Board sets date for bond vote

Polling tentatively scheduled for Sept. 23

By ROBERT JACKSON
Staff Writer

Northville voters need to circle Sept. 23 on their calendars

That's the day Northville Public School District officials have tentatively scheduled to bring a $61 million bond issue and $1.9 million enhancement millage request before voters

The board unanimously approved the election date Monday. The date is considered tentative because it must be approved, along with the bond application, by the state Treasury Department

According to School District Superintendent Leonard Rezmiers ki, more than 60 districts are slated to hold bond elections in September, and he wanted the application to be posted early enough to assure the district's election date would be approved.

By state law the district can't hold a bond election within 30 days of a state or federal election. The state's primary election takes place in August and the general election in November, not leaving a large enough window of opportunity for the district to conduct a bond election.

"The date could still be changed, but there's not too many dates left available, so we are recommending the board approve Sept. 23 as our bond date," he said. "That way we're sure to have a date locked in."

The board also approved the bond language that will appear on the ballot. The language calls for the district to "borrow the sum of not to exceed $61,520,000 and issue general obligation unlimited tax bonds for the purpose of:

• erecting, furnishing and equipping a new high school building;

'96 grads check out final time

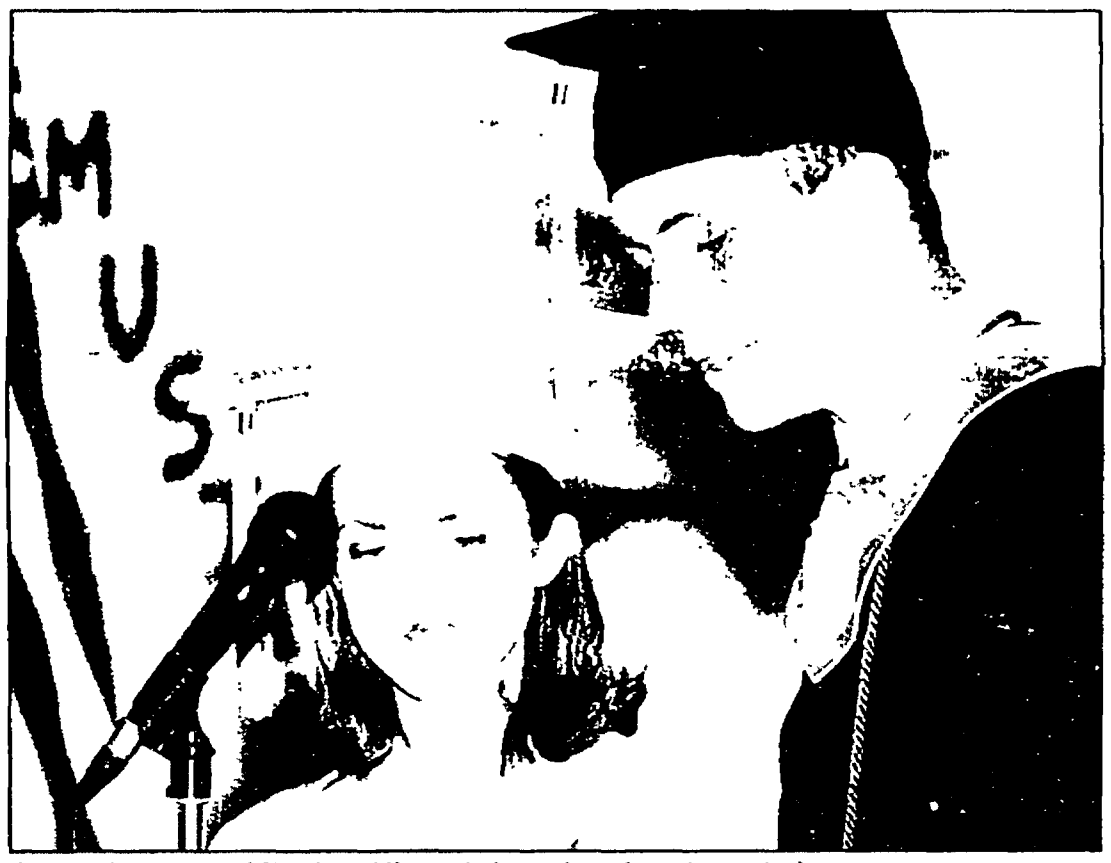
Mother Nature might not have been accommodating, but Northville High School's commencement ceremony went off without any problems Friday evening, according to high school officials.

Overnight thundershowers transformed the football field - where the ceremony was scheduled to take place - into a large puddle of mud and officials switched the ceremony's location to the high school gymnasium at the last moment, Northville High School Principal Dr. Tom Johnson said.

That meant school administrators, staff, and maintenance personnel were faced with preparing the gym and high school auditorium to accommodate more than 1,500 students and family in about five hours.

"[Assistant Principal] Dennis Colligan, the counseling staff, and maintenance personnel all did a fantastic job getting the school ready for the ceremony on such short notice," Johnson



Andrea Morrow and Matthew Minnard share the microphone during commencement.

School budget discussions open

By ROBERT JACKSON
Staff Writer

As the Northville Public School District prepares to enter its second budget year after the passage of state Proposal A, the financial waters are still rough and murky, according to the district's chief administrator.

With the uncertainty surrounding the district's per-pupil funding from the state, the district is taking a conservative line in preparing the budget for fiscal year 1996/97. District officials unveiled a proposed budget Monday, and according to the figures, revenues and spending will increase slightly.

The board will adopt the budget after a public hearing scheduled for June 24.

The proposed budget calls for the district to take in about $32-million in revenue - an increase of about 3 percent over last year - and spend about $31.9 million - also a 3 percent increase.

There are some interesting highlights in this year's budget:

• Salaries take up the majority of expenditures, totaling more than $20-million. That's 63 percent of proposed expenditures, and a 5.5 percent increase over the current fiscal year. Included in the salary expenditures are $7 million in fringe benefits.

• Elementary school salaries are being increased 7 percent to $6.4 million. Both middle schools' and high school salaries also increased by 7 percent to $4.1 million.

• The district's debt millage rate

Let the games begin for miniature olympians

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

Naw, not those boring Olympic games That's next month, way down yonder in Atlanta.

We're talking about the real human drama of athletic competition, the first-ever inter community Nursery School Olympics.

Moms and dads, you can still get your youngsters in on the Plymouth/Northville grudge match that's brewing. Munchkins from north and south of Five Mile will meet on June 21 in Gunsolly Mill on Hines Drive for a day of food, fun and friendly competition

What is the Nursery School Olympics? A grueling series of athletic events for crawlers to 5-year-olds It's not for the faint of diaper, so if you're not prepared for the rigors of what's ahead, better plan to stay home.

On the slate is the marshmallow shotput, miniature miniature golf, mom's guessing game, the diaper derby, the paper plate discus, checkerboard penny toss, toddler trot and the Big Wheel obstacle course.

Kids need to bring their own wheel, trike, bike or wagon for that last event, as well as for the afternoon's capper, a special red, white and blue parade that's open to everyone

If you're interested in having your child participate call Mindy Worden at the Northville Parks & Rec Department at 349 0203 by June 19

Northville's and Plymouth's rec departments are teaming up to offer the Olympics Giving an assist are the Michigan Recreation and Parks Association and the McDonald's restaurants on Six Mile in Northville Township Five Mile and

Turnout very low in uncontested district race

By ROBERT JACKSON
Staff Writer

The outcome was decided even before the first vote was cast in Monday's Northville Public School Board election.

Board Treasurer and incumbent Joan Wadsworth was reelected to her seat on the school board and Northville attorney Mike Poterala captured the second board seat vacated by Barbara Bennett, who chose not to seek reelection and will step down in July.

With neither race contested there was a tremendously low voter turnout, with less than one percent of the registered district voters casting ballots in the election. District officials say 188 votes out of a possible 26,000 were cast at the district's five precincts.

Wadsworth was the leading vote getter with 188, and Poterala received 166 votes. Five write-in votes were tallied.

Both candidates will be sworn in at the school board's organizational meeting July 8. Board officers will also be selected at that time.

Northville school board members serve four year terms and are not compensated for their service.

Compromise far away in county development

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

Tuesday night's discussion between Northville Township and Wayne County about developing the huge county parcel on the south side of town had a sort of Mission Impossible feel to it.

Specifically, you got the distinct impression that a fuse is lit and burning.

Wayne County administration officials this week submitted a Planned Unit Development (PUD) proposal outlining what they want to build on the sprawling 940 acre site that lies between Five and Six Mile and Beck Road and Hines Drive.

They like it but members of the township board of trustees don't and neither side seems willing to give. A pleasant compromise ending the stand off and maybe averting an outright board/county battle doesn't appear in the offing.

Instead, things are likely to heat up when the township planning commission considers the PUD 12 days from now on June 25.

The PUD agreement would be a signed contract allowing Wayne County to build things on the site not allowed under current zoning in return for its providing a "substantial benefit" to the community as judged by the board.

Ticket discount offered for golf outing

Summer is tee-off time and Northville-area enthusiasts can get into the swing of things at Tanglewood this month.

The Northville Community Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring its annual fund-raiser golf outing Thursday, June 27. In addition to a great day on the links, golfers will get lunch, dinner, refreshments and a shot at thousands of dollars in prize money.

Drawing on the summer games for a theme, the event is called the Northville Olympic Open Golf Outing.

Activities get under way at 10 a.m. with the complementary use of the driving range at the course on Ten Mile in South Lyon.

At noon, the action begins with a shotgun start to the 18-holes of play.

"The 'putt for cash' contest has a prize of $10,000," said Chamber Executive Director Laurie Marrs. "There are also four hole-in-one and four closest-to-the-pin contests.

"This is one of the best golf bargains for what you get," Marrs added. "Besides 18 holes, you get lunch and dinner, which includes a pig roast."

Sponsors are always needed. There are seven different levels of sponsorships, ranging from $100 to $2,000.

Correction

In the June 6 front page story regarding Mill Pond clean-up funds, it was incorrectly reported that matching funds for the grant would come from Parks and Recreation reserve funds. According to Parks and Recreation Director Traci Sincock the matching funds have not been identified and the department is seeking private donations.

The Northville Record regrets the error.

Local runner carries torch in ceremonial Olympic dash

By WENDY PIERMAN MITZEL
Staff Writer

When Larry Brandon of Novi called his good friend to get clearance to nominate him and another friend for a chance to carry the Olympic Torch in Michigan, he had no idea Randy Step would turn the tables on him.

Step, the owner of Running Fit in Northville, instead wrote to the committee to tell the story of his friend, Brandon, and his involvement the Leukemia Society of America.

"He said 'If you're going to nominate me, then I'm going to nominate you,'" explained Brandon.

Step must have been the better letter writer, said Brandon, because he soon received a letter telling him to get ready, get set and go.

Brandon, 55, carried the Olympic Flame through a portion of Detroit, Sunday. His family and friends were on hand to watch him run the five -eighths of a mile to pass the flame to another runner.

"The excitement really hit me when I got off the bus and there were police and fire engine sirens blaring and 500 to 600 people there," said Brandon. "It dawned on me that they're doing this for me."

Despite the slight drizzle the torch stayed lit and the people kept cheering. It's been 15 minutes of fame, he said.

"People were asking for my autograph and asking, 'Would you hold my kid,' and 'Would you hold my dog.'" Brandon explained. "My mother asked why and one woman said 'Lady, he's carrying the Olympic Torch. He's famous.'"

> "People were asking for my autograph and asking, 'Would you hold my kid,' and 'Would you hold my dog.'"
> –Larry Brandon
> Olympic torch carrier

Brandon was chosen along with 5,500 other volunteers to carry the flame in the Community Heroes program. He and the other Michigan "heroes" were also treated to a celebration dinner at the Fox Theater Friday night.

"I really was surprised," said Brandon. "I know I do a lot of work but there are a lot of people who do a lot."

Brandon is closely connected with the Leukemia Society and helps to organize as well as run in fund raiser marathons all over the country.

Step said Brandon's commitment is extraordinary.

"He's phenomenal," explained Step. "He's the greatest volunteer I've ever met. He's always the first person to volunteer for something."

Brandon runs his marathons in honor of two special people in his life who are afflicted with the cancer that creates an overproduction of white blood cells. A close friend has the disease as does a 12-year-old girl from Ann Arbor whom he has grown to care about deeply.

Recently he discovered she had fallen out of remission. "I couldn't talk for several days when I found out," said Brandon, who has two grown children of his own.

He said without the money the society raises the research would not be getting done and the treatments getting continuously more productive.

The Walled Lake insurance salesman never seems to stand still for very long, literally.

He is busy planning for fundraiser marathons in Honolulu in December and in two weeks he will head toward Anchorage for a Summer Solstice run.

"Carrying the torch for the Olympics is a very nice reward," said Brandon. "I'm still floating. It's kind of a neat honor."

Keeping true to his character, Brandon said he would be more than happy to accept donations to the Leukemia Society at P.O. Box 578, Walled Lake MI 48390.

Senate GOP gains thin win on court reform legislation

By TIM RICHARD
Staff Writer

Despite two defections, state Senate Republicans won a bare 19-18 victory on trial court reform and sent the bill back to the House for concurrence in amendments.

Big change: Detroit Recorder's Court isn't eliminated, but its state funding would be scaled down to zero over 10 years. Detroit and Wayne County could decide to fund it themselves or let the 139-year-old criminal court – the only one of its kind in Michigan – become part of Wayne Circuit Court.

"There were many reasons to vote no," said Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, who nevertheless voted yes on the June 6 roll call. "I got what I wanted – a change in the phase-out (originally at five years)."

But Geake said the race argument – that black Detroit candidates couldn't win in countywide races – "is absolutely not true." He cited William Lucas, who won races for sheriff and county executive; Teola Hunter, now county clerk; and six circuit judges, though some got on the bench by appointment.

Sen. Virgil Smith, D-Detroit, who led the opposition, emphasized decades of racial problems in an Us versus Them defense of Recorder's Court.

"Recorder's Court means a lot to us. A system was used against us ... We've earned Recorder's Court. We worked your farms. We built your factories with our sweat," he said.

Republicans hold a 21-16 edge in the Senate with one seat still vacant. Two outstate Republicans – John Schwarz of Battle Creek and Jon Cisky of Saginaw – voted no.

The thrust of the trial court reform movement – brewing for a decade – is simplifying the lines between circuit and probate courts. The Senate GOP version, crafted by Judiciary Chair William VanRegenmorter, R-Jenison, strips 90 percent of the probate court's duties, takes circuit court's divorce area, and combines them into a new "family division" of circuit court.

The reform movement wanted to eliminate Recorder's Court and assign its criminal caseload to circuit court – the same as in the other 82 counties.

Big issues in Democrats' minds were: 1) state support of Recorder's Court, and 2) the overall funding formula.

On the Recorder's Court issue, Rep. Gerald Law, R-Plymouth, a member of the House Judiciary Committee, told of the behind-the-scenes maneuvering in his chamber.

"We (Republican majority) offered them a deal: Recorder's Court would become the Detroit Criminal Division of Wayne Circuit Court. Same judges. Same criminal cases. Everything the same but the name.

"Ted Wallace (D-Detroit) took them the offer. They rejected it out of hand.

"We need Detroit votes to put the circuit-probate consolidation proposal on the ballot. We need a two-thirds vote to put it on the ballot (to amend the state constitution). But the Detroit sympathizers in the Democratic caucus would go with them (Detroiters).

"Detroit is relying on the chief justice (James Brickley, a Republican but a former Detroit councilman) to protect Recorder's Court," Law said.

Other Republicans agreed that Brickley stands between Recorder's Court and extinction.

VanRegenmorter said Recorder's Court could become part of Wayne Circuit Court if Detroit and Wayne County agree. "There would be 64 judges. We (the state) would pay for it.

Even the adults went ape during the Senior Class All-Night party, which followed commencement ceremonies last Friday. The bash carried a Hollywood theme this year, and one of Tinseltown's first families, the Flintstones, were on hand to help the Class of '96 have a yab-a-dab-a-doo time. Left, Dave Jerome (Barney), Andy Gennitti (Fred) and Jacquie Rundell (Wilma) show how much fun you can have when you visit another century. It was the 30th year for all-nighters at the high school, designed to provide a positive alternative to parties that offer seniors drug and alcohol celebrations.

said. "There were no complaints."

About 1,500 people attended the ceremony. The overflow was seated in the high school auditorium and watched the ceremony on closed circuit television.

"There were about 300 people in the auditorium and we did not receive any negative comments. It all just went together very well," Johnson said.

"On the whole, graduation worked out real well despite the fact that we had to have it indoors," Johnson added. "Given the circumstances the ceremony was a very positive one."

The high school graduated 280 seniors this year. During the ceremony, senior class President Katherine Johnson gave the welcoming address. Kajal Parikh, along with Mathew Minnard and Andrea Morrow, also provided remarks during the ceremony. Patrick McNeal, class historian, provided class introductions along with senior class Vice President Jamie Belanger.

Continental Cablevision was on hand to record the celebration, and plans to air the ceremony June 14 at 9 p.m., June 17 at 7 p.m., and June 20 at 5 p.m. All three presentations will be run on Channel 8.

After the ceremony students were encouraged to stay and enjoy the Senior All-Night Party, which was organized by high school parents wanting to provide a safe and fun environment for graduates. This was the 30th consecutive year the high school has sponsored the event.

According to Johnson, the all-night affair – which ended at 4 a.m. – keeps students safe and out of trouble.

"At this point in time when graduating seniors deserve to celebrate their accomplishments, parents and volunteers have provided an excellent environment that is drug and alcohol free," Johnson said. "It is an excellent concept, and one that students throughout the years have really enjoyed. I think the parents and volunteers need to be commended for giving the time and energy to put this program together.

"They did a wonderful job, and this year so many parents took part in putting this together, and they deserve a tremendous amount of credit for their effort," he added.

Education Notes

Schoolcraft College offers a rare opportunity for precollege piano students to experience master classes, build a concerto and chamber music repertoire at a young age and perform with a live professional orchestra.

The summer music school, which includes two programs, each lasting two weeks, is designed for piano students from late elementary age through high school.

Students are accepted after an audition and classes are limited to under 20.

Instructors are Donald Morelock, head of the Schoolcraft Piano Department and three-time recipient of national teaching awards; Eugene Bossart, Schoolcraft artist in residence and a nationally acknowledged expert in chamber music instruction; and Donna Borgert, adjunct professor at Schoolcraft and active musician throughout the metropolitan area.

The first session, solo piano and piano duets, is set for July 15-26. Classes are divided into morning and afternoon sections. On Mondays through Thursdays, the morning sections meet from 9 a.m. till noon and the afternoon sections meet from 1 till 4 p.m. On Fridays the sections combine and meet from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. This session emphasizes two-piano repertoire, sightreading, keyboard skills and music theory and history. Morelock and Borgert are the instructors.

Chamber music and piano concerto performance continues the following two weeks, July 29 through Aug. 9.

The fee for each two-week term is $245.

To schedule an audition or for information on scholarships, call Morelock at (313) 462-4400, ext. 5218. k

Meads students recognized at awards night

Lorianne Blair became the seventh student to be awarded the Jody Schwartz Memorial Award during Meads Mill Middle School's Honors Night.

The eighth grader received the $200 award Wednesday, and will use the money to attend a summer soccer camp at Michigan State University.

"She hopes the camp will help her acquire advance skills that will improve her playing ability and enhance her chances of becoming a member of the Northville High School Soccer Team," according to Meg Coponen, chairperson for the Jody Schwartz Scholarship.

Coponen said the award was created from donations by family and friends in memory of Jody Schwartz, who died suddenly in the summer of 1989 before her eighth grade year at Meads Mill. All eighth grade students were encouraged to apply for the award, she added.

Meads Mill also honored several other students this week for various English awards, according to English teacher Barbara Willoughby.

Joe Tracz walked away with the prestigious National Council Teacher of English Promising Young Writer Award.

Tracz has written several guest columns for The Northville Record. Eric Nadeau was the runner up for the award.

Willoughby added that Amanda Halash was notified this week that a poem she wrote, entitled "Then and Now," was published in the Midwest Edition of High School Writer, and another group of Meads Mill students were recently honored by the Veterans of Foreign War for essays on "My American Hero."

First place was won by Nicole Sprader, who will represent Northville in the upcoming VFW District competition.

Second place went to Steve Yutzy, and third place went to Joe Tracz.

Runners-up were Shalene Jha, Eric Connell, Amanda Halash, Heather Gillespie, Bryan Veres, Jessica Reece, Katie Last, Brian Wilson, Cathy Carwan, Kristen Muir, Cheryl Wilber, Osman Siddique, Jeanne Myers, Eric Nadeau, Amy Huguelet and Tracey Crawford.

Finally, the eighth grade poetry committee honored several eighth graders by publishing a book of their poetry. Recognized were Cathy Carwan, Heather Gillespie, T.J. Grech, Lauren Kozak, Nicole Sprader, Stefanie Nurmi, Sean Rossiter and Janel Hasse.

Budget plan reflects caution

will be reduced from 4.3 mills to 3.5 mills next year.

The debt millage decrease comes in the wake of a sale of a portion of district owned land on Six Mile Road to Cambridge Homes. This year the district received about $380,000 in principal and another $60,000 in interest from the sale. That $440,000 represents about 0.46 mill and leaves a principal balance of more than $880,000 or 0.93 mill worth of revenue.

The 3.5 debt millage, combined with 18 non-homestead mills and 6 mills levied by the state, total 27.5 mills.

With new legislation allowing "schools of choice" tossed into the equation, accurately predicting budget revenues could be considered a forecasting nightmare, according to District Superintendent Leonard Rezmierski.

"There are plenty of unknowns, and schools of choice could ultimately hurt this district," he said. "I would hope that our level of excellence would keep our students within the district, but there are no guarantees."

Schools of choice legislation allows parents to shop around for a school that meets the needs of their children, Rezmierski explained. The problem is simple – if parents remove their children from Northville schools the lower student population would mean reduced state funding.

"A parent could decide to remove a child from our district and place that child within another district, and the parent doesn't even have to notify us of the change," Rezmierski said. "That makes it difficult for us to accurately predict how much revenue we will be receiving from the state."

Despite those worries, the proposed budget calls for district enrollment figures to increase by about 163 students – to 4,673 – and the per-pupil state foundation amount to increase by $100 – to $6,803 per pupil. Under that assumption the district will receive a little more than $31-million from the state.

State funding is the largest revenue source for the district, making up 97 percent of the operating capital in the school district's general fund.

According to district Finance Director John Street, school enrollment, staffing, and state funding are still somewhat unsettled and will be monitored closely in the next few months.

"There will be necessary changes as the district approaches the opening of school and as legislation gets solidified," he said.

Along with enrollment questions, Street said the district may have to hire 14 additional teachers.

On a positive note, Street explained that the district should not have to borrow funds to meet cash flow demands.

"This has resulted from timely current year and catch up payments from Wayne County Special Education, the district's fund balance, and from regular payments from the State," he said. "The effect on the budget is to reduce interest expenses by $170,000."

School board Treasurer Joan Wadsworth said the proposed budget is solid and reflects responsible spending by district officials.

"We've taken a conservative approach, and I believe we have a good, solid budget document," she said. "We received plenty of input from parents and staff and I think we need to continue to study the trends in putting together a five-year plan."

September date eyed for bond vote

- erecting, furnishing and equipping additions to and partially remodeling, refurnishing and reequipping school buildings;
- acquiring and installing educational technology system improvements and purchasing school buses;
- developing and improving playgrounds, outdoor physical education and athletic facilities and sites;

Under state law, bond proceeds cannot be used for maintenance costs, teacher, administrator or employee salaries, fringe benefits or other operating systems."

The district's construction consulting firm of Fanning & Howie developed the bond proposal and application.

The bond push comes after two years of painstaking research by various citizens committees, and Rezmierski said it is time for the district to move ahead for the future of Northville's children.

"We've studied this issue all that we can, and now we need to act, we need to set the direction for the future of the high school and the district," he said.

In order for the district to take advantage of the last year of allowable enhancement millage, voter approval must be obtained before October. The enhancement millage is a one-time-only levy allowable under Proposal A, which altered school funding in 1994. There is only one year left on enhancement millage availability.

According to a district-proposed bond cost summary, $48 million will be spent on the construction of the new high school facility. The conversion of the current high school and other school upgrades have been estimated at $11 million, with an additional $5.2 million in technology upgrade costs.

The total package will cost taxpayers $61 million, an estimated increase of 2.35 mills.

> "We've studied this issue all that we can, and now we need to act, we need to set the direction for the future of the high school and the district."
> –Leonard Rezmierski
> School superintendent

The enhancement millage will increase the millage rate by 1.95 mills and will bring $1.9 million to the district. Rezmierski said the funds will be used to support personnel costs that will aid in the implementation of district technology over a five year period. After one year, the 1.95 mills will continue to be assessed but the revenue generated will be collected by the county intermediate districts for general distribution.

The life of the bond will last somewhere between 20 and 30 years, depending on market conditions, Rezmierski added.

School voters favorable to requests around region

By ROBERT JACKSON
Staff Writer

Northville Public School officials might have been interested in more than their own school board election Monday.

There were 19 other school districts in Wayne and Oakland County that were holding bond and millage elections, along with school board races, and 17 of those spending issues were approved by voters.

Most of the spending issues were for amounts much lower than the $61-million bond questions the Northville district will be bringing before voters in September, but for the most part the various community electorates provided a favorable response to funding requests.

Some highlights include:

- Grosse Ile – voters approved a $20.6 million bond for building and furnishings and a $3.3 million bond for air conditioning, but turned down a 2.7 million bond request for a new swimming pool.
- Harper Woods – voters approved a $4.25 million bond to refurbish buildings and acquire new technology.
- Van Buren – voters turned down a $40 million bond request for the construction of a new elementary school, defeated a $6 million bond request for new computers, defeated a $2.25 million bond request for new buses, and turned down a 1.4 mill increase.
- Avondale – voters approved a $35.5 million bond for the construction of a new elementary school.
- Huron Valley – voters approved a $51 million bond for the construction of a new elementary school.
- Madison – voters narrowly approved a 3-mill enhancement for one year.

Northville's $61 million request represents the biggest single bond issue in the school district's history, and will allow the district to build a new high school, convert the old high school into a middle school, and provide technology upgrades to all district schools.

Trustees do low boil over county land

The entire 940-acre parcel is currently zoned for residential development, mostly R-2 and R-3 size single family homes. County officials say they'd prefer to develop the land using the PUD design, which calls for a broader mix of residential housing types such as condos, single family homes, apartments and senior housing as well as a golf course.

Non-residential uses are planned for some areas of the parcel also, such as an expansion of OIS and land for R&D businesses and a commercial shopping center.

County representatives told the board that the PUD offers a number of benefits to the township that a conventional zoning plan does not. Some of those include accelerating the demolition of the abandoned buildings on the property and the paving of Six Mile between Sheldon and Beck.

Several members of the board strenuously disagreed, however. Some trustees said that several of the "benefits" were just things that the county was supposed to have done a long time ago, while others are not worth much.

Moreover, members of the board repeated a concern they've voiced before. They feel that their needs and wants in a PUD, items they see as necessary to ensure that the development gels with what's in the township now, have simply been ignored.

"I don't see a substantial benefit here over the current zoning," Trustee Gini Britton said. "You're not listening to anything we say for months and months. You keep coming back with the same problems."

"The only reason that land is so valuable is because this community has worked for years and years to become what it is," Clerk Sue Hillebrand said. "I'm concerned that you haven't addressed any of the issues we've raised about making sure this property continues that."

Britton raised the possibility that the township could issue hazard citations to the county for the collection of abandoned buildings on the property.

County representative Mike Prochaska disagreed with the board's comments.

"We are good citizens," he said. "I think we all need to be reasonable and compromise a little bit."

"We've looking forward to having a whole lot of people come on out," Worden said.

High school ensemble performs well

The girls ensemble of the Northville High School choral music program made an impressive showing at the State Choral Festival at Jackson Community College on May 1. The girls received straight one ratings, the highest given for performance.

The choir is composed of 44 girls in grades nine through 12 and performs at Northville High School choir concerts and in competitions throughout the state.

Residential mailbox destroyed with explosives

Someone blew up a Banbury Road homeowner's mailbox early Saturday morning, Northville Township police report.

The homeowner, a 42-year-old woman, told the reporting officers in the case she didn't hear the explosion, which occurred at about 4:30 a.m. on June 8. A neighbor did, however, finding the destroyed mailbox blown off its stand. The neighbor tried to contact the woman to return it, but couldn't reach her. He later gave it to an officer when questioned about the blast.

The end cap of the pipe bomb was found in the area as was the door to the mailbox – in the front yard of the woman's neighbor across the street.

RITALIN ROBBER: A 42-year-old Northville man was arrested for larceny at Our Lady of Victory School May 24.

According to police the man, who works as the afternoon janitor at the school, was caught red handed on videotape, taking students Ritalin from a desk in the school office. He confessed of his crime when confronted by police.

OLV Principal Linda Jackson reported that Ritalin had been mysteriously disappearing since December, and that the suspect was one of a few people who had keys to the office.

Jackson reported her suspicions to Northville police who, with the help of Northville Township police officials, set up surveillance cameras in the office in attempts to catch the suspect on videotape.

The suspect's arraignment has been set for July 21 at 35th District Court.

POSSIBLE DRUG CHARGES: Three Northville High School students could face possible drug charges in connection with an incident at the high school June 5.

According to Northville Police the high school hall monitor reported the three teens, aged 15-17, were acting suspiciously in the hallway, and when confronted by school officials were caught with a Ban Deodorant container that contained two small bags of marijuana.

School officials contacted Northville police and the three youths were questioned by school officials with police officers present.

The three were immediately given five-day suspensions. Police report that no charges have been filed but an investigation into the incident is ongoing.

VANDALS: A WindRidge Drive homeowner was the victim of vandals sometime between May 31 and June 3.

WITNESS DOESN'T ACT: A Jamestown Circle man's home was broken into in broad daylight as a neighbor watched last week.

The man, 68, told township police on June 4 that he left his residence at 1:45 p.m. and returned at about 3:50 p.m. to find the front door kicked in. However, nothing was missing, the man said.

A neighbor questioned by officers said she saw a white male juvenile kicking in the door but went back inside her home "and didn't think to call anyone," according to police reports.

The juvenile is described as having short sandy-colored hair, standing about six feet tall and weighing about 125 pounds. He was reportedly wearing a white T-shirt, tan shorts, white tennis shoes and a baseball-type cap while beating the door down.The door was damaged to the tune of $200.

FISHING GEAR TAKEN: An Innsbrook apartments woman's pickup truck containing more than $600 worth of fishing equipment was the target of thieves last week.

The woman, 21, reported to township police that unknown persons took several items out of the bed of her 1995 Ford Ranger during the night of June 1-2. No damage was done to the pickup. Missing are a fishing rod, reels, a tackle box and a "fish finder.

"MUSTANG DRIVEN OFF: A resident of the Northridge complex off Seven Mile Road lost his Ford Mustang to car thieves last week.

The man, 36, told township police on June 6 that his car was taken sometime within the last two days.

A check of the local law enforcement computer network revealed that Detroit police had impounded the Mustang – or what was left of it – on the afternoon of Wednesday, June 5.

Detroit officers found the $25,000 vehicle in bad shape: its steering column and passenger side door lock had been damaged and its air bags, stereo, tires and wheels were missing.

If you have any information about these or any other illegal activities you can contact Northville City police at 349-1234 or Northville Township police at 349-9400.

Police remind students about legal penalties

Each summer the police department responds to an increase in crimes and law violations committed by juveniles and young adults. Some of these violations are due to the fact that students may not be aware of the law or the consequences for violating them.

SMOKING

It is illegal to use or possess tobacco products if you are under the age of 18.

PENALTIES

Under the age of 17, misdemeanor – appearance with parent(s) in Juvenile Court.

Seventeen years of age, misdemeanor – maximum penalty of a $100 fine and/or 90 days in jail.

DRINKING (ALCOHOL)

It is illegal for anyone under the age of 21 to use or possess alcoholic beverages.

PENALTIES

Under 17, misdemeanor – appearance with parent(s) in Juvenile Court.

Seventeen to 21 years of age, misdemeanor – maximum of a $100 fine and/or 90 days in jail.

DRUGS/NARCOTICS

It is illegal to use or possess any drug or narcotic that has not been prescribed for use for that person by a licensed doctor.

PENALTIES

Violations are either misdemeanors or felonies depending on the type of drug/narcotic or the amount of the drug or narcotic in possession.

VANDALISM

It is illegal to vandalize or destroy the property of another person. Spray painting or writing graffiti are considered acts of vandalism.

PENALTIES

Under the age of 17, misdemeanor – appearance with parent(s) in Juvenile Court. Court can order the guilty person to pay for the damages.

Seventeen years of age and older, misdemeanor – maximum of a $100 fine and/or 90 days in jail. Court can further order all damages to be paid.

CURFEW

Minors under the age of 12 cannot be out without a parent or guardian between the hours of 10 p.m. and 6 a.m.

Minors between the ages of 12 and 15 cannot be out without a parent or guardian between the hours of midnight and 6 a.m.

PENALTIES

TRESPASSING

Trespassing is the act of going onto someone's property without the owner's permission. For instance, going in an empty house or one that is being built is against the law.

PENALTIES

Under 17, misdemeanor – appearance with parent(s) in Juvenile Court.

Seventeen and older, misdemeanor – maximum of a $100 fine and/or 90 days in jail.

AIR GUNS/SLING SHOTS

It is illegal for anyone under the age of 18 to have in his or her possession any air gun, pellet gun or sling shot unless accompanied by a parent.

PENALTIES

Under 17, misdemeanor – appearance with parent(s) in Juvenile Court. Gun or sling shot will be confiscated.

Seventeen years of age, misdemeanor – maximum of a $100 fine and/or 90 days in jail. Gun or sling shot will be confiscated.

ROLLER SKATES, ROLLER BLADES, SKATEBOARDS

Whenever a person is roller skating, roller blading or skateboarding on a sidewalk that person shall yield the right-of-way to any pedestrians.

It is unlawful to roller skate, roller blade or skateboard on any bench, table, planter, stairs or retaining wall or other structure which is not intended for pedestrian or vehicle traffic.

It is unlawful to roller skate, roller blade or skateboard where signs have been erected prohibiting such activity.

No person shall roller skate, roller blade or skateboard on any private property unless that person has first obtained written permission.

Under the Uniform Traffic Code it is illegal to roller skate, roller blade or skateboard on any public highway or street.

PENALTIES

Under 17, misdemeanor – appearance with parent(s) in Juvenile Court.

Seventeen or older, misdemeanor – maximum of a $100 fine and/or 90 days in jail.

HOST PARTY

It is illegal for anyone to have an open party and allow alcoholic beverages to be served and consumed by underage persons (under 21).

PENALTIES

For first violation, misdemeanor – maximum of a $500 fine and/or 30 days in jail.

For subsequent violations, misdemeanor – maximum fine of $500 and/or 90 days in jail.

4th committee works on plans for July bash

Celebrate Northville, the not-for-profit organization responsible for coordinating the festivities for Independence Day, is planning a full day of special activities for Thursday, July 4.

The Northville Fourth of July parade tradition is more than 125 years old. This year the parade begins at 10 a.m. More than 10,000 people attended last year's parade.

Following the parade, traditional activities will take place at Mill Race Historical Village. Simultaneously, across the street, Celebrate Northville will hold its second annual car show featuring classic cars at the R&D Enterprises building (formerly the Ford Valve Plant). This year's theme commemorates the entire 100-year history of the automobile, and show-grade cars 25-years-old and older are welcome. The cars will be displayed at Griswold and Main Street.

A second annual pre-fireworks concert is planned at the Beck Road Community Park featuring patriotic music. The day will end with the Northville fireworks show at dusk, again displayed by the Zambelli Fireworks Co. (the company that does the J.L. Hudson fireworks display in Detroit).

The show takes place on the grounds of the BFI resource management center, Six Mile and Napier roads. Last year more than 40,000 people enjoyed the return of the fireworks show.

Karen Woodside, chairperson of Celebrate Northville, the committee that's organizing the day-long series of activities, says there's no shortage of tasks people can help out with.

"We still need volunteers to work the day of the parade. And we're still a couple thousand dollars short of our goal."

Both Northville city and Northville Township donated $2,000 to Celebrate Northville, and several companies have helped out with contributions.

Some of the performers require payment to participate in the parade, while individual entrants are asked to pay an optional $25 entry fee.

According to Woodside, several marching bands have agreed to take part in the parade and Meijer will give away a bicycle to the best entry in the bicycle contingent.

Celebrities from Detroit radio and television will ride in the parade. Cynthia Canty from WKBD-TV, Jimmy Barrett from radio station WJR and local weatherman Jim Madus have all accepted invitations to the parade.

Inquiries may be directed to him at 349-6656.

Northville centenarian Bill Klope will also ride through the parade route.

The Schoolcraft College Wind Ensemble and local rock group Baked Potato will perform at Beck Road Community Park during the afternoon, prior to the evening's spectacular fireworks show.

Civil War reenactors will again make an appearance at Mill Race Village, and all buildings will be open for touring.

A farm breakfast at the Masonic Temple in downtown Northville will precede the events that morning.

Sponsors of the major events include BFI (fireworks), Wooly Bully's (car show) and Continental Cablevision (concerts).

Celebrate Northville is always looking for volunteers and financial donors. Its next meeting will be held on Wednesday, June 26, at Northville City Hall, 215 W. Main, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

For more information contact Karen Woodside, chairperson, at (810) 347-1919.

Annual Art in Sun function approaches

Art, food and entertainment will all be available at the annual Art in the Sun event in Northville June 22-23. The city will come alive the tastes, sights and sounds of summer during the two-day activity.

During the weekend, the streets of the city will be closed to traffic but open to a brilliant display of arts and crafts. More than 130 exhibitors from Michigan and surrounding states will participate in the juried show.

According to Northville Community Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Laurie Marrs, fine arts booths will be set up on Main Street, while arts and crafts exhibitors will display on Center.

Plenty of tempting food will be available, with service clubs and non-profit organizations selling sausage sandwiches, hot dogs, wing dings, caramel apples, flurries and ice cream treats.

The Rotary Club, Papa Romano's, St. Paul's Church, the Northville Moose Lodge and others will provide the food.

The Early Bird Kiwanis Club will offer a pancake breakfast from 7-11 a.m. Saturday, June 22, on the street in front of the downtown bandshell.

Marrs added that many downtown stores will feature special sales to coincide with the event.

Art in the Sun hours are 10 a.m.-5 p.m. Saturday, June 22, and 11 a.m.-6 p.m. Sunday, June 23.

Special election dates named

By JAN JEFFRES
Staff Writer

Vote twice for the candidate of your choice.

For once it's legal.

On June 7, Gov. John Engler called for an Aug. 6 primary for the 38th District State House of Representatives seat and a Nov. 5 special election.

With Willis Bullard promoted by voters on June 4 to the state senate, the remainder of his term, which runs until January 1997, needs to be filled.

By asking Secretary of State Candice Miller to schedule the special primary and election on the same dates as the general primary and election, Engler avoids the furor created in local communities this spring after State Senator David Honigman, R-West Bloomfield, resigned. City clerks of municipalities throughout the district estimated that the special election and primary cost a grand total of about $500,000.

Here's how it will all work. If more than one Republican or one Democrat files by the June 14 deadline for the special election, that will trigger the August special primary.

For the general election primary on Aug. 6, Northville resident Chris Bachelder, Novi resident Craig DeRoche and Novi City Council Member Nancy Cassis are already seeking the Republican nomination for the two-year term which begins in January 1997.

If all three Republicans also jump into the special election, voters will have to indicate the candidate of their choice twice, once for the few months remaining in Bullard's term and once for the new term.

To date, one Democrat is in the running for the general election, Gary Johnson of Milford.

And it's theoretically possible that someone who has a yen to serve in Lansing only for November and December 1996 could also enter the special election.

Body Decor

Story by Robert Jackson
Photography by Bryan Mitchell

Foreign exchange student Axel Vonfreyhov, of Spain, picked up quite a bit about America during his year stay in Northville – some of which his parents really aren't going to appreciate.

Take the eyebrow-ring for instance.

"I had never considered getting my eyebrow pierced until I came to America, but I figured that since my family was far away, I had the liberty to experience something that a lot of American's do," Vonfreyhov said.

Vonfreyhov is right, thousands of people are into body piercing these days. Not surprisingly, a good majority are teenagers, like Vonfreyhov's friend Melissa Michaelis, a Northville High School senior. Michaelis sports a nose ring, and said she got into body decor because it represents a change.

"I've always wanted (a nose ring) because I thought it would be cool, and represents my rebellious nature," she explained. "It's not a status thing with me. I wouldn't have gotten my nose pierced if my friends did. It sort of makes me unique."

Both Vonfreyhov and Michaelis agreed that the piercing hurt a bit. "It didn't really hurt all that bad," Michaelis said. "But after it was done I didn't say to myself, 'hey lets do that again,' either."

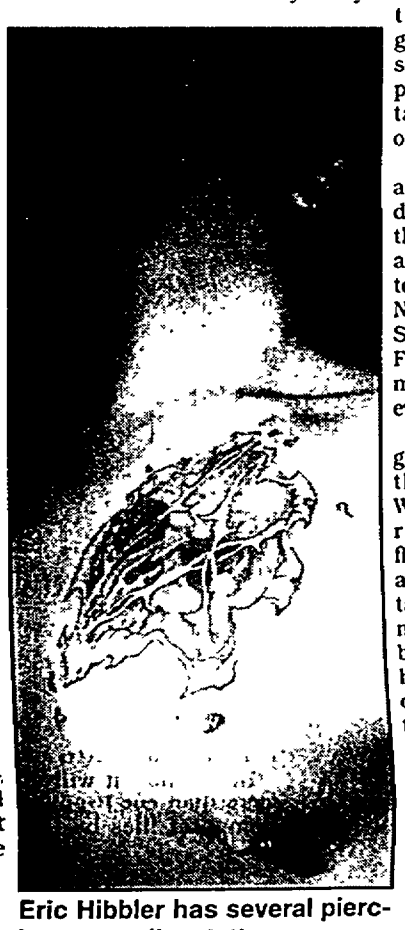
"I didn't think it hurt that much, but I did get a bit dizzy afterwards," Vonfreyhov said.

What did their parents say about this empowering experience?

"My dad wasn't pleased at all when I called and told him," Vonfreyhov said with a snicker. "He told me that he'd jump on the next plane and bring me home to Spain if I didn't take the eyebrow-ring out.

"So I told him that I would take it out, and I plan on removing it before I head home next week," he added.

Michaelis said her parents felt about the same way. "They weren't too happy and they really don't like it," explained the 18-year-old. "I guess they understand though. I'm planning on getting a tattoo when I move out of the house."



Eric Hibbler has several piercings as well as tattoos.

Tattoos – yet another form of body decor enjoyed by thousands of people, and according to tattoo artist and former Northville High School student Adam Forman, tattoos are more popular then ever.

"Tattoos are a bigger business than they used to be. We're experiencing a renaissance in the field and quite a few artists are becoming tattoo artists," Forman said. "That's because technology has improved the quality and safety of tattoos."

Tyrone Wilkins, who recently got his fifth tattoo for his birthday, said he likes the decorative nature of the art.

"People have spent thousands of years trying different ways to decorate their bodies so having a tattoo, or several tattoos, is a personal way of decorating the body," he said. "It's only natural that in this day and age, with the technology we have, that more people are getting into tattoo art.

"I know that some people think it's strange or freakish but tattoos or body piercing is just as natural as someone putting on make-up or wearing jewelry," he added. "All of it is just a personal expression."

Transportation officials to take feedback on busy interchange

By JAN JEFFRES
Staff Writer

Drivers who don't relish maneuvering the Beck Road and Wixom Road I-96 interchanges may be interested in braking for this get-together.

On June 27, the Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) is inviting residents to voice their opinions of potential reconstructions of the two 1950s era on-and-off ramps.

MDOT Project Development Engineer Norm Kieliszewski said the department has concepts for the interchanges, but nothing as evolved as an actual design. The new Beck interchange is expected to cost $23 million and the Wixom interchange $21.5 million, with the state aiming to seek 80 percent of the costs from the Federal Highway Administration.

When this will all happen is not yet determined.

"We only have money for the environmental process," Kieliszewski said.

"One of the problems is the Michigan financial situation regarding the gas tax. We have so many projects clamoring for money."

An upgrade of the Beck Road interchange is far from an unwelcome prospect for Novi. The city has spearheaded a task force of both local government officials and businesses – including Mission Health's Providence Park-Novi – which has been working to raise money within the private sector to acquire rights-of-way for the new interchange.

Finding non-public money to build public roads is becoming more common.

"Private sector funding more and more is becoming the norm because of the financial constraints the department faces," Kieliszewski said.

"I guess they consider it paying for what they receive, which is refreshing."

Along with the state, the two cities and the Oakland County Road Commission are hosting the session. While this is not a formal public hearing, citizen input is sought as MDOT works on the environmental assessment of the projects. That is expected to be completed by the end of 1997. Approval of the study is then needed from the Federal Highway Administration.

Environmental studies of the projects go back to 1968, when the state began researching how well the interchanges function, Kieliszewski said. The two were built in 1957.

"The original (1968) recommendation we had on the Beck Road interchange was to close it. At that time, it just didn't have the traffic it now does," he added.

Wixom and Novi and the road commission are planning future improvements to Beck and Wixom roads and Grand River Avenue between the two roads. All of the government agencies are planning to coordinate the construction to be done in the area.

"What we want to do is answer and listen to people, concerns. At this time, nothing has been decided.

"We have an idea of what will work, we also need to hear from the people who live in the area and drive through there and what their concerns are," Kieliszewski explained.

The June 27 open house meeting is at 3:30 p.m. to 6 p.m. and 7 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. at the Novi Expo Center's Adell Hall.

Garden experts get plum assignment at U.S. Open

Brickscape owner Joe DiRado designed a flower and brick creation for Oakland Hills Country club.

Brickscape Gardens was selected as the sole provider to install the impressive brick, flower and shrub designs for the U.S. Open golf tournament at Oakland Hills Country Club in Bloomfield Township.

Owner Joe DiRado and Brickscape Gardens were named for the job largely because of their outstanding work over the past three years for the Senior Players Tournament at the Tournament Players club in Dearborn.

Under the personal supervision of DiRado, a team of eight patio and garden workers are devoting over 1,700 hours to installing and clearing the display.

They will install 1,500 extra-large hanging and ground pots of flowers, 3,000 geraniums, 6,000 garden wall paver bricks, 500 feet of edging, 3,000 cubic feet of mulch, 150 evergreens and tons of decorative stone.

"We are proud to handle this prestigious installation, because the eyes of the golfing and media world will be on our work," DiRado said.

In business only 10 years, Joe and Diane DiRado have built their company into one of the country's largest designers and installers of brick paving.

A putting contest is planned in conjunction with the golf tournament on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, June 14-16. Prizes include tickets to the U.S. Open and genuine U.S. Open souvenir merchandise.

A division for those ages 10 and under offers special prizes for children.

Putting hours at the store are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. all three days. The winner of Friday's contest will receive tickets to Saturday's round, and Saturday's winner will get a pair of tickets to Sunday's match. Sunday's putting contest champion will receive merchandise.

The drawing for prizes among all successful putters will be held at 5 p.m. Sunday. Winners need not to be present to win. For more information, call Brickscape Gardens at (810) 348-2500.

NORTHVILLE BUSINESSSCENE

Residents have a chance to take their garage sales to downtown Northville this summer.

The Northville Central Business Association has decided to expand its annual sidewalk sale this year to include individual sellers in addition to merchants.

"People can rent a sidewalk space and sell anything they would sell at a garage sale," said event chairperson Lorie Wyant of Salutations. "We're calling it a 'Bargain Bazaar,' and everyone's welcome to join in."

According to Wyant, Northville merchants will mark down their merchandise and display it on the sidewalk as in past sidewalk sales. But this year anyone who wants can set up a table and take advantage of all the downtown traffic.

The sale area will include Main Street between Hutton and Wing, and Center between Dunlap and Cady.

The event is scheduled for 8 a.m.-6 p.m. Saturday, July 27. Spaces approximately 8-feet-by-10 feet will cost $15. Available is on a first-come, first-served basis.

Call Wyant at 349-3537 for information.

Internationally recognized jewelry designer Patricia Daunis will make a personal guest appearance at Orin Jewelers on June 21 and 22.

Daunis is an award winning author and consultant who gives people pointers on the best ways of accessorizing with jewelry.

"For instance, is she tall or short, slight or large framed?" Daunis asks. "What colors is she wearing? Is she formal or understated? From these observations, my customer and I choose the pieces of jewelry that suit her lifestyle."

Orin is located at 101 E. Main.

'Partial birth' abortions banned

By TIM RICHARD
Staff Writer

Capital summary:

The state Senate on a 28-8 vote followed the House's lead by adopting a bill to ban so-called "partial-birth" abortions.

"The bill has more to do with politics than policy," objected Sen. Gary Peters, D-Bloomfield Township. Peters offered an amendment which contained a medical definition that was more narrowly crafted, but it was voted down.

Sen. Dianne Byrum, D-Onondaga, opposed the bill saying "it has never been done in Michigan."

"How do you know?" demanded Sen. Joe Gougeon, R-Bay City, the bill's floor manager. "There are no reports. The statistics aren't sent in."

Area senators voting yes included all Republicans.

SAME-SEX BAN

The Senate completed work on a two-bill package proscribing same-sex marriages. It approved, 31-2, a House bill by Rep. Deborah Whyman, R-Canton, under which Michigan would refuse to recognize same-sex marriages performed in other states.

Sen. Alma Wheeler Smith, D-Salem, was the only area lawmaker dissenting.

Whyman sees the package as a "pre-emptive" strike against Hawaii, which is expected to allow such marriages. Without her bill, Michigan might be forced to recognize them. Smith, however, argues the Whyman bill violates a section of the U.S. Constitution requiring states to give "full faith and credit" to each other's laws.

BELTS SECONDARY

The Senate passed its version of a speed-limit law after rejecting a hotly-debated seatbelt amendment.

Senators rejected, 8-25, an amendment making failure to use seat belts a "primary" offense. Since Michigan passed its seatbelt law a decade ago a police officer may issue a no-seatbelt ticket only after stopping a driver for another reason.

"Every one of you has lost constituents due to not wearing seat belts," said Sen. Joel Gougeon, R-Bay City, sponsor of the amendment. "Secondary enforcement has given us 65-69 percent compliance. California (which has primary enforcement) has shown we can have additional success."

Sen. Michael Bouchard, R-Birmingham, opposed the amendment. "I was a fatal accident investigator for a number of years," said the former police officer. "But the tools are there now. They (police) can stop you for anything now. How far do we go to protect people from themselves? We don't need to engender this hostility from the public."

Favoring the seatbelt amendment was Robert Geake, R-Northville.

Gougeon sought to attach the seatbelt provision to House Bill 5123 (S-4), which would raise speed limits on freeways. The Senate passed the bill and sent it back to the House, which concurred in amendments. As enacted, the bill:

- Sets a general maximum speed limit of 65 mph.
- Allows the state Department of Transportation to designate 170 miles of freeway on which the limit would be less than 65.
- Provides for five to seven test zones for speed limits of 70. Tests are to be completed by Nov. 15.
- Doubles fines for moving violations in construction and school zones. In 1994, Michigan recorded nearly 6,000 crashes in construction zones. State police issued 1,427 moving violations; local police, an undetermined number.
- Allows courts a freer hand in reducing damage awards where a plaintiff failed to wear a seat belt. Currently, courts may reduce awards by just 5 percent for not wearing a seat belt.

Every new speed posting will cost MDOT $200 for an overlay. Movable signs in construction zones cost $80 apiece, according to the Senate Fiscal Agency.

WRAPPED UP

Lawmakers were largely done with budget bills and hot agenda items by the first week of June, a month earlier than in most years.

The new Republican leaders took credit for moving in a more orderly way through the pile of bills. "As of June 3, Gov. Engler had signed 228 bills into law, and there are another 61 pieces of legislation either on his desk or headed his way," said House Speaker Paul Hillegonds, R-Holland.

In past years, Democratic tactics had been to build a logjam of bills that were settled in marathon sessions bumping up against the Fourth of July holiday.

Lobbia to chair arts fest

John E. Lobbia, chairman and chief executive officer of Detroit Edison, will serve as chairman of the 10th annual Detroit Festival of the Arts.

Scheduled for Sept. 20-22, the festival will feature more than 500 visual and performing artists, including stage and street performers. Also included will be a children's fair, festival of banners, poetry festival, vintage auto parade, sand sculpture, a coffee house with live entertainment and international food booths.

"We are pleased that John Lobbia and Detroit Edison have agreed to lead the 1996 festival," said Arthur L. Johnson, president emeritus of the University Cultural Center Association, which coordinates the festival.

Lobbia was elected president and chief operating officer of Detroit Edison in 1988 and became chairman two years later.

Kids name, design logo for playscape

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

On a sunny day about 30 years from now three Northville kids will take their own children to play in a park they had a hand in creating "way back when," in 1996.

Jacob McClory and Morgan and Jarrod Daul have carved out their own little niche in Northville history. Pretty good for a trio whose combined age is just 20.

Jacob, Morgan and Jarrod last week won two contests put on last month by the Northville Community Playscape Committee. Jacob, 8, penned the winning design in the "design a playscape logo" contest, while the Dauls came up with the name the playscape will one day bear: "Ft. Griswold."

The committee is working to bring one of the unique playscapes to Northville's Ford Field. Natural materials like wood are used in abundance. It's going to be paid for with community donations and built by volunteers.

In May the playscape committee held two contests open to all kids in Northville.

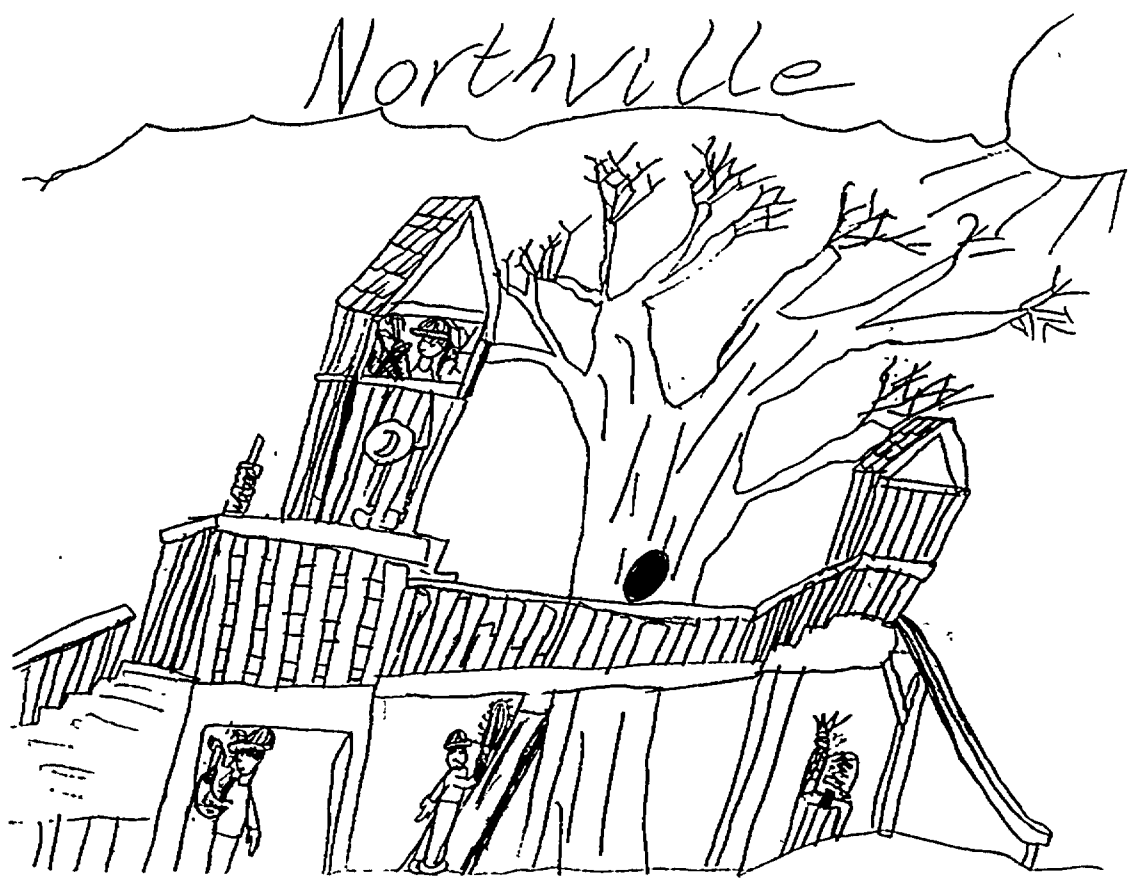
The object: find a name for the playscape and a logo design that will be emblazoned on the T-shirts, water bottles and other items that will be sold to raise the necessary funds.

Coming out on top of the 70 names entered was the choice of Jarrod, 6, and Morgan, 8. Both go to Winchester Elementary. He's in kindergarten and she's a second grader. They christened the project "Ft. Griswold" because it will sit off nearby Griswold Avenue.

Jacob's sketch of people working to build the playscape beat out 20 other entries and will be seen all over Northville on everything from T-shirts to water bottles. An avid artist, Jacob, another Winchester second grader, said he's always liked to draw.

Besides the pride of seeing their creations come to life, each of the three will receive a free sundae a week from Custard Time, courtesy of owners Jim Roth and Ron Miller.

If you'd like to learn more about the playscape or want to volunteer your time for the project give Tanya Bartello a call at 420-3047 or Cindy Buckley at 347-0605.



This drawing by 8-year-old Jacob McClory will be used as the official logo of the Northville playscape. The design will be emblazoned on T-shirts, water bottles and other objects.

Discussion continues over sport center

By WENDY PIERMAN MITZEL
Staff Writer

To say they were a little miffed is putting it mildly.

Novi Planning Commissioners were not unwilling to express their hurt feelings, June 5, just days after the Novi City Council directed them to schedule a public hearing against their better judgment.

"It's not necessary to ram this rec ordinance down our throats leaving the door open for ... ooohh ... it's just not worth the headache," said a frustrated Jacque Hodges.

"I'm very disgusted in the city council and in my city government. We didn't do anything out of the ordinary," she added.

The commission had discussed a new recreation ordinance at a May 29 special meeting, deciding a public hearing was premature and the ordinance needed further study. But the next week, City Manager Ed Kriewall, who had watched the commission meeting on cable, asked the council to approve a resolution directing the commission to hold a public hearing.

"In this particular issue I think it's wrong to study it to death," said Kriewall.

Before any ordinance change, the commission must hold a public hearing. And the city wants that done fast. A sports club is interested in coming into Novi at the Meyer Berry Farm property on Eight Mile near Beck Road. The club and the city could form a private/public partnership to bring additional recreational facilities to Novi.

But Kriewall said the process has to move faster. The city doesn't want to lose this opportunity, he said.

At least Kriewall had the honesty to be clear about the reason for the ordinance, said Commissioner Glen Bonaventura. But he asked: "Is there anything wrong with writing an ordinance for a specific site? I don't know."

"There are frequently text revisions in ordinances that are drafted sometimes with a unique district or project in mind," explained Dennis Watson, assistant city attorney.

Many commissioners said they felt they weren't given a chance to do their job.

"I'm a little appalled at how we're being viewed here like wayward little children," said commissioner Arthur Vrettas.

He said the commission had a responsibility to examine the ordinance more closely. Someone could take the sports club and put it in anywhere in Novi according to the ordinance now for example, said Vrettas.

"I saw the complex in West Bloomfield and I wasn't awed by the fact in was in West Bloomfield," said Vrettas. "... It was a very nice private facility ... But it didn't show me it could cross over and serve the public."

But Laura Lorenzo said the fact of the matter is the commission is directed by the council and in order for council to do their job, the commission had to approve the public hearing.

During the next few weeks, the ordinance will be fine tuned and alternatives presented to the commission at a June 26 special meeting to further discuss the ordinance. It is unknown currently exactly what version of the ordinance will be discussed at the July 10 hearing.

> A sports club is interested in coming into Novi at the Meyer Berry Farm property on Eight Mile near Beck Road.

"It is interesting to me," said Bonaventura, "that for the past 2-3 years we haven't had a joint meeting and now we have one."

HEALTH NOTE

by Dennis E. Engerer, P.T.

PAIN UNDER THE KNEECAP

The condition known as chrondromalacia may afflict runners who pronate excessively, causing the kneecap to twist sideways. It may be that fatigued or weak quadriceps, which contribute to proper tracking of the kneecap, prevent the kneecap from tracking smoothly. Either way, the cartilage under the kneecap may wear away or crack to cause pain and inflammation. Treatment begins by putting a stop to running, taking aspirin, and icing the knee for fifteen minutes two or three times a day. Once the pain and swelling are eliminated, a program to strengthen the quadriceps should be adopted in an effort to restore balance between the quadriceps and the hamstrings. Stretching exercises for these muscle groups are also advised before easing back into a regimen of running.

If you are having knee problems, a physical therapist can design a personalized exercise program to help improve your muscle strength and joint function. At Northville Physical Therapy & Rehabilitation Inc., we work closely with patients to assure a quick recovery and to inform them of how to prevent future injuries. To schedule a consultation, call 349-3816, or see us at 332 E. Main Street, Suite A. We specialize in orthopedic and sports injuries, pain management, neck and back rehabilitation and general rehabilitation. Insurance is welcome.

Allen honored for long years as township commissioner

Allen has served on the commission for many years, including the last several as chairman. Township rules limit the time a member can serve as chair, so in January Allen turned the gavel over to his successor, Karen Woodside. He remains on the commission as a non-officer member.

Members of the board praised Allen for having so long "honorably, graciously and loyally served" the interests of the community, in the words of Supervisor Karen Baja, and then led the standing-room-only audience in a round of applause.

Novi officer's K-9 superstar, Mugsy, wins top honors for tracking ability

By JAN JEFFRES
Staff Writer

If you're talking to "Officer" Mugsy, the praise is well-directed. Just how good is this four-and-a-half-year-old German Shepherd? Simply the best tracker on four legs in Michigan and Canada.

He took first place in early May in the USA Police K-9 Association Tracking Certification for the second year in a row.

Mugsy's professional associate is Novi Police Officer June Mullinix, who purchased the puppy herself and paid for all his training.

The pure breed from Novi was up against 69 other wet, doggy noses.

"Basically, this year it was in a field with a flag marking the spot and three other items the tracking dog has to find, including shot gun shells and a credit card," Mullinex said.

"If we were tracking a bad guy and he threw his weapon down, Mugsy would find it."

Mugsy can rescue a lost child, search out evidence, discover weapons, pursue suspects and sniff out drugs like cocaine, heroin and meth-amphetamines. He's been steadily employed since he joined the Novi police force.

"We've found people. He's found suspects. He's found tons of narcotics and tons of firearms. We stay busy," she said.

When off duty, the two officers board together.

"He's my baby," Mullinex explained.

Medical center planned for Twelve Oaks vicinity

By JAN JEFFRES
Staff Writer

A Detroit Medical Center (DMC) facility to be built near Twelve Oaks Mall will bring together programs offered by the Rehabilitation Institute of Michigan, Children's Hospital and the Detroit Institute for Children.

The 27,000-square-foot building on over five acres will include two gyms, a pool with locker rooms, examination, treatment and testing rooms and speech and neurological offices.

Adults and juveniles will be treated on an outpatient basis at the DMC Outpatient Rehabilitation Center, architect Jordan London said.

The preliminary site plan for the project was approved Monday without much debate by the Novi City Council.

Designs for the project include room for expansion of the facility. It is adjacent to the DMC Healthcare Center, formerly Woodland Medical Center on Twelve Mile Road, and will be connected by walkway and possibly a road to a continuum care home for the aged to be built next-door by the Singh Development Company.

Mill Race Matters

Summer activities continue at Mill Race Village. Docents are on hand each Sunday throughout the summer months on Sunday afternoon from 1 until 4 p.m. Volunteers are always needed to help keep the village open. Training is provided. If interested call 348-1845.

On July 4 the Northville Historical Society plans a series of activities throughout the day beginning at 11 a.m. or after the parade through town ends. All village buildings will be open from 11 until 4 p.m. Crafters will demonstrate skills from the 19th century while they sell handcrafted items. The Country Store features an entire selection of Victorian style items for sale.

Reenactors and others will provide entertainment for all ages. A variety of food items will also be available. Visitors are encouraged to walk as parking is limited. Picnic lunches are also suggested as the items offered for sale are all limited in quantity.

Make a visit to Mill Race Village part of your holiday tradition.

On Wednesday, July 17, the Country Garden Club of Northville holds its third annual Garden Walk. Complimentary refreshments will be served throughout the day at Cady Inn, Mill Race Village. The gardens at Mill Race will be part of the tour as well. Tickets are available for $7 from Gardenviews in town or from the Northville Chamber of Commerce.

The creation of Mill Race Village resulted from a movement within the community during the 1960s to preserve the historic homes and flavor of the community. During the mid '60s, residents established the Northville Historical Society as well as the Northville Historic District Commission.

The Historic District Commission operates as a branch of city government not connected to the village. That commission oversees changes and alterations within the historic district of the city. That area is roughly bounded by Cady to the south, Randolph to the north, Rogers to the west and Griswold to the east.

The Northville Historical Society, not connected to the city, is a volunteer, non-profit organization which stages fund-raisers, holds social events and administers Mill Race Village. Its stated goal is to educate the citizens of the community as to the historic past of the village and the region.

Mill Race Village sits on property donated to the City of Northville by Ford Motor Co. in 1972. Because of its land ownership the city remains the logical owner of the buildings as well, but the Historical Society covers maintenance and operational costs for all of the buildings.

These costs include electrical and heating costs, repairs like painting, plumbing, heating, and roofing, cleaning, general maintenance and security, maintaining and changing internal exhibits, ownership of all collections within, staffing, and all activities held at the village.

Funds to cover these numerous expenses are generated through building rental such as weddings and school tours, through the collection of membership dues and donations, from interest generated on endowed funds, and from Tivoli Fair held each fall at Northville Downs.

The Village needs the support of all members of the community. If you are not now a member why not join today. Remember to attend Tivoli Fair on Sept. 27 or 28. Think about or recommend the facility for wedding use or make a donation today.

Preservationist to study historic farm

By JAN JEFFRES
Staff Writer

A senior field representative with the National Trust for Historic Preservation who was closely involved with the rescue of New York's Grand Central Station will study Novi's Fuerst Farm.

Monday, the Novi City Council hired Frank Gilbert for not more than $4,500, which will include his airfare from Washington, D.C., hotel room and the equivalent of seven days work. Gilbert has developed a consulting program catering to local governments for the National Trust.

"We look at this as the first step in preparing some plan of action for the properties," Assistant City Manager Craig Klaver said.

While Council Member Robert Schmid remained opposed to spending taxpayers' money on the preservation of the farm, the majority OK'd bringing the national consultant to town.

"The city agreed to take the property. Once it is ours, the real tragedy is if we do nothing with it and it falls into decay," Council Member Richard Clark said.

"In light of what the Fuerst sisters have done for this community, if 25 or 50 years from now, someone says 'Fuerst, I don't remember the name,' that will be a real tragedy. A lot of good things that have have happened in this community and are going to happen are because of them."

Mayor Kathleen McLallen and Council Member Kathy Mutch met Gilbert when they were in Washington, D.C. several months ago for a National League of Cities Conference. He will be paid out of $25,000 recently budgeted by the city for the stabilization of the barns and home at the corner of Taft and Ten Mile roads.

"This is a group that has a national, if not international, reputation for what it does. The National Trust is very selected about what projects it chooses to get involved in, even when it involves a consultant's fee," Mutch said.

"You just send out people with hammers and nails to stabilize the property. You have to have a plan."

Gilbert, an attorney, has worked with 50 cities in 15 states on historic preservation issues, including Santa Monica, Long Beach, Tampa, Fort Worth, Columbus and Bowling Green, Kentucky.

In Novi, he will develop plans to restore and use the site, a strategy to get the whole community involved and fund-raising tactics.

"It's a major distrust to the citizen to spend this money," Schmid said.

Council Member Nancy Cassis didn't go that far, but she urged that private funding be found to save the property.

"I'm going to look in the future that there are less taxpayer dollars going into this. We have in good faith gone as far as we can to trade the properties to get it into the City of Novi's hands," she said.

Several outstanding wetlands issues have to be resolved on the city-owned Levy property before the school district and city formerly swap land, leaving the Fuerst corner in municipal hands.

The non-profit citizens group, Preservation Novi, has already spent $6,000 of its own money on assorted architectural studies of the site.

Walks promote fitness and park exploration

Join Novi Parks and Recreation in taking a giant "step" into health and fitness by participating in "Walk Michigan" events. Not only will participants improve their health, but they can enjoy the Novi parks and community and have a chance to win a trip to Mackinac Island.

Each Tuesday through July 30 there will be lunch break walks at noon at the Novi Civic Center. Those who with their walking shoes can enjoy a peaceful stroll around Power Park. Walkers have a choice between one- and three-mile courses. Refreshments will follow each walk at the Civic center.

Kick-off Novi's concert season on June 20 with Novi's Steppin' to the Beat concert and walk. Meet at the Civic Center at 6 p.m., walk a choice of one to three miles, then enjoy the music of a Sounds of Summer concert at 7 p.m. Bring your favorite picnic, blanket and lawn chair.

"Stroll in the Park" Wednesday, July 10 at 9:30 a.m. Meet at the Civic Center with buggies and strollers for this morning walk through the area. After the walk, refreshments will be served and prizes awarded. (Strollers not required.)

As part of every "Walk Michigan" event, participants can enter their name to win a trip to Mackinac Island as part of the Labor Day weekend walk with the governor over the Mackinaw bridge. The Grand Prize Walk will take place Thursday, Aug. 1 leaving from the Novi Civic Center at 6 p.m.

The half-mile Grand Prize Day walk will take participants through Power Park and the surrounding neighborhoods. The drawing will take place immediately afterwards on the north lawn of the Civic Center; and will be followed by a Novi Sounds of Summer concert at 7 p.m. This event is open to all ages and is free of charge.

MARGARET K. MILLAR

Margaret K. Millar of Northville died June 3, 1996, in Oakwood Heritage Hospital in Taylor, Mich. She was 89. Mrs. Millar was born in Scotland.

Mrs. Millar was a secretary in a hospital prior to her retirement.

She is survived by a daughter, Margaret H. Millar of Northville.

Mrs. Millar was preceded in death by her husband, William.

Private services will be conducted in Cleveland, Ohio.

Arrangements were made by the Northrop-Sassaman Funeral Home in Northville.

Cards of sympathy to the family or donations to the charity of your choice would be appreciated.

WILLIAM E. WILLIAMS

William E. Williams of Northville died at his home on May 30, 1996. He was 91. Mr. Williams was born in Cornwall, England, on Dec. 28, 1904, to Richard Nicholls and Alice Maude Mary (Webb) Williams.

He and his wife, Florence M., were married in Detroit on Nov. 9, 1925.

Mr. Williams received his education in Cornwall, England. In 1989, he moved to Canton, and more recently moved to his daughter's home in Northville. He was a retired precision toolmaker. His memberships included Nardin Park United Methodist Church, past master of Lotus Masonic Lodge, the Scottish Rite and the Shriners.

He is survived by his wife of over 70 years, Florence M.; a son, Richard (Virginia) of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.; a daughter, Barbara (Edward) Tromans of Northville. He was a loving grandfather to eight, including Leslie Tromans and Kim (John) Doyle of Northville; and Terri (Scott) Spence of Holland, Mich. He also had eight great grandchildren and many nieces and nephews in Cornwall, England.

He was preceded in death by his daughter, Dorothy, the twin of Barbara Tromans.

A service was held on Monday, June 3, at Nardin Park United Methodist Church, Farmington Hills, with the Rev. Robert Bough officiating. Interment took place in Acacia Park, Birmingham, Mich.

Arrangements were made by Heeney Sundquist Funeral Home in Farmington.

Mrs. Graham was a homemaker.

She is survived by one son, Russell W. (Dr. Carolyn Daitch); a brother, Fredrick J. Wilkiemeyer; a sister, Mary L. Cook; and three grandchildren, Dale, Neil and Noelle.

She was preceded in death by her husband, Russell M.

Services were held on Saturday, June 8, at Our Lady of Victory Church in Northville. Interment was at Mt. Olivet Cemetery, Detroit.

Arrangements were made by O'Brien Chapel/Ted C. Sullivan Funeral Home in Novi.

Memorial contributions to Our Lady of Victory Building Fund, 770 Thayer, Northville, MI 48167 would be appreciated.

Church singles group hosts 3- part workshop

One of the most compelling goals in life is a relationship with the "right" person.

First Presbyterian Church of Northville's Single Place Ministries presents "Understanding the Difference – How Man and Woman Communicate and Think," with Anna Russo, on three consecutive Thursday evenings, June 13, 20 and 27 at 7:30 p.m.

Russo, a nuro logistics programmer, has lectured throughout the country and teaches at Oakland Community College.

Becoming an effective communicator, changing the way you view the opposite sex so that you can get what you really want, changing beliefs you hold about relationships, appreciating each other's differences and learning from them, and how "old tapes" influence your present situation, are among the dozen topics which will be discussed.

The workshop will be held in the Youth Room on the first night and in the Forum Room for sessions two and three at the church, located at 200 East Main Street in Northville.

Announcing our 6.25% APR* Home Equity Line of Credit.

There isn't a better time to borrow for home improvements, trips, a car, debt consolidation, or anything else you need. Because now Michigan National Bank is offering Equi:Money®–money you can borrow from the equity in your home–at a low introductory rate, currently just 6.25%. That's a full 2% below the prime lending rate! Plus, the interest you do pay is usually tax deductible.* But you must apply by July 31,1996. So make it your prime concern to look into it while the rate is still below that.

For information or to apply by phone, call

Michigan National Bank

8.75%-10.25% APR Regular Rate*

*The discounted introductory variable rate of 6.25% is based on The Wall Street Journal prime rate minus 2.00% good through December 31, 1996. After that, the regular rates will apply. For example, the Annual Percentage Rates in effect as of March 1,1996 were 8.75% for lines of credit of $50,000 to $250,000, 9.25% for lines of $25,000 to $49,999, and 10.25% for lines of $5,000 to $24,999. The APRs are variable, subject to change monthly and based on The Wall Street Journal prime rate plus the applicable margin. Maximum APR is 18%. Offer limited to new accounts and line increases of $5,000 or more. $40 annual fee after the first year. There are no other costs to open your account. Please consult your tax advisor regarding tax deductibility. Property insurance is required. Applications must be received by July 31, 1996.

Experts suggest getting handle on credit debt

Americans now owe more than $400.5 billion on credit cards alone – about 40 percent of total consumer debt, according to Carol Kurth, Education Coordinator for Credit Counseling Centers Inc. a non-profit, financial counseling agency based in Farmington Hills.

An estimated $1.8 trillion in credit card debt alone is projected for the year 2004. This is big business.

The average card holder currently carries a balance of almost $4,000 and only about one-third of the nation's card holders pay their balance in full every 30 days. Those who do not are included in delinquency rates and those numbers have risen steadily for the past year and one-half.

Kurth notes that it is no wonder consumers seek financial counseling to pay or discharge their debts through various credit counseling agencies or through bankruptcy filings. Those who have had problems in the past paying their bills also have had their credit histories affected. With this in mind, it may be difficult to obtain future credit.

Many people ask how they can establish or reestablish their credit history. This is an important question because credit records are essential in obtaining credit. The information on credit reports is a major factor used by potential creditors, including insurance companies, in determining whether the applicant is a good credit risk.

There are a number of ways to establish a good credit history, according to Credit Counseling Centers:

• Open a checking account and start a savings account as collateral. Don't write checks unless the money is in the account to cover them.

• Establish a credit record with a department store by opening a charge account. If you are offered an application for a credit card by a bank or department store, take it. Credit may be more difficult to get if you apply for it yourself.

• Take out an installment loan from your local bank and repay it per the contractual agreement or even earlier.

• Have a co-signer who has not had credit problems apply with you for a charge account or loan.

• Get credit from creditors who report to credit bureaus such as banks, savings and loans and large department stores. Oil companies, utility companies, small department stores, and travel/entertainment card companies do not generally report to credit bureaus.

• Pay your bills by the due date.

If you have established a credit history, you can obtain a copy of your credit bureau report by writing to major credit bureaus. There is usually a fee for the report. If you have been refused credit in the past 30 days because of information found in the reports, you may obtain a free copy.

When sending for your record, you need to include, in writing, the following information: your full name (middle initial, Jr., Sr., I, II, etc.); Social Security number, if married, spouse's name and Social Security number; date of birth; current address with zip code; previous addresses for the last two-five years; current employer; daytime and evening phone numbers, verification of name and address with a photocopy of your driver's license, a current copy of a utility bill, or major creditor billing statement); and your signature. You, and if married your spouse, must sign your request for a copy of your credit file.

Call the following for company guidelines and fees for obtaining your credit report: TRW Consumer Assistance (1-800-392-1122); Equifax (1-800-685-1111); Transunion Corporation (1-216-779-7200).

Learning treat

Students Ryan Denhof and Kyle McKee are delighted with their delicious learning experience. Pizza Cutter and Amerman Elementary are Partners in Education, and as part of the program Pizza Cutter, located on Center Street, gave the kids a back room tour, showed them how to make dough and then turned the kindergartners loose to make their own pizzas. The students also made a book telling about their experiences.

John Etherton, the director, and Clark Shuler, the president of the Paralyzed Veterans of America, Michigan Chapter, want people to know they are willing to help.

Unlikely injury makes vet active in rights movement

By JAN JEFFRES
Staff Writer

Clark Shuler doesn't remember much of what happened to him one night nine years ago when he was driving home on the interstate from the Air National Guard at Selfridge Air Force Base.

Most of the details come from the police report. Apparently he tried but failed to change lanes when he saw an abandoned car under a bridge. The crash left Shuler a quadriplegic.

"Going from a member of the sky to a wheelchair was a change for me. I vegetated for about a year," the Ann Arbor resident said.

Today, he may be in a wheelchair but he's far from spinning his wheels. He's married, hoping to start a family ASAP and is the president of the Paralyzed Veterans of America, Michigan Chapter, which has its headquarters on Grand River Avenue in Novi.

While the national organization is celebrating its 50th anniversary in July, the Michigan Chapter started in 1961. Voting members must be veterans with a spinal cord injury or disease, such as multiple sclerosis (MS).

Prior to World War II, the life expectancy for people with spinal cord injuries was five years, Shuler said. The development of antibiotics, which fight kidney and other infections common to the condition, changed all that. Paraplegia is paralysis from the waist down. Quadriplegic is from the neck down.

In Michigan alone, the PVA has 600 voting members and 200 associate members. About 40 percent of them were injured in combat, 20 percent have MS and the remainder include those injured in motor vehicle and other accidents, either on or off duty.

Former Navy man John Etherton, the executive director of the PVA, Michigan Chapter, has been a paraplegic since 1965, when he was shot in Vietnam. Etherton wasn't interested in talking about how he was injured and said that's not uncommon among the membership, who are mostly veterans of World War II and Vietnam.

"We don't ask each other. To us, it doesn't matter," he said.

The percentage of the membership who were injured in combat is expected to decline, Etherton said, "if we don't have any major wars."

Shuler heard about the PVA while he was still in the hospital, and on his way to his first meeting had his doubts.

"I heard all this yelling coming into the hall from these guys in wheelchairs. It was pretty raucous. I thought, do I want to get involved with this?" he said.

"I think my accident quite quickly and absolutely made me a second-class citizen. PVA gave me a route through which I could work."

He also serves on the Michigan Commission On Disability Concerns.

As the veteran population ages, one of the biggest issues for PVA is the level of health care provided by the Veteran's Administration. The organization helps members apply for services and assists them in appeals when they've been turned down.

"When they start talking about cutting the VA budget, all of us who are veterans get concerned about that," Etherton said.

"All people are living longer than they used to."

The organization limits its advocacy to issues which directly concern its membership and stays out of areas such as gays in the military and the national defense budget. On a national level, the PVA lobbied hard to get the Americans With Disabilities Act passed into law in 1990.

Since moving their headquarters from Garden City to Novi just over two years ago, the PVA, Michigan Chapter has thrown itself into the community, joining the Novi Chamber of Commerce and sponsoring the Michigan '50s Festival. The organization spent $50,000 to remodel the building to make it more convenient for members, including widening doorways, reconstructing bathrooms and installing lever door handles.

"If you want to keep a quadriplegic out, just put Vaseline on a door knob," Shuler said.

In March, the Michigan Chapter brought its telemarketing program in-house. Previously, the business had been handled by a professional fund-raising firm. The PVA sells door mats, pepper spray and a noise making personal protective device, as well as the best-selling garbage bags. The proceeds go back to the non-profit group. This work is done out of its Pontiac office and the goal is to open an additional two or three offices, preferably staffed by handicapped employees, by summer's end, Etherton said.

In July, the Michigan Chapter will be sending a contingent of members to the National Veteran Wheelchair games in Seattle. The PVA is the leading financial supporter of wheelchair sports in the U.S., according to Etherton.

Watching other athletes at sporting events did change his life. After he became a quadriplegic, he started with a motorized wheelchair. Then, he watched others manipulate their manual chairs.

"I looked at the other guys going along and I felt like a slob," he said. My girlfriend, now my wife, was merciless." He now gets along on his own energy.

Candidate can retain current seat

By JAN JEFFRES
Staff Writer

If Council Member Nancy Cassis is elected to the Michigan House of Representatives, she won't have to step down in Novi until she's actually sworn-in in Lansing.

That's what city attorneys said in a legal opinion recently requested by Cassis.

The council member hopes to be elected to fill the seat left vacant as State Rep. Willis Bullard, R-Milford, moves up to the state senate. She asked City Attorney David Fried if running for office obliged her to quit her city post.

The state constitution bars any one holding a public office or state, federal or municipal employment, except notaries public and members of the armed forces reserve, from serving as a member of either house, the opinion noted.

"It is the actual status of becoming a member of the state legislature that would govern the effective date of a council member's resignation," Fried wrote.

Running for the Republican nomination, along with Cassis are Northville resident Chris Bachelder and Novi resident Craig DeRoche. One candidate has filed as a Democrat, Gary Johnson of Milford.

School choir tours Beantown on visit

The Northville High School concert choir participated in a tour of the city of Boston during the week of May 17-23. In years past choir members had visited both Chicago and Toronto and this trip was equally exciting for them.

They began their stay in Boston with a mad dash to Fenway Park and a rousing rendition of the National Anthem for the Red Sox game. On Sunday they participated in services at Old North Church where they sang a beautiful program in the very place where Paul Revere and other prominent Bostonians once worshiped. This was followed by stops to shop and eat; and a trek down the Freedom Trail, where they saw Paul Revere's House, Bunker Hill, the Boston Commons, and other historical landmarks.

On the third day choir members performed an outdoor concert in the Quincy Market Place and then rode the subway to the hallowed halls of Harvard University.

The students sang everywhere they went to the curiosity and delight of their audiences. They were frequently stopped and questioned about their school and their home town and were proud of their role as "musical goodwill ambassadors."

When they weren't entertaining, they were being entertained at the famous Colonial Theater, for a performance of Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat, and a dinner cruise of Boston Harbor.

The choir concluded its trip with a stop off at Niagara Falls on the way home. Needless to say, they returned wet, tired and happy, and full of wonderful memories.

Choir members say they look forward to future opportunities to represent Northville High School as they take their music to audiences all over the country.

Host families sought

The American Intercultural Student Exchange, a non-profit educational foundation, is seeking local host families for high school foreign exchange students for the 1996-97 school year. AISE exchange students live with American families and attend local high schools during their 10-month cultural exchange experiences. American host families provide these young ambassadors with a room, meals, and a loving, family atmosphere in which to live. AISE students are eager to learn about our government, our history, our customs and our language, while at the same time leaving a lasting impression of their cultures in the minds and hearts of their American host families and peers. Call AISE at 1-800-742-5464 for more information on hosting a foreign exchange student in your home.

State to recruit for summer openings

Gov. John Engler has asked the Michigan Jobs Commission and the Michigan Employment Security Commission (MESC) to work together in helping employers, facing labor shortages, to recruit young workers for summer jobs.

"Our unemployment rate is at an all-time low, and we expect employers will have a high need for summer workers this year, especially in light of labor shortages some areas are already facing," the governor said. "I have, therefore, asked the Jobs Commission and MESC to pool their resources and to recruit Michigan youth for summer jobs."

On Wednesday, May 15, a letter began going out to about 100,000 Michigan employers, asking them to notify their local MESC office of any summer openings they expect to have this year. MESC offices will become central points for summer job listings.

The Jobs Commission will be working with the newly formed local Workforce Development Boards to send information to schools, government agencies and the community at large, letting potential job seekers know that MESC offices have summer job openings available.

"We're calling this effort 'Cold Cash for a Cool Summer,'" Gov. Engler said. "The program will benefit both employers and young people by linking summer jobs with the people who typically fill them."

Employers will be able to fax information about their job openings directly to MESC offices. They can also dial the agency's Employer Customer Relations Hotline toll free at 1-800-638-3994 for assistance.

By TIM RICHARD
Staff Writer

The Rouge River played a tiny role in Henry Ford's version of automotive history, though at one time the Dearborn pioneer had high hopes for it as both a manufacturing and sociological experiment.

"I am a farmer," Ford said after World War I. "I am going to establish plants for manufacturing parts of Ford cars and Fordson tractors in places where they will be within easy reach of farming districts, and provide employment for farmers and their families in winter. And these plants are going to be operated by water power."

Instead of drawing country boys into city squalor, Ford would take his factories to the country. The farmer could earn $6 a day in the factory, save enough to buy tractors and equipment, then be given time off for his mechanized farm duties — which Ford estimated at 24 days a year.

Hydroelectric power was the fad of the 1920s. Ford established plants on several rivers in Ohio and Michigan, including four on the Middle Rouge. If the Rouge's current could power gristmills, why, it should be able to power a manufacturing plant, the 57-year-old ex-farmer reasoned.

Trouble was, however, the Rouge is narrow and has a weak current. For most of its length, it drains an ancient lake bottom flattened by glaciers that melted 12,000 years ago. The Rouge's water power never was too powerful.

Ford bought a mill site at Northville in 1920 and hired 300 men to make valves. National historian Allan Nevins in the 1950s wrote that he had to supplement water power with a steam turbine. Local historian and editor Jack Hoffman, in Northville: The First Hundred Years (1976), quoted workers who said the waterwheel was just a backup source of electricity and never used. The second Northville plant, built in 1936, has been converted to other uses and still stands at the bend of Main Street.

At Nankin Mills, Ford's plant made rivets – all one could do with only 30 to 50 horsepower. At the Phoenix dam, outside Plymouth, the plant used 100 horsepower to make small taps for threading operations.

At Waterford (Six Mile and Northville roads) stood an early settlement that in its day was larger than Plymouth and Northville. The dam there generated 50 horsepower. The turbine stood in an enclosed glass case outside the factory.

The manager in charge of village industries soon saw water power was insufficient and, against Ford's wishes, installed a Lincoln engine. Nevins, in Ford: Expansion and Challenge, wrote: "Ford was outraged. He ordered the engine and generator delivered to Avery's house, where they were left on his front porch at night. 'We built these plants to run on water power,' he pointed out. 'When I want any other kind of power in, I'll let you how to do it.'"

Ford would establish a dozen other village plants with hydroelectric dams in the Midwest. By 1939 they employed a peak of 2,460 making cigarette lighters, carburetors, horns and ignition coils.

Ford could bend managers and workers to his will, but he couldn't conquer the sluggish Rouge.

The plants were built with much local fanfare, but one by one they were quietly abandoned as unprofitable. "Most are in use as antique shops and community centers, highway maintenance facilities, or for non-Ford manufacturing," wrote University of Michigan business historian David L. Lewis in The Public Image of Henry Ford (1976).

Ford Motor Co. eventually did expand to the suburbs, but in the giant plants along rail lines, as in Highland Park and Dearborn.

The Rouge was to have one final victory over Henry Ford.

He used a 14-foot dam to supply power to his Fair Lane home, now part of the University of Michigan-Dearborn campus, to generate electricity through three-fourths of a mile of brass tubing and 135 miles of electrical conduit. Wrote Robert Lacey in Ford: The Men and The Machine (1986):

"Every bathroom had four taps yielding well-water and rainwater, both hot and cold, as well as nozzles which shot out hot air for hair-drying on command. The marble benches around the indoor swimming pool were continually warmed to comfort the posteriors of those who sat upon them, and the same heating pipes extended outside to prevent the 500 bird-baths scattered around the estate from freezing up in winter."

Ford bought a mill site at Northville in 1920 and hired 300 men to make valves. Hydroelectric power was regarded as state-of-the-art during the early history of auto manufacturing.

The Rouge has less than half the waterflow of the Clinton River, which runs eastward from Pontiac across Macomb County, and one-third the flow of the Huron River, which starts near Pontiac and flows southwestward to Ann Arbor, then southeast to Lake Erie.

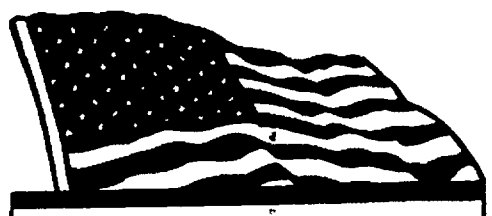
Our Opinion

Use usual development strategy in land deal



Government

If it looks like a duck and quacks like a duck, treat it like a duck.

The debate continues between the Northville Township Board of Trustees and members of the Wayne County administration over what's going to be built on the 940 acres of land between Five and Six Mile and Beck and Hines Drive.

The county owns the property and as such has the legal right to develop it under current zoning, which is 100 percent residential use. If it chooses to go that route the township won't have much of a say about it.

However, county administrators don't want to do that. Instead they are trying to negotiate a Planned Unit Development (PUD) agreement with Northville Township. A PUD is a signed contract and is strictly optional. It's a business deal, not a right that a property owner is entitled to.

The proposed PUD calls for the township to let the county build elements on the land that aren't allowed under normal zoning. In exchange the county produces developments that, in the opinion of trustees, bring a "substantial benefit" to the community lacking under a current zoning plan.

A majority of the board feels that what's been offered so far isn't enough. Some "benefits," according to them, are only things that the county's supposed to do anyway. Two examples are demolishing the hazardous buildings on its own property and paving Six Mile, which it owns and admits needs to be paved.

Other benefits aren't considerable enough, they say, such as the setting aside of "only" 18 acres of land for public recreation and public facilities like a school or fire station.

County officials have stood firm, saying they've given the township as much as they're going to. They also complained that they've been "beaten up" by the board during this whole process and want the trustees to be more "flexible" about what is allowed.

We are not county-bashing here but we hope to call it the way we see it. Wayne County has talked a lot about being a partner and good neighbor with Northville Township. It's served up a lot of warm fuzzies about how it wants to develop the land into something that's going to make this town proud.

The bottom line, however, is that the county is acting exactly like what it is: a property owner. As such, it should be treated like one.

As with anyone who has land to sell the county wants to make the maximum number of greenbacks possible, hence the proposed PUD. The plan means more money when it comes time to sell pieces of this parcel off to developers. That's fine. This is America and we believe in the free market.

However, just like anyone else who owns property in a town they don't live in it's a safe bet that the county, for all its talk, isn't going to care about how the land turns out once the checks clear from the developers. (That's what makes the lectures from county administrators about what they think this town needs, such as more apartments or shopping centers, particularly hard to swallow.)

Northville Township's best chance to do what it can to influence the way the land gets built occurs now, in negotiating the PUD. Consequently, we support the board's efforts to get the county to make changes in the PUD that will make it a better deal for this town.

At the same time we urge the trustees to remember that it's good business to recognize that the county has an envelope of political and financial reality to operate in as well. We urge them to work hard to determine its boundaries then not go beyond them. Don't pass up a good deal by circling the wagons and blindly holding out for a perfect one.

Well done, Class of '96

Education

A note of congratulation is due the 1996 graduating class at Northville High School for a great year, both academically and athletically.

According to Superintendent Leonard Rezmierski, this year's graduating class set a school record by receiving more than $750,000 in local and national scholarship awards, truly a noteworthy achievement.

We tend to think the decision to do away with the valedictorian and salutatorian designations could dilute the honors system and result in awards inflation, but many students were genuinely deserving of recognition this year. When it came time to list all the seniors mentioned in high school honors convocation, we were unable to fit all the names onto one full page of the newspaper, which consists of 110 column inches of type. Regrettably, a few categories had to be left out.

But it wasn't just the seniors who excelled during 1995/96. Students taking the Michigan Education Assessment Program tests – representing grade levels in elementary and middle schools, as well as senior high – did outstandingly well. Northville's K-12 remains among the elite student populations in the state.

A word of recognition should also be given to the high school tennis squad, which extended its record of consecutive undefeated regular season matches to an amazing 65. The racketmen have tied some matches over that time and failed to bring home a championship trophy, but within their conference the Mustangs' domination is total.

The only discouraging note during the year came with the release of another disappointing Alcohol and Other Drugs survey. For the third time, the biennial poll indicated that, for all their excellence, young men and women at the high school continue to exceed national averages in terms of substance abuse. We're not able to explain the paradox of simultaneous high drug use rates and good grades, but we're hopeful that the efforts of the Zero Tolerance committee will bring a new awareness to students concerning the dangers of substance abuse.

On the whole, it was a fine year with many high points and noteworthy achievements. Congratulations to all.

A true community event

Lee Snider

I don't know anything much about this Robert Leathers firm from Ithaca, New York, but boy have they hit on something big.

In case you don't already know, Leathers is the company that designs those huge wooden playsets that have come to be known as "playscapes."

I first witnessed the playscape phenomenon when I was a reporter on Grosse Ile and a group of community volunteers was raising money to pay for one of the enormous structures.

The fund-raising went on for months, and when the $50,000 budget was finally met that's when the party really began. For five days, a teaming mass of workers converged on the playscape recreation site, sawing, pounding and lifting until they had raised, not a playset, but a fantasy village kids could spend hours exploring.

From a distance it looked like some kind of wild west fortress. Up close you could see slides, tunnels, mazes, hidden passages, swings, rope ladders, towers and a lookout perch.

There was no end to the number of Dungeons and Dragons and Temple of Doom scenarios a kid could invent within its precincts.

If the structure itself wasn't enough to impress, consider the effort that went into its construction. It was estimated that 1,000 people helped build the Grosse Ile playscape, fully one-tenth of the community's total population. Playscapes are built entirely with volunteer labor. Leathers representatives are on hand to supervise, but the elbow grease is provided by community members.

Back in 1991, playscapes were still relatively rare. I figured Grosse Ile built one because there were no public parks anywhere on the downriver island and people needed a place where their children could burn off some of their excess energy.

Since then, though, playscapes have cropped up everywhere. If southeast Michigan is representative of the country as a whole, these Leathers people must be in the midst of a company expansion equal to what happened to the defense industry during World War II.

It seems just about every community has a playscape. Soon, Northville will have one too.

A committee is forming even as we speak and making plans to raise the money and materials needed to build a playscape. The committee is in what might be called the pre-fund-raiser stage, and hasn't gotten down to the nuts and bolts of seeking contributions from corporations and individuals

Reporter Randy Coble writes in today's edition that a site near Ford Field has been chosen as the location for the Northville playscape and that a logo and a name – Ft. Griswold – have been selected.

According to organizer Cindy Buckley, fund-raising will being in earnest this September, with construction set for either next spring or fall 1997.

The great thing about a playscape is the endless joy it brings children, but the community spirit it generates is a fine fringe benefit. After the Grosse Ile playscape was built, people could be heard saying they hoped the cooperation and enthusiasm would carry over into other areas.

All it took was a will and a cause to bring them together.

Quality trustee earns fresh term

Randy Coble

Let me preface this column by saying that I am not in receipt of cash or negotiable securities from Northville Township Trustee Mark Abbo for writing it.

I actually decided to write this more than a year ago, whether Mark intended to run for reelection or not. I'm glad, though, that the little praise I can give him here may get him a few votes in this August's primary.

Public officials take a lot of shots from the people they serve, many of them richly deserved. Woody Allen put it best in Annie Hall: "You know the ethics politicians have. It's like a notch underneath child molester."

All joking aside, though, there are a lot of good people in Northville's various governmental bodies who got into the game because they really care about doing the right thing by their communities. That's especially true down here at the local level: big salaries, plush offices and junkets to the Caribbean lie elsewhere.

That's why I genuinely have a lot of respect for most of our local officeholders. Mark Abbo, however, stands head and shoulders above the rest.

There are a lot of qualities that go into the ideal trustee. There's stuff like passion, integrity, honesty, intelligence, courage, courtesy, empathy and the priceless ability to laugh at yourself every now and again.

That's the ideal. In the real world it's rare to find someone who has most of these attributes, let alone all. Most of the time government goes on as best it can with the tapestry of talent that it gets. Diamonds in the rough are few and far between.

Mark is one of those few. He's unquestionably one of the finest public servants I've ever covered. There's a lot that he does right but what sticks out is this man's ability to consistently find the right mix between being a team player and displaying individual initiative and leadership.

It's a hard line to hit but Mark struck it like Nolan Ryan time and again in the two and a half years I've watched him work.

Another sports parallel: John Stockton, the NBA's all-time assist leader. He's a guy who steps up and tries to make something happen when the situation calls for it yet is selfless enough to let somebody else make the highlight film when it helps the team. That attitude doesn't get you your own shoe line but it does win a lot of games.

Mark's the same way. He's the kind of quiet, no-fireworks operator who works his butt off behind the scenes, zeroing all the while in on what's best for the community instead of his ego. That's why he's such a good bridge builder and consensus maker.

While he's firmly grounded in a set of basic beliefs Mark has shown that he's always ready to consider yours carefully and find that patch of common ground where the two of you can reach a compromise. Instead of a standoff both sides are able cut a deal they can live with and the world keeps on turning.

For all of that Mark deserves a lot but somehow I think he'd settle for four more years as your township trustee. I for one sure hope that you, the voters, will see fit to give him that chance.

Dads everywhere deserve thanks

I was walking in the parking lot of the Learning Tree at West Oaks when a small child, held tightly in her father's arms, looked over his shoulder at me and said, "Will you marry my daddy and be my new mommy?"

"My mommy is in heaven now and she's happy. It would be nice to have a new mommy now."

Out of the mouths of babes pour words beyond compare. That little girl put a smile in my heart.

We work to give our children as much as possible. Here was a daddy with his little girl facing Father's Day alone perhaps for the first time. I admired him very much. He didn't hush her words or cringe. He just smiled. He seemed happy with his little angel out on a Tuesday evening for a Harmony House and Builder's Square adventure. I'd like to tell him "Happy Father's Day." Parents are a treasure and children are small little treasure chests. Thanks to all the parents who help to fill those chests with treasures of memorable moments like this. Thanks to all the folks who carry their kids around and smile as the little ones talk to strangers. Thanks to my dad for the lawnmower rides and all the Guernsey ice cream cones that he helped me finish.

Happy Father's Day to all the dads.

To the Editor:

As a graduate of the class of 1996, I would like to thank all the parents who helped with this year's all night party. Seeing the school transformed into a piece of Hollywood, it was obvious how much energy and planning went into every aspect of the party. From the magician to the casino, the night was a resounding success.

Without our parents, our last time together as the class of '96 would not have been so memorable. It was truly a night of reel memories. Thanks!

Minimum wage should be raised

To the Editor:

The battle over the minimum wage is now joined.

The Republican position is that many low-income workers will lose their jobs and, anyway, only teenagers working to pay for their hot-rods are affected, and that those who cry loudest for a modest increase in the minimum wage are but "bleeding heart liberals."

The Democrat position, on the other hand, is that, since 1989, inflation (about 18 percent in the six years since 1989) has substantially eroded the buying power of those earning the minimum wage of $4.25 an hour and that a correction should now be made.

Then too, according to published reports, four out of 10 minimum wage workers are adults; also, it's a mom's issue because 60 percent of those who would benefit from an increase are women.

The denizens of country clubs are heard to say, "I don't know anyone who supports the minimum wage." In that setting does anyone wonder why?

Perhaps low-paid busboys and kitchen workers at their club might have a different view on the matter.

Should consideration be given to a cap on the maximum wage? The Bloomberg Business News reports that Michael Quinlan, CEO at MacDonald's, received $11 million in stock options, $1.05 million in salary, and a $1.05 million bonus last year.

According to a Mr. Patton, once head of McKinsley & Co. (a compensation-consulting business), executive compensation began to soar when active CEOs began serving on the compensation committees of other companies. A pretty dandy arrangement, eh what?

The lachrymose appeals of those who say that hordes of poor people on the present minimum wage will lose their jobs is not borne out by what happened when the minimum wage was last raised in 1989.

How about this doozy of an idea: Rep. Dick Armey of Texas wants no minimum wage statute, he says we should let our free market economy set the minimum wage. According to Armey, a dollar an hour would be OK with him.

Lest we forget:

Eighty percent of the American people support raising the minimum wage from $4.25 to $5.15 over the next two years.

'Choice' could rekindle controversies

Phil Power

If I've learned one thing in my years as a newspaperman, it's to be suspicious of the silver bullet – the one, simple act that by itself will resolve a complicated and difficult problem.

Some examples of silver bullets: For careerist politicians, term limits. For profligate spending, a constitutional amending prohibiting deficits. For high crime rates, more prisons.

Politicians are irresistibly attracted to silver bullets. They make good, simple sound bites. Moreover, concentrating on the silver bullet avoids the messy and difficult task of actually figuring out what to do about a multi-faceted problem.

"Schools of choice" is one of those silver bullets favored by lots of school reformers. The idea is that giving kids and their parents the freedom to choose to attend any school they wish, with the per-pupil state grant following the kid from school to school, probably makes a whole lot of sense. But it is sheer silver bulletism to think that schools of choice, at least in the form adopted by the Legislature last week, will itself result in sustained, serious school improvement.

The legislation allows parents to enroll their children in any public school within the intermediate school district where the family lives. Oakland, Wayne and Livingston counties, for example, are intermediate school districts, so kids who live in Pontiac could enroll in Birmingham, or kids from Romulus could go to Livonia.

For this to happen, local school districts inside the larger intermediate district would have to open their borders. But local school districts no longer must approve a student's departure for another school, together with the $5,300 state grant attached.

As with most other silver bullets, with schools of choice, the devil is in the details.

First, the evidence so far is that most parents and kids are going to school in their own neighborhoods. In the St. Clair Intermediate School District, for example, where the state has allowed an experiment in cross-district choice for the past two years, fewer than 100 of a total of 28,300 students moved to schools outside their local districts.

Second, for choice to work as the hypothesis predicts, parents and children will need a lot of information about educational quality in various districts. At present, this is largely lacking, in part because many choice advocates object to uniform state assessment of what kids learn. Absent hard information about academic outcomes, parents and children in a choice environment will make their choices on other factors – athletics or race, for example.

Third, if you think that adopting schools of choice legislation marks the end of the process, better think again. Some of the people pushing choice see it as little more than a way station to a full-blown voucher plan which will provide each family of a school-age child with a voucher to be used at any school whatsoever, public or private. This is, of course, aid to parochial schools by another route. Once this particular consequence of schools of choice becomes clear, watch out!

Fourth, if the entire choice thing is not very carefully handled, it will result in a rerun of the cross-district busing controversy that paralyzed Michigan politics in the mid-1970s.

Suppose, for example, that a family chooses to enroll a child in a school far away from home. And suppose further that the family, unable to drive their kid to that school, goes to court to demand that the state provide support. What's the judge going to do?

The American philosopher George Santayana observed that people who do not remember their history are condemned to relive it. That's only one of the problems with relying on silver bullets like schools of choice.

Fashion not just a cultural side issue

Barbara Loule

When schoolchildren visit Northville's Mill Race Historical Village on school outings, they get the chance to spend a day in the past.

Besides reading out of reproduction McGuffey Readers and sitting at old-fashioned desks in a 19th century one-room schoolhouse, they also have the opportunity to dress up a bit like their 19th century counterparts. Girls can choose from a variety of pinafores and bonnets, while boys may select a natty vest to wear over their T-shirts.

When Northville and Novi were first settled in 1825, men were just beginning to wear long pants. Previously, knee-breeches had been popular, but this fashion went out of style only to return 100 years later in the "knickerbocker" style of the 1920s.

Ladies who stepped off boats in Detroit's harbor in 1825 generally wore long, high-waisted dresses with "leg-of-mutton" sleeves that puffed out from the shoulder to the elbow and narrowed from elbow to wrist. High beaver hats were worn by men, encouraging the exploration of western lands – such as Michigan – to capture these valuable animals.

In 1830, the first woman's magazine was founded and women even in rural areas like Novi could see first-hand what was being worn in the fashion centers of the world. Godey's Lady's Book set the pace for women's fashions for nearly 70 years.

Children in early Northville and Novi often looked like miniatures of their parents. Girls wore wide-skirted, fussy dresses, while boys frolicked in either long smock-like jackets known as tunics or in short, tight jackets which became popular as the "Eton" jacket, over long, tight pants.

By the 1850s, Amelia Jenks Bloomer tried to encourage reform for women by introducing full pantaloons worn underneath a shorter skirt. "Bloomers" were treated with ridicule, but the practicality of the garment eventually overcame the scorn.

Though most garments needed to be made at home, by the mid-19th century new inventions began to change the look of fashion. At the same time Amelia's bloomers hit the fan, a Boston inventor named Isaac Merritt Singer came out with a domestic sewing machine able to be used by the average housewife. It was a sensation.

To purchase the newfangled object in Northville, one merely had to go to the doctor's. Dr. J.M. Swift acted as an agent for a self-threading shuttle sewing machine in the late 1870s.

Making up patterns, however, could be time-consuming, and at least one local entrepreneur took advantage of the buy-now common household appliance.

"Have you a sewing machine?" asked a Northville Record advertisement of 1893. J.R. Doelfs announced that he would be in Northville for two weeks in August, ready to "Cut paper patterns for anyone for suits, pants or overcoats, after the latest New York styles ... at reasonable prices, so you can cut and make your own garments ..."

Local tailors also advertised, such as F.J. Hoar, "Merchant tailor (who) makes clothes to fit, goods and work guaranteed ..." Mary Phillips also advertised dressmaking for Northville's ladies desirous of fashionable styles in 1876.

In 1894, Bruno Fredyl came to Northville and opened a tailor shop. His small one-room establishment grew over the years to become one of Northville's major businesses for nearly 100 years, before it closed as late as 1994.

Styles may have changed over the years but fashion has always been essential to daily life.

School aid bill passes, on way to governor's desk

By TIM RICHARD
Staff Writer

Republican legislators, with token Democratic help, passed an $8.6 billion school aid bill on the last scheduled day of their session and sent it to Gov. John Engler for signing.

They split the difference on the most controversial issue, allocating $102 million for adult education. Engler had wanted to zero out that program. Democrats held out for $185 million, same as in the current year.

A House vote late at night on June 6 clinched it. The House gave the bill a bare majority, 56-49. Supporting it were 54 Republicans joined by two Democrats – Maxine Berman of Southfield and minority leader Curtis Hertel of Detroit.

Opposed were 47 Democrats and two Republicans – Lyn Bankes of Redford and Sue Rocca of Macomb County.

"I'm a no vote on anything with schools of choice in it," said Bankes, citing opposition to that program from her Livonia and Redford Township districts. The bill provides for schools of choice within an intermediate (county) district.

In a political twist, Berman refused to support the bill in a conference committee but switched her vote to on the floor. She provided the 56th vote, the bare minimum for passage.

The Senate vote was 19-17, also a bare minimum. Voting yes were all area Republicans. Voting no were all 16 Democrats and one outstate Republican.

One outstate Republican was absent.

Engler didn't seek to cut adult education entirely but to shift much of the money into work-related programs run by his Jobs Commission Department. He was bitterly denounced by Democrats in both chambers.

"We're saying don't bother (to have hope). Wait 'til we build a new prison," said Sen. Joe Young Jr., D-Detroit, whose father went to "night school" in Detroit after leaving a rural farm where kids quit school early to pick crops.

Rep. Nick Ciaramitaro, D-Roseville, said the bill "still cuts adult ed by more than $40 million, squandering those funds on corporations whose track record is to offset their costs rather than assisting their employees." He referred to past state grants by the Engler administration to companies to train their own employees.

The bill raises per-pupil spending 3.3 percent to $5,308 next fiscal year. That's a bit ahead of the rate of inflation, now just below 3 percent.

Republicans like Gerald Law of Plymouth disliked the "choice" sections of the bill but were somehow persuaded to vote yes after a lengthy afternoon caucus and a dinner break.

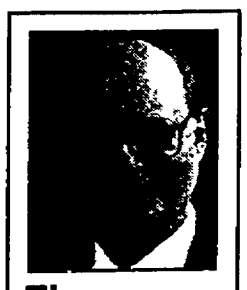
Derby dandies

Some Northville Scouts were right in the thick of it when the 1996 Pinewood Derby competition was held. Among the winners in the Gemini District were Steven Bennett of Pack No. 721 (first place Bear Class) and Tony Castro of Pack No. 1535 (fourth place). Other winners were from Livonia, Plymouth and Canton packs.

Dad's example paid off



Tim Richard

I had occasion recently to view two sets of family pictures.

One was taken by a dad, now divorced, of weekend trips to the sand dunes of western Michigan. Most of the videotape was of the men on dune buggies, zooming up and down the dunes, burning lotsa gas. Even the kids had motorized vehicles. If the kids used the swings or swam, I missed it.

The other was of my own growing up. Mom died just before last Christmas, so this winter's obligatory trip to Florida involved helping Dad, now 86, pack a lot of her things and resurrecting old Hudson's boxes full of black-and-white snapshots.

There were the usual wedding, baptism, graduation and front porch snapshots of three generations. But there was more. I learned how they raised me, particularly Dad's role.

Belle Isle was prominent. I fed squirrels, rode ponies, climbed monuments. Island Lake, which we reached by old Grand River Avenue because there was no I-96, and which had a campground, was the scene of many shots: Dad teaching me to float in the lake, me pumping water at an old-fashioned pump, me climbing a tall tree (Mom went ballistic when Dad brought that home from the drug store).

We didn't take the camera into the boat, but I recollect pulling in my share of bluegills with a cane pole. Kids in those days didn't have Mickey Mouse spinning rods. An adult rod and reel came later, when you knew how to handle them and remove snarls yourself.

I used a bamboo cane pole. Even today, when I own a fly rod and several spinning outfits, I favor a cane pole for deep-water, late-summer, inland lake angling for panfish.

Most revealing is Dad teaching me to row a boat. Few anglers on inland lakes used outboard motors. There had been a Depression, gas was rationed in "the real war," and families paid their own medical and dental bills without insurance.

There were two rowing strokes – pulling both oars at once and alternating oars. Pulling with the left hand made the boat go left (you faced backward), the right oar to turn right. You took along a dented can to bail, because those boats always leaked.

In later years, Dad acquired a small outboard motor. A "rite of passage" was when I got to operate it. He taught me to cut the speed when we passed other fishermen so our wake wouldn't disturb them. We didn't have Coast Guard Auxiliary classes. What boating manners you had, you learned from a father or uncle or grandpa.

This, by the way, was probably a 4 hp outboard, not the 75 or 100 hp behemoths guys use now. Today on Lake St. Clair, guys in cabin cruisers as tall as a two-story building will come within 40 feet of anglers at full throttle. It's so bad that the Michigan Senate has passed bills outlawing the harassing of anglers. Too bad a state law is necessary. Those guys' dads should have taught them manners.

Since those days, I have been in some pretty tight spots in boats and canoes on the Great Lakes and swollen rivers, but always was able to handle them. Good training.

This is not to say I'm a great person. It is to say that I learned to enjoy our natural resources without abusing them, and I got most of that instruction by following the example of one man.

County given award for budgeting techniques

As other counties throughout North America debate the merits of their budgets, Wayne County can sit back and celebrate – at least for now.

Wayne county has received the Distinguished Presentation Award from the Government Finance Officers Association (GFOA). This award is the highest form of recognition in governmental budgeting and represents a significant achievement in financial planning.

"The award is a major achievement by this county," said County Executive Edward McNamara.

In order to receive the budget award, the county had to satisfy nationally recognized guidelines for effective budget presentation.

By TIM RICHARD
Staff Writer

Voters ejected Sandra Ritter after three terms on the Oakland Community College board, despite a concentrated campaign by faculty union leaders, and replaced her with the slate of Jeanne Towar and Dr. John Wangler.

Former chancellor Patsy Calkins, whose ouster Ritter engineered last fall, beamed broadly as slate supporters celebrated at Wangler's Bingham Farms home Monday night. "It was vindication for Patsy," said Towar.

"It was a clique," Wangler, a retired OCC faculty member, said of the OCC Faculty Association leaders, after the faculty membership last month voted 2-1 against endorsing anyone. "They don't represent the faculty. They talk among themselves."

The union leaders and Ritter's Democratic friends targeted Huron Valley and Avondale school districts with poll workers. "We concentrated on places where there was a bond issue because we knew it would be controversial and there'd be a big turnout," said George Montgomery, a former Democratic state legislator now on the OCC faculty.

It almost worked. The Huron Valley School District area in Milford gave Ritter, a Waterford teacher and MEA member, a 1,500 plurality over the slate. But Royal Oak turned the tables by giving Towar, a publishing executive, a nearly 2,900 plurality and Wangler a 2,200 plurality.

Towar led the field of nine candidates with 10,768. Wangler was elected with 10,006. They take office at the July board meeting for six-year terms.

Ritter was third with 9,606.

Ellen Ferguson, a Pontiac teacher, MEA member and Bloomfield Hills resident, was fourth with 5,306 despite her admitted reluctance to campaign. Fifth was Dr. Thomas Sullivan, a Bloomfield Hills dentist who lives in Oakland Township, with 4,543.

Lawrence Kohl, a Royal Oak attorney from Farmington Hills and a newcomer, was sixth with 3,550. James Doyon, former county commissioner running as a "neutral" in the political dogfight, was seventh with 3,434. He led in Lamphere and Madison Heights, his old bailiwick. Then came Marguerite Fitzsimmons-Walker II, a Royal Oak attorney, and Jan Mack, an OCC graduate from Waterford, with 1,978 and 1,884 respectively.

"The conduct of the old board was ruthless," said County Executive L. Brooks Patterson, a big fan of Calkins who backed the Towar-Wangler slate. "The voters rejected Sandra Ritter's politics. It's a positive for OCC."

George Mosher, former board chair, Birmingham attorney and OCC Foundation supporter who helped put together the slate, said the campaign did "everything – signs, mailings, poll workers. Doris (his wife) handed out 7,000 pieces of literature. It was a joint effort of the whole committee."

Board vice-chair Judith Wiser, who worked on Kohl's campaign at the Huron Valley polls, said OCC campaigns are "changing. It used to be the mailings that got you in. With Davis and Crew (elected in 1994), it was poll workers."

Towar and Wangler will join holdover trustees Janice Simmons and Anne V. Scott in July to form a new 4-3 majority. Their agenda:

- Elect a new board chair to replace the retiring Douglas Wakefield of Southfield. Scott and Towar announced they want Simmons, whom the Ritter faction ousted as chair at the same time as it fired Calkins. Morose for months, Simmons was jubilant Monday night, saying, "I considered resigning from the board, and probably would have," if Ritter had been reelected.
- Take a hard look at a new administrative structure under discussion – changes described as adding a "super vice-chancellor."
- Get on with budget decisions. Voters in June of 1995 pumped in $25 million in new tax revenue for building renovations, new technology and new programs.
- Reviewing the neglected status of three campus presidents who don't have new contracts and haven't had raises recently. "They (the Ritter majority) have been tabling it," said Wangler. "The presidents say 'if they can do that to the chancellor, what protection is there for us?'"

A president for the Auburn Hills Campus also needs to be hired.

Voter turnout was low – below 50,000 – compared to 76,768 who voted in the June 1995 millage election and the record 1982 turnout of 99,714. The low turnout was 42,401 in 1984.

Police look for clues in robbery of video store

By WENDY PIERMAN MITZEL
Staff Writer

Novi Police are investigating a morning armed robbery at the FuncoLand Video Game store June 3.

A lone white male wearing a baseball cap, a black hooded sweatshirt, blue jeans and hiking boots entered the store at 11:18 a.m. and pointed a dark colored handgun at the manager and demanded money, according to police.

The manager handed over an undisclosed amount of cash and was told to go to the back room while the suspect fled on foot.

Only the manager was in the store at the time of the incident.

Employees in other stores in the shopping center said they saw a man fitting that description driving around that morning in a gray Ford Aerostar.

The suspect is described as in his early 20s, 5-foot-8-inches tall, weighing about 160 pounds with dark hair and a possible goatee.

Police said there have been no tips but anyone with information about the robbery can call the Novi Police at 348-7100.

New coffee house offers cyber cafe atmosphere

Oakland Community College has just opened its own "coffee house" in the lower level of Tirrell Hall (J building). The coffee house is the brainchild of Extension and Community Services Director Jamie Mason and veteran entertainer Dusty Rhodes. A room that had been used as a television production studio was converted into a "coffee house" with seating for 55, a "Coffee Beanery Ltd." outlet (owned by the college), a small stage with sound system, "Cyber Cafe" computers, and a unique ambiance.

"When Jamie first proposed the idea to me," explained Rhodes, "I noticed that, although the room had not been used for years as a production facility, the fixtures and electrical outlets for theater lights were still in place. I asked Jamie if there were any old theater lights available that we not being used in the Smith Theater located in the same building. I knew then that using the special effects of theater lighting I could make the room come alive."

With furniture purchased from the University of Michigan property disposal facility, guidance and equipment provided by the experts at the "Coffee Beanery LTD." company located in Flushing and the hard work of staff and administrators at all levels of Oakland Community College, Rhodes was able to create a very unique space he calls "The Studio Cafe." "The facility is primarily a Student Activities venue," said Rhodes, "however, we believe that students benefit a great deal by meeting people from all walks of life. Therefore we are making the room available to everyone: students, faculty, staff, and the community as well.

The Studio Cafe hours are 8:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. and 4 p.m. to 10 p.m. Monday through Thursday. Rhodes is hosting an open Mic Night on Thursday evenings from 7 to 10 p.m. – all are welcome (singers, poets, comedians, etc.) and he is inviting auditions for acts to be scheduled for Wednesday evenings. "Anyone who will work for tips is invited to audition," said Rhodes. "Good amateurs, semi-professionals, etc. "Several of my professional friends have volunteered to help me get the room started," he said, "and, of course, I intend to entertain here as well as maintain my "house gig" at the Botsford Inn on Friday and Saturday nights."

A "Grand Opening" night is scheduled for Thursday, May 30 from 6 to 10 p.m. A very talented faculty member, Dr. James (JJ) Berry, and his friends are going to put on a show based on the '50s "coffee house" scene in San Francisco, replete with readings from Jack Kerouac and Jazz renditions from the period. Cool Cats and Kitties are invited to wear costumes and be prepared for a "Beatnik" experience.

For more information, contact Dusty Rhodes at The Studio Cafe (810) 471-7638 or Jamie Mason at (810) 471-7595.

Proud adults graduate in triumph

By WENDY PIERMAN MITZEL
Staff Writer

The graduates were dressed in green and white but one held a small child, his son, in his arms.

Don Weingarden of Farmington Hills was there to see his son-in-law, Steve Rollet, finally get his high school diploma.

"He's been studying and keeping up with it. He's very serious about this graduation," he said.

Rollet and eight other students received their diplomas in a special Adult Education Graduation ceremony last Thursday.

Many of the students, like Rollet, returned after several years of dropping out of high school. Adult Education, a state funded program, gives students a chance to come back to school at night and work toward a diploma.

"One thing they all have in common is something happened in their lives when they were young that became an obstacle to finishing high school," Pat Wolynski, coordinator of adult ed told the audience. "But they have the knowledge of the importance and the determination to follow through with their education."

Rollet, 32, spoke to the audience, recounting his experience in coming back to school. He said he lived to party and eventually realized he was an alcoholic. Fifteen years later he went back to school. Now he has a diploma and is heading toward a bachelor's degree.

His classmates all had experiences that caused them to come back to the program to finish what they started.

Ron Adamson left the tenth grade a few years ago to go to work full time when he found out he would soon have a son. Now he's back on track, he said.

"I figured I wasn't going to get anywhere without it. I wanted to accomplish it for myself," said Adamson. "I was sick of going to everybody else's graduation and I wanted everybody to come to mine."

Now Adamson will onto Oakland Community College to study computer engineering. He also just accepted a job working at Panther.

Graduate Mike Ruhl said high school didn't work for him because he was too free spirited. He returned to night classes at Adult Education for "self gratification. I wanted to put (a diploma) on my wall."

Fathers take center stage

Father's Day is June 16 and dad doesn't take a back seat to anyone, according to the responses to our question "What makes your father special?" We heard from children as young as 3-years-old up to adulthood.

Tom Campbell is experiencing fatherhood, again. Being a dad is "far more enjoyable" the second time around, according to Campbell.

"I realize a lot of things that got me uptight 25 years ago weren't worth getting upset about the second time," Campbell said

The first half of Campbell's family includes Sharon McIntire, 31; and twins Tim and Pat Campbell, 30. All three graduated from Northville High School during the family's 20 year-residency in Northville.

"The second time around he is a lot more mellow," said Sharon.

For one month in his parenting career, Campbell had three children who were all 16-years-old.

Having 31 years of experience really helps, according to John

"He knows what to do," John said "He knows how to take care of kids "

When John awoke at 4 a.m. for feedings and then did not go back to sleep, his dad stayed up with him the rest of the night.

"The bonding process sure worked in our case," he said. "John and I have been buddies since day one."

Both John and his father enjoy meatloaf and sports activities including baseball. In the winter they go to a nearby pond and play hockey.

"He was a great sideline rooter for us," said Sharon, who played soccer while her twin brothers played baseball

Campbell coached Tim and Pat when they were little.

"I found I was tougher on them than anyone else (on the team)," he said

"In competitive sports, the emphasis should be on having fun," said Campbell, who vows to watch from the sidelines and keep his mouth shut this time.

"Hanging out with good people is important," Campbell said of his children's friends. "Drugs and alcohol are going to be there no matter when you go to school

"The one thing that makes me proud of John is that his older brothers, who just turned 30, they will say 'they don't come any nicer than John.'"

Campbell and the family took up a new sport two years ago – down hill skiing.

"He thought it would be an adventure," said John.

Campbell also has four grandchildren – Claire McIntire, 3; Scott McIntire, 3 months; Ryan Campbell, 3; and Justin Campbell, 1– whom he takes to the park and for ice cream.

"He exemplifies the definition of what a father should be," McIntire said.

Tom and his new family have lived in Novi since 1989.

For Dennis Buckley of Northville Township, Father's Day will be a memorable one. He will be landing in Rostov, Russia, to finalize papers for the adoption of his 8-month-old son, Garret.

Buckley and his wife, Cindy, also have a 3-year-old son, Patrick.

Along with the luggage Buckley needs for the trip will be everything an 8-month-old will need until he gets home to the States the following weekend, such as diapers, formula, baby food and clothes.

"The orphanage hands you the child with nothing," said Cindy.

The Buckleys traveled to Russia in February to meet Garret.

"I have every confidence in him," said Cindy. "I think the trip will be harder on Patrick than it is on Garret."

Buckley is teaching Patrick how to play golf and recently bought him cut-off clubs. They also mow the lawn together on the riding mower.

"He wrestles with him and makes him laugh," said Cindy. "They are buddies."

"He is a nice person and a hard worker and always thinks about other people first," Merideth Kotlarek said of her dad, Tim.

When Kotlarek was younger she lived in Kalamazoo, and visited with her father, who lived in South Lyon, every other weekend.

Today, Kotlarek, now 16 and a student at Mercy High School, lives with her mother, Donna Stoler-Harris, in Farmington Hills, only five miles away from her father, who moved to Novi. She sees him on Sundays, when they usually have dinner and go to church.

"The first thing he taught me was not to slack off in school," said Kotlarek, a National Honor Student.

Tim taught his daughter how to golf and slalom ski and they used to play softball together.

Cosentino finds beauty in city

By DOROTHY NASH
Special Writer

What's so great about Novi?

Every resident says it's the only place to live and raise a family.

And now Katherine Cosentino, who is a paralegal for a Northville law firm, tells how the Novi Beautification Commission, formed last August is giving Novi a visible reason for calling it great.

For a starter, Cosentino says, keep your eye on Ten Mile Road from the Police Department and the Civic Center to Taft Road.

"We're making it the beautiful one-half mile, using money the Chamber of Commerce has given us," for trees, flowers, planting.

That's the beginning.

The commission of six women and one man, appointed last August by the City Council, has been meeting, sometimes without let-up – every night for one week in May – laying down plans and procedures.

There will be inspections the end of June and a more complete one in September of businesses, places of worship, and subdivision entrances to determine work done on clean-up, brighten up, beautify property.

"We'll see in September how they have been maintained," Cosentino said. "We'll look for the best improved and we'll give recognition at a breakfast to which the mayor and City Council will be invited.

But it's not just public property, Cosentino said. "We're concerned about."

"We want to encourage homeowners" to get into the spirit. See that papers and rubbish are cleaned up. "Keep everything looking nice," she said. "It's the downhome spirit."

Her family obligations? Cosentino said, her husband is also busy in community activities. Their daughter is through school. "Working on the commission" just fits.

If you want to sit in on a meeting, you're welcome to come to the City Hall on the second Tuesday of the month at 7:15 p.m.

It's A Fact

Carol Workens

Stephanie Lynn Zaas will try to capture the crown when she competes in the Miss Michigan American Princess Pageant on June 29 and 30 at the Northville Hilton in Troy.

Stephanie is sponsored by her parents, Robin and Carl Zaas of Northville, the Starting Gate Saloon in Northville, and her older siblings, Roberta, Carl, Cassandra and Rachael, and their high school and college friends.

Most recently, Stephanie was a second finalist in the Miss U.S. Northern Pageant held in Romulus on Nov. 4, 1995, where she won two trophies.

Stephanie Zaas

Stephanie is a student at Amerman Elementary School in Northville and started competing in beauty pageants three years ago. She enjoys arts and crafts, soccer, swimming, dancing and being a Girl Scout Brownie.

Garage sale, tailgate style

Our Lady's League at Our Lady of Victory will be praying for sunshine for their annual Tailgate Sale on Saturday, June 15. The event will take place in the parking lot from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m.

Just about anything will be available to buy or sell including books, furniture, baked goods and clothing.

WILLIAM ALLAN ACADEMY

Spring has been a busy time for both students and faculty at William Allan Academy. In April, as part of the school's drug prevention series, third through fifth grade students listened to a recovering alcoholic and drug addict recount her experiences in junior and senior high school with drugs and alcohol and how the choices she made changed her life.

The horrifying details of her life as an alcoholic and addict mesmerized the audience and showed the students how substances that are supposed to make you feel good actually make you feel awful about yourself.

After Easter break, students concentrated on rehearsing and perfecting their musical numbers for the spring production held at Faith Community Presbyterian Church in Novi. This year's theme was kindness toward others and part of the production was adapted from Aesop's Tales. The students did a fantastic job as did music teacher Suzanne Larabell in producing the production.

Also in April, mystery writer Jeanne Dams visited with fourth and fifth graders and discussed writing with Beverly Brun's classroom of budding novelists.

Prospective kindergarten parents visited the school in May and met with teacher Trish Moore to hear about the curriculum kindergartners will be following for the 1996-97 school year.

The school held its annual spring open house/family night on May 7. Students and parents had a chance to visit with next year's teachers and see the classrooms. Everyone got to mingle with other parents and faculty while enjoying the goodies the room mothers brought in to eat.

Grades first through third visited the Cranbrook Museum exhibit of "What Makes Music."

While the other classes enjoyed Cranbrook, the fourth and fifth grades, along with teacher Beverly Brun and a number of parents and staff members had a wonderful day in Washington, D.C. From a misty morning the weather improved to a beautiful afternoon and the students were able to see the nation's capitol in its spring glory. They visited Arlington National Cemetery, the National Archives, the Capitol building, and several of the Smithsonian museums.

There were additional short stops for photo opportunities at the White House, the Iwo Jima memorial, the Jefferson and Lincoln memorials, and the Vietnam and Korean War memorials. Students also had a glimpse of the Pentagon. The trip gave the students a taste of the numerous interesting and historical attractions. Many of the students are eager to return there with their parents for further exploring.

Also in May, third through fifth grades were visited by employees of Detroit Edison who talked to the students about safety awareness for electricity.

Teacher Appreciation Week kicked off May 13 and culminated in a wonderful luncheon prepared for the teachers and staff on Thursday of that week. Many thanks to all who helped with this event, especially Gretchen Beems and Reba Clemmons.

On June 4, William Allan Academy's Tuesday/Thursday preschool held its 1996 graduation ceremonies. The Monday/Wednesday/Friday preschoolers held their ceremonies on June 12. Both ceremonies were followed by a potluck lunch provided by the proud moms and dads.

Honors choir members sang for residents of Allen Terrace on June 7. The choir, led by music teacher Suzanne Larabell, entertained residents with such classics as "We're Off to See the Wizard," "Any Dream Will Do," "On the Good Ship Lollipop," and "Straight From the Heart."

Second and third graders were treated to another great field trip this spring. The group visited the University of Michigan's Exhibit Museum in Ann Arbor on June 11. Kindergartners walked to Maybury State Park to see the animals at the petting farm on June 12.

William Allan Academy's 1995-96 school year will come to an end June 14 with prize day and special William Allan Academy Olympics, complete with ribbons and medals awarded to the best in each field. This will be followed by a potluck lunch.

Students and staff will be saying goodbye to our graduating fifth graders and to second grade teacher Rita Gordon, who will not be returning next year. Good luck to all of you. We will miss you.

To all students, teachers, and staff, have a safe and restful summer. See you back at school Sept. 3.

Youth Volunteer of the Week

Group packs overalls for trip

By CAROL WORKENS
Staff Writer

Five Northville High School students will board a plane on Saturday for Colorado, but their main focus will not be to bask in the sun.

Phil Cowles, Karl Farina, Robin Gosdeck, Adrienne Manarina and Seton Williams are members of First Presbyterian Church of Northville's youth group who will participate in a Habitat for Humanity work camp in Denver.

The camp includes five days of work, two days of sight seeing and travel days. The group will bunk in the First Presbyterian Church of Boulder, where they will also attend worship services.

"I'm sure it will change them tremendously in positive ways," said Kathleen King, acting Christian Education Director of the church and a veteran of six work camps. She, along with her husband Kevin will be the adult participants/chaperones for the project.

Through a very successful silent auction, the youth group raised enough money to cover most of the expenses. The youth group also sold hot dogs, chips and soda pop in the concession. Each participant contributed $100 to Habitat for supplies, van rental, food and incidentals and paid for their own plane tickets.

For four members of the group, this will be the first Habitat for Humanity work camp. Although Phil has participated in four local projects for the organization, this will be his first work camp out of state.

Robin, who will be a sophomore in the fall, is involved in the choir and runs track at school.

Robin's motivation to join the work camp is "to help other people and to get to know the youth of our church better."

Robin will also be volunteering at the church's Vacation Bible School this summer, helping a teacher in a classroom with fourth and fifth graders.

She attends Youth Fellowship programs and church school on Sundays and is the daughter of Nancy Gosdeck.

Adrienne Manarina, who also will be entering the 10th grade in the fall, is a member of the choir and the track team.

"I just like helping people out, plus I thought it would be fun too," Adrienne said.

Adrienne also volunteers for other projects as they come up at the church like the Crop Walk, and for the youth group in the soup kitchens.

The daughter of Judy and Bill Manarina, Adrienne hopes to get in a little hiking during her off hours.

For Seton, this trip marks the second time he has traveled to Colorado. A 10th grade student in the fall, Seton is the first chair trumpet for fifth hour band.

Seton flew with his parents, Treva Womble and Bob Williams, to Colorado last summer. Both his mother and father are musicians with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra and when they performed in Vale last summer, Dale accompanied them on the trip.

Dale is undaunted by spending a week away from home but flying makes him a bit nervous.

Phil volunteered for this work camp so that "other people can benefit from how we can help them."

A member of the golf team and jazz band, Phil is the son of Dave and Suzanne Cowles.

Phil does just about everything with the youth group and also donated a couple of items for the silent auction.

Church Notes

Vacation Bible School for children age kindergarten through sixth grade at FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH OF NORTHVILLE, 217 N. Wing in Northville, is scheduled for June 17 through 21 from 9 a.m. until noon. This year's theme is "Kingdom of the Sun, a Prayer Safari." The week will include Bible stories, crafts, games, snacks, songs, and skits.

Children in the community are invited to register for the program, for which there is no cost, but a good will offering will be accepted.

For more information, call the church at (810) 348-1020.

NOVI UNITED METHODIST CHURCH, 41671 West Ten Mile Road in Novi, moves to a summer schedule on June 16 when services will be held at 9 a.m. and 10:30 a.m. The 9 a.m. service will be an informal service lasting 45 minutes. The 10:30 a.m. service will be traditional. Between services there will be a fellowship/greeting time with coffee and tea available.

There will be no Junior Church this summer. Children are encouraged to attend the earlier service.

Nursery and toddler care is available at the 10:30 a.m. service.

Anniversary

Charles and Wilma Lea Castillo

Charles and Wilma Lea Castillo of San Diego, Calif., will be celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary in San Francisco, Calif., at the end of the month. They were married in southern California on June 27, 1946. Though it has been a yearly ritual for the Castillos to celebrate their anniversary in San Francisco, this year will mark a very special celebration.

The Castillo family members are: sons Doug (Estella) of Chula Vista, Calif.; Jim (Mary) of West Bend, Wis.; Mick (Kimi) of Anniston, Ala.; and Rich (Dona) of Albuquerque, N.M.; daughter Kitty Nadolni of Northville; 13 grandchildren, Chad, Paul, Jocelyn, Andrew, Alea, Serra, John-David, Jason, Carolyn, Alex, James, Michael, Robert; and two great grandchildren, Christian and Daniel.

During their marriage, the Castillos were residents of Northville for 25 years.

Charles was born in Central America. He was a speech instructor at Schoolcraft College.

Wilma Lea, born in San Bernardino, Calif., was an English and forensics instructor for the Northville schools.

Scott and Susan Janke

Susan Marie Siebenaller and Scott James Janke were married on March 5, 1996, at St. John's Episcopal Church, Naples, Fla. Officiants at the double ring ceremony were Rev. William O'Connell and uncle to the bride, Rev. William Poston. The bride was given in marriage by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Siebenaller.

A reception for 50 guests followed at Maxwell's on the Bay in Naples. Upon returning to Michigan a reception for 200 guests was held at the Bay City Country Club in Bay City, Mich.

The bride is the daughter of Richard and Jacqueline Siebenaller of Northville. She graduated from Northville High School in 1979, and received her bachelor's degree from Michigan State University in 1983, and her master's degree in social work from Wayne State University in 1984. She is employed as a medical social worker at Mid Michigan Regional Medical Center in Midland.

Her bridal attendants were maid-of-honor Chiara Selby of Whittemore, Mich., and bridesmaid Patricia Bouchillon of Birmingham, a cousin of the bride. The bridal gown was of white damask, off-the-shoulder sleeveless sheath trimmed in lace and pearl designed with a detachable full train. The bride wore an antique aquamarine ring of her grandmother's and her cousin's aquamarine and diamond drop earrings.

The bridal headpiece was of a damask covered pill box design with pearl trim and an attached veil. The bridal bouquet consisted of white tulips wrapped in tulle.

The bridegroom is the son of Richard and Melissa Janke of Essexville, Mich. He graduated from Bay City Central High School in 1979, and is a district sales manager for Valley Industrial Products in Bay City.

Attending the groom was best man and brother Douglas Janke of Portage. Groomsman was Blair Moulthrop of Bay City and attending as usher was Robert Siebenaller of Northville, brother of the bride.

After a honeymoon in Naples and the Florida Keys, the couple returned to make their home in Midland, Mich.

Engagement

Eric Hannapel/Beth Swayne

Dr. and Mrs. Daniel Swayne of Northville announce the engagement of their daughter, Beth Ellen, to Eric David Hannapel, the son of Mrs. Hannapel-Nolan of Middleville, Mich.

The bride-elect graduated from Northville High School in 1989, and from Michigan State University in 1993. She is currently in her fourth year at the University of Michigan dental school.

The bridegroom-elect graduated in 1985 from Thornapple Kellogg High School, attended Western Michigan University, and graduated in 1992 from the University of Michigan dental school. He graduated this year from the University of Michigan with a master's degree in orthodontics.

Birth

Mason Hahn

Richard Hahn and Anne Bongiovanni of Northville announce the birth of their son, Mason Adam Hahn, on May 16, 1996. He was born in Sinai Hospital, Detroit, and weighed 7 pounds, 1 ounce. Mark Adam has a brother, Jim Herren, age 14.

His grandparents are Joe and Donna Bongiovanni of Northville and Ross and Barb Hahn of Nashville, Tenn.

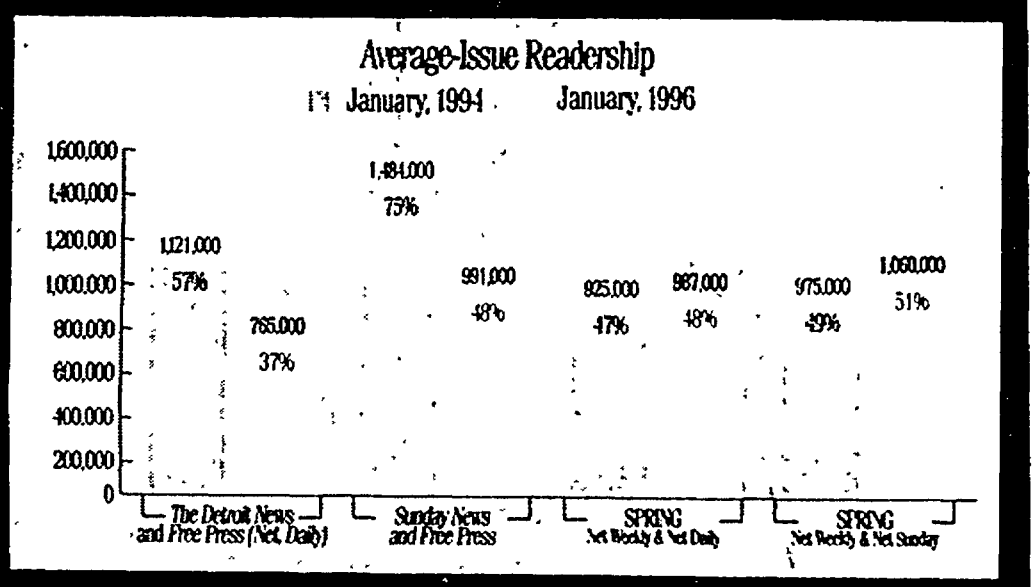
Suburban Detroit:
We have the leadership in readership!



SPRING delivers the suburbs with more weekday readers than The News and Free Press combined!*

Now there are more reasons than ever to go home with SPRING Newspapers. SPRING continues to be the primary weekday newspaper for suburban residents of this suburb-driven market.* For example:

- 48% of adults in the SPRING survey area read SPRING weekly and daily newspapers.
- SPRING delivers, on average, 1,060,000 total readers every week.
- That means SPRING delivers 1,167,000 gross impressions for an entire week.

Compare these numbers to your other media alternatives: only 37% of adults in the SPRING survey area read the weekday Free Press or The Detroit News.

More suburban Detroit readers turn to SPRING.

- SPRING delivers more weekday suburban readers with household incomes over $50,000.
- SPRING delivers more suburban homeowners (51%) than any other weekday newspaper.

To find out more about how the Detroit market has changed, and for information about our current audit, call the SPRING Newspaper Network at 1-800/382-8878.

Dads remembered for quality time

"He has worked hard all his life to support five kids," said Kristine Frogner of her father, Jim. "He has always been there for us. He has supported us emotionally and financially."

Things were different when the Frogner children, Kristine, Ann (Kelly), Chuck, David and Jim, were growing up 50 years ago.

Jim worked a lot, except on Sunday, when the family would drive to a local park for a picnic or to their grandparents home in Northville.

"Kids were home then," said Kristine, "they weren't playing sports."

But every Friday night Jim would take his family to the Red Devil Restaurant in Detroit for dinner, which usually consisted of pizza.

The Frogners moved from Detroit to Northville when Kristine was 13. All five graduated from Northville High School.

"He is a very generous, loving man," she said.

Vacations were spent tent camping or sometimes in a rental cottage.

Jim also went camping and canoeing with the Boy Scouts when his sons were growing up.

"He was good in an emergency," said Kristine, who managed to be the only sibling to go through childhood without a trip to the hospital.

"He was the one who took everyone to the emergency room.

WHAT MAKES A DAD SPECIAL?

For Chloe Borai, age 4, of Novi: "My dad is special because he gives me presents, I love him, he gives me hugs and kisses, he reads me stories, he calls me on the telephone, he loves to play with me, he sneaks treats to me (when mommy's not looking), he takes me to the Daddy/Daughter Dance (at the Novi Civic Center)."

Mary Lou Anolik of Novi took the bait when a clipping of the Novi News/Northville Record's request for special dads appeared taped to the family's refrigerator.

She asked her two daughters, Mary and Alison, if they wanted to respond to the newspaper's request.

"Yes," said 5-year-old Mary.

"My dad is special because he helps me go swimming in the lake," said Mary, who was also speaking on behalf of her 3-year-old sister Alison.

"He takes me for rides on the boat and takes me fishing," Mary said of her dad, Dave, who also likes to fish.

"My dad is special because he is a good craftsman, he helps me with problems and he loves me," said Novi resident, Lauren Knurek, 9.

"He spends a lot of time with me," said 9-year-old Allison Kuzak of her dad, Derrick. "He does everything with me – plays basketball with me, does computer games with me, and takes me to the ice cream place."

"I'm probably a little bit better than he is on computer games," she said.

She still remembers the time her dad took her to see a marching band and to Disney World.

"I was scared of Pluto, so my dad helped me with that," she said.

Both enjoy going on rides at Cedar Point and Allison said their favorite ride is the lady bug and the big slides.

Allison and her father and mother, Cathy, live in Northville.

"He doesn't do sports but he makes up for it," said Dale Ernst of his father, Clyde.

"He goes to the movies with me and plays pool, and he buys me treats every once in a while," the 11-year-old said. "When I want to watch something on TV he always lets me," Dale said.

Both Ernst and his dad like suspense and comedies. The most recent movie they saw together was Executive Decision.

Dale and his father and mother, Valerie, live in Northville.

"Even though he has a full time job he often will hang out with me and talk and stuff," said 10-year-old Keith Hudolin of his dad, Steve.

"He takes me to the batting cage often, practices sports with me," Keith said. "Often if it's not a real bad movie (on TV or a rental) he'll let me watch it.

"He often plays basketball with me and he'll play chess and computer games with me."

The Hudolin family lives in Northville.

If one wanted to find a family that has roots in Northville, one need look no further than the Cole family.

Ruth (Fulkerson) Cole graduated in 1952 with 80 fellow classmates. At that time, Northville High School was still located on Main Street.

"We knew all of our classmates," Cole said.

Cole had some of the same teachers as her son, Robert (Brad), but by the time Brad graduated, a new high school had been built.

Brad graduated in 1972 and has one sister and four brothers. All but the youngest also graduated from Northville.

When Erin was at Meads Mill Middle School, he had the same basketball coach as his father, Omar Harrison.

Jennifer took after her uncle Guy, who graduated in 1974, more than her father.

"My father was the jock type," she said. "He ran track, football and basketball."

Jennifer, on the other hand, was a member of the symphonic and marching bands and jazz ensemble, and was also on the equestrian team for two years.

"He tells us funny stories about the high school and the pranks and stuff that went on there," said Jennifer. "This graduating class is more creative in their pranks."

Jennifer's future plans include attending Madonna University where she will major in nursing with a minor in sign language studies.

"What you put into education you'll get out of it," Jennifer said is her father's most often used phrase.

Brad's dad, Robert, graduated from Northville High School in 1951.

"Both sides of our family have been from this area for well over 100 years, maybe longer," Brad said. "I'm believe my grandfather also went to Northville High School."

Gearing up for something new in Northville

Local businessman fulfills longtime dream

Tom Rice, owner of the Gitfiddler music store, has had a dream of opening a place that would be reminiscent of the original "The Raven Gallery" for almost 20 years.

The Raven Gallery created an intimate environment for musicians to perform folk music during the 1960s and '70s in the metro Detroit area.

Northville's version of The Raven is scheduled to open July 27. It will offer a regular venue for folk and all other forms of acoustic music by local and national talent.

The Raven will also house art exhibits.

Rice has already moved the Gitfiddler store and teaching studio to the new location on Center Street and reopened under the name the Northville Academy of Music & Arts. Terry Gonda, who was one of the performers at the fund-raiser held this past weekend, is also a music teacher at the Academy.

Rice has established a sponsorship program to help fund the final phase of construction of The Raven.

Perennials, Woodland Wildflowers, Rare Alpines, Dwarf Conifers, and unusual flowering shrubs
Spring is finally here, really, and we have 19 greenhouses full of plants. We are pleased to be able to offer one of the largest selections of wildflowers and ferns in the U.S., including many trillium species and such rarities as Shortia and Jeffersonia. We also have an incredible selection of Primula species mostly from China and Europe. There are thousands of potted perennials to choose from: old favorites to rarities found nowhere else, we have it all. Be sure to check out the dozens of new species of Campanulas and Gentians in the collections corner this year. We also have a fine collection dwarf conifers and flowering shrubs in smaller sizes at very affordable prices for gardeners with taste and patience.
Take I-96 to the Fowlerville exit, go south 1/8 mi to Van Buren Rd. then west on Van Buren 1 mi to Gregory Rd. and go south 1.75 mi to #1310. (long driveway)

'Spy Hard' should die hard, says critic

READER MOVIE REVIEWS

SPY HARD
BY AARON MICHAEL KORTE
BRIGHTON

The movie was typical of Nielsen's humor, but it fell way short of some of his best, such as "Airplane" "Bad Golf Made Easier" and "Naked Gun." Many of the scenes are spoofs of other movies and the attempts at humor just weren't funny.

Andy Griffith lowered his standards by appearing in this film. His role as a bad guy was a far cry from his "Matlock" days.

This movie was quite forgettable. Maybe retirement is the best thing for Nielsen. His movies of late have lacked that slapstick humor that he's so good at doing.

Save your time and money, don't see this movie. If you go to the video store, and it's the last video left on the shelf, then it might be worth renting for sake of boredom. Well, maybe not.

CITY HALL
BY DR. GAIL MAJCHER
NORTHVILLE

Someone in city hall has allowed a known mafia criminal to walk free. Consequently he ends up shooting a cop. The plot is based on the unraveling of which high ranking officials were crooked enough in the system to allow this to happen.

Unfortunately it is quite easy early on to figure out who-done-it. Basically the movie lacks punch and leaves the audience with wanting more depth.

Al Pacino's acting is always the same and this holds true in his role as the mayor.

He makes eloquent speeches and maintains the bright, guy-from-the-streets-who-made-good mentality. His acting is good but his role lacks substance. This is unfortunate because he has the ability to do more.

John Cusack steals the show with his acting as Pacino's underling who is doing the investigating. In spite of the script, he brings some emotions to his role which plays well with the audience.

Bridget Fonda gets lost in the shuffle and tends to blend in with the scenery. This is a movie where the audience wants more and it just is not there. Wait for the dollar show.

CLUELESS
BY HEATHER WADOWSKI
NORTHVILLE

They're rich, popular, beautiful and totally clueless. The movie is pointless. Still, "Clueless" will make you laugh, and I recommend it.

"Clueless" stars Alicia Silverstone ("The Crush") as Cher, a spoiled, selfish, gorgeous Beverly Hills brat. (She has her own Jeep, even though she can't drive yet since she's only 15.)

But Cher has one quality that makes her stand out from her classmates. She can make-over anyone and turn them into a show stopper. Whether it's her "bogus" teachers or a new girl with "no sense of fashion direction whatsoever," Cher will find their better qualities and make them shine.

But soon Cher realizes everyone has a "significant other" except her, and no matter how hard she tries, she can't find a boyfriend.

But that's because love's staring Cher right in the face in the last place she'd look...Her home.

'Clueless' receives four stars out of five. It's humorous, but also pointless and somewhat unbelievable. Still, it's cute and a good film to see.

Send your movie reviews

Siskel and Ebert do it. Now you can too. We are asking for our readers' help in making the Movie Page more lively and interesting. If you've seen a movie — either in current release or on video, we'd like to hear about it.

Whether you rated the movie four stars, hated it, or would only give it lukewarm praise, we'd like to hear your thoughts about what you've seen on film.

This is your opportunity to play movie critic in your HomeTown newspaper. From the onset, we've wanted to make the Movies Page an area where our readers can share their opinions about movies with their friends and neighbors.

Have you seen "Mission Impossible?" What did you think?

How about "The Rock?" "Phantom?" "Spy Hard?" or the soon to be released "Cable Guy?" Let us — and your neighbors — know.

Limit your mini-reviews to 200 words and send them to HomeTown Newspapers, c/o Katie Bach, 323 E. Grand River, Howell, MI 48843. All reviews should include your name, address and daytime telephone number. Reviews without this information may not be published.

If you have any questions or want more information about the Movie Page, please call Katie Bach at (517) 548-2000.

BARBARA CAMPBELL of Northville is among the students who completed their degree program from the University of Evansville on May 4. She is the daughter of Keith and Nancy Campbell of Northville.

CHRISTOPHER STOKES MAUPIN of Northville made the honor list for the 1996 spring semester at the University of Missouri-Rolla.

Students named must carry a minimum of 12 hours and earn a 3.2 grade point average or better.

Maupin is a sophomore majoring in chemical engineering. He is the son of Michael W. and Elizabeth S. Maupin of Northville.

ANTHONY THOMAS DEBENEDET of Northville was named with high honors to the spring 1996 Dean's List for the school of engineering at Vanderbilt University.

In the school of engineering, students with an average of 3.5 or better are recognized with high honors.

DeBenedet is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Falvio N. DeBenedet of Northville.

PAMELA SHOEMAKER has recently been awarded with the Janice Marston Memorial Scholarship by the College of Education at Michigan State University. This scholarship provides assistance to needy and worthy adult students reentering the College of Education to complete their education.

An MSU alumna, Shoemaker received her B.S. in nursing in 1994. Currently, she is a post-B.A student majoring in elementary education.

Shoemaker also volunteers for three hours a week at Old Village School in Northville working with students with both cognitive and emotional impairments.

She will receive her teacher's certificate in 1997, would like to teach second grade, and plans to continue her studies for a master's degree in curriculum development.

ROBIN FREDERICK of Northville received the Measurex Corp. 1993 Award, an endowed scholarship from Miami University's Pulp and Paper Foundation. The award is based on cumulative grade point average, leadership qualities and career potential.

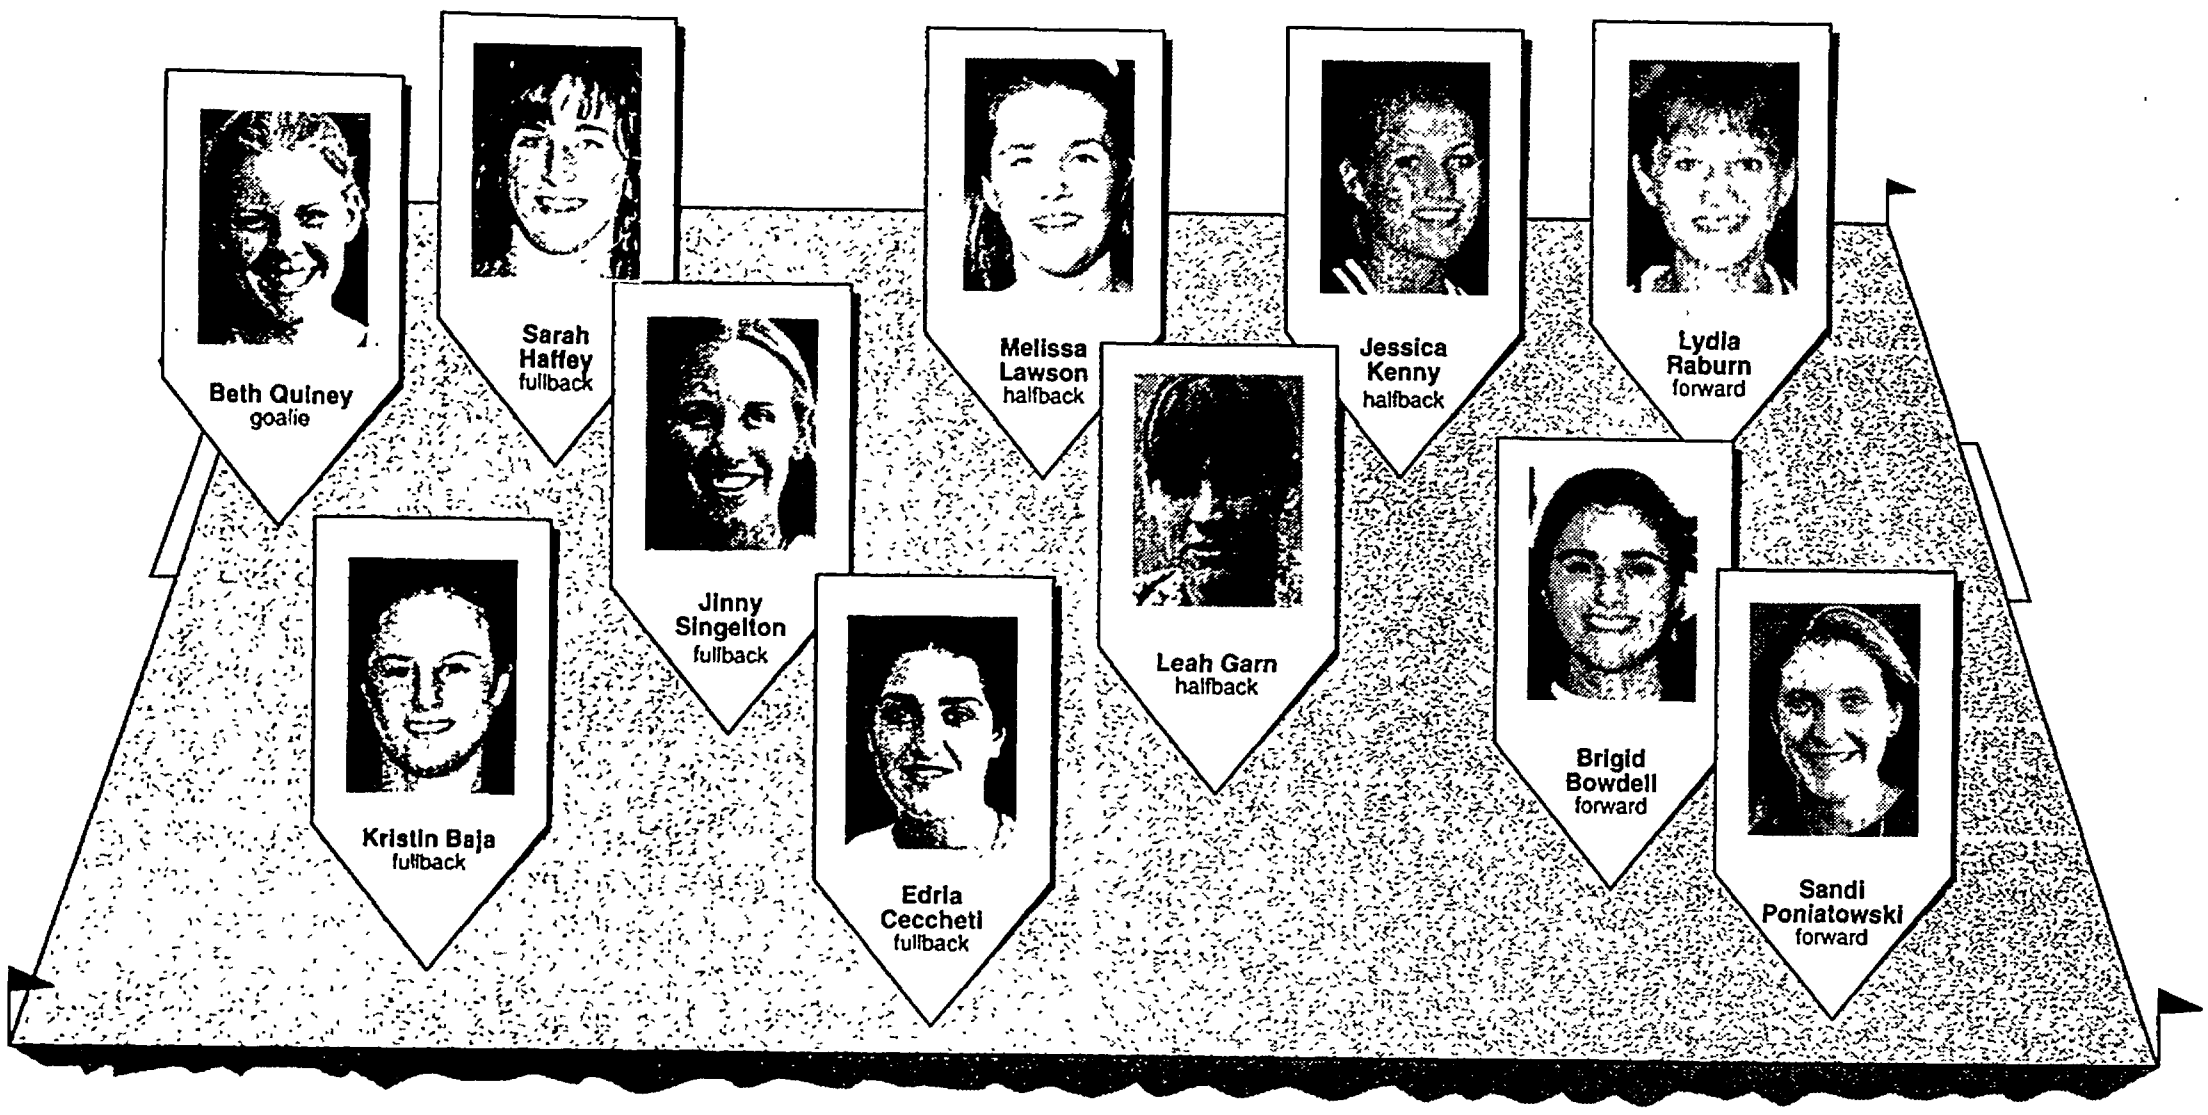
YOUNG GUNS



Bowdell, Baja make top area soccer squad

They seem to know just how the game should be played. Pressure is something they shrug off and just when you think they should be shaking with wide-eyed wonderment they take a veteran player to school with moves that make you want to check their birth certificates for errors.

Some would call them cocky but we prefer to call them the Young Guns.

They are the not-so-secret weapons on HomeTown Newspapers' East All-Area first-team soccer squad. While most postseason awards tend to go to the veterans of a given sport – the players who pay their dues and then reap the rewards – this spring's girls soccer squad bucks the trend.

Sure, there are a few seniors on this year's team. Players like Milford's Sandi Poniatowski, South Lyon's Sarah Haffey and Lakeland's Jinny Singleton have been through the wars on the field and they've taught more than a few youngsters some valuable lessons.

But this spring also saw a wealth of youthful talent emerge in the area. Players like freshmen Brigid Bowdell of Northville and Melissa Lawson of South Lyon proved that it's possible to be a dominant force on their respective teams without having years of seasoning. And Novi super sophomores Jessica Kenny and Lydia Raburn both showed that you can build on the raw talent of youth as they improved in only their second seasons on the high-school playing field.

This year's all-area first team is loaded with talent of all ages but there's no doubt that the Young Guns are the ones that add a certain measure of firepower to the team's lineup.

Here's a look at the members of the first team as selected by the sports editors of The Milford Times, The Northville Record, The Novi News and the South Lyon Herald:

BETH QUINEY
Milford, goalie

Quiney was a perfect example of the youthful talent in the area this season.

She played with the confidence and poise of a player well beyond her years. Quiney allowed only 10 goals in 16 games this season for a remarkable .625 goals against average. She also posted 10 shutouts on the season and recorded a 90 percent save ratio.

Her athletic ability and soft hands made her a tough obstacle in the net for opposing attackers and Quiney always gave the appearance of a cool and collected keeper no matter what the circumstances.

"She always looked in control out there," Milford coach Malia Sauer said. "You'd talk to her later and find out that she really was nervous but she always looked calm on the field."

Quiney was an all-KVC selection this year.

KRISTIN BAJA
Northville, sweeper

Just call her "Rock." That just might be an appropriate nickname for Baja who was, literally, Northville's last line of defense this year.

The junior used her size, speed and smarts to capture an All Area first team selection.

Baja had enough speed to cover both ends of the field for Northville. She also had enough size and strength to battle top enemy forwards to a standstill.

Baja said her knowledge of the game, which she has played most of her life, allows her to make smart plays.

Baja earned all-division honors in the Western Lakes conference.

SARAH HAFFEY
South Lyon, fullback

Haffey, an all-KVC performer this spring, is not only considered one of the top defenders in the league she's also gotten recognition as one of the top markers in the state.

She received honorable mention all-state recognition for the past two seasons and South Lyon coach Bill Stevanovich said Haffey was the catalyst on a strong defensive unit this spring as well.

"She's our leader," Stevanovich said.

Haffey, who's become known as one of the best slide tacklers in the area, was a three-year varsity starter for the Lions and was team co-captain for the past two seasons.

JINNY SINGLETON
Lakeland, fullback

Another strong defensive player who made a specialty at slide-tackling, Singleton was slowed a bit by an injury this year.

She fractured her ankle sometime around midseason and by the end of the year the injury forced her out of the Lakeland lineup. Even with the injury Singleton was considered one of the top back-line players in the KVC.

"She was still one of the most dominating players defensively and she had a great head for the game which helped her make up for the injured ankle," LHS coach Mike Braden said.

A big player who still possessed impressive speed, Singleton was an honorable mention selection in the KVC this spring.

EDRIA CECCHETTI
Lakeland, fullback

Cecchetti came into her own as a dominating defender this year.

Like Singleton, she also was a very smart player who developed a knack for taking the ball away from opponents with a quick-slide tackle. She took a lot of Lakeland's free kicks this year and the accuracy on her boots made her a valuable weapon.

Cecchetti was an all-KVC selection this season and Braden said her never-say-die attitude also helped the Eagles during a tough year.

"She would just never let you quit," Braden said. "She always kept her teammates going."

The coach also feels Cecchetti has the skills to become a dominating force in the area next season.

JESSICA KENNY
Novi, halfback

An All-Kensington Valley Conference pick, Kenny has a solid season for the Wildcats.

The sophomore missed several games with injury. Coach Larry Christoff said it made a big impact on his lineup.

Kenny tallied five goals and three assists. Christoff said she'll post even better numbers next spring and has to in order for Novi to be strong.

"I think she'll have to be a strong point for us in the middle of the field," he commented.

Playing at midfield, Kenny's job is to distribute the ball on offense, Christoff said. She also has to be responsible on defense, though.

"She played very good defense," the coach said.

MELISSA LAWSON
South Lyon, halfback

This spring Lawson became the first South Lyon player ever to be named to the all-KVC team as a freshman.

She was the Lions' leading scorer totaling seven goals and six assists. Even a broken arm suffered in the team's first game of the year against Northville couldn't slow her down. Lawson simply played with a cast on the arm for most of the year and she emerged as one of the quickest rising stars in the KVC.

"(The cast) was a little bit of a handicap for her but she's the kind of player who's naturally gifted so it didn't hurt her too bad," Stevanovich said.

A player who's equally skilled with both feet, Lawson also saw action at stopper earlier this season when Haffey was injured.

LEAH GARN
Milford, junior halfback

A hamstring injury haunted Garn for most of the season but she still produced at midfield for Milford and was named all-KVC for a second consecutive year.

Mustangs place trio on second area team

To win the Stanley Cup in professional hockey you need a mixture of players.

Having only super-skilled athletes, such as Sergei Federov and Steve Yzerman, isn't enough – just ask the Detroit Red Wings. Every team needs a few "grinders" and "muckers," players who get by on hard work and determination.

HomeTown Newspapers' East All-Area Soccer second team has that winning combination.

Skilled players such as Novi's Kirsty Greer and Northville's Sue McQuaid and Lyndsay Huot give our team its star quality. Novi's Elizabeth Thompson and Milford's Megan Petersen also give our All-Area second team the grit and fight it needs for balance.

You may also notice a definite defensive look on the All-Area second team. While scoring was not in great abundance around the area this spring there certainly was plenty of defense to go around. That's why our squad recognizes two goalkeepers and four defenders for their efforts this year.

So, without further ado, let's take a look at HomeTown Newspapers' East All-Area second team as picked by the sports editors of The Milford Times, The Northville Record, The Novi News and the South Lyon Herald.

MEGHAN CAUZILLO
Northville, goalie

The senior finally got her chance to show what she could do and delivered.

Cauzillo, who was named to the WLAA's All-Western Division team, recorded eight shutouts – including a 1-0 whitewash of eventual state champion Canton. She also had a goals against average of less than one.

"I felt like I had a pretty good year," Cauzillo said last week. "But I was hoping for our team to finish better in the state playoffs."

Northville lost to Novi in the opening round of district play this year. But in her sophomore season, Cauzillo led the Mustangs to the state semi-final against Brighton.

CARDINALS

In an exciting game between the Cardinals and the Astros, there was great play by both teams. Highlights included fantastic batting by all players. Sara Cole, No. 11 for the Cardinals, had a great game. She made some terrific plays at first base. A perfect throw to home plate by the Cardinals' No. 3, Alex Posa, helped the team turn in an excellent performance.

HORNETS

The Plymouth No. 4 "Hornets" played to a 2-2 tie game against Plymouth No. 7 in their final game of the spring season on Sunday, June 2. The Hornets, who were undefeated, finished in first place in Division No. 2 of the Western Suburban Soccer League with a 7-0-1 record. Hornet goals were scored by forwards Zachary Hoernschemeyer and Manuel Bartolo.

Hornet coach and Northville Township resident Craig Blunk was "proud of the team's accomplishments." Blunk's son Adam, who plays for the Hornets, and Manuel Bartolo are fourth grade classmates at Winchester Elementary and Cub Scout members in Northville Pack No. 903. Congratulations boys.

Her superb vision and passing ability made her a threat on offense and Garn's natural defensive instincts made her a top two-way player.

Even when she was slowed by the injury she still drew double-team attention from most teams in the area.

"When she was injured she still gave as much or more than some people did when they were healthy," Sauer said. "We knew that if we got her the ball she'd know what to do with it to make things happen."

Garn led Milford with 16 goals and also chipped in six assists this year.

LYDIA RABURN
Novi, forward

As a freshman, Raburn burst on to the KVC scene, scoring tons of goals and leading the Wildcats to the upper echelon of the league.

This spring, as you might expect, Raburn was a marked woman. Teams double and even triple teamed her at times.

Despite that fact, the sophomore scored 14 goals and added 13 assists. Christoff said those totals would've been even higher if she were a selfish player, which she isn't.

Raburn was named to the All-KVC team for the second straight year.

> BRIGID BOWDELL
> Northville Soccer player

With the development of other Wildcat forwards, defenses will be less able to concentrate on Raburn. That should lead to big numbers in her junior year, Christoff said.

BRIGID BOWDELL
Northville, forward

Bowdell scored better than 20 goals for the Mustangs, despite being marked by opponents' top defenders. A tall, strong player, Bowdell is adept at kicking with either foot.

She also has a scorer's mentality.

"I wanted to score a lot of goals," she said.

Bowdell is part of the Olympic Development. The freshman, in fact, is so well regarded that one college scout said she could've started for their team this season.

Bowdell made the WLAA's all-conference team.

SANDI PONIATOWSKI
Milford, forward

On the surface it appeared that Poniatowski, a four-year letterwinner at Milford, had a bit of a down year.

Her goals and assists dropped off considerably this year but part of that was due to the fact that the entire MHS team had a rash of injuries and Poniatowski had to take on more of a defensive role.

She still carried much of the offensive load for the team and produced 15 goals and eight assists while being named to the all-KVC team. Poniatowski, who's also a candidate for all-state honors, improved as a playmaker this season for the Redskins.

"She made some beautiful crosses for us this year," Sauer said, "but unfortunately we couldn't always take advantage of them."

After scoring 43 goals over the past two seasons Poniatowski graduates as one of the leading scorers in Milford history. She also was one of the top scholar athletes in the state and she's earned an academic scholarship to Kalamazoo College where she plans on continuing her soccer career.

Mustangs place trio on second squad

ERICA KLAUSING
Lakeland, goalie

It's not easy being the last line of defense on a team in the midst of a rebuilding process but Klausing handled it well this spring.

The junior had a 1.90 goals against average between the posts for Lakeland and often kept the Eagles in their games with a dominating effort in net.

Klausing's top performance this year actually came in a losing effort. The No. 1 ranked team in the state at the time, Brighton, downed LHS 5-0 earlier this year but Klausing was certainly the star of the game making 30 saves against the high-powered Bulldogs.

Klausing was an all-KVC selection this year and her coach Mike Braden said her speed and aggressiveness in goal allowed her to stand out among a talented pack of league goalies.

"She can distribute the ball well with either her arm or her foot," Braden said, "and she's not afraid to come out at you and take the ball right off your foot."

Klausing also picked up a rare assist this season while playing in goal.

JACKIE BURKE
South Lyon, fullback

Burke's versatility and leadership enabled her to become a key part of the Lions' defense this spring.

A three-year varsity player, Burke moved from forward to stopper this year because of an injury to Beth Bindon of SL. Burke played so well at the position coach Bill Stevanovich decided to keep her there.

"Jackie was a great personality to have on the team," Stevanovich said. "She was very positive and very coachable."

Burke entered the season shying away from contact in the air but Stevanovich said she improved in that area dramatically during the course of the year.

She was also one of the top players academically in the area reaching all-KVC and all-state academic status. Burke was also an honorable mention player in the league this year.

ELIZABETH THOMPSON
Novi, fullback

The junior played sweeper for Novi this spring and played the position very well.

Coach Larry Christoff said Thompson did exactly what she's supposed to do in playing sweeper, namely keep the ball out of Novi's net. The Wildcats allowed less than a dozen goals this season thanks, in part, to Thompson.

As good as she was, Christoff thinks she'll be even better next spring.

"I look for her to improve immensely," he said of the All-KVC pick.

While Thompson is able to use both feet effectively, Christoff said she needs to add some length to her kicks. Her work ethic, however, needs no such embellishing.

"She's a hustling, non-stop gal," said Christoff.

MEGAN PETERSEN
Milford, fullback

There was no glitz in Petersen's game this year but her consistent defensive effort earned her respect around the area.

Not many players were able to contain Brighton's Amber Berendowsky, the 1996 Miss Michigan Soccer award winner, this spring but Petersen did better than most. She held Berendowsky to just three goals in three games against the Bulldogs this year.

Petersen, a four-year letterwinner at MHS, was an honorable mention selection in the KVC.

SUE MCQUAID
Northville, halfback

Northville coach Doug Lyon said McQuaid was one player he counted on to help spur the offense.

"She was an attacking outside halfback," he added. "She has a very powerful shot."

McQuaid wound up with seven goals and 10 assists. The senior also captained Northville.

"She had a strong year in terms of leadership," Lyons said.

LYNDSAY HUOT
Northville, halfback

A big contributor since her freshman year, Huot came on strong this spring as a junior.

She took more of an offensive role at halfback than during her first two years. Huot was responsible for moving the ball quickly up to the forward line and holding the ball in the offensive zone.

"I felt I did well this season," said Huot, who was among Northville's leading scorers.

The junior was named to the WLAA's All-Western Division team.

ERIN VOGEL
Novi, halfback

Every team has an emotional leader. For Novi, Vogel was it.

The senior battled through knee problems to lead Novi to a second place finish in the KVC.

"She played her heart out," Christoff said of his all-league player. "She played a tremendous halfback."

Northville Mickey Mantle teams open summer ball season

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

Northville's Mickey Mantle "A" squad may have learned that lesson in a 9-4 home loss to the Michigan Indians Saturday. The Broncos trailed 6-0 after two innings and rallied like heck to get back in the game.

But the Indians foiled the comeback with a single run in the fifth and two more in the seventh. Coach Rick Bingley said Northville's offense was held quiet with the exception of one inning.

"They held us in check over the last five innings," he added.

The loss was Northville's first. Heading into week two of the summer campaign, the Broncos were 2-1.

Northville's A team competes in the Open Division of Little Caesar's Baseball. The division, which allows teams to recruit top area players, fields 22 teams.

"It's an unbelievably tough league," Bingley said. "We should be middle of the pack. But we'll be trying to sneak up on some people."

Northville is carrying 13 players on its roster. All but a few of the boys are from the city and township.

Mike Christenson opened for Northville on the mound against the Indians. The big right hander pitched six innings, allowed five hits and six walks.

All four Bronco runs came in the third inning.

Kevin Gilchrist had the big hit with a three-run triple. Center fielder Kelly Bingley added an RBI single.

BRONCOS 10, WAYNE 2

Northville had its hitting shoes on Thursday at home. The Broncos scored a pair of runs in the third and fourth innings and added a six-run explosion in the sixth for an easy win.

Northville jumped out to a 2-0 lead in the third inning.

Gordy McPhail singled and stole second to lead off. Kelly Bingley doubled him home and later scored on a fielder's choice play off the bat of Eric Arnold.

The Broncos made it 4-0 in the fourth with the aid of a pair of walks and errors by Wayne. The Bandits rallied for a run off Northville starter Rob Reel in the fifth inning.

Reel smashed a long three-run homer to cap a six-run Northville rally. On the mound, he pitched seven innings and struck out eight.

BRONCOS 6, WINDSOR 2

Northville opened the week and the season with a road victory over the Titans.

Gilchrist dominated on the mound. He pitched a three-hitter and struck out eight Windsor batters.

Northville chipped away offensively with single runs in the first and sixth innings. The Broncos added two runs in the third and fourth innings.

McPhail, Gilchrist and Suren Srabian were among those to pick up runs batted in.

NORTHVILLE MANTLE B

No matter what level of baseball you're talking about, players get butterflies on opening day.

A few of those nerves showed in Northville's 7-2 road loss to Waterford June 4 in the Little Caesar's Mickey Mantle league opener. The Broncos made five errors, which allowed Waterford to score all of its runs without earning them.

"It was opening day jitters," coach Dennis Shields said. "After the first inning we settled down and played well."

The Broncos trailed 6-1 after two innings and never recovered.

Waterford scored five runs off him in the first inning. A couple of infield errors fueled the Pirate rally.

The Broncos got a run back in the top of the second inning. Ben Keetle led off with a single and came home on a double by Colin MacFarlane.

Northville's other run scored in the third inning. Justin Waineo singled and stole second to lead off. Adam Webb singled him home later on in the frame.

Waterford got all seven of its runs in the first three innings.

Tips on playing pain-free golf

You don't have to be teeing off at the U.S. Open Golf Tournament at Oakland Hills Country Club to benefit from straight-shooting info on how to prevent aches that can result from chasing that little white ball from hole-to-hole.

Experts at Botsford General Hospital's Total Rehabilitation and Athletic Conditioning Center (TRACC) have a few easy tips to prevent the muscle strains that sometimes plague even pro circuit players.

For example, exercise physiologist Shel Levine, M.S., C.E.S., urges stretching before players go out on the course. "This is really crucial," he says. "Muscles aren't loose enough nor prepared to sustain explosive movements, such as a golf swing, so it's really important to warm your muscles up by doing some simple stretches."

Stretching is important to warm muscles at any time. He suggests three key areas in particular be stretched: the neck, shoulders and lower back. Here are some simple stretches to do before and after a round of golf:

Neck:

• Put chin down, tilt head to left, then to right. Hold 30 seconds, Repeat three times.

Shoulders:

• Place right arm across chest and grab right elbow with left hand and gently pull toward neck; hold 30 seconds. Repeat with left arm. Do three times with each arm.

• Raise right arm, place hand down middle of back, pointing elbow straight up; grab right elbow with left hand and gently push down. Hold 30 seconds. Repeat on left side. Do three times on each side.

Back:

• With club under armpits, twist or rotate upper body and hold in both directions, keeping feet flat on ground. Hold 30 seconds. Repeat three times.

As with all physical activity, common sense is the first rule of thumb. "And try to avoid overplaying," suggests Milt Thackaberry, P.T., A.T., C., TRACC manager. "You should acclimate yourself to the game before you start playing 36 holes in one day."

Lastly, remember where you are.

"Because this is Michigan and inclement weather isn't unheard of, even in the summer, it's also important to dress warmly when there's a chill in the air, says Thackaberry. "And, because we also tend to get some very humid weather, guard against dehydration on the course. Try to avoid caffeinated or alcohol drinks; good old-fashioned water is still your best bet."

TRACC is the Novi-based comprehensive outpatient rehabilitation and conditioning facility that specializes in sports, occupational and industrial medicine. It is a part of Botsford General Hospital's Physical Medicine Department. This article was coordinated through the office of community relations at Botsford Hospital.

Nearly 50 percent of deaths in U.S. caused by cardiovascular disease

Cardiovascular diseases – including coronary heart disease, stroke and hypertension – account for approximately 50 percent of all deaths in the United States. And one unfortunate fact is that for 20 percent of those who have heart disease the first "sign" – and the last – is sudden death.

While exercise does not confer immunity to heart disease, it can have many beneficial effects on the factors that affect an individual's cardiac risks. Specifically, regular exercise promotes reductions in body weight, fat stores and blood pressure. Exercise may also improve your health by increasing the "good" cholesterol (HDL) and decreasing triglycerides (another form of fat in your blood). In addition, increased levels of regular physical activity appear to provide some protection against several other chronic diseases, such as adult-onset diabetes, certain cancers, osteoporosis and depression.

Recent guidelines released by the American College of Sports Medicine recommend that, "Every American adult should accumulate 30 minutes or more of moderate-intensity physical activity over the course of most days of the week." These new guidelines indicate that low-to-moderate intensity exercise can produce significant health benefits, particularly for people who are just beginning to increase their level and amount of physical activity.

In addition to the intensity guidelines, you should keep a few other important points in mind:

• Most people can safely begin on a low-moderate program. However, it is a good idea to check with your physician especially if you fall into any one or more of these categories: male over age 40 or female over age 50; diabetic; have two or more risk factors for heart disease.

• To prevent discomfort, injury or overuse syndrome, you need to wear the right type of shoes. Get the proper shoes for the activity you're involved in, whether you are a runner, walker, aerobic dancer or tennis player.

• Think moderation. Start out slowly and progress gradually, especially if it has been a few years since you were physically active. Often, when people start out on a program, they want to see quick results – an urgency that can result in injuries, discomfort and fatigue.

• Remember to warm up and cool down (start and end slowly).

• Compliance is the key to long-term health benefits. The key is to find what is motivational for you – whether it's exercising with a friend, joining a health club, keeping exercise logs, setting up a reward system, etc.

• And most important: Have fun and enjoy your workout or activity.

Exercise is a cost-effective way to improve your health. The key is to stick with a routine and be patient with your progress. Soon you will notice that you have more energy and feel better. According to Edward Stanley, Earl of Derby in 1873, "... those who do not make time for bodily exercise will sooner or later have to find time for disease."

Heart-Smart Exercise is written by Carole L. Burkhardt, M.S., R.N., program manager, and Nancy Tallio, M.A., exercise physiologist, University of Michigan Health System Preventive Cardiology Services at MedSport.

Health Notes

LEARN CPR

Learn CPR and how to manage emergency situations effectively. Learn the basics of how to handle bruises, cuts, sprains, broken bones, burns, insect bites, eye injuries and shock will be reviewed and practiced in this two-week workshop. Upon successful completion of the course, each participant will receive a certificate. The course will be held at Providence Medical Center-Providence Park, 47601 Grand River Ave., on Monday, June 17 from 7-10 p.m.

The cost of the course is $50 per person and includes a handbook and supplies. To obtain additional information or to register, call 1-800-968-5595.

BREAST CANCER

Providence Medical Center-Providence Park in Novi is hosting a support group for women with breast cancer.

The group meets the second Saturday of each month at 10 a.m. Anyone who has experienced breast disease is welcome to attend. This is an informal discussion for participants to share resources and provide emotional support. The group's organizers also encourage all guests to bring their favorite book on spiritual, mind or body healing to share with the group.

ST. MARY HOSPITAL

The following classes are coming up at St. Mary Hospital in Livonia.

• Cancer Ed Class

St. Mary Hospital will present the American Cancer Society's "I Can Cope" program for cancer patients, their families and friends from June 11 through July 16. The free, six-week course will meet on Tuesdays from 6:30 to 8 p.m. in the lower level Conference Room in the main hospital near the Five Mile entrance. Dates are June 18, 25, and July 2, 9, and 16.

The course is designed to help patients, family members and friends learn how to take an active role in the cancer patient's treatment and recovery. Topics include cancer and its causes, prevention, diagnosis, treatment, rehabilitation, management of treatment side effects, adjustment to changes in body image, exercise and proper nutrition, community resources and new potentials as a person with cancer.

The comprehensive course includes lectures, audio-visual programs and group discussion. Presentations will be made by a team of health care professions.

There is no charge for the program, but registration is required by June 10. For more information or to register, call (313) 432-8542 or toll free at 1-800-494-1653.

•St. Mary's Marian Women's Center

Welcoming a new baby into the family can be an adjustment for sisters and brothers. The Marian Women's Center next to St. Mary Hospital will offer a sibling class from 10 a.m. to noon on Saturday, June 15 in the Miracle of Life Maternity Center Postpartum Lounge on the third floor of the main hospital.

Children are invited to attend this class and learn how much fun it can be to be a big brother or big sister. You can see what your new baby brother or sister will look like and learn the safe way to hold the new baby. Parents are invited, too.

Cost of the class is $10 per family. Registration is required. For more information or to register, call the Marian Women's Center at (313) 655-2882 or toll-free at 1-800-494-1617.

•Breast Health Clinic

St. Mary will hold a breast health clinic from 4 to 6 p.m. on Wednesdays, June 12 and 26 in the Marian Women's Center. Registration is required.

A physician will perform a complete breast examination and provide instructions on how to perform a breast self-examination. If indicated, a mammogram will be done. Cost of the breast exam is $21. Cost of mammography is extra. However, this cost may be covered by insurance. For more information or to register, call (313) 655-3314 or toll free at 1-800-494-1615.

PROVIDENCE HOSPITAL

Providence Hospital is offering the following services:

• Free Blood Pressure Checks

Providence is offering free blood pressure checks the first Thursday of every month.

The free service is available at Providence Medical Center-Providence Park at the corner of Grand River Avenue and Beck Road from 1-3 p.m. in the Cardiopulmonary Department. Call (810) 380-4225 for further information.

• Health education library

Providence Hospital and Medical Centers is now making its health education library open to the public.

The library has books, video tapes, computer databases, pamphlets and anatomical models available to the public which can be used to learn about illnesses, medications, parenting skills or other health issues.

The library is located at Providence Medical Center-Providence Park, 47601 Grand River, and is open Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Call (810) 380-4110 for more information.

• Prostate Cancer

Providence offers a free monthly support group for men with prostate cancer.

"Man to Man" meets the second Thursday of each month at 7 p.m. at Providence Hospital in Southfield.

The purpose of the support group is to provide men with educational information on topics relating to prostate cancer and allow them to verbalize feelings, concerns and problems with others who are having similar experiences.

For additional information on "Man to Man," Providence's Prostate Cancer Support Group, call (810) 424-3175.

• Eating Right

Providence is offering individual appointments with a registered dietitian to assist in losing weight, lowering blood pressure, lowering cardiovascular risk factors and providing positive dietary changes. The dietitian will assess the participant's health status and nutritional goals. After the evaluation, a diet plan is developed.

Day and evening appointments are available. There is a $40 fee for the initial visit and $30 for follow-up sessions, if indicated. A specifically designed weight modification program is also available. Call (810) 424-3385 for further information.

• Surgery Star

If your child is scheduled for surgery, it can be a very frightening experience for them. Providence Hospital and Medical Centers continues its "Sally the Surgery Star" program to help little ones deal with a hospital stay.

The child is taken on a tour and is familiarized with the surgical experience. A variety of educational materials and supportive teaching tools are used to help the child deal positively with the idea of a hospital stay. At the end of the tour, the child is honored as a "surgery star."

Tours are offered at both Providence Hospital in Southfield and Providence Medical Center-Providence Park in Novi. Call (810) 424-3978 to arrange a tour at Providence Hospital and (810) 380-4170 to arrange a tour at Providence Park.

WELL CHILD CLINIC

Oakland County Health Division's Child Health Conferences provide free ongoing care to keep children well from birth to school-entry age. Families that do not have an HMO or Medicaid may be eligible. Clinics are held at 14 locations throughout Oakland County.

Services include: heights and weights; head-to-toe physical examination; immunizations; vision, hearing and lab testing; growth and developmental screening; and counseling with referrals to physicians and area resources as needed.

Appointments are required. For more information, call 424-7066 or 424-7067

BREAST FEEDING BASICS

This workshop covers the "how to's" of breast feeding – how to start and maintain successful breast feeding, as well as answering the questions and concerns of women who are already breast feeding.

Classes are held at the Health Development Network at Botsford in Novi. For more information and to register, call (810) 477-6100.

CHOLESTEROL AND VISION SCREENINGS

Total cholesterol screening is conducted by the fingerstick method from 1-4 p.m. on the third Monday of each month at the Botsford Center for Health Improvement-Health Development Network, 39750 Grand River Ave., Novi. There is a $5 fee. For more information, call (810) 477-6100.

PHYSICIAN REFERRAL SERVICE

Are you new in the community? Do you need to find a doctor and can't determine the best way to start your search?

The Physician Referral Service of Providence Hospital and Medical Centers is available to assist newcomers in finding a physician who can meet the specific needs of the individual.

The service is free of charge and can be reached by calling (1-800) 968-5595.

The staff of Physician Referral Services can help locate physicians by specialty or location, finding an office close to your home or work. They can even match individuals with physicians who participate in particular insurance plans. Callers can also receive information on support groups and health education classes and lectures.

Condo sales on the rise

By James M. Woodard
Copley News Service

Condominium sales are on the rise.

This type of residence is often the first home purchase for young families.

As the real estate market and general economy continue to improve, more of those families, as well as singles, are deciding the time is right to enjoy the benefits of homeownership.

During the first quarter of 1996, condos reached the annualized rate of 452,000 sales. That's more than 11 percent greater than the first quarter of last year, according to a report from the National Association of Realtors.

"Low mortgage rates have certainly been a key factor in condo sales increases in recent months," said Art Godt, president of NAR. "They are an affordable entrance into homeownership for many people, and the low rates have acted as a catalyst to urge those first-time buyers into the market."

The national median price for condos rose 3 percent in the first quarter to $88,600 — up from $86,100 a year ago. In comparison, the existing single-family median home price for the nation was $114,700 for the first quarter.

New buyers often find condos to be the most affordable type of first home purchase. With condo sales on the increase, their value will probably accelerate, enhancing their investment value for owners.

The rate of increased condo sales varies by region. In the South, they are up by 5.5 percent over a year ago; in the West, 13.1 percent; Midwest, 5.1 percent; Northeast, 8.5 percent.

Median prices of condos also vary — $71,500 in the South, $107,900 in the West, $93,400 in the Midwest, $93,500 in the Northeast.

Joe and Earl Poplars of Gazebos, LTD. in Milford

The BEST of TWO WORLDS

And more and more homeowners are going the gazebo route, letting the addition of the structures lend old-time charm to the 1990s homestead.

Joe and Earl Poplars, who started Gazebos LTD. in Milford in 1981, attribute the rising popularity of their products to the influence of television.

"The biggest surge to gazebos are the soap operas," Joe said. "Dallas had it, Days of Our Lives has it, Home Improvement even has it. It connotes romantic spirit. Women are probably our biggest customers."

An outdoor room's appeal is not exactly tough to comprehend.

Once summer kicks in and warm temperatures become the norm, a gazebo offers a genuine outdoor refuge. It provides the best of both worlds — the freedom of being outside with the privacy of shelter.

Joe Poplars said his job is great because people leave happy and they don't mind writing the check for their own private sanctuary.

"It's a retreat away from the house, a little private shelter you can run away to," he added.

And it doesn't hurt that it can add to the value of your home. Joe said they make gazebos so they can be taken apart and moved from one home to the next.

There is, however, a potential glitch in that method. Joe says one customer had to buy three gazebos. When he'd sell his house and try to take the gazebo along, the new owners would say that's one reason they bought it the home in the first place.

Before branching out into gazebos, the Poplars brothers were in the construction business but changed venues with lulls in that trade in 1977 and 1980.

The wood-working bug tends to run in the family. The Poplars brothers' father and grandfather were also carpenters.

"When we were old enough to hold a ceiling tile my dad would have us handing him the glue to put them up," Joe said.

The brothers started their business by producing 18 gazebos the first year with two sizes and two styles. That number soared to around 1,000 this year and now they offer four styles and seven sizes.

Their headquarters also grew. The two men worked out of Earl Poplars' 20 X 20 foot garage when they started and now they have a 45,000 square foot warehouse.

Gazebos LTD. manufactures all the parts for the products. Joe says they make their own screen doors, window kits and floor kits along with all the materials necessary to put together the do-it-yourself unit.

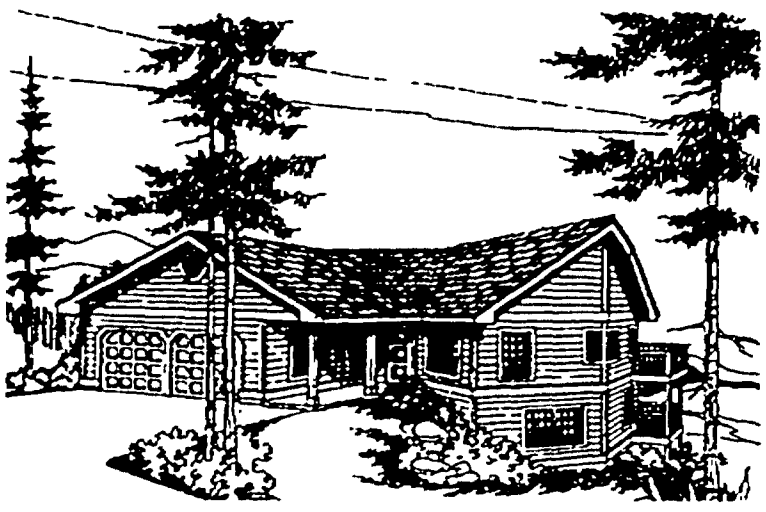
HOME DESIGNS



Clarkston is perfect choice for hillside location

By James McAlexander
Copley News Service

A hillside lot is the perfect place to build the 2,415-square-foot Clarkston.

The basement level houses a large family room with windows on three sides, allowing you to enjoy all aspects of the surrounding view. With a built-in entertainment center, this is the location for informal fun. Whether watching the latest video, playing pingpong, or stepping out onto the generous back patio, this room will bring hours of enjoyment for you and your guests.

This level also has two identical bedrooms. This arrangement could be advantageous for older children still living at home. A certain amount of privacy can be had by all, while still sharing the many family gathering places in this original floor design.

A full bathroom, with linen storage, is adjacent to the bedrooms. Also on this level is a convenient laundry room with a chute from the upper floor.

The top level has a two-car garage facing the front, with an entry into the house allowing you to take groceries directly to the kitchen without regard for weather conditions.

A vaulted dining room, with windows on two sides, and a small breakfast nook with a rear view, are on either side of the kitchen. This step-saving placement makes serving meals a snap. In addition to all the built-ins, this kitchen design features an eating bar and a large pantry.

The vaulted living room is made for comfort. Sit in your recliner and let the warmth from the corner fireplace relax you as you savor the vista or relish good conversation. When the weather turns sunny, step out onto a back deck that runs the length of the house.

Kids grow with garden

By C.Z. Guest
Copley News Service

GARDENING

A child's garden should be the way the child wants it. Forget about neat rows and endless planning of what should go where. To maintain children's enthusiasm about gardening, let them do it their own way — planning will come later. Weeding is a basic chore and should be learned at an early age so the child doesn't get into bad habits. Gardening for children should be fun, not work (at least from their viewpoint).

GETTING STARTED

A good starting point for your child's garden would be to simply ask what their favorite vegetables are. Children will want to plant something they can eat raw, rather than having to wait for it to be cooked. If they say peas, think of snow peas or sugar snap peas that can be picked and eaten.

Carrots are usually a favorite with children. I'm not sure why; perhaps it may have to do with Bugs Bunny. And carrots can be eaten raw. You can even overwinter them because they get sweeter (in some areas).

GROWING TIPS

Carrot seeds can be directly sown into the garden once the weather is favorable, although carrots do prefer cool temperatures. They can be slow to germinate, so be patient. Carrots mature in about 65 days. Keep the plants well watered or their growth will be retarded and a strong flavor will develop. They should be thinned to one plant every 1 to 2 inches because crowding will produce lots of foliage but no root.

Carrots are also adaptable to containers, provided the container is at least 4 inches deep. One of the neat things about carrots is that they can be harvested over a long time; they won't spoil if they stay in the ground. Carrots can also be shared with wildlife, such as neighborhood rabbits and squirrels (which adults may consider to be pests in the garden, but children view differently). If a child does want to share the bounty with nature, you may want to suggest a feeding area well away from the garden to discourage animals from becoming too much at home.

CORNY TIPS

Corn likes the hot days of summer and will mature in

A kid's garden

Children love to watch things grow. Don't worry about neatness and rules, just let them do and grow what they like and they'll get hooked on gardening.

■ Ask children what their favorite vegetables are. Steer them toward those that are easy to grow and can be eaten raw.

■ Carrots and sweet corn are favorites with kids. Carrots take off a little slow, need frequent watering and need to have 2 inches between each plant. Corn grows tall and can't be overwatered. You'll get one or two ears per plant. Keep plants close as corn pollinates by wind.

■ Kids also like tomatoes, especially the cherry tomatoes that are more their size.

Gazebos make a comeback

The western cedar gazebo kits are geared toward the average homeowner, not big business. Joe said they stay away from orders from city parks and other similar jobs that need engineering.

Gazebo prices range from $399 to $8,000. That's compared to other gazebo companies that charge from $5,000 to $20,000 per project.

"Our kits are priced close to the retail price of the lumber that it costs to do one, because of our purchasing power," said Joe. "We want to discourage people from building their own." He said it essentially costs the same but with the kit consumers know the total cost and what it will look like.

You may think the Poplars are only busy during the spring, but that's not the case. Joe said they work all year long getting kits ready for the run in April, May and June.

"It seems like a short selling season, three months, but it takes 12 (months) to make sure we're not overwhelmed in those three months," Joe said.

Brenda Fairchild, office manager at Gazebos LTD., said their gazebos are popular because the lattice is glued and stapled. Sometimes lattice is not put together that sturdy. The gazebos also have floor, screen, and window kit options. The company also started something new this year.

"The number one difference is spindles," said Fairchild. "We were doing a lot of spec orders that didn't want lattice ... this is a more contemporary style."

But how does a company in Milford, Michigan attract orders from all over the world? Joe said it's their marketing technique and the fact that they manufacture for several larger companies under different names.

Joe said in their advertising they claim they'll make Milford the gazebo capital of the world. There are only three or four gazebo manufacturers in the country and because of that fact, Gazebos LTD. gets orders from all over the United States and Canada as well as Japan and Ireland.

Because of its historical significance, the Poplars brothers say Milford is a fitting contender for gazebo capital of the world.

"Milford is a really old community and ties back to the nostalgic era. Gazebos being one of those products, it goes hand in hand with the community," Joe said.

Gardens a growth experience for kids

60 to 85 days. One corn plant will produce only one or two ears, so plan accordingly. Because corn grows so tall, plant it on the north side of your garden so it doesn't shade other plants. Most kids enjoy corn on the cob and the plants grow tall fairly quickly. There are a wide variety of sweet corn types available in addition to the standard yellow hybrids, plus there are novelty corns such as bicolored and popcorn varieties. Corn plants need to grow close together (like blocks) so that they can be pollinated by the wind. Grow only one variety of corn or you may get mixed kernels on an ear. It's difficult to overwater corn, so pour it on.

Tomatoes are another favorite, especially the cherry types like Sweet 100. I recommend varieties that can be eaten in one or two bites.

Tomatoes can be grown from transplants or from seeds sown in the garden. Choose early maturing varieties (50 to 60 days after transplanting) if possible. Tomatoes come in a wide variety of shapes and sizes, most of which are also readily adaptable for container growing. Cherry tomatoes for salads or to eat fresh from the garden are popular with children, as are huge types whose slices can rival the size of the beef in a hamburger. Children are usually fascinated with the concept of the biggest or smallest, so a combination of these might be a good idea.

Children love to eat watermelons. I recommend smaller ice-box types, such as Sugar Baby and yellow varieties rather than the standard red. Watermelons and other melons from seeds or transplants are great fun to grow, but be prepared to give them space, somewhere around 9 square feet for each plant.

The vines can be rigged with a support system using a cloth sling tied around the melon (when it grows) for support to keep the stem from breaking. Expect to get two to three melons from one plant. There are newer hybrid varieties that have shorter vines, so if space is a consideration, look for restricted-vine varieties.

And, while children may not think of a pumpkin as a vegetable, growing their own jack-o'-lantern can be a real experience. They like to see who can grow the biggest — zucchini is popular for the same reason, too.

I recommend two varieties of pumpkins: the medium-size Autumn Gold, a 1987 All-America Selections winner that children like because it only takes six weeks to turn orange. Youngsters don't like to wait too long for an orange pumpkin. I also recommend the 1- to 2-pound Baby Bear (a 1993 All-America Selections winner). Sketch on a face when the pumpkin is small so the face will grow with the pumpkin.

Lettuce is a good child's crop, especially the different colored ones. I have a red-leafed one that I keep growing just for that reason. Many children like peppers, too, but plant the sweet ones, not the really hot ones. If they handle hot peppers and then rub their eyes, it can really hurt. I recommend the Gypsy peppers, a 1981 All-America Selections winner. They produce so much, while a newer, sweet variety called Jingle Bells is very popular, too.

What about spinach? I grow some spinach and I always put a picture of Popeye next to it. The children laugh, but they still don't like it!

WHY DO CHILDREN LIKE VEGETABLES?

I attribute the popularity of veggies with children in part to the popularity of salad bars. Salads are a lot more than lettuce, tomatoes and cucumbers these days. Children see them on a buffet, try it and usually like it.

Just because children want to grow it, doesn't mean they want to eat it, so if you want to nurture your children's enthusiasm for gardening, don't push the eating part too much. Remember, it's their garden. Let their imagination run wild!

Affordability key to condo sales

A recent column focused on the current trend related to the acquisition and merger of major real estate brokerage organizations and how that trend is affecting consumers.

Here's a contrasting trend: Some organizations are resisting sale-merger opportunities, and are expanding their operations by adding services and facilities for their member real estate brokers.

For example, Better Homes and Gardens Real Estate Service, a national network of brokers, now helps members market their upscale home listings by producing a slick, pictorial magazine, Elegant Homes. The current edition contains about 700 properties in 338 regions of the United States, according to Allen Sabbag, president of the network.

"This is a very attractive 'coffee table' type of publication, featuring the top 10 percent of residential offerings," Sabbag said. "About half of our members carry property listings in the magazine. It's widely distributed through our member offices, via mail and on newsstands."

The Better Homes and Gardens network also is enhancing its services for corporate employers. In addition to selling one home and buying another, a package of services provides assistance in moving the employee's furnishings and helping spouses obtain employment at the destination point, among other services.

"In addition to providing the most recognizable megabrand trade name in the business, we are providing the most strategic service packages possible. The best way to maintain our competitive edge is not to sell or merge, but to stay on the cutting edge of success-proven marketing techniques," Sabbag said.

Q. Is the current real estate market shaping up for a boom or a bust?

A. The Urban Land Institute is known for accurately projecting real estate trends. Here's what ULI has to say in its 1996 Real Estate Forecast report:

"The real estate economy has shown strength in 1995 and so far in 1996 primarily because, with a few exceptions, it still has nowhere to go but up.

"While the U.S. economy showed lackluster growth last year, real estate performance increased substantially in most sectors — the result of modestly growing demand and constrained supply.

"One advantage of the current real estate cycle is that slow growth or even a recession will not hit real estate as hard as in past recessions.

"With so little construction occurring, it will be difficult for the industry to overshoot.

"Questions may be used in future columns; personal responses should not be expected. Send inquiries to James M. Woodard, Copley News Service, P.O. Box 190, San Diego, CA 92112-0190.

Lustres used as mantel ornaments

By Anne McCollam
Copley News Service

ANTIQUES

Q. The pair of pink glass lustres in this photo was handed down to me from my grandmother. They are in very good condition and appear to be hand-painted.

I am curious about their value.

A. Lustres, also called pedestal vases, were usually placed on fireplace mantels. Lustres were frequently trimmed in gold and hand-painted. Many were made in Czechoslovakia, Bohemia and France in the late 1800s and early 1900s.

The value for the pair of your lustres would probably be $600 to $650.

Q. This mark is on several dinner plates that I have had for 48 years. Each plate is decorated with a scene of a colonial couple. The man is playing a musical instrument. The outer edge of each plate is decorated with a lacy gold design.

I don't want to sell my dishes, but would like to know their current price.

A. This mark was used by Sabin Industries, McKeesport, Pa. They were in business from 1946 to 1979. Each plate would probably be worth $10.

Q. I have a Hull Little Red Riding Hood cookie jar that was purchased by my mother in the 1940s. It is approximately 14 inches high. Little Red Riding Hood's skirt is decorated with orange, white and violet flowers and she is carrying a basket of flowers.

Do you have any idea of her value?

A. Hull Pottery Co., Crooksville, Ohio, owned the patent on Little Red Riding Hood cookie jars. Many were made for Hull by Regal China; Antioch, Ill.

Salt and pepper shakers, biscuit jars, pitchers, creamers, sugar bowls and teapots were included in the collection. There were variations in the decorations of the basic cookie jar design.

Cookie jars similar to yours are in the $400 to $500 range.

Q. I have a Wooton Patent Secretary, standard grade, that has been in our family for more than 100 years. On the desk is a plaque with the words "Wooton Desk Manf. Co. Indianapolis, Ind. — W.S. Wooton's Patent Oct. 1874."

The desk is in excellent condition and still being used. Could you please provide me with a ballpark estimate of its current value?

A. W.S. Wooton made his Gothic Revival-style desks from 1874 to 1884. There were 12 styles available in four grades. Original prices ranged from $100 to $750.

John D. Rockefeller, Jay Gould and President Ulysses S. Grant were known to own Wooton desks.

The value of your secretary would probably be in the $15,000 to $19,000 range in good condition. Some can go as high as $25,000.

Q. What can you tell me about the value of a framed print of an essay titled "Horse Sense" by Elbert Hubbard?

A. The frame is a mission oak style. It has been in our family for over 60 years and is in perfect condition.A. Elbert Hubbard was the founder of the arts and crafts community, Roycrofters, in East Aurora, N.Y., around the turn of the century. He was an author, manufacturer and philosopher.

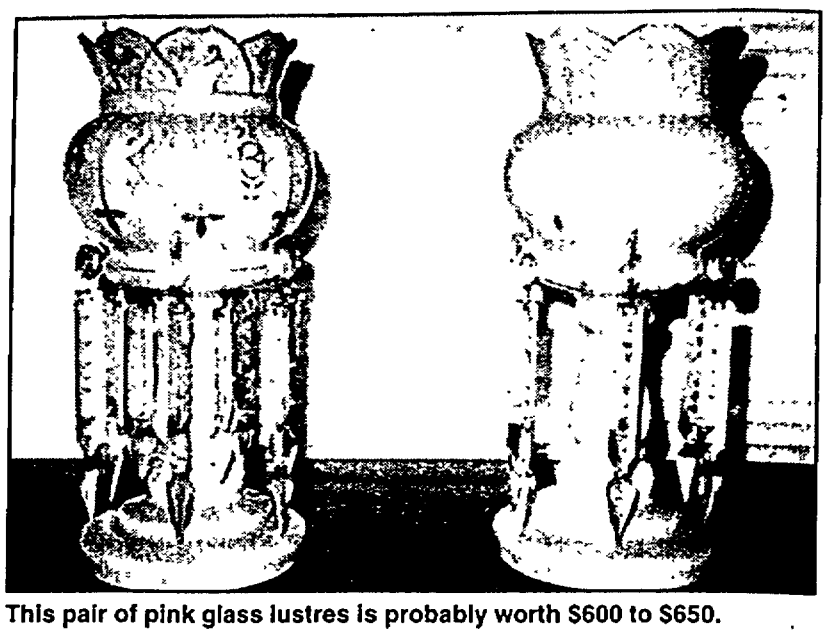
BOOK REVIEW

"Four Centuries of American Furniture" by Oscar P. Fitzgerald (Wallace-Homestead) is an updated and expanded edition of his original broad survey. His classic reference on furniture, from Chippendale to Eastlake, now includes the 20th century.

Fitzgerald discusses the evolution of styles and documents the influence of culture and historical events. More than 500 photos accompany this well-researched and comprehensive study.

Curators, collectors, scholars and dealers will find this an invaluable reference. The book is available in antique shops and bookstores.

Address your questions to Anne McCollam, P.O. Box 490, Notre Dame, IN 46556. For a personal response, include picture(s), a detailed description, a stamped, self-addressed envelope and $5 per item (one item at a time).



This pair of pink glass lustres is probably worth $600 to $650.

REAL ESTATE FACTS

Win A Private Victory!

Before beginning the search for your next home, take time to answer a few questions in the privacy of your present home. From your answers, you will know whether the time is right to get started

First ask "Am I ready to purchase another home?" If you can answer with an unequivocal "YES", follow up with "By what date do I expect to make my purchase?" If your answer to the second question is "Soon!", continue by answering the next two questions. "Am I prepared to sign an Offer to Purchase when I locate the right home? Am I prepared to write a check for the earnest money deposit?" If your answer is "Yes" to both, consider it a private victory. You are on your way to owning a new home.

Why are the answers to these questions so important? They lead to the firm, personal commitment which ultimately results in completion of a home purchase. Without the desire, the motivation, and the willingness to proceed, the search itself would prove futile. No home would meet your expectations, and the search would end in miserable failure.

Once you've made the commitment to yourself, however, a new world opens up - one in which you have many choices and the confidence that soon you will be moving.
Now you are ready to select a real estate agent who will bring you those many choices. Make an appointment to discuss your expectations with the agent, then ask to see a wide selection of suitable homes. Your new home dreams will quickly become reality.

When you buy U.S. Savings Bonds, you'll know your money will be there when you retire. Your investment is backed by the full faith and credit of the United States.

U.S. Savings Bonds are an easy, affordable way to save. Buy them for just a few dollars each payday through your employer's U.S. Savings Bonds Payroll Savings Plan or for as little as $25 each at your bank. What could be easier?

There are other advantages, too. The interest earned is exempt from state and local income taxes, and it can be federally tax-deferred. Bonds earn a guaranteed return, and they're eligible to earn competitive, market-based interest, compounded semiannually, when held five years or more. And you can redeem them anytime after six months from the issue date.

Whatever your plans for retirement, U.S. Savings Bonds can help you enjoy them. For more information, ask your employer or bank, or write: U.S. Savings Bonds Division, Department of the Treasury, Box 933 N, Washington, DC 20226.

Career change leads to massage business

By SCOTT DANIEL
Staff Writer

It wasn't all that long ago that exercise and healthy living were the furthest things from Rita Wightman's mind.

Like many Americans, she was focused on raising a family and working. There simply weren't enough hours in the day to squeeze everything in.

Now, a dozen years after being nudged off the couch and into an aerobics studio, Wightman has taken on a new challenge. She recently opened Anew Therapeutic Massage in downtown Northville with the idea of providing clients quality service at an affordable rate.

"It was the most sensible place for me to set up my business," said Wightman, who has lived in town for the better part of two decades. "It's proving to be a wise choice."

She's already secured about 70 clients for Anew, which opened in April at 145 East Cady Street. Wightman isn't taking a fast food approach to her business, however. She's not looking to push clients in and out the door as fast as possible, in other words.

That's demonstrated in Anew's changing area. It's designed as a type of sanctuary where clients can take their time in getting dressed after their massage.

"I want them to be comfortable," said Wightman. "This is their space."

A number of factors went into opening Anew.

First, there was the matter of changing careers for Wightman. She worked as a dental hygienist for 14 years before deciding to leave the field for therapeutic massage.

She said she saw a tremendous opportunity with massage because of its growing popularity in the area. Having been in health care for a number of years, Wightman said there are actually some similarities between her old and new jobs – working with people, for one.

"I have a talent for making peo-

Barbara Barker

RE/MAX HOMES INC., 11518 Highland Road, Hartland, welcomes Barbara Barker to its team of full-time professional sales associates.

Barker was born in Michigan and graduated from Brighton High School.

Her associate's degree in computer science is a wonderful enhancement to the "cutting edge" technology available through RE/MAX.

Barker is available seven days a week and can be reached at RE/MAX Homes Inc., (810) 632-5050.

MARY ANN KLAUSING retired from Citizens Insurance Co. of America on June 1 after 43 years of service. Klausing joined Citizens in 1953 in the Fire Underwriting Department.

She has held the positions of senior clerk - audit services, inventory controller and inventory manual control clerk, the position from which she retires.

Klausing was honored with a retirement open house in May that was held at the Citizens corporate office cafeteria in Howell.

Cory's interest in quilting began when she bought an old quilt at a garage sale in 1971.

Since then she has been collecting, making, teaching and writing about quilts. Four books have been authored by Cory — "Quilting Designs from the Amish," "Quilting Designs from Antique Quilts," "Crosspatch-Inspirations in Multi-Block Quilts" and "Happy Trails-Variations on the Classic Drunkard's Path Pattern." "The Signature Quilt" — Cory's fifth book, is co-authored with Susan McKelvey.

Her most recent project was the "Starry Night Sampler" quilt.

A commissioned piece, which is the calendar quilt for 1997 for Oxmoor House Press.

Cory also designs stencils used for quilting and painting. There are over 200 designs available in her collection.

She will be at the Stitchery for the following scheduled times: from 5:30-6 p.m., June 24 to autograph books; from 6-9 p.m., June 24, for the workshop. An Introduction to Signature Quilts; 10 a.m. to 1 p.m., June 25 and 2-5 p.m., June 25 for the Autograph House workshop.

FAMILY NURSE CARE INC. of Brighton has been surveyed by the Michigan Department of Public Health for continuing certification as a Medicare home care provider. Family Nurse Care Inc. received no deficiencies. Marilyn LeVasseur, owner of Family Nurse Care, Inc. said that it is "gratifying to know that Family Nurse Care Inc. continues to excel in home health care services, providing care certified by the Michigan Department of Public Health as outstanding and accredited by the Joint Commission of Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations.

The entire staff at Family Nurse Care, Inc. is to be commended and thanked for their commitment."

FOWLERVILLE LUMBER & DECORATING CENTER staff, Ron Daly, Kim Field, Marguerite VanLoon and Toni Stoddard, toured Norwalk Furniture Corporation's manufacturing facility in Norwalk, Ohio, as part of retailer Tour Day.

The all day tour gives Norwalk retailers a first hand look at the manufacturing process to reinforce product knowledge and strengthen their sales presentation.

Visitors viewed the complete furniture process, from design to fabric testing, upholstering and final inspection.

Groups were also invited to see a demonstration on Norwalk's computer catalog system which applies any fabric in Norwalk's line to any Norwalk style.

Norwalk Furniture is a leading manufacturer of special order upholstered and leather furniture, producing a vast range of 18th century, colonial, country and contemporary furnishings for 30 day delivery.

The company, founded in 1902, is in its fourth generation of ownership and operation by the Gerken family.

Balloonfest is high-flying fun

Wow! What a weekend!

And, of course, over 50 beautiful hot-air balloons.

It's the Michigan Challenge XII Balloonfest, June 21, 22 and 23 at the Howell High School complex and in downtown Howell.

Organizers expect that another record crowd of 85,000+ spectators from throughout the state and the Midwest will fill Howell for a weekend of high-flying fun and excitement. Fifty-three pilots will compete for the Michigan Challenge trophy.

The Michigan Challenge is hosted by the Howell Area Chamber of Commerce. Major Sponsor is First of America Bank.

Supporting Sponsors are Citizens Insurance Company, Pepsi, Mister Rubbish and Kensington Valley Factory Shops.

Mass balloon launches will take place, weather permitting, on Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings. Early birds can arrive just after dawn on Saturday and Sunday to enjoy watching the pilots compete as they fly in to the site after launching their craft from locations in the countryside.

Spectators will see wonderful special shaped balloons, such as the Jeep-Eagle American Eagle, the Famous Footwear Big Foot tennis shoe and Pepe, the world's only flying penguin.

SATURDAY NIGHT BALLOON GLOW/SUPERNOVA NIGHT SHOW

Once a visitor has experienced the Saturday evening Balloon Glow, they never want to miss it again. The color and spectacle make this a not-to-be-missed event.

As darkness falls, more than 20 pilots will return from their competitive flights to inflate their balloons on the launch field. It will be a never-to-be-forgotten sight as the many colors of the balloons are illuminated against the night sky. Then, from about a mile above the ground the Supernova Night Show will begin.

The Aerial Allstars Skydiving Team will perform a fantastic night jump, complete with pyrotechnics.

American Airlines is providing two tickets to anywhere they fly in the continental United States to one lucky visitor.

Spectators will be able to win the tickets by entering the special American Airlines drawing.

SPEND THE DAY

Visitors are encouraged to spend the day at the Michigan Challenge. It's a festival jam-packed with activities for the entire family.

At the Balloonfest site, visitors will be thrilled by five daytime performances by the Aerial Allstars Skydiving Team. The Windjammers Stunt Kite Team will put on shows Saturday and Sunday afternoon. The Windjammers are sponsored by Blue Care Network-Health Central.

Serena's Song, the world's only handicapped-accessible balloon will return to the balloonfest to give free tethered balloon rides to children and adults in wheelchairs during launch times Friday, Saturday and Sunday evening and Saturday and Sunday morning, weather permitting. Serena's visit is sponsored by Wal-Mart and Innovations Home Care.

Other attractions at the Michigan Challenge Balloonfest site include a medieval village, a huge arts and crafts show, an antique and custom car show, and an expanded carnival with a 100 foot Giant Wheel.

DOWNTOWN HOWELL

Visitors to downtown Howell will enjoy more entertainment and activities than ever before, centered around the historic Livingston County Courthouse.

Music and entertainment at the courthouse amphitheater in the center of historic downtown Howell will take place Friday evening, Saturday and Sunday of balloonfest weekend.

There will be horse-drawn carriage rides through the streets of Howell, leaving from the courthouse. The Livingston County Historical Society will conduct walking tours of the downtown area.

Other downtown entertainment will include an antique auction, kiddie parade, dog show, yo-yo and magic shows, an Amazing Maze and Balloon Typhoon.

The downtown events are located approximately one mile east of the Balloonfest launch site, on Grand River Avenue. Visitors to the Balloonfest site at the high school can leave their cars where they are and take the free Downtown Shuttle from 7 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturday and 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Sunday.

And savvy shoppers shouldn't miss out on the incredible Sunrise Sales downtown on Saturday. The earlier you shop the bigger the bargains.

All in all, the Michigan Challenge provides enough to entertain the most demanding fun-seeker.

Downtown Howell alive with activities

Historic Downtown Howell is a festival in itself during Michigan Challenge weekend. The Courthouse Amphitheater area will be alive with music, comedy, and entertainment all weekend long.

The Ron Coden Show, the Old Dogs and the Reggae Ambassadas steel drum band will be just some of the featured musical groups downtown at the Courthouse Amphitheater.

Zeemo the Magnificent will return with his yo-yo tricks and magician Buddy Moorehouse will make his Michigan Challenge debut. There will be an antique auction, kiddie parade, dogs shows, coney eating contests and more all weekend long.

Kids can explore the Amazing Maze and play in the Balloon Typhoon.

The Howell Farmers' Market will be open Saturday and Sunday on State Street and horse-drawn Victorian carriages will take visitors on a slow and easy trip through the streets of the city. The Livingston County Historical Society will conduct walking tours of Howell's historic residential areas.

Savvy shoppers will be able to get the best bargains by shopping early at the downtown merchants' "Sunrise Sale" beginning at 6 a.m. on Saturday. Yes, that's not a misprint. Shoppers should arrive at dawn to reap the biggest savings of the day. If the wind and weather are right (like they were last year) the hot-air balloons may be floating right overhead.

Shoppers can also return to Howell to "Shop Howell Sundays" on Michigan Challenge weekend and every Sunday.

FRIDAY

Concert on the Lawn 6 p.m.

The musical group "Old Dogs" will entertain at the courthouse amphitheater from 6 to 10 p.m. Old Dogs is a five-piece rock band featuring classic rock with three and four part harmonies.

SATURDAY

An antique auction, kiddie parade dog show and magic show will highlight Saturday, culminating in the Ron Coden Show at 5 p.m.

The Howell Farmers' Market will be open on State Street offering the freshest and best from the farm.

There will be Victorian horse-

Downtown Howell offers a weekend of fun

Here's the schedule:

Sunrise Sale 6 a.m.

Beginning at the very early hour of 6 a.m., participating merchants will offer sales up to 50% off. The earlier you shop, the greater your savings. Look up in the sky and you may see the hot-air balloons.

Farmers' Market 10 a.m.-3 p.m.

The Howell Farmers' Market will be open on State Street from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., featuring home grown, home baked and home made goodies. Some of the Howell area's finest growers will have their produce for sale. The market is adjacent to all the courthouse amphitheater activities.

Antique Auction 10 a.m.

Egnash Auction Gallery of Howell will conduct their fifth annual balloonfest auction of antiques, collectibles, furniture and more on the courthouse lawn at 10 a.m. You may preview the auction beginning at 9 a.m.

Kiddie Parade 10 a.m.

This year's theme of the Kiddie Parade is "Under the Sea." Children and parents can show off their creativity beginning at 10 a.m. in the amphitheater. No pre-registration is necessary. The parade will travel west along the sidewalk to Michigan Avenue and return to the amphitheater. Celebrity judges will give awards for the Best Use of Theme, Most Unique and the Honors Award. There will be trophies and prizes.

Flying Aces Frisbee Team 11 a.m.

Dog Show Noon

One of the most popular downtown events, this is the eighth annual balloonfest dog show. This year the show is sponsored by Pet Provisions and Iams Dog Food. Prizes will be awarded for the "best costume," "owner-pet look alike," "ugliest dog," and "best trick." The winner in each category will get a trophy and a year's supply of dog food. There will be prizes for second and third places as well. And each participant will receive a "doggie goodie bag."

Show up with your pooch for preregistration, beginning at 11 a.m. The show starts at noon in the amphitheater.

Karate Demonstration 1 p.m.

At 1 p.m. it's the always-popular karate demonstration by Kils Korean Karate School. Students and experts will demonstrate Tae Kwon Do techniques designed to teach mastery over mind and body. At the amphitheater.

Coney Eating Contest 2 p.m.

Hungry? At 2 p.m. it's time for the annual Fat Dale's Coney Eating Contest. Coney aficionados will try to beat the record of ten coneys in 50 minutes. Come to the amphitheater and bring a big appetite.

Magic - Buddy Moorehouse 3 p.m.

K-9 Klick 4 p.m.

The K-9 Klick Canine Team, made up of dogs and owners, will perform tricks and routines at the amphitheater at 4 p.m. There will be plenty of time for questions and a chance to pet the beautiful dogs.

Concert on the Lawn 5 to 8 p.m.

The Ron Coden Show will bring its own brand of comedy and music to the Courthouse Amphitheater. Lots of laughter and good times are promised.

SUNDAY

Concerts by the Reggae Ambassadas steel drum band, the South American group Ingapirca, the L.C. Brass quintet and a performance by Zeemo the Magnificent are just a few of the attractions downtown on Sunday. Visit the Howell Farmers' Market on State St., adjacent to the courthouse. Take a horse-drawn carriage ride or an historic walking tour. Let the kids crawl through the Amazing Maze.

Howell's Sunday Farmers' Market10 to 3 p.m.

Downtown on State Street, adjacent to all the courthouse amphitheater activities. Stop by to purchase home grown, home baked and home made goodies. Many of the area's finest farmers and growers will have their produce for sale.

Cloggers 11 a.m.

Ingapirca Noon

Kids Games Noon

Games for children of all ages will take place on the courthouse lawn, courtesy of the Howell Recreation Department. Traditional games such as a water balloon toss, plus some new twists on old favorites will be featured.

Zeemo the Magnificent 1 p.m.

L.C. Brass 2 p.m.

Flying Aces Frisbee Team 3 p.m.

They're back for a second performance downtown at 3 p.m. You won't believe your eyes when you see some of the frisbee tricks the Flying Aces will perform. Learn a few tricks yourself to amaze your friends.

Reggae Ambassadas Steel Drum Band 4 p.m.

Music of the islands will warm the soul and stir the spirit when the Reggae Ambassadas close out Michigan Challenge weekend in downtown Howell. The band's intoxicating reggae and calypso rhythms will echo off the building facades of downtown and make every spectator feel like dancing. At the Amphitheater. A great close for a great weekend!

Take the free shuttle to downtown fun

Downtown Howell, filled with great shopping, restaurants and entertainment during Michigan Challenge weekend, is just a free shuttle bus ride away when you visit the Balloonfest.

Leave your car at the Balloonfest site at the Howell High School and take the Downtown Shuttle Bus leaving from the Arts & Crafts area.

The shuttle will make a continuous loop between the site and downtown Howell between the hours of 7 a.m. and 3 p.m. on Saturday and 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. on Sunday.

The early hours of Saturday are a great time to visit downtown and take advantage of the merchants' legendary Sunrise Sales.

And be sure to visit the Historic Livingston County Courthouse lawn and amphitheater where great entertainment will take place all weekend long. Plus, the Howell Farmers' Market will be bustling both Saturday and Sunday.

Balloonfest offers plenty of new events in 1996

What's new this year at the Michigan Challenge Balloonfest?

PLENTY!

Many of our balloonfest guests come year after year, but there's always something new.

Here are some examples:

Reggae Ambassadas steel drum band performance—Sunday at 4 at the Courthouse Amphitheater downtown.

The Ron Coden Show. Music and laughter—Saturday at 5 p.m. at the Courthouse Amphitheater downtown.

Downtown shuttle. Park your car at the balloonfest site and ride the free shuttle downtown for entertainment and shopping.— 7 a.m.-3 p.m. Saturday, 10 a.m.-3 p.m. Sunday. Departs from the Arts & Crafts area.

Walking tours of historic Howell by the Livingston County Historical Society —Depart Saturday and Sunday from the Courthouse lawn.

Performances by the musical group Ingapirca, featuring the sounds of South America—At various times at the Arts & Crafts Show and downtown at the Courthouse Amphitheater at noon on Sunday.

Car show is "must see" event

Just wait until you see the array of gleaming, glossy and glitzy vehicles at the Michigan Challenge Antique and Custom Car Show. It has become a very popular "must see" attraction for balloonfest visitors.

Coordinated by the Livingston A's Region of the Model A Restorers Club, the show will present rows of beautiful automobiles, from the early days all the way up to street rods and custom trucks. The cars will be on display on Saturday and Sunday of balloonfest, beginning at 11 a.m. Visitors for the show are asked to vote for their favorite. The winning car each day will receive the People's Choice Award prior to the evening balloon launch. Anyone is welcome to display an antique or custom vehicle at the show. Participants are asked to arrive at the West Grand River gate of the balloonfest prior to 2 p.m. on Saturday or Sunday. If the vehicle qualifies for the show, the driver will receive free entry.

Visitors to the Michigan Challenge can watch as Junior Achievement volunteers construct an "Arch of Achievement."

The arch will be constructed of approximately 2,000 helium-filled balloons.

Each balloon is sponsored by a business or individual in support of the business and economic education fostered by Junior Achievement of Livingston County. Each year Junior Achievement provides its programs free of charge to over 1,000 students in the county. The more balloons sponsored, the higher the arch will grow and the more help will be provided to Junior Achievement and its programs.

The Arch of Achievement will be constructed on Saturday, June 22, north of the launch field from 3 to 6 p.m. The rain date will be Sunday from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

First of America enters three-year sponsorship

Community banking is the underlying philosophy that has supported First of America's stability, growth and profitability since the holding company was formed.

In keeping with that philosophy, the bank has entered into a three-year agreement as the Major Sponsor of the Michigan Challenge Balloonfest.

"The employees and directors of First of America are proud to join in sponsoring the Michigan Challenge. It blends well with our community bank philosophy...to be involved in meaningful, quality activities," Livingston region community bank president Tom Lawrence said. "By entering this three-year agreement, we not only commit to the success of the county's largest event, but also to the people and businesses of the community."

While at the Michigan Challenge, visitors can visit and use the bank's one-of-a-kind CA$H Cruiser! This custom-made Ford Aerostar van is equipped with two Automated Teller Machines (ATMs) which will dispense cash through MagicLine, Cirrus and several other networks, making it easy to "shop till you drop" at the arts and crafts booths, the carnival and other vendors. So running short of cash should not be a problem!

The First of America balloon will soar during all scheduled launch periods.

First of America will also be presenting its hot air balloon. The First of America balloon will soar with the other "dragons of the sky" during all scheduled launch periods (assuming Mother Nature cooperates, of course) adding to the thrill and excitement of the event. In addition, the FOA balloon will be participating in the glorious Saturday evening balloon glow.

The staff at First of America is involved in local business and industry, education and the arts, civic and religious groups. They are proud members of the communities they serve and enjoy celebrating this family event with friends and neighbors.

The bank's history in the Livingston County area dates back to 1865 when, under the name of Alex McPherson & Sons, William McPherson founded what are now the Livingston County offices of First of America Bank.

First of America Bank Corporation, headquartered in Kalamazoo, Michigan, is a $23 billion bank holding company which has $16 billion in loans and $18 billion in deposits and serves over 3.2 million households in Michigan, Illinois, Indiana and Florida.

The company engages in commercial and retail banking. It also provides trust and other financial services, as well as mortgage origination services in North Carolina, South Carolina and Arizona.

Based on total assets, First of America is ranked 32nd among banking companies in the United States.

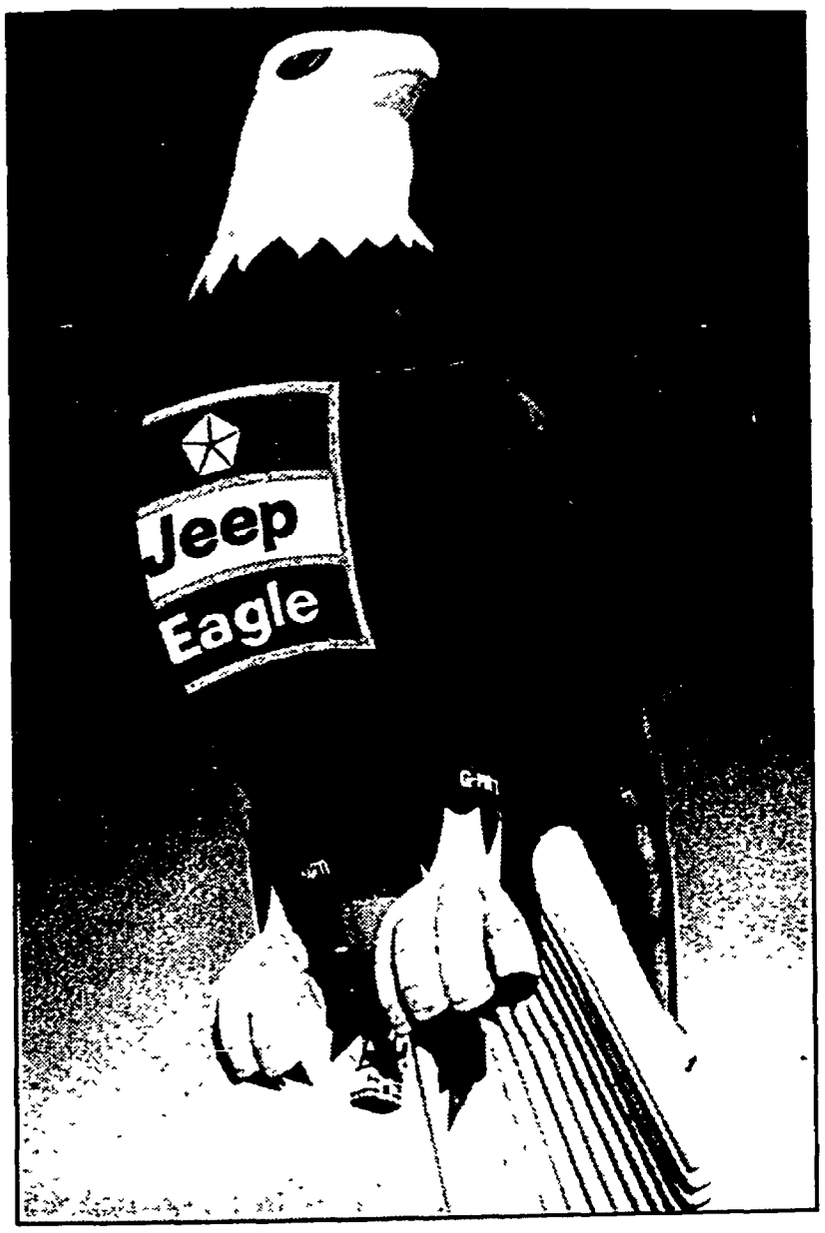
Special shaped balloons will float through skies at 12th annual balloonfest



The Jeep Eagle balloon will make its Howell debut.

Fabulous special-shape balloons will float through the skies above Howell at this year's Michigan Challenge Balloonfest.

Look up in the sky during balloonfest weekend and you just might see a towering American eagle, a larger-than-life tennis shoe, a bright pink kitty cat or the only penguin in the world that can actually fly.

The Michigan Challenge welcomes the Jeep-Eagle American Eagle balloon for its first visit to Howell. This magnificent hand painted and air brushed eagle is 135 feet, making it the largest balloon ever to appear at the event.

The Jeep-Eagle American Eagle is piloted by Drew Roznowski of Madison, Wisconsin.

Spectators will welcome back an old friend, Pepe the Penguin, returning for his seventh visit to the Challenge, sponsored by Pepsi.

Pepe is the world's only flying penguin and the world's largest one, as well. Measuring a stunning 120 feet tall and sporting a jaunty red scarf, Pepe makes friends with children and adults alike.

Pepe is piloted by Jim Birk of Defiance, Ohio.

The world's largest athletic shoe "Big Foot," Famous Footwear's hot-air balloon, will step into Howell for the balloonfest for its fourth visit. Complete with brightly colored shoelaces, Big Foot has a footprint approximately the same as three singles tennis courts. This shoe is taller than a 10-story building and weights 617 pounds.

Fully inflated, Big Foot is just 41 feet shorter than the Statue of Liberty and is two-thirds as long as the Goodyear Blimp. Yet, surprisingly enough, the giant shoe packs away in a four-and-a-half foot carrying bag.

Big Foot is piloted by Jim Ryan from Madison, Wisconsin.

Kitty Schwartz of Plano, Texas will return to the Challenge with Kat II, a bright pink cat that is sure to delight the cat lovers and balloon lovers in the area. Kitty tries to return to the Challenge as often as she can because she has many relatives and friends in the Howell area.

Chamber greets guests

On behalf of the Howell Area Chamber of Commerce we'd like to welcome you to this year's Michigan Challenge Balloonfest.

Congratulations to the Michigan Challenge committee for its tireless work all year to ensure a spectacular and enjoyable weekend for our many thousands of guests.

Our thanks go to our Michigan Challenge Major Sponsor, First of America Bank; to our Supporting Sponsors, Citizens Insurance Company of America, Pepsi, Mister Rubbish and Kensington Valley Factory Shops; to Blue Care Network-Health Central for its sponsorship of the Windjammers Stunt Kite Team; and to Innovations Home Care and Wal-Mart for their sponsorship of Serena's Song.

We also receive great support from our individual balloon sponsors and advertisers, as well as the City of Howell and Howell Public Schools. We would be unable to put on an event of this size without their help.

The mission of the Howell Area Chamber of Commerce is to "foster and support a strong and diverse business base through programs that promote a vital business environment, a high quality of life and an outstanding community." We feel the Michigan Challenge Balloonfest accomplishes just that, in addition to providing great family entertainment and a weekend of memories.

Sincerely,

Paul Rogers, Chairman
Lee Reeves, President
Howell Area
Chamber of Commerce

Mayor welcomes visitors

Welcome to Howell and the 12th annual Michigan Challenge. Our community is pleased and proud to be home to this premier ballooning event that offers something for everyone in the family. By my calculations, this year we will most likely welcome the 1,000,000th visitor to the Michigan Challenge! This event is one of many major projects of the Howell Area Chamber of Commerce, with the cooperation of literally the entire City. The commitment to the community and contributions made by our chamber are unparalleled, as demonstrated by this spectacular event.

We hope that during your visit you spend some time to explore Howell and the many things we have to offer. Howell was incorporated as a village 133 years ago. Like many cities on the old Grand River Road, we have many buildings that reflect our past. During your visit you will find many finely restored buildings in the downtown area. You may also notice several that are about to receive a "historic" facelift. A special addition to the downtown is the shining new home of the Howell Area Chamber of Commerce on South Michigan Avenue. Our neighborhoods also reflect our historic past and a special commitment by our residents to preservation of our heritage.

We are pleased that you chose Howell this weekend. We hope your visit is a pleasant one and that you return many times in the future.

Sincerely,

Paul Streng
Mayor, City of Howell

Serena's Song creates magical moments

Over a hundred people who use wheelchairs enjoyed a first-ever tethered balloon ride at last year's Michigan Challenge Balloonfest. The magic will continue this year as Serena's Song, the world's first handicapped hot-air balloon, returns to the balloonfest to give free tethered balloon rides to children and adults in wheelchairs.

This special opportunity is being made possible by the sponsorship team of Wal-Mart Stores and Innovations Home Care.

If the weather cooperates with light winds (under 10 m.p.h.), Serena's Song will carry its special passengers up to 100 feet above the balloonfest grounds during launch times. There will be opportunities to fly on Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings from 6 to 8 p.m. and Saturday and Sunday mornings from 6 to 8 a.m.

The balloon is a vivid blue with a huge wheelchair accessible symbol on the envelope. Access to the balloon is provided by a unique 48-inch door in the side of the balloon basket. Serena's Song will be located west of handicapped parking and within view of the main launch field.

"We give opportunities to people with special needs to experience something that not many of their able-bodied friends have ever been able to do."

— Gary Waldman

Serena's Song is the brainchild of Gary Waldman of Correctionville, Iowa. It is named after his daughter Serena, 12 years old. Serena was born with cerebral palsy and is a quadriplegic.

Gary arranged for Serena to have a tethered hot-air balloon ride about eight years ago by tying her wheelchair into the basket of a friend's balloon. Gary and his wife Cheryl were overcome by Serena's joyous reaction to her ride and vowed to make this opportunity available to people with special needs across the country.

Serena does not speak, so the name "Serena's Song" was given to the balloon. The Waldmans travel the country to bring the unique experience of balloon flight to thousands of people with special needs at major events such as the Michigan Challenge.

The balloon is flown by hot-air balloon pilot Phil Gray.

"We give opportunities to people with special needs to experience something that not many of their able-bodied friends have ever been able to do," explains Waldman.

Waldman tells many heart warming Serena's Song stories, like the time in Tulsa Oklahoma when a little girl in the balloon began shouting "Thank you! Thank you!" Those were the first words she'd ever said.

Or another young person who refused to be accompanied in his ride by his parents as a gesture of independence.

Guests at the Michigan Challenge who use wheelchairs should use the West Grand River entrance. If they have handicapped identification on their vehicle they should ask to be directed to the handicapped parking area.

Serena's Song, the world's first handicap-accessible balloon, gives free tethered rides to people who use wheelchairs.

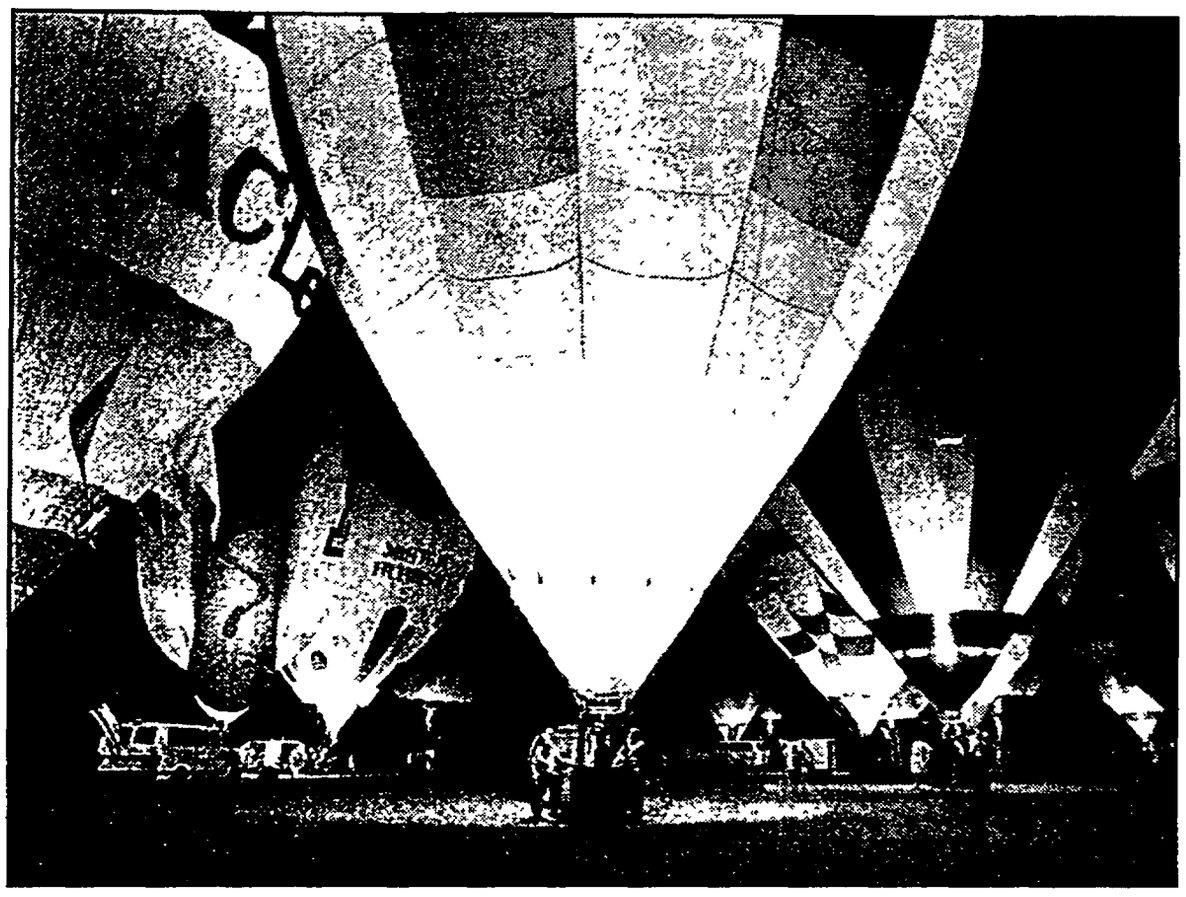
Saturday night events are spectacular

Saturday night is traditionally the high point of Michigan Challenge weekend. That's when the Balloon Glow and Supernova Night Show will light up the sky and the launch field with color and spectacle.

As darkness falls, over 20 balloons will inflate on the launch field, their colors glowing against the night sky. And then, from nearly one mile above the earth, the Aerial Allstars Skydiving Team will perform their Supernova Night Show, a spectacular night time jump, complete with pyrotechnics.

The Supernova Night Show opens with the skydivers' blazing comet trails in freefall at 120 miles per hour. The pyrotechnic display continues after the canopies are open. The performers will fire special effects pyro which send shooting stars and bombs bursting in the air across the sky.

The Michigan Challenge Balloon Glow has become one of the most popular events of the balloonfest weekend. Many thousands of spectators have been dazzled by the glow at the balloonfest and many thousands more have seen it featured on TV news programs.



The twilight balloon glow is the perfect end to the day's events.

With the addition of the Supernova Night Show, it is a breathtaking event.

A balloon glow is a not-to-be-missed sight. The balloons will be illuminated from within, by their propane burners, creating a glowing panorama of color, shape and spectacle. No balloons will launch at the glow, all will remain on the ground, allowing plenty of time for spectators to "ooh" and "aaah" and take plenty of photographs.

The glow will be coordinated by Clarkston pilot Howard Steele.

Between Saturday evening's launch and the balloon glow, Michigan Challenge visitors will be entertained by the L. C. Brass, a top-rate professional brass ensemble.

In addition to the L.C. Brass concert there will be plenty to do while waiting for the glow, scheduled for approximately 9:30, weather permitting. Many of the crafters in the Arts & Crafts Show will remain open late, the carnival will be in full swing (and tilt and spin) and food vendors in both the Arts & Crafts area and at the west end of the launch field will be serving up plenty of goodies.

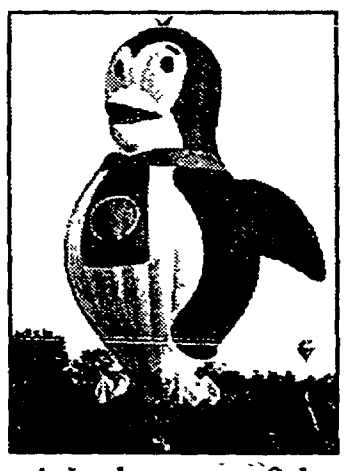
Michigan Challenge roster of pilots

1. Bruce Bussey, the returning 1995 Michigan Challenge champion, will pilot the "Cadillac" balloon sponsored by Superior Oldsmobile Cadillac. Bruce and his wife Lori reside in Longworth TX, but are almost constantly on the road competing in various events. This year's souvenir pin feature Bruce's balloon and he'd like to see it again on next year's.

2. "Mister Rubbish," the bright yellow balloon of Supporting Sponsor Mister Rubbish, will be piloted by Ed Dotson of Ann Arbor. Ed is very active in the ballooning community, operating his own repair station for balloons in the Great Lakes area as well as flying commercial rides. As a second place finisher last year, his balloon is also featured on the souvenir pin.

3. Major Sponsor First of America Bank returns with Ron Centers of Kalamazoo piloting its corporate balloon. Ron has flown with us for many events. His wife Nancy helps him with his business of balloon instruction out in the western part of Michigan.



4. Lock up your fish supplies! The world's only flying penguin, "Pepe," will be piloted by none other than Balloonmeister Jim Birk from Defiance, OH. Jim will try to take home another Michigan Challenge trophy like the one he won in 1992. Supporting Sponsor, Pepsi-Cola, is Pepe's Sponsor.

5. Competition Director Dick Rudlaff will fly "Scott Free," a brilliant yellow balloon with split gores of primary colors. Dick and his wife Jan divide their time between Waterford, MI and Florida. First Impression Printing & Graphics will sponsor Dick. He was the first Michigan Challenge champion.

6. Weather and safety are Wayne Warren's responsibilities when it comes to the Challenge. Wayne flies "Karma Chameleon," a balloon that changes colors from dark maroon to vertical stripes of red, orange, yellow and white. Wayne is sponsored by Ameritech.

7. "Kids Play," depicting colorful silhouettes of Jim and Gari Lykins' kids at play, is always popular at the Challenge. The Lykins are from Utica and are sponsored by Attorney James Barley.

8. "Toadally Awesome," not seen at this event for several years, is returning, piloted by Donna Fox. Donna has flown in almost every Michigan Challenge and usually flies commercial or special shape entries. She is sponsored by Woodshire Place.

9. Phil Glebe of Brighton, MI, has won just about every award there is in ballooning, including the Challenge in 1988. Phil will fly the "Pontiac Excitement" balloon sponsored by Waldecker Pontiac. Phil and his family live in Brighton.

10. Want to get confused? Just try to figure out which Gauthier brother is flying what balloon. This year, Joey Gauthier of Pontiac is one of three of the family of five brothers who fly balloons. Joey will pilot "Nudge Me," sponsored by Computer Cable Concepts.

11. Steve Lichtenstein will pilot the balloon of the Michigan Challenge sky-diving team, the Aerial Allstars. Steve is from Louisville, KY and is sponsored this year by Micro Works Computing.

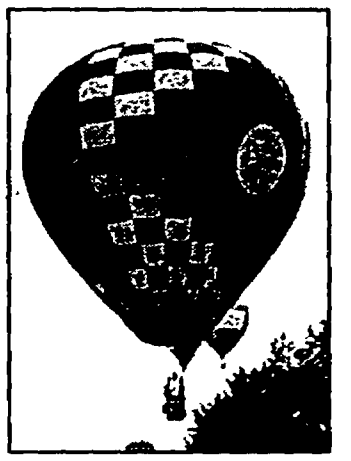
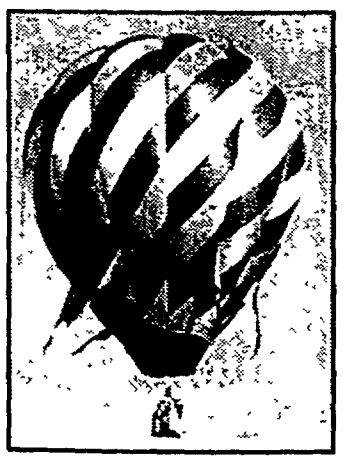
12. Sandi and Larry Novotny of Allen Park return with their balloon "Ditto," sponsored by Dave's Auto Repair. Since this husband and wife team are both pilots, they take turns piloting the balloon.

13. Livingston Home Planners & Designers is sponsoring John Carter of Laingsburg, MI flying "Wild Thang." The balloon is a beautiful dark green with accents of bright colors around the horizon. John has flown in all Michigan Challenge events.



14. Coming from a new home port in Galena, IL, Phil Thompson is flying "Lost in America" for sponsor G-Graphics. This will be Phil's tenth appearance at the Michigan Challenge.

15. First National Bank will again sponsor their friend Kitty Schwartz of Plano, TX flying "Miss Kitty." This will be Kitty's sixth appearance at the Challenge. The crowd really loves her special shape balloon.



16. Another husband and wife team is

Jerry and Daria Stephan of Howell, flying "Jedami." The Stephans are sponsored by MacDonald's Funeral Home. Besides flying balloons, Jerry is also a commercial airline pilot.

17. Bill Sterner returns flying "Rejoice II," a brightly colored balloon with splashes of vertical color surrounding gores of primary colors. Bill is sponsored by Fidelity Communications Corporation.

18. Shaun Raya will pilot the ever-popular Father & Son entry. This huge balloon depicts the company's corporate logo and many of the projects they build. A member of the Raya family has flown in every Michigan Challenge.

20. Chem-Trend will sponsor a new pilot to this year's Challenge, Ken Cramer from Coshocton, OH. Ken will fly "Top Hat, a hot pink balloon with black and white checkered top and bottom.

21. Chuck Owens of Battle Creek returns for the tenth time to Howell, flying "Gizmo." The balloon features shades of browns and yellows and is sponsored by May & Scofield.

22. "Orange Peel," flown by Dale Duthie of Canton, will be sponsored by Mugg & Bopps. This balloon is aptly named because of its bright orange color.

23. Charlick & Springstead Dental Associates is sponsoring the second appearance of Cheryl Heselschwerdt of Grass Lake, MI piloting "Jesus Loves You!" The bright blue balloon features a large white dove, carrying the olive branch of peace.

24. Portage, MI sends us Larry Sweerin piloting "Second Child." Snedicor's Cleaners is Larry's sponsor this year. His balloon is navy blue with teal and fuschia teardrops.

25. HomeTown Newspapers will sponsor Fowlerville pilot Dennis Nunn in his second appearance at the Challenge. His balloon, "Midnight Rainbow," has a dark background with the upper portion of the balloon a splash of bright colors.

26. Paul Guandee of Elkhart, IN, returns to the Michigan Challenge flying "Sunrise," a bright orange and yellow balloon that definitely gets noticed, especially at the Saturday evening Balloon Glow. He is sponsored by Metropolitan Title.

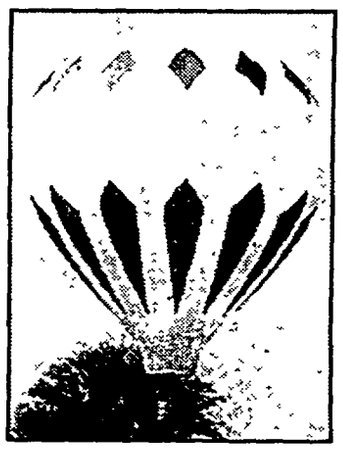
27. Dennis Belger from Richmond, MI will again be sponsored by Best Western of Howell. Dennis and his wife Shirley get here as often as they can, flying "Betsy."

28. Vaughn Sherwood of Jackson returns for a fifth time at the Michigan Challenge, flying "Northern Lights." Vaughn is sponsored by McDonald's of Howell. Northern Lights has red and yellow vertical stripes with a blue top.

29. Tim and Melissa Midura of Barberton, OH make up another husband and wife team of pilots. The Miduras are sponsored by Reuland Electric. They are flying "Kizmet," a balloon with a yellow top and various-colored gores of different heights.

30. Mark Frazer of Middletown, OH returns for the second time at the Challenge, flying "Release." He is sponsored by A&L Parts. The balloon is yellow with stair step colors of purple, pink and blue/green.

31. Spartan Tire will sponsor Allen Yost and "Spectrum." The balloon is yellow with red, blue and green zig zags. Allen comes from Midlothian, IL and is a familiar sight here at the Challenge.



32. A brand new pilot to the event this year is Cheryl Wiseman from Tallahassee, FL, flying "Diamond Beauty," a yellow balloon with multi-colored diamonds. Cheryl is sponsored by Adia Personnel.

33. "Sun Pirate" flown by Scott Lorenz has multiple personalities, as its name is changed almost every year. Scott is from Plymouth, MI and is sponsored by CommTech Services.

34. The Challenge welcomes another new corporate balloon. The Q106 Radio balloon will make its first appearance at this event, piloted by Jonathon Schwartz.

35. The brightly colored Re-Max balloon will be piloted by Tom Bergeon of Mason, MI. The Re-Max balloon is often seen on the company's television commercials.

Michigan Challenge XII Balloonfest

36. Mark Yonker of South Lyon, MI will fly GM Goodwrench. The balloon is blue and black with accents of red and silver. This is Mark's fourth appearance at the Challenge.

39. Jon Thompson of Brighton, MI is piloting the corporate-sponsored AC-Delco balloon. Jon often inflates the balloon on the ground for various promotional activities for the company.

45. Another crowd pleasing balloon is "Kalamazoo," flown by Dr. John Dircks. The silk screened envelope depicts various African animal scenes. John is sponsored by Doctor Ismael Yanga.

48. Oceola Township is again sponsoring one of its own residents, Dave Sgriccia, flying "Oceola Lola." Dave and his wife Nina have had great success in past years winning American Airlines tickets here at the Challenge.

51. Another exciting pilot to watch this year is Mark Duewer of Brighton flying the brand new WHMI 93.5 entry. The balloon is multi-colored with the name of the county's only radio station. This will be Mark's first attempt to bring home the Michigan Challenge trophy.

37. LaFontaine GMC will sponsor the "GMC" balloon again this year. The wide corporate banner hangs on a multi-colored envelope. Kevin Miko of Fenton, MI flies regularly all over the country.

41. Rob Mihaly of Lakewood, OH will return for his eighth Michigan Challenge flying "Boojum," and sponsored by U/M Health Center-Dr. Dong-Soo Kim. His wife Marty is always a welcome addition to the fun here in Howell.

43. A brand new Famous Footwear "Big Foot" balloon of bright bold colors will be piloted by Jim Ryan of Madison, WI. Watch out for the shoe laces so you don't trip! Jim has made many friends in Howell each year as they help him with ground crew work.

46. Robert Hofbauer of Montpelier, OH is a new pilot at the Challenge. Robert flies "Monet," a yellow, blue and plum balloon with green banana panels bursting out. Sounds like a visual treat that only Monet could produce. He is sponsored by Knights Inn of Howell.

49. Jody Leatherberry is flying his beautiful balloon "Phoenix." Watch for a balloon with a bird rising out of the ashes and flame. Jody is a Ford dealer and is sponsored by Hilltop Ford for his ninth appearance at the Challenge.

53. Perhaps the most spectacular entry at this year's Michigan Challenge is the enormous Jeep Eagle "American Eagle" balloon. This will be the first time this balloon has appeared in Howell. Drew Roznowski of Madison, WI will create a sensation through the crowd with this huge special-shape balloon.

38. A previous Michigan Challenge champion, Don Butler of Saline returns to fly "JellyBean," a bright yellow balloon with vertical gores of candy colors. Spag's Specialties will sponsor Don's appearance.

44. David Lowe returns to the Michigan Challenge with "Balloon Man Too." The balloon is a fanciful depiction of a balloon peddler at the circus. David is sponsored by Park Inn of Howell.

47. The third Flying Gauthier Brother at this year's event is Ted Gauthier, flying the Anderson Sea Doo balloon. The balloon is hot pink and green with a caricature of a Sea Doo driver on one side. Ted is from Pontiac.

50. John Derado, a good friend to the Challenge, will return this summer flying "Summer Dream." John and his wife Tommi are sponsored by Allstar Alarm.

Michigan Challenge XII Balloonfest

Back in 1915, Citizens Insurance launched a whole new industry in Michigan when it became the first automobile insurer in the state. Based in Howell since its inception more than 80 years ago, the company has enjoyed soaring success and growth for itself as well as its hometown community.

Today, Citizens is the largest writer of property-casualty insurance in the state through independent agents. It is a leading provider of insurance for homes, boats, businesses, workers' compensation and, of course, automobiles. The company has expanded its markets into Indiana and Ohio.

Throughout its history, the company has been an active corporate citizen of Howell and Livingston County.

Many of its employees live in and around the home office community, giving support and countless hours of volunteer service to area charities and organizations.

The company also provides support toward local community services, school programs and events like the balloonfest because investing in the success of the community benefits all who are part of it, including employees, customers and agents.

As a continuing sponsor of Michigan Challenge XII, Citizens is supporting an event that provides memorable fun for families and promotes Howell to audiences far and wide.

Citizens employees will be on site throughout the June 21-23 celebration, handing out free balloons and other souvenirs.

There won't be a Citizens balloon flying high in the 1996 Michigan Challenge, but the company is pleased to continue as a committed ground crew to help this and other community events succeed as Citizens Insurance has.

Windjammers dazzle with kite-flying antics

The Windjammers Stunt Kite team will return to dazzle the Michigan Challenge crowd with its dazzling stunt kite routines and air-show-like maneuvers for the seventh consecutive year. They'll bring with them some special surprises and some new kites that will allow them to fly in wind conditions from "zero to 60."

The team flies stunt kites, controlled with two lines, allowing them to be steered and "choreographed." Visitors will see four kites drawing perfect squares in the sky...strafing the ground after breathtaking controlled power dives...and performing a choreographed "ballet" to music.

According to team spokesperson Gary Maynard the team will bring a full arsenal of kites that will allow the team to perform in winds as light as "0" mph, all the way up to heavy wind conditions. The team has been experimenting with so-called "indoor kites" that, as the name implies, can be flown indoors, or in low to no-wind conditions. For normal winds, the team will break out their Skyburner, delta-shaped stunt kites and then thrill the Michigan Challenge crowd with their Dyna-Kites.

The Dyna-Kites are red, white and blue stunt kite beauties that stack into "trains" of 13 kites each. When all four team members are flying the Dyna-Kites, the 52 kites give the impression of an American flag aloft.

The Windjammers will be sponsored by Blue Care Network-Health Central.

The team loves to teach beginners the secrets of stunt kite flying. So at the Michigan Challenge, spectators don't have to just watch, they can get their hands on a stunt kite and learn how to perform some of the basic maneuvers themselves. If visitors have their own stunt kites, they're encouraged to bring them along to get some tips from the experts.

Ray Hanchett of Rider's Hobby Shop in Lansing, along with the Windjammers and other experienced flyers will coordinate open stunt kiting on the balloon launch field on Saturday and Sunday from 10 a.m. until the Windjammers performance at 3 p.m.

At 3 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday the Windjammers will perform a synchronized stunt kite routine to a full range of music from children's favorites to progressive and show tunes.

The Windjammers are Aaron Harris, James Kinsey, Gary Maynard and Nate Williams, all of Detroit. They've been flying stunt kites together for years. And when they do, all eyes turn skyward to watch the show. The team can often be seen on Detroit's Belle Isle, where their unscheduled stunt kite performances often bring traffic to a dead stop.

Even though the Windjammers show doesn't start until 3, you can bet you'll see some pretty fancy flying all day long. These guys just can't help showing off!

How does the Challenge work?

How does the Michigan Challenge competition work? Is it a race?

Although popularly called "races," competitions such as the Challenge have nothing to do with how fast or how far a balloon travels. Competitive ballooning rates pilots on how well they can use wind currents and altitude to steer their balloons to a specific target.

As regulars to the Michigan Challenge know, weather conditions determine if the balloons will fly at all. High or gusty winds are the enemy of balloon flights. Balloons fly in the early evening and just after dawn because that is when the winds are the most calm. Winds over 12 mph, rain or lightning will keep the balloons grounded.

If the weather is favorable, after the launch the pilots will try to find the right wind currents to take them close to the target. Each pilot will toss a numbered "baggie" onto the target, usually a large "X" shape spread in a field or at an intersection, aiming to be as close to the center as possible. During morning flights at the Michigan Challenge, the "X" is located right at the launch field and the pilots take off from various spots out in the countryside.

Officials measure distance between the baggies and the target, so don't touch any on the ground.

Balloonists will compete in various events such as Judge Declared Goal, Hare and Hound, Watership Down and CNT (controlled navigational trajectory). Each event will have at least one target (or task), sometimes two or three.

The type of competition will depend on the weather conditions and will be determined by Balloonmeister Jim Birk and be announced at the pilot briefing prior to each launch. Spectators should listen for competition announcer Tom Maynard who will supply the details of each flight. Maynard, the Voice of the Michigan Challenge, is sponsored by Grime Busters Mobile Washing.

This year, balloon pilots will compete for the beautiful Michigan Challenge XII trophy, cash, merchandise and two tickets compliments of American Airlines. In addition, the Balloon Federation of America will award successful competitors points that are used towards national ranking and the opportunity to compete at the national ballooning championship.

Pepsi-Cola is a division of PepsiCo. Pepsi-Cola consists of three main divisions: Restaurants (Pizza Hut, Taco Bell, Kentucky Fried Chicken), Snacks (Frito-Lay), Beverages (Pepsi-Cola. Pepsi-cola is transferring from a carbonated soft drink company to a total beverage company. We now sell and distribute Lipton Ice Tea, Ocean Spray Juices/Lemonades and All Sport (Isotonic). Please feel free to try any and all of the "New Age" products as they are being sold and sampled throughout this three-day Michigan Challenge.

Pepsi-Cola has been a part of the Howell community since 1969. The Howell facility was strictly a bottling plant until 1990 when we added a sales warehouse and began distributing products as well. Some facts you may find interesting about the Howell facility are:

- In 1996, the Howell bottling operation will produce over 29 million cases and fill over 600 million units of Pepsi-Cola products.
- A typical Pepsi-Cola route salesman will deliver 85,000 cases a year. They will handle over 2.7 million pounds of 1,350 tons of Pepsi-Cola products.
- A typical Pepsi-Cola over-the-round/transport tractor will be driven in excess of 150,000 miles in one year.
- We use over 600,000 gallons of fuel a year to operate our transport and sales fleet.
- Our fleet repair team changes over 800 tires and performs 1,300 preventive maintenance checks a year.
- Our sales warehouse loading team loads over 115,000 pallets of product or 249,000 pounds of product a year.
- Our Howell bottling facility operates seven lines and produces over 125 different items.
- Our laboratory team uses in excess of 100 million gallons of water to produce Pepsi-Cola products.
- The Howell facility is one of two producing facilities for the entire lower peninsula of Michigan.

Hopefully, you have been able to "Buy Pepsi and Get Stuff." By purchasing Pepsi products you can save up points and receive Pepsi clothing and other various collectable items. Catalogs are available at participating retailers or you can pick up one by visiting the Pepsi van located on the grounds of the Michigan Challenge Balloonfest.

Enjoy this year's Michigan Challenge. Be sure to try our New Age beverages or a refreshing cold glass of Pepsi as you take in this year's Balloonfest and remember, "NOTHING ELSE IS A PEPSI."

Expect variety at show

Over 200 artists and crafts people from 12 states will be showing and selling their works at this year's Michigan Challenge Arts & Crafts Show.

The show will open at 4 p.m. on Friday, June 21. On Saturday the show will open at 9 a.m. and on Sunday at 10 a.m. Crafters will remain open until after the evening balloon launch.

Works in wood, watercolor, stained glass, pottery, basketry, jewelry and soft sculpture will be available for show and sale.

The show will take place outside, adjacent to Howell High School within view of the balloon launch site.

Kensington Valley Factory Shops is new sponsor

The development of Kensington Valley Factory Shops is underway and will open in time for the 1996 holiday shopping season. The project will bring 400 temporary and 300 permanent jobs to Howell Township.

The 250,000 square foot factory outlet center will be located on 46 acres at I-96 and highway M-59 in Livingston County and will have about 65 factory stores. These shops, owned and operated by nationally recognized manufacturers, offer customers deep discounts of between 25 and 75 percent off retail prices.

Kensington Valley Factory Shops will be about 30 miles northwest of suburban Detroit and is expected to draw two million shoppers from the city's suburbs and from nearby Ann Arbor and Lansing.

"We selected Howell Township after we looked at sites near every major metropolitan city in the midwest. We came to the conclusion that the best opportunity was in our own backyard," said Mark Rice, president of Howard & Rice, whose company is located in Farmington Hills. "Kensington Valley has excellent road access and will be served by I-96 and M-59, both major east-west arteries.

Kensington Valley will have a dramatic economic impact in the region, predicted G. Todd Rogan, development manager of Fru-Con Development Corp. "We expect to employ 400 craftspersons from virtually all construction disciplines as we building Kensington Valley Factory Shops. Then, once the center opens, Kensington Valley will employ about 300 permanent workers," Rogan said.

The center has the potential to generate $50 million in sales each year, adding an anticipated $3 million in annual sales tax revenues.

The country Victorian architectural design of the center is in keeping with the rural spirit of Howell Township. Attractive covered walkways will shield shoppers from inclement weather and link the shops.

"The way the stores are laid out will make the center a simple and pleasant place for customers to shop," Rogan said. "Kensington Valley's food court, in its own building, is the architectural focal point of the center. With indoor and patio seating for 350, it serves as a welcome resting spot for shoppers. We also have planned oversized and family restrooms with customer comfort in mind."

The second phase of Kensington Valley's development calls for construction of 100,000 square feet of additional store space and 599 more parking spaces.

Kensington Valley is unique among outlet centers because of the meticulous planning for Fru-Con Development Corp., Howard & Rice and local governmental officials. Planners designed infrastructure, such as road access, to easily accommodate traffic flow that Kensington Valley will generate.

"It has been delightful to be part of the community during the planning phase of Kensington Valley," said Richard Maloof, executive vice president of Fru-Con Development Corp. "We look forward to the continued support that we've received from the local governmental authorities.

"By selecting the name 'Kensington Valley', we are linking our identity to the community at large," Maloof added.

Saddle up, cowpokes

Some quick and interesting facts about hot air balloons

Why do pilots traditionally toast with champagne at a flight's end? When the first balloon took flight in France in the late 18th century, it terrified the country folk, who thought the strange craft was some kind of monster. After the first few unhappy incidents with landowners, the pilot began carrying champagne as a sign of friendship and appeasement for the farmers.

The average standard-shaped balloon costs somewhere in the area of $15 to $30 thousand brand new. Special shaped balloons, like Famous Footwear's Big Foot, can cost over $70 thousand.

The multi-colored balloon part of a hot-air balloon is technically called the envelope and is made of rip-stop nylon.

Balloons hold between 30,000 and 800,000 cubic feet of air, depending on the size. Most hold about 70,000 cubic feet.

Propane is used to fuel the burners that provide lift for the balloons. Most balloons carry four 10-gallon propane cylinders.

Balloon burners generate about 10 million BTUs.

With 40 gallons of propane on board, balloons can fly for about two hours. Most flights, however, last about 1 1/2 hours.

Balloons often fly over water. Sometimes, a pilot will do what's called a "splash and dash" when the balloon descends to touch down in the water and then take off again.

What's that rope hanging from the top of the balloon? It's used to hold the balloon down during inflation. Sometimes the ground crew uses it to stabilize the balloon during landings.

Each pilot has several gauges on board. There is an altimeter to register how high the balloon is and a variometer to indicate whether the craft is going up or down. He has a temperature gauge to tell how hot the air is at the top of the balloon. Of course, the propane tanks have fuel gauges.

It's still early in the morning. The sun starts to break above the horizon, chasing off the sliver of a moon. It's time to face the summer day just as it begins.

John stirs and shakes off the cold of the previous night. As he stumbles out of his tent he can hear the moans and groans of others in the camp waking up. John looks over the small village of tents, contemplating where he should begin his day's work. Should he go to the armory to see how his armor is proceeding? Practice his sword skills in the list?

Maybe today he will help the cooks prepare the food for the villagers or spend some time at the forge brushing up on his blacksmithing skills. Or maybe enjoy himself and listen to the musicians play. There are many things that he can do at the Medieval Village at the Michigan Challenge Balloonfest.

The Medieval Village makes its sixth appearance at the balloonfest this year. It is organized by the Society for Creative Anachronism (SCA), a non-profit group dedicated to reenacting the Middle Ages from 600 to 1600 A.D. Many cultures are encompassed in the SCA; a small sampling may be seen in the Village.

The Medieval Village will be bustling with activity throughout Saturday and Sunday of Michigan Challenge weekend. Come out and see the list fields where sword fighters show off their skills. Crafts such as lace making, woodworking, armory, cooking and traditional music will be demonstrated. Late in the afternoon, shortly after 5 p.m., the cooks will show and explain the traditional food they spent all day preparing over an open fire.

The Medieval Village is located just east of the balloon launch field in the grove of trees. Come visit a place where history has never been so much fun!

Souvenirs provide lasting memories

Bring home a memento of your visit to the Michigan Challenge Balloonfest.

This year's cloisonne enamel souvenir pin commemorates the first and second-place balloons at last year's competition: the Cadillac balloon and the Mister Rubbish balloon.

You can have the striking artwork on the cover of this publication on your very own Michigan Challenge official souvenir T-shirt or sweatshirt. Alpha One of Howell will be selling these brilliantly-colored, 100% cotton T-shirts at several locations at the balloonfest grounds and in the downtown area. Alpha One will also have other official Michigan Challenge active wear for sale.

Vendors offer an array of foods

Food is an important element at the Michigan Challenge Balloonfest and an array of delicious treats is easy to find.

There are two food vending areas. Eight non-profit organizations are offering a tempting array of hot and cold items at the Arts & Crafts show at the east side of the launch field.

Visit the food court within the show, adjacent to the big tent, and enjoy free entertainment while you dine.

Over 20 commercial food vendors are in the food plaza at the west end of the launch field. Festival favorites such as hot dogs, sausage, pizza, elephant ears and ice cream will be available in addition to pierogies, Thai food, steak sandwiches and french fries.

Of course, plenty of cold Pepsi products will be available at both locations.

A full day of family fun for just $7 per carload

Where can you take the entire family for a full day of thrills, fun and entertainment for only $7? And on top of that have a chance to win two tickets to travel anywhere in the continental United States?

It's at Michigan Challenge XII, the state hot-air ballooning championship and festival where $7 parks your car and provides admission for all your passengers.

And with your paid parking you have a chance to win two tickets on American Airlines to anywhere they fly in the continental United States, Mexico or the Caribbean.

It's easy. Just remove the American Airlines portion of your parking pass and bring it to any of the conveniently located information booths at the festival site or at the downtown entertainment site at the courthouse. When you trade it in, you'll receive three raffle tickets. The drawing will be conducted at the launch site at 8 p.m. on Sunday, June 23. You need not be present to win.

PARKING AT THE CHALLENGE

Parking can be accessed from West Grand River Avenue or M-59. The parking charge also includes admission for everyone in the vehicle. So car pool with your friends and neighbors and make it an even bigger bargain.

Planning on attending more than one day? Many people do. A weekend pass is available for $10 from any parking attendant, or in advance from any Livingston County office of First of America Bank, Major Sponsor of the balloonfest.

For the comfort and safety of both our guests and our animal friends, the Michigan Challenge committee requests that spectators leave their pets at home.

HANDICAPPED PARKING

Handicapped parking is available at the West Grand River entrance. Guests in vehicles with a handicapped license plate or sticker should bring it to the attention of the parking attendant and will be shown to a special parking area where access to the launch site and festival grounds is completely paved.

Parking is extensive and convenient at the Michigan Challenge Balloonfest.

Hundreds of parking volunteers from area community groups will assist visitors to park their cars safely and conveniently. Last year, the Howell Area Chamber of Commerce donated over $6,000 to nonprofit agencies whose members served as parking volunteers. It's one of the many ways the balloonfest benefits the community.

The Michigan Challenge Balloonfest is the place to be on the weekend of June 21, 22 and 23 and its easy to find. Here's how to get there:

The City of Howell is located midway between Lansing and Detroit on I-96 and at the western end of M-59. The balloonfest takes place at the Howell High School complex, with entrances on West Grand River Avenue and M-59. For the most convenient access, travellers westbound on I-96 should take exit 141, 137 or 133. Follow the balloonfest signs. Travellers eastbound on I-96 should take exit 133 or 137.

M-59 travellers have it easy. Just take the highway into Howell. There are two convenient entrances directly from M-59. Coming from the north? Take I-75 to U.S. 23 south to M-59. Follow M-59 west 11 miles to the balloonfest entrance.

Don't miss concerts, special events, great shopping and restaurants in Howell on Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Downtown is about one mile east of the balloonfest grounds on Grand River Avenue.

Or, new this year, you can take the free Downtown Shuttle. Board the shuttle by the Arts & Crafts area. Taking your car downtown? Parking passes allow you to re-enter the grounds as often as you wish on the day indicated on the pass.

Balloonfest is a year-round effort

Almost as soon as the last balloon lands at this year's Michigan Challenge Balloonfest, the balloonfest committee will begin planning for next year's event.

Paul Rogers

Without the help of a core group of committee people and hundreds of dedicated volunteers, the Michigan Challenge Balloonfest could never (pardon the pun) "get off the ground."

"The Michigan Challenge committee is a 'can-do' group. There are no problems they cannot solve and they're always looking for ways to improve the weekend," said Pat Convery, the Michigan Challenge manager for the Howell Area Chamber of Commerce. "They work long hours all year long just for the purpose of putting on the best, most exciting event for the community and its visitors. The Michigan Challenge would not be possible without them."

The Michigan Challenge committee is chaired by Paul Rogers, owner of Telecom Management Systems. This is Paul's second year as chairperson.

Vice-chair of the Michigan Challenge Committee is Bill Bettis, owner of Bettis Insurance. He'll work closely with Paul Rogers throughout the weekend and also coordinate sanitation services with Mister Rubbish. Bill is himself a balloon pilot.

Steve Barlow, superintendent of buildings and grounds for Howell Public Schools, and Don Cortez, owner of First Impression Printing, are co-chairs of the parking committee. They are responsible for the enormous job of directing parking for the thousands of cars that visit the Challenge.

Cathy Blight chairs the Arts & Crafts Show. Cathy owns Creative House, a graphics design firm in Howell. She is assisted by Karen Murdock and Gail Down. The show is one of the largest attractions at the Michigan Challenge.

Sandie Cortez, who owns First Impression Printing with her husband Don, is in charge of all signage for the event. She also serves as a parking gate captain.

Dianne Hardy is Livingston County Treasurer. She serves as hospitality chairperson for the Michigan Challenge, seeing that the pilots are well fed and that the VIP room is stocked with refreshments. She also coordinates a number of parties and special events before and during the balloonfest weekend.

Doug Hawes of WYM Consulting Services is vendor chairperson. He coordinates both food and non-food concessionaires on the balloonfest grounds. Doug is assisted by Gary Sumeracki of P&J Investigations.

Victor Lopez, owner of Active Bookkeeping Service, keeps the books for the balloonfest, as head of the finance committee.

Martha McKenzie of the Howell Carnegie District Library coordinates site activities, souvenirs and the information booths at the Michigan Challenge with her husband Jerry.

Mike and Mary Nadeau of Howell are in charge of the sound systems at both the balloonfest site and at the amphitheater in downtown Howell.

Tim Holliday, owner of Pet Provisions in Howell and Brighton, chairs the downtown committee, coordinating all the special events in Historic Downtown Howell. He is being assisted this year by John Mullaney of Total Office Products, Grace Perry of HomeTown Newspapers, City Council member Geri Moen, Michelle Tokan, Janet Phipps and Sue Delatto.

Pam Rietsch, the area's Welcome Wagon representative, serves as liaison for the over 50 pilots and their crew members. Pam has worked on the committee since its first year.

Dick Rudlaff of Pontiac is the event's competition director and first had the idea of holding the state championship of hot-air ballooning in Howell. A nationally-known pilot, he will also compete in the Challenge.

Barry L. Rutter is a lieutenant with the City of Howell Police Department. He acts as liaison between the city and the chamber, coordinates safety and security at the balloonfest site and is in charge of carnival activities.

Jerry Smith chairs the Antique and Custom Car Show. Jerry is a project engineer for May & Scofield and is very active in the Livingston A's Region Model A Restorer's Club.

Don Watson, assistant superintendent of transportation and operations for the Howell Public Schools, is in charge of the balloonfest site. He makes sure everything is in place for the big weekend.

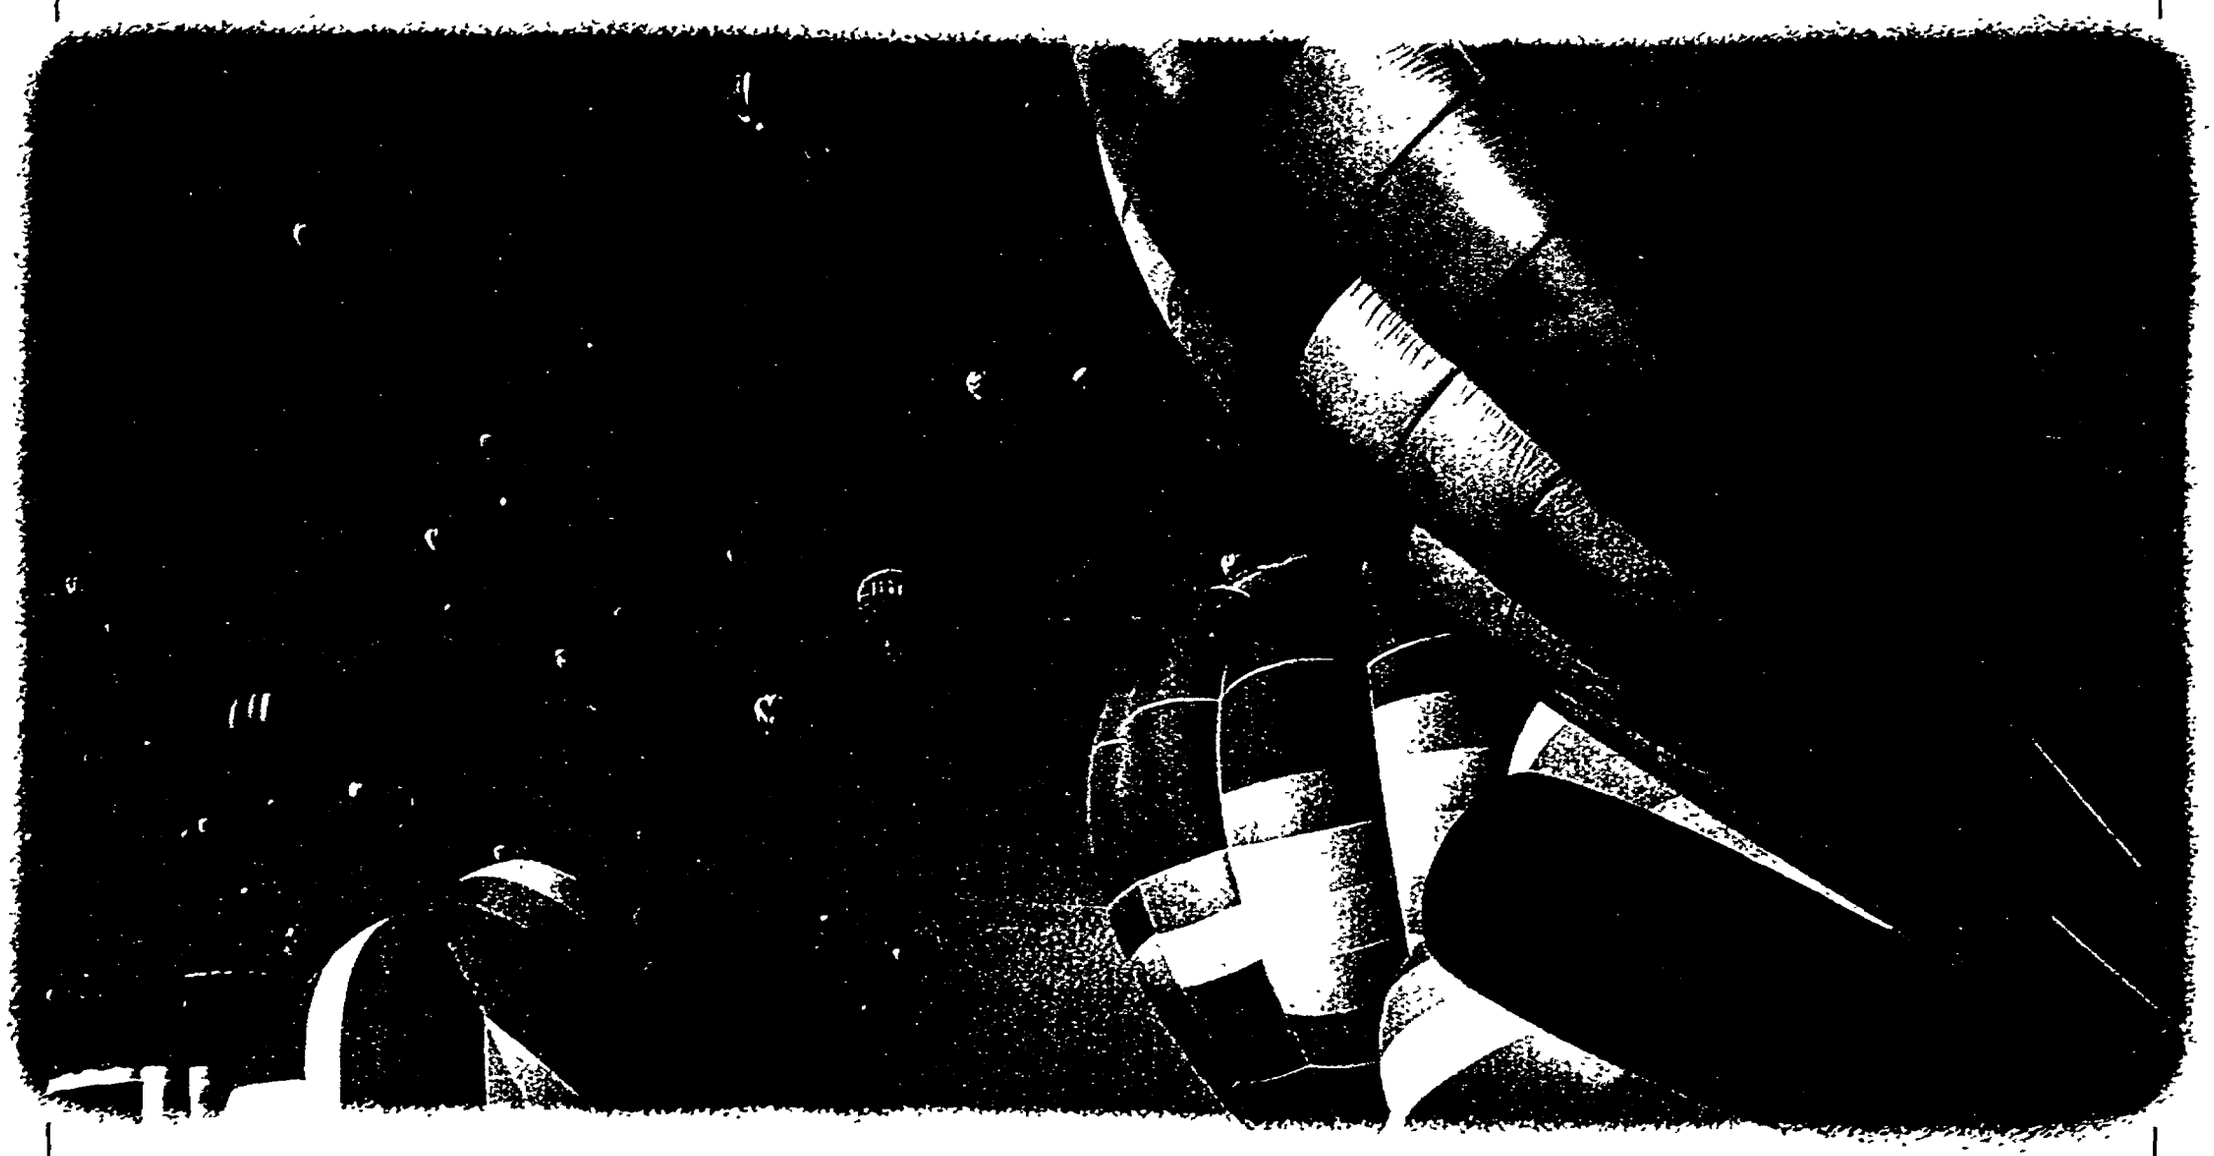
"GET THE BEST SERVICE FOR LESS"



It won't take a weatherman to appreciate the hot air masses over Howell this weekend.

As unpredictable as Michigan weather can sometimes be, we're certain you'll find conditions perfect for a good time at the Michigan Challenge Balloonfest. And as one of the most successful community banks in the Midwest, we're proud to be a major sponsor of this event. It's our way of giving a little lift to those who've helped us climb to the top.

And if you like predictability and security in your savings, come to First of America for a guaranteed pay off. During every six months of its initial two-year term, our Rising Rate CD gives you a guaranteed increase in your interest rate. And you can withdraw all of your deposit within the first 10 days after any six-month interval during the initial two-year term without penalty. The Rising Rate CD. The liquidity you want, with the guaranteed interest growth you need.

With two ATMs stocked with plenty of cash, the First of America Cash Cruiser is a convenient way for you to get money quickly. Visit our Cash Cruiser at the Michigan Challenge Balloonfest.

Buying Energy-Efficient Windows And Doors

(NAPS) Considering replacing your aging, drafty windows and doors with more energy-efficient products? Great idea. But how can you be sure those new products will help lower your energy bills? There are two main elements to consider: what the windows and doors are made from and their U-Value.

When it comes to energy efficiency, nothing beats wood windows and doors. The natural honeycombed structure of wood acts as a buffer between the outdoor extremes and indoor comfort. Be sure to select solid wood doors. In windows look for wood interiors and exteriors of wood or wood clad with aluminum or vinyl.

Energy Rating Confusion

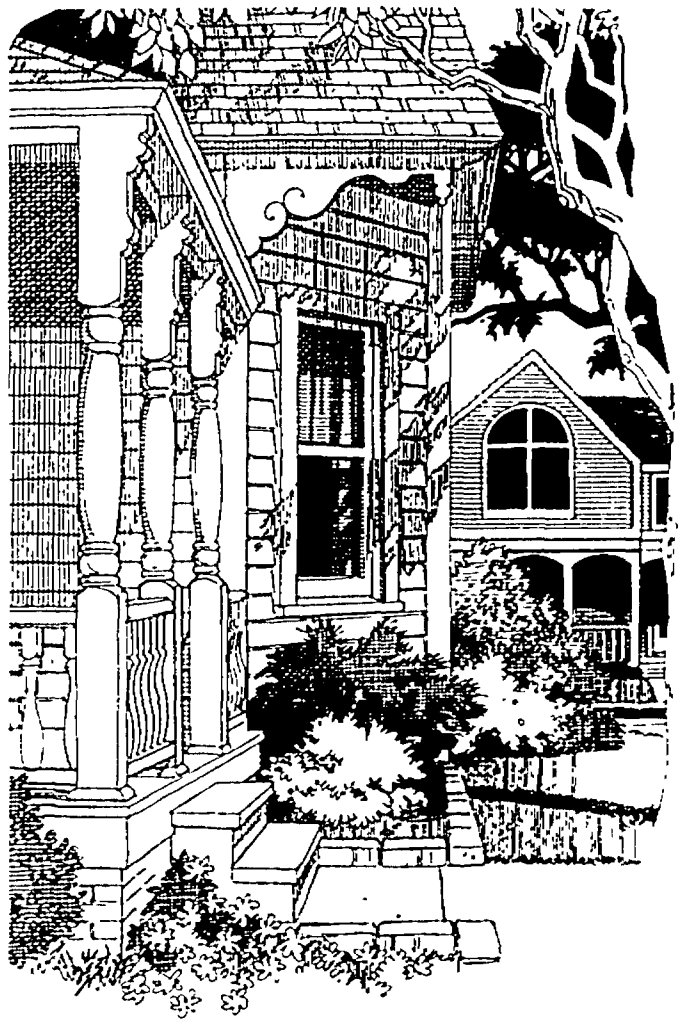
Until recently, energy performance in windows, doors and skylights was provided to consumers in a variety of ways. Some manufacturers described their glass performance by showing R-Values that rivaled many insulation materials. While the glass may have had a very high performance, this rating did not characterize the entire window system. Similarly, manufacturers touted the energy efficiency of their frames or other components, but these, too, did not reflect the performance of the entire system.

In 1993, the National Fenestration Rating Council (NFRC), a non-profit public/private group, established a standard performance rating system for windows, doors and skylights. This program measures U-Values of the entire system, including the framing and glass. Simply put, U-Value is the amount of heat transfer that results from a temperature difference across a window or door.

Whole-Product Performance

NFRC ratings are based on "whole product performance." Although a window or skylight may have high performance glazing, its overall performance may be reduced by a poorly performing frame. Similarly, a very energy efficient frame may be wasted on ineffective glazing and sealing. Whole product performance helps builders and consumers compare products of different construction and attributes directly.

According to the National Wood Window and Door Association, U-Values typically range from 1.15 to 0.15.



The smaller the U-Value, the less heat transfer between the inside and outside due to a temperature difference. By choosing wood windows and doors, and knowing their U-Value, you can help lower heating and cooling costs and remain comfortable. ■

Builder Of The Month

Homes By Chirco

By Craig Farrand

And Mike Chirco should know.

As president of Homes by Chirco, the second-generation builder has watched the industry landscape change dramatically during the past 40-plus years. And although the industry has changed, they have maintained a work ethic reminiscent of forty years past while keeping up with the ever changing needs and styles of today's well-educated buyer.

After Chirco joined his father, Sam, in 1954, the pair continued to build single family homes on individuals lots and within existing subdivisions throughout Macomb County.

But by the 1960s, the family went into full-fledged development in order to meet the changing needs of new customers.

Featuring 271 single-family lots, the project was an ambitious under-taking for a family business accustomed to working one house at a time.

The immediate success of that development led the company to start Brookside Estates and Sherwood Forests.

"When we got started," Chirco said, "our homes were very modestly priced.

"They ranged from only $30,000 to $70,000.

"But within a few years, not only had the size of the homes increased, but the price had more than doubled," he said, "indicating to us that we were doing things right."

Working from Utica through Shelby Township and into Oxford, Chirco's company soon began taking on other projects capitalizing on the market's growing desire for larger, more luxurious living.

A case in point was the company's work in Huntington Park, a modest 150-unit development featuring simple, box-type homes with unpretentious rooflines. By the end of the '80s, the company had broken ground on Regency Hills - a 360-house, 200-condo project with prices straddling $200,000.

"Regency Hills was our response to this new demand in home building," Chirco said. "And we haven't stopped since."

Indeed, Regency Hills should be viewed more as a "work-in-progress" than a finished product: The first phase of the development, located at 25 Mile Road and Dequindre, broke ground in 1989 with homes going for $190,000.

Today, the latest phase of development offers semi-custom homes in the $300,000 price range, along with upscale condominiums, apartments and a commercial block.

Altogether, Regency Hills features three models in one area, two models in another and three condo models. From there, Chirco can customize portions of each home to fit the particular needs of his customer.

And he's not done yet: another development, located north of 25 Mile, Brookeview is expected to be under way by this summer.

Next spring, Chirco hopes to have the first of nearly 50 detached condos - ranging from 1,600-to-2,000 square feet in the $170,000-to-$190,000 price range - on the market for a particular clientele.

"We're looking at meeting the needs of the 'empty nesters' as well as those seeking a maintenance-free lifestyle," he said.

"And that's what we're going to give them," he said.

It is this determination that has helped Chirco deliver the best in effort and quality, exceeding all of their homeowners expectations, which in return is a reward to him. Many of his past homeowners have sought out his expertise for a second enjoyable building experience. That determination has been passed on to his family members and co-workers.

Looking towards the future, Chirco said he has every intention of keeping busy down the road - either personally or through his family. His daughter and two sons-in-law work for the company today.

"I'm looking forward to them keeping it going well into the next century," he said.

Which guarantees that another generation of Chircos will be on hand to gauge the market for years to come. ■

by Anna Kenedi, ASID

Q: We would like to build a truly contemporary stairway. What materials would you recommend?

A: According to master builder Ed Silver of Dee Jay Building Company of West Bloomfield, building a contemporary stairway is not a problem, but a regular part of his work.

The stairway material will be determined by the style of the house, the architect, interior designer and client as a team. Quality wood or a combination of wood and lexon (same as the lining of Joe Louis Arena) is attractive and serviceable.

Note of general interest: make sure that you always have all data in writing and that it complies with current requirements of building safety rules. Posts, or balusters, should be 4 inches apart and a height between 40-48 inches. Keeping within the rules can help you through the final inspection before occupancy.

Q: We are in the process of updating our 3,000 sq. ft. home. The stairway is our top priority. It is the first impression when your enter the house. We need to make a decision between replacing or refinishing the colonial-style wood stairway.

A: You are asking for a design decision, which needs to consider the style of the total residence, not only the entrance and stairway. You could replace your stairway, however, it is costly. Regarding refinishing, you may finish the stairs, handrail and the landing post in a pleasant medium tone of wood. According to Ken Higbee, a professional painter and owner of The Finishing Touch in Clawson, it is good practice to match the window frames and door frames for a totally coordinated look. The balusters could be refinished in designer's white.

Anna Kenedi's radio program "Your Business" on WPON-1460AM is on Thursdays from 1:00 - 1:30 p.m. You may call in your questions at (810) 332-1460.

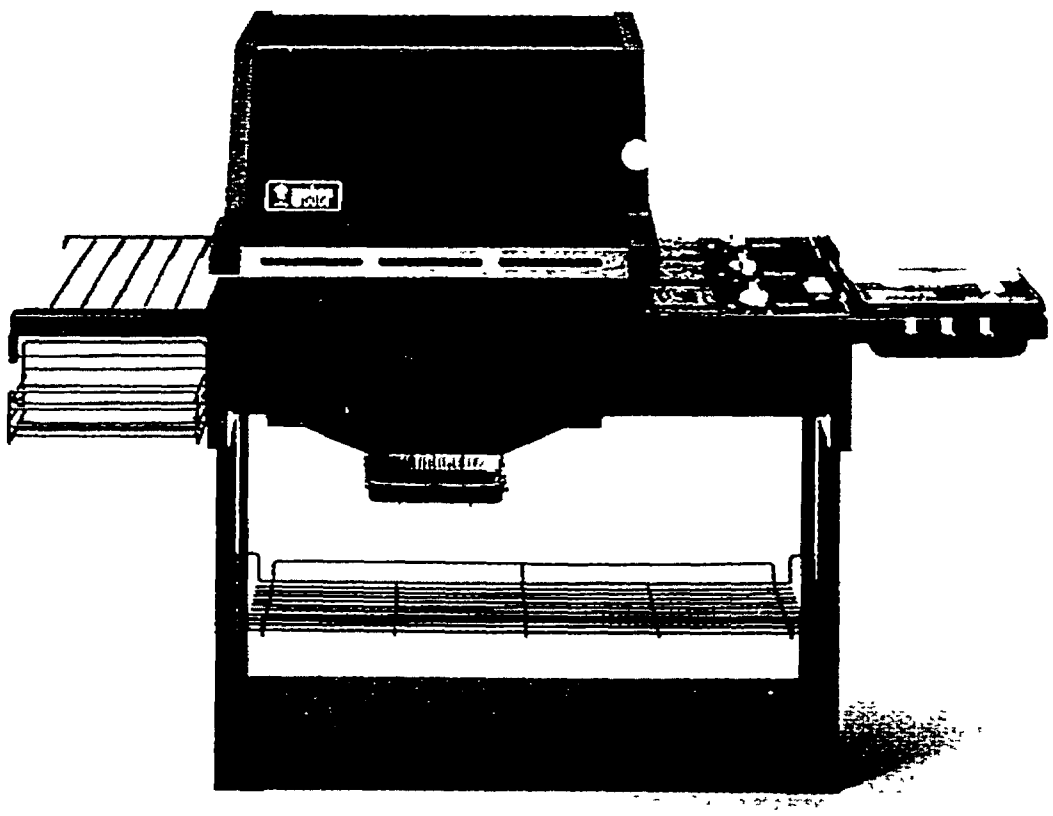
Grilled To Perfection

No more worrying about charcoal and lighter fluid—the natural gas and propane grills have revolutionized the way Dad used to cook on the Fourth of July.

And people aren't just cooking steaks and hot dogs anymore; many of the models available today are for full-range cooking. Everything from eggs and sausage in the morning, to turkeys at Thanksgiving.

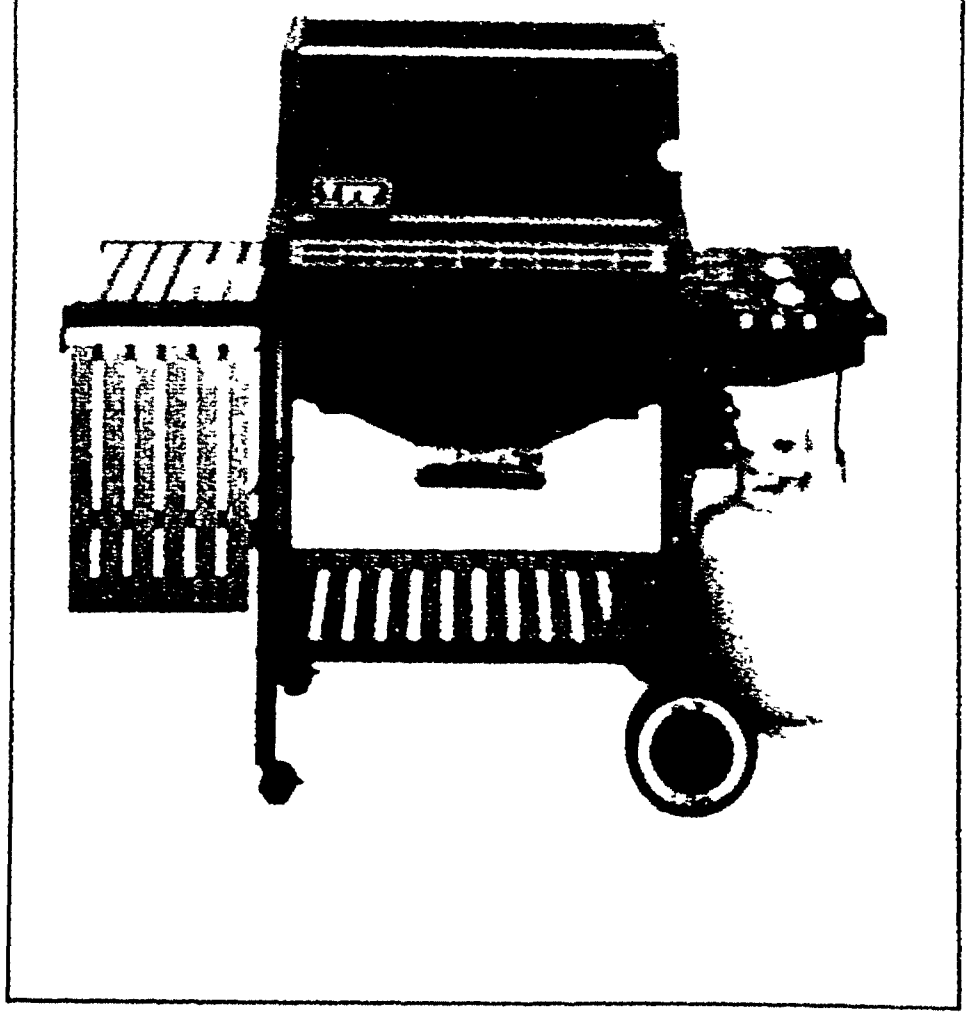
Barbecuing is not just for the summer months either. Many people grill straight through the late days of Fall and even on winter days when it isn't too bitter to withstand the usual turning of the catch. So this Summer, Fall and even early Winter, consider your barbecue a useful addition to the versatility of your cooking.



The Weber Genesis 3500 series

Weber

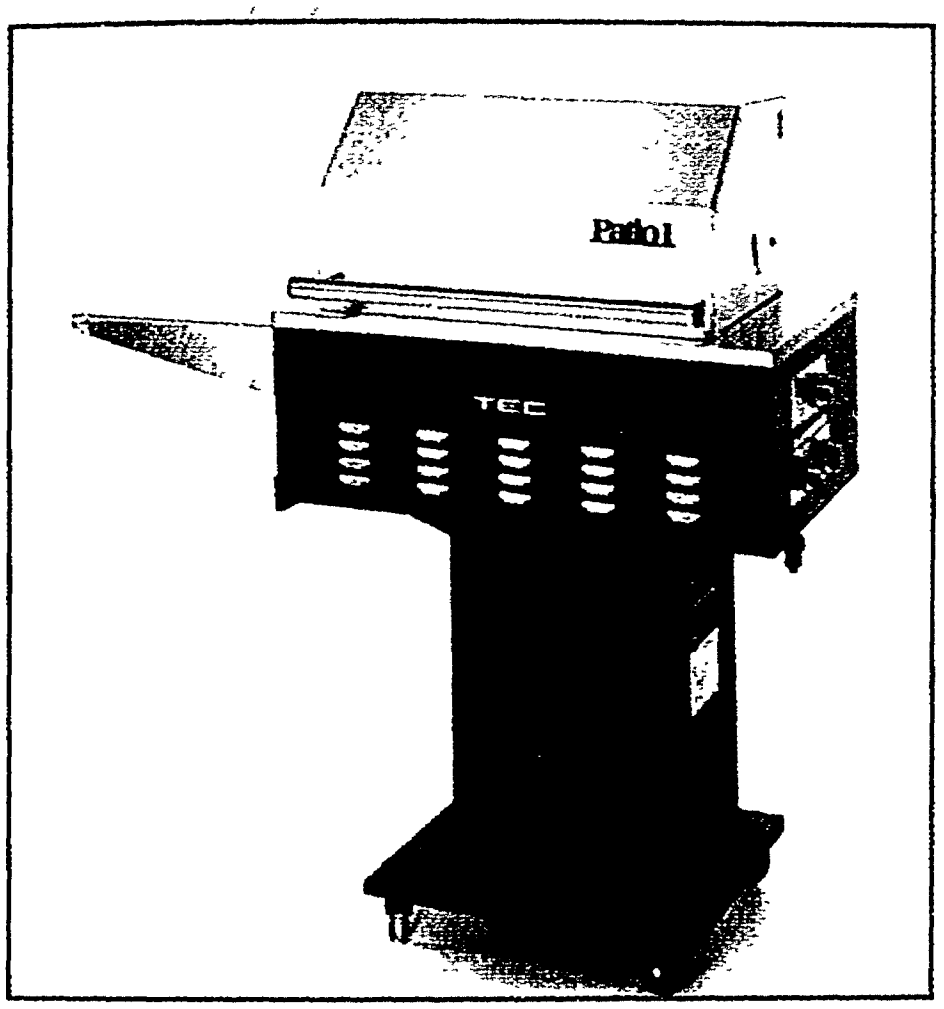
Of the many styles of barbecues that Weber offers is their top of the line Genesis 3500 series available at the Livonia True Value Hardware store. The 3500 is a permanent mount natural gas grill available with a post or cart mount.



The Weber LX series

Weber

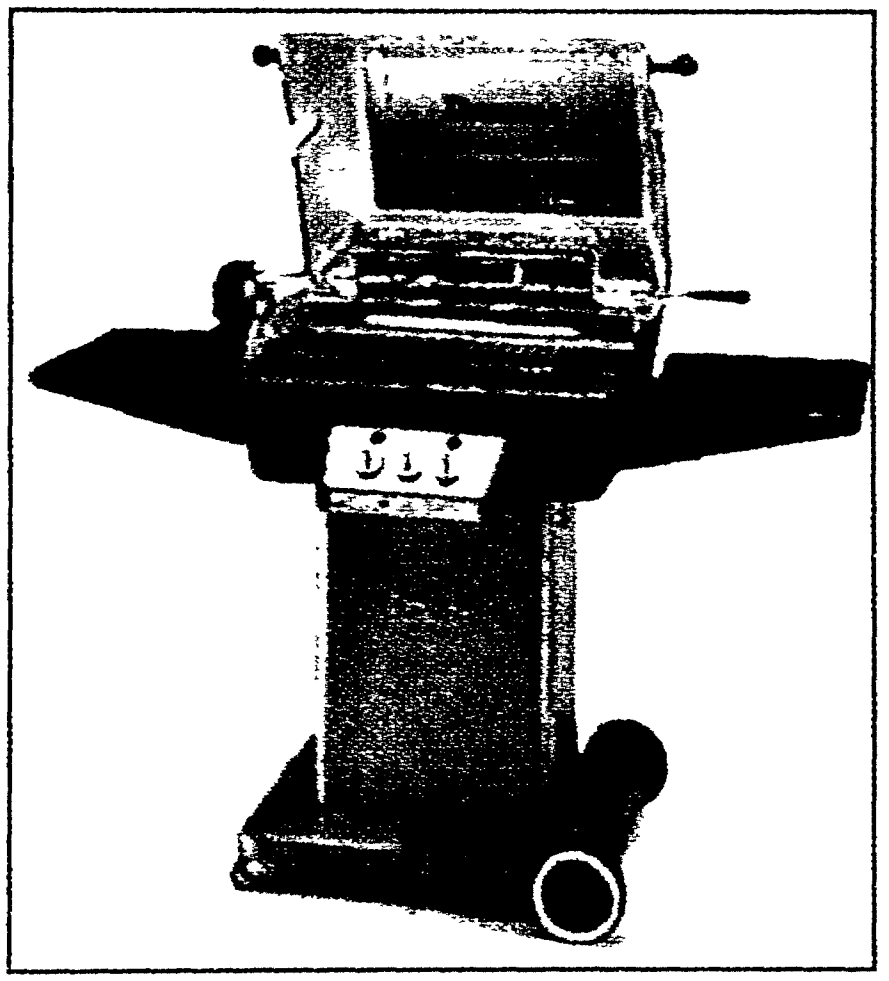
Town and Country, with stores in Clarkston, Livonia and Southfield, has a new series of Weber brand barbecues. Their LX series offers portable, propane models with an additional range-style burner, perfect for preparing side dishes or warming sauces while you prepare. And with exterior decorating as prevalent as interior, they are offered in four new colors.



The TEC Infra-red Gas Grill

TEC Infra-red

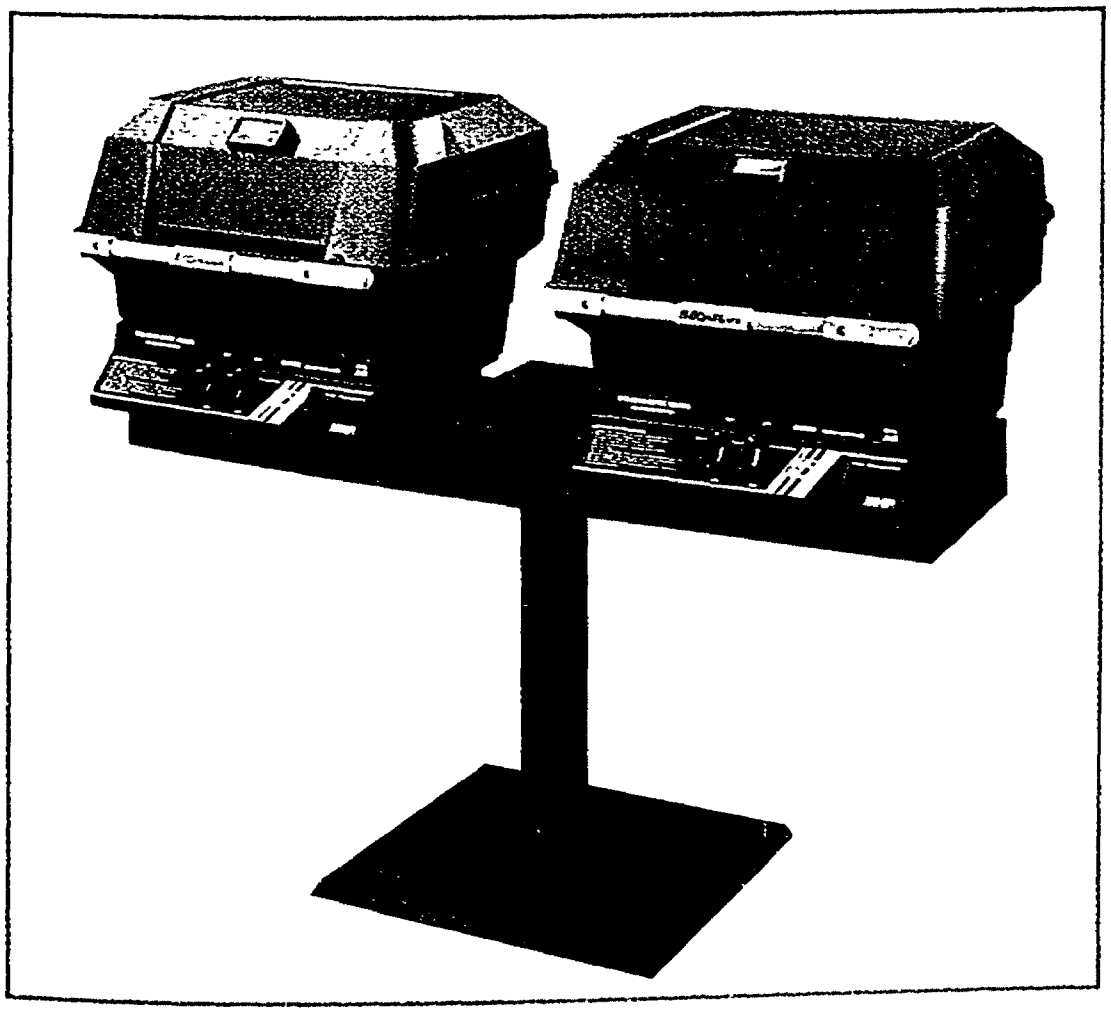
To add to the versatility of grilling, Michigan Fireplace & Barbecue in Troy, offers a model called the TEC Infra-red gas grill. This type of grill uses infra-red heat to cook meat evenly, takes less cooking time and doesn't let the meat dry out. The special ceramic burner helps the flame evenly distribute the heat for more efficient cooking.



The Ducane 5004S

Ducane

For a high performance, low maintenance grill, take a look at the Ducane grills available at Hearthstyles Home & Patio in Sterling Heights. These grills have a unique Top-Ported™ burner design that allows the flame to come from the top instead of the sides for more efficient, flavor enhancing cooking. And their rotisserie feature can roast a turkey or chicken in record time.



The MHP Dual Grill Mount

Modern Home Products

For the grill aficionado, the Thisisit Shop in West Bloomfield, offers the ultimate grill combination–the Dual Grill Mount by MHP. This rust-proof grill with a limited lifetime warranty, is perfect for entertaining large groups of hungry people. Just think of how many times you have been to a cookout and had to wait for the second round of grilled goodies to be done cooking. This way, you will be able to feed your guests all at once and even have some left for the chef.

Stone Treatment By Williams Panel Brick and Fireplace

Decorating With Stone

By Craig Farrand

Going "au naturel" certainly has an interesting meaning when it comes to human behavior - but has quite another when it comes to home building and remodeling.

In the world of 2-by-4s, headers and footings, "au naturel" means stripping off contemporary materials and replacing them with Mother Nature.

Or at least man's imitation.

Just ask Bob Schuessler and Jim Lukomski.

"Man-made stone is not only lightweight and durable which gives it a definite advantage over natural stone," Lukomski said, "but it also costs a fraction of the real thing.

"And the way we manufacture it, we can imitate nearly any kind of stone suitable for interior or exterior applications.

"Whether it's limestone, granite, cobblestone or even stream stone," he said, "we can create the same effect using aggregate, Portland cement and pigments."

Lukomski, vice president of operations for Williams Panel Brick & Fireplace in Redford, said the manufacturers he deals with actually seek out the real thing: Great Lakes splitface, Michigan field stone, Ohio limestone, Michigan granite and even glacier stone.

From there, molds are created that capture both the contour and texture of each type of stone and the mixture is poured.

"We can produce in any style and can even customize stones for special applications," he said, explaining that one of the most common applications is as an exterior stone veneer; a 3-inch deep layer of manufactured stone placed over convention exterior construction.

In fact, placing the stone veneer is similar to installing ceramic tile: a barrier, such as tar paper, is installed to protect the subsurface and then a wire mesh is attached.

Next, a coat of cement is placed on the wall and a separate coat on the stone. It's then put in place, letting the cement act as glue. From there, the only thing left is to mortar the seams.

The result is an interior or exterior facing that looks like the real thing - and a project that can even be taken on by the home do-it-yourselfer.

"All you have to do," Lukomski said, "is lay out your final design on the ground (or floor) and then place the stones one at a time.

"But, of course," he said, "having experts install it is much easier."

Continuing the ceramic tile analogy, the man-made stone can be cut with nippers or with a masonry wheel - and corner pieces are made to wrap around exterior walls.

In addition to wall applications, Lukomski said the stone veneer can be used on fireplaces, archways (which can be preconstructed without a keystone) and columns.

The only place they couldn't be used is on ceilings (for obvious reasons) and floors and walkways.

For those other applications, Bob Schuessler is your man. As sales manager for Fendt Builders Supply in Farmington Hills, he is the pointman for the sale and installation of interlocking concrete pavers - a brick-like product designed not only for walkways, driveways and patios, but also for retention walls.

"Our company started out making your typical concrete block," Schuessler said. "The kind you find in basement walls.

"But about 15 years ago our Ann Arbor plant started manufacturing these pavers.

"Today, these pavers are becoming ever more popular," he said, "not just for our company, but in the industry."

The "pavers" are manufactured from compressed high-strength, durable concrete and come in several colors and sizes, the most common mimicking a 4-by-8-inch standard brick.

What makes the paver unusual, however, is not only its unique interlocking design, but its uncommon strength: Whereas typical poured concrete can support up to 4,000 psi (pounds per square inch) in weight, pavers double that load-bearing capability.

That strength not only results in more applications, but also in a longer lifetime and less susceptibility to seasonal influences.

In short, whereas poured concrete falls prey to freezing and cracking, pavers retain their individual integrity and are allowed to expand and contract without popping out of place.

The secret to this phenomenon is the installation process itself, Schuessler explains: First an aggregate underlayment is put in place and covered by sand. The pavers are then interlocked in a pleasing geometric pattern and the seams filled with more sand.

The result is a surface that allows water to drain instead of freeze in place.

This kind of construction method is also used in the integrated walls Schuessler sells: Interlocking blocks - usually 4 inches high, 12 inches long and 9 inches deep - are stacked without the use of mortar. (The only additional material used is a permeable backing that allows water through, but not dirt.)

Of course, the blocks wouldn't stay in place without mortar unless something else was used - and it is: each block has two fiberglass dowels sticking out its top on which the next level is skewered.

Which is precisely what Mother Nature does every day. ■

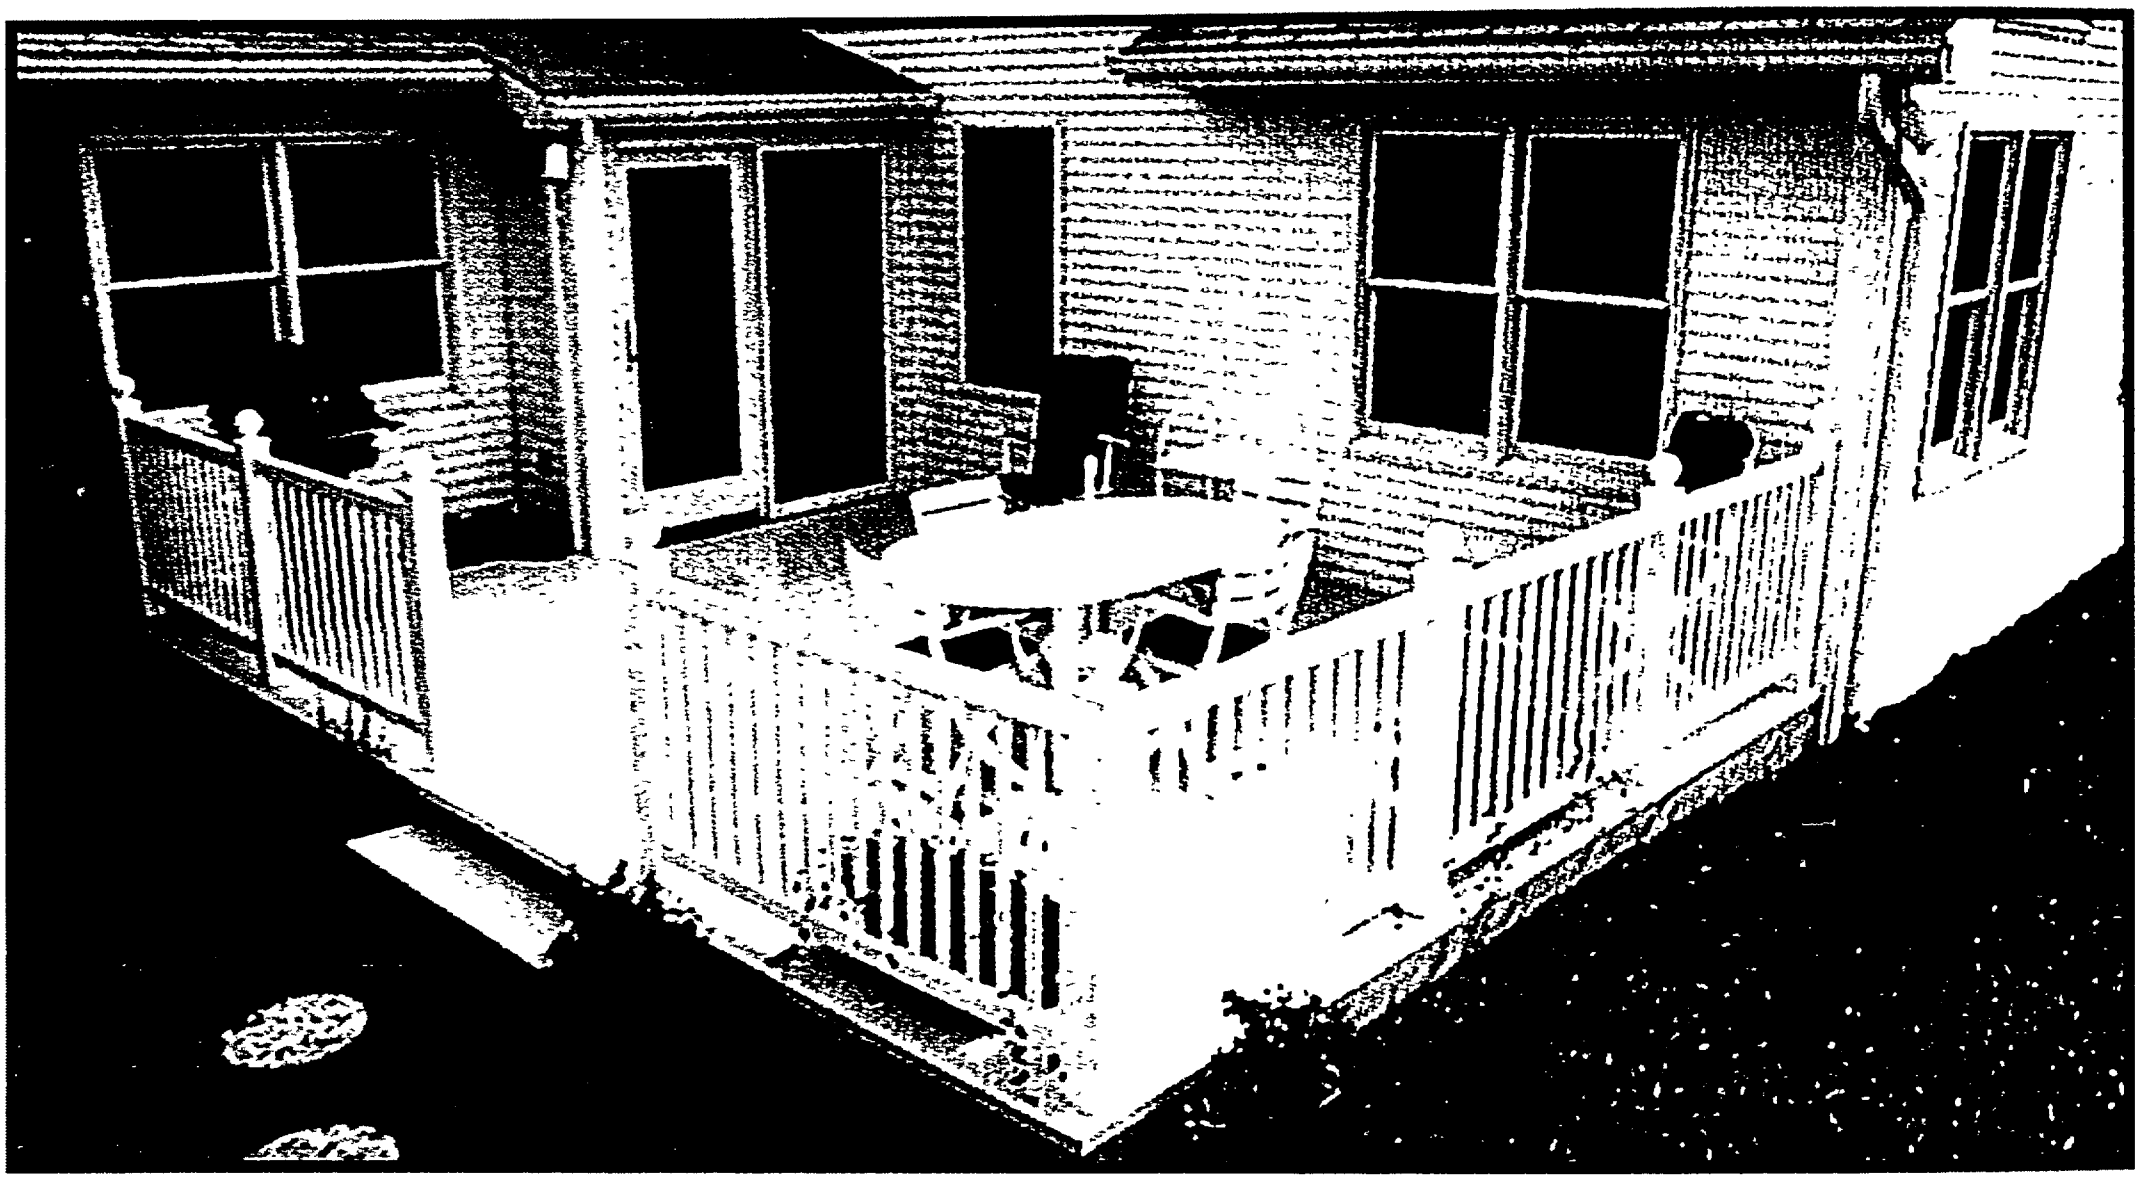
All "Decked" Out

By Craig Farrand



They come in hundreds of shapes and sizes, in colors to match almost any decor and can be made out of several kinds of materials.

That's the backyard deck of the 1990s - a thing of form and function that has become as commonplace as a porchlight on today's home.

Of course, the idea of a deck grew out of two separate concepts that met sometime in the mid '70s: The front porch and the rear patio.

An icon from the Golden Age of rural America, the grand front porch was the gathering place for family and friends on hot summer days and warm summer nights.

Even in the city, the "stoop" was a perch from which neighbors shared news about the world around them.

After World War II, though, the rise of the middle class gave rise to suburbia - complete with cookie-cutter homes, brick barbecues and concrete patios.

And it was into this new world of suburban living that the deck was born: a new gathering place that was not merely an addition to the house but an extension to the home.

Not surprisingly, then, today's deck invariably receives the same attention to design, detail, construction and quality that any other room might get.

Just ask three men who should know: Chuck Durst, Brad Upton and Gary Kade.

"When people buy a $200,000 or $300,000 home," said Durst, owner of Archadeck in Farmington Hills, "they're not looking for some 10-cent deck.

"They're looking for something that will not only be practical but will also enhance the look and value of their home.

"What we do, then," he said, "is get involved in the actual design process, working on a computer - even placing computerized deck furniture - in order to show the customer what it will look like."

From there, Durst and his team assemble the pieces and then install the finished product.

In contrast, Brad Upton - vice president of Dillman & Upton Lumber Co. in Rochester - said his company's role begins after the initial design has been finalized.

"We take the design and then layout the pieces necessary to do the job," he said.

"We place the posts, determine the number of support beams and joists and their placement and then create scaled drawings needed to pull permits.

"In short, you give us a shape and we'll give you a deck," Upton said.

Which is exactly what Upton really does: His lumber company, following its own drawings, assembles and then delivers the right number of posts, rails, joists, planking, hangers and nails - along with the drawing to help the do-it-yourselfer complete the job on his own.

For both Upton and Durst, the material of choice when it comes to deck construction is invariably wood - although the kind of wood can differ, depending on its use.

In all instances where the wood touches the ground, for example - support posts and any support beams on ground-level decks - both men agree that pressure-treated wood is mandatory.

But they differ slightly on what kind of treatment that can be: Upton sticks with the traditional pressure-treated lumber (sold under brand names such as "Wolmanized"); Durst, however, favors a relatively new paraffin-treated lumber in which the waxy substance reportedly creates an enhanced mechanical barrier to rot.

Once above ground, though, both men say the choice for decking and rails is totally in the hands of the customer: From pressure-treated pine to exotic hardwoods to popular cedar.

Clearly the most popular type is a pressure-treated pine identical to that used in the underside construction. In fact, the only drawback to this kind of lumber is that it's literally green with treatment - requiring a month or two to dry out and be ready for staining or sealing.

In addition, pine is inherently dimensionally unstable - meaning it will warp, cup and twist over time.

The drawback? Cedar fades to a gray color within a year and needs annual maintenance.

Of course, if you talk to Gary Kade, owner of Additions Unlimited in Clarkston, the drawbacks of wood can be eliminated immediately - by putting down planking and rails made of vinyl.

"This is the most dynamic new product on the market," Kade said, "and once you've tried it you'll never go back to wood.

"Why? Because it's maintenance-free, it never warps, splinters, cups or changes colors.

"And it's the easiest thing in the world to install," he said.

The ease of installation for vinyl comes from the fact that instead of screw nails, vinyl planks are attached to traditional wood underside construction by a unique aluminum tracking system.

"Whether we install it or you do-it-yourself," Kade said, "all it takes is a rubber mallet to knock each piece into place."

Although the actual look of the vinyl doesn't pretend to mimic woodgrain (it has a diamond-shaped embossed pattern, Kade said, that makes it slip-resistance), it can be handled just as easy: It can be cut by a saw to any size or layout.

Finally, the vinyl provides one other benefit over wood: It doesn't get as hot in the noon-day sun.

According to Kade, the temperature of the vinyl rises only

Finally, the vinyl provides one other benefit over wood: It doesn't get as hot in the noon-day sun.

According to Kade, the temperature of the vinyl rises only 4 degrees over the ambient temperature, while wood can get 30 degrees warmer in hot weather. And there are no nails or splinters to contend with.

In the end, a homeowner's choice of materials can be dealt with simply: Price and preference.

And, in fact, so can every other aspect of deck building: Hire someone or do-it-yourself.

Regardless of the approach, decks are now a part of American life; the porches and patios of the next century. ■

Arbor Bay at Pine Creek Ridge

This master-planned development, encompassing more than 700 acres of wooded landscape surrounding beautiful lakes and streams, combines with architectural integrity to form a breathtaking residential habitat: Pine Creek Ridge, an environmental community.

Arbor Bay is one of the most impressive phases of Pine Creek Ridge. Of the 42 estate-size lots comprising Arbor Bay, 29 are wooded lakefront or lakeview sites. The remaining sites enjoy large forested settings nestled among tall pines and extraordinary natural features.

At Arbor Bay at Pine Creek Ridge, no tree will be unnecessarily felled. No stream rerouted from its natural flow. No ravine filled. No nature trail paved over.

What you will find at Pine Creek Ridge are distinguished and stately homes set delicately and intelligently amid stands of mature pines. Residences of distinction on the waterfront and wooded homesites...and each one with close access to an exclusive log-built lakeside community lodge nestled beside manicured park and beach areas for you and your family to enjoy.

Carefully crafted deed restrictions provide architectural control of all elevations and materials, assuring that the high quality standards of Pine Creek Ridge are maintained. Strict tree clearing limitations protect the exquisite surroundings and create a community of unsurpassed beauty.

Arbor Bay at Pine Creek Ridge
(810) 227-9610

Abbey homes, the developer and most active builder in Pine Creek Ridge, has three generations of experience in creating quality communities. A sensitivity to the unique environmental features of the property results in the natural elegance of Pine Creek Ridge.

Residents enjoy the sandy shoreline of the community beach and dock area, complete with boats for use by homeowners. Relaxing nature trails and conservation areas meander through wildlife habitats of forests, wetlands and streams. Beautiful park areas provide recreational opportunities. A luxurious log cabin community facility is available for private functions and gatherings.

New showroom has it all —including the sink

After selling plumbing supplies wholesale for more than 70 years, Advance Plumbing and Heating Supply Co. has opened a retail showroom in Walled Lake.

The 3,000 square-foot store at 1977 Maple Rd., between Decker and Haggerty, features hundreds of faucets and displays of working showers, whirlpools, toilets and sinks. "You can actually see how everything works," says Jeff Moss, vice president. High end brands include Kohler, Grohe, Delta and Moen.

A licensed master plumber can assist do-it-yourselfers and answer installation and maintenance questions.

Moss' Grandfather, Harry Chernick, founded the business in Detroit in 1920. Chernick's son-in-law and the current president, Ron Moss, joined in 1957. Advance expanded to Walled Lake in 1990 when it purchased Franklin Plumbing Supply.

Store hours are 8:30-5 Mon.-Fri., 8-3 Sat., or other times by appointment. Phone 1-800-560-7474.

Village Cove

We wish we had more land! Only 22 homes will be part of this unique Plymouth Village neighborhood. With an excellent location, the community sites are right outside of Downtown Plymouth, and is walking distance to Old Village Plymouth. Wilcox Lake is right across the street, and the neighborhood backs up to protected Parks and Recreation area–private land containing many fine specimens of Oak and Evergreen trees. Hines Park is right next door.

The homes will range in size from 1600-2500 square feet, and will contain the following floor plans: a ranch, a cape cod, a three-bedroom colonial, a three-bedroom and a loft colonial with a first floor den, and a four-bedroom colonial with a first floor den. The homes were designed to recapture the heart of downtown Plymouth with many of the floor plans containing an enclosed or wrap-around front porch.

Prices are expected to range from the high $170s to the low $200s. Please call our corporate office to have your name added to our mailing list, so we may notify you when we have more information. Village Cove is located on the north side of Wilcox Road, just east of Edward Hines Drive in Plymouth. For more information call LoPiccolo Homes, Inc., at (313) 455-4320.

Pheasant Woods

Woods, woods, woods...that's why we named it Pheasant Woods! You couldn't choose a more lovely site for this exciting new community. And to top that off, our architects have designed some exciting new floor plans, fresh off the drawing boards of the hottest new trends in home design from California.

An interest list is now forming for those interested in reserving lots in the near future. Pheasant Woods is located on the east side of Lilley, just south of Cherry Hill Road in Canton. Home prices are expected to range from the high $170s to the low $200s. Call LoPiccolo Homes, Inc., for more information at (313) 455-4320. ■

When your home needs a step up

By Craig Farrand

It used to be that getting up and down stairs was merely a chore accompanied by a basket of dirty clothes or a mop and pail.

But today's stairway - both inside and out - has become more than a mere method of vertical movement.

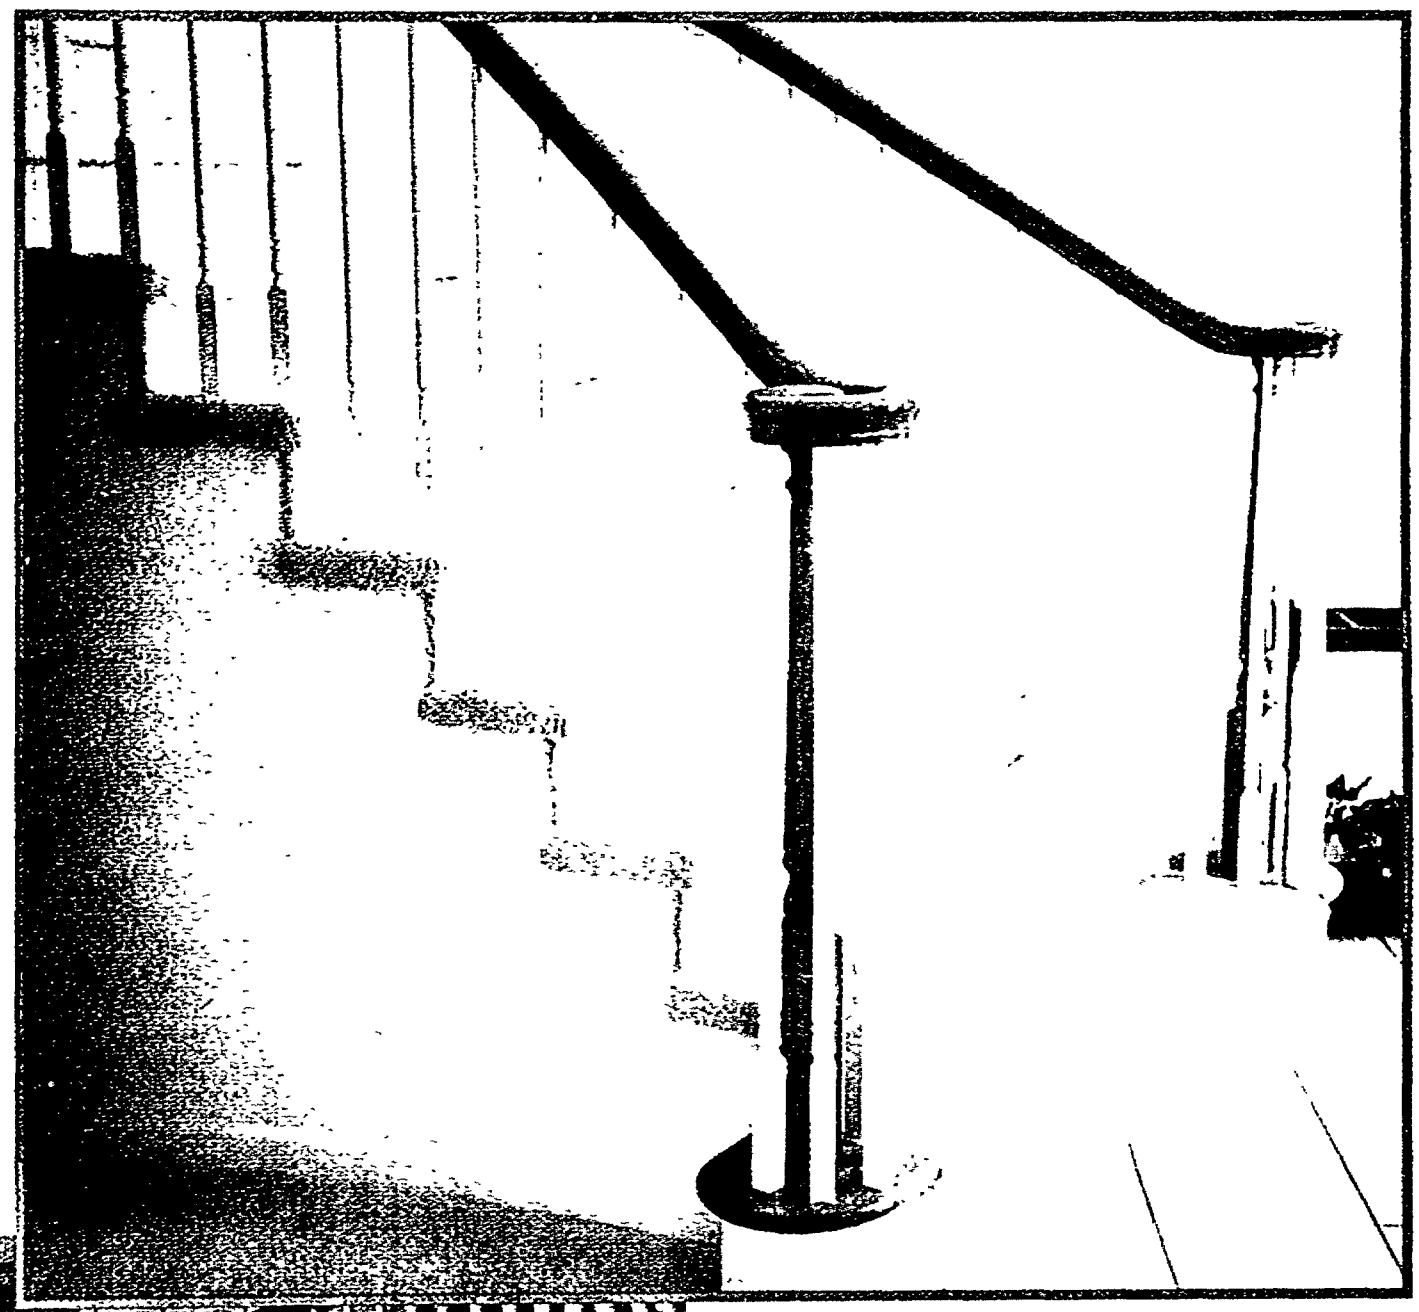
But in the hands of designers and artisans a stairway can become a three-dimensional thing of beauty.

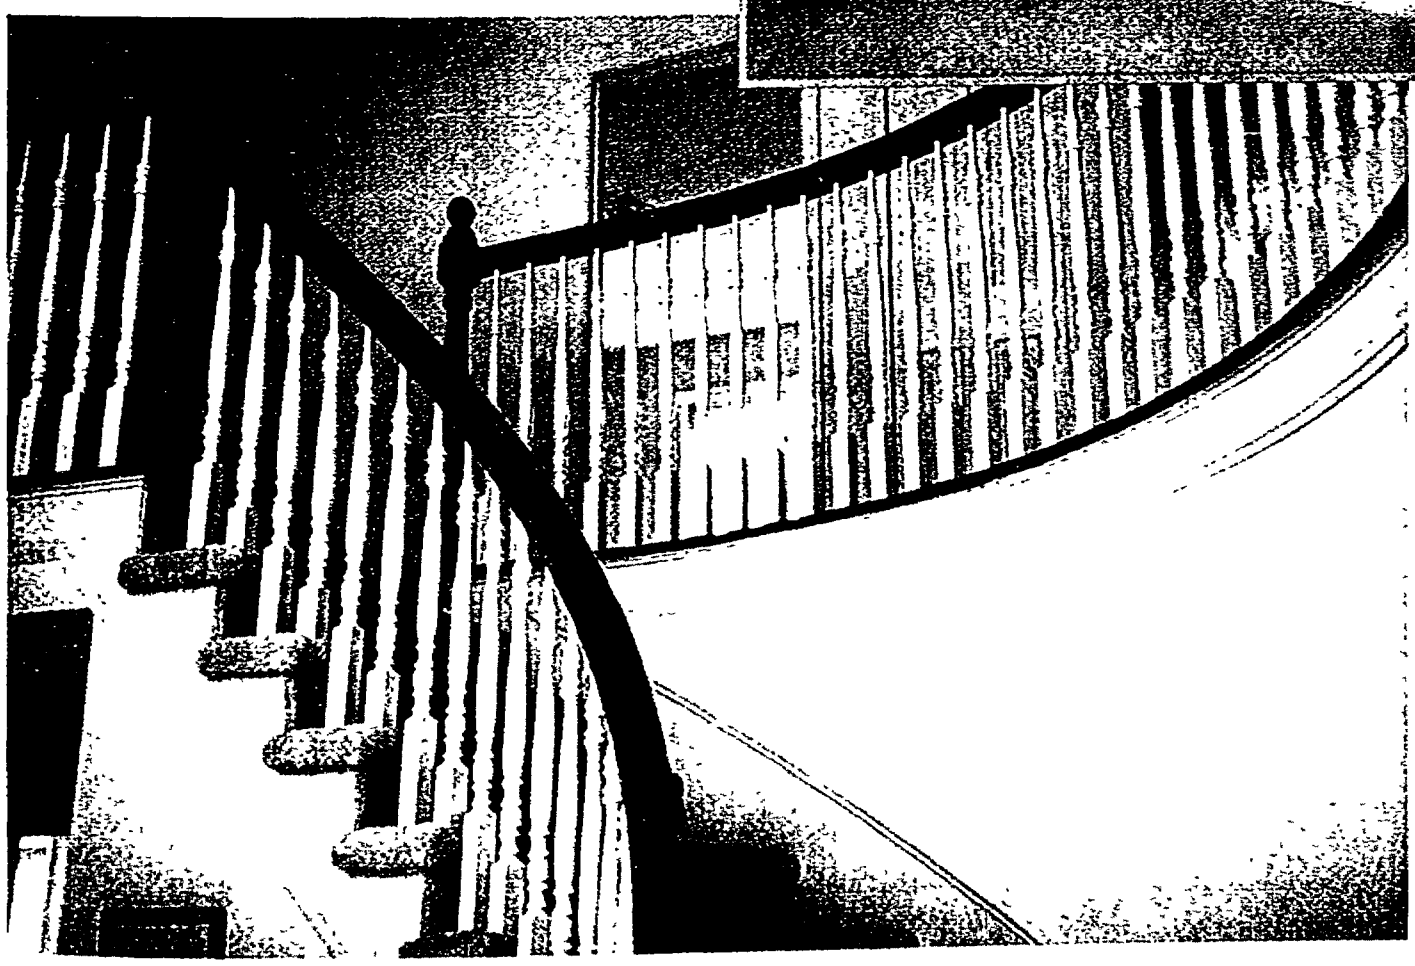
Which is precisely how Dave Jablonski sees them when it comes to installing staircases in today's suburban home.

"A staircase in a house today," he said, is really a trophy of sorts.

"It's not just a way to get from one floor to another, but a way to make a statement about your lifestyle, your taste and your appreciation of beauty.

"It's not surprising, then," he said, "that today's homes often have winding staircases opening up into large front entrances or into great rooms."





Jablonski, director of operations for Shelby Stairs and Mill in Macomb Township, said that the interior stairways of the '90s are far more dramatic and elaborate than their predecessors.

As a result, much more effort has gone into their design and construction-translating into more work for his company. As a true milling operation, Jablonski's firm custom manufactures both railings and balusters.

The company also has the capability to bend wood into the tight spirals needed for both circular stairs and for the "volute" that caps the bottom end of a spiral railing.

"We pride ourselves on being able to take on any job and provide the kind of service and quality today's homeowner is seeking," he said.

When it comes to a project, Jablonski's crews don't get involved until after a carpenter has put in the rough staircase. Their job is to finish off the steps and risers, add the railings and balusters (the spindles that run along the side of the stairs), and construct the support the railing.

"Our job is to deck out the stairs," Jablonski said.

And to that end, his company will use various types of wood to fit any decor: birch for painted surfaces, and oak, beech, cherry and mahogany for stained applications.

Besides having a choice in wood types, Jablonski said, today's builder

FINANCE COLUMN

New Construction Mortgages

Construction financing today is as easy as any other type of loan. The old myth's that used to haunt the industry are gone today. One type of loan used for building is a construction permanent loan. This loan closes up front and allows you to enjoy the experience of building your new home. When the builder has finished the initial rough-in stage, a draw will be requested against your loan. Prior to giving out the draw, your mortgage company will have the project inspected by an appraiser to find out what percentage of the project has been completed, then the appropriate draw can be disbursed.

Most mortgage companies will require lien waivers and a contractor's signed statement prior to giving out any funds to ensure your financial protection. Generally there will be three or four draws until construction is complete. The appraiser will then do a final inspection prior to the last draw.

Many loans are available to you under construction programs. The most important part of this type of loan is that there is only one set of closing costs, and to make the process less expensive, you initially won't have to set up a deposit into a tax/insurance escrow account until construction is complete.

The following are 10 steps to acquiring a new construction loan.

1. Obtain pre-approval from your mortgage company so you know how much money you can afford to borrow.

2. Determine where you want to build.

3. Determine who your builder is going to be.

4. Draw up a purchase agreement with your builder for your new home.

5. Meet with your loan officer to give them your purchase agreement and specifications.

6. Loan processing will then take place.

7. The loan will close.

8. The builder will then start building.

9. When the home is complete, you will then need to obtain home insurance.

10. Congratulations! You can now move in! ■

Stairs from pg. 27

Of course, whereas interior stairways are invariably made of wood, exterior steps and stairs can be wood or one of several other natural materials, such as stone, or even man-made material, such as brick, pre-cast brick or concrete.

and homeowner also has a choice in the styles applied to that wood.

"Because we've been doing this so long," he said, "we often make suggestions to the builder and homeowner - but usually they know what they're looking for."

That, ironically, is not always the case when it comes to exterior stairs, however - as Jeff Hennig has learned repeatedly.

"The fact is that there are a lot of misperceptions out there concerning outdoor stairways," said Hennig, owner and president of Environmental Artists.

"And the biggest misperception is that you can't use stairways in a flat area.

"But you can," he said, explaining that the first thing he does in any job is alter the existing landscape. Either raising the grade or lowering the grade, they create sculptured contours in an otherwise plain landscape.

"If your garden - which is what they call backyards in England - is blessed by Mother Nature with a ravine," Hennig said, "then a staircase is a perfect method of getting up and down.

"But if you've got flat land, then we look at carving out an area, creating high and low points - and then adding the staircase and steps," he said.

Of course, whereas interior stairways are invariably made of wood, exterior steps and stairs can be wood or one of several other natural materials, such as stone, or even man-made material, such as brick, pre-cast brick or concrete.

And in some instances, the materials can be mixed and blended to create a completely new look - such as using brick for the tread and stone for the riser, or stone borders and mulch walkways.

"The idea," Hennig said, "is to be as big and bold as possible and create effective contrasts in elevation.

"The idea is to create topography where none exists or to enhance the topography where it already does exist.

"What you must keep in mind, though, is that any design must be in proportion with the home and the land," he said. "Your home should dictate the type of garden you install."

For example, Hennig said, a traditional home would call for sharp angles, while a contemporary home would demand a more Frank Lloyd Wright-esque approach.

"Regardless of the approach and the type of house involved," he said, "the bottom line is to add something remarkable to your home."

A rule that applies to staircases both inside and out. ■

Every spa offers one thing in common: a place to relax and unwind for the day.

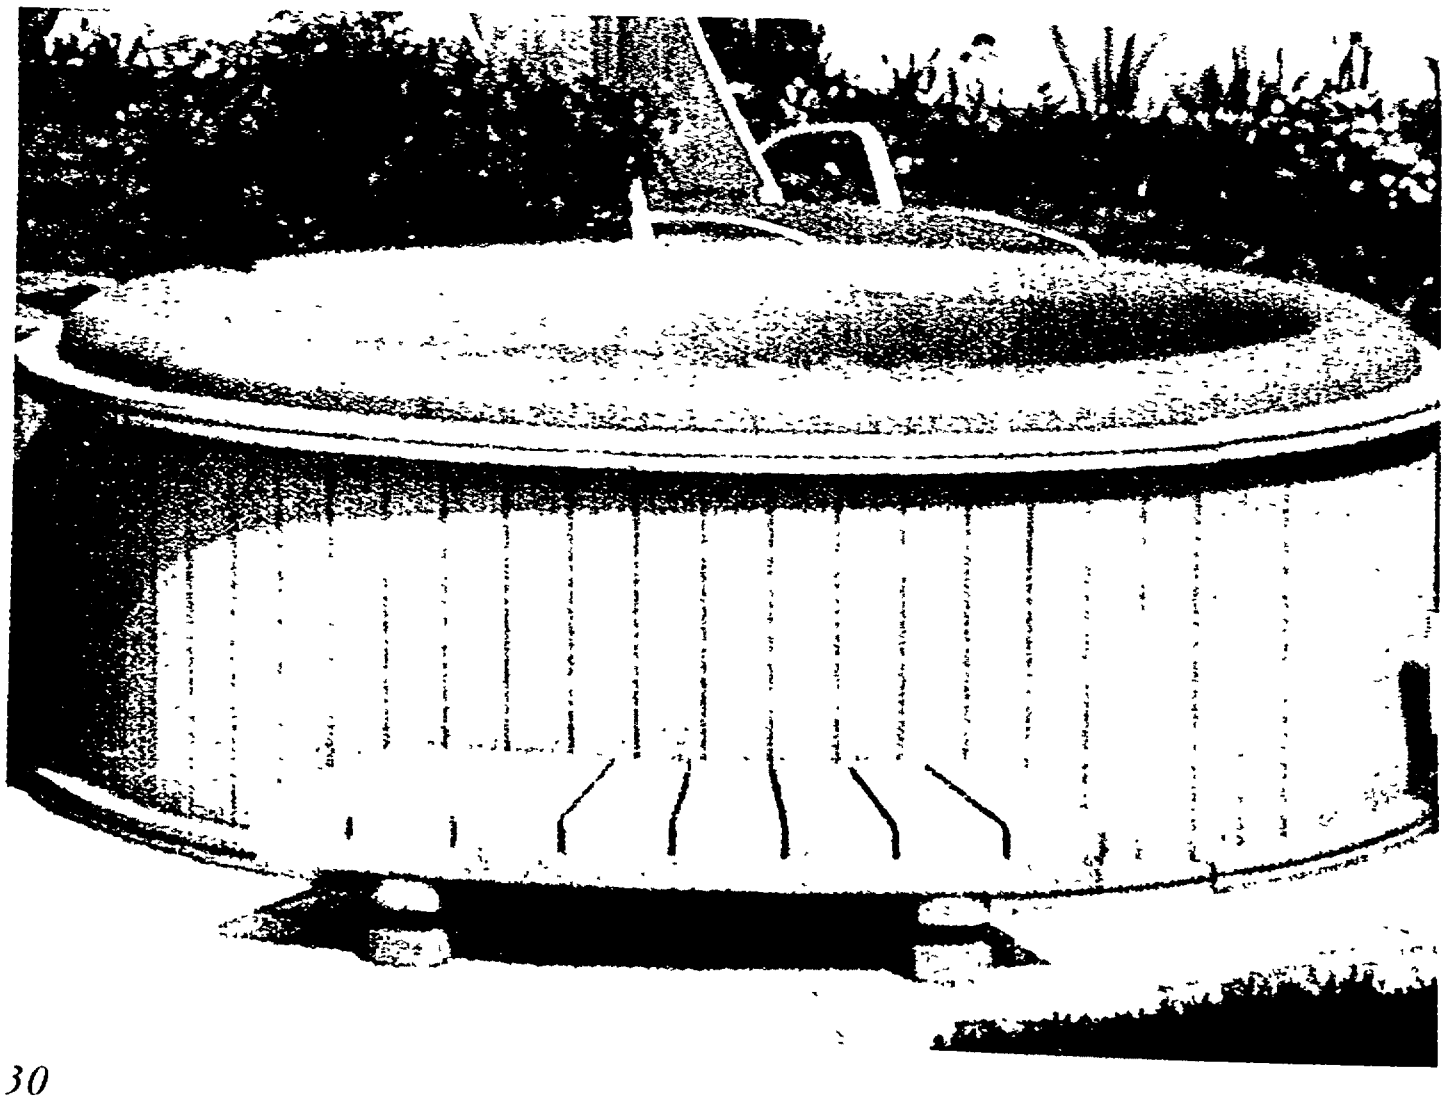
SPARKLING SPAS

by Evelyn Allen



In the days of the Roman spa where the mineral springs ran freely, the Roman philosophers would cleanse there minds and bath their bodies while contemplating the philosophies of the gods. Luxury, relaxation, and healing the soul was a profound way of life.

Although lifestyles today are ultimately tied to schedules and cordless phones, the spa ethic has carried over the many centuries remaining one of our highly cherished ways of regrouping from a long day.

There is nothing like slipping into a steamy, warm pool of bubbles and letting all your thoughts slip away to a different time. These days, with working families, the stress of daily life can make a home spa more of a necessity than a luxury.

Every spa offers one thing in common: a place to relax and unwind. Or for those who take a mini-vacation in their own homes, a spa can lend just the right luxury to help even your own home seem like a resort of types.

At Palm Springs Softub Incorporated in Rochester Hills, they offer a variety of spas, but their Softub lends itself to a truly unique style. It is a full-featured, portable spa that pampers you with hot water, hydrotherapy and relaxation.

The feature that is most attractive is it's portability. For families that are very mobile, or move due to career changes on a frequent basis, this type of spa would be a welcome addition since it can move with you.

The sides of the tub are made from a durable soft insulation that retains the heat of the water and helps to conserve energy. What truly lends to its portability, is that the pump and motor are a separate unit that connects directly to the Softub. The system plugs into any regular household 110V outlet, with a grounding safety feature that is permanently mounted on the electrical cord.

For being a portable unit most people would assume that it would be incredibly costly as far as energy efficiency. For most of the models, it requires only 2 kilowatts of electricity a day to maintain at 104° and ready to use.

But for those of us who aren't as concerned with the mobility and prefer something a little more permanent, there are the conventional custom spas that are sure to meet those needs as well.

For Peter Stuart of Federal Fireplace and Spas in Southfield, he believes a spa is an investment in quality time together as a family. Stuart feels that people who are always trying to catch up can take the time to sit and relax together in a rather resort atmosphere.

Both companies will agree that in today's on-the-go world, families and friends need to sit back and relax more often than not.

The spas that Stuart offers are made of acrylic and come in a variety of shapes, all the way from rectangular to octagonal. Some of these spas have multi-level seating for people of different body types.

Different jet styles are a feature many spa owners can appreciate. These jets can have two features such as "clustered," if the user would like to massage specific muscle groups simultaneously, and direct jets that stream in a moving pattern to provide progressive relaxation of a muscle group.

Both companies will agree that in today's on-the-go world, families and friends need to sit back and relax more often than not.

And even though natural mineral springs are hard to come by today, our man-made wonders have reserved that classic recreation. Lounging by the edge of a spa nibbling grapes, much like the Romans, could lend itself to a favorite past time, not to mention the relaxing therapeutic effects it has for the nerves. And having your own spa is the perfect place to do just that. ■

Ask the Builder

President, Robert R. Jones Associates

Q: We can hardly contain our excitement! My wife and I are planning to build a home next year and we are in the process of working on layouts and designs. The home won't be big (approx. 1,700 sq. ft.) so we want to incorporate features that will make our living space feel and appear larger. Can you offer some design tips?

Mr. S. French

A: Absolutely! There are many ways to make a small home feel big. Here are some superb suggestions "laid out" in a recent issue of the magazine Builder, of the National Association of Home Builders, by senior design editor, Susan Bradford.

• Give an entry a point of view—You should be able to stand at your front door and look right through your home to your backyard. Entering a foyer and facing a blank wall makes the home feel small.

• Use corner windows to capture views– Corner glass opens up a room while a solid corner confines a room.

• Raise the ceiling height– This is an easy way to gain volume in a house; volume ceilings allow the use of taller windows which brighten the house by bringing in more light.

• Lower your sills to let in more light– Be sure to check your local codes to determine the sill height at which tempered glass is required.

• Limit the number of hallways– Halls eat up living space, particularly in smaller homes.

• Have one semiformal dining area– Instead if having a tiny breakfast nook and a closed-in dining room, combine these spaces into one large eating space that is separated enough from the kitchen to still feel special.

• Incorporate two-way fireplaces– This design creates a warm ambiance between rooms and defines living areas.

• Use open stairs– Open balusters extend sight lines while solid rail walls and enclosed stair halls limit sight lines.

Q: We just purchased some "slightly-used" wooden patio furniture at a garage sale that appears to be in very good condition. We noticed, however, that the wooden joints are connected only with some small nails and staples. Is there anything that we can do to make the furniture sturdier so that it lasts through several spring and summer seasons? We plan to use it a lot!

Mrs. P. Dennis

A: Look through your toolbox or visit your neighborhood hardware store for a selection of steel reinforcing brackets. They come in two shapes (T and L)–select the types and sizes of brackets that will work best on your wooden furniture and install them at the key joints and stress points. Some suggestions would be where the arms of a chair meet the back and on any parts that are suspended by chains or ropes (as is the case with many outdoor wood swings). You should use galvanized brackets and the screws used should be correctly sized for the furniture and the brackets. ■

The Customer Of The '90s

C. P. Preidenstein, Lecturer and Education Director for the Michigan Association of Home Builders

Housing has gone through several cycles, trends, and changes in the last 40 years. Ever since the returning WWII veterans came home and demanded shelter for their new families, the building industry has been launched on a continuum of change.

In the fifties, we first saw the seeds of urban expansion begin to take hold as new roads and America's love affair with the automobile gave us newfound mobility. Subdivisions began to spring up with the popular one-and one-half story home (upper floor unfinished) dotting the landscape. R. Buckminster Fuller and Frank Lloyd Wright imitators then inspired to give us everything from space age to Victorian in design, but the primary customer stayed the same; working class, middle America.

The sixties saw us rooted in the television room as we all became enamored with that wonderful box that took us from Dallas to Dooteyville, and to the moon. In the seventies and eighties, we were all looking for reasons to get out of the home; to be seen, to experience different places. Family was a low priority as kitchens began to shrink and condominiums and timeshares began to grow.

In the seventies and eighties we were all looking for reasons to get out of the home; to be seen, to experience different places. Family was a low priority as kitchens began to shrink and condominiums and timeshares began to grow.

Today, we are told by those in the know that the home buyer and home owner are taking a different look at the homestead and seeing it now as a place of refuge. In her book, The Popcorn Report, marketing trend analyst Faith Popcorn tells us that we are now dealing with MOBYs (mother older, baby younger), DOBYs (daddy older, baby younger), WOOFs (well off older folks), and a variety of other income and lifestyle specific groups.

In general, the new client is hunkering down as they return to the home to streamline their busy lives. A new group of SANDWICHERs is growing as Baby Boomers start their families in their late thirties and forties, then turn around and bring back Mom and/or Dad to live with them.

The Baby Boomer as a group have been impacting the nation's economy for a generation as we first built communities around their new schools, built universities to accommodate them, then grew major corporations around their cumulative talents. This segment of the market is not only the single largest group of buyers, but also the one controlling the greatest amount of wealth and wealth potential. It is said that the group will spend the equivalent of $500 for every man, woman and child in the country on remodeling alone in the next few years.

Not only do these people have money, they like to spend it. The problems arise if one doesn't take the time to understand what buttons to push.

These people are "info-buyers." As evidenced by the growth of information in general, and the appearance of "info-ads" this new customer needs to walk away from a purchase knowing they made an informed and wise decision. No longer dependent on the stock boycum-salesman, this group takes great pride in having a network of experts that they can reference for everything from health care to food purchases.

Today consumers buy as much for the entertainment value of shopping and comparing as they do to fulfill a need.

Today consumers buy as much for the entertainment value of shopping and comparing as they do to fulfill a need. Look at the growth of "Home Shopping Network," and high end specialty stores selling everything from expensive adult toys to spy equipment. People are disillusioned with the corporate environment and frightened by the "downsizing" of big business in general. New communications technologies are going to spur growth in home businesses and a resurgence in entrepreneurism. We are going home. Cocooning. Hiding.

Today's new home will not only house "my" family, but now it may house my business, my gym, my movie theater, my spa , etc. Advertising, geared to my specific demographic, will come across my television as I view customized programming collected by the small satellite dish in my attic.

Our new customer wants to live longer as greater amounts of discretionary time allows them to "contemplate the cosmos" and dwell on their mortality. They want to have fun. They've quit smoking, changed their alcohol consumption habits, and taken responsibility for their health. They want air bags in their cars and security systems in their homes. Mr. and Mrs. '90s have begun to refocus their energies on their children, as intelligent treatment of the environment, natural resources, and education are no longer mere buzz words in the vernacular, but genuine life goals of the 90s. ■
