Pay of electeds focus of hearing

The public will have a chance to sound off on the paychecks of state officials when the State Officers Compensation Commission holds a public hearing Tuesday, Dec. 3, in Pontiac.

SOCC will meet in the Oakland County Commissioners Auditorium, 1200 N. Telegraph, Pontiac. Invited speakers will be heard at 3 p.m. and the public at 4 p.m. (The public sound-off time was moved forward an hour since a previous announcement.)

No specific proposal for hiking salaries is before SOCC yet. Currently the governor is paid $121,166, the lieutenant governor $89,450, Supreme Court justices $118,758 and legislators $50,629.

Salaries of the Court of Appeals and trial court judges are pegged at a percentage of Supreme Court justices' salaries. The Legislature sets the salaries of the secretary of state and attorney general. University presidents' salaries are set by the governing boards.

"Public hearings and our toll-free comment line open the process to everyone and make the commission easily accessible to the public," said SOCC chair William Hampton, a former legislator and retired Oakland circuit judge.

SOCC's recommended pay hikes will take effect unless rejected by the Legislature.

Other members besides Hampton are Yvonne Brown Blackmond of Southfield, Nancy Crandall of Norton Shores, Julia Darlow of Grosse Pointe, Mary Lukens of Ann Arbor, Russell Mawby of Augusta and Matthew McLogan of Grand Rapids.

Those who can't attend may make their views known through a toll-free number, 1-800-788-1766, or by writing to: SOCC, c/o Department of Civil Service, 400 S. Pine, PO Box 30002, Lansing 48909.

Teens sent to slammer following traffic stop

A traffic stop for completing and improper turn and disobeying a signal netted two Northville teenagers a night in jail Nov. 19.

A Novi police officer said he stopped a car on Eight Mile Road at 9:30 p.m. and detected a strong odor of marijuana coming from the vehicle as he approached. The officer asked the four riders to produce whatever was in the car and one teen handed over a pack of rolling papers.

Police had the teens step out of the car and the driver of the vehicle confessed to having some marijuana in the glove box.

One of the passengers admitted to owning the drug but asked "Why are you guys doing this to me?"

Police arrested two 17-year-old males and released two others at the scene.

DNR asks help clearing Newburgh Lake of PCBs

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources is planning a fish eradication effort on Newburgh Lake beginning Thursday Dec. 5, at 4 p.m. The Lake, part of the Rouge River watershed southeast of Northville, has been contaminated for some time with carcinogenic PCBs that cannot be eliminated from the lake until those fish carrying them are removed.

Beginning Dec. 5 and continuing

24 hours a day until 4 p.m. Dec. 7, the DNR will need volunteers to help sort, count and inspect fish species that are removed from the lake.

This project will help in the future gamefish planning of Newburgh Lake and Rouge River system.

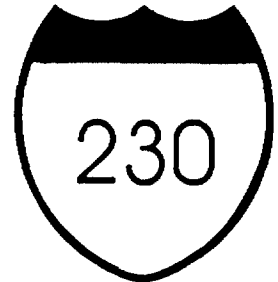

Contact John Bueter at Bueter's Outdoors in Northville at 349-3677 for more information or to volunteer.

Postal unions blame management for problems

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

Poor supervision and too few people are at the root of Northville's mail troubles, according to the presidents of the unions which represent local postal clerks and carriers.

Besides that, they add, conditions at the post office are giving the people who work there real problems in areas like safety, stress, morale and even health.

Postal service administrators agree that Northville's post office has problems but say they've taken the necessary steps to solve them.

An anonymous group of letter carriers who work in Northville on Nov. 12 sent a letter to the postal service's Detroit District headquarters. While the letter includes a number of complaints, two stand out. The first is that Northville needs more people to deliver the mail effectively. The second is that the supervisors responsible for managing the office aren't doing their jobs.

The heads of the two unions agree.

"Northville is notorious for improper management," said Roger Holbrook, local area president of the American Postal Workers Union. The organization represents clerks and maintenance workers in Northville.

Holbrook said that Northville Postmaster Judy Buffmyer, placed on "administrative leave" by Detroit postal officials, has not laid down the law to the supervisors under her who, according to the letter, have been behaving inappropriately.

"She needed to kick the butts of her supervisors out there a long time ago," Holbrook said. "She hasn't always done what she needed to do and that's kind of developed a total lack of respect for everything in general. If you don't have a captain of your boat you're going to go around in circles."

The letter uses words like "favoritism," "intimidation" and "reprisal" to describe the behavior of some supervisors in Northville. It says that some workers are cut slack, making it harder on everyone else, while people who complain are sometimes the targets of harassment. Several specific incidents are cited.

Holbrook and Tim Manning, president of Branch 2184 of the National Association of Letter Carriers, also say that postal service officials aren't giving the Northville post office the people it needs to make sure the mail gets delivered right and by a workforce that's not running itself ragged.

"There is a bad mix between the number of workers out there and the amount of work. It's the worst workload I've ever seen," said Manning, who represents 38 Northville carriers.

While Northville gets hundreds of new homes to deliver to every year, the workforce has not kept pace. The result, according to Manning, is that many at the post office work as much as 60 hours a week, week in and week out, leaving almost no time for family or outside interests.

Holbrook said the situation is so bad that workers often can't get days off for vacation or even doctor appointments. It all has a marked impact on the workers' morale, stress level and physical health, he added.

"These folks really care about that mail and about doing their jobs right. That's why it's so frustrating to see this," Holbrook said.

Earl Flowers, the manager of post office operations for the Detroit District, said postal service administrators are taking steps to examine the situation at Northville and correct any problems.

He said complaints about supervisors like the ones in the letter are often heard in the postal service but "then no one is able to substantiate anything." He added, however, that the postal service feels things have to change in Northville.

"We need to provide proper direction to the supervisors there now," Flowers said. "We don't feel like proper guidance was provided here."

Regarding the high amount of mandatory overtime Northville post office workers are putting in, Flowers said that staffing levels will be reviewed to see if more people are needed.

"The post office nationwide is seeing a lot of apprehension among employees these days. Flowers said, because of the postal service's introduction of automation to speed mail sorting and delivery efficiency.

The idea is that as workers are displaced from a post office that doesn't need as many people due to automation, they'll then be sent to offices with heavy workloads, such as Northville.

"I think it's human nature to have a fear there. Our challenge is to make them see that this isn't a problem," Flowers said.

While the changeover takes place, a process that will likely take years, the postal service is looking at hiring "non-career" transition-phase employees to help out where they're needed, such as in Northville.

District steps in to address difficulties

tion ballot.

Double-timing those items out the door was the first thing postal headquarters people called for when they arrived last week. That's why some homes in Northville received two and even three mail deliveries on Nov. 21 and 22.

Coming next, postal officials say, are things like performance reviews of local supervisors and taking another look at staffing levels to see if Northville needs more people to move the mail appropriately.

To upset postal customers' it all means an end to their troubles, according to Earl Flowers, manager of post office operations for the Detroit District.

"We found out there was a problem and we've worked to correct it," Flowers said Friday. "We certainly apologize to everyone who's experienced difficulty but it's fixed as of today and won't be happening again."

Maybe not, say union representatives for the clerks and carriers who work at the Northville office. But they want to see more done (see related story).

Workers at the post office have declined to discuss the situation publicly but privately say things have been off-kilter for months. It all came to a head, however, when an anonymous group of carriers sent a letter of complaint on Nov. 12 to the postal service's Detroit District headquarters.

The letter alleges a number of problems with mail operations in Northville, most of them stemming from two things: too few people for too much work and poor management by postal supervisors.

Northville's top supervisor, Postmaster Judy Buffmyer, was placed on indefinite "administrative leave" in the wake of the letter.

Flowers said no decision has been made yet about her status or if Buffmyer will return to her position.

Underlining the seriousness of the situation was Friday morning's visit to the post office by Carl January, postal manager of the entire Detroit District. He was unavailable for comment.

Taking over day-to-day operations at Northville is Officer-in-Charge Tony Hubbard, brought in from Ypsilanti for an undetermined amount of time.

Several area post offices dispatched workers to Northville last week to clear out the undelivered mail.

U.S. mail delivery agency is independent entity

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

Here are some fast facts about America's mail delivery system:

- The United States Postal Service (USPS) is the world's largest mail delivery organization. It handles more than 170 billion pieces of mail a year, 40 percent of the planet's total. The USPS includes about 750,000 people and is second only to the U.S. military as the largest employer in the nation.
- The Constitution says that the federal government will be responsible for the postal system. From 1789 until 1971 that job was the purview of the Department of the Post Office.

- In 1971 Congress replaced the Department of the Post Office with the USPS. It's a government agency but unlike most others is run largely independently of the government. Since 1983 the USPS has received no taxpayer dollars. The system instead operates with money gained from user fees like the 32-cent first class stamp.
- Financial difficulties have led the USPS to hike fees several times. In 1974, for example, a first-class stamp cost eight cents. Today it costs 32 cents.

- By law only the USPS can handle first-class mail but private firms are allowed to handle the rest: two examples are UPS and Federal Express. There are five classes for mail: express and first through fourth class, each with its own postage rate.
- Our first public postal system was created even before the country was, in the year 1639 in the Massachusetts Bay Colony. In 1775, after war had broken out with Great Britain, the first Continental Congress named Ben Franklin the first postmaster.

- One of the most colorful chapters in postal history came in 1860-61 with the Pony Express. Riders took mail over the 2,000 miles separating St. Joseph, Mo., and Sacramento, Calif., in about 10 days. The transcontinental telegraph, however, put the Pony Express out of business just a year and a half after it began.

Senior residents nestle in at Wynwood living center

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

Judging from the way they've taken to life at Wynwood House, the folks who live in the community's new senior citizen assisted living center, are walking in tall cotton nowadays.

"I love it. I wanted something in Northville, something close to my home. Now this is my home," was how Harriet Welland put it over a lunch of barbecued chicken, potato salad and fresh broccoli in one of Wynwood's "neighborhood" dining rooms recently.

If her name sounds familiar, it should; Welland is a longtime Northville resident who's been active in everything from the Woman's Club to the Historical Society. She and her husband Bob, in fact, provided the furnishings for Mill Race Village's Wash Oak School.

An Ely Street resident for many years, Harriet decided this year to give Wynwood House a try after Bob passed away. She was the very first person to sign up.

Located on Six Mile just west of Sheldon Road, Wynwood puts Welland still just a hop, skip and a jump away from her kids and grandkids. She visits almost daily with her daughter who lives in King's Mill and all of the familiar sights and sounds of Northville are still there as well.

"It really makes a difference when you can be in the vicinity of your friends and family."

Wynwood House resident

"It really makes a difference when you can be in the vicinity of your friends and family," she said.

Statistics show, in fact, that most people who live in assisted living centers like Wynwood House either come from or have family members within a seven mile radius, according to Director Esther Strohmer.

Besides being close, Wynwood House offers the lifestyle Welland says she's looking for. Licensed for up to 72 residents, the place offers assisted living services that include everything from meals prepared and served to help with medications and those day-to-day tasks that are sometimes difficult for older folks.

Many social and recreational activities are also available to residents of the Northville Township living center.

Though she and all the other residents have been at Wynwood House barely a month, Welland, 76, is already getting involved in things again.

The former administrator of the allied health division at Henry Ford Community College, she's now president of Wynwood's resident council. Harriet already uses a warm and familiar "we" when she talks about her new home.

"We're a family," was how she put it.

That's the idea behind Wynwood, Strohmer explained. It's supposed to be more than just a glorified hotel.

"We try to give everything a very homey feel," she said.

Outside, patio chairs and a day-enport line the porch. Inside, the building is a collection of individual "neighborhoods" for up to 16 people, each including features like its own dining room and lounge.

There's also a beauty shop and library, and religious services are offered on Sundays. Everyone has a private or semi-private room with bath facilities, which they can decorate with their own furniture and mementos.

On Martha Dewhirst's wall, for example, there is a framed note of congratulations from President

Harriet Welland does a lot of work at her organizing desk in her living quarters.

Jimmy Carter on the occasion of her 60th wedding anniversary in 1979. Harriet's neighbor, Martha, is 97 and still going strong.

Her electric organ now sits in Wynwood's tea room but Martha doesn't get much time to play it. She reportedly spends a lot of hours as a cardsharp, beating all comers from among the residents and staff alike.

"Oh, don't embarrass me," was all she would say, albeit with a smile, when asked about it.

Harriet, meanwhile, has a painting of the Missouri farmhouse where she was born in her room. Nearby stands her desk, the "optimist on duty" sign prominently displayed. It's there that she works with Strohmer and Life Enrichment Coordinator Amy Schuster on a range of activities to offer to Wynwood residents.

The doings include everything from daily things like exercise and bowling to special events like a party for family members and an outing to see the holiday colors at Domino's Farms.

If you're interested in more information or a tour of Wynwood House call Strohmer at 420-6104.

have your winning number in suburban Detroit.

SPRING's audited circulation is a sure bet.

It's no gamble. Buying SPRING Newspapers in suburban Detroit is a sure bet. Why risk your newspaper media dollars on an un-audited circulation? When you buy SPRING Newspapers, you're buying the largest audited circulation in suburban Detroit. The Detroit News and the Free Press have yet to issue a current ABC audit, so there's no telling how many papers are being printed - and who's receiving them. SPRING Newspapers are not only a sure bet, they're also a smart bet. For example:

- 48% of adults in the SPRING survey area read SPRING weekly and daily newspapers.
- SPRING has an audited circulation of 761,885.

- SPRING delivers, on average, 1,060,000 total readers every week.*
- That means that SPRING delivers 1,167,000 gross impressions for an entire week.

Compare these numbers to your other media alternatives: only 37% of adults in the SPRING market read the weekday Detroit Free Press or The Detroit News!

owners (31%) than any other weekday newspaper.

To find out more about the Detroit market and for more information about our current audit, call the SPRING Newspaper Network at 1-800-382-8878.

City to seek street repair millage

will ask citizens to rededicate 1.92 mills for streets."
If approved the dedicated millage would amount to about $400,000 per year and would provide sufficient funds to manage a "pay-as-you-go" street improvement program, which would cover every street in the city over the next 20 years, Gallogly added.
Gallogly's approach tackles the street problems from two different vantage points.
"First we need to tackle the streets most in need of repair, and at the same time we need to provide maintenance to some of the newer streets so they won't fall into disrepair," he said.

According to the plan the work is to be done in several phases with Center Street - which Gallogly calls the city's poorest roadway - heading the list.
The plan also addresses the urgent needs of some of the city's better roads.
"This plan is not etched in stone," he explained.
"The city council can readjust priorities as we work through the plan."

The program also includes sidewalk repairs and replacement, traffic signals and signs, and storm sewer improvements, he remarked.
There are other financial components included in the proposed plan.
In addition to the dedicated millage, Gallogly recommended city officials seek supplemental funding, including state and federal aid, special districts, and public improvement funds.
"We recommend that the city be aggressive in seeking out and securing state and federal funds for street improvements," he said. "Any funds obtained can provide enhanced street improvements beyond that which is absolutely necessary to have safe, smooth, and quality roadways in our community."

City officials decided a dedicated millage was preferred over bonding because it would be less costly to taxpayers.
"This pay-as-you-go approach does not require interest payments like a bond issue would, and is more attractive from a taxpayer point of view," Gallogly maintained.

Bill addresses school safety

Rep. Deborah Whyman's bill to allow expanded school traffic safety zones passed the House of Representatives 88-0, and drew the support of 37 members who asked to be named co-sponsors.
Whyman, R-Canton, drafted the bill in response to a problem at her local Hulsing Elementary School, where 315 children have to cross Morton Taylor Road which has a 40 mph speed limit.

She thinks it will apply to many other schools in Michigan.
The bill goes to the Senate, which has until the end of the year to act.

Lawmakers ask Congress for constitutional amendment

Sen. Loren Bennett, R-Canton, had to settle for a largely partisan victory when the state Senate approved his resolution seeking to curb "judicial taxation."

Senate Concurrent Resolution 278 asks the U.S. Congress to submit to the states a constitutional amendment prohibiting federal courts from ordering local governments to increase taxes to settle cases.

The vote was 23-9 with six not voting. Voting yes were 20 Republicans, including all area Republicans, plus three Democrats.

Bennett said the Supreme Court in a 1990 Missouri case upheld the right of a federal court to impose state and local taxes, and 246 similar cases have been brought to the courts.

"The Supreme Court, with one sweeping decision, doffed the robe of judge and donned the role of legislator." In that case, the court ordered Kansas City property tax rates raised from $20.50 to $40 per $1,000 of valuation - a total of 1.6 billion.

Four Democratic senators - including Hart and Smith - issued formal protests in the Senate Journal, saying Bennett's resolution would "limit the ability of the federal courts to address historical discrimination ... The only thing state government has to say is, 'We're not going to pay.'"

NO EXPUNGEMENT

Five criminal sexual offenses will be added to the list that will remain on an offender's record forever under a bill sponsored by Sen. Mike Rogers, R-Brighton.

The Senate Judiciary Committee reported out Rogers' bill to add first-, second- and third-degree criminal sexual assault, assault with intent to commit sexual penetration, and assault with intent to commit second-degree conduct.

Currently, only crimes involving life sentences and traffic offenses remain on an offender's record for life. "A sexual offender cannot hide behind a record from which serious crimes have been expunged," said Rogers.

Clinton County Prosecutor Chuck Sherman, in testimony, said, "Sex offenders are more likely to re-offend than any other class of criminals. This bill will help assure that anyone convicted of a sex offense can never again work their way into a position of trust or authority over potential victims."

"Long over due," added Livingston Prosecutor David Morse of the bill. "Parents have a right to know if sex offenders are living or working in their community."

The Senate will return to action Dec. 3 after a two-week recess for deer season and Thanksgiving. Rogers' bill also must make it through a crowded House agenda by year's end to become law. If not, it will have to be reintroduced in 1997.

MACK APPOINTED

Wayne County Probate Judge Milton Mack is part of a 21-member task force appointed by the state Supreme Court to find better ways to protect the interests of persons under the care of a guardian or conservator.

Beginning work in January, the panel of judges, lawyers and other officials will explore ways to improve court rules, management policies, and statutes while maximizing the independence of protected persons. Calhoun Probate Judge Philip Harter will chair the panel.

'Toys' campaign makes appeal

By RANDY COBLE
Staff Writer

It's getting to be that time of year again. Frost on the windowpanes, a chill in the air and presents beginning to pile up under the tree.

Sadly, that last part's not true for everybody, including some of our neighbors right here in Northville and Novi. You can change that, though, and make a needy kid's Christmas bright next month by taking part in the Toys for Tots program.

"Christmas is the one time of year when every kid would give up a meal for a present," local program coordinator Rebecca Yarbrough said. "My goal is to have no kid without a toy to unwrap on Christmas morning."

The Novi/Northville Coalition for Toys for Tots aims to make that happen for kids who live in several area communities, including right here at home.

"There are needy families right here in Northville and Novi. We just hide them well," Yarbrough said.

Toys for Tots began in 1947 with a Marine colonel named Bill Hendricks. He'd met a needy child in Los Angeles and wanted to make sure the boy had a toy for Christmas. He found many agencies and organizations that provided food, clothing and other staples but no one was specifically set up to distribute toys to poor kids.

That changed when Hendricks founded Toys for Tots.

In the half-century since then his organization, in cooperation with the Marine Corps Reserves, has provided Christmas toys to an estimated 100 million or more children.

Walt Disney himself designed the program's locomotive logo and celebrities ranging from John Wayne to Nat "King" Cole have pitched in to raise public awareness about Toys for Tots.

The Coalition got in on the act four years ago with the cooperation of members of Northville's American Legion Post 147 and VFW Post 4012 and Novi's American Legion Post 19.

Last year the organization distributed more than 6,000 toys to kids who otherwise would have gotten nothing on Christmas.

For Yarbrough, who's been involved with Toys for Tots for 15 years now, that bottom line makes it all worthwhile.

If you want to find out how it feels for yourself buy a new, unwrapped toy and drop it off at one of several Toys for Tots dropoff locations.

If you do, Yarbrough asks donors to put some careful thought into their gifts.

"Think about if it was your kid and you only could give them one toy under the tree. What would it be? Make it something special," she said.

Make your move soon as toys will only be collected for the next three to four weeks.

Coalition volunteers will then sort donated toys by age and sex and distribute them to community organizations like the Goodfellows, Jaycees, the Salvation Army, churches and battered women's shelters.

"This frees them up to concentrate on finding food and money and other resources," Yarbrough explained. "Toys for Tots takes a burden off of them."

To find out how you can contribute to Toys For Tots or volunteer your workplace as a drop-off point, call Yarbrough at (313) 477-6449.

My Health. My Needs. My Hospital.

"The women's programs at St. Mary Hospital meet all my needs."

My doctor said I needed a few tests, and told me about St. Mary Hospital's new Marian Women's Center. It's close to home, and the staff is committed to keeping women healthy. I found a warm, caring atmosphere designed to help women feel comfortable.

The center provides education and support programs for women of all ages. Diagnostic testing like mammography, radiology, and ultrasound are also available, as well as a complete breast health clinic.

The Marian Women's Center, adjacent to the new Miracle of Life Maternity Center, provides family services like childbirth education, a breastfeeding program, and even pre- and postnatal exercise classes. We're planning to start a family soon, and all the programs I need are now available close to home.

My mother was interested in the Marian Women's Center menopause support group, which educates women and removes some of the mystery about this time of life.

And if I want more information about health topics concerning women, I can attend specialized seminars throughout the year. The Marian Women's Center cares about women. That's why St. Mary Hospital is my hospital.

Our Opinion

Tougher standards will send clear signal

Northville High School administrators are upping the ante in their efforts to keep alcohol and drugs out of the school.

Officials are targeting repeat student offenders with stricter disciplinary measures and are warning all students that one drink could result in some pretty severe punishments.

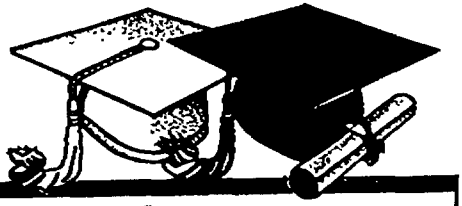

The school recently purchased a saliva testing device that can determine a student's blood alcohol level. The test will hopefully deter teens from drinking before and during the school day.

At the same time school officials also revised the student code of conduct, adding an additional five-day suspension for any student caught under the influence of drugs or alcohol.

We're encouraged by this recent turn of events. It is no secret that Northville High School has not fared well in recent Alcohol and Other Drug surveys.

Survey statistics show a continued increase in alcohol and drug use by high school students over the last five years.

So instead of throwing more money into programs that have dubious success rates, school officials are taking a new, tougher approach. By implementing these measures school officials are communicating a simple message to students and parents - alcohol and drugs will not be tolerated at the high school.

Education

If students ignore the message they will face harsher penalties.

The new policies also bring parents into the mix. Students suspended for alcohol or drug use will be recommended for participation in the Facing Alcohol Challenges Together Program.

We couldn't agree more. The community and school district have spent thousands of dollars fighting substance abuse by the students.

The end result is that, with no parental intervention, the at-risk student continues his or her downward spiral.

So now the high school has taken a different, two-pronged approach - handing out severe punishments to those who abuse at school, and forcing parents to become involved.

We support this strategy, and congratulate school officials for taking off the gloves and sending a clear message to students who continue to abuse drugs and alcohol.

Time's ripe for new beginning

Members of the new Northville Township Board of Trustees were sworn into office for fresh four-year terms on Wednesday, Nov. 20.

Swearing in Supervisor Karen Woodside was family friend and distinguished legal expert Roman Gribbs. Many people remember Gribbs from his tenure as mayor of Detroit.

Gribbs, now a 1st District Court of Appeals judge, told the gathering he's been a resident of Northville Township for three years. After addressing the audience briefly, he administered the oath of office to Woodside then embraced the supervisor to the enthusiastic applause of those present.

In an ironic twist, 35th District Court Judge John MacDonald administered the oath to new Treasurer Dick Henningsen. In his remarks, Judge MacDonald pointed out that Henningsen was an elected member of the board of trustees when he, MacDonald, served as supervisor of the township.

Wayne County Probate Judge James Lacey was the third justice doing the inaugural honors. In addition to Woodside and Henningsen, Clerk Sue Hillebrand and trustees Mark Abbo, Russ

Government

Fogg, Bill Selinsky and Marv Gans were also sworn in last week.

Among the spectators were Wayne County Prosecutor John O'Hair, Woodside's boss, and state Rep. Robert Geake, R-Northville.

Everywhere there were broad smiles, well wishes, handshakes, hugs.

Swearing in ceremonies are always upbeat affairs filled with bright outlooks on the future. But in this case we believe Northville Township government has a real opportunity to reinvent itself. With a new manager coming in and four new trustees on board who carry no political baggage, now is a good time to make a new start.

With the rancor and disorganization of the previous administration now a thing of the past, the township's elected representatives should resolve to work in harmony where possible, disagree respectfully when necessary and move ahead with the people's business.

As with all beginnings, there's cause for hope.

Don't discount the message

It seems Barb Flis has touched a nerve. When the longtime Northville education advocate dressed down the school board and superintendent for their perceived complacency two weeks ago, quite a few people gave us a call or wrote letters to the editor to tell us they felt the criticism was long overdue.

Robert Jackson

District officials maintain change comes slowly and painfully, and that Northville has moved forward in a controlled manner.

Critics on the other hand believe that the district is essentially stuck in the mud, spinning its wheels, and that failed leadership at the top has had a crippling effect on education.

The criticisms raise an interesting question - just how many members of our community believe there are real problems plaguing our school district and its leadership?

It might not take us long to find out. Beginning in December hundreds of community residents will get the opportunity to speak their minds regarding the state of education in Northville.

The survey will provide answers district officials say they need to continue charting a "path of progress" for Northville schools. It should also give the district a better understanding as to why the recent bond and millage issues failed.

While I encourage everyone called to participate in the survey - community feedback is extremely important and necessary - I am concerned that with all the emphasis being placed on this survey we might all ignore something extremely important.

Like the message Barb Flis delivered two weeks ago. The issue is not necessarily whether 40 people or 4,000 people agree with her. The fact that Flis - who is involved in education issues at the local, state, and federal levels - has spent the better part of seven years serving on various district committees is important to note.

Regardless of what they find in the results of the survey, district officials should not tune out the comments made by Flis. They should, instead, embrace the criticism and apply what has been learned to make the district a better place to educate the children of this community.

That is what strong leaders do in all walks of life, recognizing that true success cannot come without standing up to criticism and overcoming adversity.

And those are traits that cannot be measured on any survey.

Images

Oakland Community College photography student Carlos Quesada disappears behind a black cloth Monday morning at Maybury State Park while making images with his 4-by-5 "view" camera.

Preconceptions can backfire

With pen and pad in one hand and tape recorder in the other I headed to the Northville Town Hall Lecture on Monday, Nov. 18, to hear the guest speaker, attorney Sharon McPhail.

Carol Workens

McPhail told the audience to erase everything they had heard or read about her because the statements weren't true and she, having the most experience on the subject, would tell us the truth.

Not many eraser crumbs fell under my chair because I didn't really know that much about McPhail.

McPhail talked about a variety of things, including prejudice and the stories that go on in people's heads on just about everything. Sometimes people write a story about someone they have seen but to whom they have not been formally introduced and find out later that the person is not at all like what they had thought.

A day or two after the lecture, while headed home in my car, I heard a news report on the radio indicating that McPhail at the Town Hall lecture had said that Detroit Mayor Dennis Archer was building "monuments to greed."

I didn't remember hearing her say that, I immediately thought, "Checking my tape I realized that she did say 'monuments to greed' but the recording was so poor recording I couldn't make out the words leading up to that phrase."

McPhail had been quoting a passage from the Bible about loving one another as God has loved you just prior to the phrase "monuments of greed," which was immediately followed by a mention of us not needing more money or Gucci sweaters.

Even though I had no information about McPhail other than what she had told us at the lecture, I could not understand how Archer's name could be linked to her quote.

During the luncheon that followed the lecture, the women at the table were commenting on how they thought McPhail had been quite complimentary to Archer.

To be on the safe side I called McPhail to clarify whether or not I had not misinterpreted what she had said.

"We were building monuments to greed is what I said," McPhail told me during her return telephone call.

"What I was talking about was that the people of the city voted for gambling. As far as I know those (stadiums) were decided on before he (Archer) got there. Coleman Young was working on that stuff."

As reporters we, like anybody else, have stories going on in our heads.

I am, as the saying goes, an open book when it comes to McPhail.

If reporters are going to interpret a phrase out of context they are naturally going to draw from the previous information they keep stored about in their minds.

At the community level, reporters try to be as careful as possible to make sure their facts are right. We are working down the street from where you shop and work.

The radio reporter had a story going on in his head. I too have a story going, but I am only on page one of this book.

Mill Race Matters

As families across the nation gather for Thanksgiving, the Northville Historical Society family would like to take time to thank all of those who have worked this year and in the past to keep Mill Race Village a viable part of the Northville community.

During its 25 years of existence, the village has been fortunate to receive the dedicated attention of countless hundreds if not thousands of volunteers. An attempt at a list would prove useless as many of these individuals went about their work silently and without recognition. Those who have helped to restore a building, maintain grounds, create a new project, organize a social activity, assist in a fund-raising endeavor, develop a program, donate materials or money, or simply assist where and when needed are too countless to name.

Special attention can go this year to the Historical Society's new office manager Diann Dupuis for her exceptional organizational ability and special gift for communicating with visitors, contributors, and potential clientele. Marietta Rathbun and Elayne Elliott assumed organization of the weekly docent force and regenerated a needed segment of the organization.

Members of the board of directors, Carolyn Stuart, co-president; Fran Gazlay, co-president; Art Rockall, vice president; and directors Melody Arndt, Joelle Sarkozy, Sonia Swigart, Bob Juhasz, Earl Bryant, Susan Sherwood, Joanne Harris, Marianne Barry and Betty Omar worked monthly to resolve issues of concern for the organization.

Betty Omar and Diane Rockall chaired the organization's biggest fund-raiser, Tivoli Fair, which contributes the major share of the village's operating budget.

Approximately 12 individuals devoted more than 40 hours each to this project with numerous others contributing lesser amounts of time.

Regular groups such as the Stone Gang, garden groups, and the Archives Committee met weekly to maintain regular activities for the village as well as the Historical Society. Other committees such as the Quarterly committee, the Home Decoration committee, and the Finance committee meet periodically throughout the year to handle needs as they arise. And special groups like the Victorian Festival committee and the Fourth of July group devote lengthy hours during designated periods of the year.

City workers from the department of Public Works and the Recreation Department spent time and energy to keep the village attractive and viable for the community. Numerous members of the community shared memorabilia from their homes and their family histories while others contributed much needed financial assistance.

To all of these and to the others not included in this list a special thank you from the Mill Race Village family, from the Northville Historical Society, and from the community which enjoys the benefits of a magnificent community resource for all to share.

Thompson gets shot at prosecuting adult suspect

By TIM RICHARD
Staff Writer

Oakland Prosecutor Richard Thompson got a going-away present from the Michigan Supreme Court — a chance to try Joseph D. Fultz, now in his mid-20s, as an adult for an alleged sexual assault committed when he was 15.

The highest court voted 5-2 to order Oakland Probate Judge Sandra Silver to waive jurisdiction over Fultz, binding him over to Circuit Court for trial as an adult.

If convicted as an adult, Fultz could get 4-10 years in prison. Had he been convicted when he was a juvenile, he could have been placed in a boys training home for a year. Judge Silver found that, even if he were found guilty, no facilities existed for someone in his mid-20s.

Thompson, who lost the Aug. 6 primary for renomination as prosecutor, had a tough reputation for appealing more judges' decisions than the other 82 prosecutors combined. And he appealed this one through the circuit, appeals and supreme courts.

Fultz was 15 and a niece in Holly was 7 in 1984 when two incidents were alleged to have occurred.

"We find the probate court abused its discretion in denying the prosecutor's motion to waive jurisdiction to the circuit court," said the half-page Supreme Court order. Concurring were Chief Justice James Brickley, Justices Dorothy Comstock Riley, Elizabeth Weaver, Patricia Boyle and Conrad Mallett Jr.

Silver was to issue the order binding Fultz over to circuit court last week, according to assistant prosecutor John S. Pallas. Fultz is free, at least until his arraignment.

Justice Charles Levin, retiring at the end of the year, filed one of the lengthy dissents for which he is noted — 10 pages — with Justice Michael Cavanagh concurring.

Fultz was 23 in 1991 when the girl brought the incidents to light. She said Fultz had handcuffed her a bedpost and forced her to have intercourse, forced her to perform fellatio and threatened her mother and sister if she told anyone.

Levin's dissent criticized the high court majority for issuing an order without an opinion that "thoughtfully, carefully, or adequately address(es) the issues."

"The defendant has in fact lived a life free of crime for eight years," Levin said. "There is thus no evidence that would justify a finding that he poses a threat to the public safety — one of the law's criteria."

Although the charge is serious, Levin said "the seriousness of the charge offense is but one criteria and may not alone be used to determine" whether Fultz is a danger to society.

Levin said the majority justices "usurp the probate judge's and jury's roles, as finders of fact, in deciding that the niece's allegations, rather than Fultz's denial, are to be believed in weighting as a factor the niece's assertion that she remained silent for over seven years because Fultz had threatened her."

Levin concluded: "The probate judge carefully and thoughtfully reviewed all the criteria. There was no abuse of discretion."

Silver took into account that Fultz was by then married with three children, had no criminal record and was unemployed but seeking work. She also considered that wife April Fultz testified her husband had never done anything inappropriate in their four years of marriage.

Pallas, arguing for the prosecutor's office, told the high court that under Silver's ruling, Fultz would "in effect have been immunized from criminal prosecution," and that the public welfare demands criminal prosecution.

"Can the juvenile offender escape punishment merely through the passage of time?" Pallas asked rhetorically. "You might just get away with it."

"Judge Silver is in essence blaming the victim for not coming forward earlier," Pallas told the justices, adding, "The prisons of this state are filled with convicts who are married and have children."

Since arguing the case two months ago, defense attorney Earl R. Spuhler of Fenton has joined the Genesee County prosecutor's office as an assistant prosecutor.

Financial institutions team up with area elementary schools to give students a hands-on experience in money management

Novi Woods Elementary School student Cathleen Garbacik counts the deposits as part of her duties as head teller.

A penny saved is a penny earned.

Banking has never been easier. There are ATM machines in the lobby of or on the outside of banks if you can't make it to the bank during business hours. There are also small branches and ATMs in supermarkets and shopping malls.

Area elementary schools are also making it easy for students to save, as well as providing them with a good learning experience.

The Amerman Elementary School bank just opened for business on Nov. 21. Part of the Partnership in Education program, Community Federal Credit Union has been working with Amerman since 1991.

But this year there's a new twist - for the first time, the student bank is online with the Plymouth branch of the credit union.

To staff the bank, students filled out job application forms similar to those filled out by adults.

During the simplified interview process, students were evaluated on their ability to answer basic questions, and on their appearance, their demeanor and their ability to act professionally.

"They liked being in the spotlight," said Michael Haggerty, assistant vice president of the Northville branch of Community Federal Credit Union. "They were a little nervous but they liked it."

"They are learning some skills they can use when they go for their first interview."

The 35 fifth grade student staff members are not compensated, except for a big party at the end of the year.

"It is an excellent hands-on experience for them," said Jeff Lightfoot who has worked very closely with the students and the credit union.

There is also a group of students in the bank's marketing department who come up with ideas for publicity. Promotional ideas can consist of a video, a commercial,

Harold Price is the food coordinator at Civic Concern.

Price has the cost of food memorized

By CAROL WORKENS
Staff Writer

Harold Price, a resident of Northville Township for 33 years, definitely knows his way around a store and where to shop the sales.

Price has been working with Northville's Civic Concern for about four or five years.

Civic Concern provides assistance for Novi and Northville needy families with food, rent, utilities and medical needs.

For the last two years, Price has been the food coordinator and is responsible for menus which list what foods are available.

Price and about four volunteers, and sometimes two to four high school students, will go to the old welding area at Northville High School where the food is stored, to pack the items into bags.

"The high school has been very cooperative," Price said. "They provide the room and provide us with the student help during the school year."

In the bags are vegetables, fruit, ravioli, cereal, pasta, spaghetti sauce, peanut butter, jelly, soup and crackers, among other items.

"This is not the only support but it does provide quite a bit of food for them," Price said.

More unusual donated items, such as sardines, salmon, cream of broccoll or mushroom soup, and single items of a variety of foods, are not put in the bags but are set on the "goodie table" from which shoppers can choose.

"People should check their dates before they donate," Price said. Volunteers have to throw out any items which have expired dates.

After all the bags are packed, they are taken out to the volunteers' cars and hauled to the Northville Senior Center. Food is distributed twice a month, on the second and fourth Fridays, year round. A single person receives one bag of food, while a family of two or more receives two bags.

On a recent Friday, the volunteers gave out 75 bags of food and packed another 25 that went to Focus HOPE.

The puppies held by Lorie DeGrazia, right, and vet assistant Colleen Porter, were adopted.

Abandoned puppies adopted

By CAROL WORKENS
Staff Writer

They were in a box but they weren't gift wrapped and they were not going to be placed under a Christmas tree.

Instead the brown cardboard box containing four 8-week-old female yellow Labrador mixed puppies was dumped off near Rocky's of Northville on Seven Mile Road in Northville Township.

The puppies were discovered by a neighbor of a client of veterinarian Carol Geake while she was walking her dog on Nov. 21.

The woman thought it was rather peculiar for the occupant to take a box out of the car, place it on the ground and drive away so she went over to take a look inside.

There are lots of options to dumping unwanted animals, according to Lorie DeGrazia, a veterinarian with Geake's clinic.

"You can often call veterinary clinics. A lot of times we can help people place them without actually bringing them here."

People can call their vets to get local numbers for various organizations to contact. Organizations such as Friends for Animals, Animal Aid and the Humane Society will be glad to provide assistance.

"There are lots and lots of groups that can help," DeGrazia said.

It's lucky for the puppies that they were rescued in time. They could have been run over by a car or truck, they could have starved to death, or, at this time of year, they could have suffered from exposure and died.

"It is very cruel," DeGrazia said "It is not fair to them at all."

The puppies are in relatively good health, according to DeGrazia, and have now been wormed and given their first shots.

This story has a happy ending, though. As of Monday, all four had been adopted.

"We do know of some dogs and cats who are being fostered out right now that need homes," DeGrazia said.

For more information on other dogs or cats that need homes, call 349-2598.

Old Village School has two boys who volunteer to help carry bags on distribution days.

"We have quite a unique operation," Price said.

Price recently went to pick up 35 heads of lettuce and 35 pounds of apples which a frequent contributor to Civic Concern had recently bought.

Price buys food at very responsible prices at the Oakland County Food Bank through government and Skillman Foundation grants.

With the help of a truck and a driver who volunteers four times a year, Price can pick up 4,000 to 5,000 pounds of food at a time. Last year, Civic Concern collected 9,000 pounds of food. Price also takes advantage of sales at area stores.

Food donations come from area churches such as Our Lady of Victory Church, St. Paul's Lutheran Church, First United Methodist Church in Northville and the First Presbyterian Church in Northville. All the area churches help with monetary contributions when needed.

So far this year Cooke Middle School has held a paper drive and collected Kleenex, toilet paper and paper towels, while Meads Mill Middle School held a food drive. Ninety rolls of toilet paper were given out on Friday.

Besides food donations, Civic Concern is also in need of monetary donations, which are tax deductible.

Northville's Kiwanis and Moose lodges are among the many monetary contributors.

"We get it from all over the community," said Price.

Many area businesses adopt a family for Christmas. Civic Concern receives the proceeds from the Goodfellows paper drive, and from the Common Folk dinner which was held at Genitt's Hole-in-the-Wall restaurant.

Civic Concern has also been the beneficiary of the food collection of both the Northville and Novi post offices for the last few years. Residents put food out in their mail boxes which the mail carrier collects.

"In addition to food we help people with rent and utility payments and medical needs," Price said.

The headquarters for Civic Concern is at Cooke Middle School, 21200 Taft Road. For more information, call 344-1033.

'Looking For Richard' translates Shakespeare's gripping drama

For the first time in his lengthy career, Al Pacino dons three hats as creator, director and star of "Looking for Richard." In the vein of Truffaut's "Day for Night" or Fellini's "8 1/2", Pacino's impassioned project intertwines the telling of "Richard III" — Shakespeare's gripping drama of power, lust and betrayal — with an intimate look at the actors' and filmmakers' processes as they grapple with their characterizations and with translating their enthusiasm for the play on to film.

Pacino takes the cameras on a free-spirited comic romp through the streets of New York to the birthplace of Shakespeare, and finally, to an emotionally-charged production of "Richard III."

The opportunity to present Shakespeare in an untraditional format and make it as accessible as possible for a modern audience charmed a dedicated and benevolent cast including Estelle Parsons as Queen Margot, Alec Baldwin as Clarence, Kevin Spacey as Buckingham, Winona Ryder as Lady Anne and Aidan Quinn as Richmond.

With contagious enthusiasm and the assistance of such respected actors as Sir John Gielgud, Sir Derek Jacobi, Kenneth Branagh, Vanessa Redgrave, James Earl Jones and Kevin Kline, Pacino seeks to prove that everyone can enjoy Shakespeare, and that his tales are timeless in their exploration of human nature.

While throwing themselves into their characters, Pacino and his actors had to break down centuries of barriers surrounding one of Shakespeare's most complicated and intimidating works. "You don't need to understand every single word that's said, as long as you get the gist of what's going on. Just trust it and you'll get it," says Pacino.

In defiance of tradition, the viewer is allowed to go behind the scenes and witness the actual process of acting. The weightier aspects of "Richard III" are leveled by informal shots of the actors digging their teeth into their roles in an often comic and sometimes heated forum.

Pacino's methods of analysis are insightful, amusing and engrossing. As he stands in London's legendary Globe Theatre and in the austere halls of New York City's Cloisters Museum, Pacino transcends the barrier between actors and their audience.

His devoted pantheon of performers evidently had their own heartfelt enthusiasm for the project. "Some of these actors returned the checks we gave them and told us to put the money into the film instead."

While "Looking for Richard" journeys with the actors both in and out of character, following their struggles, debates and revelations about the play, Pacino also takes to the streets of New York to measure public opinion about Richard III.

Pacino's wild energy receives a range of responses from "Richard who?" to opinionated preaching on Shakespeare, as one street person proclaims: "He helped us and instructed us in the art of feeling."

Pacino notes, "By juxtaposing the day-to-day life of the actors and their characters with ordinary people, we attempted to create a comic mosaic — a very different Shakespeare. Our main goal with this project is to reach an audience that would not normally participate in this kind of language and world."

REAL ESTATE

When title companies, Realtors cross the line

By Jame M. Woodard
Copley News Service

Title companies and Realtor firms usually work well together as a business team, helping consumers purchase homes and other real estate. But sometimes they get too close.

Some title companies are providing services, materials and even cash to real estate brokers who send business their way. This falls into the area of illegal "kickbacks," and regulatory agencies are cracking down on violating firms.

"We're now investigating the practices of five title companies," said Dennis Ward, chief of enforcement for the California Department of Insurance. He declined to identify the firms while the investigations are under way.

California probably leads the country in the number of recent violations, but the problem is nationwide.

"We plan to conduct in-depth examinations of 15 to 20 firms by the end of this fiscal year, next June," Ward said.

The most common practice being targeted in current investigations is the printing and distribution of promotional property flyers or brochures. In some cases, this service is provided free by title companies for "good customer" Realtors or their sales associates.

Other questionable practices are providing computers, software packages, cellular phones, fax machines and other equipment for Realtor firms.

In some cases, a full-time escrow coordinator - an employee of the title company - is headquartered in a Realtor's office. The title company pays rent for the coordinator's office space, sometimes a far greater rent than the space is really worth, Ward said.

Many of these practices have become widespread in the real estate and title industries and need to be controlled, he noted.

The Arie is uniquely suited for weekend travelers

By James McAlexander
Copley News Service

For weekend travelers concerned about finding a safe place to park their recreational vehicle when they return home, the impressive Arie will put an end to those worries. A full-sized R.V. storage unit has been designed to fit alongside the garage of this 2,171-square-foot charmer. When you return from a trip, whether it lasts a few days or a few weeks, you'll be happy to have this beautiful house waiting.

A wrap-around porch with waist-high railing adds a homey touch to the exterior design. If the weather turns chilly, warm up by spending some time in the spa that's located in the glass-enclosed green room.

The interior motif also will lift your spirits. There is plenty of room here for entertaining friends in comfortable surroundings. Near the recessed entry, the vaulted living room serves as a cozy retreat. Warmed by a wood stove, this is the perfect spot for rejoicing in good conversation or savoring the view through the huge bay window.

Meals are to be appreciated in the Arie. The formal dining room boasts French doors that open to the porch, allowing a cool breeze to grace your dinner table. For more informal eating, a breakfast nook and eating bar are on either side of the walk-through kitchen, in addition to all the built-in appliances, there is a roomy walk-in pantry.

The isolated master suite features personal access to both the greenroom/spa and a back deck that runs the length of the building. Other master suite amenities include a walk-in closet and private bathroom.

The second bedroom, which also is isolated for privacy, will function well as quarters for overnight guests or an elderly parent that is part of the household. A full bathroom is close by.

Separating the two bedrooms, the large family room is the main gathering point in the Arie. Lots of space here to set up a pool table, or a couple of couches and a big-screen television.

When the sun is shining, put the barbecue out on the back deck.

For a study plan of the Arie (403-03), send $10 to Landmark Designs, c/o HomeTown Newspapers, 323 E. Grand River, Howell, MI 48843. (Be sure to specify plan name and number when ordering.) For more information, call (800) 562-1151.

Welcome to Mary's Cottage

Mary Tata says there is no such thing as a cottage sale. You won't find it in the dictionary, and she's never been to one. But that didn't stop her from dreaming one up.

"I got the idea from the cottage industries, when people used to make things with their hands and sell them. Then, my sister got me this great stationery with a cottage on it," Tata said.

Fate took over to produce the first cottage sale in the Milford area. Just like the art she produces, the wife of author and funeral director Tom Lynch likes to pioneer new territory.

So what in the world is a cottage sale, anyway? It's her eclectic collection of something for everyone; including antiques, floral arrangements, rustic furniture, interesting craft and retail items. It might be a special bow, or hand-painting that makes you want to take something home.

Nothing is ordinary here. The items for sale are as varied as this lady's talent. Some are original art objects, like the sculptures and some hand-sewn items.

Two unique scarves are an example. One is an off-white Victorian silk number with golden charms sewn onto the hem of the scarf as fringe. A small pocket is sewn into the inside of the scarf to carry necessities.

The second scarf was inspired by her fisherman

Other artists who contributed to Mary Tata's Cottage Sale include:

Penny Pfeil: Grown-up dress up clothes for young girls.
Sher Toburen: Hand-stamped and embossed cards and stationery. (Toburen also gave demonstrations during the sale.)

husband. It's a deep purple adorned with fishing tackle, weights and lures as fringe.

Although the Nov. 9 sale wasn't open to the public, about 75 special invitations were sent out. Many Liberty Street neighbors were included, as well as friends and relatives. This prompted an added bonus — reasonable prices on her items.

Guests wandered through the layout of Tata's and Lynch's exquisitely decorated home and snacked on cider and desserts. Many shoppers arrived promptly at the start of the sale to get the best selections.

The rooms were organized by themes. The kitchen/dining room contained some of the children's toys and items. A throwback to the childhood days of yesteryear, cigar boxes were filled with collectibles like marbles, match-box cars and pencils. One box was filled with art supplies, including colored pencils and markers. The dining area held many of the jewelry items, and the formal dining room contained the art objects.

Some of Tata's favorite items are the baskets she creates; mixing the old with the new, and combining interest-

Majestic mums take work

By C.Z. Guest
Copley News Service

GARDENING

The fall flowering time of the garden mum is nature's grandest show.

To reap the greatest satisfaction for yourself and your garden mums, there are a few simple tasks that need to be accomplished, not just in the fall but all year.

The first thing to remember is to get the root system of your plants established before winter sets in. Generally, garden mums purchased in pots will have a more consistent root system than those dug from the garden. The garden-grown plants will require slightly more care, and the most important ingredient for success is water.

With the coming of fall, we all naturally start paying less attention to our gardens. In many areas where September and October can be dry months, this is a terrible mistake. You must keep newly planted garden mums or any other plantings from drying out until the ground freezes.

Some care and handling tips:
 Plant garden mums in a sunny spot where they can get at least a half-day's sun. Plant in fertile, well-drained soil. Soil can be improved upon by adding compost, peat moss or other organic matter. Garden mums planted outdoors in the fall do not need to be fertilized until they begin to grow the following spring. There is also no need to prune back plants until spring.

Mulch plants after several hard frosts with straw hay or evergreen branches.

In the spring, remove any old plant stems (a rake works perfectly) and gradually remove the mulch as the season warms up.

During the growing season, liquid or dry fertilizers may be used; read instructions carefully - this is the key to vigorous growth. Continue to fertilize until August or until buds begin to show color.

To encourage branching and development of compact plants, begin pinching by using your thumbnail and index finger as soon as

Maintenance for mums

Beautiful fall mums require a minimal amount of work year-round. Watering and fertilizing top the list.

- Plant mums in fertile, well-drained soil. Spot must be sunny.
- Use compost, peat moss or other organic matter to enrich soil.
- Fertilize only during the growing season of spring and early summer. Do not fertilize once buds appear.
- Do not prune during winter.
- Mulch with straw, hay or evergreen branches after a few

- hard frosts. Take the mulch off in the spring and remove dead plant stems from mums.
- Keep mums compact by pinching off new growth. Pinch growth back once a new stem reaches 3 to 5 inches in length. Do not pinch new growth after July 15 in the North or Aug. 1 in the South.

Quantity and quality in stock at food store

By SCOTT DANIEL
Staff Writer

If you're like everyone else, grocery shopping comes in at about 97th on your list of things to do.

Let's see. There's the kids' soccer game, dry cleaning to pick up, friends to visit, housework to do ... the list goes on and on.

So instead of visiting the local superstore at midnight, why not get your grocery shopping done for, say, the next month?

At Gordon Food Service in Wixom, you can do just that. The store, which opened in mid-October, allows customers to buy both quantity and quality at a reasonable price.

Manager Gerry Ward said about 75 percent of his store's business thus far is from local homeowners. Gordon Food Service also has many corporate clients, he remarked.

"We cater to most smaller restaurants and grocery stores," Ward said. "A lot of school districts come to supplement their (food) orders."

Gordon Food Service has been one of the leading suppliers of food service products in Michigan for more than 50 years. The company serviced corporate clients and school districts exclusively until opening its "Marketplace" stores in 1970.

Since then, 54 Gordon Food Service Marketplace stores have opened around the state.

Ward said the company decided to open a 14,000 square foot facility in Wixom to meet increasing demand in the area.

"A lot of people were already familiar with us because of our Brighton and Farmington Hills stores," he added.

Located just off Wixom Road between I-96 and Pontiac Trail at 49200 Wixom Tech Drive, the store offers a variety of food and other products.

A huge selection of frozen foods is available. Everything from vegetables, to deserts and pizza are on hand.

Then there's can goods. Again, an assortment of vegetables can be found as well as soups and condiments.

But take note: you won't find too many single serving containers. If you like corn, for example, your average GFS container holds several pounds of kernels.

Fresh produce, meats and dairy products can fill immediate needs if bulk buying isn't your preference.

Ward said an advantage of shopping at Gordon is quality of its grocery items.

"We offer restaurant quality products," he said.

Party supplies and paper products also come in larger quantities. Table top items, table covers and utensils are just a few of the other products available.

Unlike many of the warehouse clubs, there's no membership fee at Gordon Food Service.

"There's no cost difference to buy off the shelf," said Ward.

The store also offers 5 percent discounts for many types of business organizations, including churches.

Gordon Food Service is open Monday through Saturday 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. and on Sunday from noon to 5 p.m. For more information, call (810) 926-0353.

Potlucks are a perfect way to entertain

By Priscilla Lister
Copley News Service

"Like old-fashioned church suppers, communal dinners are coming into their own again," says Marion Cunningham in the new edition of the classic cookbook, "The Fannie Farmer Cookbook" (Knopf), revised for the '90s. "It's a good way for working people, who might not otherwise have the time, to put together a festive dinner. And if everyone chips in, the financial burden is shared."

Potluck parties can especially fill the bill during December. Whether it's a gathering of co-workers during a holiday lunch at the office, a celebration of neighbors at the new year, a Kwanzaa or Hanukkah or Christmas feast for an extended family, or a party among friends, make it potluck. Everyone shares in the giving, which really can make everyone happier.

Cunningham suggests that for a potluck dinner, it's "wise to have someone coordinate the meal so that everything goes together well." Or the meal could be coordinated with plenty of creative leeway, such as simply assigning courses.

For some potluck parties, no specific assignments are necessary. Consider a cookie exchange, where each person brings a dozen or more cookies to share and exchange. Or a cocktail buffet, where everyone brings his or her own favorite finger food. Or a salad bar, where everyone brings a prepared salad. Or a pizza party where everyone brings the ingredients for their favorite toppings.

The potluck possibilities are virtually as endless as food choices. But there are certain considerations that can make potluck parties more successful.

The editors and writers of Sunset magazine offer some good seasonal entertaining ideas for potlucks in "Sunset Recipe Annual, 1995 Edition" (Sunset Publishing).

"When we gather families and friends to share the season's festivities, it's their company we want to enjoy. We choose and serve foods that will make friends comfortable, get them involved, break the ice and reaffirm traditions," say the editors.

Jerry Anne Di Vecchio, a Sunset writer, says for a dish to make it onto her party menu, it has "to meet some tough standards, especially for the come-and-go gathering we particularly enjoy." Her primary criteria: foods that stay fresh for hours, are self-serve, can be eaten with fingers and require no

To get your juices flowing, here are some general ideas for great potluck dishes:

Any bruschetta or crostini, the crispy Italian bread appetizers topped with chopped tomatoes and fresh basil or tapenade, an olive paste; any quiche or frittata, cut into bite-size pieces; any number of chips and dips, from fresh veggies with hummus to corn tortilla crisps with salsas; a selection of fresh fruits, cut into chunks or wedges; cold shrimp with cocktail sauce; baked chicken fingers; egg rolls with spicy peanut sauce; any cold soup, from vichyssoise to gazpacho; three-bean salad, spicy corn and rice salad or tabbouleh; flour tortilla roll-ups (spread with cream cheese, spicy bean dip, diced green onions, cilantro and such additions as diced red peppers, diced ham or bacon, rolled up, then cut into bite-size pieces); tiny crab cakes.

Bring your favorite casseroles, especially those that don't suffer too much if they're not piping hot: Macaroni and Cheese; Spaghetti Casserole; Cheesy Broccoli and Rice; Baked Beans; Chicken Noodle Casserole.

And you can never go wrong with bringing sweets of any kind, from tarts, cakes, cookies or brownies to homemade nut brittles or fudge.

Take one of these dishes to your next potluck, and you'll surely please a holiday crowd.

TEXAS TORTILLA BAKE

1-1/2 pounds lean ground beef
1 large onion, chopped
1 (14-1/2 -ounce) can Mexican-style stewed tomatoes, undrained
1 (10-ounce) can mild enchilada sauce
8 ounces process cheese spread, sliced
2 teaspoons ground cumin
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
2 cups crushed tortilla chips
1 (3-ounce) package cream cheese
8 (8-inch) flour tortillas
1 (4-1/2 -ounce) can chopped green chilies
1 cup (4 ounces) Monterey Jack cheese, shredded
Yields 8 servings.

Brown ground beef and onion in large skillet or Dutch oven, stirring until meat crumbles. Drain.

Stir in tomatoes, enchilada sauce, sliced cheese spread, cumin, salt and pepper; cook mixture over low heat, stirring constantly, until cheese melts. Set aside.

Preheat oven to 350 F.

Place crushed tortilla chips in greased 13x9x2-inch baking dish (or disposable aluminum foil pan). Spoon two-thirds of beef mixture over tortilla chips.

Spread cream cheese evenly on 1 side of tortillas, and sprinkle evenly with chilies. Fold tortillas in half and arrange on beef mixture. Spoon remaining beef mixture on top of tortillas, and cover.

Bake for 20 minutes. Uncover casserole and sprinkle with Monterey Jack cheese. Bake 5 additional minutes to melt cheese.

Cards should reflect the sender's sentiments

By Elizabeth Scheibner
Copley News Service

During the period between Thanksgiving and the end of the year, more than 2.65 billion holiday cards will be exchanged in homes across the United States. And, as any weary, overworked postal employee will tell you, that's a lot of mail.

Whether you make your own or buy them, sending cards is a holiday tradition that is here to stay - even in the age of e-mail and the Internet. In many cases, holiday cards are our only correspondence with long-distance friends and relatives.

Choosing your holiday cards can either be a frustrating or enjoyable experience, depending on how you approach it.

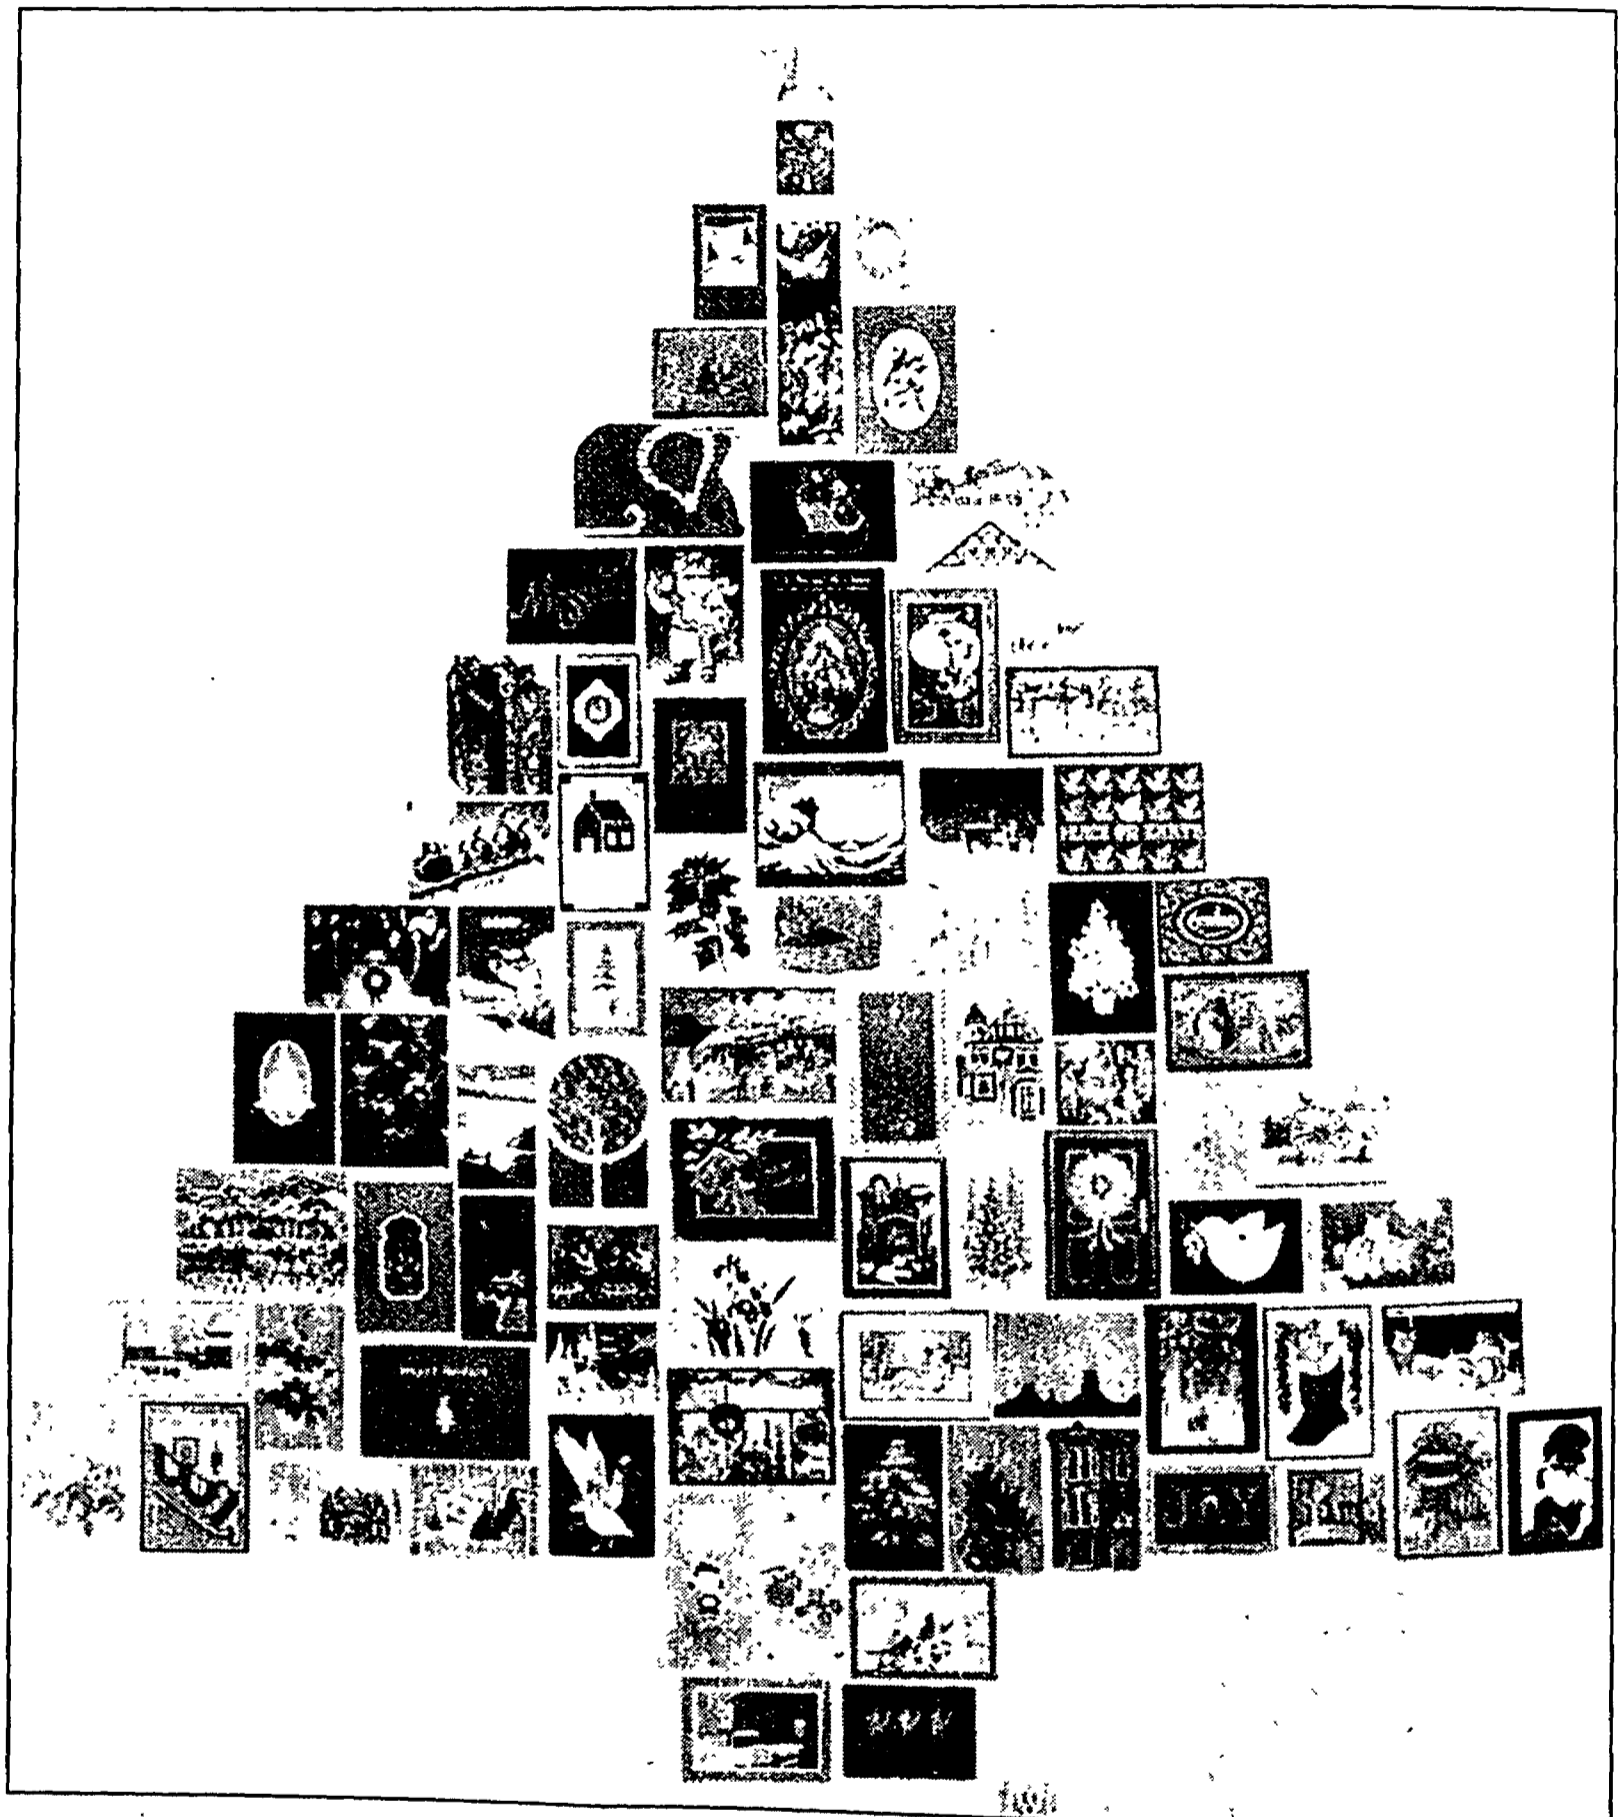

The key is to shop early when the selection is at its best and you're not rushed. Look for cards that express your feelings and your personality, whether it's spiritual, joyous or humorous. You may want to buy several different styles of cards to complement the unique personalities of your friends and loved ones.

More than three-fourths of all households include family photographs in their cards or use a photo on the front of the card. The range of photo-holder cards has grown enormously in the last few years, reflecting better quality and better design. Choose from whimsical to sophisticated, contemporary to traditional.

If you're going to have a professional photographer take your holiday photo, be sure to schedule the shoot early in the season.

Photographers are busy during the holidays and are often booked weeks or months in advance. You also need to allow enough time to select proofs and have reprints made.

In today's hectic lifestyle, many people don't have the time to write long personalized letters to each person on their holiday card list. Instead, they write a generic letter highlighting what they've done over the past year and have it photocopied. While some people may view this as tacky, it's becoming more and more accepted. If you go this route, make sure to include

Gift-giving tips for co-workers and clients

By John Godfrey
Copley News Service

Ever since Ebenezer Scrooge discovered the true meaning of Christmas and decided to pop for the Cratchit family holiday dinner, the business world has recognized the marketing value of the yuletide season.

Whether you're running a multinational corporation or working at home for yourself, you can make a big impression with a well-thought-out holiday gift or two. Of course, not all impressions are good: Something tasteful and elegant will remind everyone of your best qualities; a tacky trinket might make them think twice about doing business with you.

IN THE WORKPLACE

Delia Marshall, senior editor of Smart Money magazine, writes a monthly column on gift giving. She said that business gift giving is rife with complications and caveats, and the boss-secretary relationship can get particularly treacherous around the holidays.

"I think a lot of bosses agonize over what to give their secretaries because you don't want to be too personal, but you don't want to be too impersonal," Marshall said. "You want to keep them happy because a good secretary is priceless."

The trick, she said, is to find something personal but not intimate.

"Give them something slightly extravagant they wouldn't get for themselves, like a brand-name item from Tiffany's or a store like that. Articles of clothing are risky because of the fit issue and also because they'll feel compelled to wear it."

Although cost shouldn't be the issue, Marshall said that a high-ranking executive should be willing to pay $50 to $100 on a secretary's gift. A midlevel executive would do fine to spend in the $25 to $50 range.

"If you can get the perfect thing for $5, great," she added. "An obscure recording with a story behind it is great, and that will only cost you $15."

Many companies have instituted "Secret Santa" gift-giving programs so no one feels obliged to buy presents for everyone in the building.

With this approach, participants draw a name out of a hat and are "assigned" to give that person a gift, usually something with a strict price limit.

This is a great way to get everyone into the holiday spirit without breaking the bank. Trying to figure out who your Santa is can be more fun than opening the gift.

Employers who want to give some sort of gift to the entire staff should be careful to give staffers something useful and tasteful. If you give your workers something chintzy or self-promotional, they'll talk about it for months.

Marshall, for one, thinks promotional gifts to employees are "pretty tacky."

"The only point for an employee gift is to thank them and to reaffirm your relationship with them," Marshall said. "You don't have to remind them who you are. One hopes they know."

Marshall's favorite gift from a boss? "I got a blanket one year. A wool throw. You can never have too many of those. It was just a beautiful, woven, green throw, and it didn't have any logo on it."

GIFTS FOR CLIENTS

If sending a logo-imprinted gift is tacky for employees, it's sometimes necessary when dealing with clients.

"For clients," Marshall said, "the most tasteful thing to do is not to include your logo. If you're talking about marketing, though, taste isn't always the issue."

According to Lea Manning, research administrator for Promotional Products Association International, the trade association for the promotional products industry, logo-imprinted gifts were an $8 billion industry last year. Not surprisingly, the holidays are the busiest time of the year.

More companies are realizing the

Hints for choosing the perfect holiday tree

By Jennifer Plantier
Copley News Service

For many families, a fabulous tree is the centerpiece of holiday home decorating, and an important symbol of joyous seasons past and present. Even though most of us have too much to do and too little free time during the holidays, try to think of tree shopping and trimming as a fun family outing and not just one more daunting task to be completed.

Fresh or artificial? The debate rages on in many households. Our preferences seem to be formed by dear childhood memories of searching for the perfect evergreen - or frightening flashbacks of the unholy mess they can leave behind.

It's no secret, opting for an artificial tree is more convenient, less messy and more economical over the long run.

And these days you don't have to sacrifice good looks. A high-end quality tree looks almost as real as those from the great outdoors - complete with cute little pine cones.

For others, however, the trip to the tree lot is part of the holiday experience and no amount of convenience can replace the good feelings inspired by the heady aroma of a fresh-cut tree.

FRESH AND FRAGRANT

Those who set out to find the perfect tree should remember that the fresher the tree is to begin with, the fewer problems they will encounter later. Look for brightly colored, pliable (as opposed to brittle) and lush needles - telltale signs that trees are cut fresh, rather than chopped down and stored months in advance.

Whether you purchase your tree directly from a tree farm, a corner lot or other retail store, make sure that the trees are displayed on raised platforms as opposed to pavement and are kept well watered and out of direct sunlight.

When selecting a particular tree, consider your ceiling height and the amount of space you have to display the tree. Generally, people find full, symmetrical trees most attractive, so step back and circle the tree, looking for bare spots and assessing its overall appeal. The trunk should also be straight enough to stand upright in a stand. Keep in mind that even the most beautiful, natural trees will not be perfect!

Following is a rundown of some of the most popular varieties of Christmas trees. Personal taste and your decorating style will determine the right one for you. Also,

TREE THEMES

By Jennifer Plantier
Copley News Service

Many take pride in a hodgepodge holiday tree, trimmed by the entire family with ornaments that become more cherished with each year. Others take the decorating more seriously - elevating it to a medium of artistic expression and putting lots of thought into elements of color and theme. Whatever your approach, it should be a project the family can enjoy together.

Start with a tree set up sturdily in a stand. Wrap a sheet or decorative tree skirt around the bottom, and begin by stringing the light strands first from bottom to top. Continue with strands of beads or garland before placing ornaments. Heavier ornaments may need to be placed back toward the trunk and on heavier branches, while lighter ones will work toward the ends.

Following are a few examples of attractive themes, but remember that the possibilities are virtually endless.

Chosen colors. Pick a color scheme (all gold, white Christmas, pastels, etc.), and go with lights, ornaments, ribbon and other trim that match for a striking effect.

Back to nature. Choose ornaments depicting nature or made of natural materials. Trim with flowers and plants (real or otherwise), string cranberries together in strands.

Nostalgia. Search out ornaments that recall previous eras like Victorian angels, candle lamps or old-fashioned Santas.

Folk art/handcrafted designs. Look for handmade goods at holiday fairs and craft shows. Better yet, look to craft magazines for ornaments you can make yourself.

Favorite things. Load up a tree with teddy bears, angels or any one thing you really adore.

Campy collections. Look for companies such as Hallmark for wonderful collector ornaments in lots of styles. Many newer styles depict sports celebrities, cartoon figures and elements of pop culture, such as Barbie. Some even have moving parts that are powered by plugging them into light strands.

Most of us go to great lengths to decorate the inside of our homes during the holidays, but we often neglect the outside. Hanging a wreath on your front door makes your house more inviting and announces to passers-by that you're in the holiday spirit.

One of the delightful things about wreath-making is that it allows complete freedom of expression. You can create a holiday wreath that expresses your own style - whether it's sophisticated, whimsical or traditional. Don't feel you must imitate something you've seen at a store. Butter, to prepare pan
2 tablespoons fine dry bread crumbs
Fresh basil sprigs (optional)
Yields 8 servings.

Trim stems from eggplants, then cut lengthwise into 1/4-inch-thick slices; sprinkle with salt. Let stand 15 minutes. Rinse; pat dry.

Preheat oven to 425 F. Coat 2 or 3 pans, each 10 by 15 inches, with 2 tablespoons oil each. Turn eggplant slices in oil, arrange in single layer.

Bake until eggplant is browned and soft when pressed, 15 to 25 minutes; remove as browned.

Meanwhile, bring about 3 quarts water to a boil in 5- to 6-quart saucepan. Add macaroni and cook just until barely tender to bite, 5 to 6 minutes. Drain. Mix macaroni with 2 cups marinara sauce, provolone cheese and 6 tablespoons Romano cheese.

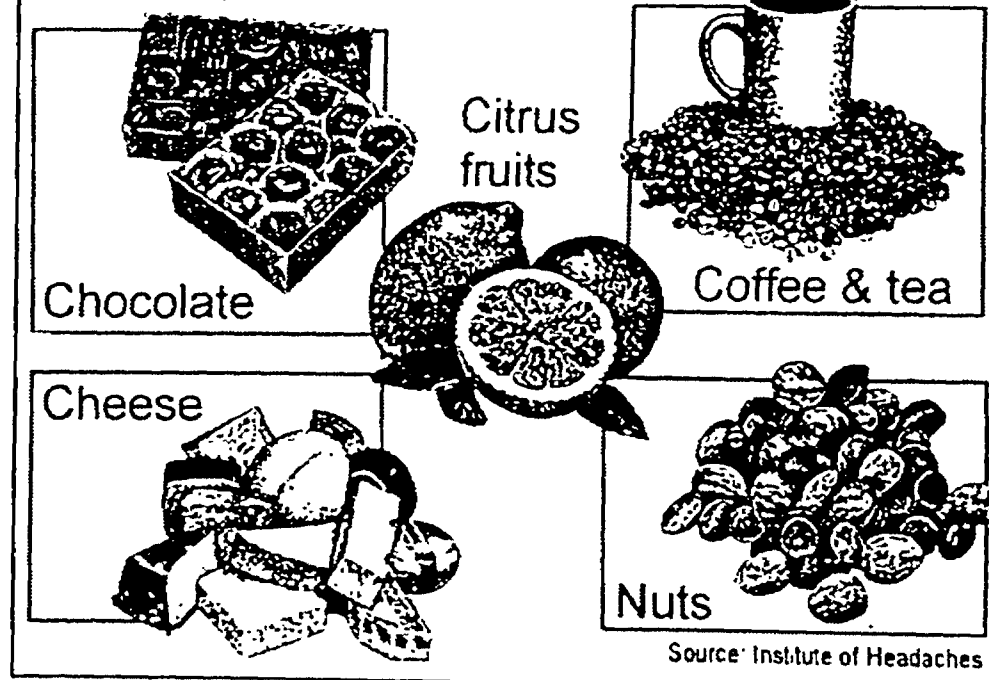

Butter sides and bottom of 9-inch cheesecake pan with removable rim. Dust pan with bread crumbs. Arrange one-third of eggplant slices, overlapping to cover bottom of pan. Cover with half of macaroni mixture. Repeat layers; arrange eggplant to cover top layer. Press down gently to compact layers and make timbale level. Sprinkle with remaining Romano cheese. (Can be made ahead, covered and chilled up to 1 day.)

Bake, uncovered, in 350-F oven until hot in center, about 30 minutes (bake chilled timbale for 30 minutes, then uncover and continue baking until hot in center, about 30 minutes longer). Let

COCONUT-ALMOND MACAROONS

3-1/2 cups (14 ounces) sweetened, flaked coconut (divided use)

1 cup sliced almonds

1/2 cup (4 fluid ounces) sweetened condensed milk

1/2 teaspoon almond extract (essence)

2 egg whites

1 tablespoon sugar

Pinch of salt

Warm, melted, bittersweet chocolate (optional)

Yields about 18 cookies.

Position rack in middle of oven and preheat to 350 F. Grease 2 large baking sheets with solid vegetable shortening.

In baking pan, combine 1-1/2 cups of coconut and almonds. Bake, stirring occasionally, until golden, about 12 minutes. Remove from oven; cool. Leave oven set at 350 F.

In large bowl, combine cooled coconut mixture, remaining 2 cups coconut, condensed milk and almond extract. In another large bowl, using electric mixer set on high speed, beat together egg whites, sugar and salt until soft peaks form. Using rubber spatula, gently fold egg whites into coconut mixture.

Using large spoon, form mounds 2 inches in diameter on prepared sheets, spacing them 2 inches apart. Bake until cookies are golden brown, about 10 minutes. Transfer to racks and cool completely.

Line 2 baking sheets with wax paper. Dip bottoms of cookies into melted chocolate and transfer chocolate-side down to prepared baking sheets. Refrigerate until chocolate is set. Store cookies in airtight containers at room temperature for up to 4 days.

Sending cards is a holiday tradition that's here to stay

create effective cards and messages.

A little imagination goes a long way. If you're at a loss for ideas, take a card-making class offered by a local crafts store or community college.

The options for making holiday cards are virtually endless. You can create designs with potato prints, linoleum blocks, stencils, cookie cutters, sponges, textured fabrics or construction paper. You can cut the cards yourself from large sheets of paper or buy prepackaged stationery cards, which are available at art and office supply stores.

To avoid using an envelope, and to save on postage costs, you can create holiday postcards or self-mailers. Keep in mind, though, that a postcard doesn't allow much room for a personalized message.

Some people like to have their homemade cards professionally printed. While the end result is quite nice, it can be an expensive proposition, particularly if you're using a color other than black.

If you want to create personalized holiday cards but lack the time or energy to make your own, Hallmark offers a unique alternative.

Card Studio is a CD-ROM that allows you to create your own cards using a selection of more than 200 pieces of artwork, 900 clip-art symbols and more than 1,000 original messages. The kit comes complete with a selection of high-quality paper and envelopes and is compatible with Windows 3.1 and Windows 95.

Rather than sitting down and writing 75 Christmas or Hanukkah cards in one evening, spread it out over the course of a week or two. This will make the task less daunting and will keep your holiday spirits up.

The post office recommends using black or blue ink on the envelope to ensure speedier delivery. Be sure to always include a ZIP code as well as your return address.

Finding and decorating tree is a family activity

think about the amount, size and weight of the ornaments and lights you plan to use.

Douglas firs: have evenly spaced branches and short needles that tend to stay on long after the tree is cut.

Scotch and white pines: long-needle varieties with the traditional, attractive cone shape.

Blue spruce: an indigo-tinted pine with a nice look, but loses its needles relatively quickly.

FROM STORE TO STAND

Once the chosen tree has been hauled home, place it immediately in a pail of water and out of direct sun or freezing cold until you're ready to bring it indoors.

Before placing it in a tree stand, 1 or 2 inches should be cut off the bottom, so that the tree can draw water up into the trunk and remain fresh longer.

To keep it from drying out prematurely, take care not to set it up close to heat sources like fireplaces, heaters or heat vents. Check and fill the stand with water frequently. A hardworking tree needs a lot of moisture to keep its good looks!

Finally, before you begin to decorate, make sure the tree is firmly in the stand and sturdy enough to ride out the entire season.

SEASONAL SAFETY

Select decorative light strings that are UL approved, as they have already passed the Underwriters Laboratories' safety tests. Never use outdoor light sets for a tree set up inside the home.

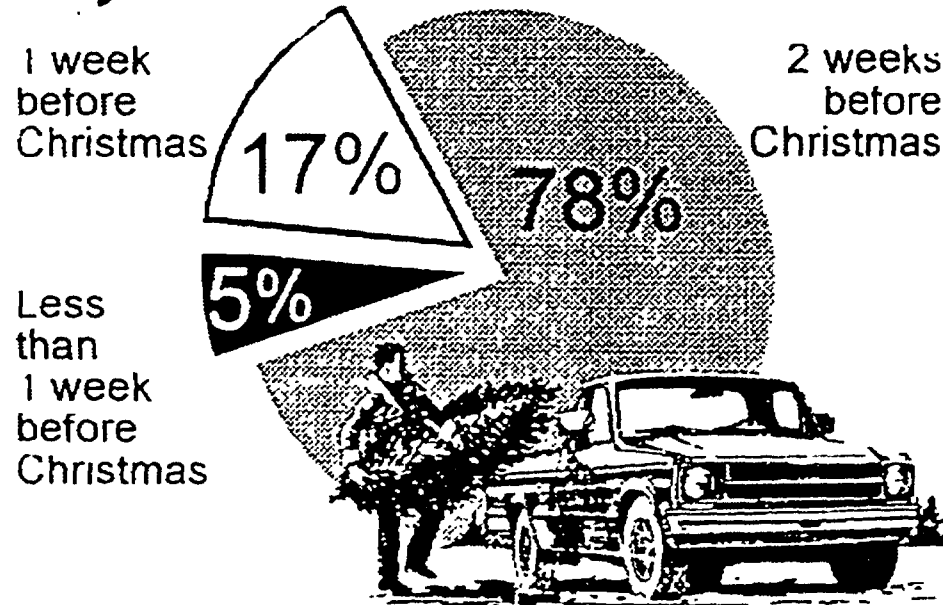

Check all light cords and connections for fraying, exposed wires or other types of damage. Look over the bulbs as well, bare spots and peeling paint indicate the lights could be generating too much heat.

Keep the tree well watered to avoid premature drying and inspect tree branches occasionally for dry spots that could ignite more easily. Make sure to keep lights and extension cords away from water-filled tree stands. Unplug light strands before retiring to bed and whenever you leave the house.

Beautiful trees and shiny ornaments are almost irresistible to curious toddlers. Try to place the tree high out of their reach, or in an area of the house they don't frequently play in. Avoid glass ornaments that break easily (at least down low) and tinsel that is made from lead if you have young children in your home.

Wreaths are an easy and inexpensive holiday project

relatively inexpensive. The basic supplies needed include a hot glue gun, glue sticks, wire, toothpicks and floral pins and, of course, whatever decorations you choose to use. You'll also need to determine what type of wreath form to use - straw, wire or plastic foam.

Straw forms are probably the most versatile and durable, and they come in a wide variety of sizes and shapes. Wire forms are best for wiring objects together, such as pine cones or dried fruit. Plastic foam is the least durable but is well suited for attaching light materials, such as wrapped candies, bows or cloth.

Before you begin working on the wreath, gather all the materials and make experimental placements to see how the elements will fit together best. Is the effect interesting? Is there anything you can add that will make it more eye-catching? If you know where the wreath will hang, consider the size of the space and the dominant colors.

Try to keep proportions the same. One element that is way out of scale with the others may ruin the final composition.

The most traditional holiday wreaths, of course, are those made of evergreen and trimmed with red ribbon, but there's no reason you shouldn't experiment with other materials, such as nuts, berries, spices, seashells, juniper, fresh flowers, dried fruit or flowers.

When using greenery, cut the boughs in short lengths of about 4 to 6 inches and place stems in the same direction. Make sure each piece of greenery overlaps so that the wreath form doesn't show. Once you've attached the greenery with wired picks or glue, prune it for a uniform shape. Add juniper, baby's breath or red roses for contrast or simply attach a bright colorful bow.

If you want to create a more whimsical look, consider using miniature toys, bells or red-and-white peppermint candies. Other embellishments that make an interesting wreath include waxed fruit, loose boughs of bayberry and white pine, clusters of hydrangea and miniature apples. If the wreath is hung near a window, you may want to wrap a strand of miniature lights around it.

Wreaths don't have to be hung to be used effectively. Consider using one as a centerpiece or to jazz up a candle arrangement. Or create a garland to drape across the mantelpiece or over a doorway. Another alternative to traditional wreaths is to decorate a straw fan, hearth broom or basket with a cluster of wired greenery, flowers or grasses.

Or you can tie sheaves of corn and wheat with wire and ribbon for a country look.

Here are a couple of wreath ideas to get you started:

Magnolia wreath. The beauty of this wreath is that it can be hung long after the holidays are over. To make the wreath, you'll need to gather unblemished magnolia leaves that are uniform in size. Wash the leaves with cold water and remove stems.

Using floral pins, attach the leaves around the inside of a straw wreath form, going in the same direction.

Follow the same steps for the outside of the wreath and on the final layer spread sets of three leaves in a fan shape and attach with floral pins. Use red berries, miniature pine cones or other accents as desired.

Eucalyptus wreath. This fragrant wreath can either be left natural or spray painted in gold or silver for a more elegant look.

To make the wreath, strip about 80 mature eucalyptus leaves from their branches, layer between sheets of wax paper, and press overnight beneath a stack of books. Eucalyptus leaves have a natural curve to their stems so select an equal number of right- and left-leaning leaves.

To attach the leaves to the wreath form, bind them one at a time with a single length of floral wire, coiling it several times around each stem before placing the next leaf on the frame overlapping the previous stem. To finish, add a wide ribbon through the wreath and tie in a big, loose bow.

ROMAN ROOTS

Christmas celebrations date all the way back to the ancient Roman celebration of Saturnalia, a wintertime festivity during which people decorated their homes with greenery and exchanged tokens with friends and family. (CNS)

Surprise loved ones with a good book

By Lee Littlewood

Copley News Service

Books are perfect, sure-to-please holiday gifts. With thousands of titles in bookstores, it's certain something can be found for even the pickiest of recipients. Novels, nonfiction, how-to, religion, poetry, sports, cooking, child care, humor, travel, health, business, self-help books and more are available to appease the tastes of everyone on your list.

A foolproof way to cop an excellent gift is to match tastes and interests with a book. If Uncle Don is an avid fisherman, a fishing book (and there are several) would undoubtedly win his heart. And for sister-in-law Sue who is about to embark on a cruise to Alaska? An Alaskan travel guide or photography book should warm her up for her big journey. And most people appreciate gorgeous coffee-table books to enliven their living rooms.

What will the rest of readers, browsers and aficionados of fine books clamor for this holiday season?

Tom Clancy's "Executive Orders" (G.P. Putnam & Sons) and John Grisham's "The Runaway Jury" (Doubleday) should satisfy intrigue fans. "Third Twin" from Ken Follett (Random House) and, if we can stand one more O.J. chronicle, "Journey to Justice" by Johnnie Cochran (Random House), are both certain to be big sellers, according to a Borders spokeswoman.

And Michael Crichton's "Airframe" (Random House) is due to appear on bookstore shelves in December for last-minute shoppers.

Stephen King followers can get scared twice with "Desperation" (Viking), using his own name as author, and "Regulators," using his pseudonym, Richard Bachman (Dutton). Scoring a sure marketing coup, the two books feature jackets that, when unfolded, form one picture side by side. Anne Rice latest offering is "Servant of the Bones" from Alfred A. Knopf.

On the opposite end of the reading spectrum, those craving serenity will love Sarah Breathnach's "Simple Abundance: A Day Book of Comfort and Joy" (Warner). With 366 evocative essays written for women who wish to live by their own lights, the stories promise to open hearts.

Another for-women-only tome is geared to those who want to get mentally fit in 1997 and is the latest in the "Chicken Soup For the Soul" series. Intending to provide revelations, heart-warming tales and observations to help make people happy, "Chicken Soup For the Woman's Soul" (Health Communications Inc.) is from the same authors (Jack Canfield and Mark Hanson), plus Marcy Shirnoff, Jennifer Reed and famous women celebrities - no doubt to provide some vital female input.

Both sexes can partake in emotional health with Daniel Goldman's "Emotional Intelligence," subtitled "Why It Can Matter More Than IQ" (Bantam). This book may be an appropriate gift for that type-A personality who may need to learn to think before acting. "Dogbert's Top Secret Management Handbook" by Scott Adams (Harper Business) is bound to be a business must.

You have be careful, though, when giving a gift book bearing words such as "diet," "exercise" or "low-fat." Could the person receiving the gift think you're trying to give him or her a hint? If your friend or family member has made it known that he or she wants to get in shape, there are plenty of self-help books on the shelves.

Two of the most famous women in entertainment are offering their ideas

Why stay home when you can escape the holiday rush with a horse-drawn sleigh ride in a snowy retreat.

For an exciting celebration, plan a trip

By Alison Ashton
Copley News Service

Some people love celebrating the holidays at home - all that decorating, baking and entertaining. When it comes to seasonal celebrations, their hearts are with home and hearth.

But others, especially those pressed for time, would like nothing more than to get away from it all. With a small investment of time planning the getaway, it's a relatively carefree way to spend the holidays. Think of it: no parties to plan, no decorations to worry about, no entertaining all your kith and kin.

WHERE TO GO

Convinced? Now you must decide where to go and what type of getaway you're looking for.

If you prefer to be home for Christmas, you can still enjoy a getaway with one of the many pre-holiday shopping packages offered at hotels in major cities. These take some of the stress out of the gift-shopping chore, and they let you enjoy the novelty of the holidays in a different city.

Start by choosing a city, then calling hotels to find out what they offer in the way of holiday packages. Packages usually include a reduced room rate, plus a stockingful of enticements - maybe tickets to a local production of "A Christmas Carol," holiday tea service in the afternoon (an ideal way to unwind after a long day shopping) or special discounts at local stores. Some hotels even wrap your packages. What's more, hotels everywhere are festively decorated for the holidays.

For those who want to close up the house and spend the holiday out of town, the options are limitless. For traditional celebrations, head to Europe, where you can discover how other cultures spend the holidays. You can travel independently, but more tour operators are putting together group packages; check with your travel agent.

Too far? Consider heading north of the border to Quebec, where Christmas has a New World Gallic flair. Or go south to Mexico for a colorful Latino holiday.

Skiers love to head for the hills this time of year. But other revelers want the warm sun, clear water and clean beaches of the Caribbean or Hawaii. If either holiday sounds ideal, make reservations well in advance as resorts fill up quickly.

Also consider how areas closer to home celebrate the holidays. If there's a place you really enjoy, check with the local chamber of commerce to find out what seasonal activities they have planned. For example, Charleston, S.C., has a month of activities planned, with everything from tree-lighting ceremonies to wreath-making workshops to progressive dinners in the city's historic center. Similarly, Humboldt County in Northern California has a full roster of events, including lunch with Santa and a lighted tractor parade; New Year's Eve is celebrated with a square dance.

Or plan a holiday in a truly exotic destination, such as Africa, Antarctica or even the jungles of Belize. It would certainly be a memorable gift to yourself.

GOING BY CAR

Getting away may be as simple as hopping in the car for a drive out of town. It's a convenient mode of travel, especially for families with young children. In fact, 55 million people are expected to travel by car this holiday season. But time spent cooped up in the car can add to holiday stress.

"Travel during the holidays can be hectic, particularly car trips, but it also can be an opportunity for families to spend quality time together," says Donald B. Weaver, Ph.D., a Dallas psychologist.

Weaver, a father of two, says advance planning is the key to a pleasant trip for all. "When children see their parents enjoying themselves, the

DAY BY DAY

By Lee Littlewood

Copley News Service

Calendars, whether wall, appointment, boxed or pocket, are vital in these times of rushed lives and busy days. More than just organizers and appointment keepers, calendars for 1997 are artsy, bold, beautiful, funny and decorative - and smart holiday gifts.

"How to Talk About Men and Still Be Politically Correct" from Daydream Inc. is one of the funniest. The calendar pages are adorned with beefcake photos of males, and the text fills in bits and pieces about the models, such as He does not have a hot body, He has a vehicular addiction and He does not eat like a pig.

While we're on the subject of calendars for women, "The Perfect Man" (also from Daydream Inc.) features photos of objects, a teddy bear, Pez dispenser, Santa Claus and knight statues, and explains why these really are perfect men.

Men aren't left out in the cold, however. Longmeadow's "Women of Summer" is a desk-size calendar with plenty of warm-weather photos of cavorting women cavorting on the beach.

SHOP EARLY

Holiday gift shopping can be full of hassles, but pre-planning will make it more pleasant. Jennifer Newstrom of Marshall's recommends shopping early for the best selection and smallest crowds.

To stay focused, make a list of gift ideas. Only 18 percent of shoppers actually do this, but taking a moment to think about what Uncle Sam and Aunt Minnie would really like will save hours of aimless browsing.

Budget shopping time into your schedule. Time is money, so don't waste it. Plan several one- or two-hour shopping excursions rather than trying to accomplish everything in one day.

Shop at stores with flexible return policies. Three out of four people say they are likely to return some holiday gifts, and clothing items account for 61 percent of returned gifts. (CNS) dar should also appease males who love to gaze upon women's swimsuits - or, rather, the women in them.

"Baseball" from Knopf, is an old-fashioned calendar full of the good ol' days about the boys of summer. While we're on the topic of summertime (and who doesn't like to dream during the cold holiday months), "Sailing" from Longmeadow should keep boating fans dreaming of breezes while they plan dentists' appointments and meetings.

If fancies turn to sailing through the sky, "The World Record Paper Airplane Book" (Workman) features designs of 12 innovative paper airplanes ready to fold and fly at each month's end.

Nature fans have their pick of the liters. Sierra Club's "Baby Animals" is aimed at kids with 100 stickers included to help keep track of birthdays, hiking trips and recycling days. Sierra Club also releases "Wilderness," "Birds," "Wildlife" and "Butterflies," for all ages, and the Audubon Society always offers plenty of nature-oriented calendars.

Nickelodeon's "The Secret World of Alex Mack" and Scholastic's "Goosebumps" should please children, as should the "The Cat in the Hat Collectible Calendar" for fans of Dr. Seuss. Random House is offering this calendar through WaldenBooks and other bookstores free with the purchase of two Dr. Seuss hardcover books.

"Dolls" from Workman, captures collectible, vintage dolls at their finest while Lang Graphics' many calendars, including their "Schoolhouse Monthly Planner" and "Folk Art Engagement Pocket Calendar," are gorgeous.

positive message is passed on, and the children will be happy, too."

Take time to plan ahead, and involve children in the preparations. Show them a map so they can see where they're going and let them help select the route. Look for interesting stops to make along the way - even if it involves a brief detour. You'll discover that getting there can be as fun as being there.

On a more practical note, be careful when packing the car. It's tempting to overload it with lots of extra packages, but makes for an uncomfortable ride for the passengers. Also bring along light snacks and travel-size games and coloring books to keep restless children occupied.

Finally, consider security issues when traveling by car. Don't leave items in view when the car is unoccupied. Gaily wrapped packages are a tempting invitation to thieves.

GOING BY AIR

Yes, it's great fun to celebrate the holidays out of town. But getting there can be enough to turn anyone into Scrooge. Here are some ideas for making it easier in transit.

Save cash. To save money on expensive airline tickets (this is prime time for the airlines and few discounts are available), consider flying with a smaller airline. Other money-saving possibilities include flying to a less convenient (and possibly less-crowded) airport and making your journey in two legs (usually cheaper than nonstop routes).

Take your time. When airports are crowded and tempers are frayed for both passengers and personnel, it's wise to leave plenty of time to get to the airport, check in for your flight, board the plane, etc.

Leave bulky or delicate items at home. During the holidays, people always board planes with bags and boxes of gifts, which must be stowed under the seat or in an overhead compartment. There is inevitably more junk than the plane can carry. Remember, gifts can be shipped ahead, which will save you the hassle of toting them.

Whatever you do, don't be like a woman observed on an overcrowded flight from San Diego to Albuquerque, N.M., last Christmas.

"Don't squash my tea cakes," she commanded the harried flight attendant who was trying to squeeze her bag of baked goods into a crowded overhead compartment. "I spent all day yesterday baking."

He (and her fellow passengers) looked at her in disbelief.

"Don't worry, ma'am. I'll take good care of your cake," he said, pleasantly, giving the sack of goodies an extra shove.

TO GRANDMOTHER'S HOUSE WE GO

By Alison Ashton

Copley News Service

For thousands of seasonal revelers, travel during the holidays means packing up the family and heading to Grandma's house. Visiting the relatives can be a lot of fun - or it can fuel a long family feud. Rude and lazy guests who overstay their welcome are enough to make even the most patient host scream, "Bah, humbug!"

When asked what guests should do when visiting family members for the holidays, manners maven and syndicated columnist Letitia Baldrige quickly reeled off a list of practical tips. Among them:

Never stay more than three days.

Offer to bring something to help celebrate the holidays. It could be an item to decorate the house, a cheery recording of Christmas carols or a contribution to the holiday meal, such as the turkey or dessert. This is in addition to a nice token strictly for the host (a box of gourmet chocolates is good, or perhaps a bottle of wine).

Arrange ahead of time to take the entire host family - "even the kids" - out to a nice restaurant for dinner one night. Since this is a busy time of year for restaurants, remember to make reservations well in advance.

"Be very helpful around the house." Take out the trash when you notice it's full, get up early to prepare breakfast, help clean up after meals. If several families with children are gathering, offer to take restless kids to the movies one afternoon or for a drive one evening to enjoy the neighborhood holiday lights. Your hosts will welcome the reprieve and the kids will enjoy the outing.

"Be enthusiastic about everything, regardless of how you feel about it." You may not enjoy all your host family's holiday rituals, but you are the guest, so follow the game plan with a smile.

Prepare children to be good guests by briefing them beforehand. Tell them to treat their host's home even better than their own. Of course, they should know to say "please" and "thank you" when it's appropriate.

Baldrige also recommends coaching children to make a brief toast at the holiday meal. Even small children can stand up, thank the hosts and wish them well in the new year.

"When little children do that, everyone just melts," says Baldrige.

And those charming little ones - and their considerate parents - will probably be invited back next year

Shopping, money, family top list of holiday hassles

Janet David, a New York City clinical psychologist, estimates that 10 percent to 15 percent of her clients seek counseling during the holiday season because of stress.

Time and budget pressures are rampant during the holidays. To help put the festivity back into the season, organize.

"Getting organized removes the mental and physical burdens that distract you from accomplishing and enjoying the things that are important in your life," says Stephanie Denton, a professional organizer and adviser to Organized Chaos Inc.

management by helping people organize their lives. Members, who pay $2.50 to join, receive The Chaotic Times newsletter filled with tips and advice on getting organized and simplifying home management. Contact Organized Chaos Inc., P.O. Box 4120, Grand Rapids, MN 55730-4120.

out by store location before you leave home to avoid wasting time.

Use your home computer to centralize all holiday planning activities, including dates of holiday parties, travel itineraries, menus and shopping lists, cards sent out and more. Denton suggests home management software such as Microsoft Bob.

Create a schedule for all the household jobs that need to be done to prepare for the holidays; assign each family member specific tasks.

Accept that you may not be able to do everything yourself. Hire an ambitious high school student during winter break to help cater a party, wrap presents or perform other tasks you can't find time to do.

Make a list of gifts and the gift-giver's name as you open each present to make thank-you notes easy.

BUDGET MANAGEMENT

Beware the holiday spending spree that wrecks financial havoc on your new year.

The International Association for Financial Planning in Atlanta suggests you "leave your 'plastic' at home and check your emotions at the door. These are two sure-fire ways to make your holiday shopping more enjoyable, affordable and successful."

"Paying today's bills with tomorrow's money will catch up with people," says Les Kirschbaum, president of Mid-Continent Agencies Inc., a national accounts receivable management firm in Rolling Meadows, Ill.

The best approach to control holiday spending, says Kirschbaum, is to budget your money carefully.

"Wait for chosen items to go on sale. Don't shop when you're tired because you'll tend to rush and make expensive mistakes," he adds.

He offers these tips to avoid post-holiday financial blues:

Establish a budget. Set an appropriate spending level for each person on your gift list and stick to it.

Pre-select gifts. Make a gift list for each person to prevent impulse buying and overspending.

Develop a repayment plan for purchases.

"The key is to plan ahead and start saving now for those bills that are deferred, so you don't experience an even bigger cash crunch in January and February," says Kirschbaum.

Mall crowds are one of the reasons why holiday shopping is a hassle.

CREDIT CRISIS

Holiday time is spending time for many shoppers, who buy more gifts than they can comfortably afford.

"This is the time of year when people can easily spend more than they should. Some get carried away by the holiday spirit, while others feel obligated to make the grand gesture even if that is not in their best interest financially," says Becky Cutler, spokeswoman for Citibank MasterCard.

But it is possible to control holiday spending with a little discipline. Some suggestions from Cutler:

Don't feel compelled to buy a gift you can't afford.

Avoid last-minute shopping, when you might be forced to spend more

Avoid using national credit cards and department store charge cards with high interest rates.

Beware of deferred payment plans.

than you should due to limited choice and time. Also avoid shopping when you're tired or hungry; it's too tempting to buy items on impulse.

Postpone large purchases until after Christmas in order to take advantage of post-holiday sales.

COMPUTER CHRISTMAS

Computer hardware is a popular gift. Before buying, consider the recipient's needs, do homework by reading computer magazines and buy from a retailer who can offer high-quality post-purchase technical support.

"For families with children, it's best to find out what kind of computer your child uses at school and how they use it," advises James R. Kruse, senior computing consultant at Emory University in Atlanta. (CNS)

"Some consumers can forget they even made the purchases and get caught with a sizable bill they can't pay off in March," he says.

SHOPPING PITFALLS

Keep in mind the following shopping pitfalls outlined by Consumers Union:

The sales pitch. Beware of high-pressure sales pitches to buy an extended warranty - often the most profitable item in the store for retailers.

"The fact is, most failures in electronic products generally occur early in the life of the product, when the manufacturer's warranty is still in effect, or at the end, by which time an extended warranty usually will have expired," says Consumers Union.

Store credit cards. Consumers are often offered the chance to save 10 percent or more on their first purchase by getting a store credit card.

"If the consumer pays the balance in full, it could result in a 10 percent savings. What happens if they don't? Store cards typically carry an annual interest rate of at least 18 percent; some charge as high as 24 percent. In contrast, many bank credit cards carry interest rates below department store credit card rates," says Consumers Union.

Beware of payment plans that sound too good to be true. Those deferred payment plans that invite you to wait until May or June to pay, or those that offer you to skip a payment or a lower minimum payment should be scrutinized closely.

"Consumers should know the consequences before accepting these tempting offers," says Consumers Union.

THE FAMILY GATHERINGS

Don't expect perfection at your holiday family gatherings, advises Mark McLeod, director of Emory University's Counseling Center in Atlanta. Avoid the post-holiday blues by keeping realistic expectations.

"We go into the holiday season expecting it all to be warm feelings," says McLeod. "But it isn't ever that way; there are lots of hassles that can create conflict like buying cards and gifts and visiting families. Most of us have to lower our expectations so we don't get disappointed."

Don't expect old tensions or issues to be dealt with and resolved during holiday visits, he says. "Promise yourself to address them during the coming year instead."

And another strategy to smooth a holiday visit is to build in some time when you and your spouse or significant other can talk about how the visit is going. "That time can be very important so no one is feeling overburdened with details," says McLeod.

Family and friends gather for the lighting of the Kwanzaa candle and to renew their commitment to the African-American community.

Kwanzaa celebrations trace roots to Africa

By Priscilla Lister
Copley News Service

Kwanzaa, the seven-day African-American cultural holiday celebrated Dec. 26 through Jan. 1, has become one of the most important holidays to reaffirm family values.

Created in 1966 by a university professor and cultural scholar, Maulana Karenga, Kwanzaa was inspired by traditional harvest celebrations in Africa.

His vision for the holiday has been "to foster a reunion of African-American families and peoples, to recognize African-American achievements, and to be a time for cultural renewal and rededication to strong family values," say Kathleen Minnick-Taylor and Charles Taylor in their book, "Kwanzaa: How to Celebrate It in Your Home" (Praxis Publications).

Kwanzaa is based on seven principles, each celebrated on its own day during the celebration: umoja, or unity; kujichagulia, self-determination; ujima, collective work and responsibility; ujamaa, cooperative economics; nia, purpose; kuumba, creativity; and imani, faith.

There are also seven symbols arranged on the Kwanzaa table: a mkeka, or a mat, representing African traditions and foundation; the kinara, a candleholder representing the original stalk of ancestry; mishumaa saba, the seven candles placed in the kinara and one lighted successively each day of the celebration; vibunzi, ears of corn representing the number of children in a family; kikombe cha umoja, a communal unity cup used to share the ceremonial drink; mazao, fruits and vegetables symbolic of products generated from hard work; and zawadi, gifts that represent rewards for outstanding achievement during the year.

On the first day, dedicated to umoja (unity), the Taylor family sits down for dinner while African-American music plays softly in the background.

"Then we prepare to light the candle," say the Taylors. "Next we pass the unity cup, which we usually fill with water or juice. Beginning with the eldest person, each of us briefly tells what umoja means, takes a drink and then passes the cup until all have drunk. During supper we discuss what we have done to promote unity and what additional things we might do in the future."

During a family activity that first night after supper, the Taylor family creates a family picture board.

"We go through family pictures, talk about our family history, and then work together to assemble a picture board that will stay up the entire seven days of Kwanzaa," say the Taylors.

While the principles and symbols of Kwanzaa are standard, the ways to celebrate the holiday are as varied as any family.

Some followers of Kwanzaa fast from sunrise to sunset during the seven days, says Jessica B. Harris in "A Kwanzaa Keepsake: Celebrating the Holiday With New Traditions and Feasts" (Simon & Schuster), which makes the evening meal more celebratory. Others invite different friends to celebrate throughout the seven days.

Harris, a teacher and author, fills her family's Kwanzaa with inspirational spirits as well. During each evening's ceremony, she selects ancestors whose lives and accomplishments are shared as springboards for further discussion of each principle.

Many African-Americans wear African-style clothing during Kwanzaa and especially during the karamu feast on the last day, says Angela Shelf Medearis in her book, "A Kwanzaa Celebration: Festive Recipes and Homemade Gifts" (Dutton). Serving the feast African-style, arranging pillows or cushions around low tables, adds a historic touch.

During the karamu feast on Jan. 1, Kwanzaa celebrations may also feature stories, songs, dances and other performances.

"It presents a great opportunity to get children excited about Kwanzaa," says Medearis.

The Taylor family ritual during the third day of Kwanzaa, the principle of which is ujima (collective work and responsibility), involves collective planning of the karamu feast and the special readings and music to be heard

Kwanzaa celebration reaffirms family values

that night.

"Children from our extended family make plans to present a special skit for the festival," say the Taylors. "They select a theme based on the principle of ujima. ... This evening reminds all of us of the joy and strength we gain by working together."

A project suggested by Harris in her book for the third night of Kwanzaa asks that in creating a potluck supper for family and friends, each person bring a second dish to be shared with a homeless shelter, AIDS hospice, senior citizens' center or other group of your choice. Take the children when you take the dishes and "establish the tradition of collective work and responsibility."

But perhaps above all, "Kwanzaa is also a time of feasting, of rejoicing, of savoring friendships and ties with family, or renewing commitments. Part of that communion of family and friends takes place around the table and the communion of the table is a good part of the warmth of the holiday," says Harris.

With that thought, consider adding these recipes to your own Kwanzaa traditions.

"This dish was one of the first African dishes that I tasted and it was truly love at first bite," says Harris. "I often double this recipe because yassa is even better the next day. It also freezes well."

SENGALESE CHICKEN YASSA

1/4 cup fresh lemon juice
4 large onions, thinly sliced
Salt to taste
Freshly ground black pepper to taste
1/8 teaspoon minced fresh habanero or other hot chili, to taste
1/4 cup plus 1 tablespoon peanut oil (divided use)
1 (2-1/2 - to 3-1/2 -pound) chicken, cut into serving pieces
1 habanero or other hot chili, pricked with a fork
1/2 cup pimento-stuffed olives
4 carrots, scraped and thinly sliced
1 tablespoon Dijon-style mustard
1/2 cup water
Yields 6 servings.
In large nonreactive bowl, prepare marinade with lemon juice, onions, salt, pepper, minced chili and 1/4 cup peanut oil. Place chicken pieces in marinade, making sure all pieces are well covered, and allow them to marinate for at least 2 hours in refrigerator.

Preheat broiler. Remove chicken pieces, reserving marinade, and place them in shallow roasting pan. Broil until lightly browned on both sides. Remove onions from marinade.

Cook onions slowly in remaining 1 tablespoon oil in flameproof 3-quart casserole or Dutch oven until tender and translucent. Add remaining marinade and heat through.

When liquid is thoroughly heated, add broiled chicken pieces, pricked chili, olives, carrots, mustard and water. Stir to mix well, then bring yassa slowly to a boil. Lower heat and simmer for about 20 minutes or until chicken is cooked through.

Serve hot over plain white rice.
(From "A Kwanzaa Keepsake.")

"This recipe greatly reduces the fat normally added to collard greens, but it keeps the flavor," says Medearis.

NEW-STYLE COLLARD GREENS

2 bunches (about 4 pounds) collard greens
6 cups water
2 pounds smoked turkey wings, cut at joints
2 teaspoons salt
1 or 2 dried red peppers OR 1/2 teaspoon ground red pepper (cayenne)
1 clove garlic, mashed
1/2 teaspoon sugar
1 tablespoon olive oil
Yields 8 servings.

Cut tough stems and yellow leaves from collard greens and discard. Gently rub leaves with your fingers under warm running water. Cut greens into large pieces. Let leaves soak in warm, salted water for 10 minutes. Rinse with cool water and drain in colander.

In large pot, bring water to a boil. Add collard greens, smoked turkey wings, salt, red pepper, garlic, sugar and olive oil. Reduce heat, cover and simmer over low heat for 1 to 2 hours or until greens are tender.

Stir occasionally and add hot water to cover greens as needed.
(From "A Kwanzaa Celebration.")

marketing value of promotional gifts. Manning said, and a small, but growing, segment of the business world is expecting a gift from you each December. And why not? The T-shirt you send them is also a cheap ad for your company, so everybody stands to gain, right?

Recent surveys indicate that while clothing articles are still the most popular promotional business gifts around, times are changing.

"Distributors are seeing a lot of sales on technology items that are going to be used as business gifts," Manning said. "We've seen that increase a lot in the past couple of years. We've seen the prepaid phone cards a lot and compact discs that you can put a holiday greeting on with music that follows it."

Presenting the U.S. Savings Bonds that money alone can't buy.

There's only one way to get Series HH Savings Bonds: Exchange Series E/EE Savings Bonds and Savings Notes for them.

HH Savings Bonds, of course, offer the security of knowing your investment is backed by the full faith and credit of the United States. They also offer tax advantages.

With HH Bonds, you'll receive interest payments every six months for up to 20 years. That interest is exempt from state and local income taxes, although it's subject to annual federal income tax reporting. If, however, you've deferred reporting the interest earned on your E/EE Bonds, you may continue to do so for up to 20 more years or until you redeem the HH Bond, whichever comes first. Or you can report the accumulated interest when you exchange your E/EE Bonds for HH Bonds.

Ask about the Bonds money alone can't buy, Series HH Bonds, where you bank, or write: U.S. Savings Bonds, Washington, DC 20226.

Decorate home to evoke yuletide spirit

By Lee Littlewood
Copley News Service

"Oh! holly branch and mistletoe,
And Christmas chimes where'er we go,
And stockings pinned up in a row!

These are thy gifts, December!"

Harriet F. Blodgett captured the spirit of holiday home decor when she penned these festive words long ago. They still ring true in many homes today, and for many families who forget their differences and join together to celebrate winter spirits and joyous home affections.

You don't have to be a professional decorator to make your house an inviting seasonal haven. All you need is enthusiasm. For some, opening boxes of treasured ornaments and decorations is as exciting as opening gifts. Others thrill at the first sight of twinkling lights glistening from dressed-up trees.

Most of us are reminded during the holiday season that goodness, magic and togetherness still exist. So how do you manage, between shopping, cleaning, paying bills and working, to turn your home into a festive oasis that captures these good tidings?

Check out decorating books at the library or bookstore. Full of ideas for even the not-so-creative, many are available for your perusal (and you won't be charged to copy ideas). One in particular that's as charming as the projects inside is "Mary Englebreit's Christmas Companion" (Andrews and McMeel). Englebreit, one of America's premier illustrators, greeting card creators and decorating experts, offers her whimsical, fun-to-look-at home scenes and Christmas craft ideas.

Besides the homey, colorful room scenes, the book, subtitled "The Mary Englebreit Look and How to Get It," includes "Breit Ideas," such as Flickering, fragrant votive candles are a quick and easy way to create a warm holiday ambience.

"SOFT TOUCH" CHIROPRACTIC

23895 Novi Road, Novi

Dr. Kathy Duncan, R.N., D.C. is a former registered critical care nurse who changed career paths after learning about the benefits of chiropractic care through a personal success story.

Dr. Duncan suffered from severe migraine headaches, which physicians attributed to stress. As a last resort, she sought chiropractic treatment. The chiropractor informed her of a misalignment in her neck, corrected the source of her pain, and eliminated her migraine headaches. She's been a believer in chiropractic ever since.

Dr. Duncan so strongly supported the achievements of chiropractic, she decided to pursue a degree as a Doctor of Chiropractic and attended Life Chiropractic College in 1983. Three years later, she graduated from the college and was president of her class. Dr. Duncan established the successful Soft Touch Chiropractic Clinic in Novi during 1990.

Dr. Duncan practices a soft, gentle, non-invasive pressure point treatment for all types of pain or discomfort in the back, neck, head or legs. With the spine as the focal point, muscles are relaxed by using pressure on the points along the muscles in conjunction with the spine. Once the muscles are relaxed, the spine readjusts itself naturally.

Tight muscles caused by stress, tension, strains or trauma can pull the spinal column out of alignment. This can produce many types of pain or discomfort in the body. "There are no chemicals or drugs masking any symptoms," she said. "We treat the cause, rather than the symptom."

Dr. Duncan and her friendly support staff, Marty Schwiekhart, Deb Bradshaw and Barbara Murdock make patients feel welcome. "We really try to go out of our way to make them feel comfortable," she said.

Soft Touch Chiropractic is open four days a week and offers Saturday hours by appointment only. Dr. Duncan can be reached at (810) 348-2000.

Decorating the home for the holiday season

how to create handmade ornaments with plastic foam, plaster, spray paint and buttons, and a way to spruce up votive candles with gingerbread house cookies.

Magazines, too, offer fashionable ideas aplenty. Country Sampler's Decorating Ideas produces a holiday edition full of Christmas projects as do dozens of other monthlies.

Quick ways to brighten the decor? Candles, candles and more candles. Clusters of flickering candles are traditional decor whether you celebrate Kwanzaa, Hanukkah or Christmas.

Plain, fragrant or adorned with holiday frills, candles warm any home's appearance.

Next? Potpourri, made from roses or purchased, can be another sensory feast. To make your own, collect a quart of petals before they turn brown. add 1 tablespoon of fixative (dry lavender or oak moss from herb, spice or drug stores), spray with perfume or add a cinnamon stick or vanilla beans. wrap in sachet and enjoy long after the holidays.

According to Pattie Shaw, style director for J.C. Penney's home furnishings catalogs, "You don't need a big budget or a lot of spare time to create a holiday atmosphere. A few inexpensive shortcuts can make any home special."

Here are a few she suggests:

Fill bowls or glass jars with ornaments or pine cones. Cover everyday throw pillows with festive slipcovers and lampshades with pleated convivial overshades. Drape a mantel scarf over the fireplace, buffet table or dresser. Place a pillar candle in a bowl and fill with fresh cranberries. Surround a variety of candles with seasonal fruits and decorative ribbons to create a natural centerpiece for the table.

Colors are another way to change your home's look. If you're used to holiday red and green, substitute pearly white and rich gold. And anything with angels is sure to be hot this chilly season.

What else can you do inexpensively? Display holiday quilts, blankets, dinnerware and even greeting cards.

For those who wish to shop to decorate, jovial holiday products are already lining shelves of department and specialty stores. Many families, even those without kids, are turning to lighthearted, nostalgic decorations that evoke special memories from the past. Winnie-the-Pooh fans can find plenty of products starring the friendly Pooh and cohorts in the snow, and through holiday scenes. Disney's holiday Pooh line, with stockings, kitchen accessories, ornaments and warm blanket throws to festoon any couch, can be found in most large department stores.

The Classic Pooh line, featuring the traditional, old-fashioned Pooh, comes alive in snow globes, music boxes, blankets and Christmas rugs. Classic Pooh, ideal for handing down from generation to generation, is available in upscale specialty shops.

Department 56's extensive line of lighted, tabletop snow homes and buildings makes it easy to create gorgeous winter villages and Dickens-era neighborhoods piece by piece.

The company offers a decorating brochure - Ready, Set, Decorate! - by calling (800) LIT-TOWN, or contacting the Department 56 Web site at www.department56.com.

Hey, where did you get all of those great Christmas gifts? The Mall?

No Way! I got them at Venture Outdoors in Downtown Plymouth, They had a great selection of unique items not found in every store.

What did you get?

I got a Gortex jacket for my dad, an Alps sweater for my mom, a stuffed Boyds Moose for my lil sister and for my brother a pair of Smith ski goggles and a fleece jacket plus I got myself a pair of new hiking boots.

Wow, one stop shopping!

They had free gift boxes and because I'm a preferred customer I received a permanent discount for all of next year!*

Well forget the malls I'm off to venture outdoors. Are they Located on Penniman Ave. across from the Post office?

Yep, and they are open till 8 PM from Monday till Saturday and Sunday 12 to 5 PM.

The Perfect Pet-Lover's Present

This holiday, give a really special gift to the pet lover on your list. Jill Andra Young Photography, this area's leading pet photographer, is now offering gift certificates along with a special treat package just in time for Christmas

For a limited time, along with each gift certificate purchased, you will receive a selection of Iams Pet Food products and promotional items for that special pet and pet lover. Our gift certificates start at just $48.00 for a studio sitting of a pet. You can select one that also includes individual prints or packages, tailored to your needs or budget. And remember, the gift of photography creates memories that will be cherished for a lifetime, long after the warm glow of the holiday fades.
