Northville business owner's persistence leads to arrest of suspected con artist

George Meister presented himself very well.

Driving a flashy Lincoln Continental, wearing stylish clothes and boasting a seemingly impressive career as a furniture expert and real estate broker. the 60-year-old Meister appeared to fit right in with the wealthy and successful people in whose circles he traveled.

He was ready to purchase a $650,000 home in Novi and bankroll an antique business for his girlfriend in downtown Northville. He courted local Realtors and bankers, all of whom believed George Meister was the real deal - a wealthy businessman who planned to spend plenty of money

But Gloria Sciberras suspected otherwise. The local businesswoman, who owns and operates Downtown Baskets at 136 E. Main Street, had a gut feeling that something wasn't right on Feb. 4 when Meister wrote her a check for more than $4,000 for several antiques. Her hunch turned to dismay when the check failed to clear five days later, and her dismay turned to anger when she came to believe she had been taken by an ex-convict whose arrest record reveals a history of check kiting dating back more than 20 years (see related story).

Instead of sitting back and accepting the loss, Sciberras decided to do something about Northville taxpayers won't have to wait long to see activity on city streets and sidewalks now that voters have approved the city's request for 1.92 dedicated mills to fund road improvements.

According to Public Works Director Jim Gallogly reconstruction efforts for Center Street should begin in July and be substantially completed by the end of the year.

The vote totals from the March 4 election were certified by Oakland County's Board of Canvassers this week. The official tally was 702 yes votes (75.2%) to 232 no votes (24.8%). Turnout was light with 934 voters - approximately 18 percent - casting ballots

The street improvement program will initially take 20 years to complete. Once it's finished the city will continue to use the Gallogly said that funding will become available to the city from July taxes. That means city residents will see the millage appear on their summer tax bills

The cost of the millage can be calculated by multiplying $1.92 times each $1,000-increment of taxable value on property.

The next step for city officials will probably come next week when Gallogly expects to forward a recommendation for a road contractor to the Northville City Council He said Poole (left) and Caroline Streppa look like dents enjoyed a Spirit Week dance March 8.

High school to shift to block scheduling

Repairs set to start in July

By ROBERT JACKSON Staff Writer

Although it's not yet official. Northville High School students will almost certainly see a drastic change in their school day schedule beginning next September.

District officials and teachers are fine tuning a change to block scheduling for the 1997-98 school year, and while the details haven't been made public due to contract negotiations with the teachers union, district officials are preparing for the shift.

Basic information pertaining to the block scheduling has been sent to high school parents and was released in the high school PTSA's newsletter Mustang Messenger.

The new schedule is being termed a "rotating block schedule" that will enable students to select seven courses each year, according to high school Principal Tom Johnson. In addition, the schedule also requires students to meet in a seminar period twice weekly, where they will have an opportunity to engage in a variety of activities - including tutorials, assemblies, music sectionals, and other activities.

According to Northville Teacher Association President Barb LeBeouf, negotiations regarding the schedule change have been wrapped up and union members will vote on the measure next week.

Indications are the union rank and file will sign off on the proposal.

Negotiations began late last year, after the Coalition for Student Success subcommittee forwarded the proposal to school and union officials.

According to Johnson, the high school will conaccording to Johnson, the high school win con-duct four "delayed starts" - which mirrors the rotating block schedule - before the end of the school year in June. During that time, he explained, teachers will have the opportunity to "retool" so they can teach students in 85-minute periods that meet every other day.

To prepare parents for the change school officials have scheduled an informational meeting tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the high school forum. Two additional meetings have been scheduled - one at a Cooke PTSA meeting on March 25 at 7:30 p.m.. and one at a Meads Mill PTSA meeting April 17 at 9:30 a.m. - as well as informational coffees hosted by parent volunteers.

For more information on the location and times of the coffees, contact the high school at 344-8425.

Instructor writes for PBS program

Teacher contributes to series on Alaska

By ROBERT JACKSON Staff Writer

Cooke Middle School science teacher Dwight Sieggreen is used to preparing lesson plans for the 25 students in his class. But last month the nationally recognized teacher was responsible for writing several lesson plans that were viewed by thousands of students across the country.

Sieggreen's lessons were included as part of the Public Broadcast System's month-long series of programs about Denali National Park in Alaska. The PBS program, entitled "Living Edens: Denali National Park," initially aired Feb. 5 and was followed by instructions for teachers to link to the PBS web site on the Internet, which featured Sieggreen's lessons.

"All of the lessons pertain to footage and information found in the series," Sieggreen said. "PBS replayed the series several times during the month, and the lessons were advertised at the end of each segment."

PBS enlisted Sieggreen's aid after they were informed that the longtime Northville teacher had made several trips to the Alaska wilderness. Steggreen has visited Denali National Park on four occasions and Meads Mill Science teacher Norm Hannewald has accompanied him on a few of the trips.

Actually I was recommended by a colleague, and PBS called 10 days prior to the airing of the series and asked if I could develop six lessons," Sieggreen explained. 'It was a great experience, and I hope students had fun with the lessons.

He added that the lessons were developed to provide interesting, hands-on science for middle school-level students. The lessons can also be modified for use with elementary students and can be used in the home.

The lessons were created to parallel the program and they portray the creatures and environment I observed after several visits to Denali," he said. "The plans focus on the unique aspects of this far north environment and target elements of the park that represent that environment."

Sieggreen's unique approach gains national recognition

By ROBERT JACKSON Staff Writer

All you have to do is look at Dwight Sieggreen's classroom to know that the instructor is a true science nut.

The room is full of various types of plants and rocks, so much so that you can hardly recognize the space as a classroom - it looks more like the habitat area you might find in a botanical park.

In Sieggreen's teaching center you can find critters, lots of critters. There are birds, lizards, snakes, fish, rabbits and other assorted wildlife that make their home in the various cages, aquariums, and glassed containers situated throughout the room.

Then there is Sieggreen himself, an enigmatic sort who believes kids should be able to not only see science, but feel, smell, and taste it as well. Years ago he transformed his classroom from the conventional desk-and-books variety into a living, breathing ecosystem.

As a result, students coming out of Sleggreen's class probably have a better grasp of science than many students across the country. That's a fact that hasn't gone unnoticed by Sieggreen's peers. Last week the National Science Teachers Association announced that Sieggreen had won the 1997 Distinguished Teaching Award.

"I'm a happy guy for a couple of reasons," Sieggreen said. "First and foremost. I believe that the more recognition our school district receives gives us leverage when we apply for grants and funds to do special things for the kids

5 choral groups to perform at church

First Presbyterian Church of Northville will continue its fine arts series Sunday, March 16. with a performance by singers from the Northville High School choirs, under the direction of Mary Kay Pryce.

The evening program will showcase the diverse talents of five different performing groups: Girls' Ensemble, a 50-voice group of, female voices; TrebleMakers, an eight-voice girls group; BackBeat, a seven-voice male ensemble: Northville Singers, an a cappella group of 16 voices: and the Con-cert Choir, a 76-voice choral ensemble.

The singers will perform a vari-' ety of styles, from pop and comedy numbers to pieces in the traditional choral repertoire.

The young performers have delighted audiences in the community and around the state with their energetic choral tone and blend. When the concert choir performed in the Old North Church in Boston last spring an audience member was so moved that he extended an invitation to the entire group to perform in his hometown of Harrodsburg, Ky. That invitation turned into a three-day singing tour that the students will take this May.

The program will begin at 7 p.m. Sunday, March 16, in the sanctuary of the First Presbyterian Church, 200 E. Main St. Tickets are $8 for adults. $6 for seniors and children and $25 per family.

Tickets may be obtained by calling the church at (810) 349-0911.

Spaniel sniffs out gas leak Sensitive snout helps alert family to problem

By ROBERT JACKSON Staff Writer

Joe the cocker spaniel lives for his evening walks through Northville's oldest neighborhood.

Every night around 8 p.m., the 8-year-old takes his owner. Chuck Keys, out for a walk.

, it's a routine that's lasted for most of the lovable pooches life, and one that the tenants living in the home at the corner of Wing Street and Dunlap are very thankful for.

Were it not for Joe's evening constitutional on the night of Saturday, Feb. 22 those residents, as well as neighboring homeowners, might have fallen victim to a gas explosion that could have leveled one home and damaged several others.

"It was extremely cold that night so I had a scarf wrapped around my face," Keys, an elected member of the Northville City Council, recalled. "We were walking by the corner house at Wing and Dunlap and all of a sudden Joe just froze. The next thing I know, he sticks his nose high in the air and begins to sniff, which is unlike him – he usually keeps his nose to the ground."

Keys realized something was wrong and when he took the scarf away from his face, he smelled gas. "I couldn't believe that the people in that house didn't smell the odor - it was that strong." he said.

So Keys immediately rushed to the Northville police station to alert officers of a possible gas leak. A short time later, the fire department was called in. Fire Chief Jim Allen explained that it didn't take long to figure out something was wrong.

"We picked up the odor and then our equipment picked up a high concentration of gas." Allen said. "With the high readings outside the house we were pretty sure there would be gas leaking inside as well."

Allen contacted Consumers Power Co. and a representative arrived within minutes. After taking additional readings inside and outside the house, he found the leak was more than just a small problem.

"As soon as they took the readings in the house Consumers Power requested that all of the electrical power be shut down immediately." Allen explained.

The tenants in the house were evacuated until the gas leak was stopped and neighboring residents were notified. Allen added. "The situation was a potentially dangerous one." he said.

Keys is certain Joe's actions averted a disaster.

"I probably wouldn't have noticed the strong gas odor had I not pulled the searf away from my nose," he said. "The only reason I did that was because Joe was acting strangely."

Although Joe hasn't received an official award for his heroics, he did get the next best thing.

"(My wife) Mary cooked him a big, juicy steak for being a good dog." Keys said, chuckling. "I think Joe would take that reward every time."

Police News Tub taken from work site

An under-construction home in Northville Township was "cleaned out" last week ... of its bath tub.

The house. located on Abbey Circle, was broken into sometime between March 3-6, according to township police. The bath tub was not attached to any plumbing work yet and is valued at $650.

ASSAULT: A Northville woman told township police that her boyfriend shoved her to the floor and onto his weight bench on Saturday morning.

The woman said that the two had argued at the man's apartment. According to police the woman had red marks on her mouth, chin and throat.

She was given information on domestic violence but the woman. police said, declined to prosecute. She will, however, be seeking a personal protection order from a court against the man.

JACKET SWIPED: A Detroit woman's black leather jacket was stolen from the employee common room at the Bed, Bath & Beyond store in Northville Township on Friday, police said. The woman, 21, said that she'd left the jacket there while working in the soon-to-be-opened store. The garment is valued at $850.

SUITS STOLEN: A teenager took $100 worth of bathing suits from Meijer without trying to pay for them, according to police.

The youth, a 17-year-old from Detroit, concealed the suits on her person before trying to leave without paying, store detectives said. She was booked and released at the scene pending a court hearing on March 30.

CART SCAM: Someone took a Southfield woman's purse after first stealing her shopping cart.

The woman was shopping at Hiller's Market at Five Mile and Haggeriy the afternoon of March 5. She turned away from her cart for a moment and someone switched it with another, full cart.

The woman found her cart three aisles away but her purse, which had been in the cart, was gone, along with her identification, credit cards and $50 in cash. PUNCHING PREPSTERS: Two Northville High School students are facing assault and battery charges in connection with an alleged assault on a 17-year-old high school student March 3.

According to police the victim was allegedly punched and pushed three separate times by the two suspects within a 10 minute period for having the statement "I hate preps" written on his backpack.

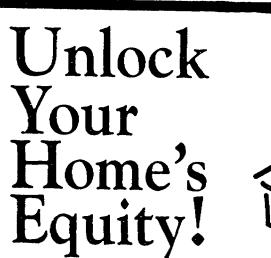

The two students refused to cooperate with police on advice from their attorneys. Police report a warrant request on the two teens has been submitted to the city attorney. The two were also suspended for three days.

BB VANDALS: A Blue Heron Pointe home's sliding glass door was broken by a bb recently. according to police. Damage is estimated at $1,000

Family counts blessings after disaster's averted

By RANDY COBLE Staff Writer

"It was just another Saturday night at home. We never thought anything like this could happen to us. 'is how Tom McNamara remembers the close call he and his family had with carbon monoxide poisoning 12 days ago.

Tom, his wife Michelle and their three children were settling in for a quiet evening in their home on Camden Court on the night of March 1.

We were just watching TV and eating ice cream," 8-year-old Cameron, a second grader at Winchester Elementary, said. "Then the alarm went off."

Screeching was the carbon monoxide detector that the McNamaras had received as a Christmas gift a couple of months before.

"I didn't think there was a problem at first," Tom said. "I was thinking it couldn't really be happening to us, that it had to be a malfunction.

The alarm went off again, however, and registered dangerously high carbon monoxide (CO) levels on all three floors of the house. "We were just watching TV and eating ice cream.

Then the alarm went off."

-Cameron McNamara, 8

The McNamaras did exactly what people in their situation should do, according to the experts. They shut down the furnace, opened the front door and the windows for ventilation and called 911.

Members of the township fire department arrived, their special CO detection equipment in tow. The detectors picked up CO levels inside the McNamara's home that were high enough to be fatal.

As Tom, Michelle, Cameron, 5year-old Kristen and 5-month Matthew waited at a neighbor's house, firefighters and representatives from Consumers' Power tracked the source of the CO.

The culprit: a faulty water heater in the basement which was giving off carbon monoxide and an incorrectly placed vent in the furnace nearby that was pulling the CO into the air duct system.

The heater has since been replaced, the furnace will be fixed.

the people who gave them the detector have been thanked and the McNamaras are none the worse, though a little wiser for the experience.

We learned a lot." Tom said. And detectors do make good gifts," he added with a smile.

That's a sentiment township fire chief Bill Zhmendak agrees with. He recommends that every home should have a quality carbon monoxide detector. If you have one and it goes off. Zhmendak added. pick up the phone and call for assistance.

"Please call even if you're not sure it's an emergency." he said. "It's always better to correct a little problem before it may become a major disaster."

For more information about carbon monoxide, its effects and advice on buying and placing a detector in your home, call the fire department at 348-5807.

CO gas has many sources

By RANDY COBLE Staff Writer

Where does carbon monoxide come from and how do we keep it away from us?

Also known as CO, carbon monoxide is released when any carbon-based 'fossil fuel' such as gasoline, natural gas, wood or propane is burned. No fossil fuel ignites completely when it's burned and the less efficiently it burns the more CO is released.

Anything in your home which burns fossil fuels can be a source of carbon monoxide. Some common ones include furnaces and gas heaters; fireplaces; cigarette smoke; automobile exhaust; dirty or plugged chimneys; gas. oil. or kerosene stoves and space heaters; and appliances like lawnmowers, leaf blowers and barbecues.

Keeping these devices in good working order is the best way to reduce your chances of being exposed to dangerous levels of CO. Playing it smart when using them is another.

A lack of adequate ventilation is a major reason why people suffer carbon monoxide poisoning: it allows the CO to build up in your house or garage with no way to flush it out of the area. That's especially true in northern states like Michigan during the winter months, when windows are closed ated snace beaters.

Conference set in rooftop case

By RANDY COBLE Staff Writer

"Joel Couch could spend the next 15 years of his life in prison if he's found guilty of causing the death of his friend Scott Brown in Northville Township eight weeks ago

Brown, who was 19 years old and lived in Livonia, fell to his death from the top of the Fairweather Building at Five Mile and Sheldon in the early hours of Jan. 12. He, Couch and another friend were on the roof partying, according to pólice.

Couch, 26, could to trial next month on a charge of involuntary manslaughter in connection with the events of that night. If convicted, the Livonia man could spend up to 15 years in prison and be fined up to $7,500.

partying on the roof of the fivestory Fairweather Building at about 2 a.m. Police say alcohol and marijuana was present.

At one point Brown and Couch got into an altercation that led to Couch striking or shoving Brown, according to Michigan State Police investigator Gary Gray. That, in turn, caused Brown to stumble and fall over the side of the roof.

Couch did not intend for that to happen, according to Gray, but he could still face criminal charges. No charges are pending against Galazka.

Brown fell about 60 feet and was pronounced dead on arrival at St. Mary Hospital in Livonia .

According to the Wayne County prosecutor's office attorneys on . both sides of the Couch case are scheduled to meet on April 11 with Circuit Court Judge Tim Kenney.

Nineteen-year-old Livonia resident Scott Brown fell to his death from the roof of the Fairweather Building eight weeks ago. Township police and elected officials have long complained about the danger that the Fairweather and nearly two dozen other buildings owned by Wayne County present.

either economically or in resources, from the state or Wayne County to this township," said Chip Snider, director of the Northville Township Department of Public Safety.

A spokesperson for the Michigan Department of Community Health (DCH), Tom DeLoach, said that the state has done everything it could to keep trespassers out of the Fairweather.

DeLoach said that the DCH. which owned the building until last month, takes a variety of steps to prevent people from getting inside. Those include posting no trespassing signs, putting up a chain barrier to prevent cars from driving into the parking lot, board-ing up the windows and chaining the doors.

A representative of Northville State Hospital checks the property twice a day, he added, but despite all the precautions incidents have still taken place.

see that this property has been secured," DeLoach said. "In this case we are talking about criminal trespassing that occurred."

Wayne County has also tried to keep people out, said John Roach of the county Department of Public Services. Chains have been strung up across the road entrances, no trespassing signs posted and entrances to the extensive underground tunnel system welded shut.

"Unfortunately, there are some very persistent vandals out there." Roach said.

Township powerless to enforce own codes

By RANDY COBLE Staff Writer

If your house or business violates local building codes, the government has the power to kick you out of it and even tear it down. So how is it that the decaying, abandoned Fairweather Building has remained standing for years?

Because in this case the owner is the government.

Located at the corner of Sheldon Road and Five Mile, the Fairweather is owned by the State of Michigan. Built in the 1960s. It was a mental health facility for nearly three decades before being closed four years ago.

Northville Township has a tough set of regulations when it comes to buildings. The codes were developed by the international organization of Building Officials and Code Administrators (BOCA).

The regulations give local officials the power to close up buildings that are unsafe, demand that repairs be made and fine a property owner as much as $500 a day for noncompliance. If a structure remains unsafe the township can institute legal action to have it demolished.

None of that applies, however, to buildings owned by the federal government, the state government or the local school district: they're exempt from local building codes.

"If these buildings were owned by ABC Construction (for example), we would have options." Anderson said. "That's not the case here. We're limited in terms of what we can do."

Inspection and investigation of alleged code violations on state property is the province of the Michigan Bureau of Construction Codes. Larry Lehman, assistant to the director of the bureau, said no complaints have been received about the Fairweather.

Typically we do not get many complaints about state buildings." he said. "I'm not aware of any complaints of an unsafe structure there.

Local officials have long worried about the Fairweather, which is one of nearly two dozen abandoned buildings in the vicinity, the others owned by Wayne County. A favorite of vandals and youthful thrill seekers, township police have responded to more than 260 incidents at the Fairweather.

"All of these buildings are very dangerous. They're a magnet. Township Supervisor Karen Woodside sald.

We've made our concerns known but nothing's been done." The township has considered filing a lawsuit to try to get the Fairweather and the county buildings legally condemned and demolished.

In the end that idea has always been rejected because of the considerable legal expenses involved.

"It would have been just too costly," Woodside said. "This is an exhaustive legal procedure we're talking about.

Business owner turns super sleuth in tracking suspect thing about it."

What Sciberras did was just as remarkable as Meister's alleged crime. She began compiling infor-mation that one month later con-vinced Northville police to seek a warrant for Melster's arrest. Washtenaw County sheriff's deputies finally caught up to Meister March 7 at the Pinckney home where the suspect was living. They arrested the man on one count of passing a check with non-sufficient funds and an additional habitual offender charge.

Both counts are felonies. The check-related offense carries a sentence of one to 10 years, while the prison term on the habitual offender charge is left to the dis-cretion of the judge.

Meister is being held in the Wayne County Jail on $10,000 cash bond and is scheduled to undergo a preliminary examination at 35th District Court Friday.

"I didn't do this in hopes of getting any of my money back. I just wanted to make sure he didn't hurt anymore people with his lies." Sciberras said. "You just wouldn't believe the stuff I found on this guy. It really is amazing." Sciberras said she was able to recover some of the items of furniture Meister acquired with the bounced check.

After Meister's check failed to clear Feb. 9, Sciberras began going through the trash at the store Meister had rented at 142 E. Main next to Downtown Baskets. She also obtained phone records from Meister's girlfriend and began calling some of the people Meister was associated with.

She found that she wasn't the only person Meister had allegedly swindled.

"It was incredible. I went through his trash and found his statements from Northville Community Federal Credit Union that explained there were no funds in his checking account, and that the account had been closed." she said.

"The more people I called the more I was convinced he was a fraud. There were people in other areas of the metro area he had taken advantage of."

Meister kept asking Sciberras to be patient, claiming he was having a problem getting money wired from another account and repeatedly promising to make good on the check.

That's what he told everyone. He'd say. I'm having trouble with my bank wing the funds, don't worry about it." she explained. It was always something, and the sad part is plenty of people believed him."

Instead of falling for Meister's line, Sciberras and her husband. Maurice, began spreading the word. They called banks, busi-

me. They just couldn't believe that George Meister would do some-thing like that," she said. "Even when we warned them, they still accepted his checks."

In Northville Meister allegedly wrote just one bad check at the Timber Creek Restaurant, but charged plenty on a house account that manager Jan Masciulli allowed him to open. "He was in here quite a bit for a few months and at first he always paid cash for his food and drinks." Masciulii said. "After a while he was able to gain my confidence and I allowed him to open a house account. Then he started charging food and beverages."

Masciulli said Meister was allowed to cash a personal check for $75, and the restaurant was notified this week that the check didn't clear and that a problem with insufficient funds had forced the bank to close the account.

Like I said, he was able to gain my confidence, and then he took advantage," he added. "He seemed like the real deal. He drove a nice car, wore fancy clothes and was always entertaining businessmen."

Sciberras said Meister had also allegedly passed bad checks to other local businesses, including the Prudential Realty Company in Northville. Jim Clark, a retired airline pilot who works for the company, confirmed Sciberras' claim.

"We were trying to sell him a home in Novi, and he had written a check for $19,000 to be put in an escrow account," Clark said. "Five days later the check failed to clear, but he claimed that he was having trouble wiring the money into his account."

The company contacted police this week to prosecute, but after an investigation Northville law enforcement officials told the company they couldn't file charges because they hadn't lost anything in the transaction.

"It's unfortunate because we would have liked to follow up on this," Clark added. "But because we weren't out anything we couldn't prosecute."

Clark said Meister was adept at faking his high-stakes lifestyle.

The guy was slick. He was impressive, a real sharp individual, and extremely believable," he said. T've been a pilot for a long time and when he would talk to me about owning and flying his own plane, I really believed him."

Sciberras said she wished she ad trusted her instincts in deal-bad check conviction, but police state say he might have violated his parole several times. According to information obtained from police reports Meister had failed to keep in contact with his parole officer and had not reported to his parole office since Dec. 19, 1996.

Meister is being charged with one count of passing a check with non-sufficient funds and with being a habitual offender. He might have also violated the conditions of his parole by obtaining two checking accounts, one at Northville's Community Federal Credit Union and one at Wyandotte's Community Federal Credit Union.

'it's incredible. Here's a guy who has a record for writing bad checks, and he's able to open checking accounts," said Gloria Sciberras, the Northville woman who brought about Meister's arrest. "It's like he was holding an empty gun, and the banks were giving him the bullets. There's something wrong with this whole scenario.

Both checking accounts have been closed, according to information obtained by police investigators.

Tormentor to attend criminal proceeding

By ROBERT JACKSON Staff Writer

Gloria Sciberras wasn't present when George Meister was arrested in Pinckney last week, but she plans to be in the front row of the courtroom when he faces bad check charges tomorrow, March 14.

"I want to be there. I want him to see me in that courtroom." Sciberras said Tuesday. He told one of the Realtors that I was the thorn in his side, and I just want to make sure he knows he was right about that.*

Sciberras' husband, Maurice, was on hand when Washtenaw County sheriff's deputies took Meister into police custody last Saturday. "He didn't say anything to Mau-rice, he just stared at him." she said with a persistent smile. "(The police) had asked if I wanted to be present when they arrested him, but I had to take on a second tob to recoup some of my losses, so Maurice went instead," she added.

What would Sciberras say to Meister if she had the opportunity to talk to him?

'Oh, that's an easy one. I'd walk up to him in court and say, 'hey don't worry. I'll write a check to ball you out, but you'll have to wait until my other bank wires me the money." she remarked. Meister is currently being held on $10.000 cash bond.

Manager gets high marks for fiscal management

By ROBERT JACKSON Staff Writer

The performance of Northville's city manager continues to improve, according to members of the Northville City Council who gave the chief administrator high marks in his yearly evaluation.

Gary Word, who has been the city's top administrator since July of 1991, received an overall approval rating of 4.35 on a 5-point scale. That's three-tenths of a point higher than his rating last year.

According to Mayor Pro-tem Carolann Ayers, who heads the city's personnel sub-committee, the council is pleased with Word's overall performance.

"His performance: and the council is definitely pleased with his accomplishments," she said. "We all like to look at the performance review as a communication tool. It's also a learning process and a way to point out strengths and weakness-

Word was evaluated in 10 different categories. A quick look at the review points highlights how the council viewed his performance over the last fiscal year, and includes the following comments:

• Organizational Management – 4.3. • He is personally well organized and his recommendations for technical issues speak well for his awareness. He works well within the financial constraints

• Relationship with mayor/city council -4.5.

"He provides additional information when asked, but he needs to have a timely and consistent reporting system on items of general information."

Professional development – 4.3.

"He continues at the previous level. Could benefit from additional professional development and continuing education."

Personal characteristics – 4.7.

"He is decisive yet cognizant of the position of council. He is willing to take advice and use consultants. Gary has patience and stamina, and is level-headed."

The evaluation remarks are a representative sample of individual council members' evaluations of Word's performance and were approved for release jointly by council members.

She explained that while Word is not bound to the city by formal contract - he works at the pleasure of the city council - his yearly evaluation is tied to his continued employment and salary.

Obviously, if his evaluation was poor that would be reflected in any salary negotiation we would have with him." Ayers said. "I think this evaluation shows that we are extremely pleased with the job he is doing and we will probably negotiate an increase in his salary." Word earns a base salary of $65,852 per

Annual dinner/auction to benefit rec programs

ALLEY STREET

By RANDY COBLE Staff Writer

Another sign of spring is nearly here: the Friends of Northville Parks & Recreation's annual dinner/auction.

As in past years, the April 26 event will feature a gourmet meal prepared by a cadre of talented local chefs and and the chance to bid on a dizzying variety of unusual auction items.

Best of all, the dinner/auction will raise funds to support Northville recreation. Money from past years has helped pay for a variety of improvements to public parks and programs.

We'd really like to see the community get behind us again like they've always done before," said Mary Gans of the Friends organization.

Held at Schoolcraft College, the evening's dinner will be prepared by the college's culinary school. Contributing everything from appetizers to soup, bread and beverages will be many of Northville's favorite restaurateurs.

Tickets for the Friends fundraiser are $40 per person. A maximum of 240 tickets to the event will be sold and almost 140 have been committed so far, according to Gans. The Friends of Northville Parks & Recreation is a registered nonprofit organization, so your ticket purchase is taxdeductible.

There will also be a drawing for a special raffle during the event. The grand prize is a five-day, four-night trip for four to Disney World.

Airfare, hotel, car rental, Disney World passes and $500 in cash are included. A lucky second place winner will pick up $400 in cash. Two third place finishers will win $100 aplece.

You can buy raffle tickets at the Parks & Recreation office in the Northville Community Center on Main Street or from Mark's Small Engines, located on Northville Road just south of Six Mile. Tickets cost $10 apiece, six for $50 and 13 for $100.

The Friends are still looking for items to include in the auction. Anything and everything can be considered. Please give Mark King a call at 349-3860 if you'd like to donate or to get more information.

Twenty-five percent of the money raised from the dinner/auction will go toward the construction of Ft. Griswold. the Northville playscape area slated to be opened near Ford Field this summer. Last month the Friends presented the committee backing the playscape with a check for $10,000, fulfilling its promise to match the first $10,000 raised by the playscape volunteers

Friends members hope to make another donation of up to $8,000 from the proceeds of the April 26 event, Gans said. The rest of the money will go toward another great cause, a public facilities building at Community Park on Beck Road.

The building would include bathrooms, a small concession area, storage space and a spot for an electrical transformer. the first step towards night lighting for ball games at the park.

GOP wants to allow more charter schools

By TIM RICHARD Staff Writer

State Senate Republicans sounded as if Democrat Bill Clinton was their best pal as they forced through a bill to take the 100 cap off charter academies.

Democrats objected that the GOP bill fails to provide assurance of educational quality - far more important, they said, than giving "parental choice" of tainted charter schools.

The Senate GOP acted in a rush March 6, one day before President Clinton was scheduled to address a joint session of the Legislature. "We want to support our president on charter schools," said Republican Joanne Emmons of Big Rapids.

With a 22-16 majority, Republicans barely got 20 votes to pass their bill as two members left early. All area senators voted with their parties.

You know, the Senate Education Committee hadn't met for a year," said Sen. Gary Peters. D-Bloomfield Township, who fought the measure in commuttee and on the floor. They rushed it

"It's about more than charter schools. It's about curriculum and performance standards. It's about excellence." -Sen. John Cherry through committee without a chance for opponents even to be listed. It was timed for one day prior to Clinton's visit.

The Senate waived its own rules. moving the bill from a committee report to second reading to final assage in a half-day. Chances of House passage are nil.

Senate Bill 146 started life as a measure to allow more charter schools in 15 school districts. ranging from Detroit and Pontiac to Wayne-Westland, where significant numbers of pupils are eligible for federal free lunches. But its scope was quickly broadened.

I'm not concerned with where we draw the line in the sand," said

Republican Emmons. "I'm concerned about poor kids tied to a geographic (public school) district." Democrats offered amendments that would have:

• Allowed the state to reexamine the charters of schools that score below public schools on state assessment tests three years in a row.

The amendment lost, 17-20. picking up one Republican vote.

 Reinstated the mandatory core curriculum that Republicans turned into a "model" curriculum when they rewrote the School Code in 1996.

• Mandated smaller class sizes in kindergarten through third grade.

The latter two also went down in party-line votes.

"My Republican colleagues today have portrayed President Clinton's education policy as one-dimen-sional," said Senate minority leader John Cherry, whose district extends into northern Oakland County. "It's about more than charter schools. It's about curriculum and performance standards. It's about excellence."

Lawmakers seek state school reforms

By WENDY PIERMAN MITZEL Staff Writer

Sen. Willis Bullard, R-Milford, and Rep. Nancy Cassis, R-Novi, are ready to take on the State Board of Education, high school proficiency tests, school funding and education reform.

The pair held an impromptu question and answer session at a recent Novi Board of Education meeting in an attempt to get public input on some of their plans.

Bullard and Cassis represent Oakland County Northville in the Michigan Senate and House. respectively.

One of the lawmakers' biggest concerns is with the new Michigan High School Proficiency Test, given for the first time last year.

Public outery about low scores, the lack of participation by some students and the lack of emphasis on the State Endorsed Diploma have prompted Bullard and other legislators to take a closer look at the function of the test.

"When good high schools have such a low percentage of students getting to the proficient level, I think something is wrong." Bullard said.

Cassis agreed.

"I think it's a good idea but somehow it's gone bad," she explained. "If these tests are to be continued, they have to be connected to something – such as college admittance tests or the real world – or else we'll lose the student and parent desire to take part in the test."

Novi school board President Raymond Byers, however, questioned the need to change the test at this time.

"I'm very concerned that everyone is wringing their hands on one test." said Byers. "We're not letting the pot sit still long enough to see if the recipe is any good."

But Bullard said it's simply a matter of "tweaking and refining the process. not throwing it out."

Another concern of Bullard's is the state's ability to offer fastgrowing school districts additional monetary relief. Called the "growing student district^{*} bill, one Bullard initiative attempts to maintain a proper level of funding for those districts.

Another issue that could impact the state financially is Bullard's call for the state to pay tuition for high school students who enroll in college or community college courses. As it stands now, district funds transfer to colleges when students take those alternative courses.

But with the popularity of the college course option growing "it could become a multi-million program, so let's put it on the backs of the state, not the local district." he maintained.

Bullard also mentioned he isn't completely supportive of the idea to have the state take over failing urban school districts.

"Something needs to be done ... But defining the problem is very easy ... But what is the solution?" he asked.

Cassis said she is hoping to find new solutions to school district and student problems by researching the successes of districts through the newly formed group RAISE, the Republican Alliance for Identifying Solutions in Education.

"Let's take a look at what we're doing right and build on that," Cassis said.

The group will gather information from administrators, students, parents and teachers around the state. By the fall term. RAISE hopes to have compiled a list of people, places and programs to share with other school districts.

The pair also discussed the ramifications of the $680 million "Durant" lawsuit against the state filed in 1979 by 80 Michigan school districts. including Northville and Novi. The suit could result in paybacks of categorical ald funding and special education money to local districts.

The Michigan Supreme Court is hearing an appeal on the ruling that left the state liable to reimburse schools for mandated pro-

Bullard pressing to eliminate state board of education

By JEN DIMASCO & WENDY PIERMAN MITZEL Staff Writers

One of Sen. Willis Bullard's biggest plans for next year is changing the Michigan Constitution to eliminate the State Board of Education.

Bullard said his proposal has nothing to do with partisan politics. adding that Gov. John Engler would probably not even be in office when the bill would go into effect, if successful. Rather, he wants to put the amendment in place to expedite elections.

"Philosophically. I don't believe there should be a State Board of Education. That's point number one. Number two. I'm also looking at how we can streamline the ballot." Bullard said.

Bullard said citizens often get confused when they read that the State Board of Education has adopted a resolution, because such resolutions are merely advisory. He said local school boards and the Legislagrams. Should the districts win again. Bullard hopes the state Legislature will create a plan to repay the districts instead of cutting back on school funding to pay off the judgment amounts. ture hold the real policymaking authority. In addition, he said the governor has delegated too much power to the state superintendent.

He added that the State Board of Education is only one in a long list of educational agencies that provide the Legislature with information.

"I really question why that function is necessary," he said. "The State Board has no power to put into effect legislation." Bullard told the Novi Board of Education recently.

Builard said his move to eliminate the state board is in line with his other initiative to have the governor appoint trustees for the University of Michigan. Michigan State University and Wayne State University.

Like elections for regents. Bullard said people often don't recognize the names on the ballot for the State Board of Education.

"I don't see the need to have those positions elected." Bullard said.

"I am hoping there's some kind of negotiated settlement. The state simply cannot afford to pay that." said Bullard, who indicated the money could come from a rainy day fund.

Still plenty to do on playscape

Wonder what's going on with the Northville playscape project, Ft. Grisowid? Here's an update by Susan Egan of the steering committee.

With only weeks to go, many activities are being planned to bring the playscape project to a successful conclusion. Don't you want to be a part of and not a part from it?

• Build Dates Set: Wednesday, June 4, to Sunday, June 8, have been set aside as the week that building will take place at Ford Field. From sunup to sunset you, the Northville community, will be making this happen. In four- to five-hour shifts, morning. mid-day and evening, hundreds of you will be needed each day. We'll be serving meals to all workers, providing child care for the little ones, and having the bigger kids help us too. No experience or special skill is needed. Call Sue Egan at 347-4756 to help.

Picket Sales: Now is the time to dust off that picket request form that has been sitting in your to-do pile and send it in. We have room for lots more of the personalized pickets ($50 each) and you wouldn't want yours to be left out. If you can't find the form, call Cathy Shapero at 349-4579. Neal is in Mrs. Henderson's class, or Debbie Reisman and they'll see that you get one. • Material Donations: We have a 30-page list of items needed for the construction. That doesn't include all of the tools we'll have to beg and borrow. If you or a friendly business you know would like to make a donation contact Don Lafollette for materials at 449-7169, or Steve Smith for tools at 344-7169.

• Food: Liz Burns will be heading up the food committee. If you'd like to help prepare nearly 3,000 (yes, 3,000) meals over the five days, either by donations or assistance, give her a call at 349-3354.

 Volunteers: Become a part of Northville history. Wouldn't it be something to be able to tell your grandchildren at some point in the future when you take them to Fort Griswold to play or picnic. "I hammered that section," or "I sanded that bench," or 'Your parents soaped those very nails or washed those tires for the swings when they were your age." To claim your first choice of times call Sue Egan at 347-4756.

• Corporate Donations: We have over $45,000 of the estimated $65,000 in cash we'll need to build in June. The total plan, which our kids helped design in December, should cost about $100,000. the difference being what we might hope to accumulate through corporate donations, fund-raisers or donated materials. Remember, we are a 501.c.3 charitable tax-free organization.

The final monies could easily be raised through corporate donations, which frankly have been coming in slowly. Believe it or not, we've even been turned down by companies we all support. like Ford and Ameritech, but we keep trying.

If you have a corporate donation, contact Mike Weaver at 420-2513. This would really reduce the need for extensive fund-raisers and material donations, but just in case, we are planning more-fund raisers.

· Fund-raisers: We continue to work hard at other ways to generate donations. On the drawing board for this spring are:

Sunday Brunch at The Raven - Now through at least March 30 (possibly later) we will be doing a casual pancake type brunch for families on Sunday mornings at The Raven.

If you'd like to help with this call Kevin Hartshorne at 348-6315.

T-shirts and Water Bottles - We'll continue selling these and of course you'll all need them for the build so why not order yours now? Call Cathy Shapero at 349-4579.

Mother/Daughter Tea and Fashion Show - For May, contact Tanya Bartelo at 420-3047 if you'd like to help plan this.

Friends of Park and Recreation Taste of Northville Dinner/Auction - April 26 is the date. Only 240 tickets will be sold but 25 percent of the proceeds will go to benefit the playscape

Do you have an item to donate for the auction? Can you volunteer that day to help set up before and/or take down after? Can you plan to attend and bid on the donated items and maybe get yourself a real deal? Can you sell - or buy - raffle tick-ets to perhaps win a trip to Disney World? If the answer to any of these is yes, call Tanya now at 420-3047.

Pennies for Playscape, Nickels for Northville, Dimes and Dollars. Make a Difference of Change for a Change - Whatever you call it, little bits add We'll be all over town this spring collecting odd bits of change: in the markets, gas stations. restaurants, stores, and in the classrooms in the schools too, getting all the kids involved.

On an "as yet undetermined date," all of the change collected will be brought in and dropped on the floor at the Recreation Center on Main Street. Wait 'til you see how fast a little makes a lot. Watch for this one, and if you'd like to help, call Sue Egan at 347-4756.

As you can see, lots is going on and we need your help. Remember, many hands make light work.

Mill Race Matters

With the arrival of spring thoughts return to, enjoying and sharing the out-of-doors. Mill Race Village beings to prepare for its active spring and summer season, which includes not only meetings and programs but elementary school days in the Wash Oak School and village tours. The gardeners begin to clean away the winter debris and prepare for another season of warmth and renewal.

Starting in April children from the region will once again enjoy the opportunity to spend a day in an 1873 classroom. Docents who assist with these school days are: Judy Kohl, Marietta Rathbun, Bruce Turnbuil, Elayne Elliott, and Diane Rockall. Anyone who might be interested in helping with this weekday program, which would involve two to three hours of perhaps three or four weekdays between April and June, should call the Mill Race office at 348-1845 for additional information. Training can be provided for those who might like to help.

Over the past few weeks, this column has highlighted the founding of the village's five religious congregations. Until quite recent times, these five churches served as the only spiritual homes within the community. Within the past few years other congregations have moved to buildings inside of the area boundaries as well. As the community continues to grow it seems likely others will also arrive.

Well into the later portion of the 20th century. Northville has remained primarily a small town surrounded by rural farm land. Since the 1970s. buildings and development have turned it into a residential community surrounded by yet an even larger growing residential community. Most of the land once dedicated to horse farms and agricultural farming has now become urban subdivisions.

As a small farming community the area also developed a number of community organizations. Many of them continue to this day although some have ceased to operate. Among those no longer functioning in this area are: the Women's Christian Temperance Union, the Grand Army of the Republic, the Ladies' Library Association, the Mizpah Circle and the Women's Relief Corps.

Among those still active are: the Masons, the Northville Woman's Club, the American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the Daughters of the American Revolution, the Northville Rotary and Meadowbrook Country Club.

The Ladies Library Association developed late in the 19th century to create a public library in the community. Dr. Mary Lapham wrote its bylaws and constitution, and donated the building for its use and the first books for its collection.

That library developed into the Northville District Library which the community enjoys today. The original building donated by Dr. Lapham, the New School Church with its own long history of community service, now stands at Mill Race Village.

The GAR and the Women's Relief Corps, its auxiliary, were established by and for Civil War veterans.

As the veterans died off, the organizations themselves passed into history.

The Women's Christian Temperance Union as well as the Northville Women's Suffrage Association were late 19th century branches of national organizations developed to fight issues of the day.

Although the WCTU continues to exist, no record has been found as to when the Northville branch ceased to function. During its strongest period, the branch had its own building, now an antique shop on East Main.

Mizpah Circle was a semi-religious nondenominational part of the King's Daughters, very similar to the Lady Maccabees. Its primary function was to assist those less fortunate while enjoying social activities together. Its major time of activity appears to have been from the 1890s through the 1920s.

Next week a look at the organizations which have survived through this century. -Diane M. Rockall

Northville grad interns with Geake

By LEE SNIDER Editor

Matt Cowles has great faith in government - minimal government. A 20-year-old intern in state Sen. Bob Geake's office, Cowles is a proud Republican with a passionate belief in America's democratic institutions. But he's also a staunch advocate of keeping governmental interference in check. "I have 100 percent faith in our form of government - there's no better form than democracy." he trumpets. "I see it here (in Lansing) three days a week. It's a phenomenal way to run a state and a country.

"(But) I'm for as little legislation as possible. Government should withdraw from family. from the environment."

Now a sophomore at Michigan State University, Cowles grew up in Northville and graduated from Northville High School in 1995. He's known Geake for many years, and was once a Sunday school student of the senator's at First Presbyterian Church of Northville.

Hoping to get closer to the political scene. Cowles contacted Geake one day and asked if he could work as an intern in the senator's office. Geake agreed, and last October Cowles got the post.

He now spends about 18 hours a week in Geake's office in the Capitol building, practically heaven on Earth for a young, incurable political junkie.

*Lately. I've taken quite an interest in law and politics," he remarked. "It's amazing the amount of work that gets done. I see 38 senators and 110 representatives working 24/7. A lot of the rumor mill about corruption is really blown out of proportion. A lot gets done around here. Things fly through this office at an amazing rate.'

Cowles is majoring in business administration/pre-law at MSU. He said his internship for Geake will run indefinitely, and will probably continue until the senator retires at the end of the current legislative term.

Geake announced last month that he'll be leaving politics at the end of the 1998 session.

Cowles receives no pay for his internship.

In addition to his studies and full-time class schedule, Cowles plays the mellophone, an instrument he likens to a "marching

He is a member of the MSU Marching Band and Spartan Brass.

Politically active Matt Cowles, a Northville High graduate, has found the perfect internship with Sen. Robert Geake.

His marching band involvement includes a travel itinerary, but Geake allows him the flexibility to meet his obligations.

It all adds up to a pretty busy routine, but Cowles says he knows it'll pay off in the long run.

"If you want something bad enough, you do whatever it takes," he declares. "If you have to cut down on your social time, it's worth It."

As an intern, Cowles says he helps handle constituent concerns and performs clerical work. He also attends committee meetings and assists Geake on the floor of the Senate.

"I love it here," he chimes.

Following graduation. Cowles will try to attend a law school out East. "I want to be closer to Washington, to get into politics and governmental affairs. Cowles attributes his party loyalty to his parents' influence, but says he also gravitated naturally to the GOP.

"(Democracy) is a phenomenal way to run a state and a country." -Mait Cowles

"I like the Republican mindset of less government, laissez faire," he says. "Less is more."

Cowles says a lot of his friends and peers show the type of cynicism toward politicians that's commonplace nowadays. He, however, refuses to be pessimistic.

Your government is what you! make it," he insists. "If you elect corrupt individuals, then your government is going to be corrupt. Everyone has the responsibility to: vole.

Cowles' longterm plans include a career in law or politics and, someday, a family.

"I'd like to raise a whole group of young Republicans." he quips

Supreme Court deals with teacher privacy

By TIM RICHARD Staff Writer

How private are the evaluations of a public school teacher and principals?

The Michigan Supreme Court will decide that question based on arguments from one teacher. a group of administrators and two school districts - but not the parents who filed Freedom of Information Act requests to see the records.

The cases have been dubbed reverse FOIA" suits because they're aimed at shutting off records rather than opening them up. "We need your guidance, what-ever it is." said Thomas Baird, attorney for Saranac teacher Christine Bradley. Bradley sued her school board to prevent the revelation of complaints against her and her evaluation. "You've struggled with releasing names and addresses of students." Baird said.

Bradley's evaluation is "an internal document. It contains matters that are not purely factual. It's not an easy case." said Baird. telling administrators.

Justice Michael Cavanagh that the court needs to perform "a balancing act" between public information and invasion of privacy.

"Suppose," said Chief Justice Conrad Mallett Jr. during March 5 oral arguments, "a parent wants to find out in general how good a teacher is."

Jayne Flanigan, attorney for the Lansing Association of School Administrators, had several answers:

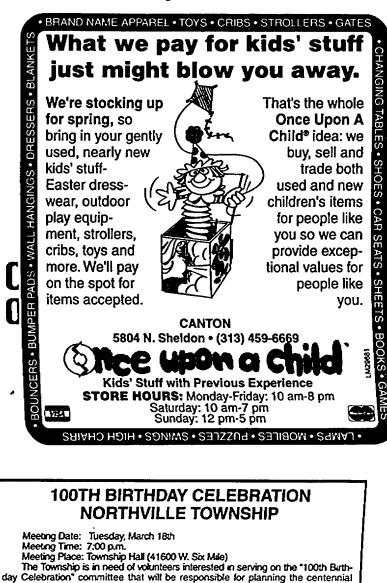

1. "A 1996 act says parents can come into the classroom.

2. The School Code provides that any applicant must authorize the district to obtain information from a previous employer.

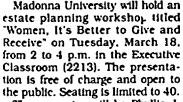

3. The Open Meetings Act allows the public to bring problems directly to a meeting of the board of education.

Filing an amicus brief on behalf of openness was the Michigan Freedom of Information Committee, headed by Bloomfield Hills attorney Michael Shpiece.

Public overlooked in schedule change

Once again Northville school district officials have managed to shut the public out of a decision that will have a major impact on the education of local students.

Next Wednesday the Northville Education Association will vote on a measure that will drastically alter the daily schedule of Northville High School students. Word is that the union rank and file will endorse the change.

The district plans to implement a "rotating block" schedule at the high school, enabling students to select seven courses each year and providing opportunities for them to engage in a variety of "seminar" activities.

While the change in scheduling may constitute a step forward for the high school education program, the method in which the proposed change was arrived at was less than commendable. The process lacked one important ingredient – public input.

With almost no opportunity for parents and students to offer feedback. plans were set in motion to move to a block schedule format at Northville High. School officials cleverly made the new schedule an issue in contract discussions with the teacher's union, taking advantage of the veil of secrecy accorded the collective bargaining process.

School officials will say that members of the public got involved through the Coalition for Student Success, an appointed group which began discussing block scheduling last fall. Officials might even claim that public input was taken through PTSA meetings.

ş

ngs. They will be partially correct. There are, indeed, a few parents involved in the Coalition for Student Success, and yes the high school PTSA has had discussions about the proposed changes.

But what about the rest of the school district? Have there been any public forums regarding the proposed changes? Has the district elicited any why there's a credibility problem.

response from the parents of middle and primary school children?

The answer is a dismaying no. The meetings that parents will attend to understand the new concept will be held after the decision was made by school administrators and teachers. Members of the public will be allowed input, but that input will be muffled by educators whose minds are already made up.

The same type of truncated public process took place a few years back when the high school tried its hand at implementing an experimental "instructional day," which gave teachers time each Wednesday morning for "collegial planning."

In that instance the decision was also made by administrators and teachers and the general public was not allowed to express its view. As a result, the program never enjoyed widespread support and survived only one school year before being dumped.

The new high school schedule is sure to cause controversy among parents who don't want to abandon the conventional format. The school administration and elected trustees have apparently anticipated that backlash and prepared themselves a tidy excuse. "It's written into the teachers" contract," they'll likely tell us. "We've got to follow through with it."

In sparing themselves the discomfort of answering objections, school officials have effectively shut parents out of an important development in their children's education. And they wonder

Scouting lessons last a lifetime

On March 12, the Girl Scouts of America are celebrating their 85th anniversary. For eight of those years. I was a card-carrying member.

I loved just about every minute of it, from selling endless boxes of cookies to making gooey marshmallow S'mores.

Juliette Gordon Low kicked the whole thing off in 1912. That first group of 12 girls who met in her Georgia home were the spiritual ancestresses of today's 2.5 million scouts. For me, the important thing

Jeffres about scouting was that it gave me an opportunity to get out into the woods and camp. My parents were not the outdoorsy type. Their idea of really roughing it is to stay at a budget hotel.

In Girl Scouts, you learn skills of varying degrees of usefulness. Among those I actually remember are how to tie a square knot. build and extinguish a camp fire, row a boat, use a compass, chop wood, lead a patrol, catch frogs, fold the American flag, and string my best friend's underwear on the flag pole.

Also, how to handle lions, feed elephants, hose down baboons and hold boa constrictors - knowledge I draw on every day. That came from volunteering at the Detroit Zoo.

Latrine duty may be lower on my list of favorite Girl Scout tasks, although it was a proud moment when I figured out I could rubber band the scrub brushes to my feet and clean Camp Narrin's wooden outhouses without actually touching anything.

And I was never too crazy about the uniform business. But the compensation was that I could sling a pocket knife from my belt as part of my scouting accessories. Can you imagine what would happen today if a kid showed up in school armed with a GSA knife?

But then Girl Scouts aren't what they used to be. Reporter Carol Workens tells me her 10-year-old daughter's troop recently delivered goodie baskets to a pregnancy center. My leaders - practically, somewhat, almost fearless when confronted by bugs, snakes, toads and mice - would have passed out if anyone had whispered the "p" word.

The best memories I have are of camping: huddling under canvas or bunking in primitive shelters, tromping through the woods at night when the full moon gilded the crusty snow, sleeping outdoors under the summer stars, confining unlucky snails in milk cartons full of dirt.

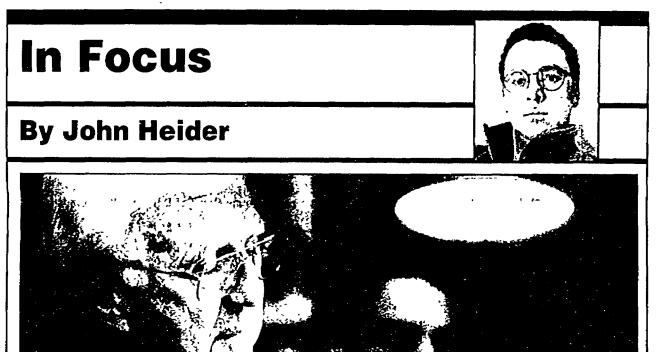

Possibly the worst after effect of scouting on my life today is that stuff about being prepared for any and every possible emergency. A dangerous concept to drum into a little kid's head.

It's made every suitcase I've ever packed for overseas travel a nightmare of heaviness, even after I pull half the stuff out. I toss in extra clothes in case I fall into deep mud far from a washing machine, and additional comfortable shoes in case one pair is torn to pieces by wild animals; over-the-counter medications for any ailment ever imagined; and a surgical kit full of sterile sutures and hypodermic needles for use in Third World countries, invaluable if I ever fall down a flight of stairs at some ancient stone temple.

So happy birthday, Girl Scouts of America, past. present and future.

And after-you blow out the candles on the cake. don't forget to dip them in water to make sure they're properly extinguished.

Some traditions evolve slowly, taking generations to become entrenched. Others, like the tradition set by the Northville-Novi combined gymnastics team, become established almost immediately.

Again this year the team, made up of athletes from both Northville and Novi high schools, proved itself a formidable competitor on the state tournament stage. After making a legitimate run at the No. 1 ranking during the regular season, the athletes finished a highly respectable third in their division at the state meet last Saturday in Rockford.

Team is great success story

This is the third consecutive year the girls secured a high state rating. In their first year after reconstituting, the team placed fifth in the state. Then last year, like this, the team finished third.

Obviously, congratulations are in order. The combined program has proven itself a brilliant success.

And congratulations, also, to Nick Sriramin, the Northville wrestler who became the first Mustang grappler to win a state title.

Hopefully, he'll start a tradition too.

Keep your contract with school

Assuming two students are equally healthy and equally intelligent, why would one attend school regularly while the other is constantly absent?

One assumes that there is a contract agreed to in going to school, and that the agreement is in effect until graduation. Getting up each day and going to school is part of that understanding.

It's a given. A routine. The choice was made upon enrollment.

The student with many absences, on the other hand, assumes that there is no single contract but a series of daily contracts. Each day a decision has to be made about whether or not to go to school.

The contract is either renewed or renegotiated in the minds of these students (and even in the minds of some parents) with the daily decision of whether to go to school or not.

Life for this person is more tentative, less secure. He or she is more likely to surrender to the pressures of the moment. Long-range planning is non-existent.

A homework assignment not done? That's OK, I won't go to school.

Tired? I'll just catch up on my sleep. I'm not ready for this test; I'll just take the day off. School can wait. I'll catch up later.

But school doesn't wait and the student rarely catches up. As the pressures mount so do the absences - and the reasons for more absences - in a cycle that can lead to failure.

These students need to learn to postpone gratification for future benefits.

They need to learn to project their thinking into the future and to understand that what they do today has an effect on the future.

They need to understand that they can direct the course of their lives by what they do each day.

School attendance, like life itself, is more than a series of daily decisions. Though it is often convenient and helpful to break time down into management segments, there must always be some degree of longrange planning, some attempt to look at a commitment in terms of the overall picture.

All students must think of their school careers as a single, governing contract with daily attendance as the primary clause.

This letter is in response to the objections by two parents of Julie Colter of Amerman Elementary School sharing her book, The Story of Youl with her second grade students.

Our children are currently in her class. While everyone is indeed entitled to their opinion, we feel it is unfortunate that anybody would take the informative, loving and innocent book. The Story of Youl, and twist it into something inappropriate.

Teaching is a profession of modeling. If you want children to read. the teacher reads. If you want children to write, the teacher writes. If you want children to share, the leacher shares.

Ms. Colter. in a kind and responsible manner, included her students in the obvious and natural experience of her pregnancy. By sharing her thoughts, writing about them and then reading them to the class, she demonstrated the creative writing process. It was then easy for the students to transfer this process and become creative writers themselves.

The daily "writer's workshop," the time Ms. Colter and her students use to do their creative writing, is remarkable. Each student engages him or herself and creates wonderful personal stories. It is doubtful this process would occur without successful modeling by Ms. Colter.

We are grateful to Ms. Colter for her gifted teaching of our children. She is a wonderful person and an exceptional teacher. We wish her and her family all the best.

Fabienne and Paul Diaz Leaders should back residents

To the editor:

Northville Township is growing in leaps and bounds. New development means new decisions to be made, but who is going to make those decisions? Hopefully, the elected officials will speak for the citizens.

The recent decision by Judge James Rashid does not speak for us here in Edenderry Hills. It is as though what we have to say about life on our own streets is not worth his attention.

Any advantage to connecting these roads pales to the disadvantage and safety hazards it will create. Is it so wrong to keep this neighborhood as safe and quiet as it is now - for both present and future owners? How much time would be saved to justify putting the safety of children and pedestrians at risk - five minutes?

The sole advantage of the Edenderry connectors is for the selling perk of Guidobono's new subdivision, directly south of Edenderry Hills, which would then be a short-cut for students and gradually all other residents, presenting a traffic bottleneck at Seven Mile and Edenderry. This will also cre-ate more expense for the township and county.

Imagine if the street that you live on became a convenient inroad for high school students and all the activities involved. We invite you to drive through our area to get a first hand look as it is now and visualize the flow of perhaps 1.000 or more cars driving down roads originally meant to be residential only.

This clearly has put us in a nowin situation. We are urging our township board to join us in undoing this injustice, and to support our attempt to repeal Judge Rashid's decision to link Six and Seven Mile roads via Edenderry

Thanks again to Joan, Judy. and the coaches who helped the students have such a positive experience.

County takes but doesn't give

To the editor: How could anyone forget the biggest pothole of all in Wayne County? It's at 208 City County Building. Detroit - the treasurer's office. So much money is siphoned off our township taxes and sent to fill that "pothole" that we should be rebelling.

Does anyone in the township remember when last our streets were cleaned and catch basins vacuumed? I do - for our subdivision. It was done once during Bill Lucas' administration. We pay for our own snow removal as do most subdivisions. The taxpayers were most generous when they passed a millage to treat the dirt roads north of Five Mile, west of Haggerty. Wayne County owns these roads. Periodically it scrapes them to level out the potholes. One good rain and the roads return to the same miserable mess.

To traverse these roads is to live dangerously. It is one continuous family of holes. There is no shoulder to drive - only deep culverts. It is impossible to avoid them because they're a quarter of a mile long.

Needless to say, had the taxpay-ers not passed this millage. Wayne County would have been forced to either black top or pave these roads.

Our generosity only exacerbated the problem.

We in the township should demand that Wayne County return some services to us for the money it receives.

Even state officials must stick to constitution

For those who care about education in Michigan, last week was an extraordinary one.

· In the first presidential address to a joint session of the state Legislature since 1907, President" Clinton called for national learning standards, national assessment tests and a tenfold increase in charter schools by the year 2000. His remarks were warmly endorsed by Gov. Engler. • Oral arguments were heard before the Supreme Court challenging Michigan's original charter school law. which lower courts have ruled unconstitutionpolitics will swing for many years to come. That's good.

Our schools are not what they should be and how best to fix them is a fit subject for the political process.

Engler's executive orders transferring power from the (voler-elected) state Board of Education to the (Engler-appointed) Superintendent of Public Instruction are particularly important. In 13 pages of single-spaced legalese, the orders gut the board's power to make new rules for charter schools, to revoke charters for failing charter schools and to determine school proficiency tests and certification standards for teachers and administrators.

On their face, the orders appear to violate Article III. Sec. 3 of the Michigan Constitution. which gives the State Board "leadership and general supervision over all public education" and "general planning and coordinating power" for all public education.

For the past six years in office, the governor

4. But one of the Republican members. Dorothy Beardmore, is a moderate who has never made a secret of her skepticism of all the ideological foaming at the mouth going on.

So last Dec. 19, just before the makeup of the State Board shifted, the governor suddenly discovered that board members don't really have all the power they had when things were 6-2, and he issued his executive orders transferring power to his buddy. Superintendent Ellis.

I'm always impressed when a serious politiclan gets right down to it and just grabs for power, regardless of history, consistency, logic or the Constitution. Engler really impressed me this time.

Looks like he didn't impress a lot of other people. The Board voted 5-3 (including Republican Beardmore) to reject Engler's orders. All bipartisan majority in the House (54] Democrats, 16 Republicans) followed suit.

And when it looked as though enough

• The state Senate, in a straight party-line vote, passed a bill to eliminate the current cap on the number of charter schools in districts where more than 2,000 students qualify for federal lunch program subsidies.

 Ingham County Circuit Judge Carolyn Stell issued a preliminary injunction blocking Gov. Engler's executive order transferring to state Superintendent of Public Instruction Arthur Ellis many powers previously held by the state Board of Education.

lt's clear.

Education is the fulcrum around which our was perfectly content to operate entirely through the State Board. His party owned a 6-2 majority. His buddy. Clark Durant. was elected president.

Their friend, Art Ellis, got hired as state school superintendent. Together, they ran a full-blown right-wing school agenda: charter schools, vouchers, prayer, even stock shares in the schools.

Then something interesting happened in the elections last November.

Two Republican State Board members got bounced, making the new partisan balance 4Republicans were going to vote against it in the Senate, the GOP leadership adjourned the Feb. 25 session before a vote could be taken.

Now Judge Stell has called a halt. They'll be arguing in court about this for a long time, but for the time being, it looks as though Gov. Engler, Superintendent Ellis and the state Board of Education will have to do what the Constitution says.

in Five Biggest Ideas, and Wiggins will tell you why: "Science literacy is a big issue within teaching. We'd like to have a leg up with people before they come into class, or before we come to live in a technology-based civilization. This is as simple as we can make it."

There are cartoons by Sidney Harris (not to be confused with the late Chicago Sun-Times columnist), which are not mere comic interludes but actually advance the ideas, the same way Rodgers & Hammerstein's music advanced the plots of Oklahoma.

And what are The Five Biggest Ideas in Science? Here is a sneak preview:

• Physics - a model of the atom. This took more centuries than you might imagine because, although atom is a Greek word, "Greek philosophers distrusted or were indifferent to experiments. They preferred to develop ideas by reason alone." If an authority said it. they found no reason to test it.

• Chemistry - periodic law of elements. Long after humans had experimented with democracy, they still believed earth, air, fire and water were the four basic elements - perhaps with "aether" in outer space. Not until the 19th century did chemists determine the atomic mass of each element. You discover why it's necessary

In other words, these authors are teachers, valences.

· Astronomy - the Big Bang theory. No longer do we believe Earth is the center of the universe. But will the universe continue to expand? Or will it oscillate back into the Big Crunch?

• Geology - plate tectonics. Giant plates float on the surface of the globe, causing seismic waves

 Biology – evolution: life begins and branches out; genes mutate.

New York publisher John Wiley & Sons Inc. has put out this 200-page paperback for $15, but my question is: Who is the market? Wiggins is looking at future students who will find college science easier once they grasp basic concepts that are well written. Perhaps women. who are taught socially to fear science and math.

Myself, I would ask Newt Gingrich to add it to his reading list, along with The Federalist Papers, for new members of Congress. America would be better if politicians knew what they're talking about.

Art Wiggins will sign copies of the book at 7 p.m. Wednesday, March 19, at Border's Bookstore in Birmingham, and at 2 p.m. Monday, April 7, in OCC's Orchard Ridge Campus bookstore, I-696 and Orchard Lake Road, Farmington Hills.

Local financiers open Novi bank

By JAN JEFFRES Staff Writer

Not just anybody can start up a bank and issue $10 million worth of stock on the open market. better.

Yet Anthony Albanese and Richard Zamojski say they prove that you don't have to come from old money to start loaning out new money. Their venture, the Michigan Heritage Bank, opened its doors on Monday.

We're a couple of regular guys. Both of our parents were blue collar workers. It's very exciting that you can open a bank when you don't have money in your background," said Albanese.

A Northville resident, he's the president and chief operating officer. Zamojski, of Brighton Township, is the chairman and CEO.

Located on Haggerty Road near the Novi Hilton, Michigan Heritage Bank took over and refurbished a former Comerica branch office that had been vacant since 1988.

The financial institution, with a target market of Novi. Northville. Livonia, Farmington and Farmington Hills, will concentrate on financing commercial leases but

But you don't just get a building and put up an "open for banking business sign.

As a start-up bank, the corpora-tion first had to go through an extensive application process with the Financial Institutions Bureau of the State of Michigan and the Federal Reserve Board, which included an FBI check on the principal officers. Michigan Heritage is backed by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. (FDIC) in Chicago.

"The regulators don't let just anyone open a bank. You go through a very thorough process. You get examined every three months for the first two years. There are a lot of people watching the investment. Albanese explained.

We're sort of at the end of a long journey, but we're also really at the beginning because the bank is opening." Zamojski said.

We're really pleased that the whole process went very smooth-

By 1998, Albanese said he expects the bank will have better than $67 million in assets.

Both men have over 20 years' experience in banking. Zamojski, who holds an M.B.A. from the University of Michigan, was formerly chairman of the board and CEO with Sterling Bank & Trust. Albanese, a Vietnam veteran, was president and chief operating officer with Sterling Bank.

"We began to see that we had sort of built our resumes and our careers had sort of branched. The challenge of starting a new bank didn't seem as daunting as what would have been earlier." Zamojski said.

"It gave us the confidence in our resumes to be able to go and apply for a bank charter. We had a high likelihood of being successful and getting approved."

The idea is that a smaller bank will offer the personal service and familiar faces that customers may miss in mega-bank corporations. they explained. Small- to mediumsized businesses will be targeted.

Body of woman found in home

Kathleen Sprenger didn't get out much. The 75-year-old woman, who lived her entire life at a home near the corner of Wing and Dunlap streets in Northville's historic district, basically kept to herself, according to neighbors, and didn't venture far from the faded greencolored house she called home.

She had no immediate family in the area, so there was little traffic to and from the house, and nearby residents didn't express concern when the longtime resident wasn't seen for awhile.

That all changed early this month when postal workers alerted Northville police that Sprenger had not collected her mail in several weeks.

When officers went to check on her they discovered her body in a bedroom. According to the Wayne County Medical Examiner, the woman had died of natural causes approximately five weeks earlier.

Competition is by age category and gender, but there is no separation of skill levels. It is a higher level of competition for girls in open, primary and championship categories. Dancers placing highly qualify for the World Championship in Ireland which is called the Oireachtas na Cruinne. A North American championship competition began in 1969.

TCRG (Teasgicoir Choimisiuin Le Rinci Gaelacha): Translation is Gaelic Commission Dancing Teacher (certified instructor).

ADCRG (Ard Diploma Choimisiuin Le Rinci Gaelacha): Translated means Highest Diploma in Gaelic Dancing.

Types of dancing and music

Jig -There are a number of variations of the jig. including the single (or soft), double, treble and slip jig. Dancers perform single or soft jigs in soft shoes. The slip jig (soft shoes) is the most graceful of Irish dances and features light hopping. sliding, skipping and pointing. Only women dance the slip jig.

Reel – Originating in Scotland around 1750, the reel is danced at a relatively fast tempo. Both men and women dance the reel.

Hornpipe - Evolving from English stage acts, the hornpipe began around 1760 and originally was danced by men in hard shoes (similar to an old farm boot). Both men and women now compete. The hornpipe is reminiscent of a slow reel. A notable feature is the frequent use of a rocking motion with the ankles. It may have a slow or fast tempo.

Set Dances - Set dances are performed to a set tune, some of which are over 250 years old but most are of more recent origin. They are danced by males and females in hard shoes. Because the tune is always set and the dancer knows the tune, in competition the emphasis is on the interpretation of the music.

Another type is the "group set dance." Group sets are derived from French quadrilles (square dances performed by four couples). These group dances differ from ceili dances in that they are less sophisticated.

Celli Dances - Celli dances are derived from group set dances and French quadrilles which were set to Irish music. A "ceili" is a gathering for music and dance. They were standardized in 1902 and their descriptions recorded in the 1930s. The Gaelic League sponsored the first Irish Ceili in 1897. They borrowed the idea from the Scots and a precedent was set that a piper opened the ceili.

get to the championships they get larger trophies or Belleek china.

Kelly is in the open level and went to the Oireachtas (a super feis) in Milwaukee. Wis., Thanksgiving weekend. In the Milwaukee Oireachtas, girls from five states completed in the higher levels which include open, preliminary and championships according to their age level.

An Oireachtas will be held over Thanksgiving weekend at the Westin Hotel in Detroit in 1997. Those who win will be invited to compete in Ireland around Easter of 1998. A feis will be held at the Novi

Hilton on Saturday, June 7.

Kelly's dream is to go over and compete in Ire-Ward land. "Most said. desire to compete in Ireland."

The costumes today's dancers reflect the clothing of the past. The girls start in a plaid skirt which is the beginning dance school uniform. If they decide to stay with step dancing. stu-

The dresses are worn for everything the student participates in over such as parades, shows and competitions.

"They wear real well," Ward said. They do get handed down and resale is very good."

Dresses can be sold either locally or at different competitions.

Because Kelly was asked by her dance teacher to compete at the Oireachtas last year, she was allowed to get a velvet solo costume. She chose a red velvet dress with a Celtic design of swans in teal and gold lame.

Artwork for today's competition dresses comes from the illustrated manuscript of the Gospels done by Irish monks between the mid 1700s and early 1800s, called the "Book of Kells." They may include symbols or scenes from Irish history.

Area stepdancers perform types of dancing similar to those done in Riverdance, according to Ward. Most also attended a performance of the production.

They are familiar with those steps and were also learning as they watched," Ward said.

"Tim is a great teacher," she said. "His kids all seem to learn well and do well.

"We've been blessed to have him in this community and give them a sense of their heritage and where they came from."

The O'Hare students will be participating in the St. Patrick's Day Parade in Detroit on Sunday, March 16, which ends at the Gaelic League building on Michigan Avenue.

"They all seem to enjoy this immensely." Ward said. "You mention Irish dance and (Kelly) wants to be part of it. I don't ever have to tell her to practice, she is constantly in motion.

"It gets in their blood. It becomes their life in a way that they have a good camaraderie amongst the other girls in the school and their class.

They are now of the age they are helping the younger ones with the steps. It is nice to see that going on."

dents are encouraged to get the blue O'Hare Dance School dress with a Celtic design embroidered on it.

Teacher, son

doing fine

When Amerman Elementary School second grade teacher Julie Colter went on family leave Feb. 28 she was expecting what had been an uneventful pregnancy to continue into a routine birth.

· Zachary Phillip Colter was born March 4, however, with quite a bit 'of fanfare.

· Colter was due to give birth on her last day of work but four days later, during a March 4 routine doctor's visit, a problem arose. During a procedure to monitor the baby's heart beat, the heart rate decelerated for two minutes. Plans to go to Novi's Providence Park Medical Center were changed and the mother-to-be checked into Providence Hospital in Southfield.

A second fetal monitor indicated that the heart rate was normal. but because Colter was overdue labor was induced. Contractions started immediately and a third fetal monitor indicated that the baby was in trouble again.

"As soon as that happened the whole room turned into a scene from ER," Colter said.

She was put under a general anesthesia and the 7 pound 11and-a-half ounce boy-was delivered . by caesarean.

The baby's oxygen supply was diminished because the umbilical cord which was wrapped around his neck cut off his oxygen when he moved, causing the heart rate to slow.

"He is just fine and everything has just turned out wonderfully. said Colter, who is married to Brian. "It was a little scary but definitely good news."

Scouts celebrate 85th anniversary

By CAROL WORKENS Staff Writer

Almost 85 Northville Girl Scouts must have used just as many different ways to celebrate the anniversary of scouting this month.

The Northville Girl Scouts are part of the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council. Each school is considered a cluster and there are seven clusters in Northville - Moraine. Amerman and St. Paul Lutheran schools, Thornton Creek, Winchester, and Silver Springs elementary schools. Our Lady of Victory School, and the seventh through 12th grade Cadet Seniors in the entire city.

The Amerman Elementary School and St. Paul Lutheran cluster had an 85-minute celebration on March 6. The celebration started with each troop decorating one sheet cake. When all 14 of the. individual sheet cakes were combined, they formed a patchwork quilt cake.

A total of 150 children's books were donated by the girls to the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council for "Stepping Out for a New Beginning." a walk to benefit local domestic violence shelters scheduled for Sunday, April 27.

The walk is sponsored by the Girl Scouts of Plymouth. Canton. Northville and South Lyon.

The girls and the leaders also made 170 miniature peace doves on which they wrote friendship messages. Troop 379 collected the doves and will send 85 of them to Japan and 85 to Zimbabwe.

To carry their celebration even further, all the girls wore their uni-forms to school on March 12, the actual anniversary date.

Sixty-five Girl Scouts in kindergarten through fifth grade at Moraine Elementary met for a swim party at Northville High School on March 11, followed by a pizza party where Mayor Chris Johnson officially proclaimed Girl Scout Week in the city.

"Because it's the 85th anniversary we were trying to do more that week." Troop Leader Chris Haas said.

The Our Lady of Victory School Girl Scouts attended a special Girl Scout Mass at the church, followed by a potluck with international foods and square dancing.

Other troops from various schools went camping.

A reception honoring families who have been in Girl Scouts for three or more generations was held in Ann Arbor on March 8.

Attending from Northville were the following grandmother, mother and daughter combinations: Catherine Danias. Kathy Ambler and Marie and Sarah Ambler; Gail Garrison, Chris Haas and Cherllyn and Suzi Haas: Margaret Walker. Carole Jean Stockhausen and Juliet. Rachel and Clara Stockhausen: Carole Lourain. Sue Petres and Andrea Petres: Audrey Curtin. Cindy Kusuplos and Kathryn Kusuplos: Lois Wolfe Winters. Karen Stephens and Victoria Stephens: May B. Dubuc. # Cultures collide in Disney's comedy 'Jungle to Jungle'

Successful commodities trader Michael Cromwell (Tim Allen), is engaged to marry Charlotte (Lolita Davidovich), but first he must finalize his divorce with his estranged wife. Dr. Patricia Cromwell (JoBeth Williams).

Leaving everything behind, including his hyperactive business partner. Richard (Martin Short). Michael travels deep into the Ama-/on jungle where Patricia has been living since she left him, and gets the surprise of his life when he discovers he has a 13 year old son. Mimi-Siku (Sam Huntington), who has been raised among tribesmen.

In no time, Michael inadvertently agrees to take Mimi-Siku to visit his own jungle - New York City. Cultures collide and hilarious chaos ensues when Mimi-Siku. who has more skill with blow darts than with social graces, comes to the most sophisticated city on the planet and wreaks comical havoc on his father's life in Walt Disney Pictures'/TF1 International's family comedy. "Jungle 2 Jungle."

In "Jungle 2 Jungle" Tim Allen is reunited with the director and creative team responsible for Walt Disney Pictures' blockbuster hit "The Santa Clause." At the center of the ambitious undertaking is director John Pasquin, a longtime associate of Tim Allen, and a veteran of directing countless television productions as well as Walt Disney. Pictures' all-time highest grossing live-action hit, "The Santa Clause."

"After working on "The Santa Clause" I looked a long time for the right follow-up project," director Pasquin says of the search that led to "Jungle 2 Jungle."

"When I came across this story - which depicts the growth of a connection between father and his son - I knew we had the right project."

Tim Allen was equally meticulous in the search for his next liveaction film role. "It took quite a while to find something I wanted to do after The Santa Clause' and Toy Story," he says.

In Jungle 2 Jungle, I liked the are of my character - a man who learns to be a good father and a good friend and finds a real sense of humanity within himself. There can never be too many movies about fathers being good fathers, and that's what 'Jungle' 2 Jungle' is about " gestation says. The story always had the potential to be humane and very funny. It was an irresistible combination."

When the filmmakers began assembling a strong cast to support Tim Allen in "Jungle 2 Jungle." Martin Short was recruited to play Tim's character's harried business partner and best friend Richard, Because Martin plays desperate better than anybody I know," director Pasquin laughs.

"His character in the film is an extremely desperate man, and yet he is also the person in the story who has a stable family. Marty's an incredibly warm guy, and I had a hunch that he and Tim would get along well." et along well. Pasquin's hunch proved right.

often to his own distraction on the set as the two comic actors played off one another.

'It was very difficult having a guy as funny as Martin around." Tim Allen says, "because we became two obstreperous kids on the set during production. It was as if we were pushing it right to the edge of being expelled from school. The director. John Pasquin, kept saying to Marty and me, Boys, boys, let's settle down. please.

John Travolta does it again in 'Michael'

MICHAEL

BY HEATHER WADOWSKI NORTHVILLE

After seeing John Travolta in such wonderful movies like, Phesuch wonderful movies hkc, rhe-nomenon." "Pulp Fiction." and "Get Shorty," seeing himself being degraded by playing a beer-drink-ing, chain-smoking angel in a trailer for "Michael" made me dis-appointed. Why would he accept this part after working so hard on being one of Hollywood's most sought-after actors?

But, curiosity got the better of me and I went out and saw "Michael." And I will never doubt John Travolta's decisions again.

'Michael" was one of the best holiday movies of this past season. One of the few movies that wasn't aimed directly at kids, but didn't have so much violence and swearing a parent couldn't bring the whole family to see. "Michael" was a delightful surprise for a good family movie.

But before he does anything. he's going to have some fun.

And that's when the adventure begins.

'Michael is a treat everyone is sure to love. Filled with humor and heart, "Michael" glows with five stars out of five.

Sríramin wins title, first in school history

By SCOTT DANIEL Sports Editor

By the third period of his state semi-final wrestling match Saturday. Nick Sriramin was tired.

He had been pushing, pulling and leaning on Sterling Height's Monte Lewis for more than four minutes - a virtual eternity on the mat.

But he found enough energy to beat Lewis and then go on to win the 112-pound Division I championship at Kellogg Arena in Battle Creek.

Twe been running at 6 a.m. the past couple of weeks," the senior said. "I tried to simulate a matchby throwing in a lot of sprints. You need those sudden bursts of energy when you're wrestling."

Sriramin said that extra training llowed him to beat Lewis By the hird period of the match, he said, I was just dead.

"But I kept thinking about getling up all those times early to run it definitely helped."

Coach Garnett Potter said beating Lewis was key.

"I thought if he got by Lewis he was home free," he said

Sriramin's title is the first ever won by a Northville High wrestler. Brandon Mardosian finished second in 1991. Matt Allison was the last Mustang to place before Sriramin. He accomplished his feat in 1993

"Nick's a tough kid." said Potter. a Mustang placer himself years ago "He's an all-around wrestler now.

Having won his region, the senior came into the tournament with a top seed. Sriramin faced a fourth seed, Roberto Hernandez of day. He decisioned Hernandez 7-4 then qualified for Saturday by edg-ing Jimson Smith of Saginaw 7-5. Wrestlers had to win twice Friday to make it into the championship rounds.

Holland, in the opening round Fri-

That brought up the match with Lowis.

The Sterling Heights wrestler took an early 2-0 lead with a takedown in the first period. Sriramin fought back with an escape and a take-down of his own to lead 3-2 by the end of the first period.

Lewis tied the match at three in the second period. Sriramin took the lead for good early in the third with a pair of escapes. He held on to beat Lewis 5-4.

Nick said it was a very tough match.

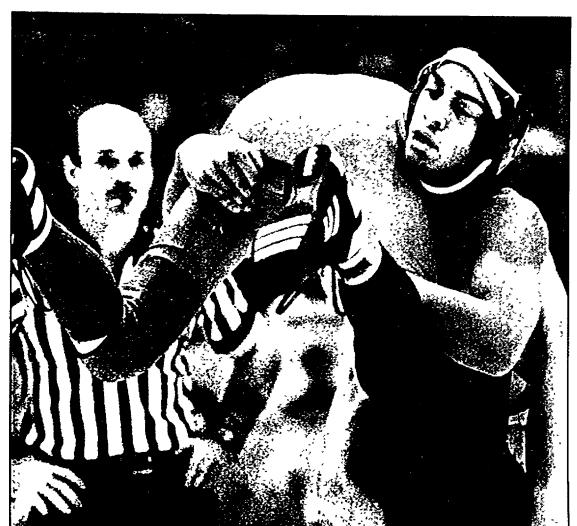

"He was as strong as an ox." Sriramin said of Lewis. "When you wrestle someone that's just as strong as you are, fatigue starts to set In.

Sriramin then faced Brad Herd of Swartz Creek in the final. The pair battled for nearly five minutes without a single point being scored.

Sriramin finally notched a take-down with 1:03 left in the third period. It turned out to be the only points of the match, a 2-0 titlewinner for Nick.

Herd was a bit taller than Sriramin and used his height advantage to keep him from scoring. I couldn't gutte finish, my moves," the senior said. But the "take-down machine" of Northville finally nailed Herd as the duo started in a standing position

Nick Sriramin won four matches in claiming the 112-pound state championship.

"That's what I'm best at is on my feet," Sriramin said.

He couldn't even describe the feeting he had to win the title. But Sriramin knew his experience from a year ago, when he went 0-2 in the tournament, was vital to winning the championship.

"I guarantee I wouldn't have done as good if I hadn't had that experience." he 'said.' "It makes a world of difference, to know what it's like to see all those people at Kellogg Arena."

Having taken that early exit last March made Sriramin even more is no other."

determined this time around. "I was on a mission," he said. The state champion finishes the year with a 34-2 record.

"I've won other tournaments in the last two years," Sriramin said. "but this is the tournament. There

Torrence, Grider compete at finals

By SCOTT DANIEL

Rick Torrence and Bryan Grider didn't win a state wrestling title like teammate Nick Sriramin.

But the Northville High juniors represented their school and themselves in strong fashion last weekend in Battle Creek. Torrence placed sixth in his weight class while Grider made a solid showing in his two matches.

With all of the Mustangs' suçcess at Kellogg Arena, coach Garnett Potter thinks Northville's fortunes are on the rise.

"I think the program is on the right track," he said. "We should have a very strong team next year,

"I think we can go to the state final. What's going to happen is going to be incredible."

Both Torrence and Grider will play key roles in Northville's fortune's next season. If the state final in any indication, the Mustangs can look forward to an excellent campaign.

In order to make it to last weekend's championship phase on Salurday, wrestlers had to win twice Friday before losing twice.

Torrence did just that. He fell in the opening round to Brad Herd of Swartz Creek, 5-3. Herd went on to meet Sriramin in the 112-pound weight class finals; Torrence said he felt a little over-makes

For the second straight year. Chris Anderson has made all-state.

The Northville High senior diver finished third in the Class A competition at the University of Michigan Saturday. Coach Mark Heiden said it's quite an accomplishment.

"The state meet is one of the toughest meets because you don t know who'll do what," he said. You have to be consistent to finish near the top. Chris' years of experience have paid off in that respect."

Northville finished tied for 25th with Okemos with 15 points Birm-Ingham Brother Rice won its fourth straight Class A title. Ann Arbor Pioneer was second and Birmingham Groves third.

The Mustangs qualified for four events in the two day competition. Evan Whitbeck survived Friday's preliminary round in the 200-yard IM by swimming a career best of 1:59.26. That put him in 11th position for Saturday's final.

Whitbeck topped his previous best again to take 10th in the state at 1:58.84. Swimmers had to finish In the top six to make all-state.

Whitbeck also qualified in the 500-yard freestyle. He swam a 4:54 in the preliminary round. which wasn't quite fast enough to make the final.

Craig Sieving also didn't make it out of the prelim. He swam a 55.51 in the 100-yard backstroke to finish 18th. The top 12 swimmers in each event moved on to the final.

As for Anderson, he closed his Northville High career with a 409.45-point performance. Micah Clack of East Lansing won the event with 412.05 points and Andrew Sivulka of Ann Arbor Pioneer was second at 409.55.

"He dove very well," Heiden said of Anderson's performance.

The senior will likely dive in college at the University of California at Santa Barbara. Heiden said he has been offered a partial scholarship.

Anderson will also find out in a few months if he has earned All-American status. Heiden said Anderson has a good shot at earning that honor.

Saturday's finals put an end to Northville's season. It was also Heiden's last meet as the Mustangs' coach.

He's leaving the squad to spend more time with his family.

"It was a pretty emotional day knowing that it was the end," he said.

Heiden, who coached Northville for nearly a decade, will stay active in the sport by continuing to guide his US diving team.

There's no room for mistakes at the state gymnastics final.

Northville-Novi didn't make many in Friday's team competition at Rockford High. But then threeume defending champion Holland didn't need much space to sneak past the Mustangs.

A few near fails by the combined team and a couple of extra moves by Holland was all the Dutch needed to capture their fourth straight championship.

"They were really on," coach Barb Winn said of Holland. "Everything they did was really good." The Dutch totaled 146.025 points to win the title. Rochester Adams finished second at 143.35 and the Mustangs were third in the state with 142.75 points.

It was the second straight year Northville-Novi finished third. "We had a few glitches," Winn said of the competition. "But to be third in the state was wonderful. We worked really hard and had a great season."

The combined team finished in the top four in all four events Friday. Holland, however, won all four.

The Dutch scored 36.15 points on the vault to start competition. Northville-Novi was second at 35.65.

Holland's half-point lead after the first event wasn't untouchable. But the Mustangs needed a strong showing on the balance beam to make up ground.

It didn't happen.

Several near falls by the combined team allowed Holland to stretch its lead. The Dutch won the event with 36.925 points while Northville-Novi was a distant fourth at 35.65.

It turned out to be too much of a deficit to overcome. The Mustangs recovered to take third in the uneven bars and floor exercise, but didn't challenge Holland.

Winn said there was no disappointment on the part of her team. She said her gymnasts talked "After the meet not one girl said the judges scored too hard. There was no (complaining). I was so proud of them as young adults." BARB WINN about working even harder for a shot at the title next winter.

"After the meet not one girl said the judges scored too hard," Winn added. There was no (complaining). I was so proud of them as young adults."

INDIVIDUAL FINALS

The state's top gymnasts came back for another day of competition at Rockford High Saturday at the individual final.

Mary Essary closed her Mustang career in strong fashion by taking ninth in the all-around and winning three medals in total.

"She worked really hard this vear," said Winn. "She was a good leader for us.

As a team, Northville-Novi earned nine medals.

Holland's Katrina Gier earned the all-around title (37.925) Saturday, while Portage's Wendy Johnson was second (37.25) and Rochester Adams' Erin James third (37.075).

Essary scored 35.775 points for ninth in Division I. Erica Winn had Northville-Novi's next highest total with 35.7 points and Stacey Williamson finished with 35.325.

In terms of individual events, Essary was eighth in the vault at 9.15. Erica Winn just missed placing with a 9.05. Kristen Levin had a 9.0, Williamson 8.8 and Missy MacRae, a junior, earned an 8.6.

at 9.0.

Northville-Novi's strongest event was the balance beam. Williamson was sixth overall with a 9.175. Winn seventh at 9.15 and Levin 10th at 9.05.

The Mustangs didn't place in the floor exercise. Essary's 9.075 was the highest score.

In Division II, Nicole Pelletier was the combined team's lone competitor. She took two medals on the day.

Pelletier was eighth on the vault with an 8.95. She also took fifth in the floor exercise at 9.15.

SOCCER

The Livonia Youth Soccer Club U16 girls team finished in first place in its first session of indoor soccer while playing up in the older U18 division at Total Soccer. Even though the LYSC U16 team was the youngest team (included players as young as 13) playing in the U18 girls division, they outscored their opponents 38 to 9 while posting shutouts against the North Metro Rangers, Redford Panthers, Livonia YMCA Meteors, and Farmington teams.

In addition to receiving a trophy from Total Soccer, the team received free tickets to a Rockers game and participated in a halftime awards ceremony held down on the Detroit Rockers soccer field. The team also had a successful second session, finishing with an Identical 7-1 record with the other top ranked team.

The team is coached by Mike Esparza with Lou Seveg as assistant coach and Rich Nellums volunteering as team manager.

The team members included: Blakely Barry, Nichole Gellner, Lauren Gunn-Boyar, Chris Mellor, Kyla Murphy from Northville; Kristen Esparza, Michelle Esparza, Amanda Mikail, Jamie Scott, Kassie Scovel, Luba Steca, Carolynne Suveg, and Crystal Wright from Livonia; Jamie Jakacki and Olivia Nellums from Farmington Hills: and Colleen Scanlon and Andrea Surratt from West Bloomfield.

BASEBALL.

The 10 and under boys travel baseball teams (born after Aug. 1, 1986) will be holding tryouts Friday, April 11, from 5:30-7 p.m., and Saturday, April 12, and Sunday, April 13, from 1-2:30 p.m. at Henningson Field (behind the Northville Township offices). Boys must be signed up to play travel baseball to try out.

There will be two teams at this age level. The first team will play in the Willie Mays (10 and under) Division of Little Caesars Amateur Baseball Federation plus five-six weekend tournaments. The second team will play in the Northville House League plus six-seven weekend tournaments. There will be a fee for tournaments over and above the amount paid at signups

If you have any questions, please contact Jim Cicala at 347-4598.

SOCCER REFEREES NEEDED

The Northville Soccer Association is seeking individuals interested in becoming soccer referees for the spring 1997 season. Training is provided to all referees. The pay rate begins at $8 per game.

For further information, contact Tom Beyersdorf at 349-0637.

YOGA

Yoga classes are held at the Northville American Legion Hall on a continuing basis. Develop strength, flexibility and balance as well as relaxation techniques.

Courses are held Monday mornings from 10 to 11:30 a.m. for beginners, and Monday and Thursday evenings from 7 to 8:30 p.m. for continuing students. Courses are taught by Dlane Siegel-DiVita and Sandy Krafsur.

The American Legion Hall is located on the northwest corner of Center Street and Dunlap in Northville.

The Providence team of physicians, associates and volunteers is proud to announce that we've made the list of America's Top 100 Hospitals. Two independent research firms rated over 3,500 acute-care hospitals nationwide, examining them for efficiency, financial stability, and quality of care. And in the final analysis,

Providence was ranked in the top 100. We're excited to be in such good company. But then, after more than 150 years of serving metro Detroit-we couldn't be anything less. For more information call: 1-800-968-5595

Finals: Must see athletics

If you've never been to the state wrestling finals make it a point to go next year. It may just be the premier stand what I mean.

The stands are filled with family, friends and teammates of every wrestler qualified for the finals. For each match that their man is on the mat, it's non-stop screaming and cheering until it's over.

Consider that there's four to eight matches going at any one time and you can't even imagine how loud the arena gets. It's a little intimidating for a sportswriter. let alone the poor athletes.

Northville High's Rick Torrence learned this lesson over the weekend.

The 112-pounder was making his first trip to Battle Creek. While coaches told him what to expect, he said he was still overwhelmed initially.

"About 10 minutes before my first match." he said, my mouth got dry and I got really nervous.

Torrence felt those nerves contributed to a firstround loss. He thinks this year's experience will help him be better prepared next year as a senior.

"I think this will help me so much," Rick said. "It was a fun experience."

Torrence was hoping to finish in the top four, but wound up sixth. He thinks he'll do better next time. "it's something to shoot for next year." he said.

Torrence's experience isn't uncommon in sports. It often takes professional athletes and teams a time or two in the championship before they win. At the highest level, experience counts just as much as ability.

Take Northville's new state champion, Nick Sriramin.

As a junior last winter, he qualified for the state finals. But he was eliminated in the first day of contpetition. going 0-2.

Sriramin has improved a lot as a wrestler since that tournament. But he said knowing what to expect was just as important to his success.

"I guarantee I wouldn't have done as good if I hadn't had that experience." Sriramin said. "It makes a world of difference, to know what it's like to see all those people at Kellogg Arena."

Children must be vaccinated against the hepatitis-B virus

Health care providers have suddenly found their offices flooded with phone calls about the Hepatitis B vaccine.

The reason for this renewed interest is the legislation on the hepatitis-B vaccination by the state of Michigan. As of January 1997, the state of Michigan is requiring all children attending day care centers to be vaccinated against the hepatitis-B virus. The legislation further mandates that all children entering school begin-ning the in year 2000 be vaccinatrequired for optimal antibody response. It induces an adequate antibody response in more than 95 percent of infants, children and adolescents. The duration of protection and need for booster doses are not yet fully defined.

Speaking of hepatitis-B ... Com-Vax is here. This is a new combination vaccine from Nack Division. ComVax is hemophilus-B conjugate and hepatitis-B vaccine combined. It was available for use as of January 1997. This vaccine is a sterile bivalent vaccine made of the

Millions of Americans dependent on alcohol

Alcohol has been used by people throughout the world and through the ages for its mood altering and other effects.

The use of alcohol spans from the divine references to alcohol appear in the Bible and alcohol is used in modern-day religious ceremonies - to the medicinal.

For example, alcohol is contained in many over-the-counter cold medicines. Mostly, though, alcohol is consumed as beer, wine or liquor for purposes other than religion or medicine. Americans 14 and older consumed an average of 2.4 gallons of pure alcohol per capita in 1989.

Most people who drink do so in moderation and without any problems. About one-third of men and one-half of women in this country either abstain or drink no more than 12 drinks in a year. Only 19 percent of men and 7 percent of women consume an average of two or more drinks per day.

A drink is defined as:

One 12 ounce can or bottle of beer

- One 12 ounce wine cooler
- . Four to 5 ounces of table wine

• One shot [1 to 1.5 ounces] of hard liquor such as gin, Scotch, whiskey or vodka.

Moderate drinking is generally defined in this country by the "0-3-4-7-14 rule." Abstinence (zero drinking) is recommended before driving and for pregnant women, underage persons, people on medications known to interact with alcohol and people with medical illnesses such as alcoholism or liver disease.

Women should not exceed three drinks in a day and seven drinks in a week, and men should not exceed four drinks in a day and 14 drinks in a week.

These limits are based on the increasing risk of health or social problems when they are exceeded. However, they do not cover all situations, because people are more or less likely to have alcohol-related problems depending on their age, weight, family history and other fac-

For people 65 and older, no more than one drink a day is recommended. In addition, one should not drink every day; and no more than one drink per hour is advised when one does drink.

An estimated 15.3 million Americans suffer from alcohol abuse or alcohol dependence. Alcohol abuse refers to drinking that results in health or social problems. Alcohol dependence also is characterized by:

· Drinking more than intended, and having difficulty cutting down; ·

• Tolerance, or needing more alcohol over time to feel the desired effects:

 Withdrawal, or feeling sick when drinking is stopped.

Alcoholism is a severe form of alcohol dependence. Alcohol abuse and dependence cost the nation $99 billion in 1990, including treatment costs, loss of work time due to sickness and premature death, legal costs, and property losses (such as with motor vehicle accidents). Onehalf of motor vehicle accidents are alcohol-relat-

Family members and friends may feel uncertain about how to intervene with someone close to them who has an alcohol problem. The things they have tried have not worked, in part because people who abuse or depend on alcohol sometimes deny it to themselves and others.

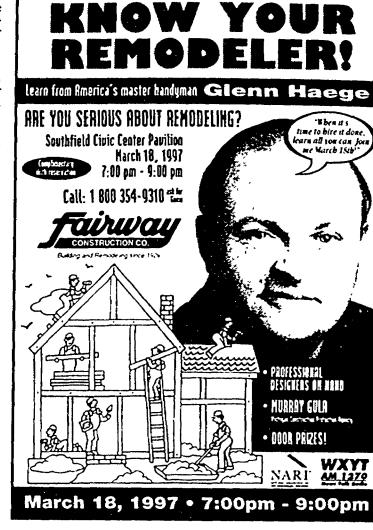

It can be helpful for family members and friends to discuss their concerns honestly, with caring, and without blame when the person is not under the influence.

Family members can learn about alcoholism and related problems by reading, attending community lectures, contacting professionals and talking with other families who have "been there" and been helped by such groups as Al-Anon (listed in most phone books).

Family members should avoid protecting others from the consequences of their drinking by making excuses or covering for them.

Finally, most people with alcohol problems get better, including those with severe problems, when they complete treatment. Therefore, family, friends and those with alcohol problems may feel hopeful about recovery from alcohol abuse, dependence and alcoholism.

REAL ESTATE Burglar-proofing home is a wise investment

By James M. Woodard Copley News Service

What are you doing to protect your home from burglars? A recent study shows an increasing urgency in taking some form of protective action.

Nationally, we are experiencing more than 5 million home burglarles per year. And the problem is getting worse. The increasing use of drugs has created a situation where some people (users) will do anything to find the cash they need to feed their addiction, even if that means burglarizing a home.

In most cases, families don't keep a lot of cash at their home. But the typical home burglary will net the perpetrator about $1,100 worth of property, and that's enough motivation to keep crooks in a burglarizing mode, according to Criterium Engineers, a national home inspection service that recently concluded a study of the home burglary problem. There are many burglar alarm systems available today. The average cost of an alarm system is about $1,400, but can run as high as $3,000, the Criterium study revealed. Around-the-clock monitoring typically costs an additional $20 to $30 per month.

These alarm systems can provide excellent protection. But it's

Growing bouquets of blue year-round in your garden

By C.Z. Guest Copley News Service

There's something extra special about the flowers that bring the brilliant blue of the sky into the garden.

Here are my selections of the most fabulous, outstanding blue bloomers from spring-flowering bulbs to long-blooming perennials - all arranged by their bloom time to help you grow glorious bouquets of blue, cobalt, azure, indigo and sapphire.

For an early "blue" spring. plant some bulbs right away. These powerful small clumps of color have an amazing impact way out of proportion to their individual flower size. simply because nothing else is sprouting at the time.

The first flowers to poke their little noses out of the ground are usually those of snow crocus, so plant Blue Peter and Blue Pearl for starters. They'll bloom in this month.

Next to arrive is Glory-ofthe-Snow (chlonodoxa) with its brilliant clusters of starlike blue flowers on 6-inch stems: they will readily naturalize wherever planted.

Blue Scillas are next to arrive, whose seeds will readily spread to create a carpet of blue in your lawn if allowed. Then we get to the everpopular and very fragrant hyacinths - you must choose the dark-blue variety. Blue Jacket. and the long-blooming daisylike windflowers Anemone blanda.

GARDENING

Finally, in late spring, you can finish off your array of blue bulbs with Spanish bluebells (Hyacinthoides hispanica). All of these beautiful bulbs are hardy from Zones 3 through 8, except the windflowers, which are only safe down to Zone 4.

All these gems are widely available at garden centers at the proper time to plant them. which is right now.

ANNUALS

Heavenly Blue morning glory - the name tells it all. All you have to do is find a sunny location, build a giant tepee of saplings and grow this lovely annual as a centerpiece right in your vegetable garden or any other place that suits your fancy.

They are also fabulous in containers (clay pots. etc.) for the patio or swimming pool

Home Tour. It was built in 1855 by Squire Washington and Dolly Castle Rowe before the Civil War. The Greek Revival structure is one of four sites in the area listed on both the State and National Register of Historic Sites

When Michael Rutka searched for a home in 1989, it was a hands down winner.

The real estate agent showed us a lot of houses at the time. There was just no comparing it." He added that two thoughts went through his mind upon deciding to make the place home: "My God, what a beautiful house, and my God, what a lot of work.

Although the 3,600 square foot building requires a lot of tender loving care from the couple, they have no regrets. In fact, it has many conveniences thanks to previous owners.

There's almost always a trade off with an older home. Quite often you trade off charm and practicality. That didn't happen here, in large part because of former owner) Gordon Merritt. Thanks to him.

the house is so ultra-livable. He added the year's Milford family room and the kitchen. He did a nice job of blending it in and making it practical," Michael said.

In the family room, Merritt used authentic barn beams across the ceiling. The room also features a large field stone hearth.

Another amenity the Rutka's enjoy. thanks to Merritt's forethought, is an enormous amount of storage in the way of built-in cupboards and closets. Many rooms have special overhead storage space above the closets.

In the interior of the home. Michael and Marcella blended the past with a more contemporary twist. A large field stone fireplace is the center of attention in the living room. But the space is decorated in a contemporary black and white theme. right down to the black and white marble on the hearth.

The dining room evokes a cottage theme. It features a table and chairs with seating for eight out of distressed pine with a matching sideboard. You'll also find bell jar candle holders, one of their treasures from Toronto.

Maple hardwood floors cover the living room and dining room. First growth pine hardwood floors cover the master bedroom upstairs.

A favorite room of the Rutka's is the girl's nursery, done in indigo and white. A skylight in the ceiling dormer adds an airy look.

Also making the room special is a garden mural of golden sunflowers was painted by friend Patri O'Conner behind a picket fence gate hung by Marcella's brother, Keith Pickens.

O'Conner and Pickens are responsible for many of the artistic touches around the home. O'Conner contributed a key holder, which is a small scale model of their home, and a painting for the dining room called American Gothic, too. Only in this case, the farmer's faces are those of Michael and Marcella.

Keith Pickens built a patio out of brick pavers off the family room and a garden to the west of the house, to name a couple of his contributions.

With the Rutkas, refining and personalizing the large home is an ever-evolving process, with a wish list as big as their dreams. The upstairs bathrooms are in the process of remodeling. Michael would like to convert the office on the first floor to a library with rolling shelves and desks.

Much of the charm of this 10 1/2-acre site is hidden from passing motorists. Beyond the portico, you can see more clearly the seven other buildings that occupy the property, giving the grounds and estate feel. In addition, Marcella's talents in the flower beds during the warm months show that she comes from a family of gardeners.

The Rutka's enjoy the peaceful rural setting as much as the home itself.

"I enjoy the outdoors as much or more than the house. It gives us a sense of space and privacy. It's fun in the summertime to have families over with their children," Marcella said.

One way they enjoy the outdoors and honor their agrarian roots is with an old fashioned hoe down.

"We get a live band, food, and clean up a barn, and do some line dancing."

He's heard a lot of interesting folklore about the home since living there. One story is that there used to be peacocks living in the area, and the road used to be called Peacock Way. Legend has it that when the circus came to town, they used the lot across the street to do their show. he said. Michael summed up his feeling about #### the home.

"There's something about owning this house. They feel honored to be able to live in it. There's a pride, a type of stewardship. We feel lucky to be here."

estimated that 95 percent of times when an alarm is triggered, it's a false alarm.

A good watchdog can be as effective as an expensive alarm system. The dog does not have to be big and mean - just noisy, the Criterium report stated.

The most efficient and costeffective protective action is to "burglar-proof" your home. Criterium suggests. Use low-cost. common-sense methods to deter burglars.

Spotlights operated by timers are used by many homeowners. But more and more are going to lights controlled by motion detectors, the Criterium report stated. A light suddenly coming on will give even the boldest burglar incentive to go elsewhere.

However, you need to be careful where you locate the motion detector. The wind blowing the branches of a tree can easily set it off.

The house itself can be made more secure. Good locks are vitally important. Half the break-ins are through unlocked doors or windows.

The standard lock that many houses have is easily opened by a determined burglar. A deadbolt lock can keep the door from being kicked open.

A good deadbolt installation may require some framing alteration. And don't forget the other side of the door. Heavy-duty hinges anchored into the framing will keep the hinge side of the door from being kicked in.

Nutting arm chair made circa 1917

9. This is a view of the back of a Brewster armchair. In the front, there is a single row of spindles beneath the plank seat. Attached under the seat is a paper label with the words "Wallace Nutting - Correct Windsor Chairs, Settees, Stools, Writing and Baby Chairs, and all Windsor Forms in the hand turnings Quaint, Early, Rare Native Wood Furniture, Court Cupboards, Desks, Tables, Chairs, Carved and Plain.

There is a chair just like mine at Berea College, Berea, Ky.

Would you please give me an estimate of the value of my chair?

ANTIQUES

A. Wallace Nutting began reproducing early Colonial furniture in 1917. He was motivated by his love of antiques, the difficulty in finding Pilgrim pieces and the Colonial Revival movement. He started with Windsor chairs and went on to reproduce period furniture from Queen Anne to Sheraton. With a keen eye for beauty, he based his reproductions on original antiques.

His close association with Berea College led to an appointment as consultant to the college. After the death of Nutting and his wife, his estate was left to Berea. Many pieces of his furniture are on permanent display at The Log House at Berea.

Chairs with spindle work below the seat are called Brewster chairs. Furniture with paper labels was made from 1917 to 1922

Your circa 1917 chair, inspired by a 17th century Pilgrim chair, would probably be worth about $1,800.

What can you tell me about my vase? $375 to $425.

A. Your vase was made by American Terra Cotta & Ceramic Co., Terra Cotta, Ill. Founder William Gates began in 1886 making drain tiles and decorative architectural pieces. Around 1901 an art line was introduced.

Teco Green, Gates' early signature glaze, was used for 10 years. It had a silvery-gray cast and was inspired by Grueby's ubiquitous Cucumber Green. The rich clay was brought in from nearby Brazil, Ind. Teco sleek forms were based in nature and never decorated with colors.

The Depression greatly affected the company, and eventually it was closed in 1930. Your early 1900s vase would probably be worth about areas. Place three to four stakes in the container to act as a tepee, and before you know it the stender vines will be winding up those stakes growing a few inches daily! The taller the stakes the better. Buy a pack of Heavenly Blue, available at any garden store (seed rack), soak them overnight to soften the hard seed coat (you can help even more if you use a knife to snip a tiny bit off the end of each seed before you soak it), and then plant only a few of the soaked seeds next to each tepee stake as soon as all danger of frost has passed.

Do the same procedure when planting seeds in a container. Morning glories have no serious disease or pest problems. They need one fertilizing in the spring at planting time.

Another super easy-to-grow annual is the cornflower, known as bachelor's button. These cold-hardy delightful bloomers are loaded with 2-inch-wide, deep-blue flowers. They make great cut flowers, too. Most varieties grow about 30 inches tall. You can buy all-blue flower seeds (in a packet] or a mix bag of pink, white and blue seeds. lowing year. A bonus, bachelor's button will usually self-seed so you'll have all blue buttons for years to come.

Lobelia is another favorite annual of mine. The 6-inch plants are completely covered with brilliant blue flowers. Lobelias do extremely well in dry, Western areas but don't do well in hot, soggy areas. To get the most out of these lovely plants, set them out a couple of weeks before your last frost and grow them in well-drained soil, in part shade.

Lobelia comes in both compact edging types and trailing varieties. Top edgers include the blue Mrs. Clibran and Crystal Palace. Trailing types, such as the cascading series, are perfect for window boxes and hanging baskets. Lobelia plants are easily spotted at garden centers; you should buy plants because they grow very slowly from seed.

Other blue annuals include petunias. pansies, love-in-a-mist, forget-me-not, veronica and salvia (farinacea).

PERENNIALS

Bethlehem sage looks nothing like regular sage. Bethelem sage forms a 12-inch mound of pretty green leaves, mottled with silver that remains attractive all summer long and is accented by pink to blue flowers. It's hardy from Zones 3 to 8.

Another excellent springtime blue is the perennial. forget-me-not (Brunnera). These tiny sky-blue flowers have teenyweeny yellow eyes and are held in airy clusters above mounds of large green leaves.

Forget-me-nots self-seed like crazy so buy just one plant and you'll soon have plenty for holiday glits. They're hardy in Zones 3 through 7.

Virginia Bluebell is one of the earliest perennials. Its 18- to 24-inch-high flower clusters start out pink but then change to blue. The plants go dormant during the summer and the foliage dies back, so I suggest interplanting them with other shade-loving perennials. Bluebells are hardy in Zones 3 to 9.

All these plants, bluebells, Bethlehem sage and forget-me-nots prefer moist. partly shady spots, especially in the South.

SUMMER BLOOMERS

Summer is peak perennial season and your choices in blue flowers are many. For low maintenance, try flax, both perennial flax and narbonne flax prefer sunny, well-white or black centers. They grow their best in the northern half of the United States, where they bloom in early summer and again in fall, if you cut them back as soon as the first blooms are gone. Every garden should have these beautiful perennials. Delphiniums are heavy feeders so work plenty of compost into the soil before you plant them in the garden.

If your soil is acid, simply add some lime, since "delphs" like their soil on the alkaline side. Steady watering and a midsummer feeding will assure wonderful blooms in the fall. Children (and grownups) love the unique balloon flowers (Platycodon) because their blue buds puff up into round 2-inch balloons before they finally pop open.

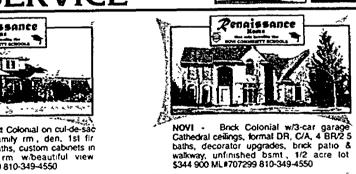

Balloon flowers are long lived and adaptable, they thrive in both damp, coastal areas and in dry climates west of the Cascade Mountains. They grow 2 to 3 feet tall and are hardy in Zones 3 to 8.

Make sure you mark where you plant hem because they come up very late in the spring. Be sure to plant some

Tiger Stadium replicated at batting cages

SCOTT DANIE ports Editor

Bob Seaman has built it. Now s hoping baseball fans will come Put One in The Upper Deck in Northville.

HOMETOWN

EAST

Located in the old Ford valve alant in downtown, the batting age facility offers an authentic seball experience. From upper deck bleachers to real clay in the batter's boxes, it's baseball nirana.

We have the same blend of clay hat's used in the batting boxes at Tiger Stadium," said Seaman. Other batting cages are a compromise to facing real pitching. This is an attempt to get closer to the real lfilng.

Put One in The Upper Deck opened in late January at 235 E. Main Street. As part owner of the old Ford building, Seaman was boking for a compatible use for the site, which houses a gymnastics center and health club.

He considered several uses before going with the batting cages. The building is taking a new direction." Seaman said. "It's going to be recreation and entertainment oriented."

A casual dining restaurant is also planned for the site. As for the batting cages, the idea for Upper Deck came to Seaman about a year ago.

As manager of a 17- and 18year-old baseball team, he was looking for a venue that would allow players to practice all winter. Seaman said he brought his squad to the plant last winter for a little work.

"That's when the concept evolved to do something like this," he commented.

nition from ERA Franchise Systems, Inc. Superfisky was honored

Briefs

Work began on Upper Deck last May.

A wooden block floor was removed, walls torn out and an old workers' locker room removed. After stripping everything out. painting began.

It wasn't just slapping a little color on the walls, either. Seaman commissioned a local studio to do a mammoth mural of Tiger Stadium as a backdrop for the batting cages.

"It was done from a picture of opening day 1990," said Seaman.

So when you dig your spikes in. it actually feels like you're on a baseball diamond and aiming for the left or right field seats of Tiger Stadium.

We tried to make it reasonably full scale." Seaman said.

Ah, but the nuances of a ballpark don't end there.

Parents no longer have to hang outside of the batting cage. Instead, there's two rows of seats in the "upper deck" overlooking the cages.

Seaman said the seats have been reconditioned and painted Tiger Stadium colors. For those who wish to hang over the rail, the upper deck area has a railing that looks like it was plucked from the corner of Michigan and Trumbull.

We're trying to provide not just a training facility." Seaman said. "but an entertainment facility in . Northville."

Picnic tables and a concession area will be located behind the upper deck seats. You'll be able to munch on hot dogs and other traditional "baseball fare." Seaman sald tams in the time and attendance, payroll, healthcare scheduling and manufacturing industnes. Since our founding in 1985, we have grown to become the nationally recognized leader in employee data integration. More than 9,000 customers in the United States and Canada use Time Bank, IDI's Booship product, and its accompanying suite of products to integrate their employee systems.

We're rolling out our next generation of products for client/server environments This is an exciting time of growth and has created an immediate need for the following professionals:

IS Application Developer

You will serve principally as a programmer/analyst in a dedicated multidis-ciplinary IS group. To familiarize you with our internal operations, you will have complete responsibility for several legacy business support systems and custom applications that need refinement and integration. These appli-cations are written using FoxPro for DOS and Microsoft Access. A new generation of applications using Visual Basic, Visual FoxPro and Active-X controls is on the horizon. In six months, we would expect you to be a significant contributor to their design specifications and their coding.

Competitive candidates will demonstrate a willingness and ability to learn new development tools and possess excellent communication skills. You can expect to handle other responsibilities as well. Examples might include web systems administration, telecommunications or user desktop support. We function as a team and are committed to helping each other deliver what's required to both our internal and external customers. Why don't you join us and feel that special sense of accomplishment that we have come to expect from our work here at IDI?

Required expenence and skills for this position include: a Bachelor's degree in Computer Science, Information Systems, or a related field; 1-3 years experience designing, coding and maintaining business support applications, preferably in a Windows emironment.Command of X-based databases is essential. Knowledge of object-oriented tools would also be valuable. Position Code IAD/KW

Technical Support Analysts

At Integrated Design, Inc. our business is providing our customers with tech-nical expertise and professional, high-caliber service. As part of our team, you will work closely with our resellers' technical and sales staff to analyze client needs, propose solutions and coordinate implementation. Using our own easy-to-use production tools, you will be able to "build" the software yourself to ensure client needs are fully met.

This is a unique role that requires someone with strong analytical and technical abilities and excellent verbal and written communication skills. The ideal candidate will have proven ability to manage projects and client relationships. Experience in areas such as technical support, training, project leadership, or account management has proven beneficial. Position Code TSA/HW

All positions at integrated Design, Inc. require initiative and a strong sense of team cooperation. Our employees enjoy competitive salaries, as well as a benefits package including medical, dental, and 401(k). If you are interested in a challenging career with a growing company, send your resume to:

tems in the time and attendance, payroll, healthcare scheduling and manufacturing industnes. Since our founding in 1985, we have grown to become the nationally recognized leader in employee data integration. More than 9,000 customers in the United States and Canada use Time Bank, IDI's flegship product, and its accompanying suite of products to integrate their employee systems.

We're rolling out our next generation of products for client/server environments. This is an exciting time of growth and has created an immediate need for the following professionals:

IS Application Developer

You will serve principally as a programmer/analyst in a dedicated multidisciplinary IS group. To familiarize you with our internal operations, you will have complete responsibility for several legacy business support systems and custom applications that need refinement and integration. These applications are written using FoxPro for DOS and Microsoft Access. A new generation of applications using Visual Basic, Visual FoxPro and Active-X controls is on the horizon. In six months, we would expect you to be a significant contributor to their design specifications and their coding.

Competitive candidates will demonstrate a wilkingness and ability to learn new development tools and possess excellent communication skills. You can expect to handle other responsibilities as well. Examples might include web systems administration, telecommunications or user desktop support. We function as a team and are committed to helping each other deliver what's required to both our internal and external customers. Why don't you join us and feel that special sense of accomplishment that we have come to expect from our work here at IOI?

Required expenence and skills for this position include: a Bachelor's degree in Computer Science, Information Systems, or a related field; 1-3 years' experience designing, coding and maintaining business support applications, preferably in a Windows environment Command of X-based databases is essential. Knowledge of object-oriented tools would also be valuable. Position Code IAD/HW

Technical Support Analysts

At Integrated Design, Inc. our business is providing our customers with technical expertise and professional, high-caliber service. As part of our team, you will work closely with our resellers' technical and sales staff to analyze client needs, propose solutions and coordinate implementation. Using our own easy-to-use production tools, you will be able to "build" the software yourself to ensure client needs are fully met.

This is a unique role that requires someone with strong analytical and technical abilities and excellent verbal and written communication skills. The ideal candidate will have proven ability to manage projects and client relationships. Experience in areas such as technical support, training, project leadership, or account management has proven beneficial. Position Code TSA/HW
