Radio proposal accepted

By RANDY COBLE
 Staff Writer

Northville Township public safety officials have waited a long time for a new radio communications system. They won't have to wait much longer.

At a March 16 special meeting the board of trustees voted 6-0 (Supervisor Karen Baja was absent) to accept the $376,000 bid for a new radio recommended by Chip Snider, director of the township Department of Public Safety (DPS).

The township's old radio system, which coordinated the activities of police, fire and emergency medical service personnel, blew out on March 1. A desktop "loaner" unit is in place now. The board in January directed DPS officials to seek bids for a replacement system. The two that came in were opened last March 13.

Only one met all bid specifications, Snider said: $376,359 from Mobil Communications Inc., of Livonia. A second bid from Lanier Worldwide Inc., also of Livonia, was unacceptable because it was for only two pieces of the radio system apparatus, Snider said.

Mobil officials estimated that it will take them up to 150 days from contract signing to complete the radio project. That would mean the system could be on line by mid-August.

The company's bid price was somewhat higher than expected. Snider said that was due to Mobil including the cost of some antenna improvement work the firm felt was needed as part of the new system.

The improvements called for are two receiver stations that will eliminate radio "dead spots" in the township. DPS officials, Snider

Trustees curb own use of attorney

By RANDY COBLE
 Staff Writer

Members of the Northville Township Board of Trustees have restricted their own ability to consult the township's contracted legal firm. The move is an attempt to ensure that high legal bills, a problem the board's encountered in the past, won't occur in the future.

At its March 9 meeting the board voted 6-0 (Treasurer Rick Engelland was absent) to revise the township's contract with its new legal firm, O'Connor, DeGrazia & Tamm of Bloomfield Hills. Included in the new agreement is the following clause:

"Unless otherwise directed by the township board, requests for legal advice or opinions shall be reviewed by and forwarded to counsel by the township manager. In turn, counsel's response (written or oral) shall be transmitted to the township manager for distribution to the township board and/or appropriate department head.

In the past individual members of the board went directly to legal firms and requested opinions on a variety of subjects. The numerous requests were part of the reason that the township's monthly legal bills skyrocketed. The trustees hope that making Manager Tamara Hanlin the point person between them and O'Connor DeGrazia will help keep the bills in line.

The board hired the firm in February. Hanlin praised its work at the meeting.

"I'd like to say how good it is to have Jim Tamm on board," she

Municipal building roof to get replaced

By RANDY COBLE
 Staff Writer

A new roof is in store for Northville Township Hall following a recent decision by the board of trustees.

At their March 9 meeting trustees unanimously approved Manager Tamara Hanlin's recommendation to hire an architect to design a new top for township hall.

A new roof has been on the township's wish list for years and is one of Hanlin's top goals for the year.

Water leaks from the roof are common and you can always find buckets set up under drips after a hard rain or snow.

Officials say the leaky roof gives township hall an unprofessional look and add that the dripping water could damage records and expensive computer equipment.

The township received three bids for the job of designing a new peaked roof.

The board gave the contract to the Dearborn firm of Nordstrom Samson Associates. The company will be paid $15,800 for work on the roof's design and an additional $5,400 for construction administration services.

Another bid was lower than Nordstrom Samson's.

Hanlin said she could not recommend that bid because the individual involved does not carry professional liability insurance.

One local project which Nordstrom Samson designed is the Plymouth Community Center and ice rink. Money for the roof replacement will come from the township's capital outlay fund.

Hanlin said the total cost of the roof has yet to be fixed. She said she hopes that the roof can be completed by around July 1.

Supervisor Karen Baja told the board that she was willing to abstain from discussing or voting on the roof contract because a member of her family is a longtime friend of one of the bidders.

The board voted against allowing her to abstain after Baja said she felt she could be objective about the matter.

Two 'fun' science teachers win honors

By YVONNE BEEBE
 Staff Writer

The pungent scents that seep out of science rooms C-5 and C-6 of Meads Mill Middle School are constantly in conflict with each other.

"We have lots of interesting smells coming from our room," said Meads sixth grade science teacher Bill Lenz, who works with a range of natural compounds including chemicals, gases and rocks and minerals in his classroom.

"It counteracts the critter smell coming from mine," says next-door neighbor Norm Hannewald, whose seventh-grade science classroom is crawling with living creatures from rats and miniature alligators to lounging pythons and tarantulas.

The battle between the two teachers, however, ends with their classrooms' acrid aromas. The long-time Northville instructors not only share a love of science and a devotion to their students, they are both recipients of two prestigious teaching awards in the science community.

Lenz, who has taught in Northville Public Schools for 22 years, including tenures at Moraine and Winchester elementaries and now at Meads, has been named teacher of the year by the Librarian Sylvia Mazzaro retires at the end of the month after a 15-year tenure at the facility.

Mazzaro says goodbye to post Long chapter closes with retirement of librarian

By YVONNE BEEBE
Staff Writer

After 15 years of having her nose buried in reams of books, Sylvia Mazzaro will close a significant chapter in her life at the end of the month.

Mazzaro, the Northville District Library's assistant director and adult services librarian, will retire March 31, turning in her card catalog directory for a pair of traveling shoes.

The matronly librarian has helped countless Northville patrons find just the right book or reference material they needed for the 15 years she has served on the library staff.

Mazzaro will waste no time pursuing other adventures once she retires as she and her husband, Rocko, will take off for a month-long tour of Arizona, New Mexico and Mexico April 2.

Mazzaro also plans to spend more time with her four children and four grandchildren who all live in the area, she said.

The friendly faces she has gotten to know so well during her years in the city hall building will be the thing she misses most, Mazzaro said.

"I have made a lot of good friends here, both with the staff and the regulars," said Mazzaro, who worked her way through the ranks of the library staff, beginning as a library aide, then moving on to the children's librarian and then to her current position as assistant director and adult services librarian.

The library's younger patrons often recognize Mazzaro as she conducted the pre-school story time for seven years, she said.

"I've had about 1,000 little ears listening to my stories," she said.

Mazzaro is leaving her job during an exciting and dynamic time for the library with its new district status and with the brand new 25,000-square-foot, two-story building it will move into in the fall of 1996. Ground breaking for the new building is slated to begin in late spring.

Through the years, Mazzaro said she has seen a dramatic increase in the use of the library by Northville residents.

And with the additional funds that accompany the library's new district status - voters approved 1 mill for general operating expenses last May - Mazzaro hopes staff will be able to maintain their quality of service to patrons.

"Northville has a long history of being service-oriented," she said. "We really care about the people and I hope they can maintain that with the high technology the library will have. You still need that personal touch."

Mazzaro's unique personal touch is something Director Pat Orr said will be the most difficult to replace.

"She is one of the best librarians I've ever seen," Orr said. "No joke, it will take three people to replace her."

In anticipation of the library's expanded resources, Orr is looking to hire three adult services librarians.

So far she has received more than 40 applications.

New Scout troop forms

Boy Scout Troop No. 755 invites area boys who are interested in joining the troop and their parents to an orientation meeting this Monday, March 27, 7:30 p.m., at the Northville First Presbyterian Church, 200 E. Main.

Boys must be at least 10 and one-half years old and in the fifth grade. Current troop members and leaders will talk about the scouting program, and answer questions.

Regular troop meetings are every Monday night, 7:30 to 9 p.m. Camping trips are scheduled monthly. For more information call 348-1962.

Police News

$20,000 in collectible items stolen

Northville Township police are investigating the theft of more than $20,000 in collectible coins from a Seven Mile Road residence.

The homeowner, 55, said she thinks the theft took place sometime between Feb. 25 and March 9. Between those dates the woman had a number of visitors who came to look at a jet ski she was selling. The coins were in bags near her door, the woman said, put there as she sorted property in her home. She discovered them missing on Friday.

THREAT: A 17-year-old Livonia boy told township police on Friday that another teenager had threatened him at the Northville Auto Wash on Five Mile.

The boy said he was cleaning his car when the second boy, who he claimed has harassed him in the past, saw him and began to run toward him.

The boy said he got into his car, which caused the second boy to kick and spit on it. At one point, he added, the second boy made a gesture that the boy felt was "gang-associated." The second boy then told him he was "going to die," the boy said.

ASSAULT ON A POLICE OFFICER: A 42-year-old Milford man was arrested for assaulting a police officer at Northville Downs March 18.

The man allegedly slugged the police officer in the chest after the officer attempted to arrest him.

The incident began when a race-track employee informed the officer that a man had walked through the gate of the track and dropped a bottle of tequila, which broke when it hit the ground. The man left the scene and the employee could not find him.

The officer went to the area where the bottle had been broken. A man was standing near the spill and took the paper towels being used to clean the mess up and put them in a nearby wastebasket.

The officer then approached the man and asked him if he had brought in the bottle of tequila.

The man denied he had brought in the bottle. However, the track employee identified him. The officer then asked the man for his driver's license. The man gave it to the officer, who called the number into the police department.

The man then claimed he was being harassed in a public place. He grabbed his license from the officer's hand and pushed him a number of times.

The man then ran from the building toward the parking lot. The officer chased him and grabbed him by the collar. The man then turned and struck him in the chest. The officer forced him down to the ground and arrested him.

The man was released on a $500 personal bond. A preliminary exam is scheduled for April 13 at 35th District Court in Plymouth.

VEHICLE TAKEN: A Northville Township homeowner called police on Saturday after her boyfriend took her car without permission but dropped the matter when he returned it two days later.

The woman said she was afraid the man was on drugs and took her car to sell it for dope.

The man admitted to being on a "crack binge" last weekend and asked the reporting officer in the case to destroy a crack pipe he had. The officer did so.

TRESPASSING: Township police caught seven teenagers trespassing at the Plymouth State Home on Sheldon Road the night of March 15 but only ticketed three of them.

The reporting officer in the case spotted the seven at the home after a citizen called police. Three of them ran off upon his arrival. The officer advised the four others that they were trespassing and allowed them to leave.

He caught up with the three others at the Burger King at Five Mile and Sheldon a short time later. All three were issued violations and face a court hearing soon.

PURSE SNATCHED: A township woman told police that someone stole her purse from her shopping cart when she wasn't looking at Meijer last Monday. The purse is valued at $150 and contained credit cards and cash as well.

LARCENY FROM A HOME: A resident of Hutton Street reported to Northville City Police that an unknown person had walked into his garage March 17 and stole 18 cans of beer. Police have no suspects.

LARCENY FROM AN AUTO: A resident of Hutton Street reported to Northville City Police that a leather coat had been stolen from his unlocked car March 17. Police have suspects or witnesses.

OUIL: A 29-year-old man was arrested for drunken driving after he was pulled over for an expired license plate. The man was driving westbound on Seven Mile Road when a Northville City Police officer thought the "95" tag on the man's license plate appeared to be taken from another vehicle.

When the officer approached the car, a strong odor of intoxicants emitted from the vehicle and the man's speech was slurred. The man failed a number of field sobriety tests and registered a .13 blood-alcohol content, over the legal limit.

While the man was being arrested and processed, he became extremely agitated, screaming and swearing. Later he became distant and quiet.

Police asked him if he was all right.

The man said he thought he might be hypoglycemic and needed something to eat.

Once the man ate, his behavior returned to normal.

A computer check revealed that the man did not have a valid driver's license. Police are continuing an investigation into the fake license plate tab.

The man was released on a $100 cash bond after sobering up. A preliminary examination is scheduled for March 27 at 35th District Court in Plymouth.

BURGLARY: A township homeowner told police that someone stole two handguns, a camera and a watch from his residence last week.

The man said that the theft took place while he and his wife were on vacation.

He told police that he believed his daughter knew what had happened. The woman denied any knowledge of the incident.

The missing items are valued at $670.

THEFT OF A LICENSE PLATE: Employees at McDonald Ford reported to Northville City Police that a license plate was stolen off a van that was parked in the dealership's parking lot.

DRUNK DRIVING: Township police arrested two Canton residents for drunk driving last week.

Police arrested a 37-year-old man last the evening of March 15 after an officer saw his 1995 Pontiac Bonneville swerving and speeding on Seven Mile.

Breathalyzer testing at police headquarters later showed him to have a blood alcohol level of .15 percent, over the legal limit.

A 48-year-old woman was arrested last Thursday evening after an officer caught her speeding on Haggerty in her 1989 Saab. Breathalyzer testing later showed her to have a blood alcohol level of .14 percent, over the legal limit.

BIKES STOLEN: A Northville Trail homeowner told police that someone stole her mountain bike from her driveway on Saturday. The bike is valued at $160.

TIRES SLASHED: A 20-year-old township man told police that someone slashed three tires on his 1973 Lincoln Mark IV sometime last Tuesday night or Wednesday morning. Damages are estimated at $500.

Citizens with information on any of the above incidents are asked to call Northville police at 349-1234 or township police at 349-9400.

Suspected torturer faces court hearing

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

The man accused of abusing and sexually assaulting his girlfriend, a Northville Township woman, was arraigned in Detroit Records Court one week ago.

Northville Township police say Keenan Lewis Wells systematically beat, burned and otherwise abused the woman, 23, for nine hours on Feb. 8 after discovering what he thought was evidence of her seeing another man.

At one point he allegedly tried to burn his tattooed name off of the woman's genitals using a heated pair of scissor blades, allegedly injuring her sex organs in the process.

Wells, 25, of Detroit, is charged with four felony offenses in the case: first-degree criminal sexual conduct (CSC) during the commission of a felony, use of a weapon and causing personal injury during a CSC and of assault with intent to do great bodily harm. Wells has entered a plea of innocent.

The three sexual conduct charges each carry maximum penalties of life imprisonment. The assault charge carries a maximum penalty of 10 years.

Thirty-fifth District Court Judge John MacDonald on March 2 bound Wells over to Wayne County Circuit Court.

The case has been transferred to Records Court, however, because the Circuit Court docket was too full to hear the trial.

At Wells' arraignment in Records Court on March 16, Judge Geraldine Bledsoe Ford ordered the defendant's bond remain the same and that he appear on April 20 for further court proceedings.

Wells' cash bond is $25,000, or 10 percent of $250,000.

To date Wells hasn't posted bail and remains in the Wayne County Jail.

Law sponsors legislation regulating county elections

By TIM RICHARD
Staff Writer

Wayne County voters would have a chance to choose nonpartisan elections if the Legislature passes a bill sponsored by Rep. Gerald Law, R-Plymouth. Law's bill would require charter counties - there's only one in the state - to place before voters a choice of partisan versus nonpartisan elections. "The 1966 enabling act violates the constitutional home-rule principle," said Law. "It's a mistake made by the Legislature, and it's only fitting that the Legislature fix it." The 1908 Constitution gave home rule to cities, and the home rule city act allows cities to adopt nonpartisan elections. But when the 1963 Constitution provided for county home rule, the Legislature required partisan elections. "My Republican constituents in western Wayne County are shut out because the Democratic primary decides countywide offices," Law said. In recent generations, Republicans have carried Wayne only once - in 1946. Law's bill is expected to be assigned to the House Local Government Committee. Two other Michigan counties - Oakland and Bay - have county executives. But they are organized under a different act, not the home rule act.

VFW presents Brownie Troop with U.S. flag Teaches about Old Glory

By CAROL WORKENS

Members of Northville's VFW Post 4012 visited with Brownie Troop 69 at Thornton Creek Elementary School March 13 to present the new Troop with a United States flag.

The VFW members also gave each girl a small hand-held flag and talked briefly with the Brownies about the Stars and Stripes.

In addition, the Brownies were given two copies of the Pledge of Allegiance, one in English and the other in Braille.

The Troop, which was formed in November 1994, has 15 first grade girls and one junior girl scout helper.

Troop 69 has decided to shoot for a Challenge/Honor patch. To achieve this goal, Troop members will need to earn 21 additional requirements over the Basic patch. Requirements include service projects, outdoor activities, and purchasing equipment with money raised through fund-raisers.

Brownie leader Nancy Young, along with co-leaders Barb Arne and Trish Prechesky, have already participated in projects, including caroling and collecting toys for Children's Hospital.

Future plans include cluster activities and the Scouting for Food program where the girls will hand out flyers April 1 and pick up food items on April 8.

The Northville United Methodist Church food bank will be the recipient of the donations the Troop collects.

HEALTH NOTE

PAINED RESPONSES

It is no secret that Americans often turn to pain medication when seeking relief from a symptom that seems to affect most of us at one time or another. A recent survey, however, indicates that we may not rely on such medications as readily as previously expected. According to research conducted by The Monday Fund (a private pain foundation in New York City), 77 percent of those surveyed would rather try more natural forms of pain relief before reaching for medication. Leading the list of alternative pain relief techniques that Americans most identified as being effective is physical therapy, with a 90 percent recognition rating. Next on the list are exercise (82 percent), life-style changes (80 percent), and massage (72 percent).

The physical therapists at Northville Physical Therapy & Rehabilitation Inc. can help you with chronic pain management. Physical therapy is a form of health care that prevents, identifies, and corrects loss of or impaired movement of anatomic or physiologic origin. We specialize in back and neck problems, developmental disorders, sports injuries, and stroke and closed head injury rehabilitation. To schedule an appointment, call 349-3816, or see us at 332 E. Main Street, Suite A.

P.S. Among the life style changes that Americans recognize as being most effective in countering pain is weight loss.

ROBERT J. REED

Robert J. Reed of Northville died at St. Mary Hospital, Livonia, on March 16, 1995. He was 81.

Mr. Reed was born on Aug. 18, 1913, in Detroit, to Steven Elmer and Mae (Findlay) Reed.

Since 1915, Mr. Reed was a resident of Northville, and was retired from Ford Motor Co. He was a member of several organizations: the National Muzzle Loaders Association, the 24th Michigan Volunteers, North-South Scrimmage, N.R.A., Mid West Radio Control Society (Model Airplanes), South Lyon Fine Arts Society; and the Potawatami Valley Muzzleloaders.

Survivors include a daughter, Susan E. Gleason, of Manchester; a son, Douglas H., of Northville; sisters Lois Haber of Northville, Elmore Baggett of Plymouth, Virginia Nesbitt and Lucile Cope of Livonia, and Clare Reed of Fowlerville; and two grandsons.

Service was held on Monday, March 20 at Casterline Funeral Home with Rev. Lloyd Brasure officiating.

He was preceded in death by his wife, Clayton Jacqueline Reed, on Aug. 20, 1993.

Interment took place at Rural Hill Cemetery, Northville.

The family would appreciate memorials to the Robert Reed Tree Fund.

JOSEPH L. MORGAN

Joseph L. Morgan of New Hudson, died March 4, 1995, at Providence Hospital, Southfield. He was 70.

Mr. Morgan was born on April 22, 1924, in England, to Joseph and Lucy (VanDenBock) Morgan. On March 15, 1947, he married Joan Powell. They were married in England.

Mr. Morgan was a former resident of Northville, having moved from there to New Hudson in 1977. He also had many friends in the Novi area.

He served with the RAF in Iceland, Malta and India during World War II. He had been employed as an engineer for Ford Motor Co and retired in 1990 after 34 years of service.

Surviving Mr. Morgan are his wife, Joann; son Paul of New Hudson; daughter Marilyn MacDermaid of West Bloomfield; mother Lucy Morgan of New Hudson; and seven grandchildren.

The Rev. Walter Sherman officiated at the service held March 8 at St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Brighton. Cremation followed.

At the request of the family, memorials may be given to the American Heart Association, with available envelopes at Keehn Funeral Home, in Brighton.

HAZEL M. SEVERANCE

Hazel M. Severance, age 89, of Northville died March 19, 1995, at Whitehall Convalescent Center, Novi. She was born Sept. 13, 1905, in East Tawas, Mich., to Lemuel and Laura Mae (LaChapelle) Severance.

Mrs. Severance moved to Northville in 1949. She was a homemaker and a member of the Northville Women's Club-W.A.L.D.

Survivors include a daughter, Mary Stern of Northville; son David of Ann Arbor; sister Alice Frye, of Holland, Mich.; two grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

She was preceded in death by her husband, Donald A. Severance, on Oct. 26, 1989.

Services were held on Tuesday, March 21, 1995, at Casterline Funeral Home, Northville, with Dr. Douglas W. Vernone, First United Methodist Church, officiating. Interment took place at Rural Hill Cemetery, Northville.

DORIS C. MATCHULAT

Doris C. Matchulat, age 68, died March 20, 1995, at her residence in Northville. She lived in Northville since 1981.

Mrs. Matchulat worked part-time at Arbor Drugs in Northville at the time of her death.

Surviving Mrs. Matchulat are her husband, Arthur A. of Northville; three sons, John (Deby) of Marquette, Mark (Suzanne) of Redford, and James (Maureen) of Fraser; five grandchildren; and a sister, Florence Fischer of Romulus.

Services will be held on Thursday, March 23 at 5 p.m. at the Northrop Funeral Home, Northville. The Rev. Carl E. Mehl from St. Paul Lutheran Church will officiate.

Memorial contributions to the Michigan Heart Association would be appreciated by the family.

Township may oppose plan to combine tax collection

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

Two area school agencies want to collect all of their property taxes in one fell swoop this year, but may not be able to in Northville Township because of the stance of the board of trustees.

Proposal A, passed one year ago, changed the way Michigan funds its public school system. The plan shifted much of the burden of school funding from property taxes to the state sales tax.

Local property taxes are still vital to school budgets, however. Two area school agencies - the Plymouth Canton school district and the Wayne County Regional Educational Service Agency (RESA) - want to collect all of the property taxes they're due this year in July.

That's a change from the established method of billing a property owner for half the amount in July and the other half in December. Plymouth Canton and RESA say they need to collect revenues differently in 1995 to save money.

"As winter approaches each year we have to borrow money until the December tax bills come in," Dr. Mary Kauper, a RESA spokesperson, said. "If we collect it all in July it means that we will have to borrow less money and pay less interest. In the long run it saves everyone money."

"From our practical point of view it makes a lot of sense," Ray Hoedel, Plymouth Canton's associate superintendent for business and operations, said. "It shouldn't be too big a burden because our tax rate's so low."

RESA levies two mills on Wayne County properties to get money for special education services.

Northville Township's share of the RESA tax is about $1 million. Finance Director Dwayne Harnagan said. The six mills that Plymouth Canton assesses on township residential property owners adds up to about $600,000, Harnagan said. Northville Township trustees were not supportive of the plan when they discussed the matter last month. Treasurer Rick Engeland expressed two concerns in particular. Some residents would have a problem paying all of the millage at one time, he said, and businesses would likely have an even tougher time because they're taxed at a higher rate.

The trustees agreed to convey those concerns to RESA and Plymouth Canton. To date no contact has yet been made, Kauper and Hoedel said.

If the township declines to go along, she added, RESA can't collect the money on its own.

"We'll have to go with the local entity's decision," Kauper said.

Plymouth Canton has in the past used a local bank to make collections when a local government entity wouldn't, Hoedel said.

Federal grant money will go toward elderly and low-income residents

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

The Northville Township Board of Trustees has agreed to spend more than $100,000 in federal funds on programs to assist elderly and low-income community residents.

The trustees at their March 9 meeting voted to approve the expenditure of $100,500 in Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) funds on three projects.

The federal government gives local communities CDBG money for use in a variety of improvement projects such as loans to low-income people to fix up their homes. The township, however, has had problems finding enough people who qualify for assistance.

Some of the cash has been on hold for years and county and federal officials have said the township will lose it if it doesn't use it. That's what led township officials to develop new uses for the funds that still meet federal guidelines, including the three projects they include:

- Some $25,000 will go towards covering the costs of the Northville Senior Citizen Center.
- A "kind call" computer telephone system will cost $11,000. The system is computerized and checks up on anyone who might have a problem being home alone.
- A computer phones homes using a "real" voice and allows those called to say whether they are fine or have a problem that requires assistance. It's like a voice mail system, CDBG coordinator Maureen Oisecki said, where a caller would press "1" on his or her telephone if everything is OK. Other digits can summon emergency assistance.

"It's a reassurance, just one more way of making sure everything's fine," Oisecki said.

The Northville Township fire department will be responsible for the program.

- The biggest chunk of the CDBG funds - $54,450 - will go to pay off the water and sewer bills of township residents who qualify under federal low-income guidelines, about 25 families in all.

Liens will be placed on each family's home, Oisecki said, but will be forgiven after three years.

Ten percent of the $100,500 in funds will go for administration costs and final approval from Wayne County and the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) will be needed before any money can be spent.

Not included in these CDBG funds is $27,000 in grant money which the township wants to use to tear down the unused water tank on Beck Road between Five and Six Mile.

The board approved the idea in January and township officials sent the request on to the county and HUD. A community resident filed a protest against the move, however. Township and county officials continue to study the matter.

Students and community members have a unique opportunity to take a peek beyond the fallen iron curtain of Russia and several Eastern European countries this summer.

High School social studies teachers George Aune and Chris Ford are organizing the trip for the third time since 1991.

The two instructors have made the journey with students two other times, which has proven to be a wonderful learning experience, Aune said.

"Our past trips have been fascinating," Aune added. "It's a good learning experience for students.

They come back and use their experiences in the classroom."

The 15 day tour, which includes stops to St. Petersburg, Moscow, Warsaw, Krakow, Budapest and Vienna, is scheduled for June 27-July 10. Currently, 12 students are signed up for the trip.

Aune said he hopes to have 20 adventurers — students or adults — to take the journey. Students who sign up do not necessarily have to attend Northville High School, Aune said.

The total cost of the trip — including plane fare, overnight stays, breakfast and dinner, scheduled tours and Russian and Polish visa application fees — is $2,494 for students. Adult participants over the age of 25 will pay $240 more than students.

Highlights of the trip include an evening performance of the Kirov Ballet, entrance to the Kremlin in Moscow, visits to Red Square and the Lenin Mausoleum in Moscow, an evening performance of the Moscow Circus, a visit with Russian and Polish high school students, a one-day journey to the Auschwitz concentration camp and guided bus tours in every city.

The deadline to sign up for the trip is April 1.

Call Ford or Aune at the Northville High School office at 344-8420 between 7 a.m. and 3 p.m.

High school study groups strive toward goals

By YVONNE BEEBE
Staff Writer

April will no doubt be the month of the Wednesday mornings for the Northville school district.

Northville Education Association and central office officials will step up to the bargaining table during the last week in April to discuss the fate of the one-year pilot program under which teachers meet for planning sessions until 10:40 a.m. on Wednesdays.

The date to begin talks was established in the NEA's new contract, which was ratified in late January.

Also on tap for the restructured mornings, which allows for collegial planning time for high school teachers, are the results of the program's evaluation, which will most likely be presented to the board of education during the first week in April.

Evaluation results were originally scheduled to be presented March 13. The board, however, decided to postpone the results for several weeks to allow the educational consulting firm Formative Evaluation Research Associates more time to interpret data compiled by Wayne County intermediate school district officials.

During the months of hustle and bustle over the logistics of the program - with concentration by the community on the evaluation results - the high school's six teacher groups have been working on what they set out to do. The groups have spent their time examining ways to improve curriculum, expand educational opportunities for students and staff and improve the school's overall environment.

The following is a brief recap of what the groups have been studying this year.

• Technology study group: Members of the technology group have worked to increase technology use in the classroom.

The group visited Rochester Adams High School to observe the school's global classroom where students use computers to communicate with their counterparts all over the world.

Northville classrooms have been doing the same thing this year with some classrooms communicating with Japanese and Spanish students through the Internet and e-mail.

Group members have explored ways to increase the use of the Internet with teachers and students and ways to integrate the Internet into classroom activities. Group facilitator Barb LeBoeuf has used the Internet in her classroom to find President Clinton's speeches and information on his economic proposals.

The results of the program's evaluation will probably be presented to the board of education during the first week in April.

Group members also explored the possibility of installing a computer-aided design (CAD) system at Northville similar to the program used at Rochester Adams.

A CAD system could be used to help students with drafting, architectural design and in auto-shop classes.

In addition, group members have worked to increase the use of Excelsior, a computer grading system that averages scores and analyzes grades.

"It answers the question 'what if I get an A on my final?'" said social studies teacher Ed Gabrys.

The group also purchased three Internet resource books to help teachers find addresses of information sources that would be helpful in the classroom.

• Instructional methods/curriculum study group: Members of this group have worked on ways to integrate classrooms in order to help students see the bigger picture of the information they are learning.

Gabrys, the group's facilitator, said teachers have analyzed ways to break down the compartmentalization of classes by relating subject matters.

For example, teachers are taking units being taught in English classes like mythology or grammar and coordinating the same subject matter into the foreign language classes at the same time.

Teachers are also studying the impact of eliminated prerequisite classes on individual departments. A number of prerequisite classes were eliminated from the high school curriculum two years ago.

Earlier this month, high school teachers voted to allow the individual departments to determine prerequisites to allow more input from teachers on curriculum. Teachers of each department would make a recommendation to the department heads, who would in turn make a final recommendation to the board.

"Decisions have been coming from the top down with very little input from the professionals at the high school," Gabrys said. "But curriculum is a bottom-up process."

Gabrys and fellow group member Chris Ford, chairman of the social studies department, have constructed a critical thinking model for students to follow for classroom projects.

The model begins with the recommendation of a current topic in debate.

Students must then research the content for their answers, critique the possible solutions to the question and then decide what outcome they would like to see. The two teachers studied a number of sources on critical thinking to construct the model.

• Inter-disciplinary study group: Members of this group have examined ways that teachers can help students increase their organizational and efficiency skills. The group purchased planners for all freshman students this year to help them keep on top of their academic and personal schedules.

The group will evaluate the effectiveness the planners had with the students in April.

Eventually the group hopes to purchase planners for all the school's students.

Group facilitator Karenda Seiler said she has received comments from students and teachers about how helpful the planners have been for students in remembering tests and handing in their homework.

"Many students have said 'this really helps me,'" Seiler said.

Earlier in the year the group held a time-management presentation, which about 150 students attended, forcing the workshop to be moved to the auditorium.

Group members also studied the possibility of beginning a homework hotline, where sick students could call in and find out what homework the teacher assigned that day.

The idea will not happen anytime soon though because the high school does not have enough telephone lines.

Spring craft show coming

Handcrafters will be sponsoring its 13th annual spring Arts and Crafts Show on April 7, 8, and 9, at the Northville recreation Center, 303 W. Main St.

Over 70 juried artisans will display florals, stained glass, wood items, clothing and baskets.

Tabling issue solution reached

By RANDY COBLE
 Staff Writer

Two months after tabling their debate on how discussion items can be tabled, members of the Northville Township Board of Trustees have reached a compromise that, well, everyone at the table can agree to.

At issue are the parliamentary rules that the board uses to run its meetings. The trustees at their March 9 meeting adopted a slightly different set of rules from those used in the past.

The board used a modified version of Robert's Rules of Order, the English parliamentary method used to manage most meetings of American governmental bodies. Among other things Robert's Rules establish the rights of members of an elected body to speak and ask for votes on issues during meetings.

At a January board meeting the trustees debated a section of the rules that covers "tabling." Tabling occurs when the board votes to stop discussing an issue and put it aside for consideration or action at a later time or date.

At that time the board operated by the rule that whenever any member called for an issue to be tabled a vote would be immediate with no discussion allowed. Some members of the board felt the tabling rule was being used not to defer discussion pending more information but to effectively kill a political issue they didn't support.

"Tabling is a device board members sometimes use to achieve an end they want," Supervisor Karen Baja said at the March 9 meeting.

At the January board meeting the trustees tabled the tabling discussion to a study session it was there that Trustee Mark Abbo lobbied for a new rule which the board ended up agreeing to. Now when a motion to table is made each trustee can comment on it for up to one minute. A vote follows.

"It's unfair to the minority when we shut off discussion," Abbo said.

"It happened when I was in the minority and you didn't have a problem with it then," Trustee Gini Britton replied.

Funds from 911 surcharge due soon

By RANDY COBLE
 Staff Writer

S-L-O-W - as molasses in January

That's the best way to describe local public safety officials' progress in getting Northville's share of the money raised from a new Wayne County wide 911 phone bill surcharge.

The Michigan Legislature approved the surcharge one year ago. It allows individual counties in the state to charge each telephone user in their jurisdictions an additional 48 cents a month.

Ameritech collects the surcharge and then every month is supposed to give each community the money raised from phone lines within its borders. By law the money must be used for the improvement of 911 and related communications systems and services. To date 23 of Michigan's 83 counties have adopted the surcharge.

Wayne County approved it in August and Ameritech began collecting in November. Since then the heads of the Northville city and township police departments have watched their mailboxes for their first check.

They've been disappointed as delay piled upon delay.

That might end soon, though. Chip Snider, director of the township's Department of Public Safety (DPS), said that Ameritech has handed over $269,000 in surcharge funds to the Conference of Western Wayne (CCW).

"They're still discussing at CCW how the money will be split,"

Snider said, "but the money's out of Ameritech's hands and in ours now."

The biggest reason for the delay has been in calculating the number of phone lines in Northville which will affect the amount of money the township and city receive. Recently Ameritech agreed to include nearly 2,000 more lines in Northville's total, increasing the community's share of the money.

Snider said that he expects the township's share to be anywhere from $45,000 to $51,000 a year. Northville Police Chief Rod Cannon estimated that the city's share of Wayne County lines would amount to about $13,000 to $14,000 a year.

A complication for Northville city is that most of its phone lines lie in Oakland County, which hasn't adopted the surcharge and isn't likely to soon, according to Cannon.

Some members of the Oakland County Commission are calling the surcharge another tax and are not supporting it, Cannon said. He indicated that the county's chiefs of police are planning to try and drum up support for the surcharge this spring and summer with a commission vote likely to occur this fall.

Cannon said that city officials are still thinking about what to do with the funds. Snider has recommended that the township board of trustees consider using the money to pay for a new radio system (see related story).

Attendance off at Expo event

The fifth annual Networking Northville Business Expo is history and a good time was had by all.

Some 45 businesses, 12 non-profit organizations and 15 area restaurants set up booths at the huge exposition, held March 16 at Northville High School.

Scores of prizes were given away at the event, designed to help residents become better acquainted with the local business community.

Laurie Marrs, the executive director of the Northville Community Chamber of Commerce, said attendance was a bit disappointing at 325 people. Attendance at last year's expo was roughly 425.

"Every business I talked to said they had a great time and made a lot of new contacts, but you still want to get your numbers up. We're in the process of reevaluating what we can do to get things back to where they were."

Marrs speculated that the spring-like weather might have kept some customers away. She is inviting anyone with ideas about attracting more patrons to the expo to call the Chamber office at 349-7640.

New this year was a contest to name the best restaurant booth and business display. Expo-goers voted Northville Gourmet & Wine Shoppe the best restaurant booth, giving second place to Edwards Cafe and Caterer.

The best business display honor went to Four Seasons Flowers and Gifts, with the not-yet-opened Gardenviews coming in second.

The winners will receive plaques from the Chamber

Marrs said Northville resident Dawn Hunt won a trip from Key Tours, while Alberta Pumphrey, also of Northville, won a vacation celebration getaway package from The Northville Record.

Also given away were gift certificates, cakes, club memberships and mugs.

A raffle to benefit cancer patient Kathy Karney raised $195 for that cause.

Proceeds from the Business Expo are used to finance Chamber-sponsored events, such as the Victorian Festival and the Farmer's Market.

The public school district donates the use of the high school for the three-hour activity.

Science teachers show winning touch

zation's annual conference and awards banquet on March 3.

Hannewald will receive his award - only one of which is presented each year in the entire United States - next weekend at the NTSA's national annual conference in Philadelphia.

Both instructors won their honors for their ability to motivate students and bring the world of science alive for them, in addition to their professional activities, planning and presentation skills and classroom management.

Cooke science teacher Dwight Sieggreen said Lenz and Hannewald are what he calls "weekend warriors" - teachers who don't leave work once the end-of-the-day bell rings on Friday but rather plan classroom activities on their personal time.

"We really have reason to be proud," Sieggreen said. "These are top-notch teachers."

Judging by the enthusiasm students have when they enter Hannewald's classroom, studying life science is more than just reading a textbook. Several students rush into the room one Monday afternoon and go straight to Peter the Python's cage. They take the lengthy reptile out and fearlessly allow the snake to coil around their necks and waists.

Many students are reluctant to leave when Hannewald announces they will be spending the hour at an all-school pep assembly. One student even asks if he can stay behind to help take care of the animals.

"My program is built upon critters," said Hannewald, whose students study animal habits through scientific logs, graphs and charts. "Middle school kids love animals. I started with them because it's a draw for kids. It makes them want to be here."

Hannewald, who has been at Meads since 1975 and taught at Cooke for eight years before that, is no stranger to awards. He was named the Outstanding Middle School Teacher for Wayne County by WDIV-Channel 4 last year and shared the MSTA teacher of the year honor with Sieggreen in 1987.

The decision to go into teaching seemed like a natural choice, as Hannewald's grandparents and mother were teachers. Hannewald's affinity for life science was cultivated when he grew up on a farm and learned to love the outdoors, he said.

The key to turning kids on to science, he said, is to relate their lessons to the real world and get them involved in hands-on activi-

Hannewald's students care for the classroom animals and the plants in the greenhouse located behind his classroom.

More important than pulling kids into the world of science, Hannewald said, is turning them on to school in general.

"I think of science as just a piece of the puzzle," he said. "If you can help a kid stay in school and not drop out, that's more important than science."

Lenz, who said his most rewarding experiences come when students see the big picture during an experiment, has taught at Meads for a year-and-a-half. Before that, he taught fourth and fifth grades at Winchester and Moraine elementary schools for 20 years.

"For kids to go through an experiment and see the patterns - for them to say, 'Oh wow, I see it' - that's what is so great," Lenz said.

The hustle and bustle of Lenz's classroom during a recent experiment to identify unknown compounds is an example of how Lenz digs in with the students. The smells from the experiment are not as overwhelming as the students' excitement over what they are doing and learning.

"When we study science with Mr. Lenz, it's not boring," said sixth grade student Donnell Quaker. "He makes it fun. We do lots of experiments."

When Lenz first moved up to the middle school almost two years ago, he felt intimidated by the size and was worried that with some 90 students going through his classroom he wouldn't be able to make much of a difference in their lives, he said.

Collegial planning time to brainstorm ideas for future lessons and plan strategies for team teaching is one aspect of the middle school that Lenz said has been invaluable to him.

"The first month or two here, I wasn't too sure," he said. "But with the support of everyone - it just clicked. No way would I want to leave the middle school now."

Students learning by doing is the most important part of his job, Lenz said.

"The students' excitement and the hands-on experience is what I love," he said. "The grades on their tests are not so important to me. To show them it can be fun and interesting - it's very empowering."

Cooke writer is essay honoree

Lauren Sommerman, a pupil at Cooke Middle School, took second place (grade category 6-8) in the 1995 Women's History Month Essay Contest. Lauren wrote about her mother, Madeline Sommerman.

Over 1,600 students from across the state celebrated Women's History Month and the International Year of the Family by writing essays about women in their families who are transforming or have transformed society by emphasizing family unity, strengthening and bonding.

The contest, co-sponsored by the American Association of University Women and the Michigan Women's Commission, was open to boys and girls in grades 6-12. The theme of the contest was Celebrate the Families of Michigan.

The honorary co-chairpersons of the contest were First Lady Michelle Engler, Lt. Gov. Connie Binsfeld and Detroit First Lady Trudy DunCombe Archer. The three also lead the council of the Michigan International Year of the Family.

"I was very impressed with the creativity, originality and quality of the essays. The students who participated in the contest should be congratulated on their outstanding effort," said Binsfeld.

Fifteen winners, five from each grade category (6-8, 9-10, 11-12), were chosen from the entries and will be awarded savings bonds ranging from $50 for fifth place to $1,000 for first place.

The students, their parents, and the subjects of their essays were invited to a reception in their honor held at the State Library of Michigan in Lansing on March 22.

Mill Race Matters

As spring returns Mill Race Village tunes up for a new season of activity.

On Saturday, April 8, Wayne County Master Gardeners present their seventh annual garden seminar at the village. A $20 fee includes seminars for the day, a box lunch and a tour of the village. Advanced reservations are recommended. Call (313) 676-5906 for additional information.

Elementary school days resume in April with most days finding the village filled with children recreating an 1873 school day. Also in April docents will meet to plan their season's activities.

The New School Church interior is freshly painted. The village's Stone Gang begins to wrap up production of its first set of birdhouses and return to doing exterior work. This year repairs are planned for the gazebo and at least one porch.

For the past two weeks this column has featured local women of prominence. Today it features Margaret Wing, one of the area's early settlers.

Born in New York in 1794, Margaret arrived in Northville with her husband, Sylvanus, in 1836 and with several of her family members. Sylvanus died one year later. She continued in the family home as the head of household, living with her daughter, Elizabeth.

In addition to Elizabeth, Margaret had three sons. All died in infancy - two before the family arrived in Michigan and one after. Elizabeth lived to adulthood, marrying twice. Her first husband, John Yerkes, died just a few months after their marriage. Her second husband, Jacob Covert, was himself a widower.

In the 1850 census, Margaret continued as head of the household although two women, her sister Catherine Robinson and her daughter, had joined the home. The land is not listed in Margaret's name, but that probably relates to the laws of that era which limited property ownership and control by women.

Even though on one level she had no power, on another she is recognized to have headed a household when the village was in its infancy.

By 1860 Margaret had joined the household of her son-in-law, Jacob Covert. She died June 18, 1861, and is buried with family members at Cady Street Cemetery.

Margaret was one of the few women listed as a charter member of the New School Church founded by a splinter group of First Presbyterian in 1845. Although the congregation existed for only four years, it left its structure which today serves as New School Church in Mill Race Village.

In 1840, Daniel Cady and William Dunlap platted the village of Northville. On that plat Wing Street is listed. It may have gotten its name because it served as a wing for the village, or it may have been so named because it led to the home of Mrs. Wing just as Dunlap and Cady were so named.

Attention was drawn to Margaret and her life about five years ago when members of the Northville Historical Society Archive Committee began processing society holdings. At that time her personal memory book was located in the society collection. The handwritten document dated Sept. 8, 1827, contains "memorial" comments by friends and relatives. Some entries occurred before the date inscribed on the cover.

Research into Margaret's background found that Sept. 8 was her wedding day. In April of that same year the book reveals she lost a close family member, probably a parent.

On May 27, 1829, Margaret wrote: "There is a tear in secret shed which time's slow power never dries. It falls when thinking on that bed where liest in death my infants dies. A mother's sorrow cannot be cooled, but by a mother. And is he dead? With sudden grief I cried. Has heaven to me that little pledge denied..."

She died in June, 1861. The book's final entry was written by her daughter, Elizabeth, on the day she was buried.

Cheerleading competition on tap

The Western Lakes Activities Association Cheerleading Competition is scheduled for Saturday, March 25 at Northville High School. Doors open at 8 a.m. The competition begins at approximately 9 a.m. for the freshmen teams, followed by the junior varsity teams, then varsity squads. The competition will consist of each team performing two cheers and a choreographed dance routine. The teams will be judged by certified and professional staff judges.

This is the eighth annual WLAA competition. Northville's varsity team has won the overall high point title four times, placing second on four other occasions.

Meanwhile, the high school tryouts for cheer teams will begin on Monday, April 3, and conclude on April 11. The schedule is as follows:

Informational Meeting for Tryouts: Monday, March 31, 5 p.m., in the Activities Center, NHS.
 Tryout Clinics: Monday, April 3, through Friday, April 7, 5-8 p.m.,

NHS. Monday, April 10, 5-8 p.m.
 Tryouts will begin at 4 p.m., on Tuesday, April 11.

Bid for communications unit approved in township said, have had trouble maintaining contact with police headquarters when in the Meijer store at Eight Mile and Haggerty and in the western side of the township.

To correct the problem, one of the receiver stations will be located on the Meijer or nearby Hampton Inn properties. The other will be located in Fire Station No. 2 on Seven Mile west of Beck.

It was the discussion of how and when to pay for the new radio that occupied most of the meeting.

Treasurer Rick Engelland and Finance Director Dwayne Harrigan outlined a potential 7-year agreement with Comerica to finance the purchase. It calls for the township to make a yearly lump sum payment of $70,000 each year for the next seven, making the total cost of the radio about $490,000. The extra $114,000 comes from interest charges, which the township can get at the rate of 5.55 percent.

Financing it will actually make money for the township, Harrigan said. Instead of spending money for the radio now, he explained, the board can put it into CDs which pay more than 6 percent. That route will save the township about $19,000 over the 7-year period, Harrigan said.

The board did not specifically decide where in the budget that the yearly payment would come from. The trustees seemed to support paying for the radio through a combination of revenue from a new 911 surcharge (see related story) and cash from the township's general fund.

When Mobil will be paid was another topic of discussion. A brief round of negotiations with company officials during the meeting produced a compromise payment schedule.

The two sides agreed that the township will pay for the radio on the following terms: 15 percent due on contract signing, 35 percent on delivery of equipment; 25 percent on completion of most equipment installation; 15 percent due on final equipment installation; and the remaining 10 percent due upon final acceptance of the system.

Mobil is expected to present the township with an ongoing maintenance agreement within 60 days.

Access to attorney restricted said. "We're off to a good start and the township's very lucky to have him."

"The entire firm has been helpful," Director of Public Safety Chip Snider added.

The contract also provides for O'Connor DeGrazia to be paid on an hourly basis. Partners will bill the township $125 an hour for their work. Associate attorneys will bill at the rate of $90 an hour and criminal prosecution work will go for $85 an hour.

During their recent hunt for a new attorney firm township officials said they preferred a flat-fee arrangement. O'Connor DeGrazia said they wanted an hourly rate for at least six months while they examine their work load.

The lawyers have said they'll sit down with township officials after six months to reevaluate the situation, and will discuss the possibility of a flat fee contract.

Outreach program offers seniors help

Help for seniors is available through the Senior Outreach Enrollment Project (SCOPE), sponsored jointly by Wayne County Neighborhood Legal Services (WCNLS), Office of Services to the Aging and the Senior Alliance.

Free assistance is available for persons 60 years of age and older with enrollment in public benefits such as Supplemental Security Income (SSI), Medicaid, and food stamps.

Legal staff will help seniors submit applications to the Department of Social Services or Social Security offices, provide representation at hearings or other direct intervention and, if necessary, make arrangements for transportation.

WCNLS also assists low-income persons with a variety of other legal problems.

No-fault bill addressed

By TIM RICHARD
Staff Writer

Gail Ritchey, a Milford mother, told state lawmakers openly: "I did not want this divorce. The law needs to be more supportive of marriage."

She was among 11 men and women supporting a bill to make it tougher for married couples with minor children to divorce. After her husband obtained a divorce, her son killed her ex-husband.

Countered Nancy Jean Bliss, representing Michigan's NOW (National Organization for Women): "The state cannot force people to stay in love."

"This bill will have unintended consequences - more taxes for our overburdened court system; a burden on the poor and middle class; more money for lawyers and less for living expenses," said Bliss, one of seven opposed to tightening Michigan's no-fault divorce law.

Eighteen people spoke March 13 before a state House Judiciary subcommittee in the Farmington Hills City Hall on a bill drafted by Rep. Jessie Dalman, R-Holland. Her bill would require couples with minor children to go through the pre-1972 "fault" divorce system.

Of seven opposed to Dalman's bill, five were attorneys and one a psychologist. Of 11 in favor, only one was an attorney.

Dalman, noting the split, summed it up: "The professional system is not working for the average person."

On one point, nearly everyone agreed. As Wilma Fellman, a West Bloomfield educator and divorced mother, put it: "It (divorce) can't be called easy by any stretch of the imagination. It's the worst nightmare anyone could go through."

Dalman's bill was the work of Michigan Family Forum, a right-wing group previously best known for fighting state school curriculum laws. Its pamphlet is entitled "Breaking Up Is Easy to Do." Author Briant Willats wrote that Michigan's 40,000 divorces a year (two-fifths of all first marriages) result in an "economic free-fall" for women and children, poverty, kids dropping out of school, suicide and a host of social problems.

The MFF-Dalman remedy: House Bill 4432, requiring one party to allege the other committed adultery or engaged in "deviate sexual intercourse," was physically incompetent at the time of marriage, has been sentenced to prison for three years or more, deserted for two years or more, "habitually uses and abuses alcohol or a controlled substance" or commits extreme cruelty.

"Fault-based divorce has problems - we admit that," said Willats. "If anyone has a better idea, we're all ears."

Many - both supporters and opponents of the Dalman bill - did have other ideas: a separate Family Court, mandated instruction on parenting, mandated counseling, better training for lawyers, and guardians ad litem for all children in a divorce.

"Personally, I'm in favor," said Michael Robbins, Birmingham attorney who chairs the Michigan Bar's family law section. Many judges "shove off cases to mediators, arbitrators. Many have never tried a divorce case."

NOW's Nancy Bliss agreed. "Judges hold a low opinion of domestic cases. Friend of the Court is totally disorganized; the judge rubber-stamps their work. A judge never even hears these cases."

"You got a lot of people out there, think marriage is a joke," said David Hagood of Detroit. "You oughta make it harder to get married and harder to get out."

"Life is hard," said Farmington Hills psychologist Lyle Danuloff. "Parents are overwhelmed by life." Danuloff challenged MFF's conclusion that the soaring divorce rate is caused by no-fault divorce.

He proposed mandated instruction on parenting and greater mental health services.

Attorney Robbins praised Oakland County's "Smile" program, in which a judge and social worker spend 45 minutes with couples in divorce cases, showing a videotape in which kids tell "what divorce did to me." His conclusions: "Some marriages are saved; some divorces are more amicable."

Eugene Ludwig of Troy also supported mandatory counseling. A grandfather whose son is in a bitter divorce case, Ludwig labeled "rubbish" the lawyers' notion that "courts would be clogged" if divorce were made more difficult under Dalman's bill. "It's the child that counts," he said.

Refer to House Bill 4432 when writing to your state representative, State Capitol, Lansing 48909.

Join the committee that's planning the 4th parade

"Celebrate Northville," the committee that's heading up the organization of this year's Independence Day parade, is hoping people will come down with a serious case of patriotic fever and help make the 1995 parade better than ever.

The committee plans to meet at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, March 30, in Northville Township Hall off of Six Mile. The meeting is open to all interested residents.

Committee members will discuss possible parade additions and a division of duties during the meeting.

Karen Woodside has taken over the lead organizational task from Debbie McDonald, who withdrew from active involvement this year after running the parade since 1991. Woodside is hoping to expand parade activities to include fireworks and a music concert for later in the day.

Needed are volunteers to work the morning of the parade, convertibles for dignitaries to ride in, antique cars, bands and floats. Creative types with ideas about what decorations to include are also needed.

As in past years, members of the community are asked to contribute ideas for a parade theme. A form in today's newspaper may be filled out and returned no later than April 1 to the office of The Northville Record.

Last year's theme was "A thousand clowns."

"We don't know if it'll be possible to bring back the fireworks or add a concert as part of the day's festivities, but we're sure going to try," Woodside said. "We need all the idea people and energetic volunteers we can get."

McDonald built a roster of bands, floats and novelty acts during her four years of organizational leadership and has turned the well-ordered list over to Woodside. Much more needs to be done, however, to ensure a successful event.

"Debbie did a great job and we're hoping to carry on the tradition that she helped establish," Woodside commented. "Northville's parade has an excellent reputation in the area."

Arts Commission lecture next week

The Northville Arts Commission is hosting the third in a three-part series of art lectures by noted art authority Michael Farrell on Thursday, March 30.

Farrell is associate professor of Art History at the University of Windsor, adjunct curator at the Detroit Institute of Arts, and instructor at the Art House of Detroit.

The March 30 lecture will present the works of Chilean painter

Claudio Bravo and will take place in the Northville High School Forum at 7:30 p.m.

Tickets at $8 each are available at the door. For more information call (810) 349-6104

Man arrested on weapons charge

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

St. Patrick's Day is usually a time for the wearing of the green. But for one Detroit man it was a time for the wearing of the cuffs after his arrest for carrying a loaded .357 magnum handgun.

Northville Township police say the arrest was due to the heads-up performance of Officer Kevin Bias. "It's a fine piece of police work," Detective Fred Yankee said. "He had his ears open."

Bias was listening to area police radio traffic while on patrol Friday morning.

He heard Livonia police dispatch several officers to the area of Five Mile and Merriman after receiving a report of a man in a white Chevrolet Camaro pointing a gun at another motorist.

He drove to the intersection of Five Mile and Haggerty, Yankee said, and saw a white Camaro there. The car was heading west on Five Mile just east of Haggerty, Bias said.

He followed the car as it turned north on Haggerty and then west on to Seven Mile.

Bias radioed the township's dispatcher to alert him to the situation and to verify the Camaro's license plate number.

A Livonia officer soon joined him and the two stopped the Camaro on Seven Mile near Pierson.

The driver, 26, had the firearm tucked into his waistband, Bias said, and a speedloader was found in his jacket pocket.

The man was taken to township police headquarters but was later released to Livonia officers.

He was arraigned Saturday on two felony charges: carrying a concealed weapon and assault with a firearm.

Track industry looks for relief be open year-round. The bill would not expand gambling to areas outside of the state's current race tracks.

Rep. Gerry Law, R-Plymouth, a co-sponsor of the racing bill, said the dramatic decline in interest in race tracks jeopardizes thousands of jobs statewide, including horse breeders, farmers who grow feed and trainers, in addition to track managers, waitresses, ticket takers and parking lot attendants. The racing industry accounts for roughly 42,000 full- and part-time jobs statewide.

"We may be looking at the destruction of what has been these people's livelihoods for years," Law said.

The bill, which Law believes will get the racing industry back on its feet, will not expand gambling throughout the state but will allow the tracks to compete on the same level as casinos, he said.

"You don't want to kid anybody that when you talk about expanding gambling, people get offended," Law said. "But we want more people to come to the track. We're not trying to expand gambling to other areas in the state where there isn't already betting."

In addition to giving tracks a boost, Law said the communities that host the race tracks — like the city of Northville — stand to benefit as well. The proposed bill states that race track communities will receive 1 percent of all revenue tracks gain by simulcast betting and electronic gaming.

That could prove to be a valuable gift for the city of Northville, whose race track revenue was cut by about one-third from $900,000 to $600,000 in 1991, forcing the city to make extreme budget cuts.

City officials, however, aren't making any assumptions until they know more about the bill.

City Manager Gary Word said there were too many "unanswered questions" surrounding the 1 percent revenues the city could receive. Word said he is concerned that the bill, if passed, could impact the community, adding that he'd like to see the legislation go to a vote of the people.

"We are talking about a major change here, one that could perhaps change the character of the community," he said. "With something like this I think it should go to a local referendum."

Northville City Police Chief Rodney Cannon said although it is too early to tell exactly how the bill

"We may be looking at the destruction of what has been these people's livelihoods for years."

—Rep. Gerry Law

would affect the city and the police department, some change would be inevitable.

"There would be a definite impact on security and who would provide it," Cannon said. Currently the police department employs 10-12 part-time police officers to patrol the track for the three months it is open. Northville Downs' season begins in January and ends in early April.

If passed, the bill would allow the tracks to be open year-round to allow for simulcast betting, even if live racing were not taking place on-site.

Although the bill is in the early stages — the state's regulatory committee has held one hearing on the legislation — Law anticipates its passage will be difficult, noting that there are several state representatives vocally opposed to gambling. Gov. Engler, who has the final say on the bill, could also stand in the way of the legislation, Law said.

"In the past the governor has not been a major supporter of gambling," Law said. "By no means will it be an easy sell."

Lawmakers balking over bill to help horse racing industry

By TIM RICHARD
Staff Writer

State representatives are raising their eyebrows as they study details of a bill allowing horse race tracks to run gambling machines and inter-track betting.

Michigan's licensed race tracks say they need expanded gambling if the 42,000-job industry is to survive against the onslaught of casino gambling in Windsor and possibly Detroit.

"No one wants to take a position on electronic gaming until the (governor's) Gaming Commission reports in the middle of April," said Rep. Susan Munsell, R-Howell, chair of the House Regulatory Affairs that already has begun studying the 65-page bill.

"We're on a headlong crash course," warned Rev. Allen B. Rice of the Michigan Council on Alcohol Problem. MICAP opposed the 1972 lottery question, has opposed gambling at outstate tracks and opposes allowing casino and off-track wagering at horse tracks.

"Citizens are saying, 'Let the lottery do it; we don't need to tax ourselves.' We have a pell-mell desire to save ourselves with more gambling, more gambling — it's unwise public policy," said Rice.

He was alone in opposing the bill at Munsell's March 15 public hearing.

Dr. David Darby of Brighton, the president of the Thoroughbred Horsemen's organization, backed the bill, quipping: "I have 30 years experience and have lost thousands of dollars, but I get in free."

Dr. Cynthia Courson of Potterville, who heads the Equine Association, veterinarians who care for horses, said the bill will result in "substantial improvements in veterinarian care" through a fund it sets up for equine research.

Bob Lathrop, of Service Employees International Union Local 79, said business at the major race tracks — in Northville, Livonia, Hazel Park and Jackson — has plummeted 20 percent since Windsor opened its gambling casino.

"Without the means to compete, our jobs will be replaced by low-wage jobs in the casino industry at $4 to $6 an hour," said Lathrop, whose union represents ticket takers, security forces, starters and outriders at the tracks.

The union leader objected only to a section that would give the Swartz Creek track, near Flint, a tax break by shifting the area to a lower population classification.

Fielding the tough questions was Dick Elconin of the Harness Horsemen's Association.

Munsell: What was behind the definition of "city area" as a city of 750,000 and the area 30 miles surrounding it?

Elconin: "The practical effect is to limit tracks in the metro Detroit area." The bill limits the number to three, and those licenses already are held by Northville Downs, Ladbroke DRC in Livonia and Hazel Park Raceway.

Munsell: The bill says two people with an interest in a track can't operate more than one track in the city area. Why?

Elconin: "It's to keep the industry competitive rather than allow one economic interest to take control. For example, one party once had an interest in DRC and Hazel Park."

Munsell: Is there anything to prevent a new track?

Elconin: "There's nothing to prevent a new track. But it must be in business several years before it can get into video gaming (casino gambling). The practical effect is to limit the number of tracks."

A Detroit lawmaker: Does the bill specifically disallow racing in Detroit?

Elconin: "That's the practical effect." Until the early 1950s, Detroit hosted DRC at the State Fair Grounds. DRC moved to open land in Livonia. Of the three so-called "city area" tracks, none is in Detroit.

Munsell: Why does the bill specify the racing commissioner must have two deputies, an executive secretary and three stewards? Why not let the commissioner organize his own staff?

Elconin: "This comes out of a history of acrimony. We left the specifics to Mr. Westrin."

In a lengthy explanation of the bill, Elconin said nearly all of the existing provisions of the racing regulation act were left intact

"It was reassuring when a Botsford nurse visited us at our home."

Since Anthony is my first child, I didn't know what to expect. But the doctors and nurses at Botsford were very supportive during my pregnancy, delivery and after our baby was born.

At the Special Delivery Center, my husband was able to stay with me from the time we came in the special, separate entrance and throughout my stay. My Labor/Delivery/Recovery room was spacious yet comfortable and private.

The nurses showed us how to care for our new baby and offered bathing and breast-feeding guidance. We also received an informative manual and a phone number for a 24 hour hotline.

Two days after we were home, a Botsford obstetrics nurse visited us. She made sure that Anthony was in good health, completed an assessment on Anthony and me and answered all my questions.

My mother lives in Florida and couldn't be here — so I appreciated everyone at Botsford making us feel right at home.

Our Opinion

New legal procedure is needed safeguard

Sometimes you can be your own worst enemy.

When the Northville Township Board of Trustees starting ringing up high legal bills, some on the board wanted to impose a set of internal checks and balances to minimize the number of times trustees would seek legal counsel over the telephone.

Most fingers pointed at Supervisor Karen Baja as the main culprit in the spending spree. In any event, there was a widely held view that something had to be done to save elected officials from their own undisciplined selves.

Intentions aside, political considerations won out over sound policy making and no official action was taken.

Until now.

The board voted unanimously March 9 to initiate a new procedure whereby all contacts with the township's new corporation counsel, O'Connor, DeGrazia & Tamm, will first go through Manager Tammy Hanlin. Hanlin will have the responsibility of reviewing requests for legal opinions and forwarding them to the attorneys. The responses of the lawyers will be transmitted to Hanlin who, in turn, will distribute them to trustees or to the proper department heads.

This might sound like nothing more than adding another layer of bureaucratic entanglement to the process of obtaining legal advice. We think, however, that it is a necessary safeguard against a recurrence of excessive attorney bills, which, like everything else in the public sector, are ultimately paid by the taxpayer.

We have high hopes that the township's governmental procedures will tighten up under Hanlin. One of the problems contributing to the disorganization that has characterized so much of the board's actions has been the fact that there has been no firm leadership presence at township hall since January 1993 when former Manager Dick Henningsen was terminated.

In the months since then it has become painfully apparent that this board is not one that can work productively and efficiently without direction and oversight. Hanlin's acting as a point person between board members and legal counsel, part and parcel of the move to concentrate greater responsibility in the hands of the manager, will help provide some much needed supervision in this area.

Decision will prevent burdensome tax bite

Northville Township trustees deserve another pat on the back for looking out for the interests of the taxpayer.

The board has expressed opposition to plans which the Plymouth Canton school district and the Wayne County Regional Educational Service Agency (RESA) have proposed. The two school agencies want to collect all of the property taxes they're due this year in July.

That's a change from the standard method where a property owner is billed half of his or her property tax in July and the other half in December. Plymouth Canton and RESA say collecting their taxes all at once makes fiscal sense. They say the plan would let them avoid borrowing money - and paying interest on it - this winter, something they've had to do in the past in the months before the December taxes came in.

RESA's levy is two mills for special education services. Plymouth Canton's is six mills on homeowners - more on business properties - and will go for general operations costs.

All of the township is subject to the RESA levy but only a small chunk of the south end of the township is in the Plymouth Canton district.

Like all school agencies both depend on local governments to collect their tax revenues and both have asked the township board to approve the plan. The trustees aren't agreeable, however.

Treasurer Rick Engelland put it best: while the plan may be great for the two agencies, it places a real burden on the taxpayer, particularly business property owners because they're tapped for more mills.

Township officials say they're going to try to get RESA and Plymouth Canton administrators to change their minds through gentle persuasion. We think that's the right approach. We also think that the board should stand firm and refuse to collect 100 percent of the taxes this summer even if RESA and Plymouth Canton won't budge.

In a way we can't really fault the administrators of the two agencies for trying. The mills they're asking for go to excellent programs.

The administrators are asking for something that's in the best financial interests of RESA and Plymouth Canton. But the plan isn't in the best interest of the taxpayers who would have to come up with all of their tax money in one fell swoop. The board's decision to oppose it was the correct move.

How can you resist the feast?

Random thoughts and unrelated ramblings from the editor's (train wreck of a) desk.

Ya gotta eat, after all

I was surprised to learn that attendance was down at the Sixth Annual Business Expo held last Thursday.

Laurie Marrs over at the Chamber of Commerce says only about 325 people came to the event, where scores of businesses set up booths and clean up their act for the public.

Last year, according to Marrs, there were about 425 people at the exposition, meaning attendance was off around 24 percent this year - a substantial reduction.

Marrs suggested that the mild weather might have kept patrons away from the expo location at Northville High School, adding it's also possible that people are getting bored with the annual happening.

Bored? Heck, even if you don't care about finding out who's who in the local business community there's always the chow. Some of the area's best restaurants prepare special fixins' just for the expo, and everything's free once you get inside.

For the $6 price of admission you can feast on taste tempting ribs, mouth watering chicken and exotic salads.

For those with a sweet tooth, there are fabulous delicacies that are frothier than a three-tiered wedding cake and more sinful than a week-long Mardi gras binge.

My theory is that people just aren't aware of the dizzying variety of culinary delights available at the expo. Maybe they ought to start billing it as the yearly Networking Business Bash and Pig Out Party. That'd get the message across.

Warm weather or not, people still get hungry and there's no better deal in town than Northville's monster buffet spread.

Any activity that highlights some of the great eateries of this city shouldn't be missed.

Please, heed our pleas for ideas

I hope everybody will fill out and send in the "Name That Fourth" form that can be found on page 12 of today's edition. We need a lot of ideas for Independence Day parade themes this year as that unfailing creative resource, Debbie McDonald, is out of the parade organizing business.

For the last four years, Debbie has worked tirelessly on nearly every phase of the parade, lining up countless entries and coordinating the myriad facets of the event.

Whenever no one else would come through with suggestions (including themes), she would step up and fill the void.

Without her around to help with the planning we might have to rely on people who, like me, have all of the imagination of an accounting clerk on Nydol.

Come on, put on those thinking caps and give us a theme we can really have fun with.

Bubble man

Performers blew bubbles in the "Love Like Salt" presentation at Novi Middle School.

Gang watch is just precaution

It was only about 10 years ago that another police department, in a town not far away, spent a good deal of time worrying about the possible presence of a satanic cult operating within its jurisdiction.

Officers were convinced they had a group of satanists in town mainly because of the graffiti they'd seen scrawled inside abandoned buildings and on the backs of local stores. Satanism itself isn't illegal, there being the freedom of religion in this country, but police were worried because satanists have a tendency to do some pretty mean and ugly things that are against the law.

To the best of my knowledge, no satanists ever turned up. And the only graffiti I ever saw was more likely related to heavy metal music and bands than any attempt at real devil worship. Stroll through your local music store and you're likely see all those symbols on a variety of CD covers.

So when Novi Chief of Police Doug Shaeffer and the Novi Police Department let word out that they were concerned about youth gang-related graffiti showing up in Novi, I was skeptical. Rap music is big these days, and of course it draws a heavy influence from inner-city culture. Rougher versions of it are often referred to as "gangsta" rap. Could it be that local youngsters are picking up those symbols through their music and music magazines, and are simply imitating it in graffiti locally?

I ran that theory by Shaeffer and he discounted it. If that were the case, he postulated, there would likely be more errors in the reproduction of the symbols. The graffiti showing up here is too accurate for that. For example, he has not seen the symbols of one gang being mixed up with the colors of another, he said.

The graffiti spotted here is, I admit, reminiscent of what you are likely to see in an inner-city neighborhood - pitchforks and stars, apparently symbols denoting turf. And some of the graffiti spotted here has specifically spelled out the names of well-known youth gangs - the "Crypts" and the "Latin Counts."

School officials have been informed of the potential problem and are on the look out. But according to Art Miller, principal at Novi High School, there's only been one incident of graffiti showing up which might be gang related. And there has not been a repeat of that since it has been dealt with.

Keep in mind that only a year ago, Northville and other area communities feared they were suffering gang infiltration. The response was an attempt to pass a school board policy outlawing the wearing of "colors" in school.

The wearing of colors isn't what it used to be, since gangs now mark their members by having them roll a sleeve cuff, or wear a specific brand of athletic shoe, or even have them use the same color of shoe laces. So the policy got pretty convoluted before the idea was abandoned altogether. Further evidence of gangs spreading to Northville has not shown up.

It remains unclear what the source of Novi's graffiti is. It could be youngsters from outside of town, just passing through and leaving their mark as they go. Or it could be local youngsters, referred to as "wanna-bes" - kids who wear the dress and listen to the music, but aren't likely to commit any kind of serious crime.

Or it could just be, as Shaeffer and the PD fear, that youth gangs are indeed attempting to recruit new members from suburban communities like Novi.

I'm going to remain skeptical for the time being. But Shaeffer and the police department have done the right thing. They've put out the information so that the school officials and residents of the community, especially parents, can be aware and watchful of what is going on.

After all, it might not be widespread in the community, but if it turns out to be your kid who gets tangled up with a youth gang, then it becomes pretty significant, doesn't it?

MISADVENTURES OF TRAVEL

By CAROL WORKENS
Staff Writer

Michael Ashington-Pickett began a talk at The Northville Town Hall Series on March 13 by suggesting that members of the audience take notes. Those who did took home some wonderful travel tips to try first-hand the next time they travel.

"This (Town Hall Series) is the backbone of our civilized society," he said. "It is a wonderful institution." Ashington-Pickett travels around the country giving talks and "sees the town hall series programs flourishing."

The British-born Florida resident formed a consulting company in 1979 to help corporations elsewhere in the world relocate to the United States.

"The only trouble was that the more I traveled I found lowering standards everywhere," he said.

As a result of the fiascoes he found while traveling, he now publishes The Ashington-Pickett Airlines and Travel Report, a quarterly publication that compiles the findings of the author, staff and readers on travel.

"There's one key word to a successful trip - that's planning: detailed planning, meticulous planning," he said. "Being prepared for all possible circumstances."

Finding a good, experienced travel agent is also indispensable, he said.

Remember your reservation number. When you go to the check-in counter or gate, give them your reservation number. The airlines are eliminating sending tickets to customers in an attempt to cut costs - not yours, theirs, according to Ashington-Pickett.

"Check the long range weather forecast," he said. "It will help you pack wisely and sensibly."

If you're ditching a cold climate for a warm winter vacation, check the equator line. Go south of the equator line because if you stay north, the climate will be the same as the one you're trying to escape.

One of the best days to travel is Saturday in the early morning hours. The quietest time to fly is between 7 and 9 a.m. If you get discount tickets, one of the requirements may be to stay over one Saturday night. Get the Saturday night over with as soon as possible, Ashington-Pickett recommends.

If you're using the frequent flyer points, travel on a Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday, which, again, are the quietest days. You'll also find the most seats open for your frequent flyer points or discount fair on these days.

The discount flights the airlines advertise are not for the whole plane, only about six to 10 seats, and they are usually offered on a Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday.

"If you don't have a frequent flyer number, get one, get them all," said Ashington-Pickett. "Even if you only fly once a year."

For every dollar you spend on some charge cards, you get one mile which can be added to the miles accumulated with the frequent flyer programs offered by the airlines, according to Ashington-Pickett.

When traveling to and from the airport, there are other options besides taxi cabs. Ashington-Pickett recommends getting in touch with the concierge at the hotel of your destination and renting a stretch limo, which is not much more than the cost of a cab.

"You're take your life into your hands with some cabbies," said Ashington-Pickett.

To handle jet lag, lay off the coffee and booze and eat light. Also try to get some sleep at the regular hour of the new time zone.

"Don't drink the water and lay off the salads," said Ashington-Pickett. "That's where the germs are, on the salads. You don't know where those hands have been."

Make sure the food is hot. "There's a good chance you'll end up with Montezuma's revenge if you eat cold food in a hot country," he said. "I would suggest the hotter the country, the hotter the food."

To fight off any germs, Ashington-Pickett visits his doctor for a prescription for antibiotics and begins the medication two days before, continuing treatment two days after a trip. Check with your doctor about what to take to curb an upset stomach.

"You're not going to find your favorite over-the-counter medications in Spain or places like that," Ashington-Pickett said. "You're better off taking them with you."

When in doubt, trust the senior concierge's name, drop a $20 bill in an envelope with your business card and your room number and slip it to him or her. "You'll get lots of exciting good service. It'll be the best $20 bucks you've ever spent."

"Don't forget to decide where you want to sit," he said. "I like to look out the window, but you know, if you sit next to the window you're trapped."

Aisle seats are best but they are hard to get because the airlines keep them for full-paying customers. If you get a ticket that puts you in the middle or in a seat that you don't want, keep on trying

When you get to the airport go right up to the counter when you check in and ask about the seating availability again. If they haven't sold those full-fare tickets, those seats are available, according to Ashington-Pickett. "Be persistent. You'd be surprised."

"Size up the people behind the counter too," he said. "See which one looks nice and get in their line. If you see one that looks like they've had a rough night, keep away."

Proceed to the departure gate as soon as possible. There's a good reason for this. Even if you have a boarding pass, the quicker you check in, the better your chances of getting first priority on that seat. The airlines do give out more than one ticket per seat.

As soon as you can board, get up and get in there.

"Possession is nine-tenths of the law," he said. "If you are in the right seat you do not get out of that seat. They can't make you go. They have to deal with the other person."

Boarding early gives you an advantage when it comes to stowing your carry-on luggage, too.

When you are traveling in the winter, try to arrange routing in the southern connections. Avoid connections in airports in cities that have bad weather, you could get delayed. Instead of getting a connection in New York, Chicago, Boston, etc., work in the southern connections. Work through Dallas, Houston, Miami, and Memphis, recommends Ashington-Pickett.

"To Europe, no matter where you travel, you should always consider Swiss Air," he said. "You might be in the air a little longer, but Swiss Air puts on a top-rate service. They have a wonderful worldwide connecting route, especially in Europe."

"You've got top-rate mechanics who look after their aircraft, one of the youngest fleets in the world and get great service," Ashington-Pickett said. "Some European airlines are doubtful at best."

"It's not so much how long you spend in the air you have to worry about, it's whether you get there in one piece, and that's how I look at it."

Connections when coming from Europe can make a difference. "For example, if you're flying back from England, you may want to come into Dallas, Texas. You could go through New York that's true, but you're going to have to go through Canada. That's a jungle and the customs are usually awful. You can go to friendly Dallas and then land in Detroit just as easily."

When checking in at the airport, use curbside if possible. "Most people line up at the main counter. Those people usually have a problem - that's why they're there," he said. "You wonder how on earth they got into all the messes they got in." Ask for the code wording of the airport you're going to and make sure they put that label on your bag.

If you want a drink or a cocktail with your meal or anything else, order it the first time the stewardesses come around to take orders.

The reason for this is that drinks are served after the meals. You'll be lucky to get your wine with your meal, you may get it with the dessert, if it even comes then, according to Ashington-Pickett.

"So the answer is stack them (beverages) all up. You have to," he said. "Whatever you have to do, do it."

The best time to go to the bathroom is right after the movie has started or anytime during the movie. It's all yours during the movie, but don't wait until they start running the credits or else you'll wait a long time.

Complaints about an airline are handled by the transportation department. To voice a complaint, call (202) 366-2220. It is recorded and goes in print nationwide in newspapers.

PEGGY HAYMAN

Hayman has one year to do it right

By DOROTHY NASH
Special Writer

You take the ball and run when you've been named president of Rotary - as Peggy Hayman was in Novi last July - because you have only one year to hold the office.

First, she said, "I had to learn to delegate authority" because, as a Rotarian she has business interests in town besides being housekeeper and parent. Hayman owns and operates A to Z Secretarial Services, and with her husband she's in a partnership in a Twist N Shake.

"I have delegated work to be done," she said, in each of the programs Novi Rotary contributes to - programs like Food Bank, Clothes Closet, Special Olympics, and scholarships for high school seniors.

And currently there's the development of the park at Nine Mile and Rother Drive. "It will be called Novi Rotary Park," she said, and it will include a picnic shelter, tennis courts, and a foot-path along the creek.

"The city is doing the work," Hayman said. "We're helping with the funding. Construction begins in the spring, and it will be completed in the summer."

Where does the money come from to do all of these things?

The answer is - from drawings for a car. This is Novi Rotary's ninth year at it, and, Hayman said, they've made $23,000 to $60,000 a year doing it.

Demands on her time? It's like this: Weekly noon lunch and program.

Monthly meeting of the Board of Directors. And telephoning - making and taking calls - "to make sure everything is covered."

"I put in 10 to 15 hours a week - minimum" on Rotary activities, she said.

Yes, Peggy Hayman knew what she was getting into. She joined Rotary in 1989 and then held every office up to the presidency.

Why do it? Peggy Hayman quotes a friend who told her, "We could change society if everybody volunteered two hours a week."

It's A Fact

Having a ball!

The Novi Parks & Recreation will soon be having a ball - 220 dozen softballs to be exact.

The Novi City Council approved the purchase of 2,640 softballs at a cost of $3,383 each for a total of $8,933.25 to be used by the Adult and Youth T-ball and Softball teams.

Photographer takes part in world's first teleconference

Angela Carson of Angela Carson Photography in Northville has just completed a unique interactive teleconference that was broadcast live to 80 cities across the country on March 5.

Carson was one of five nationally-renowned photographers selected to participate in the "world's first" portrait photography teleconference.

Portrait 2000 was a showcase for the best, brightest and most talented artists in the industry, according to Ed Pierce, creator and producer of Portrait 2000.

"Angela was chosen because she is on the cutting edge in terms of her photography."

She's recognized worldwide for her innovative and unique style of portraiture. When it comes to children's portraiture, Angela is the best of the best," he said.

Each of the five speakers gave a presentation, shared insights and took calls from viewers.

The speakers also got a chance to interact with each other in this "industry-first" event.

Carson turned a modest business into one of the leading studios specializing in children's and family portraiture.

She received her photographic craftsman degree from the prestigious Professional Photographers Association of America, speaks regularly at professional photography conventions, and was an integral part of developing "Once Upon A Lifetime," a national marketing program designed to increase cus-

OLV comes to aid of parish family

Our Lady of Victory Parish has come together to help a fellow parish family.

A couple with five children of their own has suddenly grown to include three additional boys, due to the recent tragic death of the boys' parents.

The couple has to make many changes to accommodate their 1-, 2- and 10-year-old nephews. Plumbers, carpenters, and electricians have already volunteered their services to assist the family with any alterations that may be necessary to the home. Transportation may also be a consideration and a larger van may be necessary.

Anybody wishing to make a monetary contribution may send it to the attention of OLV-Children, Our Lady of Victory Church, 770 Thayer, Northville, MI 48167. Checks should be payable to OLV-Children.

Folk art musician receives apprenticeship

Ralph Mannisto of Northville has received a traditional arts apprenticeship from the Michigan Traditional Arts Program at Michigan

State University Museum.

The MSU Museum's Michigan Traditional Arts Apprenticeship Program annually awards grants to master traditional artists who will teach apprentices skills and knowledge of their folk tradition. Mannisto will teach Finnish folk music and accordion.

The Michigan Traditional Arts Apprenticeship Program is partially funded by the Folk and Traditional Arts Program of the National Endowment for the Arts and the Michigan Council for Arts and Cultural Affairs.

The program is directed by the Michigan Traditional Arts Program of the Michigan State University Museum.

Applications for the 1996 awards must be postmarked by Dec. 1, 1995.

For guidelines, applications and any other information, write to Michigan Traditional Arts Apprenticeship Program, MSU Museum, West Circle Drive, East Lansing, MI 48824-1045.

Lyric Chamber Ensemble camp audition deadline nears

The Lyric Chamber Ensemble, celebrating its 15th year of presenting concerts in the metro Detroit area, is now taking applications for auditions for "Summer Music Experience '95" — a two-week day camp to take place at Oakland Community College Auburn Hills Campus from July 7 through 21.

Students receive 10 full days of instruction in music theory, jazz, concert band, orchestra, master classes, and chamber music coachings. The camp concludes with two student performances — one featuring chamber ensembles and the other a program of orchestral, band and jazz music.

Faculty members include members of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra and other local professional ensembles, as well as some of the area's most prominent music educators.

Full and partial scholarships are available to students with financial need.

The deadline for applications is March 25. For more information, call the Lyric Chamber Ensemble at (810) 357-1111.

Church Notes

NEW LIFE LUTHERAN CHURCH, a forming congregation of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America, worships at 10 a.m. in the fellowship hall of the Masonic Temple, 730 Penniman, on the park in downtown Plymouth. Interested persons are encouraged to stop in.

"The Cost of Discipleship," Dietrich Bonhoeffer's classic work about the Sermon on the Mount, is the Lenten focus on Wednesdays at 7:30 p.m. The meetings will be held in the homes of various members. Bonhoeffer was a Lutheran pastor, teacher and theologian hanged 50 years ago for his role in trying to kill Adolf Hitler.

For more information about Sunday services or the mission, contact Pastor-Developer Ken Roberts at (313) 420-1023 or (810) 442-7243.

HOPE LUTHERAN CHURCH, 39200 West Twelve Mile Road in Farmington Hills, is participating in a 50-Day Spiritual Adventure entitled "Facing Down Our Fears: Finding Courage When Anxiety Grips the Heart," which concludes on Easter Sunday, April 16.

Pastor Tim McDermott encourages anyone who would like to become a part of this exciting adventure to visit or call (810) 553-7170 for more information.

ST. JAMES CATHOLIC CHURCH, 46325 Ten Mile Road in Novi, will present Jonas Nordwall in a classical organ concert on Monday, March 27, at 7:30 p.m.

Tickets for this event are sold after all Masses and at the office during business hours. Prices are $5 and $3 for Seniors.

For more information, call 347-7778.

FIRST UNITED METHODIST CHURCH, 777 W. Eight Mile Road in Northville, is having an "Envisioning the Future" Retreat on Sunday, March 26, from 3 to 7 p.m. at Nardin Park Church for church leaders, members and friends to share ideas, hopes, needs and concerns about the congregation.

For more information, call 349-1144.

CHURCH OF THE HOLY FAMILY, 24505 Meadowbrook Road in Novi, will feature the Junior Chorists on Sunday, March 26, at 7 p.m. The group will present its Old Testament Musical "Let's Go With Mo," the story about Moses and the Israelites in Egypt encountering the Pharaoh and God's plagues.

The group is in need of children's biblical costumes. Any costumes or parts of costumes which can be donated or labeled to be returned would be appreciated.

The next Accent on Women gathering is scheduled for Thursday, March 23, at 7:30 p.m. Carol Hardy will be the guest speaker. Hardy has designed her presentation to motivate positive change in nutrition based on scientific findings and biblical principles. She will include a couple of fast nutritious dishes. All women of the parish are invited.

Speakers set for the next season of Northville Town Hall Series

The Northville Town Hall Series has announced the line up for its 35th season.

Opening the season will be Hope Mihalap on Oct. 9 at 11 a.m. Mihalap, a descendant of the first Greek family to settle in Virginia, has been compared to Lily Tomlin with her true-to-life impressions that come directly from first-hand experience. She has her own Greek and Southern heritage to draw on, but she also spent a considerable amount of time taking in the accents and mannerisms of the North.

Mihalap graduated with honors from Vassar College where she was elected president of the student body, and spent four years as private secretary to Sir Rudolf Bing, general manager of the New York Metropolitan Opera. She married a Russian language professor, and raised three children and a dog.

Mihalap has been a newspaper columnist, an arts commentator on public radio and the voice behind many radio commercials. She speaks French and Italian, and sings in Greek for her church choir.

Throughout a long, award-winning speaking career, Mihalap has been funny without causing offense.

"I figure," said Mihalap, "the only person it's safe to make fun of is yourself. If I decide to sue myself for libel, I'm sure there are enough lawyers out there chomping at the bit."

On Nov. 13, Phil Marcus Esser will be the guest speaker. For the last five years, Esser has located his base of operations on Old Mission Peninsula in the middle of Traverse Bay where he designed entertainment for the Grand Traverse Resort.

He created and produced shows for the Traverse City Opera House and produced, developed and designed special entertainment for corporate, municipal and national organizational events. Now he has come back to the Detroit metro area to refresh his spirit.

Esser has been a singing performer all his life. Twenty-one years ago he began a second career as director with the musical Jacques Brel is Alive and Well and Living in Paris.

The success of this production done "cabaret style" in Detroit's first dinner theater was followed by Personals, In Celebration of Kurt Weill and Lotte Lenya, Cole Porter at the Book Cadillac and over 50 other original concepts.

Described as "the perfect romantic baritone," Esser has been acclaimed both for how he sings and for what he chooses to sing. He received the Eighth Annual Michiganian of the Year Award for his work and its contribution to Detroit. He is recognized for his support of human and civil rights. He loves Detroit because, he says, "All my heroes live here!"

Miss America 1988, Kaye Lani Rae Rafko, will be the speaker on March 11. The former Miss America holds the distinction of being the first Registered Nurse to be crowned.

Her education began in Monroe at St. Mary Academy, and she is now pursuing a master's degree at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor. She has been recognized as one of the Ten Outstanding Young Americans of 1993 by the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Rafko holds memberships in the American Nurses Association, the Oncology Nursing Society and is licensed both in Michigan and Ohio. She belongs to the American Federation of TV and Radio Artists.

She uses her visibility as a former Miss America to focus national attention on critical health care issues including AIDS, pulmonary disease and cancer. She has traveled to 48 states and six countries. She addressed a Congressional subcommittee in Washington, DC in 1987 about nursing concerns.

Rafko has prepared public service announcements, participated in fund-raisers and made presentations to many groups from junior high school to medical associations. She married in 1989 and is the mother of a 3-year-old son.

Dr. Vladimir Sakharov will close the series on April 15. Once described by the CIA as "the most knowledgeable defector on record," Dr. Sakharov gained a reputation for his unique and totally unconventional foresight into what was to happen in Russia.

Born into the ranks of the Moscow international elite, he became a leading diplomat and intelligence officer representing the Soviets. Later, he became a special operative courting Egyptian counter-intelligence agents and gained access to Anwar Sadat. During this time he worked as a "double agent" passing information to the United States.

He despises being called a defector, because he came out when "glasnost" and "perestroika" did not exist. Disillusioned with the Brezhnev regime, he risked his life to become an American.

Since coming to the West, he has accomplished a great deal, beginning with his international best seller, High Treason. He received his Ph.D. in International Relations and Law from USC, and worked at Stanford University, Universidad de Mexico, the United States Air Force, and served as an advisor to the FBI.

He has been featured on the 60 Minutes segment - "Three NBC White Papers," worked as a commentator with CNN during the Persian Gulf War, and has appeared on NBC, CBS and BBS broadcasts.

Tickets for the 1995-96 season are on sale now. The Gold Patron is $100, Silver Patron is $50, Contributing and Sustaining Members are $25.

Season Lecture and Luncheon is $90, lecture only is $40 and individual luncheon is $15.

Local residents participate in Ann Arbor Flower and Garden Show this weekend

by CAROL WORKENS
Staff Writer

Several area residents will be participants in the 1995 Ann Arbor Flower and Garden Show which runs Thursday through Sunday, March 23 through 26, at the Washtenaw Farm Council Grounds.

Mrs. Kay Pugsley's floral arrangement is entered in the Standard Flower Show in the petite class in the Frog Prince category. The "show-within-a-show" is sponsored by the Federated Garden Club of Michigan. The Novi resident's creative design which can be no more than 8 inches tall is entitled "Kiss Me." The part fresh and part dried arrangement in greens and whites is viewed through a cutout crown. Pugsley has participated in every one of the Ann Arbor Flower and Garden Shows. She is also the clerks chairperson for the show responsible for getting 30 clerks to assist in the judging.

Nancy Goulette, state president of the Federated Garden Club of Michigan, is also a Novi resident. Her entry "Steam Heat" is in the class of exhibition tables. The centerpiece is made of Hungarian peppers and red peppers and is required to have some plant material in it.

Mrs. Joan Doty of Northville has submitted two entries, one in the Gone Fishing class and the other in the Shipwrecked class. Doty has been a Federated Garden Club member for 18 years. "Gone Fishing" is staged on three dock pilings and measures 5 inches tall. The fishing scene arrangement will use forced pussy willows, Queen Anns lace, (shipped from California), Fuji mums, and iatrus. The "Shipwrecked" design uses fish-shaped plates, glasses, napkins, a 3 ft. piece of driftwood and is set in a niche 4 feet by 4 feet by 30 inches.

The color of the scene is royal blue for plant material with orange gladiolus inside a two foot bottle with water.

"First year I won a blue ribbon which got me hooked," Doty said. Doty has entered the show for five of its six years. Last year she won the creativity award. This year will also help out as a clerk and is going to school to learn how to be a judge.

The Federated Garden Club of Michigan has 7,200 members and 204 clubs in Michigan. The are a member of the National Council of State Garden Clubs.

This year's show entitled "A Little Water Music" will have more than 400 displays ranging from landscaped gardens and floral creations to room settings, and individual horticulture specimens will fill more than 43,000 square feet of exhibit area.

The show is open Thursday through Saturday from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Sunday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. March 23 and 24 have been designated Senior Days when senior citizens (60 years of age and over) will receive a $1 discount off the gate admission price of $8 per person.

Advance adult tickets are $7, children ages 4 to 12 are $3, and children three and under are free. Advance tickets are available at all Michigan Kroger stores, Matthaei Botanical Gardens, and other area businesses.

The Washtenaw Farm Council Grounds is located at 5055 Ann Arbor-Sahne Road in Ann Arbor. Parking at the show is $2 per car.

Visitors are encouraged to use shuttle buses originating from the Briarwood Mall south east entrance accessed from I-94's State Street exit No. 177. Round-trip transportation on the shuttle is $1 per person.

Weddings

Susan and James Kochanski

Susan Lynne Chritz and James Walter Kochanski were married Dec. 31, 1994 at Assumption of Blessed Virgin Mary Catholic Church in Midland. Rev. Henry DuRussel officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her brothers, Tom, Tim, Ted and Tony Chritz. A reception for 300 guests was held at The Skyroom at the Tri-Cities Airport in Freeland, Mich.

The bride is the daughter of Mary Anne Chritz and the late Leonard Walter Chritz of Midland. She received her bachelor's degree from Michigan State University and is now a market specialist for Dow Environmental Inc.

She was attended by her matron-of-honor, Mary Anne Chritz, the mother of the bride; bridesmaids Sandy Chritz, Sheri Chritz, Karen Chritz, Angie Chritz, Lorin Kochanski, Sherry Mitchell, Jodi King, and Luci Phillips. Her flower children were Tiffany Chritz, Tracey Chritz and Alan Chritz; the ring bearer was Brittany Korenicki; the cross bearer was Robby Chritz; and the Bible bearer was Erin Chritz. Also included: prelude pianist, Richard Chritz; hostesses, Lucy Smith and Karen Miciak; and readers, Deborah Rice and Jill Miciak.

The bridal gown was a portrait neckline, floor length off-white silk, embellished with pearls and bugle beads. She wore a cathedral length veil with a crown of pearls and bugle beads. The bridal bouquet was a cascade design of gardenias, roses and stephenotis.

The bridegroom is the son of Janice and Richard Walter Kochanski of Linden, N.J. He received his bachelor's degree from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in Troy, N.Y. and is the president of Mica-Tek Advanced Colorants.

Attending the groom were best man, Richard Walter Kochanski, father-of-the-groom; groomsmen, Rod McClain, of Dalton, Georgia; Steven Korenicki of Medford, N.J.; ushers, Tom, Tim, Ted and Tony Chritz of Midland.

The couple reside in Northville. A European summer honeymoon is planned

Stacy and John Callahan

Stacy Ann Stuart of Ypsilanti and John Martin Callahan of Northville were married Nov. 12, 1994, at Our Lady of Victory in Northville. Fr. Pourcari performed the double-ring ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, John Stuart. Following the ceremony, a reception was held for 225 guests at Plymouth Manor.

The bride is the daughter of John and Sally Stuart of Farmington; bridesmaids, Pamela Fons of Ann Arbor, and Jackie Stuart of Berkley, sister-in-law to the bride.

Attending the bride were matron-of-honor, Laura Sorel of Farmington; bridesmaids, Pamela Fons of Ann Arbor, and Jackie Stuart of Berkley, sister-in-law to the bride.

Junior bridesmaids were Katie Stuart of Omak, Wash., and niece of the bride, and Allison Marlat of Ann Arbor.

The flower girl was Cassie Stuart of Omak, Wash., also a niece of the bride. Her gown was of white shantung silk with a cathedral length train. The bodice was made of clear sequin and pearls, framed by a sweetheart neckline.

She wore a fingertip veil with a crown of pearls and sequin, and carried a cascading bouquet made of white roses with hints of pale pink roses.

The bridegroom is the son of James and Sally Callahan of Saginaw. He is an attorney at the Gordon, Cutler and Hoffman law firm in Southfield.

Attending the groom were his brothers, best man Patrick Callahan of Saginaw; groomsmen Jim Callahan Jr. of Saginaw; and Matthew Callahan of Royal Oak.

Ushers included brothers of the bride, Craig Stuart of Berkley, and Adam Stuart of Northville; ring bearer and second cousin of the bride, Bradley Nedrow of Walled Lake.

The couple took a wedding trip to Disney World and Jamaica. They now reside in Ypsilanti, Mich.

Bubbles the Clown appears in Northville's July 4th parades.

Krieger selected Clown of the Year

By CAROL WORKENS
Staff Writer

Linda Krieger never takes the demanding duties of a registered nurse lightly, but as Bubbles the Clown, having fun is the name of the game.

Bubbles has been voted Clown of the Year by The Roamers, Clowns of America International (COAI) local Alley No. 76. The Roamers select their top performer on the basis of appearance, costume, personality and contributions.

Many know Bubbles as Linda Krieger, a 1986 graduate of Northville High School. She received her bachelor of science degree in nursing from Madonna University and is employed as an intensive care nurse at Providence Hospital. She is serious enough about her career that she is pursuing a master's degree in nursing and business administration.

When Krieger takes off her nurse's hat and dons the flaming red wig and matching hand-made costume that have become her trademark, she must adhere to a different set of rules. The strict COAI rules require that clowns be in character at all times while in costume. They are not allowed to smoke, drink or use profanity. They can't remove their costumes or makeup while still in public.

Krieger chose the name Bubbles because of the prop she uses - a gun that shoots soap bubbles.

You can tell COAI clowns from "lipstick" clowns not only by the way they act, but because they use professional clown makeup. "Lipstick" clowns, as the names implies, use lipstick.

"They'll take their wig off and fan themselves or light up a cigarette as soon as they get in their car," said fellow clown Barbara Louie.

Alley No. 76 was formed in 1976 and consists of amateur clowns of all ages. Bubbles and other members of The Roamers participate in Northville's July 4th Parade.

On Campus

SHARON B. SCHWARZE of Northville graduated from Grand Valley State University at the conclusion of the fall 1994 semester.

KEVIN M. FLYNN of Northville was among the students named on the fall semester academic honors list at Ferris State University. To be eligible, a student must have compiled a 3.5 grade point average in at least 12 semester hours of work.

SUSAN L. KULWICKI of Northville received her bachelor's degree in general studies from Siena Heights College, Southfield Center.

AMERMAN ELEMENTARY

The students at Amerman are busy with Express Yourself month during March. The parade on March 1 was a huge success and special reading and artistic activities continue for the remainder of the month. Pizza Cutter is sponsoring the reading program and will award a personal pizza to students who complete a daily reading assignment during March.

The Art Appreciation co-chairs, Irene Fleming and Gail Thomas, announced the conclusion of another successful PTA Art Appreciation program at Amerman. This year's program was provided by 18 wonderful volunteers working in 22 classrooms. These volunteers juggled work and home responsibilities to bring the students this enriching program which acquaints them with the principles of art and encourages informed appreciation of works by the world's great artists. This year's volunteers were Chris Doyle, Ruth Vernacchia, Deb Breitenbeck, Mary Craig, Diane DeVincent, Tammy Lee, Judy Gress, Linda Koons, Jen Johnson, Sally LePla-Perry, Diana Thorpe, Irene Fleming, Jeff Moore, Sue Egan, Alice Polumbo, Linda Jo Hare, Pam Prairie, and Gail Thomas. On display at the March PTA meeting were several new materials added to the program this year, including a reproduction of a petroglyph, a small Haida totem, many new prints, a refurbished "painter's box" with supplies, and a new book, Women Artists, An Illustrated History written by Nancy G. Heller.

Amerman will be sponsoring a Red Cross Blood Drive on April 7 beginning at 2 p.m., during parent-teacher conferences. To schedule an appointment to donate contact Linda Dick. Help is also needed with baby sitting.

Amerman is very proud of its spelling bee and McDonald's "When I Grow Up" speech contest winners. The PTA awarded each winner a gift certificate from Border's Books. The winning students are: Spelling Bee - third grade, Kathryn Hicks; fourth grade, Colin Myers; fifth grade, Derek Comai; McDonald's Speech Contest - fourth grade First Place, Justin Craig; fifth grade First Place, Rebecca Frmenko.

The next Junior Enrichment Series presentation will be on April 10 when the Madam Cadillac Dance Theater will perform for the students a dance program centered around the first settlers of Detroit. Parents are welcome to attend.

The Nominating Committee is in the process of finding candidates to fill the PTA board seats next year. The election of officers will take place at the April PTA meeting. Contact Nan Piekarski with the name of any person interested in serving on the PTA Board.

The last roller skating party of the year will take place on April 10. This has been a very popular activity with Amerman families and will be continued next year. All monies generated by this last party will be donated to the Amerman PTA so come out and skate!

Amerman said a fond farewell to fifth grade ALPS teacher, Mrs. Laura Schmelter, who is moving to Hong Kong with her family. The next PTA meeting will be Tuesday, April 4 at 7 p.m.

Demi Moore has moved to the top of the list of top actresses with roles in such solid hits as 'Ghost' and "Disclosure."

Boundless ambition, tireless work ethic

Demi Moore's determined to have it all — family, career and maybe even be a mogul

Demi Moore has been known to bicycle 28 miles in the predawn, helmeted and alone, in order to get her workout in before a day's filming.

Her ambition appears boundless ("I want to be a mogul," she commented a year ago), her work ethic is said to be epic and her femininity exudes from a build that is strikingly female yet solidly muscular.

In comparison, although Moore has had huge hits, like the $500 million worldwide-grossing romance, "Ghost," she mostly has attracted audiences in traditionally "female" roles — women who are flirty with ("Indecent Proposal"), women just tough enough to gather themselves for a tussle on male turf ("A Few Good Men"), women struggling to survive loss without forsaking romantic idealism ("Ghost") and women nurturing hidden dreams ("The Butcher's Wife").

Not any more. In "Disclosure," based on Michael Crichton's best-selling novel about a sexual harassment suit at a high-tech firm, Moore is formidable as Meredith Jones, the seductress who threatens all men.

Says Director Barry Levinson: "We tried to give Meredith a good sense of humor, to make her charming, warm, affable. In the final analysis, she's going to be a villain no matter how you cut it, but we tried to give her as much intelligence and other appealing qualities as possible."

Or ask Michael Douglas, who plays Tom Sanders, the executive whose corporate future is on the fast track until Meredith arrives at the firm's Seattle headquarters — as his new boss. "Their torrid affair of more than 10 years ago has not been forgotten by either one."

"On the one side, harassment is a real issue," says Douglas. "On the other side, it can be an abuse issue that is not about sex. It's about power...about control."

After a particularly heated scene during a mediation hearing in which Meredith defends herself with the admission, "I'm a sexually aggressive woman," only to meet with scowls of hostility, Moore retreats to her trailer. Minutes later, Moore is petting her white Japanese Akita.

She ruminates, "In our times of being so politically correct, you don't see many women wanting to jump into a role of a woman like this, who's really pushing buttons of everything we fear we will be stereotyped as."

"Some of the things Meredith says are truisms in our society, about how women are viewed if they are sexually aggressive or assertive."

"All people have a vulnerable side," she continues. "And making sure that was revealed at some point was the most important part of making her multi-dimensional. As long as we understand that her agenda is justified in her mind, and there is a reason behind what drives her, we can get into the skin of someone."

Is Moore worried that the public will confuse her with Meredith hereafter? "The nature of this character is really the antithesis of me," she says. "Meredith views those around her as a means of getting where she is going. That is not what I enjoy at all. I would prefer to make someone feel overly comfortable if I sense they're uncomfortable, I'm certainly ambitious and driven, but mine is in a familial as well as a professional way."

Moore, 31, is married to actor Bruce Willis, with whom she has three children: Rumer, 5; Scout, 2 and one-half; and Taiullah Belle, born last year.

In "Disclosure," however, she plays a single woman who faces off against Michael Douglas.

"Michael is extremely professional and really, really good at what he does," she says. "It's great to watch him because he's just so easy about it. Maybe he's a little more secure than I am."

Meredith is a stretch for her, after all, and, "I really want to make sure I have it and I've found it. It's not like I can go, 'Oh, yeah, that's like this time or that time.' This is not like any time I can relate to."

Moore keeps mainly to herself on the "Disclosure" set, and her privacy is respected.

"She has a tremendous work ethic; she's really a joy to work with in terms of her discipline."

said Douglas of her co-star. "She reminds me of Jane Fonda when I did 'The China Syndrome.' She has a great talent for getting a lot accomplished in a day."

While much press attention has focused on Moore's colorful past, these days she devotes herself to more productive pursuits.

Her company, Moving Pictures, is planning to start filming "The Gaslight Addition" this fall. At home, Moore says, "It's just straight-ahead family life, the whole deal. Dogs, kids, gardens, horses. I love hiking and biking. All my time is spent in our house in the mountains where we have the opportunity to really be in nature — combining that with enough travel to not feel like we're stuck in any one place.

Life seems pretty much in order for Demi Moore right now. Then again, she works hard to make it so.

REAL ESTATE

Home sellers should be aware of Fair Housing Act

By James M. Woodard
Copley News Service

Words and phrases once commonly used in real estate advertising can be legal no-nos in today's market. But there is still plenty of room for creating copy with a strong selling punch.

Words that tend to be discriminatory are the most dangerous. They could be in violation of the Fair Housing Act. If used, it could be a liability risk for the advertiser — broker and/or property owner. Also, words and phrases that might defame a competitor should be avoided.

In many cases, words and phrases fall into a "gray area" of legality or proper ethics. To clarify what is acceptable, a series of

HOME DESIGNS

You can go nuts with the Pecan's styling

By James McAlexander
Copley News Service

A half-round Palladian style window caps a wide bank of rectangular windows, adding curb appeal to the Pecan, a small ranch style home with a brick and wood exterior. Economical to build and easy to maintain, this plan is designed to suit the needs of young families, empty nesters or singles. The single level, open floor plan also makes it adaptable for wheelchair accessibility.

The living room is more spacious than one expects to find in a small home, and with so much glass, it's filled with light. A vaulted ceiling expands the sense of volume. A fireplace with a wide tile hearth adds coziness and warmth in winter.

Kitchen and nook are bright as well. Plants love the light in the garden window in the front of the sink, while family members and guests enjoy lingering over coffee in the sunny nook. A skylight provides such a high degree of natural illumination that artificial light will rarely be needed during daylight hours. Sliders in the nook open onto the patio.

Utilities are close at hand, tucked behind folding doors. Overhead cabinets provide storage for various supplies. Counter space is ample and the walk-in pantry is surprisingly large. The dishwasher is built into a counter that could serve as an eating bar. Range and oven are also built in.

Kitchen and nook are accessible from a two-car garage, handy for carrying groceries. A wide window over the built-in workbench provides natural light. Basement stairs are also in the garage. This feature can be omitted if no basement is desired.

Storage space lines the hallway that leads to the secondary bedrooms, and the master suite has a large walk-in closet. Luxury features in the modest master suite include: linen storage, twin lavatories, and an oversized shower that could be outfitted with two shower heads.

Closets and bathrooms buffer the sound between adults and children's bedrooms.

For a study plan of the Pecan (333-141), send $9 to Landmark Designs, c/o HomeTown Newspapers, 323 E. Grand River Ave., Howell, MI 48843. (Be sure to specify plan name and number when ordering.)

Local craftsman makes furniture to fit

By Fred Menko
STAFF WRITER

Some people want custom-made furniture because they have an odd-shaped room, or need a piece and can't get one to fit a space.

Others want the status of a unique, hand-made piece of furniture made out of an expensive material.

And some want a particular antique, but can't find it anywhere.

So, they go to a community of craftsmen and hobbyists who offer their skills to fashion home-made, customized furniture.

Tom Michniewicz, owner of Furniture By Thomas, 1278 E.

M-36 in Pinckney, runs a retail furniture store, but customer's are almost guaranteed the item they want is available in his store.

"If I can't get something somewhere else than I'll make it," Michniewicz said. "If you want a table bigger or smaller than is available, then I'll make it."

Michniewicz started his business after he became a victim of corporate downsizing.

"There just were no jobs. So I had to create my own job which is exactly what I did," Michniewicz said.

While walking through a furniture store one day, Michniewicz realized he was standing in the middle of a room of things he could make.

"I started making furniture and people liked it," Michniewicz said. "There isn't anyone who has what I have. I think I have a good location, a unique product and I'll do just about anything, or at least try it."

Since 1987, Michniewicz figures he's made over 1,000 pieces of furniture. His pieces have ranged from everyday furniture to unique items.

"I do match existing furniture, where people have bought a matching bedroom set and they can't get a piece to match I'll match it," Michniewicz said. "I can make most anything. I have made most anything."

The oddest piece Michniewicz has ever made was a goat feeder, designed to allow a goat to eat from it without knocking it over. But, most of his work is of the everyday variety.

"Actually, my business consists mostly of everyday run-of-the-mill, beat 'em up furniture."

Easy lawn care

By C.Z. Guest
Copley News Service

GARDENING

It's springtime and that means it's time to start the seasonal maintenance that lawns need to thrive. Feeding, watering, pruning, aeration, disease control and pest control are easy and help a beautiful lawn grow throughout the spring, summer and fall.

The most important time of the year to concentrate on lawn care is from the end of March through May. It's during this period that feeding, pest control and maintenance are critical to preserving a healthy lawn through the later seasons.

My advice for gardening fans: Feeding and applying a top dressing to lawn areas are essential in providing nourishment. Grass drains nutrient chemicals from soil, and unless the nutrients are replenished, the grass will starve. Fertilizers should be evenly spread and the type of chemical mix used depends on the season.

For spring and summer feeding, a readily soluble, quick-acting fertilizer should be applied. Use a compound fertilizer with equal percentages of nitrogen, phosphate and potash.

For late-summer and early-fall feeding, use a slower-acting fertilizer with a low proportion of nitrogen, fairly high phosphate and medium potash. This mixture permits strong root growth during autumn, because at that time (going into winter), slow growth is the key. Look for the numbers on the fertilizer bag.

A watering schedule depends on the climate. Warmer climates require lawns to be watered more frequently. The ideal watering system simulates rainfall and delivers a light spray at the rate of 1/2 inch per hour. Sprinklers usually provide the best means of an even and consistent spray.

It is equally important to clean and lubricate sprinklers to ensure consistency and dependability in the watering system.

A quick spray of a lubricating oil is usually all that is needed to keep sprinklers in proper working shape.

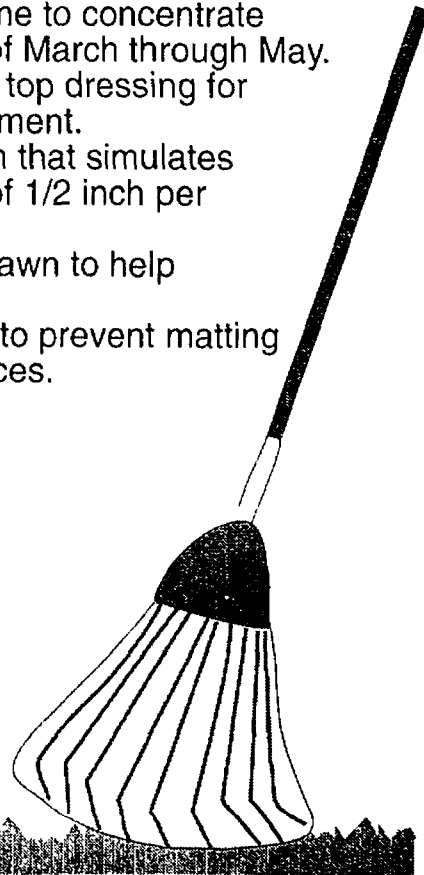

A yellow lawn is usually the result of neglect. Grass roots need oxygen and often die if the soil becomes too hard or if a thatch of dead grass forms under the grassy surface. The mat of dead grass can also

Lawn care

It's time to start the seasonal maintenance on your lawn.

- Most important time to concentrate on lawns is end of March through May.
- Feed and apply a top dressing for essential nourishment.
- A watering system that simulates rainfall at a rate of 1/2 inch per hour is best.
- Slit and rake the lawn to help aerate the grass.
- Mowing regularly to prevent matting under lawn surfaces.

U.S. Savings Bonds will help them do one thing with their retirement: Enjoy it.

U.S. Savings Bonds are helping millions of Americans save for their retirement — easily and safely.

When you buy U.S. Savings Bonds, you'll know your money will be there when you retire. Your investment is backed by the full faith and credit of the United States.

U.S. Savings Bonds are an easy, affordable way to save. Buy them for just a few dollars each payday through your employer's U.S. Savings Bonds Payroll Savings Plan or for as little as $25 each at your bank. What could be easier?

There are other advantages, too. The interest earned is exempt from state and local income taxes, and it can be federally tax-deferred. Bonds earn a guaranteed return, and they're eligible to earn competitive, market-based interest, compounded semiannually, when held five years or more. And you can redeem them anytime after six months from the issue date.

Whatever your plans for retirement, U.S. Savings Bonds can help you enjoy them. For more information, ask your employer or bank, or write: U.S. Savings Bonds Division, Department of the Treasury, Box 933 N, Washington, DC 20226.

Dimitri's is a hit with Coney set

By RICK BYRNE

Bill Bonds once said he left New York to return to Detroit because he couldn't get a good coney island in the Big Apple.

If the erstwhile news anchor ever comes to Milford, though, he's likely to stay because the town now boasts a fine coney shop of its own.

Located at 620 Highland Road in the Kroger shopping center, Dimitri's Coney Island offers up a complete menu of coney island hot dogs, chili, gyro sandwiches, chicken breast dishes and Greek salads. Breakfast is also served anytime you want it, with specials before 11 a.m. Mondays through Fridays.

Jim Themelis, a 10-year Milford resident, knew a coney island restaurant was lacking in the downtown area. Drawing on his family's background, he opened Dimitri's last May.

"We have another restaurant in our family," he said. "My sister and brother-in-law have an operation in Canton and have been there for nine years. I've been in the bakery business with my family most of my life, so I'm pretty familiar with the restaurant business."

He takes great pride in some of the homemade items on the menu, which come from family recipes.

"We make our own Greek salad dressing, make our own rice pudding," he said. "All the stuff, even the tuna salad, everything we can make, we make it here."

The cooks, Vasso, Danny and Mike, make their own special lemon rice soup daily. And the Greek salad dressing will even become available in bottles for customers who can't get to Dimitri's as often as they'd like.

Themelis is also working on adding souvlaki to the menu.

"We're trying some tests on them right now," he said. "We won't add them until we get them so we can serve them up right.

"We've also gotten good response on our chicken breast salad. We clean our own chicken breast, marinate it in our special sauce, and grill and serve it on a Greek salad. It's a popular dish with the regulars, of which there are many. One couple comes in almost daily. Sometimes twice a day.

The restaurant can seat 87 people, and most days at lunch, it's at capacity. There's counter service for those that want it, or you can eat at a booth and gaze at photographic prints on the walls depicting Corfu, Thrace and Delphi.

The carryout service, which includes the whole menu, remains busy, Themelis said, especially in the summer when people want to eat lunch outside.

"We've been getting a lot of construction people in the morning, and lots of families with children which I like to see," Themelis said. "The families come in the evenings and late afternoons."

They're cared for by a concerned staff, and served by cooks who've got 18, 10 and 10 years' experience. Feedback from the customers has been positive.

"The people here in Milford have been fantastic," Themelis said. "They express themselves. They tell me what they like, and what they don't like - and that's nice."

Helping his cause has been the loyalty of his staff. Though small restaurants often suffer from high turnover, Themelis maintains practically the same staff he started with 10 months ago.

"It is like family," he said. "We're not related, but we all feel very close."

Dimitri's Coney Island is open 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Mondays through Saturdays, and Sundays from 7 a.m. to 3 p.m. Call 684-2410 for more information.

Cleaner launches delivery service

Brookdale Cleaners in South Lyon has announced a new service for customers in South Lyon.

The cleaners will offer pick up and delivery service, at your office, for all of your cleaning needs. For many people, this eliminates one of those errands that you might try to squeeze in on your lunch hour.

Brookdale Cleaners will provide you with a laundry bag and a tag customized for you. Put your family's cleaning in the bag and place it in the designated spot at your office on the day of service.

Typically, they will come to an office twice a week on a Tuesday and Friday, picking up cleaning on Tuesday and returning it done on Friday.

Brookdale offers full service cleaning, including leather, drapes, formalwear, blankets and comforters, wedding dress cleaning and boxing for preservation. Call 486-4200 for further details.

How To Simplify Your Life. Simply.

YOUR CLOSET AT 8:00 A.M.

YOUR CLOSET AT NOON

Within seven days of calling for a free in-home consultation, you can have twice the space. And a whole new way to organize.

751 © 1994 California Closet Company. All Rights Reserved. Worldwide Network Of Independently Owned And Operated Franchises

1 How simple is it? First, you call us.

Just pick up the phone (or stop by our showroom) to arrange a free in-home design consultation and estimate.

2 We'll come down for the count.

Your California Closet designer will listen carefully to understand how you want your closet to work for you. Then the designer will measure your space and take count of all you need to fit in it.

3 Sounds like a plan.

On the spot, we'll work with you to create a solution that meets your needs perfectly. You'll see exactly what your California Closet will look like, and where your belongings will go.

4 The excitement is building.

It'll only take us about four hours to install the average closet. We're so fast because we prepare the materials ahead of time in our own shop.

5 A clean getaway.

When we're done installing your closet, we'll vacuum our work area and leave your new California Closet spic-and-span. Now, wasn't that simple?

Necessity... is the mother of invention

—Plato's "Republic"

If necessity is, as Plato wrote, the mother of invention, then just call Michael Horowitz and Steven Freidman midwives extraordinaire.

Why? Because as founders of The Selective Group, the two men seem to have a knack of inventing new ways to deal with old problems.

In fact, in little more than 11 years, Horowitz and Freidman have helped redefine the way in which the home building industry not only responds to the market, but also responds to its customers.

For example, when they started their company in 1983, the two did the unthinkable — they bought land for development in the midst of a real estate bust; a move that changed the rules of the marketplace.

Likewise, in 1994, the company bucked tradition and changed the rules of customer service by opening its one-of-a-kind "New Home Center."

In both instances, The Selective Group acted in response to the pressures of change; change that necessitated new thinking.

But the company's new thinking doesn't begin with 1983 and end with 1994: Horowitz makes it clear that the bookends of action merely bracket a constant philosophy.

"Our constant struggle has been to accommodate needs of the customer," he said. "And addressing those needs has necessitated the changes we've incorporated."

Before the changes came, though, Horowitz and his partner took the gamble of a lifetime when, in 1983, they did the unexpected.

"Most people thought we were nuts," Horowitz said. "There was little (real estate) activity to speak of at the time, but we saw things differently."

The result was the partner's purchase of lots from banks and savings and loans out to minimize their losses in a bust market.

"What emerged after that downturn, of course, was a huge void in the housing market," Horowitz said, "with us positioned to take advantage of the situation."

And take advantage they did: By taking a slice of the home building market that appealed to buyers wanting something more than a "production" home, but something less than a completely customized house, the men settled on a new approach: Personalization.

That approach grew, in part, from the differing backgrounds the partners brought to their relationship — Horowitz had specialized in commercial land development; Freidman was a home builder.

Where Freidman improved upon his construction experience and maintained high standards on the job site, Horowitz said, "I brought a slightly different approach to dealing with the business side."

That approach, Horowitz said, changed the way in which the new company bought land, worked with local governments and financial institutions and operated their own office.

"We brought in new marketing techniques, computers and financial controls; ideas that weren't being used in the home building industry.

"The fact is that we were somewhat unique back then," Horowitz said, "but since then many companies have begun to emulate our approach."

And the approach can best be seen in how the firm deals with its customers.

"We see ourselves as semi-custom builders," said Selective Group President Scott Myers, "and what we do is let people personalize their own homes.

"Instead of offering production line homes, then — where every house is identical — we can offer choices.

"And we do this by letting the buyer have complete input on choosing treatments and other aspects of the home," Myers said, "while we maintain the overall quality and price."

"The creation of the personalized touch at The Selective Group, was also prompted by realities of the marketplace," Horowitz said.

"We were trying to accommodate the desires of our customers,"

Builder of The Month

Michael Horowitz, Steve Freidman & Scott Myers

he said, "but the process was very unsettling — for the buyer, for the salesman and for the builder — because it was so difficult to integrate all the steps.

"Everyone was being frustrated."

That frustration, however, not only led to the "personalization" approach to home building, but also to the creation last year of the company's "New Home Center" in Southfield.

"The New Home Center isn't just a place," Horowitz said. "It's a philosophy.

"It's a place where everything we believe in comes together: Where we integrate our land development, our home building techniques, our sales and purchasing systems, our architectural support and our customer service.

"And the result of this philosophy is value and a better house for our customer."

To the casual observer, Selective's "New Home Center" looks like a showroom of home furnishings: One room features brick and roofing applications that can be compared under natural outside lighting; another sports a wall of ceramic tile colors and wood molding options; two others demonstrate the latest in kitchen and bath technology.

But the overall impression is one of a home suffering from multiple personalities: look in one direction and see a built-in microwave and oven combination; turn around and watch a down-draft vent pop up next to an island stove. Enter another room and see one door outfitted with traditional moldings, while another door sports French windows.

Taken as a whole, the complex is a showcase of options that a Selective home buyer can choose from to "personalize" their new house.

Taken as a whole, the complex is a showcase of options that a Selective home buyer can choose from to "personalize" their new house.

Which is the whole point.

"We're here to help our customers make their new home their home," said Ellen Whitefield, vice president of Selective's center. "And that means we try to show them options that can make their home special."

In addition, though, the center provides two other integral links with the overall Selective process: By centralizing option selection under one roof, all construction orders can be placed at the same time. And, with the opening last month of the firm's own mortgage department, Selective can provide the final piece of the puzzle as well: financing.

In the end, Myers sees all of these factors as helping make The Selective Group one of the most recognizable faces in the home building industry.

"We have a reputation for offering the best in community developments, for having the best quality control in our construction process and for offering all the right amenities to our customers.

"Which that means that today people can point to a development and say 'that's a Selective project' — and they'd be right."

Thin Bricks: Economical & Indistinguishable

The warmth, beauty, and durability of a traditional brick veneer exterior has been treasured by homeowners for hundreds of years. Many homes, however, have been built with alternative siding products such as wood, aluminum, vinyl, or synthetic stucco. Houses built in this manner do not have the footings, foundations, nor lintels required for full thickness brick. There is now a way, using Engineered Thin Brick Systems, to economically replace these products with genuine clay kiln fired thin brick. Since the thin brick is indistinguishable from its full-thickness cousin, many of the local brick buildings you have admired might well be thin brick.

A number of Engineered Thin Brick Systems are available with a wide selection of brick colors, textures, and finishes to compliment the design of any house. The selection ranges from contemporary smooth and glazed brick to traditional reclaimed looks. Special shapes of thin brick can be used to create sills, cornices, quoins, and other ornamental architectural details. These same lightweight brick units can also be used for interior accents and around fireplaces and woodstoves.

Another beneficial feature of most engineered thin brick systems is that they include an energy saving insulating backer panel for the brick. With "R" values of up to 10, these systems can add valuable insulation to poorly insulated older homes. As the insulating backer panels cover the entire home exterior rather than going between studs, there is a complete insulation wrap with no thermal short circuits.

One local manufacturer of Engineered Thin Brick Systems, Williams Panel Brick, Inc. of Redford, produces two systems, each of which has a patented clip system for mechanical attachment. Each system has been subjected to rigorous testing and carries building code approvals and a twenty year warranty. During its twenty-five years of operation, Williams has installed millions of square feet of thin brick product throughout the country for clients which include the University of Michigan, General Motors and Dayton Hudson. Seminars have successfully taught hundreds of homeowners to brick their own houses with the R-Brick® and Insulock® brands of thin brick systems.

These thin brick systems can be applied in combination with other siding products mentioned above plus lightweight stone veneer. While most commonly used for remodeling applications, thin brick systems are also very useful in new construction where the substantial weight of full thickness brick is a consideration. On chimneys, dormers, gables, and other areas where full thickness brick may be too heavy, the six pound per square foot Engineered Thin Brick System may well be the product of choice. The ability to match many thin bricks to identical full thickness bricks aids greatly in these applications.

Wood Restorations

For some homeowners, the thought of tearing out and replacing classic – but tired – wood cupboards, moldings and cabinets is a decision too difficult to face.

The fine craftsmanship of days gone by could never be mimicked; the exquisite wood could never be replaced.

Yet every memory of the past is there: worn patches from closing each drawer a million times; a dull finish from cooking a thousand meals.

Fortunately, homeowners no longer have to make such a painful decision between replacing or enduring: Instead, they can choose Jack Balderas.

Balderas is the owner of Kitchen Tune Up in Waterford, and is a cabinet restorer, not a replacer or a refacer.

And he specializes in – no, he limits his work to – restoring the finish of fine wood cabinetry.

Actually, Balderas is owner of the local franchise of a national chain of Kitchen Tune Ups: “We have 300 franchises in the United States and Canada, and have worked on more than 100,000 homes across the nation.”

And that work entails four basic steps, he said:

“We realign doors and draws, we fix all the squeaks and groans, we take the stress off the wood – and we take the stress off the homeowner.”

Balderas accomplishes this final stress reduction by refurbishing the finish of classic wood cabinets.

“We use special solvents to clean all the surfaces, working to blend in all the areas, and then we hand-rub an oil finish that refreshes and moisturizes the wood.”

The process, he said, can be quite impressive: “When years’ worth of cooking smoke is removed from a wood finish, the result can be quite startling.

“All of a sudden, the original finish shows through – surprising many homeowners who had forgotten what the wood used to look like.”

Another surprise, Balderas said, is the cost of restoration vs. refacing or replacing.

“What I do can cost around $800 or $900 – compared to $4,000 or $5,000 for refacing and four times that much for replacing cabinets.”

Of course, Balderas’ company isn’t for everyone: “I don’t work with painted surfaces at all.”

But “I do work with anything made of wood that has a natural finish – floors, beam ceilings, even furniture.”

Besides working in the residential area, Balderas has clients that range from corporate offices to churches and restaurants – anywhere that wood needs to be brought back to life.

Kitchen Tune Up is located at 995 N. Cass Lake Road in Waterford. The toll-free phone number is 1-800-821-5880.

To Replace or Not Replace Cabinets

To replace or not to replace, that is the question. With apologies to Shakespeare, this line may well be the classic chant by homeowners faced with sticking drawers and hingeless doors in their 50-year-old kitchen. But whereas replacement may pairing the cabinets and then replacing their fronts, doors and hardware.

"That's where we come in," he said.

According to Pink, co-owner (with his brother, Dave) of the Cabinet Clinic in Livonia, "the key to the final decision about whether to reface or replace is the condition of the cabinet boxes."

"The first thing we always do is take a close look at the old framework — if we don't have to rip things out, we don't have any damage done to the kitchen.

"The result is that we can minimize the

"Redoing a kitchen is the No. 1 remodeling job in terms of return on investment," Pink said. "A year later, the work can result in 110 percent return when a homeowner goes to sell his house."

While a layman might question the real value of refacing over replacing, Pink's support can be found in how companies like his do business.

"Our quality standards are higher than many cabinet makers in the industry," he said. "And our selection of styles is larger than almost all of them."

Both refacing firms do their own manufacturing of doors and cabinets, and as a result can custom fit their work to accommodate or enhance any existing layout.

"Because we manufacture everything, we can perfectly match seem like the obvious choice, what happens if the cabinet boxes are made of hardy stock and were part of the original construction — complete with tilting flour bins and pull out sandwich boards?

Then the alternative might well be to reface.

Not replace.

And if that's the case, then people like Dennis Pink and Jim O'Donnell are waiting to talk to you.

The two men are part of a larger industry that not only can reface existing cabinetry, but can also install additional cabinets to expand or alter the floorplan of almost any kitchen.

"The fact is that some homes have very sturdy cabinetry," said O'Donnell, manager of Cabinet Clad in Madison Heights. "So it really isn't necessary to go tearing out the entire kitchen.

"Often, all that's required is rework but maximize the effect," he said.

Not surprising, refacing cabinets can involve tremendous savings over replacement: According to the two men, a refacing job can cost less than a fourth of the cost of completely replacing a kitchen's cabinets.

Yet the value to the home can be equally as impressive.

all the pieces, deal with unusual sizes and give them the look they want."

The fact is, Pink said, "most people simply want to change the style of their kitchen; it's worn out or maybe they just want to brighten up the room or go to a wood treatment."

In addition, because refacing does not involve the demolition of existing cupboards and cabinets, the work isn't nearly as disruptive to a family's life.

"We can get in and out of a project much faster (than a complete remodeler)," O'Donnell said.

The final element both men bring to the worksite is identical to that brought by replacement firms: An appreciation and understanding of styles.

"We have literally hundreds of selections," Pink said, "in solid hardwoods or laminates.

"But the style of the '90s seems to be white – and a return to wood."

And, as O'Donnell said, that wood is "often a lighter color as well: clear oak, clear maple and bleached maple, for example."

For both men, there is a simple truth behind their business: Styles may change in years, but the life of a kitchen can be measured in decades – so if the foundation is good, then only the appearance needs to be altered.

Which makes refacing the answer to the ultimate question: To replace or not to replace...

Trends in Landscaping

If Punxatawney Phil was right on Groundhog Day, then Tammy Clayton had better get ready: Spring is just around the corner – and so is the time for homeowners to begin thinking of how their front and back yards look.

Which means that many of them will be calling Clayton Landscaping for advice and everything else that comes with it.

In 1995, that advice will follow a pattern set 30 years ago when Tammy's father, Gary, founded the company in Lyon Township. Since then, Clayton Landscaping has grown into a wholesale and retail outlet for everything from flowers to bushes and trees to rock and brick materials.

"We can buy almost anything our customers desire," Tammy Clayton said. "And we do everything except irrigation work."

"We do installations, design, plantings, take care of lawns and do maintenance on lawns and bushes."

"And during the winter we do snow plowing," she said.

But spring and summer still holds the greatest promise for the Claytons and for their customers.

For most customers, the range of involvement by the Claytons and similar landscapers will begin with the initial evaluation of a homeowner's need; whether the project involves a complete redesign or merely the fleshing out – or the repair – of a good idea.

"You have to remember," Clayton said, "that landscaping a home began when basements were more above ground.

"People came up with ideas like using bushes to hide the blocks – and it used to be the same five kinds of bushes by everybody..

"Now, though, all of that is gone, and usually the only thing needed to really hide anything is ground cover," she said.

"The rest is exterior decorating."

Not surprisingly, that decorating can take on the same intense research and selection process as redoing the interior of a house.

For landscapers like Clayton who offer complete design capabilities, the process begins with the customer himself.

"We first need to find out what the homeowner wants and what kind of budget he has to work with," she said.

"Then we do our own design work to begin creating a look that meets both the customer's needs as well as his desires."

According to Clayton, what sets the best landscaping firms apart from the rest is the amount of research they're willing to do before they "sell" anything.

"We do a lot of research; we even have our own reference library to help us develop an overall plan."

"From there," she said, "we get back with the customer and begin to personalize the entire layout while keeping in mind any local site requirements and zoning laws."

In some instances, of course, homeowners show up at the Clayton's door with a good idea of what they want, but are looking for help in how to accomplish it.

"There are trends (in landscaping)," Clayton said, "so what we try to do is make sure someone doesn't just do what's trendy, but instead do what's right for themselves and for their homes."

A case in point is the use of bushes that are pruned to create specific geometric shapes: "After years of pruning, many of these bushes have to be pulled out because they've become nothing but wood."

"What we would recommend instead is that the homeowner put in a plant that fits the space without needing constant cutting and pruning," she said.

"We also look at whether the plant is a good choice for the elements – whether it will be in the shade or all-day sun; if it will be in the wind or not."

Finally, Clayton said, a good landscaper will make sure everything coordinates: "That the colors of leaves and the textures of the plants look good together, instead of just becoming a green blob."

Beyond the greenery, Clayton and other landscapers also work in other natural elements – many of which have become as popular as the vegetation itself: rocks, bricks, stones and boulders. "Boulder walls, landscaping blocks and tiered stone walls are very popular now," Clayton said, "and they have

New showroom has it all — including the sink

After selling plumbing supplies wholesale for more than 70 years, Advance Plumbing and Heating Supply Co. has opened a retail showroom in Walled Lake.

The 3,000 square-foot store at 1977 Maple Rd., between Decker and Haggerty, features hundreds of faucets and displays of working showers, whirlpools, toilets and sinks. "You can actually see how everything works," says Jeff Moss, vice president. High end brands include Kohler, Grohe, Delta and Moen.

A licensed master plumber can assist do-it-yourselfers and answer installation and maintenance questions.

Moss' Grandfather, Harry Chernick, founded the business in Detroit in 1920. Chernick's son-in-law and the current president, Ron Moss, joined in 1957. Advance expanded to Walled Lake in 1990 when it bought Franklin Plumbing Supply.

Selling Your Home?
New Service Offers
Tips To Save Money and Survive Stress

(NAPS)- If you're thinking of selling your home—even if it's not for a long time to come—you may be able to save yourself time, money and trouble if you heed these hints from the experts at a new relocation service.

Called MovePower, the new service offers the average homeowner a program which make use of the negotiating leverage of thousands of moves to save thousands of dollars. It's now possible to save between $250 and $1,500 on real estate commissions for customers who sell their home through this service.

In addition, you can get:

- A discount of 45 percent or more off van line costs on interstate moves and very competitive rates for moves within states.
- Discounts on packing.
- Fifty-thousand dollars in replacement insurance coverage at discounted rates.
- Competitive mortgage rates.
- An area overview to help you choose a town in your new destination.
- Written comparative market data and a marketing strategy report to help get your home sold at the highest price in the shortest time.
- A resource book including worksheets, record-keeping pages and other features.

"For the first time, consumers can now receive cash discounts for selling their homes while still choosing the broker," said Priscilla Toomey, president of MovePower, "This is not a plan reserved for special groups or corporations, this offer is open to everyone who meets the eligibility requirements."

To meet these requirements a seller must have not already signed a listing agreement and have no prior agreement in effect related to the sale of the house.

To be eligible for the buyer's discount as well, homeowners must also have not viewed the home they plan to buy with another real estate agent or broker and must sell through MovePower. This is because this discount is funded by money returned to the relocation service from the listing portion of the broker's commission.

The discount can be paid in cash wherever permitted by law. The cost to sign up is $79.95.

For helpful tips on selling your home and to learn more about the program, call 800-MY-BEST-MOVE (800-692-3786).

President, Robert R. Jones Associates

Q. Our son will be graduating from college this summer and he plans to move back home with us for a few years. We are considering finishing our basement (which is currently unfinished and used mainly for storage) to provide him with a private living space. We don't know where to begin. Any advice?

A. What you must first determine and take into consideration before you move ahead with any plans to finish your basement is to be sure that you don't have a water or moisture problem. If there has been a leaking problem there are, with today's technology, a number of systems available to remedy moisture problems.

The typical basement project will involve the following work: 1. Finishing the concrete or masonry basement wall, 2. Building interior partitions, 3. Installing a ceiling, 4. Installing flooring suitable for a basement cement floor and 5. Installing any desired plumbing and electrical work.

The exterior wall can be finished by either securing furring strips to the concrete or masonry walls or by building a stud wall located next to the basement wall. The interior stud partitions would be constructed next. Electrical wiring, plumbing and heating rough-in work should be done at this time. Thermal insulation in the perimeter walls can be installed at this point if it is to be used. The wall surface materials can now be installed, drywall or prefinished wood paneling are commonly used.

Ceiling and flooring can be installed next, and depending on the types of materials you select, this may also be a part of the job that you can install yourself. For example, laying floor tiles can be accomplished by the do-it-yourself but sheet flooring should be installed by a contractor who is skilled at cutting it to fit precisely around the edges of the room. Basement ceilings are often done with 2' x 2' or 2' x 4' ceiling tile in a suspended metal grid so that access to the piping, wiring and framing above is main-

Q. My husband and I have purchased a new condominium and one of the options we are considering before ground breaking begins is a skylight in the living room and our master bath. Please tell us about the various types available.

A. Skylights can add a beautiful aura to a home, allowing natural light to enhance a room from overhead. There are two basic types of skylight: glass skylights are flat and plastic skylights have a "bubble" shape. Some skylights cannot be opened while others are movable and can be opened by either a long pole or remotely by motor.

There are a variety of sizes and shading options available. Low emissivity (low-e) glass is also available. It contains a coating that cannot be readily seen but works to help lower you energy costs.

many advantages over the traditional railroad ties, for example; they don't rot."

And one person who should know all about such things is Steve Aspin, vice president of Dixie Cut Stone and Marble, a wholesale supplier to builders, landscapers and designers throughout the Midwest.

Besides supplying everything from stone flagging to boulders to landscapers, Aspin's company also sells bulk and bagged landscaping chips, patio blocks and edging to various nationwide home chain stores.

"There's been a tremendous surge in the use of natural materials in landscaping," Aspin said. "The most popular (design approach) right now is using natural stone instead of decorative brick for walkways and patios

"Also becoming very popular is the creation of retaining walls using waterfall stones; they're flat, have a naturally worn look and are easy to work with."

According to both Clayton and Aspin, the use of such materials should ensure that a homeowner's place of residence will have a lasting appeal well into the next century.

And Groundhog Day, 2030.

Clayton Landscaping is located at 52650 12 Mile Road in Lyon Township. The phone number is (810) 437-1286.

HOUSING INDUSTRY HIGHLIGHTS

The National Association of Home Builders held their annual convention in Houston at the end of January. There are so many great new products on the market and more on the way (Examples: super insulated basements with foam forms, high tech European style appliances made in the USA, whirlpool showers you can stand or sit in, more varied style cabinets with new accessories and special colors; the list goes on).

With all that is new, interest rates still well below what they were only a few years ago and low inflation, now is still a good time to build or remodel your home. The recent election changes may also help if we can get a balanced budget through and in addition more government cost cutting and possible tax cuts in the near future.

You may recall my previous column concerning balance between the environment and building. There are some extremists, mainly on the West Coast, who seem to go to any lengths to stop construction and economic growth. The latest

An Overview of National and Local News & Trends

By Janet L. Compo, President of the Builders Assoc. of Southeastern Michigan

news concerns fairy shrimp, a miniscule animal (not an endangered species) whose numbers proliferate in any standing water, even the tire ruts of vehicles in a gravel parking lot. Because they naturally appear in the water, there is a move to name them a controlled and/or endangered species even though there are millions of them all over the world.

These extremists want any puddle of water to be named a wetland with no building to take place and, therefore, an (illegal) taking of land for good use by the owner of said property.

Developers and Home Builders today are environmentalists and save every possible tree, improve every natural waterway and do all they can to enhance the surroundings to better sell the final product: your new home. The regulations at all governmental levels impedes progress to that goal and adds too much to the price, in some cases and areas as much as 65% of the lot cost.

Help keep the cost down by contacting your local council people, legislators and congress, letting them know that we need a more common sense approach to environmental issues, so we may all have a share of the American Dream.

Sprinkler Systems: Your Watering Alternative, Hands Down

Efficient, effective, and easy to install, sprinkler systems are the most practical and economical way to water your lawn and garden. They provide a consistent, uniform watering pattern that is essential for healthy plant growth. Sprinkler systems are also a great time-saver, allowing you to water your lawn and garden while you are at work or asleep. They are also a great way to conserve water, as they only water the areas that need it. Sprinkler systems are available in a variety of designs and materials, and can be installed in a wide range of climates. They are a great investment for any homeowner who wants to keep their lawn and garden looking their best all year long.

Sleek Design, Advanced Kitchen Technology

You're looking at the Gaggenau 900 oven. Its 27-inch width makes it 20% larger than conventional ovens. The large curved panoramic window offers a perfectly unobstructed view, that is enhanced by bright non-glare halogen lighting. It features the ThermoLeaf temperature display that fine-tunes temperature, up to 575° F. Its function selector system allows for nine different cooking modes. Plus, the all-round hot air convection system bakes food faster and more evenly. Other conveniences include the large-area infrared broiler, the rotisserie, the optional baking stone for bread or pizza, and an efficient self-cleaning system. Want to learn more? Don't Ignore Carbon Monoxide Leaks (NAPS)—Experts now say that carbon monoxide detectors are as important to home safety as smoke detectors.

Consider these facts:

- According to the Journal of the American Medical Association (JAMA), carbon monoxide is the number one cause of poisoning death in the United States, responsible for 1,500 deaths and 10,000 illnesses each year.

- Post Graduate Medicine reports that one third of all survivors of carbon monoxide poisoning have lasting memory deficits or personality changes.

- Any home in America with a furnace, water heater, fireplace, space heater or appliance that operates on flammable fuel such as natural gas, oil, wood, coal or kerosene is a potential candidate for indoor air pollution from improperly vented carbon monoxide.

- This colorless, odorless and tasteless gas is detectable with a carbon monoxide detector. First Alert, the inventors of the smoke detector, manufacture a battery operated carbon monoxide detector that continues to operate even in the event of a power outage.
