Ward hearing packs in crowd

Passions high over proposal

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

The Ward Church proposal for the corner of Six Mile and Haggerty Roads faces strong opposition but also has strong support, as a Tuesday evening public hearing held by the Northville Township Planning Commission demonstrated.

More than 175 people attended the commission's April 11 hearing, held at Winchester Elementary. The two alternative development plans Ward has presented sparked strident debate among speakers at the meeting.

Those who oppose the proposal the church prefers say the project will produce a nightmare of traffic snarls and increased crime. Those who support it say those fears are unfounded and that the plan offers much more to Northville Township than anything else the community's going to see. In the end the commission tabled the Ward proposal to a future meeting.

Ward, now located at Six Mile and Farmington roads in Livonia, wants to build a new and bigger church on 140 acres it owns on the northwest corner of Six Mile and Haggerty. The proposal Ward representatives support combines the church, a commercial shopping center, thousands of parking spaces and 76 acres of preserved open space into a single plan under the township's Haggerty Planned Unit Development (HPUD) ordinance option.

Passed in 1993, the HPUD ordinance applies to land in the township which fronts onto Haggerty Road. It allows township officials to approve development projects that the normal zoning there wouldn't allow. To do so officials must be convinced that an HPUD project brings "a recognizable and

School officials talk strategies for millage vote

By YVONNE BEEBE

Community is the key. That was the prevailing message Monday night as Northville Board of Education and Technology Committee members discussed the possibility of presenting a bond and enhancement millage election to voters during the next school year.

"If we make this just a school issue, it won't fly with the community," said Mark Vernacchia, a member of the district's Citizen/Staff Advisory Committee for Technology. "We need to make this a community issue."

The technology group presented the board with its comprehensive plan of action to upgrade Northville's technology capabilities with hardware and software purchases, local and wide-area network upgrades and new technology personnel in the district.

To do that, the committee recommended Northville hold a bond and enhancement millage election to finance roughly $7 million in technology improvements.

The final report - representing

- ☐ Middle schools - $1 million
- ☐ High School - $1.28 million
- ☐ Administration offices - $94,000
- ☐ Community access - $80,000
- ☐ New staff - $1.6 million
- ☐ Network upgrades - $910,000
- ☐ Application software - $515,000
- ☐ Staff training - $375,000

Easter worship services planned

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

It's only a few more days before the Eastern Bunny hops through town and kids of all ages are gearing up for the big occasion.

Meanwhile, area churches are planning special services and activities to celebrate one of the most important days in the Christian calendar.

Here's a rundown of what church goers can expect to find in Novi and Northville.

NORTHVILLE

Several of Northville's churches have agreed to participate in a special tenebrae Good Friday service on April 14. It will be held beginning at 7:30 p.m. at the First Presbyterian Church on E Main St.

Baja insists she didn't accept gift

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

The debate in Northville Township continues this week over Supervisor Karen Baja, a Meadowbrook Country Club membership and charges of ethics policy violations.

Four members of the board of trustees have accused Baja of violating the township's ethics policy by accepting an honorary membership from Meadowbrook, located on Eight Mile Road. A story in the April 6 issue of The Northville Record described the controversy and stated that the supervisor had accepted the membership.

Baja, however, claims that the trustees and The Record have it wrong.

"I have not accepted the membership," Baja firmly maintained this week. "I had intended to do so but I have not accepted it. I have no intention of violating the ethics policy. Never have, never would. I did not think I was violating anything. I get shot at enough around here. I don't need to go looking for more."

Baja said that she won't decide whether she'll accept the membership until she's reviewed three

Lou Mascolo, left, Chuck Lapham and Greg Konczak have teamed up to bring a new business to the long vacant former gas station at Main and Wing. Ground contamination from storage tanks will be cleaned up before the business is in operation.

Former execs roll up sleeves with new business

By YVONNE BEEBE
Staff Writer

There's similar to a rags to riches story - only in reverse.

Lou Mascolo and Greg Konczak have turned in the suits and ties that were associated with their executive business world and replaced them with a pair of jeans and a whole lot of dirt.

The pair plans to open up their comprehensive gardening store, Gardenviews, in early May - transforming their beloved hobby of gardening into a career.

Although April has yet to deliver the warmth and greenery of spring, the pair is riding a wave of optimism as they plan to open the venture by May 10 and provide the community with every sort of gardening tool and accessory imaginable.

The Northville Planning Commission gave final site approval for the store's concept April 3, giving the entrepreneurs the green light to move into the former site of Cal's Care Care at 202 W. Main St., directly across from city hall

Mascolo, who served for 23 years as the executive vice president for Winkelman's, a women's clothing store chain, was faced with some difficult decisions last year when the company was bought out. At 53, Mascolo had to decide whether to continue in his position at the company or to move on to his long-time dream of starting his own business - something he had not planned to do until after retirement.

"My wife said to me, 'Lou, you have one foot

Players to stage Wilde classic

The Importance of Being Earnest, considered by many Oscar Wilde's finest play, was originally performed 100 years ago in London.

The Northville Players will be bringing this play to the community on Friday and Saturday, April 21 and 22, and again the following weekend, April 28 and 29.

Set in Victorian times, the play is a romantic comedy that allowed Wilde, an Irish playwright who lived from 1854-1900, to make biting satirical comments on the absurdity of London society. The story concerns not just one but two sets of young lovers, and a convoluted series of alibis and impersonations.

Cast in The Importance of Being Earnest are Dr. Robert Hill as John Worthing, Brian McGinn as Algernon Moncrieff, Gene Kerwin as Rev. Canon Chausable, Mary Anne Colucci as Merriman and Lane, Cynthia Bullington as Lady Bracknell, Heather Place as Gwendolen Fairfax, Frances Colucci-Hill as Cecily Cardew and Jean June as Miss Prism.

The performances will take place at the Northville American Legion Hall on the corner of Center and Dunlap.

Tickets are $7.

A dinner/theatre package is also available for Saturday evenings for $20, although separate $7 tickets for Saturday evening performances may still be purchased.

The dinners will be served at 6:30 p.m. on Saturdays and all performances begin at 8 p.m. For more information or dinner theater reservations, call (313) 453-0891.

Three incumbents only candidates in education race

By YVONNE BEEBE
Staff Writer

And then there were three. Too bad there were only three to begin with.

Yes, this year's board of education election June 12 will prove to be a sleeper - all three of the board seats up for grabs this year are uncontested.

The district's business office was quiet and otherwise empty except for its usual occupants last Monday - the district's deadline to hand in petitions for the election.

Three incumbents - President Bob McMahon, Vice President Richard Brown and Trustee Barb Bennett - are the only people who filed for the June election.

"I'm surprised but relieved," said Brown, who is running for a second term. "This allows us to spend our time more profitably rather than worrying about reelection."

Bennett, who said the rigors of launching a competitive election campaign are still fresh in her mind, was surprised that no one else threw a hat into the ring.

"When you look at the kind of dedicated citizens we have involved, I'm surprised no one else stepped forward," Bennett said. "Naturally, I'm relieved. Campaigning is straining and it would have been hard to be on the board and campaign like that."

Bennett was the third top vote getter in last year's more high-stakes election in which five candidates were in the running for two open seats. Freshman members Tom Gudritz and Martha Nield were elected to the board in 1994.

Bennett was appointed to the board in February after Secretary Pat Custer resigned. Bennett announced early last month her plans to run for the remainder of Custer's term - one year - in this year's election. Brown and McMahon are in the running for their four-year terms, which expire June 30.

One possible contributing factor to the small field of candidates, McMahon said, is the high number of opportunities for involvement through other avenues - like citizen advisory committees.

"There is a feeling in the community that the board does provide them opportunities to participate," McMahon said. "They must feel that the decisions being made reflect their input."

But there's still a chance for under-dogs to spice up election day through write-in campaigns. There are no specific requirements regarding write-in candidates. They just need to receive more votes than their opponents.

Teen charged after allegedly threatening aunt

A 13-year-old Northville girl has been charged with felonious assault after she chased her aunt with an 8-inch knife.

Northville City Police were dispatched to a residence on Taft Road April 4 after a woman called over a family dispute.

A 53-year-old woman met police at the door saying she feared for her life after her niece came after her with a knife saying she was out of control. The woman is the girl's legal guardian.

Police noted that the home was in disarray with ripped magazines strewn around, broken glass in the trash can and furniture out of place.

Police confiscated the knife and a sharpening tool in the home. The girl was arrested and transported to the station.

The girl's guardian said the 13-year-old was being treated for a split personality disorder and was taking medication, including Prozac.

The girl was turned over to Children's Village in Oakland County, where she remains.

A hearing at Children's Village set the girl's bond at $5,000 cash.

A petition for felonious assault was approved by the Oakland County Prosecutor's Office and forwarded to juvenile court.

A pre-trial has been scheduled for today at Oakland County Juvenile Court.

TIRE TAKEN: Unknown persons stole the spare tire off of a 1995 Ford van that was parked at McDonald Ford last week. It's valued at $250.

DISORDERLY CONDUCT: Township police were told last Monday evening that a group of disorderly people were gathered in the main building at Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital. Officers arrived to find the group gone except for one intoxicated man who had been left behind.

He refused offers of a ride or a car and left the hospital walking east on Seven Mile.

OUIL: A 23-year-old Northville man was arrested for drunken driving after a Northville City Police officer observed the man pass and cut off a car on Hines Drive and cross the center line several times.

The officer pulled the man over, described to him what he saw and asked the man to produce his driver's license and registration. In a slurred tone, the man replied, "Officer, you're absolutely right, I'll get what you need."

A strong odor of intoxicants was emitting from the man and the car. When asked to recite the alphabet, the man tried and failed to do it correctly and then exclaimed, "God, I can't say them." Then he tried again and was successful while reciting them in a half-singing tone.

The man registered a .188 percent blood-alcohol level. .1 is considered legally drunk. The man was arrested and released after posting $100 cash bond upon sobering up.

A preliminary examination was scheduled for April 12 at 35th District Court in Plymouth.

DEER WOUNDED: A Westland woman hit a deer near Five Mile and Sheldon roads last Monday. The animal remains at large.

The woman, 65, said that the deer tried to jump over her speeding car but was struck by it, hitting the windshield and passenger corner post. The animal entered the woods north of the road and appeared to have a broken leg.

HIT, THEN RUN: A 34-year-old South Lyon man accidentally rear-ended a pickup truck with his 1994 Ford Taurus near Meijer last Tuesday. The man said that the driver of the red and white Chevrolet vehicle got out after the accident, then got back in and left the scene headed east on Eight Mile. That happened despite the fact that the man described the vehicle as "undriveable."

MALICIOUS DESTRUCTION OF PROPERTY: During a vacation check of a home on Charleston

Street, Northville City Police noticed that the outside pane of a glass doorwall had been broken causing about $250 in damage. Police have no suspects at this time.

OUIL: A 44-year-old Northville man was arrested for drunk driving after a Northville City Police officer clocked him driving 48 mph on S. Main St., a 35 mph zone.

When the officer approached the car, the man's eyes appeared watery and an odor of intoxicants emitted from the vehicle.

The man failed a number of field sobriety tests and then registered a .116 percent blood-alcohol level. The man was released after posting a $100 cash bond upon sobering up. A preliminary examination was scheduled for April 12 at 35 District Court in Plymouth.

OUIL, ONE MORE TIME: A 31-year-old man was arrested for drunken driving April 9 after he crossed the center line several times while driving down E. Main Street.

The man was pulled over and arrested after failing a number of field sobriety tests and registering a .168 percent blood-alcohol level. .1 is considered legally drunk.

The man was released after posting a $100 cash bond upon sobering up. A preliminary examination is scheduled for April 14 at 35th District Court in Plymouth.

WINDOW SWIPERS: Someone stole three windows and a door-wall from an under-construction home on Rollingwoods Drive last weekend. The items are valued at $2,500.

CAMERA HEISTED: Township police arrested a 23-year-old Wixom woman for allegedly stealing a $38 camera from Meijer last Wednesday. Store detectives said they stopped the woman after they saw her put the camera into her purse then leave Meijer without paying for it.

MARIJUANA: Township police arrested two men for possession of marijuana on Friday. An officer computer checked one of the men's Mitsubishi Mirage after seeing the vehicle parked in the Highland Lakes shopping plaza lot. The check showed a warrant from Ferndale police for the Mirage's owner on a public disorderly charge.

The 19-year-old Detroit man was arrested as was his 18-year-old companion from Livonia. Officers said they saw a marijuana pipe on the Mitsubishi's seat and that the men admitted to having marijuana when questioned.

Police said they found some of the drug in a baggie under the driver's seat and a marijuana cigarette in one man's pants.

OUIL: Township police arrested a 20-year-old Livonia man for drunk driving one week ago.

An officer said he saw the man's 1987 Ford Ranger squeal its tires at the Seven Mile/Northville Road traffic light. As he followed the Ranger, the officer continued, he noticed it being driven erratically.

The man admitted to consuming two beers that evening. The officer said he exhibited signs of intoxication. Breathalyzer testing at police headquarters later showed him to have a blood alcohol level of .10 percent, above the legal limit.

MO' MARIJUANA: Township police arrested a 24-year-old Plymouth man for possession of marijuana on April 6.

An officer said he stopped the man's 1992 Ford Thunderbird after he saw it run a stop sign and speed north on Northville Road. He said he saw marijuana in a baggie and in film canisters when the man opened up his glove compartment.

The man admitted to possession of the drug, the officer said, and was "polite" and "had a good attitude."

Citizens with information about any of the above incidents are asked to call township police at 349-9400 or city police at 349-1234.

Poets of note

Northville High School always has its share of talented young writers, and senior Jodi Fischer and junior David Hillman definitely qualify for inclusion in that group. The pair of poets produced work of such quality that they became eligible to participate in Western Michigan University's Manuscript Day, held last month in Kalamazoo. In addition, Jodi's poetry was published in Calliope, a literary magazine for students.

Fourth of July event organizers seek participants for activities

"Celebrate Northville," the committee that's organizing the Fourth of July parade, is looking for volunteers to assist with a number of special planning activities.

Needed are:

- People interested in staging a debate on a topic of local interest. The debate subject has not been chosen yet, but will be selected from among several issues now under discussion in the community. The issue will be real but not too controversial or complex.

- People interested in taking part in an antique/classic auto show. Car buffs with vehicles that are of show quality or who might be interested in participating in a swap meet are especially needed.
- Volunteers to help contact bands and floats for participation in the parade.

- People interested in participating in a garage sale. Those who want to reserve space where they can offer personal articles for sale are needed.

For more information or to volunteer for Fourth of July participation, call Ron Bodnar, 349-3730.

Township police catch up with suspected drug dealer in jail

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

An accused drug dealer's luck ran out last week.

Sean Tonak, 18, of Westland was arraigned Monday in 18th District Court. Judge Charles Bokus entered a plea of not guilty on Tonak's behalf on the charge of possession of marijuana with intent to deliver, a four year felony. His preliminary exam will be held April 20.

Northville Township police have been on the lookout for Tonak since arresting him in October during a raid of the Westland apartment at which he stayed. Officers said Tonak spent nearly six months on the run until he was arrested on an unrelated charge in another community last month.

Township police were then informed of where they could find him: in the Wayne County Jail.

Township officers in September made two undercover drug buys from the apartment and then raided it the night of Oct. 2, accompanied by members of the area's SWAT team.

Tonak was injured when the team broke down the door with a battering ram, suffering a cut to the head. Westland personnel treated him and he refused to go to the hospital, reports said.

Township police said they found a marijuana plant growing in the closet of one bedroom and a small quantity of marijuana in a box in second bedroom. They also claim to have found two scales with marijuana residue, a marijuana pipe and several boxes of clear plastic baggies as well as a safe found to contain more baggies, residue and a helium tank.

Also recovered was $2,500 in cash, $40 of it in prerecorded money used for the two buys, police said. Six hundred dollars of the money was allegedly found in Tonak's pants, the rest under a chair cushion.

Tonak reportedly denied any involvement in drug dealing but admitted that the money under the cushion was his and that he had sold a small quantity of marijuana to a family member a couple of weeks before.

NHS brother team jazz up school district cable access channel

By YVONNE BEEBE
Staff Writer

Er surfed through the television channels on cable and while by the public access announcement channels in a blur of furious remote control clicking? If so, you are probably not alone.

But wait! Northville Public School parents and students pay attention to Channel 11: the announcement channel for the school district. The channel is sporting a new user friendly look - and possibly even more important, timelier information.

Northville senior Matt Innes and his younger brother David, a sophomore at the high school, have worked on the SCALA computer graphics program for about a month now. They have created nearly 15 school announcements so far which are flashed on the television screens of Northville residents throughout the day.

This is a genuine opportunity to get information out to albeit a small segment of the community, but nonetheless very important information, said Mike Berger, a parent who works at the University of Michigan in media production and has volunteered to help the Innes brothers learn the ins and

The program to design the announcements has been provided to the district by Omnicom cable company, the community's local cable provider.

The trio has been working on improving the readability of the announcements by keeping them concise and has brainstormed ways to give the channel its own distinctive look to the announce-

In addition, the group is working to ensure the timeliness of the information—something that has been lacking in the past, Berger said.

To keep parents and students informed of what is going on in the district, the group has disseminated press release forms to all the district's buildings.

Although they are still working out the kinks of the program, Berger said he is happy with the Both David and Matt said they feel they have gained valuable computer graphics knowledge through their efforts.

Matt plans to attend the University of Michigan next fall to study computer engineering. David is not sure what he plans to pursue although it will most likely be in computers, he said.

Berger hopes to continue the program in years to come to help other interested students get their hands on experience.

Sophomore David Innes, seated left, and his brother, senior Matt Innes, are finding creative ways of using computer graphics to make school district related announcements on local cable access.

Parents split over high school Wednesday

By YVONNE BEEBE
Staff Writer

The evaluation results of Northville High School's restructured Wednesdays show a desire and a commitment from the high school community — teachers, student, parents and administrators — to change and improve the school on the hill.

In a special board of education meeting last Thursday Sharon Campbell of the education consulting firm, Formative Evaluation Research Associates (FERA), along with the high school's steering committee, presented the results of the pilot program's evaluation.

Campbell compiled the report and offered several observations and recommendations based on data collected by Wayne County Regional Educational Service Agency officials.

The report was based on interviews with faculty members and focus groups, consisting of parents and students, and on an extensive review of the school's study group documents.

Of the several observations in the report, Campbell noted that parents were split on their feelings over the pilot program which has teachers meeting for two hours Wednesday mornings to work in study groups. Students do not start school until 10:40 a.m. — three hours later than usual — and attend a full schedule of shortened classes.

Some parents in the focus groups supported the program as is, while others did not approve of the loss of class time and preferred the collegial planning be done after school.

The report stated that high school faculty members felt the Wednesday morning sessions were extremely positive, giving them the opportunity to learn a variety of new knowledge, skills, methodologies and technology.

Teachers were also able to form valuable new professional and personal relationships with colleagues but also felt "they are not as empowered as they would like to be because of the perceived lack of administrative and community support," the report stated.

Campbell reviewed what the school's six study groups have done, stressing that this year's mission was to construct plans of action and visions for the high school but not to have them implemented by the end of the year. Teachers were divided into six groups: Technology, student services, learning theory, curriculum/instructional methods, inter-disciplinary and intra-disciplinary study groups.

John Campbell, the chairman of the high school steering committee, said he was pleased with the report and felt it accurately reflected the goings-on at the school in the past year.

"Now we have a document that reflects what has been going on at the high school," he said.

Students said they used the Wednesday mornings mostly as time to relax, sleep-in and finish up homework. The mid-week break served as a stress reliever for many students, the report stated.

Gail Goble, a parent with a junior at the high school, said she is not in favor of the current structure of collegial planning time for teachers, adding that she did not accept a mid-week stress break for students as a benefit of the program.

"There are a lot more negatives to the plan of keeping the Wednesdays than there are positives," said Goble, adding that she believes the teachers have done an excellent job with the time. "What about a student who has an athletic event on Thursday — do they get time to rest on Fridays?"

The report revealed that the half-day of school on Wednesdays served as an incentive for students to show up at school, with that day having the lowest absentee rate of any day of the week.

Attendance records from September to February show that absenteeism averaged 3.1 percent on Wednesdays, compared to 5.2 percent on Monday, 4.6 percent on Tuesday, 4 percent on Thursday and 4.9 percent on Friday.

Sharon Campbell also constructed numerous recommendations for the district, including developing a two- to three-year plan for the high school day for faculty groups to devise plans of action and implementation.

In addition Campbell recommended the district construct a survey that would go to all parents asking for suggestions for school improvement and reactions to the restructured day.

Board members commended Sharon Campbell and the steering committee's efforts in putting together the evaluation.

"I see the evaluation as something that lets us look back at what we have done and see where we are going," Trustee Joan Wadsworth said. "This is a very helpful document."

"There are a lot more negatives to the plan of keeping the Wednesdays than there are positives.

At the meeting Superintendent Leonard Rezmierski outlined what will happen next with the restructured day: 1) The board and administrators will continue to review and analyze the data from the evaluation; 2) The faculty will make final recommendations to the board regarding the fate of the day in its current form by the end of the month; 3) Northville Education Association members and the administration will negotiate the terms of the restructured day as stated in the union's current contract.

Mill Race Matters

Northville High School composite pictures are still being sought for 1913, 1916, 1917, 1920, 1922, 1928, 1948, 1951, 1956, 1960, 1968, 1972, 1975, 1977, 1979 and 1980. If you know where any of them may be, please contact 348-1845, between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m., Monday through Friday.

The original composites are being restored and will eventually hang once again in the halls of Northville High School. Martha Nield is coordinating the project for the Northville Historical Society and the school. Donations to assist in restoring the photographs may be made to the Historical Society, P.O. Box 71, Northville, MI 48167.

Palladium, the high school yearbook, for the years 1926, 1934-35, 1937, 1939, 1941-56, 1959, 1962, 1965-67, 1972, 1979, and from 1983 forward are being sought to complete the Historical Society set. These may be donated by contacting the society office at the number above. Community directories provided by Polk between 1920 and 1970 would also be of value to the archive collection.

Another of this community's first settlers was Abraham B. Markham who filed claim for land in section 10 on Dec. 27, 1825. The township's section 10 was bounded by today's Seven Mile Road, Six Mile Road, Northville Road, and a line about one-half mile west of Sheldon.

Markham arrived alone and set about constructing a log cabin just above Six Mile near the property's western boundary. A large frame house replaced that first structure sometime later. It burned to the ground during the 1880s.

Markham's nearest neighbors were G. P. Benton and the Phillips family, each about two miles distant.

On Feb. 6, 1877, nearing his 18th birthday, Markham recalled his arrival and early life in the community while presenting a paper to the State Pioneer Society. His remembrances appear in Volume Two of the Pioneer Collections of the Pioneer Society of the State of Michigan on pages 549 to 567. They provide the most detail of any materials found to date on settling in this region.

The collection is available in the archives of the Northville Historical Society, in the Burton Collection of the Detroit Public Library, from the Plymouth Historical Museum and through most libraries that contain a substantial amount of material on Michigan history.

Markham begins, "I started from East Bloomfield, Ontario County, New York, on the sixth day of Dec., 1825, with my pack on my back, bound for the territory of Michigan, with one hundred and fourteen dollars in bank bills in my pocket, proud as the gates of pleasure and pleasing anticipations would allow me to be. I bent my course towards 'the west' by way of Buffalo, where I arrived on the eighth at evening. Here I found a young man by the name of Gates, who persuaded me to take passage on board of a small schooner named Goodintent, which was to start for Detroit the next morning at nine o'clock.

"The lateness of the season made me doubt my safety on board of so small a craft, but the reports that there were thieves and murderers on the route through Canada together with the thought of the long journey on foot with a heavy pack and the amount of money I had, almost induced me to take the advice of my friend Gates and ship on board the Goodintent.

"I went on board and asked the amount of fare, but did not yet pay for my passage. I soon began to feel that I was not in the right place; I began to feel alarmed for my safety; my knees trembled and smote together like Belshazzar's and it seemed as though I was compelled by some power unknown to me to leave that vessel. When the captain came on board and gave the order to 'shove off,' my pack went onto my back, I ran across the deck, feeling as if I was propelled by the power of a hundred men and leaped to terra firma.

"I made the wharf on all fours and some good man, of whom I shall speak hereafter, helped me to my feet amid the shouts of the multitude on shore, and the jeers of the passengers on board. I made my way toward Black Rock glad to be once more on land plodding my way toward Michigan in the way I at first intended. I crossed the river at Black Rock and put up at a tavern, near the battleground, in Chippewa. There was a terrible storm that night; it thundered and lightning and rained, then froze and snowed, and the wind blew a perfect gale.

"The next morning the Goodintent was found in Buffalo, but not a live man on board."

More about early Northville settlers next week.

Free seedlings available to residents

All Northville city and township residents are invited to pick up free tree seedlings at the Northville Recreation Building on Saturday, April 22, between 9 a.m. and 12 noon. A valid driver's license or other valid documentation will be needed to show residency.

The city and township Beautification Commissions are again sponsoring this giveaway to help to reforest the area and provide wildlife habitat. There will be seven varieties available: red oak, pin oak, black cherry, white pine, Douglas fir, silky dogwood, and Washington hawthorn.

To ensure a successful planting the commissions recommend that you "look before you plant." Look up to make sure the tree will not become entangled with power lines, wires or eaves. Look down to see what type of soil the tree will grow in and to see how wet or dry the site is. Also look down to make sure the tree roots won't someday lift the sidewalk.

City residents are reminded that trees cannot be planted between the sidewalk and the street.

Look around to determine the exposure of the site. Deciduous trees, those that lose their leaves in the fall, are best planted on the southeast, southwest, or west side of the house to provide cooling shade in summer and warm sunlight in winter. Evergreens on the north can help block cold winter winds.

Look around to make sure the tree, when mature, won't shade your garden, block a scenic view, interfere with outdoor lighting or encroach on your neighbor.

Please bring a bucket or a plastic bag to carry your new trees home. Should you wish to order seedlings on your own they are available at a nominal charge. The address is: Wayne County Soil and Conservation District, 5454 Venoy Road, Wayne, MI 48184.

Group wants tax overturned

By TIM RICHARD
Staff Writer

TACT, a Wayne County homeowners group, asked the Michigan Supreme Court to throw out a 1981 real estate transfer tax because voters never had a chance to decide it.

County attorneys asked the high court to uphold the tax because "we'd have to refund the tax for 14 years. The consequences to the state would be fiscal disaster," said Kevin Moody, attorney from the firm of Miller Canfield representing Wayne County.

The seven justices have up to a year from last Thursday's oral arguments to decide the question.

The case presents several thorny questions:

Is it, for example, a local or state tax?

In 1980 Michigan had a 55-cents per $500 real estate transfer tax. The Legislature passed a law allowing counties of more than two million population to raise it to 75 cents. At the time, Chief Justice James Brickley presided over the state Senate as lieutenant governor.

Only one county, Wayne, fit the definition. The County Board of Commissioners raised the rate on Feb. 19, 1981.

Peter Macuga II, Detroit lawyer representing the homeowners group Taxpayers Allied for Constitutional Taxation, pointed to the 1978 Headlee amendment to the state constitution which says, "Units of local government are hereby prohibited from levying any tax ... or from increasing the rate of an existing tax ... without the approval of a majority of the qualified electors ..." He said a vote is mandatory.

OLP inches toward fund-raising goal

By CAROL WORKENS
Staff Writer

Our Lady of Providence community is moving toward its goal of buying a new truck, one cent at a time.

A few years ago, the pennies started trickling in. The small trickle has continued and to date almost $6,000 has been counted, rolled, bagged and deposited.

One volunteer working four to five hours twice a week on an antiquated counting machine has sorted the 600,000 copper pieces.

Another ongoing fund-raiser is the Campbell's Labels for Education Program.

A volunteer trims each label, staples them in bundles of 10 and packages them into bundles of 50.

Through the label fund-raiser, Our Lady has acquired a fax machine (5,200 labels), a CD player, a cassette player and a low impact aerobics tape.

Labels included in the Campbell's Labels for Education Program are Prego, Pepperidge Farm, Vlasic, Franco-American, Sanwa, Spaghetti-Os, V8, Open Pit, Swanson, Marie's and Mrs. Paul's.

Pennies and labels can be dropped off at the front desk almost anytime of the day.

Our Lady will be raising money in a bigger way on April 29 from 6:30 to midnight, when it hosts the Annual Susie's Dance which is run by the parent's association. Over 700 were in attendance last year and Our Lady hopes to see attendance top 800 this year.

The dinner dance will be held at Laurel Manor in Livonia and is $50 per person. It includes a silent auction of 175 items and a live auction of a 42-inch Mitsubishi tube television. For tickets or more information, call 453-1300.

Our Lady hopes to raise $100,000 this year. Last year's event raised $85,000. There will be raffles, door prizes and the students will also take part in a show.

Monthly expenses at Our Lady are $200,000. Revenue is $125,000. The rest has to be made up from somewhere.

"People in the area are very generous," said Sister Margaret Mary Schissler, "donating not only money, but time." One man comes in every Saturday for eight hours to do odd jobs.

Sister Margaret Mary invites anyone in the community to stop in or call her for a tour of the campus at 453-1300.

Our Lady of Providence was built in 1957 with two main buildings housing 16 and 24 developmentally disabled girls and women ages 12 to 40. Three apartment buildings were built in 1979 which house 16 girls each.

At Our Lady the residents are taught how to take care of their average daily living needs such as light cooking, housekeeping, and budgeting.

"They can stay as long as the program fulfills their needs," said Sister Margaret Mary.

Some of the girls attend school in the community during the day while others participate in the supported employment program with companies like Mitsubishi, Seaway Gasket, Hardees, McDonalds, and the Discovery Child Care Center.

The young ladies are driven to and from their destinations.

There are after school activities and a weekly field trip. Girls also attend services at the chapel on the campus twice a week.

Each apartment building houses 16 girls. Two girls share a bedroom, similar to a dorm room. There are four bedrooms at either end of the building. The shared living area - kitchen, living room and game room - are in the center of the apartment, one for every eight girls.

Our Lady is licensed as an adult foster care home and is more like a campus than an institution. The girls are free to visit their friends in the other buildings on campus after receiving permission from their resident care worker. There are 75 lay staff for a ratio of 8 girls to 1 adult or resident care worker. "When we take in a resident," said Sister Margaret Mary, "we act as their parent and are responsible for that resident."

Panel comes out against video gambling at tracks

By YVONNE BEEBE
Staff Writer

Michigan race tracks were dealt a wounding blow Tuesday as Gov. John Engler's Blue Ribbon Commission on Gaming recommended against allowing electronic gaming machines on-site.

The commission said it turned thumbs down to the gaming terminals - which could offer electronic slot machines, poker, black jack and other games - because they would be difficult to regulate at the tracks and adversely affect the state lottery and Indian casino revenues. The commission also recommended limited expansion of casinos in the state.

Installing the machines in tracks is a major component of a bill introduced in the state Legislature in late March in an effort to bail out the racing industry, which has experienced a major loss in attendance due to Casino Windsor and Indian casinos in Michigan.

As of Tuesday, when the report was initially released, Northville Downs officials were still waiting to secure a copy of the report, but had heard enough to know they had suffered a set back.

Although Lou Carlo, the director of operations at Northville Downs, was not pleased with the commission's recommendation, he said the report does not spell the end for the new bill.

"I certainly would have wished that the report had recommended otherwise, but it's certainly not a death sentence," said Carlo.

The bill, still in its early stages with the Legislature's regulatory committee, also makes concessions for inter-track and interstate simulcasting and off-track betting. The commission's recommendations regarding those aspects of the bill are still unknown.

If the bill is not passed, Northville Downs officials have predicted the eventual demise of Michigan's eight race tracks.

Margaret Zayti, the executive secretary of Northville Downs, said the racing bill will simply allow the tracks to compete with casinos on an equal footing. If passed, race tracks would be permitted to operate as many as 1,700 electronic gaming machines and run their facilities from 10 a.m.-2 a.m. six days a week year-round.

The gaming commission's report also recommends the expansion of Indian and non-Indian casinos, including about 223,000 acres of available gaming space in Detroit. The prospect of Detroit playing host to casinos is especially troubling to Zayti.

"If you are in the gaming business and you have a casino within 35 miles of your establishment, you might as well close down - unless you can compete with them," Zayti said.

If Michigan race tracks do eventually fold, the state's agricultural base of farms and horse breeders will be dealt a shocking blow, Carlo said.

"The demise of the business will be felt much less in places like Northville and Hazel Park than it will within the agricultural community," Carlo said. "The race tracks are just the tip of the iceberg. There is a huge agricultural infrastructure in the state."

Developer files suit against township

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

It's official: Ray Hurley has filed a lawsuit against Northville Township.

The Livonia developer promised to do just that last month after the township Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA) meeting. ZBA officials denied Hurley a variance he wanted as part of his effort to obtain permission for a lot split for a parcel of land he owns on Pierson Road.

Rod Dunlap, Hurley's attorney, said that the suit was filed last week in Wayne County Circuit Court. Township lawyers are expected to file a formal response with the court within a month.

Dunlap said that Hurley is asking the judge to do one of two things. His preference, Dunlap said, is to have the court decide that the township has made the wrong decision and make officials grant the lot split he's been seeking. Hurley also wants the township to pay him for the costs he's incurred trying to get the split.

If Judge James Rashid decides that the township's actions are legal, Dunlap continued, Hurley will ask him to force the township to pay for the loss of the economic value of his land.

Pierson Road is a private unimproved street off Seven Mile across from Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital. Hurley bought five acres of it in 1990, wanting to split it into four, and later three, lots and develop them for homes.

Before the sale was final Hurley presented his proposal for the lot split to the township planning commission. The commission's opinion was generally favorable, Hurley claimed, and at no time was the paving requirement brought up. Based on that, he said he agreed to the purchase.

It was only after opposition to the proposed split formed among Pierson residents that a roadblock developed, Hurley said.

That roadblock was section 18.35 of the township zoning ordinance. Township officials say its language requires that to get the split Hurley has to either pave Pierson or get a variance.

Hurley and Dunlap claim that township officials decided to enforce 18.35 only because Pierson's 20-odd residents oppose the proposed lot split.

But Hurley can't afford to pave the road or develop the property without a lot split, the attorney said, and so they've been forced to spend the better part of two years trying to gain a variance.

The effort ended in March when the ZBA voted not to grant one.

Township officials had no comment on the matter. In comments made at the ZBA meeting, however, several Pierson residents disagreed with Hurley's point of view. They argued that section 18.35 was in place before he came to the commission for the lot split. They urged ZBA members to enforce the ordinance.

Dunlap claimed that was just a smoke screen. Pierson residents know Hurley can't afford to pave the road and can't get the lot split without it, Dunlap said.

School group offers three grants to teachers gaining certification

By YVONNE BEEBE
Staff Writer

Completing arduous tasks to achieve personal or occupational growth can be fulfilling. But outside recognition is always nice too. Advocates for Quality Education have voted to give three Northville teachers an extra pat on the back for going that extra mile in furthering themselves in the classroom.

Advocates, a local citizen group concerned with issues that affect public education and Northville students, will grant $250 to teachers who complete the National Board for Professional Teaching Standard certification process.

"We think it's an honorable program that we'd like to see teachers participate in," Advocates President Jerry Rupley said. "But it is an expensive and burdensome process. Not only does the board tell you you are going to have to spend all these hours to get certified, but you're going to have to pay $1,000 to do it."

A recent letter sent out to the Northville school community stated that the group believes the introspective self-evaluation required to complete the certification process will have a direct benefit on teaching and learning in the classroom.

The process, brand new this year, involves about 33 different sets of standards teachers must achieve to receive certification. The process includes a significant time and financial investment ($1,000).

The National Board of Professional Teaching Standards, a non-profit organization aimed at improving student learning, has devised the test and evaluation system that will allow teachers at all levels to go through the process.

The National Board Certification is strictly voluntary on the part of teachers and is designed to recognize experienced instructors who meet advanced standards of knowledge and practice.

As part of the certification program, teachers must be able to demonstrate five basic principles established by the board:

- A commitment to students and their learning.
- A knowledge of the subjects and how to effectively teach them to students.
- A responsibility for managing and monitoring student learning.
- The ability to think systematically about the education profession and learn from experience.
- A willingness to be members of the learning communities by working with other educators.

The group would like to see local businesses, the board of education and service groups provide similar grants to reward teachers who complete the certification process.

Engler gets win on jobs commission

By TIM RICHARD
Staff Writer

After squashing Gov. John Engler's business tax break plan two weeks ago, the state House of Representatives reversed itself and gave him a big victory.

Last week's vote was 68 to 35 with six not voting. The March 22 vote had been 36 to 57 with 16 not voting.

The issue was MEGA - for Michigan Economic Growth Authority. The bills go back to the Senate for concurrence in House amendments, which will "sunset" the authority in two years rather than four and limit beneficiaries to 25 firms a year.

MEGA will be an eight-member board in the Jobs Commission that will pick which businesses qualify for single business tax credits for 20 years for adding 75 or more jobs in Michigan. Wage rates would have to be at least 150 percent of the federal minimum wage.

The board would be subject to the Open Meetings Act, but could keep financial and proprietary information a secret under the Freedom of Information Act.

MEGA represents a 180-degree turnaround for Engler, a Republican who has opposed "government picking winners and losers" in the economy. It shows the influence of Doug Rothwell, the head of the new Jobs Commission, which handles many programs formerly run by the Commerce Department.

Altogether, 45 of the 109 lawmakers changed votes. According to this newspaper's non-computerized, pencil-and-paper analysis:

- 26 switched from no to yes - 23 Democrats and three Republicans. One was Gerry Law, R-Plymouth. He said local developers convinced him there would be help for small businesses that provide most of the state's job growth.
- 15 switched from not voting to yes - 10 Democrats and five Republicans, including Kirk Profit, D-Ypsilanti, and Willis Bullard, R-Milford.

Two Republicans switched from yes to no, including Tom Middleton, R-Ortonville, and two other Republicans switched from yes to not voting.

Word leaking from the Democratic caucus was that the minority party was promised no major changes in the workers' compensation law. Rep. Greg Pitoniak, D-Taylor, assistant floor leader, called the final MEGA version "a good product of bipartisan negotiation."

A three-hour and 20-minute debate was spent entirely on knocking down opponents' amendments with virtually no talk about the merits of the program.

Rep. John Jamian, R-Bloomfield Township, lost his amendment to require a company locating jobs outside of Michigan to pay back 50 percent of its tax breaks.

"We don't need this," replied sponsor Beverly Hammerstrom, R-Temperance. "This is self-regulating. If a company doesn't produce jobs, it doesn't get credits." She said 44 other states give such tax breaks.

Rep. Tom Kelly, D-Wayne, lost his amendment to deny firms local property tax breaks if they received MEGA single business tax breaks. Kelly was backed by Rep. David Jaye, R-Washington Township: "Why should corporate brass get double-dips? This is a new form of corporate welfare? Shall we outfit their homes and give them country club memberships? Is there no shame?"

Rep. Greg Kaza, R-Rochester Hills, lost his amendment to require companies applying for MEGA breaks to list their political contributions. Kaza blistered the MEGA effort as "a new government bureaucracy whose function is industrial policy and the selection of economic winners and losers."

Kaza cited a similar effort by Democratic Gov. James Blanchard's administration called the Michigan Strategic Fund, which the auditor general found overstated job creation by 39 percent, counting corporate projections rather than actual jobs created.

School officials say broad appeal needed to sell tech requests over 1,500 hours of work from the committee's 25 members - recommends seeking approximately $4.1 million in enhancement millage funds to finance software purchases, network upgrades and staff hirings and training and $2.8 million in bond money for hardware purchases.

After the presentation, the committee received nothing but accolades from board members who were impressed with the group's vision.

"I have never seen a report of this quality, I'm just overwhelmed," said Secretary Jean Hansen.

The group is the first of three that will make recommendations to the board regarding bond and enhancement millages this year. The technology recommendations have been forwarded to the district's citizen/staff bond and enhancement millage committees.

If either of those groups advise board members against holding an election that portion of the technology funds would be deleted.

The major topic of discussion at the meeting was how to sell a ballot request to discriminating voters - about 70 percent of whom do not have children in the school district.

"If we are going to go into the community and ask for any additional funds we have to demonstrate that we will all benefit," board President Bob McMahon said. "It's very difficult to convince the community to buy into any school funds."

The in-depth nature of the report, however, will make it hard to argue with the committee's recommendations, McMahon said.

"I think its going to very difficult for any group in the community to question this document," he said.

The group recommends the funds go toward adding 16 new computer labs districtwide: adding one lab in each of the elementary schools excluding Thornton Creek, which already has one; adding two labs to each middle school and adding six labs at the high school for a total of eight labs.

The committee identified a number of potential community benefits from the district's new technology, including outside hook-up capabilities to individual homeowners and to public entities like the Northville District Library or the Allan Terrace housing complex.

In addition, the group maintained that the technology will help secure Northville's position of academic leadership, enhance higher education opportunities for students and promote students' employability in the job market.

Committee member Mike Berger stressed the need to keep students up to date with a world that is increasingly centered around technology.

"Let's face it, without technology awareness and the capabilities to work with it - you're going to be lost," Berger said.

Committee members stressed the importance of both the enhancement and bond money. Enhancement funds under law can go toward such things as additional personnel and staff training, which are key to the success of the initiative, they said.

Barb Fife, the district's technology resource teacher and a member of the committee, said the mandatory training initiatives for teachers the district started this year have been successful - proof of the importance of training workshops. So far, 91 percent of the teachers have participated in the technology workshops and the others plan to participate this summer.

"The result of that has been a very enthusiastic staff," Fife said. "I've had teachers say, 'if we had had this five years ago, just think where we could be now.'"

Vice President Richard Brown echoed Fife's sentiments.

"You can have all the technology you want, but if you don't have the training, all it's going to do is gather dust," said Brown, who expressed support for the committee's report.

"You have my strong endorsement," he said.

Program involves all schools

By YVONNE BEEBE
Staff Writer

In their presentation to board members Monday night, citizen/staff technology committee members stressed they are not starting from square one but rather enhancing the district's existing technological capabilities.

The district's fiber optic system - installed for about $1 million as a result of a 1989 approved bond issue - will be the major component the district would build upon, the report stated. The system will allow for outside hook-up and improved capabilities within the district.

As a part of the $7 million in recommended technology funds, the committee has made specific recommendations by individual school building.

The following is a break-down of the committee's recommendations.

• Elementary schools - The committee recommended at total of $1.2 million for technology additions to the district's elementary schools, including a new computer lab in each elementary school, excluding Thornton Creek which already has a lab.

Each lab would contain 33 486 PC computers, a file server, and two laser printers, in addition to lab furniture, the necessary wiring and cabling and a laser disk player with a bar code reader.

Other elementary recommendations: Television monitors in classrooms that do not already have them; telephone handset with voice mail in each classroom, two laptop computers for the building administrators, application software, CD-ROM recorder at each school, a color scanner/digital camera/color printers at each school, two 486 PCs at each school's administration office.

• Middle Schools - The committee recommended roughly $1 million in technology upgrades at the district's two middle schools, including adding two computer labs in each school for a total of three labs at both Cooke and Meads Mill.

The labs would include 33 486 PC computers, a file server, furniture, a laser disc player with bar code reader, the appropriate wiring and cabling, and two laser printers.

In addition, the group recommended adding two video studios with acquisition and editing capabilities in each school.

Other recommendations include: Upgrading all 286 PC computers to 386s in the classroom; application software; add three scanners in each media center; four 486 PCs in each school's administration offices; install telephone handsets with voice mail in each classroom; add television monitors in classrooms that don't have any; two laptop computers for administration also to be used as a back-up for classroom and lab PCs for off site use; color scanner/digital camera/color printers; and laser disk player and bar code reader for the schools' media centers.

• High School - The committee recommended $1.28 million in technology upgrades for the high school, including adding five new computer labs for a total of eight.

The committee recommends adding a computer aided design (CAD) lab with 25 P90 CAD stations ($3,500 per unit), pen plotters for "D" size drawings, an FDDI link to the server and Autocad software for CAD stations.

The addition of a music and art systems lab that would include computers, a digital camera, a scanner and printer is also recommended.

In addition, the committee recommended adding four other computer labs with 33 486 PC computers, two laser printers in each, two file servers, appropriate wiring and cabling, four laser disk players and bar code readers.

The addition of two suitcase video studios with editing and distribution capabilities is also recommended.

Other recommendations: Application software, installation of telephone handsets with voice mail in each classroom, add television monitors to classrooms that do not have them; eight 486 PCs and two laptop computers for the administration office, new 486 PCs in each classroom (100), a media center with eight new 486 PCs; three CD-ROM towers.

• System personnel - $1.98 million over five years in recommendations for a system administrator and project manager ($75,000 per year), one hardware technician ($40,000 per year), one software technician ($45,000 per year), nine building tech assistants ($18,000 per year; one in each building) and $75,000 per year for staff training.

• Administration offices - A recommendation for three laptop computers, 36 486 PCs and four laser printers.

• Community access - $80,000 in recommendations for: 50 dial-in modems and lines for population outside Omnicon service area or those without cable in homes; one network access applications server; one Internet server and T1 connection and one broadband coaxial access via Omnicon or Ameritech.

Fire house gains grant from U of M

The Northville/Plymouth Community Fire Safety House has been awarded a $500 grant from the University of Michigan Trama Burn Center.

The house is a mobile demonstration room that teaches people the safe way to escape from an indoor fire. It is operated by the fire departments of Northville, Northville Township, Plymouth and Plymouth Township, and is run by a five-person board of directors and a representative committee.

Directors applied for the grant in February and were notified last month of the award.

Trama Burn Center grants are given to efforts to promote to burn prevention at the statewide or local level.

Board of directors secretary Kim Stephansky, a Northville city firefighter, said the money will be used to purchase written materials and other items, such as "smoke" for the house.

During home safety demonstration drills, vanilla vapor is piped into the house and people are taught the most effective ways of escaping home fires.

The house travels to schools, civic fairs and festivals to provide educational opportunities for homeowners and their children.

The financial award is made possible by the Michigan Firefighters Fund. In addition to the $500 honorarium, the award also includes a plaque.

Supervisor claims she hadn't accepted honorary Meadowbrook membership

legal opinions concerning the gift.

Five of the other six members of the board, however, claim that Baja did accept the membership. She has also listed the membership in the township's gift disclosure log. The supervisor said that the trustees are incorrect and that the log entry was made when the membership was offered, not accepted.

Her explanation doesn't wash with some other members of the board, however.

"I think she's stepping back from it," Trustee Barbara O'Brien said. "The impression of all of us is that she had accepted it. Now she's trying to weasel out of it."

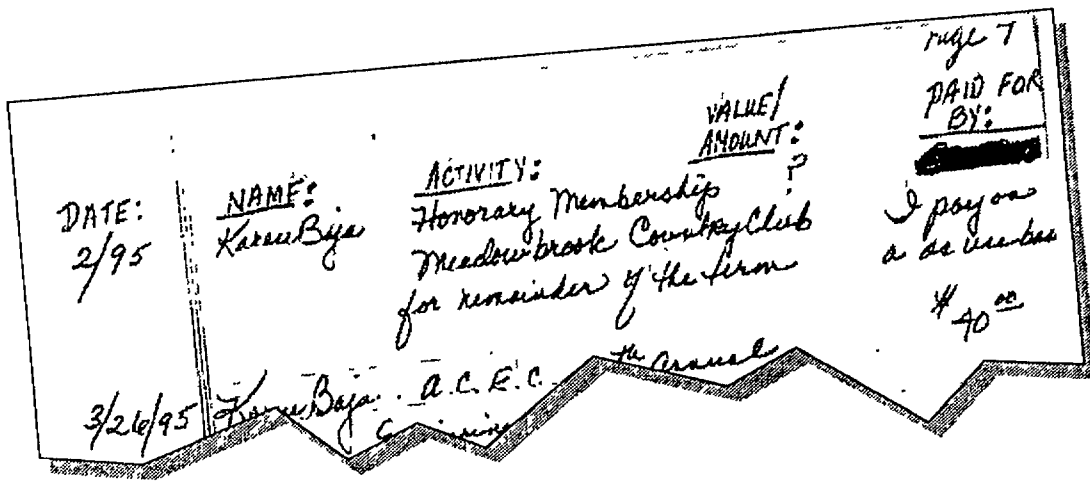

Meadowbrook formally made the offer on Feb. 8 and Baja informed the board of it in a March 3 memo. It concludes by saying that "I plan to accept this offer and have disclosed such."

On March 28, Trustees Gini Britton, O'Brien and Russ Fogg, along with Clerk Sue Hillebrand, signed and sent a letter of complaint to the township's ethics committee, requesting an investigation. They allege that the supervisor's acceptance of the membership violates the township's ethics policy, which forbids elected officials from accepting any gift with a value of more than $25.

The four said they waited more than three weeks to send the letter because they had asked Trustee Mark Abbo to try to convince Baja to give the membership back. Abbo this week said he spoke to Baja several times about the membership and that he believed she had accepted it.

"I was always operating under the assumption that it had been accepted," he said.

Abbo said he declined to sign the letter of complaint because Baja told him she would not use

Baja says when she made this disclosure entry she was just considering accepting the country club membership.

any of the club's services until a legal opinion on the membership had been obtained.

The Northville Record sought to obtain township attorney Jim Tamm's March 22 opinion on the membership through the Freedom of Information Act. Township officials said Tamm denied the request, claiming that the opinion is not a public document under the terms of the Act.

The four trustees said the opinion concludes that accepting the membership violates the township's ethics policy. Baja, however, said that Tamm's opinion isn't clear and added that she's requested legal opinions about the matter from the Michigan Townships Association and a private attorney.

Abbo declined to discuss the opinion but said he is "still unclear in my own mind" on whether the membership constitutes a violation of the ethics policy.

"It depends on what it would be used for. If it were used for the benefit of the township, then I could see some use for it," he said.

Another issue is Baja's note about the membership in the disclosure log. The log is a list of gifts — such as tickets or meals — which township officials have received. To date it includes 17 entries, 10 of them from Baja. One of her handwritten entries reads:

"2/95 ... Karen Baja ... Honorary membership, Meadowbrook Country Club, for remainder of term ... Value/amount? ... I pay on a as use basis."

Hillebrand, who as clerk is responsible for the log, said that the entry suggests that Baja accepted the membership.

"You disclose it when you accept it," Hillebrand said. "I don't know what part of the ethics policy she doesn't understand."

Baja, however, said that her listing the entry did not mean that she had accepted the membership. The supervisor said that she often lists items in the log before actually accepting them "because I am watched like a hawk in the township."

In the case of Meadowbrook, she added, she intended to accept it but held off on a decision once the attorney opinions were requested.

Baja said, however, that she has accepted all but one of the other items she's listed in the disclosure log. The one she did not accept concerned an event she had planned to attend but was unable to go to because of a family illness.

Treasurer Rick Engelland claimed that the April 6 Record article was inaccurate when it stated that he had "declined" to sign the letter of complaint alleging an ethics violation. He said that he would have signed it but it was sent before he had the chance to do so.

Engelland added, however, that Baja told him on March 28 that she hadn't accepted the membership. That was the day the letter was sent to the ethics committee. In a memo to the board dated the same day the supervisor stated that she will review the three opinions before deciding what to do.

"Until then no action has been taken on the honorary Meadowbrook membership I was offered," the memo concludes.

Baja said that she did not learn of the letter to the ethics committee until March 30.

She said that she issued the March 3 memo because Tamm told her that the membership wouldn't be a problem. After he learned of the ethics policy the attorney issued his March 22 opinion. Baja said she then issued the March 28 memo because of it.

Peter Tottis, president of Meadowbrook's board of directors, declined to discuss the matter, saying that he has an obligation to maintain the confidentiality of the private club's business.

"She is not a member of this club. That's all I'm willing to say," Tottis said.

He would not answer several questions a Northville Record reporter asked about the membership, including whether Baja had accepted the membership but later withdrew that acceptance.

Rivers to hold office hours in April

Congresswoman Lynn Rivers will hold office hours in both her Ann Arbor and Wayne offices. Office hours will be held in Ann Arbor on Monday, April 17, from 1-3 p.m., on Monday, April 24, from 10-12 p.m., and on Tuesday, April 25, from 1-3 p.m.

The congresswoman will be available in her Wayne office on Wednesday, April 19, from 10 a.m.-noon. Those interested in meeting with Congresswoman Rivers are encouraged to either make an appointment or to walk in.

Appointments can be made by calling Ellen Offen at (313) 741-4210. The Ann Arbor office is located at 106 E. Washington in downtown Ann Arbor and the Wayne office is located inside of the city of Wayne Post Office.

Rivers represents Northville Township and the Wayne County part of Northville city in the U.S. House of Representatives. She is serving her first term in the Congress.

RECYCLE

Critics, supporters vocal about plan

substantial benefit" to the township.

The parcel Ward owns is zoned for office development near Haggerty and for single family homes on its western side. To agree to the Ward HPUD plan, the commission would have to be convinced that the township would get greater "substantial benefit" from the proposal than under a parallel plan using conventional zoning.

The parallel plan calls for Ward to share the site with 42 acres of office space and 85 acres set aside for 72 single family homes. Seven office buildings and associated parking would occupy the parcel's Haggerty Road frontage. The subdivision takes up most of the eastern half. Ward and its parking areas would lie near Six Mile.

The HPUD plan calls for a 297,000 square foot shopping center and its 1,345 parking spaces to run along Haggerty, taking up 26 acres. Ward Church would measure 240,000 square feet and include up to 3,500 parking spaces. A loop road would circle the church and the shopping center, with an entrance off Haggerty and one off Six Mile. Two more Haggerty entrances are also included.

The plan calls for some 76 acres of the site — 55 percent of the total — to be preserved as open space or turned into active recreational areas such as ballfields.

Norman Hyman and a string of other consultants brought in by Gary Sawka, the commercial center developer, urged support of the HPUD plan.

"The issue before the township is not whether this land will be developed but how," Hyman said. "We think we can show you something that you and the community will be satisfied with under the standard set (by the HPUD)."

Ward representative Bill Johnson said that the church cares about what the township community thinks and has worked hard to develop a plan that takes in everyone's concerns. He said that Ward is looking to be a good neighbor.

"Ward Church is not temporary," Johnson said. "We're looking for something that I and my children and my grandchildren can use as our home."

Hyman and Johnson cited a number of reasons why the HPUD proposal is better than the parallel plan, including:

- Preservation of open space and natural features of the site.
- The more pleasing overall design of the shopping center as opposed to the office complex.
- Ward's community programs and services, including plans for recreational ballfields for public use on the site.

• The HPUD plan, they said, will generate less traffic than the parallel plan and would spread that traffic out more evenly over the day as compared to rush hour jams for an office complex.

That contention drew fire from several of those who spoke against the plan, including resident Jim Haas. He claimed that the parallel plan's traffic would come to and go from the border of the township, unlike what would happen if a shopping mall were there.

"Two hours of rush hour traffic doesn't equate to the all-day congestion of a shopping center," one resident agreed.

Two other key issues discussed were crime and taxes. Opponents of the plan said they fear the commercial center will be an even bigger burden to the township than the Meijer store at Eight Mile and Haggerty.

The proposed shopping center would be more than twice as big as the Meijer store, they note. Almost half of the most serious offenses reported to township police take place at Meijer. Officials say the retailer pays less in taxes than what it costs the township to provide police and fire services for the store.

"Ward Church is not temporary. We're looking for something that I and my children and my grandchildren can use as our home."

—Bill Johnson
Ward representative

"There's going to be an element out there we don't need in our community," one resident said.

Other critics took aim at what resident Paul Dunger termed "a veiled threat" from Ward. He argued that church officials were implying that they will put up a bad office complex if they don't get approval for the plan they want, a charge Ward officials and plan supporters denied.

"They really don't care what we think. They're going to do what they want," resident Jackie West said. "We live here. We don't just attend church on Sunday."

The HPUD plan did have a large group of supporters, however, such as resident Ken Nicholson.

"We seem to be presented with beauty and the beast tonight. As for me, I'll take the beauty," Nicholson said.

News Briefs

TULIP DAYS COMING: The land of windmills and wooden shoes will be celebrated in Northville as downtown merchants stage "Tulip Days," Friday and Saturday May 12 and 13.

Planned as a series of sales and special activities, the two-day affair will include spring sales and giveaways, children's games and entertainment.

The event is being organized by the Northville Community Chamber of Commerce and restaurateur Toni Genitti.

Genitti says she's trying to get as many downtown merchants as possible to participate in the event. If all goes as planned, downtown stores and service merchants will offer discounts and free samples. A window decorating contest and music will also be included.

Merchants interested in participating in Tulip Days are asked to call Genitti's Hole-In-The-Wall Restaurant, 349-0522.

DRIVERS ED: Applications for summer drivers education courses at Northville High School are now available in the school office. Two sessions will be offered: June 19-July 14, and July 17-Aug. 11.

Applications must be returned to the office by May 5. Students must be at least 15 by the first day of class in order to register.

PENSION ASSISTANCE: The Area Agency on Aging 1-B has pension counselors available to answer basic pension questions and to act as advocates for persons who require additional help in resolving pension problems.

The service is offered free-of-charge through a grant from the Administration on Aging to residents of Oakland County. Contact the program at (810) 262-9218 or 1-800-852-7795.

LEGAL AID: Senior citizens, 60 years of age and over, are invited to attend a free legal aid day at The Information Center on Thursday, April 27, beginning at 9:30 a.m. Seniors must be signed in before 10:30 a.m. An attorney can help with a variety of legal needs such as wills, consumer protection and other civil matters.

The Information Center is located at 15100 Northline Road, Suite 175, in Southgate. No appointment is necessary. For further information, The Information Center at (313) 282-7171 in southern Wayne County or (313) 422-1052 in western Wayne County.

Family Tradition.

Every family has its traditions. Gathering for Sunday dinner. Marking anniversaries and celebrating birthdays. Unfortunately, some families share more than happy times ... they also share the risk of certain illnesses.

Breast cancer—which now strikes one in nine American women—is among them. If your mother, grandmother, aunt or sister has been diagnosed with this disease, your doctor probably has explained the added risk you face. But unlike women in past generations, you can put time and technology on your side.

We at the Marian Women's Center, St. Mary Hospital, encourage you to see your doctor regularly whatever your age and, once you reach 40, to see us for a mammogram. Our mammography services are designed to give you peace of mind by bringing together certified radiologists and staff, personalized education and high-tech imaging equipment approved by the American College of Radiologists.

Make mammography and regular breast exams a new family tradition. For more facts on mammography services and other programs at the Marian Women's Center just call us at (313) 591-3314.

Longtime eyesore to become garden retail store in the executive world and one foot in small business. I know where your heart is and I think you should go for it," Mascolo said. "So I did."

After his decision, Mascolo recruited Konczak, his friend and neighbor who has lived across the street from him in West Bloomfield for eight years. Konczak, a business salesman for the Ameritech phone company for the past 15 years, said he was more than happy to give up the executive business world for the new endeavor.

Opening a store that provides gardening products represents more than a business decision for the pair - it's a favorite pastime for the two men who said they have an unspoken contest each year to see who can create a more impressive garden in his yard.

"People would come into our yards and say, 'where did you get this or where did you get that?' Now we can just point them to our store," Konczak said.

Gardenviews will provide residents with a wide variety of gardening supplies and accessories, including tools, books, stationary, bird houses, feeders and baths, water fountains, pots, planters, garden furniture, wind chimes, fresh-cut flowers, stone statues and T-shirts, among others.

The store, which will differ from traditional nurseries by specializing in gardening tools and accessories rather than plants, will also have a master gardener on staff to answer any questions customers may have.

Gardening, Mascolo said, has grown in popularity in recent years as people learn to lead a more casual lifestyle.

"A lot of folks today want to relax, sit back," Mascolo said. "Call it being one with nature without getting too hokey. Getting into the dirt and working with plants and flowers is really fun."

The upcoming opening of Gardenviews also signals the realization of a dream for local businessman Chuck Lapham, who bought the former gas station and car showroom about two years ago.

"It's always been my belief and intention that if we can get retail there it will make Main Street more viable," Lapham said.

Lapham is beginning what will most likely be a three-year process to clean up the soil underneath the site where contamination was found from the former gas station's six tanks. The six underground fuel tanks, five of which ranged from 500 to 8,000 gallons, were removed in 1993 when Lapham bought the property.

In January 1993, the Department of Natural Resources took soil borings at the site to test the ground for contamination. The tests revealed that portions of the soil had levels of benzene, considered a carcinogen, and xylene that were above Environmental Protection Agency standards.

At the time, the DNR determined that the contamination did not extend beyond the gas station site and had not penetrated into the ground water.

So far, Lapham has invested nearly $90,000 in the clean-up, a large chunk of which will be reimbursed by the state, he said.

The clean-up effort will include an underground water system that will wash the contaminants from the soil. The water will then be routed to a pump house, to be constructed behind the building, for purification before being pumped back into the ground.

Lapham estimates the process will take about three years and will not be noticeable from the street.

NHS clothing drive held in conjunction with homeless week

Northville High School's National Honor Society will be holding a clothing and toiletries drive to assist the United Methodist Church of Northville in collecting items for their upcoming Homeless Hospitality Week.

Spring jackets, denim jeans, sweatshirts, sweat suits, T-shirts, new men's socks and underwear, tote bags, backpacks, and all personal grooming items are of particular need.

The drive will continue through April 13. A clearly marked container will be available during Northville High School's operating hours in the main office. For further information leave a message for Amanda Hallberg at Northville High School (344-8420) or for the Homeless Hospitality Week coordinator at the Northville United Methodist Church.

Women's Health Day

"Keeping Women Healthy"

Saturday, April 29
8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.
Holiday Inn - Livonia West
Six Mile and I-275

Keynote Speaker: Denise Dador, Health Reporter
WXYZ-TV Channel 7

The first annual Women's Health Day, sponsored by St. Mary Hospital's Marian Women's Center, features WXYZ-TV Channel 7 Health Reporter Denise Dador, and a host of other health experts from St. Mary Hospital and the community.

Denise will discuss how to "Be at the Helm of Your Health." When it comes to health care, women no longer need to be victims of circumstance. Learn how to take charge of the factors that determine your health.

Women's Health Care Advocate and co-host of Channel 7's "Company," Marilyn Turner, will serve as Honorary Hostess.

Women's Health Day will include:

- Workshops on PMS/menopause, stress/anger, women and heart disease, co-dependency, grieving and loss, self-esteem, depression, advanced directives, eating disorders, breast cancer (panel discussion), mother/daughter relationships, life after 50, nutrition, and caring for the caregivers
- Exhibits by area businesses, including make-overs and massages,
- Blood pressure screening,
- Continental breakfast and a "healthy" lunch,
- Fashion Show by Jacobson's, and
- Special gifts.

The $20 fee includes continental breakfast and lunch. Mark your calendar, and plan to bring a friend, mother, sister or daughter. Men are welcome. Pre-registration is required by calling the Marian Women's Center, (313) 591-2882.

Marian Women's Center
St. Mary Hospital
Marian Professional Building
14555 Levan Road, Suite 212
Livonia, MI 48154

Women's Health Day was planned by the hospital's Women's Community Health Care Advisory Council and St. Mary Hospital staff.

The program is supported by Project SMILE (St. Mary Mother and Infant Loving Care Enterprise).

Michigan House waters down law making polluters pay for cleanup

By TIM RICHARD
Staff Writer

Freshman lawmakers protested loudly as the state House of Representatives softened the 1990 version of the "Polluters Pay" law.

The goal of three bills is to encourage industrial redevelopment of older urban areas. Methods are to ease land cleanup standards and halt lawsuits over "orphan shares" — pollution caused by parties that are either out of business or dead.

First-term Rep. Eileen DeHart, D-Westland, joined Mike Hanley, D-Saginaw, in entering a written protest to the House's 83-21 passage of the key bill.

"House Bill 4596 does not provide any funding to assure that urban areas can be cleaned up and reused," said Hanley. "The law currently requires contaminated groundwater to meet health-based standards before it reaches lakes and streams. These bills change that to allow for 'mixing zones,' or dilution areas, dumping untreated groundwater into rivers or lakes."

Freshmen from Kalamazoo, Burton, Lansing and Okemos — whose water supplies come from groundwater rather than the Great Lakes — wrote formal protests for the House Journal — a common practice in the Senate but rare in the House, and rarer among new members.

House action came before the Easter break. The Senate will get the bills when it returns April 18.

Here is how local state representatives voted on HB 4596:

Willis Bullard, R-Milford, and Gerald Law, R-Plymouth, voted for the bill.

Bullard represents the Oakland County portion of Northville in the House, and Law represents all of Northville Township and the Wayne County part of the city.

The sponsor of the bill is majority floor leader Ken Sikkema, R-Grandville, the House GOP's acknowledged environmental expert. He said new funding sources are needed but would come later.

"I am convinced that this is good, sound, environment policy. This course, rather than the course we're on, will get more sites cleaned up," Sikkema said.

Gov. John Engler supports the legislation, saying current law has "an intimidating set of rules that has killed economic growth." Older cities are the big losers, Engler has said.

The Southeast Michigan Council of Governments, concerned with business flight to "greenfields" and abandonment of older cities, supports changes in the "Polluters Pay" law. But SEMCOG in February warned that alternative funding sources should first be found.

According to a Senate Fiscal Agency analysis last winter, the Michigan Environmental Response Act (PA 307) was passed in 1982 when the extent of contaminated sites was unknown.

"Today there are an estimated

2,839 contaminated industrial sites, excluding leaking underground storage tanks, that could cost billions of dollars to clean up," SFA said.

"In 1988, voters authorized the issuance of $425 million in bonds for environmental cleanup purposes," requiring that the state first seek payment from responsible parties.

So far, the Department of Natural Resources has made 188 settlements worth $87.2 million, saving the state nearly $60 million in cleanup actions.

SFA said older cities were frustrated in attracting new industry, however, because new owners — and their bankers — could be considered potentially responsible parties.

RECORD OPINION

Our Opinion

Did Baja accept gift?

"There you go again."
Ronald Reagan to Jimmy Carter,

The Gipper's quip fits Northville Township Supervisor Karen Baja to a golf tee. Here she goes again.

As reported in last week's issue of The Northville Record, four members of the township's board of trustees have accused Baja of violating the township's ethics policy by accepting an honorary membership from Meadowbrook Country Club, located on Eight Mile Road. Trustees Gini Britton, Barbara O'Brien and Russ Fogg, along with Clerk Sue Hillebrand, have sent a letter on March 28 to the township's ethics committee requesting an investigation.

They allege that the supervisor's acceptance of the membership violates the township's ethics policy, which forbids elected officials from accepting any gift with a value of more than $25. A legal opinion from township attorney Jim Tamm reportedly backs up that claim.

Baja, however, alleges that the trustees and The Record have it wrong. She says she has not accepted the membership. To support her position she points to memos she sent to the board dated March 3 and March 28.

The March 3 memo informed the other trustees of the offer of the membership and concludes by saying: "I plan to accept this offer and have disclosed such." The March 28 memo says that she intends to review the opinions from Tamm and two other attorneys and that "until then no action has been taken on the honorary Meadowbrook membership I was offered."

In addition Treasurer Rick Engelland said that the supervisor told him during a March 28 conversation that she had not accepted the membership.

Other evidence suggests that the four trustees and this newspaper have it right, however.

Five of the seven members say Baja accepted the membership, including Trustee Mark Abbo. Abbo told The Record this week that he talked to Baja several times about it on behalf of the four who signed the letter. He says that Baja gave him "the impression" that it had been accepted. Because of that, he said, he asked her to promise not to use the club's services until a legal opinion on the ethics policy had been sought.

There is also the fact that Baja listed the membership in the township's gift disclosure log. The log is a list of gifts such as tickets or meals which township officials have received. One of Baja's handwritten entries into the log reads: "2/95 ... Karen Baja ... Honorary membership, Meadowbrook Country Club, for remainder of term ... Value/amount? ... I pay on a as use basis."

Hillebrand - who as clerk is responsible for the log and also signed the letter of complaint - said that procedure calls for log entries to be made only when something has been accepted.

Baja, however, said that's not the case with her. She said that due to the close scrutiny she's subjected to she often lists things before she actually accepts them. She did admit, however, that she has accepted every other thing listed in the log, except for one instance where she received tickets to an event but could not attend due to a family illness.

In the case of the Meadowbrook entry she said she intended to accept it but held off on a decision once she learned that Tamm's legal opinion was being sought and points to the March 3 and 28 memos as proof.

Baja also says she didn't learn of the letter to the ethics committee until March 30, two days after it was sent. That would seem to lend credibility to her March 28 memo and to the conversation with Engelland.

We ask township residents to evaluate all of this evidence very carefully and to make up your own minds. Which of the following scenarios sounds more reasonable?

- One, that just like every other time she's been accused of something it's Baja who's wearing the white hat. She's the straight arrow who didn't accept the membership and is either monstrously misunderstood or the deliberate target of political enemies and the muckraking local newspaper.

- Two, Baja accepted the membership but now is backing away from that decision and disparaging the evidence that seems to support that contention. The Engelland conversation and the March 28 memo - both of which coincided with the letter being sent to the ethics committee - are suspect because of their timing.

The situation begs several questions: Why do many people think Baja had accepted the membership?

Why did the supervisor make the entry into the ethics log and why does she claim this is the only time she listed something that she hadn't accepted?

And, perhaps most pointedly, why does it always seem that Baja says she's right and everyone else, every time, is wrong?

those that generate unnecessary paperwork. However, we believe that having uniform statewide standards is imperative to ensure quality public school education.

The idea of reducing government, eliminating unnecessary laws and permitting greater local control is very appealing. Some of the interest in revising the Code is based on the following reasons: fewer state controls, cutting the cost of state government and giving people a greater voice in operating schools.

People who support keeping the school code fear that claims of gaining local control by eliminating the Code are exaggerated. State control of school funding gives state government greater control of school operations. Rather than putting requirements in the Code, the Legislature may use the state school aid act (another law) to set preconditions for schools to receive state funds. Without a standardized code, state agencies and bureaucrats may be free to create their own regulations without input or representation from voters. Supporters of a school Code want standards of excellence and competence on a statewide basis.

We believe that local control can be maintained in conjunction with appropriate statewide standards of excellence established by the school Code. We encourage you to contact your legislators and voice your opinion.

Where are all the candidates?

Scraps from the bottom of the editor's bag of stray thoughts and random notions ...

Lee
Snider

Though it'll mean less work for us here at the newspaper, I'm nonetheless a little disappointed that the Northville Board of Education race is uncontested this year. Three seats are up for grabs and just three candidates are running. Unless this proves to be the year of the miraculous election and a write-in hopeful wins a seat, the candidates will all get byes this campaign season.

We'll still do some type of candidate profiles to let our readers know who'll be calling the shots on behalf of the district, but it's never the same when the outcome is known beforehand.

Since I came on board at The Record in 1993, all the local elections have featured head-to-head competition. While my counterparts at The Novi News have yet to cover a contested school board race in the two years I've worked in this office, we in Northville have always had races to follow. Now the positions are reversed, as three candidates are vying for two seats in the Novi district and we're left without a campaign.

School Trustee Barb Bennett, who became the newest member of the board of education when she was appointed to fill Pat Custer's seat in February, says you can interpret the absence of a race one of two ways: either people are happy with the current make-up of the board and don't wish to change it, or residents are afflicted with the same apathetic inertia that is keeping so many voters from participating.

I'd hate to think Northville school district residents, who historically have been so active and involved, have suddenly become uninterested.

There's a bit of irony to Bennett's situation, by the way. Though The Record applauded her selection to the school board last winter, there were others who didn't. They said Bennett was a likely candidate in the June election and shouldn't have been given incumbency status to help her along.

As it turns out, she gets a free pass to return to her seat on the board anyway.

Down and out at Northville Downs?

The governor's blue ribbon gaming commission handed the Michigan horse racing industry a setback this week by recommending against the use of video gaming machines inside tracks.

The track lobby had asked permission to bring electronic gambling to race tracks, saying they needed something to keep the attention of wagers during the down time between races. They also wanted increased simulcast dates and some form of off-track betting to help them compete with the proliferation of casino gambling.

Despite their pleadings that the very existence of the racing industry hung in the balance, the commission said "no deal" to video gaming. The issue isn't dead yet as the governor and Legislature have the final say in the matter. But this development doesn't bode well for the tracks.

Frankly, I find the commission's argument against electronic gaming kind of paradoxical. Commission members said video terminals in race tracks would take business away from the state lottery and Indian-run casinos, but just the opposite is true: the lottery and the casinos are siphoning money from horse racing, which has been around a lot longer than the other two forms of betting and, thus, is more entrenched. Some estimates place the number of track-related jobs statewide at 40,000.

It appears the commission is protecting the less deserving of the interests that have a stake in the division of the wagering dollar.

What a find!

The workers renovating the basement of our building came across several bundles of special centennial editions of The Northville Record, the exhaustive community profile Bill Sliger and Jack Hoffman put together back in 1969 to mark the 100th anniversary of the newspaper.

All of us have sufficient copies to tide us over, but it's a shame to just toss the extras out. If you've got any use for a historic document of this nature, call us at the office and we'll arrange to get you some copies.

not walls.

I recognize that isn't always possible but when the opportunity presents itself, I embrace it.

In my position, it's hard to tell where people are coming from. I've come across people on both ends of the spectrum and some others stuck in the middle. There are those sworn to never trust the media and avoid us at all costs. And there are others you can't escape. It's the ones in the middle who I admire the most.

I've learned to read people's faces and body language by the way they receive me. It's a trick of the trade and a survival technique.

A cold, stern, forced yet polite hello is a clear indication to steer clear. (Now for those of you who know me, you know I rarely steer clear of anyone. There's always some way to break down defenses and I have a knack for it. It's annoying for most but it helps.)

On the other hand those with a warm, welcoming smile give me the green light to put my guard down - which brings me to the point of all of this.

John Swallow (Novi Schools) and I were never friends nor have we ever been enemies that I'm aware of. But I have to say I have appreciated his demeanor. He has always received me with a smile on the outside, regardless of what he may thought about me, this newspaper, or the media on the inside.

He may have bemoaned my calls or my mere presence at meetings, but it never showed.

Mr. Swallow, I thank you for that.

As a reporter, I have on occasion had to face a "tough" crowd. More often than not, people aren't as kind as Mr. Swallow has always been. It's an occupational hazard I've come to expect in this business. But it's nice been to see Mr. Swallow's friendly face in the crowd.

On occasion and not very often, me and Mr. Swallow shared a chuckle at the back of the meeting room or in conversations about district affairs. He always makes me laugh and I enjoy his sense of humor. I'll probably miss that the most about him.

In a black and white business, Mr. Swallow's been a splash of color for me.

I can't remember ever seeing him without an infectious smile for someone.

I know very little about the man who is retiring this year, and as I said before we aren't "friends." But he is someone I've come to admire just for being himself.

Thanks for the smiles. Good luck, good health, and God's Speed to you, Mr. Swallow. You will be missed.

School code serves purpose

(Editor's note: The Legislative Action Network, LAN, is a PTA-sponsored committee that monitors state education policies. What follows is a position statement from the committee concerning the state School Code and the governor's recommendation to repeal it.)

The School Code (PA 451 of 1976) is the basic state law governing elementary and secondary education in Michigan. While this is not the only law affecting school districts, the Code covers many areas, including: organization of school districts; powers and duties of school boards; teaching certificates and approvals; core curriculum; accreditation; student portfolios; transportation; technology; school lunch and breakfast programs; and, school finance issues such as purchases of supplies, taxing authority, bonding, etc.

As you may be aware, Governor Engler and others are considering plans in Lansing to repeal the school Code entirely. While it appears unlikely that the entire code will be repealed, it seems certain sections will be eliminated and revised this spring and fall.

The key issues for parents and voters is whether repeal or revisions of sections of the Code will result in the improvement of public schools.

The Northville Council of PTAs and the LAN committee support revision to certain sections of the Code, such as

Baja: I didn't violate ethics code

To the People of Northville:
I would never knowingly violate the Northville Township Ethics Code — I did not — I have not — accepted an honorary membership to Meadowbrook Country Club.

Karen Baja, Supervisor

Supervisor is trustworthy

To the Editor:

Karen Baja was elected by the citizens of Northville Township because she is intelligent, knowledgeable, honest, and trustworthy. In every commitment Karen makes, she exhibits these qualities and gives 110 percent.

Her direct and straightforward manner are exactly what any person holding the supervisor's position should have.

Karen's assertive, tenacious style is what labeled her "power hungry." If The Northville Record would really like to report on "power hungry" people, I suggest they investigate the very people who contact them so often — other board members.

Karen Baja is, without a doubt, one of the most truthful people I have ever known.

I am disturbed that The Record, and some board members, are insinuating that she is untrustworthy and dishonest.

There were three articles relating to a Meadowbrook Club membership in last week's Record.

Let's get some facts straight. First of all, Karen was formally invited to join Meadowbrook (which has been given to many previous supervisors) on Feb. 8.

So it was not "concealed from board members for months."

Secondly, The Record's articles stated five times that Karen accepted the membership. The fact is, she has not accepted this membership.

One article said that the club had not responded to The Record's phone calls. I called Meadowbrook, and they verified that, in fact, Mrs. Baja had not accepted the club's membership offer.

If there are any township members questioning their vote, please don't be swayed by what you read in The Record.

If you really want to know, just ask — Karen will tell you the truth!

Marie Rumbley

To the Editor:

I am so tired of opening up your weekly newspaper and seeing yet another article bad-mouthing the supervisor, Karen Baja. This woman gives so much of herself and works so hard for the good of this community, it is disgusting and disheartening to see her being continually attacked (most often falsely to boot).

There are never any articles on the numerous good deeds she has done for the township.

It seems The Northville Record goes out of its way to discredit the supervisor. Give it a rest!

Dennis Morgan

Membership offer was unethical

To the Editor:

Now we will see how forthright the township's ethics policy will be regarding Meadowbrook Country Club's multi-thousand dollar gift to K. Baja to join the Country Club.

She should not be allowed to accept the membership which was only offered to her because of her position at the township.

Some private companies would have immediate cause of action to terminate the employment of an individual for accepting a similar gift that Baja has accepted. A clear case of conflict of interest.

If for some unknown reason the trustees cannot do anything about Baja's freeloader membership at Meadowbrook, Baja should:

- Not be allowed reimbursement for any expenses occurred at Meadowbrook.

- Disclose how she will treat the membership on her 1995 tax returns.

I hope Baja will resign her Meadowbrook membership — voluntarily — and concentrate her efforts to fulfill her township responsibilities.

Richard A. Munerance

District should learn from past

To the Editor:

It was just three years ago that the Northville Public Schools (NPS) came to the voters asking for 2.78 mills in new taxes. That request was rejected, twice.

The Northville Record dedicated several pages to articles and letters to the editor from the education tax advocates.

They cried those who would vote against higher taxes, and outlined the devastation that was about to befall the NPS.

Unfortunately for the tax advocates, the most devastating results were that the NPS began to understand the concept of fiscal restraint and responsibility, and that despite the dire predictions, students' MEAP scores continued to improve.

Now, with the school portion of property taxes at a more reasonable level, a team of more than two dozen educators and tax advocates have spent hundreds of hours creating a perceived need for another, substantially greater tax increase.

It appears that the only ones at the NPS who have learned anything in the last three years are the students.

Robert Bernard

Stick to basics in schools

To the Editor:

After reading "Committee to recommend high-tech millage," I was compelled to write regarding this proposed expenditure by the Northville School District.

The primary question should be: What is the goal of a K-12 education?

This period of education should focus on learning the basic skills of life. They are reading, writing, and arithmetic.

The concept of reading means to comprehend the ideas being presented and restated the ideas in one's own words.

The concept of writing means to develop ideas and present them so that others will understand your thoughts and ideas.

The concept of arithmetic enables an individual to grasp a given concept in a logical and orderly fashion and prove a given concept.

In short, these three skills provide the individual to think and express oneself in an logic and orderly manner regardless of the subject matter.

Once these skills are truly mastered the individual will have the ability to learn any concept or subject with ease and little assistance from others.

To teach an individual to think and reason is very, very difficult. To teach them how to use a machine is a very easy task.

As a parent, my desire is that my children learn how to think, how to use logic and reason, and how to learn on their own without assistance from others.

By having the ability to utilize these three tools in life, there is absolutely nothing which they cannot accomplish if they so desire.

Learning the three R's many people may think is an outdated concept.

But contrast the editorials of yesterday with those of today.

The best example of editorials of yesterday are the Federal Papers which were first printed as editorials to promote the foundations of this country.

Yet, today the average American cannot comprehend the concepts as outlined by the Federal Papers nor has a grasp of the vocabulary as presented over 200 years ago. In many ways, our society has progressed but in many it has failed.

Only once the individual has mastered the skills of reading, writing, and arithmetic will computer technology or any technology be of real use. The focus of basic education should and must be on these basic life skills.

Resident will be sorely missed

To the Editor:

I have only known him for eight years but I had a deep affection and respect for him as a father, a grandfather, a community supporter, a neighbor and a friend. Frank Hatch, a firefighter for many years here in Northville, passed away a few weeks ago after a short fight with cancer. Frank Hatch was a good and gentle man.

We met "Mr. Hatch" (as our children called him) in 1987 when we moved to Northville. Our backyards met at the Hatch's pond. It was at this corner of paradise that Frank Hatch and I would meet like two suburban cowboys aside our respective John Deers.

We talked about my children and his grandchildren, about the fish that "got away" and we marveled at the beauty of our community.

It was his quick smile, the joy he found in life and the love and spirituality that drew me to Frank and our occasional discussions of small wonders, great joys and local problems.

Mr. Hatch introduced our two children to "Oscar." Oscar is a 14 inch bass fish that lives in his pond.

Oscar got his name when a young girl caught the bass and innocently turned to Frank excitedly asking, "What's his name?" "Oscar!" explained Mr. Hatch. Oscar and his offspring have been hooked on many occasions by our children and other neighborhood kids. Oscar is very symbolic of Mr. Hatch — they both gave many great joy.

Summer it was — rope swinging, fishing and a wonderful patriotic July 4 picnic in the Hatch's backyard. Winter it was — ice skating on the pond and sled riding on their hill. Mr. Hatch was a good citizen and a tremendous neighbor.

Our children and I learned many lessons from Mr. Hatch. We learned to:

- love life

- enjoy the pleasures of birds, squirrels and fish
- laugh
- reflect on life's simple moments

- appreciate our good fortune to live in Northville

- help our family and neighbors

Katherine, our six-year-old, cried when she was told Mr. Hatch had passed away and asked, "Why Mr. Hatch, dad? He is so nice. I will miss him."

We all will miss him.

As I write this, I can still see the beauty and strength of Frank Hatch leaning on a rake in the splendor of his backyard.

For those of you who were fortunate enough to know Mr. Hatch, you know my reflections only scratch the surface of this remarkable gentleman.

My deepest sympathy and prayers go to Mrs. Hatch and her family.

Frank, I know you are in a good place. Thank you for all that you have given to me and my family. You added value and meaning to our lives.

Good doctor leaves community

To the Editor:

Dr. Sven M. Zethelius will soon be relocating to Battle Creek, Mich. Those who have had the honor and opportunity to meet and get to know him, want to bid him a fond farewell and best wishes. He will be missed very much.

He has graced us with his expertise for many years out of St. Mary's. Being held in the highest esteem, he has turned more than many lives around.

One patient in particular, will be eternally grateful for discovering her to have been misdiagnosed over 25 years ago, and has helped her as well as her family start a new and healthier life.

Once more, God bless and God speed to Dr. Z. and his family.

To the Editor:

Eureka! While ruminating about the extraordinary popularity of Rush Limbaugh, it occurred to me that just as the news media caters to news that is sensational, scandalous, or of a disastrous nature as a survival tactic so does Rush Limbaugh cater to, and feed, our propensity for the outlandish, our smug enjoyment in savoring the exposure of peccadilloes in others, or experiencing the pulse-quickening effect we seem to enjoy in hearing or reading about the assassination of someone's character.

Limbaugh's scurrilous diatribes, directed towards anyone whose activity or belief is contrary to what his megalomaniacal, offensive, destruction hubris is attuned to, are but a manifestation if not a sad commentary on the status of our comity as civilized people.

Our collective eagerness to wallow willingly, or some of us with some modicum of reticence, in the misfortune of others must be an ingredient of the dark side of our voyeuristic nature.

Francois Duc de la Rochefoucauld (1613-1680) wrote: "In the misfortune of our best friends we find something that is not exactly displeasing."

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING PROPOSED STORM DRAINAGE IMPROVEMENTS SHERRIE LANE/JEFFREY DRIVE

Notice is hereby given that a Public Hearing will be held on Monday, April 17, 1995 at 7:30 p.m. in the Council Chambers of the Municipal Building, 215 West Main Street, for the purpose of hearing comments from the certain property owners who will benefit directly or indirectly from proposed storm drainage improvements to be constructed on Sherrie Lane and Jeffrey Drive in Northville Heights Subdivision, No. 2.

The proposed project involves stabilization of the undercutting of the roadways, repair of drainage structures, and installation of new edge drains which will properly drain the roadways, and the replacement of pavement, sidewalks, and driveways. The cost of the new edge drains as well as sidewalk and driveway replacements are proposed for financing by a special assessment on the adjacent property owners.

It has been recommended to City Council that $84,882 of the total proposed project cost of $292,100 be paid by property owners in the proposed special assessment district.

A complete copy of the proposed improvement project and report to the City Council is on file for public inspection during regular business hours at the City Clerk's Office.

Political correctness hurts majority

The parish newsletter that arrived last week announced that incense would not be used at Easter services this year and urged church goers to avoid perfume "and other scented products so that those with allergies and respiratory problems may participate."

I responded by letter: "I am both faintly amused and deeply offended at this latest example of political correctness run rampant in our church.

"I am not aware of previous instances in which those with allergies and respiratory problems had been deterred from participating in church services because other parishioners have been so thoughtless as to wear perfume and other scented products. Indeed, I had thought that decent dress and good personal hygiene at church services indicated a decent respect for our worship of the Lord ... I suppose we could create a designated 'no scented products or perfume section.'"

The letter continued: "My concerns move beyond amusement in the matter of incense.

"The use of incense in celebration of special days in the liturgical calendar is both an ancient and distinguished part of our ritual. Suddenly to ban its use in response to what appears to be the demands of a tiny minority is very sad.

"Our liturgy and ritual have evolved over many centuries, and their components come together as one complete package. To arbitrarily rip one piece out of the totality of our service is deeply offensive to those who treasure continuity in our religious practice.

"Possibly the next step would be to eliminate the choir singing hymns on the grounds that an occasional mistake in intonation would offend those in the congregation who have perfect pitch."

Then the main point of my letter, running far beyond personal grumpiness with church practice to a fundamental axis of debate in our nation's public life:

"How said it is that in our society we ceaselessly work to find ways to resolve the problems of tiny and passionate minorities, nearly always at the cost of offending the quietly tolerant majority whose experiences are thereby diminished."

Our American habit is to go to extreme lengths to avoid offending anybody in any way. This certainly diminishes the pendency of our social discourse (heard any good ethnic jokes lately?), but the damage runs far deeper and costs much more.

My son, for example, is now a seventh grader. He has learned lots in school about Kwanzaa, the African-American year-end celebration, and about Hanukkah, the Jewish Festival of Lights. That's great; he's learning something he wouldn't necessarily have learned at home.

But his school experience has been devoid of discussions of the meaning of Christmas or singing the Christmas carols that are so much a part of majority American culture.

Countless numbers of parents have recounted their dismay on this point. And whether eliminating Christmas — or religious prayers, or even patriotic observances — from the schools has come in response to an over-zealous concern for the U.S. Supreme Court's interpretation of the First Amendment or fear of suit by the American Civil Liberties Union, the fact is that the experiences of many, many majority school children thereby have been diminished.

Thus the real reason why so much political rhetoric these days is so emotionally focused on "taking back our country." Majorities whose experiences have been diminished mechanistically in order not to offend minorities, passionate or otherwise, necessarily will feel deprived of their own legitimacy.

And loss of legitimacy, as my own feelings about Easter services can attest, is a powerful emotion.

City seeks state grant to help clean up Mill Pond

By YVONNE BEEBE
Staff Writer

Many local residents' long-time dream of cleaning up Mill Pond is drawing closer to reality with a little help from the City of Northville.

City officials have submitted a grant application for $27,500 on behalf of the Friends of Mill Pond to assess what must be done to reverse the pond's stagnation problem.

City council members all spoke in favor of applying for the grant, something the community organization is not eligible to do under state law, at the council's April 3 meeting.

"The problem we have with the Mill Pond is, in my opinion, quite serious."

Councilman Paul Folino said.

If approved by the state, the grant money would go toward hiring Johnson, Johnson & Roy, an Ann Arbor engineering consulting firm, to assess the pond's condition and develop plans of action to save it. The city would be responsible for matching 10 percent of the grant — $2,750.

For several years, excessive sedimentation and stench from algae build-up have caused problems in the area, said Lacy Michaluk, treasurer for the Friends of Mill Pond.

"I have lived here for about 15 years and there have been enormous changes in the pond and all have been negative,"

Michaluk said. "If nothing is done, we could possibly lose the entire pond."

Each year the pond gets more shallow, with more with more islands cropping up, Michaluk said.

Under the plan for the grant money, JJ&R will monitor the pond for one year to determine the causes of the pond's problems and suggest solutions. Michaluk said the entire clean-up project will take a number of years to complete.

The Friends of Mill Pond, the community group heading the initiative, started out in 1989 as a petition drive to alert city officials to the pond's stagnate condition. Many of the same residents who launched the petition drive formed the group, consisting of about 35 members, in 1991.

In the past, the group has attempted to get the city to devote general operating funds to the pond's clean-up. But because of tight budget situations in past years and a deficit the city has worked to overcome since 1991, no city money has been dedicated to the project.

The effort to save the pond won't just benefit area homeowners, Michaluk said, but will help the entire community as the pond has historical value.

In 1826, a grist mill was constructed on the parcel of land where Mill Race Historical Village now stands. The portion of the river running through the city was dammed up to provide water power for the mill — thus the Mill Pond.

According to a history of the area written by Michaluk, the mill served as a catalyst in developing the community by attracting new businesses.

Through the years the shores of the pond were home to the Northville Condensing Co., a milk condensery built in 1908, the J.A. Dubuar Lumber Co., later known as the Union Manufacturing Co., and an ice company in early 1900s.

The pond was also a popular recreation site for ice skating, fishing and swimming through the years.

Michaluk said the group thinks the pond is now turning back into a river and they hope to reverse that.

Legislature approves $1.3 billion prisons budget

By TIM RICHARD
Staff Writer

On paper, it looked easy — the House of Representatives gave 90 to 13 approval to next year's $1.3 billion prisons budget.

Actually it took lawmakers four hours to hassle over amendments to curb Corrections Director Ken McGinnis' salary hike and end the "coddling" of inmates.

"There's gotta be a better way than throwing money at it like we've been doing since Blanchard's days," said Rep. Gerry Law, R-Plymouth, one of the handful of negative votes.

Also voting no were Reps. David Gubow, D-Huntington Woods, and Kirk Profit, D-Ypsilanti. All other area members voted yes including Rep. Bill Bullard, R-Milford, whose district includes Novi.

Gov. John Engler, who has been unhappy with Michigan's glut of prison building (from 13,000 to 38,000 inmates since 1982) but hasn't dented the budget growth, wanted to give McGinnis a 19 percent salary hike from the $82,000 mark to about $98,000.

Instead the House adopted Gubow's amendment to give McGinnis no more than a 3 percent hike. The vote was 69-31. The Senate earlier voted a 10 percent increase, but House members rejected that figure. The bill will go to a conference committee, which is expected to split the difference.

Rep. Greg Kaza, R-Rochester Hills, lost 33-63 with his amendment to cut funds to meet U.S. District Judge Richard Enslen's decrees, including those that require free college educations for inmates.

"We'd like to go along with Kaza's theory," said Rep. James McNutt, R-Midland, the bill's sponsor. "But if we don't comply, we obligate the state to a large fine."

Area lawmakers supporting the Kaza amendment were Eileen DeHart, D-Westland, John Jamian, R-Bloomfield Township, Gerald Law, R-Plymouth, and Deborah Whyman, R-Canton. Others all voted no or missed the vote.

Rep. David Jaye, R-Washington Township, won support for two amendments:

- To eliminate loans to parolees without funds, 72-26. "As you might imagine, the default rate is quite high," he said.

- To require inmates to use earnings to pay restitution to their crime victims, 97-4. Law argued against it, saying another bill would allocate inmates earnings to both restitution and child support. Law also argued the forthcoming bill would be permanent while Jaye's amendment would be in effect only for the budget year ending Sept. 30, 1996.

Jaye failed with his amendment to add two lawyers to the Attorney General's staff to "pursue all legal remedies" against Judge Enslen's orders on how prisons are run. "We're already spending $102.8 million to implement college educations, Vic Tanny weight-lifting machines, legal libraries. We're providing computer law services so they can file suits."

HEALTH NOTE

BRACING UP

Because competitive pursuits put athletes at particular risk for knee injuries, there is an effort afoot to provide them with protective devices that are designed to lessen their risk. Chief among these are prophylactic knee braces that discourage the knee from twisting or buckling. However, as much as some informal studies suggest that the use of knee braces may be linked to a decreased incidence of knee injuries, many athletes show a decided reluctance to wear them. Some find them restrictive, while others suggest that better conditioning of muscles takes much of the strain off the knee joints. As void as these concerns and preventive measures may be, the knee brace may well provide an athlete with his or her best chance for averting a career-ending injury.

At Northville Physical Therapy & Rehabilitation, Inc., we stress simple common sense treatment techniques. Our therapists offer individualized treatment programs that focus on returning patients to their highest level of function. We specialize in orthopedic and sport injuries, neck and back rehabilitation, pain management, and general rehabilitation. For more information about knee braces, call 349-3816 or see us at 332 E. Main Street, Suite A. We work closely with referring physicians and provide timely initial evaluations and routine progress correspondence.

P.S. The knee's range of motion is unique among joints. It slides, glides and swivels, as well as bends.

“It was reassuring when a Botsford nurse visited us at our home.”

Since Anthony is my first child, I didn't know what to expect. But the doctors and nurses at Botsford were very supportive during my pregnancy, delivery and after our baby was born.

At the Special Delivery Center, my husband was able to stay with me from the time we came in the special, separate entrance and throughout my stay. My Labor/Delivery/Recovery room was spacious yet comfortable and private.

The nurses showed us how to care for our new baby and offered bathing and breast-feeding guidance. We also received an informative manual and a phone number for a 24 hour hotline.

Two days after we were home, a Botsford obstetrics nurse visited us. She made sure that Anthony was in good health, completed an assessment on Anthony and me and answered all my questions.

My mother lives in Florida and couldn't be here — so I appreciated everyone at Botsford making us feel right at home.

John Moore, center front, and the entire 111th Recruit School of the Michigan State Police warm up before an early morning five mile run.

THE MEN IN BLUE

BY CAROL WORKENS

PHOTOGRAPHS BY BRYAN MITCHELL

During inspections, top, dorm rooms must be spotless. John Moore, above, unpacks his things after receiving his new dorm assignment. Moore, right, gets psyched to do some boxing in defensive tactics class.

There is no gentle nudge at 5 a.m. to start the day for two Novi men. No pressing the snooze button on the alarm clock for another nine minutes of sleep before facing the day.

James C. Young and John C. Moore, both 25 years old, wake up to the sound of reveille through the P.A. system. They are among 88 men and women in the 111th Recruit School of the Michigan State Police. The grueling 17-week academy will prepare the recruits academically, mentally and physically for careers in law enforcement.

"Every day is challenging," said Moore. "Not a second goes by that you are not challenged. You have to be on your game at all times. If something doesn't challenge you, the next thing will."

At 5:30 a.m. Young, who managed just under four hours of sleep the night before, and Moore begin the daily 45 minute physical training with stretches and calisthenics, followed by a five-mile run before the sun is up.

Young endures the daily jog even though shin splints cause him pain every time his feet hit the ground.

After physical training, the recruits have only 15 minutes to shower and dress for breakfast.

Lining up alphabetically in the stair well that leads from their rooms to the main floor, they await the command to proceed to the cafeteria. There is an abundance of food after the early morning jog, but time is scarce. Recruits eat swiftly and in silence. Inspection is at 7:30 a.m. back at their rooms.

Recruits sleep two to a dorm-size room, which includes only the barest of essentials. Each nightstand is clutter-free and only the recruit's typewriter or computer is allowed on the long desk that shares the wall with the closet space not much bigger than a broom closet. Civilian clothes and trooper apparel hang side by side in an organized fashion. Once they have made their twin-size beds to conform to military standards, they precisely place their hat and gun belt at the foot of their beds.

Flanking either side of the doorway of their rooms,

Young and Moore await the State Trooper assigned to inspection. During the inspection, clothing, shoes, hair and guns are scrutinized. A long hair is found on Young's blue shirt and is brought to his attention. Young is baffled by how the hair found its way to his shirt since his once long brown hair is now only 1/2 inch at its longest on top and then tapers to zero.

Recruits rotate room mates, sharing living quarters for one week from Sunday evening when they arrive until Friday evening when they are dismissed for the weekend.

A 50-minute military drill class followed inspection. Although windy, the sun is shining as the recruits

March outside to practice the drill they will perform at the graduation ceremony on May 12 for family and guests. Now in week 10 of the 17-week school, military courtesies and salutes have become ingrained. There are strict rules the recruits will abide every waking second of their day.

At 9 a.m. sharp, the interrogation class begins. This morning, Young and Moore will learn about interrogation with their 86 fellow recruits, eight of which are women. Lt. Church Allen, one of the best interrogators in Michigan, discusses the psychological factors of questioning a suspect and how to develop rapport and gain the respect of the suspect.

Young has managed to rifle off five pages of notes from Lt. Allen's lecture. All recruits must type their notes in the evening after which they will be rechecked by instructors.

If either Young or Moore even thinks he is about to nod off during class, they get up and stand at the back of the class as a sign of respect to fellow recruits and the instructor.

At the end of the lecture, the class commander gives the recruits the command to stow away their classroom materials. The recruits on household duty are given permission to leave the classroom first.

This week, Moore has kitchen duty and quickly

James Young's long brown locks are gone for good.

Shortly after sunrise and breakfast, the recruits work on the military drills they will perform at their graduation ceremony on May 12.

Young waits his turn in the chow line with the rest of the recruits before breakfast. No talking or eyeballing is allowed.

A cloud of breath hangs in the air during the early morning run.

leaves the classroom. Although it allows him to be at the front of the chow line, he loses precious minutes he would normally use studying because he is taking care of the plates and dishes.

Young takes his place at the end of the line as the recruits fall in alphabetically to march to the cafeteria. He has grown accustomed to being last in line. With eyes straight ahead, he tries to stay focused on graduation day, May 12, and where he will be posted as he waits his turn at meals. He has learned to eat what he can and go.

As they march to and from the classrooms, shoulders almost touching the walls, their gentle but assertive foot steps are so synchronized that it is as if one recruit not 88 were marching down the hall.

Recruits have a shortened lunch period today because their weekly Thursday tests will be returned. Recruits take 60 tests in the 17 weeks they are at the academy. If a recruit fails one test and one make up, they are asked to leave the academy. Remedial help is available in the evening before lights out and taps is played at 10 p.m.

The one-hour classes scheduled for the afternoon are patrols, defensive tactics, firearms and report writing. Recruits will break up into four patrols with 22 recruits in each patrol for the afternoon classes. Young is in Patrol C while Moore is in Patrol D.

Patrol class is being taught by Sgt. Jim Shaw, a former Novi Police officer from 1979 until 1985, who is now a Michigan State Trooper. Today's class focused on "if-then thinking," appearance and equipment to have on every shift. Avoiding tunnel vision and keeping the whole situation in focus was also stressed.

Each group of recruits has only 10 minutes during the change of class to use the rest room, refresh the water they are allowed to carry in the Michigan State Police mugs, or change clothing.

Recruits fall in alphabetically and march to their next class hugging the wall and making sharp turns at each corner. The worn path along the walls gives a hint to those that have trained before.

The recruits were not looking forward to the defensive tactics class. Today they have an introduction to boxing. For some, this is the first time they have ever been hit. The purpose of boxing is so that the recruits will know what it feels like to be hit, how to recover, and how much energy it takes to get into a fight, even for a minute.

Having changed into gym clothing, recruits stand in two rows in a "ready" stance, with the right leg slightly behind as the instructors show them how to tape their hands. Recruits are instructed to get boxing gloves which are organized on two "trees" similar to a child's coat rack, one for the left and one for the right hand. If anyone drops a glove, they are instructed to drop and do pushups. Care is taken to avoid getting anything inside the gloves which could cause discomfort or injury to the next wearer.

With gloves on, the recruits are paired off for a little sparring. Then it's on to the punching bag for more practice. Clearly winded, the recruits quickly remove gloves and tape and return the gloves to the trees. A few recruits dropped for their push ups after gloves fell off the trees.

Firearms practice is next on the schedule. As they march to the firing range, their eyes always straight ahead, the recruits form such a tight line that to feel someone "breathing down his neck" would be possible. One recruit is caught eyeballing, the term for looking anywhere except straight ahead, and reminded.

Some recruits have never fired a weapon before entering the academy. Moore is one of them. Young recently purchased a gun just to get in a little practice before starting the academy. A 70 percent accuracy score in semi-automatic pistol, revolver, shotgun and rifle is required to pass the firearms class. The padding on the wall of the range with its gaping holes and shredded appearance bears witness to the many who have fired their first shots while in the academy.

The recruits are taught to stand with flexed legs and to absorb the recall of the shotgun with a push/pull action as they prepare to shoot at a picture of an armed man aiming back at them.

Dismissed from the firearms class, the recruits march to the report writing class. Here the recruits learn how to be clear and concise and use common sense when filling out forms.

At 5 p.m. the four patrols meet in the assembly hall for closing remarks by Captain Chris Hogan, commander of the 2nd District of the Michigan State Police located in Northville. "You have an opportunity to make an impact," he said. He also reminded the recruits that safety comes first.

On Fridays, the recruits are dismissed to go home after all household duties are done, which is usually around 9 p.m. Moore and Young go home to their wives, catch up on their sleep and study.

"Sgt. Gary Gorski, recruit school commander, is the last person we see before we leave and the first person we see when we come back on Sunday afternoon," said Young. "You think about those eyes looking at you all weekend."

AMERMAN ELEMENTARY

Amerman's Express Yourself month during March was a huge success with a wide range of activities being enjoyed by the students. Thanks go to the staff, parents and volunteers who helped make this a wonderful experience for the students. Also, thank you to the Pizza Cutter for rewarding students who completed the monthly reading assignment with a certificate for a free personal Little Cutter pizza.

Activities for teacher appreciation week are being planned this year by Karen Klimex. The theme for the week will be "Amerman Teachers Work Magic." This is a fun and entertaining way to tell our teachers how much we appreciate what they do on a daily basis. Contact Karen if you would like to help her with this fun project.

Another wonderful Amerman ice cream social is planned for Friday, June 2. This is always a great way to end the year and celebrate summer vacation. One highlight of the night is always the dunk tank - which Amerman teachers and staff will get wet this year? Nancy Riegner and Linda Jones are chairing this event and could use some additional help.

The Appreciation Luncheon for all the volunteers who have helped at Amerman this year will be held May 16. All PTA volunteers, room parents, and others who have given of their time and talents are encouraged to attend. We hope to see you there.

At the May PTA meeting we will be electing the PTA board for next year. At this time the nominees are as follows: Nancy Riegner for President; Vicki Snerly for Vice President; Debbie Hayes for Treasurer; and Abbie Holden for Secretary. Any additional nominations for these positions should be forwarded to Nan Piekarski as soon as possible.

Amerman roller skating nights will be Tuesdays again next year on the following dates: Oct. 3, Nov. 7, Jan. 23, Feb. 27, March 26, and April 19. The cost will be raised slightly to $2.50 per person with skate rental remaining at $1.50. Thanks to Carol Bernardo for arranging this activity which is fun for the whole family.

Dr. Steve Anderson announced two retirements at the end of the school year. Both Mrs. Fountain (fifth grade ALPS teacher) and Mrs. Mallette (first grade teacher) will be retiring. We will miss both of them and wish them much happiness in their retirement. Contact the school if you are interested in attending a meeting on April 27 to help plan a retirement function for them.

The PTA is already busy planning for next year and needs chairpeople for the following committees: Am-A-Gram; Appreciation Luncheon; Teacher Appreciation; Flower Sale; Health and Safety; Holiday Shop; Ice Cream Social; Pancake Breakfast; Noon Hour; and Membership. Please consider giving of your time and helping with one of these committees. New faces and ideas are always welcomed and no experience is necessary. Contact a PTA Board member if you are interested.

Food Service announced that on April 13 (the last day of school before spring break) Amerman will be serving a special Hippity-Hoppy Lunch which will include a deviled egg, bread or roll, cheese wedge, fresh fruit cup or juice, carrot stick and milk. There will also be a guess the number of jelly beans in the jar contest the last week of school before break. Students purchasing a hot lunch that week will be able to enter and the prize is the jar of jelly beans.

The next PTA meeting will be Tuesday, May 1, at 9:30 a.m. All parents are welcome and treats and coffee will be provided.

WILLIAM ALLAN ACADEMY

Grades 1-5 thoroughly enjoyed a field trip on April 5 to the Detroit Institute of Arts to view the current exhibit of the Royal Tombs of Sipan. Artifacts from the ancient Peruvian civilization gave students a glimpse of another world. The pre-Inca world was brought to life through the belongings preserved from the Moche people. The exhibit is a treasure for all to see.

April 7 found the Honor Choir performing songs from The Sound of Music at Allen Terrace senior citizen housing.

Also on April 7, the first grade took its annual walk to Maybury Farm - a sure sign spring has finally arrived!

After the spring break, students will be taking the Gates Reading Test, grade 1-5.

On April 27, grades four and five will be on their way to an interesting field trip at Cranbrook.

There will be an open house for parents and students on May 2, which is always a wonderful opportunity for parents to see the progress of their children throughout the year.

Kindergarten parents for students beginning the 1995-96 school year are invited to a meeting in the afternoon of May 5 for orientation. This always provides a time for questions to be answered and an opportunity for parents to meet the staff that will be taking the children on that important first step in their academic careers.

Students also have an opportunity to learn more about nature and the beauty of Maybury Park on the upcoming nature walk conducted by the principal, May 3. Hopefully, Michigan's weather will be cooperating!

OUR LADY OF VICTORY

Our Lady of Victory students participated in the St. Jude Children's Research Hospital Mathathon as their Lenten Service Project. The 300 children at OLV raised over $6,300 for the children suffering from cancer who receive medical assistance at St. Jude Hospital.

Top pledge students at OLV are:

- Kindergarten - Spencer Behm, Ryan Brown, Lauren Butwill and Tessa Keller
- Grade 1 - Jackson Barnes
- Grade 2 - Michael Hartsock and Ryan Langan
- Grade 4 - Rachael Saad
- Grade 5 - Julie Zelenock
- Grade 6 - Ashley Rogale

A FINE BLEND OF NORTHERN COMFORT AND SOUTHERN EXPOSURE

Think of all the things you like about the Detroit area: its high energy, brisk pace and cultural diversity. Great shopping and dining. First class entertainment and fine arts.

Now imagine having the best of all this wrapped in the comfort of southern hospitality. That's what you'll find in the historic city of Wilmington, North Carolina and at Landfall - the premier country club community on the East Coast. Four mild but distinct seasons invite you to enjoy the outdoors year 'round. Golf courses by Jack Nicklaus and Pete Dye. The Sports Center designed by resident Cliff Drysdale. Nearby Wrightsville Beach. And friendly, outgoing people, including many from Michigan.

Acquire a taste for Landfall - a vintage blend of the "North" and North Carolina. Call 1-800-227-8208 for a brochure. Homesites from $65,000. Homes from $210,000. Landfall Associates, 1801 Eastwood Road, Wilmington, North Carolina 28105.

Kickers beat South Lyon 3-1

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

It wasn't a masterpiece, but the Mustang soccer team got what it needed April 5 — a victory. Northville High fell behind then came on to dominate South Lyon 3-1 on the road. It was the team's first win against two defeats.

Coach Doug Lyon had mixed feelings about the victory.

"The girls needed a win like that," he said. "But it wasn't the biggest success in the world because of that first half."

South Lyon, which competes in the Kensington Valley Conference, played Northville even up for much of the first half.

The Lions scored the game's first goal, in fact, with about 20 minutes gone by. South Lyon lobbed a direct kick towards Northville's net then poked it past goalkeeper Meghan Cauzillo when it came down.

Lyon said South Lyon's tally ticked his team off.

"It got them a little mad," he said.

The Mustangs began to take over from that point.

With about 15 minutes to go before the half, Jackie Rompel made a steal deep in the Lions territory. She then found the back of the net

"The girls needed a win like that. But it wasn't the biggest success in the world because of that first half."

DOUG LYON

and tied the game at one.

It stayed 1-1 through halftime.

While South Lyon has an improving squad, Lyon said his team was "a little embarrassed" at the first half. Whatever the case, Northville came out with fire in their eyes in the second half.

"It was a like (different) team," said Lyon.

The Mustangs so dominated play that South Lyon couldn't get the ball past midfield for the first 25 minutes. Northville, meanwhile, got on its high horse offensively.

Kate Kohl put her team in front with 10 minutes gone by. Sue McQuaid followed with her first goal of the year 10 minutes later to make it

3-1. Lyon said Kohl was the catalyst for Northville's second half dominance.

"She started playing very aggressively," he added, "and got everyone else motivated."

"It was a huge change."

Besides Kohl, Northville got good games from several other players.

Rompel was solid at outside winger. Kristin Baja played well at stopper, too.

As for South Lyon, the Northville coach said the Lions will be competitive in the KVC.

"They won't be a powerhouse," Lyon said. "But they can hold their own against Novi."

Lyon said his team has the potential to dominate teams all season. But, he added, it must be an 80-minute effort.

"The girls have to want to win," Lyon said. Concentration, the coach said, will likely pick up after Easter.

"I think you'll see a big change after the break," Lyon commented.

Northville's Monday game with Farmington was scrubbed because of the snowy weather. The Mustangs were scheduled to play Livonia Churchill last night.

Baseballers fall 6-3 to Harrison as Hawk hurler strikes out 13

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

You can't give away scoring chances against a good pitcher and hope to win.

But that's exactly what Northville High did Friday. The Mustangs dropped a 6-3 decision to Farmington Hills Harrison on the road after letting starter Jake Lawson off the hook in the fourth inning.

Trailing by four, Northville loaded the bases. Mark Sander singled to bring one run in. But Lawson got out of trouble and left three Mustangs stranded with a strikeout.

Coach Mickey Newman said his team had the momentum going into the inning. A double play in the previous frame spurred Northville.

"Leaving the bases loaded in that inning really hurt," Newman said.

The Mustangs dropped to 1-2 on the season.

Lawson helped his own cause in the first inning with a two run double. The senior followed with another two-run double in the second.

Harrison led 6-1 at the end of the second inning. The Mustangs got their second inning run as Chuck Yessaian stole home.

Northville cut the lead to 6-2 in the second. Jason Rice singled Sander home.

Lawson went the distance for Harrison and struck out 13. Most of those came on hard sliders.

"The slider was hard to pick up," Newman said. "He threw very hard."

NORTHVILLE 11, SOUTHFIELD CHRISTIAN 7

The Mustangs got their first victory Thursday at home.

Tim Smojver started for Northville on the mound and survived a couple of rocky innings. The 6-foot-2 freshman walked seven in the first two innings and surrendered a pair of hits.

Newman said he stuck with his young hurler for a reason.

"I told him I wanted him to work it out," he said.

Southfield scored five runs in those first two innings. But Smojver settled down and ended up going four innings for the victory.

Hitting support from his teammates was the key.

Northville scored four times in the first. With two outs, Rice and Tom Willerer reached base on a double and single, respectively.

Yessaian singled them both home. Northville added runs on a single by Dave McCulloch and a triple by Jason Wenzel.

The Mustangs added three runs in the second. Rice keyed the rally with a two-run triple.

Northville got the winning run in the third. Nate Kirmis had a sacrifice fly.

Brian Buser relieved Smojver in the fifth and went three innings for a save. He struck out five.

SOUTH LYON 3, NORTHVILLE 2

Northville dropped a pitcher's duel April 5 at home.

Jason Hoorn, a University of Michigan recruit, and McCulloch hooked up in real battle. Defense cost both Northville and McCulloch.

The Mustang right hander made a throwing error in the sixth inning attempting to pick a runner off first. A wild throw allowed the runner to go to third and later score on a single.

South Lyon got the winner in the top of the seventh. After one batter reached base, Northville allowed a second runner to reach on an error.

Cory Sargent then singled home the winner. Kay Yashuda allowed the single and took the loss in relief of McCulloch.

Northville's runs came in the fifth and sixth.

Wenzel singled home Jeff Sieving in the fifth. Willerer had an RBI double in the sixth.

Northville tracksters finish second in meet

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

It takes awhile to find just what a team can do and can't do.

First-year coach Chris Cronin learned a lot about his track team Thursday. The Mustangs finished second in a tri-meet with Novi and WLAA rival Farmington.

The Wildcats won the competition with 77 points while Northville totaled 57. The Falcons grabbed just 30 points.

Cronin discovered that his team is going to be tough in relays, high jump and discus, among others. But their are sore areas, too.

"We've got some pretty big holes," said Cronin. "If we're going to be competitive in dual meets we have to score points in each event."

The coach said depth is also a concern. While the Mustangs may win a lot of events, Cronin isn't sure how many other places they can take.

One event where the Mustangs do have depth is the discus.

Jenny Sekerka won by throwing 104 feet 10 inches. Renee Olin finished third at 72-7 and Aubrey MacFarlane was fourth with a toss of 72-4.

Tammy Cook was solid in the jump. She won the event by clearing 5-0.

Melissa Poole finished second in the long jump at 15-1 1/4. Olin took third in the shot put with a throw of 26-4.

In the 3,200-meter relay, Northville was second with the team of Amity Heckemeyer, Monica Nayakwadi, Kajal Parikh and Adri-Sekerka placed fourth in the 100-meter hurdles in 19.4. Carrie Dalziel won the 100-meter dash in 12.6 and Nicole Weyer was second in 13.7.

The team of Dalziel, Katie Rompel, Poole and Weyer won both the 400 and 800 relays. The squad posted time of 54.95 and 1:57.30, respectively.

In the 800-meter run, Heckemeyer was third in 2:53.45. The junior was voted as Northville's athlete of the meet, Cronin said.

"She's a good competitor," he added.

Rompel took second place in the 200-meter sprint with a time of 30.70. Jenny Platukas was fourth in 31.14.

In the 3,200-meter relay, Jenny Dowdel was third in 13:05. The 1,600-meter relay team of Laura Brown, Heckemeyer, Platukas and Browne was second.

Netters open season with win over Glenn

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

While it's been a cold and nasty spring so far, the Mustang tennis team is off to a hot start.

Northville High bolted past conference rival Westland John Glenn 8-0 on the road Friday. The Rockets provided little challenge to the defending WLAA champs.

According to coach Dick Norton, it was a nice way for Northville to open the season.

"I would've liked to have had stronger competition," he said. "But in a way it was good to give them some practice before our tougher matches."

John Glenn, traditionally one of the league's top football and basketball schools, has been near the bottom of the tennis standings for years.

"They have been pretty weak," Norton said. "They have a lot of younger players and are trying to build."

It was Northville's 41st straight dual meet victory. The Mustangs were scheduled to play Farmington Monday and Livonia Churchill yesterday, weather permitting.

As for Friday's contest, it was a complete mismatch. Westland John Glenn was able to win just eight games all day.

Dave Anderson was unflappable at No. 1 singles. He crushed Deepak Dashairya 6-0, 6-0.

Ravi Mujumdar was just as tough at second singles. He also won 6-0, 6-0 as he beat Mike Riacu.

At No. 3 singles, Ganesh Nayakwadi beat Mike Mifsud 6-0, 6-1. Mike Bush closed out the singles rout as he whipped Adam Goyt 6-0, 6-0.

"None of the singles players were tested," Norton said.

It was just about as easy at doubles.

Vik and Arjun Srinivasan took care of Dave Drys Rob Downey 6-0, 6-3. Norton said his top pairing could've played a little better despite their win.

"They were not concentrating as much as they should've been," he added.

Nick Sriraman and Ryan Steinhauer were sharp at second doubles. The duo beat Dan Godley and Mike Purdy 6-0, 6-0.

The Mustangs took the final two matches in straight sets as well.

Rory Dunnabeck and Anish Shah beat Mike Stacey and Dave Fowler 6-0, 6-1 at third doubles. Desmond Liang and Tony Castillo ripped Jan Boldt and Jake Froehly 6-2, 6-1 to close the match.

Norton said he shuffled his lineup for the match.

"I don't loose much when I put in the other guys," he commented.

All in all, it was a good opening match, said Norton.

"I thought they played pretty well," he added.

Recreation Briefs

SPARTANS

The Spartan Aquatic Club finished fifth overall, with 850 points in the hotly contested 13 and over State Swimming Championships held in Rockford, Mich., on March 18, 19 and 20.

Chris Sanker finished fourth overall in the 13-14 boys' division, placing third in the 100 butterfly, fourth in the 400 IM, fifth in the 200 butterfly, sixth in the 200, 500 and 1650 freestyle, seventh in the 200 IM and 100 freestyle, and eighth in the 50 freestyle.

Katy Nicol also led the Spartans, placing 11th in the 100 breast and 200 butterfly, 12th in the 200 breaststroke, and 16th in the 400 IM.

The Spartan Aquatic Club is a competitive swim team sanctioned by United States Swimming, the governing body of amateur swimming in the United States. One hundred fifty swimmers belong to the club.

BASKETBALL

The Jayhawks won the 8-9th grade league championship with back-to-back victories in the final playoffs recently. The team consisted of Bob Allen, Sean Brislin, Casey Cromas, Andy Deacon, Todd Emaus, Scott Gregerson, Marshall Knapp and Jeff Merek. The team was coached by Steve Gregerson, David Brislin and Bruce Emaus.

COLTS

The Northville-Nowi Colts Junior Football Program will conduct its monthly meeting on Thursday, April 27, 7:30 p.m. at the Novi Civic Center. All Colt parents, potential future Colt parents, and interested individuals are invited to attend.

The purpose of the Colts is to promote citizenship, sportsmanship, fellowship and physical development among boys and girls ages 9-14 of the Northville-Nowi community.

HEALTH HOUSE

The American Lung Association is sponsoring Health House '95, a showcase home and educational center featuring components which provide clean, safe indoor air while paying special heed to environmentally friendly and recycled materials and construction methods.

Health House can be seen from April 30 to May 21 at the corner of Seven Mile and Haggerty roads in Northville.

SCHOLARSHIPS

Over 100,000 collegiate athletic scholarships are available each year to male and female high school and junior college student athletes. Contrary to popular belief, students don't have to be all-state to qualify. Much of this money goes unused.

A new publication with forms, sample letters and tables of factual information is available for student athletes. It takes them step-by-step through the important process of getting an athletic scholarship and includes college and conference listings.

For information on how to get a collegiate athletic scholarship, send a self addressed (business size), stamped envelope to the National Sports Foundation, 611-A Willow Drive, P.O. Box 940, Oakhurst, NJ 07755.

Farmington Hills drops softballers 8-0

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

The Mustang softball team had two elements working against it Friday.

An icy wind made it feel like the middle of January instead of April. And, more importantly, Farmington Hills Harrison hurler Erin Lacosse was throwing heat.

The senior left hander chilled Northville bats en route to an 8-0 victory. The Mustangs managed just one hit off of Lacosse and struck out 10 times.

"They're a good team," coach Frank Friemund said of Harrison, "probably one of the top 10 in the state."

Farmington Hills won the WLAA championship a year ago. With virtually the entire team back, Friemund said the Hawks will be tough to beat.

As for his own team, there's nowhere else to go but up after an 0-2 start. Northville made nearly 20 errors in the two setbacks.

"Last year we were very inconsistent," said Friemund. "I was hoping this year that would be gone."

It wasn't, at least on Friday. Northville bobbed and booted its way through the game.

Take the third inning, for example.

Ahead 1-0, Harrison added a run to its lead. An outfield error allowed the lead-off batter to reach second base. A single later scored that run.

A host of errors led to three more Farmington Hills runs in the fifth. After a pair of doubles that scored one run, Northville committed a throwing error to allow another in. A pair of errors then got the Hawks fifth run home.

The visitors closed the scoring in the sixth with three more runs. All three, as you might have guessed, scored with the aid of Northville miscues.

"Our defense stunk," said Friemund.

The Mustangs could do little with the hard-throwing Lacosse. She struck out the side in the second and fourth innings.

Northville's lone hit came in the fifth inning by Sarah Johnson.

The Mustangs wasted a solid performance by pitcher Andrea Moretti. She allowed one earned run on nine hits and struck out five.

"I was pleased with her performance," said Friemund.

Easter Egg Hunt on tap

By SCOTT DANIEL
Staff Writer

After a one-year hiatus, the Easter Egg Hunt is back.

The event, which had been a tradition in Northville, is slated for April 15. Children 12-years-old and under will get a chance to snatch up all the Easter eggs their hands can hold behind city hall starting at 10 a.m.

"It's the first time we've sponsored it," Northville Recreation Supervisor Nickie Ross said. "The JCs had always done it before."

The group did not put on an egg hunt last spring, however. The Northville Rotary Club, along with parks and recreation, is sponsoring the return of the event.

"We've gotten a lot of calls about it," said Ross.

Children will have a chance to grab about 1,600 eggs of the plastic variety. Each egg will contain candy and/or a winning prize slip.

"It's over quickly once it starts," said Ross.

Toys, such as kites, and stuffed animals will be given away. Prizes have been donated by BFI International.

Ross isn't sure how many

youngsters will show up for the hunt. A familiar face will be on hand to help those who do attend: The Easter Bunny.

He'll have candy to pass out. The Bunny will also pose for pictures with kids of all ages.

And if youngsters want to touch a real bunny, Carousel Acres will bring its mobile petting farm. Rabbits, lambs and a miniature horse are just some of the animals children can pet. Based out of South

Lyons, Carousel Acres will be around for the duration of the event.

For more information on the Easter Egg Hunt, call Northville Parks and Recreation at 349-0203.

Children often treated as 'throwaways'

Jacquie
Downs

We cannot influence such as the home life of these kids. In many instances, the students are neglected or abused by parents who treat them as "throwaways."

As I have often said, the next generation of adults is being brought up by many parents who truly don't respect or value children.

Two red flags have surfaced during my years of working with hundreds of parents. Either the parents are too busy to invest time in their child's life, or they are too wrapped up in their

The Community Commission on Drug Abuse Prevention (CCODA) has been in our schools for several years, designing and implementing programs to help students at risk for using and abusing substances and tobacco before the age of 18.

While our programs are making a difference, there are things own addictions (drugs, alcohol, gambling, codependency and others) to be able to care for their children. This is a sad commentary on today's society.

Couple these problems with a divorce rate of 50 percent for first marriages, 72 percent for second marriages and 93 percent for third marriages, and we have an "out-of-control" adult population.

The student population we work with doesn't feel needed or accepted for who they are. The upshot of this condition is seen in their actions and behaviors. We find that they either shut down or act out. Parents may or may not see the same behaviors at home, but they will likely observe a misbehaving youngster.

As the Drinkmeys point out in the Systematic Training for Effective Parenting (STEP) program, kids misbehave for one of four reasons. 1) To get attention; if they cannot get it positively, they'll get it negatively because the worst thing for a child is to get no attention. 2) To get power; parents often get overly heated in power struggles, rather than disengaging from the child. 3) To be revengeful this is regarding something for which they feel mistreated. 4) To display inadequacy so that others will expect nothing from them.

When parents are unavailable to their children, unavailable to hear them, help them or just be there for them, children and adolescents find ways to get their parents involved with them. Nobody wants to be disregarded and cast aside. Parents often share with us that their child seems to be totally out of control; totally disrespectful. These parents may need to sit back and honestly reflect on their part. Do I listen to my children when they need my ear? Do I value and treasure them even when they "mess up?" When I discipline, do I do it while leaving their dignity and self-respect intact?

If you cannot honestly answer yes to these questions, your parenting skills may need a boost. Take advantage of the many parenting classes available in your area. Most are either free or have a small charge.

Jacquie Martin-Downs is with CCODA Prevention funded by Southwestern Michigan Substance Abuse Services. This column is coordinated by Peg Campbell and the staff of the U-M Health Centers.

Novi plans Easter activities for weekend

By CINDY STEWART
Special Writer

"Here comes Peter Cottontail, hopping down the bunny trail ... From that clue, it should be easy to figure out who's coming to Novi this Saturday. That's right ... It's the Eastern Bunny and he'll be here for Novi's 17th Annual Easter Activity, the "Easter Egg-Streme" on Saturday, April 15, at 2 p.m. sharp.

This year's activity is co-sponsored by Novi Parks and Recreation and the Novi Jaycees. There's lots that's new this year so be sure and bring the entire family out to the Power Park Softball Complex behind the Civic Center. We advise you arrive between 12:30 and 1:30 p.m. The activities will begin at 2 p.m. sharp.

Egg-Streme activities will be divided into five age groups 3-and-under, 4-5, 6-7, 8-9 and 10-and-older. For the 3-and-under age group, there will be parent and child activities with prizes for everyone.

The other egg hunts will be full of thousands of candy and toys for the kids. "You fill it ... You keep it."

The Egg-Streme will include activities, prizes, candy, refreshments and entertainment ... all outside in the Power Park softball complex. Kids should be to sure and bring a basket or bag for all the goodies. Mom and Dad should be sure to bring a camera ... you may spot the Easter Bunny.

At 1 p.m. there will be a special Easter Bunny Look-alike contest. A prize will be awarded to the child who dresses to look most like the Easter Bunny. A special prize will also be awarded for the best Easter bonnet (with all the frills upon it). Bring or wear your creation. The Easter bonnet contest is for adults only.

The Parks and Recreation summer day camp staff will also be on hand to help with special games and fun activities throughout the afternoon. It won't be long until the Camp Lakeshore special early registration for Novi residents only on Saturday, May 20, from 8 a.m. to noon at the Novi Civic Center.

Counselors are gearing up for a great, fun-filled Camp Lakeshore.

Admission for Egg-Streme activities is $4 per child. Each additional child registered per family will receive a $1 discount.

Preregister at Novi Parks and Recreation Office until Thursday, April 13, at 5 p.m. (Don't forget ... the Civic Center is closed Friday, April 14, for Good Friday.) Registration will also be available for $4 per child at the gate the day of the event.

For more information about the Easter Egg-Streme, call 347-0400. Novi Parks and Recreation also has some seasonal job openings for park maintenance workers and lifeguards.

Hawks drop Mustangs 8-0

SOUTH LYON 14, NORTHVILLE 5

The April 5 home game started off well for Northville.

The Mustangs scored four runs in the first innings. Moretti had the big blow with a three-run homer.

Northville added a single run in the second. Melissa Petrosky singled, stole second and then advanced to third on a passed ball. She scored on a base hit by Moretti.

The Mustangs maintained a 5-3 lead going into the fifth. But that's when the roof fell in.

South Lyon pounded six hits in the frame, including a home run, and scored five times to go up 8-5.

"They're a good team probably one of the top 10 in the state."

The Lions added six insurance runs in the final two innings. Errors played a large part in those runs.

"I have to hope that it's just early season jitters," said Friemund.

The coach said his team is simply rushing too many plays.

"We just lose our composure," he added.

Petrosky had three hits to lead Northville. Moretti had two hits, including the long home run.

"It might still be going," Friemund said of the shot. "It went a long way."

Novi softballers win opener

By SCOTT DANIEL

Timely hitting. Excellent pitching.

Novi High had a little bit of both Saturday in defeating Walled Lake Western 9-0 at home. Senior right-hander Erin Bjerke allowed just two Warrior hits while striking out 10 batters.

"Erin was just dominate," coach John Peace said.

It might have been one of her best performances as a Wildcat.

"She's throwing harder," Peace said, "and making the ball move more than in the past."

Bjerke had command of four pitches Saturday. The fastball, of course, which was complimented by a slider, rise and change up.

"She was able to get the change up in the strike zone," Peace said.

Novi's match up with Walled Lake should've been the first of several games Saturday. The Wildcats were to host their "Early Bird" tournament.

Foul weather forced the cancellation of the tournament. Peace said the games have been tentatively rescheduled for April 29 in Hazel Park.

As it turned out, the Wildcats scored the only run Bjerke needed in the second inning. Melissa Waara drew a walk to start the rally.

Junko Matsunaga attempted to sacrifice her to second base with a bunt. But Walled Lake picked up the ball and threw it into right field, which allowed Waara to score.

Novi led 1-0 until the fourth. The Wildcats put the game in the bag in that frame with five runs.

A host of Warrior errors led to the outburst. After two runners reached base, Walled Lake booted a Shannon Breisacher ground ball to score a run. A pair of walks, an error on a hit batsman accounted for the other runs.

Novi added a single run in the fifth and two runs in the sixth.

Tracksters take pair of wins

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

As former Detroit Tigers' broadcaster Ernie Harwell use to say, it was two for the price of one.

Northville High got two boys track victories Thursday in a double dual meet with Farmington and Novi. The Mustangs won both meets handily, 77-60 over Novi and 78-59 over Farmington.

"I liked what I saw," coach Dennis Faletti said. "They gave an all-out performance."

But there's still plenty of room for improvement, he added. Faletti said his team needs to be in better condition.

"I learned we need to get in better shape," he said.

Thursday's meet, which was held at Farmington High, gave him a chance to assess, Faletti said. He came away impressed with his younger athletes.

"We've got some good young kids," Faletti commented. "We'll move them into the lineup to fill some holes."

The tri-meet showed that Northville doesn't have too many holes.

The Mustangs look to be particularly strong in the 100-meter dash. Against Novi, Farb Navi won the event in 10.9 seconds while Eric Moore was second in 11.1.

In the 3,200-meter relay, Northville placed first in 8:47.20 with the team of Jason MacIver, Sean Hollister, Jeff Zwiesler and Todd Zayti.

The Mustangs won the 800-meter relay, too. Jim Clemens, Anthony DeBenedet, Pat Gordon and Navi posted a time of 1:37.10.

Faletti said his relay teams are far from set. He'll change them from meet to meet, in fact.

The 400-meter team of Chris Gomersal, Moore, Anell Kersey and Navi won their race in 46.2 seconds. Scott Lloyd was a winner in the 1,600-meter race in 4:43.8 and Jon Woodsum was third in 5:10.

Gordon took first in the 400-meter open dash. He posted a time of 55.30.

Northville won the 800-meter race as Zayti finished in 2:09 and Zwiesler was second in 2:10. Gomersal won the 200-meter race in 24.1 and Clemens was third in 24.7.

In the 3,200-meter, Dwight Van-Tuyl was second in 10:48. The mile relay team of Gordon, MacIver, Lloyd and Zayti was first in 3:37.

The Mustangs were strong in field events against Novi, too.

Matiss Kukainis won the shot put with a throw of 41 feet 10 inches. Moore was the winner of the long jump with a leap of 19-4 3/4. DeBenedet was second at 19-4.

Ty Fowler won the pole vault by clearing 10 feet.

Against Farmington, Northville won a majority of events. The Mustangs also scored points with second and third place finishes.

Gordon, for example, was second in the high jump against the Falcons. He cleared 5-8 as did teammate Bernie Tomsa, who was third.

Matt Minard was second in the 110-meter hurdles in 18.5. Gino Peters was third in 19.2.

Gomersal finished third in the long jump. MacIver grabbed a second in the 400-meter dash in 58.1.

Myths about sports nutrition

The following article on nutrition is reprinted from the Michigan High School Athletic Association February Bulletin:

Serious athletes are always looking for ways to improve their performance. Unfortunately, many athletes want to improve themselves so much that they will try almost anything.

They may be fooled by foods, drugs, or nutrients that promise miraculous improvement. Athletes may also listen to inaccurate advice and may avoid eating some foods that really are nutritious. Athletes should beware of the following sports nutrition myths.

MUSCLE-BUILDING MYTHS

• The more protein and protein supplements you eat, the more muscle you will have.

This is incorrect. There is no evidence that excess protein will lead to more or stronger muscles. In fact, excess protein is stored by the body as fat.

• Steroids are the best way to develop massive muscles.

This is incorrect. Steroids can be dangerous. While steroids are powerful drugs that help build muscle, they have many risky side effects. Taking steroids can stunt your growth, cause acne, deepen your voice, and alter your sex organs. You can build muscle with diet and exercise. Although it takes a little longer, you're not risking your health.

QUICK-ENERGY MYTHS

• Eating honey, sugar, soft drinks, or any sweets just before competition will provide a quick burst of energy.

Wrong. Sugary foods eaten just before competition do not improve your speed or strength. That's because it takes the body one to four hours to digest food. So foods eaten just before an event are in your stomach when you compete. Most of the energy used in competition or practice comes from food eaten days before the event that has been stored in your muscles.

• Vitamin supplements will give you more energy.

This, too, is incorrect. None of the 14 known vitamins supplies energy. Some vitamins help the body use energy. However, these vitamins are easily supplied by an athlete's normal diet. Megadoses of vitamins won't give you more energy or improve your endurance.

If you consume more vitamin C or B than your body needs, they are simply flushed out in your urine. If you consume more vitamin A and D than you need, they are stored in your body as fat. Too much of these vitamins can be poisonous.

PERFORMANCE MYTHS

• Water during exercise causes upset stomach and slows you down.

Wrong again. There is no evidence that drinking water during exercise causes upset stomach or any other problems. In fact, drinking fluids during exercise is very important. Drinking a half cup of fluid such as cool water every 10-15 minutes during exercise helps replace body fluids lost such as sweat.

• Drinking milk causes cotton mouth.

Cotton mouth is dry mouth due to lack of saliva. It seems to be the result of emotional stress and loss of body fluids, not drinking milk.

• Muscle cramps are caused by inadequate salt intake.

This is incorrect. Cramps are caused by severe losses of water through sweating. Drinking water before, during and after exercise can prevent these water losses. Salt tablets can aggravate this condition by increasing the body's need for water.

Athletic success is not a miracle. Athletes who look for miracles instead of following a sensible diet and training program can hurt their bodies and their performance.

REAL ESTATE

Competition is high among brokerage firms

By James M. Woodard
Copley News Service

Real estate brokerage offices are becoming larger, more competitive and less profitable.

"Our business is good because we've built a very solid reputation over many years," said Doug Moe, broker-owner of a medium-size broker office affiliated with Century 21 Real Estate Corp. "But I wouldn't advise anyone to start a brokerage business today. The competition is really fierce."

Moe's firm, operating from a 1,600-square-foot office, is growing. It now has 20 sales associates. Eight of those associates were added within the past two months.

"Even though it's a tough way to make a living, I personally like it because it gives me the opportunity to be in charge of my own destiny," Moe said. "I wake up in the morning knowing what I need to do that day and how to get it all accomplished."

Moe believes a real estate brokerage office in today's market must grow and expand in services and capabilities if it is to succeed.

"The small mom-and-pop offices are going the way of the covered wagon," he said.

But most offices throughout the country are still small, and many of those are quite successful, according to a report from the National Association of Realtors. Nearly 90 percent of today's Realtor firms are single-office opera-

The Don has an offer that you can't refuse

By James McAlexander
Copley News Service

The Don is a small house with a number of features that create a sense of spaciousness disproportionate to its size. It's a plan rich in contemporary amenities.

On entering, to your right is a bright and spacious living room. It has a high vaulted ceiling and bay windows that expand the space, filling the entire front-facing wall and wrapping around to the sides. Light also streams down through a half-round window, nestled beneath a small dormer.

To your left is a time-managing kitchen, designed to eliminate unnecessary steps, making anything you do here enjoyable. Utilities are close by in a relatively large laundry room that is convenient to the kitchen, bedrooms and two-car garage. Straight ahead you step into a large, informal family room.

An eating bar provides some separation between the kitchen area and family room, but the core of the plan is basically open, front to back.

Family and friends will find plenty of comfortable spots to relax. Choices range from lounging on couches in the family room, snacking at the eating bar, or lingering over coffee and newspapers in the nook.

In the family room, a large storage closet comes in handy for keeping games and other playthings handy but out of the way. Sliding glass doors open to a patio at the rear of the house. The nook is larger than most, roomy enough to accommodate a desk and family computer in addition to a table.

Families with young children will appreciate the location of the kitchen sink and the range. The sink faces the front yard and street, allowing parents to keep an eye on children playing. Standing at the range, you can gaze across the family room and out the sliding glass doors to the back yard, keeping an eye on everything in between.

The master suite is separated from the other bedrooms and features a large walk-in closet and private sky-lit bath. It's close enough to the family room to supervise activities, yet separate enough for a comfortable night's sleep. The two opposite bedrooms are separated by a sky-lit bath.

For a study plan of the The Don (402-46), send $9 to Landmark Designs, c/o HomeTown Newspapers, 323 E. Grand River Ave., Howell, MI 48843. (Be sure to specify plan name and number when ordering.)

A DEEP SUBJECT

Proper maintenance for septic tanks means light at the end of the tunnel...er pipe

Septic tank maintenance is a deep subject that you probably don't want to touch with a 10-foot pole — but get your hip boots on and dig in.

Septic tanks serve a serious and vital purpose, one, when running smoothly, you probably take for granted. But should problems arise, as they sometimes do, you could be facing complications of nightmarish proportions.

As with many things, proper maintenance can prevent problems.

First it helps to know how a septic tank works.

Septic tanks are used to treat sewage from homes in rural areas not served by public sewers, and in Livingston County, that constitutes about 90 percent of the homes.

The tanks, constructed of either concrete or steel, are buried underground and are connected to the home by a pipe. Sewage flows from the home to the septic tank by way of the pipe.

Once the sewage flows into the tank, it separates into three layers. The top layer is scum, the middle layer is a liquid and the bottom layer is solids.

The liquid material from the middle layer flows out to leaching field or a stone and tile field. The stone and tile field is about a 30-foot by 40-foot area with medium sized stones forming a bed. Positioned in the stone bed are rows of four inch pipe from which the liquids flow. As the liquid layer flows out of the pipes, it is then absorbed into the field.

In order for all aspects of the septic system to work properly, it is extremely important to have the system pumped to remove the solids every two to three years says Dianne McCormick, Director of Environmental Health at the Livingston County Health Department.

"If you don't maintain your tank, if you're putting greases down it, you're putting foods down it from your garbage disposal, that will tend to accelerate the solids build up."

Once the solids have built up, they begin to carry over into the stone and tile field, eventually sealing it off, McCormick said. When this occurs, not only is the septic tank not functioning properly, it opens the door to potentially major problems.

exposure can come from a pet who has walked over the sewage surfacing on the ground. When you or your child pick up the pet, unaware of where it has been, you are risking exposure to the bacteria in the sewage.

"There are opportunities for exposure. Even though you've got it (the area) quarantined off,"

McCormick said. "You've got a wet spot out there, you've got sewage surfacing on the ground and you're going to get to it as soon as possible...there are routes that neighborhood pets can be exposed to it and then carry it on."

Tom Lashbrook, owner of Lashbrook Septic Service in Howell, concurs that septic tanks should be pumped every two to three years. The time between pumpings may vary depending on the size of the family and their water use, as well as the size of the septic tank.

"A good pumper will let you know the condition of your septic tank and will tell you if you should pump more often," said Lashbrook.

While the charge to pump the septic tank averages from $125 to $150, it is small change when you consider how much you could be shelling out if your septic system fails.

There is no remedy to repair a failed septic field; instead, it must be replaced, and, says Lashbrook, the price tag for that job, depending on soil conditions, can range from a minimum of $3,000 up to $10,000, not including the cost to replace your lawn or landscaping.

Besides having your septic system pumped every two to three years McCormick says there are other things you can do to prevent the premature failure of your septic system.

One big villain to septic systems is a garbage disposal and the things you dump down your sink.

McCormick says that many of the people who have moved into Livingston County came from areas served by municipal sewer systems where garbage disposal use is not a problem.

She also contends that many of these same people don't realize that with a

Your way to early tomatoes

By C.Z. Guest
Copley News Service

GARDENING

How would you like to enjoy ripe tomatoes six weeks earlier than usual come spring? And how about picking those summertime "love apples" fresh from your garden five to six weeks longer in the fall? Well, you can!

A tunnel is your ticket to a longer stretch of home-grown tomatoes. A tunnel is basically just a simple hoop-shape frame that you place over an entire growing area (bed or row) and cover with plastic to protect all plants from frost, cold, wind, damaging pests and rain. In other words, creating a cozy outdoor greenhouse for your treasures.

If more people were aware of tunnels, I think every innovative gardener would have one, since these inexpensive greenhouses stretch the growing season and raise yields in a remarkable manner.

Tunnels are a sort of hybrid of greenhouses and cold frames. They are low-cost and low-tech like a cold frame. You can use tall tunnels (4 feet to 6 feet high in the center) to protect not only tomatoes but also other tall plants that you would normally need the height of a greenhouse for.

Compared to greenhouses, tunnels are wonderfully mobile because you can set them up or take them down in just a few hours, allowing you to move your seasonal shelter to wherever you happen to need it. That's right, tunnels are effective, inexpensive, portable — what more could you ask from a sensational season-extending device?

How tall should you make your tunnel? Market gardeners who are tunneling their way to early tomatoes generally use high tunnels that are 6 1/2 feet tall, up to 14 feet wide and 90 feet or longer. These tall rigs allow you to stand up inside to till, stake and harvest. So if you like the idea of standing up inside your tunnel, then go for a 6-foot-high-plus tunnel, with a door at one end for easy access.

OK, you don't need to go inside? Then build a less-expensive low or half-high tunnel. They're 3 to 4 feet high at the center, and you can just raise the sides or open the ends to tend and harvest plants. Take care to pay close attention to the

TUNNEL GREENHOUSE

A tunnel is the key to a longer growing season. A simple hoop-shape frame covered with plastic placed over a growing area protects your plants from cold, disease and pests.

- Prepare soil at site of future tunnel in the fall.
- Put up the frame of the tunnel in the fall so all you have to do is add plastic later.
- Start plants a month earlier than usual for early planting.
- Put plastic up four weeks before planting to warm soil.
- Watch your temperatures-- if it gets too warm, open the ends of the tunnels to cool things off.
- When warm weather stabilizes, take off plastic until the weather cools off again in the fall.

tions. And 40 percent of those firms have five or fewer sales representatives.

It should be noted that these small firms represent only 5 percent of the industry's total sales force. Fewer than 10 percent of firms have more than 50 sales representatives, but they represent about 58 percent of the sales force.

Many of the small mom-and-pop neighborhood Realtor firms remain in that position because the owners like it that way. They have established a solid reputation within their small marketing area, and have no reason or motivation to expand.

On the other hand, the large firms tend to get larger. The advertising power and high-tech service capabilities of these firms attracts new sales associates. And that fosters still more growth and expansion of the firm's marketing area.

The average number of sales associates working in today's real estate firm is 10.8. That's up from 8.1 in 1990. The average office size is 1,700 square feet.

Moe does not hire part-time sales associates at his office.

"Selling real estate requires full-time activity," he said. "We owe it to our clients to give them full-time service."

The NAR study revealed a wide variation in the amount of income earned by full-time sales representatives. Twenty percent of all full-time associates earn less than $10,000 per year, while 34 percent earn between $10,000 and $25,000. Nearly a third of all full-time sales agents gross at least $35,000.

The study also noted that the median household income for the typical real estate sales representative is about $62,100 — much higher than the median household income for the country as a whole.

Another significant trend in the current market is the increasing number of women entering the real estate sales field. In the late 1970s, women represented less than half of all sales representatives. Today, they make up more than 60 percent.

Many women see the real estate brokerage field as a rare opportunity where they can earn equal compensation with men.

Still, most people who enter the real estate field decide to leave that activity within a year. Those potential big commissions look tempting, but most newcomers don't realize how much time and effort is involved in generating a commission check.

9. What's the prognosis for commercial real estate activity in the near future?

A. The prospects are for a strong commercial real estate market this year. At least, that's the message heard from most commercial brokers and their associations.

"The outlook for commercial real estate conditions in 1995 looks bright, and will continue to burn brighter as the year progresses," says a report from the American Society of Real Estate Counselors.

ASREC pointed to the following key trends emerging in the commercial market:

Apartment properties are farthest along in the recovery cycle. New apartment development activity is expected to pick up significantly in all markets.

Industrial properties are preferred as an investment this year. In response to continued economic growth and expansion in manufacturing and trade activity.

Suburban office buildings and hotels are back in demand, after several years of sluggish activity. The lack of office-building construction has boosted office and hotel occupancy rates. Expectations are high for future increases in room rates, and office lease rates. And that will, in turn, push property values up.

Regional banks will be the leading source of financing for development and construction of commercial buildings in the next two years.

Pension funds and Wall Street will be the two leading sources of financing for acquisitions. New capital is reappearing from pension funds, REITs and insurance companies.

Questions may be used in future columns; personal responses should not be expected. Send inquiries to James M. Woodard, Copley News Service, P.O. Box 190, San Diego, CA 92112-0190.

Your way to an early tomato maybe a tunnel temperature inside your tunnel or the heat could build up and start to cook the plants!

Whether you choose a high or low tunnel, it's vitally important that you put it up correctly; there's the right way and the wrong way. Read the directions carefully.

I recommend that those of you who wish to extend your season next spring with a tunnel start this fall by preparing the soil at the site of your future tunnel. You'll be setting your plants out earlier than usual next spring, and the soil may be too wet or frozen to work at that time.

The key is to amend the bed now with lots of nice compost. It's the only amendment you need. Hand-set the tunnel frame exactly where you want it (right now); then you'll only need to put the plastic on in spring to get that soil nice and toasty before planting.

Now for the part you've been waiting for. How to use your tunnel to grow your way to those fantastic early harvests. The best way is to start your plants a month or so earlier than usual so they'll be vigorous long before you would ever dream of putting them out.

Then about four weeks before you would normally risk planting those tomatoes outdoors, simply put the clear plastic cover over the hoops you erected in the fall — to warm up the inside of the tunnel and the soil in particular. Any varieties of tomatoes, even your favorite long-season heirlooms, will ripen earlier under cover.

Once the temperature warms up, you need to watch that things don't heat up too much inside your tunnel — 70 degrees F is ideal for tomato growing since most tomatoes won't set fruit if temperatures get above 90 degrees F.

If your tunnel heats up during the day, just open up the ends to cool things off and lower them at night.

Once the weather settles into a suitable tomato-growing pattern

Keep your tomato vines manageable, otherwise, you'll create a jungle environment, and that invites fungal diseases to take hold. Take off all suckers and side shoots right up to the shoots that are just below the first flower cluster. As the tomatoes grow, pick and eat and eat some more!

When you feel that first hint of cool weather in late summer or early fall, it's time once again to put the plastic back on over the septic tank and tile field, all those kitchen wastes tossed down the garbage disposals end up in the septic tank.

Those solids from your kitchen don't break down in the septic tank as quickly, and if there are a lot of solids in the septic tank to begin with, they may not break down at all. For that reason, McCormick advocates not using or even putting in a garbage disposal.

McCormick also suggest that homeowners be more conscientious of their water usage because in cutting back on use will lessen the burden on the septic system.

Low water use fixtures, like special showerheads, sud-savers for the washing machine and toilet fixtures that use one or two gallons of water are all good ways to cut down on water use.

Along that same vein, Lashbrook recommends avoiding the practice of directing the discharge from water softeners through the septic system.

Lashbrook said the since the discharge water from the water softener is clean, it doesn't need to go through the septic, and when it does it unnecessarily burdens the septic system with the 50 gallons of water that the softener discharges.

In addition, the salt in the water has an adverse affect on the microbe activity in the septic tank.

Instead, Lashbrook recommends directing the water softener discharge to a ditch or a dry well in your yard.

Though the normal septic field will last 10-15 years with proper maintenance, Lashbrook says that some septic fields that are located in good sandy soil, that have been well-maintained and have had no problems could last 20-25 years.

McCormick likens the maintenance of a septic tank to that of changing the oil in a car.

"I go out and talk to people and they say, 'We haven't had our tank pumped in 15 years, we've never had to,'" McCormick said. "Would you say that about your car?"

Heubach Brothers figurine was gift

This German-made figurine made in the early 20th century is worth about $500 and $700.

By Anne McCollam
Copley News Service

Q. Enclosed is a picture of a porcelain figurine my husband's grandmother gave him. The mark is difficult to read, but it looks like an "H" superimposed over an "E" and the letters "DEP." The height of the figurine is approximately 9 inches.

Would you know the value of this piece?

A. Your figurine was made by Heubach Brothers in Lichte, Thuringia, Germany, around 1900. DEP is the abbreviation of the German word deponiert, which means registered.

Heubach Brothers produced figurines, piano babies, porcelain dolls' heads and dolls. Your figurine would probably be worth about $500 to $700.

Q. I have a tin wind-up toy. It consists of four mice, one plays the piano, one a violin, one the drums and one dances. On the back of the piano are the words "Marx Merry-makers — Louis Marx and Co." It is around 60 years old and still works.

I would appreciate knowing if it has any value.

A. Louis Marx and Co. was founded in 1920. It became a giant among toy manufacturers with factories in the United States and other countries. Marx sold his firm in 1970.

Your Marx Merry-makers' band would probably be worth about $750 in good condition.

Q. I have a complete mah-jongg set that is over 60 years old. It was handed down to me by my mother. The tiles are ivory.

I have been told that my set is quite valuable. Is this true?

A. If you have the wooden case for your mah-jongg set, it would probably be worth about $200 to $225.

Q. This mark is on the bottom of several dinner plates I bought about three years ago at an antique shop. They are white with a blue floral spray and a large letter "E" at one side of each plate.

I would like to know more about my dishes.

A. Your plates were made by Booths located in Tunstall, Staffordshire, England. They made earthenware and transfer printed ware. The company was founded in 1891 and is presently part of Royal Doulton Tableware Ltd.

This mark was used from 1891 to 1906. Each plate would probably be worth about $55.

Q. We recently inherited a porcelain bowl and were told it was a piece of Imari. It is decorated with blue and orange flowers and is 9 inches in diameter. There is a flower basket design in the center of the bottom of the bowl.

What is Imari and does my bowl have any value?

A. Imari has become a term for porcelain based on the Japanese pattern of stylized blue and orange flowers.

In the 17th century porcelain was shipped from the Japanese port of Imari, thus the name. Early pieces of this ware are known as "Ko-Imari," which means old Imari.

The designs were inspired by Japanese textiles. When the Dutch East Indies traders shipped it to the West, the Europeans loved it. It became so popular that the designs were copied by many European potters.

By the 19th century the Imari designs had become elaborate and gaudy. Most of what is available today is from this period.

Your bowl, circa 1900, would probably be worth about $250 to $275.

BOOK REVIEW

"English & Continental Furniture" by David P. Lindquist and Caroline C. Warren provides essential information on European furniture seen in the American market.

It covers furniture from the Renaissance to the 20th century with emphasis on the 18th century.

Can you distinguish between the various periods? Do you want to know current prices? Are you knowledgeable on construction techniques? Do you know how to spot fakes, marriages and alterations? Lindquist and Warren offer practical, informative answers to your questions.

Read this excellent book and unlock the secrets of antique furniture!

"English & Continental Furniture" is published by Wallace-Homestead Book Co., an imprint of Chilton Book Co. It is available in antique shops and bookstores for $18.95.

Business is blooming at rare plant nursery

By GRETA PICKLESIMER
Special Writer

Outside Whitmore Lake, at the end of Five Mile Road is the Saguaro Rare Plant Nursery where business is blooming.

The nursery is home to over 600 varieties of hard-to-find tropical, desert and flowering plants and one butterfly house.

"We have things that you can't find at Frank's Nursery," said Richard Tuttle, co-owner of the nursery with wife, Raven, for the last 21 years.

Not only do they sell what you can't find at Frank's, but they also offer more advice and information to their customers.

"We specialize in hard-to-find plants," said Tuttle. "Mainly small stuff. Everything is containerized. We don't have anything we can't lift."

Tuttle estimates the nursery has 400 types of succulents, 50 kinds of grasses, seven or eight kinds of bamboo, over 150 kinds of unusual perennials and unusual trees and shrubs. It also has 50 varieties of water plants and 50 kinds of tropical flowering plants. The plants are all nursery propagated.

"We grow some of our own. Most we bring in from other sources (nurseries)," he said.

Richard Tuttle's interest in plants probably stemmed from earning his degree in botany from University of Michigan in 1974.

"We're not your typical nursery. We don't do outdoor landscaping. We offer plants for people to buy. We cater to people who want to garden themselves," Tuttle commented.

Although they don't do outdoor landscaping, they do offer professional indoor landscaping.

Throughout the week they maintain 50 accounts, most being local businesses. According to Tuttle, only about five are private homes.

"It was pure whim, pure chance," said Tuttle concerning the beginnings of his thriving nursery. "I got a job to watch over a laundromat. They had a big sunny window and I bought in some plants and started selling them."

From that sunny storefront beginning, his nursery business has blossomed into a thriving operation.

"An amazing number of people come out. Partly, I think, just to be out in the country," said Tuttle. "Sometimes we have 10 Indian ladies out here in saris buying jasmine because it reminds them of home," he said.

"The smells are really important to people. Fragrances are part of our memories," Tuttle said.

Besides selling plants to gardeners and maintaining their accounts for indoor landscaping, Tuttle has three greenhouses full of tropical, water, desert and foliage plants for the viewing and buying, a butterfly house with free flying butterflies, and a huge pond complete with goldfish and water lilies.

It is a welcome place for people who just want to take a break from it all and go to the country. Hours of operation are Thursdays 1-8 p.m., and Fridays and Saturdays 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The nursery can be found at 470 W. Five Mile Road. For more details, call (313) 449-4237.

Travel expected to rise for Easter holiday

Travel by Michigianians this Easter will be slightly up from last year, while warm weather destinations will benefit most from their tourism dollars, projects AAA Michigan.

A survey of 500 state residents in late March found 12 percent planning a holiday pleasure trip, up from 11 percent last year. Among those traveling, 87 percent will follow the sun, with Florida the most popular destination.

Although Easter is late on the calendar this year, on April 16, most holiday travelers booked trips at least six months ago in order to get the best ticket prices and flight selections.

AAA Michigan advises air travelers to plan on increased airport traffic between Thursday and Monday, with the heaviest crowds expected on Thursday.

Although airports will be bustling, approximately 75 percent of the Easter trips will be by vehicle, the survey found. The average trip length will be 10 days, with the most highway traffic expected on Good Friday and the weekend after Easter, April 21-23.

The heaviest volumes will be found on major arteries heading south out of Michigan, including I-75 and I-69. If weather cooperates, some state residents may open their northern Michigan cottages over the three-day weekend, creating brisk traffic on highways I-75, US-27 and US-31.

Michigan gasoline prices this Easter are expected to be higher than during last year's holiday period. Motorists statewide will pay an average $1.12 per gallon for self-serve regular unleaded, up nearly 13 cents per gallon from last year.

Statewide, 86 percent of service stations plan to be open during daylight hours Easter Sunday, and 39 percent after midnight.

Not all tax preparers are the same

Money Management

CREDENTIALS AND EXPERTISE

The complexity of your return, and not necessarily the amount of your income, should guide you in selecting a tax preparer. Essentially, there are five types of preparers:

Certified Public Accountants (CPAs) - These accountants have passed a rigorous examination which includes an entire section on tax issues. Many specialize in taxes and are experienced in handling complicated tax issues. In addition, if they are members of the American Institute of CPAs, they must meet stringent continuing education requirements to maintain their membership.

Commercial agents - These are individuals who work for large national organizations. They usually work only during tax season and have been trained by the organization. They are not, however, required to have a minimal level of education, nor have they passed an exam administered by a regulatory body.

Enrolled agents - These tax preparers must pass a two-day examination given by the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) or meet an IRS experience requirement. In addition, enrolled agents who are members of the National Association of Enrolled Agents or its state chapters must take at least 30 hours of class work in tax matters each year.

Public Accountants - Many public accountants are tax advisers. These individuals have not taken the exams and are not obligated to meet the experience requirements of CPAs. In some states, public accountants must be licensed, but in others anyone can claim the title.

Tax attorneys - Like CPAs, tax attorneys must meet continuing education requirements and are subject to regulations by the states where they practice. Most tax attorneys don't specialize in tax return preparation. Instead, they tend to be more involved in tax planning and tax litigation.

Keep in mind, too, that only enrolled agents, CPAs and tax attorneys are authorized to practice before the IRS, meaning they can represent you throughout the entire IRS audit process.

FEES

Some tax preparers work for a fixed fee while others charge hourly rates. In either case, be sure to clarify, in advance, how much or on what basis the preparer will charge you to do your return. Keep in mind, too, that it's up to you to provide the preparer with the information necessary to do your return. Unorganized or missing files are likely to result in more work for the preparer and higher costs for you.

IRS PENALTIES

All preparers must follow IRS regulations and other rules in preparing tax returns. Failing to do so can cause them to incur hefty fines. However, ultimately, you are responsible for the accuracy of your tax return.

The answers to your state and federal tax questions are only a phone call away!

The Michigan Association of CPAs is sponsoring "Ask-a-CPA" Call-in Days, an annual program which extends free tax advice from CPAs. Taxpayers can call, Saturday, Feb. 11, or Saturday, March 25, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. (810) 855-2288, and/or Saturday, Feb. 25, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. (616) 771-6680 or (616) 771-6678.

For more information on the program, call the Association office at (810) 855-2288.

Your 401(k) options when retiring

J. R. Atiyeh

I don't want the income at this time. What are my options?

1) Leave the money where it is.
You can put off payments on the plan until

Dear J.R.:

I am 55 years old and am taking an early retirement from the company that I have worked at for 21 years.

I have a 401(k) plan with the company. I received information on what to do with the plan, but don't understand the complexities.

you turn age 70 and one-half. The cash will stay invested on a tax deferred basis until you need it.

The only drawback may be that you don't have many investment options or flexibility.

2) Direct rollover. You may choose to rollover your 401(k) to an IRA account, keeping the earnings tax deferred until payments are taken. This offers excellent flexibility for investing.

For example, you may choose to purchase individual stocks and bonds, most company sponsored plans don't allow for that.

Be sure that a direct rollover is requested, directly to an IRA, if not, there will be mandatory withholding for income taxes, even if you intend on a rollover to an IRA.

3) Cash distribution. This is not a likely option in your case. There would be a full tax burden on the funds distributed to you and a 10 percent penalty because this would not be considered a mandatory distribution.

4) Equal payments. If you like you may choose to take substantially equal payments based on your life expectancy over a minimum of five years. This will avoid the 10 percent penalty, but you will pay the usual income taxes.

Building to remain stable for 1995

Single family home permits issued in 1994 for southeastern Michigan increased 20 percent over 1993 and are expected to maintain this activity level in 1995, announced Janet L. Compo, 1995 president of Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan (BASM) and chief executive officer of James D. Compo, Inc., in Farmington Hills.

Total single family permits issued for 1994 were 14,541 in Oakland, Wayne, Macomb, Washtenaw, Monroe, St. Clair and Livingston counties, compared with 12,075 for 1993.

"This was the best year the building industry has had since the 1970s," said Compo. "The economy has picked up and interest rates are still low compared to the early '80s when they were in the double digits."

The hottest areas for new construction in 1994 were in Canton, Macomb and Shelby townships and Troy, she reported.

Southeastern Michigan is a very stable market in terms of housing prices and number of permits issued on a year-to-year basis, explained Compo. The number of permits issued has been between 10,000 and 15,000 for the past nine years. "The stability of prices in our region keeps us an affordable and active market," added Compo.

"Home buyers in 1994 were taking advantage of the rates and upgrading to new homes that include the latest luxury features such as master bedroom suites, fitness areas, home offices and sophisticated technology for security and home entertainment," said Compo.

The average square feet of a new single family home being built in the Midwest increased from 1,540 in 1971 to 2,075 in 1993 according to the U.S. Bureau of Census. Two-car garages or larger were built in 85 percent of new homes in 1993 as compared to only 53 percent of homes in 1971. Air conditioning is installed in 78 percent of new homes versus 25 percent in 1971. Two-and-a-half baths or more are found in 48 percent of 1993-built homes while only 16 percent of homes built in 1971 had that many baths.

Builders remain concerned about the shortage in the labor supply. "We're in a growth period now," explained Compo. "In fact, the housing market is doing amazingly well. Our labor supply has simply not kept pace with the demand for new home construction."

Residential construction stimulates the economy directly by generating jobs, wages and tax revenues and indirectly as the demand for goods and services created by the construction of new homes 'ripples' through the economy.

Abbey Homes

by Craig Farrand

"It's in my blood" is often nothing more than a convenient saying. But for Robert Katzman of Abbey Homes, the phrase can be taken quite literally.

"I'm a third-generation builder," he said. "My maternal grandfather started in the business in 1912 and my own father was a brick mason who worked for him."

"In fact, that's how my mother and father met."

Yet the family connection doesn't end there: Katzman's cousin, Peter Burton, is now his partner in a series of enterprises – including Abbey Homes.

"Peter and I share the same grandfather – the one who got started in 1912 – and my uncle, Lester Burton, is still involved in the business."

For Katzman, then, the creation of his own home building firm in 1973 was a natural progression that went from his grandfather to his father's own business, founded in 1939.

"My father, Sidney, was a classic post-war builder," Katzman said, "building more than 20,000 production homes in his day."

Today, however, "production" is hardly the word to describe the homes built by Abbey.

"We do quite a bit of custom home building," Katzman said. "We also do some low-end construction, but our specialty is custom work."

In particular, although Abbey Homes boasts a string of multi-home developments throughout Oakland County – many offering units in the mid-six figures – the range climbs easily toward the million-dollar mark in most locations.

And that doesn't even begin to count the individual custom homes Abbey has built in the multi-million dollar range.

"We have developments in Troy, Birmingham, Bloomfield Hills, Oakland Township and Brighton," Katzman said, "but we do quite a lot of building on others' lots."

To illustrate the spectrum of his company's work, Katzman pointed out two projects in particular: "At our Chestnut Run in Bloomfield Township, we have homes ranging from $300,000 to $1 million."

"But we also built a $5 million home – for someone we'll keep anonymous – in which you'd think you were in Meadowbrook; we did hand-carved marble on site and installed a slate roof."

"It's an incredible home."

Of the many developments under way, Katzman made special mention of the Pine Creek Ridge project he started in Brighton in 1989.

"It's a 700-acre project, with homes there ranging in price from $400,000 to $600,000."

"The development sits on the old Charles Howell Boy Scout Camp," he said, "and the first phase – 63 sites – is already sold out, the second phase is half sold and we're going through local zoning approval for additional work."

As with the Chestnut Run project, the Brighton development offers homes ranging from $400,000 to more than $1 million – on lake lots.

With such a range of prices, of course, one might first think there's little in common between the low-end and high-end offerings of Abbey.

How, one might think, could a buyer of a $300,000 home hope to have the amenities of a $1 million mansion?

Well, he can't – he might get pine instead of oak trim – but one thing would remain the same: Katzman's involvement.

"Most of my houses aren't million-dollar homes," he said, "yet I bring the same dedication to excellence and attention to detail to the $300,000 home as I do the most expensive models."

"When someone is looking at a million-dollar home, it's not like going to a car showroom and saying I want this model or that model."

"Each home is unique to the customer; and what we do is look at the site and help determine what kind of home would work there, then we'll find the right architect and the right interior designer."

"We're involved every step of the way."

And that same commitment can be found in every home Abbey builds.

"We first ask a lot of questions," Katzman said. "Do you have children – and are they young or are they teenagers?"

"If they're young children, then the parents may want their bedroom to be nearby, but if they're teenagers, the parents may want their room on the other side of the house.

Builder of The Month

"In this way we begin to develop relationships with our customers."

But such relationships don't exist just between buyer and seller: Also part of the Abbey equation is Katzman's equally long working relationship with his suppliers and craftsmen.

"The man who does my ceramics? His father worked with my father in 1948," he said, "and there are other craftsmen out there who I've also used for many years."

"It's in that long-term relationship that you get the kind of old-world quality people want today.

"And although the material may be different – pine instead of oak – the skill levels remain the same," Katzman said.

Looking to the future, Katzman pointed to one of his developments as portents of things to come: Country Creek in Oakland Township.

"In this day and age people are looking to create new communities – and Country Creek was our answer: We're in our fourth phase of development on the 291-acre site, with another 68 lots going on the market in the spring.

"But what makes it unique is that beside the mixed residential use we've designed into the site, we're also including some retail-commercial development, as well."

In short, Katzman explained, Country Creek is on the way to becoming its own full-service planned community for families to put down roots and grow.

Which is just what his grandfather and father had in mind.

Let there be Light

Illuminating a Home is More than just Screwing in a Bulb

"Far too often lighting is the last consideration, yet poor lighting can really destroy the look a homeowner is trying to achieve."

—Linda Krinock

Walk into any room, onto any porch or through any hallway, and eventually someone is going to reach for a light switch.

In many instances, the result will be the instant illumination of confined spaces, of darkened corners or covered work areas.

Yet far too many times the effect is going to be far from desirable; instead of warm glows and pinpoint spots of light, the homeowner will find himself contending with harsh glares, long shadows and odd colors jumping to life.

What went wrong?

According to three experts in the field of residential lighting, the culprit is the homeowner himself: Faced with the idea of adding light to dark places, the uninitiated often makes choices based on all the wrong criteria – or no criteria at all.

"The fact is that people are generally not well-educated on lighting," Linda Krinock said. "What they need to learn is that not only does light illuminate, but it can set moods, add versatility to a room.

"Lighting shouldn't be just thrown by the wayside."

And Krinock should know: As the regional manufacturer's representative for Progress Lighting, she deals directly with builders throughout southeastern Michigan, helping develop entire lighting treatments for new homes under construction.

And, at the same time, she spreads the word for more consumer education when it comes to lighting.

"We simply need to make more people aware of how integral lighting is to the overall effect a homeowner is trying to create," she said – a point she shares with Bob Borai, area sales representative

Air Conditioning

The Dynamics of Winter Heating Also Apply to Summer Cooling

It may have been inconceivable around the end of February to imagine stifling heat, high humidity and glistening brows.

But even as the last ice storm of winter was abating, talk was already rumbling through the offices of Fred Angell about how to deal with the onslaught of summer.

In particular, Angell and his crew at S & M Heating Sales were anticipating the inevitable calls for the installation, repair and upgrade of service on home air conditioning systems.

And with good reason: Many of the same dynamics at work in a home during the winter are also at work in the summer — from the quality and efficiency of a home's insulation to the circulation of air from room to room.

And then, of course, there's the actual efficiency of the heating or cooling system.

"Just like with a home furnace, air conditioners have efficiency ratings, too," Angell said. "This SEER rating — that stands for Seasonal Energy Efficient Ratio — is a way to tell if your air conditioner is delivering the kind of service you deserve.

"The higher the number, the less electricity you need to cool your home."

According to Angell, early air conditioners had SEER ratings that today would be equivalent to a 7, 8 or 9.

In contrast, today's high-efficient conditioners begin with "at least a 10 rating, and then go up from there: 12, 14, 16..." Angell said.

"But you'd never want to put a 16 into a home," he added. "The cost would be astronomical."

So what would the average homeowner need?

"Well, you probably don't need a 14 or 16, and 90 percent of residential users have 10s — but if you want something a bit more superior, go to a 12.

"Besides, Edison is offering a $50 per ton rebate on air conditioners rated at 12 or above."

Beyond the SEER rating, Angell said there's one other factor involved in selecting the right air conditioner: Size.

Air conditioning units are measured in respect to the amount of square footage needing to be cooled, at a factor of 600 square feet per ton.

As a result, a 2,400-square foot home would need a four-ton unit.

And where a layman might think that a larger unit would do a better job, Angell has a quick caution.

"The air conditioning unit has to be the right size for the right house," he said. "Because if you buy an oversized unit you won't dehumidify the house properly.

"Oh, you'll feel cool, no doubt, but because it won't have taken out the humidity, you'll actually start feeling cold and clammy.

"And that's not good."

For those looking to install air conditioning, the process is actually quite simple, Angell said: Seek out several reputable and licensed contractors for bids and then contact your local building inspector for information about the contractors.

"Don't bother calling the Better Business Bureau," he said. "They only deal with complaints that they've received.

"Your local city building inspector, though, will know if the contractor has pulled permits in the past and whether he's done the job right."

For those unsure about whether they need to replace their existing system, Angell had some equally sound advice.

"First off, if your unit is more than five years old, it needs to be cleaned every year, which also means having the freon tested," he said, adding that "if you maintain the proper level of freon in the unit and keep it maintained, you'll continue to get good performance from it for years.

"If, however, you have continuous freon leaks and it will cost more to repair than to replace, then replace.

"Also, if your unit is more than 15 years old, have (service people) check if the motor is drawing too much amperage; if so, then it's time to consider replacement."

One of the tell-tale signs of age, he said, is when the cooling coils freeze up; it's a clue that the blower is no longer capable of moving enough air through the system and past the coil.

Instead, it moves slowly, allowing the humidity to condense and freeze.

"Remember," Angell said, "cold air is three times heavier than warm air, so it puts added strain on your blower."

for the light bulb manufacturing firm Osram Sylvania.

"We need to work harder at trying to educate the public," Borai said.

"Advance planning when it comes to home lighting is too often a simple oversight for a lot of people," Borai said.

"In addition, too many people make their selections in the harsh glare of large showrooms," he said, "and then wonder why it doesn't work when they get it home."

"When it comes to lighting their homes, consumers need to seek out special treatments that will enhance the look they're trying to create," said Paul Bauman, owner of Reid Lighting.

"Instead, many people just go to a large showroom and only see the most popular items, rather than seeing ideas that will help them."

For the three, the selection of the right lighting for a home – for both interior and exterior treatments – should be made in the same way that a person selects wallpaper, floor covering, kitchen cabinets and furniture.

"A homeowner should seek out experts in the field of residential lighting," Krinock said. "Then, not only are they paying for the lights, but they'd be paying for the expertise involved in making the right choice."

Experts like Bauman: "There are so many things to take into consideration when selecting the right lighting; flexibility, versatility, placement – these all come into play."

"And when I work with a customer, I try to help them create a mood, a look and an effect that they're looking for."

"One thing people need to do more often," Krinock said, "is use dimmer switches in their treatments."

"Not only do they extend the life of bulbs, but you can do so much with them: from creating a night light effect to generating room-filling light when needed."

And the use of dimmers isn't restricted to the ordinary incandescent bulb.

Borai: "There are now tiny halogen lamps that when attached to dimmers can create spectacular effects – from mood lighting when dim, to incredible spots of light when switched all the way on."

And then, of course, there's the new range of incandescent bulbs that come in amber, spun glow and iridescent colors – each offering a different effect in a given light setting.

"Consider the chandelier," Bauman said. "It used to be that you'd only put those candle-type bulbs in them – but now people are doing things with new colors and materials."

"Some people are now putting halogen lights in them, for example, creating a brilliant white light that creates a modern and a traditional look at the same time."

Of all lighting applications, however, the one bulb that has undergone the greatest transformation is the fluorescent tube.

"Fluorescent lamps used to be the automatic choice for bathrooms, kitchens and utility rooms," Borai said, "but there are so many colors and styles available now, that they can be brought into almost any room in the house."

"Fluorescents are definitely moving upscale," Borai said. "They're become more flexible in their application, not only because they're getting shorter, but also because of the new colors they can create."

Borai, whose company, Osram Sylvania, is the largest manufacturer of ballast fluorescents, explained that today's technology offers 18 different colored phosphors.

IMAGINE ...

Playing the Best Golf of your Life in Your Own Backyard.

This Month's Master Planned Community Offered By: S. R. Jacobson

All the natural beauty and wonderment of Northville Township unite in the realized detached condominium homes of Hickory Creek. Forest of pine and hardwoods tower above a sparkling trout stream that's yours to explore from the charming footbridge and winding trails. Indeed, nature's inspiration abounds from every corner of this majestic site.

From the moment the Jacobson Companies acquired the rare parcel of land, they set out to create a neighborhood of maintenance-free residences not only as magnificent as the setting but also perfectly attuned to the environment. To that end, they enlisted the nation's leading residential design firm, Bloodgood Architects and Planners, Inc. and the internationally renowned Childs/ Dreyfus interior design group to collaborate with them to combine the best of architectural tradition with the comfort and ease of a maintenance-free lifestyle.

Handsome exteriors are an elegant composition of brick, stone and wood. Their welcoming, casual ambience is enhanced by the distinctive landscaping and emerald-green lawns that surround each residence.

Inground lawn sprinklers, professional lawn care, snow removal and other time consuming exterior maintenance are tended to by the Hickory Creek Homeowners Association.

Happily, the great outdoors seems at one with Hickory Creek's bright and airy interiors. Soaring vaulted and cathedral ceilings, wood burning fireplaces, intriguing art niches, columns, and plant shelves are among the many details that surprise and delight.

Above all, a wide variety of ranch and two-story plans demonstrate a rare sensitivity to today's lifestyles. Lavish Master Suites pamper their owners with walk-in closets and luxurious private baths with separate platform tubs and stall showers. Tailor-made for entertaining, whether formal or casual, gourmet kitchens are splendidly designed with premium appliances and cabinetry.

There's also extraordinary versatility in every plan including the option of a sunny walk-out lower level or extra-deep basement windows which greatly expand the living space.

Isn't it wonderful that while Hickory Creek may appear to be a refuge for wildlife, trees and flowers... it is actually a sanctuary for people.

Hickory Creek is an idyllic residential setting of choice for those with sophisticated tastes. Major expressways, including I-275, I-96 and M-14 provide easy access to a wealth of recreation and cultural amenities throughout metropolitan Detroit and Ann Arbor. The enchanting villages of Northville and Plymouth add a historic flavor to the area. Laurel Park Place and Twelve Oaks malls showcase hundreds of distinctive stores, restaurants and convenient services. Children are assured of the finest possible education by the widely respected Northville School System. Outstanding leisure opportunities including the scenic Maybury State Park, horseback riding, hiking and bike trails and challenging golf courses, all compliment Hickory Creek's relaxed atmosphere...where life's achievements are richly rewarded.

HOWARD HOMES INC.

Q. Our home is only two years old and happily, we have only had to make a handful of minor repairs. We would like to maintain our relatively maintenance-free track record. Can you offer some preventative maintenance measures we should follow?

-Mr. B. Canfield, Milford

A. You are already one step ahead of most homeowners who often do nothing about maintenance until they experience some sort of minor malfunction or major breakdown. What many of us don't realize is that taking preventative maintenance measures will ordinarily extend the life of equipment and materials and will ultimately be less expensive than having to completely replace a structural or mechanical system after failure.

Spring is an ideal time of year to make a thorough maintenance inspection of your home, particularly because Michigan's winter weather conditions are 'less than ideal' and can affect materials and joints sealants. The first step you may want to take is to thoroughly investigate your home for any sign or symptoms of moisture damage. Make sure there are no pockets or areas where water can collect against the foundation since it can seep into a basement, crawl space or under-slab air ducts. Examine basement walls from the inside for water stains or other indications of dampness.

Other areas to concentrate on are your doors and windows. Check for cracked or loose caulking around frames and trim. Windows should be checked for loose or missing glazing which can permit water to enter. Clean all screens and sliding door floor tracks since dirt and insects accumulate there. Test door locksets, closers, hinges, window operators and any additional moving parts for adjustments and operation.

Inspect all painted surfaces for splitting and weathering. Check trim and siding for tightness of fit since nails can become loose due to normal expansion and contraction.

Examine your roof for damaged or loose shingles, flashing at chimneys, vents and flues and at the juncture of the roof and vertical surfaces. Clogged gutters and downspouts contribute to paint failure and fascia and soffit decay so keeping them free of leaves and other debris is an important preventative maintenance measure.

While the interior of your home isn't directly affected by the outside elements, there is still work to be done indoors. You should double-check grouting and caulking in joints in damp or wet locations, particularly between the bathtub, wall and around sinks built in countertops. Remain aware of the condition of your lamp cords, extension cords and plugs as well as switches and receptacles and replace them at the first sign of wear or damage.

It is usually a good idea to have your cooling system checked in the spring by a reputable serviceperson.

Blowers and motors must be protected from dirt and dust in forced-air systems, and filters should be changed anywhere from twice a year to as often as once a month (depending upon the amount of dirt and dust in the air). Check for leaks in your faucets, hose bibbs and other valves as well.

With the severity of our Michigan winters, all paved surfaces, including concrete and asphalt, should be checked for settlement and for any soil erosion adjacent to these surfaces.

It is an excellent idea to keep a permanent record of all operation and instruction manuals and all maintenance work for future reference.

Air Conditioning from pg. 14

"And if the coil freezes over, you also run the risk of damage to your furnace when the ice melts and the water begins to drip."

In the end, although the idea of replacing an existing system may seem costly at first, the fact is that the savings from an upgrade can be felt almost immediately.

"If you upgrade a 5, 6 or 7 (SEER-rated system) to a 10 or 11, you could go from spending $150 a month to only $65 a month right away.

"And that's not peanuts."

Think about an attic ventilation fan, too

No amount of cooling power in your home will ever completely combat the heat lurking in your attic; heat that makes the upstairs warm while the downstairs is cool.

But there is a solution, according to Fred Angell of S&M Heating Sales.

"Everyone should have a power attic ventilation fan installed in their roof," he said.

"The fact is that if it's 85 degrees outside, the temperature in your attic can reach 210 degrees – and that heat begins seeping down through dry-wall ceilings.

"In the end," he said, "you can have a tremendous temperature difference between your first floor and second floor – even with the air conditioning turned on full."

With the installation of an attic ventilation fan and a separate thermostat upstairs, Angell said, that temperature differential can be reduced to a mere 2 degrees.

"Quite frankly, I won't even install air conditioning in a colonial-style home unless I also install an attic ventilation fan."

New showroom has it all —including the sink

After selling plumbing supplies wholesale for more than 70 years, Advance Plumbing and Heating Supply Co. has opened a retail showroom in Walled Lake.

The 3,000 square-foot store at 1977 Maple Rd., between Decker and Haggerty, features hundreds of faucets and displays of working showers, whirlpools, toilets and sinks. "You can actually see how everything works," says Jeff Moss, vice president. High end brands include Kohler, Grohe, Delta and Moen.

A licensed master plumber can assist do-it-yourselfers and answer installation and maintenance questions.

Moss' Grandfather, Harry Chernick, founded the business in Detroit in 1920. Chernick's son-in-law and the current president, Ron Moss, joined in 1957. Advance expanded to Walled Lake in 1990 when it bought Franklin Plumbing Supply.

Store hours are 8:30-5 Mon.-Fri., 8-3 Sat., or other times by appointment. Phone 1-800-560-7474.

Unique Treatments Available to Homeowners with Stone Floors

For people whose homes feature natural stone treatments, Sally Bayliss of Marblelife, specializes in restoring the natural beauty of marble, granite, terrazzo, slate and limestone, among other materials.

And to help consumers deal with problems associated with natural stone – wax buildup, scratches and stains – she has a six-step process homeowners can use to evaluate the damage and decide on a course of action:

1. Identify the materials and conditions.

Homeowners aren't expected to be experts in the field of masonry and stone work – so seek out someone who is and have them accurately identify the material.

Is it stone granite, marble or limestone – and is it soft or hard, porous or nonporous and is the grout sanded or non-sanded?

Only after properly identifying the material can a plan of attack be laid.

2. Inspect the installation.

Is the floor level? If not, then either the stone tiles were installed that way or the foundation wasn't flat to begin with. In either case, a professional can level the floor to make future care easier and less expensive.

3. Was wax used?

For years, wax was used by maintenance people to give stone a polished look – but because stone is porous by nature, this coating closes the pores and chokes the stone. In addition, some waxes are not UV protected, allowing the stone to appear yellow. (And often the stripping of wax can cause additional problems by disrupting the natural pH balance and damaging the stone.)

The solution is to take care of stone in a way that will leave a high-gloss, no-wax residue.

4. Other factors.

Is the stone scratched, stained or etched? (You may not even see such damage until the wax coating is removed.)

If such damage is found, a professional can deal with it.

5. Maintenance and cleaning.

For any homeowner, proper cleaning is easy: simply dust mop on regular intervals with an untreated mop or electrostatic cloth. In addition, place floor mats where they can help eliminate sand, dirt and other gritty residue from being carried onto the floor.

Finally, damp mop regularly with a high quality marble-stone cleanser to remove grease, oils and spills. (The cleanser should have a pH level of 7 to 7.5.)

6. Restoration.

Periodically, any stone surface will have to be restored or polished to return to its original beauty.

The restoration process involves the use of industrial diamonds to lightly hone the surface (like sandpaper on wood) and remove scratches, etchings and stains. After such honing, the professional then polishes the stone to the finish desired by the homeowner: high gloss, satin finish or natural.

In the end, Bayliss said, the key is to bring a professional into the process at the beginning to help the homeowner deal with the situation at hand.

The result will be a beautiful floor for years to come.

Getting the Most from the Space You Have

With each passing year, you add to your collection of stuff. Tools for yardwork, for gardening, for home repair, toys, athletic equipment. Where does it go? Piled up in the garage. But the garage isn't getting any bigger. We have the solution, Custom Garage Storage Systems by California Closet. Designed according to your specific needs. Wall mounted racks storage and protection of bicycles, golf clubs, ski and tennis equipment.

Shelves and drawers can be adjusted to accommodate everything from large tools and bulky equipment to small, easily lost items. The built in counter space provides a convenient workshop. California Closet uses high-grade laminate surfaces that resists heat, stain, impact, scuffing and look terrific too. All designed to get you organized. We can create a work bench for potting those spring plants or a special area for those small repair projects.

Installation is quick, easy and hassle-free, because we prepare most of the materials ahead of time in our own shop. Our designer will come to your home to take stock of your belongings, your space and your budget. We'll create a blueprint on the spot, and a place for everything, including the car.

TERMS AND CONDITIONS FOR VISA GOLD AND VISA ACCOUNTS

Annual Percentage Rate	5.9% variable until October 1, 1995; a variable rate thereafter (14.99% as of 2/1/95).
Variable Rate Information	Your Annual Percentage Rate may vary. During the Introductory Period, the rate will be adjusted monthly to an amount equal to the sum of (i) the highest Prime Rate as published in The Wall Street Journal on the 22nd day of the prior month minus (ii) 3.1%. Following the expiration of the Introductory Period, the rate will be adjusted monthly to an amount equal to the sum of (i) the Prime Rate, plus (ii) 5.99%. The rate will not be lower than 5.9% during the Introductory Period and 14.99% following the expiration of the Introductory Period.
Grace Period for Repayment of Balance for Purchases	You have 25 days to repay your balance on purchases before a finance charge will be imposed.
Annual Fee	None
Minimum Finance Charge	$.50 in any month that a finance charge is payable.
Method of Computing the Balance for Purchases	One-Cycle Average Daily Balance Method (including new purchases).

Transaction Fee for ATM and bank cash advances: 2% of the amount of the advance, but not less than $5. Late Payment Fee: $18. Over-the-Credit-Limit Fee: $18. Returned Check Fee: $18. For residents of California, the Late Payment, Over-the-Credit-Limit, and Returned Check Fees are $10.

The grace period does not apply to cash advances.

Your Visa Gold or Visa account will be governed by the terms of the First USA Bank Cardmember Agreement that will be sent to you with your card(s). The terms of your account are subject to change as provided in your Cardmember Agreement.

Auto Rental Insurance, Purchase Security, Extended Protection, $250,000 Automatic Travel Accident Insurance and Emergency Assistance Program are only available to Visa Gold Cardmembers. Visa Cardmembers are entitled to all other benefits mentioned, including $100,000 Automatic Travel Accident Insurance. We reserve the right to change the benefit features associated with your card at any time.

First USA Bank reserves the right to obtain a current credit report upon receipt of this Application and subsequently for the purpose of an update, renewal or extension of credit. Upon your request, we will tell you the name and address of each consumer reporting agency from which we obtained a consumer report on you. The minimum gross annual household income required for a Visa Gold card is $40,000, $14,400 for a Visa card.

This offer is available only to applicants who reside in the United States. Cards cannot be issued to applicants having military addresses, or applicants residing in the States of Indiana, Minnesota, Tennessee, North Carolina, Iowa, Delaware or Wisconsin.

The credit disclosures given above were printed March 1995 and were accurate as of that date. The credit information is subject to change after the printing date. You should contact us for any change after the printing date by writing us at First USA Bank, P.O. Box 8650, Wilmington, DE 19801.

WHAT IS A CORE AERATION?

This is the removal of small plugs of thatch and soil. This creates tiny reservoirs that bring air, water and fertilizers into the root zones, which help create healthier, thicker lawns. This procedure is recommended in the spring and fall seasons.

OTHER SERVICES INCLUDE:

Driveway & Sidewalk Clean-up
(of unsightly Weeds & Grasses in Cracks)

Tree/Shrub Care
