Walkaway guilty of car theft crime

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

The Northville State Hospital patient who stole a Northville Township resident's car last fall will learn what his penalty will be for auto theft today.

James Hill, 45, was convicted Tuesday of the felony charge after pleading guilty. He will find out today what his sentence for the crime will be in Detroit Records Court. Auto theft carries a penalty in Michigan of up to five years in prison.

Hill walked away from Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital on Oct. 11, 1994. Minutes after being reported missing by hospital personnel the former Ecorse resident stole a car belonging to a township man who lives near the hospital grounds.

The man had left his car running in his driveway while he went inside to get a jacket, Detective Fred Yankee said, and Hill then happened along and made his getaway.

He remained at large for more than nine months but was arrested July 20 in Detroit for breaking and entering. A computer check revealed the township warrant for Hill's arrest. To date Hill remains unable to post the $25,000 bond set for him by the court and so remains in the Wayne County Jail.

Law catches up with group of teen pranksters

Northville Township police arrested four teens for some late-night hijinx in the early morning hours of Aug. 14.

Homeowners on Woodbend Drive, located off Eight Mile east of Beck, called police at about 1:30 a.m. saying that someone was knocking on their doors, then leaving. An officer checked the area and soon spotted the four teens pulling a mailbox out of the ground in one man's yard.

When ordered to stop, they ran. Eventually the four were rounded up, including three Northville boys ages 16, 15 and 14. A 16-year-old Novi boy was also caught. All were charged with malicious mischief.

The Novi boy was also charged with violation of curfew and possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia after an officer allegedly found them in his car's glove box and rear cargo area. They were all released to their parents and face a hearing soon in 35th District Court.

MINIVAN STOLEN: A Silver Springs Drive woman's new Pontiac Transport minivan was stolen during the night of Aug. 18-19 and found two days later in Detroit.

The woman, 49, told township police that a radio-controlled airplane worth $3,500 was in the back of the van when it was taken. Police did not find it when the van was recovered in Detroit with its door lock punched out, ignition system damaged and battery missing. The van is valued $20,000.

SMOKES STASHED: Township police arrested a 41-year-old Detroit man for allegedly stuffing three cartons of cigarettes down his pants at Meijer Saturday night, then trying to leave the store without paying for them. He allegedly pushed a store detective who tried to detain him and faces a court hearing on larceny and assault charges Sept. 8 in district court.

LIQUOR IN PANTS: Township police arrested an 18-year-old Farmington Hills man for larceny at Meijer last Tuesday evening. Store detectives said they saw the man put two liquor bottles worth $16 down his pants, then try to leave the store without paying for them. The man faces a hearing on Sept. 5 in 35th District Court.

The day before officers arrested a 42-year-old Oak Park man and a 17-year Livonia boy for the same thing in unrelated cases. Store detectives said the man put a bottle of liquor worth $16.50 down his pants. The boy, they claimed, put an $18 bottle of vodka down his shorts. Both face Sept. 5 hearings in 35th District Court.

THE ENERGIZER THIEF: Township police arrested a 40-year-old Detroit man at Meijer Aug. 15 for allegedly stealing $1,150 worth of batteries. Store detectives said the man piled the batteries into a shopping cart, covered it with a duffel bag and then tried to leave the store without paying for any of them.

A computer check revealed five outstanding warrants for the man's arrest. He was held at police headquarters until Detroit police picked him up.

STOLEN VEHICLE: A 38-year-old Northville man reported his vehicle stolen from his driveway Aug. 18.

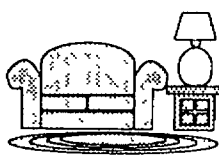

The man told police that he woke up at approximately 6 a.m. and heard his 1974 Chevy convertible running in his driveway

When he got out of bed to check on the vehicle, he saw an unknown subject driving the car northbound on River Street.

Police have no suspects or leads. The vehicle is worth an estimated $3,000.

Citizens with information on any of the above incidents are asked to call city police at 349-1234 or township police at 349-9400.

Domestic complaints proliferate

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

Current or former romantic relationships gone wrong led to local women filing a slew of complaints with Northville Township police this past week.

A 39-year-old Belleville woman told police on Sunday that her boyfriend's wife assaulted her at a night spot the night before.

The woman said that she and her beau ran into his wife, whom he is separated from, at the Seven Mile establishment and an argument soon ensued. She claimed the woman, 32, punched her in the mouth and threatened her sister in the parking lot.

The alleged attacker, a Westland resident, said she slapped the Belleville woman after being provoked. She alleged that the woman's sister grabbed her hair, threatened her and punched her in the ribs as well.

The Belleville woman told police she wants to press assault charges on the second woman.

A Northville resident called township police on Saturday to report her ex-boyfriend's repeated attempts to contact her.

The woman, 35, said that she had ended a two-week relationship with the Ann Arbor man on Aug. 13. He called her as many as nine times day ever since, the woman said, and left notes on her car as well. The man, 35, admitted to the behavior but said he realized now that things are over.

Another Northville woman told police that her ex-boyfriend had been bothering her for months, once even threatening to kill her.

He calls her at work, the woman said, and added that she believes he damaged her car and lawn earlier this summer. On one occasion he said that he "was going to kill her and her new boyfriend," police reports said.

The man denied the allegations, claiming instead that the woman has actually called him several times. A 22-year-old township woman said that her ex-boyfriend has been contacting her since they broke up six months ago despite her repeated protests. The latest incident, she said, occurred on Saturday night when he knocked on the windows of her home.

A Farmington woman working on an under-construction home in Northville told police that her ex-boyfriend assaulted her last Monday afternoon.

The woman, 24, said that the man, a 27-year-old Wixom resident, was working on the same job site that day. They broke up two years ago, the woman said, and were friends until he tried to get back together starting about six months ago.

On Aug. 14, she continued, they argued he took a rod and struck her in the forehead, causing bruises. She waited four days to file a police report, however, and had no visible bruises at the time the report was taken.

The man said that he was holding the rod when she approached him and in the course of the argument grabbed it.

When he released it, he continued, it flipped up and hit her in the head.

The woman declined to press charges for now

Calendars offered

For the tenth consecutive year the Northville PTA coordinating council has compiled and printed a calendar of school and community events.

This year's calendar includes school vacations and days off, PTA and PTA sponsored activities for each school, board of education meeting dates and times, school sponsored activities such as musical and art shows, school district events such as SAT, MEAP and CAT tests as well as report card distribution and conference dates and times for each school.

Also, this year numerous community activities will be included, with the Northville Community Recreation Center, the Northville Youth Forum and the Chamber of Commerce all represented.

PTA calendars will be available at each elementary and middle school office or at all open houses. Calendars are $4.

For information call Mary Rupley at 348-8739.

Hands on work

It's not easy returning to school after so many long, lazy days of summer, but learning by computer can take some of the sting out of it. Here, student Chris Mills gets in some keyboard practice at St. Paul's Lutheran School.

Safety first

Scenes like this will be played out at intersections throughout the district on Monday, the first half-day of school. Guard Debra Okarma showed good form on the first day back last year.

Immunization required

The Wayne County Department of Health has notified Northville Public Schools that each student file must contain proper immunization records as required by the state of Michigan.

Getting proper immunization for children gives them protection against various diseases. By requiring all students to be immunized, schools and communities statewide will be protected from outbreaks of contagious diseases.

State law and the Wayne County Immunization Code prohibit a principal or teacher from admitting children to school without the required immunizations.

Children cannot enter school without a record of one dose of: DPT, polio, measles, rubella, mumps, HIB. To stay in school children must complete all of the following required immunizations.

DTP or TD - Four or more doses (shots)

Diphtheria, tetanus, pertussis or tetanus, diphtheria Only three doses of TD are required if the series begins at 6 years of age or older. A booster dose is required if the series is completed under 4 years of age

Polio - Three or more doses

A booster dose is needed if the series is completed under 4 years of age.

Measles, rubella, mumps - Two doses

Given on or after the age of 12 months and at least one month apart, with at least one of the doses on or after 15 months of age

• Measles, mumps and rubella vaccines are routinely administered at 15 months. They must be repeated if given before the age of 12 months.

• Measles and mumps must be repeated if administered before Jan. 1, 1968

• Rubella must be repeated if administered before July 1, 1969.

• The only acceptable history of having had measles, mumps or rubella disease is current laboratory evidence of immunity. (HIB (Haemophilus Influenza-Type B)

• A complete series of any HIB for children under 15 months of age.

• One dose of any HIB for children 15 months through 5 years (60 months) of age.

• Applicable to Child Care Center, Preschool, Headstart programs only.

Records recommended for school

In order to protect students and parents from problems resulting from unknown health complications of students, the Northville Board of Education has adopted a policy recommending that all students enrolling in a middle school or high school for the first time (sixth graders at the middle schools and ninth graders at the high school) comply with the following:

• Have an immunization record, which may be obtained from the principal at any of the Northville Public Schools, signed by a physician verifying that the student has received a physical examination.

• Tuberculin testing is no longer required for school entry. However, it is recommended for children in high risk situations, such as contacts to known cases, etc

• If a health examination of your child is against your belief, then it is necessary that an objection (waiver) be submitted in writing and signed by a parent or guardian.

• A physical examination will be required each year for participation in sports activities.

Contact the Office of Instructional Services, (810) 344-8442, if you have any questions.

improve education for public school students in their community," King said.

King added that when participants return to their districts they will be able to initiate discussions that will result in decisions as to how each individual school district functions in the future.

Meads Mill is among 28 schools and districts chosen to present "break-the mold" policies, programs or services that improve education for students, according to King. The schools' methods of systemic change will be presented as models for other schools and districts to follow.

Northville Public School Superintendent Leonard Rezmierski said the district is happy to be taking part in the inaugural event.

"We're extremely honored that Meads Mill is one of the schools highlighted for this event," Rezmierski said. "We look forward to taking part and sharing information with other educators."

According to Dolly McMaster, Assistant Superintendent for Instructional Services, Meads Mill and Cooke middle schools are doing plenty to impact students.

"(Both) have a rich curriculum, with high expectations from the principal, teachers and parents," McMaster said. "The focus on learning and study skills are a major effort of the staff, and there is a major focus on staff development throughout the year to keep them aware of educational trends, both current and in the future."

McMaster said the systemic change towards the concept of middle school education - especially for parents - was "deliberate, purposeful, and just plain hard work."

"I attribute the success of Meads Mill and Cooke middle schools to the three-year study that took place between 1982 and 1985, and involved district parents" she said. "Our parents do their homework - they read literature, conducted their own investigations, and in the end, helped make the recommendations to the board favoring the middle school concept."

For "break the mold" characteristics to become a reality, McMaster added, a high degree of staff and parental involvement takes place in decision making.

"A tremendously active and supportive district and Parent Teacher Association structure supports innovation and risk taking," she said.

The education summit is sponsored by the Michigan Association of School Board's Foundation for Education Leadership, and will take place Sept. 19 in Lansing.

Twelve Oaks effort helps put money into schools

By SHARON CONDRON
Staff Writer

"Be True to Your School" is an innovative public relations program that allows Twelve Oaks' mall to work in cooperation with customers to earn money for Michigan's public and private schools.

Now through March 31, 1996, Twelve Oaks will be contributing a percentage of every dollar spent at the mall to Michigan schools. Shop at any store, catch a movie, dine or snack at any restaurant or specialty store - everything counts. Customers can take any and all of their receipts to any schoolhouse booth in the mall and have them earmarked for a specific school.

For every $200 accumulated, individual schools will earn one credit.

At the close of the program in March, school administrators will have the opportunity to shop for themselves and spend their accumulated credits on videos, videodiscs, computer software, books and other reference materials.

Materials will come from some of the largest and most respected school-library suppliers in the country. Among those vendors participating are National Geographic, PBS Video and Follett Library.

The mall will handle all the paperwork and the schools will be notified monthly of the number of credits they've earned. Schools can spend as they go or bank their credits until the end of the program.

"People are going to shop anyway," said Elaine Kah, Twelve Oaks' Marketing Director. "They might as well make their purchases help area schools."

Kah said Twelve Oaks is co-sponsoring the program with WXYZ, Channel 7, Lakeside and Fairlane malls are also offering the incentive program, which has been proven successful on the east coast.

"Be True to Your School" debuted in Washington D.C. four years ago. More than 300,000 receipts were turned in and amounted to 10,000 school supplies for schools in that area. Kah said

"We expect to contribute $250,000 to the program in the first year." Kah said about the mall which does millions of dollars in retail business every year.

"It's an ideal program," Kah said. "Each of our centers is part of the communities we serve, and we believe we have a responsibility to support our community."

"As family-oriented shopping centers we believe there's no better way to contribute to the community than by supporting our schools."

The program will kicked off Aug. 21 with a savings bond sweepstakes, rewarding back-to-school shoppers for giving to their schools. Shoppers can enter the drawing at any one of the schoolhouse booths. Three winners will be drawn at each mall on Oct. 2 for savings bonds valued at $5,000, $3,000 and $2,000.

"We really feel this is going to help and be a benefit," Kah said. "As long as it can help kids and education, it benefits everyone."

Mill Race Matters

Summer quickly turns to fall. Fall is the most popular month to visit Mill Race Village which remains open every Sunday from 1-4 p.m. through the end of October. Docents are on hand each Sunday afternoon to discuss and describe the historic buildings on the property. Visitation of the grounds can be done during any daylight hours, but buildings are open only for this short Sunday period.

During the Victorian Festival, this year Sept. 15-17, Mill Race expands its hours. The Village buildings will be open Saturday morning from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. and then on Sunday from 11 a.m. until 6 p.m.

Festival activities focus at Mill Race on Sunday with the traditional Victorian picnic occurring on the grounds. The event features a variety of activities geared to the entire family. Admission is free, but donations are always appreciated.

The village provides limited parking so why not maintain a Victorian mode of transportation and walk? Everyone is invited to participate. If you would like to help, plan or carry out picnic activities contact 348-1845, the Northville Historical Society office, to volunteer. Help is always needed.

This week, the Historical Society thanks Comerica Bank for its cash donation in honor of their customer Arthur Rockall. Thanks, Art, as well for thinking of us when asked to select a favorite charity.

The Historical Society also welcomes new office manager Barbara Dingwall. Barb takes over from Cheryl Gazlay who resigned to take on teaching responsibilities. Cheryl hopes to remain involved on the volunteer level with the organization. Barbara becomes the fourth person to serve as office manager for the organization as paid staff. Barbara resides in the city's historical district with her husband Bruce.

The primary fund-raising effort of the Northville Historical Society takes place on the final weekend in September, this year Sept. 29 and 30 at Northville Downs. The event is the high-quality, Juried Arts and Crafts Show For over 25 years the organization has provided opportunities for area residents to view and purchase the best handmade items available.

The show runs from 10 a.m. until 8 p.m. on Friday and 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. on Saturday. There is an admission charge.

Profits from the two-day event are used to continue to maintain and operate Mill Race Historic Village. In recent years this one event has provided over 50 percent of the operating revenue. Society proceeds come from admissions as well as booth rentals fees.

Again, volunteers can be used to assist with set up, clean up and show operation. This year Aletta Holmes and Betty Omar will organize the event. Call the office to volunteer to help.

The Plymouth Historical Museum is currently conducting a Civil War lecture series. Remaining in that series are: Aug. 24 - Ben Heller, student, "My Civil War Ancestors"; Sept. 7 - Bob Zaetta, history teacher, "Today's Images of the Civil War"; and Sept. 28 John Gibney, Professor - Civil War Studies, "Michigan in the War."

Lectures are held at 7:30 p.m. at the Plymouth Historical Museum. In addition during the Plymouth Fall Festival (Sept. 8-10) the museum plans some special events. Saturday and Sunday feature a mini Civil War encampment by the 1st Michigan Battery B Artillery Unit. On Friday a special exhibit entitled "A Lincoln Portrait," featuring the collection of Dr. Weldon Petz, will be open from 1 until 9 p.m.

Each week this column attempts to provide up-to-date information about the Northville Historical Society as well as Mill Race Village. In addition it includes historic information about this community. Topic ideas are encouraged. Contact 349-9005 with suggestions.

Little information is available about early community businesses. The Northville Record did not begin publishing until 1869 and the first city directory came out in 1895. In 1893 a community booster group published "An Ideal Urban Village" to encourage village growth.

In its early years The Record printed remembrances by individuals who remained in the area. Scattered reports of the community exist in state and regional publications of the period. On rare occasions reports of actual businesses surface.

The Bentley Archives at the University of Michigan maintains some of these materials. Among them are the records of an early industry in the Village of Northville. I believe they come from the Pennell Mill started before 1840 in the vicinity that today houses Foundry Flask. Pennell Mill was started by Ebenezer Pennell who built his home nearby. The Greek Revival home still stands at 441 Butler. The mill, a carding facility, washed, picked and carded the material necessary to provide cloth.

Pennell also built Argo Mill. He owned operations with Asa Sha as well as with Mr. Ferguson. In addition to these endeavors Pennell was an active member of the community's Methodist Church. He served for several years as justice of the peace.

New commissioners appointed in township

The Northville Township Planning Commission will soon see two new faces following last week's vote of the board of trustees.

At its Aug. 17 meeting the board voted unanimously to appoint township residents Philip Wargelin and Karen Woodside to the commission, filling two of three open seats. The trustees did not agree on a candidate for the final slot, indicating instead that they will take up the issue again at their regular meeting next month.

Reappointed by the board were Blake Couse to the Building Department Board of Appeals and Tony Wolf to the Building Authority. The trustees also decided to appoint Woodside as a member of the Zoning Board of Appeals and designate her as the official liaison between that body and the planning commission.

Remaining to be filled is a commission seat with a term that expires Dec. 1. The board voted 5-2 against appointing the choice of Supervisor Karen Baja, resident Mark King, to the position.

Clark Sue Hillebrand was among those who voted no after saying that King's property was not in compliance with township ordinances.

"I'm quite concerned with our planning process and I don't think someone who can't follow our ordinances can sit in judgment of others," Hillebrand said.

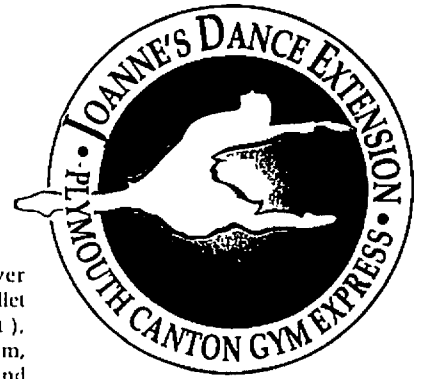

Baja questioned that assertion, asking if the clerk was certain that King's property was in violation of any rules. At that point, Trustee Russ Fogg asked for the matter to be tabled "so we can ask him some questions about this," a request that was defeated on a 4-3 vote.

HEALTH NOTE

by Dennis E. Engerer, P.T.

PRESSURE DROP

People who would like to lower their blood pressure without resorting to medication should consider the guidelines put forth by the American College of Sports Medicine (ACSM). After reviewing more than 40 studies, the ACSM has concluded that three to five days a week of aerobic exercise (between 20 minutes to an hour in duration) can subtract up to 10-millimeters of mercury from both the top and bottom numbers of a blood pressure reading. This means that someone with a high-normal blood pressure reading of 139/90 can get back into the normal range (less than 130 over 85) by following the aerobic prescription. Some research has also suggested a similar beneficial effect from strength training, an area in which the physical therapist is also an expert.

Because strength training can trigger increases in blood pressure—among other physiological effects—it is very important to review any exercise plan—weight training or aerobic—with a doctor or therapist. At Northville Physical Therapy & Rehabilitation Inc., we focus on returning patients to their highest level of function. We specialize in general physical rehabilitation, sports injuries, stroke and close head injury rehabilitation, chronic pain management, and back and neck problems. To schedule an appointment, call us today at 349-3816. We are located at 332 E. Main Street, Suite A.

P.S. Do not engage in an aerobic regimen without first seeing a physician, especially if you are already taking blood pressure medication.

Restored 1948 craft wins award for hobbyists

By CAROL WORKENS
Staff Writer

Orlo Maxfield's first flight was over 50 years ago but his most recent trip to Wisconsin will keep his head in the clouds for some time to come.

When Orlo flew into Wisconsin recently, he flew away with the Reserved Grand Champion Classic trophy.

Orlo, 76, and his son, John, completely restored a 1948 Funk that had been in the family for 37 years. It was the last production model from the Funk Manufacturing Co. and was the personal airplane of owners Joe and Howard Funk for 10 years before they sold it to Orlo in 1957.

"We rebuilt it to last forever," Orlo said. "My son and grandson will inherit it."

"Restoration was from front to back, top to bottom," added John, who is a corporate pilot for Chrysler.

Disassembly of the Funk for restoration began a decade ago but with seven children to put through college, it was put on hold most of the time, according to John. Serious restoration began three years ago and was completed this past spring.

The wings and fuselage are covered with fabric which had deteriorated over the years.

The process of recovering the fabric portions of the plane, the wings and the fuselage, is to cover it with Dacron and then shrink the Dacron 10 percent with a flat iron.

"When heat is applied to the fabric it gets tight on the airplane just like a drum," Orlo said. A chemical is then brushed on to seal the fabric before it is painted.

"It's the best one of its make in the world," Orlo said.

The Experimental Aircraft Association (EAA) Fly-In Convention is held annually in Oshkosh, Wis., and is attended by about a million people over the course of a week.

"There are literally thousands of airplanes on the airport," John said.

One of the requirements for all entries is that the airplanes have to be flown in - none can be trucked in and reassembled.

So John and his eight-year-old son, Scott, flew the Funk, while Orlo flew John's 1953 Cessna 195, which won Best of Type four years earlier.

"Dad and I were airport buddies back when I was a kid," said John. Now Scott has joined as a third generation airport buddy.

Planes are grouped into categories such as home built, vintage airplanes, classic aircraft, contemporary about 30 years old, war bird aircraft, WWII military airplanes, helicopters and ultralight.

The Maxfield's Funk, a two-seat, high-wing personal airplane, was among about 1,000 planes in the classic aircraft category.

The restored Funk is the second that Orlo has owned. With only one and a half hours of flying under his belt, Orlo Maxfield bought his first Funk in 1942.

"I'm gonna fly this beast or kill myself," Orlo remembers thinking.

"Charles Lindbergh gave me the -bug," Orlo said of the aviator who flew The Spirit of St. Louis solo over the Atlantic in 1927.

Orlo's pre-war Funk had a serial number of 29. The completely restored 1948 Funk has a serial number of 438.

The first Funk was sold when Orlo went into the Army Air Corps during World War II.

Restoring planes is not new to the Northville residents who have helped friends restore and build airplanes.

Orlo is a retired tool engineer from Ford and a private pilot.

Association seeks to introduce youths to flying opportunities

The Experimental Aircraft Association (EAA) has a program to acquaint youths eight to 17 years of age with airplanes, flying, general aviation and flight.

The world-wide program, called Young Eagles, was launched in 1992 and has a goal of introducing flight to 1 million youths by the year 2003 through a demonstration airplane ride.

The year 2003 is the 100th anniversary of the Wright brothers' first powered flight and is also the 50th anniversary of the EEA.

To date, 160,000 rides have been given.

The objectives of the program are to encourage young people to become interested in flying, make young people aware of the career possibilities in aviation, and respond to the concerns that the pool of pilots is dwindling due to the smaller number of pilot starts compared to the number of pilots who will be retiring by the year 2000. Youths must have a signed permission slip.

Young Eagle participants will receive an official Eagle Flight Certificate, signed by the pilot, after their flight experience. The name of each participant will then be entered into the "World's Largest Logbook," which is on permanent display at the EEA Air Adventure Museum in Oshkosh, Wis.

"Flying isn't always airliners and military jets," Northville resident John Maxfield, a corporate pilot, said.

"That is a very small percentage of flying."

Volunteer pilots, whether private or members of airplane clubs, have joined the EEA's program.

For the name of a local pilot in this area, call the EAA at (414) 426-4831 and ask for the Young Eagles Program coordinator.

The elephants of the Kelly Circus will perform and raise the tent in which their act will be staged Sunday, Sept. 3.

Big-top circus stops here over Labor Day weekend

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

Attention, ladies and gentlemen and children of all ages - the circus is coming to town.

That's right, a genuine, big-top, European-style circus will be here Labor Day weekend to dazzle and delight the whole family. If you want to join in the fun and share in something that's becoming all too rare in today's 500 TV-channel world, be sure to get your tickets now for the Sept. 3 and 4 shows.

Best of all, you can help others as you enjoy the show: a part of ticket proceeds will go to benefit needy children.

The Kelly Miller Circus, based in Oklahoma, will set up shop in the parking lot of the Highland Lakes Shopping Center on Seven Mile near Northville Road for four shows next weekend.

"We'll bet Northville's never seen anything like this in their town before," circus spokesman Ken Hatfield said.

The public's invited to see the big-top tent erected - "we use elephant power on the ropes," Hatfield said - at about 8 a.m. Sunday morning.

The big-top seats 1,500 people and two performances will be held daily at 2 and 4:30 p.m.

Kelly Miller is a traditional European-style circus that tours the United States and Canada for seven months every year, Hatfield said. All the classic circus favorites will be on hand: the center ring, the ring master, clowns, elephants, even horse and dog shows.

Performers from Mexico, Argentina and America will defy the eye with trapeze, high wire and fire acts.

A live band will perform during each show as well.

"We're looking to see everyone come on out," Highland Lakes Merchants Association chair Bill

Wisniewski said. "This is going to be a lot of fun for everyone."

The merchants association has been trying since last year to book the circus, Wisniewski said. Get tickets from any Highland Lakes store and from Genitti's, The Gift-fiddler and The Great Harvest Bread Company in Northville.

Tickets are $7 in advance for adults and $4 for kids under 12. Tickets at the tent run $8 for adults and $5 for children. Three stores in Highland Lakes - Northville Video, Heavenly Bakery and Wisniewski's, Leisure Time Pet Center - are offering a special family fun pack: two adult and two children's tickets for $20.

Kelly Miller and the merchants' association have agreed to donate a portion of the ticket monies collected to the national Make A Wish Foundation, which tries to fulfill the wishes of children with terminal diseases.

Sales promo turns into major downtown event

By LEE SNIDER
Editor

When Northville entrepreneur Debbie McDonald conducts a sales promotion she wants everybody to get in on the action.

McDonald recently finished an 8-week promotional contest at her store, Northville Diamond Jewelers, but her business wasn't the only one benefiting from the special activity - Margo's of Northville, Salutations, Genitti's Restaurant, Northville Coffee Bean Company, Running Fit, and Great Harvest Bread Company were some of the other participating stores.

"We ought to be able to work together to keep business in Northville," McDonald said. "We need to do more things like this as a group."

McDonald hired a consultant to design the promotion and ended up mailing out 20,000 announcements to area residents.

The contest rules required people to go to businesses in the downtown area then bring proof of their visits back to the jewelry store, 201 E. Main.

For instance, participants were asked to attend the benefit folk and bluegrass festival July 30 and bring a program into the store the next day. Brave-hearted concertgoers who agreed to hum a few bars of a song they heard at the festival received points toward a prize.

But were people willing to exercise their vocal chords in the hushed jewelry showroom?

"Are you kidding?" McDonald exclaimed. "People didn't just hum, they broke into song. One of them wouldn't start singing until she had the attention of everyone in the store."

Other ways of earning points included getting the signature of a participant in the July 22 Roadrunner Classic 8-K run, bringing a loaf of Great Harvest bread into the jewelry store (and surrendering a slice), obtaining a business card from the Kelly & Kelly law firm, and making a personal grooming appointment at Margo's.

Participants received as many as a million points for their entries.

Once the contest closed and the bonuses were totaled, the first-place winner, Scott Lowery, had amassed over 478 million points.

For his hard work, Lowery won a 27-inch television set. Other prizes included a VCR, an espresso maker, an overnight stay at a Holiday Inn, dinner for two at MacKinon's and a potted house plant.

For her part, McDonald saw 1,100 potential customers come into her store to take part in the contest. There's no telling how many sales resulted from all that foot traffic, but McDonald is obviously pleased with the success of the event.

"A lot of people saw things they just had to have," she said.

'Tis the season to be wheezing, sufferers know

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

Allergies. What comes to mind when you see that word?

Visions of a pencil-necked geek wheezily reaching for the handkerchief he's conveniently tucked into his pocket protector? The guy across the street who can't mow his lawn with a sneeze rate averaging one per second? Or you slumped on the sofa gazing through watery eyes at the minuscule mountain of Kleenex that surrounds you?

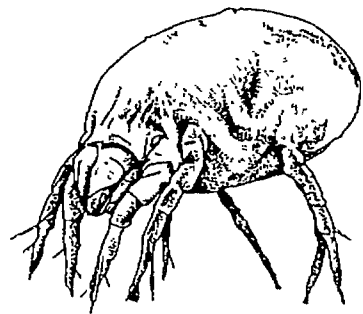

Actually, allergies and the associated condition of asthma present real problems to tens of millions of Americans. You could be one of them and if you're, help's available, explains Sally Randall, a registered nurse and the health programs coordinator for the Botsford Hospital Center for Health improvement, located in Novi.

"An allergy is a hypersensitivity to an element in your environment that doesn't affect other people," Randall said. "There are a lot of different theories as to why they happen and certainly a lot of different manifestations of allergies. Many people think of just summer as allergy season. Actually, depending on what you're allergic to, it can be an year-round problem."

As many as 40 million Americans suffer from allergies but many don't know what they're allergic to and so can't effectively fight it, Randall said.

"A lot of people just decide to live with it," she said. "They need to know that they can live without it. For most people correcting an allergic or asthmatic condition doesn't require a lot of life changes. This isn't just a minor annoyance, though. For some people this can be a real problem, even life-threatening."

Symptoms of an allergic reaction can include a stuffed-up nose, swelling, watery eyes, post-nasal drip, even diarrhea. Someone with a severe condition can even fall victim to anaphylaxis; effectively a total body systems shutdown.

What can cause those symptoms? Everyone has his or her own unique allergen "trigger." Ragweed pollen (hay fever) is a real problem for many from mid-August to the first frost. Pollen and mold spores irritate others for many months of the year. Indoor mold and dust mites can be a problem all year round as can certain foods for some people.

The first step in combating your allergy is to know for sure that you have one, Randall said. If you've been experiencing symptoms check with your doctor, who can tell you what you're allergic to with a few simple tests.

Once you know what's causing it, she added, you and your doctor can develop a strategy to reduce or remove allergens from your environment. That could include everything from avoiding certain foods to refraining from doing your own vacuuming and leaf raking to taking prescription medication.

A related problem is asthma, a breathing problem experienced by up to 15 million Americans. It killed 5,000 people last year and is the most common childhood disease in this country.

Normally air moves in and out of our lungs easily. People with asthma, however, suffer from narrowed air passages which make breathing difficult.

The narrowing results from the muscles in the airways tightening up, swelling or producing an excess, clogging amount of the mucus that normally lines them.

Asthma's most common cause, accounting for at least 75 percent of all known cases, is - you guessed it - allergies. That means that asthmatics have to mount an even stronger guard, Randall said.

Symptoms of asthma include shortness of breath, tightness across the chest, a dry cough or wheezing. Just like with allergies, a doctor can help you track down what's causing your asthma and give you a plan to combat it.

Randall runs a special Botsford program called MASH (Managing Asthma and Staying Healthy) designed to help in that process. It's a nine-hour class, split up into three Wednesday evening sessions in October, aimed at adult asthmatics and the parents of children with asthma.

The sessions teach both adults and children what causes asthma how to spot their individual triggers and then avoid them, how to use medication correctly and make lifestyle changes.

"We're teaching them how to care for themselves, how to take control of their problem and just live life," Randall said.

Housing survey under way, Census Bureau says

The 1995 survey of housing in the United States has begun in this area.

The Census Bureau and the Department of Housing and Urban Development planned the survey to obtain current information on housing, one of the nation's key economic indicators.

Across the country, the bureau has selected a sample of 62,000 housing units from the national stock of 107 million.

It updates the sample every other year to represent new construction, other additions, and losses from the inventory.

Census Bureau representative will interview households for about five months and will send each household an announcement beforehand.

How to fight allergies, asthma and related ailments

If you think you're allergic or asthmatic, the best thing to do is see your doctor. He or she can tell you if you have a problem with a few simple tests and then recommend a plan, including environment and lifestyle changes, as well as medication, to get you back on track.

Meanwhile, here's some basic tips:

INDOORS

- Use your car and home air conditioner. They're great allergen filters.
- Mold and dust mites thrive in warm, damp areas. Keep your house clean. Use an exhaust fan in the bathroom and kitchen and a dehumidifier in the basement and avoid humidifiers.

- Avoid tobacco smoke, including secondhand smoke.
- Try buying a HEPA (High Efficiency Particulate Air) filter for your central heating and cooling system.
- Keep surfaces like Venetian blinds, pleated lampshades, books and bookshelves free of dust.
- Avoid overstuffed pillows, furniture and stuffed toys, collectors of dust and dust mites.
- Avoid carpeting, including rugs, for the same reason. Replace any carpeting on concrete floors with vinyl or wooding floor coverings to reduce mold growth.

- Avoid vacuuming if you can, install a vacuum filter or use a face mask if you can't.
 - Keep closets closed to prevent dust and dust mites from settling on clothes.
 - Dry your shoes and boots before storing them in the closet.
 - Wash your bedsheets at least once a week in water that's at least 130 degrees.
- OUTDOORS
- Minimize your activity during the early morning hours. Pollen levels are highest from 5-10 a.m.

- Avoid cutting the lawn or raking leaves or wear a face mask.
- Don't dry clothes on an outside clothesline.

PETS

Being allergic to your pet doesn't necessarily mean you have to get rid of it, although it may come to that if your problem is severe enough.

First, though, try keeping your pet outdoors as much as possible and off of bedding and furniture. Keep your pet out of your bedroom at all times and wash it weekly.

Board redefines public schools

By TIM RICHARD
Staff Writer

Clark Durant nudged Michigan education a step closer to parochial aid as a split State Board of Education endorsed a new definition of "public schools."

Durant, R-Grosse Pointe, won 5-2 approval Aug. 16 of proposed governance changes that now go to the Legislature. The recommendations face trouble in the House of Representatives, where many Republicans and most Democrats are protective of public schools.

"Much too broad," objected Dorothy Beardmore, R-Rochester, the lone Republican to fight Durant on the board. Current law defines public schools as school districts, intermediate districts and public school academy corporations.

The new draft would re-define a public school by its "mission" of teaching academic skills. It's close to the definition pushed by Teach Michigan, a group that openly favors striking the anti-parochial section of the Michigan Constitution and allowing state-paid vouchers to be used by parents at any school, public, private or church-related.

Said Beardmore: "As long as their mission focuses on whatever their mission was, they can go ahead" with assurance of state money. "But how does their approach meet state standards?"

Beardmore said the Durant-backed code assumes public money "belongs to the family or student. It's a terrible blending of private and public money. It's not legal, constitutional or ethical. It's a back-door entrance to viewing the foundation grant (state school aid) as a voucher."

Barbara Roberts Mason, D-Lansing, who joined Beardmore in opposing the new draft, criticized Durant, the board president, for stacking the discussion with backers of charter schools.

"I would like to hear three additional people with other viewpoints," she said after hearing Durant's hand-picked speakers, including former Milwaukee superintendent Howard Fuller.

Durant, an attorney and conservative GOP figure elected to the board in 1994 with Religious Right backing, had his votes lined up and mostly let opponents talk without rebuttal. Voting his way were Republicans Gary Wolfram of Hillsdale, Marilyn Lundy of Detroit, Sharon Wise of Owosso and Ruth Braun of Saginaw. Wolfram and Braun are appointees of Gov. John Engler.

A bone of contention was the charter school concept, also called PSAs for public school academies. Current law allows a limited number of academies to receive charters from universities and state foundation grants while operating largely outside the domain of local elected school boards.

Durant's forces support PSAs with ideology: "choice," "competition" and "freedom." Opponents said PSAs should first be tested and researched.

Fuller, a rumored candidate for Michigan's open superintendent of public instruction job, bluntly urged Michigan to charter an unlimited number of academies, even though "it's too early to analyze" their success in Milwaukee in his tenure.

Opponents said PSAs should be considered experimental until research proves their value.

"It is indeed too early to make any analysis of charter schools in Milwaukee," said Mason.

Said Beardmore: "Before we rush to create more PSAs, we should find out what their successes are and what their challenges are. This has not been thought through," she added, calling Fuller's advice "foolhardy."

Public comments consumed two hours of the board's morning meeting.

"Durant's rhetoric does not match his true meaning," said Joan Donnell, Bloomfield Township mother of two. She blistered Durant for forcing the resignation of state superintendent Robert Schiller Aug. 3.

"Dr. Schiller wanted to improve public education in this state, not dismantle it," she said.

"Let charter schools ride their course before we jump ahead to home rule," said Dirk Koorstra, a Zeeland teacher. He warned that smaller "autonomous" schools advocated by Durant "can be controlled by special interests."

Julius Maddox, Pontiac teacher and president of the Michigan Education Association, urged a "sound, researched-based" approach. Maddox said both parties in the Legislature supported core curriculum standards, school accreditation and proficiency tests, and cautioned against "a radical course of change."

He says, she says: What to do about the wedding

A big wedding or his and her motorcycles?

That's the dilemma facing township reporter Randy Coble and his fiancée, Northville resident Carolyn MacDermald. The two are slated to "tie-the-knot" Dec. 30.

Carolyn, it seems, wants a big, traditional wedding — complete with all the trimmings. Randy. Well it's easy to understand what Randy wants. He wants what's practical, what every 27-year-old daredevil reporter desires, and what most of us in the male population dream about on those dreary rain or snow-filled days.

Randy wants a Harley. You have to really know Randy to appreciate his passion for these two-wheeled, hair-blowing-in-the-wind machines. Just say the word "Harley" and he salivates like Pavlov's dog.

Sometimes it's just sick to watch. He would have his coveted Harley if Carolyn would agree to a small wedding. Unfortunately, Carolyn has her mind made up, and well, Randy is fit to be tied.

There is, however, a plan — and this is where you, the reading public of Northville, come in.

NORTHVILLE TALK OF THE WEEK

By Robert Jackson

Carolyn, wanting her beloved to obtain his dream motorcycle — and at the same time keeping her wedding plans intact — happened to be reading Cosmopolitan one day (yes, she does make Randy take the monthly quiz in the magazine) and found an article on the Sultan of Brunei. It seems this sultan character is the richest man in the world, and he allegedly once gave a waiter a tip for $183,000.

Having read this tidbit of information, Carolyn concocted her plan. Randy would write the sultan, and informing him of his upcoming nuptials, would invite him to the wedding. At the same time Randy would humbly grovel for a wedding gift for, oh, let's say, $100,000. This would enable Carolyn to have the largest wedding in Northville history, and Randy would get his dream machine.

My question to you faithful Talk of the Week readers, is this:

Has Randy lost his mind? No, that's not the question I really want to ask. Actually, I'd like to know if any of you out there have any better ideas for Randy and Carolyn. You see, I have my doubts about this sultan thing.

So, you make the call, and I'll print your ideas in an upcoming Talk of the Week — you can be as off the wall as you want, but please nothing that is illegal.

As usual, I'll be interested in hearing from each and every one of you.

SPEAKING ABOUT WEDDINGS, our sports editor Scott Daniel just returned from his honeymoon with new bride, Cora. The two were married Aug. 11 on Mackinac Island — that's also where they honeymooned. Scott is back at the sports desk, and in his (and Cora's) honor, I'll let him kick off this week's installment of Talk of the Week. Take it away, Scott.

ALRIGHT THEN BOB, while I've already taken the plunge and Randy Coble is in the on-deck circle, a third local marriage could be in the works.

The Western Lakes Association, of which Northville High is a part, could be walking down the aisle with the Kensington Valley Conference in a few years.

WLAA principals are meeting to discuss the matter on Sept. 11 in Livonia. The KVC boasts seven members — including Baseline Road rival Novi.

If the leagues marry it would involve some 19 schools and three counties. For more complete coverage, turn to the Northville Record sports section.

IT'S THE VICTORIAN THING TO DO: Received a memorandum from Donna Pallas the other day. For those of you who don't know Donna, she serves as Victorian Festival Parade chairperson, and she wrote to tell me that one of the many highlights of the festival weekend is the Friday night parade.

This year the parade will feature hundreds of school children and community members dressed in their Victorian finery, along with civic leaders greeting their constituents from a horse and carriage. Donna tells me that she's working on a couple of additional "period" bands to add to the excitement this year.

"I'd like to encourage more church groups, Scout troops, and neighborhood associations to get involved in this activity that makes our community unique," Donna said. "Come on down. The ideas are endless, and don't have to be elaborate to be fun."

She stated that she could use help in locating owners of automobiles that pre-date 1920. The Victorian era saw the advent of the horseless carriage, and it would be great if we could have a few examples of these wonders in our parade," she said.

And last but not least Donna said she could use the help of six to eight "sturdy souls" who'd like to assist with keeping the parade running smoothly along the route. If you're interested please call her at 348-3767.

OKAY, NOW THAT YOU'RE all back from vacation and are gearing up for the new school year, I expect to be hearing from you more often. If you happen across something of interest please don't hesitate to give me a call at 349-1700. As usual, I'm forever grateful for your input.

Ambiance was key to idea makes Northville unique. "There is a uniqueness in the Victorian architecture of downtown that makes us different than other communities," said Presley, an architect. "So I thought the festival should center around that era."

It didn't take long for other Chamber of Commerce members to agree, according to Presley, who explained that when he pitched the idea to the other members at the next meeting, he got an instant - and hearty - endorsement.

Just like that, he said, the Northville Victorian Festival was born.

"Having the idea was the easy part. The hard part was implementing a plan," he said. "Plenty of people stepped forward, wanting to help with the plans, so we formed a central committee and hit the pavement running."

Presley co-chaired the committee with Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Laurie Marrs the first two years. Since then he has played lesser roles in the planning, but still does whatever is necessary to help make the festival better each year.

"My friends claim that I came up with the idea because I love costume parties," he said, laughing. "They believe I did this because I want everyone else to have to dress up as well."

According to Presley the festival, now in its eighth year, hasn't lost any of its original appeal. In fact, he explained, its popularity keeps growing.

"What I like about the Victorian Festival is that through the past seven years it still maintains the flavor of the community," he added. "I think it's fortunate that it hasn't gotten too big, it hasn't outgrown the original intent."

The Northville Victorian Festival is scheduled for Sept. 15-17 in downtown Northville. For more information, contact the Northville Chamber of Commerce at 349-7640.

we did work with the Edison company," he said. "They used to give away free light bulbs and repair electrical appliances for free."

Michael Palchesko, Edison

Regional Manager for Corporate and Public Affairs, said that although Edison no longer has an office in Northville, the company's roots are still tied to the city.

"This building was not only a proud part of our history, but a proud part of your history as well," he said.

The building is officially registered with the Michigan Department of State Bureau of History.

School day pilot program scrapped

Even with the shortened schedule last year, the school remained in compliance with the state statute for instructional hours — with Northville High School students receiving 990 hours of instruction.

However, Johnson explained that had the high school continued the modified schedule this school year, the school would not have been in compliance with the statute.

"With the state of Michigan increasing the number of hours required we would not have been able to comply with the statute," he said. "So we had to discontinue the modified Wednesday schedule."

Johnson said teachers used the extra time for collaborative planning meetings. From those meetings, he explained, a number of programs have either been planned for or are being implemented in this upcoming school year.

"For example, we will offer a completely different approach to our ninth grade orientation," Johnson said. "Three ninth-grade English teachers will be team teaching and a student planner will be introduced this fall to all ninth grade students."

Johnson said other changes have come from the collaborative effort as well, including modified math programs, the enhancement of Media Center technology, and additional advanced placement course offerings.

"We are excited about what was accomplished and look forward to the continuing excitement and energy in this school year," he said.

Johnson said he would like to maintain the high level of enthusiasm from teachers, and the district is developing different strategies to encourage continued teacher development.

Although teachers will not take part in planning sessions during the day, the school board will provide support for the continuation of faculty study groups, according to Johnson. This support includes funding for teachers to continue research and program development efforts.

In addition, Johnson explained, the creation of a committee to plan for the future of the high school will begin this fall. The committee will consist of parents, students, staff and administrators.

"This committee will develop a cohesive direction for the high school and recommend the programs and structure that will support that vision," Johnson added

Foundation seeks local host families for foreign students

Since 1981, the not-for-profit AIFS Foundation's Academic Year in America (AYA) program has been successfully finding homes for foreign high school students in Michigan. In recent months, however, finding willing host families has become increasingly difficult, and AYA currently does not have enough homes for the 1,400 plus students arriving into the U.S. this month.

Students, ages 15-18, travel to the United States to fulfill an American dream. AYA teens are carefully screened for academic ability and have had at least three years of English instruction prior to their acceptance into the program. These young ambassadors from abroad live with American families while attending local high schools, and teach their "host" family their culture, while learning the American way of life.

Successful AYA host families come in all shapes and sizes. Whether a family has young children, teenage children or no children at all, they qualify if they can provide a bed, a place to study, two meals a day and, most importantly, an open heart.

Interested families pick the boy or girl who would best fit with their lifestyles and interests, and hosting can be for five or 10 months. In addition to the benefits of learning about another culture, a host family receives a scholarship toward certain travel/study abroad programs.

Exchange organizations such as the AYA program are subject to United States Information Agency (USIA) guidelines, and students cannot come to the U.S. if appropriate host families are not located. Families from Brazil, Germany, Poland, Russia, Spain and many other countries are anxiously awaiting news of where their son/daughter will spend the next 5-10 months.

The AYA program has a network of local coordinators throughout the United States who help families choose a student, enroll the student in high school, and help the family to supervise their student throughout his/her stay in the United States.

Interested families may contact Michigan Regional Director Suzanne Power-Morris at 1-800-322-4678 ext. 5417.

Youth rally scheduled

Youth Rally '95 (junior and senior high students, grades 7-12) will be held on Saturday, Sept. 9, from 7-10 p.m., at Northville United Methodist Church on Eight Mile Road.

The band featured at this free outdoor concert will be "Camp," performing Amy Grant songs and original compositions. This event is meant to welcome the new church and school year.

For additional information call (810) 349-1144.

Sewer, water rates headed up in township

trustees are expected to take up the issue again at their Sept. 14 meeting.

In a related development, the board gave Anderson the go-ahead to seek bids on a new maintenance building for the Public Utilities Department. While he admits it's more elaborate and hence more expensive than the storage facility that was originally under consideration Anderson said it will be needed as the township gradually grows to maximum population.

Members of the board agreed, although some leeringness was expressed over the price hike: from $60,000 for a pole barn-style storage area to a $160,000 heated storage/maintenance facility.

"It's something that's long overdue," Supervisor Karen Baja said. "We need to bite the bullet financially and get it done."

The facility will be built next to the existing Public Utilities Building on Beck Road between Five and Six Mile. Something more elaborate than the pole barn is needed to deal with the winter maintenance and other tasks necessary to serve a township of up to 40,000 people over the next 20-30 years, Anderson said.

"It's best to err on the side of preparation," he told the board.

Anderson said he favored a brick exterior for the structure in order to reduce its visual impact on nearby existing or proposed residential housing, even though it's somewhat more expensive.

The Public Utilities Department has $60,000 in its current fiscal year budget, planned for use in the storage structure construction. With the board's green light Anderson will now transfer that money into the 1996 budget.

All funds for the maintenance facility project will come from the Water and Sewer Department fund.

New officer post created in city

By ROBERT JACKSON
Staff Writer

The Northville City Council has approved the creation of a full-time building inspector/code enforcement officer position.

The council unanimously approved the post, which will also include recycling duties, at its regular meeting Monday.

According to City Manager Gary Word, combining the current part-time building inspection and code enforcement functions into one position will "enhance the service delivery" of the two areas.

"The job description will encompass elements of all three positions," Word said. "However, the key component of the position will be that of building inspector."

Certain elements of code enforcement and refuse and recycling will be picked up by the Police and Public Works departments, according to Word.

Mayor pro-tem Carolann Ayers said that the emphasis should be put on code enforcement.

"It is my desire to have the city ordinances enforced," she said.

"I'm getting the impression that (the emphasis) is going to be more on building inspection."

"I think we should put more emphasis on code enforcement. It gets discouraging that we work hard to create the ordinances and then they aren't properly enforced," Ayers added.

The city has had a contractual relationship with Northville Township for part-time building inspection services since August 1993, according to Word. The city also contracts for plumbing and electrical inspection separately.

"While (Northville) has been pleased with the contractual relationship it has had with the township, the availability of inspectors and direct service to city residents has been limited to a few hours each day," Word said. "We've reviewed the building permit activity, which reveals that, while new construction has diminished, there is growth in remodelings and additions to existing dwellings."

According to building permit records, the city has averaged 254 permits each year since June 30, going on."

McNeely & Lincoln is charging the city $250 per day for inspection services. The fee, according to public works director Jim Gallogly, is built into the bid package. He explained that McNeely & Lincoln provides the inspection services and bills the contractor. The contractor, in turn, bills the city for the inspections, so long as they accomplish the work in the time specified by the contract.

Should J.D.S. Trucking take longer than the contract for the work allows, Gallogly said, they cannot bill the city for the inspection fee, and must therefore absorb the cost.

Keys maintains that for $250 per day, McNeely & Lincoln should have done a better job protecting the city's interests.

"Where was the inspector during all of this work? I am not happy with the quality of the sidewalks and I'd like an explanation as to why the inspectors didn't catch the mistakes," Keys said.

Keys' findings led him to direct a memo to city manager Gary Word, last week, calling for an investigation into the project. He specifically asked, in the memo, for McNeely & Lincoln to provide detailed inspection information - including the number of hours spent on sidewalk inspections - along with a report on the quality of the work.

That prompted McNeely & Lincoln president Bob Warner to report to the council Monday that there were "definite problems" with the sidewalk repairs, and that the contractor would correct the deficiencies.

"You have to remember that this project is among the first of this contractor's efforts in sidewalk repair," Warner said. "I believe they are trying to build experience."

Warner added that his firm would ensure that the deficiencies would be corrected with no additional cost to the city. If problems continued, he explained, McNeely & Lincoln would recommend the termination of the contract based on the contractor's inability to perform.

Keys questioned why J.D.S. Trucking had been awarded the contract in the first place. "They had no previous experience in sidewalk work, and they should not have been contracted in the first place," he said. "Why did we get a recommendation to award this contract to them?"

Mayor pro-tem Carolann Ayers agreed.

"You can't ruin people's sidewalks and lawns. You've got to do it right the first time," she said. "The contractor should not be learning on us."

Despite Warner's explanation at the council meeting, Keys believes his concerns were not adequately addressed. In a memo to Word Tuesday, he claimed that he was denied the information he had requested from McNeely & Lincoln.

"... I was disappointed that I, as an elected official, was denied information that I was entitled (to)," he said in the memo. "Therefore, I do not believe the taxpayers of this city were fairly treated."

"All we received (at the meeting) was carefully filtered vague information," he added.

Keys also said he was disappointed with Warner's responses to his questions, as well as Warner's presentation to the city council.

"I was very disappointed that (Warner) could publicly state that our contractor is new and does not have the experience," he said. "Why were they recommended in the first place? Do we now need to question every recommendation (McNeely & Lincoln) makes?"

Word said that he is also concerned with the problems cited by Keys, and that those problems will be addressed.

"It gets down to this. We have specifications that must be met, and will be met," he said. "That's what the public expects and that's what they deserve."

Our Opinion

Public reprimand an unseemly display

What's your definition of a bully? The brawny kid who beats up the weaking in front of everyone on the playground? How about a boss who publicly rakes a subordinate over the coals?

The latter is exactly what Northville Township Trustee Barbara O'Brien did - again - when she recently took Parks & Recreation Department Director Traci Johnson to task in front of the whole community.

O'Brien, also a member of the Parks & Rec commission, blasted Johnson on back-to-back nights, once during an Aug. 9 commission meeting and then again during an Aug. 10 session of the board. She called on both bodies to formally reprimand Johnson for a June 21 letter she wrote to the Northville Township Planning Commission in support of the Ward Church concept development plan.

Part of that proposal calls for Ward to give Northville residents partial use of two ball diamonds on the site. Church officials have also agreed to build a set of tennis courts there and give them to the community.

The letter states that "the addition of these recreation facilities will be of substantial benefit for the Northville community," adding that the ever-growing number of participants in Rec Department activities means that "the proposed athletic facilities at Ward Church are not only needed but essential."

Those statements give the misleading impression that the Rec Commission formally decided to support the Ward plan, O'Brien argued.

She's right, but the way in which she aired that concern was wrong. It's also consistent with the trustee's past behavior and inconsistent with her opinions of people who attack her in public.

O'Brien does have a point. The first three of the eight sentences in the letter refer to what the Rec Commission was told about the Ward plan. It's written on Parks & Rec Department letterhead and Johnson is the head of that department. While it's true the letter does not say that its opinions are those of the commission, the overall effect seems intent on giving that impression.

And that's inappropriate. Johnson's an administrator, not a policy maker. It's the job of the Rec Commission to decide whether to formally back the Ward plan. Even if the director didn't mean to, the letter usurps some of that responsibility and should not have been written.

No one needs to tell Johnson that, however, after the extended shellacking O'Brien gave her, which brings us to our second point. The trustee's decision to publicly castigate Johnson for an ill-advised but mild error in judgment was the latest example of O'Brien's inappropriate and counterproductive way of dealing with municipal employees.

She has in the past flogged township administrative department heads during open meetings. Such a practice is highly unfair: unlike other members of the board or the public, employees can't argue with the boss - particularly in public - for fear of reprisal.

Instead of voicing her concerns in private, where frank discussion could be conducted and a person's dignity preserved, O'Brien insists on beating up on employees in front of everyone. Besides causing embarrassment, her method is unlikely to get a problem worked out and much more likely to torpedo everyone's morale as others wonder if they're going to have to endure the same kind of treatment.

The odd part is that O'Brien herself in January strenuously opposed township resident Rebecca Connell's nomination to the township planning commission for doing exactly what she did to Johnson: public criticism.

Connell was involved in a 1993 public letter that was harshly critical of O'Brien's performance as a trustee. At the time O'Brien explained her opposition to Connell by saying that "freedom of speech doesn't mean you have a right to slander or libel someone. If a person has anything to say to you, they should speak to you (privately) first."

"Past performance is indicative of future performance," she added. "Her distributing this vicious misinformation shows she just doesn't have the temperament for the job."

We agree that problems should be dealt with in private whenever possible, and we suggest that O'Brien begin to look to her own conduct before casting stones.

The real primary school

A recent telephone poll of over a thousand Michigan residents revealed some surprising attitudes about the public school system.

As our state government reporter Tim Richard told you in a story in today's Record, a survey of 1,300 people found that pessimism about public education isn't as great as we might have been led to believe. Half of the respondents gave their schools A or B grades, while almost two-thirds said they wouldn't put their kids into alternative schools even if it wouldn't cost anything extra.

With all the criticism you hear about dumbing down and all the employer complaints about the poor discipline of entry-level graduates, you'd expect a sampling of public opinion to produce little but sneers and jeers about the K-12 establishment.

Not so, apparently. A majority of those contacted by random-digit dialing furnished answers that the new conservative majority on the state board of education didn't want to hear: statewide standards for education are useful, charter schools should follow the same regulations as the publics, schools should concentrate on preparing students for college.

Just 28 percent of the respondents said education is better now than it was a few years ago, but only 24 percent said it was not as good. Thirty-four percent rated it roughly equal.

Of course, you can never be sure about the accuracy of random surveys, but you'd think that if there was a built-in bias it would go against the public schools. The state board commissioned the poll, and if the polling agency wanted to give their clients what they wanted to hear, they'd skew the results to indicate widespread dissatisfaction. The right-wingers on the board want to gather together a lot of criticism so they can claim a mandate for the sweeping changes they've got in mind.

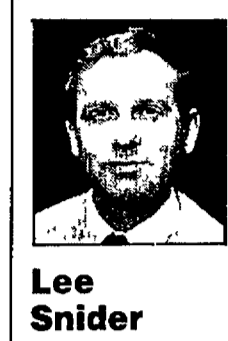

One of the comments in Tim's story that didn't surprise me so much was the observation that people in districts where scores on the MEAP tests are relatively low tend to give their schools higher marks than people in high scoring districts. At first glance, that might seem to be paradoxical, but it really isn't.

High MEAP scores are, I believe, the result of good parental involvement, and active parents expect a lot of their schools, just as they expect a lot of their children.

I have always felt that schools don't really deserve the lion's share of either the credit or blame for the academic achievements of students. That's why I think it's somewhat misleading to say the schools are good in this or that district, even though, as a convenience, I say that myself.

The fact is that the most important learning ground is the home and the most important educator is a parent.

True-to-life version of ER

I, like countless other people who were out for a little fresh air and exercise, ended up in the emergency room on Friday night.

No, I'm not going to say that it was because I tried my hand at rollerblading or skydiving, although Mike Malott did suggest I switch to a safer form of recreation, like maybe his favorite sport, skydiving. Sharon thought that I might be using her as a role model, recalling the rollerblading accident she had.

I'd like to be able to say I fell off a horse, or injured my shoulder body surfing, or some other more adventurous activity. But, no, I fell off my bike.

It all happened so fast. One minute my dog is running next to me and the next he is in front of me. He fared much better than I. In fact, he was ready to chase a rabbit before I had even scraped myself off the street.

X-rays showed that I had separated my left shoulder, the second such diagnosis the hospital had given that evening. The other patient was a guy who toppled to the ground when his bike encountered a mole hole.

I have to wear a restraining device for about a week. Wearing the foam sling and chest binder to church on Sunday, my daughter leaned over and said "Mom, everyone's looking at you." Like I don't already feel a little out of place (not in church mind you, but in this get up). It does make the injury seem worse than it is.

I believe it was the intern at the ER who asked me if I was wearing my helmet. "How the heck is that going to save my shoulder?" I felt like asking the smart aleck. But instead I said no, I wasn't. So okay, I'm lucky it wasn't any worse that it was.

It didn't take long for me to realize that life would be a little more complicated for a while.

First, in the emergency room, I realized I had on the wrong type of shirt. I felt like a contortionist as I stretched the arm and neck openings of my T-shirt and tried every which way to put the shirt back on with as little pain as possible. With a sigh of defeat, I realized I was going to have to bite the bullet and get it over as quickly as possible.

A neighbor I had never more than said "Hi" and "Bye" to offered to take me to and from the hospital. Once back home, it felt great to lay down on the couch, until I tried to get up to go to bed and couldn't. My son had to use his muscle power to get me into a sitting position.

At bedtime, I was too tired to tackle the T-shirt problem again and decided to sleep with it on. I knew I'd have to take it off sooner or later. I opted for the latter.

Every movement, like climbing into bed, rolling over and getting up again in the morning, posed a problem.

Since I sleep on my left side, I had to fall asleep on my back. I lay awake for a while scared stiff (literally) thinking about what would happen if I accidentally rolled over onto my left side.

I approached chores and the daily routine with a little more thought, not about whether I wanted to do them, but how I was going to do them.

Want to know how I typed this column? Luckily, with the computer keyboards we have now, it was easy to put the keyboard in my lap. That would have been impossible with an old IBM Selectric typewriter for example. I can't imagine typing with that in my lap.

So the question "How am I going to get through the day?" took on a new meaning this week.

Letters

Don't waste time on non-issues

I read the recent article by Randy Coble, "Rec director's letter causes stir" very, very carefully.

Traci Johnson, director, writes that the availability of softball diamonds and tennis courts at Ward will be of substantial benefit to us, the public. The Parks and Rec Commission wisely decided to take no action, since the letter represented Johnson's personal opinion. According to the township attorney writing the letter was within Johnson's legal rights.

So now we have the matter, already settled by the Parks Commission and the township attorney, debated at length Aug. 9 and Russ Fogg wants to read the letter more closely.

Am I missing something? Has the summer heat and humidity finally gotten to the trustees? Are there no more pressing issues to deal with? Tune in next week, folks, the plot thickens.

P.S. In the recently arrived Parks and Recreation fall brochure, mention is made of a swimming pool survey. Yes - count me in! What a wonderful idea for those of us who neither belong to a private swim club nor have our own pool.

Can ET still afford to phone home?

Q. Say, your suburban newspapers must be in fat city, with all the ads you're picking up from the Detroit newspaper strike.

A. Not as fat as Ameritech. We have to print the ad to make money.

Q. Doesn't Ameritech have to perform a service to make money?

A. Nope. If you don't want your name printed in the telephone directory, Ameritech calls it

"Non-Listed Service" and charges you $1 a month. If you don't want to be listed and don't want your number given out by Directory Assistance, Ameritech charges you $1.50 a month. That's $36 a year.

Q. That's a great deal for Ameritech. One-third of us in the suburbs have our names unlisted.

A. At least. As our populations grow, the telephone directory gets thinner.

When I went the unlisted route, my incoming calls dropped 60 percent. It was hard to get through a dinner-hour without uninvited hustlers calling to sell something or solicit money. But for the life of me, I can't fathom how Ameritech dares to soak me $36 a year for that "service."

Q. Of course, you could get Caller ID and be able to learn the number of whoever's calling you, couldn't you?

A. Sure, at Ameritech's price. And you can also get Caller ID with Name, which displays the name of the caller, at Ameritech's price.

No matter how hard you try to stop incoming junk calls, Ameritech makes money.

Q. Say, doesn't Ameritech want to get into cable TV, too? That sounds kind of ominous, given their high-pressure tactics and ability to charge you for a non-service service.

A. You notice it doesn't call itself a "telephone company" any more. Ameritech was a heavy lobbyist in Congress for HR 1555, the bill that deregulates cable TV.

Their latest press release says, "Ameritech, one of the world's largest full-service communications companies, provides a wide array of local phone, data and video services in the U.S. Midwest."

Q. Makes me suspicious. If they charge you for not printing your name in the phone book, and if they get into cable TV, will they charge you for not sending a premium channel into your home?

A. I share your suspicions. This company will use any self-serving rationalization to hook you for more money.

Q. But Ameritech propagandists say they favor competition. One of their ads says, "we'd like to point out who asked for competition in the local phone market."

A. Well, let's see what MCI, a potential local phone market competitor, has to say. MCI accuses Ameritech "of trying to maintain its monopoly and stifle competition that will benefit consumers."

"Ameritech last week asked the Michigan Public Service Commission for an extra year's delay before it provides customers equal access to the increasingly important "short haul long distance" calls, those that originate and terminate within an area code ...

"The PSC has ruled four times that there will be "equal access" competition starting Jan. 1, 1996. Despite those rulings, Ameritech continues to block competition and is asking for a delay of equal access until Jan. 1, 1997."

Q. Ameritech has to be making a ton of money. What's it doing with all that cash - cutting our rates?

A. Revenues in 1994 were a record $12.6 billion. It's investing heavily overseas. I quote from Ameritech's own PR release, so their high-pressure execs can't ask for equal space:

"AMERITECH'S INTERNATIONAL INVESTMENTS:

- "China: In August 1995 Ameritech formed a 25-year joint venture with China-com ... Ameritech has an 80 percent stake ...

- "New Zealand ... 24.8 percent of Telecom Corp." for which it paid nearly $600 million and is "now worth more than twice that."

- "Hungary: Ameritech invested $437.5 million for a 15 percent interest in MATAV, the Hungarian phone company ..."

- "Poland: About two million Poles are on the waiting list for wired phone service today." Ameritech owns 24.5 percent of Centertel, the cellular service.

- "Norway: Netcom provides CSM digital cellular service. Ameritech owns 24.95 percent."

- "Germany, Austria, Switzerland, Belgium, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, the Czech Republic, Croatia, Slovakia and Slovenia:" The publisher of business-to-business directories is owned 100 percent by Ameritech.

A reminder of time's quick-step march

Dig this - Novi resident Graham Ward went to Moscow for the weekend recently and strapped on a MiG-29. A guy named Alexander Bischkov, referred to as "the Chuck Yeager" of Russian aviation, was in the backseat, but Ward actually got to take over the controls and fly the machine.

Mike Malott

On take-off, they let off the brakes and punched the afterburners - 30,000 pounds of thrust rocketing them straight up to a level of 35,000 feet in 40 seconds.

Wow. Am I ever jealous. Staff writer Jan Jeffres had to do the story last week cause I'd have gotten too excited just hearing about it. I'd have drooled all over my notes.

"I'm 48-years-old. I'm 15 pounds heavier than I should be. This is something I wanted to do for myself for my whole life. This was a quest I've had," he told Jan during the interview, explaining just why he'd paid big bucks to take a weekend jaunt halfway around the world.

Good for him. People should take that as an example. Instead of shaking their heads at the semi-crazy things other people do, while secretly and impassively harboring dreams of excitement of their own, they should - to steal a phrase - just do it.

I've been giving a lot of thought to this topic myself lately. That happens when you turn 40. Oh, I've tried to keep my birthday a secret, because people here in the office do a lot of harassing for those types of things. But certain individuals, whose names shall go unmentioned, blew the whistle on me. People just wouldn't leave me alone last week.

But now that it's passed, as of Sunday, and I'm officially "over the hill," I can talk about it openly.

My wife, the lovely Dana, talked me into skydiving a year ago. I had no idea what to expect. Stepping out of the plane on that first jump, I was in an adrenalin burning, mind-numbing state of terror. But once that chute opened and I realized I would survive, I realized I was flying without a plane.

Semi-crazy? No, most told me that was full blown. But by the time I touched down, I had gained a determination to try some things I'd previously only thought about. Gaining the experience was worth the risk. Waiting to reach the nursing home to say, "Gee, I wish I'd done that" is no longer an option.

Tom Marcus said a very similar thing to me last week, although he said it a very different way.

"I tell people to take a tape measure and put your fingers on the number of years (in inches) that you expect to live to - most people pick 65. Then put your other finger on your present age. When you realize that there is more time gone by than ahead of you, you start to realize how important it is to clear out of the way all the little obstacles and concentrate on what is really important."

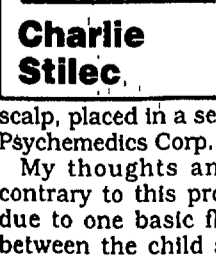

I tried it. He's right ... Hey, I'd like to stick around and tie the theme of the column up in a nice little bow for you, but I got things to do.

Communicate with children about drugs

Life is like an onion! You peel off one layer at a time and sometimes you weep ...

In the Detroit Free Press Way We Live section an article titled "Testing Ethics and Technology" indicated that there are scientific drug tests offered to parents in the form of home drug testing using the child's hair and having it analyzed. Using 50 strands of a child's hair, cut close to the scalp, placed in a sealed envelope and sent to Psychomedics Corp. lab in Culver City, Calif.

Charlie Stilec

My thoughts and feelings run totally contrary to this procedure with youngsters due to one basic flaw - it blows the trust between the child and the parent. It delegates parenting to an "I spy" versus a talk-to-me scenario.

During the many years I've been involved in this work, the single most tragic characteristic of drug abuse is lack of communication and lack of parenting.

How then do these new methods help? Time will tell but in the meantime remember substance abuse early on in a child's life is a symptom that something is terribly wrong with the way a child sees himself or herself and with a family system that is out of control in terms of family values and protective factors.

Yes, at the present time parents and community members and leaders are overwhelmed by the sweeping tide of increased abuse of illegal drugs among youngsters. I applaud President Clinton for stepping into the cigarette issue although I have not seen any changes yet.

The key has been, is and will be family systems that jump on the signs and symptoms of substance abuse early in elementary and middle school before the use actually starts. Such factors include poor grades, poor attitude, negative involvement with peers, anger toward others and hostility toward adults, too much free time and time on "the streets," changes in peers and a family history of substance abuse including cigarettes.

Overall the changes can be seen as a change in attitude and lifestyle to one of "I don't care."

Please, as a family, see the family doctor, minister, school counselor, social worker or call a licensed substance abuse or mental health professional for recommendations. Act early!

Don't let the problem get so bad that you have to shave your kid's head once a month to check for drugs. Parents - get the control and respect back.

Any questions or concerns call me at Northville High School, 344-1825.

Charlie Stilec is the Student Assistance Coordinator at Northville High School and a prevention specialist with the Community Commission on Drug Abuse, an agency funded, in part, by Southeast Michigan Substance Abuse Services.

Activity to benefit Alzheimer's research

Join the fight against Alzheimer's disease by participating in the fourth annual Memory Walk, on Saturday, Aug. 26, at the Detroit Zoo. Registration begins at 8:30 a.m. followed by the walk at 9:45 a.m.

The two-mile walk is open to the general public and walking clubs. A minimum of $25 in pledges, or a donation of $25 is requested, plus a $5 registration/zoo admission fee.

A face painter will be on hand for the kids, aerobic exercises will prepare participants for the walk, a clown band will provide us with music, healthy snacks will be served, and door prizes will be awarded. Trips and weekend get-a-ways will be awarded to eligible participants for pledges collected.

This year's walk, entitled "Walk with the Animals," is supported by the Detroit Area Chapter of Alzheimer's Association. Gold Sponsor Courtyard Manor, Silver sponsors, Kelley Assisted Living and Alternative Living Services Funds are raised to support local programs that benefit patients, families and caregivers who are affected by the disease.

Alzheimer's disease is a progressive disorder of the brain that gradually destroys mental capabilities resulting in the loss of memory, personality, language skills, judgment, and the ability to perform basic tasks. It is estimated that some 70,000 persons locally and over four million nationwide suffer from Alzheimer's. More than 100,000 people die each year from the disease making it the fourth leading cause of death among adults.

For more information or to volunteer, contact the Alzheimer's Association at (810) 557-8277.

High court tosses out worker's liability lawsuit

By TIM RICHARD
Staff Writer

The Michigan Supreme Court has upheld the dismissal of a products liability suit brought in 1984 by an injured worker.

Oakland Circuit Judge James S. Thornburn in 1988 dismissed the case of Eric Seasword, then in his late teens, after he was injured while working for Cooney Engineering Co. in Oak Park.

Seasword, now living in northern Oakland County, collected workers compensation, according to one of his attorneys, Gary Bloom of West Bloomfield. But Seasword also filed a products liability suit against Hilti Inc., seller of the power drill that injured him.

Chief Justice James Brickley, in a 5-1 decision Aug. 15, said the seller, Hilti Inc., was a separate corporation from Hilti A.G., the Lichtenstein-based designer and manufacturer of the drill.

Seasword's attorneys asked the high court to adopt the "apparent manufacturer doctrine" because Hilti Inc. not only sold and distributed but held itself out to be manufacturer of the drill.

The "apparent manufacturer doctrine" says that one who "puts out as his own product a chattel manufactured by another is subject to the same liability as though he were its manufacturer."

In a one-sentence dissent, Justice Charles Levin said, "This court should adopt the apparent manufacturer doctrine." That would have allowed Seasword to recover from Hilti.

Brickley's opinion saw no need to adopt that doctrine. "It is a well-recognized principle that separate corporate entities will be respected," he wrote. "Michigan law presumes that, absent some abuse of corporate form, parent and subsidiary corporations are separate and distinct entities ..."

"This presumption, often referred to as a 'corporate veil,' may be pierced only where an otherwise separate corporate existence has been used to subvert justice or cause a result, contrary to public policy.

The high court said Seasword offered no proof that Hilti Inc. and Hilti A.G. abused their separate corporate forms.

The case had been twice before the Court of Appeals and the Supreme Court.

It was argued before the Supreme Court on Nov. 2, 1993.

Proposed DNR change is substantial reform

By TIM RICHARD
Staff Writer

Personalities aside, there are some real issues in Gov. John Engler's decision to split the Department of Natural Resources and create a new Department of Environmental Quality.

Engler has only one defender outside his political backers: State Rep. Tom Alley, D-West Branch, minority vice chair of the House Conservation Committee.

"I believe the restructuring of the DNR will elevate the status of conservation issues without lessening attention to the environment. I have always believed this," said Alley, who in the past has enjoyed verbally battering DNR managers.

The DEQ will become the 20th department of state government Oct. 1 unless the Legislature overturns Engler's executive order by majority vote.

A lot of name-calling is going on in Lansing. Five basic issues emerge:

1. No warning. Engler never campaigned on the issue, and he gave no advance announcement of his intentions.

Engler's order was "prepared in secret without consultation with groups representing the public interest," said the Michigan Environmental Council, a coalition of 20 organizations including Friends of the Rouge, Detroit Audubon and Sierra Club.

Engler has faced that criticism before: when he unilaterally ended the general assistance welfare program in 1991 and when he called for repeal of the school code in 1995, both after political campaigns in which the proposals never were voiced.

John Truscott, the governor's director of communications, offered no defense of Engler's secrecy.

"I hope, in the future, the governor will be judged by his accomplishments and initiatives in environmental protection rather than the process by which he achieves those results," he said in a published letter.

2. No commission. The DNR is governed by a policy-making and appellate commission. DEQ will have a single director who will decide appeals on environmental permits.

Drafters of the 1963 Michigan Constitution preferred solo directors. "The head of each principal department shall be a single executive unless otherwise provided in this constitution or by law" (Art. V, Sec. 3).

The constitution also provides for Senate confirmation of the director. In practice, the Senate has not voted on confirmation, letting gubernatorial appointments stand unless there is strong support for rejecting an appointee.

Groups like Michigan United Conservation Clubs and the Michigan Environmental Council argue for a commission form, subject to the Open Meetings Act, where decisions can be argued in public.

3. No staff. Engler left conservation officers in the DNR and set up the DEQ with little staff.

DEQ will have authority over these divisions: air quality, environmental response, surface water quality, underground storage tank, waste management, office of administrative hearings, office of the Great Lakes, and two environmental education offices.

DNR will keep the fisheries, wildlife, parks, law enforcement and real estate divisions.

MUCC's executive director, Tom Washington, argued that DEQ will "lack enforcement authority since no staffing is provided for this." Washington said DEQ's announced plan to contract with state police and county sheriffs' departments won't work because they "already are hard strapped to find time for enforcing criminal statutes."

Russ Harding, new DEQ director, called that argument "not true. In fact ECOs (environmental conservation officers) will be transferred to the DEQ. In the future we plan to contract for those services from the State Police and/or the DNR and phase the ECOs back to the DNR to enhance the CO ranks ...

"By contracting for enforcement activities, we believe that the focus of individual investigators will be on enforcement 100 percent of the time and will alleviate investigators from burdensome administrative work."

The Michigan Environmental Council criticized "the likely diversion of budget and staff resources now devoted to environmental protection into new top supervisory positions at the DEQ."

4. No teeth. Harding himself is loathed by conservationists and Attorney General Frank Kelley. They fear he will cater to, rather than regulate, industry.

To express your opinion of the new DEQ and its director, write to your state senator and state representative, State Capitol, Lansing 48909.

Power use sets new record

Searing heat in Michigan drove Consumers Power Co. to an all-time hourly peak demand record of 7,139 megawatts (MW) on Aug. 14 for the hour that ended at 3 p.m.

The new record surpasses the former all-time mark of 6,889 MW set July 31 and is 9.8 percent above the all-time record of 6,502 MW set in June 1994. An all-time record for 24 hours of 144,970 megawatt-hours (MWH) was also set Aug. 14, 7.5 percent higher than the record reached in June 1994.

Separately, Consumers Power has set all-time electric sendout records for each of the past three consecutive weeks. The new all-time weekly sendout record of 857,994 MWH, set for the week of Aug. 6-12, is 4.5 percent higher than the record set in 1994. Consumers Power also hit its highest hourly peak for any Sunday in its history on Aug. 13, surpassing the former record by 18 percent.

"Due to the extended pattern of hotter-than-normal temperatures, Consumers Power electric customers can expect higher bills resulting from increased use of air conditioners and fans," said James R. Dunn, the utility's director of customer programs and planning.

"We encourage customers anticipating bill payment problems to contact us to make special arrangements," said Dunn. Consumers Power's statewide customer access number is 1-800-477-5050.

Consumers Power Co. is Michigan's largest natural gas and electric utility.

Michigan residents rate local schools as an 'A' or 'B'

By TIM RICHARD
Staff Writer

The results of a telephone survey of 1,300 Michiganders spelled bad news for critics who say public schools are a failure.

"People like their schools. Half of the respondents gave their local schools a grade of A or B," said a staff summary of the survey, presented Aug. 16 to the State Board of Education.

The survey showed little enthusiasm for school "choice," a buzzword with board president Clark Durant, R-Grosse Pointe, and political conservatives.

"Nearly two-thirds of the parent respondents said they would not exercise an educational choice if they had one. In fact, parents said they would not take their child out of the school he or she now attends, even if the child could be sent to any private or parochial school at public expense," the report said.

People strongly opposed parochial aid and vouchers — state funds supporting private and parochial schools. Favoring them were 27 percent; opposed were 70 percent; the rest couldn't say. The anti-parochial sentiment was even stronger than in 1970 when 57 percent of voters amended the state constitution to prohibit parochial aid and vouchers.

A heavy 84 percent said "charter schools" — favored by Durant and Gov. John Engler — "should abide by the same rules as public schools."

Those surveyed, by random-digit telephone calls, supported statewide standards for education, which opponents call "bureaucratic rules." The survey showed continued strong support for local control — and a low level of confidence in state legislators.

Board member Dorothy Beardmore, R-Rochester, asked for a breakout by Detroit versus the rest of the state because of a perception that Detroiters are unhappier with their public schools than others. "I don't want Detroit to be lost in southeastern Michigan figures," she said. "Detroit is very different from the rest of the state and even from southeastern Michigan."

Durant asked if the public's perceptions of school quality were moving up or down. The answer: up.

Barbara Roberts Mason, D-Lansing, called the survey "attitudinal — not based upon facts. We have a lot of data that schools are better."

Gary Wolfram, R-Hillsdale, said past surveys showed parents in school districts with low MEAP (assessment) scores gave more A and B ratings to local schools than did parents in high-scoring districts.

State Rep. James Agee, D-Muskegon, a former school superintendent and strong critic of Durant, commented outside the board meeting that the survey was "the real story" and that State Board members wanted to avoid giving it much time, even though the board had funded the survey.

Some key findings:

- Has public educational quality become better or worse "during the past few years?" Twenty-eight percent said better, 34 percent the same, 24 percent worse, 14 percent can't say. Parents gave higher marks than non-parents.
- Should the state set standards for all students in reading, math, social studies and science? Forty-six percent strongly agree, 41 percent somewhat agree, 11 percent disagree and one percent can't say. Non-parents were more strongly in support of state standards than parents.
- What one thing would you change in local public schools if you could? Thirty-one percent said teachers' unions and tenure; 24 percent said reduce taxes and costs; others were scattered.

- On a 1-5 scale, with 5 as high, what priorities should public schools have? Those ranked 5: helping students prepare for college, 68 percent; helping students learn computers and technologies, 67 percent; helping students learn job skills, 61 percent; keeping teachers and administrators up-to-date, 61 percent.
- Lowest ranked: helping students understand different cultures, 25 percent.
- Teaching respect for other cultures had been a high priority on the pre-Durant board.

Seasonal workers to get jobless benefits

Not all seasonal workers will be denied jobless benefits once new provisions of the state's unemployment insurance law go into effect in July, 1996.

"In recent public hearings, we've seen a great deal of confusion surrounding the issue of unemployment benefits for seasonal workers," F. Robert Edwards, director of the Michigan Employment Security Commission, reported. "But the new law changes give employers a large say in determining if their seasonal employees will qualify for benefits."

According to changes approved earlier this year by the legislature, an employer must apply to MESC and meet certain criteria to receive a "seasonal employer" designation.

"The new law is not a blanket denial of unemployment benefits to seasonal workers," Edwards said. "Employers can choose to apply for designation as a seasonal employer. If they so choose, their seasonal employees will be denied benefits during the off-season."

"The process empowers employers," Edwards explained. It will be their business decision to either seek or not seek the seasonal employer designation.

Edwards said that MESC has completed six out of 16 public hearings that focus on jobless benefits for seasonal workers. The first six hearings were held in the Upper Peninsula and are intended to help MESC develop easy-to-understand rules and policies for employers and seasonal workers to follow in implementing the new seasonality provisions next year.

To qualify as a seasonal employer a business must employ half of its work force for 26 weeks or less, be in a seasonal industry and apply for the seasonal designation. Once categorized as seasonal, employers will have to provide their workers with reasonable assurance of reemployment for the next season, post notices that they are a season employer and notify employees that they are seasonal workers.

MESC plans an extensive educational outreach effort to employers and workers on the changes to the state's unemployment insurance program once technical modifications are made this fall in the legislature to fine tune the recent amendments.

Ground broken on dealership expansion

Shuman Motor Sales, a Chrysler Plymouth dealership, broke ground on a 6,300-square-foot addition to their 13,000-square-foot facility at the intersection of Pontiac Trail and South Commerce in Walled Lake Tuesday, Aug. 15.

The new addition will be used to help meet the increased demand for parts and service.

"We hope to increase service efficiency and continue to render proper service to the growing Walled Lake community which we have served for more than 40 years," said Shuman Motor Sales owner Dick Shuman.

According to Shuman, the parts and service area expansion will enable the dealership to better accommodate the recently acquired Jeep/Eagle franchise. He hopes to introduce Jeep/Eagle products to the dealership in time to introduce the new '96 model.

The Wixom-based Schonsheck Inc. is the design-build firm for the project, which is expected to be completed in late fall.

The Shuman family has been associated with the automobile business since 1921. Shuman and his father opened a Ford dealership in Walled Lake in 1955. The business moved to 1111 S. Commerce in 1967. Shuman opened the Chrysler dealership in 1982.

Estate planning can make sure your family is cared for Concerned about the well-being of your family? The Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants explains that effective estate planning can ensure that your children are properly cared for, that legal costs of administering your wishes are minimized, and that your estate—the property you have accumulated over your lifetime—is not subject to unnecessary or exorbitant taxes.

A will is the cornerstone of any estate plan. It outlines who will receive your property at your death and also names an executor to administer your estate. Should you die without a will, there is no guarantee that your wishes will be carried out. The laws of your state will determine how your estate is to be divided among your surviving relatives. If you have no close relatives, your assets automatically will go to the state.

If you have minor children, your will should name a guardian to care for them in the event you and your spouse both die. If you have not named a guardian in your will, the courts will appoint someone to care for your children.

In the eyes of the law, there are two kinds of guardianships: a guardian who handles the children's day-to-day upbringing and one who manages whatever money or property you've left to them

While it may seem easiest to have one guardian handle both responsibilities, this may not always be wise. For example, if a person is well-suited to raising your children, but not particularly adept at managing finances, you should consider naming a person with more financial know-how to oversee the children's assets in cooperation with the other guardian.

In general terms, a trust is a separate legal entity into which a person transfers property for his or her benefit or for the benefit of others (beneficiaries). In recent years, many people have started to utilize living trusts. These trusts, which can be established and executed during your lifetime, provide a means for you to distribute property to your heirs.

Living trusts enable you to avoid probate (the process and costs associated with carrying out the terms of your will), but do not protect your assets from estate taxes.

Generally, you may leave up to $600,000 in assets to your heirs free of federal estate taxes. The $600,000 is called the credit equivalent amount. The federal government collects estate taxes ranging from 37 cents to 55 cents on every dollar over this amount.

In addition, many states levy death taxes. To minimize the tax bite on your estate, CPAs recommend that you estimate the fair market value of your property. If you think your estate will top $600,000 at the time of your death, it may be wise to begin transferring property out of your estate.

An easy way to diminish the size of your estate is to give away some assets. Uncle Sam allows each person to make a gift of up to $10,000 per year (or $20,000 a year for couples) to as many people as desired without incurring taxes.

Another way to transfer assets out of your estate is through an irrevocable trust. However, since you lose all control over the trust's assets, only those individuals who are certain they have sufficient funds to maintain a comfortable lifestyle should consider this type of trust. A gift tax return must be filed by the grantor for the fair market value of the assets transferred to the trust.

Be aware that the estate tax marital deduction allows husbands and wives to leave all their assets to each other without triggering estate taxes. However, failing to use the full credit equivalent amount of $600,000 means more taxes may be owed on the second estate. It's important to review how assets are owned to make sure each spouse makes maximum use of the $600,000 credit equivalent.

As part of the estate planning process, it also may be wise to prepare a living will. A living will indicates whether you want to receive life-sustaining treatment in the event you become terminally ill. In the absence of a living will, the presumption is that you want treatment to continue indefinitely.

Keep in mind that wills and estate plans are not once-in-a-lifetime documents. CPAs emphasize that changing circumstances and new laws make it essential to review your estate plan every few years.

Much is being said about the rigorous screening process we put our doctors through.
But don't worry.
Some survive.

It's a tall order. And maybe not every doctor is cut out for it. But then if we're going to make things easier for our patients, we must strive to provide quality doctors. So, before any doctors become Blue Care Network doctors, before they ever examine a single patient, they must first meet or surpass some rather lofty standards. Here's what it takes. First, all doctors (personal care physicians and specialists) are reviewed against specific written criteria. (Quality of care is the thing we're measuring here.)

Moreover, an on-site inspection is conducted by specially trained staff and the results are reviewed by Blue Care Network doctors in the area.

Patient satisfaction surveys are conducted by a professional, independent research company. Here, we ask patients to evaluate their doctor's technical skills as well as the basic level of service and care.

Blue Care Network also works with its personal care physicians to ensure that standards are met.

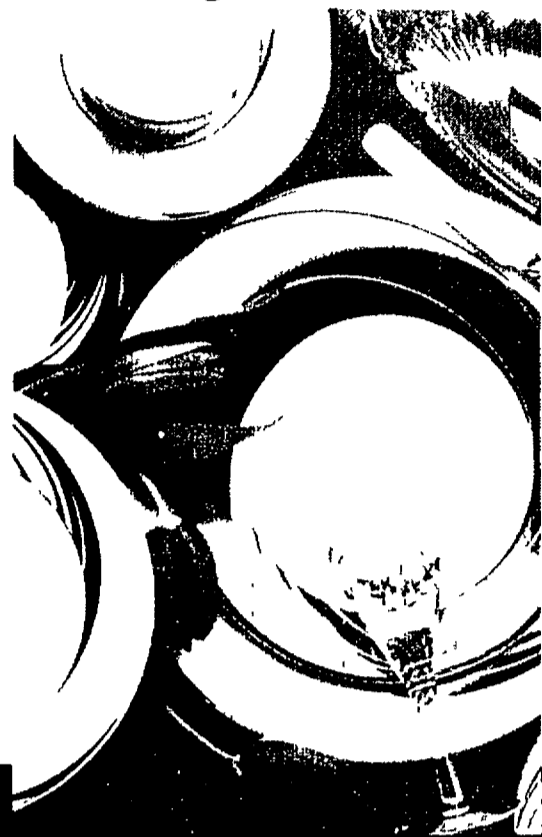

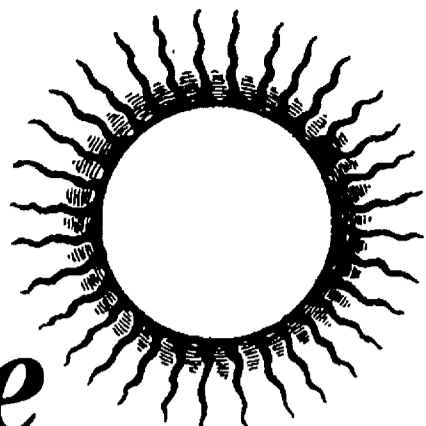

Oh, and one more thing. After meeting all these standards, the doctors who are selected have the pleasure of repeating this process all over again every two years. For as long as they're with us.

Blue Care Network

We screen our doctors so you get better care.

Is a Michigan MBA that important?

Should we tell the world how important our MBA program is by changing the University logo? We probably couldn't get away with it, but many graduates (and even more potential employers) think that a Masters degree in Business Administration from the University of Michigan is among the strongest in the field. Good news for you.

The School of Management now offers two graduate degree programs at the Dearborn campus. There is a dual degree program leading to both the Master of Business Administration and Master of Science in Engineering—Industrial and Systems Engineering. Then there is the MBA program which is designed as a cross-over vehicle for those whose undergraduate degrees are in areas other than business administration.

Of course, with the Dearborn campus, things are even more convenient for many students. Not easier, just more convenient. After all, this is the University of Michigan. Go Blue!

From UofM-Dearborn. Two great choices for one great future!

The children start boarding buses next week for another school year, but some think the school year should be longer.

Back to the three R's

By CAROL WORKENS
Staff Writer

While some parents may be eager to get their children back in the classroom next week, there are others who think the summer vacation is not long enough.

On the flip side are concerns about the education of the children and the readjustment period after extended time off school.

Are children really spending enough time in the classroom? A new state mandate indicates that apparently there is concern that children need a better education to keep up with their counterparts in Germany and Japan.

The mandate calls for each school district to add two additional school days, or the equivalent number of clock hours, to its calendar each year until the year 2010, for a total of 210 days or 1,260 clock hours.

"We are already adapting ourselves to the inevitable," Leonard Rezmierski, Northville public schools superintendent said.

"The die has been cast to work toward extended days," he said.

"We will explore other creative options to meet the goal."

"We have not studied it in Novi with our parents and groups up to this point," Dr. Emmett Lippe, superintendent of the Novi public schools, said.

"The loss of retention is much less, particularly in the lower grades, in places where they've done this."

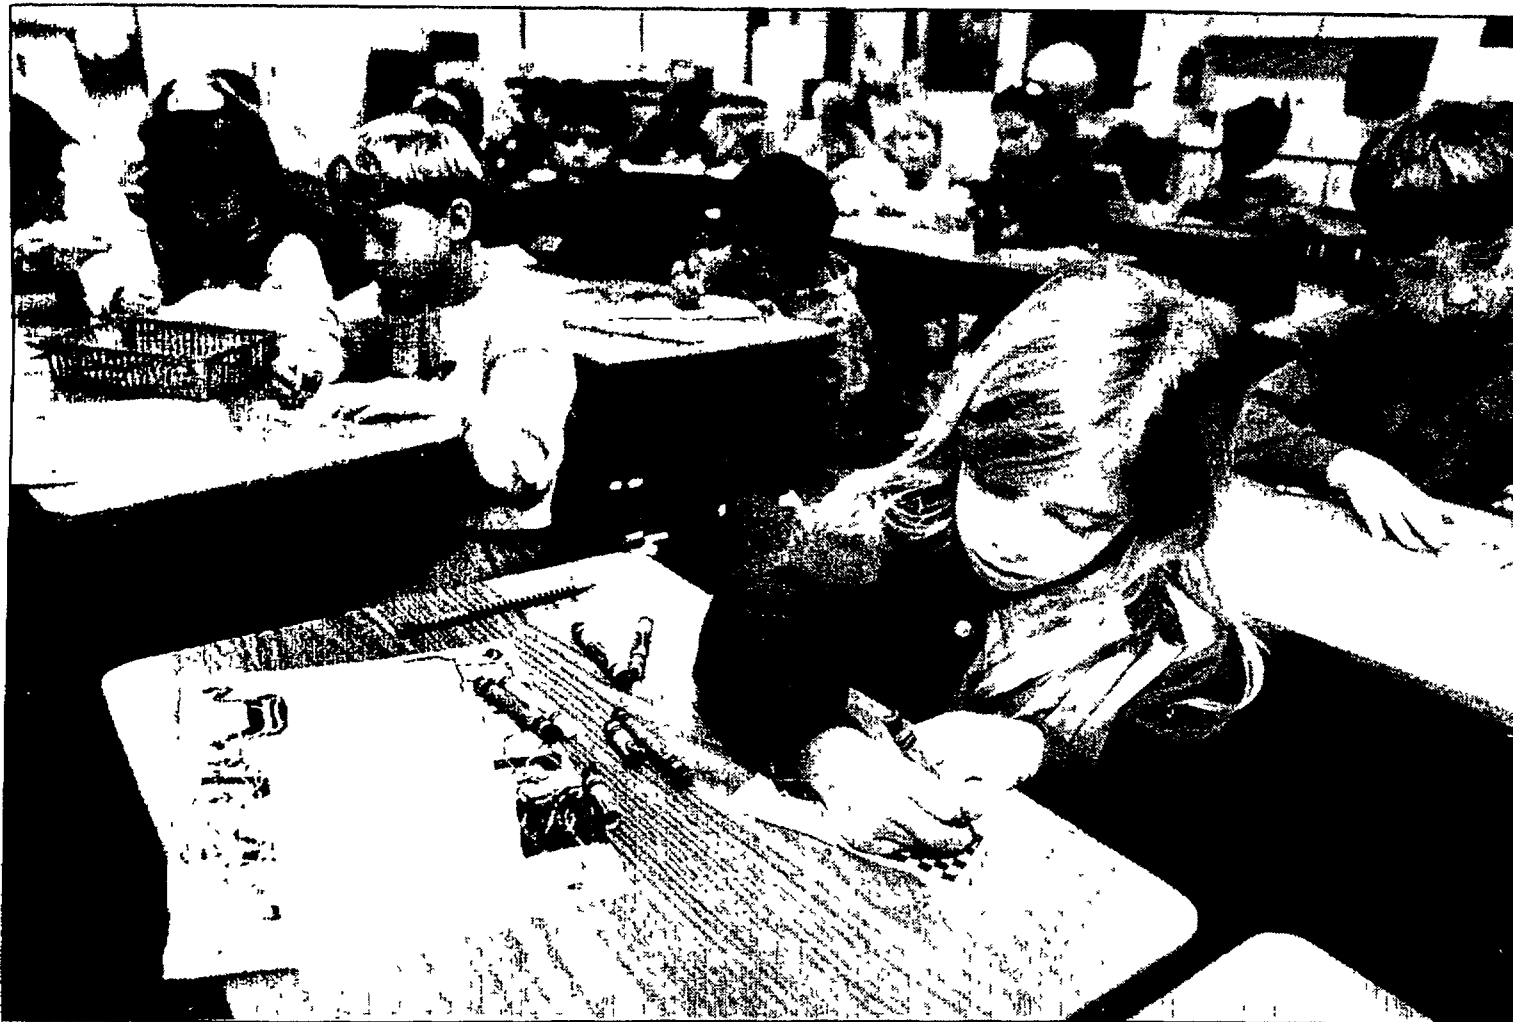

Retention is greater, the loss of education knowledge by the kids is not as severe, when there is only a four-week vacation, according to Lippe.

The downside would be the possible interruption to the family vacations.

"There is no school during the month of July for most places that have it," Lippe said.

"As time goes on, the school districts will be exploring extended school years," he said.

"In most places that do this they started with one or two buildings and it is optional at first," he said.

CHERYL BYERLY

Byerly takes a tough approach to problems

By DOROTHY NASH
Staff Writer

"Tough love" is an organization for adults whose children are out of control, and Northville Parents Support is the same thing except "we don't pay dues," according to spokesperson Cheryl Byerly.

The group meets on Wednesday evenings from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the First Presbyterian Church in Northville to discuss parenting problems and offer suggestions on how to solve them.

The original group started in Livonia 14 years ago. "I started going there three or four years ago," said Byerly, "and then a year ago we split off," and established this parent support group, "helping individuals change themselves."

There is no leader. Somebody brings up a problem and everybody offers suggestions. Some suggestions work; others don't.

A boy was coming home at all hours. The parents eventually locked the house at 11 p.m. It worked. A girl was running up telephone bills. The parents cut down to one phone. It was an inconvenience for them, but it worked. Another boy who continued to run away was using drugs. The parents created a paper trail to the police and convinced the courts to keep him. It took a little over a year.

Yet another boy who used drugs wasn't coming home at night and had run-ins with the police. After an Oakland County case of assault, the parents were convinced something should be done. They had the boy check himself into the hospital for drug use and he was let out a year ago. He went back to school. His grades went up. He got a summer job.

"Most parents don't follow through," Byerly said. "They quit. They give in to the child."

And Byerly said, "The cause or effect can also be a breakdown between the parents; the children's behavior can be the cause but the parents are not in agreement and one of them is too soft."

If you have a problem, you're welcome to attend the meetings.

GETTING YOUR KICKS

Participation in the fall soccer leagues both in-house and select teams is expected to be nearly 1,168 in Novi and 978 in Northville.

Move toward extended schooling slow in coming

"As it becomes more familiar, more people opt to take it."

"It's a great idea," Dr. James Geisler, superintendent of the Walled Lake Public School District, said. "But hard to pull off."

"We studying it and it is part of our strategic plans," he said.

This year, the Walled Lake Schools will be adding clock hours to conform to the mandate.

Geisler sees the more formidable issue being the acceptance of the community and the possible disruption of the family vacation plans. The facility implications and contractual issues will be easier to resolve, according to Geisler.

"I think those long breaks are disruptive to their education," said Nancy Hendricks, PTO president at Novi Meadows, who is familiar with extended schooling.

"We have seen the benefits of both systems and are willing to consider it."

The Hendricks lived in Japan from 1986 until 1990 and their two children were in the Japanese school system during that time.

In fact, her children attend the Japanese School of Detroit for 7 hours on Saturdays, 42 Saturdays out of the year, to maintain their Japanese language and art skills.

"Children are with their friends," Hendricks said of the advantage of extended schooling, "that is what education provides, a rich social education."

"Reprioritizing may be necessary for some families," Hendricks said, for those who put too much emphasis on vacations and not enough on education.

Not all that time is purely academic, according to Hendricks. There are special sports and cultural days which take classroom time to prepare for.

"They have daily physical education," Hendricks said.

The Japanese break their school year into three semesters, April through July, August through December and January through March. There is a two-week break at the end of the year in December and a two-week vacation during their religious holiday. At the end of the school year in March, students get 10 days off.

Teachers do their planning meetings during the breaks, according to Hendricks. During the summer, the media center is open and the pool is open daily. The students are asked to maintain the garden as part of their science class.

Although Dale Otterman, PTSA president at Cooke Middle School has never been involved in a school district offering an extended school schedule, she is in favor of it.

"I've always had an interest in readjusting vacation time so that less time is spent in the review process," she said.

"From a personal family standpoint, it's hard for my husband to take all his vacation time in the summer."

"It will take a big mental adjustment," she said, for people to accept the change.

"My kids would probably hate it," she said of her two children, a sixth grader at Cooke Middle School and a ninth grader at Northville High School.

"Every minute our kids spend with their teachers is very valuable," she said.

Linda Jo Hare, PTSA president at Meads Mill Middle School in Northville, would like to see a longer summer vacation.

"Think I can speak for my kids when I say they enjoy the summer and having a chance to recoup from the school year," she said. "I would like them to get out sooner in June and go back after Labor day."

"We only need one week at Christmas," she said, "and we don't need a week in February and a week during the Easter break."

Denise Sylvester's trip included holding the 30 pound koala at Bunya Park in Grafton, Australia.

Student's vacation far from routine

Tasting crocodile meat and feeding a kangaroo made this summer vacation a little out of the ordinary for Denise Sylvester.

The eighth grade Cooke Middle School student recently returned from Australia where she participated in her first People to People youth ambassador program.

"Australia is very scenic and peaceful," Sylvester said.

Some of her activities included snorkeling the Great Barrier Reef, where she was able to take pictures with an underwater camera, camping in the outback, learning about the aboriginal culture, riding camels, visiting the capital in Canberra, touring the Sydney Opera House, tasting Australian dishes such as kangaroo burgers and crocodile meat.

"Crocodile meat tastes fishy and I didn't like kangaroo burgers," she said. "They don't taste like a hamburger at all."

Sylvester did enjoy holding a koala and feeding the kangaroos though.

Her two nights with a host family in Sydney included playing cards and discussing the similarities and differences between the two countries.

To become an ambassador,

Denise submitted letters of recommendations from her fifth grade teacher, sixth grade home economics teacher and seventh grade social studies teacher, and her previous girl scout leader.

along with group and individual interviews.

She was one of 33 middle school students selected from Wayne and Monroe counties to be a student ambassador to Australia.

Once selected, Denise attended four preliminary informational meetings and presented an informational speech on one of the areas she would be visiting. Besides learning about the government, economics, heritage and ecology of Australia, she also needed to be current on her knowledge of the United States.

Denise also kept a journal of her activities.

Now that she has returned, her responsibilities include giving informative speeches about the people and culture of Australia to promote world peace and understanding. She also has to complete a post-trip paper and submit it along with copies of her journal to receive a half high school credit.

Denise is the daughter of Don and Anna Sylvester of Northville.

Carol Nelson/Neil Crane

Mr. and Mrs. H. Gill Nelson of Northville announce the engagement of their daughter, Carol H., to Neil R. Crane, the son of Kenneth and Roma Crane of Great Yarmouth, Norfolk, England. The bride-elect is a 1987 Northville High School graduate. She graduated from Central Michigan University in 1991, where she was a member of Phi Sigma Sigma sorority. She is employed as an assistant operations manager for Today's Temporary in Detroit. The bridegroom-elect received his education in England. He is a graduate of Lynn Grove High School and attended Great Yarmouth College. While in England he was employed as district training manager for Sainsbury's, PLC, a retail food corporation. The wedding will take place on Sept. 2, 1995.

Weddings

Heather and Mark Powell

Former Northville resident Heather Ann Capote married Mark Edward Powell on Aug. 28, 1994. Heather is the daughter of Marie-Louise and Baltasar Capote of Plymouth. The bridegroom is the son of Diane and Charles Powell of Taylor.

The bride and her family lived at the Bruce Turnbull family home on Fairbrook from 1976 to 1984. They moved to the Chicago area in 1984 due to her father's job relocation. Rev. Gene Sorensen of Unity of Livonia officiated at the ceremony. The location was by a pond with a water fall in the garden, of the Capote home. A harpist played strains of Cannon in D as the bride was escorted by her father down a brick path. The wedding followed a 1920s theme.

The bride wore an ivory chiffon dress with handkerchief hemline and butterfly sleeves. Her mid-length veil was held by a band of Rosepoint lace that was taken from her great-great-grandmother's dust cap. The lace band was worn by her mother on her wedding day. She carried a bouquet of ivory roses, baby breath, tree fern and cactus on her arm.

Maid-of-Honor, Elaine Gurka, and bridesmaid, Angela Boismier, wore mauve tea length dresses with draped neckline and flared hemlines. Also in attendance for the bride was Chelsea Gibson, flower girl and niece of the groom.

Attending the groom were best man, Steve Nicolich; groomsman and brother of the bride, Gregory Adam Capote; and Matthew Gibson, ring bearer and nephew of the groom.

The groom recited Shakespearean verse before placing the wedding band. A pair of white homing pigeons was released before 125 guests.

After a champagne toast the couple was chauffeured in a 1940 Lincoln Zephyr to their reception at Weller's Carriage House in Saline. Strolling musicians entertained guests on the grounds. The groom's mother and maternal grandmother, Evelyn Hanton of Cleves, Ohio, designed and made all of the bouquets, corsages, and boutonnières as well as the flower arrangements of heather and ivy for the table decorations.

The bride and groom met as a result of their mutual interest in theater. They are both communication graduates of Eastern Michigan University. The couple honeymooned in Toronto.

Linda and Joseph Kupsky

Linda Ann Amlotte and Joseph Lawrence Kupsky were married Sunday, May 28, 1995, at the Alumni Chapel, Michigan State University, East Lansing. Arlo Peterson officiated at the double ring ceremony. A reception for 175 guests followed at Hannah Center Ballroom in East Lansing.

The bride is the daughter of Ken and Norma Amlotte of Wyoming, Mich. She received her bachelor's degree in child development from Michigan State University and is now teaching preschool.

Attending the bride was maid-of-honor DeLynne Vail of White Plains, N.Y. Her bridesmaids were Tanya Austhof of Grand Rapids, Dawn Johnson of Wyoming, Mich., and Deborah Trabin of Northville.

The groom is the son of Larry and Eve Kupsky of Novi and Susan Kupsky of Brighton. He is currently a student at Michigan State University.

The best man to the groom was Robert Kupsky of Brighton. Groomsman were Jasen Deglillo of Plymouth, Douglas Amlotte of Hudsonville, Mich., and Matthew Bemer of Northville.

Following a cruise to the Bahamas and a visit to Disney World, the couple now reside in East Lansing.

Children check out their health and have fun too

By CAROL WORKENS
Staff Writer

There will be plenty for the children to do and plenty for their parents to learn at "Invest in Your Child" on Saturday, Aug. 26 at the Novi Town Center in Novi.

A number of support organizations will be available from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. to give free immunizations, identification pictures and fitness evaluations.

The immunization Action Program of the Oakland County Health Division will have its new mobile immunization, health service unit on site. The 38-foot motor home, one of five purchased by the state of Michigan with tobacco tax money, has two examining stations, a mobile phone and a laboratory.

"We bring them (the motor homes) out to make the immunizations more accessible," Evelyn Reinke, facilitator of the immunization Action Program at the Oakland County Health Division and a registered nurse, said.

"We will have all of the vaccines for the nine preventable illnesses," she said. "Parents or guardians must bring the child's health records."

Nurses will also be available to answer health questions.

The hepatitis B vaccine will also be available free for all children who have not yet reached their second birthday.

"Our goal is to get our immunization levels up to acceptable levels," Rienke said. "Ninety to 95 percent is acceptable. We're only at 50 to 60 percent right now."

Children ages 7 to 14 will have an opportunity to have a free FitnessGram, compliments of Botsford Health Development Network and TRACC of Novi.

Registration for the FitnessGram will be at 10 and at 11 a.m. with the fitness evaluation being given at 10:45 and 11:45 a.m.

The 20 to 30 minute evaluation takes a look at the five major parameters. Body composition will be measured on the back of the arm and calf using skin fold calipers. Muscular endurance will be measured by the number of sit ups the child can do in one minute. Muscular strength is measured either by bent arm hangs or chin ups. Flexibility is evaluated by a sit and reach test, where the child in a sitting position has to touch his toes. In a world besieged by evil, the only power on Earth strong enough to fight it is the Mighty Morphin Power Rangers.

Power Rangers fight evil forces to save planet

Our world is under attack. The most evil force ever known is laying siege to the good citizens of Angel Grove, and he has nefarious plans to conquer the entire planet itself. He has incredibly powerful armies at his command — as well as lots and lots of slime.

His name is Ivan Ooze, and only one power on Earth can stop him — the Mighty Morphin Power Rangers.

That's right, folks. The Saturday morning kiddie show is now a movie titled "Mighty Morphin Power Rangers: The Movie." Reprising their famed Power Ranger roles on the big screen are Karan Ashley, Johnny Yong Bosch, Steve Cardenas, Jason David Frank, Amy Jo Johnson and David Yost.

In addition to the six young Power Rangers and the incredible excitement and adventure loved by millions around the world, this all-new, big-screen version of Saban Entertainment's international multi-media phenomenon features exciting never-before-seen elements including incredible new Zords, spectacular monsters, mighty Power Ranger uniforms, state-of-the-art special effects and mind-boggling stunts.

It all flows together to make the film a cross between "Star Wars" and "The Wizard of Oz."

Morphin mania had its genesis in the incredibly successful television series, now in its second season on the Fox Children's Network, and also encompasses a nationally touring original, family-oriented theatrical stage production ("Mighty Morphin Power Rangers Live"), extensive and innovative merchandising tie-ins and, now, a major motion picture.

The popularity of "Mighty Morphin Power Rangers" stems in part

from its fantastical characters and locations. "Kids love the colors and the lights and sounds and music," said producer Suzanne Todd. "It takes them through an exciting experience."

The Power Rangers' appeal also comes from more than just action and adventure. The characters themselves demonstrate some important everyday values to the audience.

Through its interweaving of these and other concepts — like the importance of environmental protection and the challenges of fitting into a group — into the storylines, the Power Rangers have become role models to children across the country. "We've always tried to give positive messages to kids," said David Yost, who plays Billy, the Blue Power Ranger.

Adds Karan Ashley, who is Aisha, the Yellow Power Ranger: "We have a lot of different ethnic backgrounds, so kids can really look up to that."

The Power Rangers' live appearances also bring personal rewards to the actors. "The best thing about being a Power Ranger," said Karan, "is the look on kids' faces when they see us out in public. It tells us they really believe in the positive things we're trying to depict."

excitement, fun and surprises. One of the movie's biggest and slickest surprises is unveiled in the form of the Power Rangers' newest and most villainous foe — the ultimate evil, Ivan Ooze. With the fate of the planet at stake, the Power Rangers fight their most important battle ever against this purple-clad, gelatinous evil-doer.

With Ivan and all the other new elements, the filmmakers nevertheless were intent on staying true to the television series loved by millions. "We're really just reinterpreted the characters, sets and costumes," said Suzanne Todd, the producer whose previous efforts include "Die Hard 2" and "National Lampoon's Loaded Weapon."

"The movie is an expansion," she continued. "We're not taking the television show and changing it; we're improving on it. It's bigger and better, but we've kept everything that audiences love about the show."

The film is directed by Bryan Spicer, who has made a name for himself with his imaginative visual style and innovative work on such highly-regarded series as "The Adventures of Briscoe County, Jr." and "Parker Lewis Can't Lose."

"We've tried to elevate what's previously been done on the television show," said Spicer.

"Everything in our film is more imposing, larger and more impressive."

Spicer said he also wanted to bring something besides a larger scope to the movie. "I tried to provide a sense of humor, which is important because it appeals to both children and adults," he said. "I also wanted to give the story a little heart."

The director refers specifically to the story point of having the Power Rangers travel to a distant world to save their leader, Zordon, as bringing a strong emotional core to the film. "Early on, the kids lose their powers and are in danger of also losing Zordon, their mentor. This gives a center to the story and brings out some emotion as well."

After their Command Center is trashed by the nefarious Ivan, the Power Rangers must obtain a new and greater power to rescue Zordon ... and the world.

With the help of a stunningly beautiful warrior named Dulcea, they learn the ancient art of Nin-jetti, the perfect union of mind, body and spirit. With new powers and new animal Zords, the Power Rangers are ready to take on Ivan in a breathtaking battle above the streets of Angel Grove and into the far reaches of outer space.

'Apollo 13' is out of this world

By Joe Tracz
Northville

In an age where space shuttles are commonplace and rocket launches don't even make front page news, Ron Howard's dramatic "Apollo 13" is proof that there still is excitement in space exploration. The movie is based on the problems plaguing the Apollo 13 moon launch and does a surprisingly remarkable job of bringing the historical facts to life.

The technical data is presented in an easy-to-understand fashion so that even the youngest viewer will know what is going on. And the fact that the movie is based on history doesn't stop the suspense; even those who already know the ending will find themselves gripping the edge of their seats by the end of the film.

READER MOVIE REVIEWS

All the heart-stopping action combined with the dramatic edge that the movie features can be attributed to the stunning visual effects and high quality performances. The space scenes are about as realistic as can be since they were filmed in a simulation shuttle, complete with anti-gravity. What Ron Howard was able to accomplish on film is phenomenal

The astronauts on the Apollo spacecraft are played by Tom Hanks, Bill Paxton and Kevin Bacon. Ed Harris is the commander at Mission Control, and Gary Sinise is an astronaut whose help is required to bring back the shuttle. Is it too early to think about Academy Awards? We'll have to wait and see. Amidst the flock of new movies coming out this summer, "Apollo 13" will be one that will soar above the rest.

SPECIES
By Mike Kapusky
Northville

Another movie about a secret government experiment that went wacko? But "Species" is glittered with flashy violence and astonishing special effects.

When the government decides to terminate an experiment of combining human DNA with alien DNA, the sheltered humanoid created, played by Natasha Henstridge, grows a bit angry about the idea of death and escapes her glass cage.

Now a lethal alien predator disguised in the form of a beautiful woman is roaming L.A., and, well, about the only thing she wants to do is reproduce. A special team formed by the government may be the last hope for the human race.

"Species" has fantastic visual effects, violence that flirts with your mind, and suspense that rattles a jolt through your nerves; however, this thriller is splattered with gut-stomping violent kills, a dreary plot and shady characters. These negatives may mean a lot in any other movie, but "Species" is guaranteed to disturb you somehow the first time you see it.

"Species" consists of morbid ideas that need a little more work, but it still deserves three stars for the effort. (Scale of five, five the highest). Not equal or better than the "Alien" movies, but fans will enjoy it anyway.

Artist has first show

By CAROL WORKENS
Staff Writer

The new exhibit at the Gate VI Gallery, located in the atrium of the Novi Civic Center will feature the works of Bill Whikehart.

An electrical engineer with Ford Motor Company in the audio components department, had been painting just for fun off and on through the years.

In 1994 he started experimenting with paper mache had a piece in the Ann Arbor Art Association member show late last year.

When Whikehart noticed the oil pastels that his two daughters, fifth grader Rebecca and fourth grader Rachael, were using in school, he bought a set for himself.

"I decided to get serious about it and stick with it," Whikehart said. "I got better pastels and did more pictures."

He has since upgraded into professional pastels which are more light-fast tures," he said. "I work from those."

With the encouragement of his wife, Karen, and the help of gallery owner, Larry Champine, Whikehart has put together eight oil pastels for his first exhibit which runs through mid-October.

"The show is good exposure and I'll need to do more of that," he said

"I'm going to keep doing the oil pastels," the self-taught artist said, "and branch out into some other subjects like still life, figures, portraits."

WLAA & KVC: What's next?

KVC looks to choose correct path as school year begins

By Merrill Cain

The navigation is clear for seven-team Kensington Valley Conference. Ahead is a fork in the road and the conference has to choose one way or the other.

As the beginning of the fall prep sports season approaches, the KVC and its member schools find themselves looking not only to the coming season but beyond as well.

Because of the recent formation of many "mega" conferences in and around the tri-county area, the small KVC has seen the writing on the wall. The days of the small conferences are numbered, and the KVC has to find a way to defend itself against the bigger, more powerful leagues.

The KVC has been exploring possible mergers with other conferences in recent years. While some conference officials believe the KVC can exist on its own, others fear for the league's future if it doesn't expand.

SCHEDULING IS THE PROBLEM

Problems cropped up for the KVC for the past several years. Scheduling is the main concern.

With the recent establishment of the 24-team Oakland Activities Association (OAA), the local league has seen most of its traditional non-league dates disappear. The league includes South Lyon, Milford, Lakeland, Novi, Hartland, Howell and Brighton.

Rivalries established over the years with other area schools have fallen by the wayside because of the mega-leagues.

Take the case of Lakeland High School, for example.

The Eagles' football team has played the Waterford schools in both its season opening and closing dates for the past 20 years. The team has traditionally opened with Waterford Kettering and closed its schedule with Waterford Mott since the 1970s.

Yet, because the Waterford schools are now part of the OAA and the conference wants to fill as many dates with other OAA teams, the non-league rivalry will come to an end after this season.

"It's just getting harder and harder as far as scheduling is concerned, especially with the non-league dates," said Huron Valley athletic director Jim Horan.

Horan had to schedule a two-and-a-half hour, one-way journey to Inlay City for the Lakeland varsity football team last season because of a lack of local teams with an open non-league date.

"Because of the other leagues resizing, if you don't go the route of the mega-leagues," Horan said, "you'll have trouble finding games."

The situation is even worse for the KVC because it has an odd number of teams. The conference used to have eight member schools, but it's had to find extra open dates since Pinckney left the conference in the mid '80s.

A SOLUTION TO THE PROBLEM

An answer seemed to emerge last year when talks of a merger with the 12-team Western Lakes Activities Association (WLAA) escalated. The two conferences appeared to be a perfect fit.

They were close geographically, they seem to share some of the same philosophies and they've been playing each other more and more frequently in non-league match ups lately because they're both in the same boat.

Both sides appeared to be on the same page. A committee formed to examine the specifics of how the league would work. But then the WLAA's principals met to vote on the merger and the KVC had its hopes dashed.

Citing travel concerns and a question about how a merger would fit into its constitution, the WLAA voted down the expansion.

KENSINGTON VALLEY CHOICES

The KVC is presented with some interesting options as the fall sports season begins this week. The conference is looking to expand in order to protect itself against the larger leagues in the area. Here are the options that the KVC has open to it today as the 1995-96 school year prepares to open:

- 1. Stand pat-The conference could elect to not expand but scheduling problems have hurt the league in recent years and with more "mega" conferences developing the problems will continue.
- 2. Merger with the WLAA-The most logical option for the league would be to merge with the 12-team Western Lakes Activities Association. The two conferences are similar in size and in their philosophies but a merger proposal was shot down last year.
- 3. Merge and add other schools-A merger with the WLAA would still leave the new conference with an odd number of teams. Several schools have been mentioned as possible additions to a new league but exclusion questions could arise and leave the conference open to legal challenges.
- 4. Disband-The least popular option is to disband the conference and let the member schools fend for themselves. This isn't likely to happen but as larger conferences start monopolizing scheduling smaller leagues will have to find a way to preserve their competition.

WLAA officials target September meeting to address merger question

By Scott Daniel

Every marriage begins with a first date.

For the Western Lakes Activities Association and Kensington Valley Conference, Sept. 11, might be the day. That's when principals from the 12 WLAA schools will meet to discuss the possibility of renewing talks with the KVC about joining together.

Addressing the issue will be a high priority at the principal meeting, said Mike Fenchel, Western Lakes' president and Livonia Franklin High School principal.

"I would expect we'd have some idea of where we're going after the meeting," he said.

Merger talks began in January of last year. WLAA principals decided not to expand last August citing travel expenses and other potential problems.

The issue appeared dead until this June when athletic directors from both conferences drafted a letter to principals.

The letter, dated June 7, asks that the two conferences again initiate "merger" or "expansion" discussion at the earliest possible date.

That date is Sept. 11. Fenchel said the meeting will be "critical." "I would hope we'd have some response to the athletic directors' letter in terms of determining our future action," he said.

Merging with the KVC is just one option for the WLAA, Fenchel said.

Combining with the KVC would bring together some 19 schools. As a second alternative, Fenchel said WLAA officials have entertained the idea of adding five more as yet unnamed schools to that total to make a 24-member conference.

"We're looking at a number of different options at solving the scheduling dilemma," he said.

If the WLAA does decide to expand, merging with the KVC appears most likely.

"There's a lot of value in it," Fenchel said.

Northville High Athletic Director Larry Taylor agreed.

"From my point of view, I think it's a good idea," he said. "The two conferences are close together and already schedule many events with each other."

Besides proximity, Fenchel said another important factor for the Western Lakes is finding a conference with similar philosophies. The KVC appears to be a good match.

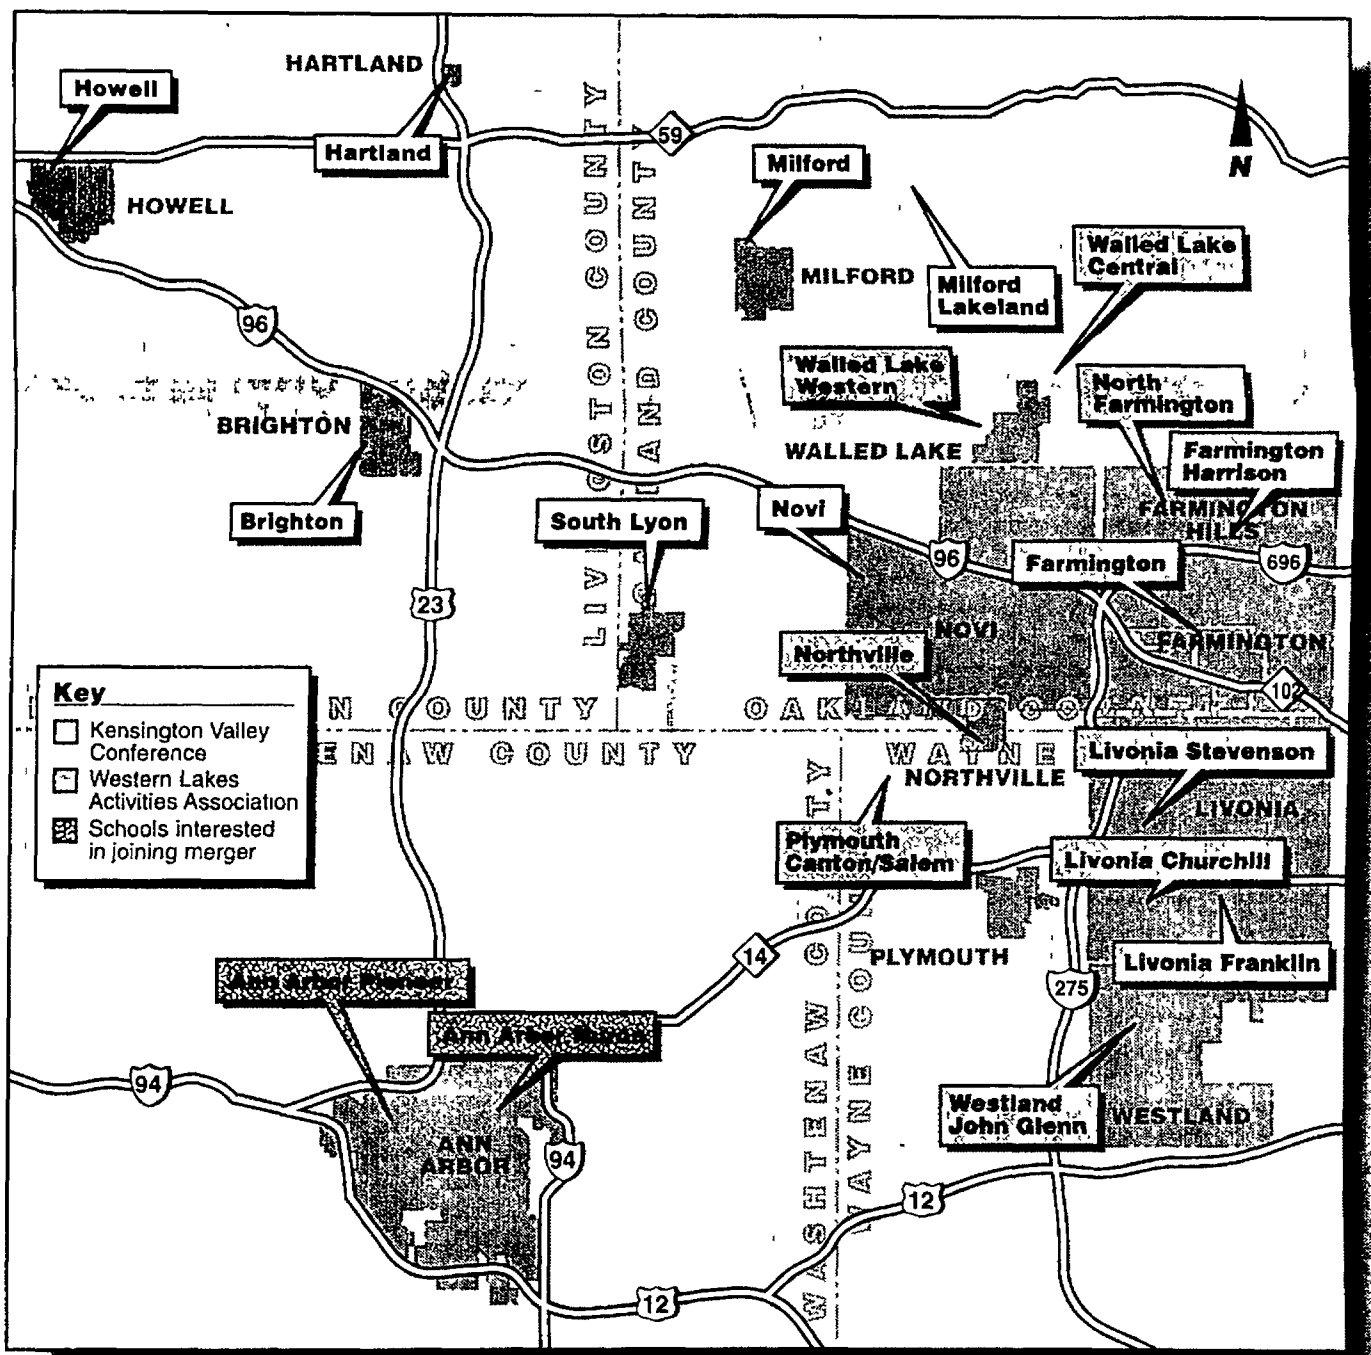

"There's a lot of commonality with us and the KVC," he said.

The two leagues will continue to plan even more sporting and extra-curricular activities over the next few years, Fenchel said.

"I'm supportive and (WLAA) principals are supportive of trying to schedule non-league games while we work out other things," he said.

If the two leagues are to join, Northville High Assistant Principal Dennis Colligan said action needs to begin now. A decision on the merger, he said, needs to be made.

"If it doesn't go through this time," Colligan said, "we should forget it and go our own way."

LEGAL-ESE:

Expansion raises questions about exclusion and fairness to other area teams

By Merrill Cain

The KVC has discovered in the past year just how difficult a merger with another conference can be.

Getting all of the schools involved on the same page can be a difficult task in its own right, but once that's achieved there are certain steps that need to be taken.

Legally, a conference has to make sure that every "I" is dotted and every "T" is crossed before a merger or an expansion can be approved.

The Wayne County "mega" conference has learned its lessons the hard way.

The 22-team Downriver conference has had several legal challenges since its development. Most of the issues center around the conference not including several schools in its area when it formed.

This "exclusion" concept is where conferences considering expansion are most vulnerable from a legal standpoint.

"One of the down sides of mergers or expansions is the matter of exclusion," said John Johnson of the Michigan High School Athletic Association. "In some states the high school athletic association handles the alignments of teams, but in Michigan that's not the case. So we have a situation where some schools are excluded for whatever reason and that can cause problems."

The Oakland Activities Association (OAA) learned its lesson from the Wayne County mega-league's mistakes. When the OAA was being formed, it made sure to exclude no schools in its area.

"We never had the same kind of problems as the Wayne County league," said OAA Chairman Norm Quinn. "But that's only because of the process that we went through. We sent out invitations to every public school in Oakland County."

Several of the schools declined the invitation to join, including some of the Oakland County KVC schools, simply because they didn't want to break their alliance with the other schools in the league not inside the Oakland County borders.

Quinn said the OAA invited everyone not just to avoid any potential lawsuits. The league also wanted to make sure it had a good mix of teams.

"We wanted to have a total socioeconomic, racial and ethnic cross-section and it's worked out beautifully," Quinn added.

The process certainly does appear to have been a successful one for the conference. The 24-team league hasn't had any legal problems since it began in the fall of 1994.

Quinn said he doesn't foresee any problems in the future.

If the KVC and the WLAA decided to unify, some

VIEWS:

Merger idea gets mixed reaction and comments from student-athletes, coaches

By Merrill Cain and Scott Daniel

While any possible link between the Western Lakes and Kensington Valley conferences may be years away, reaction is already mixed.

Coaches from the two leagues voiced both optimism and concerns about a new super-conference. Some said the time to act is now, while others were indifferent about a merger.

"If we're going to survive, it's got to happen," Novi High soccer coach Larry Christoff said. "I'm all for it. We need to try something different."

Northville High girls' tennis coach Uta Filkin said adding KVC schools to its schedule would be a detriment.

"They're really down in tennis," she said. "We wouldn't benefit from contact there."

Dennis Cichonski, girls' basketball coach at Novi High, said his team wouldn't have a problem competing against some of the larger WLAA schools. Added population to the city is giving him a larger pool of talent to choose from each year.

"Novi is a growing community," Cichonski said. "Our program has solidified every year."

As has the school's soccer program.

Christoff took the reins as coach of both the girls and boys teams in Novi in the early '90s. Since then, the Wildcats have gone from doormats to champions in recent campaigns.

Had merger talks began five years ago, Christoff said he would have been against it. Now that both of his squads are more competitive, he said, the change wouldn't be traumatic.

Therein lies the challenge of organizing a super-conference, Christoff said: Structuring each sport so that it provides for equitable competition would be the key.

In other words, it may not be fair for the Hartland football team to play Westland John Glenn or Farmington Hills Harrison.

"What they would have to do is reorganize every two years," Christoff said.

He pointed to the Oakland Activities Association, a collection of some 24 schools. Christoff said the super-conference has worked well through re-evaluation and realignment every couple of years.

"I think the idea is very sound," he said.

Milford basketball coach Don Palmer said he would like smaller schools to compete against programs of similar size in a new conference.

"To me, the Brightons and the Howells are just outgrowing us right now," Palmer said. "They just have better athletes to choose from because they have a larger student population."

The KVC, certainly didn't put all of its eggs in one basket with the proposed merger, but the vote certainly upset some of the member schools who were vigorously supporting the expansion.

The move seemed to leave both conferences high and dry, and the overall feeling in the KVC was that the ball was left in the Western Lakes' court.

"If we're going to unify, it's going to have come from the Western Lakes side," South Lyon athletic director Bob Scheloske said. "The KVC gave it a shot and they turned us down."

But after a few months of letting the air clear, the athletic directors of the two conferences sat down in June met to discuss where the two sides were headed.

"We basically decided that we both wanted to continue to explore the possibility of a merger," Horan said after the meeting.

The ADs drafted a letter to the principals of both conferences, encouraging them to continue talks, and the principals plan to address the issue at their respective meetings next month.

There seems to be renewed optimism on both sides this time around, but officials know that they have to proceed with caution and examine all sides of a merger before any action is taken.

Competing on an even field

The merger, if it should go through, would put the two conferences on an even keel with some of the other mega-conferences in the area. Most scheduling problems would be solved with a new 19-team conference, and Horan said he believed the new league would take some of the strengths of the OAA and apply it directly to its members.

"We would have to name a committee which would make decisions on evaluating teams and divisions," Horan said.

He said that he's heard that the OAA has had a lot of success with its four division alignment of six teams each.

The teams are selected for the divisions on four basic levels of judgment, said OAA Chairman Norm Quinn. The divisions are aligned according to overall school size, strength of a particular sport, a racial and ethnic balance achieved through scheduling and a professional judgment on what would be best for the schools, Quinn said.

The different divisions allow teams not as talented in some sports as they are in others to compete on an even playing field. It also gives athletes the opportunity to shine against players of similar talent.

"It would provide a lot more ease in scheduling and for athletes it would give them the opportunity to experience more success," Horan said.

The Huron Valley AD also pointed out that schools in the OAA are locked into a division in a given sport for two years, but the opportunity to move up or down in a division is evaluated by a committee. That accounts for the peaks and valleys most sports experience.

There could be smaller divisions established for the sports that don't include all of the area teams such as gymnastics or hockey.

Still an odd man out

A merger between the two conferences would still leave the new league with an odd number of schools, which has sparked talk of adding one or more schools to the mix. The most talked about rumor has Ann Arbor-Huron, Ann Arbor Pioneer and Ypsilanti High School making the switch to the new conference in question.

The idea of a 22-team league seems to appeal to some, but questions of exclusion of other area teams could leave the new league open to legal challenges (see related story).

Of course the first step in the process is getting representatives of both KVC and WLAA to sit down to see if they want to unify and work out the specifics of the merger. Both sides seem to realize that their backs are up against the wall a little tighter than they were last year, which may help push the process through with some expediency.

Fork in the road approaches

If the two sides can't see eye to eye, then what's next for the KVC?

Well, scheduling won't be too much of a problem, at least immediately because most teams have been locked in with their non-league dates for the next two years. Scheloske said the conference should keep its options open, but he believes it can survive in its current state for as long as need be.

"We've been doing fine up until this point and we have games to play so this is not a pressing issue," he said.

Horan, however, believes expansion is inevitable for the KVC and said it only makes sense that it joins forces with the WLAA.

"I think the two leagues will eventually merge with one another," Horan said. "Whether it be two or three years down the road, I don't know. But they have to do it just to protect themselves. They have to make sure they have people to compete against in the coming years."

The KVC veteran coach added, however, that the alignment of a new conference would have to be studied very carefully to be successful.

"If we went to a merger, there'd be nothing wrong as long as it was studied very carefully," Palmer said. "If the divisions were aligned on the strength of the programs and the size of the schools, it would probably work out."

Cichonski agreed. Having coached in the 34-school Catholic League, he said big conferences can succeed.

"It worked well," Cichonski said.

But there were problems, he added. In league crossover games, for example, Class A schools often competed against Class B or lower teams.

All 12 WLAA and seven KVC schools are Class A.

South Lyon volleyball coach Ed Baldwin also hails from the Catholic League and said he would like to see the same kind of intense competition in a new league that was so prevalent in that conference.

"I like the idea of several divisions. It makes for a nice playoff at the end of the season," Baldwin said. "The playoffs and the intensity are a good preparation for the state playoffs."

Baldwin added that a possible merger with the WLAA may hurt his volleyball program initially because schools in the Western Lakes tend to have better middle school feeder programs than what he's dealt with in South Lyon.

He said the athletes themselves, however, probably won't notice any change with expansion.

"Kids being kids, they probably won't care who they play just as long as they get to play," Baldwin said.

But former Lakeland standout athlete Tom Hartley said he has mixed feeling about a merger. Although he won't be affected by any future expansion, he fears some of the KVC teams might be overwhelmed by the bigger WLAA teams.

"A lot of the KVC schools could get blown away because they couldn't compete with some of the other programs," Hartley said.

He added that increased exposure could end up benefiting some athletes.

"Personally, I would have liked it, particularly in baseball, because I like the competition," said Hartley, who plans to play baseball for Michigan State's next spring.

Palmer warned that the schools involved in possible merger talk should vote for or against expansion based on what's best for

SIZE & SKILL

The KVC and WLAA appear comparable in size and relative skill levels. There are few schools in both conferences who have begun to separate themselves from the other teams as far as student population is concerned, however. Here's a look at the schools involved in a possible merger between the two conferences and the size of each school's population.

"If you merge for the sake of ease of scheduling, that's not a reason to do it," Palmer said. "If the kids in your schools are the ones who'll benefit, then that's why you do it."

Legal issues could cloud KVC-WLAA marriage down road

officials believe the new conference would be OK legally if the league just accepted the 19 schools that currently make up both leagues.

Bruce Gilbert

the four-team South Central Conference, leaving the new league open to a direct challenge.

Pulling any other schools out of their respective leagues to add to a new conference would also seem to violate the unwritten exclusion rule.

Because of the legal questions involved in expansion, some people believe a merger between the KVC and WLAA will be slow in developing even if both sides agree in principle to unification.

"Everyone's so concerned about lawsuits and everything that they're being advised by their attorneys not to do anything at this point," South Lyon athletic director Bob Scheloske said.

Ironically, Quinn said OAA officials didn't spend a lot of time on legal research once the concept for the Oakland mega-league was approved. He believes that helped get the league in motion.

"There's such a thing as overthinking a situation," Quinn said. "We committed ourselves to a short turnaround time once everything was approved and I think it was our benefit. People had to put aside their personal problems and get in gear. We're completely satisfied with the way we did things."

Johnson said there are many positives to forming a large conference, including the increased level of competition and exposure for the teams involved. But he also said patience and research into a proposed expansion are the best ways to avoid future problems.

"The best advice we can give is that conferences should just have a good grasp on what's going on around them," Johnson said. "They need to know the total lay of the land before they can move forward."

By CINDY STEWART
Special Writer

Parents are smiling, but kids seem to be sadder these days! Guess why? This Monday school is back in session! Summer isn't officially over, but summer vacations are. Never fear...summer does not mean the end of fun activities. There's always plenty of activities for you and your family courtesy of Novi Parks and Recreation. Check your mailbox because the new Parks and Recreation brochure should be waiting for you filled with lots of great events, leagues and classes. Sign up now!

Novi Arts Council is alive and well and proceeding ahead into the '90s with strength and vitality. Novi Parks and Recreation sponsors the Novi Arts Council, a non-profit, membership organization which welcomes your participation and support. The Novi Arts Council provides promotional and funding support to a variety of organizations which serve the cultural and arts educational needs of the community, including the Novi Concert Band, the Novi Choralaires, the Plymouth Symphony, the Plymouth-Canton Ballet, the Center for Creative Studies, and other area actors, writers and musicians.

The annual membership fee is only $10 ($15 family). The annual breakfast meeting is scheduled for Saturday, Sept. 9 at 9:30 a.m. All paid NAC members will receive an invitation. It's not too late to join.

Novi Arts Council also seeks to promote the arts and encourages artists by providing opportunities for area residents to enjoy the arts in the atrium of the Novi Civic Center. The beautiful atrium of the Novi Civic Center, the Gate VI Gallery, has been the scene of colorful artwork, including paintings, sculpture and photographs of local artists. Currently the watercolor works of artist Joe Brancik are on display through Sept. 15. Sept. 16 Oct. 15 will feature Jean Webber with works from the Palette and Brush Club.

Local artists are encouraged to submit slides of their work to the Gate VI Gallery Committee or call Larry Champine at 347-0400.

Another brainchild of the Novi Arts Council that became a huge success is the "Performer's Showcase." Singers, dancers and musicians entertain the public in a half-hour sampler of their repertoire at the Novi Civic Center Atrium. The Monday evening performances have been very well received. The next performance features Lisa Timco, a close-up magician. All performances are at 7:30 p.m. (preceding the Novi City Council meetings) and are free!

NAC also raises money at their annual art fair with the money going to support the arts in Novi. The 6th Annual Holiday Arts and Crafts Show sponsored by NAC and the Novi Jaycees will be held in the Novi Civic Center Atrium on Saturday, Nov. 25, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Admission is $1. They have extended the deadline for crafters to Friday, Aug. 25 at 5 p.m. Call now and reserve a spot!

Novi Arts Council also sponsors a variety of classes through the Center for Creative Studies at the Novi Civic Center. Walking, biking events plentiful in town to be a little uptight and take such events too seriously are those who have never entered before!

It's natural to feel intimidated. I can remember the first time I entered an event. It was a 24-hour bike ride on Belle Isle. I planned to ride 100 miles. I had heard that many entrants would complete more than 200 miles and I was worried that I would stand out as a wimp. In reality, no one knew how far I had ridden anyway. I also discovered that my 100-mile goal far exceeded the goal of most other riders. I quit at 50 miles with a great feeling of accomplishment and far more respect for the 100-mile distance.

Now that I have entered hundreds of events, I realize no one really cares about anyone else's pace or abilities. I believe it is a misnomer to call an event that is open to the public a race. I now realize that it means you have come to try your best and the reality is you are racing against yourself. A personal-best time or a feeling of accomplishment is the true goal. I guess some people actually try to win these things, but we're talking about fewer than 1 percent of participants. The rest are enjoying themselves!

Thanks to sponsorships and volunteer workers, these events end up being a financial bargain. A typical entry fee of $8 to $15 yields several fun hours of fitness, food, refreshments, a good chance to win donated merchandise from random drawings, a T-shirt and other giveaway goodies. You get all this without even winning! I know some people who enter two or three events each week.

This is a good time to mention an upcoming walking event. A three-mile fitness walk through historic downtown Northville will take place at 8:30 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 16, in conjunction with this year's Victorian Festival in Northville. The walk begins at the Northville Senior Center, 215 W. Cady. The Senior Center is located behind the Northville Parks and Recreation building. Entry forms are available at Parks and Recreation and at Running Fit, or call (810) 380-3338 to have one sent to you. The $8 pre-entry fee gets you a great T-shirt and lots of goodies, not to mention a walk!

This walk will be the kick-off for a new walking incentive program designed by the University of Michigan Medical Center M-Fit Health Promotion Division and U-M Health Centers, Running Fit and Northville Parks and Recreation. Called the Michigan Lighthouse Tour, this program will motivate you to walk a minimum of three times each week for four consecutive weeks. You will earn mileage for the total number of minutes you spend walking on an imaginary - but educational and fun tour - of Michigan's famous lighthouses. There are incentive gifts as each weekly goal is attained and a final drawing for prizes for those who complete all four weeks. The contest takes place from Sept. 16 through Oct. 20.

I have entered many events, but this one seems to have it all. It includes continued support and motivation for several weeks. Better yet, it's in your own backyard.

Randy Step is president and owner of the Running Fit stores in Novi, Northville and Ann Arbor. This column is coordinated by Peg Campbell on staff at the U-M Health Centers.

REAL ESTATE

can be good investments

By James M. Woodard
Copley News Service

Instead of seeking out and buying a new home, an increasing number of families are remodeling and expanding their existing home.

Their rationale is usually twofold: By staying put, they save transactions costs like real estate commissions, closing costs and moving expenses in addition to the cost of a new home. And they can remain in the neighborhood they know and enjoy. It's less disruptive for family members.

However, there's a downside to the trend to remodel and expand. In recent years, this trend has attracted more rip-off artists surfacing in the home remodeling field. And often their dubious schemes are hard to detect until it's too late.

Recent complaints about remodelers are the second most frequent category of homeowner complaints filed by the Better Business Bureau. And that same category consistently leads the complaint list at the American Homeowners Foundation.

BBB offices are receiving many complaints from homeowners who say their contractor failed to deliver on promised work. In most of those cases, the agreement between homeowner and contractor was verbal or in a loosely worded contract, according to Marge

Greene, manager of a regional BBB office.

But the remodeling trend surges on.

"Because of the aging housing stock and the large number of baby boomers who are living in homes built in the 1950s, '60s and '70s, there will be more demand for remodeling over the next 10 years," said Jim Irvine, president of the National Association of Home Builders.

The rate of growth in the remodeling market over the past 10 years has surpassed the rate of growth in new residential homes, according to numbers issued by the U.S. Census Bureau. During that time, total expenditures on home upkeep and improvements increased from $70 billion to $115 billion, reflecting a 65 percent increase.

Also during the same period, the value of new homes increased by 47 percent, to $168 billion, according to a NAHB report. The inflation rate, measured by the Consumer Price Index, increased by 43 percent during that time.

"This year, the gap between expenditures on remodeling and on new home construction will close further as remodeling is expected to reach $122 billion and construction of new homes will total $160 billion. With the higher growth rate of remodeling, it

HOME DESIGNS

Innovative design makes the Muse 2 appealing

By James McAlexander
Copley News Service

The innovative hexagonal design of the Muse 2 creates a floor plan that will appeal to many. For those who like to entertain frequently or families with children, this plan is for you.

Enter into the heart of this home and the open space invites. The living room/dining room/kitchen complex dominates this unique configuration. Easy traffic flow is stressed here. Centrally located in this great room is a fireplace with a flue that extends into the finished basement. Sit in the vaulted living room and savor the warmth with family and friends while enjoying the adjacent entertainment center. This arrangement favors an informal lifestyle.

The location of the kitchen allows the cook in the house to serve meals either at the eating bar, in the vaulted dining room or carry hot food to the basement recreation area.

A built-in pantry is behind the fireplace.

One wing of the house isolates the master suite. This spacious room features a bathroom with shower and spa, huge walk-in closet, vanity and private access to the side deck.

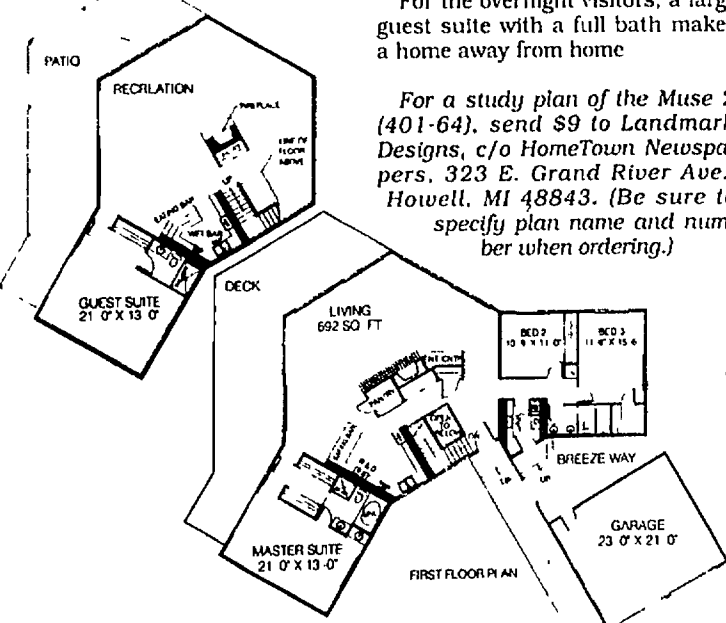

The other wing has two bedrooms, each with ample closet space. A full bath and linen closet are tucked between the bedrooms and a large utility room with a deep sink. A door here allows groceries to be brought in from the detached garage with minimum difficulty.

One possible inconvenience for parents is the great separation between their bedroom and the children's rooms. On the other hand, kids old enough to demand privacy can have one wing largely to themselves, while the parents enjoy maximum peace and quiet in the master suite.

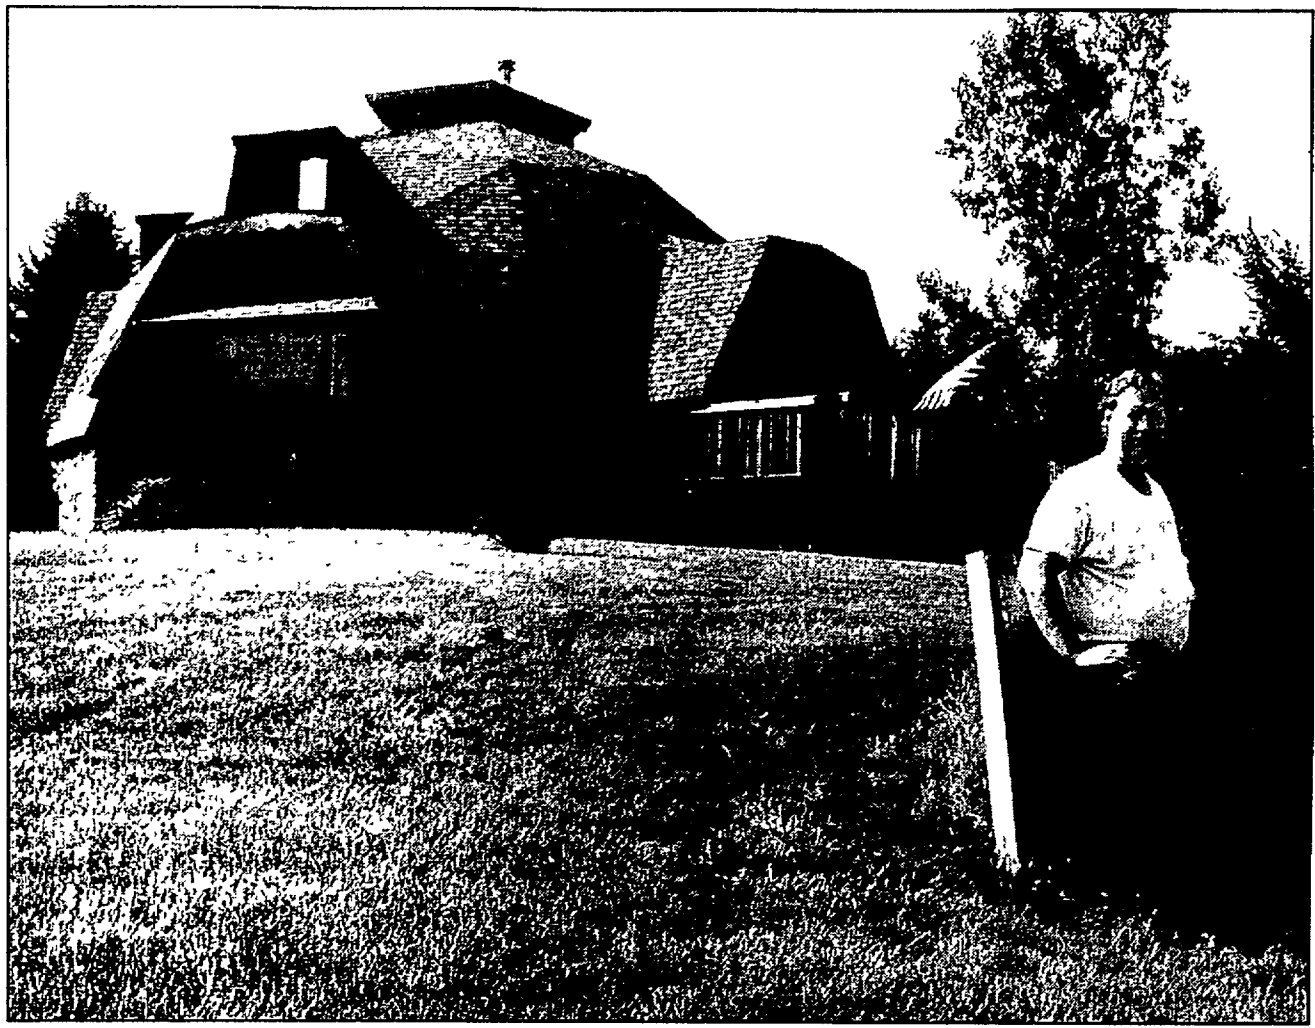

For more fun, take the stairs down to the finished basement. Plenty of room here for a pool table, pingpong or whatever the family enjoys. A wet bar tucked next to the stairway helps provide a festive atmosphere.

For the overnight visitors, a large guest suite with a full bath makes a home away from home

NO PLACE LIKE DOME

The geodesic dome makes efficient use of space and energy

By Anne Seebaldt Gogolin

It's been several years in the building, but Tom Finger wanted a unique house — and he has one.

When he orders pizza, he describes the dome-like home and the order-taker usually says, "I know where that is."

The decahedron-shaped (ten-sided) home is very sturdy and is conducive to energy-efficient heating and cooling. It also has a five-sided cupola located at the roof's center. The long windows on each side of the cupola allow plenty of light and air into the living room and stairwell.

"All the houses in the area were unique unto themselves," said Tom Finger. "It looked like a good place for an efficient, new idea."

Sandy Finger said her husband took an outer shell of a house and filled in the blank spots to create a comfortable home.

"I don't know how he did it. I really don't," she said. "I think it's very well-designed. He put a lot of good ideas into it. All there was (to work with) was a frame. He designed the rest and built all the cabinets.

Sandy's contribution to the home includes details such as wallpapering, painting, and coordination of furniture and other accessories from their two households.

Tom explained modestly that the house plans came with suggested layouts.

"We followed them pretty closely," he added.

He gave Sandy full credit for filling in all the details around his design.

One addition is the extensive system of decks, which pretty well encircle the Finger home. He started by building a deck at the front of the house. He then put one at the back of the house and eventually added connecting decks for a total of five.

The four-bedroom house is full of unusually shaped rooms and corners.

"I don't think there's a square room in the house," Tom said. "In every room, I concentrated on trying to make it unique unto itself."

Color can be everything

By C.Z. Guest
Copley News Service

GARDENING

Few topics are as interesting as color, and few things affect the overall look of a garden as much as color. Used effectively, color can create a feeling of calm, graciousness, spaciousness, excitement or just about any mood a gardener wants to achieve.

HOME IMPROVEMENT

If you are planning gardens near or around your home, it is natural to want the color scheme of the flowers to complement the exterior colors. If your home is basically neutral — beige, gray or white — you have a relatively easy task because you can use just about any color scheme you like.

If, however, your home is accented with a colorful trim, you may want to pick colors that echo that color or complement it. Red, for example, is the direct complement of green, so red geraniums, salvia or petunias, etc., would be a good choice for a neutral house with green trim.

Unless you are an expert at using color, stick to 2 or 3 colors that you repeat in your annual plantings. This will give a planned, unified look to all your garden spots and avoid the hodgepodge that lacks focus and distracts from the overall look you want to achieve.

Professionally landscaped houses, public parks, botanical gardens and gardening magazines can often give you "free advice" on effectively using color.

If you don't have a color wheel, you should be able to purchase one at an art supply store or possibly a paint store. If you don't want to buy one, check out books on color at your library. A color wheel will show you what colors are complementary.

A look at each of these 4 color harmonies:

A monochromatic color scheme means that all the flowers are the same color or lighter and/or darker shades of the same color. One example of a monochromatic harmony would be red, pink and Burgundy Impatiens. A truly monochromatic scheme where all the flowers are more or less the same color and shade can create a feeling of spaciousness because the eye is not interrupted by another color.

The color wheel

This color wheel can help you match flowers for the four basic color schemes: complementary, analogous, monochromatic and triadic (three colors).

■ For a color-coordinated garden, remember the color wheel for contrast and blending.

■ White flowers can include petunias, geraniums, snapdragon, baby's breath, dahlias or asters.

Polyurethanes don't protect wood finishes

By Gene Gary
Copley News Service

Q. I have a couple of Adirondack chairs made of redwood. To preserve the color and weatherproof the wood, I applied several coats of polyurethane. After just one season on our outdoor patio, the finish has cracked and blistered.

I thought polyurethane would prove to be a rather permanent, protective finish. Was I wrong, or is there a specific type of polyurethane finish that should have been applied? What should I do now?

A. Unfortunately, you have learned the hard way that clear film finishes like polyurethane cannot withstand the intense ultraviolet rays of direct sunlight. There are polyurethane products that have additives for screening ultraviolet rays. But even with these coatings, high-energy ultraviolet rays will degrade both the resins in the finish and the wood fiber itself.

Your only option to restore the wood finish is to remove the existing finish and sand the bare wood smooth. You'll still need a protective coating. I would recommend a transparent wood preservative or one of the water-repellent finishes recommended for wood decks. These keep the wood from readily absorbing rainwater that leads to swelling, cracking and warping, and they won't form a film that is subject to peeling and blistering. The wood preservatives contain a higher percentage of fungicides than do water repellents, providing added protection.

If you want to maintain the "new" look of freshly sanded wood, one of the semi-transparent stains provides protection and lets the grain of the wood show through while slowing the wood's natural weathering process. The pigment in the stain acts to block ultraviolet light.

It's best to apply a stain about two to four weeks after the wood has been treated with a water-repellent preservative. However, many of these stains also contain wood preservatives, so you can bypass the two-step process. But as with any waterproofing or preservative, the stain does eventually weather and fade, and reapplication will be necessary about every two years.

One caution regarding stains: Make sure that the product is durable and will not rub off on clothing as it wears.

Q. I have several older aluminum outdoor chairs that were stored in my aunt's attic. The frames are better quality than many of the cheaper aluminum chairs I find in stores today. However, the finish is dull and corroded, and the webbing in the seats is tired and faded looking.

If I can clean the aluminum, I don't think I will have any trouble reweaving the seats. Do you have any suggestions on how to brighten and clean the aluminum tubing?

A. Keeping aluminum patio furniture, window frames and screens, or door frames looking good requires a program of regular maintenance. There are a number of good commercial aluminum cleaners at home centers, well-stocked hardware stores, stores dealing in camping equipment or boating equipment.

You can choose from a wax-base polish cleaner, a nonwax base polish cleaner or an abrasive wax. Follow manufacturer's directions carefully.

You can even use a mild abrasive scouring powder on a damp, clean cloth. Rinse well and dry. If these methods are not successful, use a stainless steel wool pad (00 size or finer) with liquid wax or a cleaner.

Mild steel wool also can be used. However, any remaining particles will rust-stain the aluminum and therefore should be removed. Soap-filled pads of mild steel wool, if containing a rust arrestor, may be used. Or you can use a bronze wool that does not rust.

Use caution when working on aluminum with an abrasive or steel wool. Always rub in the direction of the grain, never cross-wise or in a circular motion. Do not scour too hard or too long, or you may alter the appearance of the finish.

If these methods fail to produce satisfactory results, clean the aluminum using an etching solution made of 1 part etching chemical cleaner mixed with 3 parts water.

Wet a stainless steel wool pad with this solution and cover the wet pad with powdered pumice or some other heavy duty abrasive. Scour the aluminum working with the grain. Apply to an area small enough to be completely covered and kept wet three to five minutes.

Follow with a thorough rinsing before the cleaner dries. Once the aluminum has been cleaned and polished (in the case of heavy corrosion the finish will probably be permanently pitted), waxing the finish will help protect the aluminum. Use a good quality car wax, and repeat periodically.

Torn webbing can be replaced easily with new strips. But the inexpensive replacement webbing available at hardware stores and some home centers deteriorates relatively quickly when exposed to sunlight. It's better to use nylon webbing made to withstand sunlight, which is available at marine-supply stores. It is more expensive than plastic webbing, but it lasts years longer and is more comfortable against the skin.

should exceed new home construction just after the turn of the century," the NAHB report stated.

Currently, the most frequent type of home remodeling project is to add more conveniences for the owner family. Increasingly, remodeling projects are performed on owner-occupied homes, as opposed to rental homes.

Last year, 71 percent of remodeling expenditures were made in owner-occupied homes, compared to 67 percent in 1984, according to Census Bureau data.

About 75 percent of the remodeling work on owner-occupied homes is performed by professionals.

An article in the August issue of Modern Maturity magazine recommends hiring a competent professional for home improvement and remodeling projects.

"Unless you can do a high-quality job yourself, hire a professional. A shabby job is a total waste of time and money."

However, be sure the contractor you hire is seasoned and competent in the home remodeling field. There is an increasing number of smooth con artist types who would like to take your home improvement funds and deliver shabby work, or not deliver at all. Ask questions. Check references. Be sure your agreement is in writing.

Modern Maturity also recommends taking a moderate approach in planning the project. Keep in mind the things that would appeal to the average buyer in your market.

"Many homeowners over-improve their properties," according to real estate appraiser John Steensland. "Regardless of how much money you spend on improving your house, its value is often limited by what's typical for your neighborhood."

If planned strategically, a home improvement project can actually be profitable to the owner when the property is sold. But more often, it's a loser from an investment standpoint.

The biggest losers are swimming pools, hot tubs, fireplaces, high-end replacement windows and fancy touches like marble floors, expensive bedroom fixtures, and costly deck and room additions, the magazine reported.

One of the best and most common home improvement projects is replacing roofs. During the past 10 years, about 47 million roofs were repaired or replaced, according to the Census Bureau's American Housing Survey.

Also during that time, more than 40 million homes had storm doors or windows installed. 29 million had major equipment added, nearly 29 million bathrooms were remodeled, and 24 million kitchens were remodeled, the survey said.

Questions may be used in future columns; personal responses should not be expected. Send inquiries to James M. Woodard, Copley News Service, P.O. Box 190, San Diego, CA 92112-0190.

Color can be everything when used well in the garden

in the same color could get boring. Introducing lighter and darker versions of the same color can add more interest while maintaining your overall color scheme.

An analogous color scheme uses colors that are next to each other on the color wheel. Reading around a basic color wheel, the colors go from red to orange to yellow to green to blue to violet and then back to red.

For an analogous harmony, you can start anywhere on the wheel and go forward and/or backward to get a harmonious scheme. For example, orange calendulas, yellow-orange coreopsis, and yellow cosmos would make an analogous planting in the garden.

The complementary color scheme uses colors that are directly opposite each other on the color wheel. Examples are red and green, orange and blue, yellow and violet. Some very striking uses of color can be made with complements.

Orange and its complement blue could be combined in a planting of tall blue lavender with a border of orange marigolds. Yellow petunias planted with blue salvia in a terra cotta pot would be a complementary color scheme.

An unusual but very attractive idea is to use three colors that are equal distance from each other on the color wheel. For example, yellow sunflowers, red zinnias and Heavenly Blue morning glories form a triadic harmony. This scheme not only gives you more color, but it gives you the opportunity to have a greater variety of plants.

COLORS THAT STIR FEELING

Colors can actually excite us or calm us. Red and yellow are exciting colors that call attention to themselves and any object near them. These colors can be used splendidly to focus attention on a garden feature such as a gazing globe, statuary or around a pool of water. Yellow is excellent for bordering steps or other areas where caution should be exercised.

Blue is a calming color that can actually make us feel cool. Around a water garden or in pots surrounding a seating area, blue can create the feeling of a restful oasis. Because blue is a receding color, it is one of the first to disappear from view as night falls and it takes masses of blue to really be seen. Blue is an excellent accent with a bright pink or yellow, and is the direct complement of orange.

Although most plants come with green foliage, don't ignore the value of green. Green is restful to the eyes, so allowing the foliage to be seen and admired is also beneficial. And there are plants such as coleus that come in wonderful combinations of green with other colors such as cream, pink, red and various shades of green.

White is so reflective of light that it is usually the last color to fade from view in the evening. In shady areas, white impatiens for example, stand out in the shadows and can give form and focus to a garden that might otherwise be lost to view. White gives a feeling of cleanliness, purity and precision.

COLOR YOU CAN EAT

While we often focus on flowers for color in a garden, vegetables can be as decorative as they are delicious. A compact zucchini with a small trellis in a pot provides lush foliage, bright yellow flowers and the attractive texture and shape of maturing fruit.

Eggplants, tomatoes, ornamental cabbages and other vegetables can be used creatively in pots and in among flowers to add height, color and texture to a garden. It's a case of being able to have your kale and eat it, too.

Mission clock known for detail and durability

This Mission Oak clock made about 1900 and is worth $150 to $250.

By Anne McCollam
Copley News Service

Q. The clock in this photo was given to me by my mother-in-law. It isn't the prettiest clock but the chime is beautiful. The only mark on the clock is the number "1839" on the back of the pendulum. Could you please tell me how old my clock is and what it is worth?

A. Your clock is an example of the Mission Oak period of design. Attention to detail, simplicity, and durability were the goals of manufacturers of Mission Oak furniture and accessories. The number is a manufacturer's number. Recently there has been a renewed interest in objects from this period. Your clock was made around 1900. It would probably be worth about $150 to $250.

Q. I have a porcelain figure of a young woman seated on a sea shell. She is wearing a beige classical gown and is holding a lyre in her left hand. It has been in the family around 60 to 80 years. On the bottom is a triangle with an "E" in an acorn in the center and the words "Royal Dux — Bohemia."

A. Your porcelain figure was made by Dux Porcelain Manufactory, Dux, Bohemia. They have been in business from 1860 to the present. The mark you describe was used from 1900 to 1918. Your figure would probably be worth about $400 to $425.

Q. The enclosed mark is on a porcelain pitcher that is about 75 years old. The pitcher has an ivory glaze and is 3 inches tall. The figure of a lady dressed in old-fashioned clothes is attached to the side of the pitcher. She stands 5 inches tall. Please tell me something about my little pitcher.

A. Your pitcher was made by Schäfer and Vater Porcelain Factory in Rudolstadt, Thuringia, Germany. The firm was established in 1896 and ceased operations in 1962. Your pitcher was made in the early 1900's. It would probably be worth about $75 to $85 in good condition.

ANTIQUES

Q. I have a collection of World War II posters issued by the U.S. War Department. They are all in good condition. The two that I am most curious about are captioned "Do With Less — So They'll Have Enough," artist unknown and "Ours to Fight for Freedom From Fears" by Norman Rockwell. Both are dated 1943. I would like to know if they have any value.

A. War posters were designed by the government to encourage Americans to support the war effort. They focused on the perils of war and the home front. Posters by artist Norman Rockwell command some of the highest prices. Your poster by Rockwell would probably be worth about $125 to $150. The other poster would probably be worth about $40 to $50.

Q. My father gave me a $2.50 gold coin

50 years ago. On one side of the coin is the profile of an Indian, on the other side is an eagle. The date on the coin is 1928. What can you tell me about my coin?

A. The original Coinage Act of 1792 authorized this denomination. The first design was a bust of "Liberty." In 1908 artist Bela Lyon Pratt designed the Indian Head image. It was struck as a result of President Theodore Roosevelt's program to improve the artistic quality of our nation's coinage. The design was struck completely below the surface of the coin. Although it prevented wear to the images, some believed it would spread germs.

When collecting coins it is important to check for evidence of mount marks indicating that a coin was used as jewelry. U.S. coins are graded according to official grading standards established by the American Numismatic Association. Also remember that the price of gold can fluctuate dramatically. Your coin would probably be worth about $150 in good condition.

The living room is probably the most unusual and spectacular of the rooms. It has a 26-foot ceiling, a four-sided fireplace with custom-made copper and brass doors, plenty of windows, pentagon-shaped bronze-tone mirrors (again, of Tom's design), and fantastic acoustics which are evident when the stereo is playing.

"In the winter, you could play volleyball in there," he added.

Another unique feature adorning the living room is a chess board and pieces Tom made himself. He used African rose wood and oak (the same material he used for the kitchen cabinets) for creating the board. He carved the chessmen from old baseball bats

"I just loved working with that wood," he said. "It's beautiful stuff."

Tom built a waterbed base in the master bedroom. It is made of pine and has built-in drawers that encompass the entire width of the king-size bed. He also created the master bathroom's solid walnut cabinets.

Hugh, Sandra's 16-year-old son, occupies a bedroom that boasts a dormer window and a built-in dresser with a dozen drawers. Tom said Hugh also had contributed to the overall appearance of their home.

"He is the gardener-landscaper extraordinaire," he said.

Because he is self-employed, Tom financed the house himself as he worked on it.

He has a mobile catering business that serves afternoon workers in the Detroit area. Sandy also is self-employed. She owns Valley Upholstery.

He originally is from Detroit and Sandy is from Cleveland. They have been married about one year and couldn't be happier about their new home in Milford Township.

Wiard's shop owner has 'the right frame of mind'

By ANNE SEEBALDT GOGOLIN
Special Writer

Upon entering her shop, Susan Zielski's customers may notice that she has "the right frame of mind" for her work.

Zielski, who owns Wiard's Frame Shop, said that the sign in front of her shop is eye-catching, but added that Wiard's Right Frame of Mind is not the legal name of her business. It does, however, perform its intended function by attracting customers to her business, Wiard is her maiden name.

Zielski, a former substitute teacher, came to her current position by applying for a position at an art supply store in Warren. At that time, she lived in Sterling Heights.

"I was looking for something that would bring in a summer income," she explained. Her new boss soon asked her if she would like to learn how to frame pictures. Zielski trained in this work for one month, then became the manager of the store's picture framing department.

"Talk about learning by doing," she laughed.

In addition to custom framework, patrons of Zielski's business can purchase Ajay Photo-Sculptures (stand up cutouts of your original or enlarged photo), frameable prints and preframed artwork.

Store specialties include dry mounting - a way of adhering pictures or artwork to a backing prior to framing. She said that she does not know of another area business with a dry mount press.

"We specialize in preserving and displaying family memories, children's art and needlework," she said.

Zielski tries to maintain a comfortable, homelike atmosphere in the shop. "The coffee pot is always on," she said.

Her business philosophy is simple.

"My dream in my head is to never lose that hometown, personal feeling in my business. If you don't see what you want, ask. We may be able to get it for you, or we'll tell you where you can find it ... If I don't have what people need, I'll stand on my head to get it for them."

Dover coloring books for children and adults, Prismacolor pencils, children's art kits and "assorted arty odds and ends" are located in a small room to the side of the main showroom.

"My dream ... is to eventually go into carrying fine art supplies," Zielski said. "There's nothing like that out here. That takes capital."

A self-described "displaced homemaker," Zielski moved to Highland in October 1991. (Even though she was a substitute teacher for 20 years of marriage, she was primarily a homemaker.)

working in her home in 1991. Her business was "pretty much, by word of mouth" and did not provide enough income. So Zielski stopped in at Artcraft Blueprint in Waterford and asked if they needed help framing. She has worked part-time there ever since.

She describes her business, which opened at its present location in July 1994, as being typical of the small-town atmosphere. For information, call (810) 889-1929.

"YOUR FREE CATALOG KNOCKED MY SOCKS OFF"

We get that sort of comment all the time. People are impressed that our free Consumer Information Catalog lists so many free and low-cost government booklets. There are more than 200 in all, containing a wealth of valuable information.

They tell you how to make money, how to save money and how to invest it wisely. They tell you about federal benefits, housing, jobs, and learning activities for children. They fill you in on nutrition, health and much, much more.

Our free Catalog will very likely impress you, too. But first you have to get it. Just send your name and address to:

Iceless Hockey Premieres at Livonia Family YMCA

When you're pulling into the parking lot at the Livonia Family Y this September, you'll probably be thinking about your grueling day that is finally over. Time for some relaxation and recreation. Now maybe it was a bad day, but you know that it didn't snow. It's September 12th, but there appears to be a hockey game going on. In the North, ice hockey is played in a climate controlled indoor ice rink.

Stop scratching your head. Don't rub your eyes. And, whatever you do, DON'T BLINK! The Livonia Family Y is sliding into its newest program - an in-line hockey league. In-line skating is among the fastest growing recreational activities in the United States, and, if you can skate, you can roller hockey.

The program will begin Tuesday, September 12 and run through October 15. There will be five weeks of regular season play with October 19, 20, and 21 set aside for play-offs and finals. A portion of

The league will consist of youth teams (ages 11-15) and adult teams (ages 16 and up). The league will begin with a maximum of 18 teams for youths and 14 teams for adults. Each team is to be comprised of four players (one for rotation). Games will be played at the Livonia Family YMCA, 14255 Stark Road, Livonia. As always, the primary focus in recreational activities at the YMCA is safety and sportsmanship. The fees are $45 per player for members and $58 per player for program members (a program membership is required for participation).

While this sport is not for the faint, or the faint of heart, Assistant Physical Director Robin Grace says that the risk of injury can be minimized by wearing appropriate gear. That means helmets, elbow pads, and specific gear for goalies. In addition, PENALTIES WILL BE STRICTLY FORBIDDEN. That means no high sticking, no checking, no interference with a player who does not have the puck, and no charging.

Any player whose intentional actions result in a penalty will be pulled from the game and not allowed to return to that game.

This new program is a coordinated effort between the Livonia Y, R.T.L. Endeavors, and the Motor City Mustangs (a professional roller-hockey team).

So, if you have trouble getting a neighborhood game up, if you desire additional exercise, or if you just can't get enough of this adrenaline-pumping sport, check the schedule below for additional information about cost and registration.

Information meeting – September 11, 8:00 p.m.

MONTGOMERY WARD GUARANTEED PRICE PROTECTION
 We'll match any store's current advertised price at time of your Montgomery Ward merchandise purchase PLUS, if you find a lower advertised price at any store, including Montgomery Ward, within 30 days after purchase, we'll cheerfully refund the difference. Simply bring in the ad and/or your Montgomery Ward receipt, in Electric Avenue, Auto Express and for other specific items advertised in our advertising and/or in our stores, we'll beat our competitor's price by crediting or refunding 110% of the difference—and during special events, for specified items, even greater amounts, up to 125%!
 Details: Guarantee of 110% or more refers to our price as compared with a competitor's price, not compared with our own price at a later date, which are guaranteed 100% within 30 days after purchase. In the Electronics department, the competitor's product must have the same manufacturer's model number as our product. In other areas we will match the price on the same name brand item even if model numbers are different, if shown on our comparable model charts. On many items we will also match our private label item with our competitor's comparable name brand or private label items. Our sales associates in the Appliance department, Auto Express, Home Ideas, Rooms & More and our Seasonal Shops have comparable model charts of matchable items. Price matching policy does not apply when an additional Bonus/Free Item is part of our purchase price, or to sales of floor samples, one-of-a-kind, damaged or clearance goods, closeouts, limited quantities, special order items, manufacturer's rebates, royalties, sales by other than local stocking retailers or merchandise sold in mail order catalogs.

NO PAYMENT TIL JANUARY, 1996!
 FINANCE CHARGES APPLY DURING THE DEFERRED PERIOD.
 Offer good through July 29, 1995 on Montgomery Ward retail credit card purchases of $30 or more on apparel back-to-school purchases, $150 on all fine jewelry and custom window fashions, and $299 on all furniture and mattresses.
