Township millages headed back to ballot box

By RANDY COBLE Staff Writer

Get ready, Northville Township voters: you'll face another set of millage requests when you go to polls this Nov. 8.

After weeks of discussion, the township's board of trustees on Monday came to a preliminary agreement for three millage requests for the November ballot. One will be for police services, one for fire services and one for "shared services," which include Parks & Recreation, Northville Youth Assistance and senior citizen programs

Trustees repeatedly stressed that the three propos-als are designed to continue currently-provided services, not huge tax increases on top of existing funds. If they don't pass, supporters added, the money to fund those services won't be there.

repeat, they will have to work hard to get the word out about what the millages are for.

That was true before Aug. 2 as well, when voters turned down millage requests for those services. Board members agreed that to prevent an autumn

Staff Writer Supporters of Northville Township's three Nov. 8 millage requests are asking themselves one question: what can we do to get them passed? The answer most people offer hard work from everyone involved. The lack of both, they say, is why four of five millage requests failed at the polls on Aug. 2.

Negotiators work to settle lawsuits

By RANDY COBLE Staff Writer

Could a resolution of two lawsuits filed against Northville Township be in the offing?

It's possible but those who know best aren't saying.

Township officials confirm that negotiations are ongoing with two developers who filed suit earlier this year after their plans were rejected: the owner of land slated for a new Home Quarters Warehouse and the owners/developers of a proposed condominium project called Waterford Pond.

What they decline to do, however. is discuss the progress of the talks or their content. Bruce Franklin, a Troy lawyer hired to be the township's point man on the two suits, has not responded to numerous attempts to contact him by The Northville Record.

be reached, the two suits will go to trial. That, however, can be a process which takes years.

The suits were filed separately in March by Antoine Abi Raji, the owner of the land which had been proposed for the Quarters Warehouse and Chestnut Hill Developers, the owners/developers of Waterford Pond. Both suits, filed in Wayne County Circuit Court, claim that the township's denials and the ordinances on which officials based them are unfair and illegal.

Both suits ask the court to order the township to approve their plans, throw out certain sections of its ordinance they feel are illegal and award the two developers money damages. The township has steadfastly denied Raji's and Chestnut Hill's claims and ask the Wavne County owns the roads in the township. County Road Commission Safety Division official Vicki Holland has recommended that the light be installed. District officials estimated the cost of the light at $40,000-$50,000.

District officials asked the township's board of trustees to consider how the project could be funded and how much money the municipality might kick in for it. The trustees, however, at a meeting earlier this month indicated that the township would not be interested.

Local rock duo gains following

By YVONNE BEEBE Staff Writer

What started out as a quiet buzz around Northville has quickly evolved into a cascading roar of approval for two local musicians who call themselves Dog Shelf.

Northville residents Robert Bugar and Tim Goode, who make up the two-man musical group, started playing together last March. Despite their relatively new musical union, the duo packs crowds into smoke-filled bars wherever they play.

The pair can be seen every Thursday evening at Riffles, 18730 Northville Road, and every Friday from 4-7 p.m. Bugar performs solo at the restaurant.

Bugar, 27, and Goode, 23, are both Northville High School graduates but their following doesn't just include a small enclave of old high school buddies and acquaintances.

Even people who have never heard of Dog Shelf, a name that started off as a joke between Bugar and some friends, end up walking into the bar and not leav-

Nobody knew us out there." said Bugar of a recent performance at Hoops, a night spot in Auburn Hills. "And the people were screaming so loud that we felt intimidated by it. It was more like a roar."

The two-man band, which is booked solid for the next couple of months in Detroit-area bars, consists of Bugar's lead vocals, key-boards and guitar and Goode's vocals and guitar.

Dog Shelf has been around for a little more than two years now, when Bugar played with another partner for about a year. But when Goode stepped into the scene, it was a perfect fit.

"Tim's a talented musician," he said. "When we first started playing, he had five days to learn about 50 tunes. He absorbed it really quickly."

Bugar, who has never taken formal musical training yet still man-aged to teach himself how to play the piano, sing and play guitar, started his musical career when he was young by simply singing around the house.

The self-made musician, who has a collection of original songs, hopes to start recording by the end of the year.

People always ask, When are you going to get a CD out?' " he said

The music industry, Bugar admits, is a difficult field to break into; however, it's not the money he's worried about.

"A lot of musicians have a stigma about making money for their art," he said. "But I love music. I'd do it even if I weren't getting paid." Dog Shelf will be playing at:

Hoops in Auburn Hills Sept. 2 and 3, the Arena in Dearborn Heights on Sept. 9 and 10, Champs Pub in Brighton Sept. 16 and 17, and at Riffles Sept. 23, 24, 30 and Oct.

Anyone interested in getting on Dog Shelf's mailing list can write to P.O. Box 271, Northville, MI 48167-0271.

"The energy level around

Everybody is excited."

By YVONNE BEEBE Staff Writer

Five days and counting.

Five days until teachers and students alike bury their noses back into the books and shake out the last of the lazy-day summer states of mind.

When Northville Public Schools open their doors Tuesday and students, taller, bigger and wiser, fillup their new classrooms, there will be some new faces, missing faces and noticeable changes.

One of the most important changes is the opening of Thornton Creek elementary on Nine Mile Road. Some 470 eager elementary students will fill the hallways, symbolic of the district's immense growth in the past year. Cooke Middle School Principal Jeff Radwanski said his school's student population is growing so rapidly he only has seven desks left for students.

"New kids are coming in like crazy," Radwanski said. "I had 11 kids register just last week."

Radwanski said he had to search throughout the entire building to find additional desks for students and created two new science rooms out of rooms that were not designed for that subject. Near the end of September, Cooke will receive new furniture. Radwanski just hopes his students do not out number the desks until then.

Despite his furniture-shortage fears, Radwanski said he is looking forward to the school year.

"The energy level around here is unbelievable," he said. "Everyone is excited, I've been here throughout the summer and I can honestly say there were at least three or four teachers here every day."

As of Aug. 17, 4,348 kindergarten through 12th grade students were enrolled for this year, almost 400 more students than first predicted by the district. And school principals are reporting larger enrollment numbers with more students coming every day.

Last year Northville public schools had about 4,172 students. That number paired with the some 25 new teachers, administrators and counselors the district has hired adds up to a growing district.

Dolly McMaster, assistant superintendent for instructional services, attributes the growth to "The parents I'm talking to are really shopping around for quality districts," McMaster said. "They're looking at the West Bloomfields, the Birminghams, and they are choosing Northville, which I think really validates us as a school district.

One school that will enjoy a significantly smaller population this year is Moraine elementary, whose population was cut almost in half by the opening of Thornton Creek.

"It's a nice way to start out a principalship," said Mary Kay Galagher, Moraine's new principal who was the district's early childhood specialist last year. "It will? provide an opportunity to get to know my students better.'

Although Moraine's studenta population is smaller. the same? number of classrooms will be utilized with three new

special education classrooms this year-something, Gallagher says, will add diversity and strength to her school.

-Jeff Radwanski,

principal at Cooke Middle School

Students can expect to see new faces this year, especially at the; high school with two new principals to replace Ralph Redmond and Laura Wallace.

David Maile, one of the highschool's new assistant principals. who was hired in June, said he is; excited to be working in the district and is anxious for the kids to begin school, however, school started for him months ago.

Maile said he has had an opportunity to meet many students this, summer through the Adopt a Stu-, dent program where Northville students help incoming students get acquainted with the area and, make some friends.

Maile said he plans to concentrate on students making a smooth transition into the school year and will work to make sure the Wednesday morning planning; sessions are useful.

"This is going to be quite a year," Maile said. "There are some really valuable things that could happen."

In addition to the new faces, many school officials will be in new places, like Gallagher at Moraine. Mary Najarian, the former Moraine principal, will now be; Thornton Creek's new principal, and Dennis Colligan, the former athletic director for the high? school, will take on the assistant. principal's role replacing Wallace.

Northville celebrates Thornton Creek opening

File Photo

By YVONNE BEEBE Staff Writer

Thornton Creek elementary school received a small glimpse of its near future Thursday night with the pitter-patter of little alligators prowling the hallways dur-ing the new school's grand open-

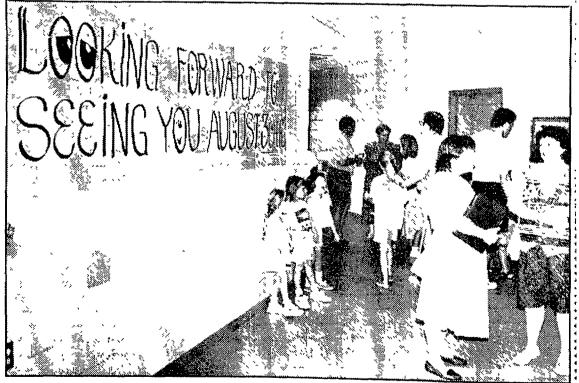

ng. Northville district officials, parents and soon-to-be Thornton Creek students, who voted the alligator as the school's official mascot during an orientation day in June, attended the grand opening ceremony to survey the school's shiny new hallways and classrooms.

"It's big!" was 9-year-old Ross Jones' enthusiastic response to the school he will be attending next week. Jones, who was a student at Moraine elementary last year, said he is looking forward to attending Thornton Creek because it is "very nice and very big." Last week's ceremonies signified a fitting capstone to the much anticipated opening of the school that was delayed one year after construction was finished in the summer of 1993. Last year's delay was decided when school officials felt leery of impending state finance reforms and were faced with the question of whether running five elementary schools in 1993-94 would be financially feasible for the district.

Now with the past far behind them, school administrators feel proud to finally see Thornton Creek classrooms filled with teacher decorations in anticipation of Aug. 30, the first day of school.

The $8 million 17-acre site, which was the result of a $16 million bond issue in 1989, includes parking for 132 cars, a soccer field and baseball diamond and early childhood, kindergarten and grade-level playground areas.

Soon-to-be Thornton Creek students, parents, teachers and administrators socialize during the school's grand opening Aug. 18. More than 470 pre-schoolers to 5th graders will be attending the school this year.

The school features some 32 classrooms, including four early childhood classrooms, a computer lab, a speech and reading room and a spacious new gymnasium and cafeteria, which will allow for gym classes to run while other students eat lunch-something that has not been done in the past because the gymnasium has served the dual purpose of cafeteria in Northville's other elementary schools.

However, with all the school's impressive new rooms ready to come alive with the chatter of more that 450 students, there is till one thing missing-playground equip-

intendent for administrative services, said the equipment was ordered for the school months ago but the company will be late in delivering it. Black-top games like hopscotch and four-square will be in place for student on the first day of school and the equipment should soon follow. Bolitho said.

Mary Najarian, Thornton Creek's new principal who moved from Moraine elementary, said she anticipates a smooth transition for students and staff and she is excited about the upcoming year. "Change is going to be our major theme this year." Najarian said. We will be working with many new people so this is a time to really cooperate with each other ! We are very excited."

It seems the word excitement has been synonymous with Thornton Creek lately and parent Donna Riehl, who has a preschooler, and a 2nd- and 4th-grader attending the school next year, is no differ-

"I can't wait for the first day of school," said Riehl, who served on the Parent-Teacher Association steering committee for the school. "I think I'm more excited than my kids are."

Northville store victimized by B & E

The Northville Gourmet & Wine Shoppe, 680 W. Eight Mile Road, suffered a break-in Aug. 12 that may have been part of a series of offenses occurring in Northville; Livonia and Plymouth Township.

Northville City Police were dispatched to the store early in the morning to find the east side door smashed in with a large stone. Inventory checks after the breakin tallied almost $2,000 in lost merchandise including the entire cash register containing about $300. Cigarette cartons, cigars, wine, champaign, candy bars and beer were also missing. The smashed doorway cost an estimated $250.

There was also a large pool of liquid by one of the refrigerator doors in the store, later determined to be beer. Police believe that a case of beer with broken bottles found in a nearby dumpster was a result of one of the suspects dropping the case inside and then dumping it. The bottles were still cold to the touch when police arrived at the scene.

A trail of footprints around the building suggests that the suspects walked down a grassy hill near the back of the building and walked into the Mobil gas station behind the store. No one working at the station at the time noticed anything out of the ordinary.

The suspects who robbed the wine shop, police suspect, may be the same people involved in other break-ins on Seven Mile Road in ment in one of the break ins and Livonia and in Plymouth Township. Police are making a connection because in all three instances no lottery tickets were taken and the same sort of items were stolen. Three days after the Northville burglary, on Aug. 15, the Livonia Police Department initiated a stop on a light blue Ford Ranger and a chase ensued northbound on Newburgh Road. Two white males were in the car. During the chase, one passenger discarded several car-

This one-third scale World War II Sopwith Pup is an example of the type of model the Midwest Radio Control Society will put in flight.

Big bird models to take flight

Midwest Radio Control Society Inc. of Northville will hold its Second Annual Big Bird Fly-In on Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 3 and 4, at its flying field on Five Mile Road in Northville.

The event will feature two days of giant model aircraft flight demonstrations by local club members as well as pilots from all over Michigan, surrounding states and Canada. Last year's show attracted almost 100 pilots and aircraft.

The airshow will begin at 10 a.m. each day and continue through 5 p.m. on Saturday and 4 p.m. on Sunday. Pilot registration and model safety inspection will begin at 8 a.m. A food concession will be in continuous operation during the show. Ample parking is available at a $2 donation per car to help offset expenses.

Comfort stations, including those for the handicapped, will be available at the site. Spectators will be continuously informed during in-flight activities and special attractions by a public address system narrated by a master of ceremonies.

Flight activities will be continudus, with up to three aircraft in the air at one time. Special attrac-tions will include model aerobatic demonstrations by nationally known pilots, helicopter aerobatics and a special demonstration of electric powered models by Dr. Keith Shaw of Ann Arbor. Dr. Shaw is an internationally recognized authority and leader in electric technology development for model aircraft. Also featured will be flight formations of Giant Scale World War II aircraft such as P-51 Mustangs, P-47, Thunderbolts, a Soviet MiG, Japanese Zero, British Spitfires and other aircraft of the European and Asian theaters.

During the lunch break at noon. all models will be lined up on the flight line and spectators will be allowed on the field to view and photograph the models and talk with the pilots. A program of the airshow activities as well as informative literature concerning the sport/hobby will be given to all spectators at the entrance.

Spectators are advised to bring folding chairs for their comfort during the air show.

The event is not your average model airshow but instead features giant radio controlled model aircraft. In modeler's language, giant means model aircraft that have a wing span that is at least 80 inches minimum, or must be certifiable as a one-quarter scale model of the original full size aircraft. In the case of biplanes, the wing span must be 60 inches or greater.

The airshow is hosted by Midwest R/C Inc., a Northville-based club with about 125 members from all over the tri-county area. The event is sanctioned by the Academy of Model Aeronautics. AMA, founded in 1936, is a nonprofit organization dedicated to the interests of aeromodelers.

Midwest R/C Inc., a non-profit organization, has been in continuous operation since the 1950s. It operates and maintains a beautifully manicured grass field with an 800 foot runway located on Five Mile Road, west of Ridge Road in Northville.

If the township won't agree to that plan, Sakwa said he will develop the land into a conventional sub, eliminating Brooklane's 18 holes altogether. Members of the board of trustees two weeks ago reacted with less than complete enthusiasm to the course plan, but favorably enough to see Sakwa not rule it out altogether.

posal. Since then, township officials have received no word on Sakwa's intentions.

The Parks & Recreation Commission, at the board's request, is conducting a feasibility study to see if a township-owned golf course would be a financial money maker and what new golf options such a course would provide to residents.

Many trustees say they aren't sure that a nine-hole course, especially one that is somewhat small, could be financially viable. Sakwa maintains that several area communities make as much as $100,000 a year operating golf courses.

Sakwa's course plan calls for 280 single-family homes on the 99 acres at Six and Sheldon, 205 of them 80-foot wide lots and the remaining 75 90-foot lots. About 30 acres of the property is set aside for the course; six of Brooklane's existing holes would be preserved and three new ones would be built on the north side of Six Mile. The two sections of the course would be connected by a bridge over or tunnel under Six Mile.

The lot sizes, however, are less than the minimum size allowed under the R-2 zoning on the land, right now. The crowded density of the development is something which many trustees said raised serious concerns to them. Sakwa's conventional plan calls for 243 home lots of at least 125foot widths and no golf course.

The Northville Historical Society hosts its 25th Tivoli Fair on Friday, Sept. 30, 10 a.m. until 8 p.m. and Saturday, Oct. 1, 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. at Northville Downs. This year additional space has been added on the second floor so the juried Arts and Crafts Show will be bigger than ever. Admission is $3. Due to fire law restrictions baby strollers cannot be permitted.

To commemorate the 25th anniversary, 150 door prizes will be offered. Twoli Fair is the primary fund-raising event of the Northville Historical Society. Profits from this two-day fair are used to maintain and preserve Mill Race Village. In the recent past almost 60 percent of the village's operating revenue has come from Tivoli Fair.

This year the Northville Historical Society celebrates the 20th anniversary of its publication, Mill Race Quarterly, the 25th anniversary of Tivoli Fair, and the 30th anniversary of the founding of the organization. The village has been in existence about 22 years, but was officially opened to the public on July 4, 1976. The September Quarterly plans to feature much of the organization's early history. Members should receive their publication in mid September.

Additional commemorative copies should be available at Tivoli Fair.

Charter school touches off legal debate over religion in education

By TIM RICHARD Staff Writer

A rural school district in Ionia County has ignited a legal battle over its effort to claim $5,000 per student in state aid for a charter academy with fundamentalist religious overtones.

Berlin school district is using Michigan's new charter academy law, lauded by Gov. John Engler, to set up a "Noah Webster Academy." The twin problems:

• If the Webster academy uses a computer network for home teaching statewide, will Berlin be eligible for state aid for 1,300 pupils its teachers never see? That question is on the desk of Attorney General Frank Kelley.

• May Noah Webster Academy, as a public school, teach the religious doctrine of creationism in its science curriculum? That would depart from the State Board of Education's standard of evolution in the core science curriculum. The new law states charter academies may not have church affiliations.

"I'm distressed at the letter the Department of Education sent to the attorney general." said state Rep. Alan Cropsey, R-Dewitt, whose House district includes Berlin schools.

Cropsey berated the State Board of Education last week for the department's "stifling" of educational diversity, "having the dubious reputation as being one of the three worst states for parents to educate their children at home," seeking "confrontation" instead of cooperation with home teaching and being "negative toward academies.

"You might as well work with the Department of Education in Moscow as the Department of Education in Michigan," said Cropsey. The lawmaker said his four children are taught at home rather than in public schools.

Cropsey did his undergraduate work at the church-related Bob Jones University, described by World Book Encyclopedia as "the largest fundamentalist school in the world."

In past years, Cropsey has urged public school teaching of creationism, the fundamentalist doctrine that the Bible is literally true and the earth was created in six days 6,000 years ago rather than evolving over 4.6 billion years.

Several news reports from Lansing and Detroit newspapers say Webster academy planned to teach creationism.

State board treasurer Dorothy Beardmore, R-Rochester, was first to reply: "The word came from the attorney general in 1985 or '86-not at our request-that home schools are non-public schools." Under that interpretation, Beardmore said, an academy serving home schoolers would have to be considered non-public and ineligible for state funds. "Each home should be classified

"Each home should be classified as a private school," said board member Barbara Roberts Mason, D-Lansing.

Cropsey: "If a child takes homework home, isn't he still a public school student?"

Mason: "It (homework) is outside the 900 hours and 180 days (of schooling required by state law) ... This board is in favor of charter academies" except for board copresident Annetta Miller, D-Huntington Woods.

Miller: "We have a constitutional amendment that public dollars not go to private schools. Is not the whole charter school movement an effort to plant public dollars into private schools? The (charter) movement tries to skirt the constitution—I think illegally." Superintendent of public Superintendent of public instruction Robert Schiller: "As the law is written, our role is quite limited in terms of intervention.

"We do not approve facilities, but if a school site has more than six students, we notify the fire marshal and it's up to them (to inspect the building).

"Our road to follow is to get an interpretation from the attorney general. Our letter (to Kelley) was not negative. (Noah Webster Academy) has broken the mold for which we have no precedent," Schiller said.

Application knowledge St. Paul's School has been working hard to develop its

Computer Education Program in which students of all ages become involved with computers. Last year the school set up a computer lab and students in grades 5-8 are currently involved in the project. The school has 10 IBM and IBM compatible machines in the lab. The computers share two color dot matrix printers and one ink jet printer, allowing the students to work with word processing programs, spreadsheets, and data bases. The students are learning about computers in their lives, computer history, computer occupations, and applications. The students will also begin this year to learn Computer Programming in Q-Basic. One important aspect of the program is that all students are learning and working on keyboarding skills.

I would like to commend you and your statt on a job well done. I am Dear Dr. Beitman very pleased with my experiences with you and your staff. Being a Manager of a Customer Support Department. Lespect the best from my employees when it comes to providing good customer service. I also expect excellent service whenever I am the customer. Helt that the service received at your office exceeded my expectations

Starting with my initial phone call requesting a consultation my experiences were very pleasant. After watching the video reading the experiences were very preasant syner watching the since second and various preces of Interature and talking with Peggy and yourself. Then very comfortable with my decision to have RK performed at your office Julie Carla, Nat and Sue just made the experience even more pleasant (I hope I remembered all their names correctly). The persondreasant or hope crementocrea an iner names concernst increasing drive particular actually made the experience fun (n's hard to believe that going to a doctor's office can be fun). During the tests and examinations. Your staff was professional and personable. The conversations and joking that we had made the testing process go

The actual surgery useft was painless and much quicker than I had imagined 1 am definitely a "hig chicken" when it comes to having unyone (including me) near my eyes 1 was amazed that 1 made it through the surgery on my first eye, and still had the desire to have mough the surgery on my inscept, and sum mu the desire to nave my second eye done. In the back of my mind 4 thought for sure that 1 might not have enough nerve to return to have my other eye done Considering Lactually was looking forward to my second surgery. you and your staff must have done a good job

It has really been fantastic to be able to do whatever I want without wearing glasses. I am sull not used to going through the day without them 1 find myself trying to adjust my glasses, even though 1 am not wearing them Hopefully. I will be able to break this habit soon Having people watch me reaching for glasses that don't exist is get

I would be happy to talk to any of your future clients regarding you, your stalf and RK. Feel free to give them my number

Push under way for insurance reform

By TIM RICHARD Staff Writer

Michigan businesses can save $52 million a year and all vehicle owners $700 million if voters approve an auto insurance reform proposal Nov. 8, say its backers.

"Imagine pumping $700 million into the Michigan economy," said Jim Barrett, Michigan Chamber of Commerce president and vocal supporter of Michigan Citizens for Insurance Reform (MCIR). "This addresses the root causes of nsing insurance rates—skyrocketing legal costs, medical costs that have gone out of control."

"Many Detroit area businesses and individuals are at a competitive disadvantage." said Claudia Berry of the Greater Detroit Chamber of Commerce, another group supporting MCIR's reform law. She praised the ballot plan for "offering discounts for those who install anti-theft and theft-recovery devices."

Added Ed Gaffney of the Amencan Auto Manufacturers Association: "Drivers who chose air bags, enhanced side-impact protection and anti-lock brakes will save on their insurance rates" under MCIR-backed plan State officials probably will give

How this proposal is different from 1992

Some differences between the 1992 (defeated by voters) and 1994 ballot proposals:

1992 PROPOSAL D

- 1. Was not passed by Michigan Legislature
- 2 Was an initiative, placed on ballot by AAA Michigan
- 3. Capped personal injury protection at $250,000.
- 4. Aimed to roll back rates 20 percent.

5. As an initiative, could have been amended only by another initiative or three-fourths vote of both chambers of the Legislature.

1994 PROPOSAL 1. Passed in Legislature with bipartisan support, enacted as PA 143.

 Is a referendum, placed on ballot by Michigan Trial Lawyers Association.

3. Caps personal injury protection (PIP) at $1 million under insurance policy; consumers can buy more coverage in million-dollar increments up to $5 million.

 Rolls back rates to levels of Nov. 1, 1992, minus 16 percent, guaranteed for six months, subject thereafter to actual loss experience.

5. Can be amended by simple majorities in the Legislature.

PA 143 does not yet have a title but probably will be Proposal C on the Nov. 8 ballot.

the name Proposal C to the autoinsurance reform referendum. The disan support a year ago, and Gov. John Engler signed it as Public Act 143.

To prevent a voter referendum, lawmakers tacked on a $50,000 appropriation. But the courts called that an evasion and said a referendum could be held.

The Michigan Trial Lawyers Association collected enough signatures for a referendum, scheduled for Nov. 8, and is raising funds to attack it.

MCIR is a coalition of auto insurers and 48 other groups including the chambers of commerce like Detroit's. Howell's and Flint's; health care professionals; farm groups like the Farm Bureau, Corn Growers and Grange; and law enforcement groups like the Deputy Sheriffs and Traffic Safety associations.

MCIR's John Saltzgaber, who will run the campaign, displayed ads that will emphasize savings to consumers. MCIR held press conferences Monday in Southfield, Lansing and other major markets. Samples of other savings:

• Auto owners no longer will have to buy unlimited medical coverage but can buy $1 million and increments up to $5 million.

• There's a medical fee schedule. Those injured in automobile accidents are sometimes charged 150 to 200 percent more for medical care than those injured in other kinds of accidents, such as in the home or on the job". PA 143 will institute "managed care" cost controls such as those used by Medicare and company health plans.

 Uninsured drivers and those who cause accidents will be prohibited from sung for non-economic (pain and suffering) damages.

PA 143's opponents, the trial lawyers and Michigan Consumer Federation, began attacking the ads before they were unveiled.

"The new law gives insurance companies significantly more control over the medical treatment accident victims can receive," Stoddard added.

Cautious board balks at purchase

By RANDY COBLE Staff Writer

The Aug. 2 millage vote may be gone but certainly is not forgotten and November's election day looms large in Northville Township.

The board of trustees at its meeting Aug. 11 rejected two equipment purchase requests from the township's Department of Public Safety (DPS), postponing the buys until after Nov. 8. That's election day, the date when township voters will be asked to consider new requests for millages.

Four of the five millage requests on the ballot Aug. 2 went down, including a request for 3.84 mills for continuing police and fire services. The board has yet to decide what millages to put on the November ballot, or what amounts they'll be.

Until they settle that issue and see what voters do on election day. trustees said they don't want to spend money for anything that's not absolutely necessary. The two DPS requests they considered at

Study: Statistics are against younger motorists

Younger drivers are more than twice as likely to be involved in a traffic accident compared to motorists aged 45-54, according to a study conducted by the Michigan Association of Insurance Companies (MAIC)

Statistics in the report also indicate that young driver crashes tend to be more deadly.

(... "About 15 percent of drivers aged 16-20 are involved in a traffic accident each year," according to Terry Buckles, president of MAIC. "By comparison, only 6 percent of 45- to 54-year-olds are involved in a roadway crash annually."

Buckles also noted that 16- to 20-year-old drivers have a greater involvement in fatal accidents than

The insurance spokesman offered the following suggestions for controlling the cost of auto insurance:

· Drive less-rates are determined by the amount and type of driving you do. Select your car carefully-rates are based on its cost, repairability and performance characteristics.

 Coordinate personal injury protection (PIP) coverage if you have other accident and health insurance:

· Choose higher deductibles on collision and comprehensive coverages. Consider a more economical type of collision insurance, but make sure you understand when you are covered and when you are not.

• If you have an older car, consider dropping both collision and comprehensive coverage.

• Drive carefully. Most traffic tickets and at-fault accidents will automatically increase your rates.

Novi investigated sexual harassment charge against teacher

By SHARON CONDRON Staff Writer

A Novi High School teacher was suspended without pay for 15 days after district officials concluded an investigation into a student's allegation that the teacher sexually harassed her and her mother last school year.

There have not been any criminal or civil charges brought against the teacher from the family, but he and school board members have reportedly reached an agreement.

Details of the pact were discussed by school administrators and board members Thursday night. Specifics of it are exempt from the state's Freedom of Information Act.

The outcome of the case and the terms of the teacher's disciplinary action, however, are not.

Superintendent Emmett Lippe said Friday morning the teacher will be docked 15 days of pay because of what school officials are calling his "inappropriate behavior.

The allegations were brought to the superintendent's attention near the close of last school year. Novi School district's policy is to remove a teacher from the classroom until an investigation is complete. The teacher was suspended at the end of last year for three weeks until the allegations could be reviewed.

Lippe conducted the internal investigation in June after the allegations surfaced. He said Friday he concluded the teacher's comments were deemed inappropriate but found no need to discharge the man from his job.

The teacher, with more than 20 years instructional experience. could not be fired over the issue because of Michigan's tenure laws.

Police, library unions ink contracts with city

Command Officers' Association of Michigan. The city department has two non-union members at the managerial level.

Another significant component of the agreement includes adding two years to the department's step increase plan Officers hired after July 1993 will take five years to reach the highest level of the step increase plan. Employees hired prior to July 1993 take three years to reach the highest plateau, as stated in the former contract

Other aspects of the agreement include:

• Once a patrol vehicle reaches the 60,000-mile mark, the city must provide a safety inspection for the car. In the former agreement, after 60,000 miles the car was replaced.

• Acceptance of revised sick leave policy regarding "bonus days," where officers who do not take any sick days get three days added to vacation time the following year. In the former contract, bonus days were included in the command officers' contract but not in the patrol officers' pact. The bonus days clause was added to the patrol officers' contract with the new agreement

• The patrol and command units developed language pertaining to lay offs referred to as the "bump down" issue. If layoffs do occur and a command officer must be laid off, the officer will be bumped down to the rank of patrol officer as opposed to temporarily losing his or her job. Negotiation for the city clerks union agreement began in the spring of 1993 and was resolved with the city's Aug. 15 vote.

The three-year contract covers 10 city clerical workers and four library employees.

The contract is retroactive to July 1, 1993, and will expire June 30, 1996.

The contract calls for a 3-percent wage increase for library workers retroactive to Jan. 1, 1994. After this year library employees fall under district library management and will not receive wage increases in following years under the agreement.

Clerical workers will receive a 4.25-percent wage increase from July 1, 1994, and a 4.5-percent increase on July 1, 1995.

During negotiations, MAPE dropped a previous unfair labor charge against the city insisting that library employees whose hours were reduced in 1992 due to budget cuts be returned to their previous work schedules.

Other terms of the contract include:

 Short-term disability payout will be increased from $100 to $200 per week.

• The city and union have agreed in the event of arbitration to use the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service to select an arbitrator instead of the American Arbitration Association. The FMCS is cheaper, but AAA rules would still apply.

Men's outfits are about as simple to concoct as the women's. Men can find any pair of dress pants-pin-stripes are also fitting-and attach suspenders to them. Plain white button-down shirts, with garters on the sleeves, and vests are also popular.

"Dressing up is very easy to do." Zaytı said. "Just go in your closet." Donna Wiseley, a Greenfield Village seamstress who sells Victorian clothing from her home in Novi, sells gowns that she sews.

Currently, Wiseley is selling one black and burgundy ball dress whose style dates back to the 1880s, and several day dresses. which date from the 1830s up to 1899. Her dresses run from about $75 to $95 in various sizes. All the dresses are used, she said, but are in excellent, clean condition.

Another tip for women is to take a straw hat and decorate it with silk flowers and lace. Lace gloves were also very popular at the turn of the century and are easy to find at rummage sales or bridal shops for inexpensive prices.

The easiest way for men to dress up Victorian style is to look west. Wiseley said.

"The most economical way for a man to dress up is Victorian Western," she said. Wiseley conducts classes in her house on how to dress in Victorian style upon request. She can be reached at 669-9183.

because voters either didn't understand them or did understand them but wouldn't support them. To combat both problems, supporters of the millages say they need to mount an "aggressive" informational campaign to "educate" voters.

Supporters advocate an active effort to get the word out on the millage requests: everything from flyers to mailings to homeowner association meetings to phone calls to door-to-door campaigning. Not enough of that was one big reason why the millages failed on Aug. 2, some said.

"We can't just put the stuff in The Record and leave it at that," a man at the meeting said. "We did that last time and look what happened."

"The biggest thing here is education," Parks & Rec Commission Chair John Werth said. "We need to get the word out and it will pass. We all have got to get out there.

A particular target, many said, should be those who vote by absentee ballot, which historically is heavily weighted with "no" votes.

The message that the steppedup campaign should deliver, they add, has to abide by the KISS principle: "Keep It Simple, Stupid." Supporters say they need to walk a careful line between not giving voters enough information about the millages and giving them so much that the essential points get lost.

"It will change our whole quality of life if these don't pass," Charlie Stilec said. "People need to understand that."

Too much information will confuse the issues for voters, support- ers, the second faction feel, are ers say. Keep the effort focused on concerned that if township ser-

Many voters, supporters say. misunderstood what the millage requests on the Aug. 2 ballot were sav. for. A key point to hammer home, many said, is that the three requests on the ballot-for police. fire and "shared services"-are not tax increases being tacked onto existing funding.

The three proposals include: Proposal A: 2.99 mills for police services.

• Proposal B: .40 mill for the township's share of services it funds jointly with the City of Northville, including Parks & Rec, Northville Youth Assistance and senior citizen programs.

• Proposal C: .85 mill for fire services.

"It's essentially a renewal of the services, that's what's important. These proposals are what it will take to continue to provide that service," Trustee Mark Abbo said.

Many voters on Aug. 2 thought the millage requests were indeed that, some said, and voted against them for that reason.

Others who support the millage, however, say that isn't so. They hold that many voters did understand the facts of the millage requests but voted against them anyway to send a message to the board. Of particular importance was concern over what the board would do with its unrestricted general fund levy, they said.

The dedicated millages on the Aug. 2 and Nov. 8 ballots legally earmark the monies they would raise for specific purposes: the police millage can only be spent for police, for example. Some vota clear, comprehensible set of vices are paid for from dedicated approve without a vote of the people. The board needs to address that issue with those voters before they'll support the millages, they ly support the three requests,

Another issue is what the board will do if voters turn down any or all of the requests in November. Some say the trustees should levy the .728 mill to pay for as much as possible of whatever voters reject. Others say that if the taxpayers turn them down twice, then the board should follow their wishes and eliminate the services.

RECORD OPINION

Our Opinion

Second time must be a charm for millage

What we have here is a failure to communicate.

Northville Record staff and Northville Township officials must accept the blame for failure of at least some of the millage requests that were on the Aug. 2 primary ballot in the township. Four of the five levies, including millages to maintain existing public safety and shared services, were rejected by voters in that election.

It is apparent that people didn't fully understand what they were voting on when they went to the polls earlier this month, and that means that those of us who are responsible for explaining the issues didn't do our jobs the way we should have. Guilty as charged.

For what else could explain the stunning loss of Proposal A, the request to fund existing police, fire and emergency medical services in the township? We can't believe that township voters would knowingly decide to disband their police force and fire department, or that residents would want to live in a place where no one would respond to 911 medical calls. It is also difficult to imagine why voters would opt to cut off funding for such life-enriching activities as recreation, senior programs and youth assistance, all of which suffered severe setbacks with the defeat of Proposal B.

Something obviously went wrong in communicating the facts about these millages to voters and we here at the newspaper have vowed to improve and clarify our coverage before voters are asked a second time to approve essential millages in November.

Township officials must do more, too, and, in fact, they've all ready taken steps in that direction. Monday night, trustees voted to purge the ballot of the two "enhancement" milages that were turned away, namely the request for capital improvement funds and the proposal for land acquisition money. We endorsed both of those modest plans but the focal point of urgency is now public safety and shared services. Anything that detracts from the campaign to pass those millages should be dismissed.

Trustees also decided to simplify the ballot language by splitting the public safety millage into its two constituent parts-police and fire. Shared services, socalled because the township shares responsibility for the programs with the city, will also be referred to by their specific designations-recreation, senior services and youth assistance.

These are wise moves that can only help clarify matters in the public mind.

But still more must be done to communicate to voters that these requests represent ways of maintaining existing programs and not strategies to squeeze more resources from tax weary voters. The three proposals that will appear on the November general election ballot will be tax shifts and renewals, rather than increases, and that crucial fact must be repeatedly stressed flashing an eerie glow.

What is needed is a pro-active effort on the part of the township to gain passage of the November levies. In the wake of the Aug. 2 calamity, nothing can be taken for granted.

It would be less like summer without fireflies striking their sparks over an open field or in a backyard tree. As a young boy on my family's farm, a pasture often resembled the heavens with the twinkling of these little beetles.

Some people call them lightning bugs, light-up bugs or glow bugs. They are part of the Lampyridae family of beetles. And as I understand, they are looking for romance like

Less romantic were the sheer tortures we as kids provided the vulnerable little beetles. My brothers and  ${\rm I}$ would smear their tiny glowing bodies over our hands, and pretend to be Frankenstein's monster. "It's alive!" we'd exclaim walking stiffly with our arms stretched forward.

Sometimes we'd swing our arms briskly in big circles, making our luminous hands seem larger. And as we played, speckles of cold light appeared on our jeans and tee-shirts. Mom never complained, it all seemed to come out in the wash.

Our favorite fun for our unwilling playmates was to stuff them in glass canning jars. We'd run about filling

It's seems magical: little beetles our Ball or Mason lanterns with fireflies, scooping them from blades of grass and cupping them between two hands as they flew through the evening air. We'd hold the jars up close, watching as though scientists figuring out how they turned themselves off and on. We never discovered their secret.

> As I grew older, I caught fewer and watched more of the luminous bugs from a distance. I would often sit with Mom, listening to a whipperwill sing and watching fireflies flash.

> Swinging slowly in a glider that revealed several coats and colors of paint, Mom told stories of the "good old They were stories of her youth and tales of my davs." childhood. Our conversations drifted to my latest loves, dreams and adventures and motherly advice.

> And now I sit under a large oak, watching fireflies glow about me. They remain mysterious, winking off and on. I think about cupping one between two hands to watch his luminous body up close. But the fireflies' flicker would remain secret and would have disturbed the nest I've made under this tree. So, I will be complacent to watch and wonder.

> With the coming of fall, the luminous beetles will vanish. I suspect I'll nestle under this tree again soon and bid them goodbye for a season.

Another school year is about to get under way, and, while there is a touch of sadness at the immanent passing of the warm weather season, there is also a sense of excited anticipation. Students can look forward to new educational and social opportunities, teachers and administrators face the prospect of new challenges and parents know they can expect new shared experiences with their children.

A brand new elementary, Thornton Creek, opens its doors for the first time Aug 30.

There is controversy amidst the fastpaced preparations, however, as the revised mid-week school day at Northville High School begins its one-year trial run. Under the program, instructors will spend the first few hours of every Wednesday morning meeting in professional development sessions, with students beginning classes at 10:40 a.m. that day.

School officials who developed and adopted the program say the weekly meetings will help teachers brainstorm new ideas and generate creative approaches to cross-curriculum planning. They defend the program by pointing to two Michigan school districts where similar efforts produced positive results.

School insiders said off-the-record that there was also concern that a sizable minority of high school faculty members were not exhibiting the kind of enthusiasm parents and students have a right to expect. The hope is that the collegial sessions will serve as a motivational stimulus for these instructors.

Other officials said that representatives of the teachers' labor union, the Northville

Education Association, would only agree to the revised school day if the program would not lengthen the work week for union members. Collegial planning is a good idea, it seems, but not good enough to warrant additional work hours for teachers.

Not content with the justifications school officials offered, a group of parents collected 350 petition signatures urging repeal of the new policy. The plan's opponents claimed that school officials adopted the program largely in isolation and with little public input. They also point out that other school districts that instituted the collegial day compensated for the lost classroom time by extending class periods the other four days of the week, something that was not done in Northville.

These arguments notwithstanding. school board members stuck to their guns and would not be swayed. The revised Wednesday will be implemented as planned in 1994-95.

We share the skepticism of the detractors of the new Wednesday schedule and call upon school officials to develop a specific set of criteria by which program success can be assessed. This one-year pilot period might prove to be a worthwhile educational experiment after all, but only if some means of measuring success is devised. If, during review a year from now, school officials declare their policy a triumph and propose an extension, they ought to have something more than mere hunches and a handful of testimonials to support their belief.

Parents who view the loss of instructional time with alarm will require more convincing than that.

Newspaper adds school coverage

Malott

You may have noticed something a little different in The Novi News this week-rather than providing back-to-school coverage of only the Novi school district, we have also included information about the Northville and Walled Lake school districts.

It counts as the beginning an effort here to include as much information in the newspaper as possible about the Novi portions of the Northville and Walled Lake school districts.

It is sure to be a controversial decision. It will surely generate a fair amount of comment, both pro and con. But here is our reasoning.

In years past, The Novi News has concentrated mainly on the Novi school district, and we did so believing that our resources would be best utilized by concentrating on that single district. At the same time, it left some of our readers, who live either in the northern or southern ends of the city, without information about their school districts.

Yes, we do already cover Northville schools through The Northville Record, so that information is available to us, if we have the space to run it. But getting news and information on the Walled Lake district was another matter. Not that the Walled Lake district was reticent to release it, just that our reporting staff-which can already get stretched pretty thin trying to keep up with events in Novi and the Novi school district-had little additional time to pick up the coverage.

But there has been a significant amount of growth in the northern end of Novi. Some 800 students from Novi already attend Walled Lake schools and with as many as 1,000 residences to be built in the vicinity in the next few years, adding the coverage.

And as it became apparent to us, as we studied the issue in the early months of this year, that it just wouldn't be justifiable to carry Walled Lake school news without also including Northville coverage.

Needless to say, there are a number of Novi News readers who live in that area we refer to as No'ville, the Northville school district of Novi, and they've been asking for the coverage for some time.

Readers who live in the Novi school district will receive no less information about what is happening in their school district. We'll just have to get a little additional news space to accommodate the additional news generated by the Walled Lake and Northville districts.

Of course, when space is limited, our emphasis will still remain on the Novi district. But we should be able to give our readers in north and south the news they need.

Michael Malott is Managing Editor of The Novi News. .

We're underfunding our services

To the Editor

Today I called the Community Education Office to find out about evening classes. The program no longer exists "due to lack of funds.

A badly needed library barely gets funding. Yet here in Northville ownship I am surrounded on all ides by large, expensive housing. The vast majority of real estate closings listed every Friday in the Detroit Free Press are well over $200,000. We apparently have no money for education, park lands, senior citizen programs and recreation programs for young people.

Are we really aware of what we are doing to ourselves, our future here and Northville?

Ánti-O'Brien view was wrong

To the Editor:

I do not know who wrote the pinion in last week's paper but I hink you are off base attacking Barbara O'Brien.

She wasn't pointing out a mis-take. It is usual for Mrs. Baja to claim she made a mistake and ater apologizè for it. I lost faith in her when I questioned her at a meeting on why she declared a snow day (all employees stayed nome) and she told me the State Police had called her. The schools were open as were all places of business. She must think I am stupid to believe her.

She knows what is going on. She eminds me of the president. He never answers a question but walks around the answer.

I attended the meeting at the high school regarding a merger of he city and the township. I was pleased with the turnout from ooth communities. I do not believe heard one person from either community speak for it.

Neither government can afford it o why we are spending money that we don't have pursuing it?

The merging of the fire departnents is another farce. Someone put in a lot of time working up a ### schedule where we will save $304,000 by the year 2004. Do you want to bet that nothing will be saved?

I have never seen a budget work and they are projecting 10 years ahead. Someone has been reading a dream book.

Dean H. Lenheiser

Consolidation is ugly 'C' word

To the Editor:

Accolades to Mr. Charles Keys, Northville City Councilman, for the true factual statistics and feelings of the community relative to the ugly big "C" word-consolidation. Yes, how my graphs, charts, committee reports and lawyer fees have been expended to once again try to consolidate these two communities.

How many times do we have to go this route before the elected official get the message that is not what the citizens of these communities want. I am always in awe when a person becomes an elected official and they are eager to impose their personal desires to change things under the guise of this is best for the community"-when it is in fact their pleasure to dominate and follow a plan which is beneficial to themselves.

City taxes will go down and township taxes will go up. Knowing this they continue to pursue this issue making it very difficult for others. So I ask how in all good conscience can they push an issue to which the majority of the citizens are opposed? Mr. Johnson expressed his concern about our roads-well, Mr. Johnson, you don't have to be concerned for our roads are now in good shape-the citizens voted 1/4 of a mill to take care of them by the county.

Another remark was made by one of the elected officials that this was a good idea and some of her friends don't know whether they live in the township or the city-well, all I can say is we talk to different people because my friends are opposed to this and they do know where they live-be it city or township.

The citizens opposed this issue twice before and once again hard feelings are surfacing between the two communities. Merging of the fire department has also extended to the question of who is going to be in charge-and who is paying what.

With budgets in such peril one wonders where they get the money for attorney fees which already have surpassed $10,000 for the Blue Ribbon Committee.

One wonders why the city attorney was hired for this endeavor. One other most important matter is township citizens have the advantage of voting millage-the city does not. Discussing this matter with a Mr. Lee Snider of the Northville Record-his remark to me was, "You are an old woman set in your ways." Well, Mr. Snider, I am a taxpayer of this community for 60 years (which you are not) and if this is the new Northville perhaps it is time to move on-not a pleasant place to live.

Ice arena still valid idea

To the Editor:

Here we go again, another opinion from our "Just-Passing-onthrough" Record Editorial Staff. "Ice is nice, but enough already?" You gotta be kidding.

Here we have our wonderful homes in this quaint little traditional community that tourists come to visit. We are all so proud as we manicure our yards and take our walks in the evening to see who's out building who on Dunlap Street or we can bike downtown to get an ice cream cone. Beyond that, if you're interested in other types of family activities you head for the state park or to some other community to do it.

Look around, decades ago many of those communities that we snub our noses at built community centers with meeting rooms, ice arenas, activity space and snack bar facilities for a variety of uses from adult education classes to ice skating to craft shows and even wedding shows. Today I do not see any of these facilities under utilized. Our ice activities and the demand for ice time has grown out of control in recent years and it's only projected to get worse.

If the Record would have done any homework at all they would have found out that Farmington Hills could build their facility, Novi and Northville could build their facility and they will still have to turn people away because of the growing demand for ice time.

Our Northville recreation folks do a great job with the facilities they have and the budget they have to work with but it falls very short of appealing to a wider range of our population. I feel sick every time I drive by the Fish Hatchery tennis courts and see the weeds growing up through the playing surfaces. We have no money to repair or maintain our existing amenities but we find a way to creatively finance a multi-million dollar, state of the art, blow your face out gorgeous, parking garage to make it more convenient for shoppers downtown.

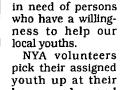

You're suggesting we do exactly what we criticize politicians for today. Suggestions like perhaps we should study the possibility further or maybe we should wait to see what the other communities do before we proceed or maybe we should do nothing at all and then we can never make any mistakes. Meanwhile another few years drifts by and another generation gets in the car and stands in line in a neighboring community to utilize their facilities, that is if they're lucky and they get in as a non-res-

I guess I should not be so pessimistic just because we have been reluctant to provide these facilities for our kids and for ourselves. Maybe I should perk up my attitude, because what the hell, we do have an excellent drug abuse program that I never had as a kid. Walter F. Coponen, AIA

Novi EDC continues to mull Main Street

By JAN JEFFRES Staff Writer

After reviewing a glowing report which termed the Main Street project "one of the boldest plans in Southeastern Michigan," members of the Novi Economic Development (EDC) Corporation opted to wait for more information before making a recommendation to the Novi City Council.

The EDC in June contracted with Peter Allen & Associates of Ann Arbor to evaluate the economic worth of the project.

But after the EDC reviewed the Allen report Monday morning, members still had unanswered questions, Chairman Jon Dostal told the Novi City Council.

Dostal said the EDC was not aware that the council was scheduled to make its final decision on Aug. 22. But that date was pushed back while the council awaits further data on the project, including ### the EDC's response.

The report that was submitted to us needs further clarification. Do we have a formal recommendation? No." Dostal said.

The aim was to have the Allen report along with an EDC position paper done by the time the council decides if it will enter into a public/private development agreement with the developer Evergreen III. The EDC has yet to determine if they will or will not encourage the city to move ahead on the plan as something which would benefit Novi's economic health.

In his August 8 report, Allen, noting that this is one of the best projects the firm has ever seen, told the EDC that "the Novi Main Street project is very worthy and should be actively supported ... This is not just another retail development or even just another mixed-use development...This plan gives the people of Novi a downtown with character and inviting entertainment value."

Allen, an Ann Arbor real estate consultant, reported that Main Street must stand on its own financially, but most likely can do so. If market conditions remain strong, Allen said the plan will most likely be implemented. Evergreen III would probably weather a recession, he added.

"Novi Main Street is economically and civically feasible...Clearly, no project is without risks but this one has a savvy, committed developer at the controls who is undertaking those risks with a full appreciation of them. We are also impressed with the overall development team looking for the deepest, long-term interests of the city," Allen wrote.

EDC member Fil Superfisky, a Novi Realtor, said he had questions about the real estate appraisals done for a proposed land swap between the city and Evergreen III.

Superfisky referred to a review by James Fuller of Fuller Appraisal Services of the first real estate appraisal of the project. done earlier by another appraiser. Superfisky said the most up-todate town center real estate sales comparable figures were not used. "There are serious mistakes or errors that Mr. Fuller brought to the table that need to be addressed," he told the council.

The project already has the backing of Novi's Town Center Steering Committee, which has been working on the design for a downtown Novi for about a decade. The EDC's hiring of Allen, as requested by Novi's Community Development Director Jim Wahl, angered some city council members, who were not aware of Wahl's request until after the EDC resolution.

Millages sent back to voters in November

"We have to give the people a reason to vote yes on the ballot," Treasurer Rick Engelland said. "To do that, we have to say, 'Vote yes and you'll get these services. Vote no and you won't ' There's a fine line between a threat and stating a fact."

The trustees are expected to officially approve the ballot language tonight and then pass it on to Wayne County.

Four of the five millage proposals on the Aug. 2 ballot lost. Why that happened has been the hottest topic of discussion in township circles for the last three weeks. The board has come to its own consensus conclusion on that, as well as a solution about what to do now.

In choosing their November requests, the trustees eliminated the two "enrichment" millages which failed on Aug. 2 but are sticking with the others and at the same amounts. Everyone agreed that an "aggressive" campaign to "educate" voters about the millage well.

election was necessary. The three millage requests on the ballot will be: •Proposal A: 2.99 mills for the police department.

•Proposal B: .40 mill for Parks & Recreation, Northville Youth Assistance and senior citizen programs. •Proposal C: .85 mill for the fire department. All three are for four-year dedicated millages. They all are to continue services which township taxpayers are paying for now, but would fund them in a new way. While a few more dollars would come in, officials say, the proposals essentially represent a tax shift from one funding method to another.

Police is funded by its own dedicated millage now, but that expires this year. Fire service is now provided by a combination of a dedicated millage and money from a general operating fund millage. Shared services are paid for through the general fund levy as

If the three proposals pass in November, those services will be paid for with dedicated millages. That means that the money is legally earmarked for the purpose specified when voters approved it; the board cannot divert the cash for any other purpose.

While the amounts for police, fire and shared services are the same on the November ballot as they were on the August ballot, the wording and order of the proposals has changed.

Proposal A on Aug. 2 called for 3.84 mills for the township's Department of Public Safety: 2.99 mills for police and .84 mill for fire services, both in one question. For November, the board has opted to make A solely 2.99 mills for police. That means that A is a true renewal of the expiring police millage.

The .84 mill levy for continued fire department service is now Proposal C. Proposal B remains the same: .40 mill to pay for the township's portion the cost of services it funds jointly with the City of Northville. Normally called "shared services," they include the Northville Parks & Recreation Department, Northville Youth Assistance and senior citizen programs.

Board members said it is essential to make the November millages easier for voters to understand by making the ballot language sound more like plain English and less like legalese. Some said that lengthy wording confused voters about what the millages were for.

The three requests represent the consensus of the board, agreed to after the trustees considered a variety of other millage scenarios.

Trustee Russ Fogg supported putting the four failed proposals back on the November ballot, saying that they'd pass if a better job was done of explaining to voters what they were for.

"The message was not that voters didn't want these services. What we've heard is that they didn't understand it," Fogg said. and said no. We have to respect "There are so many things we didn't do that we should have done.

Some board members agreed. Others said that they felt that voters had understood the ballot questions, but had decided to reject them in order to send a message.

'It's not that they don't want these services," Trustee Gini Britton said. "They don't want to give us the money to play with. There's a big distrust of government out there

Other trustees said that many voters had told them they felt there were too many millage requests on the Aug. 2 ballot, a notion which led to the trustees dropping requests for mills for land and capital purchases from the November slate.

"I'd love to put them back on the ballot ." Trustee Mark Abbo said. "I think they're important. But there are plenty of voters who knew what they were voting on that."

Another alternative came from Engelland: put millage requests on the ballot for police and shared services and provide or eliminate them depending on whether the voters approved or rejected them. Meanwhile, the board would fund the fire department by levying the .728 mill it 's legally allowed to impose without a vote of the peo-

Some on the board said it was that .728 mill leeway that some voters distrust. They fear that if existing township services are paid for with dedicated millages, the trustees could do something new with the rest.

They're thinking, 'You say you're not going to levy it, but you could come back and stick it to me,' " Engelland said.

Before the Aug. 2 vote, the board said that if proposals A and B passed it would not levy the .728 mill. The trustees have not yet made any decision or promise about what they will do after November's vote, but board members generally have indicated they do not plan to levy any of it if the dedicated millages for those pass.

What happens if voters reject any or all of the proposals in November was another question that was considered. Most of the trustees said that if the people said no twice, then their wishes should be respected and the services should be eliminated.

"If we explain it and they say no, it's no. This is a democracy," Fogg said.

Officials work on lawsuits

court to throw both suits out.

Here are brief summaries of the facts relating to the two suits:

• Waterford Pond:

The project called for 88 condos grouped around a single cul-de-sac on land off of Six Mile near Northville Road. The site plan for it violated some sections of township ordinance.

The township's Zoning Board of Appeals, however, refused to grant variances for them. That's when Chestnut Hill Developers, the sponsors of the project, filed suit.

Township ordinance says that a single-access development could have at most 24 homes. The Waterford Pond plan violated that proviso, as well as rules about the maximum lengths of cul-de-sacs and building heights.

• Home Quarters:

Raji, a Fraser resident, made a deal with Home Quarters for the 152,000 square foot home improvement products store to share his 33 acres with a 24-lot single-family-home subdivision. The Quarters site was located next door to the already-approved Home Depot site plan. Both incorporated the township's Haggerty Planned Unit Development (HPUD) ordinance option. That allows a developer to build something on a parcel on Haggerty that normal zoning wouldn't allow in return for a "recognizable and substantial benefit" to the township, among other conditions.

The Quarters plan met the conditions of the HPUD ordinance, the suit said, but the township rejected it anyway because the Home Depot had already been approved.

The plans of Home Quarters and Home Depot are "virtually identical," the suit said. The suit asks the court to declare illegal the following section of the HPUD ordinance:

"The township planning commis-sion and the board of trustees shall find that the HPUD will result in a recognizable and substantial benefit to the ultimate users of the project and to the township, where such benefit would otherwise be unfeasible. or unlikely to be achieved. The benefits can be provided through site design elements in excess of the requirements of this ordinance that would otherwise apply such as high quality architectural design, extensive landscaping, sensitivity to adjacent residenthat land uses, unique site design features, unified access and preservation of natural features."

The "recognizable and substantial benefit" clause is an "arbitrary standard" which is not being uniformly applied, the suit said.

PLANNING THE

NIGHT TO REMEMBER

By MICHELLE HARRISON Staff Writer

t's the one magical night where sparks are exchanged between old high school flames, you're reunited with your freshman locker partner, and the homecoming queen and king don't look so much like royalty anymore. "Going to your high school reunion is the only time in your life you can rekindle the memories, the friends-it's something that can never be replaced," said Lisa Muscio, class president of North Farmington's Class of 1981. "You go back for one night and relive those special (memories). The nice thing about reunions is that in high schools that had a lot of --cliques, when you go back to the reunion, they've grown out of that."

Muscio is an expert of sorts on class reunions. She quit her advertising sales and promotion job at AMC Theatres four years ago to begin Reunions Made Easy. The Novi-based business is planning 18 class reunions this year.

"We take care of the two biggest things," Muscio said. "Number one, we handle all of the financial responsibilities ... and we locate initial announcement is sent out nine to 12 months before the reunion date. A "lost list" is then compiled and sent out about three months later.

When the company receives any mail "returned to sender," Muscio's employees then turn to the database. They use CDROM's ProPhone, an intensified search using last names of residents living in the state. The computer has come in quite handy.

"Until that point we were going through phone books searching for names." Muscio said. "Now, on a normal list we'll add 20 to 30 more people where before we might have pulled 10 (from the phone directories)."

About four months before the reunion, classmate then receive the official invitation. A response card is enclosed.

"Trying to look formal is important," Muscio said. "We don't just want to send out a piece of paper that says 'hey, come to your reunion."

A confirmation card is sent to classmates one to four months before the reunion before the final "hope to see you" card is sent out about four weeks before the event.

Muscio said all of the mailings are important because people tend to procrastinate.

"We really try to encourage every single person to come," she said.

Besides handling the deposits on the hall, banquet and entertainment services, Reunions Made Easy also provides a memory address book, decorates in the class's school colors and puts together biographies on the classmates. "Some people even want to add promotional items," Muscio said, explaining that older classes like coffee cups with their class years on them while the younger classes prefer beer mugs or squeeze bottles. During the night of the reunion, Muscio's staff sets up a check-in station to greet guests. Sometimes they even pass around a cordless mike and begin "interviewing" the audience. Most of the time, they stay behind the scenes, though. "It's their night," Muscio said. "We don't want to take the limelight away from their night."

That's why Muscio loves her job so much. She gets to do all the planning, and then she gets to watch her hard work pay off.

"It's really neat, kinda like planning a wedding in a way because you work so hard," she said. "For most people, though, they're so busying planning their party that you don't get to enjoy it. It's cool to be able to just sit back and watch everyone but not really be a part of it."

And although she's planned numerous reunions, each one is different.

"It's interesting for us to see the differences in parties," she added, adding that some class will come dressed to the nines, decked out in tuxes and sequined dresses while others are more casual. Some classes will dance to the disc jockey while others are so busy gabbing that they don't even notice the dance floor until the last half hour.

At the Northville Class of 1972 reunion,

For those who want to venture on their own in planning a class reunion, Muscio has the following advice:

> STATE AR ..... "You need a good year to plan," she said.

Hails have to be booked, menus have to be planned and entertainment has to selected.

UNIT PLANHING COMMITTEES TO A MAX-MUM OF FOUR PEOPLE: Any more than that will make decision-making a nightmare, according to Muscio

> MAKE SURE CONTRACTS ARE MGNED: And, to make life easier, make sure you know where the contracts are at. For more information about Reunions Made Easy, call (810) 380-6100.

the classmates."

Muscio said since her fees are built into the ticket prices, there are no upfront costs to the reunion planning committee. Of course, that involves some good guesswork.

"Basically we're playing fortune tellers," she said. "We've been lucky, knock on wood, by guessing plus or minus up to 25 people. We really try to get a feel for the class. And we don't take on any (class) either."

A seven-step process is followed to locate classmates. The a cordless microphone was passed around and a Desert Storm veteran and a classmate living in Australia told about their experiences. One classmate even got up and read a poem.

"Some reunions have invited their teachers and one raised money and gave it for a new outfit for the school mascot," Muscio said.

Steimel has say in operations at senior's center

By DOROTHY NASH Special Writer

Getting from here to there and having some fun, too. can be a problem for senior citizens.

And that's why there is the Northville Area Senior Citizens Advisory Council, of which Lorraine Steimel is a member.

Once a month the council meets with Traci Johnson, director of Parks and Recreation, and Karl Peters, senior citizens coordinator, to discuss problems and generate ideas on how they can be resolved within the monetary constraints set by the City Council.

The Cady Street Senior Citizen Building is the focal point for area seniors. It's open Monday through Thursday from 9 a.m. until 4:30 p.m., and seniors play cards—different games at different times. Monthly pot lucks are held there, too, and it's also the scene for blood pressure clinics and income tax assistance. Understandably, it costs money to maintain the place and provide electricity, heating and cleaning.

Recently the problem of inadequate parking has come up. To serve seniors, some of whom have walking problems, Steimel said, additional space should be found nearby.

The biggest budget item, however, it transportation. Yes, seniors do donate a token amount per ride.

Lately it has been decided that another van is needed to handle the seniors needing transportation.

Not just the initial cost but the maintenance of this is an item for the council to consider.

If you would like to listen in on a meeting of the Advisory Council. Steimel said, you are invited. The time is the third Friday of the month at 1 p.m. at the Cady Street building.

DANCERS RECOGNIZED

One of the largest and most prestigious scholarships in competitive dance has been awarded to the Piazza Dance Company of Northville Township.

The $5,000 prize, known as the Bill Como Memorial Award for Dance Excellence," was presented by the American Dance Spectrum National Performing Arts Competition at its 15th annual event in Orlando, Fla.

The week-long convention and competition, held in July, featured over 1,100 entries from all over the United States and Canada. To be eligible for the national contest, the entry first had to qualify at the state competition, which was held at Clarenceville High School in April Piazza Dance Company's winning routine was a musical theater duet entitled "The Conversation." Students Tania Garrant, 18, of Novi, and Amy Frankel, 16, of Northville, delighted the judges with their performance which portrays two teenagers doing what teens love to do-talk on the telephone.

Throughout the week the routine was scrutinized by two sets of judges through various preliminary events, winning first a $500 prize for achieving the highest score in the duo/trio category. Entries were judged on choreography, costume and performance.

There were further honors as teacher/choreographer Gina Piaz-za, co-owner of the school, was named the recipient of the Diamond Award for Outstanding Choreography for the routine.

How will the winnings be used? "We will ensure the use of this scholarship is in keeping with its dignity and intent; that is, to promote the continued dance education and training of our students and teachers," Piazza said.

This is the second time the award has been won by a Michigan school.

The Plazza Dance Company is celebrating its 14th year in Northville.

Harry, Sally, popcorn equal an evening of fun

WHEN HARRY MET SALLY By Helaine Binstock Novi

Leaving college, Harry (Billy Crystal) accompanies his girlfriend's chum on her way to the big apple because he needs a ride and she needs to share car expenses.

Even though Harry finds Sally (Meg Ryan) an oddball, especially when ordering food, she's interesting and fun to talk to. They get into weird discussions.

Sally regards Harry a chauvinist. He states opinions on topics she'd rather not hear about. She silences his stubborn conviction that females don't "fake" sexual delight, seated in a packed restaurant. He finds the embarrassing demonstrating amusing.

The lengthy car ride is filled with hilarious debates about everything. Each crazy issue provides the viewer lots of laughs. When they eventually reach their destination, they assume they'll never meet again.

Years later, miraculously, their paths again cross. But now, each is seriously distressed from a recent love rift, his having ended in divorce. They form a brotherhood. They even help each other search for new partners. Theirs is a solidly platonic friendship, until

"When Harry Met Saily" (1989) is directed by Rob Reiner. It's funny, romantic and witty with great performances by Crystal, Ryan, Carrie Fisher and Bruno Kirby.

St. Bernards home with you because "Beethoven's 2nd" is on home video.

Beethoven's back! And this time he brings along his girlfriend, Missy, and their four puppies ... along with tons of mischief.

Unlike most sequels, which let viewers down big time, "Beethoven's 2nd" isn't like that at all. It gives the same winning performances as the original without copying it, like the "Home Alones." It deals with mature matters, such as kidnapping. (Or, in this case, puppy napping). And whether you love dogs or hate dogs, you'll love "Beethoven's 2nd.'

Not since Lassie has a dog been so loyal.

"Beethoven's 2nd" gets give stars out of five and deserves each and every one.

Kids and adults will love it. I suggest you buy it at your local video store to watch again and again.

THE MASK By Mike Kapusky Northville

This movie is a unique, visually stunning, new comedy with a heart. There, that's all you need to know. "Spoken!" roars the greenheaded Carrey. "The Mask" takes an everyday

Stanley Ipkiss (Jim Carrey) and transforms him from a timid, bank clerk to a fast-talking nutty super hero all from the power of an ancient mask that, when worn, has the ability to grasp one's pleasures and dreams and scatter them into reality in the most peculiar ways.

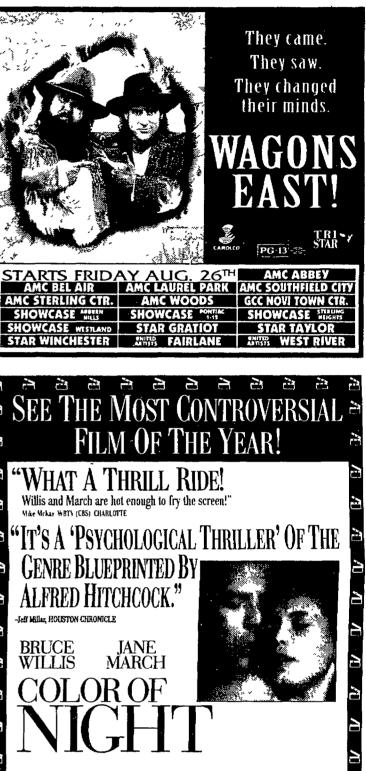

Stanley has an obsession with cartoons; therefore, he suddenly is spun into a fast-talking "toon" that no one seems to notice or care that he is a green-faced weirdo. Well, there goes the old Muppet proverb-"It's not easy being green.

lpkiss finds that he can tame any dame, bug any thug and stop any cop. He can say or do anything he wants, but in the end, he realizes it was all in him even without the mask. Under all the thick layers of latex and make-up Jim Carrey's comedy and expressions are undoubtedly, still visible. Carry does an outstanding job with a little help from the '90s movie magic and his dog, Milo, who even leaves Lassie on the endangered species list. "The Mask" conjures up a

Mustangs aim for brighter 1994 with experience

By SCOTT DANIEL Sports Editor

If experience counts for anything, Doug Lyon's Mustang soccer team should find success in 1994. Three-quarters of Northville High's varsity roster will consist of upperclassmen-nine seniors and six juniors to be exact Lyon said it should translate into a few more wins for his team this fall.

With the experience of playing a couple of years of varsity and with the talent we've got coming up." he said, "it should all balance out. We should do all right."

Northville had a respectable '93 campaign winning 10 games and dropping seven. Western Lakes rival Livonia Churchill knocked the Mustangs out of the state playoffs in districts as well

"It was a good season," said Lyon, who is in his second year as head varsity coach

Last year's club had talent. Bo Fowler, Rob Nelson and Chad Tolstedt led the Mustangs.

Replacing those folks won't be easy But the Mustangs had plenty of young players ready to take the challenge.

A total of 61 players tried out.

Lyon said he was only able to keep 40 students in the program at the varsity and junior varsity levels.

"Cuts were tough to make this year," the coach said. Four freshmen did manage to survive the axe. Andy Weyer, Sam Vida and James Graff will play at forward. Adam Tibble will see time at halfback.

Lyon said he had an exceptional group of 20 freshmen try out for the Mustangs. Many of them per-formed very well in practice.

"These freshmen came from a very good premier team," said Lyon They just dominated (practice) with their skills."

With so many freshmen in the program, the coach said a solid future is ensured for the Mustangs.

"The freshmen we kept will be the Fowlers and Nelsons of the future," Lyon commented.

Matt Sweet was the lone sophomore to make varsity. Lyon said all of his players will have to earn playing time regardless of age. "I won't play a senior just Playing for the Trenton Steele's. the senior participated in the American Amateur Baseball. Congress' World Series. Playing both infield and outfield, Rice, reached base six times in eight at J bats.

"I had a great series," he said. And a great season, too. After, joining Trenton in June, Rice, played in nearly all of the team's 70 games. He played all over the field, catcher, infield and outfield, while batting cleanup.

"It was fun playing at all the dif-ferent spots." he commented. "I found it challenging." Rice batted well over .300 this summer and knocked in his fair share of runs. He described play-, ing for Trenton as a growing experience.

"It was a lot better competition (than high school)," Rice said.

Trenton finished second in a 24team league to qualify for districts.

'Super 18' brings top holes together

All golfers have a favorite hole or two from the courses they play each year.

Wouldn't it be great to combine all of them into a fantasy course? What would that course look like? How difficult would it be?

This summer, HomeTown Newspapers has reviewed some of the finest and most interesting courses in the metropolitan area. From Northville westward through Novi, South Lyon and Milford, the weekly reviews have covered everything from par 3 to country club cours-

So we got to wondering. What were the best 18 holes from the courses we've written about? Listed below is HomeTown Newspapers' "Super 18." It wasn't easy selecting the holes from such outstanding courses as Tanglewood, Cattails and Meadowbrook. But we feel we've put together a representative collection that would challenge even the best of golfers

But don't plan on messing up too many shots to get close to our par of 35

Take a peek at our choices and think about how you might fare on our Super 18 (listed in parenthesis is the actual course and hole number). · · ·

Hole No. 1, 546 yards par 5

Imported from Meadowbrook Country Club in Northville, our first hole is a humdinger.

Golfers have to navigate around fairway bunkers and hope for a decent lie off of their tee shot to be successful. About 200 yards out into the left side of the fairway a large bunker sits to collect any hooks. Hit it in there and you can say, "Hello bogey!" (Meadowbrook No. 2)

Hole No. 2, 373 yards par 4

One of our front nine's toughest, this beauty, forget it. A dogleg left, golfers must hit a small green on their second shot.

Hooks on those second shots are penalized by a large pond while a slice sends your ball into the woods (Meadowbrook No. 4)

Hole No. 4, 396 yards par 4 Our third straight par 4 is tight, tight, tight. Woods outline the fairway on the left while a large pond stands off to the right about 230 vards from the tee. It might be wise to lay up on your drive and hit a medium to short iron into the green (Tanglewood No. 1).

Hole No. 5, 130 yards par 3

Woooosh, you say, a relief from the murderous long holes. Not so fast, links breath.

A large pond runs from the middle of the fairway up to the edge of a steep sand trap. Hit it over the green and you're in the woods. If dle iron. Good luck (Meadowbrook No. 11).

Hole No. 7, 461 yards par 5 Bring a few extra balls to this hole, you'll need 'em.

It's a dogleg right with woods shutting down any attempt to cut the corner. But that's not the scary part

In order to get to the green. golfers have to hit over about a 100-yard section of cattails. Par this hole and you get a large pat on the back (Cattails No. 10).

Hole No. 8, 414 yards par 4

Not to burst your bubble, but it's next to impossible to hit this green in two. The fairway features a steep incline making the hole feel even longer than it is (Kensington No. 18).

Hole No. 9, 524 yards par 5

Water and bunkers surround the green making it a difficult go. But, the par 4 calls for exact placement. A split fairway, which is divided by a large stand of trees, can make the hole play short or long.

To keep it short, stay right. Anything to the left leaves almost nothing to shoot at on your approach to the green (Cattails No.

Hole No. 3, 453 yards par 4 If you can't hit it a long way on you have nerve problems, and most golfers do, avoid this hole (Downing Farms No. 6).

Hole No. 6, 210 yards par 3

It's the par 3 from hell. Well, almost. You'll tee off uphill and shoot towards a large down-sloping green.

Club selection is the toughest part about the hole. It's too short for a driver and too long for a midon a calm day, the John Dalys of the world might make it there in two (Tanglewood No. 3).

Hole No. 10, 391 yards par 4

This hole can leave you in a ditch, literally. The question to ask yourself is, do you feel lucky?

Cattails line a ditch, which is some 220 yards out into the fairway-cutting it in two in fact. Be bold here and it can cost you a

Meadowbrook offers scenic round of golf

By SCOTT DANIEL Sports Editor

"Is this heaven?"

"No It's Meadowbrook ' "Funny, I could've sworn it was heaven.

Meadowbrook Country Club Golf Professional Andy Soley must have this short conversation a hundred times a year. That's because new members and guests are bound to feel like they've had a spiritual experience at the Northville course.

It is, quite simply, golfing nirvana.

How many courses in the metropolitan area have two cuts of rough, sand bunkers that feel like sand and not gravel, absolutely smooth, true-rolling greens and grounds keepers who are actually courteous? Not many.

"It's a course you can play day in and day out, and not get tired of," Soley says.

First opened in 1916, the Eight Mile Road landmark serves with style and dignity. Fine dinning, tennis and swimming facilities add to the charm of the wonderfully manicured links at Meadowbrook.

"The majority of our members are in the area." Soley said. "It's a local-type membership."

Just more than 300 folks are allowed Class A membership at the club. For the expense, which is considerable. golfers are treated like royalty.

"I wouldn't say that we compete with anybody," said Soley. "We have great membership and people that are on a waiting list (to get in) "

It's easy to see why. Meadowbrook offers a beautiful setting and a challenging round of golf.

The front and back nines also seem to have their own individual flair. The first nine is, relatively, short and demands superior placement while the second nine is longer and more forgiving. The 546-yard second hole illustrates the front nine's character.

Although it's reasonably long, the par 5 calls for accurate shooting. A solid tee shot here can still be trouble, for example. If it drifts left chances are it'll be in a fairway bunker, smack it too far and you'll be hitting from a downhill lie.

Don't mess up on your shot to the green, either. Those powderfilled bunkers are plentiful around the second green and most of Meadowbrook's 18 holes.

Rated the toughest hole on the course, No. 4 is nasty. Plan on crushing both your drive and second shot to reach the 453-yard par 4 in regulation.

Making it in regulation at the fourth and the rest of Meadowbrook doesn't guarantee par, however. Swift greens require a soft touch and a little luck.

"What makes the course great are the greens," said Soley. "They have subtle undulations that the first-time player doesn't pick up." True enough.

Meadowbrook's first par 3, the 152-yard sixth, is also one of its prettiest holes.

A beautiful teeing area is marked by nicely arranged flowers. A small stone-lined pond is placed some 50 or 60 yards in front of the tees to collect the duffer's dubbed shot.

Careful on club selection at No.

6. While yardage lists at 152 (from the white tees) it plays much shorter A solid 7 or 8-iron should work well.

The front nine closes with an easy par 4 of 316 yards. The only trouble here is created by a slice off the tee. Otherwise a 2-iron or 3wood from the tee should set up a short iron into the green.

Golfers must change their mindset a bit going into the back nine. Time to grip and rip. Starting with No. 11, Meadow

With summer slowly fading and fall rapidly approaching, it's time to begin preparation for the fall sports season. Whether your sport is team or individual.

Conditioning. Proper conditioning is essential to give 100-percent effort to your sport. A good conditioning program requires four to six weeks. Conditioning should involve components of aerobic, anaerobic and weight training activities. Swimming, biking slow long-distance running, inter-you must train at your target heart rate (THR) for at least 20 minutes. To find your THR, use this easy method:

THR = (220 - age) x 70 percent (use 80 percent for highly conditioned athletes) Your conditioning program should include sport-specific and cross-training activities. Nutrition. An athlete's diet should include high-carbohydrate and low-fat food sources.

Rest. The body needs time to recover and repair" itself-not just by sleeping at night but by resting from strenuous activity to enable muscle, tissue and bone to regenerate, remodel and repair to produce positive effects from your training program.

Now you are ready for fall sports. During the season, if you experience a breakdown, your body may respond with the following signs and symptoms:

unscheduled meetings or calls.

4. Discomfort with activity or motion. Acknowledge these as warning signs and respond appropriately by:

your body to repair itself.

2. Treating the problem yourself by following the simple formula RICE:

R-rest; reduce activity.

I-ice; apply directly to body part for 20 minutes as many times during the day as possible (20 minutes per hour is a good rule of thumb). C--compression; support the injured part to prevent additional stress to the area. E-elevation; raise the body part to reduce swelling and decrease the collection of fluids at the injury site.

Remember-RICE is always the correct response. Do not apply heat to any new injury. If self-treatment has decreased or eliminated the problem, slowly return to activity. Remember, slow progression to full activity helps keep the injury from recurring. You only have one healthy body-take care of it. When it talks to you, listen and it will respond to your demands. Have a safe, productive and healthy fall sports season. As that one famous shoemaker says. "Just Do It."

WHAT IF YOUR KID WAS ONE OF "JERRY'S KIDS?"

If your child had muscular dystrophy, his walk would become awkward. He'd fall down a lot He'd have trouble climbing starrs.

Eventually, he would need a wheelchair. And once he was in it, he'd never get out.

"Muscular dystrophy" is the name for a group of diseases that weaken and destroy muscles The disorders are progressive, so things get worse over time. The muscle loss can't be stopped. And it can't be reversed.

The Muscular Dystrophy Association is striving to cure muscular dystrophy. And on Christmas Eve of 1987, in what MDA Chairman Jerry Lewis called "a holiday gift of hope," MDA researchers announced a landmark advance: discovery of the cause of the most dreaded form of muscular dystrophy, Duchenne.

To cure Duchenne, though, more hard work is needed. And there are many other forms of muscular dystrophy to conquer.

You can help fight muscular dystrophy and other muscle diseases by making a taxdeductible donation to MDA. The Association receives no government grants or patient fees, so its work is funded entirely by private contributions.

Your child may not be one of "Jerry's kids" - but remember how it felt to imagine that he was. Please send your support to MDA today.

In the finals, a battle of two unbeaten and unscored upon teams, the Bay Village Blaze scored after several near misses by the Sting. The Sting, however, stormed back from a 1-0 halftime deficit to burn the Blaze 4-1.

WOLVES CAPTURE FIRST: The 1984 Michigan Wolves took first prize in the U-11 boys division of the 14th annual Maumee International Festival Soccer Tournament in Maumee, Ohio, Aug. 12-14.

The Wolves, coached by Paul Sciculna, defeated the Maumee Express 2-1, Strongsville Sharks 5-0, Westlake Hurricanes 2-0 and Novi Jaguars 2-0. The lone goal scored against the Wolves was the result of a penalty kick.

In the finals, the Wolves faced conference rivals Canton Lightning, a team they tied in all four previous meetings. Canton entered the game undefeated and unscored upon.

The Wolves scored first at seven minutes of the overtime then survived a relentless attack in the final three minutes for the 1-0 victory.

REAL ESTATE Broker goes to the airwaves to sell homes

By James M. Woodard Copley News Service

Real estate broker Etta Lanouette uses a unique method to market her residential listings. She pitches the home's merits on radio -to one family at a time sitting in their cars.

A small radio transmitter is positioned at the listed property. A front-yard sign asks drive-by viewers to tune their car radio to a cer-tain frequency on their AM dial. When tuned in, they hear a brief prerecorded description of the house, along with price and special financing terms.

Lanouette's recorded message is played over and over, accessed by anyone in front of the house tuning in. The message concludes, with an invitation to phone the broker for a personal inspection tour.

Lanouette calls these listed properties her "talking houses." She has invested about $1,000 in four of the special mini-transmitters.

She started using the innovative communications idea at a newly listed home in a predominantly Spanish-speaking neighborhood. She immediately encountered a language problem. The message needed to be in Spanish. But Lanouette doesn't speak Spanish.

The property-owner's daughter, 11-year-old Cindy Flores, who is bilingual, agreed to record the message now heard in front of the listed home. Cindy describes the home in glowing terms in her message, mentioning that people who inspect the house should take special note of her room.

"It's always in dream condition," she said (probably with crossed fingers behind her back).

Having Cindy record the message resulted in giving the broker an unexpected marketing edge. Cindy has told all her friends about her radio debut. Those friends, in turn, are insisting that their parent drive them by the house so they can hear the broadcast. It gives the home more expo-

Putting your recyclables out for pick-up or taking them to the local recycling center is one way to keep out landfill materials that could be used again.

Another way is to use them yourself. Gardening provides lots of opportunities for recycling, said Mary McLellan, master gardener coordinator at Michigan State University.

Some of the more obvious are paper milk cartons, yogurt cups and other throwaway containers used to start flower and vegetable seeds. Once plants are in the garden, you can cut the bottoms out of plastic milk jugs and place the top portions over young transplants to protect them from the cold.

Leaves, grass clippings and vegetable parings and other non-meat, non-fat food scraps can be put into a compost pile or placed in trenches in the garden to decompose. They'll add organic matter and nutri-ents to the soil. Avoid meat scraps and other fatty foods-they'll attract dogs, raccoons, rats and other animals.

Prunings from woody ornamentals can be chipped and used as mulch around trees bulbs, McLellan suggested. Instead of mulching in the vegetable garden with plastic, which is a nuisance to put down and must be taken up again in the fall, try placing several lay-ers of newspaper on the soil between rows and around plants. To hold the paper down, cover it with soil, compost or a thick layer of leaves or straw.

The paper will gradually decompose over the summer so you can simply till it under in the fall. In the meantime, it will help discourage weed growth and conserve soil moisture.

Old carpeting and corrugated cardboard also make good mulch, but they must be taken up before the soil is tilled.

If cutworms have been a problem, you can recycle waste cardboard into cutworm collars to protect peppers and other trans-plants. You can use cardboard tubes from paper towels and toilet paper or cut strips of cardboard from cereal boxes or shirt inserts.

At transplanting time, slip a cardboard tube over each seedling and push

it into the soil so that it reaches two to three inches above the soil surface. Cutworms looking for a tender seedling to munch on can't get past the barrier.

At harvest time, use old wire twist ties to organize bunches of herbs or flowers for drying. Simply twist one end of the tie around a bunch of stems and hook the other end over a wire clothes hanger. If you plan on freezing vegetables, fill milk cartons and juice concentrate cans with water and freeze to make blocks of ice for chilling blanched veggies. Plastic jugs can likewise be filled with water and frozen. The resulting block of ice can be used in picnic coolers or taken along when you travel-or go out to work in the garden-for a ready supply of ice-cold drinking water.

Perhaps the easiest type of recycling around the house is to return grass clippings to your lawn. Mow grass often enough so that you remove no more than one-third (about 1 inch) of the vertical grass height so clippings can drop down among the grass plants. When clippings pile up on the lawn, you've let mowing go too long.

Grass clippings returned to the lawn can provide up to 25 percent of your lawn's total fertilizer needs.

Waterwise landscaping

By C.Z. Guest Copley News Service

Increasing difficulties in managing water resources are causing most people to rethink the way they use water. Xeriscape is simply a rally word for water-efficient landscaping. Planning is the most important principle because it allows you to install your plantings step by step, which minimizes initial expenses.

The principles of water-wise landscaping are not new. They have been tried and tested by home gardeners and professionals for years.

The following tips serve as a basic introduction:

• Soil improvements. It allows for better absorption of water and improved waterholding capacity of the soil. Soils that have organic matter also provide beneficial nutrients to plants for proper growth. It's best to improve the soil prior to the installation of any irrigation system.

• Efficient irrigation. This means well-planned sprinkler systems that save water. Plantings should also be grouped according to similar water needs. Grass is best watered with sprinklers while flowers, shrubs, trees and ground covers can be watered correctly with low-volume

GARDENING

drip, spray or bubbler emit-ters. Water adequately and only when needed

• Use drought-tolerant plants. Most plants have a place in xeri-scape, especially adapted varieties. Numerous attractive shrubs, garden flowers, trees and ground covers are available to complement your landscape. Drought-tolerant grasses are also available and grow beautifully.

• Use mulches. Mulches cover and cool soil, minimize evaporation, reduce weeds and slow erosion. Organic mulches are bark chips, chipped leaves (oak is best), pine needles and grass cuttings. Never use plastic sheeting in planting areas.

Proper maintenance. Maintenance preserves the beauty of your plantings and saves water. Proper pruning, mowing, weeding, pest control, fertilization and irrigation are the key to waterwise savings.

For example, patio space needs little or no water and adds value to any house, while mulched pathways provide an excellent alternative

Xeriscape planting

- Improve soil before installing irrigation systems,
   Group plants according to water needs.
   Cultivate drought-tolerant plants.

- If your yard is naturally wet or has a low, soggy place, consider a water garden or fish pond.
   Use organic mulches, such as bark chips, chipped leaves, pine needles and grass cuttings.

What to do with ugly fixtures

Refinishing bath fixtures is a fairly tough project. Repainting is hard enough, and refinishing is better left to the professional. Epoxy or polyurethane paints can be used to repaint, but follow directions carefully. These paints are really plastic coating systems. Better than painting, have a synthetic porcelain glaze applied. This should not be attempted by an amateur.

E Unsightly bathtubs may be best dealt with by buying a bathtub liner that completely hides the old surface.

Copley News Service/Dan Clifford

Refinishing stained bathtubs

By Gene Gary Copley News Service

9. We moved into an older home that has a badly stained bathtub. Is there any do-ityourself method of refinishing an older porcelain fixture such as this?

A. Refinishing bath fixtures is a difficult doit-yourself project. They can be painted, but not with ordinary paint. Choose one of the newer epoxy or polyurethane paints. These are plastic coating systems. The most durable of these paints come in two-part systems that react chemically when combined to form an exceptionally strong bond and durable finish that has good resistance to the permeation of water.

But these paints are difficult to work with and apply. Follow manufacturer's directions carefully, including the preparation of the surface to be painted (some type of etching of the surface is usually best to assure maximum bonding of the paint).

Although painting can be successful, a better method of refinishing is to have a new synthetic porcelain glaze applied. This is not a doit-yourself process and a professional should apply the new finish.

The refinishing process requires that the entire surface be cleaned, sanded and chemically etched. Rust is chemically removed. Cracks, chips and pits are filled and sanded smooth. Several coats of primer and the final finish coat is sprayed on.

These new coatings are available in several colors and custom colors can be mixed. Check with firms that specialize in repairing and refinishing bathtubs and sinks.

Another method of refurbishing unsightly bathtubs is to have a new bathtub liner installed over the older fixture. Re-Bath Tub Liners (P.O. Box 15453, Phoenix, AZ 85018) is one manufacturer of plastic liners.

When contracting with a firm for refinishing or installation of a bath liner. it is best to check several suppliers to obtain price estimates and information on the type of guarantee provided prior to making a decision. The cost of the professional porcelain refinishing or the bath liner is usually less expensive than the replacement of the entire fixture.

Q. We are having a problem with hard water, which causes a buildup and staining on our fiberglass tub and shower doors. I have tried general cleaners that have had no effect. Many of the cleaners are not recommended for plastics or fiberglass. These fixtures have become very unattractive and I would like your recommendation on how to remove this staining.

A. Abrasive cleaners are not recommended for fiberglass or plastics, nor are strong chemical solutions.

There are two products I know of that can be effective without damaging the surface in most instances.

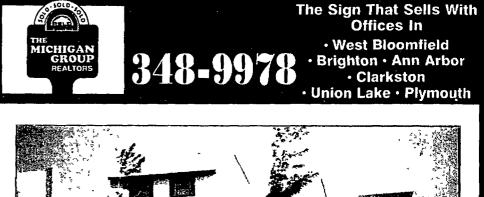

One such product is CLR, manufactured by Jamie Industries Inc. (6600 N. Lincoln Ave., Lincolnwood, IL 60645). It removes calcium, lime and rust deposits and is recommended for glassware, decanters, tea and coffee pots, as well as fiberglass and porcelain tubs, toilets, sinks, chrome and metal surfaces.

In some instances, it can be corrosive, particularly on glazed surfaces and some metals, so be sure and test first in an inconspicuous area.

Another product is De-Solve-It, manufactured by Orange-Sol Inc. (P.O. Box 306 Chandler, AZ 85224). This also is a good product for removal of soap scum, water deposit buildup on shower doors and glassware, as well as the removal of sticky glue residue from labels. It can be used on plastic as well as glassware and metal surfaces.

Test first before proceeding. Both of these products are available in many supermarkets, hardware stores and home supply centers. However, if you cannot find them in your area, contact the manufacturer direct for information.

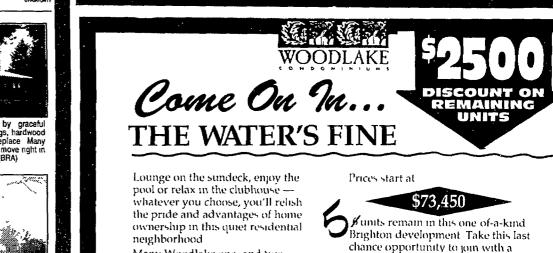

Send inquiries to Here's How, Copley News Service, P.O. Box 190, San Diego, CA 92112-0190. Only questions of general interest can be answered in the column.

'Christine' figurine from the 30s

By Anne McCollam Copley News Service

G. I have a Royal Doulton figurine that I inherited from my grandmother. It is marked with No. HN 1840 and her name is "Christine." She is 7-3/4 inches high. Her gown is red and she is wearing a blue shawl.

Can you tell me the approximate worth and where I can sell my figurine?

A. Royal Doulton manufactured figurines of "Christine" from 1938 to 1949. She was designed by Leslie Harradine. A figurine similar to yours would probably fetch $550 to $600 in an antique shop.

If you decide to sell her, you might consider seeking a reputable antique dealer or an auction house. Keep in mind you can't expect a dealer to pay you the retail price.

g. Enclosed is the mark on the bottom of a china plate that I have. It is 10 inches in diameter. The center of the plate is decorated with a picture of a buildog. On the rim are the words "Buster Brown." The plate belonged to my grandmother and I used it as a child in the early 1930s. Any information you can provide will be appreciated.

A. Your plate was made by the East Liverpool, Ohio, pottery Taylor, Smith & Taylor Co. This mark was used from 1901 to 1915.

In 1972, Anchor Hocking purchased the firm and it continued operating until 1981. The bulldog on your plate is "Tige" (short for Tiger), who is "Buster Brown's" talking dog. They were the comic strip creations of Richard F. Outcault first appearing in the

ANTIQUES

New York Herald in 1902. Buster Brown became one of America's favorite mischievous scamps. Eventually the pair were used as trademarks on a plethora of children's clothing. Your plate would probably be worth $65 to $75.

9. Would you please let me know the value of my Cedar Lane chest. It is the Brewster" model. It measures 45x19x32 inches. I have had it for almost 50 years.

A. The cedar chest was a 1920s innovation. They were either lined with fragrant cedar or made completely from cedar. The aromatic red cedar was believed to kill moths.

The Lane Co. in Altavista, Va., was one of the leading manufacturers of cedar chests. They were available in many styles, from period designs to styles that reflected the current trends.

In some regions, they were known as "hope chests." They were sometimes given to unmarried young women and filled with linens and objects to be used when she married, thus the name. The value of your chest would probably be about $225 to S250.

Q. I have two Steuben glass figurines, one of a rabbit and the other of a songbird.

Can you tell me if Steuben glass is currently being made by Corning Glass Co., and what the value of my glass animals would be in today's market?

A. Steuben Glass Works was founded in Corning, N.Y., in 1903 by Frederick Carder and Thomas G. Hawkes. Corning Glass Co. purchased the firm in 1918. The company continues to operate today manufacturing clear glass of exceptional quality.

Each glass animal would probably be in the $150 to $200 range.

BOOK REVIEW

Author Barbara Loveless GiekBurke showcases Hull pottery lines produced from 1960 to 1985 in her book "Collector's Guide to Hull Pottery, The Dinnerware Lines, Identification & Values" (Collector Books).

She traces the history of the firm's glory days to the devastating closing of the factory. Such expert and thorough documentation of this era of Hull pottery is unprecedented.

Dates, descriptions, history, color photos. catalog reprints, price values make this one "Hull" of a book!

broker's dream.

Teaser ARMs

Be cautious of adjustable-rate mortgages (ARMs) that offer deep discount teaser rates. It could be risky and costly to borrowers, lenders and taxpayers.

That's the advice of John Robin-

Office of Thrift Supervision. His comments were carried in the National Mortgage News.

A discount teaser rate is an artificially low interest rate for a brief initial period-usually three to six months. It then jumps up substantially, typically 3 percentage points or more.

Increasing competition by lenders marketing ARMs is motivating the expanded use of these teaser rates. And that could signifson, a regional director of the icantly increase the potential credit risk or interest rate risk in a single-family home mortgage, according to Robinson.

The deeper the introductory rate discount and the faster and higher the increase in the cost-offunds index, the more negative amortization will erode the loan's original loan-to-value ratio," he said, "even eliminating the borrower's equity altogether." "Robinson cited an ARM loan originated at a 90 percent loan-to-value with an introductory discount of 3.25 per-of-funds should rise by 1 percent per year for three years, the borrower's equity not only would be wiped out by the fifth year, but by the sixth year the effective loan-tovalue could be nearly 107 percent unless the borrower voluntarily made principal payments. "The whole purpose of an ARM loan was to transfer interest-rate risk from the lender to the borrower. In return, the lender reflects the lower risk in a lower interest rate.

that risk back to the lender," Robinson said.

a set of terms (such as deep teaser rates), but after closer examination they end up selecting another of the lender's regular loan products."

Countrywide Funding, said: "Some savings and loan associations are just murdering us (mortgage bro-kers) with these low-ball ARM loans. It's irresponsible behavior, reminiscent of their behavior in the 1980s. It could result in cost- * ing taxpayers money again if this behavior is allowed to continue."

to tuck in seldom-used side areas. Keep in mind, shady, northern exposure provides a protected environment that needs less water.

Q. My husband and I raise Welsh ponies and always enjoy reading your informative garden column. Please elaborate on how dangerous the leaves on the red or swamp maple tree are to horses.

A. The red or swamp maple tree (Acer rubrum) is a common woodlot and bottomland tree whose leaves are known to be toxic to horses. The exact toxic amount is unknown, but beware of wilted leaves on the ground. Poisoning occurs as the leaves drop off in the fall and after windstorms knock leaves off trees in the spring and summer.

Michi Rottet in her new store, the Country Nook.

Stop in today!

A passion for antiques becomes the Country Nook

By SCOTT DANIEL Staff Writer

In search of just the right touch for your living room or kitchen?

Look no further because the Country Nook can handle all of your needs. Located at 39799 Grand River Avenue in Novi's Pheasant Run Plaza, the business specializes in solid Oak and Pine furniture as well as accents.

According to owner Michi Rottet, the Country Nook can add warmth and comfort to your home. She said she enjoys working with customers one-on-one to create just the right atmosphere.

"That is the part I love to do." Rottet says. "I love the creative part.

Creating is nothing new for Rot-

A native of Japan, she grew up admiring the work of her artist. father. It was also during that time ; Rottet developed a love of antiques. particularly American furniture.

"I love all the history," she adds. I've been to Williamsburg and. Greenfield Village."

Of course it took her awhile to get around to her passion.

Rottet worked as a hairdresser for 27 years before getting into the furniture business. The 60-year-old became a partner at Hinkle; Oak Furniture in Livonia and stayed there for eight years doing. custom staining and painting as well as helping run the business. "We developed an excellent reputation," Rottet said.

Illness and differences of opinion with her partner led her to leave Hinkle late last year. It took a very short time before Michi decided to get back in the ball game, however. "I stayed home for 15 days and went nearly crazy," she commented. "I was missing something from my life. I missed people."

After searching for a short time, Rottet found retail space in the Pheasant Run Plaza, just west of Haggerty Road. She said she was lucky to find a spot in Novi. Michi added that it was a central location for many of her loyal customers from Hinkel.

"All of our customers came from Brighton, Howell, Northville, Farmington and Union Lake," said Rottet.

It took a lot of hard work to get the shop open.

Rottet and her husband, Jim. transformed barren space into a homey-feeling store in a few months with his carpentry and her decorating.

All that hard work has been paying off for the couple. Michi said she's gotten an excellent reception from her Novi patrons.

"I did the right thing (in coming to Novi)," she said. "People around here are wonderful and my type of customer."

Folks venturing to the Country Nook will get a wide assortment of items to choose from and Rottet keen attention.

"I want to serve the customer," she said. "When they're happy, I'm happy."

Appropriately enough, "The Nook" is a good place to start shopping in the store. Once a storage area, Rottet has made the space mesh with the rest of the shop.

There you'll find a beautiful solid Oak hutch, clocks as well as a plethora of accent pieces. Wreaths, flower baskets, candles and pillows are just a few items in the Nook that will add spice to your decorative life.

Moving into the main show room area, the Country Nook has a variety of large furniture items to purchase. Coffee and kitchen tables are main items, for example. Rottet says her prices are very competitive.

"We have good quality tables," she added.

Another interesting item are old milk containers. We're not talking about gallon jugs here, we're talking the large, industrial style urns. Only after Rottet works her magic, the steel drums become fine pieces to add your home's entry area.

If you can't decide what would go well with home's style, relax and leave it to Michi.

"(I have) and eye for mixing and matching colors," she says, "and decorating ideas that blend well with the furniture style."

For more information on the Country Nook, call (810) 471-3190. Business Briefs

Northville resident PRIYARAN-JAN PRASAD, engineering con-sultant at FORD'S ADVANCED VEHICLE SYSTEMS ENGINEER-ING OFFICE, received first National Award for the Advancement of Motor Vehicle Research and Development from the National Highway Safety Administration for his contributions toward improving automotive safety. The award recog-nized Prasad's 25 years of work in applied crash simulation and biomechanical research, which includes studies of the effect of crashes on the human spine. The award was presented in the spring during the Society of Automotive Engineers Government/Industry Meeting in Washington, D.C.

YMCA Honor Recognizes Patricia Ann Smith

Patricia Ann Smith of Livonia was recognized by the YMCA of Metropolitan Detroit for her support, commitment and investment in the "Y," as well as other community agencies.

Smith was presented the John W. Armstrong Humanitarian Award for 1994 on May 23 at the Heritage Club, which consists of "Y" supporters who include the YMCA in their estate plan. She is an attorney with the Livonia law firm of Brashear, Tangora and Spence.

For the past 11 years, Smith has served on the board of directors of the Livonia Family YMCA, including two years as chairwoman. During this time she headed a number of committees, such as the annual auction, raising money to ensure that thousands of youth will benefit from the value-oriented programs of the YMCA. Smith also has served on two Metropolitan YMCA committees.

In a letter congratulating Smith, Metropolitan Detroit YMCA senior vice president Kenneth C. Isherwood stated that this award is to honor "a person who believes in sharing and helping other organizations. You were an ideal choice."

A familiar face in Livonia, Smith participates in a number of community organizations. She is past president of the Schoolcraft Foundation Board of Governors and the American Association of University Women and continues her membership on these boards.

Smith also is a member of the Madonna University Trustee Committee on Advancement and Public Relations, and Suburban West Business and Professional Women.

Among her many civic involvements: a member of the Traffic Commission since 1985; committee member on Mayor Bennett's Task Force on Alcohol and Other Drug Awareness; steering committee member for Livonia's Project Legacy; and a member of the Public Safety Task Force for Livonia Project 2000.

Fall I, 1994

PRE-SCHOOL

Gym & Sport

TOT GYM – This class is fun for the child up to three years old. Parents are involved in this class that uses games and activities to work on large muscle groups and handeye coordination. Let your child explore up, down and around on mats and obstacle courses. Work with them to build confidence and enjoy themselves.

TINY TUMBLERS – Get your little ones involved! This class is especially designed for three and four year olds. Creative games using the parachute and balls, imagination practice with animals and sounds, refining tumbling work on the mats and balance beam introduction are all part of this class. Get your kids off to a great start with Tiny Tumblers.

GYM FUNTIME – A supervised time for parents and children to use the gym equipment for free play and activity.

PRE-SCHOOL BALLET (Ages 3-6) – An exciting introduction for your child into the world of ballet. Learning the basic steps and discipline of ballet encourages your child's interest, along with providing fun.

PRE-SCHOOL GYMNASTICS – Don't stop with Tiny Tumblers! Keep your children growing and learning with our Pre-School Gym program. We'll progress to more work on the mats and beams to other gymnastics apparatus such as the uneven bars and rings. Motor skills and fine tuning of coordination and balance will help your child be more successful in everyday tasks and concentration. Plus – they'll have fun! PRE-SCHOOL GYMNASTICS AD-VANCED – Has your child progressed from Pre-School Gym, but is not quite ready for beginner gymnastics? We have the perfect class for them! This class gives your child a little extra time to master skills taught in the Pre-School Program, but also begins to introduce them to the discipline and new skills they will be learning in beginner gym. Also gives your child extra time to socially acclimate to a class structure.

NEW! PRE-SCHOOL T-BALL – An instructional program designed to teach the children the basics of throwing, catching, baserunning, and hitting. Held outside on the grounds between Frost Middle School and the YMCA.

NEW! PRE-SCHOOL T-BALL LEAGUE-An introductory league with the first three weeks of practice and last three weeks games. Volunteers needed! Held at Ford Field number six.

SPORT SAMPLER – This is a great class for the pre-school child to be introduced to a variety of sports: T-ball, basketball, hockey and soccer!

PRE-SCHOOL SOCCER – Designed for the pre-schooler who is not quite ready for the league. Major emphasis is on the basic skills of dribbling, passing and teamwork.

Pee Wee Tennis

NEW! MR. PEE WEE TENNIS - These

PEE WEE II – At this level the child is introduced to hitting the ball on the move. The backhand is presented at this level.

classes are designed to introduce the 4-7 year old to the basics of tennis. Drills and fun games have been developed to improve a child's balance, muscle control, hand/eye coordination and their tennis skills. The YMCA will provide racquets for tots who do not have their own.

PEE WEE I – Introduction to the court and racquet. Stationary forehands are emphasized at this level.

PEE WEE III – We will further develop the forehand and backhand strokes.

SUPER PEE WEE – The basic strokes of tennis are developed to prepare them for the Junior Beginner programs.

control, placement and strategy. Many game situation drills are used. Singles and doubles strategies of the game are emphasized.

– The Junior Excellence program is tailored for the young adult who is serious about their tennis game. Completion of the Junior Intermediate program or its equivalent is a must. Junior Excellence is for the player who desires to play at the high school level or beyond. An optional six week, 1-1/2 hour, weekend competitive league is available for those interested. Program objectives of the Excellence Program include:

Ability to hit ground strokes consistently with depth.

Improve footwork.

Development of a spin serve.

Strenuous conditioning program, with emphasis on quickness, speed, and improved flexibility.

Stroke production drills that give you confidence in your ability.

- For students who have completed Junior Intermediate lessons. Players work with others of the same ability, but are encouraged to develop and advance through a no nonsense approach to serious training.

For the player who has completed Junior Excellence I and II.

– For the player who has completed Advanced Excellence.
