Controversy swirls around township plan

By RANDY COBLE Staff Writer

Will a proposed reorganization help or hurt Northville Township government?

That's the question the board of trustees will consider tonight.

The answer, like so much else when it comes to the controversial plan, depends on whom you talk to.

Manager Tamara Hanlin last month proposed privatizing the township's planning department and making the building department into a subsection of the public utilities department. The idea. she explained, was to save taxpayer dollars and make township operations more efficient.

Some, however, have said that political in-fighting among members of the board is the real reason for the proposal That's a view which Supervisor Karen Baja supports and Hanlin and other mem bers of the board deny

Tonight the trustees will consider reorganization publicly for the first time. Hanlin has asked them to allow her to do three things:

 Negotiate a services contract with McKenna Associates for all planning functions and eliminate the position of Planning and Zoning Administrator McKenna, based in Farmington Hills, is the township's contracted planning consultant firm.

· Work out a separation agreement and/or issue a layoff notice to current Planning and Zoning

Administrator Carol Maise. · Explore the costs associated with combining the Building and Public Utilities Departments, with a formal report to be eventually issued to the board. The plan has its critics, particularly the recommendation to eliminate the planning department One critle is Dick Allen, chairman of the township planning commission and a former member of the board of trustees

School board delays decision on millage, bonds

By ROBERT JACKSON Staff Writer

The Northville Board of Education has postponed its vote on whether to hold a bond and millage election in the fall

Instead the board opted, at its regular meeting Monday, to set tentative target dates - as early as December or as late as next spring to bring the issues before voters

That, according to District Superintendent Leonard Rezmierski, will allow the district time to revisit some of the recommendations of the district's bond, technology, and enhancement commit tees, and formulate a comprehen sive plan to bring to the voters

More importantly, he said, it will give board members additional time and options toward making a final decision on one of the most important issues the district has faced in recent years.

Rezmierski, in his report to the board, attempted to put the board's concerns regarding the issues into perspective

"This is a significant decision for the board and the future needs of the district " he said. The board had a chance to analyze the pros and cons of the millage and bond vote during two recent study sessions, according to Rezmierski

Some of the concerns cited in Rezmierski's report centered around the proposed September election dates and included:

• Whether the district would be able to successfully flie an applica tion with the state by the July 12 deadline. "Given the extensive specifics required in this application, I am not convinced we can finish (the application) with accuracy by the state's deadline." he said

A rider heads out in the morning twilight on the first leg of the 150-mile fund-raiser for Multiple Sclerosis.

Trek for MS begins, ends at race track

Twenty-five Northville residents joined more than 1.000 bike riders taking part in the 10th annual Michigan Multiple Sclero sis 150 Bike Tour last weekend

The riders started their 150 mile trek early Saturday morning, leaving from Northville Downs and pedaling their way to Lansing. After spending the night at the campus of Michigan State University, the riders headed back to Northville Sunday

The cyclists raised funds by collecting pledges for each mile pedaled, according to Elana Noble, public relations manager for the Michigan Chapter of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society

"It was a great time. Everyone seemed to have fun, and we were able to raise quite a bit of money for MS research.' Noble said According to Noble, 1.100 riders took part in raising $550 000 in pledges. Proceeds from the event benefit national

Spring Hill subdivision still stalled after 5 years

By RANDY COBLE Staff Writer

When ground will ever be broken on a subdivision proposed for the western end of Northville Township is still anybody's guess.

Uncertainty about the future is nothing new to those involved in the Lakes at Spring Hill, a 411-lot subdivision, along with an unspecified number of condominiums, proposed for 366 acres that sit just west of the Blue Heron Pointe development on Beck Road.

The plan's been around for five years, has undergone three name changes, sparked dozens of lawsuits and, as of Tuesday afternoon, there was still no end in sight.

Three weeks ago the township board of trustees tabled the latest design plan for Spring Hill to give the property's backer, the Alexander Hamilton company, time to resolve the concerns of some trustees and nearby property owners. To date the the two sides, with township officials acting as intermediaries, haven't come to terms. That makes it unlikely that the board will take action on the subdivision plan at its meeting tonight and increases the chances of more lawsuits being filed.

The original proposal for Spring Hill, submitted in 1990, called for a subdivision with home lots that were large enough to conform to the land's R-2 residential zoning. The plan went down the drain when the business partnership that backed it fell apart, however.

cable accord OK'd

First of its kind

By ROBERT JACKSON Stall Writer

The city of Northville has joined Plymouth, Plymouth Township and Canton in becoming the first communities in the nation to have cable television services provided by the local telephone company.

In a landmark move Tuesday, the Northville City Council unanimously approved a franchise agreement with Ameritech New Media Enterprises for a cable television system

The council took little time to approve the measure, which was billed by cable consultant Larry Monroe as a historic 'first.'

We saw history made here tonight," Monroe said. This city was able to accomplish in little over a month what two adminis trations and 10 years of federal bureaucracy haven't been able to achieve

Monroe said that the national media wasted little time in hailing the proposed agreement

"Northville landed in the media spotlight. This agreement has been written about in major newspaper across the country," he said.

The Wall Street Journal, New York Times, L.A. Times, and USA Today all had stories outlining the Ameritech agreement with the four communities, after the Northville City Council approved a first reading of the ordinance June 27.

NEW APPOINTEES: The Northville City Council approved several city board positions last week.

The council reappointed Rolland Stapleton, James Bress, and Bruce Pegrum to the Zoning Board of Appeals. All three members' currently serve on the board, but their appointments had expired July 1.

The council also appointed Bill Taylor to the city's Planning Commission. Taylor was the choice of the Board and Commission Selection Committee to fill one of two current vacancies on the commission. His term will expire June 30, 1998.

Other reappointments included Karon Frisbie and Patricia Johnson to the city Beautification Committee; Robert Krueger to the Housing Appeals Board; Donald Hansen to the B.O.C.A. Appeals Board; and Jackie Murray, Edith Pegrum, Carol Pappas and Pat Dorrian-Sandbothe to the Arts Commission.

PAVING PROJECT AWARDED: The Northville City Council awarded a $31,250 paving contract last week

The paving company, Thompson-McCully, was awarded the contract and will provide asphalt paying repairs during three operating visits through May 1996.

According to City Manager Gary Word, the program involves the removal of old "cold patch" material used as temporary asphalt on pavement cuts. The cuts were necessary to make water main and other utility repairs, Word said.

The project was budgeted, with $7,500 being charged to the Local Street Fund, and $23,750 charged to the Sewer and Water Fund.

ASSISTANCE PROGRAM CONTINUED: City employees will continue to receive benefits from Northville's Employee Assistance Program. The city council unanimously approved the continuation of the program last week According to City Manager Gary Word, the program is designed to identify and resolve employees' problems thatresult in lost productivity.

The city initiated the program in 1994, and Word said that positive feedback and employee usage warrant the program continuation. The program is run by Mission Health, an off site department of Providence Hospital.

Board of education elects new officers

The Northville Public School District Board of Education elected new officers for the 1995-96 year at its regular meeting Monday.

Richard Brown was elected President, Martha Nield was elected Vice-President, Tom Gudritz was elected Secretary, and Joan Wadsworth was elected to a second term as Treasurer

Outgoing President Robert McMahon thanked board members and district administrators for their support and hard work during a difficult year.

We faced some challenges this past year, and I'd like to thank n.y board colleagues and our administration for their valuable input and their support.

Brown, who along with McMar hon and board member Barbara Bennett were reelected to the board last month, said he looked forward to the challenges and suc cesses of the future

"I'd like to thank the board for their confidence in selecting me as their board president," he said.

Brown has served the board in the capacity of vice-president for the past year.

The non-officer school board trustee is Jean Hansen

Thousands of dollars stolen from gas station

Six men worked together to steal more than $5,600 in cash from the Sunoco gas station at the intersection of Five Mile and Haggerty Roads on Sunday, Northville Township police say.

The store's assistant manager 'told the investigating officers that some of the men distracted him sometime between noon and 12:30 p.m. while others made off with the money, which was being prepared for a bank deposit.

WALLET TAKES A WALK: A contract worker at the site of the Tuscan Cafe reported his wallet stolen July 6.

The worker, who was performing interior remodeling work at the cafe, said that he placed his wallet on a shelf at the front of the cafe, and noticed it missing at about 1 · p.m.

He had left the work site, located at 150 N. Center, to use the public telephone at the corner of Dunlap r and Center, and was gone about 10 minutes. When he returned to retrieve his wallet, he was unable to find it.

The worker told police that people, curious about the renovations, walk in the cafe all the time. The wallet contained approximately $50

Anyone with information pertaining to the wallet should contact the Northville Police Department.

HONEST, I WAS GONNA BRING THEM BACK: Township police arrested two Detroit teenagers for shoplifting and disorderly conduct at Meijer last weekend.

Store detectives called police after allegedly seeing the two girls, both 16, put large amounts of undergarments into three purses, then leave the store.

When the detectives stopped them outside Meijer the two girls allegedly began screaming obscenities at them and making a scene. When questioned by police, one of the teens said she hadn't stolen anything since she'd left the purse she was carrying inside the store. The other claimed that she was "just borrowing" the items.

The two were released to a relative and will be referred to probate court.

YOU MEAN I CAN'T DRIVE 90 MPH? A 27-year-old Northville man, apparently unaccustomed to Michigan driving laws, decided to ignore a flashing red traffic signal at Center Street and Hines Drive at 2:30 a.m. July 4.

Unfortunately for him, a Northville patrol officer observed the suspect's unique driving style and began to pursue the man as he disregarded yet another flashing red traffic signal, this time at Seven Mile Road and Beck - traveling at approximately 80 mph.

The officer chased the suspect, who at several times drifted into the westbound lane while heading east. To compound matters the suspect did not stop, despite the fact that the officer had activated his emergency lights and siren - a clear sign that something probably wasn't quite right with the situation.

As the chase neared Napier Road the suspect was driving approximately 90 to 100 mph, according to the police report. The officer was finally able to stop the suspect after he slowed to turn north on Napier Road.

The officer ordered the suspect from his car and noticed that he lost his balance as he exited the vehicle. The officer then asked the driver to perform the field sobriety test, and the suspect had difficulty with all of the tests.

According to the police report, the suspect had slurred speech and bloodshot eyes. The officer also reported the smell of intoxicants on the suspect's breath.

After being transported to the Northville Police Department, the suspect refused to perform a breath analysis test without representation of an attorney. Police then requested Judge John Mac-Donald grant a search warrant for the drawing of the suspect's blood. MacDonald granted the warrant and the suspect was taken to Providence Medical Center in Novi where his blood was drawn.

The blood sample was then packaged and sent to the Michigan State Police Forensic Laboratory for analysis.

The suspect was held on $100 bond, and was released, after sobering up, according to the police report.

HOW DID THAT GET IN THERE? Township police arrested a Lansing man for stealing two pairs of pants from Meijer last Sunday afternoon.

Store detectives said they saw the man, 41, stuff the pants down the front of his own pants and then leave the store without paying for them. He faces a hearing next Friday in 35th District Court.

CHECK THE BARN, BESSIE'S GONE: A Northville resident noticed something was missing from his front porch on the morning of July 4.

Somebody had taken his cow mailbox.

The mailbox, shaped like a cow and 1-by-2-feet in size, was noticed missing by the resident at about 7:30 a.m. He immediately phoned the Northville Police to report the theft.

Police officials have no leads on the "cattle rustler," but are keeping a look out for possible suspects.

ARGUMENT BRINGS OUT GUN: A 26-year-old Wixom man told township police that another man had threatened him with a gun at the Highland Lakes shopping mall last Sunday.

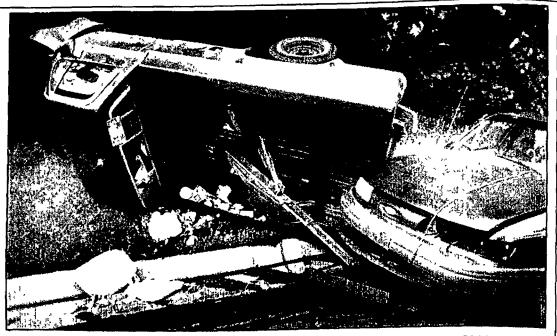

The man had been having problems with his Dodge Daytona and was driving slowly on Seven Mile when he decided to stop the car in the mall's parking lot. As he did so, the man said, a man on a motorcycle drove up and began to argue about how he drove, the man said.

As the Wixom resident got out of the Daytona to confront the man the motorcycle rider then allegedly lifted up his shirt, displaying a handgun stuck in his waistband,

"I have a gun and a badge," the man allegedly told him, adding that he should get back into his car "or be arrested."

The Wixom man then left the area. Township officers looked for but didn't locate the motorcycle rider.

If you have any information about any of these theidents please call Northville Gity Police at 349-1234 or Northville Township Police at 349-9400.

Sub offers reward money

By RANDY COBLE Staff Writer

Vandals looking for a target had better steer clear of one Northville Township neighborhood. In Maplehill, they may soon find a price on their heads.

Maplehill subdivision, a collection of 173 homes, sits on the north side of Six Mile between Winchester and Haggerty Roads. A recent spate of vandalism has prompted the subdivision's board of directors to consider an unusual course of action: offering a reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of anyone involved in vandalism in Maplehili

We're having a lot of incidents of lawns being driving on and a lot of our mailboxes have been damaged," spokesperson Nancy Campbell said. "I wouldn't say we have a vandalism problem but we do want to put an end to this

A firm amount for the reward has not yet been set. A pamphlet outlining the Idea and setting a specific amount is expected to be mailed soon to Maplehill homeowners, Campbell said Northville Township police have offered sup port for the plan as well, Campbell added

She emphasized that the reward will be a one-time, one-person affair and will not be available to more than one person who reports the same incident or to a group of people reporting an incident.

Maplehill's tackling the problem of vandalism together, Campbell said.

"We want it known that we're united and we're standing together on this," she said. "We're not going to lie down for this kind of activi

No prison bed shortage foreseen

The Director of the Michigan Department of Corrections says it now seems likely that a short term bed space crisis will be averted this summer

Director Ken McGinnis announced in Lansing that an unexpected slow down in new commitments to prison during May and June will hopefully allow DOC to get through the summer without exceeding its prison capacity.

Earlier projections called for the DOC to reach "the saturation point" by July 15 The figures have been fluctuating, and may continue to because of unusually erratic prison commitment and parole release dates

Michigan's prison population rose by a total of 83 offenders during the months of May and June The anticipated growth for those months, based on historical commilment trends, was 254 prison ers. By comparison, a total of 710 offenders were sent to the state prison system during March and April

Among the reasons for the unusually low growth are a decline in parole violators being returned to prison and an unexpected leveling off of new prison commitments from the courts

Youth Forum extends plea for help in war on drugs

By RANDY COBLE Staff Writer

Members of Northville Youth Forum want your help in waging the war on drugs.

"We're trying to establish a zero tolerance community and we need the community's help to do it," Forum co-chair John Werth said. The Forum is a volunteer partnership organization among Northville governments, schools, businesses and residents. The group has developed a new pamphlet outlining ways to make Northville a "zero tolerance" community where drugs aren't welcomed.

Forum members want to make sure that every one of the thousands of students in the Northville Public Schools system gets a copy of the pamphlet. To do that they're looking for local businesses that would be willing to place ads in it, or that would donate printing services. "We have to raise money to put the word out," Werth said. "This is the way to spread the message."

The pamphlet measures 6-by-11 inches and full page ads will cost $500. Half-page ads will run $250 and business-card sized ads will cost $100.

The pamphlet explains the entire zero tolerance concept and discusses ways to achieve it.

"The levels of drug use and abuse by the young people of our community are dangerously high," the pamphlet says.

"Worse yet, there seems to be a social acceptance of the use of drugs among young people."

Steering them away from the dangers of substance abuse requires a community commitment, Forum members feel

"Most of us who support zero tolerance for youth substance abuse are not fanatics, tectotalers or proselytizers," the pamphlet says. "We simply want a community for ourselves and our children where the abuse of drugs and alcohol among young people is not widespread and accepted."

Ways to spread the word exist everywhere, the pamphlet explains.

Leadership examples by parents and students, school programs and a public information campaign will help get the message out, it adds.

Youth Forum is hoping that eventually a zero tolerance sticker or sign could be created and then distributed to township homes and businesses for display.

"Ultimately we'd like to see one up everywhere," Werth said "We want the whole town involved."

For more information about advertising in the pamphlet or about Youth Forum contact Werth at 349-9400 or Bob Sornson at 344-8443.

Many community residents and visitors shared a day of fun and old fashioned amusement while being entertained by musician Julie Fountain. Ming the Magician, Matt Hatch and Chester, dulcimer music by Charlene Berry and reenactments by the 17th and 21st Michigan Civil War reenactors

Docents provided information on all buildings throughout the afternoon Hot dogs sold by the Rotary and home baked goods sold by the Historical Society both:ran out quickly. The Mill Race Weavers, blacksmith Owen Createau, the local rug hookers and the local basket weavers all provided demonstrations of their crafts throughout the afternoon

The gardens of Mill Race Village were a featured part of the July 12 garden walk held by the Country Garden Club Northville branch. These charming gardens can be viewed every day from sun up to sun down free-of-charge at Mill Race Village.

The village buildings are open for public viewing each Sunday from 1-4 p m, from June until October The organization continues to need docents to staff the buildings on Sunday afternoons If interested call 348-1845

Recently this column has featured articles about community residents as well as some general community history. Periodically, it is good to return to a general overall view of the Historical Society's role and part in this community's history.

The Northville Historical Society was established in 1965 by a group of citizens of the community interested in preserving the community's history. An immediate pressing concern was preservation of the Lapham Library slated for demolition by eity planners. Demolition and destruction of the Victorian character of the former village also concerned the first members These two concerns led to the establishment of the Historical Society which set about looking for a location to house buildings moved for community expansion and the Historic District Commission to create a district and maintain historic integrity in that district.

Both groups became successful locating land to create Mill Race Village and establish the Historic District Northville knows today.

Mill Race Village was created on land donated to the city by Ford Motor Co. Henry Ford purchased this land in 1917 from a Yerkes descendant who ran a mill at the location Ford had the null torn down The site had held mills from the very beginning of the village.

John Miller established the village's first industry, a grist mill, on the site in 1827. The mill served as the focus for establishment of a community on this portion of the Rouge River in what was then Town One South Range Eight East. Settlers in the 72square mile town met at about that time and the township of Plymouth was created.

Within 10 years the bottom portion split away to become Canton Township, but Plymouth and Northville remained united until much later.

Several villages sprang up in the township Most prominent were Waterford, Plymouth, Northville, and Phoenix. Historic sources seem to hint that initially Waterford was the largest. It served as the most central of the township cities Within 25 years both Plymouth and Northville surpassed it Twentyfive years after that it almost ceased to exist Phoenix and other small enclaves never caught on at all More about the Northville community in weeks to come.

Autopsy shows five geese might have ingested pesticide

By ROBERT JACKSON Staff Writer

The dead geese found at a Novi apartment complex last month may have died as a result of pesticide poisoning, according to preliminary findings from the Department'of Natural Resources.

Five geese were found dead, in the pond June 24, at North Hills Village Apartments, located at 44840 North Hills Drive

Tom Cooley, a DNR wildlife employee who performed the autopsies on two birds collected from the site, said that the ammals may have died after ingesting the pesticide diazinon.

"Both birds exhibited yellow deposits on the lungs, and one bird had a granule-type substance in the esophagus," Cooley said "What I found would lead me to believe that diazinon may be involved."

Cooley said the final toxicology report should give some definite answers. The test results should be complete by early next week, he saïd.

Diazinon is a commonly used pesticide that is applied to lawns to specifically kill grubs, according to Cooley

"It's used to get rid of moles," he said. "By killing the grubs you eliminate the moles' food supply."

North Hills Apartment Manager Jane Horan said the complex did not ever spray diazinon or any other pesticide. "The last time we had the lawn treated was over six months ago," she said

There have been no geese deaths within the past three weeks, she added.

Horan had earlier stated that the complex did spray the chemical Rejexit around the pond area to make the geese sick. Horan admitted the measure didn't work

"It didn't force them out, it didn't get the geese sick, it just did nothing," she explained.

According to Cooley, if diazinon was the agent that caused the bird's demise, it did so quickly

"If the geese did ingest this chemical, it killed them within six or seven hours," he said.

Diazinon would have had a fatal affect on the bird's central nervous system, which controls breathing and heart rate. Cooley said.

Rejexit, according to the DNR is a non-toxic chemical that is approved for use by the DNR and the Environmental Protection Agency. Horan said that before the Rejexit was used she contacted the "If the geese did ingest this chemical, it killed them within six or seven hours."

> -Tom Cooley State DNR

DNR for their approval.

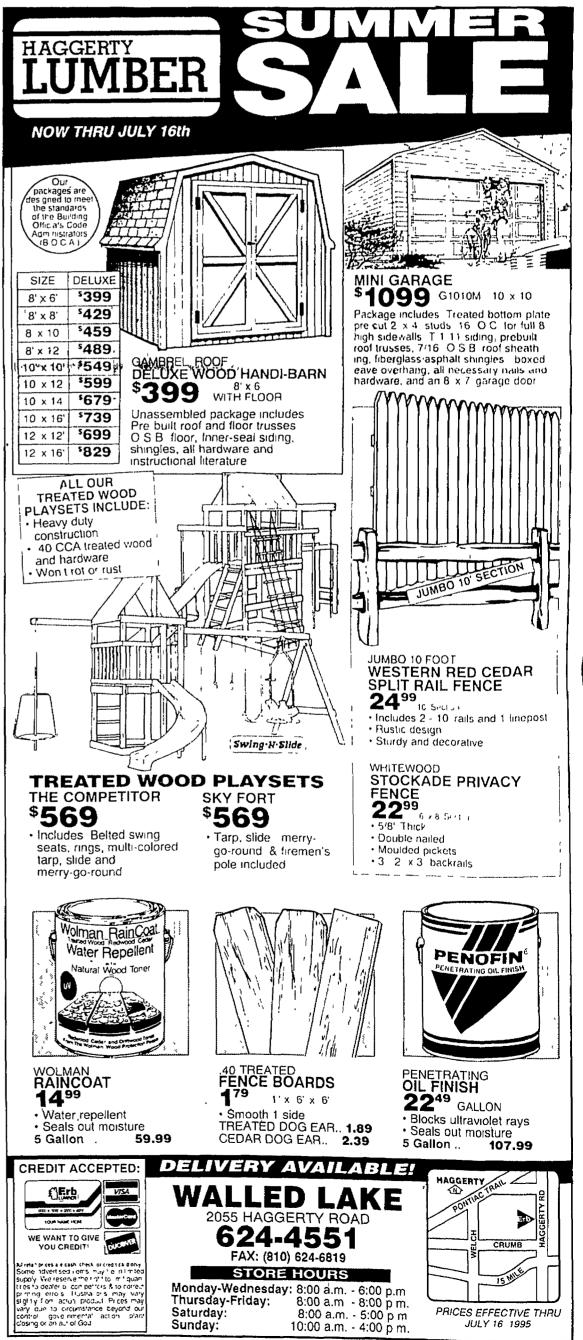

Horan also stated that the threatening phone calls, which she received the weekend of June 24, have stopped

"Things have pretty much calmed down and I haven't received anymore bad phone calls," she said.

"I'm still upset over the whole situation We haven't had anymore incidents and we're trying to get back to normal around here," she said. "And try as 1 might, 111 always feel a bit unsettled.

"This whole mess will always rest in the back of my mind," she added

After news of the deaths got out, some people accused the apartment manager of deliberately poisoning the geese

The seven members of the Nov Board of Education were sequestered overnight at Eastern Michigan University last Friday to learn how to get along and work together

Team building and getting-toknow you activities provided an ice breaker for two new board members Carol Elfring and Ann Newton and helped acclimate the two to the other personalities on the board The session was also helpful for George Kortlandt, a one year member of the board who is still technically a rookie.

"Everybody thought it was a good session," said Board President Craig Foreback. "It was a chance for the two new board members to get to know everybody on the board and for us, to bring them up to speed on the long range planning" The overnight workshop-was facilitated by Novi Schools Super-facilitated by Novi Schools Superintendent Emmeti Lippe and Assistant Superintendent of Instruction Rita Traynor.

James Koster, assistant superintendent of operations and administrative services, and Robert Schram, the directive of community relations, also joined the group to help set goals for the future.

"We did a lot of round robin, team building activities and assessed the district's strengths and challenges," Foreback said.

The group discussed goals for the school district and the board of education but hasn't written specific objectives' just yet. Those will come when the board revisits the discussion at the August 3 board meeting.

"We had a lot of good ideas." he said

Foreback said board members agreed to create a communication committee a subcommittee of the board of education, to help increase communication between the board and the community

Nominate a senior to honor at fair or volunteers will be honored in August at the Michigan State Fair - but first the state has to find them.

Diane K. Braunstein, director of the Michigan Office of Services to the Aging, said those selected for the awards are unsung heroes. She said nominations are beginning to come in but she'd like to see many more. "They are our neighbors, our friends, our stalwart citizens who can be counted on to get a job done." she explained.

For more than 25 years the Aging and the State Fair have teamed together to recognize outstanding seniors. Among those honored in the past are retired physicians, homemakers, public employees, teachers, nurses, building contractors, utility workers, business owners, auto workers, skilled craftsmen, and a director of a meals program on an Indian reservation.

To be nominated, a person must be age 60 or older as of Aug. 4 They must be nominated by an organization that is willing to complete a simple nomination form.

Two seniors who excel as leaders State Office of Services to the Forms can be obtained through the State Office of Services to the Aging, or through any of Michigan's Area Agencies on Aging. Nominations must be postmarked by Aug. 4.

In addition to state recognition, this year's winners will receive a cash award.

While Braunstein said she'd like to see more than just two winners recognized annually through this award - one for leadership, the other for service - she believes that the winners are representative of a new breed of senior citizen.

"The winners in recent years are active 'doers.

"They aren't concerned about how to spend their retirement years. They are out there giving their time and energy, benefiting others, but also taking great pride and satisfaction in the work that they do," she said.

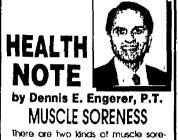

Braunstein added that many county fairs are not incorporating senior awards competitions into their programs:

"This is a great way to include many more older adults deserving of a tribute and recognition and it helps to dispel the stereotype of retirees as takers of the system rather than givers to the system."

Made possible by Consumers! Power Company, the state's largest gas utility, this is the fourth consecutive year that the company has helped to underwrite the cost! of this program.

"I look forward to presentation of Senior Citizen of the Year Awards. this year at the State Fair, Aug. 28." Braunstein said.

"I hope people will start the process now to nominate that outstanding senior who might otherwise, forever, go unrecognized."

Festival goers have chance to play with master flutist

Attention flutists.

Grab your instruments and nusic stands and showcase your alent as Warner/Reprise recordng artist Alexander Zonjic and Friends invites you to join the band for "Hi-Falutin' Thursday."

The July 13 event is part of the Farmington Founders Festival this weekend.

The session is open to flutists of gany age and skill level who can read music and who want to play with a nationally-renowned professional.

The concert will take place at -7:30 p.m. at the Showmobile in downtown Farmington and will serve as the entertainment lineup kick-off for the festivities.

Zonjic will follow up with a solo concert.

"It's a great chance to participate with an acclaimed artist who encourages the art and encourages young people to pursue their talents," said festival entertainment coordinator Eric Johnston

"It's going to be a lot of fun " Three pieces of music will be performed by as many flutists as show up, including "The Galway Piper" and Hayden's "Allegro." Zonjic explained that the music was chosen based on its familiarity to flutists.

"The last thing we wanted to do was' intimidate those who perhaps haven't played for very long. "These pieces will be lighthearted and familiar and hopefully will be the catalyst of bringing a lot of flutists out," Johnston explained.

"It's a great opportunity to play with an accomplished musician and an exciting chance to challenge yourself."

Zonjic has just released his sixth album, "Passion" and is now working on a Christmas album. He will also perform at the festival at 8:30 p.m. on July 14 and July 15. Performances are free

Ready to'become a star yourself? Pick up the music and register at the Farmington Chamber of Com-merce, 33000 Thomas Street, Farmington and show up at 7 p m on July 13 with a music stand. There is no registration deadline.

Police take aim at range

By RANDY COBLE Staff Writer

If you've heard gunshots at the Michigan State Police Post on Seven Mile. don't worry: it's just a dnll.

As a matter of fact, it's a lot of drills. Troopers from all over the Metro area receive firearm training and undergo weapons examinations at the post's outdoor target range.

Although questions and complaints have been few and far between, State Police Captain Chris Hogan said he wants to get the word out about the range to Northville citizens.

"This range is a tool to hone trooper skills. It's not for some-body's recreation," Hogan said "Most police officers won't see gunfire during the whole of their careers. If they do, though, we want them to be prepared. This helps us to develop weapons proficiency and do our jobs better "

The State Police built the range last spring after encountering a scheduling and cost problems when trying to train troopers on private area gun ranges

Luger, the white German shepherd owned by Pam Koons, practices the agility course.

More than just humans will rock at '50s festival

By JAN JEFFRES Staff Writer

Not only can the general public enjoy a free live performance by some engaging entertainers at this year's Michigan '50s Festival, but after the show fans can scratch their favorite stars behind the ears or on the belly.

The July event is definitely going to the dogs Including Splash, Luger, Darla, Indy, Hurry, Eva and 16 or more other members in good standing of the Prestige Rock 'N' Roll K-9s.

If you love mutts (or pedigreed types), this act is going to make you sit up and beg for more.

"We do all positive training, petting and love for our animals. Our dogs do this because they want to, they have fun with it," said professional trainer Karen Simchak of Wixom.

"It doesn't matter what size or what age. We accept everyone."

Novi resident Pam Koons, stage mother to a tunnel-loving white German shepherd, Luger, suggested that the team go out for the festival. You could say these dogs are hams.

"The dogs literally start showing off: The spotlight's on us, let's see what we can do." she said.

their paces are family pets as diverse as a Papillon and a Borzon; dogs ranging in age from early puppyhood to quite a bit longer in the fang. They'll demonstrate their agility, compete in fly ball and barrel races, run relays, jump hurdles and maneuver seesaws.

This is the group's debut as a team, although individual members have performed with the lam Superdogs and the North American Dog Racing Association.

Don't imagine these hounds were born talented. Many of them were salvaged from "death row," where they'd be dumped by previous owners.

Darla is a sweet Irish Setter who was left at a Humane Society animal shelter five years ago as "unmanageable." At 7, she's proving you can too teach an old dog new tricks, owner Carol Potter of Northville says.

Darla is not only performing but is an accomplished pet "therapist" who cheers up patients at Botsford Hospital.

"She apparently did not have a good home. She got rescued so that she could help some people at their hospital," Potter said.

POG craze slams big time into local store

By JAN JEFFRES Staff Writer

If you're a kid between the ages of 5 and 12 or so, or if you're the parent of such a marvel don t bother to read this article

Because you won't learn any thing you don't already know about POGs, sometimes referred to as the marbles of the 1990s

But while the strange fad appears to have peaked locally around Easter time, kids are still trickling in daily to "Rookies and Legends" on the corner of Grand River and Novi Road to add to their collection of the round cardboard discs.

Yup round cardboard discs with pictures on them and prices begin ning at a nickel and going on up Gotta have them. Gotta have them. by the hundreds.

"Six months ago it started to catch on, then it was real strong up until about a couple of weeks after Easter," says store owner Steve Iverson Sales are 20 percent of what they used to be. We really won't know until the kids go back to school. That will be the make it or break it point "

At peak, he said he was selling $1,000 of POGs a week, with the average purchase about $5. Soonto come out Star Wars POGs are expected to zap up the interest level

However, California dealers are currently unloading their back stock in the Midwest, due to dwmdling interest on the coast

In shopping, Matthew Nichols, 11, of South Lyon, admits he has 'too many' of the things Five hundred to be precise. He prefers the ones which change pictures Last week he handed over a crumpled wad of $9 dollar bills to add to his collection, while his mom chipped in another $1.

"I like the O.J one because it says on the slammer guilty or not guilty," he added

So who needs a jury?

His buddy Dennis Reedy 9, also collects and plays with 'em, but has a mere 300.

"I put them in tubes for keeps," Dennis advised.

Like most fads, this one started somewhere in a Pacific state, only this time all the way out in Hawaii about five years ago, when an elementary school teacher introduced her version of a game played with now-extinct milk caps. She used the caps of a Pineapple-Orange-

Guava fruit drink, hence POGs. The craze picked up late last year in California before moving out this way But of course a wellsupplied youngster doesn't just need POGs ad infinitum. Also obligatory is a large plastic or rubber disc - the slammer - used to whack the cardboard ones.

These can cost from 75 cents/to $40 Then a tube to store them all in Tubes range in size from about five inches to 24 inches, but can connect to one another like hamster or gerbil tubes, thereby creating a new art form.

Moms and dads like the POGs which feature Pocahontas, Star Trek or the Lion King. Kids tend to like a grosser fare like Power Rangers, Rat Fink or Poison, which features skulls and cross-that their picture side is down. POGs and baseball cards and comic books than I do shopping with a slammer and the ones for groceries. which turn over are commandeered by the player "I just can't understand the fas-Or, if a kid like Matthew scatters cination with them. They're little his POGs on the floor, his mom is pieces of cardboard. Chad Thompson of Novi was in

Youth agency seeks mentors

Northville Youth Assistance, the organization that matches adult volunteers with youths who need adult mentoring and companionship, begins a volunteer training program Sept. 14.

Volunteers must complete a 5week training session consisting of one, 3-hour session per week.

NYA Director Mary Ellen King says NYA has a waiting list for boys who are in need of male friendship and role models. Particularly needy is a 5-year-old boy who experiences little contact with his natural father.

Volunteers are asked to spend at least two hours a week with the youth with whom they've been palred.

Young drivers can lower insurance premiums

Younger drivers are three times as likely to be involved in a traffic accident, compared to motorists aged 65-74. This is one finding from statistics just released by the Michigan State Police and compiled by Michigan Association of Insurance Companies.

An insurance spokesman offered the following suggestions for controlling the cost of auto insurance: • Drive less. Rates are determined by the amount and type of driving you do. Select your car carefully. Rates are based on its cost, repairability and performance characteristics. Coordinate Personal Injury

Protection (PIP) coverage if you have other accident and health insurance

There she is .. Little Miss Northville.

It may not be her official title but a lot of folks around town think that youngster Stephanie Zaas sure deserves it.

Stephanie, 6, beat out children from all over Michigan in the state finals of the Miss American Princess Pageant last weekend. The Northville, Township resident missed taking the state crown and advancing to the nationals by inches, placing among the top 20 contestants of the 183-entrant field.

"Im gonna win next year," Stephanie said with a grin. She just might be right, given her track record Stephanie was that she did so well I mean, what among the 40 best pageant hopeare the chances? It's so amazing fuls last year, entered by her

Wearing a peach dress adorned mother Robin's brother on a with lace, her hair in curls, the youngster won over the judges hunch. Her strong showing led family and a bevy of friends to with a "speech," giving her name, age, address and telling what she wanted to be when she grew up. "I said I wanted to be an artist,"

Stephanie explained.

Of course, she wanted to be something else last year and she'll probably want to be something dif-ferent next year. Robin added with a laugh.

Whatever happens, though, little Stephanie is a winner with her parents, who tell her that "win or lose, you will always be our little princess

Day-long seniors' event planned

State Reps. Gerald Law, R-Plymouth and Deborah Whyman, R-Canton Township, have appointed three area residents to help organize a special fall event for senior citizens.

Among the three appointed to the eight-member advisory panel is Dorothy Tilney, a longtime resident of Northville.

The panel will work out details for the first Western Wayne County Senior Celebration Day. The event, sponsored by Whyman and Law, will be held Saturday, Sept. 16, at Burton Manor in Livonia. The program includes issues, workshops, entertainment, and a consumer and health fair.

Secretary of State Candice Miller and Esther Shapiro, director of Detroit's Consumer Affairs Department, will be the keynote speak-

According to Rep. Law, "Dorothy has had years of experience in organizing events and grass-roots projects. She understands how to put together a first-rate production, and I look for her to keep the planning process moving."

Law represents Northville Township and the Wayne County portion of the city in Lansing.

Tilney is a former executive secretary for the director of psychology at the Michigan Department of Health, and served on the Northville Senior Citizen Advisory Council. She is a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution, Colonial Dames of the 17th Century, Veterans of Foreign Wars > Auxiliary-Post No. 4012, and Northville Women's Club. She is also the district coordinator for-

Law added that many are excited about the senior gathering and look forward to attending.

"We have had a great response, and the enthusiasm keeps building," Law said. "I guarantee there , will be something for everyone." For information, contact Sallie, Nyhan at (517) 373-1863.

Rouge water quality earns 'good' rating

Education and citizen involve- along its four main branches, ment are what will save the Rouge River, now ranking at 70, in the "low end of the good range" in water quality, based on a range of zero to 100.

That's the assessment of Jim Graham, executive director of the Friends of the Rouge. Graham said that a ranking of 100 would mean a pristine water source.

The non-profit, largely volunteer group has spent nine years sending teachers and their students out to study the river's quality draining 470 square miles of southeastern Oakland County, western Wayne County and a small portion of eastern Washtenaw County.

But Graham said his group also is concerned about attempts to change the Clean Water Act. He said the act has has a "positive influence" on limiting industrial pollution, adding that one Ford Motor Co. plant actually returns water to the Rouge cleaner than when it's removed.

Also helping water quality on the Rouge will be the construction of sewer and overflow basins to contain water in wet weather conditions. Graham said the basins are expected to reduce raw sewage by 85 percent, "but it won't fix it for fishing or swimming yet."

To do that, we'll all have to take a look at the way we live, accord-ing to Graham. "Storm water runoff is the latest challenge," he said. "Livonia is the first in our area that must have a storm water permit. Storm water must be treated. It's a major challenge." The Rouge suffers, Graham said, because it isn't largely fed by, ... underground springs.

me to (watch how) we take care of our houses and our cars," he said. To accomplish that, groups such as the Boy Scouts have been, , recruited to paint the following message near Rouge River storm, drains: "Dump no waste; drains to Rouge River.'

In between the two lines is a symbol of hope – a fish.

Students from abroad will arrive in the United States this August to fulfill an American dream. Teenagers from Germany, Brazil, Japan, Netherlands, Russia, Spain and many other countries will arrive for 5-10 months to live with an American family and attend local high schools.

These young ambassadors from abroad are carefully screened for their English and academic abilities, and arrive with their own health insurance and spending money.

Since 1981, the not-for-profit AIFS Foundation's Academic Year in America (AYA) program has been successfully finding homes for foreign high school students in Michigan Opening one's home to a young person from abroad is a means of taking a trip without ever leaving home - and AYA host families come to know their student as their own "sons" or "daughters."

AYA host Laura Wier says this about her family's experience with Jan Schiefer of Germany.

"He arrived into our lives a stranger and is leaving as a son. That is a wonderful feeling. My life is richer just knowing him."

Jan, who has recently returned home, says, "Of course I am glad to see my family and friends in Germany but I know I'll always have a second home in the States." Whether you have young children, teenage children or no children, you may qualify as a host family if you can provide a bed, a place to study, two meals a day and an open heart.

Interested families are invited to choose the boy or girl who would best fit in with their lifestyles and interests, and hosting can last for five or 10 months.

In addition to the benefits of learning about another culture, a host family receives a scholarship for travel or study abroad.

Interested families may contact Michigan Regional Director Suzi Power-Morris at 1-800-322-4678, ext. 5417.

mission upset, according to Monnoe, because the company was able to sidestep FCC regulations. 15 "They were, able to negotiate around FCC regulations because they formed a separate entity to run the cable operations," he hxplained.

Meanwhile Northville and the other three members of the cable consortium all sit in the enviable position of having two cable companies competing evenly - yet another first, according to Monroe.

The city had been negotiating with Omnicom Inc, the current gable provider, when Ameritech made its offer.

, Ameritech had been initially negotiating with Plymouth, Plymouth Township and Canton for a qable agreement, when they were approached by Northville City Manager Gary Word. Word expressed the city's interest in being included in the consortium and began negotiations with Ameritech immediately.

The agreement, according to Ameritech New Media President Greg Brown, has come down to a matter of choice.

"This agreement, and the short time it took to finalize, clearly demonstrates that the community and the consumers want more choices than they have today." Brown said.

According to Brown there are about 110,000 residents living in the four city service area. The cities in the Midwest.

The key ingredients of the agreement are the features that will be provided to cable customers. They include:

· Construction of a 750 megahertz fiber-to-the-node cable system that will provide interactivity.

• Initial activation of 70 to 90 programming channels - some of which will be pay-per-view.

• A construction schedule that targets initial activation of the system within nine months and completion of the system within 22 months This means Northville can conceivably expect initial activation by March 1996 and completion of the system by April of 1997

• A leased access channel for the collective use of the four communities - which can be used as a revenue enhancement device. The channel will be separate from any public, educational, or governmental access requirements. · Matters relating to loss of service will be responded to and corrected within 12 hours of notification

· Service calls will occur within four-hour time periods that will be scheduled with the subscriber's concurrence.

• No penalty will be imposed if cable service is switched to another multi-channel service provider.

· Continuity of service provisions that protects the customer. This means that customers will never have to worry about service being interrupted or discontinued due to abandonment of the cable system, expiration of the franchise, or non-renewal of the franchise.

"I find it rather surprising that this hasn't been discussed with members of the commission," Allen said, for a start.

He also noted that in the 1980s the township examined privatizing the planning department and decided it wasn't a good idea.

"We found that it was cheaper and better to have someone mhouse," he said "With a private firm, there's no one on the premises to handle the day to day to pick up the phone to call a consultant and then the money meter starts.

"The system isn't the least bit user-friendly to citizens or whoev-er," Allen added. "I have some serious concerns about this plan." Hanlin, who said she had not seen the 1980s analysis, disagreed. "That was then, this is now," she said. "I feel this plan is a good one and will save money." She added that according to her requests for information. You have numbers the amount of money the township would save is "significant," but declined to discuss specifics before tonight's meeting.

As to discussing reorganization with members of the planning commission or zoning board of appeal, Hanlin said that she felt that was a job properly reserved for elected officials.

Other doubters of reorganization are Maise and Kruszewski. This week they claimed that the proposal would actually do the opposite of what Hanlin predicts:

increase costs and decrease efficiency.

"Completely privatizing the planning department will be incredibly expensive for the township," Maise said. "It's also going to affect the level of service we can offer. You need someone here to answer questions that knows the ins and outs of the community."

"I don't see any advantage to the township from this plan." Kruszewski said. "Absolutely none. Where's the cost or efficiency benefit? I don't see it."

lective bargaining unit.

A June 20 letter from 214 President Joe Valenti to Hanlin, sent anonymously to The Northville Record, warns the township against the reorganization plan.

"Any restructuring or changing of 'status quo' while this petition is pending will result in costly litigation against the township," the letter said.

Valenti, who is handling the township election, was unavailable for comment.

Hanlin denied the letter's implication that the proposed reorganization is an attempt to torpedo the union election.

"The reorganization plan was presented June 15. The petition was sent June 19," Hanlin said. 'They're reacting to the plan. The plan's not a reaction to the petition.'

The letter won't influence her position on the controversial proposal, she added.

"I don't give up the right to manage this organization more efficiently and more cost effectively because they've filed a petition." Hanlin said.

The 10 workers include all fulltime and regular part-time employees of the Building, Planning and Public Utilities departments. No date for the unionization election has yet been set as the township and the Teamsters begin to jump through a complicated and lengthy series of legal hoops

The first step will come when MERC officials meet with both sides next week. A formal hearing will follow next month. The township plans to oppose the move. Hanlin said.

"We don't believe that the composition of the unit is appropriate." she said "Supervisory and nonsupervisory personnel shouldn't be in the same bargaining unit."

port the need for a new high school. "How does the community/citizens know we have a need to build a new high school?" he asked. "When will this overcrowding occur?'

• Many issues will face the district in September, Rezmierski said, including School Code Revision hearings, oral arguments on the pre-funded health cost issue. the potential for a shortfall in finances, and the successful opening of school.

Rezmierski said he still supported the recommendation to present voters with both millage requests on the same day as a single ballot. but explained he was concerned with the proposed September 23 or 25 vote dates.

The question, he asked board members, is can the district mount a successful and thorough campaign in August and September with all that needs to be done? He offered the board with two alternatives:

Dec. 9 or 11 Rezmierski believes these dates would provide more time to finish the state applications, verify the new high school building costs, and allow time to implement a campaign without major district operations taking place

 Spring of 1996 Rezmierski said April or May could be too long to wait, and could possibly have an impact on construction comple tion of the new high school

"I recommend we have a December millage vote thereby affording

By shooting down the tentative September election dates the board also knowingly forfeits the second year of availability to ask voters for two enhancement mills

The move requires the district to reconvene the Enhancement Committee to reconsider their recommendation, with only one year of enhancement millage left.

Rezmierski asked the board to consider reducing the fund balance request in the enhancement millage to $550,000 as opposed to the original $1.1 million requested

"The state is still not settled with Proposition A payments to districts, and we still face potential reductions and reduced state rev-enue forecasts," Rezmierski said "However, we have heard how hard this request will be to the cilizens. asking to borrow (funds) to save (funds)

Renovate the current high school into a new middle school and expand Silver Springs Elementary School at a cost of $3.2 million

 Purchase technology hardware at a cost of $5 million.

· Make infrastructure improvements at a cost of $6.1 million.

Rezmierski requested the board pare down the recommended $6.1 million for infrastructure needs by $1.1 million.

"We can defend all the items (in the initial recommendation) and the only way to begin to correct these growing needs is to get a jump start in every building," he said.

"However, I believe it is possible to utilize general operating funds to help offset the infrastructure needs .. and I recommend we request $5 million in infrastructure needs from the bond millage issue effect a high school that addresses will have to consider curriculum, all needs for all students," Johnson said.

What will the 21st century hold in store for the students and teachers of Northville High School? That's the question Northville High School principal Tom Johnson has been asking himself this past year.

Johnson wants to use the momentum and enthusiasm created in this year's study group sessions to be innovative and creative with ideas for the future.

"I've been the high school principal for five years now. The first four years we seemed to be plodding along," Johnson said. "That changed this past year. We saw change in our teachers, a change in their outlook and the impact they were making with our students."

The committee will consist of 23 members, representing all aspects of the community, according to Johnson. The board of education and district administration will be responsible for directing the committee.

'We experienced a positive change this year when the board gave (teachers and administrators) time to work together," Johnson said. "That transferred into actions that have our teachers excited." To be successful the committee learning theory, delivery system, a reconfigured school day, and school climate, according to Johnson. "We want to focus on these issues to make our high school great, and at the same time not lose sight of the day-to-day issues," Johnson said.

District Superintendent Leonard Rezmierski said that community involvement will also be necessary if the committee is to be successful. "Keeping an open dialogue between teachers, administrators, board members and community members is of utmost importance," he said.

"We have struck on some ambitious goals that is going to require the entire community become involved," Rezmierski added. "This is not a one-year task. I see this committee functioning in a multi-

Northville Talk of the Week / by ROBERT JACKSON

There are two people I need to thank this week

While I have been getting my "feet wet" in Northville - learning my beat so to speak - I have placed quite a few phone calls to Northville School Superintendent Leonard Rezmiers-ki's office I've had plenty of questions to ask Dr. Řezmierski, most having to do with the budget and with financing educa-tion He's been good about returning my calls, and answering my questions While I really appreciate his timely responses, there are two people in his office that make the whole arrangement workable. They are Dr. Rezmerski's "right hand" women.

Marge Dobbs and Thelma Moore.

And while you might not hear their names mentioned at meetings or see them in the forefront. I'm here to tell you these two have have done as much - as far as my dealings with the district are concerned – for the district's public relations effort as anybody.

On any given day Marge might get three or four phone calls from me

Is Dr. Rezmierski in?"

"I couldn't find this item in my agenda packet."

"Who do I need to talk to regarding ..." Each time I call she patiently listens to my questions and points me in the right direction When Rezmierski isn't able to return my call right away, Marge calls me right back to tell me when he's next 'available. Not once has she made me feel like my call was an inconvenience.

Thelma is exactly the same way.

They both ensure I get my meeting agenda packets in plenty of time to study them and they generally keep me up to speed on the fast paced action currently being enjoyed by our school district

They do that and more - without a complaint In my mind they both need to be recognized - at least a certificate from the board for a job well done. And as for me Perhaps a public thank you is in order! Marge Thelma This pesky reporter appreciates all your help. Thanks.

JUST WHEN YOU THOUGHT IT WAS SAFE to read the "A" section of your Northville Record, we provide you with the perilous page perusing (boy I love using alliterations) of Talk of the Week

DISTRICT PAYS TRIBUTE: The Northville Public School District said goodbye to a familiar and valuable employee Monday. Yvonne Stephens, the district's Food Service Supervisor will retire from her position effective July 14

A district employee from 1979. Stephens diligently served the board of education and the children of the Northville Public Schools, according to Superintendent Leonard Rezmierski

The board of education honored Stephens with a resolution recognizing her service to the community.

"The unselfish expenditure of time and effort by Yvonne Stephens will long be remembered and appreciated by the citizens, students, staff and board members of the school district, ' the resolution stat ed. 'The board of education, on behalf of the people, hereby expresses appreciation and best wishes for many years of happy. productive retirement.

Yvonne will now devote her attentions to enjoying retirement with her husband Ray

Goodbye Yvonne, we appreciate your service to the community and wish you the best of luck.

WHAT A CROWD: For those of you who missed it - and judging from the attendance very few of you did - the Northville Fourth of July celebration was a huge (and I mean HUGE) success.

According to Karen Woodside, who had the unenviable task of directing the day's events, approximately 13,000 spectators lined the streets of Northville to watch the parade Another 400-500 people attended the concert later in the afternoon, and approximately 25,000 to 30 000 people enjoyed the fireworks.

"It was just so exciting to see all the people, all the families enjoying the activities," Woodside said. "I couldn't believe the crowd at the fireworks - you could see headlights forever along Six Mile Road, and traffic was backed up all the way to Newburgh Road in Livonia

Woodside expressed her thanks to all of the people who pitched in" and support-ed the event. "It was great We got so much support from the community and the businesses." she said

PATRIOTIC PEDDLERS: Yes. the results of the bike parade have also been tabulated and the following children received honors:

6 and under category - First Place Joseph Lucas, Second Place Lauren Frampton: Third Place Christopher Long. 7 to 9 year old category - First Place Ryan Deutscendorf; Second Place Caitlin Wixted, Third Place Kevin Poenisch.

10 to 12 year old category - First Place (ne) Greg Johnson and Andy Fielhauer. Second Place Clark Paciorek.

THE VOTES ARE STILL COMIN' IN: Unfortunately there was a mix up in judging two categories from the Fourth of July Parade.

In the Junior Marching category, the third place winner, the Northville High School Cheerleaders, didn't want to take part in the judging Therefore the third place award goes to the Walt Disney Chapter of DeMolay.

The other judging glitch involved the Flying Aces Frisbee Team, which placed third in the animal category.

The only problem, there were no animals on the team It seems they were listed in the wrong category, and nobody caught it. So the new third place winners are the Clydesdales.

Congratulations to the awardees, and we're sorry for the mix-up

AND SOCKS TO MATCH: If you remember from last week's column. Chuck Keys was the recipient of the Bob Jackson Parade Award for sporting that wonderful American Flag tie.

Well, I got a call this week from Chuck and he voiced his disappointment that I didn't mention anything about his socks, which were designed to resemble the Flag as well. Thanks for the call Chuck, but any other personal articles of clothing bearing the Stars & Stripes won't make it into the Talk of the Week!

PLEASE HOLD THE TOMATO, JEFF: I'm happy to report that Jeff Koche has succeeded in gaining summer employment, which will be a relief to his mother Roxanne.

The 17-year-old negotiated a contract with a nationally renowned sandwich chain, specializing in submarines.

Congratulations Jeff, and remember, I like extra cheese on my ham subs!

That and other issues led to the lawyers for all sides being called in, and the matter headed to Wayne County Circuit Court. In 1992 the township and the developer agreed to a controversial consent judgment to break the logjam.

Judge Patricia Harwood's order authorized a new design plan for the Spring Hill property one which used the rules of the township's Planned Residential Unit Development (PRUD) ordinance option.

The PRUD is a tradeoff of sorts, essentially allowing a developer to have lots that are smaller than the land's conventional zoning in return for preserving an area's natural features. In this case the Spring Hill land is host to several welland areas and man-made lakes.

Harwood's order called for a PRUD with home lots that were far smaller than what the land's R-2 zoning would allow. The board in December 1993 gave preliminary approval to the design plan, albeit with a series of conditions.

Not everyone felt that was the right move, however, particularly given the fact the PRUD ordinance has been replaced by a somewhat differently-worded "open space" ordinance option.

Questions have been raised about which ordinance's standards the township is allowed to use in reviewing and approving the plan and what the consent judgment does and doesn't allow it to approve or deny. A key issue of dispute are the plan's provisions for transitional use to nearby properties. Nearby property owners have protested Spring Hill's design. They say that it would make their land economically undevelopable because the Spring Hill homes would be much smaller than the R-2 size homes they would have to build

No buffer or other transition has been proposed between their properties and Spring Hill, they add. There has talk of possible litigation.

Township officials have spent the last few weeks trying to get an agreement between the property owners and the developer to clear the way for Spring Hill's final approval. Offers have been considered, Manager Tamara Hanlin said Tuesday, but no resolution has yet occurred

Subdivision plan stalled Local schools get foundation grant

By SHARON CONDRON

The W.K. Kellogg Foundation has awarded a $13,700 grant to fund a leadership project spearheaded by Novi and Northville Schools' Superintendents.

I's relice the man incoming a privation of

The Galileo Project, is a regional educational leadership academy. which will train people to be leaders in the 21st century.

The grant will fund the initial phase of the academy and help to develop a leadership curriculum for teachers, support staff, and school administrators.

School administrators are hoping the initial grant, which will fund the planning process, will lead to future grants to fund the academy.

The academy creates a regional approach to education through a consortium of public school districts, intermediate school districts, and community colleges.

Kellogg financed the project after reading the proposal submitted by area superintendents and community college presidents.

Novi's Emmett Lippe and Northville's Leonard Rezmierski said, because fewer people are a shortage of teachers, Rezmierski are working with their superintendent counterparts in Walled Lake, Farmington, and Southfield and with the presidents of Schoolcraft College and Oakland Community College (Orchard Hills campus) to get the project off the ground. Oakland County Intermediate School District and Wayne County Regional Educational Services Agency are also in on the act.

Pathadan Ba Hanne ca

The group has met several times over the last year planning the proposal they submitted to Kellogg for consideration.

Kellogg reportedly funded the project after recognizing its regional value.

"The emphasis is going to be on developing leaders," Lippe' said. "We are brainstorming on how we will educate students in the future and how we will improve the delivery of curriculum in the future."

Organizers are targeting younger teachers who have experience with emerging technology and a stake in the future of public education as candidates for the academy.

Which is a paradox, Rezmierski entering the teaching profession.

It used to be people were dying to get into public education. That's no longer the case, Rezmierski said.

"Less people are signing up," he said. " Teaching is major personnel need. Math, science and special education teachers are highly recruited. We are beginning to wonder will the bank of teachers will come from."

Rezmierski salid in the past school districts had the luxury of picking teachers from a pool of substitutes who were eager to work.

Today most of those women who left their teaching jobs to raise families have gone back to the workplace but not to the classroom, Rezmierski said.

'We are feeling quite smug. There is no longer a bunch of women waiting by the phone They've all gone on with their careers in business or are doing other things."

"We may not be able to attract creative leaders,' Rezmierski added.

The result is that public educa-tion has lost some of its lust and lots of its enticement.

Fewer teachers are willing to step up to the challenges of what education is today and what it may be tomorrow. "Education is changing and it will change significantly beyond the year 2000," Lippe said. Technology is playing a major role in the way curriculum is being delivered now and will be in the future

Public schools are experimenting with all kinds of changes from extended hours to year round schooling to high schools without walls.

"It's a different way of thinking," Rezmierski said. "And we have to change so we can respond and educate all learners.

Our Opinion

Take more time to study reorganization concept

"How bad are things?" isnt une queet tion asked nowadays in Northville

It's more like "How much worse can jt get?

If events surrounding the recent reorganization proposal are any indication, we shudder to imagine.

Reorganization is Manager Tamara Ianlin's proposal to privatize the township's planning operations and make the building department a subsection of the public utilities department. Reorganization's goal, she has repeatedly explained, is to save taxpayer dollars and render township functions more efficient.

Supervisor Karen Baja, for one, doesn't buy the publicly-stated reasons behind the move. She's charged that reorganization is an attempt by other members of the board of trustees to undercut her influence.

Its real objective, in her view, is to eliminate Carol Maise and Mick Kruszewski, the heads of the planning and building departments. Many, rightly or wrongly, see Maise and Kruszewski as being too close to the supervisor.

Members of the board deny Baja's contention, but Hanlin herself has admitted that reorganization is in part an attempt to "de-politicize" township hall. Even if politics aren't involved in this proposal serious questions about the merits of the plan remain unanswered.

Will privatizing the planning department save money? Will the level of planning services provided to township citizens and developers who want to build in the community be negatively affected?

Who in township hall is going to field requests for information if a private outside firm is employed? Ironically, Baja herself is liable to be called upon to fill the void, which would be precisely contrary to the intent of depoliticization.

The township examined the feasibility of a similar reorganization change back in the 1980s. Officials at that time decided that privatization would increase costs, decrease services and give the supervisor a bigger role in planning and development. Nevertheless, Hanlin continues to defend the idea, saying she has new numbers which show the plan is a cost saver. Let's not forget about reorganization's call for putting the building department under the public utilities department. How exactly will that achieve "operational efficiency?"

the reorganization plan publicly for the first time:

Hanlin intends to ask them to allow her to do three things: negotiate an agreement with the township's contracted planning consultant firm to take over all the township's planning duties; work out a way to ease Maise out of her position; and begin to explore the cost implications of putting the building department under public utilities.

While we agree that talking about reorganization is wise - overdue, in fact - the only vote the boatd should take tonight is to ask for more information.

Let's remember that these elected officials have a track record of spending a lot of time analyzing much smaller projects than this. Can anyone forget the board meeting earlier this year when trustees actually spent 20 minutes debating one of Baja's mileage reimbursement requests?

Before members of the board can intelligently decide to accept or reject reorganization they need to see many more details. This group does not have a history of frankly discussing controversial topics like this in public, but it's never too late to start.

The cost savings of privatizing, the ... the building department should be analyzed closely. Those numbers should then be stacked up against how both moves would affect the delivery of services to township residents and developers.

And members of the township planning commission and zoning board of appeals, who to date have been shut out of reorganization discussions, need to be sought out for their advice.

Good fun with psychic pals

Boy, did I have a great time at the psychic fair over take a busted lawn mower. at the Community Center on Saturday. There was no end to the amount of soul searching and extrasensory exploration on sale at the "Festival of Inner Light Extravaganza."

You could have your body massaged, punctured, read or healed, and your mind probed, analyzed, deciphered and destressed.

There were clairvoyants, mind/body therapists, tarot card readers, psychic soothsayers, horoscope plotters and voice vibration experts.

You could listen to your biorhythms through headphones, gaze at your aura by means of photo imaging and get in touch with a past life through computerassisted hypnosis.

Anyone for a quick dash to a neighboring astral plane?

And if you didn't feel like getting your inner self turned outside in (or vice versa), there was a lighter side to enlightenment. Jewelry, books, rugs, tapes, shirts, natural foods, herbal medicines, oils and soothing scents were all available.

After looking around some, I broke down and bought a pair of Chinese therapy balls. I couldn't figure out how to use them to apply pressure to my acupuncture points, but they were more attractive than either the Buddha change pouch or the seraph refrigerator magnets I looked at.

I also thought about availing myself of some of the many intriguing services but resisted.

I considered sampling Ed's Holistic Healing, for example, but that sounded too much like where you'd Next I went over to the divine tune-up booth but I wasn't sure if mine was a four- or a six-cylinder soul. Guess you had to go to Sister Delores the psychic to find out.

I also gave some thought to learning about the science of colonics, which uses meditation to clear your colon. I decided against this, however, as I don't think I could ever come to terms with the idea of using a mantra as a laxative.

I love reading, so eventually I ended up at the book table. The variety of topics was mindboggling, you might say, with the sacred and profane "sharing the same space." Wedged between a volume on aromatherapy and an I Ching cookbook was the title Think and Grow Rich.

I guess I always had a sixth sense about that Nothing quite gives you spiritual uplift like a couple million bucks.

Finally, I decided to attend a presentation on some new age synergy method. During one point in the program, a volunteer climbed up on a massage table to get some of the hands-on healing only the highly-trained therapist could provide.

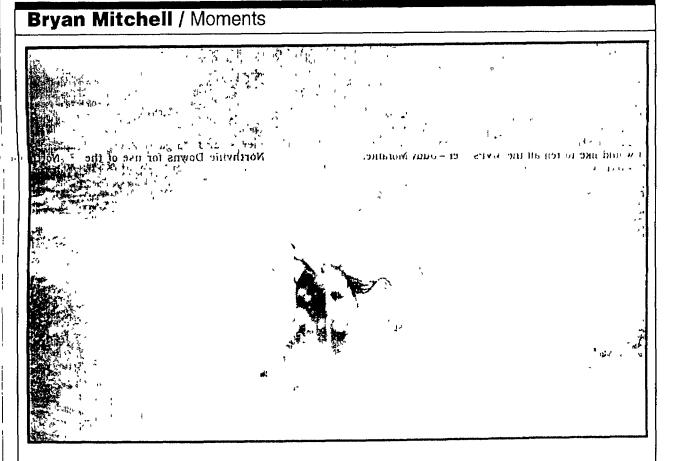

While offering feedback, the volunteer kept mumbling something about feeling a heavy sensation of warmth. The therapist attributed that to the individual's early-life experiences but I think the 112-degree rec center cafeteria had a lot to do with it

Yes, there were ying yangs everywhere in Northville last weekend but it really was a lot of fun.

And informative, too. I learned that, according to the numerological equivalent of the letters of my name, I'm destined to work for the rest of my natural life.

Sheez, how did I ever get by without knowing that before?l

Trustees will seek answers to those questions tonight when they discuss which reorganization has come about and the way in which it's being handled make one thing painfully clear: the political entanglements of the members of the board of trustees are primarily what drives policy issues in Northville Township.

Few get to see just how serious a problem that is. But it's the township employees, along with the residents of the community, who ultimately bear the consequences.

Wiring for better service

You don't think of places like for 15 years and they're just now get-Northville, Plymouth and Canton as cutting-edge media centers but that's basically what they've become with the communities' new cable agreement with Ameritech.

In a move hailed as an historic first, the Northville City Council Monday joined its neighbors in approving a service agreement with Ameritech New Media Enterprises. Finalization of the accord will enable the phone company to begin laying cable for a 70-90 channel system that will reach an estimated 110,000 homes in the vicinity.

Cable installation was expected to get under way this week, with switchon slated for about nine months down the road.

What's unique about the agreement is that the affected communities are already wired for cable, making this the first area with something other than a monopoly franchise arrangement with a single provider.

The pioneering accord has captured the attention of the national press. with The Wall Street Journal, New York Times, L.A. Times, and USA Today all picking up the story.

We think it's great that subscribers in Northville and surrounding communities will finally have a choice of cable dompanies but we have to wonder: Why only now?

! Cable TV has been widely available

ting around to creating competitive market conditions? Since the dawn of this technology consumers have been given to believe that cable is a utility and utilities always enjoy exclusive rights within their service areas.

Cable was initially treated as a utility when its enabling federal legislation allowed for regulatory oversight and gave local governments the right to approve or reject proposed rate increases. With deregulation in the early 1980s, however, providers were permitted to raise rates without local consent.

But just a few years ago the federal government rightly came to view that situation as a case of the fox guarding the hen house.

With neither market competition nor governmental veto to worry about, cable companies were free to charge sky-high rates to their hostage customers. Wisely, regulatory control was reinstated.

Competitive cable markets is an idea whose time has come, if it hadn't come long ago. It's nice that we're going to be the first to enjoy its benefits of superior service and more affordable rates, but we can't help but to look back on the last decade and a half and ask why it couldn't have happened sooner.

Maybe they should offer a shopping channel for cable.

Payback time for bad TV

"How did that get on TV?"

Ever ask yourself that question? I found out part of the answer last week.

My beloved (she told me to say that) fiancee, Carolyn, along with my future sister and mother-in-law, attended a TV preview screening Wednesday, July 5.

It seems that the television industry hires research companies to show pilot episodes of potential new shows to audiences all over these United States and then gauge their reactions to them.

The four of us were part of a 200-person focus group that would represent how middle America feels about two new pilots, our host Richard told us. That very evening other groups in Boston, Miami and San Diego were viewing the same shows, he added, and each one of our votes would represent tens of thousands of people.

Hoo, doggiel Talk about your ego trips!

Usually I'm one of those guys whose complaints about some of the idiotic TV shows out there go unheard. Tonight, though, I would have power, a chance to shoot down some of the medical waste that mucks up my channel surfing before it could ever make the airwaves.

Before I got to lock and load, however, Dick had us filling out questionnaires asking about gender, age, occupation, family size, household income, education and product buying habits. The networks and their advertisers are always trying to find out as precisely as possible what kinds of people watch what kinds of shows and buy what kind of stuff, he explained.

Then at last the moment came. That familiar friendly flicker filled the room. I waited breathlessly to see what Hollywood had come up with when, lo and behold, who came onto the screen but ... Tom Wopat.

Yep, it was Luke Duke himself. Seems his portrayal of the wise but simple country boy on The Dukes of Hazzard didn't spark a flood of job offers once The General Lee took its last ride, so old Tom's been on the show business sidelines for the last few years.

New Beginnings, the pilot he starred in, was his shot at getting back to the big time. He played a guy who leaves the big-money, high-pressure city to start a new life with his new family in the Pacific Northwest logging town where he grew up.

Once it was over, the questionnaires came back out. Did we like the show? Did we like Tom? Would we watch the thing if it were on, say, Thursdays at 9 p.m.?

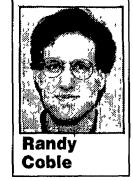

In case you're wondering, I gave the show a mild thumbs up for the sake of all those yee-ha days of yore Tom and I spent together in the '80s. I pasted the second pilot, though, an annoying sitcom (isn't that a contradiction in terms?) entitled Siblings.

An idealistic lawyer who defends the poor is forced to deal with her dizzy-brained sister moving in with her, the sister's law-school-attending son in tow. I hated it from the get-go and my, oh, my, but it was satisfying to know that my vote might help to kill it.

Let me tell you, I was a happy man as I clicked on C-SPAN at home that night.

Ceremony shut out real MVPs

I attended the commencement exercises for Northville High School's 1995 graduating class on June 9 and 1 must say that I was highly disappointed by the whole affair.

I was granted leave from my commander so that I could see my brother, a valedictorian, stand proudly on stage and give a few last words of wisdom to his fellow classmates before graduating. In addition to being told a few months ago that a student who was caught cheating was still graduating as a valedictorian, I was particularly disturbed to find out that valedictorians who deserved to be on stage, weren't there. These students who spent four years in high school achieving perfect grades were denied the honors that they deserved.

Who was on the stage? A group of school board members and a principal whose policy concerning student dishonesty should be examined. When my brother asked Dr. Johnson why the valedictorians weren't silting on stage he was told that the stage was too small and there was no room. These students get to graduate from high school only once, but Dr. Johnson gave them no room to take pride in their accomplishments.

If you sat in the bleachers and closed your eyes your ears may trick you into thinking that you were at a football game. It wasn't just undergraduates with cowbells and airhorns, but I actually saw parents doing the same thing. These same parents were asked to stand, just a few minutes earlier, to be honored for raising their graduate property.

This country is experiencing great problems with educating its youth and attending this graduation ceremony magnified the reasons why. This ccremony was treated like a sporting event. There was a pregame show, a half time show, the winning touchdown, and team captains. The one thing this game was missing was the MVPs being carried off after the game was over

There was room for the MVPs at my graduation five years ago and the stage didn't appear to be any smaller. If needed, I would gladly volunteer my time building a larger stage for future valedictorians at Northville High School.

I would like to tell all the MVPs at Northville High School that theirs was no easy accomplishment. It took hard work, dedication and discipline to achieve. They are the heroes of the academic playing field and deserved bigger honors for their achievements.

Plenty of chance for public input both on their agendas.

Also, unlike the Planning Commission, we not only allow but encourage public participation during the total meeting on all issues. We also will amend our agendas during the meeting to add subjects that are not included, but that our constituents wish us to address.

If Mr. Allen wanted so desperately to address our Board at the June 15 meeting, he had two-anda-half hours while we were in closed session to study our special meeting agenda to see that public comment was not listed.

At either meeting he could have asked at any time during the meeting to have the agenda amended and I would have willingly complied. I think that it is unfair to wait until a meeting is adjourned and then cry foul.

Effort made for great all-nighter

To the Editor:

Continuing the tradition begun in 1966, the parents of Northville High School's Class of 1995, gave an all night party following commencement June 9.

The Mustang Express boarded passengers in New York City for a train trip throughout the United States with stops in Indianapolis, New Orleans, the Southwest, Las Vegas and San Francisco.

The success of the party, reflected by the 87 percent of the seniors In attendance, belongs to the 150 committed parents who generously gave of their talent, time, organizational skills and constant attention to detail

We are most appreciative of our committee chairs who worked with their committees since November to make this event happen:

Breakfast - Roxanne Koche and Lynn Maciver; Buffet - Stacy Fischer: Casino - Alja and Janis Kukanis, Lonna and Jim Petrie; Checkroom - Sue Nix: Decorations Judy Hollister, Judee Sweet and Pat Vartanian; Entertainment -Beth Sekerka: Publicity – Lynda Baca; Security – Bob and Glenda Jones, Don and Dianne McCulloch; Teardown - Tim O'Neil: Telephone - Tina Pepino, and Treasurer - Judy Morante.

The area coordinators for deco-Front rations were: Entrance/Lobby - Sue Arnold and Gail Wodowski; Hallway - Carol and Pat McPhail; Front of Cafeteria/Wide Hallway - Judy and Nell Hollister; Front of Media Center -Chuck Collins and Bob Cummings; Cafeteria Ramps - Linda and Gary Platukas; Cafeteria -Tom Groves and Ron White; and Casino - Dan Szczesny.

Without the added support of of the mile roads and crossroads everyone listed in last week's Northville Record, and in addition, Choo Car Wash, Jiffy Lube, and the Northville Chamber of Commerce, Sonya and Tom Swigart, and the numerous donors who came to our rescue when we asked for help to save our Northville traditions, it would have been impossible to do this,

I would also like to thank The Northville Record who helped us get the message out and to Lee Snider and his staff for their support and assistance. Without this help, we would have never enjoyed the success the events had.

The parade attracted record crowds of an estimated 13,000 people for a fitting tribute to our World War II veterans who served as grand marshals: Warna Roberts, Chester Darnell, Ray Parzych, Bob Ketterer, Bog Kegler, Stan Mullin, Ed'Baker, Dwayne Beil, Lawrence Bogart, Merton Brevik, William Gulfelt, Bob Hock, Frank Kocian, William Livingston, Lloyd Morgan, Robert Pohlman Jimmy Rea, Martin Sommers, Robert Stice, and Bill Widemaier.

We received invaluable volunteer assistance from the following:

Debbie McDonald, Carolyne Brown, Ron Bodnar, Ginny, Dick and Michelle Britton, Helen Kaiser, Richard Henningsen, Pam Kosteva and Andy Kosteva, Justin Waineo, Rick Cox of R&D Development Co., Leisure Time Pet, the Northville Historical Society, Phil's 76, R&J Painting, Salem Township, Plymouth Township, Novi, Laurie Kalser and John Hopkins, Jim Wirtz, Pat Thull, Bob Baber, Dave Wilder, Ginny Hawthorne, Jim DeHaan, Ken, Jenny and Jeff Woodside, Eric Deising, Lee Snider, Sonya Swigart, Winnie Fraser, Richard Slating, D.V.M. and family, Marlene Kunz, Alan Levine, Mike Sharpe and the Novi Amateur Radio Club. Carolyn Blanchard, Jackle George, John O'Brien, Elgene Doinidis, Mary Guiterrez, Suzy Heintz, Russ Fogg, Don Thomson, Mark Abbo, Nancy Cameron, Ruth Natiw, Kathleen Switalski, Moose Lodge, Sue Hillebrand, Herman Wedemeyer, Dave Bolitho, Brian Kwaitkowski, Meghan Brown, Diana and Amy Wallace, the Northville City and Township Police and Fire Departments, and Margaret Zayti and Northville Downs for use of the facility, Jim Roth, and all of the local business owners who displayed posters, canisters and distributed fliers, and to Detroit Edison, Copy Boy Printers, and all of the Northville City and Township employees for all of their help and assistance.

A special thank you to both municipalities for their additional in-kind contributions.

The Classic Jaguar Show hosted by the Jaguar Affiliates Group of hours so graciously given provided Michigan made its debut to a crowd of several thousand people, for as far as the eye could see.

Our thanks to B.F.I. for hosting the fireworks and making it possible to host them safely, and to the Northville Township Public Safety Department, Chief Snider, for coordinating the logistics, to Fire Chief Bill Zemendak, and Northville Fire Department's Chris Campbell for helping us obtain all of the necessary permits and for their help.

Pam Kosteva did an incredible job putting the fireworks show together and fund-raising. The audible "ooohs and aaahs" that resounded from the crowd and the applause made it all worthwhile.

It was clear from your support that everyone wants our celebration to continue. The Township of Northville's initial donation of $5,000 and the City of Northville's donation of $2,500 gave us the momentum to raise the balance of the funds with your help.

Once everyone knew that the municipalities were behind this, we were able to find sponsors from gold and silver, to small sponsorships from families and individuals. Together we made it work.

On behalf of Celebrate Northville, we thank you for helping us throw a 219th birthday party for our country. What a party it was!

Thank you all (if I forgot anyone's name, I apologize). It was a great day to Celebrate Northville! Karen M. Woodside, President Celebrate Northville

To the Editor.

Mr. Allen's comments in the June 29 Northville Record were, in my opinion, disingenuous and misleading

Fact: He falled to mention that both June 15 and June 22 were special meetings. Public comment is not listed on special meeting agendas, has never been, and is not required by charter as was erroneously stated by Mr. Gans The Clerk plans on discussing this at our July 13 regular meeting.

Fact: At the June 15 meeting the adjournment process was not interrupted - the minutes reflect that the meeting was adjourned and the majority of the Board voted to reconvene.

Fact: Our regular Board meeting agenda has both public comment at the beginning and end of the meeting, and has had such much longer than the six months that the Planning Commission has had and Janet Jensen.

To the Editor.

I would like to thank everyone who had any part in making the festivities for Northville's Independence Day celebration happen. Our Gold Sponsors: Northville Township, Northville City, B.F.I., Davis Auto Care and Tire Center, and Northrop Sassaman Funeral Directors made this happen.

We are also grateful to our Silver Sponsors: Ayres, Lewis, Norris and May Engineers, Northville V.F.W. Post No. 4012, Key Plastics, and Hiller's Shopping Center Market and Food Emporium, and Reuben and Mill Race Village also enjoyed record crowds for their traditional events. What a wonderful day it wast

At 5 p.m., the weather took a turn for the worse, and we had fierce thunderstorms while trying to set up for the concert. The sun finally broke through, and the concert started a few minutes late due to the storms impeding the set-up. The Schoolcraft Community Wind Ensemble under the direction of Dr. Jim Nissen filled the air with stirring patriotic music. Northville poet Kathleen Ripley Leo presented her poem, Northville Summer of '95, to a crowd of about 400-500 people who arrived after the weather cleared.

The fireworks were back! A crowd of about 30,000 people according to official estimates came out to see the fireworks. From the hill at B.F.I., cars with their headlights on illuminated all collection canisters. Also Joyce Flynn, Janis Hannan, Jacqueline George, Gary Paver, Donald Naar and Hank Lamp.

A special thanks is due to Margaret Zayti for her offer of the Northville Downs facility not only for the parade staging (which we did utilize) but also for the evening fireworks event (which we were unable to utilize).

We also wish to thank The Northvulle Record, editor Lee Snider and the entire Record staff for the fine coverage.

Above all, of course, we all wish to thank each individual who contributed to the success of the American cause in World War II. No matter where or what their part, military or civilian, those who risked and those who gave their lives for us deserve to be honored and remembered. Thank you all. Ron F. Bodnar

Results can backfire on ideologues

The Bible of the radical effort now under way to completely re-make Michigan's schools is an

piece which my sources tell me was commissioned and heavily edited by State Board of Education president Clark Durant was printed up by the state as a little booklet in an edition of 5,000 (81 cents apiece). Summaries also were sent to newspapers around the state, which is how I got mine.

Two points make especially interesting reading. I offer them in quotes, together with my translation:

• "The monopoly of public education must end. New forms of public ownership of schools, including non-politically based public corporaions, should be explored."

In other words, the remedy for a rigid and nonopolistic public school system is to let marset forces drive schools, allowing some to thrive and others to die.

• "Good character and individual excellence are an essential part of any community ... Each is reflected in the life and curriculum of a school, a curriculum not compelled by the state, but called for by a free people."

In other words, in teaching morality and academics, schools should not be bound by a uniform state curriculum, but free to respond to the market demand expressed by their primary customers, the parents of children attending.

I have a strong feeling that these points, taken together, highlight a problem common to all ideologues: They are so obsessed with their ideology that they often discover, to their dismay, that the results they achieve are not at all what they intended.

Unintended Result No. 1: Balkanization of America.

All kinds of schools will be started. Some will teach Christian values (as a member of the State Board of Education evidently hopes). But what happens when the Shrine of the Black Madonna starts a school that teaches that Christ was black and pushes an Afrocentric academic curriculum? What about schools teaching entirely in Albanian or Arabic? What about schools not open to students unless they are of Japanese descent?

The point here is that public schools for generations have been the primary device with which immigrants and others in our heterogeneous population have become Americans. If the schools were to follow the Reuss prescription, there is great risk they would contribute to the further fragmentation of our country rather than eliminate it.

Unintended Result No. 2: Unemployable graduates.

Doing away with a uniform curriculum may, indeed, eliminate monopolistic rigidity. But if you combine it with the notion (also popular among radicals) of doing away with any sort bf statewide uniform testing, the result is chads in the workplace.

Jim Sandy, executive director of Michigan Business Leaders for Education Excellence, made this point neatly in the June issue of the Michigan Chamber of Commerce magazine: "Should performance standards be set for students? Should the curriculum of our public schools be wrapped around a set of content standards? I do not believe there is any doubt."

Beware, Mr. Reuss. Take care, President Durant. You may suffer the grave misfortune of getting precisely what you advocate.

By CAROL WORKENS Staff Writer

The Environmental Protection Agency introduced a national UV Index program in 1994 that provides information about the ultraviolet risk level on a daily basis through weather forecasts on radio and televislon, in newspapers and through calls to the local weather office.

According to the UV Index, burning time can range from 10 minutes to 1 hour, depending on the risk fac-

Minimal risk factor means most people could stay in the sun at noon for up to one hour without burning A very high risk factor means that you should stay out of the sun from 10.30 a m to 3.30 p m. because it would take only 10 minutes to burn without protection.

Ultraviolet Radiation (UV) is one form of energy coming from the sun that sustains life on earth. There are three categories of UV rays

UVA rays stay relatively constant throughout the vear

UVB rays are stronger and are more intense in summer, at higher allitudes and closer to the equator. UVC rays are the strongest of the three but are nor-

"It is important to continue to reapply them throughout the day." said Fitzgerald. "None last all day

Take into account the time of day and your activity when considering whether to reapply sunscreen Those that are out during the hottest part of the day, Those that are out during the notest part of the day, between 10 a m and 2 p.m. – swimming or running through the sprinkler, working up a sweat through exercise or work – will need to reapply sunscreen more often than those going for a leisurely stroll Sun screen should offer protection from both UVA and UVB rays because both can cause damage to your skin

As with a lot of things, more is not always better. "Anything over a 30 is redundant," Fitzgerald said. "Thirty is just about enough protection for anyone "Anything over 30, you're just wasting your money."

There are exceptions, though. People with fair skin and those that have a history of skin cancer should choose sun screens with higher SPFs, according to Fitzgerald

So what's a person to do? With all the sun protection on the market, which is the right one? Is more better? Do waterproof lotions last longer than other sun screens? Should you choose a sunscreen with a sun protection factor (SPF) of 5 or 45?

Mark Fitzgerald pharmacist at the Arbor Drug Store in Northville recommends selecting a sunscreen that is PABA free for young children because lotions that contain PABA can cause a rash

"A 15 or above is a really good sun protection fac tor," he said "It is a multiple of what your skin would filter out

"People should use their own discretion depending on their skin type," said Patty Williamson, office manager at Dermatology Associates in Novi, out should use at least a SPF 15 or higher.

"Balding men should put sunscreen on their scalp," she said "We see a lot of skin cancers on the forehead and scalp area (of these men)."

Krueger flexes zoning rules here and there

It was one of those hot June days when the ceiling fan was pushing the air around and Robert Krueger was talking about his volunteer efforts.

If it weren't for volunteers, where would we be?

Krueger is a member of the Northville Board of Zoning Appeals - not to see that rules are kept but to interpret or bend them to suit individual needs.

For 16 years he has been on the board, receiving monthly packets of requests for variances - property set-backs, other uses for a garage. problems with buildings so close to a lot line that fire equipment can't get through, and the construction of fences.

And each month before board meetings he has gone to the site by himself so he can discuss it when property owners and neighbors are present to tell their side of the story.

"Sometimes a strict application would be hurting some people," said. "Each problem is differe What works for one person does work for another. So you bend t rules a bit."

A person who had more proper than he wanted suggested he s part of it, but according to th Board of Zoning Appeals ? couldn't split it and have a piece property that would be worth ar thing to someone else.

Vacationing family participates in flag raising ceremony

While on vacation recently, the Szarnowski family from Northville participated in the Official Flag Raising Ceremony at Disney's Wilderness Lodge Resort at Walt Disney World in Lake Buena Vista. Fla.

In keeping with a time honored National Park tradition, each day at sunrise a special family has the honor of raising the American flag high atop the lodge.

Student awarded engineering scholarship

Northville High School graduate Jeremy Sweet has been awarded the MSPE University of Detroit Mercy Scholarship by the Michigan Society of Professional Engineers (MSPE) for outstanding high school achievement, and demonstrated aptitude for the engineering field.

Sweet will be attending the University of Detroit Mercy this fall While in high school, he was active in soccer, concert choir and the Northville Singers. Sweet was also a member of the National Honor Society and was named the Most Valuable Player in soccer

MSPE scholarships are awarded to high ranking high school seniors interested in pursuing engineering careers A minimum of a 30 grade point average-based on a 4 0 scale-and minimum scores on the SAT and ACT college entrance exams are required

Founded in 1946, MSPE is the principle society representing professional engineers, engineers-intraining and students in Michigan. It is an affiliate of the National Society of Professional Engineers, which has 69,000 members, 3,000 of whom are Michigan society members.

Student receives scholarship to art college

Jessica Horn, a senior at Northville High School, has been awarded an $18,000 scholarship to attend The Columbus College of Art and Design as a result of a national portfolio competition held recently at the college.

Horn, the daughter of Peter and Pamela Horn of Novi, will begin classes this autumn She plans to major in fine arts.

A team of faculty members at The Columbus College of Art and Design reviewed the portfolios of artwork and awarded 133 art scholarships to graduating senior high school students from across the country.

The scholarship recipients demonstrated significant artistic and academic achievement.

Local historians find degrees more fun than work

Two Northville resident historians, Art and Diane Rockall, have both just completed their master's degree programs. Art's is in fine arts from Eastern

Michigan University and Diane's is in history from Wayne State "History is my true love so 1 decided to go back and get another history degree," said Diane, who retired from the Detroit News in 1987. She also writes the Mill Race Matters column for The Northvulle Record.

Art, who worked in the art department of Ford Motor Co building clay models before he retired in 1987, has been president of the Northville Historical Society, and is the commission coordinator of the Northville Arts Commission band concerts on Friday nights.

"He went back (for the master's program) before I did but he was having so much fun I decided to go back too," said Diane.

Camp scholarship winner lives like Apollo astronaut

By CAROL WORKENS Staff Writer

For six days Eric Connell lived in a Habitat, slept in a pod and sampled freeze-dried food.

Eric, an eighth grade student at Meads Mill, was selected by his science teacher to receive a Loctite Space camp scholarship.

On May 13 he traveled to Huntsville, Ala., where for six days he participated in simulated space flight missions and teambuilding exercises.

The son of Joan and Don Connell of Northville believes his interest in science is what led him to be selected for the scholarship.

At camp, Eric experienced the simulators that astronauts would have to go on, the centrifuge and the five-degrees of freedom chair.

"There are six degrees of freedom in space - up and down, nght, left, roll, yaw and pitch," he explained. "On earth you cannot simulate up down, because of the gravity. In the chair, it feels like you are in weightlessness"

While living in a building called the Habitat, which simulates a space station, Eric slept in a bunk called a pod and stowed his gear in lockers.

"I had some freeze dried food." he said, "but basically I had down to earth food. I learned about the space missions. The movie Apollo 13 - I knew all about that before the previews came out

"I found out about how the whole space thing got started," he said "I learned a lot of the history behind the space program and about the mission's goals

But being at space camp lor a week hasn't changed Eric's mind about what he intends to pursue in college

"I would like to be an engineer," he said, "either electrical, metallurgical or chemical II (space camp) showed me differ ent things I could do with a degree like that.'

The slogan above the doorway at camp - Through these doors pass the future engineers and astronauts" - is apropos for Eric

Garden of the Month

Garden doesn't stop at the front gate

By PATRICIA ZIELKE Special Writer

Many times the promise of a beautiful garden begins at the front of the house with disappointing results in the backyard. Not so with George and Joelle Sarkozy's meticulously groomed and beautiful garden. The entire atmosphere surrounding the handsome cape cod style home on Thayer is warm and inviting, whetting your appetite for a closer look.

It's obvious that plans and work began in this garden long before George, a science teacher at Bryant Junior High School in Dearborn, began his summer vacation and will continue throughout the growing season. He is an avid gardener and enjoys landscaping and adding new flowers and trees to the three-fourths acre garden.

A red brick walkway leads from the front to the side of the house and is bordered by red and white geraniums, flanked by mugho pines and lined with Japanese yews and viburnum. Especially attractive is a large window box brimming with dahlias, pansies, marigolds, dianthus, lobelia, geranium and vinca vines cascading to the ground.

At the side, and heading to the back gardens, a trellis hosts a vigorous red clematis and fragrant honeysuckle vines, while a colorful bed filled with cosmos, althea, nasturtiums, creeping juniper, fever few, dahlias and tiger lilies are lovely companion plantings.

Lincd tall and straight against the garage, like the Royal Guard, are giant thistles (echinops), which serve as sentinels to the more fragile flower population growing below.

If you look carefully, vegetables may be seen among the flower – bell peppers next to dahlias and cucumber vines crawling down a tall urn filled with petunias and pansies Everything looks good and works well together.

The large backyard has been artfully designed with curving flower beds encompassing the entire area and surrounded by mature trees including black cherry, mulberry, hemlock, Norway spruce, blue and white spruce, Douglas fir, and a young redwood that son. Stewart, sent to his parents from California

A splendid old box elder holds forth near the center of the yard providing dinner for a number of hungry woodpeckers, while a gigantic American elm, surrounded by a bed of myrtle, tightly hugging the earth, is an ideal spot for many wildflowers such as trillium, Jackin-the-pulpit, and wild geranium, along with hosta, rhododendron, buttercups, fern and jumpers.

Many bird and squirrel feeders have been placed among cleome, sunflowers, coreopsis, aster, fox glove, delphinium, varieties of daisies, mums, balloon flowers, silver dollars, Veronica and astilbe.

The squirrels are so tame they know the Sarkozys on a first name basis, but Sarkozy's dog, a Russian ovcharka named Masha, (another gift from their son "from Russia with love") is not sure if she enjoys all the sharing and caring - but she'll get used to it.

George Sarkozy and his dog, Masha, enjoy the vast assortment of flowers and trees which provide food and shelter to those who have the pleasure to stop and visit a while.

The end of the yard backs to the woods leading to Main Street, and George is clearing a narrow path through the woods (to grandmother's house we go) but has been confronted by swarms of voracious raspberries that are there for the picking and his exploration through the woods

The Sarkozys find their deck to be a good viewing area for the out door theater performed daily from dawn to dusk with lively perfor mances by the Northville woodland

The Sarkozys believe that learn ing to understand and live in harmony with the other creatures who inhabit this earth can provide many hours of pleasure. Stallone offers new sci-fi thriller

In the third millennium, the world changed.

Climate. Nations. All were in upheaval. Humanity itself turned as violent as the planet. The remnants of the world's population regrouped behind the protective

And then, a solution was found. The crumbling legal system was merged with the overburdened police force, creating a powerful and efficient hybrid. These new guardians of the law had the power to dispense both instant justice and instant punishment. They were law enforcer, jury and executioner rolled into one. They were — the Judges.

In Mega-City One this fragile order is being penetrated by corruption. There is a menace that threatens any chance of true civilization surviving. One of the judges stands ready to fight for the law and give hope to a future for justice. He is Judge Dredd.

Sylvester Stallone is Judge Dredd, the personification of elentless justice in a futuristic action-adventure film based on the hugely popular British comic book hero.

One of the largest-scale movies ever filmed, "Judge Dredd" is based on a character created 18 years ago by writer John Wagner and artist Carlos Ezquerra for a new British comics magazine called "2000 AD."

The Judge Dredd universe represents a totalitarian response to rising crime and a vision of the results of containing a burgeoning population. Since his evolution. the notorious lawman, Judge Dredd, has headlined a series of graphic novels, including "The Cursed Earth" and "Judgement in Gotham." It was only a question of time before his popularity invaded America: currently, DC Comics, whose stable of heroes includes Superman and Batman, is publishing two successful comic books, "Judge Dredd" and "Judge Dredd: Legends of the Law."

By 2139, civilization in the United States is confined to three Mega-Cities. In between lies the desertscape of the Cursed Earth; here nothing grows, nothing could. It is home only to marauders, scavengers and outcasts from the cities.

At first sight, Mega-City One is a breathtaking panorama of mile-high towers threaded by elevated skyways filled with traffic. But with a population of 65 million living in an area built for less than 20 million, Mega-City One is also a society permanently poised on the brink of chaos. Only the Judges, who know one spark of criminality could ignite social anarchy, keep the city from tipping over the edge.

At the bottom of Mega-City One's central sector, the forbidding area known as Ground Zero is, in fact, the remains of New York. Here the Statue of Liberty is a long-forgotten relic, dwarfed by the foundations of the gleaming future city.

Half the city's population is housed in vast citi-blocks, whose soaring lines cast sneering shadows on the flotsam and jetsam in the tenements below. In such overcrowded conditions Block Wars are an integral part of daily life."A daily life from which the only escape is west into the Cursed Earth or east into the polluted waters of the Black Atlantic.

In Mega-City One, Judge Joseph Dredd is a living legend. For many, he is the law. Six feet of armored justice, his very presence commands absolute respect from fellow judges and inspires dread in the hearts of the lawless. Calm, impassive. Dredd has no social life. no outside interests and very few feelings not linked to his devotion to the law.

In a cunning plan to take control of Mega-City One, devised by the corrupt Council Judge Griffin (Jurgen Prochnow), Judge Dredd, the most resolute and feared keeper of the law, is framed for murder. Despite the best efforts of his aging mentor, Chief Justice Fargo (Max Van Sydow), Dredd receives the maximum sentence and is banished from the city for life to the Cursed Earth.

The evil genius who carries out the fiendish plot, Rico (Armand Assante), is a mad, geneticallymutated clone who has escaped from prison and is bent on revenge. He will let nothing stand in the way of his bid for ultimate domination of Mega-City One. But Rico hasn't reckoned on the power of the law, because no one escapes the judgment of Judge Dredd.

The film is directed by Danny Cannon, who visualized "Judge Dredd" as an action film with passion, comparing it to classic epics such as "Spartacus," "Ben Hur" and "El Cid,"

"Those movies took themselves very seriously, just as the artists acting in them did, and I tried to incorporate that element of emotional honest into 'Judge Dredd," said Cannon. "It's every bit as much an epic passion play as it is a sci-fi film. I didn't want audiences merely to be dazzled by the special effects. I wanted them to connect with the characters, with their lives.

RECORD SPORTS

Turner named hoop coach

By SCOTT DANIEL Sports Editor

Tim Turner has made a lot of stops in nearly two decades of coaching basketball.

He's paced the sidelines in Trenton, Southgate and Warren, among other places. But, now, he's hoping for a long stay at Northville High.

Turner was named the boys' varsity coach late last month. Former coach and new athletic director Larry Taylor made the decision to hlre him.

"He seemed to be one of the most qualified candidates." he said, "and he was already on staff

Turner worked as a guidance counselor at the high school last school year. The Dearborn Heights resident will be a positive influence on the team, Taylor said.

"He's real upbeat." he added. "I think the kids will respond well to hím.

Turner coached at South Lyon last winter and led the Lions to an 11-11 record. He said he'll build on what Taylor's done with the team over the last three years.

But, he said, he'll add his own personal touch by stressing pressure defense all over the court and fast breaks on offense

"We'll play defense for 94 feet," said Turner, "and push the ball free throw line to free throw line every trip down the floor."

Turner began coaching at Allen Park in 1978 as the junior varsity mentor. From there, he moved on to Trenton, Henry Ford Community College and Southgate.

He got his first head coaching job in the early 1980s at Melvindale High. In four years he led the Cardinals to three league championships and a trip to the regional final.

Turner then stayed at Warren DeLa Salle for six years before his onc-year stint in South Lyon. He said he left the Lions bench simply because of the distance from home

"It just didn't work out," Turner sald

When he resigned from South Lyon, he said. he decided not to coach for awhile.

"I wanted to take some time off," Turner added.

A talk with Northville High officials changed his mind, however. "I decided to throw my hat in the ring," said Turner. After filing a formal application, he was interviewed and then hired June 22. Turner said he discussed the move with his family before taking the job

"It seems like a much better fit," he said.

Thus far, the new coach seems to be fitting in well with his play-

The Mustangs went to team camp at Albion College a few weeks ago. Last week Northville hosted its own camp and played games against several area high schools.

"I think I have an Idea of what kind of talent we have (now)." Turner said.

Northville won't have a lot of size he noted

Tim Turner, Northville's new varsity coach, led South Lyon to an 11-11 mark last winter. We're really small." he said "But what I ve seen I like. We've got good attitudes."

The Mustangs will play uptempo basketball Success will depend on the amount of depth

Northville has and whether or not players buy into Turner's system. Besides running, Northville will take more three-point shots under Turner

"I believe strongly in the three-pointer," he said. "We're the type of ,

Aneil Kersey, Ben Szostek, Gar-" rett Carter and Kyle Hitchcock will be returning varsity players for the Mustangs.

Swimmers ready for . charity marathon By SCOTT DANIEL Sports Editor

The Meadowbrook Country Club swim team is hoping to make a big splash for charity this weekend.

Nearly 200 swimmers will take part in a 24-hour marathon to benefit Spaulding for Children. According to MCC coach Dave Segraves, it's a way for his team to give something back to the community

"All the kids here have the best of families," he said 'We wanted to do something for those who are less fortunate.

Last year, the swim club raised about $5,000. Even though this year's marathon doesn't start until tomorrow morning, Segraves said they've nearly equaled that amount already

"We'd like to top $5,000 if we

"We've already won as many as we did during the high school season. Things have gone pretty well.

runs Jenny Sheehan had an RBI single and singles by Mandy Sabo, Kelly Riechard and Johnson accounted for the other runs Northville with two hits each. Menghini started and got the win. Johnson relieved in the fifth and carned a save.

Softball coach

Neon take sweep By SCOTT DANIEL Sports Editor

There's something about summer that brings out the best in the Northville Niners

The softball squad which went nearly undefeated a year ago. improved to 3-1 Thursday by splitting a doubleheader with the Garden City Stingers. After a rough spring at Northville High winning is a welcomed relief according to coach Frank Friemund

"We've already won as many as we did during the high school sea-son," he said "Things have gone pretty well "

Strong pitching and, yes, good hitting have led the Niners to their hot start

Sarah Johnson has pitched well," Friemund said, "and so has Michelle Menghini " team that can shoot three-point-

Johnson got the call in Thursday's opener with Garden City. She pitched a solid six innings but came up short as Northylle fell 3-

The Niners managed just two hits in suffering their first defeat Garden City which was made up of players from several different high schools scored two runs in the third and one in the sixth inning

Game two was far from a pitch er's duel, however Northville outlasted the Stingers 9.8 in five innings.

Garden City started the hit parade in the first inning by scoring a run. Northville tied the game in the bottom of the frame as Ashley Ossola singled and then was wild pitched around the bases.

The Niners rallied from behind again, in the second inning.

Down 3-1, Northville scored three runs. Ossola singled home one run and two more scored on various Garden City miscues.

Jump! Local couple say sky diving can be safe, fun for many

By GRETA C. PICKLESIMER Special Writer

When Heldi Spencer was in college at Michigan State University she read an article about skydiving and decided she would like to try it.

She told her friend, Steve Pair, who wanted to date her, about her wish. He gave her some brochures hoping to call her bluff. She said, let's do it, so they did.

Five years later, the two, now married, are avid skydivers and instructors.

People associate us with people who have a death wish," said Steve, an instructor in the Wixom aréa for Skydive Hastings and a jump master. "The most dangerous part of skydiving is driving to the drop zone. You could be in a car wreck.

"We are normal people."

"People don't see it as a sport," said Heidi.

"They see it as, you jump out of a plane and that's it."

But you can't just jump out of a plane without training. That's what the instruction will teach, Heidi said. It's a participation sport, she added.

"A lot of people think we are just going to strap a parachute on their back, go up in a plane and let them jump out and that's it." said Steve. "There's a lot more to it than that.

"You don't get on the road with your eyes closed." said Heidi. "You need to respect it (parachuting) like anything else."

We take them through the classroom structure and play what-if games with them," added Steve. "We teach them what the equipment is, what it does and what it does not do. We instruct them on how to fly a parachute and how to correctly land."

right there are hazards.

Steve Pair said the worst he has ever seen in all his years of instructing are broken ankles. The jumpers came down wrong. Their legs were spread and they sat down on an ankle that was turned, he said.

Students must successfully complete a minimum of five static line jumps before they are allowed to move on to free style jumping.

After successfully completing five static line jumps and 10 freestyle jumps skydivers move up to the lighter parachute pack. They are given additional training but can now jump without a jump master, said Steve.

From there the sky's the limit. Eventually skydivers with more training can compete in freestyle competitions.

The best part of skydiving is what you

But, like anything else, if you don't do it gain from a jump Confidence, say Heidi and Steve.

"After my first jump I felt as if there isn" anything I can't do," said Steve.

Why would anyone want to jump out of a perfectly good plane while it's flying?

Most people say they've always wanted to try it. They want to see what it's like to fly a parachute or experience'a free fall, said Steve Steve Brennan took Heidi's and Steve's class in their Wixom home last year. He had made over 25 jumps while in the Army and wanted to try it as a civilian. The difference was clear.

"Looking back at it now in the Army there was more potential for hazards, but that's what you get paid for," said Brennan,

Northville Greens offers challenge in par 3 setting

By SCOTT DANIEL Sports Editor

In the world of par 3 golfing, Northville Greens is a rarity.

While most short courses seem the an afterthought of whatever ment accompanies it, the area's newest set of links breaks the mold. residential or business develop-

Regulation size greens, some thoughtful landscaping and dangerous hazards make golfing Northville Greens a challenging ound. In short, it isn't Putt-Putt ģolf.

"The quality of play is what we stress here," said head pro Justin Lauer, who added that greens will get extra attention. "Our greens are coming around We like to keep them fast.

The course, which is on Hagger-ty Road between Five and Six Mile roads, originally opened as an 18hole facility. "Dun Rovin" was around for years until the site was purchased for development in the late 1980s.

Pulte Homes began construction and cut nine holes from Dun Rovin about five years ago. With development in high gear the course was closed altogether last season.

The course reopened in April as Northville Greens. For those who had played Dun Rovin or the ninehole course that followed, you won't recognize much on the new links

"The holes have been completely redesigned,' said Lauer. And with care, too. The golf pro said Northville Greens definitely wants a share of the par 3 market

"The quality of play is what we stress here. Our greens are coming around."

JUSTIN LAUER Northvi'le Greens go'l pro

"But," Lauer added, "we want a challenging and enjoyable golf course for all players." In it's first season, Northville

Greens is well on its way. Construction will continue for about another year on the site. While noise from the hammers can be a distraction, it shouldn't get in the way of having a fun round. The fun begins on the very first hole. From the blue tees, No. 1

comes in at 115-yards. Now that sounds easy enough. But if you aren't warmed up well you can find trouble in a hurry.

The 155-yard second hole is the second longest on the course. A solid 5- or 6-iron should get you to the oversized green that slopes slightly downward. It's a pretty hole with trees and condominiums in the background. A word about the fairway. Straight out from the tee the grass gets a little thin.

Lauer acknowledged that the course needs to mature in some spots

"We're a little rough still," he added. "But we're getting better every day. They're filling in the grounds well."

Golfers at the course didn't seem to mind.

"We come to this course all the time," said Dearborn resident Greg Johnson, who was playing with a friend. "The conditions are excellent.'

Hole No. 3 is a challenge.

One of the most pleasant things about golfing at Northville Greens is the walk between holes.

The cart path leads through the neighborhood on many holes. It's like taking a nice evening walk and playing some golf, too. At any rate, of the remaining holes Nos 5 and 9 are the most notable.

The fifth hole measures 125 yards from the back tees. A large tree protects the right side of the green while water sits directly behind the putting surface. Hit it long here and you're getting wet again.

The reasons vary from failure of consideration or emphasis by physicians to failure of compliance by patients. Aspirin the cheapest and most cost-effective treatment in coronary disease, is taken by only 45 of every 100 coronary patients. When I ask patients why they are not taking aspirin. I often hear one of the following "I forgot." "My wife doesn't push me." "But I had the bypass, isn't that good enough?" "My doctor didn't tell me how important it was " Or, it causes too much heart burn. Components of a secondary prevention treatment program include strict adherence to the hifestyle changes outlined in primary prevention combined with a carefully monitored drug regimen Each of the following components should be considered for men and women of all ages and can be remembered as the ABC's of secondary prevention: Aspirin, 325 mg taken daily or every other day, reduces heart attacks and sudden or unstable angina by preventing sudden clots in damaged arteries Also, ACE inhibitors, a class of drugs effective in the treatment of hypertension, reduce the development of heart failure, the need for bypass or angioplasty, and prevent heart attacks in persons with more than mildly

In contrast, "secondary prevention" measures are strategies for persons with known coronary heart disease which are designed to improve their quality of life, reduce the need for costly bypass surgery or angioplasty and prevent heart attacks and heart failure

Secondary prevention measures are very effective, supported by sound research, and recommended strongly by most cardiovascular

 Cholesterol-lowering practices must include a diet low in saturated fat and possibly the use of medicines in the "statin" class of drugs (Pravachol, Zocor, Mevacor, and possibly Lescol). Using one of these medications may reduce the incidence of heart attacks, the need for bypass surgery or balloon angioplasty, and limit the progression of blockage of the arteries. Niacin, a vitamin, also has proven useful, but is limited by side effects and the potential for liver damage.

As with any treatment, individuals should consult their physician before they begin. However, employing a strict secondary prevention program may reduce the incidence of heart attacks from 25 percent to 75 percent, making the long-term outlook extremely bright for people with known heart disease.

Highland resident. "With Heidi and Steve, they really stressed safety." The army used round parachutes. You fall a lot faster with those than with the rectangular ones, Brennan said.

"With these it's like jumping off a chair if you do it right," he added.

The worst part for him was the waiting and anticipation in the plane before upming plane before jumping. "The whole thing was really good," said Brennan.

The best part for him? "Being up in the air and seeing for miles and miles then getting down on the ground without hurting myself," said Brennan But what about the safety of the sport? Other athletic activities actually have higher death rates.

In 1986, there were 1,063 boating deaths, 105 deaths for scuba diving, and 60 for snowmobiling with only 29 deaths for parachuting.

Steve and Heidi stressed the safety involved in such a lofty sport. Their company. Skydive Hastings, has high safety regulations.

Anyone who would like to learn to parachute must first sit through a four-hour training class.

"It really reassures people of the safety," said Heidi. "We teach them all the safety procedures, about the equipment. They realize their perception is wrong. This is just another sport to us. It's not death defying "

Even with all of the safety precautions, it takes someone with real courage to jump. For many, Pair said, it becomes a way of relieving life's daily tedium

"People are looking for something that everyday activity doesn't offer," said Steve. "That's why people go to Cedar Point."

In this sport you must make some decisions based on what you learned in class, he added.

Certainly for people who teach and participate in this sport Heidi and Steve Pair have no fear of heights. Right?

Wrong.

"I have a fear of heights," said Steve. "I don't like being up on a ladder. Once you get up so high the fear of heights goes away "

"Your perception of how high you're off the ground goes away at a certain height," said Heidi, who also has a fear of heights.

ROCKIES REPORT

The Rockies defeated the Blue Jays, 6-1, to move into sole possession of second place in the Northville Junior Baseball H league standings. The Rockies broke open a 1-0 ball game with five runs in the bottom of the fifth inning for the victory. Roger Garfield, Jimmy Riehl and Jackson Knoll combined to pitch a one-hitter.

On June 16, the Rockies beat the White Sox 9-5. A four-run rally in the top of the sixth inning was the difference. Knoll had two hits and Garfield reached base four times with three singles and a walk to lead the offense.

The Rockies defeated the Red Sox 6-4 on June 1 to move into first place. The Rockies scored five runs in the bottom of the fifth to overcome a 4-1 deficit.

Roger Garfield, Jimmy Riehl and Jacob Dumbleton worked on the mound for the Rockies.

In the five-run rally, Brett Asher tripled in a run and stole home. Jackson Knoll later stole home and the Rockies added two more runs on a steal of home by Adam Justusson and a single by Mitch Depace.

Mark Sorenson and Eric Rudd pitched for the Red Sox while Richard Bass and Steve Mnich had two hits each.

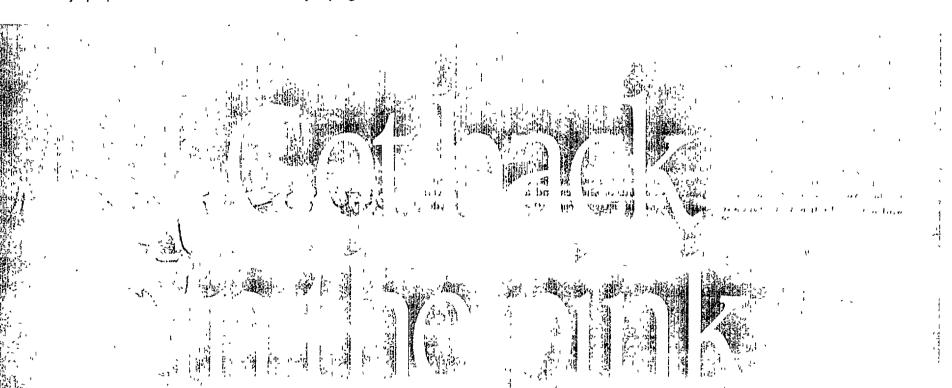

On June 6, the Rockies whipped the Yanks 5-1. Jimmy Riehl and Matt Thorne led the way offensively with a two-run double and three-run double, respectively.

REAL ESTATE Renters motivated to become home owners

By James M. Woodard Copley News Service

After 12 years of marriage, Katy and Harlan Johnson finally purchased their own home — a comfortable four-bedroom residence.

"We've been renting one residence after another for all these years," said Katy Johnson. "We'd rent a place for a while, then it would be sold and we would have to move. During that time, we raised six kids. The money went to support the kids, not to buy a home."

Finally, with the help of a Reallor, the Johnsons discovered they could afford a home and they found the right property

"We were prequalified for a home linance loan before making an offer on the property " Johnson noted. "We didn't really think we would qualify, but we did. Now we can stay put in our own home."

An increasing proportion of home buyers in most areas of the country are first-time buyers who have been renters for some time. Many. like the Johnsons, are happlly surprised that they can now afford and qualify for a home purchase.

Nationally, about 47 percent of home sales are to first-time buyers. The median home price is $125,000, and the average firstlime buyer age is 31.6 years old, according to an independent survey continuous no-tillage. The pest is also found in other undisturbed habitats such as pastures, fallow fields, hayfields, fence rows, ditches and roadsides, said Jim Kells, Michigan State University Extension agronomist. Wild carrot is a biennial weed —

Wild carrot is a biennial weed its life cycle requires two years to complete. During the first year, the plant will emerge and grow as a rosette, producing only leaves.

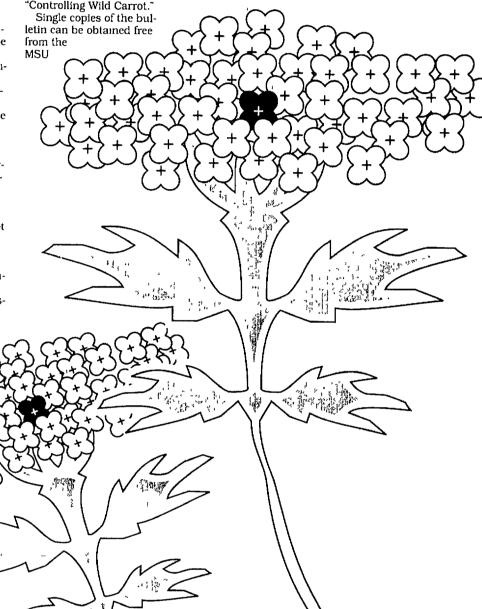

During the second year, a stem will emerge and the plant will flower and set seed. Most seeds germinate within two years of dispersal, but they can persist in the soil for up to seven years, Kells said. Mechanical control of wild carrot includes tillage and mowing. To control by mowing, mow as close to the ground as possible when 75 percent of the plant population has begun flowering Tillage will effectively and consistently control wild carrot. The entire field can be ulled or tillage can be limited to the perimeter of the field as a prevention control Control of wild carrot with herbicides can be effective if chemicals are used prudently to prevent the development of herbicide resistance

Agronomists recommend not applying the same herbicide or herbicides with the same mode of action for more than two consecutive applications, Kells said. More information on wild carrot control and recommended herbicide application is contained in MSU extension bulletin E-2573. "Controlling Wild Carrot."

Defense against weedy nuisances begins early

By C.Z. Guest Copley News Service

Weeds fall into three categories — annuals, perennials and biennials.

More than 80 percent of garden weeds are annuals, plants that live and die in one season and reproduce only by seed. Of course, they produce an enormous number of seeds, sometimes thousands, thereby ensuring that at least several handfuls will find a favorable resting place on your garden beds or lawn for germination and growth.

Hand-pulling annual weeds such as wild mustard before it sets seed is the best way to keep them in tow. Otherwise, if you prefer, get out your hoe and hack them out.

By far, wood perennials are the biggest nuisance. For example, some species such as poison ivy send up vigorous new shoots as far as 15 feet from the parent plant. However, the smaller herbaceous types are no less trouble.

If you hack off a dandelion top without removing the whole root, that one plant will turn into three or four!

As a rule, perennial weed plants live at least three years, although most live longer. Like annuals, perennial weeds produce seeds, but they also reproduce vegetatively from nodes on underground stems or roots.

GARDENING

Biennial weeds live for two seasons, growing only roots, stems and leaves the first year and producing upright stems that bear flowers and stems the second year. The most common predator is Queen Anne's lace.

THE BEST DEFENSE

Unfortunately, no garden will ever be weed free. So the best defense in attacking the problem is to start early in the season — pull weeds out before they get a foothold and set seed.

If it's too late to do this, try mulching around your plants to smother out any weed seeds that germinate.

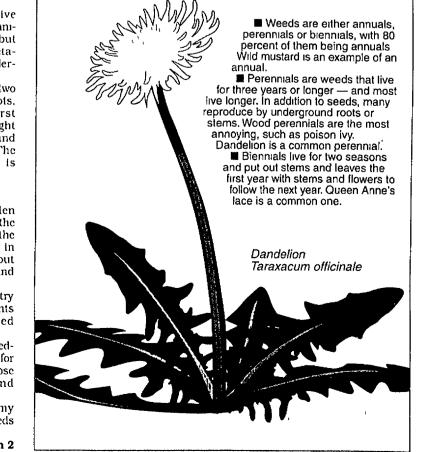

In some cases, hand-weeding works best, especially for removing weeds growing close to plants, vegetables and flowers.

But thank God for my trusty hoe. I say hack weeds

The lowdown on weeds

The best rule for keeping weeds in check is to destroy them before they go to seed. This means fewer seeds that can sprout next year.

Cleaning vinyl siding is fairly simple

By, Gene Gary Copies News Service

9. The vinyl siding installed on my home is 2 years old. During this period it has become dirty from the weather, green mold, insect droppings, etc. How do; I go about cleaning the siding?• A If washing down your siding with an ordinary garden hose fails to clean it satisfactorily, just follow these simple instructions provided by the Vinyl Siding Institute

Get an ordinary, long-handled cativashing brush at your auto supply store. This brush has soft bristles, and the handle fastens onto the end of your hose. It lets you wash the siding just like you wash your car.

If the dirt is hard to remove, such as soot and grime found in industrial areas, wipe down the siding with a solution made of the following: cup powder detergent (e g., Tide, Fab or equivalent powdefidetergent). cup household cleaner (e.g., Soilax, Spic & Span, Simple Green or equivalent). I gallon water. If mildew is a problem in your area, use this solution, but substitute 1 quart liquid laundry bleach for 1 quart water, but never mix chlorine bleach with an animoniated cleaner.

When washing any large vertical surface, such as the side of a house or garage, it is best to start cleaning at the bottom to prevent water from making hard-to-remove tracks as it runs over a dirty surface After brushing with the cleaning solution, rinse with clear water.

During the cleaning process wear protective clothing, including rubber gloves and goggles, and protect nearby plants and shrubs with plastic dropcloths

Stubborn staining may need additional attention. Stains from oils, grease or tar can often be removed by wiping the siding with a soft cloth moistened with mineral spirits, V.M.P., naphtha or auto tar remover. Remove as much of the sticky substance first with a plastic or wood scraper. Avoid using too much pressure when polishing with a solvent, as this can create shiny spots.

After removing the stain, rinse area with water. Use the same treatment for removing stains from inks, nail polish, paint, lipstick or gum, but substitute a cleaning fluid (trichloroethylene) for the cleaning solvents listed above Treat gum with ice to remove excess prior to using a cleaning fluid.

Rust stains, sometimes resulting from the running or dripping of water from metal fixtures onto the siding, can often be removed by wiping with a solution of 1 tablespoon of oxalic-acid crystals dissolved in 1 cup warm water. Use a soft-bristle brush to scrub, wipe with a damp cloth, then finish by rinsing with clear water.

If you have stubborn stains that persist after these cleaning treatments, dampen a small section of cloth with xylene (lacquer thinner), and rub vigorously. Do not remove any more material than necessary Rinse area with water.

Q. Our home has vinyl siding. One section was damaged when some heavy equipment was stored alongside the house. A couple of panels are noticeably cracked and there are numerous gouges in another panel. Can these be repaired?

A. It is possible to repair slight fractures and punctures. More serious damage will probably require replacement of the entire panel. With the proper tools and equipment, neither of these tasks is too difficult.

First clean the siding thoroughly Minor cracks can be sealed with a flexible paintable caulking compound. Smooth the compound carefully, let it cure and touch up with paint that matches the sid-

mg. More noticeable fractures or punctures often can be patched from behind with a piece of scrap vinyl siding This will require removal of the siding panel. Use pipe-fitting cement for an adhesive, and firmly press the damaged piece down flat on the patch piece

Severe cracks or damage sometimes make it necessary to remove and replace one or more of the siding panels

If you are unable to locate matching panels, it is sometimes feasible to switch the damaged panels to an inconspicuous position at the back of the house or behind shrubbery, and replace them with undamaged panels taken from the hidden area.

There are 1934 to a second and the second and the second are seen

The removal of vinyl panels without damage requires a special siding replacement tool, which is simply a flat strip of metal hooked at one end. This type of tool can be purchased at some hardware stores or from a vinyl-siding distributor or building supply dealer.

To remove a panel with the siding tool, slide it into the joint above the damaged panel. Slide the hook along the lip of the upper panel with a pulling, prying motion, which separates the panels. The bottom edge of the upper panel can then be lifted to expose the nails on the damaged panel.

Use an all-purpose pry bar to pry out the nails holding the damaged panel section. Take care not to damage the felt paper behind the siding With the nails out, the only thing holding the damaged panel to the house is the joint below the damaged panel. To free it, use the siding replacement tool to disengage the joint The procedure is reversed for the installation of the replacement panel

When nailing in the new vinyl siding panel, the nails must not be driven too tight, or they will prevent expansion and contraction of the panels, which can result in warping or cracking Use galvanized or aluminum siding nails, placed close to the center of the nailing slots in the panel. A space

Cleaning vinyl siding

Start with a regular garden hose and water. If not satisfied, clean with a scrub brush (preferably on a handle) and a cleaning solution made of 1/3 cup powder detergent, 2/3 cup household cleaner, 1 quart liquid bleach and 3 quarts water. Never mix bleach with an ammoniated cleanser,

Begin tackling weeds early in the growing season; first aid for sick peonies

out with it! Hoes come in different sizes and shapes related to specific tasks, so simply ask for the right weapon and you'll be well on your way to winning the battle

Q. One of my peonies that I planted four years ago looks sick and has not bloomed. The buds form, then turn black and shrivel up.

What do you suggest?

A. I suggest that you take steps to immediately control this disease that is known as botrytis blight (Botrytis paeoniae) Besides affecting peony buds, botrytis blight also attacks the rest of the plant, flower stalks. leaf petioles and leaves

Inspect your plant throughout the growing season and remove and dispose of all infected plant parts as soon as you spot them. Ask your local nursery for the best possible fungicide for this disease, and then in the spring spray new shoots as they emerge.

Please follow label instructions carefully when using materials for control - it's most important.

In the fall, after the plant has died back, remove and discard old leaves and stems at, or just below, soil level to reduce the population of over-wintering spores Your peony should be planted in well-drained soil in full sun in an open area where good air movement will thwart disease outbreaks by rapidly drying the flowers and leaves. Mulch with compost or rotted manure

Though peonies are heavy feeders, don't overfertilize, especially with nitrogen since high levels of it may predispose peonies to other diseases and botrytis.

1900's brass turtle was used as a spittoon

STAT ANT HAR HELLETTING ANT SOMER THE

By Anne McCollam Copley News Service

Q. My mother gave me the brass turtle that is in this photo. She said it belonged to her great-grandmother. When you step on its head, the shell opens exposing a removable container.

What is it? How old is it? What is it worth?

A. Your turtle is a cuspidor. Chewing tobacco was prevalent in the 1800s and early 1900s. Cuspidors or spittoons were containers for spitting into when chewing tobacco. These ubiquitous containers were available in porcelain, pottery and metal for both women and men.

Yours was made around 1900 The value would probably be about $350

Q. Over 50 years ago, my mother was given a set of Fostoria glassware. The pattern is "American." There are eight iced-tea glasses, eight water glasses and eight sherbet glasses.

I am curious why the bases of the water glasses are a hexagon shape while the bases of the sherbet and iced-tea glasses are round. My mother and I would like to know how much this set is worth.

A The pattern "American" was first made in 1915 by Fostoria. This pattern was made only in crystal, never in color. It was designed to resemble 19th century pressed glass. The water goblets were available in both the round and the hexagon foot

Your glassware was made in the early 1900s. The set would probably be worth about $250 in good condition.

Q. I have an old porcelain humidor. The original sponge to keep the tobacco damp is still inside the lid. The , BOOK REVIEW humidor is decorated with a bronze glaze and a colorful Oriental design. On the bottom are the words "Hand Painted - Nippon," and a wreath with the letter "M.

What can you tell me about my humi-

ANTIQUES

HERE IS NOT WITH A CONTRACT OF A

dor? A. "Nippon" was the Japanese word for Japan. The United States required that porcelain imported to America be marked Nippon" from 1891 to 1921. The letter "M" represents N.Y. distributors Morimura Brothers.

The value of your humidor would probably be about $350 to $375 in mint condition.

Q. I recently purchased a tall fluted glass basket with a handle. The basket is approximately 12 inches high. I think it was made by Heisey because it is marked with an "H" inside a diamond.

I would like to know more about this manufacturer and the value of the basket.

A. A.H. Heisey Glass Co. was established in Newark, Ohio, in 1896 Both molded patterns and blown patterns were made in crystal and in a variety of colors Heisey glass is known for its integrity in quality and design

Most glassware was marked with the "II" in the diamond Some pieces were marked with only a paper label.

In 1958, Imperial Glass bought most of the Heisey molds. They stopped using the famous Heisey mark in 1968. HCA purchased most of the Heisey molds from Imperial in 1985

Your basket was made in the early 1900s. Its value would probably be about $150 to $200 in good condition.

Lower interest rates, home prices and variety of loan plans encourage first-time buyers ing number of those renters are now taking action to acquire their dream home-

Low mortgage interest rates: a widening variety of loan plans, and lowering homeprices in many areas are sparking action by first time buyers.

loday, about 85 percent of renters between the ages of 18 and 45 expect to buy a home sometime in the future. according to a survey by the National Association of Realtors. The survey questions also asked how long they expect it to take to save enough to buy a home, what sources other than savings were available to them, the sacrifices they had made or were planning to make, and what trade offs they were willing to make in finding an affordable home they could purchase

About 60 percent of the renters surveyed indicated they expected to purchase a home in one to five years. And nearly one-third of that group planned to buy within as little as one to two years. On average renters save from $51 to $100 per month for the down payment on a home

A growing number of those first-time buyers are planning to put up the entire cash down payment themselves, rather 'than drawing on such sources as gifts and loans from parents, inheritances, liquid investments or others

Even though renters are more motivat ed to buy a home, they are not as willing to make specific sacrifices needed to become a homeowner as they were a few years ago, the NAR survey noted a set However, renters are still willing to make sacrifices. For example, 35 percent said they would buy a home with fewer amenities than they really wanted if necessary to qualify for a home purchase

About 20 percent said they would buy a - will need to make to purchase a home home in a neighborhood that wasn't their first choice

Nearly 13 percent of renters said they would accept a home where they had to commute more than an hour each way to work or school. And 12 percent indicated they would buy a condo or town house rather than a single-family residence - at least for their first owned home.

Generally renters today appear to be quite a bit more optimistic about the number and extent of the sacrifices and trade-offs they would need to make, it was revealed in the NAR survey. The survey report concluded with the following observation.

"Our findings suggest that during economic downturns, renters need to be bet ter informed about the financial realities of home buying. They should save and realistically perceive the sacrifices they within a reasonable period of time

Q. Is it true that the Century 21 franchise group was sold?

A Yes Century 21 Real Estate Corporation was sold again. This time, it was purchased by Hospitality Franchise Systems Inc., based in New Jersey. The reported price is $200 million in cash and stock -about $51 million less than Metropolitan Life Insurance Company paid for it in 1985

The acquisition is expected to close in August No major layoffs of current staff are planned And the Century 21 headquarters will probably remain in Irvine, Calif., it was reported

Q. Is there a consumer-friendly book available that gives practical tips for the average home buyer?

A I recently reviewed a book that fits that description. First, it's exceptionally consumer-friendly --- no real estate transaction or legal mumbo-jumbo. Just clearly-defined practical advice on each step in . the home purchase process.

The primary thrust of the text is related to negotiating with property sellers, not the technical aspects of home buying. The objective is to acquire a desired property. at the lowest possible price and best terms.

The book, "Not One Dollar More," is written by Joseph Cummins. For informa tion, write to Cummins at P.O Box 60; Oceanville, NJ 08231-0060

U.S. Savings Bonds will help them do one thing with their retirement: Enjoy it.

U.S. Savings Bonds are helping millions of Americans save for their retirement — easily and safely.

When you buy U.S. Savings Bonds, you'll know your money will be there when you retire. Your investment is backed by the full faith and credit of the United States. earn competitive, market-based interest, compounded semiannually, when held five years or more. And you can redeem them anytime after six months from the issue date.

Whatever your plans for retirement, U.S. Savings Bonds can help you enjoy them. For more information, ask your employer or bank, or write:
U.S. Savings Bonds Division, Department of the Treasury, Box 933 N, Washington, DC 20226.

New approach makes reading fun

Personalized stories win kids' attention

By RICK BYRNE Staff Writer

If what they read isn't meaningful to children, they won't be eager to practice their skills.

What, then, could be more meaningful to a child than a reading book that is about him or her?

That's exactly what Don Foster of Milford provides to children with the Learn to Read program he presents through his company, Genesis Diversified Computer Services. Foster, who's a Royal Oak police officer by day, creates books that use each individual child's name as a title character and makes refcrences to things like the child's friends, family, hometown and street, referring to them all by name

The purpose is to get them excited about reading." Foster said. When they're the star and the book is the center of attention, it's easy to see how they get excited You can see how their eyes light up.

It all happens thanks to a computer program that allows Foster to gather the information about the child who will own the book and plug it into one of a variety of formula stories that can become part of a child's reading curriculum

"Other than having three kids of my own. I like kids and being around them," said Foster.

With that in mind, he goes to area daycare centers and presents center officials with the Idea of the Learn to Read program

For the daycare centers, there's no cost. Instead, the books are paid for by sponsors from the neighborhood

"I just ask the center if I can use their name, and then I go to the local merchants Usually I'll start with the business right next door," Foster said.

The book is delivered to the children with a sponsor page listing up to 14 merchants who have contributed

A letter is also sent home to the parents explaining the program and the involvement of the sponsors and encouraging the parents to patronize those merchants.

Generally, though, the mer-

Jobless level nudges down

Nine out of 10 of Michigan's major labor market areas experienced declines in unemployment rates 'in May, according to the latest figures from the Michigan Employment Security Commission.

The largest decreases occurred in the Upper Peninsula, which dropped 2.6 percent, and in the Saginaw/Bay City area, which dropped 1 percent from April to May.

Employment in the construction, retail and service industries was up in all major areas, as was manufacturing employment.

"Much of the growth in manufacturing was auto related," said F. Robert Edwards, director of the MESC. "The employment increases in the construction, retail and service industries were largely seasonal."

The largest decline in unemployment was in the Upper Peninsula, which dropped from 10.5 percent to 7.9 percent.

The only major area reporting an increase in unemployment was Ann Arbor, where joblessness rose from 3.5 percent in April to 3 7 percent in May.

Police officer Don Foster reads a personalized story book to Emma Faye Dennis at the Cream of the Crop Day Care center in White Lake. Foster says using children's own names in stories helps capture their interest.

the program Most of them do it just because they like children. They could get more bang for their buck buying an ad in the local shopper. But since it's mixed in with the learn to read program, they want to get involved

Already Foster's done books for daycare centers in Royal Oak and Ferndale The Cream of the Crop in White Lake recently distributed books for its children, and the Little Cottage in Milford should chants take a low-key approach to receive theirs in about three weeks.

Foster takes great pleasure in hand-delivering the books to the children.

It doesn't take long for them to lose their shyness when they discover he's bringing books about them.

"I try to get there during story time and reading time," he said. "Pretty soon I've got three or four of them saying 'Read mine! Read mine¹

It's a drastic change from the police work Foster does by day. He points out that it balances out his dealings with law-breakers.

"It's so much fun and so positive and upbeat to be out there with the kids and the business people," he said

"It gets you to realize how 99 percent of the people in the world are positive

Indeed the positive nature of the business gave Foster the idea for his company's name. He took it from the biblical book of Genesis. "It really was a new beginning for me," he said.

Anyone interested in Genesis and the Learn to Read program can call (810) 685-1038

Although he primarily markets the books through daycare centers, he will do individual books as well

Survey reveals optimistic outlook

Americans are optimistic about their own family fortunes for the rest of the year, but they're less upbeat about the national economy, according to a nationwide survey conducted for Lutheran Brotherhood.

More than half (53 percent) of the 1,000 heads of household interviewed expect their families will be better off in 1995, balancing their income, savings and investments against their financial obligations.

Forty-four percent expect to be no better off, or about the same Asked how they expect their total family income before taxes will fare, 45 percent expect an increase, 44 percent expect no change, and just 10 percent expect economy will become better in 1995, versus 26 percent who think it will become worse

More than four in 10 (43 percent) think the nation's economy will stay the same.

Many Americans also see difficult financial times ahead for children. Asked about babies born in 1995, 38 percent said the newest generation will be worse off than the respondents when they reach the same age.

Only 31 percent said those born in 1995 will be better off, and 24 percent expect the newborns to experience about the same financial position when they grow up.

"Ironically, Americans are confident that they ll improve their own financial lot the second half of this year, but that optimism doesn't translate beyond their own homes," says Rolf Bjelland, executive vice president and chief investment officer of Lutheran Brotherhood.

Cosmetics line easy on the eyes and environment

Forget the Bahamas, Tahiti and the five-star cruise. "Peace of Mind" can be had with a quick trip to Twelve Oaks Mall in Novi

Since Origins Natural Resources, an upscale, ecologically-conscious cosmetics company, opened its first Michigan store in mid-April, it has been selling 'total wellbeing" for prices from $1 to $200 Its 186product "Skin Care, Color, and Sensory Therapy" line, includes products named: "Comforting Solution," "Swept Away" and "Energy Boost" which target physical and mental stress, along with "Peace of Mind." "Well Off." 'Swept Clean" and "Clear Improvement" are included in the cleansing lineup. and "Sunny Disposition" and 'Fringe Benefits" make up the line of makeup.

Local residents may be familiar with Estee Lauder-owned Origins through its counters at Hudson's department stores

Novi-area shoppers have been requesting an Origins for quite some time." says William P Lauder, grandson of Estee and Origins' vice president and general manager. "And we have long been interested in entering the Detroit market with our own retail store. We felt the demographics of the Tweive Oaks customer fit very well with the Origins philosophy and prod-uct line That, coupled with the fact that Twelve Oaks is one of the premier malls in Detroit, was instrumental in our decision to open the store there."

"Twelve Oaks shoppers have become increasingly sophisticated about ecology and environment," Elaine Kah, marketing director at Twelve Oaks, said. They're con-cerned about the effects products they use will have on them and the environment. Our new Origins, along with Twelve Oaks' popular H20 Plus and The Body Shop, provides our shoppers with a broad range of environmentally friendly products.

Origins' eco-consciousness sets standards for formulation, packaging, and shipping of products as well as store design. White maple display units, carved from readily renewable native American wood, attractively array products and make them accessible to shoppers. A "kitchen island" centerpiece features a counter space with samples and a sink for easy experimentation. And durable slate countertops and floors create an earthy look and allow for chemicalfree maintenance. Origins welcomes its customers to return empty containers to the store for recycling Even their brochures are printed on recycled paper using soy-based ink

Twelve Oaks Mall, located at Twelve Mile and Novi Road, features 180 shops and services along with Hudson's, Lord & Taylor, JC Penney, and Scars. Shopping hours are 10 a.m. to 9 p.m., Mon-day through Saturday, 11 a m to 6 p.m., on Sunday
