OK Northville, no more fooling around its time to vote.
Your chance comes Tuesday when people across Michigan go to the polls for the Aug. 6 primary.
A slew of candidates will be on the ballot competing for the right to represent the Republican and Democratic parties in this November's general election. The top

The polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. If you don't know where you should go to vote, call Northville Township Clerk Sue Hilder and 418-5600 or Northville City Clerk Debra Dill and 419-1300.
Northville's key races this Tuesday are all found on the GO! site, since the only Democratic primary candidate is running unopposed. Those in question are on the Northville Township Board and Trustees.

• Cerni-Lan Incumbent vs. Jerry Vorn for the state House of Representatives 20th District
• Third Mr. Coffer Incumbent vs. Jeff Schroder for the Wayne County Commission 16th District
• An unusual three-way Republican battle for the state House seat of Michigan's 38th district which includes the Oakland County section of Northville city.
GO! helps Chris Bachelder, Nancy

Cassels and Craig DeRoche are all candidates on the Aug. 6 ballot in two separate 38th District races. One is to hold the seat for its regular two-year term January 1997 to January 1999. The other is to hold the seat for a seven-year term from November to the end of December of this year.

Director of Personnel Roy Danley	92,140

Rezmierski among best paid superintendents in the area

Northville parents demand the best education money can buy for their children and when it comes to salaries it seems the local school district is willing to comply.

The district will spend about $20 million on salaries this year, almost 65 percent of its entire budget, and although Northville parents want the highest quality for their kids and are willing to pay for it, many wonder when it comes to the salary of the superintendent.

It's an interesting dichotomy. Northville is home to well-paid auto executives, businessmen and entrepreneurs, many of whom are paid based on market demand. But when it comes time to renew the contract of Superintendent Leonard Rezmierski, some of those people protest the six-figure paycheck of the top district administrator.

I guess I don't understand why there are people who are continually criticizing Rezmierski's salary or the salary of a central office administrator in Northville. This year we increased their salaries 2.5 percent on schedule and 0.5 percent off schedule. It's not like the salaries came out of the blue and were increased 130 percent.

Nobody can deny that Rezmierski is the highest paid public official in Northville. His new $127,000 contract, which includes fringe benefits, exceeds that of his public administration counterparts. Rezmierski's salary exceeds City Manager Gary Woods and Township Manager Emma Hultins by more than $60,000.
The superintendent is paid 60 percent more than the average wage earner in Northville, according to 1990 census figures, and about 18 percent more than the average teacher in the district, according to district figures.

Long hours, hard work cited when granting hikes

The Northville Board of Education voted to raise the salaries of its top administrators.

Superintendent Leonard Rezmierski, along with Assistant Superintendent Roy Danley and Director of Finance John Street, will receive 2.5 percent on schedule and 0.5 percent off schedule.

The raise puts Rezmierski at $127,211 for the next year, Boltho at $102,335 and Street at $93,217. Danley will receive $92,140 for the next year.

The six-administrator total of $419,244, which makes up about 1 percent of the entire salary budget for the district for the 1996-97 fiscal year. The district budget is close to $20 million in salaries for the current fiscal year in the $20 million in fringe benefits.

Board President Martha Neid said that Rezmierski and central office administrators are responsible for giving Northville students with the tools necessary to achieve the standard excellence that characterizes the school district.

People need to know what the superintendent and our administrators are doing to ensure

Livonia mayor threatens veto of theater multiplex

The future attraction at Livonia City Hall lined up to its falling, July 24.

At a public hearing, that lasted nearly four hours, a 20-screen movie theater proposed for Livonia's Northwest Side was both hailed as a recreational jewel and scorned as a big box, money grabber and blight.

A veto was taken on the proposal. A council vote could take place Monday, Aug. 12, at the board's next meeting.

Northville youth killed when car slams into tree

By TAYLOR LINCOLN

A Northville youth lost his life July 21 when a Chevy Blazer carrying six teenagers on a private road in Silken Township slammed into a tree.

Sixteen-year-old Chris Mudge, the front seat passenger, was pronounced dead at the scene by emergency workers. The other five teenagers were taken to area hospitals, treated and released.

Mudge would have started his junior year at Northville High School this fall.

The accident occurred about a half mile south of Five Mile Road between Curtis and Currie at the back of a hay field. Northville High School students had been holding parties at the site throughout the summer, according to students who returned to the site the next day to pay their respects to Mudge.

According to the Michigan State Police, another car full of teenagers was leaving

Correction

A story in last week's edition reported that the Friends of Northville Parks and Recreation organization has decided to contribute $7,100 toward the Mill Pond restoration project.

The money, in fact, will go toward landscaping and installing a pedestrian bike path, among other improvements, for Ford Park.

The Record regrets the error.

'Wizard' science camp set to start

By ROBERT JACKSON
Staff Writer

What can you do with a few plastic straws, a paper clip, string, and an index card?

That's a question some Northville kids will have to answer at a Parks and Recreation sponsored "Mr. Wizard" Science Day-camp this month.

Children 10-12 years old will be able to discover the mysteries of science during the week-long camp, Aug. 5-9, when the Parks and Recreation Department teams up with the Mr. Wizard Institute to coordinate the camp.

According to spokesman Bob Schacht, the experience will tap into children's natural curiosity about the world around them.

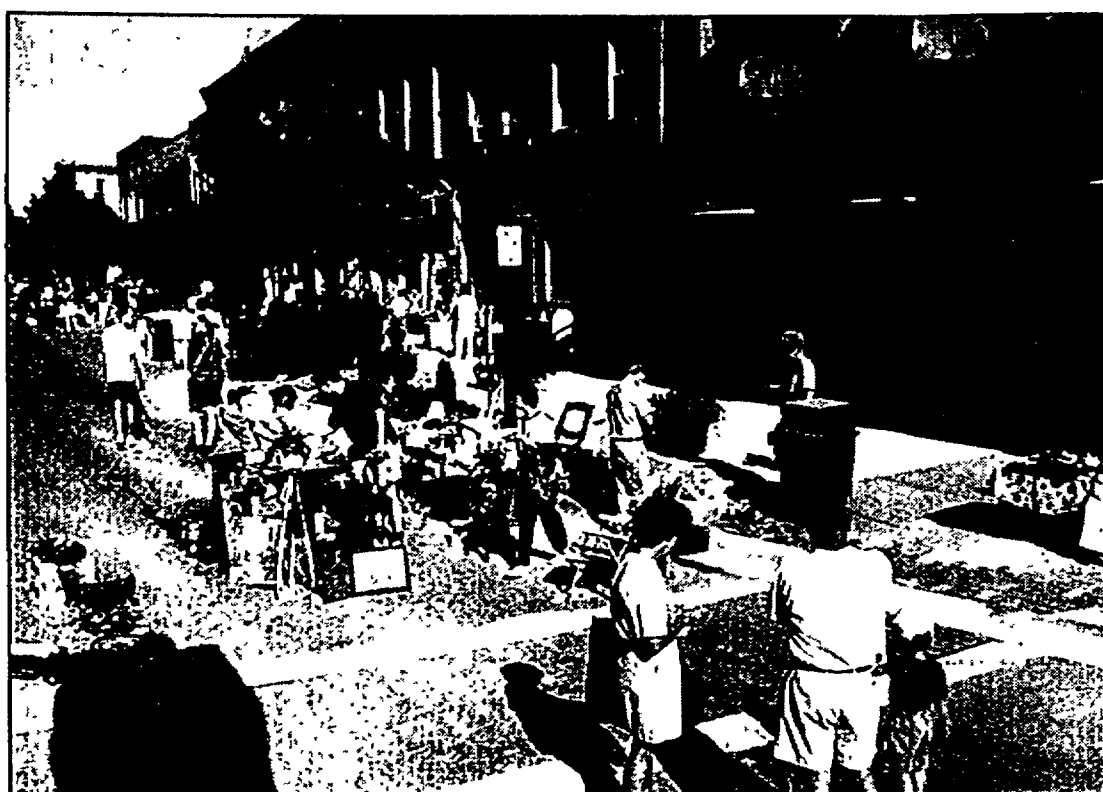

The Institute is the brainchild of Don Herbert, better known as Mr. Wizard from NBC's "Watch Mr. Wizard" and Nickelodeon's "Mr. Wizard's World." "Don is excited about this opportunity for children to have fun discovering science in everyday living through the hands-on science daycamps," Schacht said.

Plymouth science teacher Diana Zoellner will be the camp's certified instructor and will use the "hands-on inquiry" approach.

Kids will discover how structures stand up and how much weight they can hold by taking part in a building project.

"They will use plastic drinking straws, paper clips, string, index cards and washers to experiment with materials and design to build structures for height and strength," Schacht explained. "They will be challenged to design and build a bridge that can span 50 centimeters and support a live weight load of more than 600 grams."

The camp takes place from 1 to 4 p.m., and interested parents can sign their children up for the program at the Parks and Recreation building at 303 W. Main Street, or by calling 349-0203.

Bargain bash

Northville's annual Sidewalk Sale featured the usual abundance of great discounts and outdoor browsing opportunities, but a new twist was added. The event, held downtown last Saturday, also offered customers a chance to shop for garage sale items, as the bargain extravaganza was opened to individual residents for the first time. Entertainers and food booth operators were also on hand. Above, shoppers mill about, hunting for treasures at the tables on Main Street. Right, Brenda Richards checks out a flower and vase arrangement in front of Traditions.

DNR responds to high boating accident rate

Catching up on the natural resources beat

At a time when growing number of accidents are reported with personal watercraft, the state Department of Natural Resources conducted free law and safety programs on three Oakland County lakes in July.

The programs were designed for people who already own personal watercraft. Topics included watercraft laws, boating law and local acts. An equipment checklist was reviewed.

The sponsors were the DNR, Michigan Boating Industry, Personal Watercraft Industry, PWC Manufacturers, K&W Cycle and Anderson Sales & Service.

The state Department of Natural Resources conducted free law and safety programs on three Oakland County lakes in July.

CHERRY LAUDED

Michigan United Conservation Clubs has honored Sen. John Cherry, D-Cllo, whose district includes Oxford and four other northern Oakland townships, as "conservationist legislator of the year."

His accomplishment: winning passage of a law to maintain public access to lakes and rivers at road endings. Before his bill was passed, private property owners were acquiring and closing off road endings - sometimes illegally - before any governmental agency could preserve them.

The new president of MUCC is James Campbell, 58, of New Boston. He succeeds Art Dittmar, a Farmington Hills resident who served two one-year terms. Retired from a General Motors plant in Ypsilanti, Campbell is a trapper.

"A major objective of my administration will be the defeat of the referendum to ban hunting of bears with bait or dogs," Campbell said, referring to the "CUB" initiative drive.

Delegates to MUCC's 59th annual meeting also voted to support a $1 fishing license for 12- to 16-year-olds, who now fish without licenses. MUCC reasoned that the charge will allow DNR to gather a data base for marketing the sport to youngsters. The new DNR budget reopens the education division.

NO HARASSMENT

Gov. John Engler has signed a pair of angler protection laws sponsored by Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, and Rep. David Jaye, R-Macomb County.

The laws make it a misdemeanor to intentionally harass anglers and provide penalties up to 93 days in jail and a $1,000 fine for a first offense and up to a year in jail and $2,500 fine for a second offense. One also strengthens the hunter harassment law.

Lawmakers acted after animal rights groups announced plans to bother fishermen this summer. Said Engler: "Thanks to this legislation, fishermen can worry less about big-mouth protesters and more about big-mouth bass," said Geake.

Decorative bunny taken from porch

A two-foot high, 75-year-old cement rabbit was reported missing by its owner July 29.

According to police the owner, a 47-year-old Northville woman, noticed the rabbit missing from her front porch Monday morning. She told police the only suspicious sound she heard was a car with a noisy muffler that seemed to have been parked in front of her house around midnight.

Police have no suspects, and the estimated cost of the rabbit is $200.

STAMP HEIST: Northville Police have two possible suspects who may have been responsible for the July 20 break-in at Mailboxes Etc. in the Main Centre building.

According to police somebody managed to open the back door to the store sometime in the early morning hours, but only got away with $125 in stamps. The store owner reported that nothing else was missing, and the only other item tampered with was the store's computer.

Police are still investigating possible leads.

INDECENT EXPOSURE: Northville Police are searching for a white male who allegedly exposed himself to two 13-year-old girls July 29.

According to police the girls were walking through the field in front of Cooke Middle School when a white male, dressed in a yellow shirt and black running shorts, yelled at the girls in an attempt to entice them to his location on Taft Road.

The girls were alarmed and immediately began running across Taft, and when they stopped to see if the man was following them, the man pulled down his shorts.

The girls ran to a nearby house where they contacted police. They told officers they saw the man run into a nearby condominium complex. Police have no suspects at this time.

DOMESTIC VIOLENCE: An argument over car keys led to the arrest of a Northville Township man for domestic violence last week.

Township officers received a 911 call at about 2:30 a.m. on July 24. The caller, a 41-year-old woman, said that her boyfriend had grabbed her arms and tried to push her out of their bed.

When they arrived police found a visible bruise on one of the woman's arms.

She said he had been drinking that evening and that the incident began with a dispute over the vehicle keys.

The man, 43, refused to make a statement to police. He was taken to police headquarters, booked and held until his arraignment at 35th District Court later that day.

Judge John MacDonald released the man on $500 bond, ordering him to have no contact with the woman.

The man will be in court for a hearing on Aug. 9.

WASHER VANISHES: A township man told police that someone stole his $4,000 power washer during the night of July 17-18.

The man, 59, said he left the device near a Windsor Court home and found the next day that unknown persons had made off with it.

BREAK-IN: Top of the Cone, a Five Mile ice cream business, suffered a break-in sometime on July 27.

The store's owner told police that between midnight and 11 a.m. someone did substantial damage to the rear door and frame, but nothing was missing from the store.

PHONE, KNIFE STOLEN: A township woman reported an unusual case of larceny from a motor vehicle to police last week.

The woman, 31, said that sometime on July 20 or 21 unknown persons got into her car and took her cellular phone.

No signs of forced entry were found.

The phone is worth $100. A large knife with a blade 10 inches in length worth $50 was also taken.

The woman told police the knife was in the side door panel of her 1996 Toyota Corolla.

PURSE SNATCHED: A township woman lost her purse to thieves over the weekend. She got it back but the $15 in cash inside of it was gone.

The purse was taken out of the woman's unlocked 1993 Saturn sometime from July 26-28. A man who lives on Bradner found it behind his home on Sunday morning.

CAR DAMAGED: A Detroit man was the victim of vandals while shopping at Meijer one week ago.

The man, 30, came back to his 1991 Plymouth on the evening of July 25 to find that his car's antenna had been ripped off, causing $20 in damage.

If you have any information about these or any other illegal incidents you can call Northville Township police at 349-9400 or Northville City police at 349-1234.

Spate of retail fraud runs keeps cops busy

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

Northville Township police went "Meijering" quite often last week, investigating more than a half dozen shoplifting suspects at the Eight Mile and Haggerty megastore.

All face hearings will take place soon at 35th District Court in Plymouth Township.

Things began about noon on July 22. Store detectives called police to say that two women had loaded up a shopping cart with everything from handbags to personal hygiene items, then wheeled it out of the front door without trying to pay for any of them.

One woman, a 30-year-old Detroit resident, was taken into custody, along with her 1-year-old son. The second woman, reputed to be a 37-year-old Detroit resident, allegedly fled the scene in a 1994 Ford Explorer.

The goods are valued at $556. The boy's father picked him up at Meijer.

At about 4:40 p.m. that same day police were back, this time to arrest a Northville woman.

The woman, 43, is accused of taking $175 worth of items without trying to pay for them. According to store detectives she put the merchandise into a tote bag, then walked out of the garden center with it.

When questioned, they continued, she at first denied any wrongdoing, saying she must have lost her receipt.

Later, however, she allegedly admitted to taking the items, saying she was experiencing family problems and that the theft was "a cry for help."

The next day (July 23) saw the arrest of a 76-year-old Livonia man. According to police he put 10 pieces of fishing tackle into his pockets and left Meijer without trying to pay for them. The items are valued at $28, the man faces a hearing on Aug. 6.

Wednesday, July 24, was a very busy day, beginning with the arrest of a Farmington Hills man at about 3 p.m.

The man, 22, allegedly took a Meijer backpack off the shelf, stuffed a number of Meijer items into it and then put the backpack on and walked out of the store. The goods included a CD player and personal stereo, compact discs and a flea collar and leash valued at $383.

"I'm gonna kick your a-- and have you knocked off" was the threat a woman suspected of shoplifting shouted at a Meijer store detective who was watching her shortly before 7 p.m.

According to the detectives the woman then threw the two cartons of cigarettes and two disposable cameras she was carrying onto the store floor, left Meijer and drove off in a burgundy-colored Chevrolet Cavalier.

At about 11 p.m. police arrested their final shoplifting suspect, a 39-year-old Walled Lake man. He allegedly put a fifth of vodka down his shorts and tried to leave Meijer without paying for it. The vodka is valued at $6.

My father always said, "No fuss-just bury me quick and get on with life." I know what he meant, but we felt uneasy. It just seemed incomplete.

We hadn't thought about what we needed to do to cope with his death. You helped us explore our feelings and presented options that let us take care of both his wishes and ours.

Five thefts reported at Park Place

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

Five local folks learned the hard way this week that leaving valuables in your car can make you a victim of crime.

All five are residents of the Park Place apartments complex located near Eight Mile and Griswold in Northville Township. All five got up Monday morning to find their vehicles broken into and a lot of expensive merchandise inside stolen.

Township investigators say the incidents all took place during the night of Sunday/Monday, July 28-29. A total of $11,750 worth of goods was taken.

• The sunroof was taken off a 23-year-old woman's 1991 Chevrolet Cavalier. Inside were a pager, bag, cellular phone and bracelet worth $1,350.

• The rear window on a 1992 Ford Ranger which belongs to a 25-year-old man was pried open, causing $400 in damage. Components to the man's extensive stereo system were stolen as was a large collection of compact discs, a cellular phone, drill and cash. The total loss: $5,600.

elry and coin are together worth $1,150.

• A 1994 Ford Probe was the home of a 36-year-old woman's cellular phone. While the Probe suffered no damage someone went inside it and took the phone, which is valued at $250.

• The sun roof was pried off a 30-year-old man's 1987 Ford Mustang. Inside were his suits and other clothing, a briefcase, VCR and sunglasses. The loss: $4,000.

Repairs to Northville Road nearing an end

Keep your chin up, weary travelers: the work on Northville Road will be wrapped up within a week. Crews from the Wayne County Department of Public Services are about done with improvements they're making to Northville Road between Six and Seven Mile.

The one-mile stretch of pavement has been undergoing a two-month facelift.

Starting May 1 county workers have been resurfacing Northville Road and the road's shoulders as well.

The delays for drivers are almost over. The $200,000 project is set to wrap up by Aug. 7.

The original completion date was July 30, according to county officials, but the extra 10 days were needed for the installation of a left turn lane at the Six Mile/Northville Road intersection.

St. Mary dedicates and opens new child care center

A blessing and dedication ceremony was held for the new St. Mary Hospital Child Care Center followed by an open house last month. The center was designed by Albert Kahn & Associates and constructed by P.R.S. Contracting Inc., both of Detroit.

Thomas McNish, chairman, St. Mary Hospital board of trustees, served as master of ceremonies for the event. Sister Mary Modesta, president and CEO, welcomed guests, and Rev. John Anthony Parenza gave the invocation. Sister Mary Renetta, executive vice president and COO, presented remarks on the new center. Livonia Mayor Jack Kirksey and other dignitaries presented proclamations and recognitions.

The newly constructed Child Care Center, located northwest of the main hospital, is approximately 16,000 square feet and features an 1,800-square-foot central indoor play area with a glass-enclosed structure providing natural lighting. The "Sky Room" is surrounded by rooms for different age levels of children. Coach lights at each doorway, windows, and pastel colors lend a home-like atmosphere to each room.

Additional or expanded programs in the new facility include:

• Infant care for 24 children under age 18 months. A Mothers' Room provides a quiet area for feedings or visits.

• Toddler Sections for children age 18 months to 2 1/2 are specially designed to meet the unique needs of the young child.

• Children in the preschool sections participate in individual and group activities, which include large and small muscle development, dramatic and creative free play, art, music and literature.

Since Dad has Alzheimer's, I can't leave him alone for a minute.

Now, I can't get a minute alone.

You know the feeling if someone you love has Alzheimer's. Even the simple things become worrisome. Did Dad remember to lock the door? Did he turn off the stove?

People with Alzheimer's disease require a safe, secure and uncomplicated place to live. That's why Arden Courts has pioneered a new living alternative for them. It is an Assisted Living facility designed for people in the early to middle stages of Alzheimer's—people who need assistance, but not full-time nursing care.

Arden Courts maximizes residents' safety while maintaining the comfort and accessibility of home. And since we have a limited number of residents at Arden Courts, we are able to give each one just the right amount of attention and care.

Arden Courts is opening in Sterling Heights, Michigan in September. Since space is limited, it's not too early to reserve a room now. To find out more about Arden Courts or to receive our free guide "Home Safety For The Alzheimer's Patient," call us or send in the coupon.

Board officer hopefuls state positions

Two candidates are running for each of the three Northville Township Board of Trustees officer positions – supervisor, clerk and treasurer. Though the election is a primary, no Democrats are running, so the winners will be uncontested in the Nov. 5 runoff. Below are the responses of the candidates to questionnaires we sent them seeking their positions on key issues facing the township.

QUESTIONNAIRE RESPONSES

- 1) What do you think are the three main issues the next Northville Township Board of Trustees should concentrate on?
- 2) Do you think current millage levels and levels of township services should be changed? If so, in what way?
- 3) Northville Township is less than half developed. What future development do you foresee for the township?
- 4) Township trustees have recently experienced image problems. Do you think the problem is real or just perceived, and, if so, what can be done to correct it?
- 5) What do you think needs to be done to promote recreational services?
- 6) Why should people vote for you?

SUPERVISOR

Karen Woodside

Gini Britton

Chris Schultz

Sue Hillebrand

Dick Henningsen

1) Three main issues

- a) Land development and growth issues
- b) Improved coordination and communication with county state government and neighboring communities
- c) Develop a sense of appreciation and respect for the work and dedication of township employees consultants and officials

Strong confident and proactive leadership is a must. Confidence in policy making boards must be renewed. Differences can be a plus when handled professionally. Police and fire protection are a priority. Continued support and expanding vision toward our recreation needs our seniors and Northville Youth Assistance. The master plan should be revised every five years, adhered to and ordinances must be continually revised.

The primary issues facing our township are growth. We have always been a desirable place to live and a profitable place for developers. We must protect the character and quality of our community by maintaining a vision of what we want to look like in 10, 20 or 50 years. While the process has been ongoing, we must continue the necessary measures to make this vision a reality.

Maintain the quality of development consistent with our community. On the planning commission we have tried to impose standards on developers including reviewing the master plan and ordinances and creating attractive alternative development schemes. Increase the accountability, professionalism and integrity of our officials. Heighten an awareness and involvement in the township enhance its image. Provide services including recreation and seniors projects.

a) Growth and development ensure that the infrastructure of the community (i.e. schools, public safety, roads) are not negatively impacted as a result of new development. b) Maintain quality essential services with minimum taxation through long term financial planning and budgetary analysis. c) Maintain and strengthen the professional administrative team approach for the daily operations of the township freeing the board of trustees to focus on issues.

a) Building trust and an atmosphere of cooperation in the township. b) Maintaining financial stability. c) Development of the Wayne County Child Development Center projects.

2) Millage levels

Any change in millage levels and levels of township services should be driven by a clear need that is supported by a majority of township residents. Absent a showing of this need current millage and service levels appear to be adequate. However the present police/fire millage is not able to fully fund those activities and may have to be adjusted when the millages are up for reconsideration.

Northville Township is a growing community and in this mode we must continually monitor services that we provide. A review of our surrounding community millages indicates that Northville Township has one of the lowest millage rates in Western Wayne County. At this time assessments required to fund necessary services and needs of our community are adequate.

We presently enjoy one of the lowest millage rates in southeastern Michigan. We need to continue to explore ways to cut costs as we did recently with reorganization of our planning department. We will continue to work towards keeping our millage rates.

I have not reviewed the current budget or the allocation of tax dollars. As a certified public accountant I will be able to review budget millage levels and costs of services in the professional manner to provide the best services available. Our board has reviewed several programs affecting township services but when it requires, affects healthy. We should explore alternative means of providing services and allocating assets.

Long term financial planning and analysis should be utilized to project the future funding level required to meet the demands of our growing community. I would prefer to continue with the current level of delivery of essential services but that is ultimately a voter decision.

I am pleased with the level of services currently provided by the township. Most residents prefer the lower level of government involvement that is inherent with township operations. It's up to the residents to decide if they want expanded services.

3) Future development

My vision is to promote the development of the township into a carefully conceived well balanced and aesthetically pleasing residential community while respecting and protecting its natural features preserving its environment and increasing recreational opportunities for the residents.

Preservation of our rural character and natural beauty through master plan and ordinances is integral. Development must be carefully conceived and well balanced. It is essential to protect the country like atmosphere by preserving as much open space as possible. It is vital to preserve woodlands wetlands maintaining and acquiring additional park land. As development occurs adjacent properties must be protected.

I prefer that our community remain mostly residential with green belts and open space. Woodlands and wetlands never to be developed. The township and developers need to work together to ensure that we preserve as much land from development as possible.

Maintain the current portion of residential use. I don't want to see the price care and quality which our residents give to their property jeopardized. There are areas available for the development of lower cost housing for seniors and starter home projects. The eastern boundary of the township has heavy commercial uses which are sufficient. Future commercial projects should be limited to areas adjacent to the local residents.

My preference would be to continue as primarily a "bedroom community" with larger lots and dedicated open space. I could support some research and development or office but the large Hagerty Road corridor commercial areas will provide for the needs of our residents. We do need to be cognizant of the fact the residential property values in our township will provide for the viability of downtown Northville's commercial district.

I want what I think most residents want for the community to have controlled growth and to maintain its rural atmosphere. I am very concerned about the balance of land use and the possible loss of available open space and recreation areas. At the same time I recognize that a certain amount of R&D and commercial development lessens the tax burden.

4) Image problems

A noted historian says that "democracy is an inherently sloppy process." The board has had its share of challenges. Whether they have been managed correctly or resolved to the complete satisfaction of all concerned is a matter of legitimate dispute. The election provides an opportunity to elect a team that blends experience with enthusiasm one that is committed to the interests and values of our community.

The township board as elected by the voters must work together in a professional manner under the leadership of the supervisor. By state law and charter the supervisor is the chief elected official and is directly responsible to the voters. Working together ideas can be explored in a positive respectful way. Proven leadership is essential to helping existing facilities address priorities and move the township forward in a productive manner.

As a member of the board of trustees the only image that is important to me is how we represent the community. Are we working hard do we gather all the necessary information to make sound decisions for our township? Do we ask the right questions?

Many of this board's decisions have been unanimous. Debate is good but when it requires, affects township operations and public perception it creates an appearance of unprofessionalism. We should establish reporting requirements for officers and employees and information should be made available through proper channels. We have considered in the master plan a bike system throughout the township connecting the various parks and other areas together. In addition public works projects to consider include the development of community gardens and beautification of particular areas.

This board has at times been "painted with the same broad brush." The majority of this board has pulled together as a team over the past two years and has made progress moving forward focusing on the issues and making very sound decisions regarding the future of Northville Township. One cannot control the actions of others and when unfortunate incidents occur all suffer.

I would have to agree that there has been an image problem. The appropriate operational policies and procedures are in place in the township. So the bottom line is following those procedures demonstrating a willingness to work together and improving communications when there is a mis understanding.

5) Recreation services

Northville already has many "excellent recreation options" and needs little effort to promote them. The real question is how to expand these options to meet increased demand. Several factors that drive the answer are:

We share services with the city for recreation. Youth, Adult and senior programs. These services must be evaluated to determine if our needs are being met. Land acquisition is a priority through land donations and other options. We cannot afford to be a "throw away" community. We must utilize not destroy existing facilities (schools, private facilities). Recreation areas in new projects should be encouraged.

We have a critical shortage of facilities and sports fields. I am proud of what our recreation department has been able to do with limited resources. We attempt to acquire property at every opportunity and must step up these efforts and investigate all of our options. We also need to communicate to the public and seek input on the type of services our residents are most interested in.

The township and the city have to work together and should continue to provide shared arrangements for recreational classes and programs offered to the residents. We have considered in the master plan a bike system throughout the township connecting the various parks and other areas together. In addition public works projects to consider include the development of community gardens and beautification of particular areas.

Recreation options should not be limited to sports fields alone. The appropriate operational policies and procedures are in place in the township. So the bottom line is following those procedures demonstrating a willingness to work together and improving communications when there is a mis understanding.

The recreation board must be responsive to the needs and wishes of the community. They must be vigilant in their efforts to secure more recreational sites. Additional facilities which become available in the community should be utilized to the highest degree.

6) Why vote for you?

I decided to run for supervisor to provide voters with a candidate who has a deep and abiding concern for the welfare of our community. A candidate who embraces a focused and disciplined approach to decision making, a candidate who values communication and consensus, and a candidate who will make a positive difference in the reputation of Northville Township.

I have a proven history of community service. I deeply care about our future and bring professional integrity and legal knowledge. I have worked for 22 years ago and the township has grown and changed significantly. Transferred out of state briefly we returned in 1991 and worked hard to make the community a better place. I'll make a difference and take us into the 21st century in a positive way.

I am interested in how our community develops and in keeping Northville the lovely desirable and safe place that my family and I have found it to be. I take the responsibilities and duties of the clerk's office very seriously. I have learned a great deal in the last four years and I would like the opportunity to use this knowledge, experience and information to further serve our community.

I have education and experience to work together and should continue to provide shared arrangements for recreational classes and programs offered to the residents. We have considered in the master plan a bike system throughout the township connecting the various parks and other areas together. In addition public works projects to consider include the development of community gardens and beautification of particular areas.

To be an effective elected official one needs leadership, dedication, commitment and the ability to be a fair minded independent thinker. I feel that I have demonstrated those traits since being elected in 1992 and I would like the opportunity to continue to help the township remain fiscally responsible in delivery of essential services.

Experience! Experience! Experience! Thirteen enjoyable years in the position plus two years as township manager gives me an exceptional working knowledge of the township operation. Add to that my financial background and education and many volunteer assignments for the township. I believe I am highly qualified for the position of treasurer.

MICHIGAN HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, 20TH DISTRICT

QUESTIONNAIRE RESPONSES

Incumbent state Rep. Gerry Law faces a primary challenge from former state lawmaker Jerry Vorva. Vorva represented the 20th District, which includes Northville Township and Wayne County Northville, from 1993-94. Law upset Vorva in the GOP primary in 1994, however, going on to win the general election later that year. The winner of this year's Republican primary will go on to face Patricia Hoadley of Plymouth, who is unopposed in the Democratic primary. Below are the answers to six questions we asked of the candidates.

- 1) Compare your strengths with those of your opponent.
- 2) In your view should the Legislature ban physician assisted suicide or permit it under regulated conditions?
- 3) Would you favor an increase in the fuel tax in order to finance more road repairs and improvements?
- 4) Do you favor the adoption of greater restrictions on abortion?
- 5) Do you think Michigan's 4.4 percent income tax and 6 percent sales tax are about right, or should those levels be altered either up or down?
- 6) Michigan's inmate population has more than tripled since 1982. Keeping in mind the budget stresses resulting from new prison construction, do you favor tougher sentences for criminals?

Gerry Law

Gerald H. Law
Age: 52
Occupation: State representative, 20th district, 14 years; Ford Motor Co. 12 years.

Education: B.S. and MBA in finance from University of

(1) My strengths are my education, governmental and work experience, and my legislative accomplishments.

Education: B.S. and MBA in finance from University of Detroit; Juris Doctor degree from Wayne State University Law School.

Experience: Twelve years at Ford Motor Co., 14 years experience in state and local government.

Legislative:

- Introduced over 50 bills in 1995-96; 11 signed into law.
- Named 1996 Legislator of the Year by four different organiza-

• One hundred percent legislative attendance record.

• Rated one of the most conservative legislators in state by Michigan Conservative Union.

(2) Although I do not support physician assisted suicide, I believe people have the right to determine how they will be treated. Everyone is entitled to a natural, technology-free death. I want people to have their choices respected and to have the ability to control what happens to them.

That is why I have introduced legislation to give people better access to hospice care and to help patients with terminal or chronic illnesses get the pain management they need.

(3) My position is to reduce taxes, not raise them. We should first look at a comprehensive reorganization of transportation funding which includes privatization, reduced administrative overhead, and duplication at the federal, state and local levels. We need more federal and state revenues allocated to Western Wayne County. Our fast growing area deserves more revenues for our infrastructure.

(4) Yes. I am Pro-Life.

(5) The 6 percent sales tax was put into the Constitution by a vote of the people in 1993, through Proposal A, and would require a statewide referendum to raise or lower that amount. The 6 percent sales tax is average for sales taxes in surrounding states. We should continue to lower the state income tax by reducing the cost of state government.

(6) Yes. We need to have tough, consistent penalties for criminals. Harsh penalties for persons committing violent crimes should always be required. Our state prisons should be reserved for violent offenders. While increasing prison capacity is expensive, the public must always be protected from violent criminals.

Jerry Vorva

Jerry Vorva
Age: 44
Occupation: Realtor
Education: B.S. Madonna University, currently in third year of program at University of Detroit College of Law. Graduate.

(1) I believe you said it best in the last election when you endorsed me saying Vorva is for public service and Law was for self service. Mr. Law's career has been checked with backdoor dealing, cronyism, nepotism, while my career is checked with stopping such dealings at great cost to me financially, emotionally and professionally. Of course, my opponent is good at cutting deals which from time to time might benefit groups in and around the district, but at what cost elsewhere.

My strengths are my work ethic, honesty and desire to make my community, state and nation a better place.

(2) Permit it under regulated conditions such as: terminal, six months or less to live; MDs review case.

As a police officer for 10 years, more times than I wanted to I was dispatched to DOAs (dead on arrival). I many times found suspicious circumstances which I reported to the medical examiner and prosecutors only to have them say "Kid, leave well enough alone." I have yet to see the court dockets filled with groups of people who have been charged with murdering the sick or elderly loved ones to get to the money. These people who oppose this say that there will be a flood of murders like this, however. I know it goes on now.

(3) Only if there is an equal decrease in another tax, sales or income. We need to require performance bonds from contractors. Require bids given to lowest bidder. Develop better road material standards. Raise slightly carriers rate and lower loads on them.

(4) I believe that states can restrict certain late term abortions but those four months and earlier should be up to the woman. I oppose the 24-hour waiting period and feel the Supreme Court will overturn it.

I look at abortion the way I look at war. We will go to war, kill people, and have our own people killed for things like oil or other issues we say are in our best interest. Likewise, a woman can say this pregnancy is not in my best interest now and abort. The framers of our Constitution took great pains to say that the individual is supreme to the state and that if there is a conflict the individual wins.

(5) We can lower taxes by starting at the top and adopting a part-time or unicameral legislature, and cutting pay and benefits. Pay can only be increased by a vote of the people. Make across the board cuts to force efficiency.

(6) You can make sentences a little shorter if you make it hard labor, triple bunking and require prisoners to work at upkeep of prisons, growing own food, etc.

It would then be possible to put more bad guys away and have it cost less. Plus capital punishment with an expedited processing not to last more than two years after conviction.

Chris Bachelder

Nancy Cassis

Craig DeRoche

1) Achievements

I'm a businessman, not a politician. I believe my 17 years of business and economic policy experience make me well qualified to lead the fight in Lansing for growth, opportunity, and keeping the Engler Revolution alive. My proudest achievement has been joining with my wife in raising my two daughters, Tracy and Katy, and I want them to have the same opportunities that I had growing up in Oakland County.

I initiated a city ordinance protecting home owners and the character of their subdivisions that became a model adopted by other cities. As a Novi councilwoman, I sponsored "Town Meetings" which led to "Vision 20/20," a city future project that will get under way this summer and fall bringing residents, business people, and representatives from the schools together to affirm Novi's course for the 21st century.

The first is my business ownership. The fact that I have created jobs, paid salaries, and paid all the taxes associated with running a business. The creation of jobs and the growth of profitable businesses makes up the fabric of our economy.

The second is my role as chairman of the Michigan Political Leadership Program Association and being responsible for much of the 1st Annual Fund-raiser at the Novi Hilton that raised over $100,000 for MSU.

2) School Mandates

I believe the most important contributor to quality schools is the involvement of parents. We must find the best, most committed individuals to run our schools, and encourage curriculum that focuses on basic knowledge, content, and proven learning techniques. These are matters, however, that are best handled by parents and school boards at the local level, and not through excessive meddling by state bureaucrats.

No. As an educator, I know that professional standards, proper certification/accreditation, and upgrading of educational credit hours are required now of the educational staff. I think parents and the public in general want to know that administrators of public schools are qualified and have the necessary educational background to manage their local school districts. I also believe in local control of curriculum by parents working with school boards, teachers and administration.

No. Michigan needs to continue to improve on the quality and standards of the administration and the curriculum. Dropping certifications and core curriculum standards without accompanying programs to improve the respective aspects of education does not help to educate the children. A core curriculum should exist that focuses on fundamentals first — reading, writing and arithmetic.

3) Roads

I believe that the average Michigan resident is already overtaxed, and that the government has more of our money than it needs to provide public services. While working to improve the low quality of our roads will be one of my top priorities, I oppose increasing the gasoline tax. We must instead totally overhaul road construction and maintenance programs, and fight to return more highway money to Oakland County.

Oakland County is not getting its fair share of dollars to improve roads. As a "donor county," Oakland gets only 63 cents returned for each dollar it sends to Lansing. We want a fair shake for our growing district. Rather than rush to a new gas tax, a mechanism that ensures equitable redistribution should be developed to ensure that a fair share of the funding formula is committed to local road improvements.

No. I would oppose the gas tax at this point. Oakland County pays enough taxes to the state at this time and we should attempt to obtain funds through taxes that we already pay. I would return more funds to Southeast Michigan for roads by appropriating money based on population and growth rather than the current system which manipulates funding and favors outstate areas.

4) Assisted Suicide

The legislature should pass an enforceable law prohibiting assisted suicide. As the Declaration of Independence states, the right to life is inalienable. While we all have compassion for individuals with terminal illness or suffering immense pain, supporting physician assisted suicide will eventually lead to abuses of the weak and vulnerable. What is now called the "right to die" will ultimately become the "duty to die."

(a) Yes. (b) No. (c) No.

The legislature should ban assisted suicide. Every effort should be made to secure services for the terminally ill to pass on with dignity. The patient and family should be able to choose to accept or reject further medical treatment to preserve life, but attempting to legislate guidelines in which a doctor can and can't terminate a life goes beyond the boundaries of what our state government should regulate or permit.

5) Prisons

I believe that it is a sign of progress, and not necessarily a problem, that Michigan's prison population has tripled since 1982. We must remove dangerous criminals from our streets and deter further crime by convincing would-be criminals that they will be punished. As a society, we have no choice but to sentence teens as adults because our efforts at rehabilitation have largely failed.

Violent crime among juveniles is increasing at an alarming rate and I support adult time for committing adult violent crime as a strong deterrent.

I support the existing "650-lifer" law because drugs are a serious threat to our communities. We ought to catch and prosecute drug dealers and earners to the fullest extent of the law.

Those who commit violent crime need to be behind bars and prison space should meet the need to protect our families and children.

6) Gun Control

I believe in the right of law abiding citizens to bear arms, so the Cropsey bill is closer to my view on handgun licensing.

My views would be more in line with current law because Cropsey eliminates the screening process by a county board composed of lay people and officers. I am supported by the Sheriff of Oakland County, the Police Officers Association of Michigan, and the Novi Police Officers Association, all of whom have concerns about a proliferation of concealed weapons on the street.

I would support the Cropsey bill. Rep. Cropsey endorsed me in this race because of my support of his welfare reform legislation as well as the bill described above that will restore some of the rights to citizens of Michigan guaranteed by the second amendment to the United States Constitution.

Bachelder, Cassis, DeRoche fight it out for nomination

By JAN JEFFRES
Staff Writer

Republican hopefuls Chris Bachelder, Nancy Cassis and Craig DeRoche are all on the Aug. 6 ballot in two separate races for the same 38th District state representative seat.

One election will decide who gets the seat for the regular two year term, January 1997 to January 1999. The other race will determine who holds the post for a seven-week term, from November to the end of December of this year.

The unique situation was brought about by the resignation earlier this year of state Sen. David Honigman, R-W. Bloomfield, whose district includes Oakland County Northville. A special election to fill his vacant seat was held and the winner was 38th District Rep. Bill Bullard, leading to this election for the seven-week balance of Bullard's old seat.

The winner (or winners) of the GOP 38th District elections will face Democrat Gary Johnson, who is running unopposed as a Democrat in both elections.

NANCY CASSIS

Name recognition is hardly a problem for Nancy Cassis, a member of the Novi City Council.

Her task now is to convince citizens of the district she's the one who will serve them best in Lansing.

"The Michigan Township Association endorsed me. I think that's a high endorsement. I want to represent this wonderful mosaic of communities," Cassis said.

"There may be times I would take a stand for one community that really wants something for them, but all of us are concerned about the major issues that are going to add to the quality of life. We are all neighbors. We are all united by the I-96 corridor."

Cassis is running a campaign based on her belief that the economy should remain strong, taxes should be cut and state money should be funneled to the schools.

"I like to think of myself as a practical conservative. Does that mean on every single issue I'm going to agree with Gov. Engler? No. I'm an independent thinker," she said.

A Novi school psychologist since 1980, Cassis has a master's degree from the University of Michigan. She is the only candidate in the GOP primary who has held elected office. She's also been active in the Republican Party since 1982.

She started her political career in the early 1980s as one of those residents who keep popping up at the city council podium to address local issues. Then, she ran for Novi City Council in 1985 and served two four-year terms.

But in 1993, Cassis took on Kathy McLallen for the mayor's job and lost, putting herself right out of local government for two years. In fall 1995, she made a comeback and since then, the word about town has been that Cassis as a council member is less confrontational than during her first two terms.

"I don't think I've been an obstructionist. I think I was asking tough questions on behalf of the citizens ... I think everyone learns and grows and modifies an approach to become more effective," Cassis said.

CHRIS BACHELDER

Chris Bachelder describes himself as the political outsider in the Republican primary for the 38th District race.

Born and raised in Royal Oak and a University of Michigan grad, he left the Great Lakes state in 1981 to get his MBA at Harvard Business School.

Currently, the Northville resident is a senior manager at the accounting firm Deloitte & Touche. But, should voters send him to Lansing, Bachelder plans to quit his job and use his background in economics to help direct Michigan's business climate.

"My primary reason for running is to keep Michigan's economic turnaround going so that my kids don't have to leave Michigan," he said.

"Everything I vote on will be evaluated in the light of whether it helps economic growth or hinders it. I know what makes an economy fail or succeed and what impacts it."

Michigan must eliminate its single business tax, which discriminates against growing businesses that create new jobs, Bachelder said.

The threshold of that tax has already been lowered leading to an upswing in the economy, he added.

Before returning to Michigan in 1993, he was vice president of Polycconomics, a "Reaganomics" consulting firm in Morristown, N.J.

But Bachelder said he wanted to return to his home state where he has family, friends and roots.

Today more than ever, the economy's health is vital, the candidate said.

"We have a lot more riding on it now. The state now funds 60 percent of education. The damage a recession will do to basic local instruction is greater than before. This is something we have to manage against," he added.

CRAIG DEROCHE

Craig DeRoche may be only 25 years old, but he's hardly a neophyte to politics.

He's the Walled Lake city director of the Oakland County Republican Party and a past GOP precinct delegate. DeRoche is also the chairman of the Michigan Republican Conservative Conference.

If elected, DeRoche predicts he can hit the ground running because he's already well connected with Republicans throughout Michigan.

"Some people think when you're 25, you've lived in the real world only for a year and a half. I keep focusing on leadership," he said.

"I can't stress enough how important it is, my knowledge of the politics of Lansing ... I do already know the process."

DeRoche's personal connections encompass much of District 38. While he lives in Novi, he grew up in Wixom, went to Walled Lake schools and belongs to a church in Milford.

A graduate of MSU's Michigan Political Leadership Program, he now chairs the statewide, non-partisan group's association of fellows, which includes business and civic leaders.

He is a self employed commercial insurance agent.

DeRoche really got involved in electioneering six years ago, when he worked on the Dick Allen for U.S. Congress campaign.

The candidate didn't win, but the worker was bitten by the political bug.

DeRoche said he became interested when he learned that an individual really could make a difference.

And he's a strong believer in individual rights.

"I believe in individual freedom, guarded by individual responsibility," DeRoche said.

"I believe the primary frontier of government is to protect our rights and that should be the focus, whether it's on a national scale or a local scale. Everything important is defined for us in the U.S. and Michigan constitutions."

Gary Johnson is a Village of Milford planning commissioner, Democratic Party precinct delegate and bluegrass musician.

He is an Army veteran with a job in manufacturing in Highland Township and he is the elected labor representative for UAW Local 1712.

To Johnson, the issues of the district are growth, the roads, the environment and education.

"Education is everything. We have to find innovative ways to make sure we are not compromising the schools," he said.

Schmid, Fox running unopposed for Oakland County Commission

By JAN JEFFRES
Staff Writer

For candidates for Oakland County Commission District 17, the Aug. 6 primary offers little more than breathing space as the real race looms in November.

That's because neither the incumbent, Republican Kay Schmid of Novi, nor the challenger, Democrat Larry Jay Fox, also of Novi, face any competition in the primary.

The 17th District commissioner represents Oakland County Northville, Novi, Walled Lake, and tiny Novi Township.

First elected in 1991, Schmid is now aiming for her fourth, two-year term on the job. She is married to Novi City Council Member Bob Schmid, and has been a fixture in Pontiac for six years. For the past two years, she's chaired the commission's General Government Committee, something Schmid calls downright exciting.

As leader of the General Government Committee, she's the liaison with local, state and federal governments, as well as governmental agencies such as the Oakland Livingston Human Services Agency.

"As chair, it's a whole new ball game. It's really getting to the meat, what you get on the board, mental health, public health, law enforcement," she said.

Schmid's main crusade currently is to make sure the state government recognizes that Oakland County — the third most prosperous in the country and with 1.1 million residents — isn't treated as a small, out-state county.

"One size doesn't fit all, that's what my motto is at the county. You can't treat us the same as you do them," she said.

Schmid is proudest of two achievements. First, she pushed to get the 52-1 District Court's new building constructed in Novi rather than Walled Lake. Second, when the 810 telephone area code was split off from 313, she convinced an Ameritech citizens committee not to separate part of Novi and the City of Northville from Oakland County.

Kay Schmid

Larry Fox

"They called that the Schmid plan. I did the same thing this year with the new area codes," she said.

Walled Lake attorney Larry Jay Fox isn't planning to run a conventional political campaign in the race for the Oakland County Board of Commissioners.

He doesn't have a campaign manager and hasn't yet had a series of glossy flyers printed.

"I don't see myself as a politician ... I'm more an independent with regard to my politics. My lean is Democratic, but I'm conservative depending on what the issue is," Fox said.

"I just decided to get involved, basically offering an alternative to somebody running on the other side."

A graduate of the University of Michigan and the University of Detroit Law School, he's been in practice in Oakland County for 10 years. He practices both criminal and civil law from his office in downtown Walled Lake.

Fox, who has not held an elected or appointed governmental post, said he's not focusing in detail on the issues in his campaign.

"I think the main issue is how our tax dollars are spent, how we prioritize it. I'd have to get in there to detail that process. You can idealize it and say this should be done and do this," he said.

"We seem to talk a lot of issues and we simply tell people what they want to hear. You have to look at it from all angles and decide what's the way to go."

As someone who works daily with the court system, including at the Oakland County District Court 52-1 in Novi, Fox said that measures are being taken in other parts of the state to better organize the court system and cut costs.

"The way the system is set up now with Oakland County is a waste of tax dollars. There are ways to change that," Fox said.

"A lot of people don't really approve of the county's approach to assisted suicide and Thompson prosecuting Kevorkian. I believe that's an issue that should be resolved outside the court system."

Woodside's spending big in bid to become township supervisor

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

While emotions in the race for the Northville Township Board of Trustees have sometimes run high, costs have mostly stayed low.

Eleven of the 12 candidates for the seven board seats have each spent and received less than $1,000 on their campaigns so far.

The notable exception is supervisor candidate Karen Woodside, who's taken in just under $6,000 in contributions and spent more than $3,500 so far.

She's used the money to distribute rulers and stickers, mail flyers, buy advertisements, print lawn signs and host a June 27 campaign fund-raiser, all for a job office who spend or receive more than $1,000 during their campaigns to file an itemized expense report.

The first step comes soon after filing nominating petitions in May, when candidates tell election officials whether they expect to spend or receive more than $1,000.

The expense report must detail the names of all donors, the amounts each contributor gave and everything a candidate has spent money on which pays $17,000 a year.

Michigan law requires candidates for elective

Woodside's pre-election expense report, filed Friday with the Wayne County elections office, covers her donations and expenditures through July 19.

It does not detail those figures for the two and a half week period between July 19 and the Aug. 6 primary.

The other 11 board candidates had not spent or received more than $1,000 by July 19.

That includes Bob Grant, Woodside's opponent in the supervisor's race

Like Woodside, Grant officials in the campaign told election officials that he expected to spend more than $1,000.

According to his itemized report, however, by July 19 he had received a total of $965 and had spent $652, all of it on lawn signs.

Donations to Grant's campaign came from 11 donors, all of them Northville Township residents.

Woodside received a total of $5,375 from 65 contributors, 17 of whom are non-Northville residents.

Woodside and her husband also gave $577 in "in-kind" contributions to her campaign.

All candidates must file a final post-election expense report detailing total contributions and expenditures with Wayne County by Sept. 5.

Candidates who fail to file their reports on time will be penalized $25 per day for everyday the paperwork is late.

Rivers and Fitzsimmons dig in early

By ROBERT JACKSON
Staff Writer

The campaign for the 13th District U.S. House of Representatives seat has begun in earnest for incumbent Lynn Rivers, D-Ann Arbor, and lone challenger Joe Fitzsimmons.

Both candidates may be running unopposed in next week's primary election, but that hasn't stopped either from hitting the campaign trail in western Wayne County to talk about issues affecting the 13th District, which includes Northville Township and Wayne County Northville.

Rivers, campaigning for her second term, was elected in 1994 when she knocked off former George Bush aide John Schall.

In a second term, Rivers said she would focus on education and youth violent crime, along with budget reform.

"Without a doubt, education should be our highest priority. We need to give further support to our K-12 programs. Project Head Start, and we need to put money into higher education," she explained. "There are important professions in this country that are not well paid and if we allow higher education prices to skyrocket, how are people going to be able to afford to work in those professions?"

"We've got people coming out of college with $50-60,000 college loan bills, and when you're starting in a profession like teaching, how are you going to be able to afford to pay that loan when you're starting out at $25,000 per year?"

Growing concern over the startling rise in youth crime has also caught Rivers' attention. She said Congress should address the problem by seeking a middle ground between punitive and preventive measures.

"This is an extremely difficult and challenging issue for all of us. We have got to find a way to deal with the violent youth offenders and if rehabilitation is not a possibility we have to look at further incarceration," she said. "There needs to be an effort to deal with both sides of the issue. We can't go strictly with strong incarceration measures just as we cannot afford to go strictly with rehabilitative measures."

"With youths committing violent crimes we need to make a strong statement that if they're going to manipulate the world through violence we'll respond quickly with appropriate measures."

Fitzsimmons is challenging Rivers in the general election, and although that polling date is more than three months away, the self-made businessman from Ann Arbor has been busy campaigning in western Wayne County. He is the past chairman, president and chief executive officer of University Microfilms International, a business, he said, that he took from $5 million in sales 20 years ago to $200 million today.

Lynn Rivers

Joe Fitzsimmons

He decided to seek elective office, he explained, to reestablish the connection between the people of the 13th District and their elected representative.

"I'm running because I believe the present incumbent does not represent the average voter in this district, he said. "(Rivers) is out of touch with the issues. I look at her voting record and my record would be very, very different."

Fitzsimmons said his goals are simple and straightforward. His first goal, he explained, would be to fight to lower personal taxes and boost the economy. "Today, there is a lot of economic anxiety. It boils down to reducing taxes so that people can keep more of what they've earned," he said.

Education is another major area in which Fitzsimmons would focus. He said children today are not getting the best education possible and he favors giving parents a choice, bringing competition into the schools.

"I think parents should be deeply involved in their children's educations, and I don't believe in Washington bureaucrats making those choices that parents should make," he said.

WHAT'S ON THE BALLOT?

Here are the races Northville-community residents will vote in this Tuesday. This is a primary election, which means that the top Republican and Democratic vote-getters in each race will go on to face each other in the Nov. 5 general election.

There's only one contest that everyone in the local area will cast ballots in: Michigan's U.S. Senate seat. Besides that, Wayne and Oakland County residents will vote in different races and only Northville Township voters will cast ballots for local offices.

One more thing to remember: unlike every other office on the primary ballot, delegates to this summer's county party conventions will actually be elected on Tuesday, Aug. 6.

Nominees prep in 11th District

By WENDY PIERMAN MITZEL
Staff Writer

It's hard to believe it's election time again, but the primary for a congressional seat in the 11th District is heating up ... sort of.

There's no opposition in the Aug. 6 primary for either the Democratic or Republican nominations for the two-year term, 11th District U.S. House of Representatives seat currently held by Rep. Joseph Knollenberg, a Republican from West Bloomfield Township.

The 11th district encompasses Oakland County Northville, Novi, Milford, South Lyon, and most of southwestern Oakland County.

Finishing up his second term in office, Congressman Knollenberg, an All-State Insurance Agency owner and former PTA leader, says he wants to remain in Washington.

"I enjoy what I'm doing. I'm making head roads and offering something to my constituency," the 62-year-old Knollenberg said.

Knollenberg's record indicates he is opposed to gun control and he has advocated against higher taxes. He is also the co-sponsor of a bill to make English the official language of the country.

Locally, Knollenberg said he led the charge to ensure a CAFE (Corporate Average Fuel Economy) standards freeze for the Big Three Automakers. The EPA mandated CAFE sets standards for fuel efficiency.

Knollenberg is a member of the Appropriations Committee, the Committee for Economic and Educational Opportunities, the Energy and Water Development Committee, the Foreign Operations, Export Financing and Related Programs Committee and the Employer-Employee Relations Committee.

The Democrat challenging the incumbent is Morris Frumin, 74-year-old retired psychiatrist from Bingham Farms.

Frumin has been heavily involved in a lot of things, but never politics.

"I'm a citizen but I've had no active involvement with any politics until this campaign," said the father of four and grandfather of

Joe Knollenberg

Morris Frumin

10. Frumin practiced psychiatry privately for 30 years and spent time on the staff of William Beaumont Hospital in Royal Oak.

Frumin is already gearing up to take on Knollenberg in the November election.

"I felt the incumbent did not represent a broad cross-section of views of the district and no one has brought that to the attention of the community," he said.

Frumin said his background qualifies him to sit on the Commerce Committee and Health and Environment Subcommittee and make policy in the area of health care reform.

Barring anything unforeseen, Knollenberg and Frumin will face off in the general election Nov. 5.

Funding flap leads to charges in race for Congress

By ROBERT JACKSON
Staff Writer

They may be running unopposed in the upcoming primary, but incumbent Democrat Lynn Rivers and Republican challenger Joe Fitzsimmons are already engaged in a heated campaign that could turn downright nasty by the time the general election arrives in November.

This past week Fitzsimmons turned up the heat by charging that Rivers had accepted an illegal campaign contribution from political action committee Our Choice II.

The next day Federal Elections Commission spokesperson Kelly Huff reported that the allegations were untrue and were the result of an FEC error. The FEC official apologized to the Rivers camp and stated publicly that Rivers did not break federal campaign regulations.

Rivers said in an interview Friday that Fitzsimmons' accusations were "alarfing" and detracted from the issue-oriented campaign she'd like to run.

"I'm happy that my reputation has been vindicated, because I have worked extremely hard to follow the rules," she said. "I hope that at some point we'll focus on what's important to the people of the 13th District, and not continue to campaign negatively."

The Fitzsimmons campaign this week, however, continued focusing on Rivers fund-raising efforts, calling into question a letter from a Choice II staff worker that allegedly outlined ways to circumvent federal campaign fund-raising regulations on Rivers' behalf.

According to Fitzsimmons campaign spokesperson Janna Nuzum, the group encouraged donors who had already contributed the maximum amount permitted by law to keep giving money, by way of Our Choice II, as a "pass-through vehicle" to skirt federal campaign laws.

A complaint was officially filed with the FEC by the National Republican Congressional Committee last week. This week the FEC ruled again that Rivers and Our Choice II were not guilty of any violations.

Interestingly enough a copy of the letter, sent by the Fitzsimmons campaign to The Northville Record last week, was missing a second page.

That page, according to Rivers, was also missing from the complaint filed by the NRCC, and shows that the organization was not engaging in illegal fund-raising tactics.

"The reason the second page was not sent to the FEC is that the Republican committee knew there was no violation in the first place, so they just tore off the second page and sent it out," she said.

When Nuzum was asked about the missing page she said her office had only received one page of the two-page letter.

The complaint was based on the first page only, she said Monday.

Rivers said all of the recent "nastiness" has taken away from the issues that need to be focused on.

"The people of the 13th District want someone who understands them and the issues that affect them," she said. "It's unnerving when you're campaigning against someone who has the personal financial resources to dump into a campaign. That, coupled with (Fitzsimmons') propensity to not tell the truth is a bit scary."

VOTING DO'S AND DON'TS

Be sure to read the instructions printed on your ballot and follow them carefully. If you don't you run the risk that your ballot will be disqualified and your vote won't count.

Keep these tips in mind:

- Northville uses an optical scan ballot system. A special machine "reads" the marks you make on your ballot and records your vote, much like the machines which read SAT exams or Lotto ticket forms.

It's important, therefore, to avoid making any marks on the ballot except in the indicated spots next to your candidates. Be sure to use only the marking pen or pencil provided in the voting booth.

- Avoid cross-voting. Remember that you can only vote in one party's primary on Aug. 6. You can't vote for Republican and Democratic candidates in the same race. You also can't vote for a Republican in one race and a Democrat in another or vice versa.

- Avoid over-voting. For example, don't vote for two people in a race when the ballot says you can only vote for one.

Parks millage has local impact

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

Wayne County voters will decide Tuesday if they want to shell out some additional tax money to fund a slew of county park improvements, including some here in the Northville community.

Residents of Northville Township and the Wayne County section of Northville city will see Proposition P on the ballot when they go to polls on Aug. 6. It's a 0.25 mill property tax increase proposal that would raise $41 million for park renovations over its five year lifespan (1997-2001).

To the owner of a $100,000 home Proposition P means paying an additional $12.50 a year in property taxes. For the owner of a $200,000 home the figure would be $25.

To Hurley Coleman, Wayne County's director of parks, that's a bargain. Not so, however, to Thaddeus McCotter, Northville's representative on the Wayne County Commission.

"For the cost of a medium-size pizza per household per year we can do so much," he said.

The county has a $26.3 million series of projects in mind. A small chunk of the funds would be earmarked for Northville, including:

- Renovating the Bennett Arboretum, located in Hines Park in Northville Township.

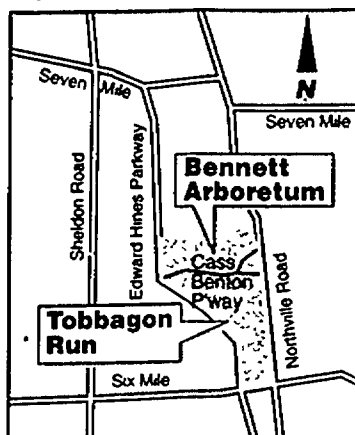

The arboretum is a large collection of trees of more than 300 different species that stands in a grove just south of the Cass Benton Parkway. It was created more than 50 years ago by a county forester to display and preserve a variety of unique species of trees.

Proposition P will set aside funds for the planting of new trees and the care of existing trees in the arboretum. Walking trails would be rebuilt.

- The county will give all of Hines Park a major facelift, adding 1,000 picnic tables and renovating and reopening restroom "comfort stations" all along the parkway that have been closed for years. Other improvements such as new play structures, trash barrels and barbecue grills are also planned.

- The long-closed toboggan run near the Cass Benton Parkway will also be renovated and reopened if Proposition P passes, as will 10 miles of "bridle" walking trails at the northern tip of Hines Park, so named because of their proximity to Northville Downs.

While that seems like an impressive list, McCotter, who opposes Proposition P, says Northville citizens would actually pay more than they'd get back in additions and improvements.

McCotter said that a total of 60 percent of the money raised by Proposition P will go only to pay overhead costs, not to fund actual park improvements for county residents. Of the remaining 40 percent, half the money will be spent in Detroit, not in western Wayne County. He also said the proposal does not properly emphasize maintaining existing parks.

land County and about 150 in Wayne County, she said, about about half those sent out in each venue have been returned so far.

Still time to vote absentee

If you want to vote on Aug. 6 but can't make it to the polls, plan on getting an absentee ballot so you can take part in the democratic process.

Tuesday, Aug. 6, is the day voters across Michigan will cast ballots for Democratic and Republican nominees for political offices at the local, county and state level and for the U.S. Congress.

The winners in each party will go on to face each other in the general election set for Nov. 5.

The polls will be open on Aug. 6 from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. If you can't make it, however, you can still vote via absentee ballot. There are several ways to do it:

- You can phone in a request for an absentee ballot to be mailed to you and then mail it back in or drop it off at either township or city hall. Township hall's phone number is 348-5800; City hall's number is 349-1300.

- You can pick up a ballot in person from either township or city hall, fill it out on the spot and return it immediately, a process which can take up to a half hour. Township hall is on Six Mile between Winchester and Haggerty roads. City hall is on Main Street.

- If you want to receive and return your ballot by mail, remember you'll first be sent a short application form that must be filled out and returned before a ballot is sent to you. The deadline for requesting an application form is Saturday, Aug. 3.

Election officials suggest you make your request as soon as possible, however, because there's a chance that applications mailed on Aug. 3 won't reach you in time.

- The township and city clerks' offices will be open on Saturday, Aug. 3, for absentee ballots. You can put in your request for a mailed ballot then or you can just fill one out on the spot.

The township office will be open from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m., the city office from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

- You can return your absentee ballot to township or city hall at any time before the polls close at 8 p.m. on Aug. 6.

Wolf count doubles, DNR says

Wolves have doubled their population in Michigan's Upper Peninsula, according to a survey by the Department of Natural Resources.

The counts were made by biologists on snowmobiles or snowshoes and from aerial observations of radio-collared wolves during the January to April census. "This is a minimum count of wolves," said Jim Hammill, district wildlife supervisor.

The 1996 winter survey confirmed 116 wolves in 16 packs. In 1995 there were 80 wolves in 12 packs; the 1994 count was 57 wolves in eight packs.

An additional 22 wolves were counted on Isle Royale, a national park in Lake Superior. There were no wolves in the Lower Peninsula.

Wolves were almost extinct in the 1970s. They are considered an endangered species.

DNR's gray wolf recovery team has drafted a recovery and management plan for Michigan wolves. The plan is available at these locations:

- Wayne County - DNR district office in Livonia, the library network in Wayne, Dearborn's Henry Ford Centennial Library, Detroit Public Library, University of Detroit-Mercy's King Library, Wayne State University's Purdy/Kresge Library, the library network in Wayne.

- Oakland County - Oakland Community College's Orchard Ridge Campus library in Farmington Hills, Oakland University's Kresge Library in Rochester.

- Washtenaw County - Eastern Michigan University library in Ypsilanti, University of Michigan's Hatcher Graduate Library in Ann Arbor, U-M law library.

Voters face many choices on ballots

includes Oakland County Northville, decided to retire. A special election to fill his vacant seat was then held and the winner was 38th District Rep. Bill Bullard, leading to this election for a seven-week term.

Voters will also cast ballots for Oakland County and Wayne County offices such as prosecutor and sheriff and select delegates to party conventions. Unlike other offices on the primary ballot delegates will be elected on Aug. 6.

Wayne County voters will also say yes or no to Proposition P, a 0.25 mill tax increase intended to fund county park improvements.

Turnout may be light if absentee ballot returns are any indication. Northville Township as of Monday had sent out nearly 1,500 ballots and received back a little more than 500. Hillebrand called that figure about average.

Absentee balloting in Northville city is "a little on the low side," according to Dudick. About 200 ballots have been sent out in Oak-

Splish splash

The name of the event - Kids' Day - says it all. Northville Swim Club members got out of the way and turned the place over to the youngsters July 26, and the fun seekers took full advantage. Far right, head life guard Matt Basse goes sky high, jumping off the 3-meter board to try to kick up a little spray the bystanders might feel. Right, the grand finale of the day saw the guards plunge into the pool and cause a splash big enough to soak the kids at poolside. The children also enjoyed water balloon tosses, relays, hot dogs and a skit put on by the guards.

Summer influx raises state jobless rate

Unemployment rates in all but one of Michigan's 10 major labor markets climbed in June as teenage summer jobseekers began entering the job market, according to seasonally unadjusted estimates prepared by the Michigan Employment Security Commission (MESC).

"The number of workers entering the job market in search of summer employment simply outpaced the number of available jobs, causing unemployment rates to increase in all major areas, except for the Upper Peninsula," MESC director F. Robert Edwards reported today.

The Flint area had the largest increase as its rate rose a full percentage point to 6.4 percent in June from 5.4 percent in May. The Grand Rapids, Lansing, Benton Harbor and Jackson areas also had significant increases, as their June jobless rates all grew by more than half a percentage point.

The Detroit, Kalamazoo/Battle Creek, Saginaw/Bay/Midland and Ann Arbor areas had jobless rate increases either at or below half a percentage point.

The Upper Peninsula was the only area where unemployment dropped in June.

Unemployment in the 15-county region dropped slightly, falling to 7.4 percent from 7.6 percent in May. Despite the increase the U.P. had the highest jobless rate for the month, while the Ann Arbor area had the lowest rate at 2.8 percent.

"Although most areas had increases in their jobless rates last month, they also had higher employment levels," Edwards noted. "But the job gains could not match the work force increases caused by young people entering the summer job market."

Among the industries reporting employment gains around the state in June were construction, retail trade, real estate and business services.

Ruling could prove costly to special assessment localities

By TIM RICHARD
Staff Writer

A little-noticed attorney general's ruling could cost Michigan property owners more for local improvements. At least one suburban lawmaker calls it "an outrage."

Attorney General Frank Kelley ruled that special assessments aren't taxes. Therefore, despite Proposal A of 1994, special assessments may be collected on the "state equalized value" of property rather than the lower "taxable value."

Upshot: Townships, in particular, may be encouraged to finance public improvements by special assessments rather than from the general fund.

For example, a house with a $104,000 market value has a state equalized value (SEV) of 50 percent or $52,000. But if local real estate prices are rising faster than the consumer price index of less than 3 percent, the taxable value may be capped at just $50,000.

The owner pays county, local, school and community college taxes on the basis of taxable value, or $50,000. But special assessments - often used for streets, sidewalks, water and sewer construction - would be paid on the SEV, or $52,000.

Kelley based his ruling on a 1958 state Supreme Court decision in the case brought by St. Joseph Township against the state. "The millage-based special assessment levied against the taxable value of property would not bear a reasonable relationship to the benefit received," Kelley said (italics added).

In that case, the suburban township levied a two-mill special assessment for fire protection.

"The law is settled that special assessments are not taxes," said Kelley, quoting from 19th Century Chief Justice Thomas Cooley.

An assessment is paid for "the cost of public improvements in its immediate vicinity" and is levied against specific parcels; a tax pays for general benefits and is assessed against an entire local unit.

Kelley also cited his own 1979 ruling that tax limitations in the Headlee amendment to the Michigan Constitution don't apply to special assessments.

Rep. David Jaye, R-Macomb County, criticized Democrat Kelley's ruling, saying, "If it looks like a duck and quacks like a duck, it's a duck. If it is collected like a tax and paid like a tax, it's a tax."

"Frank Kelley has betrayed Michigan taxpayers who voted for a higher sales tax (in Proposal A of 1994) in exchange for the promise that their property taxes would be capped at the inflation rate or 5 percent, whichever is less."

Jaye added that "tax bureaucrats have been trying to persuade local townships to gouge their homeowners by applying the special assessment property taxes at the higher, uncapped level (SEV)."

Jaye said the House passed his bill to require that special assessments be collected on the lower taxable value, but the Senate has yet to act on it. "I ask all township officials to voluntarily convert their special assessments to general property taxes, by local election if necessary, to save their homeowners ..."

Burger institute certifies local restaurant manager

Stacey L. Saladzinski, manager at the McDonald's restaurant located on Six Mile and Haggerty in Northville Township, has been awarded a bachelor of hamburgerology degree from McDonald's Hamburger University (H.U.) for graduating from the University's advanced operations course. All McDonald's restaurant managers, franchisees, mid-management and company executives are required to complete this course.

"The importance of Stacey's achievement and training cannot be overstated," said Hal Theis, dean of H.U. "Like all other McDonald's restaurant managers, Stacey is the chief operations officer of a successful local business."

McDonald's managers are trained in every aspect of general business management including customer service, personnel practices, quality assurance, equipment fundamentals, accounting and marketing. Coursework also includes training in effective communications with personnel, suppliers and customers.

"Developing interpersonal and human relations skills is a key part of our curriculum," Theis said. "These skills help our employees meet the challenges of dealing with a diverse workforce. The curriculum also prepares employees to address questions from our customers on a full range of issues."

To attend H.U., students must first complete McDonald's management development program which consists of classroom instruction and more than two years of restaurant training. This program and the advanced operations course are approved for 18 hours of college credit by the American Council on Education and can be applied toward an associate or baccalaureate college degree.

McDonald's H.U. was founded in 1961 to ensure consistency in food quality, customer service and restaurant operations throughout the growing McDonald's system. It has been cited by several business publications as a model corporate training facility. More than 50,000 students will have graduated from H.U.

"As our founder Ray Kroc used to say, 'We take the hamburger business more seriously than anyone else,'" explained Theis.

"H.U. is a reflection of that commitment."

About 80 percent of McDonald's restaurant businesses are locally owned and operated by independent entrepreneurs.

At the same time there's also no denying that the Northville School District has flourished under his tenure. It is considered one of southeast Michigan's elite public school districts. Each year the district posts some of the best Michigan Educational Assessment Program test scores.

It was recently ranked second in the metro Detroit area, and among the top 10 statewide, in lowest dropout percentage. Northville teachers and students continue to receive numerous state and national awards, and district graduates also receive hundreds of thousands of dollars in scholarships and are admitted to some of the finest universities in the country.

All of this, according to Nield, indicates that Rezmierski and other administrators have a huge impact on education in Northville and are worth every penny they are paid.

"People in this community need to look at it from the standpoint that (Rezmierski) is like the chief executive officer of a $30-million corporation," she explained. "Our product is educating kids, and I believe that we provide that product quite well, from the superintendent down to the classroom teacher."

School board Treasurer Tom Gudritz agreed.

"I wouldn't have supported the contract or salary if I didn't think he deserved it," he said. "I think that if you look at the size of the district, with the number of employees that work here, the amount of revenues, and the responsibilities of the superintendent, and compared them to the standards of industry, you'd find that his salary is right in line.

"I also think you need to factor in the amount of time (Rezmierski) works. He puts in a tremendous amount of time for the district."

Nield was one of the members of the school board personnel subcommittee who examined Rezmierski's recent evaluation and employment and salary contract. She explained that the committee, and then the school board, had to take a lot into consideration when setting Rezmierski's salary.

"I think the community needs to look at the contract the way the board did, and one of the issues we focused on was looking at his salary in terms of seniority," Nield said.

(Rezmierski is in the top four out of the 34 super-

Here's a comparison of the salaries of other local superintendents:

Northville, Dr. Leonard Rezmierski	$127,211	4,600	$944 million
Novi, Dr. Emmett Lippe	$116,000	5,000	$1 billion
Plymouth-Canton, Dr. Charles Little	$115,500	15,061	$2.5 billion tion of 15,000 and a tax base of $2.5 billion, will pay its superintendent $115,500. Novi, which has a student population comparable to Northville's — about 5,000 students — and a tax base of $1 billion, will pay its superintendent $116,000 this year.

Northville's current student population is about 4,600 and the community's tax base — the total value of its revenue-producing real estate — is $944 million.

Nield said that student population or tax base shouldn't be the only factors considered in deciding the terms of Rezmierski's contract.

"There are other factors to consider, such as (Rezmierski's) doctorate degree, his experience, and the knowledge he brings to the job," she said. "All of those things are important and (Rezmierski) performs all of his duties and responsibilities in a professional and exemplary manner."

"The problem is that most people don't see all that he does for this district, our students and teachers, everyday," Nield added.

"He works 70 to 80 hours a week and he never complains."

Nield concluded that she doesn't understand all of the criticism regarding Rezmierski's salary or his contract.

"I really can't figure that one out," Nield said. "I think that most people in our community don't really know the job description or responsibilities of the superintendent. They don't actually see all of the hours (Rezmierski) and other administrators put in, and perhaps that's where the criticism stems from."

"Like anything else, it's easy to criticize, and it's hard to praise," Nield concluded. "If somebody has a problem with what our school district is doing that's fine, but at the same time they need to also offer a solution."

Benefits package includes car, expense cash, annuity

Of the $127,211 that Northville School Superintendent Leonard Rezmierski will receive as salary this year, more than $20,000 is considered fringe benefits.

From a leased automobile to payment of professional dues, the superintendent's fringe benefit package makes up 16 percent of his overall salary, and represents the highest package of any administrator in the district.

For fiscal year 1996-97 Rezmierski's benefit package includes:

- The district will pay 10 percent of the base salary ($106,510) towards a tax sheltered annuity. Rezmierski has the option to take the $10,651 as taxable income.

- Term life insurance in the amount equal to two times the superintendent's annual salary ($212,000), plus accidental death or dismemberment. Upon retirement Rezmierski will be provided with retiree life insurance totaling $50,000 until age 70.

- Term life insurance strictly covering accidental death and dismemberment in the amount of $212,000.

- An automobile and its costs of maintenance, repair and insurance. Rezmierski drives a 1995 Ford Explorer, which was leased for 24 months at $474.16 per month.

- Rezmierski will receive 18 paid sick days, and will be credited with 60 sick days with the understanding that there will be no further accumulation until the 18 days per year would total 60 sick days.

- Rezmierski will receive 22 vacation days

- Personal business days as approved by the president of the board of education.

- Payment of professional dues for the American Association of School Administrators, the Michigan Association of School Administrators, the Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development, The National Organization on Legal Problems in Education, and the Council for Exceptional Children.

- An annual paid physical examination.

that students and teachers continue to achieve," Nield said. "These people put in 70 or 80 hours each week, they are always on call, and they never complain."

Both Bolitho and McMaster received contract extensions through the 1997-98 school year. Danley, Street, and Sornson also received contract extensions, according to Rezmierski, who said in his report to the school board that the administrators turned in exemplary performances last year.

"These administrators' performances were outstanding and they have represented and served the school district with great commitment and pride," Rezmierski said.

"This team is the backbone of the numerous achievements and accomplishments awarded our district this past school year."

Decade of innocence revisited at annual '50s Festival in Novi

& WENDY PIERMAN MITZEL

One hundred eighty nine barrels of beer in the tent. One hundred eighty nine barrels of beer.

That's how Michigan '50s Festival organizers know it was a swell party at the festival last weekend.

"That's 26,460 glasses of beer and that includes spillage," said Bob McCann, President of the festival's Board of Directors.

But even though the amount of brew chugged during the four-day event is down a little from last year, that's not necessarily a bad indication, said McCann.

"That's the interesting thing about beer sales. They've been on the decline which we attribute to people being more responsible and that's good," he explained.

As for the rest of the festival, the food, music and entertainment drew in more crowds than ever, the president said, even though the final attendance numbers aren't tallied.

"We did at least as well as last year if not better and last year was our best ever," McCann said.

Last year attendance was estimated at 100,000 people.

Novi City Manager and '50s Fest director Ed Kriewall said the turnout was lighter than expected on Thursday and Friday nights, possibly because couch potatoes didn't want to stop viewing the Olympics and venture out into the slightly chilly weather.

For Kriewall, the highlights were the car show, the Grand River Cruise and Saturday's concert.

"I think it was probably the smoothest festival we've ever had. It's getting better every year," he said.

The mob really was swarming into the Novi Expo Center for Saturday night. Some beat the $2 parking fee by ditching their cars at Novi Town Center. Others gripped about about paying and about the distance they had to hike to get to festivities. Yet when a lift on a shuttle van was offered, many declined.

A group of merry-makers even set up folding aluminum chairs across from the festival site, to enjoy the music without paying the $10 charge at the Entertainment Tent.

At the tent, it was standing room only when Gary Lewis and The Playboys rock and rolled.

Back in the 1960s, the group

Cora Whitehouse, clad in poodle skirt and bobbie socks, twists again like she probably did last summer.

appeared on Ed Sullivan Show no less than five times and managed to hold their own when the British Invasion swept through the U.S. with hits like "Everybody Loves A Clown" and "Count Me In." The crowd went wild for "This Diamond Ring," but the 1966 "I'm Sure Gonna Miss Her," was the song Lewis said was his last hit before he was drafted.

Lewis was drafted in Novi, too, into battling a blue balloon back and forth with a fast-dancing, rambunctious audience.

"Gary had that place going all night long," said McCann, who explained the band is a hit nationwide, touring on its own and as the back-up for acts like Chuck Berry.

Lewis and Rocky & The Rollers really jammed. Kriewall agreed. And Elvis impersonator Danny Van went over to the beer tent for a few impromptu numbers.

"That really was an exceptional Saturday night. I think that was the best we had. They were really jumping," Kriewall added.

The only unusual incident at the festival, according to McCann, was when the Marvellette's and Rocky & the Rollers were a tad bit late appearing on stage due to a minor fender bender that occurred on their way to the Expo Center. In fact, they were only hundreds of feet away when they ran into the snafu at the Expo Center entrance on Novi Road.

However, they did make it to the stage and the show did go on.

"It raised my anxiety level a little bit when they pulled up in a different car than the one we had sent to go get them," said McCann.

Without even taking a breath, McCann and the other board members are already planning for the Tenth Annual Michigan '50s Festival.

Chapter honors Mason

Mason Robert H. Fitzner was recently honored by his home chapter in Oberlin, Ohio, when he was presented with his 50 year pin from Oberlin Chapter No. 219 R.A.M.

Companion Fitzner, a Plymouth resident, is a Past High Priest of the Oberlin Chapter of Masons and a member of Northville Chapter No. 55 R.A.M. He is also a Past Presiding Officer of Northville Council of Royal and Select Masters and Past Commander of Northville Commandery No. 39 Knights Templar.

Fitzner had previously received his 50 year pin from Oberlin Lodge No. 380 in Oberlin. He is also a member of Tyran Lodge No. 55 in Plymouth.

Accompanying him to Ohio were Herman Wedemeyer, Past Grand High Priest of Michigan; James (Shirley) Hawn, Commander of Northville Commandery; Walter (Sylvia) Hutchins, KYC, District Deputy Instructor, Royal and Select Masters; Arthur (Mary) Belk, Past Commander; Richard (Sue) Suetterlin, Past High Priest.

Adoptions slow on year

Adoptions through private agencies in 1995 increased just 3 percent above the 1994 level, according to the Michigan Federation of Private Child and Family Agencies.

The 65 agencies placed 1,967 children last year. Of those, 79 were adopted through agency-assisted direct consent, now permitted in Michigan under new laws that took effect in 1995.

"It's a little too early to measure any trends based on this first-year data," said Verlie Ruffin, associate director of the federation.

20TH ANNUAL NORTHVILLE FOLK & BLUEGRASS FESTIVAL

Members of the Folk and Bluegrass Festival audience relax on the lawn at Ford Field as they soak up the sun and sounds.

Headliner Ramblin' Jack Elliott does some pickin' and singin' during his act, which was the finale show at the festival.

Acclaimed vocalist Anne Hills lets loose during the show.

It was another afternoon of joyous celebration at Sunday's Northville Folk & Bluegrass Festival, the 20th annual event held to raise funds for Huntington's disease research. Approximately 1,000 people attended the day-long festival, which featured a variety of singers, performers and dancers. The mood was upbeat, as it can only be when happy music making is the order of the day. Organizer Tom Rice pronounced the festival a decided success, saying the music was sweet, the weather great and the ticket receipts plentiful. All after-expense proceeds go to help fund Huntington's research. This year's winner of the drawing for a Taylor acoustic guitar was Mike Bugar, father of a local musician.

WHY ORGANIC GARDENING ISN'T JUST A BUNCH OF MANURE.

Organic gardening is a lot more than natural fertilizer.

And organic gardens do a lot more than make your yard look pretty. They help make the environment healthier. So let's dig in and see how you can help.

The first step to creating an environmentally friendly garden is to compost.

Composting not only helps produce the bacteria, nutrients and mulch plants need, it also reduces the amount of solid waste your home creates.

Another easy way to help the environment in your garden is to change the tools you use. For instance,

instead of using sprinklers, try using soaker hoses. They leak moisture into the soil at slow rates, so water gets absorbed instead of running off. You may also consider using a rake, instead of gas-powered blowers.

Rakes use no fuel and give you some exercise. Next, think about the types of plants

Consider

planting perennials. Perennial beds provide refuge for animals and insects that will eat pests and reduce your need for chemicals. Finally, think about planting a tree in your backyard. Trees

keep harmful carbon dioxide from entering the atmosphere and create lots of energy-saving shade.

Use a rake instead of gas-powered blowers.

So you see, when we say organic gardens are a good idea, it's no bull.

Mill Race Matters

This week the Northville Historical Society offers two events in preparation for this year's Victorian Festival. Both events are aimed at all members of the community.

From 9 a.m. until 1 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 3, Society members and friends have the opportunity to take part in a hat making workshop. Longtime community residents will know that one of the highlights of each year's festival is the annual hat judging contest held at Mill Race Village. Prizes are awarded in a variety of categories.

Materials will be available for purchase and use in the creation of Victorian era hats. A variety of styles can be created.

In addition to the opportunity to create hats, ready made hats will be available for sale. They can be worn as is or enhanced with that special flourish. The hats available for sale have been previously made by Historical Society members. Some of these individuals will be on hand Saturday creating additional works.

Members who have already created their own adornments might wish to attend and assist in making additional hats to sell. It is suggested that those wishing to create their own hats bring hat frames, unique and original decorations, thread, glue guns and any additional items considered helpful.

The second event of the two-day pre-festival gala will feature an afternoon trunk sale. The sale will be held from 1 until 4 p.m. on Sunday, Aug. 4. Members of the community with previously used, outgrown or no longer needed Victorian costumes will have the opportunity to sell or swap the clothing with others in similar situations.

The sale will be held at Cady Inn. In addition to hats the Historical Society has a limited number of items available for sale. Hopefully, many others will avail themselves of this opportunity to alter and enhance their own costuming.

We only have six weeks left before this year's Victorian Festival. So now is the time to look through those garments and make plans for the coming festival.

This week the Northville Historical Society once again thanks Mr. Hoogesteger from Traverse City for his donation of pictures taken in this community during the beginning of this century. Thanks also for the donation of several artifacts from Northville's past.

Plymouth Historical Museum theme for summer and fall is "Collections." An ongoing exhibit features 35 collections from the area including Victorian art glass, Victorian hair jewelry, Native American artifacts, Rose depression glass, and Heisey glass.

The museum located at 155 S. Main St. in Plymouth is open Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday from 1 to 4 p.m. and Sunday from 2 to 5 p.m. Admission is $2 for adults and 50 cents for students. Families can be admitted for $5.

Northville teen killed in tragic auto accident

the site just as the teens in the Blazer were heading in. After having a brief conversation with the teens, the students in the Blazer headed to the back of the property. At about 9:30 p.m., they lost control of their vehicle, slid into a wooded area at the edge of the field, then crashed into a large tree.

Reports from the driver and surviving passengers estimated the vehicle's speed at 40-60 miles per hour when it ran into the tree, according to Michigan State Police Trooper Kellie Fauble, who was at the site shortly after the accident.

Fauble said she did not detect alcohol use by the driver or the passengers. Toxicology results, which would provide definitive answers as to whether the driver was drinking, had not arrived as of Tuesday morning.

Preliminary indications were that Mudge was not wearing a seatbelt, Fauble said. A final determination on that point will be made when the autopsy report is released to officials.

"We were just coming here to see what was going on," said Jesse Horvath, 17, who reported that he was sitting in the middle row of the vehicle.

After the accident, Horvath departed to call for help. The teens who were leaving the site as the Blazer came in had returned. After Horvath made contact with them, they proceeded to a nearby house to call 911.

Thinking that Mudge might still be alive, emergency personnel from the Salem Township Fire Department and Huron Valley Ambulance put in a call for a medical helicopter after arriving at the scene. But further investigation revealed that Mudge had already died of a severe head injury.

A large group of Northville High School students returned to the scene the next day to hold a memorial for Mudge. At 7 p.m., about eight teens stood around the tree the Blazer struck, smoking cigarettes and talking about Mudge.

They arranged a memorial at the base of the tree, consisting mostly of flowers, handwritten notes and mementos.

"At first it was just shock. I don't think anybody can believe it," said Jeff Courtney, who will be a junior at Northville High School this fall.

But tonight, a collection of 20 cars and perhaps twice as many students had congregated at the site. Many brought candles to place at the memorial. Some students stood in the field, talking quietly in small groups. Others sat around the tree in near silence, some sobbing quietly.

Mark Hamilton, who owns the farmland on which the accident occurred, said he has repeatedly told students to stay off of the Rotary program searches for host family for student

The Northville Rotary Youth Exchange Program is looking for families who will be interested in hosting a Japanese high school student.

The student, Yuka Omi, will arrive in August and attend Northville High School through June 1997, spending 3-4 months with each of her host families. Yuka plays the piano and guitar, and especially likes jazz. She is known for her cheerfulness and sociability.

Her interests include mathematics, chemistry, drawing illustrations and movies.

She has studied English for 10 years.

Host families are asked to provide meals and lodging along with love and understanding. Personal expenses such as clothing, entertainment, etc., are the responsibility of the student. The student is covered by a comprehensive health insurance plan she purchased herself.

For information contact Dick Milder, Northville Rotary Youth Exchange chairperson at (810) 348-3590 or (810) 478-7330.

picked up beer bottles numbering in the hundreds that were left behind from the bonfire.

The driver of the vehicle, whose name is not published because he is under 18, could face charges. The Michigan State Police intended to make a recommendation on whether to press charges on the driver by Wednesday, Fauble said.

The funeral for Mudge was held Monday.

Concerns about complex come out at public hearing

we going to be leaving behind?"

Crowe scoffed at suggestions that the theater would provide family entertainment. The city should not allow one of the few remaining parcels of undeveloped land to be used to offer "Hollywood's morals and values," she said.

"I would certainly rather see this project than a Wal-Mart," said another resident, David Robert Shepard, who added the opinion that theater opponents are motivated by fear.

"I see a lot of fear here. I hear it."

The hearing before the Livonia City Council, interrupted by a brief council study meeting, was punctuated by boos, cheers and flaring tempers on both sides of the council dais.

"We can clear this and we can end this right now," said Council President Joe Laura after announcing the hearing would be adjourned for the study session.

The adjournment prompted grumbling and catcalls from people against the theater plan, as theater developers had just finished their presentation and Laura refused to let opposition leader Harold Dunne speak.

Promising a short study session, Laura apologized for what he said was poor scheduling on his part.

The hearing resumed at 8:45 p.m. It had begun at 7 p.m. with remarks from Mayor Jack Kirksey, who is against the theater proposal and said he will veto any council approval. But he also expects his veto would be overridden.

"Unless there's a very abrupt change ... my veto will be symbolic," Kirksey said. "In this particular instance I think this is not good for Livonia. I really don't."

Livonia's city government is based on a strong-mayor system.

The mayor is not a voting member of the city council but acts as the head of the executive branch and has veto authority.

Kirksey said his main objection is the number of screens included in the proposal.

The AMC entertainment multiplex would have 4,056 seats in 20 auditoriums ranging in size from 129 seats to nearly 500. It would be part of the Pentagon Centre Entertainment Campus, just over 35 acres on Haggerty north of Seven Mile, for which two restaurants are also planned. The price tag of the initial project is estimated at $25 million to $30 million.

A third restaurant, a retail site and even a hotel could be built in the future, developers say.

The project requires zoning waivers from the city. The Livonia Planning Commission recommended denial of a waiver for the theater but approval of waivers for the restaurants.

Little new ground was broken at the hearing. Developer Gary Jonna said the Pentagon Centre would be pedestrian-friendly, integrated with the local landscape and a safe, unique place for dining and moviegoing.

Nestor Sanchez, director of design and development for AMC Entertainment's northeast division, said his company has a solid security plan and commitments to stay in its other Livonia locations, Laurel Park Place and Wonderland Mall.

"This is something that I think the community should support and get behind," said Robert Stone, who said he represented a labor-management group.

Opponents were not swayed by those arguments. They expressed concerns that the theater would bring increased crime, traffic gridlock and water runoff problems. They also worried about the effect it would have on other theaters.

Our Opinion

We endorse ... For township board offices

There's good news for Northville Township residents. Six candidates are running for the three officer positions on the township board of trustees (two each for supervisor, clerk and treasurer), and they're all qualified, capable people. With the present group of able administrators heading up the key departments of government, the township should be in good shape regardless of who prevails at the polls on Tuesday.

Having said that, we do have some observations and, of course, recommendations about the three races.

The campaign for supervisor pits Ford Motor Co. attorney Bob Grant against Assistant Wayne County Prosecutor Karen Woodside.

Grant is a dynamic personality with a direct, forceful personal style. Woodside is the current chairperson of the township planning commission with an impressive record of community involvement.

Though both possess leadership characteristics, we believe BOB GRANT represents the best choice for the top position on the board of trustees. Grant's command of issues and his ability to identify fundamentals are truly remarkable. His exceptional work ethic and ability to absorb information will help make up for his lack of previous governmental experience. Moreover, he is a scrappy fighter and should do well in the crucial negotiations with Wayne County officials over development of the parcel of property on the south side of the township.

Woodside obviously cares about the community but we have some concerns about her candidacy. First of all, her position as an employee of Wayne County could compromise her effectiveness in handling issues pertaining to the county land development. Woodside denies all conflict of interest, but our concern is reinforced by township attorney Jim Tamm's opinion that Woodside's position in the prosecutor's offices clashes with her role on the planning commission. If there is no legal conflict, we believe there could be a practical conflict in her fulfillment of the two duties.

We were also bothered by the fact that she called Tamm's opinion politically motivated but refused to explain herself further.

Bob Grant

Marv Gans

The clerk's race sees incumbent Sue Hillebrand facing off against planning commission member Chris Schultz. We have taken exception to some of Hillebrand's actions in the past, but it's clear she is working hard to keep current on the administrative responsibilities of her position.

Schultz has shown good judgment on issues that have come before the planning commission, but has himself said that Hillebrand is competent in her current role.

We, therefore, endorse SUE HILLEBRAND for township clerk.

The treasurer's race is a close call, indeed, with incumbent trustee Gini Britton facing a challenge from former treasurer and township manager Dick Henningsen.

Britton, too, has prompted criticism from us on the editorial page but, overall, we believe her to be a committed and capable public servant. She has a good grasp of issues currently before the township board and her background in taxation and auditing should prove an asset as treasurer.

Henningsen, too, has a solid background with numbers, having served as an auditor and financial administrator for many years with G.M.

Henningsen himself admits, though, that on the key questions of low millage and fiscal fund balance the township is on the right path, and Britton deserves some of the credit for that situation.

Our endorsement, therefore, goes to GINI BRITTON for treasurer.

Gini Britton

For Michigan House seats

Local voters will cast ballots in two elections for the Michigan House of Representatives. Voters living in Northville Township and Wayne County Northville will choose between incumbent Gerry Law and former lawmaker Jerry Vorva in balloting for the 20th District House seat.

Residents of Oakland County Northville will vote in the primary for the 38th District House. Republicans Nancy Cassis, Chris Bachelder and Craig DeRoche are vying for their party's nomination, with the winner facing Gary Johnson of Milford in the general election. Johnson is running unopposed as a Democrat.

Law and Vorva are familiar faces. Law held the 20th District seat during the 1980s before resigning to accept an appointment as Plymouth Township Supervisor.

Vorva held the same seat in 1993-94, but was defeated by Law that same year. This race, then, is a rematch.

We expressed reservations about Law last time, noting that his sudden resignation in 1991 suggested that he might not have taken his elected responsibilities very seriously.

We now believe, however, that Law has come into his own as a policy maker. These last two years have probably constituted Law's most productive period in public life. He introduced almost 60 bills, many of the them containing key reforms of the state's auto insurance and health care codes.

Our doubts about his commitment now assuaged, we recommend a vote for GERRY LAW for 20th District state representative.

Gerry Law

Nancy Cassis

In the race for the GOP nomination in the 38th state House district, voters will get to cast ballots for their favorite candidate twice, due to Bill Bullard's promotion to the state Senate by the voters in a recent special election.

The field is extraordinarily strong. Bachelder is a senior manager in the consulting division of Deloitte & Touche and his command of the economic issues facing the state is impressive.

DeRoche is a self employed insurance agent in Farmington Hills. He's been quite active in Republican party politics, and he clearly knows how the system works.

But our endorsement will go to NANCY CASSIS. She's paid her dues, as it were, and we believe she is ready for state office.

Cassis has been active in local politics for a long time. She is in her third term on the Novi City Council and she has a good familiarity with the local issues. Others in the race may be strong on the state issues, but Cassis has the best command of local needs.

Trouble's brewing this week

Lee Snider

Why?

I'll do my best to make a long story short.

In the last few days we've received several letters responding to the candidate endorsements that appeared in the July 25 edition of the paper. A glance at the facing page, however, will tell you that none of them were cleared for publication.

Many of the rejected letters came from supporters of Karen Baja, whom we couldn't see our way to endorse for township trustee.

You'll also notice, though, that letters vouching for Gini Britton appear in this week's letters to the editor section. Britton's running for township treasurer, and we did endorse her, elsewhere on this page.

I hold out little hope that our resident detractors will understand the reason behind these moves, but for those willing to keep an open mind I venture the following explanation.

One of our company's policies is to decline to publish personal endorsements of candidates at election time. Though it hasn't always been adhered to in the past, the policy's been on the books since 1987 and our infinitely wise front-office management is running a tighter ship than it used to. Said letters no longer make the cut.

The letters in response to last week's editorial fall under this policy. In the process of rebutting our opinions about the candidates, those who wrote saw fit to trumpet the many positive qualities of their favorites. Their letters, in essence, constituted personal endorsements, and hence, were withheld from publication.

This week's letters in support of Britton, however, are a bird of a different feather, coming as they did in response to another letter, penned by a developer and former mayor of Plymouth, that appeared in the paper July 25. Last Thursday's letter was not directly related to the campaign, and discussed Britton's suitability for reappointment to the Zoning Board of Appeals. The reappointment took place July 11.

Last week's letter tearing into Britton was deemed publishable, so this week's tomes rallying to her defense were given the go-ahead too.

Buy it? You should. It's the truth.

I've long since learned that there's little point trying to make the claim that our editorial positions are nothing more than opinions on issue-oriented matters. The people whose actions we critique inevitably take our editorials personally and attribute all manner of ulterior motivation to us.

But at the risk of trying to sell the unsaleable, let me state again that the opinions we express on these pages, including our endorsements, are based on calculated judgments with no thought of our personal interactions with the people in question.

Truth be known, most public officials I deal with are very civil, and, in fact, are a might bit more respectful than the average reader who calls to give me what for.

There it is, the unvarnished truth, the anatomy of a decision. Take it for what it's worth.

Never a good reason not to vote

We narrowly averted tragedy last week, friends and neighbors: The Record nearly lost its managing editor.

The near miss came during our weekly staff meeting when said managing editor, one Michael Malott, asked this reporter what weighty topic he'd chosen for this column space.

"It's the last issue before the (Aug. 6) primary," I replied. "What else? I'm going to do what Randy always does before an election: beg people to vote. It's tradition."

"Why?" Mike then asked, "should everyone feel like they have to vote?"

Faced with such blasphemy, my normally long fuse was suddenly cut short. I suppressed the urge to throttle the boss, though, because our company frowns on that sort of thing.

"You have to participate in the process, Mike," I said evenly. "That's what representative government is all about."

"If I don't see any candidates who are worth my vote, I have a right to stay home," he replied.

"Fine, then don't complain when you see something you don't like going on in your government," I shot back.

"Nope - I have a right to freedom of speech, too," Mike rejoined, grinning.

Well, so much for the heretics: on with the groveling! Folks, please, please, please, please, please vote. Pretty please with sugar on top.

Do you know the biggest problem facing our local, county, state and federal governments today? Apathy. Most people just flat don't care enough about what happens to our taxes, regulations and laws to get involved. The result is the fine pickle we're in today.

I understand that we all have a million different things to juggle every single day. I am not asking you to drop your life and camp out in front of the TV to watch C-SPAN all night and hang out at township and city hall all day. For normal people that's just not realistic, which is why you mostly see reporters, political junkies and other assorted deviants doing it.

However, it is within every person's grasp to set aside a modicum of time to participate in the process of our government. At the very least you can make the effort to cast an intelligent, informed vote a couple of times a year.

This is your government, our government. True, many of us feel disconnected from it but that's just a habit. Vince Lombardi used to say that winning and losing are each habits. If you make the effort to break a bad one and nurture a good one the first will die and the second will live.

You may not think you can change anything. The point you're missing, however, is that you do by inaction. I'll tell you something else, too: whether you believe that you can or you cannot do something, you're right.

Get involved. Do it right now. If you haven't planned to vote on Aug. 6, call city hall (349-1300) or township hall (348-5800) and ask how you can. See you at the polls.

Discharge of library director ill-timed

The new Northville Library looks like it will be a wonderful addition to our town. It is too bad, however, that Pat Orr, former library director, will not be part of the dedication ceremony.

Pat has done so much in getting this library built, it is really a shame that the board could not have waited until after the dedication ceremony to dismiss her. This would have recognized her past good works, and allowed her a more dignified exit.

We wish Pat the best and hope she knows that many of us Northville Library patrons will think of her when we visit the new library.

Bad behavior never witnessed

To the Editor:

I am responding to a letter written by a former Plymouth mayor in the July 25 issue of The Northville Record concerning Gini Britton. He stated her behavior and performance was questionable while she was on the ZBA and felt she was not suited for the position.

As a citizen who has attended approximately 65 percent of the township board meetings and a few ZBA meetings, I have never witnessed any of the negative behavior that he alludes to in his letter.

Of all the seven members of the township board of trustees, Gini Britton is the most well-prepared trustee. She also, while serving on the board of appeals before her removal by Mrs. Baja in 1993, had perfect attendance. She has always been polite and proper in her conduct.

Regarding the reappointment of Gini Britton while Mrs. Baja was on vacation, the law (MCL 125.288) states: The Board of Trustees appoints to the Zoning Board of Appeals. His argument was that this was done without Mrs. Baja's presence so the writer doesn't know what the real, true law is.

Donald A. Thomson, Member
Northville Township Ethics Committee

Saddened by untrue letter

To the Editor:

I am deeply saddened that Mr. Jabara, a former city of Plymouth elected official and currently a developer with property in our community, would allow his name to be placed on such an untruthful piece of negative campaign propaganda that was obviously put forward by my political opponents.

Gini Britton, Trustee
Northville Township

Good reason for appointment

To the Editor:

I say that if a developer does not want a person appointed to the zoning board or planning commission, that is reason enough to appoint that person.

Carol G. Sassaman

Letter writers prove the point

To the Editor:

In last week's letters, Ms. Polletta and Mr. Vernacchia validated my claim against the Northville School News. The fact remains, the law says that the Northville Public Schools (NPS) cannot spend public funds to influence the electorate in favor of their bond and enhancement millage proposals. They may spend public funds to objectively inform the people on issues related to its function as a public body.

Through the School News, the NPS is attempting to circumvent the law by selling its $60 million tax increase recommendations under the guise of committee reports. However, it may only legally do so if the articles published are objective.

According to Ms. Polletta, "No one who owns a home in this community can be totally objective on the proposed bond issue." Since most of the committee members are from the community, their reports and recommendations lack the requisite objectivity for lawful publication in the School News.

Mr. Vernacchia sees it differently. In my earlier letter, I stated that while a School News article listed the expected benefits of the recommended tax increase, it failed to list the potential drawbacks, or to even acknowledge that drawbacks exist.

According to Mr. Vernacchia, the full technology report does deal with drawbacks. Since the School News knew both the benefits and drawbacks but chose to publish only the benefits, the publication lacks objectivity. Since the publication is not objective, it is not legal.

Thank you Ms. Polletta and Mr. Vernacchia.

Safety Town provides lessons

To the Editor:

Safety Town is over for another year. And, as a parent volunteer, I witnessed what a fantastic program it is and wanted to make the community aware of it.

The reason Safety Town is such a great program is due primarily to Maria Muzzin, teacher and Northville Parks and Recreation employee. She has taken the national Safety Town program and has made it the unique program it is in Northville.

Approximately 175 fall kindergartners participated in the two-week, 10-day program.

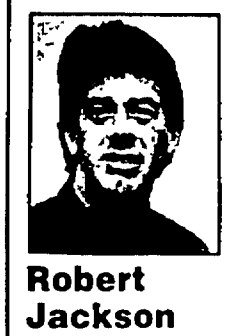

The children learn all about these kinds of safety: playground, pedestrian, bicycle, water, electrical, fire, school bus, gun, stranger, train, and poison. They go on field trips to local police and fire departments. And, each day there was a speaker.

So, many thanks to Maria Muzzin and her staff, and also to Officer Matt Mayes, Northville Township police, who presented the graduation diplomas. Keep up the good work.

Tactics don't say much for candidate

I've got a message for 13th District U.S. House of Representative challenger Joe Fitzsimmons - lay off the negative stuff.

Robert Jackson

If the self-made Ann Arbor millionaire is going to have a chance at knocking off Democratic Incumbent Lynn Rivers in November's general election, he'd be wise to stick to the issues and stay away from the mud-slinging he has employed this past month.

Even local Republicans have begun whispering concerns about Fitzsimmons' recent antics. First he charged Rivers with accepting illegal campaign contributions from the multi-candidate Political Action Committee Our Choice II. Just as quickly as the charges came out the Federal Elections Commission reported that Rivers had not done anything illegal in taking contributions from the committee.

This week the Fitzsimmons camp took the ludicrous allegations one step further, charging Our Choice II staffers with disseminating a letter that outlined ways to circumvent federal election campaign laws in raising funds for Rivers. They even distributed copies of the letter hoping the local media would brand Rivers, who is seeking her second term, guilty of wrongdoing.

There's only one problem. The letter in question had two pages, and conveniently the Fitzsimmons camp, along with the National Republican Congressional Committee, failed to send along the second page of the letter. It turns out that the second page exonerates Choice II and Rivers, and once again the FEC publicly stated that nothing illegal had taken place.

When I asked the Fitzsimmons campaign about the missing second page I was told that they had only received one page of the letter. Which means that the NRCC must have knowingly attempted to mislead the FEC and the public by filing a complaint that wasn't based on all the facts.

Come on, Joe, we in Northville are not stupid. We like to use the adage that if it looks like a duck, walks like a duck, and sounds like a duck, it is a duck. In this case Joe Fitzsimmons is definitely a duck, and his attempts to mislead the electorate are contrary to his message that he is the candidate that 13th District voters, which includes Northville Township and the Wayne County portion of Northville city, will be able to identify with.

Before that happens Joe needs to learn to tell the truth, something that, so far, has not been too evident.

And some local Republicans have already told me, in their concerned remarks, that if Joe Fitzsimmons wants their support, he needs to focus on issues and not mud. Because if he continues to fight the negative fight Republicans in Northville and Western Wayne County will leave him hanging in the wind to twist.

GOP chair gives own meanings to words

"When I use a word," Humpty Dumpty said in a rather scornful tone, "it means just what I choose it to mean."

Tim Richard

That line from Alice in Wonderland occurred to me during the "Spotlight on News" interview with Betsy DeVos that you saw July 14 on Channel 7.

DeVos, of course, is Republican state chair as well as national committee woman. She also is involved in the CEO Michigan Foundation.

by birth she is a daughter of the founders of the Edgar Prince Foundation; by marriage she is related to the founder of the Rich DeVos Foundation.

One thread running through these foundations is sectarian schools. A second thread is the Mackinac Center, whose idea of Michigan's finest schools is church-related and whose own grants show strong sectarian sentiment.

Last May Betsy and husband Dick solicited members of the Michigan Legislature, among others, for donations to CEO Michigan. That foundation's purpose: "To provide privately-funded scholarship support for elementary school children of low-income families so they may attend schools of their choice ... whether cross-district public, private, parochial or special needs ... and secure a better education."

Translation: When the DeVoses say "good education," they mean nonpublic, church-related schools.

So what? Rep. Maxine Berman, D-Southfield, was suspicious and warned colleagues:

"While the idea may be simple enough on the surface, not to mention gosh-darn charitable, kind and loving, you should be aware that this was exactly the same tactic taken in Wisconsin which ultimately led the Wisconsin legislature to enact a voucher system for use in any school, including private and parochial. In Wisconsin, some of the churches also participated in the scholarship program. After a while, Wisconsin legislators apparently felt it was such a good idea that they jumped in with their own system."

"Voucher" means giving tax money to churches by writing a government check that a parent may use at a parochial or private school. Michigan's Constitution flatly prohibits vouchers and parochial aid.

"What I've supported for a long time is more choice and more options for families to choose where their children are educated," DeVos said.

How about that? It's not parochial aid and vouchers but "choice" and "families." It's not public money but "our" money. And I figured when state Treasurer Doug Roberts got his hands on it, it was public money.

When Betsy DeVos uses a word, it means just what she chooses it to mean, even when she borrows terms like "competition" and "choice" from free-market economics.

Humpty-Dumpty calls it choice for families. It's really government money for favored religions.

Nine for nine at annual Novi nostalgia fest

Another great party at the Michigan '50s Festival. What is that now, nine in a row?

Michael Malott

Just a few notes to pass along in the wake of the festival:

Congratulations are in order for JANE THOMAS, regional sales director for Grand Traverse Resorts, who was chosen as the new Festival Manager for next year.

The announcement was made at the mayor's reception Wednesday evening. Anyone has been around the Novi Chamber of Commerce is familiar with Thomas, since she is active in that group and has been since her days in public relations for the Novi Hilton.

She worked side by side with outgoing festival manager RHONDA GAGE this year. When I saw her Saturday night, during the Entertainment Tent show, and figured that she would probably be dragging by that time. Running a festival the size of the Michigan '50s Festival can be a pretty big job. And four days into it, people can be running on empty by then. But Jane was still full of energy and ready to go. She said she was pleased with the way the festival had gone, with the weather, and was generally excited about it. With stamina like that, I know she'll do a good job as festival manager. Again, congrats.

LOU MARTIN, what time are we supposed to show up at city hall for the donut queue on Friday? Lou, the city's Director of Public Information, reminded me of the practice among city workers of making anyone who gets their picture in The Novi News buy the donuts for the office. I suggested our newspaper would start a city employee of the week column in the paper and then show up in the Civic Center on Friday morning to munch free donuts. We'd bring the camera and take pictures for the next week's featured employee, even if we have to chase them back to their cubicles Gerald Rivera-style. Lou said it would still count, even if they try to hide their faces behind a custard stick.

To the two UNIDENTIFIED NOVI OFFICERS who threw me and my group out of the beer ... er, Entertainment Tent early Sunday morning, yes, you were polite about it ... all four of you.

Michael Malott is the Managing Editor of The Novi News and The Northville Record.

Longtime sheriff finds going not so easy this time

Oakland County Sheriff John Nichols, a 14-year Novi resident, is facing a tough challenge from four other republicans vying for his job and a chance to get on the Nov. 5 general election ballot.

Nichols, 77, will face challengers Gerard Carlin, 41, William Goodfellow, 90, Paul Molin, 53, and Michael Odette, 43 in the Aug. 6 primary election on Tuesday.

The winner will go onto face the winner of the democratic primary, either Scott Good, 33, or Matt Hogan, 46, on Nov. 5.

The sheriff receives an yearly salary of $90,645, oversees nearly 825 employees and an annual budget of $64 million and has responsibility for maintaining the Oakland County Jail.

It's a heated race for the office that pits the current sheriff against one of the men targeted in an investigation of his department, former deputy Carlin in command of the Rochester Hills sheriff's substation.

Incumbent John Nichols is seeking his fourth consecutive term after 12 years as sheriff and a career that includes years as a command officer in Detroit and a stint as police chief in Farmington Hills.

Even after an in-depth probe by the Oakland County Prosecutor in 1993 into corruption allegations in sheriff's department and the result, 71 charges against 11 people which were dismissed in court, Nichols maintains it was the result of good management.

"We could have looked the other way, but we didn't. We cleaned up our own mess. We brought it to a screeching halt," said Nichols.

One of the men charged with 33 of the 71 felony and misdemeanor charges is now his opponent. Oakland Township resident, Gerard Carlin, who has been targeted to run in the 1996 sheriff's election by the Republican party for years, is now attempting to find redemption, even though the charges against him were dismissed and some are currently under appeal.

Incumbent John Nichols is seeking his fourth consecutive term after 12 years as sheriff and a career that includes years as a command officer in Detroit and a stint as police chief in Farmington Hills.

"Before this happened, I never would have believed that an innocent person can be charged," he said.

Carlin, who was suspended from his position, said he wants to restore the K-9 unit and helicopter patrol and instead of building a new jail would consider housing non-violent inmates in a refurbished hotel along Eight Mile Road.

Nichols, on the other hand, said budget issues are more important than ever and said Oakland County will need a new jail in the near future, despite efforts to house criminals in other Michigan county jails.

The two candidates not only face each other but three other Republican men.

William Goodfellow, a 90-year-old Pontiac resident, is a retired security officer and police dispatcher. Although he is not actively campaigning because his wife doesn't like the idea of his running, he said he believes he could still win. "I have a lot of friends and you might be surprised at how many votes I get," Goodfellow said.

Michael Odette, 43, is a Clarkston resident and attorney who says he's the "only candidate with experience who hasn't been tarnished." Odette spent more than a decade as a sheriff's deputy before becoming a lawyer.

Odette said both Nichols' and Carlin's records indicate their lack of good management skills and said the department is in critical need of female leadership, something Odette would try to fill by pledging to appoint a qualified woman as under sheriff. In addition he wants to find alternatives to building more jail cells.

Farmington Hills resident Paul Molin, 53, owns a manufacturer's representative firm and said coordinating the sheriff's department is mainly an administrative function, one he is amply qualified for.

The 10-year Detroit Police Reserves Officer said his company deals with police equipment companies and he has close ties with the Michigan Chiefs of Police Association and other police associations.

Molin said as sheriff he would restructure the command staff to put more command officers directly serving the public, deal with inevitable budget cuts as well as a prison filled with aging criminals.

The democratic primary bid for a shot at the Oakland County

Scott Good, 33, of Auburn Hills, said if elected he would initiate the helicopter unit which would reduce car chases and utilize a K-9 unit to assist in drug searches. In addition, he would improve efficiency and relations within the staff.

Matt Hogan, 46, of White Lake, would carry his philosophy of following procedures over the the sheriff's department where his experience would enhance the department. In addition, he recently told the audience of the Oakland County Taxpayer's Association that although many of them probably won't vote for him because he favors restrictions on lethal weapons, "as far as I'm concerned, the only purpose for automatic weapons is to hose down police officers, so I favor restrictions."

Controversy over Novi rec ordinance continues

By JAN JEFFRIES
Staff Writer

The purpose, residents were told at a July 10 public hearing, was to strictly address Novi's need for a recreational zoning category and leave out all mention of any geographic location, such as the Meyer Berry Farm.

But some 60 Northville and Novi residents from the Eight Mile/Beck Road area, including a Maybury State Park supervisor weren't buying that, nor were their supporters from the city's north end.

"It feels like the city is trying to bend over backwards to accommodate the developer," said John Avdoulos, a director of the Southwest Association of Novi (SWAN).

And the Novi City Council, following a motion made by Council Member Rob Mittel, didn't buy the recreation ordinance, either.

To Council Member Robert Schmid, the homeowners were showing symptoms of a classic case of NIMBY (not in my back yard), but nothing's wrong with that, he said.

"It was spot zoning ... The more I think about the commercial aspect of the site, we should forget the ordinance," Schmid added.

The proposed new zoning category was originally drafted when The Sports Club of West Bloomfield approached the city about developing on the residentially-zoned Eight Mile Road property.

What had homeowners jogging down to the podium at the joint City Council/Planning Commission session was the apprehension that The Sports Club would bring traffic and noise to a neighborhood that still has a rural feel. With the new zoning in place, the club could apply to have the farm rezoned from residential to recreation. Some predicted that the club would bring in more commercial operations in its wake, possibly a grocery store and strip mall along Eight Mile Road.

That was the position of Planning Commissioner Eda Wedington.

"I have personally been contacted and asked if I'd like to sell my property on Beck Road for commercial use. There are developers out there waiting and all they want is a foothold and we'll have commercial coming out of our ears," she said.

The commission recommended that the council nix the zoning concept.

Since early this year, city administrators have worked with developer Glenn Healey in an attempt to privatize recreation facilities such as a swimming pool and reduce the burden on local taxpayers. City Manager Ed Kriewall said earlier.

An option Healey has on the Meyer property is expected to soon expire and residentially-zoned land is more affordable than industrial acreage, where the facility would otherwise need to go.

The day after the defeat, Kriewall said he and other city staffers would be meeting with Healey to discuss alternative sites for the operation. The Eight Mile Road site was attractive to the developer due to its distance from the West Bloomfield location and its proximity to potential members in both Novi and Northville. Novi was considering a joint public/private ice arena at the location.

Current city zoning allows for a private, public or non-profit recreational facility to open in an industrial area. Public recreation developments may be placed in residential districts. The city will now look more closely at provisions in the existing ordinance which only permit recreational uses in industrial districts on a temporary basis.

The rec ordinance and the proposed widening of Ten Mile were hot issues stewing in Novi this summer and homeowners emerged victorious from each.

But Planning Commissioner Kim Thomas Capello pointed out that most of the public commentary came in before The Sports Club had applied for a rezoning.

"The purpose of the recreation ordinance is to entice private developers to come into the city and provide the recreation residents are looking for," Capello said.

"Under our current ordinance, industrial property is too expensive. We feel recreation should be in the neighborhood where residents live."

EXERCISE THERAPY FOR BACK PAIN

Unless sciatica (related leg pain) is a factor, common back pain is being treated increasingly as a sports injury. This means that exercise is being called into play as a component of care. Not only does exercise bring relief from pain, but it may be regarded as a preventative for back injury as well. These benefits are derived from the fact that exercise therapy improves spine flexibility and strengthens the muscles that support the spine and protect the discs. In cases where a specific musculoskeletal disorder is diagnosed, the physical therapist will look at the patient's posture, activities, lifting habits, and muscle strength to find the root cause of the problem. This multifaceted strategy helps patients to gain control over their back problems.

Since 1985, Northville Physical Therapy Rehabilitation Inc. has been committed to helping patients reach their individual treatment goals. It is our genuine dedication to quality that enables us to provide the best possible treatment for our patients while sharing in the joys of their success. To schedule a consultation, call us at 349-3816. We are located at 332 E. Main Street, Suite A. Our staff now has three physical therapists including an athletic trainer and an exercise physiologist. For your convenience, we also have early and late business hours, including wee hours.

State program wins high rating

Michigan is among the nation's top states in terms of giving employers greater control over their unemployment tax costs.

"A newly released federal study of state unemployment insurance tax systems reports that Michigan's system is among the 10 best experience-rated programs in the country," F. Robert Edwards, director of the Michigan Employment Security Commission (MESC), reported at a meeting in Port Huron.

"This is good news for employers because it means they can directly control their unemployment costs by controlling their layoffs," he explained. "If an employer has a history of few layoffs, then that firm is likely to have a low unemployment tax rate, while more layoffs mean a higher tax rate."

The study showed that Michigan's Experience Rating Index (ERI) for rate year 1995 rose to 78 percent from 77 percent in 1994. The improvement put Michigan in ninth place behind New York, which had the highest rating at 85 percent, followed by Arizona and Puerto Rico (83 percent), Illinois and New Hampshire (82 percent), Virginia (81 percent), the District of Columbia (80 percent) and Georgia (79 percent).

The index is based on a one-year record. Consequently, it can fluctuate from year-to-year because of law changes and economic shifts.

Edwards said Michigan's 1995 rating means that 78 percent of all jobless benefits were charged directly to employers who had layoffs.

"Our high index rating means that stable employers — those with few layoffs — are more likely to have a lower unemployment tax rate in Michigan than in most other states," Edwards explained. "In fact, about 59,700 employers, which is nearly 30 percent of all Michigan employers who pay unemployment taxes, have a tax rate of 1 percent or lower."

State unemployment taxes in Michigan range from 0.3 to 10 percent. They are paid on the first $9,500 of an employee's earnings.

In calendar year 1995, the average tax rate in the state was an estimated 4.5 percent.

Employers can obtain a copy of the federal report by calling MESC's Customer Relations office at (1-800) 638-3994.

CAMILLO (TOM) MARIOTTI

Martial arts therapy helps youth with special needs to improve physical skills

By CAROL WORKENS*Staff Writer*

Martial arts is one of the activities children with special needs may not have had an opportunity to participate in until recently.

David Roer and David Reicher co-founded Martial Arts Therapy Inc. three years ago as a way for the individual with special needs to improve existing skills.

There are two programs, the Fitness Model and the Therapy Model. Both models are designed for individuals with special needs to produce improvements in balance, coordination, range of motion, gross motor skills, self-confidence, attention span and body awareness.

The Therapy Model is designed for individuals with neurological or other difficulties. The Fitness Model is geared to individuals interested in martial arts who are able to perform basic activities of daily living either standing and walking or in a wheelchair.

The models are designed to be used in conjunction with current therapy programs or independently, not as a replacement for physical therapy.

Roer and Reicher are currently running an eight-week Martial Arts Fitness Model program for elementary-age children with special needs at Providence Medical Center in Novi.

Because of their martial arts' backgrounds and their professional backgrounds - Roer is a physical therapist and has a green belt, and Reicher is an exercise physiologist and has a blue belt - they married the two disciplines for the martial arts programs.

A physical therapist generally works with people with dysfunctions, while an exercise physiologist does health maintenance and health prevention through exercise and general nutrition.

"We don't use one specific style of martial arts," said Reicher. "Whatever technique works for a child is the one selected."

If a child is having difficulty putting his arm over his head, exercises that will help the child accomplish that goal are used. Specific exercises target problem areas.

Kicking exercises help with balance, which is important in everyday life for such tasks as walking up stairs. The high block is a movement similar to reaching into a cupboard to get a glass.

"The nice thing about this program is that the activities used in this program are used in everyday life," Reicher said.

Children with special needs sometimes do not participate in team sports and lose out on social opportunities other children enjoy. In the martial arts fitness program, children work with other children who have similar needs.

The martial arts fitness program breaks down pivots and helps with motor planning. A regular martial arts program includes these, but also teaches fighting, which the fitness program does not include. The goal in the fitness program is to improve the capacity for daily living.

Classic martial arts protocol is followed and there is always a certified black belt instructor in attendance who teaches the movement for the session.

"We try to keep it as real as possible. It is not watered down," Reicher said. "We challenge them to the maximum that they can be challenged."

Children work on foam mats and wear helmets and use rubber balls, foam swords, and kick X-ray sheets.

Volunteers and support staff working one-on-one assist children in learning movements and take care of the safety issues. Some children's reflexes are not good, so these volunteers act as "catchers" to catch the child if he falls.

This session's volunteers include a student in physical therapy, a physical therapy assistant, and a rehabilitation technician.

Reicher found that many children, especially those with long-term disabilities, would get used to the programs and lose site of their work objectives.

"Kids forget they are doing physical therapy, they are concentrating on martial arts," Reicher said. "It is shifting their focus and it is very motivating."

The martial arts fitness program also builds self esteem and self confidence because the children are able to accomplish goals set for them.

"The outcomes I see in all models are doing very well," Roer said.

"There's a place for traditional, there's a place for this," Reicher said.

"The more you can get a client to do in your therapy programs, the better your outcomes are," Roer said.

For more information, call Stephanie Herrie at Providence at (810) 380-4100.

Children and adults have different needs

By CAROL WORKENS*Staff Writer*

Children have different needs than adults, especially when it comes to physical therapy.

From infants to teenagers, Stephanie Herrie, pediatric physical therapist with Providence Park Medical Center in Novi, works with children in age appropriate play activities in a one-on-one setting.

Herrie's pediatric physical therapy programs include balancing activities, strength, speed, and coordination are also important goals children work on.

"Traditional therapy for children is boring," she said. "It doesn't take care of the needs for children."

The difference between working with children and adults, according to Herrie, is that with adults she would actually work on getting a cup out of the cupboard. With children, she will work on an activity that will enable them to get the glass out of the cupboard when they need to.

"I teach patterns of movement through play," she said. "Then they can do their non-play activities easier."

Herrie also uses imagination play. If she is working with a child on a blue bolster, the child can pretend he is a logger who mustn't fall into the water where the alligators are circling.

"The imagination part comes from the children. I follow their lead," Herrie said. Sometimes it is necessary to give the child a suggestion to fuel their imagination.

"Children are self motivated through play," Herrie said.

The Martial Arts Fitness Program has goals that are similar to the play physical therapy program.

"One can't replace the other," Herrie said.

Martial arts in itself has a lot of intrinsic value for 7- and 8-year-old boys and girls.

"I could work on the same activities, but won't get the same response," she said. "In a setting with other children with disabilities the children work very hard."

The Martial Arts Fitness Model shows children that there are avenues for physical fitness other than physical therapy, according to Herrie. The children are working on some of the same skills used in play physical therapy, but may not realize it.

"I've seen some nice changes come out of it," Herrie said of the fitness program.

The children also get a chance to work with someone other than a physical therapist. Children with special needs may not have the same opportunities to participate in social activities.

"They start to manage their own goals," she said. A goal could be daily stretching to keep muscles from tightening up.

Children learn they can develop their own fitness program and come up with a life sport. The life sport does not have to be martial arts, but a sport of the child's choosing.

Bonnie Szilagy continues support for PTO activities.

Szilagy continues to promote PTO

By DOROTHY NASH*Special Writer*

Upgrading a playground for an elementary school is not really a priority item. Or is it?

Bonnie Szilagy, recent past president of PTO at Novi Woods Elementary School, says it is and she pushed the project in her two-year term as president of the PTO board.

A committee had been formed four years ago to upgrade the playground, "but it didn't get too far," she said.

When it rained, the area was unusable for a long while. And the teachers had to contend with students who'd had no time for relaxation.

It wasn't for lack of plans that not much was done. The committee had plans. A broad perimeter of the playground was to be covered with asphalt, and the main part would be resurfaced with a wood carpet of shredded wood chips - 18 inches deep of wood chips - all of which would be dry enough to play on as soon as the rain stopped.

New play equipment would be brought in and also picnic tables. Landscaping, too.

"When I took over the presidency," said Bonnie Szilagy, "I was determined to get the program moving," and she did.

There was a matter of money. "The district was wonderful and the parents were supportive." The playground is now well on its way to being what had been planned.

But that doesn't mean that Bonnie Szilagy is through with PTO. She has three children - one in elementary, one in middle, and one in high school. She's been going to school meetings since her oldest child was a co-op preschooler.

"You really should go to your child's PTO meetings," she said. "Serve on committees if you can. You may just find a hole that needs you as a filler."

"It's frustrating to have low PTO attendance at meetings," Bonnie Szilagy said. "You should keep informed on what's going on."

Victorian hat seminar offered

The Victorian Festival is just over a month away, and on the minds of many may be what to wear.

Carol Workens

The Northville Historical Society has made the process a lot easier this year, by resurrecting the trunk sale and hat making workshop for those wanting to start a Victorian wardrobe and for those who want to change or add to their present ensemble.

"We haven't done it for a while and thought it was time to revisit it," said Sonia Swigart, Northville Historical Society Board Member and coordinator of the Victorian Festival activities at Mill Race Village.

On Saturday, Aug. 3, from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m., Diane Rockall, historian and Northville Historical Society member, and Swigart will present a hat making workshop. They will have a limited number of materials, as well as several newly created hats, on hand for purchase. Samples of authentic hats will be on display.

Workshop participants will be shown how to make a Victorian hat using a hat frame they bring with them to the workshop, or if they prefer they can bring either a new or old plain hat and turn it into a Victorian creation.

Using lace, ribbons and little roses participants can create hats suitable for summer. Straw hats are OK, according to Swigart. Velvet would not be a good choice for a summer weight hat.

Although some materials will be available for use, participants can bring glue guns, quilting pins, special trim such as unique decorations, lace or feathers.

The only charge will be for hat or material purchases.

Residents who have Victorian costumes they no longer use or that their children have outgrown, can sell or swap at the Trunk Sale which will be held on Sunday, Aug. 4, from 1 until 4 p.m.

Residents wishing to buy, sell or swap Victorian costumes and merchandise are invited to participate. The only charge is for purchases.

The trunk sale should provide an opportunity for residents to alter the appearance many have come to expect over the years, according to Swigart.

Examples of easily created costumes and authentic reproductions will be on display, as well as resource materials like books and patterns.

The Victorian Festival is held in downtown Northville Sept. 13 through 15.

Both activities will be held at the Cady Inn at Mill Race Village.

Former student makes history

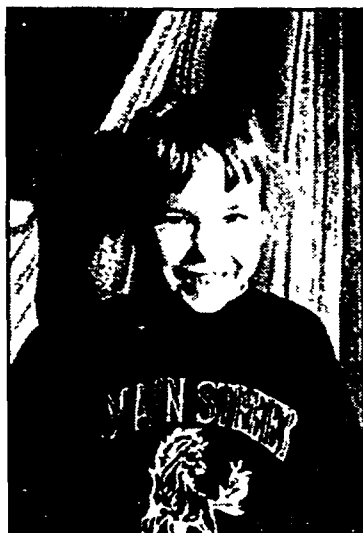

A former Main Street Elementary School kindergarten student has become the first woman to qualify for special operation air combat missions with the United States Air Force.

Captain Celeste Sanders, a navigator assigned to Charleston Air Force Base in South Carolina and a former Northville resident, is a special operations low-level (SOLL) II map navigator with the 16th Air-Lift Squadron. She was among the first group of Air Force women who were allowed to compete for combat cockpits in 1993.

Captain Sanders recently became the first female aircrew member ever to qualify to fly special operations combat missions in the Air Mobility Command.

As a navigator on the C-141 SOLL II mission, which is unique to Charleston Air Force Base, she can be required to fly into austere airfields, potentially under hostile conditions, to be at the forefront of any contingency. She has over 1,000 flying hours as a navigator on a C-141.

Captain Sanders was a student in Miss Pollock's kindergarten class at Main Street in Northville in 1972. When Sanders attended Amerman Elementary School, she used her first name, Chris, and lived on Eaton Drive. Her family moved to St. Louis in 1979. While in Northville, she was active in the Girl Scouts and often rode her bike to Cloverdales (now Murphy's on Christine Celeste Sanders, above, when she was a kindergarten student at Main Street Elementary School and, right, as a captain in the United States Air Force.

Center) for ice cream.

Sanders began using her middle name, Celeste, when she attended the University of Kansas where she received a bachelor's degree in mathematics in 1988.

Shortly after Captain Sanders was assigned to Charleston Air Force Base, she was selected to attend specialized undergraduate navigator training at Mather Air Force Base in California, where she was a distinguished graduate.

Just prior to the month-long SOLL II training program, she was involved in the evacuation efforts during Hurricane Hugo and the deployments in support of Operation Just Cause in Panama and Operation Desert Shield in southwest Asia.

The C-141 special operations capability at Charleston AFB is built around the use of night vision goggles and specially trained aircrews. The night vision goggles give the aircrews the ability to fly into blacked-out airfields, land and perform an engine-running offload of personnel and supplies and return to the air under the cover of darkness.

The ability to operate at night at a totally blacked-out airfield or to airdrop troops and equipment accurately on a blacked-out, unmarked drop zone is what differentiates a SOLL II crew from other tactically-qualified aircrews.

Suburban Detroit:
We have the leadership in readership!

SPRING delivers the suburbs with more weekday readers than The News and Free Press combined!

More suburban Detroit readers turn to SPRING.

- SPRING delivers more weekday suburban readers with household incomes over $50,000
- SPRING delivers more suburban homeowners (51%) than any other weekday newspaper

Time to smell the roses

The final count is in, and the Northville Country Garden Club's Third Annual Garden Walk was more than just successful, it was the best year yet. Over 900 tickets were sold this year, 300 more than in 1995. Gross proceeds were $7,000, which will go towards supporting current projects, as well as the major plantings for the new library. Carol Hawks was among those who visited nine gardens on July 17.

Do you know your BBQ IQ?

Trying to beat the summer heat by moving meals out of the oven and onto the grill? Be sure to heed the following tips for safe barbecuing.

According to the Centers for Disease Control, 9,000 deaths result annually from improperly cooked or handled food. Gale Cox, wellness programs coordinator at Botsford's Health Development Network (HDN), suggests partially microwaving food and then immediately transferring it to a grill with coals at cooking temperature. "It can take up to 30 minutes for coals to get hot enough - three-fourths should be ash white," she said.

To check for doneness, cut meat and poultry in the thickest part and look for desired color; juices should run clear. If possible, use a thermometer to check the internal temperature - optimally 180 degrees for chicken or 160 degrees for beef.

After handling raw meat, be sure to wash your hands to reduce the risk of bacteria contamination. Serve cooked food with clean utensils on a clean plate; don't use the same utensils and plate that held uncooked meat.

'Joe's Apartment' features a chorus of cockroaches

Fresh off the bus from Iowa, Joe (Jerry O'Connell) is just trying to make it in New York, but he's got no job, he's got no girl and, worst of all, he's got no place to live.

However, life's about to change for Joe. He finds an apartment — a slummy, squalid, seedy little box of a place, but it's a pad he can call his own...or so he thinks. It seems that not all of the apartment's former tenants have packed up and moved away.

Joe can sense them: a falsetto Brooklynese chorus jabbering away night and day. And finally, Joe meets them: his 50,000 roommates, an army of six-legged "go-go-go" Joe supporters, a veritable nation of roaches, there to stand arm-in-arm-in-arm-in-arm-in-arm-in-arm with their guy Joe in his times of need — whether he likes it or not.

And what's more, these roaches don't just think and talk...they dance and sing!

The roaches, led by Ralph and Rodney (voiced by Billy West and Reginald Hudlin), are determined to get Joe out of his jams. They help foil a plan hatched by Joe's evil landlord, Mr. Blanco (Don Ho), who stands to make a fortune if he can just evict his last tenant and sell the site to the city for a new prison. Mr. Blanco dispatches his hapless nephews, Vlad (Shrek Mahmud-Bey) and Jesus (Jim Sterling), to rub Joe out, but those bad boys don't know what kind of back-up Joe has at his disposal.

Being hip lovebugs of the '90s, the roaches also assist in his efforts to woo the lovely Lily (Megan Ward), the gardener-activist daughter of the Senator (Robert Vaughn), who's secretly in cahoots with Mr. Blanco. Advising Lily on the ways of love is her tough-talking co-worker, Blank (Sandra Denton of Salt-n-Pepa).

Advising Joe are his roach romantics: to set the right love-is-in-the-air-mood, they make Joe's bachelor pad come alive — literally — and prove it's not just mice and men whose best-laid plans often go awry.

As Joe takes on the town with his East Village performance-artist pal, Walter (Jim Turner), Joe starts to learn what life's really about in the big city.

Sex, bugs and rock 'n' roll
"Joe's Apartment" is written and directed by John Payson, who created the original "Joe's Apartment" short feature that aired to widespread acclaim on MTV in 1992. When it appeared on MTV it caused a stir throughout the entertainment industry and helped establish MTV's reputation as a groundbreaking forum for vanguard directors and innovative cinema.

After graduating from Harvard, where he worked as a cartoonist at the richly pedigreed Harvard Lampoon, Payson worked his way up the ranks at MTV from an entry-level job to supervising the production of "Liquid Television," which led to his shot at creating the "Joe's Apartment" short. Following the roach-infested short's exposure to a worldwide audience, Payson was given the opportunity to expand his three minute film into a feature by Geffen pictures. Not coincidentally, the big-screen version represents MTV's first big-screen production, and Payson once again found himself working with his familiar colleagues.

"I think roaches are truly heroic creatures because they're survivors," explains Payson about his chosen subject matter. "All they do is eat, have fun and hang out. They don't bother anybody. They were so much fun to make the heroes. It's the old switcheroo: taking the creature that's always been unfairly maligned and turning the tables. It opened up all kinds of comic possibilities."

Fortunately, Payson had no personal "gross-out factor" to overcome when it came to dealing with his six-legged celebrities. "I became immune to roaches because I live in an apartment much like Joe's," he laughs.

'Courage Under Fire' offers emotionally gripping view of war and the military

COURAGE UNDER FIRE
LIVONIA

A must see. The movie is an emotional gripping look into the inside of military operation during Desert Storm. It gives a very realistic and clear portrayal of how people can be killed needlessly in the middle of an anxiety charged moment during combat.

As the tensions rise, the ability to make appropriate decisions is effected. Human error while trying to survive leaves deep scars on the souls of all those involved in deadly choices.

Denzel Washington is nothing short of fabulous in his role as the military officer involved in an error as well as in his investigation into another's error. As a dignified man he is driven to discover the truth in a death that occurred during the war. He has to face the consequences of his obsessiveness as he strives to discover what action is being covered up. He is a man possessed by his own guilt and his belief in doing what is right versus what he is told to do.

It was surprising to find Meg Ryan in a small yet significant role in this film. She plays a tough military officer and plays it well. There is no fluff in her role and it almost seems out of character for her yet she gives a realistic performance of a woman who has always wanted to fly and to serve her country.

The young girl who plays her daughter looks very much like a young version of Ryan.

This movie is educational as well as entertaining. Seeing war from a realistic viewpoint is emotional yet interesting.

Bring your Kleenex if you have ever been in the military and don't miss this one.

INDEPENDENCE DAY
NORTHVILLE

War of the Worlds with teeth? Well, maybe, if humor had not calmed the postapocalyptic reality.

"Independence Day," starring Bill Pullman, Jeff Goldblum and Will Smith, introduces the '90s attempt to top the "Star Wars" trilogy by exploring what would happen if an alien race invaded Earth to exterminate the human race.

Colossal flying saucers glide slowly across the Earth destroying any city in its path. Only a group of American survivors stationed at a top secret military outpost have the solution to conquer the alien technology, and they must find a method to unite the nations of the world to launch one final battle. It is this unity and the desire to defend the species that brands the name on this monstrous hit. Would all countries and people, enemies or allies, unite to go on existing?

Awesome special effects, swarming battle scenes and a solid cast explode into a science-fiction thriller. The most heart-pounding scenes that send jolts of tension and horror down the spine occur when the cities are demolished in blazing infernos.

"Independence Day" has some comedic entertainment that muffles the reality of millions perishing; however, the thrilling feelings and visions this movie sets on the table satisfies about any appetite so it deserves nothing more than an intense four stars. (Best out of five with five tops.)

If you expected a suspenseful, edge of your seat (or under), white knuckle thriller, sit back and relax. "ID4" had suspenseful scenes that were at times terrifying, but they are eased with bits of pleasing comedy. Imagine Will Smith in "Alien."

Jerry O'Connell in Geffen Pictures' live-action animated musical comedy, "Joe's Apartment," released by Warner Bros.

NABF World Series highlights hustle, enthusiasm

Scott
Daniel

The past few weeks have been a real smorgasbord for sports fans.

The Olympics, the start of football, the British Open and Wimbledon have left us all gasping for air. But before you get big-event outed, I've got one more for you to watch.

The National Amateur Baseball Federation will hold its Junior Division World Series here in Northville starting today.

Weather permitting, the tournament will close Sunday.

According to tournament director Bob Frellick, nine teams from around the country will participate Northville will be represented in the Series. The Broncos, which played in the Little Caesar's travel league this summer, will host Baltimore today at 3 p.m.

A pair of other games are on tap at the high school field today.

Sylvania, Ohio, opens the Series at 9 a.m. against Austin, Texas. At noon, Spokane, Wash., will play the qualifier from Canton.

Madonna University will host several tournament games as well. Located at Five Mile and Hubbard roads in Livonia, teams from Missouri and Kentucky will square off today at noon.

New York's Bayside Yankees will be back trying for a fourth straight title. The Yanks beat the Dixie Stars of Lexington 4-2 for the championship.

If you like baseball, the tournament is an inexpensive way to get your fix.

The Series features 15 and 16-year old players. For a couple of bucks, you can see excellent baseball played with something rarely seen on the professional level — enthusiasm.

Hustle will be the operative word for the next four days in Northville. I guarantee you won't see one player "dog" it.

Frellick said attendance at the annual event has improved over the past few years. Many of the spectators, of course, are parents and friends who travel with the teams to the tournament.

Perhaps none are more animated than the Yankees' fans. They sit in the stands chanting rhythmically for their team and clap uncontrollably every time New York gets a hit.

It's quite refreshing.

As you may know, baseball has suffered the past four or five years. Work stoppages at the major league level and the growing number of distractions for youngsters have led to a general apathy about baseball in the country.

My brother-in-law, who's in his early 20s, had a telling remark about the game a few weeks ago. We were watching the Olympics and he was lamenting about sportscaster Bob Costas' frequent soliloquies on subjects like the "national pastime."

"It's only baseball," he said.

For someone who grew up playing and loving the game, I found the statement troubling.

That's what's so wonderful about the NABF Series. All of the elements that have turned off the general public, including my brother-in-law, are put on the back burner for a few days.

No hold outs. No contract squabbles. No save-the-stadium babble or talk of moving franchises.

It's just good baseball, folks. Come out to Northville High and watch.

MHSAA approves location change for x-country final

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

It's not uncommon for state finals sites to change from year to year in high school athletics.

But for cross country, this fall will see more than just a change in venue.

The Michigan High School Athletic Association recently voted to change the state finals site. In addition, the number of finals races will be cut in half.

Jackson's Michigan International Speedway will now host the event for all classes and both genders.

MHSAA Assistant Director Nate Hampton said the move was prompted by several reasons.

Having the finals at one site will make the event easier to manage. Each class, A, B, C and D, previously had a separate site for its final.

"I want the same quality of facility for all classes," Hampton added.

Getting teams and spectators in and out of the finals site will also be much easier at MIS, which is built for crowds in the thousands.

"Staging previous meets at golf courses and the like was fine for the runners on the course," said Hampton, "but there are always challenges in terms of parking, viewing the race, and other on-site conveniences for teams and spectators."

Whether or not those benefits materialize, area coaches are concerned about the move.

Novi girls' mentor Norm Norgren has serious reservations about all activities being at one site. With some 1,900 runners together on a single November day, he said the course is bound to get torn up.

"I wouldn't want to be running in the last race," he added.

About two thirds of the five kilometer course will be on the infield at MIS. The other third will go through an adjacent wooded area.

Hampton said the course will be somewhat flatter than previous finals sites. But he disputed Norgren's assertion that the course will be unsuitable by the end of the race day. He thinks it will hold up under the pounding of the runners.

ners.

"We don't see a problem," Hampton said.

Under the new state finals format, each class will have two races instead of four.

Until this fall, each class had an individual and team race for both boys and girls. Starting this season, the two races will be combined.

In past years individuals not on state qualifying teams could make the finals on their own. Hampton said athletes will still have that same chance.

But instead of running a separate race, everyone will run together.

The top 15 runners in both the individual and team races used to receive medals under the old system. Hampton said 30 medals will still be handed out.

Norgren thinks fewer individual runners will take home hardware, however. He said team runners will grab some of the medals previously awarded in the individual race.

"I don't care for it at all," said Norgren, whose main concern is for the athletes. "Don't ever do anything to take opportunities away from kids. They work too hard."

Northville High boys' coach Ed Gabrys is taking a wait-and-see attitude about the changes. Still, the longtime coach had concerns.

"My biggest consideration is the race itself," Gabrys said. "What will the course look like? I think it needs to be a challenge with rolling hills and terrain. The aesthetics of the course is important."

For now, though, he said he won't second guess the MHSAA's decision.

"I think it can work," Gabrys said. "I think the positives can outweigh the negatives."

Hampton said holding the meet at one site is a step toward modernization.

"Other states have been doing it for years," he added.

Both boys and girls cross country state finals will be held in Jackson this fall at Michigan International Speedway. Races were previously held in Grand Rapids. Runners, such as former Mustang Dwight VanTuyl, will face a much different course at MIS than in years past.

Broncos ready to play Series

By SCOTT DANIEL

Northville will be well represented when the National Amateur Baseball Federation World Series gets under way in town today.

The Broncos Mickey Mantle squad, which is coming off a solid summer season, will host Baltimore at 3 p.m. at the high school field. Coach Rick Bingley said Northville is hoping to go a long way in the tournament.

"Our focus is on that first game," he said. "I don't want the guys to look past it. We need take it one game at a time."

Judging from level of competition, that's a smart idea.

Eight top teams from around the country will vie for the Series crown. New York's Bayside Yankees, which has won three championships in Northville, will be back.

Ryan Morris and Mike Livanos are up from Northville's "B" team. Both will see limited action.

Jim Stamper and Adam Rufner were added from Lincoln Park. Both pitch, and Rufner is also an excellent receiver behind the plate.

"That'll give me a slew of arms," Bingley said of his pitching staff.

As host, Northville receives an automatic bid to the tournament. That's not to say the Broncos don't carry good credentials to the Series.

Northville finished 12-9 in the highly competitive Little Caesar's Amateur Baseball Federation Mantle Division. That was good for 10th place out of 22 teams.

The Broncos made a big turnaround from last year.

"We had a good group of kids," Bingley said. "They fought hard this year."

Northville's record is even more impressive when you consider the entire roster was only on hand for four games. Vacations and other commitments frequently took play-

Twisters bring semi-pro football to county

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

It's been more than a decade since Robert Craske snapped on a chin strap for Northville High or played football on any kind.

But Saturday, the 31-year-old will lace up the cleats for his second game with the Wayne County Twisters. A mechanic by day, Craske will be a linebacker at night for the semi-pro club beginning at 8 p.m.

At his age and with his working commitments, football is just a release.

"I play for fun," said Craske.

According to Twisters' owner Glenn Brothers, that's a common sentiment among his 45 players.

"I think it gives a lot of them something to do, something to look forward to," he added.

Brothers' son, Aaron, a former standout at Akron and Central Michigan universities, has played semi-pro ball for five years.

"I play because I love the game," said the 25-year-old. "I love football."

The Twisters, which will play at the old Schafer High School field in Southgate, are one of six teams in the fledgling Lake Shore Football League.

A second Michigan franchise will be located in Detroit and known as the Motor City Cougars. Four teams are in Ohio, including the Findlay Lightning, North Coast Rebels from Vermillion, the Toledo Tornadoes and Clyde Panthers.

Nationally, the American Football Association sanctions some 300 semi-professional teams. All Lake Shore football teams are part of the AFA.

The Twisters will play nine regular season games that run through early October. Brothers is hoping his team will have a good run in the playoffs.

"I feel very good about the team," he said. "We have a lot of good young men that love to play the game."

Brothers helped form the LSFL late last year.

Five of eight teams from a league in Sandusky, Ohio, helped stock the new league. Brothers, who owned one of those clubs, didn't care for the way that league was operated.

"There was too much hooliganism," he said.

By the end of January, the six charter members of the Lake Short Football League had drafted their own constitution.

"I think the league will do well," Brothers said, "once everyone gets to know us."

Fans who make the trek down to Southgate won't have a hard time recognizing the style of play on the field.

The LSFL will use most of the same rules the National Football League follows. Quarters will be 15 minutes long.

Just like the NFL, teams will carry 45 players. The Twisters held tryouts for those spots back in April.

Craske and his brother, Roger, first learned about the team through a newspaper ad.

Having played in recent years, the brothers, both of whom played for now Northville High Assistant Principal Dennis Colligan, figured they'd try out. What the heck?

"We never thought we'd have a chance," said Robert. "But now we're starting."

"They're both very tenacious," Brothers said. "Both are short and kind of stocky, but powerful and fast."

Roger plays on the defensive line. Robert works at linebacker.

The former Mustangs helped Wayne County to a 14-0 win over the Clyde Panthers at home in the season opener.

"I got a few tackles," said Robert Craske. "Nothing too spectacular."

He admitted he was nervous for the contest, which was witnessed by about 300 fans.

"I had some butterflies," Craske said.

Aaron Brothers said the level of play varies.

"You have some teams that are really bad," he said, "and others that are really good. It all depends on what you put into it."

Even the best semi-pro teams wouldn't be able to compete at the highest college level, Brothers added.

Some would do well in "Division II," said Aaron.

With the amount of time most players are able to devote to the game, that's quite a compliment.

Like Craske, nearly all semi-pro players work full-time and have families.

"We make way for that," said Glenn Brothers. "We practice when it's needed, not three or four times a week."

Then there's the matter of costs.

The Twisters are a non-profit organization, meaning they don't pay players for their services. In fact, players had to pay Brothers to play.

"They buy their own uniforms and equipment," he added and noted that costs can run as high as hundreds of dollars per player.

Between the money, time commitment and pounding of the games, Brothers said only real football lovers stuck

with the team.

Out of nearly 100 men who tried out, he only had to cut three to get down to the roster limit.

"A lot of them didn't believe it was big-boy football," he said in terms of the physical play.

A look at the Twisters roster finds a mix of experience levels and ages.

The youngest is 19-year-old Kevin Kutch, who last played at Grand Rapids Community College. The oldest is 37-year-old Paul Forster, who played at Indiana University.

"He came to us from the World Wrestling Federation," Brothers said. "He was known as the Conquistador."

SCHOLARSHIPS

Over 100,000 collegiate athletic scholarships are available each year to male and female high school and junior college student athletes. Contrary to popular belief, students don't have to be all-state to qualify. Much of this money goes unused.

A new publication with forms, sample letters and tables of factual information is available for student athletes. It takes them step-by-step through the important process of getting an athletic scholarship and includes college and conference listings.

For information on how to get a collegiate athletic scholarship, send a self-addressed, stamped business size envelope to the National Sports Foundation, P.O. Box 940, Oakhurst, NJ 07755.

Northville ready for NABF Series

ers away from the diamond.

When they were playing ball, though, the Broncos were focused.

"The kids did a good job of doing that," Bingley said.

The coach said his team's record might have been a little better with more consistency.

"We beat ourselves a few times," he said, citing Northville's loss to Novi a few weeks ago. "We made too many mistakes."

Despite those miscues, the coach saw improvement this summer.

"We came a long way," Bingley commented.

After a shaky start, Northville's defense really improved.

"It started to come around at the end of the season," Bingley said. "It carried us the last half of the season."

Offensively, Kevin Gilchrist and Evan Edwards led the Broncos. Gilchrist blasted five home runs and Edwards batted well over .300.

"(Rob Reel) has a bright future as a pitcher at the high school."

RICK BINGLEY

Players such as Kelly Bingley, Gordy McPhail, Ryan Ossenmacher and Nick Watts were also keys at the plate.

On the mound, Northville had several standouts.

Rob Reel, a tall right hander, led the team in victories.

"He has a bright future as a pitcher at the high school," Bingley said.

Gilchrist and Ossenmacher also pitched consistently well.

While wins are important, the summer season is vital to how the high school team will do next spring.

Brian Horn and the rest of the Broncos are hoping to connect this weekend at the NABF World Series in town.

Bingley said nearly all of his players this year will have a shot at varsity for the Mustangs. "A lot of these guys have a good chance of making the club," he said.

'Target golf' put on hold at Salem's Brae Burn

This week's Northville Record continues a series of weekly golf course reviews. Our focus is to provide you, the reader, useful information and tips on playing your favorite local courses.

Brae Burn Golf Club is the subject of this week's review. If you would like to see a particular course reviewed this summer, please contact us at (810) 349-1700 or fax us at (810) 349-1050. By SCOTT DANIEL Sports Editor

If you've played a lot of golf this summer but haven't visited Brae Burn Golf Club you may be missing out on a unique experience.

While new courses have sprouted up all over the place the past few years none have the "Monster." And until you play this 617-yard beast, you haven't really tested your game.

"It's a good test of golf," PGA Professional Chip Chamberlin said of the double dog-leg No. 13. "The hole used to be tougher than it is. But you still need two good shots for a shot to the green on your third."

A drive of 200-yards or more and a second shot almost as long are required to get around the woods and into position for a shot at the green. Golfers' third shot into the par 5's green will likely be a long iron.

Chamberlin said the Monster, which cuts through the woods, was much less forgiving in seasons past. It caused delays in play because it took golfers so long to complete.

"It was too tough," he added. "It became a real bottleneck."

About six years ago, some of the woods were cut back to make it easier and to speed up play.

"It's still a good golf hole," Chamberlin said.

Brae Burn has many more good golf holes besides the Monster. But unlike most of the newer clubs which emphasize precise target golf, the Salem Township course is more forgiving.

"The newer courses being built are gorgeous," Chamberlin said. "But you have to be good skill-wise (to shoot well)."

Brae Burn, which was built as a nine-hole facility in the 1920s, actually allows golfers to recover from a muffed shot in most instances. The par 4, 347-yard second hole is an example.

With the exception of a duck-hook into the water off the left side of the fairway, golfers can get away with a less than perfect tee shot. No. 2 is straight and fairly open save trees along the right side of the fairway.

One of Brae Burn's best features is its putting surfaces. Greens have held up well this season and run from medium to large in size.

Better than that, though, the greens roll well.

"Our greens are very consistent," said Chamberlin, who added that balls tend to stay on the surface instead of skipping over on shots from the fairway. "They've always held well."

Brae Burn's front nine is relatively short at 3,038 yards from the blue tees and 2,919 from the whites.

Short par 4s are found on No. 1 (355), 2 (347), 4 (302) and 5 (310). At 412 yards, the sixth hole is rated the toughest on the course.

A solid drive of 240 yards is needed for a legitimate chance at reaching the green. If you leave that second shot short or on the front quarter of the green chances are it will roll down back into the fairway.

The front edge of the sixth green slopes severely downward. Most of No. 6's fairway is flat, but 75 yards or so in front of the green drops down into a deep valley. Second shots tend to collect there.

Chamberlin said the green at the sixth and 17th greens will likely be rebuilt this coming off-season. No. 6 will be flattened while the 17th will be totally redone because of drainage problems.

Of the remaining front nine holes, the 163-yard par 3 eighth is a charmer.

Golfers tee off from an elevated platform down to a huge green. Trees to the left of the tee and woods on the right side of the fairway make straight hits necessary.

If No. 13 is Brae Burn's Monster, the 12th should be known as the Demon.

Again, golfers swing from an elevated tee. From there its 445 yards back up hill to a long and large green.

"It has a lot of length," Chamberlin said of the par 4. "and it's always into the wind."

The remaining holes on the back nine feature many, many changes in elevation. But they're measurably easier than the Monster and

Program helps families deal with effects of Parkinson's

Over 35,000 Michigan residents live with Parkinson's disease, a slowly progressive disorder that gradually steals control of the part of the nervous system that governs movement, posture, balance and walking.

For those with this condition, it is a devastating diagnosis, but now an innovative program offered at Botsford General Hospital is giving help and hope to those with Parkinson's and those who care about them.

In October, Health Development Network at Botsford (HDN) will present a comprehensive seven-week program, "Living With and Understanding Parkinson's," for people with the disease and their "care partners." The only program of its kind in southeastern Michigan, "Living With and Understanding Parkinson's" focuses on a positive approach to coping with the disease.

The program will feature noted experts who will discuss such aspects as managing common symptoms; types of treatments; the use of medication; coping techniques; nutrition; and physical and speech therapy.

"Living With and Understanding Parkinson's" is cosponsored by the Michigan Parkinson Foundation.

This program really provides people with Parkinson's and their loved ones valuable resources and a forum in which they can hear information in an easily digestible manner and can feel comfortable asking questions and discussing their concerns," said Deborah Orloff-Davidson, RN, director of HDN.

The program runs for seven consecutive Wednesdays beginning Oct. 9 from 1-3:30 p.m. at HDN, 39750 Grand River in Novi. The cost is $40 per person or couple. Preregistration is required. For more information or to register, call HDN at (810) 477-6100.

HDN is also hosting Parkinson discussion groups, sponsored and funded by the Michigan Parkinson's Foundation. This free, six-week counseling series, open to people with Parkinson's and their spouses or caregivers, features trained health care professionals facilitating separate group discussions (individuals and spouses or care partners are assigned separate sections) on topics concerning the disease.

The sessions are scheduled for six consecutive Fridays beginning Oct. 11 at 2-3:30 p.m. at HDN, 39750 Grand River in Novi. Although sessions are free, because of limited space, preregistration is required. For more information or to register, call HDN at (810) 477-6100.

Did you know ...?

• Parkinson's disease is a slowly progressive disorder caused by damage to cells in the region of the brain that governs control of movement.

• The symptoms have a severe impact on the well-being of the person diagnosed with Parkinson's, as well as on the person's family members.

• Parkinson's strikes more people than multiple sclerosis, muscular dystrophy and Lou Gehrig's disease combined.

• Parkinson's affects 35,000 people in Michigan and about 2 percent of the population over age 60 nationally.

• U.S. Attorney General Janet Reno, Michigan Supreme Court Justice Dorothy Costello Riley and the Rev. Billy Graham are among the better-known people diagnosed with Parkinson's.

• Parkinson's is not preventable or generally hereditary; however, there are several highly effective medications to relieve symptoms in most patients.

• Continuing research offers new hope in the development of effective treatments for Parkinson's disease and understanding its causes and prevention.

Health Development Network is a department of Botsford General Hospital offering health and wellness education programs to neighboring communities and industry. Botsford is affiliated with the Michigan State College of Osteopathic Medicine.

Aspirin may help prevent colon cancer

Aspirin, which has a long, familiar track record with physicians and patients, is in the news again.

Just a few years ago, researchers discovered that aspirin could help prevent heart attacks and reduce their recurrence. Now, new studies suggest that aspirin may also help prevent colon and rectal cancer.

The results of many different studies, in fact, suggest that aspirin and other non-steroidal anti-inflammatory drugs (NSAIDs) like ibuprofen (Advil, Nuprin) may protect against colorectal cancer.

Recent studies have shown that, in some groups, people who regularly took aspirin reduced their risk of this type of cancer by 40 percent. While uncertainty remains and there have been no definitive studies as yet to prove conclusively that aspirin can have this beneficial effect, its potential as a preventive against certain cancers could be huge.

There is also only limited information available on the optimum dose - how much aspirin someone would need to take and how often he or she should take it. In some studies that showed a benefit, regular use was defined as at least once a week. Even at these low doses, there was some evidence to suggest that aspirin did protect against colorectal cancer.

While this research is promising, it is only a beginning, and people who are concerned about lowering their risk of colorectal cancer should not rush out to buy bottles of aspirin until there is more scientific evidence available that NSAIDs will truly help.

Aspirin is relatively safe, but can have significant side effects, including stomach irritation, nausea, vomiting, bleeding from stomach irritation and adverse interactions with other medications. In addition, some people are highly allergic to aspirin.

In the meantime, though, researchers will continue to study aspirin's potential as a cancer preventive. In fact, along with my colleague, Dean Brenner, M.D., associate professor of internal medicine at the U-M Health System, I have been conducting research to determine the lowest dose of aspirin that may be effective in reducing the incidence and mortality rate of colorectal cancer.

Already, through studying healthy adults, we have determined that a very low dose of aspirin (80 mg. daily) can reduce the concentration of prostaglandins in rectal tissue. Prostaglandins are natural bodily chemicals that affect, among other things, the immune system and blood clotting.

Our ultimate goal is to learn more about how aspirin works through the body's chemical pathways and to find out, more definitively, if and in what ways aspirin may help prevent colorectal cancer. The results of many earlier studies, while intriguing, could also have been due to other healthy habits that participants followed, like exercising regularly and eating lots of fiber.

This initial breakthrough in our understanding of how aspirin functions will lead to further studies. Currently, my colleagues and I are recruiting patients to participate in studies that will involve taking aspirin for a brief two-month period.

We are looking for people in three categories: (1) Those who have been treated for colorectal cancer, having had polyps of one centimeter or larger removed; (2) people with normal colons (already determined through a previous colonoscopy) and a family history of colon cancer; and (3) healthy adults who have had normal colonoscopies and no family history of colon cancer. If you are interested in participating, please call (313) 747-4748 or (1-800) 865-1125.

Some day in the near future, your doctor may recommend that you take aspirin (in doses as small as 80 mg.) to prevent colorectal and possibly other cancers, in addition to heart disease, where its role has already been well-established. Meanwhile, however, you should not begin regular use of aspirin without the guidance of your doctor.

Reverse mortgage plans expanded and improved

By James M. Woodard
Copley News Service

Homeowners over age 62 now have more opportunities than ever to increase their monthly income with a reverse mortgage. And those opportunities are coming at a time when the number of mature adults is increasing dramatically.

Nationally, there are now more than 30 million people over the age of 64. And this year, according to projections, the 76 million baby boomers will begin entering the 50-plus market. In a few years, this will boost substantially the number of retirees.

It all points to a steadily growing market for reverse mortgages. Here's a basic description of this specialized type of mortgage:

A reverse mortgage is a mortgage for people over age 62. Instead of making mortgage payments every month, the mortgagee receives a monthly payment.

It is a loan, like any mortgage, secured by equity accumulated in the person's home. But instead of receiving a lump sum to finance or refinance a home, the funds are loaned to the person in monthly increments. In some cases, it's coupled with an annuity that makes it possible to continue pay-

HOME DESIGNS

The National provides a warm country welcome

By James McAlexander
Copley News Service

The pleasing country style of the 2,469-square-foot National, with its wide, railed front porch, provides a warm welcome for any visitors.

The elegance of this beautiful home is readily apparent as you step into the long entryway. There is a coffered ceiling vault here, as well as in the living and dining rooms.

The living room, to the left, has an almost octagonal shape, with a bank of windows to the front offering a splendid view. To the right is the large formal dining room. French doors open onto the porch to admit a gentle breeze when the weather permits.

A hallway, with lots of storage space, leads to the spacious master suite. Isolated for maximum privacy, the luxury here is unmistakable. A vaulted ceiling, huge walk-in closet, separate vanity and private bathroom are some of the many amenities. There also is exclusive access to a covered deck with a relaxing spa.

The middle section of this unique floor design is designated as a "Great Space." Here friends and family can gather in front of the gas fireplace and discuss the events of the day.

This arrangement allows the cook in the house, separated only by a raised eating bar, to prepare meals without missing out on any of the conversation. In addition to the built-in appliances, the kitchen features a walk-in pantry and garden nook. If the sun is shining, set up the barbecue on the back deck.

The remainder of this floor plan offers two bedrooms and a handy utility room. For empty-nesters, one bedroom can be utilized for guest accommodations; the other might serve as a home office. A full bathroom separates the two.

The two-car garage has room for a workshop, and a work bench runs the length of one wall. For added storage and/or improvement, there is a generous attic and more than 2,000 square feet of basement space.

For a study plan of the National (334-990), send $10 Landmark Designs, c/o HomeTown Newspaper, 323 E. Grand River, Howell, MI, 48843. (Be sure to specify plan name and number when ordering.) For more information, call (800) 562 1151.

Create a fantasy room
for your daughter

By Rose Bennett Gilbert
Copley News Service

Q: Give us a fun idea for our daughter's room. She's 5 going on 25, loves music and has just started ballet.

A: You've asked the right question at the right time. I was just browsing through Laura Ashley's "Home" catalog of new fabrics and wallcoverings, and look what turned up: a fantasy room for a budding ballerina inspired by the wide wallcovering border.

Framed with floral stripes, it features a bevy of little dancers at the barre. Everything else in the room picks up those tender pastels, including the pink-stained lit cios, as the French call this kind of sheltered bed.

It's homemade from stock lumber, then curtained and cushioned for a princess. But what makes the real magic is its height. Raising the bed platform just three steps above floor level raises it far out of the ordinary — enough, certainly, to make a young imagination soar.

Q: We are planning on replacing the family room carpet with either hardwood or tile flooring. We both work, have children in college who come home to relax and have friends over, and have many cats and dogs.

Also, my husband and one of our daughters have airborne allergies, so we are trying to reduce the items that retain dust and animal dander.

We hope you can give us an unbiased, knowledgeable opinion as to which flooring would truly look best with frequent use.

A: My answer will only add to your frustration, I fear.

Had you asked a generation ago, the answer would have been easy: As beautiful as hardwood looks, it was not always easy to keep it looking that way. Water, grit and wear are constant enemies; defending a wood floor called for frequent waxing and buffing.

Ceramic tile, on the other hand, was flooring's workhorse. Save for as-necessary washing, little maintenance was required. Sure, excessive traffic might wear off the layer of colored glaze and tile would crack and even shatter if, say, a can of peaches should leap from a cabinet. But, all in all, tile was more forever than most hardwood floors.

Time and technology have changed the game. Today, hardwoods are engineered for long and worry-free lives, with new protective coatings that shrug off the slings and arrows of most households.

On the other hand, tiles have also been improved. One good example: porcelain tiles, where the color goes all the way through the body of the product. Delicate though they may sound, forget about precious dolls' heads and porcelain dishes: These tiles are fired at such high temperatures they're practically vitrified, which means they're actually harder than natural stone (30 percent harder than marble, claims one manufacturer) and impervi-

Classic espalier

By C.Z. Guest
Copley News Service

GARDENING

Training a fruit tree or shrub to grow against a trellis (or other type of support) for decoration is just one reason to have an espalier. An espalier can give a garden a fabulous focal point: a fence or patio divider; act as a garden; and perform as a living shield to discourage graffiti. Because it is two dimensional, an espalier takes up little space. For best results, plant espaliered shrubs against a south-facing wall.

An espalier can also be edible. For instance, fruit trees that have been espaliered produce more fruit because plants are more open to sunlight.

European gardeners discovered this technique centuries ago when they planted espalier groves to gain maximum fruit yields in minimum spaces.

The first step is to choose a suitable location against a fence or wall. If you want to plant a shrub, the most popular varieties for training are holly, camellia, azalea, gardenia, ivy, rose and bougainvillea, to name a few.

The pruning and tying of branches must be done correctly, so it's best to consult an expert. I suggest buying shrubs that are already trained into a specific design, or you can do the training of the greenery against a form or flat surface.

Espaliered fruit trees will be vigorous whether trained against a flat surface or grouped in a row to form a living, edible fence. Apple and pear trees are most popular, since their spurs produce fruit for years. Nectarine, peach, cherry and pomegranate can also be espaliered beautifully.

However, it's good thinking to consult an expert when deciding which variety is appropriate for local weather conditions, and which will train best for the shape you have in mind.

It takes three years for most fruit trees to reach maturity and the desired shape if the proper spraying, pruning and fertilizing have been tended to. You'll be amazed at the amount of fruit: up to 70 apples on one mature espaliered tree, as all the branches will be exposed to the sun.

Espaliers and trellises

■ Espaliers and trellises give a garden or yard a focal point. They take up little space and can be used to disguise unsightly walls or areas.

Espaliers, because they allow more sunlight to strike a plant's foliage, cause fruit trees to bear more and earlier fruit. South-facing espaliers will do best for most sun-loving plants.

• Shrubs that do well on espaliers and trellises are holly, camellia, azalea, gardenia, ivy, roses and bougainvillea.

• Fruit trees that do well on espaliers include apple, pear, nectarine, peach, cherry and pomegranate.

• Consult an expert if considering espaliered fruit trees. You will need the right tree for your location.

ments for the person's lifetime.

Typically, the loan, along with accrued interest and costs, is repaid from the person's estate after death, or at the time the he/she sells or moves permanently away from the home. In some cases, the lender also receives a proportion of or all funds generated by the sale of the home.

The amount received each month by the mortgagee depends on two factors — age and the amount of equity he/she has in the home. It also depends on the precise type of reverse mortgage plan selected and terms specified in the contract.

Many homeowners who previously were turned down by a federally insured reverse mortgage program have recently become eligible due to new rules. Others may qualify for a new plan now available in most states. And lenders are now more inclined to offer a greater variety of reverse mortgage options.

Homeowners living in duplexes, triplexes and four-plex buildings are now eligible for a reverse mortgage insured by the Federal Housing Administration. This program also has relaxed its rules for approving reverse mortgages on condominiums, according to a report from the National Center for Home Equity Conversion.

In the past, these mortgage loans were generally restricted to single-family homes or homes in FHA-approved condominium developments. The new rules permit up to four-unit properties and make individual condo units eligible without overall development approval.

Lenders are now taking reverse mortgage applications in 48 states (except Texas and South Dakota) for reverse mortgages that can be sold to the Federal National Mortgage Association (Fannie Mae).

The nonprofit National Center for Home Equity Conversion offers the following tips on selecting the right reverse mortgage plan:

Check and compare all costs. The amount of cash you get, and its real cost to you, can vary by thousands of dollars from plan to plan.

Consider all options. Study and consider all of them before committing yourself.

Compare origination fees and all costs. Federal truth-in-lending laws require lenders to disclose total annual loan cost rates for all reverse mortgages. Study it carefully — it's the only way to compare the true, total cost of these loans.

For more information on reverse mortgage availabilities, write to the National Center for Home Equity Conversion, 7373 147th Street West, Apple Valley, MN 55124.

9. Why do real estate brokers put so much importance in providing high-tech property marketing techniques?

A. The application of high-tech methods of marketing real estate is the key element in today's rapidly evolving field of real estate brokerage. In fact, it's an essential element for successful brokers and firms in this highly competitive field.

One major real estate franchise group has announced an unprecedented step down the high-tech road. Better Homes and Gardens Real Estate Service is launching a "Tech Tour '96," showcasing its development of a wide-ranging spectrum of technically advanced marketing systems. The planned tour includes presentations in 60 cities by the end of the year.

"Tech Tour '96" will be a multimedia educational experience for sales associates and brokers," said Gary Buda, vice president of operations and systems at Better Homes and Gardens Real Estate Service. The half-day sessions will include a trade show, product demonstrations and instructions on implementing a personal technology plan.

The tour is the culmination of an 18-month study and test-marketing process by the real estate network.

Questions may be used in future columns; personal responses should not be expected. Send inquiries to James M. Woodard, Copley News Service, P.O. Box 190, San Diego, CA 92112-0190.

First Ward figurines were made in a garage

By Anne McCollam
Copley News Service

Q. The ceramic figurine in this photo was my grandmother's. It probably dates from the late 1930s or early '40s. She is wearing a green dress and the settee that she is sitting on is gray. On the bottom are the words "Elizabeth — Pasadena, California — Florence Ceramics."

What can you tell me about my figurine?

A. Florence Ward first began making clay figurines in her garage workshop in 1939. Her figurines were molded, cast and then hand decorated.

ed. When her business flourished after World War II, she built a factory. The value of your figurine would probably be about $225 to $275.

Q. I am 82 years old and bought my first perfume bottle in an antique shop in Boston 50 years ago. It is glass and is decorated with engraved flowers. The top and base are sterling silver.

It has been fun collecting my perfume bottles over the years and I would like to know the value of this one.

A. Most perfume bottles seen today were made in the late 1800s to the mid-1900s. Yours was probably made around the turn of the century and would be worth about $165 to $185.

Q. Several years ago I acquired a white Royal Doulton character jug. It is 7 inches tall. On the base are the words "The McCallum." I would like any information you could give me about it.

A. "The McCallum," also known as "The Highlander," was available only in the large size and in white. Royal Doulton made 1,000 of the character jugs specifically for whiskey distiller D.J. McCallum around 1930.

Its value would probably be about $1,400 to $2,000.

Q. What can you tell me about a 1972 political poster that I have?

It was made for the George McGovern campaign and is signed in pencil by Alexander Calder. "Styria Studio Ltd." and "19/75" can be seen at the bottom.

A. American artist Alexander Calder (1898-1976) was well known for his mobiles. There were 175 lithographs made by Styria Studio Ltd. and yours was the 19th.

A McGovern lithograph by Calder would probably be worth about $250.

Address your questions to Anne McCollam, P.O. Box 490, Notre Dame, IN 46556. For a personal response, include picture(s), a detailed description, a stamped, self-addressed envelope and $5 per item (one item at a time).

This post-World War II ceramic figurine is worth about $225 to $275.

MIDSUMMER CROPS YIELD FALL VEGGIES

Do you stop sowing crops early in the season and then, regretfully, harvest your last few beets, lettuce, corn or cauliflower?

Don't cut yourself short. Plan ahead for fall crops and prolong the harvest of fresh vegetables well into the fall. You can do this by using row-cover protection and cold frames.

By planting the following crops in midsummer to early fall, you can enjoy the delicious bounty from your garden while others have to rely on local supermarkets for their produce. A good choice of midsummer crops for you to consider are Beans. Plant varieties of Provider Reodor and Royalty in midsummer to produce a fall crop. Disease-resistant varieties are another good choice.

Beets. Early Wonder Tall Top can be planted in late July for a fall harvest of small, tender beets and greens.

Broccoli. Direct seed or transplant Emerald City, Green Vallant, Segal or other varieties in July for a fall crop.

Carrots. For fall and storage carrots, Ingot and Rumba go to 100 days before frost.

Lettuce. Plant lettuce up to early September for a fall harvest. Lettuce can tolerate a light frost with little damage. A few good choices: leaf lettuce, red salad bowl, French crisp, to name a few.

ous to moisture, fading and such. Bottom line, you're facing almost equal choices in terms of low maintenance and good looks. Thus, both hardwood and tile can easily be damp-mopped dust-free, a major factor in fighting allergens. So, after all, it all boils down to a matter of taste.

REAL ESTATE FACTS

Get Started!

Is there a "right time" to buy a home? That's a question often posed by home buyers - to which there is no exact answer.

The right time to purchase a home is often during the months before a new child is born into a growing family. It may also be a result of a job transfer to a new area, or a promotion which justifies larger living quarters.

Perhaps the best time to buy is when the need or desire is matched by the financial ability to back up the purchase. On the other hand, you might spend years trying to analyze home prices, mortgage plans, and the rise and fall of interest rates - and still not get it right.

Make two simple decisions, and you could find yourself preparing for a move into that special home you've always dreamed of owning. First, decide whether you have the need or desire to make a move. Don't worry about whether you have the need or desire to make a move. Don't worry about whether you can find the right home - it will always be there waiting for you. Second, determine your financial ability to pay for the home. A visit to a local mortgage lender can help you make this determination. Expect to share your income, creditor information and employment history. The lender will do the rest by explaining exactly how much home you should purchase.

A real estate agent can help by setting up an appointment with the lender. Then, once you've been "pre-qualified", the agent will show you a wide selection of suitable homes. Is this the right time for you? If so, get started today!

Before you read this, take off all your clothes.

Now look in the mirror for signs of melanoma/skin cancer. Notice any changes in the shape or color of your moles or freckles? Do you have any new blemishes that are larger than 1/4-inch, varied in color, irregular or asymmetrical in shape? If so, you may have melanoma or another form of skin cancer and you should see a dermatologist. Left alone, melanoma will spread throughout your body and eventually kill you. Melanoma can be successfully cured if caught early. Okay, you can put your clothes back on now.

Prepare yourself for college with U.S. Savings Bonds.

Remember all those college costs when you were a student? Sure, tuition was expensive. But the bill for room and board was often higher than tuition. Plus there were books, a bike, typewriter...all those things college students needed to survive on campus.

Now, a mere fifteen years later, parents shell out over twice what it was in the early 80s. Those $300 typewriters have been replaced by $1,900 computers. So what's it going to cost when your children are ready? And what will replace the computer — a virtual reality college simulator? How much will that be?

Start saving now for those future college costs with U.S. Savings Bonds. They're guaranteed safe, and earn Treasury-based rates. You can get them through most banks or through employers offering the Payroll Savings Plan. Plus families and individuals who use Savings Bonds for college tuition may qualify for a special tax exclusion.*

Craft mall opens in Walled Lake

By LINDA HAMILTON
Special Writer

Do you have a cement goose that needs a new wardrobe? Or maybe you've been looking for a floral arrangement for mom's birthday. How about that Hoosier cabinet that used to be in grandma's kitchen? The opening of the Countryside Craft Mall and Antiques in Walled Lake last month may have ended the search.

This marks the third Countryside establishment that Linda Macchiarolo and her two brothers, Jim and Tom Powers, have teamed up to open. The first store was opened in Livonia on Plymouth Road in 1993, and their second in Sterling Heights near Eighteen Mile Road and Van Dyke, in 1994.

"I used to work and manage craft malls when I lived in Texas and Arkansas," said Macchiarolo. "So I sort of brought the idea home with me when I moved back to Michigan." Jim and Tom Powers had both owned businesses so the three siblings came together like "bread and butter. All three of us grew up in this area in Milford. So we have always wanted to open up a store out here. We thought that Walled Lake, being so close to Novi, as well as (the Haggerty Connector) coming through here soon and everything else that's going on, we thought that this area was perfect for what we have to offer," said Macchiarolo.

The Walled Lake store can handle a total of close to 400 different vendors and was about 70 percent full at its opening. About 100 of these vendors also have booths at the Sterling Heights and Livonia locations.

A crafter or antique dealer interested in renting space at Countryside can simply stop by the store with some samples or pictures of what they make or sell, pick out the size of booth, sign a six- or 12 month lease and "keep your booth" stocked, keep it clean and keep your booth stocked," Macchiarolo said. "That's about all we ask of our vendors. We don't ask them to do a lot; that's what they pay us for. We'd like them to concentrate on making their products." The vendors are paid twice a month and Countryside handles all the headaches attached with the credit cards and check writing. If a check bounces, the vendor still gets paid. There is a lay-away program as well as a televised security system.

The cost for renting a booth ranges from $50 per month to $300 per month, depending on the size of the booth. The average booth rental is around $115 a month for a 4 foot by 5 foot booth. If a crafter specializes in a smaller craft, such as jewelry, display cases can be rented as well.

"Most people who start out with a smaller booth will eventually ask for a larger space because they've overgrown what they started out with," said Macchiarolo.

The most popular items that crafters make are floral arrangements and goose clothes. "I have so many goose clothes; if you've got a goose then I've got the outfit and I've been told that we have the best prices at our stores. People are saying that they spend $30 or $40 and we sell the outfits for about $18. Some people tell me that they are buying more goose clothes than clothes for themselves."

The craft mall tries to limit the number of crafters making the same type of items so that there is a good variety available to shoppers. "I actually need some wood dealers here," states Macchiarolo. "I don't have enough wood makers and that tends to be very popular."

Although she doesn't make any crafts herself, Macchiarolo said she is definitely a craft collector. Everyday she sees something in her stores that she wants to take home.

"My mom is our best customer," Macchiarolo said. "You get a good deal here; you can't go to Frank's or Michael's, buy the stuff and make it yourself for the price that our vendors sell it for. I have customers telling me all the time, 'I can't make this for this price,' especially the floral pieces."

Macchiarolo can be reached at Countryside Craft Mall and Antiques on Maple Road in Walled Lake. (810) 926-8650 for information regarding booth rental.

The mall is open seven days a week with later hours on Thursdays and Saturdays.

"I would love to find someone who knows something about antiques, actually," said Macchiarolo. "Our antique furniture sells really well and it would be nice to have someone who can help the customers with their antique and collectible questions."

Do your estate planning early

such as the death of a spouse, birth of a new child or grandchild, or a second marriage. Also, check with your CPA to find out if any tax law changes necessitate changes to your will.

GIFT AND ESTATE TAX

Uncle Sam allows everyone to get a unified tax credit that, in effect, lets $600,000 pass to your heirs tax-free. As soon as your estate exceeds this amount, you're subject to Federal estate taxes which range from 37 to 55 percent. You may also be subject to state inheritance or estate taxes. Keep in mind that if you own a home, have lots of stock, a large pension, expensive jewelry or collectibles, you can easily exceed the $600,000 threshold. That's why it's important to review your total assets periodically to determine how much you need to remove from your estate to avoid triggering the estate tax or to minimize it. One way to remove money from your estate is by making large gifts. The IRS allows you to make annual gifts of up to $10,000 of property per individual—$20,000 if you are electing to make a joint gift with a spouse—without any tax ramifications and without reducing your unified tax credit. Gifts that are larger than these amounts are generally subject to gift tax.

CHARITABLE GIFTS

Another way to remove property from your taxable estate is by giving it to your favorite charity either while you are alive or through your will. If you make such gifts while you are alive, you receive a deduction on your income tax return. You can set up a trust to bequeath assets to a charity for its use after you die. In the meantime, you collect the income from these assets. After your death or, in some cases, after the death of the surviving beneficiary, the property passes to the charity.

THE SURVIVING SPOUSE

You can transfer an unlimited amount of assets to your spouse tax free. However, doing so may not always be beneficial to your family. Such transfers can boost the surviving spouse's assets over the $600,000 threshold and result in increased estate taxes when he or she dies. A way to provide for a spouse without risking incurring higher estate taxes is to create a bypass trust. This vehicle allows the deceased spouse's assets to transfer to a trust, instead of directly to the surviving spouse. The trust can be managed to provide ongoing income to the surviving spouse, with the principal transferring to other heirs upon the surviving spouse's death.

LIFE INSURANCE TRUST

Another option is to set up an irrevocable life insurance trust. This arrangement is similar to a bypass trust. At your death, life insurance proceeds would go directly into a trust, instead of to a beneficiary, effectively removing the money from your estate for estate tax purposes. A trustee (which could be a family member) would then invest the money based on your instructions and the investment proceeds could provide the surviving spouse or other designated individuals with a steady stream of income.

Many other trust arrangements also exist that can benefit your family and minimize your tax burden. CPAs urge you to look at all your options and emphasize that, ultimately, the right estate planning strategy for you will depend on the amount of your assets and the financial needs of your family.

Responsible parents teach the value of money

Do you hear from your children the much-asked question ... "Can I have ...?" or the demand statement "I want ...?" Do you wonder how or when to teach children about money?

According to Carol Kurth, Education Coordinator for Credit Counseling Centers Inc., a Farmington Hills-based, non-profit family financial counseling agency, all parents think about this at some time during the early years.

Consumer experts note that nearly 40 million children in our country between the ages of 5-14 purchase $16.7 billion worth of food, drinks, toys, and videos each year and influence another $165 billion in sales. This means that knowledge of money matters becomes very important for young people.

Kurth notes that responsible parents have so much to teach their children on a daily basis that addressing the important topic of money management is often not considered. Early lessons such as "thank you" and "please" are generally part of everyday learning as are responsibilities in personal relationships. However, learning to manage money is also important for every toddler, and later — the teen or young adult.

She suggests considering these ideas for the following approximate age groups:

AGES 3-6 YEARS

Children this age may not understand the relative value of money but they can learn about the purpose of money. They also can understand simple numbers and should know a penny from a nickel or dime. The fact that money can be exchanged for goods and services is an early, important lesson. Try taking them shopping and allowing your child to buy a small toy or treat. Give the child the money to hand to the cashier.

AGES 7-12 YEARS

At this stage, most children understand the relative value of the different coins and bills and can start learning to budget, and save. Giving the child a small allowance and the opportunity to make small purchases teaches from experience how far money will go. You can also show how saving one week will provide more spending power the next.

AGES 13-18 YEARS

This group is heading for the young adult stage and tends to need more spending money, mostly because of their increasing social lives and peer group pressures. They will want to buy food, entertainment, and some kinds of clothing. In addition to toys and treats. Broaden their financial experiences and increase their responsibility by encouraging them to earn extra money for those "I want ..." items.

In the early teen years young people can deliver newspapers, babysit, rake leaves, or perform other suitable chores for relatives or neighbors. They can even be taught to work out a budget and save for more costly items such as compact disks, CD or cassette players, and magazines.

Later, part-time employment can give the older teens the income they need and increase their sense of financial management. We begin to see them enter into the world of adult responsibilities which most in this group can handle. By this time, they should be capable of making most of their personal financial decisions with minimal guidance, according to Kurth.

They should now be learning the importance of saving for the future to help pay for "big ticket" items such as shoes, clothing, sports equipment, and even a first car or college education.

AGES 19 AND OVER

By now, a child will be working at a full-time job or will be in college. Sound financial lessons taught throughout childhood should help the young adult face independence with more confidence. However, they can still benefit from parents' decisions about money matters. Share financial experiences with your child. If you have a good relationship, you can answer questions regarding taxes, investments, and credit. Don't hesitate if you feel you, or family members, need the help of a financial advisor.

Survey wins MESC high marks from Michigan employers

Michigan's public employment service scored well in a recent survey of state employers and is becoming a recommended source for job applicants, according to findings released today by the Michigan Employment Security Commission (MESC).

"In our recent survey of employers, 73 percent of those responding said they would recommend MESC's Job Service to other employers," MESC director F. Robert Edwards reported. "And among those who have used the service nearly half said they have used it more than once."

The survey went to 15,000 Michigan employers in December and followed up on a similar survey conducted by MESC in 1994. The current survey looked at the quality of service employers receive from MESC and also the importance they attach to various employment services.

"Among the survey findings, I was gratified to see the high ratings that MESC staff received from employers," Edwards said. "Employers gave our Job Service staff high grades for being courteous, well informed and prompt."

Most employers also found Job Service forms to be easily understood and staff easy to reach. On average, they now place greater importance on MESC Job Service products than they did in the 1994 survey.

"Among the various employment services we offer employers, the greatest importance was attached to those services that will help them find qualified workers," Edwards said. "In today's job market, it is becoming more and more difficult to find 'good' employees because of the labor shortages that exist in many areas."

The survey also revealed some areas where the agency needs to improve.

"We still need to educate employers about the services we offer," Edwards noted. "Less than half of the responding employers were aware of Job Service programs and services, which is regrettable considering that their tax dollars pay for Job Service."

"We also need to work with employers to improve our ability to match the right worker with right job," he added.

MESC's Job Service through a statewide network of 52 offices, operates Michigan's public labor exchange program. It offers a range of services to help meet the employment needs of both employers and job seekers, and it does so without charging a fee to either party.

During its last program year, which ended in June 1995, MESC filled nearly 98,000 job openings, at a cost to the agency of only $294 per opening. Sixty-one percent of the time employers who listed their job openings with Job Service hired workers referred by the agency.

Insurance covers golf damage

Michiganders are serious about golf. There are an estimated 1.5 million people here participating in the sport, on the state's 855 golf courses. Michigan ranks third in the nation for number of public and private courses.

So, with all this activity, accidents are bound to happen. But what if you are the guilty party? What if you bean someone with a banana ball or ding a Cadillac with your duck hook? Are you covered by insurance?

Standard homeowners, renters and condominium insurance policies are the primary source of protection for golfing accidents, according to Terry Buckles, president of Michigan Association of Insurance Co. (MAIC). "For example, if an errant tee shot injures someone else or damages their property, the personal liability provisions in these dwelling policies will normally provide coverage," he said.

If a claim or lawsuit is brought against a golfer, the consumer's dwelling insurance contract can provide for his/her legal defense. It can also pay any damages for which he/she is determined to be responsible, up to maximum dollar amounts specified in the policy. Most dwelling insurance contracts include at least $50,000 to $100,000 in coverage for personal liability; however, higher limits can be purchased for relatively few dollars.

This personal liability insurance applies only to accidental losses, Buckles cautioned. There is no coverage for acts intended to cause injury or damage.

Many standard dwelling policies also extend personal liability coverage to the use of motorized carts on the golf course. Most do not, however, include physical damage coverage for such vehicles. Carts are normally insured through an endorsement (addition) to the dwelling policy and/or with a separate policy.

What if golf clubs are stolen from a car parked at the golf course? Even though a motor vehicle is involved, a personal property theft of this type would most likely be covered under the consumer's dwelling insurance policy.

The amount your insurance company would pay for the stolen clubs depends on the deductible amount — and the type of personal property coverage you selected for your dwelling insurance. In these policies you can choose replacement cost or actual cash value (depreciated) coverage.

THE BENEFITS STACK UP.

The 50 million acres of forests that blanket Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan produce much more than firewood.

Our forests produce lumber for homes. Paper for school books. Clean water for our lakes and streams. Clean air, too. Trees provide a home for wildlife, a place for recreation... an abundance of scenic beauty.

Modern day forest management is carefully conducted to perpetuate values beneficial and dear to all of us.

*Managing our forests today...
for tomorrow's value and enjoyment.*
