School grant provides funding

By ROBERT JACKSON Staff Writer

Cooke Middle School sixth and seventh grade students could become the inventors of the future thanks to teacher Gretchen Krawice's inventive thinking project.

At Winchester Elementary School teachers Kate Devendorf and Jay Hilliard are planning to get parents involved in their children's reading by conducting early reading parent education work

These two projects may be dif ferent in scope, but both are part of a brand new effort, called the Innovative Grant Program. Imple mented by the school district, the program encourages teachers to try creative new approaches in the classroom.

Ten projects, involving each district school, will share the district sponsored $15,000 grant in phase one of the program. Those projects and their funding amount were recently released by district Superintendent Leonard Rezmierski who said the inaugural program encourages teachers to be "cre-

The program was divided into two separate phases - with $15,000 to be awarded in each phase - and Rezmierski said that 28 applications from district teachers were received in phase one of the program.

After the administrative cabinet reviewed the applications 10 protects were approved for funding and another 16 will be handled through other alternative funding sources including Service Learning, Early Childhood Program, and the Office of Instruction grants Rezmierski said.

Township residents to decide land plan

By RANDY COBLE

Northville Township voters last will not be least when you head to the polls a dozen days from now

The final item on the lengthy ballot that awaits you on Nov 5 is a tax increase request aimed at generating money for the township to purchase land. Its purpose supporters say, is to permanently prevent key areas of natural beauty and open space from being developed Residents benefit, they argue, from a community that keeps looking good and retains its high property values

The cost about $35 a year per $100 000 of a home s market value. If your home is worth. $250,000, for example, you'll pay an extra 895 a year if the inflage is approved

Suc Hillchrand, a member of the board and a strong millage supporter, calls it "a key step in the development of comprehensive township land use strategy" to make sure that Northville Township retains a character which improves the quality of life and, if it disappears, would drive home

This is a visionary thing. We have to decide now how we want this community to look five and 10 and 20 years down the road. The decisions we make now will be permanent," Hillebrand said

That's because new subdivisions and shopping centers are eating up land here very quickly no less than a dozen subdivisions and nearly as many condominium complexes are in the works now Township officials efforts to bar-

Picture perfect

There aren't too many scenes that are more fit for a canvas than downtown Northville, as Chicago artist Dwight Kalb discovered recently. Kalb set up his easel near the bandshell and gave an impressionistic interpretation to the unique charm and grace of the city. Kalb's work was recently exhibited at D & M Studio in Novi. A few of his paintings are still available there for sale.

Parade sign-up now under way

By CAROL WORKENS Staff Writer

: Santa Claus will arrive in town this year, but if the Northville Central Business Association has its way, the jolly man will make his grand entrance with a little more Nair than in the past.

The Christmas parade's theme this year is Miracle on Main Street. But a parade ain't a parade unless there's floats.

So, calling all groups, volunteers, individuals, and businesses. Submissions are now being accepted by David McKnight of Genitti's Hole-in-the-Wall for floats, and not just any old float, but a lighted float for the parade that will bring Santa to town on Nov. 22 beginning at 6 p.m.

"We are looking for award winning floats," McKnight said. "We want this to be a memorable event."

There's no time to dawdle, the deadline for entering a float is Nov. , only seven days away.

Floats will be judged and awards handed out. There will also be some surprises this year, which McKnight said he can't reveal just yet.

Merchants would like to resurrect it into a full blown parade," said Laurie Marrs, executive director of the Northville Community Chamber of Commerce.

The parade will kick off a series of events which will take place in the following weeks. The Christmas Walk on Nov. 24 from noon until 5 p.m.; the Candlelight Walk on Dec. 6; the Charity Auction on Dec. 8; and the Handcrasters Show on Dec. 15.

The 16th annual Christmas Walk includes free food supplied by merchants, and entertainment by the Northville High School Choir and Center Stage Dance

Many non-profit organizations will sell a variety of Christmasrelated items, including roping and wreaths. Non-profit organizations must call the Chamber of Commerce to arrange for a location to set up their booths.

The Chamber will also have a window decorating contest.

"It is a great opportunity because there are so many people in the downtown area," sald Marrs. "The more the merrier."

For more information, or to enter a float, call McKnight at Genitu's, 349-0522.

Senior Center in line for improvements

By ROBERT JACKSON Staff Writer

New bathrooms and a renovated kitchen area might not seem like much, but for Northville senior cit. izens any renovation to the Semon Center is cause for celebration

Thanks to a combined effort by Northville Township and city offidals more than $70,000 in community development block grant (CDGB) money will be used to replace bathrooms and renovate. the kitchen area of the aging. building located at 215 W. Cady.

'What's important to under stand is that this was a case of the township and city working togeth. er on a project that will benefit our senior citizens," said Parks and Recreation Director Traci Smook Township officials approved the expenditure of CDBG funds for the project in late February for the "barrier free renovations. The Wayne County CDBG program gave its OK in July. The final obstacle was removed this week when the Northville City Council voted to approve the renovation

CDBG money has been used in the past to fund repairs to the roof at the Recreation Center, the purchase of the senior bus, and the acquisition of playground equipment for Fish Hatchery Park. according to Smook

Because there are a significant number of senior citizens from the township involved in programs at the Semor Center, township officials decided it was appropriate to use the CDBG money for the renovations," she said

The center presently has inadequate restrooms and kitchen facilities for senior programs, and are not up to standards set by the Americans With Disabilities Act

The township's consulting engineers, Ayers, Lewis, Norris & May, have been contracted to design the renovation plan, which will be competitively bid, according to

The total cost of the renovations will not exceed $76,259.

Taxes and services

Why are you a better candidate than your opponent to represent Wayne County Northville on the Wayne County Commission?

In general, do you feel that the current level of county taxation and

I would like for Northville voters to think about what services are actually provided by the county, and which are provided by other levels of

I am a person who is certified in organizational dynamics. I have an established working relationship with officials in Wayne County, the Wayne County Commission, and surrounding communities, and I have a genuine appreciation for the history and natural attributes of an estab lished and mature community such as western Wayne County, and the

I believe the commissioner feels there has been an unfair distribution of Northville citizen' tax dollars "squandered" on other parts of the county. The need for county provided services (and therefore tax dollar distribution) for any one part of the county, and any other will be flicenses: deeds; parks; roads; jails; youth; prosecution; airport; courts; elections; etc.) generally the same.

The concept of having county government based (as are other levels of government) on collectivity, and to have it make sense, needs to benefit county communities primarily in common areas.

As commissioner, I will pay close attention to the level of taxation, and the level of services Northville is provided.

Since being elected your commissioner in 1992. I have striven to keep my word and honor your trust; to actively and effectively protect and promote your interests in county government; and to do so in a manner that respects and reflects our community's deserved reputation for honesty and hard work.

If again entrusted to serve as your commissioner, I will remain com mitted to securing sound public policy rather than to scoring political points; and, as ever, I will remain mindful of the fact that I work for you.

service to the Northville community are too low, too high or about right?

Taxes are too high and public services too low in Northville and throughout Wayne County. To everyone, that is, but the Wayne County Democrats who have tried to hike our taxes six times in four years

As your voice in county government. I have been the only commission er to have fought against every tax increase, and I will continue to do so County government, indeed every layer of government, already has more than enough of our money to perform the essential public services we taypayers deserve for our money.

Unfortunately, the Democrats decidedly disagree: In 1995-96, the Democrats spent over $6 million in our county taxes on the commission and only $2.3 million on county parks. Sensing the correlation between their increasing political park and the deteriorating state of county parks, the Democrats stepped up to the plate and ... Hit us with a new parks tax.

County responsiveness

Many feel that the Democratically-controlled county government is frequently unresponsive to our predominantly Republican area's needs and interests. Do you agree or disagree? Why?

I disagree. Predominantly Republican communities are not a problem for Wayne county. The effective working relationship between the county and the communities within is more important than which political party they are affiliated with. Campaigning on such a presumption is a cheap shot, and is probably more about control than representation.

I believe there are county commissions that are predominantly partisan one way or another yet are not impaired in assuming their responsibilitles to voters for these reasons.

We need to remember there are other levels of government above, below, and all around Wayne County that have members of all political parties elected to them.

Many voters support voting a split ticket. Usually they will say it is more important who one votes for than what political party they belong to. I believe voters will feel I may represent Wayne County and Northville very well

Wayne County government is an unresponsive, unaccountable mess in unresponsive, unaccountable Democratic mess

This Democratic mess most adversely impacts Northville and other communities represented by Republicans - but it also adversely impacts every Wayne County community.

The solution is not to elect Democrats in Republican areas, but to elect Republicans in Democratic areas. To do otherwise, especially in Republican areas, would be to reward the Democrats' shameful partisan neglect of republican areas.

And as for the myth of the "suburban Democrat" commissioner differ ing from his Detroit cohorts, the public record says otherwise. There is only one type of Democrat on the commission – the tax and squander Democrat who will vote "philosophy" not geography, and who, wherever their district, coxets dolling out even more of our money to their special interest friends

Stadium proposal

Do you support Proposal S, the soc-called "tourism tax" plan on the Nov. 5 ballot?

(If approved, Proposal S would authorize Wayne County to charge a 2 percent tax on every car or moving truck and a 1 percent fee on every hotel room rented in the county for the next 30 years. The money from the tax would help fund the proposed Detroit "sports village" for the Lions and Tigers.)

I believe the two-stadium concept is one that reflects the enthusiasm here is in our community for what is becoming a "year-round" season of professional sports. I believe the longevity of the proposal (30 years) reflects the commitment level made on the part of the community to the project. I believe the commitments made on the part of the other contributors is contingent upon the success of the proposal.

I am currently working with former Congressman Carl Pursell to gal vanize citizen opposition to the Democrats' latest, if not last public poli-

Succinctly, my two main objections are

• I oppose the new excise tax which Wayne County residents will pay Despite the stadia proponents' claims, there is no such thing as a "Tourist Tax" - or a free lunch for that matter, and

• 1 oppose $20 million from the potential sale of the county's aban doned Northville property being doled out to the Stadium Authority. The sale's proceeds should be spent on public services to compensate for the 25 years the abandoned property drained our community's tax base and public services

Sell to OIS?

Do you support the proposed sale of additional acreage of countyowned land in Northville Township at below market value to Optical Imaging Systems?

(The sale would allow the company to build a second manufacturing plant here.)

As commissioner, I will support a competitive bids process, and a voice from the Northville community (who will be living next door to the end results) where decisions need to be made. The last time Bill Davidson came to the county he bought that land for "a dollar." A higher yield on the land for Wayne County and an increased benefit to the Northville community are the worst we can do

For 25 years the county's abandoned land had been a tax-taker; now. with OIS, it is a tax-maker, one that forms the foundation for relieving the tax burden on Northville's homeowners, who overwhelmingly constitute the township's tax base

Thus, while the county may not have fully benefited from the deal, Northville residents have. A quarter-century of living with the problems of a dangerous, undeveloped county property that the county's funneling to the Stadium Authority of the property's projected $20 million in revenues should clearly prove.

. If the county had held out for a "full price," OIS would have located somewhere else, and Northville residents would have continued to suffer the full costs of the county's abandoned property; and

· Of a prospective "full price" sale received by the county, the Wayne County Democrats would not have spent one dime on public services for Northville residents.

Other thoughts

What other key issues or facts about this race would you like to explain to voters?

I believe we (as voters) are bombarded with propaganda that has us defining problems we have with government as the Republican Party vs.

the Democratic Party. It isn't that simple. During election campaigns the basic principles of the two political parties seem to be very important. Suddenly, elections are over, and the fur flies everywhere ... except in the halls of the legislatures. It's called the "incumbent-party" syndrome.

I have had a good career with General Motors, and believe I can make a meaningful contribution as your commissioner. When I have done that, I will return to General Motors.

I encourage voters in the Northville community to remember there are Republicans and Democrats everywhere from here to Washington, D.C., and that as commissioner I know I will be expected to represent Wayne County and the Northville community regardless of political party memThere are two major issues in this campaign: taxes and county spend-our county taxes are too high.

I will keep fighting against every prospective Democratic tax increase: and keep fighting for pro-taxpayer reforms, such as my legislation requiring a super-majority vote before taxes could even conceivably be increased.

· The county squanders our taxes.

I will keep working with you to make county government more responsive and responsible to our community. Only together can we make county government provide the essential public services that are mandated by state law and the county charter, and demanded and deserved by taxpayers.

Fox challenges Schmid in race for county seat

Democrat is election newcomer

In the race for the 17th Oakland County Commissioner's District, incumbent Republican Kay Schmid is being challenged by Democratic novice Larry Jay Fox. Fox chose not to respond to the questionnaire sent to him by The Northville Record and The Novi News. The winner in the Nov. 5 contest will claim a two-year term on the Oakland County Board of Commissioners. The 17th District consists of the Oakland County portion of Northville, Novi, Novi Township, and Walled Lake.

Kay Schmid

Kay Schmid

Schmid, a Novi resident, has been an Oakland County Commissioner from 1991 to the present. She is a purchasing agent and an insurance agent. She was educated at Hillsdale College.

Her governmental involvement includes: General Government Committee - chair; Strategic Planning Committee; Land Use Task Force; SEMCOG - Executive Committee; SEMCOG/CEDAC - Member; SEMCOG Dues Task Force; Michigan Association of Counties - Community and Economic Development Committee, Ad Hoc By-laws Committee; SMART Alternative Task Force: Prosecutor Warrants Teleconferencing Committee; Court Restructuring Committee; Oakland Livingston Human Services Agency; Beck Road/Wixom Road Interchange Task Force; Oakland County Parks and Recreation Commission; Board of Commissioners Lobbyist Selection Committee; Planning and Building Committee; Finance and Personnel Committee; Michigan Association of Republican County Officials – President and Founding Member; Board of Commissioners Republican Caucus - Past Chairperson. Member in the Novi Chamber of Commerce; Lakes Area Chamber of Commerce; Republican Committee of Oakland County -Executive Committee; Republican Women of West Oakland - Founding Member, Past Vice President: Republic Women's Forum; 11th District Republican Club.

Achievements

What one or two deeds - deeds, not just offices held - do you consider your outstanding civic accomplishments that make you fit for this Brought new district court to Novi to better serve citizens and law enforcement agenties in southwest Oakland County while also renovating the old courthouse which added new county services to the area. When Ameritech proposed new area codes splitting Novi between 313 and 810 and placing Lyon Township totally in 313. I proposed a plan to put all of Oakland County in one area code. The Citizens Advisory Committee accepted the proposal and changed their plans

Committees

Which one or two committee assignments would you most like to receive? Why?

Chair of General Government and member of Strategic Planning, General Government is haison with federal, state and local governments. We provide input on pending legislation and propose legislative changes that are in the best interests of the county. Strategic Planning is a team effort with county wide elected officials to form a 10 year county needs assessment to manage by plan, not by reaction, making government efficient, accountable and user friendly

Cost of information

The county clerk is arranging to provide documents online, but that service would be provided through an outside firm and would result in a charge to users. What should the policy be for providing documents to the public?

Paper copies of public information obtained at county offices will continue to be available. Online services requires a "gatekeeper" to protect the privacy of some information contained on disk and also (to cover) the cost for formatting. It is cost prohibitive to compile all this information only to have private companies tap into the county records and sell that information to their customers should be used to improve the county's roads?

Are Oakland County's roads in bad enough shape to warrant an increase in taxes? What form of tax license fees by state formula. These are user fees and are the best and fairest method for road funding. If there is an increase in gas tax, I propose one half of that revenue must remain in the county in which it is collected. Eliminate diesel fuel discounts to truckers.

Urban sprawl

Oakland County is the fastest growing county and it is the economic center of the state. Do you view "urban sprawl" (eating up open space faster than population growth) as a problem? If so, what can be done about it at the county

One man's urban sprawl is another's economic development. This is (a) "quality of life" issue. It's fine to want to revitalize older cities that already have infrastructure. Many state proposals will help, such as environmental cleanup and tax free enterprise zones. Bottom line - "people's choice." Clean up crime, corruption, educational opportunities and excessively high taxes and people will return on their own. I treasure the privacy of my own open space

No one could exactly call the race for Oakland County Commissioner in the 17th District a slugfest.

The 17th District includes Oakland County Northville.

Schmid does almost seem to live and breathe Oakland County politics. In her six years on the county commission, she's quickly risen to the top of the leadership ladder. Currently, she's chair of the general government committee, the liaison group between Oakland County's government and the state and federal governments. The general government committee also oversees all county transportation issues, as well as the Oakland Livingston Human Service Agency (OLSHA.)

While most people don't follow county politics, a commissioner's job is a big one. The commission looks after a budget that's projected at $544 million for next year - $150 million of that from property taxes - and a government that employees 4,000 peo-

Fox is spending no money on this, his first political race, which means he has no flyers, signs or any other of the usual campaign paraphernalia.

How do people know what your character is from signs and flyers? What you see is what you get with me," he said.

He said he'd like to bring that same low-budget approach to county government.

I think the main issue that is in the forefront today is tax dollars and how much we're taxed and how our tax dollars are used. I don't think we need to be taxed any more," Fox added.

The problem we have is that everybody's solution is to raise more money and that won't solve the problem. Here's the money we're getting. How are we going to efficiently prioritize it?"

The Democrat also supported the voters in their decision last summer not to vote for the reelection of Oakland County Prosecutor Dick Thompson. Thompson is widely believed to have lost due to his persistence in prosecuting Dr. Jack Kevorkian. Fox said he thinks the assisted suicide issue cannot be settled by the court system.

The big difference in my mind is the pro-choice issue. That really separates the Democrats from the Republicans. It really has been a litmus test, which is unproductive. It really shouldn't be a political issue he explained.

Schmid is also not doing any heavy-duty electioneering. Instead, she seems to be more focused on current county government doings. One of her current projects reeks of secessionism. She'd like to organize a COG - or Council of Governments in Oakland County. She's served as the commission's representative and is now the alternate to the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG), but Schmid said Oakland County should break away and found its own group.

"It's very hard. They (SEMCOG) are fied too tight to Wayne County and the city of Detroit. They speak as one voice that supports them. They never listen to us." she said.

Schmid is also asking the county parks and recreation department to investigate an in-line skating and skate boarding facility at the Lyon Township park, if liability issues aren't too great.

Wobbly driver arrested after giving cops hard time

A Plymouth man wins the prize for poor judgment this week following his decision to try and take a stroll while being questioned for drunk driving in Northville Township early on the morning of Oct.

The reporting township officer in the case was parked outside the Michigan National Bank at Five Mile and Haggerty shortly after 2 a.m. that day. In his report he said that he saw a 1991 Mercury Tracer pull out of the Sunoco gas station across the street and head west on Five Mile. The Tracer allegedly had only one working headlight and was speeding at 55 miles an hour.

After stopping the car just east of Bradner Road, the officer said he saw signs of intoxication when he spoke to the driver, 28. The man claimed to have consumed three beers that evening but did not perform well in field sobriety tests, the officer stated.

When asked to take a field breath test, the man allegedly became upset, complaining that he had done everything he'd been asked to do. He then said, 'I'm not staving for this" and began walking away from the car across Five Mile, according to police.

When a verbal command would not bring him back the officer attempted to use force. At that point the man began wrestling with him, the officer said, and knocked the radio out of his hand as he attempted to call for backup. That led to the man's being put on the ground and handcuffed while lying in the middle of Five Mile.

The man was taken to police headquarters and the Tracer was impounded. A search of the vehicle allegedly turned up a beer can which was one-quarter full and several empty beer containers.

Breath tests later at police headquarters allegedly showed the man to have a blood alcohol level of 0.07 percent, which is within legal limits. He was not cited for drunk driving but was given citations for refusing a preliminary breath test. speeding, possessing open intoxi-cants in a motor vehicle and for obstructing a police officer.

The man was held until he sobered up and then released on bond pending his court hearing on all charges, scheduled for today

Store detectives called police after seeing the man fall twice in the store and exhibit other behavfor which indicated he was "extremely intoxicated," according to reports. Store employees were concerned about the possibility of the man getting behind the wheel

BOOZE SWIPED: A Novi teenager learned the hard way that crime doesn't pay last week at Meijer.

The teen, 19, was allegedly caught carrying two bottles of alcohol out of the store that he didn't attempt to pay for. Store detectives said he hid them in a backpack.

The teen was booked at the scene by township police, then released pending a Nov. 5 court hearing. The alcohol he allegedly stole is valued at $44.

WARRANT ARREST: A Detroit woman caught speeding last week in Northville ended up going to jail

The reporting officer in the case said he saw the woman's 1987 Oldsmobile Cutlass doing 63 miles an hour on Eight Mile near Haggerty soon after midnight on Oct.

He stopped the Cutlass on the entrance ramp to the southbound I-275 freeway and ran a computer

It revealed an arrest warrant for the woman, 28, arising out of a disorderly conduct complaint against her in Detroit. She was taken into custody and held until a Detroit police officer picked her

Teens face stiff terms on charges

By RANDY COBLE Staff Writer

Two Farmington Hills teenagers could spend the next five years of their lives in prison if they're found guilty of a one-night rash of car break-ins that occurred last week in Northville Township.

James Alexander Green and David Michael Lemleux, both 18, stole cellular telephones, purses, credit eards and cash from six cars on Sunnydale and Dundalk Lanes in the wee hours of Oct. 17 township police say. Both streets he off Winchester Road between Five and Six Mile.

The pair were arrested minutes after a Dundalk resident called police to report that two men were breaking into her 1991 Chevrolet Caprice

'She said she saw them take a rock and heave it into the (Caprice's) window," Detective Michael Wildt explained. They got in, took her phone, then got out and drove off in a white colored mid size vehicle.

That description was put out over police radio and minutes later, at about 3:45 a.m. Officer Charles Cole spotted a white 1990 Chrysler Lebaron with two men inside draing down Winchester Road. After stop ping and searching the car Cole allegedly found four cellular phones a wallet and a man's watch inside the vehicle

The woman who called police soon arrived on the scene and identified one of the phones as hers. A check of the area turned up the other break ins and the owners of the vehicles in question also said their belongings were among the items found in the Laburon

Green and Lemicux allegedly confessed to the crimes when questioned at police headquarters less than an hour later

According to Cole's report the two said they were walking through the subdivision, checking for unlocked vehicles. They found two, according to Wildt, and stole items from both. The suspects used rocks to smash in the windows of locked cars "when they saw something worth taking inside " he said

The total value of the stolen items is estimated at more than $550. Damage to the four car windows is estimated at $600. Wildt said it's possible that other cars in the area could have been lift. It you suspect that one could be yours call him at 349-9400

Green and Lenneux face six counts apace of break ing and entering a vehicle. That sa felony in Michigan and could not each of them up to live years in prison. Green, who has a previous conviction for the same.

Resolution expected from state board of ed

By TIM RICHARD Staff Woter

After a long gestation period, the State Board of Education is due to give birth today (Thursday) to a resolution advising public schools to do "character education."

The question is: Will it embody values such as "respect, responsibility, caring, trustworthiness, justice, fairness, civic virtue and citizenship," as proposed by Superintendent of Public Instruction Art

Or will it be laced with references to God, Bible lessons and parents, as advocated by board president Clark Durant, R Grosse

The eight-member state board has been entangled in the issue since July, It didn't take up the matter in August and September.

The October meeting is scheduled to start at 9:30 a.m. in the fourth floor of the John A. Hannah Building, 603 W. Allegan about two blocks west of the state Capitol in Lansing. Public comment is scheduled for 1 p.m.

There are signs many consider it a tempest in a teapot. Tim Kelly, Gov. John Engler's representative to the board, already has said the broadcaster, that Bible stories body has spent too much time on could be used to teach character. the proposal.

In a letter to all board members. the Jewish Community Council of Metropolitan Detroit called it "unnecessary for the State Board of Education to devote so much energy on this issue. Values always have been, and continue to be, taught by capable, caring educators throughout our public school system.

The letter, signed by president Allen Zemmol, said Durant has repeatedly used his position as president ... to attempt to insert religion into the public schools."

Durant apparently had a hand in drafting the first resolution. which emphasizes fundamental rights of parents" and places parents and religious leaders in prominent spots to be on local school drafting committees.

And Durant touched a raw nerve among many when he said, in an out-of-the-room interview with a values.

Board member Dorothy Beardmore, R-Rochester, offered a counter-proposal. It says American values "transcend religious beliefs." She cited the values of respect, responsibility, caring. trustworthmess, justice and fairness, and civic virtue and citizen-

'CUB' proposals stir controversy, emotions

By TIM RICHARD Staff Writer

Voter confusion is running high on both Proposals D and G, the two rival hunting issues on the Nov. 5 ballot. Let's sort them out:

Q. What will Proposal D do and who favors it?

A. D is the so-called "CUB" proposal from Citizens United for Bear. It would prohibit, by law, the use of bait piles and packs of tracking dogs for the hunting of Proposal D was placed on the ballot by 341,000 petition signers. It emanated from Upper Peninsula landowners who were bothered by hunters whose dogs didn't stop to read "no trespassing" signs on private property.

Landowners say hunters have a what are you gonna do about it?" attitude. Landowners complain there are few prosecutions for tres-

Tony Holmes, a Senate staffer on leave to head the cub campaign, called the bait and hounds practice "unnecessary and cruel ... The brutality of these methods were (slc) first exposed because of trespassing on private land."

g. Who else is for D?

A. Many people, including some hunters, honestly believe it's unsportsmanlike to put out bait piles and use tracking dogs. But there's no denying an element of show bir has crept into the cam-

Rocker and sportsman Ted Nugent denounces Hollywood phonies" who have helped make broadcast commercials for CUB. which feature an innocent bear cub being treed and shot but which never use statistics on bear herd management.

Among the supporters is state Rep. John Freeman, D-Madison Heights. He argued that Prop D doesn't outlaw bear hunting - that It merely forbids hunting with dog packs that have radio collars, and that bears become accustomed to being fed and lose their instincts to find food

Q. Who's against D?

A. The hunting fraternity, Gov John Engler, most area lawmakers and even the non-hunting Michigan Wildlife Habitat Foundation.

Michigan United Conservation Clubs, leading the charge, has asked broadcasters to pull the CUB commercial showing a bear cub being hunted because a DNR regulation already says: "It is unlawful to take a bear cub or a female bear accompanied by cub

Some opponents of D make the counter-argument that forbidding the use of tracking dogs, in particular, is less humane because a sow or cub looks like a mere "ball of fur from a distance, and wounded animals could escape to die slowly in agony

Q. How does Proposal G fit in?

A. Prop G was placed on the ballot by the Legislature as a rival law, subject to voter approval. Whichever gets the most yes votes will win, even if voters give a majority to both. G's supporters believe they will get the bigger yes

The substance of Prop G Is to give scientific game management powers to the Natural Resources Commission, taking that power away from the DNR director. Prop G, if approved, would leave current DNR rules in place. though they could be amended.

Current rules say: No taking of a cub or sow with · Setting of bait stations is regulated by date.

· No more than six dogs to a pack; no relaying of packs.

 Dogs may not be trained on a captive, tame or tethered bear.

Legal tracking hours are a half-hour before sunrise to a halfhour before sunset.

9. What's this talk about "scientific game management?"

A. CUB uses no statistics about the bear herd, using only the fairness argument.

Prop G supporters use these fig-ures from the Department of Natural Resources: · Michigan has a healthy and stable bear population of about • DNR receives 26,000-plus applications for bear licenses each year and issues about 6,400

 Hunters take about 1,500 bear 95 percent through the use of bait and tracking dogs. Only about one or two a year are cubs.

· Hunters with bait and dogs have a one-in-three success rate. Stalking hunters have only a onein-10 success rate.

If too many bear are killed, they face extinction.

If too few are killed, there will be more bear/human confrontations with injured children and increased calls for killing more "nuisance" bear.

Q. You mentioned the Michigan Wildlife Habitat Foundation. What is it, and where does it stand?

A. It's a nature-preserving group interested in habitat, neither pronor anti-hunting. Its fall newslet-

Q. Can I vote for both D and G?

A. Yes, but it would be like voting for both Clinton and Dole. If both lose, the rules remain the same and are made by the DNR director.

If both win, the one with the most yes votes takes effect.

Q. What about the pro-G argument that says Prop D is the first step toward prohibiting all hunting and fishing?

Special interests push favorites for high court

Liability beneficiaries go on offensive

Candidates for the Michigan Supreme Court can't campaign much, but this year other political interests are doing the fighting for

! The result is a series of attack ads as savage as in a Congressional race. The issues are liability lawsuits and money.

The Supreme Court itself, in 1974, wrote highly restrictive canons of conduct. Says Canon 7: A candidate, including an incumbent judge, for a judicial office ... should not make pledges or promises of conduct in office other than the faithful and impartial performance of the duties of

The result has been wooden campaigns between candidates in black suits or robes, all stressing fairness and experience.

Voters are so poorly informed that one-third never bother voting for Supreme Court, and only about 7 percent of the electorate can ven identify a justice in a nonelection year.

 This year the Michigan Chamber of Commerce, aided by defendant torporations, is doing its best to help Republican nominees Chief Justice James Brickley, 67, of Traverse City, and Oakland Circuit Judge Hilda Gage, 57.

The Michigan Association of Trial Lawyers and organized labor help Democratic hopefuls William Murphy, 51, of Grand Rapids, and Marilyn J. Kelly, 58, of Bloomfield Hills, both judges on the Court of Appeals, the second highest court.

Meanwhile, a couple of other candidates could be spoilers for the major party nominees.

Jessica Cooper, an Oakland circuit judge who tried but failed to get support in Democratic circles, is running an independent campaign. Jerry J. Kaufman, a Liber-tarian, is making his third bid for the Supreme Court after running fourth (ahead of a Democratic nominee) in 1988.

Under Michigan's quirky law. most candidates are nominated by political parties but run on a nonpartisan ballot.

THE TORT ISSUE The chamber started it.

President James Barrett wrote that business was tired of seeing tort reforms passed by a pro-busihess (read: Republican) governor and Legislature but junked by appellate courts.

Its complaint is that appellate courts are too free with other folks' money in allowing plaintiffs to sue for injuries, with "greedy" trial lawyers collecting one-third of the

Its ads attack Murphy and Kelly without mentioning Brickley and Gage. One ad features the case of a hockey player who sued the ice fink for a puck injury and a woman who complained of sexual abuse 41 years after the event. Murphy and Kelly favored letting the cases go to trial.

"Let the jury decide," say trial lawyers, who resist any effort to eap "pain and suffering" awards. the kind of "expert" witnesses who can be used and limits on their fees. "Wait 'til you are injured some day," they add.

Democratic chair Mark Brewer replied that the chamber, through its Justice for Michigan Citizens political action committee, is trying to "buy control of the Michigan Supreme Court."

Murphy, the first Democratic nominee, is a former president of the Michigan Trial Lawyers Association, the hobgoblins of business and health care providers. His 1996 literature, however, buries that fact. Instead, Murphy's campaign pushes better management of the criminal docket.

Kelly's quest for the nomination stressed her labor support.

THE MONEY ISSUE

Both side have made an issue of how the other gets its money.

The chambers' PAC, Justice for Michigan's Citizens, says more than 88 percent of all the money raised so far by Murphy ... has come from trial lawyers."

It singles out Sommers, Schwartz, Silver and Schwartz, a Southfield law firm, for raising 33 percent of Murphy's money as of Labor Day and personal injury awyer Lee Steinberg (as in "Call Lee for Free') for donating up to the limit.

"More than 90 percent of the contributions to his (Murphy's) campaign are from trial lawyers." added GOP chair Betsy DeVos on Oct. 11.

Democratic chair Mark Brewer says the chamber is dodging the campaign sinance law and douthe second PAC, Justice for Michi-

In a formal complaint to the Secretary of State. Brewer said the chamber is largely in control of the second PAC.

Brickley, Gage, Murphy and Kelly remain quietly above the fray, letting the special interests and partisans do all the heavy

Mill Race Matters

Sunday, Oct. 27 marks the final day in the Mill Race Village summer Sunday calendar. All buildings will be open from 1 until 4 p.m. for visitors. The village grounds remain open throughout the year from sun up to sun down unless the facilities have been rented for a private function.

On the fourth weekend in November city of Northville merchants hold their annual Christmas walk. As always Mill Race Village buildings will be open to participate in the holiday merriment. Details as to cost and times will appear in this column in weeks to come.

In response to last week's column, Myra Gibson called to describe some interesting historic information she has on the community. Excerpts from her material can be expected in future columns.

Continuing with the early history of the area. The first recorded settlers to this region arrived in 1823 and 1824. Gideon P. Benton filed claim on 240 acres located south of today's Seven Mile Road on Aug. 3, 1823. Efraim Francis filed claim on land the following year as did Gardner S. Simmons. Francis' piece of land would have bordered northwest of Seven Mile and Haggerty.

Simmons' property was located just south of Seven Mile, also west of Haggerty. The vacant building visible across from Schoolcrast College served as a residence for his family, though its exact date of construction is not known.

None of these families resided in what later became Northville. The first residents in what today is the city were the Daniel Cady family, the ira Rice family, the Alvah Smith family, the Alanson Aldrich family and the John Blanchard family.

Because early records are incomplete it is diffi-cult to tell when exactly these settlers arrived or whether they came along first and moved their families in later. Some of them may actually never have lived on the land

Cady family records indicate that the family was here before 1826. Daniel did, however, return to New York in 1827, to marry his second wife Eliza Elisworth. She is buried beside him at the Cady Street cemetery. Presumably, again according to family records, his first wife, whose name is unknown, died prior to the family's journey to

An 1827 territorial census lists residents of the entire region, although it lists by name only heads of households. Households which appear to be in the Northville area in that record are: Luther Lincoln, Clark Griswold, Caleb Fushinor, Earl Hoisington, Gardner Simmons, Ira Stuart, Richard Barton, William Bartow, Willard Hazen, Richard Joslin, Warren Stone, Justus Andrews, Justies Gilkey, William Tibbits, Benjamin Slocum Jr., Dyer Ramsdell, George W. Dun, Reuben Wood, Walter McFarlin, William Starkweather, David Phillips, John Van Luwen, Samuel Sterling, Rusus Thayer, A.B. Markham, Almeron Allen, Stephen Andrews, Jacob Folsom, Archibald Mussy, Lemuel Cole, Alfred More, Fisher Fellows, Morris Andrews, Erastus Starkweather, Joseph Yerkes, Daniel Cady, Ira Rice, John Miller, Benjamin Welsh, Amos Sands, Leonard Fellows, Albert Fellows, Moses Bradford, Jared Faisman, and Areunah Bradford.

A study of census and land records would imply that, in 1827, the only residents of what is today the city of Northville would have been Cady, Rise, and Miller. Welsh and Yerkes both owned abutting property. Cady land made up the area south of Main and east of Center. Rice held the land south of Main and west of Center. Miller had by then obtained the land north of Main.

More on the community's beginnings next week. -Diane M. Rockall

State gets drunk driving campaign grant

Michigan has been awarded approximately $1.3 million in grant funds by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) to step up the fight against impaired driving. The incentive money was awarded based on the state's ability to meet criteria that reflect serious and ongoing efforts to reduce alcoholrelated traffic fatalities.

Supplemental federal funding will allow the state to increase its efforts to address the drunk driving problem. Almost 40 percent of the state's traffic fatalities are alcohol-related and more than 500 people died in alcohol-involved crashes in 1995.

"We have not, by any means, won the battle against drunk driving as reflected in the increase in the number of alcohol-related fatalities in 1995," said Betty Mercer, division director, Michigan State Police, Office of Highway Safety Planning (OHSP). Enhanced funding will dramatically improve our ability to address the causes of drunk driving and develop solutions."
While spending plans are not yet finalized, money will be used for support of local community programs, targeted enforcement, specialized equipment and training. new technology and public information and education.

Proposed '97 budget holds line on spending

just under $4.9 million. Spending in 1997 would go up by about 0.44 percent compared to fiscal year 1996.

The $130,000 surplus, combined with about $255,000 from the township's "rainy day" fund balance account, will be used to pay for a varicty of "capital outlay" costs.

In plainer English that means things like a $124,000 computer system upgrade. Other improvements range from the purchase of a used fire tanker truck to new carpeting for municipal offices. The total projected cost:

After the money for those projects is taken out, the township's ongoing fund balance will stand at a healthy $1.8 million, an amount equal to about 20 percent of the $4.9 million yearly expenditure total.

Included in the new budget are proposals for one additional general staff worker, one new police officer and two new fire department inspectors. All of them are full-time positions and all are intended, township officials say, to ensure that citizens get the same level of service in the future that they have now.

In a growing community like Northville Township that means more people to handle the demand for services. Police runs in the township have doubled in the last 10 years.

Non-tax enterprise funds cover the operations of the township's water, sewer and solid waste services. Their total revenues are expected to top $6.6 million next year and expenses will come in just under $5.3 million. That figure includes the township's share of costs associated with the Western Townships Utilities Authority (WTUA) sewer system and a little more than $300,000 in capital outlay pro-

The difference - a total of about $1.3 million - will go into Water and Sewer's own rainy day account, which like everything else is separate from the regular township fund balance.

Fiscal blueprint sticks to basics

The township budget operates in much the same way that a family's does. Money comes in from a number of different sources and goes out for a variety of goods and services. There are a couple of important distinctions, however.

First, township revenues and expenditures are divided among three categories: dedicated funds, the general fund and enterprise funds.

Dedicated and general fund money consists of tax dollars. Enterprise funds, on the other hand (which include township water, sewer and solid waste disposal services), are completely supplied by the permit fees and monthly bills that program users pay. The law does not allow co-mingling of general/dedicated funds and enterprise funds. For example, you can't spend money paid by township water service users for anything but the water service program.

Another peculiarity is the difference between the dedicated and general funds. The township assesses four dedicated millages: 2.99 mills for police services. 0.85 mill for fire, 0.4 mill for shared services (which the township and city jointly fund) and 0.08 mill for dirt road maintenance. Money from those millages are legally earmarked for those specific purposes and can't be diverted to anything else. The township's general fund, on the other hand, which comes from five separate sources, can be spent for any purpose officials deem fit.

Millage seeks to buy land for preservation

What exactly would the new Northville Township millage buy?

That's the question a special commission will research and seek resident input on if the proposal passes Nov. 5. A variety of alternatives on what to purchase and how to make it happen will be explored. according to millage supporters.

One of them is not, however, spending millage money to buy land for a new township facility such as a fire station.

That intent is not there. Town-ship Clerk Sue Hillebrand said firmly. "If we want something like that we'll ask the voters for it."

Millage supporters have in mind protecting land from development. Hillebrand. for the benefit of the public. Another idea is one under way Among the ideas they say should know in Peninsula Township near be considered are things like "nat-ural beauty roads," where attrac-passed a 1.25 mill, 15-year tive natural areas which line local roadways would be kept in their pristine state.

We should also look at preserving key stands of trees or open space, things that we don't want torn down," Hillebrand said.

Options other than a straightout purchase of property could also be looked at: making gifts of parcels to land conservancies, for example. Other alternatives include using millage money to provide matching funds to obtain state and federal grants or buying a homeowner's land at today's prices but not actually taking possession of it for 10 years or more.

"There are a lot of creative things we can do." according to

MILLAGE FEATURES

Fast facts about Northville Township's millage request:

■ Approval allows the board of trustees to levy 0.75 mill for the next eight years.

■ That would be an additional $38 per year per $100,000 of the market value of your home. For example, if your home's market value is $250,000 you'd pay about $95 a year if the millage is

■ The money raised would be earmarked for the purchase of land for public purposes or for open space use" and could not be used for anything else.

■ In its first year the militage is expected to generate $473,000.

■ Millage supporters want a special commission formed to study how the money should be spent and gain citizen input.

Traverse City. Voters there in 1994 passed a 1.25 mill, 15-year request to give the township money to preserve some of cherry farms in the area.

The township buys a farmer's development rights, but not his land. The farmer can continue to live and work on the property or sell the parcel, but only the township can allow it to developed.

The township should buy key tracts of land itself and aggressively explore other preservation-promoting moves like toughening up local ordinances to get more concessions from developers, according to Hillebrand.

Grant to fund school programs

The second phase application process is expected to conclude by Dec. 15, with grant awards to be announced sometime in January. Some of the other projects funded by the first year grant include:

 Roxanne Minch at Meads Mill Middle School will integrate computer technology with music applications, allowing students to expand their musical creativity and study music via an alternative

• The school improvement team at Moraine Elementary School will combine math and parent involvement in a new program entitled Family Math Suitcases. According to the application each "sultcase" will travel home with a student for a period of one week, allowing students and parents the opportunity to practice and apply math concepts learned in school.

· Cooke Middle School teachers Carol Pasco and Dwight Sieggreen will implement their Habitat Ecology Learning Program (HELP). which calls for students to construct habitats for birds, reptiles and amphibians, and small mammals in the area around Cooke.

Assistant Superintendent Dolly McMaster said the program has generated excitement among teachers. "By allowing them to take risks and be creative we end up with better teachers, and consequently better students, McMaster explained. Rezmierski said all of the phase one applications were deserving of district funding.

"I am extremely pleased that we were able to find funding sources for almost all of the phase one applications," Rezmierski said. This money is going to effect just about every school in the district this year, and will enhance the education of hundreds of our kids.

'Our teachers have so many outstanding and creative ideas, he concluded. "I am encouraged by their efforts, as well as the support of the school board."

Rezmierski anticipates an evaluation of the program sometime in March, as well as a full evaluation in June to study project outcomes related to effectiveness and cost.

Township millage issue lacks quality planning

we going to do it?

Backers of the township millage prosposal on the Nov. 5 ballot have not 'answered those fundamental ques-.tions, which makes it likely that township voters will say "no" to the most important question of all: do we want -to do it?

The millage proposal is the last item on the very lengthy ballot facing township voters when they head to the polls :12 days from today. If approved, the Northville Township Board of Trustees would be authorized to levy 0.75 mill in additional property taxes annually for the next eight years (1997-2004). The money it would raise would be legally earmarked only for the purchase of land for public purposes or for open

To the owner of a $250,000 home the millage means an extra $95 a year. Township-wide it's expected to generate about $473.000 in the first year. But what exactly would all that cash

The answer from millage supporters is vague: they've thrown out a few nicesounding ideas but very little detail. The real answer is "that will be determined later by the new board."

The plan of action, according to millage supporters, calls for the millage to be approved first and the board to decide what precisely to do with it after a special (yet-to-be-formed) commission gives the issue a thorough study. millage request.

What are we going to do and why are including a comprehensive effort to learn what the public wants.

Millage supporters say they want the money spent on things like preserving areas of scenic natural beauty or tracts of open space before they're gobbled up by the breakneck development seen all over the township.

It's an idea that certainly deserves careful study but so do several other options such as, for example, active recreation areas to meet the community's need for soccer and baseball fields.

However, a plan has to come before a millage request, not after. Putting the cart before the horse will not get you to market and won't convince heavilytaxed voters to approve a new increase. however good the broad outlines of an idea may be.

As past experience demonstrates, to get a millage or bond issue to pass community leaders must carefully and clearly explain to voters exactly what it is they want to do and why they want to do it. In other words, tell the family in that $250,000 home just how they'll benefit from coughing up that extra $100.

While their hearts are in the right place, millage supporters have not done that. We encourage them to do more thorough planning and come back with a firm proposal for another try, perhaps next year.

For the moment, however, we urge township residents to vote NO to the

To survive in journalism you have to have a thick years of writing sports for The Northville Record. I've tried to remember that. I got careless. No excuses.

Since the article appeared, I've tried to make amends with the folks in Westland. I wrote a retraction the following week, apologized to the Glenn coach verbally and wrote a letter of apology to the team.

But in the past few weeks, John Glenn supporters have taken turns writing nasty letters to the editor about the article. That's fine, I don't have a problem with them volcing their displeasure.

But I must take exception to a letter that appears in Behind the barbs there is today's paper.

The letter writer starts by pointing out the difference between myself and Mitch Albom of the Detroit Free Press. Mitch's reporting is described as "accurate" and "adept" while mine is "inept" and "erroneous." While I did transpose a couple of names in that article. I hardly think it's fair to characterize the bulk of my work in those terms. Of the 500 or so sports articles I write each year. I'll wager the vast majority are accurate and sometimes even astute.

The letter writer wonders "what perverse satisfaction" I received from "degrading John Glenn's team members.

I don't get perverse satisfaction from anything I write. I do a job and every now and then I make mistakes. But I have the gumption to own up to them.

The writer also doubts that I was ever an athlete and contends that I am "illiterate regarding sportsman-Saying I was out of line for something I wrote is fine.

But this is a stretch. And yes, I've played both organized and unorganized sports most of my life. Finally, the letter writer says that my remarks were unnecessary, rude, and hurtful. That's true, they were. And I'm sorry I made them. But what about this writer's words? Are they any different? Really, do two wrongs make a right?

Return McCotter to board

Two years ago we used his space to and command endorse incumbent Thaddeus McCotter of the facts. over his opponent Karl Burnett.

As the confused wordsmith once said. "It seems like deja vu all over McCotter is running for a third term on the Wayne County Commission and is opposed for the second consecutive time by Burnett. Nothing has happened since 1994 to cause us to change our mind about either candidate, so again we recommend a vote for THADDEUS McCOTTER Nov. 5.

McCotter is one of only three Republicans on the highly partisan 15-member commission. But, far from being a passive irrelevancy. McCotter is an active voice of conservativism on the board. When he rails against the taxand-spend policies of the majority, he is often alone. But his positions. expressed with intelligence and force. rarely go unheeded.

McCotter fills the role of contrarian well, standing firm in his opposition to the Democratic behemoth. His outspoken criticisms of the county administration have won him few friends in Detroit, but he is respected for his thorough understanding of the issues

Closer to home. McCotter has been actively involved in attempts to get the long-neglected county-owned property off Sheldon cleaned up. After many years of inaction, the first steps toward cleanup got finally under way this year. as some of the dilapidated buildings

It's easy for voters in western Wayne County to feel alienated from Detroit, but McCotter's insistent voice provides a constant reminder that people out here deserve representation too.

The decision of who voters should solid, threepull the lever for in the 17th Commissioner's District in Oakland County is easy - the challenger in the race is a "sacrificial lamb."

Challenger Larry Jay Fox declined to respond to The Northville Record's questionnaire for the coming Nov. 5 election. When asked why by our reporter, he said he did not want to commit himself to positions on the issues, because he might be held to those positions later on.

*Anything I answer now and put down in writing, somebody could say you committed to that position four or five years ago. I've kind of accepted that running in a Republican district. I won't win.'

In other words, he's not a serious candidate. Fox admits he was asked to put his name on the ballot.

So. before casting their voters. Oakland County Northville residents should take a moment to applaud Larry Jay Fox for his loyalty to his party for so willingly flinging himself on the rocks.

Then they should firmly pull the lever for incumbent Republican KAY SCHMID.

We do. however, have a suggestion for Schmid. She should begin recruiting Novi/Northville community activists and volunteers to fill appointed positions at the county level, and then campaign for their approval by the county board.

In any case, the choice in the election is clear. Return Schmid to the Oakland County board.

dated High School Proficiency Tests (H.S.P.T.). Those most affected by the year-old tests discussed their concerns and observations with me in various settings. They know that with change comes dislocation, confusion, and frustration. They

These reactions are understandable, considering the changes imposed. The test questions I've seen are sensible but demanding. That is, I think we'd nearly all agree that students ideally should know what they're being asked, and that the questions are difficult. Students receive up to three stickers on their diplomas for passing four tests, indicating state endorsement in those areas. The three areas are mathematics.

science, and communication arts, with communication arts comprising both reading and mathematics tests. The endorsements could have a profound effect on a student's life because college acceptance or job chances may depend on them. The endorsements. however, do not affect the student's graduation. Diplomas indicating that the student met district graduation requirements will continue to be issued. Here are some reactions: Targeted 11th Graders: Why should we have to take a hard test that takes about two-and-a-half hours a day for five days? We already have the SAT and ACT tests for college admission. Employers won't bother with an endorsed diploma. It isn't fair.

Teachers: The new test may challenge what and how we teach. Even successful teachers may need to make radical changes to find ways to help students meet the new standards. Test-taking is a disruption in the school day, and it's another disruption when students are rescheduled to retake it.

Counselors: It's a major test to administer and to justify to students and parents.

Administrators: The H.S.P.T. is a scheduling and supervisory headache, not to mention possible curriculum realignments needed to meet the challenge of the new standards. Most of all we need more time and support to help the faculty design strategies to meet

Superintendents: We need to explain to parents how the change in standards will cause some students to not meet the standards in the short run.

Will colleges and employers consider the higher standards in their enrollment and hiring decisions so that the test means something? So far we've heard no one asking for them. How do we explain to the students why the test is important so that they will do their best, especially if they should see friends with both endorsed and non-endorsed diplomas enrolling in colleges or getting jobs with equal case?

Parents: Why is my daughter who has a high SAT score not passing the H.S.P.T.? Why does the test take so much time away from class? Why does my son have to retake the test? Why aren't the schools teaching kids how to pass the test? Why is the state taking over education? It's about time kids had to meet standards.

it's too early to know what employers and college registrars will do. They are key players in the success or failure of the H.S.P.T.

Schools must learn to live within means

I would like to reply to Alfred P. Galli who states in his Oct. 10 article that voters thought only of themselves when they rejected the school millage and bond vote.

My 1996 real estate taxes total over $4,500, most of which goes for schools. This may be a trivial amount to you but not to me. Working people and businesses need to live within their means and so should the school systems and governments. Eightyfive percent of our taxes go for salaries and 15 percent for everything else.

More taxes means more waste. more administrators at $100,000 aplece but not much more in results. If this attitude is selfish so be it. By the way, Mr. Galli, since you are so free with other people's money, how much are your real estate taxes?

Who Just Don't Get It?

Also to Kara Guminski. Northville High School student.

On the same topic, I and the majority of the people who voted against the bond issue and millage do not want our tax dollars spent on a new state-of-the-art Taj Mahal with parking for 3,000 cars and Olympic size everything. If this issue were within reason and stuck to the basic premise of education, it would have passed. Voters are not ready to accept a $300 to $400 tax increase per year at this time. It is exorbitant.

People who pay taxes must work four and one-half months per year Just to pay their tax obligations. How many months should a person work for taxes? Six, seven, eight or more? Enough is plenty. No more,

You also mention you will be paying my Social Security benefits. No way, Social Security will be broke by then, because of stealing by the politicians and by giving benefits to people who did not pay into the system.

From 1950 to and through 1999, I will have paid $68,000 into Social Security. My employer matched that for a total of $136,000 not including interest. I paid into my Social Security account more than I will receive. Also the burden would be impossible because two people working would have to pay for one on Social Security benefits. Don't blame me for the vote going down, blame all the students parents who did not vote or who

Are we becoming second-class?

To the Editor:

Lam thoroughly disgusted with the residents of Northville schools who have a *personal issue" against the Northville School Board and Dr. Leonard Rezmierski in relation to the past millage and bond proposals.

The issues that face our community regarding our schools are not dreamt up by the school board. These issues are a result of our ever changing community and job environment. We cannot be content with life as status quo if we want our children to go beyond status quo.

How can we expect our children to compete with children in neighboring communities such as Plymouth-Canton, Novi, moved behind the school.

Farmington and other countries. if we do not provide them the technology and resources to do so? How could any of us adults expect to function in an overcrowded environment and obsolete technology that would continue to get worse? Would we perform to our potential? Are we prepared to accept the consequences?

I am also fed up with the attitude that the kids in Northville schools don't need to have the best. It all comes down to dollars and cents and where our priorities are. Is education really a high priority in Northville schools? It obviously is in Novi schools, as their funding per student is $7,399 versus $6,150 in Northville schools.

The editorial written in the Oct. 10 Northville record by Sheryl Tripp Khoury, who lived in Plymouth Canton schools, really hit home to me. Last year her family briefly considered buying a $500,000 house in Pheasant Hills in Northville but Northville schools had not yet made the investment in technology that Plymouth-Canton schools had. Do we really want to live in a second-class community whose schools cannot compete with neighboring schools?

We really need to get on top of things now because in my mind it's already too late.

Karen Cameron

Move on in wake of defeated plans

To the Editor:

We need a common sense approach to improving our school system.

It is obvious there is a need for Improved schools. Northville was not listed among the 770 schools rated nationally for their Education Quotients, while our neighbors. Novi, Plymouth-Canton. and Farmington were.

And our problem is not due to lack of school buildings or over crowding. Yes, the school administration would like to blame the defeated millage for their poor performance. But first, there is no present over-crowding, and secondly, the over-crowded Plymouth-Canton system out performed Northville.

I see no way a common sense approach to improved schools would include a new $48 million high school. Either switching back to a three-year high school or enlarging the present high school makes more sense. And as for Cooke, it could be enlarged

I have seen the school admin istration's and their committee's report saying there is no room to add on to these schools, but I don't believe it. There is a lot of land east of the high school for expansion, and maybe something could be worked out with the Northville Swim Club west of the school to share parking, or even better, maybe the club's property could be bought (this could involve trading land plus cash so the swim club could build at a new location).

And as far as adding on to Cooke, there is a lot of space in front of this school for an addition. The present athletics area in front of the school could be

I expect to hear from the "newschool" crowd that these approaches wouldn't work. Let's put our heads together to make them work because I don't think Northville voters will ever pay $48 million for a new high school and its resulting higher operating cost. The increased operating cost is something the Bond Committee never addressed as far as am aware. Higher costs will come from increased busing to the high school, increased operating costs because of a much larger high school and middle school, etc.

So let's not dream about passing the defeated new high school proposal. I don't think it will ever pass. Let us take a common sense enlarged school approach. Then let us start asking questions about why our schools did not rate up with our next-doorneighbórs. Only then will we have nationally rated schools.

Sign theft is sad commentary

To the Editor:

As a senior and grandmother. I've been concerned for the future of my grandchildren, so I've been a volunteer for the Reform Party and Ross Perot.

I'm a disabled senior but I've been out putting Perot yard signs where I see Dole and Clinton signs but someone has been stealing them. II'm hoping they will put them in their yard.)

I live in a condominium for health reasons and I see Dole signs in yards so I put a Perot sign in my yard. It was in my yard for one day when someone took up my sign and put it on my porch. I find this biased and unfair especially when the Dole signs are still up. This is, in my opinion, un-American and infringing on my rights.

I am hurt and disappointed with my fellow Americans. I have always thought the people in my country were for justice and fair play. I hope God is not watching us right now because I'm truly ashamed of the morals and behavior of our people in politics. Joyce Russell

Writer's words were 'hurtful'

To the Editor:

In journalism, there are accurate and adept writers at one end of the spectrum, like Mitch Albom. At the other end are the inept, erroneous editors such as Scott Daniel.

His article failed to correctly relay the results of the John Glenn/Northville tennis match. He not only confused the team members, making his credibility dublous, he demonstrated a lack of maturity by belittling John Glenn's tennis team. He showed a total lack of compassion as an adult, reporting on the efforts of a team of girls that had the fortitude to show up and play against a more experienced team.

What perverse satisfaction was accomplished by degrading John Glenn's team members? After handling the loss to Northville on the courts, the girls were, unnecessarily, verbally abused in The Northwille Record.

It is doubtful that the author was an athlete because a true athlete has no need to ridicule their competitor. The teams honored customary court courtesies. demonstrating their knowledge of athletic etiquette. Obviously, Scott Daniel is illiterate regarding sportsmanship, and his responsibility as an adult to support, encourage, and be a positive role model for teenagers.

Mr. Daniel's remarks were unnecessary, rude and hurtful. The written word is a powerful tool that should be used judiciously, especially when dealing with youths. Perhaps it is a tool that Mr. Daniel should be supervised more closely with.

Stadium proposal offers promise

To the Editor:

With reference to your editorial titled "Robinhood In Reverse" in the Oct. 10 paper.

Your position is, at best, sadly provincial and at its worst, disappointingly misleading.

The specifics of proposition "S" are a tax of 1 percent and 2 percent on hotel rooms and rental cars, respectively, in Wayne County. Metropolitan areas countrywide impose similar taxes as a relatively painless revenue for the local residents. In fact. figures indicate that no more than 10 percent comes out of local pockets.

The financing for the balance of the "sports village" is a refreshing example of cooperation between several government units and private sources.

But, in our opinion and more pertinent to the future welfare of our entire region, this endeavor represents a tangible effort being made, by people of vision, that will help renew a spirit of community in this region that has depleted over recent years.

Make no mistake about it. The image of our immediate area and our entire state is inextricably woven into the future of the city of Detroit Perhaps many of your readers are unaware of, or too young to recall, the lofty status carned and enjoyed by Detroit during the first six decades of this waning century. The tragic combination of events and policies that allowed for the attrition of that legacy is something for the historians to ponder.

Remember, please. The $265 million in private funds committed for this project is substantially more private money than spent on successful ventures in Cleveland and Baltimore. The balance, public funds totaling $160 million, has already been earmarked and committed.

What is needed now, in 1996. is not petty, snortsignied tnink ing. What is needed is a fresh community of spirit to combine our economic resources with the good will of our citizens.

The plan for the "sports village" is but one element in an equation of effort being made to protect the cultural assets, while also strengthening the economic vitality of Detroit and environs.

The efforts of the Fords, Illitches, and Dennis Archer should be congratulated and supported instead of maligned.

Court ruling hampers presidential search

Suppose you are a board member of a $2 billion corporation, a world leader in its field but facing troubled times. Suppose you are searching for a new CEO for the company, competing with other companies in the job market for leadership. And suppose the Michigan Legislature passed a law which. Power when interpreted by the courts, ordered you under criminal penalties: Not to meet one-on-one with candidates

· Not to talk privately about any of the candidates with your search committee or the head hunter you have hired. Not to use confidential reference checks letters and phone calls to former employers without releasing them to the public.

• Even - get this! - not to talk with your fellow board members about the decision except at a public meeting of the board. And suppose further that these legal requirements deterred many excellent candidates from putting their names forward and. at the last minute, caused one of your finalists to withdraw. How would you feel?

For starters, how about outraged and ham-strung at this terrible example of absurd and damaging governmental intrusion into your business affairs?

Sounds outlandish? Not at all.

This is exactly what is going on just now at the University of Michigan, where the Board of Regents is working under court order to select a new president in a way that complies with the Michigan Open Meetings Act. It's clear that the publicity requirements of the Open Meetings Act scared off most sitting presidents from participating in the search. thereby eliminating from the selection pool almost everybody with prior experience as a university president. Then last week the Detroit and Ann Arbor newspapers sued the U-M, claiming the search process set up by the Board of Regents violated the Open Meetings Act. Washlenaw Circuit Judge Melinda Morris ruled that the university had to open up every aspect of the search process and forbade one-on-one meetings between regents and presidential candidates. One of the five finalists promptly withdrew.

telling the chair of the search committee: "I cannot go forward with such a process. because it no longer provides any opportunity for candid discussion about sensitive issues." Search consultant Malcolm McKav pointed out that selection procedures at private universities wisely offer presidential candidates the chance to get to know, one-onone, the board members for whom they will because it requires all public bodies (U-M Board of Regents included) always to conduct the public's business (the university is in large part tax-supported) entirely in public h.e., so that reporters can look over shoulders and report about scandal in the background of candidates and back-room deals between the regents).

This absolutist position amounts to saying that a central point of public policy in Michigan should be to place our public universities at an enormous competitive disadvantage versus private schools in searching for competent leadership. Talk about cutting off the nose to spite the face!

The Board of Regents - let the public record show clearly that I'm a member of that board - is going ahead to select a new president, even under the strict terms of Judge Morris' ruling, it won't be easy. But the university needs a new president right now, and the Michigan Constitution says selecting one is our job.

I can only hope we'll get good candidates. And when all the fuss is over, I hope the Michigan Legislature will amend this intrusive, poorly written and counter-productive law to cut trustees some slack in selecting the best possible candidates to run the universities that are among the crown jewels of

MADD seeks creative input

With the federal government stating that drug use among youth across the nation is up 78 percent. Mothers Against Drunk Driving (MADD), Michigan is encouraging Michigan youth to take a stand and make a choice not to use alcohol, the preferred drug of choice among youth.

MADD's annual Poster/Essay Contest is under way with a theme that re-emphasizes its commitment to zero tolerance among those under 21: 'My World. My Choice. No Alcohol.

"Now more than ever we need to reach our young people with the message that there are more youth making the choice to live drug free. and that includes alcohol. And they aren't afraid to tell the world that they're drug free, said Bethany Goodman, MADD, Michigan Executive Director.

Although it's difficult at times, our youth need to take a stand against alcohol and other drugs and learn to make healthy life decisions," Goodman said. "The poster/essay program helps bring them one step closer to that decision by letting them think through and express the benefits of a substance-free life style. In addition, the contest lets them know that the entire country, as well as many of their peers are behind their decision to say no to drug

The contest is open to all students in elementary through high school. Students can submit entries in each of the categories. The poster competition is open to students in grades 1-12 and the essay competition is open to students in grades 4-12. This year, two new categories were added to the contest for grades 7-12: black and white photos and video public service announcements (PSAs). Just back from a European tour. Michael Katon will pick up his acoustic guitar and head for Northville to perform at the Raven Gallery and Acoustic Cafe on Friday, Nov. 1.

My band is what you'd call a power trio," he said. But at the Raven I'll do acoustic music.'

The songs will be blues-based. but in Katon's style, so they may not be recognizable as coming from a blues background.

Katon has been playing acoustic music since March when he began doing gigs at cafes like Coyote in Pontiac with his bass player Gary Rasmussen, with whom he'll also be performing at the Raven.

Mustangs beat Livonia 28-6 for first win; Salem up next

By SCOTT DANIEL Sports Editor

Finally, finally, finally.

The darned streak is over. No longer can the phrase 'winless Northville" be used in 1996.

That's because the Mustangs played one whale of a football game Friday in beating Livonia Churchill 28-6

Chris Whittington rushed for 139 yards and a touchdown and Northville held the Chargers to just 218 yards of total offense to pick up its first victory of

"I thought the kids played very well," coach Darrel Schumacher said, "especially in the first half."

The Mustangs scored all four of their touchdowns in the first two quarters. Besides Whittington's touchdown. Connor Bacon, Tim Burke and Gino Peters all scored for Northville.

"It's a relief." Schumacher said. "That monkey can get awfully heavy and when it's digging its claws in. it

The loss dropped Livonia to 0-7. The Chargers have won just once in the 1990s.

Getting the win was paramount to the Mustangs.

"A lot of kids cared a lot," Schumacher said. "That Northville will try for two in a row tomorrow at home against Plymouth Salem (7:30 p.m.). The squads met in week two of the season with Salem tacking a threepoint victory.

"They've improved a lot since then," Schumacher said. "Hopefully, we have to."

The rematch comes as a result of the Western Lakes Activities Association playoffs.

By record, Northyille should be playing Farmington while Salem should be playing Canton. But because the two Plymouth teams are scheduled to meet next week, the switch was made.

Schumacher wasn't too happy about the situation.

"A lot of teams end up playing twice," the coach said. "To me, it's a screwy situation."

There was nothing screwy about Friday's game with Churchill.

The Chargers started the game with the ball and moved from their own 24-yard line down to Northville's 46.

Facing fourth down and a foot, Livonia elected to go for a first down. Bad move.

Quarterback Nate Jerome fumbled the center snap and Bryce Edmonds and Andy Fee nailed him for a loss after he recovered the ball.

The Mustangs started their first drive at their own 47. Northville went back to the basics on offense.

It was good old smash-mouth football. Northville ran straight at Livonia and found success.

Whittington carried for 19 yards on the first two plays from scrimmage. Scott Vigh followed with five more on a reverse. Seven plays later, Whittington scored on an eight-yard run. Northville led 7-0 at 4:07 of the first quarter.

We felt there was a couple of people we could run at," Schumacher said. "We wanted to keep pounding the ball. That's what we had to do. Livonia did nothing on its next possession.

Northville forced a punt on fourth down then partially blocked it to gain great field position at the Churchill On second down and four, quarterback Jeff Husak.

who got the start for the injured Rob Reel, rolled left on a bootleg then found a wide open Burke for a 31yard touchdown pass. The Mustangs led 14-0 at 3:04. Northville failed to score in the rest of the first quarter, but added two

TDs just before halftime. A bit of razzle-dazzle made it 21-0. Vigh took a handoff on the reverse then hit Bacon in the end zone

Championship teams put opponents away when they have the Saturday night, Northville High had numerous chances to put Novi away, but didn't. As a result, the scrappy Wildcats pulled a 46-44 upset on the Mustangs' home floor.

Guard Kristen Sullivan nailed a game-winning 10-foot jump shot with five seconds remaining to give Novi the win.

We've been reaching into the well to pull a lot of games out recently," Northville coach Pete Wright said, "We were not able to reach down and get anything this

The loss snapped a 10-game winning streak for the Mustangs. Northville, now 12-3, brought a No. 5 Class A ranking into the game.

We didn't put them away when we had the opportunity," said Wright. "We gave them the opportunity to get back in the game and they took advantage."

Northville's best chance to put the game away came early in the third quarter.

Lauren Metaj scored at the 7:11 mark to give the Mustangs a 27-18 lead. Slowly but surely, Novi chipped away at the margin the rest of the quarter.

Power forward Katle Copp scored on a put-back at the 4:07 mark to cut Northville's lead to 31-25. Moments later. Novi's Amy Edwards scored consecutive baskets to cut the lead to two.

Lindsay Drury then tied the game with 53 seconds remaining in the quarter. Northville got the lead back seconds later as Metaj swished a three-pointer from just right of the top of the key.

The Mustangs held that slim lead until late in the fourth quarter. Novi's Jessica Kenny sank a "We've been reaching into the well to pull a lot of games out recently. We were not able to reach down and get anything this time."

Copp gave her team the lead about a minute later off of a loose ball scramble. With an equally divided crowded cheering madly. Metaj tled the game at 44 with 30 seconds remaining.

After a timeout, Novi brought the ball up the floor. Sullivan drove from the left wing to the middle of the floor. As she got to just right of the free throw line. Northville's defense sagged off of her and she hit the open jumper to win the

"I thought I'd be passing." Sullivan said. But I got really excited when I saw the opening."

Sullivan led Novi with 13 points while Kenny added nine. Metaj had 11 for Northville and Christine Herndon added 10.

NORTHVILLE 65, FRANKLIN

After a slow first quarter, the Mustangs dominated.

Ahead 8-4 going into the second quarter, Northville's offense went into overdrive. The Mustangs scored 21 points, which included seven from senior guard Lyndsay

"She's a very unselfish player," Wright said. "But she can score when she wants. When we're in trouble she's not afraid to take it to the basket.

Northville led 29-19 at halftime and then added to the lead in the third quarter. The Mustangs outscored Franklin by nine to take a commanding 45-26 advantage heading into the fourth.

Four Mustang players finished the game in double figures. Metal led the way with 16. Gina Chiasson had 14, Huot 13 and Christine Herndon 11. Laurie Albertson played in her first game of the season. She's been out with a broken foot The 5-foot-10 senior played about a quarter and grabbed one rebound. Wright said Albertson will give his team a big boost when

The Oct. 16 road game was a lot tighter than the score indicates.

Northville led by just two with a few minutes to go in the game. Farmington had a chance to tie the game, but missed and fouled Julie

She turned up big and nailed four free throws down the stretch to help Northville to the win.

We made nine of 11 free throws in the fourth quarter," said Wright. That helped a lot.

Northville led the entire game and went into the fourth quarter up 35-25. Led by Amanda Porter. who scored 17 in the game, the Falcons rallied to make it close.

But the Mustangs were able to hang on. Herndon had 13 points. Huot and Flis each had 10.

Harriers finish seventh at WLAA final

By SCOTT DANIEL. Sports Editor

Give the Mustang boys' cross country team credit - they know how to finish strong.

Northville High has struggled most of the season in the Western Lakes Activities Association. The Mustangs, in fact, won just two of six league dual meets this fall.

But Northville put all of that negative baggage aside and took seventh place out of 12 in the

WLAA final Friday at Cass Benton. "It was much better than I was expecting." coach Ed Gabrys said. "We had some very good Walled Lake Central won the title by beating city rival Western by some 21 points. Canton finished third, Livonia Stevenson fourth, Franklin fifth and Westland John Glenn sixth.

Northville edged Farmington Hills Harrison for seventh. The Mustangs lost to Harrison in dual-meet action.

Kevin Arbuckle was the big story of the day for Northville. The sophomore ran a personal best time of 17:05 to take 10th in the league.

"He earned all-division honors, "said Gabrys. All four of Northville's top runners ran their fastest times of the season Friday.

"It was much better than I was expecting. We had some very good times."

ED GABRYS Northwile High boys' cross county coach

That made all the difference,* Gabrys said, in terms of Northville's finish.

Tim Schovers sinished 31st in the race (17:53), John Julow, a senior, was 41st (18:11). Josh Smith placed 54th (18:42), Todd Emaus 56th (18:43), Jim Morrison 63rd (18:55) and Jeremy Smith 80th (19:50).

Northville will conclude its season Saturday at the state regional. This year's race will be at Ann Arbor Pioneer High School.

The host Pioneers are one team that's likely to survive the regional. Ann Arbor Huron, Jackson, Saline and Walled Lake Western are other teams that will vie for the two remaining tickets to the finals.

Realistically, Gabrys said, Northville won't qualify as a team for the final. Arbuckle, however, may have a chance as an individual.

"I think he's got a better than even chance." the coach said.

NORTHVILLE 15. CHURCHILL 49 The Mustangs closed their dual meet season shutting out the Chargers by a mere point.

Travelers exposed to infectious agents

Within the last generation, a revolution in eisure travel has been brought about by more issordable air travel and the internationalization of regional economics, business and education. Some 10 million Americans visit developing ountries each year for business or pleasure. In addition, the number of immigrants to the U.S. from developing countries has also expanded. comprising another large group of travelers.

International travelers are exposed to many infectious agents as well as political and environmental obstacles which may inconvenience or seriously threaten the unprepared traveler. Medical advice for travel has become more complex due to the bewildering variety and rapidly changing nature of these infections and environmental threats.

Travel medicine clinics have been developed to help meet these challenges. With the assistance of computerized data systems, travelers can be provided with up to date, country-specific recommendations to help prevent illness and avold harm during travel.

A visit to a travel clinic should include a counseling session designed to address a specific itinerary, and should be made far enough in advance to allow time for necessary immunizations and preventable medications to take

If you plan to travel abroad, you should make an appointment three months before you leave. Recommendations will vary according to your itinerary and the kinds of activities you are

As for immunizations and vaccinations, some are required by certain countries, whereas others are not legally required, but health authorities advise visitors to have them.

Pre-travel counseling regarding most thirdworld countries will include education on how to avoid insect and animal bites and make you aware of the hazards of swimming in fresh water or walking barefoot.

Other topics that travel clinics may address include jet lag, high-altitude sickness, what to pack in a first aid kit, and handy hints on how to carry medications to ensure access and avoid loss. They may also provide phone numbers of embassies, consulates, hospitals and medical

Feel feverish and achy? Think you've got the flu? Maybe you do, but maybe you don't.`

While at least four very different diseases are commonly called "the flu." from a medical perspective there is only one true "flu." and that is the illness caused by the influenza virus and called.

simply, influenza. People with influenza feel terrible. They have a high fever, sore throat, headache, dry Gilsdorf cough and wrenching muscle aches. It occurs in the winter, is contagious, and can ead to serious complications in elderly individ-ease or other chronic illnesses. Because influenza is caused by a virus, the antibiotics usually sued to treat bacterial infections aren't effective. Antiviral drugs are available, however, to treat one type of influenza, type A, in individuals at risk of serious infecuals or in patients with heart disease, lung dis-

tion. In most healthy people, however, influenza runs its course in seven to 10 days with no treatment.

influenza can be prevented by immunization with the influenza vaccine, often called the "flu shot," which is given in the fall to health-care workers, the elderly and to other individuals at risk of serious influenza infection. Because the virus changes from year to year, new vaccine formulations are developed annually, so flu shots need to be given every fall, just before influenza season.

The term "flu" is also used informally to describe upper respiratory infections (colds) which may be caused by many different viruses. People with headcolds may have a cough or headache or other symptoms similar to, but less severe than those associated with influen-

In addition, the term "flu," or "stomach flu," is used to describe intestinal illness characterized by nausea, vomiting and/or diarrhea. Stomach flu as well can be caused by a variety of bacteria and viruses. There is no vaccine to prevent headcolds and gastroenteritis, but, such illnesses are usually not serious and the symptoms often go away with no treatment.

To add to the flu confusion, the "Hib" vaccine is now available against Haemophilus influenzae, type B, a germ that causes meningitis. pneumonia, and other very serious infections in young children. This germ, which is a bacterium rather than a virus, got its name because at one time it was incorrectly thought to be the cause of influenza.

The Hib vaccine has been extremely successful, and serious infections from Haemophilus influenzae B have almost disappeared in the United States. Thus, all young children should be given the "Hib" vaccine series, starting at two months of age.

Among all the confusion about the names of these infections, viruses, and bacteria, one thing is clear: health-care workers and anyone else who is at risk of serious influenza infection should get the flu shot now before the snow falls and the influenzae virus reappears for its

By James M. Woodard Copley News Service

The cost of owning a condominium is going up, primarily due to rising costs of the owners' monthly assessments.

The median total operating expenses for condo properties increased 5.7 percent during the past year, according to a recent study by the Institute of Real Estate Management (IREM). ### Fall is best time to plant

By C.Z. Guest Copley News Service

Right now, during the fall season, is one of the best times of the year for planting shrubs, trees, bulbs and fallflowering perennial plants.

Plants set out now have a chance to establish better root systems over winter, which should result in better top growth and a healthier plant next year.

Speaking of planting, it's time to set out spring-flowering tulips, daffodils, hyacinths and crocus. Check with your local nursery, landscape or garden center, however, for exact timing and planting conditions for your area. For the best selection, choose these bulbs early. If you're looking for colorful plants to add to the garden, now that the summer annuals and perennials have bloomed, this is a good time to plant flowering kale, flowering cabbage or winter-flow-ering pansies. Winter pansies are ideal to plant with your bulbs because the pansies reach their peak of beauty the same time that the bulbs flower in springtime.

Whether you're planting trees, shrubs, bulbs or fall and winter flowering plants. be sure to select the right location. Ask the professionals at your local nursery or garden center whether they grow in full sunlight, partial sunlight, shade or full-shade. Most plants will require good

One of the most important steps is to prepare the soil properly when planting any shrub, tree or flowering perennial plant. Always make the planting hole at least twice as wide and deep as the actual size of the plant. For example, if the root ball is a foot wide and a foot deep. make the planting hole two feet wide and two feet deep. Pour a bucket of water into the planting hole to check drainage. If the water sits in the hole, you will need to provide additional drainage either by making a sump hole next to the planting hole or tilling away the excess moisture.

Next, prepare the planting soil at the bottom of the hole by thoroughly mixing peat moss, compost or processed manure with your existing

Be certain to set the plant at exactly the same depth as it was planted previously. In the case of bare-root shrubs and trees, there's often a soil mark on the stem or trunk to ### increase in apartment construction may mean lower rent

financed apartment developments are looking better all the time to potential investors, according to the IREM study.

Thanks to a combination of rising rents, healthy occupancy levels and good control over operating costs. apartment properties consistently reported solid growth in net operating income and impressive bottom-line performance." the report stated.

Median gross rents per square foot increased during the past year. Highrises and low-rise buildings (25 units or more) posted the biggest increases in manded high rents, averaging $9.31 per square foot.

Another healthy development for investors: Uncollected income due to vacancies and other rent losses decreased slightly or held steady across the board, according to the IREM report. Occupancy levels were uniformly good throughout the country, with only a few markets reporting doubledigit vacancy and significant rent-loss

Generally, apartment complexes are operating more efficiently than ever before. For all types of structures, less tions was consumed by operating costs.

These factors are motivating more plans for new apartment buildings. And the increased number of available units will force rents to remain stable (to be competitive), or drop in some markets. And with more selection available to apartment renters at reasonable rents. the motivation to buy and move into a condo may be reduced.

Q. To what extent are new technology advancements impacting real estate activities?

affecting every aspect of the real estate market.

Example: People planning to build their family home can now visualize their plans in three-dimensional views on their personal computer screen.

A new software package. "3D Home Architect Edition 2" produces graphically exciting multiple-story designs with 3D views, expanded interior design features and a powerful roof designer that generates standard roof styles as well as specialty roofs, according to John Baker, vice president of Broderbund Software Inc., producer of the package.

A full description of the software is now available on the Internet. "It turns out the internet is an excellent way to keep our customers up-to-date on home design trends and remodeling activity. as well as offer them additional home and remodel samples." Baker said.

Broderbund is based in Novato. Calif. The firm's site on the World Wide Web is http://www.broderbund.com.

be salvaged by digging out the pinkish larvae (use a pocket knife) and trimming away any damaged areas. I always soak damaged rhizomes for half an hour in a 10 percent solution of household bleach and water. Then dust them with powdered sulfur and let the cut surfaces air dry in a shady area for several hours before replanting. For best results. clean up dried iris stems, leaves and other debris in the fall. This will help eliminate any over-wintering eggs. If you miss any, they will hatch by late spring. The tiny larvae crawl up the young iris leaves and feed, producing telltale notches. They then enter the leaves producing pinpoint holes. As the larvae slowly work their way down toward the rhizomes, they leave a ragged, water-soaked tunnel in their wake. When you spot such a tunnel, simply squash the borer inside by pressing the leaf between the thumb and forefinger. When the leaves of your iris are five to six inches tall, spray with an all-natural insecticide.

Royal Bayreuth sought by collectors

Q. This is a picture of a porcelain clown match holder that my grandmother gave me. It was designed for hanging. His clown outfit is orange with a white ruffled collar. On the back are the words "Deponiert - Royal Bayreuth -Bavaria - Priv. 1794." Could you tell me when it was made and its value?

A. Your clown match holder was made by Tettau Porcelain Factory. Bavaria. Germany. in the early 1900s. The company was founded in 1794 and still exists. "Deponiert" is the German word for registered. *Royal Bayreuth is the name used for the porcelain exported to the United States.

The novelty figural objects are vigorously sought by Royal Bayreuth collectors. Yours would also appeal to collectors of match holders and clowns. Its value would probably be worth about $450.

SHOW AND SELL

Realtors are often asked "What is the best way to show and sell a home?" Almost every Realtor can tell you a story about meeting with a prospective seller who has just completed a lot of work to prepare their home for the market. It can be difficult for a Realtor to tell the seller that their renovations were not the best changes to effectively market their home.

If you are considering making any improvements prior to selling your home, the best advice is to consult with your Realtor before you make any changes. An experienced Realtor can provide you with information that can help you decide what kind of improvements will set the stage for a sale. Whether it is paint and wallpaper, remodeling the bathrooms. or updating the kitchen, your Realtor can guide you toward "neutral" choices which can assist the buyer's imagination.

For professional advice on all; aspects of buying or selling real estate, talk to me at Coldwell Banker Schweitzer. Please come by my office at 41860 Six Mile Road, Northville, MI 48167, or phone me at 810-347-3050.

So the next time someone who works for you needs time off for Guard and Reserve duty, please give your full support. And let the obstacle course begin at annual training.

Low overhead translates into value for customers

Owner Joe Luzynski may not be the creator of kitchens and bathrooms, but after 18 years in the industry, he knows what works. "People don't have to drive great distances or go big to get the pricing they want," says Joe. "Our overhead is much less, allowing us to offer the customer better value for the money spent."

Having the ability to see and meet customers' needs, rather than just a desire to sell. Joe has been successful in his business. "We sit down with them, find out what their likes and dislikes are. what decor they're going with, and work with them to design their kitchen." says Joe.

He also said they offer a different kind of service. "We take a very personal approach with every customer that comes in. It's not a production line and we're not a large home center or cabinet company where we have people lined up and don't have the time to take care of them." Some customers learned the hard way that they should have made their first stop at Creative Designs Plus, instead of their last. Some of their common comments upon arrival are. Tve gone to different places, but they didn't even take the time to ask questions to find out what I wanted. They just threw in what they or the builder wanted, and threw out a price."

Creative Designs Plus specializes in kitchen and bath cabinets, counter tops and all the accessories. Pioneer, their main manufacturer of cabinets, is a Michigan based company, located in Davison. Pioneer shares the same commitment to quality that Creative Designs Plus has, constantly striving to meet the customers' expectations, with a superior product. Pioneer has greatly expanded its product line with a variety of new styles. The most recent addition is the introduction of cherry, which is really becoming popular. "At Pioneer, your kitchen is built as your kitchen. It comes down the line and all that they're making is your job at that point," said Luzynski.

Luzynski moved to Howell in 1971 and has owned and operated Creative for five years. "I liked the small town way of the merchants and we have many personal friends for customers," said Joe. When speaking of we, he includes manager and designer, Connie Owen. Joe has nothing but praise for Connie. She is a God-send to my business. Connie has the same customer oriented commitment. Every one of our customers loves her. She has great ideas as far as the designs go, and she's very conscientious in what she does."

Joe said the greatest compliments he receives are simply the smiles of satisfied customers, when they come back and say, "I love my kitchen."

"That's the kind of personal rapport we have with our customers," says Joe. "It's very satisfying as an owner to know that you are offering something different from everybody else. I want my friends who come here to know I really feel good about the Livingston County people, and

I'd like to thank God - and those people Creative Designs Plus is located at 321 W. Main Street in Brighton and can be reached by calling 810-220-0020. ## A full service salon where the focus is on you

There's a new way to pamper yourself in Novi. Visions Salon is where you'll find the ultimate menu of decadent delights - guaranteed to take the stress out of your hectic pace.

Isn't it time you tried one?

"People are doing more things for themselves, like massage therapy, to relieve stress," said Anne Bond, co-owner of Novi Visions. "They're spending more money on themselves ... on things that will make them feel good."

Visions specializes in massages and offers several different types - Swedish, therapeutic, aroma therapy and sports massages, to name a few. A massage is a great way to get rid of those knots in your shoulders, suggested Anne.

When is the last time you had a pedicure? "We have a wonderful state-of-theart pedicure chair with a whirlpool bath that's enclosed for privacy," said salon co-owner Karen Cirka. Nail technician Shannon Kraus adds therapeutic mineral bath salts to create the aroma therapy and mountains of suds while you sit back and relax in the gently vibrating chair.

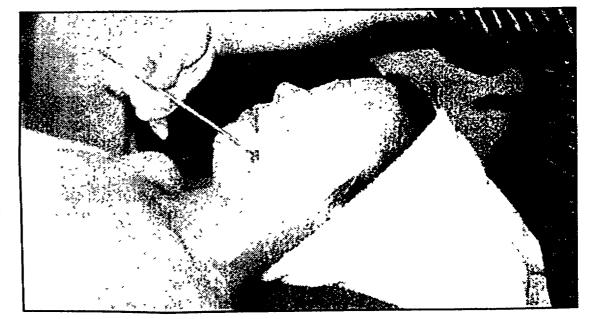

Manicurists offer a complete variety of nail design and hand-care items including gels, sculpted nails and tips. Being a full-service salon, you can find any salon service available, including electrolysis Facials are another glorious way to pamper yourself. Visions offers a variety of facials including acne-prone treatment. moisture replacement and, the newest addition, age recovery, to name a few. Enjoy the relaxation of your own private room while your complexion is being nurtured.

The owners are particularly proud of their staff of 32 people, including four nail technicians and two massage therapists. They are all experts in their fields. Visions Salon takes pride in their work and for this reason their staff is constantly increasing their education."

We cater to our clients. Satisfying our clients is the main reason we're here." said Anne. "We like to try different things, like offering a snack or a sample."

Karen said their goal is to make customers feel welcome. "People feel comfortable here," she said. "The salon is very friendly. We don't have assistants, so it's more personalized."

Why not wrap it all up in a package that gives you a whole day at the spa? Several packages on the menu include catering by Edwards of Northville. Imagine a full day, five and one-half hours of pampering. The Elite Package allows you to choose three or more different speciality services to receive 15 percent off. One of the choices you might consider is a new look with a makeup application. Cosmetics used are by Matrix.

It's not too early to think about the holidays. Anne noted that gift certificates make great gifts. "It's a great way to relieve the stress from shopping," she said. Another gift suggestion is the Cinderella Package for girls under 14 years old. The package includes a manicure, styling and a snack.

For those who like to try different beauty products. Visions also has great gift bags throughout the holiday season. "We offer prepackaged gift sets for the holidays from the leading manufacturers. like Matrix, Redken and Sebastian."

Visions also produces its own newsletter. Named "In Focus," it keeps clients up to date on the newest trends and services. The staff contributes informative articles to the newsletter which is I with useful tips and suggestions.

Karen and Anne have been in business in Novi for almost nine years. They started on Grand River and moved to Oakpointe Plaza a little more than two years ago in order to expand their facilities. They agree that they've nearly outgrown their current facility and could use more space. "We're looking to go a lot larger ... maybe double the size," said Karen.

"We're busy every hour we're open which is 72 hours a week."

Visions is open Monday from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. Tuesday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Saturday from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Visions is located at 22002 Novi Road in the Oakpointe Plaza at Nine Mile. Call 344-9944 for an appointment in pleasure.

Offering technology to meet the new demands of a changing video market

There was life before camcorders. Really.

Check out any garage sale and you'll find discarded 8 and 16mm equipment just looking for a home: the reels of film tucked away in the closet.

Don't be discouraged. American Video Transfer Inc. of Brighton can bring those old films back to life.

*Video transfer is very popular. We can transfer the old 8 and 16mm films to VHS which can be viewed from your television," said President Matthew Eckman. "We also transfer slides and photos to video for archival purposes or for video slide shows created for weddings and anniversaries.

Video transferring is just one aspect of the the company, which has been in business for nine years, the last four spent at 910 E. Grand River.

Video duplication from almost any video format can be done. In fact, Eckman says that at least half of his business comes from retail customers ordering copies of

These can be weddings, graduations, births, family vacations - any event that they want duplicated." he

The other half of the duplication business comes from industry and video producers and can encompass duplicating as many as thousands of VHS copies.

Video Production is also a part of American Video Transfer Inc. This involves creating corporate communication and sales videos.

According to Eckman, the company transfers approximately 50 miles of film each year.

We have the capacity to make 35 duplicates at one time, and in most instances, this can be accomplished in one hour," he said.

He added that the company is constantly changing its technology to meet the new demands in a market that is quickly changing.

"I'm looking forward to the development of the Digital Video Disc. This is a new consumer format that we hope to see sometime this fall. It allows for over two hours of high quality video and audio to be recorded on a CD-like disc." said Eckman.

The challenge for Eckman will be the duplication of these CDs.

The technology to duplicate these discs will evolve at a pace probably equal to the demand for the product. In this day and age things become obsolete quickly, something new is always coming along." Eckman said.
In the five weeks prior to the Christmas season, production at American Video Transfer Inc. will increase to nearly 400 percent.

This is the time family members raid the box which holds the old 8mm films and want to order a video transfer because it is the perfect hard to find Christmas gift for the person who has everything," said Eckman.

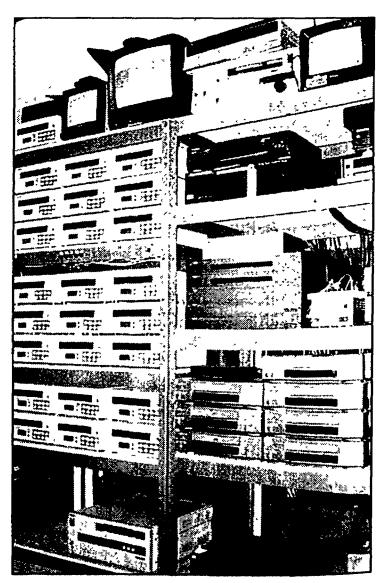

Local walk-in customers make up about half of his video transfer work; the remainder comes from wholesale accounts, such as camera shops and video stores.

"We find Livingston County a great place to do business. The people are friendly and community-minded. They want to do business in the community where they live, and frankly, we have never had an uncollectable bad check," said Eckman.

As to the future. Eckman sees his biggest challenge as finding qualified workers for his business.

"We need graduates who are capable of working in a high tech world. I need critical thinking, problem solvers who want to exercise their minds and can think at a high level." Eckman said. "We look forward to the challenges the new technology will bring."

GINA AGOSTA HAIR COLOR & DESIGN

The professional and personable staff at Gina Agosta Hair Color and Design invites you to visit their salon for the royal treatment you deserve.

Gina Agosta searched a long time for a location for her salon. She wanted to find the perfect location out of respect for the salon's large clientele. Some of her clients travel as much as three hours for the salon's services that are highly recognized in the professional industry. This made the location very important to not only Gina but her clients as well.

Locating near her home was also a major factor because Gina has lived in Northville for 13 years and has a great love for the community. Choosing to locate the salon in the sister city of Novi at 39831 Grand River in the Pheasant Run Plaza has been most rewarding and appreciated by the clients who travel north and south, east and west.

Gina Agosta Hair Color & Design boasts clients who travel from Ohio, Rochester, Grosse Isle, and beyond Milford to get the best of the best in hair coloring and styling. "Clients can be friends to a certain extent, but they come to you because you're the best," said Agosta, who has been in the salon business for over 30 years.

Gina Agosta Hair Color & Design has achieved its prominence because Agosta and her staff are constantly educating themselves on new trends and styles in the industry.

Agosta believes that people keep coming to her salon because they enjoy the personalized service. "People want to be recognized," she said. "Here, people are important and they like the way they are treated; clients like the atmosphere."

The salon serves 500 to 600 clients a week.

Hair coloring is just one of the services that sets Gina Agosta Hair Color and Design above the rest. "Nobody has a hair coloring department," said Agosta. "We have our own department that specializes in just hair color and that's all they do." The department has eight full-time hair colorists. Gina believes hair coloring is equally as important as the hair cut. Clients can also receive European facials as well as body and facial waxing.

Said Agosta: "Here, clients can get the best of the best." Please call (810) 477-2266 for appointments.

Charter school debuts in Livingston County

The Livingston Developmental Academy welcomed 265 children between the ages of 5 and 12 into their new school on September 6th. Located just south of M-59 and west of US-23 in the building formerly occupied by GENEI Inc., the Academy was the brainchild of Chuck Stockwell. LDA's Executive Director. The Livingston Developmental Academy (LDA) is a developmentally-based school, meaning the children are taught according to their stage of development rather than their grade-placement. As a charter school, it is funded by the state, so parents do not pay tuition. The students come from as far as Stockbridge, Waterford and Pinckney as well as Hartland, Brighton and Howell. If their parents are willing to drive them or make other transportation arrangements, the children can attend LDA; they do not have to live in Livingston County.

Stockwell, a former public school administrator and special education director, founded the academy first to provide appropriate education for his own daughter, a bright happy girl whose treatment for a brain tumor put her "behind" academically in a public school setting. His goal was to make a school in which children could have a safe, happy, learning environment while progressing at their own pace. As a result, LDA does not have "grades" as in 1st, 2nd, 3rd or

"grades" as in A. B. C. Children are placed in units. such as Reading & Math. MEAP Preparation and Exploratory - a unit for gifted and talented children, or those who have passed the MEAP and need more challenging projects. Every eight weeks, each child has learning objectives to work through. At the end of that time, if they can demonstrate proficiency in those skills, they move on to another unit. This process eliminates the concept of failing a grade and makes allowances for individual learning differences in children.

Other units include Kindergarten and Integrated Visual Learning (IVL), a program headed by Dr. Steven Ingersoll, an ophthalmologist. Ingersoll's research and practical experience indicates that many children who are categorized with behavior or attention problems can actually learn to correct that behavior and pay attention through therapy that teaches them to use their vision more efficiently. The IVL unit addresses the needs of these children and takes the place of special education programs. The IVL unit is designed to address the specific challenges of each child, teach them coping strategies, and then move them into other units. One parent of an IVL child recently told Stockwell, "I don't understand exactly how it works, but it definitely works. My child is happier and is doing better at LDA than he's ever done at any other school."

When children arrive at LDA, many teaches and aides greet them as they exit their cars. Inside the building there is one teacher and one full-time aide for every 20 students. (The IVL unit has 4 teachers and 22 students) They first attend homeroom, where their day is charted out for them. They receive 2-1/2 hours of academic instruction which takes the form of multi-sensory learning. Many LDA students describe the method of instruction as "playing". They have one hour for lunch and recess, and one hour of theme work after lunch. The school's theme for this year is North America, and within that theme, they are currently studying elections. In exploring the electoral process, children will be holding their own elections for student council, mascot and school colors.

From 2:00-4:00 each day the children attend two enrichment classes that they choose at the beginning of each 8-week unit. Currently LDA's enrichment classes include art, music, gym and Odyssey of the Mind. They hope to offer more as the school grows, including foreign language. Children are picked up at 4:00 or may attend BASE (Before and After School Education), a service parents pay for that accepts students from 7:00-9:00 a.m. and 4:00-7:00 p.nf.

The Livingston Developmental Academy is already expanding and renovating 4,000 square feet of new space, which will enable them to enroll a total of 320 students. Registrations for the additional 55 spaces are being taken now and children will be entered as space permits.

LDA is a publicly-funded school that allows children to learn in their own way, at their own pace. If you or someone you know is interested in more information about the Livingston Development Academy, they may call the information line at 810-220-9008 to request information. Or call the school at 810-632-2200, or stop by at 9758 Highland Road.

Future plans include the addition of a gymnasium, expansion of their playground, a cafeteria, a full-service library and extensive computer resources.

HEALTHSTYLES PHYSICAL REHABILITATION

Meeting therapy needs one patient at a time

HealthStyles Physical Rehabilitation opened up for business in 1992, and coowners Barb Herzog and Sandra Jenkins, both licensed therapists, are happy they chose South Lyon for its location.

HealthStyles is an independent provider of physical, occupational and speech therapy, and is affiliated with the Physical Therapy Provider Network (PTPN), a national network of rehabilitation providers.

Herzog and Jenkins completed a demographic study of the area and saw there weren't any physical therapy clinics. They choose the Lafayette address for its convenient location, and believe patients prefer the center's hometown atmosphere to that of a more traditional institutional setting HealthStyles is staffed with licensed physical, occupational and speech therapists who serve patients having a variety of needs.

"Our patient case load varies from children with physical impairments to sports and work related injuries to neurological conditions, arthritis and joint replacement," said Herzog.

HealthStyles' primary goal is meeting each patient's personal goals. These goals include self-care and independence, overcoming back pain, learning to walk after surgery, or safely regaining prior functional status.

A team approach is utilized at Health-Styles and the physical and occupational therapists work as a cohesive unit. They also engage in close communication with their patients' physicians to ensure the highest quality care is provided for each patient.

All of the therapists at HealthStyles are state licensed, and every patient sees a therapist each and every visit. If a patient is unable to leave home, HealthStyles will also provide home therapy.

Before HealthStyles can work with a patient, they must have a physician referral for therapy. Once that occurs, the therapists work together to develop an individual program designed to improve the patient's well-being. Along with the therapy performed at HealthStyles, the therapists also instruct individual patients in independent home exercise programs to ensure they take an active role in their rehabilitation.

The therapists at HealthStyles are committed to providing the highest quality care to be offered within the growing managed care environment.

"We are most proud of setting up an independent office and watching it grow in a changing medical environment," said Herzog.

HealthStyles is currently serving 20 to 30 patients a day. They are a certified rehab agency which allows them to serve

Allstate agent takes confusion out of insurance

Jeff Harden believes in an informed customer. As an insurance agent for Allstate, he considers educating his clients the most important part of his job. Knowing that insurance is confusing for many people, Harden would like to answer your questions.

For example, you should notify your agent of any modifications that increase the value of of your home, such as adding a deck or finishing your basement. Your agent will then update your coverage to reflect the changes." says Harden.

"A lot of people don't know the difference between the insurance terms. It's an education process. Educating people is the biggest part of my job, and I enjoy working with people," he said.

And although it takes more time and effort. Harden believes it's time well spent.

"It's worth educating a customer because he'll be a long-term customer," Harden said. Insurance agents have to build a trust and rapport with their clients, because insurance is an intangible. It's not something that you take with you when you leave, he says.

What's new in the insurance business? Harden feels improved service makes a competitive market which he is staying on top of. They offer 24-hour service on all claims.

"You don't know how good your agent is until you need him. I like my customers to call me when they have a claim, and if it's after hours, there is a 1-800 number they can use to get in touch with someone for claims."

As an agent, he'll spend the extra time to service his customer. For example, if a policyholder has an accident out of town, Harden will help locate a "pro" shop, which is a shop whose service has been evaluated and recommended by Allstate.

"Allstate guarantees that the workmanship of the repairs will be of quality generally accepted in the automobile repair business, for as long as you own the vehicle," he said.

Harden hopes to build his customer base by offering the best service he can, which he feels is the best way to generate referrals.

Nowadays people are willing to check their prices on insurance, so he knows the service has to be excellent and the rates competitive to keep a client.

The public is familiar with the Allstate name that he represents which is one of the largest insurance companies in the United States.

Harden is a graduate of Hope College in Holland, Mich., with a degree in Business Administration. This training led him to the insurance field where he's been since April 1989.

Although he doesn't have as much free time as he would like, Harden spends his leisure hours with wife, Karen, and two children, Alex, 2, and Rachel, who is eight months old. As an Exclusive Agent for Allstate located in Novi, he offers auto, property, life and business insurance. A discount is added for taking out policies on both auto and home with Allstate as stated in the ad. Insurance payments to Allstate can be made at any office, including Harden's at 48648 Grand River Ave. in Novi, near 12 Mile, east of Wixom Road and South of the I-96

You don't know how good your agent is until you need him, says Harden.

K.S.I. KITCHEN & BATH SHOWROOMS

Investing in your kitchen is money well spent

The surveys are all in, and it's pretty clear that if you're looking at the total number of hours you spend in your home every day, you'll find that next to sleeping, you spend the majority of your waking time in the kitchen.

Any realtor will tell you that if you're going to make home improvements in order to boost the chances that you'll sell your house some time before the next Ice Age. that you'd better be considering investing in an upgrade of your kitchen. Why? Because it's the center of the living family. It's where many important family decisions are discussed and finally resolved. It's a place where we can always go and feel like there's something wonderful to be discovered, hence the whole ritual of waking in the wee hours, traipsing down to the kitchen in the dark, and going right for the refrigerator.

And the kitchen cabinets are where all of our treasured accouterments necessary for this ritual are enshrined, the plates, the cups, serving ware, flatware, and everything else that we handle every day of our lives. So it is fitting and right that these cabinets should make a statement about the residents they serve, in their appearance, in their utility, in their spatial relationship with the the other major components in the room, the stove, the sink, table and seating. It's critical that part of this home improvement agenda include cabinetry that is elegant, functional and able to stand the test of constant, everyday use over the years.

And that's why KSI Kitchen & Bath Showrooms should be the first folks you call when you begin to consider remodeling your kitchen or selecting cabinetry for your home. What you decide in this regard, is a decision you'll be living with for years to come, so it's got to be right the first time. Founded in Grand Rapids as the Daniel Ball Exchange Bank, the Old Kent Bank and Trust Company name was established in 1958 following a merger with People's National Bank. In 1972, Old Kent Financial Corporation, a bank holding company, was formed. Since then, it has grown from a single bank with over $700 million in assets to a $12 billion regional financial services company.

"We have been expanding in Southeast Michigan, at a time when many banks are consolidating. But it is selective expansion, we want to make sure it makes sense to us and our customers," said Westhoff.

Part of the growth is the opening of banking centers at Farmer Jacks in Brighton and in Chesterfield Township. Additional branches are scheduled to be opened in Rochester Hills and in Northville.

"A market study has shown that people love the idea of banking where they shop.

Convenience and quality of service are so we want to make sure we meet that need," said Westhoff.

Offering a wide range of products and services including commercial, consumer and mortgage loans, Old Kent has business and personal checking accounts reasonably priced, savings and individual retirement accounts, certificates of deposit, investment and brokerage services, trust services, automated teller machines, credit and debit cards, money transfer services, safe deposit facilities, cash management, insurance and small is business products.

"We work with our customers to meet their needs. We want to develop longterm relations by providing excellent, quality service." said Westhoff.

Beginning in November. Old Kent will be providing customers with a complete home banking service.

Currently being piloted with the help of bank employees, the telephone and P.C. system will allow customers to take care of most of their banking needs via phone or personal computer.

Along with paying bills and making transfers, customers will be able to apply for loans, credit cards, just about everything you would normally have to make a trip to the bank to take care of.

"We understand the importance of convenience and time saving to our customers. There is quite a demand now for this type of banking and we intend to meet it," said Westhoff.

"Our broad range of financial services and our commitment to excellence ensure continued growth and customer satisfaction," Westhoff added.

Serving the community is important to the staff of Old Kent East. Part of that commitment is becoming actively involved. "Along with our annual "Christmas in April," we are very involved in the United Way campaigns and many other community activities as well," said Westhoff.

TUFFY MUFFLER

Tuffy owners take pride in owning top-notch shop

It has been just over a year since husband and wife, John and Willetta Dean opened their Tuffy Auto Service Center in South Lyon, and John says it's been the best year of his life.

"I can't say enough about this town and my customers," said John. "The people here are the nicest I'd want to meet."

John and Willetta had originally been looking at a business opportunity in Livonia, but settled on South Lyon because they liked what they saw.

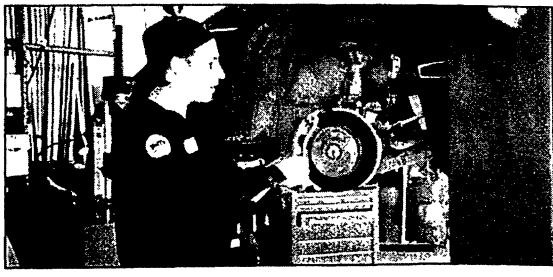

"I knew this was a nice community and I wanted to have a family business," said John.

John and Willetta's sons Jay and Mike are two of the five licensed mechanics who work at Tuffy. According to John, it is their skills and his money that help make the business run well.

"This is one of the top Tuffy Shops in the country," said John. "It is in the top 15 right now, and has never been below the top 30 in sales."

Jay Dean works on a customer's brakes.

John attributes his success to the quality products and services his shop provides and he wants to make sure people realize that Tuffy is not just a muffler and brake shop.

"People still think of Tuffy as a muffler shop. It's a long way from that," said John. "We do everything here."

In addition to mufflers and brakes, they also work on shocks, struts, all undercarriage work, electrical problems, air conditioning, tune-ups, as well as oil changes and engine repair.

John is proud of his Tuffy franchise and is committed to providing quality products and exceptional customer service.

"We want customers for life," said John.

If a repair is going to take a couple of hours, it is not unusual for John to drive customers home and pick them up after the work is completed.

Along with quality products and services, Tuffy also offers a 10 percent discount to senior citizens and AAA members. Additionally, customers can find discount coupons placed periodically in the local newspapers.

John's dream to own his own business has been fulfilled and has exceeded his expectations. In the future, he and his wife plan on retiring and selling the business to his sons, but don't expect that to occur any time soon.

"I love working here," said John. "I took my first day off in a year in August."

Santino's offers healthy alternative to burgers and fries

Dad comes home late, mom comes home late, they got stuck in a traffic jam. They flip a coin. Who wants to cook?" says Scott Longas.

If you don't feel like cooking tonight, Santino's Place for Pasta will. Longas is owner of the establishment and the inspiration behind about 80 percent of their carryout menu.

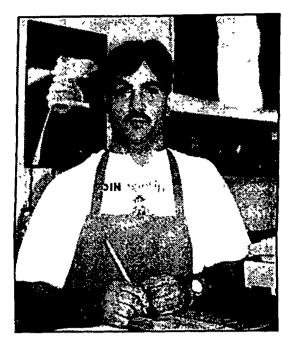

And if he can't convince you to switch from the ordinary takeout, the flavor will. Longas motto is that food should be fresh, and healthy, healthy, healthy.

"Nothing is fried. Everything is baked and grilled, and we use no MSG. All ingredients are fresh with no preservatives. All pasta is made from semolina flour, 100 percent unbleached," said Longas.

How convinced is Santino's that his pasta is healthy? Any customers that come in to their store and say, "Santino's is the healthiest place for takeout" is automatically eligible for a 10 percent discount on the spot, no coupon necessary. Longas believes pasta is the new wave of eating healthy.

"We at Santino's believe that eating carbohydrates gives you energy to burn," he said. His clientele will testify to that. Santino's place is often frequented by sports celebrities including hockey players Bob Rouse and Mike Donnelly.

In 1993, he opened the carryout pasta restaurant; naming it Santino's in memory of his father-in-law, Santino De Carolis, who died of cancer in 1992. His father passed away in 1983 from heart disease. The loss of family members to those illnesses inspired his commitment to a healthy diet.

Longas decided to offer a healthy alternative to the burger and fries in his restaurant. One of his favorite dishes, and also one of the most popular is called Santino's Explosion. It's a low-fat blend of grilled chicken and angel hair pasta with a touch of olive oil and non-fat butter, topped with freshly-grated Parmesan cheese, all for 3.6 grams of fat a serving. Many of the items on his menu list their fat content, so there are no surprises, no guilt. Another low-fat entree he recommends is the fat-free Tomato and Basil which has only 90 milligrams of sodium and no fat.

"We make food that looks good, tastes good, and it's low fat," he said. You can find unique entrees and the tried and true favorites, all with a healthy twist.

And stopping at Santino's can have you eating dinner with your family quicker than you can say "Italian." Longas hopes his carryout enables families to have more time to spend together, to enjoy a healthy meal without being chained to the kitchen. And who couldn't use a helping hand in the kitchen?

"We cut your cooking time to nothing, yet we still cook with the same care and quality that you do. Longas said.

The restaurant is still a family venture and Longas carefully oversees the day-today operations, as if it were mom's Sunday dinner.

"I'm here a lot to overlook the quality of the food and the service and to make sure it's clean; as clean as a hospital." Longas also believes in healthy hours; he closes at 9 p.m. saying it's not healthy to eat late at night when you don't have time to burn off the calories.

The owner is proud of the role his restaurant plays in the community. Each year they hold the Annual Pasta Eating Contest where they award cash prizes and also donate 100 percent of the sales that day to a favorite charity. Last year they donated $997 to the "Make A Wish Foundation." That's a lot of pasta!

Business this year is better than ever says Longas, proudly noting his success. "I have to pinch myself when I see how much we've increased over the past nine months," he said. "Some people in the industry said we wouldn't last six months. We showed them there are healthy people out there."

For now, Longas is busy with his carryout service, but he hopes someday to open a pasta bar and gym, the first establishment of its kind to tie in a healthy diet and fitness together. "I'd like to have somewhere you could have a decent pasta meal and have a gym connected."

If you're planning an event, don't forget Santino's also offers a full catering menu.

"A popular item is our Italian Baked Chicken. We also offer buffet style, with your choice of meat, pasta, salad and bread for $6 a person."

Longas' wife, Marie, and 10-year-old daughter, Jessica, are also big fans of his food. His daughter even has her very own item on the menu, "Jessica's Chicken Fingers."

Santino's Place for Pasta is located at 22200 Novi Road in the Oakpoint Plaza just south of Nine Mile Road. Stop in for some pasta, Monday through Saturdays. 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Sundays between 12 p.m. and 9 p.m.

Offering beautiful works of art to last for generations

"I encourage my customers to shop around before purchasing an Oriental rug," says Maundy Miller, owner of Heirloom Oriental Rugs in Brighton. "I teach them what to look for in a high-quality rug and what to beware of. A good, highquality rug should last for generations. It should be an heirloom."

Established in 1993, Heirloom Oriental Rugs continues to offer personalized service and only high quality rugs at affordable prices. Most of the designs available are Persian, although they may be hand knotted in India. China or Afghanistan, and are available in a wide range of colors. The designs are intricate and if you look closely, there is a delicate outline that distinguishes the care and time put into the weaving. Sometimes this outline is done in pure silk to add to the beauty and luster of the rug. This is only one way to assure you are buying a quality piece.

Maundy will also show you the hand-tied knots on the fringes, the tightness of the weaving on the back, and the differences in the wools. A cheaper rug will be thicker with a less defined design and will shed. The best wool is from sheep that are hand sheared twice a year, as opposed to wool that is chemically removed from the hide. To make a good rug, you have to start with good wool.

She shows you how to rub your hand across the top of the rug. If you come back with a handful of fuzz, chances are it is chemically damaged resulting in a lower quality that won't last. "You could literally vacuum your rug away in about 10 years," explains Maundy.

With just these simple rule-of-thumb facts. Maundy sends customers out to other stores. They always come back," she says, "and they are surprised at what they have seen." In fact, most stores cater more to price than quality and may only offer a small percentage of high-quality products. Most rugs you find range in the low to mid-quality rating and the sales people genuinely don't know the difference. This is why she takes the time to teach her customers how to judge value before they even purchase a rug. She wants people to appreciate the talent and patience of the weavers, to see these rugs as the works of art that they are.

If you are looking for something a little bolder, Heirloom Oriental Rugs also carries beautiful Tribal rugs. These are hand woven by nomadic tribes, and a small rug could take as long as a year to weave. The designs are more geometric and the colors tend to be bolder, but the quality is just as high.

Also available are an assortment of handbags, traveling bags and saddle bags. The tribes use these bags to carry their belongings from one place to another, much as we use suitcases, so you can be assured of the durability of these items. While you are in there shopping, take a moment to look at the Uzbek wedding robe Maundy has on display. Each robe is hand embroidered over years by the bride to be and is a requirement before marriage. The tribes are deeply traditional even today, and the robes are a tribute to the care and quality that goes

The fact that these rugs are so beautiful should not detract from their main function. Rugs are to be used. You should not be afraid to walk on them, sit on them, or anything else you would do on a regular carpet. This is another sign of quality. With proper care you should be able to enjoy not only the art and the craftsmanship, but the comfort of an oriental rug for generations.

Although Heirlooms has a fabulous assortment of one-of-a-kind rugs in stock, special orders are available to better suit your personal and decorative needs. Maundy can help you find the rug you are looking for with swatches of wallpaper or paint samples. She feels the purchase of an oriental rug is an investment that not only will enhance the beauty and comfort of your home, but your children's and grandchildren's homes as well.

The store is open seven days a week in the Mill Pond Antique Galleries at 217 Main St., across from the Mill Pond in Brighton, Monday through Friday 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., Saturday 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday 12 to 5 p.m. To get the most from your shopping experience. Maundy urges calling for an appointment at (810) 227-4751. Plan to spend some time with her learning the intricacies of Oriental Rugs.

CHAMPION CHEVROLET

Quality cars and friendly service make Champion a winner with customers

For the last three years, the corner of 5000 E. Grand River in Howell has displayed a myriad of attractive cars, trucks and vans. Add to that the proficient, expansive showroom with a sales staff to match, and the Chevrolet GEO dealership there certainly lives up to its name — Champion.

Owner Len Nadolski makes certain customers are treated with "down to earth, family-like respect." It's not difficult to see why Champion Chevrolet GEO is rated in the top five percent in customer satisfaction. "Our management staff is very active and we train our people to be customer friendly." says Len. Whether it's a new or used car purchase or a lease, Len assures the staff at Champion will treat you with respect.

Specializing in used cars, there are over 200 cars and trucks to choose from, at two locations: Champion Used Car Connection at 904 E. Grand River, Howell and 331 W. Grand River, Brighton. All Champion locations offer the same customer satisfaction. They have a financing plan that can be arranged for anyone. "Even if you have a poor credit history, we can create a plan for you," said Len. All used cars are inspected and warranties are available.

van — the Venture. The new Malibu will also debut this year and will go bumper to bumper with the competition, the Honda Accord and Toyota Camry.

At Champion, every department is very customer focused, Len said. "It's a 2,000 relationship, which means we meet the standards of the Chevrolet model dealership to the year 2,000 in regards to customer satisfaction and service. Many stores are the old style. We made the commitment to the franchise here. We took on the 2,000 training and image program which deals with how you treat a customer. All of our sales people and managers go through the training — it eliminates a lot of haggling. We have very little of that to make it more customer friendly. Each time your vehicle is brought in for service, there are several areas where we must meet up to the standards. Those are the little pieces that make the difference in the marketing relationship. A lot of people don't do it. because they don't see the benefit in it, where as, I do and I think it's very important," explained Len.

For example, when visiting the service department, customers can wait in comfort. A television and VCR, magazines and a warm cup of coffee all help pass the time. A separate children's play area makes a trip to the dealership less stressful for parents and more fun for the little ones.

The state of the art body shop is certified by most insurance companies for direct representation. When a vehicle is in a collision. Champion works directly with the insurance company while the car is being restored.

Champion offers a short-term, low pay lease program, which is very appealing to many buyers today. "You can drive twice the car for half the cost of buying it," said Len.

At Champion Chevrolet GEO, a customer will never feel pressured into buying a vehicle. Len assures. Knowing that any vehicle purchase is a big decision, the salespeople treat customers with respect and consideration and will never encourage someone to make a hasty decision.

Champion is also committed to giving back to the community that has so generously accepted the dealership. The company awards a $10,000 student scholarship every year based on a written and verbal test. The dealership also donates a certain percentage of auto sales to the Big Brothers/Big Sisters organization during the annual tent sale.

Orin Jewelers: A family tradition continues

In 1983 Orin Jewelers opened their second location on the corner of Main and Center streets in downtown Northville. The building had actually been a jewelry store for more than 40 years. When Orin's originally purchased the building, it badly needed renovation.

President and Owner

especially being on the main corner of the city. It took approximately six months to remove the old baked enamel panels from the face of the building and take it down to the original brick. Through the years so much work done on the building that original restoration was almost impossible.

After great discussion with local architects and the Historical Society it was decided to reface the old brick with a similar character as to the original. The results are what you see today. Each window has been individually sandblasted to keep with the Victorian era.

In 1994. Orin Jewelers business had grown to the point that more space was needed. Fortunately, one of the tenants to the east wanted to move, which allowed for expanding the original store. The key was to make the building look like it was all done at the same time. Bringing in some of the craftsman that did the original work, the transformation was completed after almost a year's worth of work.

The results have been fantastic. Every week people come in just to admire the detailed work that was done to create the look we have today.

Each member of the Northville sales staff has become a part of the Orin Jewelers family. David Beyer, the store manager, and Carole Urban, the assistant store manager, have worked in the Northville store since it opened in May 1983. Together with sales consultants Sherry Matkin, Joanne Sorby, Gina Mazzoni and Marlaine Micunek, the Northville staff has a total of 50 years of service with Orin Jewelers.

"We are a real "customer oriented" store. Quality, personal service and customer satisfaction are what we are all about," says Orin Mazzoni, Jr., president and owner of Orin Jewelers. This is why it is so important to have a dedicated staff. I am sure everyone can tell a story of shopping at a store, dealing with a salesperson they liked and then when the salesperson leaves, they are unfamiliar with the other salespeople. This is why my family has always felt that our employees really are a part of our extended family and it shows in our employee longevity. Since our employees are happy here and enjoy their work, it translates in better service and dedication to our customers. Everyone wins!"

Orin Jewelers is also proud of their emphasis on employee education. The company boasts of a Certified Gemologist Appraiser, a Graduate Gemologist, and three Registered Jewelers. Three additional employees are currently working towards their Registered Jeweler titles. Bi-monthly educational seminars are also part of the regular sales staff regimen. This emphasis on employee education - translates to a highly educated, trained, professional staff with the proper knowledge to express subtle differences in quality and composition of jewelry to their customers, allowing the customer to make an educated, well-informed lewelry

Special events promoting colored gemstones, gold jewelry, estate jewelry, gemstone remounting and diamond jewelry are all part of Orin Jewelers calendar, making it easier for customers to tailor their jewelry collections to their liking

The Orin Jewelers family of highly trained, educated sales consultants anxiously await your visit so they may have the opportunity to help you make a knowledgeable decision in selecting from the beautiful, unique and affordable jewelry they have to offer.

Orin Jewelers is open 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Thursday and Friday, and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday.

This black and white cat needs an adult home.

In 1970, when the Humane Society of Livingston County was founded. there was no place to call home. In 1996, the Humane Society is still without a shelter.

For 26 years the Humane Society of Livingston County has been providing care for the county's homeless animals. It hasn't been easy either without a shelter. It's only through the loving care of 10 to 15 foster homes that the Humane Society of Livingston County has been possible.

Each Saturday of the summer, volunteers bring the homeless animals to Pet Supplies Plus in Brighton in hopes that someone will adopt them. With the Saturday Adoption Center program, the Humane Society was able to place approximately 500 animals into homes in 1995.

There are many aspects that form the collective Humane Society of Livingston County. For starters, the Humane Society fields 1,200 calls each year from families seeking assistance in placing their pet in a new home. The organization will also save 100 to 150 pets (from being sold to research or from euthanasia) from the county pound also known as the Livingston County Animal Shelter. Every adult animal is spayed or neutered before they are ever adopted. In the case of pupples and kittens. the Humane Society of Livingston County checks in later with the adopting families to see the procedure has been done.

The Humane Society of Livingston County also handles the county's lost and found. The nonprofit group receives over 1.400 calls a year regarding found animals and some 2,600 calls a year regarding a lost pet. All the calls come through an answering service where volunteers will retrieve and return them. Several times a week, volunteers will search the county pound. read the ads, and cross reference the lost and found reports in order to reunite pets with their

The Livingston County Humane Society is the only group in the county to have a lost and found, so consequently, if they didn't do it nobody would.

In order to meet the special needs of the community, the Humane Society maintains a want list to help place animals into homes where families are looking for something in particular. For example, if a family can only have a short haired cat for allergy reasons, the Humane Society will try to find them one.

The Humane Society of Livingston County will also place dogs in programs such as PAWS For a Cause, leader dogs for the blind, and the U.S. Customs Canine Unit.

When the Humane Society of Livingston County began in 1970, the population of the county was 59,000. In 1995, the population stood at 133,600. The Humane Society desperately needs a shelter in order to meet the needs of the community and its homeless animals. The organization needs an estimated $900,000 to purchase the building and equip it to house the animals. That total also includes the first two years of operating costs. A concerted fund raising effort has been undertaken to meet this goal of opening a shelter in 1998.

In addition to the shelter, the Livingston County Humane Society is in desparate need of volunteers. The organization needs help with fundraising, the building campaign, and most of all, foster homes.

For more than two and a half decades, the Humane Society has been operating without a shelter. A continually growing community and an overabundance of homeless animals means the time is now to finance that shelter.

To donate or for more information, please call the Humane Society of Livingston County at (810) 229-7640.

THE HUMANE SOCIETY of LIVINGSTON COUNTY

(Founded in 1972)

The adoptable pets featured here were rescued from the county shelter where they faced the prospect of being sold for unspecified research or euthanized, or they were released to us by their prior owner. All available pets have current vaccinations, adult animals have been spayed or neutered, dogs have been heartworm tested and cats have been feline leukemia tested.

As we have no building, each is fostered in one of 15 "volunteer homes" until a loving permanent home can be found and we do not euthanize any pet unless it has an irreversible health or temperament problem.

Independent of any other society, we have no paid staff and rely solely on this community's financial support to place 500 pets each year.

If you would like to adopt, volunteer, foster a pet or donate, please call our answering service at 810-229-7640, write PO Box 351, Brighton MI, 48116 or stop and see us on Saturdays.

INTERNET SERVICES OF MICHIGAN

Full-service internet and computer support

Surfing the net is easier than ever with the help of Internet Services of Michigan Inc., a full-service internet and computer support service designed for Livingston County users. Located at 109 W. Grand River in downtown Howell, ISMI offers a variety of services for every level of computer user from beginner to advanced and can help you get started with custom programming for home or business use.

To get you going. ISMI offers classes on how to use the internet and how to get the most from your on-line time. Introductory classes are offered twice a week starting at $45.00 per student. $35.00 for members. Once you've mastered that, you can move on to an Intermediate class for the same price.

In the classes, each student works on his own computer. There is no need to share, so you get more time to hone your skills. Each computer is hooked right into the internet, and you are on-line from the start. No simulations, no practice web sites. Not only will you learn how to navigate through the web, you will learn shortcuts to get where you want to go faster.

Other classes are available to help you maximize Windows '95 and Microsoft Excel. There is even a class to teach you how to design your own Web Site. If you're not sure where to start, you can ask owners Tara and Charly Caldwell. They are always available to answer your questions, help you get started on the World WideWeb or host your very own Web Page.

"World WideWeb access puts you in touch with the world," says Tara. "There is something for everyone." You can read on-line newspapers and magazine, visit libraries around the world, do research for school papers, order products or just see what services local businesses have

The difference between this service and other on-line services is local access as well as local support services. With ISMi, you pay no toll charges, no long distance rates and no per hour charges for premier member. For the low cost of $19.95 per month, plus a one-time set-up fee of $10.00, you get unlimited access, web browsing software, a quick reference guide, a subscription to Web Tips, member discounts on other services, plus the security of knowing the Caldwells are a phone call away if you run into problems or just get lost. If you sign up for three months. Tara and Charly will waive the setup fee.

Other packages include the Discount Plan. For $9.95 per month, plus the one-time setup fee, you get 10 hours with each additional hour only $2.00 and the same great support services. All member plans include local access with no long distance fees.

"We serve as a gateway to access the internet worldwide," says Tara. What does that mean? "We go directly to the web instead of a service that connects you to the www." This means savings in time and charges. You can also connect to other services such a AOL and CompuServe through ISMI without long distance charges.

"Advertising on the net is becoming not only more cost efficient, the number of potential customers reached per advertising dollar is growing every day. We offer a number of NewsGroups, a Business Web Page and free on-line classifieds."

Along with www access, you can start enjoying electronic mail. With ISMI you can send and receive e-mail anywhere with your own Internet E-mail address. This allows you to keep in touch with anyone—even if they are on another online service without expensive long distance charges. And let's face it, everyone loves to get mail.

For small business owners, ISMI offers custom programming that meets your business needs for both IBM and Macintosh. They can get you started, upgrade or show you how to get the most from your computer with private tutoring.

If you're new to the bits and bytes game, the Caldwells also sell computers. "We started carrying hardware after we got so many requests," says Tara. They can put together a system that meets your needs now as well as in the future. When you purchase your computer from ISMI, you get the advantage of dealing with knowledgeable people that are right there for you, and guaranteed service. They also do upgrades if you already have a computer and sell a host of software programs and instructional books to keep you in the game. And there is always a discount for ISMI members.

Tara and Charly got started with Livingston County On-line, and after an overwhelming acceptance, branched off on their own to start Internet Services of Michigan, Inc. They have been serving the county for over a year and membership grows daily. Everyone seems to be going on-line, but their success can be attributed to low member fees and personal service and support.

"What we offer is complete internet and computer solutions," says Tara. From classes to design and web hosting, for home or office, ISMI is Livingston County's full service internet provider. To order or for more information call (517) 548-1400. If you're already on the net, visit their web site at http://www.ismi.net.

Most of his practice has been spent in medical settings so he's conscious of taking the extra steps to make sure that any potential health problems are detected.

"The quality of our personalized eyecare is our focus along with offering an upscale line of eyewear and frames," he said.

And if you want to look absolutely "with it," Town & Country Eyecare keeps up with the latest trends in eyewear. "We offer at least 20 designer lines including Fendi, Calvin Klein and Laura Ashley, as well as European styles and Eyeota frames, which are hand-crafted with a nature theme," said Dr. Kirk. The inventory of 400 to 500 unique frames is individually selected by the staff for outstanding quality and complementary shapes.

For people who don't need corrective lenses, Dr. Kirk offers many non-prescription sunglasses.

Services available at Town & Country Eyecare include thorough eye exams, treatment for infections and minor eye injuries, and expert contact lens fitting. "My patients love the comfort and convenience of our disposable contacts — even bifocal wearers and patients with astigmatism who may have failed in the past," said Dr. Kirk.

Dr. Kirk and his staff emphasize preventative eye care and focus on keeping patients happy and healthy. Dr. Kevin Crain is one of the clinic's recent satisfied customers. "He (Dr. Kirk) has done a wonderful job for me, everything was excellent." said Crain. "I would highly recommend him."

The staff of four allows customers to be remembered and cared for. "My staff was picked for experience and congeniality." said Dr. Kirk. "Growth exceeding our expectations has also required hiring additional staff to maintain our commitment to personal high quality service."

Recent additions to the staff include certified opticians Kim Gapen and Kathy Kvasnicka and Medical Assistant Christine Conrad.

Dr. Kirk and his staff like to keep abreast of the most current developments in the field of optometry. He recently completed a three-day postgraduate course on excimer laser refractive surgery and is now offering this option to patients who qualify. There are many aspects of a person's eye health, prescription needs and expectations that are carefully evaluated before laser surgery is advised. Presently, the best candidates are people who are nearsighted with or without astigmatism. All preand post-operative visits are done at the Novi location for the patient's convenience.

Therese Grossi of Novi is a patient who opted for the laser surgery. "What impressed me most about Dr. Kirk and his staff is that they really care about the patient.

which is rare nowadays," she said. "He'll take the time you need and give you the information you need. He truly did not try to sell me on the surgery, he simply presented the pros and cons so that I could make my own decision." said Grossi.

Parents of young children should consider an eye exam as part of their back-to-school preparations. "Children should be examined annually; school screenings may not be adequate." said Dr. Kirk. "By first grade, all children should have had a baseline exam."

Adults also need to make eye exams a regular part of their health care programs. "Even healthy adults who don't wear glasses should be examined every two years to rule out things like glaucoma," said Dr. Kirk.

Town & Country Eyecare has been in business in Novi since 1993. "Since I live in Novi and the community is supporting my practice and my family, I feel a strong obligation to give back to the community," said Dr. Kirk. who has demonstrated that commitment by personally visiting 33 second grade classes and nearly 850 students annually through the Partnerships in Education program. Town & Country also sponsors local T-ball and soccer teams, as well as the Novi ice cream social.

"We enjoy supporting our local high school booster clubs, parks-and-rec teams and other community-based programs," said Dr. Kirk.

This is the first year the clinic sponsored the Safety Town program for incoming Northville kindergartners, and Town & Country joined the Friends of the Northville Library as a patron sponsor.

Dr. Kirk also writes a guest column that appears in The Northville Record and The Novi News. Town & Country Eyecare is located on Novi Road at Nine Mile in the Oakpointe Plaza. Call 347-7800 for an appointment. Office hours are Monday and Thursday from 9 a.m. to 7:30 p.m.; Tuesday from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.; Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. The clinic is closed Wednesdays.

Professional staff wants to get and keep you healthy for a lifetime

Brighton Physical Therapy's team includes Clarice Brown, PT. Sandra Norlin. PT, and Sheila Seitzman. SP. MS. CCC. Speech Pathologist. The team is currently in search of an occupational therapist.

Clarice Brown, owner and practitioner also does community education for organizations requesting help with body mechanics, posture, exercise and self assessment. Brown has been in practice for 29 years, 16 years in Brighton.

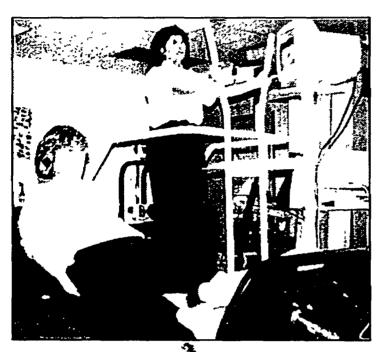

All therapists attend workshops, and courses yearly to stay abreast of clinical advancements. Physical Therapy is very effective when patients are persistent with their exercises and in their understanding of the mechanics that cause pain.

Brown states that successful therapy is the result of teaching the patient how to correct and maintain control of muscles and joints. First the patient must be made aware of those movement patterns. sitting, work and sports habits that may lead to or be the result of the muscle/joint problem. Then the therapists can direct specific treatment to correct the problem using a multitude of PT techniques. Treatment is directed at specific traumas like sprains/strains, muscle contusion, joint surgery rehab and nerve/muscle/joint disease. Also less easily diagnosed but equally debilitating are conditions such as spinal pain, TMJ

An educated, motivated patient is important in today's health care environment due to return to work demands. and strict health insurance guidelines. This puts more responsibility on the patient to follow through with techniques and programs learned in therapy to successfully maintain gains made in treatment sessions.

The Physical Therapist uses exercise. range of motion, stretching, strengthening, relaxation, massage, conditioning, mobilizations, balance, coordination, posture and closed chain exercises in the clinic and in home exercise programs. ITs also use physical agents such as heat, cold, electrical stimulation and traction.

The goal of therapy is to teach the patient to function at the safest, most comfortable and mechanically correct position and to understand that certain exercises will help to correct deficiencies. Like brushing your teeth to maximize long lasting gums and teeth, exercises specific to your body are necessary to minimize chronic pain and keep the body movement fluid.

Many patients are fearful that physical therapy is always painful. The saying "no pain no gain" does not apply to the non athlete or the person recovering from a trauma. Healing tissue definitely dislikes increased pain and must be rehabilitated slowly, or as tolerated.

Our Philosophy is "If I treat you, I can help you today. If I teach you, I can help you for a lifetime."

Located at 7743 Grand River in Brighton, Brighton Physical Therapy accepts most insurance policies and is Medicare and Blue Cross Certified. The staff can evaluate patients without a doctor's referral, but a referral is required for treatment. For more information, call Brighton Physical Therapy at 810-227-3588 or 227-3589.

Scott Spitler stands with a sales associate outside Brighton Ford's new used car department, where the motto is "Used cars are not an afterthought."

Offering variety, quality and affordability

The goal at Brighton Ford has been making you a "Customer for Life" since 1956, and that mission stays true with their new Used Car Department. Opened earlier this year, manager Scott Spitler says they are growing about at fast as Brighton is. He predicts the used car department will sell over 3,000 cars a year. "We're going to be here for a long. long time."

The key to their success is quality: quality cars, quality service. "People are looking for current body styles at affordable prices." says Spitler. "Our lot is full with more coming in every day for thousands less than you would pay for a new vehicle."

Most of the cars are trade-ins and are still under factory warranty. They're checked over by Jeff Grantz and his service team before they ever hit the lot. "We want to make sure that our customers are purchasing a clean, current, quality auto. We are here to make car buying a pleasant, rewarding experience."

Open from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., Scott makes it easy for customers to take their time and not be locked into time constraints. They don't want you to feel pressured. It's not unusual for Spitler or one of his sales associates to stay as late as needed to help a customer. The extended hours also enable people to shop closer to home. "We're your neighbors. We watch out for you. We're proud to be a part of this community." Not only is it more relaxing to shop where you live, the economical advantages are far reaching.

Customers are the focus of everything they do. "Our work must be done with our customers in mind, providing better products and services than our competition." And that extends to financing your used car or truck. Spitler and his team will help you arrange financing for your purchase no matter what your current financial status. "Financing is not an obstacle," insists Scott. "Our goal is to put you in the car you want at the price you want."

Aside from the new Used Car Department located right next door to Brighton Ford/Mercury at 8240 W. Grand River. there is the Discount Outlet at 9797 E. Grand River in Brighton. They've given it a face-lift and improved the quality of products available there, also. But you can expect the same great service and commitment to quality as well as on-the-spot financing.

If you're in the market for a new car or truck, stop by and take a look at the new 97s next door. "Ford has some exciting new trucks for 1997," says General Sales Manager Mike DeLong. "We are introducing the Expedition this year to replace the Bronco. It's a beautiful 4-door vehicle designed to compete with the Suburban." With its sleek body style and multi-function ruggedness, DeLong predicts the Expedition will be a big seller this season.

The redesigned body styles of the Ford F-series pickups make this year's line of small trucks more popular than ever. And with Ford's Red Carpet Leasing Program. it's easier than ever to drive one home. "Leasing has become very popular." says DeLong. "About 40 percent of our business is leasing now."

Their commitment to sales is matched only by their commitment to service. Gantz and his team of technicians stay current with the latest equipment and techniques designed to service your vehicle right the first time. They take the time to explain all the work that was done as well as any charges. With extended service hours of 7:30 a.m. to 9:00 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 7:30 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. on Friday and an on-location Motor Craft Parts Store, you can be sure their goal is to-keep you on the road. And if you need a little more, visit their state-of-the-art collision and body shop.

All in all. Brighton Ford Mercury can attribute its success to service. "The customer is first. Our services are the end results of our efforts—they must be the best. How we perform our job is how we are measured both personally and as a company," states owner Jerry Spitler. "We have been successful by focusing on you, the customer."

Stop by their new and used showrooms or call (810) 227-117.1 or toll free (800) 603 DEAL. For more information on financing, call the Credit Hotline at (810) 227-6149.

Schonsheck, Inc. builds on success

If you're driving around the metropolitan Detroit area, you're bound to see a familiar blue and white sign with the name Schonsheck, Inc. on it. What you won't be able to see is the interesting background of the company that comes with the sign.

Started in 1985 by Ian Schonsheck and his wife Lori, Schonsheck, Inc. has evolved into one of the most successful design/build firms in the metropolitan area. Once a home-based business they now reside in a new 27,000 square foot facility with a staff of 30 people including a complete architectural department with three AutoCAD stations.

Schonsheck's main philosophy that has attributed to their success is to continually improve the quality and efficiency of the way they build and in turn better serve their customers. They also pride themselves on offering attractive buildings at competitive prices. We have the capability to come up with cost efficient and unique designs," said owner and president Ian Schonsheck, "Anybody can design a building; we can do it in a rea-

A variety of architectural designs and materials are made available to all Schonsheck clients. "We try to have enough different designs to suit any client's taste. Some may use sleek, more modern materials; others may use brick or split face block. It depends on the customer's taste and budget."

Currently, Schonsheck, Inc., is heavily involved in the Kensington Pines Industrial Park in Brighton where they have five projects under construction and six they have already completed. According to Ian Schonsheck, the northwest corridor of metropolitan Detroit, including Walled Lake, Wixom and Brighton is booming because of the access to the I-96 freeway and the availability of land with all the utilities.

Many of Schonsheck's recently completed projects are located in the Walled Lake area. They include GKN Drivetech at 80,000 S.F., Co-Op Service Credit Union at 3,100 S.F. (under construction). Projects underway in Brighton include Ebinger Manufacturing at 36,000 S.F., Sterling Stamping at 46,000 S.F., and a major office build-out for Dunnage Engineering.

Ian Schonsheck, Owner & President

Schonsheck, Inc. also maintains an inventory of vacant industrial land that can be sold for building projects. All of the land has been pre-evaluated for site problems that might affect the cost. The current land inventory includes locations in Brighton, Howell, Fowlerville, Wixom, and Mount Clemens.

The newest venture for Schonsheck is a 92-acre industrial park on Pontiac Trail in Wixom called Century Industrial Park. It's one of their most ambitious developments to date and will take several years to complete. Lot sizes in the park range from 1.67 to 7 acres, and are suitable for light industrial and high-tech companies. They've started the engineering and are in the platting process for the development. We hope to break ground in winter and have lots available in the spring," said Mr. Schonsheck.

Building Quality

At schonsheck, we make building quality for our customers our #1 goal.

Our staff of designers, engineers, architects, and builders take pride in their work and the results we achieve for the Owner.

JERRY'S BARBER SHOP, USED CARS & HOLE IN ONE COFFEE EXPRESS SHOP

Unique combination spells success for owner

If you happen to call Jerry's Family Barber Shop from a telephone, don't be surprised when owner Jerry Sheridan answers the phone, "barber shop and used cars." Since moving his barber shop to New Hudson 2-1/2 years ago, he has expanded his business to include a used car lot as well as The Hole In One Coffee Express Shop

"If I am not buying a car or selling a car, I'm cutting hair," said Jerry.

While it seems to be a strange combination of businesses, Jerry's outgoing, friendly personality makes it work well. If you get a haircut, you get a free cup of coffee. If you buy a used car, you get a fee haircut. Children who get their hair cut receive a popsicle, donut and some bubble gum.

Jerry has been cutting hair for over 35 years and he still enjoys his work.

"I like people," said Jerry.

His outgoing personality and his promise of giving the best haircuts in town account for a steady following of repeat customers. When he sold his Novi shop and moved to New Hudson. 40 to 50 customers followed Jerry to his new location.

Jerry's employee, licensed barber Kim Bradbury has been cutting hair for 20 years. She says it's the family atmosphere that keeps customers coming back. "Customers say Jerry is excellent at doing kids' haircuts."

Another reason customers remain loyal is because of his fair prices. Adult haircuts are $10. Children's haircuts (11 years-old and younger) are $8, and senior citizen (62 years of age and older) haircuts are $7. Jerry also periodically places discount coupons in the local papers. The used car lot resides next door to Jerry's Family Barber Shop. Jerry has had as many as 10 used cars on the lot at one time, but currently has only a few.

"I buy 90% of my used cars from my customers," said Jerry. "The rest I buy from auction wholesalers."

What makes us the best? You're looking at us, says owner Jerry Sheridan and stylist Kim Bradbury, cutting hair for customers Andrew Ward, in chair at left, and Don Shott.

Jerry is committed to selling dependable used cars. He is equally proud of his Hole in One Coffee Express and swears the quality of the donuts and coffee is the best in town. Located in the same building but with a separate entrance from the barber shop, the Hole in One sells fresh-ground coffee, donuts, bagels, rolls and sandwiches. The shop is strictly carry-out and is open Monday through Saturday from 5:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. The telephone number is (810)486-1845.

The barber shop and used car lot are closed Sunday and Monday. No appointments are necessary for haircuts. The telephone number is (810)437-7355.

Fallert Mechanical: A company prepared for all seasons

Fall is here, and winter's frigid temperatures loom just around the corner. It's not the time of year when you want to be without heat. If you should find yourself in this situation, needing a new furnace or furnace repairs, Paul and Caryn Fallert, owners of Fallert Mechanical, would like to help you. Fallert Mechanical is a family-owned and operated business located in South Lyon. Paul Fallert is a licensed mechanical and electrical contractor. He manages a group of four employees who install high-efficiency furnaces and air conditioners and repair heating and cooling systems for residential and commercial customers.

Owner Paul Fallert

*Fallert Mechanical really works hard at doing a quality job and making sure it's done right the first time," said Paul. "We believe in doing a good job."

The quality of their work is one reason the company is growing. According to Paul, there are companies who may charge less money, but there is no company that does better work than Fallert Mechanical.

"Sometimes builders look around for better prices, but they usually end up coming back to Fallert Mechanical for the quality we provide," said Paul.

Fallert does a complete job, which includes custom design and layout for

"We have our own sheet metal shop and we build up most of our own duct work," said Paul.

Fallert Mechanical's motto is to provide quality services at prices you can be comfortable with.

"Paul knows what he is doing and it is reflected in his work," said his wife Caryn. "He can also trouble shoot pretty quickly."

Fallert's employees are also knowledgeable and frequently take continuing education classes to keep up with changes and new technology within the industry.

Many of Fallert's new customers call Fallert Mechanical because of good references from existing Fallert Mechanical customers.

Paul has been in the heating and cooling business for 20 years, and opened Fallert Mechanical in 1980. He has been a Bryant-Merit dealer since 1989.

Paul is a long time resident of South Lyon, and chose it for the location of his business because he loves the town. In addition to the South Lyon area, Fallert Mechanical also does a lot of work in Ann Arbor, Brighton, Northville, Hamburg, Dexter and Pinckney.

Though most people don't think about cooling and heating until they encounter a problem with their own system, it's good to know a reputable dealer says Caryn, and she hopes people will think of Fallert Mechanical for their future heating and cooling needs.

Fallert Mechanical is located at 10075 Colonial Industrial Drive in South Lyon. The telephone number is (810) 437-4385.

Comfortable rooms and convenient location

Who could forget the warm and fuzzy feeling you got when your mother or grandmother gave you a cookie? Well, you can recapture that feeling at Double-Tree Hotel in Novi. "When you think of a cookie you think of sweet dreams, a secure place," says General Manager, Arthur Allis.

"We want to meet and exceed your expectations. When you check in with us you get a couple of their trademark cookies in a bag," said Allis.

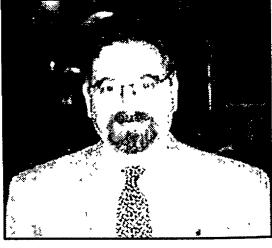

Even the motto on the cookie can repeats the sentiments of a good night's sleep. That's the kind of service you can expect at their elegant hotel.

The hotel offers 217 comfortable rooms located near West Oaks. Twelve Oaks and Towne Center shopping centers for your convenience. Of the 217 rooms, eight suites are available, two have jacuzzis and four have jacuzzis with fireplaces.

But the comfortable accommodations are only the beginning of the story.

If you haven't been to the hotel lately, you're in for a pleasant surprise. Since their recent conversion from Sheraton. DoubleTree Hotel has done a major makeover, spending close to one million dollars. Major changes were made to the elegant interior and atrium to a great new sports bar to enjoy the football, basketball and hockey seasons. How good is their new sports bar called "The Whole Nine Yards"?

*Basically, we removed all of the decor and a few booths. We redecorated and put in $35,000 worth of electronics. Imagine a 72' Mitsubishi, the sharpest big set you can get. Then we surround that with a multiple of 32' Sonys, for a total of 11 sets. Conceivably, from wherever you sit, you can turn your head slightly and pick up another set," Allis said. The bar television reception comes from four satellite dishes, plus cable, plus antennas.

"It's the best reception I know of in the metro area." Allis said.

Ever been to a sports bar that's so noisy you couldn't hear the game? DoubleTree took care of the sound problem with a surround sound system that operates in zones, a speaker system and independently off of the TV. Three separate and distinct sound zones can operate simultaneously and be heard clearly wherever you sit in the bar. Two pool tables in the bar are put to good use, as well as the darts.

One renovation that Allis is particularly pleased with is the conversion of the pool and atrium area. The area is now more warm and inviting through the addition of carpeting, furniture and banners to the atrium, along with beautiful marble arches

"It's more comfortable now. Instead of looking like a pool deck, there's a nice mix of people doing different activities in the atrium along with swimming, such as casual business meetings."

One thing that hasn't changed with the conversion from Sheraton is their reputation for excellent banquet facilities. Director of Catering, Carol Hokkanen, is one reason they continue to offer top-of-the-line service. Hokkanen has been with the hotel from its inception and is a big reason for their strong following. Up to 10 different events can be scheduled simultaneously in their facility.

"She's developed a terrific clientele. She takes it from the start when the first idea comes in until they cut the cake. She takes a tremendous amount of pride in the fact that she's done several events for the same family. There's a tremendous amount of repeat business here." Allis said.

"So many people within an eight-to-ten mile radius have been at social functions here, so the greatest challenge will be appraising them of the name change," he said

The banquet facility is one way that the local residents have become familiar with the hotel. Another is their Sunday Brunch in the Oaks Grille, a sumptuous feast featuring Steamship Round of Beef, chicken and seafood entrees to name a few, all served with breakfast favorites and champagne.

Other changes on the way include new televisions and a pay per view system in guest rooms. For the business traveler, they've created a new business center, with access to a computer, copier and fax—and, of course, a fitness room to keep in shape while you're on the road.

A leader in its field, "DoubleTree is one of the fastest growing hotel segments in the upper level of the hotel business." said Allis. It's the only major hotel chain with a downtown location and one in each of the other four major metropolitan areas.

The hotel currently employs 150 people, and Allis estimates that will probably increase in the next 12 to 18 months.

You can also expect the excellent service from their staff to continue. Allis points out they have a strong core of long-term employees.

"A lot of employees were here when it opened. A lot of them have been here eight years or more," said Allis.

DoubleTree frequently offers promotions, including holiday packages for people planning a shopping excursion to the local malls.

They're located at I-96 and Novi Roads in Novi. Call (810) 348-5000 or 1-800-713-3513 for reservations. And don't forget to pick up an extra tin of cookies while you're there.

NOVI CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Chamber serves a variety of functions

Chamber of Commerce President Connie Mallett is proud to represent Novi.

"Novi is a fast developing city with a lot of resources," she said. "There isn't anything that we can't provide. A lot of communities can't say that."

Her commitment is the motivation behind Novi's Chamber of Commerce. The Chamber is an organization of local business people who want to improve the quality of life in the community." she said. And while "quality of life" is a very broad term, so is the scope of the Chamber's business, Mallett said.

The Chamber has a wide range of responsibilities. It is a catalyst for people to network and an information resource for people looking to relocate or businesses looking to expand in a new community. In addition, the chamber supports community services such as schools and fire protection because members realize those services are critical to a quality community.

Another important function of the Chamber is to provide assistance to members ... sort of a support system. "People searching for a new neighborhood, businesses doing surveys, Realtors selling homes — all contact the Chamber for demographic information," said Mallett. "They want to know about schools, churches and community services, while businesses are looking for population and other demographic information."

All of this is accomplished with a staff of just two full time people. Connie and Dawn Mallett are the dynamic mother-daughter team that staffs the office.

Mallett believes that people in Novi enjoy the best of all worlds with beautiful residential areas, a top-notch schools, outstanding shopping opportunities and an expressway system that provides easy access to most of southeast Michigan.

As a progressive community, Novi's demographics keep changing and the Chamber must keep abreast of the changes.

Mallett is proud of the role that the Chamber plays in the community and points out that businesses are often the first to recognize community trends. The commercial/retail sector of the community is almost saturated," she said. There's plenty of opportunity for light industrial development, on the other hand.

A common misconception about the Chamber is that it is funded by the government. The Chamber is supported entirely by fees paid by its members and by fund-raising activities. "We don't receive any support from tax dollars," noted Mallett. "People often think we're part of the city and get tax money, but the truth is that all our revenues come from membership dues and fund-raising activities."

The Novi Expo Center has generated a substantial amount of activity. Many people attending events at the center have inquiries about local accommodations, shopping and restaurants. "As the Expo Center continues to be successful, the need to respond to the massive number of inquiries will probably require additional staffing," said Mallett.

The Chamber also organizes some of the favorite community events, including the Taste of Novi, the Charity Auction, the Novi Art Festival, the Chamber golf outing and Focus Health. The Chamber is also actively involved in planning the 50s Festival.

A unique aspect of the Novi community is the cooperation that exists between the Chamber, the city and the schools, noted Mallett. Often, an official will hold positions on one or more of the same committees, encouraging them to work and communicate together. "We have a readymade opportunity to communicate," said Mallett. "The goal has always been to improve the community we live and do business in."

What does Novi have to offer as a community?

"It's a very positive, successful, thriving new city with a great deal of resources in its people, its businesses, its school system and its city government — all of them working together to make it a great community," said Mallett. "One you would choose to live or do business in."

The Chamber has about 400 members and maintains offices in the Expo Center at 43700 Expo Center Drive in Novi. For information, call (810) 349-3743.

We're Growing With Novi!

Mamola and Associates is nestled in a renovated apple barn in Novi.

Mamola and Associates: Progress in architecture

A renovated apple barn in Novi is home to the architectural firm of Mamola and Associates. The apple barn, originally built in 1930, was renovated by owner Lee Mamola, and reflects the quality of work his firm provides its customers.

By combining the old with the new, Mamola has created an open, airy, warm environment for his office.

"We not only designed it," said Mamola, "we built it."

' Mamola is very proud of this renovation, how the space flows and the comfort level found inside.

Members of the Michigan American Institute of Architects (AIA) agree with Mamola's assessment. During the 7th annual meeting of the Michigan AIA Mamola received special recognition for the renovation. The apple barn renovation was chosen, along with 12 others, from a variety of projects completed over the past several years.

This recognition is quite an honor for Mamola and the pride he feels is what Mamola wants all of his clients to experience.

"Seeing pride and a satisfied client is what makes me happiest," said Mamola.

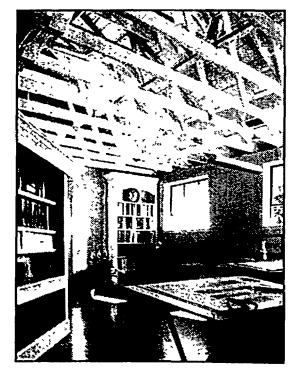

Mamola believes his firm is equipped to ensure their clients will also be proud of their building and renovation projects.

"Our typical client is one who has never experienced the design of a building," said Mamola. "We spend whatever time necessary with our clients until they have a complete understanding of the design process."

Mamola feels it is important for people to consult an architect before they begin their project.

"The average person totally unaware of what they are getting into," said Mamola. "An investment [in an architect] will reap its rewards many times over.

Mamola gives his clients a wealth of information about products and the design process then encourages them to take ample time to think before proceeding with a project.

"We offer a tremendous amount of education about what we select and why," said Mamola. "We let the client know the ramifications of their choices."

According to Mamola, customer education is crucial for ensuring a successful project.

He compares the technical process of designing and building a structure to that of creating a living being.

"It [the building] has to breath, stand up and look good," said Mamola.

Mamola encourages anyone thinking about building or renovating a building to interview several architects and obtain multiple references before choosing an architect.

Mamola Associates work on both residential and commercial projects, and will generally talk with a prospective client with no charge. If contracted, Mamola has several fee methods to choose from.

Mamola and Associates is located at 44700 Nine Mile Road in Novi. The telephone number is (810) 349-3960.

Pennyanne, Catherine and Harold Edwards create a friendly, family atmosphere at Pebble Creek. Not pictured is brother and co-owner Stanley Edwards.

Pebble Creek: Where everybody knows your name

A friendly, family atmosphere is what sets Pebble Creek golf course apart from the others, says co-owner Pennyanne Edwards. Pebble Creek has been in the family since the early seventies when Pennyanne's father first bought it. Since then ownership has transferred to Pennyanne, her brothers Stanley and Harold, and her sister Catherine.

Though the four siblings have owned the course since 1983, last year was the first year they ran it themselves.

Penny chuckles to herself as she describes how an accountant, clown, restauranteur and landscaper manage to run a golf course.

"We cater to the working people," said Penny. "Other courses are more worried about putting golfers on the course. We're more interested in service."

Pennyanne wants to make sure her customers have a great time golfing and relaxing in the clubhouse when they are through playing.

The lounge is called "Harold's 19th Hole" and is named after brother Harold. It has a friendly "Cheers-like" atmosphere where it appears everyone really does know your name.

"It's all like family here," said Pennyanne. "We try to remember everyone's name."

One of their regular customers, 83year-old Mike Heinz couldn't agree more. Heinz golfs three to four times a week and is the first golfer out in the spring and the last to leave in the fall.

Twe been coming here ever since 1976.

the year I retired," said Heinz.

When asked why he comes to Pebble Creek he responded. "I just like it, especially the people who run it. It's just like home."

That is just how Pennyanne wants it to be. "We are getting more and more business and I love it!" said Pennyanne.

Many amenities offered to business customers, such as monthly billing for tee times or lunches for their customers and employees are usually found only in private facilities.

"We even provided a birthday cake for one of our customer's buyers," said Pennyanne.

She says it is this kind of personalized service that brings customers back.

Pennyanne also wants people to know that besides featuring a beautiful and challenging 18-hole golf course, Pebble Creek also boasts a beautifully decorated banquet facility that can be rented for showers, banquets and even weddings.

"Once we had a wedding on the green followed by a reception in the banquet hall, " said Pennyanne.

Though the course itself closes after the first frost, Pennyanne says this past year is the first year the clubhouse stayed open all year.

They hope to gain year-round customers by offering a variety of specials throughout the week. Currently they offer a fish dinner on Friday nights for $5.45 and on Saturday nights they have a new all-you-can eat crab leg dinner special for $14.95. Monday nights are football nights and feature $1 beers and 75 cent coneys. There are a variety of other specials offered the rest of the week.

Along with food and drink specials, the siblings are also planning on adding some new equipment, activities and entertainment. The bar already features a pool table and shuffleboard, and the Edwards plan on expanding the building, adding a second pool table, and hosting some pool and dart tournaments.

They also plan on building an outdoor volleyball court next to the patio filled with umbrella tables and chairs.

Brother Stanley, or Jango as he is known to his family and friends, is also excited at the possibility of opening up a comedy club.

Jango is a professional clown who currently resides in Amsterdam, Holland and stresses the fact that their comedy club will feature clowns not comics.

"A clown makes fun of everything and never takes sides," said Jango.

Jango plans to invite clowns from all over the world to perform at his club. He believes this will help make Pebble Creek unique in its field.

While the Edwards hope to add more food, fun and activities to their venue. they don't want anyone to forget their primary service is providing a great environment for golf at affordable prices.

"I want the golfers to come out and have a good time," said Pennyanne.

The course currently hosts over 622 league golfers who play in men, women and senior leagues. They also host the South Lyon High School golf team practice rounds.

Senior and Junior specials are priced at $9 for 9 holes and $11 for 18 holes. The weekday rates until 4:30 p.m. are $14 for 9 holes and $21 for 18 holes. Weekend rates are $16 for 9 holes and $25 for 18 holes. Twilight golf begins at 5:00 p.m. and costs $12 for all you can golf. Carts are $12 for 9 holes and $20 for 18 holes.

There is also a "Sweetheart Special" for two which features 18 holes of golf, a cart and a dinner featuring your choice of N.Y. strip steak, grilled tuna steak or fried chicken, all for the low price of $45. Tee off times for this special begin at 1 p.m. daily.

If you're looking for a great golf course, good food, a friendly atmosphere and great prices, the Edwards hope you will visit Pebble Creek. Pebble Creek is located at 24095 Currie Road in South Lyon. The telephone number is (810) 437-5411.

Office manager Gina Papia looks over client plans with Creative Kitchens & Baths designers Sharon Nussle and Carol Herrick.

Creating the kitchens and baths of your dreams

Considering a kitchen or bath remodeling project? Stop by Creative Kitchens & Baths, Inc. at 227 N. Barnard in Howell and watch your ideas become a picture perfect reality. The business has the products, services and experience to coordinate any remodeling project from start to finish.

Creative Kitchens & Baths is a full service store that has everything needed to achieve your remodeling goals. Aside from quality cabinetry, the business also offers countertops, ceramic tile, plumbing products, flooring, wallpaper and appliances.

Products for the bath include showers, tub enclosures, shower doors and the stylish and popular glass blocks. Kitchen or bath, Creative can replace one or two items or take everything out and redesign a new room. They can also put a bath or kitchen in where there was none: To ensure customer satisfaction, installers are on the payroll with a minimum of 10 years experience and are certified Corian fabricators.

Owner Dennis Nussie has been in the home remodeling business for 30 years. His wife Sharon joined the operation in 1980 and their children also work for the family business. Dennis started Creative Kitchens & Baths in Old Redford, before moving to 119 N. Michigan Avenue in Howell, where the business remained from 1975 to '88. After outgrowing the original Howell location, Creative Kitchens & Baths moved a few blocks away to its current home on North Barnard Street. Customers enjoy the new location because of its ample parking and larger showroom displaying the latest in kitchen and bath features.

Creative offers cabinets in a variety of price ranges to suit the customer. There are two lines of stock cabinets. the semi-custom Pioneer cabinets, and the Pennville and Decora lines of custom cabinets — all of which are factory direct and price pot compected to any brand or product, which allows us the freedom and ability to offer customers options to fit their needs, tastes and pocketbooks. We always try for the best dollar value," says Sharon.

Dennis and Sharon are particularly proud of Creative's relationship with Pioneer. The business has offered Pioneer's semi-custom cabinets since the Davison-based company's inception in the early eighties. "They are committed to quality and service," Sharon said. "Because of Pioneer, we are able to offer semi-custom cabinets at stock cabinet prices." Pioneer carries a wide variety of cabinetry options in wood selections, door styles and finishes and has just introduced two new door styles and another wood species — cherry.

"Customers base their cabinet buying decisions on more than price. Whether you're remodeling or building a new house, your kitchen and bath represent your individual tastes. We design according to tastes." Sharon said. "When a customer comes in with an idea, we work with them as much as possible and within the limitations of the cabinet company to get them what they want." From hand sketches to extensive computer designs. Creative consults with the customer to make sure nothing is left to chance.

Although the bulk of their work is in kitchens and baths. Creative is not limited to remodeling in those two rooms. They will work anywhere in a home where cabinetry is needed. Creative can even help finance such remodeling projects as well as new home construction.

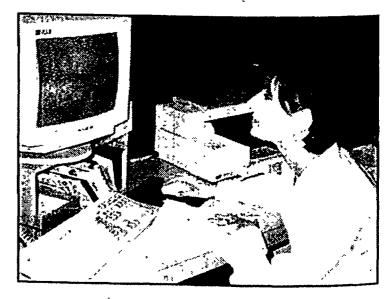

Sharon does interior decorating and helps customers with their wallpaper and color coordination. Her expertise in that area has led Pioneer to ask her to help design their displays for expos and trade shows. Along with Pioneer, she is also aiding in the design of the set for a Michigan State University PBS show called "Michigan Gourmet." She arranged the set decoration and—— countertops and Pioneer provided the cabinets.

Creative Kitchens & Baths has always been a Howell Area Chamber of Commerce member. Dennis was instrumental in helping reinstitute the chamber's Home Show several years ago, and every year Creative designs an excellent award winning display for the show.

In business for 30 years, Creative Kitchens & Baths enjoys a tremendous amount of repeat business and warmly welcomes new customers.

Pulte Homes is currently working on building homes in the Hidden Creek subdivision in South Lyon, located on Nine Mile west of Pontiac Trail.

Building homes where people want to live

South Lyon is not the sleepy little farm community it used to be. Many families are moving from the older suburbs into South Lyon because of its small town atmosphere, convenient location, good schools and open spaces.

Pulte Home Corporation recognized the attractiveness of the South Lyon area and chose it for their new neighborhood of premiere homes called Hidden Creek.

"South Lyon is on the path of progress," said Pulte sales representative Lynn Bowden. "Its where people want to live."

While Pulte recognizes the qualities South Lyon has to offer its residents. Pulte hopes people in the market for a new home will take time to learn about what they have to offer new home buyers.

William J. Pulte built and sold his first home in 1950. Since that time. Pulte Homes has developed into a $1.936 billion company because of their commitment to provide people with quality homes at prices they can afford.

Pulte is the largest residential new home builder in the United States, and their experience is evident in the quality of the homes they build.

"We deliver a complete home: lighting fixtures, floor coverings, dead bolts, cable and phone lines," said Bowden. "What customers get as standard with Pulte, most other builders offer as upgrades."

"We use only national name-brand products that people are familiar with and trust," said Bowden.

Upgraded dishwashers, carpeting and rollout cabinets are a few of the items Pulte offers its customers as standard features.

Pulte is also very proud of its homes' floor plans. Before Pulte markets a new home, they build a model and then solicit comments from brokers, customers, realtors and focus groups. This up-front research results in houses that are fine-tuned and user-friendly, says Bowden.

Pulte also employs a color consultant who puts together exterior color packages. Pulte believes it is important to help customers choose a variation of exterior colors and elevations for their new home.

"It eliminates the feeling of driving through a community and seeing the every place. said Bowden. "It's really important to us that the community itself has integrity, and that's how we maintain that." Pulte also provides perhaps the best. most complete new nome warranty in the business. All new homes require finetuning during the first year. and Pulte strives to resolve those concerns in a quick and efficient manner.

Pulte has a service manager who introduces himself to the new home owner during the final walk-through, says Bowden. At this time he describes the home's features and shows customers how to perform such maintenance items as changing the furnace filter and caring for wood floors.

"He will then schedule an appointment with the customer at three months and 11 months," said Bowden. If repairs are necessary, the service manager will actually supervise the work to make sure it is done quickly and efficiently.

Hidden Creek offers the high-quality homes Pulte is recognized for in a rural setting which has the benefits of a big city. Hidden Creek is within walking distance of Centennial Elementary School and South Lyon Middle School. There will be city sidewalks, city sewers, city water and a walking path to downtown South Lyon.

Hidden Creek will also be home to two ponds with a wooden bridge where residents will be able to ice skate. fish or picnic, says Bowden.

Hidden Creek has 164 1/4 acre walkout and wooded sites that are situated on beautiful rolling terrain. Several pond sites are also available. There are five floor plans available. ranging from a 1500 square foot ranch to a 2500 square foot colonial.

A Hidden Creek model will be completed and furnished in January or February of 1997. Prices begin in the $180's and top out in the low $200's.

Even without any roads or models.
Hidden Creek has already sold 27 homes.
This is a testimony to the reputation
Pulte has of providing quality homes at reasonable prices.

The sales information center is located at 999 Hidden Creek Road. The center is open from 11:00 A.M. to 6:00 P.M. seven days a week. The telephone number is (810) 437-7676.

State habitat biologist John Royer shows DNR Officer Scott Harrington how to determine a deer's age by examing its teeth. Sportsmen and DNR staffers agree that some of the state's best deer hunting will be found in southeastern Michigan this fall.

CALL OF THE WILD

Livingston and Oakland counties offer best deer hunting

By Phil Foley CORRESPONDENT

While tradition may still call many deer stalkers to make the annual trek up north, the heart of deer country is right here in their backyards.

Tve seen some absolutely monster creatures out there," said John Bueter of Bueter's Outdoors in Northville.

According to state wildlife biologists the deer population in Livingston and Oakland counties is around 15 to 20 animals per square mile with some pockets with populations as high as 40 animals per square mile. Agricultural interests, said John Royer, a habitat biologist with the Department of Natural Resource's (DNR) Shiawassee Field Office, will tolerate populations of up to 20 animals per square

One of the area's densest populations. he said, is centered on Kensington Metro Park, just outside of Milford, where hunting has been banned for decades. Julie Oaks, a habitat biologist at the DNR's Waterford office agrees.

"The deer in this area look great," she said, noting there are several reports of does with triplets earlier this year.

The boom in the southern deer herd is actually a return to the past. Prior to the rise of the state's logging industry in the mid-1800s, the dense forests of Michigan's Upper and Northern Lower Peninsula were home mainly to moose and elk.

Prime habitat for deer was found in the nearly wiped by commercial hunting and farming. At the same time extensive logging up north created new habitat deer.

Since the 1930s the center of the state's deer population has been moving steadily southward. According to Royer, deer habitat in the Upper Peninsula has become over mature and can't support the numbers it once did.

In this part of the state, however, "it's getting better every year." according to J.R. Slayton at Chuck Miller Sportshop in Brighton. "They've become an urban creature." added Bueter. "They love these golf courses."

Slayton said he's seen six to eight every day near his home south of Howell. According to Tim Payne, the DNR district biologist in Livonia, the best bets in Oakland County are in the western and northern tier of townships.

The biggest problem area hunters will run into is other hunters. Oaks noted she has seen as many as 30 cars parked along the road bordering the 900 acres of Horseshoe Lake State Recreation Area near Milford.

While hunting is allowed on most state lands, hunters need to understand they aren't the only ones in the woods. This, said Bueter, means hunters have to take great care and even avoid some areas. He noted that while Pinckney State Recreation Area has "some ugly old hollows" where trophy bucks can be found, it's also become a haven for the mountain bike people.

It's always a good idea to talk with local state's southern counties. By the 1870s . . . DNR officers to get a handle on local conditions and activities before heading out into state lands. Keeping track of where you are, added Bueter, is especially important for firearm hunters since guns are banned in several area communities.

Cross the wrong fence row and you could be in serious trouble. Hunting is completely closed in some communities and municipal boundaries can extend well beyond built up areas. To find out if there are any restrictions on the area you plan to hunter, call the local township clerk's office.

The best bet for those looking for a trophy buck, according to Slayton, is to play off the other hunters. "You'll find me where they're not," he said, noting that the biggest, oldest bucks are found in the heart of the worst terrain. "It's more work. It's colder and wetter, but yeah I get a buck every year."

Royer noted some excellent deer habitat can be found between the branches of the Red Cedar River. Hunters looking for new territories to scout can pick up a copy of the Hunter Access Book free at any DNR district headquarters office or state park. The book lists private lands across the state open to public hunting.

Deer populations in the area have grown to the point that DNR officials significantly increased the number of antlerless deer permits this year.

While opening day and opening weekend will be crowded. Payne offered. "if you do some scouting and know your area, you've got a good chance of bringing home a deer."

High tech gadgets give hunters' edge

By Phil Folev CORRESPONDENT

Every sportsman looks for something to give him or her a competitive edge and deer hunters are no exception.

There are a number of new products on the market that not only can make,a hunter's life easier but can be used other times of the year as well.

For those who would just as soon not trip over rocks and roots on their predawn trek to the blind, Power To Go has come out with a 500-candlepower rechargeable flashlight. According to Dale Wiltse at South Lyon Electronics, at the corner of Pontiac Trail and 10 Mile, local volunteer firefighters and Oakland County Road Commission employees have been pleased with the ruggedness and reliability of the two-pound unit.

Wiltse said the unit is about the size of a normal spotlight used in a car and is good for about 30 minutes of continuous use. The light is completely self-contained and comes with adapters to recharge it at home or off your hunting vehicle's cigarette lighter.

Cherokee Electronics has a cost-effective alternative to burning up air time on the cell phone to stay in touch with hunting companions. Cherokee, said Wiltse, has just introduced a two-pound, fullfeature, 40-channel CB radio. With a two-watt rating, the radio has a range of a mile-and-half to two-miles depending on terrain, said Wiltse.

According to Wiltse, the radio is compact enough to fit in a pocket and there are a bag full of neat options available including rechargeable batteries, lapel mikes and earphones. "It's almost like what the cops use," he said.

Wiltse noted that CB radios remain popular in Michigan and hunters can use them for a number of communications uses, including talking to each other or even summoning help from a passing motorist should the need arise.

Global Positioning System (GPS) equipment remains popular, though at an average price of $300 it may be out of the reach of the average hunter. However, said Wiltse. Motorola is expected to come out with a $125 unit after the first of the

With a GPS unit, explained Wiltse, a hunter can mark the location where he enters the bush and at the end of the day push the return button and an arrow on the device's LCD screen will point the way back to his vehicle. In a swamp, everything tends to look the same," he

The average GPS unit can fix your location to within a few hundred feet. Motorola has a $500 unit that's accurate to within 15 feet. The gadgets have been popular with deep sea fishermen for

The more sophisticated (and therefore more expensive) models have the memory to store dozens of locations. Wiltse said this is very helpful in finding your way back to choice locations you found in your preseason scouting trips. A GPS unit, said Wiltse can "put you back to the same exact spot every day. If you do your scouting early in the year, you'll be amazed how different things look when the trees loose all their leaves.

He said with companies like Uniden. Panasonic and others jumping into the market, look for GPS prices to start falling next year.

Archery has come a long way since the days of Robin Hood and men in tights. The modern bow hunter has a wide array of high-tech gadgets available to increase his odds of success.

According to Bill Weber at B&J Sporting Goods, 118 E. Grand River, Brighton. "Ninety percent of archery is knowing range to the target." To accurately determine target distance Brunton has developed a laser ranger finder.

More accurate than optical range finders that have been on the market for several years, the laser range finder looks like a pair of binoculars and retails for about $300.

Scopes on bows have become increasingly popular in recent years, noted Weber. Aim Point and Bracklynn have introduced red dot scopes similar to those available for handguns. "Where the red dot is, that's where your arrow is going to go." observed Weber. Expect to pay between $235 to $250 for this type of

Since most archery shots are taken at relatively close ranges, the right camouflage choice is very important, said Weber. "Deer are amazingly perceptive," he said. "the color of a moving hand shows up easy in woods."

One of the more popular new camouflage patterns on the market, said Weber, is mossy oak. It's a brown leaf pattern that seems to do well late in the season. "Every year the manufacturers are coming out with new stuff." he noted.

Clothing manufacturers, Weber added, are using more advanced design fabrics to make life more comfortable in the field. They are also coming out with more gear cut for women, who are becoming a growing segment of the hunting community.

With high-tech carbon fiber arrows going for as much as $240 a dozen. losing one in the woods is not a pleasant prospect. Neither is spending precious hunting time tracking down an errant shot. According to Gabe Kish at The Gun Barn, 2525 Highland Road, Milford, you can track your arrow with a radio transmitter made by Innovative Archery Prod-

The system, which is manufactured in Brighton, includes a transmitter that fits inside an arrow and a pocket-radio sized receiver. The transmitter, said Kish, emits a beep-tone that intensifies as the receiver gets closer to it. The set retails for around $129.

Kish noted the same technology that allows police to find suspects from the air in helicopters, is now available to hunters to track down a kill. Game Tracker, said Kish, offers an infrared detector that can pick up body heat at 100 yards and can detect an animal that's been cooling for as long as two hours.

The device, which costs about $150. makes a beep that grows louder as it nears a heat source.

For firearm hunters, Hornady has introduced a new line of "light magnum" ammunition. It has the effect of boosting .270 shells to the killing power of a 7mm magnum. However, cautioned Kish. "light magnum" ammunition is strictly for modern firearms.

He noted that Smith and Wesson has introduced a line of ported .357 and .44 handguns for hunting. The weapons are made of stainless steel and come predrilled for scopes.

Kish said electronic scopes have been growing in popularity in recent years. Trijicon in Wixom is manufacturing a line of scopes that never needs batteries. He said that's because the sighting elements are treated with a radioactive material that will glow for up to 10 years.

According to Kish there have been some serious advances in firearm recoil reduction in the past two years. For $240 Answer Products of Davison adds a spccial pad to the gunbutt and a muzzle brake that looks as if it was part of the original firearm.

One old stand-by Kish is fond of is the Deer Drag. A $5 piece of webbing with a hook, the Deer Drag makes hauling a buck out of the woods easier. "I got one four, five years ago," said Kish, "and now I won't go into the woods without one."

DNR says exercise caution when using firearms

- Treat every firearm as if it were loaded. You can never guarantee that your chamber is unloaded. Give an unloaded firearm the same respect you would give a loaded firearm.
- Watch where you point your firearm muzzle. Never point the muzzle of your firearm at yourself or anyone else. even if it is unloaded.
- · Know your firearm and its ammunition. Before you load, be sure your firearm is in safe operating condition and the barrel is free of obstructions. Double check the specifications of your ammunition to be sure it fits your firearm.

- Do not load your firearm before you are ready. Why take chances? When traveling to and from your hunting blind, take down or have your actions open, and always carry your firearms unloaded in their cases.
- · Be sure of your target and beyond - before you squeeze the trigger. Be sure that you have carefully identified your target, then look past it to be sure it is safe to shoot. Hunters need to keep track of buildings, roadways, and other
- Beware of fatigue when hunting. When you've been out in the woods a long time, fatigue can cause accidents. A loaded firearm can fire with a single. unexpected jar - so watch your step.
- · Don't take chances with a loaded firearm. Never step over fences, jump ditches, or make other awkward or unbalanced moves while holding a loaded firearm.
- Use care when practicing. When shooting for practice, make sure your backstop will prevent ricochets and protect bystanders. Bullets can ricochet off water, rocks, trees, metal and other hard surfaces.

- · Store your firearm safely. When not in use, always store firearms unloaded, away from ammunition and out of the reach of children and inexperienced users.

Best tasting meat is found in farm country

By Phil Foley CORRESPONDENT

One thing area chefs agree on when it comes to venison is that while the biggest trophies may come from the darkest heart of the swamp, the best table fare will be found in farm country.

"The meat will taste like what the animal eats." explained Chef Brian Polcyn at Five Lakes Grill in Milford. He said it's easy to spot the difference between farmland venison and that brought in from swamps and the UP. Corn fed venison, observed Polcyn, has a thick layer of yellow fat and a little marbling. Venison from a swamp deer, he said, has a thin layer of white fat.

Though many will argue to the contrary, Chef Polcyn and Chef Bob Weber at P.B. Putters in New Hudson favor aging a venison carcass for up to three weeks before butchering. They and many other area chefs advocate the European method of butchering, which separates out individual muscles rather that cutting carcass parts into pieces.

The first of the same degree of the same o

The bad news is this is not a butchering technique for neophytes and there are no local packing houses that offer it. according to Polcyn. However, he added, noted wild game expert Chef Milos Cihelk has a video on the subject as well as videos on other aspects of wild game preparation. The Videos are available through Wild Harvest Productions, 4241 Cherry Hill Road, Orchard Lake, MI 48323, 1-800-819-3799.

Chef Polcyn said the biggest single mistake people make with venison is using the wrong cooking technique with the wrong cut of meat. "If you put a shoulder on the grill, it's like chuck [roast] it's going to turn out tough."

For roasts marinating is a must. Chef Richard Nell at Bakers of Milford said he likes to use cherry or raspberry vinegars for the base of his marinades. Chef Nell calls for the use of "earthy" herbs in seasoning venison.

Chef Jan Masciulli at Northville's Timbercreek soaks his roasts in peppermint schnapps for four to five hours. He then pan sears the meat in a "smoking hot" pan followed by slow roasting until the meat reaches an internal temperature of 130 degrees. The result, he said, will be a rare roast with a crusty exterior that's "almost like biting candy."

Polcyn said he often uses juniper berries in his sauces for venison, since its a seasoning that deer would consume in the wild. "It's like using watercress salmon dishes since watercress is found along the streams salmon live in," he said.

Since venison is a very lean meat, barding and larding are also recommending techniques for handling roast. Barding introduces moisture to a roast by wrapping it in bacon. In larding, special needles are used to insert fat (which is sometimes mixed with spices) into the meat. Chef Weber likes to use cold-smoked bacon for larding.

Venison's leanness also makes seasoning with salt before cooking a bad idea. Salt, said Chef Masciulli, will draw moisture out of the meat, leaving you with a final product that's "like a hockey puck."

With venison steaks and chops, less is better the experts agree. They all call for initially searing the meat over high heat to seal in juices, followed by light cooking. Chef Jamie Fleissner at P.B. Putter's suggests sauteing venison medallions with dried cherries.

For sauces the chefs urge saving the bones in order to make a stock. The same techniques for making a beef stock can be used with venison. though Chef Masciulli likes to add pears to his. A basic stock can be made by slow roasting venison bones with your favorite root vegetables.

Though professional chefs call for using fresh ingredients, they realize freezing is a necessity for sportsmen. Chef Nell said venison should be wrapped in butcher's paper, followed by plastic wrap and then aluminum foil before freezing. To thaw meat properly, he said, you should put it on a plate in the refrigerator for two to three days.

Venison Meatloaf

JON KLOOSTERHOUSE, HARTLAND

1 1/2 pounds of ground venison 1 cup of oatmeal - uncooked

I small jar of salsa (mild, medium or hot according to taste) This makes this recipe special

l egg or three egg whites l medium onion - chopped Season to taste with salt and pepper

Preheat oven to 350 degrees, combine all ingredients, mixing well. Place in an ungreased baking dish and form into loaf. Bake at 350 degrees for one hour.

Mix brown sugar, catsup, and dry mustard together into a glaze. Spread glaze on top of meatloaf and place back into oven for 10 minutes.

Remove from oven and let stand for 5 minutes before serving.

Hunter's Stew

ROBERT LUETJE, NORTHVILLE

This dish prepares well with any small game including rabbit, squirrel, pheasant or duck; you need about two for a nice recipe. I suppose venison would be fine too but I haven't tried it.

Parboil the meat until done then bone it and cut into small cubes; save the broth in a crock pot or slow dutch oven, add:

2 cans condensed cream of celery soup
1 can condensed cream of chicken soup
2 cans of broth from the parboiled meat
3 medium potatoes cut into small cubes

2 large carrots, sliced 1 stalk of celery, sliced

3 bay leaves
4 all spice
parboiled meat
salt and pepper to taste

salt and pepper to taste

Cook slowly for at least two hours (more is better), then add about a dozen brussel sprouts and cook until tender. This will serve four hungry hunters.

Venison Substitution Suggestions JANICE L. OUELLETTE, MILFORD

Generally, I have found that I can substitute venison into almost any recipe calling for beef:

In recipes calling for ground beef. I substitute ground venison (which is much dryer and has virtually no fat). such as:

- Spaghetti Sauce
- Sloppy Joes
- Stuffed Cabbage or Stuffed Peppers

In recipes calling for round steak, I use venison roașts, cut for:

- Swiss Steak
- Traditional stews with carrots and potatoes

The loins are excellent if sliced thin and sautéed in margarine or butter.

Venison Roast (Two Methods) JANICE L. OUELLETTE, MILFORD

One 2-3 pound venison roast One can mushroom stems and pieces One packet french onion soup

Oven Method: Set oven to 300 degrees Tear off two pieces of aluminum foil large enough to wrap up roast (lay foil double)

Sprinkle a small amount of dry soup mix on foil. Place roast on top of soup and sprinkle with the rest of the soup and the mushrooms. Fold top closed to seal and one end. Toss 2 to 3 ice cubes into other end and seal.

Place in shallow metal pan and cook in 300 degree oven for 4 to 5 hours. After cooking, remove roast from foil and make gravy from drippings.

Crock Pot Method: Place canned mushrooms, undrained, in bottom of crock pot, add roast and top with dry soup mix. Add 2 cups of water*. Cover and cook on low for 5 to 6 hours, or on high for 3 to 4 hours. (Longer and slower is better.)

After cooking remove broth to small pan and make gravy if desired.

Venison Burgundy (Serves 4) JANICE L OUELLETTE, MILFORD

2 tablespoons margarine or butter, softened

2 tablespoons flour

Cook bacon pieces in skillet or small kettle. Remove bacon when crisp and set aside. Remove all but 1 to 2 tablespoons bacon grease.

Brown venison cubes, onions and mushrooms. Cook about 5 minutes. Add thyme, broth and wine. Bring to a boil then reduce heat and simmer about 1-1/2 hours or until venison is tender.

In a 1 cup measuring cup, combine flour and margarine or butter to form a roux, mixing until smooth. Add to the roux 2 tablespoons of broth from the pan and mix well. Repeat. Pour part of the roux-broth mixture back into pan and mix well. Mixture should thicken. Continue to add small amounts of roux-broth mixture until desired thickness is obtained.

Prevent spoilage by following simple tips

By Phil Foley CORRESPONDENT

Once you've bagged your buck, if you plan on bringing him to the table, time and temperature are your enemy.

According to Gary Olsen at Olsen's Meats east of Howell, many first time hunters, especially those who get their deer at the beginning of the season end up bringing a spoiled animal to the processor. "You just can't hang a deer in 70-degree weather for three or four days," he said

Last year Olsen processed 700 animals at his shop at the corner of Grand River and Meadowview. He noted he had to disappoint several hunters who'd waited too long to bring in their prize.

"When you open them up, you get one whiff and you know," he observed.

George W. Bain, whose family has been processing deer at Bain's Packing north of Howell since the '40s said improper field dressing also contributes to wasted venison. 'It just boils down to, take your time and don't rip or bust anything," he suggested.

He said it's important to gut an animal as soon as possible after killing it and then prop the body cavity open to speed the cooling process. Once a hunter gets his prize home, said Bain, it's important to go over the carcass once again to make sure all traces of internal organs have been removed, hose it down with cold water and then wipe it dry with clean rags.

Olsen agreed adding many hunters neglect to remove the rectum before bringing their deer in for processing. The bacteria harbored there, he said, "will spoil a deer faster than anything."

While noting that "a lot of old timers will argue the point." Olsen said he doesn't believe aging a deer (letting it hang at low temperatures for days or weeks) will improve the quality of venison. He explained that unlike beef, venison is very lean with little or no marbling.

That's also why many butchers recommend adding a pound of pork butt to every five pounds of venison ground for burgers.

Since most processors operate on a first come first served basis. Bain suggested calling ahead before bringing your animal in. Before bringing it in, he added, keep it in a cool, shaded place. Even on a cool day, sunlight beating down on a hide can raise a dressed deer's temperature to unacceptable levels.

Hunters were conserving natural resources before it was in vogue

Concern about the environment has been in vogue in America since the 1960's, and today most Americans are interested in the well-being of wildlife and our natural resources.

It wasn't always so, but you might be surprised to know that this kind of thinking began in America over 150 years ago only to be embraced by most during the past 30 years.

In 1844, or 50 years before the term "conservation" was coined, the New York Sportsmans Club formed to protect and preserve declining game species. Then, as now, development was taking its toll on wildlife habitat, and this event marked the beginning of an intense period of activism by hunters and anglers committed to the welfare of wildlife. They would soon establish hundreds of dedicated organizations across the nation.

Led by avid outdoorsman President Theodore Roosevelt, hunters and anglers also proposed and supported passage of the first laws to conserve wildlife and protect its habitat. In 1900, Roosevelt dramatically strengthened the federal wildlife program by establishing the first wildlife refuges and the national forest system.

Not content with the initial efforts, in 1937 hunters initiated legislation to fund the newly-established state fish and wildlife agencies. Their efforts resulted in the Pittman-Robertson Act, which established a tax on sporting arms and ammunition to fund the wildlife conservation programs administered by the state agencies. Today, this 11-percent excise tax generates over $200 million each year in wildlife funding.

Additional excise taxes also established with the strong support of sportsmen were later placed on handguns and equipment used in sport fishing and archery... Still more conservation revenue comes from the sale of hunting and fishing licenses, duck stamps, tags and permits. To date, wildlife contributions by hunters and anglers total about $19 billion.

That total will increase by about $30,000 in the time it takes to read this story. Wildlife agencies also receive some funding from state tax payers, but for each dollar allocated from the state's tax revenue, hunters and anglers contribute about nine dollars. The money has been well spent: Since the early 1900s, state wildlife agencies have returned many species to their past abundance. And, in addition to restoring turkey, deer, elk, wood ducks and pronghorn antelope, their efforts substantially benefit all the nation's wildlife, from chipmunks and songbirds to eagles and trumpeter swans.

As has been the case for many years. the purchase of a hunting or fishing license remains one of the most effective donations to wildlife that anyone — sportsman or not — can make.

Funds have also been used to purchase and maintain over four million acres of wildlife habitat property.
