer and universal coverage, Eaglin said that he wanted to ensure those ideas worked by making hard, realistic decisions.

"Democrats want to take the profit out of collection and distribution of health care dollars while leaving choices," he said.

Moving health care to a more preventative approach was a key part of Eaglin's position. That will save money by fixing problems before they become expensive to treat, he said.

very important, Eaglin said, including mandatory checkups and denying coverage for those who deliberately endanger their health.

"You have to participate in the plan to be in it," Eaglin said. "If you don't, you get knocked out of the plan. Those that don't have no right something which many seniors deto burden the rest of us. For example: pend upon. you smoke, you get cancer - you health care debate," he said.

The complete surrender of health care to the federal government" was how the candidate described some of the Democratic proposals for reform in Congress now.

She said she could not support them, but did support some parts of some Republican plans. She did not support universal coverage, saying it would be more costly and detrimen-tal to the quality of care available.

Any proposals that would either diminish the quality of care available or restrict research and development of new drugs and treatments are unacceptable, Hudgins-Wilbanks said.

She also supported moving to a more prevention-based system. The net result, she said, is better care at less cost.

Health care rationing, she said, "is an issue that needs to be discussed" - such as cutting off coverage for smokers or drug abusers.

Dennis Fassett:

Fassett focussed on how most of the plans under discussion now would affect Medicare coverage,

RECORD OPINION

Our Opinion

Our choices for seats on the school board

Northville School District voters head to the polls Monday to choose new candidates for the board of education.

Two seats are up for grabs following the retirement of trustees Glenna Davis and Joseph Dunkerley. Two new faces will represent a substantial turnover rate in a single year, changing the composition of the board by roughly 29 percent when the oaths of office are taken in July.

Board terms are uncompensated and run for four years. The top two votegetters will win seats. Here is how we size up the field of hopefuls.

Martha Nield:

Nield is a superbly qualified candidate with more than a decade of close involvement in school district affairs. The mother of two, Nield has been a member of several PTAs and she currently serves on the committee that's generating productivity suggestions for the restructured high school Wednesday schedule.

She is also a former member of both the Strategic Planning Team and the High School Improvement Committee.

Nield's energy and intellect have earned her a reputation as a thoughtful, informed activist with a thorough grasp of school-related issues. Her knowledge of the high school, moreover, provides her with expertise in the area where creative learning opportunities are needed most in Northville.

We think Martha Nield is the leading candidate in this year's field and strongly recommend her election to the board of education.

• Tom Gudritz:

Gudritz, an employee of Digital Equipment Corp., is the secretary of Advocates for Quality Education, the huge local school oversight group. He was also a member of comparative budget and collective bargaining subcommittees for the district.

His areas of concentration include computer technology and finances. He has three children.

Gudritz is a quality candidate who would bring good analytical skills to the growth projections.

Her fine work on the subcommittee, however, is more indicative of her potential as a capable future board member than of her preparedness to assume a seat at the present time. Her tentative answers at the candidate's forum and her knowledge deficiencies concerning the high school relegate her to our third choice among the candidates. Additional years of involvement in school matters should qualify her for a position at a later date.

Bill Richards:

Richards is the assistant executive director of the Downriver Community Conference, a Southgate-based municipal consortium. A public administrator, he is associated with Eastern Michigan University's Institute for Community and Regional Development (ICARD) and has served as an educator at both EMU and Wayne State University.

He moved to Northville Township with his family one year ago. He has two children.

Richards is an intelligent, polished individual who has emphasized Outcomes-Based Education and the Drug Abuse Resistence Education programs during his campaign.

Richards insists that his lack of background in local school district matters shouldn't be viewed as a liability, but we can't agree. As with Bennett, Richards may possess the capacity to one day qualify for a board of education seat, but there are others who are better able to hit the ground running. Richards simply doesn't have enough familiarity with the Northville schools to understand the district's nuances and peculiarities. A relatively lengthy on-the-job training period would be required.

• Mike Willams:

Williams is a 1992 graduate of Northville High School, having gone through the local system for all but two years of his schooling. A political activist, Williams ran Burl Adkins' unsuccessful congressional campaign in 1992. He considers bimself a member of the Mi-

It's a pretty exclusive club

Malott

So just how many Michael Malotts does one planet need? Two for sure. Probably three at a minimum. You wouldn't want to run into some kind of Michael Malott shortage, would you?

I'll skep better now that I know the world reserve of available Michael Malotts is twice as large as it was previously assumed to be.

I learned of this when we received a press release a couple weeks back about a guy named Michael Malott who used to live in Northville and attended Northville High School. Now he lives in Atlanta and he's writing screenplays and getting ready to produce his first movie. If all goes as planned, shooting will commence this September on a movie he wrote, titled Corporate Vacation.

"Would you confirm this — make sure there really is another Michael Malott," I said to reporter Michelle Harrison as I handed the release to her, "and that this is not just somebody's idea of a jcke, before we run anything in the paper."

Sure enough, turns out it's true. That Michael Malott really exists, and these days he's trying to line up the likes of Mick Jagger, Jon Bon Jovi, Emo Phillips and Andrew Dice Clay to take roles in his film.

Shortly after the article appeared, I got a call. "Michael Malott?" "Yes." "This is Michael Malott."

I let him know that I was aware of one other person who had the name, a guy up in the Bay City area who used to sell insurance for AAA. It turns out that was his father. And that Mike Malott had left Bay City years ago and moved to Northville. Unfortunately, he's passed on now.

Of course, we had to compare family histories, to see if there was any possible connection. "Are you a part of the Indiana branch of the Malott family?" he asked. "No, my clan came to the Flint area through Syracuse, New York, but we've got a bunch of relatives up in the St. Charles area." "Nope, no connection there."

We mused for a moment about the rarity of the Malott name, and how it is all the more strange to come across someone with the same first and last name with no apparent connection in the family line.

"They tell me our last name used to be spelled differently," he said. "It is French, and it used to be spelled with an 'e' at the end, but one of my ancestors had it taken off."

Now that's really odd, I told him, because the same folktale is told in my family. In our version, it was my grandfather who had it taken off, because my Welch grandmother would never consent to marrying a Frenchman. The Atlanta-based Michael Malott told me his family anecdote cites the same reason for the dropping of the "Malotte" name.

Later, I asked Michelle to fax a copy of the article to Atlanta. "Already done," she said.

"How did you know he asked for it?" I asked. "Did he call back?"

"Well, you know these Michael Malott characters, they're pretty pushy guys," she said, not missing her chance to get a dig in.

"I'm disappointed he felt he had to call again," I said in response. "You know, we Michael Malotts are a pretty exclusive group, and we take care of our own."

This Michael Malott is the Managing Editor of The Northville Record/Novi News.

board of education. He acquitted himself well during the candidates forum held May 31, demonstrating depth of knowledge and the kind of foresight needed to lead the district into the next century. His understanding of financial matters will prove useful should the untested state funding scheme give rise to a money crunch.

Tom Gudritz, we think, would make a fine addition to the Northville Board of Education and we endorse his candidacy.

• Barb Bennett:

Bennett has lived in the district since 1990 and has been affiliated with PTA organizations. The mother of four rose to prominence as a member of the Future Facilities Use Subcommittee, the group that conducted an exhaustive study of the district's physical accommodations, concluding its work with a recommendation to open Thornton Creek Elementary in September.

Bennett proved a driving force on the subcommittee, furnishing considerable statistical data on population trends and chigan Republican Party.

Williams, who is unmarried, is a communications major at the University of Detroit and is thinking about a career in journalism.

Williams is basically an unknown commodity, having appeared on the school scene only this election season. He has no history of involvement in the school district, other than having been a student here, and conducted a kind of absentee campaign during which he was nearly impossible to reach. This newspaper contacted him for a candidate's interview only with difficulty, and he did not attend the one and only forum where voters had the opportunity to see the candidates side-by-side.

Knowing little about him, Williams was never in the running for our endorsement.

The polls will be open for voters between 7 a.m. and 8 p.m. Monday. School board members are entrusted to make important policy decisions affecting young people's lives. Please make it a point to vote.

Harrison

I looked forward to doing our recent D-Day coverage because I knew I would get to meet a lot of interesting people as well as brush up on my history.

After all, I scheduled an interview with Robert Lehman, who actually jumped in the Normandy invasion. He was waiting for me when I got to his Wixom apartment with medals, pictures and all spread out on his kitchen table, ready for my perusal.

And then there was Fred Hicks of Northville who hadn't planned on sharing his box of war-time pictures with me, telling the story behind each photo as if it happened yesterday, until his wife dug them out of their bedroom.

It was a beautiful Friday afternoon when I stopped in at the local Northville VFW Post where several veterans were more than willing to talk to me about their D-Day experiences. Heck, Harry Krachmal even took the time out to make copies of several articles for me to help me out with my story.

But after listening to all the stories people wanted to share with me, after writing the stories and putting out the section, I couldn't help but feel some sadness.

Although everybody's story was different, each shared a common element. They hated to remember, but yet they didn't.

They hated to remember the tragedies of war — deaths of close buddies and close calls themselves. They said they hated to remember — it was something they just tried to forget. Until some reporter asked them to recall it.

Each one of them also had this certain look in their eyes as they recalled their war-time memories. It was a look of pain, remorse, sadness, but still maintaining a certain amount of toughness, if you will.

Robert Lehman had that look when he spoke to me.

"I was thinking about dying." he said when I asked him what was going through his mind as he prepared to invade Normandy. "That may sound a little sentimental. A lot of people pray to God. I didn't pray. I talked direct to him.

"I asked him if I was going to die, then to make it quick. I had seen too many buddles die."

It sent chills down my spine. Imagine yourself, on the night before your 20th birthday. You've just been briefed by Gen. Dwight Eisenhower and you're about to jump from an airplane into full-fledged combat. The odds of surviving are against you.

God only knows what awaits you on the ground.

"I didn't even know what living was about," Lehman said. Another chill.

He was right. How many of those young men sacrificed a career, failing in love, raising a child, owning a home, buying their first new car, running barefoot through the grass and enjoying a summer sunset so that you and I could experience those joys later?

Too many.

I would like to thank the Robert Lehmans, the Fred Hicks' and all the veterans for giving me the chance to experience what those young soldiers couldn't. Although I haven't experlenced them all, I at least have the chance to.

Audit needed for Rosselle dismissal

to the editor:

I have read a great deal about the iring of the Fire Chief Rosselle. Noice I used the word firing because 'm not sure resignation is appropriate.

It would seem that an independent audit of this situation is in order, to put this to rest, once and for all. After all, it's the people who are at risk, if petty politics are involved and are allowed to continue. What chance have we the people to expect that the most talented, experenced individuals will be appointed to do the jobs that our taxes pay for.

The Northville Township has many other serious problems that need to be resolved without creating new ones.

Perhaps it's time to have a recall of the individuals in office, because of their long tenure, who no longer have the people's interest at heart or are above the job that they were elected to do.

To be fair, given Mr. Rosselle's past outstanding performance and dedication, the least we can do is to have this situation thoroughly investigated.

J. F. Macura

Township will survive firing

To the editor:

In reference to articles and letters that have appeared in The Northville Record that concern Mr. Rosselle's departure from the Northville Township Fire Department, I would like to comment on some of the points made by your column "Our Opinions," and ad-dress what I feel should be better understood and reflect my opinions.

These articles and letters appeared to me to be biased to one side, so I felt it necessary to comment. My husband is employed by the Northville Township Fire Department. I think I understand the department well, and I am suspicious of comments that make one person out to be "the fire department."

1. Your paper comments, "One side offers one story, the other side says something else and just who has it right is impossible to know." Your editorial further states ". . . but no improvement in morale appears to have resulted from the firing either." Just who made the judgment that the morale has not improved or is even suffering? Is this possibly "one side" giving an opinion of what is going on?

2. Although it is obvious that Mr. Rosselle has become a community fixture and probably has had many positive contacts with members of the community, it should be noted that no one man is an institution. I'm sure the Northville Township Fire Department will continue to function at a high level of proficiency.

3. Ricke Rosselle is said to be "reliable, trustworthy, and dedi-cated," like many of the firefighters who remain with the Northville Township Fire Department. These are qualities of the people who we want protecting our homes. The Gensleys made these comments in reference to their son/brother-inlaw. It is too bad they had to read about their relative in this paper.

This department is made up of many capable people who remain on the department to provide lifesaving services to the community of Northville Township. I trust that whatever reasons the township government had, the decision was difficult and made with the future protection of the community in mind.

I personally do not have an opinion on the decision to have Mr. Rosselle leave. I do know that this can cause some confusion in this type of organization, however, to have him return as a paid-on-call firefighter would be even more disruptive than what is now going on. I suspect that in the future changes will be made that will affect the community and township employees, these changes may not always please all concerned parties but are necessary for the continued growth of a community such as this.

I feel that decisions made at an emergency will still be made with everyone's safety in mind and that the losses in the community will be kept to the absolute minimum possible. I know that my husband's safety will not be jeopardized during this transitional period at Northville Township Fire Department.

Health care plans are scary

To the editor:

The government-mandated, government-controlled health re-form plans now being discussed in Washington, D.C., are enough to scare the wits out of any thinking American.

Just take a look at the government-run programs now in existence (i.e. veterans hospital system, the welfare system, and even the state Department of Motor Vehicles). Is there a single one that is not riddled with waste, fraud and/or inefficiency?

How can the Clintons possibly expect us to believe that this same government will suddenly become competent with our health care decisions?

Without a doubt, some reforms need to be made. But I'm not at all convinced that more government powers would accomplish the reforms we need.

ALPS amounts to inequality

To the editor:

I am writing in response to all the opinions being expressed concerning the ALPS program in the Northville Public Schools. I have requested that my name be withheld in order to protect my child's identity, not my own. My child was tested for the ALPs and an and the second second program in the second grade primarily because his teacher was convinced that was where he should be. His third and fourth grade teachers suggested he be tested again, but I refused.

He did not qualify for ALPS because although the results showed he was extremely intelligent, he wasn't "creative" enough. As a result, my child was a high achiever in the traditional elementary classroom and perhaps missed out on being academically challenged to his ability.

I might also mention that this child is not an athlete, has no musical interest and does not have a desire to act in a school play. However, despite the judgment of his being "lacking in creativity," he is a very talented artist. Therefore, we have provided him with opportunities to pursue this interest outside the public school system.

Where is the "special program" within the public school system to meet my child's needs? Since my child does not belong to an athletic team, the school band, or have a history with the ALPS students in his age group, he has been left to pretty much fend for himself. As my son approached high school age, I came to realize that for my child to receive an appropriate education and to be respected for his particular talents, I must consider sending him to a private school. I did not write this letter to enlist sympathy for my child or for myself. I merely wanted to make the point that since all academically or otherwise "gifted" students do not "make the cut" for the ALPS program, some students are not going to be challenged. Therefore, ALPS students are treated special.

This contradiction between hope and reality has opened the door to a wholesale assault on our public schools at just the time when public education needs all the help it can get.

Item: Most of the heat in the debate over Proposal A was generated by a bitter conflict between Gov. John Engler and the Michigan Education Association, the teachers union. The governor in effect accused the union of causing the deterioration of our schools, while the MEA countered by charging Engler with scapegoating, not to mention being anti-union. The conflict is now the main driving force in Michigan politics, virtually replacing the usual Republican versus Democrat contests of the past.

Item: At the heart of this animosity is a law

Item: The Pinckney school board is virtually certain to turn over management of its schools to Education Alternatives Inc., a for-profit firm that asserts privatized schools can improve educational performance at reduced per-pupil cost. A lot of people are pretty skeptical of EAI's track record, but even more are so frustrated with trying to get something done with the schools that they're willing to take a chance on privatization.

To top it off, last week saw release of an astonishing letter from David Sabedra, MEA regional director, to Eric Gilbertson, president of Saginaw Valley State University, which:

But the stonewall tactics the union is now using expose it to the terrible risk of being considered largely irrelevant - because totally self-interested - in resolution of the overall public policy issue of what happens to K-12 education in this state.

There's an old slogan that goes: "If you're not part of the solution, you're part of the problem."

It's axiomatic that sooner or later, teachers in this state - the majority of whom are currently MEA members — must become part of any solution to the problem of how our kids can learn at a world-class level. For that to happen, the MEA needs to do more thinking about educational solutions and less writing of inflammatory and threatening letters.

Some will say the numbers are exaggerated, some will say the numbers are low. What I say has to do with our personal and community "attitude" about the pervasive use of nicotine, alcohol and marijuana in our town and on our streets and in our society.

I believe that our attitude and denial that we have a serious drug and alcohol problem is the level at which we are willing to tolerate this problem.

If I as an individual can tolerate the increased use and abuse by our kids, if I can tolerate the increased use, abuse and sales of drugs in our community, if I as an individual can tolerate the kids roaming our downtown streets unsupervised, the increase in breaking and enterings, the laughter by our youth that they can, at will, buy cigarettes, vivarin, beer, you name it, any time they want, the laughter by our youth at the adults who don't see or want to see the bonfires, the parties and the mayhem caused by kids out of control, then I have and will tolerate the slow deterioration of a town I care dearly about.

I as an individual refuse to let this happen and will do what I can to impede this attitude of tolerance.

In the weeks since the survey was released I have gotten several phone calls, many anonymously from parents and concerned persons. Many of these calls pinpoint drug use, sales, family need for counseling, verification of concerns, etc.

There is a growing number of people who want change and want their community to continue to be safe. This will not come easily. Education and the Red Ribbon Campaign are important; however, most important is an attitude of "zero tolerance."

Zero tolerance means stopping the enabling and bringing to bear the various segments of our community toward a new level of commitment and a change in attitude. Together as students and as adults we have to come to a place where tolerance will no longer be tolerated.

Many fine programs such as the Youth Club at the First United Methodist Church provide a place where students can be drug free, learn positive ways to live and be contributors to our community.

There are many students and adults alike interested in being drug and alcohol free. Every day there is new hope that we can as a community turn this level of misuse around and become involved in a zero tolerance attitude.

I have no regrets that my child has been excluded from the ALPS classroom. Frankly, I believe that despite the fact that he doesn't belong to a specific group that has been labeled, I believe my child is better prepared for the outside world in which one has to deal with all kinds of people on all kinds of levels and you aren't necessarily treated "special."

However, I do regret the way in which my child and many others have been made to feel less intelligent, and/or less deserving than the students in the ALPS program. I also regret that despite the concerns expressed about this partiheard.

Don't let dogs run loose

To the editor:

There have been several items in The Record recently regarding al-tercations between loose dogs and humans and I'd like to comment. As a dog owner I am pleased by the large percentage of responsible dog owners in the Northville area.

Unfortunately, there are also a few irresponsible owners who let their dogs run loose and I'd like to address those individuals. Letting your dog run loose is unfair to your neighbors, unfair to your dog and against the law.

If you let your dog run loose, Name withheld by request your neighbors are smiling at you through gritted teeth. Dogs naturally prefer to eliminate out of "their area," which is your neighbor's yard. No one enjoys cleaning up af-ter someone else's dog. Having your expensive shrubs "marked" is enough to try anyone's patience. Your dog feels an obligation to guard his territory. If a dog regularly walks in the street, it becomes part of his territory. Is it any won-der he feels obligated to grow at the joggers and other pedestrians who walk down your street? Who is at fault when a dog is hit by a car? Should your anger at the driver be redirected at the one who truly could have prevented the accident? Even the most gentle family dog will devastate a nest of baby rabbits. What is your dog doing when you are not around? If your dog runs loose, who keeps him from tangling with rabid racoons and squirrels?

The Detroit Free Press recently ran an article outlining the legal responsibilities of dog ownership. I'd encourage The Record to run a similar article, as a lot of needless conflict could be avoided through responsible dog restraint.

news article regarding Wayne County and Northville Township officials' decision to hire Ayres, Lewis Norris and May to construct To the editor;

a new sewer for OIS.

Is this another attempt to feather the nest of the controversial engineering firm that made millions in the Western Townships

Utility Authority scandal? Do you think we taxpayers have short memories? Karen Baja and board members shame on you. Will we have to vote you out too? Why didn't you check out this firm's previous work at WTUA before you made such a major decision. I have heard they have big pump problems because of poor design by your engineering firm. Jody Bissonette

I am appalled with the recent Maybe the gods are indifferent

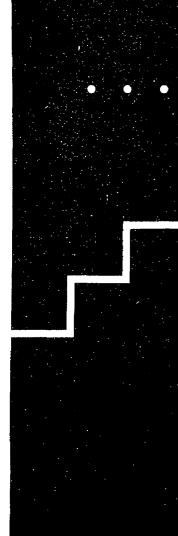

The news is overflowing these days with objections by many over the possible introduction of RU-486 as an abortafacient in the U.S.

Doesn't anyone subscribe to the rational observation that the crea-tive forces in nature, call them God, Allah, Vishnu, or Jehovah, etc., are. totally indifferent to what man and other living flora or fauna do once they are launched into what is truly-; a disturbingly enigmatic and unknownable purpose for being at. all?

Reason enough for life is the pleasure one can glean from relations. with other living beings and things. and the wonders of nature in all its splendor and, sometimes, manyes, destructive temper.

Ann Robson knows what it's like to be the new kid in town. So she shouldn't have any problem easing into her new role as president of the Northville Newcomers. She began her term June 1.

Robson has headed up other newcomer groups in Oswego, N.Y.; Cleveland, Ohio; and Russellville, Ky. She has also lived in West Virginia. Why all the moving? Robson's husband Bruce is a manager for Automotive Process Technologies, an international company for Alcan Rolled Products, which has relocated the couple more than once. The Robsons moved to Northville in January 1992.

"I'd like to continue to offer the hand of friendship to people new to Northville," said Robson, who will serve as Newcomers president until May 31, 1995. "We plan to do this through a variety of activities for people of all ages." While in Kentucky, Robson started a spouses' group for employees of Logan Aluminum (a company which is 40 percent owned by Alcan). "It turned out to be fairly successful," she said. "We did a lot of charity work in the community."

A native of Canada, Robson serves on the board of review for Northville Township, is secretary and newsletter editor for the Lakes of Northville Homeowners Association and is also editor for the Tournament Players Club of Michigan newsletter.

Mothers to donate

The recommendations are in and the Mothers' Club is set to donate $22,000 to Northville schools.

The monies were raised via the club's various fund-raisers --- the community phone book, holiday open houses and the Ski-Skate-Sports sale. Goals Committee Chairperson Linda Handyside said the committee's recommendations were as follows:

• Legal dictionaries for social studies and computer equipment for math, English and the library at the high school.

• Ellison letter machine and equipment to enhance the music department at the middle schools.

Science enrichment materials, slates for math, phonics and handwriting. and trade books focusing on social studies and science were approved for the elementaries. Speech Master II, a program to help teach remedial speech, will also be provided to all elementary schools.

Early in the year, members of the goals committee contact all school principals who generate a "wish list." After much consideration, the committee develops the list of items to fund for membership approval.

In addition to providing the needed items for students and teachers at each Funds were set aside to provide support for Northville's newest elementary, Thornton Creek, set to open in September.

Everyone loves a parade

If you've ever wanted to be in a parade, here's your chance.

Veteran parade participant Nancy Harm, who owns Harmony Acres Arabians with her husband George, invites volunteers who have an interest and some background with horses to join in the parade activities. Needed are grooms, banner carriers, clean-up crews, photo and video crews and back-up riders as well as help in training. Three of Harm's horses recently participated in the "Michigan Parades into the 20th Century" parade held in Lansing last month. Harm, a psychology professor at Schoolcraft College, rode Harmony Diamond in western show tack while Taren Carter of Farmington Hills rode Harmony Love Idol in native Arabian costume. Maril Zbik of Birmingham rode Harmony Tarifa, also in native Arabian costume. Zbik works for Northville Saddlery.

While all three horses are veterans of parades in Northville, Livonia, Whitmore Lake, South Lyon, Birmingham and Detroit, the "Michigan Parades" parade was the first for Carter and Zbik.

For more information about upcoming parades, call Harm at (313) 437-5672

Area pastor observes his 25th anniversary

This month, the Rev. Dr. Douglas Vernon, pastor of Northville First United Methodist Church, will celebrate "milestone in ministry," having fulfilled a pastoral role for 25 years.

The church is planning a holy celebration during worship services Sunday to honor Vernon.

Vernon was born Feb. 26, 1944, to Wendell and Dorothy Vernon in Flint. He attended grade school in the Flint area and graduated from Jackson High School where he was one of three baccalaureate speakers. The speech was about faith, hope and love. Vernon was selected to speak on faith. Was this a sign?

During his school years, Vernon delivered newspapers as many young boys did, but later tended bar at Win Schuler's.

The pastor attended Jackson Community College and Michigan State University, obtaining his bachelor of arts degree in history/ English. He felt teaching would be his life-long ambition.

His true calling, however, came three months later. He was offered a one-year trial at the Garrett Theological Seminary through the Rockefeller Foundation. Until then, he had no idea that teaching would revolve around spreading God's word and doing so to eight congregations over the next 25 years.

Those congregations included a joint charge of the Morris Chapel in Buchanan and Niles Brandywine Trinity in Niles from 1969 to 1971; Kalamazoo First United Methodist Church from 1971 to 1974; Stockbridge First United Methodist Church from 1974 to 1979; Birmingham First United Methodist Church from 1979 to 1984; Church of the Straits in Mackinaw City from 1984 to 1987; and St. Timothy United Methodist Church in Detroit from 1987 to 1991. Vernon came to the Northville church in 1991.

While serving at the Church of the Straits, Vernon wrote his doctoral dissertation on "Leisure Ministry."

Through all of these changes, he has also raised a blend of families: Adam, a high school senior; Andrew, who attends community college in Kalamazoo; Darrah who now resides and works in St. Louis; Charlotte, who attends Michigan State; and Maggie, a high school senior. Vernon married his wife Jane in 1987. She teaches in Bloomfield.

Besides his family, Vernon said experiences bring joy into his life. He is a self-described collector of them with more than seven homes in 25

Vernon prefers traveling the back roads, where he can more easily pursue another love --- nature. Also on his favorite things to do list is gardening and lighthouses. He also enjoys writing and considers preaching a "privilege."

Providence, R.I., the nation's seventh oldest college. ELIZABETH ANNA DEMATTIA, daughter of Robert and Maryann Demattia of Northville, received a bachelor of arts degree in biology. CHRISTOPHER RALPH BROWN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Brown of Northville, received a bachelor of science degree magna cum laude. He received his degree for work in computer science with special academic honors.

Brown awarded 1,353 bachelor's degrees, 267 master's degrees, 80 doctor of medicine degrees, and 162 doctor of philosophy degrees at its 226th commencement held May 30.

GEORGE LEMMON, a senior at Northville High School, has already begun making a mark at Albion College by receiving a Webster Scholarship.

The Webster Scholarship is given to students who are in the top 10 percent of their high school graduating class, have a high school grade point average between 3.6 and 3.8 out of 4.0, and have a composite ACT score of 27 or above or a composite SAT score of 1150 or above. The scholarship is renewable if the student meets certain academic standards.

SYDNEY HARRAL, and LILA SLAY, both of Northville, were among students recognized for achieving academic excellence at Eastern Michigan University's College of Technology's 12th annual Honors Banquet,

Students and guests enjoyed a formal dinner at the Radisson Resort in Ypsilanti and were addressed by James Miles, director of personnel at Environmental Research Institute of Michigan. Honors Awards were then presented by each of the four departments in the College of Technology.

The College of Technology is composed of the departments of business and industrial education, industrial technology, interdisciplinary technology, and military science. The college's four-year baccalaureate programs and graduate programs are designed to prepare students for careers in high technological fields.

Northville residentsBRADD G. HEMKER, of Divine Child High School, and PAMELA CLANCY, of Ladywood High School, were among 239 high school seniors to be awarded the Robert C. Byrd Honors Scholarship. The scholarship is a federally-funded program established to promote student excellence and achievement and to recognize

This merit program to graduating high school students who have achieved superior academic records provides each recipient with an award of $1,500 per year for up to four years. The financial resources of the family are not a criterion for determining eligibility. The Robert C. Byrd Honors Scholarship and all other financial aid for which the scholar qualifies cannot exceed the cost of attendance.

The federal law required that the awards be geographically distributed. The selection of scholarship recipients is being coordinated with the Academic All-State Team Program, administered by the Michigan Association of Secondary School Principals (MASSP) in cooperation with the Detroit Free Press.

In this particular program, each high school principal in the state is requested to nominate an outstanding graduating senior, based upon high school academic achievement and college aptitude test scores. MASSP mails applications to the high schools in early February., The applications are submitted to the MASSP office by mid-March.

Utilizing the Academic All-State Team Program avoids the need to develop a separate application process. The procedures ensure that every high school in the state has an opportunity for participation and that scholarship awards will be made proportionately throughout the state.

Local boy off to tour in musical

By MICHELLE HARRISON Staff Writer

It only took a few lines of a song to convince directors of a national Broadway musical tour of Lars Kvalvaags singing talent.

When his family learned of the au-ditions for The Secret Garden at the last minute, they literally dropped everything and headed south to Chicago. When Kvalvaag made callbacks (as did his sister), he found himself spending the night in the Windy City, anxiously waiting to audition again the next day.

"I didn't think I would actually make it," he said.

But he did, although it took directors two weeks to let Kvalvaag know he got the part. There was a lot of sweat and tears those two weeks," he said. Beginning July 1, the 12-year-old Northville resident will be living, rehearsing and opening the show in Chicago. The six month tour will take Kvalvaag all over the United States, from the Midwest to the east coast.

His mother Kathy has given up her babysitting career to accompany her son, Kvalvaag said.

Because his living expenses will not be covered by the theater company he'll be working with, the Marquis Theatre will be holding a fundraiser at the June 18 evening showing of Princess and the Goblins. A pre-show gala begins at 7 in the theater lobby where snacks and refreshments will be served. The show will begin at 8 p.m.

The evening will be capped off with a special visit from Maria Cimarelli, a guest artist with the Michigan Opera Theatre. She and Kvalvaag will sing together a number from The Secret Garden.

Tickets are $6 and can be purchased by phone with a credit card or at the Marquis Theatre box office.

Kvalvaag would be no stranger to any Marquis Theatre fan as he has performed in six performances there, including last spring's Jack and the Beanstalk. He currently plays the romantic lead in Princess and the Goblins.

Cindy Zeitz, who is co-directing the show with Susan Berg, said she day on the bus.

'Crooklyn' displays new side of Spike Lee

Acclaimed filmmaker shows 'softer approach'

It was the baddest of times, it was the worst of times.

Critically-acclaimed filmmaker " Spike Lee, in his first film since .i "Malcolm X." reveals a different side of his diverse talents with "Crooklyn," a deftly observed, touching and often hilarious view of life in a Brooklyn family during the 1970s

Academy Áward nominee Alfre Woodard ("Passion Fish," "Cross Creek") plays Carolyn Carmichael, the loving but careworn mother who struggles to make ends meet for her unemployed musician husband (Delroy Lindo of "Malcolm X") and their five children. Her 10year-old daughter Troy, played by newcomer Zelda Harris, has her hands full keeping up with four terminally-obnoxious brothers.

As a crisis envelops the household. Troy and her family just rely on each other - and their sense of humor — to face both the wild joys and shared sorrows of everyday life in "Crooklyn"

Lee and siblings Joie Susannah Lee and Cinque Lee collaborated in writing the screenplay for "Crooklyn," based on a story by Joie Susannah Lee. Spike Lee produced and directed the film.

Crooklyn" is the seventh film directed by Spike Lee, one of the most prolific filmmakers working loosely based the story on their today. The film, said Lee, evokes "a time when young urban African-American children were motivated primarily by two things - television and sugar."

Lee, whose earlier films have taken probing views of such con-troversial social issues as interracial romance, urban violence, black-on-black racism and the life and beliefs of Malcolm X, now turns his talents as a visual storyteller to the daily life and fortunes of the Carmichael family.

"As a filmmaker, and more importantly as a black filmmaker. I think it's important to expand the subject matter of the films we do." said Lee.

"As a group, we've gotten into a rut telling the same story again and again - the hip-hop, drug, gangsta rap, urban inner-city movie. I don't think that's the totality of the African-American experience and I really think that audiences are starting to want more than these movies can give them.

"Hopefully, this will be a start in that direction.

"Besides," he added, "ever since my first film ("She's Gotta Have It") people have been asking me when I'm going to make a movie they can take their children to."

The story of "Crooklyn" was conceived by two of Lee's siblings, Joie Susannah Lee and Cinque Lee, who had earlier collaborated in developing a pilot for television.

"We felt we could offer a fresh perspective by telling a coming-ofage story from the point of view of a young black girl," said Joie Lee. Although Joie and Cinque Lee own experiences growing up in Brooklyn during the '70s, the script of "Crooklyn" gradually took on a life of its own during the development process.

"It was a lot of fun to write the first draft because we were work-ing with a time and place that we had fond memories of," said Joie

Lee. "By the second draft, we were focusing much more on the relationship of the mother and daughter, and what was happening within the family. We wanted to pay homage to the experience of childhood without trying to romanticize or glamorize it."

Most of the action of "Crooklyn" takes place within a single city block in Brooklyn, New York, centered around the brownstone where the Carmichael family lives.

The father, Woody (Delroy Lindo) is an idealistic jazz musician who staunchly refuses to adapt to changing musical tastes.

His wife Carolyn (Alfre Woodard) can't decide who needs more parénting — her children or her husband.

Troy (Zelda Harris), the 10-yearold daughter, does her best to help out, while her brothers - Clinton (Carlton Williams), Wendell (Sharif Rashid), Nate (Chris Knowings) and Joseph (TseMach Washington) - spend most of the long summer days watching television and get-ting in (and out of) trouble.

"I look back and I see a time when kids could have a lot more fun than they have today," said Spike Lee.

Northville wins region final 1-0 over Churchill

By SCOTT DANIEL Sports Editor

Renee Androsian's goal midway through the second half gave the Mustang soccer team a 1-0 regional final win over Livonia Churchill Saturday.

Playing at Walled Lake Central, Northville knocked off the sixth-ranked team in Class A for the right to advance to the state semi-final. According to coach Doug Lyon, his team is playing its best soccer of the season.

"Everything is clicking," he said. "The kids are ex-tremely understanding of what I want them to do. Everything has come together."

The Mustangs were to play Brighton yesterday (after Northwille Record deadline) in the semi-final. A win would put Northville in the final against the winner of the Rochester-Troy semi-final Saturday at Plymouth-Canton High School at 1 p.m.

"It would be great to be in the final," Lyon said before Wednesday's game. "But we can't overlook Brighton because Brighton is a very good team. We have a very big job ahead of us."

Most observers give Troy the best chance of winning the state title. Ranked as one of the nation's top 10, the Colts hadn't allowed a goal in the playoffs going into their semi-final with Rochester.

"It would be a very tough shot against Troy," Lyon said. Troy is a fantastic team. I would love to play them." Northville last appeared in the finals in 1989, losing to Troy Athens 1-0. The Mustangs won a state title a decade ago with a 2-1 win over Livonia Stevenson.

There was no guarantee, certainly, that Northville would make it to the final four this seaon. Livonia Churchill, in fact, beat the Mustangs 2-0 in the second game of the '94 campaign. Lyon decided his team needed to attack the Chargers a little differently Saturday.

"They are very strong up the middle," he said. "I told the girls we can't play in the middle of the field. We had to keep it on the wings. That's where they are weak." Another main focus for Northville was to tightly mark

Livonia halfback Aimee Cousino, "If you don't shut her down she'll kill you," Lyon said. Lyndsay Huot and Angie Snyder did the job on the Livonia star. Lyon had specific instructions in guarding Cousino. "I told them not to let her dribble," he said.

Holding Cousino in check and taking away the middle of the field from Churchill stopped the Chargers cold in the first half. Lyon said neither team had great scoring chances and that it wasn't a surprise the half ended with

The action became more intense in the second half. Lyon said both sides took turns dominating. Finally, Northville broke through with 18 minutes left.

Halfback Kristen Wasalaski centered a pass from left wing to Androsian. The senior forward one-timed the ball with a hard shot that hit the top crossbar and went in.

With a 1-0 lead, Northville had 15 minutes to hold on. Thanks to goalkeeper Megan Cauzillo, the Mustangs did just that.

Livonia's best scoring chance came with about 10 minutes left. Margaret Wirth broke loose from the Northville defense and sent a hard shot past Cauzillo. But the ball hit the top crossbar and trickled away.

"That was their big chance," said Lyon. As for Cauzillo, the coach said she was worth her weight in gold Saturday.

She had the best game of her life," Lyon said. "She had three saves that were goals."

Northville was not tested again in the final minutes. Still, Lyon said he thought the game would never end. "Those were the longest 15 minutes of my life," he added.

NORTHVILLE 2, WOODHAVEN 1

The Mustangs made it to the region final by beating Woodhaven in overtime May 31.

Northville had to rally to win the game. Woodhaven scored the only goal of the first half with about 14 minutes left.

Mary Pat Bahl tied the game 10 minutes into the half on a header. She redirected a corner kick from Katie Kohl.

Runners set two school records

By SCOTT DANIEL Sports Editor

Talk about frustrating Northville High set two school track records Saturday at the state finals meet in Midland yet didn't earn a single point. The Mustangs set new marks in the 3,200-meter and 800-meter relay events.

"We didn't score but ran very well," said coach Dennis Faletti. "Event after event there were great performances. It was a good meet top to bottom."

Weather conditions had something to do with the level of performances. A clear, warm day gave runners every opportunity to reach their peak.

"It's been cold and wet the last few years," Faletti said of recent meets. "But the weather was really good this time."

Detroit Cass Tech was crowned the Class A champ. None of the Western Lakes schools finished in the top 12 of the state.

Northville sliced nearly three secnds off its school record in the 3,200-meter relay. The team of Todd Zayti, Bo Fowler, Scott Lloyd and Marc Ritter ran an 8:06.60. The Mustangs would have had to run about five seconds faster to place in the state's top eight.

"They ran it as well as they could run," said Faletti. "We were seeded 30th and finished in 10th."

Chris Gomersal, Farb Navi, Bob Oiler and Brian Dogonski set the standard in the 800 relay. They beat a two-year-old record by two-tenths of a second with a time of 1:31.10.

Josh Williams failed to place in the high jump at the state meet Saturday.

"They ran a good race," Faletti said. "Anytime you break a school record . . . you can't ask for much more.'

Josh Williams competed in the long jump. He made the opening height of 6-0, but failed to advance further.

The 400-meter relay team of Gomersal, Eric Moore, Oiler and Dogonski ran a 44.4. They would've needed a 43.6 to place.

"A couple of the exchanges weren't good," said Faletti. "In a relay like that, that's all it comes down to."

Saturday's meet concluded the season for the Mustangs. Northville finished 7-1 in dual meets this year and were third overall in the WLAA.

"I thought we had a good season," said Faletti. "We broke six varsity records. I'm pleased with what we did and accomplished this year. I think the kids are, too."

Northville will have to fill lots of holes next season to continue its success. Performers like Dogonski, Fowler, John Gatti, Oiler, Ritter and Williams will be hard to replace.

"We always seem to have some good kids to fall back on," said Faletti. "We'll have a new set of kids that will be ready."

Netters finish 13th in state finals meet

By SCOTT DANIEL Sports Editor

Not bad for a bunch of rookies. The Mustang tennis team competed in the state finals Saturday for the first time and walked away as the 13th best team in Class A. For Northville, it was a top-half finish in a field of 28 schools.

We look at this as a very positive thing," said longtime coach Dick Norton. "It's definitely something to build on for next year."

Okemos won the state title at the tournament held at the Midland Community Tennis Center. Norton said the state finals experience will make his team stronger for 1995. "It's a different brand of tennis than we've been playing in our league," he added.

The coach said he's trying to put Northville on the state tennis map. In that regard, the Mustangs will upgrade their schedule to include matches with powers like Ann Arbor Huron, Ann Arbor Pioneer and Okemos next season.

"You've got to play the big boys to improve," said Norton.

At any rate, the state tournament was divided into four singles and three doubles flights. Matt Schwagle was the first to see action for Northville.

The junior, playing at No. 1 sin-gles, faced No. 7 seed Greg Anderson of Rochester Adams. Schwagle fell in straight sets, 6-4, 6-3.

At second singles, Ryan Moak won his first match against Dearborn's Hemerick Garpman 6-1, 6-2. He was then eliminated by top seed Steve Schubert of East Lansing, 6-0, 6-0.

Nick McCreedy met a similar fate at third singles. He took a 6-3, 6-3 win over Perrer Shah of Sterling Heights in the first round. Top seed Ming Chien of Okemos then knocked him out 6-2, 6-1.

Dave Anderson took his opening match to three sets but lost to Todd Scallen of Grosse Pointe South, 6-3, 1-6, 6-4. Northville made a strong showing in doubles action, however.

Matt Telepo and Ravi Mujumdar lost 6-3, 7-5 in the first round at top singles to Chris Robinson and Jay Morrison of Grand Haven. Nik Srinlvasan and Scott Anderson made it all the way to the quarter finals at No. 2 doubles

They beat Ben Lindhout and Chris Scholter of Grand Rapids Christian 6-2, 2-6, 6-1. Then the Northville dub whipped Scott Marlou and Andy Jenson of Midland 6-2, 6-0. The top ranked team of Andy Lipnik and Mike Reichel of Ann Arbor Pioneer eliminated them from the tournament-

Arjun Srinivasan and Ganesh Nayakwadi closed the Mustangs day. They won their first two matches before falling to the second seeded team from Traverse City, Ryan Artderson and Casey Conn 6-2, 3-6, 4-6.

"Our guys were extremely competitive," said Norton.

The coach said his doubles teams improved dramatically throughout the season.

The doubles teams really cam through for us," Norton added.

Softballers fall 7-0 to Brighton in district

By SCOTT DANIEL Sports Editor

Quick and painless. That might be the best thing to say about Northville's 7-0 softball loss to Brighton Saturday in the first round of the state tournament.

Playing at Northville, the Bulldogs' Kristen Miller two-hit the Mustanes en route to the shutout. The hurler. actually, was the story of the district tournament.

After disposing of Northville, Miller went on to throw a one-hitter against Novi as the Bulldogs advanced to regionals. Mustang coach Frank Friemund was impressed with Miller. "She wasn't overpowering," he said. "But she was good."

The coach also was impressed with Brighton.

"They were really solid with a lot of team speed," said Friemund. "Their defense was also great."

Brighton did most of its damage in the third inning by scoring six times. Friemund said the Buildogs' team speed put a lot of stress on his defense.

"A lot of Brighton's hits came from their speed," he said.

That's not to say the Bulldogs didn't hit with authority.

They had some good hitters," Friemund added. They were the best hitting team we faced all year - without a doubt."

Northville pitcher Kari Krupansky, who usually averages about a strikeout per inning, didn't whiff any Bulldog batters. Friemund said Brighton got ready for her curveball by moving up in the batter's box.

"They were really sold with a lot of team speed. Their defense was also great."

FRANK FRIEMUND Softball coach

"They got to the ball before it broke," he said.

Northville totaled four baserunners for the game. Melissa Petrosky and Andrea Moretti had the Mustangs' two hits.

The Mustangs finished the season with a 14-16 overall record. With a very young lineup, most of whom will return next year, Friemund said Northville will be heard from.

"I can't imagine that we won't do anything but get better," he said. NORTHVILLE 2 SOUTHFIELD CHRISTIAN 1

The Mustangs closed the regular season on the road Thursday with one of their better performances.

"It was a well-played game by both sides," Friemund said. "It was exciting." Indeed.

Northville trailed 1-0 heading into the top of the seventh inning. Sara Roth reached on an error to start the winning rally.

Moretti then singled to put runners on the corners. Southfield's catcher missed a third strike allowing Roth to score.

Bradley takes fourth in long jump

By SCOTT DANIEL Sports Editor

Alana Bradley joined the list of Michigan's elite long jumpers Saturday.

The senior placed fourth in Class A with a personal best jump of 17 feet 7 inches. According to coach Ann Turnbull, Bradley put it all together. "It was her last jump," she said. "She jumped 16-9 her first two tries.

"It was very dramtic. She really concentrated, pulled back and had to focus on her last jump."

Bradley missed taking home allstate honors by one place and about an inch. Turnbull said the top three finishers make all-state. Marla Benford of Detroit Martin Luther King won the event with 18-0.

Northville's Wendy Forster, who was all-state a year ago, didn't make it past preliminary rounds Saturday. The Mustangs competed in several other events, but without as much success.

The 400-meter relay team of Katie Rompel, Forster, Bradley and Carrie Dalziel were 12th with a time of 50.4 seconds, Northville's best of year. The time was just three-tenths of a second out of eighth place.

This year's state meet was very fast, in general, Turnbull said. We had greater depth of competition this year," she added. "It was incredible.

Tammy Cook made the opening height of 4-9 in the high jump. She was eliminated when the bar was raised to five feet, however.

in the 800-meter run, Adrienne

The coach said she was hoping the Mustangs might be able to score a few more points at the meet.

"I felt disappointed for the girls," Turnbull added. "They wanted to do better at the state."

Forster and Bradley are just two of more than a dozen Mustangs who will leave the fold after graduation this spring. Turnbull said she be-lieves Northville will be competitive next season, but will have different strengths.

A little-know personality disorder

What do Marilyn Monroe, Lawrence of Arabia, Diane Keaton's character from Looking for Mr. Goodbar and the Glen Close character from Fatal Attraction have in common? They all exhibit characteristics of what we now know as borderline personality disorder. Although most people know about depression, alcoholism, neurosis and other psychological problems, most people are unaware of borderline personality disorder. It affects 10 million people and may be responsible for up to one quarter of all patients a therapist might see.

Borderline personality disorder first was recognized in 1980 by the American Psychiatric Association. The name is not accurate since people with the condition are not on the border of anything. The name, however, has remained. The disorder is more common in women than in men.

There are eight characteristics of BPD. It is not necessary for all eight characteristics to be present to make the diagnosis; usually five of the eight are required.

Recreation Briefs

1. Unstable and intense relationships ----Borderline patients develop strong emotional relationships with friends, families and lovers. These relationships may vary between extreme positive feelings of love to the opposite feelings of hate or rejection. Borderline patients tend to see people as either all good or all bad. Inbetween feelings are hard for them to maintain and may not exist.

2. Impulsiveness - Borderline patients may have problems with drug or chemical abuse, gambling, shoplifting, excessive spending, overeating, anorexia or promiscuous sex.

3. Mood shifts - Borderline patients can have extreme mood swings. They can go from feeling normal to severe depression in a matter of minutes. Usually these shifts last a few hours.

4. Inappropriate anger - Borderline patients may suddenly develop intense and unexpected anger. Breaking things, throwing things and physical violence may erupt suddenly following some minor incident.

5. Recurrent suicidal threats or selfmutilating behavior.

6. Identity disturbance - Borderline patients may wonder who they are in terms of career decisions, values, relationships, selfimage and their sexuality.

7. Boredom - Long-standing feelings of boredom or emptiness occur frequently in the borderline patient.

Borderline patients do not like being along and fear being abandoned.

Individuals with borderline personality disorder may leave a wake of destruction in their relationships with others. Sometimes the friend or loved one may seek therapy rather than the borderline patient. Frequently the loved one may express to the therapist, "I'm going crazy, what am I doing wrong?"

The cause of borderline personalaity disorder is not know. There are biological and genetic factors involved. Learning disabilities, attention deficit disorder and brain chemical imbalances (serotonin) have been associated with the condition. A family history of psychological or sexual abuse, parental loss or other early major problems may be found in borderline patients.

Treatment for borderline patients may consist of counseling and medications. Counseling is important for those who are emotionally involved with them since relationships with borderline patients may resemble a roller-coaster ride of intense, confusing and frustrating emotions.

For more information the following text is recommended: I Hate You - Don't Leave Me by Jerold Kreisman, M.D., and Hal Straus. It is written for the layperson and can aid in understanding this very frustrating, difficult and common problem.

Novi names new basketball coach

By SCOTT DANIEL Sports Editor

Novi High has a new girls varsity basketball coach.

Dennis Cichonski recently took the helm of the Wildcat's ship and will begin working with the team immediately. A Farmington Hills resident, the post is his first head varsity assignment.

"I've always respected the program," said Cichonski. "There's good parental support and disciplined, hard-working kids. It's the kind of program I'd like to be involved with."

Cichonski replaces John Hoffman. The former coach was fired because of a lack of students in the program shortly after last season.

The Wildcats won the Kensington Valley Conference in Hoffman's final campaign with a 15-6 record. He was slightly below .500 in his four years at Novi.

Interviewing for the position began months ago. Cichonski beat out nearly 30 candidtates for the job.

According to Cichonski, the interviewing process was quite extensive. Athletic director John Fundukian, Novi High principal Art Miller, players from the past and present all took turns questioning him, he said.

"It was very thorough," Cichonski commented. "But I enjoyed it."

In a short press release, Fundukian said he had the right stuff for the iob.

"Dennis Cichonski has a great deal of experience and will be a positive addition to the student-athlete experience at Novi High School," he said.

Cichonski is in his eigth year of coaching.

A hospital equipment salesperson, his first chance to coach came with a Catholic youth organization. He went on to coach at the middle school level before moving on to high school athletics.

Cichonski has worked as a freshman and junior varsity girls coach at Farmington Hills Mercy as well as a varsity assistant. He has been a boys junior varsity coach and varsity as- holding informal meetings with sistant at Redford Catholic Central.

"I continue to enjoy doing it," he said. "That's why I decided to pursue the varsity job at Novi." Coaching is a contiunal learning process, Cichonski said. He mentioned that he's tried to learn lessons from his colleagues on the sideline. "You run into a lot of good coaches," he added. Expanding Novi's program will be Cichonski's top priority. Adding players at the freshman,

JV and varsity level will be a top goal for the coming season this fall. The Wildcats have carried about nine players at each level in past years.

Working to bring up Novi middle program will also come into focus. Cichonski said he will conduct clinics and workshops for the youngsters. "We're looking to increase participation (at all levels)," he said. As for the varisty squad, Cichonski said he and his players have a lot of learning to do about each other. That process was set to begin this week by players.

Cichonski said he's already familiar with several of the Wildcats. Christine Edwards and Megan Barton played for him years ago in the Catholic organization.

The coach said he hasn't set any goals thus far for his first year. Cichonski's emphasis will be to develop each player to their maximum potential.

"If we can do the basics," he said, good things will follow."

Cichonski will get his feet wet later this month at the Northville summer league. Novi will compete with a number of local schools from June 20-30. A team camp at Western Michigan University will also help the two sides to get comfortable with each other.

The coach describes himself as a disciplinarian. Cichonski said his new players will know the ground rules before the season begins.

"I'll let them know what ticks me off." he said.

Brokers' kickbacks a serious problem

By James M. Woodard Copley News Service

Kickbacks to real estate brokers from title companies, lenders, escrow companies and others are an increasingly serious problem throughout the country.

Such illega¹ payoffs result in needless extra costs for consumers, who ultimately pay all business costs. In effect, it inflates fees paid by home buyers and seli-ers and undermines healthy competition among title companies or other firms that may or may not offer such fees.

The practice of paying referral fees. kickbacks or other types of under-the-table payments, was once very common. Today it's forbidden by rules and regulations of the Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act (RESPA). But illegal payments still surface nationwide.

Those rules, enforced by the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), are being studied and revised. The proposed revisions were to be finalized by April 11, but it likely will be early fall before they are official.

The changes, however, will not effect the firm rule against kick-backs, said David Williamson, director of the RESPA Enforcement Unit of HUD, which he said is strictly enforced.

The Raven crows about compact space used well

By James McAlexander Copley News Service

Compact in size, the Raven is a split-level contemporary home désigned for construction on a gentle downslope to the rear. Lap siding, multiple rooflines and multipaned windows enhance the ĥome's appeal.

Access to the two-car garage and R.V. parking pad are at the back. The family living area and master suite are a half-flight up from the garage. Two secondary bedrooms and a bathroom are another halfflight higher, over the garage. One bedroom is larger than the other and boasts a bigger closet. A linen eating bar provides additional counter. Utilities and a pantry are but a few steps away. The utility room comes complete with a folddown ironing board and a deep. It is also convenient to the stairs that lead up from the garage.

The owners' suite is well isolated from the hustle and bustle of the great room by a long hallway lined with closets—one for coats and one for storage. This hall begins at the entry and leads directly to a door at the back that opens onto a formal deck. An exterior stairway there descends to ground level next to the garage.

Amenities in the owners' suite include a roomy walk-in closet and Bulb plants and ground covers highlight Louise Ward's South Lyon rock garden in the spring. Other blooming plants, including lots of perennials, take over the colorful job throughout the rest of the growing season.

By Marilyn Herald Special Writer

Start small if a beautiful rock garden is your goal.

That's the oft-repeated advice from experts on rock gardens.

And if you have always thought of a rock garden as a heap of stones covered by brightly blooming perennial ground covers like phlox and sedum, it's time to expand your thinking.

Today's rock gardens play an integral part in overall landscaping, blending into the scheme of the design and blooming gloriously from natural banks at the rear or sides of well-manicured lawns.

Rocks provide a lovely backdrop for prolific and beautiful bulbs in the spring, as well as perennial bloomers and ground covers the rest of the growing season. Louise Ward of South Lyon, a retired music teacher, said that her rock garden could not be called "traditional" because it includes much more than the usual Alpine plants.

As well as the rock garden "staples," this veteran rock gardener has tucked in a wide variety of blooms that begin in the early spring with multi-hued hyacinths, daffodils and tulips.

These glorious blooms are replaced later in the season by perennials and some annuals that carry the colorful flowering tradition right up until the first killing frost.

lot is completely flat, raised beds or plantings along a patio or terrace are a couple of options that are pleasing to the eye.

Ward had the largest stones set by the landscaper. "I have to leave those right where he set them because I can't possibly move them," she said.

them, sne said. The very best rock gardens imitate the pat-terns of nature, according to a Harrowsmith Gardener's Guide on Rock Gardens, edited by Katharine Ferguson and compiled by a variety of master gardeners.

When beginning to establish a rock garden, it is recommended that the site is excavated to a one-foot depth. And if working on a slope, the gardener should grade the sub-soil into the terraces or contours the garden will take.

A firm bed of coarse sand or pea gravel should be established, and the stones set and soil filled in as the work on the garden progresses.

Clay soil is not recommended for traditional rock garden plants. Alpines, the true rock garden plants, grow best in thin, weed-free soil with plenty of coarse material so they can grow in a well-aerated, well-drained environment.

Weed control is always a concern with rock . gardens. Experts recommend building walk-ways into the garden so that the pulling of ways into the gatter so that the part weeds can be done easily. These walkways should be constructed of the same type of stoens used in the rock gar-den itself so that they appear to be part of the natural setting.

Future maintenance should always be kept in mind when planning the rock garden. And closet on this level supplies the bedrooms and the bathroom.

This is a relaxed, informal plan, designed for families who look at the traditional living room and dining room as an expensive waste of space. Group activities and socializing take place in a spacious and bright great room with a corner woodstove.

Brick walls behind the stove absorb heat and continue to radiate warmth long after the fire burns itself out. A bayed eating nook expands the area while an a private bathroom with oversized shower. One corner of the suite is brightened and expanded by a rectangular bay, ideal for sewing, sitting or reading. The entire space could also be outfitted with a window seat, if that sounds appealing.

And Ward's blooms, which brighten her garden throughout the spring and summer, also glow indoors year-round as dried and preserved specimens.

The flowers are used to created dried arrangements for herself and friends.

For the novice rock gardener, selecting the right site is the very first and most important step.

As well as the site itself, a gardener should also consider how the rock garden will be seen from the home and other vantage points.

Preventing plant diseases

The location should be designed to display plants in an anuthenic environment, as well as present the rocks and flowers in pleasing proportion to avoid the appearance of a pile of stones.

Most suitable for these gardens would be stones of the same type, especially those gathered from the site itself; however, if there aren't enough of these available, a landscaper can help.

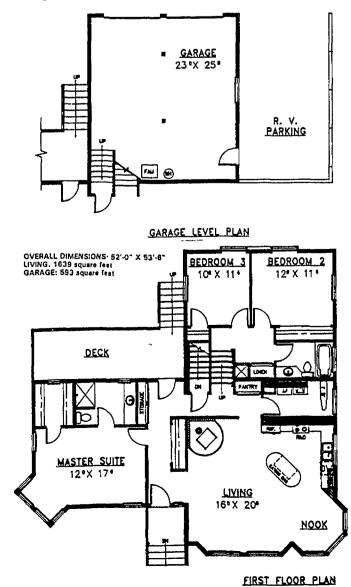

"When I started, I had a man dump a pile of rocks at the top of my retaining wali," Ward said. "I rolled the stones down where I wanted them, one-by-one."

it is best to remember that the idea of a welllandscaped rock garden is to make it appear as natural as possible.

Good advanced planning and plant selection can also provide added benefits such as visits from humming birds and other feathered creatures. Hummingbirds are especially fond of deep-throated flowers, such as columbine.

Ward agrees.

They (hummingbirds) really like my coral bells and wild columbines," she said, adding that her rock garden attracts about 20 varieties of birds.

through their bark. Is this really true?

A. Absolutely! It's true that oxygen, including gases, passes through the outer bark to and from the living cells of the inner layers of a tree. This is the way trees breathe, and this is how it works.

The gases move through stem pores called "lenticels," whose function is equivalent to breathing cells found on leaves. The size, shape and distribution of lenticels, of course, vary with the type of tree. For example, lenticels, if one looks closely, can be seen fairly easily on trunks of young trees like birch or cherry that have smooth bark.

Lenticels usually appear as scattered bumps or small dots that are often mistaken for scale insects. However, the roughness of a trunk's maturing bark eventually covers ithem.

Resilvering mirrors not an easy task

By Gene Gary Copley News Service

9. I have a beautiful mirror set in a custom-designed and crafted shell frame. It is rather large and very heavy. Somehow moisture has seeped through the backing and now there are several tarnished spots in the mirror that mar its looks.

Is there a way I can resilver, or spot resilver the mirror to correct this problem?

A. Resilvering mirrors involves toxic, hardto-obtain chemicals, so it is not a do-it-yourself project. However, if the damage is not too extensive, there are some touch-up techniques that might work.

On discolored or tarnished spots on the back of the mirror, use the abrasive side of a kitchen sponge to scrub off the discoloration. Try to avoid enlarging the affected area.

Patch these spots with a piece of mylar film (available at art supply stores) or a piece of heavy-duty aluminum foil. Keep the foil or mylar as smooth as possible. No adhesives are necessary if the patch can be held in place by the mirror backing.

If this isn't practical, coat the back of the foil and mirror with one or two coatings of shellac and allow to dry. Do not use glue or tape; you run risk of further damage to the silver backing.

Tmy spots of discoloration can be carefully removed and the bare spots touched up with a silver artist's paint. Often the deterioration of the silvering caused by moisture is only around the edges of the mirror.

If this is true in your case, it may be possible to simply add a white or off-white mat to the frame that would hide the silver eroded edges of the mirror.

You would have to be the judge of how the addition of matting would complement your frame and the mirror. If the results of these techniques are not satisfactory, your best bet is have the mirror professionally resilvered. Check the cost before proceeding. If the mirror is not beveled and of excellent quality, it might be better to simply have it replaced.

From your description it sounds like the frame, not the mirror is the treasured piece.

9. I have a simulated marble sink and counter in our bathroom. Over time it has become lightly stained, and regular cleaners no longer wipe away the spots. I am hesitant to use anything stronger. Do you have any recommendations on cleaning and polishing this type of counter top?

A. Synthetic or cultured marble is a poured resin and the primary factor to keep in mind regarding cleaning products is to stay away from anything abrasive such as scouring powder. Strong chemical solutions, even household bleach, also can damage the sur-

Try nonabrasive cleaners such as 409, Cinch, Fantastic, Simple Green, Soft & Scrub or a fiberglass cleaner such as Gel Gloss for stubborn spotting. If necessary (for major stains) you can lightly sand the surface with 600 grit sandpaper (wet/dry) used wet.

Test a small, inconspicuous area first to make sure that your are not damaging the surface. Follow the sanding with an application of a product like Sherman Williams White Lighting, an automotive compound, which should be buffed out with an electric buffer. Even in general care, car wax, followed by a good buffing will add luster and help protect the surface from spotting and staining.

Repeat periodically as the wax protection diminishes with wear. With normal use, twice a year should be enough.

If your counter surface is gouged or badly marred, these techniques will do little to restore it. However, you can have a professional sand the top and coat it with a catalyzed acrylic urethane. Check with a bathtub and sink refinishing firm for estimates.

9. We are planning to remodel our home and would like to put up new siding on the exterior. Which product would be best for durability, aluminum or vinyl siding?

A. They are about the same. Vinyl resists denting, which can occur easily on aluminum siding. Vinyl products can be more susceptible to cracking.

Vinyl is becoming increasingly popular for making gutter systems, shutters, doors, rail fencing, etc. You have a wide variety of colors and textures to choose from and vinyl will not rot, peet or rust. However, from the standpoint of siding, the quality control is so good on both aluminum and vinyl that it is pretty much a decision of personal preference.

Quimper dishes no whimper wishes

By Anne McCollam Copley News Service

9. I recently inherited two coquille (shell) dishes from my aunt. There is the mark "HR Quimper" on the front and "HR" on the back of each dish.

I think my aunt inherited these coquille dishes from her mother-in-law in the 1920s.

Could you please tell me the possible date when these items were made and the approximate value of each?

A. Tin-glazed earthenware has been made in the French town Quimper since the 17th century. It is still being produced today. Quimper faience is well known for the hand-painted scenes of Breton peasants, the sea and geometric or floral designs.

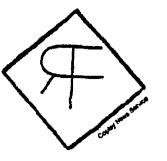

Your coquille dishes were made by the Henriot factory, Quimper, France, sometime between 1895 and 1922. Each shell dish would probably be worth about $200 to $275 in good condition.

9. The enclosed mark is on the bottom of a glass vase that I have. The vase is 5 inches high and has a matte finish. It is decorated with daisies, foliage and gold tracery.

What can you tell me about my vase?

A. Your vase is an example of glassware called Royal Flemish. It was patented in 1894 by Albert Steffin for the Mount Washington Glass Co. in New Bedford, Mass. A network of enameled lines divided the surface of the glass, giving it the appearance of stained glass ed with flowers, birds, Roman coins and dragons.

Your vase was made around 1900. Its value would probably be about $1,700 to $2,000.

Q. I am trying to find out the value of a Kestner Gibson doll. She is marked "No. 172." Her head and arms are bisque and she is approximately 21 inches high. She has glass sleep eyes and a closed mouth.

I hope you can give me an idea of her value and when she was made.

A. J. D. Kestner manufactured dolls from 1816 to 1938 in Walterhausen, Thuringia, Germany. In 1910 Kestner's "Lady Dolls," also known as Gibson Girls, were featured in Ladies Home Journal

Your Lady Doll was made around 1900. It would probably be worth about $4,500 to $5,000 with the original clothes and in good condition.

Q. I have a bronze figure of Much of his work was exhibited Napoleon sitting in a chair with the map of Europe on his lap. It is 11 inches tall. He is wearing a Spartacus and Napoleon were just two of his most recognized pieces. very ornate cloak. On the side it F. Barbedienne is the foundry that is signed "F. Barbedienne,

Any information you can provide would be appreciated.

A. Your figure was cast in bronze from a sculpture by the Italian sculptor Vincenzo Vela. He lived from 1820 to 1891. Vela was considered to be an outstanding 19th century Italian sculptor. He was known for his portrait sculptures and memorials.

clarity and attractive designs was made from 1896 to 1957 in Newark, Ohio. In 1958 the Imperial Glass Company of Bellaire, Ohio, bought some of their molds and the rights to the trademark.

Imperial discontinued using the "H" trademark after 1968.

Brokers' kickbacks violate the law

"The states where most violations are now surfacing are California, Florida and Texas," Williamson said. "We're now investigating 60 cases at points throughout California alone. We're currently targeting much of our enforcement effort in those three states.

In about 40 percent of cases being investigated, cash is used to pay off people for referrals. The other cases involve a range of lures, including free trips, tickets to ballgames, food for open-house functions, payment of office rent or advertising.

One recent violation resulted in a lawsuit against a title company and 58 participating brokers in the Philadelphia area. The settlement totaled $490,204.

685-1588

In that case, brokers received fees and commissions ranging from 25 percent to 35 percent of the title insurance premium. One brokerage firm collected about $100,000 in "referral fees" from a title company.

"In something as complicated as a home-sale closing, it's important for consumers to know that HUD will enforce the law that protects them in the settlement process," a HUD spokesman said.

Kickbacks and other unearned fees are a serious violation of the law."

The National Association of Realtors urges its member brokers to avoid kickback situations. "NAR firmly opposes the payment of fees based solely on simple referrals," a special NAR report stated.

To protect themselves, an increasing number of brokers have their property seller and buyer clients sign a disclosure form that states they are not required to use an affiliated firm for real estate settlement services. The forms often advise the clients specifically that they have a right to choose among all providers of title insurance, closing services and mortgages.

This type of disclosure allows buyers and sellers to "comparison shop" and encourages healthy competition among settlement service providers. And this, in turn, results in lower prices and better service for consumers, the HUD spokesman said.

Questions may be used in future columns; personal responses should not be expected. Send inquiries to James M. Woodard, Copley News Service, P.O. Box 190, San Diego, CA 92112-0190.

Kin Fredericks front of her Seneral Store.

Kim's specializes in gifts

By SCOTT DANIEL Staff Writer

Where can you go in Novi to find anything from exotic tuxedo shirts, to hand-dipped apples, jewelry, stuffed animals and an Elvis candle? Kim's General Store.

Located at 42030 Grand River between Meadowbrook and Novi roads, the year-old shop offers everything from fine to gag gifts at an affordable price. According to owner Kim Fre-dericks, the aim of her general store is to provide patrons with a fun, re-

"I wanted to create an atmosh-phere that feels good," she said. "I wanted to be able to have something nice that people would enjoy. "It's low-key."

Indeed.

Hardwood floors and the modest way in which the merchandise is displayed gives Kim's the comfortable feel of a store from decades ago. Like the old-time shopkcepers, Fredericks' knows the products she sells.

"I know exactly what's here and where it came from," she said. "I love (the fact that) I picked every piece of merchandise in here."

A West Bloomfield native, Fredericks has been a Novi resident for the past three years. She said she couldn't think of any place she'd rather have her store than in her new town.

"I love the community," said Fredericks. We knew we wanted to have stay into tune with the changing our gift shop in Novi."

After gaining a bachelor's degree in international business from the University of Michigan, the 25-year-old worked for General Motors as a car repossessor. It didn't take long for Fredericks to decide that being her own boss was the way to go.

"I always wanted a gift shop," she commented. "I knew I would love to buy merchandise and have other people like what I bought."

With a little help from her family, Kim's General Store became a reality in April of 1993. Fredericks and her husband, Dave, have worked long and hard to get the business off the ground.

"You are your own boss but there's a lot of pressure," she admitted. Fredericks said she has learned a great deal since opening the store. "You learn as you go along," she added. "It's constantly something new.' Finding out exactly what the customer wants and needs keeps the job challenging, said Fredericks. As the only employee, she said it's easier to market. "Customers like dealing with the owner," Fredericks explained, "and knowing I can get anything for them." And that's the truth. Merchandise at Kim's General Store comes from all over the country and even Europe.

A popular item from overseas are the "smokers" wooden figures. Coming from Germany, the figures are incense burners and the smoke comes out through the mouth or pipe.

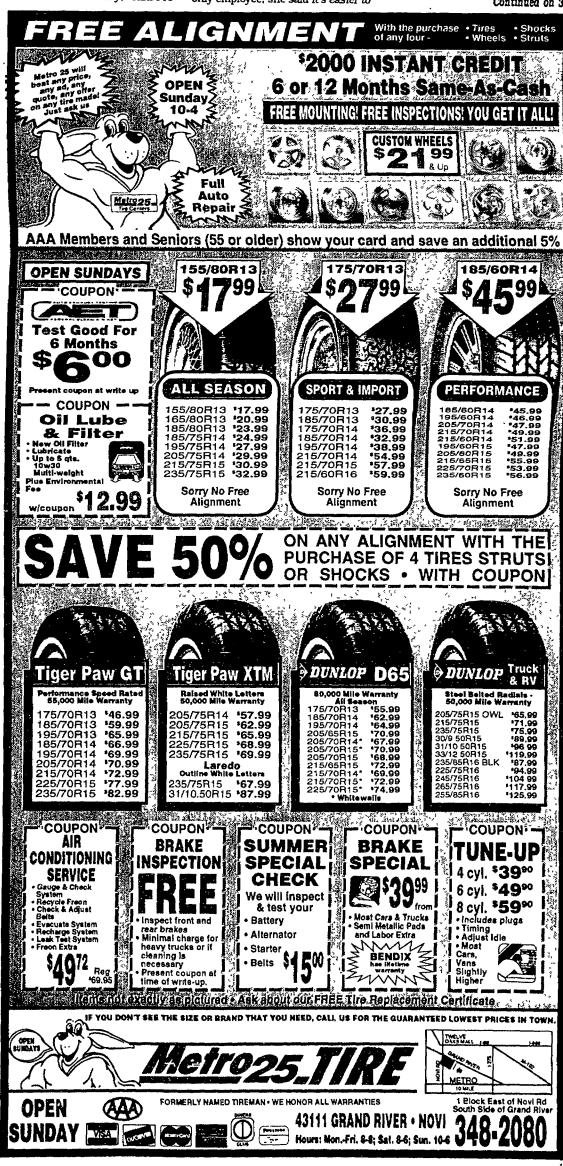

Many other items are on hand to 1 add a touch of warmth to your home. Home-made wreaths, potpourri and hand-painted tiles are good examples. Specialty food items like a Mrs. Prindable's Apples, coffee, soups, breads and candies can also be found.

The Novi shop has a complete line i of Mary Engleboreit cards and frames as well. Cards from the Far Side and many others are available, too. A children's section offers foam-puzzles, stuff animals and kids books from Klutz Press. Kim Gen-

Vets can get valuable benefits

If you are a veteran or expect to complete your military service in the near future, there are significant benefits available to you. In recognition of the 50th Anniversary of D-Day, the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants points out the following financial and tax benefits provided to veterans by the U.S. government.

RE-EMPLOYMENT ASSISTANCE

If you served on activy duty and received an honorable discharge, your former employer must restore your old tob to you or offer you a comparable position. If you can no longer perform your former job because you became disabled while serving in the military, your employer must offer you another position of comparable seniority, status and pay. To qualify for reinstatement, you must contact your previous employer within 90 days after your separate from active duty. If you decide not to return to your old job, you can go to your state employment office and receive assistance. Local employment representatives provide veterans with job counseling, testing and employment referrals to job openings and training

Veterans are also eligible for unemployment benefits. This can tide you over while looking for a new job. In Michigan, the amount and duration of benefits are determined under the same terms as regular unemployment benefits.

EDUCATION BENEFITS

If you opt to return to school after completing your military duty, you may qualify for financial assistance. Educational benefits vary, however, depending on when you entered military service.

The Montgomery GI Bill provides educational benefits for veterans who entered military service for the first time after June 30, 1985. If you served on active duty for three years, or completed two years active duty plus four years in the Selected Reserve or National Guard, you can receive $350 a month in basic benefits for 36 months. If you enlisted for less than three years, the benefit is lower. Keep in mind that you are only eligible for these benefits if you agreed to have your basic pay reduced for the first 12 months of active duty and meet a minimum education requirement.

Money Management

If you served on active duty between Jan. 1, 1977 and July 1, 1985 you may be able to receive benefits under the Veterans' Educational Assistance Program (VEAP) provided you made a contribution to the program prior to April 1, 1987, and received an honorable discharge.

When you use VEAP benefits to pursue an approved course of education or training, the United States provides $2 for every $1 you contributed to the program.

easier for veterans as a result of the GI Housing Loan program. For starters, no down payment is required unless the amount of the loan exceeds the value of the property. What's more, the interest rate on the loan is generally lower than conventional rates and it is fixed for the term of the loan.

Purchasing a home can be a little gi housing loans

Veterans are responsible for arranging the loan themselves and can apply to banks, savings and loan associations or mortgage companies. The exact terms of the loan will vary depending on the lender.

PENSIONS

If you participated in at least 90 days of active military service, including at least one day during a period of war, and are disabled, you may also qualify for pension benefits. The'' benefit amount is based on your income, extent of your disability and number of dependents. Pensions are not paid to you if you have adequate assets available to provide for the support of you and your family.

Mitsubishi's 3000GT Spyder VR-4's retractable hardtop convertible is expected to be a hit with consumers.

Do your homework before buying a car

By Priscilla Lister Copley News Service

There may be no purchase more exciting than that of a new or new-to-you car. There may also be no purchase more intimidating, not only because of the high cost involved but because many of us don't know how to negotiate the price of such a major necessity.

But if you do some homework and some leg work, it can pay off not only with that new car but with some extra bucks in your pocket and a lot more pride from making a good deal.

SHOP AROUND

Determine the car you want before you even begin true negotiation. If your heart isn't already set on a particular model, do dealers — you can still bargain for most new deals.

The best ammunition, experts say, in getting the best deal on a new car is to visit a handful of dealers in your area.

"Introducing competition is the best way to get the lowest price on a new car," says Jack Gillis in "The Car Book" (Harper-Perennial). "What that means is that you have to convince three to four dealers that you are in fact prepared to buy a car; that you have decided on the make, model and features; and that your decision now rests solely on which dealer will give you the best price."

This method works best only if you visit these dealers in person; don't try this negotiation over the phone, Gillis advises.

Another basic to negotiation is to know

To order, write to Consumer Reports New Car Price Service, Box 8005, Novi, MI 48376; price is $11 for one car, $20 for two, $27 for three and $5 for each additional.

You can also employ car-buying services, which will negotiate your deal for a fee, usually based on a percentage of the money saved off the sticker price. AAA offices can usually provide you with resources that provide these services.

A price-shopping service is offered by CarBargains, a consumer group of the nonprofit Center for the Study of Services in Washington. For $135, CarBargains will send you dealer quote sheets from at least five dealers in your area who have bid against each other to sell you the car.

You also receive a printout with the dealer's cost figures for the car and each

• Shop at the end of the month, says Gillis, when salespeople are more willing to meet sales goals.

• Buy last year's model in the fall, which may be only slightly different from this year's model, and dealers are anxious to get rid of them to make room for the latest.

• Most experts also recommend against trading in your old car on a new one.

"You can almost always do better by selling your old car yourself than by trading it in," says Gillis.

Check your local classified ads to give you an idea of your old car's value, recommends the AAA book. "You also can check used-car price guides at your bank or local library (and some AAA clubs)," says Gillis.

BUYING A USED CAR

some homework to make an informed choice.

There are several books and magazines that rate cars for safety features, maintenance costs, fuel economy and other considerations.

Many of these books will also tell you which cars are so similar that you should probably consider models from three different manufacturers before you make a decision.

When you've determined the specific car you want, do some leg work to get your best deal.

Even with the increase in the "no-dicker sticker" — those no-haggle sticker prices on more and more models at more and more how much the car actually cost the dealer. "The difference between a car's sticker price and the price a dealer actually paid is your negotiating range," says "The American Automobile Association (AAA) Auto Test" book (AAA).

The dealer's cost is the dealer invoice price, while the Manufacturer's Suggested Retail Price is the sticker price. The MSRP is listed on the car's sticker, but the dealer invoice is harder to learn. A pricing service, which most AAA offices can recommend, will tell you the dealer invoice on the model you want for a fee, typically about $12. Consumer Reports New Car Price Service is one such service that offers printouts for any make, model and feature package. option.

Contact CarBargains, 733 15th St., NW, Suite 820CB, Washington, DC 20005. Include the exact make, model and year of the car you want, your name, address and phone and the $135. You should hear from them in about three weeks.

When you're doing the negotiating yourself, avoid add-on packages and learn the difference between the cost of options you want and those provided on lot models.

"You can often get a better deal on the car the dealer has on the lot," says Gillis. "However, these cars usually have expensive options you may not need or want."

Some other basic tips for buying a new

Since the average new car today costs more than $17,000 and depreciates almost 30 percent in just the first year, a used car that averages about $8,000 today may be your better bargain.

"Four-door sedans and station wagons usually provide the best used-car value," says "Consumer Reports 1994 Buying Guide." They've probably been driven more prudently than sports cars, and convertibles and luxury models remain pricey even when used.

Also check various ratings on older cars from such publications as Consumer

Reports, or older editions of new-car ratings books often housed in your library.

"Franchised new car dealers are among the most trustworthy sources for late-model used cars," says the Consumer Reports book. They usually keep only the best tradeins for resale and often provide warranty services, too. Independent used-car dealers offer lower prices but the merchandise may be less dependable; at least pick an independent that's been in business a long time.

"You can often get the best deal if you buy a car from an individual ... but you normally get no guarantee, so it's best to buy from someone you know and trust," says Consumer Reports.

Whether you buy a new or used car, definitely take it for a test drive for at least an hour, say the experts. Here's when you get to know how it starts, steers, brakes, shifts, sounds and feels.

And as for finding the best deal via buying or leasing, once again do some home-

The advantages of leasing are typically that you don't have to come up with a down payment, and your monthly payments are usually lower than if you're buying it outright.

And if you use the car for business, you can deduct some lease-payment expenses from your taxes - up to 100 percent if it's used exclusively for business.

But generally speaking, "leasing costs more than buying outright or financing," says Gillis, over the long term.

If you consider leasing, look into these important points:

Find out the annual mileage limit. Some lease contracts allow only 12,000 miles a year and charge 25 cents a mile above that usage.

Know how long you plan to keep the car and don't take a lease for longer. You could be penalized for paying it off early.

A closed-end lease guarantees the cost to buy the car at the end of the lease, if you have a purchase option; an open-end lease estimates that purchase cost, determining at lease-end, so an open-end lease is riskier.

Keep your vehicle safe and sound

Auto manufacturers may like to focus on the stats --- wheel base, miles per gallon, horsepower and so on — but the reality is that, for most consumers, it's the fluff that sells any given auto. As the lists of automotive luxury options continue to grow, it's tough - if not impossible — to keep current when purchasing a car. For up-to-the-minute modifications, however, there's a burgeoning market of specialty stores ready to meet the needs of a driver facing the dilemma of an underdressed auto. Some favorite innovations include the likes of fax machines and hands-free phones, in-trunk photocopiers, microwave ovens, electronic maps and TVs --- including some projection screen models.

While cassette players still are a common built-in feature, most car consumers are beginning to beg for a CD format.

Some car stereo systems have remote controls, especially the biggest CD players. Since they often rotate as many as 10 disks, such systems require remotes since they generally are placed out of reach in a trunk. The latest CD innovation, however, has to be dashboard car systems that rotate up to four mini discs — the 2-inch CD-quality format recently popularized in Walkman-style most popular security devices, and activate a horn or siren when triggered by motion, sound or contact. Some systems switch on automatically after you lock the doors; others require that you set the alarm yourself.

Other anti-theft options to consider:

• Vehicle tracking: A transmitter hidden in the car enables police to track the auto if it's stolen.

• Brake and steering wheel lock: This device locks the steering wheel to the brake pedal to immobilize the controls.

• Steering wheel lock: Features a steel rod that locks to the steering wheel to prevent wheels from turning.

• Ignition and steering column lock:

• Never leave keys in the ignition, the car unlocked or windows rolled down.

Never leave a car running unattended.
When going out of town, remove the coil wire.

• Park in well-lit areas.

• Turn wheels sharply to left or right to make it more difficult for a thief to tow the car.

If you have a garage, use it and lock it.
Have the car's vehicle identification number etched on car windows and major parts to make it easier for a stolen vehicle to be traced.

CARE CARE CARE Getting the most mileage from auto insurance

By Sharon Achatz

Copley News Service

Want to get the most mileage for your insurance dollar? Better shop around.

While asking friends and neighbors for recommendations is a good place to start, there's no guarantee the company they prefer will be your best bet.

Insurance quotes truly are unique to each individual, since they're based on how much you drive, where you drive, your age and sex, the make of your car and your driving record --- none of which can be exactly duplicated from one driver to the next.

What matters, then, is not how your rates compare with your neighbor's, but at which company you can get the lowest premiums based on your unique situation.

Of course, cheapest isn't always best ---occasionally low cost is the result of inadequate coverage. The best way to find a best bet, therefore, is to first decide how much coverage you need, then shop around for the best rates on that amount of coverage --- no more and no less.

Most experts recommend getting what commonly is known as 100-300-50 coverage: bodily injury coverage of at least $100,000 per person up to $300,000 per accident and property coverage of $50,000.

; ; , ;

٠,

If you live in a no-fault state, you may have to buy personal injury protection, which covers medical bills as well as a portion of lost wages if you're disabled in an accident.

In all other parts of the policy, look to cut costs.

By far the most effective way to slash costs is to compare telephone quotes from at least five companies.

Insurance is sold through a number of sources: New car dealers, agents representing a single company, brokers who sell for several firms, mail-order firms that sell via telephone numbers and group plans offered by insurance companies to organized groups such as unions.

When you've decided on the coverage you need, talk to a representative at each type of company. Ask for its price on a standard policy, such as 100-300-50 liability, collision and comprehensive with $250 deductible, and uninsured motorists coverage.

Make a list of companies contacted, then keep written notes of the various price quotations. And don't forget to ask each firm

Sitt watiers, there, êç yryê Çirere riye. rtiss conserve with har weither and a cont nă stricti erezen estruit 302338222 522 4223 Res saged grade affired e an tha an an an tha an an the an an about various discounts that might apply, including the likes of: Student, mature driver, nonsmoker or nondrinker, passive restraints such as air bags, anti-theft devices, good driver, car pooling and multiple policies ---such as auto and home owner's insurance with the same firm.

Once you've purchased a policy, you'll save money by notifying the company immediately of any changes that may lower your premiums. For example, if you sell a car, your teen-age son goes away to college or you move from the city to the suburbs.

Apart from cutting unnecessary coverage, pethaps the best way to put the brakes on high premiums is to be a low-risk driver --- so stay out of traffic court and accidents.

If, however, you find yourself in an accident, here are expert suggestions on what to do:

• Make a first-aid check of all people involved. Call police and, if necessary, emergency and medical services.

• If possible and legal, move the vehicle out of the traveled roadway. It is against the law in some states to move vehicles from where an accident occurred.

 Exchange information with other drivers, including names, addresses, drivers' license numbers, license plate numbers, phone numbers and insurance information. Also get names, addresses and phone number of all witnesses.

• Make a quick diagram of the accident scene, including where each vehicle's occupants were seated, each vehicle's direction of travel and lane. Also note the date, time and weather conditions. If you have a camera handy, take photos.

• Report the accident promptly to the police and your insurance agent, and cooperate fully in any investigation.

 Some insurance companies require that you get three estimates from body shops prior to making any repairs; others insist you use their own estimators at company-sponsored drive-in centers to determine the cost of repairs.

 In order to maximize your insurance payment, keep careful records of all expenses, including the likes of lost wages, rentalcar expenses, fees for a temporary housekeeper made necessary by accident-related injuries. Some insurance coverages pay for such costs.

Enthusiasts seek new and vintage machines

By Sharon Achatz

Copley News Service

Ready to get your motor running? With the variety of motorcycles now available, there's never been a better time to head out on the highway in search of the perfect machine.

One of motorcycling's most marvelous aspects is its sheer diversity.

There seems to be a two-wheeler to suit every rider, no matter his taste: from macho muscle to sleek electronic siren, from greaser hog to vintage classic.

Evaluation of any machine for purchase will take consumers into the realm of suspensions and shocks, horsepower and handling, mufflers and miles per gallon. In pondering the purchase of a vintage bike, the savvy shopper also needs to consider qualities such as rarity, a certifiable competition history, a sporting configuration, and perhaps even a famous owner. In most cases, consumers are looking for bikes that are light, powerful and comfortable. Beyond that, certain features are sure to set apart certain bikes for different consumers. Some will seek primarily crisp handling and easy maneuvering, others a cushy saddle, upright seating position and wide handle-bars. Yet another consumer may be hooked by easy-to-read gauges, footrests and grab-handles for passengers — or perhaps by cruise control or built-in stereo.

is is the company is the

he also wants a bike that's fun — that satisfies his enthusiasm for the sport. Perhaps more so than any other vehicular purchase, a motorcycle has to feel right.

The best way to narrow a shopper's search is to begin by

Perhaps the best way to begin a search is also one of the most fun: Attend motorcycle rallies and gatherings. These events are held year-round across the nation for all different makes and models of motorcycles. They're great places not only to study bikes up close and decide which ones you like best, but also to meet enthusiasts who'll love to talk and offer advice about the best and worst of the motorcycling world.

In addition, read ratings in consumer report magazines and motorcycle magazines — some of which are devoted exclusively to a particular type of bike, such as vintage machines.

Other literary suggestions: Check out advertisements in publications such as Hemmings Motor News and The Motorcycle Shopper. Motorbooks International of Osceola, Wis., publishes a catalog that lists books on your favorite makes, including a series of Illustrated Buyers' Guides on the most popular names.

But, as part of the mystique that motorcyclists love to promote, it takes more than a motor to make a motorcycle — or even its mechanical parts.

A biker and his bike must connect, period.

Sure, the motorcyclist seeks value and performance, but selecting a family of machines to consider. Some major motorcycle types to consider: on-highway motorcycles such as street bikes and touring bikes; off-highway motorcycles such as motocross, racers and ATVs; scooters and mopeds.

6 🖸 Car Care 🔾 June 9, 1994

Some bikes are strictly designed for a specific use. For example, ATVs are illegal for use on paved roads, while touring bikes with their cushy saddles, large luggage capacity, windshield coverage and heavier weight are not the best models for other types of motoring.

Other machines span a realm of potential possibilities: racing bikes and touring bikes often double as commuters, and there even are some so-called dual-purpose motorcycles that can make the transition from street bike to dirt.

Regardless of a cyclist's area of interest, research is a wise option prior to making any purchase. Given the popularity of motorcycles, there's plenty of help for mankind in learning about the machines. Then, armed with the knowledge you need to make a critical choice, head out to showrooms to sample the wares and — in another fun shopping strategy — take dozens of test drives.

Once a motorcyclist has met his motorcycle match, it opens up a world of two-wheeler possibilities: amateur racing tracks, motorcycle rallies for different makes and models, motocross mountains, guided bike tours of country roads put together by travel agents.

And don't forget the paraphernalia, including the likes of color-matched helmets and jackets, intercoms that allow hands-free vehicle-to-vehicle communication, anti-theft devices, radar detectors and even electric vests.

CAR CARE Take your home on the road

By Sharon Williams

Copley News Service

When on vacation, many motorists are taking virtually everything, including the kitchen sink, on their adventures.

Everything's all wrapped up in a recreational vehicle, a mode of transportation and accommodation that has taken the vacation set by storm in recent years.

Experts estimate some 32 million RVers hit the road each year. Their reasons are many.

The RV takes many forms, with models falling into two general areas — trailers and motor homes.

Trailers, which are designed to ride piggyback or be pulled by a truck or utility vehicle, include travel trailers, fifth wheels, pop-up folding tent trailers or campers and truck campers.

Motor homes include van campers, standard motor homes and luxurious Class A RVs that offer the utmost in space, privacy and comfort.

When you vacation in an RV you may be camping, but you're hardly forsaking all the comforts of home. Whether it's a modest pop-up or monstrous motor home that rivals an 18-wheeler, every RV comes with at least a few conveniences to ease life on the road.

Basic units usually contain refrigerators and sinks, while more deluxe models come equipped with roomy beds, showers, toilets, lighted mirrors, microwaves, swivel chairs, televisions, stereos, barbecues, video cassette recorders and driving features such as power steering and automatic transmission.

BUYING AND RENTING

An RV is a sizable investment in more ways than one.

Not only is an RV so big that you'll have to drive it home, but you'll have to plunk down at least a few thousand dollars for the right to do so.

Prices range from around $2,000 for a pop-up camper to more than $100,000 for a luxury motor home, with price points at every level in between. You'll also need to consider the cost of gas and parking accommodations when you're out on the road, and a storage facility when you're not.

Since most RVs aren't designed for everyday driving around town, you'll probably have to tow a car, bikes or pay for public transportation once you reach your destination.

But motor-home enthusiasts have little problem justifying the cost. While traveling in their own self-contained world, RVs save on hotels, motels and restaurants. You'll never have to make an emergency detour for a bathroom, food or a glass of water, and your ride will likely be roomier than it would in a car.

Before buying an RV, experts suggest you assess your needs, such as the size of The RY Ester and the sources will be a distant for the second second generated and a second beauty the second second beauty the second se your family, how often you'll use the RV and where and when you're most likely to travel.

Look for quality construction, rent the models you like before you buy, and shop around for a reputable dealer and low-cost financing. Many RVers start small, then trade up several times before they finally buy the rig of their dreams, while others save money by investing in used RVs.

Renting also is an option for those who want only the occasional trip. Arranging a vacation on wheels is as easy as renting a car, thanks to the hundreds of RV chain outlets and local dealership rental agencies.

Would-be RVers can rent virtually anything, and good agencies provide novice renters with detailed instructions and driving tips. Some will even pack supplies such as food, cooking utensils, linens and toiletries for an additional charge.

FREEDOM ON THE ROAD

Perfect for weekend trips as well as extended cross-country treks that span months, and as well-suited to families with young children as they are to mature adults, RVs offer ultimate freedom on the road.

When traveling RV style, there's no need for strict travel agendas, though campground reservations are a good idea. You're free to travel at your own pace — to see what you like when you like because sleeping, eating and cooking can be accomplished almost anywhere.

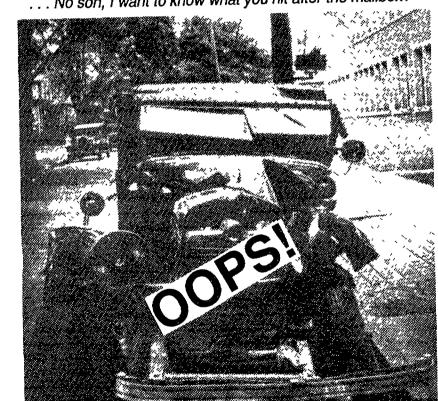

With few strings attached, RVers venture virtually everywhere. Hot spots range from Florida to the national parks, but plenty of others seek out the obscure and out-of-theway in RVs equipped with generators and water storage tanks.

When it is time to pull over for the night, there are thousands of RV-use campgrounds at private facilities, state or national parks.

Some offer only the basic hook-ups for water, electricity and sewage, while others — such as the many family oriented RV chains — are equipped with amenities such as laundry facilities, showers, swimming pools, restaurants and golf courses. To get the lowdown on rates and activities, look to RV guidebooks and directories at your bookstore or library.

PAPA ROMANO'S

The original Papa Romano's was born April 1, 1970 at Nine Mile and Telegraph in Southfield, Michigan. It did not take long for word to spread that Papa Romano's had the best pizza for miles around. Competition was tough. It wasn't long before people tried to copy Papa Romano's pizza, but none could measure up. They had to sell two pizzas for the price of one to compete with Papa Romano's. But Papa always said, "ONE OF THE per BEATS TWO OF THE REST!"

Still today at the many locations throughout Metro Detroit, Papa Romano and his staff of highly trained pizza makers make his homemade pizza dough the old fashioned way – fresh every day. Mama's secret tomato sauce recipe is still made the way Mama used to make it. And each pizza is hand stretched and baked to perfection in a stone hearth oven for each customer in each location; Papa Romano insists on it.
