Manager lauded for saving life

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

Jim Harris doesn't think he did anything special when he helped perform CPR on an old man one sunny June morning seven weeks ago.

It's an opinion Northville Township officials don't share.

"It's because of his knowledge of CPR and his willingness to help that we were able to save this man's life," Fire Chief Bill Zhmendak said. "What Mr. Harris did was really over and above what would be expected from a citizen."

Harris, 35, is a produce department manager at the Meijer store at Eight Mile and Haggerty. The 15-year company veteran was tending his fruits and vegetables the morning of June 21 when an alert sounded over the store's intercom.

"They issued a code which means medical emergency," Harris, a Southgate resident, said. "I was in the area so I responded. I found an elderly man slumped over the wheel of his car just outside of the south doors (by the grocery department). His wife said he'd passed out and she couldn't get him to wake up."

As other Meijer employees called 911, Harris, a licensed Emergency Medical Technician (EMT), checked the man's vital signs. No pulse. No breathing.

"That was when I knew he was in full cardiac arrest," Harris said.

> "Jim helped make it possible for the gentleman to be treated."
> Bill Zhmendak
> Northville Township Fire Chief

At that moment Northville Township firefighter Bill Conroy arrived on the scene and together they got the man out of the car, onto the parking lot, and began to perform two-man cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) on him.

"After about five minutes the paramedics arrived and took over," Harris explained. "They worked on him, used a defibrillator, and then transported him to the hospital."

"Jim helped make it possible for the gentleman to be treated," Zhmendak said. "That's the point we want to get out to the public: CPR can keep someone in a good position long enough for emergency personnel to arrive on the scene."

Northville Township honored Harris' efforts last month with a special commendation. Despite that honor, he remains modest about his actions.

"I was just doing my duty, really," Harris said, who attended

Request denied by board

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

Members of Northville Township's Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA) turned down a local developer's request for a lot split this week.

It's a decision that had the resounding support of those who live near Ed and Barbara Funke's lot on Main Street east of Beck, but could lead to yet another lawsuit being filed against the township.

The Funkes bought the 3.2 acre parcel last year, asking the township to allow them to split it into three separate lots soon after. They say they want to build their own home on one and sell the other two.

The Township ordinance only allows the couple to divide the land into two lots. For three they needed the ZBA to grant a variance from an ordinance that requires their lots to be at least as big as the median lot size of all properties for 500 feet around.

The Funke's three lots would have a median size of 1.1 acres. Township planning consultants

District library on track

By ROBERT JACKSON
Staff Writer

Despite the rain and bad weather that has plagued the area within the past three weeks, construction of the Northville District Library is going on as planned.

The rain has caused some minor setbacks, according to project manager Stephen Ball, of the George W. Auch Company, but partial site sewer work began Aug. 4, and the installation of storm sewers should alleviate the water pooling problem.

"We're accomplishing some sewer work that will eliminate the water pooling problem due to the rain," he said.

The city's emergency generator and siren have already been relocated and the site demolition and excavation for the lower level of the Chris Johnson announced he will seek reelection for a fifth term as Northville mayor.

Johnson formally announced his decision at Monday's meeting of the city council. Mayor pro-tem Carolann Ayers and councilman Paul Folino also announced they will seek reelection.

Northville voters will cast ballots for the council on Nov. 7.

Johnson was first elected mayor in 1987. He also serves on the Northville Downtown Development Authority and the Northville Historic District Commission.

Ayers was elected to the council in 1979 and is looking forward to the challenges of Northville's

Development studied by commission

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

Could the 800-odd acres of Wayne County-owned land in Northville Township finally be on a path to private sector development?

A first step could come later this month when the county commission votes on whether to use $208,000 in federal grant money to begin the extensive and expensive process of cleaning up the land, which is bordered by Beck, Sheldon, Five and Six Mile roads.

A special commission subcommittee headed by Thaddeus McCotter, R-Livonia, has spent months examining the so-called Huntington Falls property, trying to decide what to do with it. That was the name given to a $1 billion, 1991 industrial/residential/commercial proposal for the site, the brainchild of a group of metro area businessmen headed by Plymouth

Parrot takes a short vacation

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

Editor's note: The first two paragraphs of this story should be sung to the theme song from The Beverly Hillbillies.)

Let me tell ya a little story about a parrot named Fred,
Flew off one day and his owner thought him dead.
But then a woman saw that parrot fly into her tree,
She lured him, got bit by him, but trapped ol' Fred successfully.

Now Fred's back at home, just where he belongs,
Nursing a sunburn like he was on a vacation gone wrong.
Flying's out for him because his wings are clipped,
His owner insists, now he can't get lift,
So ol' Fred's grounded from now on.

It seemed like any other day to Fred.

Wake up, ask for crackers and then take a leisurely spin around the trailer. How hard can it be?

Very, because that particular day wasn't an ordinary one in the life of this Amazon parrot. Fred went missing in action (MIA) after accidentally flying out of the Plymouth Township mobile home he calls home.

"I was pretty devastated," Suzanne Trethewey, Fred's owner and friend, said. "I figured he was gone for good. I don't have any kids but I've had Fred for 10 years and you get attached."

It was nine long days before Suzanne and Fred would be reunited, a happy event made possible by Northville Township resident Jenny Mellinger.

"One morning my son was looking out of the window and motioned to me to come see," Mellinger, who lives on Ridge Court between Six and Seven Mile, said. "Well, sitting there on the telephone wires was a lime green parrot."

> "He'll be a walker from now on."
> Suzanne Trethewey
> Parrot owner

The two tried to entice the bird to come inside with a handful of grapes but while he took the grapes Fred wouldn't bite – yet.

As the morning wore on, Mellinger explained, Fred hopped down into the trees in her yard. After a couple of hours of coaxing he got close enough for her to throw a towel over the foot-high feathered fellow and take him inside.

"I should have used two or three, though," Mellinger said with a chuckle, "because he bit me very, very hard. He scratched my arms and my stomach, too, but we got along okay after that."

She put Fred in a laundry basket, then covered it with a second basket – "my cat's watching him the whole time" – and took the parrot condo to the Leisure Time Pet Center in Highland Lakes Mall on Seven Mile.

"We weren't sure what to do with him but the owners (of the pet store) said they'd put him up," Mellinger said.

So they did, for more than three days, and it's something Leisure Time owner Bill Wisniewski won't soon forget.

"Usually we get calls about people who've found lost parakeets," he said. "It sparked my interest when I heard it was a large parrot. That's not something that happens every day."

Fred was "in pretty good health, considering that he'd been exposed to the elements for several days," Wisniewski said. "His biggest problem was that he was sunburned. The skin around his eyes was all red and it started to peel the day after he got here."

Fred the parrot seems to be happy to be home, snuggling with his owner, Suzanne Trethewey, after flying the coop last week on an odyssey that took him to Northville Township.

Meanwhile, Mellinger managed to locate Fred's very grateful owner. Acting on an instinct, she checked a Plymouth pet store – Trethewey's pet store – to see if anyone had reported a lost parrot. A phone call later, Fred and Suzanne were together again.

"She was so happy to see him that she cried a little," Mellinger said.

"I was just so glad to see him," Trethewey said. "I thought he looked a little sick but he's doing fine now."

Leisure Time wouldn't let either of them pay for keeping Fred, and Wisniewski even clipped the bird's wings for free.

"It's just like getting a haircut," he explained. "We clip the feathers that allow the bird to fly. Essentially they can't get lift, so they stay grounded. It's a lot safer for them."

"He'll be a walker from now on," Trethewey said.

The whole affair contained its own reward, Wisniewski said.

"It feels good," he explained. "It's nice to hook up somebody with their pet again."

Police nab family of shoplifters

Events this weekend at Meijer demonstrated that the family that steals together stays together – at least while they're being booked.

Northville Township police arrested an aunt, who worked at the store as a cashier, and her niece for shoplifting the contents of three shopping carts on the afternoon of Aug. 5. Meijer detectives said they saw the aunt, 32, fail to ring up most of the goods in the carts pushed into her lane by the niece, 18. She rang up and accepted payment for $220 worth of toys, tools, clothes and food, the detectives said, but allowed $426 worth of merchandise to go unpaid.

Both were stopped just outside of the store and held until township officers arrived.

The teen was booked and released at the scene. She faces a hearing on Aug. 23 in 35th District Court.

A computer check on the aunt revealed three outstanding traffic warrants, two of which arose from cases in Ferndale.

The woman was held at township police headquarters until Ferndale officers picked her up.

AND LARCENY'S NOT JUST FOR THE FAMILY, EITHER: Township police arrested a Westland couple for shoplifting at Meijer August 2.

Store detectives said the man, 29, and his girlfriend, 28, each put on a pair of athletic shoes and then walked out of the store without trying to pay for them.

They face a hearing in 35th District Court on Aug. 23. The shoes are valued at $80.

SPEAKERS SNEAKED: A Silver Springs Drive resident reported the theft of his car stereo speakers to township police on Saturday.

The man, 19, said he parked his 1988 Ford Escort outside of his home at about 3 p.m. When he returned to it at about 9:15 p.m. the locked car had been opened and the speakers taken. They are valued at $380.

JEEP STOLEN: Someone stole the 1994 Jeep Cherokee belonging to an Inlet Court resident sometime Sunday morning.

The victim, 47, said that the theft took place between 3 and 9 a.m. The Jeep is valued at $20,000.

BEER BUST NORTH: A New Hudson woman was arrested Saturday night at Meijer for trying to walk out of the store with a six-pack of beer.

Store detectives said they saw the woman, 41, pick up the beer and walk out of the front doors without trying to pay for it. She allegedly resisted their citizens' arrest and was handcuffed.

A township officer booked her at the scene and she was then released.

The beer is valued at $4. The woman faces an Aug. 22 hearing in 35th District Court.

BEER BUST SOUTH: Meanwhile, township police also investigated a liquor larceny that occurred last Tuesday evening at Mr. Z's party store on Five Mile.

The store's owner said that a white male came into Mr. Z's, took a 12-pack of beer from the cooler and then walked out. He got into a red four-door vehicle, possibly a Ford Taurus, that was occupied by three other white males, the shopkeeper, 30, said. The car then headed north on nearby Marilyn Drive. The beer is valued at $10.

CHIMNEY SWEEP SWINDLE: A W. Main Street man reported a case of fraud to township police last Wednesday afternoon.

The man, 44, said that he'd given a check for $400 to the owner of a local chimney sweep firm about 12 weeks ago to clean his chimney. The man cashed the check but never even attempted the job, the man said.

FORGED CHECKS: A 22-year-old Canton woman told township police that someone stole three of her personal checks, forged her signature and bilked her for $1,567.

The woman said that her bank called her last Monday to report the checks, one of which was cashed at the Comerica bank on Eight Mile near Haggerty. Police are checking to see if two friends of the woman's 20-year-old brother may be involved.

PROWLER PROMPTS POLICE PROSECUTION: A 17-year-old Farmington youth was arrested Aug. 1, for prowling in a Northville neighborhood.

The suspect was spotted at about 3 a.m. by Northville Police Officer Bill Edgar, who was patrolling Cady Street.

Edgar spotted the youth, who was dressed in black clothing, running from a home located at 500 W. Cady.

Edgar chased the suspect and finally found him hiding behind a bush.

After Edgar placed the suspect in the patrol car, he noticed the garage door opened at the 500 W. Cady residence. Upon further investigation Edgar noticed that the glove box was left open in both vehicles parked in the garage.

The officer immediately notified the resident, who could not find anything missing or damaged in the garage.

The juvenile was transported to the Northville Police Department, where he was processed and then released on a $500 personal bond.

Police are continuing their investigation into this case.

ATM THEFT REPORTED: A 44-year-old Livonia woman reported the fraudulent use of her Automatic Teller Machine (ATM) card, to Northville police, Aug. 2.

The woman was conducting business at the Dearborn Federal Credit Union when she learned that ATM withdrawals, totaling approximately $850, were made from her account.

The woman claims she didn't withdraw the money, which was withdrawn at an ATM at the Comerica drive in bank, located at Dunlap and Hutton Streets.

Police have no leads, and no suspects have been identified.

SKATING AWAY: A 36-year-old Northville woman reported a theft from her apartment storage bin, July 29.

The woman, who lives in the Northville Village Green Apartments, told police that an unknown person stole three pairs of in-line skates, valued at approximately $150, from the basement storage area of her apartment building.

Police have no suspects in the case.

A LITTLE OFF THE TOP PLEASE: A tractor-trailer driver misjudged the height of telephone wires Aug. 1 on N. Rogers Street and snapped the wires as he drove away.

Police report the man, driving a residential moving van, was driving northbound on Rogers Street when the rear portion of the trailer caught the telephone lines and pulled them down.

The incident caused a disruption in phone service to 131 and 125 Rogers Street and was the second such incident to take place at the same location within a week, according to police.

Township youth injured in mishap

By RANDY COBLE

A 13-year-old boy suffered serious injuries last Monday as the result of a joyride gone wrong in Northville Township.

A 14-year-old Redford Township resident allegedly drove his parents' 1995 Chrysler Cirrus without their knowledge and without a driver's license on the night of Aug. 7.

Two 13-year-old friends, both of Redford Township, accompanied him.

The teen told township police that he lost control of the car while speeding on Six Mile near Ridge Road at about 2:45 a.m.

The Cirrus struck the road shoulder and a fence and rolled over at least once before coming to rest.

"After the vehicle stopped he heard (one of the thirteen-year-olds) moaning and realized the back window was gone and (the boy), who had not been seat-belted, was no longer in the car," the police report of the incident said.

The 14-year-old then ran to the nearest house for help.

Township paramedics and Huron Valley Ambulance (HVA) personnel transported him and one of the other boys to St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ann Arbor.

The 13-year-old who was thrown from the car was taken to U. of M. Hospital in Ann Arbor, suffering chest and severe facial injuries.

According to police, the teen has not been ticketed but police say the matter is still under investigation.

The boy could be charged with driving without a license, a misdemeanor which carries a maximum penalty of a $500 fine and/or 90 days in jail upon conviction.

Novi council mulls local sign ordinance

By JAN JEFFRES
Staff Writer

Do merchants want to turn Novi into a mini Las Vegas of flashing neon signs or do they simply want their customers to know when they're open for business?

Once again, the Novi City Council is pondering the controversial local sign ordinance. On Monday, they denied the first reading of a revision which would permit the posting of lighted window signs indicating if a location is open or closed.

Council Member Robert Schmid, referring to neon as "illuminated stuff that looks like bubble gum," was strongly against altering the sign regulations.

"This is an ordinance that's been in effect for a number of years. It's taken a lot of hits. It's a good ordinance. The city's developed without the bells and whistles," he explained.

The rewrite was requested by the Novi Chamber of Commerce and then passed on to the council by the city's ordinance review committee. Currently, open/closed signs are permitted to be posted in windows but they may not be illuminated. The proposed amendment would limit the lighted signs to two square feet.

Resident Gail Zbranchiek was all for the change, saying it was a convenience for shoppers.

"When you're driving down the road at 55 mph with a bazillion cars behind you and you want to make a turn into a store and your have screaming kids behind you, the last thing you want to do is take ten minutes to turn left and find out the store is closed," she said.

The ordinance amendment will come before the council for a second reading before a final decision is made.

Mayor Pro Tem Hugh Crawford clearly didn't see the light on this one.

"I'm not aware of businesses in Novi going out of business because customers don't think they're open. They're thriving businesses," Crawford said.

"Once the neon is in the windows, it'll be a pretty tough case not to allow more neon in windows. I think it's a step in the wrong direction and I don't think it's needed in this community."

WOMEN'S HEALTH

Family Tradition.

Every family has its traditions. Gathering for Sunday dinner. Marking anniversaries and celebrating birthdays. Unfortunately, some families share more than happy times . . . they also share the risk of certain illnesses.

Breast cancer—which now strikes one in nine American women—is among them. If your mother, grandmother, aunt or sister has been diagnosed with this disease, your doctor probably has explained the added risk you face. But unlike women in past generations, you can put time and technology on your side.

We at the Marian Women's Center, St. Mary Hospital, encourage you to see your doctor regularly whatever your age and, once you reach 40, to see us for a mammogram. Our mammography services are designed to give you peace of mind by bringing together certified radiologists and staff, personalized education and high-tech imaging equipment approved by the American College of Radiologists.

Make mammography and regular breast exams a new family tradition. For more facts on mammography services and other programs at the Marian Women's Center just call us at (313) 591-3314.

Sgt. Guy Balok of the Northville Township Fire Department demonstrates the correct CPR technique on one of 20 new mannequins bought with funds donated by the Rotary Club.

Firefighters offer CPR training

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

It's agreed that everyone should know their ABCs. The Northville Township Fire Department wants you to know your CPR as well.

The department, with a big assist from the Northville Rotary Club, has begun an aggressive campaign to teach residents the basics of cardiopulmonary resuscitation, or CPR. It's a system designed to keep blood and air flowing in the veins and lungs of someone whose heart and lungs have stopped working due to injury or illness.

A properly trained person performing CPR can prevent someone from suffering serious injury and even death, keeping him or her going during the precious minutes before paramedics can arrive on the scene.

"In Northville Township it takes us an average of five to eight minutes to respond on a case of cardiac arrest," fire Sergeant Guy Balok explained. "We're up against the clock on every call because every minute lessens the chances for the patient."

"We want to get the citizens out there trained in CPR to help be ready in the event of an emergency," he continued. "We'd like to train 70 percent of the adults in the Northville area within the next two to four years. The training could enable you or someone else to save the life of a friend or family member someday."

A big reason for the increased effort is the generosity of the Rotary Club, which recently donated $500 towards the $12,000 purchase price of 20 CPR training mannequins.

"We put out a call to the civic groups for help," Balok said. "Without them we just can't get this done. We can't thank the Rotary enough."

Until recently the department could only conduct CPR classes for up to 15 citizens at a time with a couple of mannequins, which led to increased class time and reduced training effectiveness.

"It can be a lot more hands on now," Balok said. "You retain training more when you get to do something over and over again."

The department has been offering CPR and first aid classes in cooperation with the Northville Parks and Recreation Department since 1988. The basic CPR class lasts about five and a half hours, Balok said, and a combined first aid/CPR class goes about nine and a half hours.

Classes are scheduled once per month for the rest of the year.

Training in child and infant CPR administration, as well as CPR recertification, is also available. The department also offers injury prevention classes for local businesses.

The classes include other useful information such as discussions of healthy lifestyles, the right way to call 911 and how to spot signs of an oncoming heart attack.

"We want to teach people how to avoid a problem rather than just responding to it," Balok said. "If you recognize the signs of a heart attack and get to the hospital within two hours there's a 75 percent rate of total recovery."

"If all this saves even one life then the investment we've made is immensely worth the return," Balok said. "Helping someone in that situation is an uplifting experience. It really stays with you for all the years of your life."

Registration for fall CPR classes begins Sept. 5. The classes are taught in the evenings at Township Fire Station No. Two on Seven Mile west of Beck. Call the Parks and Recreation Department at 349-0203 for more information

Cash not always best on vacation

When gearing up for that summer getaway, travelers should ask themselves an important question: What is the best way to manage vacation spending money?

AAA Travel officials say traveling with loads of cash is not wise.

"If lost or stolen, cash is irreplaceable," said AAA Travel Director Bill Best. "Also, flashing wads of bills may make a tourist an easy theft target."

Instead, he suggests vacationers consider a variety of payment methods – from travelers checks to credit cards – to insure maximum convenience and security. Most of the vacation funds should be in travelers checks, Best said.

It's vital to keep a set of travelers check serial numbers separate from the checks to order for them to be replaced.

In general, visitors also get a better exchange rate overseas when changing travelers checks rather than cash.

AAA Travel also recommends members use a credit card to cover unexpected or very large expenses incurred during vacation. Credit card purchases are exchanged at the interbank exchange rate, usually the best rate available for currency exchange. Also, credit charges are the easiest to challenge if services or merchandise purchased are unsatisfactory or incorrectly charged.

Finally, travelers should carry some cash in small bills to cover tips, taxi fares, telephones, and other miscellaneous small expenses.

AAA Michigan offers these safety tips for carrying cash on vacation:

• Split up cash among family members so funds are still available should one person experience a loss. Carry only the amount of cash you need and lock the rest in the hotel safe deposit box. Never leave cash in a hotel room.

• Avoid carrying a purse. If you must, use a clutch-type or one with a strap and hold the purse in front of you. "Fanny pack" wearers should make sure the pouch is worn in the front and the pack strap is secured under belt loops, if possible.

• Consider bringing an ATM card on vacation. Withdraw only small amounts of cash as needed. If the ATM card is linked to the PLUS, CIRRUS or Magic Line systems, it's easy to obtain cash virtually anywhere in the U.S. and local currency in some countries abroad. Cash from ATM machines is exchanged at the interbank exchange rate so travelers get a good deal.

• When possible, do all ATM banking during daylight and business hours. After hours, use only ATM machines located in grocery stores, malls or other busy areas.

Entry forms are now being accepted for the 1996 Great American Main Street Awards Contest.

For the second year, the financial-services firm of Edward D. Jones & Co. is sponsoring the contest in conjunction with the National Trust for Historic Preservation's National Main Street Center.

The goal – according to Todd D. Knickerbocker, the Northville investment representative of Jones & Co., is to recognize exceptional accomplishments in revitalizing America's historic and traditional downtowns and neighborhood commercial districts.

At the conclusion of this year's contest, five communities will be awarded the distinction of having the best of the Great American Main Streets, each receiving $5,000 to use toward further revitalization efforts, along with plaques, road signs and certificates to mark the achievement.

The five winners will be announced and awards will be presented in a special ceremony during the opening session of the 1996 National Town Meeting on Main Street in Nashville, Tenn., on April 29, 1996.

Winners will be determined based on the following criteria:

• An evolving track record of individual and overall success in preservation-based commercial district revitalization.

• Strong support from the public and private sectors for the downtown revitalization effort.

• Broad-based community input, support and involvement in the process.

• Innovative solutions to specific downtown revitalization problems.

Michigan snapshots wanted for contest

The Ann Arbor Department of Parks and Recreation is now accepting entries in the 1996 "Focus on Michigan" photograph contest, sponsored by the Michigan Recreation and Park Association.

The "Focus on Michigan" photograph contest is open to all amateur photographers.

There are three age divisions: Youth Division – 17 years and under; Adult Division – 18 to 54 years old; and Senior Division – 55 years and older.

Photographers may enter one of their best photos in each of the following two categories: nature scenes in their parks or recreation activities in their community.

Only colored 3 x 5 or 4 x 6 prints (no slides) will be accepted. Subject matter may include nature, landscapes, visual or performing arts, and people enjoying recreation at a public park or recreation facility, a public fair or public festival.

All local winners will automatically enter the state-wide competition. Three photographs will be selected from each division.

The nine winning photographs will be professionally reproduced and presented to the photographers at the MRPA Annual Conference in February at the Amway Grand Plaza Hotel in Grand Rapids. One photograph will be chosen as the "Best of the Show."

The entry deadline for the local contest is Oct. 31.

Local winners will receive gift certificates from Foto 1 Color Lab, Studio Center Photographic and Precision Photographics Inc.

For more information on the local competition please contact Irene Bushaw at the Ann Arbor Department of Parks and Recreation, 994-2284.

County wishes to parcel property

developer Robert DeMattia.

Their $31.75 million purchase offer fell through, however, as did a second purchase attempt by the consortium last year. That fact led to the subcomittee's formation last fall and its recent decision that the land must be split up to be sold.

"The county will not sell it all in one shot," McCotter, whose 10th District includes Northville, said Monday. "It's just too big for one person to buy and develop it, so we are looking to parcel it."

How big the parcels will be and when the actual bidding processes will begin haven't been determined yet, McCotter said.

County officials have talked for years about the kind of project they'd like to see on the site: a multi-faceted proposal including residential, industrial and commercial development. What Northville Township officials, who have the power to zone the land, will want to see there has yet to be determined.

McCotter said that a county consultant has been hired to work with township officials about the zoning question

One thing everyone wants to see gone are the series of abandoned buildings and 18 underground storage tanks on the property, which are viewed as both eyesores and potential environmental threats

A first step in the process could take place as early as the end of this month. McCotter said that the commission will likely approve the reallocation of $208,000 in federal Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) funds for the demolition of the buildings on the site. If that comes to pass, the actual destruction of the structures could begin in September and continue through the fall and winter.

The final cost and timetable of the demolition, removal and cleanup of the tanks is also not yet set, but is expected to take years and be very expensive Still, it's one that the county needs to solve before land sales can go forward, McCotter explained.

"The cleanup issue is a problem for the developers," he said "They don't want to get stuck with all of the problems that come with the tanks and the buildings."

Goddess of garage sale goes in style

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

What did you get Mom for her last birthday? Perfume, a catcher's mitt or can't you remember offhand?

Novi resident Karen Dunnabeck's family won't have that problem this year, that's for sure.

As a matter of fact, the self-described garage sale goddess's birthday Wednesday will be one long remembered. Karen received the surprise of her life on August 4 when the clan got together to give her an early present that truly fit the moment – a morning of garage sale shopping in a limousine.

There are birthday presents and then there are birthday presents.

"She really likes going to garage sales, so getting her a limo for her birthday's been an idea we've thrown around for years," son-in-law Bernie Brosnan said. "This year we decided we were actually going to pull it off."

"I had a ball," Karen said. "They really got one over on me this time. You have to be on guard with this bunch, let me tell you."

The garage fever hit Karen about five years ago. Now she makes the rounds of the area's sales on a weekly basis. Every Friday will find "Crazy Casey" – as she was affectionately known as a Northville Girl Scouts leader and Moraine Elementary lunch mother – tracking down those below-bargain-basement deals that lurk in every home's attic.

"She's a garage sale freak," father-in-law Joe, Sr., said in describing the woman who found the dress she wore to Bernie and daughter Donna's wedding at one.

"She just goes spastic at them, buys some stuff and then gives it all to her kids. She's got a heart of gold."

Given that, you can appreciate Karen's present and her family's plan to give it to her.

There it was, Friday morning; time once again for Karen's weekly safari. She'd scanned the classified ads for the sales and planned the schedule, same as always. Clad in her "garage sale goddess" tee-shirt, she got into her car, turned the key and heard – nothing.

"I was upset," she said. "Here I was all set to go and the car wouldn't start."

Of course her husband Joe, Jr., had warned her all week that the car was "running rough." The birthday girl couldn't know the real reason for the problem, though: Joe had disconnected the battery cables to make sure she wouldn't be going anywhere that day.

Disappointed, she went back into the house. A few minutes later the long, sleek white Cadillac limousine pulled into the driveway.

"Must be turning around," she thought.

Her suspicions were aroused, however, when cars containing her family were right behind the Caddy. A few laughs, a few hugs and then it was off to go garage sale stalking in style.

As usual there were bargains aplenty to be had. Topping Karen's take for the day were a plastic bouquet of flowers, an Indian headdress, a $100 coat for her grandson which she picked up for $2 and a pair of cowboy boots for the lad priced at a mere four bits. During it all there was still time for chatting with passersby.

"We'd be at a stoplight and she'd lean out and explain to people what we were doing," daughter Patti said with a chuckle. "It was a great morning. The funny thing is that the limo driver told us we weren't the first to do this."

"We figured what the heck," Bernie said. "It's a little insane but it's a lot of fun."

The last leg of the limo ride took Karen and the clan to her favorite restaurant, Ponderosa, for a birthday lunch, highlighted by a congratulatory phone call from daughter Janet all the way from North Carolina.

"I just had the best time. I've never done it like this before and I probably never will again," Karen said. "They've said all this time that they were going to do this and I was like "Yeah, right.' Surprise!"

Karen "Garage Sale Goddess" Dunnabeck stopped off at Ponderosa for lunch in the limo that had taken her on a quest for the best cast-off goods of homeowners.

Citizens sought for pool committee

Wild about the idea of a water wonderland in Novi or do you think the idea is all wet?

Either way, citizens who want to get involved are invited to submit applications for a seat on the Aquatic Facility Study Committee.

Officially set up by the Novi City Council Monday, the committee is to consist of six citizens and one Parks and Recreation Commissioner. It's expected to dive into the work in September.

The group will research the conceptual design, scout out possible locations, investigate the financial implications of such a city facility and come up with a final report by March 31.

This date was chosen to allow plenty of time to get a bonding question before voters, if that's the way the city council is swimming.

A recent proposal from a non-official citizens committee, which worked with parks and recreation staff, suggested a family aquatic facility on Taft Road, to include a pool, a lazy river, a water slide and other fun stuff.

Parks and Recreation Director Dan Davis assured the council that the new group will piggyback its work onto a previous investigation done by an even earlier committee, which had called for a conventional pool.

"We've been working on it for two and a half years so there's a lot of research there," he said.

Apply for a seat on the committee at the Novi City Clerk's office. The city council will interview candidates before making a final selection.

"Sticker Shock Absorber: 8.9% APR car loans up to 60 months."

Apply by phone to get things rolling quickly.

*Our car loans are loaded with attractive features. A sticker shock absorber comes standard: a low 8.9% APR fixed rate for new cars, good for any available term up to 60 months.

Maintenance is low—you can apply toll-free by phone or visit any of our nearly 200 branches. And selection is high. This special rate also applies to RV and boat loans. And we've lowered rates for used cars and used RVs, too.

We'll even throw in an additional 1/4% discount on any loan if you arrange automatic payment from a Michigan National Bank checking or savings account.

There's an important safety feature, too. The peace of mind you enjoy from dealing with a financial institution that's been around for more than 50 years. It's always nice to ride with someone you trust, don't you think?

You must apply by August 31, so call now. To avoid sticker shock, stick with us.

Maybury State Park News

Maybury State Park is open daily from 8 a.m. until 10 p.m. Farm hours are 8 a.m.-5 p.m. daily. A state park motor vehicle permit is required for entry to the park. Additional information about programs or facilities may be obtained by calling the park office at 349-8390.

BIRTH ANNOUNCEMENT: Ginger, the farm's Jersey dairy cow gave birth to a bull calf on Tuesday, Aug. 1. Mother and baby are doing fine!

SUMMER EVENING HIKE SERIES: On Friday, Aug. 11, join us for a "Moon Hike" beginning at 8:30 p.m. Experience the park at night as we feature the moon and the night sky. Meet at the Concession Building in the main parking lot on Eight Mile Road. This hike will take place regardless of weather conditions, so come prepared.

BIRD HIKE: A late summer bird hike will be offered on Saturday, Aug. 12, at 8 a.m. Most birds are done nesting for the season and are beginning preparations for the long flight south. Meet at the Riding Stable parking area for a walk around the pond. This is usually a good area to see a variety of different birds.

MOUNTAIN BIKE PROGRAM: The Southeast chapter of the Michigan Mountain Biking Association will present "Maybury Fest '95" on Sunday, Aug. 13, from 10 a.m. to 4 p m. Events include a beginner's clinic, mountain bike polo, poker run, dinner, drawings and awards. All events will be held at the Day Camp area near the east trail head (Beck Road entrance). For more information, or to obtain a registration form, call the park office. This program will be limited to the first 150 entries.

TAKE A FRIEND FISHING: This summer's final fishing clinic will be held on Monday evening, Aug. 14, at the Maybury Fishing Pond. An employee of the Fisheries Division of the Michigan DNR will be on hand to provide basic instruction in fishing, and answer any questions you may have. The clinic begins promptly at 6:30 p.m. with plenty of time to fish afterwards. Bring your own equipment, if available.

The Maybury Fishing Pond is located near the Riding Stable parking area off Beck Road.

Customers tap the sun for energy

Detroit Edison customers can plug into the sun and meet a portion of their electric energy needs from a solar electric generating facility the utility plans to build next year.

The company has announced that residential customers will be able to sign up for a special two-year "Solarcurrents" rate at an additional $6.59 per month on average for each 100 watts of service. This will provide a customer about 140 kilowatthours of electricity per year.

The $250,000 solar or photovoltaic (PV) generating facility will produce 28.4 kilowatts (kW) of electricity at peak solar conditions. The utility plans to install the system at the Michigan Electric Power Coordination Center site near Ann Arbor, and it is expected to begin operation in May, 1996.

Detroit Edison will be among the first utilities in the United States to offer solar energy service to any residential or small commercial customer through its electrical system.

Detroit Edison's system will include 100 rigid crystalline silicon PV modules on four-by-six-foot glass panels. The PV system will provide as much electricity as 14 rooftop residential solar installations. It will generate power for at least 10 years. The system will reduce the utility's carbon dioxide emissions by about 8,650 pounds annually.

Because Detroit Edison will supply the PV-generated energy into its electric system, any residential or small commercial customer can sign up for the service. Customers may subscribe now through Sept. 30 or obtain more information by calling 1-800-435-5132.

"The program will introduce an option that many customers have sought – the opportunity to use a renewable resource to provide some of their electric energy needs," said Frank E. Agosti, Detroit Edison senior vice president for Power Supply.

The success of the project depends on its popularity with customers and their willingness to pay a small premium to fund development of a renewable power resource, he said.

Residential customers signing up for the two-year period can extend their agreements. If they move to another residence within Detroit Edison's service area, customers can transfer their PV service contracts to their new residences. Commercial customers will subscribe for 10 years but have options to end agreements.

"At this stage of development, PV costs are high," Agosti said. "The U.S. Department of Energy wants to know whether customers are willing to pay more to support the cost of introducing this technology in Michigan. Without a sufficient number of subscribers, the project cannot become reality."

Because PV costs are higher, the Michigan Public Service Commission July 31 approved special residential and commercial rates for the solar portion of service provided to "SolarCurrents" subscribers.

The utility will use $113,600 in federal funds to pay a portion of construction costs for the facility. The Utility PhotoVoltaic Group (UPVG) has selected Detroit Edison's "SolarCurrents" program for funding and is negotiating related contracts. This is part of UPVG's effort with the Department of Energy to encourage new PV installations.

"The federal funding makes PV energy a little more affordable both to build and for our customers to buy," Agosti said. "That's allowing us to introduce PV energy to our customers."

Solar PV energy comes from the direct conversion of sunlight into electricity. A PV system will produce energy most efficiently in Michigan from May through August. PV systems today cost about $8,000 per kW to install versus $300 to $1,000 per kW for conventional power sources.

This project is among eight nationwide undertaken by 20 utilities in 12 states and funded by UPVG, a consortium of 90 electric utilities including Detroit Edison. Formed in 1992, the group's mission is to increase and accelerate electric utility use of small- and large-scale PVs for the benefit of both utilities and customers.

Over 150 craft exhibits, food and family entertainment will be featured.

The event will be held rain or shine, so dress accordingly.

Market Day festivities will take place in Walled Lake's Old Downtown District along the north shore of Walled Lake. Booths will be located on East Walled Lake Drive, Liberty and Market streets.

This event is free-of-charge and is sponsored by the Parks and Recreation Commission and the City of Walled Lake.

For more information call Anne Marie DeFrain at (810) 624-4847.

Delivery of new shopper increases

Most Northville and Novi residents are receiving a new advertising circular, published and distributed by HomeTown Newspapers. HomeTown also publishes The Novi News and The Northville Record.

The shopper, called the Northville-Novi edition of the Monday Green Sheet, is a response to companies who are having difficulty reaching their customers because of the Detroit newspaper strike, according to Rich Perlberg, HomeTown's vice president and general manager.

A limited version of the new product was distributed free to about 9,000 homes last Monday, said Perlberg. Next Monday, the distribution will grow to about 17,000 households, he said.

The major user of the distribution system is Meijer Thrifty Acres which has a store at Haggerty Road and Eight Mile. The inserts are delivered by carrier in a 6-page wrap which contains display and classified ads.

The original Monday Green Sheet began 15 years ago in Livingston County and now has a distribution of more than 50,000. It carries preprinted inserts from Meijer as well as several grocery stores and other businesses.

Perlberg said the Northville-Novi edition of the Monday Green Sheet will be distributed for the duration of the newspaper strike.

Anyone requesting delivery of the Monday Green Sheet or who has other questions should call (810) 349-3627.

Heatstroke can be fatal

Most Michiganians take advantage of the warm weather by enjoying outdoor activity, but beware of overexertion during the hottest days of summer. Heat stroke is a severe and sometimes fatal condition that results when the body fails to regulate its temperature.

If you're jogging, involved in sports or strenuous work around the house, you can lose crucial fluids your body needs to properly function. Don't forget to drink plenty of liquids, avoid long exposure to the sun and/or high temperatures.

Danger signs are a lessening or lack of sweating, body temperature above 105 degrees, hot and dry skin, headaches and/or disorientation.

During the summer, as always, seek medical help at the first sign of trouble – as soon as possible.

Lot owners may challenge zoning board's decision

say the median lot size of the surrounding area ranges from 1.19 acres to 1.3 acres, a deficiency of one-tenth to two-tenths of an acre for each of the three proposed Funke lots.

The couple and their attorney have argued that the difference is small enough and their hardship in meeting the ordinance are great enough to justify the variance. Residents living near the site disagree, however, as did members of the ZBA at their Aug. 7 meeting.

The board voted 3-1 against approving the variance, agreeing with area residents that the proposed lots would affect the quality and harmony of the neighborhood.

"I know the (zoning) standard is one acre for that spot but we also have to be concerned with the character of the neighborhood," board member Don Samhat said, "and there are several lots in the area that are significantly larger than the ones you propose."

The Funkes disagreed, arguing that their lots were as big or bigger than most lots in the 500-foot circle.

Other residents disagree.

"This lot split isn't a little bit short. There's almost a full acre of non-compliance with the ordinance," area resident Tom Griebe said in urging the board to reject the variance.

ZBA members were impressed by the Funkes' argument of undue hardship in trying to meet the requirements for a lot split.

They bought the property just weeks before the township approved the new median requirement, the Funkes said, and no township official informed them of it for months. Since being told they had to meet the new standard, Ed Funke told the board, the couple has had to spend thousands of dollars on review fees, paid capital gains taxes on the land, and has been forced to wait for months for a resolution of the issue.

"Somebody's got to be accountable here. We've done everything we were asked to do," Ed Funke said. "The township bears some responsibility for this. I was misdirected."

"You can't just assume that people can keep paying out and paying out and waiting and waiting," Barbara Funke said.

Other residents said that the Funkes hadn't done their homework and as developers had rolled the dice and lost.

"We'd like you to consider our hardship," resident Mary Ash said. "Many of us have invested our life savings to buy our properties here and we want them protected."

"My quietness will be gone because there's going to be a subdivision in my backyard if this goes through," resident Don Peskey said.

"I guess I'm just asking for the board to stick up for the little guy. Don't let us get rolled over by the builder," Griebe added.

Board member Rick Engelland voted for the variance, arguing that the Funke lots would meet the R-1 zoning on the site and that the couple "acted in good faith" in their dealings with the township.

Funke said he would not build on the land if he were allowed only two lots and not three but did not specify what his next course of action might be, either to sell the parcel or file suit against the township.

Huron Valley Hospital to offer free prostate screening

Huron Valley Hospital in Commerce Township will sponsor free prostate cancer screening exams along with educational sessions in recognition of the National Prostate Cancer Awareness Campaign.

Participants will learn warning signs, diagnostic tests and other pertinent information related to prostate cancer.

Screenings will be offered at the hospital on Saturday, Sept. 9, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. on the first level of the hospital. All men over 40 years of age who do not have a previous history of prostate cancer and have not had a Prostate Specific Antigen (PSA) blood test and/or a digital rectal exam within the past year are eligible and encouraged to participate.

Each participant of the fourth annual free program will receive a blood test and a digital exam by a urologist for abnormalities of the prostate. Many Huron Valley Hospital urologists – physicians specializing in the branch of medicine dealing with urinary or urogenital organs – will conduct the screening, with the support of nurses and volunteers from other hospital departments.

Registration is required. Call the Detroit Medical Center Referral Service at 1-800-666-3466 or (313) 745-5000 by Sept 7 or for more information.

Huron Valley Hospital, in conjunction with the American Red Cross of Oakland County, is also recruiting donors for its Blood Drive on Friday, Sept. 15 from 7 a.m.-1 p.m. in the Conference Center.

Because the number of blood donations is down across the country, it is important for Southeastern Michigan to meet its own needs. Therefore, to avoid an all-out emergency appeal, the American Red Cross has asked organizations to sponsor additional blood drives and to increase recruitment efforts. In fact, The American Red Cross' 1995 recruitment campaign is, "It's time to donate blood again."

Blood donors must be at least 17 years of age, weight more than 110 pounds and be in good general health. The donation process takes a little more than an hour.

Donors in the community can make an appointment by calling the Huron Valley Hospital Office of Community Health and Wellness at (810) 360-3314. Blood Donors will also be accepted on a walk-in basis.

Huron Valley Hospital is located at 1601 East Commerce Road in Commerce Township, between East Commerce and Sleeth Roads, just west of Bogie Lake and east of Benstein.

Engler appoints resident to board

R. Thomas Cook of Northville has been appointed to the Ferris State University Board of Trustees by Gov. John Enger.

Cook, who is a 1967 Ferris State College of Pharmacy graduate, was appointed for an eight-year term which will begin immediately and end in December 2002.

"I am pleased to have such a highly qualified alumnus become a part of our board," said Bruce Parsons, chair of the board of trustees. "I am looking forward to working with Tom. He is already an excellent representative of the best Ferris has to offer."

Cook is a recent president of 3PM Inc., a division of McKesson Corporation in Livonia, and currently is a consultant there.

Ferris' Alumni Association honored Cook with a 1994 Distinguished Alumnus Award. Cook has published numerous articles on a wide variety of pharmacy topics and has served as a consultant to the Federal Department of Health, Education and Welfare. He recently served a two-year term as the president of the Ferris Pharmacy Alumni Association.

Cook is a member of the American Pharmaceutical Association, National Association of Retail Druggists, National Association of Chain Drug Stores, National Council of Prescription Drug Programs and American Society of Automation in Pharmacy. He serves on numerous state and national committees.

Cook replaces Thomas Dennis of Rochester Hills.

Dennis served as a Ferris Trustee for eight and one-half years.

Seasonal workers' benefits to be topic of hearing

The Michigan Employment Security Commission (MESC) will hold two public hearings in the Detroit area in mid-August to help formulate rules and policies the agency will follow in deciding if seasonal workers qualify for jobless benefits starting next year.

MESC Director F. Robert Edwards explained that recent changes to the state's unemployment insurance law deny jobless benefits to workers if they are employed in a seasonal industry and have "reasonable assurance" from their employer of returning to their jobs at the beginning of the next work season.

"To effectively administer this change in state law, we need to prepare administrative rules and policies for MESC staff to follow," Edwards explained. "In developing these rules and policies, we would like input from the public, especially from seasonal employers and workers. Consequently, we have scheduled public hearings for Aug. 23 in Farmington Hills."

The Wednesday, Aug 23, hearings will be held at 9 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. in Building J, Room J409, on the campus of Oakland Community College, 27055 Orchard Lake Road.

MESC will be holding 16 public hearings in all at eight different sites around the state. The hearings began in mid-July in the Upper Peninsula and moved to the Lower Peninsula communities.

Under the recently approved changes to Michigan's unemployment insurance law, which take effect in July 1996, some 35,000 seasonal workers could be affected, losing $64 million in jobless benefits. Benefits may be denied if all of the following conditions are met:

- The employer voluntarily applies for a "seasonal employer" designation and is approved by MESC.
- The employer notifies the employee that he/she is a seasonal worker.
- The layoff occurs after the normal seasonal work period.
- The worker receives "reasonable assurance" of reemployment during the next season.

"While we know in general what the law changes call for, the public hearings will help us with a number of questions that need to be answered before we begin implementing the law next year," Edwards said.

The hearings will explore such questions as how to determine which industries are seasonal; how to decide an employer's usual seasonal work period; how an employer should notify workers that the employer is seasonal; how an employer should notify workers that they are seasonal employees; and what constitutes the "same" service" for next season.

Schedule furnace maintenance now

It may seem crazy to think about furnaces during the hot summer months, but most furnace experts know that homeowners who get their furnaces serviced now are crazy like a fox.

August and September is the best time to schedule furnace tune-ups to avoid the fall rush of November and December, when 75 percent of furnace repairs and tune-ups are done.

One reason an early tune up is a good idea is that it protects homeowner from middle-of-the-night break-downs, which can be expensive as well as uncomfortable.

Overtime service in the evenings and on weekends can cost up to 35 percent more.

Also, if the furnace has to be "down" for repairs, it's better to be without heat in the summer than in the winter.

Maintenance for a furnace can be comparable to the maintenance for an automobile. When you have regular tune-ups for a car it runs smoother and gets more miles per gallon. The same holds true with having regular tune-ups for your furnace: it runs more efficiently, saving on fuel bills.

Annual or biannual maintenance for a furnace also extends the life of the equipment by as much as 20 to 30 percent. This translates into 5 to 10 years of extended furnace or boiler life.

If regular maintenance is neglected, it could lead to additional repairs. Most service contractors will confirm that about 75 percent of all repairs they do could have been avoided with regular maintenance, according to Dan Bergstrom, president of Bergstrom's Inc. in Livonia.

Neglecting regular maintenance can cause:

- Fuel bills to rise 10 to 15 percent due to inefficient operation.
- Accelerated equipment wear.
- Exposure to deadly carbon monoxide gas.

The service technician should also clean and check the burners, combustion chamber, heat exchanger surfaces and flue pipe.

During this procedure, a trained technician will be able to tell if the system is leaking deadly carbon monoxide gas from small cracks in the heat exchanger or from holes or leaks in the flue system. Each year, hundreds of people lose their lives in the U.S. from exposure to this odorless, colorless gas.

Pumps and fans should be lubricated as necessary.

For boilers, the technician should take time to remove sediment from boiler and steam lines, as well as check the fan thermostat on warm air systems. Otherwise, the fan may operate longer than necessary, wasting energy.

Craft deadline nears

The Novi Arts Council and the Novi Jaycees are joining forces for the fifth year to host the Novi Holiday Arts and Craft Show on Saturday, Nov. 25, at the Novi Civic Center.

The exhibit will run from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and will feature over 45 crafters.

Applications are currently being accepted for the juried show.

The deadline for application has been extended to Aug. 25.

Application are available at the Novi Parks and Recreation office or by calling (810) 348-3121 or (810) 347-0400.

The Novi Expo Center will be the scene Sept. 12-13 of the only industry-wide food service exposition serving the entire state.

The Michigan Restaurant Show floor is open from noon through 6 p.m., Tuesday, Sept. 12, and noon through 5 p.m. on Wednesday, Sept. 13. Admission at the door is $10 per person.

The sponsor is the Michigan Restaurant Association, a non-profit trade association headquartered in Lansing that represents more than 3,000 food service operations and 200 food service purveyors.

Ron Magruder, president and chief operating officer of Cracker Barrel Old Country Stores, will open activities at 11 a.m. the first day with a talk on "Managing Change."

Magruder's succeeded in growing the Olive Garden restaurant chain from eight to 470 outlets and turning it into the nation's largest full-service Italian restaurant chain.

Other highlights that day will include: the Michigan Chef Team demonstration, educational seminars, more than 200 exhibiting companies featuring their products and services, and an ice carving competition.

On a typical day, more than four million meals are consumed at Michigan restaurants. Saturday is the most popular day to eat out, followed by Friday and Sunday. Monday is least popular.

Chinese, Italian and Mexican are the most popular ethnic restaurant foods. German, Greek and Tex-Mex are gaining in popularity.

For more information, call Penny Kerekes of Michigan Restaurant Association, 1-800-968-9668 or (517) 482-5244.

Work to continue on district library library have been completed, according to Ball.

The next phase of the project will be construction of the building's foundation as well as the erection of the structural steel. That phase is scheduled to begin Oct. 16 and will be completed by the middle of November.

Ball explained that the building exterior shell and the mechanical and electrical drawings are currently out for bid, with due dates of Aug. 16 for the exterior shell and Aug. 23 for the mechanical and electrical portion of the project.

The George W. Auch Company is acting as the general contractor for the construction of the Northville District Library, which is currently scheduled for completion by July 1996.

Ask Your Neighbors About Us

By RANDY COBLE
Left-Handed Staff Writer

> "When you meet someone who's left-handed there's an instant bond. You swap war stories about all the problems we face. So one day about five years ago I thought, 'Gee, wouldn't it be great if we had our own store?' "
> LINDA REEVES
> Northville store owner

Be advised, Northville: there's three, just three, shopping days left until the biggest celebration of the year is here.

What holiday, you ask? The start of the NFL preseason? Nope, already too late for that.

Woodstock's anniversary? Negative, that's not until Tuesday.

Orville Wright's birthday? Get with the program – everyone knows that's on Aug. 19.

Give up? Then go ask a southpaw.

That's right, check with a leftie. We should be easy to find, since we make up about 12 percent of the population and every last of us should know what Aug. 13 is: official International Left Handers' Day.

No, that's not made up. There's honestly a day dedicated to the left-handed. But what do you get the southpaw who has everything?

Answer: anything to be found in Linda's Lefty Shop in downtown Northville.

The store is the brainchild of former resident Linda Reeve, a leftie who's been frustrated all her life at trying to get by in a right-handed world. Not only is her mother left-handed but so is her son and even her parrot, Willie.

"When you meet someone who's left-handed there's an instant bond," she said. "You swap war stories about all the problems we face. So one day about five years ago I thought, 'Gee, wouldn't it be great if we had our own store?' "

Now we're not just talking gag gifts here, although the requisite magnets, t-shirts and other fun items can be had. Beyond that, though, Linda's Lefty Shop has books with fascinating and useful information about the left-handed condition.

"It's a proven stress on the mind and the body," Reeve said. "Being left handed makes people different in both good and some bad ways."

The shop also features a bevy of practical items for the southpaw.

"Everyone knows that left-handers have a hard time with regular scissors and we carry a left-handed model. But we also have left-handed measuring cups, rulers, knives, even special angled spatulas. We even carry a left-handed version of the Swiss Army knife."

It's true. The regular versions of these devices really do discriminate against the left-handed, Reeve said. The lefty measuring cup corrects that, for example, by reversing the position of the measuring indicators. The left-handed ruler's inch count begins on the right and runs to the left.

A left-handed knife has the serration on the outside from the point of view of a southpaw, she continued. When a left-handed person holds your average knife, Reeve explained, the serrated edge is on the inside, where it cuts less effectively than when it's on the outside.

"I'm sure that was made by someone who's right-handed," Reeve said. "To them a knife is a knife, just like everything else. But if you're a left-hander you can really tell the difference."

So get right down to the shop because there's not much time left.

Telecommunications bill gets green light from U.S. House

By ROBERT JACKSON
Staff Writer

A controversial bill that will drastically reform the telecommunications industry was passed by the U.S. House of Representatives on Friday.

The House passed the measure, HR 1555, by a margin of 305-117 on Aug. 4.

That's good news to Ameritech New Media, Inc., Northville City's newest cable provider, because the legislation should tear down the monopolies in the telecommunications industry and allow phone companies to provide cable service.

"Our goal has been to provide the best possible service at the lowest price and we can achieve that goal through legislation or through the courts," said Ameritech spokeswoman Sara Snyder last week.

President Bill Clinton, however, is at odds with several amendments that were added to the measure after it left the House Commerce Committee last week. Specifically, Clinton opposes allowing an excessive number of in-region buyouts between telephone companies and cable operators, which he claims substitutes "consolidation for competition.

"Instead of promoting investment and competition, it promotes mergers and concentration of power," the president said.

Clinton has vowed to veto the bill if the amendments are not changed.

According to U.S. Rep. Joe Knollenberg, R-Bloomfield Twp., the bill is the most deregulatory bill in American history and will provide "enormous" economic and consumer benefits throughout the telecommunications industry.

"This will bring competition to telecommunications markets, create new jobs, promote economic growth, and provide people with more choices and better telecommunications service at lower rates," Knollenberg, who represents residents in the Oakland County portion of Northville, said.

According to Knollenberg the bill will create plenty of benefits over the next 10 years, such as:

- Creating 3.4 million jobs
- Increasing the Gross Domestic Product by $1.8 trillion.
- Saving consumers approximately $550 billion in lower telephone and cable rates.

The congressman also explained that the bill will eliminate the Federal Communication Commission's "bloated bureaucracy."

"(The bill) eliminates thousands of pages of FCC rules and regulations, reduces the role of federal regulators and gives greater responsibility to state and local officials," he said. "As a result, we are able to reduce the FCC bureaucracy by at least 15 percent."

In Northville, Ameritech will be competing with Omnicom, Inc., for cable customers. The company plans to begin construction of their cable network in September. The new cable company will bring 300 new jobs to the area, according to Snyder.

Ameritech was allowed into the cable arena after successfully challenging the 1992 Cable Reform Act in the Illinois Court of Appeals. At that time they claimed portions of the act were unconstitutional, and the court of appeals agreed.

Because that decision has not been overturned Ameritech can still legally provide cable services to Northville residents, regardless of the final outcome of the legislation.

The telecom reform bill now goes to a joint House and Senate committee. Once both bodies agree to a final draft it will be sent to the president.

Northville to host Airshow '95

Looking for some interesting and exciting family fun on Labor Day weekend? Try Airshow '95, where you'll find two days of action packed, inexpensive entertainment for the entire family while watching some of Michigan's top radio control airplane pilots perform for you.

Midwest Radio Control Society Inc. of Northville will again present its annual air show called "Airshow '95" on Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 2 and 3, at its flying field in Northville on Five Mile Road west of Beck. This event, which has become one of the largest radio control model aircraft "Fly-Ins" in the state, will feature two days of giant model aircraft flight demonstrations by pilots from all over Michigan, surrounding states and Canada as well as several Northville pilots. Last year's show attracted almost 100 pilots and aircraft and several thousand spectators. The rapid growth in popularity of this air show is a combination of growth in the giant-scale aircraft hobby as well as the beautifully manicured Northville flying site.

The Airshow will begin at 10 a.m. each day and continue through 6 p.m. on Saturday and 4 p.m. on Sunday. Pilot registration and model safety inspection will begin at 8 a.m. A food concession will be in continuous operation during the show. Plenty of parking is available at a $3 donation per car to help offset expenses. Comfort stations, including handicapped, will be available at the site. Spectators will be continuously informed during in-flight activities and special attractions by a public address system narrated by a Master of Ceremonies.

Flight activities will be continuous, with up to three aircraft in the air at one time. Special attractions will include model aerobatic demonstrations by nationally known aerobatic and helicopter pilots, jets and a special demonstration of electric powered models by Dr. Keith Shaw of Ann Arbor. Shaw is an internationally recognized authority and leader in electric technology development for model aircraft. Shaw be demonstrating a 12 foot wingspan "flying wing" of his own design.

Also featured will be flight formations of giant scale World War II aircraft such as P-51 "Mustangs," P-47 "Thunderbolts," Japanese "Zero," British "Spitfires," Navy "Corsairs" and other aircraft of the European and Asian theaters.

In modeler's language, giant means model aircraft that have a wing span that is at least 80 inches minimum or must be certifiable as a one-quarter scale model of the original full size aircraft. In case of biplanes, the wing span must be 60 inches or greater.

During the lunch break at noon, all models will be lined up on the flight line and spectators will be allowed on the field to view and photograph the models and talk with the pilots.

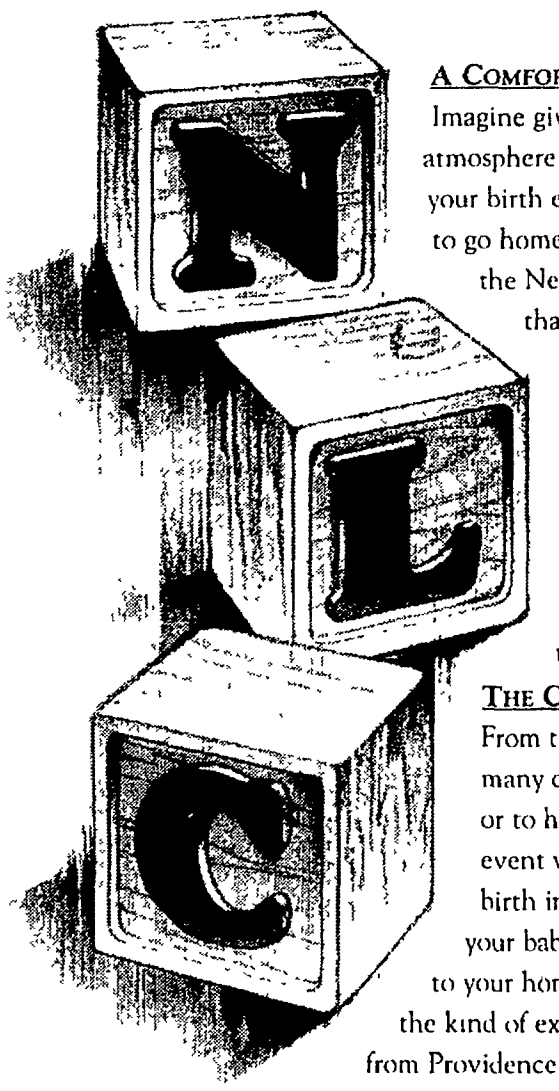
INTRODUCING
The New Life Center at Providence Park
Where families are born...close to home



A COMFORTABLE ATMOSPHERE
Imagine giving birth in a comfortable, home-like atmosphere where you make many of the decisions about your birth experience. And then, think about being able to go home within 24 hours after your baby is born. Well, the New Life Center at Providence Park in Novi offers all that, and it's just minutes from home.

A UNIQUE APPROACH
It's a new beginning. A new way of thinking And an alternative to traditional hospital births*. The New Life Center at Providence Park was born from the success of the New Life Center at Providence Hospital, where for generations, thousands of women have had wonderful, nurturing, family-centered birth experiences.

THE CHOICES ARE MANY
From the moment you choose to have your baby with us, many decisions are yours. You may choose to go natural or to have an epidural. You may also prefer to share the event with your loved ones. But the best part is giving birth in a relaxed, home-like atmosphere and having your baby by your side. What's more, a nurse will come to your home for private, follow-up visits. Because that's the kind of extra care, attention and education people expect from Providence.

COME SEE FOR YOURSELF But don't take our word for it. Call 1-800-806-BABY for an appointment to see what the New Life Center at Providence Park has to offer expectant families.

*Only pregnant women who have been pre-screened and assessed as low risk by a Providence physician are eligible to deliver at the Providence Park New Life Center

Mill Race Matters

Docents continue to keep Mill Race Village buildings open each Sunday from 1 until 4 p.m. Additional volunteers could be used to staff buildings on most Sundays. Anyone with an interest and time to spare can call 348-1845 to volunteer or contact docent Chairperson Ruth Crawford.

Northville's Victorian Festival takes place on Sept. 15, 16, 17. The buildings at Mill Race will be open Saturday, Sept. 16 in the morning only and then all day Sunday for the special events and activities.

During the Festival, community third graders will spend Friday morning learning about the village and the Victorian era. That evening residents from throughout the community may join for a parade to kick off the two-day event. Saturday events conducted this year, in addition to the Northville Arts Commission Art Market, the Victorian Ball and numerous street activities, include an historic home tour being arranged by the Northville-Novi branch of the American Association of University Women. The tour will feature five historic homes within walking distance of downtown. Advance tickets are required for this event as well as for the ball. Contact the Northville Chamber of Commerce for additional information.

Since its inception Northville's Victorian Festival has provided opportunity for local businesses and community groups to combine to provide a variety of interesting and unusual activities for all members of the family. The parade features representatives from community groups, churches and businesses just as the Saturday and Sunday street activities pool the resources of this community.

Recently this column has featured information about Mill Race Village, the history of our community, sketches on early community leaders, discussion of community businesses and organizations and various sundery ramblings of this author. If there is some community historic topic you're interested in knowing more about please contact 349-9005 to share your idea.

One reader asked to know more about Northville's Mayors. Until the mid 1950s Northville remained a village. Since it became a city Northville has had only four mayors. The first Claude "Pete" Ely died shortly after city hood.

Mike Allen, founder of Allen Monuments became the new city's second mayor. He served for over 20 years. During his term of office the city built most of the government structures still used today and began work on the revitalization which created the modern town. The parking lots surrounding downtown were created by the removal of numerous old homes in the immediate vicinity. Allen Terrace, senior citizen structure, is named for Mayor Allen who, since retirement, has continued to reside in the community..

Paul Vernon also served a lengthy period as Mayor. During his tenure the city continued to improve its appearance and its stature. Main and Center streets restored their Victorian character and the bandshell came into being.

Police looking for male foot-fondler

Man will face a misdemeanor charge

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

Northville Township police are on the lookout for a well-dressed foot fondler following an incident which took place at the Harbour Springs Apartments complex one week ago.

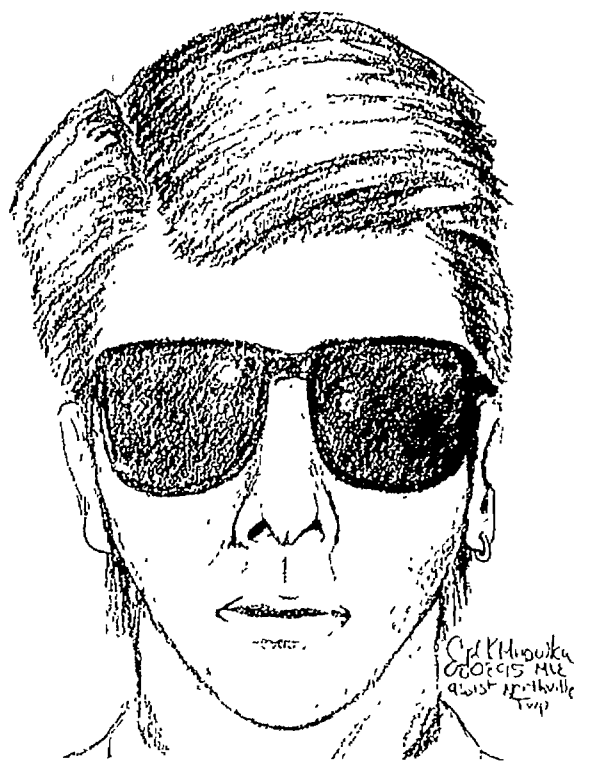
A leasing agent at Harbour Springs, located off of Seven Mile Road near Northridge Drive, called police at about 1:20 p.m. on Aug. 3. The woman, 37, said that a man who'd come to the office about renting an apartment had touched her improperly.

The man asked several questions about leasing an apartment, the woman said, then asked if he could ask her "one last question." She said yes, whereupon he asked to see her right foot.

As she complied with the request, the woman continued, the man knelt down and began rubbing and tickling her foot. She shook him off, told him that he was scaring her and ordered the man to leave. He did so, taking off down westbound Seven Mile in a two-year-old dark gray Oldsmobile.

The man is described as white, standing about six feet tall and weighing about 180 pounds. He has short red hair, a large nose and was wearing a hoop earring in his left ear, a white shirt and a tie at the time of the incident.

If apprehended the man could be formally accused of fourth degree criminal sexual conduct, a misdemeanor charge.



Northville Township police released this sketch of man.

Novi busing policy revised for new year

By SHARON CONDRON
Staff Writer

The Novi Community School District has a liberal transportation policy that some parents have taken far too many liberties with, school officials said last week.

Last year, one parent submitted a list of more than one destination that his or her child was to be dropped off at during a one month period last year. The bus driver was handed a cheat sheet and asked to follow it. However, there were some days when no destination was penciled in and bus driver had no clue where the child to be dropped off after school.

In other case, a parent instructed the child to wear a red or blue cap to school each day. The color of the cap was intended to tell the bus driver where the child was to be bused to that evening.

James Koster, assistant superintendent of finance and administrative services, said an increase last year in the number of requests from parents to have their children bused to some place other than the scheduled bus drop off prompted his office to consider reviewing the district's busing policy.

"Many times parents asked that their child be picked up or dropped off in a different location," Koster said. "It gets very confusing and the loss of a child is our chief concern."

In the fall, Koster formed a committee of parents and school administrators to study the policy and recommend changes. The committee completed its work in June and suggested the district put a new system in place to handle parents requests for bus pick up and drop off changes.

The committee has drafted a new form to request a change in the bus route.

Can Ameritech deliver first-rate cable system?

A lot of people are excited about the new cable company in town.

Ameritech New Media, Inc. announced last week that it will begin construction on a state-of-the-art cable network in September that will offer everything from entertainment to interactivity.

In preparing a series of articles about the new franchise, we had the opportunity to talk with quite a few Ameritech public relations and marketing people. They have told us how exciting the telecommunications field is going to be and how the residents of Northville have taken their first step into the 21st Century.

All of this talk fills our heads with visions of interactivity and countless thoughts of all the possibilities that could come to pass once Ameritech puts the technology in place.

To be perfectly honest. All of this has got Northville pretty pumped up.

Heck, who wouldn't be enthusiastic about the prospect of ordering groceries with a television remote control or supplementing a child's education with interactive learning.

Sort of reminds you of your childhood around Christmas, waiting for all of those new toys to appear under the tree.

You've got to admit, up to this point, Ameritech's presentation is first rate. And, while it's easy to be intoxicated by all the possibilities, we should still remain cautiously optimistic about the new franchise.

Why, you ask?

It's simple. Although Ameritech, on paper, will provide a interactive cable system second to none in this wonderful city of ours, they have yet to put in place what they have promised. Talking about this "first rate" system is one thing. Delivering the goods is another.

Yes. Ameritech is just out of the gate, getting the engineering and new technology together. And yes, we realize that even at their worst, Ameritech will probably be 100 percent better than our current cable provider.

But we also realize that Ameritech has yet to prove itself in the cable/telecommunications arena. Remember. They haven't begun to string a single cable, and it's probably a still a bit premature to lavish the company with too many laudatory compliments.

They state the first phase of the network will be active by spring of 1996. That means some of you will begin to experience Ameritech's product by next April or May.

At that time we should be able to begin evaluating their performance. Are the costs truly a savings to customers? Does the network provide what Ameritech claims it will provide — better picture, sound, etc.

And what about the interactivity? When can we expect to be able to order those groceries with our remotes? Can Northville businesses really benefit from interactive opportunities? Will the average customer actually use the new technology?

We don't mean to stifle your enthusiasm, we just want to suggest that when you finally get the opportunity to judge the performance of Ameritech, you should use the same measuring stick that is currently so critical of Omnicom.

And until that time you should look at Ameritech for what it is. A new business in town that has clearly defined its product but has yet to deliver it.

Stop bashing schools and develop standards

Reading one day's news, you can lose track of where the attack on public schools is heading. So let's put the State Board of Education's July 20 watering down of core curriculum standards into context. It's Act II in the battle.

Act I occurred in 1994 with an attempt to discredit public schools. By year's end it was fairly easy to find polls showing huge numbers of Michiganians were less than 100 percent satisfied with the products of public education.

Act II is to water down state standards, mandates and curriculum laws – except abstinence, of course. The State Board of Education, in the words of its leader Clark Durant, "derailed the state's putting in a core curriculum." The board is watering down the 67 standards in math, science, social studies and English language arts that the Department of Education has been drafting.

The board shopped short, however, of adopting Durant's proposal to allow the teaching of the fundamentalist religious doctrine of "creationism" as science. Yet it was scary that Durant's sidekick, Marilyn Lundy, would go so far as to declare there's no scientific evidence in favor of evolution. There is no sunlight, either, if you cover your eyes.

After a decade of progress, the State Board of Education is coming dangerously close to violating its constitutional mandate to provide "leadership and general supervision over all public education, including adult education," except colleges. It also is turning its back on a 1993 statute that says it should issue a core curriculum.

In the attack on public schools, it's necessary to obliterate all the rules – except abstinence, of course – so that anything goes. Problem solving? Naw, ciphering is OK. Science? Oh, Genesis is enough. Cooperation in a diverse society? Just obey your parents. The arts? Why, we have a portrait of Jesus. Dealing with ethical dilemmas? Ask your parents or your pastor.

If the state has only the mealiest standards for public schools, it becomes easier for non-public schools to meet the standards. The issue is not whether public schools in Oakland and suburban Wayne counties will set and meet high standards. The issue is whether any ethnocentric, parochial or just plain oddball school can boast that it meets state standards.

Act III is parochiaid, state aid to private and denominational schools. It will take a voter-approved amendment to the Michigan Constitution to remove the prohibition against parochiaid. That bid will come in an election year, probably 1996.

This talk about " charter" schools is part of the play. Scratch a supporter of "charter" schools, and you will have a supporter of parochiaid or its brother, a "voucher" system.

You will get a lot of hocus-pocus routine about "parental choice" and how public schools are a "monopoly" and "let the free market work." That's not the name of the act. The act is to get state tax money for private schools and for sectarian schools, particularly those who think everybody is ungodly except themselves.

God made an imperfect world. Certainly even the best public schools are imperfect. The solution is not to water down curriculum standards and support sectarian, anti-science rivals in the name of "competition." The solution is to make all public schools as good as humans can make them, hoping the non-public schools will follow.

We are disappointed the Durant-influenced State Board of Education is backing away from common sense and its constitutional duty. It should draft high standards so that kids will be prepared for the working world and so that a high school diploma will stand for something.

Passion gets the best of couple

Robert Jackson

I'm about to break a rule I set for myself when writing a column: no mention of anything having to do with human sexuality.

Normally I wouldn't even think to discuss this type of subject matter but this week something happened and I feel compelled to write about it.

I found a couple kissing in front of the door to the newspaper!

Now before you begin lecturing me on asserting my morality, or accuse me of wrongly throwing stones, let me preface what I'm about to say with a couple of important facts. First, I reached puberty at the height of the "free love" movement, and second, I'm not at all against public displays of affection – within reason.

With that said, let me explain the situation I found myself in on Saturday.I had taken a lunch break and was returning to the newsroom when I noticed a man and woman standing in front of the door to the newspaper office. As I got to the curb it happened.

They began kissing.

At first I really didn't think anything of it. I figured it would be one of those quick kisses. As I got closer, however, I noticed the kiss had progressed, and their hands were ... well let's just say they were roaming. Suddenly one important thought ran through my head.

How am I going to get through the door?

So I stood there, awkwardly looking away., trying not to be conspicuous, and then I realized that other people had begun to notice what was going on. Heck, even the people driving past our building on were watching.

Finally, after another 30 seconds or so, they stopped. After spotting me, the man, with a scowl on his face, asked a most incredible question.

"What are you staring at?"

I felt a sudden and almost uncontrollable urge to laugh, and the thought of holding up one of those score cards used by Olympic judges, instantly leapt into my mind.

"Hey Bob, the Swedish judge gives this couple a score of 8.1 for intensity in their short program."

Instead I mentioned something about needing to get into my office and not wanting to disturb their "moment." The woman giggled and the two walked away, leaving me a little embarrassed.

As I said, I don't have a problem with public displays of affection, but this was like something you'd see in a steamy love scene:

Camera zooms in as man gazes lustily into the woman's eyes; woman eyes man seductively; camera zooms in on man's hand as it caresses woman's neck and shoulder; woman kisses man passionately; man's hand moves to...

In fairness, I have to admit that there have been instances in my life when my judgment was suspect on this sort of thing. So please understand that I am by no means "morally superior" in conveying this message to our love-struck couple – I hope your passion for each other remains "healthy." Would it be possible, however, to take your romantic interludes someplace a bit more private?

Public sidewalks, after all, are used for walking.

New York Bayside's little league team wins the Junior World Series

Please don't call them backward

Randy Coble

Sometimes I look in the mirror in the morning and ask myself just how I can be so cool, so suave, so svelte.

If you've never met me in person, let me tell you that it doesn't come from being rich, smart or good-looking. No, it's because I have the same gift that my dad, Alexander the Great, Babe Ruth, Rocky, Leonard da Vinci, half the Beatles (Paul and Ringo) and 12 percent of Northville's citizens have.

I'm a southpaw.

Yep, I'm a member of one of the most persecuted minorities on earth: the left-handed. Sunday marks an important event for people like me: Aug. 13 is the official International Left-Handers' Day.

Aside from one measly holiday (which I'm sure I won't get paid for), our unending struggle to live long and prosper in a right-handed world goes either ignored, unlamented or ridiculed.

You righties are fish in your own ocean. We, on the other hand, are dolphins, sea-going but air-breathing mammals.

We live in the water but are constantly limited by it as well. We can't be the catcher in baseball, unscrew a jar top or use a pair of scissors naturally. Hell, a left-hander using your average power tool has a life expectancy of about a half an hour.

Even our language makes life tough for the southpaw, as James DeKay, author of The Left-Handed Book — on sale at Linda's Lefty Shop in downtown Northville — points out. Many of the following facts, by the way, come from his book.

Lefties are guaranteed to be accused of messy penmanship from kindergarten on because we write English left to right. That's not the way it has to be, though. The Egyptians wrote hieroglyphics up, down, left or right at will. The ancient Greeks wrote Boustrophedon style, a system of alternating lines:

,thgir ot tfel eno txen eht (use a mirror for this one, just like you'd need a mirror to read the headline) and so on.

Look at modern society as well Arabic, Hebrew and Chinese are all written right to left

Despite all this, the right handed majority in power just doesn't care about our plight. Southpaws don't have a lobbying group or an anti-discrimination statute.

Bill Clinton, who's left-handed himself, hasn't said a word about including us in the fight over this affirmative action thing.

I hate to say it, but I'd even wager that Northville's own ACORD (A Community Organization Recognizing Diversity) probably hasn't given left-handers a thought.

It's like the old saying goes, troops: "if it is to be, it's up to me."

This is a call to arms, southpaws: the time has come to stand up for our lefts. What we need is a new Neolithic Age.

Yes, you read that right.

Now I know that most people use the word "caveman" like it's a bad thing: you only lived to about 30 and spent those three decades fearing starvation, disease and grizzly bears.

But look at it from the right (i.e. left) point of view: they were an unprejudiced bunch.

Think about it. What sorts of tools did Neolithic types invent? The ambidextrous kind: cups, spears, knives, saws, axes.

Those crazy cave dwellers might have drilled holes in each other's heads to let evil spirits out, but they're OK in my book.

Randy Coble is the only left-handed staff writer for The Northville Record.

Medicare in danger of collapse?

Most older Americans are unaware that Medicare is in danger of financial collapse. I urge you to run stories alerting senior citizens in our community about this crisis.

Congress must not "fix" Medicare as they have in the past. Simply cutting spending in Medicare will lead to rationing.

I support the position of The Seniors Coalition to give me the option of innovative free market choices in health care, or allow me to stay on Medicare if I want to. Please call their Washington office at 1-800-273-9009 for more information on their solution to the crisis.

Is resurrection of Jesus a metaphor?

To the Editor:

At age 14 I began to think seriously about the "miracle" of the Virgin Birth, the Resurrection of Jesus Christ, the raising of the dead, and the many other religious beliefs of my Catholic, Italian parents. At my age, at that time, I believed that if their beliefs comported with reality, then most matters of a mundane nature would not have gained the importance they have succeeded in achieving.

After reading about many religions, over time, I came to the realization that my rational inquisitive nature was such that I could not in good conscience accept what seemed to me to be beliefs that were irrational if not "out of this world."

Might not the "Resurrection" of Jesus be a Metaphor for redemption, for changing one's "sinful" ways? Or that the "Virgin Birth" was a metaphor for the ability of one to progress from, say, a depraved and slothful life to a more meaningful, productive one. These and other notable scriptural events could well be metaphors that would represent man's search for ways and means of living a fruitful and congenial existence, in harmony with nature. In this day of greater scientific knowledge and understanding of the world about us, (one must agree that there's not much to be said of man's psychological advancement over the years), and the steady retreat from superstitious beliefs, are we mature enough to admit that the Christian Bible, the Moslem Koran, the Jewish Torah, all speak to us altogether in metaphors about human behavior and how best it may be improved? Why accept the notion that metaphors are, in fact, reality!

A wise and intelligent approach to the matter discussed in this short exposition should force us to consider the prospect that full and unequivocal knowledge of the whys and wherefores of our presence here on earth may never be forthcoming.

No one doubts that the genus Homo sapiens is a "Spiritual Being," however one may define the essence of that belief.

Township board not getting along

To the Editor:

Randy Coble asks why the township board would make such an important decision as reorganizing the Planning Department without public debate or discussion? The answer is simple: because it had little to do with the reasons given for the change. It's clear to me that this is another example of the township board not getting along with the township supervisor (at the expense of a talented township employee who was there long before any of them). Why Bob Grant is involved with this feud would be interesting to know. Could it have anything to do with the controversial Woods of Edenderry project? Is he paying back a township employee for getting in his way?

The other question that is being asked around township hall is: Who's next, the chief building inspector? The fire chief? And who did they get in the way of?

The question we should be asking is how much longer is Northville Township going to put up with this type of "leadership?" We need to demand that our elective officials work together for the benefit of the township and not destroy the infrastructure of our township staff by forcing out capable long term employees for political reasons and make the rest live in fear of loosing their livelihood.

John M. Amos

Congratulations for job well done

To the Editor:

As our troop secretary noted in her editorial thank you to our Northville neighbors for their support during our bottle and can drive, the proceeds went toward a trip to Toronto for the Girl Scouts of Cadette Troop No. 798. The scouts did indeed have a "blast" as anticipated, but in addition, I would like our community to know how hard they worked to raise funds for the trip and also how proud I have been of them during the past two years as their leader. The scouts worked hard on fund raising projects such as the bottle and can drive, cookie sales, calendar sales and sale of their now famous figgy pudding during the Christmas Walk to earn their way to Toronto. In addition, they have participated enthusiastically in community service projects such as clowning for local nursing home residents, adopting a family of five through Civic Concern and singing Christmas carols along with girls who live at Our Lady of Providence Center; they have shown care and concern for others. The scouts have also become very involved in running their own troop by planning and implementing their activities and participating in all aspects of troop business such as establishing meeting agendas, chairing their meetings, banking and correspondence. I am pleased that we have a group of teenage girls in the '90s who are interested in and proud to be Girl Scouts. Through the support of their parents and the community, they have had a continued opportunity to be involved in very constructive activities. They have conducted themselves as a group in a manner which has made me proud as their leader and can make Northville proud as a community. Congratulations to the scouts for many jobs well done. (Please note that Girl Scout member Stephanie Myers' name should have appeared in the June editorial thank you.)

Cemetery needs city attention

To the Editor:

I am writing in response to the recent letters about Rural Hill Cemetery. Our family has been very disappointed in the condition of the entrance and the roads within the cemetery for the past few years.

Just recently, we called a city official about this problem and were told that we should write a letter to the city council members as they would be the ones to approve any tax money to be used for these improvements, and that they have always given it low priority on the list of things that are done to better the City of Northville. Apparently, they don't have any family members buried there or they would certainly feel differently about it and be glad to use some tax money for the much needed improvements.

Our family plot consists of eleven graves (eight of them bought in 1900 when my great-grandfather died and three more added in recent years). That could be one of the largest family plots in the whole cemetery. Seven family members are already buried there. We make many trips up there throughout the year to put flower arrangements on at holiday times.

We would think that the local funeral directors would be embarrassed to take their processions up there and would certainly have tried to have some changes made by now. Such a difference there is in Riverside Cemetery in Plymouth where I have other relatives and friends buried. We were told that Rural Hill has only one groundsperson. They certainly need more workers than that.

We would like to see some pretty landscaping, trees and flowers aligning the entrance way. Let's hear from others on this matter and get something done as quickly as possible.

Carolyn (Van Atta) Nester

Shops need better customer service

To the Editor:

Recently Mrs. Wood received a relatively expensive gift from a gift store in Northville. Either the gift was too fragile to be wrapped or it was packaged incorrectly because after receiving tender loving care from the store, the wall hanging was broken when the package was opened.

The interesting part of this story is that the gift store refused a replacement and the local artist who produced the object would not or could not repair it.

If the Northville merchants are to compete with Novi Town Center and Twelve Oaks Mall for local trade to supplement the transients who are bussed in, they must convince the local customers that they offer, in addition to convenience, quality merchandise and quality guarantees equivalent or better than those offered a few miles away.

William G. Wood

Trustees are not short-sighted

To the Editor:

The Northville Record has again expressed the opinion that the township's board of trustees was short-sighted in turning down BFI's composting proposal. You have never printed anything about the reasons behind that decision, hours of travel, reading, seminars in Grand Rapids, Ann Arbor, Detroit and Mt. Clemens, physical site inspections, interviews, correspondence and bulking up on information.

Some of the reasons for our decision were:

- BFI's representation of their five acre test site and its effect on the surrounding area was not accurate. Far from it.
- The township did not have a comprehensive, up-to-date compost ordinance (we are working on one now).
- BFI wanted the proposal signed before we had standards and guidelines.
- There was the example of the painting operation of Ford's Wixom plant. Odor is detectable three miles away, in every direction, when there is a heat inversion.
- A new development of over 700 homes is about to get underway within a mile.
- Conditions on the sites visited were not encouraging and interviews with neighbors were more unsettling.
- The inability to locate a comparable facility anywhere near as large as the proposed 80 acres.
- Claims of "huge" township profits (approximately $15,000 per year) didn't stand up to close inspection and in no way could compensate for the loss of future development.
- Six pages of questions, submitted by members of the Board of Trustees were ignored.
- The example of the failed Canton facility and the legal entanglements that followed.
- Property taxes and the effect of tax breaks by the state were left unanswered.
- The possible effect this would have on the adjacent land owned by the city of Detroit who are also looking for composting and disposal facilities.

You almost insinuate that the Board rejected composting because of their sensitive and aristocratic olfactory equipment. It was rejected because lack of control and the number of unpredictable factors that can effect the operation, disappointing financial consequences and unreliable claims.

There was also the thrill of experiencing a cooking compost heap out of control and in full bloom, up close and personal. Lastly, our residents flat out said they didn't want it!

'Strike' column draws criticism

To the Editor:

In his column of Aug. 3, Northville Record Editor Lee Snider rehashed a reporter friend's claim that the ongoing strike against Detroit Newspapers is primarily a Teamsters affair, and noted pointedly that the friend "doesn't understand why the DNA's (sic) five other unions have to sign on with that organization's dispute."

We might have expected a newspaper editor to check the veracity of his source before publication. Despite the sensitivity of his subject matter, Mr. Snider appears not to have done so.

There have indeed been rumors that the ongoing strike was stimulated by a Teamsters dispute, and even a few gullible members of the Newspaper Guild have parroted them. However, such rumors are only that.

In fact, as stated in a document printed specifically for its members by the Guild, "The Teamsters and the other unions walked out in support of the Newspaper Guild, not the other way around."

Continuing to quote: "The Metropolitan Council of Unions set a strike deadline only after (The) Detroit News...unilaterally imposed an all-merit pay system and other conditions on the Guild on July 2." The six unions of the Council had already agreed that if any of them had such conditions imposed on it, all were prepared to walk out. What happened last month is that the Teamsters and four other unions struck in direct support of the Guild.

Only a few days ago, the Guild returned the favor when its members voted to reaffirm their solidarity with the other unions by a margin of more than 20 to 1.

Apparently the reporter to whom Mr. Snider spoke had failed to get his facts straight before blowing off his mouth, which clearly is not the mark of a good journalist. Mr. Snider's tacit acceptance of such an assertion, which carries great implications for the present labor situation at Detroit's papers, is intolerable in someone in his position.

Eight Mile Road improvements approved

ROBERT JACKSON
Staff Writer

The Northville City Council approved an agreement with the Michigan Department of Transportation and Wayne County to make improvements to Eight Mile Road between Center Street and the CSX Railroad Bridge.

The project will include significant improvements to the Center Street and Novi Road intersections, according to City Manager Gary Word, and will be funded mostly by federal monies.

The total cost of the project is estimated at $603,200 with the city funding about $49,000.

The city, along with MDOT and Wayne County have been negotiating the details of the agreement for some time, according to Word, who said that the project includes improvements to Center Street in front of the high school.

"Not all of the issues related to the northbound right turn lane (at the Center Street intersection) have been resolved because the property owner will not allow us to purchase the right of way needed," Word said.

"A right turn lane could be added to the project if the city acquires the necessary land in time, he added"

The most significant changes will occur at the Novi Road intersection. "(It) will be significantly redesigned to improve the current traffic flow," Word said. Word said the project will begin after Labor Day and should be completed sometime before Thanksgiving. The late start on the construction could impact traffic flow into the high school.

"With school back in session there most likely will be an impact," he said. "Unfortunately the contractor performing the work was not able to schedule it before Labor Day."

The city's portion of the funding for the project was budgeted in the current 1995-96 budget.

Asthma On The Rise

Mayor wins tennis match, reporter gets free eats

NORTHVILLE TALK OF THE WEEK

By Robert Jackson

By the time you read this it will all be over.

No more hype, no more trash talking in the newsroom, the battle will have already been joined, and I will emerge victorious.

Next week's headline will read: Northville mayor smashes Township supervisor in tennis grudge match.

You see, I have a bet with Township reporter Randy Coble that Chris Johnson, Northville mayor and part-time tennis pro, will defeat Karen Baja, Township supervisor and part-time tennis victim, in a tennis match that officially dedicates the courts at Fish Hatchery Park.

The match will have already taken place by the time we go to press, so you'll have to wait a week for the official results.

But I'm here to tell you right now that Chris has got this thing in the bag. It's a done deal. He's going to run Baja all over the court. He's going to smash and lob, use finesse and brute force. He's going to...

Win me a free lunch. Oh boy, I can hear that steak sizzling now.

At first I was a bit apprehensive, but talking with Chris after Monday's council meeting, I felt better about mine, I mean his, chances. You see, Chris was downplaying the whole event. Heck he even doubted he'd be much competition for Baja.

Translate that humbleness, and what Chris was really saying – in my mind at least – was "This is going to be the quickest two sets ever played. She's not going to know what hit her."

You see, I've got experience in understanding politicians. Chris can't fool me. I know what the end result is going to be.

Oh Chris, did I mention, I've got a lunch riding on this.

I made sure to let him in on the bet, and how confident I was in his abilities. Chris responds well under pressure. Heck, if he can help bring Northville out of fiscal chaos, he can certainly win this tennis match.

As a matter of fact I might even up the ante with Randy. Lets say two lunches, and hey I'll even cover your next two township meetings. While I'm at it, I'll be bold enough to predict Chris will win every game — I mean he's won four elections. That almost constitutes a set doesn't it?

The bottom line is that when we talk again next week, Chris will have been triumphant in victory.

And I will be sitting at the restaurant of my choice — enjoying my steak — wiping the A-1 sauce and a big grin off my face.

OKAY, TIME TO LOOK at the docket for what's on tap this week. I have to admit, the offering is a bit sparse, but what the heck, we'll go with it anyway.

This week you won't read anything having to do with cable television, and we won't bore you with Northville Township politics – although you have to admit, the board of trustees can perform a pretty good comedy act.

Keeping in mind that we're already into August, we take you to new heights, run a marathon, score a few runs and revisit the sale of the week.

Yes Mom (and Dad too). It's time to pack the kids in the minivan and hustle off to Target for those brand new school supplies. Talk of the Week is here to, once again, remind you that SUMMER is almost over, which can only mean one thing ... it's almost time for those funny yellow buses to hold up traffic!

PLAY BALL! While the Detroit Tigers were losing two out of three against the Yankees this weekend, Northville was the host site for the National Amateur Baseball Federation Junior World Series.

The Northville Squad put in a pretty good showing beating the team from Jackson, Miss., before being eliminated from the competition. Check out Scott Daniel's coverage of the classic in our sports pages this week.

A CHANCE TO HELP KIDS: Just wanted to remind you that the Northville Youth Assistance, the organization that matches adult volunteers and youths who need adult mentoring and companionship, will begin a volunteer training program Sept. 14.

Volunteers must complete a five-week training session consisting of one three-hour session per week.

There is a waiting list for boys who are in need of male friendship and role models. Volunteers are asked to spend at least two hours a week with the youth with whom they've been paired.

For more information on this worthwhile project call the NYA at 344-1618.

WHAT A JOB: Many of you probably noticed the scaffolding that was erected around the building at the corner of Main and Center streets. I spent three days lasts week watching the workmen painstakenly construct each tier, and wondered what type of work was going on. According to Andy Piccoli, at the shoe repair shop, the storm gutters are going to be replaced as well as a portion of the roof. That means the scaffolding will be up for awhile.

Just so you know, Andy's shoe repair and Williamsburg Inspirations will remain open while the repairs are being made.

One interesting sidelight: did you know that the building was constructed in the 1860s, and it took local area farmers about nine years to build? Talk about aging gracefully!

ROAD RUNNER: Received a short note from Jennifer Klausler alerting us that her brother Peter was not mentioned in our coverage of the Road Runner Classic 8K race held July 29.

Peter was the first Northville runner to cross the finish line in the 14-year-old category. It was the first road race he had ever competed in.

Thanks for the tip, Jennifer, and we're sorry we didn't include Peter in our story!

HIT THE PAVEMENT: The Folk and Bluegrass Festival wasn't the only excitement in Northville the weekend of July 29-30.

Hundreds of people flocked into the downtown area during the Sidewalk Sale, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce and local area businesses.

Most of the businesses along Main and Center took part in the day-long affair, which has been a summertime favorite for decades.

JAVA MAN: My favorite coffee stop "Caffe Bravo" is now under new ownership. If you frequent the cafe, you may notice a few new faces, but you'll notice that the service, and the price of that wonderful coffee, has remained the same.

Northville currently has three coffee shops – Caffe Bravo, Tuscan Cafe, which just opened, and the Coffee Bean – all within a one-block radius, which is pure heaven to us Java junkies.

EXPO DAY ON TAP: Northville Township residents will get the chance next month to meet the people and examine the equipment that protects their lives and property.

The township's Department of Public Safety (DPS) will hold its second annual Expo Day on Sunday, Sept. 24.

It's an afternoon of fun and education for the whole family. You can sneak a peek at the inside of a police car, let the kids live every 8-year-old's dream by running a fire truck siren and seeing a Med-Flight helicopter up close and personal.

Township police officers, firefighters and paramedics will also be on hand to say hello and answer any questions you might have.

The final slate of events for Expo Day isn't set yet but many of last year's favorites are expected to make a return showing, such as the SWAT team display, a rappelling demonstration and firefighters sawing off the top of a car in a simulated lifesaving exercise.

Kids can visit with McGruff the crime dog and Sparky the fire dog. Their parents can pick up valuable anti-drug information and fire safety tips. Free child fingerprints and photographs, which parents then keep to use in the event of a kidnapping, will also be available.

Expo Day runs from noon to 4 p.m. on Sept. 24 at Township Hall, located off of Six Mile between Winchester and Haggerty.

LAST TIME I WAS BEGGING, but this week I'm just pleading, for interesting items to feature in upcoming editions of Talk of the Week. If you have an idea please give me a call at 349-1700.

Thanks for your help!

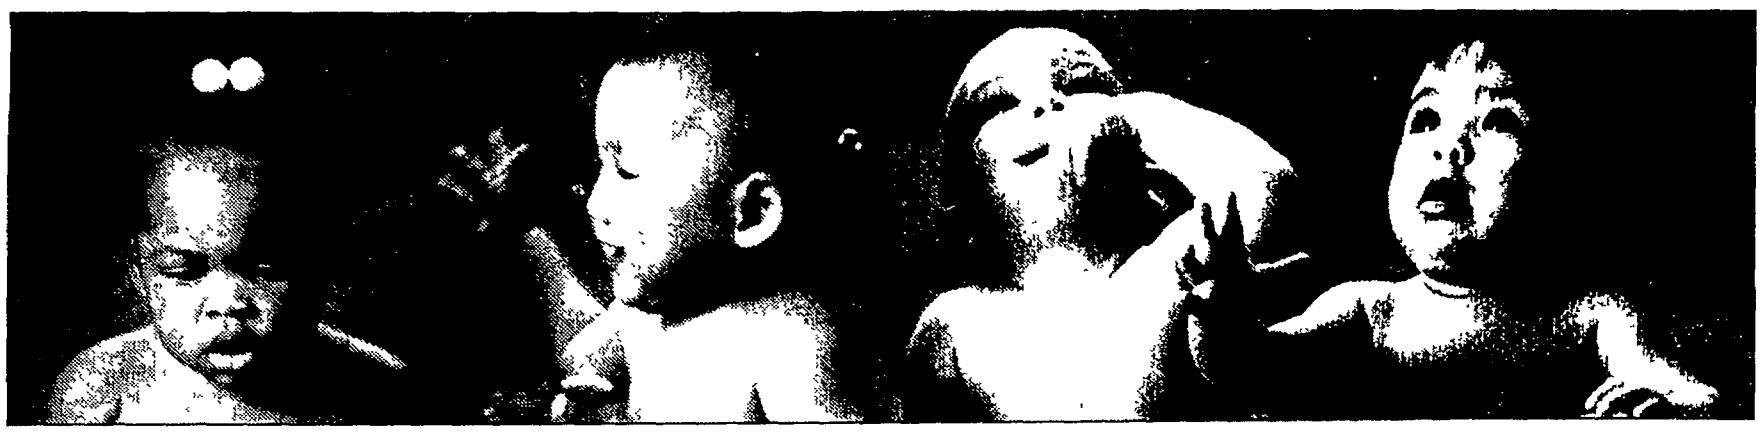
At Providence, we know that no two births are exactly alike. That's why we offer so many birthing options. In fact, we're known as "the baby hospital," and it's no wonder. We've delivered more than 200,000 babies through eight generations. And our obstetrical program is one of the largest and best in Michigan.

Choose from a wide range of birthing options at Providence. Our medical staff is committed to listening to and understanding women's needs and wants concerning childbirth. That's why we offer more family-centered birthing options than any other hospital. Giving birth in our Family Birthing Center, the only one of its kind in Michigan, is almost like having your baby at home. In our New Life Center at Providence in Southfield, 12 comfortable labor/delivery/recovery rooms are a direct response to women's requests for a more homelike atmosphere, backed by personal nursing care and all the high technology a major metropolitan hospital can offer. For those women who may require a cesarean delivery or other medical intervention, we also offer traditional birthing suites. Last year we opened an innovative, first-of-its-kind facility for low-risk mothers: the beautiful New Life Center at Providence Medical Center-Providence Park, Novi, where women give birth and return home within 24 hours.

Prenatal and postnatal educational services. At Providence, we're committed to helping families feel capable, before and after birth. That's why we offer health education classes. Expectant mothers and their partners may take advantage of classes such as preparation for childbirth, childbirth refresher, cesarean birth, brothers and sisters, breastfeeding and infant CPR.

Schedule a Providence tour. If you're planning to have a baby, visit Providence and find out about all your options. Ask your doctor about Providence, or call us at 1-800-968-5595 to schedule a tour. To schedule a tour of our Family Birthing Center, call (810) 424-3919. Our friendly and capable staff will be happy to answer your questions.



When it comes to small packages, we deliver.

Our maternal-fetal specialists and facilities provide women with high-risk pregnancies the safest delivery possible. And it's comforting to know that should the need arise, Providence has a level III regional neonatal ICU for ill or premature newborns.

Providence is proud of its staff members who provide care in obstetrics and gynecology to women in the metro Detroit area.

Novi Board of Education sets goals

By SHARON CONDRON
Staff Writer

Novi school district officials committed themselves last week to an "all out effort" to inform residents of the upcoming Sept. 23 bond issue election.

But that was only one of a number of items on the list of goals the Board of Education set for itself for the coming school year in last Thursday's meeting.

Also on the list are to improve the lines of communication between the district and residents, reviewing the audience participation policy for board meetings, implementing the district's long range plans, reviewing instructional books, adopting a budget by October, and restructuring the teacher contract negotiation process.

"We need to make every effort possible to inform them what's at stake," said Superintendent Emmett Lippe about the upcoming $33 million bond election.

A series of informational meetings will be held between now and the election to serve a two-fold purpose. Board members want to be more visible in the community, schools, and among homeowners' groups.

The board of education is also looking to improve the lines of communication between its members and the community. A three-person communication committee chaired by Trustee Ray Byers will be looking for ways to strengthen communication ties and improve the flow of school news into the community.

The board is also reviewing its audience participation policy and hopes to revise it so it's resident friendly.

"We want to improve the flow and provide a better understanding of the rules," said Board President Craig Foreback. "We need to make it easier for people to give us their opinion and tell us what they think."

Lippe presented the district's goals to the public Thursday evening, nearly a month after they were drafted by the board at a weekend seminar in Ypsilanti. Foreback followed his presentation with board goals identified by the board during the same weekend seminar. Neither set of goals have been adopted. Adoption is expected at the Aug. 17 meeting.

District officials will be brushing off the long range plan and adding members to the committee to discuss restructuring at the high school and middle school.

Street repairs scheduled

By ROBERT JACKSON
Staff Writer

Some Northville residents will find the driving a little less bumpy on some the city's residential streets this fall.

That's because the city will be conducting a road sealing program in September, according to Northville Public Works director Jim Gallogly.

The work kicks off a multi-year program with a goal of prolonging the life of city streets by sealing open joins and cracks that appear on the pavement surfaces, Gallogly said. "There are a lot of streets in a condition that require this type of maintenance. If we don't begin working on the problem, potholes will eventually develop," he said.

The city council awarded a bid contract to S & J Sealer, Inc., of Canton Township, totaling $12,543, well below the $15,000 budgeted for the project. The work will include pressure cleaning the cracks in the existing asphalt, and then sealing those cracks with new asphalt.

The roadwork will begin in September.

The streets included in the program are:

- Dunlap Street, from Rogers to Hutton streets.
- Hutton Street, from Main to Dunlap streets.
- Rogers Street, from Main to Potomac streets.
- Dubuar Street, from Rogers to Linden streets.
- West Main Street, from Clement to Center streets.

The city council also recently awarded a bid contract to M & M Pavement Marking, Inc., of Grand Blanc, to restripe the major streets within Northville city limits.

The city will spend $2,957 to cover the annual repainting of the centerlines, edgelines and stop bars on city streets, Gallogly said.

The work is scheduled to begin sometime this month.

The cost of the project is about $1,000 less than the city spent last year to restripe the roads. The funds will come from the 1995-96 budget.

Symphony seeks VIPs, volunteers

Plymouth Symphony Orchestra honors VIPS or Volunteers Improving Plymouth Symphony.

In this day and age of materialism, volunteers are rare. Plymouth Symphony is looking for volunteers to help their organization. "This is a good time to get involved," said Pat Derderian, director of VIPS. "We're celebrating our 50th anniversary this year and some really fun things are happening." In addition to the concerts, other activities include a free concert in July at Canton Heritage Park, a kick-off reception in September and a gala dinner-dance at Fox Hills Country Club in April.

Wilma Sedore of Plymouth has been a volunteer for two months. "I got involved just so I could do something useful." Sedore retired two years ago from Environmental Research Industry of Michigan in Ann Arbor. She wanted volunteer work that she didn't have to do every day.

"I have run copies, cut tickets, and made phone calls. It's been kind of fun," she said.

An organizational meeting for VIPS will be held on Wednesday, April 12, at 11 a.m., at the Plymouth Symphony office in the PMC Building at 42245 Ann Arbor Road in Plymouth, on the corner of Ann Arbor Road and General Drive. Family and friends are welcome. Refreshments will be served.

No musical talent is required, just simple office work with no typing. If you can spare a little time and would like to meet other community oriented individuals please call the Plymouth Symphony at (313) 451-2112.

HEALTH NOTE
by Dennis E. Engerer, P.T.

BACK TO THE FUTURE

It is of concern to many women that, starting at age 30, they begin to lose bone density (especially in the spine) which leads to increased risk for fractures later in life. However, a recent Mayo Clinic study of women between the ages of 29 and 40 indicates that there are steps women can take to reduce the risk of fractures after menopause. According to the researchers, a thrice weekly weight training program that focuses on the upper body (especially the extensor muscles in the back) may well help prevent osteoporosis and vertebral fractures. Weight-bearing activity of any kind plays a role in increasing muscle density. Any woman interested in such a program will find that physical therapists are as much interested in preventing injuries as rehabilitating the body after they occur.

Although the specifics of weight training effects vary with age, intensity of exercise and other factors, research generally concludes that resistance training is also an effective way to increase the body's energy use, decrease body-fat mass, strengthen muscles which reduces injury risk, and improve self-image and self-esteem. At Northville Physical Therapy & Rehabilitation, Inc., we can help you evaluate your fitness level and design a recommended weight training program. To schedule an appointment, call 349-3816, or see us at 332 E. Main Street, Suite A.

P.S. The extensor muscles support the back and trunk.

NOBODY MAKES HOME OWNERSHIP EASIER.
THE ORIGINAL HOME LOAN TEAM

At Standard Federal, getting the lowest mortgage rate is a lock.

RATE LOCK OR LOWER

No matter what mortgage rates do next, you can get the lowest Standard Federal interest rate possible with our unique Rate Lock or Lower feature.

If you're thinking about buying a home, or refinancing your current mortgage, you've probably been keeping an eye on the recent drop in mortgage interest rates.

You can make interest rate changes work to your advantage with Rate Lock or Lower at Standard Federal. When you apply for a mortgage or for refinancing, Rate Lock or Lower not only locks in your interest rate at the time of application to protect your rates from going up – it also guarantees you that if our interest rates have gone down by the time you close, you get the lower rate while your Lock or Lower commitment is in effect. (Rate Lock or Lower not available on certain No Point/No-Fee Mortgages)

That's right – you get the rate at the time of application or at the time of closing – whichever is lower.

By getting the lowest rate possible, you could save cash every month over the course of your mortgage. That's why now is the time to talk to Standard Federal about our unique Rate Lock or Lower opportunity. Give us a call at 1-800/643-9600 or stop by your neighborhood Standard Federal Banking Center today.

County board debates grant to combat teen drinking

How far should Oakland County go to deter teenage drinking?

That seemingly innocuous question triggered heated debate among Oakland County commissioners as they considered a $225,000 federal grant to hire three law enforcement officers for a county-wide alcohol education program aimed at teenagers.

The total cost for the program over three years will be $527,094, with the county paying $302,094, according to the resolution approved by the county board.

Joan Rich, a spokesperson for MADD (Mothers Against Drunk Driving), said the program would provide vital assistance in helping schools and communities deal with teenage drinking.

The board voted to accept the grant on an 18 to 6 vote, with details of how the program would operate to be reviewed by commissioners at a later date. Voting against the grant were commissioners Nancy Dingeldey, R-Wixom; Sue Ann Douglas, R-Rochester; Donald W. Jensen, R-Birmingham; Ruth A Johnson, R-Holly; John P. McCulloch, R-Royal Oak; and Shelley G Taub, R-Bloomfield Hills

Every commissioner said they recognize problems associated with teenage drinking. But few were willing to question the wisdom of the program and risk being soft or indifferent on an issue like alcohol use at the high school level

'Teen drinking is like apple pie and motherhood," said commissioner Sue Ann Douglas, R-Rochester, who voted against the grant. "But I don't think it's an efficient use of tax dollars. What happens if the federal government (in this case the U.S. Department of Justice) withdraws its support? Is the county obligated to pay the full cost?"

In Rochester schools, she added, four police liaison officers work in the schools and deal with problems like teen drinking. "If we have four officers in Rochester schools alone, how will three officers be effective county-wide?

Commissioner Shirley G. Taub, during the Republican caucus preceding the meeting, said the issue of teen drinking must be addressed with a coordinated program that involves parents.

"In West Bloomfield and Bloomfield Township, we already have alcohol education programs that involve parents and other elements of the community," she said.

Commissioner Charles E. Palmer, R-Clawson, however, said any effort to educate teenagers — and curb alcohol abuse — is worth trying. There are things to be worked out, he acknowledged, such as coordinating any new alcohol education program with existing efforts. "But it could make a difference," he insisted.

Commissioner Lawrence A. Obrecht, R-Lake Orion, said he voted for the grant because he and other commissioners will have approval over the program itself. "I want to see how the program will be implemented," he said.

Bird watchers' paradise

A blue heron sits quietly on a spot of land on Kent Lake In Kensington Metropark. The blue heron is only one of the many birds which can be found at Kensington, making the park one of the most popular spots around for bird watchers as well as people utilizing the other recreational opportunities. Kensington is located off I-96 between Milford and Brighton.

Family Birthing Center of Providence Hospital...

Often imitated - never duplicated.

Many places claim to be birthing centers, but the Family Birthing Center of Providence Hospital has the credentials. It is the only center in Michigan accredited by The Commission for Accreditation of Freestanding Birth Centers, a division of the National Association of Childbearing Centers.

The Family Birthing Center is a unique alternative for childbearing families. The staff is committed to providing each family with a birth experience which meets their individual needs in a safe environment. Our philosophy is based on the belief that birth is a normal process, and routine medical intervention is not needed for most labors and births. We provide a partnership with families that encourages education, participation in decision making and more control over the birth experience. Extended families, including siblings, can participate in the birth event, and mothers and babies are not separated after birth. Your care may be provided by an obstetrician, family practice physician or certified nurse midwife with privileges at Providence Hospital.

In addition to our home-like atmosphere, the Family Birthing Center offers the safety of nearby Providence Hospital with its quality high-risk services in case of a problem.

We offer a comprehensive program of childbirth education, including your choice of normal birth or Christian birth classes, breastfeeding education and support, preparation for early discharge and sibling classes. Our services also include one-to-one nursing care, early discharge with extensive follow-up and a home visit by one of our nurses. Homemaker assistance is also available as part of our program.

We are located in the Fisher Center attached to Providence on Nine Mile Road in Southfield. Come visit us and see for yourself. We want to help make the birth of your child the personal experience it should be. There is a difference.

Be prepared to make the gift of organ donation

In Michigan alone, there are 1,665 patients waiting for an organ donation.

So far this year at least 53 people in the state have died waiting for an organ.

And when you consider that some 326 people have already received an organ in 1995, you can begin to understand the importance of organ donation, according to Tom Beyersdorf, executive director of Gift of Life Agency of Michigan.

"The biggest obstacle is the family being unprepared and saying no," said Beyersdorf.

"The most common reason for saying no is that they never talked about it."

Even when patients indicate on their licenses that they are willing donors, sometimes the document isn't available and the family must make the decision at the time of death.

Families who have had discussion on donation instinctively know the course to take.

Families who have not, face an often difficult and heart-wrenching decision.

Here are some tips about starting a family discussion about organ donation.

- Begin by telling your family that they are an important part of a personal decision that you want to share with them.
- Tell them why you want to be a donor.
- Tell them how one person can really make a difference. One donor can potentially help 50 other people.
- Explain that most major religious organizations support donation.
- There is no cost to the donor family. It is a gift.
- The removal of organs is done in a surgical manner in sterile operating room conditions. The body is treated with the utmost respect and dignity.
- Also, the family can remain anonymous or in some cases meet the recipients at a later date.
- When families are sharing information about a living will and durable power of attorney, information about organ donation should be included.

Howell readies to celebrate Melon Fest '95

The 36th Annual Melon Festival will include time-honored favorites such as the parade, melon run and arts and craft show, as well as new activities such as country and western line dancing and a Mr. Melon Festival contest.

The Howell Jaycees, who organize the festival, try to come up with something new each year, said Melon Festival Co-Chairperson Cathy Sanow.

This year that something new is a country and western night at the Melon Tent.

From 7-11:30 p.m., the country and western band "Borderline Express" will be performing. Between sets there will be special performances by the Diamonds and Spurs Dance Club, a line dance performing group from Pontiac.

Major sponsors for the Melon Tent include Livingston Mobile Communications, Krogers, Grundy's Hardware, Taco Bell, Pepsi and Bains Packing.

Various non-profit organizations will have informational booths set up on the courthouse lawn from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Saturday and 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Sunday.

The Greyhound Rescue Operation will have information on adopting retired racing dogs. Recycle Livingston will be selling T-shirts, cloth bags and drinks. The Howell High School wrestling team will have a dunk tank.

An area Girl Scout troop will offer children's games for a nominal fee.

Various kinds of performing groups will be at the Livingston County Courthouse Amphitheater throughout the weekend, starting at 5 p.m. Friday.

"My goal was to get talent from the Livingston County area," said Cindy Kapanowski. "There's a lot of it and I think this is a great way to bring it out."

Activities for children will be included during the Arts and Crafts show at Page Field. A moonwalk will be located at the north end of the field. There also will be a booth for children to make sand art

An informational booth for folks with questions about the Melon Festival, the Jaycees, or the area in general, will be set up on the courthouse lawn during the weekend, said Bill Bettis. The booth will be open from noon to 8 p.m. Friday, and 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

When we say we screen our doctors, it's not a slogan and it's not just some routine examination, either. This is a procedure we take very seriously. After all, your health is at stake here. So, before any doctors become Blue Care Network doctors, before they ever examine one single patient, they must first survive a very detailed examination themselves.

Here's what it takes. First, all doctors (personal care physicians and specialists) are reviewed against very specific written criteria. (Quality of care is what we're measuring here.) In addition, an on-site inspection is conducted by specially trained staff and results are reviewed by Blue Care Network doctors in the area.

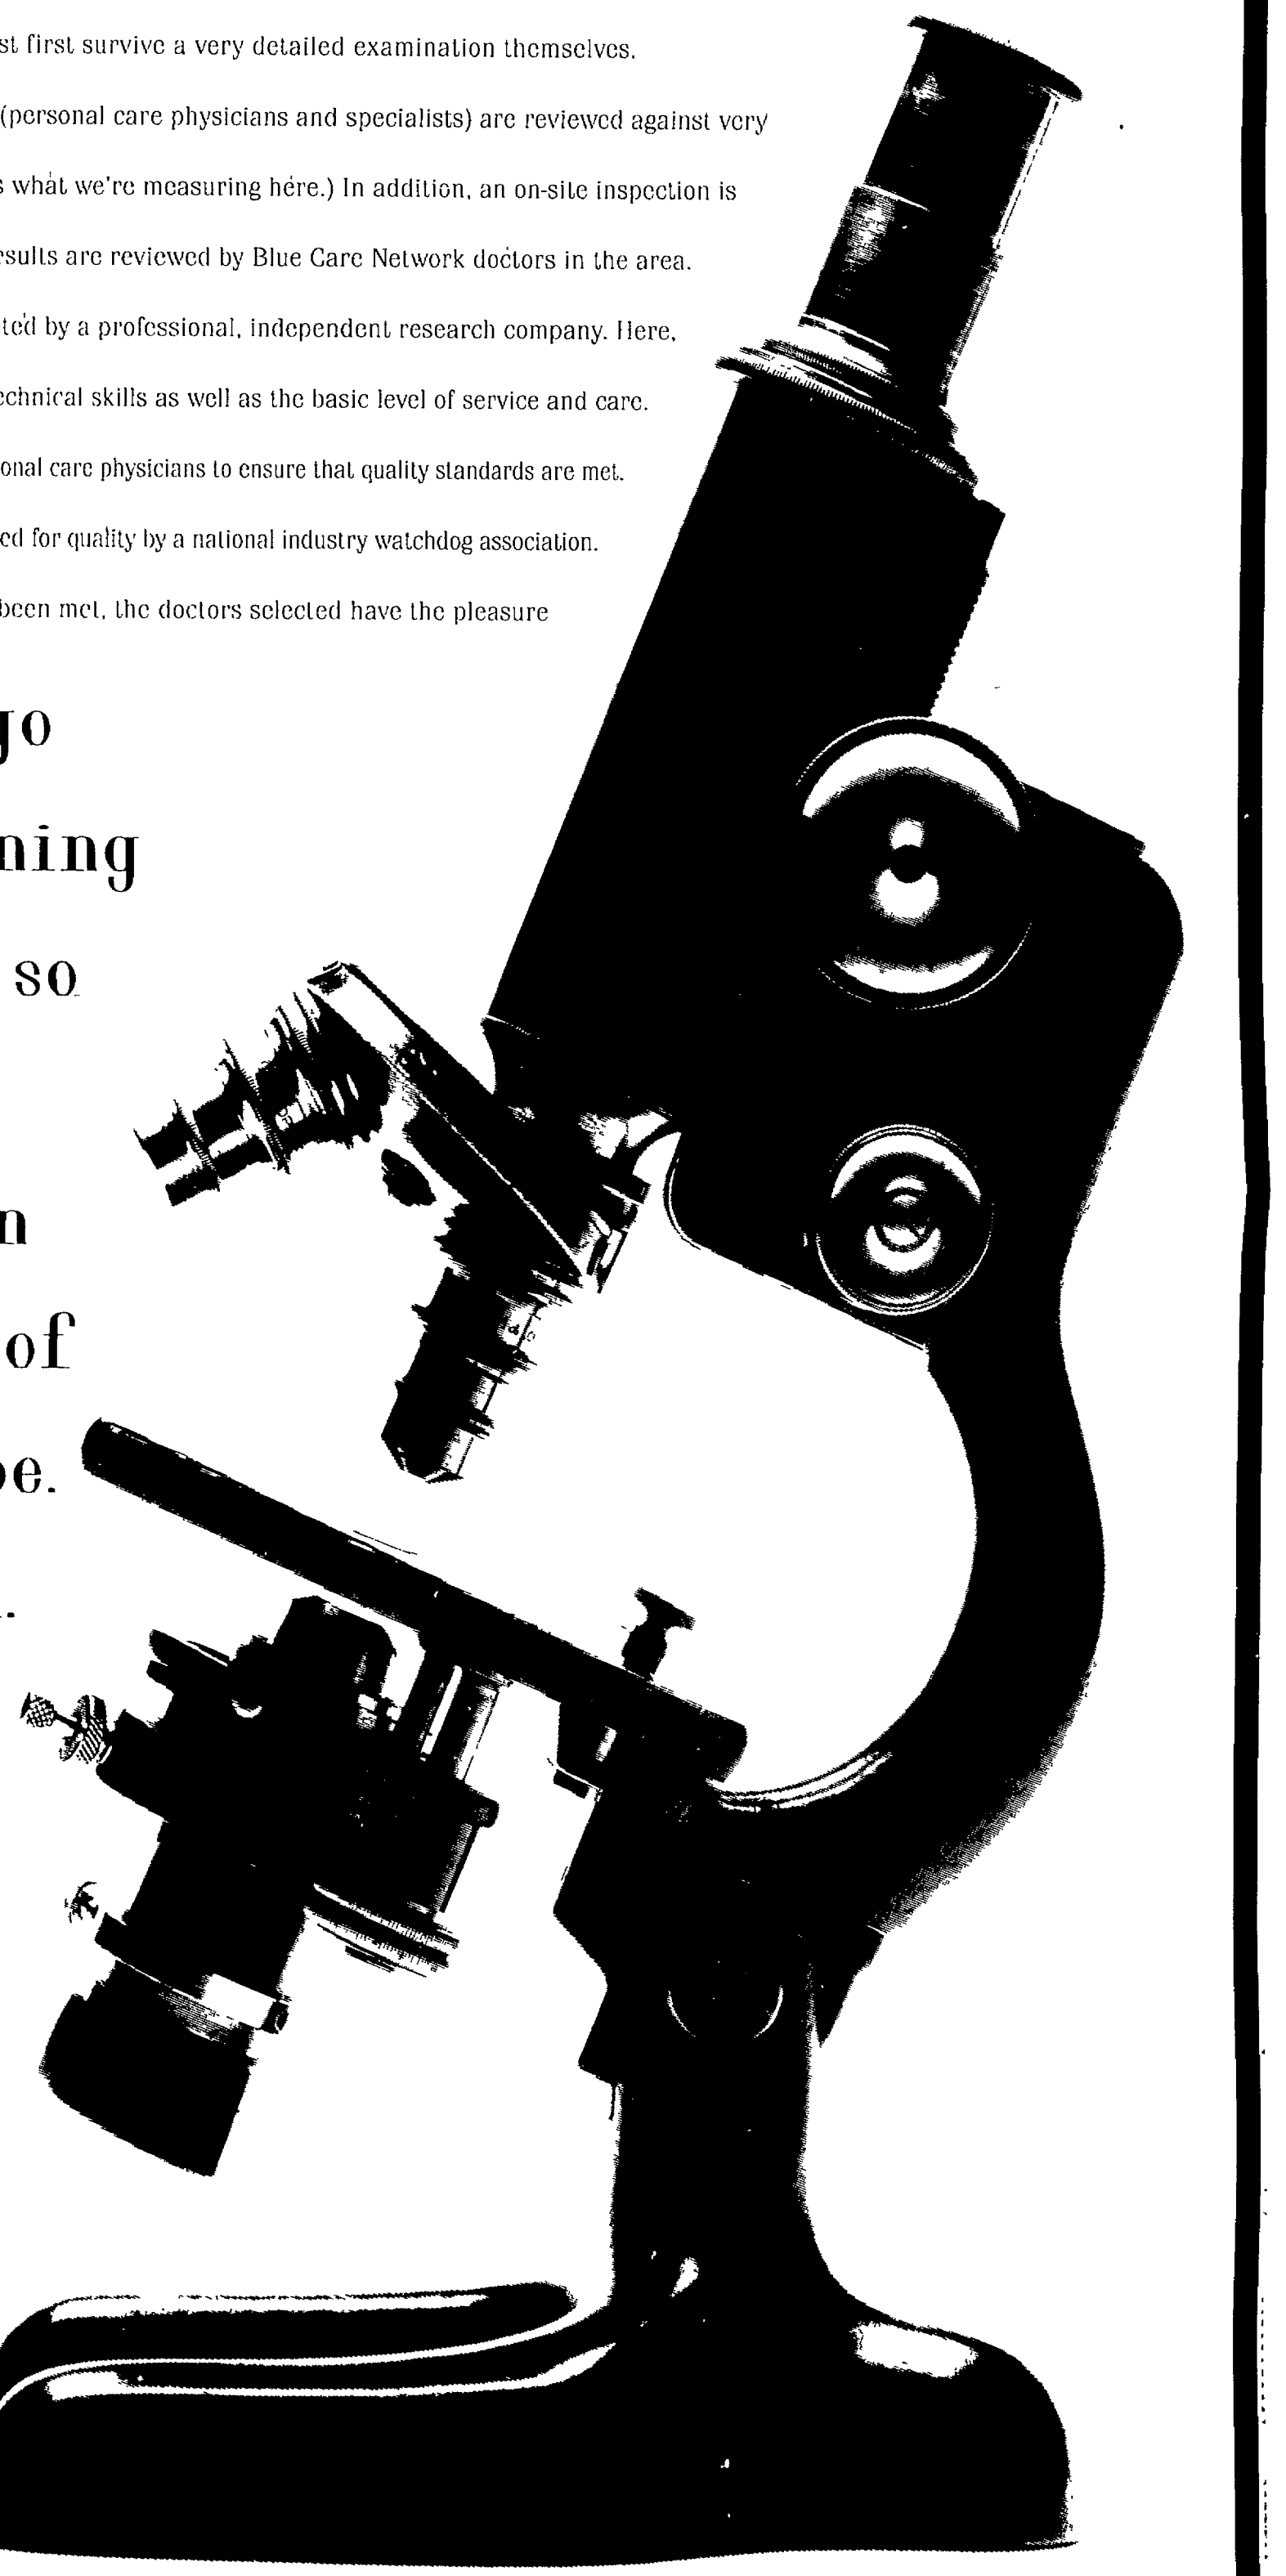
Patient satisfaction surveys are conducted by a professional, independent research company. Here, we ask patients to evaluate their doctor's technical skills as well as the basic level of service and care.

And, Blue Care Network works with its personal care physicians to ensure that quality standards are met.

Finally, Blue Care Network itself is reviewed for quality by a national industry watchdog association.

Oh, and after all these standards have been met, the doctors selected have the pleasure of going through this process all over again every two years for as long as they're with us.

Our doctors go through a screening process that's so detailed, it puts them on the other end of the microscope. For a change.



Now, that is a tall order to fill. But if we're going to take the guesswork out of selecting a doctor, we should try our hardest to provide you with a sizable list of quality personal care physicians and specialists. It's as simple as that.

The Twelfth Annual

Art Festival

August

Downtown Brighton

Juried Arts & Crafts

Sponsored by the Brighton Area Chamber of Commerce

Celebrate Our 12th Annual Art Festival!

Brighton will celebrate its 12th Annual Great American Art Festival on August 12 and 13. This is downtown Brighton's original arts and crafts show. Over the years it has grown from just a few booths along the sidewalk to the current number of 115, according to Cheryl Corbitt, chairperson of the event. Many local artists will be showcasing their work along with artists from as far away as Florida.

Brighton Art Festival provides something for everyone! This year's show is a mix of fine art as well as crafts. Included are original works in watercolor, oil, mixed media, sculpture, photography, pottery, jewelry, and wood carving. There will also be craftsmen displaying hand painted items, dried flowers, clothing and much more. The Embroiderer's Guild will have a fabulous Needlework Exhibit set up at the Chamber office downtown on Saturday and Sunday.

Children can enjoy the Imagination Station and Moonwalk or visit booths to create a sand art masterpiece, get their face painted, or have a caricature done.

Entertainment will be provided throughout the weekend by local musical groups as well as Hometown Cloggers, Crazy Richard and Ick and Erk. Musical Artists include the Reggae Ambassadors on Saturday sponsored by Hungry Howies, Livingston County Brass Band and Livingston Symphony Orchestra. Art Festival visitors can also enjoy a classic car show and parade on Sunday. It's a fun summer weekend and it's all happening in downtown Brighton.

Can you take your pet on vacation?

Common sense is the best rule when deciding whether to take your pet on vacation

Planning a vacation can be stressful for a family, particularly when deciding whether to include the family pet on the trip.

The Pet Practice, a leading network of veterinary hospitals, advises travelers to to think things through before taking a pet on a vacation, to ensure stress-free travel.

Pet owners must decide if their pet is suitable for travel, and then abide by safety guidelines before and during travel. The pet's size, age, capabilities and temperament are factors to consider. The type of vacation and setting should also be reviewed for appropriateness.

"For example, a Labrador would be fun to hike with, whereas a poodle would not be," said Ken Genova, Michigan area vice president of The Pet Practice. "A vacation that is spent primarily indoors would not be right for an outdoor dog."

Genova advises using common sense when deciding if your pet's lifestyle is appropriate for the vacation.

Pet owners need to insure their pets remain safe when traveling. The Pet Practice suggests adhering to the following guidelines:

• If the trip involves air travel, check regulations. Different airlines have restrictions that should be investigated well before the trip. Reservations also need to be made in advance. Opt for a non-stop flight if possible.

• Road trips shouldn't be completely new to a pet. The animal should be conditioned to the car. Drive around the neighborhood so your pet becomes comfortable when it comes time for the trip.

• When traveling in a car, allow the pet to be unleashed. Leashes can get caught around the pet's neck and may cause strangulation. Never allow pets to hang their heads out of a window.

"If the pet's head can fit through the space, then the whole body can squeeze through as well," Genova said.

• Travel carriers should be used for road travel, besides air travel. The National Highway Safety Commission recommends anchoring pet carriers within the vehicle seat belt. Bring the carrier into the house and let the animal get acquainted with it. Throw the pet's favorite toy inside and let it retrieve it. If the pet is comfortable with the carrier, it can represent comfort and security.

• Make sure pets are securely leashed before exiting a car. Pet owners should make sure that their pets are secured before opening a car door where pets could dash out onto a busy street. Also, never leave a pet in a hot car, even when the window is open for ventilation. Heat stroke can occur in a matter of minutes.

• Make sure pets have proper identification. Pets should have proper identification on their collar so that ownership information is available if the pet gets lost. The tag should include the owner's name, address and telephone number

A current rabies tag with the pet's veterinarian's address on it is also beneficial. Pets should be examined for updated vaccinations before a trip, as well. Several states and countries have pet entry regulations that require proof of up-to-date vaccinations.

• Prepare for pet motion sickness. The Pet Practice advises pet owners to avoid feeding their pets less than six hours prior to trip departure to help prevent motion sickness.

Unless there is a medical reason, don't give pets water for at least one hour before leaving.

"Most cats appreciate a snack and water by the fifth hour of driving, but dogs can wait until the day's end, as long as they are provided with about one cup of water every hour."

Pet owners should limit daily travel to eight hours with their pets. Dogs should be walked every two hours when traveling and cats can usually handle up to six hours without a bathroom break although The Pet Practice advises keeping a litter box in the travel carrier, just in case.

• Organize a travel medicine kit for pets. Pet medicine kits should include any medications that the pet is currently taking (along with the written prescription, in case of loss) for treatments of motion sickness and diarrhea. As always, The Pet Practice suggests asking a veterinarian for recommended brands and appropriate dosages for medications.

• Comforting words and affection help calm a traveling pet's nerves. The Pet Practice recommends comforting pets with affection and assurance when they appear nervous. Tranquilizers are discouraged, as they can leave pets confused.

Patterson raps commission over well policy

The reluctance of Oakland County commissioners to adopt a well inspection policy has rankled County Executive L. Brooks Patterson who said the lack of action "puts a significant number of citizens at risk."

In a strong message, Patterson warned that not having a well inspection policy could lead to families becoming chronically ill from drinking contaminated water.

Commissioners, however, insist that Patterson is exaggerating the problem and trying to push a needlessly expensive program.

"I might support a well inspection program, but it would have to be better than the one I've seen so far," said Commissioner Sue Ann Douglas, R-Rochester.

At issue is whether Oakland should establish a unit to inspect new wells.

Some commissioners said Oakland doesn't need such a program, at least at the county level.

Oakland averaged less than five cases of contaminated wells for each of the last five years, she said.

Commissioner Lawrence A. Obrecht, R-Lake Orion, said the county should consider an inspection program, but not the one supported by the executive.

At present, Oakland is one of 13 counties in Michigan that does not have a well inspection program. That means no state or local agency oversees the use of proper materials and grout with new wells to prevent contamination.

Nobody knows how many wells are located in Oakland County, Patterson said, because accurate records are not available. But the Michigan Department of Public Health estimates that Oakland has more on-site residential wells than any other county in Michigan, he added.

Not having a county inspection program puts new homeowners at risk if their wells fail, Patterson said.

Failed wells can mean contaminated water and an expensive repair bill, he warned.

Patterson said he wants it fully understood that commissioners — by rejecting a well inspection program — "...must bear morally the responsibility for placing a significant portion of our population at risk.

"Public health functions, such as well permitting, are the responsibility of the local County Health Department, not local cities, villages or townships," Patterson said.

"Further, such responsibility cannot be delegated to them."

Commissioners have been reviewing a proposed inspection program that includes a nine-person inspection unit. The cost per inspection is estimated at $170 each, with the state and the homeowner each paying $85.

But after months of review, the county board's finance committee voted against adopting the policy 5 to 4. That vote, on July 20, was probably not the final word on well inspection. Patterson's strongly-worded message probably guarantees the issue will be revisited.

"I think there's room for compromise," said Commissioner Larry Crake, R-Waterford, board chairman.

Everybody seems to think Oakland should have some inspection system," said Commissioner Obrecht. "Even well diggers believe there should be some inspection."

The main question, he said, is what kind of system and how much will it cost.

"I could support a system that requires homeowners to pay less, say $60," said Douglas. "But $85 is simply too much."

The Howell Nature Center will be hosting "Scramble for Wildlife," a golf outing at Marion Oaks Golf Club in Howell.

The goal of this event is to raise funds for the center's Wildlife Rehabilitation program. Over 1,200 wild animals come to the Howell Nature Center each year because they have been injured, are ill or orphaned. The Nature Center provides these animals the care necessary for their successful release back into the wild.

PUPPY GETS DRAFTED

Brian Long serves Bonnie a much deserved treat, a child's size ice cream cone, during a training session in downtown Northville.

By CAROL WORKENS
Staff Writer

When Bonnie was seven months old she was living in a shelter that was filled to capacity with four dogs sharing each kennel.

Bonnie's future was uncertain until Lori Paradise-Grigg and Sharon Joseph of Paws With A Cause walked through the front door on one of their routine rescue missions.

Paradise-Grigg took Bonnie outside and ran some temperament testing on her. Had she flunked the tests, she would have been taken back to her kennel to await her fate – the possibility of being destroyed.

Temperament testing includes determining if the dog is afraid of noise by sounding a smoke alarm. Other tests including the ability to retrieve, the dog's response to a lead, whether the dog is friendly or aggressive, if the dog comes when called and whether they are interested in the person doing the test or more interested in smelling things.

Bonnie passed with flying colors and Paradise-Grigg decided Bonnie had a good chance to be a service dog.

Joseph has gone out on rescue missions with Paradise-Grigg periodically checking shelters and the humane societies for dogs. Paradise-Grigg makes the final decision on whether to rescue a certain dog and Joseph volunteers as a helper.

"They take the time and effort and find some wonderful dogs," Joseph said. "It is heartbreaking because there are so many animals.

It's just sad to see so many animals left like that."

Bonnie was placed with Joseph, who lives in Northville.

"We are responsible for Bonnie in every way until she goes to the big training center in Grand Rapids," Joseph said.

Although Joseph had worked with obedience training for Paws With A Cause, she had never fostered a dog.

"She knows her stuff and she's only eight months old," Joseph said. "It is something very special in her."

The first day Bonnie was at Joseph's house, she instinctively knew what to do.

Joseph's boyfriend, Bryan Long, who is an amputee, took his prosthesis off and laid it on the floor. Bonnie cuddled up with the prosthesis and stayed with it.

Bonnie knows to bring Long one shoe and one sock, because his prosthesis already has a shoe and sock on it.

Long, who lost his leg 11 years ago in motorcycle accident recently was hit by a drunk driver and had to have shoulder surgery and is currently going for physical therapy. Both injuries were to his right side.

"With Bonnie being so gentle she knows what side is going to be OK for him," Joseph said. "She picks up on stuff with him."

Service dogs are trained to turn lights on and off, retrieve items, open doors, pull a wheel chair and act as legs for a mobile-impaired person. Hearing dogs are trained to alert a non-hearing or hearing-impaired person to noises such as an alarm clock, smoke alarm, telephone, door knock, an intruder or a baby crying.

Joseph will foster Bonnie until she is one-and-a-half years old and then she will turn the dog over to the Paws With A Cause training center in Grand Rapids where Bonnie will com-

Can you take your pet on vacation?

Common sense is the best rule when deciding whether to take your pet on vacation

Planning a vacation can be stressful for a family, particularly when deciding whether to include the family pet on the trip.

The Pet Practice, a leading network of veterinary hospitals, advises travelers to to think things through before taking a pet on a vacation, to ensure stress-free travel.

Pet owners must decide if their pet is suitable for travel, and then abide by safety guidelines before and during travel. The pet's size, age, capabilities and temperament are factors to consider. The type of vacation and setting should also be reviewed for appropriateness.

"For example, a Labrador would be fun to hike with, whereas a poodle would not be," said Ken Genova, Michigan area vice president of The Pet Practice. "A vacation that is spent primarily indoors would not be right for an outdoor dog."

Genova advises using common sense when deciding if your pet's lifestyle is appropriate for the vacation.

Pet owners need to insure their pets remain safe when traveling. The Pet Practice suggests adhering to the following guidelines:

• If the trip involves air travel, check regulations. Different airlines have restrictions that should be investigated well before the trip. Reservations also need to be made in advance. Opt for a non-stop flight if possible.

• Road trips shouldn't be completely new to a pet. The animal should be conditioned to the car. Drive around the neighborhood so your pet becomes comfortable when it comes time for the trip.

• When traveling in a car, allow the pet to be unleashed. Leashes can get caught around the pet's neck and may cause strangulation. Never allow pets to hang their heads out of a window.

"If the pet's head can fit through the space, then the whole body can squeeze through as well," Genova said.

• Travel carriers should be used for road travel, besides air travel. The National Highway Safety Commission recommends anchoring pet carriers within the vehicle seat belt. Bring the carrier into the house and let the animal get acquainted with it. Throw the pet's favorite toy inside and let it retrieve it. If the pet is comfortable with the carrier, it can represent comfort and security.

• Make sure pets are securely leashed before exiting a car. Pet owners should make sure that their pets are secured before opening a car door where pets could dash out onto a busy street. Also, never leave a pet in a hot car, even when the window is open for ventilation. Heat stroke can occur in a matter of minutes.

• Make sure pets have proper identification. Pets should have proper identification on their collar so that ownership information is available if the pet gets lost. The tag should include the owner's name, address and telephone number

A current rabies tag with the pet's veterinarian's address on it is also beneficial. Pets should be examined for updated vaccinations before a trip, as well. Several states and countries have pet entry regulations that require proof of up-to-date vaccinations.

• Prepare for pet motion sickness. The Pet Practice advises pet owners to avoid feeding their pets less than six hours prior to trip departure to help prevent motion sickness.

Unless there is a medical reason, don't give pets water for at least one hour before leaving.

"Most cats appreciate a snack and water by the fifth hour of driving, but dogs can wait until the day's end, as long as they are provided with about one cup of water every hour."

Pet owners should limit daily travel to eight hours with their pets. Dogs should be walked every two hours when traveling and cats can usually handle up to six hours without a bathroom break although The Pet Practice advises keeping a litter box in the travel carrier, just in case.

• Organize a travel medicine kit for pets. Pet medicine kits should include any medications that the pet is currently taking (along with the written prescription, in case of loss) for treatments of motion sickness and diarrhea. As always, The Pet Practice suggests asking a veterinarian for recommended brands and appropriate dosages for medications.

• Comforting words and affection help calm a traveling pet's nerves. The Pet Practice recommends comforting pets with affection and assurance when they appear nervous. Tranquilizers are discouraged, as they can leave pets confused.

Patterson raps commission over well policy

The reluctance of Oakland County commissioners to adopt a well inspection policy has rankled County Executive L. Brooks Patterson who said the lack of action "puts a significant number of citizens at risk."

In a strong message, Patterson warned that not having a well inspection policy could lead to families becoming chronically ill from drinking contaminated water.

Commissioners, however, insist that Patterson is exaggerating the problem and trying to push a needlessly expensive program.

"I might support a well inspection program, but it would have to be better than the one I've seen so far," said Commissioner Sue Ann Douglas, R-Rochester.

At issue is whether Oakland should establish a unit to inspect new wells.

Some commissioners said Oakland doesn't need such a program, at least at the county level.

Oakland averaged less than five cases of contaminated wells for each of the last five years, she said.

Commissioner Lawrence A. Obrecht, R-Lake Orion, said the county should consider an inspection program, but not the one supported by the executive.

At present, Oakland is one of 13 counties in Michigan that does not have a well inspection program. That means no state or local agency oversees the use of proper materials and grout with new wells to prevent contamination.

Nobody knows how many wells are located in Oakland County, Patterson said, because accurate records are not available. But the Michigan Department of Public Health estimates that Oakland has more on-site residential wells than any other county in Michigan, he added.

Not having a county inspection program puts new homeowners at risk if their wells fail, Patterson said.

Failed wells can mean contaminated water and an expensive repair bill, he warned.

Patterson said he wants it fully understood that commissioners — by rejecting a well inspection program — "...must bear morally the responsibility for placing a significant portion of our population at risk.

"Public health functions, such as well permitting, are the responsibility of the local County Health Department, not local cities, villages or townships," Patterson said.

"Further, such responsibility cannot be delegated to them."

Commissioners have been reviewing a proposed inspection program that includes a nine-person inspection unit. The cost per inspection is estimated at $170 each, with the state and the homeowner each paying $85.

But after months of review, the county board's finance committee voted against adopting the policy 5 to 4. That vote, on July 20, was probably not the final word on well inspection. Patterson's strongly-worded message probably guarantees the issue will be revisited.

"I think there's room for compromise," said Commissioner Larry Crake, R-Waterford, board chairman.

Everybody seems to think Oakland should have some inspection system," said Commissioner Obrecht. "Even well diggers believe there should be some inspection."

The main question, he said, is what kind of system and how much will it cost.

"I could support a system that requires homeowners to pay less, say $60," said Douglas. "But $85 is simply too much."

Jerome tries to meet the needs of seniors

By DOROTHY NASH

"We have a very skimpy budget to work with," said Betty Jane Jerome who is a member of the Senior Citizen Advisory Council. "We need a new refrigerator for one thing."

So what does she do on the Council? Being one of the newest members, she said, "I listen and I make a few suggestions. I'd read in The Record that there was an opening."

But she had volunteered at the Center. "And I'm still there on Monday mornings from 9 until noon. I volunteered because I couldn't get through on the telephone to find out what was going on."

But about the Board - "there are 11 people on it. I'm on as a senior interested in activities."

And there are things. Look at the July newsletter which went out to 100 persons.

The popular activities are card party, day trips, dining out, and plays. Mall shopping at Laurel Park, Livonia and K mart are popular, too. But the number of seniors who take advantage of these opportunities is depressing.

More crafts were asked for - and so more crafts were put on the list - but it didn't draw.

A driver refresher course was added. "That was for someone like me, who hadn't driven a car for 20 years" and then suddenly had to. It didn't draw.

If there were better response and not so many seniors sitting home waiting to be called out and entered into projects, she speculated.

"Maybe when the new library is built" we can have a room in it, Betty Jane Jerome said, a room to hold more than bridge and pinochle games.

"The community is getting older," she said, and the need to get them out and active is getting greater.

Twirler continues her climb to the top

Cara Jasiolek is still on cloud nine after her recent competition in North Carolina.

The daughter of Christina and Walter Jasiolek of Northville Township, Cara competed in the National Drum and Majorettes of America Competition and won the top honor – Elite Majorette Princess of America. Competition included a solo baton twirling routine, a fancy strutting routine, a solo ballet point routine in which Cara chose music from The Nutcracker entitled "The Snowfairies" and formal pageant-type modeling in a long gown.

Cara was among 2,000 twirlers from across the U.S. who competed at the event which was held Aug. 3.

As the Elite Majorette Princess of America, Cara received a 61-inch trophy, a full crown and a savings bond. This is the fourth national title win for Cara. Savings bonds won in previous competitions are going toward her college expenses.

At 14 years old, the sophomore at Northville High School has dreamed of competing and winning the highest national competition—the Majorette Queen of America title, but she must wait two years to be eligible.

But first, Cara, who is the featured twirler at high school football and basketball games, will be among over 100 twirlers who have been invited to perform at the Citrus Bowl on Jan. 1 for the half time program.

Scouts for the Citrus Bowl traveled across the United States stopping at various competitions and summer camps before making their final selection of the group of girls who where invited to perform during half time, according to Christina Jasiolek.

Cara has been baton twirling for seven years. Her coach, Derek Skarvi, a former resident of Northville is also a former Majorette Queen of America. Cara has also been taking ballet since she was five years old.

Cara Jasiolek placed first in both the ballet and modeling routines of the National Drum and Majorettes of America Competition and second in both the strut and twirl routines to emerge as the Elite Majorette Princess of America.

Brothers will work together on special project

William and David Saunders, both 1991 graduates of Northville High School, have landed assignments from Bookcrafters Corporation of Chelsea.

After completing a combined study program and vacation in Europe during May and June, the twins were greeted with a business offer they couldn't refuse.

Phil Knight, vice president of marketing for Bookcrafters asked William and David to design and implement a customer orientation program for new clients in their Fredericksburg, VA facility. The Fredericksburg division encompasses the Washington, D.C. area.

The appointment of William and David Saunders marks the first time undergraduates have been assigned to a project of this magnitude, according to their mother, Shari Saunders.

William and David did their printing internship as account executives in training during the summer of 1994 at Bookcrafters.

The brothers, who are seniors and honor students at Ferris State University, are both majoring in printing management. William and David will graduate in December 1995.

Volunteers needed for youth program

Northville Youth Assistance (NYA) currently has five boys waiting to be matched with volunteers.

The next volunteer training will begin on Sept. 14 and run five consecutive Thursday nights from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m.

Northville Youth Assistance provides supervised volunteer and professional social services to youths and their families. NYA matches youths with volunteers who receive 15 hours of training. The volunteer meets with the youth for one to two hours per week.

The volunteer helps the youth work toward positive changes in their life and offers support and encouragement to the youth whenever possible.

For additional information and to sign up to help Northville youths, call Mary Ellen King, director, at (810) 344-1618.

In Our Town is written by Carol Workens. If you have story ideas, accomplishments, awards, trips, etc. you would like to share with your neighbors and friends in Northville, call her at 349-1700 or write The Northville Record, 104 W. Main Street, Northville, MI 48167.

On Campus

Northville resident and Cleary College graduate JULIE STISKO was an honored participant in Cleary's June commencement exercises. Julie received a bachelor's degree of business administration.

Named to the Dean's List and recognized for their academic achievement of maintaining a grade point average of 3.5 or above at the completion of the spring semester at Albion College were the following students and residents of Northville:

KRISTINE ARNOLD, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eric S. Arnold; KELLY R. CASTERLINE, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray J. Casterline; ALLISON M. FARMER, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William D. Farmer; SUNAINA GILL, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mohindrapal S. Gill; GEORGE D. LEMMON, the son of Dr. and Mrs. Richard C. Lemmon; EDWARD J. ROHN, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Rohn; and JEFFREY M. SCHRODER, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Schroder.

ROBIN FREDERICK of Northville has been awarded a Pulp and Paper Foundation Scholarship for the coming academic year at Miami University, Ohio. Frederick's parents are Gary and Margaret Frederick.

Pulp and Paper Foundation Scholarships are funded by the Miami University Pulp and Paper Foundation – a foundation supported by at least 80 paper companies.

Students are selected based on superior personal and academic achievement.

ANGELA HELMER, a graduate of Northville High School, has been awarded a Juett-Hackett Endowed Scholarship by the College of Education at Michigan State University. She is the daughter of Brian and Linda Helmer.

A junior in elementary education, Angela is a Dean's List student, was a resident assistant for two years and is a member of the Tower Guard Honor Society. She is an active member and Bible study leader with Campus Crusade for Christ International.

Participating in the June 1995 commencement exercises at Cleary College was DANIEL MCNEILANCE of Northville. Daniel received his bachelor's degree in business administration.

Maintaining a 3.5 or better grade point average for the second semester of the 1994-95 school year at Miami University, Ohio, were Northville residents DINA M. BURGHARDT and KRISTEN M. KESSLER.

Both students were named to the Dean's List in recognition of their achievement.

STEVEN G. MALSON of Northville has been placed on the Dean's List in recognition of outstanding academic performance at GMI Engineering and Management Institute.

Malson, a thesis senior in the electrical engineering program at GMI, was presented a certificate of academic achievement in qualifying for the Dean's List, which requires that students attain a grade point average of 92 or higher for the semester, with no course grade below 85.

As a cooperative education student, Malson is employed by Ford Motor Co., Transmission & Chassis plant in Livonia.

DAVID MICHEL BRUHOWZKI, STACEY HOUSE, and ALLISON SIEVING, students from Northville, have been named to the dean's list at Bowling Green State University for the spring semester 1995.

To receive recognition on the dean's list, students must achieve a grade point average of 3.5 or better on a 4.0 scale.

Northville resident JULIE ROMINE was among the undergraduates named to Denison University's spring Dean's List. To achieve this recognition, a student must maintain a grade point average of 3.5 or better (out of 4.0) for the semester.

Julie is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ken A. Romine of Northville. She graduated from Northville High School in 1994 and will be a sophomore at Denison.

Denison University is located in Granville, Ohio. It is a privately supported, co-ed college of liberal arts and sciences.

JENNIFER YORKE of South Lyon received a bachelor of arts degree in studio art cum laude with distinction from Carleton College during commencement exercises on Saturday, June 10.

Jennifer is the daughter of Mary Frances Yorke of South Lyon and Winton Sugg of Northville.

Town Hall Series tickets for 95/96 are now available

By CAROL WORKENS
Staff Writer

Tickets for the Northville Town Hall Series for the 1995-96 season are now on sale.

Opening the 35th anniversary year of the Town Hall Series will be Hope Mihalap on Oct. 9.

Mihalap, a descendent of the first Greek family to settle in Virginia, has been compared to Lily Tomlin with her true-to-life impressions that come directly from first-hand experience. Mihalap has been a newspaper columnist, an arts commentator on public radio and the voice behind many radio commercials.

On Nov. 13, Phil Marcus Esser will be the guest speaker. Esser has been a singing performer all his life. Twenty-one years ago he began a second career as director with the musical Jacques Brel is Alive and Well and Living in Paris.

The success of this production done "cabaret style" in Detroit's first dinner theater was followed by Personals, In Celebration of Kurt Weill and Lotte Lenya, Cole Porter at the Book Cadillac and over 50 other original concepts.

Described as "the perfect romantic baritone," Esser has been acclaimed both for how he sings and for what he chooses to sing. He received the Eighth Annual Michiganian of the Year Award for his work and its contribution to Detroit.

Kay Lani Rae Rafko will be the guest speaker on March 11. The former Miss America 1988 holds the distinction of being the first Registered Nurse to be crowned. She uses her visibility as a former Miss America to focus national attention on critical health care issues including AIDS, pulmonary disease and cancer. She has traveled to 48 states and six countries. She addressed a Congressional subcommittee in Washington, DC in 1987 about nursing concerns.

Rafko has prepared public service announcements, participated in fund-raisers and made presentations to many groups from junior high school to medical associations. She married in 1989 and is the mother of a 3-year-old son.

Wrapping up the season on April 15 will be Dr. Vladimir Sakharov. Once described by the CIA as "the most knowledgeable defector on record," Dr. Sakharov gained a reputation for his unique and totally unconventional foresight into what was to happen in Russia.

Since coming to the West, he has accomplished a great deal, beginning with his international best seller, High Treason. He received his Ph.D. in International Relations and Law from USC, and worked at Stanford University, Universidad de Mexico, the United States Air Force, and served as an advisor to the FBI.

He has been featured on the 60 Minutes segment – "Three NBC White Papers," worked as a commentator with CNN during the Persian Gulf War, and has appeared on NBC, CBS and BBC broadcasts.

All lectures will be held at the Holiday Inn, Livonia West, 17123 North Laurel Drive in Livonia at Six Mile and I-275 and will begin at 11 a.m. The luncheon immediately follows the lecture at noon.

A season lecture and luncheon ticket is $90. The cost of the four lectures is $40. Individual luncheon tickets are $15.

If you wish to sit with friends, include a list of names when ordering tickets.

Send all orders, for lecture and/or luncheon tickets, to Barbara Armada, Northville Town Hall-Tickets, P.O. Box 93, Northville, MI 48167-0093.

Erika Luiki's Austrian heritage and her artistic creativity extend to the back yard, above, with its abundance of flowers which surround the fresh water fountain.

Garden is plentiful and pesticide free

By PATRICIA A. ZIELKE
Special Writer

Erika Luiki's garden on Portis in Northville Township abounds with flowers, fruit and vegetables – all living side-by-side in a pesticide-free environment.

Rich red tomatoes are the size of softballs. Sweet red raspberries and flavorful blueberries are ripe and plentiful. Squash and cucumbers are running a close race down the garden path with tall stalks of garlic waving them in. Milorganite, applied in the spring and fall, is the fertilizer of choice, and it appears to be working its magic in this garden.

The Luiki home is totally encompassed by gardens. The front yard is filled with flower beds: Triangles hold Marigolds, Seedum, Japanese Maples, mums and roses.

Curb-side crescents are filled with bush and tree roses, along with Delphinium, daylilies, buttercups, Coreopsis and Iris.

Near the center of the yard, a large Wisteria stands, encircled by a Juniper bush which has been "ground-trimmed" to showcase a circular bed of crimson red Impatiens and bright green hostas beneath its branches.

Handsome stone statuary blends in among the Dogwood, Creeping Cherry and Jack-in-the-Pulpit, its elegant presence whispered – not shouted.

Along the sides and leading to the back, are containers of flame red Hibiscus along with a colorful display of Zinnias, Lovage, Hollyhocks, Snow on the Mountain, Yucca, Fern, Sweet William and taste-tempting strawberries, cabbage and a variety of herbs.

The compact backyard is embraced by tall pines, providing a green privacy fence and a perfect spot for the wildflower garden, hostas and fern living in their shadows.

Lush green grass is surrounded by gracefully curving beds holding Sweet Woodruff, red Geranium, Nicotiana, Foam Flowers, Trillium, Hydrangea, Burning Bush, Prim Rose, Bleeding Heart, Astors and Peonies.

A handsome stone patio is shaded by tall Birch and Cherry trees and enhanced by a fountain which produces fresh water for any critter flying over or walking through.

The garden could be characterized as wholesome, healthy, and vigorous. Its qualities were influenced by Erika's Austrian heritage, along with an artistic eye for composition and a fearless attitude toward change. Erika's creativity extends beyond gardening, however. An accomplished artist, her oil paintings and water colors depict the sprawling Austrian countryside and the village in which she spent her childhood.

Although the pictures are wonderful reminders of her heritage, she and her family return to Austria regularly to visit relatives and renew memories.

Service dog comes to town for training

plete her training. Hearing dogs attend two months of training while service dogs train for another four months.

Bonnie needs to be socialized and obedience trained. Joseph takes Bonnie to restaurants, grocery stores, Meijer, and to physical therapy with Long. Bonnie is learning people, shop and animal socialization. She wears a little jacket which explains she's in training for Paws With A Cause.

"Most people are very courteous," Joseph said. "They want to see the dog and pet the dog. Once in a while I get the people that ask for the dog to be removed."

Paws With A Cause and Leader Dogs for the Blind do work together in classes for socialization and obedience although they are not affiliated in any way.

Saturday, both groups and the dogs were at Detroit Metro airport. "Paws" puppies have gone to the burn center at Children's Hospital of Michigan and to senior citizens centers.

"We expose them to any situation in life so that they will be prepared," Joseph said.

A paraplegic needs a larger dog such as a Doberman or a Golden Retriever, which is one of the best, according to Joseph. The dog has to be big enough to help that person in a wheelchair.

Smaller dogs are usually suitable for the hearing impaired.

Regardless of its size, dogs do not have to be purebred to be considered by Paws.

"There is always a desperate need to foster the dogs," Joseph said.

Foster families have to have the dedication to go through the obedience training. If the family has multiple family members, it is important that they work together so that only one set of commands is used.

"We know she will go on and do great things," Joseph said. "She will be somebody's legs or mobility. That is the biggest kick giving someone their mobility."

Foster families know where the dog will go a lot of times and get to see them, according to Joseph. "You know who they will be working for and the recipients are always so grateful."

Joseph does watch other dogs for friends but says "Paws dogs are different, they're not jumping up and acting up, they're at your side, you never trip over them, they never have house accidents."

"Paws dogs have a job to do," Joseph said. "It requires so much, they have to love what they do."

Paws With A Cause services 35 states and receives funding from United Way of Michigan, and Donor Choice Designations from Michigan and various other United Ways throughout the U.S.

Recently, the Northville Town Hall Series made a donation from their 1994-95 season profits to Paws With A Cause to help sponsor a hearing and service dog.

Wedding

Lauren Collette Berry

Lauren Collette McDonald and David Curtis Berry, both of Cary, N.C., were married June 17, 1995, at an outdoor ceremony held at the Lake Lure Inn in North Carolina.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents, Donald and Barbara McDonald of Roscommon, formerly of Northville.

Fr. Kip Gravele, of Westland, performed the double-ring ceremony. A reception for 125 guests was held at the Inn following the wedding.

The bride is a graduate of Our Lady of Mercy, Farmington, and Western Michigan University. She is an executive assistant to the vice president of marketing for The Body Shop, an English-based company.

On Friday, June 16, a luncheon shower was given in her honor with attending guests from Northville, Florida, Pennsylvania and New York.

Attending the bride were maid-of-honor Tonni McDonald of Novi, junior bridesmaid Meghan McDonald of Jackson, flower girl Jenna McDonald of Highland, all nieces of the bride, and ring bearer Nicholas Berry, son of the groom. The three attendants wore matching amethyst-in-color silk tea-length dresses.

The bridal gown, originally worn by the bride's mother when she married in 1954, was of ivory alencon lace. In place of a veil, the bride wore white roses throughout her hair. She carried a large bouquet of colored wild flowers.

The bridegroom is the son of Norine Berry of Cary, N.C., and Harold "Bud" Berry of Apex, N.C. He attended Wake Technological College, and is employed by Northern Telecom as a computer engineer, Triangle Research Park in North Carolina.

Bill Belk of Apex, N.C., served as best man to the bridegroom.

Following a cruise to Alaska and a week on the west coast, the couple now reside in Cary, N.C.

Engagements

Kerrie Fordyce/Todd Daniels

Mr. and Mrs. William Fordyce of Oakland announce the engagement of their daughter, Kerrie Anne of Farmington Hills, to Todd Daniels of Livonia. He is the son of Shari Daniels of Livonia and Michael Daniels of Rochester Hills.

The bride-elect graduated from Lake Orion High School in 1989 and from Michigan State University in 1993. She is in her third year at Detroit College of Law and is employed with the Firm of Patterson, Phifer & Phillips.

The groom-elect is a 1989 graduate of Northville High School and a 1993 graduate of Michigan State University. He is employed with Olde Stockbrokers.

A September 1996 wedding is planned.

Charlene Coyne/Christopher Sellen

Hal and Arlene Dorf of Marquette announce the engagement of their daughter, Charlene Marie Coyne, to Christopher Robert Sellen, son of Robert and Joan Sellen of Northville.

The bride-elect graduated from Wayne State University with a bachelor of arts degree in public relations. She may be returning to school in the near future.

The bridegroom-elect graduated from Northville High School. He received his bachelor's degree in communications and economics from Albion College where he was a member of Delta Ta Delta fraternity. He is employed as a branch manager of Enterprise Rent-A-Car.

A fall wedding will take place on Oct. 28, 1995.

'Something to Talk About'

Julia Roberts, Dennis Quaid co-star in 'a film about family'

Grace King Bichon (Julia Roberts) has the perfect life

Or at least that's what she always thought — until she sees her husband giving an unknown young woman a passionate kiss on his lunch hour Then, suddenly, everything about her picture-perfect existence begins to look very different to her.

She reconsiders her traditional Southern-gentry family — her strong-willed father Wyly King (Robert Duvall), who has built a horse-breeding empire by making sure his word is law; her gracious, genteel mother Georgia (Gena Rowlands) who has quietly acquiesced to Wyly's will for decades, her feisty sister Emma Rae (Kyra Sedgwick), who's the one person in the family who sees things as they really are; her young daughter Caroline (Hauley Aull), already an expert horsewoman, but determined to ride a challenging, bigger horse in the upcoming Grand Prix competition; and, of course, her husband Eddie (Dennis Quaid), Grace's college sweetheart, whose graduation disenchantment with their marriage has been all but invisible to Grace

Until now.

"Something to Talk About," the latest Julie Roberts' release, is directed by Academy Award nominee Lasse Halstrom, whose previous efforts include "My Life as a Dog' and "What's Eating Gilbert Grape " The film is produced by Paula Weinstein and Anthea Sylbert.

"Something to Talk About' is based on an original screenplay by Callie Khouri, who won an Academy Award for Thelma and Louise "

Once, Grace moved through her life automatically, doing charity work, being the dutiful daughter, caring for her husband and child, and assuming that everything would continue on as painlessly as life had always seemed to do

Eddie (Dennis Quaid) and Grace (Julia Roberts) have the leads in Warner Bros.' new comedy-drama, 'Something To Talk About.'

But after Grace sees Eddie romancing another woman, she decides all bets are off. She can look at her life any way she wants to

And some changes are going to be made.

Friends for nearly 20 years, Paula Weinstein and Anthea Sylbert had long wanted to collaborate on a motion picture about family. "Before it was made into a motion picture, we had read Callie Khouri's script for 'Thelma and Louise,' and were absolutely knocked out by her writing," said Weinstein "We had a meeting with her, and she agreed to work with us.

"Anthea and I had always wanted to make a movie which demonstrated the changes in the attitudes of women," she continued 'In the early days of feminism, there were movies about having our own voice and striking out on our own, and they were terrific movies which represented exactly what we felt — films like An Unmarried Woman and Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore What we wanted to do now was make a film about a woman who frees herself from her self imposed constraints "

Co-producer Anthea Sylbert said the film came together easily We really wanted Julia Roberts for the role of Grace and when she agreed to do it, we sent it to Lasse Hallstrom, who signed on, and from there it fell together very quickly '

'One of the great appeals for me " said Hallstrom, "was the fact that the story was character oriented and didn't sacrifice character for plot It was very funny and blended the dramatic with the comedic elements

"This family is very steeped in tradition very connected to the south — to their roots, to this place where they live," said Callie Khouri the screenwriter "They're eccentric and funny but that's one of the things I love about families — you put up with their faults in a way you wouldn't tolerate in other people "

"The expectation for Grace," explained Julia Roberts, "is for her to be basically another variation of her mother Although she has an affinity for her father, works with him and for him in the family business of raising thoroughbred horses, when we first meet her, she's at a moment in her life when she realizes that she doesn't know what any of that means She feels that her life is slipping away without her even realizing it. She's caught between the traditional world and trying to be a modern woman, torn between instinct and her loyalty to her mother and her family

'As for Grace's relationship with Eddie," Roberts continued, "there have been little things happening every day, subtle hints which are easily put aside and not dealt with, so that when the blow-up occurs It's really a culmination of many things In the end, Grace and Eddie are lucky, because they've had a wake-up call a warning "

Khouri describes Eddie as the typical Southern guy who's been raised with a certain set of expectations "But I also hope that underneath it all he wants more than what he has now," she added 'He wants a whole relationship and I think that he feels let down an disappointed by what life has in store for him

"This is the story of a couple who have been married for quite a while and they have become complacent," said Quaid

"They've forgotten the initial excitement and have gone in different directions and it isn't until they being to remember what had been good about their relationship that they start to find each other again

"They begin the process by getting to know one another as who they are today — not by basing the relationship on what they used to be "

'Casper' — it's ghostly fun for the whole family

CASPER
By Heather Wadowski
Northville

This summer, if you want to meet one of the best friends you will ever meet, you have to overlook one thing ...

A pulse.

Christine Ricci (Wednesday from "The Addams Family" movies) plays Kat, a young girl without any friends due to the fact she doesn't live anywhere long enough to make friends. You see, her dad (played by Bill Pullman) is a shrink for the "living impaired," or, ghosts.

He's trying to find the ghost of his recently deceased wife and that leads him to a haunted house in Friendship, Maine.

The house is haunted by four ghosts — Fatso, Stretch, Stinkie and Casper. They instantly capture Kat's (and her father's) hearts . not to mention the viewers.

"Casper" has many cameo appearances by Dan Ackroyd, Clint Eastwood, Mel Gibson, Rodney Dangerfield and even the Crypt Keeper, so don't blink your eyes.

"Casper" is one of the best family films ever made. It will make viewers laugh, cry and keep them guessing, too.

"Casper" receives five stars out of five, with five being the highest. But truthfully, it deserves about 10 stars.

If you've see "Casper," see it again. And if you haven't, what are you waiting for?

REBECCA
By Helaine Binstock
Novi

Daphne Du Maurier's magnificent novel, Rebecca, was made into a 1940 movie and, lucky for everyone, it's available on video. I was certain this extraordinary story would be disappointing on film — but I was wrong.

Photographed in black and white, this is Alfred Hitchcock's first American film. It concerns a plain, lonely young woman (Joan Fontaine) whose own name, interestingly, is never revealed during the film.

"Rebecca," in fact, refers to the recently deceased wife of Max DeWinter (Laurence Olivier), a brooding British nobleman who hastily marries the story's strikingly plain and simple heroine.

The new Mrs. DeWinter arrives at "Manderlay" to become mistress of her husband's famous manor. Alas, she immediately discovers she is existing in Rebecca's shadow, eerily perpetuated by Miss Danvers (Judith Anderson), the head housekeeper.

While Rebecca was confident, beautiful, cultured and accomplished, the new Mrs. DeWinter is distinctly opposite. And reminders of Rebecca seem to be everywhere, including in Max DeWinter's mind. Mrs. Danvers' obvious resentment and disaffection compound the young woman's misery.

Many surprising twists and turns, along with Hitchcock's masterful direction, earned an Oscar for best picture of the year.

Also stars George Sanders. One hundred and 30 minutes of black and white suspense.

Seen any good movies lately? If you have, we'd like to hear about it ... we'd like to hear exactly what you think — good or bad.

Please limit your mini-reviews to 200 words and send them to HomeTown Newspapers, c/o Phil Jerome, 323 E. Grand River, Howell, MI 48843.

The reviews should include your name, address and day-time telephone number. Call Phil Jerome at (517) 548-2000 if you have questions or want more information.

Faith summer film series continues

Faith Community Presbyterian Church at 44440 West Ten Mile between Taft and Novi roads, is presenting the last three films in the 1995 Faith's Festival Series on Wednesday night at 7 p.m. with refreshments provided. The series is free of charge.

Shadowlands with Anthony Hopkins and Debra Winger will be the featured film on Aug. 16.

Based on a true story, C.S. Lewis - played by Anthony Hopkins - was a world-renowned Christian writer, teacher and theologian. But the dispassionate, cloistered life he led in academia was soon surprised by Joy Gresham - played by Debra Winger.

Lewis falls passionately in love and his heart learns many truths undreamed of by his mind, among them, the shadow side of love - the deeper the love, the deeper pain it is vulnerable to.

On Aug. 23 Don Juan DeMarco with Marlon Brando, Johnny Depp and Faye Dunaway will be shown.

In this film, a young man is taken in by the police and institutionalized when he is apparently trying to commit suicide. This young man believes he is Don Juan the great romantic lover, and has a whole history of how he got to be who he is. The evaluation of his life story brings a new life to a psychologist about to retire. A film about dreams and vision

Chariots of Fire, starring Ben Cross and Ian Charleson, will wrap up the series on Aug. 30.

Winner of four Academy Awards in 1981 including Best Picture, this is the drama of the 1924 Olympic Games as experienced by two very different competitors, a young insecure athlete whose sole focus is the Gold and his teammate who sacrifices personal achievement and honor for God's greater glory. Together they bring Britain her most legendary Olympic victories.

Following each film, using slides from various scenes of the movie, Robert Short, author, theologian and pastor, will interpret each film and lead in a short group discussion.

For more information, call (810) 349-5666.

Bayside takes third straight NABF title

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

New York Bayside used something old, something new and something borrowed Monday to win its third straight NABF Junior World Series championship in Northville.

The Yankees defeated tournament nemesis Dixie Stars 4-2 to take their fifth overall National Amateur Baseball Federation title. Dennis Peacock struck out seven and limited the Lexington-based team to four hits.

"He's a cocky kid," New York Manager Ron Seltzer said. "But cocky is okay when you produce."

And the Yanks relied on the right hander to produce. Seltzer said his team hasn't produced much offense in the last month.

"We haven't been hitting," he commented. "We've had to try and create runs."

New York relied on its pitching all summer, he added.

"This team has had outstanding pitching," Seltzer said. "Pitching has carried us."

Bayside won the last year's World Series with much the same formula. The New Yorkers shutout the Cincinnati Midland Warriors 3-0 a year ago.

The Yankees finished with a tournament record of 5-1.

"It's always tough," Seltzer said of the World Series. "It's never easy."

Peacock struck out Tony Herrera to start out the inning. Corey Cinnamon followed with a line drive to the wall in left field.

The ball appeared catchable, but left fielder Carl Meyer lost it in the morning haze and Cinnamon wound up on second with a double.

Scott Hodges was then hit by a Peacock fastball to put runners on first and second. A second liner to left was misplayed by Meyer and Dixie had the bases loaded.

> New York Bayside Manager

Both of the Stars runs then scored off an infield single by Josh Oney. The ball bounced to deep shortstop. Andy Salvo tried to get the third out of the inning by throwing to first, but it was late and allowed a second run to score on the roller.

"He had trouble seeing the ball," Seltzer said of his left fielder, who was replaced by Bryan Rossenberg.

Raney couldn't hold the lead, however.

Tony Mongelluzzo lead of Bayside's second with a double. A walk followed then Todd Trofimuk doubled home New York's first run. The Yankees took a 3-2 lead on a two-run single by Ralph Vasami.

Peacock made the lead hold up. Dixie, in fact, had just one hit after the first inning – a fourth inning infield single by Josh Burrus.

"He's a trooper," Seltzer said of his pitcher. "He threw four innings the other day."

New York added an insurance run in the fifth.

Rosenberg led off with a single and later went to third on a single by Ryan Nevins. Nevins got himself in an intentional run down between first and second, which allowed Rosenberg to trot home to make it 4-2.

Peacock retired nine straight batters to close the game and the Series.

"He told me he was going to throw ice on me in the fourth inning," Seltzer said.

Bayside handed Dixie both of its tournament losses.

DIXIE 6, BAYSIDE 4

New York could've closed the World Series Sunday.

Going into the noon game, Bayside was undefeated while Dixie had to win to force Monday's game. The Lexington team did just that and in dramatic fashion.

With the game tied at three in the fifth inning, Cinnamon singled home the tying run. The Stars went up 5-3 off a groundball by Jody Stewart.

Dixie added a run in the seventh on an RBI single by Pat Schmonsky. Bayside also got a run in the final inning as Trofimuk homered.

Hodges won the game in relief of Chad Cadle.

Northville wins one, loses two in series

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

Six was an unlucky number for the Northville Broncos last weekend.

A pair of sixes knocked the locals out of the National Amateur Baseball Federation World Series. The Broncos dropped a 6-2 decision to Baltimore Thursday and were then dropped from the tournament Saturday by the Bloomfield Bulls 6-0.

Bulls' pitcher Ryan Anderson was the story of Saturday's game. He limited Northville to four hits.

The Broncos most serious scoring threat came in the second inning. Anderson walked the bases loaded with two out.

Bloomfield manager Larry Swistak moved Anderson off the mound and into the field.

Northville's Kelly Bingley then drove the relief pitcher's offering to the warning track but it was caught. Anderson returned to the mound in the third and cruised in for the victory.

"He found the strike zone again," Northville manager Don Samhat said.

NORTHVILLE 4, JACKSON 3

Sandwiched between the two defeats, Northville beat the Jackson 96ers 4-3 Friday.

The Broncos took a 1-0 lead in the first inning. Kevin Gilchrist knocked in Bingley with a ground ball.

The Mississippi team tied the game in the bottom of the frame. Charles McCoy scored on a pair of errors after reaching base.

Scott Daniel

Odds and ends on a warm summer's day...

If you like playing the name game, last weekend's National Amateur Baseball Federation World Series provided plenty of ammunition. ESPN's Chris Berman would've had a field day.

Let's see. On the Dixie Stars, Corey (Sticks of) Cinnamon played second base. His teammate, Kyle Raney (Day), pitched in the final against New York Bayside and was caught by Dave (Drive my) Carr.

Oh yes, the Yankees. How about championship game standout pitcher Dennis (Proud as a) Peacock?

Northville's Broncos also contributed with pitcher Joe (Free) Willey. Then there was the Bloomfield Bulls' Andy Good (N Plenty), Jackson's Charles (Power Mac) McIntosh and Cucamonga's Todd (Blue) Barry.

The topper also came from the Cucamonga, California squad. Say Harvey Wieczorkiewicz three times fast (he was listed as a pitcher/first baseman for the Dodgers)...

All kidding aside, it was a fine tournament. Rain made getting all the games in difficult. But tournament director Bob Frellick and his crew did a good job of keeping the high school field in playing shape...

Detroit Tiger broadcaster Lary Sorenson made a brief visit to the diamond Monday. Now a Novi resident, the former major league pitcher rubbed elbows with Frellick and Northville High Vice Principal Dennis Colligan...

Speaking of Novi, last week's Northville Record reported on the addition of a possible minor league team to the city.

If the Central Baseball League materializes, professional ball will be coming to Novi. But the quality of

Nivi, Gordon make all-academic

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

Life is good for Farb Nivi.

The 1995 Northville High graduate will be attending the University of Michigan this fall. While his heart is likely to turn shades of maize and blue, he's got at least one thing to remind him of his high school days.

Nivi and former Mustang track teammate Pat Gordon were recently named to the All-State Academic squad. The duo had to post grade point averages of 3.5 or better and place at last spring's state final.

"I'm honored," said Nivi, who'll study business at Michigan. "(But) I've always expected good grades."

"I feel good about it," Gordon said. "It's a bigger honor than I thought."

Nivi was ninth among all athletes chosen with a 3.902 GPA. Gordon, who'll be a Mustang senior this fall, was 16th at 3.8.

Track coach Dennis Faletti helped make those good grades possible, Nivi said. Unlike many coaches, he said, Faletti didn't overdue practice and team commitments.

"It made us better as a team," Nivi added. "He didn't drive us into the ground."

Nivi ran track all four years at Northville. He mostly ran 100-meter sprint and the sprint relays.

The former Mustang was proud of his team's accomplishments. He said if Northville had been Class C or D instead of A, championship banners would've been flying from the school gym.

"The four years I was here," said Nivi, "we were a consistently good team."

Besides competing, running track was fun, he said.

"I made a lot of friends," Nivi added. "It was something to do, something to keep me busy."

For Gordon, track is more of a passion. He stays committed to the sport year-around.

"I've been running every day," he said.

Like Nivi, Gordon is a sprinter. He, in fact, may turn out to be Northville's top 400-meter man of all time.

Gordon finished ninth in the state in the event last spring. Not bad for someone who wasn't sure if they'd even make the final.

"I had a lot better season than I expected," Gordon said.

He's missed the school record last spring by a few tenths of a second. Gordon is hoping to shatter the old mark of 49.8.

"I hope to break the school record," he said. "My coach and I are shooting for 48 5."

It takes a combination of speed and endurance to be a 400-meter runner. The last 100 meters, in particular, are a killer.

"A lot of people say it's the toughest race," Gordon said. "I agree."

The senior is hoping to go to U of M a year from now. Gordon said he wants to study medicine.

Pheasant Run features Hills' architecture

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

Arthur Hills has outdone himself.

The renowned architect has created nothing short of a golfer's paradise in Canton Township. Rolling terrain, bent grass tees, greens and fairways, bountiful wetlands and water mark Pheasant Run Golf Club.

While each hole provides a distinct challenge, Head Golf Professional David Horstman said the course is set up for good shotmaking.

"I think Arthur Hills makes his courses playable," he said. "He's known for making courses people enjoy playing."

Pheasant Run opened early last month. Some $5 million was spent in construction of the 215-acre course, which is owned an operated by the township.

Work began on the site in fall of 1993. Pheasant Run was seeded a year later and then opened on July 1.

Response to the course has been favorable thus far, Horstman said.

"It's been extremely positive," he said.

Considering the kind of condition it's in, that's not a surprise.

Unlike most new courses, Pheasant Run has very few rough edges. Greens are, for the most part, immaculate.

The rough has grown in well and bunkers are silky smooth. A few fairway bald spots near several greens are the only weak link.

A minor irrigation problem last year caused the rough spots, Horstman said. The problem has long since been dealt with and the small areas are filling in, he added.

"All in all, I can't believe how good of a shape the course is in," said Horstman.

The golf pro's words are buttressed by the very first hole at Pheasant Run.

From the championship tees, the par 4 plays 384 yards. It's a straight path to the green from a lush, rolling fairway. A pot bunker guards the green on the right side.

One of the unique features about the course is also illustrated on the first hole.

As players drive down the cart path, yardage is marked off. So when you're in the middle of the fairway there's no guess work in knowing how far you are from the green.

In general, hitting the ball a long way shouldn't be a big concern at Pheasant Run. Unless you're playing from the championship tees, which check in at about 7,000 yards, every hole is reachable in regulation for the average golfer.

Take the par 5 fourth hole, for example. It's just more than 500 yards – an inviting eagle target for real long hitters.

Like most holes at the course, No. 5 calls for placement. Hit a bit of a slice won't hurt here as a rather large bunker sits on the fairway's left side. Deep bunkers also guard the green on either side.

Want to test your nerves? Try the 157-yard par 3 fifth.

Woods line the left side of the fairway. But the real test here is getting it over the wetlands, which run from the tee area to the green. There's just a tiny bail out area to the right of the green.

"I think it's intimidating," Horstman said.

Hole No. 15 is very similar in style. Expect this par 3 requires a tee shot of nearly 200 yards.

Despite the toughness of those par 3s, Dearborn resident Ken Reno said the course is fair.

"If you hit a good tee shot," he said, "you get rewarded. The landing areas are generous."

Of the remaining holes on the front nine, No. 9 is the most fun.

A 504-yard par 5, a ridge bisects the fairway about 200 yards from the tee. A trio of bunkers sit along the ridge's right side and are big trouble for a sliced tee shot.

Hit above the ridge and you're in shape for a birdie.

The back nine has water, folks, and lots of it. Nowhere does it come more into play than 17 and 18, however.

A huge pond sits in front of the tees at the 418-yard par 4 No. 17. If you're knees don't get wobbly here they never will.

If you insist on hitting the ball right on No. 18 bring a row boat. A pond runs the entire length of the dog-leg right, 506-yard par 5.

Pheasant Run Golf Club is located at 46500 Summit Parkway in Canton Township. From I-275, exit on Ford Road and head west to Canton Center Road. Take Canton Center south past Cherry Hill and follow the signs.

Prices are $43 for 18 holes on weekdays and $48 on the weekend. Nines holes can be played for $29 on weekdays and $32 on weekends. For tee times or more information, call (313) 397-6460.

Youth theater prepares for fall

By CINDY STEWART
Special Writer

Last weekend the weather was great ... perfect for enjoying a festival, concert, picnic or ballgame.

Unfortunately, if you did not stop by the Novi Civic Center last Friday, Saturday or Sunday you missed out on a special treat.

Linda Wickert, "the Pied Piper of Novi," took 54 local youth and transformed them into a cast of every fairy tale character imaginable for Novi Theatres' production of Jack and the Beanstalk ... a Parody.

This original play written and directed by Linda Wickert ended the Novi Youth Theatres' fourth season with a bang. Who else but Linda Wickert could write a hilarious comedy with parts for 54 young people from 7 to 18 years, and bring them all together to present a creative and comical play which incorporates all of our favorite fairy tale characters.

Jack and the Beanstalk ... a Parody is the story about what happens when a stage manager, played by Jordan Brun, and his assistant, Paul, played by Kirk Jones are left to put together a play when none of the characters show up for rehearsal.

Jordan Brun played a very convincing, frustrated stage manager, while Kirk Jones did a great job keeping his boss and the characters happy, if that was possible when Papa Bear plays a cow, the Prince plays Jack, and Rapunzel plays the Giant.

Linda Wickert's play wove a magic spell over the audience as the cast of thousands (or so it seemed) interrupted the rehearsal for Jack and the Beanstalk, demanding parts in the play. The fairy tale characters aren't who we would expect them to be ... you might say, they're out of character and their true personalities are quite surprising. Who would expect Rapunzel to play a fierce giant, or Papa Bear to play a cow? David Langham played a great Papa Bear playing a cow. He had some great one-liners, even though the stage manager constantly reminded him, "You have no lines. You're a cow."

"Jack and the Beanstalk...A parody" played at the Novi Civic Center last weekend.

And never in our wildest dreams would we expect kindly Little Red Riding Hood (played by Alexandra Malloy) to be a selfish, sugaraholic. Red ate sweets from her basket of goodies as she roamed the forest with Jack and his girlfriend, Goldilocks (played by Ashlee Miller).

Goldilocks had convinced the stage manager that Jack needed a girlfriend to make the play more in the '90s. Why not? Sleeping Beauty (played by Amy Modica) was a tomboy who liked to climb trees and had to check her daily planner before making date with her fairy godmother (played by Cindy Gontko).

Jack also meets Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs while taking his cow to market. He momentarily forgets he's supposed to be Jack and not a Prince and wakes Snow White up with a kiss. She decides to leave the forest and travel with Jack and his friends, leaving the dwarfs to find another princess who will clean their house and bake them sugar cookies.

Snow White (played by Michelle Roberts) does a terrific job playing an overzealous, very talkative person who tells Jack she's "good with group dynamics" and wants to help Red Riding Hood, who she says "is dealing with some very strong issues." This is definitely not your typical Snow White character.

None of the fairy tale characters from Linda Wicker's play Jack and the Beanstalk ... a Parody are typical fairy tale characters, and that's what makes this such an outstanding play. Where else would we find 52 of the most famous fairy tale characters together on a stage, entertaining kids of all ages? It also gave us a glimpse at the mechanics of putting a production together, something Linda Wickert has done for the past four years.

Novi Theatres is a Novi Parks and Recreation Program approaching its fifth year. This past season has been one of its most successful with the The Golden Goose, The Adventures of Stuart Little and The Miracle Worker all total sellouts at the box office.

Auditions for the Children's Annex Fall production of The Lion, the Witch and the Wardrobe will be Aug. 22 at 4 p.m.

Auditions for the Novi Theatres' Performance Plus Production (ages 13 and up) of You're a Good Man Charlie Brown will be held Aug. 29 and 31 at 7:30 p.m. All auditions will be held at the Novi Civic Center.

Don't forget that tonight is the last "Sounds of Summer" concert. The Novi Concert Band will perform tonight at 7 p.m. outside of the Civic Center (inside in case of rain). Novi's own community band will be playing semi-classical, marches and show tunes.

Summer time is posion ivy season

Mary Ann Komarynski

Summer is poison ivy season. What does a reaction to poison ivy look like? The eruptions occur in streaks or patches of redness and blisters one to two days after exposure and are seen on skin areas that may have been in contact with the leaves of the plant.

Poison ivy is found throughout North America. More than 50 percent of the population is sensitive to the oil of this plant. Poison oak and poison sumac cause similar reactions.

The rash can last up to two weeks. Treatment reduces the symptoms of itching but does not cure the rash. The best approach is prevention.

Home treatment consists of the following:

- Cool soaks – Soak the rash area in cold water or massage it with an ice cube for 20 minutes as often as necessary. Let the area air-dry after the soaking or massage. This will reduce the itching.
- Steroid creams – Over-the-counter strength 1 percent hydrocortisone cream applied three to four times daily can also reduce the itching.
- Cleanliness – To avoid secondary infection, cut fingernails short, keep them clean and discourage scratching. The sores should be dried up and no longer itchy within 10 to 14 days.

The fluid from the sores themselves is not contagious. However, oil or sap from the poison ivy plant may remain on a pet's fur or on items such as clothes or shoes. The oil or sap is contagious for about a week. Be sure to wash it off clothes or pets with soap and water.

Learn to recognize the poison ivy plant; it has three large green leaves on each stem. Another clue is shiny black spots on damaged leaves – the plant sap turns black when exposed to air.

If you suspect you've had contact with poison ivy, immediately wash the exposed skin with soap several times, because after one hour it is too late to prevent absorption of the oil into the skin.

For the best prevention, wear long pants and socks when walking through woods that may contain poison ivy.

Call your doctor if: you develop a rash on your face, eyes or lips; the itching interferes with sleep; any big blisters develop; the rash becomes open and oozing; or signs of infection occur, such as pus or soft yellow scabs.

The Northville High tennis team will be conducting its tryouts on Aug. 14. Players are to report to the high school courts from 9 to 11 a.m

STING

The under 10 Northville Sting '85 finished second in the U11 competitive division at the 16th annual Michigan Wolverine Tournament at Schoolcraft College last month.

Northville outscored their five opponents 23-9 during the three-day event. The Sting shutout Fraser Thunder 8-0 and the Farmington Bandits 8-0 on day one of the tournament. A loss to the Saints Blue Devils '84 from Lawrence, Indiana, 5-2, set the stage for the Sting's semi-final showdown with Division A winner Novi Jaguars.

The Sting stunned Novi with a 3-0 victory to propel them into the finals and a rematch against the Saints Blue Devils. Tied for most of the game, the Blue Devils broke a 2-2 tie with a direct free kick just outside the Sting's 18-yard-line with seven minutes to go in the game. Moments later, the Blue Devils slipped through the Sting's defense and scored again for the 4-2 victory.

Northville wins one, drops two in series

Northville then mounted a second, what turned out to be fatal, attack against Jackson in the second inning.

After loading the bases, Eric Arnold walked to force in a run. Two more runs followed on a ground out by Bingley and wild pitch by hurler McCoy.

Meanwhile, Northville's Jack Broderick was rock-solid on the mound. He struck out a pair of Mississippi batter in the second to preserve his team's 4-1 lead.

The right hander worked out of trouble in the third and held the 96ers at bay until the sixth.

Still down 4-1, Jackson rallied. With runners at second and third base, Bert McPhail knocked a run home with a ground ball. A second run came in on a double by Joe Zimmerman.

Samhat said he almost pulled Broderick in the sixth, but stuck with him on the urging of team members.

"He was worn out," said Samhat, "but he didn't want to come out."

The pitcher responded by forcing a ground then striking out Aaron Geralds to avoid further damage.

That was it for Broderick, though. He threw a 110 pitches, a high number, in six innings of work.

"He really did a good job," Samhat said.

Joe Willey came on to pitch the seven. He shut the door on Jackson and got the save.

"He pitched in all three of our tournament games," Samhat said.

The coach said it was a huge win for Northville.

"It was nice to get a win in the World Series," said Samhat. "That's hard to do."

that baseball would likely be a far cry from what fans are used to seeing at Tiger Stadium.

The CBL would feature Class "A" baseball.

The minor leagues are divided into progressively more difficult levels, with "A" being the lowest rung. Double A is next highest and triple A is the last stop before the major leagues.

Most minor league teams are affiliated with a major league organization. Players are developed for the big ball clubs by working out the kinks in the minors.

The Detroit Tigers, for example, have minor league teams in Ohio and Florida, as well as other states.

The CBL wouldn't carry that affiliation. As an independent it would be able to sell its players to any major league team that was interested.

Most single A baseball leagues stock their teams with players just out of high school or college. These players are generally considered "prospects" to eventually make the major league team.

The CBL would likely be stocked with players left unsigned or released by major league organizations...

Believe it or not, the high school fall sports season is almost upon us. The football team has already begun practice with conditioning camp this week. Most other teams will begin practicing next week...

The Mustangs open with South Lyon on the road on Friday, Sept. 1. According to Farmington Hills Harrison coach John Herrington, the Lions are the team to beat in Class A.

REAL ESTATE

Introducing RIN

(Realtors Information Network)

By James M. Woodard
Copley News Service

The most far-reaching and comprehensive information system within the real estate industry will be launched this year. And it will directly affect professionals and consumers.

The Realtors Information Network (RIN) is scheduled for national implementation in November Regional test-pilot sites recently began operating.

RIN is designed to make finding and acquiring property a more efficient process. It's basically a national database, where Realtors and consumers can access information on listed homes or other properties at any point in the country

But the system will do more than function as a nationwide multiple listing service.

It will provide electronic access to related service providers, such as title companies, mortgage lenders, appraisers and pest-control firms.

The concept reminds me of the role of my father during his 35 years as a physician in Iowa He was a general practitioner — a family doctor

Regardless of a patient's precise medical need, the family would always communicate with my father first. He would either take care of their need directly, or facilitate access of needed specialized medical care.

The RIN system is being structured to serve a somewhat similar role in the real estate industry. It will provide immediate information on requested types of properties. And it will access detailed data in such areas as currently available mortgage terms or title insurance costs.

When certain services or products are selected, RIN will electronically generate application forms and other documents needed to activate the services

RIN is being structured by a private corporation owned by the National Association of Realtors. It's divided into two basic networks — a blue and green network

The blue network is for real estate professionals. The green network is primarily for consumers, providing searchable information on properties, communities, profiles of area professionals, etc.

In a sense RIN is a network of networks, similar to the Internet.

The big Dagitz is ideal for large or extended family

James McAlexander
Copley News Service

The impressively sized Dagitz contains 3,964 square feet that can fill the living needs of a large traditional or extended family This three-bedroom, two-story (actually three with the fully utile basement) home has something for everyone

The brick and wood exterior's promise is fulfilled from the moment you step into this spacious home The glass block wall on the entry filters sunlight throughout the foyer The first floor contains a huge living room with windows on three sides, and a corner fireplace where the family can congregate late in the day to enjoy television or perhaps a board game.

For the plant lovers in the household, a sky-lit solarium, with windows everywhere, rises the full two stories

The expansive kitchen will make any cook happy. The walk-through design allows meals to be served informally at the long eating bar or in the nearby breakfast nook Sunny days might suggest a brunch on the fully accessible deck More formal occasions merit the use of the dining room A large walk-in pantry and freezer make storage a snap

A full bath serves the first floor, and a central stairway leads up to the second floor or down to the basement

The second floor houses the sleeping areas. At one end are two identical bedrooms, each with a spacious closet An adjacent bathroom, with twin vanities and a convenient utility room, fill the rest of this wing

On the opposite end is the capacious master suite. Boasting its own fireplace, walk-in closet and huge bathroom with twin vanities just outside, this suite takes up one entire end of the second floor.

Directly across from the solarium is a book lover's dream, a library withbook shelves everywhere and a secluded atmosphere in which to enjoy them

The full basement completes this remarkable home With room for a shop, wine cellar, office and recreation room for the more lively family activities, the Dagitz offers an unqualified living experience

FOOD FOR ENTERTAINMENT

Local farmer's markets provide fun with fruits and veggies

By Matthew Bach
STAFF WRITER

Howell resident Judy Crawford and her 2 1/2-year-old daughter, Grace Ann, can be found most Sunday mornings strolling along the Howell Farmer's Market looking for fresh veggies and in general just having a good time.

"I think it's real education for my daughter and it's cheap entertainment for the family," Judy said. "Anytime you can get produce straight off the farm, it's better."

Senior citizen Betty Boutell also is a regular at the Howell Farmer's Market and enjoys the good buys and great produce.

"I like to see all the people," Boutell said. "Everything is fresh here. The fruit and vegetables are better here than they are in the stores. In the stores you don't know how long they've been there."

Families like the Crawfords and more experienced shoppers like Boutell make up the largest part of the customer base for the farmer's markets in the area.

Howell and South Lyon are newcomers to the farmer's market environment both being only half way through their second summer season, while Brighton and Northville are veterans each having markets for over 10 years. Brighton is in the

With proper care, bonsai with thrive

By C.Z. Guest
Copley News Service

GARDENING

Q. I was given a bonsai dish garden with very little information on its care. I spritz the foliage, but it seems extremely dry. Thanks for your information.

A. A proper watering routine is the most important single factor in successful cultivation of bonsai. More bonsai die from inadequate watering than from any other cause.

Watering is best done from above using a watering can, and the best time for it is in the evening after the sun has gone down.

This means that moisture remains in the soil and is available to the roots overnight and well into the morning, whereas if watering is done in the morning, the soil could dry out completely within a few hours.

Bonsai that are not fed may survive but will not thrive Granules (fertilizer) are the best choice as they take three to four weeks to break down, and each time the bonsai is watered a little more fertilizer is dissolved.

The basic requirements for potting soil are that it should have good drainage to prevent roots from rotting in waterlogged soil, but should retain enough moisture to supply the roots adequately

Always remember to take into account the composition and texture of the soil when watering and feeding, particularly to make sure that it does not either drain too quickly or hold water and become too damp, as either a too wet or too dry soil will cause root damage.

Establish the routine for feeding and watering as I've suggested and your bonsai will thrive. The amount of water and nutrients that you must supply also depends on the quality of the potting soil. The more moisture-retentive the soil mixture, the less water and feed is needed and vice versa.

Q. I have a pot of four areca palms that once sprouted leaves the length of the trunks but now have only a few at the tops. The seller told me to water the

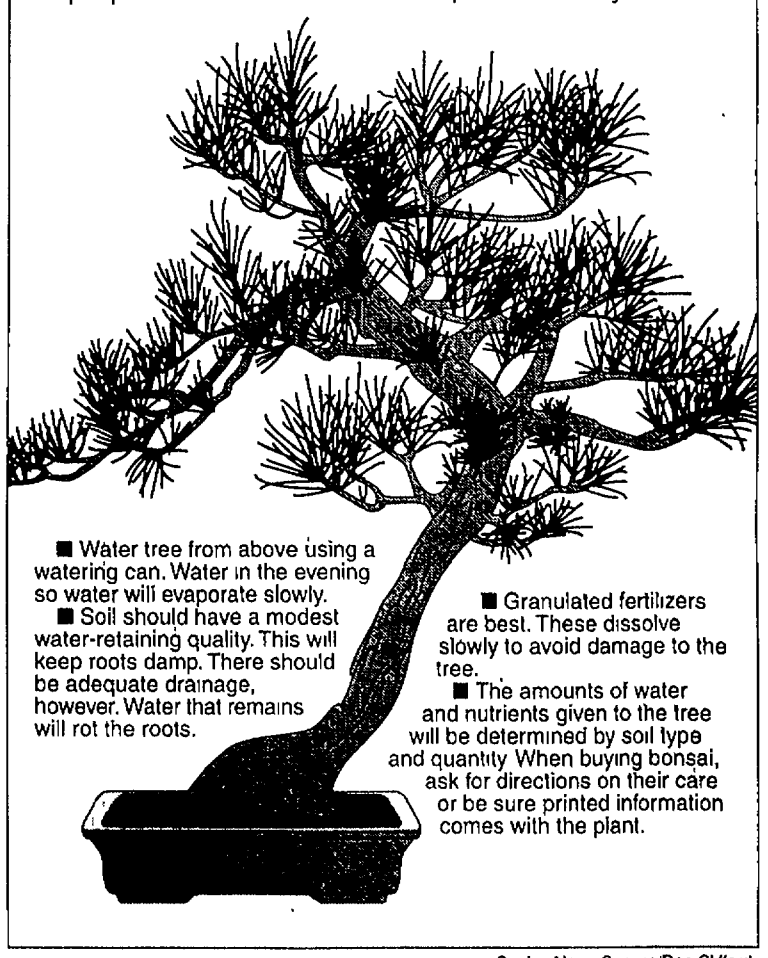
Best for bonsai

Most bonsai die from inadequate watering or from improper soils. Consider these tips for healthy trees:



■ Water tree from above using a watering can. Water in the evening so water will evaporate slowly.
■ Soil should have a modest water-retaining quality. This will keep roots damp. There should be adequate drainage, however. Water that remains will rot the roots.
■ Granulated fertilizers are best. These dissolve slowly to avoid damage to the tree.
■ The amounts of water and nutrients given to the tree will be determined by soil type and quantity When buying bonsai, ask for directions on their care or be sure printed information comes with the plant.

Vinyl can be painted; storm window moisture

By Gene Gary
Copley News Service

Q. I am in the process of repainting our home, which has a vinyl gutter system. I would like to paint the gutters to match the house. Is this advisable?

A.Vinyl can be successfully painted, but once you paint it will be like any other painted surface, subject to maintenance and repainting regularly.

If you do decide to paint vinyl, use a top-quality acrylic latex paint and a vinyl siding paint primer. Consult your paint dealer for recommended products.

The surface should be thoroughly cleaned prior to painting.A recommended step in painting preparation is to wipe down the surface with denatured alcohol (the fumes are toxic).Do not paint the interior of the gutter.

For homeowners considering a paint job for vinyl siding rather than just the gutters, a light color is recommended.Dark paint, applied to any material has a greater chance of fading, plus dark colors attract heat.If a siding is painted darker than the original color, it will absorb more heat and tend to buckle.

Q.How do you get the moisture out of storm windows. I have double-pane windows that are fogging up in between the panes of glass. Can this be corrected, or must they be replaced?

HERE'S HOW

If you do decide to paint vinyl, use a top-quality acrylic latex paint and a vinyl siding paint primer

A.Unfortunately, the window panes will have to be replaced. In commercially produced double-paned glass windows, repairing a faulty seal is not a do-it-yourself job.

The process involves removing the existing seal, cleaning out the edge joints and cleaning the panes.Most insulated windows have a spacer around the edges between the panes that contains a desiccate to absorb residual moisture. If the seal fails, the desiccate becomes ineffective and must be replaced.Finally the window must be reassembled and the edge joints sealed.

There is usually a warranty that covers window seal failure, ranging from 5 to 20 years, depending on the manufacturer. Keep this in mind when shopping for replacements, and keep your sales receipt so you can seek restitution if the panes fail within the warranty period.

Q. We recently moved into a "new" home. The kitchen windows, facting west, apparently have had a film applied to the inside. The film is dirty, probably from the kitchen atmosphere. Is there a safe way to clean this film, or it there a good method of removing it?

A.Film covered windows need special attention when cleaning, but it is not difficult. Use a solution of white vinegar mixed in water. Use a soft cloth to bath the window with this solution, or put the solution into a spay bottle for application. Use another clean, dry soft cloth to dry and polish the window. I recommend diapers for this job.

Any rough surface, even paper towels, will tend to scratch the film during the cleaning and drying process. If the film is scratched or marred you may want to remove it.

This is a simple job. To fairly hot water add a dish detergent. Sponge the window surface with this warm, sudsy water and allow to soak 20 to 30 minutes. The enzymes of the soap will loosen the adhesive.Use a razor blade (three- to four-inch blades are available from janitorial supply houses)to scrape the film from the window.

Usually it will peel away in large strips. Be careful not to scratch the window pane in the scraping process.If you have any glue residue remaining on the window glass, use an adhesive removal product such as Goo Off or De-Solve-It (available in supermarkets, home centers) to completely clean the glass.

Do not use solvents on the plastic film coating. They will simply create a sticky, smeared surface, instead of film removal.

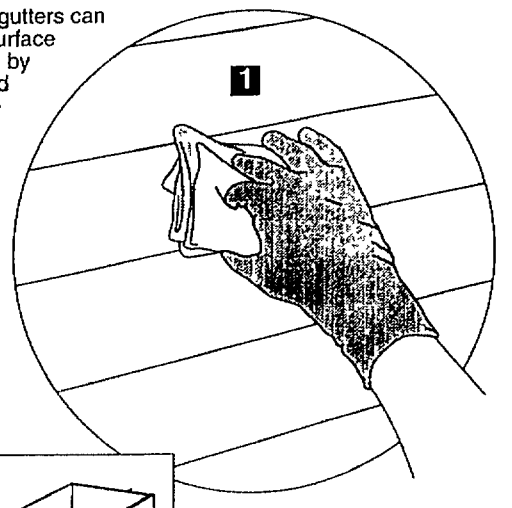
One of our readers writes:

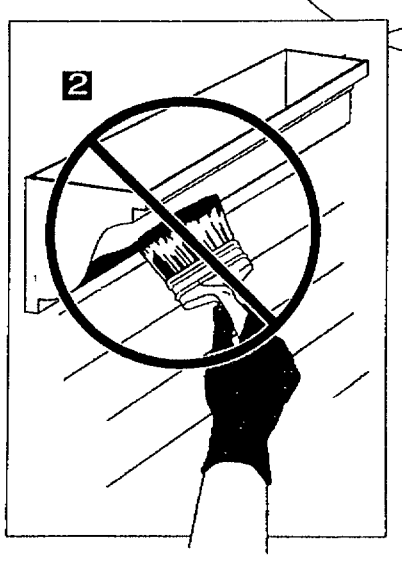
I read your column regarding sash-type windows that stick and are hard to open. Your answer was good for windows that have been painted shut For sash-type windows that are somewhat tight, that swell and are difficult to open, or for windows where leverage is needed, like over the sink, there is a gadget call the "Window Tamer." This is a wood-constructed lever device.I have used this to quickly and easily open the most stubborn windows. It costs about $25. For information write Window Tamer, P.O. Box 1692, Mitchellville, MD 20717.

Painting vinyl siding and gutters

■ Vinyl siding and gutters can be painted, but the surface must be clean. Clean by wiping with denatured alcohol (note that the fumes are toxic)1.

■ Use good quality acrylic latex paint and a vinyl primer. Do not paint the inside of gutters





■ Do not paint the siding or gutters much darker than the original color, as the additional heat from sunlight may buckle the vinyl2.

■ Once painted, vinyl will need to be repainted periodically like other painted exterior surfaces

INTRODUCING RIN (Realtors Information Network)

But RIN is dedicated to services related to real estate transactions.

While most Realtors are optimistic about the emerging new system, some are taking a "wait-and-see" approach.

"RIN has some great plans, but I'm waiting till after the initial testing is completed before assessing its value," said Realtor Kris Vaughn-Haza.

"I want to see how consumers and Realtors accept this system before making personal judgment. There are many questions that need to be asked and answered," she said. "However, it opens an exciting new frontier, and the next generation of home buyers and sellers will be much more computer-use minded than we are."

Realtor Saul Klei is convinced it will be a valuable and timely service.

"I've looked at RIN close up and believe it will be the most valuable real estate service ever. It will serve to keep Realtors in the center of the flow of information in real estate transactions," Klei said.

Bill Chee, a past NAR president, said: "The concept of RIN has turned an ambiguous theoretical idea into a workable reality."

Q. I've been told a person seeking a home to purchase should only work with a "buyer's broker," not a broker who legally represents the property seller. Is that true?

A. Most brokers who prospective buyers call about a possible home purchase are agents or subagents of the seller (owner). But that doesn't mean a buyer can't receive good, professional service from that broker.

A competent broker will render professional service to both buyers and sellers, regardless of who they technically represent. That's the only way the broker can carve out a successful long-term career with a growing number of referrals and repeat clients.

If they don't serve all parties competently, the resulting negative reputation will soon force them to drop out of the business. It's a competitive field, and reputations (good and bad) spread rapidly within regional marketing areas.

Q. Why must I, as a homeowner, pay my mortgage lender a large sum each month for my impound account?

A. Impounds, or reserve escrow payments, are required in many cases to assure the lender that funds will be available to pay property taxes and insurance premiums when they are due.

However, a new rule by the Department of Housing and Urban Development bars lenders from keeping more than two months worth of advance payments. So they may be returning some of that money to you. But it may take awhile for your refund to work its way through the system. Don't spend it until you receive it.

Questions may be used in future columns; personal responses should not be expected. Send inquiries to James M. Woodard, Copley News Service, P.O. Box 190, San Diego, CA 92112-0190.

pot once every three weeks. I've begun watering more often.

Are there any revival techniques? Fertilizer? Banishment to a pot outdoors? (We've a somewhat shady back yard). Please help.

A. Your palm areca (chrysalido ocarpus lutescens) needs full shade and must never be dry, yet not constantly soaking wet. No feeding is needed until pots are full of roots. Palms are great houseplants if given shade, but full light, and are not subjected to dry, hot rooms in winter.

Palms are relatively easy to manage as container plants, but when they become too large, it's better to discard them, replacing them with younger plants.

Potting media may vary but should provide a fair amount of organic matter. Perlite, sand, peat moss, ordinary topsoil, wood shavings, rotted leaves or other substances may be used in various combinations as preferred to make up an adequate medium, which should be light and open. Good drainage is essential — 1 inch of gravel in the bottom of a large container.

Transplanting to other pots should be undertaken in spring or summer when the roots are active, but one should not overpot for risk of inhibiting growth.

In summer in your area, potted palms may be plunged in soil outdoors in partial shade in a spot well protected from wind. Fertilize during the growing season (spring) every two weeks.

Wind-up Popeye toy is a real sweet pea

By Anne McCollam
Copley News Service

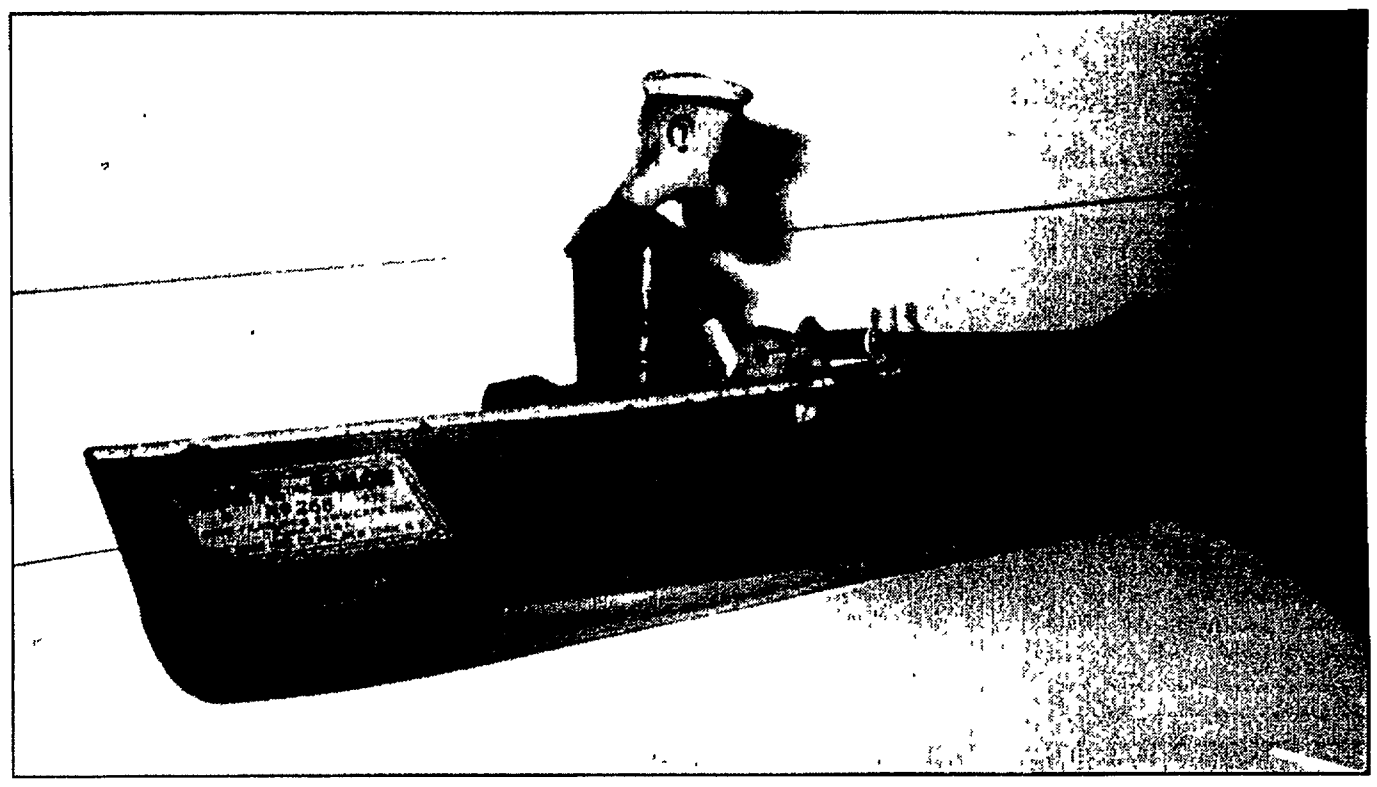
ANTIQUES

Q. Enclosed is a photo of a wind-up toy that I received as a gift in 1935. There is a label on the side of the boat with the words "Popeye the Sailor — The Hoge Mfg. Co — 1935." The boat is 14 inches long by 5 inches wide and still runs.

Does my Popeye figure and boat have any value?

A "Popeye the Sailor" was introduced in a comic strip in 1929. He made his film debut in an animated cartoon in 1932 Even today he continues to be a popular icon of Americana.

Your Popeye figure and boat were made around 1935. It would probably be worth about $2,200 in good condition



This Popeye the Sailor figure and boat made in the mid-1930s is worth about $2,200.

Q. This mark is on a set of china that was given to us by an aunt. She received it as a gift 50 years ago. It is a 70-piece service for 10.

What can you tell us about when and where our china was made?

EDWIN M. KNOWLES CHINA CO.
MADE IN U. S. A.
40-2

22 Karat Gold
Made In America

A. Edwin M Knowles China, East Liverpool, Ohio, was in business from 1901 to 1963. Their marks provide a thorough dating system that enables a collector to discover when a specific piece was made

For example, pieces marked "22 Karat Gold" and the words "Made in the U S A" were used after 1930 The five center diamonds on the crosshatching on the vase indicate this mark was used in the 1940s Nos. "40-2" represent February 1940 Although the gold trim is real gold, it does not add greatly to its value

Your dinnerware set was made in February 1940 It would probably be worth about $225 to $250 in good condition

Q. I have a "Nancy Ann Storybook" doll. She is made of hard plastic, has sleep-eyes and jointed limbs. The clothes are original and I still have the box.

Could you please tell me what my doll is worth?

A The Nancy Ann Storybook Dolls Co., San Francisco, was founded in 1941. Dolls with sleep-eyes were made from 1952 to 1970.

The value of your doll with the original clothes and box would probably be about $45.

Q. I have a dark-blue rectangular pottery bowl. On the bottom are the words "Bennington Potters — Bennington — Vermont — 1873 — d g." It measures 14 inches.

Could you please tell me its approximate age and value?

A. Bennington Potters was founded by Alfred University graduate David Gil, in 1948 in Bennington, Vt. Stoneware and semiporcelain pieces are still being produced there today.

The number is a mold number and the letters "d g" are the initials of the artist. Your mid-20th century pottery bowl would probably be worth about $35 to $45

Q. When my wife's aunt passed away we received a small pitcher. It is marked on the bottom "Doulton — Lambeth — England." On one side of the pitcher is the profile of a man with the letters "ER." A profile of a woman and the letters "AR" are on the other side.

Is our pitcher of any value?

A. You have a British royalty commemorative pitcher. It was made by Doulton & Co., Lambeth, England. The profile is of King Edward VII, who reigned from 1901 to 1910. The letters ER mean Edward Rex, i.e., King Edward. The female image is of his wife Alexandra. AR mean Alexandra Reginia, i.e., Queen Alexandra.

Your pitcher would probably be worth about $65 to $75.

Q. In 1936, my cousin and I attended the Olympics in Berlin. I still have one of the Olympic programs. It lists all the events for Aug. 4, 1936, including polo, track, swimming and diving. My program is in good shape.

Could you please give me an estimate of its worth?

A. Your 1936 program would probably be worth about $50 to $75.

Local farmer's markets provide fun with fruits and veggies

midst of its 17th season

Despite the age difference, the markets have similar goals - to offer fresh produce grown locally and provide a family atmosphere that attracts people of all ages

Two weeks ago the Howell, South Lyon and Brighton markets had special activities In Brighton, horse-drawn carriage rides made their debut. Howell featured children's activities and a classic car show, and South Lyon sold goods in conjunction with the city's sidewalk sales called, Gala Days

"It's more than a market it's an event," said Kim Kizyma, manager for the Howell Farmers Market "That's kind of our theme."

"It's community event," said Karen Rogers, director of the Brighton Farmer's Market. "People enjoy to come to get fresh goods and they enjoy meeting people."

After starting with about 30 spaces when it began 17 years ago, the Brighton Farmer's Market now rents 100 produce and arts and crafts booths each Saturday. The market is located in the Brighton City Hall parking lot near the Imagination Station playground

"(The market) is definitely for the entire family especially with Imagination Station now there" Rogers said

The Northville Farmer's Market is slightly smaller than Brighton's market with 65 booths and 30 to 35 vendors, said Roxanne Koche, of the Northville Community Chamber of Commerce.

Most of the markets are successful in attracting people to their respective downtown districts.

"The purpose (of the Howell market) was to showcase Howell and bring people into downtown area to perhaps get them to go to the area restaurants and shop at area stores," Kizyma said.

"We get people who come and eat breakfast downtown," Rogers said "We get a lot of people who are staying in local campgrounds vacationing and a good portion are local people. It's also a nice place for the holidays, especially Mother's Day"

Kizyma said the Howell market began last year at the request of the community and the response has been tremendous Howell has about 55 vendors each Sunday and draws in hundreds of people.

"It's gone very well," Kizyma said. "It's something the community has asked for and responded well to. We certainly see it as a staple for the community and something that will be here for years to come."

The response in South Lyon, however, has been less than desired. The market, which is open 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. Fridays, has had difficulty attracting customers and keeping a steady number of vendors, said Peggy Hall, coordinator of the market

"People will not stop and shop there," Hall said. "I'm thinking about giving up. We have that problem in town even with the regular businesses. It hurts a lot of business. It's sad."

While customers may like the fresh produce and handmade products offered at the markets, vendors in some of the markets like the large, friendly crowds that come out each weekend.

"We enjoy the people," said Pat Pelzer, who runs a food booth with her husband, Jim Pelzer, Hartland.

Dave and Linda Burton, Howell, have sold their cactus in pots handmade and hand painted by Dave for several years in a farmer's market in Detroit. Now they sell solely during the Howell market and love it.

"We find this market is just as good as the Detroit Eastern Market was," Dave said. "And it's a lot nicer environment here. It's more relaxed. ...I don't feel like I got people looking over my shoulder."

Some vendors, like the Pelzers and Burtons, go to farmer's markets as part of their profession, others, like Howell resident Al DeMars, do it as a hobby more than a business.

DeMars operated a "go-go bar" in Detroit until 1964 when he was seriously injured during a robbery of his business. Now, he operates Al's Shelves 'N Stuff and goes to the markets in Howell and Brighton selling handmade wood shelves, mirrors with wood frames, coat racks and lanterns.

"It's a hobby and I make vacation money," DeMars said. "Everyday I meet somebody. It passes the time and it keeps me out of trouble."

CORRECTION

The Prestwick Village Golf Community operates under the same management as it always has, despite information suggesting otherwise in last week's story "Go fore it: New development combines golf with living." There has been no change of management.

U.S. Savings Bonds are helping millions of Americans save for their retirement — easily and safely.

When you buy U.S. Savings Bonds, you'll know your money will be there when you retire. Your investment is backed by the full faith and credit of the United States.

U.S. Savings Bonds are an easy, affordable way to save. Buy them for just a few dollars each payday through your employer's U.S. Savings Bonds Payroll Savings Plan or for as little as $25 each at your bank. What could be easier?

There are other advantages, too. The interest earned is exempt from state and local income taxes, and it can be federally tax-deferred. Bonds earn a guaranteed return, and they're eligible to earn competitive, market-based interest, compounded semiannually, when held five years or more. And you can redeem them anytime after six months from the issue date.

Whatever your plans for retirement, U.S. Savings Bonds can help you enjoy them. For more information, ask your employer or bank, or write: U.S. Savings Bonds Division, Department of the Treasury, Box 933 N, Washington, DC 20226.

Taking over craft store like starting from scratch

By ANNE SEEBALDT GOGOLIN
Special Writer

Looking at her well-stocked, organized and attractive store, it's hard to believe that when Pat Papke revived Create-a-Craft, it was almost like starting from scratch.

After hearing that the business was for sale, Papke, a Hartland resident and a regular customer, wondered where she and others would paint or do crafting work.

She asked her husband, Owen, "Why don't we buy it?"

The Highland-based craft supply and instruction business reopened in June 1994 at 1550 S. Milford Road as PJ's Create-a-Craft, about two months after they purchased it. Papke had a few hurdles to overcome first.

"It went fast," she recalled. "We had to do a lot of work."

In the past, Create-a-Craft didn't always have regular hours, so getting the word out that they are open regularly was and is important to Papke's business.

"The hours will continue to be consistent," she said.

Finding instructors was less difficult. Fortunately, most of the teachers who worked for the former owner were still available.

She added more classes and instructors. Papke said that classes, particularly those which involve "painting in the different media – oil, acrylic, watercolor, and fabric painting," are a vital part of her business.

In order to properly stock the supplies, Papke had to order enough items for a whole new store. Brushes for acrylic, oil, and water-base paints, wood supplies, stencil materials, painting books, pattern packets, basket-making supplies (such as reeds and cutting tools), resin to make molded figures and decorative items, as well as the materials for their extensive classes are arranged in an orderly fashion. Papke explained that she dislikes cluttered display areas and is working on making extra wall space available for the examples of finished class work.

PJ's Create-a-Craft has regular schedule of classes, which is mailed out to patrons every two months. "You also can call or come in to get the schedule," Papke said.

PJ's Create-a-Craft has three classroom areas. The largest of the three typically is used for basket classes and is a spacious room decorated with a large variety of basket samples made by the regular instructor. The May-June class list included making a stand-up Christmas tree, basic knitting, making a Harvest Holiday Scarecrow, stamping, and numerous painting classes.

"Most of the classes we do are called decorative tole painting," Papke said. tole painting initially meant painting on tin, but its meaning has expanded to include other surfaces.

Children's classes are conducted on a regular basis and usually take place on Saturdays. Open painting sessions take place from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. in the fall each Tuesday. Summer class hours are 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

Call 810-887-5445 for more information.

Pat Papke, of PJ's Create-a-Craft in Highland, holds classes not only for the "how to" but also for the socializing.

HAVE YOU HEARD THE NEWS?

AMERITECH CELLULAR IS COMING TO BRIGHTON!

Ameritech is the foremost leader in telecommunications, linking 143,000 calls worldwide every minute of every day. Due to our continued expansion, we are opening a new store in Brighton & are seeking talented individuals to take on these key roles:

CUSTOMER CONSULTANTS
•Retail•

As a member of the Ameritech team, you'll capitalize on your strong interpersonal & customer contact skills as you develop & maintain a walk-in customer base as well as meet sales quotas. Selected candidates will possess an Associate's Degree or a minimum of 2 years related work experience, basic PC skills & a solid understanding of cellular & paging services.

ADMINISTRATIVE ASSISTANTS

Capitalize on your strong organizational & prioritization skills as you provide administrative/general office support to our new store! To qualify, you must possess a High School Diploma (or equivalent); 2-3 years work experience; & basic knowledge of a word processing computer package—MS Word & Excel preferred. We seek strong communicators with excellent math skills & proven problem-solving abilities to work in our fast-paced, high-pressure environment. The ability to handle confidential material & maintain a high level of professionalism required. Some overtime may be necessary.

TECHNICIANS

Your 2 years installation experience (directly related to mobile communications) will enable you to properly repair/install all brands of cellular phone equipment, both currently stocked & customer owned Strong interpersonal skills are a must, as you will work directly with customers to determine their system needs & troubleshoot problems. In addition, you will also file warranty claims to manufacturers for payment & keep inventory/order equipment & accessories Requirements include: Basic Electronics—AC/DC Theory coursework, ability to be trained & qualified by cellular telephone manufacturers for warranty repair; basic PC skills; & proven customer service abilities

Ameritech offers a competitive salary (plus commission for Customer Consultant positions) along with comprehensive benefits in a professionally encouraging environment. For immediate consideration, please forward your resume with salary history, indicating position of interest, to AMERITECH CELLULAR, Attn: Human Resources, 32255 Northwestern Hwy., Farmington Hills, MI 48334. NO PHONE CALLS PLEASE. Nonsmoking Environment Equal Opportunity Employer M/F/D/V

632 In Memoriam

IN loving memory of my Dad, Gerald Sixbey, who passed over on August 6, 1994. Your kindness, generosity, humor and charm are sorely missed by your family and friends From you I learned the power of vision and dreams I learned to value honesty, justice and compassion. You taught me to strive for the good of all, to take responsibility for myself, my community, and the world in which we live And, to have fun! Thanks Dad I miss your counsel, your friendship, our spirited discussions. In love there is no separation, you remain with us always I look forward to the time we walk this earthly path together again. In love and appreciation of you, we fondly hold you in our hearts Your Daughter, Chen M. Sixbey
