Keeping the dream alive

Hundreds hear King's words of hope at event

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

If there is hope it lies in the future our future and especially in our children

That was period, [illegible] profound message of a night full of them, an epistle authored with eyes and voices instead of ink and paper It was the unspoken heart of an evening set aside to remember a man his life and work and most of all his dream

Northville's celebration of Martin Luther King Jr Monday night wasn't exactly the Fourth of July although many who attended want it to be in the future

That word "future" came up a lot on Jan 15, the would have been 67th birthday of the preacher whose meld of peace and protest helped make the words sculpted into Washington's tall white buildings more real for many of us

"Us we, ours"

Those words surfaced too and if the turnout for the ACORD (A Community Organization Recognizing Diversity) annual walk in honor of the slain civil rights leader is any indication a lot of young people are willing to take the trip toward the summit that King so often spoke of Carrying flashlights and candles, about 300 people braved the cold to stride through Northville's streets Monday evening keeping silence until the crowd gathered inside the darkened chapel of the First Presbyterian Church on East Main Street

Matt Gillis takes a turn reciting passages of King's best-known speech.

There young and old listened as students from Northville High School read a short history of King's life and accomplishments and the words of his most famous speech delivered from the steps of the Lincoln Memorial during the 1963 March on Washington

The voices of the NHS concert choir girls ensemble and varsity choir lifted in song after I Have A Dream" was complete The words of "We shall overcome someday" filling up the room

Attendees called it a quiet simple tribute to a man who stood for his beliefs and evidence that his dream muscles on

"I think this is about making a difference reader Christina Chase NHS freshman class president said "It's about finding what you commit to Leaving things as hopeless and I am a chump at all

We're trying to do something as a nation we have to do something we need to do for each other Chase recited

OIS probes for new plant

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

Could a second high tech computer plant be in store for Northville Township?

Township Manager Tamara Rankin told the board of trustees last week that she recently heard from Wayne County administration officials that a tentative real estate deal with Optical Imaging Systems (OIS) has been worked out

The company allegedly wants to buy 57 acres of county owned land next to its manufacturing/research/headquarters facility located in Northville Township

OIS moved its operations to the township last year [illegible] and building cutting edge "flat panel" computer screens for a variety of uses particularly military aircraft Even as the first brick was laid in the new Five Mile plant however, company officials had been exploring the notion of building a second complex right next door

If it ever comes about the plant would aim at the civilian electronics market In June 1994 the company announced a deal with the Apple corporation to make display panels for that firm's future line of notebook computers Some estimates have put the worldwide market for civilian flat panel computers at between $10 billion and $20 billion

Any such sale would require for

Clerk lands spot as hourly staffer

Hillebrand given new role in own office

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

Sue Hillebrand is a familiar [illegible] Northville Township [illegible] She'll be even more so as the clerk's office staffing [illegible] Board of Trustees [illegible] Department clerk Hillebrand full time basis

That didn't happen however without criticism from Supervisor Karen Baja over how the decision was made

Hillebrand a member of the board is paid $7,500 a year for 10 hours a week of work for the township The recent departures of two [illegible] professional full time employees from the clerk's office have prompted Hillebrand to pick up the slack for the last few weeks

There's a lot to be done too The township will be conducting three elections this year in March August and November That translates into a lot more work for the clerk's office which prepares for and supervises each one Thrown into the mix is the fact that several clerk's other tasks especially election related duties are required under state law to be completed [illegible]

New applicants for replacement staffers haven't generated a decent candidates Hillebrand told the board during its Jan 11 meeting That led to her confidential proposal that the trustees agree to hire her to work full time in the clerk's office through the three

Fur flies over Baja expense controversy

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

Material allegations must not have [illegible] the New Years resolutions [illegible] many in the Northville Township Board of Trustees

That was clear as trustees clashed swords early and often last week

Particularly combative were supervisor Karen Baja and Trustee Tom Britton who traded verbal volleys laced with anger and sarcasm during the board's Jan 11 meeting That's nothing new but the level of public conflict was

The explosion came as trustees took Baja to task over a series of mileage and phone expenses including questions about

• Whether some of trips listed on her nine month mileage reimbursement request were business or personal

• Whether the same was true of calls made on the township owned cellular phone the supervisor carries

• Her "unauthorized" uses of a township vehicle and money from the gasoline fund

• Allegedly washing her car on the township's tab

• Getting a personal photo and two township maps framed at public expense without prior approval

The thinly veiled tenor of Britton's comments suggested that each instance was, at best a too liberal interpretation of what taxpayers will pay for The supervisor both countered that, charging that the board is conducting "a petty

Pie guy Soupy Sales yocks 'em out at Genitti's

By LEE SNIDER
Editor

You always knew they had the best soup in town Now Soupy's on the menu too

Genitti's Hole in the Wall theater played host to veteran gag master and former Detroit TV personality Soupy Sales over the weekend, packing sell out audiences into the little performing house at 108 E Main Restaurant co owner Tom Genitti said this was Sales third engagement at Genitti's in recent months, and his following has grown quickly.

"We sold out in 43 minutes," she remarked. "We've got 250 people on a waiting list."

Genitti said advertising wasn't necessary to sell out all eight shows – word of mouth and telephone contacts were enough to fill the place.

Sales, best known locally as the host of "Lunch with Soupy" which ran on Channel 7 from 1953-1960, said he still feels a special attachment to the Metro area

"It (the popularity) is very flattering It's so much fun playing Genitti's Johnny and I are like brothers Cain and Abel"

Sales who just turned 70 recently took a spill down a darkened flight of stairs while hosting an Emmy awards ceremony But the accident didn't seem to affect him as he performed his stand up routine

Dressed casually in a navy blazer with an open collar, Sales delivered vaudeville-style one-liners with expert timing and occasionally stepped down from the stage to have audience members help set up his punch lines

Soupy: "What's black and brown and looks good on a lawyer?"

Audience member: "I don't know."

Soupy: "A Doberman pinscher."

Soupy: "My doctor told me I needed surgery and I told him I wanted a second opinion. Know what he said?"

Sales sold out at Genitti's.

Audience member: "What?"

Soupy: "You're ugly."

Many of the jokes were bawdy – even risque – in nature.

"He has just enough spice to get by," John Genitti said.

SOUPY'S ON

From the comic's stand-up act

- I went into a bookstore and asked if they could show me the self-help section. They said that would defeat the purpose.
- I went to the doctor and told him to show me some positive results of my treatment. He showed me his Porsche.
- I went to a nursing home to entertain the old folks. I walked over to an 86-year-old man and said, "Do you know who I am?" He said, "No, but if you check with the nurse at the front desk she might be able to tell you."

Exercise helps crews prep for icy rescues

Suits protect against hazards

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

Hell doesn't have to be hot.

Unfortunately, it can be found in the cold, icy waters of Michigan where hundreds of people drown or die of hypothermic shock every winter. Some of that danger can be found in the 62 identifiable bodies of water that reside in Northville Township

To reduce the chances that someone here will become a statistic, the township fire department is working on improving its cold water and ice rescue capabilities

"I've always said that if you fail to plan you plan to fail," Chief Bill Zhmendak said in explaining the reasons behind recent rescue suit purchases and rescue training this past Saturday for members of his and the Northville city department

Let's say, for example, that it's a chilly winter morning. A 9 year old boy has broken through the ice of a pond. Two bystanders who tried to fish him out are now themselves in trouble. All three lie in freezing water in 20-degree weather. The time available to save them before they die of hypothermia? Maybe 15 minutes

That situation actually happened in Farmington Hills last month and ended in the death of one of the bystanders.

It's something Zhmendak said he doesn't want to see happen here

"We don't have the capacity of a full-size ice rescue unit but that doesn't mean that we shouldn't do what we can to be prepared," he said. "We need to be ready to make the best attempt we can if the need arises. I never want to be standing on shore and tell a parent I'm sorry, I can't do anything here."

To that end, the department recently bought two specialized neoprene rescue suits designed to protect firefighters and allow them to enter water and ice in emergency situations.

The suits got a test run during diving and rescue training on Lake Griswold off Doheny Drive on Saturday. Their cost: $260 apiece.

Besides those measures, Zhmendak is working with other area fire departments to maintain mutual aid agreements where everyone tries to work together to supply equipment and personnel to help out in emergencies.

The Jan. 13 training, conducted by an instructor specialist, saw nine township firefighters and one city firefighter earn their recertifications in ice and cold water rescue techniques and the treatment of victims of hypothermia

The day ended with simulated rescue drills in the waters of the lake

"We just try to be ready to respond to any situation at any time," Zhmendak said. "That's what we have to do."

"Victim" Todd Lincoln (bottom) is helped to safety by "rescuer" Jeff Bennett. Both men wear insulated suits designed to protect emergency personnel from the 40-degree water.

Township puts out call for election assistance

Township Clerk Sue Hillebrand is urgently in need of temporary workers to handle election day duties for the upcoming presidential primary election March 19.

"I'm desperate," Hillebrand said. "I need 24 or 25 new people to help out."

The township last year approved the creation of six new voting precincts, increasing the total number from 10 to 16. That means that more bodies will be needed on polling days to work the new locations

"All you need is to be willing to work all (election) day for a small amount of money," Hillebrand joked

The pay is between $60-$80 a day and workers will need to some training beforehand. If you're interested contact Hillebrand at Township Hall, 348-5800.

Police News

Suspect makes matters worse by fleeing

A 50-year-old Northville man, who was picked up by Northville Police on a paternity warrant, further complicated his predicament by attempting to escape from the Northville Police Department booking room Jan. 13.

The man, who allegedly owes approximately $59,000 in back child support, became somewhat "unstable" as police officers attempted to book him, according to a police report. At that time, the subject ran out of the room and headed down a back hallway towards an emergency exit.

Two police officers chased the suspect and caught up with him as he was opening the door. A scuffle ensued, and the two officers managed to reapprehend the man. Police report that the man sustained a scraped elbow during the struggle.

The man was held on $100 bond, and was eventually turned over to the custody of the Washtenaw County Sheriff Department, which held the original warrant for the suspect's arrest.

NOW FOR THE MAIN EVENT: A 26-year-old Ferndale man, who wandered into the Northville Police Station in the early morning hours of Jan. 14 to complain about being assaulted, ended up assaulting a police officer and was placed under arrest himself.

The man, who claimed to be homeless, walked into the police station with a cut head. He claimed he had been assaulted and needed help. Police officers checked the man's identification and discovered he was wanted by the Ferndale Police Department on an outstanding warrant.

The man apparently got suspicious and began to walk out of the police station when an officer attempted to detain him. At that point the man slammed a door on the officer's hand and attempted to flee. When the officer got outside to confront the man a struggle ensued. At about that time two other police officers arrived and joined in the fray.

The three were able to detain the man and finally got him locked in a jail cell. The subject, who police say was extremely intoxicated, then began threatening to kill the police officers.

The suspect refused medical treatment for his cut head, and was held without further incident on $100 bond.

OUIL ARREST: A 45-year-old Northville man was arrested Jan. 12, for drunk driving.

According to police, the man was originally stopped for having a noisy muffler when officers noticed the man was slightly intoxicated. The suspect was asked to perform several field sobriety tests and was then given a preliminary breath test, which registered at .12 percent blood alcohol content.

A second breath test also registered .12 percent.

The man was booked and held on $100 bond.

CAR THIEF NABBED: A Northville man probably won't leave his car running the next time he goes into a gas station to pay his bill.

The man had just finished fueling his 1993 Chevrolet pickup at the Meijer gas station on the evening of Jan. 11, he told police, and had gone inside to pay the cashier when a man hopped into the vehicle and drove off.

A 32-year-old Novi man was arrested minutes later by Livonia police driving the pickup. He faces car theft charges.

SHOPLIFTER WITH STYLE: He may be a thief but you can't fault him for style.

Northville Township police arrested a Detroit man for allegedly stealing 23 pairs of silk underwear from Meijer in the early morning hours of Jan. 11. The man, 39, allegedly concealed the garments on his person then tried to leave the store without paying for them.

He was ticketed, released at the scene and faces a court hearing. The items are valued at $230.

LAP-TOP SHANGHAIED: Someone stole a $4,500 laptop computer from a Seven Mile business recently, township police say.

The manager of the business phoned police on Jan. 10, reporting that the computer had been taken from the office sometime between Dec. 22 and Jan. 3

UNDERAGE DRUNK DRIVER: A Livonia teenager out for a good time Jan. 13 got a free ride to police headquarters instead.

A township officer riding behind the 18-year-old woman's car on Seven Mile said he saw it weaving and speeding. When he pulled it over, several beer bottles were in evidence. The woman admitted to drinking one beer, he continued, and her blood alcohol level was measured at .092 percent.

That's high enough to earn the teen a ticket for having an unlawful blood alcohol level for her age.

She was released after posting bond and faces a court hearing.

SMART BUT NOT SMART ENOUGH: A township teen allegedly tried to pull a fast one at Meijer but will soon have to explain himself to a judge.

Meijer store detectives told township police on Jan. 14 that the man, 18, took a pair of wire cutters out of its packaging while in the store, then used the cutters to remove the magnetic anti-theft strip from a compact disc.

As they tried to stop him outside the store's door, the detectives continued, the teen bolted, running across Haggerty Road. He was arrested near the Home Quarters store in Livonia minutes later. The merchandise is valued at $19

Accused killer, alleged robber face court dates

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

An accused murderer and and an alleged bank robber continued to wait for their day in court

"Noville" resident Andrew Blakely shot his ex-girlfriend and her mother in their Ypsilanti Township home on Dec 26 after she refused to leave the house with him, according to the Washtenaw County prosecutor's office

Blakely, 22, lives in the Woodland Glens apartments on Eight Mile Road

The complex is located in the City of Novi but has a Northville mailing address

That area is often given the nickname "Noville," reflecting the duel community status

Laquana Jones, 21, died as a result of the shooting and her mother, Beverly, was wounded Blakely faces murder, attempted murder and felony firearms charges

He surrendered to police on Dec 28 and has been held without bond in the Washtenaw County Jail ever since

That's not going to change thanks to the outcome of a hearing held in Washtenaw County Circuit Court on Jan 12

Blakely's request for bond was denied and a pretrial hearing date for his case was set for Feb. 15.

Terry Lee Clinton was in a different court on the same day The 33 year old Dearborn resident is accused of committing a string of area armed robberies, including a November holdup of a Northville Township gas station

His Jan 12 hearing in Detroit Recorders Court was adjourned to Jan 19

The short interlude may indicate a plea bargain in the works but Wayne County prosecutors did not respond to phone calls from The Northville Record

Clinton is charged with several counts of armed robbery and with being a habitual criminal offender

He faces life imprisonment if convicted and continues to wait for his day in court behind bars in the Wayne County jail

His bond has been set at $500,000 cash

Blaze breaks out while family's away

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

A Friday night fire in Northville Township brought tragedy to one family but also delivered an unexpected triumph to a neighborhood.

Thomas and Yvonne Hughes and their five children weren't home on the evening of Jan. 12, a fact that might have saved their lives. A fire broke out in the boiler room of the family's neat yellow home at 19767 Maxwell Road, off of Seven Mile, one that would soon consume much of the house and take the life of the family dog.

The Hughes had visited the Plymouth ice sculpture show, took in a Northville basketball game and were eating dinner at Rocky's restaurant near their home as Fire Chief Bill Zhmendak raced by after receiving a radio alert of a house fire at 9:23 p.m. A neighbor's 911 call sparked everyone's worst fear, the family was trapped in the burning building.

"My heart was in my throat," Zhmendak said. "It's the one thing you never want to hear."

The chief arrived to find neighbors gathered around, seeing if they could help. One man was even on the porch, screaming into the house to see if anyone was there. Fire personnel's searches came up empty, fortunately, and soon the Hughes returned home, following the lights and sirens of the fire trucks.

Township firefighters had the fire under control within an hour, Zhmendak said, but the blaze and accompanying smoke and water damage destroyed the second floor of the house, as well as possibly the first floor and all of the family's possessions.

"It's a bittersweet thing. Nobody was hurt but these people walked away from there with just the clothes on their backs," the chief said.

To try to change that, people living near the Hughes, in cooperation with the township fire department, are setting up a fund and seeking public donations. Already nearly $1,000 has been collected, Zhmendak said.

You can bring your donation to township Fire Station No. 2, on Seven Mile Road between Beck and Ridge roads, anytime between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

"We just want to help. That's what neighbors are for," explained a resident who lives near the Hughes who wished to remain anonymous.

Zhmendak praised the way people came together in the face of the fire's devastation.

"The support we saw coming from the neighbors has just been unbelievable," he said.

A damage estimate has not yet been made and the cause of the fire is still undetermined.

Lawsuits against township dismissed

Northville Township attorney Jim Tamm brought good tidings to the board of trustees on the state of a couple of the township's outstanding lawsuits.

• A Michigan Tax Tribunal judge agreed to dismiss two claims of a lawsuit filed by a Gerald Avenue property owner over a special assessment district enacted last year to pave the road, according to Tamm.

Some of the claims remain, however, and the case is scheduled to go to trial next month.

• The Angelo Iafrate Company, which is pursuing a lawsuit it inherited when it bought land at Six Mile and Ridge roads from the Holloway Sand & Gravel firm, may drop the matter this year, Tamm said.

The company could agree to instead submit a new plan to just run a sand and gravel extraction operation, he added, and not try to win approval for a new asphalt plant.

Township News Briefs

CONGRESSIONAL TOWN HALL MEET: U.S. Rep. Lynn Rivers, D-Ann Arbor, will hold a Town Hall meeting in Northville Township this weekend.

The meeting will take place at Meads Mill Middle School, located off Six Mile Road, on Saturday, Jan. 20, from 10:11:30 a.m. The public is welcome to attend and ask questions.

YES TO TAX EXTENSION: Members of the Northville Township Board of Trustees gave a break to township taxpayers at a Jan. 11 meeting.

The board voted unanimously to extend the winter tax payment deadline from Feb. 14 to Feb. 29. Residents can pay their bills in full before the new deadline without penalty.

NO TO RESA: Northville Township trustees on Jan. 11 turned down a request from the Regional Educational Service Agency (RESA) to collect 100 percent of its 1996 tax levy this summer.

The board denied the same request last year, arguing that, in the words of Treasurer Rick Engelland, "It's better to let the taxpayers keep the money in their bank accounts earning interest rather than in the government's."

Supervisor Karen Baja voted against the denial, however, raising questions as to whether the move might hurt educational efforts.

THUMBS UP FOR CCODA: The board also voted 6-0 to allow the Parks & Recreation Commission to spend $500 of its fund to defray the expenses of a new after school program aimed at middle school youth.

Run by the CCODA organization, the program will try to keep children on the right track and away from drugs and other pitfalls with positive activities and lessons.

DARE GRADUATIONS: The third annual Drug Abuse Resistance Education (DARE) graduation ceremonies will be held on Tuesday, Jan. 23, at 7 p.m. at Northville Christian Assembly School on Six Mile Road. The public is welcome.

ABOVE AND BEYOND THE CALL: Chip Snider, director of the township Department of Public Safety, offered a public thank you to members of the Department of Public Services last week.

That's the new name for the Water & Sewer department.

Its staffers worked until midnight on Jan. 6 to repair a dozen frozen fire hydrants after DPS officials, worried about the potential safety hazards, requested some help.

"It was a lot of hard work for them and they deserve a lot of credit," Snider said.

Township hit with FOIA suit

By LEE SNIDER
Editor

Political dynamo Joe Munem swept through Northville Township in December, leaving a lawsuit in his wake.

Munem, a Sterling Heights-based political consultant, used the Freedom of Information Act to try to obtain voter registration information from the township clerk's office. Not satisfied with the response he received, Munem filed a lawsuit in Macomb County Circuit Court.

"I will get punitive damages (from the township)," he insisted. "They're being arbitrary and capricious."

Michigan's Freedom of Information Act enables private citizens to secure public documents promptly and inexpensively. The law contains stipulations, though, and different parties will often disagree over legal interpretations.

Munem, who compiles voter information for several Republican party clients, wanted, among other facts, the names, phone numbers and party preferences of Northville Township voters.

Phone numbers and party affiliations are exempt under the Michigan FOIA, however, and Munem was forced to amend his request.

In issuing their response, township officials asked for a 10-day extension of the usual 5-day deadline, a move allowed under FOIA. But when they asked for $150 to cover preparation costs, that was too much for Munem.

"This is outrageous," he said. "Warren, the third largest city in the state, asked for just $35 for the same information. Sometimes a community just doesn't understand the law."

Township attorney Jim Tamm said the FOIA statute allows municipalities to charge for actual costs associated with requests.

The information Munem was seeking was specialized and required the use of an outside computer expert whose bill came to $150.

"I think we're able to charge actual costs," Tamm said. "The charge is reasonable based on the actual costs incurred by the township."

Tamm said Munem jumped the gun with his lawsuit, filing his petition before the 10-day extension had expired.

He also said Munem has failed to pick up the information he seemed so desperate to get his hands on.

"He was in a hurry to file his lawsuit, but he's not in a hurry to pick up the (computer) tape. It's been ready for him and in my office for days," Tamm said.

Munem maintains that the FOIA limits charges to the amount of time required to prepare information multiplied by the wages earned by the lowest paid hourly employee on staff.

Munem said he has offered an out-of-court settlement to the township – payment of his $80 court filing fee and release of the information.

Tamm, however, said the township is standing firm.

"If he wants to litigate it, we'll litigate it. If we had done something wrong, that would be different."

The FOIA provides for small fines for violators, including payment of all legal costs and up to $500 in damages.

In rare cases, municipal officials have served brief jail terms for violating court orders to release documents.

The law allows plaintiffs to file lawsuits in their place of residence, hence the Macomb County filing location.

Munem made a name for himself last year by spearheading a drive to oust several Sterling Heights elected officials who supported striking newspaper workers at a plant in that city.

A Detroit News profile depicted the 31-year-old consultant as an energetic maverick type who doesn't shy away from challenging authority figures.

Family Tradition.

Every family has its traditions. Gathering for Sunday dinner. Marking anniversaries and celebrating birthdays. Unfortunately, some families share more than happy times ... they also share the risk of certain illnesses.

Breast cancer—which now strikes one in nine American women—is among them. If your mother, grandmother, aunt or sister has been diagnosed with this disease, your doctor probably has explained the added risk you face. But unlike women in past generations, you can put time and technology on your side.

We at the Marian Women's Center, St. Mary Hospital, encourage you to see your doctor regularly whatever your age and, once you reach 40, to see us for a mammogram. Our mammography services are designed to give you peace of mind by bringing together certified radiologists and staff, personalized education and high-tech imaging equipment approved by the American College of Radiologists.

Make mammography and regular breast exams a new family tradition. For more facts on mammography services and other programs at the Marian Women's Center just call us at (313) 591-3314.

Township hit with FOIA suit

By LEE SNIDER
Editor

Political dynamo Joe Munem swept through Northville Township in December, leaving a lawsuit in his wake.

Munem, a Sterling Heights-based political consultant, used the Freedom of Information Act to try to obtain voter registration information from the township clerk's office. Not satisfied with the response he received, Munem filed a lawsuit in Macomb County Circuit Court.

"I will get punitive damages (from the township)," he insisted. "They're being arbitrary and capricious."

Michigan's Freedom of Information Act enables private citizens to secure public documents promptly and inexpensively. The law contains stipulations, though, and different parties will often disagree over legal interpretations.

Munem, who compiles voter information for several Republican party clients, wanted, among other facts, the names, phone numbers and party preferences of Northville Township voters.

Phone numbers and party affiliations are exempt under the Michigan FOIA, however, and Munem was forced to amend his request.

In issuing their response, township officials asked for a 10-day extension of the usual 5-day deadline, a move allowed under FOIA. But when they asked for $150 to cover preparation costs, that was too much for Munem.

"This is outrageous," he said. "Warren, the third largest city in the state, asked for just $35 for the same information. Sometimes a community just doesn't understand the law."

Township attorney Jim Tamm said the FOIA statute allows municipalities to charge for actual costs associated with requests.

The information Munem was seeking was specialized and required the use of an outside computer expert whose bill came to $150.

"I think we're able to charge actual costs," Tamm said. "The charge is reasonable based on the actual costs incurred by the township."

Tamm said Munem jumped the gun with his lawsuit, filing his petition before the 10-day extension had expired.

He also said Munem has failed to pick up the information he seemed so desperate to get his hands on.

"He was in a hurry to file his lawsuit, but he's not in a hurry to pick up the (computer) tape. It's been ready for him and in my office for days," Tamm said.

Munem maintains that the FOIA limits charges to the amount of time required to prepare information multiplied by the wages earned by the lowest paid hourly employee on staff.

Munem said he has offered an out-of-court settlement to the township – payment of his $80 court filing fee and release of the information.

Tamm, however, said the township is standing firm.

"If he wants to litigate it, we'll litigate it. If we had done something wrong, that would be different."

The FOIA provides for small fines for violators, including payment of all legal costs and up to $500 in damages.

In rare cases, municipal officials have served brief jail terms for violating court orders to release documents.

The law allows plaintiffs to file lawsuits in their place of residence, hence the Macomb County filing location.

Munem made a name for himself last year by spearheading a drive to oust several Sterling Heights elected officials who supported striking newspaper workers at a plant in that city.

A Detroit News profile depicted the 31-year-old consultant as an energetic maverick type who doesn't shy away from challenging authority figures.

Meads Mill Middle School student council members were the recipients of a $1,000 check from principal Dave Longridge last week. On hand for the presentation was Northville School District Superintendent Leonard Rezmierski, who helped Longridge present the check to school council officers Brian Boyes, Kate Atty, Laura Kozub, and Joe Tracz. Longridge received the $1,000 as part of his recent Middle School Principal of the Year award, and decided to donate the money to the council.

Family Tradition.

Every family has its traditions. Gathering for Sunday dinner. Marking anniversaries and celebrating birthdays. Unfortunately, some families share more than happy times ... they also share the risk of certain illnesses.

Breast cancer—which now strikes one in nine American women—is among them. If your mother, grandmother, aunt or sister has been diagnosed with this disease, your doctor probably has explained the added risk you face. But unlike women in past generations, you can put time and technology on your side.

We at the Marian Women's Center, St. Mary Hospital, encourage you to see your doctor regularly whatever your age and, once you reach 40, to see us for a mammogram. Our mammography services are designed to give you peace of mind by bringing together certified radiologists and staff, personalized education and high-tech imaging equipment approved by the American College of Radiologists.

Make mammography and regular breast exams a new family tradition. For more facts on mammography services and other programs at the Marian Women's Center just call us at (313) 591-3314.

Book buddies

Thornton Creek Elementary School student Andrew Smith reads one of his favorite stories to Northville High School student and pen pal John Woodsum in Susan Couzens' advanced composition class this week. Andrew was one of about 17 students in Mary Culik's third grade class who visited the high school. The third graders read portions of their favorite books to the high school students who, in turn, gave their young friends a tour of the high school.

Curriculum changes approved

By ROBERT JACKSON
Staff Writer

Northville students entering ninth grade next year will benefit from revisions to the social studies curriculum and minor changes to course titles in math and computer curriculums, according to Northville Public School officials.

The school board approved the addition of a social studies component for the class of 2000 on Monday. According to Assistant Superintendent Dolly McMaster the action comes in wake of legislative changes to the state school code, which calls for a social studies assessment component to be added to the new high school proficiency test.

District officials and teachers in the high school social studies department have been studying possible changes in the curriculum for the past year, McMaster said. "These were difficult choices to make for everyone," she said. "However, the department reached consensus based upon what is best for our students."

McMaster said the proposal will move American history to the ninth grade as a full year course, and at the same time adds an economics requirement for students prior to the second semester of the junior year.

Course work in international issues and American government will also need to be taken prior to the proficiency exam administered in March of the student's junior year, McMaster explained.

School Superintendent Leonard Rezmierski said he's happy with the responsiveness of administrators and teachers to the curriculum change.

ACADEMIC REVISIONS

The following program of study will be required for students starting the ninth grade during school year 1996-97.

- Ninth grade – U.S. history 1877 to present (two semesters)
- 10th-11th grade first semester International issues (one semester) and American government (one semester)
- 11th-12th grade second semester – Behavioral science (one semester)

"I'm very pleased with the effort, and I'm excited that our staff is doing everything possible to ensure our focus on educating kids is correct, and that our vision of what we should be doing as educators is clear."

The school board also approved changes to the math and computer course titles

McMaster explained that the math change is a "housekeeping item" geared to clear up confusion between the middle school and high school integrated math programs

"It is confusing to parents and students to leave integrated math eight and move to integrated math 2 in the ninth grade year," McMaster said "Therefore the suggestion was made to back-up and revise middle school course titles."

The change to the middle school computer course title, according to McMaster, reflects the exemplary level of monitoring and adjusting to the changing marketplace.

"The current seventh grade elective is not meeting the continually increasing computer skill, knowledge, and application levels of our students," she said.

"Further, we believe that this is the appropriate level at which a strong emphasis concerning technological ethics needs to be addressed."

Ninth graders taking the electronic communications (computer) class will learn how to use electronic mail (e-mail) to communicate, learn how to access the Internet and use the 'net as an information resource, as well as learn to publish on the Internet.

District middle school teachers Gary Gandolfi and Steve Sutherland designed the seventh grade class. In a report to the school board they stressed the need for students to be "technologically literate."

"As today's students progress through the educational system they will become increasingly dependent on their ability to use electronic communication for research," the report stated

"Our computer network now offers students the capability to communicate with people and reference sources around the globe."

McMaster said all course changes will take effect at the beginning of the 1996-97 school year

Dogs can't be saved in house fire in Novi

Tony Kinjorski rushed into a burning house to save his two black Labrador Retrievers Lucky and Sniffer, but couldn't reach them in time.

The animals perished in a Jan. 10 fire which also destroyed most of the rental residence at 132 Maudlin in Novi, as well as the occupants' personal property.

"I tried, but I couldn't do anything for them," Kinjorski said.

Called to the north end scene at 4:15 p.m., the Novi Fire Department had the fire under control in 15 minutes but spent another two hours at the scene overhauling the location.

"The fire was showing in front of the building already," Fire Chief Arthur Lenaghan said.

"The fire spread kind of rapidly."

Lenaghan said about $50,000 worth of fire, heat smoke and water damage was done to the property. The cause is undetermined, the chief added.

Meads Mill instructor wins excellence award for science teaching

By ROBERT JACKSON
Staff Writer

Teachers and students at Meads Mill Middle School keep wracking up awards and honors as the school year nears its halfway point.

The Northville Public School District received notice last week that Meads Mill Science Teacher Norman Hannewald has been selected as one of the recipients of the 1995 Michigan Presidential Awardee for Excellence in Science and Mathematics Teaching (PAWS)

The program is sponsored by the National Science Foundation and coordinated by the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics and the National Science Teachers Association

Even though Hannewald was not selected as a national awardee, he still received a check for $750 from the National Science Foundation

Hannewald promptly turned around and donated the money to the Meads Mill Student Council

Northville School District Superintendent Leonard Rezmierski said that the award represents the commitment to providing students at Meads Mill and the school district with a quality education.

"We need to take time to celebrate (Hannewald's) achievements and those of other outstanding teachers in our district," he said. "We are proud of these accomplishments."

The Board of Education honored Hannewald at it's meeting last week with a board certificate of excellence.

Hannewald said his selection as a state finalist came as a surprise. "It's an honor to receive this type of honor from your peers," he said.

"(Hannewald) is an outstanding teacher, and we're quite proud of his accomplishments and this award," said Meads Mill Assistant Principal Sue Meyers. "It's an honor to the school and the district."

Hannewald is one of three science and three mathematics teachers in the elementary and secondary schools to be honored this year

PAWS will officially recognize this year's recipients at a formal recognition dinner, Friday, Jan 19, at the University Club of Michigan State University in East Lansing

Business network offers opportunities

Northville area business operators are being invited to join a new networking group, the Northwest Farmington Hills Chapter of Business Network International

BNI is a business network founded on personal referrals and business exclusivity. Each person commits to referring members of his or her network to people they know who need those services In effect, each member becomes a representative for every other member.

Northville and Farmington Hills are the communities covered by the new BNI chapter. The group plans to meet at 7 a m every Friday at Kerby's Coney Island, 21200 Haggerty across the Novi Hilton near Eight Mile

BNI is a California-based company with two operations in Livonia.

"My business has really increased as a result of being a part of this network," said Bill Sturgeon, president of the first Livonia chapter. "As a CPA, I belong to a number of different organizations – the chamber, the Rotary – but this one has really had direct results on my business."

Chiropractor Greg Hix, the head of Livonia's newest Laurel Park chapter, expressed a similar sentiment.

"I attended meetings at another chapter and was impressed when I heard about the results. There was a trial attorney who said his firm was approaching $1 million in billings just from BNI referrals."

Professionals who join BNI pay a yearly fee of $195. They then attend weekly meetings where they share information about their businesses, learn about other businesses and pass along referrals.

One of the important tenants of the group is what Maxson refers to as the "non-compete" feature." That is, membership in each group is limited to one individual from each profession – one attorney, one florist, and so on.

This feature allows members to focus on increasing business for group members and also "eliminates jockeying back and forth between two professions," Sturgeon added.

"The whole philosophy of the group is that when you help someone out with a referral, then they will turn around and help you out," Hix said.

"When you give someone a business lead, they feel the need to reciprocate."

For more information about the organization, call co-directors Brian or Cara Maxson at (313) 844-3432.

PREPARING FOR SURGERY

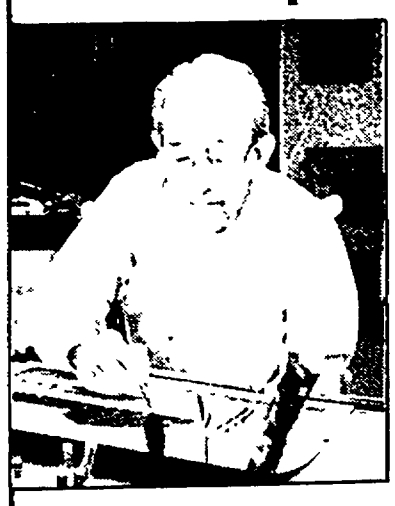

New research suggest that undergoing physical therapy prior to knee or hip replacement surgery may help cut post-procedural hospital stays in half By running through their rehabilitation routines before their surgeries total hip replacement patients were able to limit their hospital stays to an average 5 3 days, compared with ten days for patients who did not undergo the presurgery protocol As for total knee replacement patents who exercised under the direction of physical therapists prior to their surgeries, they stayed in the hospital an average 5 6 days, versus 13 days for non-exercising patents The message is clear that presurgery physical therapy helped patents better prepare for their rehabilabation.

The purpose of our practice here at Northville Physical Therapy & Rehabilitation Inc is to successfully relieve pain and achieve our patient's optimal movement and health by promoting function and mobility Following an examination, we will answer any questions you might have about physical therapy treatment and techniques To schedule a consultation, call 349-3816 or see us at 332 E Main Street, Suite A We specialize in the areas of chronic pain management, back and neck problems, and general physical rehabilitation

Local clubs offering 32 scholarships to seniors

By ROBERT JACKSON
Staff Writer

Two Northville service clubs have joined a growing list of local area businesses and organizations in sponsoring college scholarships for Northville High School seniors.

The Northville chapter of the Fraternal Order of Eagles will be contributing a $1,000 scholarship for the next three years to qualified student applicants, according to NHS Counselor Carolyn Bovair.

The $3,000 contribution represents the Eagles' commitment to become more involved with the Northville community, according to Bovair.

"Their contribution is substantial and extremely generous," she said. "We are extremely pleased with their commitment to the high school and our students."

Also new on the scholarship list is the Northville Early Bird Kiwanis group, which will be donating $500 towards a scholarship. The group is also reaffirming its commitment to youth, and the scholarship is one of the many contributions the group has planned for 1996.

This past year the Kiwanians raised hundreds of dollars for children and contributed funds and manpower to Northville Civic Concern.

The two new scholarships bring the local scholarship award total to $22,250 this year, according to high school estimates.

Both scholarships will be awarded at High School Honors Convocation at the end of the school year. Bovair said students interested in applying for the new scholarships, as well as any of the other 30 scholarships, need to submit a local scholarship application form in February. Those forms can be obtained in the high school counseling office, Bovair explained.

Mill Race Matters

Northville Historical Society members hold their annual meeting tonight. The potluck dinner ordinarily held in May has been changed to January due to a change in the financial budget year.

The evening begins with a potluck dinner at 6:30 p.m. Meat and paper products will be provided by the organization. This would be a good time for former members to renew their memberships.

Thank yous go to James and Betty O'Leary for their donation as well as to the Mill Race Basket Guild for the 10 baskets contributed to the Historical Society.

The Plymouth Historical Society meets on the second Thursday of each month at 7:30 in the Plymouth Museum. Upcoming meetings include: Plymouth at the Time of Lincoln on Feb. 8, A History of City Hall on March 14, and the annual meeting on May 9.

The April meeting is scheduled for the third week of the month and is entitled "Take Me Out to the Ball Game." In addition, a Feb. 17 Teddy Bear Tea fund-raiser for kids is planned for 12:30 p m. More information about all of these events can be obtained by contact 455-8940.

Mid Michigan Antiquarian Book Dealers Association holds its seventh Genealogy and History Book Fair on March 31 at the Lansing Center, 333 E. Michigan Ave., Lansing. The book fair coincides with the 23rd Michigan Antiquarian Book and Paper Show at the same location. Admission to the event is $4 with children under 13 free.

This column attempts to include information from neighboring organizations of a historical nature. Frequently communication from these groups arrives at the Historical Society office too late to convey to others. Another feature of recent weeks has been the inclusion of information about the buildings now at Mill Race Village. This week's column concludes that series with information on the Cady Inn and the Interurban Station.

These two buildings are the Village's most recent additions. They also happen to be the Village's oldest and newest structures. Cady Inn stood previously on Cady Street about three lots west of Griswold on the north side of the street. The site today is vacant. The structure was moved to Mill Race Village in September, 1987. During the summer of 1987, interested volunteers worked on the building at its Cady Street site preparing it for the move.

After its removal to Mill Race authorities who examined the site determined that the Cady Street location had not been the building's first site. Community oral tradition related by Jack Hoffman in Northville: The First One Hundred Years discussed the building's early history as an inn, a stagecoach stop, and a site for the underground railroad which ran through Northville.

Permanent stage coach lines to the village were not established until the 1860s so these stops may have been at the Cady Street location. Irregular stage stops may have occurred elsewhere.

Architecturally, the building dates from the early 1830s. Historically, we know that Northville had six buildings of this style constructed in 1831. Indeed, Cady Inn may be one of them.

By tracing the movement of these six early structures it seems likely that if Mill Race's Inn is any of them it is most likely to be the structure built by the Mead brothers on the southwest corner of Main and Center in that year, Northville's second two story frame structure.

That building served as the Village's first post office and as a stopover for early travelers. The Meads, also of Northville Township's Waterford (Meads Mill), were known abolitionists and active with the underground railroad in this area.

The building they constructed was purchased in the mid 1850s by William and Ursula Ambler, also know abolitionists, and used as a hotel until they constructed a larger building on the same site about two years later. Records do not indicate whether the first building was demolished or moved.

Movement in that day was far more common than it is today, or so other records of the day suggest.

That "move" would have occurred in 1858, about the time architects date our building's first move and subsequent addition.

The final building to discuss is the Interurban Station located at the entrance to Mill Race Village. The interurban was a high speed, rapid transit system which ran throughout southeast Michigan from the 1890s until the 1920s. This station was located on the Northville-Farmington line at 8 Mile and Newburgh. It was constructed about 1899 and continued in use until the line closed.

After the Interurban stopped the building was moved to the rear of a home across from Meadowbrook Country Club and used as a child's playhouse.

Mr. and Mrs. Andy Bertoni donated it to Mill Race Village shortly before they sold their home.

It had been in that back yard for 60 years, twice as long as it served as a waiting room on the Interurban Line.

Next week this column will begin a series on community history featuring citizens of note, businesses in our past, and events of importance from the area's history.

–Diane Rockall

DNR report expects deer loss to be severe

By TIM RICHARD
Staff Writer

Michigan deer already have had a tough winter, and many face starvation by spring.

"We expect severe mortality," DNR official Bernhard Yikanen said in a report on the Upper Peninsula delivered to the Natural Resources Commission Jan 11 in Novi.

"Western UP winter weather severity indices for whitetail deer are running about twice the level of last year. If snow continues to pile up and severe temperatures are common for the remainder of the winter, deer will be lost to malnutrition. Depending on how long these conditions last, losses could be substantial," Yikanen said.

"This year's seventy index is up 29 percent" over a 28-year average, he added. "Currently the index is 31. Last year at this time it was only 11 ... There is a potential for large over-winter losses this year."

Lower Peninsula deer prospects also are bad.

"Record or near-record snowfall and (low) temperatures have raised the winter severity indices to all-time highs for this early in the season," said Donald Inman, deputy DNR director. "There are parts of the Lower Peninsula where deer have been essentially yarded for almost 60 days."

The severe winter followed one of Michigan's best firearm deer seasons from Nov. 15-30, 1995.

"Deer season (in the Lower Peninsula) was excellent with most hunters filing tags early. This resulted in very few hunters being in the field during the December muzzle-loader season," Inman told the NRC.

Hunters are likely to see the results of a high winter death rate fairly soon because half of all deer harvested in one area were yearlings

OTHER WILDLIFE

Here are highlights from their reports on other wildlife species

• Elk – The one-week season in December drew 159 hunters who took 149 elk The entire hunting season produced 256 elk

• Wolves – More than 30 have been spotted by deer hunters across the UP.

• Moose – The 1995 estimate is a population of 378 A new aerial survey technique will help DNR verify the population

• Waterfowl – "Very good" in southern Michigan due to higher populations, an extended season and increased bag limits Officers made 382 arrests.

Top offenses: shooting hours, possession of toxic shot and unplugged guns

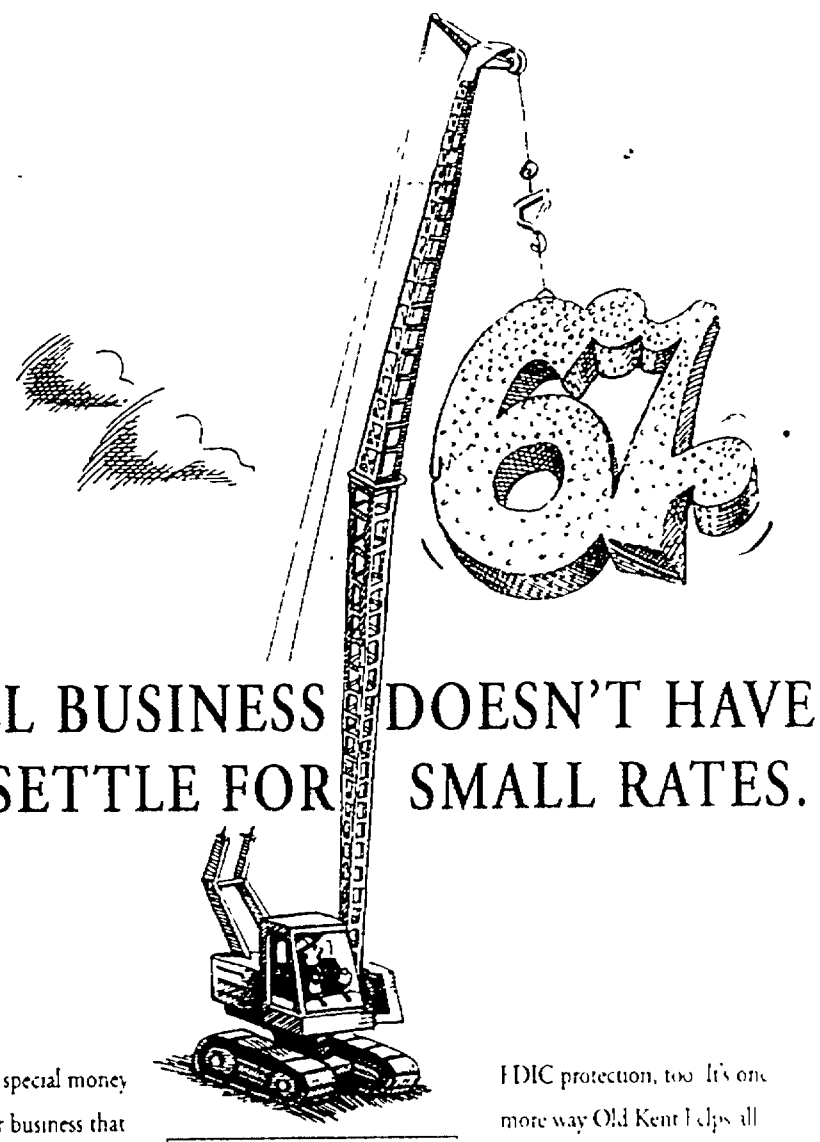

Other arrests were made for trespass, litter and marine violations Six hunters died when boats capsized. Four deaths were due to exposure rather than drowning, as all wore life jackets

• Canada geese – A special 30 day season runs through Feb 4 on public and private lands south of a line from Port Huron to Grand Rapids Bag limit two a day

SNOWMOBILE CRACKDOWN

Both peninsulas saw high numbers of snowmobile violations

In the UP, special patrols were out from 8 p m to 4 a m Dec 30 31 and issued 65 tickets, though only three for drunken operations Yikanen said the DNR issued warnings through chambers of commerce and motels that its patrols would be out

ACORD offers program on race

. The difficult and sensitive issue of racism will be addressed in a 9-week program offered by A Community Organization Recognizing Diversity (ACORD).

The programs begin Monday, Jan. 29, and will take place each successive Monday from 7-9 p.m. in room 114 at Northville High School.

There is no charge to attend.

ACORD chairperson Connie Orr said that Jim Waslawski from the Institute for the Healing of Racism, will head up the workshops. Topics include defeating racism and prejudice, stereotyping, achieving unity and ally building.

"Coming to this doesn't mean you're declaring you're a racist," said Orr, an African American. "We all harbor our own opinions and feelings, most of which we got when we were kids. One of our missions is to help bring educational options to the community."

Orr, who lives in Novi and sends her children to Northville public schools, said she became motivated to join ACORD following a racial incident involving one of her children. She added that the incident was effectively handled by the school principal and that there have been few repeats.

"I feel my children are well grounded and enjoy their school experience. It's been years since any of them came home with any problem."

No preregistration is necessary for the ACORD program.

WORKSHOP FACTS

- What: 9-week workshop on race relations
- When: Mondays from 7-9 p.m., beginning Jan. 29.

How much do you know about civil rights leader Dr. King?

The Reverend Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. was born on Jan. 15, 1929, in Atlanta, Ga., the son of a preacher. He skipped the ninth and 12th grades and enrolled in Atlanta's Moorehouse College at the age of 15.

King decided to become a minister and was ordained just before he graduated in 1948. The preacher became a Ph.D. in 1955, picking up a doctorate in theology from Boston University. It was there that King met music student Coretta Scott, whom he married in 1953, and with whom he would have four children.

In 1954, King became pastor of a Montgomery, Ala., church, the year before Rosa Parks refused to give up her seat on a city bus to a white man. The young minister led a 12-month boycott of Montgomery's bus system to protest its segregation policy, calling for non-violent civil disobedience.

"First and foremost we are American citizens," he said. "We are not here advocating violence. The only weapon that we have is the weapon of protest. The great glory of American democracy is the right to protest for right."

King became one of the leaders of the movement fighting segregation in public schools, transportation and facilities like restaurants and motels, voting discrimination and other civil rights violations. In 1957, he helped found the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC), an organization that played a key role in the battle.

He survived the bombing of his home, days in jail and attacks from counter-demonstrators and law enforcement officials. The protests brought about major revisions and expansions of civil rights law in the 1960s. King himself received the Nobel Peace Prize in 1964.

Beginning in 1966, he began to focus on poverty, calling it a cause of racism, and set his sights on a "poor people's campaign" that aimed at easing poverty through societal and governmental action.

On April 4, 1968, while in Memphis, Tenn., to support striking black garbagemen, King was shot dead outside his motel room. Riots erupted in more than 100 cities that spring and summer. James Earl Ray, an escaped convict, was convicted of the murder but many still believe he did not act alone.

In 1980, King's Atlanta home, church and gravesite were designated as national historical sites. In 1983 Congress passed a law making his birthday a federal holiday.

many people," said Adam Tibble, the president of the sophomore class and a reader along with students Matt Gillis and Elizabeth Polletta. "How many of us are able to influence so many people like he has for so long, especially after they're gone?"

Martin Luther King, walk co-organizer Connie Orr said "was someone who gave his entire life for the freedom and dignity and justice of all people. He was not fearful of man or death because he knew that what he was doing is right and that this is the right way to treat people."

First baby wins loads of goodies

So that little bundle of joy didn't arrive in time to qualify as a tax deduction for 1995. No matter, your babe in arms can make up for it, because it's time again for the Northville Record First Baby of the Year Contest.

Each year area merchants join us in paying tribute to the infant who was clever enough to be the first one born to a Northville couple during the new year. After looking over the list of free goodies in the contest, we think you'll agree the winner of the 1996 first baby sweepstakes has good timing indeed.

Here's what the lucky family will receive:

- A baby bootie charm w/birthstone - Northville Diamond Jewelers
- A Moonlight Serenade musicbox and nightlight - Ultimate Toys and Gifts
- A hair cut, blow dry and style for both mom and dad - Margo's of Northville

- Baby's birth cake - Northville Gourmet and Wine Shoppe
- First year of well baby visits including immunizations - Providence Medical Center
- 10 half gallons of milk - Guernsey Farms Dairy

- The exact time of birth must be verifiable by an attending physician.
- All announcements must arrive at the office of The Northville Record by noon Friday, Jan. 26.

The winner will be announced in the Feb. 1 edition of The Northville Record.

OIS eyes site for second plant mal approval from both OIS and the Wayne County Commission. The Northville Record did not receive a response from the company to its phone calls. Wayne County administration spokesperson Tim Johnson declined comment on the matter.

Thaddeus McCotter, R-Livonia, Northville's representative on the county commission, said he'd heard "nothing formally or informally" about an agreement.

"I keep hearing it's a done deal but I've seen nothing on it. The administration has been informing everyone in the world but us. I'm quite upset about it, actually," McCotter said.

OIS officials last year said that the project they were considering would involve a plant much bigger than the current facility, one that would cost in the hundreds of millions of dollars.

Board members asked Hanlin if she'd heard of a purchase price for the land.

OIS bought the 30-40 acres it occupies now from Wayne County for $10. County officials said the sale was justified because of the huge influx of jobs, tax revenue and high-tech business OIS brought to the table.

Hanlin said she'd been told that the additional land would probably not be sold under those circumstances but that the county might offer it at a "reduced value."

Trustees square off over expenses personality war" and trying to "get" Baja any way they can.

Needless to say, the atmosphere was a tad tense. One example:

Britton: "Under what authority did you do this? Why didn't you tell the manager these items had been taken to get framed?"

Baja: "I don't know, Gini. I guess I was just trying to screw the township again."

Britton: "I guess you were, Karen."

In the end, the board deducted about $160 from Baja's mileage request because of questions about alleged personal expenses and voted to make her pay $108.50 for the personal photo framing.

Things kicked off when Baja presented her request for reimbursement of 2,691 miles she said she put on her car in the course of township business from April-December 1995. Britton said her perusal of the log found more than 500 miles for trips that she called "very questionable."

Also unacceptable, the trustee continued, were some of the cell phone calls; the use of a small amount of petty cash and taking a township vehicle to participate in Devil's Night community arson patrols in Detroit without board approval; and getting her personal car washed on an account reserved for township municipal vehicles.

"Is anyone else's mileage gone over with a fine tooth comb in the township as mine is?" Baja asked. "Is anyone else subjected to this kind of scrutiny?"

Trustee Mark Abbo urged the supervisor to review her mileage log, phone bills and other figures to see if they were indeed for township business matters and then make a second reimbursement request.

"And be publicly humiliated again?" was Baja's only response

Last summer, Baja told the board, some pictures in township hall fell off the wall and were damaged, including a personal photo of hers. They were taken to be reframed, she explained, and were then picked up in October, the bill going to the township.

"If bringing this up is a way to hurt me," Baja said to kick the discussion off, "you should realize that it's Northville Township that will be hurt if this bill isn't paid."

Britton alleged that board policy required the framing to have gone to Manager Tamara Hanlin for approval before it was done or paid for, a view Baja disputed. Abbo threw in another wrinkle, arguing that the board would be setting a bad precedent by compensating for personal property damage.

"I don't think that should be the township's responsibility," he said. "We shouldn't encourage people to bring personal property into the building. It just opens up a big can of worms."

Baja this week said she'd requested a copy of the bills and other information Britton cited during the debates but has yet to receive a response. Britton said she favors having a face to face go over of the data.

The whole deal has left her feeling less than cheery, the supervisor said.

"To me, the mileage and the phone bills and all the rest were separate issues," she said. "If there were questions, a simple phone call to me would have resolved this outside the public format but I don't think that was the point of what went on."

No one else in the township has to suffer the minute examination of mileage or cell phone records that she does, Baja claimed.

"I feel that Karen Baja only is being held to a different level of scrutiny than any other employee," she said.

Soupy sells out at Genitti's

The screen in the 132-seat theater was used to show clips of Sales' old television shows.

Sales' noontime program in Detroit endeared him to a wide viewership of children and adults alike. The program, performed live, featured fast-paced schtick and inventive routines.

No show ever ended without Sales getting creamed with a lathery pie.

"Back then, the network shows didn't come on until the afternoon," he said. "Detroit was one of the great centers of live TV. It was classic television."

After leaving the Detroit area Sales took his show to Los Angeles where it achieved a No. 1 rating. In 1964, he went to New York and again enjoyed good success.

Over time, the show was seen in Canada, Australia and New Zealand.

Sales enjoys wide popular appeal with local audiences.

Sales went on to became a regular on the television shows "What's My Line?" and "Sha Na Na."

Rhino House Video recently released three Soupy titles: The Best of Soupy Sales, More Best of Soupy Sales, and Absolutely the Best of Soupy Sales. The tapes feature excerpts from his old shows.

John Genitti said he plans to bring the comic back for another engagement in May.

"He has a magic name in Detroit," he said. "A whole generation grew up with him."

Clerk given expanded duties on interim basis elections for a salary of $28,000.

Labeling it an "interim" step, Hillebrand said the arrangement would last either until new employees could be found or the board's tenure expires on Nov. 20.

The trustees, however, on a 4-1 vote, decided to hire Hillebrand on a strictly "at-will" agreement for $14 an hour, a move which allows the deal to be ended at any time.

Hillebrand abstained from the vote. Trustee Barbara O'Brien was absent from the meeting and Baja voted "no," voicing fears that the board's choice was made before the matter was brought to the table.

"I have a problem with the process," Baja said. "We've taken much more mundane stuff and studied it to death. The way this has gone leads me to believe it's been discussed rather thoroughly before tonight. I'm not surprised."

The state's Open Meetings Act allows elected officials to discuss ideas outside of a public meeting – by telephone, for example – but prohibits any process of deliberation or decision-making. Hillebrand admitted that she'd floated her plan with the board, including Baja, before the meeting but denied that anything was settled on beforehand.

"This wasn't decided before the fact," she said. "The first I heard of $14 an hour was when (Trustee) Mark Abbo brought it up during the meeting."

The clerk also disagreed with the notion that the plan represents a conflict of interest for her or the township.

"Am I going to benefit from this? Yes, but I'm going to be doing the work, too," Hillebrand said. "I followed the rules but no one came forth that could do the job we need done so I was looking to buy some time."

She also admitted that she "wouldn't mind having the deputy clerk's job" on a more permanent basis but said "that's not my concern now. My only concern is bringing us up to speed for 1996."

On whether it is lawful for a part time elected official to delve so deeply into the administrative side of the house, Hillebrand said that "by law it's my job to fulfill the responsibilities of the clerk. How I do it is up to the clerk and the board."

Lawyers for the Michigan Press Association and the Michigan Attorney General's office said that nothing in state law prohibits a charter township from adopting this kind of arrangement.

Choristers gain honor of singing at state level

By ROBERT JACKSON
Staff Writer

All you have to do is listen.

The first thing you hear are the strains of a piano as you walk down the halls of Northville High School. As you get closer to the school auditorium you begin to hear voices along with the piano a low harmonious hum that's pleasing to the ear even though you can't quite pick out the words.

The curious, almost hypnotic, sound pulls at you, almost makes you anxious in seeking out its source. You turn the corner and almost instantly the sound hits you full force, about 50 voices ris ing together in a moment of soul ful expression.

Welcome to choir at Northville High School.

Choir director Mary Kay Pryce stands at the center of it all orchestrating each note, each change in pitch, her ears straining to hear each individual voice.

Mixed in among the 50 voices are three of the best in the state. Lisa Wisniewski, Chrissy Kapusky and Beth Julien. The three will represent Northville in the State of Michigan Honors Choir, which will perform this Saturday at the University of Michigan's Hill Auditorium.

"I'm really proud of the girls. They've worked hard to get this honor," Pryce said. "I hope a lot of people in our community attend the honors choir performance to hear our girls sing."

The three high school singers will be joined by four talented Cooke Middle School students – Elisa Balon, Sarah Benish, Kati Pryce and Heather Qualman – at the honors choir performance, sponsored by the Michigan School of Vocal Music Association.

The Cooke students will be the first Northville middle school singers to ever take part in the annual event, according to Cooke choir director Vickie Abodeely.

"It's a great feeling when four out of six students who participated in the competitive auditions are selected to the honors choir," she said. "I'm extremely proud of these four girls, who have worked very hard to earn this honor.

"It's neat to be able to work with talented and dedicated students," Abodeely added. "And their parents have been so supportive and encouraging."

Pryce explained that Wisniewski, Kapusky, and Julien were among only 250 students selected from the entire state to perform with the choir. The competition is always stiff, she added, and Northville High School has managed to send students every year.

"We have a talented group of kids and I think it is important to recognize their achievements," Pryce said.

All seven students will be performing at Hill Auditorium as part of the Midwest Music Educators Conference. Cooke students will be singing at 3:30 p.m., and the NHS students will perform at 7 p.m.

Admission is free, and Pryce hopes residents will make the trip to Ann Arbor to enjoy the concert.

"I hope people will take advantage of the opportunity to hear some wonderful music and support our very talented students," she said.

Celebrating the spirit of youth creates good feeling inside

NORTHVILLE TALK OF THE WEEK

By Robert Jackson

God, it's just great to be alive!

I have to honestly say that this week has been one of my best weeks as a Northville Record reporter. That's because almost everything I've reported on this week has had to do with kids.

On Friday I traveled to Meads Mill Middle School to snap some photos of principal Dave Longridge presenting a check to the student council. Norm Hannewald for receiving yet another science award, and I got to meet a very talented young writer by the name of Joe Tracz.

I started this week's travels with a trip to Sue Couzens' advanced composition class at the high school (more about that later) and finally found myself listening to 50 of the most wonderful voices I have ever heard – compliments of Mary Kay Pryce and the Northville High School Choir.

Three of those choir members – Lisa Wisniewski, Chrissy Kapusky and Beth Julien – will represent Northville in the State of Michigan Honors Choir, which will perform this Saturday at the University of Michigan's Hill Auditorium.

The three high school singers will be joined by four talented Cooke Middle School students – Elisa Balon, Sarah Benish, Kati Pryce, and Heather Qualman – at the honors choir performance, sponsored by the Michigan School of Vocal Music Association.

The Cooke students will be the first Northville middle school singers to ever take part in the annual event. They will perform at Hill Auditorium at 3:30 p.m. and the high school students will perform in a concert at 7 p.m.

I certainly hope plenty of Northville residents can make the trek to Ann Arbor to hear these talented girls perform. If Monday's rehearsal was any indication, anyone attending the concert will certainly enjoy themselves.

WHO OPENED THE FLOOD GATES?: This week's truck offering has something for everyone. From the future of education to a nice vacation in France, our weekly fare is chock full of information nuggets.

So without further adieu, let's be on our way down that merry path we sometimes refer to as the "yellow brick road" of positive postings. Talk of the Week. No! To this column's Kansas!

CHRISTMAS LEFTOVERS: Amerman Elementary Brownie Troop No. 234 helped share the season with seniors at Allen Terrace. The girls sang Christmas carols with the residents and decorated the dining room with their own creations.

Participating in the activity were Brittany Myers, Kelly Bond, Chelsea Gress, Melissa Straub, Sarah Pilarz, Katie Jingozian, Holly Kellogg, Renee Poltorak, Rebecca Myers, Stephanie Bommarito, Kendyl Bryant, Anna Davis, Danielle Quinlan, Rachel Reuter and Kristyn Woll.

SCHOOL FUTURE: Got a press release from the Northville High School Future Committee announcing the second of three community dialogs, Jan. 29, at 7 p.m. in the Northville High School Cafeteria.

Designed to define the high school's future educational program, the workshop will feature district facilitator Dr. William DeJong reporting on the results of the first dialog and reviewing the 1994-95 Technology Enhancement and Bond Committee reports and recommendations that were presented to the school board of trustees last year.

All community members are invited to attend the meeting and are encouraged to participate in the dialog process. For further information contact David Bolitho at 344-8411.

SCHOOL PEN PAL VISIT: I certainly had fun this week at Susan Couzens' advanced composition class at Northville High School. The students hosted Mary Culik's third grade class from Thornton Creek Elementary School who have been pen pals with the high school students all semester.

During their visit, the third grade students read portions of their favorite books to the teens, who in turn gave their new friends a tour of the high school. The high school students also prepared refreshments and welcome signs for the visitors.

"Being a pen pal provides a wonderful opportunity for all the students to practice their correspondence techniques," Couzens explained.

SPEAKING OF WRITING: Does the name Joe Tracz ring a bell? For those of you who read the essays written by Barbara Willoughby's and Melissa Ziegler's English students, probably remember Joe's essay on "Why I like Northville." Well, the youngster recently was notified that his essay on skiing won a place in the Midwest edition of the High School Writer. Joe is an eighth grader and student council president at Meads Mill Middle School.

Congratulations Joe. Perhaps you'd be interested in a guest columnist's position?

AND WHILE WERE AT MEADS MILL, we should mention that Principal Dave Longridge presented the school's student council with a check for $1,000 last week. Longridge had received the money as part of his recent Middle School Principal of the Year Award, in which he was recognized as one of the nation's best middle school principals.

Meads Mill science teacher Norman Hannewald added to the student council's bounty, presenting the students with a check for $750 that he was awarded as a recipient of the 1995 Michigan Presidential Awardee for Excellence in Science and Mathematics Teaching (PAWS).

WHO'S WHO: Northville native Jane Luterek is one of 55 Western Michigan University students who have been named to the 1996 edition of Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges.

Luterek, the daughter of James and Deborah Luterek is a senior majoring in psychology.

The Who's Who program honors outstanding campus leaders for their scholastic and community achievements.

PARENT EDUCATION NIGHT: Received a notice from Arlene Greenlee alerting me that the Northville Council of PTA's will host the annual Parent Education Night, Jan. 30, 6:30 to 8:30 p.m., at Northville High School.

The featured speaker for the evening will be the nationally renowned Janice Gabe, who will discuss "Raising Resilient Kids in the Nineties." Gabe is recognized as one of the country's leading experts on children and adolescents.

The presentation is free to the parents and interested community members. Preregistration and preregistration for onsite child care is offered. The registration deadline is Jan. 22. Contact the Northville Council of PTAs for more information.

LAST BUT NOT LEAST: Patsy Johnson reports that the city of Agnetz, France (a proposed Northville sister city) has extended an invitation to 12 Northville High School students to visit the city during the 1996 Easter vacation. Students chosen to participate will travel together to France and be greeted in Paris by Agnetz host families.

The students will stay with the individual host families to experience day-to-day life in Agnetz, as well as the surrounding area.

Students will need to provide the cost of airline travel and bring spending money. Johnson said that arrangements toward a charter airline package are being worked on.

Interested high school students may pick up an application at Northville City Hall. Applications are to be returned no later than Feb. 9, and the announcement of the selections will be made Feb. 16.

McCotter voices opposition to stadium plan for Lions

Wayne County Commissioner Thaddeus McCotter (R-Livonia) has stated his opposition to a new tax proposed for building a new stadium for the Detroit Lions.

"The Lions have been taxing the patience of fans for 40 years, and I think that's quite enough," McCotter said.

McCotter compared the state and Detroit's support of a new Tiger stadium to the proposed tax increase for a new Lions stadium.

"The Tiger stadium project is primarily based on private investment. It utilizes existing public funds for infrastructure improvements that necessarily would have to be undertaken to spur any substantial economic development. And it retains an existing economic development asset in Wayne County. The Lions' proposal is clearly different."

Our Opinion

Expanding clerk's role liable to raise questions

Public employees are held to a higher standard of accountability

While most of us are just expected to keep our noses clean and avoid wrong doing public figures must go out of their way to avoid even the appearance of wrong doing

We are hard pressed to find any actual impropriety in the Northville Township Board of Trustees decision to give Clerk Sue Hillebrand a wage earner's position in her own office but as far as appearances go

The unusual scenario developed when deputy clerk Eunice Switzler recently retired The township advertised for replacement candidates but got few responses

Why?

Because the deputy clerk is an appointed official whose fortunes are tied for good or ill to those of the clerk With elections coming up later this year there's no guarantee that Hillebrand will remain clerk after November

Apparently few qualified applicants were willing to take a chance that their benefactor might get replaced within less than a years time

With three elections coming up in 1996 and a lot to prepare for immediate and extraordinary measures were required

Hillebrand, who has been doing double (or even triple) duty in her office since Switzler's departure feels she's qualified to serve as deputy clerk, a full time position with multiple day-to-day responsibilities Why not assume the duties of the deputy clerk on an interim basis?

Hillebrand's proposal to expand her responsibilities makes sense She's experienced knowledgeable, available and willing Her $14 hourly wage equates to $29 120 a year, considerably less than what the township was paying Switzler

So the township gets a qualified individual who knows her way around the clerk's office and the taxpayers realize a savings in payroll costs

What's wrong with that?

Government

What's wrong is that it looks for all the world like Hillebrand has used her position to give herself full time employment. The fact that the clerk abstained from voting on the proposal when it was approved at a board meeting Jan 11 in no way erases that appearance The proposal was her idea in the first place formally put forward in a memorandum marked "confidential."

It struck us that there might be a law on the books preventing an elected official from also holding a position as a hired employee in the same municipality

We did some probing

Something called the incompatible officers law seemed to suggest that an elected official can't serve as her own deputy but legal opinions cleared up the confusion There is no such prohibition in Michigan.

But there is a such thing as common sense With cynicism about political figures speeding out of control, there is small chance that this move will be seen as anything other than narrow self interest.

A wary and suspicious electorate is liable to view this development as not only an attempt to get Hillebrand a full-time income, but also a move to enhance the clerk's electability Alert residents will see it as a violation of the recent governmental reorganization which had as its stated purpose a separation of the administrative and elective bodies

Using an elected clerk as a temporary deputy truly has merit in this unusual circumstance but more than one good idea has been misinterpreted We think this one's destined for the same fate

Trustees yet to overcome obsession with supervisor

It's a good thing Americans don't settle political differences the way they do in some other countries

If members of the Northville Township Board of Trustees had been able to use sticks and stones in their meeting last Thursday they'd be nursing bloody noses and broken bones right about now

Of course the way this group has resolved several of its clashes particularly the ones where Supervisor Karen Baja is involved hasn't always resembled a recreation of the Lincoln-Douglas debates

It seems like they've lost whatever ability they ever had to deal rationally with each other when the subject of Baja comes up

A case in point was the board's meeting last week The supervisor submitted an itemized request to be reimbursed for nine months' worth of mileage she says she put on her car in the course of township related business a total of more than $700

As soon as the request hit the table however Trustee Gini Britton took the discussion in a different direction, questioning not only some of the miles on Baja's log but also the calls made on her township owned cellular phone, and her use of a township vehicle and the petty cash fund – even an alleged case of washing her car on the township's tab

The move apparently was no surprise to anyone but Baja, since the board quickly voted to take off about $160 of the $700 to "cover" the alleged personal trips, calls and miscellaneous other costs

Whether those were indeed expenses that shouldn't be paid by the taxpayers is a question yet to be answered. The supervisor wants to see the bills and other evidence Britton has compiled but the two have yet to arrange that. What is clear, however, is that such a discussion should have occurred before the board meeting

Britton could have approached Baja beforehand on her concerns At the very least that would have made the public discussion more civil and made board members appear less Baja-obsessed

Let us hasten to add, however, that we're not advocating that trustees decide matters privately, something that would violate both the spirit and the letter of state law

But it strikes us as odd that trustees spent more time discussing $160 of a member's personal expenses than they did about such major moves as last summer's reorganization or last week's hiring of Sue Hillebrand as a full-time township staffer

It makes one wonder about the sense of priorities among the elected leaders in the township

Tolerance in the school yard

Various and sundry musings in and around town

Lee Snider

Got a good report on the state of interracial relations in the Northville school district from Connie Orr this year's chairperson of A Community Organization Recognizing Diversity

Connie whom I interviewed about ACORD's upcoming program on overcoming racism said her children interact with their classmates at school without incident (the family's African American)

There was one rough spot years ago Connie said but the problem was effectively handled by school administrators Now it's mostly smooth sailing and the kids enjoy their educational experience

That's great news and a trustworthy assessment coming from someone who has no reason to gloss over the truth

The school district's minority population is small and that could make individual students easy targets of bigotry and prejudice Thankfully that doesn't seem to be the problem it has the potential to be

That doesn't mean we shouldn't remain watchful however and that's where the ACORD program I mentioned above comes in

Starting Jan 29 and running nine consecutive Mondays ACORD will sponsor workshops designed to help people identify and defeat race based attitudes The discussions will be conducted by the Highland Park-based Institute for the Healing of Racism

Connie says the program is "non confrontational" and is meant to put people in touch with their deeper feelings about race and racial differences

What a worthwhile offering. And timely in the wake of Martin Luther King celebrations

THE SEAMY SALES SHOW

John and Toni Genitti were good enough to allow me to eavesdrop on Soupy Sales' stand up act at the little theater on Saturday

I had a great time at the show as did everyone in the sell out audience

I don't mind admitting though that I was a little jolted by the raunchy nature of the guy's one-liners Pretty racy for someone whose TV sidekicks were a kissing dog and a puppet named "Pookie."

I was in grade school when I would rush home during the noon hour everyday to tune in to Soupy and watch him get smacked in the face with a couple of whipped cream pies When I think back on it his routines had a kind of burlesque quality to them so I suppose I shouldn't have been too surprised at what I heard coming out of his mouth

At any rate no one seemed to object to the content of the jokes – he had them roaring every time he pulled the string

As for me I'm entirely capable of having my share of fun with off color humor so on with the show!

FOUR STAR DINING

A food critic for GQ magazine came all the way out to our neck of the woods last summer to put in an incognito appearance at Emil's restaurant 500 S Center

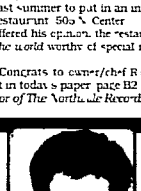

After dining there he offered his opinion the restaurant is one of 10 from around the world worthy of special recognition

Pretty amazing eh? Congrats to owner/chef Rick Halberg Read more about it in today's paper page B2

Have a dream

Northville residents walked through town with candles and flashlights for Martin Luther King day

Stop whinin' and git into work

Let it snow! Let it snow! Let it snow!

Well you get the idea.

Wendy Pierman Mitzel

As the eastern part of the nation took off work complained moaned and groaned and slacked off during the "monster" snow storm there last week I sat thinking "OK where are my glorious fluffy, little flakes?"

It seems like we haven't seen much snow at all lately

Sure, it's a frivolous thing to ponder while a section of the U S is floundering around in all that snow three feet of it at the most.

Maybe you haven't gotten it yet. I'm being a tad sarcastic.

I can't believe the number of people on the TV whining about the snow and how hard it is to get to work etc etc

Therefore, I couldn't wait to get a whole load of the white stuff dumped on Michigan so we could prove what troopers the yoopers and we other Michiganians are

Well I got my wish

Last Tuesday afternoon the flakes were falling gently outside the second story window of the Northville Record/Novi News building

Oh, what a beautiful site

Fresh snow is one of the many little things that makes me happy At least until cars slush through it and snow plows tear up the grass and roads while removing it and the auto exhaust turns it into gray yucky stuff

But I digress

I am trying to prove a point somewhere here

Case in point

On the national news this morning, television crews panned the streets of New York City one of the most traffic congested places on Earth to show that cars have abandoned the streets for fear of going out in that dangerous stuff

As I look out the window is downtown Northville at a standstill?

"No!" I say Cars are slipping and sliding around. We Michigan people aren't afraid of a little powder

When I drove into Novi to cover a story did I have the road to myself?

"No!" I say yet again (cause it's fun to say, you should try it) It was survival of the fittest.

To tell the truth the whole reason I wrote this today, the first day of probably mounds of glorious snow is that I know my nirvana won't last long

I too get sick of the cold and snow and slush and salty roads

But at least I get my tush out to work every morning Ya can't say that for the New Yorkers

Reconsider city/township merger

It was interesting to read your recent article showing the salaries paid to the people who run our city.

I, for one, do not think annual wage increases should be automatic, just as I do not think a 15 percent tip in a restaurant should be automatic. People should have to earn a raise by showing good management or good service.

Considering the high taxes we pay in Northville, we should be getting exceptionally good management to justify these good wages. This brings me to my point as a senior citizen of Northville.

In many countries, senior citizens are not only respected but revered. In this country, there is no reverence and very little respect and in some cases downright disrespect and even abuse. My gripe is what I consider a lack of consideration.

It would seem almost every community has some sort of budget for senior activities. Until 1995, Northville also appeared to have a concern, if not a budget. Then it started. First the volleyball players were assessed $1 per person per day (twice a week). Then the card players and all others who used the Senior Center had to pay a dollar to play or whatever.

We the seniors are "Depression babies." We have learned that you have to "pay your way" but we don't think the city should be making money off of us as they do on the trips they arrange for seniors, for example.

I learned that the card room was available to charitable organizations such as the Kiwanis for $4 per hour and suggested to the City Manager in writing and witnessed by two dozen signatures that we be allowed the same rate. I was completely ignored and the $1 fee was arbitrarily imposed. As a result, many people, more than 50 percent, quit coming. I am speaking primarily for the bridge players, but I'm sure the pinochle and euchre players feel as we do.

It is a sad state of affairs when an apparently affluent city such as Northville cannot afford to take care of its seniors the way our neighbor the City of Novi does.

Obviously, we need an industrial base to produce some tax revenue and the only way to acquire that would be to merge with the township. I know this suggestion is totally unacceptable to the township taxpayers at this time, but I believe it is as inevitable as death and taxes (pun intended.) Please hear me out.

Perhaps a concerned and civic-minded Northville Record could publish the city's 1996 budget and let concerned citizens see wherein the problem lies. Surely among all the CEOs, managers, administrators, accountants and executives in general we could come up with a committee to discuss, if not formulate, a feasible, equitable merger.

Maybe Messrs. Galli and Lenheiser who, given the forum of your newspaper, have a lot to say about many things, could contribute something constructive rather than just introspective. But before you form a committee be aware that the city will probably charge you $1 per person every time you meet.

RANDOM COMMENTS

• I bought a house in the township so that I can take my trash over there and dispose of it cheaper.

• It's ironic that the Scouts can no longer afford to use the Scout Building (now the Senior Center) which was donated to the Scouts years ago.

• The seniors would like to hear from any organization that could allow us the use of their hall two afternoons a week for card playing.

• Now to add insult to injury, they're going to raise our taxes to repair water mains which, because of poor management in the past, fell into disrepair.

Harry Hartshorne

Have to ration to afford water

To the Editor:

In the effort to mitigate the significant cost of sewer rates, I have devised a program of odd/even days to reduce our excessively high sewer disposal expense in Northville.

From this day forward, my daughters can use our bathroom facilities on odd days and my wife and I will use such facilities on even days. The plan does create some harrowing moments, but seems to resolve the issue of excessive water bill rates.

I would be pleased to entertain any other suggestions from your readership.

Volunteer spirit makes community

To the Editor:

Over the recent holiday season we sponsored a charity drive in South Lyon for the Salvation Army and St. Vincent de Paul Society.

Two fully packed 24-foot moving van loads of much needed personal and household items were collected for distribution to their clients, including everything from toys, games and children's and adults' clothing to books, beds, blankets, wall-hangings, tables and chairs, couches, foodstuffs, utensils, a stove and even the proverbial kitchen sink.

This collection could not have been as successful as it was without the initial donation from Black's Hardware in Northville of two weeks' free use of their rental truck. The Blacks – Bob, Donna and their children – have a long history of going "the extra mile" when it comes to community involvement.

It is just this sort of "no thanks required" involvement that makes Northville a "community" and not just a "city."

Along a similar vein, The Northville Record has recently published a number of articles and letters concerning the place of the race track in the community.

My occasional contacts with Northville Downs over the past 20-plus years have not had much to do with such issues as whether or not they are the biggest single taxpayer in town or whether someone is proposing that their property use be changed, with or without their consent.

My contact with The Downs has been the ability to pick up the telephone, call Margaret Zayti and say, "Margaret, we need a place for our fair" ... or, "our parade" ... or "our fund-raiser."

For over 20 years that I am personally aware of, The Downs has consistently provided free use of its grandstand, its concession area and its parking lot for a complete range of community activities and events.

Without such cooperation and involvement with the community, many of these worthwhile events either never would have happened or would have been greatly downsized.

A community is more than just dollars and cents of gross taxable business and total square feet of building and parking area. That's real estate assessor and bookkeeper formularizing.

The Northville community can rightfully be proud of the spirit its residents and businesses display whenever the need arises. These things shouldn't be overlooked or forgotten.

Thank you.

'New economy' causing hardships

Phil Power

It is in Michigan – cradle of the automobile industry, the Arsenal of Democracy, the home of the United Auto Workers – that the transition from the old economy to the new will be the most wrenching.

As anybody older than 50 knows down to the sweat glands, the old economy that made Michigan rich was based on hard human labor in return for good pay and good benefits.

Generations of Michigan kids left school and countless thousands of adults left their farms in the South to work in the auto plants. Bolting on right fenders at Ford's didn't require many skills, other than the ability to tolerate hard, boring work. The old line was: "If you can stand and take a breath and have a friend at the UAW hiring hall, you'll get a good job."

That was the old economy. It was solid, and it was stable. And it built a middle class here in Michigan that made Detroit – where at one time more houses were occupied by their owners than any other big city in America – the envy of the world.

But it isn't the new economy. The new economy is characterized by last week's announcement that AT&T, up to now the most paternalistic and stable corporation in the country, intends to lay off 40,000 workers – the equivalent of at least 10 auto plants. "Most of the cuts," according to the Wall Street Journal, "are facilitated, one way or another, by new software programs, better computer networks and more powerful hardware."

In other words, people – 40,000 of them at AT&T and countless hundreds of thousands elsewhere – are being replaced by computers.

"The wholesale substitution of machines for workers is going to force every nation to rethink the role of human beings in the social process," writes Jeremy Rifkin in an important book, The End of Work. "Redefining opportunities and responsibilities for millions of people in a society absent of mass formal employment is going to be the single most pressing social issue of the coming century."

Rifkin quotes William Wimpisinger, a smart man and the past president of the International Association of Machinists, a union that has lost half its members to automation, to the effect that within 30 years, as little as 2 percent of the world-wide workforce will be able to produce all the goods needed to meet total world demand. No wonder the UAW has made job security its top priority in the coming contract negotiations with the auto companies!

It's this phenomenon – the transition from the old economy to the new and the displacement of unskilled human labor by machines and computers – that undergirds so much of the general anxiety so many people feel today. "My God, if the can lay off 40,000 middle managers at AT&T just like that, what can they do to me?"

It's also this same transition from the old economy to the new that makes so much of the political debate about welfare reform so utterly misplaced.

Of course it makes sense to require people getting public assistance to work.

Some people don't work because they aren't enterprising enough to get off their butts and get a job. But most people on welfare are there because they don't have enough skills to get a job. And if the only jobs available are those which involve skills, demanding that unskilled people take them is both silly and futile.

And the contradiction between the glories of political rhetoric about welfare reform and the hard reality of which jobs will be available is going to get sharper and sharper as the transition to the new economy progresses.

That's why University of Michigan professor Sheldon Danziger's new book, America Unequal, makes so much sense. "The Contract With America essentially takes the position that anybody who tries to work hard can get ahead, and that characterization, if was ever true, was true from the end of World War II until about 1973."

I wonder how long it's going to take until somebody proposes "jobs of last resort," government-supported, low-paying, low-skill jobs to move the unemployed poor from a welfare check to a paycheck.

Outdoor sports on decline in Michigan

Report suggests ways to raise interest level

By TIM RICHARD
Staff Writer

Michigan kids aren't learning hunting and fishing, and the older guys are giving up those outdoor sports as they age.

The Water/Winter Wonderland's population of outdoors sportspersons peaked in the 1980s.

"We as a public are becoming increasingly distant from the land," said a governor's Hunting and Fishing Task Force. It recommended the Department of Natural Resources reestablish its Information and Education Division to promote the "historical importance of the outdoor sportsperson as a conservationist."

The Natural Resources Commission, meeting Jan. 11 in Novi, voted to submit the report to Gov. Engler, who reportedly has a strong interest in the effort.

"An excellent report ... It should be well received," predicted NRC newcomer L. Thornton Edwards, Orchard Lake resident and head of a freight firm.

"It talks only of hunting and fishing. The universe is much larger," said NRC member David Holli of Ishpeming. Holli liked the report but wants to see other outdoors activities marketed to the public.

"We have to get future users interested in the outdoors," added NRC member Keith Charters, who with his wife Carolyn co-chaired the task force. "We've been poor in promoting ourselves."

Charters' group spotted several societal trends that are reducing numbers of anglers, hunters and trappers:

• Numbers of children and young adults are down 20 percent.

• Dads teach kids to hunt and fish, but in 1990 nearly 23 percent of Michigan youngsters lived with only one parent.

• Urban people report that fewer immediate family members fished, giving them less exposure to fishing, according to a Michigan State University survey. Some DNR staffers see kids interested more in indoor Nintendo games than outdoor activities.

• Increasing numbers of minority groups are showing up in the population, but the task force was uncertain how much or little they hunted and fished compared to white males.

Nevertheless, the task force found that 45 percent of the most active anglers had their first fishing experience before age 5, and 88 percent of kids in grades 1-3 reported they've tried fishing.

Acting DNR director Michael D. Moore said that until the 1970s DNR had an Information and Education (I&E) staff of 25. It put together news releases, a magazine, newsletters, photos, radio and TV voices.

But the Legislature abolished I&E not only in the DNR but in many departments, Moore said. Moore said he's willing to reassign staff from other divisions to reconstitute I&E but warned, "The Legislature is liable to take it out of the budget."

NRC member Paul Eisele of Belleville said he was "drooling" at the proposal that the I&E effort be given 10 percent or more of "all financial returns from environmental case settlements" by the Department of Environmental Quality.

The task force called for "an aggressive marketing strategy. Key tools: information to the media, partnerships with tourism, work with schools and civic clubs, and promotion of "Adopt-a-Hunter" and "Adopt-an-Angler" program to increase children's interest.

Even teacher colleges and the Department of Education need to be included, the task force said.

It recommended that the current age for requiring a fishing license – 17 – be retained. But the Legislature is likely to receive recommendations that anglers as young as 14 be required to procure a cut-rate license.

Winter (win´ tur) n. Three months between fall and spring when going outside is to be avoided at all costs ...

– The Couch-Potato's Dictionary

Snow fun!

By CAROL WORKENS
Staff Writer

Of course, anyone who defines winter as something to be avoided will be missing out on all the fun.

For instance, one cannot snow ski in Michigan in June. Sure ice skating is possible in the summer, but only in an indoor rink if you can get ice time.

Winter's time honored traditions – ice skating, skiing, sledding and even going for a walk are as good today as they were in the era before television and shopping malls.

Cross country skiing and hiking are available at Maybury State Park and Maybury's farm is also open during the winter.

To gain entrance into Maybury State Park for any of the activities, you need to purchase either a $4 one day or a $20 yearly Michigan state park sticker.

Ice Skating

Ice skating is available at Ella Mae Power Park located just behind the Novi Civic Center at 45175 West Ten Mile Road and at Brookfarm Park adjacent to Village Oaks Elementary School off Ten Mile Road between Meadowbrook and Haggerty.

For the first time, the pond has been groomed and divided into two rinks at Ella Mae Power Park. One rink will be for general ice skating and the other will be for hockey. Hockey goals are included.

Ice skating is an "at your own risk" activity because the area is unsupervised. Park hours of 8 a.m. until sunset apply seven days a week.

Those ice skating at Brookfarm Park should park in the Village Oaks Elementary School parking lot and use the walk between the parking lot and Brookfarm Park to reach the ice rink.

"People will get ticketed if they park on the street," Novi Parks and Recreation supervisor Marilyn Troshak said.

Ice skating will be available at Ford Field Ice Rink in Northville soon. Hours have not been determined but will be available as soon as the ice rink is open.

Ice conditions will be available by calling the Northville Parks and Recreation recording at 349-0203. There will also be signs indicating whether the rink is open, according to Traci Smeeck, director of Northville Parks and Recreation.

Two rinks will be available, one for hockey and the other for open skating. Skating is "at your own risk" although it will be supervised by volunteers during the hours it's open.

Anyone interested in volunteering can call the Northville Parks and Recreation office at 349-0203.

Sledding and Cross Country Skiing

At Lakeshore Park, located at 601 South Lake Drive, there is a sledding hill. Access to the cross country ski trails is at the back of Lakeshore Park where there is also an area for parking.

There are two ungroomed marked cross country ski trails. The intermediate Wildlife Trail, which is marked with blue arrows, is 2.7 miles in length, goes through open field areas and is 60 percent wooded.

The beginner Sherwood Trail is designated with a green marker and is one mile of open space.

Both trails begin and end in Lakeshore Park but go through Tree Farm Park. Park hours are 8 a.m. until sunset seven days a week.

A map is posted at the beginning of the trails and there is also a mail box with maps you can take with you on the trails.

Look for trail and cross country skiing signs to find Tree Farm Park which is located at the south end of Lakeshore Park.

Sledding is possible behind the Ella Mae Power Park located behind Novi Police Department on Ten Mile Road, according to Troshak. It is also an "on your own" activity, weather permitting.

Call the Novi Parks and Recreation hot line at (810) 347-0478 for daily ice conditions.

Chilly Willy Winter Festival

The Ninth Annual Chilly Willy Winter Festival on Saturday, Jan. 20 begins with the Pancake Breakfast Fundraiser at 9 a.m. in the Novi Civic Center's Multi Purpose room sponsored by the Novi Youth Assistance. Concessions open at 11 a.m.

If mother nature cooperates, the day's activities will include a snow ball softball tournament at 8:30 a.m. for teams that have already preregistered.

A snow sculpting contest will be held from 11 a.m. until 12:30 p.m.

The Score O/Score O Contest is a great way to win a prize from 1 to 2 p.m.

Arlene Greenlee

Preventing tragedy foremost for Greenlee

By DOROTHY NASH
Special Writer

"In the emergency room we pick up the pieces of lost careers, jobs, and families," said Arlene Greenlee, a nurse who is parent representative for the Northville school district on the Northville Youth Forum.

"Growing up isn't easy, making the right choices, having someone to go to for help or support," she said, or not having someone, not having barriers, being alone to decide which way to go.

"Children 12 and over – they're kids," she said, "they need guidance so they won't someday say, 'If only I had done that...'"

The Northville Youth Forum is a volunteer partnership organization among Northville government, schools, businesses and residents which meets monthly to talk about different things that are going on in the community and to take action if need be.

"I'm directing the course for the annual PTA Coordinating Council this year," Greenlee said.

It is to be on Jan. 30 from 6:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. – Parent Education Night. Child care (babysitting) will be provided.

"I'm interested in the health and safety of our children. There are many things which can be prevented."

The goal of Northville Youth Forum is zero tolerance in the community – zero tolerance among youths for alcohol, tobacco and drugs. The speaker for the evening will be Janis Gabe who is nationally recognized on parenting in the '90s. She believes "that children are resilient." Kids can bounce back if they have already leaned into the limits beyond that of zero tolerance.

If you have problems or suggestions, feel free to call Arlene Greenlee at 348-7789.

"I'm interested in the health and safety of our children. I want to prevent tragic accidents from happening. Many can be prevented," she said.

In Our Town

Restaurant critic dines in town

Carol Workens

Alan Richman, restaurant critic for GQ magazine, happened into town in late summer. Slipping quietly into Emily's at 505 N. Center in Northville, he dined on the mussel-and-shrimp stew.

So memorable was his dining experience that he included Emily's as one of 10 restaurants he has come upon from around the world worthy of special recognition. That honor is called the Golden Dish Award of 1995 which was published in GQ's January 1996 issue. Emily's is also the only restaurant in Michigan that received the award.

Emily's owner/chef Rick Halberg and his staff were unaware of their special guest.

It wasn't until November that Richman called Halberg to let him know Emily's would be mentioned in an upcoming article.

"We were very pleasantly surprised when it turned out to be what it was," Halberg said. "This is a very prestigious award.

"The other restaurants listed are literally the best restaurants you can find anywhere," Halberg said.

Emily's, which opened in October 1994, specializes in French inspired Mediterranean food, especially food from southern France, Italy and Spain.

Recently, Emily's has added an a la carte menu during the week with no entrees over $20.

"We're offering the same personality and same style of food only more reasonably priced, utilizing some different food items at a lower price," Halberg said.

Bereavement group offered for seniors

Arbor Hospice begins its ninth year of bereavement support groups in the Northville and Plymouth area.

The New Pathways group, which is co-sponsored with Northrop-Sassaman Funeral Home, begins on Jan. 18 at 7 p.m. at the Northville Senior Center.

The six-week grief recovery program deals with the process of grief and offers families an opportunity to share their experiences with others who understand.

Since 1987 Arbor Hospice has worked with over 700 individuals in the Northville and Plymouth area.

For more information, call Arbor Hospice at (1-800) 783-5764 or (313) 677-0500.

Northvillites invited to reunion in Florida

It's reunion time again. Come and meet your old friends, classmates and neighbors and renew old friendships at the Northville Reunion. A buffet luncheon will be served at the Holiday Inn, 6525 U.S. 27 North, Sebring, Fla., on Feb. 16. Social hour begins at 11 a.m. and lunch will be served at noon. The cost is $12.50 per person.

Over 100 Northvillites and friends attended the 1995 reunion. The group is looking to top that number this year. The reunion is for former Northville residents, but those who still reside in Northville or the surrounding area are invited to attend.

A block of rooms has been reserved at the Holiday Inn for the reunion, and a special discount is available. Reservations must be confirmed no later than Feb. 1 in order to receive the discount.

Please call (1-800) 654-7235 to make room reservations. To make advance luncheon reservations (a must!) or for further information, contact either Douglas Slessor, 176 Guana Ct., Ft. Myers, FL 33912 (941) 482-2865, or Connie Burgess Wahlberg, 591 N.E. Town Terrace, Jensen Beach, FL 34957 (407) 334-3715.

If you have story ideas, accomplishments, awards, trips, etc., you would like to share with your neighbors and friends in Northville, call Carol Workens at 349 1700 or write The Northville Record, 104 W. Main Street, Northville, MI 48167.

Vocal scholarships are up for grabs

The Plymouth Community Chorus is again offering three vocal scholarships to students pursuing an education in the performing arts.

One $800 scholarship will be awarded to a graduating senior and two $400 scholarships will be awarded to students in high school and junior high school (sixth through 11th grades).

The scholarship program was established in 1984 for the purpose of assisting worthy and promising students in the pursuit of a career in the field of vocal music, an applied vocation career in the field of vocal music, the academic study of voice or the study of voice relating to recreational and community singing.

For applications or further information, call (313) 533-4796. The application deadline is March 1.

Program teaches children about death

Care-ousel, Arbor Hospice's care for kids program, will start a new children's grief support group on Jan. 30 at 7 p.m. at the First Methodist Church in Plymouth.

The groups are open to children of school age, from 5 to 18, who have experienced the death of a parent, no matter when or how that loss occurred.

Groups follow a model developed in cooperation with the University of Michigan. The program won the National Hospice Organization Award of Excellence.

All groups are age specific. The groups are led by professionals experienced and knowledgeable about children's grief.

Groups meet weekly for 12 sessions. Parent education groups will meet alternative weeks at the same time and place.

The charge is $30 per week which includes the parent's participation in the alternating week classes.

Week to celebrate for Jaycees

Jaycees from around Michigan will celebrate their 73rd anniversary from Jan. 14 through 20 during National Jaycee Week.

Local chapters will ask their cities to proclaim the week-long event "Jaycee Week" in recognition of the activities Jaycees present to their communities.

Throughout the 73-year history of the Michigan Jaycees, local chapters have raised funds necessary to build burn centers and city parks; provide high school scholarships; implement get-out-the-vote campaigns; support causes like Muscular Dystrophy Association, St. Judes Hospital and AIDS research; and other worthwhile community projects.

The United States Jaycees will celebrate their 76th anniversary.

Jaycees are people between the ages of 21 and 39 who learn to improve their leadership skills through community service. What started as a men's dance club in 1910 in St. Louis, Missouri, has turned into one of the most recognized leadership training organizations in the world.

Jaycees learn to expand and develop their leadership and decision-making skills as well as other personal skills through project participation. Many Jaycees go on to hold government offices or notable positions within corporations.

Through volunteering, Jaycees are fully aware of the needs of their communities and are the first to jump in to solve a problem. Being a Jaycee promotes fellowship and a giving back to one's community.

Although the Jaycees first objective is leadership training through community service, they also provide many social events and projects for the family. It is a great networking tool for those with new businesses, fresh out of college, or new to the area.

For further information about the Novi Jaycees, or upcoming events, contact the Jaycee Hot line at (810) 348-NOVI.

Winter weight gain is not healthy fat

You may rationalize it as "an extra layer to keep you warm," but inactivity during the winter months can lead to unwanted weight gain. You can keep in shape without confronting the winter elements by maintaining an indoor exercise regimen. "Try walking during your lunch hour or evenings in the safe, climate controlled environments of your local indoor shopping center," suggests Ed Plenkosz, an exercise physiologist at Botsford's Total Rehabilitation and Conditioning Center (TRACC). "Or raise your heart rate by climbing stairs instead of taking the elevator."

Jumping rope is an easy and inexpensive way to exercise without leaving your living room. Indoor exercise equipment or videotapes provide aerobic activity and toning routines for all levels.

The exercise physiologists at TRACC can design a winter exercise routine that works best for you. For more information, call 473-5600.

COOKE MIDDLE SCHOOL

The Cooke Middle School PTSA welcomed everyone back after the holiday break at its meeting on Jan. 4. Drawing contest focuses on good holiday feelings

Imagine having something you drew travel all over America for millions to see. Wouldn't it be exciting to have the oldest and largest fund-raising campaign revolve around your piece of art?

Becky Sorrels of Mason, Michigan had just that happen to her. Sorrel's artwork is on this year's official Christmas Seal.

"I was so happy when I found out I was the winner for Michigan," Sorrels said. Sorrels, coincidentally, has asthma, a lung disease the American Lunch Association fights each day.

The American Lung Association, in partnership with the National Education Association Health Information Network and the Triaminic Parents Club, invited children ages six to 15 to enter the 1995 Christmas Seals Kids' Drawing Contest by drawing what "Feeling Good During the Holidays" means to them.

In Michigan alone, there are more than 150,000 children with asthma. The Triaminic Parents Club will donate $1 for every entry form submitted to support the American Lung Association's programs for children. Last year, the contest raised approximately $30,000 for the fight against lung disease.

Artwork of the 1993 contest first prize state winners are featured on the official Christmas Seals that were mailed to 30 million homes nationwide during the holiday season. Christmas Seals have been a primary source of support for the American Lung Association since 1907.

Contest participants must be between the ages of six and 15. Drawings must be in color on a sheet of 8 1/2 by 11-inch white, unlined paper. Their drawings should illustrate "Things That Make Me Feel Good During the Holidays."

Children will compete at the state level for a My First Sony personal electronic sketch pad. The grand prize winner will receive an Intel personal computer, color inkjet printer and graphics software.

Winning drawings will be chosen from each of the 50 states, plus the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, Guam, the U.S. Virgin Islands and from the military families living abroad.

The art from the state winners will be used for the 1996 test seal which is sent to thousands of homes nationwide.

The test seal may then evolve to be the official 1997 Christmas Seal – just like Sorrels's drawing. Drawings must be received by March 31, 1996.

For an entry form, call the American Lung Association of Michigan at (800) LUNG-USA.

'One woman band' plays at Chilly Willy

The Chilly Willy Winter Festival Finale will feature Cecilia Lee at 2 p.m. in the Novi Civic Center on Saturday, Jan. 20.

Sponsored by the Novi Arts Council, Lee is a versatile performer who not only sings any style of music, but plays a variety of instruments such as the banjo, fiddle, mandolin, saxophone, bass, guitar, drums, keyboard and flute.

"She is very high energy and has good experience as far as her background goes," said Marilyn Troshak, Novi Parks and Recreation supervisor.

So what can the audience expect from an entertainer who is considered a "one woman band."

"I have an idea in mind," Lee said. "I'll get a feel when I start whether the crowd is into country, oldies, or Motown. "I'll bring my banjo and fiddle for sure and probably my guitar and flute as well."

Lee began singing professionally at the age of 13 and has recorded many records, television and radio commercials, such as Little Caesar's Pizza, Don Foss ($99 Down) Auto Dealership, Cadillac, "Chalk Up" Ford, "Go Go Gooley," and "Stand By Your Van," among many other.

Lee has sung with Top 40 bands and duos including Johnny Cash, Randy Travis, Lorretta Lynn, Brenda Lee, Alabama and George Strait.

She has made appearances on many Detroit area television shows including Good Afternoon Detroit, On Stage Detroit and Saturday Night Music Machine. Lee has also been a guest disc jockey and performed on many "broadcast live" radio shows in Michigan, Colorado, Tennessee and West Virginia.

Lee has traveled to Japan, Hawaii, England and Australia and performed on the Sovereign of the Seas, Royal Caribbean Cruise Lines in 1989.

Recording since she was 13, Lee has five records of variety, gospel, instrumental, Christmas and original music.

Lee performed as part of the Novi Performance Showcase series in May 1995.

The Novi Civic Center is located on Ten Mile Road just east of Taft Road.

The performance is free and open to the public and wraps up a day of activities which begin with the sno-ball softball tournament at 8:30 a.m., and include a Pancake Breakfast Fundraiser, chili tasting, snow sculpting, activities for the children and indoor games for the adults, among other activities.

Orangutan turns five star hotel into 3-ring circus

Jason Alexander is Robert Grant, the manager of the Majestic Hotel, where Dunston the orangutan wreaks comic havoc in "Dunston Checks In."

As manager of the Majestic Hotel, Robert Grant (Jason Alexander) is trained to handle the most chaotic situations with ease. He can deftly juggle the needs of his staff, his clients, his two sons and his cold-hearted, gold-digging boss, Mrs. Dubrow (Faye Dunaway), without breaking a sweat. There's nothing he can't handle.

That is, until "Dunston Checks In."

Forced into a life of crime, Dunston is an orangutan and the captive partner of the slippery low-life/jewel thief, Lord Rutledge (Rupert Everett). When Dunston flees his malevolent master, a desperately hilarious chase ensues as Dunston as a simian Indiana Jones swashbuckles his way through a marble and mahogany gauntlet of mischief.

Dunston's about to turn a five-star hotel into a three ring circus.

Joining Dunston in his madcap antics is Robert's young son, Kyle (Eric Lloyd), who rescues the young orangutan from Lord Rutledge. Together, Dunston and Kyle make some merry mischief in the glamorous hostelry, much to the chagrin of the hotel's frantic staff and befuddled guests, as well as a determined but inept animal control officer named LaFarge (Paul Reubens) and the out of her league Mrs. Dubrow.

Before Dunston's through, the Majestic and the city of New York itself will be wishing for the quieter times of a previous simian visitor — King Kong!

"Dunston Checks In" presents a comic fantasy adventure about life in a grand hotel, and how things are turned topsy-turvy upon the arrival of an unexpected guest. "I wanted to treat the audience to a week at one of the best hotels in the world," remarks director Ken Kwapis. Remembering his own childhood experiences of staying in hotels and the thrill of exploring their nooks and crannies, Kwapis feels that "people, especially children, will love the fantasy of actually getting to live in a grand hotel."

The importance of this hotel setting is underscored by the film's origins. John Hopkins, who wrote the story and co-authored the screenplay, points to the Eloise series of books, which are about a little girl who lives in a hotel, as an important influence. "Those books present a hotel as a reassuring environment in some ways," Hopkins states, "but on the other hand, all these incredible things can happen within this sheltered area. Hotels are also scaled in a way that's perfect for a kid's adventure." Adds Kwapis, "Our young (human) hero, Kyle, is like a prince trapped in a palace, he can order the best steak in town, but he doesn't get many chances to live like a kid."

Until, of course, Kyle's hairy, soon-to become best friend arrives. Then, the film's Majestic Hotel turns out to be the best playground that a kid — or orangutan — can hope for, providing the perfect setting for the film's comic themes. Leave it to Eric Lloyd and Graham Sack, who plays older brother Brian, to describe the film's hotel-based monkey-shines. "The movie turns into a giant hide-and-go-seek game," says Eric, "and you can guess who wins." Explains Graham Sack: "As you know from movies like 'Home Alone,' when it's kids against adults, the adults basically have no chance. Since we also have an orangutan on our side, the grown-ups are really in trouble..."

In addition to its sparkling cast of human stars — including "Seinfeld's" Jason Alexander; Academy Award-winner Faye Dunaway; young Eric Lloyd from last Christmas' box office hit "The Santa Clause"; English actor Rupert Everett; and comic performers Glenn Shadix and Paul Reubens — "Dunston Checks In" launches the career of a budding cinematic icon.

This star-in-the-making, though, is a little different from your everyday movie heroes. He's short, has really long orange hair, and possesses an extremely limited vocabulary. But he can climb like the devil, has virtually indefatigable energy — and gives a great message.

His name is Dunston, and he's an adorable five-year-old irrepressible orangutan who created bedlam in front of and behind the "Dunston Checks In" cameras. Making his debut performance in a feature film, Dunston (whose non-professional name is Sam) stole the hearts of cast and crew alike.

Dunston made quick friends with his young co-star, Eric Lloyd, who was impressed with the orangutan's mental prowess. "It's amazing," Eric exclaims. "He's smarter than most of the kids in my school." Yet, Eric was always aware of his new-found buddy's tender years.

"You've got to remember Dunston's just a kid," he points out. "He's still only five years old."

Dunston surprised everyone with his acting versatility. "He's a naturally gifted physical comedian, like Chaplin," insists trainer Larry Madrid, "and he's breaking new ground in comedy. And when he turns his big brown eyes on you I defy anyone not to melt. He's going to be a star." Dunston reminded Kwapis of another big screen comedy legend. "Dunston is a very soulful animal, and he's got a face that is real deadpan — like Buster Keaton. And, like any good actor, he was very 'in the moment,' very responsive. If we put something new in the scene, he would respond to it, and he was even able to improvise."

"He's obviously the key to the whole picture," adds Kwapis. "The audience will be under his spell and believe that he's a fully developed character with personality and emotion."

Twentieth Century Fox presents A Joe Wizan/Todd Black Production. A Ken Kwapis Film. The producers are Todd Black and Joe Wizan. The executive producer is Rodney Liber. The screenplay was written by John Hopkins and Bruce Graham from a story by John Hopkins.

Cagers throttle Radiers by 21 as Szostek stars

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

An 11-0 first quarter run propelled Northville High to an easy 60-39 victory over North Farmington Friday at home.

It was the second time the two teams have met this season. According to coach Tim Turner, the team was prepared for the Raiders.

"If we're not excited and ready to play we're not very effective," he said. "We were ready to play.

"It was as good an effort as I can expect out of the guys."

The Mustangs bolted out to an 11-0 to start the game and ended up with a 15 6 lead at the end of the quarter. Mark Sander and Ben Szostek combined for 13 points in the frame.

"We just came out fired up and ready to play," Turner said. "We seemed to get every loose ball. It was one of those perfect ballgames."

Szostek finished with a game-high 22 points and Sander added 14.

North Farmington, which entered the game at 2-4, tried to play man-to-man defense in the first quarter When that didn't work, the visitors went to a zone defense.

That didn't fare much better. Northville went to Szostek and he responded with seven points

Northville led 32-13 by halftime The Mustang defense was the difference in the half.

"They couldn't handle the press," Turner said.

The Raiders never made a run at Northville in the second half Poor shooting was the reason

North Farmington attempted more than two dozen three-pointers, but made just three in the game.

"They shot too many, I thought," Turner said.

The Mustangs held top gun Tim Dolan to four points in the game thanks to the work of Kyle Hitchcock. He scored 20 in the first game with Northville.

"We did a great job on him," Turner said.

> "We just came out fired up and ready to play. We seemed to get every loose ball. It was one of those perfect ballgames."

Richard Beal led the losers with 16 points.

The Mustangs are 7-1 overall and 1-1 in the WLAA. Northville hosts Livonia Churchill tomorrow at 7:30.

NORTHVILLE 53, NOVI 48

You've heard the cliche about the best offense being a good defense.

Well, that one held true on Jan. 9 at Novi The Mustangs couldn't get on track offensively – until the defense started clicking.

Northville trailed 26-22 at halftime. But when the Mustangs turned up the defensive pressure in the third quarter, it ignited the offense.

"I thought that was the turning point," Turner said. "The offense gets stagnant, but when we played good defense and pressed the offense seemed to pick itself up."

Szostek cut Novi's lead to two at the 7.35 mark with a rebound and follow up. With the Mustangs, he then made a steal and fed Sander.

The shooting guard connected on a three-pointer and gave Northville a 27-26 advantage. The Mustangs went on to outscore Novi 20-10 in the period.

"The only way to win was to play more aggressive defense and get more out of the press," Turner said.

The Wildcats rallied late in the game to make it interesting.

Down 50-40, Brian Cody sank three straight free throws for Novi

Mustangs vault to second victory

By SCOTT DANIEL

Mary Essary was on fire last week.

The junior gymnast won three of four events against Walled Lake Jan. 10 and led the Mustangs to a 137.6-112.45 victory.

"I think I can do better," Essary said of her performance. "I've been working on getting more skills into my routines."

The win pushed Northville to 2-0 on the season. Essary said she expects her team to go a long way this year.

"We've started off the season well," she added. "If we continue to do well we'll place very high."

Coach Barb Winn was happy with her team's performance against Walled Lake. She said Essary was definitely the leader.

"Mary had a hot meet," Winn said.

Novi/Northville completely dominated last week's meet. The Mustangs, in fact, took the top two spots in all four events.

The combined team swept the vault to start the meet.

Erica Winn took first place with a score of 9.05 while Stacey Williamson was second at 8.8. Essary placed third at 8.7 and Nicole Pelletier finished with an 8.5 for fourth place.

"She's a kid that has potential," said Winn. "I see her being a real

Spikers make Cereal City Classic tourney a golden moment

By SCOTT DANIEL

It's amazing what a positive attitude can do for a volleyball team.

Our own Mustangs were mired in a slump prior to Christmas vacation. Perhaps it was the break or just the determination to do better, but Northville High made a big-time improvement over the weekend.

Playing at the Cereal City Classic Volleyball Tournament in Battle Creek, the Mustangs made it to the championship round A total of 10 schools out of 24 made it to the "Gold" round

Coach Laura Murray said her team took a mature and positive approach to the tournament. It showed on the court, she said.

"I was very proud of the girls," Murray added.

The tournament was divided into three phases.

Teams were first divided into eight pools of three. Winners of the pools then squared off against each: second place teams faced other second place squads and so on.

Phase three was the championship. A total of 10 teams advanced from "power pools" to the finals and fought it out single elimination style.

Temperance Bedford wound up as champions of the tournament. Northville was eliminated by Battle Creek Central in the first round of the finals.

"All in all I was very pleased," said Murray.

The Mustangs started pool play at 8 a.m. Saturday against Lansing Everett. Everett won the first game 15-11.

Murray said the Vikings were a small team but very strong defensively. Lansing also hit the ball a bit softer than the Mustangs were used to, she said.

Northville rebounded for a 15-8 win in game two. As a result, the Mustangs won the pool match on points.

Sarah Gregerson had a pair of kills in game two while Ashley Ossola came off the bench to spark her team with strong hitting and good serving Northville closed the tournament's first phase by whipping Bellevue twice, 15-2, 15-1.

"We looked really sharp," Murray said.

Tami Taylor played very well with five assists in the two games. Ossola had five serving aces.

Northville came out of its pool as the top team and faced Temperance Bedford to open Power Pool play.

The Mustangs played, perhaps, their finest game of the day, but lost 16-14.

"We came out like spark plugs," Murray said, "we

Grapplers down Churchill; fall to South Lyon in duals

You can say a lot of things about the the Mustang wrestling team.

They're young. They're inexperienced. They've taken a lot of bumps and bruises so far this season. But one thing you can't say is that they've given up.

Northville High proved Thursday that perseverance pays off. The Mustangs smoked Livonia Churchill on the road 48-24.

It was the Mustangs third win against five defeats. Northville got solid wrestling up and down the lineup, even in the matches that were lost.

Jeremy Keister was a good example. The 103-pounder fought all the way and helped his team, despite losing, by not getting pinned.

Northville quickly took the lead from Churchill. At 112 pounds, Rick Torrence pinned Brian Kramer in 40 seconds to put the Mustangs up 6-3.

Nick Sriraman made it two in a row with a pin of Dave Duncan at 1:01. Northville then took a commanding 30-3 lead as James Kyle, Jason Dowdell and Jason Keranen all collected victories by forfeit.

At 140-pounds, Jason Brodie fell to Nate Muchow by a pin at 1:33. John Thomas lost a 6-3 decision to Nick Thompson at 145-pounds.

Northville got back on the winning track as Mike Scappaticci pinned Brian Pancyzsyn at 3:20.

Ryan McCracken wrestled at 160 pounds for Northville and was pinned in 59 seconds by Chris Cedar. Bryan Grider got a pin at 171 pounds while Ted Bowersox was pinned at 215.

Rob Clarke finished the match on a high note for Northville. The heavyweight garnered a pin at 3:05.

SOUTH LYON 40, NORTHVILLE 28

The Lions were tough, but beatable according to coach Garnett Potter.

> "We had a couple of matches we should've won but didn't."
> GARNETT POTTER
> Northville Wrestling coach

"We had a couple of matches we should've won but didn't," he said.

Sam Saran wrestled at 103 pounds and pinned Justin Smith in 56 seconds. Saran is 12-0 on the season with 11 pins, eight of which were in two minutes or less.

"It's just amazing me how he's doing," Potter said.

Sriraman made it 12-0 in favor of Northville with a pin of Brian Watson in 33 seconds. It was a 112-pound match.

At 119, Torrence defeated Derrick Collins 8-1. Eric Staples wrestled at 125 pound and fell 3-0.

"He wrestled well," Potter said despite the loss. "He just got out-muscled."

At 130 pounds, Kyle was a 10-4 winner over Steve Yurkunas. Jason Brown pinned Dowdell in 57 seconds at 135 pounds.

Brodie suffered a 6-1 setback to Dale Maskill at 140 pounds. Freshman Jay DelosSantos wrestled at 145 pounds and was pinned by Tom Gould in 40 seconds.

Scappaticci won his 152-pound match by a 12-0 decision. McCracken lost to Brad Daly 9-1.

At 171 pounds, Grider pinned Chris Barthdomey at 1:35. Northville didn't win another match.

Osteoporosis can be disabling

By PAUL WENIG
Special Writer

Imagine a situation in which every move that you make – getting out of bed, putting on your socks, etc. – is not only painful, but may be next to impossible.

Extend this scenario, to last throughout the waking hours and even into sleep, making it virtually impossible to get a good night's rest. Not a very pleasant picture. This situation – lasting days, weeks and sometimes months – is suffered by someone with a disease that affects their joints.

Diseases that cause inflammation of the joints are called arthritis. Inflammation means the presence of pain, swelling, redness, heat and loss of function.

It is common to be told that you have "arthritis," but this is meaningless. There are over 100 diseases in which "arthritis" is one of the physical findings.

In most cases, the treatment of the primary disease will successfully treat the joint problem. The only way to find out the type of arthritis one has is to undergo a complete history and physical examination with appropriate laboratory and X ray tests, if necessary.

Osteoporosis, a silent condition in contrast to arthritis, can be just as disabling. Seen most commonly in post menopausal women, its first manifestation may be a spinal vertebrae or a hip fracture.

For years, osteoporosis, known to be a natural consequences of aging, was slowed by the use of estrogen hormonal replacement therapy. Due to side effects, many women decided to forego estrogen therapy. Other drugs to treat osteoporosis were not available. This has recently changed.

New drugs, just released, can safely stop the progress of and/or reverse osteoporosis. Newer machines to measure bone density have been developed. By measuring bone density and achieving an increase with drug therapy, the incidence of fractures decreases. If bone density continues to decline, drug treatment can be modified or changed.

With a machine dual emission X-ray absortimetry (DEXA), the patient and the physician have an easily interpretable record of the bone densities. The procedure is safe, reliable, reproducible and non-toxic. A diagnosis can readily be made and therapy followed.

It is recommended that every menopausal female have a bone density measurement every one to two years. The cost of the procedure is covered by most health care insurances.

Recently, Botsford General Hospital has purchased a state of the-art DEXA machine. Doctors Paul Wenig and Inocencio Cuessa will interpret the findings.

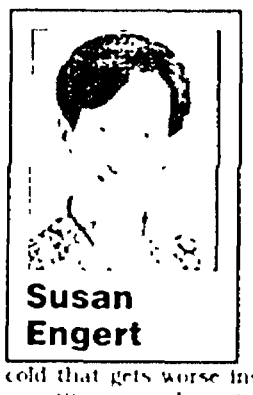

This will be sent directly to your family physician who will discuss it with you or an appointment can be made at the rheumatology clinic at Botsford for evaluation and treatment. For bone density measurement appointments, call (810) 477-6190, no referring physician is necessary. Once, you have your first bone density measurement, we will automatically send you a reminder about your next appointment.

Arthritis and osteoporosis are two very common conditions with tremendous economic and psycho-social burden to the patient, the patient's family and the community.

By diagnosing these conditions early and beginning therapy when they are in their earliest stages, the personal and community burdens can be kept to a minimum and therapeutic success is more probable.

At the Botsford General Hospital rheumatology clinic, both Dr. Wenig, D.O., board certified in internal medicine and adult rheumatology, and Dr. Inocencio Cuessa, M.D., board certified in internal medicine and pediatrics and board eligible in adult and pediatric rheumatology, are available to diagnose and treat all forms of arthritis and osteoporosis. Appointments can be obtained by calling (810)471-1549, 8:30 to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday. No referring physician is necessary to make an appointment.

Ear infections common in childhood

Susan Engert

Ear infections are an extremely common occurrence in childhood. Three quarters of all children have an ear infection by age three. Ear infections often occur with colds, but a few infants develop ear infections without cold symptoms.

Signs that an infant may have an ear infection include a cold that gets worse instead of better, loss of appetite, poor sleep, increased spitting or a fever that develops later than the first days of a cold.

A toddler or preschooler with similar symptoms may be able to let parents know that an ear hurts. School-aged children may complain of pain or of feeling that an ear is plugged. Parents may notice a decrease in the child's hearing. Parents and their child's physician will learn what clues suggest an infection and indicate that the child should be checked.

Because they cause discomfort for the child and lost sleep for children and parents, many families are interested in what they can do to prevent ear infections.

Breast-feeding infants for four months has been shown to decrease the number of such infections. Keeping children away from cigarette smoke will decrease the number of infections as well as the frequency of colds. The choice of a day care center with a strict illness policy and good hand washing policy will minimize exposure to the viral illnesses that may lead to an ear infection.

Once an ear infection has been diagnosed, an antibiotic is prescribed for 10 days. The choice of antibiotic depends on several factors: Does the child have an allergy to any antibiotics? Have antibiotics been used already? Is there another infection present, like an eye infection or sinus infection? The number of daily doses of medication also may be a consideration.

If several courses of antibiotics do not cause the infection to get better, then the child's physician may refer the child to a specialist in the care of the ears, nose and throat to determine whether ear tubes would be helpful. Ear tubes are placed in the ear drum by an ear, nose and throat surgeon.

A child with no complicating medical conditions can go home the same day that the surgery is done. The tubes let fluid drain from the middle ear. If fluid is present in both ears, it can lead to repeated infections as well as decreased hearing. Letting the fluid drain decreases the number of infections and returns hearing to normal.

For children with ear infections, preserving normal hearing and language development are always the goals of treatment. Some children will need formal hearing testing by an audiologist, or speech and language testing as part of the decision making process about treatment.

Regular follow-up of infections in young children is important to make sure that hearing and language development remain normal.

Tankers dunked by Stevenson, North Farmington

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

Sometimes you just can't ease into a season.

Take the Mustangs swim team, for instance. Northville High jumped right into the frying pan last week against two of the Western Lakes Activities Association's toughest teams and lost both times

"It was our toughest week of the season," coach Mark Heiden said.

The Mustangs faced North Farmington Thursday on the road and fell 110-70. Heiden said the Raiders will make a lot of noise in the league race.

"Salem is always the team to beat and Canton looks tough," he said, "but I think North Farmington will be right there."

The Raiders simply had too much depth and too much talent for Northville. North Farmington jumped out to an early lead by winning the first two events.

The Mustangs placed second in the 200-yard medley relay with the team of Craig and Jeff Sieving, Evan Whitbeck and Jim Malloure in 1:47.35. Andy Stewart was second in the 200 freestyle in 2:04.79, Chris Bond third in 2:05.56 and Dan Milnes fourth in 2:05.77.

In the 200-IM, Craig Sieving won in 2:11.62 and Steve Wiecksel was fifth. Jeff Sieving won the 50-yard freestyle in 22.97 and Malloure was fifth in 25.41.

In diving, Dan Basse placed third with 119.2 points. Whitbeck took second in the 100-yard butterfly in 58.84 and Jim Jerome was fifth in 1:15.38.

Jeff Sieving was second in the 100-yard freestyle in 52.51 seconds and Malloure was fourth in 57.11.

Northville took second, third and fourth in the 500-yard freestyle. Milnes had a time of 5:43 65, Bond a 5:44.18 and Stewart a 5:52.4.

The team of Jeff and Craig Sieving, Malloure and Whitbeck was second in the 200-yard freestyle relay in 1:36.42. Craig Sieving finished second in the 100 yard backstroke in 59 35 and Pat Armstrong was fifth in 1:10.07.

In the 100-yard breaststroke, Whitbeck won with a time of 1.06 89, Jeff Sieving was third in 1:14.67 and Brett Johnson finished fifth. The team of Stewart, Basse, Milnes and Bond was third in the 400-yard freestyle in 3:52.78.

STEVENSON 96, NORTHVILLE 87

Whoever said good things don't come in small packages never met up with Livonia.

The Spartans have just 13 swimmers this year. But that baker's dozen is one tough group.

"They're very fast, but small," Heiden said of Stevenson.

Northville started off the Jan. 9 road meet in a hole and never climbed out.

The Mustangs were second in the 200 medley relay with the team of Jeff and Craig Sieving, Whitbeck and Malloure in 1:48.2. Bond finished third in the 200 freestyle in 2.06.11, Stewart third in 2:07 and Milnes fifth in 2:11.98.

Northville's first win came in the 200 IM. Whitbeck placed first in 2:06.02, Wiecksel fourth and Justin Schlanser fifth.

Jeff Sieving placed first in the 50-yard freestyle in 23.10 and Mike Basse was fourth in 25.96.

Dan Basse won the diving competition with 133.5 points and Mike Malloure was second at 99.05.

Craig Sieving finished second in the 100-yard butterfly and Bond was fifth in 1:06.32. Jeff Sieving was the winner of the 100 freestyle in 52.46 and Stewart was fourth.

Northville's Whitbeck finished second in the 500 freestyle in 5:01.05, Milnes was third in 5:50.43 and Craig Boyk was fifth in 6:33.26.

The 200-yard medley relay team of Jeff Sieving, Stewart, Jim Malloure and Whitbeck won in 1:38.62. Bond, Kevin Mount, Mike Basse and Milnes were third in 1:47.93.

He followed with an off-balance three-pointer with 45 seconds left to make it 50-46.

The point guard ended up getting Novi's last hoop to make it 51-48. Sander closed the game with a pair of free throws.

"I thought we played a great first half," Novi coach Pat Schluter said, "then ran out of gas. We played our butts off but just ran out of gas."

Szostek led Northville with 15 points and Sander added 14. Cody had 15 for Novi while Chad Dicken added 13.

DANIEL'S DIVINATIONS

Northville vs. Churchill
The Mustangs host Livonia Churchill at 7:30 p.m. Friday. If you were at the North Farmington game last Friday you may see a repeat in this game. The Chargers (2-5) don't have much outside of guard Allen Polanski. Look for the Mustang press to rattle Livonia.

Prediction: Mustangs 61
Chargers 44

Northville vs. John Glenn
The Mustangs travel to Westland Tuesday to face John Glenn at 7:30 p.m. This will be Northville's toughest test to date. The Rockets (4-2) have numerous weapons in Al Jones, Dave Jarrett and De'Korey Albright. Glenn can light it up. The question is, can the Rockets stop Northville's offense?

Prediction: Westland 58

were just flying around."

Northville trailed 8-7 before Taylor came on to serve. The senior pushed the Mustangs to an 11-8 lead. The two teams battled to a 14-14 tie before Bedford pulled it out

Game two didn't go nearly as well. Temperance Bedford won 15-0

Northville rebounded to beat Jackson Northwest in its next match, 15-9, 15-12. Ossola and Taylor played well in the two games, Murray said

Winning that match put Northville into fifth position going into the championship round. The Mustangs faced Battle Creek Central, the No. 4 squad, and lost in two games.

Murray said her team was simply out of gas.

"We were just tired," she said. "Because we were so tired our passing started to go down. The bottom line was that our passing was very poor."

Creative financing helps young home buyers

By James M. Woodard
Copley News Service

Young families today are as motivated to buy a house as their parents were a generation earlier But it's become increasingly difficult to scrape together enough cash for a down payment and closing costs

Recognizing this dilemma, mortgage lenders are coming up with creative plans to address the problem The plans are often for first time home buyers only, and have family income limitations

One plan combines a non secured, short-term installment loan of up to $5,000 with a conventional 30 year mortgage to purchase a first home, according to loan officer Doug Harder with Chase Manhattan Mortgage Corp The short term loan (payable in three to five years) carries the same interest rate as the mortgage loan

"This new loan really enhances the options available to low to moderate-income home buyers" Harder said "It makes it possible to buy and move into a home with very little cash outlay"

To qualify for the special plan families cannot have an income exceeding certain amounts calculated for individual regions Harder said

Chase has set aside $10 million for this special program The borrower receives one statement for the first mortgage and the short term loan thus reducing any confusion on payments

These combined loans are retained in the Chase portfolio -- not sold to the secondary market Harder noted

Many other plans are now offered by progressive lenders competing in a tight market. One plan, approved by Fannie Mae (Federal National Mortgage Association), allows a down payment of only 5 percent, but only 2 percent needs to come directly from the borrower's funds The remaining 3 percent can come from a gift or grant

In many of the special mortgage plans for low- to moderate-income families, the borrower cannot have owned a house within the past 12 months Discuss currently available possibilities with your local mortgage loan officer

New high-tech developments helping real estate firms and organizations reach out to foreign countries in expanding their operations are surfacing at a rapid clip

"The information age is changing the way people live, work shop and play" said Gary Lenz, worldwide director of Arthur Andersen's Real Estate Service Group "That directly affects the real estate industry in every part of the globe.

"As we enter a world of virtual time and space, technology will create haves and have nots in every aspect of real estate Globally more and more businesses are shifting to technology to communicate with staff vendors and customers It all has a profound impact on real estate"

An example of how one key real estate organization is reaching out to the international marketplace was seen in a recent announcement from Better Homes and Gardens Real Estate Service a major broker franchise network

DUCKY DOMICILE

Attract the shy but beautiful wood duck by providing it with a haven to protect it from its natural enemies

Wood ducks looking for tree cavities to nest in will take advantage of nest boxes. If you have property along a river or stream or your land has a pond or lake on it, consider putting up nest boxes at water's edge in midwinter.

Glenn Dudderar, Extension wildlife specialist at Michigan State University, says the ducks start scouting for nesting sites as early as March, so boxes should go up in January or February

Wood ducks are shy, secretive, small ducks A suitable site for a nest box is secluded and fairly free of human activity

The nest also needs to be protected against predators especially raccoons

"Raccoons are probably the greatest threat to the female and her eggs" Dudderar says "Once the local raccoons learn what nest boxes are they'll look for them"

Keeping raccoons out of the nest box is like keeping squirrels out of the bird feeder, you need to prevent them from climbing up the tree or mounting post or stretching across from an adjacent tree or structure

To foil raccoons and other predators climbing up to the box from below, place a metal shield, either cylindrical or cone-shaped, around the tree or post supporting the box The cone should extend outward at least 18 inches, and the cylinder should be at least 18 inches long Both types should be 5 feet or more from the ground so predators can't jump over them

"It won't be effective if predators can get to the box from above, so be sure to place nest boxes on trees or posts some distance away from other trees or structures that would-be nest robbers could launch from," Dudderar advises

Make the box from unplaned, weather-resistant lumber Do not paint, stain or treat it with preservatives The bottom should be about 10 by 12 inches, with four 1/2-inch drainage holes drilled through it The back should be 24 by 12 inches and the front 23 by 12 Make the sides 12 inches wide and cut the top ends at a slant to match the different heights of the front and back The roof should be about 16 by 12 inches so it overhangs the entrance.

Make the entrance hole an oval about 3 inches high and 4 inches wide. Inside, nail window screen or hardware cloth to the inside of the front so the baby ducks will be able to climb to the entrance hole to get out. Tilting the box slightly forward when you hang it will also help

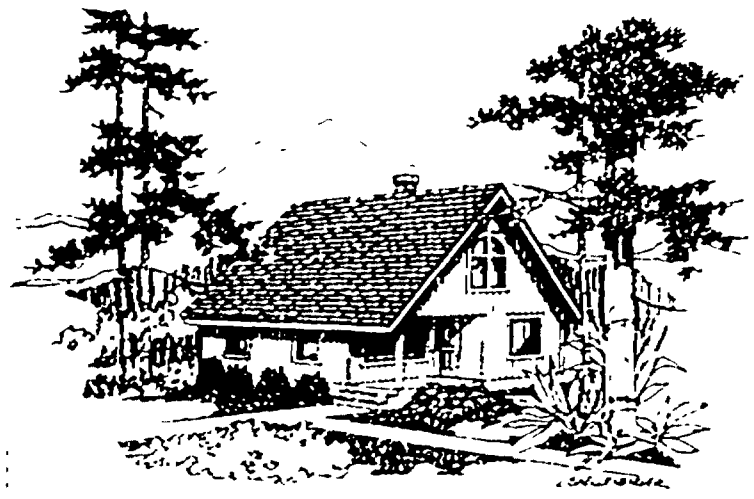

The height from the ground doesn't seem to matter Dudderar observes

"When the ducklings exit the nest, they climb the screen ladder to the entry hole and simply drop to the ground," Dudderar says. "They are hardly more than little fluffballs, and they tumble to the ground unharmed"

Wood ducks don't gather nesting materials. Dudderar recommends putting about 3 inches of sawdust or wood shavings in the house for a nest base Change this material and clean the house each year in midwinter.

Wood ducks aren't the only creatures that may find your nest box inviting. Woodpeckers, starlings or owls may also take up residence. To improve your chances of getting at least one wood duck family, put up several boxes in suitable habitat. Nest boxes should be placed far enough apart that a female nesting in one box can't see other boxes or hear ducklings hatching in them Nest boxes too close together may encourage female wood ducks to lay all their eggs in one box or to abandon their own clutch of eggs when they hear ducklings in a nearby box. Dudderar explains

How a pine cone grows

By C.Z. Guest
Copley News Service

GARDENING

Q: How does a pine cone grow?

A: Oranges, apples and pears are fruit and fruits contain seeds If you open the fruit you can see the seeds A pine cone is just like a fruit since it also contains seeds and, when ripe, it opens by itself. You can see the seeds resting on the scales that make up the pine cone.

When an apple seed is planted, an apple tree grows; and when a pine seed is planted, a pine tree grows.

Fruits come from flowers. Flowers have two important parts — pollen and ovules. Seeds develop when the pollen combines with the ovules. The fruit grows to hold and protect the seeds. Pine trees are different: they don't have flowers, so instead they have pollen cones and seed cones. The seed cone has ovules which become seeds.

In the spring, the pollen cone releases pollen. Pollen looks like a fine powder — it blows easily in the wind. When pollen lands on the ovules of a seed cone, pine seeds develop and the seed cone grows larger. The scales are tightly closed around the cone and protect the seeds growing inside it. At first the seed cone is like a tiny ball on or close to the top of a branch

Depending on the variety of the pine tree, the cones take two to three years to finish growing After the cone is all grown, it dries out and the scales spread apart. The seeds rest on the top side of the scales. Each seed has a thin papery covering that acts like a wing. The seed is carried through the air, and when it lands on the ground it sprouts. If all goes well, someday it will be a tall pine tree.

FAST FACTS, FIGURES AND QUICK TIPS

Sphagnum Peat Moss: Sphagnum peat moss consists of naturally occurring organic matter made up of partially decomposed plants These structures contain hollow cells that hold water, nutrients and air, and when added to compacted clay or sandy soils, assist plant root growth.

Potting Mixtures: Potting mixtures must drain well, and at the same time keep

What is a pine cone?

- A pine cone is a seed-bearing receptacle, similar to the fruits and nuts produced by other trees and plants.
- Pine trees do not have flowers, so in the spring, pollen cones are produced which release pollen The pollen may then land on, and fertilize, a seed cone
- The seed cones are green and scaly at first, but then dry out and open up toward the end of their cycle. It is in this form that they are most commonly known.
- As the seed cones dry out and open, the loosened seeds are carried by wind or animals to distance places. The seeds rest on the top side of the scales.
- Make a bird feeder out of a pine cone. Stuff the cone with pieces of bread or moist crackers. Intermix seeds or crumbs. The cone can be rolled in honey or molasses and then heavily sprinkled with birdseed and small crumbs. Hang outside out of reach of cats and squirrels. Do not paint the pine cone or use glitter or glue. These may injure birds.

franchise network in Thailand. And a leading company in that country has been appointed as the organization's master franchise licensee.

The announcement was made by Allen Sabbag, president of Better Homes and Gardens Real Estate Service.

The network has no immediate plans for granting other master franchise licenses in Southeast Asia, Sabbag said. But based on the developing success of operations in Thailand, the franchise may soon be opening other international markets.

"We have entered into this agreement as part of an overall strategy to penetrate vital international markets with Meredith Corp. (franchise owner) products and services," Sabbag said.

Q. Is it true that Realtor News, the long-published newspaper of the National Association of Realtors, is out of business?

A. Yes. Realtor News, NAR's biweekly news publication is out of business after 16 years of continuous publication. The last issue was dated for the week of Dec. 18.

A new monthly magazine publication, Today's Realtor, was to debut in January. It will carry all the news and features items formerly carried by Realtor News, NAR reported.

The change is primarily designed to save costs, particularly in the wake of huge newsprint cost increases.

Questions may be used in future columns; personal responses should not be expected. Send inquiries to James M. Woodard, Copley News Service, P.O. Box 190, San Diego, CA 92112 0190.

Here are some fast facts and quick tips to make your yard and garden better roots moist, retain nutrients and resist compaction. An all-purpose potting soil mixture would contain one-third sterilized garden soil (sell-sieved), one-third sphagnum peat moss and one-third vermiculite. There are plenty of peat-based specialty potting mixtures that provide a good base for any plant type.

Composting: Peat moss helps produce better compost by speeding up the process, reducing odors and controlling air and water in the compost pile. Mix -inch layer of peat to every 41 inches of compostable materials, being sure to slip over the top layers of organic materials every week or two. Add water when needed to keep the center of the pile moist.

Amending Gardens: When adding compost to the garden, blend with equal parts of peat moss. The two complement each other with unique benefits for your garden. Peat decomposes slowly (over several years vs. several months for compost) ensuring longer-term organic matter in the soil, balancing the nutrient-rich but faster decomposing compost and reducing compost's tendency to compact.

Eliminating Thatch: Compacted soil in lawn areas creates an environment for thatch. To prevent or relieve thatch and promote deeper grass root growth, aerate the lawn and apply a top dressing of peat moss. The best times of year to aerate are mid-spring, after the ground is reasonably dry and early fall.

TIGERS & DEERS

If you are having problems with deer, here is a solution that never seems to fail; in fact, it's surefire.

Tiger dung!

Just pull up at the back door of the tent or arena when the circus comes to town and most trainers or handlers will let you shovel all the dung you want for free. I've been told on absolute authority that no deer will cross a dung line.

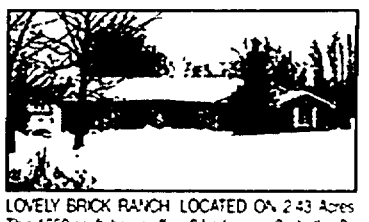

It's certainly worth a try.

Early 1900s pottery punch bowl is worth keeping

By Anne McCollam
Copley News Service

ANTIQUES

Q. Enclosed is a picture of a Deldare pottery punch bowl. It is marked with a buffalo and the words "Buffalo Pottery — Deldare Ware." I would appreciate it very much if you could give some information on my punch bowl.

A. Buffalo Pottery was located in Buffalo, N.Y., from 1903 to 1983. The firm was established by the Larkin Soap Co. to make pottery as premiums for its mail-order business. Deldare Ware was first made in 1908.

The transfer-printed scenes were designed by Cecil Aldin. They were applied to the olive-green background and then hand-decorated. Your punch bowl was made in the early 1900s.

Its value would probably be $600 in good condition.

Q. I hope this is an easy one for you. I recently acquired a Bing & Grondahl Christmas plate that is flawless. On the front is the date 1918. On the back is a castle and the words "B.&G. — Denmark." What is it worth?

A. Bing & Grondahl, Copenhagen, Denmark, made its first Christmas plate in 1895. The molds for the blue and white plates are destroyed every year after Christmas. Your plate was designed by E. Hansen.

It would probably be worth $100.

Q. My mother received an Irish Belleek covered box for a wedding present in 1921. It is decorated with green shamrocks.

The mark on the bottom is a castle with a black wolfhound, a harp and the words "Belleek — Co. Fermanagh." Could you tell me how much it is worth?

A. Irish Belleek has been made in County Fermanagh, Ireland, since 1857. The pattern is "Shamrock." This is its second black mark and was used from 1891 to 1926.

Your covered box would probably be worth $250 to $275.

Q. I have an opalescent spooner, sugar bowl and six individual berry bowls that are about 100 years old.

They look like they might be Vaseline glass. The pattern is "Swag With Brackets." What is the value of my set?

A. Jefferson Glass Co., Steubenville, Ohio, made this pattern. Although it has a Vaseline appearance, it is canary opalescent glass. This pattern was made circa 1904.

The value of your set would probably be $350 to $375.

Q. What can you tell me about my icebox? It stands 41 inches high, 27 inches wide and 16 inches deep.

On the left side is a double-panel full door; on the right side are two doors, one over the other. The inside is lined with zinc and the hardware is the original. There is a metal plate with the words "Barbour's New Perfection" on the front.

A. Iceboxes were designed to preserve perishable food. They were insulated wooden cabinets with a compartment to hold ice. Blocks of ice were usually delivered to homes in a horse-drawn cart.

Most cabinets were made of ash, elm or other northern hardwoods, usually with a golden oak finish. The advent of electricity brought about the demise of the icebox.

Your icebox would probably be worth $575 to $600.

Address your questions to Anne McCollam, P.O. Box 490, Notre Dame, IN 46556. For a personal response, include picture(s), a detailed description, a stamped, self-addressed envelope and $5 per item (one item at a time).

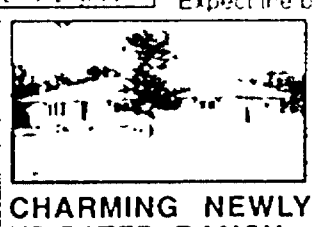

This punch bowl was made in the early 1900s and is probably worth $600 in good condition.

Everything for a buck at Dollar King store

By SCOTT DANIEL
Staff Writer

As a shopper you can by groceries, kitchen utensils, health and beauty items, toys and greeting cards at a lot of stores.

But there aren't many places where you can get all of them for a buck. Dollar King opened its door to Northville residents just before Thanksgiving with the idea of providing good merchandise for 100 pennies, 20 nickels, 10 dimes or four quarters - one dollar, in other words

"Everybody likes a bargain," co-owner Stew Irwin said, "and we have incredibly high quality for a dollar."

Located in the Highland Lakes shopping mall, Dollar King is a bargain-hunter's paradise. The Seven Mile Road shop has everything from Aspirin to Zinc supplements and then some.

"Everything's a dollar unless marked otherwise," said Irwin "The only (time) it's not a dollar is if we put our own tag on it."

Irwin started the business with longtime friend Charles Shude.

"We've been partners for many years in many ventures," Stew said "But never in a dollar store."

Among those partnerships was a pet store in Florida Shude said they got out of that business and into retail for a darn good reason

"There's a lot less stress," he commented "There was always a lot of problems."

The idea of starting a dollar store came to Irwin about two years ago.

"As an auctioneer I went to a trade show in Chicago to buy merchandise," he said. "There were a lot of dollar store dealers at the show. It sparked my interest."

A year later Irwin and Shude acted on that interest by opening shop in Northville. The duo looked at other locations in the metropolitan area, but settled on the city for a couple of reasons.

"Northville didn't have a dollar store," Irwin said and added that he particularly liked the location. "Everything is timing and seizing the opportunity."

Unlike many dollar stores that carry nothing but close-outs and a lot of junk, Dollar King carries name brands and generic items you'd find at grocery or drug stores. Quality and value are stressed at Dollar King.

"I'm amazed at what people are buying for a dollar," Irwin said

It didn't take long for word to get out about the store.

"We had a real nice Christmas season," said Irwin, "for just kicking the program off."

With the variety of merchandise, it's no wonder.

Start with the grocery aisle There's Guernsey milk (one of the few items more than dollar), Boston teas, spices, crackers, jams, cookies, bagels, English Muffins, chips and soft drinks. Most of these products are still a dollar, but Irwin said prices fluctuate most on groceries.

Cleaning supplies are another top seller. Everything from tile and glass cleaners to dish soap are on hand for, you guessed it, one dollar.

Medications include aspirin, ibuprofin and ointments. Toys, pet supplies, baby items, socks, wool caps, reading glasses and VCR tapes are just a few of the other products on hand.

Irwin said about 70 percent of his stock are regular items. The other 30 percent are seasonal and close outs.

It's too early to tell if the business will be successful or not. Irwin said it'll all depend on developing loyal patrons.

"The only way we'll make it is by volume," he added.

For more information, call Dollar King at (810) 449-7030.

INPATIENT SERVICES

Emergency/Urgent Care

Our professional staff of board certified, emergency medicine physicians and nurses are on duty 24 hours a day, seven days a week to provide you with expert medical treatment and care. Minor injuries and illnesses are treated quickly in Botsford's Urgent Care Department.

Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation

This comprehensive program helps patients return to their maximum functional potential. Individual treatment plans are developed to meet each patient's specialized needs.

Geropsychiatric Services

Our 25-bed geropsychiatric unit is designed to meet the unique combinations of medical problems and mental health needs of the older adult.

Obstetrics

The Special Delivery Center at Botsford General Hospital offers a family-centered continuum of care. The center's Labor/Delivery/Recovery Rooms (LDR) are designed so mothers can go through the entire birthing process in a pleasant, home-like environment with easy access to the latest technology.

At Botsford, we continue to care for mother and newborn after both are home through a telephone hotline, a home nursing visit and a helpful handbook.

Pediatrics

Parental involvement is essential in a child's treatment and recovery. Parents are welcomed to stay with their child during hospitalization.

Critical Care

Acute, coronary and intensive care units are available for critically ill patients. These units are equipped with "state of the art" telemetry equipment and nurses specially trained in critical care.

OUTPATIENT SERVICES

Ambulatory Surgery

Outpatient Surgery is a convenient and safe option for many surgical procedures allowing you to go home the same day.

Cardiology Services

Botsford offers a full continuum of Cardiology Services. All outpatient Cardiology Services are coordinated with inpatient services. Cardiology Services include emergency care, including a chest pain clinic, cardiovascular risk reduction and management, rehabilitation, ambulatory care, and research.

Community Pharmacy

The pharmacy, located on the hospital campus, has a convenient drive-up window.

Botsford Center for Health Improvement

In addition, the center offers the community a complete range of health development and wellness programs, activities and custom work site programs.

What Is Durable Power Of Attorney For Health Care?

This is an important legal document that expresses wishes about your health care and appoints someone to speak for you if you become seriously ill or injured and cannot speak for yourself. The document that you sign naming this person and your wishes about health care becomes part of your medical record once it is signed and witnessed. You are not required to sign such a document, nor do you need a Durable Power of Attorney for Health Care to receive medical treatment at Botsford General Hospital.

Why Do You Need A Durable Power Of Attorney For Health Care?

Under the new Michigan law, it is your right to name someone to speak for you about your medical treatment in case you are unable to speak for yourself. A Durable Power of Attorney for Health Care document can protect your right to refuse medical care.

Such a legal document can help you protect your right to make medical choices that influence your life and the lives of your loved ones. It can protect your family from the stress and responsibility of having to make difficult choices about your medical care. It can even help your physician by providing specific guidelines for your care.

For More Information

If you'd like more information about establishing a Durable power of Attorney for Health Care, talk to your physician, attorney, or other appropriate person. If you would like a Durable Power of Attorney for Health Care form, please check the response box and provide your name and address on the enclosed reply card; or call the Botsford General Hospital Community Relations/Marketing Department at (810) 442-7986.

See us for energy efficient lighting!

Good news for our environment...

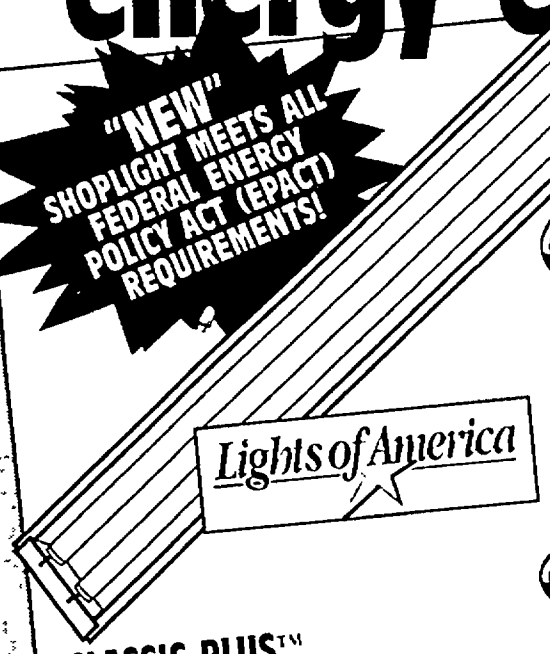

Many varieties of light bulbs have been improved
- to use less energy,
- increase light output, or
- improve color quality

(As required by the federal Energy Policy, Act, or EPACT).

When selecting the new bulbs, remember:
- replacing a standard 40 watt fluorescent tube with one of the new 34 watt energy efficient tubes could cause some inexpensive shop light fixtures to overheat and create a fire hazard.

It's probably a good idea to install fixtures that meet EPACT requirements.
