Suspect nabbed in credit union robbery

Small-time heist could result in major sentence

By ROBERT JACKSON

Two hundred dollars. That's all the thief got when he robbed the Community Federal Credit Union Aug. 30. Northville Police were able to apprehend a suspect, Jeffrey Robert Campbell of Northville, about three hours after he allegedly presented a note to a credit union bank teller, demanding several hundred dollars. Campbell pled not guilty to bank robbery charges Saturday. His preliminary hearing has been set for Sept. 13 at 35th District Court. If convicted of the charges Campbell could face a sentence of life in prison. The credit union is located on Main near Griswold in downtown Northville. According to Northville Police Detective Dave Fondelet, Campbell allegedly walked into the credit union at about 11:15 a.m. and gave a teller a note saying "give me the $100's and $50's." The teller thought the man was joking, but realized he was serious after he became insistent and told the employee he was in a hurry. "The teller removed two $100 bills and Campbell apparently grabbed the money from her and walked out the door," Fondelet said.

Credit union officials immediately notified the police, who responded within minutes. By that time, though, the offender had vanished. The suspect did not have a weapon and nobody was hurt during the robbery, Fondelet said. The credit union's surveillance cameras caught the act on tape. The teller and other credit union employees were able to give officers a description of the suspect, according to the police report. Officers were also aided by a Northville businessman, who told police he had seen a person

Community facilities part of building program

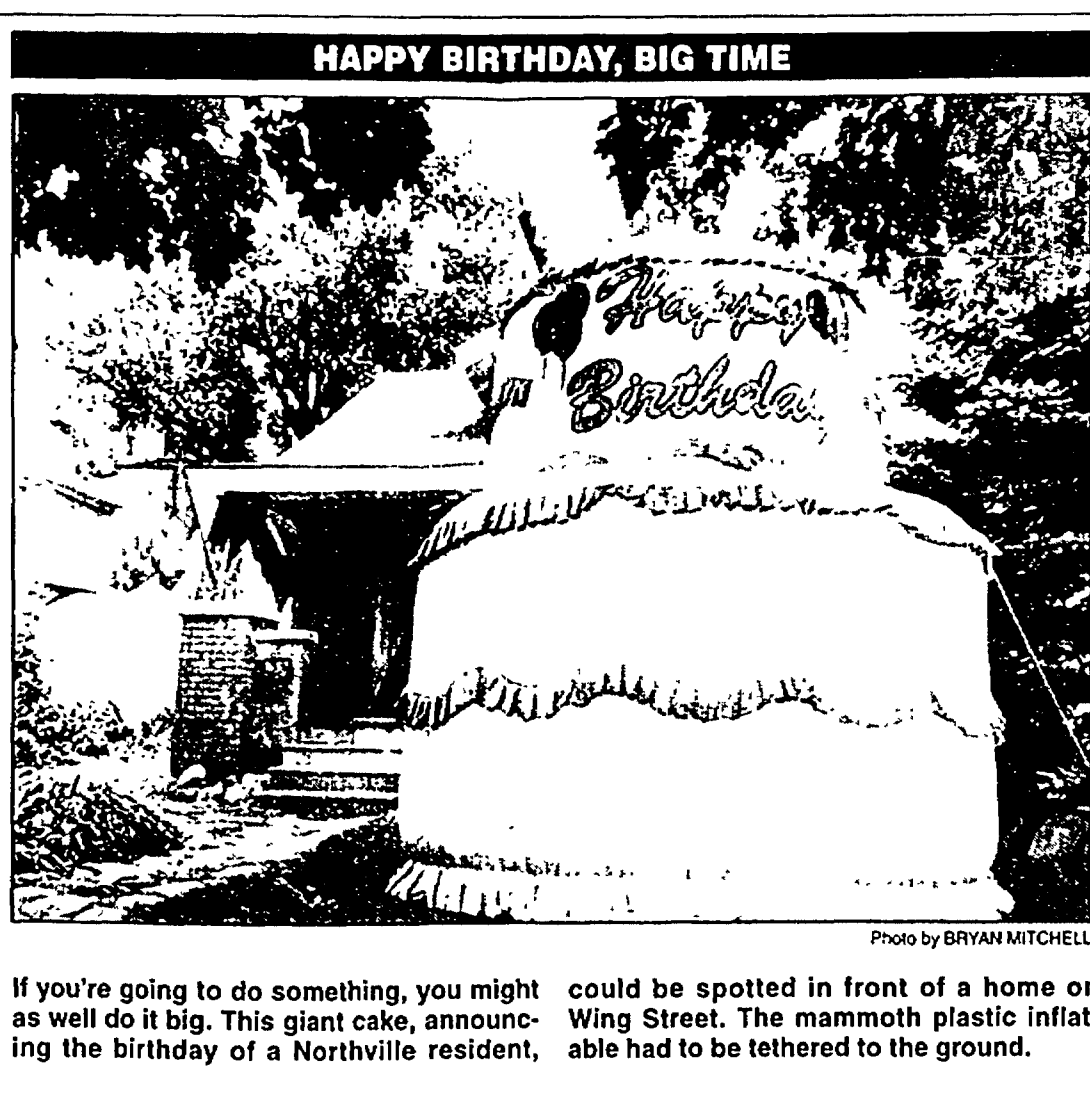

By ROBERT JACKSON

Students and teachers won't be the only ones directly benefiting from passage of next month's $61 million bond issue, according to school district officials. Northville civic organizations and the community's Recreation Department could acquire new facility space if taxpayers approve the bond sale. That's the message school officials are sharing with patrons as they continue their push for the biggest bond request to go before voters in the history of the school district. With the election less than one month away, district administrators have been conducting preliminary discussions with city and township officials, as well as with members of various civic organizations. Their message - should the bonds pass and a new high school gets built, the district is willing to open a portion of the existing high school for community use. "If we build a new high school we will have plenty of available square footage for use, and we believe a partnership between the community and the school district in finding ways to use that space would benefit us all," Superintendent Leonard Reznierski said. "As we continue this dialog I want to

Unique novelty act planned for Festival

By ROBERT JACKSON
Staff Writer

Last year's main performing act prompted comments about how the Victorian Festival had gone to the dogs. This year things will be different - somewhat. Hal and his Victorian Baboons will highlight the family entertainment at the Eighth Annual Northville Victorian Festival, Sept.

13-15. The act, which is being billed as entertaining and educational by festival coordinators, will perform all three days at the following times: Sept. 13, 7:30 to 8:30 p.m.; Sept. 14, noon, 2 p.m., 4 p.m., and 6 p.m.; Sept. 15, 11 a.m. to noon, 2:30, and 4:30 p.m.

According to Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Laurie Marrs, the festival has always included animal acts. "People didn't have television or video games during the Victorian era and animal acts provided people with entertainment," she explained. "That's why we always schedule an animal act - it's in Parking plan plays before packed house

By ROBERT JACKSON
Staff Writer

Despite a standing room only crowd of interested residents there was no public comment on the Our Lady of Victory Catholic Church (OLV) phase one parking expansion plan Tuesday. More than 100 people jammed the Northville city council chambers to catch a glimpse of the preliminary plan that was brought before planning commissioners. The church is seeking preliminary site plan approval for the parking expansion, as well as approval of a special land use permit. The commission did set a public hearing date of Oct. 15. It's expected that at that time residents will have plenty of comments in favor of - and against - the proposed expansion. At Tuesday's meeting, however, planning commissioners spent more than an hour going over the preliminary plan. The church is requesting approval for the development of a 187 car parking lot to be located on church property at the corner of Main Street and Orchard Drive. According to Ron Cieslak, an architectural consultant representing OLV, the preliminary plan attempts to avoid disrupting the parking patterns of the surrounding Orchard Heights neighborhood. "According to the city's parking

Library prepares for its new home

Move to be completed Oct. 5

The Northville District Library will be closed for one month beginning this Sunday while it moves into its new home. Saturday will be the library's final day of business. It will be open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. that day then it will be closed from Sunday, Sept. 8, through Saturday, Oct. 5. The library will be back in business on Sunday, Oct. 6, in a grand opening ceremony to celebrate and commemorate the new library building on Cady Street. The public is invited to attend and the festivities will get under way at 2 p.m. Refreshments and entertainment for children and adults are planned.

You can check materials out of several other libraries in the area while Northville's is closed. You must have a valid library card to do so, however. If you don't have one just stop by the library before it closes. Bring a valid ID which proves your Northville residency and your card will be processed while you wait. If you have any materials checked out which will be due back during the closing, please remember they must still be turned in on time. Deposit them in the library's regular drop boxes by the south doors of city hall. Anyone with a special interest in the Victorian age, ancient Egypt or

Band to sport casual look in parade

By ROBERT JACKSON
Staff Writer

Victorian Festival parade-goers will notice something missing when the Northville High School Marching Band performs Sept. 13. No uniforms. The 200-member band will be wearing T-shirts and black slacks instead of the familiar orange and black uniforms associated with the marching musicians. That's because the band hasn't received the new uniforms that were ordered last spring. According to Mary Rumbell, wife of band director Mike Rumbell, the company providing the uniforms - Stanbury Uniform Co. - recently contacted the high school to notify them that, because of a backlog, the new uniforms wouldn't be delivered until October. "The uniforms were ordered last April after the school board OK'd the purchase," Rumbell explained. "We were told they would be ready by the first week in September, and now they're telling us it won't be until October before we receive them."

The delay could also result in the band not having the uniforms in time for the school's homecoming parade and game, which is scheduled for Oct. 4. The school has enough uniforms to outfit about half of the band, but Rumbell said that until all of the band members have uniforms the band will have to perform in T-shirts and slacks. "There's not much we can do about it, they have essentially told us that we'll just have to wait."

Materials to go on loan during weeks of closing

Northville District Library has come up with a unique way to share its resources during its transition to the new library building.

The library's last day is Sept. 7, until its open house on Oct. 6, so a committee composed of staff members of the Novi and Northville libraries met to determine which types of materials would be most in demand during that time.

As a result, arrangements have been made for a special collection of Northville District Library books to be available at Novi Public Library. This collection includes books on insects, leaves, Victoriana and other topics known to be needed, especially by students.

Upon the opening of the new Northville District Library building, the collection will be returned "home."

Both libraries hope that by moving a part of Northville's collection to Novi, people will be able to find the library resources they need as conveniently as possible.

City Council passes tree protection law

By ROBERT JACKSON

Staff Writer

Northville is taking steps to protect landmark trees in the city. The city council voted unanimously Tuesday to approve an ordinance geared toward regulating, maintaining, and protecting trees on private property.

Dubbed the woodlands ordinance, the plan was drafted by the city's planning commission, which began studying ways to preserve and protect trees in Northville's "urban environment."

The ordinance requires the acquisition of a permit to remove and relocate any tree with a diameter breast height of six inches or greater.

Permits would also be needed to remove historic trees or landmark trees, to remove trees within a forest, and for clear cutting.

Violation of the ordinance would be considered a misdemeanor with fines not to exceed $500 per tree and/or 90 days in jail.

Word said adoption of the plan highlights the importance of preserving and planting quality trees in the city.

Police News

Teens investigated for pot possession

With only one week gone in the new school year, two Northville High School teenagers already find themselves in hot water.

The two teens, ages 16 and 17, are being investigated by Northville police for possible possession of marijuana. The investigation stems from an incident Aug. 26.

According to the police report the two students attempted to leave the high school but the parking lot attendant thwarted that attempt. While stopping the teens the attendant noticed one of the students had a baggie containing a "leafy substance." When the attendant walked the students to the principal's office he noticed that one of the teens threw a wadded dollar bill under a vehicle in the parking lot.

When the attendant later retrieved the bill he found it too contained a leafy substance.

The students were questioned by high school administrators and local police were called.

The suspected marijuana was sent to the State Police Crime Lab for testing. Police are continuing to investigate the incident.

Both teens received three day suspensions.

SPEAKERS SWIPED: A 16-year-old Northville boy reported his car speakers stolen Aug. 31.

According to police Pioneer speakers were taken from the youth's car while it was parked at the Northville Swim Club.

No suspects have been identified. The estimated value of the speakers is $200.

PURLOINED PHONE: A 53-year-old Northville man reported his cellular phone stolen Aug. 29.

The man and his wife had been dining at a Northville restaurant and had used the phone to check on their babysitter. When they left the restaurant, they forgot the phone, and when they returned to claim it later they were told nobody had found the missing phone.

Police have no further information. The estimated cost of the phone is $130.

STEREO STOLEN: A shoplifter at Meijer on Friday tried to take a stereo out of the store without paying for it, according to township police.

The accused, a 27-year-old

Detroit man, was arrested at about 8:15 a.m. that day after store detectives said they saw the alleged theft take place. The man was booked and released at the scene and faces a court hearing on Sept. 13.

BIKE SHANGHAIED: A stunt bicycle was stolen from outside an Innsbrook Apartments woman's front door during the night of Aug. 23-24.

The woman, 38, told township police the bike was stored there. It is valued at $239.

DRUNK "ENOUGH": A Livonia man spotted speeding and driving dangerously down Six Mile Road allegedly fessed up that he'd been drinking when stopped by township police.

An officer saw the man's 1987 Ford Escort on Six Mile at about 4:45 p.m. last month and said it was speeding. According to him the Escort passed a vehicle it was following by using a turning "flare" despite the fact that the vehicle was not making a turn.

Police stopped the car near the McDonald's restaurant on Six Mile and as an officer began speaking to the driver he allegedly stuck both hands out of the window and said "Go ahead. Take me."

When asked how much he'd been drinking, the man allegedly replied "enough." Testing later at police headquarters, according to reports, put the man's blood alcohol level at .23 percent, more than twice the legal limit.

He was held until he sobered up, then released on bond and faces a court hearing for drunk driving and not having a driver's license on his person when stopped.

EQUIPMENT STOLEN: A Pickney man paying a visit to Home Depot lost $380 worth of items to thieves.

Township police said the man told them the snatching of his compressor, extension cord and hose out of his 1988 Ford pickup took place sometime between 8:40-9:05 p.m. when he was inside the store.

If you have any information about these or any other illegal incidents please call Northville city police at 349-1234 or Northville Township police at 349-9400.

fitting the suspect's description and that the man was a former employee.

Local police and a representative of the FBI first began searching for the suspect in downtown Northville, and eventually apprehended him without incident by 2:15 p.m. Authorities found Campbell at the Novi Car Wash where he works as a car dryer.

"We approached him and asked if we could talk with him about something that had happened earlier in the day, and he admitted that he had robbed a bank," Fendele added. "At that point we arrested him and transported him to the Northville Police Department."

During questioning Campbell said that after he had left the bank he went home, changed clothes, and got a haircut before reporting for work. When arrested he had $186.61 in his possession, according to Fendele.

The report also stated that Campbell suffers from schizophrenia, and takes medication for the condition.

Traffic safety urged now that school's open

School's open.

It's a time for students to review reading, writing, and arithmetic - and for parents and adults to remember the ABCs of traffic safety.

"At this time of year, we want to remind drivers to be extra careful because many excited and carefree children are venturing into traffic for the first time, not necessarily thinking about their safety," said Jerry Basch, AAA Michigan Community Safety Services manager.

"Drivers should slow down in all residential areas, not just in school zones," Basch added. "In 1994, 57 percent of the pedestrians ages five to nine who were killed nationally, were struck while crossing or entering the road between intersections. By driving more slowly and carefully, drivers give themselves the extra time needed to react when a child darts into the road after a lost ball or to make it to the bus stop on time."

Motor vehicle crashes are the leading cause of death for children under 15. In Michigan, from 1990 through 1994, 146 child pedestrians under 15 were killed in motor vehicle crashes, an average of 29 children per year.

In addition, during the 1993-94 school year, 45 students were killed nationally in school bus transportation accidents.

Of these, 35 were either approaching or leaving a school bus loading zone, according to the National Safety Council's Accident Facts 1995.

"These numbers are just too high," said Basch, "when you consider that those lives could have been saved if drivers and students had exercised a little more caution."

AAA Michigan recommends the following safety tips:

- Slow down around schools and in residential areas.
- In neighborhoods near schools, drive with your headlights on (even during the day) so children and other drivers can see you.
- Look for clues that indicate children might be in the area (i.e., school safety patrols, adult crossing guards, bicycles, school buses, playgrounds).
- Practice extra caution in bad weather.
- Always stop for school buses that are loading and unloading students.
- Buckle up every time you get in a car.

Diversity group prepares for year

Northville is a progressive community, ever changing and yet remaining the same in terms of old-fashion humanitarian values and appreciation of the good life.

As the world becomes a smaller place and Northville becomes more diverse in its population, A Community Organization Recognizing Diversity (ACORD) hopes members of the community will join them in promoting harmonious relations between diverse groups which share these values.

ACORD encourages people to come to its monthly meetings, participate on its various committees and participate in its special events throughout the year. The organization meets the second Tuesday of each month at Northville High School, Room 130, 7-9 p.m.

In the meantime, here are points to consider concerning the diversity and, more importantly, the unity of the community:

• Make your home a "safe haven" from outside pressures and prejudices.

• Through education and understanding, help your children become confident, help them deal logically with problems they encounter and break down barriers created by prejudice.

• Give them tools - like self esteem, team spirit - a sense of respect and cooperation - to help them achieve their full potential. Instill a sense of comfort in them. Help them develop interactive qualities.

• Help your children understand that bias and stereotypes can hurt people.

• Remember that there is no such thing as a "good" stereotype. Any label that generalizes about a group of people is unfair. No person should have to be penalized because others have determined what the group's characteristics are or aren't.

• Commit to discourage and to disagree openly with prejudiced comments, jokes or actions from those around you.

• Develop the ability to listen and the desire to want to understand people whose experiences have been different from yours.

Animal act to perform at '96 weekend festival keeping with the authenticity of the era." Last year, the Doggies of the Wild West were the main stage act.

The baboons ride bicycles and unicycles, run on barrels, and perform balancing acts, according to Marrs. She said the animals' master makes the performance educational for kids.

"Hal takes the time to explain to kids why the baboons act certain ways and how they develop skills," she remarked. "It's really quite amazing to see."

"Kids and adults will walk away feeling entertained and that they've learned something."

Performances will take place in the bandshell, just off Main near the Victorian clock.

Marrs said Main Street between Center and Wing, last year's staging area, will contain entertainment for kids and adults this year.

"We're calling that area 'Kids Row' but it's really for the whole family," Marrs explained.

"We'll have plenty of activities for kids and their parents to enjoy. We have really emphasized family entertainment in the acts that we have put together this year," she added.

There will be plenty of fun for everyone during the weekend. Marrs said that Dr. Rudy Randolph will make his yearly appearance during the Festival. Strolling street entertainers, a fine art market, an antique show, and dulcimer players are also on tap for festival goers.

All the entertainment is free.

There will also be entertainment at Mill Race Historical Village, including the yearly duck race, which is scheduled for Sunday, Sept. 15.

"You won't need a time machine to travel back to the 1890s," Marrs said. "This festival celebrates the art, history and romance of the Victorian era."

Hines is foot-traffic friendly this month

Saturday in the Park has been a big hit with walkers, runners, bicyclists and skaters for the past few years. Now, with additional funding from the recently approved parks millage, Wayne County is able to extend the program to Sundays.

Wayne County voters approved a request for 0.25 mill for parks improvements Aug. 6. The millage is good for five years.

Every Sunday through Sept. 29 six miles of Hines Drive will be closed to vehicular traffic between 9 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. so that the public can run, walk, cycle and/or skate safely.

"It's great to see people coming out to enjoy the park," said Hurley Coleman, director of Wayne County Parks. "Parents can bring their children with tricycles and bicycles with training wheels on Saturdays and Sundays."

Hines Drive will be closed from Ann Arbor Trail to Outer Drive for the Sunday in the Park program. Parking is available at Warrendale (Warren Avenue east of Telegraph); Merriman Hollow (Merriman Road and Hines Drive); and Nankin Mills Picnic Areas (Hines Drive and Ann Arbor Trail).

Pie guy to serve as first-ever parade grand marshal

By ROBERT JACKSON
Staff Writer

The Victorian Festival parade will once again kick off the yearly festival, and for the first time in its history will host a grand marshal.

The parade, sponsored by Great Harvest Bread Company, is scheduled to take place Sept. 13 from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. in downtown Northville. The streets will be closed to motorized vehicles and should be filled with hundreds of residents in Victorian era costumes, marching bands, carriages and other entertainment acts.

This year, Northville favorite Soupy Sales will be the parade's grand marshal. He will accompany the festival queen along the parade route that winds through the city's historic district.

Soupy is also slated to perform at Genit-ti's during the festival weekend.

According to Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Laurie Marrs, parade walkers will travel the following route:

Starting from the Recreation Center and Old Village School parking lot, the parade heads north on Wing Street to Main. A turn west onto Main moves the parade to Rogers Street. From Rogers the route will turn north to Dunlap then head due east.

After crossing Center Street, the parade will travel to Hutton then turn south back to Main.

The parade closes with a west turn on Main Street back to Center and then south to where it began.

Marrs expects 300 or more people to participate in the parade this year, which keeps getting bigger and bigger, thanks in part, she explained, to the efforts of Parade Chairperson Donna Pallas. "Putting together a parade is a huge undertaking, and Donna has done a marvelous job this year," she said.

The Northville High School marching band is also scheduled to lead the parade through the downtown streets.

Anyone wishing to walk in the parade should be at the Recreation Center/Old Village School parking lot by 6 p.m. Participants should register with Donna Pallas 348-3767.

Band stuck marching in T-shirts

Rumbell said. "It's a shame because we wanted to have the uniforms in time for the Victorian parade but that's obviously not going to happen."

Stanbury is one of only two band uniform outfitters in the country, Rumbell added.

"I just wanted the community to know what the situation was so there would be no surprise when the band performs at the Victorian Festival," she said.

STRONG QUADS FOR THE WEAK KNEED

It is not uncommon for those who run for exercise on a regular basis to experience knee pain. This problem, known as patellofemoral syndrome, is often painful enough to drive runners in various directions in search of relief. The good news is that a recent Finnish study pinpoints the best treatment for common knee pain related to running. When sports-medicine researchers compared the effects of rest, saline injections, anti-inflammatory medications, and quadriceps exercises, they found that strengthening the quads afforded the best treatment. Strong quadriceps were found to stabilize the knees and to take some of the pressure off during running. Thus, runners who are confronted with this problem are encouraged to see physical therapists as a means of overcoming their knee pain.

Based on each patient's diagnosis, therapy programs at Northville Physical Therapy & Rehabilitation Inc. are designed to address individual treatment goals such as reducing pain, increasing muscle strength and endurance, improving functional ability, and upgrading communication skills. To schedule a consultation, call us at 349-3816, or see us at 332 E. Main Street, Suite A. We specialize in orthopedic and sports injuries, pain management, neck and back rehabilitation and general rehabilitation.

P.S. The quadriceps should not be strengthened without also strengthening the opposing hamstrings.

Multi theater development clears final hurdle

The topic again was theaters, but the theatrics were subdued at last week's Livonia City Council meeting.

The council, as expected, voted 9 to 0 to override Mayor Jack Kirksey's veto, issued earlier in the day, of controversial plans for a 20 screen movie theater on Haggerty north of Seven Mile, just east of the Northville Township border.

Developers have a few more hoops to jump through, but work at the site is set to begin in mid-September. The theater — the anchor of the planned $30 million Pentagon Center Entertainment Campus — is expected to be completed by August of 1997.

Councilwomen Val Vandersloot and Maureen Miller Brosnan, in explaining their votes, said the AMC Entertainment multiplex and the Pentagon Center are exciting for the area's future.

"This is the right project for Livonia at the right time, and I wish it the best of luck," Brosnan said.

"It will be successful exactly because of its location," said Vandersloot, answering Kirksey's contention that the 35.4 acres of undeveloped land is the wrong spot for the complex. Putting it in the city's core, as Kirksey and others have suggested, would jeopardize other movie theaters in the area, Vandersloot said.

Because of other commercial projects planned for neighboring Northville Township, "this property needs attention right now," she added.

Residents of Northville Township's WindRidge neighborhood had expressed concerns about the large complex. The city's planning commission recommended rejection of zoning waivers for the plan, but the council approved the proposal unanimously.

Livonia has a strong mayor form of government, with the mayor possessing veto authority over city council decisions. The council, though, has the power to override.

Brosnan said she supports the project because it is unique for the area, will be designed for families and pedestrians and will have a cultural component — outdoor space will be available for such things as concerts and art shows.

Kirksey said he vetoed the zoning waiver for the theater because he thinks a better use for the land could be found.

"If we want to be a great city we would continue to seek out the best projects," the mayor said.

Kirksey also tried to counter arguments that the city will benefit from the permanent jobs the project will create and the taxes it will generate. Other projects, such as an office complex, could lead to better jobs and as much tax revenue, he said.

The mayor expressed concerns that the theater will lead to increased crime and draw more traffic than the roads can handle.

Kirksey had sought a compromise plan with fewer screens and, later, a parking deck to reduce the number of open-air parking spaces needed. Developers were willing to cut the number of screens but rejected the idea of a deck.

Unlike previous meetings at which the plans were discussed, few theater opponents turned out last week.

"We've lost our audience," said Ray Tent, commenting on the length of the meeting. The mayor's veto was the last issue on a 58-item council agenda.

Tent, a former planning commissioner and a leader of Citizens Against Constructing a 20-Theatre Complex in Livonia, called Kirksey "a real hero to us" for vetoing the zoning waiver while "knowing he had a stacked deck and it's going to go down."

First phase of construction starts soon

Groundbreaking is scheduled for next month, but some parts of the Pentagon Center Entertainment Campus aren't even on the drawing board yet.

The $30 million first phase of the planned 35.4-acre complex on Haggerty north of Seven Mile will consist of two full-service restaurants and the controversial anchor — a 20-screen, 4,056-seat AMC Entertainment movie theater — in a landscaped setting with parking, lighted, tree-lined sidewalks and a centerpiece fountain.

But developers are seeking other businesses that would complement the Pentagon Center's theme of leisure and entertainment, said Gary Jonna, executive vice president of the Jonna Companies.

"Everyone's been waiting to see if the theater's going to happen," Jonna said following the Livonia City Council's 7-0 override of Mayor Jack Kirksey's veto of a zoning waiver for the theater.

Complementary uses, Jonna said, could include a hotel, a health club, a bookstore and another restaurant. All those uses have been discussed.

In addition to what has been approved, the Pentagon site could accommodate two or three other businesses, Jonna said. He expects final decisions before the end of the year.

As presented to Livonia city officials, plans call for a third restaurant and about 40,000 square feet of retail space. But developers have made no secret of the fact that they are interested in other options.

Jonna said he is especially eager to attract a bookstore. "We think that would be a perfect fit," he said.

He is optimistic, but knows that will be a tough sell — Barnes & Noble plans a store at the corner of Six Mile and Haggerty in Northville Township.

Some clearing work at the Pentagon site could begin this week, Jonna said, but the major earth-moving will start in mid-September.

The theater is scheduled for completion in August of 1997, Jonna said. The restaurants — J. Alexander's and Champs Americana, both national chains — could be finished sooner than that, he added.

Developers will pay for road improvements — turn lanes on Haggerty and Seven Mile and possibly a traffic light at the complex's main entrance — estimated at a cost of $500,000.

Her adrenaline flows at the Democratic National Convention.

"I attended gavel-to-gavel until 12:30 in the morning for the roll call of the states," Jennifer Mulhern Granholm, Northville Township resident and state delegate, said one morning during a break in the delegation meeting.

"The excitement has palpably increased each day inside the actual convention. You missed me in the mornings because I've been running along the river, I jog," said Granholm, whose works as a Wayne County corporation counsel.

"I'm a co-whip. I help with what's needed on the floor. We meet at 11 a.m. We help with additional passes, signs and finding agendas. It's a heavy responsibility," Granholm joked. Actually the work is light in a well-organized conclave.

Her co-whips are familiar political names: Tom Lewand, former Oakland County commissioner, former state chair, personal lawyer of ex-Gov. James Blanchard; and Ron Thayer, a former aide for Blanchard and now working for Wayne County Executive Ed McNamara.

The convention grind is mild compared to the pace of the last few weeks. As the county's top civil lawyer, she worked on the Detroit Lions stadium deal — "a very rewarding experience. I went several nights without sleep to beat the deadline to get it (tax questions to support the stadium) on the Nov. 5 ballot."

What stood out at the convention?

"The Christopher Reeve speech was very much appreciated. He's not a traditional Democrat. He underscored the differences of visions of the two parties. It's ironic — a physical specimen who played Superman winds up a quadriplegic. It could happen to anyone."

"I'm a Catholic, and the Catholic Church has tried to pull people up who can't help themselves," said the member of Our Lady of Good Counsel parish in Plymouth. "I'm more comfortable with a party with an affinity to help."

"The issue of assault weapons has been very important to me. When I was in the U.S. attorney's office, all we did were guns and drugs. Drug cases all involved gangster weapons."

She was in Chicago solo for the convention. Husband Daniel Granholm Mulhern was home being vice-president of University of Detroit High School and watching their "fabulous" daughters Kate, 5, and Cecelia, 6, as they start school.

Jennifer Granholm's life has been a series of metamorphoses:

- "1976 was when I first became conscious of politics. I actually worked for (President) Jerry Ford in California."

- "In 1980 I became a U.S. citizen — I was born in Canada — and worked for (independent presidential candidate) John Anderson."

- "In 1984 I worked for (Democratic nominee Walter) Mondale, and in 1988 I was deputy director for constituencies for (nominee Michael) Dukakis."

- "I went to the American Academy of Dramatic Arts after high school because I wanted to become an actress. But I found you need to have some skills other than yourself. I told myself, 'I'm tired of being treated like this; I'll show you all; I'm going to the best law school.' That was a transforming experience. Women should be strong, and not have to rely on a life partner."

- "I was the first person in my family to go to college." That was the University of California at Berkeley, BA, 1984, with majors in political science and French; followed by a year at the Université de Bordeaux in France; and then Harvard Law School, JD, 1987, where she was editor-in-chief of the Civil Rights-Civil Liberties Law Review. "In law school, I was very left wing, doing protesting."

During law school in the summer of 1988 she came to Michigan to act as an intern for the American Civil Liberties Union.

After graduation, she worked as a law clerk for a year for Judge Damon Keith on the U.S. Court of Appeals, followed by a year as an executive assistant to Ed McNamara.

- For four years she prosecuted cases for the U.S. attorney's office, and with it came another metamorphosis.

"Now I'm more moderate. Being a prosecutor has made me pro-law enforcement. I love the idea of forcing the networks to show three hours of programming for children."

- After corporation counsel Saul Green became U.S. attorney in the Clinton Administration, McNamara looked around for a replacement on his staff.

"Mike Duggan (deputy executive) was interested in having someone who's a trial lawyer and not afraid to go to court. He pushed pretty hard for me."

Granholm has a staff of 70, including 30 lawyers on eight teams, handling litigation involving the airport, mental health, taxes, property and the environment.

And that is how a budding actress-turned academic-turned civil libertarian-turned prosecutor became corporation counsel, where she mainly defends county government.

July jobless rate creeps upward

Temporary layoffs at Michigan auto plants and jobseekers looking for summer work combined to push unemployment rates up in seven of Michigan's 10 major labor markets in July, according to seasonally unadjusted work force estimates developed by the Michigan Employment Security Commission (MESC).

"Only three areas reported declines in their July jobless rates," MESC director F. Robert Edwards said. "Unemployment dropped in the Upper Peninsula, Jackson and Saginaw-Bay-Midland areas."

July unemployment climbed sharply in the Flint and Detroit areas as their rates rose by more than a percentage point, increasing to 7.6 and 5.6 percent, respectively. The Ann Arbor area also had a significant increase as its rate climbed by six-tenths of a point to 3.4 percent.

Minor rate gains occurred in the Benton Harbor, Kalamazoo/Battle Creek, Grand Rapids/Muskegon and Lansing areas. Increases in these areas were less than half a percentage point.

Edwards explained that in those areas where unemployment rose, the increases were due largely to short-term model changeover layoffs at local auto plants and among auto industry suppliers. Summer jobseekers entering the job market also contributed to the rate gains.

"Most areas had job growth in their local construction industries," he said. "But these were offset by employment declines in manufacturing and services and by losses in local education as schools closed for the summer."

July employment levels rose in five areas, while labor force totals increased in seven.

Community facilities part of new school plan

ensure the community that we are open to any and all ideas that would be appropriate."

Parks and Recreation Director Traci Sincock is excited with the possibility of utilizing a portion of the space, and she said the department is looking forward to continuing the discussions.

"We have taken part in initial discussions, but everything is still very preliminary," she explained. "We're still in the concept stage and what we have to do now is brainstorm to come up with concrete ways to utilize the space."

"Here is an opportunity that we should strongly look at. I'm excited for the community," she added.

The district bond election is slated for Sept. 23. The total bond package is expected to cost taxpayers $61 million. The debt would be retired with an estimated increase of 2.35 mills.

The district will also be seeking a one-year 1.95 mill enhancement millage increase, which will bring $1.9 million in to the district. The funds will be used to support personnel costs that will aid in the implementation of new technology over a five year period.

Once the new high school is built the district plans to relocate Cooke Middle School to the existing high school facility. According to Assistant Superintendent Dave Bolitho the retrofitted building would have more than enough space to house 800 students - which the district projects will be the maximum population there - as well as other community functions.

According to a preliminary blueprint plan one of the two existing gymnasiums and the school's swimming pool could be run by the Parks and Recreation Department. Other amenities like community meeting rooms and a community fitness center, along with storage and office space, could be used by civic groups and the Senior Citizens Center.

Those spaces, according to Bolitho, would be set apart from the planned school area.

"We have designated 51,500 square feet as possible community use, and all we have to do is collectively decide how best to utilize that space," Bolitho said. "We want to develop an agreement that'll keep that community space permanent."

Bolitho said that housing the Recreation Department and Senior Citizens Center in the school would not compromise the education or safety of Cooke students because there would be very little overlap between the school and community use.

"We believe that there would be compatibility with the mixed use of that facility," he explained. "There are some procedures we'll have to look at so we know who is in the building to guarantee the safety of our students."

The remaining 211,000 square feet will be dedicated school area, according to the plan.

"Here is an opportunity that we should strongly look at. I'm excited for the community."

-Traci Sincock
Recreation Director

Bolitho also explained that moving Cooke to the current high school will allow the district to move its special needs facility from the Bryant Center in Livonia to the vacated middle school.

Although the expense and funding formulas need to be worked out, Rezmlerski said he'd like to see the space utilized by the community.

"We're willing to explore every option available to make this work in the best interests of everyone concerned," he said. "The community has already paid for this building and if the bond is approved we will have the unique opportunity to put this space to the best possible use."

According to a district-proposed bond cost summary, $48 million will be spent on the construction of the new high school facility. The conversion of the current high school to a middle school and other upgrades have been estimated at $11 million, with an additional $5.2 million in technology upgrade costs.

Cooke could get special ed students

By ROBERT JACKSON
Staff Writer

The current Cooke Middle School building will be put to good use if the school district moves students to a retrofitted high school facility.

That's because district officials plan to move the students and faculty of the Bryant Center, which now leases a facility from the Livonia School District, into the Cooke building if the $61 million bond issue is approved by voters Sept. 23.

According to district officials, passage of the bond proposal will result in the construction of a new high school. That would permit the conversion of the current high school facility into a 800 student capacity middle school and the transfer of the Bryant Center, a special needs facility, into the vacated Cooke building.

It would be the first time the center would be located within district boundaries.

Assistant Superintendent Dave Bolitho said Cooke would be a perfect building for the center.

"Programatically, the Cooke facility is more than adequate for the needs of the center," he explained. "We feel we could accomplish the move with very little renovation work."

The center currently has an enrollment of about 110 students, according to Bolitho, and has been a part of the school district since 1975.

The move would save the district transportation, food service and leasing costs, Bolitho added. By utilizing the Cooke building the district would also receive federal funds.

"With the facility in-district we'll realize savings as far as transporting students to and from the facility, as well as food service and other costs," he said.

"We'll also receive federal funding that will cover the overhead cost of keeping the building up and running."

School district gets grant from Kellogg Foundation

The Northville Public School District has been awarded a grant to develop educators and other staff members as leaders in preparation to meet the changing needs of American society.

The grant was awarded by the W.K. Kellogg Foundation, established in 1930 to "help people help themselves through the practical application of knowledge and resources to improve their quality of life and that of future generations."

The Galileo Consortium project, which secured the grant, was designed in partnership with nine organizations: Schoolcraft Community College; Oakland Community College; Wayne and Oakland Regional Education Agencies and the Novi, Farmington Hills, Walled Lake, Southfield and Northville Public Schools.

Dr. Leonard Rezmiarski, Northville Public Schools Superintendent, said he is proud to have Northville be a part of the regional project.

The $1.1 million grant will fund a leadership academy for approximately 150 educators over a four-year period.

The importance of the project centers on the changing role of educators in schools and society as they assume greater leadership responsibilities, not only in the operation of their own schools, but also as participants in the increasing involvement of the community in local educational decisions.

The project goes beyond other leadership programs with an organizational support structure for these developing leaders. Representatives from local boards of education, teachers' unions, and administrations will form an oversight committee that will assist teachers in their leadership roles, serve as a focal point for organizational change, and provide a network for developing projects among participating organizations.

Superintendents and college presidents from the participating agencies have been working for almost two years on the project, developing strategies to address their mutual concerns. As one superintendent said, change issues in education do not fit neatly into business reform models. Rather, educational systems are more complex with their unique moral concerns.

To achieve the greatest impact, the Foundation targets its grants toward specific focal points or areas. These include: health, food systems and rural development; youth and education, and higher education; and philanthropy and volunteerism.

Grants are concentrated in the United States, Latin America, the Caribbean and southern Africa.

Parking proposal unveiled

ordinance the church needs to provide a total of 350 parking spaces," Cieslak explained. "In this plan we're trying to minimize the impact of parking on the neighborhood and at the same time maintain the residential character."

The ordinance requires one parking space for each set of two seats, or every four feet of church pews. With 700 seats, the church needs 350 spaces to comply.

Insufficient parking at the church has been a source of recent controversy between OLV and Orchard Heights residents, Cieslak said. The expansion of the church's school facility is to be addressed in Phase II of the plan.

That fact doesn't sit well with commissioner Jim Allen, who said he'd prefer having both phases studied as one proposal.

"I'd like to see both phases combined because changes to one plan could have a big impact on the other," he said. "We shouldn't be doing this piecemeal."

City Planning Consultant Don Wortman listed more than 15 items that need to be addressed before approval of the parking expansion site plan can take place. Those items deal primarily with protecting and replacing trees at the site, soil erosion, site access and traffic circulation, landscaping, buffers, and lighting.

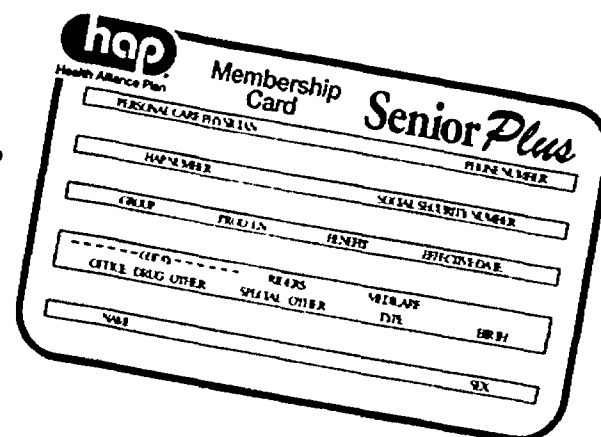

He also advised the commission that the process should be considered in two steps — consideration for a special use permit and consideration of the site plan.

"The special land use permit and site plan review must be considered under separate actions by this commission, and at this stage of the review, the comments should be primarily restricted to the site plan," he said.

Under the city's zoning ordinance churches and other church-related facilities are allowed as a special land use within the designated R-1B zoning. Wortman explained the church has about three weeks to make changes to the plan for consideration at the commission's Oct. 15 meeting. Cieslak said those changes will be made, and consultations with traffic engineers will take place well

Mill Race Matters

With Labor Day behind us summer is unofficially over, but the days continue to be a joy to behold.

Fall offers a wonderful opportunity to visit Mill Race Village and tour the grounds during any daylight hours. Buildings are open for visitation each Sunday until the end of October from 1 until 4 p.m. at no charge. Donations are accepted.

On Saturday, Sept. 14, and Sunday, Sept. 15, Village buildings will be open. In addition to the regular activities a variety of special events are planned. Both days will feature music and craft demonstrations. Demonstrators include a blacksmith, rug hookers, basket and fiber weavers and a lacemaker. Antique instruments will also be displayed.

Saturday features the hat judging competition (several categories) at 2:30 p.m. in the Mill Race gazebo and Croquet and Crumpets (a game of croquet and refreshments) on the Mill Race green from 2 until 4:30 p.m.

Sunday features family games at 1 p.m. and the traditional duck race on the Rouge at 2:30 p.m. Picnickers and purchasers of box lunches from the community auction are invited to spend the afternoon at Mill Race enjoying their lunches.

In 1987, the Northville Historical Society began the move of its last major building to the Mill Race Village location. The Cady Inn moved from East Cady west of Griswold to the present site at that time.

The structure dates from the early 1830s and has at times been identified, incorrectly, as a Salt Box. The rear portion which gives the Salt Box appearance was added probably during the 1850s.

Experts who examined the building while it was being restored believe that the Cady Street site was the building's second location and that the addition was constructed at the time the building was relocated to Cady.

Tax records show a great deal of activity concerning that land in 1858 which jibes with architectural guesses on the addition. A remaining exterior wall from the first building has been left exposed on the building's interior to provide a view of early Northville construction methods. Handmade square nails can be seen in the siding.

Two second floor rooms depict what the inn room of the period might have looked like. The building also houses the Northville Community Archives and the office for the Northville Historical Society.

During the final complete weekend in September the Northville Historical Society holds its 27th Tivoli Fair, a juried Arts and Crafts Show which features over 115 artists displaying their handwork for sale.

Exhibitors include basket makers, painters, woodworkers, workers in ceramics and tin, clothing designers and a host of unique craftspeople.

The Fair is held annually at Northville Downs. This year the two-day event runs Friday, Sept. 27, from 10 a.m. until 8 p.m. and Saturday, Sept. 28, from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. An admission of $3 is charged. Child strollers are not permitted.

The profits from this event are used to continue the operation of Mill Race Village.

The entire event is organized, coordinated, and directed by volunteers who work for the continuance of Mill Race Village in this community.

Blink and you miss them

Don't ask Northville High School cross country runners what all the hurry's about, they don't have time to answer. The fleet-footed athletes started their season last week and could be seen - briefly - running through scenic Hines Park.

Survey: Pay hikes to slow in metro area

Projections for 1997 indicate that employers in southeast Michigan are slowing the percentage rate of budget increases for both merit pay and salary ranges, according to a recent survey by the American Society of Employers.

The 1996 & 1997 Salary Budget Survey - Southeast Michigan Region covered 264 firms in the metropolitan Detroit area. Of those, 58 percent were manufacturing firms and 42 percent were non-manufacturing companies.

Although average merit budget increases and salary structure adjustments in southeast Michigan have remained well above the cost of living index increase in 1996, the survey revealed that participating companies project an average merit budget increase of 4.1 percent in 1997, down from 4.2 percent in 1996.

Similarly, these same firms anticipate an average salary adjustment next year of 3.1 percent, down from 3.4 percent this year. The cost of living index for the last 12 months has been 3 percent.

The industry sectors projecting

the largest merit increases in 1997 include:

- Insurance services - 4.6 percent for officers/executives, 4.4 percent for both salaried managers/professionals and hourly employees.

- Transportation equipment (automotive) - 4.5 percent for officers/executives, 4.3 percent for salaried managers/professionals, 4.2 percent for hourly employees.

- Technical services (R&D) - 4.2 percent for officers/executives, 4.7 percent for both salaried managers/professionals and hourly employees.

According to ASE survey analyst Dave Girolamo, 212 firms (80 percent) reported offering some form of variable compensation to their employees in 1996.

The most popular variable pay program cited by companies was the lump-sum bonus method followed by profit-sharing. Employee eligibility for both programs is projected to increase in 1997.

"This compensation practice tends to reward high performers, but puts more pay at risk for employees," Girolamo said.

Saturday features the hat judging competition (several categories) at 2:30 p.m. in the Mill Race gazebo and Croquet and Crumpets (a game of croquet and refreshments) on the Mill Race green from 2 until 4:30 p.m.

Sunday features family games at 1 p.m. and the traditional duck race on the Rouge at 2:30 p.m. Picnickers and purchasers of box lunches from the community auction are invited to spend the afternoon at Mill Race enjoying their lunches.

In 1987, the Northville Historical Society began the move of its last major building to the Mill Race Village location. The Cady Inn moved from East Cady west of Griswold to the present site at that time.

The structure dates from the early 1830s and has at times been identified, incorrectly, as a Salt Box. The rear portion which gives the Salt Box appearance was added probably during the 1850s.

Experts who examined the building while it was being restored believe that the Cady Street site was the building's second location and that the addition was constructed at the time the building was relocated to Cady.

Tax records show a great deal of activity concerning that land in 1858 which jibes with architectural guesses on the addition. A remaining exterior wall from the first building has been left exposed on the building's interior to provide a view of early Northville construction methods. Handmade square nails can be seen in the siding.

Two second floor rooms depict what the inn room of the period might have looked like. The building also houses the Northville Community Archives and the office for the Northville Historical Society.

During the final complete weekend in September the Northville Historical Society holds its 27th Tivoli Fair, a juried Arts and Crafts Show which features over 115 artists displaying their handiwork for sale.

Exhibitors include basket makers, painters, woodworkers, workers in ceramics and tin, clothing designers and a host of unique craftspeople.

The Fair is held annually at Northville Downs. This year the two-day event runs Friday, Sept. 27, from 10 a.m. until 8 p.m. and Saturday, Sept. 28, from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. An admission of $3 is charged. Child strollers are not permitted.

The profits from this event are used to continue the operation of Mill Race Village.

The entire event is organized, coordinated, and directed by volunteers who work for the continuance of Mill Race Village in this community.

Survey: Pay hikes to slow in metro area

Projections for 1997 indicate that employers in southeast Michigan are slowing the percentage rate of budget increases for both merit pay and salary ranges, according to a recent survey by the American Society of Employees.

The 1996 & 1997 Salary Budget Survey - Southeast Michigan Region covered 264 firms in the metropolitan Detroit area. Of those, 58 percent were manufacturing firms and 42 percent were non-manufacturing companies.

Although average merit budget increases and salary structure adjustments in southeast Michigan have remained well above the cost of living index increase in 1996, the survey revealed that participating companies project an average merit budget increase of 4.1 percent in 1997, down from 4.2 percent in 1996.

Similarly, these same firms anticipate an average salary adjustment next year of 3.1 percent, down from 3.4 percent this year. The cost of living index for the last 12 months has been 3 percent.

The industry sectors projecting

the largest merit increases in 1997 include:

- Insurance services - 4.6 percent for officers/executives, 4.4 percent for both salaried managers/professionals and hourly employees.

- Transportation equipment (automotive) - 4.5 percent for officers/executives, 4.3 percent for salaried managers/professionals, 4.2 percent for hourly employees.

- Technical services (R&D) - 4.2 percent for officers/executives, 4.7 percent for both salaried managers/professionals and hourly employees.

According to ASE survey analyst Dave Girolamo, 212 firms (80 percent) reported offering some form of variable compensation to their employees in 1996.

The most popular variable pay program cited by companies was the lump-sum bonus method followed by profit-sharing. Employee eligibility for both programs is projected to increase in 1997.

"This compensation practice tends to reward high performers, but puts more pay at risk for employers," Girolamo said.

RECORD OPINION

THURSDAY
September 5, 1996

Our Opinion

Personal rights lost, safety gained in city

One by one, the city seems to be depriving people of their privileges as residents of the community.

Or is it?

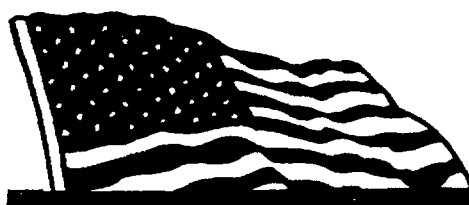

Last year, a cherished practice - the right to feed the ducks that gather at the east end of town - was taken away when the city passed an ordinance prohibiting the leisurely feeding of fowl. Next, an ordinance banning roller skating and roller blading in certain areas was put into effect. Finally, just this week the city council approved a local law requiring the acquisition of a permit before trees can be cut down.

When taken as a whole these measures, as suggested above, might seem to represent a case of increased government intrusion into people's lives. When viewed individually, though, each new law makes a lot of sense.

As most residents know by now, the decision to discourage feeding was made at the recommendation of state officials who presented alarming facts about the ducks that live near the former Ford Valve Plant on Main. Years of over-feeding by residents had bred an aggressive population of waterfowl and birds and contributed to a serious sanitation problem. While tossing bread crumbs to the birds was once a quiet, relaxing pastime in the city, the dive-bombing scavengers that overran the place eventually transformed the custom into a potentially harrowing experience.

The anti-roller blading measure is another example of an ordinance whose time has come.

Northville's central city is characterized by narrow streets and sidewalks that serve as thoroughfares for pedestrians and all manner of vehicles, including cars, buses and trucks. The tight squeeze is made even tighter by the presence of inconsiderate roller bladers (we might add joggers, too) who don't seem to know enough to choose a more spacious setting for their outdoor activities.

A ban on roller blading is necessary in order to limit the number of dangerous situations arising from overuse.

It's true that the city needs more recreation space to accommodate roller bladers, skate boarders and joggers, but the move to prohibit these activities in high-risk areas is, we believe, an appropriate one.

Our third example of apparent government interference is the tree protection law (referred to as a woodlands ordinance) passed by the Northville City Council only this week. Once this measure goes into effect in a few weeks, people will be required to obtain permits to destroy trees, even ones that exist on their own land.

While we have misgivings about this law, other communities have enacted similar ordinances and tell us that, in most cases, permit issuance is just a formality. It is the wholesale destruction of wooded clusters that the ordinance is designed to protect, we are told, and as long as enforcement is geared primarily toward those situations the inconvenience to the private homeowner should be minimal.

As our forefathers knew only too well, laws are regrettable but necessary. They are designed to protect people from irresponsible citizens whose behavior jeopardizes the safety of the larger community. No one likes to be restricted in a free society, but the city's recent actions, we believe, are reasonable and sound.

Boy, do we ever get letters

I had just a brief, but thought provoking, exchange with Northville businessman Tom Morrison when the two of us passed each other on Main Street the other day.

Lee Snider

Tom was strolling along the sidewalk headed to his store, Morrison's Antiques, while I was scurrying back to the office to meet one of those ever-present deadlines.

Tom called out a few words as the two of us were moving in different directions.

"Hey, I see they really tied into you on the letters page this week," he bellowed.

"Sure did," I muttered, preoccupied with deadline concerns.

Despite my brisk walking pace, Tom didn't want the conversation to end right there. As is often the case with him, he had another point to make.

"Do you like it when they're hard on you? That makes it more interesting, after all."

Not having the time to stop and explore the issue, I gave a hasty answer, saying something about letters being a healthy part of public debate.

Though he probably didn't know it, friendly Tom had hit on one of my favorite things to think about after I go home at night - that letters really are a mixed blessing for editors.

Why?

When readers come at you with both barrels it makes for great reading. Surveys consistently show that the letters to the editor section is, like police news and obituaries, one of the most popular regular newspaper features.

Obviously, people are endlessly curious about what others are doing and thinking.

So letters, especially strongly worded ones, serve to enhance the readability of the newspaper. And getting people to read the paper, inevitably, is one of the goals of every editor and reporter.

But don't think for a minute that tough letters don't hit their mark. Though people seem to think otherwise, journalists are not without their feelings, and when a letter calling you a menace to society ends up getting published, well, it can't help but hurt.

That's where the "mixed" part of it comes in. Truth be known, I don't even recognize the person some letter writers make me out to be, so far from my self-image are some of their descriptions.

But when the criticism stings unbearably, I fall back on my sure-fire defense mechanism. Critical letters are good for the newspaper, I tell myself. They attract readers and show that people are paying attention and care about the issues.

But whoever said names never hurt couldn't have been a newspaper editor.

If the backers of the new downtown "sports village" planned for the Lions and Tigers are to be believed, we're all in for the best thing since sliced bread. The Tigers will stay in Detroit, the Lions will come home and that long-awaited Motown Renaissance is just around the corner.

Randy Coble

Pardon me if I spoil all the fun by saying that I, for one, am already sick and tired of this slick, heartstring-tugging propaganda. To be frank, I think that taxpayers and sports fans - and I'm both - are getting shafted.

For starters, I am philosophically opposed to governmental corporate welfare, which is exactly what this is.

Remember when John Engler booted 90,000 people off of general assistance a few years ago? All the extra-chromosome conservatives out there practically foamed at the mouth in their excitement over someone standing up for the principle that able-bodied people have no right to depend on the taxpayer for a livelihood.

How do they feel now that their fair-haired boy and others at the state, county and city of Detroit level have chosen to risk our money so that the Ilitches and the Fords don't have to put too much of their fortunes on the line?

Government should not bankroll business deals for private industry, period. Besides that, the fact that these teams couldn't convince enough people out in the open market to risk their own money on this plan should tell you something about the chances for it to fly. And if you don't think that the costs of this little endeavor won't soon start to skyrocket, can I interest you in buying a nice bridge in Brooklyn?

Second point. Like the other mirage - casinos - which devastated cities like Detroit crawl to in search of an oasis, these stadiums are just not going to spark a wildfire of urban renewal.

People and businesses haven't been fleeing Detroit for decades because they can't place a bet or plop down in a luxury sky box for a game. They've abandoned the city because of rampant crime and government corruption, sky-high taxes, stifling regulations and a failure by the whole metro area to recognize and respond to a changing worldwide marketplace.

That's not what we want to hear in today's instant-gratification society, of course. We don't want to face up to the fact that it took us decades to mess up Detroit and it's going to take decades to clean it up again. Instead we grope for magic bullets.

Finally, this deal will be bad for pro sports fans, who are already in dire straits.

Pro sports have always been a business, that's for sure. Like never before, however, the business has now almost completely crowded out the game.

We're being taxed to pay for stadiums that many of us can't afford to visit even once a season. Players and even whole teams have little to no community loyalty, spirit or roots. Even our own beloved Tigers were ready to hightail it out of town if they didn't get a new taxpayer-paid stadium.

Let's not forget the "Detroit" Lions, who took off for Oakland County more than 20 years ago when something similar was dangled before them.

Hey, Pontiac, how do you feel about the Silverdome now?

Please understand: if this deal comes to pass I sorely hope it will bring about good things. However, be careful of what you wish for, sports village fans, because you just might get it.

Letters

Don't drive away good teachers

As a regular reader of your column I have often been tempted to write to you offering an alternative viewpoint. Your recent editorial entitled "Priorities in education" has pushed me to finally do so.

Your article suggests that the state of Michigan is inappropriately spending its money on teacher compensation instead of spending it on technology upgrades for the schools. I totally disagree with your assertion.

As a consultant in the technology field and a parent of two young children, I too am concerned about the state of technology in our schools and feel that addressing this need should be given top priority. However, to suggest that we do so at the expense of teachers is extremely short-sighted.

Attracting and retaining talented teachers is, in my opinion, the most important step schools can take to ensure a quality education for our children. Teachers have an awesome responsibility. They interact with our children on a daily basis, helping them to build the skills and confidence they need to grow into successful adults. Good teachers will instill in children a love of learning that can last a lifetime. All this, while dealing with the stresses brought on by demanding parents, discerning school administrators, and a critical public.

It is curious to me that our society places so little value on teaching as compared to other professions. According to the Wall Street Journal's "Jobs Rated Almanac," the average teacher earns just 43 percent of what the average lawyer or stockbroker earns. Teachers, on average, earn less than chauffeurs, construction foremen, plumbers, and even newspaper editors.

If we want to attract the most talented individuals to the teaching profession, we must pay them well.

So should we update the technology available to students in our schools? Yes, absolutely. But not at the expense of our teachers, who will impact our future in ways one can only begin to imagine.

Sally Lorimer

Bond proposal is necessary step

To the Editor:

Our responsibility as citizens of a growing, desirable community is to plan for the future to ensure that we retain our superior quality of education for generations to come.

Potential new residents looking to relocate to Northville rate the school system as one of the highest considerations in making the decision to purchase that home. Attending to the priority to fiscally support our educational programs and facilities is paramount toward maintaining our home values as well as our children's future.

The fact is the district's student enrollment is growing at all grade levels. It will exceed existing capacity, including the elementary level, by the fall of 1998, given the current growth rate.

Rearranging grade levels in the existing buildings is a short-sighted solution and will only prolong the crisis that will inevitably occur. This solution would also require new construction and renovations. The school district's bond and enhancement millage being put before the voters involves repairs and additions to make sure our children have a safe environment that is conducive to learning and plans for the growth that are occurring. This millage plan is clearly the fiscally sensible path to follow.

Additionally, the technology portion of the bond request should without question be supported by a progressive community such as Northville.

Although we relish and celebrate our past so wonderfully as with the Victorian Festival, we also must ensure that we prepare our children to move into the 21st century. This means access, education and communication via the computer highway of the Internet and its ever-growing resources.

Granted, the updating of technology will be an ongoing process. The technology plan proposed will build upon the current system initiated in 1989, and maximize its use while supporting future growth. These integrated systems will provide our current students with knowledge of the tools and the potential to gain access to the cutting edge of higher education and career paths of choice.

I urge my fellow Northville citizens to vote to pass the school bond and enhancement millage on Sept. 23.

Grade shift not a viable solution

To the Editor:

Among the questions which have been raised with respect to the upcoming bond election is the question of whether the overcrowding problems could be solved by realigning grades. In particular, could we solve the problem by moving the ninth grade into the middle schools and the sixth grade into the elementary schools?

The bond committee considered this option carefully and concluded it would not produce an efficient solution. Such realignment would prolong the time until the high school goes over capacity by a few years. But the high school population, even with only grades 10 through 12, would still go over the 1,435 student capacity in the not too distant future.

Moreover, realignment would cause overcrowding problems at the middle school and elementary school levels. At the present time there are 402 sixth-grade students in the two middle schools. The population in the elementary grades 1-5 is 1,869 and rising, and the total elementary capacity in the district is 2,095, which leaves us with 226 currently open spots.

This is not enough room to move the sixth graders back without building a sixth elementary school or putting an immediate addition on to Silver Springs and then planning for a sixth elementary school in the very near future to handle the significant growth occurring at the elementary level.

The grade realignment does not improve the situation in the middle schools. Cooke is over capacity now. If the current high school facility is not made available to become an 800 student capacity middle school, a new middle school building will need to be constructed.

In addition, the high school would still need renovations and educational technology would still need to be upgraded throughout the district. Thus, the cost of the realignment approach would ultimately prove to be very close to the current request and would not produce sufficient capacity at the high school to handle future needs.

The bottom line is, the most cost effective approach to the total student population growth in the district is to construct one new building (a high school), remodel the old high school as an 800 student middle school, put a six-classroom addition on to Silver Springs, fund infrastructure repairs in all buildings, and upgrade the district's educational technology.

Auction will help fund projects

To the Editor:

One of the highlights of Northville's Victorian Festival is the Box Lunch Auction sponsored by Northville Council of PTAs.

Monies collected from the auction allow the council to continue its commitment to Northville school students through our support of such programs/organizations as parent education workshop, volunteer recognition, youth forum and health, reflections, art appreciation, junior enrichment series, and the Legislative Action Network. A successful Box Lunch Auction in September assures the continuation of these activities throughout the school year.

We hope you will consider participating in one of Northville's most enjoyable fall events by donating a box lunch to be auctioned. In doing so, you will directly contribute to PTA sponsored programs that benefit Northville public school children.

We are asking all contributors to honor one of the Northville Council of PTAs' stated goals which is to be committed to working for "the kind of community that allows our children to remain drug and alcohol free." We are asking, therefore, for box lunches that don't have alcoholic contents.

If you are interested in participating in the 1996 Victorian Festival Box Lunch Auction - to be held on Sunday, Sept. 15 - please immediately contact one of us by phone.

Thank you for your attention. We hope we can count on your support for the children of Northville.

Modest volunteer is crucial helper

To the Editor:

I have long felt that Mernie Hines should be featured in your "Volunteer" column.

Knowing and working with Mernie for nearly 10 years, I fully expected that, in her interview for your Aug. 22 edition, she would understate her contribution to the Northville District Library and its Northville Record indexing project. While this venture has benefited from the diligent work of many volunteers deserving of recognition, it has been Mernie who has kept it focused and moving along.

If she has actually worked an "average of three hours a week on the project" as (under) stated, then I have observed a half-dozen Mernie Hines-impostors checking worksheets, training and accommodating volunteers, writing grant proposals, traveling to and conferring with other institutions, and promoting the project and its publications, not to mention additional time and expense undoubtedly put forth without anyone's knowledge.

Drug abuse in sixth grade?

To the Editor:

On Lehrer's program of Aug. 20 one segment was on the increased use of drugs, alcohol, marijuana, etc.

I can't believe it is happening as low as the sixth grade level. I admit to being an old fogey. I'm 73 and, to date, I have never been offered any drugs and I also wouldn't know where to start to find some. It is hard to believe that parents don't have a sense of smell or observation. Parents are the first line of defense.

The school board wants voters to pass a $61 million bond issue and we have a big drug problem.

It is funny when some student has an invitation to Harvard and he has attended a small school in upper Michigan with very few computers and advanced technology. I don't think the new technology is the answer. You still need the basics.

George Carter wrote in The Detroit News that putting a computer in front of a student does not make them smarter.

The other night in Guernsey Dairy the man in front of me had a bill of $15.29. He gave the girl a $20 bill plus 29 cents in change. She did not know what to give him back. He looked at me and we both smiled. He finally told her what he had coming back. It was funny but at the same time it was tragic.

I think I have a clunker in my thinker. According to The Northville Record, there will be an increase in school population of 610 students by the year 2007. Sixty-one million divided by 610 equals $100,000 per student. An increase of 610 students and we're planning to build a school for 1,800 students.

Maybe we should go back to the drawing board and plan something we can afford. Like maybe $30 million. Something doesn't add up in my mind so will someone please tell me what is wrong with my figures and thinking. I'd really like to know.

Reporter Jackson wrote that we are going to hear just what the experts want us to hear and that's exactly what is happening.

I still want the majority of voters to vote in school and township elections so that the majority run our schools and township.

If you really care, make sure you vote at election time.

Party ideologues headed down wrong road

I covered the previous Democratic National Convention held in Chicago in 1968. It was tumultuous and violent.

Phil Power

Reading through the columns I wrote way back then provided an interesting point-counterpoint to this year's carefully staged Democratic love-fest in Chicago last week and the equally merchandised GOP gathering in San Diego.

Neither was violent nor, by any stretch of the imagination, tumultuous. Back in 1968 I wrote: "It's a growing realization - to be read on the anxious faces of the delegates as they spin in the endless world of the convention - that the body of liberal thought that has worked as the cement for the traditional Democratic coalition is breaking down."

"Not breaking down, perhaps, but rather becoming irrelevant."

"For example, one of the propositions of classical Democratic liberalism was that the federal government had a clear obligation to take direct action in fields such as unemployment and welfare, but many in the Democratic Party are beginning to think that federal action in these areas simply isn't the whole answer."

"They argue that the red tape, the dependency and the ineffectiveness of present welfare systems cannot be accepted, and they conclude that the liberalism that led to these programs is no longer up to solving the problems of 1968."

Well, well. As Yogi Berra once put it so perceptively, "It looks like deja vu all over again."

So what's really going on here at the core of our politics, above and beyond my good luck in searching out a few 28-year-old paragraphs that look foresighted?

Just this: The real driver in the evolution of our political system over the past quarter century is how the forces of ideological purity and the parochial claims of constituency groups within the parties have progressively alienated the middle ground of average, middle-class American families.

The Republicans - now condemned to live with the very constituency groups they created and to which they have pandered - are caught in the grip of an ideologically purist Christian Coalition, harsh and unforgiving anti-abortion dogmatics and supply-side fanatics who never saw a problem that a tax cut couldn't solve.

No wonder Bob Dole said he hadn't read the platform. And no wonder the Republican convention was carefully organized so as to persuade gullible middle America that the GOP is pretty moderate at heart.

And no wonder the Democrats - still struggling with the age-old problem of how to mediate the conflicting claims of organized labor, the separatist demands of sexual and ethnic politics and the passionate remnants of the bright-eyed liberals - found themselves uneasily in the successful embrace of a president who signed the welfare reform bill and, thereby, likely insured his reelection.

Herewith two Michigan examples of how parties can become so preoccupied with the demands of their ideologies and their constituency groups so as to lose, big time, elections they could have won:

• In 1994, after a bitter primary, the liberal forces within the Democratic Party prevailed and selected Congressman Howard Wolpe to run against an unpopular Gov. John Engler. Wolpe was whopped, to put it mildly.

• This year, after an equally bitter primary, the get-out-the-vote operation of Michigan Right to Life, the 800-pound gorilla of Michigan Republican politics, delivered a narrow victory for Ronna Romney over Jim Nicholson in the U.S. Senate primary. No one I know believes Ms. Romney has a chance against incumbent Sen. Carl Levin.

winning – at everything

Of the thousand or more students at Northville High, you'd be hard-pressed to find one any nicer than Gina Chiasson.

She's polite, friendly and usually smiling. Most of these characteristics carry over to the basketball court where she's been a varsity player since her freshman season.

But don't let that sweet disposition or smile fool you. When Gina Chiasson steps on the hardwood, she's there to win.

"That's all I care about," said the senior. "I'm very competitive in everything. Even if I'm playing monopoly, I have to win."

It's a theme that dominates her thoughts. An aspiring writer, she titled her favorite poem, "Happiness is winning."

"That's my favorite thing," Gina says.

It's something Northville High has done a lot of in her tenure. Last season, for example, the Mustangs went 16-6 and took third place in the Western Lakes Activities Association.

If that success is to continue, Chiasson said Northville must function as a team.

"We play together well," she said. "The team is a lot closer this year than the last couple of years."

The Mustangs are off to a 1-1 start after taking second place in the South Lyon tournament last week. Chiasson was forced to sit out both games because of an ankle injury.

After a fine freshman year, she's battled the injury bug. Back and hip problems caused Chiasson to miss a good portion of her sophomore year and a few more games last fall.

Many of the problems can probably be traced to a tremendous growth spurt. Gina grew 10 inches in eighth grade.

"Everything got really awkward," she said, "and I got really skinny."

Now 6-foot-1, it has taken her this long to grow into that frame. Extensive rehabilitation work has helped strengthen her back as well.

"I've gotten a lot stronger," said Chiasson, who's no longer that wispy freshman. "When [opponents] hit me, I'm not the one flying now."

Chiasson's ankle should be healed in time for Tuesday's game with Birmingham Marston. Coach Pete Wright said his player is ready to have her best season.

"She's come into her own this summer," he said. "She's one of the players we're looking to carry the load."

Achieving such a prominent role on the Mustangs didn't come easy for Chiasson. She began playing basketball in grade school at the parks and recreation level. As one of only two girls on a boys team, Chiasson had her work cut out for her right away.

"We never won a game," she said.

Gina moved on to play in a Catholic league in grades four through eight. From there it was on to Amateur Athletic Union ball with the Chargers.

The team, which included Mustang teammate Lyndsay Huot, ended up winning two state championships. She continued to play AAU ball right through this summer.

Chiasson said that has helped her game immensely.

"The competition is very hard," she added.

But probably not as tough as the competition she received at home.

Older brother Marc routinely schooled her in one-on-one games. But he didn't always win, especially if the game was PIG.

Continued on 3 Senior Gina Chiasson will be counted for leadership on the court this season for Northville.

Offense looks awesome, but 'D' key for gridders

Offensively, Northville High might have one of the area's better football teams.

A veteran line, a talented group of wide receivers, a solid running game and promising young quarterback give the Mustangs a plethora of weapons. But can the Black and Orange play good enough defense to win?

That's the question coach Darrel Schumacher is scratching his head over as the Mustangs go into tomorrow night's opener with South Lyon. Considering that the Lions are always among the best offensive teams in the area, he should have his answer shortly.

"It's a big game," said Schumacher, who's entering his 10th year on the sidelines. "We usually play poorly out of the shoot. We can't afford that this year."

Northville plays South Lyon at home (7:30 p.m.). From there, it's three straight road games with Salem, Canton and Livonia Franklin.

A good start tomorrow is crucial.

"If we get blown out by South Lyon," Schumacher said, "it could be a long season. But if it's a good game, we might be able to be there (in the hunt for the league title)."

If the coach sounds cautious, he is. But he's also excited about Northville's prospects.

"I think we're better than last year," he said. "I'm very excited about our club."

The Mustangs posted a 4-5 record last year - the school's first losing mark of the 1990s. Northville should have little trouble moving back into the winning ranks this fall.

"It's one of the better teams we've had in the past few years," Schumacher said.

The Mustang offense is a big reason for that optimism.

Start with the offensive line. Ahmad Nassar, Ryan Howe and Ross Baker, all seniors, are the anchors.

Nassar, 5-foot-10, 215 pounds, returns at center. Howe, 6-2, 215, will play one guard and Baker, 5-11, 245, takes a guard position.

"It's a big game. We usually play poorly out of the shoot. We can't afford that this year."

DARREL SCHUMACHER
Northville football coach

"Those three guys will have to take it to the next level," said Schumacher.

Junior Bryce Edmonds will take the other guard position. At 265 pounds, he's a load.

"He has good footwork for a kid his size," Schumacher said. "That's why he's playing guard."

Sophomore Ted Bowersox, 6-3, 240, is at tackle. He still has a lot to learn, but has potential, according to his coach.

Northville has a solid line, Schumacher said. It will be geared toward finesse instead of brute strength, though.

"It's a very intelligent line," he added. "We're not big enough to blow you off the ball."

Eric Foster, Jason Desiro, Courtney Kemp, Tim Velzy and Bryan Grider will back up on the offensive line.

Rob Reel will guide the Mustang offense at quarterback. At 6-4, the sophomore has the size and ability to become one of the school's best signal callers in years.

"He has a very good arm," Schumacher said.

The coach said his line must give the young QB time to throw.

"He has an excellent arm and poise," he said. "But if we don't protect him, it's going to be trouble."

Jeff Husak will back up Reel. Schumacher said the junior has ability, too.

"He brings a different type of quarterback to the field," he said, noting his speed and agility.

Reel will have a capable group of receivers to throw to this season.

Seniors Tim Burke, Scott Vigh and Luis Guajardo all have speed and good hands. Schumacher said all three are potential game-breakers.

"If we can get the ball to them," he added, "it'll give defenses something to worry about."

Derek Eckerly will play tight end as will Connor Bacon. John Rohrhoft backs up at wide receiver.

Northville will not be afraid to throw this fall, Schumacher said.

The final piece of the offense is running back Chris Whittington. He replaces all-time leading rusher Anell Kersey.

Whittington doesn't have Kersey's speed, but is powerful and more than capable.

"If our passing game works," Schumacher said, "he'll get yardage."

Bill Sekerka and Rob Abbott will see action in the backfield as well.

"All in all, Northville has a lot of weapons."

"I think we present a lot of problems (for opponents)," he commented. "We have many options that we haven't had in many years."

Defensively, Northville will use many of the same players.

Baker, Howe and Justin Stevenson are down linemen. Edmonds and Bowersox will work at nose guard.

"I think we've got speed up there," said Schumacher. "We're not big so we have to rely on quickness and speed."

At linebacker, Bacon and Eckerly will work inside. Abbott and Sekerka are outside linebackers.

Burke, Vigh and Guajardo are in the defensive backfield. Burke and Vigh play safety. Guajardo and Gino Peters will play cornerback.

Schumacher said that group is the strength of the defense.

"They're all good athletes," he commented.

In the early going, it'll be important for Northville's offense to lead the way. Controlling the ball and chewing up the clock will be an important factor in the South Lyon game.

"A big shoot-out would be at our disadvantage," Schumacher added.

Cagers off to 1-1 start after upset

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

Too little, too late. Northville High tried to play catch up against South Lyon Thursday night and fell just short, 51-49. Down by 11 heading into the fourth quarter, the Mustangs rallied.

After trading baskets early on, Northville got three-point buckets from Karla Kalso, Lyndsay Huot and two from Lauren Metaj to pull within three.

The Mustangs then missed a chance to pull to within one by missing the front end of a one-on-one free throw with nine seconds left. South Lyon followed with a basket and Huot got a three-point-er at the buzzer.

"We ran out of time," coach Pete Wright said. "Another minute and I think we would've won."

Thursday's game was the final of the Sue Smith South Lyon tournament. Northville whipped New Boston Huron to make it to the final. The host Lions defeated Westland John Glenn for their ticket.

Northville created a hole for itself early. Poor rebounding helped dig a 24-17 halftime deficit.

South Lyon's Brooke Rath was mainly responsible. The forward owned the glass and made numerous nice outlet passes to teammates for easy baskets.

"We didn't get any offensive rebounds," Wright added.

A couple other factors hurt Northville as well.

Poor free throw shooting was one. Northville made just 5 of 16 from the charity stripe whereas South Lyon connected on 10 of 16.

"That was the difference," said Wright.

Northville also went into the contest banged up. Laurie Albertson and Julie Fliss are both in casts and senior Gina Chiasson was forced to sit out with a twisted ankle.

That left just eight able-bodied players available for the final.

"Injuries are a part of the game," Wright said. "You have to play with what you've got."

Northville tried to press the ball defensively. But it didn't work.

"Their guards handled the ball better than I expected," Wright said. "I thought we could exploit their guards, but they were able to handle the pressure well."

"Shannon Kroll led the winners with 19 points and Rath added 15. Metaj had 19 for Northville and Kalso added 15.

NORTHVILLE 51. NEW BOSTON 42

The tournament's opener on Aug. 27 really wasn't as close as that score indicates.

Northville led the entire way and was up 42-26 at the end of three quarters. Huron was simply over-matched.

Despite the win, Wright wasn't entirely pleased.

"I didn't think our intensity was there," he said. "We played harder (Thursday) night."

The Mustangs got off to a quick 10-2 start as Huot notched six of those points. Huot and Kalso each scored eight points to lead Northville to a 20-9 lead by the end of the period.

The Mustangs maintained a comfortable margin throughout the second quarter and led 31-20 at the half. New Boston's Julie Wechter kept her team somewhat close by scoring 14 points in the Lauren Metaj is rated as one of the state's best players.

Huron never got closer than nine in the second half.

Metaj led Northville with 15 points while Huot added 13 and Kalso 11. Christine Herndon played well in the post for the Mustangs with nine points and seven rebounds

Basketball, music hold Chiasson's interest

"If we play shooting games," Gina said, "I win."

The senior may have inherited that shooting touch from her father, Marc, who played varsity at old Livonia Bentley.

"He's an awesome shooter," Gina said. "We're definitely a basketball family. My dad is Mr. Basketball Man."

She credits her father with her love of the game.

"I wanted to be a cheerleader but he got me into it," she said. "He's given me tons of support and pushed me to work hard."

Basketball isn't the only thing Chiasson works hard at.

First of all, she's a darned good student with a 3.7 grade point average. Then there's choir.

Gina has sung for Northville High's choir since she was a freshman. A soprano, she and the rest of the group sang the National Anthem at Fenway Park in Boston a couple of years ago.

"It was a great experience," said Gina.

Singing is just something she loves to do.

"I sing in the car, in the shower, I sing when I'm doing homework and cleaning," Gina said.

Managing studies, basketball and choir gets hectic some times, Gina admits.

"It's difficult managing time," said Chiasson, who wants to study communications in college.

She, of course, wants to play ball in college, too. But for now, Chiasson is concentrating on her senior season.

She thinks the Mustangs have a chance at winning the league title. But there are a number of good teams in the WLAA.

"We want to beat Salem really bad," she said.

Mustangs' depth improved in 1996

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

At first glance, the Detroit Tigers and Northville High boys' cross country team would appear to have little in common.

One is a professional organization and participates in a different sport, after all. But just like the Detroiters, the Mustangs are a team building toward the future.

Northville will carry 14 varsity runners this fall, three of whom are seniors. Coach Ed Gabrys expects his team to be a bit better than last year's 3-3 edition, but adds that it may be a year away from really making noise.

"We hope to have a bonafide winning season," the longtime mentor said. "We have a journeyman team, but I think we'll pack well."

Last year's leader of the pack, Dwight VanTuyt, graduated. He made it to the state final and finished 33rd.

Northville doesn't have a "star" runner to replace him, as Gabrys hinted. But what the Mustangs do have is better depth than a year ago.

Depth is often rewarded in cross country. A team can have the winner of the race, but will lose if it doesn't have several other runners in the top five slots.

A Mustang junior and sophomore should routinely take two of those spots.

Tim Schovers was last year's No. 2 man behind VanTuyt. He's a solid, consistent runner who should receive a push from sophomore transfer student Kevin Arbuckle.

"I can see him taking league honors this year," he said of Schovers. "I think Arbuckle has that capability, too."

Arbuckle came to Northville from North Carolina. Gabrys described him as a fine all-around athlete.

"He was a wrestler down there," he added. "Those two kids (Arbuckle and Schovers) will be running together."

A pair of seniors will help guide Northville. Adam White has been with the squad for four years and this is Julow's third campaign.

"They'll both be in the lineup," said Gabrys.

Northville's third senior is transfer student Rajat Bhasin. He comes to the squad from New York where he ran track.

Besides Schovers, the Mustangs will have three more juniors. Dave Cook, Todd Emaus and Nick Schomer will each vie for top seven positions.

Gabrys has been particularly impressed with Schomer's work ethic.

"His effort over the summer is an example to other kids," he said. "He was in the middle of the pack last year. I think he'll be up with the leaders now."

Sophomores include Josh and Jeremy Smith (no relation), and Jim Morrison. All three have a chance to move into top spots with Northville.

and Eric Nadeau round out the squad. Gabrys said he expects 1996 to be a learning year for all three.

The key to this year's team will be for Northville runners to run together.

"If we can move our top five runners up," said Gabrys, "I think we can be where we were last year."

Northville opens the season Saturday at the Schoolcraft College Invitational. The Mustangs did have a chance to get their feet wet last week in a scrimmage with Novi and Farmington.

"We were looking to see where we were at this time of the season," said Gabrys.

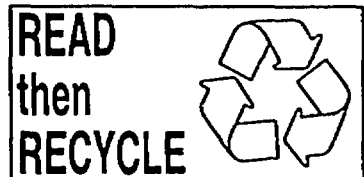

Judging from the results, good shape. The Mustangs finished second to a good Novi team, and posted respectable times at Cass-Benton.

"They were better times than last year," Gabrys added.

Arbuckle led Northville and finished third overall in 18 minutes and 11 seconds. Schovers also broke 19 minutes with an 18:58.

Julow finished 15th overall at 20:04 and Josh Smith 18th in 20:14. Morrison closed out the scoring for Northville by taking 19th at 20:15.

Emaus was close behind at 20:27 and Schomer was 24th in 20:42.

Runners on road to successful season

By SCOTT DANIEL

Every team faces a moment of truth, one game or moment that ends up defining an entire season. Most often, coaches and players don't know when it's going to happen until it actually does.

For Northville High's girls' cross country team, there's no question of when that defining moment will come. The Mustangs travel to Canton on Sept. 26 for a Western Division showdown with the Chiefs.

"Canton's a very big race for us," coach Chris Cronin said. "If we can run close or even beat them, it could mean big things for our team."

Northville is coming off a solid 4-2 season. Equaling or better that mark is definitely within reach.

Cronin is counting on wins over Westland John Glenn and Livonia Franklin before facing the Chiefs.

"If we can beat them there'll be a lot of momentum going into Canton."

Northville opens the season Saturday at the Schoolcraft College Invitational. The Mustangs scrimmaged Novi and Farmington last week.

Cronin said it should show that his team has some serious work to do before tangling with Canton.

"We're maybe two steps behind where we should be," he said.

Injuries and family vacations cut into preseason practice time for several runners.

If Northville's fortunes are to improve, a junior and sophomore must come back to 100 percent. Allison Murphy and Katie Spillane both suffered injuries during last spring's track season.

Both are currently running, but aren't quite back to where they were a year ago.

"It's important that they keep improving," said Cronin.

Murphy was Northville's top runner last fall and Spillane wasn't far behind. Cronin said both were solid against Novi and Farmington.

Including the duo, Northville will carry 24 runners this fall. That's nearly triple the number Cronin had just two years ago.

"It's so nice to have 24 girls running for Northville," the coach commented. "This could be the start (of something great) for Northville High."

With such a big squad, Cronin needs help to manage it. Senior Captains Alissa Nadeau and Kristina Derro have done just that.

"They've provided nice leadership," Cronin said.

Lisa Armstrong and Lauren Gugala are Northville's other two seniors. Gugala is also a team leader.

"She's a terrific person to have on the team," Cronin said. "She's very spirited and works hard in practice."

Juniors include Christine Mattis. While Northville's top four spots are probably set, Mattis will be one of many Mustangs vying for the other top three positions.

Courtney Cranford is a first-year runner. The junior is fighting to overcome injuries at this point.

A sophomore, she made her way through the ranks last year all the way to Northville's top three.

Several other sophomores should help. Kristin Kolarchuk, Kristin Van Tuyt and Adrienne Manarina all have a lot of ability.

Amanda Sprader, Stephanie Flood, Precious Shah, Emily Howland, Julian Ojacie, Becky Hiler, Julie Bullock, Julie Bozak and Lauren Corder are other sophomores to watch.

Local soccer team shines

BRONZED

The under 19 Northville Sting women's soccer team won a bronze medal at the Kick-off Classic Soccer Tournament in Windsor, Canada, the weekend of Aug. 3-4.

The tournament featured 10 highly competitive teams from southwest Canada and the U.S. The Sting captured the bronze in the Women's Competitive Division with aggressive play on offense and a dominating defense. The Sting swept through their flight without a loss while recording seven goals and allowing only one goal against.

In the opening match, the Sting dominated play en route to a 4-0 victory over the Caboto Vikings. In a very hotly contested game, the Sting recorded its second shutout in a 1-0 victory over Makedonia/Windsor.

The final game of the day with the London Lightning resulted in a 0-0 tie. This set up a battle for first place in the flight on Sunday and clinched a spot in the medal round.

In the title game, Northville had to settle for a 1-1 tie with the unbeaten Sarnia District. With the tie, the Sting finished second in the flight but advanced to the tournament bronze medal game against the Caboto A team. While dominating the game, it was not until the closing moments that the Sting beat Caboto 1-0 to capture the bronze.

For the effort, the Sting were recognized with individual bronze medals for finishing third overall in the tournament with a 3-0-2 record. Lisa Tolstedt was selected the tournament MVP for Northville by the U19 Division coaches.

The Sting will be competing this fall in the High School Open Division of the Little Caesars Premier Soccer League. In addition, the team will be participating in a several other tournaments including the Waterford Cup, Octoberfest in Chicago, and MSYS State Cup.

Team members include: Lisa Bacyinski, Eva Bower, Lori Caribott, Janel Davis, Amanda DeKoker, Leela Harmer, Lyndsay Huot, Kristi Keith, Michelle Krasny, Patricia Mazzola, Janet McDonald, Dana Novara, Jenny Storm, Jamie Sharp, Lisa Tolstedt, Tracie Vock, Kerri Whelan and Patty Wong.

Tankers feature youthful squad

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

Northville High's youngest team this fall has to be the swimming and diving squad.

Nearly half the Mustangs' roster is made up of freshmen. Combine that young lineup with a change in swimming techniques and the fall season looks a little uncertain.

Coach Bill Dicks thinks otherwise, however. The longtime mentor points out that the Mustangs have enough established junior and senior swimmers to place highly in the Western Lakes conference.

As for learning new techniques, that's gone pretty well, Dicks said. His swimmers have picked up the program, which emphasizes correct body position in the water, quickly.

"If the kids stick with it for four years," he said of the program, "they'll be dynamite."

Northville is coming off a very solid season.

The Mustangs posted an 8-1 dual meet record and won the WLAA's Western Division for the second straight year. Northville also placed second at the conference final for the third straight year.

Repeating that success won't be easy. But the Mustangs should have plenty of senior leadership to help.

Gwen Osborne, Kara Lyczak and Beth Handley captain the squad. Osborne competes in the breaststroke and freestyle events. Lyczak does all four strokes and Handley specializes in the butterfly.

Amy Cook is another veteran. She's strong in the backstroke and freestyle.

Seniors Soya Elliot, Michon Slanina, Amber Kent and Sarah Wright are all divers.

"I think diving will be strong this year," said Dicks.

Amy Glogowski and Katie Varley are Northville's final two seniors. They are both freestylers.

Alice Callan is one of the Mustangs' best juniors. She returns to the squad after having swam all year with her USS team.

"She looks real strong," Dicks said.

Kara Guminski, Jenni Taylor and Kristen Warnke are other junior swimmers. Karen Fischer will add depth among the divers.

Northville has several sophomores who will contribute.

Amanda Brackel is solid in the breaststroke and freestyle.

"Amanda's technique is getting better," said Dicks.

Jordan Elliot, Beth Eule, Megan

Golant, Leah Voytal and Brianna Jones are other sophomores. All but Voytal are freestylers. Voytal will help in the backstroke.

Most of Northville's freshmen are new to the sport. Dicks said most will be gaining experience this fall. Several should contribute right away, though.

Kourtney Dwelley is one. She does all four strokes and is particularly strong in the freestyle.

Aria Ash, Summer Anderson, Angie Banks, Katie Champion, Michelle Cheaney, Tracey Crawford, Laura Elssesser, Janie Myers, Stefanie Nurmi, Lara Learone, Heather Rudy, Kristen Shaffner, Nicole Sprader and Caroline Streppa all fall into the category of beginners.

Consistency is king for Northville High senior golfer Swietlik

By SCOTT DANIEL
Sports Editor

The Mustang golf team opened its dual meet season Tuesday with a match against Novi.

But if you listen to captain Eric Swietlik, the only match that matters this season isn't until next week. The Mustangs play league rival Salem at Braeburn golf course Wednesday.

"They beat us last year at our place by a couple of strokes," he said. "They've had our number the last couple of times."

"Many of us on the team feel this will be for the title. Salem is it."

If hard work counts for anything, and it usually does in golf, Swietlik and the Mustangs should fare well against Salem. The senior, for one, played and practiced all summer in preparation for the season.

He played in six Metro Junior Golf Association tournaments over break and qualified for the state tournament. Top rounds included scores of 80, 81 and 76 in his final outing.

"I played at least two times a week," said Swietlik, who also ran his own lawn mowing business over the summer and worked at a local restaurant as well. "I putted and went to the range two more times per week."

Consistency is what he's trying to achieve.

"I'm happy with making pars," Swietlik said. "It doesn't have to be birdies all the time."

To him, putting and driving are key elements of the game. Playing smart and not getting angry is important, too.

"It's all a mind game," he said and added that too many golfers let a bad shot ruin their round. "I can control my emotions."

Eric will be playing his fourth year for Northville this fall. He has spent most of his career playing at the JV level for the Mustangs and made steady improvement all the way.

As a freshman, Swietlik averaged about 43 strokes. Last season he had cut that down to a more than respectable average of 41.

But on a team loaded with seniors. It was hard to crack the varsity lineup. This year, the senior has cut two more strokes and is looked upon as one of the Mustangs' leaders.

"We're very senior dominated," Swietlik said of this year's club. "We've got six or seven seniors that are very good."

Rob Rankin, also a captain, is one. Swietlik said he's likely the best golfer on the team.

"He's even with me or better," he added.

Another senior to watch for is Paul Stachura. Swietlik said he's capable of shooting in the 30s consistently.

"He's stepped up his game," the captain said.

The Mustangs will need plenty of consistency to take the Western Lakes Activities Association title. Besides Salem, teams such as Livonia Stevenson and Livonia Churchill are excellent.

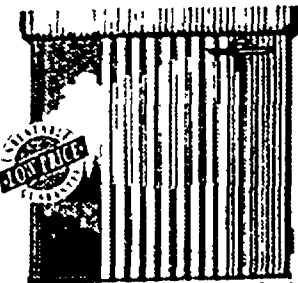

"We really need to be consistent to have a shot," said Swietlik. "I think we have to average 205 or below."

Laparoscopic hysterectomy provides new option, advantages for women

Laparoscopic assisted vaginal hysterectomy (LAVH) is a procedure using laparoscopic surgical techniques and instruments to remove the uterus (womb) and/or tubes and ovaries (or ovarian cysts) through the vagina (birth canal).

Its greatest benefit is the potential to convert what would have been an abdominal hysterectomy into a vaginal hysterectomy. An abdominal hysterectomy requires both a vaginal incision and a four to six-inch long incision in the abdomen, which is associated with greater post-operative discomfort and a longer recovery period than for a vaginal procedure.

Another advantage of the LAVH may be the removal of the tubes and ovaries which on occasion may not be easily removed with a vaginal hysterectomy.

This does not mean that all hysterectomies could or should be done by LAVH. There are certain conditions that will necessitate abdominal or vaginal hysterectomy. In fact a vaginal hysterectomy by itself, if indicated, is less time consuming, less expensive, and can be less dangerous.

When LAVH is performed, several small abdominal incisions are made. Through these small incisions slender plastic tubes known as "trocars" are inserted. They provide passage for a laparoscope (which is like a thin telescope) and other microsurgical tools.

A camera attached to the laparoscope provides a continuous image that is magnified and projected onto a television screen. It provides the view by which the surgeon operates.

The uterus is detached from the ligaments that attach it to other pelvic structures using laparoscopic tools, staples, electro-coagulation or a laser. Adhesions may have to be freed and, if the tubes and ovaries are to be removed, they are detached from their ligaments and blood supply. They then can be removed with the uterus through an incision made in the vagina. Since the incisions are small, the scarring and pain from LAVH is often less than that associated with abdominal hysterectomy.

Hysterectomy is the second most frequently performed surgery in the United States. As with any surgical procedure, the decision to undergo a hysterectomy should not be taken lightly. You should discuss this thoroughly with your doctor.

The most common medical reasons for performing hysterectomies include uterine fibroids (30 percent of cases), abnormal uterine bleeding (20 percent), endometriosis (20 percent), genital prolapse (15 percent), and chronic pelvic pain (about 10 percent). For most of these conditions, other treatments should first be considered, and hysterectomy should be reserved as a last resort.

Check your child's immunization status

As the days get shorter, the nights get cooler and the mums begin to bloom, children and their parents begin to think about school.

Janet Gilsdorf

The back-to-school ritual for many families includes shopping trips for new clothes and school supplies. This ritual also should include an annual review of each child's immunization status.

Although parents would be wise every fall to consider whether their children are appropriately immunized, two particular time points require increased scrutiny: at the start of elementary school and middle school.

At the start of elementary school, the final booster immunizations with DTP - which protects against diphtheria, tetanus (lockjaw) and pertussis (whooping cough) - and TOPV (oral polio vaccine) are given. In addition, a second MMR is given, which protects against measles, mumps and rubella (German measles).

Upon entry to middle school, each child's immunization record should be reviewed again.

At this age, children begin to experience many changes in their bodies, in addition to changes in emotions and relationships with friends and family members.

A visit to a family doctor or pediatrician can help children understand these changes. In addition, several new vaccines that were not available when today's teenagers were babies now may be given to protect them through adulthood: the hepatitis B vaccine, which requires three doses for complete protection against hepatitis B (a form of yellow jaundice) and the varicella (chicken pox) vaccine.

Hepatitis B is spread by sexual contact. The hepatitis B vaccine will protect teenagers from this infection at a time when they are at increased risk because of social and sexual experimentation.

Although chicken pox is usually not a serious infection in normal, healthy children, it can cause serious complications in adults. If a child has not received the second MMR immunization, it should also be given at this time.

A new recommendation is that young people entering middle school also should receive a tetanus booster, which must be repeated every 10 years.

To be sure children's immunizations are appropriately up-to-date, their vaccine records should be examined by their family physician or pediatrician or by an immunization nurse at a county health department immunization clinic.

This article was written by Janet R. Gilsdorf, M.D., professor of pediatrics and communicable diseases with the University of Michigan Health System.

- Stress Management
Do you feel stressed? Feel there's not enough hours in the day? Chances are, if you're like most of us trying to juggle work, family, and the myriad of other things that demand our attention, sometimes you feel overwhelmed. However, there is a solution.

The Botsford Center for Health Improvement (trace) is offering a course in Tai Chi. Tai Chi is an ancient Chinese martial art which is often referred to as "meditation in motion." Tai Chi employs breathing techniques along with coordination and relaxation of the entire body. This form of stress management is rapidly increasing in popularity, and offers a wonderful opportunity to relax and exercise at the same time.

The classes meet for eight consecutive Wednesdays, Sept. 4-Oct. 23 from 7 to 8 p.m. The cost of the course is $70.

Due to limited space, preregistration is required. For more information and to register, call (810) 473-5600.

trace is the Novi-based comprehensive outpatient rehabilitation and conditioning facility that specializes in sports, occupational and industrial medicine. It is part of Botsford General Hospital Physical Medicine Department.

Botsford General Hospital can help.

On Tuesday, Sept. 17, ElderMed at Botsford is presenting "Coffee with an Ophthalmologist: The Aging Eye." In a relaxed, casual atmosphere, Botsford ophthalmologist Eric Zuckerman, D.O., will discuss the causes and treatment of macular degeneration, glaucoma, diabetic retinopathy and cataracts.

The program will be held from 2 to 4 p.m. at Vladimir's, 28125 Grand River Ave., in Farmington Hills. Refreshments will be available. Preregistration is required by Monday, Sept. 9. For more information or to register, call (810) 471-8020.

The Victorian style which was popular in the Northville community during the final years of the 19th century, was known for its curved corners and detailing in the door and window frames, as well as its gables, gingerbread scroll and star fretwork.

FAB FIVE

The selection process for the five homes included in this year's Northville Historical Home Tour began just a few months after the last of the 800 visitors left the very successful tour in 1995.

Now in its second year, the Historical Home Tour, which is sponsored by the American Association of University Women Northville-Novis branch, will be held Saturday, Sept. 14, from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. Last year's chairperson Nanci Olgren received a helping hand this year from Barb Darling, who is co-chairing the event.

The Tour is a fund-raiser to support AAUW concerns. Darling was a hostess in one of the homes last year.

Tickets are $10 in advance and are available at gardenviews (202 W. Main), Morrison's Antiques (105 E. Main), Art Source (126 Main Centre), Bookstall on the Main (101 N. Center) and from AAUW members.

"Diane Rockall, who knows so much history in Northville, guides us through the historical homes that would be of interest," Olgren said. "We do have a new home this year; it is not historical, but it does reflect the building of the 1800s."

Homes are also selected through the group's knowledge of homeowners and whether or not they might be agreeable to having their home included on the tour, according to Olgren.

Olgren contacted some homeowners and was told they did not wish to participate in the current year's tour but wanted to participate next year.

Proximity is another consideration, choosing homes that are within walking distance of the downtown area is the goal.

"It would be a treat to have someone come up to us and say they have a lovely home they would like the community to look at it," said Olgren, who is open to suggestions from homeowners.

"We have one volunteer for next year already," Olgren said. "Hopefully, it will be the start of a new pattern."

VICTORIAN

The first home on the tour was originally built between 1885 and 1890 for John and Mary Kellogg in the Victorian style popular in the community during the final years of the 19th century. It was known for its curved corners and detailing in the door and window frames, as well as its gables, gingerbread scroll and star fretwork.

The present owner's renovation of the home tripled its original size to 3,500 square feet.

The Folk Victorian style (top) is most commonly seen in the south. The Queen Anne home (above) has gone through major renovations since it was originally built. The New Orleans style home (left) also has an Italianate flair and a carriage house.

Just after the turn of the century, the carriage house behind the home was built for the family's Maxwell, the first automobile in Northville.

Hostess Lisa Hilton and assistant hostess Vickie Dickieson will be pointing out to visitors interesting details such as the fireplace in the dining room, which is original to the home. The dining room itself was the living room before the renovation.

FOLK VICTORIAN

Hostess Barbara Wilson and assistant head hostess Lorraine Kirkish will be on hand to inform visitors of the unique features of the second home on the tour.

The original portion of the home was built about 1870 in the Folk Victorian style, examples of which are found mostly in the South but were common throughout the country between 1870 and 1910.

This offshoot of the Victorian style is known for its gabled front and wings.

Alvah Smith received the deed for this property and for the next property on the tour on May 16, 1825, from the United States Government. Smith's properties are in an area of the city known as the Buchner Addition.

QUEEN ANNE

This home is the second property in this year's tour owned by Smith and, like a few others on the itinerary, it overlooks a stream.

It is thought that construction on this property took place around 1880. The original home had a kitchen, bath, living room, parlor and bedroom. The second floor of the home was used as an apartment and had a small bath, kitchen and two small bedrooms.

The present owners enlarged the home considerably during renovation, which took 18 months to complete. A master bedroom and bath, large closet, and a library/study were added upstairs. A dining room and garage were added to the main floor and the kitchen was expanded.

A corner window was added to the kitchen to allow for a view of the stream, which runs through the backyard.

Many of the original fixtures and moldings have been preserved in this home and head hostess Carol Munsell and assistant head hostess Evelyn Cadicamo have additional information on the history and renovation of the home.

Trunk sale goes Victorian

Haven't figured out what to wear next weekend? The Northville Historical Society is at your service.

Carol Workens

The society is giving Northville community members a second chance to put together a Victorian costume by hosting a trunk sale on Sunday, Sept. 8, from 1 until 4 p.m. at the Cady Inn in Mill Race Village.

Victorian costumes and accessories to swap, trade or sell for children or adults will be available for anyone wishing to change or complete an existing outfit or begin to put together a new look.

"Kids, adults, anything goes," said Sonia Swigart, Mill Race activities chairperson and board member of the Northville Historical Society. "We're just opening the building for people who want to do that."

There is no cost to participate and the community is invited.

Women have many options

The first meeting of the Northville-Novl Branch of the American Association of University Women's 1996-97 calendar year will be held at the First Presbyterian Church of Northville on Main Street.

The speaker for the evening will be Faye Schuett, Ph.D., an English instructor at Schoolcraft Community College. Dr. Schuett will discuss the many choices available to women today in her speech entitled "It Used to Be Death or Marriage: Now It's Stethoscopes, Pottery, Dolls, Paisley or Oranges." Her presentation discusses the fact that women in fiction, just like their flesh and blood counterparts, have discovered there are many possibilities in today's world.

The traditional Autumn Buffet will begin at 6:30 p.m. on Tuesday, Sept. 10. If you are interested in attending or would like to know more about AAUW, please call Kathleen Polich at 344-9656.

Newcomers kick off another year

The Northville Newcomers Club has planned a kick-off event which will be held at Cooke Middle School on Thursday, Sept. 5, at 7:30 p.m. Interest group chairmen will be available to discuss the activities they have planned for their groups for the coming year.

The Northville Newcomers organization is open to people of all ages who reside within the boundaries of the Northville School District. Many activities and interest groups are available to help new residents meet friends and become acclimated to the community such as the Moms and Tots group, ladies bridge groups and couples bowling.

If you would like to become a member, call Toni Giles at 305-9021.

If you have information for the In Our Town column, call Carol Workens at 349-1700.

Engagement

Erich Ross/Courtney Casterline

Mr. and Mrs. Ray J. Casterline II of Northville announce the engagement of their daughter, Courtney Rae, to Erich Ronal Ross, the son of Elizabeth A. Ross of Northville and Don Ross of Pleasant Ridge.

Courtney graduated from Madonna University in 1995.

Erich is currently attending Oakland Community College CAD program. He is employed by Casterline Funeral Home.

An Oct. 5 wedding is planned.

Five homes on tour

NEW ORLEANS

The first record available on the age of this home dates to 1911 when Charles and Sarah Garfield owned the property, which probably included a residence. The property had been sold at least eight times between 1872 and 1911.

The renovated home's style is reminiscent of New Orleans with a dash of Italianate architecture. The present owner has recently redone the kitchen, leaving two of the original brick walls exposed.

The interior decorating finds of the owner come from Dallas, Texas, High Point, N.C., and New York City. The head hostess is Ann Newton and the assistant head hostess is Nancy Longo.

GERMANIC

A new home was built in 1995 on a parcel of land which was deeded by President John Quincy Adams in 1825 to Alanson Aldrich, who owned 74 acres of part of what is now old Northville.

This property and others in this area of the city were sold for development during the last part of the 19th century.

The newest home on the historical home tour was built in 1995 but has Germanic influences.

Like the other two deeded properties, it changed hands many times. But unlike the others, it remained vacant until construction began last year. At that time a new split-log home with 3,400 square feet of living space was built among the six varieties of trees on the property. The exterior changes to the home were approved by the Historic District Commission.

The home may be new and include conveniences of modern living, but its influence comes from Germanic immigrants who lived in heavily wooded areas of Europe in the 19th century. The present homeowners collected the stones used in the fireplace from Petoskey and Saugatuck.

The flooring in the home is of maple, hickory, oak and marble. Shaker design cabinets and a soap-stone style sink have a back splash of handmade pewabic pottery tiles collected by the owners over the past few years.

Head hostess Mandy Martin and assistant head hostess Jane

Spence will fill tour visitors in on the many personal touches the owners have included in the home.

Tour goers must wear socks or hosiery and will be given a plastic bag in which to carry their shoes while they tour the home.

Neither pets nor children under 12 will be permitted in the tour homes. No drinking, eating, smoking or interior photography is allowed.

For more information on the Northville Historical Home Tour, call (810) 347-6042.

Contestants must use sewing machine

Rev up your sewing machine. Let your scissors rip-roar. Unleash your creativity and show-off your sewing talents. Area sewers are being invited to enter garments in three contests sponsored by American Stitches: Fashion Sewing, Quilting, and Needle Arts Expo at the Novi Expo Center, Oct. 4-6.

A "Wearable Art Contest and Fashion Show" will be held Friday, Oct. 4 at noon. Wearable Art entrants are persuaded to break traditional sewing rules and to create garment using fiber art techniques such as quilting, weaving, dyeing, painting, piecing, texturing, applique, bead work, etc. First prize is a Pfaff Hobbylock No. 4870 Serger.

A second opportunity, the "Sew Inspired Contest and Fashion Show" will take place Saturday, Oct. 5 at noon. Entrants may submit a traditionally sewn garment using techniques such as tailoring, heirloom, and smocking. First prize is a White Superlock No. 2000 Serger.

A new event for bridal, evening wear, and costumes called "Sew Special Contest and Fashion Show" has been added on Sunday, Oct. 6 at noon. The winner will take home a New Home No. 634D Serger.

Contest entry fee is $10. Sept. 25 is the deadline for entry forms. Registration brochures with complete contest details may be picked up at your local sewing retailer or by phoning American Stitches at 1-800-594-9029.

Child faces adversity with imaginary friend

What is reality? What is illusion? Just because you can't see something, does it mean it isn't there?

Seven year-old Albert (Haley Joel Osment) was raised in a shiny world of sequins and showgirls, surrounded by the magic and fantasy of Las Vegas. But when his single mother is suddenly killed in a car accident, Albert is sent from Vegas to live with his mother's childhood best friend whom he never knew existed, Harriet Franklin (Whoopi Goldberg), in the decidedly not fantastic and not magical city of Newark, New Jersey.

As if raising a newfound "son" isn't trying enough for the fiercely independent Harriet, Albert has brought along a friend — an imaginary one that no one else can see — a stupendous, gentle giant of a Frenchman named Bogus (Gerard Depardieu).

As Albert and Harriet struggle to get used to each other, Harriet's world of reality is brought face-to-face with Albert's world of imagination. While she grapples with sharing her one-person existence with this strange little boy who seems to talk to himself, Albert begins to rely more and more on his fantasy episodes, hoping to keep hold of the place he once called home.

Acting as part teacher, part playmate and part guardian angel, Bogus leads Albert — and eventually Harriet — through an enlightening experience of imagination and trust. Harriet ultimately discovers how to feel like a kid again (or maybe for the first time), and Albert grows to learn that there's more to love, friendship and magic than meets the eye.

Academy Award-winner Whoopi Goldberg and internationally acclaimed actor Gerard Depardieu star with seven year-old newcomer Haley Joel Osment in "Bogus," a heartwarming story directed and produced by Norman Jewison ("Moonstruck"). Producing with Jewison are Arnon Milchan and Jeff Rothberg. The screenplay is by two-time Academy Award-winner Alvin Sargent ("Ordinary People") from a story by Jeff Rothberg and Francis X. McCarthy.

Rounding out the cast of "Bogus" are Denis Mercer as Mr. Antoine, who teaches Albert the intricacies of magic, and Nancy Travis as Albert's mother, Lorraine.

Producer/director Norman Jewison, who was supervised for much of his youth by two elder aunts because of his parents' time-consuming job of running a family store, readily admits that he, like Whoopi Goldberg and Gerard Depardieu don't exactly see eye to eye in New Regency's funny and heartwarming story, "Bogus," distributed by Warner Bros.

Albert, had imaginary friends as a little boy. "I had dozens of them, all kinds, big ones, small ones, twins, triplets."

In particular, he credits one of his aunts, a schoolteacher, with stimulating his imagination and subsequently laying the foundation for his artistic life, first as an actor, then as a director.

"She taught me to read at a very early age," he says.

"I used to memorize psalms from the Bible and Robert Frost poems. Very early on, I learned the power of imagination. I began conjuring up my own imaginary worlds, worlds I could fill with imaginary people, places and games that would take me away from my real world."

Whoopi Goldberg and Haley Joel Osment share a moment.

'Joe's Apartment' offers weak plot and few laughs

READER MOVIE REVIEWS

MTV's first motion picture, "Joe's Apartment," may be amusing as a short on MTV, but as a movie, it falls short of being amusing.

Don't get me wrong. The singing cockroaches are cute and funny. But, you can catch all of that on the "Joe's Apartment" soundtrack.

So, without the cockroaches, what's left to the movie?

The first hour of "Joe's Apartment" has no plot, and makes the upcoming "Beavis & Butt-Head Do America!" look good.

But the last half of "Joe's Apartment" is actually good, and you'll find yourself smiling in spite of yourself.

"Joe's Apartment" uses the same old MTV jokes and puts them in an hour and one-half film, along with some singing and dancing cockroaches and expects the movie to be a hit.

Unfortunately, MTV productions forgot that in order for a movie to be a hit, you'll need a plot.

"Joe's Apartment" receives three and one-half stars out of five, with five being the highest.

It's worth watching once it comes to video, but until then, don't bother.

Jerry O'Connell stars in Geffen Pictures' live-action animated musical comedy, "Joe's Apartment," released by Warner Bros.

Mystery writer gives lecture

By CAROL WORKENS
Staff Writer

"I Want to Tell a Story" will be the topic of author William X. Kienzle on Friday, Sept. 13 at the Novi Civic Center. Kienzle's first mystery, The Rosary Murders, was released as a motion picture in 1987 and starred Donald Sutherland as Father Koesler, a Detroit priest who becomes an often-reluctant detective.

Father Koesler returns in the mystery writer's newly published Regnum for Moses. With signature twists and turns, Kienzle's 18th novel has Father Koesler solving the mystery behind Dr. Moses Green's death, miraculous rebirth and second death.

During the Catholic wake, everyone present confides in Father Koesler for the newly deceased Jewish doctor was a reprehensible person. Just before Father Koesler's eulogy for Dr. Green, Moses Green made had an undeserved rebirth.

The cast of characters includes the regular crew of Lieutenant Zoo Tully and reporter Pat Lennon.

The program is sponsored by the Novi Arts Council. Refreshments will be served following the lecture.

Kienzle will donate his fee to the Core City Parish Fund in Detroit, which is a group of seven inner-city parishes whose priests equally divide the money accumulated in this fund every December as their salary for the year.

REAL ESTATE

Free service enables property sales via Internet

By James M. Woodard
Copley News Service

Homeowners who want to sell their property without the assistance of a professional broker now have a national computer database, accessed via the Internet, to expose the availability of their home.

The new database - FISBO Registry - was launched in late July and now has more than 200 listings, according to director Linda Rousseau.

"However, new listings are coming in every day from points throughout the country," she said. The service is being advertised as free to homeowners.

But there is an initial $50 deposit fee that is refundable when the property is sold or anytime.

and for any reason - the registry listing is canceled by the owner.

"Our database contains direct homeowner FSBO registrations only and does not contain listings from real estate brokers or their sales associates," Rousseau said.

FSBO is the brokers' term for "for sale by owner" properties. Or they simply call it a "fisbo" as in the name of the new listing service.

In a few cases, a broker can submit a listed property to the registry, Rousseau explained. But that's only when they have an open listing or an "exclusive agency" listing contract with the owner. In both cases the owner has the right to sell the property himself, without being obligated to pay a commission.

Felt's unique floor plan addresses a variety of needs

By James McAlexander
Copley News Service

The two-level Felt offers a unique floor design that can fill the living arrangement needs in a variety of family situations.

With 2,670 square feet of living space and the sleeping areas on different floors, this house is ideal for families with older children still at home, or those with live-in elderly parents.

The lower level can be turned into private or semiprivate quarters. Empty-nesters may want to seal off the entire floor when not expecting guests.

The brick and wood exterior not only has an eye-catching beauty, but suggests a solid durability that will last throughout the years.

Inside, to the left of the recessed entry, is the stairway to the lower portion of the home. To the right is the elegant, isolated master suite. You will have maximum privacy, along with several amenities including: a large walk-in closet, view windows, vanity and private bathroom with spa.

A large living room serves as the main gathering place on the first floor. Here a built-in fireplace distributes a cozy warmth over you and your guests, as everyone relaxes while savoring the agreeable atmosphere.

The walk-in kitchen is in a perfect location to allow the cook in the household to prepare and serve meals with ease. An informal brunch or breakfast can be eaten in the adjoining nook or at the buffet. More formal occasions can be enjoyed in the adjacent dining room.

If the weather cooperates, open the sliding-glass door and step onto the roomy deck for a sandwich and lemonade in the sun.

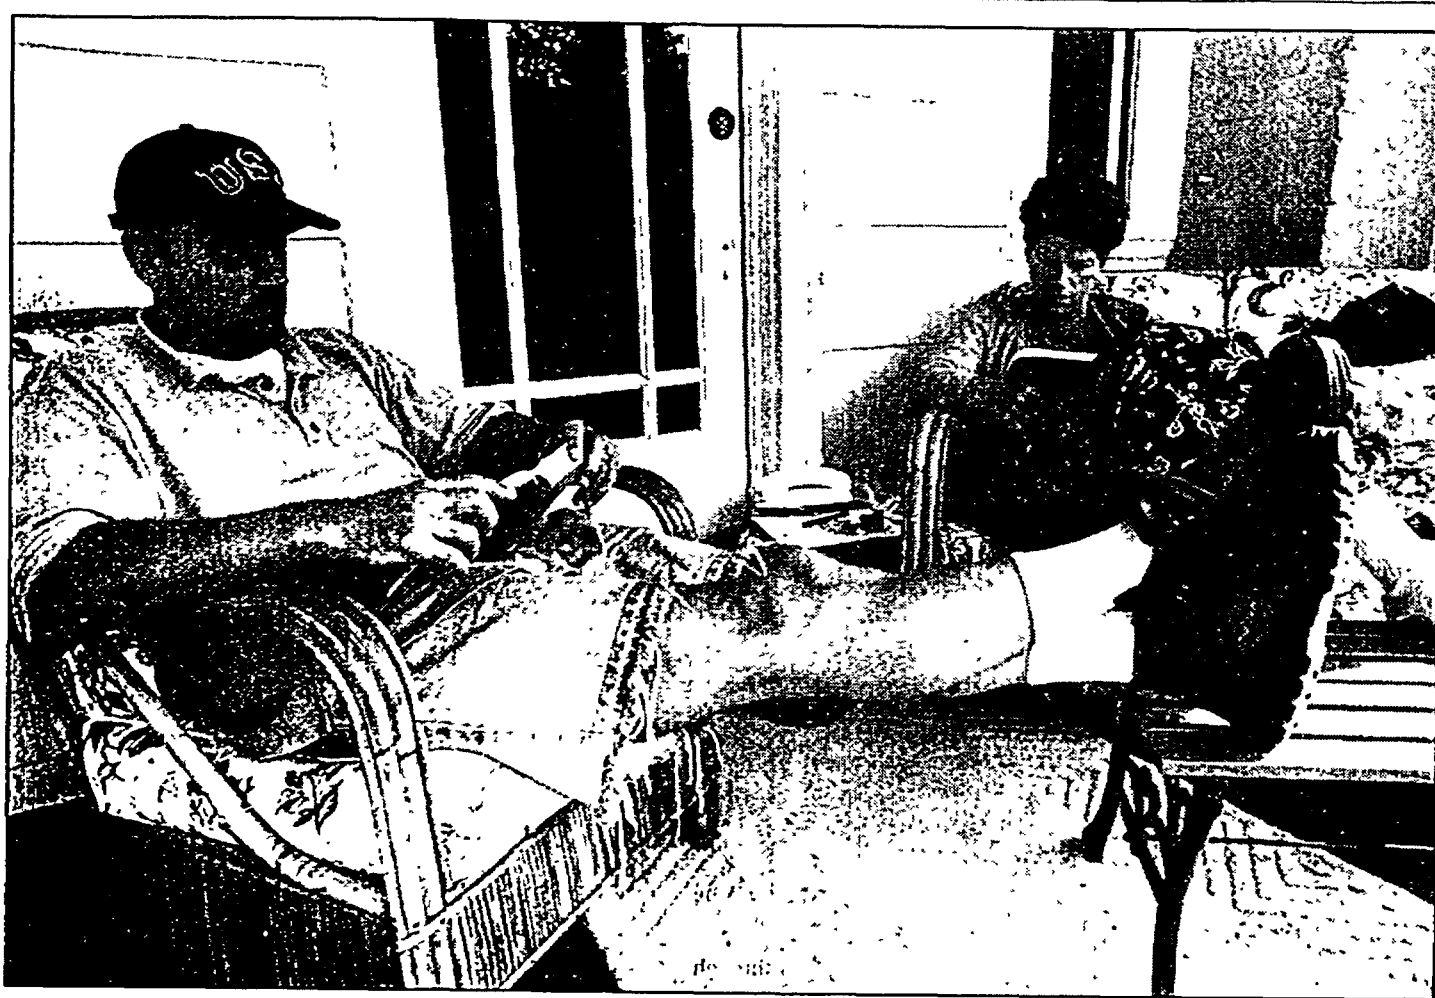

The remainder of the upper level has a modest home office, half-bath with laundry chute and convenient access to the two-car garage.

The lower level of the Felt incorporates two bedrooms, a full bathroom, a spacious family room that is large enough for a pool table, big-screen television and a couple of couches, a huge utility room, covered back deck with spa and a vast undeveloped storage area underneath the garage.

For a study plan of the Felt (402-27 1), send $10 to Landmark Designs, c/o HomeTown Newspapers, 323 E. Grand River, Howell, MI 48843. (Be sure to specify plan name and number when ordering.) For more information, call (800) 562 1151.

PORCH

What is it about small towns that gives us a sense of security and belonging?

Most of us agree, there's something special about a small town like Milford that makes us want to stroll the sidewalk and wave to those we meet. Although it may be hard to put a finger on it, Anne Barnette, Director of the Downtown Development Authority in Milford, can help.

One phenomenon that encourages neighborliness is porches, according to Barnette. Exactly what do porches add to a community, besides charm and ambience? And how did they develop?

She explains the philosophy put forth by Andreas Duane and Elizabeth Plater Zyberk: a husband and wife team of Harvard graduates who found their niche in town planning.

"Essentially in their view, the design of a small town was at its peak in the 1950s. When they planned the city, they didn't write ordinances in a book, they had a picture of what they wanted the neighborhood to look like.

"They put a lot of thought into how wide they wanted the streets to be, where to put the focal points in a community, such as school, post office and city hall. The main street or downtown was the social core or hub of the community."

The planning resulted in interesting conclusions about pedestrian traffic, or walking. They found when you have two destination points, close enough together with narrow streets and diversity in architecture, people will walk. And along with that, porches will develop.

What happens when you have pedestrian traffic and people sitting out on their porches?

"They may take the same path and walk by somebody on their porch. And maybe they walk by once or twice. But most of the time after they've walked by about five or

GARDENING

The American Indians were the first to invent a corn husk doll. Corn husks were dried, tied and fashioned into chiefs, warriors and women. Then faces were painted, and sometimes sticks were added for arms and legs.

The doll is created with corn husks and yarn, and - when correctly tied - will include all the body features.

You can use other materials to create clothing; it's best to attach facial features with glue. To begin the project: Gather 12 corn husks, yarn or string and scissors.

Tie husks tightly together at one end with yarn or string.

To make the head, tie the husks a little way down from the top knot. Gather three of the husks and tie them together halfway down for an arm. Gather and tie three more husks at the opposite side of the doll to form the other arm. Cut away most of the excess corn husk that is below the knots.

To make the body, tie the remaining corn husks halfway between the head and their ends.

Make the legs by taking three husks and tying them together a little up from their ends. Make the other leg the same way. Now that your doll is finished, use your imagination in decorating.

Q. Why do leaves change color in the fall?

A. When the warm summer days begin to wane, the shorter days and cool weather cause the trees to stop producing chlorophyll. In other words, deciduous trees (the ones that lose their leaves in fall) slow down at the end of the growing season and start storing food in the roots instead of concentrating on making leaves. It's as if the trees know they soon will lose their leaves.

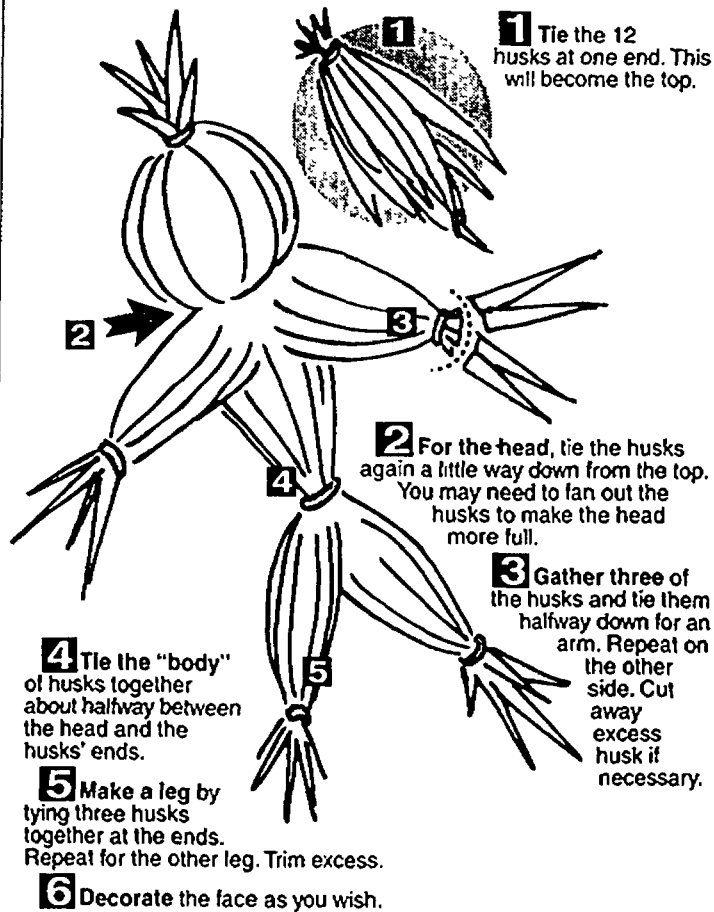

Fallen leaves are known as "nature's jewels" or "nature's fertilizer." They cover the forest floor with valuable nutrients, so use them to improve your soil.

Oak leaves are best for mulching and for covering shrubs and plants for winter protection because they are loaded with nutrients.

Different varieties of trees turn various shades of color, and it's this dazzling combination that makes the fall season so spectacular. Most six times, you start to wave."

Porches help maintain a friendly neighborhood atmosphere

And that encourages neighborliness, says Barnette. It also translates into a lower crime rate.

"In a very real way, architecture drives social parameters," she said.

"It's interesting not only for the walker, but for the person on the porch. It's interesting to watch people walk by."

Barnette has a bird's eye view from her porch in the village.

"I sit out every morning on my porch and spend some quiet time reading. I know four women who walk by in their jogging suits.... At first I waved, now and then I even get off my porch to talk to them. It's a good feeling for the walker and the sitter."

Narrow streets encouraged pedestrian traffic and the phenomenon of porches, she said. A lot of changes attributed to the automobile started taking place after the 1950s. Prior to that, streets were narrow and used for people and cars. Parking in the street was encouraged. Narrow streets prevented cars from speeding, thus encouraging pedestrian traffic. After the 1950s, streets were wider and designed for high speeds of car traffic.

Another important characteristic of a unified community is a diversity in architecture, which not only prevents boredom, but encourages loyalty. Residents can aspire to move up in their own neighborhood. They don't have to move to another community if they become more prosperous. They can find a bigger and better home on the same block, Barnette said.

So, how was Milford lucky enough to retain its small town flavor? The village had a few obstacles that turned out to be blessings. The railroad tracks and the river made a natural border to development, said Barnette, so they didn't overdevelop in the post-war boom.

Another reason is that Milford was an established community before the 1950s.

"Milford is not a suburb. It was a well-established, active and functioning community. There were industry and jobs before the boom," she said.

It also took some guidance from former village leaders. Barnette appreciates the role they played in preserving the small town feeling.

"I have to give credit to past leaders who understood the character, beauty and ambience of a small town.... As a planner, I was so proud of my home town. They not only retained what was good; there was intelligent thought put into their planning; celebrating the pedestrian community," Barnette said. What makes a good porch? Six feet in width makes a great functional porch. Look for a roof, a place to rest your feet, and comfortable, functional furniture. You can tell the great porch sitters will usually have a book out or a shelf they've put to good use.

Of note to Highland residents: the proposed Stonelea project in Highland is modeled after the architectural philosophy of Andreas Duaney and the neo-traditional community.

National database allows homeowners to sell property without broker

The most common type of listing is an "exclusive right to sell" contract, committing the owner to pay a commission to the broker regardless of who sells it. This type of listed property cannot be submitted to the new FISBO Registry.

The registry group generates revenue from the operation by selling subscriptions to "exclusive buyer brokers and agents." The amount of the subscription fee is still being determined but will probably be between $25 to $35 per month.

The data fields on the registry are exhaustive, according to Rousseau. It includes all home amenities such as pool, air conditioning, appliances and porches.

In addition to usual information such as the number of rooms, bathrooms, price. And it includes from one to 10 photos.

It also includes the property's annual taxes, utilities, type of heat, type of roof, building materials and more than 50 other types of information.

The owner's name and address are not released on the Internet. But interested parties can e-mail a message directly to the homeowner to find out more information or set up a house visit.

Rousseau was involved in real estate brokerage for 12 years before starting her registry - six years as a general broker and six years as an exclusive buyer's broker.

The registry operation is based in New London, N.H.

The FISBO Registry site address on the Internet is: <http://public.fisbos.com>. The home page address: <http://www.fisbos.com>.

Q. Is home-building on the increase or decrease?

A. This year is developing into one of the housing industry's busiest periods. Single-family home-building is about 12 percent ahead of a year ago and is at the fastest midyear building pace since 1988.

That is the very positive report from U.S. Housing Markets, a unit of Hanley-Wood Inc., publisher of trade journals and magazines for the residential construction industry. About 554,885 single-family building permits were issued during the first half of this year, the report stated - the largest number of permits issued in a six-month period since 1978.

Florida and Texas are the most active home-building states this summer. Florida and North Carolina's numbers are coming up rapidly.

Atlanta is the nation's busiest metropolitan area in both single-family and total permits, even though builders reduced their permit volume markedly in early summer as preparations for the Olympic Games began to pre-empt normal activities.

California's homebuilders are keeping up a strong growth momentum at mid-year. The state's single-family home numbers are 14 percent ahead of last year at this time.

Q. What is the Real Estate Television Network all about?

A. The RETV is a special real estate satellite communications network using digital broadcasting data to train real estate professionals in 46 U.S. states, Canada and Mexico.

Questions may be used in future columns; personal responses should not be expected. Send inquiries to James M. Woodard, Copley News Service, P.O. Box 190, San Diego, CA 92112 0190.

Why trees change color in autumn; Chinese use mums for medicinal purposes of the intense color is supplied by only a few trees, such as sugar and red maples, sumac, dogwood, black gum, birches, hickory, beeches and oak trees.

The beginning of autumn is around Sept. 20, and by the time the "frost is on the pumpkin," most trees are bare.

MEDICINAL MUMS

Legend tells us that chrysanthemums originated in China centuries ago - even before reaching Japanese shores - so it comes as no surprise to learn that the Chinese to this day believe in the medicinal value of mums.

In traditional Chinese medicine, chrysanthemums are supposedly used to treat headaches, fever, hepatitis and swollen and painful eyes.

Among therapeutic benefits attributed to the plants are improved eyesight, detoxification, lower blood pressure and creating a soothing effect.

A soothing effect is the primary therapeutic benefit most gardeners get from seeing beautiful mums in their garden. Although chrysanthemum means "golden flower" in Greek, garden mums are no longer just golden and come in a multitude of eye-pleasing colors as a result of years of scientific breeding.

Of the six basic garden mum flower forms bred by the Yoder firm, one flower, the pompon, got its name centuries ago from the French because its rounded shape reminded them of the wool pompons on their soldiers' hats. The other flower forms are daisy, decorative, anemone, button and spider. Some garden mums come in a combination of flower forms, such as spoon-tipped daisies or quilled decoratives.

On top of the medicinal benefits ascribed to them by the ancient Chinese, chrysanthemums have been found to be an environmentally safe insecticide. There are two on the market. One is made with "botanical pyrethrins from chrysanthemum flowers" and another from the "dried and crushed chrysanthemum heads."

One advantage they are supposed to have over other insecticides is that they can be used on edible fruits and vegetables up to the day of the harvest, and the produce will still be safe for consumption.

Medieval period inspired Gothic Revival Furniture

This handsome Victorian-era Gothic Revival chair, made between 1820 and 1850, is worth $500 to $600.

By Anne McCollam
Copley News Service

G. I am curious about the chair in this picture. It is in excellent condition and has the original casters. Any information you can supply as to the style, age and value will be greatly appreciated.

A. The style of your side chair is Gothic Revival inspired by medieval furniture and architecture. This early Victorian substyle is characterized by pointed arches, high frame backs, pierced trefoils and quatrefoils, and steeple-turned finials. Some of the more exceptional examples of Gothic Revival furniture were designed by architects to coordinate with their custom-made homes. Side chairs were more prevalent than armchairs. These chairs were used mainly in parlors and halls in private homes or in churches and lodges. Your chair was made sometime between 1820 to 1850. Its value would probably be about $500 to $600.

G. I inherited a set of dishes about 10 years ago with this mark. I know nothing about it other than it was made during the Depression. Each dish is decorated with figures that look like George and Martha Washington sitting in a garden. The edges are trimmed in gold filigree. I would like to have any information you can provide.

A. Your dishes were made by Sebring Pottery Co. In 1881, their first factory was opened in East Liverpool, Ohio. Around 1900, their entire operation was moved to Sebring, Ohio. They were bought by American Limoges China Co. in 1940. Chantilly was one of their more popular patterns. Each place setting would probably be worth about $35 to $45.

G. I have tried for the last few years to get some information on a black marionette that belonged to my mother. Made by Effanbee, his name is Lucifer. I still have the original instructions. Is my marionette worth anything?

ANTIQUES

A. Black Americana items are highly desirable collectibles. Your marionette is circa 1950 and would probably be worth about $350 in mint condition.

G. I have an early pencil sharpener that was made around 1907. It was made by the Automatic Pencil Sharpener Co. in New York. Is my pencil sharpener a collectible?

A. Pencil sharpeners are collectibles. People have been known to pay as much as $125 for sharpeners similar to yours.

G. I have a framed picture of Maxfield Parrish's "The Dinkey Bird." The size is 11 inches by 15 inches. It is a scene of a nude woman on a swing. In the rich blue background are a castle and several trees. On the lower right-hand corner are his initials. The frame is the original. What is its value?

A. "The Dinkey Bird" was first produced in 1904. Parrish achieved the luscious blues by using an old technique of layering his paint. He worked until three years before his death in 1966. Your framed picture would probably be worth about $200 to $250.

U.S. Savings Bonds will help them do one thing with their retirement: Enjoy it.

U.S. Savings Bonds are helping millions of Americans save for their retirement — easily and safely.

When you buy U.S. Savings Bonds, you'll know your money will be there when you retire. Your investment is backed by the full faith and credit of the United States.

U.S. Savings Bonds are an easy, affordable way to save. Buy them for just a few dollars each payday through your employer's U.S. Savings Bonds Payroll Savings Plan or for as little as $25 each at your bank. What could be easier?

There are other advantages, too. The interest earned is exempt from state and local income taxes, and it can be federally tax-deferred. Bonds earn a guaranteed return, and they're eligible to earn competitive, market-based interest, compounded semiannually, when held five years or more. And you can redeem them anytime after six months from the issue date.

Whatever your plans for retirement, U.S. Savings Bonds can help you enjoy them. For more information, ask your employer or bank, or write: U.S. Savings Bonds Division, Department of the Treasury, Box 933 N, Washington, DC 20226. Baker's banquet hall is great restaurant too

By RICK BYRNE
Staff Writer

If you live in the Milford area, you would have had to crawl out from under a rock only recently to not know that restaurateur Paul Baker will soon open a banquet hall on Milford Road north of the highway.

Somewhat more of a secret, though, is the fact that Baker's of Milford will be open every day as a restaurant as well, with the opening targeted for the first week of October.

Baker's banquet hall had 87 bookings when we visited in July, and Baker expected to have 200 events on his calendar by the time he opens. If you want a date anytime in the summer of 1997 don't ask for a Saturday. They're all taken.

And in the inimitable Baker style, the restaurant will be just as lively. If you want to think big, think Baker's.

The main dining room, dubbed the Old Mill Room for its Milford theme, will seat 120 people, and will be entirely non-smoking. Other partitioned areas will be a smoking room for 60 patrons, dining space for 40-45 people in the bar area, and an outdoor patio (which may eventually be glassed-in) with a capacity of 50.

"If the restaurant is full, and we have the availability in the banquet area, a portion of the banquet area can be opened up for 65 more people," Baker said.

"That would put us up around 315 to 320 people. We would be the only 300-plus capacity restaurant in the area. A couple can seat over 200, but not many."

The two facilities will have all their food come out of the same kitchen.

The kitchen has been designed in the open, European style, rather than the "line" style of cooking that is the standard in American restaurants.

"If you stand in one corner of the kitchen, you can see all the way to the other side," said Scott Rye, food purchaser and executive chef in the banquet area. "It gets everyone working together. The line style of kitchen cuts down on efficiency."

The restaurant aims to be a fun place to dine in a casual atmosphere. Rich Nell, formerly of the Bum Steer in South Lyon, Excalibur, Polo Fields and the renowned Golden Mushroom in Southfield will be the executive chef in the restaurant area.

"People will be able to come in here in suits, or in their jeans and work boots, and either will feel comfortable," said Rye.

Steaks and beef will be points of emphasis on Nell's menu, and they'll do a lot of in-house smoking of food. It will be heavy on the pasta, too.

Since the restaurant bears his name, Baker became the focus of the menu and the atmosphere. The energetic and friendly former proprietor of the South Lyon Hotel and Novi's Goat Farm could often be found hopping from table to table passing out smiles and handshakes.

"Just imagine someone like Paul, and you'll get an idea of what we're trying to be," said Rye.

Items slated for the menu give a glimpse of what kind of restaurant Baker's will be.

The 20/20 will likely appear. That's a 20-ounce steak, 20-ounces of fries and a 20-ounce beer for $20.

One planned appetizer/side dish will be the Foot of Onion Rings, homemade rings stacked in a column a foot tall.

Menus will change quarterly to reflect both changes in seasons and changes in tastes. Michigan products - from flour to wine to microbrew beers - are being favored wherever possible. Rye added.

For the younger set, they won't get a menu like Mom and Dad's. Their food choices will appear in pictures in a View Master 3-D viewer.

"We found research that said in 80 percent of families, kids dictated the choice of restaurant when the family ate out," said Rye. "You have to appeal to the kids."

Toward that goal, the restaurant will offer something special: a Haunted Table. Many people don't know that for two years, the site of Baker's was the home of the Milford Jaycees' annual haunted house.

In homage to that dislocated venture, Baker obtained some of the lumber from the former haunted house to be used in the building of the corner booth. Then he contacted some people from the Disney Co. about how to set up some special effects.

When the restaurant opens, diners at the Haunted Table who ask for it will be subjected to three or four minutes of spooky music, lights, vibrations and sound effects, as well as some special menu items that Chef Rich Nell calls "monkey brains" and "bat wings" (Their true identity is a secret that only slow torture or a witch's spell will extract from the staff).

Another special table at the restaurant will appeal to the more sophisticated diner. Borrowing an idea from a restaurant in Chicago, Chef Nell will offer personalized service at his own reservation-only Chef's Table. Diners at the Chef's Table will speak personally with the chef in advance, and he will design a multi-course meal to their order.

He will then come to the table and explain things like why he chose a particular wine to accompany their meal, and often he will prepare the food at tableside.

Though this service appears tailor-made for couples seeking a romantic evening, Baker hopes anyone who wants a pampered dining experience will try it.

Crystal builds a gem

Thompsonville, Michigan—

Construction is underway on a new nine-hole addition to Crystal Mountain Resort's existing 27-hole layout, resort officials announced recently.

Designed by Ann Arbor-based golf course architect William Newcomb, the new nine will complete Crystal's Mountain Ridge course, which opened four years ago. The resort plans to open the new course addition in 1998.

"The completed Mountain Ridge 18 will be a par 72 layout of more than 6900 yards in length," said Brad Dean, Crystal's PGA head professional. "This course will challenge the low handicap golfer from the back tees, and offer a very playable experience for higher handicappers from the forward tees."

Currently, Mountain Ridge features sweeping vistas of the Betsie River Valley, elevated tees, large contoured greens, and elevated fairways. "Having a complete 36-hole layout will enable us to host statewide golf tournaments, as well as complementing our existing facilities," Dean said.

Those facilities include a unique 10-acre practice facility, also designed by Newcomb, which is now two years old. "Ours is one of the top practice centers in northern Michigan," Dean said. "With a driving range featuring a two-tiered teeing area, separate chipping and putting greens, sand traps and grass bunkers, a golfer can simulate all aspects of the game."

Dean conducts annual golf schools at Crystal Mountain from May through August, utilizing the practice center.

Newcomb's golf course design resume includes other northern Michigan courses such as Spruce Run at Grand Traverse Resort, and the Moor, Monument and Alpine courses at Boyne.

Crystal Mountain is a 1500 acre year-round resort located near Traverse City, Michigan. It has been recognized by Golf For Women magazine as one of the top 100 women friendly golf courses in America, as well as receiving the prestigious Golden Links award from Corporate Meetings and Incentives magazine. The resort features accommodations for more than 900 persons, with amenities that include alpine and cross country skiing, tennis, indoor and outdoor pools, a 175-seat restaurant, and state-of-the-art conference and banquet facilities for up to 300 people.

Master designer carves new course

Stanwood, Michigan—

St. Ives Golf Club is just what you'd expect from master course designer Jerry Matthews — imaginative, exciting, challenging, breathtakingly beautiful.

At St. Ives, each hole is designed to take advantage of the natural terrain and to build alternative shots for every playing ability. There is always another approach, always another tee.

Golfers of all abilities will appreciate the natural beauty of Mecosta County as they travel quietly over and around delicate wetlands.

Approach bunkers at St. Ives are bold and greens are bonny. Breathtaking views are offered from elevated tees which allow golfers to pace their game. Par threes and par fives are of magnificent variations.

One of Michigan's newest golf courses, St. Ives Golf Club is also one of the best success stories of real estate development. Before the course opened for play last fall, nearly all 55 lots developed at the time were sold.

This spring, a new development, Oakleigh, was opened on the 17th fairway. This project calls for 17 lots on and off the fairway. Those on the fairway are priced at $35,000 to $90,000. The back lots go for $15,000 to $30,000. Owner Norm Browning said these lots are among the prettiest on the course.

Purchase includes membership in the parent development, Canadian Lakes, as well as a golf club membership at St. Ives. The golf/recreation development is located in Mecosta County, west of Mount Pleasant.

For lots and membership information, call 800-722-5549.

Garland: Color postcard comes to life

Lewiston, Michigan—

The Garland Resort at Lewiston is a fall color postcard come alive.

Set amid 3,500 acres of park land, lakes, and streams, the huge golden log lodge and its luxurious log cottages and French country villas set very lofty standards for elegant accommodations.

Those standards are high enough that Garland was awarded a coveted Four Diamond designation by the national American Automobile Association (AAA) earlier this year.

Garland is the only year-round resort in the state to earn the Four Diamond award given for excellence in hospitality, accommodations, food, and service.

Visitors to the resort come to know what owner Ron Otto means when he refers to how things are done "the Garland way." That means nothing is left to chance from room service to the way flower beds are planted and perfectly manicured.

With the surrounding forests and water, fall golf at Garland is a kaleidoscope of color on perfectly maintained fairways and greens.

With the opening of Fountains for full-time play this season, there are four courses from which to choose.

The longest is Monarch at 7,200 yards from the back tees. Swampfire measures 6,800 yards, Fountains is 6,700 yards, and Reflections is a more gently 6,400 yards. All play at par 72.

Although they all play out of the same clubhouse adjacent to the lodge, Fountains is across the main county road resort entrance. A huge covered log bridge over the roadway, now a county landmark, connects the course to the main property.

While the other three courses are routed over flat land with water everywhere, Fountains offers a different look.

There are elevation changes in the land of up to 90 feet. The fairways have plenty of roll, matching the large undulated greens.

These are very playable golf courses that offer tough tests of golf in perfect conditions. Veteran PGA professional, Lee Woodruff, is in charge of keeping the golf operations running smoothly.

For groups of golfers, the most economical way to do a fall tour of Garland is to book the golf cottage package. The 60 log two-bedroom two-bath cottages are basic, pine-finished rustic units designed with golfers in mind.

However, basic and rustic care are relative terms at Garland where the emphasis is on luxury. The cottages are equipped with gas grills, and golfers can have steaks or any other provisions for grilling their own dinners pre-stocked with their reservations.

The fall cost for four persons sharing a cottage is $115 each with 36 holes of golf daily. The weekend rate is $119.

An added attraction for those who can't get enough golf, is the long ribbon-like putting green that meanders in a circle around the bank of a pond around which the cottages are built.

Michigan products such as whitefish, venison and salmon are featured on the menu. A superb wine list complements the unlimited dinner choices.

If golf is not your bag, then the Garland's setting in a nature preserve has much to offer.

The lakes and rivers are filled with pike, perch, native brook and rainbow trout. The forests are home to eagles, hawks, wild turkey, otters, mink, coyote, fox and black bear.

With all these marvels of nature on display Garland is a wonderful destination, with or without golf.

Sip your way through Grand Traverse County

Iris
Jones

Ever wonder why a wine expert tastes the wine and then spits it out? Maybe he has visited half a dozen wineries in a day and he doesn't have a designated driver. This trip will take you through the wineries in the Grand Traverse area, but you don't have to do them all in one day.

Tour, sip a little. Picnic, sip a little. The essence word is "taste" not "swill."

OLD MISSION PENINSULA

Old Mission Peninsula divides Grand Traverse Bay into east and west arms. Follow Highway 37 for 20 miles north from Traverse City to Old Mission Point, with four winery stops along the way.

Views of east and west bays lead you eight miles to Chateau Grand Traverse, where Edward O'Keefe planted his first vineyards in 1974. The microclimate that nurtures cherries also nurtures grapes, so he now has 160 acres.

His winemaker, Bernd Croissant, born in Germany, has made his mark on many of the wines you'll find in the recently expanded tasting room. If you like the fruitiness of Rhine wines, try his Johannisberg Rieslings.

Ice wine is so expensive that you probably won't find it the tasting table, but it's worth buying a small bottle as a dessert or after-dinner wine for your next dinner party.

It's another mile to Bowers Harbor Vineyards, which has a fabulous view of Bowers Harbor. The Stegengas Jack and Linda, have a great story.

This was a farm where children rode horses. Then it was a farm where the family raised cows. When that didn't work out, they planted grapes on the cow-fertilized land. Today the old horse barn is their tasting room!

Try the sparklings here, especially those made by the French or champenoise method.

Entertainment sometimes goes with the wine on Bob Begins 65 acres at Chateau Chantal. Winemaker Mark Johnson creates more Johannisberg Rieslings to go with the great view of both east and west bays.

The very popular Jazz at Sunset series is held Fridays in September and October. Sip wine, nibble cheese, listen to jazz musicians and watch the setting sun gild the waters.

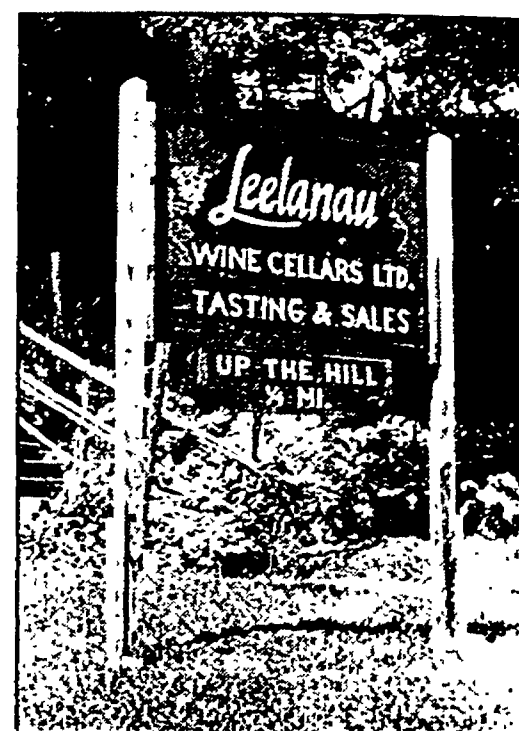

Dave and Joan Kroupa founded Old Mission Cellars in the historic village of Old Mission in 1994. Their tasting room sits next to the post office and general store, so shop or post wish-you-were-here cards while you're at it.

Michigander Lee Lutes was a winemaker in Lone Island, New York, and in Italy before he started working with promising young wines here. Try his 1995 chardonnays, then visit the reconstructed Indian mission for which the village was named.

LEELANAU PENINSULA
M-22 goes north for 30 miles out of Traverse City, up the west arm of Grand Traverse Bay, through lakeside villages like Suttons Bay, Omena and Northport, and bends south through Leland and the Sleeping Bear dunes, both on Lake Michigan. Lake Leelanau waters the cottages and produce farms in between.

I recommend starting at the northernmost vineyard and working your way south.

It's a 40-minute drive to Omena and Michael Jacobson's 65 acres at Leelanau Wine Cellars. Vintner Bill

REDS RULE— Red wine drinkers will especially enjoy the varieties available at Leelanau Wine Cellars in Omena.

Skolnick has made this one of the best, especially for chardonnays. Ask for the 1995 and the 1995 reserve. Red wine drinkers have high hopes for the reds here.

Check out the general store and the fine art galleries in town. Leave Omena slowly, past the historic white clapboard church and with at least a brief stop at the gambling casino and craft shop on the Peshawbestown Indian Reservation.

If you have time, drive on around the peninsula, through Northport and Leland. M-204 shortcuts back around Lake Leelanau to Suttons Bay.

Good Harbor Vineyards is three miles south of Leland on M-22. The Simpson family makes many varieties of wine here; the best known is Trillium, but check out Fishtown and Northern Lights!

The Rink family built Boskydel so that it actually overlooks Lake Leelanau. They were one of the first to brave this new industry in the area and still give you a taste of the grape with a great view. When French wine master Christian Vanneque toured the area, he recommended Soleil Blanc 1995 and Vignoles 1990 for white, Boskdel de Chaunac 1994 for reds and Rose du Cru 1993 for rose wines. He says that the goal here is to produce good, drinkable, everyday wines.

You'll find a good article by Vanneque in the Traverse City tour magazine. Call toll-free (800) TRAVERS for a copy.

(Writer Iris Sanderson Jones and her photographer-husband Micky Jones were born and raised in Canada, lived and work in the U.S. and publish their works on both sides of the border.)

Antique shows pile up like fallen leaves

Day

When Shari Schock sold her retail gift shop featuring country collectibles in Southfield's Tel-Twelve Mall and later retired from the business world last year, she became a volunteer for the Bloomfield Antiques Show sponsored by the Women of the Cross of Christ Lutheran Church.

This year finds her chair of the 33rd annual show being held Oct. 11-12 at the brand new Gordon H. Light Family Life Center of the church, located at the corner of Telegraph and Lone Pine roads. What's more, because of the space in the expanded facility, the show is growing - from 24 to 35 dealers.

Some of the 15 or so dealers who participated in the show since its inception will be back this fall along with many new dealers. So well known is the show that dealer chair Gladys Ulmer and her assistant Ruth Kortan have had many requests for space and there's a waiting list should there be any vacancies.

While Schock was a little surprised to find herself the head of a much larger show, she's excited about the expansion that will bring more dealers from all parts of Michigan as well as Ohio, and even one from Charlotte, NC.

Not surprisingly, Shari and her husband, Norville, have filled their blue farmhouse in Bloomfield Hills, built in the 1860s, with their many collections.

Not only has he collected clocks since bringing one back from Germany when he was in the service, but he has restored all his clocks to working order.

"I bought three cuckoo clocks at the silent auction of our show, thinking that probably they could be restored into one working clock," remembers Shari, noting that her husband has all three in working order - a lot of cuckoos.

Others ticking away in their home include mantel clocks, a choice brass dial European grandfather clock and even a wind-up alarm clock.

Visitors to the restored farmhouse immediately notice Norville's collection of antique scales. From hand-held to wall-mounted, the old scales weighed everything from fish to produce.

Shari's collections also are visible everywhere - teddy bears, both antique and artisan-made, share table and shelf space with her many, many tea cups.

Shari shared another collectible idea that I had not encountered before and which certainly would be fun: she and her husband have bought assorted place settings of vintage china at the antique shows they attend.

"Then, she explains, "everybody gets a different set of china, sort of like a little patchwork quilt on the table." She has extended the idea to glassware and silver and says it's a wonderful way to get a dinner part conversation started as guests compare patterns.

In addition to collecting for the farmhouse where they have lived for 10 years, the Schocks have extensively remodeled the home. The former breezeway now is a spacious family room and the former garage is the master bedroom. "I say we sleep

In years past, the show chairman recalls, she barely had time to attend the show. Now, she says she is learning as she goes along with "good help" to smooth the way.

In addition to dealers' booths, she points out, the show has a country store of homemade goodies made by the women of the church, a silent auction, a door prize and a country kitchen serving lunch and dinner from 11 a.m. each day until 7 p.m. Friday, Oct. 11, and until 6 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 12.

Church member and volunteer show publicist Eleanor Breitmeyer Gebert relates that the show began 33 years ago through necessity. The need for choir robes inspired the idea for a benefit show, and the pastor made arrangements for the dealers. The choir members got their robes from the show proceeds.

But a show does not continue for 33 years without a roster of quality dealers bringing to the shows a variety of decorative accessories, estate jewelry, linens, china, silver, brass, Native American artifacts and primitives.

"Many are dealers who have been with us almost from the beginning and are eager to come," says dealer chairman Ruth Ulmer, citing Lowell S. Mullins of Traverse City (brass, copper and country accessories), Mary Morison of Utica (fine china, porcelain and paperweights), and Shirley Stone of Grand Blanc (collector plates and Oriental).

She says that the committee is particularly pleased to have Sylvia Rowell of North Carolina, whose antiques have been well received at past shows, returning. Other returnees are Dede and Jim Taylor of Troy (New England country furniture and accessories), Wally Wilmot of Royal Oak (clocks), Pauline and Jacki Work of Farmington Hills (jewelry, sterling and silverplate) and Alice Dewey of Temperance (quilts and wicker).

A new booth this year will be Springhouse Antiques of Centerville, Ohio, featuring Oriental rugs. Also first timers are Bob & Sue Wilson of Jackson with art glass and porcelain.

Show hours are 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Friday, Oct. 11, and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 12. Donation is $4. The church center is located at Lone Pine and Telegraph Road.

For antiquers, September through the end of the year promises to be full of both top-notch and "fun" shows while the popular summer markets continue into November.

UNDER THE BIG TENT— German music, food and dancing are in the spotlight during Frankenmuth's Oktoberfest.

Visit oom-pah-pah platz

Frankenmuth, Michigan—

In 1989 Frankenmuth celebrated its first Oktoberfest dedicated to the reunification of Germany. This event continues to be celebrated by the community each year and is set for Sept. 19-22.

The event kicks off with a ribbon cutting celebration traditionally including the "Burgermeister" (Mayor) of Frankenmuth, the President of the Frankenmuth Chamber of Commerce, and a representative from Gunzenhausen, Germany, Frankenmuth's Sister City. This event is immediately followed by the tapping of the "first keg" of Oktoberfest beer.

German music, food and dancing are found within the festival tent, while the European marketplace atmosphere of Frankenmuth's Main Street is dressed in fall colors. You will be greeted by the smell of fresh grilled bratwurst and soft german pretzels hot from the oven. Taste the full-bodied flavor of an ice cold Frankenmuth beer as you listen and enjoy the oom-pah-pah sounds filling this German platz.

Frankenmuth visitors will delight in the Bavarian architecture found throughout the quaint shops lining Main Street. The multitude of fall blooms and the cleanliness and gemuetlichkeit (hospitality) of the community blend to create an experience as enchanting as a German fairytale.

On Aug. 26, Hermann Memmel, member of the Munich City Council and Bavarian State Parliament, presented Annette M. Rummel, president of the Frankenmuth Chamber of Commerce and Oktoberfest, the Document of Ennoblement, officially naming the 1995 Frankenmuth Oktoberfest as the first Oktoberfest in the world to officially operate under the auspices of the City of Munich. The presentation took place during the filming of ZDF's Lustige Musikanten on the grounds of the Bavarian Inn Lodge in Frankenmuth, Michigan.

"It is an honor to have the Frankenmuth Oktoberfest selected by Munich. No finer gift of recognition could be granted to our event," stated President Rummel.

The award presented read as follows: "In honor of the exceptional accomplishments of the residents of the city of Frankenmuth in upholding Bavarian tradition, custom and hospitality, the 6th Oktoberfest from the 14th to the 17th of September 1995 in Frankenmuth, Michigan, USA will be the first to operate officially under the auspices of the City of Michigan. Munich, September 10, 1995. Signed by Christian Ude Lord Mayor of the City of Munich.

The history of the Oktoberfest is rich. It all began with a wedding in the year 1810. Crown Prince Ludwig, who later became King Ludwig I, married the Princess Theresia, and for the occasion King Max I Joseph proclaimed that a festival would be celebrated in four locations in the city of Munich. For the people, food and drink would be given free, paid for by the state treasury. So King Max I Joseph gave to Bavaria and the world a national festival still celebrated today.

Frankenmuth Oktoberfest dates for 1996 are Sept. 19-22.

The community of Frankenmuth is conveniently located just minutes off I-75 between Flint and Saginaw, Michigan. For additional information regarding Frankenmuth's attractions and activities, please contact the Frankenmuth Chamber of Commerce and Convention & Visitors Bureau at 1-800-FUN-TOWN (1-800-386-8696).

From an aerial viewpoint, the pulsating lights appear as fireflies in the night sky—each individual flashing sequence recognized by savvy mariners.

For years they have stood watch along the Great Lakes shorelines, those lighthouses built, rebuilt, moved, abandoned, and now, in many cases, being restored to their former dignity by loving hands and dedicated volunteers.

This October, travelers to Michigan's northeast lower peninsula will have an opportunity to participate in the first Great Lakes Lighthouse Festival, a four-day event organized by a group of those volunteers.

The Middle Island Light Keepers Association plan an Alpena celebration Oct. 18-21 that includes exhibitions, educational programs, lectures, films, tours of area lighthouses (including aerial flyovers), a wide selection of nautical gifts for sale, an auction and a prize-filled raffle. Vendors will use four closely grouped primary sites: the city's Civic and Convention Center, the Jesse Besser Museum, Holiday Inn and the Fletcher Motel, all on or near US-23 North on the outskirts of the city.

Alpena is located on Thunder Bay, an underwater diving site known for its sunken vessels ranging from tall masted sailing ships to latter day steamers. It is centered in a strand of shoreline lighthouses from southerly Tawas City to the Straits of Mackinac. Many of those lighthouses feature museums, where grainy, faded photographs of life saving crews, uniformed and stalwart men of another age, grace the walls.

The Middle Island volunteers organized in 1987 to preserve and protect a unique set of buildings dating from 1905, on an island halfway between Thunder Bay island and Presque Isle. About two miles offshore, the red-orange banded light tower is visible far out into Lake Huron, and its adjacent buildings, the residence for the keeper, his assistant, and their families, smaller supply structures and remnants of a dock and pier, cluster together, connected by pathways.

On Thunder Bay Island, there's another complex of buildings in bad condition that has been the impetus for forming the Thunder Bay Island Preservation Society that hopes to duplicate the continuing work its sister island volunteers have accomplished. And at Presque Isle, two lighthouses that boast museums and park-like settings on the mainland are within a mile of each other, easily accessible off US-23, the highway threading along Michigan's eastern shoreline.

But begin your northward journey by stopping at the Tawas Point Lighthouse, located in a state park with campgrounds, nature trails, a renowned bird watching site and magnificent sand beaches. You can tour the lighthouse with its 70-foot tower by making reservation with the U.S. Coast Guard at Station Tawas. Telephone 517-362-4428. Unless crews are engaged in a rescue operation, a coastguardsman will give you a personal tour. Plan a picnic on the tree shaded grounds and unwind.

Just north of Harrisville, off US-23, watch for signs to Sturgeon Point, where the lightkeeper's dwelling has been converted to a museum, furnished with period furniture from the life saving station's hey-day. A nearby building houses a gift shop and you may want to at least peek into the brick privy, complete with cornucopia.

On selected days visitors can climb this 70-foot tower with 4 1/2 foot thick walls. While it was completed in 1869, the beacon was lit at the beginning of 1870's shipping season by Perley Silverthorn, its first keeper.

The white buildings, red-shuttered, overlook the stony point that continues underwater for more than a mile - a dangerous finger that caused many wrecks before the beacon warned of its hazards.

In downtown Alpena, US-23 becomes first State St., then Chisholm at a sharp bend. Just after you turn, turn right onto First Ave. and park behind the federal armory to glimpse a steel-framed tower circa 1914 that replaced the original wooden Alpena Light. It marks the entrance to Thunder Bay River and beckons freighters of Inland Lake's fleet. You may see one across the river.

If you're staying for the conference, telephone ahead for accommodations and lists of area attractions, 517-354-4181, or stop at the chamber of commerce office at Chisholm and Third Ave.

At the festival, you'll enjoy vendors that include the State Street Gallery of Oscoda, Lighthouse Digest magazine and Depot catalog of Maine, Marvin's Aerial Photography, Bill Cstary's lighthouse art works, Murphy's Lighthouses from Ohio that features to-scale models, Centennial Photography and USCG displays, among others.

You can listen to Dr. Charles Hyde, author of The Northern Lights, the definitive lighthouse book, Gary Nelkie, who discusses offshore photography by kayak, and the Coast Guard will representative will talk about lighthouses, past, present and future. Video and film will be shown by Rand Shackleton of Cross Village and NOAA will give information about Thunder Bay's proposed marine sanctuary.

Several lighthouse preservation societies will have displays and the Michigan Maritime Museum of South Haven will participate. Remember, this list is just a sampling of what's on the agenda. For full details, telephone Marvin or Joy Theut at 517-595-6722 or Michelle Mill at 810-752-5472.

You'll certainly want raffle tickets for a chance at vacation stays on Mackinac Island's Grand Hotel, or in Florida, among other goodies. The auction of nautical related items is Sunday and the proceeds will benefit each group that participates.

Artists and authors will have works on display and working artists will be demonstrating their methods, so you'll see the process involved.

On the conference's fourth day, tour lighthouses north of Alpena. Take US-23 to County Road 638 and follow signs to Presque Isle peninsula, a few miles beyond Grand Lake, where old and new lighthouses, each with its own character, still stand sentinel.

Built in 1840, abandoned in 1870, the Old Presque Isle Lighthouse features stone steps to the top of its 30-foot tower - an easy climb to enjoy a gull's-eye view of a fine harbor of refuge. The keeper's cottage is an eclectic museum. Call 517-595-2787 for information.

Down the road a mile, the new Presque Isle Lighthouse looms over cedar trees in a 100 acre park that includes picnic areas, nature trails and a covered pavilion at the water's edge. Built as a replacement for the older tower, this beauty is 113-feet high, the tallest on the Great Lakes. Keeper Dan McGee lives next door to the lighthouse, which boasts a museum and gift shop. McGee looks the part, especially when he's in uniform, and the property reflects his devotion and attention.

Windsurfers set sail in state waters

Julie Candler

Allan Hayes

When the wind starts blowing hard and a lot of boaters head for shore, Pierce Getsinger's excitement level peaks. He grabs his windsurfing board, shoves off onto Stony Creek Lake in Oakland Township and revels in flying across the water at speeds, depending on the wind, of 20 to nearly 40 miles per hour.

To Getsinger, of Lake Orion, windsurfing is "all about speed." He doesn't head for the water until a high wind kicks up.

The record speed for the sport is 53 miles per hour, says Tim Shepard, 28-year-old owner of The Windsurf Company in Keego Harbor.

There's another kind of windsurfing, in winds of 5 to 10 miles per hour. It uses a sailboard about 12 feet long, while the speedier boards are eight feet or less in length.

"Actually, it has become two separate sports," says Shepard. "There is sailboarding in lighter winds, and windsurfing with shorter boards that lift up to the water surface and plane."

"Last night the winds were only three to five miles per hour," recalls Shepard, "but we had a great time out on Cass Lake."

That contradicts an image fostered by TV and other media. They portray windsurfers solely as well-muscled speeding daredevils going airborne as they perform spins, twists, somersaults and other freestyle stunts in towering waves.

Actually, windsurfing is for anyone from age 8 to 80, says Scott See, director of the American Windsurfing Industries Association. "Windsurfing has suffered horribly from the misimpression that it's difficult and takes a lot of strength. A lot of people tried it at the beach, failed and were frustrated. That was especially true with the early kind of heavy equipment."

Allan was among those who tried and gave up. About 15 years ago, using equipment with a heavy mast and sails, he tried repeatedly and failed to get to a standing position and sailing on a windsurfer. "It was a very humbling experience," says Allan.

With today's longer boards and lighter equipment, it takes less wind to get up and moving. That, plus windsurfing lessons now available, makes windsurfing much easier to learn.

Says Scott See, "There are 283 windsurfing schools in the U.S. Now the training companies give a guarantee. If you haven't learned, you can repeat the course free until you learn."

In the training course taught by The Windsurf Company on Cass Lake, instructor Harvey Hammond claims he can teach the basics to anyone within two hours.

"My father was 79 when a certified instructor gave him a lesson. Within 40 minutes my Dad could sail," says active windsurfer Joe Boersma of West Olive, Michigan. "He still windsurfs today, at age 83."

At the other end of the age spectrum, Boersma's son, Mark, began windsurfing with his father at age 18 months. "By the time he was six, he was accomplished on a little windsurfing board made for kids called a Bic Junior.

STYLE POINTS— Muriel Nevada, windsurfer and United States Windsurfing Association competitor, demonstrates the fine points of the sport. (USWA photo.)

"I strongly urge people to get lessons. It would be extremely frustrating to try it without lessons," advises Boersma. He is first vice president of the U.S. Windsurfing Association, national organization of 4,000 windsurfing enthusiasts, based in Hood River, Oregon.

Most windsurfing classes now begin with instruction on a land simulator, a board on a pivoting base. You can't fall in the water off that.

Basically, the sport uses a "free-sail system." It began only about 28 years ago, after two Californians named Hoyle Schweitzer and Jim Drake invented it. (About 25 years earlier, some believe, another inventor had the same idea.)

The windsurfer, or sailboard, has distinct advantages compared to other sailboats. It is simple, fast, and can be transported on a cartop and assembled at water's edge with ease. Cost to equip a beginner completely is $1,200 to $1,700. Used equipment is much cheaper but tends to be heavier.

Specialized types of boards have been developed to excel in different wind and wave conditions. Best for the beginner is a "flat board", that tends to be stable and easy to sail in light winds.

What's different from a typical sailboat is that the mast on a sailboard, or windsurfer, is on a universal joint that tilts in any direction. The windsurfer steers by moving the sail rig in relation to the board. When it's working, says Tim Shepard, "It's great. There's no motor. no sound, it's a unique feeling."

enhanced by the sailor's close proximity to the water. As an enthusiast writes in a windsurfer catalog, "Whoever has had the feeling of planing under his or her feet, yearns always for this feeling. Every day without wind is a lost day."

The popularity of this young sport, especially in Europe, made it an Olympic event by 1984. By 1996, a report on one-design sailboats selected for Olympic competition said that windsurfers are the fastest monohull sailing crafts in the world today. It claims that there are more windsurfers worldwide today than all other sailboats combined. Despite that, windsurfing events in the 1996 Games did not rate coverage on television.

The purpose of one-design class racing in the Olympics is to allow the best sailor—not the best boat—to win. The design approved by the International Yacht Racing Union for the 1996 Olympics was the popular Mistral brand, a fiberglass board measuring 12-foot, two inches topped by a 7.4-square meter sail. Mistral, named for a wind in the south of France, is manufactured in Germany.

Physically, the best competitive boardsailors are tall, lean and agile. They stand while they sail and need upper body strength to control their rigs.

Yet, says a report on the Mistral class in the 1996 Olympics, "It is common to see a 105-pound woman complete a race in the same time as a 150-pound man, thereby proving that balance and sensitivity to the board are equally critical."

You don't have to wait for the next Olympics to see or participate in windsurfing events. USWA holds annual national championships. National organizations in 43 countries participate in five continental championships and one world championship each year.

Information about events in Michigan can be obtained by contacting Joe Boersma at (616) 846-6417 or your nearest windsurfing equipment shop. Barbara Fisher of Mowinds (Midwest Organization of Windsurfers) in Cincinnati, at (513) 321-9677, has information about midwest activities.

The U.S. Windsurfing Association offers an "Event Guidelines" handbook detailing how to set up an event. It's available by calling them at 541-386-8708. Charge is $7, plus 10% for shipping.

The organization also offers papers on obtaining access to waters, and on testing water quality. "We want to know because we spend hours in the water," says Holly Mcpherson of the USWA.

Noteworthy windsurfing areas in Michigan: The Internet reports on the Keweenaw Peninsula area of the Upper Peninsula, (note: Lake Superior is notoriously cold year-around.) at (<http://www.mmstu.edu/~drjohn/windsurfing/kwind.html>). It bills McLain State Park near Houghton as one of the best.

In Oakland County, Cass Lake and Stoney Creek Lake get high marks among windsurfers.

Favorite spots on Michigan's west coast are Grand Haven, South Haven and St. Joseph, where a store called Outpost Sports rents long sailboards for $35 per day.

Some windsurfers claim that Whitmore Lake has the best windsurfing in Michigan—if the wind is blowing.

Kewadin Casinos on expansion roll

Sault Ste. Marie, Michigan—

Kewadin Casinos of Sault Ste. Marie, Michigan, is currently undergoing construction of a 306,000 square foot hotel and convention center. The hotel will add an additional 268 rooms and 20 suites to the existing Clarion hotel, currently attached to the casino complex.

The hotel is expected to open on Dec. 31. At that time an "avenue" which will connect the existing art gallery and the new hotel lobby is also scheduled to open.

Along the "avenue" will be eight shops which will be leased to area business entrepreneurs. It is uncertain at this time what types of merchandise the shops will be featuring.

A date has not yet been set for the opening of the convention center. The center will include banquet and conference facilities, a buffet style restaurant, a night club, a new bingo hall, and newer, larger entertainment facilities.

The attractions in the convention center will be phased in beginning in the Spring/Summer of 1997.

Road to festival a wild goose chase

Fennville, Michigan—

Twelve years ago an eager group of Fennville area residents began planning Michigan's first annual Goose Festival, prompted by a local hardware owner's attempt to persuade AMTRAK to reinstate the town as a regular stop on their Chicago-Grand Rapids run.

Back in the Thirties and Forties, "Summer People" used the train to commute to their cottages from the Windy City on weekends, which created a lot of activity in town on a Friday or Saturday evening. But when the mail cars were replaced by highway trucks, and other freight followed suit, the small "whistle stops" along the route were discontinued.

AMTRAK'S response to the request for scheduled stop was a qualified "No." "Give us a reason to stop; create an attraction for passengers, like a fair or a festival, and we'll make a special stop" was the response from the railroad.

Fennville accepted the challenge.

The local group wanted a unique feature to build a festival around, and the proximity of the State's Todd Farm Game Refuge was "a natural." The Michigan Department of Natural Resources estimated that some 300,000 Canada Geese pass through the area annually, and attracted 150,000 hunters, photographers, naturalists and bird watchers.

Here was the opportunity to develop tourism, publicize the area and provide old time rural hospitality to visitors of the community. The Goose Festival was born!

The mainstay of the festival is the Arts and Crafts Show on Main Street. Other arts and crafts shows had been held in the city's park, with only limited success. It was assumed that since Main Street is a state highway, traffic had to be maintained.

Somebody said, Heck, when they were repairing the railroad crossing, traffic was re-routed for two weeks! Why can't we do the same?

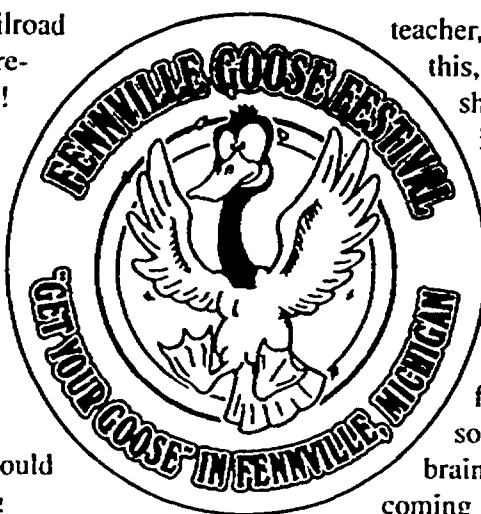

The Highway Department's answer came back. "You can, but you have to provide all the detour signs and comply with all our rules." Compliance would be expensive. Renting barricades, detour signs and directional signs seemed prohibitive. In earlier times traffic was lighter, rules less stringent, even non-existent. Things are different today.

Somebody said, "Let's go whole-hog and rent their darn signs, and worry about the money later." So they did, and Main Street was closed off for this kind of an event for the first time since Homecoming Days, back in the Thirties.

Fennville had a long history of street parades, on Memorial Day, High School Homecoming, and at Christmas time, so a Goose parade was a foregone conclusion, adopting the "twice around town" tradition of the famed Santa Claus parade. Eventually the new parade attracted so many units it ran into itself on the second circuit, creating a "gridlock" situation! (Planners are still struggling with this problem.)

Later a second parade was added especially for children, appropriately called the Mother Goose parade, which includes kids of all ages and their pets. Two years ago a third parade was made a part of the Saturday morning events, providing local car enthusiasts and opportunity to show their classic, antique, and customized vehicles.

The Wildlife Art Show was one of the original features of the festival, under the direction of the school's art teacher, who has developed this, not only as a showing, but as an instructional opportunity for students as well, gaining recognition well beyond the local community.

In the early years the festival planners held some "wild and crazy" brain-storming sessions, coming up with names like the Wild Goose Chase 10 K Run, the Golden Goose Raffle, the Loose Goose Trolley Car Ride, and the Great Lakes Canada Goose Calling Championship. A visitor from Detroit or Chicago (no one is quite sure which) showed up in town with a customized sweatshirt saying "I got goosed in Fennville."

After due consideration, the directors modified that to "Get Your Goose In Fennville," a slogan which over the years has attracted a great deal of attention and comment. A suitable emblem was designed, depicting a goose wearing a hunting cap and carrying a shotgun under on wing.

Some off-beat events evolved out of experience. Case in point is the "Welcome Arnold Nelson Party." When the first Amtrak train to stop in Fennville in umpteen years pulled in, the first (and only) Chicagoan to get off was a gentleman named Arnold Nelson. The school band was on hand, along with local revelers who had journeyed by bus to Benton Harbor to ride the train back to Fennville, along with Miss Fennville and escorts who provided passengers with cider and Fenn Valley Wine.

Since the depot had been torn down years before, the conductor unwittingly let the passengers off the wrong side of the train. The Welcome Committee was on the other side! The next year the management of the Stevens Hotel held a "Welcome Arnold Nelson Party" which catapulted the good-natured Arnold in the realm of folk-lore that continues to this day.

Signs like "Arnold Nelson Shops Here" or "Arnold Nelson's friends Eat here" spring up every year at festival time.

Fennville is located in west Michigan along M-89, about 20 miles south of Holland,

Grand designer shares decorating ideas

Mackinac Island, Michigan—

Join Carleton Varney, president of Dorothy Draper of New York, as he hosts the sixth annual Antique and Design Fall Festival at beautiful Grand Hotel on Mackinac Island. This year's festival is planned for Sept. 20-22.

You will not want to miss this unique opportunity to browse through the fascinating collections of antiquities, brought together by top dealers from across the United States, amidst the charm and splendor of this American treasure. Also, Carleton Varney will conduct a guided tour of the antiques on display and discuss the treasures found as well as give tips and special hints about decorating with antiques.

During High Tea on Saturday afternoon, he will entertain with a "question and answer session." A Gala Preview Party will be held Friday evening. (Charitable donation required.)

"Everyone loves antiques and most of the people I know love collecting — be that a collectible 1940s movie poster starring Betty Grable in Moon Over Miami, or a Victorian English silver ring box with a royal blue velvet lining," Carleton Varney said.

"Each Fall at Grand Hotel, I present the Carleton Varney Antique and Design Fall Festival, where nearly 40 dealers assemble to show their wares and present a variety of collectibles — from wicker furniture to jewelry, to laces, quilts, and linen too. The weekend begins on Friday, Sept. 20, at a cocktail party preview and ends on Sunday, Sept. 22. This year marks the sixth year of the Antique Festival, and I shall be there again to talk to you about trends in decorating, how to recognize a good antique, how to buy when you see one, and to answer any and all of your questions about interior design," Varney said.

Call 1-800-33-GRAND for reservation and package information.

Grand Hotel is located on Michigan's historic Mackinac Island, overlooking the Straits of Mackinac between Michigan's upper and lower peninsulas. Located high on a hill, the Hotel's famous 660 foot porch is visible when approaching the Island by ferry boat.

There is a quaint magic on Mackinac Island. No motorized vehicles are allowed, so the beauty of the Island and its historic landmarks remain as they were 200 years ago. Horse and carriage, along with walking and bicycles, are the only modes of transportation on the Island. Guests can enjoy the antique and fudge shops in the 19th Century

GUIDED TOUR— Designer Carleton Varney will conduct guided tours of the antiques on display at the Grand Hotel.

Village, and tour Fort Mackinac and other historic sites. Grand Hotel, the world's largest summer resort is open through Oct. 27 for the 1996 season.

Fall fun: Thrill rides and butterflies

Sandusky, Ohio—

Where in the world can you celebrate muskmelons, woolly bears, and butterflies? Where can you shop at an island-wide garage sale? Erie County, Ohio, that's where!

The new 1996 Festivals and Fun Spots Guide lists more than 100 Lake Erie events and attractions in the Sandusky area during fall and winter.

Harvest and holiday events include custom car nights, a sail and power boat show, concerts, theater productions, fishing tournaments, bird watching events, harvest festivals, and open houses. If thrills and chills are what you're seeking, Cedar Point amusement/theme park is open Bonus Weekends in September and Oct. 5-6.

"Our fall festivities make Erie County more than a summer destination," said Joan Van Offeren, executive director of the Sandusky/Erie County Visitors Bureau. "We encourage folks to enjoy an autumn getaway, with plenty of reasons to escape to our Lake Erie region."

Fall brings beautiful scenery to the Lake Erie Islands. Shop for treasures during Kelleys Island Treasure Island Day, or witness the return of the Monarch Butterfly at the Monarch Butterfly Festival. You can also celebrate the holidays a little early at the Kelleys Island Halfway to

St. Patrick's Day Party and Put-in-Bay's New Year's Eve at the Bay cruises. Transportation to Kelleys

Island is available year-round and to South Bass through November. Island-hopping cruises run through October.

the end of the road, where you'll note signs noting distances to various points. There, with Lake Huron lapping on the cobble shore, watch for the frequent freighters plying the waters toward Rogers City. It's a unique and calming spot, sure to slow your hectic pace.

North of Rogers City, where you may want to purchase picnic meats at Plath's meat market, an area institution on the main street, there's a nice park area at Forty Mile Point Lighthouse. Watch for the signs. Under towering trees next to the old fog signal building, you can pretend you're captain of an ore boat and even try the helm in a ship's pilot house. Enjoy the stretch-for-miles sand beach and observe the unusual lighthouse.

This tower is attached to the building and painted white to make it more visible to ships. Originally with a Fourth Order Fresnel lens from France, the one that shines today is a later model, but its beacon still stretches across Lake Huron from the 52-foot height.

If you thought Old Presque Isle Lighthouse was "quaint", there's a diminutive charmer in Cheboygan that's sometimes termed a "sweetie pie". Originally cribbed offshore, when the structure started tilting towards the water, townspeople had it moved onshore at the entrance to Black River. Today, the small white, red-trimmed sentinel holds herself proudly, the pet of all who pass by. Since a fishing pier extends into Lake Huron next to the boardwalk here, there are quite a few greetings to the little gal every day.

From US-23, just past the bridge and sharp turn, watch for signs to Gordon Turner Park at the rivermouth. It's a well groomed spot to swim, picnic, walk an elevated lookout to view marsh birds and creatures, let the children stretch and swing, watch ferries leave and arrive from Bois Blanc Island, and in the distance, observe the Mackinac Bridge.

In spite of having had Sturgeon Point Lighthouse as my art studio for several years, this small, personal-sized Cheboygan Crib Light is my favorite on the lakes. The setting itself is superb and the scale is humanistic. See it for yourself...

At Mackinaw City, stop for a pasty at the Mackinaw Bakery and drive to a spot almost underneath the great bridge itself. You'll find the Old Mackinac Point Light holding steadfast to the shore, with interesting architectural details that include a red tile roof on its light tower, another crenallated tower, intricate brick work, and a softened-with-age color that's most attractive. Inside is a fine museum.

Photographers try to line up the perfect shot here - with an anchor in the foreground, the lighthouse next, the Mackinac Bridge following, ideally one or two ore boats passing beneath, and just the right number of seagulls swooping overhead. It takes some doing, but is very rewarding if you can get it right.

After all that effort head down the street, pass under the bridge, turn left and treat yourself to a giant ice cream cone at the shop across the street from Fort Michilimackinac before visiting it for your final tour.

All in all, this trip's been a wonderful way to celebrate the sentinels of the shore, hasn't it?

Formerly a newspaper and magazine publisher, Dorothy Webster lives happily in northeastern Michigan with two cats, both of whom take advantage of being younger and more agile than she is. They vehemently veto her suggestion of adding a West Highland terrier to the household.

Ghosts and goodies galore!

Flint, Michigan—

Fall is a great time to visit historic Crossroads Village and Huckleberry Railroad, a living history village and scenic steam railroad located just north of Flint. The attraction, operated by the Genesee County Parks system, consistently ranks among the top family destinations in Michigan and offers several unique autumn events on September weekends.

The annual Harvest Jubilee, Sept. 14-15, focuses on the Master's Cider Mill which has been in continuous operation since 1885. An apple pie contest, back-to-school activities, and the harvesting of village gardens are all included.

Quilts at the Crossroads, a major exhibition and competition featuring over 200 quilts, takes place Sept. 20-22. Co-sponsored by the Greater Flint Arts Council, the show will feature over 100 works by noted quiltmaker and author Gwen Marston.

September hours for the village and railroad are 11 a.m.-6:30 p.m. Admission is $8.25 for adults, $7.25 for seniors 60 and up, $5.50 for children 4-12, and free for children 3 and under.

The fall season ends on a spooky note in October with the annual Ghost Train and Ghosts and Goodies trick-or-treat tour. This program, which draws over 60,000 visitors annually, emphasizes fun Halloween activities for children and their parents. Trackside displays entertain train passengers and treats are dispensed at village buildings. Live entertainment in the Opera House and decorations throughout the village add to the excitement of this popular event.

This year's dates are Oct. 4-6, 11-13, and 18-30. Hours are 1-8:30 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays and 5-8:30 p.m. weekdays. Park officials recommend the advance purchase of train tickets to assure seating. Admission for the Halloween train and village is $6.50 and tickets may be purchased by calling 800-648-PARK.

Crossroads Village and the Huckleberry Railroad are located just north of Flint, off I-475 at Exit 13. For additional information on all events please call 810-736-7100 or 800-648-PARK.

FALL FESTIVAL

SEPTEMBER 6-8, 1996

Supplement to the Observer and HomeTown Newspapers Thursday, September 5, 1996

About our cover

Plymouth Observer staff photographer Bill Bresler has been covering Plymouth's Fall Festival for nearly 15 years. That's why when he took a picture of Kiara Birchkelbaw eating an ear of corn during the festival last year, he knew it said it all about the traditional event. We put the photo aside, with the idea of using it in our annual festival section.

Bill Bresler

Our special section is an annual event

The Plymouth Observer annually produces this special section which is designed to help Plymouth area residents along with newcomers to enjoy the Fall Festival.

Each year our reporters and photographer record the events that take place during Plymouth's annual, traditional fall harvest celebration.

This year staff members contributing were: Bill Bresler, photographer; Marybeth Dillon, reporter, Kevin Brown, reporter, and Jeff Counts, community editor.

Fall Festival keeps rural traditions alive

So here we are again, another Fall Festival. This year it's the 41st such event.

Anything new about it?

Not really. And that's the charm.

In our ever changing PC world, where computers rule and our rural traditions are vanishing, the Plymouth Fall Festival keeps the memory of those traditions alive.

It gives us a way to celebrate the coming of fall, which is Sept. 22, according to the calendar.

It also reinforces the idea of community, which is a much battered idea of late. People sleep in one community, work in another and go to yet another for recreation.

The annual Fall Festival gives folks in Plymouth a chance to slowly stroll through the downtown, in and around Kellogg Park, The Gathering and along Main Street.

Sadly, some things are fading. The Grange, a farm and garden organization with roots in our 19th century agricultural past, has gone the way of the family farm.

For years, women from the Grange served up real stick to your waistline style food.

This was stuff served on plates, not hand-held trendy ethnic stuff. Just plain old American food that fueled the farmers who cleared the land, pulled the stumps and planted the corn that allowed us all to have easier lives.

For me, stopping by the Grange Hall, was a way to pay tribute to all those hardy souls who did the tough work of making a country.

The only solace is that their spirit is alive in the Fall Festival. By celebrating the harvest, we are paying our tribute to those who trend the paths in work boots that we now drive in new cars.

Participating in the Fall Festival is the least we can do.

Jeff Counts is the editor of the Plymouth Observer.

There's more to town than Fall Festival

Say hello to Plymouth.

Plymouth's quaint mixture of cobble stoned streets, lanterns and old fashioned charm comes alive during Plymouth Fall Festival. Residents and visitors fill the streets supporting the community's many service organizations, churches and school groups.

This is the first year that the downtown streetscape is complete for the festival. Make sure you absorb its ambience and beauty.

While you visit, don't forget to take a stroll through Kellogg Park in downtown Plymouth.

Across the street is the Wilcox House, Plymouth's stately historic landmark. Aside from its architectural beauty, the building maintains a rich legacy of stories that date back decades.

During your walk, don't forget to order a speciality drink at one of the downtown coffee houses. As you relax and become a part of the scenery you're bound to feel you've entered a time gone by for a lovely, gracious lifestyle.

Take time to browse through the many shops featuring everything from books, to baby clothes, antiques, adult apparel and home decor. Off of Main Street the shops offer more selection.

When you leave Plymouth make a vow to come back and visit when all the booths and crowds have gone away.

The welcome mat is always out.

Fall festival president is Canton doctor

At first glance you might wonder why Dr. Clark K. Smith, a Canton resident and Redford dentist is serving as president of the Plymouth Fall Festival.

Especially when you consider that in addition to his full-time practice, Smith is an elder and serves as assistant to the pastor of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints in Plymouth Township, another full-time commitment.

I keep quite a schedule," he said. "People always ask me how I do it. I just go from one job to another."

Now, sitting on the throne of the fall festival board, Smith, husband to Kim and father to Ashley, 7, has a third "full-time job."

Why is a Canton resident serving as president of the Plymouth Fall Festival?

"The official name of the Plymouth Fall Festival is the Plymouth Community Fall Festival," Smith said. "It's supposed to be all inclusive. I've lived in Canton six years and before that I lived on the western edge of Westland. The Plymouth and Canton area has always been a favorite spot for my family. As a kid I used to come out here, because friends owned a farm. It was out in the boon docks and now it's a subdivision."

As an adult, Smith is heading one of the community's premiere events. His involvement in the festival started six years ago when members of RLDS decided they wanted a booth at the family oriented folksy community gathering that began 41 years ago.

"I started attending meetings and became the representative for the church," Smith said. "One thing led to another. I've attended nearly every fall festival board meeting in the last five years. As you become more at home at the meetings you start to offer more input into how the festival is going."

In fact, the church's involvement in the festival has become the single biggest money maker. They first year they sold donuts, coffee and nachos.

"Every year you learn a little more about how it can be done," he said adding that recently the church began selling pretzels and french fries with chili.

"It's a niche we found and we settled into that," he said. "We're working on perfecting it."

Last year the church netted around $3,000 and like all the other booth operators returned 25 percent to the festival.

"This year we should do better," he said.

All the festival booths are operated by non-profit service organizations, schools and churches.

"The purpose of the fall festival since it was started 41 years ago by the Rotary Club is to have a fund raiser for organizations to raise money for causes they wanted to get involved in and to provide a festival for the people of Plymouth," Smith said adding that people from all over Michigan and visitors from other states attend.

His goal is to raise about $50,000. Last year it cost $44,000 to run the festival.

"I don't think people realize what it costs and this is with using extensive volunteer labor," Smith added.

Story telling top attraction for children

There's something melodic about listening to a storyteller — the simple becomes dramatic and the mundane takes life.

Organizers of the Plymouth Fall Festival have provided an arena from 1-4 p.m., Saturday, Sept. 7 in front of the Dunning-Hough building, next to Plymouth City Hall, under the trees in a shady and restful setting. The event is free and sponsored by the Friends of the Library.

Storytellers Donna Bourdreau, Ruth Burr, Debra Christian, Doreen Lawton, Judge Ron Lowe and William McCully III will be creating new images in the minds of listeners while they perform.

"They really do spin a story as opposed to reading it, according to Janet Campbell, Friends of the Library publicist.

"Most people who are storytellers love to tell stories and they do it well. People are enthusiastic about it and looking forward to it."

Folk singer Karen Chapin will entertain with her guitar and Sue Pocklington will sing songs from children's musicals, including selections from Lion King, Peter Pan and Pocahontas.

This event draws bigger and bigger crowds since it was first introduced to the festival five years ago, Campbell said.

■ 'They really do spin a story as opposed to reading it. Most people who are storytellers love to tell stories and they do it well. People are enthusiastic about it and looking forward to it.'

Janet Campbell
—library publicist

"It's under the trees and very casual," Campbell said. "We hope that people will just drift by. It's always hot during the fall festival. We hope people will sit down and have a respite from the heat. It's just supposed to be fun and relaxing."

Friends of the Library raises money throughout the year to buy items like computers and sponsor events like the Summer Reading program for adults and children.

Fall Fest is a low cost family outing

By M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

It's difficult to take the family anywhere anymore without parting with serious amounts of cash. That's one reason Plymouth's Fall Festival is so popular with the 150,000-plus people who fill the streets of downtown for a weekend each September.

Many of the attractions are free, including lots of entertainment.

This year's festival is set for Thursday, Sept. 5 through Sunday, Sept. 8.

Paul Sincock, assistant city manager/director of public services, says festival-goers "can expect crowds and fine entertainment galore — anything from a pet show for kids to bands for mom and dad and everything in between.

"You can also expect some great Rotary chicken on Sunday." The barbecue is set for 11 a.m. - 5 p.m. at the Gathering.

"We'll have kiddie rides for the kids, and an antique classic car show from noon to 5 p.m. on Sunday on Main Street in front of City Hall. It's a free event, and the entertainment is free all weekend," he said.

ment geared just for teenagers, said Sincock. "There will be specific games and rides for teenagers on Ann Arbor Trail."

Pancake lovers will be happy to hear the Kiwanians will be serving hotcakes and syrup from 9 a.m. - 11:30 a.m. Saturday morning.

Food booths will be open throughout the festival. "There'll be all kinds of food booths up and down Main Street. We have a new format; a new layout because of streets cape being done this year," said Sincock.

An arts and crafts show is set for Saturday and Sunday at Central Middle School.

"There'll be balloons, sand art, clowns, and all kinds of different activities," he added.

The highlight, says Sincock, is Sunday's chicken barbecue. "Once people have had their chicken dinner on Sunday, they're hooked."

The Fall Festival has a proud tradition.

"The Fall Festival Committee is made up of volunteers," said Sincock. This is all done with local individuals and organizations, and it's non-profit. All the money raised goes back into the Plymouth community."

City police and municipal services workers will put 200-250 man hours into the event. That's worth $16,000-$20,000; $8,000 of which is being waived by the city commission.

City ready for fire runs during festival

City and Fall Festival officials are prepared for everything; even fire.

"The Plymouth Community Fire Department will be responding to all fire runs in the downtown area," said Paul Sincock, assistant city manager/director of public works.

"During any fire run, complete sections of the Fall Festival would need to be closed down. Vendors would not be allowed in the secured area until after the fire department has cleared the area.

"It is imperative that a minimum of a 20-foot fire lane be maintained at all times, including during loading and unloading of vendor materials," said Sincock.

"Parking near 'bump-out' areas must be avoided, as parking near a bump-out will not allow for the required fire lane.

"Should the City Dispatch Center notify the DPW supervisor of a fire situation downtown, that person will coordinate the City Special Event Staff, DPW and Fall Festival staff to assist in clearing the public from the fire area and access area for responding equipment," he said.

"The DPW supervisor will have several rolls of police tape to help secure the area. Various staff will then assist as needed Public Safety personnel to keep crowds back out of the way of firefighters."

First barbecue: The Fall Festival has its roots in a chicken barbecue put on by the Plymouth Rotary Club in the mid-1950s. Above, those early volunteers set a tone for workers to come.

Rotary chicken barbecue started it all

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

If the date is Sunday, Sept. 8 and you're anywhere near the Gathering in Plymouth's Kellogg Park, chances are your mouth will be watering. You won't be able to help it.

The Plymouth Rotary Club will host what's believed to be the state's largest chicken barbecue from 11 a.m. until the food is gone, probably between 5 p.m. and 6 p.m.

"We anticipate serving nearly 12,000 chicken dinners, complete with corn on the cob, chips, roll and butter, and beverage," said Rotarian Paul Dillon, publicity chairman for the 41st annual barbecue.

Mark Baldwin is purchasing agent for the barbecue. "We're starting an hour earlier, and we'll have more chicken this year," he said. "We've purchased 15,000 pounds of fresh chicken, 20,000 pounds of charcoal, and 300 pounds of ice."

Tickets are $7 in advance, and are available from any Plymouth Rotarian, or at the ticket booth in Kellogg Park Sept. 6-7. Tickets can be purchased on the day of the barbecue for $8.

"This is the Plymouth Rotary Club's major fund-raising event and it's become internationally famous over the last 40 years," said Dillon. In the last 10 years alone, the Rotary has served 105,000 chicken dinners. One year, 16,000 dinners were served.

"Funds raised from this and other Rotary events are used for student scholarships and loans; local park improvements; school arts and sports programs; the Salvation Army and other community programs; international programs such as Polio Plus; and many other humanitarian programs at the local, national and international levels," said Dillon.

Kirk Kohn, chairperson of this year's barbecue, anticipates the Rotary also will go through "13,000 ears of corn; probably 700 cases of pop; and 1,000 dozen rolls.

"We will have two 90-foot long pits with specially-made stainless steel racks that hold 25 chicken halves," Kohn said. Supplying the chicken will be Miesel-Sysco of Canton.

It takes hundreds to prepare and serve the chicken dinners. "We have Rotarians and a lot of their family members, plus volunteers from Opportunity House, the Plymouth Salem Swim

See CHICKEN, 29

Chicken from page 29

Team, some of the Salem cheerleaders, and lots of parents and students from Plymouth Christian Academy," Kohn said.

The barbecue has always been a family affair for Rotarians including Paul Sincock.

"I can remember as a little kid working the serving line with my dad. The whole family was up there," said Sincock, assistant city manager. "The Rotary Club needs at least 400 volunteers to make the event happen. If your mom or dad is a Rotarian and you're the youngster, you're definitely going to the barbecue."

Those wishing to avoid long lines are advised to come early.

Chicken lovers who prefer eating somewhere besides Kellogg Park can get carry outs behind West Middle School at Ann Arbor Trail and Sheldon Road, or at the Gathering.

Sincock noted that the barbecue "started as a community picnic in 1956 or '57. They served 500 dinners. It's interesting that the original chicken barbecue was held to raise money for playground equipment at what was then known as Hamilton Park at the intersection of Harding and Wing. It is now Jaycee Park, and Rotary Park is now down Wing Street the other way, at Wing and Herald."

Retired studio photographer John Gaffield is the ranking Rotarian when it comes to involvement with the chicken barbecue. "I've been a member of Rotary since before the barbecue was started in 1956," said Gaffield, who served as official photographer. "That was back in the days when we had to start fires with kerosene. It was a whole different ball game. Every year, we've made progressive changes. Now it's so structured it's a professional job. It comes off like clockwork."

Gaffield did his time in the barbecue pits.

What's that like? "It's the pits," he said. "It's a dastardly job." Pit workers look like bandits, he said. "They wear masks and everything. It's a very dirty job."

Gaffield will work on the beverage crew this year. "We look forward to it. Most of us have children, and they participate. It gets to be a family affair. I have two boys and a couple grandchildren who work with me. It's a fellowship day," said Gaffield, who showed slides of early barbecues at a recent Rotary meeting.

Gaffield said Rotarians couldn't handle the job without all the help young people provide. "The kids are very active. They turn out in full force. We couldn't do it without them."

Rotary President Hal Cooper says, "The main thing we need is sunshine. I hope a lot of people turn out and enjoy Fall Festival, and of course, naturally, come to our chicken dinner on Sunday. The chicken barbecue is still one of our oldest, and probably still the biggest, fund raiser."

Early festival: It was either 1956 or 1957 that the first chicken barbecue was held. The first event was a local one for Plymouth folks. These days more than 12,000 dinners are served.

Rotary Club members work behind the scenes

A lot of people have worked behind the scenes to present the Plymouth Rotary Club's famous barbecue chicken dinners.

The Barbecue Committee includes Kirk Kohn, chairman; Mark Baldwin, purchasing; Liz Galea, director; Larry Turner, outside pit and ticket sales; Bob Pineau, park; Paul Dillon, publicity and Bill Ventola, advisor.

Volunteers include E.J. McClendon, Ted Matley, Hal Cooper, Warren Bradburn, Mike Muma, Frank Palmer, Jim Plakas, Ken Hulsing, Bill Ferman, Jim Cantrell, Abe Munfakh, Lou LaRiche, Dick Hoerner, David Camp-

Picnic scene: The first Fall Festival was a casual affair. A few picnic tables set up. It was a far cry from what Plymouth looks like on a Sunday during the event these days.

Garden Club hosts contest for best face made from produce

The Trailwood Garden Club is putting a special face on the Fall Festival - a garden face.

Members of the Plymouth club are hosting a garden face competition on Sunday, Sept. 8, with registration from 9 a.m. until noon.

The competition is open to children and adults and includes various categories.

Members of the public can stop by to view the faces at the exhibit tent.

The results are stunning.

Here are the rules: Each design must be created by one person; each must have a name or title; a list of materials; only fresh materials can be used; no artificial materials can be used; and materials such as tape, glue, staples and nails can't show.

The judging will take place at 12:30 p.m. and ribbons will be awarded. Ribbons and the entries can be picked up at 5 p.m.

Also, an area is being set aside for the club's 3rd annual Perennial Exchange.

At that event, persons are asked to identify the plant material they are bringing.

Also, donations of canning supplies will be accepted. Those materials will be donated to the "Detroit Summer" project, which is being conducted to encourage block gardens.

The food from those gardens is being donated to local food banks.

Also being sponsored by the garden club is a pie eating contest for students. There will be three divisions: elementary, middle and high school.

The contest starts at 2:30 p.m. on Sunday at the exhibit tent.

The Trailwood Garden Club has 14 members. The group conducted its first garden tour in June and is planning a second for next year.

The club engages in community service programs. It plants flowers at the Arts Council office, decorates the Plymouth Historical Museum at Christmas, plants trees at the Plymouth Township Park, and at the playscape located in the park.

Also, it is involved in projects at Greer School, a historic one-room school house; at Miller Woods; and the Festival of Trees.

Craft show top attraction at 41st annual Fall Festival

The Plymouth Community Arts Council is sponsoring its 25th annual Artists and Craftsmen Show from 10 a.m. - 6 p.m., Saturday, Sept. 7; and from noon to 5 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 8 at Central Middle School at Church and Main streets.

Admission to the show, held in conjunction with the Plymouth Fall Festival, is $2 for adults, $1 for seniors and free for students and children under 12.

The juried show features high-quality art and crafts. More than 100 artisans from all over Michigan and surrounding states are participating.

Visitors will see oils, watercolors, photography, dried flowers, jewelry, acrylics, calligraphy, sewn items, wood creations "and much, much more," promises Council spokeswoman Harriet Vinson.

"Some artisans will be demonstrating their craft," she added.

This event is the primary fund raiser of the Plymouth Community Arts Council. The council's purpose is to develop and promote the appreciation and accessibility of the arts for the benefit of all citizens of the Plymouth-Canton community, and in so doing, encourage and foster artistic excellence, Vinson said.

The Plymouth Community Arts Council is a non-profit organization promoting and serving the arts since 1969, and an Equal Opportunity Employer which provides programs and services without regard to race, color, religion, national origin, sex or handicap.

Plymouth Arts Council arts and crafts show features everything from paintings to dolls

If you like arts and crafts you'll have plenty to choose from during the festival.

Booths will display vinyl ornaments, wood crafts, weaving, decorative painting, country folk dolls, flags, sculptured fabric figures, doll clothes, wood crafts, dried flowers, porcelain dolls, sweatshirts, English smocking, calligraphy, beaded jewelry, pottery, oil and watercolor paintings, jewelry and leather work.

Jan Hill of Royal Oak will display and sell porcelain dolls during the festival. She does all the work from pouring molds, firing, painting and sewing the clothes.

"There are a lot of steps," Hill said. "Part of the appeal for me is the fact that it encompasses a lot of different skills — sewing the clothes painting and some days it just feels good to pour the molds and to come up with something physical."

Some of the dolls are all porcelain, others have soft bodies and others have a mixture. The price ranges from $50 to $125.

This fall, Hill said, she will also offer porcelain hand painted Christmas trees ornaments in white and gold. A collection of soft sculptured dolls is another new item this fall.

They're reminiscent of the poem, "Warning," by Jenny Joseph. The first line is: "When I'm An Old Woman I Shall Wear Purple."

"I really do strive to keep my prices as low as I can, because I enjoy doing what I'm doing and I want to share it as much as I can," said Hill, who is retired from General Motors purchasing department.

Downtown Plymouth's Primrose Path owner Nancy Lenski will sell her decorative painting work made from wood, tin, canvas and fabric.

She decorates wooden bowls, jewelry boxes and Christmas decor, but she's best known for her two-foot high, one foot wide wooden hand painted angels. Her technique includes fusing fabric onto the wood for the angels' dresses that gives them a lifelike appeal.

Lenski teaches classes and sells supplies from her store at 269 N. Main.

Art walk is next event in Plymouth

If this is your first visit to Plymouth, there are reasons to come back after the Fall Festival is over.

The Plymouth community has been changing in the last several years, and one of the prime reasons is the arts.

That will be evident Sept. 27, 28 and 29 when Plymouth's art galleries host the 3rd annual Plymouth is ARTragous art walk through the downtown area.

That event features the best in arts and crafts that the galleries have to offer.

During the art walk, the Native West gallery will feature a native American carver.

Michael S. Kahe is a Hopi Kachina carver from Arizona who carries on the time-honored Hopi tradition of Kachina doll carving.

Kachina dolls have been made for countless generations by the Hopi men and given to young girls of their villages during ceremonial performances.

The dolls are not only a prayer, but are used to familiarize the young women with the Kachinas and incorporating the girls into the religious life of the village.

The Kachinas are supernatural, the spirit or essence of animal and inanimate objects in the natural environment who benefit the Hopi by bringing rain and fertility of crops, animals and man.

Other galleries will also be featuring artists at work during the walk.

Also, musicians will be strolling on the streets and playing.

Great Chili Cookoff slated for Oct. 13

Following the Fall Festival, Plymouth will heat up in October.

The days may be getting cooler by then, but folks in Plymouth will be having a hot time during the first Plymouth Great Chili Cookoff.

The event is slated for Sunday, Oct. 13.

It will feature chili cooks doing their best at The Gathering, which is near Kellogg Park.

Proceeds from the event go to the Make A Wish Foundation, which helps children.

Also on tap are live country music bands in Kellogg Park, line dancing demonstrations, a jalapeno pepper eating contest, a salsa competition, a classic Harley Davidson motorcycle show, and a western barbecue dinner served from noon until 6 p.m.

Weather alert system in place in case of storm

A plan of action is in place should the weather turn nasty during the Fall Festival.

"It is a primary focus of this plan to provide advance warning of severe conditions to the dealers, and to the general public so that they have an opportunity to leave the event prior to the arrival of severe weather," said Paul Sincock, assistant city manager/director of public works.

During any severe thunderstorm watch, city staff or Fall Festival staff will notify all dealers of the situation. It may be required that the show be closed until after the threat of severe weather has passed.

Announcements will be made on the public address system to close the show. "Staff will determine if there is enough time after the show has been cleared of the general public to allow dealers in to remove articles from the festival area," said Sincock.

"During a tornado watch, the city staff will notify the Fall Festival staff of the condition and the possibility of the show closing. If conditions worsen, city staff may require that the show be closed and the show area be cleared," Sincock said.

Should a tornado warning be issued, "the festival will be immediately closed by the city staff, with the assistance of the Fall Festival staff. Dealers will not be allowed to have vehicle access to the event area due to the time required to remove set ups."

Severe weather shelters include the Central Parking Deck lower level and storage room; the Gathering; basement of the Mayflower Hotel; and basement of City Hall.

Streets to close for Fall Festival fun

You'll know it's Fall Festival time when at noon, Thursday, Sept. 5, thoroughfares in downtown Plymouth close.

Main Street will be closed between the Mayflower Hotel parking lot and Fralick. On Sunday, Main will be closed all the way to Church Street.

Ann Arbor Trail will be closed from Forest to Union.

Penniman will be closed from Harvey to Union.

Most closures will go into effect at noon on Thursday. The business section of Penniman will remain open until Thursday night.

"Road closures are expected to remain in effect until approximately 8 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 8," said Paul Sincock, assistant city manager/director of public works.

The stand-by location for Huron Valley Ambulance is on Ann Arbor Trail at Union in front of 711 W. Ann Arbor Trail. HVA's schedule for the event is 7 a.m. - 11 a.m. and 6 p.m. - 10 p.m. Saturday, Sept 7; and 11 a.m. - 6 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 8.

Pancake breakfast: Denise Fischer helps daughter Janee with her pancakes. The breakfast from 7 a.m. until 1 p.m. on Saturday is hosted by the Kiwanis Club and is at The Gathering.

Pancake breakfast hosted by Kiwanis

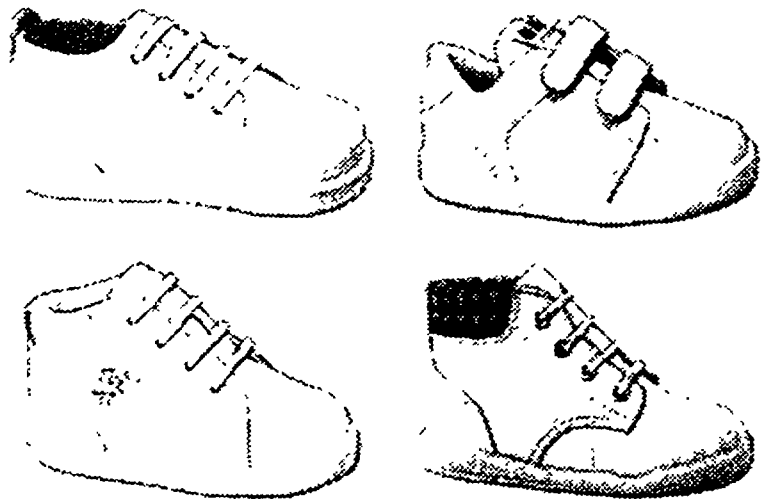

Saturday is the first full day of festival events, and what better way to get started than with a good breakfast.

The Kiwanis Club is serving one up from 7 a.m. until 1 p.m. on Saturday at The Gathering on Penniman, near Kellogg Park.

Members will be cooking up pancakes and sausages.

Tickets can be purchased at the door.
