Pump solution costly for some

Vol. 127, No. 7, Four Sections, 50 Pages, Plus Supplements

By RANDY COBLE Staff Writer

A solution to the sump pump problem in two Northville Township subdivisions is on the way. but it won't come quickly, cheaply or without controversy.

The township's board of trustees at an Aug. 25 study session gave a preliminary green light to Director of Public Utilities Bill Anderson's plan to eliminate illegal sump pump discharges in Northville Commons subs 1 through 4 and Northville Colony Estates subs 1 and 2. The OK came despite the protests of some residents of those areas. It also puts in motion a project which will cost nearly half a million dollars and take 21 months to complete.

Officials have been considering what to do about the sump pump problem in the two neighborhoods for almost a year. Excessive water problems caused some in the Commons and Colony Estates to connect their pumps into the sanitary sewers, Anderson said.

When water was allowed to flow into yards, some people's pumps discharged so much water it either destroyed their lawns or overflowed onto the subdivisions' roads, creating icy spots in the winter. To solve that problem some hooked their pumps into the area's sanitary sewer system.

That adds 'clear water' to the sewage flow that gets shipped to treatment plants. As it doesn't need to be treated, the clear water unnecessarily increases township sewer customers' bills. The pump discharges, Anderson said earlier this summer, will cost township sewer users about $35,000 this year. If that figure remains constant, the total over the next 25 years could top $1 million, he

It's also a violation of state and federal law, another reason township officials want to solve the

They began working on a soluovember when the township's Water and Sewer Department surveyed the 579 homes in the two subdivisions, hoping to learn who was hooked into the sanitary sewers. More than 90 percent responded, 116 of them saying they were. Most of the rest said

Next Thursday Northville High School students will get a chance to experience the effects of drunken driving without a drop of alcohol ever touching their lips.

Sept. 8 high school students who are licensed drivers will be able to take a spin around the school's parking lot with a drunk driving simulator. The event, sponsored by Chrysler Corp., was made possible by a $6,000 grant from an anonymous parent. Northville High School's chapter of Students Against Drunk Driving is also helping organize the event.

"It will be a real eye-opener," said high school Principal Tom Johnson. This gives kids a realistic view of the effects of drinking and driving.

Chrysler tours the country with the simulator and to have the company come to Northville is an important event, Johnson said.

The drunk driving simulator is a 1995 Plymouth Neon, which is modified with an on-board computer that can be programmed to delay the car's steering and braking response time. According the driver's height and weight, the effects of one to 12 drinks can be programmed into the car's com-

Administrators get 6, 3 percent raises

By YVONNE BEEBE

The Northville Board of Education approved salary increases for eight of school administrators Monday night and recapped the board's annual evaluation of the superintendent.

Superintendent Leonard Rezmierski will receive a 3 percent salary increase next year boosting his base salary from $94,538 to $97,374. His contract was also extended to June 30, 1997.

The total value of Rezmierski's compensation package, with fringe benefits and expenses, is $116,571. Last year it was $109,492.

Rezmierski also received a raise for his out-of-pocket monthly expenses from $200 to $300. This money is used for the general duties of running his office and is tacked on to his total salary figure.

The board approved 3 percent salary increases for assistant superintendents David Bolitho and Dolly McMaster and a 2 percent increase-from 7 to 9 percent-in tax shelter annuities effective July 1, 1994. McMaster's and Bolitho's contracts were also extended to the 1995-96 school year.

Their total salaries are: McMaster $99,469, Bolitho $96,744.

For the past two years, the superintendent and the two assistant superintendents accepted pay

Initial student count shows enrollment hike

By YVONNE BEEBE Staff Writer

As students piled into classrooms Tuesday for the first day of school, Northville School District officials counted 4,339 students.

This first-day count equals 176 more students this year than the district's 4,163 students last year. The two numbers mean more than just comparative head counting, they equate to dollar signs for the

The 1994-95 school year marks the first year Northville schools will rely solely on the state for funding-funding that is based on student population.

John Street, school district director of business and finance, said the state will base its per-pupil funding on an average of the fourth Friday count and the student population count from February 1994. Averaging this year's figure with last year's student population penalizes quickly growing districts such as Northville, Street said.

Back in June, the state estimated it will allocate Northville $6,528 per-pupil this year, a figure that is $9 less than what school officials first estimated. The differential could result in a potential loss of

The school district filed an appeal with the state over the $9 per-pupil difference. Street said he has not yet received an answer from the state.

Township hammers out Edenderry compromise

By RANDY COBLE Staff Writer

EMBER 1, 1994 - NORTHVILLE, MICHIGAN

Democracy, someone once said, is the art and science of compromise. Northville Township saw that principle in action last week, as applied to the controversial Woods of Edenderry subdivision.

The township's board of trustees, Northville developer Mark Guidobono and representatives of the residents of Edenderry Hills subdivision all agreed to a compromise on the proposed Woods neighborhood plan. It's one which could put and end to muchprotested road connections linking the Hills and the Woods subdivisions. It could also bring the township and Guidobono into a lawsuit against Wayne County if the county demands that the connections proceed.

"This was not a perfect process," Supervisor Karen Baja said at the board's Aug. 25 meeting where the deal was concluded. This was not a perfect plan. This was an attempt to take the pieces of the triangle-the township and its residents. Wayne County and Mark Guidobono-and come up with a

Educators to bring bygone era to life for grade school students

This year's Sixth Annual Victorian Festival is right around the corner and many Northville elementary school teachers are gearing up for the event by bringing the world of the 1800s to their stu-

The autumn-time festival, which will jolt the city streets alive with entertainment from Sept. 16-18, becomes an important part of Northville Public School's thirdgrade classes as they learn about how life was then and examine how it has changed.

The festival sets a tone and a basis for studying Northville and its past," said Silver Springs thirdgrade teacher Diane Vanston.

Vanston said the festival serves as a spring board to teach Northville history and the Victorian era and lessons and activities are not restricted to the week or even the month of the festival but span the entire year.

One of the highlights of studying the 1800s is each third-grade class gets to spend a day in the shoes of a 19th century student at the Wash Oak School in Mill Race Historical Village. The children dress up in Victorian garb, play lacks and cats cradle on the play ground and practice penmanship with a quill pen. They also compete in spelling bees inside the one-room school house. Vanston said the teachers play the part by conducting class with a stiff upper lip like in the olden days with the boys on one side of the room, the girls on the other. and making sure they never slouch in their wooden desks.

Students even have a chance to sit in the corner with a dunce hat, if they chose, an option that Thornton Creek third-grade teacher Marcy Aller said is popular with the kids.

"It is a really great day for the kids, they have a lot of fun with it." Aller said.

On Friday, the first day of the festival, third-graders from Northville's five elementary schools travel downtown and enjoy an afternoon of the festival, by attending storytelling, taking walk-

Shotgun-toting man frightens group of youths

Four Northville youths reported to Northville City Police that an unidentified man approached them with a shot gun Saturday.

The 13-year-old Northville boys told police they had been sitting at the foot of a hill in a wooded area behind Ely Fuel Inc., 316 N. Center St., when two men in a brown van pulled up to them. The driver of the van, the boys reported, got out of the car and started yelling at them saying he "didn't like punk kids telling me how to drive."

The boys said they ran up the hill but later returned to the spot. After they returned, the boys said they saw the van pull into the parking lot of a nearby apartment complex. The man left and then returned to his van.

He returned to where the boys were sitting, they said, and started walking toward them with a shot gun while yelling at them. The boys said the man did not point the gun at them and only two actually saw the gun.

Police officers went to the scene to check out the area, but found nothing.

The police department is looking for an older model of a two-tone brown van with stripes on the side. They do not know the make or model of the van and do not know the license plate number.

The department is also looking for a white male aged 30-40, with black wavy hair, a moustache, approximately 5 feet 9 inches weighing 250 pounds and tan-

The other man allegedly involved fits the description of a white male, 20-30 years old, brown hair with a pony tail, 5 feet 10 inches and approximately 180 pounds.

Northville City Police have sent out a bulletin to other police stations alerting them of the incident with the descriptions of the men.

BURGLARY: Unknown persons pried open the front door of a Homestead Road house last Saturday, causing $500 in damage.

The owner of the home told police that the offender rifled through his dresser drawers and closets but stole nothing. Police have no suspects. The case remains open.

NARCOTICS: A traffic stop for an expired license plate led to an arrest on Aug. 18 in Northville Township.

The reporting township police officer in the case said he stopped a 1995 Chevrolet van on Seven Mile near Surrey Road because its plates had expired the week before. A computer check of one of the individuals in the van showed him to have a warrant out from the Eastern Michigan University

The 25-year-old Ypsilanti resident was arrested; the officer said that he found a marijuana pipe in the van while searching it, which the man said was his. He was held at police headquarters and later picked up by EMU police.

BURGLARY: A Jamestown Circle resident lost $300 in jewelry to thieves two weeks ago.

The 74-year-old man told police that unknown persons had entered his home through an open screen door while he and his wife were out for a walk. Police have no evidence or suspects.

OVERDOSE: Township police responded to a report of an overdose on Aug. 18 in the Northridge apartments.

The boyfriend of the 40-year-old woman called police, saying she had taken an overdose of morphine after the two had argued. He said that she had made no threats of suicide, however.

Police arrived to find the woman conscious "but fading in and out of coherency." She said that she had taken some of the pills because she was "mad" and said it was a "stupid" thing to do. She said she would not attempt suicide in the

The woman was taken to St. Mary Hospital for observation.

OUIL: Township police arrested a 36-year-old community resident for operating a vehicle while under the influence of liquor (OUIL) two weeks ago.

The reporting officer in the case said the man's 1990 Geo Prism swerved into the path of his patrol car as it was traveling west on Seven Mile Road. The officer said he had to swerve out of the vehicle's path, and when he turned to follow it he saw it swerve repeated-

The man said that he had been drinking at work. He failed field sobriety tests and was arrested, then taken to police headquarters. Breathalyzer testing there showed him to have a blood alcohol level of .20 percent, twice the legal limit. The man was released when he sobered up and faces a hearing in 35th District Court.

DRUNKEN DRIVING: A 27-yearold Plymouth man was arrested for drunken driving after Northville City Police officers heard loud tire squealing from the parking lot of the Wagon Wheel Lounge Hotel, 212 W. Main St.

The man started to head out of the parking lot, then put his car in reverse and backed into the parking lot when he saw the patrol car.

Police officers approached the vehicle in the parking lot and pulled him over. The man exited his truck and then fell back onto it trying to catch his balance.

When an officer asked the man why he was squealing his tires, he replied, "Some guys were bad mouthing my girlfriend and I just got on it.

The man failed some field sobriety tests but refused a Breathalyzer test on the scene.

Police arrested him and brought him down to the station, where he agreed to the test and registered a 10 blood-alcohol level, over the legal limit. The man posted a $100 cash bond and was released once he sobered up.

Language approved for township millage ballot

Northville Township's board of trustees last week unanimously approved two millage requests for the Nov. 8 ballot, one less than they planned and both with easier-to-understand wording.

At an Aug. 22 study session, the board tentatively agreed to put three millage questions to voters in November: one for police, one for "shared services" and one for fire services. Soon after the meeting, however, the township's attorney said that couldn't be done.

Since the township has a single Department of Public Safety, lawyer Len Krzyzniak said, the millage requests for police and fire have to be part of a single question. That reduces the millage requests to two.

Township officials worked hard last week to compose the language of the ballot questions. The board had to approve them at its Thursday meeting so that the township could submit them to Wayne County this week. If county officials approve, on Nov. 8 township voters will say yea or nay to:

•Proposal A: 3.84 mills for police and fire services.

•Proposal B: .4 mill for shared services which the township jointly funds with the City of Northville. These include the Northville Parks & Recreation Department, Northville Youth Assistance and senior citizen programs.

The two proposals will be for the same services and for the same amounts as Proposals A and B were on the Aug. 2 ballot. Both lost at the polls: A failed by a vote of 2,097 to 1,954, and B went down by a 2,035 to 2,017 tally.

Most officials chalk that loss up to voter misunderstanding, saying that many thought A and B were tax increases to be tacked onto existing taxes levied for police, fire and shared services. Officials say this time around, they'll mount a broad informational campaign to get the message across about Proposals A and B. The November ballot language will be shorter and easier to understand with less legal verbiage.

Supporters of the millage have one main point: A and B provide the money to continue current services, services which will be scaled back or even eliminated if either proposal fails. They are not, officials stress, tax increases to be added to current funding. They will fund existing services in a new In the past, police services have been funded by a dedicated millage, which expires this year. Fire services have been funded in part by a dedicated millage which also expires this year and in part by money from a general fund millage levy-which expires this year as well. Shared services have been funded through the general fund

The board has now decided to ask voters to fund all three services through four-year dedicated millages. Dedicated millages mean that money generated is earmarked exclusively for the use which voters approved at the ballot box. The board cannot take money from the police millage, for example, and use it for other pur-

The ballot language will include wording on what the dedicated millages mean in terms of dollars and cents.

Proposal A, for example, calls for township property owners to pay $3.84 for every $1,000 of the State Equalized Valuation (SEV) of their properties. SEV is half the market value of real property.

The SEV of a $200,000 home. for example, is $100,000.

If Proposal A passes, residents will pay $3.84 for each $1,000 of SEV, or $384 on a $200,000 home. If Proposal B is approved, that same homeowner would pay an additional $40 to continue Parks & Rec, Youth Assistance and senior citizens programs for one

Under the terms of a dedicated millage, all of that money would be reserved for the specific purposes spelled out in Proposals A and B. To some voters, that's a big reason to vote for them. Others, however, have told officials that the arrangement concerns them.

Many voters, some officials say. have expressed concern that dedicated millages would give the board too much leeway. With basic services paid for by dedicated millages, the argument goes, the trustees would be free to impose the .728 mill the board can levy without a vote of the people for other purposes.

Before the Aug. 2 vote, the trustees publicly promised that if A and B passed, they would not Most officials chalk the loss up to voter misunderstanding, saying that many thought A and B were tax increases to be tacked onto existing taxes levied for police, fire and shared services.

levy any of the .728 mill. The board has not made a similar promise concerning A and B on the November ballot.

Just what will happen if either or both proposals fail isn't yet clear. To date, officials have spent most of their time discussing what to do if A or B loses at the polls. Cutbacks or outright elimination of services are a certainty if A fails, and a probability if B is defeated.

As stated, the board can levy up to .728 mill a year without a vote of the people. If A were to fail, the township could not afford to keep the police and fire departments as they are. One alternative the board has considered would see the police department and shared services eliminated and a scaled-back fire department funded from the .728 mill.

The township could afford to fund shared services (at .4 mill) with the .728 mill if A passes and B fails, but some favor eliminating them anyway if that were to hap-

If the voters say "no" in November as they did in August to either of the requests, some trustees feel the board should follow the voters' direction and eliminate services.

New PTA leaders look ahead

By YVONNE BEEBE Staff Writer

The Northville School District's new Parent-Teacher Association officers are ready to take on a whole new year of challenges as students and teachers hit the books this week.

Officers were elected back in May but the real work is just beginning, many of the school's new PTA presidents admit.

Caryn Doehler, who will serve as president of the Northville Coordinating Council of the PTA for her second year, hopes to maintain the same quality that won her organization the "Outstanding PTA Council in Michigan" honor for

"For us to achieve that award is really remarkable," Doehler said of Northville, a relatively small school district. "It really says something about our members and leaders."

Moraine, Winchester and Silver Springs elementary schools also won awards for outstanding membership campaigns.

Thornton Creek elementary school's PTA steering committee has been meeting during the summer to help make the school's first year easier. Linda Krause, the steering committee's chairwoman.

said the election for officers will be held Oct. 19 at 7 p.m. at the school.

Krause said the committee decided to hold off on elections until school is under way and parents get acquainted. Currently, parents have volunteered for more than 20 committees to take on upcoming school events and projects throughout the year.

Krause said the PTA plans to focus on making a smooth transition for students, staff and parents during the school's first year.

"We would like to see 100 percent participation," Krause said. "Especially since we are a new of school, we really want everyone to get involved."

Northville schools new PTA officers are: Northville High School-president Kathy Arenz, vice president Iris Nadeau: Cooke Middle School-president Rhonda Bremer, vice president Alice Polumbo; Meads Mill Middle School-president Linda Jo Hare, vice president Mary Rupley; Amerman elementary-president Barb Slubowski, vice president Cindy Atkinson: Moraine-president Jane Gardner, vice president Karen Poulos: Silver Springs-president Kathy Hous-

The Northville Council of the PTA is a coordinating body of the individual schools' PTA organizations. The council serves as a communicating body and works on common projects like this month's Victorian Festival box lunch auc-

Doehler said one of the council's main goals this year is to become more visible and involved with the health committee concerning alcohol and substance abuse by providing support and information for parents.

The Alcohol and Other Drugs Survey taken last year by Northville High School students, Doehler said, has shown that substance abuse is a statistically, drastically and frighteningly larger problem." Doehler hopes her organization can be helpful in getting out the information that parents

Other PTA heads like Meads Mill Middle School President Linda Jo Hare acknowledge that student substance abuse is a growing concern among parents and teachers. Hare also plans to make the PTA an important source of information on the subject.

"This is an area that I am anticipating to be more and more important as the school year goes on," she said.

Hare, who is serving as the Meads Mill PTA president for the first time, said she anticipates a positive year and hopes to expand communication between parents and school staff in order to enhance education for their chil-

"We are looking forward to having a really good group of folks this year," she said.

Kathy Houslander, this year's PTA president for Silver Springs elementary, said she will concentrate on maintaining the same programs the PTA has offered in the past with a smaller student population at the school.

"As a PTA president and as a mom, I am looking forward to working in a smaller school environment," Houslander said.

Even though Silver Springs will be smaller this year after school boundaries were redrawn. Houslander said the PTA has many new members but is in need of more.

The study involves the opening and inspection of sanitary manholes, and smoke testing to locate sewer system defects. You may see smoke coming from vent stacks on houses or from holes in the ground or pavement. The smoke varies in color from white to gray depending on density and lighting. It is NON-STAINING, HAS NO ODOR, AND CREATES NO FIRE HAZARD. The smoke should not enter your home unless the plumbing is not functioning properly; PRIOR TO THE TEST, RESIDENTS SHOULD CHECK BASEMENT FLOOR DRAINS, LAUNDRY ROOM

DRAINS, AND INFREQUENTLY USED LAVATORY FACILITIES TO MAKE CERTAIN THAT THE DRAIN TRAPS ARE FILLED WITH WATER. In the event that smoke enters your home, do not be alarmed. The smoke is harmless and will dissipate after several minutes. Please notify the field technicians conducting the smoke test and they may be able to inform you as to the problem should this occur. In residential areas where manholes are located in rear yards, it will be neces-compromise acceptable to every-

The Woods subdivision has created controversy since Guidobono offered his proposal to the township's planning commission in April. It calls for 100-odd lots on land directly south of Edenderry Hills: north of Six Mile and west of Sheldon. The Woods plan included street connections to the north, linking the neighborhood to the Hills through Edenderry Drive and Pinebrook.

Both now dead-end at the southern border of the Hills.

Hills residents have raised a number of objections to the plan. first and foremost to the road connections. They say that the links will increase traffic levels and speed through their quiet streets, bringing more cars and crime. The road connections, residents maintain, will destroy the quiet, neighborhood-like feel of their subdivi-

Township planning consultants and the Department of Public Safety (DPS), however, do not agree. They say the connections are necessary for proper traffic flow and to allow for a quicker response from police, fire and medical emergency personnel. Wayne County, which owns the roads in the Hills and would also own the roads in the Woods sub, insisted that the connections be made.

The township's planning commission on June 28 voted 3-2 to recommend that the board of trustees approve the Woods plan with the connections intact. Commissioners voting for the plan said that the board had to be the body to make the decision to fight the county over the connections.

That fight just might be avoided if county officials approve the deal which the board, Hills residents and Guidobono approved on Aug.

The basics of the agreement are these:

· Guidobono has submitted phase one of a new two-phase Woods of Edenderry site plan to the township and the county. The plan does not have any street connections to Edenderry Hills.

3380 Washlenaw Ave Ann Arbor, MI 48104 ¼ Mile West of US-23 313-971-7770

Instead, it creates a "loop" road connecting Pinebrook to nearby Shadbrook in the Hills, with home lots located on the loop. The loop constitutes phase two of the plan Shadbrook sits between Edenderry and Pinebrook and also dead-ends at the south edge of the Hills. No Hills road, including Edenderry Drive, is connected into the Woods sub in the new plan.

• The board and the county have agreed to let Guidobono proceed with phase one. Guidobono, meanwhile, has agreed to seek county approval of phase two. County officials have promised to review the plan, Trustee Mark Abbo said, and to give Guidobono and Edenderry Hills residents the chance to make their case before making a deci-

· If county officials approve the loop, the design goes back to the planning commission for consideration, then onto the board, which can approve or deny it. Guidobono, the deal says, must satisfy the township that the loop plan is not a problem in terms of traffic flow or emergency response.

• If the county does not approve the plan, then Guidobono has the option to seek board approval of the June 28 proposal. The deal also says that the township can choose-but is not required-to sue the county in court to get the loop plan approved.

The possibility of getting the township into a lawsuit concerned several members of the board. Trustee Mark Abbo stressed the fact that the compromise "doesn't lock us into anything."

"We've in essence given the residents of Edenderry Hills the chance to make their case to the county," Abbo said. "I've been in meetings where they've done so and it's very convincing. I'm hoping that Wayne County officials will feel the same way."

"If the county says no," Baja said, "we're back to square one, which is where we are right now."

If the township is "vigorously" pursuing the suit, Guidobono has agreed not to try to get township approval for the loop plan until Aug. 25, 1995. Guidobono's lawyer, Joe Galvin, said that his client has agreed to let his name be added to the suit if the township wants his participation.

We think this is a good faith effort to step aside from what we genuinely believe are our rights," Galvin said. "If we had our druthers, we'd proceed with the June 28 plan. This agreement represents a spirit of cooperation from all those involved.'

Edenderry residents earlier in the week gave "almost unanimous" support to the plan, an attorney hired by the homeowners' association said.

Clerk Sue Hillebrand voted with the rest of the board to approve the plan, but expressed doubts

"I'm not comfortable at all with this," Hillebrand said. "I have some very, very serious concerns about the procedure. I'm not Planning Commissioner Don Mueller, one of those who voted for the June 28 plan, was not supportive of the compromise.

"I don't see the issues raised by the commission being addressed. he said. What I see here tonight is what appears to me to be the board side stepping its responsibilities.

I personally don't feel we're side stepping anything," said Abbo, who also serves on the planning commission and voted for the June 28 plan, adding that the commission left the issue of the roads "open."

The county's Department of Public Services will consider the loop plan Township officials said they don't know yet when the county will take up the matter, but trustees at the Aug. 25 meeting called for a decision to be made within 90 days.

Residents to pay for hook ups?

they were not, a few said they didn't know and some didn't return the survey form.

The cheapest and simplest solution to the problem is for individual homeowners to build leads from their houses to the storm sewers running along the streets in front of them and connect their pumps to those leads. Wayne County owns the storm sewers, however, and has quashed that idea.

County officials will allow connections to the pipe, however, if the township builds the leads to the storm sewers. Each lead would each be connected to a group of homes via individual leads from each house. Anderson's plan involves building the storm sewer connections and group leads at a total cost of about $462,000. That does not include the cost of building leads from the group leads to individual homes or the cost of hooking the sump pumps into the leads. All that can cost up to $1,000 a home and the plan calls for individual homeowners to pick up the tab.

How to split the cost of the $462,000 was the major topic of discussion at the Aug. 25 meeting. Anderson's plan calls for the township to pay for all non-construction costs, totaling about $115,000. Faying the balance would be residents the township determines are illegally hooked into the sanitary sewer system.

The survey, Anderson said, will be the basis for determining illegal tap-in. The final list of which homeowners will be included in the Special Assessment District (SAD) that will pay the cost will be worked out over the next few months.

Anderson said that if the township agreed to finance the SAD over 15 years at eight percent interest a year, the final per-house cost of the project would be $289 a year for that 15-year period. If the township waives the interest, he added, it's a per-house fee of $165

a year. The list of homes that will split the cost will be made like this: Those included on it at the start will be those homeowners who said on the survey that they are illegally connected, those who said they didn't know and those who didn't respond. Those homeowners will be sent a letter explaining the project. They will then have 30 days to decide if they want to ask to be exempt from the SAD.

Those who do seek exemption have to agree to disconnect their pumps from the sanitary sewers and agree to township monitoring of their sump pump discharge to ensure that no drainage problems result. If none occur, the township will agree to exempt that home from the project. If the township decides that a problem does exist, it can require that home to be included in the SAD.

The letters will go out in November, Anderson said, and the monitoring period will follow. The township will begin deciding who's in and who's out in late March or Owners who are known to be illegally connected and do not disconnect will be charged $50 a month, added to their sewer bills, until they comply under the terms of the plan.

The final assessment roll will be presented at a public hearing of the board of trustees along with a final estimate of the project's costs. The project would be bid out in July 1995 and construction would begin in October. Everything should be complete, according to the timetable, by May 31,

Some residents of the two subdivisions voiced objections to the plan at the Aug. 25 meeting for several reasons, most of which related to the cost-sharing formu-

First, they say their homes are not the only ones in Northville putting clear water into the sanitary sewers and that they shouldn't be singled out to pay to correct the problem.

More homeowners in the Commons and Colony Estates are illegally connected than admitted to on the survey, they add.

Residents of the two subs also argue that the township should pay most or all of the cost of the project because its officials approved the two subdivisions' design plans 20 years ago. Drainage problems were known to exist, they say, which led homeowners to make the illegal sump pump connections. Despite that, however, the township approved the plans anyway.

We feel the current homeowners are being asked to pay for the sins of 20 years ago," homeowners association president Barbara Rossi-Brown said.

The board made the conscious decision to let this problem exist." another homeowner said. "You have a responsibility to deal with it

"I'm not convinced we do." Trustee Mark Abbo said. "The township can't be responsible for the impacts now of the good-faith efforts of 20 years ago."

The board did agree to consult with the township's attorney to see if the township has any legal responsibility for the project's cost.

Engler's GOP ticketmates hold fast to conservative political philosophy

By TIM RICHARD Staff Writer

John Engler's Republican educational team takes a dim view of homosexual couples living in married-student campus housing.

Some talk about fighting it. I have fought it," said Andrea Fischer, an appointed Oakland University trustee whom the Republican State Convention Saturday nominated for an elective post on the University of Michigan Board of Fortunately, at Oakland we're winning the battle. Unfortunately at U-M, we're losing battle after battle," said Fischer, a Birmingham corporation lawyer, state party vice-chair and a GOP money-raiser.

Significantly, Fischer's nominating speech came from Harry Veryser, a right-wing Macomb County politico who two years ago went 0-5 fighting Engler on education board nominations.

Fischer had a 3-1 margin over former Regent Veronica Latta Smith of Grosse Ile.

Among the winners and losers, the big U-M targets were the regents' 7-1 decision to allow homosexual couples to live in married student housing and the speech code, which was struck down in a federal court. Never mentioned was the U-M regents' landmark defeat in the state Supreme Court for violating the Open Meetings Act and Freedom of Information Act in picking the school's current president.

Two familiar suburban names were nominated without opposition to run for the Wayne State University Board of Governors.

Diane Dunaskiss, a special education teacher from Lake Orion and the wife of a state senator, said, "I'm an MEA (Michigan Education Association) member who supports Gov. Engler's policies."

Edward Haroutunian, Southfield real estate lawyer who is Wayne County Republican chair, said he would push WSU to raise more funds from alumni and relieve the pressure on taxpayers and student tuitions. "Wayne State hasn't tapped that source," he said.

A Farmington High graduate ing a second term; won one of two nominations to the State Board of Education. Sharon Wise, co-owner of an Owosso welldrilling firm and 4th Congressional District GOP chair, pledged to oppose "multi-culturalism and outcomes-based education that concentrates on attitudes, beliefs. feelings and behaviors rather than academics."

Wise won an easy 3-1 victory over Bettye Lewis, anti-OBE voice whose supporters favor "reading, writing, 'rithmetic, religion and rote learning" in public schools.

Two years ago, Engler's conservative mainstream candidates won 55-44 victories over the old Pat Robertson religious right group. Last weekend, the two groups often merged, indicating there is harmony though not absolute agreement between the cadres.

Democrats swept all state offices in 1986, so this year they are on the defensive. Following Engler, who was unopposed in the Aug. 2 gubernatorial primary, the allwhite Republican ticket includes:

· Lt. Gov. Connie Binsfeld, seek-

· Candice Miller, Macomb County treasurer, who was Engler's choice for secretary of state; and · John Smietanka, former Berrien County prosecutor and U.S. district attorney, for attorney

Detroit. • U-M regents—Fischer and Daniel Horning, Grand Haven insurance agent and president of the Grand Rapids U-M Alumni

• Michigan State University trustees-retiring state Sen. Paul Wartner of Portage and Don Nugent, Traverse City area party chair, cherry grower and food processor.

· WSU trustees-Dunaskiss and Haroutunian.

• Non-partisan ticket for state Supreme Court justice—Court of Appeals Judges Richard Griffin and Elizabeth Weaver.

Republicans turn thumbs down to new 'outcomes-based' approach to learning

By TIM RICHARD Staff Writer

Gov. John Engler's Republicans have veered to the political right over a key public school issue-OBE, or outcomes-based

So far, the eight-member State Board of Education has dealt with OBE without disagreement, even though the board contains four Democrats and four Republicans. They're for it.

The Republican leader, however, is saying something different.

Be assured that this governor will continue to lead the fight against outcome-based education,"Engler told the a cheering Republican State Convention in Grand Rapids last weekend.

'Our schools won't be testing attitudes, values and beliefs; they'll be meeting tough, worldclass standards. When I'm done, OBE will stand for Only the Best Education," the governor said.

Two years ago, a Republican convention nominated state board candidates with experience managing public schools: Dorothy Beardmore (Rochester school board, Oakland intermediate board) and Harry Greenleaf (Schoolcraft College board).

This year the GOP turned to outsiders: Sharon Wise of Owosso and W. Clark Durant of Grosse Pointe. Engler endorsed both prior to the voting.

Wise, a party activist and coowner of a water well-drilling company, attended public schools (including Farmington High) but never has served on a public school or college board. She advocates "voluntary school prayer" and opposes "multi-culturalism and OBE that concentrates on attitudes, beliefs, feelings and behaviors rather than on aca-

Durant is a Grosse Pointe lawyer who has run for the U.S. Senate and Supreme Court; his spokesman emphasized Durant's work with the archbishop of Detroit on a private school project but cited no public school credentials. (Durant didn't attend the convention and had no literature.)

OBE is a nationwide line of thinking that emphasizes outcomes (what students should be able to do after graduation) rather than inputs (so many hours of literature, math, etc.). Its big fans are industrial executives.

State Board of Education standards, as drafted, call for preparing students for a global economy, teamwork and work readiness. It leaves to local school boards the precise curriculum for reaching those outcomes.

Challenging Wise and Durant were several opponents even further to the right who advocated reading, writing, 'rithmetic, religion and rote learning. They see teaching as "politicized and psy-chologized." They see the global view as "foreign to the U.S."

"Everything is group, group, group," said one of their nominating speakers. "This is a deliberate dumb-down. Where are the clas-Engler denounced Miller, in particular, for opposing charter public schools. "The battle for choice is not over," he said.

But it appears the 1994 candidates will battle on an even larger front: charter schools plus outcomes-based education, And even if Wise and Durant win Nov. 8, OBE still will have majority support on the Michigan Board of Education.

State to suspend road work

TIM RICHARD Staff Writer

Drivers will see fewer barrels and barricades on state highways during the Labor Day holiday despite the biggest road construction season in history, the Michigan Department of Transportation

M-DOT Director Patrick Nowak said he is suspending all road and bridge construction on state highwavs except emergency work, detours and construction areas where barriers cannot be conveniently removed.

"This year we are joining with the State Safety Commission's 'Drive Michigan Safely' campaign to help make summer's finale weekend safe and pleasant," said Record numbers of travelers are expected to log a record 990 million vehicle miles from noon Friday, Sept. 2, through noon Tuesday, Sept. 6, MDOT said. That's about 1.5 percent higher than the previous record of 975 million miles set over the Labor Day weekend in 1993.

In Oakland County, the right lane of eastbound and westbound I-96 is closed at the Milford interchange. In addition, the eastbound 1-96 exit ramp to Milford Road is closed with a detour at Kent Lake

In Detroit, all lanes of northbound I-75 are closed and detoured to the northbound Lodge Freeway, to eastbound I-94, then back to northbound I-75.

Southbound lanes of I-75 are enclosed from Holbrook to Jefferson and southbound traffic is shifted to the northbound 1-75 lanes. Seek alternate routes if possible. Watch for posted detours.

puter. The computer processes the entered information and automatically sets the timing delay on the car's braking and steering.

Charlie Stilec, student assistance coordinator at the high school and Dennis Colligan, high school assistant principal, are putting together the event and invite any interested community members to come to the high school to watch.

"This is the perfect time of year for prevention against drinking and driving," Stilec said.

Students with driver's licenses will be able to participate, students who are not yet licensed drivers will be able to ride in the hack seat

A driving course will be set up in the high school parking lot. The course is marked off with orange pylon cones. Students will drive though the course once without the system activated while attempting to avoid the pylons, and then a second time with the effects of a few drinks programmed into the computer.

Spring-activated, pop-up pedestrian figures are planted in the driver's path. Under zero bloodalcohol level conditions, the driver has ample time to stop without hitting the figures. However, avoiding pedestrian's after the computer is activated becomes increasingly difficult.

A trained instructor, with access to an independent brake, will be in the car at all times.

The simulator was built by Dodge in 1988 and has made more than 550 appearances in more than 150 cities in the country. More than 90,000 people have participated in he program and approximately 1.5 million people have been exposed.

The program is also supported by Mothers Against Drunk Driving. the U.S. Department of Transportation and the National Association of Broadcasters. -

Mill Race Matters

Thank you this week to the Detroit Teachers' Credit Union for their donation to the Donald Ware Memorial Fund. Thanks also to the many docents and volunteers who have helped to keep Mill Race Village open on summer Sundays. Thank you to Julie Fountain for arranging special activities throughout the month of August to encourage wider participation at the village.

As summer winds down it's time once again to prepare for fall and the host of community fall activities. Coming soon is the Sixth Annual Victorian Festival sponsored by the Northville Chamber of Commerce. Historical Society members plan to march together in the Friday evening parade, Sept. 16. Meet at the parade assembly area between 30 and 15 minutes prior to parade time in costume and join other Historical Society members in celebrating our community's history.

The parade begins at 6:30 p.m. Community events occur throughout the weekend. Mill Race Village buildings will be open from noon until 4 p.m. on both days. Festival activities center at Mill Race on Sunday afternoon for a traditional Victorian picnic. Purchase picnic baskets at the box lunch sale or bring your own and share in the fun. Families wishing to organize events at the village on Sunday should call Marianne at 349-5435 to coordinate activities, but everyone should try to attend.

Two weeks later on Friday, Sept. 30, and Saturday, Oct. 1, the Northville Historical Society hosts its 25th Annual Tivoli Fair. The fair is held at Northville Downs from 10 a.m. until 8 p.m. on Friday and 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. on Saturday. Admission is $3. Tivoli Fair, a juried arts and crafts show, serves as the primary fund-raising event for the Northville Historical Society, a volunteer non-profit organization which uses its revenue to maintain and operate Mill Race Village. More than one half of the operating revenue comes from this event.

This year's Fair will be bigger than ever and exhibitors have contributed 150 door prizes to be awarded to attendees.

Our Opinion

Board goes extra mile with road compromise

Northville Township officials and developer Mark Guidobono have arrived at a plan that could resolve the controversy over the proposed Woods of Edenderry subdivision. Residents of the nearby Edenderry Hills neighborhood also participated in drafting the compromise.

Under the proposal, Guidobono would avoid connecting the roads of his new Woods of Edenderry neighborhood with existing streets in the Edenderry Hills subdivision. Initial plans called for the placement of connector streets between the two subs, effectively linking Edenderry Hills with Six Mile Road, a major thoroughfare in the township.

Fearing increased traffic, greater risk of crime and an overall decline in their standard of living, Edenderry residents vehemently protested the new street configuration, even going so far as to enter an informational picketing contingent in the Independence Day parade. Despite their protestations, the township planning commission gave a divided thumbs up to the connector proposal at a meeting in June.

Undaunted, the Edenderry neighbors kept pressed ahead and their persistence might just have paid off. Under the terms of the agreement discussed Aug. 25, the new subdivision's streets would terminate in cul-de-sacs and loops, and would not extend into the luxuriant Edenderry Hills.

There's just one problem. As with all townships, the county, not the local governmental unit, enjoys jurisdiction over the roads: and county officials want the connectors, claiming that the links would provide improved access for public safety vehicles making emergency runs into the area. In this view they are joined by the township public safety department's liaison to the project, Sgt. John Sherman.

County officials have agreed to review the modified version of phase two of the project while Guidobono proceeds with phase one. If they approve the proposal, all could be well with the Edenderry Hills people, though police and fire would still lack ingress to the Hills from Six Mile. But if they reject the proposal, extraordinary action would be required to continue the fight. In other words, a lawsuit.

Included in the agreement township trustees concluded Aug. 25 was a statement of potential willingness to sue the county. Under the plan, if Guidobono decided to proceed with litigation against Wayne County, the township would have the option of joining in. The wisdom of such action is questionable, however, and even some trustees expressed misgivings before voting for the agreement with the developer. But for the time being, the feasibility or necessity of legal action is a question that can be left to the future.

It is clear that township officials are bending over backwards trying to accommodate the Edenderry Hills residents, and this can be attributed, in part, to the cohesiveness and organizational skills the homeowners have exhibited in pressing

But credit should also be given to township trustees who are caught between a rock and a hard place in trying to balance a mandate from the county against a demand from their constituents. Elected officials have been highly responsive to the Edenderry neighbors, even placing the wishes of the residents above a recommendation, from their own planning commis-

So much for the old adage about not being able to fight city hall.

Town is alive on weekends but is anybody buying?

Snider

In my travels around downtown Northville I once in a while come across Main Street merchants who sing the blues about the lack of foot traffic in the city's central business district. The place is a graveyard, they say, no one is ever around.

I don't have any statistics to prove otherwise, but I do have the evidence of my own two eyes.

Every time I came to the office to do some work on the weekends this summer I was amazed at the number of busy bodies around the intersection of Main and Center. Everywhere I looked there were crowds of people on the sidewalks outside downtown stores.

People casually walk about licking ice cream cones, pushing baby strollers and peeking in windows. The benches are occupied with people in sneakers and shorts and the orange-dot parking lot at Wing is full to overflowing. It's like that all the time, too, not just when some special event is going on.

Somebody downtown has to be making a buck. Unless everybody's just looking and not buying.

You can't win for losin'

I wrote a column last week about a pleading letter I received from a Nevada inmate wanting help finding a pen pal. The prisoner, a 27-year-old man doing 10 years for burglary, sounded sincere when he wrote that he was trying to turn his life around and wanted to correspond with someone on the "outside."

Seemed harmless to me. Uh-uh.

Company Vice President Rich Perlberg saw the column just moments before the paper went to press and yanked it. Rich said he read in Editor and Publisher magazine that a scam was under way whereby prisoners use the mail to play on the sympathies of unsuspecting Samaritans. First they gain the trust of people then they hit them up for goodies, like money or a place to stay after release. Nice guys, eh?

Will wonders never cease?

I can hardly believe our Op/Ed page this week. Glance over at it. It's the page facing this one. Notice anything out of the ordinary?

It might not jump out at you right away, but our readers have set a new record for reticence: we only received one letter to the editor.

We almost never get fewer than six or seven letters in a given week, often receiving as many as 10 or 12. I've never worked in a community where the readership is as vocal as it is here. My colleague Mike Malott, editor of The Novi News, is envious. He doesn't get half as many letters as I do and letters make for great reading. People consistently cite them as one of the most popular features of the newspaper.

The uncharacteristically low output contrasted sharply with the more than 200 column inches of love notes that came in to the office one week just a few months ago. J had to make a special request for a full open page that week, but it wasn't enough—there were some 50 inches of spill over. With a steady stream of new messages coming in all the time, it took more than a month to clear the overset board.

Well, guess what my package was? A 1995 Landmark Calendar, featuring 12 months of Cambron's hilarious

Thank you for letting your readers learn that the Novi School District investigated a sexual harassment charge presented by a student and her mother against a high school teacher. Important fact: The girls weren't hit by a school bus. A Wixom man in his car hit them. The high court opinion contains no word on how much, if anything, the Dedes family got from the car driver's insurer. The family said South Lyon school officials were grossly negligent in arranging the bus stop.

An ancient rule of law says, "The king can do no wrong." It means government can't be sued for providing normal governmental functions. Michigan legislators and courts have modified the doctrine of governmental immunity a lot in recent decades. The 1985 statute says a governmental employee is immune from tort liability when:

"The ... employee's ... conduct does not amount to gross negligence that is the proximate cause of the injury or damage. As used in this subdivision, 'gross Oakland Circuit Judge Hilda negligence' means conduct so reckless as to demonstrate a

The issue is what's meant by "the" proximate cause. Does it mean "only" cause?

Justice Patricia Boyle (a Democratic nominee) said "it is incorrect to conclude that therefore 'the' means sole." She said the word "may mean" the employee's conduct was "the last proximate cause." After reciting much legal history, Boyle found that Senate bill analyses prepared by staff put so little emphasis on the word "the" that it had no importance when senators voted on it. The high court, Boyle said, couldn't depend on the "plain meaning" of the words in interpreting the law.

That was heresy to Justice Dorothy Comstock Riley, who wrote the dissent for the Republicans. She said the Democratic majority "ignores the plain meaning of (the statute) by eradicating governmental immunity for state employees who were not the sole cause of an injury ... The court may not ignore, substitute or redefine language." The Democratic interpretation "is in clear derogation of the phrase's plain Political scientists would call Democratic justices "activists" and the Republicans" strict constructionists." Some would add that the Democrats have a propensity to hunt for "deep pockets"—big bucks—just so the plaintiff gets something.

Clearly the Michigan Trial Lawyers Association (the plaintiffs' bar) is delighted with the Democratic interpretation. The defense bar, school districts and universities favor the Republican interpretation and are dismayed at the decision.

Under Michigan's strange election law, Supreme Court candidates run on a non-partisan ballot. For your information, Republicans have nominated Court of Appeals judges Richard Griffin Elizabeth Weaver; and Democrats will nominate incumbent Justice Conrad Mallett Jr. and (probably) circuit Judge Donald Shelton.

FEDERAL FIREPLACE

Officer is staunch firearms advocate

By RANDY COBLE Staff Writer

Whatever a majority of the United States Congress and President Bill Clinton may pass into law, there's at least one Northville resident who believes they're way off base when it comes to gun control.

nity SWAT team. A former U.S. Army Ranger, Sherman is a law enforcement veteran of nearly 20 years. He's also an avid firearms enthusiast and a strong opponent of gun control.

He's not alone, either. Sherman is president of the Michigan Tactical Officers Association (MTOA), made up of more than 300 SWAT team officers and hostage negotiators from around the state. The MTOA earlier this year voted overwhelmingly to oppose the Brady handgun control law. More recently, the group opposed the ban on 19 different types of "assault weapons" included in the much-talkedabout federal crime bill.

The $30.2 billion legislation passed the U.S. House last month and made it through the Senate earlier this week. It now goes to President Bill Clinton, who has promised to sign it into law after the Labor Day weekend.

Sherman's organization and others oppose the two laws-as well as gun control in general-for two basic reasons:

One, gun control does not prevent crime. Statistical evidence and his own practical experience demonstrate that, Sherman said. Gun control, he added, only leaves law-abiding people at the mercy of criminals, who will continue to obtain firearms illegally. •Second, the debate over gun control has a hidden agenda. It's not about preventing crime, Sherman said. The real aim of many who support it is to prohibit civilian gun ownership.

Laws regulating legal gun ownership, however, violate one of Americans' fundamental Constitutional rights, Sherman said: the right to keep and bear arms.

According to the June issue of Money magazine, about 40 percent of U.S. households own a gun. There are about 200 million guns in the United States, according to most estimates, Sherman said. According to Money, guns are involved in 31 percent of all violent crimes. FBI statistics show, however, that the vast majority of guns used in crimes are illegally bought, according to Sherman. Law-abiding gun owners are not the problem, he said, and more gun control legislation won't solve the problem.

"The weapons that are used in John Sherman is a Northville crimes are illegally owned and Township police officer and com- obtained," Sherman said. "There mands this area's multi-commu- are no statistics to support the link between legal gun ownership and crime."

> An example: the FBI reports that assault weapons were used in less than .5 percent of all homicides in America over a oneyear period and used in less than .2 percent of all firearms-related crimes.

> More murders were committed with edged instruments like knives or blunt instrumen's like clubs, Sherman said, than with the weapons banned in the crime bill, Since 1934, he added, there has been one documented crime committed in America by someone using a legally-owned submachine gun.

> There is a similar lack of correlation between legally owned handguns, rifles and shotguns, he added.

> "Look at an area of the country with restrictive gun laws," Sherman said, "such as the District of Columbia or New York City. Despite all that legislation, they have the highest per capita murder rates in the United States. The connection between gun regulation and prohibition of crime just isn't there."

That holds true locally as well, Sherman continued. As an example, he cited Northville Township, where thousands of handguns are legally owned and properly registered-and the community has never had a reported crime involving a legally-owned handgun.

"This is the bottom line." he added. "Gun laws will not nor have they every controlled the criminal population," Sherman said, "We have hundreds of laws pertaining to the use and carrying of firearms. We don't need any more. We do need a modification of the justice system to see that people who use guns illegally are dealt with severely." Police officers, who deal with crime every day, know that, Sherman said. Our association very much mirrors the feelings of officers around the country," Sherman said of its stand against gun con-

Control of the contro

He cited a survey done by the National Association of Chiefs of Police, which found that 88.7 percent of officers nationwide felt that the assault weapons ban will not reduce crime. 91.4 percent said they oppose firearms registration in general, he added.

Despite these facts, Sherman said, gun control groups, backed up by many in the national media, continue to try to convince Americans that guns are dangerous and have to be restricted.

"Much of this debate is based on the ability of the media to control what the public sees," Sherman said. "They have an agenda and they're fitting the news to it. There is a concerted effort by groups and some individuals for the total eradication of gun ownership in the United States.

One example of the way the media manipulate perceptions, he said, is in news reports about crime. The June Money magazine survey found that 88 percent of people feel that violent crime is at an all-time high.

Crime statistics don't bear that out, Sherman said. You're less likely to be a victim of violent crime now than 15 years ago, as the rate of violent crime has fallen 16 percent since 1974.

The misunderstanding isn't an accident, Sherman argues. It's a deliberate effort by those who support gun control: create a problem and then supply their ready-made solution for it.

"Much of the hysteria is based on the public's perception which is controlled by the media," he said. "A good example of that is the assault weapons ban. Because a weapon looks aggressive, they're banning it. The ban has nothing to do with what a weapon is used for. They said they wanted to send a message with the bill-and the message is that we need to take away guns from Americans.

Another example: the debate a few years ago over "cop killer" Teflon bullets.

"Everyone was running around saying how dangerous these were," Sherman said. "What nobody mentioned is that there has never been a documented case of a law enforcement officer being killed by one. The media, however, hypes the fact that the bullets could pose a threat by piercing bullet-resistant vests."

Cops, the ones who deal with crime every day, don't fear law-abiding armed citizens, Sherman said, and don't believe gun control will solve anything. Quite the contrary, he continued: gun ownership is a right, both for personal protection and for the larger purpose of helping to ensure that this nation will not fall under Owning a gun, Sherman said, can mean the difference between life and death for a family.

"Law enforcement knows that we can't be all places at all times," Sherman said. "Homeowners need to have the ability to protect themselves and their families.

"Realistically, a police department shoots for a three-minute response time," he continued. "In three minutes, a whole family can be wiped out in a violent crime with a knife, let alone a firearm. There are situations where there's not even time to get to a phone and call 911. You can only react immediately."

Armed citizens can and do successfully defend themselves against crime every day, Sherman added. Again, he pointed to the statistics. Last year, more than 650,000 people reported successfully preventing a crime against them with a legallyowned handgun. Another 300,000 did so with a rifle or shotgun.

Beyond protection from an armed thug, however, there's another type of protection that civilian gun ownership provides, Sherman said. Citizens owning guns are a powerful deterrent to governmental tyranny.

History proves the point, the officer added. One of the first actions of totalitarian societies has been to confiscate civilian firearms; Hitler's Nazi Party, for example, quickly passed gun prohibition laws after coming to power.

The Second Amendment to the U.S. Constitution is intended precisely to prevent that, he

There is a great deal of misunderstanding about the controversial Amendment, Sherman said. The Founding Fathers wrote it to ensure that every able-bodied American is able to protect his or her home, person, community and nation.

"Look at the writings of the time and you'll see how the words were used," Sherman said. The militia is the people. The Second Amendment is not about the national government or a standing army.

The Militia Act of 1792, passed shortly after the Bill of Rights, is one example, he said. It required every citizen to own a weapon for the defense of the country, Sherman said. That remained the law of the land until the early 1900s.

The intent of the document is as important as the written word. Look at the words surrounding the Second Amendment and they show what it's intended to do," Sherman said. "The right to keep and bear arms is very deeply rooted in this country," Sherman said. "It should not be swept away at the mere whim of political bodies.

Don't believe that history's horrors can happen here? The reality, Sherman believes, is that they

"This is America. This is not England or France. This country is founded on the principle of protecting both your home and in protecting ourselves from tyrannical forms of government. That's what the Second Amendment is all about, not hunting or target shooting. Just because it's America 1994 doesn't mean that this nation is any more secure from tyranny than we were in 1700s or the Germans were from the Nazis.'

Not everyone agrees with the MTOA's or Sherman's stand on the issue, however.

Cheryl Brolin is a spokeswoman for Handgun Control Inc., chaired by Sarah Brady, wife of former Reagan Press Secretary

Jim Brady, wounded in the 1981 assassination attempt on the president. Handgun Control was the primary backer of the Brady Law and a major player in getting the assault weapons ban Brolin denied that gun control advocates want to ban firearms.

"We want to see common-sense restrictions on the manufacture and sale of guns in the United States. None of the legislation we support would preclude any citizens from owning a weapon if he or she chooses to," Brolin said.

"We've been shouted down by the NRA. They've distorted our message."

Brolin said that Handgun Control believes that gun ownership should be regulated much like car ownership is today.

"We have some registration of guns today, but we want to go further," she said. "We want to see mandatory safety training."

She also disagreed with Sherman about police support for gun control and its effect on

"Law enforcement across the nation overwhelmingly supports gun control," Brolin said. "They know that we need some step's taken to control crime. Gun control is one method of preventing

The Michigan Association of Chiefs of Police "has generally supported" both the Brady Law and assault weapons ban, said Tom Hendrickson, the group's executive director. Ken Grabowski, a spokesperson for the Police Officers Association of Michigan, said that his organization has also supported the bans.

GROSS COUNTR

By SCOTT DANIEL Sports Editor

If Hollywood ever cares to make Young Guns III, the Northville High School basketball team just might be able to supply some of the stars.

Under second-year coach Gary Schwan, the Mustangs are hoping to ride high and shoot down Western Lakes opponents.

With returning stars Gina Chiasson, Lyndsay Huot and Samantha Leger as well as incoming freshmen Lauren Mataj and Karla Kalso, Northville is armed and dangerous.

'We're better than last year," said Schwan. "But so is everyone else. We have a tougher schedule."

True enough. Riverview, a 20 game winner in Class B, along with Country Day have been added. That's not even to mention all of the tough teams in the

"We're a very emotional group," said Schwan, who pointed out the bulk of his roster lies in the sophomore and junior classes. "We are trying to become very level. We don't want to get too up or to down about things

Northville went 9-12 last fall, which was a four-game improvement from the previous season. Whether or not the Mustangs can improve remains to be seen.

"We're very young," Schwan. "But we're a little deeper."

Mataj should provide immediate help. Although she's currently mending a twisted ankle, the freshman will work into the lineup both at guard and forward.

"She's real solid fundamentally," said Schwan. "She's very quick and has a good perimeter shot."

Kalso is Northville's other freshman. The coach described her as a "swing player," meaning she'll play both forward and guard.

"For a freshman her skill level is high," said Schwan.

He said both Mataj and Kalso excel at shooting, passing and catching the basketball. The duo will come off the bench to start the Huot will open as Northville's point guard. A year of experience has made a big difference in the sophomore.

"Her development has allowed us to move Sam to scoring guard," said Schwan.

Speaking of Leger, she'll be even better than a year ago when she led the Mustangs in every offensive

'She's our primary scorer," Schwan said. We want to get it to Sam in the open court."

Leger missed a half-dozen games with ankle problems. The coach said the injuries shouldn't be a factor this year.

The teenager was also selected as an All-Area first teamer by Hometown Newspapers. She said her teammates deserve a lot of credit for her success.

"They make it possible to do what I do," Leger said. "They're always setting picks and screens."

Being a new player in the area also helped, she added. Leger said she won't have that luxury this year. But, it's not a problem.

"If I'm double-teamed I'm going to get it to my players," she explained. "It's a lot harder to stop five than one."

It's that passing aspect of the game she loves.

not, she already knows what she'd like to study: child development. "I love little kids to death," she said. "I always have."

Leger isn't sure what form her studies will take her in, teaching or counseling, perhaps. But she knows she wants to affect a positive influence on children.

"With the way things are going kids can use extra help and support," Leger said.

A vastly different Mustang football team will take to the field tomorrow night at home against South Lvon.

"More than two dozen players graduated from last year's squad that went 9-2, including a playoff victory over Detroit Chadsey. And while familiar faces like Bryan Kelly, John Gatti, Marc Golden and Fred Swarthout are gone. coach Darrel Schumacher believes the 1994 squad will deliver another fine season.

- "I think we'll be okay." he said. "We've just got to mature and believe in ourselves. I believe in this group."

"Northville will get a stern test tomorrow. South Lyon fields a strong running game and is a hard hitting team.

"It's a tremendous opener." Schumacher said. "They have excellent speed in the backfield."

The key to beating the Lions will be stopping their Wing T offense. It utilizes three running backs and is similar to the option.

There's so much deception to it," Schumacher said. "It's assignment football. Everyone has to be tackled (out of the backfield). It'll take some hard work by our defense to stop it."

Game time is 7:30 p.m. at the high school.

A total team effort will be needed to produce a winning season for Northville. Offensively, the Mustangs are hoping to get it done with some talented newcomers.

One veteran who is returning is the start.

Nick Bowersox. The senior, who bulks in at 6-foot-4 and 245 pounds, will anchor Northville's offensive line at tackle.

"He's going to be a good offen-sive lineman," Schumacher said.

Steve Alexander, also a senior, will take the other tackle slot. Ryan Howe is up from junior varsity to play at one guard position while returning starter Matiss Kukainis is at the other guard.

Juniors Sean Wilbur and Mike Scappaticci will work in reserve roles. Northville will average better than 200 pounds on the line.

"They have to grow up in a hurry," Schumacher said of his young line, "we have a lot of tough games early."

Senior Shaun Connolly will be Northville's quarterback.

"He's got a real good arm," the coach said. "He can throw and throw well."

Scott Vigh, who played at junior varsity last fall, will back up Con-

Northville's bread and butter will likely be junior Aneil Kersey. A muscular 5-11, 180 pounder, Kersey was the Mustangs' top rusher last year with just under 1,000 yards.

He'll be joined in the backfield by senior Todd Zayti. Both will get plenty of opportunities, said Schumacher.

Northville will use three different tight ends. Senior Jason Holman will be a "big target" while Jason Wenzel and Garrett Carter will see plenty of action.

Aneil Kersey was Northville's top rusher last season.

"He's got good speed and could be a real good one," Schumacher Trevor Surdu will play receiver as well.

Schumacher said he isn't sure how well his offense will perform. But for Northville to win, it will have to put up some numbers.

"If you want to play in our league you have to score 20 points or more," he said. "We have a ways to go to get to that. It will take us a little time to get rolling. But we can get the point production."

Many of the same players will be used on defense. Schumacher said it will be somewhat of a disadvantage.

"Ideally you'd like to have only three or four guys (playing twoway)," he said.

Bowersox and Holman will play on the line at tackles. Scappaticci will start at nose tackle.

Linebackers will be led by senior John Matthews. Joe Scappaticci, Howe, Wenzel, Kukainis, Carter and Tim Smith will also play at

In the defensive backfield, Carl Tune and Kersey will play at safety. Moore and Zayti will work at cornerback.

However this season turns out, Schumacher said he's got a good group to work with.

"I think this is a real nice bunch

Lloyd for the top spot. All three should break 18 minutes easily, said Gabrys. "They've really taken a leader-ship role," he said.

three seniors.

Sean Hollister is Northville's other senior this fall. A first-year runner, he has the potential to break 18 minutes as well. Hollister is currently recovering from an ankle injury.

"We've got to keep him healthy," said Gabrys.

Junior Dwight VanTuyl will likely take the fourth spot. His best time was 18:19 last year, but the coach said he should make a big improvement.

Another junior, Ravi Mujumdar, is also showing promise. Gabrys said he may be the No. 5 man.

Rounding out Northville's lineup will be junior Matt Jones and sophomore Adam White.

Youth marks Mustang netters squad in 1994

Tankers to vie for WLAA title

Knocking the king off the hill is

But that's the task the Mustang swim team faces if it's to win the Western Lakes Activities Association championship this season.

Livonia Stevenson was the runaway winner last fall outdistancing second place Northville by some 200 plus points at the league meet. The Spartans are stacked again with more than 70 swimmers and are the odds on favorite win for a second straight year.

"I don't think anybody can top them," said longtime Mustang coach Bill Dicks. "If anybody can come close, we've got a better chance than anyone.

Northville will try to unseat Stevenson with a squad of about 45. The Mustangs will feature more than 30 swimmers and eight That's more divers than I've had in the past," said Dicks.

Northville opens its season this afternoon at the Plymouth Relays. Because of a shorter preseason, Dicks was not too happy about the early season meet.

"It'll just be a conditioning meet," he said. "We won't see a lot of quality swims. We won't be physically ready."

Teams are not allowed to begin fall practice until the week of Aug. 15. Sometimes that means starting on a few days before the 15th or right on that date.

The way the calender fell this year. Northville had the later start. That meant fewer days of conditioning before the season opener.

Tri-captain Mandy VanHorn will also work in breaststroke but swims the 500-yard freestyle, too. Diver Katrina Heckemeyer is another captain.

She's doing a heck of a job to organize things," said Dicks. "She's a good role model."

Missy Hayes also acts as a motivator. She'll swim in the breaststroke and freestyle.

Captain Tammy Cook rounds out the seniors. Dicks expects big things from her.

team for years to come.

"I think it'll be a strong team," Waldecker said. "There's a lot of depth."

Northville has enjoyed a lot of success in the past few years. The Mustangs won the Western Division last year and placed fourth overall in the conference. Add to that a couple of trips to the state finals in the past three years.

"It's always nice to be a threat," said Waldecker.

As in years past, the Mustangs don't have a dominate golfer. But what they do have is a lot of guys who can shoot the lights out on a given day.

"It'll be a matter of who's on that day," the coach commented. "I don't think we'll have one standout. All of them will take turns."

Tabloid TV star Wayne Gale (Robert Downey, Jr.) and his assistant Julie (Terrylene) interview Mickey Knox (Woody Harrelson).

A CULTURE OF VIOLENCE

America has become a society steeped in violence. And most decent, ordinary people are

Or are they?

Oscar Award-winning filmmaker Oliver Stone challenges our conventional outrage with violence in his newest film, "Natural Born Killers," a hallucinatory journey that shocks and disonents as it reveals and informs.

Holding up a warped mirror of contemporary excess. Stone confronts us with a satire on our culture of violence and the media's ratingsdriven exploitation of that culture.

"Natural Born Killers" brings two of the most terrifying, relentless and cold-blooded mass murderers imaginable to the notion-picture screen - in a love story, about Mickey and Mallory Knox who have vowed to adore each other to the end ... about the American media's fatal attraction to the unspeakable ... and about the American public, who drew everthe next bullet was aimed right at their own

Woody Harrelson and Juliette Lewis star in a riveting look at two savage lost souls and the avaricious tabloid media that made them into cult heroes. Robert Downey Jr. stars as tabloid TV-show host Wayne Gale, whose calculated strategy to boost his ratings has unexpected consequences: Tommy Lee Jones stars as an outlandish prison warden who thinks he knows his population — until it's too late, and Tommy Sizemore stars as an obsessed, mediahungry law enforcement officer whose success on the job comes from thinking almost exactly

"Natural Born Killers" brings a surreal panorama of unforgettable characters and situations to the screen, and focuses sharply on the possible causes and effects of the media's fascination with evil. The viewer must constantly wrestle with his own emotions as he questions his response to the murderous spree of Mickey and Mallory. Both the perpetrators and the victims of their own acts, the Knoxes are simultaneously the ringmasters and sideshow of a bizarre media circus.

From Diane Sawyer's interview of Charles Manson to Stone Phillips' interview of Jeffrey Dahmer - between February 17 and May 27 of this year alone, "reality-based" tabloid and network news shows such as "inside Edition." 'Hard Copy," "A Current Affair" and 'Prime-Time Live broadcast 45 stories that graphically focused on murders, spree killers and their closer to the carnage even as they found that victims. The events and people covered by tabloid journalists and "feature news" programs in early 1994 included the following:

a man who shot six people in a fast-food restaurant:

·a postal worker shot to death by her bovinend:

*a convicted murderer who was paroled after 22 years and then killed 11 more people:

·a confrontation between a man who'd shot a three-year-old in the head and the dead child's

·a man who courdered a woman in front of her chikiren and was freed on parcle 24 years •the man who gunned down commuters on the Long Island Railroad. And the list does not include actual "news" stories such as the heavily covered trial of the Menendez brothers, who confessed to shooting their parents, or the myriad of made-for-TV movies "inspired by true stories" about sensational killings of the recent past.

Killers are the hettest media draws around. As politicians speak out against crime and violence and as American voters demand more protection from society's predators, some 95 million Americans watched the televised manhunt for O.J. Simpson in fascination, cheering the former football hero as he eluded police, and scores more tune in daily to tales of domestic mayhem. Violence is our most seduc-tive form of contemporary entertainment.

"Tomorrow — tonight — Mickey and Mallory
Knox can happen." said Stone in his production notes. "And they, too, would have their hour in the sun, and then give way by the next two issues of "TV Guide" to the next predator in the ratings war.

"When we set out to make 'Natural Born Killers' in late 1992, it was surreal," he said. By the time it was finished in 1994, it had become real. In that warped season, we saw Bobbitt, Menendez, Harding, King, Buttafuoco and several other pseudo-celebrities grasp our national attention span with stores of violence. revenge and self-obsession. Each week America was deluged by the media with a new soap opera, insuring ratings, money and, above all, continuity of the hysteria."

Bovair, who heads up the high school's counseling department, said it's no fashion faux pas to make such a statement. Whether it's "farmer pants," hats, sunglasses, boots or sandals, as long as the student feels comfortable with himself, the attire shouldn't marter.

"It all goes back to being comfortable with who you are, not what you got on," Bovair said.

Some people like to be differ ent, she added, while others pre fer to model their closets like everyone else's.

Bovair does admit, however, that during her career she has seen some pretty strange fashion trends. But the students all seem to be wearing them, whatever the latest fads may be.

WILLIAM HOUGHTON

An exercise in volunteerism

By DOROTHY NASH Special Writer

After a heart attack after he'd retired, William Houghton said he was told he "needed some sort of exercise." And since he'd seen what surgeon-escort volunteers do at St. Mary Hospital, he thought, "That's not too hard," and so he signed up.

That was last January. He has now put in 300 volunteer hours, working four hours four days a week from 1:30 to 5:30 p.m.

Houghton's main job is to wheel-chair escort a new patient, scheduled for surgery, to the appropriate places for pre-surgery tests. He's called in and given the patient and the papers regarding the case.

"Each test is listed separately," he said, "and I take the patient to the appropriate department."

Beyond that, Houghton wheelchairs patients to their rooms, and when they're discharged, he's apt to take them to their cars in the parking lot.

And beyond that, he may be

Also, he said, about 40 percent of the volunteers are men, and one is a young student.

Couple got a kick out of World Cup duties

Two Northville Township residents were part of the behind-the-scenes army that helped make the Detroit part of the World Cup 1994 soccer tournament a success.

Bruce and Ann Robson became part of the volunteer staff last spring and were at the Pontiac Silverdome several days during the two-week event which was part of the first-round games.

An appeal for volunteers caught Ann's eye last January as "possibly something we could do together."

As it turned out, each was assigned to a different operation and, during the two weeks, their schedules intersected only three times.

After the initial application process, individual interviews were held to try to match volunteers to specific jobs. This was followed by an FBI clearance and then allocation of jobs.

Bruce became part of the technology team, responsible for working with TV and radio commentators, keeping the communications systems functional, assisting wherever needed.

A veteran journalist. Ann was delighted to be assigned to the Media

Several hours in April and May were spent going through general orientation and "job specific" training. Then they each chose several shifts during the game, pre-game and post-game days.

One highlight for Bruce was being assigned to the radio and television commentators in the press box for the opening game between the USA and Switzerland. Although the temperature and humidity were hovering around 100 that day, the enthusiasm of the sell-out crowd was contaging to the Behenry. gious, according to the Robsons.

For Ann, the highlight of the event was taking notes during a press conference with members of the team from Sweden. As a service to the journalists, volunteers took notes then transcribed them so printed copies could be provided to those not able to attend the press conference.

"I've always liked being at the scene of the action." Ann said. As a result, Ann became an ardent Sweden fan for the remainder of the Another exciting part was helping foreign journalists file their stories via fax from the Media Center. On one busy morning, Ann was sending information to Rio de Janeiro, Mexico City and Bombay. "This somehow made me feel connected to all those places," she said.

Bruce enjoyed being part of the larger picture of the World Cup and catching the infectious enthusiasm of the reporters, commentators, players, fans and other workers. Volunteers came from all walks of life and in

Although her mother refuses to eat anything grown under the earth, Humbad said she does use potatoes, eggplants and carrots. Her meals also depend on lots of green vegetables and legumes.

It was a difficult time for Humbad, who was raising two baby boys, when she joined her husband, a student at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology 17 years ago. It was her first time in the United States, away from her family. She couldn't speak English and didn't know how to drive a car.

ith high construction costs and rising interest rates, home improvement projects are a costly proposition for any homeowner.

By Jane Benskey

But budgeting for those projects is particularly difficult for families facing financial hardships or with limited resources; their plans for needed home repairs are often postponed indefinitely.

Financial help is available for eligible Oakland County residents in the form of low interest installment and deferred payment home improvement loans through the Oakland County Community Development Home Improvement Program.

The Home Improvement Program, created for low- to moderate-income homeowners in Oakland County, provides a resource for homeowners who may be credit-worthy, but simply cannot take on another monthly obligation to finance home repair projects.

According to Barbara Sigety, eligibility coordinator for the home improvement program, the program works as follows: Interested applicants must own a home in one of the 50 participating Oakland County communities, meet an income criteria and have property taxes no more than one year delinquent

Once eligibility is determined, staff members step in and guide the applicants through the entire process, and, said Sigety, "take a lot of headache out of it" for the homeowner.

The staff assists the applicant in preparing and filing the loan applica-tion, inspects the homeowner's property to determine what work is required, solicits contractor bids, helps the applicant select a contractor, and inspects the repair work during and after construction.

The program is designed so that there is no exchange of cash between the homeowner and county. Instead, upon completion of work, payment is made directly to the contractor by the In terms of repairs or improvements, Sigety said the program will perform any necessary maintenance or repair to interior or exterior of the home but will not do any "frill" type improvements such as building decks, installing fencing, building or working on garages or landscaping yards.

The priority of the program is to tackle health and safety improvements to the home first, such as repairing structural, electrical, plumbing, water and sewer defects to bring the home up to a safe condition.

Another big consideration, according to Sigety, is to improve the energy efficiency of the home by replacing aging fur-nace systems or installing new windows and insulation.

Other improvement include work on roofs, siding, masonry, walls, and sidewalks, as well as improvements to make the home barrier-free for the elderly and handicapped. As for the contractors who perform the work, Sigety said that only licensed, insured contractors are used. To insure the quality of work, on-site inspections are conducted during and after construction; in addition, inspecmunicipality's building inspector.

The work performed by the contractors is warranted through their Michigan builder's license for any major repair and the program will also stand behind the work performed. If a program develops within the first year, the staff will serve as an arbitrator to negotiate a resolution of the

A. This is caused by a change in environment-a drop or rise in temperature or a change in location.

g. Why do my orchids have spots on the leaves?

A. Don't worry about spots. They're usually just minor fungi infections. Once a spot forms on a leaf, it will stay on the leaf until it falls off. Spots don't signal any serious dam-

Q. All the leaves have fallen off my orchid. What's the matter?

A. With most orchids, dropping leaves mean that the plant is either dehydrated or that the orchid has lost its root system to rot caused by over watering.

For example, some dendrobiums must lose their leaves before they can bloom. Show your leafless plant to an expert before you begin any treatment.

Q. My orchid pot is fuil of ants. What should I do?

A. Use an insecticidal soap spray — I don't believe in chemicals. Read the directions on the label carefully.

Q. I've been told my orchids have mites.

A. Use an insecticidal soap spray, or ivory soap (use a sponge). Because you'll be killing only adults, you need to wash your plant thoroughly every five days or so for at least a month to be sure that

An installment loan is one in which the principal and 3 percent interest must be repaid on a scheduled monthly basis. Monthly payments are based on a term of one year to a maximum of 20 years, depending upon the amount of the loan and the ability to repay.

The second loan offered is a deferred loan in which only the principal is to be repaid at some time in the future, such as when the house is sold. There are no installment payments or interest charges on the principal. A third option available is a combination of the two loan pro-

According to Steve Brudzinski, 11) public information officer of the department, a total of $22,1411,288 was loaned to 232 applicants for home improvement projects in 1993. The average amount spent was $9,230.

The maximum loan limit was increased to $11,000 this year to accommodate the sharp increase in construction costs. In addition, a 10 percent contingency fund is available for emergency situations.

Occasionally, said Brudzinski, homeowners who are looking for a specific improvement like new siding, must defer that desire, if inspectors determine that a health and safety item such as a new septic field is needed.

But generally speaking "in a large majority of cases what they want done is what they need done," said Brudzinski.

Brudzinski said that potential applicants should not hesitate in participating in the program. Not only is all information kept confidential, but Brudzinski salo that the homeowners have been paying their taxes for years. This is their turn to reap some of the rewards and get some benefits from the government," he said. "This is a loan program, they pay back the money —this is not welfare."

Because the program provides loans for 50 communities, Sigety said it is important to distribute the money throughout all those areas involved. "It's like watering a lawn — the sprinkler has to cover

If there is any drawback to the program, said Sigety, "it's that patience is definitely needed."

"It's not quite like going to the bank and walking out with a check," Sigety said. "But on the other hand, we take a lot of headache out of it. If you do not know how to get bids or do not know what they should do for that dollar...you can be taken advan-

Relocation is on the upswing; deficiency judgement

A recent survey shows relocation activity nationwide has been on the rise since early last year. The survey, covering the Fortune 500 companies, was conducted by Coldwell Banker Relocation Services,

Major contributors to the increase are companies that are downsizing and restructuring of business organizations. One or both of these factors was reported by nearly half of responding companies, the survey report noted. Increased international relocation activity, principally in Europe and the Pacific Rim also was Relocation activity has been fairly stable in most regions of the country in recent months. Among the major metropolitan areas. Los Angeles is experiencing the greatest activity increase, followed by Atlanta; Dallas/Fort Worth, Houston, New York City and Chicago.

The average cost for a domestic move for a cornorate employee is about $60,000, the report revealed. That's the figure for families who must sell one home and purchase another. The average cost for renters is about $17,000.

The average cost for an international relocation is about $131.000. All relocation costs are expected to grow in the near future, primarily due to changes in taxes and in varying real estate conditions.

Resistance to relocating is usually no problem for an employer firm. In most cases, it results in a promotion and higher salary for the transferee. But 5 percent of the surveyed companies report they do encounter significant problems with personnel not wanting to be relocated.

Most of those who resist a relocation do so because of family related issues, according to the report. This outweighs objections stemming from job-related issues by more than 9 to 1.

"The survey highlights two important business trends supporting relocation—corporate downsizing and globalization," said Stephen Roney, president of Coldwell Banker Relocation Services. "Corporate change, whether structural or geographical, calls for corporations to relocate key employees with the knowledge of how to accomplish the task effectively.

Q. What is a deficiency judgment that is sometimes obtained from a homeowner by a lender?

A. It's a judgment obtained by the lender against a borrower for the difference between the unpaid balance of a mortgage loan and the amount of money obtained in a foreclosure sale. In the case of many real estate loans, a deficiency judgment cannot legally be obtained by the lender. Check with your attorney on

Q. What is a "short payoff" of a mortgage loan?

A. It's a term that describes a transaction where a real estate lender agrees to amount that is less than the full amount of the loan balance. In most cases, it involves a property that has suffered a reduction in market value over the past

Typically, the homeowner will sell the property to an outside buyer and uses the proceeds to pay off the lender. A few years ago, lenders would seldom consider such an arrangement. Today, many are open to negotiations.

9. Are home sales on the increase or decrease?

A. Sales are up, substantially, and growing in volume. Here's what the president of the National Association of Realtors said about the current market:

"Residential property sales are very strong at this point. Sales of existing single-family homes have been particularly strong for the last few months. In fact, more homes were sold in the first half of accept, as a pay-off for the loan, an this year than in all of 1982. And it looks as though this year will be the second best on record for home sales.

> "Current affordability conditions are still at one of the best levels of all time nd continue to encourage purchases. The FHA's single-family mortgage program also is a valuable tool that is assisting many first-time buyers to achieve home, ownership, and Congress is now looking : at ways to make FHA available to even more home buvers."

How many American families own a vacation home?

A. About 7 percent. Most of these second homes are located in the southern or western regions of the country.

Timely questions for strawberries

all hatching larvae have been eliminat-

G. My strawberry plants are being ruined by an insect that burrows into the crown causing the leaves to yellow. What can I do since the stress eventually kills the plants?

A. Your problem is either strawberry crown borer or white grubs.

White grubs are the larval form of the Japanese beetle or sometimes known as May beetle. The adult emerges from the soil in early summer and will lay white eggs in the soil. The larvae that hatch three weeks later feed on roots and crowns of a wide variety of plants, including strawber-

In the fall, they penetrate deeper into the soil to over-winter. The larvae feed again all through their second year, then emerge as adults the following spring.

For white grub control, the best solution is to remove and destroy all infected plants; and when the soil temperature is above 55 degrees, apply beneficial nematodes in early evening, making sure to water them in the ground well. The nematodes won't harm grubs already in the plants, but they will begin killing grubs still in the soil within 10 to 30 days.

For long-term control of grubs, apply milky spore disease on the lawn and grassy areas around your strawberry patch this month. Although the milky spore bacteria infect grubs within a few weeks after application, milky spore usually take a full season to get

If the grubs are legless, then you're no doubt dealing with the strawberry crown borer larvae. The dark-brown adult beetles emerge from the soil at blossom time to lay eggs on the strawberry's crown. They burrow into the crown to feed and grow, killing the

If you have a severe infestation, you can solve the problem by growing strawberries as an annual plant in October and harvesting in June. To kill most of the larvae, till the infested planting in summer.

Q. When is watermelon ripe? A. Knowing when to pick your watermelon is just as important as knowing how to grow it, and thumping doesn't always work.

When she arrived in America 15 years ago, Tzetzi Ganev brought along the hopes and dreams of the millions who came before her. The Italian fashion designer wanted to make a name for herself in the "land of opportunity."

Today, she has. As one of Hollywood's most creative costume designers, she works with some of the silver screen's best and brightest.

Tzetzi Ganev believes in America, and also invests in it. Like 30 million others, she buys U.S. Savings Bonds. Today's Bonds pay competitive rates, like moneymarket accounts. They're free from state and local income tax, and they're one of the safest investments around.

You can buy Bonds where you work, through the Payroll Savings Plan, where you bank, or now by phone. It's a great way to start working toward your own American dream. U.S. Savings Bonds, the Great American Investment. To find out more, or to buy Borids, call 1-800-US-BONDS.

Save when building home, office

By ANNE SEEBALDT GOGOLIN

With 15 years of experience, Susan Zimanski of Milford and Christina Maunder of Hartland believe they have something to share with you.

That's why the two women opened Home Builders Services, Inc. in 1993 - so that they could share their knowledge of the construction business with customers.

"We help anybody (businesses and individuals) to be involved in the construction of a home,' Zimanski said.

Maunder earned a civil engineering degree from the Pennsylvania State University, and she also possesses a professional engineer Zimanski has a builders license and earned an associate's degree in construction engineering from Lawrence Technological University.

Home Builders Services, Inc. was incorporated in October 1993, but Maunder and Zimanski did not begin advertising their services until the spring of this year.

"The time in between was a planning process," Zimanski said.

The Milford-based company can help you save money when building your own home or office site. They can tell someone "if it would be more cost effective to hire contractors or do the contracting (work) themselves," Zimanski said.

Both women worked for the same general contractor for 15

When that contracting business closed down, they knew they wanted to continue to utilize their construction knowledge — ideally combined with flexible hours.

Their solution: Start the homebased new business.

Maunder said of their new venture: "I wanted to stay in the construction field and have the flexibility of working in the home."

Zimanski had left the contracting business they had worked for before Maunder did.

During the period between her departure from contracting work and the start of Home Builders, she worked for a bank that loaned money to owner-builders.

"I wanted to stay in construction and I thought I could do it by help-

Regardless of the type of home (modular or otherwise), Zimanski said that they can walk owners through the onerous process of construction paperwork and other necessary aspects of building, including job costing, bookkeeping, filing notice of commencement (start of construction), and plan-

Maunder said they also advise clients about cost determination, insurance needs, scheduling work, current building methods and necessary inspections.

Their clients receive worksheets that outline financing options, cost breakdowns, plumbing and room finish schedules, sworn statements or waivers of lien, general construction sequence, window and door schedules, a light fixture schedule and a summary of job

Zimanski's experience is primarily in the office managementfinancing end of the construction she had about one year of field experience out of 15 years in construction work.

In contrast, Maunder spent almost all that time in the field supervising construction projects.

"What it boils down to is that we've got skills that other people can use," Zimanski said.

At present, Home Builders Services. Inc. owner-operators are available by appointment only.

They will do on-site consulting work or arrange for clients to meet at their home-based office.

"It's necessarily part-time until we get it going," Maunder said.

In response to the growing demand for highly skilled office and technical workers. MANPOW-ER TEMPORARY SERVICES is moving to a more central location at 6001 N. Adams Rd., Suite 115, Bloomfield Hills. the new office will allow the staff to provide skills training, testing and employment opportunities to a greater number of temporary employees in the Oakland County area.

Businesses in the Oakland County area need workers with computer skills, and workers recognize that need," says District Manager Mary Stien. "They're turning to Manpower to upgrade their skills on the newest technology to increase their marketability.

The new facility enables Man power to train more people with Skillware, the hands on computer based training program, which was designed to enhance the skills temdesigned to enhance the skills temporary employees need to remain competitive in the work force. Manpower temporary workers can upgrade or add to their skills through training, free of charge, on any of 350 software packages and hardware applications.

Skillware training is also available to customers' permanent employees. "Our customers recognize training as a means to raise productivity," says Stien The Bloomfield Hills Manpower office has already received calls from customers interested in training their employees on Lotus, MicroSoft Word and Excel, three of the area's most popular programs. Manpower has equipped more than one million operators worldwide with the skills businesses demand. Eighty-nine percent of the Fortune 100 have turned to Manpower for computer training.

Skillware is not the only type of training Manpower offers to its temporary employees. Delivering excellent customer service is the focus of an increasing number of companies in the Oakland County area and around the country. Manpower's extensive research on customer's expectations of temporary worker performance revealed that, in addition to technical skills, the desire to exceed customers' expectations is critical. When these forward-thinking companies need temporary workers, those workers must have the same commitment to quality service as the permanent

In order to meet the demand for workers with this commitment to quality service. Manpower developed quality service training for its temporary employees. The training called, "Putting Quality to Work," is designed to equip employees with the skills they need to stand out on the job by delivering exceptional service and support to both customers and co-workers.

In addition to benefits such as training, Manpower offers its employees health and life insurance, along with paid holidays and paid vacations.

To ensure its industrial employees are productive, Manpower tests the skills of its applicants with Ultradex, a series of job-related assessments. "Ultradex allows Manpower to identify each temporary employee's knowledge, skills and abilities. That means we can assign them to positions in which they'll perform to their full potential," says Stien.

Anyone interested in Manpower's employment services or training is invited to contact the new office at 810-540-3380.

The Bloomfield Hills office is part of Manpower's network of over 2,000 offices in 36 countries The world's largest temporary employment service. Manpower provides employment to more than one million people each year.

College grads must spend money wisely

For many college graduates, the exhilaration of landing a job will soon be tempered by the realization that a paycheck doesn't stretch as far as they had anticipated. To help new graduates effectively manage their earnings, the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants offers these basic financial planning tips.

WHERE THE MONEY IS GOING

To take control of your finances, you must know where your money is going. You can find out by developing a cash flow statement. In simple terms, you need to begin tracking your expenses on a monthly basis and comparing them to your monthly income. Do this for several months and you'll get a good understanding of your financial habits — and these that may need to be changed.

When tracking your expenses. include every expense, even small amounts paid for gifts and sporting or entertainment events. An accurate cash flow statement will help you choose areas in which you can cut back your spending if neces-

CONTROL SPENDING

While your cash flow statement will indicate past spending habits, a budget can guide you in making future financial expenditures and achieving your financial goals. To create your budget, list all monthly expenses, including fixed costs such as rent, automobile and educational loans, as well as variable expenses, such as those for food, entertainment and travel.

As a rule of thumb, plan on spending about 30 percent of your-take-home pay on housing, including rent and utilities, and 20 percent on food. Out of the remaining 50 percent, you'll need to pay for. miscellaneous expenses, including; your commuting costs, students loans and other outstanding debts,: clothing, gifts, etc. You should also strive to set aside between 5 and 10 percent of your earnings in a." savings account.

Your budget should be driven inlarge part by your financial goals." So, for example, if you want to purchase a new car a year fromnow, you'll need to boost your savings further and look for ways to reduce your expenses.

USE CREDIT WISELY

Since credit cards are heavily marketed to college students, you. may already own one or two. However, whether you already have bank credit cards or would like to. obtain your first one, it's wise to shop around for cards that offer the best deals.

Look for credit cards that offer low annual fees and low interest rates. Don't be tempted by cards. that offer incentives, such as airline miles or rebates on cars. These cards may have higher interest charges and annual fees, meaning they'll ultimately cost you more to

CILITATION Dream Homes 1994 Features 13 New Dream Homes

This fall, there's more to do than send the kids back to school, visit the cider mill and rake the leaves. So, when you pencil in the "to do" list for fall 1994, add one more item: Explore the 13 new "dream homes" of HOMEARAMA 1994, September 1 through 18.

Set in the Brentwood subdivision of White Lake Township, the area represents the best of both worlds, where country living is surrounded by major city conveniences.

These model homes showcase all the best in leisurely living, from the acre upon acre of surrounding natural areas, the Brentwood golf course, broad porches and the latest in home construction, landscaping, decorating and furnishings.

Here's a sampling of highlights from the homes:

Reminisce about simpler days as you look out from old-fashioned porches like the one on "The Mackinac" by McGrath Construction, Inc. of Commerce Township. This Victorian two-story home features a gazebo built into the front porch. The covered porch comprises over 800 feet in the front and back of this home. A triple arched 20-foot porch accents "The Calaveras," an American and European style country home built by The Norman Marcus Group, Inc. of West Bloomfield. Also by The Norman Marcus Group, "The Nestledown's" 34-foot wrap-around porch and copper roof bay windows complete this American country home.

It's glorious to let the sun shine in and "The Tybee" by Brentwood Farms Development, Inc. of West Bloomfield, does just that. Its sunroom leads to a deck adjacent to the kitchen, family room and covered rear porch.

The kitchens in these homes are a must-see, including "The Westin" by EnviroTech Building Company of Royal Oak. The room features an island, walk-in pantry and breakfast area with French doors leading to the deck. "The Prairie" by Sova Builders, Inc. of White Lake Township has an Lshaped island lighted with mini spots from an oak valance. Another dream kitchen can be found in "The Hearthside" by Fireside Homes, Inc. of White Lake Township. It includes a hardwood floor, cherry cabinets, walk-in pantry, breakfast nook bay area and adjacent hearth room with a river- rock stone fireplace. Parents of infants and toddlers will love this: "The Hearthside" is child-safety proofed with cabinet catches, plug covers and appliance controls.

Comfort extends to all areas of these home including the bathrooms. "The Fancrest," an English country home also by Brentwood has a corner soaking tub in the master bath.

Master bedroom suites are designed with livability in mind in these exceptional homes. The first floor master bedroom suite of "The Providence," also by Brentwood, includes a tray ceiling, walk-in closet, glass door access to an outside deck, dressing area and soaking tub. "The Jacqueline," a traditional country- styled home also by EnviroTech Building Company, features master bedroom suites on the first and second floors with walk-in closets and a whirlpool tub on the first floor. The master bedroom suite of "The Georgetown" by Tanck Carpentry, Inc. of Novi has tray ceilings and a separate sitting room with a seethrough fireplace overlooking the corner whirlpool tub in the master bath. The bath also has a vaulted ceiling and lighted plant shelves.

A bridge overlook accentuates "The Talonwaide" also by Brentwood. The bridge with loft overlooks the great room and foyer.

Never give another thought to a basement leak with the steel and foam engineered basement in "The Prevost" by Hughes Management Group, Inc. of Farmington. The basement is pre-studded for drywall and has an R-25 insulation value.

HOMEARAMA 1994 is located in the Brentwood Subdivision which is on Cooley Lake Road just west of Bogie Lake Road in White Lake Township.

Admission is $6 per person. Show hours are 3pm - 10:30pm Monday through Friday, and noon - 10:30pm Saturday, Sunday and Labor Day. A plan book describing all the homes is available at the site. Discount coupons for admission Mondays through Fridays excluding Labor Day will be mailed to homeowners in their Consumers Power and Detroit Edison bills and Standard Federal Bank statements, co-sponsors of HOME-ARAMA 1994. Ample free parking is provided and refreshments will be available for purchase. For more information call (810) 737-4478.

WHAT ARE YOU LOOKING FOR IN A HOME?

New home buyers in the '90s are finding the widest-ever variety of styles and options from which to choose. While those choices may bewilder some, a quicklook at current trends in homebuilding should help the buyer make a decision.

"Home buyers look for the latest in style and technology," says Robert R. Jones, president of the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan and of Robert R. Jones Associates in West Bloomfield. "Those buyers are naturally going to gravitate to builders who offer up-to-date products."

Many of the trends in new homes relate to recent advances in technology. Built-in appliances, including microwaves and hot water dispensers, are the rule rather than the exception in the '90s. Phone jacks in every room, built-in entertainment centers, and even built-in whirlpool baths are among the things buyers are looking for in their homes. Many buyers consider these amenities virtual necessities.

Other popular items fit into the category of luxuries. Master bedroom galleys, spacious bathrooms with dual vanities, high ceilings, and home fitness centers are among the "extras" buyers are looking for that tailor the home to a particular personality.

"There is also a move back to classic styling," Jones continues.
"We get many requests for skylights, radius corners, and tone-on-tone floor surfaces which help increase visual space. Overall, many new homes would be considered neo-classic in their design theme."

Perhaps the one item that is getting more attention than any other from most home buyers in the '90s is the overall quality of the home.
Buyers are looking for workmanship that will last and that will ensure their new home will be a showplace well into the next century.

High-gloss cabinets, a wide array of built-in storage spaces, plentiful shelving in closets, and even pop-out ironing boards are all features that today's buyer will find attractive and useful while adding to the "finished" appearance of the home. Combining those features with careful detail work will give the home a desired high-quality effect.

"More and more buyers are realizing that spending a few more dollars up front pays off in improved appearance, reduced maintenance, and increased resale value," Jones states. "Cutting corners is a thing of the past. Buyers today want the highest-possible quality of workmanship."

Free Homeowner's Directory Available

A free directory is now available from the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan(BASM) to provide prospective homeowners with information on new homes and locations in Southeastern Michigan.

The directory, which will be updated monthly, lists homes and building sites by city for Wayne, Oakland, Macomb, and St. Clair counties. Each listing includes basic information such as square footage, number and placement of bedrooms and baths, style and design, price range, school district, and other amenities.

Special features are provided when available, such as barrier-free design, use of allergy-sensitive construction materials, special warranties, and whether a builder will construct on the homeowner's lot.

All the builders listed in the directory are professionally licensed and members in good standing of BASM. Homeowners are encouraged to check the references and previous workmanship of all prospective builders.

To obtain a copy of the directory, call the BASM offices, (810) 737-4477, Monday through Friday, from 8:30am - 4:00pm.

Shoreline in autumn reveals all hues

Dorothy Webster

What sort of souvenirs do you bring back from trips?

Do they include beach-smoothed stones, a gull feather, a pressed ochre oak leaf, photographs of small coastal villages with boats at anchor, menus from out of the way but surprisingly good restaurants, books of local history, a pot of cherry conserves, a score card from a challenging golf course?

Then you've probably spent some time enjoying Michigan's western shoreline - especially that stretch from Manistee to Kewadin that is most spectacular during autumn.

There are intangibles that you've carried back too. Memories of that inland sea called Lake Michigan that changes from azure to cobalt to turquoise to black in never-ending ribbons that stretch to the horizon, recollections of trying to get a grip on the steep slopes of Sleeping Bear dunes while getting a fresh perspective of life along Michigan's blue borders.

You may recall meals including freshly-caught fish, morel mushrooms, buffalo burgers, locally grown fruit and locally made wines.

If you've traveled in autumn, you'll also remember the changing colors of the trees: dark spruces that form a perfect backdrop for scarlet and persimmon maples, silken gold and yellow of aspens, umber-shaded oaks, and white clad birches.

Perhaps you haven't taken that trip yet. You may have been thinking about it and maybe you've even called or written for more information. This autumn is the perfect time to introduce yourself to Michigan's western shore, and a good start is at Manistee, a Victorian port city. Its downtown shopping district is listed on the National Register of Historic Places and if "painted ladies" are your passion, you'll find a slew of the gaily-colored houses around town.

Authentic Victorian buildings, many designed by nationally known architects, will whisk you back into another time in this quaint city that's nestled on the Manistee River between the shores of Lake Michigan and Manistee Lake. There's a picturesque riverwalk connecting the central business district to Lake Michigan, an interesting lighthouse at the end of a Michigan architect Jerry Matthews has designed a splendid golf course offering breathtaking views. With 27 holes, The Majestic at Lake Walden offers challenging golf and superior service.

Besides the walking tours, a trolley tour aboard a 1900 replica car will take you past unique buildings, beaches and the main sights of town. Call 616-723-6525 for details.

There are a number of good places for lunch, one is Four Forty West, a restaurant next to the city marina where you'll enjoy a variety of fish entrees or prime rib. If you want lighter fare, they have a wonderful variety of sandwiches and soups, as well as lunch specials. Or you can try fine dining at Portage Point Inn, a historic inn enhanced by a view of Portage Lake. It also offers accommodations (with a great porch for water viewing). It's located 10 miles north of Manistee, off M-22 on Portage Point Road. Telephone 616-889-4222 for more information.

Stay on M-22 as you drive north through Arcadia to Frankfort. Here, you'll have the chance to watch printing presses make stationery, books and other products from original wood blocks carved by Gwen Frostic in nearby Benzonia. The print shop is housed in a building made of large rocks, hewn beams, with an indoor waterfall and carvings of native birds. Call 616-882-5505 for details, Right in Frankfort, on the Main Street, visit the Midwest Soaring Museum that will let you know what soaring's all about and what it's been doing since the 1930s.

Continuing north on M-22, Empire has the Phillip Hart Visitor Center with full information on the

Sleeping Bear Dunes National Lakeshore that you won't want to

The whole lakeshore region is actually 70,000 acres, much more than just the dunes. There are clear lakes, abandoned orchards, streams and forests encompassed within its borders, roughly divided into three sections spanning an area from Empire to Good Harbor Bay. You'll get a good view by car from the 7.1 mile Pierce Stocking Drive, a loop with 12 turnouts overlooking Glen Lake, Lake Michigan, Sleeping Bear Point and the Manitou Islands. Be sure to pick up a self-guided tour map at the visitor's

One of the attractions, especially if you have children along, is the Main Dune Climb, a 130-foot sand mountain that slopes down to Lake Michigan, or to a picnic area. At Point Betsie there's an interesting lighthouse, often photographed by visitors. The Platte River area of the park is filled with canoeists and beachcombers.

Another stop should be North Bar Lake, adjacent to Lake Michigan, where you can dip your toes into the shallow water far later in the year than you can enjoy the big lake.

The Manitou Islands lie offshore: South Manitou is about 7.5 miles north of Sleeping Bear Point and accessible by ferry from Leland. It's a three hour round trip and can be taken seven days a week. If you go, don't miss the restored lighthouse on ranger-led

Continued From Page 5 tours. North Manitou Island is much more primitive. Three times the size of South Manitou, the northern island offers a rugged outdoor experience for campers and backpackers who demand a more challenging terrain.

Between the islands, dangerous Manitou Passage is the graveyard of 50 or more ships and is a popular spot for diving enthusiasts. Remember, all finds must be left intact.

At windswept Glen Haven, the Sleeping Bear Point Maritime Museum is housed in a 1900s Lifesaving Station, a forerunner of today's United States Coast Guard. The two-story building offers a glimpse of life when surfmen effected rescues from ships in distress on stormy waters. You'll note displayed rescue equipment, including the Lyle gun, a Fresnel lens from a lighthouse, surfboats and the pilot house of a Great Lakes ship. For information on Sleeping Bear Dunes National Lakeshore, call 616-326-5134.

If you're feeling adventurous, you can explore the region by alternative means: from the air by chartered flight, by parasailing, ballooning or hand gliding, or from under the waves, by scuba diving. To charter a plane, contact Cherry Capital Aviation or Brady's Air Service. Balloons are available at Grand Traverse Balloons, 616-947-7433. The "little finger" of Michigan's mitten, Leelanau County is almost a different world by itself. You could spend your entire vacation time here and find just about everything you sought - good beaches, interesting shops, fine restaurants, great views, even gambling!

"Fishtown" at Leland, almost resembles an Eastern seaboard harbor, but there are differences you'll be delighted to discover for yourself. There are all the quaint gift shops, antique galleries, art studios and boardwalks - and something else. It's an indescribable ambiance which you'll remember long after you leave.

A popular spot to dine is Leelanau Country Inn, 8 miles south of Leland on M-22. The restaurant features over 50 homemade entrees with the largest selection of Leelanau County vineyard wines. Call ahead: 616-228-5060.

After visiting the lighthouse at the tip of the peninsula, you might want to visit Leelanau Wine Cellars, Ltd. Located on a hill overlooking Omena Bay off M-22, you can sample vinifera, hybrid and fruit wines. Call 616-386-5201 or 946-1653.

The gambling? It's at Leelanau Sands Casino, operated by the Grand Traverse Band of Ottawa and Chippewa Indians, 2521 NW. Bayshore Drive, near Sutton's Bay. Call 800-962-4646 for more information.

At Traverse City, there are dozens of places to stay, to dine and shop. There are several bookstores and galleries, parks and beaches. Just call 1-800-TRAVERS for full information. The convention and visitors bureau does a wonderful job at promoting the area, so be prepared for four-color maps, vacation planning guides, special destinations - just everything you'll need to select what's right for you.

The Grand Traverse Resort is an always interesting place to stay with golf at your doorstep and the Tower of Shops that includes an Orvis shop for the angler - budding or experienced. And, of course, there's the Trillium restaurant and nightclub atop the resort with panoramic views of the countryside.

Nearer downtown, you'll find excellent food at Reflections, a restaurant and lounge commanding views of East Bay. It's located high up in the Waterfront Inn on US-31. Mabel's is a popular spot noted as "an upscale eatery without those upscale prices", just two doors from Days Inn. It features an in-house bakery, seven

Cozy hotel hosts quilters

Bay View, Michigan-

A little known jewel exists in Emmet Count. It is the town of Bay View.

Located on the shores of Little Traverse Bay between Petoskey and Harbor Springs it is a community of over 400 summer homes built at the turn of the century as a Methodist retreat or Chataqua. Of the more than 100 Chataquas that existed at the turn of the century, only Bay View and two others still operate under their original charter.

The Victorians believed in education and enrichment and during their summers at a Chataqua they spent their time learning new skills and hearing lectures by some of the most famous speakers of their day such as Helen Keller, William Jennings Bryan, and Mark Twain.

Bay View is also noted for its architecture. Most of the homes were built in the early 1900's and are a fascinating example of gingerbread, porches, and color schemes in the "Painted Lady Tradition." In the spirit of this rich history lies the heart of the Northern Michigan Quilters Getaway.

The Terrace Inn is proud to present two of the finest quilt makers in the country, Marianne Fons and Katie Pasquini-Masopust. to the Bay View community to present classes and lectures on their quilting specialties. Guests may choose between three sessions: Friday, Sept. 9 - Sunday, Sept. 11; Sunday, Sept. 11-Wednesday, Sept. 14; or the one day only Thursday, Sept. 15. Sessions 1 and 2 cost $329 and include all food, lodging, classes and lectures. Session 3 is a day only class for $58 which includes lunch.

The Terrace Inn is a cozy hotel on the National Historic Register. It was built in 1911 and has all the charm of the turn of the century. It has 44 guests rooms, all of which are reserved for quilters.

This is the eighth getaway held at the Terrace Inn. For more information or to register call 517-485-0876.

Surprise winner lands fishing's top title

Twenty-four years of bass fishing history added a fresh, bright chapter on a stormy week in Greensboro, N.C. this summer as Connecticut fry cook Bryan Kerchal surprised the biggest names in major-league tournaments by taking home the sport's most important title - champion of the BASS Masters Classic.

Kerchal, a 23-year bachelor who lives with his parents and cooks for a living at night, had made history by qualifying for a Classic ticket for the second consecutive year through the Bass Anglers Sportsman Society's club federation ranks. But that paled in significance as Kerchal went on to become the first amateur - called Wrangler Anglers in this sport - to wrestle the Classic crown away from the touring pros who have dominated the prestigious tournament throughout its 24-year-history.

The only fisherman in the 40-man Classic field to bring a limit to the Greensboro Coliseum scales on all three competition days, Kerchal's total of 15 High Rock Lake largemouth bass weighing 36 pounds, 7 ounces was enough to hold off hard-charging Oklahoma pro Tommy Biffle by a scant 4 ounces.

A record crowd of about 23,500 spectators cheered the reign of fishing's newly-crowned young king, who took home the $50,000 and stands to inherit as much as $1 million in income from endorsement contracts and speaking engagements.

"This is just amazing," Kerchal said. "Of course, it's every federation angler's dream to do this. I never thought it would happen. But I'm really proud and feel really good about it. I worked hard just to get here and I've come a long way."

Kerchal took special satisfaction in the fact that he made B.A.S.S. history as an amateur.

"It's really special to have won this tournament being a Wrangler Angler," he said. "It's a real personal accomplishment for me. It's really the ultimate goal of every bass fisherman. And I'm really proud to represent the federation anglers because it really gives them something to shoot for. I'm really proud to be representing them."

The B.A.S.S. federation program includes more than 40,000 members through 47 states and tournaments are just a small part of their activities. Qualifying for the Classic via the federation route is no small feat. It involves more than a year of competition and survival in local, state, regional and national tournaments. Kerchal won the Wrangler Angler National Championship to earn his invitation to the Classic.

Ironically, Kerchal finished dead last in his first Classic appearance in 1993. But during July 28-30 when High Rock Lake became swollen and muddy - destroying the strategies of the top professional minds in fishing - Kerchal managed to complete a remarkable turnabout.

Kerchal's historic strategy involved fishing a set of boat docks in the somewhat muddy waters of Second Creek with a 6-inch red-shad colored Culprit plastic worm teamed with a 3/16 ounce sinker and 15 pound Berkley Trilene Big Game line. The shallow docks, which had brush around their pilings, were adjacent to the bend of a channel where the water dropped off to about 20 feet in depth.

The second-through fifth-finishers utilized rubber-skirted jigs to score so consistently.

Kevin VanDam of Kalamazoo, MI placed 18th and won $3,000.

Raise a toast to 'best kept secret'

Manchester, Michigan -

It's hard to imagine a more idyllic site than Sharon Mills Winery.

Tucked away on a back road in southwest Washtenaw County, the 160-year-old building is a jewel of Greek Revival architecture. The gurgling headwaters of the River Raisin pass on either side of the mill site, escaping from the placid mill pond just across the road.

Flowering shrubs and annual plantings burst into color in beds surrounding the winery. No wonder it's a favorite subject for area artists.

Brothers and co-owners Craig and Michael Hawker have preserved a landmark that served 19th century farmers as a feed mill, became a 20th century Ford Motor Co. factory, and was then converted to a private residence.

As part of Henry Ford's village industry project to preserve rural values, the mill produced cigar lighters and stop light switches from the mid-1930s until 1951. The generator Ford installed still provides power to maintain the precise conditions necessary for the production of wine.

The Hawker family has owned the mill since 1962, putting it to use as a home, antique shop and wine tasting room. It's been a bonded winery since 1989, producing champagne from grapes grown in northwest Michigan.

The cool stone-walled basement of the mill has the capacity to age 1500 cases of champagne. The Hawker family — Craig and wife Diane, Michael and wife Jean — have chosen the traditional "Method Champenoise" for their winery, which requires that all operations be performed by hand.

The winery consists of a gleaming oak-paneled tasting room and the lower level "stone room" used for private functions. It's a popular setting for wedding receptions, where guests can toast the bridal couple with champagne made right on the site.

All Sharon Mills Winery champagne is aged in the bottle from two to five years and finished brut. The following varieties, bottled and cellared in the mill's dark recesses, are available:

— 1989 RG, made of 100 percent Riesling grape, light and fruity with depth.

— 1989 Chardonnay, exquisite, classic dry taste.

— 1989 Rose of Sharon, 80 percent Chardonnay and 20 percent Pinot Noir, pale pink full flavored wine of character and complexity.

Sharon Mills Winery champagne was the 1990 Michigan New Product Award recipient and has been honored by the Michigan State Fair and the American Wine Competition. The HIDDEN JEWEL— Sharon Mills Winery is tucked away in the rolling hills of southwest Washtenaw County. The mill dates from 1834 and was once owned by Henry Ford.

Michigan wines garner national awards

Michigan wines were very well represented last spring at the Tasters Guild International Wine Judging in Fort Lauderdale, Florida. Nearly 1,000 wines were entered from 13 countries and 18 states in the wine society's annual event.

According to the consumer group's president, Joseph J. Schagrin, This was one of the highest-quality collections of wine we have seen at any one event in a long time." He continued, "It is very encouraging to see the progress that wineries in the Midwest are making in developing fine premium table wines. Each year we see major improvements in the wines entered by the wineries of this region." This fall 23 medal awards from the Tasters Guild will proudly hang in the tasting rooms of Michigan wineries. The following is the listing of Michigan medal winners:

Elegant portside town turns back the clock

Manistee, Michigan-

This charming Lake Michigan town celebrates its heritage Sept. 10-11 with the Victorian Port City Festival.

Conceived as a tribute to Manistee's natural beauty and cultural history, the festival provides an entire weekend of entertainment, set against a lovely Michigan autumnal backdrop.

Antiques and collectible buffs will enjoy the many charming shops located in the heart of downtown Manistee. A street art fair showcases the works of numerous artisans. From this downtown location, it is possible to stroll among and view several blocks of classic and antique autos on

The aroma of ethnic foods dispensed from various outdoor cafes will waft through the air. Charming ladies in lace accompanied by elegantly dressed gentlemen will add to the bygone aura.

Native Americans, an integral part of Manistee's cultural patchwork, contribute to the festivities with craft displays and dance performances.

Continuous musical entertainment will include performances by the Scottville Clown Band and the Salt · City Dixieland Band.

The River Street Players will present "The Spoilers," an authentic Victorian melodrama, Sept. 9-10 at 8 p.m. and Sept. 11 at 2 p.m.

"The Spoilers" was first produced in 1906 and was reputed to have been based on an actual court case from the Alaska gold rush era. This production is staged to allow the audience the opportunity to cheer the hero and boo the villain, in true melodrama fashion.

Tickets to "The Spoilers" are $10 and are available by calling 616-723-9797.

Historical displays at the Manistee County Historical Museum and the Ramsdell Theatre are planned throughout the weekend. Tours of Manistee's numerous historic buildings will be offered and may be enjoyed aboard the town's trolleys, complete with period-costumed Riverboat rides along the Manistee River and Lake Michigan schooner rides are also planned.

Manistee is located about 45 miles west of Cadillac and is easily accessible via M-55 or US-31. Call 616-723-9906 for more information.

The resorts, the shops, the natural beauty and first-class golf contribute to their popularity.

Mancelona hopes to emulate Bellaire's paint-up, fix-up with a downtown development and street lighting project beginning next year.

Alden, on the east shore of Torch Lake and nine miles from Bellaire, is another Antrim County village that has been a sleeper and recently spruced up.

Shanty Creek and Schuss Mountain have been catalysts in the local improvements by bringing in visitors from around the Midwest and Shanty Creek has won major awards this year from Successful Meetings magazine. Corporate Meetings & Incentives magazine and Meetings and Conventions magazine.

Shanty Creek was one of five Midwest resorts to receive the Golden Links award from Corporate Meetings and Incentives. The award is for golf facilities, meeting facilities and service levels.

The Grand Hotel on Mackinac Island and Shanty Creek received Pinnacle awards from Successful Meetings and Shanty Creek and Boyne Highlands took two of the five Midwest awards from Meetings and Conventions.

in 1985, the Legend gets better each year. It is one of the most beautiful courses anywhere with views of Lake Bellaire, deep forests and two holes fronted by Shanty Creek.

In addition, there's the Shanty Creek course, designed by William Diddle 30 years ago and the Schuss Mountain course designed by Warner Bowen and a favorite of visitors for two decades.

Mancelona-born Rodger Jabara not only is ski school director for the resorts but golf director as well, a unique combination. Jabara was a skier before he got interested in golf but once into golf he went full-force and presently is a director of the Michigan Section of the Professional Golfers Association of America.

Jabara was named Spalding National Golf Professional of the Year in 1991. ichigan Golf Professional of the Year in 1989 and has been featured on the cover of PGA Magazine.

While Jabara is a big driver with a golf club, he's not a big driver of off road bikes. He leaves that for the hundreds of enthusiasts who converge each summer on Shanty Creek for the Jeep National Championship Series races. The racers go up and down the ski hills at Schuss Mountain and travel cross country with part of the course through Bellaire.

Labor Day signals back-to-school time but there still is plenty of golf and fabulous color shows in the fall. The pace is a little slower but the days are long enough to get in plenty of play before nightfall.

Last winter was long and often too cold for northern visitors but heading into August it was a bonanza summer and if you're thinking of a fall trip north, book now. Shanty Creek's toll-free number is 1-800-678 4111.

Captain's Club receives designer's salute

Grand Blanc, Michigan-

The captain was well-pleased with the outcome.

Raymond Floyd toured the Captain's Club at Woodfield on its grand opening, liked what he saw and proudly said Michigan's newest signature public course came in under budget.

Developer Brian Mansour of Paragon Development Corp. named the course in honor of Floyd who was captain of the United States' 1989 Ryder Cup team, won the United States Open, shares with Jack Nicklaus the Masters Tournament scoring record, has won two PGA Championships and is among the most honored players in golf.

The tee marker at each hole is a large grindstone with Floyd's likeness and signature lasered into it.

Floyd collaborated with Michigan designer Harry Bowers of South Lyon on the Captain's Club. Bowers, a Michigan State University graduate, formerly worked under Robert Trent Jones Jr. on the Jones course at Treetops Resort and designed The Rock on Drummond Island on his own.

Bowers also worked with two-time United States Open champion Curtis Strange on a course in suburban Chicago.

"Harry and I worked very well together," Floyd said. "I don't have a trademark for my courses; I'm traditional and I love traditional designs where you let the land dictate what you're going to

"It costs $2 a yard to move dirt and I'm very sympathetic with the developer's budget. My dad is a golf pro and when I was 12 years old I helped him clear a course and I understand the value of a dollar.

"We moved only 115,000 yards of dirt at the Captain's Club and that's very low by today's standards. I'm proud of that," Floyd said.

The green complexes are a distinguishing feature of the Captain's Club. They're large with fingers moving in different directions to allow a wide variety of pin locations.

"You have to give Harry credit for that," Floyd said. "The land was flat and he felt that might not be enough challenge for low handicappers so he put more movement in the greens. Because Brian gave us a lot of room, we were able to build greens large enough to put movement in them."

Pete Mitrof, former assistant professional to-Randy Erskine at Great Oaks Country Club in Rochester, is head Professional at the Captain's Club.

Steve Kolongowski is golf course superintendent. Kolongowski formerly was superintendent at Washtenaw Country Club and he has the Captain's Club's fairways and greens in country club condition.

The Captain's Club is on Baldwin Road, eight-tenths of a mile east of South Saginaw Road, and just south of Warwick Hills Country Club, home of the Buick Open.

The Captain's Club measures 6,780 yards from the black tees. Floyd bypassed them in favor of the blues on opening day.

"I'm on the Senior Tour now," Floyd joked.

The blues Present a 6,186 yard challenge and it's 5,571 yards from the whites and 5,071 from the reds. The farther forward the golfer goes, the fewer hazards he or she encounters. And as much thought was put into the location of the forward tees as to the back.

Rates at the Captain's Club are $30 weekdays for 18 holes and $40 weekends. It includes cart. Twilight rates (after 5 p.m.) are $25 weekdays. Weekend nine hole rates are $24. The Captain's Club also has a grass range. The pro shop telephone number is 810-695-GOLF.

New-Mistwood course harmonizes with nature

Lake Ann, Michigan-

Working with the natural terrain, architect Jerry Matthews has put his design signature on the new 18-hole, Mistwood Golf Course in the community of Lake Ann, just west of Traverse City, Michigan. Owners Gwen and Sherm Baarstad selected Matthews for his design philosophy: a dedication to retain the land form and work with what nature has to offer.

At Mistwood, nature offers breathtaking views of gently rolling terrain, woodland, and natural wetlands. In a total, the course plays 6,700 yards from the blue tees. The challenging sixth hole overlooks a small lake and features a 50-foot drop from tee to green. A waterfall cascades into a stream that feeds the pond adjacent to the 18th hole.

"I want people to stand on the tee and talk about how that golf hole looks," says designer Matthews, "not just how it plays." A Michigan-native and second-generation course architect, Matthews was recently elected president of the American Society of Golf Course Architects. He is pleased with Mistwood and comments, "With its natural beauty and variety of terrain, the site just begged to be a golf course."

Bentgrass fairways, rolling terrain, and multiple tees make this course a golfer's dream at any playing level. One of the highlights at Mistwood are its specially constructed, state-of-the-art practice facilities. These include a two tiered driving range with target greens, a 12,000 sq. ft. practice putting green, and sand

"For us, it's a dream, come true," says Sherman Baarstad, who with his wife looked in Illinois, Indiana, and southern Michigan before discovering the Lake Ann site. "Five years ago we decided we wanted to build a high caliber, challenging, and reasonably priced course," he said, adding that green fees at Mistwood will run $25 for 18 holes.

Gregory J. Gay will assume the role of PGA Head Professional for Mistwood. Greg and his wife, Sherry, relocated to Traverse City from Camarillo, California where he was employed by the Saticoy Country Club as Assistant Pro. Prior to his California position Greg was the Assistant Pro at the Flushing Valley Country Club, Flushing, Michigan.

A 1984 graduate from Bad Axe High School, Greg was a member of the 1983 All State Golf Team. He was also a member of the Western Michigan University Golf Team and a 1989 graduate from Ferris State University.

Greg says he was drawn to Mistwood because of its natural beauty and classic course design. "I'd like to invite golfers to come out and enjoy Mistwood and its many amenities. The golf course is challenging but fair, and is suitable for all skill levels."

Golf condo project opens in Macomb

Washington, Michigan-

There is one major point of difference in the Glacier Club: it is the only private golf community in all of Macomb County.

Ground has been broken on the initial models that will be open to the public in late August.

"We have taken the land carved by the glacier movement of 9,000 years ago into a new dimension...a 21st century condominium development with an outstanding championship golf course created by one of Michigan's most noted architects," says Glacier Club president Dale Wells.

"Glacier Club offers the gracious lifestyle of a private golf community with all the amenities of suburban living." Wells said.

The single-family detached condominiums are designed for family living that can range from contemporary formal to patio casualness. Each home offers residents a private courtyard that provides a "backyard" of unequaled privacy and most overlook or front the golf course. Ranch, story-and-a-half and two story floorplans displaying two, three and four bedrooms are available. Prices start from the 160's.

This exclusive, gated community of single-family detached condominiums offers the serenity of country living with the every day conveniences and amenities of suburbia.

The 18 hole championship golf course designed by noted architect William Newcomb. It is open to the public while the club continues membership development. It also has a grass driving range, practice green, club storage and service. -

"The course is a challenge to high handicappers and scratch players alike," according to head professional Jack Todhunter, "and is in excellent

Five tee placements for each hole guarantee every player an opportunity to play his or her best. The red tees measure out at 4937 yards, the white at 5610 and the tip stretch it out to 7018.

Half of the holes are reminiscent of a well moguled and trapped Scottish layout, before moving into wooded areas that look, feel and play like "up north" resort courses.

GRACIOUS LIFESTYLE— Glacier Club condominiums combine country living, suburban amenities and championship golf.

Throughout the course are streams and water that can come into play.

The Glacier Club restaurant of "simple elegance" is expected to open in late fall of '94. It is located within a 100 year old beautifully restored farmhouse framing the entranceway to the golf course. The restaurant will offer a full menu and cocktail service.

Additional amenities will include a swimming pool and tennis courts.

Golfer families looking for that "something different" have that opportunity at Glacier Club the rest of this season while it remains open to public play.

Lanny Wadkins design aims for '95 opening

Utica, Michigan-

Cherry Creek Golf Club, the newest collaboration of government and the private sector to produce first class public golf in Macomb County's Shelby Township, got its start 18 years ago when Lanny Wadkins played some customer golf.

Wadkins was one of Ford Motor Company's "Young Thunderbirds" at the time, a collection of young PGA Tour stars that also included Johnny Miller. They represented the company at outings with dealers and customers and in advertisements and commercials.

"My folks belonged to Great Oaks Country Club in Rochester and Lanny did a small Ford dealers outing there," Mike Bylen said. "He played three holes with each group. The funny thing was that Tom Watson was there too for a Chrysler outing.

"Watson had won his first British Open the year before and was emerging as a superstar and he had a crowd of members following him. I had just finished my first year of college at Arizona State and I liked the way Lanny played and I followed him -- I was his only "gallery" and we started talking.

"The Canadian Open was right after that, near Toronto, and Lanny said 'Why don't you go over.' So my girlfriend and I did. At the Canadian there was a big crowd around the tee and Lanny spotted me and said 'Hi, Mike.' I never expected him to recognize me,"

A strong friendship grew and Bylen has traveled to South Carolina and England to watch Wadkins play in the Ryder Cup and to Augusta to follow him in the Masters. And he'll be in the gallery at Oak Hill in Rochester, N.Y., in September of 1995 when Wadkins captains the United States against Europe in the Ryder cup Bylen is a good player but he didn't have pro tour aspirations. Instead he went into course management and became managing partner of the highly successful Pine Trace Golf Club in Rochester Hills. It's the model for Cherry Creek.

Pine Trace is on land owned by the city of Rochester Hills and Bylen and his partners operate on a build-lease program. They're doing the same in Shelby Township. They have a 50 year lease and they build and operate the course and will pay the township an annual fee. At the end of 50 years, the township takes over the course.

Last summer during the Buick Open in Grand Blanc, while negotiations were going on with Shelby Township, Bylen took Wadkins on a tour of the property off 24 Mile Rd. and just east of Van said. "With all the trees it reminded me of Richmond, Virginia, where I grew up."

"I liked it right away," Wadkins

Like many of his peers, Wadkins has been bitten by the design bug. It seems to come at the age of 40. Watson, Tom Kite, Ben Crenshaw, Hale Irwin and Fuzzy Zoeller, all in their 40s, are involved in golf course design. Wadkins owns a public course in Dallas, where he lives, and is involved in a new project in Minnesota.

Wadkins, winner of 21 PGA Tour tournaments and nearly $6 million, isn't into ego design. There won't by any heroic carries, impossible greens or man-eating bunkers at Cherry Creek.

"I want the people to say they enjoyed it after they finish and that they want to come back and play it again," Wadkins said. "I don't want them to feel like they've been beaten up."

With the variety of trees -- beech, white pine, clump maple, pin oak and definitely cherry -- Wadkins sees an enjoyable nature walk.

The name comes from the fourth hole where there's a small creek and a 60-70 foot high cherry tree at the left side of the fairway. There are many other cherry trees on the property but the one on the fourth hole is the granddaddy.

"Lanny took a look at it and I told him he should see the cherries - that they weigh 30 pounds each," said Paul Clute, one of golf's foremost course builders and the man behind the bulldozers at Cherry Creek.

"I had him hooked for a minute," Clute said, laughing. Wadkins took on the Cherry Creek design before he was appointed Ryder Cup captain and he'll have a full plate through the next year.

"I'll be back here 5-6 times," Wadkins said. "I'm not the kind of guy who sits in his office, looks at plans and sends them out."

Wadkins, in blue jeans and work boots for the formal ground-breaking (May 4), was surprised at how fast work has progressed.

"It looks like I'll be back here sooner than I thought," he said.

The target opening date is summer 1995 and since Cherry Creek doesn't involve a lot of wetlands and the soil is very workable, there shouldn't be a problem.

Macomb County has been a hotspot of golf course development the last few years. The Orchards, designed by Robert Trent Jones Jr., opened to raves last summer. The Glacier Club, by Bill Newcomb, opened in late summer and Greystone, by Jerry Matthews, opened in 1992. They're all within 10 miles of each other.

SPANNING THE STRAITS—Pedestrians have a once-a-year opportunity to cross the Mackinac Bridge on Labor Day, Sept. 5.

Walk the Big Mac, get whopper of a view

Virtually every visitor to the Straits of Mackinac marvels at one of Michigan's most treasured accomplishments: the joining of the two peninsulas by the mighty Mackinac Bridge.

This engineering marvel took three and one-half years to build and the magnitude of the feat is staggering:

- -Total length, 26,372 feet.
- —Length between main towers, 3800 feet.
- —Height of main towers above water, 552 feet.
- —Depth of tower piers below water, 210 feet.
- —Length of wires in main cable, 42,000 miles.

The annual Mackinac Bridge Walk, set this year for Monday, Sept. 5, (Labor Day) attracts tens of thousands to participate in celebrating the accomplishment. It's a once-a-year opportunity to span the Mackinac Bridge on foot and get a bird's eye view of the five miles of gleaming water separating Michigan's two peninsulas.

The walk begins at 7 a.m.

Participants may start after 7 a.m. but must begin walking before 11 a.m.

There is no fee or registration.

The trek begins in St. Ignace, at the northern terminus of the Mackinac Bridge in the Upper Peninsula, and ends in Mackinaw City at the southern terminus in the Lower Peninsula. Bridge walkers in the Lower Peninsula must cross north on the bridge to get to the starting point. The options are:

-drive to St. Ignace, park your vehicle there, take the walk, and then return to the Upper Peninsula on the school buses which will be available at the bus loading area on South Huron Avenue in Mackinaw City. Return tickets are $1.50 for adults and children; infants are free.

Buy your tickets in Mackinaw City at the bus loading area, board the bus to cross the bridge, join the walkers already at the north end, then walk across the bridge to your vehicle. Tickets go on sale and buses begin transporting walkers at 5:30 a.m. from Mackinaw City. The National Guard and other official units will be available in the event of an emergency. The Mackinac Bridge Authority notes that there are no rest rooms on the bridge. Portable toilets will be located at both ends of the bridge and at the bus loading area. Not allowed are bicycles, roller skates, skateboards, wagons and similar vehicles. With the sole exception of seeing-eye dogs, no dogs are allowed. Baby strollers and wheelchairs are permitted.

Walkers will receive a numbered bridge walk certificate at the completion of the walk. The number of the certificate may match a number on display in any of the store windows in Mackinaw City. Winning numbers entitle holders to claim a prize which may be worth from $15 to $150.

More than two dozen restaurants and food services in the Straits area will be open on Labor Day for "early bird" breakfasts.

Call 906-643-7600 or 616-436-5574 for more information.

A Festivals and Fun Spots brochure, highlighting more than 70 events and 30 attractions available through December, is available from the Sandusky/Erie County Visitors Bureau.

Known best for its summertime activities, the Sandusky, Ohio, area abounds with harvest festivals and holiday events. Located an hour's drive from Toledo, this Lake Erie shoreline region attracts an estimated six million visitors a year.

"Our best kept secret is that most of our attractions are open throughout the fall, meaning there are plenty of things to do even when summer ends," said Joan Van Offeren, executive director at the Sandusky/Erie County Visitors Bureau. "Our holidays enchant the young and old alike. Old-fashioned community celebrations ring yuletide cheer, and Santa arrives by helicopter, ice-breaker and horse-drawn carriage to our local communities."

More than 30 attractions are highlighted in the brochure, including ferryboats and cruises to the Lake Erie Islands. Most ferryboats to Kelleys Island and Put-in-Bay on South Bass Island run through November; one services Kelleys Island year-round. Lake Erie cruises aboard passenger vessels operate daily through mid-September and weekends through Halloween.

Cedar Point amusement park/resort is open daily through Labor Day, and offers Bonus Weekends through Oct. 2.

Museums highlighting the history of the carousel, shipping and sailing on the Great Lakes, local heritage, Civil War memorabilia, and Thomas A. Edison's life are open most, if not all, months.

Visits to wineries include cider-pressing demonstrations, wine tastings and tours of the wineries during peak production times. Other highlighted attractions include the Sandusky Planetarium and Cultural Center, and nature areas.

Exhibit reveals that brides didn't always wear white

Jean Day

About 1845, a now anonymous but obviously frugal bride wore a green plaid taffeta gown for her wedding designed with a fitted, high necked bodice over a full skirt. In addition, a separate scoop-neck blouse was made with short, lace-edged sleeves so that she could wear the gown later for parties and dances.

The ensemble also included a lace-trimmed shawl collar and a belt fastened with a fancy rosette.

The wedding gown with its matching pieces is one of the oldest in a special exhibit, "A Century of Wedding Dresses," on view through Oct. 3 at the Plymouth Historical Museum at 155 S. Main in downtown Plymouth, Michigan.

"It's rare to have all the pieces in such an ensemble," commented museum director Beth Stewart, as she gave a tour of the gowns displayed in period settings. She noted that the green plaid outfit is from the museum's own outstanding collection.

Stewart added that she understands the gown, as was the custom at the time, had been worn for other occasions, including being used as a mourning outfit.

Well over half of the 50 gowns exhibited are from the museum's own collection which has been enriched over the years by donations from area residents. In addition, others are on loan from private collections.

Enhancing the exhibit are settings designed by Donna Keough, the museum's exhibit director, which place the brides of the past in appropriate surroundings.

At a "home wedding" the bridal couple is surrounded by friends. Nearby is a Victorian table lavishly set with fine china and silver for the reception to follow.

Some of the women wedding guests in this scene are dressed in their own bridal gowns.

Stewart pointed out that the museum's research has found that "it was very acceptable for recent brides to wear their wedding dresses to another's wedding."

In this setting, dated 1902, the bride's gown was cut in the fashionable "pigeon-breasted" look. Stewart added that the museum also feels fortunate to have mannequins and period hair pieces for displaying the wedding gowns of the past.

Gowns that are now too frail to be placed on forms are displayed in show cases or on hangers.

Gowns of four generations of the OLDEST GOWN—Dating from 1845, this green plaid taffeta wedding dress saw later duty at parties and dances.

McLaren family, a gift to the museum, are shown on mannequins in a gazebo surrounded by flowers.

Miss Waid, a bride of the 1840s who was 15 or 16 years old when she was wed, wore a purple plaid gown with a lace collar.

Flora Waid Babbitt in the 1880s wore a high-neck gown in rust color.

In 1915 Marion McLaren was married in a satin and lace gown with which she wore a hat.

In 1946 Nancy McLaren was a bride in a satin gown with illusion neckline and a train.

Stewart mentioned that the exhibit was given a big assist in the loan of many dresses and accessories, especially headpieces, from the collection of Pam Yockey of Canton, Michigan. Yockey, who has a bridal business, is a collector of vintage wedding gowns and trousseau items.

She assembled the veils, hats, satin shoes and floral headpieces for models on exhibit. Yockey used a lace curtain for the veil accessorizing a bridal gown of 1897. Her research has shown that it was not unusual for a bride of that time to create her veil from curtains.

The wedding gown exhibit is a chronicle of what fashionable brides wore from about 1850 to 1950. In the earlier years, plaids, grays, purples and even black were popular and utilitarian for brides to wear for their marriage and afterward.

When Queen Victoria wed Prince Albert in 1840, she made popular the tradition of wearing a gown in white embellished with lace and also added the veil, Stewart said, "simply for its beauty." Several decades later, it became the favorite color for wedding gowns in America.

By the late 19th century, white was so popular that not only the bride wore white, but even the wedding guests did, Stewart continued.

Beading and lace adorn an elaborate wedding dress worn by Augusta Egge for her marriage in 1912. It was loaned by her nephew, Howard Bloom, for the exhibit, Now a deep ivory, the gown originally may have been white.

The gowns in the exhibit are not cleaned, Stewart explained, so may have darkened with age.

Many of the brides of the past are presented in tableaux recreating the events of their day. A Meeks parlor set of furniture dating from 1850 provides background for one formal scene.

In a Victorian bedroom setting trousseau pieces from Yockey are shown, including night caps and even a fancy breakfast cap a bride of that era would have worn. At the museum's train station (a permanent exhibit on the lower level) a bride of 1883 departs in a black/purple silk wedding dress.

Visitors to the exhibit can enjoy relating to the bridal gowns of the early years of this century that they may have worn.

A gown from 1916 features a skirt of white netting topped with a lace bodice. A gown from 1920 boasts a double ruffle skirt. It is adorned with wax flowers, popular at that time. A gown of 1927 is made of georgette with beading accents.

A pink lace gown from the 1930s is cut on the bias. Another from this period features a drop waistline on the satin top and a net skirt.

By the 1940s and 1950s, gowns in slipper satin with elaborate trains came into vogue.

Adding to the charm and scope of the exhibit is the accessorizing done by the curators. A bride of 1893 carries a tiny arrangement of lily of the valley while a bride of 1927 carries a huge bouquet.

"Flowers must have been inexpensive at that time," Stewart speculated, "because pictures of brides of that era show big bouquets were the vogue."

Because the museum staff feels fortunate to have such a large collection of wedding gowns, there have been special exhibits every few GREAT LAKES GETAWAY years, the last being about five years ago.

"As a bonus," Stewart said, "we receive additions to the collection at almost every exhibit, expanding its scope."

The exhibit continues through Oct. 30 with the museum open from 1 - 4 p.m. Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday and from 2 - 5 p.m. Sunday. Located at 155 S. Main, the 15,000 square foot Dunning Memorial Building, built specifically to serve as a museum for Plymouth, was donated by Margaret Dunning in 1972.

Admission is $1.50 for adults, 50 cents for students 5 -17 with under 5 free. There is a family rate of $4. Groups may call Beth Stewart at 313-455-8940 to make arrangements for special tours.

Northville turns out in ruffles and bows

Northville, Michigan-

You don't need a time machine to travel back to the 1890's. An automobile will do nicely to transport you to a simpler time in beautiful Victorian Northville.

Located in an area blessed with gently rolling hills and verdant countryside, the. City of Northville retains much of the flavor it had throughout its early years, especially during its sixth annual Victorian Festival. This year the festival takes place September 16-18.

During these three magical days in autumn, the towns people turn out in their finest ruffles, bows, parasols, elegant (but definitely modest) dresses and tailcoats. Streets, closed to automobiles, make way for horse-drawn carriages, parades, and scores of delicacies prepared and served by local organizations.

Activities and games, true to the Victorian era, are offered to the delight of the youngsters. Throughout the town, old fashioned entertainment abounds.

The week-end will begin with a parade on Friday evening at 6 p.m. During the next two days you will find a medicine man show, antique show, strolling street entertainers, fine art market, dulcimer players and numerous other activities.

Highlighted for 1994 are a champion clown diver, a high aerialists act and a human canon act.

All of the entertainment throughout the week-end is free of charge.

Halloween fun is the main attraction once October arrives. The Huckleberry Ghost Train pulls out of the Crossroads Depot Oct. 7-9, 14-16, 21-23, and 25-30. Ghost and Goodies, a trick-or-treat tour through a haunted Crossroads Village, runs the same time and goblins of all ages will be rewarded with a bag of treats, a show in the Opera House, and cider and a doughnut.

Spooky fun and silly frights are emphasized and the program is especially good for children and anyone else who enjoys a safe and happy Halloween. Visitors are encouraged to wear costumes and train passengers in Halloween attire receive an admission discount.

Hours for the Halloween event are 1-8:30 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays and 5-8:30 p.m. weekdays. Admission to the village is $3. Tickets for both the village and the train ride are $6, or $5 if in costume. Tickets for the Ghost Train may be purchased in advance by calling 800-648-PARK from 8 a.m. -5:00 p.m. weekdays.

DRIVING FORCE— This historic Baldwin steam locomotive is the star of the Railfans Weekend set for Sept. 17-18.

Crossroads Village and the Huckleberry Railroad are located just north of Flint, off I-475 at Exit 13. They are facilities of the Genesee County Parks system.

"...One cannot overlook the appurtenances of luxury that this and every 500K chassis brought with it," wrote Dennis Adler in Car Collector (November 1988). "The attention to detail is such that this car becomes more object d'art than automobile.

Along with the renowned 1935 Mercedes-Benz, Kruse International will place 13 Duesenbergs on the auction block for public bidding. These automobiles represent the highest number of authentic Duesenbergs ever offered during the Kruse Collector Car Show and Auction. Included in the Duesenberg roster is a rare 1935 Duesenberg SJN convertible. This one-owner car was garaged for 50 years and has only 14,642 odometer miles, making the automobile one of the lowest mileage Duesenbergs in existence.

"These fine automobiles represent just a few of the many treasures one can find during our Labor Day collector car show and auction," said Mitchell D. Kruse, president of Kruse International. "There will be nearly 5,000 automobiles on our 380-acre auction facility during Sept. 1-6, ranging in price from $1,000 to $1,000,000. Combined with eight different auction segments featuring classics, muscle cars, race and sports cars, celebrity cars and private collections, Auburn '94 will offer something for everyone."

Canadian charters offer cheap fares

Iris Sanderson Jones

My sister called me from Western Canada on a recent Wednesday night. There was sickness and trouble in the family and I had to be in Vancouver, British Columbia, by the following Tuesday. Six days.

If you have ever priced a flight without at least seven days advance notice, you know what that means. Money.

It is even better to book 14 or 21 days in advance, of course, but seven days is minimum unless you want to mortgage your house to buy the ticket.

I called Northwest Airline and my worst fears were realized. A round-trip ticket from Detroit to Vancouver, B.C., was almost $600. I could fly to Seattle and on to Bellingham, near the Canadian border, for a little less. Bellingham is close enough to Vancouver for my sister to pick me up if the savings warrant it but they didn't.

Air Canada and Canad ian Airlines gave me much the same story.

HALF-PRICE FLIGHTS— At current exchange rates, flights on Canadian charters can save travelers up to 50 percent.

What saved me was a copy of the travel section of a Toronto newspaper. I had carried it home the last time I traveled in Ontario. Fortunately I am not a neatnik. It was still at the bottom of a pile of newspapers ready for recycling.

The full-page ads were unbelievable. Toronto to Vancouver for almost half the price I had been quoted. I had never seen those prices, or those airlines, advertised in Michigan so I assumed there was a catch. I called the American Automobile Association (AAA); the travel agent I talked to had never heard of these flights, or these prices, either.

I called the toll-free number at the bottom of the ad and soon realized that there are air services unheard of in the United States. Several charter airlines fly several times a day, on regular schedules between major Canadian cities and from cities like Toronto to Europe, the Caribbean, Mexico Latin America and Hawaii.

The three biggest and best-known charter airlines are Canada 3000, Air Transat and Royal Airlines. All of the major Canadian tour operators use these charters. You can also buy a ticket directly from a Canadian travel agent.

No advance notice is required but there does have to be a seat available. There were several. I wrote the numbers down and shook my head in wonder.

My next call was to the Canadian Automobile Association (CAA) the Canadian equivalent to AAA, in Windsor. Through them, I booked a round-trip ticket Toronto-Vancouver. Leave Toronto at 2:30 p.m., arrive Vancouver at 4:40 p.m.; leave Vancouver several days later at 12:30 p.m., arrive Toronto 7:55 p.m. I Could have picked any time of day.

The cost was $440.34 in Canadian money, including tax. At an exchange rate of 72 Canadian cents to the American dollar, that is $US317.04. Half the price of a regular airline. My instructions were to book in two to three hours ahead of flight time at Terminal One in Toronto.

Getting to Toronto:

There is, of course, another price to pay when you fly a Canadian charter. You must get to a major Canadian city, in our case Toronto. Toronto is 240 miles from Detroit.

I could drive to Toronto, of course, and pay the same kind of airport parking I would pay in any other airport. I could fly, on Northwest from Detroit Metro or on Air Ontario from Windsor airport. But I was really into saving money by then so I explored the alternatives.

There's a shuttle van that goes from Detroit Metro or Windsor airport to the Toronto airport, about $50 one way. ViaRail trains leave Windsor several times a day for downtown Toronto, with a stop in suburban Oakville; you can get airport shuttles from either place.

I chose the train, where you can save a lot of money if you book five days ahead and travel on certain days of the week.

We had barely pulled out of the Windsor station on the 6 a.m. train when a porter came along with a tray of free coffee, which was like a blood transfusion. Half hour later, he was back with a complimentary breakfast: danish, croissants, muffins, juice, more coffee or tea.

I arrived in Oakville, about 20 miles west of Toronto, at 9:45 a.m. A friend picked me up and drove me to the nearby Holiday Inn, but a taxi wouldn't have cost much. The $11 airport shuttle left the Holiday Inn at 11 a.m. and delivered me to the Toronto airport in plenty of time for my plane. I could also have stayed on the train to Union Station in Toronto, walked across the street to the Royal York Hotel and picked up an airport shuttle there.

By noon I had checked in and was peering out the airport window wondering what kind of plane I would be flying at these prices.

It was a brand new Airbus A30-200. Flight attendants collected the usual prices for an alcoholic drink from the pre-lunch trolley, but complimentary red or white wine was served with the hot lunch. I understand that everything is complimentary on Royal Airlines, even from the liquor trolley.

My baggage and my sister arrived in Vancouver airport at the same time.

The only bad news about charter flights is that these planes, like all charters, can occasionally be late taking off because they are waiting for a plane delayed elsewhere. Unlike a regular airline, they don't call in a spare plane. They wait.

Here is the lowdown on the main charter companies.

Canada 3000 operates a fleet of seven Boeing 757-200 aircraft from its bases across Canada: Vancouver, Edmonton, Calgary, Winnipeg, Toronto and Montreal. They fly to sunshine destinations in the U.S.,

Ansel Adams photos on exhibit at MSU

East Lansing, Michigan-

Kresge Art Museum is proud to announce a special exhibition of 47 photographs by the well-known American artist, Ansel Adams, from Sept. 6 to Oct. 23.

Sponsored by the Michigan State University Federal Credit Union, this exhibition brings many rarely seen images and vintage prints to East Lansing from the Ansel Adams Archive at the Center for Creative Photography in Tucson, Arizona, and from the collection of Virginia Adams.

The powerful and stunning black and white images of Yosemite in California to Acadia National Park in Maine celebrate the environmental immediacy of Adam's photographic legacy. The mountains, valleys, meadows and rivers of our national parks are portrayed not just as vacation spots, but as virtual cathedrals of life.

It is in nature, Adams once said, that we seek our origins, and our "spiritual and emotional existence." His art bears eloquent testimony to the beauty of the remaining American wilderness and the absolute necessity that it survive.

"You must have certain noble areas of the world left in as close to primal condition as possible. You must have quietness and a certain amount of solitude. You must be able to touch the living rock, drink the pure waters, scan the great vistas, sleep under the stars, and awaken to the cool dawn wind. Such experiences are the heritage of all people."

Adams' words can be experienced in the exhibition's photographs which span his work and travels over 37 years, from 1925 to 1962.

The Opening Reception will be held on Sept. 18, from 2-4 p.m. in the museum, hosted by the Friends of Kresge Art Museum. It is free and the public is invited to attend.

Kresge Art Museum is located on Auditorium Road on the MSU campus. The museum is open weekdays except Thursdays from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.; Thursdays from noon to 8 p.m. Weekend hours are 1 to 4 p.m.

The museum is always free and is handicapper accessible. Parking is available for a small fee at designated visitor spaces near the museum entrance.

For more information, please call 517-353-9834.

Mexico and the Caribbean. U.S. destinations include Florida, Hawaii, California, Arizona and Nevada. They also fly to Europe.

Royal Airlines flies six 187-seat Boeings and two 362-seat Lockheeds between these same major Canadian cities, and to Mexico, Latin America, the Caribbean and (summer only) to Europe.

These are not just occasional flights to one or two places. Royal flies regularly, for example, to Puerto Vallarta, Manzanillo, Ixtapa, Acapulco, Cancun, Cozumel and Huatulco in Mexico. Their Caribbean flights go to islands as diverse as Aruba and Cuba.

If you would like to pursue this further, I suggest you do two things. Pick up a Toronto paper at one of the many booksellers that carry their weekend editions. Call the Canadian Automobile Association in Windsor at (519) 255-1212 and ask about a destination that might interest you.

You will get good prices at any time but exceptional prices if you decide to fly at the last minute, or if, as in my case, life decides that for you.

Tangy cider is true taste of fall

Cider mills, orchards, and pumpkin patches reach their peak of activity in fall — allowing visitors to literally taste the colors of autumn: the reds and golds of apples, the oranges and golds of peaches, the crimson of late raspberries, the greens and yellows of pears, the purple of plums.

Then there's the golden tang of fresh-pressed apple cider, the sweet product of sun-streaked days under sparkling blue skies. Ranking as one of the top three states nationally in apple production, it's easy to see why apples and cider play a major role in Michigan's celebration of autumn.

More than 100 cider mills offer fresh pressed cider beginning in September, with many continuing to press the beverage into November. Apples, farm produce, baked goods, jams, jellies, hand-crafted gifts, wagon and hay rides, and musical entertainment are some of the other activities and items available at Michigan cider mills during the autumn season. Please phone ahead for dates and times of operation and special events.

In addition, more than 300 farms, roadside stands and U-pick orchards offer their bounty during the harvest season.

Classy ladies of the lake converge

Julie Candler

Allan Hayes

Most people who are into classic wooden boats love to work on them--and talk about them--nearly as much as they love to ride in them.

On the weekend of July 16, dozens of wooden boat enthusiasts, representing power and sail about equally, gathered to display their vintage vessels at the Grand Haven Municipal Marina. It was the 13th annual Classic Boat Rendezvous sponsored by Project Lakewell, and you've never seen such a friendly, enthusiastic bunch of boating people. This was their annual opportunity to tie to the dock, show off their boats, and talk to the public and each other.

Katie Marquardt and her husband Tom either own, or are owned by, depending on how you look at it, an all-wood 35-foot Chris Craft Cavalier named KAIZEN. It's a big three-story affair built in 1962, before fiberglass came to dominate the boat-manufacturing industry. Like many classic boat owners, they like to tell you how they got it.

"It was 1986," says Katie, a jolly, motherly woman, seating herself in KAIZEN's spacious after-deck. "We were in the New York Barge Canal on our pontoon boat when we saw this beautiful old cruiser up ahead of us. The engines were making a fine deep rumble, and we knew that we wanted it. We made an offer that first night. They wouldn't take our pontoon boat in trade, but we bought their boat anyway."

The Marquardts, who are from Kentwood, Michigan, had the big cruiser trucked from New York to Holland, Michigan, where the work of restoring her began. Hundreds of hours and thousands of dollars later, the Marquardts had installed two rebuilt 225-horse Chrysler V-8 engines and turned the boat into a comfortable live-aboard vessel with two heads, two showers, a huge built-in refrigerator, and lots of up-to-date navigational equipment. "She's plated in love and money," Tom Marquardt says.

"We can sleep 18 people," says Katie, who did a great deal of the restoring herself. "I don't do engines," she adds, "and I don't do painting. But boy, can I sand."

The state of the s

"It's a labor of love, no question about it," says Jasiu Milanowski, owner (with his wife Kerry) of the sailboat SATYAGRAHA, a slim, powerful 35-foot Eastern InterClub racing sloop designed by the famous Phillip Rhodes in 1945. Built in 1950, she was the last of her class ever built and bears hull number 33. The Milanowskis have had her for 15 years and log over a thousand miles a season in her. She looks like she's speeding even when she's bobbing at the dock.

"Satyagraha" is a Sanscrit-based word coined by Mahatma Gandhi meaning "holding to the truth.".

Predictably, SATYAGRAHA won the traditional 18.9 mile race from Holland to Grand Haven and the Rendezvous. Eleven sailboats competed in this "Legend of the Lakes" race, in which the scoring is treated with a light-hearted good nature that would seem incredible to a dedicated racer.

The race chairman, Fran Hardin, announced the winners on Sunday morning, amidst general hilarity. "I guessed at the handicaps," she announced straight-faced to the assembled slippers. "I'm not a handicapper, but I will take bribes."

This being a friendly event, she said, the results are organized so every boat wins something. She created enough divisions so that every boat won at least a third place in its division, and a few were named as the only boat in a division. PRIMROSE. for example, a 1974 Herreshoff ketch owned by Herb and Sally Pollock of Benton Harbor, Michigan is a relatively small coastwise cruiser, so it won the mini division, and the 55-foot ALLEGRO, owned by Matt Howard of Chicago, the only schooner, won the schooner division. (Actually, PRIMROSE was second overall, after SATYAGRAHA.)

The powerboats had a simultaneous predicted-log race over the same course. This means that all instruments were taped over during the event, the goal being to finish the course as closely as possible to the time the skipper predicts. Tom and Mary Marquardt's 1962 28-foot Chris Craft Constellation UNPREDICTABLE, the only powerboat to compete in the event this year, was naturally the winner. (Tom is the son of Tom and Katie Marquardt of KAIZEN, and mentioned that UNPREDICTABLE finished within one minute of his prediction.)

Although SATYAGRAHA took first place in the sailboat race, Milanowski feels that the bragging-rights triumph of winning was somewhat diluted by the landing he made at the municipal dock in Grand Haven after the race. Not that there was anything wrong with the landing. "It was picture perfect," he sighs. "I don't have an engine, and docking under sail alone is tricky, but this time we got it just right. We coasted up and touched that dock without a bump. Problem is, we came in first, so nobody was here to see it."

Milanowski, an accredited sailing instructor, was a founder of Project Lakewell, which sponsors the Rendezvous. The original purpose of the organization was environmental education, to improve water quality in the Great Lakes, and to tie it in with historical information. "That's how we got involved with classic boats," says Milanowski. "There was a dual purpose, the historical and the environmental."

From its start in 1979, Project Lakewell wanted to build a replica of a Great Lakes lumber schooner, a plan which has not been abandoned but is still on the back burner.

"It was more than we could handle," says Milanowski. "We eventually secured a set of plans worth over $20,000, but we were never able to get enough financing to build it. The idea was to base it on what the Clearwater people did in the Hudson River, where they built a Hudson River sloop and toured up and down the river with it, giving concerts to raise money and to encourage people to clean up the river. We thought it would be a great thing to sail the lakes and to see what we could do about water quality here. Clearwater really affected the Hudson River, which is dramatically better now than when they started.

"Right now our main activities involve living history such as the Voyageurs put on, and the Classic Boat Rendezvous," says Milanowski.

The Voyageurs are a Saginaw-based group of businessmen who work with Project Lakewell and impersonate early French traders who plied these waters for more than 200 years.

Project Lakewell's most popular program is its "Voices of our Past", a living history event designed to be both educational and entertaining for schools, youth groups, clubs, camps and educational facilities.

Interpreters, dressed in 1700's period costumes, share songs and food, demonstrate period crafts, and tell the tales of our Great Lakes' pre-statehood period. Highlights may include a French voyageur camp, its history, storytelling, women's history, Indian legends, and even a trip aboard a 26-foot voyageur canoe.

The canoe is on display here at the show, along with several voyageurs in costume. Also on display is the partially-built SQUATEK, an authentic replica of a 24-foot bateau, the flat-bottom wooden boats no longer seen, but once built and used extensively on the lakes. The French started it--"bateau" is French for "boat."

Dave Whitaker, of Portland, Michigan, who is helping to build the bateau, says they may mount a small cannon in SQUATEK'S bow. "In history they actually did this," he says. "There was constant war between the rival fur companies."

Bateaus are believed to be the first Great Lakes craft to be built using European, not Indian, technology. Pointed at both ends, they were rowed, paddled, poled, and when going downwind, sailed (ie, they hung out a blanket). "As practical people they used whatever worked," says Whitaker.

The plan now is to use the bateau, along with the voyageur canoe, in future Project Lakewell Educational Programs, helping children, adults and handicapped persons gain a better understanding of our Great Lakes heritage. For more information call Jim Meyerle 517-669-3710, or Janie Lynn Panagopoulos 616-553-6893, or write to Project Lakewell, P.O. Box 80066, Lansing MI 48908-0066.

The lively interest the public seems to have in old boats is amply demonstrated by Project Lakewell's Classic Boat Rendezvous. A surprising number of people came to Grand Haven this year to look at these old beauties and to talk to the owners. There is no charge to the public attending the event; no boats are judged, nor awards given. In a relaxed atmosphere, people simply come to look and admire.

A picturesque old 28-foot wooden steam launch owned by Lou DeYoung kept up a head of steam all day Sunday in its big brass boiler. Occasionally her owner pulled the lanyard so everyone could hear the whistle. The music of a steamboat whistle drew a fascinated crowd, especially children, who surrounded the boat all day.

It was easy to surround this old classic, the S.C.RAMONA. Like many other antique boats, she had a problem that needed to be worked on. Her rudder had broken recently, and she was on her trailer.

Float by fall finery

Grand Ledge, Michigan-

Grand Ledge cloaks itself in finery so vivid and exciting each October that one would think there was a party.

Indeed there is!

The Color Cruise and Island Festival Oct. 7-9 celebrates fall with a combination of natural glories and mid-Michigan good times. The towering hardwood trees all but compete to see which can most beautifully reflect colors on the Grand River.

Beautiful riverboats take admirers up and down the river, providing a relaxing slice of history — and an unmatched view of historic 60-foot sandstone ledges.

Autumn is celebrated with pioneer demonstrations on Second Island. The smoky smells of blacksmithing and woodworking mix with the crisp scents of freshly pressed cider. Weaving, spinning and other old time crafts round out the family festival.

Sounds of the past waft through the splendor of the trees. Folk music played on traditional instruments, vocal groups' voices raised in hearty harmony and the rhythmic thud of cloggers punctuate the festivities.

Then there's the food — hearty bean soup, freshly-popped black kettle caramel corn, hot dogs and brats, pizza — to soothe appetites sharpened by the cool air.

For kids, there are bunnies, llamas and sheep to be cuddles at the petting zoo. Youngsters will also enjoy trying their hands at candle dipping, corn shelling and other crafts.

Friday, Oct. 7 is special for seniors. Bus tours are welcome and group packages can include step-on guides, an historic city tour and a ride on authentic riverboats.

For more festival information, call 517-627-2383.

Grand Ledge is located west of Lansing and is easily accessible via Interstate 96 or Interstate 69 to M-100.

VIEWS OF HUES—Riverboats take festival color connoisseurs along the banks of the Grand River in Grand Ledge.

Grand Rapids, Michigan-

Admit it. You've always wondered what grand, old Victorian homes look like on the inside. Well, wonder no more

Here's your chance to see first hand the interiors of 11 historic Grand Rapids homes (including nine private residences), plus the stately Voigt House on the 1994 Heritage Hill Weekend Tour of Homes, Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 1 and 2. About 4,000 folks will tour this nostalgic neighborhood, and stroll where the past merges with lifestyles of the 1990's.

It's a visual treat. And there's extra-special surprises this year. Highlights include the 1910 boyhood home of President Gerald R. Ford; a resplendent 1916 Georgian Country manor adorned with cathedral glass skylights; a 1929 Tudor renewed by its owner, an interior decorator, a 1884 decorative Stick style and the nationally acclaimed 1908 Frank Lloyd Wright Meyer May house.

It's tradition. For 25 years, the Weekend Tour of Homes has welcomed visitors to savor the eclectic architecture and meticulous restoration represented on "The Hill." In fact, Grand Rapids' Heritage Hill is one of the largest urban historic districts recognized by the National Register of Historic Places. Those who tour these fine homes will learn about the people who established Grand Rapids--the lumber barons, the furniture makers and civic leaders.

Tickets are honored both days of tour and can be purchased in advance for $9. During the tour, tickets are priced $12. Voigt House admission is extra. To obtain tickets, write to the Heritage Hill Association, 126 College SE, Grand Rapids, MI 49503.

Whet your appetite for the tour with a variety of luscious delights at "A Taste of Grand Rapids," presented by Heritage Hill, on Friday, Sept. 30, from 4 to 9 p.m. at the Ford Fieldhouse on the Grand Rapids. Community College Campus.

And there's more...the week continues with the Heritage Hill

URBANE ARCHITECTURE— This Tudor-style house featured on the tour is typical of the homes favored by the Grand Rapids uppercrust during the '20s and '30s.

Antique Show and Sale on Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 8 and 9, also at the Ford Fieldhouse. Nearly 70 dealers will display antiques and collectibles that will satisfy everyone's taste.

Admission is $5 with an early preview planned for all advance ticket holders.

Bavarian Inn expansion honors area families

Frankenmuth, Michigan-

Bavarian Inn Lodge Inc., announced that construction has begun on a 130,000 square foot expansion to their 198 room facility in Frankenmuth at a projected cost of $13.5 million. When completed, the lodge will offer one of the largest facilities of its kind in Michigan with more than seven acres under one roof.

According to Judy Zehnder Keller, general manager of the Lodge, 156 guest rooms will be added, bringing the total number of guest rooms at the lodge to 354.

Keller said the expansion includes additional guest rooms such as a third indoor swimming pool and a third whirlpool. The popular Family Fun Center will be doubled in size to over 25,000 square feet, and will include an indoor 18 hole miniature golf course. Additional dining areas, a new gift shop, a beauty shop, and outdoor terrace with seating for 250 are also part of the expansion. Completion is targeted for July, 1995.

Keller said that all new guestrooms in the expansion to the Lodge will be named for Frankenmuth Area Families, as are the existing 198

Research has begun on family histories and artifacts of the families are being gathered for display in the individual guestrooms.

Hand-carved plaques bearing the family name will mark each room. Completed histories will be framed and displayed on the walls of the 156 additional guestrooms along with family photos, documents and other items of interest, most of which relate to more than 100 years of local family involvement in the community.

Frankenmuth families are proud of their heritage and those with rooms named after them at the Bavarian Inn Lodge feel especially honored.

According to Keller, this unique feature of the Lodge was "intended simply to serve as a means of preserving local history for the Frankenmuth Community. It has however become a very popular element in that local families often bring out-of-town family and friends to view 'their' rooms at the Lodge. We are pleased that our fine area citizens continue to have a personal sense of ownership in this facility and that they allow us to display their family histories demonstrating great personal pride in their past".

Lansing, Michigan-

The newest exhibit at the Michigan Women's Hall Of Fame is a moving and inspiring account of the progress of Michigan women from the turn of the century to the beginning of the third millennium. The exhibit, "The Century of Women," marks the 75th anniversary, in 1995, of the 19th Amendment granting women the right to vote. The exhibit is funded through a grant by Hudson's.

Over 100 photographs from across the state tell the story of women, both the individual accomplishments and the work of organizations, and the economic social and political advancements. The theme of the exhibition is taken from a quote, in 1910, of Clara Arthur, the great Michigan suffragist:

"This century has been called many times the woman's century. It is a century of spiritual struggle where the higher aspirations of the inner life of women are in conflict with the outward forces of ancient custom and bigotry."

The advancement of women has been considered by some to be the most influential and important change of this century, even surpassing the invention of the computer micro chip. During the Victorian Era, there was much discussion and anticipation of the progress for women, which was deemed inevitable.

This exhibit examines the changes in our lives. It is a walk through time, reminding us of accomplishments of this century and preparing us for the 21st Century. Exhibit highlights include:

Victorian era ideas and ideals were carried into the new century. However, bringing change were the I million immigrants per year, coming to the United States chiefly to escape conditions in Ireland, Germany and Europe.-

The First Feminists: many club women, suffragists, and reformers led the first wave of the women's movement to improve the status of women. The word feminist" does not come into our vocabulary until the 1910s.

The Suffragists are often civic reformers, tackling the liquor industry political corruption and deplorable urban conditions. It's called "municipal housekeeping." These efforts lead the enemies of reform to oppose suffrage for women.

In 1931, 141 women are elected as State Senators and State Representatives. The census lists 572 occupations, "only" 36 in which no women are employed. There is at least one women's club in every town. The General Federation of Women's Clubs founds 75 percent of the nation's libraries.

During his presidency, Eisenhower names 28 women to Senate-confirmed posts topping Truman's total of 20, but the media is not counting. In the 1950s glamour is advertised as attainable by all Americans and the Barbie Doll is introduced in 1959.

The Second Wave of the Women's Movement: In the early 1960s the social pressure to marry is relentless. The average age of marriage for females is 20, younger than any generation since the turn of the century. The words "sex object" hasn't been invented yet. By late 1960s over 42 percent of all women have jobs, but the women's page of the newspaper is devoted to society news and household hints.

Education and the Michigan Women's Studies Association: graduate schools use unwritten quotas to keep women out, especially in medical and law schools. The percentage of doctoral degrees held by women is less than in 1920. Women are not part of the curriculum or of research.

Women unite around the need to elect more women to public office. In 1992 a record number of women is elected to the U.S. Congress and the Michigan State Legislature: a total of 47 Congresswomen, 6 U.S. Senators, 25 Michigan Representatives, and 3 women in the Michigan Senate. 1995 is the 75th anniversary of women's right to vote.

The exhibition will be at the Michigan Women's Historical Center and Hall of Fame through November. The Center is located at 213 W. Main Street, Lansing, MI 48933 six blocks south of the State Capitol. Visiting hours are: Wednesday through Friday, 12-5 p.m. and Sunday 2-4 p.m. Admission is $2.50/$1. and $2. for senior citizens Telephone - 517/4841880 for more information.

Great Lakes Inn emphasizes hospitality

Algonac, Michigan-

The Great Lakes Inn is reminiscent of a small yet grand hotel — deluxe rooms, fine dining, attentive service.

The Georgian-style inn is set on seven acres of lushly landscaped grounds in the "River District" of St. Clair County, right next door to Harsens Island, Walpole Island and Russel Island.

Opened in 1989 by Sara Ippolito, daughter Lucretia Sterling and son-in-law Jim Sterling Jr., the inn features 12 antique-filled guest rooms which afford spectacular views of Michigan's changing colors.

Soothing decor and elegant furnishings make an overnight stay at the inn a relaxing experience. As part of the hospitality, a complimentary continental breakfast is brought to guest rooms.

Dining at the Great Lakes Inn is a memorable experience. White tapers in silver holders adorn white covered tables. Flowered wallpaper and high ceilings add to the gracious atmosphere.

The menu is an imaginative blend of American entrees and classical favorites with an emphasis on fish and sea food. Complete luncheons are priced in the $6.95-$9.95 range; most dinners are $14.95 to $19.95.

Two private rooms are available for business meetings. These rooms along with the large dining room may be reserved for private parties and receptions. Distinctive meals are prepared in the inn's kitchen to compliment private events.

The Great Lakes Inn is located at 9334 N. River Road (M-29), about one mile north of downtown Algonac. Take Interstate 94 east to M-29 (23 Mile Road) then east approximately 20 miles.

Henry Ford Museum mixes playground with think tank

Dearborn, Michigan-

Thomas Edison played with ideas to create the first phonograph. Henry Ford broke through barriers to put his Quadricycle on the road. George Washington Carver cultivated down-to ear solutions to agricultural problems. The Wright brothers overcame obstacles to make their dreams take flight.

The link: innovators find creative ways to solve problems. Now, Henry Ford Museum visitors can experience creative problem-solving for themselves in a giant new learning game . . . the Innovation Station.

Surrounded on the museum floor by some of the world's greatest technological achievements, the Innovation Station combines elements of playground and think tank to create a "thinkground." This eye- and ear-catching 3,200-sq. ft. interactive learning environment is the first of its kind anywhere, offering participants a hands-on (and minds-on) lesson in the kind of problem-solving that's a key dimension of innovation.

At the Innovation Station, colorful contraptions combine with everyday objects to create a learning experience in a fancifil1 "ballworks" that measures 26 feet high, 24 feet wide and 68 feet long. The participants provide the power that propels thousands of plastic balls through a gravity-flow system of conveyors, distributors and sorting devices into receiving bins.

Each game is played by a team that sets the balls in motion and keeps the system operating until play ends. As problems occur, the participants use teamwork, creativity and communication to identify and test possible solutions.

"The Innovation Station is designed to awaken individuals to their own creative potential by actually giving them an experience of solving a problem to alter an outcome," said Michael Ettema, a curator on the museum's project team. "We can help people of all ages see that innovation is not limited to a few great inventors, but that everyone acts innovatively to change the world around them."

At one station, participants feed balls into the system by pedaling bicycles, turning hand cranks and operating stair-stepping machines. Other players strive to control the flow of balls and direct different color balls to different stations. Participants also check for color consistency and try to eliminate unmatched balls. Throughout each session, players must communicate with one another to keep the system working until play concludes.

"The Innovation Station nurtures the desire to be creative by engaging the mind and the senses in a memorable experience of accomplishment," said Ettema. "It gives the satisfaction of having mastered a problem, of having collaborated successfully with fellow innovators, and of having realized one's own abilities.

Henry Ford Museum & Greenfield Village is a national museum of American history and technology founded by Henry Ford in 1929.
