FIFTY CENTS

Committee to recommend high-tech millage

By YVONNE BEEBE
Staff Writer

What would it cost to keep Northville students on the cutting edge of technology skills and knowledge? About $7 million.

The district's Citizen/Staff Advisory Committee for Technology will report its plan and recommendations to keep Northville Public Schools racing along the technology superhighway Monday night at the board of education's regular meeting, 7.30 p.m. at Old Village School.

As part of the plan to increase hardware and software capabilities and the number of technology-savvy personnel in the district, the committee, composed of more than 25 citizens and school staff employed in the technology field, will recommend the district hold a bond and enhancement millage election next school year to finance roughly $7 million in technology improvements.

The final report to the board, a 50-plus page document, states that if approved by board members and voters the technology additions will be integrated into the curriculum. Students will not only develop analytical thinking and problem solving skills, they will be more well-rounded with a working knowledge of technological systems, school officials say.

The committee also identified several community benefits from the plan, including outside hook-up capabilities.

Monday night's presentation is just the beginning of a long journey board of education members must embark on in the coming months. The verdict is still out regarding recommendations from the citizen committees on enhancement millage and bond elections. Those groups are scheduled to make presentations at board meetings in upcoming months.

The technology committee's recommendation for approximately $4.5 million in enhancement millage (budgeted over five years) and $2.8 million in bond funds have been forwarded to the two other committees. If either of those committees advise the board against holding an election, that portion of the technology funds would be out of the picture.

Currently, the district's citizen bond committee is wrestling with the largest big-ticket items as members mull over at least two major plans of action to accommodate a growing student population: 1) $45-$55 million to convert the high school into a middle school and build a new high

I'm the slime

Winchester Elementary students relished the chance to dump on Principal Kathy Morhous as their reward for logging a total of 4,801 reading hours. The slippery substance the pupils used in committing the one-of-a-kind indignity was made of applesauce, marshmallows, oatmeal, green food color and water. Over at Silver Springs, students transformed Principal Ken Pawlowski into a human banana split after reaching their goal of spending 149,823 minutes with their books. The sticky rituals culminated efforts completed in connection with National Reading Month.

City budget includes slight millage reduction

By YVONNE BEEBE
Staff Writer

Its budget crunch time for City of Northville officials.

City Manager Gary Word presented the City Council Monday night with the 1995-96 fiscal-year "hot-off-the presses" budget. The proposed $4,342,180 budget is only a sliver higher than the current fiscal year's $4,318,250 projected budget (that figure will not be official until the books are closed after June 30).

With the proposed document, the city administration continues its quest to make Northville's previous budget deficit a fading memory. Last year the city was successful in pulling out of its some $1.5 million hole that began in 1991 when the state effectively withheld all Northville's race track revenue. The city ended the 1993-94 fiscal year with a fund balance of $148,373.

Word has proposed the city add $11,925 to its fund balance in a continuing effort to build a fund equity of more than 20 percent.

In an added effort to head off a deficit situation and any bombshells from the state over race track funds, the city did not include race track revenue in its budget picture.

"It just doesn't make sense to budget in what has been a questionable source of revenue for us," said Assistant City Manager Nickie Bateson. In 1991 the state began withholding at least one-third of the $900,000 Northville received in race track revenue - creating the deficit situation.

Under the proposed budget, 34 percent - about $1.5 million - will be devoted to police services. Fifteen percent ($635,580) will be spent on city administration, 14 percent ($586,295) to debt service, 9 percent ($388,715) to the Department of Public Works and 4 percent ($153,115) to the fire department.

Ward hearing set for Tuesday

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

The Northville Township Planning Commission will have a busy night this Tuesday.

April 11 is the date when the commission will hold a public hearing on the latest development plan proposed by Ward Church. The hearing will begin at 7 p.m. at Winchester Elementary School, located off of Winchester Drive between Five and Six Mile.

Ward, now located at Six Mile and Farmington roads in Livonia, wants to build a new and bigger church on 140 acres it owns on the northwest corner of Six Mile and Haggerty roads. Church and township officials have spent years trying to agree on a development plan for the site.

The latest proposal combines the church, a commercial shopping center, thousands of parking spaces and acres upon acres of preserved open space into a single plan under the township's Haggerty Planned Unit Development (HPUD) ordinance option.

Passed in 1993, the HPUD ordinance applies to land in the township which fronts onto Haggerty Road. It allows township officials to approve development projects that the normal zoning there wouldn't allow. To do so officials must be convinced that an HPUD project brings "a recognizable and substantial benefit" to the township.

To agree to the Ward HPUD plan, the commission would have to be convinced that the township would get greater "substantial benefit" from the proposal than under a parallel plan using conventional zoning.

The parcel Ward owns is zoned for office development near Haggerty and for single family homes on its western side. To agree to the Ward HPUD plan, the commission would have to be convinced that the township would get greater "substantial benefit" from the pro-

Board questions Baja's acceptance of golf membership

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

Members of the Northville Township Board of Trustees have accused Supervisor Karen Baja of violating the ethics policy that she helped write three years ago. The township's ethics committee will soon decide if they're right.

Baja recently accepted an honorary membership worth tens of thousands of dollars from Meadowbrook Country Club, located on Eight Mile Road. Four of the other six members of the board object to that and the way Baja told them about it.

Trustees Gini Britton, Russ Fogg and Barbara O'Brien, along with Clerk Sue Hillebrand, last week sent a letter of complaint about the membership to the ethics committee. Treasurer Rick Engelland and Trustee Mark Abbo declined to sign it.

The four trustees also harshly criticized Baja during a board meeting last week. For her part Baja strenuously maintained that she has done nothing wrong and offered an angry - and at times even sarcastic - rebuttal to the four's allegations.

Their letter alleges that Baja has violated the township's ethics policy, which forbids elected officials from accepting any gift with a value of more than $25. A legal opinion from township attorney Jim Tamm backs up that claim.

It's a common and legal practice for clubs to offer memberships to elected officials, Tamm's opinion reads. However, Baja's acceptance of Meadowbrook's offer does violate the ethics policy, it adds.

The supervisor was on the committee which wrote the policy that won unanimous approval from the board in late 1992.

The ethics committee is scheduled to meet next week and report its findings to the board soon after that. It's not clear whether that report must be made public or

One of the other signs of spring

Most people think of balmy temperatures, lengthening days and outdoor sports when they think of spring, but firefighters know to expect a rash of brush fires from dried out grass and weeds. This small blaze took place in the field behind the NBD bank off Seven Mile last Saturday. Guy Balok of the township fire department said the fires are caused by the "careless use of lighted materials." When the grass begins to green up, Balok said, the fires will stop.

Cowgirl moseys back home after Lone Star stint

By CAROL WORKENS
Staff Writer

For most, being a cowboy or cowgirl is a dream. For some, a reality. For Mary Lamm it has been a way of life.

"There's wanna be's and be's, and I'm a be," said Lamm, who recently moved back to Northville after a 20-year hiatus in Texas.

The Northville High School graduate began riding horses at the age of four or five and competed in her first rodeo in Michigan at the age of 13. Lamm did not have any formal lessons, just picked things up by hanging around horses and attending some clinics.

"It's what's in your heart. You can't make someone one," Lamm said in a southern drawl that hides her Michigan roots. "If you're not willing to do the work, you can't put out."

The responsibilities include taking her horses on vacation with her, if necessary. She hauls panels similar to fence sections along with the horses in the trailer which she can place in a corral just about anywhere.

But being on the rodeo circuit is more than just a hobby, it's a way of life and a way to earn a living.

"Some cowgirls can make $100,000 a year," she said.

During her career, she has won saddles, buckles, horse trailers and money.

The petite blond plans on competing once a week as soon as the weather breaks in barrels, poles, goat tying and break away events. She recently competed at the Palace of Auburn Hills and will concentrate on the Tri-State area of Indiana, Ohio and Michigan.

Her first challenge in Michigan was to ride in tighter open areas to accommodate the smaller arenas found here.

"Everything is bigger in Texas," she said, "even the arenas." There's also some tough competition up here. There are only one thousand of a second between first and second place."

Lamm sometimes finds herself competing against 30 to 50 or more women in a single event.

"Horses love to perform," said Lamm who warms up her horses for 15 to 20 minutes before events that may last only a few seconds.

In the barrel competition, Lamm has only 15 to 17 seconds to traverse a cloverleaf pattern weaving in and out of barrels on a horse that can weigh over 1,000 pounds.

She will determine which way she runs the pattern either from the left or the right by whether the horse is left handed or right handed. The spacing between each barrel is determined by the judge based on the size of the arena but they must be 14 feet from the walls.

Another event that is over in just a few blinks of the eye is the pole competition where Lamm only has 12 to 22 seconds to complete a pattern of six poles which are spaced 21 feet apart.

In women-only rodeos, there are bull riding, barrels, broncos and steer dabbing.

said Lamm. Riders are given a mop dipped in flour and have to hit the steer behind the flanks to score points.

Determining a winner in an event depends on timing and deductions for penalties. Penalties are incurred for missing poles, hitting barrels and going through the breakaway (starting gate) too soon, among other things.

"Rodeo is a dangerous sport," said Lamm, who's had her share of injuries, once being flipped four feet off a horse she was riding.

With only seconds to complete an event, Lamm must know her horse.

"Personality match with a horse is 95 percent of it," she said.

Right now she has Bernie, a seven year old bay gelding beauty, an eight year old quarter horse and Casey, a nine year old line-back dun, all of which are in a pasture at her family's place in Howell.

"They (horses) are like little kids," she said. "Some can be very stubborn."

"You've got to get to their level," Lamm said. "Sometimes the problem is so simple. You can't beat them, you have to figure out what's wrong and fix it."

Lamm encountered just such a problem while trying to get a horse to walk into the trailer.

A horse that had always gone into the trailer before was now refusing to do so. Lamm stepped back and carefully watched the horse as he walked up the ramp. She noticed that the blanket draped over the horse had an attached hood and when the horse's head went forward as he went up the trailer ramp, the hood pulled the blanket up. The tug of the blanket bothered him so taking the hood off until he was in the trailer solved the problem.

"I learn something new every day," she said. "Every horse has a problem whether it's their feet, whether they're right handed or left handed, whatever."

"Casey has a stubborn personality and is ill tempered," she said. "She is all business and no play with me."

But with Lamm's eight year old daughter, Kayla, she gets along just fine. "Personality has so much to do with it," she said. Lamm's 17-year-old son, Kye, also competes.

"I like my horses chilled (laid back)," said Lamm.

Born in Grand Rapids, Lamm is the daughter of Kay and Gerald Beaver, who have been into standard breeding as long as she can remember. They still reside in Northville where her dad is a partmutuel clerk at Northville Downs, DRC and Hazel Park. She has four sisters and two brothers, all of whom graduated from Northville High School.

Township police bust man for pot possession

Township police arrested a 30-year-old Plymouth man for possession of marijuana and drunken driving one week ago.

An officer on patrol at about 2 a.m. last Thursday got behind the man's 1992 Mercury Topaz while driving south on Northville Road. The officer said he saw the Topaz cross the center line of the road while going 15 miles over the speed limit.

After stopping the car, the officer said he smelled burned marijuana. The man admitted to smoking one marijuana cigarette in his car and to drinking "a couple beers" that evening. He failed field sobriety tests and was arrested. Police found a partially smoked marijuana cigarette in a film canister under the car's armrest.

Breathalyzer testing at police headquarters later showed the man to have a blood alcohol level of .12 percent, over the legal limit. He was held until he sobered up and faces a hearing later this month in 35th District Court.

ATTEMPTED B&E: The Clark gas station on South Main Street suffered $500 in damage after an unsuccessful break-in attempt March 24.

A Northville City Police officer heard the alarm call while on patrol and responded to the scene and noticed a vehicle left onto Seven Mile Road in what appeared to be a hurry. When he arrived on the scene he found that the bottom half of a full-length window was smashed in.

It did not appear that entry had been made. Later that morning the station's manager confirmed that no merchandise was missing from the store. A Detroit News carrier had delivered papers at 5:10 a.m. to the station and told police he did not notice anything out of the ordinary at that time.

Police continue to investigate the incident but have no suspects at this time.

RETAIL FRAUD: A 25-year-old Northville man was arrested March 30 for retail fraud after being caught with a pen down his pants at Arbor Drugs.

Assault and battery charges are pending for the incident after the man and the store's manager got in a scuffle in the back office over the incident.

The ordeal began when the alarm at the exit doors went off when the man attempted to leave. The man, who had just bought two Bic lighters at the counter returned to the cashier's counter. The cashier put the lighters over the deactivation pad again. The man attempted to leave again but the alarm reactivated.

The store manager then moved to the back of the store to confront the man. When the manager asked the man to empty his pockets, he moved back toward the merchandise aisles. The manager believed the man was attempting to return the merchandise so he followed him and escorted him to the store's back office.

The man then took the pen out of the front of his pants and returned it to the manager, who then called the police.

At that time the man tried to leave the store. The manager attempted to stop him and the pair got into a scuffle as a result. The suspect punched the manager in the eye, the police report stated, and attempted to gouge at his eyes and face while he had him in a headlock.

The man then attempted to leave out of the back exit and ran across Center Street.

Arbor personnel caught the man after he tripped on the sidewalk during his getaway.

When Northville city police arrived on the scene three Arbor employees were leaning against the door of the bathroom keeping the man locked inside.

The man came out with his hands up when police arrived. The man was arrested.

In his statements to police, he said he had too many items in his hands while he was shopping and placed the pen in his coat pocket, forgetting it was there when he paid for the other items.

The man did not have an explanation why the pen was found in his pants. The man also denied punching the store manager.

Police, however, noted that the manager's right eye and cheek-bone were red and swollen. The man was arrested and released after posting a $100 cash bond. A preliminary examination has been set for April 27 at 35th District Court in Plymouth.

MALICIOUS DESTRUCTION OF PROPERTY: A man reported to Northville City Police that his apartment door at the Inn on Main Street suffered nearly $200 in damage after someone punched a hole in it.

The 37-year-old man told police he heard loud voices of at least one Inn resident he recognized outside his door and then heard a loud bang on his door. When he opened the door he found a hole in it.

Police questioned the man who may have done it.

The suspect and another man appeared to be intoxicated and were extremely argumentative, the report stated. The man denied the incident to police.

EQUIPMENT DAMAGED: Vandals did $700 worth of damage to construction equipment parked overnight at the under-construction Woods of Edenderry subdivision the night of April 5. Police have no suspects.

WINDOWS BROKEN: Vandals smashed seven windows at Township Fire Station No. Three on Saturday, causing $150 in damages.

Police have no suspects.

LARCENY FROM AN AUTO: A convertible Ford Mustang parked on Baseline suffered $1,000 in damage after an unknown person slit the top of the car's top and stole a $250 radar detector from off the dash board. Police have no suspects.

INDECENT EXPOSURE: A 27-year-old Plymouth woman who was jogging in Hines Park near Six Mile on Friday told police that a man had exposed himself to her.

The man had his pants undone and fondled himself in front of her. Police were unable to locate him despite a search.

LARCENY: A resident of Yerkes Street reported to Northville city police that about $40 in empty pop and beer bottles were stolen from outside her home March 31.

The owner of the Good Time Party store told police two teenage boys returned about that many bottles in two black garbage bags that same day.

SIGN OF THE TIMES: A Meadowbrook Trail couple woke up Saturday morning to find two real estate and lawn service signs in their front lawn, as well as a scattering of knives and forks tucked in the ground. Police have no suspects; the signs were returned to the rightful owners.

OUIL: Township police arrested a 25-year-old Detroit man April 4 after a man told township police he thought the man was driving while drunk.

The man told an officer on patrol in the Meijer parking that the man had struck another car on I-275 but had kept going, getting off at Eight Mile to get gas at the Meijer service station.

The officer found the man driving his 1978 Chevrolet pickup out of the station lot, weaving and nearly hitting a stopped car.

The man admitted to having a few beers that evening but asked for a break.

Breathalyzer testing later showed him to have a blood alcohol level of .16 percent, above the legal limit.

Citizens with information about any of the above incidents are asked to call city police at 349-1234 or township police at 349-9400.

Pics still missing at township hall

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

Northville Township officials are on the lookout for some shaggy-haired snapshots of ex-supervisors or for a set of suitable replacements.

Until the current board of trustees took office, one wall of Township Hall on Six Mile Road displayed the photographs of past supervisors. Since November 1992, however, the pictures were stolen twice.

The first time was spring 1993. The photos were found months later in a storage room in Township Hall. The most recent theft occurred this summer and the five pictures are still missing. Last week the board voted to have township officials try to find them or suitable replacements.

Manager Tamara Hanlin and Director of Public Safety Chip Snider are handling the search. They've asked township employees for information as to the whereabouts of the portraits, confidentiality guaranteed.

Supervisor Karen Baja told the board she doubted that the pictures would be located.

"My feeling is we won't find them," she said.

If they are found Trustee Russ Fogg has proposed putting them on the wall inside the board's meeting room "to be more secure."

The trustees agreed to that idea as well as one proposed by Supervisor Karen Baja. She suggested that whether the missing photos are found, or not the township should put up photos of all past supervisors. The policy before this has been to put up portraits of supervisors who've served and left office since Township Hall was opened.

That will mean a hunt for the likenesses of dozens of ex-supervisors stretching back for almost a century. The trustees decided, however, to spend only up to $300 on the project.

A bomb threat at Our Lady of Providence turned out to be a false alarm.

Phone bomb threat at OLP is a phony

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

Someone phoned in a bomb threat to the Our Lady of Providence facility last Wednesday, a threat which, fortunately, turned out to a hoax.

A 39-year-old employee of Our Lady, which is located on Beck Road between Five and Six Mile, received a telephone call at about 3:30 p.m. on March 29. The caller, who the woman said sounded like a white female in her 50s or 60s, said that two bombs had been planted in the building.

"You can't throw girls out like pieces of meat," the caller reportedly said, then hung up.

Our Lady houses and educates developmentally disabled women and girls. Recently they've had to cut the number of individuals served. Police suspect a friend or family member of one of them was responsible for the call.

Officers cleared the building, loading the females onto two buses that Northville public schools volunteered for possible evacuation. The move was strictly precautionary and turned out to be unnecessary.

Police found no explosive devices in the building or in a van parked behind Our Lady that day.

The van was checked out because Our Lady officials said they hadn't seen it before. It turned out to have been parked there by its owner after the van got a flat tire.

New Brooklane site proposal includes homes but no golf

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

The Northville Township Planning Commission this week reviewed a new plan to build a subdivision where Brooklane golf course now stands.

Developer Gary Sakwa's proposal calls for 130 upscale large-lot homes on the 99 acres that make up Brooklane, which occupies the southeast corner of Six Mile and Sheldon Roads. It's the kind of plan he indicated he would seek township approval for after the board of trustees in January rejected a more unusual one he proposed last year.

That design included a total of 271 acres and included both the Brooklane course and the Haller property which sits on the northeast corner of Six Mile and Sheldon. Sakwa asked the board to let him build a 280-lot subdivision on the parcel with lots that would be smaller than what township ordinance normally allows.

In return Sakwa offered to build a nine-hole golf course in the sub and an Olympic-sized swimming pool and to renovate Brooklane's existing clubhouse. The course's nine holes would be scattered throughout the parcel, some on the north and some on the south side of Six Mile. A bridge or tunnel would connect them.

The key part of the deal was that Sakwa agreed to give the course, pool and clubhouse to the township. After months of debate the trustees rejected the offer, saying they preferred to see a conventional subdivision design there.

Enter "Northrup Estates," Sakwa's new proposal. The name comes from the fact that the land is owned by the Ross B. Northrup Trust, from whom the developer is buying the property. The plan's 130 lots would all measure at least 20,000 square feet. That figure meets the parcel's R-2 zoning requirements.

Township planning consultants at the commission's April 4 meeting said that 18 of the lots may be unbuildable because of steep slopes, wetlands or other constraints, however.

"It seemed to us that they ignored the ravines when they laid these lots out," consultant Brad Strader said.

Sakwa responded that the lot lines for those 18 lots may have to be altered a bit but they can still be built and kept within zoning ordinance size limits.

That is one of several issues that consultants for Sakwa and the township will hash out in coming weeks. At the developer's request the commission tabled the Brooklane plan to allow them time to do so. The proposal is expected to come back to the commission in May.

Other concerns to be addressed include:

- One existing Six Mile home would be deprived of road access under the plan's current design, a violation of township ordinance.

- Whether the subdivision will be required to include sidewalks or not.

- What to do about one cul-de-sac that's longer than what township standards allow but which might be acceptable under new Wayne County standards.

Thousands in stolen bonds recovered

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

Northville Township police recently recovered $4,100 in U.S. savings bonds stolen from a township apartment dweller in October and have referred the man they got them from to the United States Secret Service.

A Silver Springs Drive resident reported a break-in to police on Oct. 26. Several items, including the bonds, were taken but police could not find any suspects.

On March 1 township Detective

Fred Yankee received a report that the man who lived in the apartment had been contacted by a man who claimed to have the bonds and wanted to return them. The man did not return the second man's calls.

Yankee tried to contact the second man without success until March 14. On that date the man told him he had found the bonds Halloween day under a couch that he'd been helping to move.

The couch was in a vacant apartment in another apartment complex, the man said, and the person who had lived there was in jail for breaking and entering. The man told Yankee he did not remember his name, however, and said he had taken the bonds to his home "for safekeeping."

Yankee contacted the bonds' owner, who said that he'd already begun the process of replacing them. Police last week turned the matter over to the Secret Service.

Condo lawsuit dropped

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

Northville Township is minus one lawsuit this week.

The board of trustees at its March 30 meeting agreed to a tentative consent judgment which attorneys for the township and the Chestnut Hill company have proposed. The vote ends the lawsuit that the developer filed last year after township officials refused to approve the company's plan for a condominium complex called Waterford Pond.

The board met in closed session last Thursday to discuss the proposed agreement. In a public meeting later that evening the trustees voted 5-1 to accept the township attorney's advice and approve the agreement. Trustee Gini Britton abstained from the discussion and the vote due to a conflict of interest. Trustee Barbara O'Brien was the lone "no" vote.

Township officials would not discuss the specifics of the consent judgment but indicated that the terms would become public record within three months.

They did say that the agreement calls for Chestnut to submit a new final site plan for the project to the township planning commission within 90 days. The deal also calls for the development, slated for land near Six Mile and Northville roads, to change its name to something that doesn't start with the letter "W."

Officials of the township Department of Public Safety are responsible for that.

They raised concerns about the name "Waterford Pond" because the township already has roadways named Waterford, Waterfall and Waterwheel. Another similarly named complex could produce confusion among police and fire officials during an emergency, they said.

The two sides have been negotiating since the suit was filed in March 1994. Chestnut proposed an 88-unit condominium project grouped around a single cul-de-sac on land off Six Mile near Northville Road.

The site plan for the proposal, however, violated two sections of township ordinance. Chestnut asked for variances from them for the township Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA). The board refused to grant the variances, leading to the lawsuit from Chestnut.

Township ordinance requires that a development like Waterford Pond, which has only one road accessway, have no more than 24 homes.

The Waterford Pond plan violated that proviso, as well as ordinance rules about the maximum lengths of cul-de-sacs and maximum heights of buildings.

After the ZBA denial Chestnut claimed that the township's actions had left the firm "without an economically viable use" for the property, which is illegal under state and federal law.

City merchants plan May sale

The land of windmills and wooden shoes will be celebrated in Northville as downtown merchants stage "Tulip Days," Friday and Saturday May 12 and 13.

Planned as a series of sales and special activities, the two-day affair will include spring sales and giveaways, children's games and entertainment.

The event is being organized by the Northville Community Chamber of Commerce and restaurateur Toni Genitti.

"We really want to make this something to attract people to the downtown," Genitti said. "We're going to get tulips shipped in and follow a Dutch theme."

Genitti says she's trying to get as many downtown merchants as possible to participate in the special event. If all goes as planned, several downtown stores and service merchants will offer discounts and free samples.

A window decorating contest, music and games will also be included.

Merchants interested in participating in Tulip Days are asked to call Genitti's Hole-In-The-Wall Restaurant, 349-0522.

City and township opt out of transit authority

and RANDY COBLE
Staff Writers

Members of both the city and township governing bodies opted to pull out of the newly established Wayne County Transit Authority (WCTA) in unanimous votes this past week.

The Northville Township Board of Trustees last week voted 7-0 without discussion to opt out, the first community on the western side of Wayne County to do so. Monday night Northville City Council members also voted 4-0 (Mayor Pro Tem Carolann Ayers was out of town) to pull out of the authority.

Gross Pointe Township, Gross Pointe Woods and the City of Plymouth have also opted out.

Wayne County Commissioner Thad McCotter (R-Livonia), whose district includes Northville township and the Wayne County portion of the city, was on hand to express his support for the move at both meetings.

"You've fired the first shot in the declaration of independence of western Wayne County," McCotter said at the board of trustees meeting last Thursday, which led to a round of applause from the trustees.

The county called a special election May 23 to ask voters to approve one-third of a mill for three years, which if passed would generate approximately $4.9 million each year. The money would go to help bail the Suburban Mobility Authority for Regional Transportation (SMART) out of a roughly $25 million deficit.

Roughly 2,177, or 35 percent, of the city's 6,226 residents live in Wayne County. Had the city remained in the WCTA they could have been contributing a combined $69,577 for three years.

SMART provides bus services to various communities - including Northville - in the tri-county area in addition to providing dial-a-ride taxi services to elderly and disabled residents.

Mayor Chris Johnson said the services SMART provides to the city are minimal - in fact, no SMART buses come to the city of Northville, he said.

"We truly need a regional transportation system in the area - but this isn't it," Johnson said.

SMART, which cannot levy taxes from residents, is funded through Michigan and federal gas taxes. The state bases each community's contribution on its population paired with an estimated gas use, which in turn funds SMART.

WCTA, an entity that can levy taxes from its residents, will contract the money to SMART in order to help eliminate the deficit.

McCotter has urged all of his communities to opt out, citing a problem of a lack of representation from the individual communities on the transportation authority's governing board.

A vote by the Wayne County Commission that's scheduled for today, however, may change the whole equation.

The commission is expected to modify the WCTA's articles of incorporation, increasing the size and diversity of its governing board. The move comes in response to fears voiced by suburban communities that they would have little control over the WCTA.

The existing WCTA articles call for a three member governing board.

One of the three is supposed to be the county executive, the second his appointee and the third a suburban appointee.

Dan Gilmartin, executive director of the Conference of Western Wayne, a consortium of western Wayne County communities, said that arrangement "left some people thinking it effectively meant Ed McNamara could do whatever he wanted. It's been that lack of opposition to the plan as a whole," he said.

The modification of the articles before the commission call for a nine-member governing board, seven of whom would come from the suburbs. Gilmartin said the resolve of CCW's members brought about the change.

"They felt they needed a change and they stood firm until they got it," he said.

In another development, the Oakland County Commission last week voted to hold an election on the one-third mill request on June 23.

A LOSING PROPOSITION

Research has shown that women can do something about at least one factor that leads millions of them to develop arthritis in their knees later in life. A recent study of 800 women at Boston University has led to the conclusion that overweight women can reduce their risk of developing this painful condition by simply losing ten pounds before they reach age 65. Because obesity greatly increases wear and tear on the knee joints that often leads to osteoarthritis, losing this relatively small amount of weight can have a significant effect upon the chances of developing arthritic knees. While losing weight cannot reverse the damage that has already been done, it is never too late to prevent further damage by dropping ten pounds.

At Northville Physical Therapy & Rehabilitation Inc., our registered physical therapists specialize in returning patients to their highest level of function. Patients are instructed in adaptive methods and home exercises that focus on improving muscle strength, function, and coordination. Individualized treatment programs are outlined for a variety of patient problems including sports and orthopedic injuries as well as neurological disorders such as stroke and traumatic brain injuries. To schedule an appointment, call 349-3816. We are located at 332 E. Main Street, Suite A.

P.S. Strengthening the muscles around the knee helps relieve undue stress upon the joint which can lead to (or worsen) arthritis.

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

Northville's police chiefs have found the going slow when it comes to getting their share of money raised from a new Wayne County wide 911 phone bill surcharge. The wait could be over by next week, however.

The Michigan Legislature approved the surcharge one year ago. It allows individual counties in the state to charge each telephone user in their jurisdictions an additional 48 cents a month.

Ameritech collects the surcharge and then every month is supposed to give each community the money raised from phone lines within its borders. By law the money must be used for the improvement of 911 and related communications systems and services.

Wayne County approved it in August and Ameritech began collecting in November. Since then the heads of the Northville city and township police departments have waited as problems - and delays - developed.

The biggest headache has been Ameritech's troubles in accurately calculating the number of phone lines in each community. Earlier this year the company upped Northville's total number of lines by nearly 2,000, increasing both the city and township's monthly checks.

Ameritech last month gave $269,000 in surcharge funds to the Conference of Western Wayne (CCW), a consortium of western Wayne County communities including Northville. Since then it's sat in a CCW account while the technical problems were worked out.

Dan Gilmartin, CCW executive director, said this week that Ameritech seems to have gotten all the bugs out the system and is now able to give accurate per-community line counts.

Based on that, he added, he plans to recommend to CCW's board of trustees on Friday that the organization release the surcharge money to individual communities immediately. If the board agrees, Gilmartin said, the checks would go out next week.

The first check would be larger than those that follow because it would cover the period from November to January.

The township's share is estimated to be from $45,000 to $51,000 a year, expected to be used for paying for the Department of Public Safety's new radio system. The city's share of the Wayne County lines would amount to about $13,000 to $14,000 a year. City officials say they haven't nailed down a use for the money yet.

A complication for the city is that most of its phone lines lie in Oakland County, which hasn't adopted the surcharge and isn't likely to soon, according to City Police Chief Rod Cannon.

Some members of the Oakland County Commission are calling the surcharge another tax and are not supporting it, Cannon said. He indicated that the county's chiefs of police are planning to try and drum up support for the surcharge this spring and summer with a commission vote likely to take place this fall.

NOTICE TO THE RESIDENTS OF THE CHARTER TOWNSHIP OF NORTHVILLE

The all-day event includes seminars, a box lunch and a tour of Mill Race Village. Reservations in advance cost $20. Contact (313) 676-5906 concerning availability.

In coming weeks look for more information about upcoming events scheduled at Mill Race Village including a program of the Natural Conservancy in May. Also upcoming are Sundays at the Village with some new occasional special events, July 4, and more.

Gideon Benton filed the first deed to property in the section which is today Northville on August 3, 1923.

He arrived in the area shortly thereafter. His property ran below Seven Mile Road.

Its 240 acres included what is today King's Mill subdivision. The Benton homestead was located just above Six Mile and just east of today's Northville Road.

Today Six Mile Road cuts above the property, but the old line for it can be seen when heading west. Gideon P. had two sons, Gideon and Hiram. It is the home of Hiram which stands today.

A grandson Cass became state legislator, county tax commissioner, and township supervisor.

He was the son of Hiram. Cass donated family land to Wayne County. That land became the Cass Benton park now part of Edward Hines Parkway.

Carmi, a son of Hiram, owned the land on which Northville State Hospital sits today.

Gideon P., the first Benton in the area, was the township's first postmaster. He earned the mail in his hat or handkerchief. The Benton family also held early meetings for the Methodist congregation on their property.

One of these meetings met with malicious vandalism. According to David Clarkson, an early historian of this area, "... on a certain Sabbath, 1, with several other boys and young men went to attend the meeting on Sunday morning ...

"We were early, and what was our astonishment to find that during the night some persons had torn the house down by prying the logs out of the sides and ends and letting the roof down over the ruins. They then shot a large bull belonging to Mr. Benton and placed the carcass on the right of the fallen roof, set it up in a position natural as life, and before it on a board placed a Bible and hymn book.

"This created quite a sensation at the time, and the community was much excited. This went to show that although good influence predominated they were not sufficient to restrain the evil minded."

More on Northville's early settlers net week.

City turns thumbs down on hiring marketer

By YVONNE BEEBE
Staff Writer

To the dismay of Mayor Chris Johnson, Northville City Council members are opting to keep the high wall separating the dealings of business and government intact.

Johnson brought the long-discussed possibility of creating a part-time downtown coordinator position — a person who would concentrate on business recruitment, retention and downtown marketing — to the table Monday night to receive direction from fellow council members.

A major cheerleader of the coordinator position, Johnson admitted he was a little disappointed to see the council put the idea on the back burner.

"Government has no right to tell a building owner who he should rent his building to," Councilman Paul Follino said.

The intent of the proposed position was not to dictate the doings of building and business owners, Johnson said, but rather concentrate on a downtown concept to attract a healthy mix of restaurants, service businesses and gift stores — something the town is presently lacking.

"A couple of years ago I might have said no way no how should we get involved with business," Johnson said. "But I think it becomes short-sighted in light of the recent changes downtown."

For the past year, the city's Downtown Development Authority has discussed the possibility of hiring a part-time consultant to work on the city's downtown chemistry. Before the authority spent a substantial amount of time defining the parameters and requirements of the proposed position, Johnson said he wanted to bounce the idea off the council.

One of the major reasons for considering creating the position had to do with the changing nature of Main Street, where merchants who historically have provided a service to the community — like Lapham's clothing and tailoring shop which went out of business earlier this year — are replaced by gift stores.

"We're concerned," Johnson said. "Not that anyone has anything against a gift store. But we want to focus on bringing in businesses that will provide a service to residents."

Johnson was hoping the DDA could focus 50 percent of its budget on the coordinator position and the other half on infrastructure repairs and maintenance.

Back in December, the authority created a list of some $80,000 in needed streetscape repairs. The list committed funds from the DDA's budget to repaint the bandshell, clock, street lights and tree grates and guards, and to conduct asphalt repairs, curb replacements, tree replacements, brick repairs and sign upgrades. The repair project is slated to begin later this year.

Councilman Charles Keys acknowledged the need for a diverse range of businesses in the downtown area but did not feel it was the council's responsibility to create that environment.

"It is our responsibility to maintain the physical outside of the city but nothing else," Keys said.

Johnson said DDA members had expressed optimism at the prospect of expanding the authority's scope beyond the "brick and mortar" of the city, noting that small downtowns like Northville are in direct competition with shopping malls — and in many ways are losing the fight.

"Watching something go downhill as opposed to uphill — I do believe it is our responsibility," he said.

Judicial requirement to go for vote in '96

By TIM GRACIO
Staff Writer

Capitol capsules:

Michigan voters in 1996 will decide whether they want new judges to have at least five years experience practicing law. The Legislature has overwhelmingly approved the resolution sponsored by Sen. Virgil Smith, D-Detroit.

The plan, which probably will be dubbed Proposal A by the Secretary of State's office, would amend the state constitution, which currently requires only that a judge be a member of the State Bar.

"If approved by the people, this will ensure that our judges have a working knowledge of the courts they preside over and the laws they are bound to uphold," said Smith, who has sponsored the measure for several years. The issue arose when Wayne County voters elected several persons to the bench fresh from law school with virtually no legal experience.

Recuperating: Sen. David Honigman, R-West Bloomfield, expects to be at work soon after his March 15 surgery for disc fusion on his back at Abbott Northwestern Hospital in Minnesota.

Honigman represents the Oakland County portion of Northville in the state Senate.

"The senator is doing fine," said his staff. Get well cards may be sent to: PO Box 30036, Lansing, MI 48909.

EMU regents: The governor reappointed Robert DeMattia of Northville to the Eastern Michigan University board of regents. DeMattia is president and CEO of the R.A. DeMattia Co., a national real estate development, architectural and construction firm.

DeMattia earned degrees in civil engineering and business at the University of Detroit. He is reappointed for a term ending Dec. 31, 2002.

Also reappointed to the EMU board was Philip Incarnati, Linden, president and CEO of the McLaren Health Care Corp. EMU is one of 11 regional universities whose boards are appointed by the governor.

GED for parole: The House finally has passed and sent to the Senate a bill requiring state prison inmates to earn a high school diploma or GED equivalent certificate before being released on parole.

House Bill 4206, which goes to the Senate, applies to persons serving minimum sentences of two years or more. The controversial bill would not apply to inmates with learning disabilities, lacking English proficiency, or unable to meet the requirement through no fault of their own.

"Releasing inmates into society with basically the same skills they had when they came into prison forces many to return to what they know best - crime," said the sponsor, Rep. Greg Pitoniak, D-Taylor. The state Department of Corrections said 2,300 to 2,500 of Michigan's 40,000 inmates are on waiting lists to complete adult basic GED requirements.

Court of Appeals delays tough new teacher strike law

By TIM RICHARD
Staff Writer

The state Court of Appeals has delayed implementation of the Republicans' tough new law punishing teacher strikes.

Public Act 112 was due to take effect April 1.

It gives school districts and Michigan Education Association locals power to negotiate new contracts under the old law, under which unions have more power to bargain over health insurers and school working rules.

"We requested a stay and an expedited hearing," said Theodore Sachs, attorney for the AFL-CIO, which challenged the constitutionality of the act.

MEA also appealed and asked for an expedited hearing, said spokesman Dawn Cooper.

An "expedited hearing" means the appeals court will act promptly and not take its usual two years to process the case.

The Court of Appeals decided the request on a 2-1 vote. Voting to take the case were Chief Judge Martin Doctoroff of Birmingham and Judge Kathleen Jansen of Macomb County.

In Wayne Circuit Court, the AFL-CIO and MEA cases were consolidated and heard together before Judge Willis Simmons. In his ruling last month, Simmons gave labor a partial victory, ruling two sections unconstitutional:

- Requiring a circuit judge to issue an injunction against a union if it "finds that a strike or lockout has occurred, without regard to the existence of other remedies, demonstration of irreparable harm, or other factors."

Simmons said the sweeping legislative decree violated the separation of powers by allowing judges no discretion.

- Requiring the Michigan Employment Relations Commission to fine unions an automatic $5,000 a day for a strike by "one or more public school employees." The unions argued they would be punished regardless of their possible non-involvement in a walkout.

But Simmons upheld the rest of the law. It forbids school unions from bargaining over: the insurance benefits administrator; the starting date of classes; pupil contact time; the composition of school improvement committees; the existence of charter academies; the existence of "schools of choice" programs; use of volunteers in school services; decisions on experimental or pilot programs; and the granting of additional paid work days to make up for lost strike time.

Republicans in both chambers of the Legislature rushed through the bill in April of 1994.

The GOP had a temporary majority in the House and disregarded the usual committee procedure in bringing the bill to a vote. Gov. John Engler signed it into law

May 2, hailing it as a "cost containment" measure.

Sachs wanted the court to find other flaws in PA 112. His suit argued the law:

- Denies judicial review of MERC decisions.

- Prohibits a parent union from vetoing a local union's collective bargaining agreement, thus "unconstitutionally interfering with and intruding upon internal union matters."

- Denies "equal protection of the laws" by treating school employees more harshly than other striking workers. The law requires that striking school employees be docked a day's pay for each day of a strike with no chance of making up the lost time.

The AFL-CIO suit was filed on behalf of the American Federation of Teachers, which represents Detroit, Dearborn, Melvindale and Allen Park teachers; the International Union of Operating Engineers; Service Employees International Union; and the American Federation of State County and Municipal Employees, among others.

The MEA charged the law violates teachers' rights to freedom of speech by restricting their right to protest a school board's alleged unfair labor practices.

MEA also charged the law violates the union's right to bargain over the "privatization" of non-teaching jobs in food service, custodian and transportation.

MEA represents most suburban and outstate teachers and school employees.

Shades of summer

After a long winter hibernation, it doesn't take much encouragement to get youngsters to go out and order their favorite frozen treats. Though the weather was brisk and contained a chill much of this week, there was enough of a hint of warmer temperatures to cause Rachel Koster to head out to Custard Time for a cone. Worker Jennifer Pergine, inside, served up goodies to hungry teens last Saturday, a day that saw steady business at the store.

"It was reassuring when a Botsford nurse visited us at our home."

Since Anthony is my first child, I didn't know what to expect. But the doctors and nurses at Botsford were very supportive during my pregnancy, delivery and after our baby was born.

At the Special Delivery Center, my husband was able to stay with me from the time we came in the special, separate entrance and throughout my stay. My Labor/Delivery/Recovery room was spacious yet comfortable and private.

The nurses showed us how to care for our new baby and offered bathing and breast-feeding guidance. We also received an informative manual and a phone number for a 24 hour hotline.

Two days after we were home, a Botsford obstetrics nurse visited us. She made sure that Anthony was in good health, completed an assessment on Anthony and me and answered all my questions.

My mother lives in Florida and couldn't be here — so I appreciated everyone at Botsford making us feel right at home.

Reaching out to the people of our community.

Nazarene marks 75th

By CAROL WORKENS
Staff Writer

On Easter Sunday in 1920 a Fuller Brush salesman and a dozen like-minded friends met to organize a church that today includes 750 members. The Detroit First Church of the Nazarene just celebrated the 75th anniversary of their founding with a weekend of celebration.

It began in 1920 when Elmer Kaufman and 12 other charter members of the Church of the Nazarene in Detroit, its original name, met in homes until they were able to purchase a tabernacle from the U.S. government. Rev. Arthur Leach was appointed the first pastor. Leaders who followed were Rev. Martin S. Cooper, Rev. Howard W. Jerrett and Dr. Orval J. Neese.

In the six years following Dr. Selden Dee Kelley's pastorate which began in 1938, financial giving increased 400 percent. Holding four evangelistic campaigns yearly, Kelley advanced the growth in stewardship. He also developed a radio ministry which aired in three states.

The Nazarene denomination, which was formed at the turn of the century, was pioneering in radio ministry at the same time. Rev. Kelley was appointed to the commission in 1944 to study radio as a tool of ministry for the Nazarenes. Members of Detroit First Church Sanctuary Choir went to Kansas City in 1945 to perform in one of the early radio broadcasts.

Ray Moore, the church's music director in the 1940s, was also a radio music director for the denomination for a total of 30 years.

Moore and his wife, Nelda, attended the weekend celebration. The Moores now live in Madrid, Spain, and were able to include a stop in Northville in their vacation plans.

Dr. E.W. Martin led Detroit First Church from 1948 until 1961. Under his leadership, the church built a larger place of worship at Fenkell near Grand River. By 1961, membership had increased to 880.

During the 1960s, the church served the needs of the community with a child care center, kindergarten center and television ministry. An independent concert ministry organized by Thurlow Spurr during this time is still meeting today.

Today's ministries include groups for singles, men, women, youths, senior citizens, music and many other specialties which are open to all those in the community regardless of whether they are members of the church.

Seven or eight pastors followed during the '60s, '70s and '80s. Former pastor Dr. Barrett Kirby came from Texas to attend the celebration. Dr. Kirby was the pastor from 1961 to 1963.

Detroit First Church of the Nazarene built its building at the present site at 21260 Haggerty Road in Northville Township in 1980.

Rev. Holland Lewis became pastor on March 12, 1989. Under Rev.

Lewis, a 72,000-square-foot addition was dedicated on June 3, 1990. The main floor has a capacity for 900 worshippers, with an additional 500 possible in the balcony. A unique "no fragrance" section for people sensitive to perfume, cologne and aftershave is also available in the balcony.

The 100-by-100-foot sanctuary has a ceiling height of 45 feet. An atrium, which connects the sanctuary to the addition, has a stained glass cross at the east end.

The stained glass cross visually links the past with the future. The cross at the east end of the atrium faces towards the City of Detroit, where the congregation was founded 75 years ago.

The stained glass cross, which was used as the logo for the anniversary celebration, is also used on banners decorating the west entrance to welcome new families living in the western suburbs.

Six hundred and fifty people attended the anniversary banquet held on Saturday and 800 attended the Sunday service led by General Superintendent Dr. James Diehl from Kansas City, Miss.

The church's mission statement is "Lifting people to new levels of life."

"Lifting people to new levels of life is more than a church theme," said Pastor Lewis. "It is the practical result that we witness in the lives of those drawn to the Savior through the shared ministry of pastor and people."

Vehicle theft suspect leads police to himself

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

A Northville Township man who reported his car stolen last week may now be wishing he hadn't picked up the phone.

The man, 23, lives in the Innsbrook apartment complex on Seven Mile. He called police last Tuesday and claimed that during the night someone had stolen his 1991 Ford Explorer from the parking lot outside of his apartment.

He was up-to-date on his payments, the man claimed, and no one but his fiancée had the keys to the vehicle.

The officer he dealt with made a routine written report. Police officials then listed the vehicle as stolen in the area's law enforcement computer network.

A few hours later they learned from township officers who had worked the night before that they'd helped a repossession company employee take the Explorer.

The employee said he'd tried earlier in the day to take the vehicle but the man had threatened him and then drove off in the Explorer. The officers stood by to ensure there would be no problems during his second, successful attempt.

Officials then took the Explorer off of the computer network and ran the man's name through it.

The check revealed that Livonia police have a warrant out for the man for failing to appear for a court proceeding on another charge.

Police considered charging the man with filing a false police report but in the end decided not to.

Schools could win exemption from open meetings, information acts

By TIM RICHARD

University boards won a partial victory in round one of their effort to shut the doors on presidential searches.

The state Senate Thursday gave 28-9 and 26-11 approval to bills exempting 15 state universities from the "sunshine laws" - the Open Meetings Act and Freedom of Information Act.

An eight-year battle now shifts to the House, where the Michigan Press Association and Common Cause think they have a better chance of crippling the bills and keeping presidential searches before the public eye.

"You're afraid to let the public know what's going on," said Sen. Joe Conroy, D-Flint, an opponent. He predicted that school districts, community colleges, cities, counties and townships would seek the same power to hire behind closed doors if the Senate bills become law.

"This is the first of many bills coming down the pike," he said.

Senate Bill 211, amending the Open Meetings Act, passed 28-9 and Senate Bill 212, amending the Freedom of Information Act, passed 26-11.

Area senators voting no included Robert Geake, R-Northville, Absent was David Honigman, R-West Bloomfield, who is recuperating from back surgery.

Geake represents Northville Township and the Wayne County portion of the city.

Honigman represents the Oakland County part of Northville in the Senate.

The Open Meetings bill was amended several times in two intense days of debate.

The final version says a university board may set up a screening committee that includes a student, a faculty member, an administrator, an alumni member, a public member, and one or more board members - but less than a quorum of the board.

The screening committee would present names of three finalists to the full board, which must wait 30 days before making a selection.

The FOIA bill says candidates' applications are secret, but the applications of the three finalists, once picked, become public record.

Sen. Alma Smith, R-South Lyon, lost an amendment to confine the bills to the Big Three universities with elected boards - U-M, Michigan State and Wayne State.

She argued the 11 regional universities with appointive boards should be required to work in public. Her amendment lost 4-16 in a non-record roll call vote.

Sen. John Schwarz, R-Battle Creek, introduced the bills to reverse a 1993 state Supreme Court decision against the University of Michigan. The high court ruled U-M regents violated both sunshine laws when they concluded a month search in 1988 by hiring Dr. James Duderstadt as president.

Meanwhile, suits are pending against Michigan State University trustees in their secret selection processes in the 1994 hiring of Peter McPherson.

"That decision takes away every shred of privacy," Schwarz told the Senate.

"It means the pool of candidates is smaller and of a lesser degree of quality. Usually, sitting presidents, deans or provosts are candidates. An open room chills the process."

"Extremely elitist," said opponent Conroy.

"These people make $150,000 a year, and we're supposed to protect them from scrutiny?"

Karen Holcomb-Merrill, executive director of Common Cause, opposed the bills, saying they "run counter to what the public has been calling for - more accountability." She rebutted Schwarz's and the U-M's claim that good candidates drop out, noting, "Many states have similar requirements for presidential searches at public colleges and universities."

The Michigan Press Association charged the Senate committee considering the bills called surprise hearings on short notice a week earlier. MPA said two senators left the hearings when opponents talked, saying they already knew how they would vote. MPA said opponents were cut short in their argument time.

The sunshine laws went on the books in 1976 after the Watergate scandals.

The Open Meetings Act requires: "All meetings of a public body shall be open to the public and shall be held in a place available to the public." It requires "all decisions" and "all deliberations" to be in public.

It allows closed meetings "to review the specific contents of an application for employment or appointment to a public office if the candidate requests that the application remain confidential. However, all interviews by a public body for employment or appointment to a public office shall be held in an open meeting."

In the U-M case, the regents tried to get around this provision by denying they actually voted to pare the list of candidates down from 125 to one; by saying there were no "applications" - only "nominations" and "writings"; by requiring all candidates to demonstrate confidentiality at the start of their interviews; and by saying there were no "interviews," just "visitations."

Refer to Senate Bills 211 and 212 when writing to your state representative.

Teaching teachers

East Lansing High School Assistant Principal Nancy Davis speaks to Northville teachers about the planning day in the Holt school district, where she used to work. The Holt program was used as a model for the one-year pilot effort now in place at Northville High School. Under the program, teachers meet in special study sessions Wednesday mornings and classes don't begin until 10:40 a.m. that day. An evaluation of how well the program has worked so far will be presented at a board of education meeting tonight. The meeting will take place at 7:30 p.m. in the board meeting room at Old Village School. Omnicom cable plans to tape the meeting and will air it on cable channel 15 Friday, April 7, 6-9 p.m., and Tuesday, April 11, 9 p.m.-midnight. A copy of the tape will be made available at the Northville District Library.

OCC friends urge second try for millage

By TIM RICHARD
Staff Writer

"The family" at Oakland Community College urged the board of trustees to ask voters a second time to hike the general-purpose property tax.

"We're already at 45 percent (yes). We're not that far away (from 51 percent)," said Harvey Bronstein, business administration professor at OCC's Orchard Ridge Campus in Farmington Hills. "If you get away from 'in perpetuity,' you can get 6 percent more."

That summed up more than a dozen comments at a March 31 special meeting from faculty, union leaders, students and staff members at OCC: Try again, try soon, ask for one mill or a bit less, and propose a fixed term of years rather than a forever tax.

On March 16 voters rejected, 18,000 to 23,000, the two-year college's request for a one-mill increase ($1 per $1,000 of taxable valuation). The seven-member board is scheduled to meet again Monday, April 10, when it's likely to set a new election date.

"We can do only one more time in a calendar year," said Chancellor Patsy Calkins. She said there might be difficulty getting on the June 12 ballot, when general school board elections are held, because those boards must take action to facilitate placing OCC's proposal on the ballot.

Aug. 8, Sept. 12 and Nov. 7 are other possible election dates, Calkins said.

"You've got to be on the ballot with the schools," said Gerald Faye, political science professor at Orchard Ridge, urging a June 12 date.

"It's a mistake to reduce the mill (ask less than a full mill)," said faculty member Charles Bloesser.

"We have some of the most anti-tax voters in the state," said Ron Spainhour, political science professor at the Highland Lakes Campus. He referred to the western lakes area of Oakland County, where the March 16 request failed harder than in the south and east.

OCC levies 0.85 mill for operations, all that's left of a one-mill levy approved by voters in 1965. In 1979 OCC levied as much as 1.7 mills, including a non-voted debt-retirement levy.

A one-mill increase, if approved this year by voters, would result in a tax rate of about 1.8 mills and enable the college to raise its budget from the current $71 million to about $100 million.

Tech Center program soon to be available to NHS students

By YVONNE BEEBE
Staff Writer

The floral shop in the Southwest Campus of the Oakland Technical Center is bustling with business.

The shop, saturated with sweet-smelling aromas, was filled with patrons last Friday afternoon grabbing up fragrant and attractive floral arrangements at rock-bottom prices.

Business was not the only thing bustling that day. The technical center's students had their plates full accommodating the long lines of customers waiting to take home their new packages to decorate their homes and offices.

"This class teaches us how to work in the real world," said Walled Lake Western High School student Ashlee Burns, who hopes to own and manage her own store one day. "Without this class, I would have no idea how to do all this."

The Walled Lake senior spends half of her day in traditional academic classes at the high school and then travels to Oakland Technical Center for three hours in the afternoon to study floral arranging, in addition to the ins and outs of running a floral business.

Northville High School students will have the opportunity to get involved with OTC's specialized programs beginning next year. Currently, the Northville school district belongs to the Wayne County technical center. The advent of Proposal A, however, — putting all Michigan's school districts on similar per-pupil funding levels — allows school districts to cross county lines and send students to different programs.

Northville students who opt to spend part of their day at the technical center will have a portion of their state funding routed to OTC.

Northville has 18 students attending the William Ford Vocational Technical Center at the Wayne-Westland school district this year.

Dolly McMaster, assistant superintendent for instructional services, said she is excited about the opportunities students will have available to them next year at OTC.

"These programs allow kids to see the relevance of what they are asked to do in the classroom," McMaster said. "They can see the bigger picture."

OTC offers classes in 22 subject areas including computer aided design, dental and medical assisting, machine technology, greenhouse management and landscaping, auto body repair, and engineering and cosmetology, among others.

Districts which currently participate in OTC's Southwest Campus include Clarenceville, Farmington, Huron Valley, Novi, South Lyon, Walled Lake and West Bloomfield.

Through the program, open to high school juniors and seniors, students can receive up to three credits per year toward graduation.

The district has opted to join OTC because of the diversity of the programs it offers paired with its proximity to the school district, McMaster said. OTC is located at 1000 Beck Rd. in Wixom.

OTC counselor Richard Briggs said the school is an excellent tool to arm students with the specialized knowledge they need to enter the workforce.

"Our philosophy here is simple — we believe that when students leave here, they should be employable in some field," said Briggs, adding that 80 percent of jobs in the United States require technical training rather than four-year college degrees. "Industry is crying for qualified workers."

In an effort to assist graduating students land jobs in their chosen fields, OTC has a full-time job placement person.

The center does not take job offers for students that are less than $15,000 per year, Briggs said.

One of the unfortunate stigmas attached to technical centers like Oakland's, Briggs said, is the perception that the centers are for below-average students who would otherwise drop out of school. In reality, OTC operates on the level of a junior college with most classrooms using college freshman textbooks, he said.

Assistant Superintendent

"There has been a perception that students at technical centers are light weights — they haven't arrived yet," Briggs said. "That's a real misgiving."

"We have students who are exceptionally bright," said Jane Sloat, also an OTC counselor. "They get good grades and move their way up."

As an example, Briggs mentioned one recent OTC graduate who received her cosmetologist's license and now cuts hair to pay her way through law school. About one-third of all OTC students go on to college while the other two-thirds enter the world of work after graduation.

The school allows students to receive the hands-on experience they might not have had the opportunity to obtain in their high schools, and enables them to apply the knowledge they learn in the classroom to real world situations, Briggs said.

"The thing that is neat here is that students want to be here," he said. "We have very few discipline problems."

OTC will be holding an open house Sunday, May 7, from noon-5 p.m. for interested parents and students. The center is also open to adults on a tuition basis if high school students do not fill all the classroom slots.

Plymouth Symphony seeks volunteer help

The Plymouth Symphony Orchestra honors VIPS or Volunteers Improving the Plymouth Symphony.

The Plymouth Symphony is looking for volunteers to help their organization. "This is a good time to get involved," said Pat Derderian, director of VIPS.

"We're celebrating our 50th anniversary this year and some really fun things are happening." In addition to the concerts, other activities include a free concert in July at Canton Heritage Park, a kick-off reception in September and a gala dinner-dance at Fox Hills Country Club in April.

Wilma Sedore, of Plymouth, has been a volunteer for two months.

"I got involved just so I could do something useful," she said.

Sedore retired two years ago from Environmental Research Industry of Michigan in Ann Arbor.

"I have run copies, cut tickets and made phone calls. It's been kind of fun," she said.

An organizational meeting for VIPS will be held on Wednesday,

April 12, at 11 a.m., at the Plymouth Symphony office in the PMC building at 42245 Ann Arbor Road in Plymouth, on the corner of Ann Arbor Road and General Drive.

Call the Plymouth Symphony at (313) 451-2112 for information.

Oakland official likes Archer's selection

By TIM RICHARD
Staff Writer

George Kuhn, the Oakland County drain commissioner who has fought Detroit for decades, couldn't be happier with Mayor Dennis Archer's latest appointment to the Detroit Water Board.

Marilynn E. Gosling, former Oakland County commissioner from Bloomfield Hills, was Archer's choice. And Kuhn was pleased because "she is one of the five well-qualified Oakland County residents whose names I submitted for his (Archer's) consideration."

That's a first - the mayor of Detroit asking a suburban official like Kuhn for names. It was unheard of during the 20-year tenure of Coleman Young. But Archer, a polished lawyer and former state Supreme Court justice, has mended a lot of fences north of Eight Mile Road since taking office in 1994.

Kuhn and Republican lawmakers like Sen. David Bonigman, of West Bloomfield, would be happier if the Detroit Water Board were regionalized, with board members picked by the governmental customers. But Kuhn called the Gosling appointment "a long overdue step in the right direction."

Gosling said Kuhn approached her last summer to be a candidate. After 14 years on the county board, she was going through a tough primary that she eventually lost.

"I got an extensive questionnaire from the city," Gosling said. "Then Archer's office called me. Steve Gordon, the director, interviewed me. I had an extensive interview with the mayor. I got a letter March 13 telling me I had been appointed."

"The mayor hopes I'll be a bridge between the city and suburbs. He isn't going to tell me how to vote," she said.

The water board has seven members - four from Detroit and three from the suburban customers. What irks Kuhn is that all seven are appointed by the mayor.

and all may be fired at any time. That happened in the late 1970s when Young dumped Livonia's then-mayor Ed McNamara for raising too many questions about water and sewage treatment rates. The bitterness lasted for years. It fueled suburbia's suspicion that Detroit was overcharging for water to subsidize the general city government and its own inefficiency.

"I was at my first meeting last week," Gosling said. "We had an orientation and workshop. It was very interesting. There are some really nice people there, and they are very anxious to go a good job. But there are some gross problems. The mayor is dedicated to keeping it a Detroit system."

"We have a meeting every month. There are also study sessions and hearings. I want to do my homework and tour the facilities."

"This is not a totally new field for me. I served on the (Oakland) drain board as a substitute and attended many meetings of the drain board. I served on the Sanitary Code appeal board."

"At SEMCOG (the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments), I was vice-chair, served on the sewer service map committee, was co-chair of the regional development initiative, and chaired the finance committee."

Going to meetings is an avocation with Gosling. In 14 years on the Oakland County board, she made a point of attending virtually every committee meeting - even the ones of which she wasn't a member and wasn't paid to attend. A reporter who came in late or needed background could ask the white-haired lady with the notebook for a reliable summary of what was going on.

A conservative Republican, Gosling nevertheless took a strong interest in the "urban sprawl" issue - the problem of developers' paving over farmland and meadows for mall parking lots at a rate faster than population growth.

School district technology needs assessed school at another location; or 2) $37-$40 million to renovate and construct additions onto the high school and build a new middle school.

The district's committee on enhancement millage is in the process of debating whether to ask Northville voters for a maximum of three mills for the next two years - which would provide roughly $2.7 million each year.

The relationship of the three groups is vital, according to technology members. Enhancement millage money - which can fund technology support staff, software and network upgrades as well as bond money used for hardware purchases - is vital to the success of the initiative, said committee member David Kowalski.

"We are very conscious of the fact that if the enhancement doesn't fly, we won't have the staff to support all the wonderful things we can do with the hardware," Kowalski said.

$1.98 million of the proposed enhancement funds would go toward the hiring of hardware and software support staff as well as a technical assistant in each building. The support staff is an integral part of the technology plan, said Assistant Superintendent for Instructional Services Dolly McMaster, and is needed to enable teachers to concentrate on lessons and teach the technology to students.

"If you look at a place of work or any office, they have someone designated as a systems operator - a trouble shooter," McMaster said. "That's what these people will be doing."

The list of hardware and software needs is neither excessive nor the bare-bones minimum, Kowalski said, but rather an essential list needed to promote first-rate education for students.

The committee began with about $10 million in identified technology needs and then pared down an additional $3 million. Much of the proposed hardware - including 16 new computer labs, districtwide - builds upon the fiber optic capabilities the district has as a result of the 1989 bond issue (which costs approximately $1 million to install).

In the report, the committee recommends $1.2 million in technology additions for the elementary schools including the installation of one computer lab in each of the elementarys excluding Thornton Creek, which already has a lab.

The committee identified $1 million in needs for the middle schools, including two additional labs - to make a total of three labs at both Cooke and Meads Mill.

$1.2 million in technology needs have been identified at the high school, including the installation of four additional labs to make a total of eight computer labs (including one for computer aided design).

All of the computer labs are slated to include 33 486PC computers and two laser printers. Districtwide, $800,000-$900,000 in software needs have been identified.

One of the most difficult obstacles committee members face is how to present the district's needs to the community - especially to the some 70 percent of the residents who do not have children in the schools.

"The thing that people have to realize is that Northville is going to be a successful community when the culture of that community is in a learning environment," Kowalski said.

The report identified a number of benefits to the community of the proposed technology. Through the district's fiber optic system, the district would have the ability to hook up with other networks including the district library (discussions to do this are already under way). Individual residents who own computers could also access the district's network.

The report also sets goals to develop a community PC lab concept with community education programs where students and teachers could head informational workshops. The group also hopes to increase the number of community/business partnerships and projects by 10 percent each year.

Council looks at cautious budget for coming year

ment. For the past couple months, officials from the city's finance department have cloistered themselves in their offices diving headlong into the work load and making cuts where possible.

"An awful lot of work has gone into this," Word said.

The council previously set a time table of special and regular meetings to hash out the details of the budget: On April 13, 18 and 25 the council will discuss various aspects of the budget in special meetings at 7:30 p.m. at city hall.

As mandated by state law, the city must notify residents if taxes are proposed to go up by May 4 (not anticipated this year).

Also by May 4, complete copies of the budget document will be available for public inspection at the city clerk's office during regular business hours. In addition, a limited number of copies will be available to be checked out for review for residents at home.

On May 15 at the council's regular meeting, the budget will appear on the agenda for approval. A formal budget hearing for the public will be conducted prior to a vote from the council.

The comprehensive report Word submitted Monday night shows that Northville's proposed millage for combined operating and debt is 2.6 percent lower than last year. In 1994 the city levied 15.96 mills. This year's proposed millage is 15.55 mills.

The projected operating millage for the budget is a proposed 12.23 mills - translated into $12.23 per $1,000 of a home's taxable value. The operating millage rate in 1994 was 12.50.

The primary reason for a reduction in the city's operating millage is a deletion of the portion of money Northville collected to fund the public library to avoid a "double-dipping" of taxpayer funds, Bateson said.

When city and township voters approved the library's district status last May, they also approved a 1 mill levy to go toward operating expenses - effectively eliminating the city's and township's joint responsibility to fund the library.

In addition, debt retirement for Northville's Street Reconstruction Program - involving bond issues approved by voters in 1986 and 1990 - and for the Randolph Drain Project is proposed to go down by 3.7 percent and 6.4 percent, respectively. The reason for those reductions is declining interest on the projects as they move closer each year to being paid off.

Depending on the taxable value of a resident's home, Bateson said homeowners' tax bills could reflect the declining millage rates on a relatively small scale.

Property tax revenue accounts for 72 percent of the city's revenue. Shared state revenue - which is projected to increase this year by 2.5 percent - is the city's second largest fund source, contributing 14 percent of Northville's budget. License fees and permits, fines and forfeits and sales and services account for the rest of the budget.

Officials weigh benefits of two Ward proposals

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

Which Ward Church development plan would benefit Northville Township residents the most: the HPUD design or a parallel one using conventional zoning rules?

Ward officials and developer Gary Sakwa say the HPUD proposal is clearly the better choice. Township planning consultants question that claim, however, as do many community residents.

Sakwa has agreed to build the commercial shopping center included in Ward's HPUD plan if it wins township approval. Several studies of the plan that he's commissioned support the idea that the HPUD alternative is better than the parallel plan. That proposal includes the church, a residential subdivision and seven office buildings totaling more than 1 million square feet of space.

The studies cite a number of reasons why the HPUD plan outclasses the parallel one. They include:

- The fact that 76 acres of the 140 acre site (54 percent of the total) would be either preserved as natural open space or turned into recreational open space that Ward would let township residents freely use.

- The HPUD plan would mean $500,000 a year in tax revenues to the township, the studies said, much more than the parallel plan could generate.
- Ward, the studies said, would be a valuable contribution to the township community, offering a variety of services and programs that township residents would be able to take part in.

- The commercial center would be very economically viable, the studies claimed, including a proposed Farmer Jack supermarket. The studies said that it could do well despite the presence of other area food stores.
- The number one objection most people have voiced to the Ward plan has been that it increases traffic in an already-clogged area. Ward officials and Sakwa, answer it by arguing that the land will be developed eventually in any event.

Given that fact they suggest that the township should try to approve a plan that has the least traffic impact on the area. The parallel plan would bring more traffic than the HPUD plan, the studies said, especially during rush hours. That's because the office buildings would see most of their traffic during those times while the commercial center in the HPUD plan would spread its traffic out over the hours of the day, the studies said.

The studies also claimed that the HPUD proposal would not "exacerbate" congestion problems that now exist at Six Mile and Haggerty.

The township traffic engineer, however, said that statement "may be misleading" simply because the proposed development is so big.

Other township consultants doubted other conclusions of the studies, saying that they do not believe the case has been made that the HPUD plan is better than the parallel plan.

That's a view shared by the vast majority of township residents who've written the planning commission about the Ward proposal.

Hearing scheduled Tuesday on church/retail plan posal than under a parallel plan using conventional zoning.

That plan calls for Ward to share the site with 42 acres of office space and 85 acres set aside for 72 single family homes. Seven office buildings and associated parking would occupy the parcel's Haggerty Road frontage. The subdivision takes up most of the eastern half. Ward and its parking areas would lie near Six Mile.

The HPUD plan has a distinctly different look. It calls for a 297,000 square foot shopping center and its 1,345 parking spaces to run along Haggerty, taking up 26 acres. Ward Church would measure 240,000 square feet and include up to 3,500 parking spaces. A loop road would circle the church and the shopping center, with an entrance off of Haggerty and one off Six Mile. Two more Haggerty entrances are also included.

The plan calls for some 76 acres of the site - 55 percent of the total - to be preserved as open space or turned into active recreational areas such as ballfields. Ironically, as large as that sounds it's still not enough to satisfy the requirements of the HPUD ordinance, which says that at least 60 percent of the site has to be used for open space or residential uses. The commission can waive that requirement if it wishes, however.

Church officials and commercial developer Gary Sakwa say the HPUD plan brings the township that substantial benefit but not everyone agrees with them (see related story).

Program will give youths a chance to learn about work of firefighters

By YVONNE BEEBE

Ask children what they hope to be when they grow up and some will say movie stars, others will say doctors and many will say firefighters.

For kids who never gave up their dreams of becoming a firefighter or for young people who have a genuine interest in the profession, the Northville City Fire Department has created an opportunity for men and women aged 14-20 to get their feet wet, so to speak.

The city fire department has chartered an Explorer Post program through the Detroit Area Council, Boy Scouts of America. Through the new post Northville's young people will have the opportunity to meet with fire department personnel bi-monthly to learn more about the fire fighting and EMS professions.

The department will hold an organizational meeting tonight at 7 p.m. at the fire station, 215 W. Main St. Young people and their parents are invited to attend. There is a $7 registration fee for those who enroll in the program.

Over the years, Sergeant Stephen Ott said many area kids have expressed interest and curiosity in the careers of department staff. The new post offers an ideal opportunity for young people to get involved in the department to determine whether they would like to pursue a career in the field, he said.

"Many of us here at the station thought it would be nice if we had a structured program to offer these kids because the interest is there," Ott said.

The meetings will be held twice a month on Thursday nights at the city fire station.

Although the actual agenda of activities will be determined in part by the Explorers, they will participate in field training activities, like CPR certification training and water drills to hook up pumps to hydrants.

Participants will also attend field trips to fire service and EMS events around the state as well as public service activities in the community.

The program will help potential firefighters gain exposure to the field through training and involvement, Ott said.

All the post activities will be supervised by adult leaders from both the fire department and the community.

Board tightens reimbursement policy guidelines

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

Supervisor Karen Baja's Meadowbrook Country Club membership (see related story) is the main reason why Northville Township's Board of Trustees recently did an about-face on its expense reimbursement policy.

Last week the trustees on a 5-2 vote adopted tough new rules outlining the expenses for which the township will and won't reimburse elected officials. The policy is more stringent than the one the board informally agreed to at March 2 study session.

The change is a concrete sign that the feud between Baja and the board — which has been on the back burner for the last few months — may again be coming to a boil.

Those in the majority cite Baja's handling of the Meadowbrook incident as the reason for the new policy. She and Treasurer Rick Engelland say that the two issues aren't connected and the supervisor steadfastly maintains that she hasn't done anything wrong.

At the March 2 meeting the board considered what expenses its members could get reimbursed for and how that procedure would work. The debate arose after disputes occurred over some of Baja's reimbursement requests.

Normal township procedure calls for all checks to have two signatures from among the four people authorized to sign them: Baja, Clerk Sue Hillebrand, Treasurer Rick Engelland and Finance Director Dwayne Harrigan.

Hillebrand claimed that in the past she, Engelland and Harrigan have refused to sign reimbursement checks for expenses submitted by Baja. They did so, she continued, because they felt the expenses didn't qualify as "official."

Despite that, Hillebrand added, Baja had signed the checks and cashed them. For her part the supervisor defended her actions, claiming that her expenses met policy requirements.

Hillebrand asked the board to discuss reimbursement procedures "so I won't have to be judge and jury any more."

At the study session the board looked at three different options: allowing the administration to continue to approve reimbursements, eliminating them altogether or requiring board approval for them. In the end the trustees decided that elected officials can submit reimbursement requests for mileage and business meals administratively but must seek prior board approval for anything else.

The trustees adopted tough new rules outlining the expenses for which the township will and won't reimburse elected officials.

The day after the study session was when Baja notified the board by memo of the Meadowbrook membership and the fact that she was going to accept it. By the time March 30 rolled around five of the other six trustees were angry enough about it to support a tougher version of the policy, one requiring board approval of all reimbursement expenses.

Hillebrand rejected Engelland's call for the March 2 policy to be approved, which provoked strong feelings from both of them.

"Why do we have study sessions if we make a different decision when it comes time to a vote," Engelland asked.

"When we're not given all the facts I find it hard to make a decision," Hillebrand replied.

The final tally to approve the new policy was 5-2, Baja and Engelland casting "no" votes.

Long time Baja supporter Mark Abbo was one of the five, a possible sign that the days of 4-3 split votes on key issues could be out and 5-2 votes in.

Abbo said he "reluctantly" agreed to support the policy and asked the trustees to amend it to state that the board would not "unreasonably withhold" any legitimate expenses.

That won on 6-1 support, Baja being the lone opponent.

whether any sanctions could be imposed on Baja if a violation is found to have taken place.

Meadowbrook has offered past township supervisors honorary memberships. Baja said that in December ex-club president Jack Doheny indicated that Meadowbrook's board of directors wanted to extend the same offer to her for the remainder of her term. He did not say and she did not ask why the club had waited more than two years after she took office to do so, Baja added.

Meadowbrook formally made the offer on Feb. 8. Baja told Engelland and Abbo about it soon afterwards but did not inform the other four trustees. They learned about it and of her plans to accept the membership in a March 3 memo from Baja.

The four trustees said that the supervisor should not have agreed to accept the membership. They added that Baja should have brought it up during a board discussion of the township's expense reimbursement policy (see related story). The reason, they said, is that Baja would seek reimbursement for expenses incurred when she conducts meetings at the club that relate to township business.

They estimated the membership is worth tens of thousands of dollars because Meadowbrook agreed to waive costly join-up fees. Baja, who said she doesn't golf, will be responsible for usage expenses such as greens fees and restaurant bills.

"It was a less than honest way of doing things," Britton said. "There seems to be a problem in that someone doesn't know the difference between what's legal and what's ethical. I thought we had crossed the bridge and were being more open and honest and candid with each other. I felt I had been deceived."

"It's both objectionable and very disappointing that you just stuck this information in Friday's package and had concealed it from the board's Thursday study session," Fogg said in a memo to Baja.

Baja's actions, Hillebrand said in a memo, "show me that you're not interested in or committed to the success of this board."

"I was offered something and I made the decision to accept it," Baja said. "I did not feel I needed your approval. I still don't. To be indicated that I was dishonest concerns me very much. I would caution the board to very careful with their accusations."

The timing of the offer has also led to criticism. Some have questioned the fact that the membership was offered weeks before the township's planning commission to seek approval for a minor addition to its facility.

The addition was agreed to, as was a variance that allowed the club not to have to build sidewalks along Eight Mile. Some have said that's odd because officials usually try to persuade property owners to install sidewalks when they need township permission for that type of project.

"I'm not saying that anything illegal or wrong took place," Hillebrand said. "It just looks a little strange. It gives a bad impression."

The club offered the commission reasons for granting the variance. Baja firmly maintained that she did not have anything to do with the commission's decisions. In fact, the supervisor said, if she'd been on the commission she'd have supported making the club put in the sidewalks or place money in escrow for them.

Club officials did not return phone calls from The Northville Record.

RECORD OPINION

THURSDAY

Our Opinion

Supervisor blows shot at trusting relationship

Seems like old times again in Northville Township.

After a brief period of detente, members of the board of trustees have sunk back into the cold war that's been the norm for most of their 28 months in office. That's where they're probably going to stay for the rest of their tenure and it's all thanks to Supervisor Karen Baja.

Four trustees have publicly accused Baja of violating the township's ethics policy, something she helped write and voted for three years ago. A formal investigation is coming and the township's ethics committee will soon report its findings back to the board.

Trustees Gini Britton, Russ Fogg and Barbara O'Brien and Clerk Sue Hillebrand are angry about Baja's decision early last month to accept an honorary membership worth tens of thousands of dollars from Meadowbrook Country Club, located on Eight Mile. They also don't like the fact that the supervisor concealed it from them for months.

Meadowbrook approached Baja in December about the membership, which lasts through the remainder of her term. The club formally made the offer in February. Baja told the board about it and the fact that she was accepting it in a March 3 memo.

The four trustees say she should have let them know long before that. They also allege that Baja's action violates the township's ethics policy, which forbids elected officials from accepting any gift with a value of more than $25. A legal opinion from township attorney Jim Tamm backs up that claim.

Baja has angrily replied that - as always - she hasn't done anything wrong and that she doesn't need the board's permission to accept the membership.

The upshot of all this is that the fragile trust Baja and the board have rebuilt over the last few months is now gone, possibly for good. It's her fault and in the long run Northville Township as a whole will suffer because of the supervisor's actions.

The way she's handled this entire episode is yet another example of the kind of spectacularly bad judgment and the "to heck with you all" attitude that Karen Baja is infamous for.

As Baja well knows, since she was on the committee that wrote it, the ethics policy was enacted to prevent elected officials from accepting precisely this kind of gift. That is certainly not to suggest that Meadowbrook has done anything inappropriate. It's merely a fact that Northville Township has decided that it wants its elected officials to stay away from anything that could be perceived as an ethical conflict.

Whether that's a smart course of action or overkill isn't the point. It's official township policy and Baja knew it. The fact that she went ahead and accepted the membership anyway demonstrates that for all her other skills the supervisor isn't long on restraint. She's showed that she'll cross the line when it suits her regardless of policy or consequences.

The proof of the latter is in the pudding. Baja isn't dumb: she knew what the trustees' reaction would be, namely that almost every member of the board viewed her actions as a slap in the face. They see it as burning the delicate bridges of communication and trust that the seven of them have built in the months since Manager Tamara Hanlin was hired.

Baja's actions delivered the message to the other trustees that she'll do what she wants how she wants when she wants and will deliberately keep the board out of the information loop for as long as possible. It delivers the same message to the citizens of Northville Township and they should take it the same way that the board has.

The effect this will have on the board's ability to work together for the good of the township is the worst part of all of this.

The trustees' past internal strife has already retarded that effort. The best example of that fact was last year's millage defeats, including rejection of requests for mills for police and fire services.

Instead of spending their time focusing on the needs of the township the trustees have spent and will now spend a good chunk of their time concentrating on each other.

That's the real tragedy here. For no good reason Baja has singlehandedly trashed her last chance to establish some sort of civil working relationship with the rest of the board and it's the community that will pay the price for it.

Although they're already doing it we urge the rest of the board and township residents as a whole to keep Baja under the microscope from now on.

Prison report is Major Dumb

Sometimes you have to wonder why they don't require federal governmental workers to have at least half a brain.

Lee Snider

The ingenious staff at the Department of Justice released a report last week detailing appalling conditions of abuse at two Michigan women's prisons, including Scott Correctional in Northville Township.

The politically correct 12-page document said female inmates are often sexually molested by male guards and denied basic medical care. The report went on to say that inmates' complaints of physical pain are routinely ignored and that punishment is frequently arbitrary.

State Corrections officials responded quickly and sharply to the claims, pulling no punches in insisting the report contained "half-truths, innuendoes, distortions and lies."

Their problem with the study? All of the data on which it was based came from inmates and their attorneys.

Yup, cons and, well, lawyers. Did it ever occur to the feds that prisoners and their hired guns might have something to gain by bad-mouthing the system? That maybe those doing the complaining hope to make a couple of bucks from an out-of-court settlement or get back at the people who are saddled with the miserable job of keeping them in line?

Naw, how could that be? They said it, didn't they? It must be true.

And they wonder why people don't have faith in Washington. With thinking like that directing the country at its highest levels, who needs the communists? We're our own worst enemy.

The flawed methodology of the Justice Department report came about after a federal district judge denied department officials access to state prisons last year.

It happened when Justice heard about potential problems at two facilities (Scott and Florence Crane in Coldwater) and asked for permission to do some snooping around. After the state said an emphatic no, the feds pressed their case in court. The judge, however, ruled that justification for a federal inspection was lacking and rejected the Justice Department's request to enter the prisons.

Having been rebuffed in their attempt to conduct an official inquiry, the feds did what they thought was the next best thing. They sat in the visiting rooms and interviewed the inmates.

Am I missing something here? How can you get valid conclusions based on the word of people of dubious character who have a vested interest in the outcome of the situation? That'd be like asking O.J. if he killed those two people and taking him at his word when he answered "no."

It's hard to imagine where the Justice Department is coming from in this - state officials think there's a hidden agenda someplace.

As for me, I think I might have an explanation. The feds are even dumber than we thought.

Sport is real character builder

It's that time again - the beginning of the spring youth soccer season.

Carol Workens

There was a time when I looked forward to each season. But after a half dozen years and three children who have participated in the program, my response is more reserved.

Throughout the years we have been involved in a variety of teams and experienced various coaching styles. Most of these volunteer coaches know the importance of youth sports - to teach fundamentals, sportsmanship and team cooperation in a positive supportive manner while throwing in a little fun for good measure. Unfortunately there are a few coaches, and even more parents, whose priorities differ.

What is important for all those involved - parents, coaches, assistant coaches and even the players, to remember is the saying, "It doesn't matter who wins or loses, it's how well you played the game."

There were times, when the kids were younger, when they didn't even know what the score was or whether they had won or lost. They remembered the great pass or kick and the snacks at the end. They thought they had played a great game and the coach was supportive throughout.

Now they are older and more aware of the score, they feel badly if they lose. I remind them, it's not whether you win or lose, it's how you played the game.

To console them after a loss I ask - Do you feel comfortable with your performance? Were you a good teammate? Did you play fairly? If you can answer yes, then you did the best you can do and that's what counts. I think the same questions should be asked of all the players on both teams.

Rather, I hear comments from parents and kids on a team where the win has just eluded them that the other team played dirty, or the referee missed-called some plays, in an attempt to justify the loss.

Does this tell the underdogs that if you can get away with the dirty tactics in order to win, it's OK?

We were on a team that was having a lousy season and during one game with the score 26 to 0, the opposing team was still out for blood.

The coach told his players that they were not to score anymore, a decision he should have made sooner.

The outcome would have been the same. One hot dog player, when presented with an opportunity to score, did. The coach pulled him out of the game and the player's parents were furious.

The coach attempted to explain to the parents that their son had disobeyed his instructions. He was also going to explain why he gave the directions but he could see that the parents were not on the same wave length. They did not have a clue.

It really doesn't matter who wins or loses at this young age. Learning and practicing good sportsmanship and team cooperation is much, much more important.

They will learn skills they can use for the rest of their lives not just when they are on the field, but when they are on the sidelines.

We have the ability and the opportunity to teach a great deal to our youth. When they are older, they will be able to learn a lot about their friends through play.

Letters

Set the record straight on Ward

I want to help dispel some of the financial misinformation about the Ward Church HPUD that was conveyed in a recent letter to the editor.

Officially submitted documents on the project state that the commercial center is expected to generate tax revenue of approximately $480,000 a year, not the outrageously low $20,000 stated in the letter. That $480,000 estimate includes over $65,000 annually for police and fire, and over $380,000 annually for our school district.

Importantly, this tax revenue would be gained with no extra pressures on our school district to absorb students as would happen if single family homes were built on the site.

Very few people realize what a good tax neighbor Ward Church has been. Last year, Ward paid $186,500 in taxes to the township for that farmland, and over the last 10 years has contributed a total of $1,450,723 in tax dollars to this community. And these numbers do not include the additional assessment for sewer improvements which the church has been paying off.

The land will ultimately be developed in one of three ways: 1) the church will use all the land for its own needs, and will remove the entire parcel from the tax rolls; 2) the church will use the current approved zoning which allows it to combine with office buildings, and we'll have terrible ongoing traffic problems at that intersection every rush hour; or 3) the church will combine with a commercial center, as is proposed in the new plan.

This plan minimizes traffic problems and maximizes revenue for the community. I see substantial benefit for the township with this newest Ward plan.

Commission is acting cautiously

To the Editor:

The Township Planning Commission has been taking plenty of time to make sure the Ward Planned Unit Development is a good one for our community, and I am grateful. As a community resident and Ward Church member, I have a desire both to see the church move to the new site and to see the community protected and preserved.

We all have to remember that the land is going to be developed one way or another - it will not sit vacant forever. I am convinced the new Ward plan provides advantages over the current office/residential zoning.

In 1993, our planning commission was wise in adopting the HPUD process, because it gives them much more control over the details of what happens on the site, and coordinates all of the architecture, landscaping and other types of land use. They get input into decisions right down to the color of the bricks used! And it guarantees that there will be no surprises for residents down the line - neither Ward nor the commercial developers can alter the plan in the future.

Ward did not buy this 139 acres so it could become a "developer." The church's original plans were to develop the entire site themselves, envisioning a church, a senior citizens center and a church school. This would have taken 139 of the most valuable acres in the township off the tax rolls permanently. Instead, they have tried to develop a "win-win" plan - good for both the township and the church.

Most importantly, Ward desires to be a good neighbor. Church leadership is very concerned about their reputation in the community, and has tried to develop a plan that would be both high quality and of real benefit to the township residents. I'm sure they'll be concerned every step of the way to produce a pleasing development.

Please take time to learn the facts, and I think you'll agree that the Ward HPUD is far superior to what could happen to the site under the already approved zoning.

Was meeting manipulated?

To the Editor:

The Northville Township Planning Board met regarding the Ward Shopping Center proposal at Six Mile and Haggerty. One, the chairman had to excuse himself as his son worked for part of the development team. Fine in public but what about behind closed doors?

Two, we were all handed an expensive glossy hand out. Three, the developers pitched for 45 minutes. Four, a runner for the supervisor announced there were too many people and the meeting was over. Everyone who donated quality time from family and other civic affairs did not even get one chance to even speak. Manipulation?

The problem is the Planning Board means nothing as you have a supervisor and some developer-friendly trustees who can do what they want before they are removed from office, many months too long from now.

A church and offices will be bad enough for traffic, but seven-day-a-week congestion will cause many more accidents at an already very dangerous corner.

A mega shopping center parking lot next to an expressway is a "drug dealers dream" as we found out on Eight Mile, and this development will have even less professional security.

How is anyone to prevent a dramatic decrease in sale value of any house off Six Mile when a buyer thinks about fighting expressway traffic on the way home from work, only to find more and worse on Six Mile?

If Ward Development can build a mega shopping center with such trendy upscale stores as Farmer Jack, how can one deny others across the street and along Haggerty? Thus more shops.

The crux of the problem is that the developers stand to make a ton of money, politicians love the perks that developers can afford to give and most residents do not understand what is about to happen to their life style and property values.

Development facts misstated

To the Editor:

A recent letter to the editor contained inaccurate information on the Ward Church development proposal. Upon careful check, almost none of the statements were correct.

Ward's site is 139 acres, not 188 acres. The expected tax revenues from the site are approximately $480,000 a year if the HPUD is approved, not $20,000 as the letter suggested.

The "money hungry" developers referred to in the letter are setting aside 75 acres of the 139 acres to remain open space and park area. Robert Leighton, planner for the site, stated at a preliminary presentation, that in 25 years of professional experience he has never seen a project dedicate this much land to remain undeveloped.

Ward's decision to leave the woodland in the northwest section undeveloped is a very costly one. Sale of this area for residential development could have meant another $1.5 to $2 million dollars for the church project.

The "retail jungle" of 300,000 square feet referred to in the letter is designed on the order of upscale malls in Farmington Hills and West Bloomfield. The proposed Georgian architecture of the commercial site would be far superior to the "Home Depot" look.

Engineers have provided an excellent water runoff plan for the entire site. It is designed to perform at the "100 year storm" level. The system will collect water and properly (slowly) disperse it into the sewer system. The final design of the system must be approved by the township and county.

"Unsafe driving conditions" would not necessarily be created by the proposed HPUD. Current zoning allows office buildings which would dramatically increase the rush hour traffic at the Haggerty/Six Mile intersection.

A commercial center would generate no morning rush hour traffic and would disperse the traffic it generates throughout the entire day. The ring road designed into the proposed HPUD will help traffic at the intersection by giving the site users a number of points in ingress and egress and will ease circulation within the development.

Growth of the township is inevitable. The growth must be carefully planned and accurately presented to the public who will eventually benefit from it. I think the proposal under consideration by the township is the best proposal so far. Certainly better than other developments recently constructed along the Haggerty Road corridor.

Township's done its fair share

To the Editor:

Thank you for the "Our Opinion" in last week's Record about the double bunking increase for prisons in Western Wayne.

During the 1970s, our citizens raised a great deal of money to fight prison expansion and gain population caps for our township. The community and township officials worked long and hard for this law and they were successful, or so we thought.

Northville Township has been an outstanding community citizen to the state, county and the city of Detroit. We've been very understanding and patient about the vacant vandalized buildings on their property. We've come to the table with open minds to try and solve some of these problems and clean up the unsightly messes that our township inherited from the state, county and city when these facilities were abandoned.

Our township is very unique from other communities. We currently house a prison, the largest psychiatric hospital in Michigan, a state park, numerous group homes, a state police post (with firing range), a children's facility and a female adult facility.

In my opinion, we have done more than our fair share in providing tax exempt property and helping our state, county and city of Detroit with the various social programs that are needed.

I'm very proud to live in a community that is socially responsible, but, enough is enough. Our residents, elected officials, township employees, civic organizations, churches, schools and businesses all work hard to keep Northville Township the lovely, desirable, sought-after community that it has always been.

There is a very real need for more prison space, I understand that. However, Northville Township has done enough. It's time to move on and ask other communities to step up and do their fair share. I would encourage residents to contact their representatives in Lansing and urge them to vote "no" on repealing this law regarding "double bunking."

Come to meeting on technology

To the Editor:

This coming Monday, April 10, the Citizen/Staff Technology Committee will present their findings and recommendations to the Northville Board of Education. As a committee member, I want to provide the community with some insight regarding the topics we will be presenting.

In coming to a consensus on what would best serve the Northville community, the Technology Committee focused on several major issues. These include how the 1989 millage funds were invested and what benefits were realized, what are the current and future technology needs of the school district, and why can't the district attain these needs with existing equipment and software.

In addition, we investigated how technology is currently integrated into the school curriculum, the level of teacher commitment and comfort using the technology, and what areas or school facilities need enhancement to continue to achieve the required student capabilities defined by our community and school board.

Needless to say, it was quite an educational experience for most of us on the committee.

What we did find out, to our relief, was that the 1989 funds were wisely invested and now provide a solid technical foundation within the school district. We also found that most of the computer hardware purchased

Engler abandoning his principles

The MEGA debate is no longer on the merits of a state tax plan but the inconsistency of Gov. John Engler.

Tim Richard

As legislator and first-time gubernatorial candidate, Engler used to say, "Government shouldn't be picking winners and losers." Now, with the Michigan Economic Growth Authority, he is proposing to give tax credits to companies that increase employment here.

The situation is best summed up in this bit of doggerel, designed to be sung to the tune of Bill Bailey, Won't You Please Come Home:

Won't you come home, John Engler, won't you come home.
Liberals got hold of you?
MEGA picks business winners, all others lose, no more free market for you.

Mackinac Center's angry, De-troit News, too, since from your principles you roam.

There's laissez-faire gloom, at Adam Smith's tomb.
John Engler, won't you please come home?

The state Senate passed the MEGA bill, the House rejected it, but the House leadership plans to try again this week.

The issue is as old as the American republic. Alexander Hamilton, President Washington's Treasury secretary and economic guru, wanted to make the fledgling nation an industrial power. All the states' debts would be assumed and paid off, 100 cents on the dollar, by the federal government - to give investors confidence. A national bank would oversee a system of credit and money - mobilizing capital.

Tariffs on imports would protect "infant industries," not to mention finance the federal government. Raw materials wouldn't be exported. Government would inspect domestic manufactured goods to prevent fraud and assure quality. Roads and canals would move commerce. Inventors and their brainchildren would be protected. Bounties and high wages would be paid to skilled tradesmen who immigrated from Europe.

Hamilton's policy of promoting industry was emulated by Republican Gov. William Milliken. Democratic Gov. James Blanchard, Engler's predecessor, carbon-copied 99 percent of the Milliken agenda.

As a campaigner, Engler paid homage to the ideas of Scottish economist Adam Smith, who promoted non-interference ("laissez-faire") in his landmark work, The Wealth of Nations, in 1776. Hamilton specifically denounced the work.

Smith ripped apart the mercantile system of King George III: confining manufacturing to the mother country, limiting the colonies to furnishing raw materials, requiring all transportation by British ships, forbidding trade between the colonies and other nations.

Smith favored the "division and specialization of labor" and free trade, guided by "the invisible hand" of consumer demand. Said Engler: Cut taxes and get big government out of the way.

In the 1995 version of this 219-year-old debate, the central element is not what's right or wrong but how Engler abandoned the principles on which he campaigned and embraced a different point of view - after the election.

It's getting to be a habit. In 1990 Engler never campaigned on the notion of abolishing the General Assistance welfare program; but he did it after the election. Through the 1980s until 1994, he supported school reform legislation and tough state standards. This year he wants to rip up the School Code, toss out the tests, junk teacher accreditation standards and trust that local school boards will lead us in the paths of Plato and Aristotle. Now there is his MEGA plan.

As a national role beckons Engler, one is forced to wonder: What principles will he abandon next?

with the 1989 funds is already, or soon to be, outdated and is incapable of running current software modules.

Another area we felt strongly about is that the curriculum requirements for technology need to be embellished and strengthened. Finally, we assessed that if Northville residents are asked to approve an enhancement millage, we need to support the implementation of technology with adequate staffing and support. Otherwise it will be a waste of our time and money.

We determined that issues like the ones above are the major building blocks which need to be in place for technology to accomplish its goals of better preparing Northville students to compete in the real world. These "bricks" will provide a solid foundation upon which the community, the schools, and the students will all benefit through an investment in technology.

I hope that some of you can attend this Monday's School Board meeting to see the Technology Committee presentation. If you cannot attend, at least watch the delayed video broadcast of the presentation on the local cable channels. We will not be presenting a final implementation plan for technology, but we will present the information that explains why and how we should continue to support technology usage within our community.

The Technology Committee feels very strongly that community feedback and response are extremely necessary on this important issue. We would appreciate any comments, suggestions, or constructive criticism the community may have at the presentation, or in the future.

We hope to see you at the April 10 school board meeting.

Wilde relevant to O.J. case

To the Editor:

Given the almost complete absorption of people in the O.J. Simpson trial, Oscar Wilde, in "The Ballad of Reading Gaol," makes some cogent observations regarding the complex ingredients of the affair, in the third of his three stanzas:

And all men kill the thing they love,

By all let this be heard,

Some do it with a bitter look,

Some with a flattering word,

The coward does it with a kiss,

The mad man with a sword.

I took the liberty of substituting the word "mad" for the word "brave" in the sixth line of the above stanza.

Sen. Geake leads modest welfare hike to passage

By TIM RICHARD
Staff Writer

The record $7.75 billion social services budget Bob Geake guided through the state Senate would have been higher if minority Democrats had had their way.

"I propose a one percent increase in the basic (welfare) grant. There's been hardly any increase in the last 15 years," said Sen. Joe Conroy, D-Flint. At least let's give them some semblance of a safety net they can live on."

Conroy argued that although welfare grants had risen 8 percent in 15 years, their purchasing power slipped 40 percent.

Welfare clients must spend an average of 71 percent on housing, "leaving $138 a month for utilities, clothing and personal items, and that's for a family of three. They did not benefit from the property tax reduction. One percent is kind of a pittance, about $4.50 a month."

"That $4.50 figure is correct," said Geake, R-Northville, "but we have a better deal for welfare recipients. They can earn an extra $200 without having their welfare grant reduced. It's better than awarding a COLA (cost of living allowance) to people who are not working."

"It's not a budget breaker," replied Conroy. "To get an interview with an employer, those tennis shoes with holes in the toes need to be replaced."

Conroy's amendment failed on a 16-18 party line vote. The next day (March 31) the Senate went on to give the Department of Social Services appropriations bill final approval 28 to 89 and sent it to the House.

Voting yes: Republicans Loren Bennett of Canton, Michael Bouchard of Birmingham, Mat Dunaskiss of Lake Orion, Geake, Mike Rogers of Howell and John Schwarz of Battle Creek, and Democrats George Z. Hart of Dearborn and Alma W. Smith of South Lyon.

Voting no: Democrat Gary Peters of Bloomfield Township.

Absent: David Honigman, R-West Bloomfield.

"It's the largest and most complex bill in the appropriations process," said Geake, who is vice chair of the full Senate Appropriations Committee and for 10 years has had the annual chore of putting together the social services bill.

At a time when Gov. John Engler has been getting national attention as a welfare chopper, Michigan's actual appropriation has continued to climb. Engler proposed $7.8 billion, a 4 percent increase over last year. The Senate came through with $254 million less, still a 3.4 percent hike over 1994 in a period when inflation is 2.6 percent.

Some highlights:

• Federal funds amount to $4.3 billion, up 3.9 percent.

• Adoption subsidies are up 32 percent, from $62 million to nearly $79 million. Engler has made a major effort to facilitate adoption with money and supportive laws. His goals: to reduce abortions and find kids permanent families.

• Foster care providers will get a 3 percent boost.

• The Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) caseload is expected to drop from 226,500 to 198,000. "Given that the January 1995 caseload has already fallen to 206,623, this estimate would appear to be within reason," said the Senate Fiscal Agency analysis. If it happens, it would be the first time in more than a decade the caseload has dropped below 200,000.

"It makes sense for young mothers on welfare to be in the workforce."

-Sen. Robert Geake

The Senate adopted one Conroy amendment - to increase the number of Medicaid authorized visits to chiropractors from 12 to 24 a year.

"I went along, reluctant with a fee increase for chiropractors," said Sen. John J.H. Schwarz, R-Battle Creek, a physician and surgeon who frequently expresses his disdain of chiropractors. "But to raise chiropractors' visits 100 percent - that's a bad amendment," he said, voting no. The Senate approved the Conroy amendment 27-3.

On the conservative side, Sen. Doug Carl, R-Utica, took a loss on his amendment to strike child care up to six months. If successful, it would have cut $54 million from the bill.

"A baby ought to be home getting one-on-one care from a parent," said Carl. "The message we are sending is that government can do as good a job at womb-to-tomb protection as parents can. I disagree."

Replied Geake: "As much as I agree with Sen. Carl philosophically, it makes sense for young mothers on welfare to be in the workforce."

Added Conroy: "We are determined that people on welfare should be in the workforce."

Friends' fund-raiser to generate revenue for community parks

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

The third annual Friends of Northville Parks and Recreation dinner/auction happens next month and you still have time to get in on the action.

The dinner/auction is the Friends' biggest yearly fund-raiser. Money from ticket sales to the April 29 event will be used to improve Fish Hatchery Park. You'll enjoy a fine meal created by local restaurateurs and have the chance to bid for a wide variety of exciting items at the auction.

Held at Schoolcraft College, the dinner/auction is limited to the first 224 people who buy tickets. Only ticket holders can bid in the auction. Friends president Marv Gans said that tickets are available.

"It's a fun evening," Gans said. "We urge people to attend."

Tickets to the event are $40 for single Friends members or $80 for a couple. Non-member tickets are $60 single or $115 a couple, the extra amount covering the Friends' membership fee.

Those interested in purchasing tickets or donating items for the auction can call Gans at 462-

The evening's menu features cuisine from area food specialists. Hors d'oeuvres, courtesy of Edward's Caterer, Papa Romano's and Rocky's will be served beginning at 6 p.m. Guests are invited to partake of them while looking over the items that will be offered in the auction.

Dinner will begin around 7 p.m. with Genitti's chicken noodle soup, followed by a Michigan spring salad from the Heavenly Bakery.

Diners will enjoy bread from the Great Harvest Bread Company and wine from Parmenter's as well.

The main course will be grilled marinated breast of chicken and petite filet with mushrooms, daphinose potatoes and steamed asparagus, courtesy of Schoolcraft's food service chefs.

Edward's will supply dessert, a chocolate mousse in pastry shells. After dinner mints will be provided by Renee's.

The auction will begin at about 8 p.m. Johnny Trudeau will be on hand with his group to provide background music for the event.

A wide variety of items will be on the block: airline tickets, a Caribbean cruise, lawn and garden equipment, sports equipment and memorabilia of all kinds, tickets to sporting events, the services of an attorney, an artist's rendering of your home, weekend packages at local hotels, golf outings and exercise equipment, just to name a few.

Last year's fund-raiser netted over $24,000.

The Friends combined that money with donations from the city and township to win a $100,000 grant to renovate Fish Hatchery Park on Seven Mile.

The goal for this year's fund-raiser is to gather money for more work at the park including aerating the pond, Gans said.

LET'S SEE

If the last pair of sunglasses you purchased had pop out plastic lenses with a cartoon character glued to the frame, it's time to get a new pair.

Maria Ordonez

Sasha Hanson

Young or old, perfect vision or not, people today are being advised to wear protection. There are thousands of sunglass frame styles, from contemporary to traditional, to fit just about every individual's preference. You don't have to look too far either when you decide it's time to toss the old pair into the trash. Sunglasses are available on spinning racks at the gas station and the grocery store. Specialty stores selling only sunglasses have been around for a decade. And, of course, sunglasses are available through opticians with or without a correction prescription.

"Individuality plays a big role in the style the customer chooses," said Bill Selman, manager of the Sunglass Hut, International, which has two stores at Twelve Oaks Mall carrying over 2,000 pairs of shades.

Today, the most important part of sunglasses the lenses, cater to the wearer's activity or lack thereof.

The American National Standard Institute has established three categories of lenses based on the amount of ultraviolet (UV) light transmitted through the lens - cosmetic, general purpose or specialty.

If sitting by the pool reading a book is what you're waiting to do this summer, consider cosmetic sunglasses. These lenses are darker at the top for protection and lighter at bottom for reading.

Specialty lenses are designed for use in extreme glare situations. Snow and water create glare for skiers, fishermen and others who spend time in activities on the slopes or in a boat.

Prices for sunglasses begin at just a few dollars to well into the hundreds of dollars. But you get what you pay for.

The pricier lines have ground glass lenses which are optically correct for the eyes. Also at this end of the scale, frames may be 14K gold, sterling silver or electroplated.

The higher priced sunglasses may also carry the manufacturer's limited or life time warranty against breakage and include a repair or replacement policy.

What is important to consider when purchasing a pair of sunglasses is protection against ultraviolet rays.

"Sunglasses should have a 98 to 100 percent UV rating and meet American National Standards Institute (ANSI) guidelines," said Selman.

"Infants need eye protection from the sun, as well, because their eyes are still developing," he said. But good children's sunglasses can be hard to find. "We specialize in children's sunglasses and fit hard-to-find sunglasses for infants."

"It is recommended that children start wearing sunglasses at age 5," said Kara Lanno, optician at Northville Vision Clinic.

It is also very important for the elderly to wear sunglasses.

"UVA and UVB rays are damaging to the eyes and are the cause of cataracts," Lanno said.

Doctors recommend that people who have had corrective eye surgery get a good pair of sunglasses because their eyes are more susceptible to light damage, according to Selman.

Duneske returning rewards to Scouts

By DOROTHY NASH
Special Writer

If there are Boy Scouts in heaven, you can be sure that John Duneske will be one of them, and he'll be wearing the same patches - maybe more - on his shirt that he does on earth as Unit Commissioner in the Clinton Valley Council.

It's not just a habit with him - being active in Boy Scouts of America - because he did start as a Cub at age 8 and followed through into his 20s.

After that, when his two sons, now 16 and 14 years old, joined the organization, he took training and was Cub Master for three years.

Duneske is in it because, as he said, "Thirty years ago someone took time for me, gave me an opportunity to have a good experience. I'm returning it now. And if I can help one child ... develop character, citizenship, physical fitness ... I've done my job."

But what does Duneske actually do? Some of it reads like this: He meets weekly with a troop (No. 54). He meets monthly with the Patrol Leader Council. He has Troop Committee meeting once a month, and he added that his wife is secretary.

"She sews on our patches, too." He goes camping year-round with the boys.

About his troop's activities, he stresses that he doesn't dictate what to do.

He offers them a selection of things, and they choose. They're learning how to make decisions.

And with merit badges - the boys decide individually what they want to work on and then go out in the community to consult with experts in particular fields. They're learning on their own.

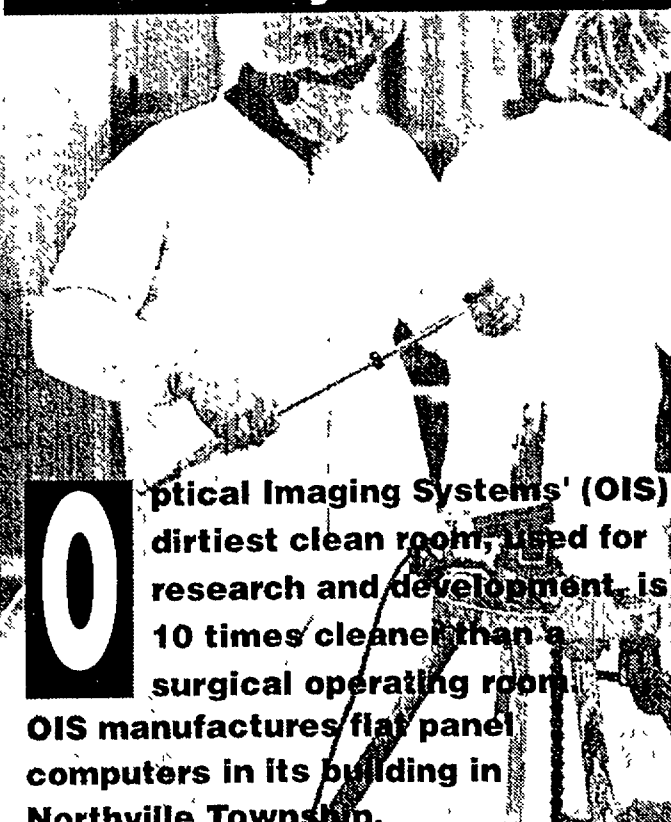

He can go on and on about Boy Scouting and how it develops leadership in those who are, as he said, "our future leaders."

Yes, being active in Boy Scouts takes time, and John Duneske is also full-time employed as a Materials Manager for Greenfield Die and Manufacturing Corp.

If you want to know more about volunteering in Boy Scouts, call him at 348-2482.

Artist wins spring festival poster contest at DIA

Marsha Weigand has just been named the winner of the Detroit Institute of Arts (DIA) and AAA of Michigan's "Art & Flowers: A Festival of Spring" poster competition.

The artist was awarded the grand prize of $1,000 which was donated by AAA. The juried art show received 250 entries from across the state.

Weigand will be on hand at the Changing Seasons/IV Seasons shop on Saturday, April 8, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. to sign her winning poster entitled "Reds." The poster costs a tax deductible $10 and all proceeds from the sale benefit the DIA Exhibition Fund.

Weigand's inspiration for the poster came from a red tulip plant she received from the Elizabethan Garden in North Carolina.

The artist brought the tulips back to Michigan, planted them and saw them bloom for the first time last year.

Weigand uses the number three a lot in her work for different reasons — she has three daughters and receives spiritual inspiration from the Trinity.

She is a member of several art clubs in the area and began showing her work in 1990. Since then she has received numerous awards and recognitions.

"I am enticed by all the mediums," said Weigand, who does still life, landscapes and portraiture.

Changing Seasons/IV Seasons is located at 149 E. Main Street in Northville.

The poster will also be available for sale in all the DIA Museum shops at either the Museum itself, at Twelve Oaks Mall, or at Somerset Mall during the month of April.

The Arts & Flowers Festival will run April 28, 29 and 30 at the Museum located at 5200 Woodward Ave. in Detroit.

The Festival begins Friday evening with previews of the displays, music, hors d'oeuvres and silent auction of the original artwork of the 21 finalists for the poster competition (including local artists Weigand, Marge Chellstrop and Jane McKanna).

Other activities on Saturday and Sunday include floral arrangements from the Museum and "celebrities," a fashion show, and lectures including "Yardening" show host Jeff Ball.

For tickets for the DIA Preview Party, Parisian fashion show or Jeff Ball's lecture call the DIA ticket office at (313) 833-2323. All other activities are free.

Jeweler to present diamond buying seminar

Orin Mazzoni Jr., president of Orin Jewelers Inc., will be presenting a free seminar on "Everything You Need to Know About Buying a Diamond" on Tuesday, April 18, at 7 p.m. in Schoolcraft College's Liberal Arts Building, Room 200.

Spring and summer are traditionally popular times for engagements and weddings. However, most prospective brides and grooms have little or no knowledge of what questions to ask or what to look for when purchasing a diamond.

Mazzoni will discuss how to properly select, invest in and purchase a diamond, followed by a question and answer. The seminar is open to students and the general public. All participants will have the opportunity to register to win a $200 Orin Jewelers diamond gift certificate.

To reserve a seat, contact Schoolcraft's Institutional Advancement Office at (313) 462-4417.

"Polarized lenses have UV protection and cut out all the glare," said Lanno. "They are the best type of lens you can wear as a sunglass." Polarized lenses have a filter between two layers of glass.

"Tint is all preference," said Lanno. "Anything is better than nothing but if you are going to wear a sunglass it's better to wear a pair that has the UV protection."

Some lens colors can enhance true colors while others will distort.

An amber-based lens will give a higher contrast and tend to brighten overcast days. This color will also sharpen details so things look crisper, reds are redder and greens will be a little greener.

The general purpose lens is gray, which is more of a natural lens that makes colors remain the same.

"Photo chromatic lenses, which are amber based and change with the amount of sunlight, are good for drivers and for cutting through fog," said Selman. "Airplane pilots wear photo chromatic lenses because they cut the glare of clouds. This type of lens is also good for sports, golf and tennis because it helps enhance the ball."

"You'd be surprised how many people want to improve their golf game," said Selman.

The transitional lens is a good choice for the person who wears corrective lenses but who doesn't want two pairs of glasses, according to Lanno.

Choir has marathon before performance

By CAROL WORKENS
Staff Writer

The Youth of the First United Methodist Church will begin a music marathon on Friday, April 8.

The 106-member group will start rehearsing at 6:30 p.m. for their performance "Forever Endeavor" the following day on April 9 at the 9 and 11 a.m. Palm Sunday services at the church.

The marathon rehearsal session concludes when youth group members feel confident they are prepared for the next day's performance.

The choir director, Stacey Becker, and her husband, Gary, will host a sleep over for those youths who wish to stay at their home after the late-night rehearsal.

The performance will include contemporary musical arrangements with religious lyrics. Accompaniment will be on synthesizers, piano and percussion.

The majority of the seventh through 12th grade youths are from Northville and Novi, but also represent Farmington, South Lyon, Pinckney, Plymouth, Franklin Village, Wixom and Livonia. The musical is open to all youths regardless of church affiliation.

Song, dance and narration will be included in the 50-minute musical. The content will include I Will Always Be With You, by Joseph Martin; In This Very Room, by Ron and Carol Harris, and I Just Can't Wait to See the King, which will be performed as an adaptation of I Just Can't Wait to be King, from The Lion King, combined with a portion of Handel's Hallelujah.

Among the songs the chorus will perform are Sunday School Rock, by Carman; A Mighty Fortress Is Our God, by Luther/Hayes; and The Word by Michael W. Smith.

This year's group, the largest in its history, has performances on April 26 for the church's Homeless Hospitality Week and on May 14 for a Mother's Day Ice Cream Social at 6 p.m., which will be the last performance at their own church.

Depending on the destination of the engagements, the youths meet in the church parking lot between 5:30 and 6:30 a.m. on the day of the trip to allow for travel time and set-up. Other performances around the area include Holy Family Church on May 7 at 7 p.m. and performances in Ann Arbor, Dundee, Flint and Marshall.

Culminating their season which began in January with four hour long rehearsals every Sunday to learn a new musical every year, the youths and volunteer drivers will spend the day at Cedar Point on May 20.

Bigger is not always better either. Buying the largest lenses and frames you can find does not mean you have better protection from UV rays.

"There are some traditional styles that have been around since World War II," said Selman. "The new styles for 1995 are trending to smaller, oval shapes as well as the sport wrap style, which are both very big this year." "People are becoming more aware of the sun protection and wanting better quality," said Selman.

Choirs unite for musical

The adult, youth and children's choirs at Faith Community Presbyterian Church have united to present a musical drama Who Will Call Him King of Kings on Sunday evening, April 9 at 8 p.m.

The musical centers around the apostle Paul played by Dave Butler, and Silas played by Kevin Crain, who have been imprisoned for following a "King" other than Caesar. The fellow prisoners, lead by the sarcastic Marcus, played by Larry Molloy, question Paul and Silas about this "dead" King, who was crucified, a punishment reserved for the scum of the earth. These questions give the followers a platform from which to tell the story of Jesus Christ.

Although this is the third year the church has presented a cantata, it is the first time it will be presented as a play.

Who Will Call Him King of Kings was written by Claire Cloninger. About 50 adults and children will sing such songs as "A Crown of Hosannas," "Lamb to the Slaughter" and the show's theme song.

Kevin Crain (from left), Dave Butler, Larry Molloy and Karl Miller rehearse Who Will Call Him King of Kings for Sunday evening's performance.

The music is directed by Mike Miller. Elaine Wroe will conduct the choir. The drama and staging is under the direction of Mary Kay Davis, who, along with Linda Burton, designed and built the sets. Some choir members will be wearing costumes they made themselves. Novi High School donated some of the other costumes.

The drama is open to the public and is free of charge. Faith Community Presbyterian Church is located at 44400 West Ten Mile Road in Novi.

Golfers ready to defend title

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

It may not seem like golf weather, but for Northville High the season is about to get hot and heavy.

The Mustangs open their links campaign Monday - assuming Old Man Winter backs off. Coach Trish Waldecker said the frigid conditions have kept her team indoors.

"We've only been out one time so far," she said. "But we've been hitting inside at Oasis."

When the season does get rolling, Northville will be trying to continue the success it has enjoyed over the past few years.

The Mustangs won their second straight Western Lakes Activities Association title last spring. The team also put together a 7-4 dual meet record.

"We should be up in front (again)," said Waldecker. "We should be strong."

Unlike last season, Northville will not have a shot at winning a division crown.

With just eight of 12 league schools participating in golf, officials decided to do away with division designations. A WLA championship tournament will still be held, however.

The Mustangs will take a veteran group into conference battles.

Lindsey Casterline will be one of three captains on the squad. The senior may claim the title as Northville's top player.

"I'd like to see her shoot in the 40s all the time," Waldecker said. "She's very capable."

Seniors Kiley Mills and Heather Nix are Northville's other two captains.

Waldecker described Mills as a steady player. Nix may join Casterline by shooting in the 40s.

"I would not be shocked to see her in the 40s," said Waldecker.

Mustang tracksters field largest team in years

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

Chris Cronin has some challenges to face in his first year as Northville High girls' track coach.

To start off with, he must learn his team's strengths and weaknesses. Then he's got to learn names and faces.

And, brother, does he have a lot of those.

The Mustangs have their largest squad in years with 68 athletes. Cronin said he's relying on his five captains, Monica Nayakwadi, Missy Hayes, Adrienne Browne, Tammy Cook and Jenny Sekerka, to help keep things running smoothly.

"I'll try to coach them as much as possible," he said of his team.

"But the athletes have to be responsible for themselves. I need them to run their own workouts."

Cronin is taking over for long-time coach Ann Turnbull, who moved out of state. He served as Turnbull's assistant for two seasons, 1992-93.

"We have a wide variety of kids," said Cronin. "I think we'll do real well in dual meets."

The Mustangs began their season at home Tuesday against South Lyon. Northville hosts Farmington today at 3:30 p.m.

According to Cronin, Northville should be able to beat teams like the Falcons with its depth. He said his team should score points in every event.

That includes the shot put and discus.

Renee Olin is Northville's top returning shot putter. She's been throwing more than 30 feet in practice so far.

Sekerka leads the way in discus. Cronin said there's no telling how far she'll go this season in the event.

"I'm sure she'll get up into the 120s," he said. "I think she has a chance to win the district."

Aubrey MacFarlane will add depth in the discus.

"I think discus will be our big surprise," Cronin said.

In the high jump, Cook is looking solid. Cronin described her as a consistent performer. Kathy Conklin, a sophomore, will also compete in the event.

Northville will feature Melissa Poole in the long jump. The sophomore will team with Dana Chamot as the Mustangs' one-two punch.

Chamot will also be one of the team's main high jumpers, along with Sekerka. Beth McRae and Sarah Goshorn will handle the 300-meter low hurdles.

Northville should have a strong stable of sprinters this spring.

Cronin is looking at Carrie Dalziel, Katie Rompel, Nicole Weyer and Poole as top candidates. Jill Holloway and Cook are other candidates who'll be thrown into relay sprints, the 400 and 800-meter, as well as the open 100 and 200-meter dashes.

Poor weather has hurt the sprinters' training.

"It's really hampered their overall conditioning," said Cronin.

A host of Mustangs will handle distance events.

Jenny Platukas, Amity Heckemeyer, Chrissy Buser, Browne and Nayakwadi will be names frequently talked about.

Cronin said most of his distance relay teams are set. Open races will see a variety of people running.

As for this season, the first-year coach has one definite goal in mind.

"We want to have a winning dual meet record," Cronin said. "It's the bread and butter of our schedule."

Kickers fall 2-1 in home opener; lose to Brighton

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

It's tough to play catch up in the state's toughest soccer league.

But that's what the Mustang soccer team tried to do Monday night against a powerful Canton club. Northville staged a furious comeback attempt in the closing minutes, but came up short 2-1 at home.

Jackie Rompel redirected a Kate Kohl pass with 1:35 remaining to cut Canton's lead in half. The Chiefs, however, were able to hold on in the final few seconds as Northville pressured their net.

It was the Mustangs' eighth straight loss to Canton.

Monday's game wasn't lost in those final minutes, though. The Chiefs completely dominated Northville in the first half.

The Mustangs were slow getting to the ball and had difficulty keeping possession. Coach Doug Lyon wasn't sure how to explain his team's performance early on.

"The first 10 minutes we just kind of stood around," he said.

Canton pressured the ball and forced Northville to cough it up several times. Such a play led to the Chiefs' first goal.

Jenny Parviainen forced a turnover in front of the Mustang goal and then booted it past Jessica Jones to make it 1-0 at the 35:03 mark.

Canton continued to dominate. Jones had to make a sliding stop with just more than 29 minutes remaining.

Northville, meanwhile, struggled. The Mustangs didn't have a shot on net in the first 20 minutes of play.

Kohl may have had the best chance to score in the half. After a corner kick, the senior got a return pass but then kicked the ball high over Canton's net at 19:12.

The Chiefs made it 2-0 moments later by getting a header past Jones. Lyon wasn't happy with either goal.

"Both goals were kind of our mistakes," he said.

The coach displayed his frustration to the Mustangs at halftime. The team responded.

Northville came out more aggressive and played the Chiefs even up for about the first 10 minutes. The Mustangs then dominated play midway through the half.

Despite their solid play, the Mustangs still couldn't generate any offense. Every time Northville seemed to be making a rush, Canton was there to kick it away.

With just about three minutes left, the Mustangs finally started to get good chances.

Tracie Vock had an opportunity at the 3:10 mark, but the Canton goalkeeper came out to stop the play. Northville then got a couple of corner kicks before Rompel succeeded in scoring.

Lyon was much happier with his team's performance in the second half. He said the season's a long way from over, too.

BRIGHTON 4, NORTHVILLE 0

The Mustangs opened their season Friday amid snow flurries in Brighton. Unfortunately, Northville was just as cold as the weather.

The Bulldogs, which ended Northville's season in the state semi-final last spring, got off to a quick start.

A mental error led to Brighton's first tally at about the seven minute mark. The Bulldogs' Amber Berendowski, who is a member of the national junior Olympic team, made it 2-0 about five minutes later.

"Nobody could've stopped that Local runner to test field at annual Boston Marathon

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

Phil Hartley is living proof that a single moment can change someone's life.

The Northville resident decided to give up smoking about two decades ago. Instead of putting on the inevitable 10 to 15 pounds that comes with kicking the habit, he decided to start exercising.

"I didn't want to put on any weight," he said. "I heard running was a good way to keep it down."

Years later, Hartley is still running. In fact, he'll compete in his first Boston Marathon April 17. According to the 49-year-old, he didn't concentrate on his health much before quitting.

"I was a couch potato before that," he admitted.

Hartley qualified for Boston a year ago at the Glass City Marathon in Toledo. He finished the 26-mile race in 3:24 - just one minute under the qualifying time.

"I was hoping to qualify," Hartley said. "I had been working toward that goal for a long time."

Boston is still the only marathon in the country that runners have to qualify for. It's the grand daddy of them all.

"If you're a runner," Hartley said, "that's what you train for."

If not for the help of his friends, it's doubtful that he would've ever made it to Boston, or any other marathon for that matter.

Hartley was a member of a local Vic Tanny's about the time he stopped smoking. When he decided to change his lifestyle and start running he began by doing a mile or two every day.

"I was a neighborhood jogger for about eight years," he said.

With the encouragement of his friends, Hartley began to build his endurance and run greater distances. By the early 1980s he was running about eight miles at a time.

"They got me going farther than I ever could've on my own," Hartley commented. "My friends pushed me to do more."

In 1984, he ran his first marathon here in Detroit. Those Vic Tanny friends did more than just foster Hartley's running career, too. He ended up meeting his wife, Mary Ann, through a mutual friend at the gym.

The couple was married at the Plymouth Vic Tanny's in 1986. And, as you might expect, it wasn't a typical wedding.

The groom sported a traditional tuxedo top. But gym shorts and shoes completed his ensemble. The bride had her aerobics outfit on.

"It was different," Hartley said. "15 minutes after the ceremony we had everyone doing aerobics."

Northville resident Phil Hartley will be running in his first Boston Marathon on April 17. A former smoker, the 49-year-old has changed his lifestyle to include lots of exercise and good nutrition. Hartley qualified for this year's Beantown run in Toledo last spring. He made the cut by just one minute.

Northville claims WLAA cheer title

Northville High continued its dominance in the cheerleading world recently.

The Mustangs captured its fifth Western Lakes Activities Association title in nine years March 25 at Northville High. The junior varsity and freshman teams won titles as well.

At each of the three levels, teams participated in two rounds. Teams were judged on difficulty and execution of moves, among other things.

The first half of the competition was divided into two cheers. One cheer is designed to gain crowd response while the other is a team cheer, coach Margaret Surdu said.

Round two is a choreographed dance routine. Teams can score up to 1300 points in the two-round competition.

Northville won the varsity showdown with 1186 points. Westland

John Glenn was second with 1120 and Plymouth Salem third at 1096.

Surdu said she thought Northville won the meet during the crowd response cheer. The Mustangs scored 417 points out of 450 for their performance.

The junior varsity won by a larger margin. Northville tallied 1081 points while Salem was second at 961.

At the freshman level, Northville scored 999 points. Livonia Churchill was second with 967. Livonia Stevenson third at 797 and Walled Lake Central fourth at 659.

A total of 10 of the WLAA schools participated, Surdu said. The coach's daughter, Tracie, a cheerleader at Michigan State University, acted as her assistant this season.

Northville's season is now complete.

CORRECTION

An article in last week's Northville Record incorrectly identified several members of the Mustang soccer team. Lang was 25th at the NCAA Regional Championship on the one-meter board. He was 15th on the three-meter board.

HEALTH HOUSE

The American Lung Association is sponsoring Health House '95, a showcase home and educational center featuring components which provide clean, safe indoor air while paying special heed to environmentally friendly and recycled materials and construction methods. Health House can be seen from April 30 to May 21 at the corner of Seven Mile and Haggerty roads in Northville.

SCHOLARSHIPS

Over 100,000 collegiate athletic scholarships are available each year to male and female high school and junior college student athletes. Contrary to popular belief, students don't have to be all-state to qualify. Much of this money goes unused.

A new publication with forms, sample letters and tables of factual information is available for student athletes. It takes them step-by-step through the important process of getting an athletic scholarship and includes college and conference listings.

For information on how to get a collegiate athletic scholarship, send a self addressed (business size), stamped envelope to the National Sports Foundation, 611-A Willow Drive, P.O. Box 940, Oakhurst, NJ 07755.

GOLF

The Walnut Creek Country Club recently elected its board. Northville residents James Siller, Dick Kuzma, Lawrence Hilfinger and John Swienkowski were all named to various positions.

Hartley to run in first Boston Marathon

With the help and understanding of Mary Ann, he's been able to continue running and training.

Hartley did give up marathons for awhile. But that was to compete in triathlon events.

The Northville resident went full throttle into the sport from 1989 to 1993. He said he enjoyed the challenge of the triathlon, which includes swimming, biking and running without stopping.

"It was a lot of work and a lot of training," said Hartley.

After awhile it got to be too much. He decided to go back to marathoning because it was ... easier.

"Training for a marathon doesn't take nearly as much time," said Hartley.

The Ford employee began training seriously for Boston after last Christmas. He increased his running from 30 miles a week to 60.

Daily runs went from six to 20 miles. Hartley said he tries to vary workouts to stay fresh.

Currently, he's cutting his mileage or "tapering" for the race. The idea is to let the muscles heal and go in to the marathon as strong as possible.

"I feel great," Hartley said. "My training's gone very well and I've done it the way I wanted."

He's done much of his training in town. Hartley runs with a couple of groups at Hines Park and Maybury State Park.

"It's an excellent place to train," he said of Northville.

Hartley said his goals for Boston are simple.

"I want to finish," he said, "and I want to run fast enough to qualify for next year."

"They have been absolutely wonderful," she added.

Some new faces will emerge from the junior class.

Emily Baldwin is moving up from JV while Jennifer Dixon will be competing in her third varsity year. Laura Genitti is another newcomer.

"It's her first year of golf," Waldecker said. "She's been hitting good. She's a natural athlete."

"She played excellent last year," said Waldecker. "She'll be starting every match."

Katie Kulp, also a sophomore, will play mostly at JV. Elizabeth Krueger came on strong at the end of last season and may split time between varsity and JV.

Northville's lone freshman will be Kara Guminski. She'll be gaining experience at JV.

The Mustangs season will last less than two months. If history repeats itself, Northville will make it to the state finals.

The Mustangs have made that trip each odd year of their existence - in their first year in 1991 and then in 1993.

Berendowski snapped a shot in the upper left corner of the goal from about 30 yards out.

"It was phenomenal to watch her," Lyon said.

Brighton made it 3-0 with about 10 minutes to go before the half. Lyon said his team started to settle down towards the end of the half.

"The last 15 to 20 minutes we started to play well," he said.

Northville couldn't get untracked offensively in the second half, however.

Brighton did a good job of marking Mustang playmaker Kohl. Northville missed on some other chances.

"Once we settled down," Lyon said, "we had some opportunities."

The coach said he hoped his team had worked all the bugs out. Lyon added that he was glad it was a non-league game.

"It was our first game and Brighton's third," he added.

Earth Day Race planned for May

By YVONNE BEEBE
Staff Writer

Die-hard and recreational runners lace up your running shoes and start training for this year's annual Earth Day Race.

The 10K race, which will wind through the scenic trails of Maybury State Park, is sponsored by the Northville Parks and Recreation department and Running Fit, the new athletic store at 141 S. Main St. The starting gun will sound at 10 a.m. April 29.

The recreation department's annual race is just one of a long list of events scheduled by Maybury in recognition of Earth Day. In the past, the Earth Day race has been a successful event for the community, said Nickie Ross of the recreation department.

"People have a lot of fun with it," she said, adding that about 100 runners participated in the event last year.

The deadline for early registration for the race is April 14. Participants who pre-register before that date must pay $12 and will receive a race T-shirt and a Maybury State Park sticker. Entries received after April 14 must pay a $14 registration fee and will not include the T-shirt or park sticker. The park stickers are $4 and are required for entry into any state park.

Participants can also register on-site from 8:30-9:30 a.m. the day of the race.

The running divisions include male and female categories in the under 20, 20-29, 30-39, 40-49, 50-59 and over 60 age classifications. First, second and third place prizes will be handed out to the top three runners in each category with gift certificates from Running Fit. At 11:15 a.m., the race results will be posted and the awards presented.

This year's Earth Day race will serve as the kick-off for the long list of family activities Maybury State Park has in store for Earth Day from 11 a.m.-3 p.m. at the park's Demonstration Building.

Community members can learn about various ways to improve the environment with displays and presentations on energy conservation, solar energy, air quality, landfills, waste management and paper and aluminum recycling. At 1 p.m. kids and adults can enjoy the warm and windy spring weather at the Kite Fly-in. At 2:30 p.m., the park will hold a nature walk led by a nature expert.

For information about race registration, call the recreation department at 349-0203. For more information about the park's Earth Day activities, call Maybury State Park at 349-8390.

Moderating body temperature during pregnancy important for mother, child

Mary Ann Zettelmaier

It is important that a pregnant woman not be exposed to excessive temperatures or a combination of excessive heat and humidity. This is especially true during the first three months of pregnancy, when the baby's major organ systems are forming. Some physicians and midwives advise women to completely eliminate the use of saunas and hot tubs during pregnancy. Also, electric blankets should never be set higher than a medium or moderate setting, and it is probably safest not to use them at all during pregnancy.

Here are a few guidelines about water and sauna temperatures, especially related to pregnancy, that may be helpful:

1. Do not use a hot tub for more than 15 minutes at a water temperature of 39 C or 102.2 F.

2. Do not use a hot tub for more than 10 minutes at a water temperature of 41 C or 105.8 F.

3. Water temperature for bathing should not be more than 39 C or 102.2 F for more than 15

4. You should not use a sauna for more than five minutes at a room temperature of 81.4 C or 178.5 F.

If you are using a hot tub or sauna at home, check the temperature before use. If you are using a hot tub or sauna at a health club or recreation facility, ask about the temperature before use. For tub bathing at home during pregnancy, use a moderate water temperature and the 15-minute time limit as your best practical guide.

Do some homework if you're going to rent

By James M. Woodard
Copley News Service

Renting an apartment in today's market can be an enjoyable experience — or something just short of a nightmare.

So says Scott Heaton, managing partner of Fuller Apartment Homes, Inc., an apartment development and management firm. His 32-year-old firm owns and manages 275 apartment units in 17 buildings.

Knowing how to find and rent the right apartment, at the right terms, is important. But few tenants know the basics.

Typically, a newly married couple will live in an apartment for the first few years of their married lives, until they can save enough money for a down payment on a house. They won't take the time to familiarize themselves with the basic procedures of apartment renting, and are vulnerable to those who would take advantage of them.

"This type of renter often moves from what could be a pleasant experience to a scenario of nasty arguments with the management company or owner," Heaton said. "This could be avoided if the renting couple was more knowledgeable about the apartment renting process."

Heaton urged prospective renters to be particularly aware of the following:

Check out the area. Go to the local police department and ask about crime in the area. Talk to residents in the building, and to neighbors.

Look closely at the development. A good test of the management company's skill is how well the apartment development is maintained. The landscaping should be healthy and weed-free. Apartments should be clean, with everything in

The Catalpa is rich in Victorian styling

By James McAlexander
Copley News Service

Brick detailing and Victorian styling gives the Catalpa an exterior or rich in striking details. Most dramatic is the two-level arched window. Wide bay windows accentuate the curves, a country style front porch with turned posts creates a welcoming entrance, and varied roof lines add visual interest to the tiered three-car garage.

Even the back of the Catalpa is appealing. Glass fills most of the back wall of the high-ceilinged, vaulted family room. Arched, multi-paned windows crown French doors flanked by wide windows. A festive half hexagonal roof caps the bayed nook.

The ceiling in the family room begins high at the back and sweeps up to the crest at the central spine of the home. From the wide loft on the second floor, you can overlook both the foyer and the family room. Lined with bookshelves, this central loft makes an ideal location for the family library.

The kitchen has everything — a sunny nook. Utilities are but a few steps away in a generously sized utility room with recycling center that deposits items in the garage.

Work benches line two walls of the three-car garage that has plenty of extra storage space. A small bathroom, complete with shower, is inside, close to the kitchen and the skylit exercise room (sewing room, craft room, or whatever), as well.

Upstairs, the luxurious master suite is to the left of the library, and the three secondary bedrooms are to the right. Both upper bathrooms have skylights and two basins. Floor-to-ceiling arched windows in the master suite fill the entire front bay, creating a bright sitting area. Other amenities include a two-person spa and a huge walk-in closet.

For a study plan of the Catalpa (333 143), send $9 to Landmark Designs, c/o HomeTown Newspapers, 323 E. Grand River Ave., Howell, MI 48843. (Be sure to specify plan name and number when ordering.)

Public act 264 prohibits the dumping of yard waste with your refuse...so here are some options

By Jane Benskey
Special Writer

For decades countless homeowners have blithely hauled garbage bags stuffed with grass clippings and leaves out to the street for trash pickup, adding tons of yard waste to ever-shrinking landfills.

But with the passage of a new state bill this month that will ban yard waste from landfills and incinerators, the time has come for us to change our ways.

The bill, P.A. 264, which took effect March 28, puts the burden of dealing with yard waste like grass clippings and leaves squarely on the shoulders of the homeowner.

The question becomes, What do I do with the stuff now?

Chances are you may live in a community that already has a yard waste pickup or composting program.

Some area municipalities, like the city of Howell, the village of Fowlerville and Hamburg Township, have some sort of yard waste pickup or drop off composting program already in place, said Steve Dawdy, vice president of Mister Rubbish.

The Village of Milford, which contracts its trash pickup with Browning-Ferris Industries (BFI), also has a yard-waste pickup program. Milford Township, which also contracts with BFI, will begin offering a special yard-waste pickup service in April.

But most other area townships and the city of Brighton do not currently have a yard waste collection or composting program.

While developing special yard-waste collection for communities is one solution, Dawdy said Mister Rubbish is going to encourage its customers to look to backyard composting, mulching mowers and other alternatives "to avoid creating the yard waste in the first place."

In the case of backyard composting, many gardeners have known the benefits of composting for years. For others who have never considered composting, this may be the time to start.

Backyard composting is touted by gardeners not only as an excellent way to reduce yard waste, but also because of what a compost pile can produce, an invaluable source of nutrients for your garden and soil.

For Gretchen Voyle it just makes sense. She's a home horticulturist with the Livingston County MSU Extension who learned about the values of composting from her father as a young girl and who's composted most of her life.

"It gets rid of a lot of material, and I'm always amazed at how much you can do with it," Voyle said.

There are two approaches to composting.

First, You let nature take its course. Second: You speed the process along and produce finished compost in a matter of a season.

The first approach is undoubtedly the least amount of work. A pile of leaves or grass left untouched and damped only by the rain will eventually decompose into a dark, crumbly humus after two or more years.

GARDENING

Gardening is one of the most popular pastimes in America, enjoyed by over 60 million home gardeners.

Well-prepared soil is essential to insect-free gardening. A well-nourished soil produces stronger trees, better roses and better flowers and vegetables.

An excellent growing medium is one that is loosely structured to provide the roots of your plants with organic matter, proper air circulation and moisture.

Don't be upset if your soil doesn't fit this description since soil this excellent is rarely found. Therefore it has to be made by you!

Peat moss is one of the best soil conditioners you can use in the garden. Why? Because it lets clay soil breathe and helps sandy soil retain moisture. Another good conditioner is compost (organic matter), leaves, grass clippings, twigs, well-rotted cow or horse manure and food scraps (never, but never, use any household fats).

Compost feeds the soil. For example, the Earth's forests that rely on decaying matter and nitrogen-fixing plants for their soil fertility have been producing lush and fertile growth for centuries without the help of quick-fix synthetic fertilizers.

Soil needs what compost's life processes give — nutrients that release their nutrition slowly and in small doses over long periods of time.

Applying compost once or twice a year to plants, shrubs, flowers and vegetable beds will ensure a beautiful garden, and the earthworms will love it! The more applications of it, the better!

9. What should I do to prepare the soil in my garden for planting flowers, and when is the best time to start the preparation?

A. In the spring as soon as the ground thaws, till the soil with a rotary cultivator or use a long-handled spade to break up clumps of soil. Then dig compost or rotten manure into the soil, moisten it down and let it dry out slightly before planting.

In the fall, prepare your soil

Healthy soil

Well-nourished soil produces stronger trees, better roses and better flowers and vegetables.

- Loosely structured growing medium is best for:
 - Providing plants with organic matter.
 - Proper air circulation.
 - Moisture.
- Some good soil conditioners are:
 - Peat moss: allows clay soil to breathe and sandy soil to retain water.
 - Compost: feeds the soil.

Public act 264 prohibits the dumping of yard waste with refuse

But for those who have more material to compost or who want faster results, it is possible, with a little work, to speed the process along.

Rapid decomposition of plant materials is accomplished by putting all the right ingredients together, much like a recipe for a cake.

Perhaps the most crucial ingredient to speed the decomposition process is the introduction of micro-organisms, found in soil, animal manure and finished compost, to the compost pile.

Micro-organisms are bacteria and fungi that work their magic on a pile of plant refuse, digesting plant material and turning it into "black gold."

If you don't have a source of micro-organisms, like soil or finished compost, to add to your pile, Voyle recommended adding a couple of handfuls of 12-12-12 fertilizer, without insecticide or pesticides, to speed up the process.

For the micro-organisms to grow and multiply, a compost pile needs a mixture of several things: a source of carbon found in leaves, shredded branches or woody material (the smaller they are the faster they'll break down), sawdust, or straw.

Going one step further, some people may want to add organic kitchen waste to the compost pile, like vegetable and fruit peelings, coffee grounds, or eggshells. Do not, however, add meat scraps, bones, animal fat or dairy products as they will create an odor, attracting animals and flies.

Other items to keep out of a compost include coal or charcoal ashes, diseased plants, pet litter, animal droppings, or toxic chemicals.

Although some references say lime can be added to a compost pile, Voyle said it's not a good idea because "lime actually will kill micro-organisms."

A compost pile also needs oxygen and moisture. Too little or too much of either will slow down the decomposition process.

Turning the pile over with a pitchfork about once a month will help aerate the pile and prevent dense matting.

The pile should be damp, not wet, as excess moisture will cause a slimy mess and foul odor.

Keep the compost to about a 3-by-3 or 4-by-4 foot area. While it is not necessary to keep your compost pile in a container, it is an option to consider.

There are several different types of containers you can build yourself to hold the compost pile, from a very basic circular bin constructed of chicken wire and posts that can be picked up and moved, to a state-of-the-art compost box constructed of wood with removable slats for access to the finished compost.

If you have neither the time nor the inclination to build your own, there are a number of commercial compost bins on the market. They are available at garden centers or in specialty catalogs.

Once you've established where you want your compost pile — most gardeners like theirs right next to their gardens — you're ready to begin.

Though there is no hard and fast rule on how to fill your compost, some references suggest a layering method starting off with a six- to eight-inch layer of grass clippings, leaves, vegetable peelings. Next add a couple shovels full of soil, animal manure, finished compost or several handfuls of fertilizer, then dampen the pile. Repeat the same procedure for each additional layer.

Once you've got all the components together — sunlight, air, moisture and the micro-organisms — you will create what Voyle called "nice environment," which will heat the compost pile up to 140-160 degrees, helping it to "cook faster."

There are bacteria called thermophilic bacteria that break things down more rapidly. ... They are the guys that cause the heat as they are working rapidly to decompose the materials," Voyle said.

Not all compost piles decompose at the same rate, but with a fair amount of effort, a compost pile started this spring may be ready to use by this fall.

There are a wealth of uses for the finished compost, which will be dark and crumbly and have a sweet soil smell.

Use it as a mulch around plants, screen it and top dress your lawn, dig it into your garden in the late fall or spring. Compost also helps sandy soil retain more moisture and helps break up dense clay soil.

So while it may take considerable effort to change your thinking and your habits, odds are, once you've begun composting and you see the fruits of your labor, you'll realize that not only are you helping the world at large, but your own little corner of the world as well.

Amenities. Check the swimming pool and Jacuzzi for cleanliness and warmth. Note the size and capacity of washers and dryers. Ask about and test the security system.

On-site manager. In many states, the law requires an on-site manager for all apartment buildings with more than a specified number of units — typically 16. Ask the manager to explain the responsibilities of tenants and management.

Read documents and everything you sign. If there are items you don't understand, ask questions.

Check credit record. Be familiar with your credit report before going into the management company. Many companies will not rent to an applicant who has poor credit. Most companies charge an application fee (usually $20) to run the credit and process the application. You can save that fee if you know your credit is bad.

Move-in specials. During difficult rental periods, owners and management companies often will offer move-in specials as incentives to attract renters. This could take the form of a no-rent first month, payment of moving expenses, etc. Look carefully at the development offering unusual incentives. There may be a negative factor about the development that requires such an incentive to fill the units.

Tenancy terms. There are basically two types of renting time periods — month-to-month and leases with terms usually from six months to a year. Each has advantages and disadvantages, depending on the situation of the tenant.

Move-in checklist. The management company should provide the renter with a checklist that details every aspect of the unit from carpets to appliances, from showers to faucets. The renter should document any item not in perfect condition. This will avoid being charged for the item when moving out.

Move-in repairs. Occasionally, residents must take possession of a unit before everything is fixed. If this is the case, be sure you have an addendum to your rental contract specifying the nature of the repair and when the management company plans to have it repaired. It also should note your options if management fails to deliver.

Emergencies. Determine if the management company has a 24-hour maintenance phone line and how emergency situations are handled.

Moving out. Management should provide the tenant with a move-out checklist. Leave the unit as close to the way you found it as possible to avoid losing part or all of your security deposit.

Security deposit. Refundable security deposits, typically ranging from $300 to $600, must be returned to the tenant soon after the keys to the apartment have been turned into management. The exact time requirement is determined by state law. If a dispute arises about an amount withheld from the deposit, refer to your copies of the move-in and move-out checklists.

G. What are the pros and cons of contracting for a housing unit in a continuing-care retirement complex?

A. A well-operated continuing-care retirement housing development can be a satisfactory option for some seniors. But there's a steep downside if the project is poorly administered.

On the positive side, many continuing-care complexes provide special facilities and services for seniors with varying levels of needed care. They also offer programs for social and recreational activities. And when one partner must move temporarily into the development's hospital unit, the spouse is housed close by — convenient for daily visits.

On the negative side, some seniors can't adapt to this type of community living. And by the time they realize it's not for them, they have lost a sizable investment.

Also, some developments suffer from poor administration. I once interviewed several dozen residents in retirement complexes — part of a national chain owned and operated by a major church denomination.

Many of those residents were very happy with their situation. But a common complaint centered on poor administrative decisions that affected their lives, and unexpected fee increases.

"Most of our administrators and key personnel are ex-pastors or other past church leaders in the denomination that owns the place," one senior said. "Or in some cases it's the sons or daughters of church leaders. They have no real background or capability for their job here."

Bottom line: A retirement development might be just the ticket to a great senior lifestyle. But check out the complex carefully before signing papers and moving in. Visit the place for a few days. Talk to the residents, not just the administrator and marketing director.

for the following spring by working manure and compost into the ground. Fallen leaves can be shredded and tilled into your garden to provide the perfect soil conditioner as they rot over the winter. Then, in the spring, all you need to do is rake and level the soil and you'll be ready to plant

G. What kind of soil is best for all types of container gardening?

A. For best results, choose a commercial pro-mix soil developed specifically for houseplants. The ready-to-go mixture is especially prepared, containing all needed nutrients and is available in most garden centers and nurseries around the country.

Running Fit owner brings store to Northville

Step will concentrate on his stores, local events

By SCOTT DANIEL
Staff Writer

Time for a quick health quiz. When you walk to your refrigerator from the living room couch do you: A - consider it your exercise for the day; B - get short of breath; C - rest at the kitchen table before completing your journey, or D - all of the above.

If you answered "D," it's time for a trip to Running Fit. At Northville's newest store, you'll find the right equipment and advice to get you moving toward a healthier lifestyle.

According to owner Randy Step, Running Fit caters to its patrons.

"We have to offer a lot for runners and walkers to shop," he said. "We're not a Foot Locker in the mall."

Located at 141 Main Street in downtown, the store offers a wide selection of athletic shoes and apparel. Running Fit opened in mid March with the idea of providing quality, high-tech equipment at a good price.

"Our prices have to be better," said Step, "our service has to be better."

The Northville resident bought out Fleet Feet Sports and quickly reopened as Running Fit. Step, who owns shops in Ann Arbor and Novi by the same name, said its tough to make money as independent store.

"At a single location," he said, "it's tough to make money. You can't have the same amount of inventory."

Having more outlets gives Running Fit the opportunity to purchase a wider and bigger selection of merchandise. In other words, if it isn't selling in Ann Arbor it may sell in Novi or Northville.

"It's harder to buy for one store," Step added.

Step got into the health business about a decade ago. He started Running Fit and an exercise equipment retail store after working in a family business for years.

Until recently, Step had been primarily involved with the exercise equipment store. But he decided to sell his interest in that shop to American Exercise and concentrate on Running Fit late last year.

"They gave me a lot of money," Step said. "It was an offer I couldn't refuse."

Step has taken a more active role in Running Fit since selling out. Besides coming into Northville, he recently moved one of his Ann Arbor stores.

While further expansion may be down the road, Step said he's looking forward to the challenge of being a Northville merchant.

"I've been a Northville resident for 11 years," he said. "I never thought I'd have a shop here."

Besides selling shoes and such, Running Fit will play an active role in organizing running and walking in the community.

Step's wife, Kathy, will direct "walk Northville." The club has already started, in fact, with Tuesday morning sessions in Hines Park.

The store will also have a trail-running club. The "Dirt Runners" will find a different area trail each month to test members, Step said.

Running clinics, marathon training and much more will be offered, too.

"It's a good location to stage events," Step said.

Runners and walkers, of course, must have the right equipment to do their best.

Saucony, Nike and Asics are a few of the shoe makers on hand at Running Fit. Running, walking, track and hiking shoes are all available for about 10 percent less than you'll find them in the malls.

Hi-tech running and walking clothing is another feature of the store. Having the right clothes to workout in makes a big difference, according to Step, who runs about 40 miles a week himself.

Money Management

Don't be an April Fool at tax time

For many people, April Fools' Day marks the beginning of the two-week rush to complete 1994 tax returns.

If you're still crunching numbers to figure the bottom line on your tax bill, the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants recommends you take note of the following tax tales, which describe how some taxpayers have fared in tax court. They may help to prevent you from being an April fool this tax season.

WRITE FOR PROFIT

If you can't demonstrate your intent to make a profit, the IRS may prevent you from claiming losses associated with operating a sideline business, as it did in the case of one taxpayer.

Employed as a technical writer of manuals, the taxpayer decided to use his spare time to publish a booklet on political events featuring his work and that of other freelance writers. He claimed the costs associated with publishing the book — $6,085 — as a business-loss deduction on his tax return.

However, the IRS and the tax court disallowed his deduction because he failed to research in advance whether there was interest in the book, and he had not developed a marketing plan indicating his intent to make a profit.

MIXING DIVORCE WITH BUSINESS

Generally, when a couple divorces and divides their property, there is no tax liability on either side. However, if the couple was jointly involved in a business venture and divides business assets when they divorce, different tax rules may apply.

In one instance, as part of a divorce settlement, a woman received stock from the business she owned with her husband, then cashed her stock and claimed the proceeds were tax-free as a division of marital property.

Not true, said the IRS. The woman actually had a taxable gain, since the sale of the stock was not specified in a divorce decree, and because the transaction did not simply involve the couple, but rather her personal business.

LONG-DISTANCE COMMUTES

Before you deduct unreimbursed transportation expenses for business purposes, make sure you know the tax rules. The IRS won't offset the costs of commuting to work, regardless of how far one travels.

Take the case of a family who moved from New York City to Vermont to lower their cost of living. The wife retained a part-time job in

New York, commuting there on Wednesday and returning to Vermont on Friday. She tried to deduct her transportation costs on the basis her commute was necessary due to economic hardship.

The IRS didn't share her viewpoint. It considered her commuting expenses personal because she chose to live in Vermont.

NICE GUYS DON'T ALWAYS WIN

The IRS generally has three years from the date you file your tax return to assess any additional tax. However, if the return is filed prior to the official due date, the return is deemed filed on April 15. (You should note that the filing deadline for this year is April 17.)

After receiving an inquiry for additional time from the IRS, one taxpayer foolishly extended the deadline and gave the IRS more time to examine his return. The man believed the IRS only planned to check a few minor items.

However, when the audit was completed, he was hit with an unpleasant surprise: The IRS had scrutinized his entire return and disallowed deductions that had not previously been questioned.

The taxpayer took the IRS to court, claiming that he and the IRS had not agreed on the parameters of the audit. The tax court ruled the extension contained no terms restricting what should be examined. As a result, the taxpayer was hit with a larger tax bill.

The MACPA says if you want to stay out of trouble with the IRS, take the time to understand the tax rules affecting your particular situation and be sure to carefully and accurately complete your tax return.

LOOKING FOR TAX SPEAKERS?

The Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants' Speakers Bureau can be the key to your upcoming speaking engagement!

Let a CPA do the talking — at no cost to you. The MACPA Speakers Bureau can match a club, civic group, educational organization, or Chamber of Commerce with a CPA speaker who is qualified to discuss a variety of tax, business and personal financial issues.

Available statewide, our CPAs will speak on any of the following topics or will tailor their presentations to meet your group's specific needs: tax planning tips, tax-saving ideas, personal finances, careers in accounting, financing for small businesses, estate planning tips for individuals, controlling your credit, and starting a business — the necessary accounting records.

For more information, contact Donna Korte at the association office, (810) 855-2288.

Investing in non-diversified funds

J. R. Atiyeh

Dear J.R.:
I have heard you discuss sector mutual fund investing. Can you tell me which funds to consider at this time?

Jim B., Novi

There are numerous funds to consider, but first let's define what a sector fund is.

Most mutual funds are a diversified portfolio of stocks or bonds that spread out risk over many stocks and many different industries. This is a safer approach to investing due to the fact that as many as 20 or more industries may be represented with up to 300 different companies.

A sector fund is the opposite of a diversified mutual fund. Actually you may have heard me call them "non-diversified" funds. They only invest in one area or sector of the market. For example, John Hancock's Regional Bank Fund is invested in stocks such as, First of America, Old Kent, Integra and Comerica. There are over 280 stocks in this fund. If the banking sector of the stock market does well, this fund will perform with excellence. If the banking sector of the market sinks, the fund will perform the same. Without diversification, a fairly high percentage of loss could be taken quickly.

It is best to invest in a broad spectrum of funds. I also like the Fidelity Select Group of sector funds. These funds are not priced on a daily basis however hourly. They, in my opinion, are not designed for the individual investor, more for the institutional investors.

Here is where I would invest today, consumer products, food and agriculture, computer and software, home finance, multimedia, electronics, insurance, and medical delivery. Remember that these types of funds need to be monitored very closely. They can be volatile. Best of luck!

A Home Show first: Outdoor auto display

The Livingston County Home Show just keeps getting better — this year will see the first ever Livingston County Auto Show.

That's right, not only will you be viewing the latest and greatest improvements for your home and garden, you'll be able to check out the latest vehicles available to bring home your purchases. New 1995 Chryslers, Fords, General Motors, Hondas and Mazdas will be on display for your viewing pleasure. Eight local Livingston County dealers will provide their vehicles during the home show weekend.

The auto show will be located between the auditorium, cafeteria and gym in the courtyard. You can stop and browse on your way to Taste of Livingston County or the art show. The addition of the car show this year is one more reason why you must put the home show on your calendar as a must see event in Livingston County.

If you've been out of the car or truck market for a while, you must see what 1995 has to offer. Airbags, anti-lock brakes, power this power that, the list goes on. You'll see Fords, jeep Grand Cherokees, Aurora, Buicks, Chevrolets, Cadillacs and Pontiacs. How about Chrysler or a Miata convertible? There will be something for everyone.

Each dealership can offer you something different, exciting and new. Here's what they have to say about themselves:

Brighton Chrysler (booth 7 and 8), located on East Grand River Avenue in Brighton carries the complete line of all Chrysler Corporation vehicles under one roof. Established in 1982 Brighton Chrysler has grown to be the second highest volume full line dealership in Michigan. Sales department hours are Monday and Thursday, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.; Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.; and Saturday, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Brighton Ford Mercury (booth 1 and 2) is open more hours than any other dealership in Livingston County, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Friday and 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday, with a service department open from 7 a.m. to 9 p.m., Monday through Thursday and 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Friday. We are here to serve our customers. With over 750 new and used vehicles on Brighton Ford Mercurys two lots, finding the car or truck to fit your needs should be easy, and with our statewide banking network we can have almost anybody driving in no time. Credit problems are no problem with us.

Brighton Ford Mercury's Specialty Vehicle Selection is the best in the area, from conversion vans for the family to ride in comfort, to Mustang Cobras to get you there quickly, to dump trucks to get the job done!

Brighton Ford Mercury is the place to buy your next car or truck.

Brighton Honda-Mazda (booth 4) is proud to be a part of the Livingston County Home Show. Now entering our fifth year of business, we will continue to grow with Livingston County and all of its import sales and service needs.

Visit us in our showroom Monday and Thursday nights until 9 p.m., or Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday until 6 p.m. We are open every Saturday until 4 p.m. Visit us at the home show April 7-9 and see the Mazda Miata M-Edition convertible, new for 1995.

General Motors is pleased to announce that Superior Oldsmobile - Cadillac - GMC Truck (booth 12 and 13) is the only Triple Crown winner in the nation.

Superior Oldsmobile - Cadillac - GMC Truck has won the coveted Oldsmobile Elite, Cadillac Master Dealer and GMC Truck 5 Star Performer awards.

Superior is the only Oldsmobile - Cadillac - GMC Truck dealer in the nation to win all three awards in 1994.

These awards are given to dealerships who meet and exceed the highest standard for customer satisfaction. Less than 5 percent of the dealers in the nation qualify for these awards - Superior has won all three.

"The best you have ever been treated in a dealership," is the standard by which Superior Oldsmobile - Cadillac - GMC Truck is run.

When you think GM, think Waldecker. Waldecker Pontiac - Buick in Brighton and Waldecker Chevrolet - Oldsmobile - Geo and Aurora (booth 5 and 6) in Fowlerville offer professional, courteous service in all automotive areas. Waldecker Chevy has just recently celebrated the highest Chevy customer satisfaction in Livingston County. They will be moving to their new facility on S. Grand Blvd. in Fowlerville this summer.

Waldecker Pontiac - Buick will be celebrating their 15th year of providing Livingston County with Pontiacs and Buicks. Thousands of local residents have already experienced the pleasure of driving quality vehicles from Waldecker dealerships. Stop by their booths and enter to win prizes and get literature on all five GM models they have to offer.

Remember - Waldecker is your GM connection in Livingston County, with two locations to serve you. Where you get results, not promises in sales and service.

Champion Chevrolet (booth 10 and 11) Geo is conveniently located at 5000 E. Grand River Ave. (I-96 and Exit 141) between Howell and Brighton and across from Lake Chemung. We recently celebrated our one year anniversary at our new state-of-the art facility, and what a successful year it has been.

For your convenience, our showroom hours are Monday and Thursday, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.; and Saturday, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Our parts, service and body shop hours are Monday, 7 a.m. to 7:30 p.m.; Tuesday - Friday, 7 a.m. to 6 p.m.; and Saturday, 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Our phone number is (517) 545-8800 or (810) 229-8800. We also have two other used car locations in downtown Howell and Brighton.

With years of Chevrolet experience and Len Nadolski as president, Champion Chevrolet is the number one Chevrolet dealer for you!

Get your best show at Dick Scott Motor Mall (booth 3) in Fowlerville. They offer Dodge cars and trucks, Jeep Eagle, and Chrysler Plymouth vehicles. All in one spot.

Dick Scott is just off I-96 on Fowlerville Road.

This month they are celebrating their 6-year anniversary, and just recently opened a used car lot in Howell on Grand River Avenue.

They are open Monday and Thursday, 8:30 a.m. to 9 p.m.; Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 6 p.m.; and Saturday, 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Trees help protect soil

By Fred Menko

The Fenton Livingston Soil Conservation District has been protecting soil and water in the county since 1937.

And one way it accomplishes its goal of protecting Livingston County's natural resources is through the sale of a variety of trees from blue spruce to cedar and oak, said Jean Wines, the district's administrator.

The trees, which help protect the soil and wildlife, are available at federally subsidized prices from the soil conservation district as both seedlings and transplants, Wines said.

"The root system protects the soil, basically that's what they're for," Wines said. "Most of the shrubs that we sell are good wildlife food and they also provide good nesting and coverage for wildlife."

Many people interested in the soil conservation tree sale hope to provide wind breaks and landscaping to their homes.

"Re-forestation is a part of it," Wines said. "People want to have woods on their lot they plant them 10 to 12 feet apart. The leaves on the trees help a lot in having clean air."

Using the trees as a windbreak can serve two purposes: lower temperatures in the summer and a stop to the wind in the winter, Wines said.

The soil conservation district also provides crown vetch, an inexpensive ground cover that grows to 2-3 feet high and has a pink flower on it year round.

A tree sale is held twice a year, in the spring and in the fall, Wines said.

In the past, the trees were grown on a federal nursery in Ohio. But, the nursery has closed and the trees are now purchased from private nurseries and sold at lower prices.

Twenty-five seedlings, 1-2 year-old trees, are available for about $10-$12; 100 trees are available for about $45.

Ten transplants, 3-4 year-old trees which have spent two years out of a seedling bed, are available for $18; 50 trees are available for $60.

Transplants have a better chance of surviving because of their root system, Wines said.

Twenty-five hardwoods are available for $14 and 100 hardwoods are available for $45, Wines said.

When the trees from the soil conservation district are planted, Wines said, the plants must be well-watered.

"A lot of people lost them because they didn't water them," Wines said.

The soil conservation district will be accepting orders until April 5 and at the Livingston County Home Show for its trees, Wines said.

Gravity defying faucet

There will be plenty of interesting exhibits at this year's Home Show, including this seemingly phenomenal faucet that defies gravity. Builders and salespeople will have their goods on display throughout the show, open April 7, 8 and 9 at Howell High School.

Pool company gets folks thinking summer

By Cal Hodges

If you want to get something wet or warm something up, there is one place to look — Northwest Pool Supply. Run by Dennis Maxheimer, Northwest Pool Supply not only deals with pools but also supplies propane for commercial, industrial and home use.

At the Home Show, Dennis will be displaying two "Soft Tub" hot tubs as well as two propane grills. The tubs are available to sell and rent.

"Some people just rent for the week or weekend, like around the holiday season," Maxheimer said.

Northwest Pool Supply can also help people out with opening pools in the springs and closing them down in the fall or winter. To open the pools, they put in the necessary chemicals and haul in the water. They bring the water in bulk trucks for people with water softeners or well water. It can also be cheaper than filling the pool yourself.

To close down the pools, Northwest will pump out the water to a certain level, put in chemicals to keep the pumps from freezing, and clean out the lines so that they don't freeze or break.

Northwest carries pool supplies and spa supplies including filters, pumps and heaters. They supply chlorine for pools, as well as Bromine for people with more sensitive skin. Northwest carries two brands of hot tubs, Soft Tubs which have soft sides, and Baja Spas.

"Anything you would need for a pool, we have," Maxheimer said.

Northwest supplies propane tanks to run some machines in plants or factories. Also, they provide temporary propane heaters for buildings under construction. Propane for home grills like the ones on display at the Home Show are available, as well.

Said Maxheimer of the Home Show, "In the Livingston County area, it is the best way to promote our name and our business."

May's greenhouse in business to help others

By Doug Sanders

Visitors to Dr. Pat May's booth at the Livingston County Home Show will not walk away empty-handed or without some fresh ideas, the long-time Howell physician is promising.

May, whose sidelight is operating his May's Greenhouse operation in Marion Township, is planning to carry on his missionary zeal for gardening by dispensing ample amounts of advice, information and free plants to those who stop by.

In an interview amidst the creative clutter of his cluster of County Farm Road greenhouses, May, 72, summed up his typical customer in terms familiar to anyone who has watched Livingston County grow like a weed over the last couple of decades.

"(They are) the new people who have moved into those beautiful 10-acre rural homes all around the county that come to the show, but they work and worship usually outside of Howell," he said. "This is an opportunity for them to be a part of Howell. It used to be, and I don't want to sound like I'm bragging, that I'd know everybody there, but now I probably know probably 10 percent."

That will not stop the good doctor from displaying a couple of items he's certain will ease life for the weekend warriors who dream of well-ordered, esthetically pleasing yards and gardens during the warm weather months.

The first is an open-sided, open-bottomed basket of sorts that slips inside the traditional plastic flat in which gardeners are accustomed to receiving their plants. The liners can be lifted out and planted as a whole, providing the plants with uniform spacing and the gardener with more time for other pursuits.

May said the plastic liners already in use in North Carolina, have made it as far north as Ohio and are now finding a place among Michigan gardeners.

"I call them instant perennials," Mays said. "Perennials with a fence are inexpensive, no labor, no weeds, few insects. Any dummy can raise these."

"We'll help landscape your place so you can be your own landscaper. This is a foolproof method ... this is not Pat May's idea. This has worked elsewhere."

Home show visitors who stop by May's display, which he said will likely be located strategically near the show entrance, will find it well stocked with hanging baskets of impatiens and geraniums and flats filled with pansies, posies, dusty miller, and primroses.

But May would prefer to adjust some thinking among suburban gardeners who think of landscaping plants only in terms of flowers and groundcover. He said such traditional food plants as strawberry, kale and potato plants also make fine ornamentals.

"These are easy to find in a lot of greenhouses," May said. "We'll have free kale or cabbage plants for the people. You can eat it, look at it, smell it. We'll have a lot of volunteers there. We're great on volunteerism."

"And we're going to give them a sheet with a map and 20 percent off. We're off the beaten path so it's fun to find our place."

May came to Livingston County right after World War II because, he said, he saw it as fertile ground for a young general practice physician yet to establish a general practice. The gardening itch came some years later, something he stumbled onto by accident.

Now, May said, his greenhouse operation is a money-losing proposition designed to do more for the customers and workers than for the man whose name is on the sign out front.

"It's very good for your nerves, the nightlights here are good for your depressive state," he said. "I think this is my little part in the world to try and make better people. We lose money like crazy in this business, but people like to get their hands dirty."

MAY'S GREENHOUSE

■ Specializing in all sorts of flowers and plants, May's Greenhouse also produces Howell melons. The greenhouse is located at 685 County Farm Road in Howell. Call 548-3145 for information on what is available.

Couple puts design ideas to work for clients

Cindy and Rick Snyder feel they have the right combination to serve their customers well.

By Jennifer Placinto

Designing or improving a bathroom or kitchen is a task which requires time and planning to find something that best meets your aesthetic and financial needs.

Cindy Snyder of Care Crafted Limited, located at 12619 E. Grand River Ave. in Brighton, just west of Kensington Road, feels she and her husband, Rick Snyder, have the experience needed to best assist their clients in this task.

Care Crafted Limited offers a wide variety of kitchen and bathroom sinks, counter tops, faucets, cabinets and all the accessories.

In business for the past five years, the couple not only sells kitchen and bathroom products, they give their clients cost-saving ideas. Rick Snyder has extensive background in remodeling and designing kitchens. He knows the costs associated with redesigning homes and can advise his clients of the least costly way of doing it.

"Kitchens are not easily picked packages," Cindy Snyder said. "It takes a team effort between the sales staff, designer and client, and that takes some experience and willingness to listen to the client. That is something you can't get at bigger warehouses."

Snyder added that those big warehouses also do not mean better prices.

"Individual dealers can be competitive too," Snyder said. "And we have a low-stress atmosphere. It's not like battling the crowds at a (big warehouse) on Saturday morning," she added.

Many customers looking to improve their kitchen or bathroom setting have no idea about how many choices they must make, Snyder said.

"People are often times overwhelmed," Snyder said. "We can narrow down the choices for them. There are literally hundreds of sinks and faucets to choose from."

Care Crafted Limited offers a wide selection of cabinet choices to meet their customers budgets. They range from the lowest cost stock cabinets to custom made.

"We sell cabinets for every budget," Snyder said. "Most people opt for the semi-custom made."

Many Care Crafted customers are working on their second or third homes.

"They want to put in something that is nicer, so they're willing to spend a little more," she said.

According to Snyder, many homeowners are now making their kitchens the focal point of their home aesthetically and therefore want a kitchen that will compliment the rest of the home.

"Lots of times, customers want a kitchen that flows into their family rooms," Snyder said, adding that the most popular kitchen cabinets are made of maple and hickory wood.

"People are getting away from oak. They want to try something different," she said.

Snyder said the popular selections for kitchens and bathrooms are white and hunter green kitchens with Swanstone sinks, acrylic based sinks that have a stone appearance.

"Green is a neutral color. It's not a color people will get real tired of for a long time," Snyder said.

Solid brass handles on kitchen cabinets is also very popular, as are ceramic tile backsplashes.

Frost wood is very popular in bathroom cabinets. It's soft, restful color, Snyder said, is especially pleasing first thing in the morning.

When a customer comes to Care Crafted Limited, not only will they hear about the selection and costs the Snyder's offer, they will hear about the competition as well.

"I think many people will be going somewhere else to compare prices. I try to walk through and educate them a little," she said.

Snyder advises buyers to decide first on how much they want to invest in their home and have a realistic budget in mind.

"People expect the kitchen place to set the budget," Snyder said. "People tend to come in and have no clue what they want or the cost of remodeling."

The items needed can cost $8,000 to $10,000 alone, Snyder said, plus labor. However, she added, "It's less than a new car and lasts a lot longer."

Satellite dishes are becoming an alternative

Consumers can choose services and options.

By Colleen Newvine

Back in the early 1980s, Tom Lovachis sold a good number of satellite dishes while he was manager of Worldwide TV and Appliance.

Now, as owner of Specialty Satellite and Antenna in Gregory, Lovachis sees technology continuing to grow and develop.

"The changes have been amazing," Lovachis said.

That technology means that those buying a satellite dish have more options than ever — they can buy a traditional 7- or 10-foot dish for their backyard or an 18-inch dish that's barely visible on the roof line. They don't even actually have to buy a dish, because one option lets them get a 3-foot dish on a lease basis.

Lovachis said the choices make satellite a more attractive idea than ever and its attracting not just those in rural areas who can't get cable TV, but also those who want another way to get entertainment without cable.

"Most people are upset with cable," Lovachis said, listing off complaints including the service, the lack of choice in which channels subscribers do or don't receive and the price the companies charge.

In addition, Lovachis said, getting on board with a satellite versus cable is kind of like the difference between buying a house and renting.

"When you walk away from cable TV, you've got no equity," he said.

Lovachis said most of his customers are former cable subscribers. That's because they're people who are already used to the idea of paying for television and because they're familiar with the variety of non-network entertainment that's available.

Prices vary widely depending on the option the customer chooses.

RCA markets an 18-inch digital satellite system for $699. The dish is designed for consumer installation, but if the customer opts for professional installation, that goes for $200.

On top of the purchase price, consumers will pay $29.95 per month for a basic service package.

PrimeStar's leased equipment package includes a $299 installation fee, then charges a programming fee that starts at $21.95 per month.

"The idea is subscription TV," Lovachis said. "There's nothing for free on it."

Like cable, customers pay for the channels they receive and the service descrambles the signal for those channels.

Either of the dishes requires an installation spot that faces south for optimum reception, he said.

The larger full-view dishes can pick up just about anything that's put up on a satellite in North America, including about 100 free channels, Lovachis said.

The dish sells for $1,495, and installation goes for $300.

The larger dishes need unobstructed view of a the southern sky, as well.

After buying a satellite, consumers have an option of buying a variety of subscription channel packages. They can get the packages from any number of providers simply by shopping around, Lovachis said.

In doing that, the options are much greater than with cable — for example, five different Home Box Office channels are out there on satellite. Most channels are based on a yearly price structure, like $3.65 per year for the Discovery

Waldenwoods provides a variety of activities, accommodations and sights, like the fourth green at Lake Walden Golf Club, above.

Waldenwoods has something for everybody

By Amy Kemnic

Waldenwoods Family Resort in Hartland, situated on 150-acre Lake Walden, offers something for everyone, whether it's a family desiring a convenient spot to get away from it all, or a business looking for a comfortable conference location.

Access to the lodges, cottages, cabins and other amenities available for those looking for peace and quiet is by membership only. Four types of memberships are offered, according to Sue Diroff, Waldenwoods representative.

"We try to find one that suits everybody's needs," she said.

Day-use memberships are for those who just want to use the facilities at Waldenwoods for the day. Tennis courts, a swimming pool, basketball courts and walking trails are among the offerings available for day use.

A resort membership entitles members to use the cabins, cottages or lodges for overnight stays. The cabins contain four beds and no indoor plumbing; cottages are a little less rustic than cabins, and the lodges are similar to hotels. Also available is an A-frame dwelling which sleeps 12 and has central heating, a microwave and a dishwasher, or villas, each of which sleeps six and contains a full kitchen, fireplace, television and VCR. One villa also offers a jacuzzi.

The third type of membership available is a camping membership. Waldenwoods, at 2975 Old U.S. 23, features 325 campsites.

An executive membership includes everything, Diroff said.

Members may patronize restaurants at the resort, and use available windsurfers, sailboats and kayaks on the spring fed lake, on which no gasoline motors are allowed.

The Cromaine Lodge is the resort's main building, built in 1922. It is available for weddings, business meetings, retirement parties and any other gathering of between 15 and 250 people.

"It has eight stone fireplaces, and 14-foot oak ceilings," Diroff said. "It's reminiscent of 'Tara' in the movie, 'Gone With the Wind'."

Complete catering facilities are available, as well as a full bar, she added, and staff is available to help with decorating and menu-planning. The busiest months are September and October, when guests can see the magnificent view of the changing fall colors.

"We have a lot of weddings, including Friday and Sunday weddings," Diroff said. "Sunday weddings are becoming popular. We also have a lot of horse and carriage weddings."

Space in Cromaine Lodge can be booked up to two years in advance, but the staff also tries to accommodate short term reservations when possible, she added.

The Waldenwoods site has been owned by the Crouse family since 1832. The land on which the resort sits originally was part of a large farm.

"It became a conference center around the turn of the century and stayed that way for a long time," Diroff said. "In the late 1970s, businesses began to use big hotels for conferences and places like Waldenwoods became obsolete. (Lately) however, we've been busier and busier with business meetings."

Waldenwoods Family Resort took its first membership in 1984 and has been a popular getaway site ever since, Diroff said.

"Some of our members live farther out, but we also have a lot from the Howell, Brighton and Hartland areas," she added.
