Folino to challenge for mayor

Mike Allen joins council race

By ROBERT JACKSON
Staff Writer

Northville City Councilman Paul Folino has announced that he will enter the mayoral race for the November city election.

Folino, who has served on the council for more than 20 years, announced his decision to run against four-term incumbent mayor, Chris Johnson, after submitting his candidate petitions to city officials Friday.

It will be the second time Folino has set his sights on the city's top spot. He lost his bid for mayor in 1977 to Paul Vernon. Folino also lost his election bid for a council seat in the 1979 election. He rejoined the city council in 1981.

In entering the mayoral race, Folino will be forced to give up his council seat. Folino's term expires this November.

The mayor serves a two year term. Council members serve for four years.

City Clerk Delphine Gutowski also said that city planning commissioner Tom Swigart, well known city resident Roxanne Casterline, and former Northville mayor Mike Allen have all pulled petitions for the two city council seats up for grabs in the Nov. 7 election. The three will join the race along with incumbent Mayor pro tem Carolann Ayers.

According to Gutowski, all candidates have until Oct. 2 to turn in their candidate petitions.

The petitions must have the signatures of no less than 50 and no more than 75 registered city voters.

Longtime councilman Paul Folino seeks the mayorship.

Police mobilize against offenders

Incident near school prompts action

By ROBERT JACKSON

Staff Writers

An incident involving two Cooke Middle School students last week has city and township police officers, as well as school district officials, more watchful for suspicious persons loitering around schools and bus stops.

Meanwhile, a twice-convicted sex offender is back in jail for violating his parole allegedly after his advances on a 12-year-old girl, who was en route to Cooke Middle School, were reported to Novi Police.

The Northville City and Township Police Departments will be increasing their patrols around schools after two boys reported that they were asked to get into a stranger's vehicle Sept. 19.

According to a police report filed by Cooke Principal Jeff Radwanski, the incident came to light after a presentation to Cooke students by Township police officer Matt Mayes. Radwanski said that Mayes had been talking to sixth graders about safety, including information about being approached by strangers. After the talk, a student approached Mayes and described an incident that had taken place the day before.

Radwanski interviewed the student and his friend, and then immediately called Northville police.

According to the report, the boys were approached by four men in a purple extended cab pick-up truck.

"(The driver) asked the boys for directions to a home on Ely Court, and when the boys said they didn't know where the house was, the truck left," the report stated. Minutes later the truck returned and the driver asked the boys to get into the truck. The boys refused and the truck left the area.

Two other students, interviewed later by Radwanski, said they too had seen the purple truck, and confirmed there were four occupants in the vehicle.

In response to the incident, Radwanski sent a letter home to par-

Township budget gets bigger surplus

The fund balance will still be well over $700,000 as the Board of Trustees enters the final year of its tenure.

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

Members of the Northville Township Board of Trustees had a busy night one week ago. They agreed in concept to a proposed township budget that spends $500,000 on a slew of equipment and facility renovations while still leaving the community's "rainy day" fund more than triple what it was when they took office.

Oh, yes, and the word "millage" came up.

The board in a Sept. 21 non-voting study session considered the township's projected budget for the coming fiscal year, which must be formally approved by Oct. 31. Most of the details of the proposed $4.2 million general fund budget had already been hammered out.

At the study session the board tackled the question of capital outlay: what does the township have to spend some money on in order to be able to continue to provide necessary public services? In the end the trustees agreed to some $550,000 in new and replacement equipment purchases and facility renovations, paid for out of the township's fund balance.

The fund balance, maintained for emergencies, stood at about $200,000 when the board took office in November 1992. It is projected to reach $1.05 million by year's end, not counting the upcoming expenses. Taking out those, however, the fund balance will still be well over $700,000. The idea of the fund balance is to have money socked away in the event of unexpected expenses. Members of the board agreed that the township shouldn't use it as a savings account, increasing it every year with residents' tax dollars.

Instead the fund is kept at a level to keep township services going for a few months in the event of an emergency, time enough for a millage election.

Anti-drug program offers life-skills lessons

By ROBERT JACKSON
Staff Writer

An innovative after-school program that targets middle school youths is one step closer to becoming a reality in Northville.

The program, Northville Gets Michigan Youth Moving, received a thumbs up from the Northville City Council last week. The council voted to approve a $500 contribution to the program that will take place one day per week at the Recreation Center. The funding is contingent upon submission of a complete program outline to the city.

The Northville Township Board of Trustees, however, balked at making a decision to help fund the project. At the board's meeting Sept. 14, trustees were publicly hesitant when asked to contribute funds.

"Conceivably the program may be a good one. I really can't say because I don't know enough about it," said trustee Russ Fogg. "I think we, as a board, first have to look at our responsibilities, and those are providing police, fire, and essential services to the taxpayers."

Fogg said he didn't "vehemently" oppose the program, but he felt the Community Commis-

Shooting victim was devoted family man

"If you want to say anything about him, say that his happiest moments were the ones he spent with his children."

Diane Farquhar was a little reluctant to talk about her husband, Doug, who was killed in an apparent robbery attempt two weeks ago. But, after expressing initial misgivings, she agreed to offer comments for an article in the newspaper.

"He was very smart and very funny," she continued. "Everybody says things like that after someone dies but he was just a really fun guy. He loved Michigan football, loved golfing, and he liked to go to our daughter's soccer games. He got along well with all kinds of people."

Doug Farquhar, 41, was shot and killed inside the business he owned at Michigan and Livernois in Detroit shortly after 5 p.m. Friday, Sept. 15. The tragedy struck a shattering blow to the Northville resident's family and friends, but a tremendous outpouring of support is helping with the difficult task of carrying on.

"We got through a lot of hurdles," Diane added. "People have

High school gears up for Homecoming events

By ROBERT JACKSON
Staff Writer

Mustang fever has gotten a grip on the student body of Northville High School, as Homecoming festivities began this week.

Spirit Week officially began Monday, with students taking part in a "peanut tossing" contest, according to Principal Tom Johnson.

"This is definitely an exciting week for students and teachers," Johnson said. "The students have been looking forward to Homecoming and are extremely enthusiastic."

In-school activities have been scheduled during the lunch periods and will end with a pep rally scheduled for 1:15 p.m., Friday, Johnson said. Tuesday's lunch activities included a whip cream eating contest.

Then at 6 p.m., the homecoming parade will wind its way through the streets of Northville. The parade will begin in the parking lot behind Old Village School, proceed east along Cady Street, turn north on Wing, head east again on Main Street, before proceeding north on Center, and then west on Eight Mile to the football field.

Included in the parade will be the award winning NHS Pom Pon squad, the NHS Marching Band and cheerleaders, representatives from each class, the Homecoming Court, and of course, the 1995 Homecoming King and Queen.

After the parade the action will move to the football field where the Mustangs will face Farmington Harrison. Kickoff time is 7:30 p.m.

Wooly's owner disputes complaints about noise

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

Wooly Bully's is getting a bum deal when it comes to complaints about a weekly gathering of classic cars, its owner says.

As reported in the last issue of The Northville Record, Northville Township officials earlier this month alleged that the popular Seven Mile club/diner is violating local zoning and noise ordinances when a group of classic cars gather in the parking lot each Wednesday night accompanied by a disc jockey on a speaker system.

Township attorney Jim Tamm in a written opinion said that the events were in violation of zoning ordinances since Wooly Bully's did not seek or obtain a special use permit from the Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA).

Mark Roman, the owner of Wooly Bully's, firmly denied those allegations this week, alleging that his business is the victim of a bad image that the restaurant has been saddled with since it opened in March 1993.

In the first place, Roman said that township officials are mischaracterizing what happens at Wooly Bully's each Wednesday night.

"This is not a 'show.' These are people who happen to drive a certain kind of car who visit my restaurant," he said. "I'd like to see what the township's definition of a 'special event' is."

He hasn't seen one yet, Roman added, because no one from the township has approached him about what's happening.

"No one's told me there's been a problem. No one's come out with a decibel meter to check the noise level and see if it's violating anything. There haven't been any steps taken to notify us of anything," Roman maintained.

He added that he did not think the Wednesday activities were creating a noise problem: "No, definitely not."

"These are not young punks here creating a disturbance," Roman added. "To have the money to own cars like this most people have to be 45 to 60 years old. They're just here for a good time."

No engine-revving contests take place either, the owner alleged. One one occasion, the disc jockey had car owners rev up and was told not to do it again.

"I have a valid complaint here and I have to act on it," Public Safety Director Chip Snider said of Roman's comments. The eatery or Roman himself could face a $500 fine if convicted of the misdemeanor offense.

Yet another difference of opinion lies over whether or not the restaurant has a parking problem. Township officials say it does while Roman says the issue was resolved more than 18 months ago when he and Highland Lakes Shopping Center owner Bill Autry agreed to a shared parking arrangement. In addition, nearly 100 new spaces have been added to Wooly Bully's existing lot.

"What problem? There just isn't one," Roman said.

The real problem, he continued, is that some people in Northville have a distorted view of Wooly Bully's, caused in part by The Northville Record.

"There's a certain segment of the population which has a certain idea about our restaurant. A lot of them have had it ever since we opened, when we got a lot of bad press," Roman said. "Most of them, though, have never set foot inside. All I ask is that people come in and give us a shot before they make a decision.",

Longridge named 'Principal of Year'

By ROBERT JACKSON
Staff Writer

The Northville Public School District sure is getting a lot of recognition these days.

First, Meads Mill Middle School was one of two middle schools in Michigan to take part in the inaugural Governor's Education Summit, and now Meads Mill Middle School Principal David Longridge has been named Michigan Principal of the year by the Michigan Association of Secondary School Principals.

Longridge received the award based on his willingness to take risks and help students enhance their ability to anticipate and solve problems, according to Jack Bittle, executive director of MASSP. Bittle said that Longridge continues to strive to improve the school's learning environment.

"During his 35 years in education (Longridge) has shown that he is a real people person," Bittle said. "His faculty feels like they are part of a family and the students respect him for his caring, which includes personal remarks on each student's report card."

"His school is a lighthouse for other middle schools in Michigan and the nation," Bittle added.

Longridge was also named Outstanding Secondary School Principal by the MASSP, according to Northville School Superintendent Leonard Rezmierski, who said Longridge's awards represent a great honor for him and for the district.

"We're extremely fortunate to have Dave Longridge," he said. "He stands for making common sense decisions in educating children."

Longridge's award is the latest in a string of honors received by Meads Mill. Earlier this month, the school was named as one of two middle schools in Michigan that was showcased as examples of the state's most innovative learning environments at the inaugural Governor's Education Summit, Sept. 19.

Meads Mill joined 28 schools and districts chosen to present "break-the-mold" policies, programs or services that improve education for students. The schools' methods of systemic change will be presented as models for other schools and districts to follow.

Longridge believes regaining public confidence and credibility is the greatest challenge facing education today.

David Longridge

"This challenge will have to be met while preparing all students for the 21st century in a multicultural society headed toward a global economy, where information doubles every six months and employment opportunities are in job markets yet to be determined," he said. "This is no small task."

As the state's principal of the year, Longridge will attend an educational leader's symposium, sponsored by the National Association of Secondary School Principals, in Washington, D.C., at the end of this month. He will also be a candidate for the 1996 National Principal of the Year Award.

Apartment burglars make off with valuables

A Northville Township man lost thousands of dollars worth of property to a burglar on Sept. 19.

Police think those involved entered the Northville Place Apartments resident's home through an unlocked door. They took cigars, a ring, cologne, change and watches. The items are valued at $2,300.

LOCKER LARCENY: Someone stole a watch and $500 in cash belonging to a West Bloomfield man while he was playing golf at Meadowbrook Country Club on Sept. 12.

The man said he left the items in his locker while playing and returned to discover them gone. The locker's lock was in place and undamaged, however. The watch is valued at $37.

STALKING: A Northville Township woman told police last week that her ex-boyfriend has been stalking her.

The woman, 25, said that she broke up with the man, 28, about three weeks ago. One day shortly after that, she explained, he called her home 25 times. At about 2 a.m. on Sept. 19, she continued, the man showed up at her residence, pounding on the door.

The next morning the woman found her porch light broken and her car keyed. She suspects the man did it, the woman told police, because his name and the words "love me" were scratched on her car.

AUTO APPROPRIATED: A Maxwell Road resident who left his car unlocked with the windows down and the keys in the ignition during the night of Sept. 16-17 awoke to find it had been stolen.

Plymouth Township police found the 1985 Chevrolet Chevette on Northville Road later that day, apparently undamaged.

WARRANT ARREST: A township officer checking out a vehicle trespassing at the Plymouth State Home ended up arresting the teenage driver on a felony warrant charge Saturday afternoon.

The officer saw a 1990 Ford van on the state-owned property at about 6 p.m. with eight people inside. A computer check on the driver revealed a warrant for his arrest stemming from a Plymouth Township incident in which he was charged with carrying a concealed weapon.

The man, an 18-year-old Canton resident, was turned over to Plymouth officers at the scene.

ELECTRONICS ABDUCTED: Meijer store detective say an unidentified female pushed a shopping cart full of electronics goods out of the front door on the night of Sept. 20, put them into a 1982 Buick Regal driven by an unidentified man, then got in and took off.

The items are valued at $770. The car, whose license plate detectives passed on to police, is registered to a Detroit man.

BREAKING AND ENTERING: A Curtis Road homeowner reported a break-in to township police on Sept. 20. The man, 51, said that $140 in cash was taken from a drawer in his home. Police believe entry was made through the home's garage.

TABLE TAKEN: A 27-year-old Innsbrook Apartments man told township police that someone stole a table from his home on Saturday night.

The man said the thief could have been his ex-roommate, 26, who owes him money. The man said he has property belonging to the man in storage.

TOOL TIME: A Whisper Court woman, allegedly upset with a hired workman, threw his tools into her home and locked the door, refusing to give them back, on the afternoon of Sept. 18.

The workman, a 33-year-old Novi resident, told police he was arguing with the homeowner over a job he was doing there when the incident occurred.

An officer helped to settle the dispute.

LOST AND FOUND: A Northville Township woman told police that someone snatched her cellular telephone from her shopping cart at Home Depot on Sept. 14. The phone was found undamaged at Meijer on Sept. 19 and returned to her.

ASSAULT: A Northville woman told police last week that an argument with her ex-boyfriend turned violent on the night of Sept. 7.

The woman, 49, said that she and her ex-beau, 37, were fighting over the fact that she had hung up on his phone calls after ending their three-year relationship.

He then struck her in the face with his fist, leaving a bruise that was visible to the township officer taking the report two weeks later.

She did not want to pursue a complaint against him, however.

ANOTHER BIKE STOLEN: A 14-year-old Northville boy reported his bike stolen Sept. 24.

According to Northville Police, the boy was spending the night at a friend's house, located on Beal Street, and had left his mountain bike in the front yard.

The boy noticed the bike missing when he went out to retrieve it the next morning.

No suspects have been identified. The estimated cost of the bike is $500.

FAILURE TO YIELD: A 48-year-old Walled Lake woman was cited for hazardous driving in connection with a three car accident, at the intersection of Eight Mile Road and Center Street, Sept. 21.

According to the police report, the woman was heading east on Eight Mile when she attempted to make a left-hand turn onto N. Center.

She failed to yield to oncoming traffic and was hit by a car driven by a 16-year-old Northville girl.

The girl was then subsequently struck by a car driven by a 20-year-old Northville man.

Police report nobody was injured in the accident.

Citizens with information about any of the above incidents are asked to notify township police at 349-9400 or city police at 349-1234.

Motorist awaits sentence

The Northville man convicted of severely injuring a pedestrian during a car accident in June will learn his fate in less than two weeks.

Modesto Cisneros pled guilty to one count of felonious driving on Sept. 15 in Wayne County Circuit Court before Judge William Cahalan. Cahalan will sentence Cisneros on the charge on Wednesday, Oct. 11.

Northville Township police say the van Cisneros was driving struck Northville resident Sharon Perkins as she was putting gas into her empty car on the shoulder of westbound Six Mile Road on the afternoon of June 14.

Perkins suffered a skull fracture and hearing loss as a result of the accident.

Cisneros was trying to merge into traffic at the point where Six Mile narrows from four lanes to two just west of Haggerty Road, police said. A Nissan Pathfinder driven by Northville resident James Bommarito was in the merge lane and refused to let Cisneros in, police said, leading Cisneros to sideswipe the vehicle and continue on the shoulder of Six Mile for 60 yards.

At that point the van struck Perkins, 27, who was filling up the empty tank of her Geo Storm.

Cisneros could face up to a $1,000 fine and/or two years in prison for the felonious driving conviction.

Police also issued a ticket for careless driving to Bommarito, alleging he was "a contributing factor" to the accident.

	Yes	No
1. Do you eat when you're not hungry?	☐	☐
2. Do you go on eating binges for no apparent reason?	☐	☐
3. Do you have feelings of guilt and remorse after overeating?	☐	☐
4. Do you give too much time and thought to food?	☐	☐
5. Is your weight affecting the way you live your life?	☐	☐
6. Do you use fasting, strenuous exercise, vomiting or laxatives to control your weight?	☐	☐
7. Have you tried to diet for a week (or longer), only to fall short of your goal?	☐	☐

If you answer "yes" to three or more of these questions, you may be a compulsive overeater. You are not alone. Millions of Americans suffer from this disease.

Compulsive overeating is a painful, relentless illness that interferes with every aspect of life. It is a disease that gets progressively worse if left untreated.

Weight gain often accompanies this illness. But not always. Many compulsive overeaters maintain normal body weight by strict diets, fasting, strenuous exercise, vomiting, or excessive laxative use. These methods are ineffective and medically dangerous.

Weight is not the problem, and dieting is not the solution. The problem is the disease of compulsive overeating, and the solution is a program of treatment and recovery.

The Eating Disorders Clinic (EDC) of St. Mary Hospital offers an outpatient treatment program that leads to lasting recovery. Our approach is comprehensive. We help our patients make lifestyle changes that give them renewed confidence in themselves and more control over their lives. Gradually, the chronic binge/diet cycle is replaced by a healthy, more satisfying, and more productive way of life. With food in its proper place, weight normalizes.

At EDC, we work as a team -- psychologist, psychiatrist, physician, nutritionist, and specially trained therapists -- to diagnose and treat eating disorders. This experienced staff provides treatment with understanding and sensitivity.

If compulsive overeating is a problem for you, or someone you love, take the first step toward recovery. Call us today at (313) 591-2936, WE CAN HELP.

Man faces charge of cocaine possession

A 27-year-old Redford man, picked up by Northville Police on an outstanding warrant in April, will face a cocaine charge next month.

John Lee Bates pled innocent to one count of possession of cocaine Sept. 25, at Wayne County Circuit Court in Westland. His court date has been set for Oct. 6.

If convicted of the charge, Bates could face up to four years in prison and/or up to $2,000 in fines. Possessing of a controlled substance is considered a felony.

The charge stems from an incident last April when Northville Police picked up Bates on an outstanding warrant filed in Redford. While Bates was being processed he inadvertently dropped a plastic bag filled with a suspicious and "unknown white powder."

Police sent the bag and contents to the Michigan State Police Crime Lab, where tests identified the substance as cocaine.

Bates is currently being held at Wayne County Jail on other charges.

Second phase of reorganization under discussion in township

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

> "Someone has to take total responsibility out there. That's why I support this. Someone's got to be in charge."
> - Gini Britton
> Township trustee

Members of the Northville Township Board of Trustees tackled the second phase of Manager Tamara Hanlin's proposed "reorganization" of township government last week, in the end giving the plan a slim 4-3 conceptual thumbs up.

"This creates a more efficient organization by streamlining the reporting structure," Hanlin said of the proposal during a Sept. 21 non-voting board study session.

The board in July approved the first phase of Hanlin's proposal on a 4-1 vote. Supporting it were Trustees Mark Abbo, Gini Britton and Russ Fogg as well as Clerk Sue Hillebrand. Supervisor Karen Baja and Treasurer Rick Engelland were absent from the meeting where the vote was taken and Trustee Barbara O'Brien voted against the proposal.

The approval led to the elimination of Planning Director Carol Maise's position and the privatization of all township planning functions, a move supporters say will save taxpayers money. The board also gave the manager the go-ahead to study the public services department concept, a move Hanlin said would help clarify the township's confused chain of command and make employees more "accountable" for their actions.

Under the plan Mick Kruszewski, head township building official, would continue to supervise his department's employees and budget but would report to department head Bill Anderson, who would report to the board on all public service matters.

The four trustees who supported phase one also said they'd give the green light to phase two.

"Someone has to take total responsibility out there," Britton said. "That's why I support this. Someone's got to be in charge."

Baja, Engelland and O'Brien, however, expressed opposition to the plan in varying degrees. Baja and Engelland questioned where the benefit lies, arguing that it would mean more tax money and less efficiency.

"I am not convinced that it is necessary," Baja countered. "I don't see enough of a streamline to justify the salary increase (for Anderson) involved."

"If you're a boss and you get more responsibility, your pay doesn't go down," Hillebrand said.

"This adds another layer of management to the structure," Engelland said. "I think that's wrong."

Despite the board's decision, reorganization can't move out of the discussion stage until there's room at the Pubic Utilities building to house the incoming departments. That won't happen until a proposed building expansion is completed.

The board at the study session agreed in concept to the expansion, which will cost about $70,000. Hanlin said she will soon hire an architectural planning firm to work on design and that if all goes smoothly construction could begin as early as this spring.

Mill Race Matters

Attention this week focuses on Tivoli Fair. The event runs Friday, Sept. 29, from 10 a.m. until 8 p.m. and Saturday, Sept. 30, from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. at Northville Downs Race Track. Over 130 crafters will display and sell quality arts and crafts in this juried show.

The two-day show provides almost one half of the Northville Historical Society operating budget which enables the organization to keep Mill Race Village available for this community and its many activities.

Northville Historical Society members should bring donations for this year's bake sale to the fair one half hour before opening for free admission. Contact Melody Arndt at 349-1655 to contribute baked goods if unable to attend.

Judy Kohl once again coordinates hostess volunteers. She can be reached at 348-2678. Hosts and hostesses sell tickets, give directions and fill in at exhibitor booths.

Mill Race Village remains open Sunday afternoons from 1 until 4 p.m. until the end of October. The fall provides a picturesque time to view the Village's nine historic structures. Visitors to the grounds are welcome during daylight hours but buildings can only be visited on Sunday afternoon.

Thank you this week to Georgianna Chase for the lace curtains and to George Agiovlasitis for his gift with membership. The Northville Historical Society, a volunteer non profit organization in this community, continues to exist because of the generous support from its members and friends. Call the office at 348-1845 Monday through Friday for additional information.

Our neighbors at the Plymouth Historical Museum are featuring "Lincoln Portrait" from now until Oct. 15. It features the collection of local historian Dr. Weldon Petz. On Thursday, Sept. 28, John Gibney speaks on Michigan in the war at 7:30 p.m. The museum is open Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday from 1 to 4 p.m. and Sunday from 2 until 5 p.m.

Early Birds get the best bargains

Sale to benefit youth efforts

The Northville Kiwanis Early Birds organization will conduct its first ever garage sale Sept. 29 and 30.

The sale will be held at the Northville Senior Citizens Center, located directly behind the Northville Post Office. The sale will run from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. each day.

All proceeds from the sale will be used for youth related programs in Northville, according to Kiwanis members Stan Szostek and Charlie Stilec.

Included in the sale will be items donated by Charles and Hannah Yahne. Hannah, who is moving from the house she and Charles lived in since 1939, contacted the Civic Concern organization to donate all of the couples' furniture and household items for the garage sale. The donation is in remembrance of Charles, who passed away this summer. He taught Spanish and English at Northville High School and was an athletic coach for 29 years.

The Early Bird Kiwanis, this year alone, has sponsored a 16-team Little League Baseball Tournament, adopted needy families at Christmas, funded a scholarship, and has donated time and money to many youth related projects in Northville.

According to Szostek, the group hopes to make the garage sale an annual event and is hoping for support from the community.

Donations are still needed and can be brought to the Northville Senior Center until 4 p.m. tomorrow.

Township trustees hoping for best in Salem strategy

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

Russ Fogg can explain at length what his problem is with the compost center that Browning-Ferris Industries (BFI) plans to open soon near Northville Township.

He and other township officials aren't nearly as clear, however, about what to do about it.

The Northville Township Board of Trustees, including Fogg, voted 6-0 (Supervisor Karen Baja was absent) earlier this month to suspend negotiations with Salem Township over a sewer tap-in deal for up to 120 days.

The idea, according to Fogg, was to make sure that Northville Township residents' interests "are adequately protected" when it comes to BFI's under-construction compost center in Salem near Six Mile and Napier Roads.

Salem approved the 20-acre center in July and the facility is slated to open in about two weeks. The township board rejected a proposed compost center last year but the Salem site will actually be closer to Northville Township residents than that site would have been.

The compost center's odor carries with it a serious risk to the quality of life and future development of the western end of Northville Township, Fogg maintains. The Sept. 14 board vote is an attempt to get Salem to impose "stricter controls" on the BFI site, he explained.

"I see it curtailing development," Fogg said. "I can't see people moving into that area and putting up with what I've experienced there."

What form should those "stricter controls" take? Fogg admits he has little idea.

"Let's see what they come up with," he said. "I'm just disappointed that Salem Township took BFI's word so readily that there wasn't going to be any odor problem there."

The trustee did say that he wanted to see Salem consider reducing the five-day limit BFI has to address any odor problem at the center before being shut down.

"Five days? It should be more like 15 minutes," Fogg said.

Hanging in the balance is the proposed sewer tap-in agreement. The township board last year agreed in concept to sell Salem a tiny portion of the township's total sewer capacity. Salem wants to fix a decades-old sewage disposal problem in that community by installing a $2 million sewer system, then tapping it into Northville Township's system.

Apparently, however, no Northville Township official has thought of telling Salem what it has to do to get the suspension lifted.

"All I know is what I've read in the paper," Salem Supervisor Don Riddering said this week. "No one's contacted us."

"I don't know what's going on," Fogg said. "At this point I really don't know. I suppose we ought to get together with them on that."

Township Manager Tamara Hanlin said that the board had given the administration no direction on the matter to date. She did say that in accordance with a second Sept. 14 board vote township attorney Jim Tamm is examining a 1992 sewer service agreement between Northville Township and BFI.

That idea, also Fogg's, was designed to see if there's any way for the township to invalidate the contract and thus get some leverage on BFI about the compost center. At the time, however, the trustee admitted it was a case of "grasping at straws."

He's not sure whether that or the suspension will produce results, Fogg said, but added that the situation made him feel compelled to act.

"I want to do what I think is right. I don't want to hurt anyone but rather than not do anything, I'd like to do something," he said.

Local man to appear in performance

Departure time is 12:30 p.m. from the Senior Citizens Center, 215 W. Cady. Transportation is available from your home beginning at noon ($1 donation).

Tulip festival offers demonstrations, music, dancing

A giant European fairgrounds organ will crank up Dutch and German tunes at 10 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 7, to open a two-day Holland Bulb Festival at Brickscape Gardens in Northville.

Talks and demonstrations on the origin, selection and planting of tulips and other bulbs are scheduled during the festival, which runs 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Oct. 7 and Sunday, Oct. 8.

Dutch wooden shoe dancers from the Holland Michigan Tulip Festival will punctuate the program on Saturday at 1 and 2:30 p.m., with their colorful Dutch costumes and "Clompen" dancing to traditional Dutch music.

Brickscape will also kick off a contest that day to honor the gardener who does the best and most creative bulb planting, with judging to be held next May.

All of the activities are designed to celebrate bulb planting time, October, according to Joe and Diane DiRado of Northville, who own Brickscape Gardens.

Most of Brickscape's 150 varieties of tulips, daffodils, hyacinths, crocus and Dutch iris bulbs will be on display at Brickscape, located on Old Novi Road just north of Eight Mile Road and just east of Novi Road.

"Bulbs are a perfect way for anyone to get into gardening. They're almost fool-proof and the beautiful blooms are so personally rewarding," said Joe DiRado.

In October, as soon as the ground temperature goes down to 60 degrees, is the ideal time to plant bulbs, according to Barbara Reichard, a professional gardener at Brickscape.

Reichard, of Northville, will demonstrate regular and "layered" planting of bulbs, color and garden design, container planting and "forcing" of blooms.

Through forcing, one can have beautiful blooming bulb plants indoors all winter.

Holland bulb expert Peter Van Eeden of K. Van Bourgondien & Sons, Hillegom, Holland, will tell the fascinating story of how bulbs are grown and new varieties created there in the world's bulb epicenter.

An ornate European fairgrounds organ, familiar to many Holland Michigan Tulip Festival goers, is being brought to town by another Dutchman, Terry Haughawout of Bloomdale, Ohio.

Contained in its own custom trailer, the 17 foot long, 7 foot high organ will be played most of both days, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. It operates on "cardboard music," much like a player piano, providing festive, carnival-like music.

The back of the organ opens up so people can see its inner workings.

Further information on the festival or on Holland bulbs is available by phoning Brickscape Gardens at (810) 348-2500.

Rivers enjoys fast pace Congress keeps this year

By LEE SNIDER
Editor

U.S. Representative Lynn Rivers doesn't know what it was like on Capitol Hill before she took office last January.

But if it was true in the past that Washington lawmakers liked to wine and dine away the hours, it isn't true any more.

"Somebody said to me once, 'You guys just run around in your limousines and go to your state dinners and everybody's in a tux' ... that may have existed once but it doesn't exist now," she said.

Rivers, D-Ann Arbor, shared her impressions of official Washington in a recent interview at her district office in Wayne. Rivers was elected to her first term in Congress last November. She represents Northville Township and the Wayne County portion of Northville city in the House.

"I get invited to embassy functions but I tend not to go," she said. "Generally I work, and lots of people do. They tend to work late, go home to their apartment, collapse and then get up and do it again."

Rivers and the other members of Congress kept a break-neck pace during the first session of the current term, as the new Republican majority pushed hard to enact its 10-point Contract With America.

She said the new leadership's determination to drive through its campaign platform resulted in "trial by fire" for the freshmen class.

"Probably six weeks in we were as seasoned as people beginning their second terms – not only because of the intensity of the schedule but also the intensity of the arguments. We were very much on task, working very long hours five days a week up through the summer."

Rivers, 38, defeated Bush administration staffer John Schall in the 1994 election. Last year's retirement of Congressman William Ford, a 30-year veteran, cleared the way for the first closely contested battle in years.

Though Rivers' margin of victory was convincing, Schall won in 13th District Republican strongholds Northville and Northville Township.

Rivers is frank in assessing her party's strengths and weaknesses, blaming the GOP's aggressive conduct, in part, on decades of Democratic rule.

"The legislation I've seen is partly the fault of the Democrats because they really shut down debate. For the Republicans it's like getting in a door that's been stuck. You hit at it and hit at it and hit at it and when you finally get through you go all the way through.

"I think that's why some of these bills are so extreme. Whereas if we had had better relations there could have been more moderate proposals and compromises."

But Rivers is an equal opportunity critic, faulting Republicans for failing to act on important reform legislation.

"I don't think the American people believed in 1994 that what they wanted to do was eliminate a Democratically-dominated Congress that wouldn't pass campaign finance reform, etc. etc., for a Republican dominated congress that wouldn't pass the same things. They want to see some change and that's not moving well. I think that's a terrific problem."

Rivers said she hasn't seen much of President Bill Clinton or Speaker Newt Gingrich since going to Washington. Noting the deep divisions between the executive and legislative branches, she said Clinton is somewhat remote from Congress. Gingrich, meanwhile, is off doing other things and doesn't spend much time in the House.

Rivers flies home to the district every weekend, saying that's the only traveling she does "on the government dime."

"I don't do junkets. I've had opportunities to go several places, including Germany, but I just said I wouldn't do that. The frequent flyer miles I accrue are used for another trip. I don't use them for my own personal use even though that's allowed in the House.

"I signed Common Cause's vow not to accept gifts, travel, and meals from lobbyists, which is sometimes difficult to follow but I've kept to it. I recognize that makes people very nervous."

Rivers opposes term limits, believing that campaign finance reform is a better way to level the playing field for candidates. She said an analysis by the National Taxpayers Union characterized her as a net budget cutter based on her voting record during her first year.

She said she doesn't mind the grueling travel pace that's involved in flying home each weekend, even though the separation from her family is sometimes hard.

U.S. Rep. Lynn Rivers

"My husband's very lonely. Our phone bill's huge," she said.

And how are her two daughters faring without their mother around?

"My older daughter has her own apartment. She just moved to Kalamazoo. My younger daughter is 16 and has a boyfriend, a job and a car – I don't think she's noticed I'm gone," she quipped.

Rivers says she helped save an environmental office in Ann Arbor and is working to open a U.S. Post Office in Canton. Her involvement with the Northville community, however, has been limited.

"Northville, frankly, likes to keep a very big distance between itself and the federal government. When I first met with the leadership in the community they said, 'We don't want any federal money because there are too many strings. We don't take federal money,'" she added, laughing.

State parks to begin accepting reservations

Campers planning a 1996 vacation can begin making state park reservations on Oct. 1.

The toll-free number is 1-800-5432-YES. But be patient the first few days because you may get busy signals or be put on "hold" due to the heavy demand.

"We are continuing our efforts to make planning a camping trip to a state park as convenient and simple as possible," said O.J. Scherschlight, the Department of Natural Resources chief of parks and recreation.

Labor Day campers this year ran into "full" signs at most of the popular state parks unless they had a reservation. This year DNR inaugurated the 800 toll free number for reservations and had enormous success.

When you call, be ready with this information: name, address, camping equipment type (tent or vehicle) and size, Visa or Mastercard number, and telephone number of a contact person.

For a mail-in reservation form, call the same number.

The toll-free number is staffed from 8 a.m. to 11 p.m. weekdays and 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on weekends.

There is a small charge for making a reservation and minimum stay of three nights required.

The system is used for the state parks, which generally have nicer facilities, including electric power and hot showers. It is not used for state forest campgrounds.

Michigan also has campgrounds in the Huron, Manistee, Hiawatha and Ottawa national forests, run by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. So far they have not instituted reservation systems.

Homes on display at Expo Center

The first annual Showcase of Distinctive Homes, which features a wide variety of newly constructed model homes available throughout southeast Michigan, kicked off this week.

"This scattered site showcase of new homes gives buyers the opportunity to see a wide selection of outstanding homes built by many of BIA's Professional Master Builders," said Janet L. Compo, president of the non-profit Building Industry Association of Southeastern Michigan (BIA) and chief executive officer of James D. Compo Inc. of Farmington Hills.

Pictorial renderings of the 37 participating homes will be on display at the Fall Remodeling Show at the Novi Expo Center which runs from Sept. 28 through Oct. 1. The Showcase of Distinctive Homes extends beyond the show dates to Oct. 15 to enable people to visit the models at their convenience.

Model homes include both condominiums and single family homes ranging in price from $127,900 to $498,500.

Prior to the opening of the Showcase of Distinctive Homes, prominent local architects will judge the homes and award winners in several prize categories. Judging will be based on the design, architecture, special features of the home and its value for the price.

The Showcase of Distinctive Homes program is sponsored by BIA, which also sponsors the Parade of Notable Homes in the spring.

HEALTH NOTE

PREPARING FOR SURGERY

New research suggests that undergoing physical therapy prior to knee or hip replacement surgery may help cut post-procedural hospital stays in half. By running through their rehabilitation routines before their surgeries, total hip replacement patients were able to limit their hospital stays to an average 5.3 days, compared with ten days for patients who did not undergo the presurgery protocol. As for total knee replacement patients who exercised under the direction of physical therapists prior to their surgeries, they stayed in the hospital an average 5.6 days, verses 13 days for non-exercising patients. The message is clear that presurgery physical therapy helped patients better prepare for their rehabilitation.

If you will be needing hip or knee replacement surgery, you may seriously want to consider presurgical physical therapy. For more information, call Northville Physical Therapy & Rehabilitation Inc. at 349-3816. We work closely with referring physicians and provide timely initial evaluations and routine progress correspondence. Our therapists offer individualized treatment programs that focus on returning patients to their highest level of function. We are located at 332 E. Main Street, Suite A.

P.S. Patients in the study mentioned above also practiced using crutches and walkers as part of their physical therapy preparation for surgery.

Preparations complete for annual Tivoli Fair

Novi artist to 'bear' all at art show

By CAROL WORKENS
Staff Writer

Betty Clagg is a little nervous. The Novi resident is making her debut.

Clagg has been chosen to be among 130 dealers who will be offering their works for sale at Tivoli Fair this weekend.

The 26th annual juried arts and crafts show is sponsored by the Northville Historical Society.

Although Clagg admits she is definitely a people person, the thought of thousands of folks eying her soft sculpture 40-inch bears is a little unnerving.

Clagg has spent the last year cutting, sewing, stuffing and painting each bear by hand. The bears are outfitted with clothing from resale and department stores which Clagg remakes to fit the bear's size and personality.

A perfectionist, Clagg will spend about 10 hours on each bear and then will sometimes redo a bear or completely send it to the scrap pile if the look is not entirely right.

From the rugged biker to the well weathered couple, each bear has a personality all its own.

Other bears include a golfer, a doctor, a Red Wings fan, an air force pilot, and a bride and groom – about three dozen in all sit posed with a look of childhood innocence.

Betty Clagg's bears are sure to hit it off with Tivoli Fair shoppers.

"I'm partial to children," she said. "I love the innocence of children."

The inspiration for the bears comes from life, family and friends.

Other ideas come on shopping trips when Clagg will see an outfit that will spark her imagination and give birth to another bear.

"Bears represent something warm and secure," Clagg said. A little card dangles from each bear with a poem signed Grandma Ickie, which is what Clagg's eight grandchildren call her.

"I'm a huggy, touchy, feely person," she said.

So all her bears and poems have something to do with hugs and unconditional love, she says.

Tivoli Fair is held at the Northville Down Race Track and is open from 10 a.m. until 8 p.m. on Friday, Sept. 29, and 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. on Saturday, Sept. 30. Admission is $3.

Food is available for sale on the premises.

Baby strollers are not permitted in the facility.

Event is organization's main benefit of season

Now in its 26th year, Tivoli Fair, the quality juried arts and crafts show sponsored by the Northville Historical Society, returns this weekend to the Northville Downs race track. This year the show will feature over 130 dealers offering works for sale.

Tivoli Fair got its name from originator Marion Crump after her visit to the Tivoli Gardens in Denmark. Tivoli Gardens in Copenhagen began during the 1850s and features guards attired in red and white. From these guards come the fair's annual symbol, the wooden soldiers.

Longtime participants will remember that Tivoli spelled backwards says I-LOV-IT. This catchy phrase has served for many years as a slogan for the organization's primary fund-raising event.

This year's fair features many returning exhibitors as well as several new and interesting ones. In addition to the numerous crafts for sale some exhibitors will be demonstrating their skills in special working booths.

After an absence of one year the popular Historical Society Bake Sale returns this year, chaired by Melody Arndt. The hope is that members will provide baked goods in adequate supply for an anxious public. To provide baked goods, contact Melody at 349-1655.

Member Judy Kohl coordinates hosts and hostesses to assist with the many small chores that need to be done on the two fair dates. Those interested in volunteering to work can contact her at 348-2678. Some spaces may still be available.

This year's show coordinator Aletta Holmes is being assisted by former show director Betty Omar. Both promise an interesting mix of traditional as well as unique craft items. The fair provides an opportunity to prepare for the upcoming holidays with new and delightful decorations for the home. Many individuals use it as an opportunity to begin Christmas and holiday shopping.

The show runs from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Friday, Sept. 29, and from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday, Sept. 30. Admission is $3. Food is available for sale on the premises. Baby strollers are not permitted in the facility.

Community rallies to help city family

been wonderful."

Diane says the people she dealt with in the days following the incident were responsive, sensitive and caring. Everyone - the authorities, the neighbors, and the teachers and students at Winchester Elementary where two of her daughters attend school - offered generous sentiments of sympathy and understanding.

A funeral service at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church in Livonia drew 400 mourners.

The comfort shown the family and Diane's determination to continue living have been invaluable sources of strength. Daughters Laura, nearly 8, and Kathryn, 5, returned to school after missing only three days. Diane and the girls were even able to attend open house conferences at Winchester just last week.

A third daughter, Jamie, is 2.

Details of what happened to Doug are somewhat sketchy, but it's known that two men entered the business, Trailer Service Inc., apparently intending to hold up the place. Neighbors who live near the building soon heard shots and ran to the scene.

According to Diane, one neighbor called for an ambulance while another tried following the suspects by car. The vehicle sped away before a license plate number could be noted, but the witnesses have been asked to review a police lineup.

It's not clear if any money was taken and the chances for an arrest are uncertain at this time.

Diane says she and Laura marched in the Victorian Festival parade which began at 6:30 that evening. Doug was supposed to leave work early enough to get home in time to see the parade, and when he didn't show up relatives began calling the shop.

Homicide police answered the phone and advised the family to go to Detroit Receiving Hospital right away. That's all that was disclosed and it wasn't until they arrived at the hospital that relatives learned what had happened.

Diane said Doug last saw Laura Friday morning when she modeled for him the dress she would wear in the parade that evening.

"He kept telling everyone throughout the day how pretty she looked," she said.

Interviewed by telephone, Diane had nothing but praise for each turn of event following the incident: the residents of the old Polish neighborhood who rushed to the scene risked their lives; the emergency unit response was excellent (the call came in at 5:10 and the ambulance arrived at the hospital at 5:17 p.m.); the Social Security processors at the Laurel Park office were kind; the teachers at Winchester who asked their students to send letters to the Farquhar home provided a bright spot; the well-wishers who sent food and toys and established a trust fund for the children's education have been a godsend.

She won't even allow badmouthing of Detroit, where the family's parts supply and repair business was located for two generations.

"Doug was committed to Detroit," she said. "We never had any trouble before."

Those wishing to contribute to the children's trust may send donations, payable to Educational Trust Fund, to: Dr. John G. Weg, 3060 Exmoor, Ann Arbor, MI 48104.

Middle school program gains partial funding

sion On Drug Abuse, the organizing agency, didn't provide enough information in its presentation to the board.

"I'd like to see them come back and make a better presentation with endorsements from staff," he said.

Trustee Gini Britton said she has a philosophical problem with using tax dollars to fund the program.

"I don't have a problem with the concept, I would just prefer to see it self-funded," she said. "In a community like ours, parents should be able to pay a dollar for their child to take part in this type of program."

"I would rather spend my dollars on the DARE Program, where I think it would do more good for the kids," Britton added.

She explained that she would support a recommendation from Northville Youth Assistance, which receives funding support from the township, to donate a portion of that funding to the CCODA program.

"We already have a dedicated mill for Youth Assistance, and I wouldn't have a problem with them approaching the board with a request to use some of that funding for this program," she said.

The program is being sponsored by the Northville Youth Forum, with cooperation from the CCODA Prevention Network, Northville Parks and Recreation and the Northville Action Council.

According to CCODA administrator Jacque Martin-Downs, the program will teach young people about healthy choices.

"(The program) cannot rely on drug education and exercise alone," she said. "This program will provide life-skills training, character education, adventure challenges and introduce middle schoolers to drug-free alternatives and interests."

"When these elements are in place, more young people will feel safe to examine the fundamentals of drug education without feeling as though the framework of their opinions is being pulled out from under them," Downs added.

Northville City Manager Gary Word said in a report to the council that although the program has yet to be defined, the concept appears to be one the community will embrace.

"A donation of $500 would be appropriate," Word said. "The funds should not be released until the program sponsors are known, a director is determined, and the scope and content of the program is established."

Word said the contribution will come from contingency money in the general fund.

According to Downs, the program will receive in-kind contributions with CCODA providing a director and assistant at no cost. Northville's Civic Concern will donate character education lessons, and the Recreation Department will provide one to three staff members, and will waive the building rental fee of $2,000.

What Downs is seeking funding for is the $500 liability insurance, along with $400 for a paraprofessional, $1,200 for high school peer staff, and $150 in activity supplies.

Korby will be speaking on the subject of self-defense for women. In addition to authoring his book What Part of No Don't You Understand?, Korby has been a guest speaker on many local television stations.

The meeting promises to be a very informative one for men and women and the sponsors suggest only children at junior high level and up attend.

The event is being billed as a great opportunity to learn more about protecting yourself.

Family Talk.

© UHC 1994

The doctors at St. Mary Hospital believe that the things that go into making a good family — sharing, cooperation, and close involvement — are the very things that are needed for good medical care. So, we listen to our patients... their thoughts, their concerns, their viewpoints and those of their family. And when we talk to our patients we avoid confusing medical terms and try to be understanding as well as understood.

Besides talking with our patients, we also talk to each other. We share professional experiences and pass on information about new technologies and techniques. We also discuss our patients' care. This exchange of ideas is essential to good medical care, for you, and for your family.

The simple act of talking to each other is an important part of good families. And, at St. Mary Hospital, we think it's an important part of good doctoring.

If you want a doctor who practices medicine as if family matters, call (313) 464-WELL. We'll help you find a physician who fits into your family.

Michael Kelley presents Northville Police Sergeant James Marks with a $500 check from the Northville Chapter of the Fraternal Order of Eagles. The money will be used to fund the city's Drug Abuse Resistance Education program.

DARE returns for another year

By ROBERT JACKSON
Staff Writer

The Northville DARE Program is back in the classroom of two local schools for its second year.

The program, coordinated by Northville police Sergeant James Marks, also received a $500 donation from the Northville Chapter of the Fraternal Order of Eagles (FOE). The money will be used to purchase DARE T-shirts, and special achievement awards, according to Marks.

"This is the first year the Eagles have contributed to the program, and it's something that we really appreciate," Marks said.

The program runs every Monday at Our Lady of Victory and St. Paul's, and teaches children the dangers of drugs, and helps build self-esteem. "Our main focus is helping kids build on positive alternatives," Marks said. "Both schools are great to work with, and they support the program 100 percent."

FOE member Michael Kelley presented Marks with the $500 donation last week. He said the group intends to make funds more available to worthwhile community projects.

"We approached the Northville Police and asked them which program would best benefit from the donation," Kelley said.

"They felt the DARE program would be the best use of the funds.

"The group's interest was public safety, and the donation reflects that interest," he added.

Marks said the program's success comes from the support of the community.

"It's a program that really will benefit the kids," he said.

DARE is an acronym for Drug Abuse Resistance Education.

House passes school bill

By TIM RICHARD
Staff Writer

Local school districts are closer to state aid for retirees' health benefits now that the House of Representatives has passed a $139.5 million supplemental bill.

The Sept. 14 vote was 106-0. All area lawmakers voted yes except Rep. John Jamian, R-Bloomfield Township, who had an excused absence.

"This action was necessary to remedy a shortfall in September funds spurred by a Michigan Supreme Court ruling over health care funding for school retirees," said the sponsor, Rep. Glenn Oxender, R-Sturgis. "It also provides us with some breathing room to solve the current problem."

House Bill 4084, which adds money to the school aid act for the 1995 fiscal year ending Sept. 30, increases retirees' funding by about 47 percent. The bill goes to the Senate, where routine approval is expected.

The Supreme Court in April ruled the state was unconstitutionally failing to set up enough funds for health benefits of school employees at their retirement. Gov. John Engler and the Legislature in 1991 shifted to annual appropriations instead of lump-sum pre-funding on an actuarial basis.

Known as the "Musselman" decision, the opinion said the high court lacked power to force the governor and Legislature to make an appropriation, even though their actions violated a contractual obligation section of the state constitution.

The Supreme Court has agreed to re-hear the case at the request of Engler and the Michigan Education Association. Oral arguments are expected in October; a decision is expected within a year.

The Oxender bill takes money from the 1996 budget to make the September school aid payment. "Without this special appropriation, many school districts across the state would find themselves in increased borrowing costs," said Oxender.

On a voice vote, the House rejected an amendment proposed by Rep. Dave Jaye, R-Utica, that would have required school districts to make employees pay a portion of health care premiums.

Arts grant filing deadline approaches

Oct. 13 is the deadline for major arts and cultural institutions to apply for fiscal 1996 state grants.

By "major," the state Department of Commerce means those with operating budgets greater than $1 million and five straight years of "exemplary" programming.

They also must have an audited financial statement for the most recent fiscal year, full-time professional staff, a business plan and a record of regional services.

Grants require a dollar-for-dollar match. Applications must include a $100 fee or 1-percent of the grant, whichever is less.

Applications should be sent to: Michigan Council for Arts and Cultural Affairs, 1200 Sixth Street, Suite 1180, Detroit 48226.

Guidelines and application forms are available from the agency by calling (313) 256-3731.

Police to get cycles

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

They had to take a little good-natured joshing from their colleagues to get it done but two local officials have managed to put together a deal that will bring police motorcycles to Northville Township dirt-cheap.

The Northville Township Board of Trustees one week ago approved member Mark Abbo's idea to spend up to $12,000 in the coming year for a police bike. However, Chip Snider, director of the township's Department of Public Safety, this week managed to land not one but two brand-new Harley-Davidsons for police use for $300 each a year.

Abbo's suggestion brought him and Snider a little friendly flak from the rest of the board when the trustee proposed it at a Sept. 21 study session as both are recreational motorcycle riders. His proposal, however, wasn't based on his affection for two-wheeled transportation.

Abbo, a CPA and Honda bike owner, crunched the numbers and decided that a motorcycle could be used to extend the life of the township's police cars and in the end save tens of thousands of tax dollars a year. The idea, he explained, is that it would cost the township less money per mile to put a bike on the road versus a car.

Adding a Harley or two to the inventory will extend the life of the police cruisers, he said, which must be replaced at 75,000 miles under the township's contract with the police union. Abbo predicted the township can save as much as $18,500 a year from not having to replace sedans as soon.

That estimate, by the way, was based on Abbo's original cost estimate of $12,000 per bike. The lease deal Snider concocted brings two Harleys to the township for 5 percent of that amount.

Motorcycles are excellent for traffic control and police public relations, Snider explained, and can get places a cruiser can't, such as following a suspect off-road over the Wayne County Child Development Center property.

An area Harley-Davidson dealer agreed to the lease deal earlier this week, Snider said. It's a five year program with the bikes getting replaced with new ones at no charge every 12 months.

The township should take delivery of the motorcycles by the end of February and they should be prowling the streets by March.

New township budget includes increased surplus

The proposed capital outlay items the board approved in concept at the study session include:

- Computer upgrading, both hardware and software. Another $100,000 for the comprehensive project will come out of the fiscal year 1997 budget.
- Hiring an additional police officer and selecting a new sergeant and lieutenant from the existing force as well as convert the Department of Public Safety (DPS) to all-full-time radio dispatchers. The department's current mixing of part and full-time dispatchers creates problems when someone can't work when scheduled, DPS Director Chip Snider said.
- Purchasing six vehicles, five of them new police cars and one for the township's building department.
- Leasing two Harley-Davidson motorcycles for the police department (see related story).
- Renovations to Township Hall, including a badly-needed parking lot resurfacing.
- Emergency breathing equipment for the township's firefighters.
- Replacing a 1953 Dodge on its last legs that the fire department uses for putting out grass fires.
- Building an expansion facility on the Public Utilities Department's current building on Beck Road between Five and Six Mile.
- Renovations to Fire Station No. 2 on Seven Mile Road.

The possibility of a millage request in 1996 was mentioned during the study session. Some trustees argued that the township's current millages, passed last year, aren't enough for public services to keep up with the ongoing township population boom.

The budget is expected to be on the board's Oct. 12 agenda.

The township assesses residents 4.32 mills for services, and the total budget, including public utilities and other funds, amounts to approximately $12 million.

The township's fiscal year follows the calendar year.

Learn the abductor's pattern

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

When it comes to avoiding abduction the best way for children to be safe is to be smart, Northville's law enforcement agencies are telling parents and their children.

Knowing how child abductors choose their prey and the methods they use to snatch unsuspecting youngsters points the way to some common-sense strategies to keep your kids out of danger, police say.

And it's not just young children who are at risk, Northville Township Officer Matt Mayes pointed out. Teenagers, particularly young teenagers, are often tempting targets to an abductor because they're out and alone more often than elementary-age children.

The ideal victim of a would-be kidnapper is a child alone and away from crowded areas, Mayes explained. Abductors are much less likely to try to carry off a kid who's part of a group and/or in a busy place.

"I tell them it's important to travel in groups," Mayes said. "Someone's much less likely to mess with three or four kids together. Use the buddy system."

Another important prevention tip is for children to avoid less-traveled places, such as a shortcut through the woods, to get to school or a friend's house, Mayes added. Travel well-frequented roads or paths.

"Kids should take the same route to and from school. Don't take any shortcuts and be sure to tell your folks the way you take to school or wherever," Mayes said.

The second thing to understand about child abductors is that most don't fit the TV stereotype, Mayes continued. They aren't usually dirty or scruffy or odd-looking. On the contrary, he explained, most abductors go out of their way to appear "normal" in order to avoid arousing suspicion

"When I do school assemblies I ask kids, 'Who's a stranger?' They usually say it's someone 'bad.' I tell them 'No, a stranger is anyone – anyone – you don't know.'"

Abductors use a variety of "lures" to trick children into going somewhere that's under the abductor's control.

Whatever method is used the aim is the same: to establish trust with a child by presenting a friendly – or at least a familiar – scenario to him or her.

For all of those schemes, however, Mayes offers the same advice.

"Don't go with a stranger. Don't even go near the person, just keep your distance. Back up if you need to.

"If someone tries to grab you, run. If they do grab you, try to pull away and yell 'HELP!' That's important. Most of us are used to kids just yelling so if they're in trouble they should yell 'HELP!'" Mayes said.

Go to the nearest house and get help, Mayes added, and be sure to report the incident right away by calling 911. That will give police a better chance to catch the abductor.

Some of the most common child lures include:

• Offering candy or other items or displaying a dog or cat and inviting a child to pet it.

• Asking directions, then requesting a child to get into the car to show the way.

• Asking a child for help with the car. The abductor asks the boy or girl to get into the driver's seat and turn the ignition key. A confederate hiding in the back seat then grabs the child. Another variation is the abductor asking the child to accompany him or her to the nearest gas station.

• Asking for help in finding a lost pet. Sometimes the abductor will pretend to look around on foot for a time, then ask the child to get in his or her car to check other locations.

• Reprimanding a child for supposedly doing something wrong or being somewhere the boy or girl shouldn't be. The abductor then orders the child into his or her car to be taken home. This one is often used when a child is playing near a construction site or abandoned building and fits in with the notion that adults should be obeyed.

• The abductor tells the child that mom or dad has been in an accident and that the child needs to come with him or her right away. Instead of doing so a child should go to the nearest home and ask that the police be called.

STAYING SAFE

Kids should follow these tips to lessen the risk of becoming the victim of abduction:

- ☐ Use the buddy system: go in groups whenever possible.
- ☐ Stay in well-frequented areas. Avoid less-traveled areas such as shortcuts through the woods.
- ☐ Take the most public route to where you're going and make sure your parents know what it is.
- ☐ Remember, a stranger is anyone you don't know. Child abductors will often seem "nice" or even pretend to know you or your family in order to kidnap you.

Keep away from strangers under all circumstances. Some will offer you candy or show you a puppy, others will ask for help with their car or in finding a lost pet. Some might tell you your parents have been hurt and that they'll take you to them.

Don't approach strangers or let them approach you. Back up if need be, even run away if you have to. Tell them to call the police if they need assistance. If someone grabs you, yell "HELP!" loud and often.

- ☐ If someone tries to abduct you, run to the nearest house for help and report it to the police immediately by calling 911.

School, police officials alert parents to dangers

ents apprising them of the situation. The letter addressed the school's and the district's concerns, and encouraged parents to talk with their children about the possible dangers.

"We are extremely concerned about the safety of our kids," he said.

School District Superintendent Leonard Rezmierski said the school and district personnel responded quickly and efficiently in getting the word to parents and other schools. "The network we have in place allowed us to get the information to everyone quickly," he said.

"It's an unfortunate set of circumstances, but we have to realize that there are predators out there," Rezmierski said. "Just because we live in Northville doesn't mean we are immune to these types of problems. We just have to continue to be vigilant and ensure our children know what to do in these situations."

The incident is the second within weeks involving students from Cooke Middle School.

The Michigan Department of Corrections confirmed that parolee Darrin Redden, 28, of Commerce Township, was picked up Sept. 15 and returned to the Western Wayne Correctional Facility on a technical parole violation.

Novi Police Officer Scott Tewes picked up Redden in Connemara, a subdivision near Nine Mile and Taft roads, almost 24 hours after he approached the girl en route to Cooke Middle School and asked her if she "wanted to make some money."

The girl fled to a friend's porch and the suspect left without further incident, according to a report filed with Novi Police.

A second girl reported seeing the suspect the same morning. She told police he slowed down as he passed her walking, but said nothing to her.

The girls reported the incident to Cooke Middle School administrators who relayed it to Novi Police.

The school district has been on alert for suspicious activities since reports that a Northville youth may have been the target of a possible abduction Aug. 25 surfaced right before the beginning of the school year.

According to Northville Police, a white male, between 18-40 years of age, with wavy brown hair attempted to coerce two 4-year-old boys into his car. The boys had been playing in the front yard of a home on Novi Street near Baseline.

According to the parents, the suspect held a small puppy out of the car window and asked the boys to come over to get a better look. When the boys approached the vehicle, the suspect pulled the puppy back inside.

"We are extremely concerned about the safety of our kids." –Jeff Radwanski, Cooke Middle School Principal

The police report said that one of the boys partly pulled himself through the car window. At that point the suspect told the boy he could pet the puppy if he got into the car with him.

The boys' parents, spotting the suspicious activity, yelled at the boys and began running toward the vehicle. The suspect saw the parents approaching and sped off, running a stop sign in the process.

Unfortunately, the parents weren't able to get the license plate number of the vehicle.

According to Northville Police Sergeant Dave Fendelet, police have no additional leads in the Aug. 25 incident. They are continuing to investigate the most recent case, he said.

Offender misses sentencing

The third time will hopefully be a charm when it comes to a sentencing date for Keenan Lewis Wells.

The Detroit resident, 25, was convicted earlier this year of assaulting his girlfriend, a former Northville Township resident, in February. The defendant, however, failed to appear before Detroit Recorders Court Judge Dalton Roberson for sentencing on Sept. 14, causing the hearing to be rescheduled to Sept. 21.

But Wells failed to appear for that hearing as well. His attorney, however, explained to Roberson that Wells missed both proceedings because he is in the hospital suffering from an unspecified medical problem, a court official said this week.

Roberson then agreed to set a third date for the sentencing hearing, Wednesday, Oct. 4.

Wells in April pled guilty to the felony charge of assault with intent to do great bodily harm in connection with the Feb. 8 attack on the woman, 23. The charge carries a maximum penalty of 10 years imprisonment.

The woman said that Wells systematically beat, burned and otherwise abused her for nine hours after discovering what he thought was evidence of her seeing another man.

The culmination of her ordeal came when Wells heated up a pair of scissors and used the blades to burn his tattooed name from her genital area.

Wells originally faced three additional felony charges of first degree criminal sexual conduct, each of which carries a maximum penalty of life imprisonment.

Those counts were dropped, however, as part of a plea bargain arrangement.

BACKWARD GLANCE ... at Northville's Past

Ever wonder what people were doing around this time of the year during another era? Beginning with this issue, The Northville Record will rifle through the pages of history – as recorded in the 126 years of this newspaper – to see what was news in our town in decades past.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS AGO: The lead story of the Sept. 27, 1895, issue of The Northville Record was a detailed recounting of the previous week's ladies' flower show.

"The excellent taste displayed in the decorations and the bright faces and dainty costumes of the young ladies all helped to make it one of the prettiest affairs of the kind that Northville has ever had the pleasure of patronizing," the story said.

A professional baseball team – the Holly Cyclone Midgets – would take on a group of talented locals next week. Admission was 15 cents for adults, 10 cents for ladies and children.

Northville schools had a total population of 434 students and teachers earned an average of $144 a year. The school board that week voted to drop tuition from 35 cents a week to a quarter.

Purdy's on Main Street advertised "new" electric lamps next to the train schedule. Luxury steamer cruises to Mackinac Island ran just $13, "including meals and baths."

FIFTY YEARS AGO: The Record featured on page one of its Sept. 23 issue, 1945, the results of the previous week's Northville Horse Show, with awards presented by Detroit Mayor E.J. Jeffries.

"Perhaps (this will mean that) we will all soon be home and living the way our Creator intended us to," wrote PFC. Bruce Turnbull of the end of World War II. A photo of an emaciated American POW showed evidence of Japanese atrocities during the war.

On a lighter note, readers were reminded that the U.S. government still wanted its citizens to save chicken fat by Mrs. Harold Wagenshultz, chair of the Northville fat salvage committee.

The Penniman-Allen Theatre in downtown Northville featured Roy Rogers in A Man from Oklahoma and Laurel and Hardy in The Bullfighters.

"Flyless county fairs are here thanks to DDT," crowed Record editor and publisher William Caulfield, recounting the chemical's successful test at last week's Saginaw County fair.

Faded stars Babe Ruth and Ty Cobb were in Detroit, demanding that baseball fields be built for every 1,000 boys in America. In a blow to youth recreation, it was announced that "the milkweed pod-floss collection program will not be an activity of youth groups in Michigan this fall."

Wolf's Market on East Main offered peanut butter for 25 cents a jar and homes sold for as much as $4,520.

TEN YEARS AGO: An article about ex-roller derby player Ella Moore topped the stories in the Sept. 30, 1985, issue of The Record. Moore, now 67, joined the women's roller derby league in the 1930s at the tender age of 21.

The City Council was considering how to pay for the paving of Beck Road and the widening of Eight Mile. Member Carolann Ayers announced she was not in the running for the mayor's job.

School Superintendent George Bell told those hunting for a new home for the library to look elsewhere, as the old Main Street school was not for sale.

Northville's Autumn Fest and Tivoli Fair were set to kick off with a balloon launching at Northville Downs. Cartoon videos rented for $5 a week from Cartoon Alley on North Center. Author Mickey Spillane gave a conference at Schoolcraft College.

A Northville woman was the first female clock repairer in Michigan, according to a new trivia book called Michillaneous by author Gary Barfknecht.

Art on the Main

The Northville Art Market had another successful run during the Victorian Festival, Sept. 16 and 17. Over 50 artists exhibited and sold their creations during the two-day event. The market actually began a few years before the Festival got under way in the city back in 1988. Market booths occupy both sides of Main Street east of Center.

OCC cool toward stadium plan

By TIM RICHARD
Staff Writer

Oakland Community College officials reacted coolly to a plan to build a minor league baseball stadium on the Auburn Hills Campus.

One reason was the price: $1 a year was the rental proposal from the Palace of Auburn Hills.

A second reason: OCC is likely to need the land itself for "Simulation City," an expanded training program for firefighters, public safety and protective services workers. That was one of the proposed uses when OCC won a 0.8 mill property tax hike from voters last June 12.

"I do not bring it as a recommendation," OCC Chancellor Patsy Calkins told trustees at their Sept. 25 meeting. "In all honesty, I'm struggling with it as part of our mission. We're here to serve students."

"They only pay us $1?" asked trustee Carol Crew, a tone of disbelief in her voice.

"I want to hear more on the firefighters-EMT (emergency medical tech) plan and the expansion of our (industrial) technology program," said trustee Anne Scott.

The board didn't schedule an immediate vote. Calkins said the Palace's proposal was delivered orally by executive vice president Dan Hauser. Needed are 20 acres for a $7 million stadium with 8,000 or so seats. The Palace would purchase a minor league franchise for $1.5 million. It would be willing to build four baseball diamonds outside the stadium for the college's use.

Minor league baseball has been a growth industry in and around Michigan. In Grand Rapids are the Lake Michigan Whitecaps; Lansing is building a stadium for the Lugnuts; and another team is planned for Battle Creek.

There has also been talk of a building a minor league ballpark in Novi, on the southwest corner of Grand River and Wixom Road. The proponents of that plan have yet to submit any plans formally to Novi city officials.

Tight budget policies leave breathing room

One wonders how they're doing it but almost hesitates to ask.

Northville Township officials have opened discussions on the township's fiscal '96 budget and there's good news. The general fund balance is expected to stand at a healthy $1.05 million by year's end, though that figure will decline to about $700,000 once expenditures for proposal capital outlays are deducted.

In any case, the fund itself only totals about $4.2 million and the trend of the last few years has been toward a greater surplus. The bottom line is that the township is resting on solid financial ground.

When you hear about the increased legal fees township officials are incurring you have to be surprised – pleasantly so – about the favorable monetary outlook.

But there's a dubious achievement in all of this. While it's good to be frugal, it's not good to be neglectful.

The fact is that Northville Township Hall is inadequately small to accommodate municipal employees and departments. One only has to spend a few moments in the detached trailer in which the public safety director keeps his office-in-exile to know something's not right. There's simply not enough space to provide minimal working conditions.

Moreover, until recently the roof in the police department was possessed of multiple leaks and the broadcast communications unit – the central nervous system of the public safety service – nearly had to fail before the decision was made to replace it.

In fact it did fail between the time that the new unit was on order and the time it arrived for installation.

Hopefully, the situation will improve when building department officials are moved to another location and more room is freed up in Township Hall.

We like to use this space to remind guardians of public resources of their responsibility to use care when handling their constituents' hard-earned dollars.

It's a less familiar feeling to urge representatives to loosen the purse strings, but sometimes that becomes necessary too.

A column elsewhere on this page questions trustees' judgment in hesitating to provide a small allocation for a worthwhile youth-related project, and that may be symptomatic of township officials' unwillingness to relax their tightfisted practices.

The spending authorities in Northville Township are, on balance, doing a good job of keeping an eye on tax dollars in their community but we'd like to suggest they step back and take a look at the whole forest.

There's room for a few more trees.

Fogg sketches good idea but provides no details

His heart's in the right place but Northville Township Trustee Russ Fogg's head, apparently, isn't.

For nigh on two years now, Fogg has been one of the most vocal opponents of Browning-Ferris Industries' (BFI's) attempts to open a commercial composting center in the area. His most recent battle with BFI has been over its under-construction compost facility just over Northville's western border in Salem Township.

Fogg contends that whatever the giant corporation or its supporters may claim the compost operation will force that end of Northville Township to suffer some seriously foul odors, bad enough to slow or stall development there.

To prevent that supposed danger the township board at Fogg's insistence has voted to suspend negotiations for up to four months with Salem Township over an unrelated sanitary sewer tap-in proposal.

Fogg admits the idea essentially amounts to arm-twisting, an attempt to get Salem to impose "stricter controls" on the BFI center. He also acknowledges, however, that he has no idea of just what those controls should be.

Instead of setting out clear conditions to Salem for the lifting of the suspension he and the rest of the board have said virtually nothing. The trustees haven't even bothered to inform Salem of the suspension. That community's officials learned of it by reading their local newspaper.

While no one can doubt that Fogg's motivation is to safeguard the community, it's clear that he and the board should be having second thoughts about their strategy to achieve that goal – or maybe even some first ones.

Quick response provides framework for safety

An incident involving two Cooke Middle School students last week is the latest in a series of events that have parents, teachers, administrators, and police officers a bit wary, and more watchful of the children in our community.

While the nature of the incidents are a bit unsettling, we would applaud the responsiveness of the schools, district officials and police departments. Due, in part, to their alert reaction, no one has gotten hurt and a a twice-convicted sex offender is back in jail.

Having local police educating our children on how to be safe on the street has been beneficial. In this latest incident two boys were approached by four individuals in a truck and were asked to get inside the vehicle.

Thankfully, the boys did the right thing – they declined the invitation, and the next day reported the incident to Cooke Middle School Principal Jeff Radwanski. Because of the nature of the youths' report, Radwanski quickly alerted Northville Public School District officials, who in turn, sent the word out to the remaining schools in the district.

By the end of the day every school principal, and many of the teachers, were not only aware that the incident had occurred, but they had a description of the truck as well.

By the next day, all parents of Cooke students had received a letter from Radwanski describing what had happened. Parents were also urged to talk with their children about safety.

At the same time, city and township police departments increased their patrols around schools and bus stops.

Some people may say that the community overreacted. We believe otherwise. We believe that the proactive stance taken by the school district and police departments is exactly the type of cooperation that is needed to keep children safe on our streets.

Penny wise short changes youth

Robert Jackson

I've got a philosophical problem to share with you regarding the Northville Township Board of Trustees.

Now before you all start running for cover, let me say right up front that I'm not "loading up" on the board, it's just that I disagree with a position they recently took regarding a contribution request from the Community Commission on Drug Abuse (CCODA) for the new Northville Gets Michigan Youth Moving program.

The program, which will run one day per week at the Northville Recreation Center, will provide life-skills training, character education, adventure challenges and introduce middle schoolers to drug-free alternatives and interests. The program will be open to all middle school children who live in Northville and Northville Township.

It recently got the green light from the Northville City Council, which voted to contribute $500 contingent upon CCODA providing city officials with the final plans and budget.

When CCODA representative Jacque Martin-Downs approached the Township Board of Trustees, however, the presentation was met with skepticism and hesitancy. Trustee Russ Fogg said he didn't "vehemently" oppose the program, but he felt that CCODA didn't provide enough information in its presentation to the board. He also maintained that his first priority was to ensure taxpayers received fire, police and other essential city services.

On the surface that's a good argument, but didn't the board, at that same meeting, discuss how the township was going to provide funds to match monies from a federal grant for bike paths? I might not be the brightest guy in the world but even I realize this isn't an "essential service." I agree bike paths are great, but if the township asked taxpayers to fund even one penny of that project, that fact alone shoots gaping holes in Russ's argument against contributing to the CCODA program.

Trustee Gini Britton was more direct with her explanation. While she heavily favors programs for kids, she believes that local government shouldn't necessarily fund them. "In a community like ours, parents should be able to pay a dollar for their child to take part in this type of program," she told me.

Once again, great argument. Once again, I disagree. First, and foremost, the township isn't being asked to "fund" the bulk of this program. CCODA approached the board for a "contribution." About 98 percent of the program will be funded by federal dollars already earmarked for CCODA to spend.

It is true that many of the people who live in our communities could afford that dollar or two for their kids to take part in this program. What about the parents who can't? Would we not be perpetuating that sick upper class/lower class mentality that exists in communities like Farmington Hills, Bloomfield Hills, and Birmingham? Believe me, there are people who might not be able to afford that dollar. All you have to do is talk to Marlene Kunz of Civic Concern to hear some of the horror stories.

The bottom line is this. CCODA is only seeking a small contribution to defray some of the material costs of the program. Is it too much to ask the township board to join the city council in participating in a program that will be worthwhile for the youths of our community?

I'm sorry, but in my opinion there is no argument good enough to convince me otherwise when it has to do with kids and their future.

Going shopping on the boys' side

Carol Workens

What's with the double standard in pricing?

Does a pair of boys shoes cost less to make than the same size of a comparable pair of girl's shoes?

Why do girl's tops cost one or two dollars more than a boy's?

Let's not forget about the color selections available on the girl's and women's racks versus the boys and men's.

My daughter recently asked for a pair of hiking boots for an upcoming camping weekend, which led me to rush to a local store for a last minute buying trip that included sweats and a mess kit.

I went to the girl's section of the shoe department in a local store and luckily they had just the pair I knew she'd like in her size. But wait, they weren't on sale. Now, I'm not a miser, but I like to stretch my dollar as far as it will go. Past experience and a little curiosity led me to the boys section to do a little comparison shopping. They not only had a very nice pair, which were almost identical to a pair I myself have, but they were half the price of the girl's hiking boots three aisles over. Now granted they were on sale, but the original price was still $10 less than the original price on the girl's boots.

Need I say which pair I purchased?

I cruised over to the next department for sweatshirts and pants. The color choices were pink, light blue, yellow and white. To go camping? I don't think so. A little comparison shopping was in order again.The boys department had the darker colors. I guess clothes' manufacturers think boys get dirtier than girls. Personal experience tells me that is not always the case.

Two colors that did catch my eye were a washed out burgundy and a faded olive green. They were beautiful colors as was evident by the fact that there were only two burgundies left. Is it a popular color with boys or do more moms of girls shop on the boy's side than care to admit it?

My daughter is still young, but she's beginning to turn her nose up at the thought of wearing things from the boys department. So, as a smart mom, when I bring home the buy of the day, need I mention from which rack it was discovered?

I don't feel at all uneasy shopping in the men's department because the majority of the shoppers are women. Many times, I stop at a display attracted by the color or style of an article of clothing and find that it is marked as "men's."

I find more goofy clothing in the women's department than in the men's. Little pink teddy bears on shirts, cute little sayings, hearts and bows.

The grass may not always been greener on the other side of the fence, but the colors and the prices sure are.

Hunting land lease flyer is upsetting

I found a flyer in my paper box Wednesday, Sept. 20, seeking acreage to lease for hunting. It stunned me!

We have a no hunting ordinance in the township that has been in effect since 1960, if my memory is correct.

I know we have a fight on our hands every fall with the hunters, but this is either brazen or stupid.

We are not the wide open spaces. With the influx of new homes this is dangerous.

How does one make the township aware of this danger?

I can show you the broken arrow I found in my front pear orchard. I have the evidence of poachers from the back of my property.

How does one make the township understand the necessity to print copies of that ordinance and post the copies around the township? It is one of the better ways to make newcomers aware of our no hunting policy.

Can you help us?

I have 40 acres on Six Mile, west of Beck Road.

Constance M. Wilson

(Editor's note: According to township police, firearms hunting is banned in Northville Township but bow and arrow hunting is allowed with the permission of the property owner.)

Support helped in time of need

To the Editor:

To our Friends and Neighbors in Northville ...

My daughters and I are greatly comforted by the concern and support that has been shown to us since Doug's death. Doug and I decided to move to Northville because it is a beautiful town with a strong school system. We could not have imagined the kindness and good friends we would find here.

Many of you have given toys to the children and brought food over and done many other things for us these past few days.

I am concerned that we may have misplaced some of the names of those of you who have brought over food and toys.

Please know that your acts have comforted us greatly and please understand if you do not receive a specific acknowledgement for your generosity.

As we struggle with the loss of our husband and father, it is very helpful to know that there is more goodness in this world than evil.

Thank you

District merger would save $$$$$

To the Editor:

Consolidation of the Northville, Plymouth, and South Lyon school districts could save taxpayers millions of tax dollars but the state Legislature refuses to recognize the significance of this proposal. Consolidation could become a progressive reform aimed at enriching the curriculum. Ultimately the process would reduce cost, eliminate duplication of services, and promote efficiency in management.

Why are most school districts opposed to consolidation? Why do they continue to protect their fiefdoms? Not surprisingly they have become very provincial and overprotective which inevitably hurts the quality of education.

Some parents strive to retain artificial boundaries by advancing cheerleader type rhetoric aimed at loyalty to sports teams, pride in school spirit, and nostalgia.

Meanwhile the march toward higher spending is deliberately contrived to create the need for more millages despite the promises of tax cuts included within Proposal A. If this trend is allowed to continue, millages and property taxes will be restored to their original levels and our tax base will be destroyed when homeowners and senior citizens flee to other states.

Why do taxpayers tolerate smoke and mirrors advanced by hornswogglers determined to undermine tax reform in our state?

Festival impresses out of towners

To the Editor:

We just wanted to commend Northville on a wonderful Victorian Festival. It gets better every year, especially this year's Queen.

She was just what your Festival needed. She put the "pi" in pizzazz, she's the icing on the cake. She made everyone feel welcome. During her hectic reign, she socialized with all the people, gave up her seat on the carriage to ease the hurt feelings of a lady going to the ball, she tried to cheer a little girl who was crying at Mill Race Village, she took time out to visit with a handicapped person. Yes, she gave of herself to all her subjects. Her zany and lightheartedness was a delight and her sincerity was a pleasure to all. The real Queen Victoria would have been proud.

We look forward to our return to next year's Victorian Festival.

A humble Queen offers her thanks

To the Editor:

To all of my ex-loyal subjects –

Thank you for the honor of being Queen Victoria at the Northville Victorian Festival this year. It was a fun weekend I will always remember.

I would like to thank several people and places that made my reign memorable: Laurie Marrs and the Chamber of Commerce; Elizabeth's Bridal Manor for the incredible gowns; Linda Ranta at BRD's for the great "do"; Salutations for the divine dressing room; Morrison's Antiques for tolerating my royal rages; Great Harvest Bread Company and the wonderful bread; Gardenviews for slaking my thirst; Bob Jackson for not writing about everything I did ... and my lady-in-waiting Jill Hardenberg.

So it is back to my other life of homemaking, where my reign is less regal, authority always in question and the help is not at my beck and call. But I shall always remember when, for a brief moment, I was the Queen of Everything ...

Participation was rewarding

To the Editor:

Once again, Our Lady of Victory school was pleased to participate in the Northville Victorian Festival. Their PTO conducted a bike raffle and a Victorian hat sale. Concurrently, their 8th grade class conducted a raffle of a porcelain doll. Congratulations to the lucky winners – Dave Ryzyl (bike) and Elaine Taylor (porcelain doll).

The PTO and students would like to thank everyone who helped support this endeavor. A special thanks goes to Town and Country Cyclery for all their help.

99er tickled over birthday fuss

To the Editor:

I wish to thank everyone who shared in my 99th birthday celebration on Sept. 13. The 99 Club committee at Allen Terrace did an outstanding job in setting up the party there. I also wish to thank Carol Workens and Bryan Mitchell of The Northville Record for their attendance.

A special thank you to Sen. R. Robert Geake for the Michigan tribute, which I now have hanging on my wall. I hope to see all of you next year on my 100th birthday.

Beliefs arose from desire to know

To the Editor:

In the Sept. 21 issue of The Northville Record, Kumar Sivan responded to comments I wrote regarding religion.

I want Mr. Sivan to know that I respect his right to believe as he wishes. As an open-minded, unrepentant realist, I contend that the many existing (and there are many) religious beliefs arose, in my opinion, from the very real human need to know what appears to be the unknowable: the whys and wherefores of our being here on Earth.

Those whose faith supports their belief in the supernatural event described in the Bible have every right to do so, just as those who are convinced that the Earth is flat – as a group in England believes – are granted that right.

Amen.

Neither party satisfies constituents

Phil Power

Last weekend's Republican Leadership Conference at Mackinac Island highlighted the fundamental contradiction of today's politics: Ordinary folks are increasingly disillusioned with a system whose parties are losing legitimacy by pretending to express the interests of most folks while in fact functioning as captives of narrow special interests.

Example No. 1: Abortion.

The shock troops of the triumphant Republican revolution are passionate right-to-lifers who have made opposition to abortion the litmus test for any aspiring GOP wannabe. Yet for years, poll after poll has shown that most Americans believe a woman should have the right to choose an abortion as one way to deal with an unwanted pregnancy.

That's a big problem, and most practical Republicans know it. Indeed, a survey of Michigan Republican Party leaders conducted over the weekend by The Detroit News found that 43 percent would like to relax or even eliminate the GOP platform plank opposing abortion in all cases.

But 53 percent wanted to maintain the blanket prohibition. "We are the pro-life party and must stand on our convictions to protect the unborn children in our society," said Don Gustafson, chair of the Mackinac County GOP.

Having encouraged and mobilized the right-to-life community, the Republican Party is today hostage to this minority segment of American opinion – passionate and self-assured to be sure, but still a minority.

Example No. 2: Big government.

During the years when Democrats controlled Congress, the party's primary strategic principle for staying in power was to spend tax dollars to fund the claims of its various constituency groups.

For big labor, rigid OSHA safety inspections of the workplace. For urban minorities, a welfare system that contributed to the culture of entitlements and the destruction of big city families. For senior citizens, a set of entitlements (Medicare and Social Security are merely the two biggest) that were both ruinously expensive and sacrosanct from expense control. For environmentalists, a preference for trees and spotted owls over jobs.

The result: Enormous and growing budget deficits and a sense that regulating and centralizing government in Washington had grown out of control.

A majority of Americans, moreover, think OSHA is too rigid, welfare should be reformed, Medicare and Social Security should be cut back and means-tested, and economic growth should have at least equal weight with endangered species.

Democrats, as captive to their own constituency groups as surely as Republicans are to theirs, are today disconnected from a majority of voters.

Example No. 3: Gen. Colin Powell.

Gen. Powell's supporters were not allowed to set up shop at the Mackinac Island Leadership Conference. The stated reason is that he is not a candidate for president. The unstated reason is that he is much too dangerous.

Powell's support has boomed ever since he began to speak out about his positions on the issues. He thinks abortion is a bad option, but still it should be a choice for women. Schools need reforming, but reforms shouldn't destroy public education available to inner-city kids. Racial quotas are bad, but society owes minorities and women a little extra help to get ahead. Government is far too big and much too stifling, yet there is a role for a government that provides a safety net for those in trouble and works for a level of education and skills for all.

None of these moderate positions fits the absolutist demands of the constituency groups which today rule both parties. Which is – surprise! – why Colin Powell is running ahead of both President Bill Clinton and Sen. Bob Dole in the latest poll.

OCC trustees still unable to discharge chancellor

By TIM RICHARD
Staff Writer

Call them the Frustrated Faction.

Five Oakland Community College trustees who want to fire the chancellor and replace the board chair were thwarted again Monday, this time by a court order.

"You are unable to remove me during the (Open Meetings Act) lawsuit," said board chair Janice Simmons as she turned down a motion to amend the bylaws limiting her term in office.

Simmons at 4 p.m. Monday – two hours prior to the meeting – obtained a temporary restraining order from Oakland Circuit Judge Steven Andrews against trustees Sandra Ritter, apparent leader of the Frustrated Faction, and Judith Wiser, board vice chair.

Simmons is represented by Pontiac attorney Elbert Hatchett.

A process server dropped the legal papers on Ritter's lap during Monday's OCC board meeting in the central office in Bloomfield Hills. Ritter let it fall to the floor unopened and left the meeting without picking it up. Wiser was absent.

A hearing is scheduled in circuit court Thursday, Oct. 5, on whether to make the temporary restraining order a permanent injunction.

Simmons has been joined by trustee Anne Scott in efforts to keep the Frustrated Faction from firing Chancellor Patsy Calkins, one of the most popular leaders in OCC history because of her leadership in a millage campaign.

Scott is chief plaintiff in the Open Meetings Act (OMA) suit, pending before Oakland Circuit Judge Jessica Coopera. It charges the other faction with violating OMA by deliberating secretly prior to delivering an ultimatum to Calkins that she quit or be fired.

Big Mustang win tomorrow and there goes my paycheck

NORTHVILLE
TALK OF THE WEEK

By Robert Jackson

It's finally here!

This is the week Mustang football fans have all been waiting for – Homecoming.

Just the word alone takes me back to my sophomore year in 1974, and a wild homecoming game at my alma mater Farmington High School. That year we played Walled Lake Western, which led all but the last minute of the game. I still remember our star fullback, Kevin Ratliff, running 3-yards for the winning touchdown with about 40 seconds left (and no timeouts) to win it.

Anyway, before I get really nostalgic – and date myself further, I have come up with a wonderful way for all of us to enjoy the homecoming festivities and at the same time do something really beneficial for the youth of our community.

I'm calling it the Talk of the Week Mustang Homecoming Challenge.

This event, which I hope will become an annual one, is a challenge for the entire Northville Mustang football team – and the community.

I will make a donation to Students Against Drunk Driving in the name of the football team if the Mustangs really show their competitive spirit on Friday night.

Here's how we'll work it. If the Mustangs win I'll donate $25 (if they lose make it $15), and I'll kick in an additional $1 for every point Northville scores. Should the defense allow no touchdowns, I'll pay an additional $10 – if they hold the Farmington Harrison team to field goals only, I'll pay $5. If the offensive line can open holes for running back Anell Kersey and he runs for over 100-yards, I'll kick in an extra $10, and for any turnover caused by the defense or special teams, I'll add $5 per turnover.

When everything is tallied I'll donate that money to Charlie Stilec and SADD.

With that said, I'd like to challenge anyone in the community to match my donation with one of his or her own. Northville resident Stan Szostek has already agreed to match me dollar-for-dollar. Anyone else interested in a matching donation, contact me before 4 p.m. Friday, at 349-1700. I'll list all contributors in Talk of the Week and let you know how much money we were able to donate.

I think it's a great way to raise some money for a good cause, and have a little fun doing it.

Here's hoping for a HUGE Mustang victory, and I expect to see a great turnout for Friday night's big game!

OKAY FRIENDLY FOOTBALL FANATICS now that I've got you all anticipating a Mustang victory, it's time to present our weekly sideline fare. There will be no mention of Queen Victoria or any festival (I think we sufficiently took care of that last week), and we're done handing out "roundies." This week our lineup looks big, mean, and could be considered pro material.

So let's not delay and go to our booth announcer to introduce some of our starting players.

Starting at running back, from Northville High School, the NHS Pom Pon Squad. At fullback, also from Northville, the Kiwanis Early Birds. Finally at quarterback, direct from the Northville Police Department's DARE Program, the Fraternal Order of Eagles.

Our halftime entertainment will be provided by Randy Coble and his Harley-Davidson.

Okay team captains, we'll now have the traditional coin toss, which can only mean one thing – it's time for Talk of the Week.

Hut one, hut two ... hike!

NHS POM PON GIRLS ARE CHAMPS: Just happened to be reading my copy of the Mustang Messenger, a newsletter from the Northville High School PTSA, and found that the Pom Pon Team won the Grand Champion Trophy at the summer Pom Pon camp.

The team consists of 24 girls and is coached by Patti Paciocco. They've been practicing since June and will be competing in a November Dance Competition.

Also of note, eight team members were selected to the Mid American All Star Team. They are: Becky Engle, Chrissy Collings, Becky Witek, Lauren Bethell, Jessica Doinidis, Meredity Belloli, Sara Cooley, and Jennifer Cooley.

Congrats to the whole team.

HELPING THE COMMUNITY: Too often we gloss right over stories about service organizations in our community. I'm going to take a few moments to extend some thank you's to two groups who deserve to be recognized for their contributions.

You might have read the short article about the Northville Kiwanis Early Bird group's plans to host a garage sale this weekend. While an activity like this might not seem a big deal to many of you, the fact that all proceeds from the sale will be used for youth related programs in Northville is quite a big deal to the youths who will benefit from the contribution.

The early bird group's motto of "Youth Priority No. 1," reflects the type of service we should all aspire to.

Great work Kiwanians, thanks for the effort!

Also in line for recognition this week is the Northville chapter of the Fraternal Order of Eagles. The group last week donated $500 to the Northville DARE program. FOE members are always going out of their way to enhance the community, and by investing a sizable chunk of change in DARE (Drug Abuse Resistance Education), they communicate to all of us that we need to stay focused on the future of kids.

Let's hope both service groups remain a viable part of this community.

QUALITY IS JOB ONE: Thornton Creek Elementary School is in the spotlight this week. Ford Motor Co. featured the school on the cover of its new promotional brochure for the 1996 Windstar. The car company also presented the school with a check for $400.

FLY LIKE AN EAGLE: The Northville Board of Education honored two students – one Northville High School grad, and the other a high school senior – for receiving their Eagle Scout Badges. Jeremy Abbey received his badge for a landscaping and soil erosion prevention project at Mill Race and the Rouge River.

Geoffrey Williams got his badge for refurbishing the "Welcome to Northville" signs that mark the entrances to our community. Congratulations to both scouts. Thanks for the hard work.

TEACHERS TAKE A BOW: While we're handing out kudos, we need to mention Patti Collins and Chris Modrack, teachers at Thornton Creek. The two were named Teachers of the Year by Detroit Metro Magazine, and the school board acknowledged the award at Monday's meeting. Congratulations Patti and Chris. We appreciate the fine job you're doing with our children!

RANDY'S HARLEY UPDATE: I've gotten some phone calls in the past few weeks from readers wanting an update on reporter Randy Coble's quest for a Harley-Davidson motorcycle and his fiancee, Carolyn's, desire to have a large wedding. Well it seems Lady Luck has not been necessarily on the side of our couple, as their latest maneuver to get the Harley has, unfortunately, come up snake eyes.

It seems that Carolyn's friend Amy went to Las Vegas over the weekend of Sept. 16-17, she and her husband Larry looking for fun and excitement in the land of sand, lights and casinos.

Among the casinos they planned to visit was the one ensconced in the Hard Rock Hotel, the mother of all Hard Rock Cafes. When Carolyn heard that, she gave Amy $1 to play the Harley slot machine at the Hard Rock. Three "WIN" symbols in a row and Randy would be the proud owner of a fully restored 1957 Panhat, a Michelangelesque metal masterpiece.

Alas, 'twas not to be. Amy took the dollar, made the plane, sat down on the slot's Harley-shaped seat and pulled the handle. No dice. In fact, fate denied Randy even one "WIN."

Despite the setback, however, he and Carolyn haven't lost heart. She's got five tickets in next month's Harley raffle and he's still planning on penning the Sultan of Brunei guy. We'll keep you updated on both efforts.

Remember to leave room for the kids.

Our heart-to-heart talk with the University of Michigan Medical Center resulted in a unique program for managing heart disease.

Botsford General Hospital has joined the University of Michigan Medical Center to provide complete care for patients with heart disease.

Botsford is one of the first community hospitals the University of Michigan Medical Center (UMMC) Heart Care Program has partnered with as a Satellite Heart Transplant Clinic.

Patients who are candidates for heart transplant can be clinically evaluated at Botsford and then referred to the University of Michigan Medical Center for surgery. Following heart transplant, the patient returns to Botsford's Satellite Transplant Clinic for ongoing, individualized care from cardiologists who are on staff at both hospitals.

Our shared mission with the University of Michigan Medical Center is to reduce hospital re-admissions and improve the quality of life for patients with chronic heart disease. For more information, please call (810) 471-8870.

Richard honored in state bar award

TIM RICHARD

Tim Richard, reporter and columnist with The Novi News, The Northville Record and the Home-Town Newspapers division of Suburban Communications Corp., has distinguished himself in competition for the 22nd annual Wade H. McCree Jr. Awards for the Advancement of Justice.

Richard, who covers the state Supreme Court, the state Legislature and Oakland Community College for the newspaper chain, was honored by the State Bar of Michigan during the organization's 60th annual luncheon Wednesday in Lansing.

Other newspapers honored were The Detroit Free Press and The Muskegon Chronicle. Broadcast media honored included WJR-AM and WWMT-TV.

The top winner in the print category was David Zeman of The Free Press.

Each winner, and their respective news agency, received a plaque in recognition of his or her work. The top winner will have a $2,000 scholarship given in his or her name to the Michigan college or university of his or her choice.

The McCree Awards recognize Michigan's print and broadcast professionals whose works have made outstanding contributions to the advancement of justice by fostering greater public understanding of our legal system, exposing abuses and servicing as a catalyst for change.

Richard distinguished himself with a series of opinion page articles between July 1, 1994, and June 30, 1995, on subjects ranging from tort reform to court funding. His emphasis on the judicial system is consistent with the newspapers' commitment to local news.

"The courts are very important to anyone who lives in Oakland and Wayne counties," Richard said. "About half the lawyers in the state live or practice in Oakland and Wayne, and we have the most overworked dockets.

"We (Oakland and Wayne) generate more appellate cases than anywhere else in the state, and we need more new judges than anywhere else."

Wade H. McCree Jr., who died in 1987, was a distinguished lawyer, federal judge, law professor and U.S. Solicitor General. He was a passionate advocate of the need for public awareness and understanding of the inherent values of the judicial system and to update and modernize the courts and law enforcement agencies.

Richard, who has a bachelor's and MBA from the University of Michigan, joined The Observer & Eccentric newspapers in 1967 after working at daily newspapers in St. Joseph and Kalamazoo. Previous assignments with the newspaper include copy desk chief, editorial page editor and Oakland County editor.

He has honorary degrees from OCC and Schoolcraft College. His previous awards include two national awards from the Suburban Press Foundation and six from the Michigan AP Association.

MESC asks taxpayers for suggestions

Just about every Michigan employer pays state unemployment taxes and now some are being asked to evaluate and make suggestions for ways to improve the system.

"We want to make our unemployment tax service and our tax forms as customer friendly and as easy to use as possible," F. Robert Edwards, director of the Michigan Employment Security Commission (mesc), said. "And we're looking to employers for ideas and suggestions that will help us improve our service."

Today, mesc completed the mailing of a four-page survey to 20,000 Michigan employers. The survey asks them to judge the quality and value of service they receive from MESC's tax office.

"The objective of the survey is to discover how our tax service can better serve our employer customers," Edwards explained. "We expect the survey to tell us what existing tax services employers find most useful and helpful in doing business with MESC, and what future services they would like to see us implement."

The survey will also give the agency a benchmark against which it can measure future improvements and services.

"With future surveys, we can measure our progress against the results from the current survey," Edwards said.

The 44-question survey will ask about the quality of service employers receive from MESC staff; the value of such services as toll-free telephone assistance, electronic tax payments, voice mail, and extended office hours; the timeliness of tax services; and the understandability of MESC tax forms.

"Employers will also have an opportunity to suggest improvements to the unemployment tax process and to comment on the overall quality of MESC tax services," Edwards added.

MESC randomly selected employers for the survey from the 190,000 employers covered by Michigan's unemployment tax system. Among those surveyed, 4,000 are relatively new to the unemployment tax system, having established their tax accounts within the past three years.

MESC executive staff will use the survey to improve to the agency's tax services.

Save now to afford kid's college

Today, you can face a tab of $40,000 for four years of education at a public college and about twice that amount for a private school.

With costs increasing at an average of 7 percent a year, a four-year education 10 years from now could range from $80,000 to over $200,000.

To meet this tab, or even part of it, requires careful financial planning.

Thanks to the benefits of compound interest, the earlier you start saving, the easier it is to meet your goal.

For example, suppose you want to save $100,000 by the time your child starts college. If your child is already 8 years old and you have 10 years to meet this goal, you'll need to set aside $6,662 annually for the next 10 years, assuming an 8 percent average rate of return on your investment.

However, if you begin as soon as your child is born, you only need to save $2,577 for each of the next 18 years.

Where you invest depends primarily on two factors: (1) your tolerance for risk and (2) the number of years before your first tuition payment. As a general rule, when children are young, and you have many years to save, you can take greater risks in hopes of greater returns. Generally, greater risk refers to the stock market. As college days near, you'll want to transfer money to investments with less volatility, so you minimize the risk of losing your principal. Here are some savings vehicles to consider:

• Growth stocks and mutual funds are your best bet for keeping up with rising college tuition costs and inflation. Historically, equity investments produce better returns over the long run, making them good investments if you start saving early.

If you're nervous about investing in the stock market, explore mutual funds. These investments are overseen by a professional money manager who ensures that the fund offers a mix of low and high-risk investments.

This diversification can give you an added measure of security yet enable you to benefit from upswings in your funds' particular stocks.

• Zero-coupon bonds, which are sold at a substantial discount and pay a predetermined amount at maturity, offer an element of predictability that appeals to many parents. With zero-coupon bonds, you can accurately estimate the return on your investment and plan when to receive it. In fact, you can stagger the maturity dates so the bonds come due over the course of your child's college years.

• U.S. Savings Bonds are guaranteed by the government and apply a variable rate of interest. Since the interest rate on these bonds has increased over the past year, they have become particularly attractive. If you buy Series EE bonds in your name and use them to pay tuition, some or all of the earnings may be tax-free depending on your income at redemption time.

• College Sure CDs are innovative savings vehicles offered by the College Savings Bank, (1-800-888-2723). The interest rate paid on the certificate of deposit (CD) is guaranteed to meet the rising cost of college.

CPAs say that the best way to meet rising college costs is to save as much as you can as soon as you can. However, don't assume that your savings must cover your child's entire college education. You can look to alternative sources to help cover the difference between your savings and actual college costs.

Focus Hope event unites city and suburbs in walk

Detroit and suburban groups will come together as "Drum Majors for Justice and Peace," this year's theme of the Walk for Justice on Sunday, Oct. 8.

The Walk begins at 1 p.m. in front of the band stand at Oakman Boulevard and LaSalle. Prewalk festivities begin at noon. Secured parking is available.

Volunteers will direct participants to the lots, and shuttle service to and from the parking lots will be available.

The Walk annually brings together people from metro Detroit and the surrounding are for a peaceful demonstration inspired by civil rights leader, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Metro Detroiters show their solidarity for civil and human rights during the event.

Participants are encouraged to team-up at the Walk with organizations from different ethnic and religious groups, or with people from different parts of the city. Community groups of all kinds are invited to participate and display banners.

Call Focus: Hope at (313) 494-5500 for more information or to volunteer.

Walk volunteers from area organizations are gathering supporters from their groups and asking members to raise or donate pledges of $25. Register early to avoid long registration lines on the day of the event. Individuals who register with a minimum $25 donation receive a Walk T-shirt, cap and button.

The Walk follows an eight-mile route through Detroit and Highland Park, but those unable to walk the entire route may hop onto one of the continuous shuttle vans that will travel the Walk for Justice route.

The crowd will be entertained by local singers and marching bands before the Walk at the bandstand. Along the route more bands will entertain, and back at Focus: Hope, following the Walk, finishers will be greeted with refreshments and entertainment at the Oakman/LaSalle bandstand.

Proceeds from the Walk support Focus: Hope community programs including monthly supplemental food, currently serving 60,000 at-risk mothers, babies and seniors; intensive technical education courses, (Fast Track to improve job readiness of high school graduates, the Machinist Training Institute for precision tooling, machining and basic manufacturing skills and the Center for Advanced Technologies manufacturing engineering program).

Proceeds will also go to the Center for Children Montessori-based preschool and day care program; a partnership with Glazer Elementary to develop a 12-month curriculum.

Furniture Medic of Northville can repair wood and antique furniture and Artistic Upholsterers of Dearborn will show an alternative to purchasing new furniture with reupholstering.

Windows and doors, always a popular show feature, will be shown by Caswell Modernization Company Inc. of White Lake and Pella Window & Door Company of West Bloomfield. Empire Doors & Windows of Redford Township displays another option with its steel entry doors.

Pozzi Windows in Walled Lake brings its custom made windows, doors and skylights. To dress up your windows on the world, Melody's of Farmington Hills, The Shutter Shop of Birmingham and Window Works of Bloomfield Hills will be on hand with their window treatments.

Glass offers yet another alternative and Henderson Glass Inc. in southeastern Michigan will feature shower doors, mirrored walls and table tops. Robichaud's Custom Glass Blocks of Ecorse showcases glass blocks for windows, walls, bars and showers.

The latest in solid cedar sunrooms and new home packages will be shown by Lindal Cedar Homes of Highland. Riverbend Timber Framing of Blissfield will share its custom energy efficiency timber frame homes and structural insulated panels while Pierson & Gibbs Homes of Richmond features finish-it-yourself home packages for the handy persons in the crowd. Childs Lake Estates of Milford will show its manufactured home community and Calculus Construction Company of Farmington Hills presents their foundation stabilization systems. Dandy Homes of Clarkston will display its capabilities for custom wood decks.

To help those looking to finance a new home, Comerica Mortgage Corporation of Detroit will be there to explain its mortgage lending products.

The products and services at the show get down to the bottom of things with hard wood flooring found at the exhibit by Paynter Floors Inc. of Novi and solid vinyl wood flooring at Commercial Carpet Corporation of Novi's exhibit. Further indoor home improvement services include painting and wallcovering which will be the topic at the exhibit by Greg's Professional Painting & Wallcovering Inc. of Novi.

Moving outside and up to the rooftops, Lee Wholesale Supply of New Hudson brings roofing, siding, windows and skylights. Yard and storage barns can be found compliments of Heartland Industries of Waterford. A ladder to suit any need will be at Wing Enterprises Inc. of Springville, Utah's exhibit.

The arty in the crowd will appreciate Alice's Promotions of Detroit featuring the well-known arts and crafts display with over 100 exhibitors including rugs, sandstone gifts, decorative pottery, lamp shades and Pysanky portraits.

Peace of mind in one's own home is priceless and Brink's Home Security of Livonia will show homeowners how to enhance that feeling with its residential burglary and fire alarm systems.

Squire Bartlett Supply Company of Ferndale will display heating and cooling products, a necessity in Michigan. With winter just around the bend, Williams Panel Brick Company of Detroit is right on time with its fireplaces and accessories as well as think brick and stone veneers.

Other exhibitors will bring their most interesting and up-to-date products and services for kitchens, baths, doors, windows, yard/gardens, remodeling, interior design, furniture, arts and crafts, decorative accessories, pet accessories, electronics, heating, cooling and appliances.

Distinctive new home show gets underway

The first annual Showcase of Distinctive Homes, which features a wide variety of newly constructed model homes available throughout southeastern Michigan kicked off this week.

"This scattered site showcase of new homes, gives buyers the opportunity to see a wide selection of outstanding homes built by many of BIA's Professional Master Builders," said Janet L. Compo, president of the non-profit Building Industry Association of Southeastern Michigan (BIA) and chief executive officer of James D. Compo Inc. of Farmington Hills.

Pictorial renderings of the 37 participating homes will be on display at the Fall Remodeling Show at the Novi Expo Center which runs from Sept. 28 through Oct. 1. The Showcase of Distinctive Homes extends beyond the show dates to Oct. 15, to enable people to visit the models at their convenience.

Model homes include both condominiums and single family homes ranging in price from $127,900 to $498,500.

Prior to the opening of the Showcase of Distinctive Homes, prominent local architects will judge the homes and award winners in several prize categories. Judging will be based on the design, architecture, special features of the home and its value for the price.

The Showcase of Distinctive Homes program is sponsored by BIA which also sponsors the Parade of Notable Homes in the spring.

Much is being said about the rigorous screening process we put our doctors through. But don't worry. Some survive.

It's a tall order. And maybe not every doctor is cut out for it. But then if we're going to make things easier for our patients, we must strive to provide quality doctors. So, before any doctors become Blue Care Network doctors, before they ever examine a single patient, they must first meet or surpass some rather lofty standards. Here's what it takes. First, all doctors (personal care physicians and specialists) are reviewed against specific written criteria. (Quality of care is the thing we're measuring here.)

Moreover, an on-site inspection is conducted by specially trained staff and the results are reviewed by Blue Care Network doctors in the area. Patient satisfaction surveys are conducted by a professional, independent research company. Here, we ask patients to evaluate their doctor's technical skills as well as the basic level of service and care. Blue Care Network also works with its personal care physicians to ensure that standards are met.

Oh, and one more thing. After meeting all these standards, the doctors who are selected have the pleasure of repeating this process all over again every two years. For as long as they're with us.

FALLING INTO COLOR

By CAROL WORKENS
Staff Writer

People have different reasons to look forward to or to dread something in every season.

For children, the first snowfall must be experienced by making snow angels or building a snowman, while adults dread the first shoveling. In the spring, most can't wait to toss open the windows and plant the annuals but few are happy about digging out the lawn mower.

Summer brings beach balls, boating and heat waves. Autumn is apple cider, pumpkins, and the "are-we-there-yet?" three hour drive to see the spectacular fall colors.

Step on the brakes. Let's think about this a minute. Before heading out of town for a long drive to see the fall color show, is not the City of Northville also known as the City of Trees? Is all of Novi a cement jungle?

Based on a poll conducted by the Automobile Club of Michigan, 30 percent of Michigan residents will take a one to three day trip to view the state's fall color show.

That means that 70 percent will choose to stay closer to home.

There are trees all around us. So lace up the hiking boots, check the air in those bicycle tires, gas up the car or saddle up the horse and go out and take in some of the spectacular fall color in Northville and Novi.

On the southwest corner of Novi and Nine Mile roads there is a gorgeous hunk of a specimen ready to burst into a brilliant show.

Twelve and a half Mile Road west of Novi Road a little bit of up north transplanted right smack in a growing urban area is very dense with growth.

Further west on Nine Mile, between Beck and Taft and not so heavily wooded, is an unpaved road with a varied selection of foliage.

South Lake Road offers a chance to view the colors up close and in the distance as you drive around Walled Lake.

In Northville, most of the main streets have plenty of eye popping color possibilities.

Mill Race Village, Edward Hines Drive and Waterford Park have an abundance of deciduous and evergreen trees.

Maybury State Park has about 50 different species of trees. Sugar maple, hickory, oak, beech and walnut trees are all in abundance at the park.

Heading east on Seven Mile Road from Napier, Edenderry is an area of private homes surrounded by beautiful color.

Regardless of whether the trees caress the horizon or careen over a narrow dirt street, a good show of color depends on bright sunny days and cool nights.

The oranges, reds and yellows displayed on maples, birches, sumacs and other deciduous trees make for a good color show. Combine that vivid color with the contrast provided by conifers such as white pines, white spruce and blue spruce and another dimension has been added to the display.

There are 150 different species of trees in Michigan. What we can't see is the process that makes the leaves show off in autumn.

As the day length decreases and the nights get cooler, cells are activated between the stem and the leaf. These cells deprive the leaf of its water and mineral supply, eventually cutting the leaf off from the stem.

A substance called chlorophyll uses energy from the sun to make food for the plant. It's also what makes leaves green. The colors we see in the fall are in the leaves during the spring and summer, but because of the chlorophyll, we only see green. As the chlorophyll fades, the timid colors burst forth and announce their splendor.

Optimum viewing in our area is expected to take place from mid- to late October.

Coulter is learning to love her job

By DOROTHY NASH
Special Writer

"At our age, everyone has problems," said Ceslawa (Jessie) Coulter, who takes blood pressure as a volunteer at the Novi Senior Citizen Center on Wednesdays from 11-11:50 a.m.

"I'm dealing with people on a one-to-one basis and I love it. I've done it since 1992, and I think they're beginning to trust me," she said with a twinkle in the eye.

"There never has been any great variation in blood pressure, but they're interested in keeping it within a normal range."

Of course, because she has a nurse's background, she said, "they tell me about their illnesses, too."

It helps to talk to someone who understands.

But that isn't all she does at the Center. Putting on plastic gloves, she helps package noon-day meals for Meals on Wheels. The food comes each day from Mercy Center and she with other volunteers make individual packages for the drivers to take on their routes.

> "I'm dealing with people on a one-to-one basis and I love it."
> —Jessie Coulter

Coulter comes three or four days a week, arriving by senior citizen van at 8 or 8:15 a.m.

"The van is a blessing for a lot of us," she said. "We did 56 meals today. Some days it's close to 70."

"You have to get out and be with people. It's meeting people and getting your mind off yourself that makes the difference."

I'm just thankful I'm here," said Mrs. Coulter "Different groups come in. Doctors, for example, come in. They're up on things. They keep abreast of what's happening."

Come in to have your blood pressure checked. That's Wednesday at 11 a.m.

It's A Fact

The American Legion

Northville's American Legion Post is named for Private Lloyd H. Green who was killed on Oct. 2, 1918, while fighting in the Argonne forest of France just three days before his 19th birthday. The armistice ending World War I was signed just five weeks later, on Nov. 11, 1918.

AAUW members to speak on trip abroad

Jewel Luckett, Betty Hancock and Renee Boving have returned from their trip to Asia where they represented the American Association of University Women Northville-Novi Branch at the Non-Governmental Organizations (NGO) Forum on Women Beijing '95, Aug. 30-Sept. 8.

The AAUW members traveled to Asia in conjunction with the UN Fourth World Conference on Women: "Equality, Development and Peace," held in Beijing, Sept. 4-14.

The three AAUW members also attended the 25th Conference of the International Federation of University Women (IFUW) held in Yokohama, Japan, Aug. 18-25, with the theme "Women's Future, World Future, Education for Survival and Progress."

Boving is the International Affairs Director of AAUW of Michigan and the former program vice president of the Northville-Novi branch. Hancock is the instructor of the science girls' workshops, sponsored by the branch each of the last two years. Luckett is the International Affairs chair of the branch.

At the forum, Hancock and Boving were involved in activities related to education for women and girls and their opportunities, or lack thereof, for participation in science and technology.

On Tuesday, Oct. 10, they will relate the "Yokohama-Beijing Experiences" at the AAUW second meeting of the season which will be held at 7:30 p.m. at Thornton Creek Elementary School located on Nine Mile Road between Taft and Beck. Meetings are held just opposite the main entry door. Members are encouraged to attend. Guests are always welcome.

You can't go if you don't know

The Taste of Novi story in the Sept. 21 edition of the Northville Record/Novi News inadvertently did not mention that the event will be held at the Novi Hilton Hotel at 21111 Haggerty Road on Thursday, Oct. 12, from 5:30 to 8:30 p.m.

Third annual science camp is planned

On Oct. 7 the American Association of University Women (AAUW) Northville-Novi branch will hold its third annual Science Camp for girls. This year's event, entitled "Excited About Science," has been developed to create and expand the interest of fifth and sixth grade girls in science and math.

The event will be held at the Maybury State Park day camp shelter and costs $10. Matching funds are provided by the local branch.

For information regarding openings, contact Cindy Feldstow at (810) 486-4124.

Woman's Club is open to the community

By CAROL WORKENS
Staff Writer

One of the oldest organizations in Michigan has opened its doors a little wider.

The Northville Woman's Club has extended membership to residents of Plymouth, South Lyon, Novi, Farmington Hills, Redford, and Livonia.

The Northville Woman's Club is a cultural group with programs on the first and third Fridays of each month and no fund-raising activities.

The club makes a donation to the city and the township for civic improvement and also gives a scholarship to a graduating Northville High School senior each spring.

This year's programs include Joe Stroud, Editor of the Detroit Free Press on Oct. 6; Ed Jonna, wine merchant connoisseur on Oct. 20; a field trip to the BFI Recycling Center on Nov. 3; Mary Lindquist speaking on "Hospice – A Concept as Well as a Place" on Nov. 17; Kathryn Eckert, "Historic Michigan Architecture" on Dec. 1; a performance by The Sweet Adelines on Dec. 15; Kathy Peltier, "Living Space Design/ Renovation" on Dec. 5; Nancy K. Swanborg, director of the Women's Resource Center at Schoolcraft College on Jan. 19, Mr. "Fix-It" Joe Gannon, "What's Wrong with this Faucet?" on Feb. 2; Valerie Catenacci, "Awakening to Your Dreams" on Feb. 16; Dance Ensemble West, "From the Greek Chorus to the Chorus Line," a history of dance, on March 1; and the annual meeting and gourmet luncheon with music on March 15.

Guest days are Oct. 6, Nov. 17, Dec. 1, Jan. 5, Feb. 2, and March 1.

Founded by Lucy Stout Dowd in 1893 with a membership of 70, it was begun as a literary study group. The club's second president, Dr. Mary E. Lapham, presented the old library building, now moved to its Mill Race Village restoration site, to the Ladies' Library Association for a library with the understanding that the Woman's Club could hold meetings there as long as the members wanted.

The building was home to the club until 1964-65, when the meetings were moved to the First Presbyterian Church.

Those interested in memberships must be brought to two guest meetings within the club year. Membership is $15 per year with a $5 initiation fee. All active members are required to attend four meetings a year.

1995-96 officers are: Kathi Jerome, president; Lonna Lemmon, vice president; Sandy Fortier, recording secretary; Linda Handyside, corresponding secretary; and Ann Clarke, treasurer.

Directors are Lois Curl, Barbara Isom, Fran Johnston, Marian Pickl and Diane Rockall.

Committee chairs are: Civic Improvement, Cindy LaChance; Constitution and Bylaws, Marge Bolton; Flowers and Memorial, Lillian Cady and Gloria Collins, co-chairs; Historian, Betty LeMaster; House Welcoming, Joann Dayton, chair, with Ginnie Heckler, co-chair; Membership, Janie Smith; Music, Nancy Naszradi; Nominating, Geraldine Mills; Press Liaison, Sherry Duff; Program, Betty Griffin; Program Book, Pat Allen; Reservations, Betty Jerome; Scholarship, Jackie Payne; and Social Committee, Kathy Delena, chair, with Margaret Gonzales, co-chair.

Health motivates senior's bike trip

By CAROL WORKENS
Staff Writer

Clyde Ivans just hung up his bike and vows not to get it back down until next year.

Ivans and his bike have been around the block a few times. In fact, Ivans recently completed his third cross country bike tour, the Iowa 150. Quite a feat considering the Northville resident is 68 years of age.

But Ivans is not a cyclist, he bikes for fitness. His quest is to live longer than his dad, who died of coronary disease at the age of 53, and his uncle who died of heart problems shortly after that.

"If you visualize something long enough it will happen," he said. "I visualized myself being tall, skinny and old."

In 1968, Ivans started going to the spa. He'd work out and then went out and ran a bit. He started running with the people at the spa, building up to six miles a day.

"An organized program at the spa is much better where you have other people with the same interests where you can see your progress and have professional help," he said.

"Within is very important. You have to have the desire or else you might as well forget it."

"My son talked me into running a marathon," Ivans said. He competed in his first one – the Detroit Marathon – in 1978. Ivans ran seven marathons the next year and competed in the Pike's Peak marathon three times.

Ivans laced his running shoes for the last time after running a total of 30 marathons. Running was becoming too hard on his knees.

Then a friend told Ivans about bicycling up the shoreline of Lake Michigan from Three Oaks to Traverse City in 1988. So Ivans filled out an application form for the ride then went out and bought a bicycle.

Pedaling for less than a year, he completed his first cross country ride in 1989.

Ivans attributes his ability to ride across country so soon after taking up the sport to fitness gained from running six miles a day, six days a week.

"Make sure you don't burn out, go at it easy enough so you can maintain it the rest of your life," he said.

Ivans' recent cross country trip, which took him through some 15 states, put another 5,060 miles on his bike. He did his first cross country trip to see if he could do it, his second for fun and this last one for fitness.

"I'm getting old and I want to stay young. This might give me another six months of life," he said.

Ivans, and 12 other members of the O.F.C. (Old Farts Corps), were not able to ride together during the entire 14 weeks of the tour which ended Sept. 4.

Most members of the OFC are from across the United States, while one is from Australia. They refer to each other fondly as old farts and fartlings and the minimum age is 60.

"Generally, you ride with somebody that gets up at the same time you do, that likes to leave early, that rides about the same pace, and likes to stop about as often," he said.

"You naturally fall in step with certain people," he said of the four who stayed together on this trip.

"Because of the pressures you run into and the set ways of older people, it's hard to put up with the same person every day for 100 days."

When people ask Ivans about the scenery, he just chuckles.

"I can't remember a lot of this trip; I'm looking at the rear view mirror all the time," he said.

"It is a dangerous thing to do, you need a helmet, a rear view mirror and you have to pay attention to the road all the time."

Ivans breaks the trip into three phases. For the first 56 days of the 14 week cycle and tent tour which began May 28 most bikers are full of enthusiasm. The second phase, which only lasts about seven days, is the fun part. The last leg of the trip, 37 days, is work and is accompanied by declining enthusiasm.

"It starts to wear on you," he said. "You become preoccupied with safety, the side of the road, your physical condition, whether you should have another drink of water or eat and the logistics of the ride."

The days and nights get blurred and they're doing pretty good if they can remember where they were the night before, according to Ivans. Trying to remember where they set up camp two nights before would be pushing it.

Ivan and his wife, Millie, continue to go to the fitness center.

"Anything I can find that is interesting for me to keep me fit is what I like to do," he said.

Though Ivans vows he'll never go across country again, he recalls that he said that at the end of his second ride.

AAUW branch celebrates anniversary of its founding

Northville Mayor Chris Johnson proclaimed the week of Sept. 24-30 Northville-Novi Branch of the American Association of University Women (AAUW) Week, honoring the 20th anniversary of the organization's founding on Sept. 24, 1975.

The purpose of AAUW is to promote educational equity for women, self development and positive societal change.

On Sept. 24, 1975, at the home of Penny Neuchterlein, the branch was chartered when 55 women signed the charter and became the first members of the Northville branch of AAUW. The first executive board members were: Karel Whitaker, president; Nanci Olgren, program vice-president; Judy Bloomquist, membership vice-president; Penny Neuchterlein, secretary; and Dottie Segowski, treasurer.

The first program meeting was held on Tuesday, Oct. 14, 1975, at the Mill Race Library building. The speaker was L. Brooks Patterson, Oakland County Prosecutor, who spoke on Michigan's probation and parole practices. Other topics over the next two years were World Pluralism, the Human Encounter; Economic Facts of Life, Living with Less; The 21st Century and the Individual; and Conformity Versus Creativity.

Several of the early activities were the Food Co-Op, "Make It, Bake It, Sew It, Grow It" fund raiser and used book sales.

The theater benefits which began in 1987 were held annually until 1994.

In 1982, one of the branch's study topics was Money Talks. The purpose of this study group was to encourage women to become more aware of their family's financial affairs. An outgrowth of this study group was the formation of an investment club which is still in existence and which was so popular that a second investment club was organized. Other study topics have been – Taking Hold of Technology, Peace and National Security, Advocacy Networking for Women, Public Support/Public Education, Woman's Worth/Women Work, Protecting Individual Liberties, and Initiative for Educational Equity.

Several special interest groups began in the mid 1980s. Jean Hansen and Karel Whitaker began a Great Decisions Study Group which still meets monthly for informal non-partisan discussion of world issues. The Book Study Group, led by Audrey Jacobsen, is an informal discussion of both fiction and non-fiction pieces of literature, many of which focus on women. Periodically a Gourmet Group is formed when members who like to share their interest in cooking meet with each other and their spouses.

Karen Olsen started the Potpourri group in 1994. Attendance at a variety of day time events, such as a tour of the Pewabic Pottery Studio, a DSO Coffee Concert, or a DIA Special Event, is the focus of the group.

Lauren Walter is organizing a computer group this year. The purpose of this group is to help members make the most of their computers for personal and AAUW benefit, as well as creating a "home page" to represent our branch on the worldwide web.

In 1980, Northville AAUW made their first scholarship award ($300) to support a student living in the Northville-Novi school district. That was later expanded to two scholarships and in the spring of 1983, the scholarship award was named the Janice Hobart Memorial Scholarship in honor of deceased member Jan Hobart. In 1993, the format of the scholarship was changed to present the monies to the Women's Resource Center of Schoolcraft Community College and to the Womencenter at Oakland Community College. The directors of those centers choose students who represent women who are independent or are seeking reentry to the workplace.

In 1991, the branch was enlarged to become the Northville-Novi branch of AAUW. That year the branch also initiated the Community Enrichment Award. The first recipient was Diane Rockall. Other recipients are: 1992 – Gretchen Pugsley; 1993 – Dorothy Flattery; 1994 – Betty Griffin; and 1995 – Dorothy Gay.

Also in 1991, Jean Hansen was named the Chamber of Commerce "Citizen of the Year" for her years of work on the Northville School Board. In 1985, she received the AAUW "Agent of Change" Award.

In 1993, Nanci Olgren, as chair of the Initiative for Educational Equity, researched, planned and executed the first science camp for middle school age girls. Betty Hancock served as director/teacher. This year's science camp will be held Oct. 7 and led by Lorraine Kirkish and Barb Wilson.

Also in 1993, member Harriet Sawyer received the state AAUW Liz Kummer Award for exceptional effort toward meeting AAUW goals.

This year Renee Boving, Jewel Luckett and Betty Hancock attended the Triennial Conference of the International Federation of University Women in Yokohama, Japan, Aug. 18-25 and the Non-governmental Organizations Forum, Aug. 30-Sept. 8 in connection with the Fourth United Nations Conference on Women in Beijing, China.

Over the years, the City Council of Northville has issued proclamations to recognize AAUW during the second week of March as American Association of University Women Week in conjunction with National Women's History Month. A proclamation was also issued in March 1982, in celebration of the 101st birthday of AAUW.

Anyone holding a baccalaureate, or higher, degree from an institution on the AAUW list of qualified institutions, or a degree from a foreign institution recognized by the IFUW, is eligible for members. For further information call Jane Spence at (810) 380-0562.

SILVER SPRINGS ELEMENTARY

The 1995-96 school year is off and running at Silver Springs. Due to an increase in our student population this year, we welcome the addition of nine new staff members: school psychologist Linda Aldrich; library/media specialist Lisa Evey; physical education/health teachers Jennifer Isenberg and Ken Stark; morning kindergarten teacher Beth Kurliuk; fourth grade teacher Kim Gall; and Title 1 teacher assistants Kathy Houslander, Debbie Kontry, and Bonnie Wojo.

We also welcome back resource room teacher Linda Clark; first grade teacher Angie Krzeczkowski; and fourth grade teachers Sharon May and Pat Stringer. We are so fortunate to have them with us this year.

PTA chairwoman, Kathi Wysocki, did a great job organizing the new parent orientation held on Aug. 17. New parents were given the opportunity to get acquainted with Silver Springs in a relaxed atmosphere.

On Sept. 8, Silver Springs families gathered together for fun and food at the picnic/ice cream social. Lori and Victor Golani and Anne Marie Kuneman did an excellent job making this event possible.

Teachers and students treated the parents to a "sneak preview" of the coming school year at two open houses held on Sept. 12 and 14. Beth Peterson and Sandy Bloom are to be commended for helping to make both evenings huge successes.

In an effort to bring together new parents with "veteran" parents, a coffee gathering was held on Sept. 13 in the music room. In an informal setting, parents were able to discuss school issues as well as have the opportunity to forge new ties with one another. This monthly event, new to our school this year, is a great way to bring our families closer to each other.

Silver Springs third and fourth graders took a step back in time at the Victorian Festival which began on Sept. 15. Buses transported the students to the downtown festivities. Third graders joined others in the district for a morning of old-fashioned fun. In the gazebo, we were treated to a great performance of George M. Cohan tunes by our fourth graders. Many thanks to our music teachers, Mrs. Craig and Ms. Jarvi, for all their hard work in putting this event together.

On Sept. 18 the students were treated to a "Live with Bats" assembly. This Junior Enrichment Series (JES) program dispelled many myths held about bats. Heidi Brown and Ann Vickers are co-chairing JES this year, and have planned many exciting shows. The public is always invited to these programs. The next performance will be "Pantomime Theater" on Oct. 19.

The first PTA meeting of the year was held on Sept. 19 and was led by this year's officers: Cheryl Sprader, president; Ann Vickers, vice president; Heidi Brown, secretary; and Amy Warner, treasurer. It was exciting to see such a crowd of new and returning members in attendance.

Our fund-raiser is off to a strong start thanks to the efforts of chairwoman Cindy Kusuplos. Sales of this year's products began on Sept. 18 and will run through Oct. 2. We look to your support to make this a great success.

The date for the Silver Springs Fall Fun Run had to be changed to Sept. 29 due to inclement weather on the original date.

Silver Springs Family Reading Night will be held on Sept. 28 at 6:30 p.m. for grades 3-5. This is a wonderful program to promote reading as a family activity. Family Reading Night for the K-2 grades will be held on Oct. 5.

Campbell Soup labels will be collected again this year. Dawn Pope is to be commended for chairing this committee.

The first family roller-skating party is scheduled on Oct. 4 at 6 p.m. at Riverside. Thanks to Pat Picano for organizing these fun evenings.

If you haven't already done so, we invite you to join the Silver Springs PTA. Contact the Silver Springs office or membership chairwoman, Karen Stephens. Karen has done a wonderful job bringing those memberships in.

We hope that you will join us at the next PTA meeting on Oct. 17 at 7 p.m. Babysitting will be available.

COOKE MIDDLE SCHOOL

Cooke Middle School principal Dr. Jeffrey Radwanski and assistant principal Mrs. Gail Weeks welcomed all returning and new students and families as our building embarked on a new school year. Our building opening, student scheduling and orientation went smoothly. Dr. Radwanski also announced the generous donation of five new computers by Mr. and Mrs. Takehiro Shirosaki, who are new to our district. The students, staff and PTSA thanks them for their generosity. New staff members this year include Joanne Minks as our new life skills class teacher.

The first PTSA meeting was held on Thursday, Sept. 7, at 9:30 a.m. and was presided over by Dale Otterman, president; Debi Lopez, vice-president; Debbie Reisman, treasurer; and Robin Polletta, secretary. This year it has expanded to include the track area. Students can run/walk the track to accrue 15 miles or more as members of the "Cooke Mileage Club."

Volunteer parents make this program possible. If interested in helping, contact Al Qualman at 349-8437.

Why do so many babies get their start in life at a Mission Health birthing facility? Maybe it's that Mission Health offers families more options in birthing facilities than any other area hospital network. Like LDR and LDRP rooms. Short-stay options. And high- and low-risk settings to match your particular needs. Maybe it's the availability of doctors throughout Washtenaw, Livingston, western Wayne and Oakland counties. Or nurse midwives available through Providence. Maybe it's the classes to help even first-time parents feel like experts. Or the options for pain relief, including labor epidurals, Jacuzzi tubs and other forms of water therapy. Maybe it's the commitment to quality care, where delivering healthy babies to healthy moms is one of our most important goals.

If you're considering a new addition, come see for yourself what Mission Health has to offer. Call to receive an information packet, to find out more about a tour or for a referral to a doctor near you.

Actress plays lead in musical comedy

It's the third time around for Judi Alonzo, but this time is completely different.

Alonzo is playing the Reverend Mother in the Plymouth Theatre Guild's production of the musical comedy Nunsense.

Alonzo has appeared in the Islanders' production of Nunsense in Grosse Ile and at the Masonic Temple in Detroit.

Having recently moved to Northville, Alonzo and her husband, Tim, were looking to meet people and thought auditioning with the Plymouth Theatre Guild was a great idea.

"I thought it would be an awfully good way to get involved and meet people," she said.

Nunsense is about the Little Sisters of Hoboken and their attempts to raise money to bury four nuns. The nun's chef, Sister Julia Child of God, seems to have poisoned the nuns and 52 died. There was only enough money to bury 48 because the Reverend Mother took the rest of the money to buy a VCR. Now the nuns must raise money to bury the remaining four.

The cast members, whose ages range from 17 to 51, add dimension to the production, according to Alonzo. Other members of the cast are a mother and a daughter, and two college students who teach voice.

"Each one of us has at least one major solo and duet," she said. "It is very taxing on the voices, you have to be trained."

Alonzo arrives at the theater one and a half hours before the show to do vocal exercises.

"You have to have that voice in condition or it's not going to do what you want it to do," she said.

Alonzo began acting in high school and met Tim when he was in the cast of Annie, which she was directing.

"We always work together," she said. Tim acts and sings, while Alonzo directs, sings and acts. Both performed in The Last of the Red Hot Lovers. Alonzo also directed Fiddler on the Roof while Tim was in the cast.

The final performances of Nunsense are Friday, Sept. 29, and Saturday, Sept. 30, at 8 p.m. Tickets are $10 at the door and $9 in advance.

The Water Tower Theatre is on the campus of the Northville Regional Hospital, 41001 West Seven Mile Road in Northville.

To make reservations, call 810-349-7110.

Tickets may be purchased at Sir Speedy Printing Center, 485 South Main Street in Plymouth, Piccadilly Petal'er Flowers, F&M Center in Ford Road in Canton.

'Prophecy' takes inspiration from Milton

Academy Award winner Christopher Walken leads an extraordinary ensemble cast in "The Prophecy," a terrifying supernatural thriller in the tradition of "The Exorcist" and "The Omen." The cast also includes Eric Stoltz, Virginia Madsen, Viggo Mortensen, Amanda Plummer, Elias Koteas and Adam Goldberg.

A chilling tale of a heavenly war waged on earth by a band of renegade angels, the film marks the directorial debut of screenwriter Gregory Widen ("Highlander," "Backdraft"), who also wrote the script. When a neophyte priest, Thomas Daggett (Elias Koteas), is rocked by puzzling and horrific visions, he abandons the church at the altar of his ordination.

Years later, as a homicide detective assigned to a grisly murder case, he uncovers a series of clues with dark religious overtones — the obituary of a dishonored Army colonel, a copy of a book on angels that he wrote as a seminarian and an ancient, tattered Bible containing a chapter on the Book of John never known to exist.

An autopsy of the victim's body reveals its unearthly nature, bringing Daggett to the attention of Gabriel (Christopher Walken) and Simon (Eric Stoltz), two supernatural forces who descend from heaven to lead a war on earth over humans.

Simon, first to find the colonel's body, seizes the deceased man's soul and hides out in the attic of an old school house. Knowing his nemesis Gabriel cannot be far behind, he conceals the evil soul in the body of a young Navajo girl named Mary (Maria Snyder). Mary's teacher Katherine (Virginia Madsen) discovers Simon and tries to force him out — but Gabriel arrives instead to deliver his rival a deadly punishment for his betrayal.

Daggett and Katherine realize that Gabriel is actually the Arch-Angel Gabriel, seeking to wrest control of heaven from God's servants and humanity. His key to winning the war — the dark soul of the colonel, the most ruthless military mind in existence.

"The Prophecy," screenwriter Gregory Widen's directorial debut, is a startling tale about a bitter, vengeful war in heaven between angels, and their terrifying final battle on earth.

Widen's previous screenplays have primarily been connected with "secret societies." His first script, the highly popular "Highlander," starring Christopher Lambert and Sean Connery, was about a secret society of immortals living in the present day. "Backdraft," directed by Ron Howard, was about a secret society of firemen.

"The Prophecy" is about a secret society comprised of angels.

Widen, a former altar boy, said his newest story was inspired by John Milton's 17th century poem "Paradise Lost." "The premise of the story is just another way of looking at the Bible, where angels are portrayed as violent messengers of death," said Widen. "No one had ever dealt with that aspect of their personality before. I combined that with Milton's poem about Lucifer's fall, and angels as complicated souls that were prone to jealousy over humans.

"There is obviously some license being taken here," he continued, "but it is not a completely outrageous suggestion. The idea that angels are complex individuals, and not just 'yes' men, is something that fascinates me."

Sharing Widen's vision is producer Joel Soisson: "Taking what we in the 20th century have conventionally believed to be benevolent, helpful beings, and presenting them as malevolent and manipulating was exciting to us," he said.

"Consider the origin of Satan," Soisson continued. "He was an angel who fell from God's grace because he was confused. He was conflicted by his jealousy, and by other uniquely human characteristics, which caused him to be banished from heaven and ultimately to create hell."

In "The Prophecy," this heavenly disruption happens again, only with Gabriel. Said Widen: "For the story, I draw from the Old Testament in which there are many descriptions of angels being God's sword carriers, God's 'wild bunch' laying waste to cities, turning people into salt and stealing newborns. I enjoy calling this film 'The Theological Terminator.'"

"The Prophecy" does the same thing as "The Exorcist," said Soisson, "taking something unearthly and basically unfathomable, then bringing it down to earth. Essentially, a war in heaven waged here on earth.

"The main character, Daggett, has lost his faith in God while on his way to being ordained as a priest," Soisson explained. "He then moves as far away from the priesthood as possible and becomes a street cop, and then finds himself in a conflict that ultimately restores his faith. He ultimately ends up being God's servant by helping vanquish the enemy who threatens to tear the world apart.

"The interesting thing about this ambivalence is that the angel Gabriel, is going through the same arc as Daggett. He's an angel who has lost his faith because God, for whatever reason, no longer speaks to him. As a result, he is acting on his own course driven by despair, desperation and jealousy. In the same sense, Daggett has become embittered and distanced from his humanity. Both of these entities, when they finally clash, become great protagonists, because they are really two sides of the same coin. One is a confused heavenly agent, and the other an agent of the law, down on earth."

Meryl Streep and Clint Eastwood star in the romantic drama 'The Bridges of Madison County, a Warner Bros. release.

'A love story for people over 45'

THE BRIDGES OF MADISON COUNTY
By Dan Clark
Novi

Director: Clint Eastwood
Cast: Meryl Streep, Clint Eastwood

What if Bruce Beresford ("Driving Miss Daisy") had directed this film as he was originally intended to? What if top contenders Cher, Susan Sarandon, Isabella Rossellini or Jessica Lange had taken the part of Francesa Johnson?

Well, the possibilities are fun to imagine but here's the scoop on the stunning reality. Meryl Streep ("The River Wild") adds another powerful performance to her long resume of strong characters in that of Francesa, the repressed Iowa farm wife who engages in a passionate, four-day affair with a "National Geographic" photographer named Robert Kincaid (Clint Eastwood) when her husband and children attend a county fair.

This adaption of Robert James Waller's phenomenal bestseller is far superior to the book, and is masterfully directed by Eastwood. His performance is more subdued than Streep's, but he auspiciously brings to life the subtle but effective appeal of the older man who sweeps a seemingly uninteresting Italian-American woman off her feet.

"Bridges" is a film that will be long remembered for creating a successful love story for people over the age of 45, but it's a film experience that can be enjoyed by anyone with a sense of heart and a mind of depth.

Rated PG-13 for profanity, suggested sex and adult themes.

WHITE PALACE
By Helaine Binstock
Novi

Occasionally, coming attractions "turn me off" rather than on. That's how I reacted to the previews I'd seen of "White Palace (1990). However, after viewing the video, I'm happy to report, I underestimated it.

James Spader is 27. He's rich, highly educated and successful. But he's miserable ... Why? Well, to begin with, his young wife is already dead.

Susan Sarandon is a slovenly, 43-year-old waitress who outwardly appears to enjoy life, having accomplished her own working class expectations.

Their diametrically-opposed circumstances don't seem to alter their attraction to each other, which triggers an excellent relationship. They're great together! A romance flourishes ... until it's time to meet each other's family and friends.

Though she's got 16 years on him, you're able to accept the age difference and understand the allure. It's those diverse backgrounds that are hard to abide.

I was captivated with "White Palace's" story line and acting, up till it's unrealistic end. It was irrational and spoiled the entire film.

It was no shock to later learn its conclusion had been tacked on last minute. With that unfortunate last minute, the film did an immediate "about face."

Still, it's worth seeing ....

NINE MONTHS
By Heather Wadowski
Northville

If you want to see a comedy that will make you laugh so hard your sides will hurt, my suggestion is to see "Nine Months." Not only will you laugh like crazy, you'll shed a few tears, too.

Hugh Grant ("Four Weddings and a Funeral") stars as Samuel, a guy who thinks his life is perfect. He loves his cat, his Porsche, his house, his girlfriend ... he doesn't want a thing to change.

Unfortunately, his life does change .... His girlfriend, Becky, is pregnant. Well, now, poor Samuel is told to sell his Porsche by a friend (Tom Arnold), move by Becky and get rid of his cat by Becky's doctor (played by Robin Williams).

Needless to say, Samuel isn't thrilled by this baby. Becky soon realizes it and leaves Samuel.

Of course, Samuel misses Becky. He'll do anything to win her back ... even if it means becoming a father.

"Nine Months" is a very touching and comical movie. It receives five stars out of five, with five being absolutely splendid. I recommend it to anyone who wants to see a good movie.

Plus, as the credits go up, viewers will get to see snapshots of the stars during their first years of being a baby. What more could you ask for?

NATIONAL LAMPOON'S SENIOR TRIP
By Mike Kapusky
Northville

"They came. They saw. They passed out." And that is about all the viewer wants to do to enjoy this movie — pass out.

High school through the eyes of those zany people of National Lampoon. A bunch of teenage imbeciles travels to Washington, D.C. to tell the president how much the education system "sucks."

Sex, drugs and rock 'n' roll times 10 squared. Stereotypes overblown, ridiculous characters and a scant plot. But does it matter? This movie is not meant to win Oscars; it only is supposed to be so stupid it is funny and, well, it sometimes does that.

"Senior Trip" is purely ridiculous humor that seems to work at some times but totally bombs at other moments. Near the ending, the movie extremely plummets with a kind of "let's end it right here guys" feeling. Some of the characters are extremely hilarious, including a crossing guard who has taken "Star Trek" a little bit too far, and the bus driver is kind of familiar, too.

"Senior Trip" belches out a few unexpected laughs with an anticipated two stars (one star bad, five stars good). Only good for a few laughs, the rest is not so good. Wait till they have a discount at the video store.

Samantha Leger made the game-winning basket against North Farmington Thursday night.

Cagers edge Raiders 54-53 in last seconds

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

Samantha Leger scored with 14 seconds left to give Northville High a 54-53 home win over North Farmington Thursday night.

The Mustangs trailed by as many as seven in the fourth quarter. But Leger and Lauren Metaj combined for 16 points to lead a gritty Northville come back.

"This team really doesn't give up," said coach Pete Wright, who was in his second game after taking over for Gary Schwan. "Ever."

That point was proven in the fourth.

North Farmington's Kathie Collins sank a three-pointer from the right wing to put her team up 42-35 at the 7:35 mark.

The Raiders maintained that lead until late in the period. Down 49-42, Northville began its uprising.

Lindsay Huot scored with 2:48 remaining to cut the lead to five. Leger followed with a basket seconds later.

After a North Farmington timeout, Huot drew a foul. The sophomore converted on one of two free throws to make it a 49-47 ballgame with 1:45 left.

North Farmington's Carrie May stopped her team's bleeding with a hoop and Northville trailed by four again.

The teams traded baskets and the Mustangs were down 53-49 with 40 seconds left.

Leger then took control.

The senior captain drove to the basket, scored and was fouled. She made the toss from the charity stripe and brought Northville to within one, 53-52.

May missed a chance to put it away for the Raiders. She missed a pair of free throws with 39 seconds left.

Leger followed seconds later with the game-winning basket.

Wright said it was a clutch performance by Leger and the rest of the team. The Mustangs had to put together a string of baskets to win.

"They knew they had one run (left in them)," he added.

Leger finished with 20 points and Metaj added 18. Huot had seven.

Collins led North Farmington with 15.

Northville improved to 4-1. It was the first Western Lakes conference game of the year.

Kickers boot Redford Union 4-1 as Graff scores a pair

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

A 4-1 road win over Redford Union Friday capped the Mustang soccer team's best week of the season.

J.R. Graff scored a pair of second half goals to lead Northville to its third victory. Goalkeeper Ty Fowler barely missed a shutout as the Panthers scored in the final minute of play.

Coach Henry Klimes said the win gave his team some confidence.

"These guys believe in themselves now," he said. "I thought we played a strong game."

Northville improved to 3-4-1.

The Mustangs were in control for all 80 minutes Friday. It was simply a matter of when they would find the back of the net.

Stopper Eric Arnold did just that with about 15 minutes gone by. He scored, with Chad Gilchrist assisting.

The half ended 1-0. Northville broke down the Panther defense in the second half.

Bill Rundell scored seven minutes into the half. Graff followed with his two goals to make the game a rout.

"We absolutely controlled the game," said Klimes.

The Mustangs were solid at both ends of the field. Nate Goebel and Rory Dunnabeck, in particular, played well.

Northville plays at Westland John Glenn tomorrow at 7 p.m.

NORTHVILLE 0, CHURCHILL 0

Playing the No. 5 ranked Chargers at home Sept. 20, the Mustangs came up with a big-time effort.

"It's the first time we haven't lost to them in a long time," Klimes said. "After our close loss to Farmington the guys wanted to show what they were made of. The kids came out to play."

Gilchrist had as much to do with the tie as anyone. He marked Livonia's top offensive player, Roberto Bartitelli, and shut him out.

"He did a tremendous job of denying him the ball," said Klimes.

The coach said his team was able to hold Churchill scoreless by keeping the Chargers out of the middle of the field.

Jimmy Fermanis and Dunnabeck did a good job of patrolling the middle.

When Livonia did break through, Fowler was there to clean up.

"Ty made some exceptional saves," Klimes added.

Northville had a few chances to score, too. But Livonia played equally tough defensively.

Thriller

Forney's catch, Scappaticci's block lift Mustangs to OT win over WLW

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

"(Scappaticci) went straight up the middle and blocked it. It never got up."

DARREL SCHUMACHER
Football coach

Nate Forney caught a 10-yard Scott Vigh touchdown pass in overtime Friday to lift Northville High to a 23-16 overtime road victory against Walled Lake Western.

Ahead 16-0 at halftime, the Mustangs allowed Western to tie the game with two seconds to go in the fourth quarter. Only a blocked extra point by senior Mike Scappaticci kept the Warriors from winning the game.

"He went straight up the middle and blocked it," coach Darrel Schumacher said of his 3-1 club. "It never got up."

The football gods were on Northville's side, he added.

"We've been living right at the right time," said Schumacher.

The Mustangs face defending state champion Farmington Hills Harrison tomorrow night at homecoming. A win would put Northville in the driver's seat for a division championship and state playoff berth.

"We're where you want to be at this time of the year," Schumacher said.

The coach was concerned about getting to the Harrison unscathed. Walled Lake went into the game at 2-1 with its only loss to highly ranked Westland John Glenn.

"I thought we were both evenly matched going in," said Schumacher.

That statement appeared true enough in the first quarter. Northville and Walled Lake traded possessions to start the game.

Northville got rolling its second time around. The Mustangs started at their own 20-yard line and moved swiftly down the field.

The Warriors stiffened deep in their own end, however. Walled Lake forced a fourth down and four at its 27-yard line.

Schumacher elected to go for it. Vigh rolled out for an option and pitched it back to Kersey at precisely the right moment.

A couple of moves and a sprint against the grain took him into the end zone and gave Northville a 6-0 lead at the 1:45 mark. The drive took 12 plays.

"It was a critical down for us," Schumacher said. "They had it defensed but Aneil got a good block."

Eric Moore and J. J. Zayti both through important blocks in the 27-yard TD run.

Northville added a field goal and a second touchdown before the half was over.

The Mustangs took the ball down to the Warrior 13. On fourth down, Adam Tibble was perfect on a 23-yard field goal.

Western got the ball back but fumbled at its own 40-yard line and Northville recovered. Eight plays later Kersey scored from a yard out to make it 16-0.

Tim Burke had the key play in the drive. He caught a 13-yard pass from Vigh to take it down to the 1-yard line.

Schumacher was surprised at his team's ability to move the football.

"We didn't expect to be able to effectively as we did," he said.

The offense went poof in the second half. Northville fumbled on its first two possessions.

Western capitalized on the second miscue with its first touchdown. After taking the ball at Northville's 15-yard line, Walled Lake scored on a 14-yard pass play.

A Pat Gibson field goal then made it 16-10 with 4:48 left in the third quarter. The Warriors put together the tying drive late in the fourth.

After starting at their own 14-yard line, Walled Lake drove the length of the field. Western converted on several third and fourth down plays to keep it alive.

"It was always just enough to get the first down," Schumacher said.

Walled Lake moved to Northville's 7-yard line with 14 seconds to go. Somehow, the Warriors got three plays off and finally scored on a pass from Jason Bishop to Kevin Hoffman.

The game was all but won for Western. But Scappaticci blocked the extra point and put the game into overtime.

In high school, each team gets a chance to score n OT. The ball is placed at the 10-yard line and the offensive team has four downs to get it in.

Northville made good on its chance with Forney's catch. Walled Lake wasn't as fortunate and failed on three running attempts and a pass.

"They put a lot gray hairs in an old man's head," Schumacher said of his team.

Kersey finished the game with 134 yards on 35 carries. He broke the school scoring mark in the game and now has 21 touchdowns in his career. Kersey also added to his own career rushing mark, which now stands at 2,201 yards.

Vigh had a good game as well. He completed 8 of 13 passes for 95 yards.

Burke had three catches for 35 yards.

Garrett Carter led the defense with 15 tackles.

Golfers fall to Chargers 203-217

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

It takes consistency to win in golf.

Northville High played consistent golf last week – until Friday, anyway. The Mustangs had been averaging about 40 strokes per man going into a home matchup with Livonia Churchill.

Perhaps it was the cold, wet weather or maybe it was just an off day. But whatever the reason, the Mustangs fell off the consistency wagon and lost to the Chargers 203-217.

"We had a bad day," coach Trish Murray said. "We had a Ryder Cup day."

Jeremy Sova continued his solid play by leading Northville with a round of 39. Brian Glock also played well and shot a 41.

Eric Swietlik came in with a 44, James Damico a 45 and Rob Rankin a 48. Murray wasn't sure what caused the higher scores Friday, but thought her players might have put too much pressure on themselves.

"They new Churchill was the team to beat in the conference," she added.

The loss left Northville tied with Livonia for second place.

"Salem is the only team without a loss," Murray said.

Northville is 5-1 in the Western Lakes Activities Association and 6-0 overall.

NORTHVILLE 203, FARMINGTON 216

Now this was a consistent team effort. The Mustangs didn't count a round higher than 42 Sept. 20 at San Marino golf course.

Glock, Damico and Rankin each shot 40. Sova finished with 41, Yoshida and Clancy a 42.

Leger leads cagers past Raiders by 1

tied the game at the end of the third period, 33-33.

A couple of key plays late in the game sealed the victory, however.

Leger scored to give Northville a 49-46 lead. Karla Kalso then made a steal and found Metaj for an easy basket to push the Mustang lead to five points.

Rica Bairge gave Northville a lot of grief in Wayne's comeback. She scored a game-high 25 points.

"She did it all," said Wright.

Leger led Northville with 20 points and Metaj had 15.

Netters tie Livonia Stevenson, win two

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

Rallies, setbacks, blowouts – Northville High's home match with Livonia Stevenson Friday had it all.

Except a Mustang win.

The two WLAA powers slugged it out and fought to a 4-4 draw. All things considered, coach Uta Filkin wasn't too upset.

"It was a good tie," she said.

Northville remained undefeated in the Western Lakes Activities Association. The Mustangs two toughest remaining league rivals, North Farmington and Farmington Hills Harrison, were on this week's schedule.

As for Friday's match, Northville started off in the hole.

Mary McDonald dropped a 6-2, 6-2 decision to Whitney Crosby, who is perhaps the best player in the league, Filkin said.

"Mary was hitting well," the coach added. "But I don't think it was winable for her."

Kristin Smith dropped the first set in her match with Anna Byberg. But she rallied and fought to a three-set win with 6-3, 6-4 victories in sets two and three.

Filkin said it was the first match Smith has been challenged this season.

"She's used to hitting the ball and not having it come back (from the opponent)," she added.

Julie Glock continued her winning ways by taking Megan McGillnett 6-3, 6-2. Chrissy Kapusky lost her No. 4 singles match to Mara Mazzoni 6-4, 6-3.

Lisa Cousineau and Meghan Connery fell in two sets to Lindsay Phiefer and Anita Plante. Amanda Nelson and Sarah Johnson beat Kistay DiBuslo and Pam Samsel 3-6, 7-5, 6-3.

Filkin was particularly proud of Nelson and Johnson. She said the Stevenson duo completely overpowered them in the first set. But they didn't give up and came back for an important win.

"It was rather dramatic," said Filkin. "They fought all the way back."

Jennifer Moak and Kara Anderson fought equally hard at No. 3 doubles. The Mustang pair dropped their first set, 6-1, then stayed alive against Kajal Baddini and Andrea Choury with a 7-5 win in the second set.

The two teams fought to a 6-6 standstill in the third set. Livonia finally won it with an 8-6 tiebreaker.

Shelley Morgan and Angela Bardoni got Northville a tie with a two-set win at fourth doubles.

The Mustangs had two other matches last week.

Northville beat Walled Lake Western on Sept. 20 by an 8-0 score. The Mustangs whipped Livonia Churchill on Sept. 18, 7-1.

Aerobics offered locally

By CINDY STEWART

Karen Briars (front) and Sandy Borsvold participated in Novi's step aerobics in the past.

Welcome to the new age of fitness. Everywhere you go people are walking, jogging, doing aerobics, swimming and eating light and healthy. You can't get away from it ... it's everywhere ... so why not join in.

Novi Parks and Recreation makes it convenient to workout regardless of your busy schedule. Fitness Factory Aerobics and Muscle Toning-Body Sculpting classes have been a part of the Novi Civic Center's recreation schedule since it opened. The Fitness Factory offers convenient day and evening classes at the Civic Center, as well as many other locations throughout the Metro area. There is no excuse not to exercise.

Fitness Factory offers aerobics classes for everyone, regardless of their fitness level, including lo-impact, combination, step and body sculpting classes. Each class offers a complete workout beginning with eight to 10 minutes of warm up and stretching, followed by a 30-minute cardiovascular segment, ending with muscle conditioning, exercise and a complete body stretch and cool down period. All instructors are trained and CPR certified.

"Come and try a class," urged Fitness Factory area director Patrice Gould. "Once you try it, you'll never want to quit. The participants become friends and encourage each other during the classes." Gould has been involved with the Fitness Factory since 1981. As area director, she sets up the classes, hires and trains instructors, teaches classes and is a "trouble-shooter" for the programs.

"People are very receptive to the classes and if we had more facilities, we could fill every one of them. Even though there are many health clubs around, the Fitness Factory program is different. It is not an intimidating atmosphere."

Through Novi Parks and Recreation, residents and non-residents alike can sign up for classes on a once-week, twice-week or unlimited basis. Classes run Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday at 9-10 a.m. for lo impact aerobics; Monday, Wednesday, Friday at 10.15-11:15 a.m. for step aerobics; Tuesday, Thursday at 10:15-11:15 a.m. for body sculpting, and Monday, Wednesday at 6-7 p.m. for combination aerobics. Babysitting is available in the Civic Center for $1.50 per child for these classes. Other classes without babysitting services include Monday, Wednesday at 7-8 p m. for step aerobics; and Saturday at 8 9 a m. for step aerobics.

Susan Johnson began taking classes almost two years ago. "Fitness Factory is an excellent program and with the unlimited classes you can fit it into even the busiest of schedules. I took advantage of the babysitting services last year which is a nice feature for people with small children at home.

"How can you beat paying $1 50 per child for an hour of uninterrupted aerobics It's a good mental workout as well as a physical one. Regardless of which class you take, the Fitness Factory instructors teach you how to adapt the exercises for your own needs," said Johnson.

Fitness Factory has such a strong following because of the instructors. They are committed to and thoroughly enjoy what they do and it shows. Linda Gignac teaches the Monday, Wednesday, Friday step class at 10.15 a.m. in the Novi Civic Center.

"The more you do it, the better you feel and it shows," said Linda. "I love teaching the step classes which are such a high intensity, low impact workout. These classes are for everyone and it's a great way to meet people in your community."

Linda Burke is one of the other Novi Fitness Factory instructors teaching the Monday, Wednesday 6:15 p.m. high-low combination class. "People have a tendency to feel awkward when they begin aerobics, but Fitness Factory is such an excellent program. With the step classes you get a great cardiovascular workout that especially pinpoints the lower body areas that need work," she said.

"If you combine step aerobics with another workout during the week, you are utilizing different muscle groups, which is cross training. You will feel stronger overall and there's less chance of injury when you participate in weekend leisure activities such as softball, tennis or golf. Give it a try. You won't be sorry."

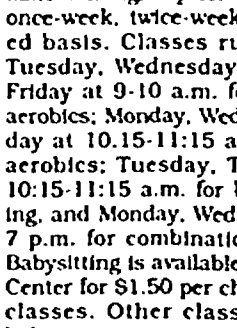
Dogs, cats good pets, but be careful



Param Kochhar

Caring for a pet is an excellent way for a child to learn to be gentle, caring and responsible. However, there are dangers associated with it too, such as bites and spread of other bacterial and viral illnesses.

There are 110 million domestic cats and dogs in the United States. The incidence of pet bites is one million a year. Eighty to 90 percent of these are dog bites and 10 percent are cat bites. Each year, 60,000 of these animal bites may result in sight loss, facial disfigurement or psychological problems.

Most of the time, the pet is known to the victim and about a third of the time, the pet is in the home with parents present. These injuries can be prevented by some simple precautions.

Dog Bites

Boys are bitten twice as often as girls. It occurs mostly to school-age boys. Most bites in children involve the head and neck area while in adults the most common site is the extremities. Usually the dog is known to the family. Dog bites are provoked when children roughhouse with the dog, especially a puppy, which may get excited during this rough play. Older dogs may bite when bothered while sleeping or ill. Most of the fatal injuries are produced by pit bulls, well known for their aggressive behavior toward people.

Dog teeth are not very sharp, so their bites are not particularly deep. However, dogs can produce crushing forces by the strength of the attack, which also shakes up the victim and results in tears and crush injuries. Dog bites may also cause injuries to structures under the skin – this is especially important if the wound is in the scalp. Penetration of the skull is a serious possibility. Dog bites need to be assessed individually. The victim may need an antibiotic depending on the site and type of wound. Puncture wounds of the hand may involve tendons and joints and may cause serious damage if infection develops.

Cat Bites

Girls are wounded by cats more often than boys. Most cat bites occur inside the house when someone reaches out to feed or pet them. Cat teeth are sharp, thin and needle-like. They produce deep puncture wounds that are difficult to clean and therefore more likely to get infected.

Here are a few suggestions to help prevent bite wounds by animals.

• Choose a tolerant dog from a gentle breed. Do not choose a dog – especially a puppy – on impulse. They should be handled first by an adult.

• Supervise children around animals until they are old enough to treat the animal properly – generally around age 5.

• Help puppies and children understand each other by attending dog training and obedience classes.

• Teach children not to pet animals without the owner's permission. Never pet a stray or tease animals.

• Consult a veterinarian if a dog is having behavioral problems.

Caring for Bites

Half of cat-bite wounds may get infected as compared to only 5 percent of dog-bite wounds. Thorough washing of the wound with soap and water is the most important part of treating an animal bite.

All major dog and cat bites should be seen by a doctor for proper cleansing of the wound and evaluation for use of an antibiotic. The doctor will also discuss rabies prevention and make sure that the victim's tetanus immunization is current. If the wound is minor, contact your doctor or call an emergency room to discuss the need for rabies prevention and tetanus immunization.

Rabies is prevalent in many states, especially among wild animals. It is important for you to know the immunization status of the biting animal, the animal's general health and circumstances of the bite.

A rabid animal usually succumbs to widespread rabies within 10 days of onset of clinical disease, therefore an animal that remains healthy 10 days after biting could not have transmitted rabies at the time of the bite.

In general, bites by wild animals other than rodents and rabbits are considered high risk for rabies and may need medical attention.

Runners fourth at Western

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

Saturday's Walled Lake Western Cross Country Invitational was a case of east meets west.

Top teams from western suburbs such as Novi and South Lyon were on hand as were eastern teams like Farmington and Livonia. According to Northville coach Chris Cronin, the west dominated.

"Novi and South Lyon were really tough," he said. "But I think we did exceptionally well."

Separate races were held for upper and lower classmen. In the junior-senior race, Northville took fourth place out of six teams.

Cronin said times were slower Saturday. Western's course is one of the tougher ones in the area and features a pair of steep hills runners must climb three times during the race.

Having some experience at the course should help Northville today when it faces Western in a duel meet.

"I know the times will improve," said Cronin.

Erin Tovey was the Mustangs lone junior-senior medalist. She finished 20th with a time of 23:05. Kajal Parikh ran a good race and finished 25th in 24:26.

Alissa Nadeau showed improvement with a 24:44 for 32nd.

"She ran a real aggressive race," Cronin said. "I think she's a good, strong runner."

Jennifer Dowdell finished in 25:09 and Kristen Wasalaski in 25.58.

In the freshman-sophomore race, Northville was third.

Allison Murphy placed fifth overall in 22:20 while Karen Loeffler was 17th in 23:56. Katie Spillane finished 20th in 23:56, Amanda Spader finished in 25:14 and Kristen VanTuyl came in at 26:14.

CANTON 24, NORTHVILLE 31

A loss is a loss. But some losses are better than others.

Northville'S seven-point setback to the Chiefs Thursday at home falls into that category. Usually, when the two teams meet the score ends up a little lopsided in Canton's favor.

But Northville improved enough this year to throw a scare into the Chiefs.

"It was a good meet," Cronin said. "I was pleased with the way we performed."

The coach couldn't be too upset with the loss. After all, Mustang runners improved by over a minute on average.

"It's the symptom of a young team," Cronin said. "A good symptom."

Murphy was the top Northville finisher. She was third in 21:21.

Tovey took fourth in 22:26, Loeffler seventh in 22:50, Dowdell eighth in 22:59 and Parikh ninth in 23:06. Spillane ran a 23:17 race and Spader a 21:02.

Tankers rip North Farmington

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

There's a couple of constants in the world of WLAA swimming:

One, Livonia Stevenson will always be the favorite for the conference crown. Two, Northville, North Farmington and one of the Plymouth schools will battle it out for second place.

The Mustangs established a stranglehold on that position last Thursday by crushing North Farmington 107-79.

"It was the biggest point-spread we've had on them in years," coach Bill Dicks said. "Our duel meets are usually within a couple of points. We swam pretty well and they're down in numbers (of swimmers)."

The Raiders usually boast as many or more swimmers than Northville. But, Dicks said, North Farmington's numbers have been hurt because of enrollment options in the Farmington school district.

The net effect was that Northville won 10 of 12 races Thursday.

Good times were had by several Mustangs.

Amity Heckemeyer had the most notable performance by qualifying for her second state final event, the 100-meter freestyle. She won that race in 55.64, which was less than a second better than the state cut time of 56.09.

Northville took a close win in the 200-meter medley relay. The team of Rebecca Anderson, Heckemeyer, Kristen Warnke and Jodie Brown won by two-tenths of a second, Dicks said.

Amy Kohl took first place in the 200-meter freestyle while Kara Lyczak was fourth and Andrea Moretti fifth. Moretti was battling illness to swim in the meet.

"She's a good little swimmer," Dicks said.

Warnke took first in the 200-IM, Anderson was second and Leah Voytal third.

"I don't think we've ever swept them in an event," said Dicks.

Northville led the meet 32-14 after the sweep.

Dicks said he knew at that point that the Raiders were weakened. But, he added, he couldn't adjust his lineup much because of injuries and illness. That led to the lopsided final score.

Brown took second place in the 50-meter freestyle, Beth Handley was fourth and Amy Cook sixth. Michon Slanina was first in diving with 167.05 points while Alicia Doehler was second with 126.1 and Amber Kent was fifth with 73.3 points.

Northville placed first in the 100-meter butterfly, Moretti was fourth and Handley was sixth. Kohl took first in the 500-meter freestyle, Doehler was fifth and Alice Callan was sixth.

The team of Heckemeyer, Brown, Voytal and Kohl was first in the 200-freestyle relay in 1:48.68. Anderson was first in the 100 backstroke and Heckemeyer won the 100-meter breaststroke.

Handley, Anderson, Warnke and Kohl finished second in the 400-meter freestyle relay.

Northville improved to 1-1 overall. The Mustangs swim at Walled Lake today and at the Fenton Relays Saturday morning.

Harriers fall to Canton 20-39

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

It's not often that freshmen and sophomores outperform juniors and seniors in high school sports.

But the Mustang youngsters did just that Saturday at the Walled Lake Western Cross Country Invitational. The freshmen and sophomores placed fourth in their race while the juniors and seniors finished 10th.

Coach Ed Gabrys said the young guys definitely earned bragging rights.

Tim Schovers led the freshmen-sophomore contingent. He took third place in 18:31.

Jeremy T. Smith was 14th in the race at 19:14. Jeremy C. Smith took 19th in 19:28 and Josh Smith was 24th in 20:02.

Dwight VanTuyl led the older guys. He took ninth place in 17:48 and received a medal for his efforts.

Ravi Mujumdar finished 26th in 19:04 and Adam White was 58th in 20:37.

CANTON 20, NORTHVILLE 39

The Mustangs ran up against one of the Western Lakes toughest teams in Canton Thursday at home. The Chiefs are the favorite to take the conference crown, said Gabrys.

VanTuyl ran his usual good time at Cass Benton with a 17:32 for second place. Canton, however, took the next three spots.

Schovers was the next Mustang to cross the finish line. He took sixth in 18:25.

'Flat tax' could hurt many homeowners

By James M. Woodard
Copley News Service

Sweeping away the mortgage interest deduction for homeowners with the proposed "flat tax" might be a good thing for consumers, if that flat tax is based on about 14 percent of a family's gross income.

That's the opinion of H Jere Robings, president of a regional Alliance of Taxpayers.

"But if that tax is based on a high figure, like 22 percent, it could be a very bad development," he said. "Also, there should be a cap on the amount the flat tax can be increased. It's only too easy for legislators to push up the base rate, saying an economic emergency requires it."

The mortgage interest rate deduction has become almost sacred to most homeowners. Few legislators have dared to even discuss its possible elimination, looking at votes that are represented by all those homeowners. But now there is a flat-tax proposal on the table that would eliminate all deductions.

The mortgage interest rate deduction for homeowners has been an important element in the tax system in this country since the inception of the income tax. It was instituted as an incentive to encourage homeownership and make it possible for a greater number of people to afford a home purchase.

Other countries have similar incentives, according to a report from the National Association of Realtors. France, for example, allows a tax credit for the first 10 years of a mortgage. The United Kingdom allows a deduction on mortgage interest with no term limits.

Germany does not allow a mortgage-interest deduction, but there is a depreciation allowance during the first eight years after the home is purchased. This allows homeowners to get their feet on the ground and make the home more affordable during the critical early stages of paying the mortgage.

Imposing property taxes is another practice that is common throughout the world. It was in existence long before income tax was even considered, according to a report carried in NAR's "Real Estate Outlook" report.

The earliest known form of property tax was established in 12th century England. Later, in 1601, the Poor Relief Act created the first

This design is the for the life of Raleigh

By James McAlexander
Copley News Service

The remarkable Raleigh is a unique home tailored for the family that enjoys life. Pleasing to the eye, the brick and wood trim exterior, with a covered front porch and myriad of windows, exhibits an elegance in which any homeowner will take pride.

The admirable exterior, however, is only a prelude to the superb interior floor design. The gracious hosts may guide guests into the vaulted living room for coffee and conversation while savoring a toasty fire in the gas fireplace. Arched walk-throughs lead smoothly into the family room, with a wood fireplace on one side and dining room on the other. Plant shelves on top can add a touch of greenery.

Plenty of space and easy traffic-flow are integral parts of this design. A stairway takes you down to the unfinished basement, which could serve as the family game room or home office.

The walk-in kitchen, featuring a central eating bar, generous pantry, raised dishwasher, ample counter space and built-ins galore, make this a cook's delight. Serving meals either in the vaulted formal dining room or in a more relaxed atmosphere in the adjacent breakfast nook is a snap. Sunshine or not, a sliding glass door allows you to relish a Sunday brunch on the large, covered deck awash with skylights.

The exquisite master suite is practically a home within a home. With a covered porch and optional spa, it occupies one entire side. Amenities include a window seat, ideal for relaxing or reading a novel, large walk-in closets, entertainment center and security system.

The huge bathroom has an oversize tub, shower, separate toilet space and twin basins — all lit by overhead skylights.

A private entrance takes you to the porch.

At the opposite side of the home are two bedrooms, each with a cozy window seat and large closet. A full, sky-lit bathroom is conveniently located in the shared hallway.

A handy utility room, with an additional closet is accessible from the combination garage, shop and storage area, where pull-down stairs will take you to the modest attic.

fine VINES

By Jane Benskey
Special Writer

What could be more captivating than a lush wisteria vine overflowing with deep blue-violet blooms adorning the side of a house or a trumpet vine laden with rich apricot blossoms enveloping a curved archway entrance to a yard?

It's enough to take your breath away.

Fast-growing vines and climbing plants are some of Mother Nature's most beautiful plants, which makes them a welcome addition to any garden.

While most perennials and annuals put on their show close to the ground, vines and climbing plants rise to the occasion, if you will, with their bountiful growth and prodigious blooms, many of which offer the added bonus of an intoxicating fragrance.

Yet many vines need a little man-made help for them to put on their performance and that's where a trellis or an arbor can step in, acting in the role as a "supporting" player.

In a sense trellises and arbors serve a dual purpose. From a utilitarian standpoint, they are quite functional, supporting and guiding vines as they reach skyward.

They can also be used to create a private niche in a small city lot, screen an unpleasant view or provide shade for a sunny front porch.

But trellises and arbors also serve an artistic purpose, providing architectural interest and ornamentation to the garden, further punctuating the beauty of mother nature.

The soaring trellis behind Brighton Bar and Grill, a restaurant in downtown Brighton, is a good example of form and function.

Craig Heath, owner of Brighton Bar and Grill, had two purposes in mind when he had the huge trellis built about three years ago. Constructed at a slight angle from the wall, the lattice-work trellis screens, but does not preclude access to, the restaurant's electrical service, while at the same time serving as a backdrop for a lovely little perennial garden.

But it is the verdant clematis that has climbed to the top of the trellis that is the real show-stopper, Heath said.

"When the clematis blooms, there are blue and white flowers all over, and it is just beautiful," Heath said.

The trellis can take several forms, from something as simple as parallel lengths of wire or twine secured with eye bolts to a wall, a sheet of pressure treated wood lattice or even a rustic-looking frame constructed of wood branches and dried grapevines.

A trellis can also be elaborate, including ornate Victorian-inspired styles, handsome redwood trellis systems, which can be used to create custom configurations, or free-standing affairs to be set our in a garden.

Arbors, which can be used to define an entrance way to a yard, to set off a lovely view, or create an lovely spot to sit, can also be simple or elaborate, homemade or store bought.

Eric Meier of Meier Flowerland, a Brighton nursery and landscaping business, said arbors and trellises have become quite popular in recent years as gardeners seek to add unique elements to

No-fail perennials

GARDENING

When new gardeners ask my advice about establishing perennials in garden beds, borders or in containers, I always suggest a combination of some of my no-fail favorites — primroses, peonies, day lilies, chrysanthemums, Oriental poppies and roses — to provide abundant color from early spring to fall.

After all, perennials are the most durable and versatile of plantings. They are the mainstay, like dear friends — in other words, the "bones" of your garden. True perennials will return and grow year after year. It's possible to plant an entire garden of perennials with different bloom times and have a fabulous display of color from early May to late fall, longer in warmer climates.

The convenient thing about perennials is that when the flowers have finished blooming for the season and start to die back, just cut the plants down to a few inches and forget about them until next spring, when they will sprout and bloom once more. Perennials can literally last forever. Every two to four years they can be divided, providing you with even more plants. Fall is the best time to do this. Some perennials spread like wildfire.

I look forward to each spring so I can give some away to friends because if I don't, certain varieties, like astilbes, will become out of control and take over the entire border. So in the long run, they are economical, too.

Most perennials grow well in a sunny location, but there are some glorious ones for shadier spots. Many species of primrose, leadwort (pulmonaria), bleeding heart and columbine bloom in early spring in partial shade.

Epimedium is another little-known, shade-tolerant perennial with spurred flowers, and also makes an excellent ground cover. Later in spring, peach-leaved bellflower (campanula persicifolia), astilbe and hosta species (mainly grown for their attractive foliage) will thrive in shady conditions.

No matter what problem areas you have to deal with, there are perennials that will grow and bloom beautifully in them. Even damp areas with running streams can be ideal habitats for a wonderful range of perennial bog plants.

Pointers for successful perennials

Remember that perennials are easy and are the backbone of your flower garden. There are enough varieties to keep your garden in bloom all summer.

■ Always have some no-fail favorites such as primroses, peonies, day lilies, chrysanthemums, poppies and roses. These will supply color all summer long.

■ When perennials die back in the fall, cut them back to a few inches. Thin them every two to four years. When thinning, remember that younger, outer plants will be more healthy than older, center plants.

■ Most perennials like full sun. Lupin, peonies, phlox, columbine and roses are examples. For shady spots, try primrose, leadwort, bleeding heart, columbine (again), epimedium, bellflower, astilbe or the hosta species. For wet areas, try Siberia and Japanese irises, marsh marigolds, globeflower and watercress.

■ Buy plants for your climate, avoid color clashes and put taller species toward the back. Thin in the fall, fertilize the ground and mulch for winter protection.

official government rating system for property taxation

The idea of those early plans was to finance local government expenditures in a way that would take funds only from those wealthy enough to afford property, thus relieving the poor from the burden of supporting local governments.

Now, almost all countries assess property taxes in some form to support governments. Sweden is one of the few nations that has a national tax on property. The government has set the rate of 1.5 percent of the assessed property value.

However, new homes in Sweden are excluded from the tax for the first five years. And for the next five years, the rate is only 0.75 percent. This rating schedule is designed to encourage families to upgrade their residence.

Canada is taking a progressive approach to encourage homeownership. Several provinces have enacted or introduced tax-related legislation that will create incentives for prospective homeowners and those who want to renovate an older home.

British Columbia exempts first-time home buyers from paying the property transfer tax on their home. Manitoba has developed a renovation program allowing a $1,000 refund when homeowners spend more than $5,000 on renovations on a house valued at less than $100,000 that is more than 20 years old.

"Homeowners have usually budgeted around their financial means — sometimes for years ahead — in order to afford a home," the NAR report concluded. "The decision to become a homeowner is often made on the assumption that tax exemptions and deductions will be available.

"Therefore, the removal of these homeowner benefits would cause extreme financial strain on many people around the world who wish to own their own home. It is imperative that governments recognize the importance of homeownership in both the financial and social sense."

Q. Is title insurance coverage in a home purchase transaction really worth its cost?

A. I passed that question along to real estate professionals via a computer on-line system. Here's what one Realtor said:

"Like any insurance, title insurance always seems to cost too much. Until one suffers an uninsured loss, that is.

"I'm now working with an unfortunate lady who has suffered such a loss. It's causing a terrible sequence of problems for her. Yes, title insurance is necessary. Of course, it always seems to cost too much."

Q. What is the real estate organization called RESPRO?

A. RESPRO — Real Estate Services Providers Council — is a growing organization set up to encourage federal and state legislation and regulations that help businesses provide and market products and services to home buyers.

The group works with Congress, state legislatures and federal and state regulators to achieve their goal. The RESPRO board of directors recently voted to authorize state and local chapters across the country.

Color your garden with no-fail perennials

Choose such plants carefully and be aware of just how big some can grow.

Select plants for continual flowering and avoid color clashes, just as you would for a border. Some irises, including Siberia and Japanese varieties, will naturalize along the edges of streams and ponds. Others that will thrive in a moist environment are marsh marigolds, globeflower and the water-loving edible watercress. Lupin, peonies, phlox, columbine and roses, to name a few, will be happiest in full sun.

Before buying perennials, consider the climate you live in. Call your local nursery to check plant labels to see if a plant can survive in your area. Select plants of different heights and plan to plant the taller ones in the back.

Perennials should always be divided when dormant either before or after flowering. If a plant is lifted during its active growth period, it will most likely wilt and die because of the extensive root disturbance.

Generally speaking, perennials that bloom in spring or summer are best divided in late summer or early fall. At that time of the year it's most important that the plants have a couple of months to get established before winter sets in. If your perennials bloom late or if you have an early winter, separate them during their dormancy in spring.

So now that you know when to divide, let's talk about how to divide those perennials. Here are some basic steps

1. Cut the dying tops back to 3 to 4 inches.

2. With a garden spade, dig up the whole clump you wish to divide

3. With a sharp instrument, divide the clump so that each group has several healthy roots.

4. The outer roots of most perennials are the healthiest and should be selected and favored over old center ones

5. Do not plant all of the plants in the same area. The old soil should be properly fertilized by applying bone meal and other organic material needed to enliven the soil

6. Place the new plants the same depth as the original ones Day lilies like to be fully in the ground while irises do best when partially exposed.

7. Be sure the hole is large enough so that the roots can expand correctly.

8. Water thoroughly and apply a light covering of straw mulch for winter protection Remember, a little bit of fall care for your perennials will go a long way in producing glorious blooms

My last suggestion is don't be afraid to experiment with plants you've never heard of Some you might want to try are artemisia, astilbe, aster, bleeding heart, coreopsis, dianthus, day lilies, hosta, iris, lavender, lupine, chrysanthemum, phlox, sedum shasta daisy and vinca

Hanging lamp is a very collectible item

ANTIQUES

By Anne McCollam
Copley News Service

Q. This leaded glass hanging lamp belonged to my grandmother. My mother told me that it hung in their dining room as long as she could remember. I have had it since the 1950s. It is in perfect condition. Could you please tell me what it is worth?

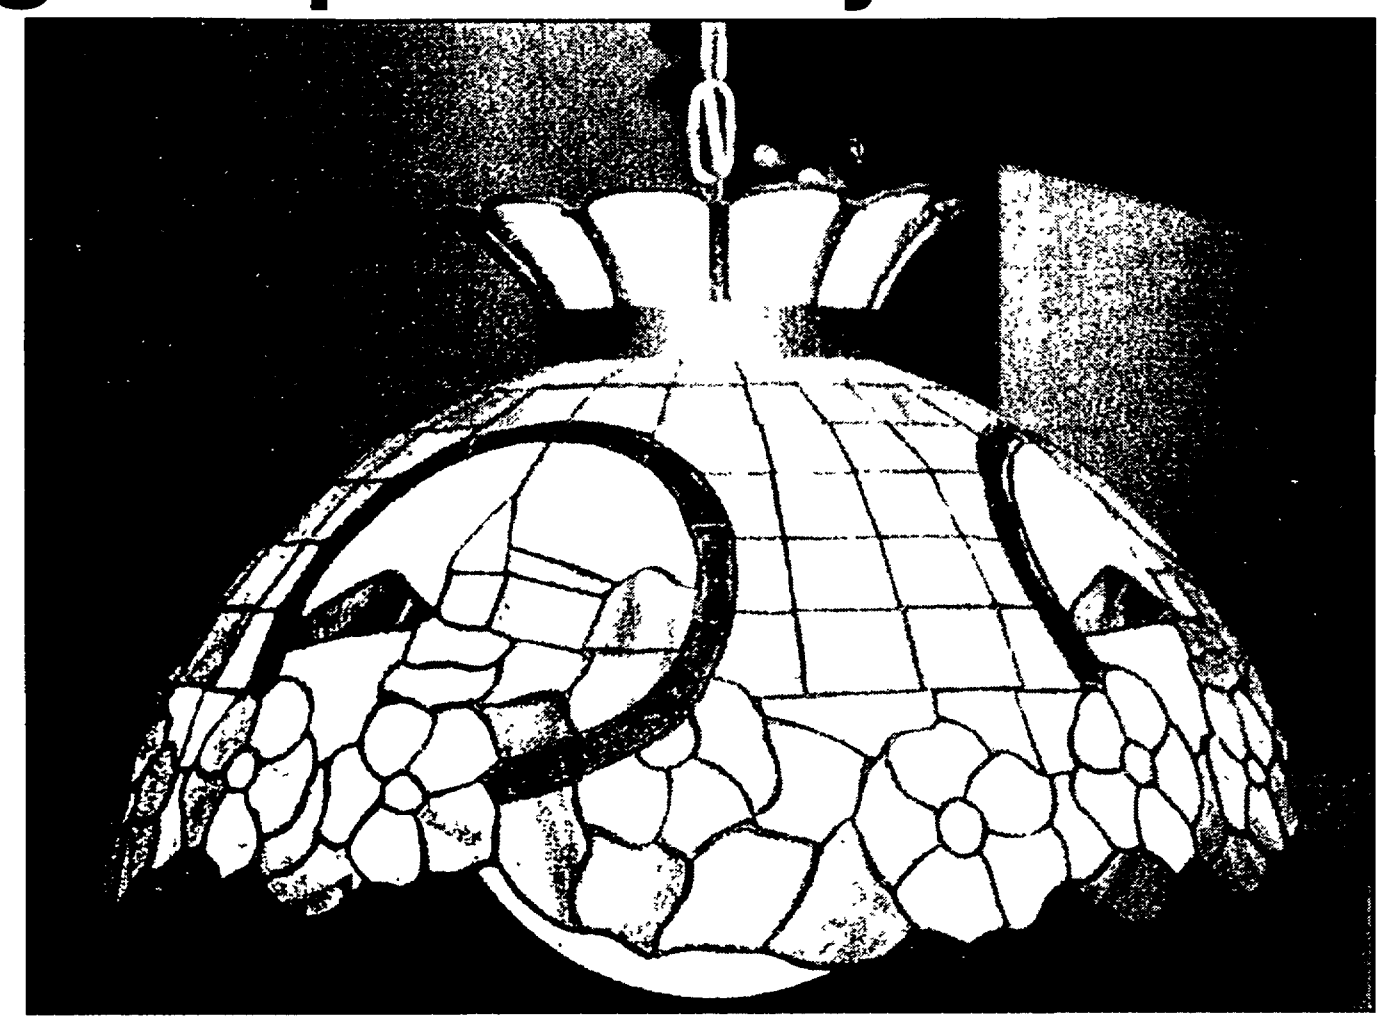
A. Leaded glass hanging lamps were made by numerous manufacturers and not always marked. They were made by hand, which would allow for varying sizes of glass and lead. Your lamp was made in the early 1900s and is very collectible. It would probably be worth $500 to $550.

Q. Enclosed is the mark on the bottom of a pottery jardiniere. It is 8 inches high and decorated with a picture of an American Indian wearing a full headdress. I would appreciate any information you can give me on this piece.

A. Your jardiniere was made by the National China Co., East Liverpool, and Salineville, Ohio. They were in business from 1899 to 1931 and produced dinnerware, jugs and vases. This mark is known to have been used on majolica. Your jardiniere was made circa 1900. It would probably be worth $100 to $125.

Q. I have a brass plated sconce that has a mirror and holds two candles. The height is 12 inches and the diameter is 10 inches. On the back it is marked "Tiffany & Co." When was it made and what is its value?

A. "Tiffany & Co." is the mark used by the jewelry store. It is easily confused with that of glass designer Louis C. Tiffany. Your sconce was made in the mid-1900s. Its value would probably be $225 to $235.



This leaded glass hanging lamp was made in the early 1900s and is worth about $500 to $550.

Q. Could you provide any information on a pair of porcelain lamps that I have? They are white with gold trim and stand 25 inches high. The shades are porcelain lithopanes. When lighted, pictures of people dressed in 17th century costumes appear on the shades. Each lamp is marked with a crown above a shield and the number "1817." They are in mint condition.

A. Lithopanes have porcelain in varying degrees of thickness which create scenes in relief when held to the light. Your lamps were made by Von Schierholz's Porcelain Manufactory, Plaue, Thuringia, Germany. The number is a mold number. This mark was used from 1967 to 1972. The pair of lamps would probably be worth $165 to $185.

Q. I have a matching teapot, creamer and sugar bowl that belonged to my grandmother. She lived in Cleveland and died in 1952. I have no idea how long she had this set. On the bottom they are marked "Hall — Made in U.S.A." Each piece is a bright emerald green with gold trim. They look as though they were never used. Can you tell me the era and something about the manufacturer and the value of my tea set?

A. Your tea set was made by Hall China Co., East Liverpool, Ohio. It has been in business from 1903 to the present. They were large manufacturers of dinnerware and teapots. Owner Robert T. Hall had a goal to produce a single fired glaze that was lead free, nonporous and craze proof. The only information he had was that the single fire process had been used during the Ming Dynasty.

Persistence and determination paid off in 1911. Pieces fired at 2,400 degrees F came out of the kiln hard and nonporous. Your tea set was made in the early 1900s. The value of the teapot, sugar bowl and creamer would probably be $90 to $95.

Fine vines for growing

their gardens.

"They (gardeners) like to be different than the Jones', so arbors and trellises are definitely picking up," Meier said.

Meier recommended that when buying an arbor or trellis to select one constructed of a good quality materials for increased durability and longevity.

If choosing a wood constructed product, Meier suggested bypassing anything made of pine, going instead for cedar. Because of its bug resistant and rot resistant qualities, Meier said cedar will last "about 10 times longer" than something constructed of pine.

Other materials to look for include redwood, copper, galvanized or plastic coated steel, steel tubing with an enamel finish or PVC.

Good sources for arbors and trellises include garden centers, nurseries, lumberyards and mail-order gardening catalogs.

With an arbor, Meier said it is very important to secure it to the ground to prevent toppling of the arbor during blustery weather or from the weight of the vines.

"One way or the other, whatever it takes, either you cement them in or cement stakes and nail it to the stakes, the arbor should be secured to the ground," Meier said.

When trellises are mounted to walls, Meier suggested leaving a gap of at least one inch between the wall and the trellis to protect the plant.

Use twist ties, string even cut up pieces of old nylons to secure the vine to the trellis or arbor, and secure the vines loosely to protect the stems.

Some of the plants Meier suggested for arbors and trellises include perennials like wisteria, trumpet vine, climbing roses and clematis.

Meier said that while climbing roses are a particularly popular choice, they take more care, but he added, "When it is done right, you will have one show. They will be gorgeous."

Other choices include annuals like morning glories, sweet pea, moonflower, chickabiddy and scarlet running bean, which grows quickly and can often cover a surface in one season.

Whatever you choose, learn as much as possible about the proper planting, care and maintenance of the plants to insure a higher degree of success.

Much like the rest of your garden, also plan on spending a bit of time maintaining the plants on your arbor or trellis if you really want them to look their best.

By spending that extra time, Meier said, "Your rewards will be fantastic."

Tarek's gives a good cut, spares wallet

By SCOTT DANIEL
Staff Writer

It's hard to find a good hair stylist.

Abu-Ghazaleh began in the business 10 years ago as a stylist. He worked for several different salons, including ones in Northville and Novi.

It didn't take long for him to fig-

Pros and cons of joint ownership

Money Management

Deciding how to hold your property is an important estate planning step. Joint ownership not only determines what happens to your property upon your death and its vulnerability to creditors, but also how you can use it during your lifetime. The Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants explains the various types of joint ownership and the pros and cons of each.

RIGHTS OF SURVIVORSHIP

The most common form of joint ownership is known as joint tenancy with rights of survivorship. This form of ownership is most often used between spouses, but it is available to others as well. With joint tenancy, two or more people own equal shares of the property. It doesn't matter who owned the property originally, or how much each co-owner contributed to the acquisition of it. For estate planning purposes, when you own property as joint tenants with rights of survivorship, the property automatically bypasses probate and passes to the surviving owner(s) at your death. This is so, regardless of what your will says.

This can have unintended ramifications. Suppose, for example, that an elderly widow opens a joint account with her son so he can help the widow manage her finances. If the widow dies and the joint account has rights of survivorship, the son will automatically inherit all jointly held assets, even if her will specified that the property be equally divided among her children.

When a husband and wife own assets as joint tenants with rights of survivorship, only one-half of the value of the jointly held assets is included in e estate of the first to die. As long as both spouses are U.S. citizens, the entire property passes to the surviving spouse free of estate tax. Upon the survivor's death, however, the entire estate will be subject to tax, which may result in a large tax bill for the estate's heirs. For this reason, when large estates are involved, it can be beneficial for each spouse to own some property separately.

When property is owned jointly with anyone other than a spouse, different rules apply. In such cases, the entire value of the property is assumed to belong to the first to die, and is included in his or her gross estate for estate tax purposes, unless the survivor contributed part of the property.

TENANTS BY THE ENTIRETY

Some states recognize tenancy by the entirety, a form of ownership available only to married couples which is similar to joint tenancy, except that each partner must have the permission of the other spouse to sell his or her share of the property. Property owned this way provides protection against creditors because one spouse generally cannot be forced to sell tenancy by the entirety property to satisfy a debt that is the sole responsibility of the other.

TENANTS IN COMMON

Tenancy in common refers to the ownership arrangement among several unrelated parties and is typically applicable to business partners, siblings, and people in a second marriage who want to retain control of a stake in the property. Tenants in common may involve any number of tenants, including a spouse, and any kind of property. Additionally, these tenants can own equal or unequal shares of the property and sell their interest without consulting the others – unless they have a previous agreement in writing that specifies otherwise.

There are no survivorship rights. When one of the tenants in common dies, his or her interest goes to that person's heir rather than passing automatically to the co-owners. For estate tax purposes, the deceased person's share is based upon the fair market value of his or her proportional interest at death.

COMMUNITY PROPERTY

In the nine community property states – Arizona, California, Idaho, Louisiana, Nevada, New Mexico, Texas, Washington, and Wisconsin – everything a couple acquires during a marriage (with the exception of gifts and inheritances) becomes community property and is considered to be equally owned by both spouses. When one partner dies, the income tax basis of both spouses' interest in every piece of community property is increased or decreased to the fair market value at the time of death. This contrasts with non-community property states.

CPAs say it's important to consider how your property should be titled and how ownership will affect its disposition to co-owners and ultimately, your heirs.

Novi firm to build in Detroit

The City of Detroit and Crosswinds Communities of Novi have announced the construction of a new residential community in the Brush Park area of Detroit.

"We are pleased with the cooperation and support that we have received from the City of Detroit," said Bernard Glieberman, president of Crosswinds Communities Inc. "We have decided to call the community 'Woodward Place at Brush Park' because it captures the essence of our vision of a new Detroit."

Woodward Place will be located on a 31-acre parcel of land situated between Woodward and Beaubien, north of I-75. It is the first for sale housing development in the lower Woodward Corridor in over 60 years.

"The home elevations are a Victorian style specifically designed to complement Brush Park's architectural environment," said Glieberman. The current site study shows 562 town and terrace homes in 42 buildings. Base prices for the condominiums will start from $89,990. The total value of the anticipated development will exceed $75 million.

Crosswinds Communities will be proceeding with a marketing study to evaluate the public's response to the homes. Site work is scheduled to start in the winter of 1995 and homes will be ready for occupancy in the fall.

According to the National Association of Home Builders, residential construction stimulates the economy directly by generating jobs, wages and tax revenues and indirectly creating demand for goods and services. NAHB estimates the construction of 562 units will generate 1,179 worker-years of employment in construction and construction-related industries; $34.1 million in wages; and $18.6 million in combined federal, state and local tax revenues and fees.

He always wanted his own salon

ure out he wanted to be his own boss, however.

"I always wanted to have my own salon," said Tarek. "I didn't want to work for anybody else. I wanted to work for myself."

He just wasn't sure where that salon would be.

Abu-Ghazaleh and his family have owned the building for about six years. But he came close to spreading his wings at a different site.

"I always wanted to own my own salon," Abu-Ghazaleh said. "But I didn't know if it would be Northville, Dearborn or Las Vegas."

The Dearborn resident came close to going to Nevada, but staying near home "made more sense."

"I wanted to be close to home and my family," he added.

Nevada's loss appears to be Northville's gain.

For very reasonable prices, Abu-Ghazaleh provides customers with a first-rate cut and style.

The business owner currently does all of the cutting, too. Guys can get the latest look for $10 and the ladies pay just $17 for a cut.

Abu-Ghazaleh has taken care to make sure the cut is a pleasant experience. He's enhanced the cutting areas by removing all of the combs, blow dryers and scissors from in front of the mirrors.

Instead, all of his tools are behind the patron in a cart especially designed for the salon.

Besides cuts, Abu-Ghazaleh does perms of shapes ($25-$50), tints ($25) and highlights ($50-$60). He said he will be adding other services such as manicuring in the coming months.

Tarek's salon is open Tuesday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m., Saturday 9 to 6 and Sunday from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. For more information, call 380-1225.

Ski preview

What's up when you're going downhill

As the weather begins to cool, ski areas and resorts across Michigan are gearing up for winter. According to the Michigan Ski Industries Association (MSIA), the early cold snap this fall has turned attention from boats to the ski slopes.

"This year there is plenty of change," says Jim Bartlett, president of MSIA and general manager of Nubs Nob Ski Area. Ski facilities across Michigan are adding chair lifts, ski runs, cross-country trails and improvements to their resort and lodging facilities. Bartlett adds that the snowboarding phenomenon has caught on strong in Michigan and the ski areas are making sure that "shredders" are well served.

Here is a brief list of what's up when you go down Michigan's ski slopes and trails this winter.

Apple Mountain in Freeland boasts a new four-person chairlift.

Boyne Mountain in Boyne Falls added "Boyneland," an 18-acre beginner slope and a new triple chairlift to service their beginner area.

A new warming lodge at the North Peak has opened at Boyne Highlands in Harbor Springs.

Caberfae Peaks Ski Resort in Cadillac added a new beginner slope adjacent to the base lodge area. They also widened the North Peak face, creating more skiing terrain and added a new parking lot. A unique service Caberfae is introducing is "Express Rental Reservation", which allows ski equipment renters to call in advance to reserve their equipment and have it ready upon arrival.

Torch-lit trails will brighten the night for the first time at Cross-Country Ski Headquarters in Roscommon.

Crystal Mountain near Thompsonville has expanded its snowmaking operations and introduced a new ski program, Crystal Critters, for the five- and six-year-old set. For snowboarders, a new "Boarder Zone," mined with bonkin' barrels was added.

Skiers will be able to relax in 22 new Jacuzzi suites nestled in the trees at Marsh Ridge Resort in Gaylord this winter.

HEAD FOR THE HILLS— Skiers at Boyne Highlands near Harbor Springs will enjoy a new warming lodge at the North Peak.

Mt. Brighton improved "The Challenge" ski slope and added boots and skis to the Junior ski department and also more snowboard equipment.

Mt. Holly added to its snowmaking capabilities and purchased additional grooming equipment. You'll also be able to try the new, wider style skis at Mt. Holly, as they were included in the ski area's arsenal of rentals.

For the enjoyment of this year's visitors, Nubs Nob Ski Area expanded its cross-country terrain and added more snowmaking power. Also added is the new Nub's Cubs Daycare Facility and a seasonal locker room.

Shanty Creek, near Traverse City, has widened two slopes on Schuss Mountain, "Blue Skidoo" and "Sapporo." Also, the vertical incline on "Blue Skidoo," the steepest slope at Schuss, was increased. Schuss Village also has a new cross-country ski center and a steeper, deeper half pipe for snowboarders.

In the Leelanau Peninsula, Sugar Loaf Resort near Cedar has expanded the children's playground "Terrain Garden". Sugar Loaf's "Snowboard Park" also has improvements, including additional rails, barrels and a telephone pole to bash, bonk and jump. (Don't worry, Shredders, the black Volkswagen Beetle will be back, half covered with snow and ready to launch!) If that's not adventuresome enough, Sugar Loaf added "Glade Runner," a slope that twists between the trees on the back side of the mountain. For after-ski fun, there's a new indoor 18-hole miniature golf course.

More cafeteria seating, more ski rental equipment and more seasonal lockers means a more accommodating mountain at Timber Ridge Ski Area in Gobles.

Treetops Sylvan Resort in Gaylord has something new for the threesome on the slopes, they've added a three-person chairlift on the front side.

THE FAMILY CLUB FOR ALL SEASONS

There's 'white gold' in them thar hills!

For the second winter the Michigan Ski Industries Association (MSIA) will produce a card that allows you to ski at 22 different ski areas for just $129.

Called the MSIA White Gold Card, purchasers are entitled to ski one time at each of the participating ski areas across the state during the 1995/96 ski season. Purchasers will also be entitled to one free ski tune-up (edge sharpen and wax) at participating MSIA ski retailers.

"The White Gold Card is an extremely exceptional value," says Jim Bartlett, president of the MSIA and general manager at Nubs Nob in Harbor Springs. "If you paid for a lift ticket at each of these ski areas and brought your skis in for a tune-up, you would be spending about $640."

The cards look like a credit card, divided into 23 squares. Each ski area is assigned to a square and one square is designated for the ski tune-up. The purchaser takes the White Gold Card to the ski area's lift ticket window, where the square corresponding to that ski area is punched out.

White Gold Card skiers are allowed to ski one time at each ski area, midweek or weekend. The card is valid for the entire ski season, except for Dec. 23, 1995 through Jan. 1, 1996.

Participating ski areas include: Apple Mountain, Bittersweet, Boyne Highlands, Boyne Mountain, Caberfae Peaks, Cannonsburg, Cross-Country Ski Headquarters, Crystal Mountain, The Homestead, Indianhead Mountain, Marsh Ridge, Mt. Brighton, Mt. Holly, Nubs Nob, Pine Knob, Riverview Highlands, Shanty Creek Resort, Snow Snake, Sugar Loaf Resort, Swiss Valley, Timber Ridge and Treetops Sylvan.

To get the tune-up, White Gold Card purchasers must take their skis to one of the participating ski shops where the designated areas on the card will be punched out. The following retailers will honor the ski tune-up: Bill & Paul's Sporthaus, Grand Rapids; Don Thomas Sporthaus, Bloomfield Hills; Don Orr Ski Haus, Traverse City; Nichol's North Ski & Sports, Inc., Waterford; Nichol's Ski & Sports, Inc., Dearborn; Sun & Snow Sports, Inc., Ann Arbor; Sunrise Sports, Flint; The Ski Loft, Charlotte; and Bavarian Village Stores in Troy, Bloomfield Hills, Birmingham, Farmington Hills, Novi, Traverse City, Grand Rapids, Cedar, East Lansing, Mt. Clemens, Grosse Pointe Woods, Ann Arbor, Dearborn Heights and Flint.

The White Gold Cards will be available to purchasers at the following MSIA ski retailers: Bill & Paul's Sporthaus, Grand Rapids; Don Thomas Sporthaus, Bloomfield Hills; Don Orr Ski Haus, Traverse City; Freestyle Sports, East Lansing; KP's Ski Gear, Interlochen; Lee's Sports & Sportswear, Kalamazoo; Nichol's North Ski & Sports, Inc., Waterford; Nichol's Ski & Sports, Inc., Dearborn; Reliable Sport & Ski House, Holland; Sunrise Sports, Flint; Swiss Valley Ski Shop, Jones; The Ski Loft, Charlotte; Sun & Snow Sports, Inc., Ann Arbor; and Bavarian Village Stores, Troy, Bloomfield Hills, Birmingham, Farmington Hills, Novi, Traverse City, Grand Rapids, Cedar, East Lansing, Mt. Clemens, Grosse Pointe Woods, Ann Arbor, Dearborn Heights and Flint.

They will also be available at the Detroit Ski Show, held Oct. 20 through Oct. 22, at the Novi Expo Center in Novi.

The MSIA is the trade organization for the ski industry in Michigan, including ski areas, ski shops, ski manufacturers and related businesses. The MSIA developed the White Gold Card as a fundraising endeavor. Production of the card is limited to 400. Bartlett says the White Gold Card sold quickly last year and he expects brisk sales again this season.

NOW THERE'S MORE THAN SKIING AT SEARCHMONT

The scenery north of Sault Ste. Marie Ontario is astounding! The oldest rock in the world... the largest fresh water lake in the world. Geologists have estimated the Searchmont range at three billion years old. No wonder life takes on a greater dimension. Your drive up the Goulais River Valley towards Searchmont Resort is a harmonious blend of lakes, streams and forested vales. Westerly winds warmed by the waters of Lake Superior drop deep, powdery drifts on Searchmont's 18 slopes. Truly, your skiing adventure begins long before you've buckled a boot.

The winter welcome mat is out early. If you stay at any of Searchmont's approved accommodations there's FREE SKIING on weekends from November 23rd to December 3rd. You get to ski up to 4 people to a room for FREE. It's easy! Hotels issue ski vouchers daily authorizing guests' ski privileges.

Adult lift ticket prices for the rest of the season are $28 for a full day, $19 dollars for half day. Children 6 to 12 years of age pay $18.50 for a full day and $10 for a half day.

You'll ski around twin peaks oriented from a western to a south eastern direction in Canada's pre-Cambrian rock formation. It's different than typical Midwestern skiing, not what flatlanders experience closer to home. More varied terrain, longer runs and a distinct feeling of adventure are the results.

For those who like to split their day between alpine and nordic, the cross country trails are accessed directly from the lodge and are located mostly in forested terrain. Even if it's windy, you're snug and comfortable as you cruise through the Goulais River Forest. Stop as often as you please to observe the wildlife and inhale the pure mountain air. Ski to the top of the plateau and then attack the one mile descent trail. Exhilarating and quiet under Searchmont's big sky.

Since Searchmont considers itself, above all, a family place...dedicated to outdoor enjoyment they've expanded their services and facilities to include a whole range of breathtaking family activities a large skating oval adjacent to the lodge, snowshoeing and opening December 18, a new snow tubing park. Tube lift ticket prices for adults will be $12 for a full day, $9 for a half day. Children's prices - $9 for a full day, $7 half day. Your tube lift ticket includes a vinyl covered tube for sliding and unlimited pulls up the lift each hour. Each time you get to choose from one of several chutes which guide you through a thrilling descent to a safe run out and stop at the bottom.

Searchmont Resort is always worth the trip. This month's issue of Skiing Magazine rates it second in the top five Midwestern resorts. The article states "Skiing at Searchmont, Ontario, truly feels like skiing on a mountain , not just a hill."

The city of Sault Ste. Marie, where most visitors stay is just one hour north of the Mackinac Bridge, and Searchmont is 30 minutes from the city. In a friendly sort of way it's "two pops past Petoskey", well worth the time on Interstate 75. At the mountain you'll ski longer runs, more varied terrain and spend less time in lift lines than most "BIG" Midwestern resorts.

Learning how's easy

For the fourth year, ski areas across the state have teamed up with Michigan McDonald's restaurants to offer an exciting and affordable introduction to the sport of skiing. This year the program also includes lessons in snowboarding and cross-country skiing in addition to downhill skiing.

Called Discover Michigan Skiing, the program includes a 90-minute beginner lesson, ski or snowboard rental equipment and an all-day beginner-area ski lift pass or cross-country trail pass. Twenty-three ski facilities throughout the state are offering the package, which will be honored from Jan. 2 through Jan. 31, 1996.

The price for the Discover Michigan Skiing program—downhill or cross-country skiing—is $25 for adults and $15 for children seven to 14 years old. The snowboard price is $35, regardless of age.

"We developed this program to encourage people to give skiing a try," says Jim Bartlett, MSIA president and general manager of Nubs Nob Ski Area in Harbor Springs. Bartlett stresses Discover Michigan Skiing is for beginners only. "Participants usually learn enough in our 90-minute lesson to enjoy the slopes or cross-country trails for the rest of the day on their own," he adds.

The lesson normally covers basic maneuvering on skis or snowboards: stopping, turning, riding the lifts, ski-slope or trail etiquette and getting up from a fall.

FIRST LESSON— Beginners of all ages can sign up for lessons at Nubs Nob and 22 other ski facilities as part of the Discover Michigan Skiing program.

To sign up, interested beginners must have a Discover Michigan Skiing Value Voucher. They will be available in December at Michigan McDonald's restaurants and also at participating MSIA retail ski stores and ski facilities throughout the state. The voucher lists all ski facilities involved in the program. Participants choose the place they wish to visit and then must call to pre-register at least two days before taking advantage of the program. Ski-facility personnel will give instructions on what to wear, when to meet and where to go. Bartlett suggests calling as early as possible, as many lesson times fill quickly.

As a special bonus, everyone who completes the program receives a coupon valid for $20 off the purchase of $100 or more in ski-related merchandise at participating MSIA retail ski shops.

Ski show greets season

Novi, Michigan—

A giant ski swap, ski and snowboard movies, fashion shows and exhibits from ski resorts, manufacturers and retailers from across the nation will be ready to pump up ski enthusiasts this fall at the Michigan Ski Show '95.

Held Friday, Oct. 20 through Sunday, Oct. 22 at the Novi Expo Center in Novi, the event is sponsored by the Michigan Ski Industries Association (MSIA). Jim Bartlett, MSIA president and general manager at Nubs Nob Ski Area in Harbor Springs, says the show will be the premier pre-season ski event in Michigan.

"Michigan's ski shops will showcase their latest equipment and fashions with great ski show specials. Ski areas from across the country and Canada will be there to provide you with vacation information. Representatives from ski equipment manufacturers will show off all that's new in skis, boots and bindings and ski and snowboard movies will get you in the mood to hit the slopes and trails," Bartlett adds.

A large ski swap, hosted by southeast Michigan ski retailers, will guarantee great buys on ski clothing and equipment. Bartlett encourages attendees to bring their used skis. Admission to the swap is free with paid admission to the show.

In addition, there is an in-line skate demonstration and try-out area and at scheduled times throughout the weekend, there will be snowboard equipment clinics and ski shop talks with topics such as sharpening and waxing skis, bindings adjustments and other pertinent information.

The Novi Expo Center is located at Novi Road, just south of I-96, across the expressway from Twelve Oaks Mall in Novi.

Michigan Ski Show '95 hours are Friday, Oct. 20, 4 p.m. to 10 p.m.; Saturday, Oct. 21, 10 a.m. to 9 p.m.; Sunday, Oct. 22, 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Admission is $6. For more information, call the Novi Expo Center at 810-348-5600.

Ski fashions put you in starring role

Just for fun, imagine that Hollywood is casting a new movie about skiing at your favorite ski area and you can try out for any role. Part of the fun is finding out what you'll be wearing and there are great new styles to choose from.

What will your part be? The romantic lead? The adventuresome telemarker? The daring shredder? The male co-star? Let's pretend!

Ski clothing has to meet certain requirements for safety and comfort. According to Deb Sigmann of Don Thomas Sporthaus in Bloomfield Hills, "Manufacturers try to marry the technical with fashion and make it functional." Ski clothes are play clothes and when you dress for skiing, you are dressing not only to keep warm but to have fun too.

Imagine, if you will, that "all the mountain is a stage" and that those who ski are actors on our set. Its time to join in!

Get off the casting couch and pop into wardrobe central at your local Michigan Ski Industries Association ski shop. Then it's off to the set, or slope. With certain concessions to function, i.e with weather, you can be whoever you want to be. What part will you play?

In this film the romantic lead required a Melanie Griffith type. Her ski outfit suits her personality. Beautiful and feminine on the outside but pretty dependable, too. Her wardrobe is by Bogner, with signature embroidery around the collar and cinching the waist. The colors are rich sophisticated tones including black and white. Other innovative fabrics include fleece in many different presentations, a crinkled melange (where the woof and warp are different colors) and ultrasuedes.

The scene is a perfect day for skiing. These outfits make a big impression while being water resistant, wind resistant and breathable, too.

The adventuresome telemarker is ready to be put to the test and the director is looking for a Jodie Foster type to play the part. She'll wear a technical outfit designed to take whatever the weather and conditions can dish out. Like Jodie, these suits are uncomplicated but multi-faceted professionals. They are made from high performance materials like Gore-tex, Super-Microft and Entrant.

When the scene is a blustery Michigan winter day, count on this outfit to be waterproof and windproof. These are no-nonsense designs with fresh colors. Karen Nichols-Stewart at Nichols Ski & Sports in Waterford and Dearborn says "Brights such as citrus orange, stoplight red and traffic sign yellow make for some exciting new skiwear colors."

When the scene switches to aprés ski, a myriad of trends in fabric, shape and style appear. The line between ski apparel and streetwear blurs as Courtney Cox (or perhaps this is you, if you are the sultry, sexy type) appears in deep colors and styles borrowed from high fashion designers. Coming full circle, designer Donna Karan has reintroduced down-baffled, puffy jackets and vests for streetwear and now they are new again for the ski slopes and resort wear.

Johnny Depp is up for the part as a shredder (snowboarder) in this movie but Kevin Costner wants the role, as snowboarding becomes more popular and mainstream. The demographics are moving forward to include 20- and 30-year-olds and Costner sees himself in that part. The look is noticeably brighter and bolder than ever, says Sigmann. Juliette Lewis will be in this scene, too, and she'll be wearing snowboard clothes that are more female specific (but not necessarily "feminine") then ever before.

Our movie also calls for a male co-star, a polished, technical skier - someone like Arnold Schwarzenegger will do fine. He'll wear lightweight, very functional clothing. Weight is key. Fleece works as a thermal barrier and as a fashion statement. Stretchy fleece does duty as an inner layer or as an expedition weight.

Technical outerwear is tough like Arnold. It's waterproof, windproof and breathable. If the scene is cold then these outside layers can really perform. They can be made as warm as necessary. The idea is to keep the warm air inside by preventing the cold air from invading the warm air space. These suits are tough, yet non restrictive.

There is a part for kids in this movie too, so don't leave yours "Home Alone." "The biggest mistake parents can make is overdressing their kids for the weather," says Sigmann. "They end up looking like the little kid in the movie The Christmas Story, all stuffed and unable to move."

There are wonderful choices in skiwear for the kids including soft and sweet "berber" textured fleece, decorated with little lambs, Easter Egg Pastels or Mickey Mouse motifs embroidered in unexpected spots. Some manufacturers are even adding growth features: sleeves and pant legs that can "morph" a suit practically into the next size. Most new kids clothing features the fabric attributes of the grown-up fashions while keeping that irresistible little kid look.

If none of the parts we've described here suit your style, there are still many roles left to be assigned. For me, I'll be one of the extras. I'll show up in last year's skiwear but before I go out there I'm investing in the best new thermal socks money can buy and new underwear (Patagonia's Capilene is one to count on) to keep me warm and dry. I'll also buy a funky new hat so I'll get noticed in the crowd.

To get in on the action, stop by a Michigan ski shop and check out the fashions. Then imagine yourself in one of the roles. Oh, while you're at it, also imagine great big drifts of powder, a bright, crisp winter day and freshly groomed trails of snow...

New equipment promises excitement

Ski shops across Michigan are bursting at the seams with exciting and innovative new equipment designed to make skiing more comfortable, safer and more fun than ever before.

The newest ski equipment for 1995 incorporates sophisticated materials borrowed from the aerospace and defense industries with special emphasis on lighter weight. Bob Thomas of Don Thomas Sporthaus in Bloomfield Hills is enthusiastic about a new downhill composite ski that was made in Michigan by Dave Goode, who designed the revolutionary skinny composite pole.

According to Thomas, "The new ski is half the weight of a conventional ski yet twice as strong. This new composite material is four times as strong as fiberglass, per weight."

Cap ski construction—where the top surface of the ski is actually a structural component of the ski—remains the direction that most ski and snowboards are taking. Rossignol has introduced new "dual tech" ski construction that combines both cap and traditional sandwich manufacturing methods.

Solomon takes cap construction a step farther with "Prolink," a term used to describe an ram built into the ski that regulates the small vibrations and large shocks. According to Ken Griffin of Nichols Ski & Sport in Waterford and Dearborn and board member of the Michigan Ski Industries Association, "These new skis offer greater snow contact, which gives the ski a smoother ride and makes it easier to turn."

Fat Boys—short, wide skis that look like a water ski—are also showing up on ski store racks. These appeal to deep powder or helicopter skiers. Another breakthrough is the hourglass ski, introduced first by Elan as the SCX. Bonnie Orr of the Don Orr Sporthaus in Traverse City says "they are more stable and the edges make turning easier."

Snow Skates, a ski boot with a ski bottom permanently attached to its sole, are hot with in-line skaters. "If you know how to rollerblade, using snow skates comes naturally," says Thomas. The skate looks like a ski boot attached to a tiny ski that only extends an inch or so over the front and back of the boot.

Rear entry ski boots, the rage five years ago, are now heading out the back door. You'll see them in beginner-level boots, where ease and warmth are the major considerations. For intermediate skiers on up, the mid entry boot - where the back opens up - is popular. The conventional four buckle overlap boot is also back en vogue.

SPACE AGE SKI— New, lightweight composite skis incorporate materials borrowed from the aerospace industry.

The emphasis on equipment designed specifically for females is probably the most important industry-wide trend. Among the innovations, a women's boot with a lower cuff that allows for a better fit around the calf

Women's skis are changing too. Cosmetics have always been important (the colors of the skis) but even more vital, manufacturers are truly gearing to meet the performance needs of women skiers. New skis are designed for the female's body, which is lighter in the torso and has a lower center of gravity.

Snowboards are the quickest growing segment on the current ski scene. They have come a long way from the first "snurfers," which were basically fat skis with ropes on the tip. Boards are shorter than before to allow more maneuverability. Some have "twin tips," i.e. tip and tail are the same, and step-in bindings.

As the sport matures, shops report that their customers are getting older too. While most "shredders" are still between 14 and 25, the sport is steadily creeping up into the 30- to 40-year-old age category. More girls are getting involved too.

While some boards are still dark and funky, cosmetics are also changing to appeal to a broader section of the population. The retro look is hot, with Art Deco designs predominating. However, some old colors, like orange, are new again. A Pro female board has moonscape design with a matching helmet.

"Free base" is the new direction

PERFORMANCE PLUS— Skis designed especially for a woman's lighter torso and lower center of gravity put the emphasis on increased performance.

Otsego Club emphasizes family

Jack Berry

Hidden Valley has been pretty much a hidden treasure in Michigan resort life but that's changing and, in a turnabout, it's golf that is fueling the skiing and opening up the resort.

Hidden Valley is just a few blocks east of downtown Gaylord on M-32. It began in 1939 as the Otsego Ski Club (it's in Otsego County) and was founded by Detroit steelman Donald McLouth. Its members were and still are from the top of the social register in the Grosse Pointes and Bloomfield Hills.

The resort has a new name now: The Otsego Club at Hidden Valley. "Ski" has been dropped as the resort puts an emphasis on four-season recreation with the acquisition of The Loon and The Lake golf courses at the south end of Gaylord and the planning of a new course to complement The Classic, the resort's original course.

There still is plenty of emphasis on skiing, however, with $1.5 million in ski-related improvements poured into the coming winter season and a drive to bring in new members, especially families.

A one-time family initiation fee cost $1,000 (it goes to $1,500 on Dec. 1). There is a $130 monthly fee and that covers unlimited skiing and unlimited greens fees for the entire family.

Hidden Valley has made an indelible stamp on Gaylord thanks to the resort's Tyrolean architecture — because of it, Gaylord merchants followed suit and "Tyroleanized" their storefronts. Alpenfest is the summer's biggest festival and Gaylord calls Pontresina, Switzerland, its sister city.

But for all the Tyrolean decorations, not that many people saw Hidden Valley's hidden valley. It's hidden from the road by the resort lodges but walk on the north side of the building and the land falls dramatically into the Sturgeon River Valley. All you see for miles and miles are trees.

Hidden Valley owner Keith Gornick, who spent summers and winter weekends at Hidden Valley when it was owned by his father, former Ford Motor Co. Whiz Kid Alan Gornick, was asked once how much property he owned.

Looking out across the valley to the horizon, Gornick, who has a good sense of humor as well as a whole lot of land, answered "Pretty much everything but the blue."

Actually it's 4,200 acres and with winter coming on, the green trees below the blue sky will be wrapped in white. To make sure there's plenty of it on the ski hills when Mother Nature doesn't provide it, Gornick doubled the resort's number of snowguns and spent $1.5 million just in snowmaking and grooming improvements.

A new run also was cut during the summer, raising the number to 19. They're served by five chairlifts and two rope tows. There's a competition half pipe for snow boarders and a snowboard camp. J.J. Collier, one of the top names in shredding, worked last winter's camp.

The accent always has been on family at Otsego which counts many multigenerational families among its 1,000 members.

"We see grandparents, parents and kids," said sales and marketing director John McClintock. "Kids learn to ski here. When they reach college, they go west to ski. But afterward, when they get married, settle down and start having their own children, we find them coming back because this has been such a wonderful experience for them."

For membership information, call 1-800-752-5510.

Boyne's gentle on beginners

Boyne Mountain area manager, Ed Grice and the rest of the Mountain crew have been busy on the lower section of Boyne Mountain preparing the lift line and clearing trees for a new 20-acre beginner area entitled, Boyneland.

The new slope is located adjacent to the beginner rope tow, stretching along the base of the Mountain Villa Condominiums. Boyneland will be serviced by it's own triple chair, especially designed for novice skiers. The lift will be slow-moving and easy to load and unload. It's great for lessons too, as students can sit between their instructor on the ride up.

The new triple chair is short in length, and will carry skiers approximately half-way up the Mountain. The unloading area is conveniently located next to Ramshead, a beginner slope located on the northern end of the ski area. At the top, skiers have a choice between the new Boyneland slope or skiing down the lower section of Ramshead slope. Ramshead is serviced by it's own slow-moving, four-passenger chairlift perfect for first time skiers and boarders.

NOVICE SKIERS WELCOME— Boyneland's gentle slopes and slow-moving lifts are designed to give first-timers a pleasureable experience.

According to Ed Grice, area manager, "Boyneland is extra wide and very gentle, with a subtle bend that winds skiers back to the triple chairlift at the bottom." The slope is entirely south facing, so it virtually guarantees good sun exposure throughout the day, which beginners will love," Grice added.

Beginners will have their own area to practice during night skiing too, as lights have been built for Boyneland. New water pipes and electricity have also been installed underground for snowmaking, to ensure the entire beginner area will be covered with a deep reliable base.

Providing first-time skiers and snowboarders with a pleasurable experience, and a wider variety of beginner terrain is the primary goal of management at Boyne Mountain reported Arthur Tebo, chief operating officer. "Boynes incredible grooming fleet will be working hard to ensure the new beginner area will have quality groomed snow surface all season," Tebo added.

The Skiers Service Building has recently been designed for total guest-service convenience. Now, skiers can purchase their lift tickets, schedule their lesson and rent ski equipment, all in one location. Once outside the building Boynelands' new chairlift is just a short distance away. There's plenty of flat terrain at the base area too, so it's easy for beginners and children to carry their equipment and step into their bindings.

When it comes time to warm-up and take a break, there's cafeteria food service, bathrooms and a video arcade in the Skiers Service Center. The capital investment and improvements were designed to enhance the overall mountain experience, while increasing the value and fun for those who are new to this wonderful sport.

Equipment promises excitement in snowboard bindings, which simply means that they took off the base. The concept allows the rider to "bond" with the board. Safety is another subject that has been addressed in Michigan's ski shops and ski equipment for kids should always include helmets. According to Bob Thomas, "Kids just put these on without an argument since they are accustomed to wearing them for biking and other sports. They think they are cool." The helmets come in flashy colors and kid-pleasing styles.

Griffin adds that with al the new equipment innovations, skiing and snowboarding are sports that just about anyone can enjoy.

FUN FOR ALL— New equipment innovations make skiing and snowboarding sports that just about anyone can enjoy.

Dressing for success in changeable clime

There's a chill in the air . . . evenings are crisp, and mornings are cool. Skiers are counting the days 'til the snow really flies, and ski season 1995/96 is underway.

While the cold weather is a friend to skiers, it can quickly turn foe if a skier is not properly dressed for the elements. Lynne Bay, merchandise manager at Don Thomas Sporthaus in Bloomfield Hills, Michigan, stresses the importance of "dressing for success" on the ski slopes. "Dressing in layers, or 'layering' as it's commonly called, is the best way to regulate body temperature, especially in constantly changing conditions."

All too often, a skier will awaken to a blizzard, and before the ski lifts shut down for the day, it's 30 degrees and sunny. Too late for comfort—he's overdressed and roasting—an early ending to what could have been paradise on the ski slopes.

The layering concept offers several advantages to this sorry scenario. Layering lends itself to versatility. It not only packs well getting to the slopes, but keeps you comfortable when you're there, by allowing you to easily add and subtract clothing with the change of temperature.

The three basics of layering start from the inside and move out. There is the Base Layer, which rests against the skin; the Insulating Layer, or "middleman;" and finally the Outer Layer, or shell.

"Each layer is equally critical in making the concept function properly," cautions Lynne. The layering concept was truly brought into the limelight and proven to function by PATAGONIA, a popular outdoor clothing manufacturer available at Don Thomas Sporthaus.

PATAGONIA relies on the use of Capilene as their Base Layer, or as it's commonly known, "long underwear," Capilene enables the Base Layer to effectively wick moisture away from the body, to help keep a skier warm and dry (the mission of the first layer). Capilene by PATAGONIA is available in a variety of weights to suit a broad range of uses.

The second layer, or Insulating Layer, comes in a large variety of styles from vests to pullovers. This layer keeps the heat in and the cold out by trapping air between fibers. PATAGONIA's Synchilla pile (a fleece) is durable, dries quickly and remains warm even when wet. Synchilla, like Capilene, helps in the process of wicking away moisture from the body. PATAGONIA, in its ongoing concern for the environment, uses recycled plastic beverage containers to spin fibers into Synchilla pile...you may be wearing what you once drank from!

The final layer of this concept is the outer Layer, or shell, and is a key component in guarding against the elements. Shell fabrics should repel water, block wind, and allow the inner layers to breathe.

"Shells are available in many styles and colors...fashion is easy to achieve this season, but a skier must be sure that he or she is getting a garment that FUNCTIONS," reminds Lynne. "A good shell is constructed of materials that are both waterproof and breathable for maximum comfort and performance."

The goal of this simple layering concept is commendable...getting all skiers to enjoy the snowy slopes and exciting sport of skiing to the maximum...in ANY weather!

Skiing's on the level in NE Michigan

Dorothy Webster

"Somewhere in the world it is snowing..." writes the Canadian naturalist Farley Mowat.

Veteran, novice and would-be skiers—downhill and cross-country—take heart in the thought as they ready their equipment for another Michigan winter, hoping that snow conditions will be perfect, paralyzing snowstorms will back off, and no bones are broken. In short, a typical start to winter dreams.

Iosco and Alcona Counties in Northeast Michigan boast three fine cross-country ski areas: The Corsair Trail System near the Tawases, Hoist Lakes East and West Loops, and the Reid Lake Area, both west of Harrisville off M-72.

Surrounded by thousands of miles of the Huron National Forest but relatively close to Lake Huron, the areas are spared the deep snowfalls that sometimes make skiing difficult, especially on trails that aren't groomed. In Michigan's "Northeast Kingdom", cross-country season usually runs from mid-December to late March. And while daytime temperatures will be in the 20s during December, late January brings "manic" weather, according to Gary Nelkie of Nordic Sports in East Tawas.

"Fluctuations from minus 10 degrees F to 30 degrees above zero are common," he says. While February is milder, with temperatures ranging from zero to the 30s, March can be downright balmy, with daytime highs in the 40s.

"Late February and March are spring skiing months," he comments. "Bring your sunglasses and a well-stocked picnic basket".

Telephone the toll-free snow report hotline at 800-55-TAWAS for daily reports of conditions, or call Nelkie at 517-362-2001 for firsthand reports.

The Corsair Ski Trails are some of the largest groomed trails in Michigan with numerous loops of varying lengths and degree of difficulty—clearly marked and easy to follow. Silver Creek meanders through the valley, providing definition to the landscape.

HAPPY TRAILS TO YOU— Cross-country skiers often prefer level touring, especially if they are beginners.

Mention the words Silver Valley and old-timers nod with a smile, recalling the ski-trains from downstate that roared into East Tawas during the 1930s and 1940s, depositing revelers almost at the doorstep of the old Holland Hotel, now just a memory. The whole area geared up for winter sports, and Silver Valley was the destination of buses transporting the enthusiasts to the slopes.

Ninety-one year-old Laura Zannis, owner of the Holland Hotel in the mid-1930s along with her husband, Ernest, recalls those days. "The town elected a Snow Queen, and sports writers from Detroit and Flint came up and stayed with us," she comments. "Sometimes they would broadcast reports of the snow conditions and the trains would come up, full of people waiting to ski."

Many of those local former snow queens are grandmothers now, with their grandchildren still enjoying Silver Valley, but with a difference—on slimmer skis and on the level, mostly.

Today's trail system was laid out in the early 1970s by Nelkie and the Corsair Ski Council, a group that sponsors a concert series during winter months to help support their efforts. They groom the trails with state-of-the-art snowcat equipment, providing the high-quality trails offered at large commercial ski areas. With the cooperation of the U.S. Forest Service, many local volunteers and the local Lion's Club, the trail system has developed into one of the state's best, say outdoor writers.

NATURAL BEAUTY— Cross-country skiing through Northeast Michigan forests is a wilderness experience to be treasured.

Northern Michigan Best Cross Country Ski Trails, or Jim DuFresne's Fifty Hikes in Lower Michigan. Also, More Natural Michigan by Tom Powers highlights the area.

Close to the Corsair system is a related trail, but ungroomed: The Highbanks. While it might require a sturdier skier, it's worth the rewards - views of the Au Sable River from a high bluff overlooking the "rollways" where long-ago loggers rolled their gigantic white pine logs clown to the river where they floated to Lake Huron.

To reach either the Corsair or Highbanks trails, turn left in downtown East Tawas onto Newman Street, drive two blocks to State Street, proceed left (west) on State for a half-mile where the road bears right onto Bridge Street. After the bridge crosses the Tawas River, the road forks. Take the right-hand fork to Monument Road, about seven miles along the road; you'll spot the trailhead. The Highbanks Trails are further—about four miles to Lumberman's Monument, which is about halfway along the Highbanks Trail. It begins at Iargo Springs, but many prefer to ski the scenic portion along the highbanks near the monument.

Pack your camera if you're ski touring during the spring, for bald eagles nest along the AuSable and you won't want to miss the chance of seeing one.

Either Hoist Lakes Loops or Reid Lake trails will satisfy your need for remote cross-country skiing—offering miles of ungroomed, but marked trail systems that will test your skill and endurance. You may even want to try some winter camping at either site.

Hoist Lakes Trail Loops have a trailhead on M-65 about seven miles north of Glennie, Michigan. There's another off M-32 or Aspen Alley Road. Each offers loops of varying lengths and different degrees of difficulty. Outdoor writers say it's a challenging area that will delight the expert skier and recommend a three-mile loop on the east side for advanced beginners.

There are 20 miles of trails linking seven small lakes and while it isn't groomed, there are usually skied-in tracks to guide you. It spreads over 10,000 acres of hills and valleys with scenic vistas from the 1200-foot elevations. Near Byron Lake, the elevated campsites offer wonderful views summer and winter.

Reid Lake's Trail for cross-country skiers totals a 2.5 mile scenic loop from the trailhead on M-72 to the lake and back, while there's a longer foot trail for hikers totaling 5.5 miles.

From Harrisville, on M-72 west, it's about 19 miles to the Reid Lake trailhead, where you'll find overview maps of the trail system. Both Reid Lake and Hoist Lakes trails are marked with "You Are Here" posts that make locating the trail you want to follow much easier. Camping is free and the sites are available on a first-come, first-use basis.

Pack your camera if you're ski touring during spring, for bald eagles nest along the AuSable . . .

You may telephone the U.S. Forest Service Ranger headquarters in Oscoda, 517-739-0728 and request a photocopied map of either area, or stop in at 5761 N. Skeel Rd, Oscoda MI 48750. The ranger headquarters is just inside the gatehouse drive at the former Wurtsmith Air Force Base off F-41, west of Oscoda. It replaces the former Harrisville Ranger Station, which is no longer operational.

Any of these ski areas will provide you with a wilderness experience you'll remember—if only for the natural beauty of the landscape. You'll see a mixed forest of firs, hardwoods, aspens and maples that provide habitat for whitetail deer, black bears, red foxes, porcupines, coyotes, beaver, ruffed grouse, mink, numerous waterfowl, squirrels and songbirds. Maybe you'll be lucky enough to spot some as you glide noiselessly along a remote trail.

You'll find modern motels, such as Holiday Inn, at the Tawases, and several places to dine that you'll appreciate - the Bear Track Inn offers meals with a view of Lake Huron. At Oscoda's Wiltse's Family Brew-Pub, you can sample freshly brewed local beers along with hearty meals.

Telephone chambers of commerce in either Oscoda (517-739-7322),East Tawas or Tawas City (517-362-8643) for detailed brochures, lists of places to stay, spots to dine and other local attractions.

How 1 outdoorsman built a museum

Baldwin, Michigan—

To say that Raymond W. Overholzer was an inspired, creative man would be a massive understatement. Just check out some of his work:

• From a 700 pound stump of a white pine tree, he hand-carved a 300 pound table! (The late Henry Ford even offered him $50,000 for the dinner table. Overholzer refused the offer.)

• He hand-carved a rocking chair from the roots of virgin white pine. The chair is so well-balanced it rocks 55 times after a single start!

• He built a mammoth fireplace with 70 tons of uncut stones taken from white pine forests.

• From white pine, he hand carved a standing gunrack that turns on 39 wooden roller bearings, holds up to 12 guns and has shelves within its base to hold ammunition.

Overholzer, who died in 1952 at age 62, was a legendary craftsman and outdoorsman who dedicated much of his life to preserving the spirit of the white pine tree. His work is on display every year from May 1 to Nov. 1 at the Shrine of the Pines.

More than 10,000 visitors tour Shrine of the Pines each year, said Ernestine Wright, Shrine manager. The tourist attraction is nestled in a secluded, wooden spot on the banks of the historic Pere Marquette River near Baldwin in Lake County.

"We drove 2 1/2 hours from Houghton Lake just to see this, and we'd do it again in a heartbeat," said a visitor, Lisa Kruse, after her family recently completed a tour of the site. "It's really interesting to think that one man created all of this."

Overholzer built Shrine of the Pines as a memorial to the white pine and Michigan 's fabulous lumbering era.

The Shrine sits underneath the shady umbrella of hundreds of 100-foot-tall white pine trees on 30 acres

RARE LIVING ROOM— A magnificent fireplace built of 70 tons of native stone is the backdrop for the incredible furnishings fashioned by Raymond Overholzer at Shrine of the Pines.

WITH THIS AD 10% OFF PRECIOUS MOMENTS

just off M-37 in northwest Michigan. It features 1900 feet of frontage along the Pere Marquette, a gift shop with handcrafts from local artists and a nature walk along the river.

But most impressive is the original 2500-square-foot log cabin, built by Overholzer in 1941, that today showcases more than 200 artifacts hand-carved from virgin white pine stumps and roots, all displayed in a museum-like setting. Each piece glows with a soft luster, produced by painstaking hand rubbing.

"Ray feared that the beauty of the white pine would be lost to all future generations, after the lumbermen had cut so much," Wright said. "So he wanted to do something to preserve the pine."

"It took him 32 years to build everything in here, including the cabin." said tour guide Terry McCann. "What many people find hard to believe is that he did this for only three months out of each year. The other nine months he had to make a living." Overholzer, who refused to sell any of his white pine work, made money as a hunting and fishing guide and as a taxidermist.

Most of the wood Overholzer used for the building and his creations came from forests in Newaygo, Lake and Osceola counties.

Wright said. "He only used what was already on the ground, from storms or left-over from the lumbermen."

Next to the main building is a gift shop which was once a cabin where Ray's wife, Hortense, lived after he died.

The gift shop features hundreds of wooden crafts made from (what else?) white pine. Ceramic gifts, hand-made tee-shirts and sweaters and other items are also for sale. All are made by local artists and sold on consignment. Eighty percent of the revenue goes to the artist, 20 percent to the Shrine.

Before Hortense Overholzer died in 1959, she willed the Shrine to Boys Club of Michigan, a Jesuit home for boys in Clinton, MI. The Boys Club continued running the Shrine as a tourist attraction until 1981, when a shortage of funds forced the organization to put the Shrine up for sale.

Immediately, area residents banded together to save the Shrine. They formed the Society for the Preservation for the Shrine of the Pines and purchased the land and buildings for $175,000, with Overholzer's artifacts on lease to the Society for 99 years. Money came through donations, fund-raisers and federal and state grants.

Today, Wright (the manger) is the only paid employee. More than 15 volunteers help run the Shrine and the gift shop. Tour guides are local youths who are paid through a state job training grant.

"We love this place," said Charlie Prys, a volunteer in the gift shop.

The Shrine is open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. every day from May 1 to Nov. 1, with guided tours every 30 minutes.

Rates are: $2.75 per person for groups of 30 or more; $3.50 for adults; $2.75 for seniors, 55 and over; $1.00 for kids, age 6 to 12; under 6 are free.

For more information, call the Shrine at 616-745-7892.

ABSOLUTELY NO REPRODUCTIONS— Jorgen Andersen and Robert Logsdon guarantee their prints to be antique and made before 1900.

Print partners prepare for Goodwill Antiques Show

Jean Day

For more than a quarter of a century, Rare Old Prints has been a part of Michigan's oldest charity show, the Metro Detroit Junior Group Goodwill Antiques Show. This year's show, Nov. 17-19 at the Michigan State Fairgrounds, will be the 4th held by the Goodwill group.

As they have for 26 years, Jorgen K. Andersen and Robert D. Logsdon will be taking their antique prints of the 18th and 19th century to fill their booth at the show. The partners remember that they began participating the year after they started in business on Hamilton Avenue's antiques row in Detroit.

Five years later they moved to their present address at 516 South Washington in Royal Oak, Michigan.

The partners, who have set up their booth in the many locations where the Goodwill show has been held, recall it at the Detroit Masonic Temple years ago and later at Fairlane in Dearborn. As the locations have changed, so have the offerings in their booth.

A visit to their shop offers a preview of prints and accessories they are planning to feature at this year's show.

"We always take botanicals - a lot of people are into gardening and want floral prints," notes Andersen, adding that bird prints are also popular. Especially sought after, he says, are English bird prints by John Gould.

The partners find many of their prints and accessories on their twice yearly trips to England and Copenhagen. (Andersen is a native of Denmark.) The two spent three weeks in London last summer and two weeks in the north of England. They guarantee their prints to be antique and before 1900. "Absolutely no reproductions," they state, explaining that prints always are dated at the time the print was made.

They buy their mats in England from a maker outside London. The most colorful have elaborate insets to set off the prints. Especially striking is a pair of Scottish clansmen in their kilts, dated 1847, framed in red with multi-color insets that will be going to the show.

Andersen points out that such prints are hand-colored. They have a selection of some 50 Scottish prints of clans and views they will have at the show this year.

Andersen adds that a colorful mat adds interest to a black-and-white print. Over the years, the partners observe, interest has grown in having more colorful prints. The trend in colors, they see, is to red, dark green and blue.

They also have seen a big, growing interest in architectural prints as well as in Currier and Ives scenes and prints of American Indians. Years ago, Andersen says, there would have been requests for Doctor Syntax prints, but today most young collectors don't know anything about them.

An impressive Indian print on display in their shop is that of a Chippewa chief, a hand-colored print dated 1836, from a collection of Indian Tribes of North America. It is priced at $575.

While some of their offerings will range well over $100, others at the show will be priced at $22, $28 or $35. As examples, there are small, matted prints in gold frames of botanicals and butterflies in that reasonable range.

The partners are able to offer prints in this price range, they explain, because they do their own packing and shipping in England and then they frame the prints themselves in the workshop at the rear of the store.

When they close the business at the end of June until Labor Day and again February, their buying trips abroad begin. In addition to prints, they bring back antique accessories. When we visited, there was a good assortment of Victorian brass candlesticks, including a pair of barleytwists. They also had two oak barleytwist sticks. A case contained a large collection of snuff boxes and magnifying glasses.

"The Goodwill Show always is the best we do," Andersen says. He feels that the popularity of prints lies in their relative low price. "Good, old paintings are very scarce and expensive today," he says, "but prints are still available and reasonable."

Rare Old Prints in Royal Oak is open Monday through Saturday from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. The Rare Old Prints booth will be one of 50 from the East and Midwest at the Goodwill Antiques Show at the Fairgrounds at Woodward and Eight Mile in Detroit Nov. 17-19.

Show manager Edwin T. Palko notes that there will be an emphasis on Americana with select exhibitors bringing 18th and 19th century furniture as well as glassware, silver, brass, pewter, tole, jewelry, nautical items, paintings and prints.

Among the 15 new dealers this year will be Coffey Fine Arts of Brighton, Michigan. Coffey is one of a dozen Michigan dealers in the show.

Others bringing their antiques to the show for the first time include American Sampler of Barnesville, Maryland, with cast iron doorstops and paper weights; Harold E. Cole of Woodbury, Connecticut, with American furniture; John C. Newcomer of Funkstown, Maryland with folk art; and Shaker Square Antiques of Shaker Heights, Ohio, with fine English and American furniture and decorative accessories.

Freighter-watching as a spectator sport

Julie Candler

Allan Hayes

The majestic Great Lakes freighters plying our waters are part of the memory-bank of many Michigan residents.

How you feel about the massive beauty of a Great Lakes freighter depends on your point of view.

Once, when Allan was a teen-ager, he and a fellow immortal of the same age decided to sail an 18-foot sloop up the St. Clair River at night without a motor. Partway up the river, of course, the wind died.

Says Allan, "I still have this painful recollection of paddling like mad to get out of the path of a freighter bearing down on us, and thinking how huge and ugly the damn thing was. Meanwhile my pal Bob Gault was paddling with one hand and frantically playing a flashlight on the sail with the other, probably praying. Looking back at our teenage judgment on such things, I wonder why our parents let us out of the house."

The majestic Great Lakes freighters plying our waters are part of the memory-bank of many Michigan residents. Most of us remember the deep, distant hootings they make on warm summer nights—sustained bass-notes that can be heard for dozens of miles. Like train-whistles, they conjure up distant ports, adventure and romance.

While it soon will be too cold for boating, the sport of freighter-watching can be enjoyed through mid-December, when the gallant ships will bow to the weather and go in hiding until April.

From lake or riverside, the freighters are great fun to watch—to wonder where they're bound, what they're carrying and what it's like to be aboard one. You may also wonder where the best places are from which to watch these monsters and how to identify them from their flags and insignia.

Today there are fewer freighters to see from Michigan's shores and waters. Like supermarkets and shopping malls, freighters are getting bigger, too. A new super-freighter over 1000 feet long and 100 feet wide can carry three times the tonnage of yesterday's 600-footers.

More than 200 American and Canadian freighters once cruised the Great Lakes. This season there are little more than 100, according to freighter-watcher Kathy McGraw, a volunteer at the Dossin Great Lakes Museum on Belle Isle. In addition, 287 foreign vessels made 588 trips into the Great Lakes—not all of them as far as Michigan—in a good economic year like 1994.

With fewer freighters cruising our Michigan waters, the sight of one is more exciting than ever. One group of freighter enthusiasts has meetings in the St. Clair Inn at St. Clair, Michigan, where they get a close-up view of the ships transiting the St. Clair River. When a freighter comes along, the meeting stumbles to a stop while every member dashes to the windows for a better look.

Yet the men who work these ships don't see them as romantic at all, but as another mundane business activity.

The average lake freighter carries a crew of about 30, including the Master/Captain, First Mate, Chief Engineer, Steward/Cook and enough underlings to man the ship for three watches a day while cargo is carried from port to port.

"The general rule for us is steel in, grain out," says Otto Benson of Port Huron, Michigan, a long-time dispatcher and pilot.

Ed Harris, a lakes pilot from Traverse City, who had just been flown from Chicago to Port Huron to pilot another steel-laden foreign ship to Chicago, told us, "The ship I left in Chicago will go on to Duluth for a load of grain or soybeans. Then it will go down the Seaway to the Atlantic. This is a common route today. We import a lot of steel now, and we export items like grain to foreign ports."

Freighters help the nation's economy to keep humming along by the delivery of iron ore, coal, gypsum, sand, gravel and other products to and from ports in Marquette, Duluth, Cleveland, and dozens of other major cities on the lakes.

For the best freighter-watching places in Michigan, we consulted Doris Scharfenberg, author of The Long Blue Edge of Summer, (William B. Eerdmans Publishing, 1982). She picks the St. Clair River and the St. Mary's River as the best places to enjoy this spectator sport. On the big lakes, she notes, the boats are often so far away they look like toys. However, she adds, you may see one dock occasionally at Grand Haven, Manistee, or Muskegon.

For the best view along the Detroit River, she suggests Dieppe Park in Windsor.

CAPTAIN OF ALL HE SURVEYS— Allan Hayes looks down the Detroit River from the pilot house of the "William Clay Ford" at Dossin's Great Lakes Museum on Belle Isle.

Her tip on boat identification: you can tell the foreign boats at night, because they run with fewer lights shining from their portholes. And you can tell the newer boats because they have only one super-structure, at the stern instead of both fore and aft.

Scharfenberg and other freighter-watchers say their favorite place for boat-viewing is the Soo locks, which exist because shipping on the Great Lakes is complicated by the different water levels. The level of Lake Superior is 19 feet higher than Lakes Huron and Michigan, and Lake Erie is 326 feet higher than Lake Ontario.

Lake carriers have to be able to pass from one level to another. This problem is solved by two systems of giant locks, one at Sault Ste. Marie on the St. Mary's River linking Lake Superior and Lake Huron (the Soo locks), and the Welland Canal locks near Niagara, which connect Lake Erie to Lake Ontario.

The swift waters of the St. Mary's River at the Soo (Sault is a French word meaning "rapids") are by-passed by four locks on the U.S. side, through which pass more than 95 million tons of freight every year. Capable of handling ships drawing 29 feet, these locks are an impressive piece of engineering as well as a neat place to visit.

"Watching a 1,000-footer go through those locks is a very exciting thing to see," says well-traveled Ivin Kerr of Marine City, Michigan, who recently made a circle tour of the Upper Peninsula.

Alongside the Soo locks is a parkway with three observation platforms, and a Corps of Engineers information center. A walkway follows the waterway for about a mile, and overlooks numerous points of historic interest. The Valley Camp, a retired Great Lakes freighter, is docked there and offers walk-around tours of the ship.

"Sault Ste. Marie is a great spot," says Tom Rockwell, veteran shipwatcher, "but there are plenty of others. The best freighter-watching spots are where the boats have to pass through narrow waters, like at the Dossin Museum on Belle Isle on the Detroit River, or Port Huron where the

Celtic Fields made of tweeds and linens

Grand Rapids, Michigan—

Celtic Field's, founded in 1991, bills itself as "Michigan's only shop featuring quality products from all the Celtic field's...Ireland, Scotland, England and Wales".

Proprietors Anne MacManus and her husband Toby Drabczyk have filled a niche throughout the Midwest in the four-plus years their shop has been opened.

The idea of opening a shop was a long-standing one on Anne's part. She regularly visits her native Ireland (Anne was born in Belfast), and was proud of the rich culture of the Celtic people. Her goal for Celtic Field's was "a desire to establish an ethnic shop which reflected the many beautiful gifts, artworks, and home furnishings that come from the fields of the Celtic lands."

The name of the shop was developed to evoke the very essence of the product line. For example, the cozy woolen Irish sweaters, Scottish tweed blankets, Welsh coal crafts and fine English bone china, to name but a few, come from grazing sheep, the highland heather, the mines and the potters clay of the fields.

Anne and Toby decided to open the shop after each had worked more than 20 years in the health care industry. Toby said "we would have done it years ago if we knew it would be so much fun...especially all the buying trips abroad and the Scottish Festivals we do!" The shop idea was really a mission of sorts to let people know that the Irish don't just stand for plastic leprechaun ears.

Anne said that "in a former job, I was a national educator representing 12 Midwest states, and whenever I had business in a town, of course I would check out the local Irish shops. I was often dismayed at the trinket-like effect they depicted...all souvenirs and plastic leprechaun ears. I vowed that when I opened a shop, I would stay true to the Celts!

Celtic Field's prides itself on stocking only true Celtic artworks, crafts, gifts, home furnishings, and of course tea (the national drink).

"We have become West Michigan's principal source of unique teas, and all the teapots, cups and saucers and fine linens that go with setting a proper tea tray. With a few of the products, Celtic Field's is the only shop in North America to carry the line," Anne said.

"CEAD MILE FALTEI"— Proprietors Anne MacManus and her husband Toby Drabczyk have a warm welcome for shoppers searching for authentic Celtic gifts.

The shop is located in the Breton Village Mall (corner of Breton and Burton) in Grand Rapids. Mall hours are 9:30 a.m. - 9 p.m. Monday through Friday and on Saturday from 9:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. Anne, Toby and their five employees are ready to offer their own special brand of a Celtic warm welcome...Cead Mile Falte!

Exhibit celebrates 1000 years of American art

Toledo, OH—

Made in America: Ten Centuries of American Art, one of the largest American art exhibitions of this century, is open at The Toledo Museum of Art and continues through Jan. 7.

Drawn from the rich collections of five major American museums, the exhibition traces the panorama of American spirit and life over 1,000 years through 160 paintings, photographs, sculptures, and decorative works of art including Native American art, silver, glass, and furniture.

From 11th-century pottery by Anasazi artists of the Southwest to Thomas Sully's early-19th-century, full-length portrait of George Washington to Andy Warhol's 1963 pop icon of Elvis Presley, the creativity of American artists is highlighted in this historically rich and beautiful exhibition.

The exhibition features America's most celebrated artists, including John Singleton Copley, Benjamin West, Paul Revere, Thomas Cole, George Caleb Bingham, Frederic Church, Winslow Homer, John Singer Sargent, Henry O. Tanner, William Merritt Chase, Mary Cassatt, Thomas Eakins, Edward Steichen, Frank Lloyd Wright, Edward Hopper, Dorothea Lange, Thomas Hart Benton, Romare Bearden, Georgia O'Keeffe, Ansel Adams, Andrew Wyeth, Charles and Ray Eames, Jackson Pollock, Gordon Parks, Louise Nevelson, Alexander Calder, and Robert Rauschenberg, among others.

Inclusive and intriguing, Made in America moves far beyond a standard survey of American art to encompass a broad and diverse range of objects, cultures, and history.

The Toledo Museum of Art is a privately endowed, nonprofit arts institution, located at 2445 Monroe St. at Scottwood Avenue, just west of the downtown business district and one block off I-75 with exit designations posted.

ships go under the Blue Water Bridge, or Harsen's Island."

Rockwell is a Detroit attorney whose downtown office overlooks the Detroit River. He first got interested in lake ships as a youngster while working as a bell-captain at the Grand Hotel on Mackinac Island. He could see the freighters from there, as they passed on the way to or from the St. Mary's River, and he never got over his enthusiasm for them.

Rockwell is a long-time member of several organizations dedicated to the lakes freighters: one is the 35-year-old Great Lakes Maritime Institute, which has 1,500 members and puts out the Telescope, a fine newsletter for aficionados. He's also on the board of the Dossin Museum and a member of Detroit's Marine Historical Society, a 55-year-old group which publishes occasional books, a monthly journal for members, and calendars featuring portraits of lake ships. Rockwell also belongs to the Great Lakes Historical Society based in Cleveland, which was established in the mid-40s.

For more information on any of this, write to Tom Rockwell in care of Vandeveer Garzia, 33 W. Fort, Detroit MI 48226, or call him at (313) 961-4880. He will be happy to put you in touch with other lake-freighter enthusiasts.

For charts of flags, stack insignia and other information which will help identify the ships, we recommend a wonderful little book called Know Your Ships published by Marine Publishing Company Inc,. Box 68, Sault Ste. Marie MI 49783. Cost is $12.95 there, or at the Soo locks, or at the Dossin or other marine museums ($8 for seniors).

She is a contributing editor of Nation's Business and wrote the feature "Women at the wheel," which appeared regularly in Women's Day for 18 years.)

Find your face in history as you travel

Iris Sanderson Jones

As a kid, you loved to find objects hidden in a picture puzzle. As an adult, you can enjoy the game too, especially if the face you find hidden in the puzzle is your own.

The first time this happened to me was when I saw a familiar-looking magazine rack in an antique store. My mind said: "That's not an antique. We've got one just like it at the cottage.'

It was a duplicate of my grandmother's magazine rack, of course. It was the first time I realized that some very personal things are bigger than our own lives they're part of history and so are we.

I learned the lesson again when I walked into a nineteenth century house in a pioneer village. There was the blue and white dinnerware that my family loved so much. Apparently we weren't the only ones who valued the gloss of deep blue dishes against burnished wood. We inherited the idea from our great-great grandmothers.

I have had a lot of fun putting myself in the puzzle of history since then, especially when I travel. I call it rowing upstream into your own life story.

If you think of history as your life story, it's a lot of fun.

If you look up the word "history" in one of those 20-pound dictionaries, you'll find that it comes from the Greek word "historia", which means "learning by inquiry."

If you think of history as something that relates to other people, you may spend a lot of boring afternoons inquiring your way through historic villages and museums. If you think of it as your life story, it's a lot of fun.

The next time will drive south on Interstate-75, for example, detour to the town of Lebanon, just north of Cincinnati. If you are Native American you will have very personal feelings about the earthworks at Fort Ancient, a sprawling hilltop enclosure on a bluff overlooking the Little Miami River.

If not there, you may find your sense of identity over lunch or overnight at the Golden Lamb, the oldest operating inn in Ohio, and a treasured repository of Shaker furniture.

Telephone toll-free 1-800-BUCKEYE and ask the Ohio state tourism people to send you a map to Ohio Historical Society Sites like that. You'll find more ancient native earthworks in places like Newark, Bainbridge and Miamisburg.

If you are Afro-American, you have probably already had that feeling by following the Black Trail in Detroit and southern Ontario. You can get it again at the National Afro-American Museum & Cultural Center next to Central State University in Wilberforce, Ohio.

Just hearing the word "Wilberforce" plugs me in. I'm not Afro-American but my grandmother used to sing an old slave song; I know now that her grandmother learned it at the site of the Wilberforce Colony in what is now Lucan, Ontario.

If your great-greats settled the midwest a hundred years ago, you might get your kicks by recreating their travels aboard a canal boat. The Piqua Historical Area is just off I-75, north of Dayton. A mule drawn canal boat ride takes visitors through a mile of the old Miami and Erie Canal. That's how most of our early settlers got here, by canal.

If you want to know how they lived, explore some of the restored villages nearby. You will find a lot of them on that Ohio map of historic sites: the Quaker Meeting House, and the Schoenbrunn Village, in northeast Ohio; Carillon Park in Dayton; Ohio Village in Columbus.

If your family came from France, you may find them in Gallipolis, where Napoleon's friends once dreamed of building an empire in the Ohio River valley. If they came from Germany, you may find them in Zoar, where German Separatists created one of the most successful communal societies in 19th-century America.

Travelers of any ethnic background will find echoes of their own lives at Henry Ford Museum and Greenfield Village in Dearborn, Michigan. That is also a good place to start a pilgrimage of one object in American life that we all identify with: the automobile, Detroit is celebrating 100 years of automotive innovation in 1996. You will find those memories at Henry Ford Museum, at the Henry Ford Estate, the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House, the Fisher Mansion and at The National Automotive History Collection in the Detroit Public Library.

CAUGHT UP IN HISTORY— Visitors at the Greenfield Village tintype shop have their images captured in time using the 19th century process.

You can enjoy it on a bus tour called "Made in Detroit: Emergence of Detroit's Auto Industry and Its Labor Unions" by calling Preservation Wayne at 313-222-0321. Explore The Automobile in American Life exhibit at Henry Ford Museum; Motor City at

Art across Michigan: Stitched and woven

Stitched, Layered, Pieced: Michigan Artists and the Quilt
University of Michigan Museum of Art
Ann Arbor

This exhibition continues through Dec. 10 and explores new directions in art quilts through the work of 16 contemporary artists, each with a Michigan connection.

Whether working within a traditional framework or breaking new ground, these artists collectively represent the experimentation, innovation, and expressive potential of the art quilt medium. In contrast to traditional quilts, art quilts are deliberately non-utilitarian objects made to be viewed as works of art.

The U-M Museum of Art (313-764-0395) is located at 525 S. State St., Ann Arbor. Hours are 10 a.m.-5 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday, 10 a.m.-9 p.m. Thursday, noon-5 p.m. Sunday. Admission is free.

Weaving and Fibre Art Show
Cook Energy Center
Bridgman

From sheep to shawl, visitors can see how regional weavers and fibre artists create beautiful items. Show hours are 10 a.m.-5 p.m. on Oct. 21-22.

The show offers spinning and weaving demonstrations and offers an excellent opportunity for visitors to talk with exhibitors and learn about this historic craft first-hand. Displays include throws, blankets, clothing, home accessories and supplies.

The Cook Energy Information Center (800-548-2555) is located in southwest Michigan, about 3 miles north on Red Arrow highway (take Exit 16 off Interstate 94). Admission is free.

Weaving Out Loud: Sandra Brownlee
Cranbrook Art Museum
Bloomfield Hills

On view through Dec. 30, Weaving Out Loud: Sandra Brownlee features nearly 40 woven works by the Cranbrook Academy of Art graduate.

Dating from 1980 to the present, Brownlee's small scale black and white textile compositions are created with fine silks, cotton yarn and ordinary sewing thread. Brownlee's work combines real and imagined animals, figures, symbols and patterns in a way that speaks of her spiritual and actual relationship to the natural world.

Cranbrook Art Museum (810-645-3312) is located 1221 N. Woodward Ave. Hours are 1 p.m.-5 p.m. Wednesday-Sunday and 10 a.m.-9 p.m. Thursday. Admission is $4 for adults and $2 for students, children and senior citizens.

Contemporary American Indian Art: The Jose Feddersen Collection
Kresge Art Museum
Michigan State University
East Lansing

Opening Oct. 28, this outstanding traveling exhibition encompasses nearly 40 richly varied art works which eloquently express the way tradition and change weave themselves into the patterns and definitions of Native American artists.

As printmaker and painter, collector and curator, Joe Feddersen has assembled one of the finest personal collections of contemporary Native American art. Paintings, wood and metal sculpture, drawings, ceramics, prints and weaving explore how today's artists built on their ancient traditions to create works of art that carry native culture into the late 20th century. The exhibit continues through Dec. 15.

Kresge Art Museum (517-355-7631) is located on the MSU campus at Auditorium Road and Physics Road in the Kresge Art Center. Hours are 9:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m. weekdays, noon-8 p.m. Thursday, and 1-4 p.m. weekends. Admission is free.

Lansing takes a bough

Lansing, Michigan—

The Festival of Trees, mid-Michigan's premiere holiday extravaganza, will kick off Nov. 17 at the Lansing Center in downtown Lansing, offering a variety of attractions for young and old alike. The Festival will be open for 10 big days, concluding Sunday, Nov. 26, with a raffle drawing for a brand-new Oldsmobile Aurora.

In its 12th year, Michigan Capital Healthcare's Festival of Trees features a beautiful display of 75 unique, elaborately decorated trees donated by area merchants, businesses and organizations and is the perfect kick off for the holiday season.

The showroom of ornately decorated trees, each with its own unique theme, vie for top honors in several judged categories, including a People's Choice award. Silent bids will be accepted on select items throughout the Festival; others are available for purchase.

Last year more than 30,000 visitors enjoyed a leisurely stroll through the holiday display and Festival planners hope new attractions will draw even bigger crowds this year. New events include Family Night on Monday, Nov. 21, and the Celebration Ball on Friday, Nov. 24.

In addition to the display of trees, regular admission to the Festival offers the following traditional favorites:

• Holiday entertainment—Musical and dance ensembles from throughout the area will be featured.

• Santa, Clowns and Face Painting—Professional clowns share their special art form with youngsters, and Santa makes his debut during Festival week in Santa's Enchanted Village.

• Children's Corner—A special area set aside for kids to take part in arts and crafts activities.

• Money Tree—Come closest to guessing how much money is on the Money Tree, and you'll take it home to do your holiday shopping.

• Gingerbread Village—Designed and baked by local chefs and individuals, this display continues to be a crowd-pleaser.

• Arts and Crafts Bazaar—Tables of arts and crafts for sale.

• Small World Gift Shoppe—Features items for sale for "children only."

Admission is $4 for adults, $1 for kids ages 6 to 12, and free admission for children 5 and under. The holiday event raises money for Michigan Capital Healthcare's ongoing community health initiatives.

For more information call the Festival of Trees office at (517) 377-8790.

Manistee, Michigan—

"Leave room for dessert" isn't just a mother's admonition in Manistee. It is a reminder to save time in your holiday schedule for the latest announced addition to Old Christmas Weekend.

Billed as "In The Glow of Gaslight," the event is described as a Yuletide evening of music, wine and dessert lit by gaslight at the historic home of prominent lumberman Simeon Babcock. The 16-room mansion was built in 1881.

The seventh annual Old Christmas Weekend and Sleighbell Parade will be held Nov. 30 through Dec. 3 this year. The Victorian dessert is scheduled from 8 p.m. to 10 p.m. on Saturday, Dec. 2. It is a benefit for the Manistee Art Institute (MAI).

"For some this may be a once in a lifetime experience," said Ruth Cooper of the Institute. "Gaslights give a totally different glow to a room," she explained. " The house is piped for gaslights and the crystal-shaded chandeliers are exquisite. This harkens back to an era that was very elegant. We are excited about the event. "

The dessert is being planned by MAI in conjunction with John Perschbacher, who recently acquired the mansion. Perschbacher, of Manistee and Grand Rapids, is a museum consultant with expertise in antique lighting fixtures, watches and automatic musical instruments.

The dessert, like Old Christmas Weekend in Manistee, is a marriage of the past and present. It is among the "something new" being presented while the "something old" continues to be celebrated.

ALL ABOARD— Poinsettia-bedecked trolleys convey visitors around Manistee for holiday tours.

The city of Manistee is nestled between Manistee Lake and Lake Michigan. The two lakes are connected by the meandering river channel that shaped the street-scape of the turn-of-the-century downtown and gave it its name, River Street.

The gently curving downtown district is on the National Register of Historic Places. During Old Christmas it turns into a magical place where memories of Christmas Past come alive again.

Manistee's strength is rooted in the surrounding forests and its charm is anchored in its history as a Victorian port city. But its heart belongs to Christmas.

Deborah Carlson, chair of the Victorian celebration, said the popular Sleighbell Parade will be held the evening of Friday, Dec. 1. It will feature two trees. A children's tree festooned with decorations made by local youngsters will be at one end of River Street and the community tree, to be lighted after the parade, will again be carried upright through downtown on a horsedrawn sleigh.

"There's something about the sight of that huge tree being carried upright through town by a team of draft horses that takes people's breath away," said Carlson.

Old-fashioned is the true flavor of the event that features horsedrawn units. Even spectators are invited to become part of the celebration while adding to the atmosphere by donning cloaks or top hats. "Every year it looks more and more like a scene from Charles Dickens," she said.

The Sleighbell Parade was introduced in the late 1980s. It was so well-received that the concept was expanded into a weekend celebration highlighting Manistee's rich Victorian heritage.

"What really propels this event is the community pride behind it," said Carlson. "That pride was instilled by founder Jerry Smith. He did a wonderful job. Everybody loves the Sleighbell Parade."

Old Christmas Weekend has continued to charm townspeople and visitors alike. This year tour buses are bringing visitors from various parts of the Midwest to enjoy the clip-clop of horses hooves, the music of sleighbells, echoes of Christmas carols and shouts of vendors offering roasted chestnuts and Christmas greetings.

"Whether it's a full moon in a blue velvet sky, the pealing of church bells at just the right moment, the dropping of a lacey curtain of snow, or the excitement of a heavy snow fall, something magical always happens," said Carlson.

"The parade is beautiful and the entire weekend is planned to center on the charms of living in an old-fashioned community where being home for the holidays really means being with family and friends and having the time and opportunity to make simple, wonderful and lasting memories," she said.

"We're hoping that Old Christmas will become a new, special tradition for those whose Dec. 25th celebration has become so hectic," Carlson continued. "This is a time for fun and relaxation in a small community with a big heart. We want every one, even the first time visitor, to feel like coming here is coming home. And we guarantee to get you in the holiday mood."

Among activities planned are the very popular and always sold-out Christmas Carol Dinner, visits with Santa, open houses hosted by merchants in their century-old buildings, trolley tours, horse-drawn wagon rides, special entertainment for children, tours of historical homes and churches, a Polish Christmas at the storefront museum on River Street and presentations of Handel's Messiah at the Ramsdell Opera House.

An ecumenical candlelight service at one of the historical churches closes the event Sunday evening. This year Good Shepherd Lutheran Church will be the site for the ceremony.

New this year will be the Manistee Art Institute's unveiling of its first touring exhibit in the community. The Institute will present a major exhibit of contemporary Native American art by Michigan artists.

The official opening will be Friday, Dec. 1, from 5 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. with Marilyn Wheaton, executive director of Concerned Citizens For The Arts In Michigan.

In the planning stages for after the parade is a Victorian Ball. It will be held in the ballroom of the Ramsdell, where ball chairman Nita Guenthardt said she would like to have an area set up as a parlor so those attending the ball could be photographed in a Victorian setting.

"There are many details to work out, but we want those attending to have fun. The Victorians knew how to have fun," she added.

Old Christmas Weekend events are supported through the sale of fanflags. The red, white and blue patriotic display item is made in Manistee and adds a distinctive Victorian look to any house or building. It is made of cotton and measures three feet by six feet.

For more information about Old Christmas Weekend, the Sleighbell Parade or how to purchase a fanflag to help keep the magic aglow, please contact the Chamber of Commerce at 1-616-723-2575 or 1-800-288-2286.

If you've decided to have dessert by gaslight in a Victorian mansion, reservations may be made by calling 1-616-723-2520. The cost is $15 and seating is limited.

Gallery captures sculptor's spirit

University Center, Michigan—

The Marshall M. Fredericks Sculpture Gallery near Saginaw houses an extraordinary collection of over 200 works which span the career of Marshall M. Fredericks.

He is known in America and abroad for his monumental figurative sculpture, inspiring public memorials, exuberant fountains, insightful portraits, and whimsical sculptures of animals.

In the gallery are original models for many of his greatest sculptures: Christ on the Cross, Indian River, Michigan; The Fountain of Eternal Life, Cleveland, Ohio; The Expanding Universe Fountain, State Department, Washington, D.C.; The Freedom of the Human Spirit, Flushing Meadow Park, New York City; The Leaping Gazelle for The Levi Barbour Fountain, Belle Isle, Detroit; The Spirit of Detroit, City/County Building, Detroit; and The Ford Empire and Harlequin Reliefs, Ford Auditorium, Detroit.

Sketches, studies, and scale models for memorials, religious sculptures, portraits, and animals are also on display. In addition, there are drawings and paintings by Fredericks, and photographs showing him at work in his studios in Michigan, New York City, and Scandinavian. Other photographs show his finished bronze and stone sculptures located around the world.

The sculpture garden adjacent to the gallery includes a growing collection of more than a dozen bronze casts of Frederick's sculptures, most with the light green patina favored by the artist throughout his career.

Fredericks was born of Scandinavian heritage in Rock Island, Illinois in 1908. He graduated from the Cleveland School of Art in 1930 and journeyed abroad on fellowship to study with Carl Milles (1875-1955) in Sweden. After some months he proceeded to study in other academies and private studios in Denmark, Germany, France and Italy, and traveled extensively in Europe and North Africa.

In 1932 he joined the staffs of Cranbrook Academy of Art and Cranbrook and Kingswood Schools in Bloomfield Hills, teaching there until he enlisted in the armed forces in 1942. In 1945 Fredericks retired from the Air Force as a Lieutenant Colonel.

MONUMENTAL FIGURES— The Marshall Fredericks Sculpture Gallery displays original models for many of the artist's finest works.

Since World War II, the sculptor has worked continuously on his humorous commissions for fountains, memorials, free-standing sculptures, reliefs, and portraits in bronze and other materials. Many of his works have a spiritual intensity. Others are infused with a lighthearted humor, a warm and gentle spirit like that found in Fredericks himself.

Fredericks, who celebrated his 87th birthday in January, is the recipient of a multitude of American and foreign awards and decorations for his artistic and humanitarian achievements. He serves a Royal Danish Consul for Michigan and works full-time in his Royal Oak and Bloomfield Hills Studios.

The gallery was host to over 3,500 school children last year, made possible by an annual grant of $10,000, and average visitor attendance is approximately 10,000 annually. The gallery also offers tours to motorcoach groups with arrangements made in advance.

"According to many local people who visit us for the first time, the Gallery is still one of the Saginaw Valley's best kept secrets," says Dr. Michael Panhorst, gallery director. "Word of mouth is the best advertising and we routinely get good reviews from our visitors."

The Marshall M. Fredericks Sculpture Gallery is housed in the Arbury Fine Arts Center on the campus of Saginaw Valley State University. The gallery is open to the public, free of charge, Tuesday through Sunday from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m.

the Detroit Historical Museum; Motorsports Museum and Hall of Fame at the Novi Expo Center in Novi; and aboard one of Diamond Jack's River Tours, out of Grosse Ile on the Detroit River 313-843-9376.)

If you are looking for a close-to-home getaway, you might find it aboard an old steam train between Cleveland and Akron, in the Cuyahoga National Recreation Area. Get off the train to tour Hale Farm or to have lunch in historic Richfield Tavern.

Once you start playing this game, you will find many ways to find aspects of our own life in historic settings. Did your ancestor fight the War of 1812? Commodore Perry's monument stands in Put-in-Bay, Ohio; the British side of the same story is at Fort Malden in Amherstburg, Ontario.

What you will find is that you don't need to go back very far to find something that really interests you. If you're a grandmother, you'll remember how you stretched out on the floor to listen to Jack Benny or Fibber McGee on that old console radio.

If you're a grandchild, you can tell your parents and grandparents that their old "'stuff" is already history.

Magical parade kicks off Howell holidays

Howell, Michigan—

Thousands of sparkling lights will decorate floats, musical units, antique carriages and Howell's historic downtown as the 12th annual Fantasy of Lights Parade marches down Grand River Avenue on Friday evening, Nov. 24 at 7 p.m.

The Fantasy of Lights Parade is the first of a number of holiday happenings in the Howell area.

There will be more than 55 entries in the Fantasy of Lights Parade, the event that traditionally "kicks off" the holiday season in Livingston County. All entries in the parade will be decorated with holiday lights. Detroit Edison and WLNS-TV6 are the parade's sponsors.

"It is truly a magical parade," said Lee Reeves, executive director of the Howell Area Chamber of Commerce, host of the Fantasy of Lights. "Each year we see local businesses and community groups putting in thousands of hours to outdo each other and produce breathtaking entries to the delight of our more than 20,000 visitors."

Christmas Alley, located on State Street adjacent to the historic Livingston County Courthouse, will be filled with food, holiday entertainment, Victorian characters, music, and even a special visit from two of Santa's reindeer.

Prancer and Dancer will be on hand for lots of petting and photo opportunities in Christmas Alley both before and after the parade.

Nearby, at the amphitheater of the Livingston County Courthouse, ice sculptures will be created right before spectators' eyes. Artists will fashion 50 pound blocks of ice into sparkling sculptures with holiday and other motifs.

The parade will begin promptly at 7 p.m. from Citizens Insurance Company at the west end of the downtown and proceed east down Grand River Avenue through the Historic District. The parade will conclude at the east end of the downtown.

As always, Santa will take time from his busy schedule to ride in the parade.

Attended handicapped parking will be available adjacent to the courthouse annex, near the reviewing stand. The entrance to the handicapped parking will be on Clinton Street, one block north of Grand River.

The first annual 5K Fantasy Run will take place at 6 p.m. before the parade. Runners will stride through the downtown in a benefit for Toys for Tots. All runners will wear a glow in the dark Christmas ornament. For registration, call 517-546-2439.

The Howell area will be full of holiday activities, including free Victorian carriage rides, crafts show and special shopping during the four weeks prior to Christmas.

New this year will be the Fantasy of Trees on Nov. 24, 25 and 26, hosted by the Howell Exchange Club. This beautiful event will feature dozens of holiday trees and decorations, all decorated in motifs of the season. Fantasy of Trees will take place on the second floor of 100 S. Michigan Avenue in the heart of downtown.

Visitors to Fantasy of Trees can bid on the trees during the silent auction all weekend long. Hours for Fantasy of Trees are 5-9 p.m. Friday, 1-8 p.m. Saturday and noon to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

For more information, call the Howell Area Chamber of Commerce, 517-546-3920.

Howell is located along Interstate 96, about halfway between Lansing and metro Detroit.

Welcome to the Pumpkinfest

On behalf of the South Lyon Pumpkinfest organizers and the entire South Lyon community I'd like to welcome you to the 11th annual edition of this city's premier festival.

Pumpkinfest offers an opportunity for visitors young and old to enjoy a wide variety of activities, from carnival rides and dances, to parades and pie cookoffs, all centered around the celebration of that fabulous fall fruit, the pumpkin.

Pumpkinfest was conceived on the notion that families could get together for a day of fun without spending a pile of money. To that end, all events from the craft fair to the shows at the entertainment stage are free. The only charge is for carnival rides.

No description of the Pumpkinfest is complete without acknowledging the year-long efforts of its all-volunteer staff. This dedicated team strives all year long to produce an event that showcases our community at its best. When the last of the lights are shut off on Sunday evening, planning begins for next year's Pumpkinfest

With this guidebook we hope that you will find your way to all of the events that pique your interest, and we encourage you to patronize those merchants listed within. We hope you enjoy the weekend.

Feeling lucky? Try the Lions' Vegas Night

Come to "Las Vegas Night" sponsored this year by the Lyon Area Lions Club on Oct. 7, from 6 p.m. till 2 a.m. at the South Lyon Hotel. Rules will be posted at each gaming table and you must be 21 years old to participate.

Proceeds from the event will be used primarily for eye care for the South Lyon Area residents, but also includes assistance for needy and worthy groups and individual causes.

So come join us for a spin of the wheel, a roll of the dice, or a hand of blackjack, it's bound to be an entertaining evening. And don't forget to bring that lucky rabbit's foot!

Craft show promises variety

Come and take in the wonderful home made crafts at the South Lyon Middle School. Take your time when browsing through the color and smell of the Pumpkinfest festivities.

The Pumpkinfest began as a craft show with just a few tables, and over the years has blossomed into a huge craft sale.

This year organizers expect over 200 crafters to offer their wares. Indeed, so many crafters have signed up that the show will feature about half of the tables outside the South Lyon Middle School.

"We had about 100 tables last year," said Pumpkinfest President Dayna Johnston. "This year, we've got that many outside.

She added that many of the crafters returning this year have been with Pumpkinfest since its beginning 11 years ago.

The Pumkinfest parade troops down Pontiac Trail on Saturday at 10 a.m.

Step off to a fun weekend

Parade

By Anne Seebaldt Gogolin

The 11th Annual Pumpkinfest Parade will be a mixture of the old and new.

Parade organizer Ole Hägen, who also serves as a member of the Pumpkinfest board of directors, said that the parade will take place Oct. 7 at 10 a.m.

"The parade is open to anybody who would like to be in it," Hägen said.

As of Sept. 13, the parade includes 21 units. Hägen said that he expects between 70 and 80 parade entries, including individuals, their vehicles, and floats.

"A lot of stuff comes in at the last minute," he said.

Late parade entries get squeezed in somewhere, but will not be listed in the program. The general event theme this year is Pumpkinfest '95 and is fairly flexible.

"We allow for a great deal of creativity in floats," Hägen said.

He does not expect any high school floats to enter because Homecoming for South Lyon is later than the Oct. 6-8 event.

The present Pumpkinfest schedule states the starting point at the 700 Bowl. The city has again granted the Pumpkinfest a permit to start there, and CSX Railroad has again agreed to hold off any trains for a period of an hour and twenty minutes.

In addition, the carnival will open with special events Oct. 5.

Some things are already decided: the lineup time (8:30 a.m.), the parade's starting time (10 a.m.) and it will end on Nine Mile near the South Lyon Middle School. The early lineup time gives the judges plenty of time to choose the best float.

Hägen has asked that anyone picking up parade participants park in the Big Wheel parking lot, as there will be a lot of congestion at the parade's end.

Helping to line up the parade this year will be the South Lyon Radio Club, the South Lyon Fire Department and the South Lyon Jaycees.

"It takes a lot of good manpower on this day to make everything run smooth and safe for everyone," Hägen said.

Also, by order of the South Lyon Police Department, there will not be any candy thrown to spectators by the parade participants. People along the street are advised to keep children back so marchers and floats have all the room they need.

Repeat participants include State Rep. Bill Bullard (R-Milford), the South Lyon High

Event founded on family fun

By Taylor Lincoln

History

Like pumpkins that grow and grow and grow, the Pumpkinfest has grown and grown and grown since the first seeds were planted 11 years ago.

Dayna Johnston, the chairperson's of this year's festival, remembers Pumpkinfest's first year. It consisted of a spaghetti dinner with crafters and pony rides.

Since then, it's grown to include many more crafters, a parade, a carnival, and a plethora of contests.

But the purpose of the event has not wavered. Johnston says that when the late Dean Sparks came up with the idea for Pumpkinfest, he envisioned it as an event to encourage family values.

And that's still the purpose.

"The concept of the Pumpkinfest is that families could come for less than $10 have have a good time," Johnston says.

Inexpensive family entertainment is one of the hallmarks of the event. Only the carnival costs money to enter (and there's a coupon to knock its cost down by $2). Everything else — including a pumpkin pie eating contest a scare-crow decorating contest, and a Lego constructing contest (among other contests) — is free.

Crafts have always been the centerpiece of the festival, and many of the crafters have been part of it from its beginnings.

"We've got crafters who've been with us for 11 years," Johnston says.

More than just to give crafters a chance to sell their products, or to give people a chance to adorn their living rooms with creative ornaments and decorations, the craft sales offer local organizations a chance to make money for their needs.

Pumkinfest is also designed to help raise money for local organizations. Various local groups reap the revenues from handling parking and selling concessions.

"It's to help build their organizations so that they don't have to pull on the businesses in town," Johnston says.

Parade promises plenty

School Marching Band. The South Lyon High School cheerleading squads, a calliope sponsored by D&N Bank. Arabian horses owned by the Harm family.

Also back for another year's marching will be the Plymouth Fife and Drum Corps. WSDS Radio in Ypsilanti. Todd's Service/Auto Rain in Hamburg (which owns the world's largest hydroseeder), the Civil Air Patrol (New Hudson area), and the Oakland County Marine Division.

Hägen said that Bullard has been in all the Pumpkinfest Parades and the Oakland County Marine Division has been in most - possibly all - of them. Pokadot the Clown and Co. are new participants in the parade.

Bagged a big one

Group always lends a hand

By Rick Byrne

The duties of the Pumpkinfest Board don't begin and end with this weekend's event.

Though the group plans year-round for its annual fall shindig, the group also performs numerous community services, and is rather shy about taking credit for it.

"We just keep our mouths shut and our heads down," said Dayna Johnston, president of the Pumpkinfest Board. "But we help wherever we're needed."

That means you may find the Pumpkinfest Board hanging American flags from the downtown lampposts at holiday time. Or running an annual Halloween party at the South Lyon city fire station.

Carole Peterlin of the South Lyon schools coordinates the annual donation of Christmas trees to disadvantaged preschoolers in the APEX and BEST programs.

"When families get burned out of their homes, we get them blankets, food, and maybe clothes if they need to get to work the next day," said Johnston. "And we've helped the National Honor Society at the high school. When the football team had pay-to-play, we paid for some of the football players to play if they couldn't afford to."

In past years, the Pumpkinfest Board has helped send handicapped children to camp from the community. They've helped put playground equipment in at the schools, and would like to do the same for the city parks.

"We do everything and anything," Johnston said. "All we do is give back to the community. And it's a great community to give back to. I've lived here since I was 10 years old."

She's been active in the community from the time she was a youngster, and she's been involved in the Pumpkinfest almost from the beginning.

"LaVerne Huyck came to me and asked me to help Dean Sparks and Lee Clair," she said. "I've been hooked ever since."

The group welcomes help and input at any time. Meetings are 7:30 p.m. the third Thursday of every month in the lounge at the 700 Bowl.

Pumpkinfest board makes it possible

The South Lyon Pumpkinfest is truly a grass roots community event that wouldn't be possible without the help and commitment of local residents who donate their time and energy.

The group behind the event is the Pumpkinfest Board.

President of the board is Dayna Johnston, and vice president is Peggy Hall. Assistant to the vice president is John Kates.

Linda Lamoreaux is treasurer of the group, and Jan Renwick is secretary.

The Board

The board of trustees consists of Steve Schuldt, Jo and Chris Williams, Dale Lamoreaux, Craig Johnston, Ole Hägen, Calvin Sheppard and Elaine Anderson.

The board meets on the third Wednesday of every month in the lounge of the 700 Bowl, and when this year's Pumpkinfest ends, the planning will begin immediately for next year's.

Church hosts puppet shows

A unique pair of puppet shows will be presented by the Crossroads Community Church on Saturday, Oct. 7, on the Main Stage at the South Lyon Middle School.

The first will be at 12:30 pm., and the second will be at 3 p.m. Both presentations will last 45 minutes.

Crossroads Community Church was established just three years ago. Contemporary music, meaningful dramas and relevant messages are used to address the concerns of everyday life. The truths of the Christian faith are presented in a unique and fresh format.

Nursery is provided every Sunday as well as a special service for children.

Crossroads meets at 10 a.m., Sunday morning at the South Lyon High School.

Junior football club goes it alone on parking

By Merrill Cain

Pumpkinfest goers can rest assured that when they dig into their pockets for parking fees at this year's festival the money will go right back into one of the most successful kids programs in the South Lyon community.

At this year's festival, volunteers from the South Lyon Panthers junior football league program will handle all of the parking responsibilities. That includes directing festival-goers to assigned parking areas and collecting the $2 per car fee for parking.

The rate is the same as last year but the Panthers are taking a larger role than they did in the 1994 festival, according to Bill Ernest, Panthers vice president in charge of fundraising.

Ernest said that last year the Panthers shared the parking duties with the South Lyon High School band boosters and a local Boy Scout troop.

A total of about $2,000 was raised between the three groups, said Ernest, but the Panthers wound up taking slightly more than a third of the take because the organization's volunteers wound up putting in more time during the festival than the other groups.

This year the Pumpkinfest committee offered the duties just to the Panthers and the group was very receptive to the proposal.

"When we did it last year it worked out pretty good," Ernest said, "so we were happy to do it again this year."

The Panthers, which consists of nine junior league football and cheer teams comprised of South Lyon kids ages 8 through 13, has already made sure that the Pumpkinfest parking areas will be fully manned during the Saturday and Sunday festival.

"We've got a lot of volunteers who've already signed up and we've set them up in specific time slots," Ernest said.

Parking for this year's festival will be a little more restricted than in year's past. Because of projects at the South Lyon Middle School and space required for the Pumpkinfest events, parking will be restricted mainly to the field between Centennial Elementary and the middle school where most of the events will be held.

There will be some additional parking at the middle school but most of the spaces at the facility will be designated for handicap parking, Ernest said.

The money generated from the parking fees will go directly into the Panther's general fund to benefit the 200 kids in the organization.

Ernest said there's no specific target for the funds, but he pointed out that last year's proceeds were used for the purchase of new football equipment and cheer uniforms.

"All of the money will go right back to the kids," Ernest said.

Panther football boasts big program

The South Lyon Junior Football Association was formed by a group of parents who wished to provide a quality, well-supervised youth athletic experience. They modeled these activities not just to prepare athletes for high school football but to offer football and cheerleading ideals and experiences to those children who would not probably partake of them on a high school level or beyond.

After incorporation as a private, non-profit educational agency (501(c)3) in 1981, the board of director-driven association sponsored, and continues to sponsor, fundraisers to supply the annual budget which provides equipment, insurance, medical support and other safeguards for the children involved in the program. The group receives no funding from the state, school district or community education. All adults are volunteers and serve without compensation. The league is a member of the Livingston County Junior Football Association.

The Panthers, the teams supported by the association, serves children ages 8 through 13 and invited mascots. The league includes three teams of football players, three cheer squads and three pompon teams. Each set of squads is defined by combinations of age, weight and/or grade. ideals of sportsmanship, fair play and teamwork are paramount to the adults involved in the instruction of these young athletes.

Names of prospective members are taken year-round by contacting the league's membership secretary, Becky Champe at 437-2021. Waiting lists are often long and , while we strive to include every child who wishes to participate, sometimes carry over for two years.

Country star headlines Pumpkinfest again

By Taylor Lincoln

Tracey Lynne wants to make sure her audience never leaves disappointed.

"Even if I am dog tired, if the people are screaming 'one more!' 'one more!' hitting their hands on the table, we'll try to please them," she says. "Because we know that way they'll come back."

Lynne, herself, is back.

The country music singer who grew up in New Hudson and graduated from South Lyon High School in 1984 is back in South Lyon after a three-year hiatus in Nashville — the country music capital.

She will perform for at this weekend's Pumpkinfest on the main stage at South Lyon Middle School at 5 p.m. Saturday.

Lynne went to Nashville in 1991 because she wanted to be in "the center of the business." She returned in the middle of 1994 with the wisdom that the center of the country music business is a tough place to get to.

Her plan was to earn a living as a demo singer, providing the vocals for "test" recordings, while she pursued her career as a performer. The work was hard to come by, however, and she found herself working odd jobs to get by.

Tracey Lynne will perform for her hometown fans Saturday night at 5 p.m.

Entertainment

"It's a tough gambit down there," she says "It's a lot of politics."

Despite the tough task of earning a living, she had many successes in Nashville. She was able to get many performing dates and she performed on TV several times. Winning the 1992 Independent Entertainers Association's "Female Songwriter/Entertainer of the Year" was her crowning achievement in Nashville.

Now, she's back performing in the South Lyon area, glad to be able to perform before familiar audiences.

"I feed off the audience," she says. "I get out in the audience with my guitar. I dance with them." She describes her performances as "wholesome with a sly edge."

Her enthusiasm with her audiences leaves lasting impressions: some of the members of

Pedal Power

Tractor pull still a fest favorite

By Rick Byrne

When TV's Tim The Toolman Taylor calls for "More power!" he needs look no further than the annual Pedal Tractor Pull, sponsored this year by the Pumpkinfest Board.

The tractor pull for kids has become an increasingly popular attraction over the years, and this year as many as 100 kids between the ages of 3 and 10 will push their pedals with all their mettle, with the hopes of hauling the heaviest load.

Al Alderges, who organizes about 25 pedal tractor pulls a year throughout Michigan and Ohio said, "We're there for two days, and we'll give participant ribbon to each of the kids that signs up."

The kiddie pulls are designed just like the full-size tractor pulls you see in the Silverdome or on TV. A weight-transfer sled is hooked to the back of a pedal-powered tractor. The further the tractor goes, the more weight is transferred onto the front skid of the sled.

Competition will be broken up by age into 3- and 4-year-olds, 5- and 6-year-olds, 7- and 8-year-olds and 9- and 10-year-olds. Boys compete separately from the girls because, said Alderges, the girls can actually outpull the boys since they develop at an earlier age.

Age group competition keeps things fair, Alderges said. "About 14 years ago we used to do it by weight. But then we had a 60-pound 8-year-old, and a 60-pound 5-year-old, and there's quite a difference in the muscle structure between 5 and 8. So we've done it by age, and generally that seems to be the most equitable."

A competitor gives his all in the Kiddie Tractor Pull.

Tractor Pull

A small sled for the youngest kids can transfer up to 121 pounds. The larger sled for the older competitors can transfer as much as 500 to 600 pounds.

"We have different size tractors for each age group," said Alderges. "We gear them all differently, but all the kids in the same age group will pull with the same tractor."

The seat is adjustable on the tractors used by the older kids.

Alderges is a manufacturer's representative from Ann Arbor who grew up on a farm in Owosso.

"I was a member of an old gas tractor association in Oakley, north of Owosso, and I pulled antique tractors at Greenfield Village and various places," he said. "I saw the idea for a pedal tractor sled in Toy Farmer magazine, which I get because I collect old farm toys.

Last year's Pugh Shows Carnival brought smiles to the face of many.

Rides offer thrills for all

Carnival

One of the Pumpkinfest's most popular attractions, a midway and carnival featuring rides for all ages will return once again this year.

Festival-goers will be able to win prizes at the games of skill and chance along the midway, eat cotton-candy and corn dogs, and get a bird's-eye-view of this year's Pumpkinfest from the top of a ferris wheel as Pugh Shows provides its full-sized carnival on the South Lyon Middle School grounds.

Although individual tickets can be purchased for each ride, carnival-goers can take advantage of a big money-saver by purchasing an all-day wristband for $11. Wristband purchasers will have unlimited rides all day long. Alert South Lyon Herald readers may also find a $2-off coupon in this week's paper, making the wristband an even bigger bargain.

Carnival hours for this year are set for 4 p.m. to midnight Friday, 11 a.m. to midnight on Saturday, and 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Sunday.

As a special added benefit to the South Lyon community, which has supported Pugh shows for many years at the Pumpkinfest, the carnival will open a day earlier, Thursday Oct. 5, from 4-10 p.m.

A portion of that day's proceeds will be donated to the Friends of South Lyon Community Education.

On that day, all rides will be $1. Sorry, but no passes, coupons or all-day wristbands will be honored on the Friends of Community Education day.

the sleds, and I called and got one. I mentioned to Roger Phelps, who ran the Saline fair, that I'd bought a sled. That was our first event. It's been more or less history ever since. We spread around by word of mouth."

He now has 30 pedal tractors and five sleds to go with his collection of full size antique tractors and 500 farm miniatures.

Alderges got into the Pumpkinfest getting haircuts from late Pumpkinfest founder Dean Sparks.

"Dean Sparks was a real great person," said Alderges. "He was my barber, and I mentioned that I did these things. He encouraged me to come around. This has been one of the big draws for them ever since we've been there. We get tons of kids every year."

And it promises to be tons of fun, or at least a few hundred pounds worth. To compete come to the middle school parking lot from 10 a.m. on. Competition will be at 1 p.m. both Saturday and Sunday of the festival.

PB Putter's earns praise

Ever try to cheer someone who has had a bad day?

For the team of people at PB Putter's restaurant, making people smile is a challenge they meet every day.

In a recent South Lyon Herald readers' poll, diners voted PB Putter's, located at Grand River Avenue and Milford Road to have the best overall atmosphere. That's in addition to people voting the restaurant as having the best fresh fish and steaks.

Partners Gary Lepak and Paul Baker believe it boils down to a highly motivated and experienced staff that follows a teamwork philosophy. That teamwork has earned the reastaurant the Business of the Year award from the South Lyon Area Chamber of Commerce.

"I see myself as the coach," Lepak said. "It's up to us from the crack of dawn to motivate and energize (the PB Putter's staff). The majority of our staff has been here since Day One – from the kitchen to the front of the house."

Lepak said he works to blend the talent and chemistry of his staff to offer the best food, provide excellent service and create an atmosphere where customers feel they are important. Each member of the team, he said, plays a key role in meeting that challenge

"You're only as good as the last meal you've served," Lepak said. "It's a compliment to our executive chef, Jaime Fleissner, who has by all means worked to a performance level that is needed to maintain that high quality we want to be recognized for on a consistent basis."

The enthusiasm behind PB Putter's was born in 1982 when Paul Baker purchased the Goat Farm Tavern in Novi. Before Baker sold the tavern in 1989, Lepak came to work for Baker as bartender and night manager.

"The chemistry of the personalities blended together," Lepak recalled. "It was similar to the reuniting of two long lost brothers."

Business of the Year

They pooled their strengths in management providing their combined 200 percent energy flow to create the best restaurant ambience, food and service. Lepak doesn't look at other restaurants as competition. He said he believes the PB Putter's staff must look inward and compete with itself to improve daily.

That idealism has kept PB Putter's on a motivated trek. Lepak and Baker bought the restaurant in December 1993.

They shut down for two week's worth of renovations

Chamber will choose best window on Friday

By Taylor Lincoln

Window Decorating Contest

Here are a couple of things you need to know about the Pumpkinfest Window Decorating Contest: your decorations don't have to be on windows and (though "Closest to the theme" is one of three judging criteria) this year's theme is about as broad as the Pacific Ocean.

The Window Decorating Contest, which is sponsored by the South Lyon Area Chamber of Commerce, is as old as the Pumpkinfest itself. It's going into its 11th year. But the words "Window Decorating" are more about the concept than the specific nature of the contest. It's more a matter of decorating in general

Businesses that don't have prominent front windows might find something else to accentuate.

"Let's say you own a gas station," Chamber director Lisa Willard says. "You might want to decorate the pumps."

Now, about the theme...

Last year's theme was "Ten Years and Still Growing," which is pretty general. This year's theme takes the generality a step further. It's just "Pumpkinfest."

"It leaves a lot of room for creativity," Willard says.

"OK, it's Pumpkinfest," you ask. "What does that mean?"

Pumpkinfest is about autumn and it's about South Lyon. If your window decorating idea (or pump decorating idea, or roof decorating idea) relates to either of these you're all set on the "closest to theme" criterion.

The other two criteria are artistic effort and originality. These don't require a lot of explanation and Willard is hesitant to offer any suggestions. South Lyon's businesses have done just fine in the past while working from a blank slate.

"We don't intend to be art critics. It's merely intended to make our town as attractive as possible," Willard says. "One thing that's nice about this contest is that it's really hard to pick a winner each year."

If interested in painting your windows, Art Craft Shop Owner Carlene Atchison recommends using acrylic paint, which her store sells.

Also, the contest directors are making a big push this year to get New Hudson businesses involved.

Whether you're in South Lyon or New Hudson, all you have to do is make a phone call to sign up to have your decorations judged. Just call the chamber at 437-3257 before noon on Oct. 5 to register.

Judging will begin at 8 a.m. on Oct. 6, so have your decorations ready by then.

before reopening as PB Putter's in January 1994. The partners installed new hardwood floors, brass and wood railings and new bars, in addition to completing the lower level banquet room.

To provide more parking, the partners purchaseed a quarter acre lot next to the restaurant and paving and curbing are currently under way.

Lepak said a new outdoor dining deck will also be built. The dining area would seat 60 to 70 people and possibly include an outdoor grill.

And the PB Putter's name is also expanding. In early April, Lepak and Baker expanded to the clubhouse and banquet facility at Tanglewood Golf Course, where the PB Putter's golf theme blends well.

PB Putter's at Tanglewood provides an original menu under the direction of chef and manager John Gillis Jr. and food purchasing director Scott Rye.

Lepak envisions more PB Putter's restaurants in the future and has strong sights set on towns like Brighton and Hartland.

Paul Baker hasn't shown any signs of resting on his laurels either. This summer he announced he'll be establishing Bakers, a catering service based in Milford.

To help him manage the growing task, Lepak said he often depends on financial controller Sharon Atherton to keep the company's numbers in order.

Lepak also hired Victor Adler to manage the original PB Putter's. Lepak believes Adler, a Bennigan's and Magic Pan restaurants veteran, will relieve him of some of his duties while carrying on PB Putter's record of success.

Contest named in tribute for mighty wrist wrestler

By Anne Seebaldt Gogolin

Although all the details may not yet be finalized, Rita Koulizos said that she hopes the Pumpkinfest Tug-of-War – which is dedicated to her late husband – will be a success.

Koulizos said that her husband , George, was a fairly well-known "wrist wrestler" in the late 1970s and early 1980s. He served as a contracted representative for Budweiser in such events.

George also participated in and assisted in promoting many charity wrestling events. He owned a print shop in Texas.

"It was a very exciting time," Rita said. "We lived all over the place."

The Koulizos family moved around quite a bit due to the wresting-related work. They lived in Florida, Texas, and Mississippi before moving to Michigan and were relative newcomers to South Lyon.

Tug-O-War

Rita explained that last year, when Dave Willaker (of Willaker Homes) was asked by Pumpkinfest committee members to work on a Tug-of-War event, he came up with the concept of a memorial: The Mighty George Koulizos Tug-of-War.

George died of lung disease last fall while waiting for a lung transplant – but not without a fight.

The Tug-of-War is scheduled for 1 p.m. Sunday, with the builders from Willaker homes and elsewhere to participate. Last year, the event was very informal.

"I think they'll have a better turnout this year," she said. Koulizos added that she was pleased by the idea of a memorial to her husband. "He was pretty dynamic... I think that's why Dave Willaker used The Mighty George Koulizos as an adjective. I think it's great.

"It's a nice memorial. He raised a lot of money for charity. I'm really thankful that they thought of such a nice gesture."

Tracey Lynne tops list of weekend's performers

her 200-member fan club even made the trek down south to see her play in Nashville.

Tania Herndon, Lynne's manager, has been busy handling the inquiries of Lynne's fan club members since her return.

What should first-time Lynne concert-goers expect? Well, she focuses on country music: "Country music just seems to hit everybody. There's a song out there for every person."

But, she also performs rock and roll songs, she says. In addition to songs written by a plethora of famous singers, her repertoire includes about 25 Tracey Lynne originals.

As far as what mix of songs to expect, well, there's no telling.

"I'll go to a show and I never know what she's going to do," Herndon says. "Tracey's the type that when she gets out ... it's very one on one."

What are Lynne's plans for the future? Well, she hasn't given up on her dream of being in the center of things. She wants to go back to Nashville. She's thinking of going to school to learn more about the recording industry and possibly setting up a recording studio. That way she could finance her career.

She also aims for success, but she measures success differently than some.

"To me, success is longevity," she says. "Success is being able to be 50 years old and drawing as many people as when you're 25."

Lynne, who admits to having played the first Pumpkinfest with a long-disbanded rock and roll act, will be Saturday's featured attraction. But she won't be the only act on stage this weekend.

Northville's Fife and Drum Corps will march on Saturday at 11:30 a.m

New on the entertainment list are the Hometown Kids Cloggers from Howell. This troupe of young girls will perform their old time western dance, Saturday at 4 p.m.

The Sixth Gate Cloggers from Novi will also make their return on Saturday at 2 p.m. The Sixth Gate Cloggers is a group of senior citizens who can dance like teenagers.

On Sunday, the Northville Mainstreet Cloggers will also perform at 1 p.m.

Karaoke singers can try out the spotlight on Sunday from noon to 4 p.m.

Jaycees to play host to pumpkin contests

By Rick Byrne

The South Lyon Jaycees have played a key role in Pumpkinfest from the beginning, and this year they'll sponsor of two of the festival's cornerstone events.

First, they'll step in to host the Pumpkin Pie Eating contest. According to Patrick Pattison, the Jaycees' coordinator for the Pumpkinfest, Showerman's IGA will supply the pies, and the Jaycees will emcee.

The Jaycees take particular pride in hosting this event because one of their own, President Mike Harris, won the adult competition last year.

"We're new to hosting it this year," said Pattison. "We'll divide

Carving, Pie Eating

the contestants up by age groups. That's how we want to do it."

Competitors will put their hands behind their backs, bury their face in a pie, and start biting until the tray is empty.

The competition will take place at South Lyon Middle School at 2:30 p.m.

The second Jaycee-sponsored event will be the Pumpkin Carving. Although there will be a competition, divided by age groups, for the best carving, everyone is encouraged to drop by McHattie Park and try their hand at it.

Erwin's Orchard will supply the pumpkins, but participants must supply their own tools, so come prepared with knives, scoops, candles or other creative props. What comes out of it is up to you. Carving begins at 10 a.m. and the judging for the best one will be at the end of each day.

The Jaycees will also help with the coordination of Saturday's Pumpkinfest Parade. Pattison said there's plenty of enthusiasm in anticipation for the event.

"We passed out sheets and got 15 people signed up right away," he said.

PRECISION HEAT TREATING

The Largest Commercial Source for Salt Bath Heat Treating and Ionitriding in the U.S.

Ionitriding What Is It?

A new and highly developed process for surface hardening: engineering components of alloy steel or cast iron can be given greater wear resistance and durability. The hardening takes place in the plasma of a current intensive glow discharge. Nitrogen or other elements with good diffusibility are diffused into the surface of the workplace. There is a great variety of treatments possible.

The Principal Advantage of Ionitriding:

To a large extent, the structure , thickness, hardness, and homogeneity of the compound and diffusion zones can be controlled independently of each other. This allows the optimum properties to be produced to suit the service requirements. Wear of moving parts is greatly reduced and the fatigue strength is significantly increased.

Wild waitperson's race puts servers on the spot

A new event to this year's Pumpkinfest is The Wild Waitperson Race, which will take place Sunday at 2 p.m. in front of the stage at South Lyon Middle School.

In the competition, area waitpersons, both male and female, will run a number of different races with full trays. The goal will be to finish the fastest without committing the server's worst sin: spilling the tray.

The Wild Waiter/Waitress Race will consist of three different categories, these are: (1) Obstacle Course, (2) Relay Race, and (3) Glass Swap Race.

The different procedures for each race will be described below along with each of their rules.

(1) Obstacle Course:

Participants will load their own trays, all participants will have the same items on their trays. (You will be instructed on the day of the race what items to put on your tray).

You will have to go over, under and around several different obstacles. The fastest time from the loading of the tray to the finish line wins.

(2) Relay Race:

All trays will loaded with a specific number of glasses of water.

Participants will go down, around the cone and back to the start line, and then pass the tray to the next team member.

If a participant spills a glass on the tray, or knocks it off the tray, they will need to go back and have the glass refilled and redo their part of the race. THE ENTIRE TEAM DOES NOT HAVE TO START OVER, ONLY THE PERSON WHO SPILLED.

The fastest time with all glasses standing and at least some water in the glasses wins.

If there is a tie, the team with the most water left wins.

(3) Glass Swap Race:

There will be 5 glasses of blue water on a table at one end and 5 glasses of red water on a table at the opposite end.

Participants will need to take one glass of blue water to the red table and then bring a glass of red water back to the blue table.

They will continue in this manner until all of the blue water is on the red table and all the red water is on the blue table.

Fastest time wins.

If anything is unclear or anyone has any questions concerning the races themselves or the rules please call Jill Lamoreaux at 437-8703. Please leave a message if no one answers. Thank you.

Zoo brings sampling of critters

The Potter Park Zoo and its vast array or animals will be on hand again for the 1995 Pumpkinfest.

Located in Lansing at 1301 S. Pennsylvania Ave., five miles from downtown Lansing, the Potter Park Zoo is one of that city's premier attractions.

The zoo was a donation from James W. Potter in 1913, although it wasn't dedicated until 1918. The zoo's first residents were a raccoon, an elk, and a deer.

Today the Potter Park Zoo boasts more than 400 animals representing over 100 different species, including many endangered species.

As part of its educational outreach, the zoo will bring a sampling of critters to the Pumpkinfest at South Lyon Middle School

Viewing bill be from 10 a.m. to closing on Saturday and Sunday of the festival. Education curator Kelliann Whitney will be on hand to answer questions.

The zoo also offers an adult lecture series and children's day camps that teach children how to care for all kinds of animals. For details, call 517-371-3926.

Firefighter Craig Johnston demonstrates his crawling ability in the new training maze

Training maze on display

By Jim Totten

It's not easy getting into the 4-foot wide maze. But it's even harder getting out, especially when you're wearing full fire gear and an air tank on your back.

Welcome to the South Lyon City fire department's training maze.

Built by the volunteer muscle of city firefighters and the generous donations of local businesses, the maze is the only one in Oakland County.

The department will set up the portable maze at the 1995 Pumpkinfest for residents to view.

Constructed of wood and bolts, the maze gives firefighters a firsthand experience of what it is like in a burning home. Firefighters will enter the maze in full gear with their masks blacked out. Just like a smoke-filled home, they will have to feel their way through the maze.

"It's a good way to keep them constantly trained at a higher level," said South Lyon Fire Chief Craig Kaska.

He said the maze is really very important for training because his department does not have the luxury of a smoke house, which is a special facility that can be filled with smoke or even have actual fires.

He said firefighters will learn what it feels like to be in a confined, dark space and overcome any fears of claustrophobia

Before the maze, Kaska said firefighters learned just from experience.

Kaska added that he did not push for the maze. The idea and desire to make it came from a handful of city firefighters.

"I'm proud of my firefighters for taking on such a big project and completing it themselves," he said. "They got it rolling and took care of it themselves."

Those firefighters who have spent the entire weekend working on the maze are Paul Doyle, Ed Goers and Sgt. Craig Johnston.

Johnston, a 19-year veteran of the South Lyon fire department, said the maze was built modular so it could be changed around, preventing firefighters from memorizing the obstacles. The ladder area can be switched and so can the stairs.

"It will make them better prepared for sure," Johnston said. With the preparation behind them, he said firefighters will be less likely to panic in a real blaze.

"If something wipes your mask off, you could die in a fire," Johnston said about what could possibly happen. In the maze, there are ropes tied across the crawl space which stimulate falling rafters which could knock off a firefighter's air mask.

He said the maze was built

Composting spotlighted

Tuthill Farms and Composting will have a display at the 1995 Pumpkinfest showing people how they can compost at home, or dispose of yard waste in a safe and legal manner.

The display will be open all weekend long at South Lyon Middle School.

Last spring, Tuthill Farms and Composting was formed to address the need for a composting site in our area. Recent state law now requires that yard waste be sent to an accepted composting facility.

The Tuthill family, Lloyd, Jim and Sandra, hope that by adding composting to their current farming practices, they can keep their 132-year-old farm in operation. Currently the Tuthills raise crops and 150 head of cattle organically. They are members of the Michigan Composting Council, and are coordinating their composting venture with the Department of Agriculture and the Department of Natural Resources.

Tuthill Farms accepts leaves, grass clippings, brush, wood chips and sod. Plastic bags must be emptied on site, but paper lawn bags are acceptable. Prices run $1 per bag or $5 per cubic yard. Hours are 7 a.m. to dark, so that residential and commercial customers can drop off materials before or after regular business hours.

The Tuthill farm is located at 10505 Tuthill Road in Green Oak Township.

Drop-off customers are asked to call ahead if possible. Call 810-437-7354.

Caught his limit

Emil Cole, a 10-year-old student from Guardian Lutheran School, found a pumpkin just within a manageable weight.

Kiwanis to host pancake breakfast

Pancakes will be flipping off the griddle and into hungry mouths on both Saturday and Sunday at the South Lyon Pumpkinfest.

The South Lyon Kiwanis will be putting on a pancake breakfast to benefit charitable organizations in the area.

The all-you-can-eat pancake event will be held 7:30 a.m. to 11 a.m. at the sixth grade cafeteria of the South Lyon Middle School.

The breakfast provides the first opportunity for some local people to view the new addition on the South Lyon Middle School.

After the breakfast, residents can then stroll around the middle school grounds to check out the Pumpkinfest festivities.

Department debuts maze with about $1,500 of donated materials and a couple of cash contributions which came from the community.

Johnston said local businesses were more than willing to help out after he explained what the department was doing. Those businesses that donated materials were Detroit Edison, South Lyon Lumber and Farm Center, Martin's Hardware, DeMaria Construction, Century Truss and Willacker Homes. The department also received money from the Pumpkinfest Committee and the city.

The maze will not only be used by the South Lyon city fire department. Other communities have already asked to borrow the structure to help train their own firefighters.

NEWTON'S SEMI-ANNUAL UPHOLSTERY SALE

Novi

Sterling Heights

Quality Inside And Out...That's Newton's Value.

ROWE
The Rowe Furniture Limited Lifetime Warranty.

Would you buy a car without looking under the hood? Probably not. And we don't think you should buy a sofa without "looking under the fabric". Rowe takes great pride in producing quality furniture. And they guarantee it with the best warranty in the business. When you get great style, comfort and quality... and affordable prices... you get great value. That's Rowe.

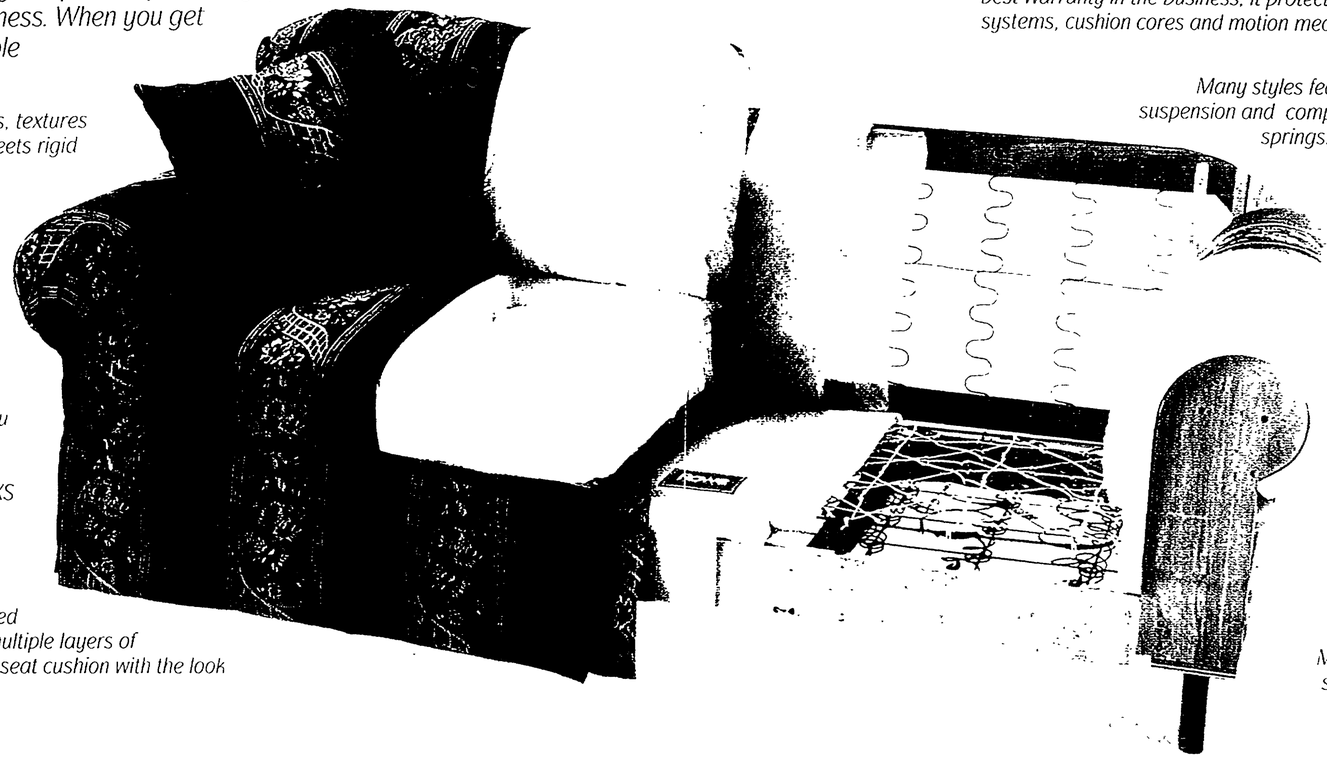
Choose from hundreds of fabrics in a vast array of colors, textures and patterns. Every yard is thoroughly inspected and meets rigid quality standards.

Fabrics are sewn with seven to eight stitches per inch on one half-inch seams. Details, like hand pleating and matched stripes, enhance overall appearance.

Back pillows are overstuffed with a polyester fiber combination, filled to just the right density for comfort and support every time you lean back.

Rowe seat cushions are specially constructed to give you superior comfort and support. Their standard 300-CC cushion is polyurethane foam, wrapped with polyester fibers for enhanced surface softness. The optional 500-XS cushion uses foam plus high-carbon steel coil springs. It, too, is wrapped with polyester fibers and provides a buoyant and somewhat softer surface.

Then there's the down-like DP-750 seat cushion. Featured in select styles, this cushion contains a foam core and multiple layers of polyester fibers. The result is a very soft, unconstructed seat cushion with the look and feel of down-filled upholstery.



Rowe's Limited Lifetime Warranty is attached to every piece of furniture they produce. The best warranty in the business, it protects against manufacturing defects on frames, spring systems, cushion cores and motion mechanisms.

Many styles feature 8-way hand tied coil spring construction to ensure independent suspension and compression. As a back-up, steel helicals are used at four points between springs. All this provides an individualized ride. (Some styles feature sinuous coil springs described below.)

Some seating spring systems and most backs are constructed of high-carbon sinuous coil springs and wrapped lateral tie wires, which create uniform suspension and comfort across the back or under the deck and cushions.

Wood parts are accurately milled and carefully finished. Key points are double-doweled, glued and screwed. It's attention to details like these that create a solid frame.

Padding of polyurethane foam and cotton batting create shape and softness to the touch. Padding in the right places helps protect against the wear and tear of daily use.

Rowe frames are made of kiln-dried solid hardwoods and seven-ply hardwood laminate. Kiln-drying reduces moisture and preserves the wood's integrity, which prevents warping, splitting and cracking.

Motion mechanisms used in sofas, sleep sofas and reclining swivel or swivel rocker chairs also meet strict quality standards for safety and ease of operation. Motion mechanisms are guaranteed for life.

Balance Transfer Option: There are no transfer fees to transfer balances from your current credit card accounts to your new First USA Visa account, and First USA will take care of the paperwork. The MasterCard ®, Visa ®, Discover ®, or Optima℠ accounts you indicate will show a credit, reducing the amount you owe by the amount you transferred. The available credit on your new Visa will be reduced, just as if you had made a purchase. The transfer will show up on your first statement. Your other credit card accounts will not be closed (even if you transfer the entire balance). Remember, it may take up to three weeks to set up your account and post the balance transfer transactions to your other accounts. So you may still need to make payments to your other accounts to keep them current. If you want to close an account, please contact the credit card company directly. Balance transfer is contingent upon approval of your Visa account. First USA reserves the right to decline to process any balance transfer request and will not process a balance transfer request from any other First USA account.

You agree that First USA Bank has the right to obtain a current credit report in connection with First USA Bank's review of your application and subsequently in connection with a requested charge to your account, the renewal of your account or a change in your credit line.

Upon your request, we will tell you the name and address of each consumer reporting agency from which we obtained a consumer report on you. The minimum gross annual household income required for a Visa Gold card is $30,000, $14,400 minimum individual income is required for a Visa Classic card.
