Students from Our Lady of Victory School gather outside Northville City Hall for the National Day of Prayer observance.

Large crowd observes prayer day

By CAROL WORKENS
Staff Writer

They came to give thanks and to express hope, to show unity and to lower their heads in reverence.

The National Day of Prayer was observed on May 4 from 12:20 to 12:40 p.m. outside of Northville City Hall. About 140 adults and children attended.

The observance was opened with the proclamation from Mayor Chris Johnson, followed by a special tribute from Sen. R. Robert Geake. In his reflections, Sen. Geake said prayer "leads to introspection while binding people of all faiths together in seeking direction and guidance. Prayer can be an enriching experience and an unequalled source of inspiration for citizens of all ages."

A few of the students in grades three, four and five who were present from Our Lady of Victory School were chosen to read prayers each of them had written for the occasion.

Rev. Douglas Vernon of the First United Methodist Church of Northville led the prayer.

Carole Jean Stockhausen, the local organizer of the nationwide event, passed out the names of 70 firefighters, police officers, decision makers, the mayor, council members, planning commission trustees, zoning board members and Sen. Geake to those in attendance who wanted to make a one year commitment to pray for that person.

The observance ended in song with God Bless America.

Congress passed a joint resolution establishing an annual National Day of Prayer in 1952. The law was amended in 1988 by President Ronald Reagan permanently setting the day as the first Thursday in May.

Students gear up for NHS senior prom

Sure, chirping birds, emerald green grass and flowers in full bloom are sure-fire indicators that spring has reached Michigan and that summer is not far behind. But there's one more festive, annual sign that the happy warmth of spring is here to stay - senior prom.

Tomorrow evening white and black stretch limousines will take to the streets of Northville to transport tuxedo- and evening gown-clad Northville High School students to the annual senior prom, to be held at the Hyatt Regency Hotel in Dearborn.

Students have in store for them a night of festive dancing, good food and friendship at the Hyatt. This year's prom theme song is "In Your Eyes" by Peter Gabriel.

Principal Tom Johnson said he is looking forward to the event, which he says goes off each year without a hitch due to the outstanding planning of the students and staff.

"Each year, it has been wonderful," Johnson said.

In an effort to keep prom night safe each couple has signed a contract stating they will not drink

City alters plan for financing street repairs

By YVONNE BEEBE
Staff Writer

Sherrie Lane and Jeffrey Drive residents breathed a small sigh of relief Monday night as the Northville City Council decided to back out of taxing them for drainage repairs on their street.

Initially, the council considered creating a special assessment district in the area that would have required homeowners to pay $93,599 - 29 percent of the project - to help fund sidewalk and driveway apron repairs and the installation of an edge drain.

Now residents face a substantially smaller dent in their pocketbooks, as the homeowners on the two streets will only be assessed for sidewalk repairs, which will cost about $25,000. The residents will now fund less than 10 percent of the estimated $292,000 project to repair the streets.

Sherrie Lane and Jeffrey Drive will be grouped into a larger special assessment to reinstate the city's sidewalk improvement program. The program was put on hold back in 1991 because the city faced a deficit situation.

A large area of Cabbagetown is included in the special assessment to repair portions of sidewalks that are faulty. Those areas include the portions of Grace, Carpenter, Horton and Novi streets south of Eight Mile Road and north of Baseline and all of Doris Court and Park Grove Street. That portion of repairs will cost $18,000-$20,000.

Also Monday night, the council gave the city engineering firm of McNeely&Lincoln the green light to Northville/Novi display new spirit High schools work as team

By YVONNE BEEBE
Staff Writer

The rivalry between the orange and black of the Northville High Mustangs and the green and white of the Novi High Wildcats has something of a legendary aura here in the community.

The unspoken competition is confined for the most part to the athletic playing field - notably with the annual Baseline Jug football game which started back in 1988 - but may also carry over into the attitudes of students.

In an effort to cool the competitive fires and capitalize on the potential benefits of collaborating on such things as curriculum, special programs and athletics, both school principals worked together this year on forming and strengthening a partnership.

Northville Principal Tom Johnson and Novi Principal Art Miller made a presentation to the Northville Board of Education Monday night on this year's cooperative efforts and outlined plans for the future.

"This is an extremely exciting project," Johnson said. "We're looking at what we can do creatively that's best for the kids."

Expanding the diversity of curriculum available to students through allowing them to take various classes together is one benefit students will start enjoying next year. Novi will be offering an advanced calculus class next fall

Commencement visit yields presidential gift

Fourth grader Daniel Watkins missed school at Amerman Elementary last Friday but got the educational experience of a lifetime.

Daniel, 9, and his father, Tom Watkins, had center-stage seats for President Bill Clinton's commencement address at Michigan

State University May 5.

"We were about as close as from here to the wall," Tom said, gesturing to a point only a few feet across the room.

Tom, whose family lives on Main Street in Northville, got tickets for the prime seats through his connections with the state. An MSU alumnus, he served as Michigan

Among the best: Meads principal gets state honor

By YVONNE BEEBE
Staff Writer

An uproarious cheer sounded through the halls of Meads Mill Middle School Tuesday morning after an announcement aired on the PA system.

Principal Dave Longridge has been named both the outstanding middle school principal of the year and the outstanding secondary principal of the year in the state of Michigan.

"There was this riotous sound from the students when they found out about the awards," said Meads Mill teacher Shirley Klokenga. "Everybody feels good. We're all excited."

Longridge, who is now a National Principal of the Year candidate, said he was shocked at the news.

"It was a complete surprise," said Longridge, who has served with the school district for 35 years now. "I'm honored that the staff felt strong enough to send in the application. That in itself was enough."

Each year the Michigan Association of Secondary School Principals (MASSP) awards one principal the "outstanding" award at the middle school and high school levels. Of those two winners, one is named to the secondary level award and that application is then forwarded to the national competition.

If Longridge is chosen as a finalist in the national competition, Meads Mill will receive a $2,500 grant. If he goes on to win the award, the school will receive an additional $7,500.

"I would enjoy winning the award for the school," he said. "There are a lot of great things we could do for the students with that money."

Longridge is the school's unsung hero, always supporting and congratulating students and staff for their accomplishments, but never taking any of the credit for himself, Klokenga said.

Longridge was chosen from a field of 17 finalists based on his ability to promote a positive school environment and influence student morale. His ability to involve the community in school activities and his willingness to take risks to improve student learning were other attributes.

Longridge has dedicated his life to working with students. He began with the Northville Public Schools in 1968, serving as assistant principal at the high school until 1974. He was the principal of Cooke Junior High from 1974 to 1985 and then moved over to Meads Mill.

Longridge was named administrator of the year by the MASSP in 1987 and also received the Exemplary Middle School Principal Award in 1989.

Here is a sampling of the comments that were included on Longridge's application.

"You helped me learn how to deal with my life. You taught me that I have to solve my own problems. That is a big factor that will help me be the successful person I want to be." - Brandon Ferriman, student.

"He is a visible administrator, and it is rare to find him just sitting in his office ... He is a leader in the use of technology and shows his staff its use by example." - Robert Stover, media center librarian.

"You have made us a family." - Laura Kozub, student.

Carriers' collection

Northville postal customers can put something out for their letter carriers other than mail this Saturday. The carriers plan to collect cans of food for distribution to the hungry and are asking residents to place non-perishable food items at their mailboxes anytime before 9 a.m. The carriers will pick up the cans while on their usual rounds. Last year, carrier Paul Dennis, left, supervisor Ann McInerney and carrier Betty Karsten helped collect 32 million pounds of food. The food drive is supported by the U.S. postal Service.

Fourth committee says lack of funds threatens event

By LEE SNIDER
Editor

Celebrate Northville, the committee that's organizing the Fourth of July parade and related activities, is putting out an emergency call for funding assistance.

The committee is trying to raise money to pay for the parade, a fireworks display and a music concert by the Schoolcraft college Woodwind Ensemble.

So far, corporate backers have been hard to come by, said committee chairperson Karen Woodside.

"We need sponsors to come forward and offer donations. If we don't find some funding sources soon, there's a very real possibility the parade might not come off," she said.

According to Woodside, BFI has agreed to allow the fireworks to be staged on the grounds of the company's Arbor Hills landfill at Six Mile and Napier. Roughly $10,000 is needed to pay for the activity, however, and the potential sponsorship of Miller Beer fell through.

"They said they wouldn't set up a beer tent or anything, so they wouldn't have any reason to sponsor it," Woodside added.

The parade itself costs about $4,000, as many of the bands have to be paid for participating.

Another $500 is needed for the concert.

Committee members say they'll probably need around $19,000 to put on all the events they have planned.

Interested contributors can call Pam Kosteva, (313) 729-4172 (day), or (810) 348-7616 (evening).

The committee has asked for $2,500 in contributions from both the city and township governing boards, but the status of those requests is uncertain.

Woodside goes before the Northville Township Board of Trustees tonight to ask for a contribution.

The good news is that the Jaguar Club has agreed to stage an auto show and will display about 30 classic Jaguars in the Northville Downs parking lot.

Students at Northville High School have agreed to design a poster and Detroit Edison will pay printing costs.

The theme of the parade is "Freedom Alive in '95. A Stars and Stripes Salute to the men and women who worked to defend our freedom 50 years ago.

Volunteers are also needed to help with the four main events: the parade, the car show, the concert and the fireworks. Call Carolyn Brown, 349-7060, for volunteer information.

The next meeting of the committee is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, May 16, at Northville Township Hall. The public is welcome.

Nominees sought for Northville High School honor

Feel like there is a teacher, student or administrator who has made outstanding contributions to Northville High School and should be recognized for his or her efforts? The school's No. 1 Club may be the answer.

The club was established 10 years ago to honor people who have positively impacted the high school. Former winners include teachers Mary Culik and Nancy Arnold and former Principal Dave Bolitho.

To nominate someone for the No. 1 Club, submit the person's name, address and phone number and the reasons why they should be recognized to the high school office no later than Friday, May 19.

Also include the name address and phone number of the person submitting the nomination form.

Garden book on sale

The Country Garden Club of Northville will be selling its book, Back-Fence Gardening, for Mother's Day gifts and aspiring gardeners on Saturday, May 13, from 9 a.m.-5 p.m., at Farmer

John's Greenhouse, 26950 Haggerty Road (one-quarter mile south of 12 Mile).

The event will be rescheduled in case of rain. Call Sue Raftari, 349-1208, for more information.

Trade ya

Just about all fern enthusiasts attending the Northville Historical Society's Third Annual Plant Swap April 27 found something to their liking. Kristina Frogner and Sean Stowell were able to make a trade, with Kristina handing pussy willow stems over to Sean while Sean's father, Mike, looks on. A wide variety of perennials, annuals, wild flowers, shrubs and trees were available, as was "black gold" composted leaf mulch from the Northville Department of Public Works. Proceeds were used to benefit Mill Race Village.

Tulip Days bring fun, sales values to business district

Downtown Northville will blossom this Saturday as the first-ever Tulip Days promotion takes place.

Involving some 35 downtown stores, Tulip Days will feature sales and entertainment acts, including barbershop quartets, face painting, clowns, a strolling banjo player and gymnastic equipment demonstrations.

Many stores will offer sales and will give away colorful tulips with purchases.

Live music will be offered at Caffé Bravo in MainCentre and St. Paul Lutheran Church will hold a bake sale in Genitti's Little Theater.

Buggy tours of the city will be offered by the Classic Carriage service.

"This is an invitation for people to come and celebrate spring," said restaurateur Toni Genitti who, along with the Northville Community Chamber of Commerce, is organizing the event.

"Downtown will be a great place to be this weekend."

Tulip Days will run from noon to 6 p.m. on Saturday.

According to Genitti, stores participating in the activities can be identified by special tulip flags in their windows and on their doors.

Sunday, Mother's Day, many downtown restaurants will be open to offer special dinners.

Eagles cleanup Hines

Warm and sunny spring weather beckons us outdoors once again. The Northville Fraternal Order of Eagles (F.O.E. No. 2504) caught the spring fever and organized its annual Hines Drive cleanup on Saturday, April 29.

Their efforts were concentrated on the scenic 2.1 mile roadway that winds between Five and Seven Mile Roads.

This portion of Hines was adopted by the Eagles some years ago in cooperation with Wayne County as part of the effort to help make the community a better place to live.

Motorists driving this stretch of Hines Drive may notice the road signs at either end which proudly bare the "Eagles" name.

Student busted for alleged drug possession

A 17-year-old Northville High School student was arrested for possession of marijuana after police were dispatched to the high school May 2 regarding a fight in progress.

Northville city and Northville Township police officers were dispatched to the high school and found about 15 students standing in the auto shop parking lot on the south side of the school. An assistant principal was speaking to the 17-year-old suspect, who was seated in his car.

The principal told police he believed the boy had been involved in a fight, but the youth would not answer any questions. The city officer noted that the boy's lower lip was bleeding and swollen. The boy told police he injured his lip while shaving but would give no further explanation.

While speaking with the boy, the officer smelled what he believed to be marijuana smoke. When asked about the scent, the boy said it was cigarette smoke the officer smelled.

The boy gave the officers permission to search his car. In the car's glove box, one of the officers found a cigarette box with a brass marijuana pipe and a clear plastic bag with a brown leafy substance. Lab tests later concluded the substance was marijuana.

The boy said he did not know whose marijuana it was.

The boy was arrested and released after posting a $100 cash bond.

A preliminary examination is scheduled for May 30 at 35th District Court in Plymouth.

MALICIOUS DESTRUCTION OF PROPERTY: A 31-year-old Northville man reported to police that his car was kicked by a later identified suspect after driving on Grace Street Friday night, where a large number of people were blocking the road.

The man told Northville City Police that about five cars were parked on either side of the road with a large number of people blocking the path.

As he approached the group, they slowing moved to the side of the road except for one suspect who stood in front of the car for a moment before finally moving to the side. As the man drove away, he heard a loud thump near the back of his car.

The man pulled alongside the road to allow several cars that were waiting to pass to go through. As he stopped, he noticed that about four men began walking toward his car, so the man drove to his house and called the police.

The man inspected his car and found that his bumper had a small dent with two scratches near it. Police went to the area of Grace, dissipated the crowd and found an 18-year-old man who fit the description the driver gave police. The man positively identified the 18-year-old Northville resident.

The man gave a written statement at the police station and plans to press charges.

MDOP: A Pontiac Firebird parked on Springfield Court suffered $300 in damage May 5 after the driver-side window was smashed.

A Northville City Police officer noticed the damage while patrolling the area.

The owner was contacted, who said the car was fine when he parked it there earlier. A cellular phone and briefcase inside the car were not taken.

Police have no suspects or witnesses at this time.

OUIL: A 22-year-old Plymouth man was arrested for drunken driving after he drove through a stop sign on Hill Street.

When a Northville City Police officer pulled the man over and described to the man his observations, the man replied in a slurred voice, "Naw, you're nuts, I didn't do that."

The man failed a number of field sobriety tests and registered a 0.16 percent blood-alcohol level. 0.1 is considered legally drunk. The man was released after sobering up and posting a $100 bond. A preliminary examination was scheduled for May 10.

Citizens with information about any of the above incidents are asked to call Northville City Police at 349-1234.

Tipline can help police track drug dealers

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

An area law enforcement agency is asking for help from Northville residents in the war on drugs. The weapon: a toll-free 24-hour tipline you can call if you think you've observed something related to illegal narcotics activity.

The Western Wayne Narcotics Enforcement Team (WWNET) has set up the tipline. The team is a multi-community, multi-jurisdictional effort that includes Northville.

Officers from area police departments and the Michigan State Police staff the WWNET, including Northville Township Captain Phil Presnell. The team focuses on combating drugs in 17 western Wayne County communities.

The tipline is one more way to carry on the fight, Presnell said. Police are interested in any information you might have, even if you're not sure it's important. The call won't cost you a cent and you can remain anonymous if you choose. The 24-hour tipline number is 1-800-769-0172.

"We're asking people to call and report anything that looks suspicious to them," Presnell said. "We need the public to be our eyes and ears."

"We're interested in hearing any information," he added. "Even something that may seem trivial to a citizen. We'd like to know about it."

If you call, the team asks you to leave as much information as possible about whatever it is you've seen. Details may include such things as the physical descriptions of anyone involved, addresses, vehicle descriptions, license plate numbers and the like.

In addition, if you see anything at any time that you believe might be part of an illegal activity, you can report it by calling Northville City Police at 349-1234 or Northville Township police at 349-9400.

Volunteers needed to teach fire safety

By YVONNE BEEBE
Staff Writer

The Northville City Fire Department is looking for volunteer community members to assist in efforts to educate residents on fire safety and prevention.

From now until October, the department will be bringing the Northville/Plymouth Community Fire Safety House to the city's schools and churches to educate children and adults on fire safety.

The safety house is a mobile trailer with two rooms that fill with a non-toxic smoke. Once the smoke fills the rooms, the children inside practice climbing out of the windows. The trailer has various styles of windows for participants to practice how to open them and climb out.

Prior to the fire exercise, fire department members offer tips on fire prevention and safety, discuss what to do if a fire does occur and also discuss the dangers of carbon monoxide poisoning and how to detect it.

"We've had adults that go through and when they get out and say, 'Wow, that's a really great program,'" said fire fighter Kim Stefanski.

The department needs volunteers to help sign up participants who would be going through the safety house and helping kids out of the windows at the end of the presentation and set-up and tear down the house.

Volunteers must be at least 18-years-old and must be able to carry 25 pounds, have no physical restrictions and be available to be on-call. Service organizations such as the Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts are welcome to apply to earn credit toward their badges.

A training session for volunteers will be held May 18 from 7-9 p.m. at the fire station, located at city hall.

The safety house is shared between the city, Northville Township and Plymouth city and township fire departments and has been in operation for four years now.

Take part in parade

Any group, club or organization wishing to participate in the Memorial Day parade should call American Legion Post No. 147, 349-1060, or Rebecca Yarbrough, 477-6449.

No clowns or bikes will be included.

Maybury Park News

Maybury State Park is open daily from 8 a.m. until dusk. Farm hours are 8 a.m.-5 p.m. daily. A state park motor vehicle permit is required for entry to the park. Additional information about programs or facilities may be obtained by calling the park office at 349-8390.

SHEEP SHEARING: Time for the sheep to lose their woolly coats! Come see the farmer shear the sheep, then find out what happens to all that wool. Join us at the farm on May 13, 14, 20, or 21. Demonstrations will be ongoing from 1-4 p.m. each day.

SPRING BIRD MIGRATION HIKE: Spring is an excellent time to see a variety of birds, especially before the trees leaf out. Join us on Saturday, May 13, at 8 a.m., as we hike the woods and fields of Maybury in search of colorful spring migrants. Meet at the concession Building in the main parking lot off Eight Mile Road. Bring binoculars and dress for the weather.

FARM FACTS: Most shepherds shear their sheep just once a year. All the wool from one sheep is called a fleece. Fleeces may weight three pounds to 20 pounds or more, depending on the breed of sheep. Some sheep have fine wool suitable for dress and suit fabrics and other breeds have coarse wool, used for carpets.

NATURE NOTES: Many birds migrate to a warmer climate in winter to find food. They return north in the spring to areas suitable for nesting. Many species nest much farther north and can be seen in our area only when "passing through" for a few weeks in the spring.

Fund-raiser is memorial to beloved teacher

By YVONNE BEEBE
Staff Writer

Later this month, Northville High School will be host to a concert featuring the swinging sounds of the Big Band era to honor a respected and well loved former teacher who died of Leukemia earlier this year.

Marie-Claire Williams, who taught Spanish and French at the high school for 19 years, died of a rare strain of Leukemia in March, four months after she was diagnosed with the disease. Her sudden death at the age of 54 left her family, friends and colleagues heart broken at the loss of the dedicated teacher.

Marie's husband, Robert, organized the concert, which will be held Wednesday, May 24, at 7:30 p.m. in the high school auditorium. Robert's 18-member musical group, the Big Band Express, will perform at the event as will the high school's jazz ensemble band.

The event is free but donations are welcome. All money raised will go to the Leukemia Foundation.

"This is just something I felt I had to do," said Robert, who taught English and was music director at Cooke and Meads Mill middle schools and at the high school at different times for 30 years. "If I can put money in the hands of the people who need it, I'm all for it."

In what Robert characterizes as a "bull dog" of a disease, Marie underwent a series of chemotherapy treatments to ward off the Leukemia. After the treatments, doctors believed the disease had gone into remission but an examination in March revealed that the cancer had returned.

Doctors estimated she had about two months to live and recommended she go home and make herself comfortable. She died four days later.

"A lot of people in Northville loved her," Robert said. "She was a great teacher."

Marie taught in the Northville Public Schools for 25 years, including a number of years at Cooke and Meads Mill middle schools and 19 years at the high school.

Her dedication to her students and her warmth in dealing with them is what colleagues remember most about her.

"The kids adored her," said high school Spanish instructor Emily Serafa-Manshot, who was Marie's close friend and served as her matron of honor when Marie and Robert were married in 1987 on Valentine's Day.

"She gave so much to the school. Anytime anyone asked her to do something, no matter how busy she was, she'd do it - especially for the students."

Marie served on numerous committees during her years at the high school before her retirement in 1993. She was co-sponsor of the National Honor Society with Serafa-Manshot and the English and foreign language department chairwoman for a number of years.

In addition, she was junior class sponsor in the 1970s and a member of the high school day committee. She also served on the curriculum council and was a member of the steering committee for the North Central Accreditation group.

"What strikes me is what an energetic and caring teacher she was," said French instructor Elaine Prestel. "She spent so many of her lunch hours helping students. She had wonderful success with them."

A native of Algeria, Marie moved to the United States in 1956. Three years later she graduated from Western Michigan University with honors at the age of 19.

Originally she was enrolled in high school in Kalamazoo, but because of her accelerated intelligence, she left and enrolled at the university at the age of 16. She received her master's degree from Eastern Michigan University in 1980.

Marie is sorely missed by friends and colleagues at the high school, Serafa-Manshot said, adding that the concert will be a fitting way to honor her.

"She was the best," she said.

Law would open landfills to free market

By TIM RICHARD
Staff Writer

County and local officials would lose their control over solid waste sites under fast-track state legislation, a regional official warns.

"The Legislature may soon be considering replacing the current system of county-based planning with a modified free market system," said John Amberger, executive director of the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments.

"The changes now being proposed could precipitate southeast Michigan becoming a dumping ground for the state or nation. Free market siting of landfills and free flow of solid wastes ... without any controls ... could lead to the proliferation of large landfills designed to serve national disposal needs."

Amberger, of Livonia, told SEM-

COG's executive committee April 28 the changes have been prepared over several years by the Department of Natural Resources and Gov. John Engler. The new approach "would take away a county's ability to plan for the disposal of waste generated within its borders and protect its landfill capacity," Amberger said.

"This removes any ability of local government to deal with developers," agreed Milton Mack, a former Wayne County commissioner from Wayne. Mack, now a probate judge but still active in SEMCOG, warned other officials that "our ability as local officials was judged by our siting of landfills."

Amberger said the new bill would be given the same fast-track treatment the the Legislature gave to amending the 1990 "Polluters Pay" law. He said he serves on a state-level committee that reviews land-use planning legislation, "and it didn't come through our committee."

That led Detroit Council member Maryann Mahaffey to wonder aloud, "Is this ideologically driven?"

Currently, counties operate under Public Act 641 to manage landfill siting and flows of trash between counties.

VICTORY IN EUROPE : Commemorative reprint

Fifty years ago today...

...a banner headline in The Northville Record proclaimed the historic end of World War II, the six-year travail that claimed millions of lives and involved nations in virtually every corner of the globe.

As luck would have it, May 11 fell on a Thursday this year, our weekly publication day. The Record was published on Fridays back then and it just so happened that the second Friday of May was also the 11th day of the month in 1945. The coincidence seemed too good to be true and definitely too good to overlook, so we have decided to reprint, in its entirety, the front page of The Northville Record from that remarkable time.

On the other side of this keepsake page, we have reprinted letters written by local soldiers during the war years of 1942-45. The correspondences kept the community up to date on how the soldiers were coping overseas and, to a lesser extent, on how the war effort was progressing. We hope you enjoy this journey back to a time when the world was celebrating liberation from tyranny and relief from terrible hardship.

VICTORY IN EUROPE!

Ends Long, Bitter Struggle;
U. S. Turns to Job in Pacific

Eleven hard and bitter months after General Dwight D. Eisenhower's armies smashed through the ramparts of "Fortress Europe" to set foot upon French soil, Germany's once proud Wehrmacht, weakened after six years of the bloodiest war in history, bowed the knee unconditionally to the Allied powers.

The end saw Nazi generals capitulate to U. S., British and Churchill, Roosevelt and Stalin met February 4 at Yalta and laid plans for a complete and rapid defeat of Germany, as well as a world peace to follow. Insert shows President Truman who, upon taking office, announced his support of the policy developed at the Yalta conference. These men then directed the United Nations to the final victory over fascism.

Russian representatives, even as enemy die-hards held out to the last in Czechoslovakia and Norway. Grand Adm. Karl Doenitz's order to German troops to cease firing came as a sort of anti-climax since the bulk of the Nazis forces already had laid down their arms in the face of the Allied avalanche. April 29, 1,000,000 Nazis surrendered in northern Italy and western Austria; May 4, another 1,000,000 gave up in Holland and Denmark, and on May 5, 400,000 quit in southern Germany.

As the stiff-necked German officers formally admitted defeat, neither they nor the beaten country's new ministers entertained any illusions as to the character of the Allied terms, with Foreign Minister Count Ludwig Schweinhof von Krosigk telling the people: "Nobility must be the result of the harshness of the terms. Nobody must have any doubt that heavy sacrifices will be demanded from us in all spheres of life." Thus did the European war come to its end six years after the mighty German army, striking at the unprepared western powers, rolled through Poland; leveled the lowlands and France, and then turned back to the east again to challenge giant Russia.

As the Germans capitulated, behind them lay the remnants of a once all-powerful army, which, like Napoleon's, underestimated the vast steps of Russia, and then found the U. S. and British gathering force behind its back; behind them lay Germany's blundered clatter and shattered railway lines, pulverized by Allied aerial attacks; and behind them in the ruins of Berlin reportedly lay Adolf Hitler's dead body.

GEN. DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER

Because of the anti-climactic nature of the formal surrender, and also because of the premature announcement of the capitulation days before, some of the edge had been removed from the great event, with the result that the nation accepted the news with restraint. As Germany's fall was substantiated, people looked to the east, where the Japs still remain to be defeated and the entire resources of the navy and well over 6,000,000 troops may be needed to assure victory.

With whole groups of German troops entrapped without hope of reinforcement, their defense varied, with the majority of the older, more practical men giving up upon being cornered while younger fanatics carried on in the face of overwhelming odds.

Meanwhile, the Russians had drawn up along the banks of the Oder river from the Baltic clear down to Silesia, while still other Red armies stood eastward through Czechoslovakia and Austria. Once the Russians opened their all-out attack on Berlin, in the face of the Nazi collapse in the west, the giant pincer was near its close.

Twice taken to war in 25 years and twice defeated, with nothing to show but the anguish and suffering of conflict, the mass of the German people in American and British occupied territory accepted unconditional surrender with a stolidity that masked their inner feelings. East of the Elbe river where the Red stood guard, however, the populace tread in apprehension over fear of reprisal for the Nazis' devastation of Russia in four years of bitter warfare. Previously, many of the people had tried to escape to the west only to be turned back.

7th War Loan Drive Now Underway Here

Schools of Village Seeking to Give Quota Raising of $340,000.00 Flying Start for May 14th Kickoff

Northville, inspired by the thoughts of V-E Day tackles the huge job of meeting its quota of $340,000 in the Seventh War Loan Drive, which officially gets underway this week. More than ever it is urged that the prayers of V-E Day be transformed into works by the continued and greater purchase of bonds in the present drive. The children of the public schools have attacked the problem with a renewed vigor which will give the community a fine running start on its large quota in this drive. The school had up to May 4th, raised 20% of its quota of $70,000 per pupil. The school has already sold $13,225.00 of its quota of 20.2% with the grade school having outsold the high school rooms for the first period. It is hoped that the sales through the school pupils will reach such a volume that the success of the drive here will be assured.

Business Stops As People Plan To Worship

Main Street Deserted During Hours of Worship in Evening

A solemn quietude prevailed the usual noisy spaces of Northville's business section Tuesday morning as President Harry S. Truman made V-E Day official throughout the land. Stores were promptly closed, and strangers bumped their noses as latches and doors failed to open with their onrush. All places except restaurants, the bank, Detroit Edison, Record office and Post Office were closed and the Post Office joined in the ranks at noon. Some of the local factories continued with reduced forces, and others with practically complete shifts.

All day few cars were parked up town, a few stragglers walked up and down the business section, and at times the main street almost resembled the wide open spaces. Through the village, rejoicing confined itself to the hearts of the people who broke forth with smiles, words of hope, and dedication to the unfinished task yet ahead. Everyone seemed to appreciate the significance of the occasion, but tempered their expressions, with a knowledge that the job was only partly completed, and a big job still lay ahead, demanding continued effort, faith and bond-buying to make victory complete. In the evening, local churches were crowded as mothers and fathers and children gathered to thank themselves to soldiers of worshipful thankfulness and reedification of heart and hand to complete the job, and carry on to complete victory.

School Band Concert May 17

Northville High Band of 65 Pieces Will Present Annual Concert in Gym

A program consisting of some of the world's finest music will be presented by the Northville School and Community Band in its spring concert in the Northville High School gymnasium Thursday, May 17th at 8 p. m. This is the second concert to be given by the band since January 1.

Special numbers for the concert will include a coloratura soprano solo "The Russian Nightingale" by Alfred, sung by Rose Marie Young; Patricia Johnston will play the flute obligato and Julia Lewis will play the piano accompaniment. Bill Lanning will be heard in two tuba solos "Serpent of the Brass" by Worth and "Forget-me-not" by Macbeth Joyce Talmage will play his accompaniment.

New members are playing in their first concert. This brings the band membership to sixty-five. The band will play the following selections: Symphony in B minor No. 8 (unfinished), Schubert; Marche Slave, Tchaikovsky; Hungarian Dances 5 and 6, arr. by Brahms; Friml Favorite, Friml; Grouse, Leiden; and Light Cavalry, Von Suppe, Fillmore.

Install Carillon at Baptist Church

A Carillon, electrically operated, is being installed in the tower of the First Baptist Church for the purpose of providing evening worship services to the residents of Northville. The unit, which will amplify the music of chimes and the organ, is to be used twice weekly—Sunday evenings at 8 p. m. and Wednesday at the same hour. Residents of the village are invited to send in requests for favorite hymns to be played during the services. Mrs. Lloyd E. Young, wife of the Baptist minister, will preside at the console. The carillon, which was purchased from "Grinnell's Music House," will not be completely installed until certain parts of the amplification system become available. The partial installation will be completed this week, however, and the first service played Sunday evening.

Tin Can Pickup Next Monday

War Needs Demand That Collections Continue Until Jap War Ends

America's Tin Supply is at a critical low. It must be replenished immediately.

For this reason, an emergency pickup has been set for MONDAY, MAY 14.

It is every American's duty to salvage and prepare all available tin cans so that they can be sent to defueling plants as soon as possible, and from there to the factories where the tin is critically needed.

Put the processed tin cans on the curb, Sunday night for collections beginning early next Monday morning, May 14.

Mrs. Jack Blackburn, is the local chairman of this salvage project.

Open Teen Age Canteen Here

Top Hat Canteen to Have First Event at Presbyterian Church House

The opening of the Teen Aged Top Hat Canteen (for 9th Graders and up) is announced for the evening of Saturday, May 19th at the Presbyterian Church House from 8:30 to 11:30 p. m. Strasson's Orchestra will furnish the music for dancing with Marilyn Grinnell as soloist. (There will be a coke bar, and also a snack bar.)

If the plan as worked out by the Teen Aged is satisfactory, it is hoped the canteen may be open every two weeks with a jutebox supping the music.

This effort is being made by a group of teen agers who have organized a Top Hat Club and who will strive to make the Top Hat Canteen a real factor in the lives of the young people of this community.

Dance Planned to Benefit Patrol Boys

A benefit dance will be given Saturday, May 26, in the High school gymnasium, featuring old time, square, and modern dancing. Harry Mack's orchestra will furnish the music. The affair is sponsored by Police Chief J. L. McKinney who is in charge of the Safety Patrol Boys, and the proceeds will go towards an outing for the boys.

Last year Chief McKinney took 35 boys to a baseball game between the Detroit Tigers and the New York Yankees and also to the Air Show. The Northville business men made possible the treats at that time.

The Safety Patrol Boys have done a fine job again this past season and it is hoped to raise enough money to reward the group with another outing. Patronage of the dance by the public will assure such a reward.

VICTORY IN EUROPE : Letters home

When the men and women of Novi and Northville went to war, they took their hometown newspaper with them, literally. The Northville Record was mailed around the world, acting as a link to familiar scenes and faces for homesick soldiers and sailors, many barely out of their teens.

Letters to the editor from servicemen and women soon started pouring in. By Jan. 8, 1943, the paper launched what was undoubtedly its best-read feature, "Forward in '43 with Our Men in the Service," a front-page column featuring these correspondences, as well as news releases pounded out by the military publicity machine.

As the writers reminded the folks back home, their exact whereabouts was often classified information and the letters were typically whacked to pieces by censors.

Here's how World War II was experienced by the men and women of two small Michigan towns, in their own words. The dates given are for the edition of the newspaper in which the letter appeared.

We heard the guns

Feb. 13
To Mrs. W. Parker
(Granddaughter of William Chase, owner of the Eight Mile Road estate)
From her daughter Mrs. Walter Curtiss Honolulu

"It was certainly a trying experience last Sunday, December 7 (1941). We were eating breakfast and heard the guns and planes but never thought it was a real battle. Then after we finally got it through our heads it was the real thing, we went out and looked at five Japanese planes which were flying directly over our heads.

"Sunday night, we worked in the Red Cross rooms."

The Navy's likable

June 12
Lawrence Bogart, AS
Norfolk, California

"I am working in the spud locker and we are cutting up lettuce and tomatoes for salads. We have as much as we want to eat and I am liking the Navy better every day."

Long trek to eat

Oct. 16
Pfc. Donald Lanning
Spokane, Washington
409th H.Q., Air Base Sq.

"From my induction station in Detroit, I went to Fort Custer. Was only there a few days and went to Jefferson Barracks, Missouri and that is the worst camp I have been in. Treated us like dogs.

"We had to walk 18 miles every day just for our meals."

Can't hack the heat

Sept. 17
Private David Catton
Texas

"On a cool day it's 103 degrees in the shade and no shade ... I suppose you wonder what branch of the service I am in. It is the Trucking Division. It beats walking."

Suggested head: Always swabbing
Dec. 18
Harry Porter
"The Navy certainly is a clean place, if we're not mopping, then we're washing."

1943

Native curiosity

Jan. 22
Harvey Guntzvillers
New Guinea

"The natives are very interesting in customs and rituals. I have observed their dances and I have been decorated by their chiefs. They are former head hunters."

Marines get the girls

March 12
Charles Mankin
San Francisco

"The girls just love to go out with a Marine. The other day I heard a swab jockey (sailor) talking about the Marines. He said the reason they bragged so much when they beat up a Marine was because they realized they had done something to brag about. Don't think we're conceited ... If we were, we would have good reason to be."

Sailors are better

March 26
Pvt. Frank Bongionvanni
"You can tell Charles Mankin for me: What would the Marines do without the sailors, when he gets over his conceited idea."

Musical memories

April 23
Paul Cummins
New Guinea
To the Novi Blue Star Mothers
"We heard the programs from the states on Christmas Eve and they played 'White Christmas' quite a few times, sure made us all homesick."

That gun gets heavy

May 21
Arthur Karschnick
"I am in a machine gun squad, the gun only weighs 42 pounds, but when you carry it around all day it feels like 100 pounds."

Son showed courage

June 4
From Capt. Lester Segal, M.C. of Ann Arbor
To Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Guntzvillers of Taft Road

"I write with keen pleasure, as a token of esteem for your son, whose commanding officer I was for those long months of combat in New Guinea. I came to know

Harvey intimately during the campaign and his endurance and courage under the most adverse circumstances was little short of phenomenal ...

"When he became ill (malaria), I practically had to court martial him to finally get him to agree to be evacuated to the hospital."

Sure I was scared

July 9
Corp. Orville Law
North Africa

"Our last and decisive battle was Terryville and Bizerte. We saw a bit of everything from artillery fire, mortar fire, machine gun fire and rifle fire. We have been bombed and strafed and built a beautiful record.

"It's been tough, but I'm glad now I'm through it. But don't think I wasn't scared at times."

The sweltering continent

Clayton Rogers
North Africa

"The sun sure can get hot in Africa ... When I get home I want you folks to have two things for me. One is a bath tub of hot water and the other is a quart of cold milk."

Too old to lead

Aug. 13
Lt. Colonel E.L. Mills
San Diego, California

"My battalion is going overseas and that means getting rid of the men over 38. It caught up with me and they gave my command to a younger man. After you have taken some 750 young officers and men and worked with them for six months and see them develop into a good outfit, you hate like anything to see them leave and have somebody else take over."

An island fortress

Sept. 17
Keith Avey
From an olive grove in Sicily

"I was in the first wave of troops to make the invasion on July 10. Although the landing was pretty tough, the worst fighting came when we got inland. The process of capturing an island that has been fortified for the last five or ten years just isn't all play ... The Germans are afraid of the Americans ... Some German soldiers remarked that the Yankees were crazy and not afraid of anything."

No replacement yet

Sept. 24
Corlan Bovee, former school principal
Camp McCoy, Wisconsin

"Say hello to Bud and the rest of the young fry around town. I am sorry to see that they haven't found a (Northville) grade school principal yet. It would seem the army has inconvenienced them by removing me but I hope to return some day ..."

Comforting news

Oct. 15
"Mrs. Clarence Holman received a letter Monday from her husband, who has been interned in a German prison camp since last February ... While it told little, it was a welcome, reassuring message."

Was with your son

Oct. 29
Sgt. Harley Balko
Africa

"This is to fill a wish of Joe Defina's father and mother, who wished that one of us (local) fellows was with him. (Defina, a sailor, was killed when his ship was hit by a German U-boat in the South Atlantic.) I happened to be the lucky one. It is one thing I'll never forget. I was with him for about five days ... I can't tell you where it was I came in contact with Joe ... The few days we were together were very happy."

That's my boy

Nov. 17
Sgt. Donald Lanning
Clowns, New Mexico

"I understand that my son, who will be a year old the 20th of this month, is getting to be quite a boy. He has just begun to walk and I have only seen him twice and consider myself lucky to have seen him that often, but the day is coming when we fathers can be at home with our family."

Broke but having fun

Dec. 10
Corp. Joe Spagnuolo
Persia

"We call the place here dirty Iran or we have the PGSC (Persian Gulf Service Command) - People Going Slowly Crazy. But just the same, we do have a lot of fun and we don't make money."

Count your limbs

Dec. 24
Sam Bongiovanni
South Pacific

"The jungles are about the toughest thing I ever encountered ... I guess a soldier is a fellow thinking of a little house in the country with a wife and family but is unable to do or say a thing about it till this war is over and he takes stock of his legs and his arms and what have you."

The mission came first

Dec. 24
Letter to Mrs. G.E. Powers of Cambridge Drive, Novi (who lived at what is now Novi Mayor Kathleen McAllen's home)

From the U.S. Navy
Concerning death of her son, Oswald Powers, June 3, 1942 at the Battle of Midway and the posthumous awarding to him of the Navy Cross.

"Participating in torpedo plane assault against enemy Japanese naval units, Ensign Powers, in the face of tremendous anti-aircraft fire and overwhelming fighter opposition, pressed home his attack to the point where it became relatively certain that, in order to accomplish his mission, he would probably sacrifice his life.

"... He carried on with extreme disregard for his own personal safety, until his squadron scored direct hits on two enemy aircraft carriers."

Muddier than Main Street

Feb. 18
Capt. H.I. Sparling, post surgeon Middle East

"We arrived at the Promised Land or what we thought was to be a land flowing with milk and honey and date palms, but decided we had been on a chartered course right to the rear end of creation ... But that's us, just a bitching, belching bunch."

"We were advised before leaving that we were going to a desert place and to leave rubber boots and rain coats behind ... we landed in the middle of the rainy season and in such mud up to your hips and such slippery mud, worse than Main Street ever was during an ice storm."

Fierce fighting

April 7
Pfc. Harry Ritchie
Italy

"I am on the Anzio beach head now and there sure is plenty of bitter fighting going on at all times. I am sitting in my dugout writing this letter underground, which we have to have for our ack-ack is so heavy we have to have protection from it. Once in a while, our big guns going off around here almost shake me out of my bunk. It has been going on for 23 months since I came overseas ...

"... I have seen many a little boy and girl sleeping in straw stacks who now have no parents left at all"

Two years away

April 23
Pfc. Harry Ritchie
Italy

"It doesn't seem possible! I have been overseas two years ... I can't forget Mother dear, how you looked when I told you I was going overseas."

Drills of another kind

May 5
Lawrence Bogart

"They made us get a G.I. haircut and then examined our teeth. I had 16 teeth drilled and filled and believe me, I'll take a civilian dentist any day."

Leave was great

May 19
S I/C Archie Niles
Concerning a recent home leave

"To me dear old Northville hasn't changed a bit. Except it was little bit dead with so many boys gone."

Need smokes

May 26
To Mrs. Emma Keller from her son, Wayne Keller Sardinia

"Please send me a carton of Camels"

Nylons, but no women

June 2
Sgt. Ronald Anders

"I am now in Panama which is all I can say about it. I know the women back home would go nuts down here as they have silk hose, plenty here ... You can get plenty of camera film, but no women, so that's the bad thing."

The longest day

Ensign Charles Pink
(formerly Northville High School athletic coach)

On D-Day
"June is supposed to be the best month for sailing on the channel but June 6th turned out to be a far from beautiful day ... Most of the crew was seasick on the way over and even yours truly felt the rolling and pitching of the craft. The soldiers must have been a little seasick at least when they hit the beach ...

"When we left the French coast, our armies were definitely established on the beachhead ... It seems there is still a long fight before victory will be won."

The unsuspecting enemy

July 14
Ensign Al Boelens
South Pacific

"We have reason to believe the Jap fleet doesn't suspect our presence here or I am sure they would realize the uselessness of opposing the 'mighty A' and would immediately surrender."

Nothing like American chow

Paul Cummins

"The high spot in my homecoming will be my first taste of a good old hamburger ... The Aussies tried to imitate them but the result was pretty bad, tasted like ground mutton."

Homegrown bombers

Aug. 4
Cliff Hanna

"Our B-24s from around here have been blowing Hell out of Germany lately and a lot of them are from Willow Run, so the people there are doing a good job. We have a Ford B-24 here that has completed 41 missions over Germany ... none of its crew has had a scratch, but one time she came in with 93 flak holes in her."

The real South Pacific

Aug. 11
Capt. Herman Toussaint
South Pacific

"I can tell you that the South Sea Islands are not like the posters that people read at home. I have looked in vain for a long time and I still can't find anyone who resembles Dorothy Lamour ...

"I have been away so long I won't I know how to act if I get back to civilization."

In the thick of it

Aug. 11
Pfc. Albert Bauer
Italy

"Since coming here I have been in front line duty and was in the big push that broke the Gustav and Hitler lines ... Was among the first foot soldiers to march through Rome ... Rome is a very beautiful city and it was spared from bombing."

We're all vets now

Aug. 11
C.W. Banks, APC, USN

"We have cruised approximately 100,000 miles, participated in several engagements and bombardments and have spent as high as 18 hours at our battle stations and undergone several air attacks, one lasting six hours; we have a few enemy planes painted on our bridge and every man aboard whether he is a recruit or an old timer can feel he is a veteran."

POW is OK

Aug. 11
John Weist
Captured after fall of Bataan

"Mr. and Mrs. H.N. Weist of 38845 Nine Mile Road have received a card from their son, John Weist, who is a prisoner of the Japanese in the Philippines Military Prison No. 1. He advises his parents that his health continues excellent ..."

Bravely injured

Sept. 1
Lt. Dorothy Heaton, ANC
England

"We are very busy here in our hospital. The patients are wonderful and never complain about their injuries."

A teacher's dream

Sept. 15
Bob Streng, USMCR
South Pacific

"I think that Miss Ludwig, my biology teacher at NHS (Northville High School) would really be in her glory out here because about everything in the book can be had for just getting your feet wet."

Inexperienced cook

Ralph Hay
South Pacific

"It is very hot and damp here. It rains a good deal of the time. The flies and mosquitoes are bad ... I am working as a cook now. They needed someone with knowledge of cooking and I am still wondering why they picked me"

Heavy shelling

Oct. 6
Warren Bogart
In the Mediterranean

"Took part in the invasion of S. France. Again we were the first LST to hit the beach in a certain sector. The damn Jerries got our range and were really sending shells our way. Things were pretty hot for awhile, but luckily they didn't hurt us."

"Saw quite a few prisoners and it's a laugh when you think that they at one time referred to themselves as Supermen."

Play checkers, not war

Oct. 27
Harry Larkins

"I came over here on D-Day and I hope if there is another war, it's battled out across a checkerboard."

A soldier no more

Nov. 3
Pfc. Fred Walker
Injured in action, France

"I am now in England in a good hospital. I had quite a thrill by being flown in in a C-47 plane ... The doctor who operated on me went to school with (Northville's) Dr. Atchison ... My army days are over."

On Hitler's porch

Nov. 24
Staff Sgt. Ralph Buttermore
Somewhere in Germany

"I was in an area just outside of Cherbourg, France. I moved from there up to Belgium and Holland and ended up on Adolph's front walk ... I saw the lights of Paris and the ruins of other cities. It is all quite a mess."

Resistance was thin

Dec. 29
Ensign Albert Boelens
Invasion of Huam (sic)

"I had charge of the tenth wave which included seven boats of marines and soldiers. It amuses me now when I think of it, how scared we all were on that pitch dark night, with the stillness broken only by explosions and gunfire. We expected greater resistance from the Japs."

1945

They're suicidal

Jan. 12
Perry Cooper
Leyte

"The Japanese way of thinking seems different from ours. They send a few men and planes over regularly, like when it was obvious they didn't stand a nick of a chance of getting back. Apparently, the Japanese commanders don't think a man's life is worth even as much as machinery."

Sweet tooth beggars

Jan. 19
Arthur Karshnick
France

"I wish you could see the little kids over

Glimpsing FDR

Jan. 26
Gladys Hammond
Marine Motor Transport Corp
Camp Le Jeune, N.C.

"Our Lieutenant told us, 'You girls today are going to do something you might be in the Marine Corps for 50 years and never get a chance to do.' ... Pretty soon the President's (FDR) convertible was brought off the train with two other cars. These were at the front of the convoy ... even Fala was there ... The President didn't speak at any point. He looked quite tired and probably didn't have very much time ... Believe me, it was a day I'll never forget, driving in the Presidential convoy."
(Roosevelt died April 12, 1945)

We're tougher

Feb. 16
Capt. Carl Denton

"We have found the enemy stronger than we believed him to be, but man for man our soldiers are far superior. The Jerries are like automatons or dummies. They are finding out the American soldier is not so soft-hearted as they thought him to be. We are anxiously waiting to run up and meet our Russian buddies."

A shower tomorrow?

March 16
Pfc. Gerald Miller, age 19

"A 17-hour drive followed our church dinner, to Rheims, France ... Then up to the Ardennes (Moitray) to help push back the Bulge. This was during the bitter cold in Ardennes, when we were ill-clothed. We are supposed to get clean clothes and a shower tomorrow, I sure hope."

Thanks, Blue Stars

March 16
Edward Baker

"To the Novi Blue Star Mothers, I wish to extend my heartiest thanks for the swell fruit cake they sent me at Christmas time. We boys out there are working, hoping and praying for a speedy victory so we can be with our wives, parents, sweethearts and all of our swell friends who are working so hard on the home front."

The Purple Heart gang

May 4
Pfc. Gene Nitzel on Iwo Jima

"I was hit in the foot, leg, knee, elbow and buttocks with shrapnel from a Jap hand grenade. As for the gash in the head, a Nip hit me there with the butt of his rifle. There were four of us fellows in one hole when the raid started and the other three are dead. So if you think your little boy Gene isn't glad and lucky to be alive, you're on the crazy side ... All three of your sons will be wearing Purple Hearts now, Mom ...

"Mom, if you want to be my best girl, you've got to send me a birthday box about every month. Send me such things as canned tuna fish, boned turkey and dill and sweet pickles, but please don't send me anything like Spam, Preen or Treet."

Got 'em on the run

June 29
Llewellyn Kingsley

"A fox hole doesn't make much of a writing desk but with a little patience you can make this out - We're still chasing these little yella fellas over here and I am glad to say they are pretty much on the run. Once in a while they get a little sassy such as the other day two of our boys tossed a grenade in where one was. Guess he didn't want it so he tossed it right back to them."

Nary a Nazi

July 6
Doug Slessor

"The thing that makes me laugh over here is the German people. I don't understand who Hitler had to back him up as there isn't one Nazi over here, so the people say. When you ask them about the concentration camps, all you get is a 'Nicht Forstay' (sic)."

Real hellfire

July 13
Glenn Weeks

"The fighting here on Okinawa stopped on June 22 after 82 days of H— ... To the persons in Northville, I'd like to say that the blood plasma saved many lives here in Okinawa. A large quantity was sent from Parke Davis & Co. in Detroit. It may have been yours."

A-bomb will end it

August 24
Don Barnard

"I heard over the radio this morning that Russia declared war on Japan. Boy, that was swell news. That combined with the new Atomic Bomb we have should bring the war to an end in the very near future."

Didn't die in vain

Sept. 14
Anthony Bongiovanni, MM3c
(on a carrier in battle of Iwo Jima)

"We were heading for the invasion of Luzon. We must sweep the mines and clear the way ... I was so scared I couldn't move so I started to say goodbye to all the people I knew ...

"I read in the Record that a lot of Northville boys lost their lives in the war. I am sorry to hear that. Tell the people of Northville never for one minute to forget them for they died as heroes and they did not die in vain. They must all be remembered; for as long as we all live, they live always."

"I hope this will be the end of all war always."

Diamond Cuts Salon

Diamond Cuts Salon is the newest addition to the fine list of stores at Country Epicure Village on Grand River between Meadowbrook and Novi Roads. The owners of Diamond Cuts Salon, Polly Sinclair and James Dunn, are veteran hair dressers that share in the philosophy that professional service and a relaxed atmosphere should go hand in hand. This is evident from the moment that you walk into their salon. Hardwood floors and an abundance of plant life create a relaxed atmosphere in a definite attempt to avoid the high tech Formica look that has become somewhat of a tradition in the beauty salon industry. The quality of the product lines mirrors the quality and ability of the Diamond Cuts design staff. Products available are Aveda, Redken Paul Mitchel and Joico. The staff at Diamond Cuts Salon consists of hair designers, professional color and perming specialists, and two manicurists. The owners of Diamond Cuts are currently trying to fill the void in makeup, facials and massage but are certain that void will be filled very shortly. As Polly and Jim are quick to state we would rather wait and get the right people. It seems to be working.

Wyndham Reinvents the Breakfast Bar to Help Guests Feel at Home

The Wyndham Garden Hotel-Novi has introduced a new breakfast bar concept – cereals served from full-size boxes. "Every hotel serves cereal for breakfast. Wyndham's Cereal Bars, however, must be special, with a large variety of cereals and fresh toppings to give our customers a comfortable, homey start to their day," according to Brent Munson, general manager of the Wyndham Garden Hotel-Novi.

"Our customers have told us they dislike those tiny individual serving boxes because they're hard to open and the portions often too small," according to Munson. "The Wyndham Way means listening to our customers and adjusting our product and services as their needs and wants evolve," he added. "Reinventing the breakfast bar is just another extension of the Wyndham Way."

Introducing

The Providence Heart Institute

Quality care — a Providence hallmark for 150 years

This year, Providence celebrates 150 years of service to metro-Detroiters. Quality care with a special personal touch has always been our hallmark.

Through the years, thousands of patients have trusted Providence Hospital in Southfield in matters of the heart. Now our full range of cardiac care services has become even better.

Convenient outpatient care

As we've grown, we've listened to what our patients and their doctors want. The result is the Providence Heart Institute, where comprehensive cardiac diagnostic testing and evaluation services are available in one convenient location.

You'll walk a few steps from dedicated complimentary parking at the Hospital's main entrance to register in a central location, then proceed to the Institute where helpful staff will coordinate, schedule and deliver all of your outpatient care, including cardiac rehabilitation.

Private lockers, changing rooms and conference space, as well as added space in diagnostic stress testing areas, will make your time with us comfortable.

Comprehensive cardiac services

Quality cardiac care depends on accurate diagnosis and treatment. Providence has an outstanding record for cardiac services, with complication rates below national averages.

Providence offers a full range of cardiac services including electrocardiography, echocardiography, stress testing, pacemaker and arrhythmia clinics, cardiac catheterization, angioplasty, atherectomy, cardiac stents, cardiac surgery and cardiac rehabilitation. In 1992, Providence also opened Oakland County's first chest pain emergency unit to care for patients in those critical first hours when chest pain begins and is most responsive to treatment.

The Heart Institute can be reached by calling (810) 424-2000.

Super-speed loans promise mortgage approval in matter of a few minutes

By LEE SNIDER
Editor

If they can land a man on the moon in four days they ought to be able to invent a way to get a mortgage approved in less than four weeks, right?

Don't look now, but the age of the hyper-speed loan is about to dawn.

In what is being billed as an "approval time that would make the Concorde blush," Americor Mortgage Co. is offering a new service it calls ZapLoan. Making use of picture screen teleconferencing, ZapLoan can reduce the wait for mortgage approval to less time than it takes for a cup of coffee to cool.

Americor President Tom Balames says Zaploan technology can result in mortgage approval for home buyers in just four minutes.

"Looking at it makes you feel you're in one of the episodes of The Jettsons," he said. "People's biggest anxiety in buying a home is the wait to get approval. This reduces that to a fraction of the time."

If it sounds too good to be true, it isn't. According to Balames, the only paperwork requirement is the loan application itself, which he estimates can be completed in about 40 minutes.

Once the application is ready, it is faxed to a mortgage loan underwriter who then reviews it and initiates the two-way teleconference with the Realtor's office.

From there, it's all up to computer-age technology, and approval can come as quickly as a mad dash through an on-line cyberspace relay track.

According to an Americor information booklet, the quickness of the ZapLoan results, in part, from a new emphasis on the credit history of the buyer. As long as the prospective purchaser's credit is good, loan approval is likely.

Prior to the advent of credit-based mortgages, buyers had to provide considerable documentation, including tax returns, W-2 forms, bank statements and a home appraisal report. The lender needed to contact the borrower's employer, bank, mortgage company and credit bureau to verify the information.

With this new system, information is taken from four areas of a buyer's personal history: employment, assets, collateral and credit. During the teleconference, the mortgage officer discusses the loan application with the purchaser and in 90 percent of the cases the mortgage is approved in less than four minutes, according to the company.

"This is a very visual system for the consumer with a high gee-whiz quotient," Americor literature says. "If you have never seen two-way video teleconferencing before - sitting in front of a computer screen and talking to someone you can actually see in real-time video is very impressive."

The service is available in Northville Township at Coldwell Banker Schweitzer on Six Mile.

The advantages of ZapLoan are obvious, Balames said, and benefit the seller as well as the buyer.

"A seller can now accept an offer subject to approval in the same day."

Balames added that few real estate offices currently offer ZapLoans, as the necessary computer hardware is quite expensive. He says the Schweitzer office has only one teleconferencing station, valued at approximately $7,000.

The automated underwriting systems are provided by the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp., a government-sponsored agency often referred to as Freddie Mack.

Americor Mortgage operates offices in Troy and other Michigan cities, as well as in Cleveland.

Workshop tells how to trace personal lineage

Northville Genealogical Society held its Everton Publisher Workshop Wednesday, April 5, at Schoolcraft College in the Waterman Center.

Eighty-two people were in attendance, about 61 preregistrations and 21 walk-ins. Those attending were from Grand Rapids, Detroit, Dearborn, Livonia, Plymouth, Novi, South Lyon, Wixom, Farmington Hills and Northville.

George and Louise Everton presented the program on how to use your census records.

Information was provided about getting your genealogy started by interviewing your sisters, brothers, aunts, uncles, mother and father, and by using records from the Church of Latter Day Saints, other church records, information from newspaper obituaries and by writing to relatives.

Several charts, reference books and publications were offered for sale.

Everyone registered will receive a one year subscription to The Genealogical Helper.

We like to get to know our patients on a first-name basis.
Even before they have a first name.

Being a smaller hospital definitely has its advantages. It allows us to spend more time with you, from the moment you discover you're pregnant to the day you and your new baby leave for home.

However, in many respects, small is the last thing you'd call us. Because as part of The Detroit Medical Center, affiliated with Wayne State University, we offer the experience not only of our own obstetricians, but of many other noted specialists-including those who've pioneered the field of high-risk pregnancy.

From our educational programs to our Complete Care Nursery with a full-time neonatologist, our goal is to make your pregnancy as trouble-free as possible.

Which means the only thing you need to concentrate on is choosing the perfect name.

To meet with a Huron Valley physician, call (810) 360-3450. You'll see how easy it is to get the right care right here.

Change in the health care field is nothing new. Whether it's through technology, social needs, partnerships or building new facilities, change is inevitable.

But one thing never changes — our commitment to the same standard of quality, the same devotion to our patients, the same family-centered care.

High school musicians earn accolades

By YVONNE BEEBE
Staff Writer

The Northville High School band program has been right on tempo this year when it comes to outstanding accomplishments.

The school's symphonic band, jazz ensemble and several soloists have made their marks in the music world in the state of Michigan by receiving Division 1 ratings for their performances during state and district festivals.

"This year has been full of success," said senior Matt Cowles. "It's been excellent. This is a nice way to end my senior year." One of the marching band's drum majors, Cowles plays the French horn in the symphonic band and key-boards in the jazz ensemble.

On April 8, the Northville High School Jazz Ensemble received a first division rating - the highest mark possible - in the Michigan State Band and Orchestra Association (MSBOA) jazz festival.

The band received one A-minus and 14 As for its performance.

Based upon their performance, the jazz band could receive an invitation to perform at the Montreux Jazz Festival in Detroit this summer. The band will hear if it is invited by the end of the school year, Cowles said.

In addition, Jeremy Abbey was chosen as the best jazz baritone saxophonist in the state of Michigan. Abbey will perform in the All-State All-Star Honors Jazz Ensemble at the Michigan Youth Arts Festival at Western Michigan University from today through Sunday. One student for each instrument statewide was chosen to perform in the youth arts festival this weekend.

Drummer Tom Sheppard and bass guitarist Matt Falkiewicz earned all-state jazz honorable mentions at the competition, placing them in the top five players in Michigan on their instruments.

On April 29, the symphonic band received a Division 1 rating at the MSBOA state band festival, placing it in the top 1-percent of high school bands in Michigan. Unfortunately, there is no national competition for the students to move on to.

The last time the high school band received a Division 1 rating at a state festival was in 1985.

In addition to the outstanding accomplishments of the students this year, the high school's band program is on a steady upward climb in terms of size.

"The numbers just keep getting bigger and bigger," Cowles said. The school has 172 students enrolled for band next year, compared to this year's 133 students in the program.

High court to decide suit against developer Taubman

By TIM RICHARD
Staff Writer

The Michigan Supreme Court will decide whether a former Birmingham executive will get a trial in his wrongful discharge suit against shopping mall developer A. Alfred Taubman.

Charles Barnell, 53, insists he had an express oral contract with Taubman, Detroit attorney Mary Anne Helverston told the justices and the Court of Appeals agreed.

"He's creating a contract out of whole cloth," replied Bruce Segal, Birmingham attorney for the Taubman Co. Inc. Segal said Oakland Circuit Judge Jessica Cooper's dismissal of the case should be upheld.

The justices attempt to decide all cases within a year.

Today Barnell is selling real estate in the Leelenau Peninsula on the Lake Michigan gold coast. But in 1985 he was recruited away from Rapistan-Lear Siegler in Grand Rapids to take the newly-created post of executive vice president for finance in Taubman's Bloomfield Hills-based enterprise.

"Eight months after he was hired, the company issued a policy memo saying employment was at-will. Eleven months later, he was discharged," Segal said, indicating Barnell had "too rigid a management style" for a company that required flexibility.

Segal said Taubman's at-will policy allowed it to terminate Barnell and others at any time and that Barnell was inventing the existence of an implied contract.

Prison bill to be put to test

By TIM RICHARD
Staff Writer

Sen. Michael Bouchard will face some hard cost questions before his tough new prison sentencing bill goes through the Michigan Senate.

"The more we spend building prisons, the less we spend on crime prevention," objected Sen. Joe Young Jr., D-Detroit.

Young's complaint was that neither Bouchard nor the Corrections Department had worked out - let alone estimated - the cost of his bill to allow back-to-back prison terms, instead of consecutive terms. Bouchard's bill would apply to convicts placed on probation who committed a second crime.

The Senate Judiciary Committee on May 2 gave 5-1 approval to Bouchard's bill, with Young registering a loud "no." Among those voting yes were Republicans Robert Geake of Northville and Mike Rogers of Howell. Missing the vote, to attend a Finance Committee meeting, was Gary Peters, D-Bloomfield Township.

A former police officer, Bouchard said the bill would be particularly useful in cases of a burglar who is convicted and placed on probation - a program where the judge suspends a prison sentence but places the convict under supervision of a probation officer.

His bill would allow a judge to (1) sentence the convict to prison for the first offense and (2) "stack" on a consecutive sentence for the later offense.

"It's discretionary with the judge," said Sen. William VanRensselaer, R-Jenison, chair of the Judiciary Committee.

"It's very rare," said Dick McKee of the Corrections Department. "The potential impact (on the prison population) is minimal." "I feel there are tremendous fiscal implications," Young disagreed. "Can we attach a cost? It's not zero, but it could go through the roof."

A Senate Fiscal Agency report said Bouchard's bill "would have no fiscal impact on state or local government," Young doubted that.

Currently, a convict can be given a consecutive sentence for a new crime committed (1) while in prison, (2) during an escape period or (3) while on parole after being released from prison. Bouchard's bill doesn't change that but expands the concept to cover probationers.

Elsewhere in Lansing, Corrections Director Ken McGinnis announced the state would exceed its prison capacity sometime in summer. The reasons: Work on renovating an Upper Peninsula former mental hospital into a prison was going slower than expected, while new prison sentences in April were much greater than expected - 240 versus the predicted 138.

Bouchard's bill, if enacted, would become law April 1, 1996.

Michigan has been on a prison-building binge since the early 1980s. The prison population has more than tripled from 13,000 to about 40,000. The Corrections Department budget is current set at $1.3 billion.

Refer to Senate Bill 123 when writing to your state senator, State Capitol, Lansing 48909.

Father and son meet Clinton mental health director from 1985-90 and was a deputy campaign manager for Jim Blanchard's successful 1982 gubernatorial drive.

Former governor Blanchard, now U.S. Ambassador to Canada, joined the President and Gov. John Engler on the platform at Spartan Stadium.

An estimated 45,000 students and dignitaries attended the event. The excitement of seeing the President deliver his speech up-close was actually a secondary thrill to young Daniel, as the lucky youth got something even better: a personal introduction to Clinton. At one point before the speech began, the President stopped to sign Daniel's program guide and even spoke briefly to the grade schooler.

"He said, 'How ya doing? Thanks for coming,'" Daniel said. "He's big."

Tom said it didn't look at first like the President was going to offer his autograph because he and his entourage passed quickly by Daniel's outstretched arm on their way to the podium. A few seconds later, however, Clinton stopped and told a secret service agent to retrieve the youngster's program.

It was then that the youth had the chance to exchange words with the commander-in-chief.

"To him, just the humanness of what the President did meant a lot," Tom said. "That he (Clinton) would understand the importance to one boy of giving him an autograph ..."

President Clinton used the occasion as a forum to issue a fiery denunciation of paramilitary organizations. His remarks criticizing right-wing militia groups were broadcast throughout the day by the national media outlets. He also addressed educational issues.

The East Lansing university gave Clinton an honorary doctor of laws degree at the ceremony.

The best part about the day, according to Daniel?

"We got to stand on the Michigan State practicing turf."

Council lifts funding burden from residents

proceed with televised inspection of the sanitary and storm sewers on Sherrie Lane and Jeffrey Drive to determine the extent of damage underneath the pavement. With the approval, cameras can now be used to provide a view of the damage underground.

The streets have a number of large voids underneath the pavement due to the lack of an under-drain system. Rain water and water from spouts penetrates the sod and runs off into the street and under the sidewalks. Over the years, the water has carried dirt with it, creating the voids.

In addition, during winter the water underneath the pavement freezes and breaks the mortar out of the storm sewer. The repairs, including installing an edge drain system and filling the voids under the pavement, will not start until late summer, City Manager Gary Word said.

Originally, the city planned on paying for the Sherrie Lane project by issuing Michigan Transportation bonds. The administration later learned, however, that in order to bond for the project, the special assessment district would have to fund at least 50 percent of the repairs.

The council determined that assessing residents for 50 percent of the project would be an undue burden and examined alternative financing methods. The solution will most likely come in a one-year millage levy of 1.01 mills to fund the project.

The city also proposed to levy 0.1 mill for the sidewalk program, which will be repaid by residents through the special assessment district over a period of five years.

The city also proposes to levy an additional 0.08 mill for codification of the city ordinances and 0.07 mill for a retiree benefit cost-of-living increase.

When the budget was first introduced in April, the council proposed an overall millage decrease of 2.6 percent. But due to the need to fund the Sherrie Lane project, in addition to creating funds for other projects, the city is now proposing a 4.9 percent hike in its operating millage over last year.

Because of the impending increase, the council will hold a truth-in-taxation hearing at its regular meeting May 15 at 7:30 p.m. at City Hall. The council will also hold a general public hearing on the budget document before voting to approve the budget.

The issue of approving the increased millage will come before the council at a specially-called meeting May 22 at 7:30 p.m.

that will also be open to Northville students.

Enrollment from students of both schools makes specialized and advanced classes possible because without the joint venture there would not be enough students to fill the desks, Johnson said.

In addition, efforts like these keep students on campus when they would otherwise go to a community college to take courses or to enroll in an independent learning course.

Discussions of combining services and resources between the two districts began about two years ago when Northville Superintendent Leonard Reznierski and Novi Superintendent Emmett Lippe began meeting on the issue.

School board members voiced support of the idea.

"Basically, we serve the same community. So this really makes sense," Secretary Jean Hansen said.

"I am very supportive of these activities," President Bob McMahon said, "because what we're really talking about is increasing opportunities for kids."

Other ideas the principals hope to implement in the future include offering a joint advanced placement economics course at Northville, joint testing dates for Michigan Educational Assessment Placement and state proficiency tests to offer students alternative dates to take the required tests, creating a joint non-traditional language program, a joint half-time performance from the marching bands at the Northville/Novi football game and a joint athletic and band boosters pregame get-together.

Parents and students do not have to wait until next year to see positive results, however, as the two schools have collaborated on some significant projects already this year.

The principals concentrated on downplaying the rivalry between the two schools during the Northville/Novi football game, where the teams battle it out for the coveted Baseline Jug.

The competition was the first time in years that there were few problems after the game, Miller said.

"It was the first time that we didn't have to hire somebody to watch our buildings and our grounds," Miller said.

"Nothing happened but good stuff all week."

This year the schools' pom pon squads performed together during the half-time show, and the athletic directors, football teams and cheerleaders and pom pon members met for breakfast before the game. The jug was also presented to the winning team in the locker room after the game by both athletic directors.

All of those features of this year's competition helped to heal rifts between students, which Johnson characterizes as being a "black eye" for Northville in the past.

"I never heard so many comments from parents about what a great idea this was and how much fun their kids had," Miller said.

Other collaborative efforts and programs on which the schools embarked this year include a joint gymnastics team, which placed fifth in the state, bringing in motivational speaker Laurie Stewart, and sponsoring the Chrysler Drunk Driving simulator that came to Northville last fall.

"We hope we can continue on because not only are the kids benefiting, it's been a heck of a lot of fun," Miller said.

Madonna sponsors seminar on overcoming chronic illness

The Chronic Illness Awareness Coalition and Madonna University will host a seminar entitled "Taking Charge: Overcoming the Challenges of Long-Term Illness" on Sunday, May 21, from 1 to 3 p.m. in Kresge Hall on the Madonna campus.

Keynote speaker Irene Pollin, MSW, a psychiatric social worker and author, developed a counseling program which is currently being offered by Harvard Medical School. She also serves on the National Advisory Mental Health Council of the National Institute of Health.

Participants will earn 1.8 contact hours and learn how to preserve the quality of life, plan a productive future, and master the eight most common fears acquired when dealing with an illness in the family. Madonna University offers a master of science in nursing degree in Adult Health: Chronic Health Conditions. The cost for the seminar is $10 for health care professionals and $5 for the general public. To register, call the Chronic Illness Awareness Coalition at (313) 266-2422.

Madonna University is located at I-96 and Levan Road in Livonia.

Novi city official critical after wreck

By SHARON CONDRON
Staff Writer

Novi City Councilman Tim Pope sustained critical head injuries Monday when the car he was driving westbound on Grand River Avenue collided with a semi truck just after 10:30 a.m. in Lyon Township.

Pope was still listed in critical condition at the University of Michigan Hospital at press time Wednesday.

The 31-year-old councilman was taken from the crash site by ambulance to Botsford Hospital. He was later flown to the U-M Trauma Center by MedFlight where he remains in critical condition.

Senator David Honigman, for whom Pope, also works as a legislative aide, was at the hospital Monday and reported that Pope is comatose with "severe brain swelling" and a fracture to the right side of the skull. Although there may be a spinal injury, Honigman said his spinal cord is apparently undamaged because he has movement in his limbs. He has no other significant injuries. But, Honigman said, doctors have been "unable to detect brain activity other than at the most basic and primitive levels."

"Still, we are hoping against hope for a recovery," Honigman said.

Deputy Dave Scott of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department responded to an off-duty state trooper's 9-1-1 call to the crash site. Once on the scene the deputy recognized Pope as the godfather of his son and one of his best friends.

"He's a hard-working, amazing man and individual," Scott said. "He's one of those guys you heard your grandfather talk about. There's so few of his kind left."

He said eyewitness accounts of Pope's driving before the collision suggest Pope may have experienced medical problems prior to the crash.

"He could have had some kind of medical problem," Scott suggested. "Two things make that a potential. One is that a witness following Pope said his driving was non-responsive and he of course has a history of heart trouble. There is the potential he could have been in medical distress."

In September of 1993, Pope had an experimental surgical procedure to replace a congenitally defective heart valve. The councilman was recovering well from the surgery but still on medication.

Another witness to the accident told police the councilman was not speeding, nor driving recklessly, but seemed slow to respond to traffic conditions. At the Napier Road and Grand River Avenue intersection, she told police, Pope nearly rear-ended another motorist who had stopped in front of him.

"He wasn't doing anything irregularly but he appeared non-responsive," Scott said. "He almost rear-ended the driver but responded quickly enough to avoid a collision and continued on his way."

A mile further down the road, 200 feet east of Haas Road, Pope encountered the truck.

The off-duty state trooper who witnessed the crash said Pope crossed the center lane without warning.

The driver of the truck, a 56-year-old Ypsilanti man, was headed eastbound on Grand River when his vehicle hit Pope's on an angle to the passenger side. Pope's 1989 Ford Escort was totaled. Pope was wearing a lap and shoulder belt.

The driver of the truck was not injured, the deputy said.

"(He) did an amazing job of controlling the truck and his speed," Scott said.

The state trooper told police there appeared to be nothing irregular about Pope's position in the car before the accident.

"He wasn't leaning, nor did he appear to be distracted," Scott said.

HEALTH NOTE

HARD FACTS OF SOFTBALL

As millions of men, women, and children prepare for a season of the great American sport of softball, they should be careful not to underestimate the athletic demands and physical stresses of the game. Softball is primarily an anaerobic sport involving short bursts of energy. Without proper conditioning, players run the risk of strained or torn thigh muscles due to the abrupt forceful movements of swinging bats, running bases, and making fielding plays. Proper conditioning for these facets of the game begins with a program of interval training, muscle strengthening, and stretching. Because nearly 75 percent of all softball injuries requiring a hospital visit result from sliding into a base, look into the use of unattached or quick-release bases for your games.

Even if you condition your muscles and limbs for softball and other sports, the chance remains that you may still sustain an injury. If you have a sports-related injury, you will most certainly want to be back in action as soon as possible. Physical therapy can help. Physical therapists are qualified to test and measure the function of the musculoskeletal, neurological, pulmonary and cardiovascular systems. At Northville Physical Therapy & Rehabilitation Inc., we offer individualized treatment programs that focus on returning patients to their highest level of function. For more information or to schedule an appointment, call 349-3816 or see us at 332 E. Main St., Suite A.

P.S. Ask about pre-game stretching exercises for the calf, groin, thigh, hamstring, and back muscles when preparing to play softball.

City millage increase painful but necessary

Northville city residents will probably get some rather unpleasant news come tax time. Their next bills from the city could claim a bigger chunk of the household income due to an expected 4.9 percent increase in the millage rate.

The hike was somewhat of a surprise, as city officials first thought they'd be able to lower the millage by 2.9 percent. However, a snag in the financing scheme for street repairs to Sherrie Lane and Jeffrey Drive forced a change in plans and prompted the city council to propose increasing, rather than lowering, the millage rate.

A truth-in-taxation hearing on the increase, a requirement of law, is scheduled for this coming Monday. Such meetings are usually poorly attended because most people don't understand the complicated system of municipal taxation.

Whether anyone will show up at city hall to object or not, it appears that the millage increase, though regrettable, couldn't be prevented.

The 4.9 percent increase, as it was explained to us, is composed of four new levies: 1.01 mills to finance street repairs to Sherrie Lane and Jeffrey Drive; 0.10 mill for sidewalk repairs (which must be reimbursed by property owners living in a special assessment district that includes a large section of Cabbagetown as well as Sherrie Lane and Jeffrey Drive); 0.08 mill for cost-of-living increases for city retirees; and 0.07 mill to pay legal fees for codification of city ordinances.

The four levies add up to 1.26 mills in new taxes, or, city estimates suggest, a 4.9 percent overall hike.

An increase of 1.26 mills equates to $126 on a home with a taxable value of $200,000, though the restrictions of last year's Proposal A could limit the increase in certain instances.

The three minor millages were optional but only amount to 0.26 mill of the increase. The bulk of the hike, 1.01 mills, will be used to help pay for street drainage improvements on Sherrie Lane and Jeffrey Drive.

The city had originally intended to pay for 79 percent of the upgrades, which include the installation of an edge drain system and the filling of pavement voids, by means of a bond issue. The other 21 percent of the costs would have been borne by residents in the affected areas.

Such a financing arrangement would have kept the 1.01 millage off the books, but a stipulation of state law prohibited the 79/21 split. According to Michigan statute, bond payment for the street improvements could only have been accomplished by a 50/50 split of the costs between the city and the affected residents.

Saddling residents with 50 percent of the burden of the repairs clearly would have imposed an undue hardship on them, forcing city officials to assess the 1.01 mills citywide. Regrettable but necessary.

In spite of the street repair expenditure, much of this year's millage increase could have been avoided if the state simply would settle the issue of race track revenue. Since 1991, the state has proven to be an unreliable source of race track funds, first withholding the entire $900,000 allocation due the city, then later restoring roughly 50 percent of that amount. Future prospects for receipt of race track money, to which host cities are entitled by law, is uncertain, and city officials made no allowance for the money in their income projections when planning the budget.

Budget planning will continue to be difficult for race track cities around the state until and unless this issue is settled. We urge state lawmakers to abide by existing state statute that requires the state to return race track earnings to the cities which play host to them.

History preserved in print

It took a bit of doing but we were able to get a special feature marking the 50th anniversary of V-E Day into today's newspaper.

Lee Snider

In case you haven't already come across it, Page 9 is a reprint of the May 11, 1945, front page of The Northville Record containing news of the Allied victory over Germany in the European Theater.

Press accounts of the historic events leading to the conclusion of the European war can be found in the two columns running down the left-hand side of the document, while local stories about the community's reaction take up the rest of the page.

We're especially proud of the reprint and really pleased that this week's publication date fell on the 11th. Back in '45, The Record came out on Fridays and it just so happens that May 11 of this year fell on a Thursday, our release day now. As a result, we were able to present the reprint 50 years to the day after it originally appeared.

The idea for the special feature came from reporter Jan Jeffres, who has been busy combing back issues of The Record on the microfilm reader here in the office. Jan, along with staff writer Randy Coble, is working on a special 50th anniversary WWII project we plan to run in June, and has been searching for story ideas in newspapers dating back to the war years.

Jan was also responsible for compiling the letters from soldiers that appear on Page 10 of today's paper. The correspondences, written by military personnel at their overseas stations, were published in The Record at various dates from 1942-45.

I think you'll find the letters good natured and quite telling. In their totality, they cover just about every aspect of soldiering. It's amazing how stoic the service people sound, though you have the feeling they were holding back to avoid alarming anyone back home.

We were a little concerned that it wouldn't be possible to do the reprint because we were having a hard time locating the original page. Fortunately, though, we found it in a musty attic at company headquarters in Howell. Several years ago the old bound volumes of The Record were taken apart for microfilming and we were afraid the 1945 book somehow hadn't survived. Luckily, the document was preserved.

The next obstacle we faced was deciding whether the typeface would be readable. In 1945, The Northville Record was wider than it is now, so in order to fit the entire front onto one page of today's paper it had to be reduced. The page was shot at about 80 percent of its original size to get it all in.

The result is tiny lettering, especially in the left-hand columns where, for some reason, the print is smaller than elsewhere; but I think most of it can be made out. In any case, the portions that are readable, I think, more than justify the effort.

The V-E edition of The Northville Record is an authentic piece of local history and I found myself treating it with great reverence while transporting it back and forth between Howell and Northville. The yellowed, dignified leaf gave me a deeper appreciation of the venerable publication of which I'm the editor.

I hope the reprint leaves you with a similar sense of our great heritage.

Lee Snider is editor of The Northville Record.

Fire mystery

A log rolled from the fireplace in this abandoned house in Novi but it was still boarded up from the outside.

Hey patriots - C'mon and pitch in for 4th

Northville's Independence Day parade, the acclaimed traditional event that is much anticipated every year in the area, is in trouble.

A newly-formed committee, Celebrate Northville, is working to make the parade better than ever but is struggling to obtain the funds needed even to stage the centerpiece activity - the parade itself.

The committee has big plans: in addition to the parade, a classic car show, a music concert and a fireworks display are also in the offing. Organizers are hard at work lining up the legions of volunteers and specialists needed to pull off the extravaganza.

If everything goes as planned, the program will fill the better part of the entire day come July 4.

The only problem? Money, what else.

An estimated $19,000 is needed to do everything the committee hopes to do. Fully $10,000 is required to finance the fireworks exhibit, while another $500 is needed just for the concert.

That most people don't realize is that many of those high-stepping marching bands and promenading show people who appear in the parade require payment for their involvement - some get as much as $400 for taking part.

The bill to put on the event can top $4,000.

Last year, the two municipal governments - the township and the city - made matching contributions to the effort and committee members are asking for $2,500 from each government again this year. Committee chair Karen Woodside goes before the township Board of Trustees with her request tonight and before the Northville City Council on Monday.

Our read on it is that the outlook for approval is dubious. What usually happens with these joint projects is that if one government says no the other follows suit. We would, therefore, advise township trustees to look hard for a fund availability before casting their votes tonight.

What is really needed, though, is for civic-minded corporations to come forward and offer their support. So far, BFI has been good enough to grant permission for the use of its resource recovery site at Six Mile and Napier as a staging ground for the fireworks. And Detroit Edison has agreed to pay the printing costs for the posters students at Northville High School plan to design.

But a major funding source is still needed. What better way to make a goodwill showing of community spirit than to contribute to a great annual event commemorating our nation's birthday? This year's theme centers around the 50th anniversary of the end of World War II.

Interested parties are asked to contact Pam Kosteva at 348-7616 (day), or (313) 729-4172 (evening).

Motherhood is a constant Mother's Day is this Sunday. It certainly isn't a day off, but a celebration is definitely in order.

Carol Workens

The first few Mother's Days were exciting for me. I was proud to be a mom but still naive enough not to know what lay ahead of me.

When one is a mother of young children there really is no time off. On the few trips I've taken without them, they were with me in thought. With one phone call they seemed to be standing next to me whispering in my ear, but in an instant they were hundreds of miles away again.

The experience needed for the job is a learn-as-you-go type thing. It's like answering a want ad that reads: "No experience necessary, will train."

No one prepares you for when a very small child comes to you after being put to bed and tells you he doesn't feel well but couldn't make it to the bathroom. So now he has to let you know that he threw up on each of the stairs on the way down.

Or when you wake up startled in the middle of the night because a small silent figure is standing at your side announcing he has just thrown up all over his bed and you let him crawl into yours for the instant replay.

I always thought the first time it happened was a fluke, but when it happened again I figured I had better learn how to do this mother thing or else it was going to get the best of me.

I became a quick learner. As soon as I heard the words, "I don't feel well," with lightning speed and the agility and of a track-and-field hurdler, I jumped over everything in sight to get the bucket. Sometimes there wasn't time even for that and I would just grab the child and head for the bathroom.

When they got older, I told them to go to the bathroom first and tell me about it later.

Thank goodness they are all older now. A rush of memories comes back to me everytime they say they don't feel well. I still have a habit of asking, "Do you think you're going to throw up?"

Another nasty job is laundry. Some wash loads prove financially lucrative, but more often than not I've let out a few screams and quickly pulled my hands out of pockets when I couldn't identify what was in them.

Some "firsts" I could have done without. Like the first time they wandered off in a store or the first time they had to go to the emergency room. Thank goodness for the foot stool that was in there because I almost lost it.

Or the time my oldest, then a toddler, turned around at a restaurant and pulled the tablecloth off the table behind him and everything went crashing to the floor. Just when you think they couldn't possibly think of anything else, they do.

Some firsts are tear jerkers and others are jaw clenchers. I'm glad I experienced the first words and steps, the recitals and bike solos, the rides on the school bus.

The firsts continue not only for them, but for me too. With a dozen years of motherhood behind me, I'm learning to take things in stride.

A hug, or an "I love you," or a little hand that slips into mine when we are on a walk makes it more than just a job.

Motherhood has become a way of life.

Try hiring people-friendly workers

An open letter to the Postmaster of the Northville Post Office

Dear Postmaster:
It has been a community joke for years about the quality of service at the counter of the Northville Post Office. Unfortunately, you have chosen several of the most "unhappy workers" to meet the public I've ever encountered. They have perfected the art of standing with their backs to the counter (in order not to see the lines of customers).

Thursday I went in and requested 700 stamps. I was informed they had only 440. I asked if maybe the Novi Post Office had 260 more. The response I received was no answer at all, as in silence.

As I wrote out my check and received my receipt, I turned around and just happened to inquire if the young lady two feet away might have some stamps in her drawer. The "surly" reply was, "Yes, but you have to get in line at her counter to find out how many she has. My drawer has to balance at the end of the day."

Why couldn't this information be volunteered to this customer? I'd already written a check and received my stamps and receipt. I guess I'm slow, but can you only sell so many stamps a day? I don't want to be best friends with your employees, but truly a smile, nice day isn't it, thank you, or simple information cannot be too much to ask, can it?

When my son was married we weighed the invitation envelopes at your post office and they said the Elvis stamp was fine. I purchased 300 Elvis stamps and returned several weeks later ready to mail. At that point, once again your cheery personnel informed me that yes, indeed, the weight was OK, but I would need more postage because the envelope was oversized.

The only 19-cent stamp was Red Cloud, the old Indian Chief. So ... the wedding invitations were mailed with Red Cloud and Elvis.

We didn't expire from this, but why when I initially went in couldn't they have volunteered that the envelopes were oversized and required additional postage? I didn't think to ask. My mistake! I know now, but, of course, the wedding is over.

It's obvious to me this gentleman postal worker truly dislikes the public and his job. Why couldn't he just be the tiniest bit helpful and volunteer information? By the way, your mail carriers are always friendly and courteous. Maybe you could switch them around since the public really does have to go to the post office on occasion and deal with the counter workers.

It sure leaves a sour taste in ones mouth and I don't mean from licking the stamps.

Linnie Jo Strunk

To the Editor:

U.S. Postmaster

Dear Mr. Runyon:

I read with dismay, in the morning paper, that now dead Richard Nixon's picture will be on our first-class stamps.

I can't imagine why someone who attempted to subvert our Constitution, was responsible for continuing the Vietnam war, resulting in an additional 20,000 dead G.I.s, would be so honored.

Though Hitler was a thousand times more of an evil man than Nixon, I do not believe that the German people would show his face on their postal stamps.

Whose idea was it?

Alfred P. Galli

Bombing was unconscionable

To the Editor:

A founding principal on which our country was created dealt with the premise of "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness," a credo that was put to test on April 15.

The bombing in Oklahoma City was a reprehensible, unimaginable act of cowardice. What could be the logic of people who would consciously perpetrate such a despicable, heinous act?

Innocent men, women and children were maimed and murdered and their only fault was being in the wrong place at the wrong time.

Viewing on television the pain and the suffering that resulted from this utterly senseless act brought tears and, yes, anger. How could anyone precipitate such an act and how and what can be done to insure that such an occurrence never, ever happens again?

It is my belief that death and destruction is not the answer to reconciling divergent viewpoints. The tragedy in Oklahoma City is a grim reminder that we must erase the hate before it is too late.

Higher ed funding needs revamping

One annual spring ritual in Michigan is the squabble over how the $1.3 billion budget for higher education gets doled out among the state's 15 public universities.

With no coherent state policy driving appropriations decisions, the process has become the single most totally parochial donnybrook in Lansing. Legislators pick partisan sides. Those representing Lansing favor Michigan State University, and those from Ann Arbor push the University of Michigan. Or Spartan alumni square off against Wayne State graduates.

But over the past decade or so, a kind of tacit gentlemen's agreement has emerged that put at least the Big Three - U-M, MSU and WSU - at rough parity. If U-M got a 4 percent increase, so too would MSU and WSU.

This year, however, Gov. John Engler surprised everybody by proposing a budget with additional special appropriations of $10.3 million for MSU, $4.2 million for Western Michigan University and $1 million for Grand Valley State University.

The net effect was to pick three winners (each receiving around a 6 percent increase) and 12 losers (each receiving around 3 percent, below the cost of inflation).

Right away, talk erupted of special deals and political deck-stacking. Gov. Engler was intimately involved in picking new MSU President Peter McPherson. Rep. Don Gilmer, who will be a member of the all-powerful conference committee on higher education appropriations, is from Augusta, near WMU's campus in Kalamazoo. And Grand Valley, located near Grand Rapids, benefited from the general west-side-of-the-state tilt of the Engler Administration.

A period of ferocious - even by higher education appropriations standards - lobbying ensued.

Led by Sen. John Schwarz, a physician and alum of both UM and WSU, and chair of the Senate Appropriations subcommittee on higher ed, a compromise proposal emerged last week that would give all universities general increases of 6 percent while maintaining the special outlays for the three winners.

State revenue projections will come out next Monday.

Senate and House leaders will meet with Engler in the middle of next week to set targets for final appropriations.

So the process is getting down to the short strokes.

What is to be made out of all this hullabaloo?

Plainly, Michigan needs a policy-driven way to allocate funds to higher education.

Political arm-twisting is hardly a sensible basis for supporting the great universities on which much of our economic future rests.

The basis can be found in the report of the Commission on the Future of Higher Education in Michigan, published in 1984.

This bipartisan panel, which included former MSU President John Hannah, unanimously recommended a funding system based on twin facts:

- Naturally, the roles and missions of Michigan's universities differ. Community colleges play a different role than general state universities. Research universities do not pretend to do the same thing as regional state colleges.

- So, too, do costs per student. It does cost much more to educate a doctor at U-M than to train a lab technician at Oakland Community College or Schoolcraft College.

The brilliance of the commission's report was to suggest that Michigan's funding targets for each type of university be set by examining how other states support their peer institutions - that is, those with similar roles and missions.

If, for example, other states support their regional colleges at a level of $X per student, this should become a target for state funding in Michigan. Especially at the level of our research universities, where competition for faculty and other resources is national, this method helps Michigan - once ranked 12th nationally (in 1960-61) in its per-capita support for higher education and now 24th (as of 1993-94) - evaluate how much it costs to keep up in the race for brains.

You don't need a Ph.D. in rocket science to realize that once the current funding donnybrook is over, Michigan should adopt a rational system for supporting higher education based on the commission's model

Fieger's ideas removed from reality

Sh-h-h-h. Don't give Geoffrey Fieger this information. It would spoil his dreams and shock him into a numerical reality.

Fieger is a Southfield trial lawyer who makes a living suing doctors and manufacturers who allegedly injure his clients. That kind of law is called "tort."

There is a big movement, nationally and in Michigan, to reform tort law. Naturally, Fieger is against it and professes not to understand the opposition.

The reformers never have proposed that the injured shouldn't be compensated for actual injuries. Those are known as "economic" damages. They include medical treatment, wheelchairs, lost wages and the like. They are noncontroversial.

The controversy is over "non-economic" damages, known as pain and suffering. A state Senate bill would limit P&S damages to $280,000 in police chase cases.

Horrors, says Fieger, chanting the trial lawyer's litany: "Let the jury decide." He goes on to say it's just the insurance companies, not the city or the business or the professional person who must pay.

To test that proposition, let us take a simple but realistic case from the real world. Let's say you and I and eight others are merchants of Venice, and each owns a caravelle, a total of 10. We send those caravelles on trading expeditions to Spain and the Middle East, but Mediterranean pirates get one in 10.

So we decide to share the risk. Each caravelle is worth 10,000 lira, and one won't return. If we each pay a "premium" of 1,000 lira, we have a reserve of 10,000 lira. The unlucky entrepreneur who loses a ship to pirates collects.

Now let's let the plot thicken. Suppose one shipper says his caravelle had 30,000 or 50,000 or 100,000 lira worth of cargo. We have only 10,000 in the pot. The shipper kicks and screams and moans and demands 100,000 lira. The doge's jury says the rest of us must pay. But it's the last time we'll do business with that whiner.

Non-economic damages, or pain and suffering, are much like that. How do we calculate our premiums when we have no advance idea what the damages will be?

That's how insurance works. To calculate each insured's premium, we must have some calculable idea of what the loss might be. It's this concept Fieger professes to be unable to understand, repeatedly and at length, when he hassled the Senate Judiciary Committee last week.

It's a convenient misunderstanding because plaintiffs' lawyers who work on a contingency typically collect one-third of the jury award. (In fairness, I must report Fieger said, "I don't do it for the money any more. It do it because it's right." Yeah, sure.

Remember, the question isn't calculating economic damages. It's calculating "pain and suffering."

Some folks are stoic about pain and suffering. They'll force a smile and pretend it doesn't hurt. They may go off in a corner and bear their wounds quietly, like our poodle who avoided us for two days after he'd suffered a gash in the side of his neck.

Other folks make an operatic production out of it. They can emit melancholy wails that will rip your heartstrings. I recollect a drug addict, a veritable bum and drag on the public exchequer, a man who had forsaken his relatives. When he died, relatives emerged from the woodwork demanding tens of millions of dollars for the loss of the dear, dear departed.

Should pain and suffering be judged, as Fieger would have it, by a jury listening to the sighs and moans of the injured or the survivors? Juries don't calculate actuarial tables. They don't tally how many $7 million sob's, $5 million sob's and $250,000 sob's they will hear in a year. They determine one case at a time. Juries can't judge pain and suffering.

Our lawmakers are moving in the right direction when they say, hey, there's got to be a monetary cap on what a jury calls "pain and suffering."

But don't tell that to Geoffrey Fieger. He doesn't understand these things, by his own admission, and doesn't want to.

TRESSES for DRESSES

There is at least one day of the year when a young lady does not want to have a bad hair day.

With prom night right around the corner, on May 12 for Northville High School and June 2 for Novi High School students, as much thought goes into hair style and makeup as is given to the dress.

The Novi News went to Salone Nadwa and Day Spa recently when a dozen Novi High School students were getting their hair and makeup done for the recent fashion show to find out what's in and what's out in hair this year.

Nadwa Yono chose four girls to do before and after pictures. They are 11th graders Lisa Nitti, Debbie Jones and Erin Leib and 12th grader Sara Cook.

"Glamour is hot now," said Nadwa Yono, owner of Salone Nadwa and Day Spa.

"If the dress has a detailed back or a fancy cut out," Yono said, "you'd want to show it off by wearing the hair up."

"French twists are out. As soon as everyone is wearing that style, it's out," she said.

Long hair that's swept up into a bun is what's in and for really short hair, a wrap bang which ends in a soft wisp on the neck.

"Long hair is more versatile because it can be worn up or down," said Yono, "but gels can give short hair different affects."

Natural curl style is in, which is more of a traditional look, but everything is simple.

Once you've made the decision to have your hair done by a hair stylist, clip out pictures of styles you like.

"It's a good idea to have something picked out," Yono said.

"If you see a top look you like, then see a back and a front you like, it can be put together into one look."

Leib's long thick locks were secured in a pony tail holder before curling with a curling iron to form the ringlets. Cook's shorter fine blond hair sports the wrap bang. Half her hair was teased for fullness and swept up and secured in a coil in back with bobby pins. The bottom of the remainder of her hair was curled into a flip.

Nitti's shoulder length dark brown hair was teased in front for fullness. The back was secured in a pony tail holder for the updo which was accessorized with white beads, which had been threaded onto bobby pins.

"Hair accessories like barrettes, clips, beads, even earrings can be used to accessorize hair," Yono said. "Anything that can be made into a hair ornament can be used."

To create the oversized ringlets on Jones' very thick long light brown hair, a one and a quarter inch size curling iron was used.

When you get home after an evening of dining and dancing, take your hair down, brush it out and take a shower, Yono advised. That will cause a melt down of the gel and hair spray.

MAKEUP

Light, natural, simple and very finished are the keywords when it comes to prom makeup.

"When you're younger you want to look very soft, not harsh," Nadwa Salone's make up artist Jeannie Klotzer said. "The right brushes are a must to help create the look."

An angle brush for liner and brow, a small shading brush for shadow and crease, a medium brush for blush and a large brush for powder are the tools to have on hand when applying make up sparingly. Don't be heavy handed and blend well, cautions Klotzer.

A lot of pinks are being seen for blusher this year and should be applied an inch from the nose and an inch from the hair line. Padding loose powder on top of the blush makes the blush look like it's underneath.

Eye shadows are also using a lot of pinks.

"Brown in the crease and pink on top works with all eye colors," Klotzer said, "it makes blue and green eyes glow and brown eyes warmer."

Brown shadow applied with an angle brush along the lash line instead of the lid will open up the eye.

Line lips with a lip pencil before applying a clear, very shiny and very translucent color, which is also in this year.

Church raised hand to help the Scouts

By DOROTHY NASH
Special Writer

It's like raising your hand when there's a call for volunteers and then continuing to hold it up - the way Janice Church got so involved in Novi Girl Scouts - except that there was no call.

Unless you say it's a call when she wanted her 6-year-old daughter to get into Scouts when the family moved to Novi three years ago, "but they had no leader for my girl."

So she took the four-hour orientation course in Girl Scouts USA and became a brownie leader with two assistant co-leaders, which is what she is now.

In the meantime her son, who is now 7, has got into Cub Scouts, and Janice Church is active there, too. "I'm fundraising coordinator for the pack of 50 boys," she said. She has a 6-year-old coming up, and she'll no doubt be involved with him somehow.

But back to Novi Girl Scouts and Janice Church, who by this time has gone all the way to the local, top as Neighborhood Service Unit Director, in charge of all Girl Scouts in Novi.

"My job is to keep Girl Scouting running here. I'm on the telephone a great deal. When people have problems they call me or when they need something, and I have it, they call."

Just how many adults and co-leaders are there who might call? She counts down the lists and comes up with 10 for Daisy troops, 42 for Brownies, 16 for Junior troops, seven for Cadettes, and two for Seniors.

Then there are money-making cookie and calendar sales. That's more women who dial her number because each troop has a sales manager.

Janice Church meets monthly with leaders. She trains leaders, too.

If you'd like to get into Novi Girl Scouting, call Janice Church at 344-4882.

Designer makes grand entrance at Detroit mansion

The Detroit Symphony Orchestra will host a fund-raiser when it opens the largest private residence in the city of Detroit from May 20 to June 11. Tickets are $15 and are available at the door. Proceeds benefit DSO.

The home at 1808 Wellesly was built by the Archdiocese of Detroit for Bishop Gallagher before being purchased in 1989 by John Salley, a former Detroit Piston. The home is now up for sale.

The mansion is located west of Woodward and just south of Eight Mile Road in Palmer Woods.

The first entrance hall of the 64-room mansion has been designed by Charlotte Kennedy, of A Designers Touch in Northville.

The first entrance hall to the 40,000 square foot home has limestone walls and marble floors. Kennedy has chosen antique drapery panels to set the mood for the color palette of warm gold, red and sage greens.

To further create a feeling of warmth, Kennedy chose a colorful antique rug. The painting technique on the ceiling adds excitement and depth and compliments the architectural detail already present. A beautiful antique Bakhtiari carpet, custom-upholstered taffeta stool and floral arrangements complete the decor.

Kennedy also designed the Bishops' powder room, which is off the entrance, with an English hand painted mural.

"The powder room has a high ceiling but is a long narrow tunnel of a room," Kennedy said. "Tile goes up to five feet high on all the walls so the mural was done three feet above the tile to create interest."

A striking chandelier, Venetian mirror and taffeta sink skirt lend an air of sophistication to the 6 by 10-foot space, while the frog collection on the ledge mixed with crystal and silver is an unexpected surprise.

"It will take a couple hours to tour the house itself," Kennedy said. "Everything you see is for sale. Each room or area will have a docent who will have a list of the items in the room and the prices."

There will also be a cafe in the 4,000 square foot carriage house.

Scouts put their cars to the test

Cars designed by John Fitz, Brandon Fell and Mike Hagedorn raced to first place in the Wolf, Bear and Webelo categories at the annual Cub Scout Pack 903 Pinewood Derby recently.

Each year the Winchester Elementary School Cub Scouts turn a block of wood into individually designed mean, lean racing machines. The event encourages creative individual initiative and parent/son interaction.

Town Hall audience gets the scoop straight from top correspondent

By CAROL WORKENS
Staff Writer

The Northville Town Hall Series closed its season recently with some insider scoop on the O.J. case, the Washington media and retired General Colin Powell.

NBC senior correspondent Fred Francis talked about legal politics, leaks, and a likely candidate for President of the United States.

Francis has been traveling the world as a correspondent for 30 years and had an office in the Pentagon for eight years. He is convinced that the United States has the most accurate and the best informed journalistic community in the world.

"We are richer for it," he said. "Our system is based on openness — that's where the leak comes in."

"The rule for gaining access to leaks is that you cannot mention where it came from," Francis said. "If you don't abide by it you won't be invited back for another leak." Everybody in Congress knows the source of a leaked story and everybody uses it, according to Francis.

"It's the only nation in the world that invites reporters right into its Pentagon and lets them walk the halls," Francis said. "There are only two or three areas off limits unless you're invited in by an admiral or general."

"When you see a story from a Pentagon reporter or a White House reporter that says 'quoting a reliable source,' that story is accurate," Francis said. "Most of the reliable sources ... are the policy makers, the generals, the admirals, the senators, the congressmen who just can't say those words publicly and have their names attached to them."

He went on to say that the "the conventional wisdom of the Washington media stars is so often dead wrong."

"Watch a Washington-based show where media stars get together er and pontificate every week," Francis urged. "Tape the program and play it back six months later. You'll see that almost everything they say is wrong. If they do come true they are so insignificant it doesn't really matter."

"Jean Dixon of the National Enquirer has a better track record."

The media stars control what is heard, seen and read, but they forget to report that what they said last month, or six months ago, was wide of the mark, according to Francis.

After saying most Washington journalists' predictions are bunk, he made a prediction about Colin Powell, whom he has known for 11 years "as an extraordinary man (who) cared about the little people under him the way someone who comes from the very bottom knows how you feel."

"I believe that Colin Powell will run for the presidency of the United States as an independent candidate," Francis predicted. "He will be a true independent, not bound by the platforms of the Democratic or Republican parties, not splashed with the brush that is so often used to paint third party and independent candidates of the past, paint them as radicals or fruit loops."

"A Colin Powell candidacy would excite this nation and give it the kind of hope that can only come from a man with his roots, his history."

The polls show people trust and believe what Powell says, according to Francis.

"After a decade I can tell you the polls are right," he said.

Powell has written a book which will be out in September. He will go on the inevitable book tour around the country for three or four months, but will use it as the platform to speak out, according to Francis.

"When the primaries in January, February and March chew up and spit out all the wanna be's, Colin Powell will enter the race, but he won't go into the primaries," Francis said.

"We as Americans are learning something about ourselves lately — we really want to wallow in the facts, which brings me to O.J.," Francis said.

When he was called six or seven weeks ago and told to cover the O.J. trial he said "Huh, I cover wars."

No war will ever get this kind of coverage, he was told.

"Boy were they right. I can tell there are a lot of closet O.J. junkies out there," he said of the audience. "You lean forward just a little bit more. It's amazing what the camera does to the story, not just factually but visually."

The first time he met Marcia Clark he noticed she was pretty, and had an aura and a nervousness about her.

"When you follow her back to her office you think she has to go look at some legal book," Francis said. "Hell no, she wants a cigarette and she wants it bad. I think the reason they take a court break every hour and a half is so she can have a cigarette."

Simpson is a physically imposing character himself, Francis said.

"What you don't see, coming and leaving, is that he smiles a lot. He plays eye games with people. He smiles to the jurors and he has a real powerful personality."

"If and when he takes the stand, and I think he will, it is really going to be something," he said. "The man knows how to communicate with his body and his gestures, and I think he will be an effective communicator and will finally tell us his story."

Francis says television coverage of the trial leaves a mistaken impression of the judge in the case.

"Judge Ito is different than you see on television. He kind of struts around like a rooster, he snaps at people a lot. He doesn't show that on camera but as soon as the camera is off, he's sort of a different guy," Francis said. "I was surprised by that."

"He is showing the stress," Francis said. "He told other judges that this trial will go to August."

Who has the most intimidating presence of all the case participants?

"Johnnie Cochran is the most imposing person in the courtroom," Francis said. "He has a dramatic personality."

What you don't see on camera, because it is focused on the witness, according to Francis, is Cochran's gestures, his discussions with the judge and his asides with Clark, which are going on all the time.

"You'd think the whole thing is revolving around him, and see this you know the jury doesn't see and that's why he is the lead counsel."

"There are serious divisions among the jurors," Francis said. "Clearly the trial is in trouble."

AMERMAN ELEMENTARY

During the month of May, Amerman will be saying "thank you" to all those who help make this school so special. The week of May 8-12 has been designated Teacher Appreciation Week and special treats and tokens of appreciation are being planned for the teachers around the theme "Amerman Teachers Work Magic." Karen Klimek has done a wonderful job of organizing this special tribute to our teachers.

Also during May, the PTA will be expressing its gratitude to all the parents and volunteers who worked so hard this year to help organize and run the various PTA programs.

A special luncheon, coordinated by Nancy Riegner, will be held May 16 for all volunteers. Mrs. Frayne's second and third grade class will provide the entertainment and the teachers will provide the desserts. The luncheon will be catered by Pizza Cutter. We hope all the volunteers who worked so hard this year will be able to join us.

Amerman is proud of fifth grade student Liz Thomas who recently won second place in Visual Arts at the state level of the PTA sponsored Reflections contest. Congratulations Liz!

Dr. Anderson recently announced that second-grade teacher Mrs. Arlene Frayne has been recognized by the Metro Detroit Science Teachers as an Outstanding Science Teacher. Congratulations Mrs. Frayne!

With warm spring weather approaching, Bike Safety and Helmet Day is just around the corner. On May 23, Ellen Cornelius has arranged for a bike safety assembly and any student who brings his or her bike helmet to school will receive four tickets to the Ice Cream Social.

On June 1, Amerman will host a Retirement Open House in the Media Center from 4-6 p.m. for retiring teachers, Mrs. Gayle Fountain and Mrs. Cheryl Mallette. Anyone who would like to wish them well in their retirement is invited to attend.

Amerman PTA is honored to have recently received two awards from the Michigan PTA. The first is an award for 100 percent school staff membership and the second is for 100 percent PTA membership. Congratulations and thanks to all the families and staff who make Amerman PTA so wonderful.

The annual Ice Cream Social is Friday, June 2, from 5 to 8 p.m. This year two new attractions will be available in addition to the usual games, cake walk, moon walk, and dunk tank.

For the older students an Orbition will be added and for the younger students, pony rides will be offered. Nancy Riegner, Linda

Jones and their committee have done a great job organizing this event and we hope to see lots of families and students there having a good time.

The annual PTA Flower Sale is under way and beautiful flowers will be delivered May 18 thanks to the hard work of Marianne Tomasik and her committee.

New PTA officers have been elected for next year. Nancy Riegner will serve as president, Vicki Searly will serve as vice president, and Debbie Hayes and Abbie Holden will return as treasurer and secretary respectively.

We would like to thank departing President Barb Slubowski, and departing Vice President Cindy Atkinson for two years of hard work and dedication. Don't forget to vote in the election for school board members on June 12.

The last PTA meeting of the year will be Tuesday, June 6, at 9:30 a.m.

WILLIAM ALLAN ACADEMY

The month began with a favorite event — spring Open House and Family Night. Students enjoyed the company of classmates after parents viewed examples of the diligent work that has been done over the last months.

Teacher Appreciation Week began May 8, with treats each morning for the staff and a special luncheon hosted by the parents Monday afternoon. The parents are happy to have the opportunity to thank the talented and dedicated staff for their work throughout the year.

Students in grades four and five had an opportunity May 9 to obtain a very personal perspective of events of World War II when Mr. Ken Wilcox, a veteran, came to speak to the class.

May 11 will find the Tuesday/Thursday preschoolers hosting a Mother's Day tea at the school, a much anticipated event for the smallest William Allan Academy students!

Monday/Wednesday/Friday preschool students also will be taking advantage of the school's proximity to Maybury Park with a nature walk on May 15.

Prospective kindergarten parents had an opportunity to meet staff and visit the school from 2-3 p.m. on May 5, followed by Kindergarten Round-Up on May 26, at 10:45 a.m.

After the Honors Choir performed last month at Allen Terrace, it was learned that an Allen Terrace resident had attended William Allan many years before, during the time it was a one room school. Staff and students were pleased to extend a special invitation to Mrs. Angel to attend a tea at the school on May 24 and welcome her back.

The Northville Township Fire Department will bring their firehouse display to the school on June 2 in an effort to reinforce fire safety for grades one through five and to practice fire drills.

Lastly, the parent group is planning an old fashioned picnic on May 21, from 2-6 p.m., at Maybury Park, complete with activities and a picnic food. Tickets are $10 for adults, $8 for children over three.

New comedy act in town

Timothy Campos brings his original comedy routine, Trapped in the Rubber Room, to Genitti's Little Theater on May 13 for one night only.

Campos wrote and performs the dozen characters, including Eric the Librarian, Bongo boy, and Larry the Neighbor.

Larry the Neighbor begins and ends the show.

"He's the neighbor that won't leave you alone and tells very personal stories of his life," said Campos.

"Eric the Librarian is the last person you'd expect to work at a library," Campos said. "He complains about his job and doesn't know the first thing about the library."

A student of theater at Henry Ford, Campos plans to attend Wayne State University in the fall.

Campos is no stranger to Genitti's stage, having performed Nautical Nonsense and The Not So Okay Corral. He has also appeared in a few children's shows.

Trapped in the Rubber Room was written last year and has been performed at Trinity House Theater in Livonia.

Genitti's Little Theater is located at 108 East Main Street in downtown Northville. Reservations for dinner and the 75 minute show, call (810) 349-0522.

A film for the entire family

'A Little Princess' focuses on relationship between father and daughter

Raised in the distant jungles of India, a young girl lives in a world filled with luxury, magical tales, exotic experiences ... and the adoring love of her father.

But when she comes to New York to enroll in the strict boarding school that her late mother once attended, the girl finds the realities of her new life insufferably grim. Then suddenly, using only her will and imagination, she finds a way to bring the magic of her childhood from India into every corner of Miss Minchin's School for Girls.

Released by Warner Bros., "A Little Princess" is the charming story of the power of one girl's spirit to change her life and the fortunes of those around her. It is based on the beloved novel written by Frances Hodgson Burnett, author of children's classics including "The Secret Garden."

Sara Crewe (Liesel Matthews) is a wealthy, precocious and loving child. When her widowed father, Captain Crewe (Liam Cunningham) is called to war, Sara is sent from the carefree environs of her home in India to a strict New York boarding school — under the stern, disapproving stewardship of its headmistress, Miss Minchin (Eleanor Bron).

Sara must use her inner resources of warmth, imagination and principle to overcome hardship when she suddenly is informed that her father has been lost in battle and that she is penniless and alone in the world.

"A Little Princess" is produced by Mark Johnson and directed by Alfonso Cuaron in his American debut.

Producer Johnson first read Frances Hodgson Burnett's "A Little Princess" nearly six years ago and was immediately taken with the story. Executive Producer Amy Ephron had brought the children's classic — a book that had been a childhood favorite in her family for generations — to his attention at about the same time Johnson and his wife adopted a little girl.

"I thought it was a wonderful story," said Johnson. "It's very much about the relationship between a daughter and her father, which is an important relationship for me and for a lot of people."

Johnson had never produced a family film before and found the prospect an intriguing challenge. "I wanted it to be a truly family film, not just one for little children," he said.

"There is a remarkable lack of sentiment in the way children were viewed at the time of the First World War — they were expected to behave like little adults, although they were often put in situations over which they had no control. Those circumstances make Sara's story even more powerful, both to children and adults. It's my hope that families will be able to watch this movie together and enjoy it."

Johnson also noticed few films being made with young girls as protagonists and was attracted to the idea of developing this story. "I thought it would be a wonderful legacy for my daughter. It's important for girls to see examples in movies and books as well as in real life of other girls who can be strong and resourceful. I thought that this story, in particular, capitalizes on the inner strength of Sara Crewe and how it rewards her and many of those she encounters."

Brought in to direct the film was Alfonso Cuaron, a talented young director from Mexico who is among the fresh new wave of filmmakers making their presence felt in Hollywood. Cuaron said he wanted to make the film after reading just 20 pages of the script. He, too, was moved by the relationship between Captain Crewe and his daughter Sara and found similarities in his own relationship with his 10-year-old son.

"I think the movie is about the power of magic, and for me it's very important because I've been learning that there is not such a difference between magic and reality," said Cuaron.

For Sara Crewe, magic is life. Growing up in India with the tradition of storytelling and mythical legend handed down to her from her Indian nanny, Maya, Sara comes to America with a highly developed imagination and a sense of a greater power watching over her.

At Miss Minchin's School for Girls, Sara transforms the lives of the other girls at the school.

She shares with them the stories that Maya told her, wins their friendship and leads them to the knowledge that all little girls are indeed special ... all girls are princesses.

However, after her father is reported dead and she is sent to live in the attic, even Sara begins to question the truth of her beliefs.

"Sara's a girl who takes magic for granted," said Cuaron. "But after her father is presumed dead, she loses faith in the storytelling and magic. Through the course of her ordeals, she eventually discovers that the magic is inside her."

Sara (Liesel Matthews) says goodbye to her father Capt. Crewe (Liam Cunningham) in Warner Bros.' family film, 'A Little Princess,' based on the classic novel by Frances Hodgson Burnett.

'Roommates:' A movie that deals with families

Peter Falk provides humorous touch

ROOMMATES
By Cindy Stanisz
South Lyon

When I received free passes to go see the movie "Roommates," I didn't know I would be in for such a great time.

It stars Peter Falk (Columbo) and D.B. Sweeney (The Cutting Edge) as a grandfather and grandson growing older, each taking care of the other.

The story shows a gradual progression of the relationship between Falk and Sweeney, proving that even though they are inseparable physical, they are never emotionally.

The major credit to this movie has to go to Falk for most of the movie's humor and how he conveys to us the true meaning of commitment and values.

I went back and saw "Roommates" (this time I paid) just because in a world full of movies that contain unnecessary violence, it is nice to sit down to an old-fashioned movie that deals with the one constant element in all of our lives — family.

“I was very impressed with the quality of care in the emergency department when my daughter, Alexis was treated for an asthma attack. Alexis was treated like a person first — not like a number. There was a real feeling that this was a community hospital.”

PAMELA BELL
Southfield resident

“Our partnership with Botsford General Hospital has resulted in heightened awareness on quality of life issues in a most non-threatening way. With health maintenance as the center piece, families learn a lot about health in a positive environment.”

MANDI SKEEGAN
Community Relations Director • Farmington Area YMCA

“Botsford's involvement on committees, such as Partnership in Education and Novi Focus Health Week, has increased chamber activity. They have set a great example for business involvement and have truly taken a leadership role in our community.”

PAT WEBB
Novi Chamber of Commerce • Chairman of the Board

“The role of a physician in the community extends beyond treatment. The modern day physician should take the time to discuss the patient's personal matters, which ultimately impact their health. It is important that the physician is involved in health education in the community. Also, the physician should encourage patients to be responsible for their own health.”

LESLIE P. ARROYO, D.O.
Director • Botsford Family Health Center, Livonia

“The relationship that the law enforcement officers from Farmington Hills have with Botsford Hospital, in particular the Emergency Department staff, is outstanding. The Hospital's participation with community work groups such as the Commission on Family, Youth and Children and the Crime Prevention Board speaks to their active presence and commitment to our community.”

WILLIAM J. DWYER
Chief of Police • Farmington Hills

“Botsford General Hospital is one of our strongest partners in promoting heart health in the community. From educational events for school children to nutrition programs for seniors to follow-up care for cardiac rehab patients, Botsford General Hospital offers the community a variety of ways to learn about the prevention of heart disease.”

KAREN E. KOTILA
Regional Director • American Heart Association, Michigan Affiliate

“Botsford provides outstanding events and services in our community. Some of these include: various classes for patients, expanded services such as the new Emergency Department and outpatient surgery, health assessments, knowledge of leaders in various fields of medicine, and senior housing for maintained independence.”

JODY SORONEN
President • Farmington/Farmington Hills Chamber of Commerce

“As a volunteer member of the Botsford family, I have enjoyed being able to continue to contribute to my community by helping other people. I have also expanded my group of friends through ElderMed. The club's events have provided me with valuable information on a variety of topics.”

DORIS SHEETZ
Redford resident • Botsford volunteer & ElderMed member

“Businesses and hospitals must become partners to share concerns, resources and solutions. Having a common, on-going commitment to communication and programs is also essential.”

Mustangs third at WLW-hosted Stafford Relays

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

The Mustang track team found the Stafford Relays to their liking Saturday.

Northville High finished third at the 13-school meet with 51 points. WLAA rival Plymouth Salem won with 68 points and North Farmington was second with 58.

"The team we took up there competed the whole day," coach Chris Cronin said. "I think it was exciting for the girls."

The coach was happy to take third for a couple of reasons. Northville finished ahead of division rival Churchill and also ahead of Novi, which beat the Mustangs earlier in the season.

"It was nice to see," Cronin said. "Novi beat us handily."

Out of 12 events, Northville placed in the top six 10 times.

The Mustangs started the meet off by winning the discus relay. Renee Olin, Jenny Sekerka and Aubrey MacFarlane combined to throw 267-feet 10-inches.

That same group took sixth in the shot put at 79-11. Tammy Cook, Missy MacRae and Mary Essary were fifth in the high jump at 13-3.

A time of 23:41 got Northville second place in the medley relay. Laura Brown, Adrienne Browne, Lisa Armstrong and Monica Nayakwadi competed on that team.

In the sprint medley, Carrie Dalziel, Sarah Goshorn, Katie Rompel and Jenny Platukas finished fifth. The 800-meter relay team of Platukas, Poole, Rompel and Dalziel were third.

In the distance race, Northville was third with Brown, Browne, Nayakwadi and Amity Heckemeyer (13:54). Nicole Weyer, Dalziel, Poole and Rompel won the 400-meter race in 52.39.

"Overall we had a really good meet," said Cronin. "We continued to run well."

NORTHVILLE 92, LIVONIA FRANKLIN 36

The Mustangs completely dominated Thursday's home meet. In uncustomary fashion, Northville led early after the field events.

"We got out early," Cronin said. "It's an amazing thing what momentum can do for you."

Smooth Sailing Netters crush Salem, take aim for WLAA crown

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

Baring a major upset, Northville High will take its fourth straight WLAA tennis title this spring.

The Mustangs stayed undefeated Friday and beat the second-best team in the conference, Salem, 7-1 on the road. Northville, now 8-0, has just three Western Lakes duel matches left.

Coach Dick Norton said his team shouldn't have any trouble beating those three. As for the Rocks, he was a bit surprised.

"I thought Salem would be tougher," Norton said.

Friday's win was Northville's 49th straight. "I've had a few undefeated teams," said Norton, who has been the Mustang coach for more than 20 years, "but nothing like this."

The only downside to the thrashing of Salem was the loss of top singles player Matt Schwagle. Recurring knee problems forced him to retire in the second set of his match with Xianling Li.

He had won the first set. Norton said he was unsure when the senior would return to the lineup.

Northville breezed through the remaining matches.

"He played extremely well, He hates to lose."

DICK NORTON
Tennis coach

Dave Anderson whipped Gabe Burnstein 6-1, 6-2 at second singles. Norton said he's very encouraged by his play of late.

"He played extremely well," he said, adding that Anderson's competitive nature makes him tough to beat. "He hates to lose."

Mike Bush took an impressive three set win over Matt Potter. He dropped the first set 6-3 then charged back 7-5, 6-2.

"It was a good win for Mike," Norton said.

Ganesh Nayakwadi closed singles play with a 6-2, 6-4 win over Dan Gordon.

Vik and Arjun Srinivasan were 6-4, 6-4 winners over Regis Buckley and Jason Gourley at No. 1 doubles. Nick Sriraman and Ravi Mujumdar, who normally plays singles, won in two sets as well.

Rahit Jha and Ryan Steinhauer won all but one game in a sweep of Jon Moran and Pat Chun.

"They've turned into a steady No. 3 doubles team for me," Norton said.

Jared Cramas and Desmond Liang won in straight sets to close the match.

NORTHVILLE 7, LIVONIA STEVENSON 1

The Spartans were supposed to be the other challenger to Northville's league dominance. But, it didn't turn out that way Thursday at home. Only an injury to Mujumdar kept Northville from sweeping Livonia.

Schwagle played as well as he ever has at top singles. He beat Mark Findling 6-1, 6-4.

"He's one of the better players in the conference," Norton said of Findling.

Anderson had no trouble with Chad Crosby (6-1, 6-1). Mujumdar injured an arm midway through his match with Kosta Mijajlovski and fell 6-1, 6-0.

Bush took care of Neil Karwande 6-2, 6-1. Northville swept doubles.

The Srinivasans won 6-1, 6-0 over Ben Gaffield and Brian Snyder. Nayakwadi and Sriraman won in straight sets, too.

Jha and Steinhauer didn't lose a game at third doubles. Cramas and Liang beat Mike Schmidt and Ryan Winkler 6-2, 6-2.

Kickers beat Falcons 1-0

By SCOTT DANIEL

Back on track.

The Mustang soccer team moved above .500 Saturday by beating Farmington 1-0 at home. Coach Doug Lyon was expecting a tough game from the Falcons and got one.

"They tied Canton," he said. "That was a big goal for them."

The coach said Farmington also had his team in its sights. Despite that fact, the Mustangs controlled the contest all the way.

"We kind of dominated," Lyon said, who added that the score could've been lopsided with a little luck. "We had five shots hit the post."

Northville improved to 6-5 overall. The Mustangs are behind Canton and Livonia Churchill in the Western Division standings.

The game's only goal came late in the second half.

Katie Kohl collected a rebound about 18 yards in front of the Farmington net and then booted it home. The goal came with about 13 minutes to go.

Besides Kohl, Northville got good offensive performances from Kristen Wasalaski and Sue McQuaid. Kristin Baja and Lisa Bernardo were solid on defense.

Goalkeeper Jessica Jones went largely untested in the game. She did, however, make a dandy stop in the second half, Lyon said.

The coach said he feels good about how his team is playing right now.

"We've gotten over our bumps," Lyon said. "We're happy they're getting back into focus and having a good time."

NORTHVILLE 6, WESTLAND GLENN 0

The Mustangs made a trip to Westland Friday evening and came home happy.

While it was an easy win, Lyon said John Glenn, which is playing varsity soccer for the first time, wasn't bad.

"It's going to be a good program," he said. "They have some talent."

Northville led 2-0 at the half. McQuaid and Baja scored in the first 40 minutes.

Kristy Greer, Kate Riebling, Amanda DeKoker and Wasalaski added second half goals.

Jones and Meghan Cauzillo combined for the shutout in net.

Tracksters fifth at Observerland

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

Even when you do your best, sometimes it's not enough.

That was the case for the Mustang boys' track team Saturday. Northville ran exceptionally well, but finished fifth at the Observerland Relays.

Coach Dennis Faletti was very excited by his team's performance.

"All of our performances were good," he said. "We won three events. That's the most we've ever won."

If that doesn't sound impressive, it was. The Observerland meet is one of the best in the area each spring. Plymouth Salem walked away champions with 69 points while Detroit Catholic Central was second at 56. Northville had 48 points for fifth.

"It wasn't our highest placing," said Faletti. "But the performances were the best we've had. The kids exceeded what I thought they would do."

It was the meet's 25th anniversary. Faletti said that was nice because top-notch medals were handed out for each event.

Northville opened the meet by finishing sixth in the long jump with a combined total of 55 feet one-half inch. Farb Navi, Anthony DeBenedet and Eric Moore competed for the Mustangs.

Ty Fowler had a personal best of 11-6 in the pole vault. Northville failed to place in the event, however.

In the 6,400-meter relay, Dwight VanTuyt, Jason Abbot, Tim Schovers and Jim Armstrong were sixth in 20:05. Northville was third in the 800-meter with Chris Gomersal, Moore, Pat Gordon and Navi.

Jeff Zwiesler, Sean Hollister, Scott Lloyd and Todd Zayti won the 3,200-meter relay in 8:11.6. As it stands, that's the fastest time any team in Northville's region has posted this year.

"I think we can get closer to eight minutes," Faletti said.

In the 100-meter dash, Navi took fourth place in 11.3. He ran a blistering 10.9 in the semi-final.

The Mustangs were third in the sprint medley. The team of Jason MacIver, Jim and Tony Clemens and Gordon finished in 3:23.7.

Northville got its second victory in the 400-meter relay. Gomersal, Moore, Kersey and Tony Clemens posted a time of 44.7. That's less than a second off the school record.

Faletti said he believes several school relay records

"It wasn't our highest placing. But the performances were the best we've had. The kids exceeded what I thought they would do."

DENNIS FALETTI
Track coach

will fall this spring.

"I think we can break all of them," he commented.

NORTHVILLE 89, LIVONIA FRANKLIN 48

The old saying in track is that in order to do your best you've got to face the best.

The Mustangs didn't face the best Thursday at Franklin. It showed in how the team ran, said Faletti. "We won," he added, "but we didn't have great performances."

The Mustangs were good enough to win most events.

Bernie Tomsa finished second in the high jump. He cleared 5-6.

Matiss Kukainis threw the discus 110-9 for second place. The Mustangs swept the long jump with DeBenedet, Navi and Moore.

The team of MacIver, Jon Woodsum, Hollister and Lloyd took first in the 3,200-meter in 8:42.6. The Mustangs got another sweep in the 100-meter dash with Moore (11.8), Aneil Kersey (11.9) and Tony Clemens (11.9).

A time of 1:35.7 got the Mustangs a win in the 800-meter relay with Gomersal, DeBenedet, Gordon and Navi. Zwiesler won the mile race in 4:51.8.

Gomersal, Moore, Kersey and Navi combined to take the 400-meter relay in 46.4.

MacIver ran a 52.1 race in the 400 for first place. Josh Minard was third in the 300-meter hurdles in 46.5.

In the 800-meter, Lloyd ran a 2:03.5 for first. Gordon led a sweep of the 200 dash (23.7).

VanTuyt finished the 3,200-meter in 10:45.5 and won. The team of Gordon, MacIver, Zwiesler and Zayti finished first in the mile in 3:37.3.

Cedar Point trip planned by city

By SCOTT DANIEL
Staff Writer

As the student population in Northville is well aware, it's almost summer vacation time.

What better way to kickoff the season than a trip to Cedar Point. Once again, Northville Parks and Recreation is sponsoring a trip to the fun capital of Ohio.

This year's jaunt will take place June 16. According to department supervisor Nickie Ross, space is limited.

"We're limited to about 185 kids," she said. Last year, about 200 youngsters made the trip. Sixth to eighth graders are eligible.

"We'll leave the community center about 7:30 a.m.," said Ross, "and return about 11:30 p.m."

The supervisor and about a dozen other adults will chaperone. Ross said the Cedar Point trip has become a tradition in town.

"It's been going on for quite awhile," she added. "It sells out every year."

Registration begins May 15 and will continue until all 185 spots are filled. Costs for residents and non-residents vary.

Northville residents pay $44. Ross was unsure what the price would be for non-residents.

The fee includes an admission ticket for Cedar Point and deluxe motor coach ride. Movies will be shown on the trip down.

So go and test the "Raptor" and "Mean Streak." For more information or to register, call 349-0203.

Computer use can lead to eye problems

Tim Kirk

When computers first became prominent in the workplace, many concerns about possible health threats emerged, ranging from cancer to miscarriages. The computer screen, known as a cathode ray tube (CRT) or video display terminal (VDT), is the main suspect. Research shows that VDTs emit little or no hazardous radiation such as X-rays, ultraviolet rays or electromagnetic fields.

Eye complaints are the most common health problem reported by computer users. To make sure that the VDT isn't just aggravating an underlying visual problem, begin with a thorough eye examination. Correcting your vision could not only help you at work but with driving and leisure activities as well. Once visual problems are addressed, correcting equipment set-up and office lighting can add to your comfort and productivity.

Computer use can present an unnatural work environment for our eyes and body. This is because we are often staring at our computers for long periods without adjusting the distance or focus.

The eye muscles relax when focusing on something far away and contract when focusing on something up close. Your eyes - and the rest of your body - depend on variety and movement to stay relaxed and fresh all day. You wouldn't want to pick up a heavy object and carry it around for hours without setting it down, would you? You can give your eyes and body much-needed variety by briefly looking away from the screen every 15-20 minutes and walking away from your desk every hour or two.

The concentration level used when operating a computer slows our natural blink rate. This, coupled with the heat of the hard drive and typically dry office air, tends to yield dry-eye symptoms. It sounds funny, but just remembering to blink more often will help the situation, as will placing a small humidifier in the office during the heating season.

Your work station ideally will be designed for computer use. A desk that is 26 inches high, as opposed to the average 29-inch height, allows a more natural reach to the keyboard and puts the top of the VDT at or below eye level. It is helpful to use a document holder, which places your text at the same distance as the screen (20-30 inches is best) if you frequently look back and forth.

Proper lighting is also important to reduce eye strain. Office lighting should equal the screen brightness (20-70 foot candles). Generally, most offices are lit at about twice this level. Fixing this situation may be as simple as removing a few bulbs from overhead fixtures, turning your workstation so your back isn't to a window or closing the shades.

If you suffer from computer glare and you can't change the room lighting, a glare screen can be installed on your VDT. The American Optometric Association Seal of Acceptance indicates the screen meets stringent glare reduction standards.

The VDT should be set for high contrast and brightness. Be sure to keep the screen clean of dust and fingerprints, too.

Advice needs to be tailored to individual needs. People come in all sizes, so a 26-inch-high desk may not be ideal. Keep in mind, however, that if you input data for hours, you'll be more sensitive than a casual user.

Measure the distance from your eyes to the VDT to help your optometrist prescribe the proper lenses if you should need glasses. Bifocal lens-wearers have additional needs that must be addressed. Different lens treatments, such as anti-glare coatings, tints, and variations of invisible bifocals, all can help when properly prescribed. A pair of reading glasses set for your VDT distance are often the best cure for heavy users.

For a free handout showing the ideal workstation dimensions call (810) 347-7800.

Baseballers beat Westland John Glenn 4-2 behind Buser

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

Pitching is the name of the game in baseball. And so far this season, the Mustangs have been defined by their excellent pitching. Saturday's 4-2 road victory over Westland John Glenn was a prime example.

Brian Buser continued his mastery on the mound by scattering seven hits over six innings and striking out six Rockets. Coach Mickey Newman continues to be impressed with his No. 3 starter.

"He's given us quality innings against good teams," he said.

Indeed, John Glenn has spent some time in Class A's top 10 this spring.

But then Northville has been shutting everyone down. The Mustangs have a team earned run average of 1.28.

"The pitching staff has been unbelievable," Newman

"(Brian Buser) has given us quality innings against good teams."

Mickey Newman

said.

The Mustangs moved to 8-4 on the season by beating Westland.

The third inning was Northville's big one at the plate. With the game tied 1-1, the Mustangs scored three runs.

Dave McCulloch knocked in Nate Kirmis and Ryan Rettman with a double. He later scored to make it 4-1.

John Glenn scored a run off Buser in the sixth. Tom Willerer pitched the seventh for the save.

FARMINGTON HILLS HARRISON 5, NORTHVILLE 2

Friday's home game ended early.

Newman was ejected in the third inning. Without an assistant to manage the team, the game was stopped with the Hawks ahead.

NORTHVILLE 1, FARMINGTON 0

The Mustangs' solid pitching carried them on May 3 at home.

Tim Smojver, Rettman and Kay Yoshida combined on a one-hitter. Northville didn't allow a hit until the seventh.

The Mustangs' lone run came in the second. Jason Wenzel walked, stole second and scored on a single by Nate Forney.

NORTHVILLE 5, SALEM 2

Willerer threw the gem on May 2.

He allowed two Rock runs over the first two innings.

Willerer then shutout the Rocks until the sixth inning when Buser came on in relief.

Northville broke a 2-2 tie in the sixth. McCulloch led off with a double and then scored on a Jason Rice single.

Kyle Hitchcock then brought Rice home on a single. The Mustangs added an insurance run in the seventh. Willerer went 5 1/3 for the win. Buser picked up a save with 1 2/3 innings of shutout ball.

NORTHVILLE 5, WALLED LAKE WESTERN 2

The Mustangs started the week off on May 1 with a road victory.

Northville scored four times in the fifth to take command. Rice had a two-run double and Willerer a two-run single in that frame.

McCulloch opened on the mound and pitched into the sixth for the victory. Yoshida closed out and earned a save.

Softballers fall 2-1 to Hawks

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

Winning respect is sometimes just as important as winning the ballgame.

Northville didn't beat Farmington Hills Harrison Friday on the road. But the Mustangs did earn some respect in a 2-1 setback.

Coach Frank Friemund said his team battled until the end.

"They're the best team in the conference," he added, "and they beat us 2-1."

After weeks of sloppy play, Northville turned it around last week. The Mustangs played much more solid defense and were in most every game, despite only winning once.

"We are playing a lot better now," Friemund said.

Harrison actually no-hit the Mustangs Friday. Erin Lacosse, a lefty, blanked Northville and missed a perfect game by a couple of walks.

The Mustangs led most of the game despite Lacosse's efforts.

In the first inning, Melissa Petrosky walked and later advanced to second on a fielder's choice. She scored on an error.

Farmington Hills got both of its runs in the sixth inning. A pair of hits followed by a passed ball and sacrifice fly got the runs home.

WESTLAND GLENN 4, NORTHVILLE 2

For the first time in a long time, the Mustangs didn't make any errors. But it still wasn't enough to beat the Rockets Thursday at home.

John Glenn scored three runs in the third inning and another in the fourth. Westland then held Northville off to get the victory.

The Mustangs rallied with a pair of runs in the sixth. Jenny Sheehan knocked in a run with a single and Petrosky scored on an error.

Andrea Moretti pitched well in the loss. She struck out eight and gave up eight hits.

"We did play well," Friemund said.

FARMINGTON 8, NORTHVILLE 6

The May 3 road game looked like a win for the Mustangs.

Trailing 4-2 in the sixth inning, Northville fought back to take the lead. Moretti singled home a run while Michelle Menghini and Jenny Cooley added run-scoring hits to put their team up 5-4.

Michelle Menghini has seen some time on the mound for Northville this season.

Farmington, however, came up with four runs of its own in the bottom of the frame and took the win.

"We played good defense," Friemund said, "but we made a couple of errors that cost us the game."

Sara Roth and Moretti paced Northville with two hits each.

SALEM 7, NORTHVILLE 5

Despite drawing 13 walks, the Mustangs couldn't hold off Salem on May 2.

The Rocks' big inning came in the fifth. Salem scored four runs on three hits and a pair of walks to take the lead for good.

NORTHVILLE 5, WALLED LAKE WESTERN 0

The Mustangs got their first and only win of the season May 1 at home.

Great pitching on Moretti's part was key. She allowed just one hit, no walks and struck out seven.

Friemund said both he and his team were happy to get their first win.

"They were really relieved," he added.

Northville tallied six hits and stole eight bases. Petrosky had two hits.

The Mustangs scored four runs in the second inning to break the game open.

Golfers top Salem in rain-shortened match

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

Not even the elements can slow down the Mustang golf team.

Northville High nipped Plymouth Salem 175-178 at Braeburn Golf Course Friday. If those scores sound exceptionally low there's a good reason.

Play was halted because of a violent rain storm with both teams short of completing nine holes. Coach Trish Waldecker said she and Salem coach Jim Stevens agreed to end the match and count scores to that point.

Both squads had played the same number of holes.

"It was a coaching decision that was made then and there," Waldecker said.

Monica Prasad and Heather Nix were the only two Mustangs to complete their rounds. Prasad shot a 56 and Nix a 51.

Jennifer Dixon was at 51 and Lindsay Casterline at 45 with two holes to go, and Kiley Mills stood at 41 with three remaining.

Northville closes its duel meet season Monday with Livonia Churchill. The conference tournament is on May 16.

HOME DESIGNS

The Spanish-style Leyland deserves a second look

By James McAlexander
Copley News Service

Rounded arches, wrought-iron railings, brick detailing and a barrel tile roof invite passers-by to take a second look at the Leyland, a midsize contemporary Spanish home with four bedrooms and a roomy library/loft. This family home is designed with both privacy and gathering spaces in mind.

A huge family kitchen is at the front. The kitchen sink looks out across the small covered porch, and the sun-filled nook extends into the side yard. All of the appliances necessary for food preparation are close together and a walk-in pantry provides ample storage. Range and oven are right next to an appliance center that's nestled into a corner over the dishwasher.

Washer and dryer are hidden behind pocket doors in the nook. And you can unload groceries in the garage and carry them directly into the kitchen. Entry and living room have high vaulted ceilings. A bridge at the top of the stairs overlooks both. Stairs to the optional basement are below the ascending staircase. If the home is built without a basement, a coat closet can fill this space.

Sliding glass doors in the dining room open onto a skylit covered deck, ideal for outdoor meals.

The master suite is the only bedroom on the main floor. A novel three-section bathroom is designed to allow three people to use it at once, all in complete privacy. It has a private water closet, central tub/shower combination, and second toilet and lavatory that accommodates the living quarters. An identical bathroom arrangement serves the bedrooms on the second floor.

Both the master suite, on the ground floor and the guest suite, on the second floor, have walk-in closets. Bedroom three, upstairs, has a bay window that makes a cozy location for a window seat. The library/loft has built-in shelves and offers a central location for the family computer. It could be outfitted with easy chairs, a couple of desks, or a long table where kids could do their homework together.

For a study plan of the Leyland (333 220), send $9 to Landmark Designs, c/o HomeTown Newspapers, 323 E. Grand River Ave., Howell, MI 48843. (Be sure to specify plan name and number when ordering.)

THE

by Jane Benskey
Special Writer

Imagine the tranquil sight and sounds of a water garden. The reflection of moving clouds against the satiny-smooth water surface, the gentle stirring of plants in the breeze, the soothing trickle of a small waterfall and the occasional visit edge by a bird or butterfly.

Sound like a scene from a nature conservatory or botanical garden? How about your own back yard?

Gardeners in droves are discovering one of the newest trends in gardening: the water garden.

For years, gardens were the sole province of the affluent upper crust who had money to construct them and the "help" to maintain them.

But in recent years water gardens have become more accessible to the common folk thanks to affordable prices, increased availability of products, improved technology and easier installation for do-it-yourselfers. As a consequence, the popularity of water gardens has surged.

Just how popular? This spring alone water gardens have been "the" topic among the gardening set from features in gardening magazines to exhibits at many home and garden shows.

At the Ann Arbor Flower and Garden Show held this March, the theme was "A Little Water Music," and water garden displays abounded.

There were water garden exhibits at the International Builders Home, Flower and Furniture Show also held last month. The recent Livingston County Home Show also featured water garden displays as well.

Millford's Spring Market Days scheduled for May 13 and 14.

Joan Monforton, a master gardener who served as the horticultural chairman at the Ann Arbor Flower and Garden Show, said all forms of gardening, including water gardening, have become immensely popular as people look to nature to provide a source of serenity in our stressed lives.

"Water gardens are a very relaxing atmosphere for your yard. To come home from work and just sit and hear the water fall, it's an extremely relaxing and enjoyable sound," said Monforton. "And to watch — just to sit and observe — it's a place of quiet and meditation."

Monforton, a Brighton resident, had a water garden at her previous home in Waterford, and the sounds of the water garden, located just outside her and her husband's bedroom, would lull her to sleep each night.

"I felt like I was out camping," said Monforton.

Because she enjoyed her water garden so much, she has already begun planning a new one at her Brighton home.

GARDENING

Stop dumping on America! That's the message for the '90s as the country faces the biggest environmental crisis in its history.

Think of this: Nearly one-third of the existing municipal landfills will be completely full in the next five to seven years. And, what's more, some states, including New Jersey, Florida and Minnesota, have already banned the disposal of leaves and other yard wastes in incinerators or landfills.

Relief will come in composting.

Composting is the process of turning organic materials such as leaves, twigs and grass cuttings, as well as coffee grounds, eggshells and vegetable scraps, into humus, a rich soil nutrient.

Finished humus or compost is one of the best soil conditioners around. A healthy dose of humus enables sandy soil to retain water and nutrients, and helps clay soil drain and breathe. It also releases nutrients slowly and steadily so they don't burn or harm plants.

Humus stimulates the spread of beneficial organisms, such as earthworms which are constantly at work improving soil structure and fighting disease-bearing bacteria. Keep in mind earthworms and bees are nature's busiest workers — they never stop.

Even novice gardeners can produce compost throughout the year. So, for best results, follow my simple guidelines to convert big piles of refuse into little piles of compost.

Start with the pile. A compost pile can be located on the ground or contained in a simple enclosure. Be sure to place bins on a well-drained spot that is shaded from direct sunlight. If the bin or pile is uncovered, put a sheet of plastic on top to keep out excess moisture, which slows decomposition. Punch holes in the plastic to allow air to enter.

Feed your pile a balanced diet. Use mostly plant matter; don't add meats, fats or dairy waste, all of which will slow composting.

Shred material before composting. Chop materials or put them through a shredder. Your pile will decompose faster. It also creates more surface area for hungry

Cleaning and preventing growth of moss

By Gene Gary
Copley News Service

Q. Last year I noticed a little moss growth on the shingles of my roof. This unsightly growth now has spread over a large area.

I am concerned that it will damage the shingles. How can this be treated? If possible, I would like specific information so I can clean the roof myself. Also, what steps can I take to prevent future growth?

A. Moss and mildew love a moist climate, which makes this problem prevalent in Southern states. A roof that is not draining well after a rain and a lack of sunlight and ventilation to dry the rooftop contribute to the problem.

It is more than a cosmetic problem, because moss and algae growth on a roof can promote decay in the basic structure.

If it is just mildew, regular household bleach will remove the residue. If the discoloration on your roof is green in appearance, it likely is a fungus growth.

The first step to a dry, moss-free roof is to inspect the area and make sure that excessive shading by nearby trees is not contributing to the problem. Branches that overhang the roof and block out sunlight should be removed. This sometimes requires a professional tree trimmer who can selectively thin the branches so that sunlight can filter down to the roof deck. This thinning of treetops also can open the space for better ventilation of airflow across the roof, aiding the drying process.

Inspect the roof for leaves, twigs or other debris, particularly in the spaces between the shakes or shingles, and obstruct the water runoff. Vegetable debris, such as leaves, acts like a sponge on the roof surface, soaking and holding moisture in cracks or gaps between shingles, in valleys of the roof and behind chimneys.

Most of the debris and moss growth can be removed with a stiff broom or brush. Do not use a wire brush — it can damage the surface granules that protect the asphalt base of asphalt shingles, or cause rust spots on wood shingles. The use of a power washer may be best for the removal of debris and general dirt and grime, prior to scrubbing the shingles with a stiff brush to remove any remaining moss or mildew residue.

If mildew is the cause of growth or discoloration, a solution of household bleach diluted with water (4 parts water to 1 part bleach) should be used. It is best to apply this solution near sundown and let it work without evaporating too soon. Don't rinse.

Moss or algae removal may require a stronger solution. You can use a solution of 1 cup trisodium phosphate (available from paint dealers) 1 cup detergent and 1 quart household bleach mixed in 3 quarts water. Allow the solution to soak for approximately five minutes before scrubbing. Rinse with clear water.

A commercial product recommended for this problem is Safer's Moss & Algae Killer, which has soaplike ingredients and is sold in easy-to-use spray bottles as a concentrate to be applied with a calibrated hose-end sprayer.

Whichever solution you select, try a test application in a small area to check for discoloration of the shingles.

To provide ongoing protection, you can install a strip of metal that is 97 percent pure zinc. These easy-to-install strips are applied continuously along each side of the roof ridge line, and below any point that interrupts the flow of rain water from the ridge line — i.e., chimneys, dormers, vents.

As rainwater washes down the roof, it picks up zinc from the strip, and the zinc inhibits the growth of moss, fungus and mildew. Zinc resists corrosion for long-term protection and, unlike other metals, will not bleed, rust or discolor. These metal strips extend the lifetime of roof shingles and should last the life of the roof.

One such zinc strip product is called "Shingle Shield," manufactured by Chicago Metallic Corp. For information, phone (800) 638-5192, ext. 317.

Investment opportunities available in Mexico

By James M. Woodard
Copley News Service

The recent economic crisis and political changes in Mexico are creating new real estate investment opportunities for foreign investors. And many are taking advantage of current market conditions, particularly those in the United States, Canada and Germany.

The North American Free Trade Agreement, the devaluation of the peso and a more "foreigners are welcome" attitude by political leaders are creating a strong buying incentive with north-of-the-border prospects.

One of the most popular communities for North American buyers is Cuernavaca, about an hour and a half drive south of Mexico City. Its ideal climate, picturesque setting and international ambience has made it popular with foreigners and Mexican families.

The capital of Morelos, Cuernavaca (pop. 232,360) is nearly a mile above sea level, with a year-round temperature range of 65 to 74 degrees.

It is a favorite weekend getaway city for people from Mexico City — like the appeal of Palm Springs or Santa Barbara to weekenders from Los Angeles, or the Hamptons to New York City escapees.

About 5,000 North Americans now live in Cuernavaca, and that number is steadily growing, according to Barbara Waugh, who manages Barbara Waugh Properties. Because of the area's popularity, housing prices are not cheap — the current market range is from $100,000 to $21 million.

Waugh's firm has an inventory of 20 residential properties that are priced at more than $1 million. Most home sales are all-cash transactions. Mortgage rates are high in Mexico, and few banks even offer mortgage loans.

North Americans can purchase and own property in their own name in most of Mexico. Near the coast and borders (within about 30 miles) the property must be owned by a Mexican bank trust or private Mexican corporation. But that restriction soon may be lifted.

Most foreigners seeking a home in the Cuernavaca area request a Mexican colonial-style residence, Waugh said.

REAL ESTATE

"Considering recent developments in the United States, I think we're going to have a real estate boom here," Waugh said. "Like San Francisco, there's no more land in Cuernavaca. With ravines going through the city and the surrounding mountains, there's just no more buildable land, and that keeps the prices high and in an upward trend."

Waugh, originally from Austin, Texas, has been in the real estate business in Cuernavaca for 20 years. She started her brokerage business with seven agents. Now there are about 200. Most of her sales are to North Americans.

Q. Are homeowners still being ripped off by con artists who offer to bail them out of possible foreclosure situations in exchange for taking title to their home?

A. Yes. Such schemes have become a serious national problem, affecting many homeowners who hold a mortgage in default — those who face the danger of foreclosure and loss of their home.

Here's how it works: An individual or company will approach a homeowner in financial trouble and offer to persuade the lender to accept a partial settlement of the defaulted mortgage and stop foreclosure proceedings. To do this, the homeowner is first required to transfer title to the property to the third-party company making the proposal.

Few lenders will have anything to do with this type of company. And the homeowner suddenly finds himself in more serious problems.

A warning letter recently was sent to key lenders throughout the country from Fannie Mae, a congressionally chartered company and the nation's largest buyer of existing home mortgage loans. It states: "We are aware of companies that are taking advantage of declines in real estate values in some parts of the country by soliciting borrowers whose properties have a current market value of less than their mortgage indebtedness."

"These companies promote their service as a way for borrowers to be relieved of their mortgage obligation without having to go through foreclosure or bankruptcy proceedings, thus damaging their credit rating and incurring any tax liability related to the cancellation of the debt through the simple process of executing a grant deed to the property and paying a fee."

"When the third-party company gains title to the property, it contacts the lender saying no more payments will be made on the mortgage and offers to market the property if the lender will take a payoff of less than the outstanding debt.

"Lenders should turn these companies down cold. The lender should make it absolutely clear to the borrower that the transfer will not be acknowledged and that foreclosure proceeding may be initiated against him or her should the lender become aware that the property was transferred to the third party."

Questions may be used in future columns; personal responses should not be expected. Send inquiries to James M. Woodard, Copley News Service, P.O. Box 190, San Diego, CA 92112-0190.

Enrich your soil for best results microorganisms to dine on.

Layer your pile. Build your compost pile in layers, watering each pile as it is completed. Start with 2 or 3 inches of coarse materials such as twigs, cornstalks or straw to let air reach the bottom of the pile.

Next add 3 to 6 inches of organic materials. Continue layering the pile until you reach a height of about 30 inches.

Turn the pile. Composting needs air, so don't forget to turn the pile every two to seven days. The turning of the pile allows you to add more dry and shredded green matter.

Keep the pile moist but never soggy. A handful of compost feels about the same as a squeezed-out sponge. If you keep the pile damp and turn it every few days, you'll have compost ready to use in six to eight weeks.

Gardeners who compost kitchen debris and yard waste (leaves, grass cuttings) are safely returning it to the soil. It's an environmentally wise alternative to sending garbage to overflowing landfills. With composted soil, you'll have a much healthier garden in which your plants will thrive.

DISCOVER THE PRUDENTIAL ADVANTAGE!

owner of Brien's Lawn Service in Milford, has begun to see more of a demand for water garden installations. He enjoys water gardens so much he plans to build his own this summer.

Worrell said he was at a trade show recently looking at exhibit after exhibit with just passing interest, until he found himself pausing at length at a water garden listening to the "very soothing" sounds.

Years ago water gardens were constructed of concrete or lead and required professional installation. With the development of hard-shell PVC preformed liners or flexible vinyl liners, installation can be easily handled within a weekend (or two) by do-it-yourselfers.

Before you begin any digging, put safety first and check with your local township or city for regulations on the depth of the ponds. Some areas may require yard fencing if the pond is over a certain depth to prevent mishaps with neighborhood children.

Along that vein, Worrell suggests that if you have young children, it may be a good idea to delay plans for a water garden until they are older.

Also check on local electrical codes for requirements on installation of the electrical source for electrical pumps, filters or underwater lights should you use them.

If you are doing it yourself, Monforton recommends starting small, adding that the pond does not have to be big to make a dramatic impact. What really makes a pond work is how well it fits in with the natural landscape.

"Make it natural looking in the landscape... so it doesn't stand out like a sore thumb. It should be part of the landscape," Monforton said.

When selecting an area for your water garden, make sure you choose a level spot that will not receive any runoff from the surrounding area. Also, the soil should be well-drained, not soggy because wet soil may heave the pool during a heavy rain.

If you want to grow water lilies and other plant life, locate your water garden in an area that will receive a minimum of six hours of sunlight a day.

The hard-shell PVC preformed liners, available in several different sizes and depths, are very durable and constructed to withstand the sun's ultra violet rays.

Liners are available at garden centers and at some area landscapers like Worrell's business in Milford and at Leppek's Nursery in Brighton.

Leppek Nursery Manager Dick Von Tersch says Leppek currently carries four models priced from $165 to $195. In addition, customers can special order from a selection of over 10 other styles at Leppek's.

For those not inclined to do-it-yourself projects, both businesses also install water gardens.

While the preformed ponds seem to be the most popular, some people may prefer flexible liners, which allow you to design your own shape or to make the pond larger.

After installing the liner and adding water, place rocks or flagstone around the edge of the pond to hide the edges of the liner and to give the pond a more natural appearance.

Now you're ready for the fun part: adding plants and fish.

Plants and fish work together to balance the water, keeping it clean and clear. After adding plants first and then fish (even snails, toads and frogs—but no turtles), it may take up to 60 days for your pond to reach a natural balance. Once it reaches that point, all the elements of the pond will work together to help keep the algae growth, as well as insects, under control.

Plants you can use for the pond include submerged grasses, which help oxygenate the water, deep water plants like water lilies, which help provide surface coverage and prevent loss of oxygen; and marginals like cattails or water lilies planted along the shallow edges, which soften the edges of the pond.

Give the pond a couple weeks to stabilize before adding fish. In terms of how many fish to add, the rule of thumb is one fish for every two square feet of pond surface. Too many fish will disrupt the oxygen balance and will affect the water quality.

Prior to releasing fish, like goldfish or Japanese Koi (if your pond is large enough), Monforton advises setting the bag that contains the fish in the water for an hour or so. This will help the fish slowly acclimate to the change in water temperatures.

Water gardens are not maintenance-free, but with the right balance of plants, fish and in some cases filters, either mechanical or biological, maintenance doesn't have to be a time-consuming hassle.

After all, that's one of the reasons water gardens have made such a splash, they provide a calming antidote to the hassles of everyday life.

Artist's talents spur a family business

By GRETA PICKLESIMER
Special Writer

Margaret Inglesfield had a talent worth sharing, a talent for painting and drawing that she wanted to share with the world, so long as her family didn't sell the originals.

Before her death in 1992, family members gathered with Margaret to discuss how others could see her work. She suggested making some of the prints into cards.

After her mother-in-law's death, Sheryl Inglesfield and some family members began researching paper stock, printers and gallery needs. About six months later, with the bulk of research done, the family decided to print the first card, titled "The Grist Mill." Thus MargieArt, a Milford business, was born.

"We all wanted to do something to remember her," said Sheryl Inglesfield the marketer and manager of MargieArt. In addition to distributing the Margaret work, Sheryl promotes the work of 17 other artists, marketing for people who know little about how to do it, or just don't have the time.

Art was Margaret Inglesfield's passion, said Sheryl. She also loved to travel. Her paintings, drawings and pastels were inspired by her many travels.

One of the last paintings Margaret did was inspired by a trip to Hilton Head Spring in South Carolina. Because it was one of her last, it was one of the first three lithographs released by the family.

"It had the right colors for what was going on at the time," Sheryl said.

After landing Margaret's work in 16 galleries in Michigan, South Carolina and Florida, Sheryl started getting calls from other artists wanting her to market their work.

"It's very time-consuming for artists to market their work," she said. "We have artists from Canada, California and Florida also."

Currently, she totes flyers, photos and work from 17 artists, most from Michigan.

"That's actually more than I wanted," she said. "It's hard to turn them down when they come to you."

She said the business is, "going OK. We'd like it to go better. We thought everyone would be knocking down our door when we started."

"We learned that galleries don't buy large numbers of prints at a time, but we're encouraged by what we have been selling," Sheryl said.

And the vision for MargieArt remains the same.

It's a way for us to remember her and share the beauty of what she did with others," she said.

Locally, Margaret Inglesfield's work can be found at Main Street Art in Milford, (810) 684-1004, and at Jo-John Galleries in Waterford, (810) 673-3033. Those interested can also contact Sheryl Inglesfield directly at (810) 684-6538.

Enhance Your Landscaping with beautiful

Grade "A"

Eucalyptus Mulch

■ Eucalyptus Mulch has a beautiful deep red color that adds a visually striking accent to any landscape. Due to the natural oils in the wood, Eucalyptus keeps its color longer than other mulches. ■ 100% Pure Grade A Eucalyptus Mulch is shredded not chipped with no sawdust or junk mulch ever mixed in for filler. Shredded mulch binds together, stays in place, and will not wash or blow away like chips. ■ The natural oils in Eucalyptus serve as a deterrent to insects. Pests such as fleas, ticks, roaches and aphids just don't like it at all. ■ Eucalyptus Mulch is completely pre-dried. Our generous 2 cubic foot bag will go further and last longer so the user gets all of the exceptional benefits it provides at a surprisingly reasonable cost. ■ Since landscaping is designed to beautify an area doesn't it make sense to use a beautiful mulch? He is a member of the International Association of Business Communicators, the Direct Marketing Association, and the Ann Arbor Ad Club.

MICHAEL VERVILLE

eral sales categories last year and set an all-time record in the number of new life insurance policies issued in a single year.

A former teacher and coach in the Novi Schools and Michigan Wrestling Coach of the Year three times, Gardner has been serving Oakland and Livingston counties as an agent since 1983.

He is a charter and 1994 qualifying member of the President's Council, reserved for agents who excel in both life insurance and property-casualty sales. His 1994 honors also include qualifying for several other top sales clubs: The Leaders for Life Masters Clubs, the Century Society, and the All American and Executives Clubs.

For eight years he has been a member of the Million Dollar Round Table, an international association of the world's top life insurance producers.

Gardner and his wife, Carol, have four children.

If paying your premium is the only contact you have with your insurer, your homeowners' policy may not be up-to-date. Certain circumstances in your life may necessitate changes to your policy. The Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants advises you to contact your insurance agent if any of the following scenarios apply to you.

REPLACEMENT VALUE

Most standard homeowners' policies allow you to choose replacement cost coverage for your home and its contents. This provision means you would be paid the full cost of replacing your home and its contents up to the limit of your homeowners' policy. CPAs say without this coverage, your insurer has the option of repairing a damaged item or replacing that item with another one of lesser quality.

When you elect replacement cost coverage, you also have the option of obtaining an inflation guard that automatically raises your coverage, and your premium, each year to keep up with inflation. Even if you take advantage of the inflation guard, you still need to determine if your home's value increased faster than the automatic increases built into your policy. For example, your home's replacement value may have risen sharply if you made expensive improvements or if real estate values in your area have outpaced those in the rest of the country.

LUXURY ITEMS

Standard homeowners' policies, and even some top-of-the-line policies, set relatively low limits on the basic coverage of "luxury items," such as jewelry, furs, silverware, or

Review your insurance annually

Money Management

even electronic equipment. If you recently purchased a high-priced valuable, consider adding a rider or floater that specifically covers that item. Issued either separately or as an endorsement to your regular policy, a rider or floater covers the insured item up to a designated amount. To purchase additional protection, you'll probably need to provide your insurer with a copy of the bill of sale or an appraisal of the item you want to insure.

HOME OFFICE

Many property casualty insurers have responded to the rise in home offices by automatically including $5,000 of coverage for computer equipment and business property in homeowners' policies. Should you need more coverage, you generally can raise that amount to $10,000 by contacting your insurance agent and paying a small increase.

If you run a home-based business, your homeowners' liability policy will not protect you from business-related liabilities. If you want coverage for your home-based business, you'll need to purchase a separate business liability policy.

DO YOU PROTECT YOUR HOME?

A centrally-monitored alarm system may qualify you for a significant insurance discount. Other devices that make your home safer — such as smoke detectors, dead-bolt locks, motion detectors, or an inside sprinkler system — may also qualify you for lower rates. Some companies offer reduced premiums to retirees whose increased presence in the home reduces the risk of burglary. Other safety discounts may apply if all the occupants of the home are nonsmokers.

A HIGHER DEDUCTIBLE

It's time-consuming for insurance companies to process small claims, which is why policies with low deductibles are disproportionately expensive. If you decide that you can afford to pay for small mishaps and need to rely on your insurance only for the bigger ones, you may save money by raising your deductible. CPAs advise opting for the largest deductible you can most easily afford.

CORRECT DATA

Many factors affect the cost of your homeowners' policy, including the type of construction of the home, its total square footage and its location. The type of fire department (paid professional or volunteer) in your area and the distance from your house to the nearest fire hydrant or water supply are also factors into the cost of coverage. Check your policy to be sure your insurer is working with the correct facts in determining premiums.

You can't always prevent a disaster from destroying your home, but you can protect your investment and save money by keeping your insurance coverage current. CPAs advise you to review your homeowners' policy at least once a year, and select an insurer that offers low prices and quality service.

Water-efficient garden can be lush and healthy

By Nikki B. Godfrey

Copley News Service

With drought-prone states legislating water conservation and environmentally minded folks in every region realizing how much we abuse Mother Nature, xeriscaping — the art of landscaping in a dry climate — may become the desired gardening method of the '90s. But maintaining a water-efficient garden doesn't have to mean cactus-filled sand beds and no lawns.

Water-efficient gardening can be achieved with attention to such basics as soil type, plant type, use of mulch and shade, irrigation and by recycling rainwater. Obviously, the climate zone you reside in will direct much of how you design a garden to be most water efficient. But with a little planning, a garden in any climate zone can increase its water efficiency.

First, know your soil. Sara Jane von Trapp, author of "The Landscape Doctor" (Chapters), says, for example, clay is a good retainer of moisture, whereas water goes right through sandy soils, which is good for drainage but may require frequent watering unless plants are of the desert succulent variety. Soils can be adjusted to accommodate a variety of plants, but von Trapp recommends working with what you have, instead of facing the task of upgrading and maintaining the soil in an entire yard.

When it comes to choosing water-efficient plants, consider native and drought-resistant varieties. However, von Trapp warns of varying definitions as to what constitutes a native plant.

"Some states are legislating the planting of only native vegetation, but this is born out of stupidity," she says. "Plants that came from elsewhere and have thrived in a region for decades may not be considered native."

The best advice is to look at plants growing in your area that are doing well, are healthy and don't show signs of stress, such as yellowing, insect infestation and disease.

"Talk to local certified nurserymen for solid, professional information on what plants and lawn grasses do well in your area," von Trapp says.

University land-grant colleges and master gardening programs are also a good source of knowledgeable advice. The key to remember when choosing grass for the lawn is not to use high-fertility grasses that require lots of water. Again, seek advice from local professionals and consider using less-thirsty ground cover instead.

Once the appropriate plants and vegetation are planted, don't forget the mulch, a mandatory ingredient for a water-efficient garden. Not only does mulch placed around vegetation reduce water evaporation, it also guards against cold-weather damage and helps prevent weeds from setting down roots. Von Trapp advises against using a black plastic lining under mulch. Instead, she recommends using 2 to 3 inches of bark mulch that lets water slowly drain down to the plants.

Shade is also a friend of water conservation and should be incorporated into landscape planning wherever possible. Thomas Jefferson once wrote, "Shade is the Elysium of a hot-climate garden."

In "The Garden Problem Solvers" (Simon & Schuster), author Catriona Tudor Erler suggests utilizing the natural shade provided by broad spreading trees, or consider building a lath-covered structure made of slats that allows enough light to grow flowering shade plants while keeping patio space and lattice walkways cool.

Irrigation has become perhaps the most important consideration in these times of environmental consciousness and water conservation. Sprinkler heads and hoses that wastefully water pavements and only part of the thirsty ground are frowned upon. This has meant good business for manufacturers and suppliers of drip and trickle systems, by far the favorite of most landscape professionals.

It is said that on average people overwater by almost 50 percent, but a good drip irrigation system can cut water usage by as much, if not more.

Drip and trickle systems use flexible plastic piping and drippers that can be hidden beneath flower beds, under shrubs and even run through planters and window boxes. The drippers allow for the slow and efficient delivery of water directly to a plant's roots, precisely where it's needed.

DIG Corp., the forerunner in drip irrigation, points out that drip systems expend just 1 gallon of water an hour, instead of the gallon-per-minute ratio of water-wasting sprinklers and hoses, making drip cost effective as well as water efficient.

Retaining and recycling natural irrigation is, obviously, the most cost effective way to water, provided free from Mother Nature. Von Trapp still recommends an old-fashioned rain barrel situated to catch rainfall and runoff from gutters and eaves. Existing water resources available on your property can also help a water-efficient garden.

Von Trapp says, "Indicator plants tell a story of underground aquifers" that can be your best natural water resource by guiding your plans as to what and where to plant.

Depending on the area in which you live, some drought-tolerant plants include: eucalyptus, jacaranda, oleander, poinsettia, pomegranate, sumac, yew, grape, wisteria, aloe.

Check with your local nursery to choose the best plants for your garden.

Making a child's room a castle

By Lee Littlewood

Copley News Service

As a man's home is his castle, so should a child's room be his or her castle or palace, tepee or abode. After all, a child is the one who spends more time there than anyone else, so his or her room should be special and personal.

In fact, today's decorating professionals advocate letting children take the lead in the designing process — putting them in charge of their own spaces. If kids invest time in creating their rooms, they'll be more likely to invest time in cleaning them and will feel proud of their decorating skills and happy in their familiar, comfortable surroundings.

"No way," you must be thinking, "if my kid designs his room, it'll look like a mix between a locker room, a barn, a World War II bunker and Batman's cave. I'll design it and put cute little bunny wallpaper up, flowers on the nightstand and Monet prints on the walls."

Wrong. Your job as a parent is to direct and act as a supporting cast. Your child should be the implementer, even if he or she is only 3 years old. A child's room is not just a place to sleep, but a gallery of artwork, accomplishments, favorite toys and books, a club to entertain friends and a den of discovery.

So where do you find the tools you need to help your budding interior designer along? The following books will help:

- "In My Room: Designing For and With Children" by Antonio F. Torrice and Ro Logrippio (Fawcett/Columbine).
- "Rooms to Grow, Creating Rooms and Furniture for Children" by Jane Cornell (Homeowner Press).

- "Ideas for Great Kids' Rooms" (Sunset Books).
- "Children's Rooms, A Mothercare Book" by Jane Lott (Prentice Hall).
- "Designing Rooms for Children" by Mary Gilliatt (Little, Brown).

Tim Allen-inspired handymen and women can get ideas and guidance from a helpful book titled "Kids' Furniture You Can Build" by David and Jeanie Stiles (Chapters Publishing). This workbook offers creative projects like cribs, loft beds, computer centers, portable storage wagons, tables and kiddie kitchen centers that are fun, functional and affordable.

Those of us not so handy can still help decorating with paints, wall borders and treasures found at flea markets, garage sales, kids' warehouses and department stores.

"Mary Engelbreit's Home Companion: The Mary Engelbreit Look and How to Get It" (Andrews and McMeel) offers a look at some absolutely adorably whimsical nurseries and older kids' rooms that feature some purchased items and some hand-painted or home-decorated furnishings. Greeting card and gift book designer Engelbreit's enchanting and cozy look is perfect for children's decorating. In fact, these are some of the most attractive rooms around — not too "cute" yet wonderfully nostalgic and beautiful.

One way to cut the costs of elaborate and expensive children's furnishings is to buy or make items that will "grow" with the child. There are many cribs on the market that convert to daybeds. Play tables can serve as desks later on, supply trolleys full of Power Rangers or Barbies can turn into stereo or computer carts, and modular storage systems can be expanded with time.

By avoiding custom or fad designs, you also can ensure that your furniture will last and won't go out of style. The best bed, for instance, is a twin or captain style with drawers underneath. Trundle beds and loft beds are also great because they maximize floor space.

Other ways to make sure your tyke has plenty of playing room is to hang shelving units and to get laminated bins, wicker baskets, boxes or even toy chests with lids that can double as play tables when closed. Believe me, a child's stuff multiplies with each year of life, presenting quite a challenge to keep it from looking like clutter.

If your children share a room, the key is to create a space that reflects their different personalities. Twin beds can be angled and you can assign separate play areas, bookcases, storage units or folding screens to help define the different spaces. Color can also be used to delineate space by painting half the room one color and the other half another color.

Finally, each child should have his or her own drawers and closet areas, hopefully putting an end to those nasty sibling fights before they begin.

You and your child, armed with information and guidelines, can now be partners in a satisfying decorating process that will yield a castle fit for a king or queen — or even a successful junior interior designer.

Junior's empty room

By Lee Littlewood

Copley News Service

After all the challenging and wonderful years of parenting, your little one has suddenly grown up and flown the coop. This act produces more challenges than how to deal with the empty-nest syndrome.

One big challenge is what do you do with that coop now that it's empty. The temptation is probably there to keep it as a shrine to Junior, leaving everything exactly as it was when your little angel was home — leaving his swimming ribbons and school pennants on the walls and his skateboard in the corner.

Experts, however, agree that it's healthier to move on and change the room according to your household needs.

You'll probably want to leave a sofa bed or daybed in the room for visits, but the rest of the furnishings can be changed to accommodate the remaining family's lifestyles.

The following are some ideas for turning your grown child's bedroom into a new mecca for the entire family's enjoyment:

- Entertainment room/den. Is your living room crowded with stereo equipment, CDs, videos and magazines? Why not turn the spare room into a fun place to unwind, relax or listen to music?

- Sewing room. That poor sewing machine stuck in a corner of your bedroom would love a room to call its own. And there'll be plenty of space left over to lay out patterns and material.

- Office. Even if you don't have "official" work to do at home, having a separate office for clipping coupons, writing letters and paying bills would help anyone become more organized.

- Storage space. Who doesn't have overflowing closets and overpacked shelves? Install lots of bookcases, boxes and baskets in the extra room and voila, you have extra space for all those things you can't bear to part with.

- Playroom for grandchildren. If your kids have kids, child-proof the room, add toys and kid-size furniture to create an instant playroom always ready for visits from the little ones. Added bonus: This saves wear and tear on the rest of the house and limits your cleaning to one room.

Create a splashy bath without getting soaked

By Elizabeth Scheibner

Copley News Service

Until recently bathrooms were the most neglected rooms in the house. Their function was strictly utilitarian, which meant that little thought was given to how they looked.

Fortunately, today's baths are as much about comfort and luxury as they are about practicality. In fact, for most of us, the bathroom is the one place where we can truly relax and get away from all the day-to-day hassles.

If you've toured any new homes recently, you know that many of the master baths are now as large (or larger) than the bedroom itself. Many of today's baths feature a walk-in closet, private dressing area, twin sinks, a separate lavatory, a private sunken tub and a separate shower. While this may seem extravagant to some, for others it's a godsend.

No matter how large or small your bath, there is plenty you can do to spruce it up without spending a fortune. Adding simple touches such as wallpaper, wainscoting or a new shower door can transform an otherwise ordinary bath into something spectacular — while at the same time adding to the resale value of your home.

Because the bathroom still tends to be one of the smallest rooms in the house, you need to plan carefully before embarking on any type of improvement — no matter how simple or extensive the changes.

The tendency most people have is to overdecorate, which can make even a moderate-size bathroom seem crowded and small. Be as creative as you want in your decorating, but keep in mind that you're working with a limited amount of space.

Experts suggest that if you plan to enlarge your bathroom you work out an arrangement beforehand using a scaled floor plan showing where all the fixtures will be. Your best bet, of course, is to consult with an architect or professional designer who can help you avoid costly mistakes down the road.

There are clever ways to create an illusion of space in your bath, such as using pale colors or adding mirror paneling. Using the same color on the floor, walls and tub also helps magnify the space. If your bathroom adjoins a bedroom, you may want to follow the same color scheme in order to create a feeling of continuity.

One of the easiest and least expensive ways to enhance your bathroom is by adding decorative touches such as hand-painted ceramics, ornate or antique jars and embellished towels. If you have extra wall space, you can make a picture gallery by grouping a collection of framed prints or old photographs.

For an old-fashioned look, dress up a vanity with pretty soaps, lotions, bottles and dried flowers. For a contemporary look, add laminated cubbyhole shelves and fill with a variety of surgical jars that can be used to store small toiletries such as cotton balls, miniature soaps and cotton swabs.

The soft, slightly spicy scent of a simple potpourri is always a nice touch and provides a refreshing alternative to the pungent smell of an artificial air freshener. Decorative candles also provide a cozy and warm ambience to an otherwise stark bath.

Although most homeowners don't give much thought to their shower curtain, it can literally change the overall look of the room. Because it is the most prominent feature of your bath, it makes sense to spend a little money on a decent shower curtain. If you take proper care of your curtain, it should last for years.

Experts suggest looking for a curtain that is treated with a fabric protector such as Du Pont Dacron polyester, which is fade- and soil-resistant and water-repellent.

The result is that the shower curtain looks new longer.

Many people like to make their own shower curtains. If you decide to go this route, make sure you purchase fabric that is damp-proof, mold-resistant, colorfast and washable. Smooth-textured cloths such as chintz, sateen, cotton and unbleached linen work well. And always buy a plastic or vinyl waterproof liner to protect your curtain from mildew.

If you're willing to invest a little time and energy, wainscoting is an ideal way to perk up your bathroom — particularly if you have a lot of wall space. Wainscoting adds a certain warmth and elegance to a room that paint alone can't accomplish. And you'd be surprised at how inexpensive and easy wainscoting is to install.

Manufacturers now offer a variety of pre-cut, pre-finished wainscot panels, which are available in both real wood veneer or simulated wood-grain styles.

Your local building supply store should have a variety of panels to choose from in a wide range of woods.

If you're lucky enough to have a bathroom with plenty of light, indoor plants always enhance a room and make it more inviting. Cape primrose, jasmine, lilacs and African violets all flourish well indoors and are fairly easy to maintain.

If you're not much of a horticulturist, you can always opt for silk plants instead.

Many people like to add furniture to their bathroom to make it seem more like a room. An antique dressing table, cupboard or desk always adds a touch of class to a bathroom and can provide valuable storage space for toiletries, linens and other items.

If you have an old-fashioned bathroom with unsightly plumbing on view, you can create a "skirt" to disguise it using softly draped or crisply pleated fabric. Fabric-covered screens are also ideal for concealing a toilet or bidet or providing privacy to a tub.

Wild creatures have place in garden's ecosystem

By Priscilla Lister

Copley News Service

You may think bugs bring nothing but disaster to your garden.

And you may wish those birds would stop munching on your berries all summer long.

As for bats, oh no! Their fearsome presence can only mean havoc for your hairdo.

But think again. Many of these creatures have a valuable place in our ecosystem and can even be beneficial to your garden.

"Imagine a garden brimming with a wide diversity of plants and flowers flourishing in rich, fertile soil — a colorful, blossoming and fruitful plot of land where various forms of wildlife come to visit. Picture a place where you, the naturalist/gardener, can find pleasure not only in the landscape but also in observing and providing for the wildlife that lives there. Think about the garden as a small community of plants and animals coexisting with one another and with human beings ... reflecting the ecology in miniature," writes Ruth Shaw Ernst in "The Naturalist's Garden: How to Garden With Plants That Attract Birds, Butterflies and Other Wildlife" (The Globe Pequot Press).

While you may have been laboring for years over your lettuce and strawberry crops, did you also find pleasure in the occasional glimpse of a hummingbird or a butterfly or a charming chipmunk?

All these creatures bring their own forms of beauty to a garden, and many are also downright helpful.

"Believe it or not, there are insects that are our friends," writes Jerry Baker in "Fast, Easy Vegetable Garden" (Plume/Penguin).

Many of them don't eat plants but eat only other insects that do destroy plants. Baker's list of good bugs includes ladybugs, praying mantis, ground beetles and spiders. Be kind to these guys. You might even buy some to bring home to your garden.

And one of the most beneficial of all insects is the honeybee. Bees pollinate, and your garden needs this desperately.

"Pollination must be carried out before fruit set will occur ..." writes Baker. "For the common vine crops such as cucumbers, squash, cantaloupe, watermelons and pumpkins, pollinating insects are essential."

And as for those birds, "It is an excellent idea to do things to attract birds," says Baker, for many of them eat the bad bugs. "Feeders in the winter help, but cover your ripe fruit." Here are some of the birds Baker says are beneficial as bug eaters: sparrow, scarlet tanager, gnatcatcher, barn swallow, warbler, bluebird, meadowlark and downy woodpecker.

Ernst's book is a perfect primer for gardening with the purpose of attracting more wildlife — for mutual enjoyment.

"Start by looking at what you already have in a new way," she advises. "The oak that is a joy to behold in autumn ... bears acorns that are an excellent winter food for squirrels, blue jays, woodpeckers, game birds and many small mammals. The luminous red and white azalea blossoms extend a 'welcome back' in spring to nectar-seeking bees, butterflies and northward-migrating hummingbirds."

The first thing to consider, she says, is to plant some trees that will grow tall. Deciduous trees, which shed leaves in autumn, generally bear the most fruit, nuts and seeds that wildlife like, and offer shelter and nesting sites. Evergreens, by contrast, offer year-round shelter and food in the form of berries and seed-filled cones.

"Trees are the lords of the plant community," says Ernst. They demand space, lots of water, fertilizing every four or five years and, in return, they draw carbon dioxide from the air as they release oxygen, offer shade and give food and shelter to birds, insects and many other creatures.

Creatures have valuable place in the community

Ernst lists dozens of trees and the kind of wildlife they attract, including the American holly tree that is loved by over 40 species of birds, such as the bluebird and mockingbird; the black walnut tree, loved by squirrels; the crab apple tree, loved by 26 species of birds, including the hummingbird as well as browsing wildlife; and the hawthorn, coveted by 33 species of birds, including the cardinal and hummingbird, as well as butterflies.

Shrubs are of equal importance and, with trees, form the cornerstone of a naturalist's garden, says Ernst. Shrubs, like trees, also provide cover, nesting sites and food for many birds and other creatures.

"Be sure to plant some flowering deciduous shrubs like lilac, mock orange and quince, which have nectar and pollen that appeal to a host of winged visitors," says Ernst.

Good shrubs for the naturalist's garden include the azalea to attract bees, butterflies and hummingbirds; the blackberry and elderberry; and the beautiful rhododendron for hummingbirds and butterflies.

"Flowers are an essential part of the naturalist's garden," she adds. They attract those pollinating bees and hummingbirds, and many are perfect foils as insect-repellents when planted among your vegetable crops.

When designing your flower garden, know that since most plants like sun, the best location in cool-climate areas is one that faces south, says Ernst.

Wherever you put the flower bed, it should get five to six hours of full sun a day.

"Perennials are particularly well displayed against a background of dark-green evergreens such as yews, forming a low hedge; a wooden fence or brick or stone wall on which berry-bearing vines can clamber; or a mixture of flowering shrubs such as forsythia, mock orange and lilac," writes Ernst.

Such a background will attract many birds and other creatures seeking cover and food.

Annuals, which unlike perennials, bloom and die all in one season, can add lots of color to attract birds and bees, and can be very effective as edgings along driveways, walkways or rock gardens.

"Interspersed between vegetables, annuals serve as a natural barrier to the spread of diseases in certain crops. Others are natural repellents to insect pests that usually attack target vegetables," says Ernst.

Some insect-repellent annual flowers include the geranium, marigold and nasturtium.

Don't overlook the potential to add a waterscape to your garden. Consider a small pond, perhaps even made of a fiberglass or galvanized aluminum tub about 20 inches deep and 2 feet in diameter, which can be used to grow waterlilies and lotuses and will attract birds, butterflies and other creatures.

"Naturally some backyard wildlife will become interested in this source of water," including opossums or skunks. Don't despair; delight in their visits, she says.

If larger animals are a problem — such as deer or woodchucks — the best solution is to fence them out, Ernst says.

But there are other, more "natural" alternative methods, such as placing mothballs around the garden to ward off raccoons, skunks and mice, or even bags of human hair placed 2 feet above ground at regular intervals to protect sweet potatoes, melons and cowpeas from deer.

But since we're more interested in attracting than ridding wildlife, let's consider some more positive angles.

A birdbath and bird feeder are obvious methods to attract those winged wonders.

You might also consider constructing birdhouses or nesting boxes, especially if your garden doesn't have enough trees and shrubs for this purpose. A nesting box may be especially attractive to bluebirds, which face a loss of habitat all over the country and are the source of several conservation programs.

Possible resources for information on building your own nesting house or for kits to assemble include: North American Bluebird Society, Box 6295, Silver Spring, MD 20916; Coveside Conservation Products (which offers bird and bat houses), HC33, Box 462A, Georgetown, ME 04548.

Bat houses? Who would want a bat house in the back yard?

Anyone who hates mosquitoes. There are 39 species of bat in the United States.

"The few species of vampire bat live only in Latin America," writes Ernst. "North American bats rarely carry rabies, do not attack people or suck human blood, and are not desirous of getting entangled in your coiffure. ... Harmless and shy, beneficial in their appetite for insect pests and pollinating fruit crops in some areas, they ask only to be left alone."

That single bat can consume several thousand mosquitoes and other bugs in one night. And bat dung is one of the richest sources of nitrogen and minerals that can be sown into your garden.

Painting house is smart improvement project

By Priscilla Lister

Copley News Service

One of the most cost-effective remodeling jobs you can do yourself to improve your home is to paint it.

"New paint brightens and freshens the look and feel of almost any home," says Kent Lester in his book, "The Complete Guide to Being Your Own Remodeling Contractor" (Betterway Books).

But a proper paint job does more than improve appearance.

"Exterior paint finishes (also) provide protection from weathering, moisture and insects," Lester adds.

How often you should paint your house depends on the quality of the paint you last used, says Tom Segreto, chief paint buyer for Sears, Roebuck & Co. at the retail giant's headquarters in Hoffman Estates, Ill.

"With today's new polymers, a good exterior paint can last 15 to 20 years," said Segreto. "If you use a lesser quality paint, you will have to paint more often."

WHAT TO USE

What makes a paint of good quality?

"They have more ingredients in them that make them easier to apply, last longer, with more polymers and pigments and (fewer) solvents than cheaper paints," Segreto said.

Many high-quality exterior paints also contain ingredients to provide mildew resistance, stain resistance and "they also give more choice on sheen levels and colors."

Weatherbeater is Sears' best exterior paint, he said.

As for choosing oil-based vs. latex paint, it often depends on your needs and where you live.

"Oil paint bonds strongly to wood and metals and also bonds better on standard finishes, such as chalky, dirty or oily surfaces," says Lester. He says they're still the most durable, good for exterior finishes. But they must be applied to a dry surface, and cleanup requires "the use of smelly solvents such as mineral spirits."

Latex has become more popular in recent years because it is durable, safe and easy to clean up with water. But latex paints are more porous than oil paints, so that if latex is used on new wood without a good oil primer, or if it's applied too thinly on new wood, "rain or even heavy dew can penetrate the coating and reach the wood," Lester said.

Such "breathability," however, can be necessary.

"Because latex is a water-based paint, it has a tendency to be more flexible, which is really important in climates where severe winters and hot summers shrink and stretch siding — latex paints are generally more flexible with those changes than oil-based paints," said Segreto.

"And because latex paints have a tendency to breathe, letting vapors escape through the paint surface, that's important in some markets where people humidify their homes a lot — vapor needs to pass through the paint so it won't blister," he added.

WHEN TO PAINT

Climate also affects when you should paint your home.

"The best time to paint is when the temperatures are moderate — it's not good to paint when the weather is too hot or the paint will dry too quickly; it's not good when it's too cold because then the paint doesn't adhere well," said Segreto.

He recommends that painting when the weather is not colder than 45 F and not warmer than 85 F.

You should also "follow the sun" when you actually paint, Segreto added. It's bad technique to paint in bright sun or where the sun will come and make it really warm before the paint is set.

PREPARATION IS KEY

Preparation of the surface is especially important when painting a house's exterior.

"Make sure you prepare the painting surface properly so the new paint will adhere properly," warns Lester.

Segreto agrees that the most important step in exterior painting is preparation.

"A lot of folks are in a hurry to get the job done, but they need to spend as much time preparing the surface as actually painting," he said.

"The most important step is to wash the surface."

Then you should plug any nail holes and, in fact, make sure that all nails are recessed from the surface, the indentations from which are then filled with exterior Spackling compound.

"Nails left up are more likely to rust, which will stain the outside and ruin the look," said Segreto. Any other imperfections should also be sealed with Spackle.

And you must pay attention to mildew, a common exterior painting problem.

"Mildew covers many hundreds of exterior fungi that grow on the outside of houses where it's subject to moisture," said Segreto. "Folks want to paint over that, but the most important thing to do is wash the area well with a commercial mildew wash or a quart of bleach in a gallon of water. That will kill the mildew; then rinse the area well and the paint will last a lot longer than if you just paint over it."

Primer is necessary before you paint with either oil or latex if you're painting on new wood, or wood that has been scraped down. Mildew areas should also be primed after preparation.

PROPER APPLICATORS

The brush is the most common applicator, especially for irregular surfaces, such as stucco. Rollers can be used, but not easily on narrow siding. And sometimes you might want to use a power sprayer.

"Good brushes pick up paint well and put it down well. Cheap brushes don't pick up as much as better brushes," said Segreto. "A customer has a lot easier time painting with good quality paint and good quality applicators."

COLOR CHOICES

As for colors, "there are always perennial favorites, but we're also seeing strong regional palettes today," said Claudia Hagen, associate paint buyer for Sears. "We're going away from very light-colored 'field' (primary) colors to midtone field colors. And we're seeing a whole lot of excitement in trim colors — teals and brilliant reds for front doors, for example."

The "Heartland Palette" that Sears presents for its exterior Weatherbeater includes a Desert Sand field color with accent trim colors of Cornfield and Regal Green; Smoke Pink-Beige with New Wave

Gray and Mountain Forest; Mushroom Beige with Patagonian Sand and Mountain Blue.

For areas along the Eastern Seaboard, the "Seabreeze Palette" offers Nantucket Blue with Georgetown White and Manito-ba Gray; Graystone with Cobblestone Cream and Elderberry; Provo Cream with Vermont Green and Charcoal Gray.

The "Sunshades Palette" inspired by the Southern states shows such bright combinations as Peruvian Peach with Sand Drift and Charcoal Gray; Colonial Cream with Antique White and Regal Green; Sun Shadow with Coastal White and Aqua Fiesta. The choices are mind-boggling, and today can even be rendered via computers.

HOW MUCH YOU'LL NEED

How much paint you'll need largely depends on what kind of surface you'll be painting. Stucco takes much more paint than regular Masonite siding, for example. In general, the more irregular the surface, the more paint you'll need. It will also depend on whether the surface has been painted before or sealed with a good primer.

As for what it will cost to paint it yourself, consider these standards: About 400 square feet is average coverage per gallon, though more porous or irregular surfaces will average as low as 250 square feet per gallon. Using Sears' Weatherbeater as a gauge, which costs about $16 a gallon, and assuming the average exterior paint job takes about 8 to 10 gallons, the do-it-yourself job will cost from $200 to $300.

In that amount is a lot of sweat equity, however, not to mention other factors such as dropcloths, scaffold rental, masking tape, brushes and any other materials you may need.

HIRING CONTRACTORS

"Painting your home can be a very rewarding experience, but it is time-consuming and tedious," says Lester.

"Before you decide to tackle the painting, ask yourself the following questions:

- "Do you have the time and patience for the job?"
- "Do you have the skills to do the quality job you demand?"
- "Do you have the physical stamina?"

If not, then hire a professional painter, but understand it will cost you several times the above estimate. And Lester also advises that you make sure they carry workers' compensation and liability insurance.

"Ask for references from other jobs they have done and specify the masking and dropcloth requirements to protect your property."

Your property will be improved either way you go.

Mix and match when updating decor

By Caron Golden
Copley News Service

With winter's dreariness and grime a memory, it's inevitable that with spring redecorating. It's a time of renewal, and that often comes in the form of searching for creative ways to add a new twist to our home's cozy comforts.

You don't need to completely overhaul your house or apartment with expensive renovations to get a new look. It may be as simple as combining new fabrics in pillows for the living room or mixing furniture styles to meld your old family favorites with a fresh new piece.

This year, designers are not limiting their creativity to a single style, such as art deco or Milan; they are blending old with new, creating stylish, comfortable looks with color and texture, and taking their cues from the surrounding environment. Below are several ideas for ways you can spruce up your home for the new year:

- Color: Whether you're painting, recovering furniture or simply adding a few new touches, design forecasters are looking at four color palettes to brighten our worlds this year. White, always popular for walls, will be accented with herb-garden and vegetable colors. Using a variety of whites, from the brightest bisque to calming vanilla, adds depth and dimension to a room.

A second palette goes for the bold, bright hues of green, blue, amethyst and coral. It's the extravagant look of south-of-the-border pottery and serapes.

The next palette goes in the opposite direction, combining timeless earth tones of terra cotta and brown, particularly soothing in the West because they mimic the local landscape.

Finally, look to incorporating jewel-tone colors found in ethnic fabrics. Red clay, magenta, rose violet and a rich gold can be blended in accents to create a comfortable Northwest-style retreat.

• Painting in unexpected places: Perhaps you're thinking of adding a new coat of ecru to the walls. Well, how about a dash of whimsy on hardwood floors, kitchen cabinets, cement patios or even your stairs? A stenciled runner adds a homey feel to hardwood stairs. Cut the stencils yourself from Mylar and use acrylic craft paints followed by several coats of high-gloss varnish.

Use exterior latex house paint to create a ruglike effect on a concrete patio. Porch stairs can have simple designs like stars or flowers sponged on them with exterior enamel paint.

• Accessorize with the latest collectibles: The hottest items around may be as close as your local flea market. Western artifacts and "Cowboyana" are "the last frontier in collecting," according to Mary Emmerling's Country magazine. These include spurs and saddlery, even Roy Rogers lunch boxes.

Other suggestions include anything with old paint, garden furnishings and accessories from any era, midcentury modern furniture and pottery (including lava lamps) and, of course, quilts and country souvenirs.

• Western furniture: Recently, Santa Fe style meant that everyone had a howling coyote statue perched in a corner of the living room. But the new Western and Southwestern designers have reached beyond cliches to incorporate everything from traditional Spanish colonial style to jazzy innovation and bold color.

Look for cabinets made of colored woods, blends of Mission and Japanese influences, which result in detailed elegance, luxurious storage chests with Moorish-style carving, and even cowboy-design pieces utilizing horns, barbed wire, fence posts and other common paraphernalia.

• Volumetrics: It sounds like something out a high school math text, but it's actually a catchall term for maximizing the amount of visual space in your home. If your plans call for some renovation, consider creating high or cathedral ceilings or bridge walkways from one wing of the house to another to create open areas. Maximize the light to increase the feeling of airiness and openness in your home.

• A touch of gold: This is the latest accent color, no matter what your taste or style of decorating. Find it in fabrics, china and even furniture. Start with a glittering gold frame, ease into tasseled silk pillows with gold thread, bring out Grandma's good gold-rimmed teacups and indulge in a sparkling fleur-de-lis-back chair.

• Mixing textures: Don't be afraid to combine a variety of textures in your room. The newest trend is the surprise of the eclectic mix of elements. Start with the floor, a wall or the room's biggest piece of furniture. Find a fabric you love and then begin to incorporate other textures. Perhaps the mix includes a cotton pillow sham, a fine lace tablecloth and a polished mahogany chair.

Mixing old and new — Chippendale chairs resting near a sleek glass coffee table or a rustic twig side table set off by sterling-silver candlesticks — adds energy to a room.

• Slipcovers: Are you tiring of the sight of your sofa or armchair? Are they getting a little threadbare? You can create a new room in minutes and at minimal cost by using slipcovers. Fashion has long been a rich source of inspiration and there are endless styles to choose from, ranging from softly draped and tied linen to crisply tailored damask.

Decide on the atmosphere you want for your room and choose fabrics that will enhance that tone. Instead of synthetics, go for natural fibers, closely woven and medium weight. Cotton is usually a good choice in terms of durability and ability to clean. Linen is a wonderfully textured material, but wrinkles easily in everyday use.

• The finishing touch of pillows: Like slipcovers, pillows can be a simple way to change the feel of a room. They can introduce new colors and textures, add formality or comfort and allow for variety in a small home or apartment. Some are works of art in their own right, using motifs and patterns that make a bold statement. Others blend into a larger design, enhancing the warm tones of a living room or bedroom. For an updated look, consider decorative details like jute trims, tassels, braids or fringe.

With Sikkens, the beauty is more than skin deep.

Your deck is the center of your outdoor entertaining and recreation activities. So don't just give it a "finish". Give it a quality Sikkens finish with the Cetol® DEK or Rubbol® DEK systems. The Cetol DEK translucent system combines the high solid oil alkyd combination and UV-absorbing pigments of Cetol DECK Base with the transparent iron oxide pigments of the Cetol DECK maintenance topcoat. The result is a superior system that both protects and reveals the true beauty of your wood. For solid color deck finish or to highlight railings and stairs, choose Rubbol DEK. It's the one-coat finish that repels UV rays but allows moisture to escape, reducing blistering and cracking. Apply Rubbol DEK on cedar or pressure treated wood, smooth or unfinished - even aged and worn decks!

Cohen Associates

by Craig Farrand

"Yet that," he said, chuckling, "was the time we picked to start."

And start he did, first by doing "scattered lot developments" for a couple of years and learning the rest of the trade on the run.

But Cohen's fortunes changed in 1984 when he and his partner joined company with Selective Homes and developed the 100-unit Maplewoods II project in West Bloomfield.

"It was the first time that instead of putting up individual homes, we had put our heads together and came up with a better idea," he said.

"And we hit the market just right."

Indeed, after two strange turns in his life, Cohen showed up in the housing business just as Southeastern Michigan was desperate for new housing.

"Remember, there really hadn't been much development at all in the preceding four or five years," he said, "so we hit the ground running."

At the same time, though, Cohen and his partners also changed the way in which the housing market was viewed by the industry:

"We started spending a lot of time and energy developing homes for what the market wanted rather than simply dictating what the market would get."

And a prime example of that new view was found in his Maplewoods development: "In West Bloomfield there had never been a development that included sidewalks in a subdivision."

"But those of us involved in Maplewoods had children, and the first thing we thought about was what made a neighborhood – and we thought: sidewalks!"

"Now, this may not have been ingenious, but the fact is that we did see this, we reinvented the wheel and developed sidewalks in West Bloomfield."

And the result of this stroke of "genius?"

"Today you can't build a house in West Bloomfield without sidewalks," Cohen said. "Not because the town requires it, but because homeowners demand it."

This kind of straight forward thinking took Cohen and his partner to the next step: His Stonebridge development, also in West Bloomfield.

"By now, we had 13 years experience, and it was the kinds of design and technology we had been putting to use that became the real benchmark of what Cohen Associates does today."

Builder of The Month

Larry Cohen

"And in Stonebridge, we really came into our own."

It was in this project that Cohen applied yet another dose of practical thinking – coupled with a family view – to his homes: the "step-up" master suite.

"It's really very simple: when people have young children, they want their bedroom close to the kids, but when the kids get older, they want their bedroom farther away."

"So what we did was design the step-up master suite," he said.

"Essentially, what you do is go to the top of the stairs and turn one way to go to the kids' rooms, or turn the other way and go up another three steps to mom and dad's room."

Not surprisingly, Cohen said, cus-

In retrospect, it almost looks as if Larry Cohen did everything wrong – or at least backwards – and that his company, Cohen Associates, never should have gotten off the ground.

In the late '60s, the native Detroit-er looked to technology as the key to his future – and eventually graduated from then-Lawrence Tech with a degree in electrical engineering.

"But once I got the degree, it was the last thing I wanted to be."

Instead, the young engineer went to work for a builder in 1971: "I was hired as an assistant superintendent – which meant that I was issued a shovel and a broom on the work site."

In short order, however, Cohen linked up with one prestigious builder after another and worked his way up the information and business ladder to the point where he was ready to strike out on his own.

Which brought him to the second twist in the road.

"It was in 1982 that I went into business with a partner," Cohen said. "But if you remember, 1982 was not the time of a vigorous market: interest rates were 20 percent, and builders and developers were being devastated."

Cohen & Assoc. from pg. 7

tomers with children "loved it."

"So we set about redesigning our entire product line to incorporate this idea."

In the end, the Stonebridge project became a watershed mark for Cohen and his homebuilding dreams: Not only did it clarify many of his design themes, but also set the stage for future market pricing.

"Over the last few years, I've recognized that we need to build homes in competitive price ranges," he said.

"Of course, it would be nice to build $500,000 homes, but we need to reach more people than that — which is why we built the Woods of Novi in the $160,000 to $200,000 range."

In fact, since Cohen broke off on his own and founded Cohen Associates two years ago, his thrust has been almost exclusively in the competitive end of the market.

"Our Hillsborough project in Wixom has been a real pleasant surprise for us," he said. "It's a great site, surrounded on three sides by trees."

"We started it two years ago, with homes starting at $160,000 and we've already sold just under 60 sites."

In fact, Cohen said, the community of Wixom itself has been a real surprise: "It has a wonderful small-town feel and a government that has provided for a solid blend of shopping and residential."

"It's a terrific community, and we've committed ourselves to staying there."

To that end, Cohen said his company already has two additional projects under way: Loon Lake Woods and the Heathers of Wexford Mews, the latter of which opened in May.

"We're very excited about (Wexford)," he said. "It's a very rolling piece of property; a very challenging piece of property to build on."

"But, if you're in the business, you know that the most difficult land to build on also yields the most interesting and esthetically pleasing looks possible."

And what about the future?

"In 1995, we're probably making the largest commitment to residential construction ever, including development of our Westmont project in Novi — a project on which we spent eight months creating all new designs."

In addition to the Novi project, Cohen also has under way a 50-unit development in the 6 Mile-Haggerty Road area in Northville.

So, with all this development, is the region slowly reaching a saturation point?

"There's no doubt that Southeastern Michigan is no longer the manufacturing center it once was," Cohen said, "but because the region is supported by Michigan State and the University of Michigan, it has become the technology center for the entire automotive industry."

"And that means the demand is actually growing."

And that means that Larry Cohen will continue to do things just right.

Yachts: GETTING AWAY

By Craig Farrand

Tired of the daily grind? The morning – and evening – rush?

The 40-hour stress test?

Then maybe you should consider buying a little hideaway to escape the maddening crowd; a little something with all the comforts of home plus the soothing sounds of the rolling surf.

No, not a beachfront cottage – a floating cottage: A sail or power boat of the luxury class, complete with all the amenities of land-based vacation homes.

Just ask Kevin Hunter.

"Even in our smaller boats – 34 to 37-footers – we offer two baths, hot and cold running water, showers, bathtubs and at least two staterooms with queen-sized beds," he said.

"And then in the main salon, we have TVs, VCRs, stereos – all the things you'd expect in a home."

Except that Hunter's homes float.

"We sell everything from the mid-30-footers up to 120 feet – with our largest boats going for about $3 million."

Not all of the boats sold by Toledo Beach Marina – where Hunter works as sales manager – are in the million-dollar price range, of course, but neither is his shop a place for canoe buyers.

"The people who buy these kinds of boats are looking for something special," he said, "and they find it."

Outfitted with the latest in marine navigation technology – complete, in some instances, with global positioning system (GPS) satellite dishes and real-time computer readouts – Hunter's boats are more than just a place to go to.

They are a way to get there.

"The people who buy these boats don't just sit on them, they go places," Hunter said.

"They cruise the Great Lakes, towed behind the family van may not be for everyone, Hunter said, but clearly there are advantages.

"There's nothing like sleeping on a boat and listening to the water lapping at the sides on a warm summer night," he said. "And the freedom on the water is really something special."

Yet even with such allure, the decision to buy isn't one to be made lightly, Hunter said. Still, for those who may seriously consider a boat as a second-home option, there are at least two points to consider:

"First, you can take out up to a 20-year mortgage on these boats; and second, they can be considered a second home for tax purposes, which means the interest on the mortgage is tax deductible."

Of course, the downside to a purchase is obvious: Even though mortgages may be available, the fact is that boats do not appreciate in value like land-based real estate. Instead, they lose value over the years like a car.

"As a result, a purchaser has to make sure he stays with a tried and true brand (name) and style of boat," he said, "so he can keep his resale value as high as possible."

"If you buy this kind of boat head up into Georgian Bay.

"Many people take them to Florida in the winter through the Inter Coastal Waterway," he said.

(And some don't even have to do much driving: "By hooking up the autopilot with the GPS, you could actually let the boat get you where you want by itself," Hunter said.)

The idea of buying a boat that can't be parked in a back yard or and take care of it, it's not going to lose a lot of money.

"Besides, with the price of new boats going up an average 4 percent a year, you could get a good price for your boat in the future if you take care of it."

But what kind of boat would that be?

Well, Toledo Marina sells both kinds: sail and power – with amenities nearly identical between the two.

"The biggest difference you'd find," Hunter said, "is that on the sailboat everything would be a bit more compact, whereas on the powerboat, everything's a bit more open and spread out."

Which makes sense, if you think about it: Power boats, by their nature, have cabins that rise above deck, whereas sailboats reserve such critical space for its masts and canvas; all cabin space is below.

And who buys what kind of boat?

Well Hunter, who started in the business by rigging the same kinds of boats he now sells, said that each type of boat calls for a specific type of owner.

"Sailboats? Well, they're more like professors," he said with a laugh. "They like more of a challenge, a feeling that you've done something and accomplished something – each time they take the boat out."

"Those who like powerboats, though, are a bit more frivolous with their money – but they're also the type that like to get where they're going."

"I guess you could call them the Type A personality."

In both cases, though, they're people who want more than a lakefront lot.

They want the lake itself.

Just ask Kevin Hunter.

Water Main. . . Finally

After more than twenty years of planning and haggling, construction of the $35 million dollar 72" water main connecting the region's western suburbs with Detroit's water supply from Lake Huron is projected for completion before the end of 1995 or early 1996.

Yackness, representing the Association, played a significant role in the origination of the project beginning in 1974 and was active in the ongoing negotiations between the city of Detroit Water Department and the communities traversed by the pipeline, including the settlement of a lawsuit by the village of Franklin seeking to enjoin the passage of the line through its jurisdiction.

According to Yackness, completion of the water line will mean an end to the moratorium imposed by the Michigan Department of Public Health on new water line connections in fourteen communities that required builders to provide wells in all new home construction.

The communities which will benefit include: Bloomfield Township, Commerce Township, Farmington, Farmington Hills, Keego Harbor, Livonia, Northville, Northville Township, Novi, Orchard Lake, Redford Township, Walled Lake, West Bloomfield Township and Wixom.

Yackness and the Association were also prime movers in the installation of the Evergreen and Farmington major sanitary sewer lines, which opened up Irvin Yackness, the Association's Executive Vice President and General Counsel, inspecting one of the huge 72" pre-stressed concrete pipes as the water main nears completion to serve development in southwest Oakland County and Northwest Wayne County.

Water Gardening

Working a forty hour a week plus job? Had too much stress? Why not try a water garden? Water gardening can be one of the most relaxing hobbies. The sound of trickling water, the sweet scent and sight of the waterlilies, the frolicking fish all add to the delight of a water garden.

Good planning for a water garden is essential. One needs a source for electric power to run pumps and possibly underwater lighting. Select a sight that is sunny and visually attractive from your breakfast room, your patio or deck, somewhere it will give you the most enjoyment. Before long you will find your family, neighbors and friends joining you.

Now that you have encouraged their participation it is time to dig. The excess soil from your pond hole could be used to build a berm or slight raise to accommodate a waterfall. Is this picture beginning to form? Now that the hole is completed, a liner should be placed in the hole so you can hold and recirculate water.

Finish your edges with stone or rock. You have now filled the pond with water and the pump is in place recirculating your water. Let the pond recirculate and rest for at least 24 hours before introducing plants, fish and other critters.

Now the fun really starts. One can choose a lily that will bloom most of the summer and part of fall, colors could be red, yellow, pink, or white. There is a large selection of bog plants and floaters to choose from as well. Fish are an interesting addition to the pond, beautiful to watch and it is interesting to see the reproductive cycle. We now need the workers-tadpoles, clams, snails and oxygenators. Nothing much left to do but enjoy.

Pools: Technology In Your Backyard

It's not your father's swimming pool. There's no corrugated wall to collapse. There's no plastic liner to tear. And there's no bulky pump to clean — or even a plastic water tester to jiggle and read.

No, today's swimming pools are clearly the result of advanced technology arriving in your back yard.

Just ask those who install them in some of the finest homes going up in metro Detroit: Paddock Pools, Total Pool Concepts and Blue Dolphin Pools.

"Today," said Tom Payne, residential sales manager for Paddock, "about 95 percent of our work is for homes being designed by major architects and constructed by major builders.

"And that means that we're becoming a major part of that overall design work."

Although the range of styles still runs the gamut from above-ground liner pools to in-ground, much of the work done in conjunction with more expensive homes are clearly in the up-scale in-ground variety.

And even then, the technology employed can range from plastic-lined to poured concrete, gunite and, as is used by Paddock, "shotcrete."

"Shotcrete is our own system of using concrete along with both horizontal and vertical steel reinforcement," Payne said.

The difference, Payne said, between traditional poured concrete and his company's "shotcrete," is that poured systems inevitably result in joints being created that can weaken over time.

"Our system, on the other hand, has no joints, so it can provide a structurally stronger pool," he said.

For Frank and Judi Mayer of Total Pool Concepts, however, problems that arise with pool ownership is right up their alley: Besides being pool designers and installers, they also do renovation work on installations that have suffered the ravages of time.

In addition, they also do retrofitting of existing inground pools to extend the swimming season — not by installing overhead domes, but by installing "Thermal-Crete" walls that offer an R-factor equivalent to 7 inches of insulation.

"This can extend the pool season by a few months without any additional water heating costs," Frank said.

Pool construction aside, however, some of the most interesting de-pool, you have a lot more to take into consideration," Payne said: "Heat, humidity, air handling.

"You really have to have a separate environment for the pool area," he said.

"For example, you need a negative pressure system so that when someone opens the sliding door, the air comes into the pool area instead of pool air going into the house."

And pools — whether inside or out — can really include much more than the traditional swimming area: According to the experts, designs can incorporate everything from adjacent whirlpools and spas to waterfalls.

One thing that isn't becoming more popular, however, are diving boards, according to Payne.

"Once you allow for the necessary pool depth needed for a diving board, you've used up two-thirds of the pool area to accommodate one function."

Instead, he said, "one very popular pool design now is the shallow pool that goes from 3 feet on all the sides to only 5 feet in the middle."

"This makes the entire pool functional."

So, what would it cost to have a pool installed that automatically regulates the Ph balance, cleans itself, provides beautiful music, beautiful landscape effects and a perfect backdrop for the perfect party?

Well, start at $25,000 and work your way up — into the six figures.

And while pools inherently don't add value to a home like a new kitchen would, times have changed, Payne said.

"No, they may not have the value, but the fact is that people expect to see a pool when you're talking about homes of this stature.

"They may never actually use it, but they want it."

Just like your father's swimming pool after that first summer.

velopments in swimming pool installation have come on the design and use side of the equation.

"It's really quite amazing," Payne said, "Our customers are now getting involved in the specifics of the design, layout and construction.

"They no longer sit back and just pick something out," he said. "They get right into the details.

"It's very exciting and interesting."

For many homeowners, such involvement in the design and layout of their pool extends beyond their back yard — and into their house.

"We don't see that many indoor-outdoor pools," Payne said, "but I'd say about 90 percent of our work now is indoor.

"In fact, for many people, the pool area is really considered indoor space," he said, adding that when it comes to indoor pools, many of the rules change dramatically.

"When dealing with home construction that includes an indoor

he Crossings has something for everyone, including a full-size swimming pool, walking and jogging trails, a beautiful community garden and two tennis courts. Not to mention a lot lot and beautifully maintained side walks. And the curb appeal doesn't end there. The Crossings features stately homes with soaring ceilings and relaxed floor plans. All this—in superb location with Rochester schools. Who could ask for more?

While all the many different models and the floor plans offered at The Crossings have met with overwhelming approval, The Morgan, a 2,270 square foot, two-story colonial seems to be especially popular with the many buyers who have already made their deposit at The Crossings of Oakland, claims Jan Robertson, Vice President, Sales and Marketing of Robertson Brothers.

The Morgan features a spacious second level- three bedrooms (with an optional fourth) and two full baths. The main floor features a den, a living room that leads into a dining room, a kitchen/ breakfast nook, a family room, laundry room and powder room.

"One of the nicest features about most of our floor plans is that a person doesn't have to walk through the laundry room from the garage," said Robertson. "That way, you can just close off the mess."

The Crossings, like all Robertson Brothers' communities, typifies Robertson Brothers commitment to the environment. Robertson claims that more that 40% of total acreage will be devoted to existing woods, marshes, parks and grass.

What is the profile of The Crossings buyer? "Young to middle age families with children," Jan Robertson said. "We're selling to people who are from the area as well as to transfers. Most are move-up buyers, so this is not their first building experience."

Patio Furniture

Regardless of whether you're sitting at poolside, on the deck, on your patio or the front porch, what you sit on can say a lot about your tastes when it comes to home decorating.

In fact, according to the experts, outdoor furniture is just as much a reflection of a homeowner's personality as that hutch in the dining room.

Yet many homeowners may think their choices are quite limited when considering a chaise lounge: Wood or aluminum frame? Green and white vinyl straps or pink and green floral print?

Not so, the experts say.

Instead, the sky is literally the limit when outfitting the great outdoors: materials, design, style and color are all open to personal mixing and matching.

Take, for example, the construction materials available to today's homeowner.

"The choices run from outdoor wicker to wrought iron to tubular aluminum to resin," said Jim Sica, owner of Jimmy's Rustics. "And then, of course, there's a whole range of woods to choose from: teak, cypress, cedar."

Not surprisingly, each of these materials has its relative strengths, Sica said, whether it be durability, ease of maintenance, weight or variety.

So how to choose?

It depends on your personal point of view.

"A lot of our customers are concerned with the need to have their outside furniture match the inside look of the home," Sica said, "so that when someone walks from indoors to outdoors, they feel a continuation of an overall style."

"Others, though, look for something completely different and separate from how their house looks on the inside."

To reach their desired look – regardless of matching with interior designs – homeowners have to keep in mind the dynamics of both the materials used in constructing the frames of outdoor furniture and the materials used in making the fabric coverings and other pieces, such as the umbrella.

According to Jane Fedrigo of Palm Beach Patio, there are essentially four fabrics that are historically the most popular with the buying public: acrylics, vinyl-coated polyesters, printed vinyl-coated polyesters and vinyl straps.

Acrylics, she said, are made to resemble and feel like cotton, but are produced in such a way that they can not only withstand the elements, but also resist dirt and mildew.

Vinyl-coated polyesters and printed polyesters are virtually one in the same, except that the basic version is composed of individual strands of colored polyester "yarn" that are then woven into specific patterns.

The printed version, on the other hand, is woven of the same color, with a pattern printed on the finished "cloth."

Vinyl straps, of course, are often associated with the traditional folding chairs used at picnics and family reunions – but they actually extend to include a whole range of materials that are criss-crossed to create a durable and flexible system.

Beyond these four basic materials, Fedrigo said, many manufacturers have found ways to mix and match materials to produce even more variety.

In any case, Fedrigo said, the homeowner now has fabric and color choices that can offer high fashion, low maintenance and "smashing effects."

For the other part of the quotient – the frame construction – Sica said that wood is definitely making a strong showing in Detroit area back yards.

"Many customers are looking for that New England cottage look," he said, "and that means white-painted cypress, for example.

"Or some are looking for that Adirondack or Shaker look; that means teak.

"And the same holds true for those who are creating that English garden look: teak benches and planters with accessories like arbors."

Although one might think that the actual number and combination of chairs, tables, benches and the like are ultimately determined by the size of his or her deck, Sica said it just isn't so anymore.

"Outdoor furniture is now migrating off the deck and into the back yard," he said.

"People are moving further into nature and are now looking for things to blend in with natural surroundings."

So does that mean that wood tones and green are the colors of choice?

Yes.

"White has always been the No. 1 color in outdoor furniture," Sica said, "but take white out of the picture and green would be No. 1; moss green, hunter green, forest, teal.

"In fact, look at what's been happening with automobile colors; they've gone to the jewel tones; emerald green, teal."

And in the future?

"Well, colors don't change all that fast," Sica said, "but according to research on color trends, look for plum to be the next big color on the scene – on cars and inside and outside the home."

Which means that you'd better start thinking now about coordinating that chaise lounge with that new living couch.

You just never know.

Patio and Pool Furniture Maintenance Tips

As Spring approaches, your thoughts are probably turning toward outdoor projects. One often neglected area is pool furniture. Since it is usually in a highly visible area, the condition of the furniture can contribute to the overall image (or lack of it!) of the property. As you take your pool furniture out of storage this spring, take a good look at it and take the steps necessary to give it new life. Some tips for cleaning and maintenance are outlined as follows:

The worst enemies of vinyl are Chlorine and suntan oil. The best way of prolonging the life of the vinyl is frequent cleaning. Wash the furniture at least weekly with mild soap and water, followed by rinsing with a hose. One easy method is with a long handled soft brush dipped in a bucket of soapy water. Twice yearly do a more thorough cleaning with a vinyl cleaner such as Total Car Clean, Simple Green, or any of the products made specifically for vinyl strapping.

If you want to touch up scrapes and scratches, good preparation is essential. The area to be painted must be completely clean and should be sanded and feathered smooth. Use a fast dry spray paint such as Krylon on a clam day to avoid over-spray. Mask off the vinyl strapping with an old sheet of plastic, or cardboard. Remember, a bad touch up job will often look worse than the original scrape.

If the frames are structurally sound and normal maintenance won't work any more, it may be time for restrapping and/or refinishing. This is a practical and economical way of giving a fresh, new look to your pool furniture at a fraction of the cost of buying new.

Ken's Casuals of Troy Michigan specializes in the refinishing and restrapping of outdoor pool and patio furniture.

Ken started his business, on a part-time basis, out of his home in the early 1980's, "We had requests from time to time for refinishing outdoor furniture and there was no one in Michigan providing that service—little did I know how much need there was!"

Ken's business soon outgrew his two-car garage, built just for refinishing and in 1987, Ken moved to his present location in an industrial complex in Troy.

To provide a high quality finished product, Ken uses a high tech electrostatic paint application system with specialized automotive finishes for exceptional durability. All prep work, including sand blasting, is done in-shop and only top quality vinyl strapping is used, available in 50 different colors— "Sometimes the hardest part for the client is deciding which color to pick!"

Man-Made STONE

Solves Problems

For centuries, stone has been a preferred building material due, in large part, to its durability and timeless beauty. The high cost of natural stone, however, has restricted its modern use to monumental buildings and steeply priced residential structures. The weight of natural stone requires special structural considerations and the process of laying the stones is tedious and calls on masonry skills no longer widely available. When natural stone used, its weight limits the distance from which it can be shipped, further increasing the cost and restricting the range of stone selections to the type locally available.

How, then, does a builder gain the curb appeal of a stone entryway or the drama of a soaring stone fireplace chimney at a reasonable price? What of the homeowner who wants a fieldstone fireplace in an existing great-room which was not designed to carry the weight of natural stone? Is there any way for the do-it-yourselfer to apply a stone finish to an

A modern alternative to natural stone, manufactured stone veneer, solves many of the above problems, putting the look, feel and durability of stone within the budget of today's homeowner. This man-made product is produced by several national manufacturers, including Carriage Hill of Ohio. One of the largest and best known producers, Stone Products, is located in Napa California and, thanks to the light weight of its Cultured

Stone veneer, ships its products throughout the United States and into many overseas markets. Visitors to Disney theme parks have admired Stone Product's materials without recognizing them as anything other than genuine stone.

While the manufacturing process for manufactured stone veneer involves many trade secrets producers have been willing to divulge some information about it. Unlike some of the thin stone-look products from bygone eras which display a monotonous degree of regularity, today's product is almost as diverse as nature's own. The myriad shapes and sizes is achieved through the use of hundreds of molds taken from actual stone. The flexibility of the mold making and coloring processes allow for the production of materials which are diverse enough to duplicate split fieldstone, cut limestone, lava rocks, and tumbled river stones. Special shapes such as stone rosettes, still pieces, keystones and water tables are also available.

Installation of the lightweight stone veneer is relatively simple and calls for a very few basic tools. While professional installation is available, those wishing to do the job themselves can attend a free Saturday morning clinic at Williams Panel Brick in Redford. Hundreds of homeowners and local contractors have been through the Williams' hands-on seminar and gone on to perform craftsman like jobs. It is, if nothing else, a good introduction to the installation process and can assist the DIYer in deciding on either self help or professional installation. According to Jim Lukomski, Retail Vice President at William, many local builder show attendees first see the stone veneer at the show, attend the seminar, and spend the next weekend creating their dream of stone.

BUILDING SINCE 1979

Ask the Builder

Q. My husband and I will be going on our "second honeymoon" soon. It is the first extended vacation we've taken in over nine years and we're busy compiling our "things to do" checklist. One of our neighbors recently returned from a family vacation to find his home flooded with water from a pipe that burst. What protective measures can we take inside of our home to sidestep this potential problem?

Ms. C. Tallen, Southfield

A. You definitely want to avoid the disastrous situation that your neighbor experienced. There are several simple steps that you can add to your checklist.

You can turn the water heater thermostat to "low" and shut off the valves in the water pipes connected to the water heater. Not only will this save energy, but it will preclude the possibility of having your water heater burst while you are away.

You may also want to shut off the water supply faucets attached to your clothes washer. Some homeowners actually turn off the hot and cold water supply to their washing machine after each use, basement or laundry room.

If you live in an older home where there is an increased chance of having a water pipe burst, in addition to the problems already mentioned, you should shut off the water supply (by turning the main gate valve located near the water meter) before you go out of town. If you close the main gate valve it will not be necessary to turn the water off at the individual appliances mentioned above.

Q. Whenever a light bulb burns out in our home, my husband replaces it with the first bulb he can find, often putting a 60 or 75 watt bulb in a lamp or fixture that has instruction to use a 40 watt bulb. Is this dangerous?

Ms. L. Salem, Birmingham

A. Warnings to utilize light bulbs with specific wattages are included on lamps, ceiling and wall fixtures for good reason. If you use an oversized light bulb in a fixture that requires a smaller size, there is an increased chance of heat build up and fire. Light fixtures, such as those that are recessed and flush-mounted, possess a higher risk of heat build up since the air cannot circulate around the bulb to cool it down. If you want to brighten up a room, consider adding another fixture.

Q. What is the correct way to connect two electrical wires together with Wire-Nuts?

Mr. G. Mitchell, Rochester Hills

A. The most common mistake that most people make is twisting the wires together. The proper method is to peel the insulation back approximately 3/4 inch from the ends of the wires and hold both wires parallel to each other. Then simply slip the Wire-Nut over the ends of the wires. After you tighten the Wire-Nut onto the wire ends, gently tug on each wire to make sure they are connected securely.

The Brody Group

Firsts are usually hard to come by: First woman in space, first man on the moon, first heart transplant, first 4-minute mile.

First new single-family subdivision in Franklin Village in more than 30 years.

OK, it may not rank up there with standing on the moon, but for the Brody Group, the accomplishment is important, nevertheless.

STONEGATE

AT FRANKLIN

"It's been a long time since anything like this has been developed in Franklin Village," said Gerald Brody, vice president of operations for the Brody Group and president of its construction arm, Brody and Halan.

"Much of that (reason) is because of the sewer and water limitations," he said. "And when the situation changed, it opened up the property for development."

Which is exactly what Brody's firm is doing: Work already is under way on the new "Stonegate at Franklin" project located on Franklin Road at the edge of the Southfield city limits between 13 Mile Road and Northwestern Highway.

The 20-acre site in the Birmingham School District will feature 18 custom-built homes in the $500,000-and-up price range, each of which, Brody said, "will achieve a diversity of design while maintaining the quality of a traditional feel."

"Our goal is to maintain and preserve the harmony of the village," he said, "and we're going to accomplish that in a couple of ways.

"For example, all of our landscaping – both at our entranceway and throughout the site – will incorporate plants that are native to Southeastern Michigan only.

"That means that we'll not only have the kind of seasonal colorings we've come to appreciate here in Michigan, but we also will maintain the blending of our development with the surrounding area."

To maintain such standards, Brody said his company has worked closely with the noted landscape architectural firm, James Scott and Associates.

"That way, we knew we'd be able to create the kinds of designs that would be pleasing as well as meet our requirements," he said.

For the homes themselves, however, Brody said that each customer will be able to select his or her own architect.

"We're the builder of all the homes, but we'll work with anyone they select," Brody said, adding that "we've worked with the leading architects on homes of this stature, so we're pretty sure we know who we'll be dealing with."

As of early spring, site improvements at the development were already under way, with paving to follow.

In fact, even without a single home being built, Brody said that word of mouth about the development had resulted in four reservations being made on home sites before April.

"They knew about us and they'd heard something was happening in Franklin Village, so they contacted us."

Making them the first to think about Brody's new development as home.

PRESENTING THE 8 POUND ORECK XL. PROVEN ON THE WORLD'S MOST GRUELING TESTING GROUNDS: HOTELS, AIRPORTS AND OFFICES.

For over 20 years the Oreck XL has been the darling of cleaning professionals at literally thousands of hotels, from the Sheraton Plaza, Chicago to the Omni Royal Orleans.

Pile-lifting roller brushes whirling at 6,500 RPM professionally groom your carpet as they clean.

On bare floors the Oreck-developed Microsweep™ delivers 70 million brush strokes per minute. The Oreck XL is the only upright that automatically adjusts from the thickest carpet to bare floors.

And, unlike conventional uprights which lose up to 80% of their cleaning power while vacuuming, the Oreck XL has a unique top-fill design which provides full cleaning power all the time.

A POWERFUL INDUCEMENT TO CLEAN YOUR HOME LIKE AMERICA'S BEST HOTELS.

There's a lot more to a room than bare floors and carpets. So for everything above the floor, Oreck has invented a 4 pound super compact canister with the cleaning power of a heavy industrial machine.

Through this special offer, when you buy the 8 pound Oreck XL you get the compact canister free. That's a $160 savings. What's more, we'll let you try the Oreck XL in your home without obligation for 15 days. If you don't love it, you don't keep it.

AIR FILTRATION

For those who suffer from dust-related or allergic discomforts, the Oreck XL CELOC Hypo-Allergenic filtration system removes up to 99.7% of irritants from the air. There's virtually no after dust.

WalkFit burns up to 79% more calories than ordinary treadmills.

With up to 79% higher calorie burn, NordicTrack's WalkFit® exerciser leaves ordinary treadmills behind.

It's simple. Ordinary treadmills target only your lower-body muscles. But research at a major university shows that the combined upper- and lower-body workout you get with WalkFit can burn an average of 53% more calories than ordinary treadmills.

The best way to take the weight off.

You can start to see results in as little as three, 20-minute workouts a week. But that's only the beginning. Once you get into the WalkFit exercise routine, you can burn an average of 850 calories per hour and up to 1,000. What's more, exercise like you get with WalkFit also helps raise your metabolic rate, so even when you're not exercising, your body is burning more calories. As a result, it will help take the weight off by combining your regular workout with a sensible diet.

The best way to improve your cardiovascular fitness.

Our flywheel and independent resistance settings let you set the pace. You improve your cardiovascular fitness over 50% more efficiently than with ordinary treadmills because you power the total-body exerciser, not a motor. You can start, speed up, slow down or stop whenever you want to keep your routine interesting and enjoyable.

The best way to look and feel great.

And while you're burning calories, you'll be toning your whole body, reducing stress, increasing your energy and strengthening your cardiovascular system. Rain or shine, in the comfort of your home, WalkFit is simply the best way for you to get a total-body workout. And wait till you see the results! You'll have a thinner waist, flatter stomach — and a well-toned and firmly shaped body. Plus you'll feel as good as you look.

Don't just walk — WalkFit!
