Prospects good for tax relief in the township

Average assessment increase is 1.5 percent

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

Most property owners in Northville Township are in for a pleasant surprise when they get their annual tax assessments in the next few weeks thanks to Proposal A.

Measures in the watershed property tax/school funding bill which Michigan voters approved last year have capped residential property assessment increases this year at 2.6 percent. The actual increase for many township homeowners may even be lower than that.

Proposal A gave property owners a hefty cut in their property taxes while raising the state sales and tobacco taxes. The reform measure limits yearly property tax increases to the cost of living or 5 percent, whichever is lower. This year's increase in the cost of living has come in at 2.6 percent, thus setting the cap at that rate.

Residential property owners who haven't substantially improved or built additions onto their parcels won't see an assessment increase of more than 2.6 percent.

In addition, township assessors are saying that the total increase in the value of all residential property in the township this year will be 1.81 percent. That figure is not the average increase residential property owners can expect but merely the aggregate increase across the board.

In 1994, low assessment rate growth and the property tax cut made the average township residential assessment increase 1.5 percent. The increase was 7.8 percent in 1993.

The 2.6 percent cap in Proposal

Support building for cancer patient

By YVONNE BEEBE
Staff Writer

In an effort that can only be characterized as altruistic, the Northville and Novi communities have joined hands to help one woman in her personal battle with cancer.

Kathy Karney, a Novi resident who has three children attending Northville Public Schools, was diagnosed with breast cancer in 1991. After undergoing a mastectomy, Karney's doctors told her the chances of a relapse were slim.

Unfortunately, last summer her worst fears were realized as doctors discovered the cancer had returned and spread - this time to her femur bone and lymph nodes in the lungs. In a procedure that could ultimately save her life, Karney will undergo a bone marrow transplant at Duke University in North Carolina within the next couple of months.

It would seem that the story would end here. In the case of Kathy Karney, however, this is where it begins.

What started two weeks ago as an effort by a group of friends and neighbors to raise funds for Karney's bone marrow transplant - a claim her insurance company has rejected - has rapidly mushroomed into a communitywide crusade to help ease a financial burden that is expected to cost about

So far, roughly 6,000 raffle tickets are in circulation throughout the community and a dinner fund-raiser has practically been sold out. In addition, numerous private donations are pouring in on a daily basis and the National Honor Society at the high school has started a pop can and bottle drive to help raise funds.

"People I don't even know have sent me checks. It's unbelievable," said Karney, who lives in Dunbarton Pines with her husband, Vic, and her three children Chris, 17, Meagan, 12, and Lauren, 10.

"This is amazing to me."

Flyers have been distributed to get word out about the upcoming events, which will include:

- The dinner, with food served by Genetti's Hole-in-the-Wall restaurant, scheduled for Feb. 24 at 7 p.m. at Northville High School. Tickets are $25 a person. Entertainment will be provided by the classic rock band Full House.

- After the dinner, a silent auction with such items as a color TV, a homemade quilt and dinner certificates for local restaurants will be sold.

- Raffle winners will be drawn at the dinner. Prizes include a 20 inch color TV, a water softener or purification system or a $250 cash

Veterans celebrate 50 years of service

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

When America called, they answered. They fought. Some lived, others died.

Last week, Northville's war veterans remembered those who didn't return and celebrated the institution that for a half century has been a second home to those who did.

The Northville Veterans of Foreign Wars (VFW) post turned 50 Jan. 30. The members of Post 4012 commemorated the golden anniversary on Saturday. It was a time to remember lost comrades, recall the post's humble beginnings and reflect on five decades of service to Northville veterans, their families and the community they call home.

"It's been quite a trip," said post commander Gordon Mason.

Senior vice commander Henry Tiilikka agreed.

"Today marks a milestone in the history of this post," Tiilikka

Community leader Phil Ogilvie dies at 75

Philip R. Ogilvie

By LEE SNIDER
Editor

Former city attorney and longtime community activist Philip R. Ogilvie died Monday, Feb. 6, at St. Joseph Hospital in Ann Arbor. He was 75.

Ogilvie served as city attorney of Northville for 25 years and was a leading figure in a number of organizations, from legal and educational institutions to service clubs and church groups.

Those who knew him best described him as honest, caring and professionally accomplished.

"He was just a loyal community person," said Bill Sliger, former owner of The Northville Record and Sliger Livingston Publications. "He was a dedicated, community man."

Ogilvie moved from Detroit to Northville in 1949 and began a general law practice with partner Cliff Hill. When Northville changed from a village to a city in 1955, he became the municipality's first corporation counsel. Except for a brief career detour as a local judge in 1967-68, he served an unbroken tenure as city attorney until 1982.

But his civic participation was not limited to employment as a public official. Ogilvie was an enthusiastic community booster and a fixture in many charitable and social service circles.

"He was a fine, fine person," Northville lawyer Herman Moehlman said. "He always showed his concern for others. I can only say good things about him."

Ogilvie's long history of local involvement included active participation in the Rotary Club, First Presbyterian Church and the Northville Area Development Corporation.

He was one of the original trustees of Schoolcraft College and helped develop the probation department that is still in use at 35th District Court.

He conducted his practice out of three different locations in downtown Northville, settling into office space at 104 W. Main for 23 years, from 1971 until March 1994. At that time he transferred his office to his home in Northville Township.

Ogilvie was a member of American Legion Post 147 and spearheaded the annual drive to collect Christmas gifts for patients at Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital.

In 1980, he was voted Northville Citizen of the Year.

Northville 2nd grader is named MDA rep

By YVONNE BEEBE
Staff Writer

Students and staff at Winchester elementary school have a celebrity in their midst.

Winchester second-grader Brett Marquardt has been named the Muscular Dystrophy Association's 1995 State Goodwill Ambassador. Brett, who was diagnosed at birth with congenital myopathy, a disease that affects muscle development, will serve as state MDA ambassador for the next two years.

As part of his new title, the 7-year-old will be making appearances at local fund-raisers and telethons.

Being active in MDA events is nothing new to Brett, who has participated, along with the rest of his family, in fund-raising events for a number of years.

Brett, who said he enjoys golfing fund-raisers the most, recently spoke to a Boy Scout troop at Country Day private school on what it means to be handicapped.

"He did really well talking to the kids," said Brett's mother Terri Marquardt. "The kids were really neat and attentive."

Brett's siblings Michael, 9, and Amanda, 5, also students at Winchester, said they are proud of "This is really good for Brett," said Paul Marquardt, Brett's father. "This is his recreation. When we go to Michael's or Amanda's soccer games, he has to watch on the sidelines. This is Brett's thing to do. He's not the spectator."

CLARIFICATION: A photo caption that appeared in last week's edition described Northville Township Detective John Werth as talking to a store clerk who had allegedly sold cigarettes to a minor. The individual Werth was pictured talking with was not the clerk who sold the cigarettes. The Record regrets the error.

CO-OP MEETING: The Northville Co-op Preschool board of directors will meet at 7 p.m. on Wednesday, Feb. 22. All members are welcome. Call 348-1791 for details.

FEMALE MENTORS NEEDED: The Young Mothers Assistance Program, a community prevention agency sponsored by the Community Commission on Drug Abuse (CCODA), is looking for female mentors to help support, educate and nurture pregnant and parenting teens in Western Wayne County. Training is ongoing.

U of M Alumni Club takes scholarship applications

A $600 scholarship is being awarded by the University of Michigan Northville Alumni Club to a Schoolcraft College student who is transferring to the University of Michigan.

Martha Nield, Northville Board of Education trustee and Scholarship Chairperson of the Alumni Club, said the scholarship committee will be reviewing the applications in April. The application deadline is Friday, March 31.

Individuals who wish to apply should have a 3.0 grade point average. They can obtain an application from Schoolcraft's Counseling Office, located in the Student Services Building.

Schoolcraft College is located at 18600 Haggerty Road, between Six and Seven Mile Roads in Livonia.

Death of man thought due to drug overdose

A 26-year-old Northville man was found dead in his room at the Inn on Main Street at 111 W. Main St. last Wednesday after a family member stopped by for a visit.

The man's mother, a West Bloomfield resident, arrived by to take the man to the doctor because he had been complaining of foot pain. When the woman entered her son's room, he was lying on the floor and was cold to the touch.

The man had white foam around his mouth and blood around his nostrils.

The woman called 911 and Northville City Police arrived shortly. An ambulance was not called to the scene because the man was obviously deceased.

Police believe the man probably died of an unspecified type of drug overdose. Lab results are pending.

FLEEING & ELUDING AN OFFICER: A Northville City Police officer was doing stationary radar on Eight Mile Road east of Novi Road when he noticed a Chevy Camaro driving 58 mph in a 40 mph zone and weaving within the traffic lane driving east of Eight Mile.

The officer activated his lights and attempted to pull the car over. The car sped up to about 65 mph when the officer activated the emergency lights.

They proceeded down the road for about a quarter mile and then the officer activated his siren on the patrol car. The officer pursued the Camaro for another mile to a mile-and-a-half at approximately 70 mph. Upon approaching Hagerty Road, the car made a quick left-hand turn into the National Bank of Detroit parking lot while the traffic light at the intersection was red.

The car turned around in the bank parking lot and appeared to be making an attempt to reenter Eight Mile Road when the officer and a Northville Township officer cut the driver off.

When the officer asked the driver why he did not stop immediately, the 19-year-old Novi man replied that he did not stop because he had been pulled over by a Novi officer about 15 minutes earlier and he "didn't feel like pulling over."

The man was arrested and posted a $100 cash bond. The officer also confiscated a knife in the back seat of the man's car. The police department is also seeking a warrant on a carrying a concealed weapon charge.

A preliminary exam for the fleeing and eluding charge has been scheduled for March 3 at 35th District Court in Plymouth.

HORN OUTLASTS OFFICER: Residents of Northridge apartments called township police when a woman's car alarm wouldn't shut off.

Police said residents called them at about 7 a.m. Sunday to complain that the alarm on a car in the parking lot of one of the apartment buildings had activated but wouldn't shut off.

The responding officer tried to contact the woman who is the registered owner of the 1988 Mustang without success. He also tried to unlock the car doors to try and shut off the alarm, again without success.

A tow truck driver was called. He disconnected the car's horn, ending the problem.

POSSESSION OF MARIJUANA: While on rounds at Northville Downs, a Northville City Police officer noticed a man smoking what appeared to be a marijuana cigarette.

As the officer approached, the man immediately threw the cigarette down and walked away at a brisk pace. The officer caught up with the man, a Livonia resident, and confiscated the cigarette. An arrest warrant is pending on lab results.

MARIJUANA: Township police arrested a Northville resident for several offenses, including possession of marijuana, on Friday.

The reporting officer in the case said he saw a 1978 Chevrolet Monte Carlo doing 60 miles per hour in a 45 mile per hour zone on Seven Mile west of Northville Road. The officer said he saw the Monte Carlo run the red light at the railroad tracks on Seven Mile, turning right onto Northville Road. The car turned so fast, the officer said, that it fishtailed on the dry pavement.

After stopping the vehicle, the officer said the driver, 21, was exhibiting signs of intoxication. When the man stepped from the vehicle for field sobriety tests, the officer said he saw a baggie on the floor with what turned out to be marijuana. He also found a bottle of beer under the man's seat and a beer can at the feet of the car's passenger.

A computer check found that the car actually belongs to the passenger, a 20-year-old Westland man. The license plate on it is registered to another vehicle.

The man was arrested on the marijuana charge and for reckless driving, improper plates and not having a driver's license in his possession. His friend was cited for possession of open intoxicants in a motor vehicle. The man was released on $300 bond and faces a hearing later this month in 35th District Court.

MALICIOUS DESTRUCTION OF PROPERTY: An officer on duty at Northville Downs entered the men's bathroom Feb. 2 and observed what sounded like kicking in the handicapped stall.

The officer approached the stall and the man walked out and past the officer. When the officer asked the man why he was kicking the stall, the man replied that he could do anything he wanted because he had just lost $1,000 to the track.

The 23-year-old Sterling Heights man was arrested and processed. A computer check revealed that the man had three outstanding warrants for his arrest for two assaults in Plymouth Township and one for a traffic offense.

A preliminary examination has been set for March 2 at 35th District Court in Plymouth.

SHOTGUN, BEERS STOLEN: A Marilyn Road couple's home was broken into on Saturday. The offender walked off with a $600 16-gauge shotgun.

The reporting officers were called to the scene as soon as the break-in was discovered. They checked the home without finding anyone inside.

The thieves broke open a wooden door to get in, causing $500 in damages.

A container of cottage cheese was found on the floor of the kitchen and the couple reported two beers missing from the refrigerator. Police are continuing to investigate.

DRUNKEN DRIVING: Township police arrested a Northville resident for drunken driving on Saturday.

The reporting officer said the man, 27, was driving westbound on Seven Mile Road near Northridge Drive with his bright lights on.

The officer blinked his lights twice at the man to no avail. After stopping the vehicle, the officer said he noticed signs of intoxication: red, glassy eyes, slurred speech and a strong odor of alcohol. The man admitted to drinking only "a couple of beers" that evening.

He failed field sobriety tests and was arrested. Breathalyzer testing at police headquarters later showed him to have a blood alcohol level of .19 percent, nearly twice the legal limit.

He was held until he sobered up and faces a hearing in 35th District Court.

TRUCK DAMAGED: A 1983 Ford truck parked overnight in the lot at the Northville Research building on Seven Mile was damaged last Wednesday and some items from it were stolen.

The owner, 29, said that someone broke one of the truck's windows, causing $100 in damages. Tools and other items were also taken. They are valued at $260.

Citizens with information on any of these incidents are asked to call the Northville police department at 349-1234 or township police at 349-9400.

LEGAL NOTICE

RE: 901 Carrington, Northville, MI 48167
Designation Of Dwelling Unit For Human Habitation - Order To Vacate, Repair or Demolish

The City of Northville and its Health Officer have determined that the residence located at 901 Carrington, Northville, Michigan, Oakland County, is unfit for human habitation, as defined in Section 6-515(a) of the City of Northville Ordinance, and if the repairs and/or improvements required below are not made by March 8, 1995, the Health Officer will post a placard on the residence containing the following words: "Condemned As Unfit For Human Habitation."

The legal owners of record, Sandra L. Myers and Steven Myers, are required to make repairs and/or alterations to remove the animal feces and substantial rubbish which are creating a unsanitary and unsafe condition, thereby creating a health hazard to neighbors and the residential community, make necessary structural repairs and/or alterations to bring the structure into compliance with the building code provisions, and maintain the grounds in accordance with the City Ordinance.

All required repairs and/or alterations are to be completed by March 8, 1995. Failure to take the required actions will result in the City of Northville issuing an Order To Demolish the structure under the authority of Section 6-515(g) of the Northville Ordinance. Refusal to repair or demolish the structure by August 6, 1995, will result in the City of Northville taking steps to demolish the structure and place a lien upon the property in an amount equal to the cost of demolishing the structure and any administrative and legal cost incurred as a result of demolishing the structure.

The owner(s) of record, or any other affected persons, have the right to appeal this decision, or any other decisions of the Health Officer, to the Housing Board of Appeals within 14 days of the date of the decision, by filing a written appeal with the City of Northville, Health Officer, 215 W. Main Street, Northville, MI 48167. The written request for appeal shall contain a description of the property, a description of the decision being appealed, and the grounds on which the decision is being appealed. The request for appeal shall contain a fee of $10.00 to cover the cost of handling the appeal. The Housing Board of Appeals may refund or retain the fee at its discretion. The Housing Board of Appeals shall fix a reasonable time for the hearing of the appeal and shall provide written notice to interested parties. The decision of the Housing Board of Appeals shall be final.

If a structure is condemned by the Health Officer and a placard indicating such is placed on the structure, no person shall deface or remove the placard until the Health Officer has determined that the unit conditions have been corrected. Any person defacing or removing a placard in violation of the Ordinance shall, upon conviction, be fined not less than $25.00 or more than $100.00 and costs of prosecution, or by imprisonment for a period not exceeding 90 days, or both fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the Court.

A placard containing the words "Condemned As Unfit For Human Habitation" will be placed on the structure if the indicated repairs and/or alterations are not completed by March 8, 1995

L.A. rape victim hopes for new life here

(Editor's note: This article is about a woman who was recently the victim of rape and is trying to start a new life in this community. To protect her identity she will be referred to by the pseudonym "Sarah.")

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

It was all so perfect, the American Dream come true.

That's how life used to be for Sarah. She had escaped the clutch of grinding poverty in her native land and came to America. She became a wife and mother here and eventually managed to bring her own mother from South America to live with her.

"I was excited. We were happy. We were all happy until this happened," Sarah said.

"This" was Dec. 29, 1994. It was just another day for most people. For Sarah, it was the beginning of a nightmare.

On that day, three men raped, beat, robbed and almost killed her. Their continued threats drove her and her family from their home in southern California. They now live in Northville Township but are virtually penniless.

Fortunately, a local woman has stepped up to help, organizing efforts to raise money to help Sarah and her family get back on their feet (see related story).

For Sarah, the trip from her native Peru to her new home in Northville Township has been long and hard.

She left South America in 1988 because her family was poverty-stricken and she wanted to help them.

"My country is beautiful but poor," Sarah said. "My family is very poor. That's why I came here. I was working two jobs to get money to send some back to them."

So it went for her, living in the tough streets of East Los Angeles. Still, life was good, Sarah said. She got married and she and her husband have a three-year-old son. The icing on the cake came when Sarah was able to bring her 70-year-old mother from Peru to be with her.

"We were happy," she said several times.

Then came that day. The three men, members of an L.A. gang, savagely attacked her, Sarah said.

"They just raped me and took whatever we had," she said, crying. "They took our car, my husband's tools and my purse."

"I was really afraid because they were mean people," Sarah said. "I used to say 'there aren't any mean people in the world.' Now I know that there are."

The three were mean enough to debate murdering her in order to eliminate the only witness to their crime.

"Two of them kept saying, 'What are you waiting for? Just kill her,'" Sarah said. "One didn't say anything. They fought (with him) about it. I begged them on my knees not to kill me. 'Take what you want but don't kill me,' I said. 'I have a baby and a mother to care for.'"

What happened next is fuzzy, Sarah said. She managed to escape but doesn't remember how, running to her home wearing only a T-shirt.

"Somehow I just got away. I was running all the way home. When I got home, my husband called the police. I couldn't talk. I was just on my knees praying. I said, 'Thank you, God' because he spared me," Sarah said as she wiped away tears. "I didn't want to live for me, but for my son and my family."

Instead of ending, however, the nightmare had just begun. The three men found Sarah's house keys and identification in her purse.

"The next morning, they started calling me," she said. "At first, they just hung up."

Later, however, the men threatened to kill her if she talked to police about the incident, Sarah said.

"I was afraid. I couldn't sleep. I was afraid they would kill me," she said. "I was so scared I wanted to leave California."

Help came from the Home Depot corporation.

Sarah worked at a Home Depot in California and when she told officials there what happened, they arranged for her to get a job at the new Home Depot store in Northville Township, located at Seven Mile and Haggerty.

So, last month the family said goodbye to their friends, packed up their belongings, rented a moving truck and drove to Northville. The trip used up the last of their money, however.

"We got here with one dollar left and the tank (on the truck) was almost empty," Sarah said.

Sarah's family spent their savings bringing her mother to America. They had to borrow money from friends to rent the truck, which they had to sleep in on the way to Michigan.

Sarah and her husband, son and mother also slept in it while trying to find an apartment here in Northville. That's when she met Eva Pieper, the leasing agent for Northridge Meadows apartments off of Seven Mile.

With Pieper's help, the family has gotten settled in a new apartment and Sarah has begun her new job.

"I feel much better," she said of leaving California. "I like it here. I don't mind the weather."

Her young son has never seen snow before, she added, and is fascinated by it.

"He wanted to play in it, but he doesn't have any boots, so I just had to hold him so he wouldn't," Sarah said.

Still, picking up the pieces after what's happened is hard.

"I'm trying to be strong and smile for the customers," she said. "I smile even though I don't feel like it. I have to be strong for my family."

Her family is also trying to be strong. Sarah's husband, who has worked at a restaurant in California for the last five years and was in line to become a manager there, left his job when the family moved. He is now looking for work. Sarah's mother is earning a few extra dollars babysitting and doing cleaning work.

Things won't ever be perfect again, but Sarah said her family is what sustains her: "When we pray together, my son says 'Thank you, God, for giving me my mommy back.'"

Please step outside and read this.

The cold you feel right now is how thousands of families feel 24 hours a day.

This year, thousands of men, women and children will be cold due to a financial hardship. For them, the thought of winter's cold only brings doubt and fear. Whether they are unexpectedly unemployed or the working poor, they will endure the chill of winter without the protection of a warm home. You can help prevent this by contributing to The Heat And Warmth (THAW) Fund.

THAW is a non-profit organization which helps struggling families in 11 Southeastern Michigan counties keep their heat on. It is the last resort for families who have exhausted all other possible resources. Since 1986, THAW has assisted over 15,000 families, more than half with children. Yet, THAW is not considered a handout, but a helping hand, for less than 10% of the recipients are repeat cases.

Once again, Detroit Edison is supporting THAW's efforts. Every dollar you donate will be matched by Detroit Edison and will go directly to help those in need. So, as the nights grow longer, please remember the families who grow colder.

OFFICIAL NOTICE TO ELECTORS AND TAXPAYERS OF THE CITY OF NOVI OF INTENT TO ISSUE BONDS SECURED BY THE TAXING POWER OF THE CITY AND RIGHT OF REFERENDUM THEREON

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that the City Council of the City of Novi, County of Oakland, Michigan, intends to issue special assessment bonds of the City, in total principal amount of not to exceed $1,700,000 for the purpose of defraying the Main Street Special Assessment District's share of the cost of streetscape improvements in said Special Assessment District in the City. Said bonds shall mature serially in not to exceed fifteen (15) annual installments with interest payable on the unpaid balance at a rate of not to exceed 9% per annum or such higher rate as may be permitted by law.

SOURCE OF PAYMENT OF BONDS

THE PRINCIPAL AND INTEREST OF THE SPECIAL ASSESSMENT BONDS shall be payable primarily from collections of an equal amount of special assessments against benefitted lands in the Special Assessment District and the bonds shall also pledge the limited tax full faith and credit of the City of Novi.

IN CASE OF THE INSUFFICIENCY OF THE SPECIAL ASSESSMENTS, THE PRINCIPAL AND INTEREST ON SAID BONDS SHALL BE PAYABLE FROM THE GENERAL FUNDS OF THE CITY LAWFULLY AVAILABLE FOR SUCH PURPOSE.

RIGHT OF REFERENDUM

THE BONDS will be issued without vote of the electors unless a PETITION requesting an election on the question of issuing either or both series of bonds, signed by not less than 10% OF THE REGISTERED ELECTORS in the City is filed with the City Council by depositing with the City Clerk WITHIN FORTY-FIVE (45) DAYS after publication of this notice. If such a petition is filed, the bonds affected cannot be issued without an approving vote by a majority of electors voting on the question.

THIS NOTICE is given pursuant to the requirements of Section 5(g) of Act 279, Public Acts of Michigan, 1909, as amended. Further information concerning the matters set out in this notice may be secured from the City Clerk's office.

Organizer heads effort to help displaced victim

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

When Eva Pieper heard about the tragedy that had befallen "Sarah" and her family, she knew she couldn't just turn away.

Instead, she organized a relief effort to help the young rape victim and her family. Pieper is asking for Northville residents to join the undertaking.

"You see how this whole thing has affected four peoples' lives and you want to do something," Pieper said. "You can't undo what's been done but if we can help them get back on their feet, I think that's very important."

Pieper is a leasing agent for the Northridge Meadows apartment complex on Seven Mile in Northville Township. She met Sarah three weeks ago when the young woman was looking for an apartment.

The woman's story moved Pieper to offer her help, just as she did last year in organizing a relief fund to aid victims of the Northridge, Calif., earthquake.

Pieper is raising money and seeking donations of food and clothing to help Sarah and her family get back on their feet. Leads on a job for Sarah's husband or on a serviceable car would also be appreciated.

Her goal, Pieper said, is to raise $2,000 - enough for the family to buy a car. Their only vehicle was stolen and then gutted by the men who attacked Sarah.

A car would be invaluable, especially to Sarah's husband in his hunt for a job, Pieper said.

"We're not trying to make them rich. We're trying to provide them with enough money to buy a vehicle so they can get back on track," Pieper said.

Pieper downplayed her efforts, saying she's only doing what she feels is right.

"That's what it's all about. You look for people to help you when you're down and you should look to help people when you're up. I'm just in a situation where I can help," she said.

She's set up a special account with NBD bank. It's a non-profit fund and donations to it are tax-deductible.

You can make a donation by check at any NBD branch. Two are located in Northville: one on Eight Mile near Haggerty and the other on Seven Mile in the Highland Lakes shopping center. Checks should be made out to "The Northridge Meadow Relief Fund."

There's another way to help, Pieper added. She owns a hair salon in Farmington Hills and has a friend who owns one in Northville. Together they're offering haircuts and styling services in return for donations to the fund.

Shear Impressions, Pieper's salon, is located on Nine Mile in Farmington Hills. Men can get their hair cut for $10, women for $20. A package of four tanning booth visits goes for $12. All of the money goes directly to the relief fund account and then to Sarah and her family.

Those interested should pay by check and the checks should be made out to the fund. Call Shear Impressions for an appointment at 476-8870.

Pieper's friend Joan Budny owns The Classic Touch on Seven Mile in the Highland Lakes shopping center. On Feb. 14, her salon will offer a special deal to help out Sarah and her family: shampoo and a set for $12, the money going to the relief fund account. Again, remember that you need to pay by check and the check should be made out to the fund. To make an appointment, call The Classic Touch at 348-3077 or 348-9290.

If you want to donate food or clothing, you can drop it by the Northridge Meadows leasing office, Shear Impressions or The Classic Touch.

The family needs clothing, particularly warm winter clothing, Pieper said. Sarah wears a size 10-12 and her mother wears size 14. Sarah's husband wears 34 inch-waist pants and "large" size shirts and coats. Their son is three years old.

Sarah's husband has worked at a restaurant for the last five years and has completed a course in finish carpentry. He's looking for a job. If you have a lead on one, contact Pieper at 344-9770 from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. or at Shear Impressions after 4 p.m.

ORMAND L. TENNANT

Ormand Leroy Tennant of Northville died Thursday Feb. 2, 1995, at St. Mary Hospital. He was 73.

Mr. Tennant was born in Canada on Feb. 8, 1921, to Robert and Cora (Clemente) Tennant.

He was a retired machinist and spent most of his life in the Northville area. He was also a member of the Northville Eagles.

Survivors include his daughters, Carol Acre of South Carolina and Amanda Murray of Grayling; sons, David of Manchester and James of Howell; sister, Arlene Bauman of Northville; 11 grandchildren and 12 great grandchildren.

A service was held Sunday, Feb. 5, at Casterline Funeral Home, with the Northville Eagles officiating. Interment was private.

THOMAS C. MAIBERGER

Thomas Clarence Maiberger of the Northville-Nowi area died in his home on Wednesday, Feb. 1, 1995. He was 55.

Mr. Maiberger was born in Highland Park on March 1, 1939, to Clarence and Edna (Koski) Maiberger.

A master craftsman and sign painter, he painted many signs in the area and was the owner of Tom Maiberger - Sign Writer.

Mr. Maiberger studied Isshinryu karate for 11 years and was a 3rd degree blackbelt. Throughout his life, he loved hunting and the outdoors and was a member of Northern Oaks Hunt Club. At age 50, he and a partner built and developed Highland Golf Driving Range in Milford.

Survivors include his wife of 32 years, Suzanne; daughter, Gail (James) Calcaterra of Wixom; son, Dean of Northville; sister, Elaine (Jim) Wolke of Northville; brother, Michael (Linda) of Milford; granddaughters, Angela, Alysse and Alexis; and four nephews.

Family and many friends say he will be greatly missed.

Two hundred of Mr. Maiberger's friends attended a memorial service on Saturday, Feb. 4, at Casterline Funeral Home in Northville, with Dr. Douglas W. Vernon of the First United Methodist Church in Northville officiating.

Memorial contributions may be sent to the Michigan Cancer Society.

PHILIP R. OGILVIE

Philip Ramsay Ogilvie, former judge and Northville city attorney, died Monday, Feb. 6, 1995. He was 75.

Mr. Ogilvie was born May 25, 1919, to David and Georgina (Robertson) Ogilvie in Detroit. He graduated from Henry Ford Trade School and Detroit College of Law and served in the U.S. Navy during World War II.

Mr. Ogilvie moved to Northville in 1949 and was employed as Northville Village attorney. He became the sole attorney for the City of Northville in 1955 and remained in that capacity until July of 1982, leaving only to serve as Northville Municipal Court judge, 1967-68.

During his tenure as judge he was instrumental in starting the Probation Department for the Municipal Court. The department was incorporated into the District Court at the time of its formation.

Mr. Ogilvie was past trustee and elder for First Presbyterian Church of Northville. He was an original member of the Northville Area Development Corporation and Schoolcraft College Foundation, receiving a Certificate of Appreciation from the college.

He also served as Past President of Northville Rotary and its Foundation and received a Distinguished Service Citation and the Paul Harris Award from the Rotary Club.

Mr. Ogilvie was named Northville Citizen of the Year in 1980. He received the Silver Beaver Award and was active in the Boy Scout movement much of his life.

In the mid '70s, Mr. Ogilvie became involved in obtaining Christmas gifts for the patients at Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital. He continued in that role through 1994.

At the time of his death, he was a member of the Michigan State Bar, Suburban Bar, the Northville Rotary Club and Post 147 of the American Legion.

Mr. Ogilvie worked in private practice from 1949 until the time of this death.

Mr. Ogilvie is survived by his wife of 49 years, Ethel of Northville Township; by his daughter Janet Carlton of Canton Township and son Gary (Jodie) Ogilvie of Washington; and by two grandsons, Douglas and Lucas Ogilvie.

Funeral services are planned for today, Thursday, Feb. 9, at 11 a.m. at First Presbyterian Church, 200 E. Main. Memorials to the church would be appreciated by the family.

Arrangements were made by Casterline Funeral Home.

Law names township woman to district staff

State Representative Gerald Law recently appointed Northville Township resident Dorothy Tilney to be his volunteer grassroots representative in the 20th House District.

A longtime resident of Northville Township, Tilney said she wants to see Law stay in touch with the community.

"My goal as district coordinator is to let people know that state government through Gerry Law is accessible to all people."

Tilney has served as a volunteer for Republican Party activities for many years and knows how to field the concerns of people in the district, according to Law.

Tilney is involved in several grassroots Republican activities, including the newly formed Suburban Republican Women and Northville Community Republican Club. She has campaigned for local, state and congressional candidates.

In 1992, she served as the state delegate to the Michigan Republican Convention. Because of her involvement in area partisan politics, she received an award for her volunteer contributions to the party.

Tilney says people can talk to her at any of the many community activities she attends or contact her at her home.

People in the 20th House District may contact Representative

Law at his district phone: (313) 455-6950; or, at his State Capitol office, phone: (517) 373-3861.

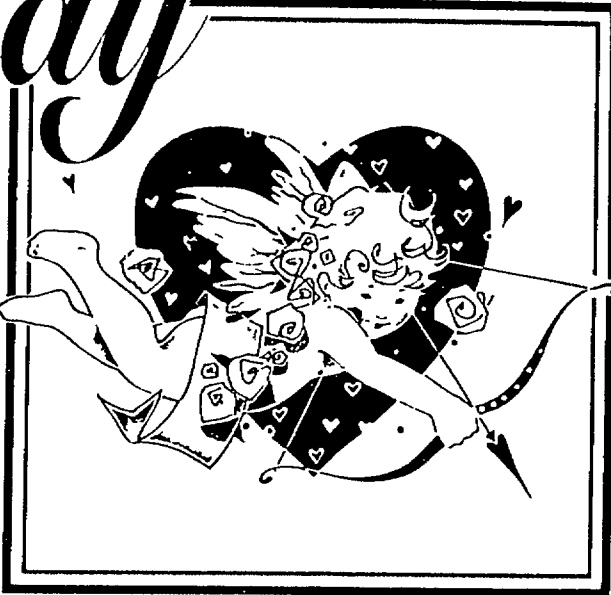

Law represents Northville Township and the Wayne County portion of the city in the state's lower chamber

There's no better time than now! Get that perfect Valentine's gift, intimate apparel is available from petite to full sizes, exotic gifts include: forever lamps, leatherwear, lotions and oils, scented candles, games, a bath boutique, sexy men's gear and the largest selection of seductive swim suits. The address and phone number: 26111 Novi Road, South of I-96, (810) 305-9090.

Maisano's

Looking for a bit of Italy with a romantic flair? Enjoy a delicious meal at Maisano's — a charming, cozy, Italian eatery right in Novi. Recipes are from owners Frank and Jackie Maisano's families. The menu has wonderful pasta dishes, lasagna, gnocchi, cannelloni, fresh veal, seafood, and daily specials prepared by Chef Joseph Ditri. Stop in today! At Maisano's you're more like a guest than a customer. Maisano's Italian Restaurant, 26139 Novi Road, between Grand River and I-96. (810) 348-1647.

Dinser's

Stop by Dinser's Flower Shop and Greenhouse for a wide selection of Valentine's Day gifts for your sweetheart. The freshest top quality Michigan grown roses in the area starting at only $45.99 including a lovely box and romantic bow (quantities limited). For more than 80 years, Dinser's name has meant top quality.

A great tip for insuring extra enjoyment and longer life for your roses and other fresh flowers: before placing in a vase hold stems under warm water in a sink or bowl, cut about an inch off each stem with a sharp knife. (No scissors please, they tend to pinch stem and prevent water uptake.) This process corrects stem blockage by air or bacteria which causes premature wilting in roses. Repeat this process every other day.

We offer a 100 percent satisfaction on all your floral needs. Dinser's is known for unique designs, gifts, decorations for everyday and weddings and parties. Commercial accounts welcome. We deliver to most of south-east Michigan and wire flowers worldwide.

Located at 24501 Wilcox Road, Novi, just north of Ten Mile. 1-800-438-0602, (810) 349-1320, fax (810) 349-8665.

Hours are M-F, 9-6, Sat., 9-4, Sun., 10-2, Valentine's Day, 9-7

Mill Race Matters

Membership renewals have been coming in for quite some time. This week the Northville Historical Society wishes to acknowledge donations in excess of membership.

This year's contributing members are: Doris Stover, the Northville Genealogical Society, Stan and Hazel Coan, Al and Barb Glover, Terry and Linda Heaton, Robert and Sue Nix, James and Betty O'Leary, Bob Russell, John and Lois Winters, Don and Jean Hansen, Stuart Kissinger, Phelps and Mernie Hines, Cheryl and Dennis Cassidy, and Mark and Kathy Chester.

Sustaining members are: Wally and Marlene Donoghue, Paul and Julie Lundstedt, Louise Frid, Frank and Ruth Whitmyer, Art and Diane Rockall, John and Lore Reeber, John Miller and Wanda Huber. Thanks to all for that extra support to keep the organization and Mill Race Village operating smoothly.

Thank you also go to Henry Ford Heritage Association for their cash donation, and Harold Beard for a group of old bottles. Mr. Beard is interested in digging in old privies to uncover bottles and other memorabilia. He says he can locate them if you don't know where the one on your property may have been.

If interested, contact him at (810) 627-2051 and tell him you got his name from the Northville Historical Society.

Recently a resident of Kings Mill called the Society office offering to donate an antique ironing board. Unfortunately, in a confusion, your name and number have been lost. Could you please call again? The organization is most interested in your donation. If you know who the possible donor may have been, please let her know we are sorry about this oversight.

Only a few tickets (about 10) remain for the Mill Race Village benefit event scheduled for Feb. 23 at Genitti's. The evening includes dinner, entertainment and a live auction and costs $35 per person. Contact Fran Gazlay, 349-0767, for current ticket information.

Also upcoming at Mill Race Village are the Northville Garden Club Spring Garden Walk as well as the Michigan Chapter of the Nature Conservancy general information meeting. The Nature Conservancy meeting is scheduled for May 4 at New School Church. It begins at 7:30 p.m.

The event is free and features a presentation of the Academy Award nominated film, The Garden of Eden. The film discusses ideas on the importance of preserving biological diversity. Refreshments will also be served. Everyone is welcome to attend. More information on the Garden Walk will be available in weeks to come.

Concerned Citizens for the Arts in Michigan have established a phone campaign for arts and humanities supporters. For $1.99, a call to 1-900-370-9000 will provide mailgrams to the caller's two Senators and representative. For $9.50, a call to 1-800-651-1575 will send three Western Union mailgrams, worded by the caller, to the two senators and representative on the next day.

This effort is aimed at preserving the National Endowment for the Arts as well as the National Endowment for Humanities, the Institute of Museum Services, and the Corporation for Public Broadcasting.

On Feb. 15 and 16, Oakland Community College Highland Lakes Campus will hold a Cultural Bazaar in honor of Black History month. It runs from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. in the Student Center Arena.

Also in February to celebrate Black History month, the Salem area historical society is planning a field trip to Amherstburg, Ontario, to visit the North American Black Historical Museum and Cultural Center. The tour is planned for Feb. 25.

The cost for transportation and lunch will be $17.50. Call Dora at (313) 453-0769 for more information. At the March 23 annual meeting, Salem members will hear music performed by Celtic harp, dulcimer, flute, guitar and sitar. The potluck dinner begins at 6 p.m. at their Township Hall.

The Commerce Township area historical society meeting of Feb. 23 will feature Walled Lake amusement park and Walled Lake casino. They meet at Stonecrest at 7:30 p.m. On May 13 and 14, the Novi Historical Commission plans to celebrate Michigan History Week with a program featuring the historic years, 1700 to 1900. Look for more details in the months to come.

From March 8 to 30, Oakland Community College Highland Lakes Campus will feature a photo exhibit "Through Our Eyes" to commemorate Women's History Month.

Hearing on Ward church proposal canceled

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

An upcoming public hearing on the latest plan that Ward Church has for land it owns at the corner of Six Mile and Haggerty has been canceled.

The Northville Township Planning Commission was scheduled to hold the hearing on Feb. 21. That date has been nixed, Director of Planning Carol Maise said last week, and a new one won't be set until Ward officials submit information about the proposal that the commission has requested.

Delay, however, isn't an unusual thing when it comes to development plans for the 139-acre parcel. Since 1987, Ward and the township have tried to agree on a plan for the property. Ward is now located at Six Mile and Farmington in Livonia and wants to build a new, bigger church on its township site.

Church representatives received township approval for development proposals twice before, but didn't move forward on them. Instead, the time limit on the approvals expired, moving everything back to square one.

Last year, Ward teamed up with Farmington Hills developer Gary Sakwa to try again. They floated a new and ambitious plan with township officials: combine the church and a huge commercial shopping center into one plan under the township's Haggerty Planned Unit Development (HPUD) option.

The design underwent major revisions in recent months but the basic elements remain intact. They include the 240,000 square foot Ward Church (built in two phases), 300,000 square feet of shopping space and 4,800 parking spaces. A loop road would circle the church and the shopping center, with an entrance off Haggerty and one off Six Mile. Two more Haggerty entrances are also called for in the plan.

Community rallies behind needy patient prize. Tickets are $2 apiece or three for $5.

The donations, which are tax deductible, are going through a non-profit organization out of Birmingham called My Friends Care, a group that helps cancer patients in situations like Karney's. If Karney's insurance company, Blue Cross/Blue Shield of Michigan, eventually agrees to cover the procedure or for some reason she no longer needs the money, the funds raised will be returned to the organization for use in helping someone else.

Karney said the concern and support the community is demonstrating have overwhelmed her and her family.

"Even though we are going through all this trauma, to have all these people who care and who want to help, it makes it a little easier," said Karney, who has lived in the community for the past nine years. "It's nice to know I'm not going through this alone."

Charlene Frellick, a Northville resident who has been in charge of ticket sales for the fund-raising dinner, said the outpouring of support has been heartwarming.

"We are just about sold out," said Frellick, adding that roughly 450 tickets have been bought. "I think we're going to have to start a waiting list."

Lynda Baca, Karney's neighbor and good friend who is coordinating the fund-raising efforts, said she hopes to raise about $30,000.

"It's amazing," Baca said. "The community has really pulled together."

Karney is 10 days into an 80-day procedure that includes what is called an autologous bone marrow transplant. In about three weeks, she will travel to Duke University to undergo the procedure, in which her own marrow is used rather than a donor's. When she arrives at Duke, Karney must have a $75,000 down payment.

Karney will also undergo three 21-day series of intensive chemotherapy treatments here in Michigan.

Karney's doctors recommended she have the transplant at Duke because of the facility's low rate of mortality and because there were no hospitals in Michigan that offer comparable accommodations for the procedure.

Although Karney's medical insurance plan, available to her through her husband's employer, General Motors Corp., covers bone marrow transplants for patients with ovarian or testicular cancer, the policy does not cover transplants for breast cancer patients. That treatment has been deemed experimental and does not qualify for claim benefits.

Ever since her doctors recommended the procedure, Karney said she has been in a push-and-pull struggle with the insurance company to determine what facets of her treatment, if any, are covered.

"I'm in limbo," Karney said. "All I want is for them to cover something."

The situation progressed to the point where Blue Cross representatives would not return Karney's calls and finally she turned to U.S. Sen. Carl Levin, who has written letters to the company regarding the woman's situation.

Rude Difazio, director of media relations for Blue Cross/Blue Shield, said the company bases its decisions on medical research, peer journals and medical group opinions.

"There is no question that the medical community still considers this procedure investigational for breast cancer patients," Difazio said.

However, Karney's case is not closed, Difazio said, adding that the company will review a narrative about the procedure it received from Duke. Insurance company representatives will examine the document and possibly reconsider its decision.

"We are giving it our normal in-depth review," Difazio said. "It's not a cookie-cutter decision. We evaluate each case individually."

According to a recent newsletter on bone marrow transplant entitled BMT Newsletter, breast cancer is the most frequently occurring cancer in women, with about 182,000 new cases diagnosed in 1994 alone.

"How many years does this have to be considered experimental? How many women have to go through this?" Karney said.

"This could happen to anyone," Baca added.

Despite the emotional strain,

Karney remains optimistic about her condition.

"My husband, Vic, keeps saying, 'Don't worry about it. It will all work out,'" she said. "I think it probably will work out. I'm a positive person. Plus I'm stubborn."

Assessment numbers add up to relief in township

A does not apply if you've done something like tack a new garage onto the old homestead. Your property will be taxed at its market value this year but the 2.6 percent cap will apply only to the value of the original structure. Next year, the addition or improvement will be folded into your home's value and then the cap will apply.

Prior to Proposal A, assessment increases were based solely on the market value of each home. Now there are two factors to consider when looking at a home's value: market value and taxable value. The assessed value of a home — which is half the property's market value — will still increase each year as before.

Now, however, the taxable value of the home will increase only as high as the cap each year. Even if your home increases 10 percent in assessed value, for example, its taxable value — on which your property tax bill is based — can go up only by 2.6 percent this year.

If a home is sold or the deed transferred, however, the taxman gets to close the gap and tax the property based on its true market value. The cap goes back on, through, in the second year of new ownership.

The cap does not apply to non-residential properties. In Northville Township, the total increases in each of the three non-resident property categories are as follows:

- Agricultural: no change.
- Commercial: 5.93 percent increase.
- Industrial: 1.11 percent increase.

Township assessors expect to mail assessment notices for this year to individual property owners within the next two weeks. Residents who feel their assessments are inaccurate can file an appeal with the township's two boards of assessment review. The boards are scheduled to meet on March 7, 13 and 14 but specific appointment hours are not yet set.

Northville recruit starts training with state police

Northville native Andrea G. Barber has been accepted and is presently receiving training as a Michigan State Police recruit.

Barber, a member of the 111th Michigan State Police Recruit

Class, is expected to complete his training May 12. As a member of the 111th, Barber will receive 17 weeks of intense training in criminal law, criminal investigation, crime scene processing, patrol tactics, physical fitness, first aid, firearms and defensive tactics.

Barber will also be trained in precision driving techniques and special police enforcement functions. Upon graduation Barber will become Michigan State Police Trooper assigned to one of the 64 state police posts in Michigan.

The 111th Recruit Class began with 100 recruits. Of those recruits 16 have previous law enforcement experience, 22 have prior military service and 60 are college graduates.

HEALTH NOTE

MUSCLING IN

In 1990, the American College of Sports Medicine revised its exercise guidelines to include strength training along with aerobic workouts as part of its recommendation for a more balanced fitness program. Since then, a study recently published in the New England Journal of Medicine reinforces the wisdom of this advice. The study shows that, in just two weeks of a strength-training program, 50 frail men and women in their 80's and 90's were able to increase their weight-lifting ability by 118 percent, the walking speed by 12 percent, and their stair-climbing ability by 28 percent. If strength training can produce these results in the elderly, just imagine what it can accomplish for younger people. A well-designed program of strength training strives to work different muscle groups to achieve overall fitness and balanced muscular strength.

In addition to increasing overall strength, improving the body's physical appearance, and reducing the risk of osteoporosis, strength training is also beneficial in a weight-loss (fat burning) program. To learn more about the benefits of strength training and the correct method for lifting weights, feel free to call our office.

P.S. Muscular Imbalance increases the risk of injury.

Longtime community leader dies

"He was community minded in a quiet way," said Paul Vernon, Northville mayor from 1977-87. "He didn't expect a lot of publicity, a lot of fanfare."

"He was a laid-back kind of guy. He'd come to the council meetings with hand-scribbled notes."

"You can't count the number of years he was involved in things," added Mayor Chris Johnson.

Mary Ellen Patterson Hollis, Ogilvie's legal secretary for 39 years, said her boss always paid close attention to the needs of his clients.

"He was a very honest attorney and cared for the people. He was a very kind, good man. If you work for someone as long as I worked for him, you know they've got to be nice."

Ogilvie's practice focused on civil law, particularly probate and real estate cases.

Ogilvie graduated from Detroit's Northwestern High School and served in the Navy during World War II. He earned his law degree from Detroit College of Law.

He was appointed a municipal judge in 1967 when the old local court system was still in operation, but chose not to run for district court following judicial reorganization in 1969.

His only attempt at elective office came in 1978 when he ran for district court after a second judgeship was created at the court, located in Plymouth. He won the primary election that year but lost the run-off to James Garber.

Garber would go on to serve as judge for 16 years, retiring from the bench only last December.

Ogilvie was an engaging companion, said his good friend Dick Lyon, the owner of the C. Harold Blum Insurance Agency.

"He was just a great guy - honest and concerned about your well being."

"We belonged to a poker club that was 2 cents a chip when it started out. Thirty years later when it disbanded, chips were still 2 cents. If you made $4 you had a good night. Nobody wanted to make money from their friends. It was just to get together and talk."

Ogilvie suffered a stroke in 1991 but remained alert and active in both his law practice and community affairs.

His health reportedly took a turn for the worse just before last Christmas and he was admitted to St. Joseph in late January.

He died at 1:15 a.m. Feb. 6.

He is survived by his wife Ethel, whom he married in 1946. A daughter, Janet Carlton, and a son, Gary of Washington state, also survive. He had two grandsons (see obituary, page 6-A).

In addition to his other affiliations, Ogilvie was a member of the Northville Golf League and was active in the Goodfellows newspaper drive. He belonged to the Michigan State Bar and the Suburban Bar.

A service was planned for 11 a.m. today at First Presbyterian Church.

Join effort to make ice rinks at Ford Field

The Northville Action Council recently called together several groups and individuals to plan and implement the building of two ice rinks at Ford Field: one rink for younger kids and general skating and a second rink for hockey.

The rinks will be open from 3 p.m. to 10 p.m. weekdays and noon until 10 p.m. on Saturdays and Sundays.

Organizers hope to start the first weekend in February and continue working through the month, or longer, if weather permits.

Volunteers are needed to help supervise activities and build and maintain the rinks.

Those available to help are asked to contact the Recreation Department at 349-0203. Fifty volunteers are needed to chaperone.

Volunteers can also call Scott Wilson at 420-2142 or Roxanne Casterline at 349-1237 for more information on providing this wholesome, fun outlet for youth of Northville.

Our Opinion

Teacher pact improves on previous practice

In a surprise move, the Northville School District and its teachers' union, the Northville Education Association, arrived at a new three-year contract last month. The pact was noteworthy for the extraordinary rapidly with which it was concluded and for the earliness of the settlement date. The bargaining period was exceedingly brief and the current two-year contract between the district and the NEA doesn't expire until August.

So why the haste?

School officials have told us it was in everyone's best interest to settle early as so much having to do with education funding is up in the air. As a result of last year's passage of Proposal A, Northville finds itself dependent on state funding for the first time and that has to be a little unnerving.

Prior to this year, the local school district derived almost all of its revenue directly from property taxes, but all that has changed. Proposal A, which slashed school district levies to 6 mills on so-called homestead property, threw Northville into a class with those districts that have to dicker with Lansing for their per-pupil grants. Northville is no longer independent of state largess.

So far, money from the new taxes included in Proposal A has been sufficient to provide adequate funding, but the future remains uncertain for two reasons: 1) the economy won't always be as robust as it is now, and 2) state lawmakers haven't been specific on what they'll do to furnish school aid in the event that tax collections start to sag.

The new contract, then, locks in the terms of employment for the next three years and provides a measure of security for both the district and its faculty. It also avoids a situation where bargaining would have to be conducted under the provisions of the new teacher strike bill. The law, set to go into effect April 1, imposes penalties on teachers who take part in strikes and forces unions to accept school districts' last offers when impasse occurs in negotiations. Observers say the bill shifts the balance of power in collective bargaining to the school districts.

The teachers would seem to have the most to gain from wrapping up their contract before the strike bill takes effect, but school district representatives, too, are liable to feel more comfortable under the old, familiar format.

So much for the early aspect of the contract. What about the terms of the accord?

Teachers will receive 2.5 percent salary increases each of the three years of the contract. Added to that figure is something called an off-schedule increase of 0.5 percent in the first two years and a 0.25 percent hike in the third. Off-schedule increases use base salary figures in their calculations and, unlike on-schedule increases, don't take compounding into account.

The salary increases average out to roughly 8.2 percent over the three year life of the pact, or about 2.73 percent per year.

This is a reasonable figure and one which approximates the current low rate of inflation.

Of course, the 30 percent of the district's teachers who haven't yet reached the top end of the salary schedule also stand to receive their annual seniority raises in addition to the increases provided for in the contract.

The fact that only a minority of instructors fall into this category shouldn't be taken as a sign of fiscal conservatism: the 70 percent of the faculty members who have reached the top of the scale will make at least $51,713 in the 1995-96 school year.

Throw in longevity bonuses ranging from $450 to $2,700, tuition reimbursement for teachers attending graduate school, and medical, dental and vision insurance and you've got quite a handsome compensation package indeed.

All paid for courtesy of the district's property owners.

Still, the observation must be made that school district and union negotiators are getting better at recognizing economic reality. The new contract is at least not extravagant and that, by itself, represents an improvement over the status quo of only a few years earlier.

History is lost in passing

It seems as though the only time I ever get around to brushing up on my local history is when a prominent community leader dies.

Lee Snider

The first time I had occasion to contact several of the movers and shakers of another generation was when former Northville Record editor Jack Hoffman died in 1993.

I decided to write the story myself at that time, and I ended up talking with a lot of the people who had been in the news when Jack worked at the paper back in the '70s and '80s.

It was a sad turn of events, but many of the things I learned and the anecdotes I heard were quite fascinating. Every great city has an interesting background and I remember feeling more closely in tune with Northville than ever after my series of conversations with the "old timers."

Well, that feeling's starting to become familiar to me, as the same thing has happened with the passing of former city attorney Phil Ogilvie who died on Monday.

In gathering quotes from some of Phil's cronies I ended up calling Dick Lyon, Herm Mochlman, Jim Garber and others. It's like listening to a talking history book to hear those people reminisce. Their remembrances of 10, 20 and 30 years ago paint pictures of a simpler, slower-paced time.

I knew Phil a little, as he would call the office once in a while to offer his take on the local political scene. I recall how his insightful views contrasted with his faint-sounding voice. His words conveyed clarity and power, even if the voice used to deliver them was somewhat weak.

I always feel unequal to the task of writing about these greats whenever the time comes to do a biographical recap. But then, there's no way you can do justice to the life of a major-league contributor in a brief newspaper story.

The article about Mr. Ogilvie appears on page 1 of today's paper. The obituary containing additional information submitted by the family and Casterline Funeral Home can be found on page 6. I hope you'll take a few minutes to read about this extraordinary individual.

It can happen here

Just two weeks after reporter Yvonne Beebe profiled the lives of two young former drug addicts in The Record, we hear word of the overdose death of a 26-year-old man.

Details of what happened are somewhat sketchy but police think the man, who lived in the Inn on Main Street, accidentally took a lethal dose of an undetermined substance. His mother found him in his room when she came to take him to the doctor's.

The incident provides a stark reminder that no community, even one as together as this one, is exempt from drug-related tragedy.

Family's tragedy brings hope and chance to help

It's a tale that will both break your heart and renew your faith.

On pages five and six of this week's issue of The Northville Record is the story of "Sarah." A native of Peru, she came to this country seven years ago to find work that would pay enough to enable her support her poverty-stricken family back home. She married, had a child and managed to bring her elderly mother to America to be with her.

Life was good - until six weeks ago.

On Dec. 29, three men attacked Sarah near her home in California, beating, raping and robbing her. They almost killed her and threatened to do just that if she ever talked to police. Sarah's fear was so great that she and her family decided to leave California and begin a new life thousands of miles away.

They've found friends here in Northville to help them along.

Sarah worked at a Home Depot store in the Golden State. When she told her employers what happened, they arranged for her to be transferred to the new Home Depot store here in Northville Township.

Scraping together a few dollars from friends, the family rented a moving van and headed for Michigan.

It's been a hard trip. They arrived in Northville almost destitute, sleeping in the truck on some nights as they hunted for an apartment. Money was - and is - very tight. Things looked bleak.

Then Sarah met Eva Pieper, who manages the Northridge Meadows apartments complex on Seven Mile Road. When she heard Sarah's tragic story, Pieper opened her home and heart.

She's organized an effort to help raise $2,000 for Sarah and her family, enough to get them back on their feet. Donations of clothes and food are also being sought as are leads on a job for Sarah's husband or on a badly-needed car for the family.

Pieper owns a hair salon in Farmington Hills. She's teamed up with Joan Budny, who owns a salon in the township. Together they're offering hair services in return for donations to the relief effort.

While nothing can ever erase the pain of what's happened to our new neighbors, there is hope. If all of us pitch in, we can turn that flickering flame into an inferno.

There's hope because Sarah and her husband, mother and child haven't given up. They continue to maintain their and are working hard to rebuild their lives.

There's hope because good people haven't just shrugged their shoulders at what's happened. Home Depot, Eva Pieper and Joan Budny are making a difference in the lives of people who desperately need assistance.

There's hope because Northville residents have a long history of opening their hearts to those in need. Down through the decades, when tragedy has visited, our community has stepped up and reached out a helping hand.

We pray for Sarah and her family. We applaud Home Depot, Pieper and Budny for caring and urge everyone to join this worthy cause.

Videos blind the inner eye

One morning my son, Patrick, came down to breakfast and was very anxious to share a story with me. He began telling me the tale which he said he had heard after I put him to bed the night before. Shortly after he began, I realized it sounded too familiar, that I had heard the same story but couldn't just then put my finger on where or when.

I tried to put the puzzle together. He was upstairs and I had been downstairs watching television. I wondered if I had the television up too loud or if he had crept downstairs and overheard it and so I asked him about it. The answer was no on both counts. Still perplexed, I asked him to tell me more about the story, thinking maybe that would help, which he did. There was no doubt about it. It was the same story.

I told him that I was watching that show on television and couldn't understand how he could have known about it if he was upstairs.

The mystery was soon solved. The answer was so simple I wondered how I could have missed it. Patrick had received a new short wave radio. For some reason, it had not occurred to me or him that along with radio programs, he could also pick up television shows. The show I had watched on the television the night before was the same program he had listened to on his new radio.

He was fascinated with the idea of listening to a show on the radio. Not exactly a new idea, but something that has become a lost form of entertainment. He likes trying to imagine what the action is, he said. Because it was written for television, and not radio, it had long pauses where there would be action on the screen with no dialog, which he didn't like. Since he has seen the show on television, he can picture the actors. Now he reads the television guide to find out what he can listen to on the radio. He has also heard radio programs in other languages including French, Spanish, and German.

This story reminds me of something Dick Clark recently said. Clark said that television viewers of music videos are being robbed of the imagination that comes from viewing music videos instead of listening to music.

Which brings me to one more recollection of listening to a story on the radio. While driving on a vacation, and as so often happens when traveling from town to town, it's necessary to keep switching radio stations to try to get one with good reception, we happened upon a radio station airing a story being read by former first lady Barbara Bush. I remember the car became very quiet. No one was yelling over the music on the radio. All were listening to Mrs. Bush telling her story.

It seemed so refreshing to listen to the radio with a fresh sense of wonderment. I sometimes wonder if not only do we miss out on the imagination that comes with listening to a story because we have become so visually oriented, but that the constant drone of music becomes a backdrop and we hear the noise but are not really listening to the music anyway.

We stop reading to our children when they begin to learn to read themselves. When children are very young, they enjoy listening to stories told by teachers, adults, parents, and grandparents. How many times have we heard, "Tell me a story." As they listen to a story, they have the time to imagine the characters, setting and action.

Wouldn't it be wonderful to bring back the old radio show concept so that those who missed out the first time could listen and imagine.

Carol Workens is a staff writer for The Northville Record and The Novi News.

Media are obsessed with statistics

TV investigation flawed? Our society is flawed! It is a shame that you even have to respond to so called "investigative reports."

It seems to me that such reports are born out of a fan mentality where if your side doesn't win, you bash the opponent.

The Europeans are amazed at the American penchant for statistics, how far can a player spit, how many times, in a given period, inning or quarter, can he scratch his crotch or give the fans the finger.

Money Magazine is given to featuring what states, cities, towns, counties, jobs, schools, universities, etc. are the best. Can everyone afford to move around to take advantage of all this crap? Even newspapers that print detailed maps of where some poor soul suffered some kind of tragedy are pandering to the same mentality.

I can see, sometime in the future if this silliness continues, Time Magazine's cover featuring some poor grunt, with the headlines reading this person lives in the poorest house, on the worst street, in the most unsafe state, city or town in America, and has the poorest education, investments, etc. Give me a break.

Reporter scored bullseye

To the Editor:

I write to commend Randy Coble for his in depth, accurately covered story in your Jan. 26 issue related to the senseless fire in the Northville Forest Apartments.

My wife, Marilyn, and I were displaced by this nearly disastrous event which began in the bedroom adjacent to ours. I thank God that a fire wall spared even further damage to many of us who were displaced, and that especially serious injury was avoided.

Randy's sidebar about Northville Township police officers Horter and Blas was a bullseye. Their cool, quick, and appropriate actions were chronicled by Coble in the accurate way they happened. And the quick and compassionate and thorough response of The Salvation Army - part of my Plymouth colleagues in ministry - was a living witness of Christ's words in Matthew 25.

As the former news editor and final editor (1984-87) of The Lutheran Standard, the national magazine of the former American Lutheran Church, I relish good reporting. Randy Coble has given you, me, and all the Record's readers precisely that.

Education needs parental caring

To the Editor:

A questionnaire for all parents who feel "public schools are not challenging enough":

1) Have you ever taken your child to a) the doctor, b) dentist, or c) orthodontist during school because it's less crowded and more convenient for you?

2) Have you ever taken your child shopping for clothes during school time for the same reasons?

3) Have you taken your child out of school for a family vacation for the same two reasons? Summer, Thanksgiving, winter and spring breaks are not enough time?

4) Do you feel a "C" grade is the teacher's fault because your child is "A" material?

5) Have you allowed your child in high school to drop a class because a) the first grade on a test was a "C", b) the work on the advanced level is more demanding? c) it doesn't look like an "A" is guaranteed any longer?

6) Have you bought the argument that your child needs a job to buy a car and needs the car to get to the job? And then watched the grades drop?

7) You are too tired or too bored to a) go to parent-teacher meetings, b) school open houses, or c) orientation?

8) Your child cannot a) do homework at home, b) go to the library after school, or c) stay after school for extra help because they work, they babysit every day, or they drive their friends home from school. Does this bother you?

You are giving your child the message that school does not take top priority in your child's life.

Northville past and present

To the Editor:

The recent obituary of Hank Biddle excited my thinking about how it was then and how it is now. His parents, Tunis and Marion, owned Biddle's Northville Coach Lines until 1970, located on Seven Mile and Maxwell Roads, across from the State Hospital.

Coach service was to Detroit at Grand River, west to Northville on Seven Mile to Main, Main to Rogers, then south to Seven Mile and west on Seven Mile to Beck Road. The northwest corner of Beck and Seven Mile was the entry to Maybury Sanitarium - a tuberculosis treatment hospital.

The schedule was 6:30 a.m. to 11 p.m., six days a week, so workers on either end could commute to work. Visitors came to the hospital weekends, and locals from here shopped at Six Mile and Grand River Friday nights.

Hank, as the prime driver in the '50s and '60s, knew most everybody, and everyone, even though they may not have used the bus, knew Hank as he seemed to always be in town during layovers at the four corners.

Of course, in those years, Northville had only three corners - and a hole where the hotel had burned in 1929, and a little shack called the bus stop, which stood from 1930 to 1975. Hank knew the storekeepers, employees and where lots of the folks lived, as he had been born here and gone to school here. He knew the Teschkas, who lived in the village hall, and one of their girls he drove to arts and crafts in Detroit.

Finbar O'Leary of High Street went to Livonia's Ford plant, and a local chap who was a plumber in Detroit (and will be unnamed), often went in with Hank, stayed on the bus to return, came back to open Joe's Bar, then spent the day. He brought Joe Revitzer the shoe repair man and his wife from their home at Seven and Newburg for all the 20 years I rode with Hank.

My trip was to Cody or Redford High in Detroit. In the 1950s, there were traffic lights at only Middlebelt and Farmington roads. By 1955, many from Northville were bused to Livonia Mall.

In 1950, Northville was a Saturday night town, the opera house had been torn down in 1949 and the open Farmer's Market took its place at Dunlap and Center Streets. The Ford Valve Plant was going two or three shifts with Maybury and Wayne County Training School operating, many of the locals worked there. Northville was a destination and not in the way of people going other places - or just a bedroom town - as it has become.

The elementary and high schools were on Main Street, a block from the center of town. All stores were within two blocks of town center, as well as the churches and post office, and there were no parking lots. Houses were cheek to jowl with the business places, and seven gas stations to change a flat tire - or come to your house to change it.

The only remnant of Biddle's Northville Coach Line today is one wall of Rocky's Restaurant on Seven Mile Road.

Tom Sechler bought the building, tore it down except one wall, and built The Tack Room Restaurant. They sold it to Chuck Muir and now it is Rocky's of Northville.

Former employees of Biddle I've been able to contact from the 1940s are Royal Keller, retired from the DPW, and Frank Kocian, an excavating contractor on Griswold Street, who were both mechanics for Tunis Biddle.

So Hank Biddle, driver for Northville Coach Lines, saw a small town of his birth, where he was born, schooled, worked and lived all his life until his death, go from a self-sustaining village to be a problem in demography and a traffic gridlock. It is easy to see in one lifetime the end of small town USA.

Francis P. Gazlay

Revolution under way in schools

Back in 1970, the voters of Michigan spoke loud and clear on "parochial," public aid to private and religious schools.

Phil Power

By a 57 to 43 percent margin, they approved an amendment to the state constitution prohibiting state support for non-public schools.

How times change!

A poll published a couple of weeks ago in the Detroit Free Press indicated that Michigan voters, by a 61-31 margin, now favor state-funded vouchers that would let children attend public or private schools of their choice. A narrower margin (53-40 percent) wanted vouchers to include religious schools.

That's a fundamental shift in public attitude on a gut-level issue. How come?

Easy. An overwhelming majority of those polled said they felt local public schools were not challenging enough, and they wanted a choice of where to send their kids for a quality education.

According to Ed Saropolus, who conducted the poll: "We're finding that baby boomers are very concerned about how their children are growing up. They have this big need to provide their children with lessons in right and wrong, teaching them values. They don't see that happening in the public school system. If they can't get that in the public school system, they believe they'll get it in the private school system."

So are we about to see a revolution in Michigan education, with public money going to fund religious schools?

Michigan's top school official, Dr. Robert Schiller, thinks so. "We'll see religious schools funded by the end of this century," he told me in an interview. "The only question is how it comes and where."

How's it going to happen? Are the votes really there for a frontal assault to repeal the constitutional ban on aid to parochial schools?

I doubt it. There is still a lot of raw emotion on the subject, even though the public schools and teachers unions have squandered a lot of support since the 1970 vote. And I suspect the Engler Administration is too smart to get caught in a polarizing fight that could split baby boomers from the Religious Right.

They'll do it another way. You already can see the writing on the wall.

First, pass a law authorizing charter schools with state support on a per-pupil basis. That happened last year.

Second, repeal the School Code, which Gov. Engler called for in this year's state-of-the-state speech. Doing away with the School Code eliminates, at a stroke, things like required curriculum standards, proficiency tests and state-endorsed diplomas. It also lifts the rule prohibiting schools from hiring non-certified teachers.

If you do away with state standards about what kids are supposed to learn, a school can teach "creationism" instead of evolution and still qualify for full state aid.

If anybody - a parent, a priest, a college graduate, a holder of a teaching certificate - can be a teacher, any school employing such teachers can get state funds.

And if that happens, you get the substance of parochialism without having to vote on it.

This is the revolution in education now being plotted in Lansing. It may be good or it may be ill. But it deserves to be debated for what it is, now, loudly and in public.

Mill Race to get proceeds from dinner

By YVONNE BEEBE
Staff Writer

Local residents have a chance later this month to help keep a corner of Northville's past alive and well.

The Northville Historical Society, the community organization that runs Mill Race Historical Village, will be holding a fund-raiser dinner at Genitti's Hole-in-the-Wall restaurant Feb. 23 at 7 p.m.

Mill Race, located on Griswold Street just north of Main Street, is host to numerous community activities and celebrations year-round, including Fourth of July celebrations, a Christmas walk in December and several activities during the city's annual Victorian Festival in September.

At $35 per person, proceeds from dinner tickets will be applied to operating costs for the village. The dinner will consist of Genitti's seven-course Italian meal, followed by a live comedy performance entitled Auditions: Every Actor's Worst Nightmare.

In addition to the dinner and play, the historical society will hold an antique auction in the Little Theater in Genitti's Market-place.

Bird houses constructed by the Northville group the Stone Gang, which works every Monday afternoon in the basement of the village's Yerkes House, will also be sold during the event. The houses range from $12-$40.

"We're selling tickets like mad and we hope to see many more sold," said Fran Gazlay, historical society member who helps maintain Mill Race.

The dinner is one of several fund-raisers the society puts on each year to help defer the some $67,000 in annual costs for Mill Race.

The historical village, which was established in 1972, consists of authentic Northville buildings from the years 1830 to 1900. The village consists of a one-room school house, weavers' cottage, a blacksmith's shop, the Cady Inn, the Hunter house and Yerkes house.

The village is host to numerous weddings throughout the year in addition to revolutionary war reenactments and programs for school-age children where they spend the day in the shoes of a Victorian-age student by having class in the one-room school house.

"Mill Race is something people have come to for years," Gazlay said. "It's a worthy cause."

The village is open annually from May to October on Sundays from 2-5 p.m. with no admission fees.

Township raises inspection fees its charges city

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

Money-maker or a losing proposition?

That's what members of the Northville Township Board of Trustees are asking about the township's building department performing paid inspections for the City of Northville.

The city contracts with the township for building department inspector services, currently at the rate of $20 a hour. Last month, the trustees questioned whether it costs the township more than that to provide the inspections. In the end, the board voted 7-0 to propose a new contract with the city that includes a rate of $27.90 per hour.

City officials are still looking over the written agreement and no formal decision has yet been made. They've made a counter offer to the township of $25 per hour for inspections. The trustees may consider it at their meeting tonight (Feb. 9). If the two sides can't reach agreement, the city will have to look elsewhere for inspection services.

Township Manager Tamara Hanlin and Building Department head Mick Kruszewski say they don't have strong feelings either way. Hanlin made no recommendation to trustees, saying the matter was "the call of the board."

Kruszewski said he had "no real preference."

The trustees said they had two concerns. The first was making sure the deal doesn't infringe on work done for township citizens and businesses. The second was that the township isn't "losing" money, meaning that the per-hour rate is lower than the actual per-hour cost of providing the city with the service.

Building head Kruszewski assured the board that his department is providing good services to the township, but admitted that performing city inspections "sometimes" affected things.

As to costs, Kruszewski said the inspections generate revenue for the township's coffers. In 1994, he said, the township took in almost $20,000 from performing inspections for the city at the $20 per-hour rate.

"Although it could be construed as us losing $7.90 per hour," Kruszewski said in a memo to the board, "it has generated $19,157 for the township."

Some trustees questioned the accuracy of that figure, however. They cited the fact that township building inspectors average $24.21 an hour. They also speculated as to the city inspection costs in terms of wear and tear on township vehicles and other equipment.

VFW Post 4012 marks milestone

said, "America has seen major wars and small but bitter conflicts. We've seen tyrants come and go and the worst system of communism fall apart and we've been here through it all."

It was VFW district commander Sam Lawson, however, who put it best.

"You left the battlefields and came back home. You joined post 4012 and served veterans and this community unselfishly," Lawson said. "I don't think there's a field big enough to hold all of the people you've touched."

The post, located on S. Main Street, could barely hold the nearly 200 people who attended the Feb. 4 dinner/dance celebration. They stood in silence as an honor guard from the state VFW organization posted the colors.

One man saluted as the American and VFW flags were put into place. Adorning the walls nearby were flags from the five armed services - Army, Navy, Air Force, Marines and Coast Guard - as well as a POW/MIA banner.

The silence was broken when the audience joined in singing The Star Spangled Banner. Applause broke out when it ended.

Quartermaster William Widmaier read a short history of the post, recalling its early lean years and the many helpful programs the VFW undertakes for area veterans.

"Post 4012 is committed to serving our community," Widmaier said. "Let us also not forget our departed comrades. Their efforts will be part of our history forever."

The idea for an American organization for veterans was the brainchild of a group of Spanish-American War soldiers in 1899. In 1914, they formally created the VFW.

World War I veterans living in Northville decided to bring the organization here in 1945.

They wanted to establish the post to help the flood of servicemen returning from the Second World War adjust to civilian life.

The post was formally instituted on Jan. 30, 1945. In October 1945, Northville women formed the Ladies Auxiliary of the VFW. Clara Broda served as its first president.

The anniversary ceremony was held in the auditorium of old Northville High School but the post's 102 original members didn't hold their meetings there.

Led by Donald Butler, the first post commander, the members of the new VFW post gathered in the upper floor of the Main Street Kroger grocery store for almost four years.

It took that long to raise enough money to buy a building all their own. That happened in 1949 when the post bought the Jenny Lind furniture shop on Main Street, where the post remains to this day. The VFW spent its entire $5,000 treasury for the down payment and sold the store's inventory to renovate the building.

Many dances, bingo nights and dinners followed, raising the $20,000 needed to pay off the mortgage on the post headquarters in 1955.

It expanded in the decades that followed. Tragedy struck in 1988 when a fire caused major damage but the building post was renovated and reopened in less than two months.

Of the 102 charter members only one, James Funke, has been a member ever since. He and other members of the post, Widmaier noted, as well as the Ladies Auxiliary, have earned many honors and awards for their work on behalf of the VFW and the Northville community.

That's true of the post's 485 members today, he added. Of them, 276 served in World War II. Fifty-seven fought in Korea, 123 in Vietnam and 15 in the 1991 Desert Storm campaign.

Thirty more members have served on occupation duty, two others in Lebanon, two during the 1962 blockade of Cuba and one in the Indian Ocean.

Together with members of Northville's American Legion Post 147, they conduct a variety of patriotic, civic and charitable activities.

That includes everything from honoring fallen comrades in Northville's annual Memorial Day parade to providing free burial plots and services to veterans at Rural Hill cemetery.

Northville VFW members also assist veterans and their families in need and volunteer time in the post's VA hospital program.

"The hard work you've done for the country is because of home. This is what you come back to,"

Northville City Mayor Chris Johnson said. "Thank you for all you've done and continue to do for all of us."

The post's walls are a solemn reminder of that. Mementos of battles large and small from all over the world stand in glass display cases.

One contains a tiny model of a cemetery. Written on cardboard tombstones are the names of Northville men who died in World War I.

Above them is a poem written by Colonel John McCrae in 1915 about Flanders' fields, the site of some of the conflict's bloodiest fighting.

"Honor the dead by helping the living," an inscription next to the poem reads.

The Marine case is easy to spot, the red and gold of the anchor, globe and eagle standing out. A copy of the book Once a Marine - Always a Marine by Ben Finney is displayed, as well as a field worship hymnal.

Names like Guadalcanal and Iwo Jima are there. A portrait of the Wall, the black granite Vietnam veterans' memorial, hangs nearby.

A captured World War II Japanese rifle, complete with bayonet, is mounted above the Navy's case. Again, the names no one will ever forget are there, such as Pearl Harbor and Normandy.

Drawings of a paratrooper hitting the silk and Vietnam-era Huey Hog helicopters flying near the Renaissance Center hang near the Army's case. In it can be seen everything from a newspaper from the final hours of World War II to a patch from Desert Storm.

There are cans of C-rations, complete with a service-issue P-38 can opener, and a Bible carried by three different members of the same family in three different wars.

The names are there, too: Bataan, Omaha Beach, Corregidor and The Battle of the Bulge, mementos to the sacrifices Northville's veterans have made through the decades.

Arts series continues tonight

The Northville Arts Commission will be hosting the second in a three-part series of art lectures by noted art authority Michael Farrell on Thursday, Feb. 9.

Farrell is associate professor of Art History at the University of Windsor, adjunct curator at the Detroit Institute of Arts and instructor at the Art House of Detroit.

The Feb. 9 lecture will present the works of American artist Alex Katz, who combines photographic realism with a mannered and deliberate simplicity.

Farrell will lecture on the works of Chilean painter Claudio Bravo at this last lecture on Thursday, March 30.

All lectures take place in the Northville High School Forum at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are available at the door for $8. For further information call (810) 349-6104.

The Makings of EVERLASTING LOVE

Love, sex, and romance are the topics of movies, television shows and books, many addressing the time-honored question: Is it a realistic goal to find the compatible mate and live happily ever after?

Traveling the road of a relationship can lead one to an abrupt fork in the road or wind and curve up one hill and down the other before reaching the ultimate destination, marriage.

The problem with love's portrayal on the silver screen is its simplicity. Love at first sight is a myth. True love conquers all, another myth.

There is only one true love in the world right for you and when it's really true love, you will know it the moment you meet the other person. Those, too, are myths.

Love and marriage should not be entered into hastily.

There are four stages to the typical relationship, according to Arnold Keller, the executive director of Psychotherapy and Counseling Service in Northville.

The first is the acquaintanceship stage, which can include infatuation. If successful, the couple moves on to the companionship stage, or the sharing of activities

"Opposites do not make good mates," said Keller. Sharing goals and activities and having common lifestyle elements are very important during this stage, according to Keller.

If all is still going well, the couple will enter the friendship stage where it is time for closer involvement. Sharing vulnerabilities, looking for support, honesty, and trust in the other person will occur during this phase of a relationship, according to Keller.

"Only after this stage should one consider marriage," said Keller.

The last leg of the trip is the romance stage. This is where the couple will make the decision of commitment.

"Similarities wear well," said Richard Todd, Ph.D., of the Orchard Hills Psychiatric Center in Novi. "The more similar two people are, the less changes they will have to make."

During the second and third stages of a relationship it is important to check out compatibilities either formally or informally.

"They need to really compare likes and dislikes about values and have a sense that their lifestyles are not so far apart that they can't find a common ground," said Todd. "Choose people with like values."

Both individuals must be emotionally ready for a relationship and be honest with themselves about their qualities.

"Both need to be whole and complete when they enter a relationship. We cannot hope that the other person will fill the gaps, which are the seeds of destruction."

So if you're both ready, what do you look for?

Good qualities to have are a commitment to personal growth, emotional openness, integrity, maturity and responsibility, high self-esteem and a positive attitude toward life.

"Personality is a surface thing, both people need to be well-rounded and have solid character," said Todd. "For a good relationship to exist both people have to have a depth of understanding of themselves and others which relates to their character."

Making a compatibility list is a formal way to determine what you're really looking for in a partner. That way you can make sure you've touched all the bases. You may even learn some things about yourself at the same time. Things to have on the list are physical style, emotional style, social style, intellectual style, sexual style, communication style, professional and financial styles, personal growth styles and spiritual style and interests and hobbies.

"Some relationships are built on obligation and guilt," said Todd. "They extend themselves too fast into a relationship, emotionally, physically, and financially and it gets too costly to leave so they endure."

Todd recommends couples date each other for at least a year before advancing to the commitment stage.

"Each person will be on their good behavior for at least nine months, not deliberately," said Todd, "but they won't let everything just hang out."

Premarital counseling is good for people. "A good deal of things people need to hear, they need to hear before they have stars in their eyes," said Todd. "Once emotionally committed they don't want to hear the problems."

"One of the biggest problems that can create divorce is the choosing of an inappropriate person as a mate," said Todd. "The first time we are pretty young. We are not as mature as we think we are. We think we know what we want. We think they will change after marriage and they don't always change. We may find after marriage they have different values about life."

Gyorke helps kids manage money

By DOROTHY NASH
Special Writer

Teaching children the value of money - and that saving it can make it grow - is the volunteer challenge that Mary Gyorke has taken on.

Gyorke is branch manager of Community Federal Credit Union. Four years ago Jan Purtell, the coordinator of Partners for Education, the program that provides a bridge between schools and the business community, asked her whether she could run a credit union at Amerman Elementary School from November through May.

So she started to work on the project. But the idea of a credit union was not feasible, and instead a savings bank was started for third, fourth, and fifth graders.

With the help of her bank assistant - "I couldn't do it by myself," Gyorke said - and parent volunteers the school bank operates every other Tuesday from 9 to 11 a.m. in the school "health room." Fifth graders are officers - computer operators, bank managers, and four tellers for each hour.

Students who have opened accounts, each with its own account number, get dividends as recorded in their monthly statements. And at the end of the year, Gyorke said, "they are paid what they've deposited plus dividends in the form of cashier's checks."

The student officers take in the money, and sometimes if somebody wants to deposit only part of what he or she is holding, the officers make change. "They know denominations," Gyorke said, adding that "in five years they've never been out of balance."

But about the officers - how are they determined? By references, Gyorke answered. "When a student applies for a job, he (or she) provides references - from friends, relatives, anyone who can write a recommendation."

"It's a very rewarding partnership," she commented.

Poster sweeps up with winning entry at MSU Chocolate Party in Lansing

Sue Poster placed third in the Best Overall category at the Michigan State University's Chocolate Party 1995 which was held at the Kellogg Center on the MSU campus in Lansing on Feb. 5.

Poster's entry entitled, "Sweeping Confections," were 12 little dustpans and brooms made out of semi-sweet chocolate on plates with pieces of chocolate cherry brownies, meringue and coconut. To give the illusion of brooms in motion, Poster added brush strokes to each of the 12 little plates.

One hundred seventy professional and amateur entrants had three categories, display, cheesecakes and other edibles, from which to choose.

This was the first contest for Poster, who is the pastry chef at the Sheraton Oaks Hotel in Novi. She is the previous owner of Crawford's Bakery in Northville.

Kris Jablonski placed first in the Best Overall category. He was the pastry chef at Schoolcraft College and is now with Henry Ford College.

The Catholic Central marching band was invited to march in the London Parade, the largest and longest parade in Europe. While in England, they also performed at Wembley Stadium to a sell-out crowd.

The Northville boys in the band were Ranjit Gill, Matt Konkel, Peter McFarlane, Michael Payne, Nick Pourcho, Brandon Selinsky and James Madeiros.

Century old home gets a new look

Residents have an opportunity to tour a newly renovated 102-year-old house at 307 N. Center through Feb. 12 from 1 to 6 p.m. before it goes up for either sale or lease. Northville builder Chris Compo describes the style he used in the recent extensive refurbishing as a Victorian motif with a '90s flair.

"The house is like a brand new home now," said Compo.

The 1,450 square foot house is zoned commercial/residential, has 3 bedrooms and two bathrooms.

Financial planning next topic at M.O.M.S. meeting

The topic of the Feb. 20 Moms Offering Moms Support (MOMS) meeting will be "Financial Planning" for college including some tax tips. The group meets from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. at the First United Methodist Church, 777

West Eight Mile Road in Northville.

Attendance at M.O.M.S. activities is open to everyone. Meetings are free and you can attend as many or as few as you like.

AAUW to hold February Fireside Chat

The Northville/Novi Branch of the American Association of University Women will hold its February Fireside Chat at the home of member Sandra McDonald at 7:30 p.m. on Feb. 14. An ensemble of professional actors, "Space Presents," will showcase the one hour play "Divorce Is, Divorce Isn't."

This facilitated play is provided through the greater Detroit Section of the National Council of Jewish Women. The play has been presented to both children's and women's groups and takes a look at issues surrounding separation and divorce as they affect families. The format allows questions from the audience.

Cub Scout Fun Fair raises money to fund activities

Cub Scout Pack 903 from Winchester Elementary School recently sponsored a Fun Fair to raise money to cover operating costs. The highlight of the event was the annual Cake Auction. Each scout and his male parent or partner made a cake which was judged and auctioned.

Cakes were judged in five categories, most colorful, flattest, tallest, most yummiest and best scout theme.

About 75 people attended the fair which also included games and prizes. Money raised helps with the purchase of badges, awards and to cover operating costs.

Story ideas, accomplishments, awards, trips, etc.? Don't keep them to yourself. Share them with us and we'll share them with Northville. Write to Carol Workens, The Northville Record, 104 W. Main Street, Northville, MI 48167.

Weddings

Jim and Diane Wise with Emma, 6

Diane Wise and Jim O'Neill were married Dec. 27, 1994, at their new home in Northville. Judge Michael Sapala, who also officiated at the ceremonies of Diane's brother and her sister, performed the double ring ceremony.

The witnesses were Evelyn Drake, who originally introduced Diane to Jim, and her husband, Patrick Drake, both of Dearborn. The flower girl was Diane's 6 year-old daughter, Emma, who during the ceremony received a claddagh necklace, an Irish family symbol of love, friendship, and loyalty.

After the ceremony, a dinner reception was held at Home Sweet Home in Novi. Also, the couple held an open house on New Year's Day to celebrate their nuptials and their new home. The couple plan to enjoy a February honeymoon at Garland ski resort in northern Michigan.

Mrs. O'Neill is the owner of Baby Baby, a children's and maternity clothing consignment store in downtown Northville. Mr. O'Neill is earning his doctorate in developmental psychology at Wayne State University. He currently teaches child development and other psychology courses at Madonna University and the University of Michigan-Dearborn. He also evaluates teen drug abuse and violence prevention programs as a consultant to Test Inc., of Fraser, Mich.

Sheri and James McCulloch

Sheri Mari Pace and James Andrew McCulloch exchanged wedding vows at a double ring ceremony on June 18, 1994, at First Presbyterian Church in Northville. Scripture readings were given by Karl Pace, the brother of the bride; and Sgt. William McCulloch, the brother of the groom. The Rev. Martin Ankrum and Father Norbert Maciejewski officiated.

A reception for 225 was held at Roma Hall.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Pace of Westland. She is a 1987 graduate of John Glenn High School and is employed as a dental assistant in Waterford.

Christy Arbogast was her Maid of Honor with Wendy Anderson and Ella Hayes as her bridesmaids. All are friends of the bride.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald McCulloch of Northville. He graduated from Northville High School in 1985 and is now a firefighter/paramedic with the Birmingham Fire Department.

Attending the groom was Richard McCulloch, best man and brother of the groom. The groomsmen were John Anderson, friend of the groom; and Michael Pace, brother of the bride. The ushers were Robert Pace, the brother of the bride; and David McCulloch, brother of the groom.

The couple now live in Waterford, Mich.

Jenny and Alberto Funaioli

Jenny Lynn Marroni of Northville and Alberto Ettore Aldo Funaioli, of Casale, Italy, were married on Sept. 10, 1994, at St. James United Church of Christ in Saline, Mich. A reception followed at Bauer Manor-Tipton in the Irish Hills.

Guests in attendance were from Vancouver, B.C.; London, England; Italy, and several other countries.

Following a honeymoon in San Francisco, Calif., the couple have made their home in Dearborn until later, at which time they will move to Italy.

The bride is a graduate of the University of Michigan-Dearborn, and is employed at Hudson's.

The groom graduated from Polytechnic of Turin University in Italy. He is a staff engineer at Fiat Auto, USA and Italy.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Marroni of Northville and the groom is the son of Mrs. Loredana Funaioli and the late Aldo Funaioli, of Casale, Italy.

On Campus

Four Albion College students from Northville have been recognized for their achievements:

Junior DARIN R. MORENCY has recently completed a successful season with the British Eighth, Albion College's marching band.

This year, the British Eighth performed four different halftime shows, each with a unique theme and drill including an all-British and a Les Miserables show that captured the attention of the home football audience. They then ended the season with an indoor concert that featured all of the music performed throughout the fall.

Morency, majoring in history, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert P. Morency of Northville.

Freshman CHRISTINA A. LOMBARDO has been selected by audition to be part of the college's 70 member choir.

Members were chosen through both a personal interview with the director and a group interview, which gave the director a chance to balance and blend voices.

Lombardo, the daughter of Judith Lombardo of Northville, is majoring in speech communication and theater.

Freshman ABIGAIL C. SEMEYN participated in Emerging Leaders, a seminar sponsored by the Slight Leadership Program, during the 1994 fall semester.

Semeyn is the daughter of Mark W. Semeyn of Northville.

Emerging Leaders is a seminar aimed at first year students and designed to provide an understanding of campus and local communities and develop leadership skills. Issues discussed in the seminar include: student activism, leadership styles and preference, situational leadership, community service, and decision making.

Sophomore KELLY R. CASTERLINE spent the semester "on the air" working for the college radio station, WLBN. WLBN is run exclusively by students and broadcasts seven days a week on a closed-circuit carrier system. Students who work for the station are responsible for organization, publicity, and maintaining constant air time.

Casterline is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray J. Casterline of Northville.

JULIE S. ZWIESLER, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin L. Zwiesler of Northville, was named to the dean's list for the first semester of the 1994-95 school year. To be named to the dean's list a student must have a minimum 3.5 grade point average on a 4.0 scale.

Among those students named to the dean's list for the first semester of the 1994-95 school year at Hope was ANYA E. GURSKI, a graduate of Northville High School.

Michigan Technological University's Board of Control has announced the following degree recipients for spring quarter 1994: SONESHA LOUISE DIEHL, mechanical engineering, and DUANE MICHAEL PIETILA, mechanical design engineering technology.

Speaker's focus is on local women's issues

By CAROL WORKENS
Staff Writer

"The Michigan Women's Hall of Fame" was the topic of Winifred Fraser's speech to the Northville Woman's Club on Jan. 20. Fraser also touched on a local cause called "Remember the Ladies," a campaign to get more biographies about women into the elementary school libraries.

Fraser began with a brief history of the Hall of Fame, which was founded by five women who were on the faculty of Michigan State University in 1973. The women were teaching a course on Women in American Society and realized that a 10-week course was not enough to educate people about women's contributions in history.

From this sprung a women's study major which is now offered either as a minor or as a co-major at most universities. The group also started the Michigan Women's Studies Association, the first academic association of women of its kind in the country.

In 1981, the Michigan Women's Hall of Fame opened as a place to record women's history. In 1984, 10 historical and contemporary women were honored at the first dinner.

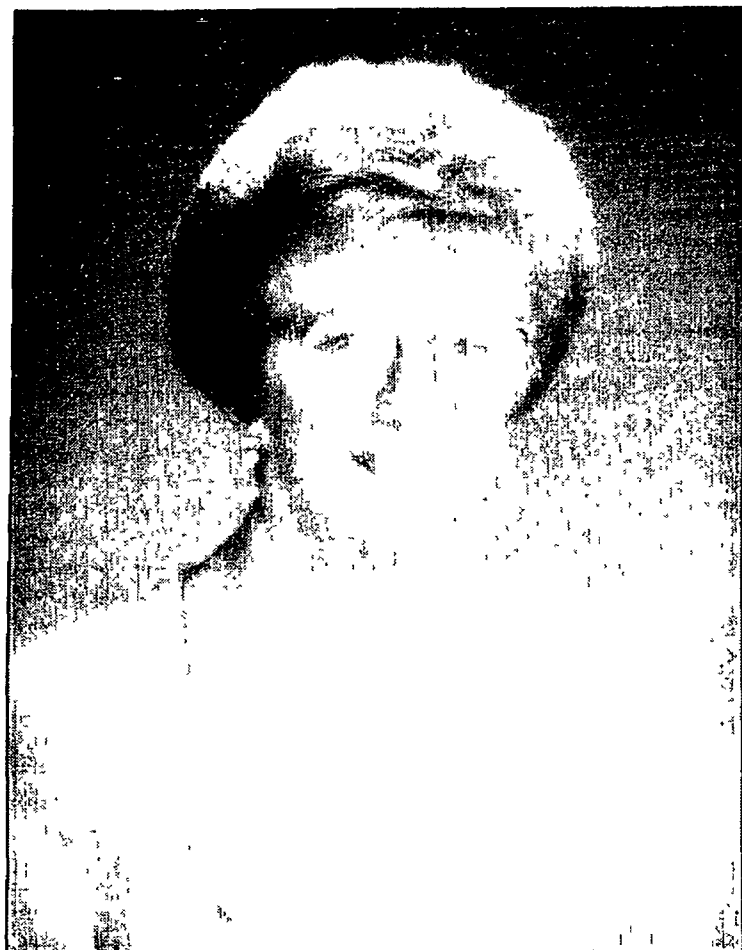

Taking it one step further, the group acquired the Cooley Hayes House in Lansing in order to house the Hall of Fame. Built in 1893, the home is now registered as a historic site. G. Mennen Williams also resided here when it was the governor's mansion.

The Michigan Women's Historical Center and Hall of Fame was dedicated in June 1987. There are now close to 100 inductees.

Candidates for admission to the Hall of Fame have to meet certain criteria. Women candidates must have a Michigan connection either through birth or residency, or they must have achieved prominence within the state. Anyone can nominate a woman for either a historical or contemporary category. A panel does the judging and results are tabulated by an accounting firm.

Nominees are honored each fall at a fund-raising dinner. Contemporary honorees receive a silver medallion and a memorial plaque is given to a member of the family of a historical honoree.

An additional award, the Philip A. Hart Award, is given to a Michigan male citizen. The purpose of the honor is to recognize a man who, during the preceding year or during his career, showed unique understanding and support of women's issues and concerns, and contributed to the advancement of women's rights either in Michigan or on the national scene.

Fraser's husband, former UAW president Doug Fraser, is one of the award recipients.

The first floor of the two-story house is devoted entirely to women's history and women's activity. Inductees are displayed on panels, along with a picture of each woman and an abbreviated history of why she was inducted into Hall of Fame.

Just a few of the slides of women Fraser showed to the group along with a brief history were those relating to Bertha Van Hoosen, Mary Anne Mayo, Marion Isabel Barnhart, Lucy Stone, Genevieve Gillette, Pearl Kendrick and Grace Eldering.

"Many of these women lived into their 80s and 90s," she said. "To live a long time you must be active and adopt a cause. You have to have some reason that keeps you going, that motivates you," said Fraser.

As president of the American Association of University Women (AAUW) Fraser is leading a local cause called "Remember the Ladies," an effort to get more biographies into the schools, especially at the K through 8 level.

Biographies about women represent only 18 to 19 percent of those in school libraries, versus 81 to 82 percent for men, according to Fraser. "This gives girls a lopsided view," she maintains.

It is important to reach girls before grade seven while they are still impressionable so that they have a wide range of career and academic choices, according to Fraser.

The school librarians have a list of the books available for purchase. Contributions for books are $25 and can be purchased singly or jointly. Specific book titles can be selected when the donation is made. A book plate is placed inside the book.

Americana Concert to feature soloists Two principals will perform work by Aaron Copland

The Plymouth Symphony Orchestra will feature Jean Moorehead Libs, principal trumpet, and Kristy Meretta, principal English horn, as the soloists in Aaron Copland's Quiet City, part of the Americana Concert to be held Friday, Feb. 17, at 8 p.m. in the Plymouth-Salem High School Auditorium.

Quiet City was composed in 1939 as incidental music for a play written by Irwin Shaw. The piece depicts the thoughts of people in a great city at night.

Copland reset his work for solo trumpet, solo English horn and a string ensemble. The work combines the solitary musings of the jazz trumpet with the questioning, plaintive cries of the English horn.

Alternately subdued and passionate, Quiet City is written as a short continuous suite, ending as it begins with the stillness of the night and the lonely call of the trumpet.

Meretta has been with the PSO for 23 years and holds degrees in musical performance from the University of Michigan. She has played with several symphonies in Michigan and is presently an associate professor of music at Eastern Michigan University. She also maintains a private studio.

Libs is a graduate of Plymouth-Salem High School, where she played trumpet. She has been with the PSO for four years and holds degrees in music education, pedagogy and performance from the University of Michigan School of Music.

She was principal trumpet with the Singapore Symphony Orchestra, has held positions on several university faculties and is currently the pedagogical topics editor for the International Trumpet Guild Journal. She also maintains a private studio.

Tickets are $12 for adults, $10 for college students and senior citizens, and $3 for K-12. For tickets or more information, call the Plymouth Symphony office at (313) 451-2112.

An unconventional family

'Boys on the Side' explores the development of a different kind of 'family'

"Boys on the Side" is a film about life in the '90s and how three women bring strength, humor, hope and richness to one another's lives as, in the process, they create a family of their own.

The film is directed by Herbert Ross, whose acclaimed career includes such explorations of friendship and other pivotal relationships as "The Turning Point," "Steel Magnolias" and "The Good-bye Girl."

"Boys on the Side" is a film about the creation, evolution and resolution of a family unit," said Ross. "The conventional family — mother, father and their biological offspring — is no longer the only option for everyone, yet an innate human need to band together in small supportive units remains universally intact."

"This film reflects a world which is multi-ethnic, a world brimming with variations of race and creed, a world with diverse sexual preferences. It is a world where the need for community is strong enough to overcome the pressures of society."

Freewheeling, cynical club singer Jane DeLuca (Whoppi Goldberg) has taken her last bite of the Big Apple. Dumped by her girlfriend a month ago and just fired from her latest East Village gig, Jane is packing up her cares and woes and heading to L.A.

Despite her determinedly perky approach to life and her compulsion to improve herself daily, Robin Nickerson's (Mary-Louise Parker) career as a real-estate agent in New York City hasn't given her the satisfaction she wants out of life.

Now, she hopes to escape the grim realities of New York City life and make a nostalgic return to San Diego via the cross-country route she took with her mother and brother as a kid.

Robin places a classified ad offering a ride share to the West Coast. The first person to answer the ad? Jane DeLuca.

The mismatched duo makes a stop in Pittsburgh to visit Jane's outrageously irresponsible friend, Holly (Drew Barrymore), and soon find themselves a trio, as Holly impulsively joins them on their way West. Soon after they learn that Holly has two surprises for them: she's pregnant and, without intending to, she's also become a fugitive from justice.

Whoppi Goldberg, Mary-Louise Parker and Drew Barrymore sform their own 'family' in "Boys on the Side" from Warner Bros.

But Holly's not the only one with surprises. Jane's sexual orientation takes Robin unawares; soon after, Jane and Holly learn that Robin is facing the effects of terminal illness, a fact she has kept secret from everyone, including her own mother.

As time goes on, Jane, Robin and Holly each shed the armor they've built up around the disappointments in their pasts. Laughing, bickering, crying and defending each other, they become friends — and then something even more. Side by side by side, they join together to form something they've never really known before, something they've been searching for all along ... a sense of belonging ... a family.

For "Boys on the Side," the filmmakers cast three starring performers whose individual talents and personas are as diverse as their characters in the film.

Whoppi Goldberg, whose career has encompassed her Oscar-nominated debut in "The Color Purple," and her Oscar-winning comedic performance in "Ghost," was, according to Ross, "able to meet the needs of her character and more."

"Jane is a lonely, somewhat selfish woman who has never been able to sustain a career and who has failed on the personal level," said Goldberg. "She has always felt unneeded, unappreciated. That is, until she meets Robin. They never, in fact, have a sexual affair ... It's more an affair of the heart. Through Robin, Jane becomes wanted, loved and, perhaps most importantly, she becomes a necessary entity in someone else's life."

Mary Louise Parker brings to life the complex role of Robin, a woman she calls "very conservative, very white, bordering on repressed."

"Through the breakdown of Robin's health due to AIDS," said Ross, "and through the companionship and friendship of Jane and Holly, Robin really begins to live for the first time. The irony is that she has so little time left."

Drew Barrymore portrays Holly, the adventurous and flighty young woman who, having never had protection and support from her own family, finds comfort, strength, encouragement and stability in the triangle of deep affection formed with Jane and Robin.

In addition to the serious issues considered in "Boys on the Side," there is much wit and humor in the story. Each character is a collection of qualities and contradictions.

Robin mixes a take-charge assertiveness in others' crises with her wan, hopeless outlook on her own life. Jane is a strong, loyal friend even as she fights self-doubt and loneliness. And Holly's brash trajectory through her past sexual encounters contrasts sharply with her romantic intensity when she finally falls in love.

"No one is exactly the person you'd expect: not the good-hearted cop, not the vulnerable and generous bartender, not Robin's mother, and certainly not any of the people we play," explained Parker.

"We saw this as a story about real people and their hearts and souls — not about stereotypes or demographics or images, but about quirky, unpredictable, multi-dimensional human beings," she continued.

"That's where the richness lies in it for me."

'Pulp Fiction' combines violence with black humor

PULP FICTION
By Mike Kapusky
Northville

Is that the same guy who was in that "Saturday Night Fever" and "Grease" movie? Who knew?

John Travolta and Larry Fishburne are just two of the characters that viewers meet in "Pulp Fiction." This is a powerful movie built on the foundations of terrible violence and extremely funny black humor in the most unusual situations. It deals around the adventures and misadventures of "the man," his girlfriend, his thugs and his foes stacked together in a unique display of plots.

The sex, drugs and violence may turn off most, but the die-hard fans who ignore the pseudo-gruesome visions and think of "Pulp Fiction" as only fiction will have their funny bones tackled with dark humor. The creative plot, unique characters and inventive atmosphere set this one apart from the rest.

"Pulp Fiction" tangles with a promising four stars, (based on a five-star system with five the highest). If you do not expect it to happen, it probably will happen.

BIG
By Helaine Binstock
Novi

There's a message in this 1988 fantasy/comedy which features Tom Hanks as the short, 12-year-old Josh who wishes he were "big."

His body magically transforms into that of a man, while his attitude continues functioning as a child. Everyone regards him "missing," except his best friend, who alone knows the truth.

A computer whiz before his metamorphosis, the 30-year-old "man" fortuitously falls into a job with a toy company. He swiftly becomes a vice president, and why not? He identifies with things kids enjoy. His enthusiasm for the toys gets noticed by top brass.

While his competitive colleagues fight among themselves, Josh has a ball and flourishes. He immediately recognizes weaknesses with company products, those only a kid would understand.

"Big" also stars Robert Loggia who is great as Josh's boss. He is totally convincing. You accept his admiration for Josh's attitude and his high appraisal of his newest employee.

The "innocence" that wins Josh a female paramour and has him swiftly climbing the corporate ladder conveys to the viewer — no matter how old you are, it's good to retain a little bit of the child.

Grapplers beat Franklin 39-33

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

It's a good thing Nick Bowersox has big shoulders.

That's because the Mustang wrestling team's fate rested squarely on them Thursday at Livonia Franklin. With the dual meet tied at 33, Bowersox faced the Patriots Bill Sari.

The heavyweight responded by pinning Sari and pushing his team to a 39-33 victory. Bowersox saved Northville the embarrassment of blowing a 24-0 lead as well.

Coach Garnet Potter said he knew he could count on his senior But, he added, he shouldn't have had to.

"We should've beat them better than we did," Potter said.

The win raised Northville's Western Lakes conference record to 3-2. The Mustangs close the league season Saturday with the WLAA meet.

Potter said guys like Mike and Joe Scappatucci, Josh Tarrow and Sam Saran should place highly at the meet. He said he's looking for a top-half finish from his team.

"We should do all right," said Potter.

As for Thursday's match, Northville was more than all right early on.

Tarrow (100 pounds) and Rick Torrance (106) both collected voids to put the Mustangs up 12-0. Nick Sriraman added six more points to that total with a pin of Ryan Doig in 1:25.

James Kyle wrestled at 119 pounds and pinned Trey Bracey in 2:38. Livonia then began its comeback.

John Grill defeated Northville's Jason Keranan at 126 pounds. Then Mike Vertrees was pinned by Gymnasitcs team takes fourth at Canton invite

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

While state gymnastics competition doesn't get under way for almost another month, Northville/Novi may have gotten an early preview Saturday.

Almost all of Michigan's top Class A squads were on hand for the Canton Invitational. The combined Novi/Northville team, which went into the meet ranked No. 9, more than held its own.

Northville/Novi finished fourth with 135.60 points. Freeland, ranked second in Class A, won the invitational with 142.10 points, Birmingham Seaholm was second at 139.75 and Rochester Adams was third with 137.45.

"We were really consistent," coach Barb Winn said of the meet. "Everyone at the meet probably couldn't believe we were fourth. But we have eight girls that contributed. That's what did it for us."

Northville/Novi's point total represented its highest score this season.

"We still haven't hit our peak yet," Winn said.

Erica Winn was the star of the invitational for the combined team. She finished ninth in the vault and balance beam and 10th in the floor exercise.

No Novi/Northville competitor finished higher than Winn.

She scored an 8.85 on the vault. Stacey Williamson didn't place but performed well with an 8.65. Gina Spinazze scored an 8.35, Robyn Wehab and Dana Ghedotte each had an 8.0.

Northville/Novi failed to place in the uneven bars. Scores included an 8.5 for Winn, an 8.2 for Spinazze, 7.7 for Wehab and Mary Essary and Dana Ghedotte had a 6.8.

Winn and Williamson each notched 8.8 on the beam, which was good for ninth place. Spinazze had an 8.5, Wehab an 8.45 and Ghedotte an 8.1.

BARB WINN
Gymnastics coach

Spinazze was ninth in the floor exercise at 8.95 and Winn was 10th with an 8.85. Williamson and Wehab each had 8.65 and Ghedotte a 7.95.

Winn was 10th in all-around with 35 points.

NORTHVILLE/NOVI 134.5, BIRMINGHAM 122.8

Winn juggled her lineup a bit for the Friday road meet. The combined team didn't miss a beat and won every event.

Erica Winn took first on the vault with 9.0 while Williamson was second at 8.6. Spinazze had an 8.45, Wehab a 7.8, Katie Bucrek a 7.0 and Stephanie Manza a 6.8.

Novi/Northville swept the beam. Wehab was first with a 9.2, Williamson was second with an 8.6 and Winn was third with an 8.55.

On uneven bars, Winn was first with an 8.7 and Essary was third with an 8.25. Essary won the floor exercise with an 8.9, Spinazze was second with an 8.85 and Wehab was third with an 8.75.

Tankers remain winless in WLAA with 100-80 loss to Canton

My, how the mighty have fallen.

After years of battling for division and conference titles, the Mustang swim team is still searching for its first Western Lakes victory this winter. Canton handed Northville its latest setback Thursday, 100-80.

"Canton's a good team," coach Mark Heiden said. "They have a lot of depth."

The Mustangs fell to 3-4 overall. All three victories have come against Kensington Valley Conference teams, Brighton, Novi and South Lyon.

Heiden had a couple of theories on "Canton's a good team. They have a lot of depth."

MARK HEIDEN
Swimming coach

Northville's league difficulties. He said the Mustangs have a small squad and have suffered injuries that have depleted the lineup.

"I knew it would be a hard (season)," said Heiden.

Northville was scheduled to face Farmington Hills Harrison Tuesday. The Mustangs are on the road at Livonia Franklin today at 7 p.m.

As for Thursday's meet, the Chiefs simply had too much for Northville.

The Mustangs started on a positive note, however. The 200-yard medley relay team of Craig and Jeff Sieving, Jim Johnston, and James Elsesser won its race in 1:49.03.

In the 200-yard freestyle, Evan Whitbeck was second in 57.53. Andy Stewart was third in 2:06.40 and Chns Bond was fourth in 2:06.95.

Johnston took another second place finish for Northville in the 200-yard IM. He swam a 2:20.53 while teammate Kevin Mount was fifth in 2:32.74.

Jeff Sieving inched closer to the state cut in the 50 freestyle with a time of 23.08 for first place. He needs to get down to 22.69 to make the state meet.

"He enjoys the 50 free a lot," said Heiden.

In diving, Chris Anderson scored 233.25 points for third place. Dan Basse was fifth with 120.85.

In the 100-yard butterfly, Craig Sieving won in 1:00.06 and Mount was fifth in 1:14.88. Elsesser finished third in the 100-yard freestyle in 56.32 and Stewart was fifth in 57.59.

Whitbeck was a winner in the 500-yard freestyle. He swam a 5:20.02 and Bond notched a 5:38.85 for third.

In the 200-yard freestyle relay, Anderson, James Malloure, Elsesser and Whitbeck were second in 1:40.81. Craig Sieving won the 100-yard backstroke in 59 seconds while Jordan Brun was third in 1:10.15 and Pat Armstrong fourth in 1:11.33.

A 1:03.67 by Jeff Sieving was good for first in the 100-yard breaststroke. The team of Bond, Whitbeck, Johnston and Craig Sieving was second in the 400-yard freestyle relay. Malloure, Jeff Sieving, Stewart and Anderson were third.

Cagers dump Walled Lake Western 50-45; fall to Central

By SCOTT DANIEL

Just call him "Ice."

With just 1:15 left and his team trailing by a point, Ben Szostek coolly hit a three-point jumper. Then with eight seconds to go, Ice drained a pair of free throws to seal Northville High's 50-45 road victory over Walled Lake Western Friday.

"He played real strong the last minute of the game," said coach Larry Taylor. "He's getting more confident each game he plays."

The junior led the Mustangs with 14 points in the game. Anthony DeBenedet added 11 and James Holman 10.

Northville improved to 8-5 overall and 4-3 in the Western Lakes Activities Association. It was anything but an easy victory however.

A season after going 0-21, this was a different Western crew. Walled Lake trailed most of the way, but fought back to tie the game late and threatened to steal a win.

"They're a good team," said Taylor. "(Coach) Pat Adams has them playing hard. We knew it wouldn't be an easy game."

Walled Lake showed its spunk in the first quarter. Northville jumped to a 7-2 lead with the game less than two minutes old. Brian Buser hit a three-pointer and DeBenedet benefited from the quick hands of Aneil Kersey to score a layup.

But Western's Paul Whitting scored five straight points to tie the game at seven. The Mustangs ran off seven straight points and then held Walled Lake off for a 14-12 by the end of the period.

The game remained close until the final few seconds of the half.

Holman connected on a pair of free throws with 37 seconds left to make it 23-20. Szostek then beat the halftime buzzer with a jumper from the free throw line. He scored seven in the half.

Taylor said it was kind of an average half of play for his club.

"We weren't doing anything special," he added. "We were not running the floor real well."

A hoop by Mark Sander made it 39-32 with 1:49 left in the third. Western closed the gap to three by the end of the frame.

Whitting and Garon Oseff scored five points as the home team grabbed a 43-42 lead with 5:40 left. The teams traded baskets until Szostek's three-pointer with 1:15 to go.

Despite having to fight Walled Lake off in the last minute, Taylor said his team didn't take the Warriors lightly.

"We stressed the importance of it being a division game," he added.

Having already lost to Canton, Northville needs to win the rest of its division games for a shot at the title.

"We have to hope that someone beats Canton," Taylor said, "and we have to win our games."

However the season turns out, the coach said his team plays to its full potential.

"This group of guys works together very good," said Taylor.

Besides Szostek's heroics, Kersey had a solid game at point guard. He dished off 10 assists.

WALLED LAKE CENTRAL 68, NORTHVILLE 66

Roles were reversed in the Jan. 31 home game. Northville fought from behind.

As the fourth quarter progressed, it looked like the Mustangs comeback would be successful. Northville, in fact, took a 64-59 lead with more than three minutes to go.

But Central, which has developed into a WLAA powerhouse in recent years, tied it up with 57 seconds left. Walled Lake's Greg Tobias then nailed four straight free throws to push his team to victory.

"They had a 10-point lead on us at one time," said Taylor. "But we fought back."

Tobias was the difference in the game. He scored 10 of his 16 in the fourth quarter.

Special Writer

It looks like winter is almost over (wishful thinking) and thoughts now should be of springlike temperatures ... sunshine, flowers blooming and robins singing.

We know there's still more cold weather in store, but we can handle it because of all the fun waiting at the Novi Civic Center. As Novi Parks and Recreation says, "don't hibernate ... rec-re-ate at the Novi Senior Center."

Sure with the cold weather, people want to bundle up in their Afghans, sit by a roaring fire and becoming couch potatoes, but we have a better idea at the civic center. Stop on by and have fun, it's "toasty warm" and friendly and there's something for everyone at the Novi Senior Center.

"If you have never been here, you will be impressed because the Novi Senior Center is a very dynamic and growing multi-purpose center, setting trends in activities and services offered for our older population," said Kathy Crawford, special recreation coordinator. "It is a community focal point where our seniors can come together as individuals or in groups for social, recreational and educational programs."

The Novi Senior Center and Seniors Centers across the United States have come a long way. Last month (Jan. 25) marked the 51st anniversary of senior citizen centers. What better way to help celebrate this special occasion by stopping at the Novi Civic Center and taking part in some of the activities. There are well over 50 activities going on here, for people from 50 to 90 years young. Pick up a monthly calendar from Jan McAlpine, senior center manager and your hibernation days are over.

February promises many special events and activities along with the regular favorites. Celebrate Valentine's Day at the special Valentine's Day Bingo Party on Tuesday, Feb. 14. Call for reservations for lunch ($2) and stay for the bingo party ($2) complete with great prizes and refreshments.

Need help preparing your income tax? Free tax assistance is offered every Thursday at the Center beginning today, Feb. 9. Call Eileen at 347-0414 to make an appointment. How about joining a new "Senior Fitness Fun" class (chair exercises) every Thursday from 1-2 p.m. A new and exciting exercise class for seniors designed to strengthen and tone muscles, assure healthy bones and increase stamina with little stress on hips or knees. It's an excellent program for beginners and/or people with arthritis and it's only $1.50 per person (drop-in).

Special topics and guests at the senior center in February include "Foot Care" with Dr. Michelle Sable on Friday, February 17th at 11 a.m.; "How to Use Your Commodity Food in Your Closet" with Sylvia Trietman, from Oakland County Co-op extension on Tuesday, Feb. 21st at 11 a.m.; "Health Wise for Life" with Marcia Graham, registered nurse from the Oakland County Health Department on Wednesday, Feb. 22 at 1:30 p.m.; and "Crime Prevention Scams" with Novi Police Detective Todd Anger on Friday, Feb. 24 at 11 a.m. Come for the info, stay for lunch (only $2).

Do you like physical activities? How about clogging or line dancing? Both are great exercise and a terrific way to meet people. Clogging is offered Wednesdays and Fridays at 12:30 p.m., and line dancing is offered on Tuesdays at 9:30 a.m. Learn some terrific dances that you can do with or without a partner.

Do you need some massage therapy? Try it for a fabulous feeling or improved health, easing of muscle tension, and improved circulation during a 20 minute massage by a professional therapist every Tuesday and Thursday from 9 a.m. to noon. You must call 347-0414 for an appointment ($6 for a 20 minute session).

Looking for some more relaxed activities? Try bingo (Tuesdays and Fridays at 12:30 p.m.), and Duplicate Bridge (Fridays at 12:30 p.m.). Like to read? The Novi Library Bookmobile stops by the Center on the third Thursday each month at 9:30 a.m. Stop by for coffee and a current events discussion the first and third Friday at 11 a.m. Feeling artistic? Join us for oil painting on Wednesday at 10 a.m. or crafts on Tuesdays at 10 a.m.

Don't forget about lunch. Site hostess Camille Kelley provides excellent, well-balanced lunches at noon everyday for a $2 donation. Pick up a menu at the Senior Center.

Besides the daily and weekly activities, there are also many special monthly programs and activities. Put on your dancing shoes and join us the fourth Tuesday of each month (1-3 p.m.) for dancing to a live band and refreshments. There's always something to celebrate at the Senior Center with monthly theme days and parties to celebrate each and every holiday.

Don't think that it's all fun and games here ... we also offer seminars, workshops, health screenings and informational programs. Your health is important to us. There are free, weekly blood pressure checks on Wednesdays at 11 a.m. and you can call the Center for appointment with Nurse Marcia Graham, Oakland County Health Department who will answer all your medical-related questions.

Now you have no more excuses that there's nothing to do. At the Novi Senior Center there's always something special going on.

"We all need a boost, especially during the winter when the weather tends to get us down," said Crawford. "If you love to meet new people, do interesting things or travel to new places and have fun, the Novi Senior Center is for you."

Staying healthy part of being an adult

Randy Step

When we were toddlers, the immediate gratification of toys, candy and play was our driving force. We gave no thought to future consequences or responsibilities. (What a great time in life!)

As we grew older, our parents began enforcing rules and we became responsible for our actions and took the consequences that came with them. Two recent family events reinforced the rule of consequences.

My 6-year-old niece said something that could have been a classic line on the Art Linkletter Show, Kids Say the Darndest Things. (If you remember the show, you aren't a kid anymore). As her parents were saying, "no, you cannot have another snack" and "no, you cannot stay up until 9 o'clock," the tears started to flow. She said goodnight to me and added, "I can't wait till I'm an adult so I can stay up as long as I want and can eat anything I want, anytime I want." Sounds funny but it's true.

As adults, we have the freedom to do what we want, tempered by the harsh reality of poor choices. So what leads us so often to do irresponsible things and ignore the consequences of our actions? An example of childish irresponsibility is overspending on credit cards for things we really can't afford. Another would be to stay out until 2 a.m. the night before an early business appointment. Perhaps the immediate gratification of the moment was so great it blocked the reality of the situation. Whatever reasons we come up with, we know they are only excuses for irresponsibility. Boy, it's tough being grown up!

Now, the fitness angle for this article. Is it not irresponsible to be overweight or out of shape? Obesity leads to heart disease and a host of medical problems that lead to harsh consequences, including premature death. Is eating more calories than you burn any different than buying items you can't afford? Eventually, you must suffer the consequences of the misuse of money or food.

If you think my comments are a bit harsh, perhaps they need to be. My idea for this article came last weekend when I flew to Florida to be with my father during his bypass surgery. What a reality check. While waiting in the cardiac unit of the medical center, I saw people stacked up like cord wood waiting for open heart surgery. The body type of most patients was amazingly similar. These were definitely not people you would want to see in a bathing suit. Years of poor diet and lack of daily fitness had caught up. Sure, some of us live healthy lifestyles and end up with medical conditions because of hereditary factors, but mentioning the role of genetic inheritance only provides more fuel for excuses.

Just as credit counselors help people get back on track from financial problems, we have fitness counselors to get us back to healthy living.

Too bad the majority of us learn these skills after a disaster. They call it cardiac rehab. I truly believe an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure and I have thought of a preventive program for fitness problems.

Health insurance companies could require overweight individuals to volunteer in the post-surgical cardiac intensive care unit for a day. If they refused, their insurance would be canceled. Seeing the tears of a family as they are reunited with a loved one coming back from surgery has great therapeutic value. A body on a ventilator with lung drainage tubes, a nasal stomach gastric tube and a host of catheters and IVs is quite an eye opener. I often hear people say bypass surgery is no big deal. They would be well served to experience the surgical intensive care unit.

Sorry this isn't my usual type of article expounding some fun and healthy lifestyle full of adventure, but I thought someone might need to hear the consequences of not living one.

Exercise can be as simple as walking

For sheer popularity, it's hard to beat walking. However, reading your mind, I can tell you are wondering about its limitations. As I answer your questions, remember I mean a walking program, not just an occasional stroll when the mood strikes.

Barry Franklin

Does walking have advantages over other forms of exercise?

Yes! Walking is associated with a low dropout rate, an easily tolerated exercise intensity, and fewer orthopedic and musculoskeletal problems of the knees, feet and ankles. Brisk walking can increase heart-lung fitness, improve the blood fat profile and reduce body weight and fat stores.

Can brisk walking be intense enough to improve heart-lung fitness?

A resounding yes! Recent studies suggest most middle-aged Americans can attain the minimum exercise intensity for training - 70 percent of the maximal heart rate - by brisk walking alone.

How can I vary my walking program to make it more enjoyable and effective?

Walk with a backpack. Walk in water. Walk on a treadmill incline or with hand weights. A new device called Exerstrider, which includes two rubber-tipped poles, allows you to simulate cross-country skiing.

Whoa! Walking with hand weights? Does that really increase energy expenditure?

Yes, if you swing your arms vigorously rather than holding the weights at your sides. Walking with swinging hand weights actually can equal the caloric cost of jogging.

Can walking alone promote total body fitness?

No. The benefits of exercise are largely specific to the muscle groups you use. Walking should be complemented with upper body training devices, such as rowing machines, weights and wall pulleys or other exercises that use the upper body.

How much should I walk per week to promote optimal cardiovascular health?

Walking briskly for 30 or more minutes, four to six days per week, is enough. Even small increases in fitness can have a significant impact on reducing the death rate from heart disease.

How about walking as a conditioner after a heart attack?

Walking is the "activity of choice" after an acute coronary attack. The speed limitations of walking prevent its becoming too vigorous.

How do competitive race walkers compare with other elite athletes in their physiologic profile?

Only slightly below world-class marathon runners, according to our research studies several years ago. We studied nine national-class race walkers, most in their mid-20s to early-30s. Their average walk training distance was 74 miles per week. Their average body fatness was very low, 7.8 percent, and mean total cholesterol was only 169.

In older women, is walking an adequate exercise to slow the progression of osteoporosis?

Walking and other weight-bearing exercise seem to play a favorable role in increasing bone mass, according to research.

Can walking reverse some of the deleterious effects attributed to aging?

Yes. After the age of 20, heart-lung fitness typically declines by approximately 1 percent per year. An exercise program can lead to a 20 percent increase in your maximal oxygen consumption, so that transforms to a 20-year functional rejuvenation.

What's the moral of the story? Ponce de Leon sailed in search of the Fountain of Youth. He should have stayed on land and walked.

EXCUSES, EXCUSES

Top 10 Reasons Why You Should Place a Personal Greeting on the Voice Mail System

1. I DON'T NEED TO - I'LL GET RESPONSES ANYWAY. Respondents expect and want to hear your greeting, and you'll increase your voice mail response by more than 50%. PLUS your greeting can be heard by callers "browsing" through the system long after you print ad has expired.
2. I WOULDN'T KNOW WHAT TO SAY. Prepare a script, write a speech, read a poem. Talk about your likes and dislikes. Describe yourself and who attracts you. Say anything.
3. I'D PREFER A RESPONSE LETTER AND MAYBE A PHOTOGRAPH. Mention your preferences in your voice mail greeting and be sure to state your Talking Personals mailbox number where they can send you a written response.
4. WHAT IF I DON'T LIKE MY GREETING? Change it until you do and change it as often as you wish. It's your voice mailbox for as long as you keep it active.
5. IT'S TOO COMPLICATED. It's as easy as leaving a message on an answering machine. A computer prompts you every step of the way.
6. I DON'T HAVE TIME. It only takes about 2 minutes to place a greeting on our state-of-the-art voice mail system.
7. I DON'T HAVE A TOUCH TONE TELEPHONE. This is the 90's so this is not a valid excuse.
8. TOO MANY NUMBERS TO REMEMBER. That's why we sent you the hand instruction card!
9. TOO EXPENSIVE. Placing a greeting on the voice mail system is FREE and retrieving your voice mail responses is just $1.49 each minute.
10. BUT I STILL DON'T GET IT. Call us, and we'll be happy to take you through the entire system step-by-step.

SOCCER

The under 16 Plymouth Lightning Premier girls soccer team recently won the indoor championship in the under 19 division at the Canton Soccerdome with a 9-1-0 record. Their opposition consisted of four other teams from the metro area. This team also tied for first place in the Little Caesar's Premier Soccer League under 16 Division II this past fall.

SOCCER II

The Michigan Hawks under 11 girls team won first place in the regionals of the North American Indoor Soccer Championship held in Chicago at the end of January. The team now advances to the finals in Columbus, Ohio, in April where their skills will be tested by 31 teams from other regions around the country.

Jennifer Wilkin, former All-American soccer player at Livonia Churchill High School and Michigan State, coaches the team. Players include: Alicia Brackel (Northville), Lauren Burke, Jackie DiPonio, Erin Doan, Loni Ealba, Maureen Griffith, Katie Hoyng (Northville), Katie Kramer, Kate Lord, Amanda Moore, Manda Otterman (Novi), Maureen Pawlak (Novi), Sarah Phillips, Katie Rozum, Errin Sheehan and Stefani Szczecowski.

Spikers fall to Novi in home tourney

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

Only one thing stood in the way of the Mustang volleyball team making the finals of their own tournament Saturday: Novi High.

But those pesky Wildcats from the north derailed Northville's hopes and won a semi-final match up in three games. It was Novi's second win over the Mustangs this winter.

The schools split the first two games. Northville dropped the opener 15-8 but charged back for a 15-7 win in game two.

The rubber game was played in rally-score format, meaning a point was counted on every serve. In regular high school matches only the serving team can score points.

Novi prevailed 15-13 and went on to the final.

"There was a lot of emotion," Northville coach Laura Murray said. "We played a great game (but) it was another disappointing loss to Novi."

A total of 12 teams participated in the tournament. Schools were divided into pools of four. Northville came out of its pool No. 1.

The Mustangs opened with Redford Union and won both games, 15-6, 15-12. Northville then beat Southfield 15-8, 15-2. The team's only loss came in a split with Chelsea, 15-7, 6-15.

Because of poor weather, one school couldn't participate in the tournament. Northville's junior varsity team filled in and played well, despite not winning a game.

NORTHVILLE def. NORTH FARMINGTON

After a slow start Feb. 1 at home, the Mustangs poured it on North Farmington.

The Raiders took game one 16-14. The teams traded leads and Northville led as late as 11-9.

But errors did the Mustangs in. Five serving, hitting and blocking errors were made.

The team continued to make errors in game two, but was able to win 15-13. A strong 9-4 start helped.

Lauren Poole and Angie Groves had strong games with three kills. Kristin Wasalaski had four digs, too.

"It was the best game of her career," Murray said.

The Mustangs took a 2-1 advantage in the match by winning 15-13. Northville started this game out fast as well.

The squad ran off seven straight points on Poole's serve, which included two aces. Renee Olin, Groves and Jill Holloway buttressed her serving with solid front row play.

Game four, a 15-8 win, was Northville's best. Only one hitting error and two blocking errors were made.

The win improved the Mustangs Western Lakes Activities Association record to 3-3.

LIVONIA STEVENSON def. NORTHVILLE

The Spartans, long one of the area's best squads, beat Northville in three games, 15-12, 15-13, 15-10, at home Jan. 30.

Murray said it was one of her team's better performances despite the loss.

"Even though we lost in three," she said, "I thought we played an excellent match."

All three games were close from wire to wire.

Tami Taylor had a solid game two. She served for four points and a pair of aces. Gregerson had three kills and a block in that game, too.

"I like how we played," said Murray. "We played up to the competition."

the Patriots' Adam Hill in 1:32. Mike Scappaticci wrestled a tough 142-pound match with Tony Deffer and came out an 8-4 winner. Joe Scappaticci followed with a pin of Joe Morten in 1:11.

Young grappler Wes Morland went the distance in his 160-pound match but fell to Jay Allen 14-7. Northville then dropped its next three matches.

The Mustangs voided at 172 and 215 pounds. In between, Brian Grider was pinned by Andy Hill in

Bowersox closed the match with his win.

"It was nice to win," said Potter.

The season is quickly drawing to a close. After Saturday's league meet, state individual and team districts will be held next week.

Potter likes his team's chances at the district meet. Novi, North Farmington, Farmington and Farmington Hills Harrison will wrestle against the Mustangs at the team showdown.

"I think we got a chance to win that," said Potter. "But we'll need a couple of things to go our way."

REAL ESTATE

'95 real estate outlook

By James M. Woodard
Copley News Service

Real estate experts and analysts are grouped around a crystal ball these days, frantically looking for data or any supporting information for predicting key developments in the 1995 real estate market. They need guidelines for their projections so they will be perceived as smart and perceptive at the end of the year.

As usual, predictions vary widely from expert to expert. One group with a particularly good track record for on-target predictions is the research department of the National Association of Realtors. Here are a few key points they are making:

Sales of previously owned homes will slow slightly this year, compared with the 1994 pace. At the same time, home prices will rise faster than the inflation rate.

The report adds that the inflation rate will probably remain under control for at least the next two years.

The median price of existing homes nationally will rise about 4.3 percent — to $115,200. The median price of newly constructed homes will rise about 3.6 percent to $135,500.

There will be a 6.3 percent drop in the number of sold existing single-family homes, resulting in a projected 3.7 million home sales in 1995. Sales of new single-family homes will drop 5.6 percent to 638,000 units.

To a large extent, home buyers are at the mercy of fluctuating mortgage interest rates. If inflation starts accelerating its upward climb, the Federal Reserve will push the button for higher interest rates. That may slow our economic growth to a more healthy pace, but it will squeeze more families out of the home buying market.

A recent column focused on the new "limited appraisal" plan, developed by The Appraisal Institute. It makes it possible for professional appraisers with the MAI designation to provide shorter and less expensive property appraisals for clients.

That information generated a lot of response, both positive and negative. One was from appraiser William Miklos Jr. He revealed some particularly interesting points about the limited appraisal.

Lenders who want to eventually sell a mortgage to the secondary mortgage market, such as Fannie Mae (largest buyer of existing mortgages), must have originally used a full summary type appraisal. Otherwise, the mortgage will not be accepted," Miklos said.

I checked with a representative for Fannie Mae on this point. Miklos is right — Fannie Mae does still require a full property appraisal for mortgages they buy. But they are studying the limited appraisal concept.

The limited appraisal you described in your column may be used in nonfederally related residential transactions," Miklos

Free seminar offered by HBA of Livingston County

For most people, buying a home is the largest single investment they will make, so whether you're in the market for a new home or a pre-existing home, there is important information you need to know.

In conjunction with the Ultimate Open House, the HBA of Livingston County will be hosting a free seminar the weekend of February 11th and 12th at Cleary College on Grand River in Howell. The seminar will help guide you through the steps necessary to making home ownership a reality. For your convenience, you can reserve a spot for Saturday the 11th from 10:00-12:00 or on Sunday the 12th from 1:00 to 3:00 p.m.

The seminar will be a panel discussion comprised of a representative from a realtor firm, a local bank, a mortgage broker, a title company and a local builder/developer.

Charles Rhinehart Realtors, First National Bank in Howell, DeLeo Mortgage, American Title Company and Artisan Company will be on hand to answer questions for first time buyers, move up buyers, and "empty-nesters," as well as offer valuable information for those special situations.

For instance, what happens if you find the home of your dreams, but still have a house to sell?

Or, if you're a first time buyer, can you borrow the down payment? What do you need to qualify for your first mortgage, and how much will it cost to find out if you qualify?

The role of the realtor and the title company will also be covered as well as insight on the process of developing a suitable site for your dream home. In addition, there will be handouts for you to keep and plenty of time for question and answer and individual consultation.

To make your reservation and for direction to Cleary College for either Saturday or Sunday, contact the HBA of Livingston County at 810/227-6210.

Home Builders Association of Livingston County offers open houses this weekend

By Cal Hodgson
Staff Writer

There is going to be a home shopping network in Livingston County this weekend, but not like the kind on television. The Home Builders Association of Livingston County (HBA) will sponsor a scattered-site showing of new homes available throughout the county.

It's called the Ultimate Open House, and it takes place Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., and Sunday from noon to 5 p.m. The event is free. Call 227-6210 for information.

"Our objective is to make it as easy as possible for the buyer to see homes in all price ranges," said Carol Kull of the HBA.

The HBA homes are all new, complete homes. All of the houses are finished, with some decorated at the builders' discretion. The new homes are customizable, with the carpet and lighting fixtures left out on some occasions on purpose.

The HBA has 20 homes available for viewing in Livingston County, but it is also having other local Realtors open up their pre-owned homes.

"We are trying to get as many Realtors involved as possible so the public can come out and have a field day," Kull said.

There is a map provided in today's tabloid sections of this newspaper which will assist with finding all of the many homes being shown. Also, Ultimate Open House signs are posted out in front of the participating houses.

In conjunction with the Ultimate Open House — sponsored by the HBA of Livingston County and in cooperation with HomeTown Newspapers — free seminars offering helpful home-buying tips will be held throughout the weekend at Cleary College in Howell.

These seminars offer helpful tips for first-time buyers or people who are looking for a larger or smaller homes. The seminar will be held on Saturday and repeated on Sunday.

A representative from First National Bank in Howell, American Title Company, Charles Reinhardt Realtors, DeLeo Mortgage, and Artisan Building and Development Company will be on hand to answer questions for first-time buyers, "empty-nesters" and representatives.

These representatives will cover the different facets of the home-buying process, such as the role of the Mortgage Company, financing, qualifying, prequalifying, etc.

The seminar at Cleary College is open to the public. Reservations can be made for Saturday from 10 a.m. to noon, or Sunday from 1-3 p.m. by calling the HBA of Livingston County at 227-6210.

It is recommended to first attend a seminar, then take some time to visit the homes being held open throughout Livingston County.

HOME DESIGNS

The compact KO is okay for small lots

By James McAlexander
Copley News Service

If you want a home that's easy to maintain and fits on a small lot, the KO just might pique your interest. It measures a compact 48 feet by 40 feet and provides slightly more than 1,050 square feet of living space. This plan could also serve as a duplex, with the second unit mirroring the first and adjacent garages.

The bedrooms are small, but the open design and a generous use of glass in the group living areas keep them from feeling cramped. In the living room, a large window fills most of the front wall. Two smaller windows punctuate the side wall.

A coat closet, directly in front of the entry, provides some separation between living room and dining room without making the rooms feel boxy.

Sliding glass doors brighten the dining room and open into an enclosed patio courtyard. Protected from the wind on three sides, this cozy exterior nook makes an ideal location for outdoor dining as well as nurturing potted plants.

An efficient U-shaped kitchen faces the street and is open to the dining room. Stove, sink and refrigerator cluster in a tight triangle that saves unnecessary steps. Utilities are close at hand, nestled in a pass through space that connects the kitchen to the garage.

Besides being convenient, this arrangement is something of a safety feature. When you come home at night with a carload of groceries, you can park the car in the garage, shut the garage door, and carry the bags directly into the kitchen without stepping outside.

Bedrooms are to the rear and share a bathroom. The master bedroom has a walk-in closet.

Families with young children will appreciate having all of the bedrooms close together. Couples or singles with no children can use one of the bedrooms as a home office or hobby room, and still have a room free for overnight guests.

OVERALL DIMENSIONS: 48'-0" X 40'-0"

GARAGE: 282 square feet

Root cuttings increase perennials

By C.Z. Guest
Copley News Service

G. I'd like to try propagating ornamental perennials from root cuttings. What perennials can be propagated in this way? Can you explain the basics?

A. Propagation by root cuttings is often used by many gardeners when propagation by other means is too slow or unsuccessful. Like other methods of propagation (leaf or stem cuttings), it's perfect for increasing stock of plants that don't come true from seed or plants that don't produce seed.

Root propagation is usually slower than making leaf or stem cuttings taking at least four to six months before propagated plants can be placed in their permanent places.

Perennials that can be propagated include anemone, globe thistle, phlox, bleeding heart and primrose to name a few.

In January, February and March, given favorable conditions, roots can draw upon the stored starch from the previous season to begin growing. Dig up the plants you want to propagate, cut off several roots close to the plant's crown where they are the largest. Do not remove more than one-third of the entire root system. Replant the parent plant.

Carefully lay out the cut roots as they were growing on the plant. Cut the root pieces into smaller sections about 1 1/2 inches long. Be careful to keep the right side up.

Fill a growing flat with a sterile commercial pro-mix soil, making sure of proper drainage. Bank up one side of the flat with soil to a 45-degree angle and lay the root pieces on the bank with their tops up.

Cover the cuttings entirely with the soil mix, with the top of the cuttings near the surface and their bottom about 1/2 inch below the soil surface. The top of the root piece will produce new shoots while the lower half will generate a root system. Cuttings will produce shoots faster if soil and air temperature are at least 60 degrees F. Keep the cuttings moist but do not overwater. When new shoots

Propagating root cuttings

Propagation by root cuttings is often used by gardeners when propagation by other means is too slow or unsuccessful.

- Dig up plants, cut off several roots close to plant's crown. Do not remove more than one-third of the root system.
- Lay out cut roots as they were on the plant. Cut root pieces into smaller sections about 1 1/2 inches long; keep right side up.
- Fill a grow flat with sterile commercial pro-mix soil; make sure of proper drainage.
- Bank up one side of the flat with soil to a 45-degree angle and lay root pieces on bank with tops up.
- Cover cuttings with the soil, with top of cuttings near surface and their bottoms about 1/2 inch below surface.
- Soil and air temperature should be 60 degrees.
- Keep cuttings moist; do not overwater.
- When new shoots appear, start fertilizing.
- Transplant in individual containers when root system has sufficiently formed to support the growing shoots.

Quality padding promotes carpet longevity

By Gene Gary
Copley News Service

Q. In the process of shopping for new wall-to-wall carpeting, I have become confused about the type of carpet padding to choose. Although I am ready to buy a fairly expensive, high-quality nylon carpet, I am not sure that it is necessary to select the most expensive padding on the market.

A. Different carpet dealers have recommended different products. Can you advise me on what to look for in the choice of carpet padding?

A. You are wise to place importance on the quality of carpet cushion as well as the carpet. A top-of-the-line carpet cushion will help a poor-quality carpet, but it won't make up for the fact that the carpet was of poor quality to begin with. However, a quality cushion not only complements quality carpeting but contributes to its longevity.

It is important to check with the manufacturer of the carpet you choose for recommendations on cushion requirements. This will prevent problems resultant from improper cushion selection and the possible voiding of applicable warranties. Choice of cushion that is inappropriate for the end use application of the carpet may result in accelerated loss of appearance, retention, wrinkling, buckling and the separation of the carpet backing of seams.

For residential applications, cushion thickness should not exceed 7/16th of an inch. Unfortunately, because there are several different types of carpet cushions (fiber, rubber and polyurethane foam), not all products are measured by the same factors. It is not possible to judge padding by a single characteristic like density or ounce weight. But there are some basic guidelines.

For residential use, "bonded" or "rebonded," smooth-surfaced urethane foam, not exceeding 6 pounds density (pounds per cubic foot) is more than sufficient for almost all conditions.

HERE'S HOW

A carpet cushion that is too thick can become dislodged from the tack strip and will cause carpet to flex to a degree greater than that for which it was designed

High-traffic areas require this thinner and firmer (and typically better quality) cushion.

If a more luxurious feel is desired, a thicker and more resilient cushion can be used. However, it is best to note that products with a higher density or higher ounce weight, i.e., thin and firm, can provide better support and absorb more shock from foot traffic that will help the carpet last longer.

A carpet cushion that is too thick can become dislodged from the tack strip and will cause carpet to flex to a degree greater than that for which it was designed, resulting in decreased wearability. In addition to the smooth urethane products, there are waffle-shape rubber pads (a latex and clay composition) on the market. The quality can be affected by the ratio of clay to latex used in the composition.

But, overall, the waffle will tend to flatten out and this padding will deteriorate faster than the urethane foams.

Fiber pads, padding made from synthetic fibers or from animal hair blended with jute, are often coated on one or both sides with rubber. These cushions tend to mat and can mildew if exposed to continued wetness.

The Carpet Cushion Council publishes minimum recommendations for residential applications, which rates urethane, fiber and rubber padding. For a fact sheet on choosing the proper carpet cushion, write the council at P.O. Box 546, Riverside, CT 06878.

Q. I would like to wallpaper a mobile home that currently has some type of design on wallboard, which has a slick surface. Is it possible to successfully apply wallpaper on this type of surface?

A. With proper selection of both paper and paste, you should be able to successfully apply a new covering.

As with any wallpaper project, start by removing all cover plates, wall hangings, fixtures and mountings. Repair all cracks, holes and nicks. Wash down the walls with a solution of trisodium phosphate and water.

Carefully inspect the current wallboard. You may find that the design is a vinyl covering applied to wallboard. Often, this type of wallboard will have minor defects such as wrinkles in corners, around windows or even minor deterioration of the surface covering. Use a razor blade to cut away wrinkles or any deteriorating covering. You may even have to lightly sandpaper the wall to assure a smooth, deglossed surface.

In selecting a new covering, choose from one of the high-quality, fabric-backed vinyls if possible. You will find these much easier to work with around the corners and angles you find in a mobile home. Paper-backed vinyl tears much more easily.

You would be wise to choose a wallpaper paste recommended for applying vinyl over vinyl. I also have used a heavy-duty wallpaper paste in a similar situation, reinforcing the seams with a wallpaper seam-sealer glue that is a permanent, nonstrippable glue.

Send inquiries to Here's How, Copley News Service, P.O. Box 190, San Diego, CA 92112-0190. Only questions of general interest can be answered in the column.

Under the carpet: Think quality

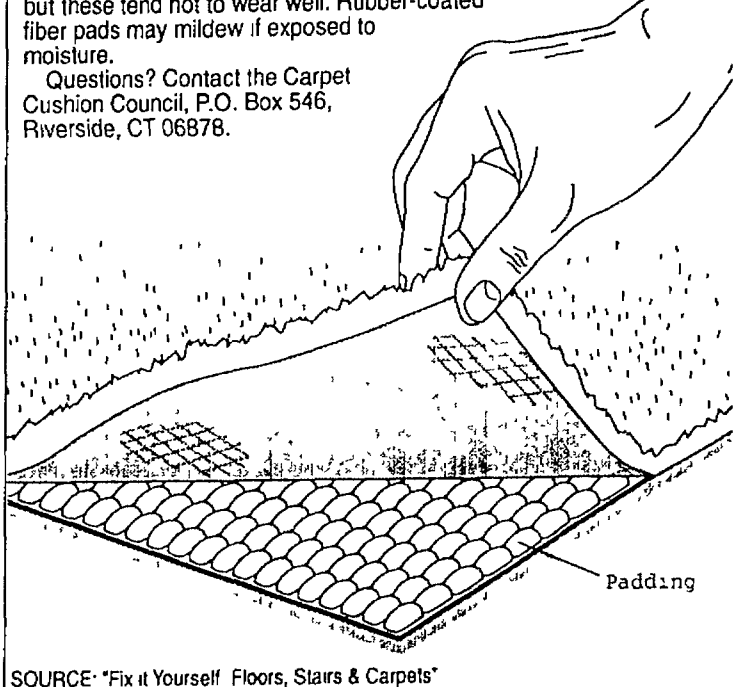

The proper carpet padding will add to the look, feel and longevity of your new carpeting. If you have chosen a nice carpet, do not skimp on the padding.

The thickness of paddings for residential use should not exceed 7/16 of an inch. A really thick cushion may provide a more luxurious feel, but (generally) thinner and firmer padding will help the carpet last longer.

There are several different types of carpet cushion: fiber, rubber and polyurethane. Bonded or rebonded smooth-surfaced urethane foam is more than adequate for most conditions.

There are waffle-shape rubber pads on the market, but these tend not to wear well. Rubber-coated fiber pads may mildew if exposed to moisture.

noted. "But it must be requested in writing by the client with specific instructions to the appraiser that indicates what is to be left out of the report. The use of this type of report, if not done properly, can lead to a possible lawsuit against the appraiser."

Recent changes in available types of property appraisals have created a lot of confusion for appraisers, lenders, buyers and sellers, according to Miklos.

"All this confusion has motivated several real estate training schools to offer special courses to provide a more complete understanding of when and what type report may be used by appraisers and lenders."

Miklos also pointed out the federal government now requires all appraisers to be state licensed.

"To obtain this license (in California), an appraiser must have completed a minimum of 145 hours of training in state approved courses and have had a minimum of 2,000 hours of experience for the designation of "certified" residential appraiser.

The MAI was considered the designation to have at one time, prior to licensing. But it's no longer the governing factor.

"Before licensing, anyone could call themselves an appraiser. Because of this, the Appraisal Institute offered courses and required members to have certain experience before the Institute would allow them to use the MAI designation.

"This was done to help the appraisal profession become a profession and weed out those who didn't really understand what they were doing. State licensing now takes the place of that need."

Q. Do computer on-line services offer downloadable programs that are real estate related, in addition to general information?

A. Yes. For example, while glancing through a CompuServe magazine, I noticed the listing of a new downloadable program called "Home Inspector." Downloadable means it can be lifted from the on-line service and used on your computer.

This item provides prospective home buyers or others with a computer program that includes a detailed checklist of things to look for in a house being considered for purchase. It also offers pertinent tips for buyers before they make an offer on a residential property.

Other downloadable programs provide information on house buying vs. renting, mortgage comparing and home construction considerations.

Note: If you have newsworthy information for possible use in future real estate columns and you're a CompuServe user, please send it to me via my CompuServe mail box: Jim Woodard — 75264.3201.

Questions may be used in future columns; personal responses should not be expected. Send inquiries to James M. Woodard, Copley News Service, P.O. Box 190, San Diego, CA 92112 0190

'Potato chip' chair offers a valuable combination

By Anne McCollam
Copley News Service

Q. I have a lounge chair and matching ottoman designed by Charles Eames. Each piece has tufted black leather upholstery, laminated rosewood frames and swivel bases. What can you tell me about Eames and the value of my set?

A. Charles Eames was an American architect who also achieved great success as a furniture designer. He won the "Organic Design in Home Furnishings" 1940 competition at New York's Museum of Modern Art.

In 1946, he introduced a chair made of laminated, molded wood at his one-man show at MOMA. It became known as the "Potato Chip Chair" because the shape of the back and seat resembled potato chips. Herman Miller Furniture Co. produced both the "potato chip chair" and the lounge set.

Your lounge chair and ottoman were designed in 1956. It would probably be worth at least about $1,500.

Q. This mark is on the bottom of a small porcelain teapot that I inherited from my great-grandmother. It is decorated with tiny butterflies and birds. I would like to know if it has any value.

A. Your teapot was made by Herend located in Herend, Hungary, around 1900. The firm was founded in 1832 and continues to operate. This teapot probably would be worth about $225 to $250.

Q. I was given a porcelain male "Frozen Charlotte" doll. He has clenched fists, bent elbows and stands 4 inches high. The glaze is black and glossy. Any information you can provide will be appreciated.

A. Frozen Charlotte dolls became popular in the last half of the 19th century. They were available in black, white, and pink glazed and unglazed porcelain.

ANTIQUES

The height could range from 1 to 18 inches. Hair or bonnets were molded and the limbs were stationary. Small dolls were sometimes carried by larger ones. Dolls measuring 1 inch were frequently used as favors in cakes. Your doll would probably be worth about $150.

Q. I purchased a glass figurine of a fish at a garage sale for $2.50. "Sabino — France" is etched on the base. The fish is aqua with clear fins and stands 3 inches tall. I have a feeling it is quite valuable. Could you please let me know what my figurine is worth?

A. Art glass was first produced by Ernest Marius Sabino in France in the 1920s. A line of animal figures that have a fiery opalescence debuted in 1960. Your figurine was probably made after 1960 and would be worth about $125 in good condition.

image of a man planing wood on a workbench superimposed over the words.

What is my bench worth?

A. Your bench or settle was made later than you think. Charles P. Limbert didn't begin to produce furniture until 1902. He first produced his line of furniture in 1902 in Grand Rapids, Mich. In 1906 the factory was relocated to Holland, Mich.

Thus, furniture with the Limbert label that includes "Holland" was made after 1906. Limbert maintained high quality in design, materials and construction. Company workers were referred to as a guild.

The craftsmen were encouraged to be creative and share ideas with the designers.

Your settle was made in the early 1900s. It would probably be worth about $2,500 to $3,000.

Q. I have a Royal Doulton figurine of "The Old Balloon Seller." The words "H N — 1315 — in England" are marked on the bottom. It is in perfect condition. When was it made and what is its value?

A. "The old Balloon Seller" marked "1315" was first made in 1929 and continues to be produced. It was designed by Leslie Harradine for Royal Doulton. The current market value of your figurine would probably be about $195 to $225.

appear, start fertilizing (use Miracle-Gro).

Transplant new plants into individual containers when the root system has sufficiently formed to support the growing shoots

Q. Can terra-cotta pots be left outdoors over the winter?

A. Terra cotta flowerpots will weather severe winters. However you may risk losing yours to flaking and frost cracks. Clay pots absorb water easily but when the water in the pot freezes, it expands and the pot may be damaged

If you have an area like an attached garage where temperatures don't drop below freezing, I suggest placing your pots inside during the cold winter months.

Q. I have geraniums in my yard, and I'd like to keep some of these plants over the winter. What's the best way to do this?

A. Take cuttings from your geraniums and bring them into the house. Snap off stems that are 2 to 3 inches long and strip each stem of all but three to four of the top leaves. Leave the stems exposed to air (in the shade) for a day so each stem will form a callous on its end. This will keep the stems from rotting.

As an extra precaution against disease, dip the calloused cuttings in rooting powder (available at most nurseries or garden supply stores). Set each stem in a pot of moist, lightly packed sterilized soil. Keep the soil moist, but never soggy.

After the roots develop, place the pot in a bright, sunny window letting the soil dry out between waterings. Fertilize after new growth appears. Once your plants are 5 inches tall, pinch back the stem tips to encourage branching. In about four to five months, under proper growing conditions, the plants should start flowering.

Q. When planting daffodil bulbs, I've noticed that many of the larger bulbs have one to two side bulbs attached. Shall I plant the bulbs with these bulblets attached, or can I split them apart and plant each one separately?

Please explain to me each system.

A. You can split your daffodil bulbs apart and plant them separately. Many of the smaller ones will bloom next season while some will not.

The other system, if you plant the daffodils with the side bulbs attached, will still grow and flower, but before long the planting area will become overcrowded. When that happens, you'll simply have to dig up the bulbs, separate them and replant them.

Home Builders Association Free Seminars Offers Valuable Home Buying Information

For most people, buying a home is the largest single investment they will make, so whether you're in the market for a new home or a pre-existing home, there is important information you need to know.

In conjunction with the Ultimate Open House, the HBA of Livingston County will be hosting a free seminar the weekend of February 11th and 12th at Cleary College on Grand River in Howell. The seminar will help guide you through the steps necessary to making home ownership a reality. For your convenience, you can reserve a spot for Saturday the 11th from 10:00-12:00 or on Sunday the 12th from 1:00 to 3:00 p.m.

The seminar will be a panel discussion comprised of a representative from a realtor firm, a local bank, a mortgage broker, a title company and a local builder/developer. Charles Rhinehart Realtors, First National Bank in Howell, DeLeo Mortgage, American Title Company and Artisan Company will be on hand to answer questions for first time buyers, move up buyers, and "empty-nesters," as well as offer valuable information for those special situations.

For instance, what happens if you find the home of your dreams, but still have a house to sell?

Or, if you're a first time buyer, can you borrow the down payment? What do you need to qualify for your first mortgage, and how much will it cost to find out if you qualify?

The role of the realtor and the title company will also be covered as well as insight on the process of developing a suitable site for your dream home. In addition, there will be handouts for you to keep and plenty of time for question and answer and individual consultation.

To make your reservation and for direction to Cleary College for either Saturday or Sunday, contact the HBA of Livingston County at 810/227-6210.

Latest in dance fashion are at Bodies in Motion

By SCOTT DANIEL
Staff Writer

If you don't know a Grishko from a Capezio you'd better get on over to Bodies in Motion.

One of Novi's newest stores specializes in dance shoes, like Grishko and Capezio, apparel and more. According to owner Karen Garlepou, comfortable surroundings and up-to-date merchandise make her store shopper-friendly.

"We want to be known as a family, friendly store," she added. "We want to be known as the store with the latest dance fashions."

Bodies in Motion opened in the Novi Town Center in August. Garlepou said she saw a definite need in the city and surrounding area for her shop.

"There's a 10-mile radius between me and the next dance store," she commented.

It appears that she's found the right spot for the shop, too.

"It's a great location," Garlepou said. "There's easy access to I-96. I've gotten customers from Hartland, Pinckney, Brighton and Howell."

Besides being a business owner, Garlepou and her family are residents of the community. They came from Redford a few years ago.

"We decided to expand into a larger house," said Karen. "We like Novi."

Garlepou worked in customer service before starting Bodies. She decided to get out of that business because of "changing trends."

"I was concerned about losing my job," she added.

Bodies in Motion is Garlepou's first entrepreneurial experience.

Thus far, business has been good.

"We developed a lot of regular customers," Garlepou said. "I've gotten to know a number of people on a first name basis."

Specialty stores are usually operated by people engrossed in the activity, such as running and fitness shops. While she doesn't have a dancing background, Garlepou has learned about the art through her children's participation.

"I'm not a dancer," she said, "but I love to watch kids dance."

Bodies in Motion caters to both youth and adults involved in dance.

A complete line of shoes is on hand. Grishko is one of the better known lines.

Made strictly for ballet, the shoe is worn by some of the world's premier ballerinas. Garlepou said the shoes are also so well crafted that they do not come with a draw string.

Bloch and Capezio shoes are available as well. The shoes are made for jazz and tap dancing.

"All the shoes we carry are dance oriented," said Garlepou.

More than half of store sales come from footwear. But if you're looking for excellent workout attire, Bodies in Motion can help.

Gilda Marx, Eurocard and Major Motion are just a few of the clothes carried by the shop. Besides leotards, tights, sweatshirts, dance skirts and active wear are available.

And if Bodies in Motion doesn't have it in stock, they'll get it.

"We're willing to do special

Salon opens in Whitmore Lake

Joanne's Beauty Salon has opened for business in Whitmore Lake. The new beauty shop located in a log cabin at 9317 Main Street, opened Jan. 20-21.

The owner, Joan Rowland, said her business will provide the standard beauty shop services such as manicures, washes, shampoo sets, perms, hair coloring and haircuts. Men, woman and children are all welcome at the salon.

Rowland has 35 years of experience in beauty shop services. She previously lived and worked in Clinton in Lenawee County.

But she met a man here named Richard Rowland. The couple married and she moved to Whitmore Lake. The couple has worked hard fixing up the log cabin for business which has a lady's touch, according to Joan.

"He let me do everything my way, so it really reflects my personality," Joan Rowland said.

Joan Rowland, who is the sole employee at the business, plans to wear a white uniform while serving customers. She likes to run things the "old-fashioned" way.

For more information, call the beauty salon at (313) 449-5672.

orders," said Garlepou.

Store hours are: Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday 10 a.m. to 7 p.m.; Thursday 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. and Saturday 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

DOUGLAS TEUBERT, of Northville, came out on top, from among more than 1,800 LUTHERAN BROTHERHOOD representatives nationwide, as the number one sales person for the combination of life and health insurance, annuities, variable annuities and mutual funds issued in 1994. He was also number one in the sale of life insurance alone in 1994.

BILL MICKOW has been named director of research and information for CENTURY 21 GREAT LAKES, INC. of Novi. Mickow, previously 12 years with Unisys Corporation, specializes in systems analysis and process automation.

JOHN A. ANDERSON, M.D., division head of Allergy and Immunology at HENRY FORD HOSPITAL and a resident of Northville, has been named among the "Top Docs" in metro Detroit in the February issue of Detroit Monthly magazine.

ERA RYMAL SYMES of Novi recently announced that three agents, HOWARD NOVETSKY, JUDY DORE and PIL SUPERFISKY, have earned all expense paid trips to the 1995 ERA National Convention in Nashville. Awarded the trip for top production in the company, the agents will have an opportunity to learn additional skills to help them continue their outstanding performances as Realtors and the serve their clients.

MICHIGAN MADE, INC. has moved to a new and larger location in downtown Plymouth, at 830 W. Ann Arbor Trail, just west of Main Street, where it will share a newly remodeled building with Wild Wings Gallery, also recently relocated.

Formerly in Northville, the three-year-old specialty shop looks forward to carrying a much larger selection of its unique food and gift items. As its name implies, Michigan Made, Inc. sells only products made in Michigan and will even put together a made-to-order gift basket of its popular Michigan products. The store also offers gift wrapping and will ship anywhere in the U.S.

Michigan Made opened its doors Feb. 1. Store hours are Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Saturday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., Thursday and Friday from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m., and Sunday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Call (313) 207-8794 for more information.

The Association for Responsible Tanning Salons has selected EXOTIC TAN of Novi for membership. Members must maintain the highest standards in quality equipment, cleanliness and staff must be qualified knowledgeable in all aspects of tanning to become a member in ARTS. Owner KATHE RAY attended the ARTS training seminars in Atlanta, Georgia in January.

NINA SAMOSIUK has been named director of catering at BRADY'S FOOD AND SPIRITS in Farmington Hills. Her duties will include overseeing functions, planning corporate promotions, weddings, bar mitzvahs and more. She will also be involved with the advertising and designing of ads and brochures.

COACH'S CARPET CARE AND CATASTROPHE CLEANING recently announced the promotion of WILLIAM GORDON to general manager. Gordon has been employed by the company for 10 years and is a certified master cleaner. He held several technician positions before being promoted to marketing manager in 1989 and then fire division manager in 1992. Gordon will be responsible for the Livonia company's overall business operations.

Realtors of the real estate office RE/MAX 100 helped raise more than $69,000 for Children's Services at William Beaumont Hospital in 1994, announced RE/MAX 100 broker/owner CRYSTAL HALLEY.

Slightly more than half of the money was raised through a Children's Miracle Network commission contribution fund-raiser called the "RE/MAX Miracle Home" program. Participating RE/MAX Realtors contributed a portion of their income earned from each home they sell to create a scholarship fund for children enrolled in the RE/MAX Communication Station preschool at Beaumont—a hospital-based preschool program for children with speech and language difficulties.

Out of 27 RE/MAX agents in the Novi office, 18 participated in the Miracle Home program last year. Throughout Oakland county, 114 out of 186 RE/MAX Realtors representing 11 RE/MAX offices participated in the program in 1994.

RE/MAX Miracle Home program contributions for 1994 totaled $39,661 and provided 92 of 133 children enrolled in the program with treatment scholarships.

In addition to supporting the preschool program, a variety of RE/MAX special events, including a golf outing, a family picnic and RE/MAX hot air balloon rides from the Novi '50s Festival raised $30,282 in 1994 to provide treatment scholarships for children at the Center for Human Development at Beaumont.

The Center for Human Development, founded in 1968, treats children of all ages with closed-head injury, mental retardation, convulsive disorders and developmental disabilities. More than 70 percent of patients served by the Center are from Oakland, Wayne and Macomb counties.

RE/MAX 100 is located at 39500 Orchard Hill Place, No. 130, in Novi. The phone number is (810) 348-3000.

BRIAN K. FRINGER has been promoted to Personal Banking Officer for D&N BANK, according to an announcement by Jack MacLachlan, president of D&N Bank of South Lyon.

"Brian's promotion to personal banking officer illustrates D&N's commitment to its community banking strategy by promoting experienced banking professionals and empowering them with decision-making authority allowing for more effective and efficient customer service," MacLachlan said.

In this position, Fringer provides customers with a full range of banking services.

Fringer joined D&N Bank as a personal banking representative in October 1993. His prior financial services experience includes positions as teller, teller supervisor and assistant manager with National Bank of Macomb County. Fringer is a graduate of Walsh College where he received a bachelor's degree in finance. He and his wife reside in South Lyon where he is an active member of the Southeast Michigan Builders Association, Jaycees, and Kiwanis.

Making saving money easier

Money Management

"No pain, no gain," or so the saying goes. However, this advice need not relate to those concerned with building their financial future. According to the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants, there are many painless ways to save money and gain financial independence. Here are a few methods the MACPA recommends.

PAY YOURSELF FIRST

This age-old precept sounds simple and it is. The key is to make saving your money an integral part of your expense budget, not an afterthought. First, determine how much you want to save each month. Then, when it's time to pay your monthly bills, write a check to your savings or investment account before paying other bills.

MAKE IT AUTOMATIC

If you don't have the discipline to pay yourself first, consider turning the task over to a third party. You can put your savings strategy on auto-pilot by arranging for your payroll department or bank to have a fixed amount from each paycheck deposited to a savings or investment account. You'll find that your savings will grow painlessly because typically, what you don't see, you don't miss.

Better yet, if your employer offers a 401(k) plan, you can contribute a percentage of your salary on a pretax basis. Your contribution reduces your gross income, which means you pay less taxes.

and the interest or dividends your account earns grow tax-free until you withdraw the funds at retirement. If you work for a company that matches part of your contributions, your earnings will multiply faster.

Most major mutual fund families are happy to help you automate your savings habit. With your authorization, you can have a preset amount debited from your checking account each month, as many shares purchased as your payment covers, and those shares credited to your account. This method of investing a fixed amount at regular intervals reduces the impact of market dips.

BANK YOUR RAISE

When you get a raise, continue to live on the amount you previously received and bank the rest. Sock away any minor windfalls, such as bonuses, tax refunds and gifts, too. Along the same lines, if you have recently paid off a car or personal loan, continue to set aside the same amount each month and deposit it in your savings account.

FOOL YOURSELF

If you're paid every other week, try to live on two paychecks a month, that's 24 checks. When the extra two checks come around, plan on banking each of them. If you're paid weekly and can live on four paychecks a month, you'll have four extra checks in '95 to add to your nest egg. With this painless strategy, you can save about eight percent of your salary.

REINVEST DIVIDENDS

Most mutual funds and some stock plans will automatically reinvest your dividends in additional shares. This is advantageous to you for two reasons: it prevents you from spending your investment income and enables you to benefit from the compounding of interest on your investment income.

FUND YOUR FUTURE

Investing as much as you can in a tax-favored retirement plan like an IRA (Individual Retirement Account), Keogh or SEP (Simplified Employee Pension Plan) is a smart way to build your savings. Be sure to make your contribution early in the year if you can. The earlier you contribute to your plan, the more time your money has to compound tax-free. If you find it difficult to come up with a lump sum contribution, try making monthly contributions instead. Either way, you'll be taking important steps toward building a financially secure retirement.

STAMP OUT DEBT

A somewhat less direct, but nonetheless efficient way to build your savings, is to pay off your debt. Start by reducing your credit card debt. Cutting out those 15 to 20 percent interest payments amounts to instant savings. You might also want to try adding an extra $50 to $100 to each monthly mortgage payment you make. This reduces the principal balance on your mortgage and can save you thousands of dollars in interest costs.

The MACPA emphasizes applying even a few of these strategies will help you gain a more secure financial future with little or no pain. Choose the strategies that are right for you and your family, follow them, and watch your savings grow.

The answers to your state and federal tax questions are only a phone call away.

The MACPAs is sponsoring "Ask a CPA" Call-in Days, an annual program which extends free tax advice from CPAs. Taxpayers can call Saturday, Feb. 11, or Saturday, March 25, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. (810) 855-2288 and/or Saturday, Feb. 25, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., (616) 771-6680 or (616) 771-6678.

Weekly wage on rise in Michigan

Michigan's average weekly wage jumped to $554.22 for 1994, a 5.1 percent gain and the largest increase in 10 years.

"The state's strong economic activity last year contributed to a $26.93 increase in the average weekly wage paid to Michigan workers," according to F. Robert Edwards, director of the Michigan Employment Security Commission (MESC). "This is the largest increase in 10 years and further confirms the state's robust economic growth."

The wage increase between 1993 and 1994 is the largest since 1984,

Edwards explained that an increase in hours worked and bonuses received by workers contributed to last year's growth. In addition, there was strong job growth in the manufacturing sector, which includes many of the state's better paying industries.

"Manufacturing employment climbed by 38,700 in 1994 to average 940,500," Edwards said. "At the same time, the number of hours worked by manufacturing production workers last year increased by 4.2 percent over 1993 to 44.9 hours, and their hourly wages rose to $16.18, a 5.3 percent increase."

The Michigan wage gain outpaced both the Detroit and U.S. inflation rates last year. Prices climbed by 3.2 percent in the Detroit area and 2.6 percent nationally.

"For Michigan workers this is a key 'pocketbook' statistic because it means more real spendable income," Edwards said.

The state average weekly wage is based on employment and payroll data collected from private Michigan employers for the 12 months ending on June 30, 1994. Employers are surveyed across all industries. The average weekly rate is then used in the administration of Michigan's unemployment insurance, worker disability compensation and handicapped's civil rights programs.

The higher average wage would have boosted the maximum weekly unemployment benefit amount to $321 for 1995, if the maximum rate had not been frozen at $293. The freeze took effect in 1994 and will remain capped at $293 through 1996.

BROKERS ALWAYS WELCOME

Today's Hardwood Floors Define The Style In Lifestyle

(NAPS)—Today's active, on-the-go families demand more from floor coverings than ever before, and the new generation of hardwood floors are designed for lifestyles like yours. For a combination of easy-care durability, visual warmth, beauty, and value, nothing compares to a natural hardwood floor.

"Today's hardwood options are limited only by the imagination," says Gaylynn Garrett, director of marketing for a leading manufacturer, Bruce Hardwood Floors. "A vast array of planks, custom wood tiles, strips, accents, and borders are available to make every room unique. No matter how often the wallpaper, paint, accessories, or furnishings change, your Bruce hardwood floor will always be in style."

A Lifetime Together

When selecting a hardwood floor, homeowners should always look for a product made by a reputable manufacturer, advises Garrett. A hardwood floor should do the same. A quality hardwood floor will enhance the beauty of the home today, and will add to the home's investment value for many years to come.

In fact, in a recent survey of 1,500 residential real estate agents, The National Wood Flooring Association found that homes with hardwood flooring signal quality workmanship to prospective home buyers, and thereby sell faster and command higher prices than those with other floor covering materials.

Beauty can be practical, too

Designed for active families on the run, today's easy-care urethane and acrylic-impregnated finishes have hardwood in demand for all rooms in the home—even the kitchen.

Modern, state-of-the-art factory-applied finishes such as Bruce's Duraluster urethane, allow hardwood flooring to be installed without the mess and bother once associated with custom sand and finish installations. In fact, due to stringent manufacturing controls, factory-applied finishes may offer greater consistency and overall quality than site-applied stains and coatings.

A parade of kids and pets are no match for today's tough hardwood flooring. Bruce's advanced finishing technology has led to the development of finishes that protect hardwood floors from normal wear, spills and scratching, while making them virtually maintenance-free. And because they are a breeze to keep clean, hardwood floors are a smart choice for a healthy home.

Large photo: "We develop land; we take the raw land, retitle it, rezone it, put it in the infrastructure, and then build homes on it," says Paul Robertson, Jr. This is clearly demonstrated at The Heathers condominium/ golf course community in Bloomfield Hills.

Inset: An emphasis on family lifestyles coupled with uncompromising attention to detail is apparent in the Crossings – and all Robertson Brothers communities – floor plans and interiors.

Robertson Brothers

by Craig Farrand

Fifty years ago, the war in Europe and in the Pacific was building to its conclusion.

In the east, Allied troops were marching toward Berlin; in the Far East, they were island-hopping their way to the Japanese mainland.

And in both theaters of war, American bombers were laying open roads to victory.

Back home, just west of Detroit at the Willow Run facility constructed by Henry Ford to build those bombers, workers labored around the clock in the heart of America's Arsenal of Democracy.

Within months, though, the Second World War would come to an end, servicemen would return to their families and new families would spring up around those same manufacturing sites.

And many of those servicemen eventually would move into houses built by the Robertson Brothers — Paul and Covert.

Now fast forward to 1995, the 50th year of business for the same company — but with a different set of brothers: Paul Jr., and his own brother, David.

Gone are the '40s bungalows, rifle-straight streets and an early experiment in suburbia; in their place is a growing desire to recapture the charm of a small-town America left behind by suburban sprawl.

Yet, as Paul Jr. explains today, the goal remains unchanged for the company founded by his father and uncle: Offering today's homeowners a good value for their dollar.

"We've always had a very simple marketing philosophy," he said. "Find out what people want and then give it to them."

"And what people want is value."

Exactly what form that value has taken, however, in large part defines Robertson Brothers today.

"People actually are looking for something that harkens back to another era," Robertson said. "An era of small community mixed with country living."

"They like living farther out, away from the hustle and bustle, yet they want to feel a part of a community."

To that end, Robertson Brothers has moved beyond its early bungalow projects and condo developments and is now heavily involved in creating a total living package.

"Our business cards, for example, don't say 'builder,' they say 'community developer.'"

"And that's what we do," Robertson said.

A case in point is the firm's most recent development, The Crossing, located in Oakland Township: A 286-unit development, sitting on 197 acres, the project is actually three separate communities under one umbrella.

"Our plan was to create separate villages within The Crossing," he said.

So they did:

Bridlewood Village features homes in the $170,000 to $210,000 ranges, sitting on smaller lots; Steeplechase has homes in the $225,000 to $260,000 range; and Equus offers a selection of homes ranging from $255,000 to $290,000.

Yet all three villages share several factors: The homes within each is clustered together, creating open areas of fields, wetlands, shared recreational facilities and a community garden.

And residents in all three areas share common access roads, creating even more of a community atmosphere.

The overall impression is one of a neighborhood setting in a rural environment — which is exactly what the market ordered; a key point in the company's approach.

"Often when we approach a city or township about one of our projects, about zoning, they tell you what their community wants, but they don't know what the market wants, what a person is interested in buying and living in."

"Yet we're in business to give the people what they want, so we work hard to show how our projects fit both needs."

Such a marketing strategy has paid off handsomely for Robertson Brothers over the last 50 years: According to Paul Jr., the firm has made money every year except one — 1959 — and that minor loss was due to a house that was damaged several years after it was built by the company.

company's growth has been nothing short of impressive: A steady climb from sales of under $2 million in the '60s to a projected $28 million in sales this year.

And that includes the cyclical ups and downs of the economy as a whole.

"You can set your calendar by it," Robertson said. "There's a seven-year cycle in our business, and 1995 is the next peak."

As a result, he said, the compa-

Builder of The Month

Paul C. Robertson, Jr., President, RGB

ny is always looking several years ahead in its marketing plan.

"It's easy to make money when the cycle is on its way up; the key to success, however, is to make money when the cycle is on its downward leg."

"Right now, we're looking three to five years down the road for land to develop," he said, alluding to a key point about his company.

"We develop land; we take the raw land, retitle it, rezone it, put in the infrastructure and then build homes on it."

That kind of total control not only translates into quality control during the development phase, but also value during the selling phase.

"Through our own market research we know that we can be more efficient and give a better value to our customers because of the way we do business."

And because Robertson Brothers remains a family affair — Paul Jr. is president, David is purchasing director, and Paul's wife, Jan, is general sales manager — chances are the business will be in good hands for years to come.

Basement Technology

Bill Blass? No, Bill Bliss. Howard Hughes? No, John Hughes.

Although it might seem a bit of a stretch to confuse these names, the men have more in common than you may think.

The fact is that all four have been on the cutting edge of change – albeit in vastly different fields of work – but change, nonetheless.

Bill Blass, for example, was certainly one of the most innovative fashion designers of the last quarter century; and Howard Hughes still stands as one of the great minds in American industry and aviation.

But what about Bill Bliss and John Hughes?

And that revolution can be summed up in one word: Steel.

At first blush, of course, any use of the words "steel" and "home" in the same sentence usually conjures images of futuristic modular structures offering a blinding glare in an antiseptic landscape.

Not so when you talk to Hughes and Bliss, though. Instead of hearing about what might be, you get reality-based conversations about what already is: R-values, headers, 16-inch on center, footings, framing and quality.

In fact, except for the repeated substitution of the word "steel" for "wood," a conversation with the pair is no different than that with any other builder.

Which shouldn't be all that surprising:

"Bill and I have been building houses for years," Hughes said, "and it's that experience that led us to the use of steel today."

As so-called "traditional" builders, the pair – who work under the umbrella company name of The Hughes Management Group, Inc. (Hughes is the president; Bliss is the marketing director) – have constructed a number of subdivisions, as well as individual site homes using the tried and true method of wood "stick" building.

But it was a couple of years ago that their experience in the construction business led them in a new direction.

"Prior to converting to steel, the major problems we faced – that all builders face – was frame-related," Hughes said. "Nails would pop, plaster would crack; these were all related to the wood going through changes after construction."

Bliss: "There are always on-going maintenance problems (with wood) for any builder, yet there's very little that a builder can do about the root problem after the home is up.

"At that point, all he can do is repair the damage."

That reality, plus the fact that in the early-'90s the price of lumber skyrocketed – in part due to Hurricane Andrew's impact on south Florida – ultimately forced the pair to look in a new direction.

"The price of wood was spiraling upward," Hughes said, "while the quality was dropping.

"So in the end we made the decision to convert to steel construction."

Why?

"Well, not only was the price competitive and the quality consistently high," Hughes said, "but steel doesn't rot, doesn't twist, won't attract insects and won't feed a fire."

In addition, the galvanized, cold-rolled steel is also zinc-coated, giving it complete protection against the elements – even while it's sitting on-site waiting to be erected. (A definite improvement, the men said, over wood two-by-fours left out in the rain.)

The company's switch to steel, made several years ago, had its debut in the last three homes the pair built as part of a larger subdivision. And their early conversion to steel framing has put them at the cutting edge of what has become an ever-more acceptable method of construction.

But the story doesn't end there: Since their initial conversion to steel, the partners have consistently sought new applications of the technology.

And that search has brought them today to the SAFE Basement concept, a use of steel framing below grade that provides the same – if not greater – structural support as a poured concrete foundation.

Plus one other important difference.

"Our basements are guaranteed not to leak," Hughes said.

"Certainly, a poured concrete basement is an inexpensive way to build a house, but such basements are very susceptible to cracks and moisture."

By contrast, a SAFE Basement – the acronym stands for Steel

And Foam Engineered – deals with the problem of water encroachment by directing it away from the home.

In fact, the underlying design of the basement actually does two things: First it completely blocks the entry of outside water by incorporating a waterproof "skin" of insulation completely around the structure.

Next, to deal with the possibility of plumbing leaks from above, the construction allows for the channeling of such water down through the wall into the home's "weep" drainage system.

The end result? A dry basement – with an insulation factor of R-25.2!

That's right, R-25.2 – or nearly twice the insulation value of normal wall insulation (R-13).

How is this accomplished? By wrapping the basement framing in a cocoon of completely sealed foam paneling – paneling that not only provides insulation (no other insulation is required), but also provides a watertight barrier to outside moisture.

The bottom line: A SAFE Basement means a dry and warm basement – which is an important consideration in today's changing market.

"It used to be that the basement was a place for storage," Bliss said, "but now it's becoming more and more a living area; family room, rec room.

And that search has brought them today to the SAFE Basement concept, a use of steel framing below grade that provides the same – if not greater – structural support as a poured concrete foundation.

Kitchens Get New Roles for the 90's

Think back to that home your grandparents owned: The kitchen was the focal point of all aromas, all adult conversation and nearly all activity – and what a kitchen it was.

Built in the late '30s, all the cabinets were part of the home's construction, not stand-alone additions.

The countertops were ceramic tile – white, black and green, there was a real flour bin that tilted out in the corner, a corner shelf above the sink sported a state-of-the-art vacuum tube radio (in matching green) and the entire room was illuminated by a glaring circular fluorescent bulb.

In short, the kitchen was built as the family centerpiece and built to last.

Now move forward 60 years to today's kitchen.

Following an era when family and rec rooms dominated the landscape, the kitchen is once again becoming the focal point of the home, the gathering site for entertaining – and even the center of communications.

As a result, more effort than ever is going into designing today's kitchen and making it a reflection of its owner's personality.

And much of that effort is coming from firms such as Allied Cabinet Distributors, Kitchens Plus, Futuristic Furnishings and Stella Contracting & Oakland Cabinetry.

These companies – and their counterparts – are at the cutting edge of design changes in the kitchen, combining the latest man-made materials with traditional wood treatments to create a whole new environment.

In fact, from firm to firm, the homeowner – and homebuilder – will find some striking similarities in the approach to kitchen design, but some equally striking differences in method.

which cabinet makers treat their customers:

"We always want people to choose what they want; it's their kitchen," said Beverly Hersch of Allied. "But some come to us and say 'here's the space, have a ball.'"

"Others like to come up with their own ideas."

In either case, Hersch said, "our goal is to meet the customer's needs and desires."

A similar story is heard from Carmen Hancock of Kitchens Plus: "We try to give the homeowner a sense of direction, but we ask a lot of questions about their lifestyle, who – and how many – does the cooking, the type of entertaining they do, that type of thing."

"Only after we get a picture of their needs do we begin to offer them options on how to meet those needs," she said.

Likewise, Andy Sallan of Futuristic says the most important first step is to assess the homeowner's desires – and in his case he uses a formal “need analysis” process to review those wants and then to devise a plan of action.

“Only after we conduct the analysis do we begin to present some options to the homeowner,” he said.

Ray Stella of Plymouth added, “With pure custom cabinets we can personally design and manufacture to the client’s unique specifications, whether it be cabinets for the kitchen, bath area, an entertainment center, an elegant hutch for a dining space, a wall bedroom system or built-in bookcases. Using custom cabinets, a virtually unlimited array of door styles, custom edge treatments and a spectrum of stains and colors can transform your house into a home.”

For all these firms, though, a shared strength is their ability to work with the actual design and layout of the final product:

At Allied, it’s Beverly’s daughter, Danielle Remer, who provides the design support; at Kitchens Plus, it’s designer Deborah Litz-Beard; at Futuristic, Sallan’s designer takes the process to a next step, incorporating computer technology to supplement the human factor.

In all cases, though, it’s a matter of taking an enclosed space, personal preferences and available technologies and blending them into a coherent statement of form and function.

Clearly one of the most telling aspects of the business is the nearly universal interpretation of trends, styles and application: Sallan and the two women – who work with their husbands in the business – have nearly identical, if not at least complementary, views of what works in the ’90s.

“We still have the pastels with us,” Hancock said, “and white is big; white is huge. I think it will last through the majority of the decade.”

Still, she said, “there is a return to some earth tones, but not the gold and avocado of the ’60s.”

ry bar cabinet is dark green.

But the stunning similarities don’t end there:

“Colors are popular now,” Hersch said. “I’ve done kitchens that are all green; I’ve even done a kitchen that was turquoise with a brass bead on all doors and corners.”

And Sallan? His own kitchen is also a high-gloss white treatment, and he too sees a growing trends toward the earth tones, “especially with the re-emergence of natural wood treatments.”

The companies also share a common appreciation for the changing nature of what used to be merely a place to do cooking.

Hersch: “We’re now creating sitting areas and islands; the fact is that the kitchen is once again the central draw of the home – and they’re becoming larger.”

Hancock: “The kitchen is even more so the centerpiece of the home; people are spending more time in their home, and this has become the gathering place.”

But more than that, she said, “people are now making it a communications center, too – they’re putting in computers, TVs, desks, even entertainment centers.”

The end result? All agree that the kitchen has become the most important room in the house – and has further enhanced its status as having the best return on the dollar spent in creating it.

But where the firms go their separate ways is in the method of delivering that kitchen:

For Allied, it’s a matter of designing the room and ordering the cabinetry, appliances, accessories and accents and then having it installed on-site.

For Kitchens Plus, everything’s the same right through to installation – except that the Hancocks make their own cabinets.

“We manufacture nearly everything,” Hancock said, “from bathrooms to entertainment centers to office furniture – and kitchen cabinets, of course.

“But we don’t do chairs.”

And neither does Sallan – but he does take the rest of the manufacturing process one step further: “After we work on the design on our computer, which allows the customer to see various treatments and layouts, we can then download the final choices to our machinery.”

On the other hand, Hersch and her company are distributors of major brand name cabinetry – yet her expertise also extends outside of the kitchen, into the bedroom, living room and family room.

But all of these companies again converge when it comes to creating a total package.

Hancock: “We’re basically a full-service company; we handle everything: floors, appliances, lighting, plumbing, and then install it on site.”

Hersch: “We coordinate and work with the suppliers and installers; we don’t install ourselves; instead, we bring all the parties to bear on the project at hand.”

Where the companies differ, however, is in their relationship with builders.

Although these companies deal with the homebuyers, offering upgrade options to builder-offered materials, Sallan and Stella work directly with several home builders, making their cabinets available as a builder option.

In contrast, the others see themselves as options to the homebuyer.

“We come along when the builder offers the buyer an allowance to shop around and upgrade the kitchen,” Hersch said. “And if their selection costs more, the (homeowner) pays the difference.”

Likewise, Hancock said her company doesn’t “really cater to the builder; we work with the owner who wants to upgrade what the builder offers.”

And with those upgrades comes the completion of the circle – and a return the kitchens of another era, but with a modern twist: A focal point of a family of the ’90s that hearken to days of a grandmother and the sweet aromas of a Saturday morning long ago.

Carpet-Care Tips

(NAPS)—buying a carpet is a long-term investment, yet many consumers throw away thousands of dollars each year because they disregard good care and cleaning procedures. Here, from the experts who developed Duraplush™ Carpet Cushion Technology, are 10 money-saving tips on how to extend the life of your carpet:

Place commercial-type mats in high traffic areas.

Avoid street shoes or barefeet on carpet. Skin's natural oils soil carpet and retain dirt.

Invest in a quality cushion to support the carpet. One of the prime polyurethane foams will ensure durability, comfort and extend carpet performance.

Shade carpet from direct sunlight to reduce fading.

Have the carpet restretched if it shows wrinkles or puckers.

Clean up food or beverage spills immediately. Many carpets are treated with special finishes to resist soil and stains, but no carpet is entirely stain-proof.

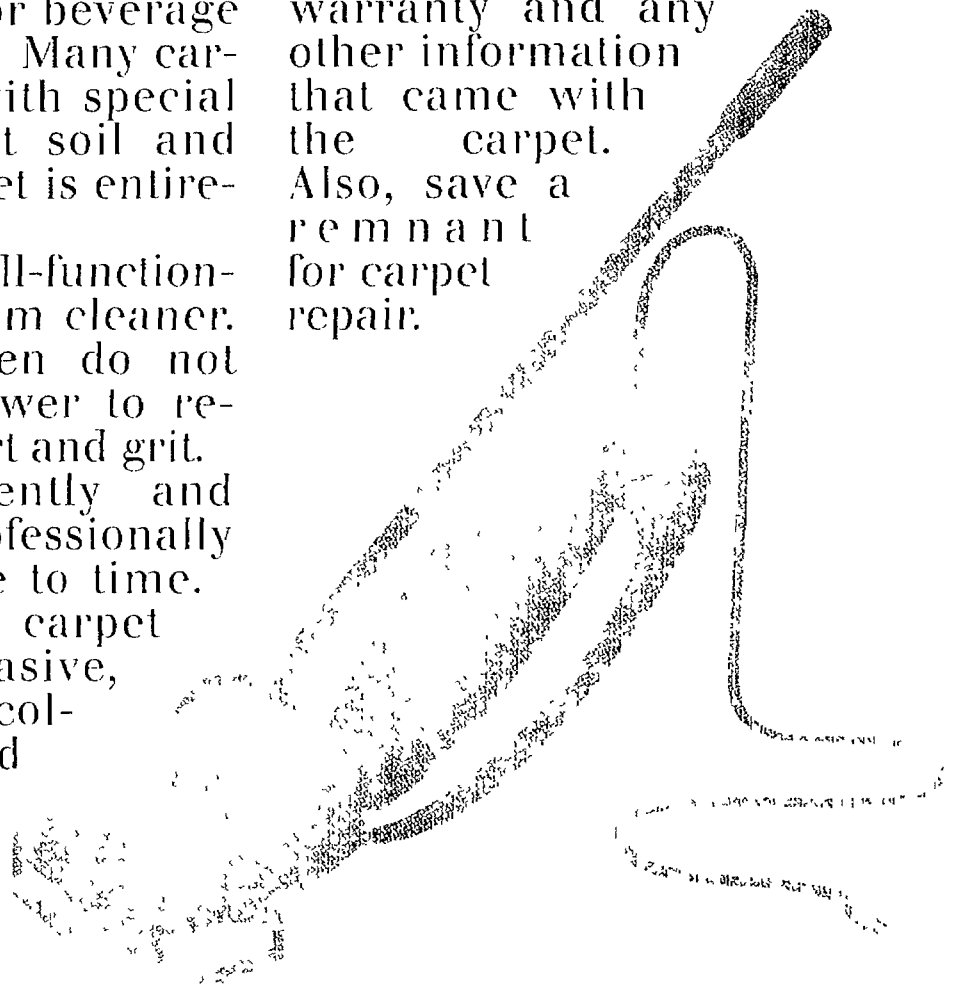

Buy a strong, well-functioning, upright vacuum cleaner. Canister-types often do not have sufficient power to remove embedded dirt and grit.

Vacuum frequently and have the carpet professionally cleaned from time to time. Dirt down in the carpet works like an abrasive, scratching and discoloring the fibers and shortening the carpet's life.

pads under legs to avoid dents.

Save the carpet warranty and any other information that came with the carpet. Also, save a remnant for carpet repair.

Hints on Selling Your House

(NAPS)—You may be able to get more for your home and get it sooner, if you heed the hints in a new book, How to Sell your Home in 5 Days (paper, $14.95, Workman Publishing) by William G. Effros.

The book is based on one basic truth of free enterprise: your home is worth exactly what the highest bidder will pay for it.

Beginning with a quick course in marketing, Effros weighs the pros and cons of brokers and details the method of the five-day plan. For one thing, the book says, the plan can help you avoid frustratingly long dry spells that can result when the asking price is too high. For another, because you don't work through a broker, you save the commission.

The book offers a wise discussion of repairs it pays to make, and those it doesn't. There are chapters on writing the perfect ad, the importance of full disclosure, taking calls, setting up an open house, rating the buyers, accepting bids and when and why you need an attorney.

Among the tips included are:

Holidays are bad times for open houses.

Prices should be set based on what the buyer wants to pay, not on what you want to receive.

A low asking price brings lots of buyers.

You won't get more or less than your home is worth—the market value determines its value.

In setting a price, ask yourself if it feels right to you as a seller; then ask if you would buy the house at that price.

Pretend you're a buyer and ask yourself what you think you'd want repaired, then repair everything that will raise the selling price more than the repair costs.

Complete with pricing worksheets, round robin bidding sheets, mortgage tables and sample materials, the book, available at local bookstores, helps you maintain complete control over every step in the selling process to make the market work for you.

There is More Energy Efficiency than Insulation

Energy efficiency, by most peoples' definition, is a higher "R-Value" insulation in the walls, or installing a furnace with a higher efficiency rating. However, new reports are showing that air infiltration is cause for a great amount of heat and energy loss in homes today. Many people associate air infiltration with drafts and air leaks through old windows or doors, but in recent years the understanding that air is leaking into houses through the siding, and through wallboards and the insulation, has home owners asking how they can stop the air leakage? And isn't the insulation stopping the air infiltration?

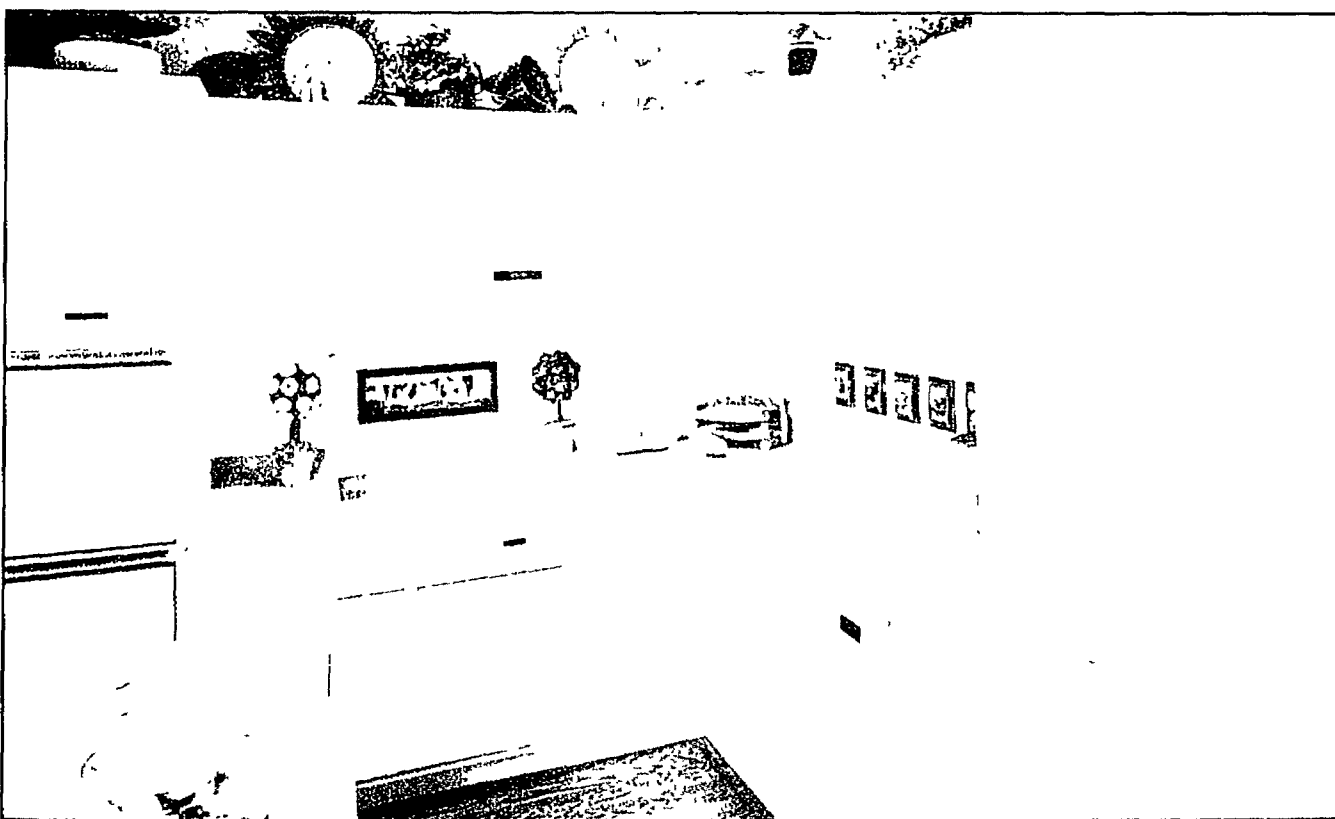

As documented by the United States Department of Energy, up to 10% of a homes heat loss can be attributed to air infiltration. Recently, tests were conducted for the trade association of North American manufacturers of fiber glass, rock wool, and slag wool insulation products, (NAIMA) at Holometrix (an independent laboratory), to determine the effect of insulation on air infiltration. Ten individual tests were conducted by building an 8'x8' wall that could have different types of insulations applied to it for the purpose of seeing if the air leaking into the wall would be stopped by the different insulations. The insulations were either fiberglass batts, blown in blanket fiberglass or a wet sprayed cellulose insulation. Also, different types of vapor barriers were installed to the test wall on the inside which would represent the inside of a house. For comparing a regular wall to a tightly sealed wall, on alternate tests a sheet of Dupont Tyvek Housewrap (an air infiltration barrier) was installed on the outside of the wall (this would represent the outside of your house). Tyvek was applied to the wall which would simulate an approximate wind speed of 14.4 MPH. This consistent wind speed allowed Holometrix to accurately measure the air flow rate of each of the test walls.

At the conclusion of the tests the average air flow rate of a wall cavity unprotected by an air infiltration barrier had an air flow rate approximately 51% higher than that of a wall with an air infiltration barrier.

High "R-value" and high efficiency furnaces are very critical factors in saving energy in homes today. However, the insulation's main role in the wall is to resist heat transfer, not to stop air infiltration. Because of this type of information on air infiltration, many states throughout the country are adding measures to their energy codes to address the energy loss due to air infiltration. Air infiltration barriers, as shown by the tests, are a proven way to stop air from leaking in not only through the walls, but from all of the joints, cracks, and gaps in all building materials.

"That means that people need their basement to be just as cozy and livable as the rest of their house."

Not surprisingly, because of its relatively recent arrival on the scene, steel home construction has yet to be completely accepted in some quarters: The two men invariably must supply local community building departments with detailed engineering plans in order to gain approval.

But, they hope, that may change this year: Not only are they expecting approval of a patent on their new basement technology, but they also are awaiting incorporation of steel construction into the often quoted BOCA codes.

This approval would mean an end to individual requests for building approval and would clear the decks for wholesale acceptance in the marketplace.

Which raises the final factor in the company's future:

"The fact is that the marketplace has clearly driven technology," Hughes said. "As homebuyers and builders learn about the advantages of steel construction, they're beginning to request it – and that makes it even more affordable."

And such affordability should go a long way in taking the company to its next development: The construction of all-steel trusses.

In the meantime, though, the firm will continue to introduce steel to the construction site – both above and below ground – and explore new technologies that will make the home of tomorrow are more efficient and carefree place to live.

Ask the Builder

Q: I notice that the homes in most neighborhoods have a wide variety of roof styles. While this gives our communities added attractiveness and visual appeal, what are the practical advantages to these varying types of roofs?

-Mr. S. A. Cheney, Farmington Hills

A: Roofs serve a myriad of functions that are both aesthetic and practical. The two most common residential roof shapes in our area, as well as across the United States, are the gable roof and the hip roof.

The shape of a gable roof resembles a piece of paper folded down the center and then placed on top of a home's walls. The actual gable is the triangular shape of the wall at either end and this triangular geometry contributes to the creation of a strong structure that is able to withstand heavy snow, rain and high winds without collapsing. While simple in concept, a skilled builder or architect can design a very creative gable roof by arranging combinations of gables, roof slopes and trim styles. The steeper the gable roof's slope, the more attic headroom is available. This upstairs space can often be converted into an additional bedroom. Gable roofs are excellent ventilators, a valuable asset during Michigan's cold winter months. This venting helps to keep the roof colder, preventing snow on it from melting and running downward, refreezing on the edge of the roof. This can cause ice dams which, in turn, can cause leaks.

Hip roofs appear similar to gable roofs except that their ends look 'clipped off' at an angle. Aesthetically, the roof becomes less visually prominent. Hip roofs reduce the attic height as well, increasing the probability that you would have to add dormers to increase available headroom if you were interested in turning the attic into functional living space. Because this type of roof overhangs all sides of the house, one of its practical aspects is that it protects the walls and windows from sunlight and rain better than a gable roof. In addition, hip roofs have a better chance of surviving Michigan's occasional tornado-strength winds.

Many builders combine both of these styles on the same house, creating a roof that is both practical, unique and eye-catching.

Q: We are considering installing a freestanding fireplace in our family room. Is this a complicated endeavor?

A: I am assuming that you are referring to a pre-fabricated metal fireplace that has free space on all sides. These units are typically composed of three elements which include the firebox, a hearth of fireproof materials that the firebox is set on and the flue pipe to carry off the heat and smoke.

It is important to consult with your local building department to ensure that you are following all of the necessary building codes when planning the installation. In selecting a suitable spot in the room, keep in mind that the flue pipe must be able to penetrate the ceiling and the roof (or two floors and the roof) and pass between framing members without having to cut them. A hole must be cut into the ceiling(s) and then be framed out and finished. The part of the fireplace flue that runs through floor and roof is insulated but be aware that other parts of the flue may not be insulated and can get very hot. Hire a professional to install the flue to make sure that it is watertight and straight. Dangerous sparks can be released from a crooked flue.

counter tops. However, they do not stop there, the new innovative Nova unit which relieves eye, neck and back strain while using your computer or computer keyboards made of polyethylene hidden under the counter top when not in use, pulls out and snaps into correct ergonomic position when needed. The Nova conforms to the way our eyes work keeping the monitor below the desk top with anti-glare glass for eye comfort. A CalSpace Nova work station encourages the body to assume a relaxed, healthy posture. Bull-nose counter tops and rounded corners on doors and drawers add to user comfort and deflect blows and bumps. Integrated steel drawer side and runner system permits smooth operation and maximum cubic storage space.

You can also incorporate a wall bed for that spare room that you need to use as an office but occasionally you have an extra guest and no where for them to sleep, convert your office to a bedroom in seconds.

Give a Helping Hand

Dear Y Friends,

The Livonia Family YMCA's Invest In Youth Campaign is here once again. Our goal this year is $67,000 – the campaign will take place in February and March.

Invest In Youth contributions remain at the Livonia branch and allow us to meet the needs of local youngsters. But to meet our ambitious goal we need your support.

We hope you will once again support the campaign to allow the YMCA to continue to provide essential programs for local youth.

Before you pledge, please remember this:

- A gift of $50 will underwrite a child in a youth sports program.
- A gift of $60 provides a full session in the Y's Kids after school program.
- A $75 gift underwrites the cost of supporting a parent/child "team" for a full year.
- A $90 gift subsidizes one youth membership.
- A $100 gift will send a child to day camp for one week.
- A $175 donation will send a child to resident camp for one full session.
- A $500 gift will fund a class of youngsters in our "Learn to Swim" program.

Please help us reach our goal and continue to meet the needs of local youngsters. We want to make sure that everyone who wishes to benefit from the YMCA has the chance to participate.

Pledge to Give a Kid a Hand in 1995 and please be generous.

Sincerely,

Tom Bjorkland, Bob Blamer — Co-chairs

Spring 1995

Gym & Sport

TOT GYM – This class is fun for the child up to three years old. Parents are involved in this class that uses games and activities to work on large muscle groups and hand-eye coordination. Let your child explore up, down and around on mats and obstacle courses. Work with them to build confidence and enjoy themselves.

TINY TUMBLERS – Get your little ones involved! This class is especially designed for three and four year olds. Creative games using the parachute and balls, imagination practice with animals and sounds, refining tumbling work on the mats and balance beam introduction are all part of this class. Get your kids off to a great start with Tiny Tumblers.

GYM FUNTIME – A supervised time for parents and children to use the gym equipment for free play and activity.

PRE-SCHOOL BALLET (Ages 3-6) – An exciting introduction for your child into the world of ballet. Learning the basic steps and discipline of ballet encourages your child's interest, along with providing fun.

PRE-SCHOOL GYMNASTICS – Don't stop with Tiny Tumblers! Keep your children growing and learning with our Pre-School Gym program. We'll progress to more work on the mats and beams to other gymnastics apparatus such as the uneven bars and rings. Motor skills and fine tuning of coordination and balance will help your child be more successful in everyday tasks and concentration. Plus – they'll have fun!

PRE-SCHOOL GYMNASTICS ADVANCED – Has your child progressed from Pre-School Gym, but is not quite ready for beginner gymnastics? We have the perfect class for them! This class gives your child a little extra time to master skills taught in the Pre-School Program, but also begins to introduce them to the discipline and new skills they will be learning in beginner gym. Also gives your child extra time to socially acclimate to a class structure.

PRE-SCHOOL BASKETBALL – An instructional program designed to teach the children the basics of dribbling, passing, and shooting held at the YMCA.

PRE-SCHOOL FLOOR HOCKEY – A class for the little ones to learn the basics of stick handling and shooting. A fun class with lots of action.

SPORT SAMPLER – This is a great class for the pre-school child to be introduced to a variety of sports: T-ball, basketball, hockey and soccer!

PRE-SCHOOL SOCCER – Designed for the pre-schooler who is not quite ready for the league. Major emphasis is on the basic skills of dribbling, passing and teamwork. Classes will be held indoors. Shinguards recommended. No cleats please.

Pee Wee Tennis

MR. PEE WEE TENNIS – These classes are designed to introduce the 4-7 year old to the basics of tennis. Drills and fun games have been developed to improve a child's balance, muscle control, hand/eye coordination and their tennis skills. The YMCA will provide racquets for tots who do not have their own.

PEE WEE I – Introduction to the court and racquet. Stationary forehands are emphasized at this level.

PEE WEE II – At this level the child is introduced to hitting the ball on the move. The backhand is presented at this level.

PEE WEE III – We will further develop the forehand and backhand strokes.

SUPER PEE WEE – The basic strokes of tennis are developed to prepare them for the Junior Beginner programs.

Pre-School Swim & Gym Schedule

Classes begin on February 27 for 7 weeks.
Friday classes will run for 6 weeks.
 (Building closed April 14 – Good Friday and April 16 – Easter Sunday)

Tennis

PRE JUNIOR – Must have completed through Super Pee Wee and/or have PRO'S PERMISSION. Ages 6-7 years.

JUNIOR BEGINNER – The Livonia Family YMCA conducts a series of three class sessions for beginning junior players, ages 8 through 14 years of age who have had little or no tennis experience. We wish to teach the fundamentals in a relaxed, yet challenging atmosphere. At the completion of the series of classes each student will have been taught to:

- Hit a forehand, backhand and serve.
- Understand the court terminology.
- Know how to keep score.
- Handle themselves with proper court etiquette.

JUNIOR BEGINNER I – Beginners who have had no formal lessons should begin at this level. Work on grip, stance and strokes. Complete coverage of rules and scoring.

JUNIOR BEGINNER II – We further develop skills attained in Beginner I. Footwork, consistency and placement of shots will be emphasized.

JUNIOR BEGINNER III – Continued development of forehand, backhand and serve. Introduction to the volley.

JUNIOR INTERMEDIATE – These levels are designed for the child who has completed the Junior Beginner series. This level is a prerequisite to advance to the Junior Excellence program. At the completion of the Junior Intermediate classes, each student will have been taught:

- Good stroke execution with forehand, backhand, serve.
- Ability to place the ball and rally consistently.
- Introduction to the overhead.
- An understanding of singles and double strategy.

JUNIOR EXCELLENCE PREP – Work on control, placement and strategy. Many game situation drills are used. Singles and doubles strategies of the game are emphasized.

Junior Excellence

JUNIOR EXCELLENCE – The Junior Excellence program is tailored for the young adult who is serious about their tennis game. Completion of the Junior Intermediate program or its equivalent is a must. Junior Excellence is for the player who desires to play at the high school level or beyond. An optional six week, 1-1/2 hour, weekend competitive league is available for those interested. Program objectives of the Excellence Program include:

- Ability to hit ground strokes consistently with depth.
- Improve footwork.
- Development of a spin serve.
- Strenuous conditioning program, with emphasis on quickness, speed, and improved flexibility.
- Stroke production drills that give you confidence in your ability.

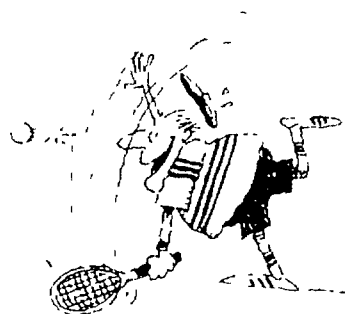

INTERMEDIATE JUNIOR EXCELLENCE For students who have completed Junior Intermediate lessons. Players work with others of the same ability, but are encouraged to develop and advance through a no nonsense approach to serious training.

ADVANCED JUNIOR EXCELLENCE – For the player who has completed Junior Excellence I and II.

INCREDIBLE I JUNIOR EXCELLENCE – Pro's permission is required. Tournament and High School players.

Merillat Cabinetry

WE'RE RIGHT AT HOME.

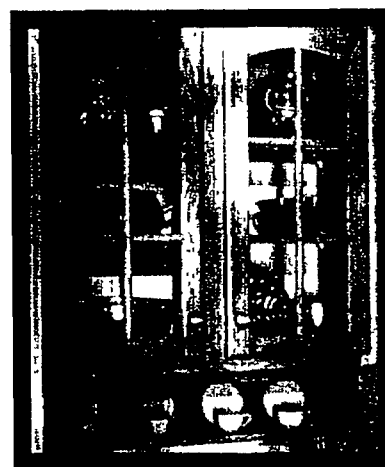

Merillat[®]
AMERICA'S CABINETMAKER™

If you're looking for a kitchen that's distinctly yours, a kitchen that fits your style, your personality, then look no further than Merillat. We have over 30 different styles of cabinets to choose from. Cabinets for the kitchen. Cabinets for the bath. You can even combine our cabinets to work as entertainment centers, hutches, butler's pantries, computer centers, and much more. And you can choose from traditional to contemporary styles. That's quite an offering. But even with all this, what really makes us stand out from the competition is added value. Our cabinets come with standard features like roll-out trays, among others. Features you'd likely have to pay extra for with other brands. We also have the accessories to make your kitchen one-of-a-kind and personalized. Like decorative moldings, Dishwasher panels, Leaded or mullion glass doors, and 100-plus other options found in our Customizers Accessories Program. But don't take our word for it. See for yourself in the pages ahead. We hope it will be of help as you think about your new kitchen. From the premium wood cabinets shown in the first few pages to the sections in the back on standard features and Customizers. If you'd like to get more details about our many other products, just visit your Merillat dealer.

DARLAN HICKORY Darlan Hickory cabinet is ideal for a looking to add a rustic touch to a kitchen. This particular section featuring our Nature Series is made of solid poplar with open shelves and freeze-aluminum. The door was created with Merillat Customizers. Affordable options which make your kitchen more

our mullion glass door will add more

For that uniform look, we added matching range hood. We've even created a beautiful open shelving system below by combining two wall lattice cabinets with freeze-aluminum and panels from our Custom Shelf Kit. Darlan

Hickory is also available in a light Cedar finish and comes with select solid hickory raised-panel doors, plus your choice of arched (shown) or squared style wall cabinet doors. Concealed hinges, roll-out trays and adjustable shelves are standard.

SHEPHERD MAPLE Shepherd Maple shown here in a Natural finish provides a clean, country look to your kitchen. The island comes with a prep area and includes million glass doors, just one of our

available. Our WhisperGlide™ corner board and slide tray set below the handles knives safely away while the

and the wall lattice cabinet (shown in a glass cabinet position) can be used for bottle storage.

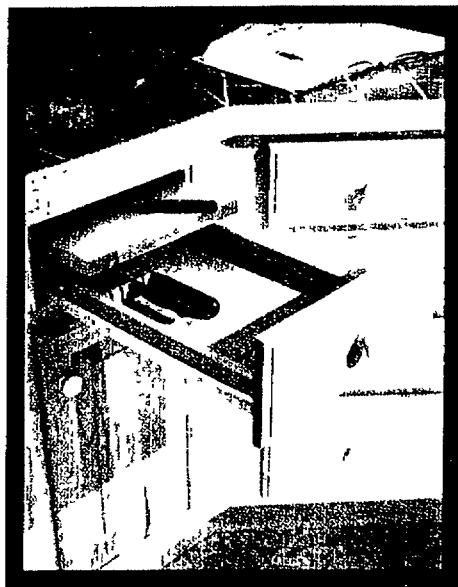

Shepherd Maple is also available in Ontario's washed, pickled finish. And it comes with solid hard rock maple raised panel doors plus your choice of arched (shown) or squared wall cabi-

adjustable shelves come at no extra charge.

rich, traditional finish—bring a traditional and formal look and feel to your kitchen.

For an elegant look, choose cathedral style with crown cabinets or squared doors (shown right) for a simpler design. Mullion glass doors are ideal for showcasing your most beautiful crystal and china. And notice how the deep classic crown moldings add a real touch of class to this already elegant kitchen. This bookcase and entertainment center (below left) may look complex, but creating it is actually a simple matter of combining our cabinets with a few select components. For weighty items like televisions and books, we have heavy-duty, specially reinforced shelving available. Preston Cherry is also available in Paprika—

a rich, traditional red-toned

solid cherry raised-panel doors. Concealed hinges, roll-out trays and adjustable shelves are standard features.

ALEXIS These full-overlay raised-panel oak cabinets have a light, subtle finish and squared doors for a clean look. Elegant arched-style wall cabinet doors are also available. Concealed hinges, roll-out trays and adjustable shelves are standard.

BRISTEN Like Alexis, Bristen is made with select oak. However, it's stained with a medium finish, which gives Bristen a classic, traditional feel. Squared, raised-panel full-overlay doors are shown. An arch style is also available for wall cabinets. Concealed hinges, roll-out trays and adjustable shelves are standard.

CAMBRIC Cambrie features a raised-panel full-overlay door with a light, pickled oak finish. Arched door wall cabinets are shown, although squared raised-panel doors are also available. Concealed hinges, roll-out trays and adjustable shelves are standard.

SUMMERHILL II Summerhill II, with its squared or cathedral-style raised-panel doors (shown), comes in a light oak finish which allows the true oak grain to come through. These cabinets are ideal for traditional as well as contemporary kitchens. Concealed hinges, roll-out trays and adjustable shelves are standard.

MEADOW OAK II These cabinets, in a medium-stained oak, are ideal for creating the look and feel of the traditional kitchen. They are available with your choice of cathedral or squared-style (shown) raised-panel doors. Concealed hinges, roll-out trays and adjustable shelves are standard.

HEATHER OAK II Heather Oak II cabinets come in a pickled oak finish that gently enhances the grain of the wood. They also come with your choice of cathedral raised-panel wall cabinet doors (shown) or squared style doors. Concealed hinges, roll-out trays and adjustable shelves are standard.

WHITEBAY Raised-panel doors and rounded inset corners give Whitebay arched doors (shown) a refined yet casual, traditional yet contemporary look. Whitebay is made from a durable laminate that resists stains, spills and abrasions, as well as yellowing and warping. They're also available with squared doors. Concealed hinges, roll-out trays and adjustable shelves are standard.

BISQUE OAK II Bisque Oak II cabinets feature our popular pickled oak finish. They're ideal for a brighter look, or if you're looking to add life to a dark kitchen. Concealed hinges, roll-out trays and adjustable shelves are standard.

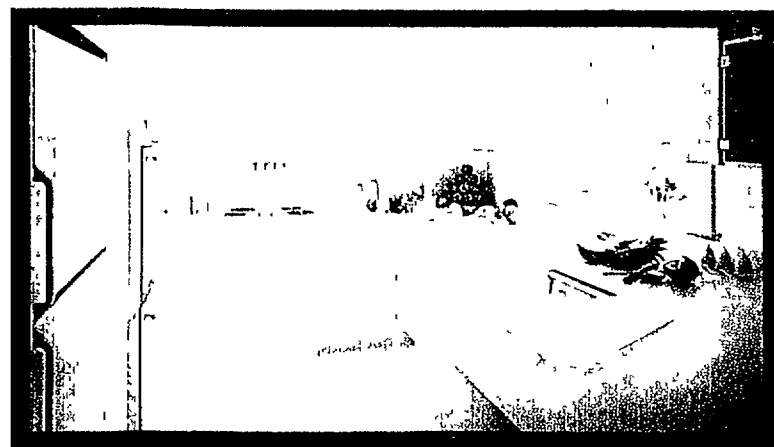

HOMESTEAD OAK II Homestead Oak II cabinets have a rich, medium oak finish that complements the natural grain of the wood. And with their squared door style and recessed panels, they'll give your kitchen a clean, charming look. Concealed hinges, roll-out trays and adjustable shelves are standard.

SPRINGBROOK II With its recessed-panel doors and light oak finish, Springbrook II works perfectly with traditional as well as contemporary designs. Concealed hinges, roll-out trays and adjustable shelves are standard.

KINGSLEY MAPLE Kingsley Maple comes in a natural finish (shown) and features raised-panel solid maple doors on a frameless cabinet. Wall cabinets are available in the gentle arch shown or in a squared design. Concealed hinges, roll-out trays and adjustable shelves are standard. This same design, called ROCKINGHAM MAPLE, is available in a light pickled finish.

AVIA With Avia, you can have a whiter-than-white kitchen with a frameless European design for a smooth look. It's made from a laminate that resists both moisture and scratches. Avia can be trimmed with a pure white (shown) or with oak or gray trim. Concealed hinges, roll-out trays and adjustable shelves are standard.

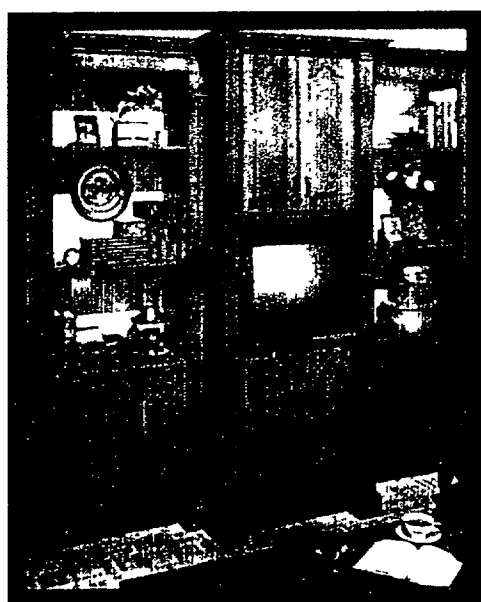

You can also carry the look of Merrillat cabinetry into your bath. These

HOMESTEAD OAK II cabinets have the same standard features as their kitchen counterparts and offer a clean, elegant look. ♦ You can also

center. Our PRESTON CHERRY cabinetry, shown with cathedral-style

any room with a look of elegance.

MERRILLAT PLUS SERIES CABINETS Many of our cabinet styles are available in our Plus Series. Plus Series cabinets come standard with 5-ply furniture-grade plywood end panels with a veneer finish that matches the wood species you choose (oak, cherry, hickory or maple). ♦ Also, all oak raised-panel Plus Series

components with dovetailed construction and maple-veneered drawer bottoms.

At Merillat, we have a wide variety of cabinet styles to suit almost every lifestyle and budget. From warm, traditional oak to crisp, contemporary white. In sizes sure to fit most any kitchen. We also have a little quiz for you. If you're considering remodeling your kitchen, our questionnaire at the right will give you some important things to think about. For more help, see your Merillat dealer.

EXTRAS YOU DON'T EXPECT TO FIND Merillat

cabinetry comes with many standard features at no extra cost. Just some of the features you'll find: ♪ We hand-wipe our stains, then use a select top coat which enhances the grain and protects the wood from most harmful kitchen cleaners. ♪ Concealed self-closing hinges not only offer a clean look, they won't clash with your choice of decorative hardware. ♪ Our WhisperGlide® dual-captive tray and drawer roller guide system helps your drawers and trays glide wobble-free. ♪ With roll-out trays, you can find all those things in the back without wading through all those things in the front. ♪

Decorative hardware is available to complement your Merillat cabinetry. Actual colors may vary slightly due to printing limitations. For full decorance, please visit your Merillat dealer.
