Township board looks to name new manager

Eastpointe official could be approved tonight

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

The Northville Township Board of Trustees will probably hire a new manager tonight and she'll likely begin work in a little over four weeks.

Tammy Hanlin is expected to win board approval at the trustees' meeting this evening. She's set to begin work on Monday, Nov. 28 - eight days into the second half of the board's four-year tenure. Her hire marks the end of a 10-month vacancy in the manager's office.

Hanlin, now assistant manager for the city of Eastpointe, was the trustees' top choice after the board conducted public interviews of the three finalists for the job one week ago. It was Hanlin's work experience in key areas and reputation as a consensus builder that won her the job, officials say. Fence-mending among the oft-divided trustees is something that's badly needed in the township, observers say.

"My greatest strength is coalition-building, getting people on opposite sides of the fence to come to an agreement on something," Hanlin told the board.

Township officials met with Hanlin Monday night to make the job offer. They confirmed Tuesday morning that she had accepted the manager's position but declined to discuss details of her compensation before the board vote. Hanlin's salary does fall within the range the trustees have already approved for the job and at her request she will be given an employment contract. Hanlin, an Eastpointe resident, said she's planning to move soon to a community closer to the township. The board has agreed to waive the residency requirement in the township's charter for the new manager but did not agree to pay relocation expenses, officials said.

Dawn Flynn, the second finalist, is the assistant to the city of East Lansing's manager and has held that position since 1991. Emmet Yukon, the third finalist, worked as the manager of the city of Sandusky, Mich., before leaving earlier this year.

Hanlin, Flynn and Yukon made the final short list of Jerry Habelman, the executive search consultant the board hired this summer to oversee the head hunt.

Habelman received and researched more than 60 applicants; he will be paid a total of $10,650 for his services.

Through their questioning of the three finalists, the trustees looked for a candidate with qualities like experience in community planning and personnel issues, including union contract negotiating. The board also focused on finding a "team player" for the manager's slot, someone who's willing to do whatever needs doing - including some of the grunt work.

Just as important, however, seemed to be a desire for someone who can both be

Seniors among nation's elite

Thirteen seniors at Northville High School have scored in the top 1 percent of all high school students in the United States.

The 13 students, five of whom were named semi-finalists in the 1995 National Merit Scholarship Contest and eight of whom were named commended students, were honored at the Northville Board of Education's Monday night meeting and at a breakfast at Rocky's restaurant on Seven Mile Road Friday morning.

Semi-finalists constitute the top one-half percent of students in the country, while commended students make up the top 1 percent of students nationwide.

"These are the best and brightest students in the entire country," said Northville High School Assistant Principal David Malle.

The 13 semi-finalist and commended students qualified for the scholarship program by taking the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test as juniors. More than 1 million students from across the country entered the program with the semi-finalists meriting the highest scores in the state.

Semi-finalists have the opportunity to advance to the finalist competition, where they will be considered for some $26 million in 6,700 annual Merit scholarships supported by 600 independent organizations, including some 400 corporations and professional associations and 200 colleges and universities.

To qualify as a finalist, students must fulfill a number of additional requirements, including meeting high academic standards and completing scholarship applica-

First Lady Hillary Rodham Clinton included Novi in her campaign itinerary, mustering support for Senate hopeful Bob Carr.

Democrats bring big guns to stump

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

If nothing else, Monday afternoon's high-profile Democratic rally at the Novi Hilton for U.S. Senate candidate Bob Carr proved one thing: it is indeed an election year.

Many of the movers and shakers in both Michigan and Washington showed up for the Oct. 24 fund-raiser, which had First Lady Hillary Rodham Clinton as the main attraction. It was the typical sort of event that both sides put on in a partisan election year: strong praise for the candidate and severe criticism of the opponent, in this case GOP Senate hopeful Spencer Abraham.

The man Carr's trying to follow, retiring Democratic Sen. Don Riegle, attended the fund-raiser, topping the list of big wheels. Others were Congressional powerhouse John Dingell and State Senator and Lieutenant-Governor candidate Debbie Stabenow.

The spotlight, however, was clearly Clinton's. A few hundred people packed the Hilton's main ballroom to hear her, forking over hefty donations to Carr's campaign for the privilege. Security was heavy, with U.S. Secret Service agents backing up Michigan State Police troopers and Novi officers, among others.

Trustees unable to settle dispute

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

Members of the Northville Township Board of Trustees don't agree on much when it comes to their executive committee - except that they need to settle their differences about it once and for all.

Their Oct. 13 meeting didn't resolve the trustees' recent split over the committee, which boils down to an argument over who has the power to do what. Members of the board continued to disagree about the committee's appropriateness and legality, sometimes heatedly.

After several twists and turns, the trustees voted 7-0 to table the issue for more talk at a November study session. They didn't take action on Trustee Russ Fogg's motion which asked that the committee's recent decisions be declared illegal.

The executive committee is composed of three members of the seven-member board: Supervisor Karen Baja, Clerk Sue Hillebrand and Treasurer Rick Engelland. Since the board took office in November 1992, it's met six or eight times, officials say, and has made a number of decisions concerning township affairs.

A majority of the board, however, decided earlier this year that they weren't comfortable with things they way they were. Led by Fogg, they called for the committee to be put on ice while the trustees hammered out a set of rules for it. That included what decisions it could make and a procedure for recording and reporting its meetings to the board.

On May 19, the board voted 4-3 to do just that. Baja, however, questioned whether the board could legally make that move. She

The persistence of remembering

Father Time is about to give us a little present: an extra hour of weekend.

That's right, it's fall back time again. Don't forget to set your clocks back one hour at 2 a.m. Oct. 30, as we make the switch from Daylight Savings to Standard Time.

Daylight Savings is meant to preserve an extra hour of daylight during the evening and is in effect from April through October.

Standard Time is intended to provide an additional hour of morning daylight.

Netherworld creatures to creep through streets

Homeowners, be prepared to open your doors for the ghosts, monsters and ghouls who will be haunting the residential streets of Northville Monday - and be sure to arm yourselves with plenty of sweets to appease their ravenous appetites.

Halloween trick-or-treating hours for both Northville city and township are 6-8 p.m.

As the sun begins to decline in the western sky Oct. 31 and darkness covers the land, children from all over Northville will magically transform into grotesque hunch-backs, ornery pirates and graceful ballerinas. It is important to remember, however, that through all the fun of trick-or-treating a few simple precautions can help to ensure a safe Hal-

Officials stress essential nature of Prop 1

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

What will Northville Township be like if Proposal 1 doesn't win voter approval on Nov. 8?

The picture won't be pretty, says the township's Director of Public Safety, Chip Snider.

"It would be cost-prohibitive to continue to operate the police department," Snider said. "It would have to be disbanded due to lack of funds. The fire department could still operate, but it would have to be scaled back."

Proposal 1 on the Nov. 8 ballot asks township voters to authorize the board of trustees to levy up to 3.84 mills a year for four years to fund the township's Department of Public Safety. Some 2.99 mills of the 3.84 total would go for police and .85 mill would be earmarked for the fire department.

Also on the ballot is Proposal 2, which asks for up to .40 mill a year for four years to fund the township's share of services it jointly funds with the City of Northville: Northville Parks & Rec, Youth Assistance and senior citizen programs.

If both proposals pass, township taxpayers will see a slight tax increase. If Proposal 1 fails the Police take part in raid of Detroit dope house

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

Northville Township police participated in a raid on a Detroit drug house one week ago, recovering a cache of goods stolen from by township youths and allegedly traded for marijuana and cocaine.

Harry Clement Camp, 24, and Edward Samuel Brooks, 24, both of Detroit, were arraigned in Detroit on Oct. 22. They are both charged with possession with intent to deliver marijuana.

Township Detective John Werth said he learned last week that some Northville Township teenagers have been stealing merchandise from township residents, then traveling to a Detroit house and buying drugs with it. Acting in cooperation with Detroit police, Werth and other township officers worked with an individual who led them to the house. An undercover drug buy was then made on Oct. 20. Marked money was used to purchase a $50 bag of cocaine. Having obtaining a search warrant based on that incident, township police and members of Detroit's Narcotics Enforcement Team raided the house the next day.

In the process, a Detroit officer shot and killed a pit bull which Brooks was attempting to let loose on the team, Werth said.

The officers found marijuana, firearms and a large amount of suspected stolen property. Some of the items, Werth said, are traceable to township thefts. The investigation into the case continues.

Township votes to sell sewage capacity to Salem

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

Northville Township trustees say they're on the way to a win-win deal with their neighbor to the west, Salem Township.

They voted 7-0 at their Oct. 13 meeting in favor of a letter of intent to Salem Township. The letter outlines terms for the sale of 50,000 gallons a day of Northville sanitary sewer flow capacity.

The tentative agreement - which still needs the final approval of both townships' boards - would give Salem a way to relieve its waste disposal problem and earn Northville almost $900,000 in the process.

For more than two decades, the oldest section of Salem Township - known as the Hamlet of Salem - has had problems with sewage disposal. There are no sanitary sewers there.

Salem officials want to change that. They're applying for a state grant for the money to build a sewer system in the Hamlet. That system has to have a place to ship the waste, however, and that's where Northville Township comes in.

Salem's engineers want the Hamlet system to tap into the township's nearby sewer line, part of the Western Townships Utilities Authority (WTUA). Salem officials earlier this year asked Northville Township if it would sell them 50,000 gallons of WTUA flow capacity a day.

Some members of Northville Township's board had concerns. The sewer flow they sell today, they said, may be needed later as the township continues to develop. The sale of 50,000 gallons - enough for about 250 homes - could mean 250 fewer homes in Northville Township in 20 years, they said.

Supporters of the deal, however, said that wasn't likely to happen. An engineering study of the township's WTUA system concludes that Northville Township has a significant chunk of extra capacity now and will retain that surplus at buildout. The 50,000 gallons is about 1.4 percent of the system's total capacity now and about 0.6 percent of the ultimate capacity of the WTUA system, the study said.

Given that, backers of the deal argued that the best move was to help Salem out and gain some cash to help pay off the township's multi-million-dollar WTUA construction debt.

That figure comes to $879,375, the Oct. 13 letter of intent says.

That's the price the township has set to let Salem tap into the system. The amount is the result of a formula: the price per gallon that the township charges to its residents for sewage disposal - plus a little extra - multiplied by those anticipated 250 homes.

Northville Township will bill Salem Township each month for the actual sewer flow it uses. Salem officials have agreed to pay a rate that's 5 percent higher than what township residents are charged.

In addition, the letter says that Salem agrees to help pay a proportionate share of the costs the township will face when it someday has to contract with the Ypsilanti Community Utility Authority (YCUA) for more sewer flow.

As the township develops, officials expect that they'll need to cut a deal with YCUA to allow amounts of flow over and above current contracted levels.

If the deal receives final approval, the letter says, the contract is good for 40 years from the date of signing. If Salem later wants out of the deal, Northville has the option, but not the obligation, to buy the capacity back.

Search for car theft is unsuccessful

Northville Township police, aided by officers from four departments, conducted a manhunt Sunday morning for a man suspected of auto theft. They were unsuccessful, however, and the man remains at large.

A township officer on patrol near Haggerty and Five Mile in the early hours of Oct. 23 said that he saw a 1995 Dodge Neon go through a flashing red light at the intersection without stopping. After stopping the car, the officer questioned the man and two women inside.

They were lost, the man said, and were trying to find I-96. Several minutes later, when the officer was in his squad car checking on the three persons by radio, the man left the car and took off on foot.

Novi's police department was called, and its K-9 dog-tracking unit soon arrived to help hunt for the man. Michigan State Police troopers and officers from Plymouth City and Township also assisted in the effort. The man was not found, however.

The car turned out to have been reported stolen by Bruce Campbell Dodge in August. It was impounded and the two women were arrested and later released.

CHILD AT TRACK: While a Northville City Police officer was on duty at the Northville Downs racetrack, the officer met with another who had been told that a very young child had been left in a car in the parking lot of the track.

The officer inspected the area and found a child sitting in one of the cars who turned out to be 7-years-old. The boy said his dad had been gone for about five minutes.

The officer took the boy to the police station and left a note and business card on the man's windshield in case he left the building before being paged.

About 15 minutes later, the man arrived at the station. The 34-year-old Oak Park man said he knew it was illegal to bring children under the age of 12 to the race track.

They must appear in at 35th District Court in Plymouth within the next 20 days.

OUIL: Township police arrested a 32-year-old township resident for operating a vehicle while under the influence of liquor (OUIL) Oct. 23.

The reporting officer in the case said that he was on patrol, heading north on Haggerty north of Six Mile, when he saw the man's 1992 Ford Explorer speeding southbound on Haggerty. The Explorer was doing 58 miles per hour in a 45 mile per hour zone, the officer said. He stopped the vehicle on Six Mile, just over the township border in Livonia.

A strong odor of intoxicants was coming from the man, the officer said, and he had red, glassy eyes. He had been at a night club, the man said, and admitted that he "had had too much to drink," reports said.

The man failed field sobriety tests and was arrested. Breathalyzer testing at police headquarters later showed him to have a blood alcohol level of .14 percent, over the legal limit. He was released when he sobered up and faces a hearing in 35th District Court.

OUIL: A 49-year-old Plymouth man was arrested for drunken driving after a Northville City Police officer saw him jerk his car near Main Street and almost hit the curb.

The officer pulled the man over. The man appeared to be confused and his speech was slow and slurred. The man failed a number of field sobriety tests and stumbled and almost fell to the ground. The officer had to help the man in order to regain his balance.

At the station, the man registered a .24 percent blood-alcohol level. .1 is considered legally drunk.

He posted a $100 cash bond and was released upon sobering up. A preliminary hearing is scheduled for Oct. 26 in 35th District Court in Plymouth.

AUTO THEFT: A Milan, Tenn., man had his new Chevrolet Silverado pickup truck stolen while staying at the Hampton Inn near Eight Mile and Haggerty on Oct. 17.

The man said that the vehicle was taken sometime during the night of Oct. 16-17, township police said. They could find no evidence of forced entry and have no suspects.

The pickup is valued at $24,000. It contained $300 worth of clothes, tools and gifts inside when it was taken.

MARIJUANA: Township police arrested a 17-year-old Plymouth youth for possession of marijuana last Monday.

The reporting officer in the case was sent to check out a report of four youths in a field behind Silverman's restaurant on Five Mile. When he questioned them, the officer said that the Plymouth boy claimed they were just "hanging out and talking."

He could smell the odor of marijuana coming from one of the teens, the officer said, who admitted he'd used it in the past but denied having any now. The boy was found to have cigarette rolling papers and a 35mm film case which smelled of marijuana but had none inside.

The officer searched the area and found a plastic baggie with eight marijuana cigarettes inside. The Plymouth teen admitted that they were his, he said. A second bag with marijuana seeds was found but no one would admit to owning it.

The boy was arrested and taken to police headquarters, and later released with a date for a hearing in 35th District Court.

FIGHTING WORDS: A Maple Hill Drive homeowner filed a complaint against a Livonia man for using "fighting words" with him during an Oct. 23 argument.

The man said that the verbal confrontation began when he asked the man, who was a contracted lawn care worker cutting his neighbor's grass, to be careful around his sprinkler heads. The Livonia man became sarcastic, the man said, and grew angry when he wrote down his truck's license plate number.

At no time did things get physical, both men said, but the Maple Hill man "absolutely" wants to file a complaint under the law governing the use of "fighting words," police reports said.

Citizens with information about any of these incidents are asked to call Northville Township police at 348-9400 or Northville city police at 349-1234.

Police say flyer illegally distributed

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

Unknown persons in Northville Township have distributed an anonymous flyer recently, mailed to hundreds of absentee ballot recipients, urging them to vote "no" on Proposals 1 and 2.

That's illegal, township police say. The assertions of the flyer, millage supporters add, are wrong.

According to state law, mailed flyers urging voters to vote for or against a political candidate or ballot question must identify the sender. Police are looking into the case to see if they can determine who mailed the flyers.

The flyer is, urging voters to "Just Say No!!" to the millage requests on the Nov. 8 ballot. Proposal 1 asks for 3.84 mills to continue police and fire services. Proposal 2 for 0.4 mill to continue township funding of services it jointly pays for with the City of Northville, including the Rec Department, Youth Assistance and senior citizen programs.

"Ask yourself" three questions, the flyer says:

- "Why are only property owners being asked to pay the new taxes contained in Proposals 1 and 2?"

- "What new taxes are the non-property owners who live and/or work in Northville Township being asked to pay?"

- "What efforts have been made by our elected officials to cut expenses and have the township function within existing revenues?"

According to state law, mailed flyers urging voters to vote for or against a political candidate or ballot question must identify the sender.

"Vote no on Proposals 1 and 2," it concludes.

No way, says one millage supporter, township police Detective John Werth. Werth is treasurer of Friends of Essential Services, a group campaigning for Proposal 1.

The flyer, he said, makes several mistakes. Its first two questions, for example, imply that voters should reject the proposals because the township doesn't impose an income tax on non-residents who work in the township, such as the city of Detroit does.

"Do we really want to be like them?" Werth said. "We see how well the Detroit system works."

The flyer also doesn't present the facts about Proposals 1 and 2, he continued.

The proposals, Werth said, are essentially either a millage renewal or, in some cases, a tax shift. They are what is needed to continue to provide the services that township residents have now.

A very slight increase is included, he added, because of that shift and because of a slight tax hike to pay for increased demand on township services. If they fail, Werth said, the township will have no way to fund most of what Proposals 1 and 2 would pay for.

Proposal 1, for example, asks for 3.84 mills for the police and fire departments. If it's not approved, the only millage the board can legally levy is the township's general fund millage, which is a maximum of 0.728 mill. That adds up to about $397,000.

"Try running a police or fire department of this size on that," Werth said. "It cannot be done. The police department will have to close. Then township citizens will have to rely on Wayne County Sheriffs (deputies) and the state police. Look at other communities who do that. The response times to crimes are terrible."

The flyer's also wrong, he said, in suggesting cuts in the services Proposals 1 and 2 pay for. They operate on a "bare-bones minimum" budget now, Werth said. Cuts "would definitely affect the quality of the service that township residents get now."

Anger against the township's board of trustees is a reason many voters may say "no" to Proposals 1 and 2, Werth said. He urged them to reconsider.

"The ones they'd be hurting are themselves," Werth said. "Don't shoot yourself in the foot by voting against these services. Don't vote no to the employees who've committed their lives to and work very hard for Northville Township."

"There are other ways of dealing with the board," Werth continued. "We elected them; our recourse is to vote them out if we're not happy with them."

Persons interested in questioning Werth about Proposal 1 can attend a meeting at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 2 at Township Hall. Township Hall is located on Six Mile between Winchester and Haggerty.

Police nail alleged thief

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

Northville Township police arrested a 44-year-old Westland man last week on charges that he stole more than $500 worth of liquor from Woolly Bully's.

Out of jail after being convicted of armed robbery, David Michniak also faces parole violation charges and the charge of being a habitual offender. The latter count would result in a 15-year prison term.

A Woolly Bully's manager told police Oct. 18 that he was planning to keep an eye on the place from the parking lot after the popular eatery and bar had closed for the night. He suspected one of the cleaning crew workers was stealing Woolly Bully's jackets, the manager said.

At about 4:45 a.m., the manager said he saw Michniak carrying something out of the establishment to his car. When he confronted him, the manager said he fled with his lights off, eventually leading police on a chase down eastbound Seven Mile.

The chase ended when Michniak drove his car over the curb east of Silver Springs Drive. He fled on foot, but surrendered shortly afterwards in the Northville Plaza parking lot. The officer said he found several unopened bottles of liquor hidden in the bushes near the research building and more in the Ford Festiva the man was driving.

Michniak was arraigned Oct. 18 at 35th District Court. Bail was set at $10,000 cash, which he was unable to post. He remains in the Wayne County Jail awaiting trial.

Knollenberg, Breshgold face off

Challenger Michael Breshgold faces off against incumbent Joe Knollenberg in the 11th U.S. Congressional district, which includes northern Northville, Novi, Milford, South Lyon and southwestern Oakland County. The winner earns a 2-year term in the House.

Q&A

The Northville Record queried the candidates on their views by questionnaire. Their answers follow.

MICHAEL BRESHGOLD

MICHAEL BRESHGOLD
CHALLENGER, DEMOCRAT
Age: 41
Education: Bachelor of Science,
Eastern Michigan University

Breshgold is a general manager for a pharmaceutical company, although he declined to give the name of his firm.

He is a Navy veteran and currently resides in Farmington Hills.

Just Compensation

If an environmental regulation prohibits a property owner from developing in a manner that would otherwise be allowed, what in your view determines whether the government should be required to compensate the owner for a "taking"? Should the subject of just compensation be spelled out more clearly in legislation?

"Over the last few years, the issue of private property rights has become an increasingly important issue in our society," Knollenberg stated.

"With regard to specific compensation, I believe that if the value of an individual's property is decreased by more than 50 percent due to the application of a federal environmental policy, such as a wetlands designation, that the federal government should then provide due compensation.

"Moreover, as our community and country become increasingly conscious of our environment, we should be careful to balance the rights of the individual versus that of the community and should therefore rethink the legal definition of 'just compensation' to ensure that federal 'takings' policies are not unnecessarily vague or over-broad."

"The subject of just compensation should be spelled out more clearly in legislation," Breshgold stated.

"The number of lawsuits can also be reduced if people are made aware of the environmental concerns before they buy property."

Trade Agreements

Were you in favor or opposed to the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA) with Canada and Mexico? Should the agreement be expanded to include other nations?

"During last year's debate over the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA), I am proud to say that I was the first individual in the Michigan congressional delegation to support the agreement. Under NAFTA, tariffs on most goods produced and traded in the U.S., Mexico and Canada are being phased out. And according to the Commerce Department, 'NAFTA is already paying dividends, accounting for over half of all U.S. export growth and one-third of all U.S. import growth so far in 1994,'" he stated.

"Here in Michigan, General Motors, Dow and Ford are all showing tremendous market gains and mounting profits as a result of NAFTA.

"There is now talk of expanding NAFTA to other Latin American countries, especially Chile, and in light of the increasing number of hemispheric economic alliances, I believe that the expansion of NAFTA would be an excellent addition to the U.S. trade arsenal."

"I was against the NAFTA Agreement because we should be making these kinds of agreements with nations which are equal to us on the economic scale," he stated. "Free trade is an excellent concept but we must insure the workers of this country are not at risk. We should loosen the barriers to trade but we should not let ourselves be shortchanged by other governments.

"We must insure they meet their obligations as well as we do."

Health Care Reform

What reforms, if any, should be made in the areas of health care and medical insurance? Specifically, list those reforms you favor and those you oppose?

"There are certainly some serious problems that we must address, but we must remember that we have a health care system that, even with its faults, is still the best in the world," he said. "In terms of the various reforms that have been discussed, I believe that only a bipartisan plan that focuses on elements which we all agree on. To this end, I am fighting for these reforms: portability of coverage; strict cost-containment measures; an end to pre-existing condition exclusions; an end to wasteful paperwork; a tax deduction for the self-employed; an end to needless malpractice litigation; and helping to provide reasonable, affordable access to health care for all Americans," Knollenberg said.

"I believe these reforms can and should pass Congress, if we are to have real reform."

"I support universal coverage. I believe we must bring insurance reform to the fore front of the debate," Breshgold said.

"We should combine current government and state programs to one program, the goal here is to reduce administrative costs. We should increase the number of auditors in the Medicare and Medicaid areas to find out where our scarce resources are going.

"I support the patients right to choice of physicians."

Action in Haiti

Assess President Clinton's performance in handling the situation in Haiti? What, if anything, should have been done differently? If a vote to order a withdrawal from Haiti came before Congress, how would you cast your ballot?

"Under President Clinton, the United States' armed forces have taken on roles that I believe they are neither trained for nor properly equipped to deal with. Compounding this problem, this Administration has consistently failed to articulate a clear foreign policy anywhere in the world and it is precisely this sort of waffling that has our brave young servicemen and servicewomen spread out in conflicts all over the world," Knollenberg stated.

"In Haiti, I would urge President Clinton to comply with the will of the American people and Congress and withdraw U.S. forces as soon as possible, which most certainly is well before his February 1996 timetable. Haiti has no history of democracy and their internal politics are not a threat to the United States' strategic national interests."

"President Clinton has done a good job in handling the situation in Haiti. We have restored the elected government and brought hope to the Haitian people," he said.

"I think his approach on the side of caution was a good one. I would vote to withdraw only if an international organization was put in place."

World Leadership

What, if any, role should the United States take in world leadership in the future?

"The United States has long been considered the leader of the free world and as such we have consistently championed the causes of democracies around the globe," he said.

"Now more than ever it is important that we remain engaged in the international community. But in these times of shrinking budgets on all fronts, we must be very careful not to overextend our resources to the point where we cannot actively and consistently promote our national interests where appropriate."

"The United States should continue to lead by example. Maintain our civil rights, help emerging countries get moving and continue to speak our about injustice," Breshgold stated.

Immigration Policy

What immigration policy would you like to see the U.S. follow? Should the federal government assist states which have a heavy influx of illegal immigrants by providing health care and welfare?

"Like California and Texas, Michigan, too, has a problem with the strain that illegal aliens place on their social services," he said. "We must consider all alternatives that will remove the incentives for illegal immigration."

"The costs for providing these services is shifted to hardworking Americans and those who come to our country legally, who pay for them both in their federal and state taxes, and considering the fact that this year Americans only started earning for themselves in July, I firmly believe this issue must be addressed in the near future."

"Our immigration policy should include helping countries such as Mexico develop so people are not coming to American shores," Breshgold stated.

"We should put some kind of method in place to stop illegal immigration at the border. We should also work to insure that those who come to this country legally have rights guaranteed.

"We in the federal government should do all we can since immigration is a national problem," he said.

Superfund Extension

Should funding for the federal "Superfund" for the clean up of toxic waste contamination sites be extended?

"Before I would consider extending federal funding for 'Superfund,' I would strongly urge internal and congressional reviews of the entire funding and implementation processes. At present nearly 80 percent of all money that has been spent on the 'Superfund' program has gone to litigation costs and the applied site standards are so stringent that only a handful of sites have been properly addressed," he said. "We need to make sure that money earmarked for environmental clean-up goes to environmental clean-up and not a corporate lawyer's pocket. Additionally, we should keep the clean-up of sites in line with the anticipated, post clean-up use. I believe that if we realized these two changes in 'Superfund' policy that the American taxpayer would begin to see the results they have been paying for and deserve."

"We should review superfund funding and insure that money spent here goes to clean up sites and not to litigation. We need to clean up this mess now and not let the matter get bogged down in the courts," Breshgold stated. "I favor tougher penalties on offenders."

Earning Voters' Trust

Many American voters are cynical about politicians, particularly those who serve in Washington. Why should voters trust you? What will you do to gain and hold their trust?

"All my life I have worked to build a future, first for my family and now for the people of Michigan's 11th Congressional District as their member of Congress," Knollenberg said.

"In terms of my specific qualifications, I have had the opportunity to own my own business, meet a payroll, serve my clients every need day in and day out. And most importantly, I've listened to hundreds of good, hardworking people throughout the district and I know what they are looking for in a congressional representative. Qualities like fiscal responsibility, securing individual liberties and social accountability. I believe I have these traits and that my record this first term reflects those same qualities."

"I will be open in my dealings with the people of the 11th district. I will vote the wishes of the people and not the wishes of special interests," he said.

"I promise to show full disclosure of all my financial transactions to the public. I promise to work hard to remove cynicism from the tax code and make people feel as though their hard earned money is going to things they believe in and not the breaks for the privileged few."

Outcomes based education

What are your sentiments on outcomes-based education?

"Michigan students should be exposed to, and acquire a solid mastery over, the core body of human knowledge, including the principles of mathematics, science, writing and speaking and the great documents of citizenship, history and literature," Honigman stated.
"Schools ought not to shift their focus away from the basic academic subjects and traditional teaching methods and toward more marginal, even frivolous subjects, experimental, avant-garde instructional methods and ethically offensive values-clarification exercises."

"Support - but outcomes must include basic skills: reading, writing, math, science and history," she said.

Proposal A

How do you feel about the recent education reforms made by the state, particularly Proposal A and the cost-cutting legislation with regard to teacher negotiations?

"I strongly agree with the voters who overwhelmingly approved Proposal A," he said.
"Proposal A dramatically cut the property tax, our state's most onerous tax. The property tax was unrelated to the ability to pay, and was harming the state's economy."
"Proposal A also moved our state sharply away from a system where the amount of resources dedicated to a child's education could be as much as 300 percent less than other children, because that child had the misfortune of being born into a property poor school district. Proposal A puts us on the road to correcting this unfairness."

"I am not fully satisfied with Proposal A," Barnett said. "The Legislature afterward diverted nearly $700 million provided by Proposal A to special interest groups. Sales taxes historically produce funding shortfalls during economic downturns."
"Cost-cutting legislation (PA 112) targeted employee wages only and ignored other powerful cost-cutting measures. We must allow districts to: 1) replace old high interest bonds with new, low interest bonds; 2) issue bonds for limited building improvements instead of only grand scale renovations; and 3) consolidate financial services and personnel at the Intermediate School District level."

Education issues

What are the most pressing issues facing education in the future?

"One, make sure Michigan students' mastery of the basic disciplines of writing, reading, math, science, history and literature is the world's best," Honigman said.
"Two, make Michigan education more efficient - shift resources away from schoolhouse bureaucrats and into the classroom."
"Three, educate well the children of the poor. This is the best chance they have for a better life than their parents."
"Four, make all school safe."

"Stabilizing funding and strengthening the core curriculum," she said.

Tax raise

With the passage of Proposal A, some people fear that the reduced taxes will be raised or replaced with new ones. Do you share that concern? If so, what do you plan to do about it? If not, why not?

"Yes. There are already those in local communities and in state government that will press hard for higher taxes," he said. "But look what tax and spending cuts have brought."
"One, Michigan dramatically outperforms the nation in employment growth and enjoys an economy that is more prosperous than most other states for the first time since the 1960s."
"Two, as a result of the prosperity created by cutting taxes, the state has more revenue to spend on education and fighting crime."
"Three, even with the Republican-inspired tax cuts, we have only reduced the tax burden on Michigan residents from significantly above the national average to just slightly below the national average (27th highest). We have moved forward, but we need to go further."
"I will, therefore, press enthusiastically for more tax cuts."

"Most financial experts expect shortfalls in the school aid fund soon. Instead of raising taxes, I would reverse many recent Legislative 'give-aways' of school aid funds (nearly $700 million) and cut education costs as outlined in Answer 2," Barnett explained.

Public access sites

How do you feel about the Department of Natural Resources purchasing lakefront property for public access sites?

"Public access siting decisions must take into account the following considerations in a balanced and fair manner:
"One, too much access can result in: water safety hazards, pollution risk to lake and surrounding wetlands, wildlife and vegetation; traffic congestion on lakeside roads; and a significant reduction in enjoyment for all. Overuse by high speed powerboats and Jet Skis may unduly interfere with swimming, fishing, sailing, canoeing and other lake activities."
"Two, however, people who cannot afford to own lakefront property ought to have a reasonable opportunity to enjoy water activities, like the beauty of a waterfront sunset or the chance for a father and son to fish and grow together," Honigman concluded.

"The DNR should be allowed to purchase such sites only if they are not concentrated on a single lake or community and don't create traffic, safety or other problems for neighbors," she concluded.

Landfill siting

What are your thoughts on landfill siting in this district?

"Landfill siting in our area should be avoided at all costs because our area's water resources are extraordinarily vulnerable to the environmental hazards posed by landfills," he stated.
"Our area has more inland lakes than anywhere else in Michigan and many residents still get their drinking water from underground aquifers - including aquifers unprotected by clay barriers."
"Landfills would be more safely sited in areas without such vulnerable water resources."

"We're near our limit. We should reduce landfill need by stressing recycling," she said.

Voters' trust

Most people agree that voters today are cynical. They don't trust politicians, and the Michigan Legislature has become highly polarized. Why should they trust you?

"People are cynical about politicians because they engage in a tremendous amount of partisan bickering. This creates polarization and gridlock and nothing constructive gets accomplished," he explained.
"Honorable and decent people can and do disagree about many things. I have found that if you treat legislators from the opposite party and people with whom you disagree with decency and respect, you can accomplish a lot. Because that approach earned the respect and friendship of Democrats as well as Republicans, I was able to pass more legislation than virtually anyone else in the legislature even while I was a young, very junior member of the minority Republican Party within the House of Representatives."

"I keep my promises - and work well with members of both parties," she said.
"For example, I strongly support locally controlled and fully funded public education. When the Legislature last year eliminated most school funding without replacement, I organized a successful bipartisan, statewide petition drive (CARE) to ensure school funding if the Legislature did not act."
"I promised supporters the petition drive was a 'safety-net' and would be used to advance school funding legislation. I kept my promises."

Why running

Why are you running for this office?

"One, to contribute something of my efforts and time on this earth to the happiness and prosperity of others," he said.
"Two, to practice a special solicitude for the well being of the most vulnerable amongst us."
"Two, to cut taxes, spending and the size of government and thereby empower individuals."

"Oakland County is first in Michigan in per capita taxes paid, and nearly dead last in taxes returned," Barnett said.
"We must stop this 'tax and send' mentality, which my opponent exemplifies. I want to give honest, principled and aggressive representation, not partisan politics, to the people of the district."

Schmid, Meyer run for county seat

Veteran school board trustee Michael Meyer faces off Nov. 8 against incumbent Kay Schmid for the 17th County Commissioner's District. The district includes the Oakland County portion of Northville, Novi, Novi Township, northern Northville and Walled Lake.

The Northville Record queried the candidates on their views by questionnaire. Their answers were as follows.

MICHAEL MEYER

MICHAEL MEYER
CHALLENGER, DEMOCRAT
Education: Ph.D., Ecumenical Theological Center, 1987; M.A., University of Detroit; B.A., St. Charles Borromeo Seminary in Wickliffe, Ohio.

Meyer is a Pastoral Associate at Our Lady of Good Counsel in Plymouth. He has been a trustee on the Novi school board for 11 years. He ran for Congress in 1992.

Meyer resides with his wife and son on Malott Street in Novi.

KAY SCHMID

KAY SCHMID
INCUMBENT, REPUBLICAN
Age: 58
Education: Attended courses at Hillsdale College and Wayne State University.

Schmid previously worked as an insurance agent, but her license is now in escrow.

Her run for county commissioner four years ago was her first foray into elective politics.

She has three grown children and four grandchildren. She resides on Summit Drive with her husband.

Youth Assistance

The Probate Court administration, earlier this year, trimmed Youth Assistance staffing in Novi from full-time to part-time. Is that an adequate level of service to the city? If not, how would you propose to restore or increase staffing here?

"Novi continues to grow. With this growth in population comes a continued growth in the needs of our youth.

"Youth Assistance needs a full-time individual to address this growing need as well as to oversee the many programs of prevention sponsored by the NYA," Meyer said.

"I would seek to restore the full-time status once elected commissioner by presenting the need to the appropriate agency."

"I have held several conversations with Oakland County Probate Court in addition to meeting with the chief judge of probate court, court administrator, youth assistance director and other staff members," Schmid stated.

"They gave their reasons for reducing our Youth Assistance counselor to part-time. We gave them our views and other avenues to consider on why we believe we need our YA counselor full-time.

"As yet we have not had a response on our questions, concerns and suggestions. It is my belief that we will be successful."

Travel Spending

Commissioners have come under fire for excessive spending in travel, conference and educational expenses. Do you think spending in those areas or in commissioners' perks has been excessive. How much training do you think it takes to do the job to which you are seeking election?

"Prudence and wise counsel indicate that a commissioner who truly represents the citizens of his or her district must do some traveling, attend some conferences and expend some funds for educational insights regarding the position.

"The extent of the expense ought to be carefully monitored so that it is not abused," he said.

"Commissioners have reduced their travel budget in half over the last three years," she said. "Our travel budget now is $50,000 for 25 commissioners. That is one tenth of one percent of our $440 million budget.

"Commissioner participation in the Michigan Association of Counties and the National Association of Counties is important. If we don't keep up with state and federal legislation affecting our budget, we risk losing untold dollar increases in redistribution of our county tax dollars by bureaucratic formula writers that give us back 8 cents on every tax dollar that Oakland County sends to the state.

"We need to be a strong voice opposing unfunded federal mandates and regulations like the Motor Voter Bill."

Economic Development

Has Oakland County been sufficiently aggressive in marketing itself for economic development? What additional efforts could be made in the county to bring in more business?

"Based upon the SEV growth of recent years, it appears that Oakland County has been sufficiently aggressive in marketing itself," Meyer said.

"To bring in more business, the county needs to maintain and expand its already strong base of developmental land usage and aesthetic consciousness."

"Most definitely. The State of Michigan looks at Oakland County as the engine that is driving the economy in Michigan," Schmid said.

"Some of the accomplishments are counseling with 364 companies in the last quarter of '94 with 34 prospective clients right now.

"The 1994-95 forecast and statistics by The University of Michigan shows 52,000 new jobs created in the county. One out of every two jobs in the state is created in Oakland County. There are 38,000 businesses in the county of which 420 are foreign owned, representing 22 counties. Half of the robotics sales in the U.S. come from Oakland County; 201 of the Fortune 500 companies have an office or presence here. Those statistics speak for our proactive pursuit of economic development."

Return on Taxes

Cities often complain they are being slighted in terms of the services provided to them by Oakland County when compared to the service levels provided to outlying townships. Do you think Novi is getting an adequate return for its tax dollars?

"Novi is approximately 20 to 25 miles from the seat of county government, located on 450 acres of land at 1200 N. Telegraph Rd. in Pontiac.

"One of my goals as a county commissioner will be to seek a more user-friendly county government by either having a regional office closer to Novi or seeking to provide some county services at the city complex," Meyer stated.

"This has always been a perceived problem in Oakland County. The real problem is Oakland County's share of the pot with the State of Michigan. Oakland County is the largest county taxpayer in the state, although we are treated as though we have all the money we need," she said.

"Therefore, as stated above in question 2, all formulas at the state are nothing more than redistribution of our tax dollars. That is why it is so important that commissioners are active in the Michigan Association of Counties.

"We have had some success with getting gas tax money back to the road commission and instead of 45 cents of each tax dollar returned, we have special programs increasing that figure to 88 cents per dollar."

Consolidation of Services

Consolidation of services under the county executive was a goal set years ago when voters adopted the executive form of government, yet two notable areas remain outside the executive's control - drains and roads. Would you favor consolidation of these services? Why or why not?

"I favor consolidation," Meyer said.

"I believe accountability is easier to measure under such a consolidation.

"Presently, the state collects $60,000 from Oakland County in gas and road taxes while only 70 percent of it is returned to Oakland County.

"Perhaps, by consolidation, this could be addressed and assessed with great accountability as to where the money goes."

"Regarding the drains, we have consolidated our Oakland County public works department under the drain commissioner, relieving the county of duplication of effort," Schmid explained. "Under the new plan, the drain commissioner is in charge of all engineering, construction, lake levels, right of way acquisition, inspection, soil erosion, operations, maintenance, permitting, water and sewer billing, accounting and maintenance. This was done with the recommendation of the county executive and the concurrence of the board.

"Regarding the road commission, we are working more closely with them right now. With the passage of ISETEA legislation, SEMCOG has control of our federal road monies. At this time it is better to have two voices - the county and the road commission working together for Oakland County's fair share."

Regional Mass Transit

Is regional mass transit in the Detroit metropolitan area dead? Could it be revived? Should it be revived?

"As long as regional mass transit as a defined need in the Detroit metropolitan area, the persons determining such a system of transit ought to do all they can to present their ideas to the various county road commissions for governmental support of the regional transit," Meyer stated.

"If your vision of mass transit is rail and subway, probably that form of mass transit is not going anywhere at this time. If your view of mass transit is a consolidated bus system between DDOT and SMART, there is always a possibility," Schmid said.

"Right now they are working together on bus lines that cross city and county lines. To make a merger work, there has to be accountability from the City of Detroit on DDOT. They subsidize their bus system at $40 million dollars a year. SMART has 350 buses to DDOT's 200 buses.

"Fortunately, taxpayers in Oakland, Macomb or out-county Wayne do not subsidize the SMART bus system. I don't think the taxpayers of Oakland County should have to be subsidizing an unaccountable bus system."

Urban Sprawl

Urban sprawl is a much discussed issue in the Detroit area, yet all efforts to transform the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments into a regional planning body have failed. Should the county be attempting to control growth here? Is a stronger SEMCOG the means to doing that?

"Urban sprawl is a major issue facing Oakland County. It will only be appropriately addressed through a collaborative effort between the cities and counties," he said.

"I am not sure how SEMCOG could attain the authority you speak of without the cities and counties losing their critical input in the process."

"Since I have been on the Oakland County board I have been a delegate to SEMCOG. When the original Regional Development Initiative came down from SEMCOG, I worked with three other Oakland County commissioners to write Oakland County's own version of the RDI completely disagreeing with SEMCOG's conclusions," Schmid said.

"Why would anyone in Oakland County want SEMCOG, an unelected and unaccountable body, deciding what growth Oakland County can have.

"This is a quality of life issue and each of us has the right to live where we want. This is best left to individual communities with the support of their county. Twenty years ago, Mayor Young stopped 'Super Sewer,' but Novi had the vision to provide another way for their growth potential."

Earning Voters' Trust

Many American voters are growing more cynical about politicians. Why should voters trust you? What will you do to gain and hold their trust?

"Some voters are cynical. Some are not. The reasons for the cynicism are many. A part may be mistrust. A part may be due to misinformation," he stated.

"I have been a trustee of the Novi schools for over 11 years. I believe I have earned the trust of the citizens over these years.

"I intend to bring the same devotion and dedication to my term as county commissioner."

"My record is clear. As part of the leadership of the board, we have cut $21 million from the 1994 budget, reduced Oakland County's car fleet by 30 vehicles saving $280,000 a year, and instituted a defined contribution retirement program," Schmid said. "In addition, county departments were combined to reduce duplication and expenses. County expenditures were cut by privatization, early out retirements, and new employee health care plans. Updating of computer systems provided the tools to employees, ending duplication of time consuming paperwork. They board, staff and budget were reorganized for an annual savings of $150,000 a year. County services were brought to the 17th district by the building of a new court house in Novi and transferring 75 county employees from Pontiac to the old courthouse in Walled Lake."

GENERAL ELECTION • NOVEMBER 8

It's McCotter vs. Burnett in Wayne race

Thaddeus McCotter is hoping to continue representing the 10th District, which includes the Wayne County portion of Northville, Northville Township, Plymouth, Plymouth Township and part of Livonia. Democratic Party activist Karl Burnett is challenging for the seat on the Wayne County Board of Commissioners.

Q&A

Wayne County commission candidates provided the following answers to a questionnaire prepared by The Northville Record.

KARL BURNETT

KARL BURNETT
CHALLENGER, DEMOCRAT
Age: 44
Education: Schoolcraft Police Academy graduate, other community college courses.

Burnett has worked for General Motors for 24 years. He is a floor leader at the Power Train plant in Livonia and a consultant for the automaker. In addition, he is recording secretary for UAW Local 22 and chairperson of the Wayne County 11th District Democratic Committee.

Burnett is a reserve police officer in Livonia, the city in which he lives.

McCotter was elected to the Wayne County Commission in 1992. He was appointed to fill an unexpired term on the Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees in 1989, and resigned that post shortly after his election to the county commission.

McCotter, a member of the state bar, lives in Livonia.

Role of county government

The Wayne County charter is a fairly recent document and many still don't agree as to just what it is county government should do. What is your view on the role of county government?

The Wayne County Charter is a recent document because of the complete reorganization of the county government in the 1980s. The role of government is guided by the charter. The county may levy taxes to pay for the services it provides, working interdependently with, and between, city, state, and federal levels of government. There should be no duplication of services.

My view of Wayne County government is that it must concentrate its time and resources on performing those functions it is required to do under the Wayne County Charter and state law.

While there exist numerous mandated services, the most important to residents of the 10th District are roads and sewers—both of which when properly performed increase our existing quality of life and provide the infrastructure needed for economic development and its accompanying increase in the area's tax base.

For example, the Wayne County Commission recently approved a $1.4 million bond issuance for the creation of a sewer system on County owned land in Northville Township that will serve an existing business on the property.

Budget reductions

Currently, lawsuits are pending against Wayne County that, if lost, could throw the budget into deficit. If that happened which budget items would you be willing to cut in order to eliminate the shortfall?

I would not immediately propose programs be "cut." I believe that suggests existing programs were not important and genuinely needed when they were developed. I would be inclined to propose reorganizing current and planned activities to stay within the budget. Cuts should be a last resort.

In any deficit situation, the first areas to be cut must be general governmental spending upon itself—not public services. In my mind, the inflated salaries and staffing of the administrative and legislative branches have been and continue to be the first target of any budget cuts.

Township parcel

Wayne County owns a sizable amount of acreage between Five and Six Mile roads in Northville Township it is trying to sell. What use would you like to see the land put to?

A rather large portion of that parcel was recently sold to William Davidson for the rather attractive sum of one dollar. A golf course is also in the planning stages.

The plans are, so far, to build a glass plant there that will manufacture products related to "flat glass technology," and provide approximately 300 jobs.

Mr. Davidson is a very affluent person who can well afford to build almost any facility he needs to without as much assistance as he is getting from the taxpayers in Wayne County. There are many problems with finalizing the deal, costing the county even more.

I am concerned plans may not succeed.

The rest of the land represents a great deal more potential than is currently being considered.

Northville Township's residents and their elected officials and the purchaser of the property must determine what the proper use of the property should be. Wayne County, lacking the power to zone, cannot and must not endeavor to determine the use of the land.

What Wayne County must do is work constructively with all parties to eliminate barriers to the development of the property, and its draining of the police and fire services of Northville Township and make it a productive part of Northville's tax base.

Edenderry connectors

Residents of the Edenderry Hills subdivision in Northville Township are opposing a county mandate requiring the addition of streets to connect their area to a proposed new subdivision. Do you agree with their objections and, if so, what would you try to do to influence county officials to waive the mandate?

In an affluent and especially new area, exclusivity is always important and is probably a primary concern here, too. I will suggest this as among the very best attributes of any place anyone wants to live.

The county mandates are usually of a minimum requirement nature, and I believe the objectives of both can easily be met.

The county's primary concerns probably relate to civil defense, emergency, health and safety. Can you get a hook and ladder in there?

The county doesn't mandate a thoroughfare or other undesirable requirements.

I have much experience in interpretation of agreements, law, constitution, by-laws, etc., and I believe a win-win result can be reached if only a commissioner is elected who will be sensitive to the problems and be willing to spend the time and effort this deserves.

I have always agreed with residents of the Edenderry subdivision that their roads should remain closed. Yet because the decision on the connector roads is by law made solely by the administrative branch of county government, as a legislator I have had to rely solely upon moral suasion to oppose the connector roads.

However, an opportunity is currently being examined by which the issue may be brought before the County Commission. If it does, I will do everything in my power to work with my colleagues to keep Edenderry's roads closed.

Job creation

What, if anything, do you think Wayne County government should do to stimulate job creation in the county?

Business ventures between the county and business are always a good idea. The tax abatements that usually accompany these types of ventures, though, are often far too generous. I believe it is important to remember communities need safeguards against business partners leaving them holding an empty bag.

The county does a good job with the services it provides. I would work towards preserving the job security county employees have enjoyed. I do not support privatization of county services.

The best thing any unit of government can do to create jobs is to get out of the way. Specifically, government's seeking to spur economic development must reduce taxes, eliminate excessive regulations, and provide essential public services that create and maintain the basic infrastructure and enhance the quality of life in areas in which businesses look to locate.

Anti-crime strategies

What measures, if any, do you think Wayne County government should take to help combat crime?

The county role where crime is concerned is represented for the most part by the Wayne County Sheriff's Department, juvenile facilities and programs. I would support restoration of services recently taken away from the Sheriff at Wayne County Metropolitan Airport.

Seven years ago, a 10 year, 0.1 mill county tax was approved for a new Wayne County Youth Home. Due to different interpretations regarding the original intent, a badly needed new Wayne County facility has not been built. Only three years are left on the tax. The current home is overcrowded and not licensed by the state. I will support a renewal only in the event problems we have already experienced can be corrected.

Focus on the adequate funding of the Sheriff's Department, especially the Road Patrol that serves Hines Park. Given the County's current fiscal situation, this funding will often require innovative approaches.

For example, the Sheriff's O.U.I.L. unit that protects residents against drunk drivers was endangered last year due to budgetary problems. In response, I was a co-sponsor of legislation that made the patrol self-supporting through the reimbursements of costs from convicted drunk drivers. To date, I believe the program has been, and will continue to be, successful.

Environmental cleanup

Wayne County has many hazardous environmental sites. What would you do to help initiate cleanup efforts?

Polluters must pay. The county has the assignment to determine who is responsible for the various ways the county is polluted.

I would move to reinforce that the responsibility for the costs should be upon the persons who created the problems. We really must clean up our county, but, wherever possible, taxpayers should not have to foot the bills.

As Vice Chair of the Commission's Department of Environment and Energy, I have supported more decision-making power regarding toxic clean-ups being given to local units of government.

However, the State of Michigan has been reluctant to grant localities these powers, and has instead pursued a centralized approach to identification and remediation of these sites, placing an emphasis upon first cleaning-up rural rather than urban areas.

Should the state permit more local control of the clean-up of these sites, it must also begin allocating Wayne County a share of state clean-up funds. Wayne County should be allowed to work with local communities to begin the remediation of contaminated sites.

Blanchard and Law seek House seat

Democrat Carolyn Blanchard and Republican Gerry Law are vying for the 20th District Michigan House seat. The district includes the Wayne County portion of Northville, all of Northville Township, Plymouth and Plymouth Township, and part of Livonia.

The candidates for the 20th District Michigan House seat supplied these answers to a Northville Record questionnaire.

Law represented this district in the Michigan House from 1982-90, resigning at that time to accept appointment as Plymouth Township Supervisor. He served as supervisor during 1991 and '92. He is now on leave from his position with the State Lottery Commission while he runs for office.

Racetrack revenues

What would you do, if anything, to return more racetrack revenues to the local communities?

I would attempt to ensure that the state would return all the statutory authorized funds to cities with race tracks. I would also work with the horse racing industry to improve their revenues so that local government revenues would increase.

We need to reeducate legislators concerning the history of state grants to cities with racetracks. Legislators need to be aware of the cuts that cities incur providing public safety and other valuable services to the racetracks within their boundaries.

Representatives from both political parties who have racetracks located in their districts must work together to ensure that the State of Michigan returns the revenue mandated by state law to their respective communities.

Full support of HB 5495 (4-26-94) which would allow a city or township in which a racetrack is located to adopt an ordinance imposing a tax on the holder of a race meeting license and providing for the collection of this tax and would allow the City of Northville to collect $800,000 each year as promised by state law.

School financing

In the event that new tax revenues do not equal losses from the city in property taxes under Proposal A, from what areas of the budget would you be willing to take funds to ensure per-pupil allowances to school districts?

Eliminate printing and mailing costs of the unsolicited, gratuitous and self-promotional material from our state legislators. Use alternative sentencing programs rather than costly incarceration, thus reducing the corrections budget.

Any shortfall in tax revenues promised under Proposal A should be covered by budget reductions and not by increasing taxes.

If the shortfall in revenue ensuring per-pupil allowances to school districts is small, the social services budget should be reduced appropriately. Any shortfall resulting in hundreds of millions of dollars will require reductions in all areas of the state budget including revenue sharing to local communities.

Criminal penalties

What is your position on instituting a three-strikes-you're-out type of penalty for violent criminals? Do you think the focus should be on increased prison construction or on prevention efforts?

A "three-strikes-you're-out" penalty would be too costly for us to support; if such a policy was enacted we would be spending more money on corrections than on educating our children. Drug addicts do not stop and think before they steal a purse if they have one or two prior convictions and what the consequences may be. I think the focus should be on prevention efforts not on costly incarceration.

Statistics show that a high percentage of violent crime is committed by a very small percentage of criminals. We should also ensure that felons who commit crimes of violent assault serve at least the minimum sentence in secure confinement.

Strategies that focus on prevention—expanded drug treatment and rehabilitation, more jobs and job training, especially for our youth, funding for additional police officers, deserve at least as much consideration as just building more prisons.

Abortion

What is your stance on abortion? In your view should the state take additional measures to restrict access to abortion?

I believe that abortion should be safe, accessible and legal. There should be no more restrictions on abortions.

I am pro-life.

Welfare reform

How do you feel about current welfare reform proposals?

I support the goals of the governor's welfare reforms to break the dependency on welfare.

Support the following welfare reforms made by Governor Engler:

- Eliminated general assistance payments to 83,000 able body single adults.
- Recipients of (AFDC) benefits must go to work, school or job training. If they do not participate, they get a 25 percent cut in their welfare check after one year and no check at all after two years.
- Creating a program for low-income working parents to buy low-cost health insurance for their families.

Gun control

In your opinion should the state take additional measures to tighten permit procedures for gun ownership?

Yes!

No. Michigan currently has many of the most restrictive laws regulating gun ownership in the United States.

Sex education

What measures, if any, do you think the schools should take in educating young people about sexually transmitted diseases, including AIDS? Should high schools be allowed to distribute condoms?

Students should be taught about maintaining healthy bodies. This education should include information about all disease processes including sexually transmitted diseases. If the school's health educator believes there is a significant public health risk to the students of the district then condoms should be made available.

Schools should limit this education to public health classes and require the permission of students' parents for attendance. I oppose the distribution of condoms in public schools.

Job creation

Do you think state government should take an active role in job creation and economic development?

Yes, we need jobs so that we can pay for educations, health care, etc.

State government can take an active role in economic development that otherwise would not occur. I do not support incentives that merely transfer resources from the public to the private sector as does the current proposal for Tiger Stadium.

Two incumbents, two challengers in Senate races

9th District State Senate — Northville Township and Wayne County portion of the city

Geake opts for 9th term

By YVONNE BEEBE
Staff Writer

State Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, who is running for his ninth term in the state Legislature, acknowledges he is not a typical member of government.

If voters elect Geake Nov. 8 over his Democratic opponent Patrick O'Neil for the 9th District State seat, he will be the senior-most Republican in the upper chamber.

When first elected to the state House of Representatives in 1972, Geake said he never imagined politics would become a long-term occupation for him. However, the challenges and goals he faced through the years kept prompting him to extend his career.

He has been elected to the House three times and to the Senate five times.

"I love it," he said. "Every term there are more things to be done, and more goals to be accomplished. So far I'm still going strong. I'm still enthusiastic about it."

Despite his many years in the Legislature, Geake says he supports Michigan's recently-enacted term limitation law.

"There is so much turnover that even if every one of us is reelected there will be only seven of us in the majority party who will have been there more than 4 years," he said.

Geake has served as the vice chairman for the appropriations committee for the full Senate and as chairman for the committee that writes budgets for the Department of Mental Health and Department of Social Services. He also serves on the three-person subcommittee that writes the regulatory budgets for the Department of Commerce and Department of Labor and is vice chairman for planning of state spending and for the Department of Corrections.

The 9th District includes the Wayne County portion of the city of Northville, and all of Northville Township, Livonia, Redford, the city and township of Plymouth and Canton Township.

Senate seats carry four-year terms with an annual salary of $47,723.

If reelected, Geake said he plans to focus on legislation that will strengthen the family, including adoption laws, welfare reform and improving the Friends of the Court program, which provides services to families going through divorces in custody cases.

"There is a lot to still be done in that area of welfare reform," he said. "We need to encourage people to get off of welfare and to make it economically possible to get off of welfare by providing medical benefits and child-care benefits in order to allow these people to start entry level jobs."

Geake said he would also like to see stricter laws passed that will enforce child-support payments.

"We need to tighten up our child support enforcement system so children who are living with a single parent at least have enough income to survive, to go to school," he said.

Crime prevention through alternative punishments for non-violent offenders is another avenue of legislation Geake would like to focus on.

"The time has come that we have got to look more carefully at keeping people from getting into crime in the first place," he said.

"That can be done through a number of diversion programs that require young people to perform community service and restitution for property crimes, petty larceny and other crimes."

School finance, another important topic of the election as Geake's opponent is opposed to Proposal A, is not as much of an issue with Geake, he says. Geake, who was a strong supporter of Proposal A, feels confident that schools will be able to do business as usual with the new per-pupil funding system this year.

"There is no reason why any school system should not be able to function and function well with the money we are giving them," he said. "Local funding of schools is just a code word for high property taxes, which I'm against. So I think it is much fairer to provide the property tax relief that we gave voters with Proposal A."

Proposal A, approved by voters last March, shifted school funding from local property taxes to the state sales tax.

Geake said his campaign has been going smoothly, and he feels confident he can win next month.

O'Neil is upset minded

By YVONNE BEEBE
Staff Writer

Patrick O'Neil, the Democratic candidate for the 9th District State Senate race, says he is ready to take on Lansing to represent the interests of residents in his district.

"As a local elected official I can appreciate the importance of not having Lansing impose its will on the local communities," said O'Neil, a resident of Livonia. "I've seen it and I've resented it."

O'Neil, who defeated Mary Haney in the Aug. 2 primary election, will face Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, in the general election Nov. 8. The 9th District includes the Wayne County portion of the city of Northville, and all of Northville Township, Livonia, Redford, the city and township of Plymouth and Canton Township.

Senate seats carry four-year terms with an annual salary of $47,723.

O'Neil's primary motivation to run for the open seat was the passage of Proposal A last March, the state program that shifted school funding from local property taxes to the state sales tax with funding coming solely from the state on a per-pupil basis.

"I am very angry with what happened with the refinancing of the schools," O'Neil said, adding that he would like to see the state return to some sort of local funding for the schools. "Voters clearly said in June of '93 that they did not want a change in property tax for state sales tax and two months later, our Legislature voted to do away with local financing of the schools."

"I think this is the worst thing that has happened to the suburbs that I can remember."

In the long run, O'Neil feels there will not be enough state money to maintain the per-pupil funding the schools are to receive in years to come, which in turn will affect the quality of education in Michigan.

O'Neil brings to the race more than 10 years of local government experience, as he served on the Inkster City Council for 14 years. He also has 17 years of experience as an attorney in probate, family and business law.

Currently, O'Neil practices law out of his home so he can spend more time with his two grade-school aged sons.

He is also chairman of the board of directors for Hegira, a non-profit organization that provides substance abuse services to the community.

One of the main focuses of O'Neil's campaign is the concept of representative government — holding dear the needs of the district's constituents.

"Not only did our Legislature vote the opposite of what the constituents wanted on school funding, they did that on the auto insurance medical caps," he said. "I believe that there simply isn't any desire on the part of the Legislature to reflect the wishes of the local community."

The rising cost of prisons and taking preventative measures to reduce crime are other issues O'Neil believes need a great deal of attention. O'Neil would like to explore alternative punishments for non-violent offenders in order to reserve the prisons for violent offenders — and keeping them there.

In the future Lansing must reform the welfare system, O'Neil said.

Note: Profiled below are candidates for the two state Senate seats in the Northville Record coverage area. First are the 9th District hopefuls, Bob Geake and Patrick O'Neil. Below are 15th District candidates, Vicki Barnett and David Honigman.

Patrick O'Neil

He said he believes welfare recipients should be separated into two different categories: people who will be on welfare for a prolonged time — like the disabled and the elderly — and those who need short-term help like single parents who can eventually be put to work to get off the program.

The state must also focus on the children of welfare and make strides through education to ensure they do not carry on the pattern the parents started.

"We should be looking at this over the decades rather than just over the current fiscal year," he said.

O'Neil said he feels the campaign is going well; however, he acknowledges the difficult task he has ahead in trying to oust his incumbent opponent.

"The way I look at it, (Geake) has name recognition, he has money, he has incumbency," he said. "All I have are the issues."

15th District — Oakland County portion of Northville city

Barnett at home with Democrats

By Colleen Newline
Staff Writer

Vicki Barnett decided to follow the old cliché about singing for your supper at a recent fund-raising event.

Instead of just asking her supporters to give money for a dinner, the chair of the 11th Congressional District Democratic Committee recruited Barbara Streisand's original pianist for an evening titled "Barnett sings Barbara."

The night on stage wasn't much of a stretch for the 40-year-old Farmington Hills resident, who boasts that at one point in the 1970s she was the highest paid cocktail singer in Detroit.

Besides raising money in her bid against incumbent 15th District state Sen. David Honigman, Barnett smiles as she notes, "I got two job offers that night."

She's not looking for a job as an entertainer, though — she's looking to head to Lansing on a platform that focuses heavily on education reform.

Barnett immersed herself in education issues while running a petition drive to call for a second look at school funding and other issues related to Senate Bill 1 and Proposal A. They generated some 200,000 signatures during the drive.

Her concerns with the package approved by voters include taking control away from local school boards and putting it in the hands of Lansing and worries that the state won't have enough money to finance schools after cutting local property taxes as a source of revenue for schools.

"I would definitely say it's going to create shortfalls," Barnett said.

She points to tax breaks the Legislature gave in the creation of Proposal A — one on the real estate transfer tax, another on agribusiness, for example — and to the heavy reliance on an increased sales tax as reasons she doesn't expect the state will generate enough money for schools.

Although she backed a secondary plan — one that rested on a cornerstone of an increased income tax instead of the sales tax — Barnett said she wouldn't want to ask the voters for a second decision on the issue.

"Let's get this one working first," she said.

While Barnett said she got involved in the petition drive because she's a mother of two and a graduate of the public school system, it wasn't her first experience in the world of politics.

She served as campaign manager in Marilyn Kelly's 1992 race for the Michigan Supreme Court, and in Jack Faxon's 1990 re-election bid for state senator.

Barnett's political roots go all the way back to her days in high school student government and residence hall government at the University of Michigan, but she got heavily involved in 1980 when she attended the national convention.

That was the Republican national convention.

Barnett said that as Ronald Reagan took the podium to accept the presidential nomination, she looked around the crowd and saw people who opposed abortion rights and the equal rights amendment.

"I said, 'I'm in the wrong spot,'" recalled Barnett, who describes herself as "the fiscally responsible, free-market Democrat," who supports reproductive choice and the ERA.

If she had stayed aligned with the GOP, though, it might have been easier to win this election in a heavily Republican district.

"I know I have to work to get the vote," Barnett said. "That's what keeps me on my toes."

She said many issues cross party lines, like her "favorite subject" of education.

"Concerns of residents don't have an R or a D attached to them," Barnett said.

That doesn't mean she won't point out the differences between herself and her opponent.

"If I thought he was doing a great job, I'd vote for him. I wouldn't be running against him," she said. "I don't think we're getting the representation we voted for."

Citing a popular complaint, Barnett said Oakland County is tops in paying taxes but in the basement when it comes to getting money back from the government.

Honigman typifies Barnett both as "tax and spend" and as "a classic liberal Democrat."

She mocks the Republican stereotype of Democrats as "tax and spenders" by calling the GOP "tax and senders."

"We don't need to raise taxes — we need to be more responsible for the taxes we already have," she said.

Barnett supports public funding of Detroit's infrastructure but not of a new Tiger Stadium and believes casino gambling should be a local decision not a state one. She also thinks legislators should promote cooperation between communities to share facilities and services.

The 15th Senate District includes the Oakland County portion of Northville, all of Novi, Farmington, South Lyon and West Bloomfield. Senate terms last for four years. The position pays $47,723 a year.

Honigman ready to go back

By Colleen Newline
Staff Writer

After a serious bout of illness earlier this year, David Honigman said he's recuperating both physically and mentally.

"I'm glad to be alive," 38-year-old State Sen. Honigman said.

The West Bloomfield Republican went into the hospital in February and had most of his intestine removed. He then got orders to rest up to recover his health, but the media pointed out that Honigman wouldn't be kept out of the game — still very ill, he showed up in Lansing to cast his vote on school finance reform.

Honigman said the experience made him realize how much he enjoys simple things like spending time with his wife, Joanne, taking quiet walks and eating solid food.

"I appreciate life so much," Honigman said. "All the little things that people take for granted, I appreciate a lot."

Honigman still is keeping his travel to a minimum, as he says he's about 75 percent healed.

"It's definitely limited my campaigning activity," he said.

Still, he's quick to say "that his health is not an issue in the race for the 15th district."

"I wouldn't run if I didn't think I could serve," Honigman said.

What is an issue, he said, is Proposal A — the voter-approved package that cut out local property taxes as a way to finance schools and boosted the sales tax from 4 to 6 percent as a primary way to replace the funding.

"That's the biggest accomplishment of state government in 50 years," Honigman said.

Honigman said the old system of school finance caused huge gaps in funding to schools, with some districts at the top end spending two or three times as much per pupil as those on the low end.

While Honigman's opponent, Vicki Barnett, charges that the system created under the reforms will lead to massive shortfalls and underfunding of schools, Honigman contends that the amendment to Michigan's state constitution protects districts from such problems.

"Even if we have a recession, we've got to find the money, we've got to fund schools," he said. "This amendment forced the state Legislature to make education the highest priority."

If, indeed, there is a shortfall, Honigman said, legislators would have to make cuts in other areas to make sure the money guaranteed to schools gets to its destination.

He said he's heard from many of his constituents that they're thrilled to have their property tax burden lowered, and to have school funding based on the sales tax.

Other issues Honigman views as important to his district include crime, the environment and urban sprawl.

Honigman said he's a strong believer in preserving the rural feel of the communities of his district, with many people telling him they moved farther out I-96 to escape the concrete jungle of Southfield and downtown Detroit.

Honigman calls Barnett a "tax and spend Democrat," but she counters by calling him a "tax and sender," saying that Oakland County is tops among taxes paid out but on the bottom of the list for receiving state money.

"I look at that as a sign of our prosperity," Honigman said. "We don't need government handouts."

The one area where Oakland County could use more support from Lansing is roads, Honigman said. Road money needs to go where the population is, and judging from growth in the area recently, that's Oakland County.

Otherwise, Honigman said, "I generally think you empower people by reducing the size of government."

"I'm a little more suspicious of government,"

Honigman said he brings with him a variety of experiences that benefit him as a senator — his undergraduate philosophy major from Yale University, studying right and wrong; his athletic training for discipline and determination through wrestling and judo at Yale; and an understanding of the law from his law degree at the University of Michigan.

But he said the thing that most qualifies him to serve is his personal philosophy.

"The primary reason for getting into public service is to help people," Honigman said. "I like to help the underdog."

Honigman was first elected to the Michigan House of Representatives in 1984, and was re-elected in both 1986 and 1988. In 1990, he won a seat in the State Senate.

The 15th District includes the Oakland County portion of Northville, as well as Novi, South Lyon, Farmington and West Bloomfield. Senate terms are for four years. The salary is $47,723 a year.

Proposal C more complicated than sounds

By TIM RICHARD
Staff Writer

TV ads make Proposal C sound simple. "Lower rates," say the insurance companies supporting it. "No means no," says the Michigan Trial Lawyers Association, which opposes it.

In real life, Proposal C is 31 pages of very fine type. Its legal name is Public Act 143 of 1993. It was passed by the Legislature after years of battling. But before it could take effect, the trial lawyers circulated petitions to put it in front of voters Nov. 8.

The thrust of PA 143 is to lower rates 16 percent by controlling costs — capping personal injury benefits, limiting at-fault drivers' right to sue, limiting fees to health care providers.

Trial lawyers call it "Son of D," the 1992 proposal voters rejected. True, it aims to reduce premiums by reducing costs, but many of Proposal C's details are different. Moreover, the 1992 proposal was the work of AAA Michigan, while Proposal C is the work of the Legislature.

Here are both sides of the major arguments:

• Benefits — A program offering unlimited benefits for "catastrophic claims" (mainly closed-head injuries) would be scrapped. Benefits would be capped at $1 million, though customers could buy up to $5 million voluntarily.

Insurers: It's impossible to insure benefits that may be infinite. At $1 million, Michigan's cap still exceeds that of other states.

Trial lawyers: Ages 16-24 have the most expensive claims but will buy only $1 million insurance. PA 143 changes the definition of what's covered and limits rehabilitation benefits after the injured person acquires any employment skill.

• Guarantees — Trial lawyers: Premiums are rolled back to 1992 levels for only six months guaranteed. After that, insurers would be free to raise premiums.

Insurers: Nothing can be "guaranteed" but death and taxes. Since modern insurance was developed in Columbus' day, premiums have been based on loss experience — something no legislature can control.

Government couldn't guarantee Columbus would lose only one ship, and it can't guarantee Michigan drivers will continue to behave in the same ways. Finally, if costs are curtailed, competition between insurers will force rates down.

• Good driver discounts — Insurers: Good drivers will get discounts. Discounts are required for those who purchase safety equipment and theft-prevention devices.

Trial lawyers: Good drivers can get the discounts only if they stay with their present insurer; they are inhibited from shopping around. Nothing prevents insurers from offering good driver discounts right now.

• Limited suits — Insurers: Drivers who are at-fault often sue the people they injured for "pain and suffering." Proposal C limits the ability to sue by uninsured drivers and those who are more than 50 percent at fault.

Trial lawyers: Insurers claim they're being killed by suits, but the bulk are "first party" suits — drivers suing their own companies when they are reluctant to pay.

• Big profits — Trial lawyers: Michigan insurers are making the biggest profits in the nation — more than 20 percent.

Insurers: The figures are flawed. They count surcharges to the Michigan Catastrophic Claims Association as profits; they're actually costs. The majority of insurance companies are mutuals, meaning they're owned by the policyholders, not stockholders, so the concept of "profit" is irrelevant.

Ballot language

PROPOSAL C, AN AMENDMENT TO MICHIGAN'S AUTO INSURANCE LAWS WOULD:

1) Reduce auto insurance rates by 16 percent (average) for six months for policyholders reducing personal injury (medical) insurance to $1 million. Extra coverage made available at added cost;

2) Permit insurance commissioner to waive company's obligation to reduce rates if statutory formula could be in excess of 1989-1992 state average;

3) Place limits on personal injury (medical) benefits;

4) Limit fees paid to health care providers;

5) Limit right to sue by setting higher standards for the recovery of damages for "pain and suffering" and prevent uninsured drivers and drivers over 50 percent at fault from collecting damages;

6) Allow rate reductions for accident-free driving with some insurers.

and appetizers in the ballroom, which was dominated by a huge blue and white poster that read: "Bob Carr U.S. Senate." The bright lights of the TV news cameras illuminated it brilliantly.

Also illuminated brilliantly was Carr, the speakers at the rally depicting him as the picture of a hard-working U.S. Representative who's had the guts to stand up for women and for the programs of the Clinton administration. There's no choice between him and Abraham, the Democratic supporters claimed.

"We need Bob Carr to protect women in this state," Debbie Dingell, wife of the congressman, said.

"We're not interested in going backwards, we're interested in going forwards," Stabenow added, giving her "wholehearted endorsement and support" to Carr. "We don't need another Republican clone who will work only for the top 1-percent of this country."

"We're tired of 12 years of red ink, deficit spending and the loss of women's rights," the candidate himself said. "This election is about whether we go forward or whether we go back."

It was Clinton, however, who had the harshest words and elicited the loudest cheers from the crowd.

"You're not only supporting a particular candidate," she said, "you're supporting a particular vision of American politics and the way this country should be going."

"Michigan took it on the chin" from Republican-inspired trickle down economics, Clinton said.

She praised the efforts of Bill Clinton's administration and cited a long list of accomplishments of which they're proud, such as deficit reduction, the crime bill and AmeriCorps.

"If I'd told you we'd do all that back in 1992 when my husband was running for President," Clinton quipped, "you'd have said, 'What was she smoking and did she inhale?'"

Republicans, she said, have tried to obstruct important programs in Congress in order to further their chances of election this fall.

"The opposition wants to turn the clock back, not only on the economy and crime but also on women's rights," she said. "We can't let them."

"Have we changed America overnight? No," Clinton continued. "We have to keep at it day in and day out. Let yourselves be sustained by the belief that you're moving towards something that's right - an America of what we know we can be."

Man charged with stalking his ex-wife

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

A Redford man has been charged with aggravated stalking in a case involving his ex-wife, a Northville Township resident.

The man, 60, was arraigned on Oct. 14 in 35th District Court before Judge James Garber. He pled not guilty and on Oct. 21 was bound over for trial to Wayne County Circuit Court. He remains free after posting a $1,000 cash bond.

Aggravated stalking is a felony in Michigan, carrying a maximum prison sentence of five years.

The man's ex-wife earlier this month filed two complaints with township police, one for stalking and one for harassment. The woman told police her former husband had been calling her on the phone and driving by her home in recent days, pulling into the driveway on several occasions. She has a judicial restraining order against him.

Township police requested and received a warrant for the man's arrest on the felony charge. He voluntarily surrendered himself at police headquarters. He faces a hearing in Circuit Court.

trusted by and inspire trust among elected officials. The questions board members put forth seemed to show the need for both, some containing subtle jabs by the questioner at other trustees.

Several questions asked the candidates what they would do in some hypothetical situations. The trustees seemed to be probing for someone with honesty - and a thick enough skin to do the right thing even if that means stepping on toes now and again.

Communication skill was a big factor as well. Several trustees said they wanted a manager who would keep the board rigorously informed on township doings.

"Consistency, absolute integrity and consistent communication" were what Hanlin said she would bring to the job, as well as "keeping everyone as equally informed as possible."

"I'm looking for new challenges," Hanlin said. "Northville Township has a lot to offer, including many challenges, especially because of your growth."

Hanlin has been Eastpointe's assistant manager since 1990. She said that she performs a lot of different duties in the job, including personnel administration and labor relations, working as a purchasing agent and administering the city's computer network.

From 1987-1990, Hanlin was the assistant to the director of the public works department in the city of Auburn Hills. She handled the computerization of the department's reporting system, helped to prepare its budgets and developed its procedures manual. She also assisted in hiring and training employees and acted as the department's purchasing agent.

For two years before that, 1985-87, Hanlin was a quality assurance engineer for a Rochester-based manufacturing company. In that capacity, she administered a statistical process control program which interpreted data to predict and solve production problems in the company's plant. Hanlin said she also served as a troubleshooter and bridge-builder between union and management in area auto plants.

Hanlin has a master's degree in public administration from Oakland University and a bachelor's degree in political science from Michigan State University. She's married and has an 18-month-old son.

e. Documentation from the Wayne County Department of Public Services that adequate sight distance is provided at any proposed access point along a public street.

f. Documentation from the Wayne County Department of Public Health on the suitability of land for safe installation of a septic tank and individual well if public utilities are not available. Locations must be shown on the site plan.

4. Plan Review Process:

a. Applicant submits information to the Planning and Zoning Department at least nineteen (19) days prior to the Planning Commission meeting at which the request will be reviewed.

b. The Clerk's office shall notify adjacent landowners of the proposed land division/combination and the date, time and place of the Planning Commission meeting at which the request will be considered.

c. The submittal is reviewed by the Township staff and consultants.

d. The application, site plan and supporting documentation and Township staff and consultant review comments are submitted to the Planning Commission.

e. The Planning Commission shall review the request for conformance with Township regulations and conformance with the standards of Section 5 below. The Planning Commission may approve, deny or table the site plan and give the proponent written notice of the action. If any variances are needed, the Planning Commission shall table the application and may make a recommendation or provide comments to the Zoning Board of Appeals regarding the matter.

f. If the land division or combination is approved, the Township Attorney and Engineer shall review any easements, private road maintenance agreements and related documents. All access easements and private roads shall be designed and maintained through a joint maintenance agreement in accordance with Section 18.35 STANDARDS FOR PRIVATE ROADS AND ACCESS EASEMENTS. If documentation is not submitted to the Clerk's Office within one (1) year from the date of approval of the site plan, such failure shall be considered abandonment of the plan and shall render its approval null and void.

g. Upon receipt of written approval by the Township Attorney and Engineer, the easement, private road maintenance agreement and related documents shall be reviewed and approved by the Township Board of Trustees.

h. The Township Clerk shall record the easement and related documents with the Wayne County Register of Deeds.

i. Following the above, the resultant parcels shall be eligible for building permits. Compliance with the Township Tree and Woodlands Protection Ordinance shall be required as part of the building permit review and inspection process.

5. Standards for Review: The following standards shall be used as the basis for the review and approval for a land division or combination:

a. Compliance with State Law. An application for division of land shall not be approved unless it is in compliance with the Subdivision Control Act, Michigan Public Act 288 of 1967, as amended. Accordingly, the following conditions apply:

(1) An acreage tract or acreage parcel of land may be divided pursuant to the requirements of this Ordinance only if such division creates less than five (5) parcels of land each of which is less than ten (10) acres, or where such division creates no more than four (4) parcels of land each of which is less than ten (10) acres as a result of successive divisions over a period of ten (10) years.

(2) A subdivision, lot, or other parcel of land in a recorded plat may be divided pursuant to the requirements of this Ordinance only if such lot, outlot, or other parcel is divided into not more than four (4) parcels, and provided further that the resulting lots, outlots, or other parcels shall comply with the minimum width and area requirements specified in the Subdivision Control Act.

b. Net Area: Each parcel resulting from the proposed division shall meet the following standards:

(1) Have a net area not less than that required for a lot in the particular zoning district, as specified in Article XVII SCHEDULE OF REGULATIONS, exclusive of any area occupied by a public street right-of-way or an access easement.

(2) No parcel shall have a net area of less than one (2) acre unless a public water supply main and sanitary sewer meeting Northville Township requirements are installed (or an acceptable guarantee is deposited with the Township to insure such installation).

(3) In no case shall the net area of each parcel be less than the median net area of other lots and within five hundred (500) feet of the parent parcel measured from any point along the lot line, provided that the maximum area shall be twice the area required for the district in which the subject parcel(s) is located. If there are condominiums within the 500 foot area, the calculation for net area of those "parcels" shall be calculated as the gross land area in that condominium project divided by the number of units in that project. This standard is intended to ensure harmony with the surrounding land development pattern, permit good transition between zoning districts, and respect the reasonable expectation of nearby land owners that future lot areas will be harmonious with the established pattern.

c. Required Information and Permits: No land division shall be approved unless all of the required information listed under item 3 above, "Plan Submittal" has been provided.

d. Buildable Area: For any parcel where available references or on-site observation indicates potential for a wetland regulated by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources under the Goemaere-Anderson Wetland Protection Act, the applicant shall submit a wetland determination study of the site conducted by a qualified wetland consultant or the Michigan Department of Natural Resources. If the study indicates the presence of a regulated wetland, the applicant shall illustrate on a site plan that the proposed lot(s) have sufficient area for building in compliance with the setback requirements listed in Article XVII SCHEDULE OF REGULATIONS.

e. Minimum Frontage: The lot frontage along a public street, private road or access easement for any parcels created shall be a minimum of sixty (60) feet unless the lot is along a forty (40) foot wide access easement approved by the Planning Commission under the procedures outlined in Section 18.35 STANDARDS FOR PRIVATE ROADS AND ACCESS EASEMENTS.

f. Minimum Lot Width: Each parcel shall provide the minimum lot width as required by ARTICLE XVII SCHEDULE OF REGULATIONS, exclusive of the width of any access easement, unless otherwise provided for in Section 18.35 STANDARDS FOR ACCESS EASEMENTS AND PRIVATE ROADS, except land at the end of a private access easement shall meet the yard requirements illustrated in Figure 18.35 a 4. FRONTAGE, WIDTH AND SETBACK MEASUREMENTS ALONG PRIVATE ROADS.

g. Shape of Parcels: Parcels should resemble rectangles but may be irregularly shaped as conditions dictate. However, unusual shapes proposed only for the purpose of meeting parcel area or width requirements shall not be permitted.

h. Depth to Width Ratio: The depth to width ratio of parcels created through land division that are ten (10) acres or less in size shall not exceed 4 to 1. Variations from these proportions may be permitted where such action would reduce existing nonconformity with these standards.

i. Building Envelope: Within each parcel shown on such site plan, there shall be delineated and fully dimensioned an area within which the principal structure shall be confined and an area within which accessory buildings shall be confined. The areas so delineated shall be such that, in the opinion and judgment of the Planning Commission, development on each parcel will be in conformity with the spirit and intent of the Ordinance with respect to the particular Zoning District, will be compatible with existing development in the vicinity primarily as to yard relationships, and will not adversely affect adjacent properties. No building permits shall be issued for buildings not located within the limits shown on an approved site plan.

j. Elimination or Reduction of Nonconforming Situations: The land division or combination shall not create and shall eliminate any nonconforming situation or reduce the degree or nonconformity (such as a nonconforming use, lot, building, building setback, access or private road) to the degree deemed practical by the Zoning Board of Appeals.

k. Easement: Approval of a proposed division of land shall be subject to the dedication of any easements necessary for roads, public utilities, bicycle/motorized vehicle paths, sidewalks, or other necessary public facilities required. An accurate legal description shall be provided for all such easements, prepared by a Registered Land Surveyor or Civil Engineer, that includes recitation of the purpose of the easement, with grant to the Township, its successors and assigns, in perpetuity, of the right to occupy and use such easement for installation, maintenance and operation of public utilities.

l. Parking Requirements: An application for division of land shall not be approved if it would result in a loss of parking such that development on any of the resulting parcels would be unable to comply with the minimum parking requirements in the Zoning Ordinance.

m. Multiple Zoning Districts: An application for division of land shall not be approved if it would result in parcels with more than one zoning designation, unless the applicant submits an application for rezoning that proposes a single zoning designation on each parcel. The Township may delay taking action on any such land division application until the outcome of the proposed rezoning is known.

n. Special Assessment Districts: In cases where water, sanitary sewer, storm sewer, street paving, or other such facilities have been installed by special assessment, and a lot proposed to be divided has been assessed therefore, no division shall be permitted unless the applicant agrees in writing to pay to the special assessment district an additional amount to be determined by the Township Assessor representing the increased benefit that may be derived through such land division. The additional amount shall be credited to the appropriate special assessment district.

PART II. Conflicting Provisions Repealed

Any Ordinance or part of Ordinance in conflict herewith are repealed save that in all other respects Ordinance No. 94, as amended, is hereby ratified and reaffirmed.

PART III. Effective Date

The provisions of this ordinance shall be in full force and effective immediately upon publication.

PART IV. Adoption

This ordinance was adopted by the Township Board of the Charter Township of Northville, pursuant to authority of Act No. 184, Public Acts of 1943, at their meeting of October 13, 1994.

INTRODUCING The New Life Center at Providence Park Where families are born...close to home

A COMFORTABLE ATMOSPHERE

Imagine giving birth in a comfortable, home-like atmosphere where you make many of the decisions about your birth experience. And then, think about being able to go home within 24 hours after your baby is born. Well, the New Life Center at Providence Park in Novi offers all that, and it's just minutes from home.

A UNIQUE APPROACH

It's a new beginning. A new way of thinking. And an alternative to traditional hospital births! The New Life Center at Providence Park was born from the success of the New Life Center at Providence Hospital, where for generations, thousands of women have had wonderful, nurturing, family-centered birth experiences.

THE CHOICES ARE MANY

From the moment you choose to have your baby with us, many decisions are yours. You may choose to go natural or to have an epidural. You may also prefer to share the event with your loved ones. But the best part is giving birth in a relaxed, home-like atmosphere and having your baby by your side. What's more, a nurse will come to your home for private, follow-up visits. Because that's the kind of extra care, attention and education people expect from Providence.

COME SEE FOR YOURSELF But don't take our word for it. Call 1-800-806-BABY for an appointment to see what the New Life Center at Providence Park has to offer expectant families.

OCC to seek greater taxing power

By TIM RICHARD
Staff Writer

Old buildings, old laboratories, old computers — they are three major reasons why Oakland Community College will ask voters for more tax authority next March 17.

Expanded health and business training, along with more scholarships, are the other reasons the 31-year-old college will seek one more mill in property taxes.

"We have an aging plant. It has caught up with us," Chancellor Patsy Fulton told the seven-member board.

"I'm out in the community a lot. A businessman told me, 'You are behind the times in welding. You need to be doing laser welding.' All you have to do is walk the (five) campuses to see the need. We've spent $20.5 million in the last three years, and it's a drop in the bucket."

One mill would raise $25.7 million currently. The funds would be asked long-term for operations, allowing them to be used for capital and maintenance, too. No new buildings are on the list. A formal resolution, not yet approved by the board, would ask for an amount not to exceed one mill, meaning the full levy may not be imposed every year.

Daniel Jaksen, vice chancellor for planning and development, outlined the five categories of needs — not necessarily in priority order — for the board:

- Building restoration: improvements, deferred maintenance catch-up, equipment and furniture, Americans with Disabilities Act improvements.

- Instructional equipment: science and math labs, engineering lab, performing arts, multi-media access, career programs.

- Academic and training programs: expanded health programs, e.g., nursing, allied health, police, fire and emergency medical training; Business & Professional Institute; dyslexic and special populations training institute; school-to-work expansion (co-op education, apprenticeships).

- Informational technology: physical infrastructure — wiring, libraries; mainframe upgrades; student computer laboratories; faculty computers, Internet access for students and faculty; electronic libraries.

- Scholarship restoration and improvements: re-establish to pre-1992 level and expand.

Jaksen said the informational technology area, in particular, has "dire needs."

OCC in the 1970s had a property tax rate of 1.7 mills — one mill for operations, 0.7 for bond retirement for buildings. In recent years, all bonds have been paid off. The operations tax rate has been whittled to 0.85 mill because the so-called Headlee amendment requires rates to be cut when assessments grow beyond the rate of inflation.

OCC has put more emphasis on tuition as state aid has shriveled. In 1973 tuition provided 20 percent of revenue and state aid 41 percent. Currently tuition provides nearly 40 percent and state aid 23 percent. Property taxes provided 35 percent of the revenue, both then and now.

Trustees expressed some surprise that the special election was scheduled for a Friday. "We're targeting the yes votes," said Fulton.

Rodney Chase, math instructor who heads the faculty union, gave the board a check for $1,275 for the millage campaign — 400 from administrators, $875 from faculty members.

"Maintenance has been neglected over the years," Chase said. "Desks are 25 to 30 years old. Carpeting, file cabinets, overhead projectors — all are old."

"We're trying to raise $75,000 for the campaign," said Fulton. "We're asking employees to contribute $50 each. We're also asking others to contribute."

The special election will cost $350,000, Fulton added. The college may use its own funds to conduct an election but must raise outside contributions to campaign for a yes vote.

Oakland Community College has approved contracts with 14 firms to train students in health care fields. Most students take class work on the Highland Lakes Campus in Union Lake and earn credit for working in care facilities.

The OCC board approved medical assisting program agreements with Drs. Dorfman, Robins and Jewell, obstetrician-gynecologists in Bloomfield Hills, and Dr. Mark Petrous in Troy.

Mental health and social work students will be able to do internships at 11 hospitals. New to the list is the state's Clinton Valley Center, a psychiatric hospital in Pontiac.

Renewals were approved with Brighton Hospital, Carlyle Center in Warren, Crittenton Hospital in Rochester, Havenwyck Hospital in Auburn Hills, Madison Community Hospital in Madison Heights, North Oakland Medical Center in Pontiac and Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital.

Students in the non-invasive cardiology program will be able to work at St. Mary Hospital in Liv-

Ghouls to haunt the petrifying forest

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

Ah, to be a kid again now that Halloween is here.

Remember what it was like? You'd go forth into the frosty twilight, one of a legion of kids clad like G.I. Joe or Barbie or a Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtle. Pillowcase or hollow plastic pumpkin in hand, you'd wait for that glorious waterfall of little bite-sized candy bars to begin flowing.

As anyone knows, though, trick or treating is just the final element of the Halloween experience. To seriously get into the howlin' holiday spirit, you've got to go where you're going to get scared - scared, startled, shocked outta your socks.

That's where Maybury Madness and the Haunted Forest come in.

It's time again for that autumn classic: Northville Parks and Recreation's annual spookfest at Maybury State Park. This will be the fifth year for Maybury Madness and it promises to be even better than the Rec Department's previous haunted offerings.

This Friday and Saturday, Oct. 28 and 29, it all begins. Take the Haunted Forest walk through the dark park's paths, where all kinds of fright can be found. Hey, it's tradition: zombies rising from the dead, mad scientists breathing life into their hideous creations, witches, werewolves and the odd knife-wielding maniac leaping from the shadows.

Tickets are just $7 and include admission to the park, the Madness walk and cider and donuts afterwards (if you're still alive and all). Best of all, the profits from the event go toward park projects.

Remember, though, that tickets for the Haunted Forest walk won't be sold at Maybury this weekend. Tickets are only available through the Parks and Rec office, located at 303 W. Main Street, during regular business hours. For more information, call 349-0203.

City fire department to sponsor costume contest

Captain James Petres of the Northville City Police Department said that, if possible, children should include at least one light color in their costumes in order to be more visible to drivers. Also, if masks are a part of the costume, children should take them off before crossing the street, he added.

It is also a good idea to carry a flashlight and to wear costumes that do not restrict walking and that are flame resistant.

Kids should also stick to their own neighborhoods and go in groups, he said.

The city and township police departments will not be holding candy screenings this year; however, Petres said parents can ensure the candy their children will eat is safe by inspecting it beforehand.

Look for loose or open wrappers or anything else that may seem suspicious. And remember, when in doubt, throw it out.

"It is better to throw candy away if it looks like it has been tampered with than to take a chance and eat it," he said.

Petres said if parents do find candy that has been tampered with, they can bring it into the station and fill out a report.

In addition to parading their costumes before friends and neighbors, kids can attend the community Halloween party hosted by the Northville City Fire Department.

The party will be held from 6-9 p.m. at the fire station, located at 215 W. Main St.

Parents and kids are invited to stop by the station for popcorn, cotton candy, apple cider, soft drinks and other treats.

At 7:30 p.m., the fire department will hold a costume contest at the Northville Community Recreation Center. Prizes will be awarded for the best costumes in five age groups: newborn to 3-year-olds; 4-6; 7-11; 12-15; and 16 and older. All who participate in the contest will receive an award.

For a full list of Halloween activities, see the Our Town Section of today's Northville Record.

Accused drug store robbers to get day in court

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

The two men accused of trying to rob the Perry drug store in Northville Township two weeks ago will soon face a hearing in Wayne County Circuit Court.

Nicholas Robert Woods, 46, and Gillisest Mcray, 35, will be arraigned tomorrow, Oct. 28, at the downtown Detroit court. The two waived their Oct. 14 preliminary exam before Judge John McDonald in 35th District. They remain in the Wayne County jail on a $10,000 cash bond.

Township police arrested Woods and Mcray on Oct. 3 on charges that they stole almost $600 worth of cologne from the Perry drug store on Seven Mile. According to police reports, a customer saw Woods putting bottles of cologne into a plastic bag. As the store manager came out of the back to confront him, Woods allegedly left the store through the front doors without paying for the merchandise.

The manager then followed Woods to an older-model Chevrolet Citation, police said.

Woods then got into the car, police said, with Mcray at the wheel. The two then sped off, going east on Seven Mile. Livonia police arrested the two men without incident a short time later, near the intersection of Merriman Road and the I-96 freeway.

The cologne is valued at $590. Woods and Mcray, both of Detroit, are charged with one count apiece of retail fraud over $100. Mcray faces an additional charge of aiding and abetting in the incident. Woods, who has been convicted of three previous felony offenses, faces an additional charge of being an habitual offender.

Family Emergencies.

St. Mary Hospital is affiliated with William Beaumont Hospital

No two emergencies are exactly alike. So all emergency care shouldn't be the same either.

That's why we designed and equipped our emergency department to handle everything from minor accidents to life-threatening injuries. If there are any questions about the seriousness of the emergency, a specially trained nurse is on hand to evaluate the situation and direct you to the appropriate level of treatment.

And whether you're a walk-in patient or require critical care, you'll receive the same quick and personalized medical attention from doctors who are specially trained in emergency medicine.

Our emergency care is backed by the resources of a full-service hospital, it's available 24 hours a day, every day, and it comes with the understanding that minor problems shouldn't result in major expenses... good reasons to go to St. Mary Hospital for sudden illness or injury. Mill Race Matters

This week the Northville Historical Society wishes to thank Charles and Ruth Waughman and Charles and Jeanne Dill for their donations in memory of Donald Ware. Ware, a lifetime residents of the community, died earlier this year.

Mill Race Village has ended its summer season. One opportunity remains to view its building interiors this year. That event occurs Nov. 19 and 20 during the annual Christmas Walk when buildings will be decorated for the holidays. There is an admission charge for this event, which runs both afternoons.

The final Mill Race Quarterly of 1994 will be delivered to members in mid December. Editor Julie Fountain is looking for pictures of any of the many events which occurred at the village this year to be used in a photo montage highlighting the year.

Original photographs will be returned. Please drop off any you wish to share in the office between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. Monday through Friday or contact 348-1845. Remember to include identification of those in the photos as well as your own name so that everything can be returned and properly credited.

Pictures are being sought from the spring opening/author signing, the upcoming Christmas workshop, this spring's progressive dinner, last Christmas' wine tasting party, any and all workers involved in village maintenance and repair during the year, the Christmas Walk and preparation for it, installation of the building identifications, gardeners and their efforts, the Fourth of July, the Victorian Festival, this year's annual meeting with Jo Marie Soszynski and the Key People award winners, the painting of the Yerkes House, school group tours and weddings. Any other family related photographs would also be appreciated.

Officials sweating out millage vote

township's police department will close up shop come Jan. 1.

That's a fact, not a threat, Snider said. If the proposal is defeated, the board of trustees won't have any other source of revenue to turn to that could pay for police.

That would mean that township citizens would have to rely on the Michigan State Police and the Wayne County Sheriff's office for law enforcement. That's nothing like having your own local police department, however, Snider said.

"No matter who would step in, there would definitely be a heightened response time to calls in the township," the director said. "It certainly would also have an effect on follow-up investigations of crimes. There would be a loss of quality of service from what the department currently provides to citizens."

People will have to wait longer for help in emergencies, Snider said, and wait even longer for non-emergency assistance: checking out reports of burglaries, vandalism and so on.

The future of the fire department if Proposal 1 does not pass is better, Snider said, but the failure of the millage would still have a detrimental effect.

The township's charter obligates the township to provide only fire, not police, protection. If Proposal 1 fails, the board could support the department through its general fund levy, which does not require a vote of the people.

As the most the board can levy is .728 mill a year, however, that means that fire department costs would have to be cut back, Snider said.

Capital equipment and operational costs would be the first target, the director said, to keep the axe from falling on staffing levels. The fire department would likely be able to keep its current staff, Snider said: one fire chief, three full-time firefighters and 20-some on-call paid firefighters.

Buying new, better equipment or replacing outright out-of-date gear would have to wait, Snider said. Less important operating costs, things such as training classes, may have to be cut as well, he added. The effect would be seen in the long run.

"The quality of service the department now has would stay the same," Snider said, "but it would certainly retard the long-term development of the department. We'd be falling behind in technology and in our ability to operate those types of equipment and we'd be falling behind in keeping up training of the firefighters."

In two related notes:

• DPS officials want township homeowners' associations to know that they're willing to discuss the facts of Proposal 1 at their meetings. For more information, contact Detective John Werth or Captain Phillip Presnell at 349-9400.

• Friends of Essential Services, the volunteer group supporting Proposal 1, is still seeking donations to help pay for advertisements and mailed literature. If you're interested in making a donation, send your check payable to Friends of Essential Services to P.O. Box 5330, Northville, 48167.

Police bust alleged bum check ring

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

Northville Township police arrested three men and one woman last week for allegedly passing bad checks at a township business. The four were trying to get money to pay off the Detroit drug dealer who supplied the cocaine and heroin to which they were addicted, police say.

The dealer, the woman said, threatened to kill her daughter if they didn't come up with his cash. The four are from Detroit and were apprehended on Oct. 18 at Mr. Z's party store on Five Mile. Together they cashed checks for nearly $800 and were trying to cash another when they were arrested.

Robert Joseph Kwiatkowski, 30, is charged with three counts of uttering and publishing. James Dewey Porter II, 49, is charged with two counts of the same offense and Gregory Darnell Wyche, 30, is charged with one count. The three were arraigned on Oct. 19 in 35th District Court before Magistrate Eric Colthurst.

Kwiatkowski's bail was set at $10,000 cash. Porter's was set at $10,000 on a 10 percent surety. They were unable to post bail and remain in the Wayne County jail awaiting trial. Wyche was released on a $10,000 personal bond.

Brooks was charged under township ordinance on a bad check charge, pled guilty and is expected to be given probation.

Uttering and publishing is a felony under state law, punishable by a prison term of up to 14 years.

Kwiatkowski faces an additional charge of being an habitual offender. Persons convicted of three felonies in Michigan can face a penalty of 15 years in prison if the prior convictions carried prison sentences of five years or less. The penalty is life imprisonment if convictions were for offenses with sentences of five years or more.

Mr. Z's owner, a Plymouth woman, came to police headquarters on Oct. 17. She told police that three days before, Kwiatkowski and Porter had come in and asked her to cash two checks, one for $200 and one for $286. The checks were from an area chemical company, but were very old, police say, being drawn on a Manufacturer's Bank account.

The owner agreed to cash the checks and did so again on Oct. 17 when Wyche allegedly asked her to cash one for $305. She was becoming suspicious, however, and officers advised her to contact them if they came back and tried to cash more checks.

The next day, Oct. 18, Lisa Brooks, accompanied by Kwiatkowski, Porter and another Detroit woman, tried to cash a check from the same company and bank at Mr. Z's for $276. The owner told Brooks she needed to open her safe, then went to the back of the store and called police.

The second woman said that she and her friends were staying at the Detroit home of a drug dealer. He gave them the checks and told them to cash them, she said, in order to pay him back for cocaine and heroin they'd bought from him. If they refused, the woman added, the dealer threatened to kill her daughter, whom he was holding in the house. The woman indicated that Wyche was staying in the home as well.

Township officers contacted Detroit police with the information. Detroit officers raided the house, arresting Wyche and the dealer and finding more checks.

Group looking for old NHS class photos

By YVONNE BEEBE
Staff Writer

Some Northville officials are looking to hunt down, frame and hang a number of old Northville High School alumni.

No, it's not an expedition to catch some old criminals on the run. It's a partnership between Northville High School and the Northville Historical Society to preserve a little piece of the past by restoring former Northville graduating class composite photographs.

Over the past two years, the high school has collected 56 original class composites featuring graduates from 1911 to the present. The photos are on permanent loan to the high school from the Historical Society.

The high school is in the process of restoring the photos in order to display the school's legacy.

"We appreciate that they have done this," said Superintendent Leonard Rezmierski at the Northville Board of Education's Monday night meeting where several of the composites were displayed. "This is a treasure of our history and if we lose it, it is lost forever."

The high school's mission to possess a complete chronology of the high school's classes, however, is incomplete. The missing pictures include the years 1913, 1916, 1917, 1920, 1922, 1928, 1948, 1951, 1956, 1975, and 1977-1980.

Principal Tom Johnson urges alumni (students from the Novi, Salem and South Lyon areas also attended Northville Public Schools in the past) who may have composites for any of the missing years to contact the Northville Historical Society or the high school.

School board trustee Martha Nield, who has been active in restoring the photos, estimates that it costs about $300-$350 to restore one composite.

The high school copies are cleaned copies of the original, are reduced or enlarged to a standard size, retouched for water marks, dirt or faded lettering and then mounted on a wall of the school.

Donations are recognized by a brass plaque on the frame of the picture. The school is looking to civic organizations and alumni for donations in order to restore the remaining 49 pictures. Donations can be made out to the Northville Historical Society, and sent to P.O. Box 71, Northville, MI 48167.

This photograph of the Northville High School class of 1938 is a well-preserved record of an early graduating class at the school.

Trustees to try again to agree on committee role obtained a written opinion from now ex-township attorney, Len Krzyzaniak, which said that the vote was illegal.

State law and the township charter give the supervisor certain powers and duties, Krzyzaniak said, which the board can't take away. If Baja wanted to have the executive committee meet to help make decisions, he added, she has the legal power to do so.

Based on that, the three-member committee has met three more times since the May 19 vote. Some trustees, however, say that they were never told that the committee had begun meeting again and weren't kept informed of its decisions. Committee members deny those allegations.

Matters came to a head last month, when the committee decided to inform Dick Henningsen, a special administrative consultant, that his services would no longer be required. Some of the board members say that's an action that only the board can take. They allege that the committee has made other decisions reserved for the board as well.

That led to Fogg's Oct. 13 motion.

"My contention with the committee is that we don't need it," Fogg said. "I don't like to see government done behind closed doors. It's as simple as that."

In his motion, Fogg asked the board to vote that the committee's actions since May 19 were illegal and in violation of both the board's vote and Michigan's Open Meetings Act.

He also demanded that the board be given the complete minutes of every meeting, including the votes on all decisions. The board should consider them, Fogg continued, and decide to approve or deny each one.

In the final part of his motion, Fogg asked that the board prohibit the committee from making any decisions without specific case-by-case approval from the trustees.

While his plan has the support of some members of the board, it also has drawn strong criticism from other trustees. The motion's opponents say their concerns over it are both philosophical and practical.

The motion demands that the committee and its members stop doing things that the law gives them the power to do, Trustee Mark Abbo said. That includes meeting with each other and making "administrative" decisions that don't need board approval.

"Certain administrative functions are the job of the supervisor, the clerk and the treasurer," Abbo said. "Therefore, the committee's decisions on those administrative issues don't fall under the Open Meetings Act."

"Decisions within the purview of the board are the board's," Abbo continued. "Administrative decisions are not. You've got to separate what's being addressed. I don't think you can suppress the clerk, supervisor and treasurer from talking to each other. This board can't tell me not to pick up a phone and call you."

Besides that, Engelland added, the call to sweep aside all of the committee's decisions is overkill. The board, he said, would support most if not all of them.

"The executive committee of this township has never been an important body," Engelland said. "We don't meet frequently and we've never decided anything major."

Fogg's motion, he said, was "vengeful" and "accusatory," and would hamstring the township manager with too much trustee micro-management.

"If the manager can't buy toilet paper without board approval," Engelland said, "how long is he going to last? He won't put up with it; he'll be gone."

Engelland and Fogg soon became angry and exchanged some harsh words, prompting a 10-minute board break to cool things off.

Trustee Gini Britton, an opponent of the committee, disagreed with Abbo and Engelland.

"There have been issues decided by the committee that are the purview of the board," Britton said. "We voted for it to stop. It did not stop."

It was Britton who obtained legal opinions from the Michigan Townships Association (MTA) which she and others say contradicts Krzyzaniak's opinions concerning Baja's and the committee's powers.

The supervisor was unapologetic for what had taken place, arguing that nothing illegal or improper had been done.

"It is not my intention of being power hungry," Baja said in defending the committee. "With the manager absent, I was told to take over his jobs until a new one was found."

The executive committee, she thought, "would get three people with three different perspectives involved in the decision-making and that would alleviate the feeling that I was trying to do things single-handedly."

"I do not apologize for or regret any action taken by the executive committee to this date," Baja concluded. "I do not feel we have governed behind closed doors."

"We have policies and procedures now on what is and is not acceptable action to be taken without the approval of the board," Hillebrand said. "We don't follow them. We keep trying to reinvent the wheel. We need to establish some parameters."

That is what the board will try to do next month. Until the trustees hammer it all out, however, Engelland, Baja and Hillebrand all said at the meeting that the committee wouldn't meet.

Superintendent says expulsion law is incomplete

By TIM RICHARD
Staff Writer

Lawmakers did just half a job when they decided kids who bring guns to school should be expelled, say school officials.

"Young people who bring guns to school do not belong in school, but they do not belong in the streets unattended," said Dr. Robert Schiller, superintendent of public instruction.

"They still need basic education on a neutral site. We have so advised the Legislature," Schiller told the State Board of Education.

During the height of his campaign for a second term, Gov. John Engler signed Senate Bill 966 calling for the expulsion of gun-toting kids. The ceremony took place Oct. 19 in Dearborn.

The charter school law, strongly advocated and much touted by Engler, may not help, one board member observed.

"There's talk in one city of a charter school for expelled students," noted board co-president

Annetta Miller, D-Huntington Woods. "But they have been expelled from public schools. Would the law have to be changed to allow it (a charter school for gun-toters)?"

State Rep. Lynn Rivers, D-Ann Arbor, voted against SB 966. In her 13th District congressional campaign, she was accused of being soft on crime.

But Rivers argued that she offered amendments, rejected by Republicans, that would have provided alternative schooling for expelled students. Rivers said Republicans told her that if the state mandated alternative schooling, the state would have to pay for it — impossible under the Headlee constitutional amendment limiting taxes to a percentage of personal incomes.

Meanwhile, Department of Education staffers told the State Board that a special commission on violence and vandalism in the schools is preparing a report, due in November.

RECORD OPINION

THURSDAY
October 27, 1994

Our Opinion

Send them to D.C., Lansing, county seats

In the race for the 11th Congressional district seat, we give the nod to incumbent Republican JOE KNOLLENBERG.

Knollenberg is a business owner seeking his second term in the U.S. House, and if returned by voters he expects to be able to make further inroads in Washington.

Knollenberg is not above criticism. He is not terribly personable, lacking the warmth and charisma that many pundits seem to think is a must for a politician. Rather, he's a scrapper and enjoys the give-and-take of a good House floor debate.

And some may disagree with his positions on certain issues, like abortion and trade agreements. He's anti-abortion and pro-NAFTA.

But where there can be no dispute is that Knollenberg is a budget cutter and an advocate of the taxpayer. He's fought to cut taxes, and he's working to pass a balanced budget amendment and give the president the line-item veto.

Those positions may be relatively easy ones, but Knollenberg's put his money where his mouth is by keeping his own office staffing low and returning to the treasury $130,000 allocated for his office operations.

Few issues in Washington are as important as the fiscal solvency of the federal government. If the country goes belly up, many of these other issues will mean little.

Our endorsement goes to Knollenberg for another term.

In the 20th Michigan House race, pitting state official Gerry Law against attorney Carolyn Blanchard, we recommend a vote for LAW.

Law's record as a policy maker has been somewhat dubious in recent years: the last time he was elected to the state House he promptly resigned, choosing to accept appointment as Plymouth Township Supervisor. When the going got tough and the questionable practices of the Western Townships Utilities Authority gave rise to anti-incumbent sentiment, he saw the writing on the wall and decided not to run for reelection in the township.

Nevertheless, Law proved he can serve competently during the eight-plus years he spent as state Representative for this district. Between 1982 and 1990 he demonstrated a willingness to put the interests of his constituents above those of his party, and he appears poised to do that again as he fashions a convincing argument against Gov. John Engler's policy of siphoning money away from municipalities that play host to racetracks.

The 20th District includes all of Northville Township and the Wayne County part of the city.

In the 10th District Wayne County Commission contest, we're pleased to give an enthusiastic endorsement to incumbent THADDEUS MCCOTTER.

McCotter, elected to his first two-year term in 1992, has demonstrated the double-edged ability to both stand by his guns and avoid burning bridges. He's smart enough to understand that, as one of only two Republicans on a 15-member board, he needs members of the opposing party to get things done for his district. At the same time, he has the courage of conviction when resisting attempts of the majority to spend tax dollars unwisely.

His accomplishments include ordinances limiting the use of county-owned cars and establishing ethical standards for county employees, and the initiation of bi-annual budget operations audits.

Oakland County 17th District Commissioner KAY SCHMID has accomplished a lot, but we agree, the job's not done. Voters, we believe, should return her to the county board and allow her to continue her efforts.

Schmid's fought hard for her district in the four years she's served as commissioner. Not the least of her accomplishments was her effort to bring the 52-1 District Court to Novi, now under construction on Grand River west of Beck Road. Never mind that state law made it clear the court should have been located there all along, Schmid had to face down some powerful opponents, including a few in the state Legislature, to get the courthouse moved.

Also high on her list of accomplishments is her effort to trim the county budget. She was not alone, of course, in this endeavor, but she worked to cut county government expenses and the budget is now $21 million leaner. Some departments have been trimmed by 25 percent. On top of that, her caucus has instituted a two-year budget cycle for better control of the finances. Now there's a budget cutter.

Schmid has shown she fights hard for her district, and puts its concerns above political considerations.

We think she deserves another term.

Lee Snider

A new book called The Bell Curve is causing quite a lot of consternation and controversy. The volume, written by conservative sociologist Charles Murray and the late psychologist Richard Herrnstein, is about IQ scores and the role of genetics in intelligence determination.

The Bell Curve's authors contend that fully 60 percent of our brain power is hereditary, while the other 40 percent is shaped by factors like upbringing and cultural environment. The writers further assert that little can be done to raise one's IQ after the first few years of life.

It's easy to understand the upset such a theory would cause. Instinctively, we react against the notion that intelligence is mostly predetermined and that we are almost powerless to effect it. Such an idea violates the belief, cherished by Americans perhaps above all others, that if you work hard and persevere you'll get results. Genetic explanations of intelligence reduce the richness of human variation to so many numbers on a printout and leave us with the hollow sense that our destinies are decided by immovable forces.

It seems apparent that there are two basic components to intelligence - nature and nurture - but I don't know how anyone can quantify the part each plays. In any case, IQ, I think, is an entirely overrated concept.

I say this because of my experience with a member of the high IQ club, Mensa. To get accepted into Mensa you have to score in the 98th percentile on an admissions test. That means you have to have more innate smarts than 98 percent of the population. Statistically, two in 100 people qualify.

My Mensa acquaintance was someone I worked with a few years ago. She was basically unexceptional but she did have one uncanny ability: she could listen to several conversations at the same time and absorb them all.

We worked in a small office along with five or six others at the time and everyone, unavoidably, could overhear everyone else's telephone discussions. The Mensa member had an annoying habit of offering comments on the things people talked about over the phone, even though no one ever sought out her opinions. No sooner would we plunk the receiver down into the phone set than some overstated observation would spill from her lips.

Nobody thought much of the Mensa member's views - not only were they less than brilliant, they weren't even very interesting. Clearly she had a high opinion of herself, but no one else was too impressed. We considered her the office loud mouth and liked to have fun at her expense when she wasn't around. We used to say that the smart thing about her was that she possessed the ability to comment on five conversations that went on at once; the dumb thing about her was that she used it. She didn't have sense enough to know that the appropriate thing to do is to stay out of people's business unless they ask you what you think.

But it wasn't her tactlessness that convinced me that this IQ stuff is much ado about nothing. It was the stories she'd tell of her group. Despite her pronounced lack of modesty, she was frank in explaining that Mensa was no great shakes. It was originally organized so that the brainy people of the world could get together and solve all of civilization's ills, but before long the members realized they didn't know any more than anyone else. Eventually they changed the direction of the organization and turned it into a social club.

Mensa meetings, she'd say, were replete with woeful tales of intellectual neglect and untapped potential. Contrary to what one might expect, many of the members were unskilled workers struggling to make ends meet, hourly wage earners toiling away in coarse occupations.

Potential, however it's measured, is one of those hypotheticals that don't really mean very much. More important by far is effort, and that's something that's available to all of us equally.

The case of the missing key ring

Yvonne Beebe

For the past week I have managed to function without what is probably the most essential tool for my day-to-day endeavors - my keys.

There are many things I can lose and still function - sleep, a momentary loss of dignity, etc. - but, as with most people I'm sure, my keys, are a non-negotiable item.

The revelation that my keys were not in their usual places - beneath the cushions of the couch, under my bed or in the pocket of the jeans I had worn the day before - came at a crucial point in my schedule as I was scurrying around the house one morning.

After exclaiming a number of expletives about where they could be and getting my daily dose of aerobic exercise by tearing apart the house, I came to the painful and irksome conclusion that they were no where to be found.

Well, it has been five days since that fateful morning when I had to call a fellow-employee to come pick me up for work (luckily I don't live too far away). Since then I have located a spare key to my car so at least I can drive myself to work again; however, because the key is playing it solo, I feel a heightened sense of protectiveness toward it. If I manage to lose this one too, then all is lost.

The saying you don't know what you've got until it's gone has never been more true than in this instance. I've not only learned to appreciate the number of doors a good set of keys can open (cars, offices, homes, etc.) but the sense of self-worth they provide has also become evident. A large number of keys on the chain, whether they work or not, gives the illusion of high importance.

The following is an office inventory of theories on why we lose things, where they go and how each theory applies to my keys:

Sharon: Her son takes various lost items to play with. Since I have no kids, this doesn't apply.

Carol: Pets move them to dark, dank corners of the house. This is an altogether plausible and realistic theory. However, since my cat is so small that my friends often say she looks more like a rat than a feline, she would not be able to bat my hefty ring of keys (they show my lofty self-importance) too far out of reach.

Jan: Aliens steal them to conduct tests on the objects. No comment.

I think my favorite theory came from our photographer Hal, a sort of Freudian psychological theory that just may be true in many cases.

Hal: People subconsciously want to lose the object, so they do. So in this case, I would have harbored a secret desire to not be able to drive to work or any other commitment I might have made.

Although this sounds good on the surface, I lose all credibility when applying this to practical situations.

After considering the various theories, I think my mom's is the one I'll stick with: All the lost items, pens, keys, socks, etc., are having a party somewhere, laughing and whooping it up while you turn red-faced.

Of course, these are all just theories. They have not provided any comfort in my time of dire need, nor have they helped locate my orphan ring.

I have made phone calls, retraced my steps prior to my discovery and traversed all possible and impossible areas where they might be found.

So now I have resorted to the last possible avenue of becoming reunited with my keys.

Call me if you find any.

'C' deserves a yes vote

Ballot proposals should follow the KISS formula: Keep it short and simple.

Proposal C is no KISS. It is a referendum on the state Legislature's Public Act 143 of 1993, a revision of the auto insurance law. PA 134 is horrendously complex. Many who supported it don't fully understand it. The trial lawyers, who oppose it, understand it even less.

Proposal C aims to cut auto insurance rates by cutting the costs that drive rates up. That is a simple concept - and a good one. Proposal C deserves a YES voted on Nov. 8.

The Legislature, with heavy Republican and some Democratic support, adopted the law in mid-1993, but PA 143 has not taken effect because the Michigan Trial Lawyers Association launched a petition drive to place it before voters.

At this point, let's note that the issue isn't how many millions the insurers spent on advertising, or how many millions the trial lawyers spent, or whether hired petition circulators were used. Those counter-accusations are mud. We should concentrate on the underlying economics.

Nor is the issue insurance company "profits," as the trial lawyers allege. Most auto insurers are mutual companies owned by the policy holders, not by distant stockholders. And if profits were as humongous as the trial lawyers allege (they aren't), more companies would move into Michigan to compete for the business - the old law of supply and demand.

The truth is that insurers aren't flooding into our vacant office buildings. The profit allegation must be false.

The economics of Proposal C are sound. The act would:

- Reduce auto insurance an average of 16 percent for six months for policy holders who reduce their personal injury (medical) coverage to $1 million. A policy holder could buy up to $5 million coverage. (Currently, coverage is unlimited, with the result that rates have soared wildly. It is economically impossible for actuaries to calculate premiums when the benefits may be infinite.)

- Limit fees paid to health care providers. (As most of us know, auto injury cases are used by hospitals to subsidize other forms of care.)

- Make it tougher for uninsured drivers and at-fault drivers to sue for "pain and suffering" in the lawsuit lottery.

- Allow rate reductions for accident-free drivers.

Now, the trial lawyers will object that lower rates aren't "guaranteed" long-term. Of course not. In economics, there are no guarantees - only odds.

What Proposal C will do is curb the costs that cause higher insurance rates. It's like saying the water tank won't overflow because we're reducing the stream that flows into it. It's like saying we'll reduce forest fires by limiting the use of fire. It's like saying we'll curb flu by administering anti-flu shots. There are no guarantees. But if we act prudently, the odds are we will minimize the bad effects.

The odds are that Michigan drivers will see a drop in their insurance rates if they adopt Proposal C.

We recommend that voters play the odds on Nov. 8 and vote yes on Proposal C.

Marking system promotes mediocrity

The Northville Public Schools has taken a giant step toward mediocrity with the introduction of the new grading system. As an example, look at the paternal twins "X" and "Y."

Under the old system, there was a recognizable difference between the report cards of "X," receiving "achieving" marks in almost all of the categories and his twin brother "Y," receiving "outstanding" marks.

Under the new system, the highest level of attainment for our outstanding twin "Y" is "achieving," the same as our twin "X." However, according to Dr. McMaster, we are now to believe "that is an indication of outstanding achievement" on the part of both our twin boys. They are now identical and outstanding!

At the other end of the spectrum, our twin "X" has absolutely no idea what is going on in a class where our twin "Y" is just slightly below a satisfactory level of performance. Under the old system, twin "X" would receive an "E" grade, a definite indicator of unsatisfactory performance. Twin "Y" would receive a "D" range grade, indicating that with a little more work, a satisfactory level of performance is attainable. Under the new system, where the lowest grade each could receive is a "C" with an "N.Y." rating, the twins are once again identical, with a misleading indication of their true level of performance.

To be further misled, consider the statement by Barb Sixt, the NPS language arts resource teacher. She said, "There is nothing in the old card that is not embedded somewhere in the new card." If that were true, "outstanding," "D," and "E" would still be a part of the grading report. They are not.

Of equal concern should be the effect this has on teachers and teacher evaluations. If a teacher can no longer teach to a reportable "outstanding" level of achievement in their students, what incentive is there for them to even try? Similarly, how much less accountable is a teacher, or the administration, if the worst student performance receives no less than a "C" with an "N.Y." rating report?

Dr. McMaster also said that the new cards examine a student's behavior in much greater depth than before. According to the fall issue of the School News, 16 workshops were offered to teachers over the summer. None of the workshops dealt with the evaluation of a child's behavior.

Considering the misguided efforts of the NPS on the academic portion of the new grade reports, the area of their expertise, I fear for the children who will be mislabeled for their entire academic careers based on the observations of someone operating outside the realm of their expertise.

This change in reporting strives for nothing more than mediocrity on the part of both the students and teachers. Maybe the NPS should just realign their mission statement to their grading system:

"A district committed to mediocrity, to ensure all students demonstrate the skills, knowledge and attitudes to feel more enthusiastic about learning and hopefully become better prepared for the outside world through a partnership of staff and a complacent community in a caring, and not too mentally or emotionally challenging environment."

Support joint services request

To the Editor:

I am the director of a youth service agency located in Plymouth that operates a Youth Assistance Program. I am also a 20-year resident of Northville Township. I am supporting the joint services millage proposal, Proposal 2.

Youth Assistance programs are important local tools in addressing delinquency, especially as the Wayne County juvenile system increasingly focuses resources for delinquency in Detroit. Of greater importance, YAP functions as a deterrent to delinquency by providing preventive interventions and opportunities for young people before they become ensconced in habitual delinquency activity.

The current Wayne County juvenile justice system is geared primarily to the needs of serious offenders. The Wayne County Juvenile Court's intensive programs tend to be limited to youths committing "Class I and II" crimes, serious felonies that demand attention.

The majority of suburban youth offenses are lower-level felonies. These offenses, while serious and requiring attention by our local community standards, tend to be disregarded by the Juvenile Court, simply by virtue of the pressing nature of the serious offenses addressed in the courtroom on a daily basis. As a result, what we may deem as requiring court intervention may receive little or none at all in the formal system.

The message to a young person committing such offenses is clear; if there is no consequence for my actions, why should I change my behavior?

YAP allows the local community to address delinquent behavior it deems significant. While these offenses may be minor in the eyes of the Juvenile Court, thefts, vandalism, minor assaults, home truancy and incorrigibility are serious matters in our community.

YAP functions as a diversion program, permitting a youth to gain help in addressing aberrant behavior in lieu of what would be a perfunctory court appearance that, in all likelihood, would prescribe no consequence. YAP provides a consequence for delinquency. There is also an opportunity to rethink one's decisions and to make changes.

YAP is also a vehicle to help youths at risk for delinquent behavior. When a young person is beginning to engage in actions that concern parents, school personnel or law enforcement, YAP can become a useful tool to redirect that young person's thinking and actions. It provides a vehicle in the local community, usually involving volunteers directed by a professional staff, to aid youths lacking direction and clarity in their actions. YAP involves young people with adults interested in helping them make positive choices and participating in the mainstream.

Youth Assistance is a bargain. The cost to the homeowner is low for the services provided. I encourage my fellow residents to support Proposal 2.

Questions remain about millages

To the editor:

The editorial attempts of The Northville Record to "educate" the voters of Northville Township as to the desirability of tax proposals 1 and 2 leave several questions to be answered.

Although admitting that these proposals are an attempt to transfer the funding of certain services and programs from the general fund to the property owners of the township, you decline to rationalize the reason that only property owners are being asked to assume the entire burden.

I also do not understand how your paper can, in good conscience, support tax proposals which could have the effect of creating mini-bureaucracies within township government funded by a guaranteed source and amount of income and thus not subject to the year-to-year supervision and control presently being provided by the board of trustees, the only body which, by charter, has the authority to increase or decrease appropriations for these programs as the need arises and as funds are available.

The township charter provides for the overview and supervision of the services provided by proposals 1 and 2 by the board of trustees, who in turn are accountable to the electorate. The adoption of these proposals would effectively do away with the ability of the board to control these programs and services. Under these circumstances, the efficacy of local self-government is severely impaired.

Lastly, it must also be said that your reliance on doomsday predictions (the police department will shut down on Jan. 1; the fire department will be severely crippled, etc.) borders on the irresponsible. We all know that the services provided by these two proposals have been in existence for some time and are being paid for from the general fund and will continue to be so funded when these proposals are defeated by the property owners of the township, who, after all, are entitled to expect that their elected officials will manage the affairs of our township with due regard for the resources currently available and without raising property taxes back to their former levels.

Proposal 2 is crime prevention

To the Editor:

I am writing in support of the passage of Proposal 2 to secure continued funding for youth, senior and recreation programs in Northville Township over the next four years.

In these days of budget reductions, we often lose sight of the costs we ultimately pay when we cut programs and citizen services that appear to be non-essential. But there can be no more essential service than to care for and nurture our children and our elderly.

I have seen in my career far too many kids who have given up hope for the future. With nowhere to go and no one to care, they lash out violently against the society that has abandoned them. Rather than provide a baseball field or a recreation center, we end up providing them a lawyer and a jail cell. Not only do we fail to save taxpayer dollars, we fail to save a child.

And what message are we sending when we cut funding for seniors programs? That the elderly have outlived their usefulness? That we cannot afford them any longer? That they are expendable?

Though the services funded by Proposal 2 may not be considered essential, those they will help are.

Carr is straight shooter, level headed

Phil Power

Way back in the 1978 state Democratic primary for the U.S. Senate, I wound up finishing second in a six-man race to Carl Levin, who went on to beat Bob Griffin and is still a sitting senator from Michigan.

I have also owned newspapers around Lansing and in Livingston and Oakland counties for the time Bob Carr has represented this area in Congress. My editors and reporters have had their eye on him for years.

It's for these reasons that this column is about the Senate race between Carr and Spencer Abraham. I have direct experience both with politics at this level and with one of the candidates.

I think Carr would be a better senator than Abraham. I'm going to vote for him, and I hope this column will persuade you to do so, too.

With Bob Carr, what you see is exactly what you get.

He's smart, capable and creative.

I once talked with Carr about what to do about the Willow Run plant. Just after GM decided to close it. He had figured out how to combine the old auto plant, the airport, Eastern Michigan University and the University of Michigan-Dearborn campus into a full-blown international free trade zone. There are all too few politicians who can think this creatively about a complex problem.

Unlike many members of the Michigan congressional delegation, Carr understands that as long as the rules are the way they are, a major obligation of a representative of Michigan in Washington is to bring home the bacon.

Carr didn't mess around when he was chair of the Appropriations Subcommittee on Transportation. First he passed rules substituting long term economic merit for pure political pork. But then he found ways - within the rules - to get millions of dollars in money and thousands of jobs for Michigan.

He's independent, genuinely so, in part because his district was so evenly divided between Democrats and Republicans. He's not a knee-jerk liberal or a fake conservative.

He voted for the balanced budget amendment but against congressional pay raises, for the crime bill that included gun control that wasn't popular in chunks of his district.

At a time of political volatility and political change, having an independent thinker in power is enormously valuable.

Now Spencer Abraham, Carr's Republican opponent, is not an evil man. By all accounts from my political friends and reporters alike, he's very bright and politically able.

But all - literally all - of his political experience has been as a backroom political operative, first as the chair of the Michigan Republican Party and most recently as deputy chief of staff for Vice President Dan Quayle.

This reminds me of the famous story about Lyndon Johnson, just after he became president following Jack Kennedy's death. He was telling then-Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn about the Kennedy cabinet and how smart they were and how many advanced degrees they had. "Ain't none of 'em ever run for dog catcher," snorted Rayburn.

He's right. The experience of having to run for office, to face the public while campaigning in the flesh and then having to go on record voting yes or no is quite beyond the realities experienced by a backroom operator, no matter how clever.

That's why in this race for the U.S. Senate the choice is admirably clear. It's between a man who has a solid record of honorable and independent service for Michigan as an elected congressman and a skilled political operative.

I'm looking forward to voting for Bob Carr, and I hope you will, too.

New road tax possible if Engler's returned

By TIM RICHARD
Staff Writer

Look for Gov. John Engler to ask for more road taxes if he's elected to a second term. And expect him to oppose "parochialism" despite heavy pressures from the religious right inside his Republican Party.

"It has to be an option," Engler said when asked if he were softening his tune against tax increases. "People want high quality roads."

Michigan's fuel tax, 15 cents a gallon, hasn't changed since 1982 although other road-related fees have been raised. Although he boasts of 11 tax cuts in his first four-year term, Engler is hearing from cities, the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments and road building agencies that they need more revenue.

"We've done over 1,000 miles of road a season. That's pretty good for us - an historic high. We used to do 500 miles. We want to continue to bring road work up, not have the old peaks and valleys. And we've had a major program on building bridges.

"It wouldn't make sense to do that with an income tax. We may be bringing down the income tax some more (it was 4.6 percent and is now at 4.4 percent). With a fuel tax, we pass some of it onto tourists."

Asked how much of an increase he would advocate in his state of the state address next year, Engler said, "We've made no decisions on that."

Patrick Nowak, the former deputy Oakland County executive who heads the Michigan Department of Transportation, has been under orders during the first term to squeeze as much out of existing money as possible, privatizing some maintenance services and using federal ISTEA (intermodal surface transportation) act money. But until this point in the campaign, Engler hasn't talked about a dose of new revenue.

The gasoline tax raises $630 million a year, 10 percent for public transportation and the rest for roads. Each cent raises about $42 million. A tax on diesel fuel raises another $72 million a year.

A week earlier in a television debate, Engler had said, "We will have to look at higher fuel taxes."

GHOSTLY GUESTS

Unsolved mysteries, or are they mysteries better left unsolved?

By CAROL WORKENS
Staff Writer

House guests, errrrr ghosts.

It was shortly after Novi Police Chief Doug Shaeffer and his family moved into an old farm house that it all began. "We'd have the feeling someone was watching us," he said.

He would not disclose the location of the home, saying only that it was in the area.

Shaeffer's wife, Loretta, and their son, Matt, also experienced the eerie, spine-tingling sensation that caused them to look over their shoulders to see who was in the room with them. They'd laugh when they'd catch each other doing it, Doug said.

The history of the house had been stashed away in an old drawer. It surfaced when the Shaeffers were putting things away. The document mentioned that two young girls had died in the house during the turn of the century. One died in January and the other a few years later in February.

The house was built around 1860 and had a Michigan stone basement - very dark and damp.

"We never found a family burial plot on the property so we guessed the girls may have been buried in the basement which was common during the turn of the century," he said. "Everyone felt uneasy in the basement."

While unpacking boxes, Matt came across the family's Bible. Already beginning to suspect his family's home had permanent house guests, Matt decided the time was right to try an exorcism. Matt had just started reading the exorcism rites when a stack of boxes fell on him. So much for that strategy.

Then another phenomenon started - doorbell ringing. The house had two doorbells, one upstairs and one downstairs, but they both worked off the same circuit, which meant they rang simultaneously whenever someone was at the door pressing the button. "Sometimes the bell upstairs would ring," Shaeffer said. "Sometimes the downstairs bell would ring."

"There were times when the doorbell would ring, but no one was there," he said. During the winter, they'd look outside for footprints in the snow, but there wouldn't be any, he said.

After the Shaeffers had settled into their home, a friend came to visit. The doorbell rang, and once again, no one was at the door. Shaeffer decided to tell his guests the ghostly tales.

"One of our guests jokingly said, 'I'm just going to take the ghosts with me, and that way you won't be bothered with them any more,'" he said. "The doorbell went crazy," said Shaeffer of the continuous ringing which followed the guest's joke. "Leave our ghosts alone," Shaeffer replied to his guest. "They're friendly and they don't cause us any harm." The doorbell stopped ringing.

It was during the first visit of the Shaeffers' granddaughter, Chrissy, that the friendly ghosts decided to haunt again. "Grandma, Grandma, someone's watching me," Chrissy said as she twirled around in her chair to see who was present in the room.

"We had not told her anything," said Shaeffer. "She was aware someone was watching her."

When it was time for Chrissy to go to bed the first night, a room was all set up for her.

Although it had not been used since the Shaeffers moved into the house, Grandma and Grandpa made sure it was comfortable for their little 4-year-old guest.

"Our room was down the hall," said Shaeffer. "During the middle of the night she came running into our room screaming."

"They're talking to me," Chrissy yelled.

"What did they say?" asked Grandma.

"Two little girls were telling me to get out of their house," answered Chrissy.

The Shaeffers suspected the ghosts were related but never checked it out.

It was just after Christmas, again in the middle of the night, when Loretta had a troubling dream.

"She said her dream was about two little girls crying," explained Shaeffer. "(In the dream) my wife asked the girls why they were crying and they said it was because they hadn't been invited to Christmas."

Loretta decided to invite the girls to spend the following Christmas with the family, so she issued a verbal invitation to them while she was alone in the house one day. The plan apparently worked.

"We had a very nice Christmas with no bad dreams," Shaeffer added.

The Shaeffers moved out of the house after living there only one and a half years. While they were moving a very heavy entertainment center out of the living room, they picked it up to load it onto the truck and found two dozen Hersey kisses in silver and red foil Christmas wrapping underneath the piece of furniture.

During Christmas, a candy jar with a lid was on the coffee table filled with the same candy. Loretta noticed the jar emptying rather quickly and thought at the time the family was going through the candy pretty fast.

What makes it even more peculiar is that the entertainment center had made such a big indentation in the carpet, on all four sides, that it would have been impossible for the candies to have fallen underneath, Shaeffer said.

"The wrappers were perfectly intact," said the amazed Shaeffer. How they got under there remains a puzzle.

Shaeffer used an old Japanese saying to explain a phenomenon that occurred in their new house shortly after they moved in. The Japanese believe that if ghosts like you they will follow you when you move, he said.

"On the second day in the new house, the doorbell rang. Loretta answered the door, but no one was there. My wife told the ghosts to go home," and that was the end of that.

"We knew they weren't mean ghosts," said Shaeffer. "There were no physical attacks."

Well, of course, who's going to risk getting arrested for accosting a police officer, let alone the police chief.

Magical thinkers

Karen and Brian MacKenzie now live in a 1919 house in Novi which had changed hands several times before they moved in.

They were told a wheelchair bound, foul mouthed, bad tempered man lived in the house at one time and may have died there.

Shortly after moving in, Karen's father was spackling the stairway leading to the upstairs apartment. He left for lunch and when he returned, at the top of the stairs too high for anyone to reach, were scratch marks in the now-dry Spackle. "They were paw-type scratch marks," said Karen. "More like critter marks than human."

Another incident involved Karen, her daughter, Breanna, and Brian. The three were sitting in the front room watching coverage of an election one night when Brian left the room. He passed through a main room which separated the kitchen from the front room.

"We heard someone yell out the 'F' word," said Karen. At that instant, they both looked at each other. Breanna thought it was in response to something a candidate had said on television. Karen thought Brian had hurt himself in the kitchen. When Brian returned to the front room, Karen asked him about it. Brian explained he wasn't in the house and to this day he stands by his story, Karen said.

Another unexplained event happened very early one morning. Karen was up while everyone else was still sleeping.

"I was in the main hall watering the plants at the time when the doorbell rang," explained Karen. When she answered the door, there was no one there. They wouldn't have had time to get away and there's no mistaking the doorbell, said Karen, it's a pretty elaborate chime system.

While visiting with the previous owners of the home, Karen mentioned the unexplainable events. As the occupants of the home for 40 years beforehand, they had experienced events also.

"One day I thought she (the previous owner) said something a little strange," said Karen. "We didn't want to tell you those things," Karen said the woman told her.

"We have a Nancy Drew type of basement," said Karen. "We discovered a secret room which had been walled off."

The previous owners had told us they heard footsteps coming up the basement stairs. On one occasion the footsteps had seemed so real, the previous homeowner called her son to investigate with her. He heard them too," said Karen.

NANCY TRABIN

NYA advisor Trabin publicizes program

By DOROTHY NASH
Special Writer

Your future will soon be in the hands of the younger generation, now still in school. And Nancy Trabin is working to make it a congenial future of adults who respect one another and realize they share a common goal of living peacefully with one another.

What has Nancy Trabin been doing to accomplish this?

She has been active in Northville Youth Assistance, which provides a volunteer counselor for a young person who, in ages 7 to 17, has been referred by family, teacher, or police as needing an adult with whom to communicate and socialize on a regular basis.

Trabin has been with the program since its inception in 1987 when, as an active PTA member, she realized there was a need for youth assistance beyond what a teacher could give.

She and other like-minded adults advertised for someone to head such a program. Mary Ellen King applied and was hired.

"She is under our direction," Trabin said. "We set the guidelines, the budget, and do the basic framework. I represent the township—three of us do—and there are three from the city, plus one from the school board."

As a member of the Advisory Council for Northville Youth Assistance, Trabin also talks to community groups to publicize Northville Youth Assistance — groups like churches, PTAs, Newcomers and homeowners association.

"The community is growing," she said, and "many don't know about us, where to go for help."

Also much on the minds of the members of the Advisory Council for Northville Youth Assistance is the Nov. 8 vote on Northville Township Proposal 2.

A "yes" vote will assure continued funding for Northville Youth Assistance.

If you want to know more about Northville Youth Assistance, call Mary Ellen King at 344-1618.

the Southeast Michigan area. Ultimate Toys and Gifts will give customers a 10 percent discount on all toys donated to the program. Mailboxes Etc. will be the collection center and will pack and ship the toys to the Marine Corps Central Distribution Center in Detroit.

"We are also hoping to have Marine Reserves and possibly a live radio broadcast at both the Mailboxes and Ultimate Gifts stores on Nov. 20 during the annual Christmas Walk from noon to 5 p.m.," said Mike Ladwig, owner of Mailboxes Etc.

"All toys that are donated in Northville will go to children in Southeast Michigan. We have a goal of receiving and distributing 500 toys from the generous residents of Northville."

Magical memories

A chain lock on the basement door is evidence that it worried them enough to cause them to secure the door.

"We have a jokester ghost," said Karen. She described the feeling in the main room of her home as a positive one, somewhat spiritual because of the 17 foot high ceilings and the leaded glass windows.

GHOSTLY MEMORIES

Bruce Turnbull has many memories of growing up in Northville. "Any home that was vacant was thought to be haunted," said Turnbull.

As boys, he and his friends would play in the vacant home of Dr. John Marcus Swift at 117 Fairbrook.

"We would hear groans and moans," said Turnbull. The home was built around 1860 and had a mineral spring in the basement, which is where Dr. Swift was said to have shaved.

Another vacant house was the home up on the hill by the fish hatchery.

One pond at the fish hatchery froze over during the winter and the children would go over there to skate, but no one ever went up to the house. Everyone was too scared to even go near that house, explained Turnbull.

One day the house burned to the ground. "All the ghosts and spirits went up in smoke," said Turnbull. "People came from miles around to see it burn." They all felt a little safer skating after that, he said.

Charles Bishop and I used to go into the old opera house after it closed, said Turnbull. The way the floors would creak, they were sure someone was in there with them.

Combustible elements

Stallone and Stone team to make an explosive combination in 'The Specialist'

Two of the world's most incendiary stars, Sylvester Stallone and Sharon Stone, are teamed for the first time in "The Specialist."

In an ever-tightening circle of intrigue and betrayal, an explosives expert and an alluring beauty face a trio of relentless opponents, a powerful Cuban-American crime boss, his arrogant son and their renegade hit man. In the sultry tropical heat of Miami, these combustible elements ignite in a suspenseful struggle between quick-witted survival and an obsession for revenge.

Since 1976 when his portrayal of up-from-the-streets Rocky Balboa led the box office and earned an Academy Award for Best Picture, Sylvester Stallone's films have amassed nearly $1 billion at the box office around the world.

Sharon Stone followed the international success of "Total Recall" with the daring "Basic Instinct," which both broke the $100,000 million barrier.

In "The Specialist," explosives specialist Ray Quick (Stallone) is lured from his solitude into the world of May Munro (Stone). May has nurtured a lust for revenge against her parents' murderers since she was a young girl, and it has now come time for them to pay.

With her seductive wiles, May infiltrates the criminal Leon family, led by Joe (Rod Steiger), who ordered her parents murdered years ago, and his swaggering heir apparent, Tomas (Eric Roberts). As the danger rises, Ray begins helping May dispose of the assailants, one detonation at a time.

Killer-for-hire Ned Trent (James Woods) has also ingratiated himself with the Leons and threatens to expose the truth about May's past...and to lure his ex-partner, Ray, into an explosive confrontation. May's web of deceit threatens to spin out of control as her lies compound upon one another. As time runs out, Ray is pulled further into May's obsession. Is she falling for him? Or trapping him?

Directed by Luis Llosa, "The Specialist" features a supporting cast of three highly esteemed and dynamic actors—James Woods, Rod Steiger and Eric Roberts, who boast six Academy Award nominations between them. The villainous trio of characters spark the fiery action and growing passion between the leads. All are trapped in a heated race between May's long-deferred revenge, now realized with Ray's deadly skill, and three unforgiving criminals who will stop at nothing to stay alive.

For Stallone, "The Specialist" offered a longed-for opportunity to return to the characters of his earlier career, without abandoning the action genre that has made him a star.

The character of explosives specialist Ray Quick is a man haunted by his conscience and the knowledge that the skill he has mastered is a deadly one. "My character is one who's serpentine, smooth, quiet, almost romantic in a sense. This film is one of deep, deep emotion. The whole film deals with passion and heat and involvement. Despite the action, it's very visceral and very internal."

Sharon Stone sees "The Specialist" as a two-boxes-of-popcorn movie. "The picture is both mysterious and an action movie at the same time. It's visually extraordinary," she said.

Stone continues her tradition of playing headstrong, driven women with May Munro, whose motivation for seeking revenge stems from a childhood devastated by tragedy. "She's driven by a thing that damaged her so much when she was a child," she said. "She then spends the rest of her life trying to straighten it out. What starts to balance her is Sly's character, someone else who's in a similar position. And she starts to recognize for the first time that maybe she's not alone."

Explosives expert Ray Quick (Sylvester Stallone) and sultry May Munro (Sharon Stone) become involved in 'The Specialist.'

Stone was intrigued by the complicated layers of lies that May must create to maintain her deceit in setting up the men responsible for her parents' murders. "She just lies to everybody throughout the entire movie, and that constant deception forced her into a corner," Stone explained. "While (Woods' character) is trying to kill May, she's still trying to explain how everything is perfect and she's on his side. It's an interesting balance to strike."

Reader review: 'Little Big League'

LITTLE BIG LEAGUE
By Heather Wadowski
Northville

If you want to feel like you are at a ball game without actually being there, see the family hit "Little Big League." Kids and adults will love it, whether you're a fan of baseball or not.

Eleven-year-old Billy lived life like a normal kid until his grandfather (who owned the Minnesota Twins) dies. In his will, he leaves Billy the Twins and the stadium, and when Billy fires the Twins' manager, he realizes no one wants to work for a kid...and no one knows the Twins better than Billy. So Billy decides to manage the Twins.

And that's when the trouble begins.

First the Twins decide to make Billy look bad, but after they win a few games, they respect Billy. Then one of the players, Lou, starts dating Billy's mom, which makes Billy mad. Between that and all the fame going to Billy's head, Billy soon pushes the Twins too far...along with his mom and his friends. Now he's tired of being a grownup...but is it too late to go back to being a kid?

This movie deserves four stars on a scale of one to five. Not only does it make you feel like you are at a ball game, but it makes you feel good.

Mustang rally falls short

John Glenn holds off late Northville
charge 20-14

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

Spotting a team like Westland John Glenn 20 points isn't a good way to win a football game.

But that's what Northville High did Friday night in a WIAA home crossover contest. The Mustangs made a strong comeback in the second half.

But John Glenn intercepted a Shaun Connolly pass late in the fourth quarter, at its own 14-yard line, and hung on for a 20-14 win.

"We started poorly and finished strong," said coach Darrel Schumacher. "We didn't play in sync in the first half."

The game was for third place in the Western Lakes Activities Association. Northville stands at 4-4 going into tomorrow night's season finale with Jug rival Novi.

This will be the first time in three years that the Mustangs have missed the playoffs.

"We've been able to make the playoffs quite a bit," Schumacher said. "But not this year."

Friday's game started slowly for Northville and went downhill. The Mustangs forced John Glenn to punt on its first possession, but then went three plays and out on its first drive.

Westland got its offense going the second time around.

The Rockets started out on their own 32-yard line. Westland moved 12 yards on first down with a pass.

Brent Washington then sprinted 56 yards for John Glenn's first score. Schumacher said the last thing he wanted was to fall behind the visitors.

"We felt we had to control the ball and keep them off the scoreboard," he commented.

The Mustangs just couldn't get untracked on offense and were unable to get a first down after taking the kickoff. Schumacher said he knew it would be difficult to run on the Rockets.

"We thought we had to be able to pass to beat them," he said. "That was going to be the only place where we'd have success."

Westland had no trouble moving. The Rockets made it 14-0 at the 1:18 mark of the first quarter, in fact, by scoring on their next possession.

John Glenn started that drive with great field position at Northville's 37-yard line. They scored a few plays later on a nine-yard pass to Jerry Farrar.

The Mustangs' defense stiffened in the second quarter but did surrender Westland's final score just before halftime. Washington scored on a one-yard run to make it 20-0.

About the only bright spot of the half was the fact that Chris Gomersall blocked the extra point.

"We thought that was a big play," Schumacher said.

Getting back into the ball game came down to pretty simple turns, according to the coach.

"We had to start executing," said Schumacher. "We were not wrapping up (tackles) and not hitting."

"We were looking down the barrel of a blowout if we didn't get it going in a hurry."

And that's exactly what the Mustangs did in the third quarter.

Northville took the ball to start the half at its own 36-yard line. On second down, Connolly hit Todd Zayti for a 61-yard pass to Westland's 13.

A Mustang penalty then brought the ball back to the 22-yard line. Connolly heated up and hit running back Tim Smith for a 15-yard pass and then a 7-yard touchdown toss. The lead was cut to 20-7 with 9:41 to go in the quarter.

"We felt we had to score quick and get back in the game," Schumacher said.

Anell Kersey made a big defensive play to keep his team in the game. John Glenn drove to Northville's 16 where Kersey, who's been nursing a sore knee, caused a fumble. Carl Tune recovered for the Mustangs.

Northville wasn't able to cut into the lead any further until the fourth.

With nine minutes to go in the game, the Mustangs took the ball in good field position thanks to a 41 yard punt return by Trevor Surdu. The senior brought the ball inside of John Glenn's five, but a clipping call brought it back to the 38.

Northville, nonetheless, scored as Zayti rumbled in from a yard out. The Mustangs had all the momentum in the game and forced Westland to punt on its next possession.

"We had 'em," Schumacher said. "The feeling on the sideline was that we were in control. We felt good about our position."

Northville started its final drive at its own 40-yard line. After moving down the field, the Mustangs faced a third down situation. Connolly threw the ball over the middle, but it was intercepted.

The visitors simply ran out the clock. Schumacher was disappointed with the loss but pleased with the effort of his troops.

"I'm very proud of the way the kids played," he said.

Samantha Leger, seen here earlier this season, scored 22 points against Novi Saturday night.

five points and Lindsay Drury three.

"I thought we'd have to move the ball well around the perimeter and make our shots," he said. "We had to be on to keep up with them."

Cichonski said his team executed well in the first quarter.

"We moved the ball well against the zone," he added. "We got good looks at the basket and took advantage of that."

Running Back

Normally a strength for both teams, it could come down to a battle of reserves. Northville star Anell Kersey returned from injury last week against Westland John Glenn, but was less than 100 percent. Chris Gomersall and Tim Smith have done a good job filling in for him while Todd Zayti has developed into a pass catching threat. The Mustangs clearly aren't the same without Kersey, however. Novi, on the other hand, has relied heavily Jason Witherspoon. The sophomore has racked up nearly 1,000 yards but is questionable for tomorrow night's game because of a twisted knee he suffered against Howell. If Witherspoon can't go it'll be running back by committee with Jim Harrington, Mark McBride, Brandon Spence and Mark Lesperance splitting the duties.

ADVANTAGE: NORTHVILLE

Quarterback

Signal callers Jon Wroe of Novi and Shaun Connolly of Northville offer their teams different strengths. Wroe has proven he can run the option very effectively but has had trouble completing passes. Connolly hasn't shown a great deal of mobility but has hit on several big pass plays. The fewest mistakes here will go a long way into determining the Jug winner.

ADVANTAGE: NOVI

Wide Receiver

Connolly has a lot of weapons at his disposal. Eric Moore, Trevor Surdu, Jason Wenzel (tight end) and Zayti, out of the backfield, are all capable. Northville has had most of its success on short routes over the middle or in seam areas. Jason Callender, Derek Wladischkin, Erich Kelly and Pat Dunn head the Wildcat receiving corps. Wroe has caught a few pass himself when Wladischkin steps in at QB.

ADVANTAGE: NORTHVILLE

Offensive Line

The Mustangs present a good balance in size here with only one starter under 200 pounds. Tackle Nick Bowersox has been an anchor while Mike O'Brian, Ryan Howe, Mattis Kukainis and James Holman have improved greatly over the season. Novi has tremendous size at its tackles with Sevy Martin (6-foot-8, 295 pounds) and Jason Clemens (5-foot-11, 280). Tough guys Jason Wigley and James Cini are at guards while Tony Macioci has done a good job at center since coming up from junior varsity. The Wildcats have been very good at times and no so hot at others.

ADVANTAGE: EVEN

Defensive Line

Lesperance has been dominant for Novi all season. Not blessed with great size at 5-foot-6 and 160, the senior makes up for it in superior technique, quickness and strength. Mark McBride, Craig Walega have had their moments. Mike and Joe Scappaticci are mainstays on Northville's line. Bowersox does double duty as a tackle.

ADVANTAGE: NOVI

Linebacker

The Mustangs' defensive strength is in their linebackers. Garrett Carter, a junior, has been all over the field nearly every game while John Matthews has been solid on the outside. Kukainis provides an excellent outside rush and Smith has been steady. Eric Hoffman, Mike Sill, Matt Buck and Harrington are an aggressive group that have big play potential.

ADVANTAGE: NORTHVILLE

Defensive Back

Novi has just two spots in the backfield settled with Wroe and Mike Hicks. Henry Griffin, Chad Dicken, Witherspoon and Spence will see action if healthy. Northville will feature Moore, Zayti, Carl Tune and Nate Forney. Tune has been the best of that group week in and week out.

ADVANTAGE: EVEN

Special Teams

Unlike years past, Novi and Northville each have a field goal kicking threat. Joe Scappaticci has been perfect in five attempts, including a 46-yarder, while Wroe has booted a pair for the Wildcats. Punting has been so-so for both teams while coverage has generally been decent for both sides.

ADVANTAGE:

NORTHVILLE

An Analysis

The key to this game is Witherspoon's health. With him running at full speed the Wildcats are dangerous offensively. Teams have keyed so much on the sophomore that it's helped to open lanes for Wroe on the option. Novi hasn't shown it could move the ball or score with an frequency without Witherspoon. Northville has adapted to Kersey's absence. If the junior is able to play up to his old standards, the Mustangs will give Novi a lot of grief. It's important to note that both teams have made solid improvement over the year. They've each faced bigger and more skilled opponents and either won or give a good account of themselves. The Mustangs hold on to the Jug.

Tankers sink Livonia Franklin in dual meet

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

There isn't much solace in defeating a weak rival.

But you might say that the Mustang swim took care of business Thursday in whipping Livonia Franklin 141-46 on the road. Northville High coach Bill Dicks said the Patriots are struggling just to stay afloat.

"They have a very small team," he said. "They were unable to fill all of the events."

Franklin has just 15 members on its team - a far cry from the multitudes that swim for cross-town and state power Livonia Stevenson.

"They've been down for awhile," Dicks said.

Northville seems to be coming out of the malaise that has affected them all season. The Mustangs posted 28 season best swims.

"We got some good swims from kids that have been flat all season," said Dicks.

The meet also gave the coach a chance to change his lineup a bit and get some experience for other swimmers. Northville, as you might expect, dominated every event.

The team of Rebecca Anderson, Owen Osborne, Beth Handley and Katie Rempel was first in the 200-yard medley relay. Amy Cook, Jill Walro, Kara Lyczak and Margaret Lapham were second while Jenny Taylor, Alice Callan, Mary Essary and Sarah Heckemeyer were fourth.

Amy Kohl finished first in the 200-yard freestyle relay in 2:05. Alicia Doehler was second with her personal best of 2:24.03. Katie Varley was fourth.

VanHorn won the 200-yard IM while Lyczak was second and Osborne fourth. Andrea Moretti RUNNING STAR: Northville resident Joe Leo continues his success in cross country. A junior at Detroit Catholic Central, Leo was crowned league champ last weekend. He won the race with an outstanding time of 16:17.

Leo made all-state as a sophomore last fall. He appears on that track again with his success over the weekend and this season. He's won three other invitational races and a number of dual meet races for the Shamrockers.

Leo will participate in state regional competition Saturday at Marshall Park in West Bloomfield. Northville High will run there as well.

COLLEGE NOTES: Former Mustang Laura Whitely is a returning two-time letter winner on Kalamazoo's soccer team.

Brian DeAlexandris, a Northville High graduate, earned first team MIAA honors for the Albion golf team this fall. He averaged 75.7 strokes per 18 holes.

Wendy Carroll, also a Mustang alumnus, has two assists for the Hope College soccer team this fall.

COLTS: The Northville/Novi Colts played the Belleville Cougars on Oct. 23 at Belleville with the freshman squad tying 6-6 and JV falling 20-0. The varsity game was called off due to insufficient numbers.

Mustang coach Gary Schwan said Novi's offensive patience bothered his team.

"We have a hard time if the other team doesn't attack," he said.

Northville roared back in the second. Samantha Leger, who scored 22 in the game, led the charge for the Mustangs with a pair of three-pointers.

"Leger put on a show," said Schwan.

Fouls started to affect Novi in the second quarter. Kearney had to sit down with her third foul as did Barton.

Nisha Shah and Melissa Strikulis came off the bench to do a nice job for Novi. But the Mustangs were able to take a two-point halftime lead.

Novi's offense fell apart in the third quarter, scoring just four points.

"We had open shots but couldn't hit them," said Cichonski.

Six of Northville's 10 points in the period came on free throws.

The Wildcats fought back in the fourth quarter by getting the lead down to four points. Cichonski posted Edwards and the senior responded with seven points in the frame.

Northville held off the comeback, though. Schwan said his team was able to wear Novi down by the end of the game.

"I thought they got a little tired," he added.

Freshman Lauren Mettjaj scored 10 points for Northville.

FARMINGTON HILLS HARRISON 57, NORTHVILLE 50

The Mustangs dropped one of the best games of the WIAA season at home Thursday. Schwan likened it to a track meet.

"The game was fast throughout," he said. "It was incredible."

Both offenses heated up in the second quarter. Down 10-7 after one, Northville led 27-25 by halftime. The Mustangs maintained a six-point lead going into the fourth quarter.

Harrison went crazy in the final period.

"They hit 13 triples in the game," said Schwan. "Four in the fourth."

Harrison's Krista Snow and Kelly Lacoss were two with hot hands in the fourth. Snow, who finished with 18 points, had nine in the final period while her teammate had 11.

"It was a very streaky game," said Schwan.

Mettjaj led Northville with 20 points while Leger had 19.

November is health month in Novi

By CINDY STEWART
Special Writer

Do you know what your cholesterol level is? How do you relieve stress? When was the last time you took a walk just for the health of it?

Many people are getting more health conscious these days, exercising, eating right and taking care of themselves. And the more information they have, the better informed they are.

The City of Novi, through Parks and Recreation, has always offered classes, programs and activities for the entire family along the lines of fitness, sports and exercise. We believe in good health and are proud to be a part of "Focus Health Week in Novi," proclaimed by the Mayor and City Council for Tuesday, Nov. 1, through Monday, Nov. 7.

Members of the Novi Chamber of Commerce and many other Civic Organizations will be joining together to provide a week's worth of activities, events and displays in the Novi Civic Center and throughout the community. Each day celebrates a different theme encouraging health lifestyles for people of all ages working and living in Novi.

Tuesday, Nov. 1, celebrates Nutrition Awareness. Everyone loves to eat, but the secret is learning how to do it right. Stop by the Civic Center from 9 a.m. to noon for nutrition literature, samples and coupons provided by Providence Hospital and Medical Center. Cholesterol screenings are available free to the first 75 participants starting at 9:30 a.m. and body fat composition screenings will take place from 2 to 5 p.m.

Want to learn more? Attend lectures including "Reducing Your Cholesterol to Reduce Your Cardiac Risk," "Fat Content of Food," and "1994 Nutrition Recommendations for the Diabetic."

You can also stop by Diamond Jim Brady's at the Novi Town Center for a cooking demonstration of nutritious recipes that taste good done by Chef Mary Brady. Call 477-6100 to register.

Wednesday, Nov. 2, will focus on stress and leisure. Learn how to alleviate stress by attending either the business breakfast or business mixer at Portable Spas Plus on Grand River. Call 474-9600 to reserve space.

Thursday, Nov. 3, will concentrate on exercise and activity with a lecture at the Civic Center on "Arthritis and Exercise," at 10:30 a.m. and 1 p.m., or "Sports Injury and Prevention for Youth Coaches" at 7 p.m. Tired of sitting? Take a healthy Novi walk, enjoy the autumn air and walk the grounds of the Novi Civic Center at 11:45 a.m. Have any little ones at home? The Little Gym on Beck Road is bringing an introductory exercise class for 3-6 year olds to the Civic Center at 1 p.m. Call 624-1020 to reserve your spot.

Baby teeth are important in dental health

Dr. Kathryn Hoppe, D.D.S.

One may often hear the myth that baby teeth aren't important because they are eventually lost. This is not true.

Baby teeth (primary teeth) play a major role in determining a child's future dental health. The baby teeth reserve space for permanent teeth and also serve as a sort of guide for permanent teeth when they are ready to erupt into position.

Primary teeth also perform important functions in speech development, by helping a child make sounds and form words; and in appearance by maintaining the shape of the mouth and face.

Premature loss of one or more baby teeth can cause permanent teeth to grow put crooked, crowded or unevenly spaced. Small plastic or metal devices called space maintainers can do the work for the missing baby tooth by holding the space open for the permanent tooth until it is ready to come in.

The permanent tooth should erupt between 6 and 12 years of age. In the meantime, the space maintainer will keep the nearby teeth from drifting into the vacant spot. If space maintainers aren't placed by a dentist soon after the baby tooth is lost or removed, the child may need orthodontic treatment later to correct the damage.

A major cause of primary tooth loss is severe dental decay, as a result of "nursing-bottle" mouth. The condition occurs when a child is allowed to suck on a bottle of fruit juice, formula or milk for prolonged periods of time (usually during daytime naps or at bedtime).

The sugars in these liquids mix with plaque, a colorless film of oral bacteria, to produce acids that attack tooth enamel. The longer the sugary liquids are on the teeth, the longer the acids remains, resulting in rampant tooth decay.

To prevent nursing bottle mouth, fill the child's nap time or bedtime bottle with water. Milk also can be harmful to teeth if allowed to linger in the mouth because it contains a sugar called lactose. After feedings, it is a good idea to clean the very young child's teeth and gums with a damp or cotton gauze pad.

Remember also, if your child should accidentally lose a tooth, professional help is available - help that can have long-lasting dental health benefits and prevent the need for more costly, complex treatment later in the child's life.

Dr. Kathryn Hoppe has a dental practice in the Novi Professional Village, located at 23985 Novi Road, Suite B103, (810) 348-5151. This column is coordinated by Peg Campbell of the U-M Health Centers.

Marathoning can be fun for a lifetime

Barry Franklin

I first met Sy Mah, "Mr. Marathon," in 1979 when he came to see the cardiovascular fitness laboratory where I worked in Cleveland. After that, I followed his marathoning accomplishments with awe and admiration.

Every so often I'd bump into Sy at a race, a running clinic or other physical fitness event. Once in a while, I'd call him to learn of his latest running feat.

I saw him at a marathon in the mid-1980s and recall reading the back of his T-shirt: "Hi, I'm Sy, say hi if you run by." It typified his zeal for distance running and the camaraderie that goes with it.

"Running is the best medicine around," said Sy.

A family history of high blood pressure led him to complete his first 26.2 mile race in 1967. He avoided doctors, hospitals and regular medical checkups. He continued his running program even when he had a cold or the flu. It was as if he believed his running made him immune from death and disease.

Sy's unbelievable accomplishments over the years were highlighted in newspapers, health-fitness journals and numerous running magazines. He often would run two marathons a weekend, finishing one, jumping into his car and driving to another. Sometimes he would break up his weekend with a marathon on Saturday and a triathlon, for good measure, on Sunday.

His feats seemed beyond those of mortal men. "There weren't too many marathons when I started running," Sy said in one interview. "Now I can't imagine a time when I won't run 40 a year." Some called it "marathon madness."

I have often asked myself, "How does Sy Mah survive this constant physical beating?" One secret: Run steadily. "I'm a great believer in even pacing," he said.

In 1988 I read that Sy Mah had made the "Guinness Book of World Records" with 500-plus marathons, including 20 Bostons, eight New Yorks and eight Chicagos. Since it has been some time since we last talked, I decided to give "superman" a call. I phoned the University of Toledo, where he served as an instructor in the Department of Health and Physical Education.

"Hi, is Sy there?" I asked.

"Long pause. 'I'm sorry, sir, but Sy died on Nov. 7,' the secretary replied.

I couldn't believe my ears. "Are you sure we're talking about the same person — Sy Mah, the famous marathon runner?" I asked, shaken.

"Sy became ill shortly after running a marathon in Mexico in late summer. He initially thought it was due to the water he drank during the race. Unfortunately, he went downhill quickly thereafter. Although he continued to run, he was unable to finish races and became weaker and weaker. Finally, he decided to seek medical help, but it was too late. The doctors said he died of a blood disorder, perhaps a form of hepatitis or cancer."

It's still so hard for me to believe Sy Mah is gone. He was only 62 years old.

Netters close season at regional tourney

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

Northville High's tennis season came to a close Oct. 14 without any Mustangs advancing from state regional competition.

The doubles squad of Lisa Cousineau and Shelley Morgan had the best showing at the tournament held in Farmington. The duo made it all the way to finals before falling.

Coach Uta Filkin wasn't surprised that her team didn't advance. She said the Mustangs were drained after the conference meet earlier in the week.

"I think we were a bit tired," she said.

The state tournament concluded over the weekend. Okemos, a suburb of Lansing, retained its Class A title by defeating Ann Arbor Pioneer.

As for the regional, Filkin was impressed with how smoothly it went. It was the Farmington schools first time as host.

"It was the first regional that was finished (in one day)," she said. "It really went well."

If things had just gone a little better on the courts for Northville.

At any rate, the Mustangs' Jackie Moore lived up to her No. 4 seed at first singles. She won her first round match in two sets over a North Farmington opponent, then fell to top seed Becky Moore of Bloomfield Hills Lahser.

Freshman Kristin Smith was unseeded at No. 2 singles. She had a three set win to open the tournament but fell to Laura Jones of North Farmington 6-0, 6-0 in round two.

Aubrey Macfarlane met a similar fate. She won her first match at third singles then fell to the flight's No. 1 seed in the second round.

Co-captain Chrissy Kapusky was knocked from the tournament in the first round. North Farmington's Amy Marks beat her in three sets, 1-6, 6-4, 6-1.

Mary McDonald and Jennifer Moak made it to semi-finals at first doubles. The duo won in straight sets in their first two matches then lost to WLAAs Sarah Klosterman and Cheryl Wolf of Farmington Hills Harrison 6-0, 7-5.

Kyley Mills, Northville's other co-captain, and Meghan Connery were rated second in their flight. They made it to the semi-finals before losing to North Farmington's Heather Cornwall and Renee Ovellette in three sets.

"They were very boisterous," Filkin said of the Raider duo. "(Mills and Connery) let it get to them."

At third doubles, Cousineau and Morgan were seeded second. They drew a first round bye then whipped a team from Milford 6-0, 6-1. Morgan and Cousineau then took a three set win over a West Bloomfield team before falling in the final to Lahser.

WLAAs
The news was much better Oct. 11 at the conference meet.

Northville finished in third place with 15 points. Livonia Stevenson took the WLAAs championship with 19 points while Farmington and Walled Lake Central tied with 17.

The tournament marked the first time all season that Northville had a full lineup. Injuries and illness plagued the Mustangs all season.

"I knew I had a good enough

Shelley Morgan and doubles partner Lisa Cousineau made it to the regional final before losing.

team to (finish high)," Filkin said.

While the Mustangs didn't have any league champs they did have a number of good performances. None more so than Mills and Connery.

Seeded third, the duo won a pair of matches to advance to finals. That last match went to three sets, all tie-breakers, in dropping the final.

"It was the most incredible match of the season," said Filkin.

Moore made it to semi-finals.

The sophomore was seeded fourth, beat Allison Walken of North Farmington in round two then fell to top ranked Jenny Clack of Salem in the semi.

Smith made it to the second round before falling at No. 2 singles. Macfarlane and Kapusky lost in the first round.

Doubles, on the whole, were more successful than the singles.

McDonald and Moak were ranked third at first doubles. They made it to semi-final where Klosterman and Wolf defeated them in two sets.

Cousineau and Morgan were finalists at third doubles. Meghan McGlinch and Carol Mizzi beat the Mustang duo 6-4, 6-4.

Sarah Johnson and Amanda Nelson went all the way to the finals, too. Seeded second, they drew a first round bye then took two straight wins. They fell to Lindsey Phiefer and Anita Plante in the final.

Runners compete at WLAA final

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

The Mustang girls cross country team closed the regular season Saturday.

Northville High placed ninth out of the 12 Western Lakes Activities Association schools with 244 points. Livonia Stevenson was crowned league champ with 43 points while Farmington was second with 65 and Salem third at 85.

The Mustangs had just one runner in the top 25 Saturday at Cass Benton Park in Northville. Senior Adrienne Browne earned all-WLAA honors by taking sixth overall in 20:23.

Stevenson's Kelly Travis was the overall winner. She finished the 5,000-meter course in 18:58. Allison Noe of Farmington Hills Harrison was a distant second in 19:33.

Northville will complete its season Saturday in state regional competition at Marshbank Park in West Bloomfield. The top three teams will advance from the field to state finals.

The top 10 runners who aren't on one of the advancing teams will also move on.

Mustang coach Chris Cronin said Stevenson, Novi and Canton have to be the favorites to advance. He likes the chances of Browne to move on as well.

"If she runs her race and stays focused," Cronin said, "she's put herself in position to go to state with her hard work all season."

The coach is hoping all of his seniors have good days Saturday. He said a few of them may have a chance to go to state, too.

"Laura Brown is running as well as she ever has," Cronin said.

CANTON 22, NORTHVILLE 45

The Mustangs closed their dual meet season on the road Oct. 18.

Canton, which finished fourth at the league meet, simply had too much. Northville did, however, wind up with a 4-2 division mark.

Browne was Northville's top finisher at second overall in 20:49. Erin Tovey was sixth in 22:48. Brown had a time of 23:04. Kajal Parikh 24:24 and Kathryn Mittman 25:03.

Mustangs finish eighth at WLAA x-country meet

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

It's almost unjust that Northville High finished eighth in the boys cross country conference meet Saturday.

That's after you consider the fact that a majority of Mustang runners posted their best times of the season. According to coach Ed Gabrys, his team met all of its goals over the weekend.

"Our objective was to get the top three in under 17:40," he said, "and get a closer in under 18:30."

While the Mustangs responded well to their coach's wishes, it wasn't enough to stay out of the Western Lakes Activities Association bottom half.

Canton took the league championship with 90 points while Walled Lake Central was second with 109. North Farmington placed third.

Northville went into the race at less than 100 percent. Nate Kirmis, who has been a top runner the past few years, had to sit out with knee problems.

Gabrys said even with a healthy Kirmis it would've been tough to break into the upper division.

"Everyone would've had to run their best," he added.

Salem, Livonia Stevenson, Walled Lake Western and Farmington Hills Harrison finished ahead of Northville. Gabrys was proud of the effort his group gave Saturday.

"The kids did run very well," he said.

Dwight VanTuyt earned All-Division honors. He was 20th overall with his personal best time of 17:26.

Scott Lloyd was 22nd as he eclipsed his previous best by nine seconds with a 17:33. Jeff Zwiesler was 25th in 17:40. Tim Schovers finished in 18:27. Sean Hollister in 18:28. Ravi Mujumdar in 19:21 and John Julow in 20:00.

"We had a great day," Gabrys said. "Each kid cut 13 to 30 seconds off their best times."

The regular season is now complete for the Mustangs. They'll run in state regional competition Saturday at Marshbank Park in West Bloomfield.

The top three teams advance from the regional to state finals. While Northville probably doesn't have a realistic shot at going, it does have several runners that could qualify individually. Gabrys said his top four or five have a shot at going.

High-tech creating changes in the appraisal industry

By James M. Woodard
Copley News Service

New, high-tech methods for appraising homes and other real property could soon create major changes in the appraising industry. That could be good or bad for consumers.

It could result in faster and less costly appraisals for property buyers and sellers who must wait for an appraisal report before closing their purchase transaction. Or it could easily slip into a situation where inaccurate data is used in determining a property's value. And that could cause serious problems for everyone, including the appraiser.

"We use our computers to tap into a variety of data bases when researching a project," said Dan

The Wester's entry is lofty and practical

By James McAlexander
Copley News Service

Tiled or brick, the Wester's odd-angled entry is lofty, practical and appealing. Muddy footwear won't do any damage here that can't be easily remedied. A large coat closet is but the first example of the generous storage space found throughout.

Tile flows around and past the closet on two sides, extending into both the living room and the family kitchen in the form of twin hearths for the see-through fireplace. Vaulted ceilings create a sense of openness in the entry, all of the central living areas and the master suite.

Dining room and living room flow together and are richly illuminated by natural light that floods in through front walls that are more glass than anything. A wide bay expands the living room.

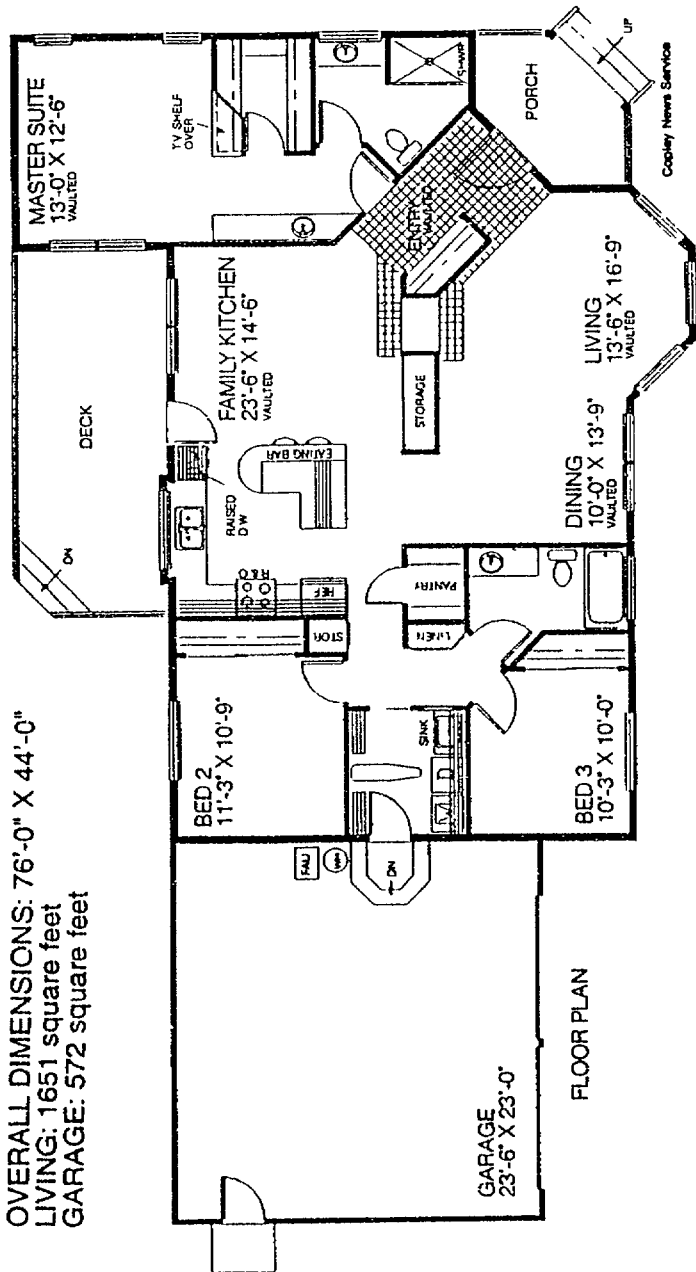

But the family kitchen is the heart of the home. Most of the time, family and friends will congregate there, rather than in the more formal rooms. A combination work island and raised eating bar adds counter space, increases storage capacity and serves as a natural place to lean your elbows while chatting with the cook.

Windows rim most of the rear wall, facing onto a railed deck. African violets and other small tropical plants thrive in the garden window in front of the kitchen sink. Built-in appliances include range and oven, along with a dishwasher that's raised to cut down on back strain. A large walk-in pantry provides plenty of space for families that like to keep a good stock of staple food supplies on hand.

Another long closet, for brooms and the like, separates the informal living area from the formal. A linen closet and a small storage closet line the hallway that leads to the secondary bedrooms and the pass-through utility room. Yet more cabinets are in the utility room, along with a deep sink and pull-down ironing board.

Luxury amenities in the master suite include a large walk-in closet, a TV shelf over the closet, and a second lavatory set in a long vanity outside the enclosed bathroom.

SHAWL THAT SHRUB

Are you one of those people who think that the winter is especially tough on you? Then imagine how tough it is on your plants, trees and shrubs? So, just like you might don a parka and a scarf when Old Man Winter starts to howl, you should do the same for your yard as the winter approaches.

Virtually all plant life feels the effect of dipping temperatures, but few more so than evergreens. That's because their foliage is always green, leaving it prone to damaged from wind, ice and the build up of snow on branches. Further, evergreens desiccate, or sweat moisture, all year long. As a result, their roots must reach deep into the soil to replenish the moisture they've lost. Should the soil around the root system freeze, there would be no moisture to be absorbed. In short order, their foliage will turn brown and quite possibly die.

Luckily, not all shrubs, trees and plants are as susceptible to cold conditions as evergreens. Still, branches and leaves can still be harmed by the wind and even snapped by the weight of accumulated snow and ice. As soil freezes and heaves, meaning that it actually shifts as it expands, roots can be snapped part, thereby killing the plant. According to the professionals, there are a number of new products designed to protect landscaping from the wrath of Old Man Winter.

Antitranspirant Sprays

Also known as antidesiccants, antitranspirant sprays coat the stems and leaves of evergreens, shrubs and young trees with a protective film that holds in moisture, shields plants from drying winter winds and sudden drops in temperature. These sprays are an inexpensive and easy way to seal and preserve the foliage of the plant. They can also be used in the spring and summer to protect plants from drought and heat.

A thorough application before the first frost of the fall should last for three months. Ice and snow, however, can wash away the protective emulsion coat, so re-spray plants throughout the winter. There's no need to worry about about harmful environmental side effects as most antitranspirants, according to the manufacturers, are non toxic and biodegradable.

Landscape fabrics

While antitranspirant sprays protect the foliage of plants, how does the average homeowner protect their plants' roots and soil from the ravages of winter? The answer, according to a growing number of gardeners, is landscape fabrics.

Also known as geotextiles, landscape fabrics eliminate the need for using ripped sheets of black plastic to stop weeds and help keep the soil warm. While plastic blocks weeds, it's also impermeable, meaning that the air, moisture and vital nutrients roots need in order for plants to survive can't pass through. Further, bark or mulch laid atop black plastic tends to float away come spring and summer as snow melts and the rains come. Even worse, water trapped beneath black plastic can't evaporate and eventually sours the soil putting the plant life at risk.

A strong, synthetic fabric with thousands of micro-funnels, landscape fabric permits air and water to pass through while simultaneously blocking out the sunlight that weeds need to thrive. Landscape fabrics also reduce the amount of water lost to evaporation and help keep the soil warm, making it more difficult for the soil to freeze over. Inexpensive and easy to use, landscape fabric can be applied quickly and simply by laying overlapping strips of fabric atop the prepared area, or it necessary over existing shrubs and plants. Using a pair of scissors or a knife, cut Xs or holes into the material in the appropriate spots and pull it down around the plant, pushing the loose flaps of fabric back under the plant. The fabric will last for years, continually working to block unwanted weeds.

Once the landscape fabric is in place, consider adding a two-to three-inch layer of a mulch such as pine needles, wood chips or shredded leaves around you plants. This not only gives the landscape a handsome, groomed appearance, but it extends the life of the fabric indefinitely and will act like a blanket, serve as an extra layer keeping soil and roots moist and warm.

Remember, the coming winter doesn't have to harm your plants. Taking advantage of favorable fall climates to protect trees, plants and shrubs with antitranspirant spray and landscape fabric now will ensure thriving trees, beautifully blooming plants and super-looking shrubs this spring.

Bring your garden indoors

GARDENING

Each year as the days grow shorter and nights get cooler, it signals the beginning of autumn. Actually, it's the busiest season of all.

Even as you continue to harvest your late-summer vegetables such as beets, carrots, onions, chard, horseradish and string beans, you must start thinking about garden cleanup for winter, preparation for next year and deciding which herbs and flowers can be potted up and placed on a sunny windowsill indoors.

The list of windowsill-hardy plants is endless and with winter's icy blasts just around the corner, there's no time to waste—so go ahead and pot up your favorite flowers for indoor life. (Many people often ask which flowers are best suited for prolonged indoor blooms. I say, just about anything.)

For example, common annual bedding plants, marigolds, impatiens and scented geraniums and petunias will continue to bloom indoors for another month or two after being brought indoors. You also can try bringing in late-flowering perennials such as dahlias and cannas. They bloom into winter depending on the variety. Dusty miller and coleus are the perfect foliage plants, a great combination with flowers or without.

If you don't have south-facing windows, or east or west ones, set plants directly beneath fluorescent lights or consider installing one of the many window greenhouses that are available. Use a premium commercial potting soil and always use a pot with a drainage hole.

If spider mites or aphids hitch a ride indoors, control them with an insecticidal soap spray. Use yellow, sticky traps for whiteflies and sulfur and baking soda spray if you notice powdery mildew spots.

Don't get upset when the shorter, darker days of winter rally around because that's when most plants will grow slowly or not at all. Just cut back on water and don't fertilize during this rest period.

When the first sign of spring growth appears, gradually increase water and feeding. Miracid is the perfect fertilizer at this time. The exception to this rule is hanging "Forcing"

Forcing is a technique to get plants to bloom earlier than normal, usually for indoor display.

Place bulbs in a refrigerator to imitate the cold months of winter required for the blooming of many varieties of bulbs.

Porcelain veggie dishes are no lemons

By Anne McCollam
Copley News Service

Q. Enclosed is a photo of two porcelain covered vegetable dishes that I would like to find out about. They are marked "Theodore Haviland—Limoges—France." I can't find anyone to identify them and give me an idea of their approximate value. Can you help?

A. Your vegetable dishes were made by Theodore Haviland in Limoges, France, in the early 1900s. David Haviland, a New York importer, was the founder of Haviland China in 1842 in Limoges. His son Theodore formed his own company in 1892. Each dish would probably be worth about $65 in good condition.

Q. I have a reverse painted lamp that has been in my family for about 75 years. The glass shade has a scene of a landscape painted on it. The height of the lamp is 21 inches and the shade is 18 inches in diameter. There are no manufacturer's or any other identifying marks on it. I would appreciate learning who, when and where it was made and its value.

A. The scene on the lamp was painted on the inside of the shade, thus the name "reverse painting." Bases were frequently made of metal with a brass, copper, bronze or silver finish.

Unmarked lamps make identification quite difficult. Carefully examine both the shade and the base for a signature that you might have missed. Your lamp was

Q. This mark is on a porcelain plate that my great-grandmother brought with her from Germany. It is decorated with sprays of multicolored flowers and the edge has a basket weave design. I am curious to find out if it has any monetary value.

A. Your plate with the reticulated edge (basket weave design) was made by Carl Schumann Porcelain Factory located in Arzberg, Bavaria, Germany. This mark was used in the early 1900s. The value of your plate would probably be about $65.

Q. I inherited an opaque glass box with a hinged lid that is in perfect condition. It is decorated with daisies and beading against a light blue background. The shape is oval and the diameter is 4 inches. On the bottom are the words "Wave Crest Ware."

Could you tell me something about "my inheritance" and what it is worth?

A. Wave Crest was made by C.F. Monroe Co. of Meriden, Conn., from 1898 until World War I. Their major supplier of glass blanks was Pairpoint Manufacturing Co. in New Bedford, Mass. The opaque glass was blown into molds and later hand-decorated with enamel.

Most of this ware was signed, particularly the early pieces. To date, Wave Crest has not been reproduced. One similar to yours is listed in "Warman's Glass" by Ellen Tischbein Schroy at $540.

Q. While sorting through things in my attic for a garage sale, I found a Roy Rogers toy wagon that I had as a child. Everything is still intact, including the figures, the horses and the box. On the side of the covered wagon are the words "Roy Rogers Chuck Wagon."

Is it worth anything? Should I put it in my garage sale or hang on to it?

A. Whoa! Hold your horses! Hang on to your chuck wagon! Keep rummaging through your attic, surely you can find other castoffs to stock your sale. "Roy Rogers Chuck Wagons" similar to yours are fetching $150 to $180 in antique shops.

Each of these vegetable dishes, made in the early 1900s, could sell for $65.

Q. I have a Maxfield Parrish framed print that is more than 65 years old. The title is "Day-Break." It is a scene of two female figures between two pillars. One is nude and the other is clothed. In the background are trees and hills. The frame is the original and the print measures 20 by 14 inches.

Could you give me any information about my picture?

A. Maxfield Parrish was an artist-illustrator in the early 1900s. His work was found in

In the 1920s, it was hard to find a home without one of his prints hanging on the wall. His work was characterized by the rich "Parrish" blues, and his emphasis on light, color and nature.

The familiar hills of his native New Hampshire countryside were the inspiration for those in his work.

Anyone planning to purchase a Parrish should be on the alert to the reproductions made after 1966. Printing technology has made it difficult to distinguish between these reproductions and the earlier prints.

Scrutinize the prints and purchase from a reputable dealer. Your print would probably be worth about $250 to $275.

Goodwin, MAI, owner of Goodwin & Co., Appraisers. "For example, we use on-line services provided by REDi Property Data, our state Marketing Data Cooperative and our regional multiple listing service."

Goodwin, who has operated his firm for 10 years and is a member of the Appraisal Institute, said he uses his computers for everything these days, from typing and filing to accessing current data for new appraisal projects and storage of past reports.

Computers have drastically changed the way appraisers conduct their business. It has basically fostered a paperless business environment, according to a report from the Appraisal Institute, based in Chicago. At the same time, new and potential problems are surfacing.

"While the Appraisal Institute supports technological advancements within our industry, including the electronic transmission of home mortgage documents, we are deeply concerned about efforts to re-engineer the appraisal process—and the important relationship between that process and our standards designed to protect consumers and lenders alike," said Douglas Brown, president of the Appraisal Institute.

There's a lot of controversy within the appraisal industry about the newly formed National Property Data Service Work Group. Participating in this group are many of the nation's largest loan originators, mortgage insurers and secondary market agencies.

The work group recently solicited information and support from real estate data vendors to form a "standardized" data base of residential property information. This is being created in large part through computer-formatted appraisal report forms.

"Over time, the work group hopes that a large enough volume of data will be assembled to derive quick and accurate property valuations," an Appraisal Institute report stated. "This could streamline appraisals and reduce loan origination costs, which interestingly continue to escalate despite falling appraisal fees."

The primary concern expressed by some appraisers focuses on the possible misuse of inaccurate data from computer data bases, and the newly created opportunities for manipulating data contained in appraisal reports. False information in just one link of the information chain can result in distorted values and messy litigation.

"Frankly, we believe that it's dangerous to proceed without realizing that many factors beyond mathematical calculations enter into the appraisal process," Brown said. "Computer technology presents many opportunities for American business, but its proposed application in the appraisal industry as a means to obtain quick computer-generated values introduces a whole new set of problems for consumers and lenders."

Q. What direction will mortgage interest rates take during the next year or so?

A. This year's projected interest rate average is 8.3 percent for a 30-year, fixed-rate loan. It's forecasted to be 8.5 percent in 1995.

The adjustable mortgage rate average this year is projected at 5.2 percent start rate. Next year, that rate will increase to 5.6 percent, according to a report from the National Association of Realtors.

Q. Is it possible for a non-veteran to obtain financing for a home purchase and pay less than 20 percent down payment?

A. Yes. New loan programs are being announced every month that require much less than 20 percent down—some with no down payment. One of the most popular is a home mortgage loan insured by the Federal Housing Administration (FHA), requiring as little as 3 percent down. And for qualified applicants, that 3 percent can be paid by another family member.

And, of course, veterans with a certificate of eligibility can receive a full-financing loan (no down payment) that is guaranteed by the Department of Veterans Affairs.

baskets. Fertilize such plants once or twice a month even in winter since the extra water leaches nutrients from their soil.

Versatile indoor-outdoor herbs include chives, rosemary, sage, parsley and tarragon to name a few. Good drainage is especially important when growing herbs indoors, so use the same pro-mix soil as you do for your flowers. Water only when the soil feels dry to the touch.

Some herbs (rosemary) can't take dry air, so mist them often. Try to keep room temperature cool (65 to 68 F) for flowering plants and herbs. They do best under such conditions.

'FORCING' BLOOMS

"Forcing" means using techniques to get bulbs to bloom earlier than usual. Bulbs that need cold are tricked into early blooms using refrigerators to imitate the cold months of winter.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

MARJORIE SHEFFICK

SELLING AT A LOSS

QUESTION: I think my home is worth a certain amount. My neighbor says it should sell for more, but a prospector claims it's worth less. Whose opinion is correct?

ANSWER: The value of your home is not what YOU think it should be, or your neighbor or even a casual prospector. It is determined chiefly by the location, the neighborhood and the current market.
Nobody, but nobody, is more acutely aware of the current housing market than an experienced local real estate firm like ours. Put your faith in our hands and we'll recommend the best possible selling price.

Doors opening for Lakeside Saddlery shop

BY RICK BYRNE
Staff Writer

A philosopher once said every time a door closes, a new one opens.

In the case of Robert and Sue Armstrong's Lakeside Saddlery, that door has been the barn door. Their Whitmore Lake saddle and tack shop has grown by leaps and bounds as others in the area have closed.

Strolling into the tightly packed confines of the store at 58 Barker Road, and inhaling the scent of new leather, a customer has little doubt about what goes on here.

"We are a full service saddlery," said Robert. "This business had been here. We've been in it a little over a year after taking it over from a previous owner."

Lakeside supplies complete tack and clothing for English and Western style riders, many of whom may have lost their best source when Horseman's Outfitter in South Lyon closed earlier this year.

"We've filled a void," Robert said. "When we took it over, my wife had been an embroiderer. Her company was Embroidery Impressions."

"I was a teacher for 25 years. I left school to work here full time in June."

Lakeside Saddlery had been a tiny shop, stocked almost exclusively with Western gear. It took a lot of careful planning to bring it to the point where now the Armstrongs have just about outgrown their space.

"When we first took over the store, it had no English department at all," Robert said. "It was strictly Western. But there are a lot of English riders in the area. We've gotten it up to where I'd say now we're 50/50."

The Salem Township residents have been horse lovers since their children, now college age, were young.

"We've been 4-H leaders in Washtenaw County for years," said Robert. "When Sue started her embroidery business it catered largely to the horse and livestock people."

Amazingly, the union of Embroidery Impressions and Lakeside Saddlery has had a synergistic effect. Cross-over customers from the saddlery doubled the volume of the embroidery business, and the Armstrongs' old horse and livestock friends from Embroidery Impressions and 4-H brought in herds of tack and saddle customers.

"The friendships we developed have been two-fold, and it's been fun to keep in contact with them over the years," Robert said.

The boom in new customers was just fine with Sue. She'd built up a stock of literally thousands of horse-related designs to run through her computer-aided embroidering machines.

"Ninety-nine percent of the time, when someone wanted something we already had it in stock," she said.

Though she ships literally all over the world, Sue said she's able to offer personalized attention to the customer who walks in the door with a horse blanket to embroider, or the customer who wants just one jacket.

"This is not a mass-production business," she said, loading a jacket into one of the two stitching machines, then checking the spelling of the name "Wally" on the adjacent computer terminal. "If someone wants just one coat, I'll do it. Other companies, they need the volume."

Unique to their store is a new Equine First Aid Kit, which Dr. Al Bailey, a South Lyon horse veterinarian, helped the Armstrongs put together.

"It's the first of its kind that we're aware of," said Robert. "Other people have sold the items in it, but nobody ever put it together into an equine first aid kit and marketed it that way."

[ALL THOSE TIRED OF CLIMBING IN AND OUT OF A TRUCK, STEP RIGHT UP.]

Getting in and out of a sport utility vehicle can be an adventure. That's why we created the all-new Jimmy from GMC Truck. One of the first things you'll notice is a lower step-in height. This was achieved without sacrificing ground clearance - an engineering breakthrough. Of course, Jimmy still comes with all the strength and reliability of a GMC truck. Like a boxed frame for improved riding comfort, Insta-Trac® 4WD, and as standard equipment, the Enhanced 4.3L, 195 hp V6 engine - one of the most powerful in its class. Not to mention a remarkably quiet interior, and other sport utility firsts - like a choice of suspensions

For safety, there's a standard driver's side air bag* four-wheel antilock brakes, and steel reinforced side door beams. For more information call 1-800-GMC TRUCK. Or better yet visit a GMC Truck dealer for a test drive.

DigiComm offers next generation of television equipment

DigiComm is one of the first retailers in the United States to offer a new generation of satellite television equipment and programming services. DSS, which stands for Digital Satellite System, takes television equipment and information into the digital age, delivering more than 150 channels of high quality television programming via a compact, pizza-sized satellite dish and digital receiver made by RCA.

Everyone will enjoy the unprecedented selection of television entertainment and information services available from DigiComm. Every new DSS customer will automatically receive one free month of USSB Entertainment Plus including multi-channel premium movie networks, like five HBO channels and three Showtime channels, plus many of the most popular entertainment channels, like MTV and Nickelodeon, courtesy of DigiComm and USSB (United States Satellite Broadcasting). Ongoing subscriptions from both USSB and a second programmer, DIRECTV, are competitively priced and very flexible, allowing viewers choices that fit their monthly budget.

In fact, the entire DSS system is designed with customer choice and control in mind. Unique parental lock-out features give parents the ability to select channels most suitable for their children. A constantly updated on-screen program guide and interactive remote control, included in every system at no extra charge, help viewers easily find and watch exactly what they want. And DSS will work with any home entertainment system, from basic televisions to professional quality home theaters as well as high definition televisions planned for the future.

For more information about RAC, DSS equipment, and USSB and DIRECTV programming, please contact DigiComm at (810) 486-4343, located at 22882 Pontiac Trail, South Lyon.

sales of video tapes of relevance to the equine enthusiast, and cleaning and blocking of hats, a carry-over from E.R.'s, a former South Lyon saddle shop.

If it hasn't become obvious already, the store caters to the true rider. Though the store stocks plenty of attractive western clothing and jewelry, the line-dancing crowd doesn't make up much of the clientele.

Robert attributes their success with the horse set to listening to the customers, and offering what they want. As an example, he points to the shelves of grooming supplies.

"Ninety-five percent of what I stock came from customer requests," he said. "I offer what they want, not what I think they need. We do a lot of that. That's how we built up the inventory."

The Armstrongs share their good fortune with the equine community as well. Lakeside sponsored prizes this year for what is generally recognized as the world's largest all-breed youth horse show, the annual event at the Michigan State Fair.

Class winners earned beautiful embroidered jackets with their class name on the back, and the winner's name on the front.

Reserve winners received equally attractive embroidered sweatshirts. Merchandise donated totaled over $1,500.

"We approached them about it, and said what can we do for you," Robert said.

Locally, equestrian teams in South Lyon, Brighton and Pinckney are already aware of the Armstrong's generosity. Team riders get an in-store discount on all purchases, as do all 4-H riders.

Next spring, the Armstrongs plan to hold a 4-H Booster Week. During that week, 10 percent of every customer's purchase will go to the county 4-H horse association of the buyer's choice. In their minds, they can't do enough to support 4-H.

"We're 10-year leaders," said Robert. "Our daughter has been riding for 10 years."

"We've spent a good portion of our lives working with kids. Our daughter rode with the Country Bunch, and she was in Little Britches, too. And Sue is secretary for the Washtenaw County Horse Leaders Association."

Lakeside Saddlery is open Mondays through Saturdays 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., though it stays open until 8 p.m. on Friday nights. Call 449-8617 for more information.

Business Briefs

The first LA-Z-BOY FURNITURE GALLERIES store in Michigan celebrated its official Grand Opening Oct. 4 with ribbon-cutting ceremonies and a V.I.P. Party at the newly-renovated store. More than 200 people attended, including Novi Mayor KATHLEEN McLALLEN. The new store is located on the service drive directly across from Hudson's at Twelve Oaks Mall.

ZOLTAN E. LUKACS, a Novi resident, has been named director of construction for TALON DEVELOPMENT GROUP, INC., an affiliate company of Talon Inc. He will be responsible for the overall project management and coordination of all construction activities, including estimating, purchasing, engineering and project cost control.

Novi resident MARK TARPINIAN, a chartered financial consultant, was recently elected president of the metro-Detroit Association of Health Underwriters, the premiere professional trade association for health insurance brokers, agents, and company representatives.

The THOMASVILLE STORE of Novi will be holding an open house for its Home Theater Shoppe this weekend. Among the festivities will be a sneak preview to the new movie Stargate, a 100 free passes to the movie, talk to experts in home theater electronics. The open house starts Oct. 28 from 4 to 8 p.m., Oct. 29 from noon to 4 p.m. and Oct. 30 from noon to 4 p.m.

CHERYL N. YASCHEN, PAUL PAYTNA and H. GIEN BETTS of E.R.A. GENTRY REAL ESTATE recently attended the second annual E.R.A. Success Day in Novi. Present were over 350 E.R.A. Real Estate Agents and Brokers from Michigan and Ohio.

John Pierce, president of the ERA Metro-Detroit Brokers Council said the ever-increasing percentage of people involved in international relocation makes it important for ERA brokers and agents to be able to identify with international markets.

"Hopefully, those who attended Success Day left with a new found sense of being involved in a global 'team' effort. It gave us a chance to network with other ERA agents from Michigan and Ohio, which allowed us to gather additional information on how to best serve our customers. Also, it aids greatly in developing a stronger, more cohesive identity of ERA agents being team players."

Betts, sales manager for ERA Gentry Real Estate, serving West Oakland and East Livingston counties said that this year's Success Day was the best yet with emphasis on the fact that "ERA First in Service" is not just a slogan but the only way to work with home buyers and sellers.

The Milford store OUR BLESSINGS has grown by leaps and bounds since it first opened.

The resale shop at 328 Summit St. has doubled its size to now offer 2,000 square feet of space. The store sells barely used clothing for men, women, and children, along with accessories and toys.

Owner MARCY ANN BIRCH sells all of her items on consignment, and consigners get between 50 and 60 percent of the sale price.

"Our Blessings is more like a boutique than a resale shop," Birch said. "So many customers tell us daily how much they appreciate the store's quality, savings, and the money they receive back from their clothes."

Store hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Mondays through Saturdays, except Thursdays when the shop is open until 8 p.m. For more information, call (810) 684-1594.

JOHN DOUGLAS, has been named as a Certified Fraud Examiner (CFE) by the Association of Certified Fraud Examiners (the Association). The CFE designation is awarded to select professionals responsible for detecting, deterring, and investigating fraud. Each CFE must meet the rigorous criteria of the association's certification program, including character, experience and education requirements. The announcement was made by the association's CFE Program Director, James D. Ratley, CFE.

and detection of fraud. The association administers the stringent criteria for the CFE program, which includes the Uniform CFE Examination, a rigorous examination designed to assess a candidate's knowledge of four topic areas: financial transactions, the legal elements of fraud, criminology and ethics, and investigations of fraud. Fewer than one person in five has passed the Uniform CFE Examination on the first attempt.

To date, over 10,000 business and government professionals have earned the CFE designation.

Say 'I do' with timeless elegance

By Lee Littlewood

Copley News Service

Although bridal gowns are as diverse and varied as brides-to-be, one thing remains constant: Women around the globe about to be married long to look as beautiful as they possibly can. Every bride has romantic dreams of being queen for a day and looking like, if not a storybook princess, a more lovely version of herself.

This year it's even more possible to achieve that wish. Talented designers have created styles described as traditionally timeless, refined elegance and classically breathtaking.

Gowns Grace Kelly may have worn, complete with softly gleaming satin and organza, basque bodices, scoop necklines and lace accents with delicate rosettes have brought a '50s-style look to today.

Bridal designer Lazaro Perez is a leading interpreter of the contemporary-classic look, one of the most rapidly growing categories in the bridal marketplace, according to recent research conducted by Modern Bride magazine.

"I suppose it can be best described as a look of infinite simplicity," says Lazaro. "Essentially, I strive for my clothes to combine perfect cut and sumptuous fabrics with silhouettes that evoke a bit of a bygone era."

Michele Piccione, award-winning designer for Alfred Angelo Dream Maker, sees their collection as moving to a new plateau of refined elegance. Short sleeves are becoming diminutive, and where they are long, they are narrow and fitted.

Re-embroidered, hand-beaded laces are seen on gown after gown, adding greater dimensional interest to bodices.

This year, Piccione favors scoop necklines, princess bodices and full skirts, bringing to mind a simpler, more classic and less ornate time.

Traveling back even further to the early 20th century, gowns our grandmothers might have worn are also desired.

"Vintage dressing is so popular right now," notes McCall's pattern designer Ali-cyn Wright. "The soft, romantic dress translates perfectly into a wedding dress. The design is ideal for second marriages or for

What a groom needs to look like a winner

By Lee Littlewood

Copley News Service

Contrary to popular belief, there's more to groom fashion than having him put on a tuxedo and comb his hair. Men also want to look great, too. They definitely don't want to hear whispers of, "Gee, what's she marrying him for?"

These days there are things a guy needs to know to look like the winner that he is.

In most weddings, the groom, best man, ushers and even fathers rent their formal wear.

There's quite a large selection available, so it's smart to shop around (as much as you all hate it) before making a final decision. If possible, rent everything from the same shop or at least pick the same type of suit.

You may even want to consider having the groom's father in the same outfit as the others—this looks better for pictures and in the receiving line. Also, the bride's father and the ring bearer should always be dressed like the attendants.

Formal wear is determined by the time of day and formality of the wedding. Weddings run the gamut from very formal evening to informal daytime celebrations.

Likewise, full-dress tailcoats with matching trousers are an option during the former as are suits or classic blazers for informal times.

For most evening weddings, though, black tuxedos or dinner jackets with matching trousers, dress shirts, bow ties and vests or cummerbunds are appropriate. Options during warm weather, however, are white or ivory dinner jackets and first-time brides who want a unique look."

For handy seamstresses, McCall's pattern No. 6948 is a "new" heirloom treasure for today's bride.

There are even antique flower girls' dress patterns to match.

These styles bring to mind a saying from a more recent time. "Kinder and gentler" is not only a phrase used during the George Bush era, but it also describes the trend toward natural fabrics this year.

Although it's rare to find a gown made of silk or linen in pearly white, these fabrics are classic and natural-looking and make lovely ivory and delicately off-white wedding dresses.

Another color emerging this year as a favorite, especially with Galina Gowns, is blush pink. These pastel dresses are gorgeous and feminine and are just as acceptable for even the most formal of weddings.

Besides color, another important aspect of a bridal gown is how it looks from behind. Knowing that the bride spends most of her time during the wedding ceremony facing the altar rather than the guests, back interest is given new fashion impact.

Gowns feature back bodices with heart motifs, bustles, candybox bows and full streamers accented with beaded medallions. This way, a bride will look stunning no matter what the angle.

Many women love to personalize their wedding-day look with accessories. Although pearl necklaces and earrings or diamond studs make classic touches, the rule of thumb concerning jewelry is—the less, the better. The new bride's radiant smile and sparkling wedding ring should be the jewels everyone admires.

Gloves, however, are not only acceptable but nearly expected with short sleeves, especially in a formal evening ceremony. The newest gloves match the dress and, whether wrist, midarm or elbow length, bring a princess-like aura to this graceful look.

Shoes should always match the dress, with medium-high heels being the most popular, flattering and comfortable. Teetering spike heels are not only tacky, but dangerous in the middle of a long train. Taking a nasty spill down the aisle is a sure way to tarnish wedding day memories.

However, brides need not spend a fortune in money or time searching for the perfect shoe. Simple pumps can be dyed any shade to match any gown—inexpensively.

Putting the crowning touch on your wedding ensemble has never been more flexible than it is now. Simply make sure the veil and headpiece are in proportion to your gown.

Veils range from shoulder length to as long as the train on the dress.

Popular headpieces include the bow, which is positioned at the back of the head, the similar Juliet cap—a more ornate bow version—and the raised, decorated headband or floral wreath.

The smartest way to choose a headpiece is by trying on several while wearing the gown and by seeking a bridal-store employee's assistance. These helpful salespeople undoubtedly have matched many combinations of veil to dress, and have the looks nearly memorized.

They also are trained and experienced in assisting every dazed and confused bride-to-be for her amazing transformation from plain fiancée to breathtaking belle of the ball.

For daytime weddings, gray strollers, gray striped trousers, waistcoats, shirts and striped ties work, and black leather shoes with laces are always tops.

Other alternatives include white tie and tails, cutaway coats, stroller coats (a semiformal suit jacket cut like a tuxedo) and spencer coats (open coats without buttons, cut at the waistline).

Tuxedos, the most popular formal wear, can be single- or double-breasted. For the most part, single-breasted jackets create a tailored look for smaller men while the double-breasted coats pull in the waist and create a slimming look for large guys. Trousers can be double-pleated or with a satin or silk stripe down the outside of each leg.

Neckwear should match the coat and vest and include: bow tie, ascot (a broad neck scarf or the four-in-hand tie for semiformal or informal weddings. These are knotted ties that hang vertically like a business-suit tie and should be worn with a spread collar.

For additional "instructions" on proper attire, tuxedo shop attendants make it a point to keep up with the latest styles and fashion breakthroughs. If uniqueness is a goal, try bold-print vests adorned with timely prints or exotic boutonnières (on left lapels) in vibrant colors. Bow-ties can even be wild, with polka dots, stripes and other prints that are in vogue. There's nothing that says "traditional" has to be boring.

A pleasing scent can create a private conversation between bride and groom and boost his confidence, as long as it's not overwhelming. Some designer lines to try (before the big day) are Perry Ellis for Men cologne, Pierre Cardin cologne and Safari for Men eau de toilette by Ralph Lauren. These mellow smells will fit most personalities and please everyone's scentsibilities.

Grooms also can express their unique style by experimenting with cuff links, studs and watches.

Moreover, grooms will want to have the best-looking hair, the smoothest shave and the clearest skin possible. Hairstyles that are classic and groomed are smart and won't look dated in wedding pictures. Imagine the laughter of children whose trendy fathers married in the '70s, with photos showing bushy sideburns and wide-lapel shirts.

A little gel brushed through dry hair prevents frizziness and tames stray locks. A stylish idea is hair that's long on top and short in back, with sideburns no longer than 1 inch.

A groom's nails should definitely be cut, cleaned and buffed with cuticles pushed back. Short nails that just exceed the fingertips are attractive. No changing the oil or gardening before the wedding, please.

The key to no-nick shaving is to soften the beard with a splash of warm water, apply the gel in the direction opposite of beard growth and take short, even strokes in the direction of the growth. Always apply a razor-relief product to reduce redness.

For a formal daytime wedding, nothing matches the timeless elegance of a gray cutaway jacket.

How to pick perfect presents

By Elizabeth Scheibner

Copley News Service

Planning a wedding can be a lot of work and a lot of hassle. Fortunately, there's one aspect you're sure to enjoy — registering for gifts. Let's face it, it's the only time in life when you get to tell people exactly what you want without sounding greedy.

Registering for gifts can be a time-consuming process, but it is definitely worth the effort. A wish list tells guests exactly what you need and eliminates the possibility of duplicates. And more importantly, it saves you the hassle of returning gifts you may not need — or want.

Experts suggest you register for gifts soon after you're engaged, when you aren't bogged down with all the other details that go into planning a wedding. Although registering for gifts has traditionally been the bride's responsibility, most couples today are picking out gifts together.

Even if you already have a rough idea of what you want, don't expect to select your gifts in one afternoon. It frequently takes several trips to a store before you are able to finalize your list.

Your first step should be to assess what you currently have and to figure out what you need. Consider your current lifestyle as well as the kind of lifestyle you envision for the future.

You may find it helpful to browse through the pages of bridal magazines or to visit some of your favorite stores to get an idea of what's out there. The registry lists in most bridal magazines can help you organize your wish list and may help identify items you might not have otherwise considered.

If you've been on your own for a while, chances are you probably have all the pots, pans and dishes you need. If that's the case, this is your chance to furnish your home with items you wouldn't necessarily purchase on your own.

Maybe you'd like to update your kitchen with an espresso machine, pasta maker, coffee grinder or electric juicer. Or perhaps you'd like to dress up your living room with new artwork, pillows, mirrors or lamps.

Whatever your needs, don't be afraid to include them in your registry.

UNIQUE GIFT IDEAS

These days department stores aren't the only retailers offering registry programs. More and more specialty shops have gotten in on the act. Couples are now asking for less traditional gifts, including sporting goods, electronic equipment, antiques, gourmet foods, artwork and furniture.

"In the beginning, registry services were set up to help newlyweds collect the pieces of china, crystal and silver needed for gracious home entertaining," says Deb Barney, director of L.L. Bean's Home & Camp Division. "Today's time-deprived young couples have other priorities. Their preferences tend toward more casual dinnerware or sporting equipment for their active lifestyles."

The Home Depot, for example, now offers bridal registry in 200 of its 260 stores nationwide. Couples can traverse the aisles selecting chain saws, hedge clippers, smoke detectors and other gadgets for their home.

If music is your passion, you may want to check out the registry service offered by Tower Records. Or if you're an outdoor enthusiast, you may want to consider registering at L.L. Bean or one of the many other mail-order companies. Other choices worth considering are bookstores, museum gift shops, nurseries and gourmet food shops.

Whatever your lifestyle, there is undoubtedly a store for you. Just remember when selecting your gifts to choose items of varying price ranges. Not everyone on your guest list can afford the big-ticket items and may be offended if your list is made up exclusively of high-priced gifts.

Your best bet is to call the store you want to register at and make an appointment with the bridal consultant. He or she can help you select the right type of gifts for your lifestyle. Be sure to ask your consultant about any special privileges you may be entitled to, such as gift certificates, discounts or complimentary services.

A lot of the wedding gifts you'll receive are meant to last a lifetime, which is why you'll want to choose your gifts carefully. Stay away from trendy items that will only look ridiculous a few years down the road. Similarly, if you're registering for china or flatware, choose patterns that you won't grow tired of.

Many of your guests will have their gifts sent to you before the wedding. That's why it's important to start a list right away of the gifts you receive. Make sure you write down the name of giver, the date received and a full description of the gift.

If you have time, go ahead and write a thank-you note. Although you're not required to send thank-you notes until after the wedding, a prompt note is always appreciated.

Even if you already have a rough idea of what you want, don't expect to select your gifts in one afternoon.

WEDDINGS

All that glitters is gold and more

By Elizabeth Scheibner

Copley News Service

Buying a wedding ring is probably one of the most significant and expensive purchases you'll ever make. And unlike a car or home, which you'll eventually replace or sell, a wedding ring is meant to last a lifetime.

A ring, of course, is not only a financial investment but an emotional one. It's easy to fall in love with a ring that is way out of your price range, but try not to get too carried away.

Determine ahead of time how much you want to spend and try to stay within your budget. The general rule of thumb is that you shouldn't spend more than two months of your salary, although some couples spend a lot less and some spend considerably more.

When buying an engagement or wedding ring, the best advice is to take your time and comparison shop. Visit several different jewelers and ask a lot of questions. The more you know, the better able you'll be to make an informed decision.

Some couples opt for matching wedding bands. Others don't. It's a matter of personal preference. If you and your fiancé decide on matching wedding bands, make sure your wedding band complements your engagement ring.

More than 1.6 million people buy engagement rings each year at an average price of $1,500. Not surprisingly, the most popular choice among brides is the diamond ring. Whether it's a traditional or contemporary setting, the diamond is the most beloved of all the precious stones.

THE FOUR CS

There are four factors you should take into consideration when buying a diamond—the color, the cut, the clarity and the carat weight. Commonly referred to as the "Four Cs," these are the main characteristics that determine a diamond's quality and value.

Color, of course, refers to the diamond's natural color. A colorless diamond is considered the most valuable because it reflects the most light. It is also the most expensive.

Diamonds are measured on a color scale that goes from D to Z. Those in the D to F range are considered colorless while those in the latter part of the alphabet have a progressively yellow tinge.

Stones in the Z range are called Fancy or colored diamonds and are considered extremely valuable because of their rare color. They come in a range of colors that includes shades of pink, green, blue, yellow and brown.

Cut, more than any other characteristic, determines how sparkly and fiery your diamond will be.

A well-cut diamond will be proportioned so that the majority of light rays entering the stone will be directed back to the eye. Most modern diamonds are cut with 58 facets for maximum sparkle and brilliance.

Although diamonds can be cut into a variety of shapes, the most popular cuts include the oval, marquise, emerald, pear, round and square shape. The round stone is by far the most popular choice among brides because it is the most sparkly and brilliant.

Clarity refers to the presence or absence of flaws inside the stone. Flawless diamonds are extremely rare—and quite expensive. Most diamonds, when viewed under powerful magnification, will reveal minute flaws that are invisible to the naked eye. Flaws buried deep within a diamond are preferable to those at the surface or sides where the primary path of light may be intercepted.

According to experts, the least important of the Four Cs is the carat, or weight of the diamond. Most jewelers claim it's impossible to assess the value of a diamond by its carat weight alone. What's more important is the clarity, cut and color.

When all these factors are equal, however, a larger diamond is more valuable than a small one. And with truly fine stones, the difference between 1 and 2 carats can vary by thousands of dollars.

Although not officially part of the Four Cs, the fifth factor is cost. The cost of a diamond fluctuates with the economy and is largely dependent upon supply and demand. The asking price for a diamond can vary greatly from year to year, sometimes by as much as several thousand dollars.

According to jewelers, the best time to get a good price on a diamond is in January after the holiday rush is over. July is another good month when the jewelry business is slow and prices are slightly lower.

If you're interested in learning more about diamond rings—or rings in general—you may want to check out "The Perfect Ring" by Lisa Lebowitz Cader (Andrews & McMeel). This informative book helps take the guesswork out of buying a ring with practical information you won't find elsewhere.

THE GROOM'S RING

Although nine out of 10 grooms receive a wedding band, a lot fewer actually end up wearing one on a daily basis. For some men, it's a matter of personal taste or comfort. Others claim a ring is impractical for the kind of work they do. Whatever their reasoning, most men agree that too much emphasis is placed on the ring itself.

"Women tend to think of wedding rings as a symbol" of love and commitment, notes author Warren Farrell, Ph.D., in his book "The Myth of Male Power" (Simon & Schuster). "For men, it's the relationship that matters, not its symbols."

Of course, there are some men who wear their wedding bands proudly. Among the celebrities who sport a wedding band are Bill Clinton, Tom Cruise, Eddie Murphy, Kevin Costner, Rod Stewart, Tom Arnold and Bruce Springsteen.

Wedding bands have come a long way in terms of design. Although most men still prefer a simple gold band, there is a growing preference for rings that are sculpted or braided. Other popular styles include those with a floral design or diamond inlay.

CARING FOR YOUR RING

One of the great things about diamonds—besides their beauty—is the fact that they are virtually indestructible. Unlike other precious stones that are susceptible to nicks and scratches, diamonds can withstand just about anything.

What can happen to your diamond, however, is a gradual buildup of dirt and oil, which will dull the stone. To keep it diamond sparkling, clean your ring once a month. You can purchase a special cleanser from a jeweler, or use a mild liquid detergent or a solution of one-part water, one-part ammonia. Glass cleaner also works well.

Experts suggest that you have your ring professionally cleaned every 12 to 18 months. In addition to giving your ring a thorough cleaning, your jeweler will check the setting to make sure the diamond is firmly mounted.

How to plan the party of a lifetime

By Sharon Williams

Copley News Service

If great events must be followed by great celebrations, then a wedding reception should be the party of a lifetime. Whether it's an intimate dinner gathering for a chosen few or a pull-out-all-the-stops bash for 500 or more, a reception should ensure that a good time will be had by all. And so it can, thanks to the wide array of choices—and the resources to back them up—that now are available to today's brides and grooms.

With elements ranging from string quartets and ornate reception halls to crystal goblets of champagne on waiters' trays and lush bouquets of dewy flowers on the tables, marrying couples can surround their guests in practically any ambience imaginable.

That atmosphere—along with good food, good company, good music and all the help necessary to pull everything off effortlessly—could make a guest almost as giddy with happiness as the bride and groom themselves. And that, of course, is precisely the point of the entire event.

Following is a rundown of tips and trends regarding wedding receptions.

YOU'RE INVITED

The decision to say "I do" leads to dozens of smaller decisions regarding the reception. Will it be a small, intimate affair, a lavish gala or a medium-size celebration?

Then, there are refreshments, entertainment and decorations to consider.

To lend focus to the entire event, many couples begin the planning process by determining the size and flavor of their reception before they do little else. The overall style of the reception, say wedding planners, should reflect the bride and groom's budget and lifestyle.

A formal reception for several hundred guests, for example, usually includes a sit-down dinner or buffet spread fit for a king, an open bar, music for dancing, breathtaking decorations and a show-stopping wedding cake.

A semiformal affair, meanwhile, might feature a light buffet, background music, champagne and simpler centerpieces. And an informal reception could take the form of a garden or cocktail party.

What's more, since many of today's couples march down nontraditional aisles when they marry, they want an equally unconventional, contemporary reception to celebrate their vows. Thus, the birth of theme receptions that are inspired by a certain design, locale, ethnic or period motif.

A couple, for instance, marrying at a rustic ranch might celebrate at a Western-style barbecue complete with square dancing and a bonfire.

A bride and groom reciting their vows in a hot-air balloon might receive guests afterward at a wine-and-cheese tasting at a scenic winery. And a wedding on the beach might be followed by an informal clam bake or luau featuring a spit-roasted pig, fresh-flowers leis and Polynesian dancers.

Some brides and grooms go so far as donning period costumes—medieval garb is one popular choice—for the wedding, and they ask their guests to do the same. Everyone meets after the ceremony to eat, drink and dance just as they would during the appointed period in time and in a setting that looks as though it was pulled from the pages of a history book or fairy tale.

LOCATION LOWDOWN

With reception sites, the rule generally is that if you can dream it, you can book it. Brides and grooms can entertain their guests in high style at literally hundreds of locations.

Some are conventional, some are creative and some are simply surprising in a most refreshing way. And since the most popular sites go fast, it's wise to secure yours early—a year in advance if possible, say wedding planners.

On the traditional side, choices range from church halls and reception centers to hotel ballrooms and restaurants. With their roomy facilities and reasonable prices, college campuses and community centers also rank among the top settings. But the list hardly stops there.

Couples with a flair for the theatrical might look into renting space at a museum, theater or studio, while those with a love of nature might choose a zoo, rustic lodge, botanical garden or park as the site for their reception. Other entertaining possibilities include historical sites, private yachts and amusement parks that can be rented for a day or evening by private parties.

For others, home is simply the best place to be. Catering companies and wedding consultants can turn an abode into the perfect setting for a reception through artful arranging and can add additional space with a tent if necessary. Rental companies or catering companies can bring in everything from additional seating to plates upon which to serve the wedding cake.

CREATING THE MOOD

No matter where you'll hold your reception, music, flowers, favors and decorations transform it into the wedding-day fantasy you've envisioned. And so will the reception agenda, which could include dancing, traditional toasts, special musical numbers, the cutting of the cake, the bouquet toss and traditional departure of the bride and groom complete with the throwing of the rice.

Top props for today's most traditional receptions take their cue from the wedding colors and degree of formality of the reception. Decorations in demand include floral arrangements or topiaries for centerpieces and the head table, elaborate backdrops and faux staircases, ice sculptures that rival the wedding cake, Japanese lanterns and tiny sparkling lights, ribbons and garlands, floral archways, bubbling water fountains and candles everywhere for evening receptions.

Other embellishments, meanwhile, follow whimsical themes and variations, such as yards of bandanna prints and denim for a Western-style reception, or quilts, twig baskets and jelly jars filled with fresh-cut flowers for a country-inspired event.

Some couples go so far as hiring a floral designer to pull it all together. Besides flowers, floral designers use every other decorating tool, technique and trick in the book to create just the right atmosphere for a reception.

GLORIOUS FOOD

Whether it's a tea sandwich and a chicken crepe or cold poached salmon and champagne, food and drink truly take the cake when it comes to the most beloved elements of a reception.

Just what you'll serve at your reception depends largely on the time of day, and overall theme. You could offer brunch or luncheon at a late morning or midday reception, tea at midafternoon, cocktails even later in the day or a sit-down dinner or buffet for an evening event.

As for the food itself, Modern Bride magazine says poultry, seafood, wine and champagne are in for health-related reasons and basic meat-and-potatoes-style dishes for the sake of economics. So are nontraditional wedding cakes in assorted shapes, flavors and colors.

Then there's the matter of who will prepare and serve everything. While some go the do-it-yourself route with the help of friends and family, most couples rely on caterers, who can tackle practically any culinary job.

A caterer can be a lone individual you hire to cook for your intimate dinner reception or a company that is responsible for everything — the decorations, food, help and equipment.

In some instances—such as a reception booked at a hotel or restaurant—a caterer comes with the location.

Some caterers offer grand decorations, while others are famous for a specific type of cuisine or spectacular employees—waiters, bartenders, valets and cleanup personnel.

before you sign a contract or put down a deposit.

COST CONTROL

Grand receptions usually carry grand price tags. But, with a little planning, a reasonably priced reception doesn't have to drain the dowry. And it's a good thing.

While tradition says the bride's family picks up the tab, many of today's couples are helping out with the costs, working a three-way split with the groom's family or paying for everything themselves. So naturally, any penny saved is appreciated.

Wedding experts suggest couples shop around, getting estimates for various locations and services before finalizing anything with a sales agreement. The goal is to find wedding professionals who offer both a fair price and good reputation.

A few cost-cutting solutions include letting flowers do double duty at the wedding ceremony and reception, choosing a cocktail party over an elaborate buffet spread, selecting less labor-intensive floral arrangements for the reception and putting talented friends to work in the areas of decorations, music, food preparation, serving and cleanup.

Additionally, bridal planners, books and magazines often include money-saving suggestions and worksheets that help couples keep track of all the figures. Ditto for wedding-inspired software programs for the computer.

Fashion tips for every bridal party member

By Sharon Achatz

Copley News Service

And now, the Oscar in wedding costume design goes to ... the bride. After all, she is the star of the show.

It's only fitting, however, that the bride's supporting cast gets an honorable mention for fashionable flair. From the maid of honor to the flower girl, ushers and mother of the bride, members of the bridal party fill the day with festive, colorful charm.

One of the simplest ways to ensure a coordinated day among this diversity of dressers is the use of a unifying theme—creating "an entire look" through the use of color, cut or custom.

Wedding etiquette gives a starting point for coordinated couture, as the time of day and formality of the nuptials mandate the mode of dress.

A formal evening wedding dictates long gowns for bridesmaids and elegant long or short dresses for mothers, for example, while an informal wedding recommends day suits or short dresses.

For the men, a cutaway coat with striped trousers is the traditional choice for formal morning affairs; for formal evening weddings, a black tuxedo should be worn. A stroller or contemporary tuxedo fills the informal bill.

Tradition also has it that maids wear identical dresses, with the groomsmen likewise wearing matching attire that is color-coordinated to the maids' dresses.

This does not mean, however, that attendants must wear the same color in order to have a coordinated color scheme. The dresses, cummerbunds, jackets and trinkets instead can be within a complementary palette of colors, encompassing a variety of fabrics and prints—and in shades that range from soft to sizzling. While pastels have been favored colors for spring and jewel tones for winter, many shades now span all seasons—and floral prints are popular year-round as well.

Aside from color coordination, themed weddings also offer an extraordinary opportunity for a united fashionable front.

For example, the attire at a western wedding could include bolo ties and cowboy hats for the ushers, and attendants in short fringed skirts and white western boots.

At a Southern wedding, maids could carry parasols and the men could wear panama hats; a Japanese wedding could feature kimonos and fans.

No matter the theme, of course, it's the wise bride who solicits input from attendants prior to selecting their mode of dress.

While groomsmen and flower girls typically have little concern over how they'll dress, bridesmaids frequently request a dress that can be worn again, and mothers often want a look befitting not only the significance of the day, but also one that reflects their personal taste.

BEST-DRESSED MAIDS

Traditional dressing calls for a floor-length gown with a fitted bodice and full, flowing skirt—and details such as off-the-shoulder necklines, lace trims, fabric flowers, glittery fabrics, bows and beads.

The bridesmaid is as elegant as the bride in a bright red floor-length sheath

While the romance of traditional looks always will be popular, there's a growing interest in contemporary dress styles as well—including hourglass sheaths, shorter dresses, short-and-long combo hemlines and sheer long skirts that reveal a shorter skirt underneath.

Another contemporary option well-suited to the maid who wants a dress she can wear again is the adaptable dress that has detachable pieces to create two different looks. Generally these begin with a form-fitting mini sheath dress to which a longer skirt is attached for wedding wear—for example, a full tulle skirt that attaches at the sheath's hem or a slim satin skirt that ties around the waist.

Other optimal options for a wear-again wardrobe include soft suits or subtly elegant short dresses—especially popular are dresses that bare and curve and flair.

The right gown is just the start of polished wedding-day dressing. From head to toe, there's an array of accessories to accent and coordinate any look.

Matching headpieces for maids range from lace-brim hats and jewel-encrusted combs to braided satin wreaths and bows; shoes range from satin ballet slippers to silk pumps dressed with bows, buckles or sequins. Other special accessories that help to create an entire look include matching prayer books, gloves, hosiery and jewelry, such as delicate drop earrings or chokers.

Bridal boutiques, catalogs and fashion outlets are filled to the brim with options. Enjoy shopping the selections—just remember experts suggest ordering the maids' dresses three to six months prior to the wedding.

WELL-GROOMED USHERS

While black and gray reign supreme as the choices for wedding tuxedo color, they have been updated in a variety of new cuts and patterns—not only for accessories, but also for the tuxes themselves.

Trousers may be striped or houndstooth printed, as well as solid; jackets may be single- or double-breasted or even more adventurously styled to include the likes of western yokes worn with bolo ties, or patterns such as tartan plaid or paisley.

Stylish suits also are appropriate for informal daytime weddings, as is ethnic dress such as a Scottish kilt or an African Igbo pants set.

While black is the color of nighttime formal wear, it frequently is dressed up with accessories that pack a punch of color and pattern—including the likes of ties, cummerbunds, vests and pocket squares in florals, paisleys, abstract prints, stripes, brocades and metallics that shimmer in subtle patterns.

Even black-and-white accessories are enlivened with snappy prints—from zebra stripes to geometrics, and from patchwork patterns to polka dots.

Experts suggest ordering tuxes a couple of months prior to the wedding, and then picking them up from the rental store two to three days before the ceremony. At that time, try on everything in the store—down to the cuff links. That way you'll know if anything's missing, and you can allow time for any alterations.

Ask faraway ushers to visit the formal-wear shop for a fitting as soon as they arrive in town.

MOMS AND BABES

Flower girls usually are dressed as miniature versions of the maids—or the bride—either in a similarly cut dress or in a different design made from matching fabric. Best bets for matching attire are at a wedding boutique, catalog showroom or by hiring a dressmaker to sew all the gowns.

Ring bearers mimic the dress of the groom and ushers, whether tux or suit—occasionally wearing a short pantsuit if the weather is warm.

Tuxedo rental shops carry a wide variety of options.

Mothers of the couple often are given no more than a suggestion of color and length of dress, so that they'll coordinate with the bridal party, yet still have room for individual expression.

The key to a well-dressed mother or grandmother is sophisticated dressing with an eye for detail—such as tulip or scalloped hemlines, bows at the hip or back, lace overlays and beading or sequin accents—and fabulous fabrics such as metallic laces in gold and silver, rich brocades, floral organza, linen or fluid crepe.

For a more tailored look, consider suits—perhaps a metallic brocade long jacket over a slim iridescent lame skirt, or a graceful fit-and-flair peplum jacket over a slim skirt.
