Rec boosters will stay intact

By RANDY COBLE

Reports of the demise of the Friends of Northville Parks & Recreation, to borrow a phrase from Mark Twain, are greatly exaggerated, President Mary Gans said this week.

While closing up shop altogether was a possibility the volunteer Rec booster group considered, he explained, in the end the Friends decided merely to scale back their

A mailer sent to the hundreds of members of the Friends recently entitled Where do we go from here? started the debate.

"We found ourselves at a crossroads," Gans said. "We saw that we had only a few people at our meetings who were doing all the work. We contemplated what to do and there was talk of disbanding but we had another meeting (last week) and chose to concentrate on just the annual auction from now on. Now we're vibrant. We're revi-

A number of projects are in the Friends' hopper, such as lighting and a concession stand for the park on Beck Road, more landscaping for Fish Hatchery park on Seven Mile, further development of Ford Field and a possible playscape for Northville.

Taking center stage, however. will be the group's dinner and auction, held each year at Schoolcraft

The 1996 gala will be held on April 27 and the Friends are looking for items people or businesses are willing to donate for sale at the auction right now. Do it before the end of the year and there's a tax deduction in it for you.

As always, of course, the Friends are also on the prowl for new members. If you're interesting in volunteering or in donating to the auction, call Gans at 313/462-

Family wants ex-chief's name on memorial

If you take a stroll down E street in Washington, D.C., next spring you just might come across a piece of Northville's history - a tragic part of our town's past that, in the words of then Northville Record editor Don Baurle, was 'a live nightmare - something that couldn't really happen, not in Northville. But, unfortunately, it did "

Thirty years ago, Northylle City Police Chief Eugene King lived that nightmare, one unique both to his profession and this community. He became the first - and so far the only - police officer in Northville to be shot in the line of duty, gunned down by a would-be bank robber determined never to return to fail King would carry two reminders of that encounter near Main and Rogers - a pair of bullets - in his body until the day he died 11 painful years later.

Now his family, including King's son Greg. wants America to remember his sacrifice by having the former chief's name placed on the national law enforcement officers' memorial in

Racing bill on fast track to approval?

By ROBERT JACKSON Staff Writer

The state House of Representatives has passed a bill which frees the City of Northville from its dependency on the state for a share of racetrack proceeds from Northville Downs.

On the downside for city officials, however, the bill also eliminates the 4.5 percent pari-mutuel tax on live horse racing and reduces simulcast wagering funding by 3.5 percent.

The House voted 89-14 in support of HB-4526, which now sits in the state Senate awaiting approval.

The legislation, sponsored by State Reps. Willis Bullard, R-Milford, and Gerald Law, R-Plymouth. requires Northville Downs to pay all "breaks" from part-mutuel and simulcast wagering directly to the city, eliminating the state's role in distributing the funds.

Bullard said he expects the state Senate to pass the bill by mid-December. The governor supports the legislation, and I believe he'll have no trouble signing it after Senate approval," he said.

Tracks currently are rebated half the breaks or 'breakage,'

BREAKAGE FUNDS

If House Bill 4526 is enacted into law in mid-December as some expect, Northville will no longer receive the 4.5 percent para-mutuel tax on live horse racing. Instead, the city will be eligible for "breakage" funds directly from Northville Downs. Breakage is the money remaining after payouts for winning bets have been rounded down to the nearest 10 cents. Here is a list of the 1994 breakage amounts for the eight Michigan racing associations:

Ladbroke	$597,314
Northville	$350,629
Swartz Creek	$113,485
Hazel Park	$594,287
Jackson	$67,846
Saginaw	$47,206
Muskegon	$50,296
Mt. Pleasant	$7,853
Total	$1,828,918

First school 'dialog' set for next week

By ROBERT JACKSON Staff Writer

With the first High School Future's Committee community dialog taking place next week, district administrators will find out how involved the Northville community wants to get in deciding will send the wrong the future course of the district.

The dialog will take place Wednesday, Nov. 29, from 7 to 9.30 pm in the Northville High School cafeteria. The public is invited to attend The district has already invested $49,000 in one man - nationally known planning specialist Dr. William DeJong - to build a consensus between the district and community, and district officials are hoping for a good turnout. A preliminary meeting of community members in October only drew about 50 people, and Superintendent Leonard Rezmierski is

"If we don't draw about 300-400 people at this meeting, I'm afraid that message to members of the future's committee."

The new district library building is beginning to take shape, as workers near completion of the structure's outer frame. Library officials are eyeing mid to late summer 1996 as a tentative opening date. The library, made possible by a May 1994 mileage vote, will stand two stories high and use a Cady Street address (212 W. Cady). The facility will eventually move from its current location behind the Northville Police Department quarters. A plaza will separate the 25,000 square foot library from the recreation center and city hall.

Trustees turn down funding request

For CCODA, it was deja vu all

The Community Commission On Drug Abuse is launching an after school program which targets 'atrisk" middle school kids called Northville Gets Michigan Youth Moving. CCODA recently struck out for the second time with the Northville Township Board of Trustees in its attempt to obtain $500 to help fund the scheme.

The arguments program supporters offered - and the ones the trustees put forth in response were almost identical to what took place in September, when the board first turned down the request.

Sponsored by the Northville Youth Forum, with cooperation from the CCODA Prevention Netation and the Northville Action Council, the program aims to help both public and parochial middle school students identified by counselors as ones who may be in danger of stepping on land mines

I think it's worth a try where our children are concerned," said Trustee Barbara O'Brien.

Another alternative, one for which trustees expressed unanimous support in the end, was to have CCODA seek the $500 from the Northville Parks and Recreation Department, which is funded jointly with township and city tax

That didn't sit well with CCODA supporter Roxanne Casterline, who rebuked the board.

"it's not for the money," Casterline said. "It's for the whole unified community. You look at it as money. We look at it as visual responsibility. This is an example of governmental parenting."

Army sets ambitious holiday fund goal

By RANDY COBLE Staff Writer

Tis the season to be jolly and part of the reason lies in lending a helping hand to those in need.

For most of us Thanksgiving. Christmas and Hanukkah are a time to reflect on all the good things we have and look forward to fine times of family, friends, food and gifts.

But for others who can't afford decent food for their children, much less a present under the tree, the holidays are hard.

You can make a difference for your neighbors who are in just such a bind, Lieutenant Randy Vanlandingham of the Salvation Army said. Your donations of money, edibles and other items will make a real difference for the people in the area who find themselves in a bind this time of year.

"We're hoping that the whole community will reach deep into their pockets and help those in need," Vanlandingham comment-

The Salvation Army offers lots of ways to help out. Volunteers started ringing those traditional holiday bells in front of those traditional red kettles this week. They'll be out seeking donations everyday except Sundays from now until the Saturday before Christmas.

Growing numbers of families are looking for help this year, Vanlandingham said, and so the Salvation Army's fund-raising target has risen $15,000 from 1994 to a mark of $120,000.

Area Arbor Drugs and Meijer stores will not host kettle sites this year, he added, the result of corporate decisions to disallow all forms of solicitation.

If you prefer a more hands-on approach the Army's Plymouth office is taking donations of food and toiletry items for the area's needy. Right now our pantry is about 35-45 percent full, he explained. We'd like to see that go as high as possible.'

The Army is looking for non-perishable edibles such as canned meats, vegetables and soups or dry goods like pasta. Donations of tollet paper and tissue would also be helpful, Vanlandingham said.

The Plymouth office cannot accept donations of clothing, he explained, because they have no storage facilities for it. Other metro-area offices of the Salvation Army do, however, and you can contact Vanlandingham if you're interested in more information.

Bring your donations to the office at 9451 Main Street in Plymouth. It's located just south of the intersection of Main Street and Ann Arhor Road, Food can be dropped off Monday through Friday. 8:30-4:30, or on Sundays during morning worship services: 9:30-11:30 a.m. and 5-6 p.m.

If you're interested in helping Army workers sort donations, call the Plymouth office at 453-5464.

A special annual event is the Army's "Adopt a Family" Christmas program. Vanlandingham said that this year the organization hopes to give some 1,200 families special packages of food, clothing, hygiene items and gifts.

Call if you're interested in adopting a family or in being adopted.

Blade packing youth arrested

A Livonia teen who packed a blade in Northville found himself packed off to Jail last Sunday afternoon

Northville Township police stopped a 1985 Ford Mustang near Schoolcraft College on Nov. 12 because the car had no record on law enforcement computer data banks. The driver, a 16-year old Livonia boy, produced paperwork to show he'd just bought the car, however.

The reporting officer said he found a marijuana cigarette "roach" in the Mustang's ashtray. He patted down the car's three occupants and said he found a four-inch switchblade knife in the pants of a 15-year-old passenger.

The youth was ticketed and will soon face a hearing in juvenile UNDERAGE, DRUNK AND BUSTED: Township police ticketed two Northville teens for underage drinking and a third man for driving drunk one week ago.

An officer on routine patrol came upon a 1986 Buick Regal stopped in the middle of Six Mile Road east of Beck at about midnight on Nov. 16.

The driver, a 20-year-old Northville resident, said he'd stopped to allow his passengers, both 19-year-old Northville residents, to urinate.

Harder to explain were the numerous beer cans on the ground by the car and inside the Regal itself.

The driver failed sobriety tests and was arrested.

Testing later at police headquarters showed him to have a blood alcohol level of .11 percent, above the legal limit.

He posted bond and was released. All three were scheduled to attend court hearings yesterday.

MARLJUANA FOUND: Township police arrested a Plymouth man for possession of marijuana on

The reporting officer said he stopped the man's 1990 Dodge Shadow on Haggerty near Seven Mile after noting that its rear taillight was out.

He saw a glass with a mixed drink inside behind the driver's seat of the vehicle, occupied by the man, 23.

While he passed sobriety tests, the man admitted to having marijuana in the glove box, police said. He was released at police headquarters after posting bond and faces a Dec. 4 court hearing.

SMOKING AGAIN: Two Northville High School students were cited for prohibitive smoking on high school property Nov. 14.

One of the two students, a 16year-old Northville girl, was also suspended from school for five days, according to police records.

The two youths were caught smoking cigarettes by the high school hall monitor, according to police.

VODKA 'N' VIOLATION: An 18year-old Wixom man who allegedly tried to steal a fifth of liquor from Melier on Nov. 14 spent some time behind bars because of it.

Township police arrested the man after store detectives said they saw him put the vodka down his pants and leave Meljer without trying to pay for it.

A computer check revealed a warrant for his arrest for probation violation in Westland.

He was held until police from that jurisdiction picked him up.

MORE LARCENIES: Meiler was the place to be on Nov. 15 for alleged shoplifters. Township police arrested three people for the crime. Two face Dec. 6 court hearings, the third a Nov. 28 court date.

A Redford teen, 18, was accused of stealing $53 worth of compact discs. An Inkster man, 37, was allegedly caught wearing a $55 pair of work boots out of the store. A Detroit man picked out a $90 phone and tried to return it moments later using a fraudulent sales slip, store detectives said.

CUTLASS HEISTED: A 1985 Olds Cutlass stolen during the night of Nov. 14-15 from the parking lot of the Northville Place Apartments remains missing. The owner, a 23-year-old man, told police that a stereo system worth $150 was also inside the vehicle, which is estimated to be worth $1,000.

ALCOHOL ACCIDENT: A 54year-old Canton woman was arrested for drunk driving, Nov. 9, after the woman caused an accident on east Dunlap near Center

According to Northville Police, the woman apparently failed to yield to oncoming traffic while pulling out of city parking lot No. 3, and hit a car driven by a 17year-old Northville girl. A passenger in the second car sustained minor injuries.

When the police officer arrived on the scene, he suspected the woman of being intoxicated and asked her to perform several field sobriety tests.

The woman had problems completing the tests and the officer performed a Preliminary Breath

The result of that test registered at .18 percent.

The woman was immediately arrested and transported to the Northville Police Department where additional breath tests registered .19 and .20 respectively.

The woman was held on $100

Oakland tax cut discussed

It's back to the drawing board for a proposal to establish a millage reduction fund that would give property owners a small break on Oakland County taxes.

County commissioners on the Finance and Personnel Committee of the Oakland County Board of Commissioners have voted to send the proposal back to County Executive L. Brooks Patterson because the fund - established in lieu of an annual tax cut - appeared to be too vulnerable for raiding.

"It looked like the county executive wanted the fund as a political cookie jar that could be dipped into under the right circumstances, said commissioner Lawrence R. Pernick, D-Southfield.

At issue is a pool of money that commissioners created instead of giving property owners a small, but symbolic, tax cut. Instead of giving property owners a tax cut about $10 a year for the owner of a $100,000 home - commissioners voted to set the money in a millage reduction fund.

They argued that the fund - if augmented with money from substantial budget cuts - could add up to a significant tax cut in the near future.

Robert J. Daddow, county director of county management and budget, drafted a proposal to create the fund. But commissioners balked when the fund was entitled *Strategic Planning, Operational Improvement and Millage Reduction Fund rather than simply a "miliage reduction fund."

The name made it look too much like a rainy day fund, said commissioner Charles Palmer. 'I'd rather see the proposal establish a fund that could not be touched except for millage reduction.

Commissioner Sue Ann Douglas, R-Rochester, agreed. "Unless there are tight restrictions, it's too easy to use the money for some other purpose." Daddow said he will indeed rewrite the proposal and resubmit it to commissioners with modifications. But the changes won't be substantial," he said. "It makes sense the way it is. Remember, it was the county executive who first proposed the tax cut," said Daddow.

Daddow earlier presented the executive's 1996 for $476.6 million, or about $25.3 over the previous year. With the budget, the executive noted that Oakland because of a good set of circumstances, including good return on investments - had a small surplus that would permit a small tax cut.

If You Want A Low Airfare In Defroif, You'll Have To Fly To Aflanta.

The Good, The Bad, And The Ugly News About Northwest's Airfares In Defroit.

Why are airfares to Atlanta so much lower than they are to other cities? Because ValuJet Airlines flies there. In fact, since ValuJet began serving Detroit, Northwest Airline's average fare to Atlanta has fallen from $195 to $102.* That's the good news.

The bad news is that fares to cities to which ValuJet doesn't fly are as high as ever. To see what we mean, take a glance at the chart below (It isn't a pretty sight.)

ValuJei Makes The Difference In Airfares.

If air miles aren't the difference in airfares, what is? Obviously, it's ValuJet. And we're working to bring Detroit more low-airfare choices soon. In the meantime, you can connect through Atlanta on ValuJet to 14 cities including seven in Florida And you'll always get "Low Fares Everyday, Everywhere We Fly."" because that's the ValuJet promise.

20 Convicted felon Warren Robert Wright spoke those words to Northville City Police Chief Eugene King seconds before shooting him twice in the chest at point-blank range near the intersection of Main and Rogers Streets 30 years

. | No one who lived through that day - Feb. 10, 1965 - is likely to ever forget.

... It was a sunny day with temperatures in the 50s smack dab in the middle of winter, nice enough for Detroit Federal Savings bank teller Sudith Hellund to go out for lunch at Cloverdale's.

As she walked back from the restaurant to the bank, located at the northeast corner of Center and Dunlap Streets, Hellund saw someone she'd laid eyes on before - the man who had robbed Detroit Federal at gunpoint twice the year

This is going to be a psychological test for you, the man told her during his first visit on June 8, , 1964, she said, before showing a handgun and demanding the money in her cash drawer. He came back and did the same thing on Sept. 22, she told police.

Now he was back, the man who would later be identified as Wright, "He said to pull off the road and pretend we have a flat tire. And then he shot King."

law for years, beginning at age 17. By February 1965 he had convictions in Grand Rapids, Ohio and Oregon, including a 7-year stint in prison for the 1959 armed robbery of a Kent County gas station.

He was driving around the area in an aqua-colored Dodge, Hellund told bank manager John Macauley. He called Northville police and the FBI as Wright parked and entered the building shortly before 1 p.m.
Officers William McGee and

Louis Westfall arrived in about 10 minutes. Wright by then was gone, however, back in his Dodge but still driving around town. The two officers began cruising the area. trying to find the suspicious vehi-

It was then that King arrived back in town from lunch and joined the hunt. The three spotted the car quickly and followed its movements south on Center, then west on Main to Wing. At Wing the

The Dodge kept heading south, turning east and then south on Main, heading out of town. The car finally turned left onto Seven Mile, where police stopped it near the entrance to the gravel pit that today hosts Highland Lakes.

McGee and Westfall approached with guns drawn. Wright "appeared very nervous" and kept dropping his right hand by his side. McGee said, refusing to get out of the car.

"They're going to shoot me," he told King, who arrived moments

*No, you're not going to get shot, King told Wright.

It was about then that the police radio dispatcher informed the officers that the FBI was asking that Wright be held for questioning. King talked the suspect, who claimed to be in town visiting his grandmother, out of the Dodge and into his car. Wright, who had not Everyone then headed back for town, King in front, McGee following and Westfall at the rear driving Wright's car.

As they drove north on Main Street, Cuda told police, Wright leaned down toward his shoes and came up holding a .25 caliber Browning semi-automatic pistol.

He ignored King's advice to put the gun down, telling him he'd never be taken in.

Wright ordered him to keep driving west on Main Street and to pass by Wing, the turnoff for City Hall and police headquarters, Cuda said.

Together the two wrestled the gun away from Wright and handcuffed him.

While being sentenced to 10 years in prison by a state court for attempted murder and to 20 years on federal bank robbery charges, Wright served a total of only six a half years behind bars.

He was paroled in late 1971 and has been dead since at least 1988, according to a check of state criminal computer records.

King, who was hired as a police officer in 1954, died in 1976 as a result of complications from surgery undergone in relation to the injuries he received in the

Family tries for memorial status for father

The way I look at it is this: on Feb. 10, 1965, a bank robber killed my dad. He was just stubborn about it and refused to die. He refused to give in." Greg. a state trooper in Arizona, said.

survive," Greg explained. "In the end run, he paid the ultimate price - he gave his life in the line of duty. It just took several years for him to die.

The memorial, established in 1984, honors local, county, state and federal officers killed in the line of duty. To date more than 13,000 names have been inscribed on its stone face.

Greg is among those trying to persuade the governing committee of the NLEO memorial fund - the body which yearly decides on new additions - that his father qualiWounds from injury never healed

To do that the link must be shown between the 1965 shooting and King's death in March 1976. Greg, one of King's seven children, and his family are gathering medical information now to do just that, documenting the former chief's years of pain, treatment and surgerles.

"He had a tough time. It was hard on him." Greg said this week from his home outside the tiny town of Mayer, Ariz. The medical problems just continued, just kept graduating to more and more serious ones. One problem built on

"It was a very hard life but my dad was tough. He refused to give up and die," he added.

Still, despite all, "he was very upbeat and cheerful all the way to the end," Greg said of King.

The slugs did damage to his stomach, intestinal tract, pancreas and liver. King spent months recovering from his injuries. including suffering a bout of hepatttis from a tainted blood transfusion. The years that followed would bring almost constant pain and several surgeries.

Health difficulties forced job changes as well. King tried to continue as police chief after the shooting but couldn't. He then worked in the city's administration for a time, later becoming city manager of Almont and eventually heading west to manage the town of Hayden, Ariz.

Greg was in the sixth grade when it happened, attending the old junior high on Main Street, just yards from where his father was shot.

"It was a shock," he said. "it was very hard of all of us. The shooting changed his life forever in a matter of a few seconds.

"He wasn't perfect but he loved his family, his country and his career as a law enforcement officer," Greg added. "It was the thing he enjoyed most. He really liked being a police officer and it was taken away from him.'

· The NLEO memorial's governing committee decides each February on which names will be added to the monument that year, Director of Research Aimee Holloway said.

King's name will be considered this February and if approved will be incorporated in a special ceremony in May.

The memorial's guidelines spell out the conditions under which a fallen officer can be eligible for consideration, Holloway added. No provision specifically addresses the cases of officers who die years later from injuries received in the line of duty.

The closest thing to be found calls for the inclusion of any officer who dies as the result of an onthe job injury that causes a continuous period of hospitalization immediately following the specific response* to a situation.

Current City Police Chief Rod Cannon recently helped the Kings' effort by sending the committee details of the confrontation that led to King's wounding.

early morning hours of Nov. 7. According to EMU Director of Public Information Susan Bairley, Hardesty was called to a co-ed dorm to help break up a fight inside the building. Some 8-10 female students were involved in the tussle, and Hardesty used his

The officer then drew his weapon and pointed it at the group of on-lookers.

The incident ended without injury and the suspect. Aaron Johnson, has been arraigned on criminal charges. Johnson, a junior from Detroit, was scheduled to face a preliminary examination today on counts of aggravated assault and attempt to disarm a non-firearm from a peace officer.

The incident has spurred a protracted debate at the school and no less than three investigations are in progress. One probe resulted in a recommendation of disciplinary action against some of the students.

Other investigations, including one conducted by an oversight committee of university officials, are still ongoing.

Hardesty resigned his post as Northville Township Police Chief in December 1989 after it came to light that he had circumvented procedure in selling a handgun to then-clerk Thomas Cook.

Hardesty allegedly broke a law in signing a federal tax exemption form when buying a Glock 19 semi-automatic and selling it at department cost to Cook.

Another law prohibiting anyone but the supervisor from selling township property tial broken.

After the transaction was discovered, Cook returned the gun and received a refund of his check. Hardesty was under investigation for criminal violations, but the Wayne County prosecutor's office later decided the issue was moot and dropped the case.

The incident prompted township officials to consider the adoption of an ethics policy to cover conflict of

Mill Race Matters

Thanks to all those who helped make this year's Mill Race Village Christmas Walk a great success. Apologies and special thanks to members of the Waterford Bend Questers for their help in decorating Wash Oak School. They were inadvertently omitted from earlier thank yous.

Other trim was done by Changing Seasons, Preferences and Gardenviews through the efforts of the Northville Mothers Club Alumni. Thanks to all for the hard work and effort.

All who served as docents and volunteer workers are also appreciated. A village like Mill Race cannot continue to exist without the tireless effort of numerous enthusiastic volunteers. This year's event was coordinated by Cheryl Gazlay and board members Jo Ann Harris and Sonia Swigart.

Thank you to Daniel and Mary Peski and to Beverly and Edward Hines for their recent donations. Also in the spirit of Thanksgiving thanks to all who have helped during the year to perform the many odd jobs, big and small, necessary to keep Mill Race Village and the Northville Historical Society operational.

Upcoming is the annual Historical Society holiday party on Friday, Dec. 15. Members should have received invitations by now, but all members are welcome. If you've not received your invitation call to check if your membership is current.

Membership in the Northville Historical Society runs from Jan. 1 to Dec. 31 of each calendar year so renewal time is near. Those joining or renewing now will be able to attend the party, receive the final issue of this year's "Mill Race Quarterly," and have a membership for

As winter begins and the Christmas holiday approaches, many begin to reflect on the past; friends and memories play a special time in holiday celebration. Those of us new to Northville may not remember the community's Christmases long past, but have probably heard about some of the traditions.

In Oral Histories done six years ago for the Historical Society and the library some longtime residents shared reminiscences of Christmas during their youth. Following are some of them:

"... Highlight of the one room school would be the Christmas program to which all the parents were planning to come ... So this Christmas program was thought out carefully, remember war years nobody had money for anything ... " Rosella Lee remembering her years teaching near today's Northville Township Hall.

"... You went out in the woods and chopped one (a Christmas tree) down, which nobody said anything about. Any place you wanted ... Fred Kerr on cutting down the family tree.

"... Everybody was so poor, to help out, the Exchange Club of Northville ... went out and bought goodies for the children ... would make a little bag and in that bag, there would be an apple and some nuts and a few pieces of candy ... "Bruce Turnbull on the depression Christmas of his childhood.

"The Lapham's store, that was a real good personal shopper for me In October, I would go in and I'd say to Beth, 'now, I'm in here to do my Christmas shopping.' and I would name off my family. But she knew them all ... Irene Edmonds on holiday shopping as a young married woman in this community.

Empty talk for an empty week

There are some weeks when writing this column is a breeze.

This is not one of those weeks!

Usually I have no trouble coming up with a topic to discuss. Ideas fall from the sky in droves, and all I have to do is stick out my hand and grab one. But there are some weeks when I can't buy an idea.

Oh, I suppose I could talk about Randy Coble's quest for his Harley, but we've featured the Northville Township reporter several times the past month.

I could pick on Chuck Keys, but that would be too easy. Besides, I'm planning a pointcounterpoint column with Chuck in a few

I could even take a few harmless potshots at the Township Board of Trustees, but I'm not going to bother with that group anymore.

I guess there's always Thanksgiving, except usually I spend most of the time in my car driving to and from various family members' homes. That's my big complaint with the holidays, you end up splitting your time with family and friends and you never really get to

Perhaps I could reminisce about past Thanksgivings, when the Jackson clan trekked to the grandparents' house and spent the day eating, watching football, eating some more, watching more football, eating some more, watching a cousin or two get sick, pack yourself into the car for the drive home, and finally pass out in bed with an upset stomach.

Nope, not going to even bring up those memories again. Then there's always the shopping angle.

Millions of people driving to large shopping malls, only to battle each other for that preclous parking space. Once inside, you have to claw your way through the throng of people just to get close to the store you want to shop at. And going to the bathroom, hah you might as well forget that.

I guess I just have to admit that I'm at a loss for words - I know, I know, it's kinda hard to believe, isn't it?

There's always next week, and I'm sure an idea or two will come to mind. Until then, I hope you all had a safe and happy Thanksgiv-

TALK MAIL DIDN'T PROVIDE ME with a lot of items this week - That's usually what happens during holiday weeks. Everyone's planning and making preparations - but we did get a few noteworthy items to share.

Included in our weekly fare are the results of a fund-raiser for a local resident, and a few notes from the high school.

OK, my fun loving friends, it's that time again. Time for the always zany, sometimes serious - and this week abbreviated - column we call Talk of the Week.

FUND-RAISER A SUCCESS: Got a fax from Cheryl Alagna of Rocky's of Northville this week. Cheryl wanted to alert me that the restaurant would be presenting a check for $2,500 to Loren Kendall, who suffers from non-Hodgkins lymphoma - cancer of the lymph system.

Kendall has undergone treatment for the disease and recently received a bone marrow transplant. He is currently on medical leave from his position at Kroger Corp., causing his income to be cut substantially.

The restaurant conducted a golf benefit outing in late August to raise the money for the Kendall family, to help defray the growing medical costs.

Thanks to all those who participated in the event. We wish Loren, his wife Michele, and daughters Amanda and Michelle, all the best.

PEER MEDIATION: Got my 'Mustang Messenger" the other day and found a few interesting items to pass along. The first has to do with the Peer Mediation Program at Northville High School.

There were 25 candidates who applied as peer mediators, and 12 were chosen for their ability to influence others and their desire to learn and be of service to their classmates.

The peer mediators for the 1995/96 school year are: Suzanne George, Rob Ghannam, Travis Gilshire, Jaimz Hansen, Tawnya Holliday, Ron Holmes, Mike McNally, Erin Moore, Megan Pope, Natalle Thompson. Jamie Straley, and Sara Wood.

The 12 students will undergo peer mediation training at a two day workshop.

Keys defends role as outspoken liaison

Vows to continue questioning

By ROBERT JACKSON

Northville City Councilmembers are going to have to be a bit more careful in their roles as elected officials attending meetings of city advisory boards and commissions.

That advice came from city attorney Jim Kohl in a written opinion delivered to the city council Monday. Mayor Chris Johnson had requested Kohl look into charges that city councilman Chuck Keys might have acted inappropriately in recent dealings with the city's planning commission and zoning board of appeals.

Johnson asked councilmembers to be careful in their participation with various city commissions and boards, and stressed that council liaisons should stick to passing pertinent information between city council and commissions. Because we serve on the city council we need to be careful how we represent ourselves to our boards and commissions," he said.

Keys acts as council liaison to the planning commission, and although Kohl addressed the Issue of "incompatibility of public offices" in his written opinion, he did state that Keys was attending the zoning board of appeals meetings with the intent to promote the public's best interest, and that his attendance was consistent with existing law.

Councilmember Carolann Ayers had claimed that Keys "overstepped his responsibilities as council liaison to the Planning Commission by getting involved in commission discussions prior to that body's vote on specific items.

Ayers' charges came at the council's Nov. 6 meeting.

Keys stated, in a prepared speech before the council Monday. that he has never been aware of any undue influence to the com-

*Never has our planning commissioner chairperson or any member felt intimidated by my comments or presence," Keys said. 'In fact, they have at times, individually and collectively, asked for input. In those instances I have always been careful.

"I have always respected their professional independence and the commission's integrity," he added. 'My reputation with my council liaisons remains unsullied and totally non-participative.

Ayers had based her charges on planning commission and ZBA meeting minutes. Keys reminded councilmembers that both commissions have had recent problems with the recording of those minutes.

... The planning commission and sometimes the ZBA - has had consistent problems with the minutes taken at their meetings as to the accuracy of content, accuracy of the correct speaker, errors and omissions, and many other general reporting problems," he said.

Johnson asked that city administration look into the problem with those minutes, so that future difficulties would be avoided.

Keys said he would continue to question the city administration. and monitor city consultants.

"I will never accept what is written on paper as fact." he explained. I will question everything because that's what business people do, that's what I do, and that's what our taxpayers want - more accountability in government.

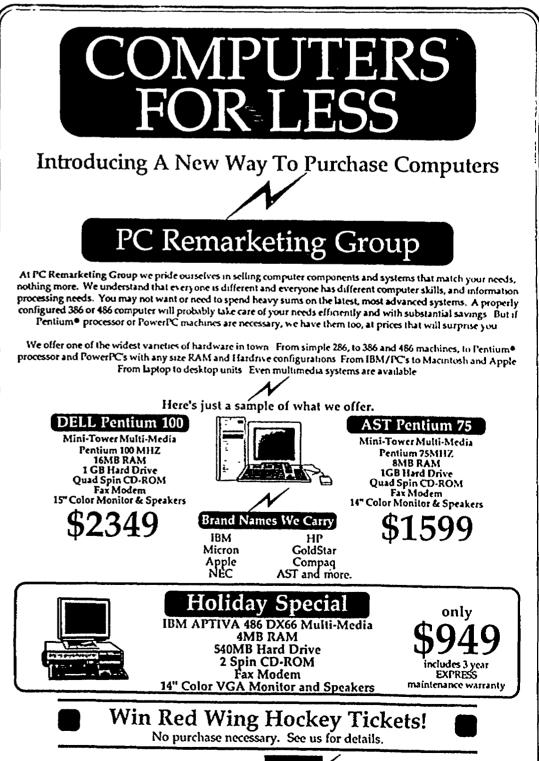

"I hope that this council, as a body, encourages me and each individual councilmember to seek and maintain our independent thought and action. Keys concluded. "Censorship in any form has no place on this city council. I believe this will guarantee a more effective city council and will bene fit our city in the end."

Charter school push causes second thoughts

By TIM RICHARD Staff Writer

Key Republican lawmakers are joining Democrats in having doubts about the "rush" to set up public school academies (PSAs).

The Senate-passed revision of Michigan's school code removes the cap of 35 on the number of PSAs, also known as "charter schools," and allows more state agencies to grant charters for the specialized schools.

There is no conclusive evidence they help kids learn," said Rep. Lyn Bankes, R-Redford, after a Nov. 14 hearing in Lansing of the House Appropriations subcommittee on school funding. "In some cases, it puts kids in a safer environment. But there's no national. conclusive evidence charter schools make a difference."

"I'm trying to figure out what the rush is when we don't have groups banging on the door (for charters)," said Rep. Maxine Berman, D-Southfield. "I'd like to say let's wait a couple of years and evaluate what we're doing," said Berman, a former English teacher.

"I have the same concern," said Rep. Glenn Oxender, R-Sturgis, who chairs the budget subcommittee. *Some (charter schools) are conversions of private schools.

I don't think it makes a lot of sense to support conversions. in the process.

First, we've lost some of our (state) leverage (on school quality). Second, we're educating more students with the same amount of dollars," said Oxender, a former math and computer science teach-

Rep. Clyde LeTarte, R-Jackson. said businesses develop a plan, try It out, study the results, then go ahead. 'But we (legislators) are jumping through the 'plan and study without knowing what you've got," said LeTarte, a former community college president. echoing Bankes' theme on the shortage of research.

Charter schools were authorized by the Legislature in the 1993 package of legislation known as Proposal A. The state has only one full school year of experience with

The Senate bill, passed on a 21-16 party-line vote, would not only remove the cap but loosen the rules governing PSAs. The House is expected to strip out much of the Senate version.

But Dr. Michael Williamson, staff person for the State Board of Education and an adherent to the conservative GOP view that an unlimited number of charter schools should be created, asked the panel to "create enough charter authorities to prevent a backlog

There is no conclusive evidence they help kids learn."

-State Rep. Lyn Bankes

Williamson, a former school superintendent, asked that even the Department of Social Services be authorized to charter PSAs for families it serves.

Supporters, like board president Clark Durant and Gov. John Engler, say PSAs, as specialized academies, will provide competition" to public schools and compel them to improve.

Doubters say PSAs are a back-door approach to parochiaid and vouchers, both prohibited by the Michigan Constitution. Doubters also say the Senate bill weakens state curriculum and teacher standards, resulting in weaker schools. not stronger ones.

Currently, fewer than 5,000 of Michigan's 1.6 million public school pupils attend 35 PSAs. Williamson offered, as "pure speculation," the possibility that 400 to 500 charters will be sought and serve 2-4 percent of the population, or 32,000 to 64,000 pupils.

Berman had another problem with some of the existing PSAs: "A lot of these are currently very small. Are these functioning as one- and two-room schools?" She pointed to: • An Ann Arbor K-3 school with 36 pupils, or nine per level.

• A Grand Rapids K-3 school for "creative learning" with 16 pupils, or four per level.

 A Freeland academy for grades 2-6 with 38 pupils, or 7.6 per

"Are there four teachers teachng four grades?" she asked. Williamson replied: "They're blended-grade schools. Parents find this feature advantageous." Added Gary Cass, state superintendent for charter schools: "A lot (of pupils) are moving at their own pace rather than the pace of the class. A lot are ungraded schools." Rep. Bob Emerson, D-Flint, had a problem with allowing the State Department of Education to join the parade of issuing charters. Traditionally, you've been a regulatory agency. How do you regulate something you created? How can be you an unbiased regulator?"

Williamson replied: The department would have the same obligation to those schools as to unchartered schools."

"I have the same concern as Rep. Emerson," sald Oxender. "In my opinion, there are more than enough chartering agencies."

Berman grilled Douglas Stites, chief operating officer of the Michigan Jobs Commission, which is involved with a half-dozen vocational schools, five of which operate as PSAs.

We have a number of companies running (job training) programs," she began. "How many are conversion academies? What's to prevent Chrysler from running a training program, converting it to a state charter academy, and saying, 'Oh, jeez, why should we do that (run own program) when the state will pay for it?

We don't focus on (training for) a company but a cluster of compa-nies." Stites said. "I'm very comfortable that the skills are transferable to other companies.

Stites said the Jobs Commission looks for a long-term commitment from several businesses before proceeding with a vocational academy. "This is hands-on involvement with a high degree of commitment. Employers have to be in first place as this goes forward, or there's not much sense in going."

training out there (on the job), not in buildings owned by the public. The academics are integrated with occupational training." As for the problem of companies

Stites said. "We do some of the ducking costs, Stites said the opposite occurs.

Occupational instruction is extraordinarily expensive. We can have basic technology in school, but we can't keep up with state of the art," he said.

Stites said Gov. Engler's goal is 10 trade schools. The six in existence are Michigan Automotive Academy (former Mo-Tech) in Livonia, West Michigan Academy for Hospitality Sciences in Grand Rapids, Livingston! Technical Academy in Howell, daVinci listitute in Jackson. Averili Career Center in Saginaw, and the Kent ISD trade academy in Kentwood. The first five operate as PSA charter academies.

Engler criticized for diverting funds to state projects

By TIM RICHARD Staff Writer

They're using words like "seizure," "theft" and "funding crisis" on Gov. John Engler's decision to take $192 million in federal highway funds from local units to use on a handful of state projects.

"They" now includes the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments, an assembly of local elected officials; the County Road Association of Michigan; and Democratic members of the congressional delegation.

Engler acted Oct. 17 to use the federal money on state projects

SEMCOG's General Assembly on Nov. 2 gave overwhelming approval to a resolution asking Engler, the Legislature and local road interests to levy a "stop-gap fuel tax increase of eight to 10 cents per gallon" for three years.

SEMCOG also asked the state to phase out a diesel fuel discount for trucks. It picked three years because the current law that splits Michigan's 15-cent fuel tax between the state, countles and municipalities is due to lapse at the end of 1998.

the state nor the locals have enough funds," said John Amberger, executive director of SEMCOG. Amberger urged a stopgap program because "if we fight (Engler's diversion) we could lose three important projects" on which Engler wants to use the money.

Those are: continuing the M-5 Haggerty Road connector from 12 Mile north to 15 Mile (Maple) in Novi; rebuilding the Davison Freeway in Detroit; and completing the M-59 freeway east from Pontiac across Macomb County.

Each penny of the fuel tax raises about $50 million. An eight-cents increase would yield $400 million; 10 cents, $500 million.

SEMCOG's resolution, passed by voice vote drew a scattering of nays from unidentified delegates who opposed phasing out the diesel tax break for truckers.

A few preferred to phase in the fuel tax hike over three years.

Amberger said that without the stopgap program, some $238 million in state projects and $135 million in county and municipal projects would be delayed - a total shortfall of more than $350 million in SEMCOG's $1.2 billion Transportation Improvement Program. State portions of that $1.2 billion, Amberger said, were based on an increased fuel tax.

Result: The TIP fails to comply with fiscal rules of the federal transportation aid act because "it includes more projects than there are funds to implement them."

The County Road Association of Michigan (CRAM) denounced Engler's Oct. 17 action, particularly after the governor backed away from an effort to raise the fuel tax and split the money three ways state, counties and locals.

CRAM praised Democratic members of Congress for asking U.S. Transportation Secretary Federico Pena to investigate the legality of Engler's action.

Signers included U.S. Sen. Carl Levin and U.S. Reps. John Dingell of Dearborn, Lynn Rivers of Ann Arbor and Dale Kildee of Flint but not Sander Levin of Southfield. John Conyers and Barbara Rose Collins of Detroit.

"It would appear that Gov. Engler and MDOT director (Patrick) Nowak are imposing unfunded mandates' on Michigan's local communities when it comes to road building projects. the letter said.

Novi moves to minimize damage to city's image

By WENDY PIERMAN MITZEL Staff Writer

Novi police and retailers are reassuring Christmas shoppers that Novi is still a safe place to shop despite a reported knifepoint abduction two weeks ago at the Town Center.

According to police, the shopping center district is actually very safe. A police survey of reported criminal activity during the past year indicates the largest crime was retail fraud. During the months January through September, there were 210 instances at Twelve Oaks, 21 at West Oaks and 22 at the Town Center.

According to police figures, the number of reported crimes have been slowly decreasing. A comparison between the total complaints from 1993 to 1995 shows a 443 drop in complaints for all three mall areas.

"We have not had any serious problems at the Novi Town Center," said Ernie Reno, of the Linder Co. "It's historically been one of the most crime free shopping centers in the area."

In regard to crimes committed against customers, the numbers are very low. During the first nine months of the year, police report nine stalking complaints, 13 indecent exposures and five robberies at the three locations.

Philip Morosco, general manager for Twelve Oaks, said during the

Shop in safety this season

By WENDY PIERMAN MITZEL Staff Writer

With the startup of the holiday shopping season comes the need to relterate safety tips to shoppers who will be plodding through snow covered parking lots with gifts galore.

According to Detective David Butler of the Novi Police Department, many of the suggestions are simply common sense but still need to be followed closely.

1. Park underneath a lightpost or near a lighted area.

2. If possible, shop in groups of two or more.

3. Always, always lock your vehicle.

4. Put packages in trunk.

5. If you are putting packages into a car and returning to the store, move your vehicle to a different spot. Criminals often watch the lots to determine their target.

6. Don't park near a van.

7. Women should secure their purses while walking to and from

8. If you see any suspicious activity or feel uncomfortable walk immediately back to the store to get security. It's better to be safe than sorry.

average holiday weekend this time of year, as many as 100,000 people come through the mall. In fact, 25 percent of the retail business for the year at Twelve Oaks is done in the months of November and December, he said.

Because the customer traffic flow increases so dramatically during these months, mail officials are making preparations, such as increasing security, to help shoppers feel comfortable.

"Unfortunately we're living in an age where the public can't let their guard down," sald Reno.

At Twelve Oaks Mall, security has been stepped up for the holiday shopping season. According to Morosco, part-time security guards are given increased hours.

But he said security guards rarely encounter crimes. "The number one thing a security offlcer does is help people with directions," he explained.

New ski trails expected to open

By JAN JEFFRES Staff Writer

Novi's got some beautiful park land at the north end and this winter will be the perfect time to view it, picture postcard perfect with a blanket of pristine snow.

Most likely on Dec. 1, the city's first cross-country ski trails will open. It'll be strictly on a bringyour-own equipment basis. Parks and Recreation Director Dan Davis

The trails begin at Lakeshore Park, where skiers can leave their cars. They then wind into the new Novi Tree Farm park, which is not yet developed. "If we just get the snow, we are forecasting it'll be open on Dec. 1,"

That moment, 32 years ago yesterday, changed America forever. President John Fitzgerald Kennedy was gunned down in Dealey Plaza in Dallas, not far from where I would be born five years later.

I think that I, like everybody who wasn't around at the time, can't really comprehend the scars that instant left on those who lived through it. The cliche is really true: every last person I've ever asked who's old enough to remember can recall exactly what they were doing when they heard the news. They describe their feelings much the same way people have since the bombing in Oklahoma City seven months ago: what we thought couldn't happen here happened here.

THE NATION was still paralyzed even as LBJ was sworn in less than two hours later. Lee Harvey Oswald's murder two days later, witnessed all over the world via television, dealt a blow almost as devastating.

"IT'S LIKE EVERYONE in the United States has been hit in the stomach," was how Record publisher Bill Sliger described in the paper that week. "We can't think. We can't breathe comfortably. We are limp."

Hearing set on Novi aquatic center plan

By JAN JEFFRES Staff Writer

Before they jump into the deep end, the new Family Aquatic Center Committee wants to make sure they don't splash their fellow residents the wrong way.

So on Dec. 5 at 7 p.m., they're holding a public hearing at the Novi Civic Center to ask people exactly what sort - if any - municipal swimming complex they'd like to see built here.

"We do want people's opinions. What we want to do is get feedback from the public to find out what their needs are," said committee member Gwen Markham.

Appointed by the Novi City Council after a proposal from another aquatic center committee sank because residents and council members thought the $3.5 million water park plan was too elaborate, the new citizens committee began meeting on Sept. 16. They are expected to come up with a final report by March 31.

Co-chair Elaine Yocum, who shares the post with Jim Utley, explained that the options for a community swimming pool are many. One of them is no municipal pool at all for Novi. Others include whether to have one or two Novi swimming holes, the size of the same and should the pool or pools be indoors or outdoors. Then there's all the extra fun stuff like water slides and kiddle pools, as well as adjacent playgrounds and picnic areas.

Also key is the all important decision, location. The last time around, nearby residents were appalled at the proposal to put the water slide at Taft Road, south Novi High School.

"We don't want to go off in a direction that is contrary to what residents want. There's a whole range of options," Yocum said.

"We want to be try to be very open-minded with the public as much as possible.

This is actually Novi's third swimming pool committee, so the group will rely on research done by their predecessors, she added.

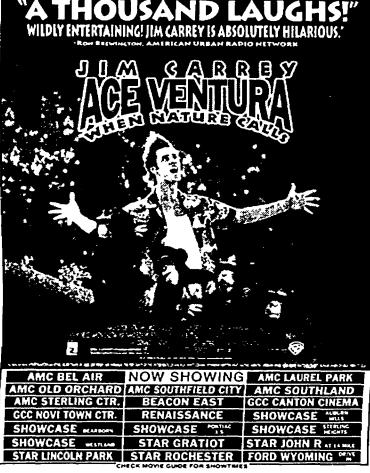

Yocum first got interested in the topic because her daughter. Andrea, 12, is a member of the Spartan Aquatic Club. The membership of 150, about half of them from Novi, includes competitive swimmers from tiny kids all the way up to college-age.

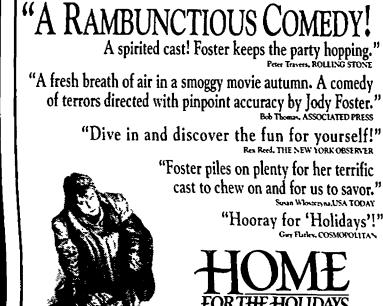

The swimmers use the pool at Novi High School, Livonia Stevenson High School and elsewhere for their meets. Yocum is currently president of the club.

which is the money remaining after payouts for winning bets have been rounded down to the nearest 10 cents. With a winning of $10.23, for example, a track would pay $10.20 and retain the 3 cents as breakage.

Had the bill been in effect in 1994, Northville would have received $350,630 from the breakage, according to statistics provided by the State of Michigan Racing Commission. That's about $90,000 less than Northville received from the state that year in parl-mutuel funding.

Under current law, municipalities can receive up to $900,000 in state aid from pari-mutuel taxes. Northville, however, has only once received that much funding, and for the past few years has averaged about $400,000 from the state.

In 1994, wagering revenue for the Downs totaled nearly $69 million, with Northville receiving $452,079.

"The good news is that the money goes directly to Northville from the race track, it won't be bypassed at the state level."

Bullard said.

The city does not currently include the funding in its budget because the state has either not provided the funds in past years or has been late in providing them. The state has also decreased the pari-mutuel funding amount within the past decade.

According to City Manager Gary Word, city officials are currently studying the bill but can't really say how it will impact the city.

"The bill has gone through some changes and we need to look at them," he said. "I think it's too early to say how it will effect Northville."

According to Bullard, the measure represents a compromise that has been sought for years by horsemen, track owners, and other interested parties.

"These changes should help bolster racing industry revenue and ensure that Michigan's tracks remain open," Bullard said. "It's what we can do now, and if this keeps the race tracks in business, reat. "If it turns out that the bill :

doesn't provide enough relief to the tracks, we have to decide whether the state should subsidize, what is in effect, a private industry," he added.

The legislation also provides for:
• Simulcasting live broadcasts of horse races in or out of state at local tracks. It would greatly expand the number of races for wagering. Detroit-area simulcasters must make signals of their live races available to tracks located more than 12 miles away.

Telephone account wagering.
 The bill allows race tracks to conduct and accept telephone account bets for all live and simulcast races.

• The establishment of the Michigan Agriculture Equine Industry Development Fund to ensure that tax receipts are restricted and used for certain programs including existing country forces.

According to Northville Downs executive manager Margaret Zayti, the bill will provide a tax benefit but the simulcasting language could be a mixed blessing, as the Downs could find itself in direct competition with racetracks like Ladbroke and Hazel Park, which are also interested in year round simulcasting.

Yes, the bill provides us with tax relief." she said. "We don't know how simulcasting on a year round basis will effect the track."

Builard said the comprehensive economic development should not only invite new opportunities but ensure that existing facilities like the Downs are not left to crumble.

"The loss of a track can be very damaging to an area's long-term stability." he said.

stability," he said.

Northville has been receiving the tax-free funding for years, and has used the money for infrastructure improvements and other assorted services.

Since it opened in 1944. Northville Downs has provided the city of Northville with $23.6 million in revenues - $5.8 million in expenses billed by the city and $17.8 million in tax-free parimutuel money from the state. That figure doesn't reflect property tax paid by the Downs, which averages at about $80,000.

According to Law, if simulcasting doubles the amount of wagering then Northville's proceeds could increase up to as much as $650,000 in 1996. Track attendance is currently down. Simulcasting and telephone wagering would give racing patrons more options and help revitalize the racing industry.

Townships and cities will no longer have to rely on the uncertain state appropriations process to share in pari-mutuel proceeds.

What the bill doesn't take into account is the amount of money Northville could have to spend in providing police services. According to billing statistics provided by the city, police services currently run an average of $17,000 per month, based on an average of 990 manhours.

The total cost of providing police services for the Trotting Association and Northville Downs seasons averages $101,730 for a six month period. With the tracks staying open 12 months, that figure could at least double.

Bullard said that the positive impact of the bill should not be underestimated. The legislation's intent, he explained, is to ensure that communities like Northville remain vibrant and avoid the downward spiral too many urban centers experience today.

"This benefits tracks and their

City officials say it's too early to tell if the race track measure would be helpful to the city. The bill would release the city from dependence on the state for race track revenue.

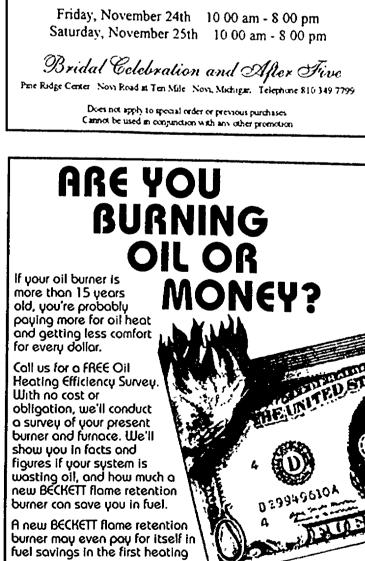

cities," Bullard said. "Tracks receive a tax break, which would give them money to improve services, and gives them a fighting chance to stay alive."

According to Law, the loss of Michigan's horse racing industry would be a serious blow. In 1994, about 2.1 million people bet more than $356 million at Michigan's eight tracks. This $1.2 billion industry supports more than 42,000 jobs and generates about $233 million in income.

Woman recognized for helping victim

It certainly did in Jones' case. She stopped and helped an elderly woman hurt in car crash at Seven Mile and Beck roads on Oct. 15. he said, giving Balok, who arrived moments later, useful information about her physical condition.

This was an almost head-on collision and the woman was pinned inside the car." he explained. She was bleeding from the head and complaining of neck and back pain.

"In a situation like this it's important to know what condition a victim is in. The information she (Jones) gave me helped realize we didn't have a 'code' situation."

A code situation occurs when emergency workers determine that a patient must be extracted from a vehicle as fast as possible due to potential life-threatening injuries. That carries risks, however, as less time can be taken to deal with the dangers of aggravating other or spine.

Jones' training as a medical assistant, Balok said, helped the EMS team that responded to the accident to provide better and faster care. The woman was eventually freed from her car and taken to St. Mary Hospital in Livonia for three days of observation.

While being willing to help is important it's just as important to remember not to bite off more than you can chew. Balok urged citizens not to attempt anything they're not equipped to do.

It's great that there are good Samaritans out there who will stop injuries, such as those to the neck but people need to be trained first before trying to help."

If you're not trained, Balok's advice is simple: never try to move or treat someone and sign up for a training class.

The standard basic first aid class lasts about 10 hours, he explained, and is available through the township fire department, the American Red Cross or most local

School brainstormer planned for next week

"We as a district and as a community have to come together and act now. We need to put all of our ideas and differences on the table if we are going to make a difference," he added.

For the past few years active district parents have voiced concerns that school administrators have allowed little input from parents. Now the district is practically *begging for community involvement, and the turnout Nov. 29 will provide a good indication of the community's interest level.

The district has sent out hundreds of invitations to the meeting in hopes of getting a big turnout.

'If we are going to build a consensus then we need to have strong community involvement." Rezmierski said.

Long-time district patron Lynda Baca, who serves on the committee, said the process has the potential to be a positive one.

"We're trying to get the word out to as many people as we can," she said. The more people we are able to involve in this process, the more diverse the ideas and opinions will be. That makes the decision making process better.

need to wake up and understand that this will affect their children sooner or later," she added. "They need to get involved now.

Baca said that even if the community dialog only draws 100 people, it won't be a waste of time.

We have already discussed that possibility with Dr. DeJong, and he told us that if 100 people show, then that's 100 people who are concerned about the future of the district," she said.

The first dialog will consist of an overview of the district's planning activities followed by a presentation entitled "Trends For the Year 2000 and Beyond.

The trends presentation will focus on the knowledge and skills students will need to compete in a global economy, identifying demographic and economic trends and how they will impact employment opportunities for students.

According to Rezmierski, community members will then participate in "break out" sessions small groups - to discuss concepts and express their views on how the trends might impact Northville

High School's future programs
This isn't just about the high school," Rezmierski said. "We are going to be talking about our middle schools and elementary schools, because we need to prepare these younger students for high school.

DeJong was hired by the district in September to facilitate the six month planning process, even though the district is laden with administrators who have the qualifications to serve as the committee's facilitator.

Rezmierski believes the district did the right thing in hiring DeJong, because he has no stake in the decisions made by the community and school district.

"If Leonard Rezmierski, superintendent of the Northville Public Northville High School student Christine Mattis joins Mary Ellen Wolbers in getting the word out about the communitywide dialog session on the future of the school district.

School District, acted as the facilitator for the Future's Committee, we could conceivably have some members of the community charge that I was just forwarding my own agenda,* Rezmierski explained.

Dr. DeJong has no stake in the district, its goals, policies, or procedures. He's an outside source that will be able to take all of the factions within the district and community and hopefully, bring them to a consensus.

That's why it's so important that we put everything on the table

- the good and the bad - for everyone to discuss.* Rezmierski explained. "We don't want these issues to be discussed in parking lots or anywhere else. We want them discussed here."

Prison guard wins reprieve for lawsuit

By TIM RICHARD Staff Writer

A Wayne man has won a second chance to prove the Michigan Department of Corrections discriminated against the handicapped when it fired him as a prison guard. A state Court of Appeals sent the case of Roger Miller, 43, of Wayne, back to Washtenaw Circuit Court. MDOC has the burden of establishing that accommodating plaintiff (Miller) would cause it undue hardship. We conclude on the record presented, there was a genuine issue regarding whether defendant was able to accommodate plaintiff without undue hardship. Judge William Ager (now retired) had dismissed Miller's 1991 wrongful discharge suit.

Peter Bundarin, an attorney in Canton, said his client should be reinstated or paid money. Miller has been living on AFDC. That was the only way he could get medical insurance." Bundarin

In May of 1990, Miller slipped and fell on water while making his rounds at Camp Brighton, injuring his back. Dr. Frank Winters made tests and revealed Miller had a congenital back problem. "The vertebrae do not close around the spinal cord," Bundarin explained. A month later, while on medical leave, Miller stepped off a curb, his knee buckled, and he felt sharp pains in his back and left leg. The accident exacerbated his workrelated back injury and pain, and extended the time Dr. Winters believed plaintiff should be off work," the court opinion said. Bundarin argued that under 1990 amendments to the state Handicappers Civil Rights Act, MDOC had to accommodate Miller even if a handleap is related to the employee's ability to perform the job, unless the accommodation would constitute an undue hardship for the employer.

School officials look to community for vision

By ROBERT JACKSON Staff Writer

The committee created to map out the future of Northville High School may be in its infancy, but it will have to grow up in a relatively short period of time, according to district Superintendent Leonard Rezmierski.

We have learned that this is a time of change, and that change is relentless," he said. "It is critical that we deal in facts,

Charged with planning and developing program alternatives over the next several vears, the High School Future's Committee will work with district facilitator Dr. William Delong and interested members of the community to develop a vision for a 21st century high school.

That vision will hopefully begin to take shape when the committee meets with the community in the first of three open dialog sessions Nov. 29.

The district board of education created the committee in June as an extension of Direction sought at critical juncture day program, which was a pilot program Campbell of Formative Evaluation for the 1994-95 school year.

The state of the s

Under the program, the modified classroom day began each Wednesday at 10:40 a.m. for students and teachers met in study groups during the first three hours

The district scrapped the pilot study because funding the collegial time - planning time for teachers - would have been too costly, according to district officials.

The board subsequently provided funding for teachers to continue their projects. according to Rezmierski.

"The decision to form a high school Future's Committee was in response to a study conducted in April." Rezmierski explained. The board recognized the positives from the instructional day, and didn't want to lose any of that momen-

Research Associates and was commissioned by the school district to study the positive and negative effects of the instructional day and the impact they had on teachers, students, and parents.

The 70 page document identified some important facts, Rezmierski stated.

· All of the parents who took part in the study believed the academic program at NHS was excellent. However, they wanted major changes in the way in which the curriculum was delivered by the faculty.

· The desire for change and the commitment of (district, students, community) is strong enough to build a coalition to work collaboratively for a better future for Northville High School.

Rezmierski explained that when the district and teachers were unable to negotiate a continuation of the Wednesday instructional day, the school board voted to budget $45,000 in funds for the formation and implementation of a High School Future's Committee.

Initially it was decided that the group would consist of 20-26 members (administrators, teachers, parents), but when the board decided to hire DeJong as facilitator, the group's size was increased to about 56 members.

At the same time, the district's three committees - Bond, Technology, and Enhancement - presented their findings to the board. All three committees recommended the district call for a $42 million bond for a new high school, $2 million to convert the existing high school into a middle school, $1.2 million to build an addition onto Silver Springs Elementary, $5.5 million for infrastructure repairs and $2.8 million for technology upgrades.

The formation of the Future's Committee won't cancel out the efforts of the. three previous committees, according to

The data have been compiled and will be used by the Future's Committee during community discussions.

The board of education in early September decided to forego any talk of a bond election, and instead asked the community for guidance regarding the district's future, Rezmierski stated.

What we essentially are asking the .. community is simple: How do you want us . to proceed in educating children in , Northville? What type of facilities do you want us to use?" Rezmierski said.

"It is our job then, based on what this " community tells us, to accomplish the . goal of preparing our kids for the 21st

"It's important to allow the community to discuss those findings," he added. Then we'll ask them to tell us what they want versus telling them what we want.

RECORD OPINION

Our Opinion

Personalities intrude on city council business

We're witnessing something we haven't seen in a while in Northville city government and it isn't a pretty

It's a charge/counter charge spiral that is standard practice with some political bodies but until recently was largely unknown at Northville City Hall. Perhaps times have changed.

The mess was apparently precipitated by an ad Chuck Keys wrote on behalf of mayoral candidate Paul Folino. The text of the ad, which appeared in the Nov. 2 edition of The Northville Record, was complimentary of Folino and critical of other sitting council

"Paul Folino is the only other councilman (besides Keys) who consistently reads his council packets," the ad asserted. " ... The only other councilman who is available every day all day, the only other councilman who I see walking downtown, eating at our restaurants and shopping at our stores."

The same ad was prepared as a letter and mailed to some 1,500 residents prior to the Nov. 7 city election.

Those claims were apparently the last straw for councilwoman Carolann Ayers who, like other members of the council, has been subjected to Keys' don't-fear-to-tread style for two years

Ayers responded by going on the offensive, charging Keys with overstepping his bounds as council liaison to the city planning commission. Keys, Ayers contends, often acts inappropriately by speaking out of line at planning commission meetings.

As liaison, he is simply supposed to convey council's position on issues then sit quietly and listen. But Keys, unable to resist the temptation to chime in, often interjects his own opinions, confusing commission members as to whether he's speaking as an elected official or a private citizen. At least, this is way Ayers sees it. Keys wasted little time drafting a response to Ayers' claim and read it into the record at last Monday's city council meeting. He faulted Ayers for her attempts at "censorship" and took exception to Mayor Chris Johnson's decision to seek a legal opinion on the matter.

There was even a poke at Northville Record reporter Bob Jackson, whom Keys blamed for not sticking up for him in the newspaper.

This is politics and personalities, pure and simple. It's something that goes on at all levels of government and often interferes with productive action. Speaker Newt Gingrich's admission that he took part in shutting down the federal government, in part, because he was snubbed by the president aboard a recent Air Force I flight.

We believe this uncharacteristic flare up on the Northville City Council is an insignificant issue that will soon pass. However, there is an oil and water mixture in the current make up of the board, meaning subsequent problems loom as a possibility.

There is a temptation to point a finger at Keys and say he is the one to blame. Before he was elected in 1993, peace and quiet reigned on the city council. No personalities, no clashes. But does peace suggest productivity or indifference? Does quiet signify efficiency or lack of attentiveness?

There is no question Keys often talks more than he should. His opinions are sometimes rash, his suspicions overblown.

But people like Keys can serve an important function: they keep others on their toes when no one else will.

Too often it happens that elected officials refuse to challenge paid administrators, either because they lack confidence in their understanding of the issues or because they fear being ostracized from the group. Passivity and lack of motivation are more serious threats in low-paying local government than ambition and corruption. Curmudgeons like Keys at least keep things moving and interesting.

We think Keys was mistaken when he suggested that Northville's elected officials don't study their background materials. Fortunately, our observations tell us otherwise.

But in making that claim he was also being himself, taking a broad swipe with his familiar reckless abandon.

Keys is often wrong, taking stands on issues he exaggerates out of propor-

But when he is right he is often alone, speaking out when others have turned their heads or simply missed the boat due to inattention.

We hope things will settle down on the city council and officials will return to the business at hand, minus the personal overtones.

Then Ayers and the others can supply the well-reasoned support for the administration and Keys can furnish the loyal and loud opposition.

It's a balance that just might work.

No tolerance for dumb choices

(Note: This is a reprint of a column written for a special series on drunk driving for the South Lyon Herald.)

Boy, was I ever out of touch. How I could have missed it I'll never know. Somehow, I just wasn't paying attention.

Seems like it wasn't that long ago that public drunkenness was not only socially acceptable it was downright cool. If you were seen having a few too many in the bar or at a party it was evidence that you were working hard at the important business of letting off steam. You were harmlessly out to have a good time and get into the spirit of the occasion. You know, all work and no

Back then, drunk driving was an unavoidable consequence of the fun side of living. It was the down side, perhaps, but still a natural enough thing. People need to relax, they need to drink.

They also need to drive home at the end of the night, but no matter. What could happen? If you got pulled over you might get ticketed. Sometimes you'd end up sipping coffee at the police station. If you were lucky. you'd get a free ride to your house in a patrol car.

But those days are gone. Long gone. Forever. I found out just how thoroughly attitudes have changed when I was arrested for drunk driving in Canton last April. It was my first offense. As the editor of a local newspaper and an established person in the community, I was sure I'd get the benefit of the doubt. They knew me at the court, I reminded myself. They'd know I was no threat to misbehave again.

I was out of touch.

Snider

What I soon discovered was that the benefit of the doubt now goes to society and to the potential victims of drunk driving accidents. Law enforcement, under the watchful gaze of MADD and other organized groups, is mindful of the terrible fatality rates and the horrendous carnage on the roads.

Anymore, you get caught and you feel the sting.

In my case, the sting consisted of a parade of fines amounting to about $1,200. And that doesn't include what the insurance company tried to do to my premiums, which would have approximated the national debt had I not found a discount firm that specializes in high-risk drivers.

Then there was the embarrassment of having to report to a probation officer for six months. The woman I went before was barely half my age and yet there I sat, responding to her questions like a school boy who got sent to the principal's office.

"Have you had any contact with the police since your

"Have you been drinking since last time?" "Do you plan to leave the state for any reason?"

I don't belong here, a voice inside me kept saying. I've spent better than half a lifetime on the right side of the law, now they're treating me like a criminal and all I did was get a little careless. Once.

But drinking and driving is a criminal - not a civil offense. That's what the handcuffs and the fingerprinting are all about. You get busted and you've got a criminal record, regardless of who you are or how long you've been law abiding.

As lousy as the fines and the probation were, I think the worst part of the sentence was the instructional program I was forced to attend. It was a 10-week series of classes designed for people with chemical dependency problems. Never mind that I didn't have a chemical dependency problem, I blew a high reading on the breathalyzer so I was told I had to go.

In the CD II program, as it was called, we were taught all about drugs - not just alcohol but all kinds of drugs. I learned why I shouldn't sniff glue or gasoline fumes, why I need to avoid addiction to amphetamines and barbiturates, why I shouldn't inject heroin or smoke crack cocaine.

Then there were the six Alcoholics Anonymous meetings I attended as part of the course requirement. In those sessions I heard a story of how an alcoholic got drunk and cut off his fingers with a power saw, I listened while a man said he had no memory of breaking his friend's jaw; and I heard a speaker tell about the time he got bombed and jumped off the roof of his old

Finding just enough for yourself

Sometimes you just have to wonder about the motivations of the Northville Township Board of Trustees.

How could the board vote to raise their own salaries by a few thousand dollars, and at the same meeting, nix the idea of donating $500 for an after school program for youths. As you know by now the Community Commission On Drug Abuse (CCODA) is launching an after school program which targets "at-risk" middle school kids called Northville Gets Michigan Youth Moving.

The organization, about six weeks ago, approached the township board of trustees for a donation to help defray some the minor costs of the program. At that time the board denied the request, stating that it wasn't government's place to fund that type of activity.

That's funny, the city of Northville didn't have any trouble reaching into city coffers to find a spare $500. Come to think of it, that's only $100 less than Chris Johnson gets paid for his services as Northville City Mayor. As opposed to Township Supervisor Karen Baja, who'll be pulling down $25,000 this year. Or Township Clerk Sue Hillebrand (you remember her, she's the one who says kids should have to pay to participate in this program), who gets a mere $7,500. Oh, we can't forget Township Treasurer Rick Engelland, who cashes in at $5,500 - thank you very much.

Money aside, there did seem to be some hesitancy, on the board's part, because the initial CCODA presentation didn't "provide enough information" for trustees to really make an "informed" decision.

Well CCODA returned to Township Hall Nov. 9, armed with information, to ask if the board might reconsider donating $500 for the program.

Unfortunately, just like the first time, CCODA walked away from the meeting with nothing.

On the flip side, township trustees walked out of the same meeting with pretty nifty raises.

Is it me, or are any of you having any trouble with this? I'm beginning to wonder why nobody, except a handful of people, aren't as incensed at this injustice as I am. The more I think about it, the more I'd love to just walk into Township Hall and scream.

HELLOI WE'RE NOT TALKING FORT KNOX HERE. WE'RE ONLY ASKING FOR $500!

I still don't think they'd hear me.

But I do believe they'll realize the benefit of this CCODA program someday. Perhaps it will take more publicity about Northville middle school students selling and snorting Ritalin, or perhaps a few dozen teen pregnancies, or possibly an increase in drunk driving deaths before they realize the value of providing kids with positive alternative activities. Perhaps then will they be willing to reach into township coffers for that $500 donation. Hopefully, it won't be too late.

Robert Jackson is a steamed staff writer for the Northville Record and Novi News.

All should attend school meeting

All citizens of Northville city that they can't afford the expanand township - be aware of a community dialog regarding the future of our high school.

This is our school district and $the board of education is asking for our input. Whether or not you have a student, I strongly suggest you attend. Our school district affects our property values school millages affect our taxes.

in this dialogue your thoughts, suggestions, insights, and opinions will be heard. Please come to community dialogue No. 1 on Nov. 29 at 7 p.m. in the Northville High School cafeteria.

Don't let minority speak for all

To the Editor:

Last week I had a call from Leonard Rezmierski, Northville School Superintendent, to have a meeting.

We met on Thursday and I 'would call it a very friendly and informative meeting.

We discussed the pending school bonding and expansion of our schools.

He was interested in a view from the older people in town who are in retirement and on Social Security benefits.

We both agreed that Northville is a fine community to live in but the whole community should tell the school board what they want. I hate to see 20-25 percent of the voters tell the other 75.80 percent of the taxpayers what we have to pay for.

His Job is to educate our com-

sion, then he will do the best he can with the money and buildings we have but let us have a majority vote. The city last week had a 33.5 percent of the voters and they thought that was great. It was not in our mind.

There are 17 new subdivisions in the planning state. How many are actually going to be built? I have been a partner in a couple of land deals and there are a lot of big ideas floating around. It takes a few years for them to mature from my experience. There are a lot of big time operators around with no money.

It reminds me of a joke. A Hollywood star comes to town and tells his agent that he wants him to find a million dollar home. The agent returned a short time later and said he had good news and bad news. The actor said tell me the good news first. I have found a home you would like. Now tell me the bad news. They want $5,000 down.

There are going to be several meetings for the public in the next few months and I would hope to see the older people listen to what is proposed.

If Quebec can get a 92 percent voter turn out, can't we get over 50 percent?

Dean H. Lenheiser

Snapped at by township worker

To the Editor.

On Nov. 15 at 1 p.m. I was informed by my daughter, who works in Northville, that munity's students. If they decide Northville Township's water had been contaminated by raw sewage since the prior afternoon or evening.

I immediately called the Water Department and was told that the information was accurate and that people should boil their water. When I complained mildly that this could be critical the lady on the phone told me in the aggressive, defensive tone that is sometimes experienced with government offices: "Well, we can't call everyone, you know, and it was on television!"

Well, I hadn't watched television since I was busy treating my dear wife with intravenous medication which means that I washed my hands with germicidal soap several times during the procedure and rinsed them in sewage contaminated water. What may have been an inconvenience for many people could have been and may still be a serious and critical problem for my wife. I don't know the answer but television is not.

William G. Wood (Note: Township Director of Public Utilities Bill Anderson saus no sewage got mixed with the tap water during last week's water problem. The boil advisory was instituted because there was a chance sediment might have gotten into the system. Municipal sewerage and drinking water lines are separate.)

Rejoins Livonia school trustee Frank Kokenakes: How come a "whole new law" is needed to satisfy 4 percent of the population when 96 percent are already satisfied?

There are other problems with the choice

For one thing, "it puts a bounty on the heads of kids," according to Livonia trustee Sue Clulow. Some districts where enrollment is not at capacity will recruit students from other districts, while others will try to attract academic or athletic all-stars. Especially vulnerable, according to Nancy Shaw, president of the Livonia teachers union, are smaller school districts such as Clarenceville and South Redford.

Others are concerned that the bill has been designed and pushed by people with limited experience in education. "I'm discouraged that so many code changes are in the hands of people who are not in education," says Linda Finkel, president of the Bloomfield Hills school board. Her fears are echoed by Ronald Miller, deputy superintendent in Birmingham: "I have difficulty with politicians coming up with changes without careful consultation with school people."

The fast track Senate Bill No. 679 is on worries others. They're making too many changes too fast," says Grace Preston, the state PTA president.

Rep. Gerry Law, R-Plymouth, agrees. It's just a rush, a 100-yard dash, to do this." And Law wonders about school quality. Most parents are not looking for gimmicks, just good local public schools, and Lansing tells them, nobody thinks that's important."

I think Law is absolutely right. Schools of choice turns out to be the silver bullet of choice for most politicians who want to be regarded as doing something - anything about school quality. Sadly, they are being stampeded by a minority of taus believers whose ideology inspires them to jam "comare trying to achieve measured, thoughtful school reform.

And you thought that the old saw -Ready? Firel Aim." - was just an anecdote.

Hively again: "Additionally, GTE supports the joint marketing restrictions related to carriers, thus establishing parity, found in Section 354 but should the Intra//InterLATA competitive linkage language be altered or removed from SB 722 this section should be expanded to require other providers to only offer IntraLATA toll services through a separate subsidiary and additionally they should be prohibited from joint marketing Inter//intraLATA toll services in either of their business units.

That is one sentence.

Lest you accuse me of taking these statements out of context, let me assure you Hively never defines IXC and LATA.

The Telephone Association of Michigan, which represents Ameritech, GTE and the other local providers, quoted this bit of economic research: "AT&T has reduced its prices by $8.521 billion while its annual access charge expenditures fell by $10.299 billion and industry exogenous (external) annual costs fell by $103 million."

The Michigan Cable Television Association seems to have disliked Sec. 203 concerning the complaint process: "The concern here is that if a provider or consumer has a complaint against a provider the current language seems to indicate that they must have every bit of information needed for their case.

Telephone company gets law to its liking

by TIM RICHARD Staff Writer

Ameritech came out on top in a compromise" over Michigan's Telecommunications Act.

The state House of Representatives passed its own version Nov. 7 of Senate Bill 722, which restricts but doesn't prevent long-distance companies from entering the "short-haul" toll call business. Those are local area calls where one must dial the area code and be charged longdistance rates.

Larry Handley, staffer for the Communications Workers of America, summed it up: "The simple fact is that among all these players, Ameritech is still the best company in Michigan, and it continues to be the home team," said Handley, pointing to CWA's 12,000 workers at Ameritech.

*My union represents AT&T (long distance company) workers, but there aren't many of them in Michigan. I see AT&T as a company that has pulled thousands of jobs out of Michigan in recent years.

These (long-distance) compa-nies can run their Michigan operations from elsewhere. They don't have to add a single employee in Michigan to get into the local business here.

Rep. Barbara Dobb, R-Union Lake, who guided SB 722 through the House with few amendments, put it much the same way. "Political reality is that Ameritech and GTE (chief local providers) are all Michigan companies, and the long-distance companies are all out-ofstate."

The House passed the measure Nov. 7 on an 80-27 vote and returned it to the Senate for concurrence in amendments.

Voting yes was Republican Willis Bullard of Milford, who represents the Oakland County portion of Northville in the

Gerald Law of Plymouth, who represents Northville Township and the Wayne County part of the city in the House, also voted in favor:

Dobb and Sen. Mat Dunaskiss, R-Lake Orion, engineered what they called a compromise on the short-haul business, but it was a compromise that favored Ameritech. Opposing it was the Michigan Competitive Telecommunications Association, which includes AT&T, CityNet of West Bloomfield, American Telemanagement and Americom of Rochester, and Kennon Worldwide Inc. of Lathrup Village.

MCIPA members remain most perplexed about the Legislature's refusal to immediately give consumers the benefits of competition on long-distance calls made within an area code," said Richard McLellan, chairman of the group.

Here's how the "compromise" will work, if the Senate agrees to the change.

Currently, if you want to place a short-haul toll call using your long-distance company, you must dial a code prior to the telephone number. For example, a short-haul call through AT&T requires dialing 10-ATT plus 1. the area code and the number -16 digits altogether.

Long-distance companies wanted what they call "dial-I parity" with Ameritech.

Ameritech opposed it, arguing for a level playing field. A Federal Communications Commission rule prohibits Ameritech and GTE from competing in the longdistance market.

Said Dobb: *Until that changes, they (Ameritech) don't want long-distance companies to have dial-1 access. But we (Michigan Legislature) don't control the federal prohibition.

"So we (in SB 722) are ordering the Michigan Public Service Commission to file in Washington to release our companies from the federal prohibition. We're ready to open up the market. We've set up a time frame that gives the long-distance companies an edge on getting into the local (short-haul) market.

"As of Jan. 1, 1996, the local providers will make 'dial-1' parity available in 10 percent of their market. They can choose whatever 10 percent.

"On Feb. 1 it goes to 20 percent, on March 1 to 30 percent and then to 50 percent on May 1, 1996. Everything freezes at that point" unless the FCC changes the rules.

The House shot down, 27-79, an amendment by Rep. Lynne Martinez, D-Lansing, to control Ameritech's rates on lengthy local calls. "It (time charges) makes Internet more expensive for students," she said.

Opposing the amendment was Rep. Dan Gustafson, R-Williamston. This bill allows the local company to offer different options. This amendment picks one of the options and strips it out. We shouldn't deny the option."

Among those supporting the Martinez amendment were Democrats Berman of Southfield, DeHart of Westland, Gubow of Huntington Woods and Kelly of

All others area members were opposed.

Kaza of Rochester Hills failed, despite some Democratic support, to insert amendments that would retain three Public Service Commission orders that SB 722 rescinded. The PSC orders cover access to lines and price struc-

This bill is seriously flawed, Kaza said. There's no pure competition in long-distance; it's an oligopoly (a few sellers). In intraLADA (short-haul toll calls). it's a pure oligopoly. At the local level, it's a pure monopoly.

"When dealing with a monopoly, you need some degree of government oversight," added Kaza, an economic conservative and free market guru.

'Friends' of education plan rally in Waterford

*Silent disagreement with critics is not enough," says James Redmond, superintendent of the Oakland Intermediate School District.

So 1,000 parents, students, educators and friends of public education from 28 local school districts will rally in support of public schools from 6:30 to 8 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 29.

The rally will include musical performances, district food service catering, and an update on the state of public education. said Redmond. Prominent Oakland residents will speak in praise of teachers who made a difference in their lives.

The rally is scheduled for one day after the Michigan Legislature returns from its two-week deer season break. The Republican-led Senate has passed, along party lines, a revised school code that expands the role of charter schools and strips out many quality measures of the last 10 years, including student portfolios, mandatory core curriculum standards, and annual reports to

Before the end of the year, the House is scheduled to act on a less drastic bill.

Basically it's a rally in support of public education, said Rick Simonson, Oakland Schools' lob-byist in the State Capitol. We'll have correct information on dropout rates, the success rates of high school graduates, and a comparison of SAT (Scholastic Aptitude Test) scores in the United States and Japan.

"Most of my folks see 'charter' and 'choice' as political things," said Simonson, who in the Nov. 13 edition of Inside Michigan Politics was ranked among the top 10 "single interest" lobbyists in Lansing - on a par with lobbyists from Blue Cross, Consumers Power and the Michigan Trucking Association.

Real estate surcharge under review

People who sold property in Wayne County since 1990 moved a step closer to recovering a real estate transfer surcharge of 40 cents per $1,000 of value.

Wayne Circuit Judge John Kirwan recently certified the suit of Peter Macuga and TACT (Taxpayers Allied for Constitutional Action) as a class action case.

by Dennis E. Engerer, P.T. SPRAINS EXPLAINED

Sprains damage the fibrous bands that connect bones (ligaments) and joint capsules. They usually arise when a sudden force occurs which the muscles are not strong enough to control, such as a twist-ing motion. As with strains, the damage may range from minor tears to complete ruptures. However, sprains tend to be more serious than strains in that they often take longer to heal. A torn ligament may also throw bones out of alignment, and thereby cause damage to surrounding tissue. To guard against sprains, it is a good idea to adopt a regimen that encourages muscle strengthening and flexibility.

Homeowners need to ask questions of contractors

With the remodeling season approaching, you may be among the many homeowners who are considering home improvements but are frightened by the horror stories of dishonest or unqualified contractors.

The good news is that by asking the right questions and looking in the right places, you can find a professional, experienced remodeler to do a job that will not only raise your home's value, but also make will not only raise your home's value, but also make the home more enjoyable for many years to come," said L. David Kellett, co-chairman of the Building Industry Association of Southeastern Michigan (BIA) Remodelers Council and president of Kellett Construction Company in Bloomfield Hills.

The best places to find qualified contractors is through friends, neighbors, local realtors and BIA's Remodelers directory.

Many homeowness like their neighborhoods and

Many homeowners like their neighborhoods and don't relish the expense and trouble of moving, but want a change in space or amenities. Remodeling makes it possible to upgrade and expand without moving and often rewards the investment with a higher sale price when the house is later put on the mar-

The percentage of a remodeling investment which will be returned depends on the job and the number of years until the house is sold, said Thomas Kellett, co-chairman of BIA's Remodelers Council and vice president of Kellett Construction Company. "A minor kitchen remodel can return 100 percent of the initial investment, while a new skylight illuminating a room could return even more. A rule of thumb is that any improvement which brings a home up to the level of similar houses in the same neighborhood is a good and ask the contractor to specify the materials and brand names on which he is basing the quote. Be especially wary of a quote significantly lower than the range indicated by the others. With a remodeling project, the lowest price often comes with a sacrifice or compromise of quality workmanship or materials, professionalism, time, supervision, service and follow

By the time you decide to hire a remodeler, you probably already have a fairly good idea of what you want the finished job to look like. A professional remodeler can take your ideas and recommend the most effective ways to achieve the results you are seeking while staying within your budget.

Like any important purchase, a remodeling project is not something to be spontaneous about. Although it may take some time to find a remodeler with whom you feel comfortable and can communicate, it is well

One of the most important things that can be done to learn about a remodeler is to ask for a list of recently completed projects that are similar to yours. He may have done kitchen remodeling, but that won't be much of an indication of how well he can add an additional level to your home.

Then, call the references and visit the sites if possible. To be protected from possible legal problems, it's important that you verify that the remodeler has the licenses and permits required to build in your city and is properly insured according to Michigan's regu-

A good remodeler will want you to do your homework before you sign the contract. In fact, since so much of a remodeler's business comes from referrals. a good remodeler will do everything possible to ensure that the job will reflect well on his company and add

Young Life members build new relationships

By LINDA ARNOLD Special Writer

There's a new group of teens in the area. They're not a gang. They don't drink or do drugs. Believe it or not, they get together to study and live the message of Jesus

And they have fun doing it. It's called Young Life.

Young Life was founded in the 1940s as a Christian-based youth group where trained adults seek out teens and build relationships with them on their own ground. Today it operates in more than 400 communities across the United States, and it was founded in Novi/Northville in 1994. Currently there are approximately 40 students from both high schools involved in some aspect of the pro-

Most of the participants meet on Monday evenings at the home of Mike and Patty McDonald in Northville for Campaigners. They gather to study the Bible, pray or just discuss personal concerns in a non-threatening atmosphere.

The national Young Life organization also owns and operates eight camp properties throughout the United States. The summer camping program is a strategic part of Young Life - it combines fun and adventure along with the message of the Gospel. Brian Trost, a 1995 graduate of the University of Michigan, came to the area in July to direct the Young Life program.

He's currently training a team of volunteer leaders and meeting local teens on their own turf - like Friday-night football games.

Trost hopes to begin a v event called "Club" in the spring. It's a fun time featuring singing and skits, yet it also contains a Christian message. He hopes to have a core group of 50 students at each week's Club.

Attendance is never taken, and there are no dues. Because the kids don't pay, the local adult committee sponsored its first annual fund-raising dinner on Oct. 23 in the Wyndham Garden Hotel in Novi.

Guest speaker at the banquet was John Miller, a member of the Young Life staff since 1946. He began the organization in Washington, DC. Denver and Fresno. CA, as well as Australia in 1984.

He is the author of "Back to the Basics," which describes the original vision of the Young Life founders. The banquet was nearly sold out.

Young Life's Novi/Northville area committee includes Paul and Sue

Campaign heats up for prosecutor position

The election for Oakland County prosecutor may be a year away, but the campaign is already heat-

Two wannabe prosecutors -Democrat Steven Kaplan and Republican David Gorcyca - are holding strategy sessions and fund raisers as they prepare to challenge incumbent Richard Thomp-

Nobody has officially filed for the race, and the deadline is May 14. Thus any number of candidates may yet enter the fray.

But Kaplan and Gorcyca are both taking potshots at Thompson as they prepare for what could be a heated campaign.

Thompson declined to comment about any possible challengers. He has, however, said he will seek reelection on the strength of job performance. "I run my office the way I think it should be run," he has said repeatedly. "Voters will on the work rele act accordingly.*

The timing is suspect, according to Gorcyca, a former Birmingham resident who lives in Royal Oak.

*The grand jury should have been convened long ago," Gorcyca said. "But Thompson delayed it so indictments would likely come out at the height of the campaign. That way, he'd strengthen his image as being tough on crime.

If he was really concerned about crime, he wouldn't politicize the grand jury," said Gorcyca who practices law from his office in Bingham Farms.

Gorcyca has held one fund raiser which he said netted about $7,000. He estimates an effective campaign will cost between $150,000 and $250,000.

One fifth of population hits road the on :Thanksgiving

The number of Michiganians who hit the roads and the skies during the upcoming 102-hour Thanksgiving holiday weekend will equal or slightly surpass last year's levels, according to AAA

Traditionally, about 20 percent of Michigan residents - or 1.8 million people - take a trip of 50 miles or more during the upcoming holi-day weekend," said AAA Michigan travel Director Bill Best. "That includes residents driving to grandmother's house up north for dinner as well as those flying home for the holiday."

Since Thanksgiving is primarily spent with family and friends, no one destination is surfacing as the only holiday "hot spot," Best said. But airline bookings to most domestic destinations have been

*For those not visiting relatives, Florida and Caribbean bookings have been high, as they always are during the winter months," Best said. "Las Vegas is also popular destination this holiday because of the inexpensive four-day charters available.

The best airfare deals still available for Thanksgiving may be for those willing to travel during offpeak times, such as Thanksgiving...
Day or the day after the holiday. Travelers are urged to scan newspapers or on-line computer services daily for sales or airfare wars and don't forget to check with their travel agent.

Detroit Metropolitan Airport is expected to be congested during the holiday weekend, particularly on the Tuesday and Wednesday before (Nov. 21 and 22), and the following Sunday (Nov. 26). The Auto Club urges travelers to arrive at the airport at least one-and-ahalf hours before their flight to find parking and check baggage,. Metro Airport maintains a 24-hour parking hotline (1-800-642-1978) and offers updates on radio dial 920 am when travelers are within three-to-four miles of the airport.

AAA Michigan also offers these tips for holiday fliers:

· Carry a photo I.D. Security has been increased at airports and passengers ages 18 and over should be prepared to present identification at the ticket counter or at the boarding jetway.

· Limit luggage to one suitcase and one carry-on bag. Do not wrap gifts until arriving at your destination, as they may be opened for inspection at the airport. Pack valuables, such as medicine and airline tickets for the return flight, in the carry-on bag.

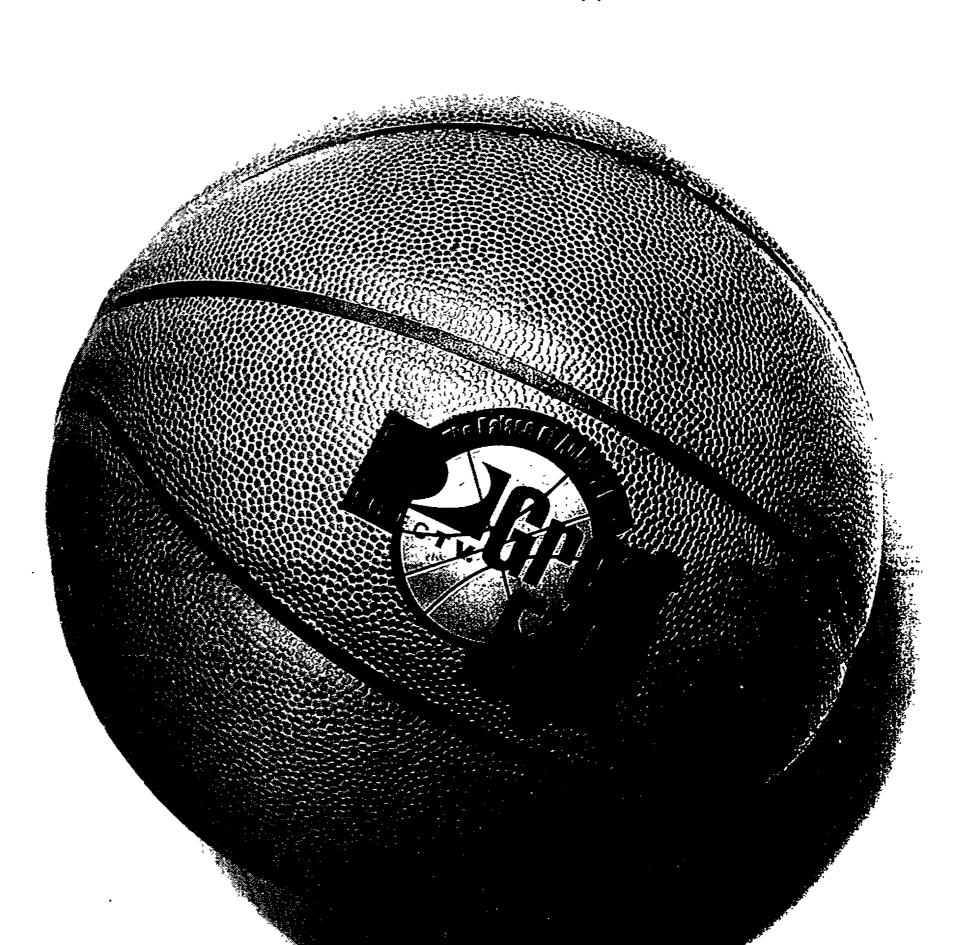

• To avoid long check-in lines, get a boarding pass from the airline or travel agent ahead of your flight date and check luggage at the curb when you arrive at the airport.

• If picking up or dropping off someone at the airport, park in the short-term or deck lots instead of idling in front of the terminals. Curb congestion backs up traffic and delays everyone.

Thanksgiving Day traffic will also be heavy on the roadways so the Auto Club urges motorists to leave earlier than usual for their destination. During last year's holiday weekend, 21 persons died in 19 crashes on state roads, down from 29 killed in 21 crashes in 1993. Of 17 victims with safety belts available, 12 were not buckled up and five of the deaths were alcohol-related. Holiday drivers will find gasoline prices lower than they were last Thanksgiving. A gallon of regular self-serve unleaded currently averages $1.076 statewide, compared to $1.107 last year.

Wood show returns to area

Woodworkers, home builders, wood turners and carvers whether beginning, advanced or professional - will have the opportunity to see and test the newest in hand tools, power tools, machinery and supplies, when The Metro-Detroit Woodworking Show returns to Metro-Detroit, Friday, Saturday, Sunday, Dec. 1, 2, 3 at the Novi Expo Center - Main Hall, 43700 Expo Center Drive, Novi. The tree-day event features exhibitors representing more than 100 different manufacturers from all over the U.S. displaying and demonstrating a wide range of woodworking, turning, carving and finishing materials and supplies, plus seminars and free workshops on dozens of woodworking topics. The show gives attendees the luxury of shopping for all their workshop needs - home or commercial - all under one roof, at special dis-

Admission to the show is $7 for adults, with children 12 years and under free. Tickets will be sold at the door. Show hours are Friday, noon to 7 p.m.; Saturday, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.; and Sunday 10 a.m. to 5

In-depth three hour seminars will be held in conjunction with The Woodworking Show. The following have been scheduled:

Marc Adams started with a shop in his garage in 1983 and turned it into a thriving multi-million dollar company with 25 employees. Marc Adams' Indiana based company, Adams Fine Wood Products, specializes in quality custom cabinets and fine furniture. In his comprehensive sessions on The Business of Woodworking, Working with Laminates and Veneers, "Joinery" and "Chair Construction," Adams will explore many facets of wood-

Mitch Kohanek, woodworking instructor at Dakota County Technical College featured in the January 1992 issue of Wood magazine, will teach "Preparing the Surface for the Finish" and "Finished and Finishing Techniques." These intensive seminars will cover the highlights of the 10-month program taught at the college, including surface preparation, coloring agents application techniques, finishes and finishing techniques, problem solving and basic repairs.

Table Saw and Router Techniques" by John Pritchard, professional cabinet/furniture maker and instructor, will teach you how the versatility of the router and table saw can enhance your projects. In this seminar, Pritchard will start with basic fundamentals such as what to look for in a router, how to set-up and select the right blade and table saw and advance to joinery techniques. working with jigs, fixtures, router bits and cutting techniques.

These sessions, to be held Friday, Dec. 1 and Saturday, Dec. 2 were developed especially for the woodworkers in Metro-Detrolt in recognition of their generally high level of expertise.

The cost of each three hour seminar is $70 when registering at the show. Advance registration is just $55 and can be charged by calling 1-800-826-8257, 8:30 a.m.-5 p.m. Pacific Time). Registration includes show admission ($7 value). Numerous local organizations invited to feature special displays of selected members' work include the International Wood Collectors Society, Michigan Woodcarvers and Michigan Woodworkers Guild. in addition to the displays, members will be demonstrating their crafts, answering questions and sharing techniques.

Fourteen free workshops for the beginning and advanced wood-worker will be led by local crafts people, the topics include Beginning Woodcarving by Jay Crawford; Working With Exotic Woods by Doug Kenney; Carousel Carving by John Nicholas; Making Wooden Trains by Doug Kenney; Beginning Woodworking by Joe Antone; Tune up Your Hand Plane by Tom Kearns; and Build a Wooden Clock by Scott Pritchard.

All attendees will be eligible to enter a prize drawing for a new Ford Escort.

RECORD OUR TOWN

Phil Kozdron, a junior at Northville High School, was one of approximately 20 students who submitted artwork to depict today's story about Thanksgiving Day responsibilities. Kozdron's drawing was chosen for its originality. He used a different point of view to depict the traditional male/female roles on Thanksgiving. Kozdron humorously rendered the man doing the traditional female chores of meal preparation while the woman indulges in the stereotypical recliner, beer-in-hand, football fanatic role of the male. Phil is the son of Christine and Jerry Kozdron of

Smokers don't have to quit cold turkey

As more and more workplaces implement "non-smoking" policies. smokers are being forced to either quit or confine their smoking to break times, lunch hours, evenings and weekends. Employers and employees are finding, however. that quitting cold turkey can often have a negative impact on productivity and work performance.

Exercise physiologist Molly Keep facilitates a smoking cessation program. Powerstop, for Botsford General Hospital's Health Development Network. 'With more companies going smoke-free, we're seeing a new kind of patient in our program Many workers are not interested in quitting, but rather 'controlling their habit," said Keep. They want to make it without a cigarette until a point in the day when they can smoke."

Because all smokers have different reasons for quitting - or curtailing their habit - Botsford Hospital's Powerstop program is individually designed. The ultimate goal, however, is to help each patient quit for life.

Actress loves the footlights

Carolyn Younger has been cast as Mrs. Eleanor Dodge Shubert in Shear Madness which is making it's Michigan premier production at the Gem Theatre through Feb.

Set in the Shear Madness Uni-sex Hair Styling Salon in Detroit's Indian Village, the play begins with the salon owner and his gumchewing manicurist combing through their daily routines - until someone murders the eccentric concert planist upstairs.

The salon staff and its customers - a wealthy socialite from Grosse Pointe Shores and a shifty antiques dealer - are all suspects. As witnesses to the bizarre crime, audience members, along with a detective and his sidekick, take a stab at catching the killer.
Shear Madness has been described as a cross between a play and a party game, because of its unique "interactive" format.

Mrs. Eleanor Dodge Shubert is a Grosse Pointe matron, married to a wealthy man.

She expects attention to be paid (her) but she has a fun, loving side and enjoys having her hair done at the Shear Madness Salon." Younger said.

I find that comedy is an incredible challenge." Younger said. *Doing this show up to speed may be one of the hardest things I've ever since." Younger said.

THE SANTA CLAUSE By Heather Wadowski Northville

Tim Allen stars in Walt Disney's "The Santa Clause." And whether you love him or hate him in "Home Improvement," you will love him in "The Santa Clause."

It's Christmas Eve, around midnight Tim gets awaken by his son. claiming to have heard something - or someone - on the roof. So. Tim goes outside to check it out. What he finds is unbelievable. It's Santal But of course, he doesn't believe it and calls up to the guy, startling him and making him lose his balance and fall off Tim's roof.

Next thing you know, Tim is in the red suit delivering gifts to children world wide. But what Tim doesn't know is that the person who puts on the red suit becomes Santa for good. That means he gets a white beard and a couple extra hundred pounds in the deal! Soon, everyone thinks Tim is a nut-case claiming to be Santa. He loses his job, his friends, and most importantly...his son.

Is there no way out? If he fulfills his duty as Santa, he'll lose everything that's important to him. But if he doesn't, there will be no

What will Tim do?

"The Santa Clause" gets five stars out of five, with five being the highest. It's funny, magical and full of heart. Most of all, it makes you believe. All in all, "The Santa Clause" soars to the top.

Back in '55 when "Marty" was released, explicit sex scenes, obscene language and costly explosives weren't necessary to make a successful movie. All you needed was a good script and superior acting.

Marty soon realizes he has a choice. He can go on with his humdrum existence - or he can pursue this friendless woman.

Marty, which first was a television drama with an entirely different cast, met with great success as a movie. It received Academy Awards for best picture, director, actor and screenplay, along with many supporting role nominations. Not bad for low-budget, no swearing, no explosives and completely clad actors!

Salem eventually went ahead and forced Northville to foul late in the game. The Rocks made six of their last seven from the line to put the game on ice. Wright said

Swimmers compete in state finals at I

Showing well in the state swimming meet is a lot different than doing well during the duel meet season. One or two star performers can mean the difference between finishing in the top 10 or bottom 10 at the big dance.

Northville High came up with several good swims in Saturday's final at the University of Michigan, but none of "star" quality. The Mustangs wound up 38th, with two points.

I was not disappointed with our swims." coach Bill Dicks said. They were comparable or slightly better than we've done all year.

Birmingham Seaholm won the Class A state title while Grand Rapids Forrest Hills was second. Ann Arbor Pioneer third and Livonia Stevenson fourth.

Dicks said all four of those teams were very strong. But other schools scored well with just a few good swimmers.

Jenison, for example, sinished 15th in the state on the strength of one swimmer. Jenny Crisman. She won a pair of events and scored more than 30 points on her own. In this meet," Dicks said, "you need a couple of studs.

Overall, the quality of this year's state meet was down.

There were a lot of high quality swimmers.

Dicks said, 'but no real standouts. Amy Kohl was the first to test the waters for Northville. The senior swam her fastest time ever in the 200-yard freestyle (2.00.93) and finished 19th.

Swimmers had to finish in the top 12 to score points for their schools

Kristen Warnke took a shot at the 200-yard IM. She failed to place with a time of 2:21.09. A pair of Mustang divers qualified for the state regional. Karen Fischer placed 19th at the

Kersey, Baker make all-area football squad

There is no great secret to running a successful offense in high

At the prep level teams don't run a lot of multiple formations or complicated schemes. The good teams are the ones that line up and simply get the job done with good, solid execution.

Keeping that in mind, the 1995 East All-Area offensive football team isn't glitzy. It's just an effective machine that would churn out yardage against the stinglest of defenses if it were ever assembled between the lines instead of on our

The key performers of one of the best offenses in the state leads the team. The heart of the South Lyon Lions offensive line provides a solid wall to run behind and with three talented runners like player of the year Mike Watson of $L and Aneil Kersey of Northville and Novi's Jason Witherspoon, the ground attack here is better than most armies.

Here's the complete list of firstteamers as selected by the sports editors of The Milford Times. The South Lyon Herald. The Northville Record and The Novi News:

RICK LAURA

Lakeland sr. quarterback Laura was the focal point of the Eagle offense this season.

He often had to rely on his physical tools because of a lack of experienced players surrounding him. Laura was a threat to run or pass and even though he was small in stature, 5-foot-10 and 165 pounds. he had a great way of making defenders miss.

"He's a very intelligent player and he knows how to use his quickness to his advantage." LHS coach Bill Mohr said.

Laura ran for nearly 300 yards and four scores and he passed for more than 500 yards and four more touchdowns. He was also a solid player on defense coming up with 24 solo tackles, two interceptions and three fumble recoveries at defensive back for the Eagles.

MIKE WATSON

South Lyon sr. running back

After a frustrating end to last season. Watson attacked the 1995 campaign with a vengeance. Watson injured his ankle in the latter part of the season one year ago and only saw spot duty as the Lions lost in the regional.

This season the area saw what a healthy Watson could do and it was a little scary. Entering the Class A state final clash against Lapeer West tomorrow Watson has rushed for 1,757 yards and 21 touchdowns. He averages nearly nine yards every time he touches the football and his consistency and big play ability made him a unanimous choice as Area Player of the Year.

"He's a great inside and outside runner with tremendous speed and quick feet." Scheloske said.

Watson, an all-KVC selection. and Greg McGuire made up one of the most dangerous backfields in Michigan this season

this fall by putting up some bigtime numbers.

Behind a banged up offensive line. Witherspoon rushed for 1,297 yards and 12 touchdowns. The junior averaged just over six yards

"He's always been a great back," coach John Osborne said. *But he's improving as he matures."

Besides running the ball, Witherspoon had other responsibilities for the Wildcats. He played defensive back much of the year and handled kicking duties.

"He's a great punter." Osborne said. "He's got an excellent leg."

The coach said he used Witherspoon as a spot defender later in the season to conserve his energy. Whether or not he plays defense next year. Osborne said he'll be tough to stop on offense.

"I think Jason will be one of the premier backs in the state of Michigan," he added.

ANEIL KERSEY

Northville sr. running back The senior closed out his Mustang career with a solid season.

Kersey rushed for 922 yards and accumulated 1.100 yards of allpurpose yardage. He also finished as Northville's all-time leader in rushing (2.606), rushing touchdowns (22), rushing attempts (549) and rushes in a season (206).

The last great running back we had was Rick Van Buren." coach Darrel Schumacher sald. "As good as he was. Ancil's got more tools and more weapons. He's been outstanding."

The coach credited Kersey's work ethic as the reason for his success. And for all of his accomplishments. the senior always acted like "one of the guys," Schumacher said.

Kersey was named to the All-Western Lakes squad for the second straight year.

MIKE SADLER Milford sr. receiver

Sadler was the leading receiver in the area hauling in 25 catches for 386 yards and four scores this season. "He has deceptive speed and he runs very precise patterns and just catches the ball well." Milford coach Mike Shearer said. "He's been our go-to guy for two years

Sadler, an all-KVC selection this year, also had a knack for making the grab in tough situations this

RYAN NOLL

Lakeland sr. receiver An extremely hard worker, Noll worked on all phases of his game in the off season. "He really dedicated himself this summer." Mohr said. "and he turned himself into a complete Noll was the favorite target of quarterback Rick Laura catching 16 balls for 284 yards and one touchdown this fall. He was also one of the top punters in the area. After refining his kicking skills at a camp in the off season Noll booted a 41.1 yard average and he blasted one kick of 70 yards this season.

MATT MCINTYRE Milford sr. lineman

It's often tough to combine physical strength and superior intelligence but McIntyre struck the delicate balance this season.

A three-year varsity player. McIntyre was one of three two-way players on the Redskins squad. He was a rock at center for MHS and he also played defensive end.

He's very intense and very intelligent," Shearer said of McIntyre who carried a 3.95 grade point average this year.

MARCUS BIRMINGHAM South Lyon sr. lineman

Birmingham threw opposing defensive linemen around like tackling dummies this season.

The key to his performance was raw power. He was one of the strongest players on a team full of monsters, bench pressing 435

*He just has tremendous strength and he's a very sound blocker. Lions' coach Bob Scheloske said.

Birmingham, an all-KVC selection this fall, was the only returning starter on what turned out to be one of the most dominating lines in the state.

Nate Forney made our all-area first team defense.

ROSS BAKER

Northville jr. lineman

The junior offensive tackle emerged as one of the area's best by the end of the season. Schumacher said he converted

Baker from fullback to the line. That's not an easy switch, but he made it well. "He did it for the team," said

Schumacher, "and went on to be our best blocker." Baker made the WLAA's All-Western Division Team. Schu-macher said Baker will anchor his offensive line next fall. *He constantly improved this year," he said. "I think he'll be a leader for next year's team."

JEFF MOBLEY South Lyon jr. lineman

It was no coincidence that Mobley's emergence as a great lineman in the KVC paralleled South Lyon's rise to the top of the conference

An all-KVC performer, Mobley combined both strength and agility. He bench-presses 300 pounds and he's got some pretty quick feet for a big guy.

He's going to be a great one in the future." Scheloske said. "He really helped make our running game go because he was able to get down field and make some great blocks

IAN LOCH South Lyon sr. lineman

If it's true that the center is the anchor of any good line then Loch was one of the best anchors around in the middle of the SL

"It all starts with a good center/quarterback exchange and Ian was a good center for us this year." Scheloske sald.

Loch was at his best when blocking one-on-one against a defender. He rarely was beaten and he often opened up big holes for rushers Mike Watson and Greg

Some defenses like to adopt the "bend but don't break" philosophy on the football field.

Hometown Newspapers' East All-Area First Team Defense has a different methodology. We call it. "thebreak-the-offense-in-half and don't-give-them-an-inch" philosophy. Led by a quartet of South Lyon state finalists. Dan Bargowski. Ryan Morris, Steve Vernier and Rick Peters, our first teamers were tough against the run

If anybody on our all-area team has a nose for the football it's Walega. The Wildcat senior seemed to come up with big plays all season for Novi.

"He runs very well for a big guy," he said.

Osborne said Sill's experience paid off big-time this "He had a better feel for the game," he said. "He was not easily faked." The coach described Sill, an All-Kensington Valley Conference pick, as a fierce tackler with a bit of "mean

Warner, an all-KVC selection, was second on the team with 49 solo tackles but he also had two interceptions and three fumble recoveries

He also rushed for 222 yards and caught 14 passes

RICK PETERS

South Lyon sr. defensive back

Peters came into his own as a dynamic hitter and a reliable cover man this season.

"He was a great hitter at shortside corner for us." Scheloske said. When people would try to run on us on the short side he was there and it would prove not to be a wise decision."

Peters had 58 tackles and four interceptions, including one returned for a score, this year. An all-KVC player on defense. Peters also played in the Lions' offensive backfield depending on the situation

Right diet can help beat cancer

By KAREN THOMAS Special Writer

It's no secret that eating lots of fruits and vegetables appears to decrease cancer risk. What's new. Filling up on a rainbow of brightly hued produce - at least five servings a day - also may significantly Increase a woman's chance of survival if she gets breast cancer, say U-M Medical Center researchers.

The cancer-fighting power of nature's bounty stems from carotenoids: plant pigments that, once ingested, in many cases are converted to Vitamin A. Beta carotene - the pigment that puts the orange in carrots, sweet potatoes and apricots - is probably the best-known carotenoid, but an additional 600 potentially protective pigments can be found within the produce aisle.

Upping one's carotenoid intake has been found to yield a variety of beneficial effects at the molecular level, such as enhanced cell-to-cell communication, which discourages cancer growth. Now, U-M researchers have added another bonus to the list. They've found that carotenoids also are associated with the presence of estrogen receptors in malignant breast tumors, a sign of good prognosis Because estrogen-receptor-positive tumors need the hormone estrogen to grow, they're more responsive to therapy with estrogen-blocking drugs such as tamoxien

Rock and co-investigators Mack Ruffln, M.D., a U-M family practice physician, and former U-M cancer surgeon David August, M.D., analyzed blood samples from 149 women newly diagnosed with breast cancer, they measured the carotenoid level in each sample and also reviewed the women's medical records for breast cancer risk factors, such as age at first pregnancy and family history of the disease. The estrogen-receptor status of each woman's tumor was biopsy procedure. The researchers found that the women with ER-positive tumors had a higher level of carotenoids in their blood - beta carotene and lutein, specifically. The correlation applied independent of breast can-

The relationship was so strong in this group," Rock says, "that for every .3 micro mole increase which is tiny - in their blood levels of carotenoids, women approximately doubled the chance that their tumors were estrogen-receptor positive." Scientists don't yet know whether all carotenoids are created equal. While beta carotene has been studied the most, many of the women in Rock's study had higher levels of other types in their blood Lutein, for example, found in dark green, leafy vegetables like spinach determined as part of the routine and broccoli, also appears to be Photo courtesy of the University of Michigan helpful, she says.

Which are the best fruits and vegetables to bring home? 'The darker, more vibrant the color, the better - because you'll be getting a bigger dose of carotenoids." Rock advises. She also recommends selecting a wide variety. In our study, the women who were best off might have had broccoli at dinner, but they also had orange juice at breakfast. That's also why i would certainly not rely on beta carotene supplements alone. They give you only one carotenoid - and the other 599 may be where it's happening -

A current procedure to correct near-sightedness and astigmatism. RK (radial keratotomy), involves making spokelike cuts into the clear cornea - the clear dome over the colored iris - to flatten it. Excimer laser flattens the cornea by sculpting it. And that's not all: a procedure called LASIK (laser in situ keratomileusis) may allow the excimer to work even more efficiently by combining microsurgery and corneal sculpting. This may be the best choice for very near-sighted patients

Novi swimmers go scoreless

By SCOTT DANIEL Sports Editor

Novi High didn't win the state swimming championship Saturday at the University of Michigan. The Wildcats, in fact, didn't score a point. But that doesn't necessarily mean the day or season was a flop, according to coach Dave Maker.

We had a good year," the first-year mentor said. "It was a growing year. The girls were getting used to me and me to them.

Still, a few points at the final would've made the season that much sweeter.

"It was a little disappointing," Maker said, "Our tapers went well. But good tapers don't account for Birmingham Seaholm captured the Class A title. Grand Rapids Forrest Hills was second, Ann Arbor Pioneer third and Livonia Stevenson fourth.

Jamle Vandermass was the first to test the waters

The junior took 18th in the 200-yard IM in 2:16.09. which was an improvement of three seconds over her best time of the year.

"She was pretty psyched," said Maker. Vandermass also swam in the 100-yard freestyle.

She placed 30th in that event with a time of 56.97.

Maker said there was about an hour wait between events for Vandermass. He thought she got a little nervous for the 100 freestyle.

"我一个人的人不知识的人就是一个感情。"

'She was a little more intense than normal," he added. "Jamie's usually very relaxed."

Novi also competed in a pair of relays. The team of Vandermass, Meghan Mutch, Jeannie Smith and Michelle Sveller were 24th in 1:44.59. That same group finished 26th in the 400-yard freestyle relay in 3:48.51. Swimmers and relay teams had to finish in the top 12 to score points. Maker said he thought his relay teams had a chance to place.

"I thought the relays would (score)," he said, "and Jamie would get a couple of points."

All in all. Saturday's final wasn't as fast as in years

"A couple of events were fast," Maker said. "But, overall, it wasn't that awesome." Novi's season is now complete.

The Wildcats finished 7-2 in the dual meet portion of the campaign. The team's prospects look good for next year with only three swimmers, Michelle Pantaleo, Christina Tardella and Shelley Williams, graduat-

Maker said his team did improve this fall. Novi has a lot more depth now than back in August.

"I think the thing was this year." Maker said, "we had a handful of awesome swimmers, but no middle. "I think we developed a strong middle."

Unique residences sell at a high price

By James M. Woodard Copley News Service

Selling a conventional three-bedroom, two-bath house is sometimes difficult enough. But how do you sell a luxury cave home in the Ozarks, or a three-story residence atop a historic water tower on the California coast?

Publicity and target advertising - those are the keys to exposing the property to the world. Real estate columnists are always looking for unique, off-beat residences to write about. People love to read about them, and dream of owning and living in such a property, even though it may not be even a remote possibility.

The 5.500-square-foot cave home took 200 million years to complete, the owner pointed out. And now it's available to a lucky buyer for only $3.5 million.

The residence seatures hardwood, tile and carpeted floors. It has five bedrooms, five bathrooms, a library, hot tub, and a secondfloor sitting room A team of Hollywood lighting technicians designed the illumination system, which turn the stalactite-covered ceiling and limestone walls into sparkling works of art.

Above ground, on its 533-acre site, there are mountain woods, ponds and pastures. And, of course, a helicopter pad.

The unique cave home was first developed by an affluent businessman who wanted his hixury home to also serve as a comfortable and effective bomb shelter. The property has been sold a number of times in recent years for a variety of uses, including a one-of-a-kind corporate retreat.

The property took second place in the recent "Unusual Listings or Sales contest sponsored by the National Association of Realtors.

A unique above-ground property, atop the historic Sunset Water Tower, is located in Seal Beach. Calif. When word got around the tower was about to be demolished. a couple of men decided to combine their financial resources in purchasing the property and building a house on top It's now the ultimate view home.

If you like views from a high vantage point, you'd probably like

Harvest time in cranberry country is a 6-week frenzy that begins in late September. Bogs for miles around are flooded and transformed into lakes of luscious red berries as water-wheels churn the water and dislodge the berries from their vines.

The growers, wearing chesthigh rubber waders, step into the bogs and corral tons and tons of floating berries to where they can be propelled by elevators into waiting trucks to be processed for the market.

Removing spots from red bricks

By Gene Gary Copiey News Service

9. Over the past several years my red-brick patio has developed areas that look like mildew or mold. I filled a bucket with water and some bleach, and tried scrubbing the spots.

It seemed to work, but "white areas" remained wherever I worked on the brick. Do you know of a chemical that will remove the whitish film?

A. This is a common condition called efflorescence. It is caused by moisture working its way through the brick and bringing water-soluble salts to the surface, which are originally present in masonry materials. These salts are deposited on the surface when the water evaporates

Masonry cleaning and etching preparations are available at masonry supply houses, which will remove soil and various stains, including the white spots. Or you can use a solution of muriatic (hydrochloric) acid. Mix I part acid to 9 parts of water by brick, it is important to presoak the brick with plenty of water before the acid washing. It is equally important to follow the treatment with a thorough rinsing of fresh water.

To prevent the reoccurence of efflorescence, to seal the brick with a water-resistant coating. Your masonry supply outlet will have both clear sealers and those that come in colors that are particularly suited to masonry surfaces. The pigmented sealers can give you a richer, deeper red than natural brick.

g. I have a new wood parquet floor that is finished in a urethane coating. I would like to keep it looking great. How do I maintain and clean it without having to buy the expensive solution pushed by the flooring company?

A. You are wise to consider proper maintenance while your floor is glowing and picture perfect. Many people think that urethane coatings do not require special care. They do if you want to preserve that brand-new look.

Urethane or polyurethane is a liquid plastic that comes in a gloss or satin finish. This coating is durable, and with proper care

To maintain the floor, sweep and dust mop as needed. Vacuum with an electric broom or vacuum (make sure the bottom of the vacuum does not contain anything that would tend to scratch the flooring).

Do not use a wet mop, even if your flooring has a urethane coating. Wipe with a damp cloth that is almost dry after the excess water has been wrung out. Buff immediately with a dry, soft. clean cloth.

Soap is rarely recommended. and for periodic cleaning of accumulated grime and dirt it is probably best to stay with the manufacturer's recommended cleaning product. The expense can outweigh the damage you might do to the finish using nonrecommended products.

If you want to persist in finding an alternative, in general a very mild, biodegradable type of soap can be used on most urethane finishes - but only if care is taken during the cleaning prouct made specifically for wood) on the bottom of a mop. This will give your flooring a beautiful glow while picking up dust particles at the same time.

Prevent denting and scratching of your flooring by outlitting table and chair legs with rubber tips or plastic-coatings. Watch out for high-heel shoes, which can easily leave dents in your flooring. These dent marks are permanent and can be removed only by re-sand-

In time, the top coating of urethane will wear down, normally after three to five years, depending on use. In general, when this happens, the floor is lightly sanded and a new coat of urethane is applied. Since your urethane coating was applied at the factory. when that time comes you will need to contact the manufacturer and get his advice prior to re-

It is important that you never apply a wax floor dressing to a urethane finish. The wax becomes a contaminant to the urethane and the urethane peels off. New urethane coatings cannot be successfully reapplied.

9. Is anything being done about the huge number of lawsuits targeted at builders of housing developments?

A. Construction defect legal claims are a growing problem. In fact, it's a multimillion-dollar problem for builders and reform legislation is overdue, according to a report from the law firm of Cox. Castle & Nicholson.

For this reason, new legislation in California was recently signed by Gov. Wilson that requires a mandatory exchange of information and a "meet and confer" prosue builders for design or construction defects. Similar legislation is being considered in other states amination. says Dianne McCormick, Director of Environmental Health at the Livingston County Health Department.

"You actually see people taking he chicken out, slapping it on a cutting board, chopping it up. washing it off and throwing it in he skillet and then comes the head of lettuce," McCormick said.

The result: the healthy salad ou've just prepared for your famiy may now be contaminated with bacteria from the raw poultry.

That's enough to make you lose our appetite.

However, that scenario can be prevented if you simply remember o wash cutting boards, knives or utensils that have come in contact with raw meat, fish, poultry, even eggs, with hot, soapy water before ising them for other foods

Michelle Lenhart, a food sanitaran with the health department, tresses personal hygiene as an mportant factor in preventing ross-contamination She says it is specially important after using he bathroom, and after handling raw meat and poultry.

*One of the most important hings anyone can do . is to wash their hands well, with soap and water - not just a quick rinse," said Lenhart, who inspects restaurants throughout Livingston County.

In her own home, Lenhart says that to prevent cross-contamination when preparing food like chicken, she keeps her work area small and keeps all the utensils for that task close at hand, and "I think about what I am doing with When it comes to cleaning up the food preparation areas of the kitchen, it is also important to room temperature. realize the implements of the job sponges and washcloths - can harbor bacteria. For example, if you use a sponge to clean up raw poultry juices and then neglect to wash it out properly before wiping down another surface, despite your best intentions. you may be transferring bacteria from one surface to another.

Rinsing the sponge or cloth in hot, soapy water or, as both McCormick and Lenhart suggest. a bleach-and-water solution (one capful of bleach per gallon of water) is recommended.

Another option is to forgo using a sponge or washcloth to clean up meat juices and instead use a paper towel and an anti-bacterial spray cleaning product or your own spray solution of bleach and

Additionally, because sponges are so absorbent, it's a good idea to replace them on a regular basis When replacing them, look for anti-bacterial sponges.

Another common practice that is sure to cause problems is defrosting meats or poultry on a countertop. Because of the potential for bacteria to thrive in meat or poultry at countertop defrosting is not a proper method, says

McCormick. Instead, defrost in the microwave, under cold running water or in the refrigerator.

But be careful when defrosting items in the refrigerator, warns McCormick.

"If you're defrosting a package of chicken and you put it on the second shelf in your refrigerator when that chicken starts defrosting, you'll have drippings. If you don't have it properly contained, the drippings will go down into, say, the salad bowl
"So the storage of the product in your refrigerator is also a con-cern," said McCormick. To prevent the juices from dripping down on other foods, place the meat or poultry on a platter or tray and defrost it on the bottom shelf of the refrigerator.

Other tips to remember: Keep hot foods hot and cold foods cold. Hot food should be kept above 140 degrees and cold foods should be kept at 45 degrees or below. Holding food between 45 degrees and 140 degrees is what McCormick calls the "danger zone" because it is the temperature range in which bacteria grow like

A new business now occupies the upper level of a storefront at 107 E. Main, Northville. Hooked On Rugs, run by partners Beth Bacon and Beth Sekerka, opened its doors on Nov. 15.

Comprising three rooms and an office, the store specializes in primttive hooked rugs, but also sells wool and other fabric, antiques and items for the home.

According to Beth Bacon, the business will soon offer craft classes. More information, call (810) 449.7016.

Novi resident STEVE SCHULTE was recently named Platform Director for LEAR SEATING CORP. Schulte will be responsible for the Dodge Ram seat program and will continue his responsibilities as director of engineering for Lear's Chrysler Division.

Novi resident JOHN R. TOLOFF,

CPA, has been promoted to associate by PLANTE & MORAN. He joined the firm as an auditor in 1990 and is based in the company's Southfield office.

Pet shop opens at mall

Twelve Oaks is, without doubt, one of the finest shopping centers in the country.

From the latest in apparel, hair care and entertainment to the newest computer technology, it can all be found at the Novi mall. But as wide a variety as Twelve Oaks has offered, its been drastically short in one area.

Until now, anyway. Petland is the first domestic animal retailer at the mall in eight years.

Pupples are our main focus. said franchise owner Randy Horowitz. "We carry 35 to 40 breeds and have a wide selection."

The pet shop opened about two weeks ago. Based on the response, Petland opened none too soon. In store's first week of operation more than a dozen pupples were sold, Horowitz said. It didn't come as a great shock, he added. We're satisfying a need in the area," Horowitz commented. There's no other full-line pet store in the area. Petland is based out of Chillicothe, Ohio, and features 160 franchise outlets in the U.S., Canada and Japan. The new Novi store, adjacent to Sears in the mall, is the third in Michigan. Horowitz and wife, Cindy, are veterans of the business. Combined, the duo have more than a dozen years of experience in the industry.

Horowitz had been out of the business for about two years before buying the franchise. "I missed it a lot," said Randy. "I made a mistake getting out."

, The Horowitz' had been looking to get back into the business for about a year before deciding on Michigan. Affiliating with Petland was an easy decision, Randy said.

"I feel comfortable having the help from the company, having the support, he added.

Petland appears to be a cut above many pet stores. Unlike some shops that have a certain peculiar smell about them, Petland is exceedingly clean. The 2,100-square-foot store is designed to keep it that way too, with pets housed neatly in their own cages behind glass. But that doesn't mean you can't get to your favorite puppy. Pet counselors set customers up in one of three rooms with the puppy of their choice for a get-acquainted session.

The "counselor" then provides customers with the pertinent information about the animal, including health and family history.

We want to match the right pet with the right person," said

Horowitz.

The store carries everything from American Eskimo and Beagles to chow chows and German shepherds. Each animal comes with a one-year health warranty.

We're guaranteeing that you get a healthy puppy, said Horowitz.

Many varieties of kittens can also be purchased. Horowitz said his Petland store will specialize in tropical fish as well.

Rabbits, guinea pigs, domestic birds, hamsters, ferrets and reptiles are other animals on hand.

Petland has all the supplies need for your animal.

lams, Eukanuba and Petland are the major food brands carried. Cages, toys, grooming equipment and health items are available as well.

Petland sells many "starter" kits for new owners. "Just add the pet," Horowitz

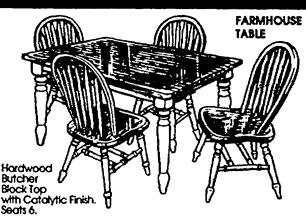

ioked. Store hours are Monday through Saturday 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. and on Sunday from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. For more information, call 449-7340.

The Perfect Pet-Lover's Present

This holiday, give a really special gift to the pet lover on your list. Jill Andra Young Photography, this area's leading pet photographer, is now offering gift certificates along with a special treat package just in time for Christmas.

Our gift certificates start at just $ 48 00 for a studio sitting of a pet. You can select one that also includes individual prints or packages, tailored to your needs or budget. And remember, the gift of photography creates memories that will be cherished for a lifetime, long after the warm glow of the holiday fades.

Actually, there are bones, too!!!

To make this a really tasty deal, we have teamed up with another well-respected name in the pet world, tams Pet Foods.

For a limited time, along with each gift certificate purchased, you will receive a selection of lams Pet Food products and promotional items for that special pet and pet lover. Boxes of lams biscuits, biscuit canisters, flashlight keychains, discount coupons, and even lams pet bandanas; all this free stuff adding up to make this a really special present for both pet and owner!

If you need more information or would like to purchase a gift certificate, feel free to call or stop in our studio in downtown Plymouth.

WRAPPER'S DELIGHT

Plan ahead to design gift packages almost too pretty to open.

Imagination is the only limit on perfect wrapping job

By Diana Carney

Copley News Service

Here's a pop quiz. Have you ever: A. Tried to wrap a shirt without a shirt box?

B. Tried to jam a big, fluffy robe into a shirt box?

C. Run out of wrapping paper in the middle of a job and substituted another pattern to patch up the bare spot?

If you answered yes to any of these questions, you don't know how to wrap a present, and you've been botching it, faking it or buying those trendy gift bags.

It's time to correct the mistakes of holidays past, and that means no more bulky wrap jobs, no more wrapping every gift in the same wrap, no more running short of paper because you didn't measure.

Battle No. 1: Packaging.

Who among us hasn't tried to wrap a dress shirt without a box? This could be the biggest no-no of all. It makes the experts cringe.

"You cannot wrap without a box, that's the important thing," said Virginia Abraham, who has been wrapping gifts for Marshall Field's in Chicago for 29 years.

Everything goes into a box, and if you haven't been saving them all year, you must buy them now. Don't quit until you have enough.

Battle No. 2: The diaper wrap.

If you leave too much paper at the ends of a box, you will create the much-loathed diaper look. Most people leave too much paper at both ends of a box because they're afraid they'll run short and have to start over. The result is a bunched-up look.

How much paper is enough?

"Measure the thickness of a box and cut it in half," said Chris Riddle, creative director for Christmas products for American Greetings.

For example, if a box is 2 inches deep, leave 1 inch of paper on either end. We found that allowing slightly more than half the thickness worked just fine, too, but don't panic and leave 4 inches unless you like the diaper look on a gift.

Don't be afraid to measure; it's not being too fussy. And mark in pencil where you'll cut the paper because you won't remember after you move your finger.

Battle No. 3: Odd-shape gifts or tellall gifts.

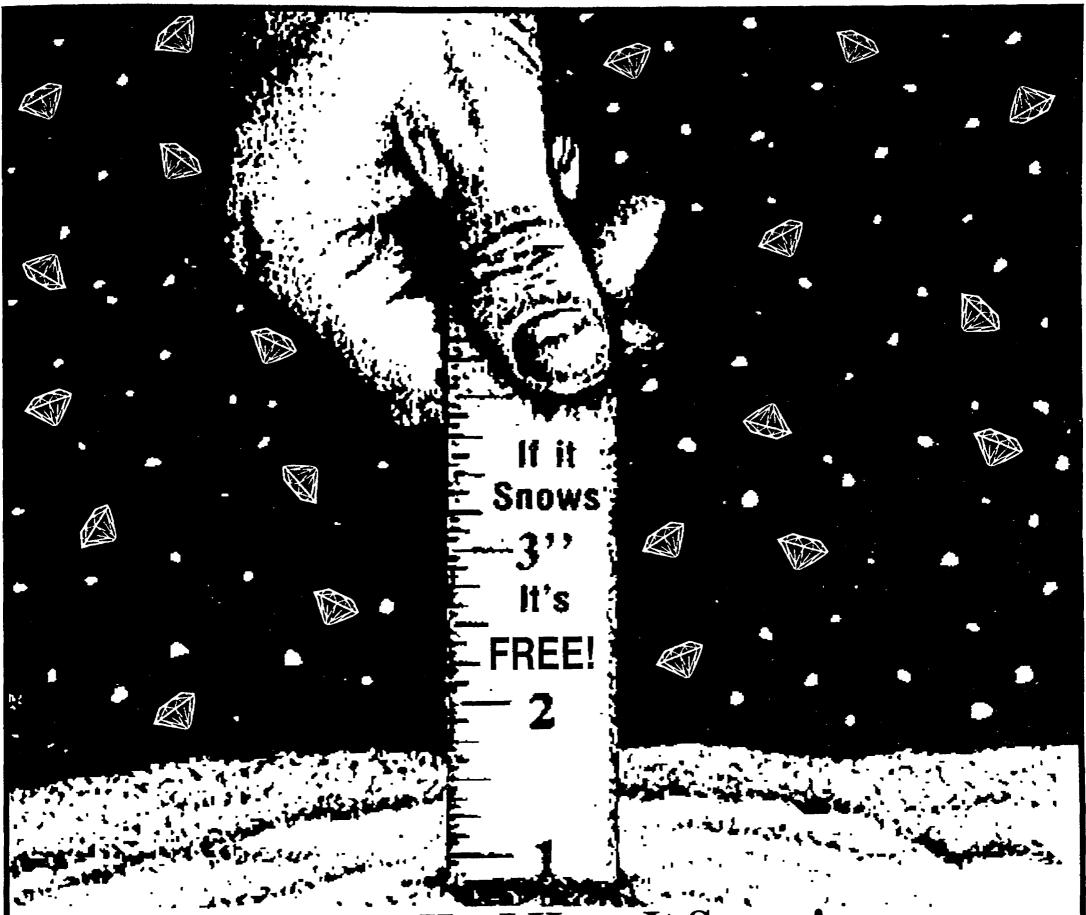

How do you wrap a basketball? How do you disguise a tie box?

"I always like to try to fool someone when they're getting a gift that they know about," Riddle said.

Put the basketball in a square box, for example, or try sliding the tie box in a beverage bag — bags designed for beverage gifts, but suitable for any gift.

Riddle also saves medium-size coffee cans for small or medium gifts. He lines the cans with tissue so the gift doesn't rattle around. He wraps the can so that the paper gathers loosely at the top, and then he ties it with ribbon. For extra flair, use scissors to curl the ribbon. No one will guess what's in that can.

Imagination is the only limit

Try arranging homemade jams in a pretty basket lined with seasonal tissue or doilies, Riddle suggested. Each jar of jam can be wrapped in tissue, with the tissue loosely gathered at the top and tied. Most greeting card stores also sell special bags for homemade cookies and other goodies.

War Zone No. 4: Dos and don'ts. For the trim-and-tidy look, do use two-sided tape. When your gift is finished, no tape will show on the outside.

Don't wrap small gifts in paper with a large pattern. It looks ridiculous to have half a wreath showing on your gift. For large gifts, use paper with a big graphic image, Riddle said.

Do go crazy wrapping gifts for children. Make the presents from Santa special by using twine or a design completely different from the other gifts under the tree. Parents, don't forget to disguise your handwriting on the gift tags from Santa.

Do ask for help and suggestions from your creative friends and relatives. They will be more than glad to assist. And won't they be delighted when you surprise them with a gloriously wrapped gift?

If you answered yes, give yourself a perfect score and get started on that wrapping.

And if you need a few more ideas, try these wrapping tips from Current Inc., a catalog supplier of greeting cards, gift wrap and other holiday and special occasion decorations and gifts:

Wrapping. Consider a common design theme, such as Santa or winter snow scenes, and use a distinct wrap for each gift, rather than place a parade of identically wrapped gifts under the family tree.

Try combining complementary gift wraps on the same package. For example, wrap a wide strip of plain-colored wrap around the middle of a box already covered with a patterned gift wrap.

Adornments. In addition to ribbons and bows, try accenting packages with miniature ornaments, fresh fir tree branches, silk or dried flowers, pine cones, holly or artificial fruit.

For an old-fashioned country look, tie holiday packages with straw, raffia or twine.

Use doilies, paper doll cutouts and old Christmas cards to decorate gifts.

For the gift recipient with a sweet tooth, attach favorite confectionary treats to wrapped packages.

Attach miniature books, toy cars, figurines and other collectables to gifts for hobbyists.

For an especially festive look, glue confetti to holiday gift wrap.

Ribbons and bows. Use enough ribbon so that bows look lush and abundant.

And make sure to vary the lengths when adding extra tails to your bow.

Size the bow so it is proportionate to the package, i.e., small bows will get lost on large packages.

Use varying ribbon colors and textures together to make a collage effect with one bow.

Enhance the theme of your wrap by choosing the same style or complementary ribbon. For example, attach a floral bow or even a flower when using floral wrap.

Packaging. Consider old hatboxes, pails, flowerpots and other unusual packaging concepts as alternatives to conventionally shaped boxes.

Attach small but substantial gifts, such as jewelry, to another gift. For example, place a necklace around a teddy bear or pin a brooch to a sweater.

For hard-to-package gifts, consider wrapping a clue in place of the true present. For example, wrap a shiny new bicycle horn instead of the bike itself.

sane season Making the holidays a happy one

By John Godfrey

Copley News Service

Norman Rockwell is considered a national treasure, and justly so. His charming paintings, many of which were displayed on the cover of the Saturday Evening Post, depict an innocent America populated exclusively by cute kids, cuddly pets and warm, lighthearted adults. In particular, Rockwell's illustrations of holiday get-togethers make everything and everyone seem pleasant and jovial.

Are the holidays ever really like that? For anybody? Hardly.

Do people feel pressure to make their holiday look and feel like a Rockwell painting? Usually.

"There is an assumption that our family should look like a Norman Rockwell family," says Lisa Fontes, assistant professor of family therapy at Purdue University. "In a still picture it looks very peaceful and everybody is enjoying each other and appreciating each other. But, in fact, family relationships are more complex than that.

"We will all have a better time during the holidays if we all give ourselves a break and expect some friction. That's just part of the package."

Whether you tend to spend the holidays shoehorned into a crowded house or alone in an apartment staring at the television, you don't have to be a slave to tradition. The best way to break out of the holiday season doldrums is to be creative about how you spend your time.

UNHAPPY TOGETHER

Fontes suggests we ask ourselves a basic question: "How can we create rituals that are meaningful today?"

For families forced into close quarters during the holiday season, she says we can help initiate new traditions by spreading out a bit.

"There's this notion that we all have to be together at all times," she says, "I don't know where that came from. It doesn't have to be seen as a defeat if everybody isn't in the same room talking about the same topics."

"Not all family members are the same," she adds, noting that much holiday stress originates in our attempt to pretend we are all perfectly matched. Instead, she hints, we should embrace our differences. Those who enjoy taking walks should do so. If someone likes to read in the afternoon, that's OK, too.

In most extended families you will find people with different religious beliefs, political opinions, racial backgrounds, etc. The matriarch and/or patriarch of the family shouldn't dictate the tone of festivities but, instead, should make sure that everyone feels included.

Does that mean that all traditions should be thrown out the window? Of course not. But a wide assortment of traditions — both old and new — can help make for a pleasant family gathering.

Other tips:

Invite friends to family gatherings. It will add freshness to the festivities, and volatile family members might be inclined to stay on their best behavior.

Move the TV out of the central living area. December always means football games aplenty, but watching the tube shouldn't dominate everyone's day. If necessary, negotiate how much TV will be watched before the games begin.

Serve a buffet instead of a formal sit-down dinner. People can spread out and avoid claustrophobic encounters.

UNALONE

Andrea McGinty, founder of the It's Just Lunch dating service, is used to dealing with lonely singles. Especially in the months leading up to the holiday season.

"We're really busy in October and November," McGinty says, "because people are starting to look for companionship. They're thinking about who they are going to take to that Christmas party. Or New Year's Eve - people feel they need a date for New Year's Eve parties.

"It's definitely a more stressful time.

SANE SEASON

Find ways to make holiday a happy one

You can really feel like an outsider if you are in your 30s or 40s and don't have somebody to bring home for the holidays."

Many people, of course, don't have a traditional home for the holidays. While the rest of the world seems to be caught up in gift giving and togetherness, many spend the holiday season on their own.

But it doesn't have to be that way, McGinty implores. Making December fresh and exciting, however, does require sincere effort.

"Get out, go out, do things," McGinty says. "You never know who you're going to meet at dinner parties. Get involved in some holiday activity — sing in the choir at your church or make some cookies for an underprivileged group."

Do something, she exhorts, but don't do just anything.

"Avoid the bar scene because that's one of the most depressing things," McGinty says. "There are good odds that you will find someone you're attracted to, but finding out that yes, they're available, yes, you have common interests, yes, you have similar values or backgrounds — it's a long shot."

McGinty says your odds are better if you use these tips:

Accept every invitation you're offered, you never know who you may meet.

Volunteer — it will get you out of the self-pity mode and make you feel good.

Renew a friendship with someone you've lost touch with.

MATTERS Pack properly to limit shipment damage

By R.J. Ignelzi

Copley News Service

Whether you're shipping cookies or crystal, you want your holiday gifts to get where they're going in one piece.

Postal workers say most shipping damage occurs because of improper packaging. Your package should be able to withstand stacking, bumping and even a drop of 30 feet.

You can prevent most shipping damage by following these tips from the experts:

Use the right carton. Use corrugated cartons in good, rigid condition, with all flaps intact. Be sure to select a carton large enough to allow room for adequate cushioning material on all sides of the

Be sure the contents of your package are properly protected. Shocks received on the outside of the carton can pass through and possibly damage the contents of an improperly packed box.

It's very important to pack several inches of the cushioning material in the bottom of the carton.

Newspaper is not a very reliable packing material, since it has no shockabsorption quality. Plastic-foam chips, foam peanuts, bubble wrap or large pieces of plastic foam are the best packing materials.

Wrap each item separately and place in the center of the carton. Stuff cushioning material firmly around, over and between the items.

Use enough cushioning material so the contents cannot move easily when you shake the carton. Several inches all the way around should do it. The farther you keep fragile articles away from the corners and sides of the carton, the less chance there is of damage.

Pack glass and china in a smaller box with 2 to 4 inches of packing on all sides. Place the smaller box in a larger one and pack material between the two.

Close the package securely. Use a strong tape - 2 inches or more in width. Do not use masking tape or cellophane tape since they crack and peel when exposed to heat or cold and don't provide the strength necessary to withstand the rigors of shipping.

Instead, use one of the following tapes:

Pressure-sensitive plastic tape. This is the easiest, most convenient tape to use. It is versatile because it will adhere without using water and can stick to a variety of surfaces and shapes.

Water-activated paper tape. If you use this tape for carton sealing, make sure it is a minimum of 3 inches wide and 60-pound grade. You need to apply three strips of tape to both the top and bottom of the carton.

Water-activated reinforced tape. This tape is similar to plain paper tape, except that reinforcing fibers have been added for strength.

Do not use string or brown paper to wrap packages. These can get snagged and torn on conveyor belts, and the carton can get ripped open and lost.

Use proper labeling. To ensure proper delivery, remember to always include the ZIP code of the receiver with the complete street address.

When addressing to post office box or rural route destinations, provide the recipient's telephone number on the label when possible.

Place the delivery label on the top of the carton. Place no other address label on the carton.

Do not place the label over a seam or closure, or on top of sealing tape.

Remove or cross out any old address labels or markings on a used carton.

Always include your complete return address, including ZIP code and full street address.

For added protection, place a duplicate label or other delivery information inside the package.

ENTERTAINING ELVES

EIVES Expert tips for holiday gatherings

By Priscilla Lister

Copley News Service

Entertaining during the holidays is a time-honored tradition. But what if you don't have much time?

Here are some tips gathered from experts who know how to make holiday entertaining as stress-free and festive as possible. And we've also collected some ideas for great parties that might become easy traditions.

HOLIDAY SURVIVAL

Food professionals nationwide were surveyed by Pepperidge Farm for their best tips on surviving holiday party planning trauma:

"Keep menus simple to avoid stress on the cook," advises Robin Kline, director of consumer affairs, National Pork Producers Council. "Don't make everything from scratch — rely on convenience products that work well."

"Set the table with a centerpiece that will last through the season," says Andi

Bidwell, food editor, Fast and Healthy magazine. "Use a runner, fresh evergreens and candles. When in a hurry you just have to change the candles."

"Select recipes that can be prepared in advance," says Carol Guthrie, food editor, Working Mother magazine.
"When making up the menu, think about cooking methods — try to use rangetop, microwave and oven to prevent cooking surface overload. Consider cooking the turkey outside on the grill — this frees up the oven and you can put your spouse to work as the grillmaster."

"Make ahead and freeze — especially your holiday dessert," suggests Jan Turner Hazard, food editor, Ladies' Home Journal magazine.

"Consider giving two dinner parties two nights in a row. Same menu, same centerpiece, same wines, different guests — half the hassle," says Sue Huffman, president, International Association of Culinary Professionals.

Whatever kind of entertaining you do this holiday season, plan well ahead and make lists of everything you need to do, as well as the timing for each task. Some experts suggest you start planning a month ahead for big events, at least two weeks ahead for others. Consider when you'll invite friends, when you'll decorate your home, when you'll prepare all the food and when you'll serve each course.

If you're having a really big party, consider hiring some help to tend bar, serve food and even clean up.

THEME IDEAS

If you center your party around a theme, the planning will fall into place much more easily. And some of these themes even make your guests do some of the work.

A cookie exchange. Have each of eight friends bake eight dozen of one type of cookie. Each donor gets a dozen of every kind. Gather all these friends over for the exchange, and serve beverages to accompany the cookies. Each person will surely take home at least seven dozen cookies to offer their other friends during the season.

A potluck. When you send an invitation to your friends, give each friend or couple a different course as an assignment. Tell them how many servings to make, but let them select their own personal holiday favorite. The courses to consider: appetizers, soup, salad, side dishes, bread and dessert. You can provide the sparkling wine and other beverages, the main course and the atmosphere.

A cocktail buffet. You don't have to have a sit-down formal dinner to entertain during the holidays. Make a bountiful buffet of finger foods that can last at least four hours during a cocktail party. These can be hot and cold, but try not to select dishes that require you to cook at the last moment.

sas and chips, assorted cheeses, chafingdish sausages or meatballs, baked hors d'oeuvres, holiday cookies and candies, and anything red and green, from stuffed cherry tomatoes to stuffed zucchini.

You might want to set the foods at separate "stations" throughout your home to encourage mingling and traffic flow.

A pizza party. "Topping your pie with slices of red and green bell peppers, green olives and red pimentos, with red sauce bubbling through golden cheese make a pizza a gorgeous and delicious holiday centerpiece," says Barbara Grunes, author of "Skinny Pizzas" (Surrey Books).

She recommends that you prepare your toppings, place them in bowls, cook several varieties of sauce, and roll out individual pizza doughs before guests arrive. Then encourage everyone to decorate their own pizza. While they're cooking, everyone can open gifts or just mingle.

A geographic tribute. You don't have to serve traditional holiday foods if you want to offer something different.

Experts offer tips

Celebrate your own region or your heritage and choose a menu inspired by your home, such as Southwest in Season, A Caribbean Christmas, California Carolers, Washington Winter or Snow

ATMOSPHERIC TIPS

Don't forget the holiday music. You can make music a potluck affair just like food: Ask your friends to bring their favorite holiday CDs. There are countless choices.

According to Billboard, the top holiday albums last year were Mannheim Steamroller's "A Fresh Aire Christmas," Harry Connick Jr.'s "When My Heart Finds Christmas," Boys II Men's "Christmas Interpretations," "A Very Special Christmas 2" by various artists, as well as those by Nat King Cole, Aaron Neville, Barbra Streisand, Garth Brooks and just about everybody else.

For holiday warmth, use candles all over the house instead of bright lights.

PRIVILEGED PETS

Spoil favorite animals — and their owners

By Priscilla Lister

Copley News Service

Almost half — 48 percent — of American pet owners give their animals a gift for the holidays, according to Hartz Mountain Corp.

To help you find that special gift for that special member of your family, we've compiled the latest and greatest ideas for Fido or Fluffy, or even Flutter or Fin or Fred.

TOYS GALORE

There are so many toys for pets on the market today, you can't help but find the perfect one for your pal.

For Fido you'll find giant bones that never get buried, balls that can be retrieved endlessly and even holiday favorites like chewable Santas complete with elves.

Fluffy might love the new Motoring Marty from Hartz, a radiocontrolled cat toy that is a great way to play "chase" as it roams forward or backward up to 15 feet.

Other toys for Fluffy include balls with bells inside, spinning toys or the always irresistible catnip mice.

All these delightful diversions are easily found in your local supermarket or drugstore, while your local pet supply outlets will offer even more choices.

SPECIAL CHOW

For the chow hounds in the family, there are plenty of holiday treats in store.

Now we even have Toppers Gourmet Sauces for Dogs and Cats. Mixed with dry or canned food, Toppers becomes a mouthwatering gravy that perks up any pet's everyday diet. Cats will love the Turkey With Cranberry or Shrimp Alfredo flavors while dogs will go for Roast Turkey and Rack of Lamb. Call (800) 973-6444 or (503) 653-8848 to order by mail.

Purina Holiday Dog Treat Bag offers a variety of treats including original and cheese- and bacon-flavored Beggin' Strips packed in a reusable gift bag.

And don't overlook the special glazed dog bones appearing in stores for the holiday season or even the rawhide cookies.

As for Flutter, Hartz offers Gourmet Blend Cannister Foods and Blister Pack Treat sticks for your special birds. Gourmet Blends offers four different mixtures of seeds, fresh fruits, nuts and grains made especially for parakeets, cockatiels and parrots, while Blister Pack Treats offers four flavors combining seeds, fruits, nuts and grains.

And for Frisky, Hartz's Small Animal Hearty Vegetable Nut Blend, combining corn, carrots, tomatoes and pumpkin seeds, will find favor with hamsters, gerbils or rabbits, as will the Small Animal Veggie 'n' Nut Treat Stick.

We won't forget Fin with Hartz Blend Flake Foods for Tropical Fish and Goldfish, offering seven products from conditioning food to slow-sinking special food to bottom-feeder food.

EVEN SOFTWARE

Family Pets is a software program for your home computer that helps you keep track of your pet's records. You can enter how, when and what to feed every pet in your family, as well as medication timetables, vaccination dates, illnesses and treatments, and even exer-

The program also offers pet care information and the option to scan in photos of Fido or Fluffy. From Family-Ware Products, Family Pets is available either on disk or CD-ROM at most computer store chains, or call (800) 313-7333.

CLOTHING OPTIONAL

Fido could use a warm winter sweater if the snows are raging this holiday season. Consider giving him a sweater that also benefits organizations that protect animals. "Gifts That Save the Animals" by Ellen Berry (Foxglove Publishing, Dayton, Ohio) lists thousands of gifts sold by nonprofits that protect animals.

Under the "Pet Care Supplies" section, you'll find dog sweaters from the Alliance Against Animal Abuse; cat toys, leashes and catnip from Lend-a-Paw Relief Organization; cat grooming tools from People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals; and even pet first-aid kits from the Doris Day Pet Foundation.

And Sergeant's knows how vain Fluffy can be and now offers flea collars in vibrant colors, including hot pink and passionate purple.

FOR THE TRAVELERS

And, finally, since the holiday season often means road trips, don't exclude your favorite family members. "Vacationing With Your Pet," by Eileen Barish (Pet-Friendly Publications), offers a directory listing more than 10,000 resorts, hotels, motels, ranches and bed-and-breakfasts that welcome pets as visitors.

"Fifty-five million households have pets and consider them a significant part of the family," says Barish. "Why leave them behind in an expensive kennel when taking them along can enhance your vacation?" And "Pets-R-Permitted" is another directory that includes pet-friendly hotels and motels as well as kennels and pet sitters. Call (800) 274-7297.

Enhance your holiday by spreading the joy to each of those family members.

Pet safety

By Priscilla Lister

Copley News Service

Holidays can be stressful for pets. Here are tips on special holiday care considerations for your favorite friends:

Keep holiday decorations out of your pet's reach. Tinsel, ornaments, plants, holiday lights and even electric cords should not be tempting playthings.

edges and removable parts can be harmful to pets.

Watch your pet's diet. Protein-rich foods such as fowl, beef and pork can be harmful to pets. Poultry skin and bones can even be fatal. Don't feed your pets too many holiday table scraps.

Since holidays often involve travel, consult your vet before flying with pets. Airlines will require a completed pet health certificate from your veterinarian.

Prepare for car travel. Be sure your pets have ID tags, collars and leashes in the car so your pet doesn't get lost. Always travel with plenty of fresh water and stop for frequent breaks.

BOUND FOR THE HOLIDAYS

Bibliofun for book lovers

By Jason Zappe Copley News Service

Dashing through the bookstores, with checkbook in hand, it is very easy to choose gifts in bookland.

It may not exactly fit the traditional carol, but the sentiment is very true. A bookstore can often serve as a one-stop holiday shopping spot. With the variety of printed, illustrated and photographed material available, your giftee doesn't have to be an avid bibliophile to enjoy a gift from the bookshop.

COFFEE-TABLE GOODIES

Coffee-table books make for great presents. Since they tend to sit on the coffee table, they tend to be looked at more often. It's easy to pick one of them up and flip through a few of the lusciously photographed contents.

For sports buffs there's "The Sports Photography of Robert Riger" (Random House). Riger captures the emotion of action of the moment. For the artistically daring there's "Mapplethorpe: Altar," an essay by Edmund White (Random House). The 128-page book contains more of Mapplethorpe's challenging photographic art.

A special treasure will be welcomed by Dr. Seuss fans of all ages. "The Secret Art of Dr. Seuss" (Random House) shows the master storyteller's gift at visual imagery. HOBBIES Gardeners will bloom with delight when they open "The 400 Best Garden Plants: A Practical Encyclopedia of Annuals, Perennials, Bulbs, Trees and Shrubs" by Elvin McDonald (Random House).

"The Book of Outdoor Gardening" by the editors of Smith & Hawken with Sara Godwin (Workman Publishing) brings helpful advice for your garden and your soul. This will make for a great gift for gardeners serious about the world they live in.

A must-have for gardeners is "Burpee Complete Gardener" by Maureen Heffernan, Chela Kleiber, Holly Schimizu and Allan Armitage (Macmillan). This handy guide will aid gardeners of all levels. It's fully illustrated and up to date.

"The Lattice Gardener" by William C. Mulligan (Macmillan) focuses on this one specific form of gardening, but has potential for inspiring other creative ways to enhance your yard.

Classical music fans would surely appreciate "Classical Music: A New Way of Listening" by Alexander Waugh (Macmillan). Illustrations and photographs combine with text to reinforce what you are hearing.

Sports enthusiasts gearing up for the Olympics will enjoy "The Olympic Spirit: 100 Years of the Games," text by Susan Wels (CollinsPublishers). Full-color action photos highlight this gem. Also from CollinsPublishers is "NBA"

HOLIDAY ORIENTED

"Santa Speaks" (CollinsPublishers) is a compendium of sage advice from all the Santas you see working the malls and wearing out their laps.

A little more on the heavy side is "Inside Catholicism: Rituals and Symbols Revealed," text by Richard P. McBrien (CollinsPublishers). McBrien explores the meanings of icons and celebrations in an attempt to help people further understand Catholicism.

"Down-To-Earth Judaism: Food, Money, Sex and the Rest of Life" by Arthur Waskow (Morrow) serves as a guide for being Jewish in these fast-pace times. "Toward a Meaningful Life: The Wisdom of the Rebbe Menachem Mendel Schneersohn," edited and adapted by Simon Jacobson (Morrow), also serves to soothe the aggravated soul in today's trying times.

"A Kwanzaa Fable" by Eric V. Copage (Morrow) is a tale that should inspire the whole family during this African-American original holiday celebration.

GIFT BOOKS

These are those lavishly produced goodies that make great gifts for the people who have everything.

If you have a "Lucy" fan, then there's "I Love Lucy" (Warner). For jazz aficionados there's "Jazz: Photographs of the Masters" (Artisan).

Books that focus on specific regions and countries include "Tuscany" (Abbeville), "Mediterranean" (Aperture), "Mongolia" (Thames & Hudson), "Los Angeles: A Certain Style" (Chronicle Books), "Cultural Atlas of Spain and Portugal" (Epicenter Press), "Wild Thailand" (MIT Press), "Israel" (Thames & Hudson) and "Chicago" (Voyageur).

Science-fiction fans will crave "The Illustrated Star Wars Universe" (Bantam),

"The Art of Star Trek: Thirty Years of Creating the Future" (Pocket Books) and "Science Fiction: The Illustrated Encyclopedia" (Dorling Kinders-

Hyperion lays it on thick, but that's good news for Disney fans. "The Illusion of Life: Disney Animation" and "The Disney That Never Was" will make any fan a little Goofy with joy.

Other gift books include "General Hospital: The Complete Scrapbook" (General Publishing), "Frank Sinatra" (General Publishing), "Rock & Roll" (Harmony), "A Dog's Life" (Little, Brown), "The American Bicycle" (Motorbooks International), "Family: A Celebration" (Peterson's), "Cezanne" (Random House Value) and "Dragons" (Simon & Schuster).

REFERENCE

Essential for anyone getting ready to travel or wanting to explore the world from their chair, "A Day in the Life of Thailand" (CollinsPublishers) is a visual treat. More than 50 photographers shot pictures during a 24-hour period in Thailand. A little more than 200 of those pictures were chosen from nearly 100,000. It's a visual treat that opens an expansive window on Thailand.

If you need more than just one country, "The Macmillan World Atlas" (Macmillan) brings the world into focus.

For animal lovers there's "An Illustrated Encyclopedia of Aquarium Fish" by Gina Sandford (Howell Book House).

This eye-catching encyclopedia combines graphics and texts with color illustrations and photographs to explore the undersea world of more than 700 fish.

If hairy is your giftee's thing, wrap up "The International Encyclopedia of Dog," edited by Anne Rogers Clark and Andrew H. Brace (Howell Book House). This tome covers all the bases on dogs from around the world.

"Birds & Bees: A Sexual Study" by Dugald Stermer (CollinsPublishers) takes a more intimate view of the animal kingdom. Sensitively done, with 60 watercolor illustrations, "Birds & Bees" explores the ritual of mating.

"Behind Facades" by Paul Draper and Trewin Copplestone (Macmillan) provides a look inside five of the world's greatest architectural treasures: St. Peter's Cathedral, Monticello, Buckingham Palace, The Paris Opera and King Ludwig's Castle.

FICTION

You may have a hard time finding anyone who hasn't read it, but "The Lost World" by Michael Crichton (Knopf) is a definitely cool gift. Other heavy-hitter titles include "Mr. Ives' Christmas" by Oscar Hijuelos (HarperCollins), "The Hundred Secret Senses" by Amy Tan (Putnam), "Diana: Goddess Who Hunts Alone" by Carlos Fuentes (Farrar, Strauss & Giroux).

The legend of the dream catcher is recognized by almost every tribe. It is believed that the night air is filled with dreams, both good and bad. The web catches the bod dreams, and holds them tight until Grandfather Sun rises in the moving, burning them away. The good dreams go through the center of the web and trickle down the feathers to the sleeping.

Traditionally, dream catchers were made at the time of birth and were hung over the infants cradleboard.

Today, many of us have not yet received our dream catchers. They are given as gifts to children of all ages, birth to 99. The dream catchers is kept throughout life. Personal objects are hung from the web and hoop to increase the connection with the owners. Legends Of Time would like to thank the Native American Peoples for this gift of beauty and a good night's sleep.

CENTERPIECE Perfect tree lifts holiday spirits

By Elizabeth Scheibn-

Copley News Service

Christmas trees have been a holiday tradition for hundreds of years, and it's easy to understand why. Even Scrooge would have to agree that there is something magical and alluring about a Christmas tree, with its glittering tower of light and color.

As anyone who has ever wrestled with a 6-foot tree can attest, there is a lot of work involved just setting up a tree, whether it entails moving furniture, unplugging lamps or hauling down boxes of decorations from the attic. But in the end, it's well worth the effort. A Christmas tree can turn even the most ordinary space into a bright and festive room.

It's no secret that the key to finding a good tree is to choose early — ideally two to three weeks before Christmas. Many people wait until the last minute, assuming that there will still be plenty of trees to choose from. Unfortunately, by this time, most of the trees have been picked over and what remains is a pretty poor selection.

Choosing your tree early not only ensures you of a better tree, but gives you more time to enjoy it. And as long as you water it frequently, a tree can last for weeks.

There are numerous places to buy a tree --- supermarkets, discount stores, nurseries, school and church lots, even your local shopping mall. In many parts of the country, you can visit a local tree farm and cut the tree yourself.

LIVING VS. CUT TREES

In today's environmentally conscious world, many people are concerned about whether it's appropriate to purchase a cut tree. According to experts, farm-grown trees are like any other crop and actually do a lot for the environment while they're growing. such as storing carbon dioxide and trapping pollution particles. And as long as you recycle the tree, you'll be doing your part for the ecosystem.

If you decide to try a living tree. make sure you have the space to store it off season and that you're willing to care for it. Keeping your tree in a pot outdoors will work for a few years, but eventually the tree will be too big to move or become so root-bound that it will topple over if you plant it.

Whether you decide to purchase a living tree or a cut tree, look for one that has a straight trunk from top to bottom. Inspect it from all angles to make sure there are no gaping holes or broken branches. And, finally, reach inside the branches and pull out a handful of needles to see how fresh the tree is. Needles that break or bend easily are an indication that the tree is dry — something you want to avoid.

"When buying a natural tree, freshness is the most important safety factor," says Charles Waters, a leading fire prevention authority. "The higher the moisture content, the less likely the tree will dry out and become a fire hazard."

There are a number of ways to keep your tree fresh longer. When you get it home, make a fresh cut across the base of the trunk, an inch from the end. This will break the sap seal that was formed when the tree was cut, allowing water to absorb more easily.

Place the tree trunk in a bucket of water and let it soak overnight before decorating. A fresh-cut tree can "drink" as much as 1 gallons of water in the first 24 hours.

For safety reasons, set up the tree away from heat sources, such as the fireplace, radiator or heat vents as well as any electrical outlets or major appliances. If you have small children or pets. place the tree in a corner where it is less likely to topple over. And most importantly, remember to add fresh water daily.

To prevent electrical fires. only use decorative lights and cords that are UL approved. Before hanging any lights, inspect each strand carefully for frayed insulation, exposed wires or loose connectors or plugs. Never use outdoor lights on a tree as they generate too much heat. And always unplug tree lights at night and whenever you leave the house.

DECORATING YOUR TREE

Charlie Brown may have been able to turn his scrawny little Christmas tree into a work of art, but in reality, it takes more than love to create a tree you'll be proud of.

There are thousands of ways to decorate your tree. If you're at a loss for ideas, pick up a copy of one of the holiday magazines or visit a department store for inspi-

If you're tired of using the same old ornaments year after year, you may want to try something completely different this year. Create a theme tree, such as a peace tree filled with doves, a sporting tree with sports memorabilia or a country tree with handmade ornaments.

Another option is to decorate your tree in one or two colors. such as gold or red. This look can be very dramatic and can be done rather inexpensively using colored bows

Give your tree a polished look by using ribbons, not wire hooks, to hang ornaments. For added pizazz, purchase ornaments that move or light up.

Be sure to keep some of the trimmings from your tree to create a wreath and garland for your home. With its aromatic fragrance, fresh greenery will make your home a welcome retreat from the world outside.

SEASON'S TREATS

What gift always fits? Food

By Priscilla Lister

Copley News Service

What can you give to someone that's truly welcome, that might appear a little extravagant even though it won't deplete your pocketbook and that even shows you made a special effort from your heart?

"Bake," says Dan Budd, executive pastry chef at New York's Park Avenue Cafe and Chocolatier magazine's Pastry Chef of the Year.

"Creating an elegant — and decadent — dessert adds to the spirit of the holidays," says Budd. "This simple act gives pleasure and says that the real gift is your time and imagination."

"Bake enough," he advises. "If these holiday presents are as delicious as they should be, none will go to waste. Any leftovers will be perfect for those unexpected gift exchanges and surprise guests."

But you aren't limited to baking these days. Delightful homemade holiday gifts can also include flavored vinegars, flavored oils, special salsas, no-fat jams or even spiced nuts.

If you don't have time to create these treats yourself, of course, you can always buy them at gourmet shops, or even concoct a gift basket filled with your loved one's own favorites.

Chocolatiers do grand business during the holidays for good reason, and most offer seasonal gift packages. Special food is a universally appreciated gift that never goes out of style and that fits virtually everyone.

You could tailor a food basket to your recipients needs, whether it's an assortment of salsas, coffees or teas. Small accessories, such as mugs, teapots, cookie cutters, etc. only add to the fun.

But when you are ready to fire up your own kitchen, here are some tips gathered from experts to help you send these heartfelt presents safely on their way.

MAILING TIPS

If you plan to mail your homemade baked goodies, Budd suggests you "concentrate on the ones that are dense and moist. Properly packaged, they ship best. Brownies and truffles, for example, travel better than layer cakes, which often arrive as well-wrapped crumbs. Cookies are best shipped in an airtight, foil-lined container. Truffles can be placed in gift boxes, but be sure to wrap them in plastic first."

Land O'Lakes offers these mailing tips:

If you're shipping cookies, bar, drop or fruit cookies withstand mailing best, says the dairy products company.

Use a heavy cardboard box or empty coffee can as a mailing container, and line the container with foil or plastic wrap.

Wrap different kinds of cookies separately inside the container, placing the heaviest cookies at the bottom and layering the wrapped cookies with crumpled paper towels around them. Bubble wrap can also be used.

Use festive bows to dress up jars and bottles of homemade flavored vinegar, barbecue sauce or jam.

Wrap the container with outer paper wrapping; brown mailing paper or a cut grocery sack work well; label with black felt marker. Mark any packages "Fragile" and "Perishable Food" to encourage quick and proper handling.

If you're shipping candies, don't package candies that absorb moisture (caramels, mints, hard candies) in the same container as those that lose moisture (fudge, fondant, meringues). Wrap different candy varieties in plastic food wrap and divide layers with wax paper.

If you're shipping homemade flavored vinegars or oils, or any item in glass bottles or jars, be sure to pack these fragile containers inside a heavy cardboard box cushioned with bubble wrap, plastic-foam popcorn or other suitable mailing materials.

DECORATING TIPS

"Remember that presentation is important," says

Budd. "You can package your baked present on a decorative cake plate, which a friend can keep. Colorful gift boxes, tinted cellophane, colored tissue and striking ribbons create a festive look."

Land O'Lakes suggests that you arrange treats on a sturdy holiday plate, take a sheet of clear or colored cellophane, which you can buy from a florist, set the plate in the middle of it and gather up the edges so they meet at the top. Tie the top with a pretty ribbon.

For candies or cookies, consider wrapping them in small decorated plastic bags inside holiday mugs, which become another gift.

Small holiday decorations such as sleighs and sleds provide a fun way to present gifts of food, too. Wrap cookies or candies in cellophane, then display them on a sleigh or sled.

flannel, grapevine wreaths and neutralcolored grass are also tools of creative packaging," says Anne-Stuart Hamilton, an entertainment consultant with Nestle.

"I like to wrap home-baked goods in linen tea towels or napkins, or present them in distinctive baking dishes, because the gift provides both immediate pleasure and lasting value," says Hamilton.

Decorated tins and boxes are also good packaging ideas that can last after the goodies are gone. Consider cutting a tiny bough from your Christmas tree to attach to your package.

And just to pique your own imagination, consider stuffing a special stocking.

HOLIDAY PEPPERMINT BARK

2 cups (12-ounce package) Nestle Toll House Premier White Morsels

24 hard peppermint candies Yields about 1 pound.

Melt morsels in medium, microwave-safe bowl on HIGH (100 percent) power for 1 to 2 minutes, stirring every 30 seconds until smooth.

Crush peppermint candies in heavy plastic bag using rolling pin or other heavy object. Holding wire strainer over melted morsels, pour crushed candy into strainer. Shake to release all small candy pieces; reserve larger candy pieces. Stir morsel-peppermint mixture.

Spread to desired thickness on wax paper-lined baking sheet. Sprinkle with remaining candy pieces. Press in lightly. Let stand for about 1 hour or until firm. Break into pieces. Store at room temperature.

CANDIED SPICED MIXED NUTS

Mixture:

I teaspoon vegetable oil 4 cups salted mixed nuts 2/3 cup strawberry jelly 2 tablespoons paprika 2 teaspoons cumin Brown Sugar Coating: 1/2 cup brown sugar I teaspoon paprika I teaspoon cumin Yields about 3 cups.

Lightly oil large stainless-steel bowl. Place nuts in bowl. Set aside.

In small saucepan, melt strawberry jelly over medium heat. Add paprika and cumin. Cook mixture to hard-ball stage, 260 F measured on a candy thermometer. (You can test for the hard-ball stage by dropping a teaspoon of mixture into a glass of iced water. Mixture will harden instantly.)

Immediately pour mixture over nuts. Stir with wooden spoon to evenly coat nuts. Allow mixture to cool for 5 minutes.

AFRICAN-AMERICAN HOLIDAY

AMERICAN HOLIDAY Kwanzaa celebrates family and community

By Nicola B. Godfrey

Copley News Service

Peace, unity, prosperity, progress and giving thanks.

It's what the spirit of the holidays is all about, regardless of religion. For the African-American community, Kwanzaa is a weeklong, symbol-laden celebration that is gaining in popularity as a vehicle for appreciating cultural roots and traditions.

"It's a holiday designed to uplift us, to give our race a sense of progress and prosperity, and give us more of an appreciation of our culture," says Kathleen Minnick-Taylor, co-author with her husband of "Kwanzaa: How to Celebrate it in Your Home (Praxis Publications Inc.).

In response to the often-negative stereotyping of the African-American community in the media. Minnick-Taylor sees Kwanzaa, celebrated Dec. 26 through Jan. 1, as "the light at the end of a dark tunnel that pulls us forward into the new year with a sense of social community."

Kwanzaa, the Swahili word meaning "first fruits," does this by focusing on seven daily principles: Umoja, Kujichagulia, Ujima, Ujamaa, Nia, Kuumba and Imani, symbolizing, respectively, self-determination, collective work and responsibility, cooperative economics, purpose, creativity and faith.

Created in 1966 by cultural scholar Dr. Maulana Karenga, Kwanzaa was designed as a nonreligious, nonheroic, joyous celebration to reaffirm traditional African social values.

Nannette Acker Clark, executive director of the Afro-American Historical and Cultural Museum in Philadelphia, has said that the principles follow traditional African values, and are guidelines for living that build strong individuals, families and communities.

Minnick-Taylor agrees: "Each principle makes individuals realize how they can enrich their lives."

As a celebration based in reality outside of the hoopla of Santa, she says, "it's a holiday with positive social values and a way of giving something back to the community so we can progress and prosper all together."

Although still in its infancy compared to most religious holiday celebrations, an estimated 3 million-and-growing African-Americans now celebrate Kwanzaa at home and in the community. A Kwanzaa Week is celebrated in many schools, serving to educate all children about the history and traditions of people of African decent.

The celebration of Kwanzaa begins and ends with a libation statement of hope and encouragement called a Tamshi La Tambiko. On each of the seven days of Kwanzaa, families greet each other with the Swahili greeting, "Habari Gani?" ("What's the news?") and respond with activities and discussions focusing on a different Kwanzaa principle each day and the ritual lighting of a candle.

During the week of Kwanzaa. homes are decorated in red, black and green with cultural African art, and families listen to African rhythms and music while celebrating around the Kwanzaa display. This is made up of fruits and vegetables, symbolic of a year's labor, ears of corn representing the number of children in the family and gifts representing rewards for having applied the seven principles during the year.

The centerpiece is the Kinara, a candleholder symbolic of the original "stalk" of African-American ancestry, containing seven candles: three red, one black and three green. Red symbolizes the past, black represents the present, and green stands for the future of the African people. The display is placed on a colorful Mkeka mat representing the foundation on which all African traditions rest.

During Kwanzaa, families feast on dishes from their ancestral roots. In her book, "The African-American Kitchen: Cooking From Our Heritage" (Dutton), author Angela Shelf Medearis suggests a menu of Kwanzaa Blessing Soup, Sweet-and-Sour Cabbage, Kale With Tomato and Onion, Rice Primavera and Walnut Sweet Potato Pie.

Eric Copage, author of "An African-American Celebration of Culture and Cooking" (Morrow), suggests serving "any food from the African diaspora that inspires you; any food created by blacks or that has a special meaning to your family."

At suppertime, a unity cup is passed around from which each person takes a sip and gives their own personal definition of unity.

"The unity cup is an intimate gesture," Minnick-Taylor says. "It draws the family and extended family of friends in the African-American community even closer together."

Overall, Minnick-Taylor compares the celebration of Kwanzaa to New Year's festivities. "It's a way of giving thanks for starting out fresh, with New Year's resolutions paralleling the promotion of the seven principles that can be used daily, 365 days, as a yearlong affirmation of Kwanzaa as guidelines by which to grow strong and live your life."

ifestyles change for all of us: a new baby, a new job, the last child moving out.

And nowhere are such changes felt more than in the home: a new nursery, a home office, the need for more room, the need for more comfort.

For every homeowner, a change in lifestyles usually means some kind of change in the home's architecture, layout, interior design or maybe just a different color scheme.

For homeowners who call the Kellett Construction Co., however, change is seldom a simple process.

Instead, the Bloomfield-based company specializes in a very unique slice of life and lifestyles: Custom homes that start in the $500,000 price range and easily climb into seven figures – and change that ranges from modest remodeling to whole-house renovations.

"We deal exclusively with custom homes," said Tom Kellett, vice president of sales – and a second-generation member of the firm founded by his father, David Sr., in 1978.

"Whether it's building them or renovating them, the homes we work with are in the $500,000 and up (range).

"And the key to our method is what we call 'design-build' construction," he said.

Whereas the modest homeowner eyeing a new kitchen or bath may deal only with a remodeling firm, homeowners dealing with the Kelletts will get much more – starting with the actual design of the project.

"Our design-build method is a way of handling every step of the project through our company," Kellett said.

"We start by first bringing in an architect who works with our customer from the outset to create the right design.

"Our goal from the beginning is to artistically enhance whatever the project is that we're going to undertake," he said.

This important first step – working with an architect under the auspices of Kellett – ensures that whatever design is selected, the entire project will stay within a pre-set budget.

"Of course, that's not always an issue," Kellett said, "but it's better than going to an architect who designs the Taj Mahal and then having the homeowner find out later how much it's going to cost.

"The advantage, then, is obvious: We can keep an eye on costs as the project develops.

"That's design-build construction," Kellett said.

Not surprisingly, the first step is often the most important, with Kellett adding that his firm is usually faced with one of two situations.

"Some of our customers come with preconceived ideas about what they want," he said. "But some don't.

"So for those who aren't really sure what they want to do, our job is one of identifying problems and then coming up with solutions.

"And we're also there to give them some feedback on which ideas are good and which aren't so good," he said.

Actually, the "problems" Kellett referred to aren't problems at all, but merely changes in lifestyles that have probably prompted the need for a home facelift.

As a result, he said, the first thing his company does is try to understand the lifestyle of the customer "without getting too personal."

"We learn how many kids they have, whether they entertain a lot, what hobbies they may have," he said.

"We even try to learn about their furniture and layout preferences.

"In the end, we try to marry the right architect with the individual's lifestyle," he said, "and then collaborate with everyone to come up with the best solutions."

In general, Kellett's firm deals with major structural changes, such as adding new rooms ("two to three, usually") and even altering the floorplan, as well as changing the outward appearance – "but keeping in tune with the surrounding area."

The Magnificent Splendor OF CENTURY OAKS

o matter how long and hard you search in southeastern Michigan, you won't find a more desirous or beautiful location to build a new home than the estate-sized lots coming soon at Century Oaks. Nor will you find a setting so close to the metro Detroit business community with such warmth and country charm. Soon to be located in the lush, rolling terrain of prestigious Oakland Township, the exclusive community of Century Oaks will provide you and your family with all the spaciousness and country pleasures you've been longing for. Say hello to quiet streets, the joys of solitude and the harmonious blend of family and country life. At Century Oaks you'll bask in wide-open space, enjoy beautiful nature trails with an incredible variety of flora and fauna, delight in gorgeous sunsets over treelined horizons and marvel at all the other pleasures country life has to offer.

And to make living at Century Oaks the best it can be for you and your family, we plan to offer a wide range of options.

First, we invite you to choose from any one of our oversized lots, including some with "walkout" basements. When you've found the one that's right for you, you can choose your own builder or select from a number of highly-respected, quality builders we can recommend. Each Century Oaks builder will offer you a variety of different models and price ranges to fit your unique needs. And they'll provide you with a long list of other options. You can add a home security system, a three-car garage, a rear staircase or a finished basement-just to name a few.

mills; play 18 holes golf at one of two go mile radius; dine at rants; or take the fam Mountain Recreation unimaginable. For 1 the soon to be com call (810) 649-2600.

What's more, your new home will be located in very prestigious Oakland Township and within the highly desirable Rochester Hills school district. It's easy to see why so many people are finding Oakland Township "the" place to live.

In Oakland Township and surrounding areas you can spend the day shopping at any of three area malls; visit the two historic cider mills; play 18 holes of serious, challenging golf at one of two golf courses within a one mile radius; dine at the many fine restaurants; or take the family picnicing in the Bald Mountain Recreational area. Your options are unimaginable. For more information of the soon to be completed Century Oaks, call (810) 649-2600.

Lower Level Luxury

Just below your feet exists an opportunity to expand the available living space of your home. That is, your basement, or what is more fondly referred to as the lower level. That cold, dark, dingy, dungeon may hold a hidden treasure of warm, light, airy open space. You can unearth the area below those boxes of books and shelves of neglected sports equipment with a little creative planning, muscle and money.

Lurking at the bottom of those cellar stairs are innovative ideas just waiting to be built. Workout gyms, wine rooms, computer desks, children's study cubicles and photography dark rooms are being constructed. Basic areas being enclosed include furnace and utility spaces, organized shelving and storage closets, extra pantry and freezer places, sewing and laundry rooms, woodworking and craft shops. Lower levels in homes are being renovated to include surround sound television viewing, swimming pools and cabana bars. shower spaces, au pair suites, guest bedrooms, baths and sauna, steam rooms, hot tub areas and cedar closets. Billiards, bowling and video arcades are also being installed to keep kids home.

A lower level renovation is a logical expansion of the homes living area. It provides the convenience and cost savings of not needing to extend the foot print of your home with additional foundations and roof. The floor, rough walls and ceiling are already built. Unfinished lower levels are typically under utilized and disorganized, but have lots of potential. However, many older homes have obstacles to energizing this bonus space. These often are leaking walls and low head room, structural columns cutting up the available space, old inefficient basement windows, poor light, and inadequate heat and air conditioning.

In order to capture this space, you must create a plan to utilize and maximize the room and resolve the existing problems. Simple solutions to leaky walls may be patching wall cracks and cleaning exterior gutters to eliminate leaks from water pounding against the foundation. Old steel framed basement windows can be economically with more energy efficient, secure glass block windows. The different glass block styles provide a wide range of light emission and refraction characteristics for light infiltration and privacy. Typically the lower level heat and air conditioning duct work is not adequately distributed to the degree necessary for a comfortable climate. These systems require extension and modification to achieve proper control. After those corrections, the space can be partitioned to separate the utility and storage areas from the newly captured living space with studs, insulation and drywall.

The cool damp air can be controlled need to comply with the same building code and safety requirements regulating other residential construction projects. Alarms for smoke and fire detection, windows sized adequately for emergency exit, outside make up furnace air for ventilation, electrical receptacle spacing, lighting levels, and plumbing venting are just a few of the code issues that need addressing.

Solutions to the problems encountered in older homes can be easily planned into new construction to ac-by properly air conditioning the lower level. It air conditioning is not planned, increased air movement with a ceiling fan or a room fan will help reduce this dampness. Even with air conditioned spaced, the best way to reduce the air's moisture is to use a properly sized dehumidifier. If the space is being conditioned in the summer, the dehumidifier can be placed in the furnace room, because moist air will naturally migrate to the dryer space.

Light colors, and accent lighting will invite you into the space and maintain your comfort while you are enjoying the room. Fireplaces and big screen TV's, Football tables and stair steppers will be enjoyed in an open, airy lower level.

Lower level construction projects

commodate future lower level build outs. Higher walls for added headroom, concrete floor insulation and a below floor vapor barrier for warmth and dryness, adequate drainage for storm water control, thermal pane windows for sun light and natural ventilation can be pre-installed. Preplumbing for baths and bars, and pre-wiring for lights and power requirements can all be planned into the initial construction to prevent future cost and disruption.

Ask the Builder

President, Robert R. Jones Associates

Q. In January, we will be moving into an older home with two woodburning fireplaces, one in the living room and another in the dining room. Can you tell us what type of wood will give us the best, most long-lasting results?

Ms. C. Goldstone, Birmingham

- A. We checked with the American Lung Association for some tips on clean and efficient wood burning:
- 1. The first thing you should do is hire a professional chimney sweep to clean and perform a safety inspection on your fireplace before you use it and annually thereafter.
- 2. Make sure you use only hardwoods (apple, maple, elm, oak, etc.) that have been cut and seasoned for at least nine months. Avoid softwoods (fir, pine, cedar, spruce, etc.) because they burn much more quickly and leave more creosote deposits in the chimney than hardwoods.
- 5. Avoid any wood that is wet, green or painted. Be sure you burn only 100 percent untreated wood in your fireplace.
- Q. My husband loves to tinker in his workshop in our garage. I want to buy him a new drill as a gift this holiday season since the one he uses is quite old... but I don't know whether to purchase a cordless model or a more traditional drill with a cord. You're the expert...which do you recommend?

  Mrs. N. Clarke, Troy
- A. Since your husband is an avid do-it-yourselfer, my guess is that he would probably enjoy receiving both types of drills since each model offers specific benefits!

A corded drill typically offers more power than its cordless counterparts. Because it turns much faster, the corded drill is great for drilling holes. Most corded drills also have what's called a "trigger lock" which keeps the drill locked in an "ON" or OFF" position. Most cordless models only have an "OFF" lock. Cordless models run on batteries that need to be recharged periodically.

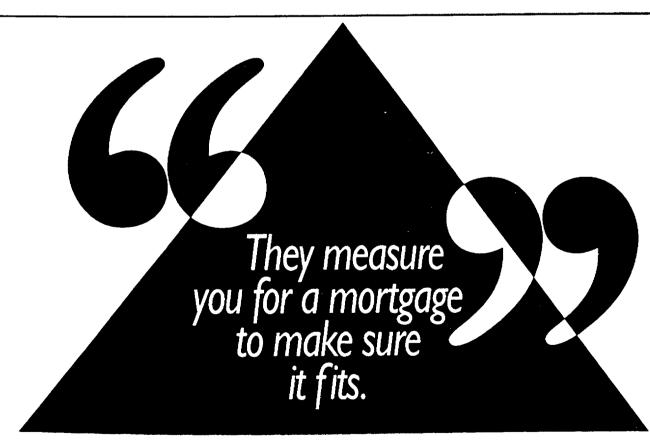

The main advantage of cordless models is that they can be used anywhere without worrying about extension cords and electrical outlets. They're also terrific for driving screws because they go slower, giving the user more control. In addition, cordless models are excellent in tight spots, like crawlspaces, or in difficult, more dangerous spots, such as when the user is perched atop a tall ladder. If conditions are wet, a cordless model is clearly safer. Ear protectors are recommended for corded drills if there is alot of drilling to be done. Cordless models tend to be quieter than corded models.

When you shop, you will notice several types of drill features. These will include:

- Variable speed (allows the user to begin at a low, slower speed for precise hold placement and to drive screws without stripping the screw head)
- Reversible (allows user to back out screws, which is especially handy for screws that are firmly imbedded)
- 3/8 inch chuck (the chuck holds the drill bit in place and the 3/8" indicates the maximum drill size the chuck will accept. This size will handle most do-it-yourself jobs)
- Keyless chuck (eliminates having to use a chuck key to install or remove bits)

Happy shopping...and a happy, healthy holiday season to all of our Home Spotlight readers!

Where the company stops, though, is in interior design: "We try to match interior moldings and themes," Kellett said, "but we don't get into wallpaper or paint selection."

At the level of housing Kellett deals with, some of the more popular changes in homes really aren't that far removed from their modest cousins: family rooms, breakfast nooks and redesigned master suites.

But the value of these homes do invariably invite some renovations seldom seen in less expensive housing:

What Kellett doesn't do, however, are fads.

"We always look to ensure that what a customer wants isn't something that's going to be out of style in six months," he said.

"We're very sensitive to changing trends, and our experience tells us whether it's a solid trend or merely a passing fad.

"So part of our responsibility is to advise our customer and make sure that they're getting something of lasting value." he said.

As someone who deals with trends and changing lifestyles. Kellett has a good vantage point from which to take peeks into the future – and what he sees coming really isn't all that surprising.

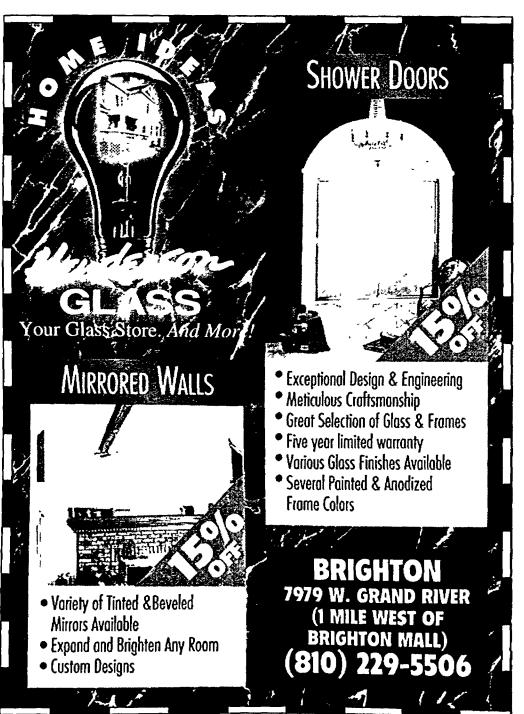

"We're looking at more home offices, as people start working more at home or starting their own businesses," he said.

"We also looking at more informal entertainment areas, smaller formal living rooms and larger gathering areas.

"And we're also seeing more 'nesting homes' – those homes with individual bedroom suites with their own baths," he said. "These kinds of homes are the result of people now spending more time at home, entertaining, than going out.

And of the changing lifestyles Kellett Construction Co. deals with every day.

Q. We are having a new kitchen facelift. Cupboards, flooring, and lighting will all be replaced. Do I match the flooring with the walls, or do I use appliances as my base?

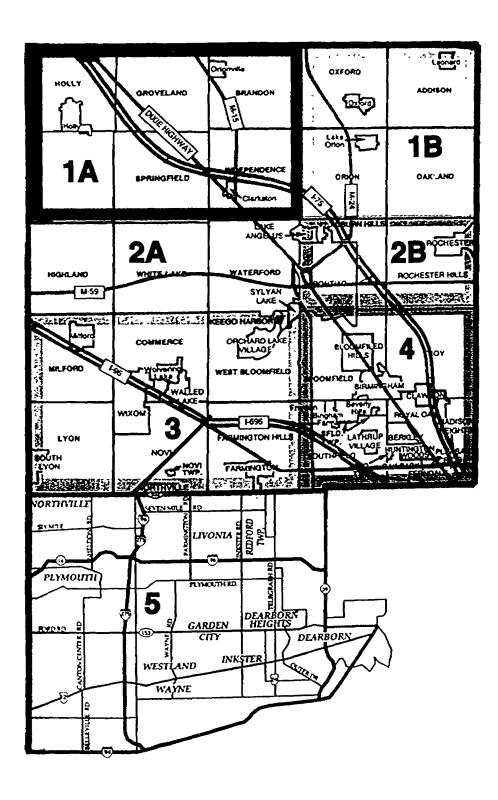

A. Your question doesn't include a description of the materials that surround your kitchen in your home. Therefore, I can only try to help you with a theoretical answer. Technically, you need to be aware that new flooring can physically "close in" your appliances if you are not careful. The floor you are concerned about first needs to be serviceable. Wood nowadays can be treated with a polyethylene surface and goes with just about everything. Tile. preferably with a non-skid surface is recommended in a neutral color, so you won't get tired of it. Linoleum comes in very attractive commercial qualities and so do floortiles. Whatever you choose, try to stay away from pure white tiles, especially if you have children and/or pets. Dark floors are also difficult to keep clean looking, and they can be less cheerful than lighter colors. The floor does not need to match anything as long as it is pleasingly harmonious with the kitchen. If your kitchen opens into an eating area or family room, your consideration needs to include the total picture.

Your appliances would look fine if they match each other. If they are in good condition, but you feel a need for a change, they can be sprayed electrostatically.

Want to square off against high prices? We've covered every angle.

At Builders Square we're committed to honest value. And that's not just talk — we put our money where our mouth is by giving you the following:

Square Deal Prices

Because our buyers purchase in such great volume, you save everyday on all of the 40,000 home improvement items we sell. We only buy quality products and offer them to you at the best prices, all the time.

Buyer's Specials

Often our buyers negotiate a super deal with manufacturers, or, on occasion, buy too much. At these times we will pass along to you savings even greater than our everyday low prices.

Fair and Square Promise

If you find a lower price on any item somewhere else, we'll match it, with absolutely no questions asked. Just take the item to the register and tell the cashier that you saw the item at a lower price at another store. We'll verify it and give it to you at that price with no questions and no hassles.

On-the-level pricing at Builders Square. It's all part of how we're constantly doing our level best to get you Squared Away.
