Massive land plan gets township OK

By RANDY COBLE Staff Writer

The 21st century dawns in less than three short years. When it does, the Northville Township that greets it will likely be a lot bigger and busier than the one we know today

The biggest land development deal in the community's history won approval from the township Board of Trustees last week. If it can get two final green lights, the future of south central Northville Township - nearly 10 percent of its total land area - will be set in stone. Trustees on March 27 voted unanimously for a planned unit development (PUD) agreement with Wayne County. The PUD, a proposed contract between Northville Township and the county, would govern the development of 926 county-owned acres that lie between Five Mile, Six Mile, Beck Road and Hines Drive.

The PUD now goes before the Wayne County Commission and the county's Economic Development Commission (EDC), possibly as early as next week. If both entities endorse it. Northville Township and Wayne County will then ink the contract.

What does all that mean? Here are the highlights:

• More than 60 abandoned buildings and other structures on the site, long considered a public safety hazard, would be torn down.

· In keeping the township's goal of staying a bedroom community. most of the land would be developed for residential housing. Nearly 1,300 housing units would be week's Northville Business Showcase?

Just ask Laurie Marrs, executive director of the Northville Community Chamber of Commerce.

You name it, it was just wonderful. What a high!," was Marrs' enthusiastic summary of the March 25 event.

An annual classic, this was the second year for the showcase at the Northville Community Center on Main Street. It started out at Cooke Middle School. More recently it was held at Northville High School, but the showcase's increased popularity caused the Northville's many businesses to move to bigger digs.

Sex offender registration lists now available to the public

By WENDY PIERMAN MITZEL Staff Writer

Sex offender lists from both the Northville and Novi police departments indicate that a total of 18 convicted offenders might reside in the area.

Of those 15 are from Novi, one from New Hudson, one from Northville Township and one from Northville.

The list became available to the public April 1 as a result of amendments to the 1994 Sex Offenders Registration law. which requires sex offenders to register their addresses with local departments. Gov. John Engler signed the bill into law in January.

Different police departments have different procedures for accessing offender lists. A rundown on what to do locally appears on page 8A.

Local residents can access the information from police departments, many of which have different policies on how the information will be handed out.

However, police are issuing cautions about possible interpretations of the information. Northville Police Chief Rodney when the crimes were committed, what the sentences were and when the addresses were registered. Some addresses could be old and outdated, he explained.

"I understand the theory behind it and I recognize the right of a person to know if a pedophile is living down the street so they can take the proper precautions. But if you're going to have a system you should get your ducks in a row and get your information up to date and accurate." Cannon said.

Both the law and the amendment are modeled after "Megan's Law," named after 7-year-old Megan Kanka who was raped

Cannon said there is no indication of and murdered several years ago by a man living next door to her New Jersey home. The guilty individual was a convicted sex offender.

After her death Megan's parents led the fight to get the law passed. They say that police and the public should know when sex offenders, many of whom repeat their crimes, move into town.

The law's requirements range from criminals convicted of criminal sexual conduct in the fourth degree (touching or fondling through clothing) to criminal sexual conduct in the first degree (rape). explained Northville Township Public Safety Director Chip Snider.

"The intent of the law is to make known to the community the knowledge of sexual predators that may be living in their community," Novi Police Chief Douglas Shaeffer said.

Police are concerned about individuals who may resort to violent acts against the persons convicted of at least one of four levels of criminal sexual conduct.

This has the potential to have serious ramifications to all parties," Northville Township Detective Mike Wildt said.

Wildt also said he has misgivings about the reliability of addresses and the possibility of retribution by community mem-

Improvements coming to local portion of Hines

County board OKs renovations

By RANDY COBLE Staff Writer

The stretch of Hines Park that runs through the Northville community will look a lot different a year and a half from now than it does today.

A large-scale, comprehensive plan to renovate the entire Hines Park system, which borders Hines Drive from Northville to Dearborn. won Wayne County Commission approval on March 20.

Twp. fire makes staffing changes

By RANDY COBLE Staff Writer

You can pound in a nail with a rock but after awhile you have to ask yourself if there's a smarter way to do business.

That's why innovation is the order of the day to Northville Township Fire Chief Bill Zhmendak and his department.

"I don't like to take a known trail. We're into blazing trails," he said. "There's always a better and safer way out there to get things done.'

The newest change in a department that seems constantly on the move these days are promotions and new staff positions designed to increase the level of expertise provided by the individuals who show up when your car crashes or your house catches on fire.

Five firefighters received new ranks Tuesday morning after coming out on top of a lengthy process that included independentlyscored written and oral exams and an evaluation of a candidate's involvement in the activities of the department and the community.

Timothy Cowher, Michael O'Brien and Gregory Gall are now sergeants. They replace two people who have recently left the department and fill a third, new sergeant's spot. Additionally. Christopher Madzik and Albert Young are the organization's firstever firefighter/engineers.

The changes bring the department up to 41 total members: Zhmendak, one lieutenant, two full-time sergeants, five part-time sergeants (including Cowher, O'Brien and Gall), two firefighter/engineers and 30 paid on-call firefighters.

Battling fires is as much a war of information as it is of water, according to Zhmendak. That's why he came up with the new rank of firefighter/engineer.

Counting backward gets better of driver

"I can't do that when I'm sober!" That was a Lincoln Park's mancomment to a Northville Township police officer when he was asked to count backwards from 100 to 85 after being stopped on suspi-cion of drunk driving on Saturday night.

The man, 56, was driving a 1992 Ford Tempo easibound on Seven Mile near Haggerty Road that evening. Police said he was weaving and crossed traffic lines before being pulled over. The reporting officer said the man displayed signs of intoxication when questioned.

The officer then asked the man to perform several tests to determine his sobriety, including the counting request.

The man allegedly failed them all and was arrested for drunk driving.

He later refused a breath test at police headquarters, an action which netted him an additional citation.

He was held until he sobered up, then was released on bond and will be in court soon for a hearing.

CHOKED: An employee of Mammoth Video on Haggerty Road was allegedly choked by an ex-employce on Friday morning.

The man said that the exemployee, a 29-year-old male resident of Detroit, had been fired a couple of days before and had returned to the store to pick up his last check.

The man told the ex-employee that he could not have the check until he returned a video cassette recorder he'd leased a few days before.

The ex-employee became upset, according to the man, and told him that he would either give him his check or the man would go to the hospital.

The ex-employee then grabbed the man around the neck and choked him, witnesses said, but broke off and left the store after police were called.

The man-suffered no injuries in the incident.

UBAL: A Canton teen was charged with having an unlawful blood alcohol level (UBAL) by Northville Township police in the early hours of Friday morning.

The reporting officer in the case said he saw the 18-year-old's Ford Escort speeding on Northville Road near King's Mill at about 6:30 a.m. on March 28. The teen allegedly sped up after the officer began following the car and did not stop until Five Mile Road despite lights and sirens from the officer's cruis-

Claiming he'd forgotten it, the teen had no license on him.

A test of his breath allegedly showed the man to have a blood alcohol level of .05 percent, below the legal limit of .10 for drunk driving by above the allowable alcohol level for someone under

The teen was taken to police headquarters and booked on the charge, then released after posting bond and his blood alcohol content fell to acceptable levels. He will be in court on April 4.

LOG SPLITTER TAKEN: Someone stole a $1,000 hydraulic log splitter from the yard of a Gerald Avenue business during the night of March 24-25.

The owner said he accidentally forgot to put the splitter indoors after using it and the business property does not have a complete fence or gate.

SHOPLIFTING: A Lake Orion teen was arrested for allegedly stealing food and smokeless tobacco from Meijer on March 25.

Store detectives said they saw the 16-year-old put the tobacco, a soft drink and some snack food down his pants then leave Meijer without trying to pay for it.

He was booked at the scene and then released to his mother.

The boy faces a court hearing soon.

Bookstall built its reputation on service

By RANDY COBLE Staff Writer

Bigger doesn't always mean better. Sometimes the personal touch of a small town shop just can't be found in one of those big chain stores.

Case in point: Bookstall on the Main.

Nestled at the corner of Main and Center streets in the heart of the downtown business district. for nearly two decades it's been the only bookstore in Northville. That reign comes to a close on Wednesday with the opening of the Barnes & Noble book "superstore" at Six Mile and Haggerty.

While it may not be as big. Bookstall on the Main is every bit as good in the eyes of owner Berclay Ruschak. What her shop lacks in size it makes up for in service, the kind you don't often get from the bigger competitors.

That's the way you earn customer loyalty." Ruschak, a Northville resident for 30 years. said. "We really don't advertise much. We just rely on word of mouth.

That works pretty well, judging from the number of self-professed repeat customers to be found in the store one afternoon last week.

When someone comes in, they'll know the face behind the counter.

Bookstall's Berclay Ruschak has acquired a loyal following.

That counts for a lot." Ruschak sald.

Bookstall's clientele includes teachers and even some schools. Many are looking for children's books, which the store specializes in. Although Bookstall carries a wide selection of books of every type, kids' books make up about half the sales.

"It was kind of a niche that developed for us,* said Ruschak.

All kinds of child-oriented material can be found, from baby books to early readers to the series books such as Clifford the Dog.

Bookstall on the Main started out at the end of the '70s true to its name: a shop so small it was almost literally a stall, sitting next to Genitti's on Main Street.

"We had books stacked almost to the ceiling," Ruschak recalled.

She bought the shop in 1985 and moved the store to its current location about five years ago.

To keep customers coming back. Ruschak and her employees say they focus on developing customer loyalty. That means making extra efforts like special orders, including spending more time than other stores to hunt down books. Using a computerized system, if it's in print. Bookstall on the Main can get it for you.

Bookstall on the Main. 101 N. Center, is open Monday through Thursday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., on Friday from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. and on Saturday from 10 am. to 6 p.m. Can 348-1167 for information.

Negotiations were long haul for both sides

By RANDY COBLE Staff Writer

Worth the wait.

That's how Northville Township's elected officials sum up the planned unit development (PUD) agreement they approved last week.

Past and present members of the Northville Township Board of Trustees have spent a year in hard negotiations with Wayne County over the county's 926-acre parcel on the south side of the township.

The fruits of their labors came March 27 when the board gave its unanimous endorsement to a proposed PUD deal. For Mark Abbol chair of the subcommittee which hammered out the deal, it's a welcome arrival.

"I'm very, very excited about it. I think we have a good plan. I think it's the better way to develop this property," he said.

"it is a win/win project" for both the township and the county was how Trustee Mary Gans put it.

Clerk Sue Hillebrand, who cast 'a reluctant ves" in favor of the PUD agreement, said that the bottom line was good for Northville Township.

"I feel good," she said. "I would have liked to see the township get a little more (public land) but I'm pretty happy with it."

The PUD agreement represents the best development option for the land, the trustees say.

Almost all of the parcel is zoned for single family home development. Wayne County could have chosen to just sell the property to developers who would have built standard-zoning subdivisions.

Both Northville Township and county officials wanted the PUD because it's a way for both sides to get features they want that normal zoning doesn't allow.

For Wayne County, it means more money and extras like a championship-quality golf course and the expansion of Optical Imaging Systems (OIS), a world leader in cutting-edge computer technology which is considering building a second manufacturing plant on Beck Road.

From the township's point of view, the PUD brings a number of benefits, such as:

· Preservation of more than 100 acres of wooded lands and open space areas that probably would have been lost under a conventional zoning plan. Counting the golf course land, which under the PUD can never be built upon. about 30 percent of the entire site will avoid the buildozer forever.

• Getting the chance to buy 45 acres of land for public recreation use and for the future site of a public facility like a new fire station.

That's important because the thousands of new residents who will one day live on the county land will need public services like recreation and fire protection. The PUD provides a way to help meet that need.

• Included in the PUD is a plan for the paving of Six Mile Road between Sheldon and Beck, a long-sought goal of many who drive the dirt stretch to and from subdivisions like the Hills of Crestwood. The PUD deal will likely speed up the paving.

• "Unified control" is another key. A PUD gives the township much greater control over how the parcel will be developed.

year 2000. At a conservative estimate of three people per unit. that's almost 4,000 new Northville Township residents.

Most of them would live in single family homes. The rest would be divided among apartments, condominiums and senior housing.

• To help meet the needs of those future residents. Northville Township will buy 45 acres of land to use for public recreation and as a site for a future public facility like a fire station.

· Six Mile would be paved built, possibly as quickly as the between Beck and Sheldon, paid for by a special assessment district (SAD) involving Wayne County and developers with property fronting onto that stretch of the road.

• An 18-hole, championshipquality public golf course would be built. Local residents could play at a reduced rate.

• A large portion of the entire site, about 30 percent, would be permanently preserved from development. The golf course, wetland and woodland areas and large tracts of open space could never be built upon. In addition, many of the unique topographic features of the property would be preserved.

• Optical Imaging Systems (OIS) would obtain land for a possible future manufacturing plant. The company, a world leader in the evolving industry of "flat-panel" computer screens, has its current plant and world headquarters at the corner of Five Mile and Beck now.

• A 14-acre "neighborhood" shopping center would come to the corner of Five Mile and Sheldon.

At a conservative estimate of three people per unit. the development will result in almost 4,000 new Northville Township residents.

TENTATIVE LAND PACT FOR TOWNSHIP, COUNTY Complex proposal could change face of township

Wayne County will remove it all before the township issues the first construction permit for anything on the property, according to the PUD. County officials have bid the demolition contracts out and are waiting for the contract to be finalized.

FAST PACE

Most of the development is expected to come rapidly. County officials last week predicted it's likely to'take just two to three years before construction begins on the residential portions of the property.

Only the commercial shopping center parcel at Five Mile and Sheldon and the 64-acre area set aside for research and development business uses are expected to take longer: five to 10 years.

WHAT'S COMING?

Most of the property will be developed as homes, nearly 1.300 houses in all. About 650 single family homes are included in that total and up to 320 condominium or apartment units.

Also included would a be a 180unit senior housing facility off Sheldon Road. It would be designed in a kind of apartmentbuilding style, like Allen Terrace in Northville.

An "adult lifestyle community" of 140 or so homes is slated for Beck Road. Also earmarked as senior housing, this could include rental or purchase properties and resemble the Country Club Village condominium development near Six Mile and Haggerty, according to county officials.

THE GOLF COURSE

Also in the mix is a 200-acre 18-hole golf course. It will be a public residents of the county parcel was course, of championship quality and located on land west of Sheldon Road, according to the PUD. Homes will surround the course.

Northville Township residents and residents of the Wayne County section of Northville city will pay reduced greens fees to play the course.

PRESERVATION

More than 100 acres of open space and woodlands will be permanently preserved from development under the terms of the PUD. Counting the golf course land. which would also be permanently preserved, that's about 30 percent of the site.

An innovative "naturalized" storm water drainage system will be used to take excess water in the area to the Rouge River, according to the PUD. Instead of a series of concrete pipes, where possible, the natural slopes and angles of the terrain will be preserved to direct water flow.

Also in the site design is a connected network of blke paths and pedestrian pathways which will wind through the property, including connections to active and passive recreation areas.

PUBLIC LAND

The PUD provides Northville Township with the chance to pick up 45 acres of land in return for $700.000. The land in the proposed agreement is located in two tracts, one off Sheldon Road and the other off Six Mile.

Township officials say they would use the land for public recreation purposes like ball fields and as a site for a public facility like a new fire station. Having the land necessary to provide those services to the thousands of future a key part of the PUD to township officials.

SIX MILE PAVING

Wayne County would implement a special assessment district (SAD) to pay for the paving of Six Mile between Sheldon and Beck roads under the terms of the PUD.

The county and developers who own property fronting on that stretch of Six Mile would pay the cost of the paving. No timeline is yet available on when the SAD would be set up and when an engineering study of the area would begin.

OIS EXPANSION

Optical Imaging Systems (OIS) is a world leader in the cutting-edge industry of "flat-panel" computer screens.

The company's world headquarters, including its research and manufacturing plant, is located on 30 acres at the corner of Five Mile and Beck.

Another 80 acres along Beck to the north of the OIS property would be sold to the company under the PUD deal.

OIS would make that land the site of any possible future expansion and the company has said it is exploring the idea of building a second manufacturing plant adjacent to its current facility.

SHOPPING CENTER

A 14-acre, 120,000 square foot "neighborhood" shopping center would come to the corner of Five

Township officials inserted provisions in the PUD agreement limits on store sizes - to try to ensure that the center won't affect Northville's downtown business district.

The possibility of a federal injunction on the Michigan law intended to make names and addresses of sexual offenders known to the public caused some confusion for local departments. Northville Township did not release the list of sex offenders in that community Tuesday because, according to Public Safety Director Chip Snider, the department was still under the injunction.

Until further notice we are out of the registry viewing business." Snider said April 1.

But Snider said yesterday that he heard the injunction had been lifted Tuesday afternoon and the list is now available.

According to State Sen. Michael Bouchard's office, unidentified plaintiffs filed a case in federal court challenging the constitutionality of the law and an injunction was in place until Friday when the

The immense size of buildings and artwork was overwhelming. "and everything is very old." Jody exclaimed. "Not old like a couple hundred years, but like hundreds and thousands of years. The oldest monument there is called Coup de Foudre and it is 3,000 years old *

Shopping was "fun and interesting," especially at Montmartre, an artist's marketplace.

"We took a boat tour on the Seine," said Jody, "and it was breathtaking to see Notre Dame from the water."

Jody traveled to France with her aunt and uncle, Joanne and Kevin Nichols of Midland, and their 3year-old daughter, Lindsay. They stayed with friends who live in Cergy, about 30 miles northwest of Paris.

One of the children in the home is named Daniel. "But they say 'Danielle' over there, instead of 'Daniel," Jody explained. She took Detroit Vipers and Michigan State University T-shirts to Daniel, 12. who proudly wore them to school for the next two days.

The weather was rainy, windy and cold the first few days of break, but the last two days were warmer, sunny and there were fair skies for flying home.

The best part of coming home was distributing souvenirs and sharing her experiences with everyone. Some of the highlighted moments of Jody's trip include:

· Hearing everyone around me speaking in French:

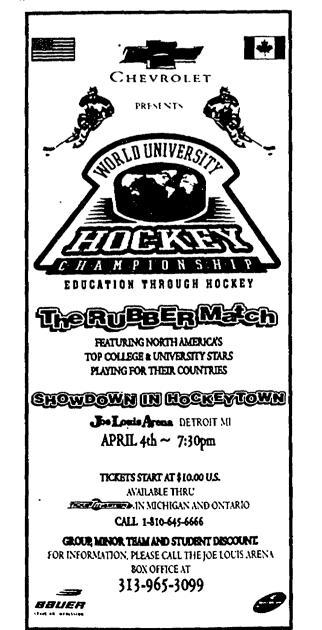

*Running to catch a subway train, and then riding on the subway where people were playing live music, like on their accordions and tambourines, saxophones and

But, luckily, we finally got to take off again. We took off and everything was fine again."

before a statue of Napoleon.

Jody thanks all her friends and teachers for their support and travel advice. She especially thanks Mrs. Lou Wolf, her former third grade teacher at Winchester Elementary School, for providing her with travel books and this good advice: "Enjoy every minute of your trip."

Arbor Center opens Northville office

Non-profit organization will offer bereavement services

By LEE SNIDER

Arbor Hospice has been conducting bereavement programs in the community for some time but has never had a permanent presence in Northville.

Until Monday, that is.

The Arbor Center/Bereavement Services for Children, Teens and Adults opened its own office in the Northville Executive Center at 200 N. Center on March 31.

Arbor Hospice, based in Ann Arbor. is primarily known for its health care services for the dying. But the organization also has helped countless survivors put their lives back together after the shattering loss of a loved one or lifelong companion.

Just ask Margaret Gill of Northville, who went through an Arbor bereavement program after her husband died two years ago.

"There's nothing more comforting than to be with a group of people who have a similar bereavement," she insists. "There's no one else you can talk to. Even your best friend can't understand what you're going through. Often, they don't want to talk about it. They're nervous or afraid. Everybody's afraid about dying."

The Arbor Center offers several programs for survivors of all ages. Adult sessions generally last six weeks and are moderated by a volunteer "facilitator." The programs are free of charge and are available to all residents, whether they used Arbor Hospice services or not. Arbor Center sessions have helped many grieving people in the community, mostly though programs offered in conjunction with the Northrup-Sassaman Funeral Home on Northville Road.

Sessions are generally divided along age lines or by the nature of the loss. There are programs for people who have lost spouses, parents, grandparents or close friends.

Programs for children and teens are headed up by professional planners and do carry a fee, though Bereavement Services Director Cathy Clough says her organization will develop payment plans for users.

"The children's programs are based on a sliding scale and no one is turned away," she said. Cough co-founded the bereave-ment programs for Arbor Center after her first husband died 14 years ago. She said almost everyone can use some advice on how to feel and express grief.

"I tried to stay strong for the sake of my daughters. I held back my feelings, but now I regret that," she said.

Among the adult bereavement services and support groups offered through the Arbor Center are "Starting Over." support groups for younger widows and widowers; and "B'tweeners," support groups for widows and widowers ages 45-62. The "Care-ousel" program features bereavement groups for children and teens.

Center co-director Sally Dunning says children require special attention from bereavement groups because their grieving process is unique and complicated.

With children you always have the issue of knowing and translating their language. Children use a language that's very concrete," she maintains.

Dunning tells the story of one young boy who wouldn't eat his breakfast after his grandfather died because he had heard something on television about a "cereal" kıller.

Dunning advises moms and dads to "trust that parent gut" when it comes to knowing if a child needs the support of a bereavement group. She says changes in eating or sleeping patterns, or changes in school or friendship interests are good indicators.

Cathy Clough, co-director of Northville's new Arbor Center office, joins Sherri Gasser, a director of the hospice group's downriver location, in their new downtown office in the Executive Center on Center Street.

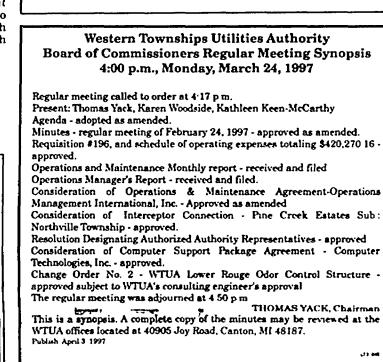

The Arbor Center is currently looking for a building in which to conduct its support group sessions. In the past it used the Northville Chamber of Commerce office or the Senior Citizens Center, but both locations are no longer practical.

The new Arbor Center office in the Executive Center is open from 9 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Arbor Center is a non-profit organization that conducts occasional fund-raisers to help pay the ner event is planned for Sunday. April 13, at Genitti's Restaurant. Call 1-800-783-5764 for information.

The Northville Executive Center landlords. Nick and Rebecca Simkins, are also helping out by renting space to the Arbor Center at a reduced rate.

In addition to bereavement the office, call 348-4980.

FREDA B. GALLI

Freda B. Galli died March 30. 1997, at Whitehall Convalescent Center in Novi. She was 82.

Mrs. Galli lived in Northville for 44 years. She was a registered nurse. For the last 20 years of her career, Mrs. Galli worked at Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital, first as a psychiatric nurse and later as an operating room supervisor.

Mrs. Galli met her husband, Alfred, while both were attending the Mercy School of Nursing in Pittsburgh.

"We met on a blind date," Alfred commented. "A friend and I were out with two girls and the one I was with got called away to help out in the emergency room. I told him I wasn't going to go the rest of the night without a date, so the girl he was with went up to the nurses residence and found Freda. There must have been 300 girls in the residence hall.

RECORD OPINION

Our Opinion

Land pact to usher in new era for township

Finally! An agreement that will clean up the vandalized, graffiti-infested Wayne County property near Five Mile and Sheldon.

We'd say it was a long time coming but understatement is not our thing.

For nearly a decade officials from Northville Township and Wayne County have discussed ways to bring about a sensible and beneficial development of roughly 900 acres of county-owned property in the township. In our opinion they have succeeded, though the process was painful and the delay potentially dangerous.

By means of a mechanism called a planned unit development (PUD) negotiators for the two sides devised a plan that will bring hundreds of new homes. a public golf course, open space preservation and other features into the township.

The Northville Township Board of Trustees gave formal approval to the PUD last week. The last step is for the Wayne County Commission to also sign on to the proposal.

Considering that the land represents fully 10 percent of the total acreage of the township, much was at stake. The final disposition of the land will put a permanent stamp on the community and help determine the livability of the township far into the future.

So what have the officials wrought?

The main component of the PUD is a provision for the construction of nearly 1.300 homes, about 650 of which would be single family dwellings. The remaining units would be condominiums or apartments. Also included is a much-needed senior living center.

This feature is liable to be the single most controversial aspect of the PUD because the home lot sizes have been reduced.

Residents who tend to look askance at properties that are smaller than those normally allowed by ordinance are liable to be displeased with this component. But potential critics would be wise to keep the trade-off in mind.

Under the terms of the PUD, about 30 percent of the county site would be preserved as open space and woodlands. No development of any kind can took place there. ever take place on those tracts. If Wayne County had sold its land to now looks very promising and everyone highest-bidding real estate investors and permitted open-market development, the lot sizes would have been would have far exceeded the 1,300 included in the PUD. The result would have been more homes, streets and traffic lights and far less green space. The PUD also offers the township the opportunity to purchase 45 acres for $700,000. The land is located on two separate tracts, one off Sheldon Road and the other off Six Mile.

the land for public recreation purposes like softball or baseball diamonds and as a site for some sort of public facility such as a new fire station.

With the influx of new homeowners expected in the township, additional public services and recreational accommodations will be a necessity.

In addition to these benefits, the county is expected to establish a special assessment district (SAD) to pay for the paving of Six Mile between Sheldon and Beck roads.

The county and the developers who own property fronting on that portion of Six Mile would pay the paving costs. thereby ensuring another public benefit at no apparent public expense.

As desirable as all these features are. what gives us the most relief is the prospect that the appalling abandoned buildings in the Five Mile/Sheldon vicinity will at last be leveled. Dozens of buildings that were once part of the Wayne Community Living Services complex will at last come down.

The vacant buildings have long been a favorite haunt of drug dealers and gang members. The interiors of the structures have been defaced with profanities and cult-related symbols, and debris litters the floors and the surrounding area.

The picture is a disgusting one, to be sure. But to gain a real appreciation of the dangers presented by the abandoned complex, one needs to hear the startling stories of police officers who say they've been in the sights of drug dealers carrying high-powered rifles with scopes attached. This was no playground for kids on skakeboards, it was a major exchange point for highstakes dope peddlers. It's a wonder no disasters (at least that we know of) common sense is as short as ever.

In any case, the future of the site

Something similar happened to us a few years ago when we joked that Wooly Bully's was going to undertake a 600-acre expansion. You could almost hear the For Sale signs springing up along Seven Mile that day.

It seems the top story on last week's page was the one that got the most attention. Written by Dan Scott the "Sports Wretch" (a.k.a. sports editor Scott Daniel). the piece humorously described the opening of a gambling casino at the Water Wheel fitness center on Main Street.

The story evidently caused some shock waves. About half the people who reacted were upset that a casino had invaded their city. The other half got upset after they realized the story was a fake and the casino hadn't opened.

Sometimes you just can't win for losin'.

The Water Wheel folks even took a few inquiries from walk-in customers wondering where they could find the one-arm bandits and craps tables.

In all fairness to those who misunderstood, the promo at the bottom of the page that said "APRIL FOOLS was faint. You had to look hard to find it. And the banner running across the top was in the same Old English typeface that's used on our real front.

But, come on. I can understand someone being momentarily deceived, but even a semi-conscious reader should have caught on after a few minutes of story scanning.

A couple of the people I talked to angrily criticized the page for being the "dumbest thing" they'd ever seen in a newspaper.

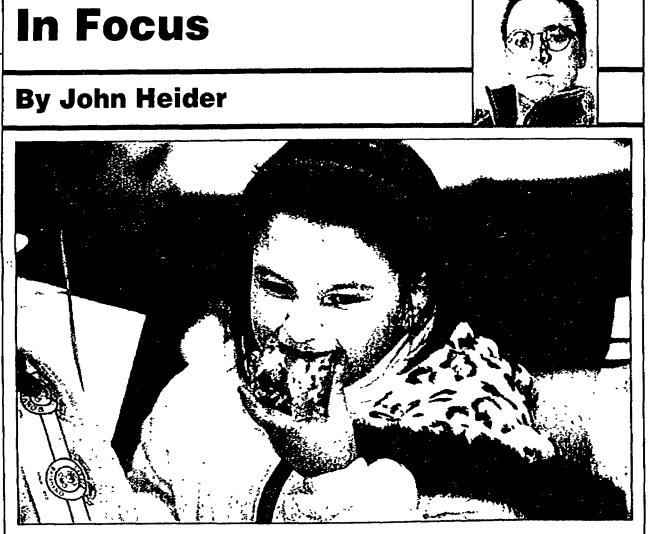

They're right of course, the page was pure silliness.

But so what? What's the harm in taking a yearly sabbatical from the somber routine and producing something that's complete nonsense?

I really want us to keep running our April Fools spoof. It gives our reporters a break from monotony and a chance to poke a little good-natured fun at some of the people and institutions that tend to take themselves very seriously.

But I suppose we'll have to do something to make the parody more obvious in the future. After all, there's a certain plausibility in people serving a two week sentence for taking too much time at the library copy machine.

Wisdom and one liners to live by

Random thoughts from the notebook of a hard- THAT LOVELY LIBRARY working but humble newsman:

GENERAL THOUGHTS

I mentioned Colin Powell's "rules" in a recent story and since then I've gotten a couple of requests for copies. Powell, who chaired the joint chiefs of staff during the Persian Gulf War, was a near-candidate for president last year.

The rules were included in Mu American Journey, the general's autobiography. Whatever your opinion is of Colin Powell or his politics, it's an engaging and thought-provoking read.

In the book Powell lists the 13 one-liners about life he's found to be true over the years. He kept them under glass at his Pentagon desk. Here they are:

1. It ain't as bad as you think. It will look better in the morning.

2. Get mad, then get over it.

3. Avoid having your ego so close to your position that when your position falls, your ego goes with it. 4. It can be done!

5. Be careful what you choose. You may get it. 6. Don't let adverse facts stand in the way of a good decision.

7. You can't make someone else's choices. You shouldn't let someone else make yours.

- 8. Check small things.
- 9. Share credit.
- 10. Remain calm. Be kind.
- 11. Have a vision. Be demanding.
- 12. Don't take counsel of your fears or naysayers.
- 13. Perpetual optimism is a force multiplier.

It is absolutely great to see that the Northville District Library has become exactly what everyone always hoped it would be: another community center.

Besides being your gateway to a storehouse of knowledge, the library is a lot like its next door neighbor, the Rec Department's Community Center building. Both have become a place to hang out for young. old and everyone in between.

Folks are showing up to read, study or take in one of the many free presentations, such as the upcoming April 29 talk featuring Star Trek collectible and convention enthusiast Mark Gilday. If you haven't been to your new Northville District Library yet, make a date now to stop by. It's definitely worth the trip.

IN A NUTSHELL

I was chatting with someone last week who summed up in a sentence what I've tried many times to say in speeches.

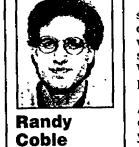

"It doesn't matter whether you like the paper or not," she said. "It's there. It's the resource to reach the community."

Thank you! Whatever you may think of us, the news staff here at The Record very much wants to be your outlet to the community. Use us to get the word out about what you or your business, club, civic group, volunteer committee or other organization is doing.

Whv? Because we are the information crossroads of Northville. Almost 7,000 copies of The Record are sold every week. At three readers per household, that's 75 percent of the population of this town.

We can help you connect with the folks who would be your volunteers, donors and event attendees if only they knew about you and what you're doing. Let them know with one phone call to us at (810) 349-1700.

Educational Assessment Program tests of math and reading taken by 120.000 fourth and seventh graders. Of those, 96 percent were in true public schools, with elected school boards and PTAs, so the state totals are roughly the same as the public school totals

In fourth grade math, 60 5 percent of the total got "satisfactory" scores versus 35.4 percent of charter pupils. "Low" scores were recorded by 18.1 percent of the total and 41.4 percent of the charter pupils. In every category, public schools as a group did better than charter schools as a group

In Detroit, the top takeover target, public school students had 48 7 and 29.1 percent

"satisfactory" math scores in fourth and seventh grades. Sierra Leone Educational Outreach - which boasts "heterogeneous" classing practical probrooms, African studies, karate and computer technology in its curriculum - scored 8 and 8 That is why he is in the same categories. In Lansing, another in the state's top 10 bad list, public school pupils had 39.7 and 31 percent "satisfactory" scores in fourth and seventh grade math.

Weak, but still better than Sankofa Shule, whose "African-centered liberal arts and science curriculum" resulted in scores of 29.4 percent "satisfactory" in the same categories.

Why even dream of taking over Muskegon schools? Tri-Valley Academy, with its emphasis on Spanish, saw its students score 2 percent "satisfactory" in fourth grade math and 4 percent in seventh grade reading - and 88 percent *low Oak Park public school pupils saw 62.1 and 78.2 percent satisfactory scores in math in fourth and seventh grades. Academy of Detroit Oak Park reported 5.2 and 5.2 percent satisfactory math scores.

Also on Engler's hit list is the Southfield district, which saw 63.1 and 52.7 percent satisfactory scores in math. But AGBU Alex & Marie Manoogian School, which stresses Armenian culture and bilingualism, recorded only 46.7 and 46.7 percent satisfactory in the top math brackets. And Academy of Detroit-Southfield, which lauds the "free enterprise system," had satisfactory math scores of 21.7 and 21.7.

The case for charter schools looks even grimmer when one examines some of the "Native American" schools.

Nah Tah Wahsh, which offers "native culture and language" in the Menominee County hamlet of Wilson, had zero satisfactory scores in reading and 11 percent satisfactory in math in both grades.

What about specialized academies? Northlane Math and Science Academy, in Midland County, saw 50 percent of both fourth and seventh graders score in the "low" category - in math!

In a handful of cases, academies scored higher than local public schools. Thomas-Gist Academy, located in the Inkster School District part of Westland, recorded 68.6 and 51.4 percent satisfactory grades in fourth grade math and reading, respectively - well ahead of Inkster's 24.5 and 23.1 and even ahead of Wayne-Westland's 52.1 and 43.2.

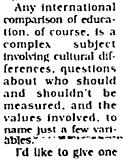

With a few exceptions, charter academies did badly. Engler won't admit it, because he is pandering - "satisfying the expectations of the parents who choose to send their children to them." in the words of state superintendent Art Ellis' report on charter schools.

Now you also know why Engler's executive orders last December curbed the State Board of Education's powers over the state's charter schools.

Educational comparisons are apples to oranges

In the minds of many people, it's a given that America's schools are failing.

complex G. Michael bit of evidence that perhaps our schools are not failing.

Some observers point to the high scholastic scores achieved by Japanese students compared to their American counterparts. Surely, they think their schools are better than ours

Not necessarily.

Shouldn't these same Japanese students, upon entering our schools, show declines in their scholastic scores? And shouldn't Japanese students entering our kindergartens and first grades do about the same scholastically as students born and raised in the U.S.? If the schools were the only fault factor in our students' lower scores, wouldn't it also show in the Japanese students' achievement levels?

It doesn't. Japanese students attending U.S. schools continue to achieve at high levels compared to indigenous students. They achieve academic honors in far greater numbers; proportionately, than home-grown students, and even Japanese first graders attending our schools tend to do far better.

What's going on here? One clue is found in the involvement of Japanese parents (mothers particularly). They spend two hours or more a night helping their children with school work. The Japanese know they have one and only one resource: their people. So they spend more time, energy and money helping their children develop than we do. We have so many resources that we may devalue the importance of our children as a resource.

So. until restructuring occurs. until national testing begins, until more money is spent on resources, until a new breed of teacher comes along, until more choice is offered, until teacher empowerment is realized, until all the utopian visions of schools come true, there is one thing we can do that costs nothing yet pays big entsithe most influential people in our students' lives, in the educational enterprise. Then perhaps we will have a chance of equaling or surpassing the Japanese academically.

Some local educators say there is one sure way to reform education in America - change from within.

You can't reform schools by passing laws at a legislative level or by making new rules," said John Burkhardt, a Novi resident and program director at the W.K. Kellogg Foundation. "It really requires teachers to take the responsibility and authority for what happens in the classroom. They will lead reform."

As part of that theory, the foundation, local school districts and community colleges are teaming up to create a new group of "teacher-leaders' to take part in what is now called The Galileo Project.

We were very concerned about how important teachers' roles are going to have to be if we're going to reform education." Burkhardt said.

Along with Novi, participants include the Northville, Farmington. Southfield and Walled Lake public school districts, as well as Oakland and Schoolcraft community colleges, the Oakland Intermediate School District and the Wayne County Regional Educational Agency.

The four-year, $1 million program is looking for 75 creative. dynamic, risk-taking and motivated educators to take part in the project. Teachers from participating school districts were presented with the information and a video presentation and asked to apply.

The participants selected to join the program will be announced April 10 during the official launch at the Novi Hilton Hotel. Twentyone Northville educators submitted applications to take part, and seven have been selected, according to Cooke Middle School Assistant Principal and project facilitator Gail Weeks.

Teachers can be leaders in their buildings even without being principals," Weeks said. "The partici-pants will be meeting all throughout the summer and for the next two years with top-notch people not just educators but people from the outside too."

Project participants Joyce Fouts, Teri Mobio and Martha Nield plan leadership training.

"It really requires teachers to take the responsibility and authority for what happens in the classroom. They will lead reform."

-John Burkhardt W.K. Kellogg Foundation of seven members of the Northville Education Association will be chosen from a second open application process at a later date.

Galileo teachers will explore four areas: rethinking the profession. personal development as a leader, interpersonal relationship behaviors and skills and systems thinking. Participants will be released from their assignments during the year to make site visits, complete internships, participate in leadership development activities and attend weekend sessions.

"One of the things that makes Weeks said another contingent the Galileo project unique and important is it begins to look at education across a whole lot of boundaries," Burkhardt said.

The project is funded by the W.K. Kellogg Foundation, with contributions from the school districts and in-kind donations. The Kellogg Foundation is footing 75 percent of the cost of the first year of the program. or $400,000.

Each of the school districts will contribute an estimated $2.500 per teacher per year, according to Jim Koster, assistant superintendent for business.

The expense includes the costs for substitute teachers to take over when participants are at seminars.

Burkhardt said the project was funded by the Kellogg Foundation because of the potential within the education community to develop initiatives and spread the information to other schools and educational institutions.

We see it as a way to get teachers directly involved in leading the schools and students," Moblo said.

Burkhardt said the Galileo project is different from other professional development programs that teach leadership. Because teachers work with teachers from different districts and at different grade levels, it allows for telease time from the school day, and it asks the administration and school board of each district to rethink the policies placed on teachers.

Burkhardt said that the teaching profession used to be made up of women who were perceived as professionals committed to the advocacy of children. But that perception has changed, he said, and now teachers aren't accorded the same respect as other professions.

Mill Race Matters

As the Northville Historical Society begins preparation for spring and summer activities at Mill Race Village one of the first groups to meet to plan their schedule will be the school tour docents. A small group of volunteers provides tours of the village and information about school life during the 1870s to area elementary school students.

During the spring and fall first through sixth grade classes visit Mill Race almost daily. Each day one docent is assigned to open the school, furnish some historic information about it, provide a tour of other village buildings, then return at the close of the school day to check and lock the school building.

The docents will meet on Wednesday, April 9, at 9:30 a.m. in the Wash Oak School at Mill Race. For the past several years, five individuals - Judy Kohl, Elayne Elliott, Bruce Turnbull, Marietta Rathbun, and Diane Rockall - have been conducting the program. Others interested in becoming involved should also try to attend this meeting. Training can be provided for those who would like to help but lack the necessary background information.

The commitment involves approximately two hours of time in the morning and 30 minutes in the afternoon. Each docent conducts five or six tours each season. If you would like to become involved but are unable to attend this meeting. contact 348-1845.

Also upcoming are the renewed annual progressive dinner this spring and the traditional antique auction, this year planned as part of the village's July 4 festivities.

Over the past few weeks, this column has dealt with community groups which serve the Northville area. This week, a look at some of the community's businesses from the past and present.

One of Northville's oldest surviving businesses is The Northville Record. The newspaper began publication in 1869 and has continued uninterrupted since that time. A local young man, Samuel Little, decided to begin publication of the weekly during the summer of 1869.

In the beginning. Little traveled by wagon to Detroit with his hand-set pages to have them printed on Detroit Free Press presses. The journey was an all day event as was the return. By early 1870. prominent members of the community started a fund to aid in securing a press for this community.

Little left Northville, probably in 1879, the last year his name appears on the masthead. The paper continued under a series of editors and publishers. Copies of the 1880-81 papers have been destroyed over the years, but back copies of most editions are now available on microfilm at the Northville District Library and in the Northville Historical Society Community Archives.

For the past 10 years, a group of devoted volunteers working through the Friends of the Northville District Library has been indexing the back issues of The Northville Record. Printed volumes are available for the first 20 years of publication.

The indexed material should also soon be available through computer access. The volunteer group has already processed material into the 1910s. While working from the earliest date the volunteers and library staff have also been indexing current issues so someday the entire run of the newspaper should be easily accessible.

In recent years, the newspaper has been published by Hometown Newspapers. Its current editor is Lee Snider.

Northville appears to have the lineup to make those hopes become a reality.

Softball team looks for winning season

By SCOTT DANIEL Sports Editor

Great strides

That's what the Mustang softball team made last year under firstyear coach Karen Baird. Northville went from 3-21 in 1995 to 10-14 last spring.

Now, in year two, Baird is hoping her team can jump over the .500 mark and into the league race.

"I think we have a great shot at our division because of our pitch-ing," said Baird, an All-American player herself in college. Northville returns five players from last year's varsity. Among those are the team's two pitchers, Michelle Menghini and Sarah Johnson

The two seniors will split time on the mound, pitching every other game, Baird said. Menghini throws a bit harder than Johnson, but Sarah may spot her pitches a tad better.

"They're pretty comparable pitchers," said Baird.

Having two good pitchers will give the Mustang an advantage. she added. If one is having an off day, Baird said she won't hesitate to bring in the other.

Sophomore Amanda Rice will be the everyday catcher. She takes over for four-year starter Jenny Sheehan.

"She has big shoes to fill." said Baird.

Rice is blessed with a strong throwing arm from behind the plate and hits with power.

"She looks great so far," Baird said.

Rice got some experience on varsity last year playing in the outfield and behind the plate. Baird said that should help ease the transition from Sheehan.

At first base, senior Kristen Dawson will likely see the most time. Baird said she has a good glove at first and is an excellent athlete

Christine Connolly will also see time at first. Shell play in the out-field when Dawson starts at first. "She's a smart hitter." Baird said

She has great ability," the coach added.

"We're looking at them to guide us and provide great leadership." said Baird. "I'm expecting a lot out of them.

Northville doesn't have a lot of varsity experience beyond that trio. "We have a young squad," said Baird, but a very good young squad.

Walled Lake Central is probably the team to beat. The defending Western Lakes Activities Association champions are ranked No. 9 in Class A coming into the season.

Northville fields new nine

By SCOTT DANIEL Sports Editor

Winning the WLAA baseball championship wasn't easy for Northville High last spring.

A senior-dominated Mustang squad had to fight and scratch for every victory. But it all paid off in the end as Northville beat Walled Lake Central for its first title in cons.

This season, the Mustangs will have to work even harder to defend their crown. With an almost entirely new starting lineup and not a great deal of size, coach Mickey Newman knows his team has a big task ahead of it.

Everything we do we'll have to work for," he said. We're going to have to get on base with scrappy at bats, steal bases and score on ground balls and flyballs.

Northville, which went 14-7 overall and 8-2 in the Western Division, had horses like Tom Willerer, Mark Sander, Kyle Hitchcock, Chuck Yessian and Nate Forney to rely on a year ago. All have since graduated, leaving the door wide open for a new group of Mustangs

"We've got good speed and athletic ability," Newman said of this year's club. "But we'll have to be scrappy. We'll have to play above our heads sometimes to compete with a few of the teams in the conference."

Good pitching, of course, can make up for a lot of shortcomings.

Traditionally, the Mustangs have had a pretty good staff. Newman is hoping this year will be no exception. Joe Willey looks to be the No. 1 starter. A 6-foot 3-inch right hander, the senior pitched extensively last year "He's got a lot of experience," said Newman. "His split-fingered fastball is his best pitch."

Kevin Gilchrist dominated at junior varsity last year with a 7-1 record and low earned run average. Newman has the junior penciled in as the No. 2 starter. Sophomore Rob Reel would've likely been Northville's other starter. But he recently had foot surgery and will miss the spring campaign.

Ryan Morris and Justin Stevenson are battling for the third slot in his absence. Newman said he'll go with a three-man rotation, which will leave either or Morris or Stevenson in the bullpen.

Seniors Scott Vigh and Phil Kozdron are battling for the relief ace role. Both are right handers.

Junior Brian Horn, the staff's lone lefty, fills out the bullpen. Despite having only seven pitchers, Newman said depth shouldn't be a problem.

"I don't think it will hurt us too much," he said. "We have enough good pitchers to get through the season."

John Rohrhoff will do the bulk of the catching. A 5-6 senior, Newman said he'll do a good job with the pitching staff. "He's an excellent defensive catcher," the coach said. "He's really a key for us. He needs to play well defensively so our pitchers can throw all of their pltches. Juniors Gordie McPhail and Ryan Gallogly will back Rohrhoff up behind the plate. At first base, Gilchrist will get the nod when he's not pitching. Stevenson and veteran Bill Sekerka will also Andy Deacon and Suren Srabian, both Juniors, are vying for second base.

They're both are very similar." Newman said. "Both have good offensive capabilities and defensively both are solid.

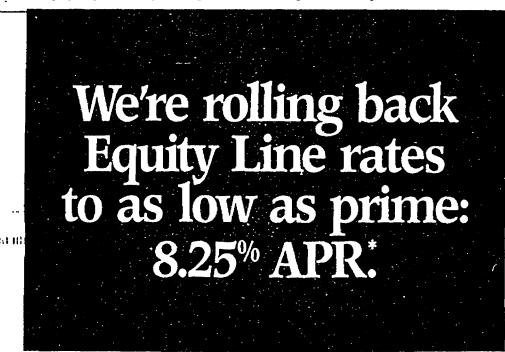

Vigh and Eric Arnold, a junior, are fighting it out at shortstop. Sekerka and Eric Swietlik will split time at third base and designated hitter.

"We're pretty much two deep at all of the infield positions," Newman said. "We should be strong up the middle, which will be important because all of those guys on the corner are learning a new position.

They all have real good speed and are good defensively." Newman said.

Kickers ready to challenge for league title

By SCOTT DANIEL Sports Editor

It doesn't take long to figure out if your team is among the state's soccer elite when you play in the Western Lakes Activities Association.

Each spring, the 12-school conference routinely has four to five teams ranked in Class A's top 10. Heck, Canton won the state title last year.

Northville High will see just where it's at Monday with a game at Salem starting at 7 p.m. Coach Doug Lyon believes his Mustangs are primed for an excellent season.

"We should win our division and play for the conference title," he said. "We have a very good chance."

That's saying a lot since Canton plays in Northville's division. The Chiefs didn't lose a great deal off of their championship team, either.

But with a solid lincup from goaltender to forward, the coach has every reason to be optimistic.

"Talent wise and player to player," said Lyon, "we're better than most."

Meghan Cauzillo anchors the squad at goalkeeper. The senior has been with the Mustangs for four years now and is one of the area's premier netminders

"She's a regional Olympic development program player," Lyon said.

Senior Erin Bowdell will back up Cauzillo. The coach said she's capable and will see some playing time.

Kristin Baja will lead the defensive corps. The senior will be the last line of defense at sweeper.

Lisa Tolstedi, a three-year varsity player, will take one of the fullback slots. Senior Dana Novai will play at stopper.

"She's extremely skilled and very tough," Lyon said of Novai.

Lecia Harmer and Carrie Wasalaski round out the fullbacks. "With Kristin leading the way our defense will be very strong." Lyon said.

Northville will put extra emphasis on defense this spring with a new four-four-two alignment.

The Mustangs will play four fullbacks or defenders, four at Lyon said the extra midfielder should allow his team to control the ball more and cut down on offensive chances for other clubs.

At midfield. Lyndsay Huot leads the way. The senior will be one of many offensive weapons for the Mustangs.

Tisha Mazzola, Amanda DeKoker and Lori Carbott will likely figure in the starting lineup. Janet MacDonald, Jamie Tharp.

Janet MacDonald, Jamie Tharp, Nicole Geliner and Keri Whelan will all see time at midfield, too. Lyon said he'll use his entire roster liberally this season.

Up front. Brigid Bowdell is the top returner. The sophomore is capable of big numbers in terms of goal production.

Jackie Rompel, likewise, can find the back of the net with the best of them Blakely Berry, a junior, will also see time up front.

Northville will go into Monday's contest with a 0-1 record. Brighton beat the Mustangs 3-2 on March 26

Prasad leads golfers

Even good programs have down years.

At 5-4 and fifth place overall in the Western Lakes Activities Association. 1996 was a "down" year for the Northville High golf team. This season, the Mustangs are hoping to regain the form that made them champions in 1993-94.

"We've got a little more depth this year," longtime coach Trish Murray said. "If we can finish in the top three, I think it would be a good season."

Livonia Stevenson took the WLAA title a year ago with Plymouth Salem taking second. Murray said both the Spartans and the Rocks will be tough again along with Westland John Glenn and a combined Farmington squad.

Murray said it may be unrealistic to think her team can go through the conference unscathed.

"We definitely want to stay above .500," she said. "I'd like to finish no worse than than third (overall)." Monica Prasad, a senior, is Northville's top returner. She made

All-Western Division last spring. Murray said Prasad is a candidate for all-conference this year.

"I think she'll shoot in the low 40s (for nine holes)," said Murray.

Katie Culp is another senior Northville will rely on. She figures to be in the Mustangs' top group all season.

Meredith Walsh rounds out the list of seniors. She'll be trying to crack into Northville's top six as well.

Andrea Troschinetz and Sarah Church are Northville's juniors. Murray is high on Troschinetz.

"Andrea is an athlete through and through," she commented. Northville will get contributions from several sophomores.

Marie Dingwall and Becky Rankin both saw time at varsity as freshmen a year ago. Murray said both are capable of shooting well.

Julie Cyrek and Jennie Church join the Mustangs as sophomores as well.

Lauren Eathorne, Jessie Mills and Georgie Walsh are Mustang ' freshmen. Each will play mostly at the junior varsity level.

Northville opens its season April 19 at the South Lyon tournament.

Runners aim for WLAA crown

By SCOTT DANIEL Sports Editor

Every spring, it seems, Northville High is in the hunt for a Western Lakes men's track and field championship.

Despite being smaller than pow-erhouses like Plymouth-Salem. Plymouth-Canton and Westland John Glenn, the Mustangs are always near the top. Last year was no exception.

Northville took fourth in the conference and posted a 6-2 dual meet record. The Mustangs were also second in the Western Division.

Coach Dennis Faletti said his team can do better. Two losses for us were disappointing," he commented. "In the last five years we only have five losses.

Salem won the WLAA championship a year ago. Faletti said schools like Walled Lake Western and John Glenn could unseat the Rocks.

Don't count out his Mustangs. either.

"I think we'll be tough." Faletti said. "We're in the top five for sure.

The Mustangs began practicing in early March. Faletti said his team has been able to run on the track much of the time, which is a real switch from the past couple of years.

"I think we're ahead of last year." he said.

The Mustangs will get a chance to see just what kind of shape they're in Tuesday against Novi with the season opener. Faletti will not carry a set lineup into the dual with the Wildcats.

He said he would run "whoever is the best shape" coming off spring break. The longtime coach is known for changing his lineup throughout the season.

At any rate. Northville should be strong in almost every event this spring.

Jim and Tony Clemens will anchor sprints. The junior twins will run both the 100- and 200meter dashes and on 400- and 800-meter relays. Tony suffered through a wrist injury much of last season. Despite that fact, he was able to take second in the 200-meter dash.

Mike Linker and Gino Peters return to run sprints as well. Both should see time in the open races and relays.

Faletti said the group should score a lot of points. But he warns that Northville can't afford any

OK."

Peters will be the Mustangs' main man in the 110- and 300meter hurdles. Freshman Brett Pawling could be one to watch as well.

Northville looks equally solid in middle distance.

Seniors John MacInnis, Luis Guajardo and Jon Woodsum give Northville lots of speed in the 400and 800-meter open races. Woodsum, for example, was third in the conference in the 800 last year.

Look for junior Matt Carroll to step in and make an impact as "It should turn out to be fairly strong." Faletti said of his mid-distance group.

Many of Northville's long distance runners will come from last fall's cross country squad.

Kevin Arbuckle, a sophomore, will run both the 1.600 and 3.200-meter races as will Tim Schovers and John Julow. Faletti said junior Steve Weicksel could be the top 1.600-meter man.

The coach also likes the way Julow, a senior, has been running. "He's looking very good right now." Faletti said.

"I'd say we're going to be stronger on the track than on field events," Faletti commented.

Northville residents Ryan Ossenmacher (Catholic Central) and Ryan Ward (Northville High School) are members of the Plymouth-Canton Midget AA Hockey Team which recently won the state Midget AA title in Battle Creek. The Stingrays now travel to St. Louis in April for the national tournament.

The Stingrays had a very successful season this year with 51 wins, 12 losses, and 4 ties and a goals for average of 3.98 with a goals against of 1.5. The team was also runner-up this year in the North American Silver Sticks tournament which represented teams from both the United States and Canada. Ossenmacher was named to that tournament's All Star team.

Mustangs hope for respectability in '97

By SCOTT DANIEL Sports Editor

Northville High's women's track team will be bigger this year, but it's doubtful the Mustangs will be better than a year ago.

That's the word from coach Chris Cronin as Northville prepares to open its season Tuesday at home against Novi.

We're going to be in a rebuilding phase for a couple of years," he admitted. "Right now we really don't have a strength. We're a mediocre team. But that's a step up from 1-6."

The Mustangs won just once in seven tries last year. Northville held its own on the track, but simply couldn't compete in the field.

It was our Achilles heel last year." Cronin said. "Other than the long jump we didn't score points in field events.

Northville will come into the season with its biggest team in years. The Mustangs currently have 75 athletes, about 15 more than last year

"I think we have some good athletes that are willing to work hard." Cronin added.

Practice has been solid for the Mustangs. Many came into the March workouts in good condition.

"We're in good shape in terms of conditioning." Cronin said. "Overall, I'm pretty pleased with where we're at."

It's a good thing the team is in excellent shape. This season is being squeezed into just 36 days. from the first meet with Novi to the regional at Milford in mid May.

'It's not much time to prepare,' said Cronin. "We're hoping our conditioning will allow us to be in real good shape by the end of the season."

Northville will need to improve in the field if it is to win more than one dual meet this year.

Cronin was hoping the long jump would be one of his team's stronger events. But the absence of Ashley Ossola, who decided not to come out for track, and an injury to Melissa Poole have left the lineup in doubt.

Erica Winn. Missy MacRae and Christina Chase appear as the most likely candidates for the long jump. Cronin hopes to have Poole back in a few weeks.

Mary Essary, Lauren Metaj and Dana Chamotti will work in the high jump. Cronin thinks each can get close to five feet, which would score points.

We should improve in that event," he insisted.

Freshmen Jessica Poole and Christy Mimikos show great potential in the shot put and discus. Cronin is particularly high on Poole.

"if she's willing to work hard." he said. "she can be one of the best Northville has seen."

Jackie Black and Rachel Baker are other throwing candidates. Northville needs more output from its discus and shot put throwers than last year.

We need two girls that can throw 85 feet." Cronin said of the discus.

If Northville had a strength last year, it was in sprint events. Carrie Dalziel, Nicole Weyer and Katie Rompel were all good sprinters. but all have graduated.

Metaj, Chase and Poole will look to fill the void. Emily Howland may provide a boost if she can recover fully from a hip injury.

The Mustangs may get another shot in the arm from sophomore Brigid Bowdell. A soccer star, she'll split time between the two squads.

Cronin said she won't be able to run at every meet, but Bowdell will be "a big addition" for the meets she can participate in.

The coach expects opponents to dominate Northville in sprints early on. "We'll be a team at first that'll really struggle in sprints," he said. "Hopefully, by the end of the year we'll be solid.

In terms of mid distance, Lori Delano is one to watch. Lisa Armstrong, Kristen Kolarchick and Karen Loeffler are other top 400and 800-meter runners.

The Stephen Ministry seeks to help those in crisis

Where do you turn when you come up against a moment of grief in life?

When things take a turn for the worse, either because of an illness, loss of a job, divorce, death, or a move to a new community, and a person feels alone and unable to cope, there are caring Christian individuals trained to help congregation and the community.

The first Stephen Ministry leaders were trained in 1978. After completing a one-week program, new leaders return to their congregations and recruit and train other Stephen Ministers.

"I have never been involved with another program that has been so incredibly organized and dedicated to getting you the information and help you need." said Finzer, who became a Stephen Ministry leader three years ago.

Stephen Ministers receive 50 hours of training, attending two and a half hours of instruction each week from September through February. Topics include listening, feelings, assertiveness, the use of the Bible and prayer. "We are the caregivers and Christ is the cure giver." Finzer said. "Christ works through us to give care to our care receivers.

"We have to constantly remind people that we're not there to fix things for the care receivers. We're not there to solve their problems, we're there to listen to them and do reflective listening," she said. "We're not trained counselors or psychologists, we're trained lay people. We make sure people don't refer to us as counselors."

"If we have somebody in this community who has a sister living in Atlanta and they think they need a Stephen Minister, we can call St. Louis with a zip code of where that person lives and they can give us the name of a church nearby." Finzer said.

For smaller churches, it's harder to come up with the initial fee and the cost to send someone to training.

"Once you get up above 150 members, most any church that sees a need for it will find a way to fund it." she said. Sometimes small churches in an area will go in on a Stephen Ministry program for their community.

Northville and The Church of the Holy Family in Novi both have Stephen Ministry programs.

"We are not inward looking, we do not just minister to our own church members," said Lois Finzer, who has served as a Stephen Minister since First United Methodist joined the program in 1992. "We feel like we are a community resource. We have had people come in off the streets."

The Stephen Ministry was founded in 1975 by the Rev. Food program counts on couple

The Novi Senior Center is a distribution site for the Oakland Livingston Human Service Agency (OLHSA) commodity food distribution program, which takes place every three months.

Ann Kristofik and John Cashell have been volunteering for years. The March 18 distribution included flour, macaroni, prunes, canned pears, tomatoes, corn, and meat, and was given to 24 eligible individuals.

"It depends on what staple items come from the OLSHA's warehouse," Novi's Senior Center manager Jan McAlpine said. "If you're living on what some of these people are living on, every little bit helps."

The Novi Senior Center, located at 45175 West Ten Mile Road in Novi, is among 18 sites selected to distribute the free food.

Kristofik remembers when the handouts included dairy products. Now she wonders how some seniors will be able to afford those goods.

"They are wonderful, wonderful people," McAlpine said of Kristofik and Cashell, both Novi residents. "They are very modest people."

For more information on volunteering or on the commodity food program itself. call McAlpine at 347-0460.

People who are income eligible and not registered for the program may do so at the next distribution, which is scheduled in three months, by bringing Social Security cards for all household members, verification of household income and photo identification.

Special ministry cares for those in need

First United Methodist has 30 Stephen Ministers, including three men and five leaders ranging in age from their 20s up through their 80s.

We would like to build our numbers up beyond 30 because it is a growing congregation." Finzer added.

With a program as large as ours we do need to have six or seven leaders to do all the various functions to keep it going.

"We could probably use more." she said. "A lot of churches have struggled to get that many and it depends on the size and the age and the population you're serving." One church in Florida has over 100 Stephen Ministers and 19 leaders, according to Finzer.

Probably what happened was that those people were in the program and retired to Florida where they remained active in the ministry." she said. "If you have a very elderly population in your church you might need that many Stephen Ministers.

Caregivers and receivers are carefully matched to the individual situation and the Stephen Minister's expertise and interest in the given area.

"When someone needs a Stephen Minister we don't just say, 'so and so is the next in line, that's your Stephen Minister," she insisted.

Assignments last from one month to three years, depending on the situation.

A Stephen Minister is only assigned to one care receiver at a time and on average will spend about an hour a week visiting either face-to-face, through telecare (talking on the phone), or by attending activities.

Although 75 percent of the contacts are done in homes, other confidential places such as libraries, restaurants or hotel lobbies also work well.

About 80 care receivers have used the Stephen Ministry program at First United Methodist Church of Northville since it began.

Stephen Ministers and leaders meet twice a month in small groups to discuss the relationship between the minister and the care specifics that would identify the individual in what is called "supervision.

'it's like giving care to the Stephen Ministers," Finzer said. "It helps them understand how their relationship is going.

Sometimes a minister is so personally involved they don't see the red flag that comes up that says the person needs a referral to a community resource." Finzer said. The care receiver knows the Stephen Minister is not just coming out there hanging on a limb with no support," she said.

There are various ways of getting help from Stephen Ministers, who don't make cold calls. An individual may personally contact the pastor or Stephen Minister leader. Sometimes an individual's name is given to the pastor or referral coordinator of the program who. In turn, makes the contact.

Referrals come in all different ways. We never just assign someone without the person saying yes," she said.

Sometimes pastors feel somewhat threatened that lay people receiver without using names or are being trained to give Christian care, according to Finzer.

Pastor Doug Vernon (of First United) says he has never felt so supported in all his of ministry." she said. "That's what you need to have the program be successful within a church, the support of the pastoral staff. It's not that we take away from anything, we just allow them to have more time to go in on a crisis situation."

Characteristics Stephen Ministers must demonstrate are a caring attitude, an ability to be accepting. forgiving, reliable, and dependable, a commitment to follow through on a promise, dedication, emotional stability, a history of respecting confidentiality, spirituality, empathy, humility, and trustworthiness. Most of these people have a feeling they have been called to this ministry," she said. "It goes beyond just being a volunteer. You have a. commitment to it. Because you go through so much training you have to take it seriously."

For more information about the Stephen Ministry program, call First United Methodist at (810) $49-1144.

Girl scout earns top recognition

By CAROL WORKENS Staff Writer

Elizabeth Eule recently completed the requirements for Girl Scout's highest honor, the Gold Award, doing what she loves to do - work with children.

Elizabeth's project was an afterschool reading program for the Amerman Elementary School Kids Club.

"I have always liked working with kids, so I picked out a project that dealt with kids," she said.

Elizabeth composed a form letter which she mailed out to individuals in the community, some of whom she knew personally, asking them to take part in the six-week reading project.

Responding to Elizabeth's call were Northville Mayor Chris Johnson, Northville Board of Education Trustee Joan Wadsworth, Dr. Timothy Kirk. Bookstall on the Main's Marian Nelson, Great Harvest Bread Company's Ray Novelly, and Northville High School Student Assistance Program Coordinator Charlie Stilec.

Children in the after school club range from first grade through fifth and ages six through 11.

Between 25 to 40 children could be expected in the program on any given day. If the students had homework, they would go into another room. Those who didn't would stay and listen to the volunteers read stories

Elizabeth designed a follow-up project each week which focused on the subject of each of the books.

"The reason for the follow-up project was to wrap things up for the day and because the kids had been sitting for half an hour," Elizabeth said. 'You didn't want the kids to be running all over. you wanted them to have something to slowly get them back into the theme of what was happening."

Each of the volunteers signed up for one week between Jan. 7 and Feb. 11 and selected titles they either enjoyed themselves or had read to their own children.

"I learned being in charge of a project is a large responsibility." she said. When I put my heart into something everything turns out for the best."

Elizabeth, now a sophomore at Northville High School, enrolled in an after-school kids club when she was attending Moraine Elementary School in Northville.

Elizabeth is the daughter of Howard and Dawn Eule of Northville.

A Girl Scout for 10 years, Elizabeth enjoys the high adventure Girl Scout Troop 122 and went on a 28.8 mile backpacking trip on the Appalachian Trail in August 1996.

She has been an honor guard on Mackinac Island for two summers and was one of four Girl Scouts to received a perfect score for their eight-day tour of duty as guides on the island in August.

Elizabeth is also a member of the high school's swim team. SADD and German clubs and plays softball through the Northville Parks and Recreation Department.

'The Saint' returns to theaters on Friday

Val Kilmer plays the latest 'man of a thousand faces'

Simon Templar, gentleman and master thief, is equally at home negotiating with power brokers. seducing a beautiful woman, or dangling from the roof of a tall building. A man of a thousand disguises. Templar has eluded international syndicates, corrupt tycoons, and Interpol with equal ease. But he is more than a sophisticated thief. He is "The Saint," battling for justice where the law cannot or will not reach.

"The Saint," which stars Val Kilmer and Elisabeth Shue, is directed by Phillip Noyce from a screenplay by Jonathan Hensleigh and Wesley Strick and a story by Jonathan Hensleigh. Also starring in the action-adventure are Rade Serbedzija and Valery Nikolaev. Simon Templar (Val Kilmer) is rich. sophisticated and almost supernaturally skilled at stealing even the most closely guarded of treasures. He is also cold and cynical, until his path crosses that of Emma Russell (Elisabeth Shue), a young scientist whose life is in terrible danger. Emma has discovered the key to Russian billionaire Ivan Tretiak's (Rade Serbedzija) overwhelming ambition — to crown himself the first Czar of the new Russian Empire - and he will do anything to neutralize the danger that she represents.

Stirred by long-dormant feelings. Templar desperately fights to protect Emma while struggling to master the one identity he cannot assume with ease - himself.

Director Phillip Noyce first discovered "The Saint" at the age of eight. A fan of the original novels written by Leslie Charteris, Noyce went on to see the Roger Moore television series then showing in his native Australia. Years later. when producer Robert Evans brought "The Saint" to Paramount. Noyce was given the opportunity to bring a '90s Simon Templar to the big screen. "I wanted to tell the story of how a sinner becomes a saint," says Noyce, "one man's struggle for redemption."

For inspiration, Noyce went back to the Leslie Charteris novels. "I realized what we had to do in order to reinvent the Simon Templar character was to tell the story that had never been told - how Simon Templar becomes a saint," Noyce explains. "In his hundreds Noyce needed an actress who would be a catalyst for change in Simon Templar. "She has to radiate intelligence and innocence," says Noyce. "I have always admired Elisabeth Shue's work and as soon as I saw her in 'Leav-ing Las Vegas,' I knew I had found my Emma.

For Academy Award® nominee Shue, participating in "The Saint" was "a big adventure. I was definitely attracted to the 'big' nature of this movie," she says: "I don't think I have ever done a film this big. Also, the main reason for doing this movie was to work with Shue's character, Emma Russell, represented a change from characters she has recently portrayed.

"It was very freeing to play someone who was free of deep pain and torture." Shue explains. I was attracted to Emma most of all by her innocence, her spirit, her wonderment. Emma is somebody who has lived in an isolated world." In Shue's view, Simon Templar "represented all that Emma didn't know, and all that she needed to experience in her life.

Presented by Paramount Pictures and Rysher Entertainment. "The Saint" is produced by David Brown, Robert Evans, William J. Macdonald and Mace Neufeld. The Executive Producers are Paul Hitchcock and Robert S. Baker. Paramount Pictures is part of the entertainment operations of Viacom Inc.

Simon Templar (Val Kilmer) and Emma Russell (Elisabeth Shue) run through the streets of Moscow to elude pursuers in "The Saint." The action-adventure, presented by Paramount Pictures and Rysher Entertainment, is directed by Phillip Noyce.

of stories, the creator or "The Saint," Leslie Charteris, had never revealed the genesis of the character.

Noyce enlisted screenwriter Jonathan Hensleigh ("Die Hard With a Vengeance") to create a darker Simon Templar. According to Noyce, "We decided Templar's story should begin in an orphanage in the Far East where, as a child, he learns all the tricks that he is going to use to survive and prosper as an adult. Just as he did as a child, the adult Templar retreats from reality by using disguises which are really an escape, a mask hiding the real man." For the role of Simon Templar.

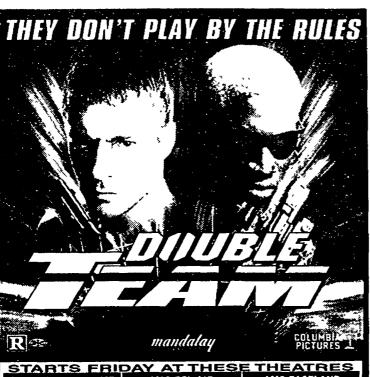

directory Noyce chose Val Kilmer. "We didn't need just another action hero; we needed a real actor," says Noyce. "Val Kilmer was one of the few who had the true acting ability to play all the diverse characters that Simon Templar has to portray. Val has never been used in this way, and I think people are going to be quite surprised with what he comes up with in this movie.

To Val Kilmer. "The excitement of this project is creating a series and an introduction to this character. Templar has a morality and a code and, like many professional thieves, has no interest in harming people or killing them. He is not a bad man; he just grew up in the illegal world and that's what he does for a living." In "The Saint," Kilmer actually plays over a dozen characters donning Templar's many disguises. Describing how Templar's disguises. Describing how Templar's disguises es evolved, Kilmer says: 'We start-ed off just goofing around with ideas, seeing how far we could go. It was a lot of fun." At least once a week I'd come on set as someone else." According to Producer Mace Neufeld, "Val has been meticulous in developing his disguises. He developed them through body language, attitude, and dialect. His desire for authenticity and accuracy to perfect these disguises made him work very hard in the preparation.

To play opposite Kilmer in the role of scientist Emma Russell,

REAL ESTATE Illicit transactions are costing consumers

By James M. Woodard Copley News Service

Hidden payoffs and illegal kickbacks in real estate closing transactions are costing consumers a lot of money.

For example, certain lender-paid fees paid to mortgage brokers have been determined to be illegal referral fees" under the Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act, according to a newsletter pub-lished by Real Estate Services Providers Council Inc. The ruling has shocked the mortgage industry and fueled a debate within industry trade associations over whether the law is outdated in today's marketplace.

Such payments have long been a standard practice in the wholesale mortgage industry. They represent the difference between a mortgage lender's wholesale price and the mortgage broker's retail quote to the borrower.

The key problem is often pegged to the structuring of those fees. They are often designed to steer new borrowers to higher-priced loans - types of loans the borrower doesn't really need and costing the borrower more than he should pay. That violates the act's antikickback prohibition.

Another problem is the vagueness of the act's regulations, which often confuse all parties involved in real estate transactions. An urgent plea has been expressed by mortgage industry groups for the Department of Housing and Urban Development to immediately issue a RESPA Policy Statement clarifying what constitutes illegal lenderpaid fees to mortgage brokers. While HUD currently requires that such fees be disclosed to the consumer, it has never provided specific guidance as to whether mortgage broker fees are allowed under the act.

"I cannot overstate the urgency of our industry's position." said Warren Lasko, executive vice president of Mortgage Bankers Association. The very survival of large mortgage banking companies is at risk.

Another problem is the widespread practice of title insur-

There is enough space here for a pool or pingpong table, big-screen TV, a couple of couches, etc. There is also a corner hobby room with direct access to the garage. There are two separate storage areas: one is an ample walk-in closet: the other is a good-size room that can be easily converted for use as a home office. Completing the floor plan on this level are a second bedroom and full bathroom.

The Stratford Grand model home in South Lyon is located on Nine Mile Road and features a popular light-hued color scheme.

Southeastern Michigan builders host a spring showcase

By Annette Jaworski

For many families, spring heralds the start of the home hunting season.

With scores of families looking to more rural areas to call home, the Milford and South Lyon areas are welcoming house hunters with a special event. Several builders are celebrating by hosting The Parade of Homes, a collection of 82 differ-ent developments throughout Southeastern Michigan.

Members of the Building Industry Association of Southeastern Michigan are hosting the event through April 6. Local developments that are participating include Phase III of Heritage Hills in Milford, and Oak Village in South Lyon.Whether you're seriously in the market for a new home, or just enjoy a fresh approach to interior decorating, there's plenty of ideas to be found by browsing through this showcase of homes.Realtor Associate for Coldwell Banker, J.B. Boudreau says that customers are attracted to the natural setting of the Heritage Hills development of Milford and the sloping hills of half-acre-plus size lots. Lot number 19 had five deer feeding on it the other day. It kind of surprised me early one morning" he said. The Brentwood model home featured at Heritage Hills III is a 1 1/2 story home with four bedrooms and 2 1/2 baths within its 2,700 square feet.

There's nothing like the first flowers of spring

By C.Z. Guest Copley News Service

Those of us who live in the North, Northeast and Midwest have just managed to survive the doldrums of winter with the aid of seed catalogs and gardening magazines; and, of course, tending to our house-plants. But if you just can't wait to get out in the garden and add some color to the landscape. I have some suggestions for a few early spring-blooming plants that reveal their true colors early in the season.

Shrubs: Perhaps earliest to bloom in colder areas are the witch hazels with their deliciously fragrant spiderlike flowers. Those of us who dwell in milder climates can enjoy the dazzling array of colors and flower forms of shade-loving camellias from late winter to spring.

Another early bloomer is andromeda, which sports creamy Lily of the Valleylike flowers and handsome reddish leaves. Nothing, of course, can beat the showy golden blooms of forsythia, a hardy, deciduous shrub that adds a touch of sunshine to our early spring landscapes. Perennials: Colder areas

GARDENING. of the country can count on the Lenten and Christmas Rose for February and March blooms, while in the Southland, Clivea's vibrant orange flowers are a sign that the seasons are changing. Bergenia's bold evergreen leaves are softened by spikes of delicate pink blooms in March and April. While another hardy evergreen, sea pink (Armevia), sends out masses of papery pink flowers above grasslike clumbs of foliage.

 Bedding Plants: Štock (Mathiola) has delicately fragrant spiky blooms ranging in color from snowy white to shades of cream or buff to rose, lilac, pink purple and bicolors. Individual flowers may be single or double. Stocks make marvelous cut flowers or bedding plants.

Most gardeners are familiar with violas or their cousins pansies. Pansies are available in such a variety of colors, literally every color of the rainbow and every shade in between. Some varieties are solid in color. while others have darker contrasting ance companies paying fees (kickbacks) to real estate brokers who refer their property-buying clients to them. This is clearly an illegal and unethical practice in most states, but those under-the-table payments are still frequently paid at points throughout the country.

The practice has weakened the public's perception of both industries. But pressure is building on perpetrators to abandon the praclice. Brokers who engage in the practice could lose their license from their state department of real estate. And those agencies are becoming more aggressive in investigations.

In California, the state Association of Realtors is fighting the illegal practice by encouraging brokers and sales agents to report offenders to the Department of Real Estate. The association has also proposed a legislative bill that would criminalize such activity, beginning July 1, 1998.

It should be noted that some title insurance companies and real estate brokers abstain from such practices. They are usually leaders in efforts to eliminate the practice. thus leveling the competition playing field.

Q. • Are home mortgage delinquencies increasing or decreasing?

A. After three consecutive quarterly declines in the mortgage delinquency rate. it's now moving up a bit, according to the Mortgage Bankers Association.

A recent report shows the overall seasonally adjusted delinquency rate of home mort-fourth quarter of 1996 - up slightly from the previous quarter.

We expect these rates to hover near these levels over the next few quarters," said MBA President Ron McCord. "The rising growth in consumer debt, coupled with a moderating economy, could keep mortgage delinquencies from improving in the near future.

These properties attracted about 18 percent of the value of all property acquisitions last year. Highquality apartments appreciated (increased) nearly 9 percent during the past year. more than any other property category except suburban offices.

The future prospects for the apartment sector is a mixed bag. according to a Gallen Associates report. This was the first property sector to recover nationwide after the recession. While a number of major markets, particularly on the West Coast, could continue to experience double-digit annual increases in prices and rents. other markets will become at least moderately oversupplied this year. Gallen predicts.

New varieties of pansies and other types of plants continue to be developed by plant breeders for new and unique colors and color combinations. Varieties that are deeper rooted and that possess other attributes for heat, cold and drought tolerance are easier to find for the home gardener.

Calendula or pot marigold are popular plants. Flowers range in spring beauties in locations in the lemon to apricot and orange. They are perfect in flower bed plantings and for cut flowers.

If properly conditioned or "hardened off, which means gradually acclimated or allowed to become accustomed to cooler temperatures and more intense sunlight. plants like petunias, snapdragons, diathus and sweet alyssum make great additions to the early spring color garden.

Be sure to place these early garden where they'll best be appreciated - near doorways and windows. Don't overlook strategically placed containers, window boxes, pots and hanging baskets.

If in doubt, ask you garden nursery for advice on these and other cool-weather bloomers. Ask for varieties best suited to the area you live in. Also inquire as to what kind of soil and light are required and how long you may expect them to bloom. Depending where you live, these plants may be annuals, biennials or even perennials.

There's nothing quite like those first flowers of spring to brighten gardens and lift our spirits. Where will some of these early flowers fit in your garden?

Q. I have a Jackmanii clematis that bloomed profusely for many years until last spring. Instead of the usual beautiful purple flowers, it had white and lavender striped flowers with small curly, distorted petals. What do you suppose happened? A. I think your original plant dropped some seeds. Those seeds simply germinated into a new plant that grew up and obscured the original plant - which by now needs some pruning to bring back the kind of flowers you are used to seeing. Trying to grow clematis from seed is almost impossible, but once in awhile nature takes over and a seedling develops. Most of these "volunteers" have strange characteristics and the curling you describe is no doubt a trait of the new plant. So locate the new plant and pull it up.

bloom, simply prune the lateral branches back to just above the second leaf node from the main vine, because clematis plants become woody with age and often can't get nutrients to the ends of their branches. The best time to prune is in late winter or early spring before new growth begins.

A truly livable floor plan is part of what Oak Creek Village's model is hoping will attract potential home buyers. The Stratford Grand model in South Lyon won best new floor plan design during the 1996 Parade of Homes

The best thing about the design is that you've got the kitchen area by your living area. A lot of emphasis was put in that area. That's one reason this layout is so popular," said Oak Creek Village Marketing Representative Donna Zelasko.

The close proximity of the kitchen area makes a station break snack only a few steps away.

Three bedrooms and 2 1/2 baths are featured in this model's 2,350 square feet. An optional fourth bedroom is offered

Although the interior in the Oak Village model was furnished in a more traditional style, it still featured the popular light color scheme. Gold and forest green accents are popular colors at both developments. There's even a bedroom to inspire golfers, in a fun golf theme

Potential customers who view Oak Village also like the large, roomy closet space, said Zelasko

"People are also definitely into the hardwood floors and designer white kitchens."

She finds the surfaces stay beautiful and are Bogie Lake Road,

People also comment about the windows; the corner windows are popular. With Silverman Homes, that's one thing they pay attention to," she said.

Oak Village is located east off of Nine Mile Road in South Lyon just south of the downtown district. Although the development is in its final stages, there are still sites available. Identical models are available in nearby Trotter's Pointe Village in South Lyon, located on Eleven Mile Road near Pontiac Trail. Both projects are contracted by Silverman Homes and both are featured in The Parade of Homes. Models for the showcase are also featured at these local developments. The Preserve of Commerce

Upon presentation, the sellers may accept or reject the offer, or make a 'counter' offer. If accepted, the document becomes a contract. Outright rejection of the offer is selfexplanatory.

> If the sellers are willing to accept part of the offer, yet want to change other parts, they may make a counter-offer. Then, it is up to the buyers to either accept, reject, or counter-offer. This process may continue until all parties are in full agreement.

The final signed agreement becomes. in effect, a set of instructions used by the attorney to close the transaction. Any additional side agreements must be reduced to writing to be considered binding.

You've selected a home, applied for a mortgage, and now its time to make a firm commitment. Its time to put your purchase offer in writing. How is that done?

A purchase 'offer' is just that - its only an offer, and may be withdrawn at any time until accepted by the sellers. It is the document which, when signed by all parties, becomes a binding contract, guiding the transaction to a smooth and successful conclusion.

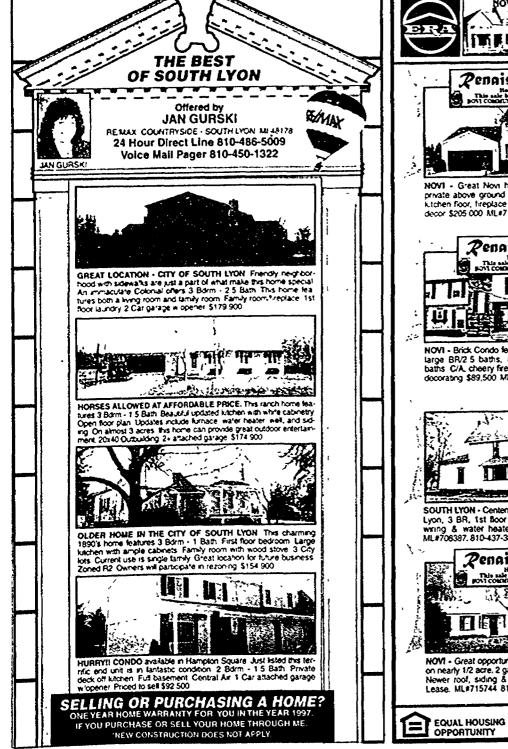

The real estate agent prepares the offer based on the buyers terms and conditions. It contains the offered price, payment terms, and a legal description of the property. Novi Jaycees plan to douse underage cigarette smoking

By WENDY PIERMAN MITZEL Staff Writer

The Novi Jaycees hopped on a magic bus, last week, in a nationwide effort to stop the illegal sale of tobacco to minors.

The Unites States Junior Chamber of Commerce, The Jaycees, is sending a group of representatives around the country on a 34-foot RV to promote the anti-smoking campaign, among other Jaycees initiatives

We all know quitting smoking is the hardest thing you can do and the biggest deterrent is to get them not to start and to make It as hard as possible for teens to obtain cigarettes," said Beth Murphy, of the Novi Javcees.

Called the 'Wake Up America Tour," the junior chamber leaders have traveled to 48 states and appeared in more than 1,000 communities.

For the past three years the Jaycees Against Youth Smoking program has worked to reduce access of tobacco products to children under 18 years of age.

Jaycees work with local retailers to encourage checking identification for the age-restricted products of tobacco and alcohol and post signs to alert he public of the laws. The group also designed a Responsible Merchant pledge for retailers to sign. Jaycees chapters develop public service announcements and enlist the support of local law enforcement agencies. Murphy said the Novi Jaycees have spoken with a few businesses so far to inform them of the program and garner support and pledges. She expects the Jaycees to tackle other stores within the next weeks.

She's also spoken with Novi

Police Chief Douglas Shaeffer. Chief Shaeffer has been wonderful in offering his assistance to deriui in oliening his assistance to the Jaycees," Murphy said. The Jaycees cite a U.S. Depart-ment of Health and Human Services trend analysis when it says too many young people have access to cigarettes. More than 12 percent of high school seniors smoke a half-pack of cigarettes a day. Nearly 11 percent of 12 to 17-year-olds have tried a cigarette in the last month, it says.

The solution. they say, is restricting that access. The Jaycees state when the law is supported, access to cigarettes is reduced by more than 50 percent.

Novi Jaycee Beth Murphy joined Farmington Jaycee Mark Blasiola as well as national representatives Patty Conklin and Rick Lippert on a cruise with the Jaycees Wake Up America Tour, in part promoting the responsible selling of tobacco items.

Someone else to contribute to savings

Want to have someone else contribute to your retirement savings? If so, consider taking advantage of a company-sponsored 401(k) plan. More than 180,000 companies offer these programs to employees and many of them will kick in company funds.

every dollar you contribute. Still

The Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants emphasizes that no matter what your age is now or when you expect to retire, investing in a 401(k) plan is one of the best ways to save for your retirement.

Here's how you can reap the full benefits of such plans.

CONTRIBUTE ASAP

A 401(k) plan enables you to contribute pre-tax dollars that compound interest on a taxdeferred basis.

What this means is that you don't pay taxes on the portion of your salary you contribute to the plan and the earnings aren't taxed until they are withdrawn at retirement.

The sooner you contribute to the plan, the more you will benefit from the compounding of interest. For example, if you place $7,000 into a 401(k) plan each year for 20 years and earn a return of eight percent, your total assets at the end of the period will equal maximum tax-free contribution of $9.240 to your 401(k) plan.

This amount does not include employer contributions. If you set aside $9,240 and your employer matches your contribution dollar for dollar, you can actually save $18,480, plus interest, this year.

MONITOR YOUR INVESTMENT

Monitoring and managing your 401(k) plan's performance is an important task since it directly affects the balance of your savings at retirement.

Today, employers generally give employees several options for investing their 401(k) contributions.

For example, you may be able to allocate your contributions among fixed-income investments (such as certificates of deposit - CDs) and variable income investments (such as stock or bond funds).

Generally, it's wise to diversify your 401(k) assets.

Of course, the closer you get to retirement, the less risk you should take and the more you should consider fixed-income investments.

EDITOR'S

Letter

Dear Readers,

got a headache writing this month's feature. Honest. I don't know if it came from worrying about meeting my deadline, or spending too much time in front of the computer screen with the cat settled on my lap. Maybe I didn't get enough sleep, thinking about talking to my sources, or did I drink too much soda while I was writing?

I'm not sure, but I learned with this story that there are hundreds of triggers out there just waiting to set off a headache. The good news, however, is that some of us are predisposed to getting these headaches--and some of us aren't.

The key, I understand, to both preventing headaches and getting rid of them is to pay attention. This means being aware of which events, emotions, actions or stimulants can start the pain throbbing in the head. It means changing your lifestyle so you can avoid those triggers. It means slowing down long enough to try relaxation techniques like deep breathing and meditation so you can "watch" the pain slowly fade away.

Another important subject covered this month is organ donation. More than 600,000 Americans could benefit by organ transplantation, 2,000 Michigan residents are awaiting organs now. Please help! This year, you'll get an organ donation card with your federal income tax return. Please discuss donation with your family, then fill out the card. Organ donation truly is a gift of life.

This month we add a section for older adults called "Health Wise," where seniors can find health care information and local sources that are pertinent to their needs. Hope you enjoy!

Spring is teasing us, she's on her way! (Has anyone seen a Robin yet?) We hope you enjoy this issue.

DON'T SUFFER IN SILENCE There's help for those harrowing headaches

ohn loves beer, but after drinking only one or two, he feels like elephants are dancing on his head. Sara gets migraines so bad she has to lock herself in a dark room, and they always happen around the time she's menstruating. The fluorescent lighting in Bob's office is so bright, he goes home every day with shooting pains in his head. And, many of us are surprised to discover that the luxury of sleeping late on the weekends ends up leaving us feeling dull and headachy.

The list goes on. Almost 50 million Americans seek medical treatment for headaches each year, and research shows that for every case reported, there may be three or four not reported. For about a third of the people who suffer from headaches, the symptoms are so debilitating, they wreak havoc with work, family and community life.

What's going on here? Are our days so hectic and our environments so stressful, that for many of us, life is literally a pain in the neck?

Not so, according to Joel Saper, M.D., director of the Michigan Head Pain & Neurological Institute (MIHNI), one of the nation's leading research centers for head pain.

"At one time, chronic pain was thought to be the result of what one did to him or herself," Dr. Saper says. "Now, we know that the majority of people who suffer recurring head and neck pain have intrinsic, often genetic physiological disturbances which render them headache prone."

Professionals at MHNI see 17,000 patients each year from all over the world, most of whom experience headaches almost daily. Some of these are primary headaches, Dr. Saper explains, that are a result of biochemical disturbances in the brain that cause blood vessels to dilate and inflame. These "disturbances" can include fluctuating hormone levels associated with menstruation, childbirth and menopause, or a decrease in serotonin, which stimulates the release of neurochemicals that prompt the dilation of blood vessels. According to William Leuchter, M.D., chairman of the department of neurology at Sinai Hospital in Detroit, the first obligation of a physician treating patients for headaches is to make sure the headaches are not "secondary" or related to disease. This is done, he says, through "fastidious questioning" of the patient to rule out warning signs of illnesses like sinusitis, meningitis, stroke or brain tumors.

"Secondary headaches are caused by irritation or traction of the pain sensitive structures that line the outside of the brain" Dr. Leuchter says.

Dr. Saper explained that many people who suffer from headaches also experience emotional problems such as depression, sleep disturbances, panic and anxiety attacks. "Though one condition doesn't necessarily cause the other, we believe that the genes associated with depression, also are associated with headaches," he says.

While a biological condition can make you more susceptible to headaches, certain factors can actually set them off. These are called "triggers" and include:

- Sudden weather changes
- Hormonal changes caused by PMS, menstruation, the Pill, pregnancy, menopause
- Missing a meal
- Exposure to bright light
- Too little or too much sleep
- Reaction to certain foods
- Exposure to cigarette smoke, perfumes or other strong odors
- Too much exercise or exertion
- Eyestrain

Travel on planes, trains, cars or buses

Dr. Jane Juopperi, a neurologist with the Michigan Institute of Neurological Disorders, works with her patients to determine which triggers affect them. She gives them a calendar they use to ications (which can cause headaches to get worse instead of better). "Preventive" drug therapy is also used to relieve headache pain. When her patients adjust their sleep patterns, complain of more than one headache a month, Dr. Juopperi may prescribe antidepressants or blood-pressure medication. Or, she recommends that patients take a pain reliever immediately when symptoms begin.

and stop taking over-the-counter med-

Dr. Leuchter warns that using medication as the main treatment for headaches will result in failure. "We must approach the patient as a whole person," he says. "Helping someone manage headache pain involves examining the psychodynamics, family dynamics and social situation of that person, along with their physical symptoms." Dr. Leuchter recommends headache patients be treated by a team of professionals that can include psychologists, physical therapist, anesthesiologist, as well as neurologists. Dr. Saper explains that diagnosing and treating headaches is a complex problem that can be helped by early intervention. "If we can see patients before they have headaches daily, we can help them get better faster," he says, urging those with headaches to call their doctors as soon as they notice a problem.

track the factors that exist before the onset of their headaches. Patients can ask themselves questions like: Did I get enough sleep last night? Have I been sitting all day scrunched up to my computer? Have the kids been yelling? Did I consume a "trigger" food within the last 24 hours?

Once patients identify their triggers, steps can be taken to stop the pain. "My patients have to be willing to change their lifestyles," Dr. Juopperi says. She may ask them to begin an exercise program, give up cigarettes and certain foods,

MIGRAINE: THE MOTHER OF ALL HEADACHES

The most debilitating headaches are migraines, which cause severe throbbing, usually on one side of the head. They often are accompanied by nausea, dizziness, vomiting and hypersensitivity to light. Migraines are believed to be a hereditary condition; about 70 percent of sufferers have other family members with the condition. Seventy-five percent of them are women. On average, migraine sufferers experience about one attack a month, and each attack can last from 4 to 72 hours. Before a migraine headache occurs, people often get a warning signal, or "aura," which can cause visual distortions like flashing lights, zigzag lines or blurred vision.

THEN, THERE'S THAT TERRIBLE TENSION....

bout 90 percent of headaches are caused by tension, and these tend to affect men more than women. Stress seems to be the main cause of tension headaches because, when under stress, we tend to tighten up our back, shoulder and neck muscles.

Sufferers complain of a vice-like pain that seems to squeeze tightly around the back of the neck, the sides of the head, and around the scalp and forehead.

CLUSTER HEADACHES: THEY FOLLOW YOU AROUND AND WON'T GO AWAY

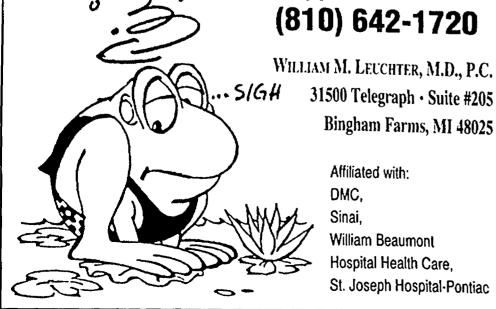

S ometimes, you get headaches over and over for days, then they stop. These are called cluster headaches and they can occur for several weeks, or several months, once or twice a year. They produce an agonizing ("knifelike") pain, usually on one side of the face, and they can result in a flushed face, runny nose or teary eyes. Eighty percent of sufferers are men between 20 and 45.

SOOTHING SELF-HELP STRATEGIES

Most headache programs endorse relaxation exercises, such as deep breathing, visualization, biofeedback and meditation, which can help relieve pain by lowering blood pressure, breathing rate and pulse. They also can diffuse anxiety and promote a greater sense of calm, which reduces muscle tension. These methods work best if the headache is mild, and can sometimes avert the need for an over-the-counter painkiller.

Learning pain and stress management techniques can help people with headaches, and aerobic exercise is always beneficial because it reduces stress and boosts production of endorphins, the "feel good" chemicals that help raise your pain threshold. Yoga is especially good, says Dr. Juopperi, because it involves both exercise and meditation. Ice is sometimes effective because it reduces swollen blood vessels. For best results, it should be applied to the painful area as soon as possible. Finally, you may be able to ward off a headache by drinking coffee or cola because caffeine constricts dilated blood vessels (which often cause the pain) and may help raise serotonin levels.

According to the National Headache Foundation (NHF), about 20 percent of headache sufferers report a connection between symptoms and foods. These can include:

FOR SERIOUS SYMPTOMS, HEAD STRAIGHT TO YOUR DOCTOR

EVER ignore headaches, says the National Headache Foundation, especially if they are recurrent or incapacitating. Headaches sometime can be a "secondary" symptom of serious disorders, such as brain tumors or meningitis.

The NHF recommends consulting your doctor if:

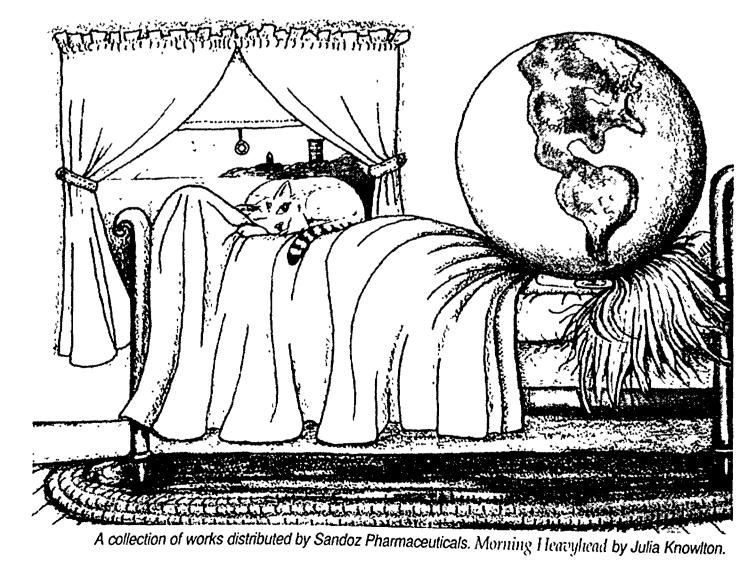

- You have three or more headaches per week, or stiff necks
- You have a headache that gets progressively worse each day
- You've never experienced headaches and they are sudden and strong
- You also have a fever, rash, nausea

- Alcohol, especially red wine, champagne, vermouth and beer
- Sourdough and freshly-baked yeast bread
- Caffeinated drinks and foods
- Dairy products, such as yogurt, ice cream and aged cheeses
- Desserts made with chocolate, molasses, yeast or licorice
- Citrus fruits, dried fruits and over ripe bananas
- Your headache is accompanied by confusion, memory lapses, personality changes
- Your headache comes on after coughing, straining or exertion
- Your headache occurs after a head injury, accident or illness
- You are dizzy, have slurred speech, weakness, numbness or trouble swallowing
- Your headache is accompanied by unexplained fever or breathing problems

If you get a very sudden and excruciating headache unlike any you've ever had, call a doctor immediately.

"There is some evidence to show that magnesium is useful for the prevention of migraines, and we're attempting to verify that," said Mark Gorman, M.D., staff neurologist with the division of cerebrovascular diseases at Henry Ford Health System.

Dr. Gorman explained that some migraine sufferers appear to have low levels of magnesium in their bodies, and may have low levels in their brains. These levels may drop even more at the onset of a headache.

Henry Ford has been designated by the National Institutes of Health to receive funding for headache research.

ORGAN DONATION: TRULY A GIFT OF LIFE or many diseases, organ transplantation is the only accepted medical treatment that offers a chance of survival. With improved surgical techniques and anti-rejection drugs, transplantation is now possible with a variety of organs including heart, lung, kidney, liver, pancreas and cornea, along with bone, skin and other soft tissues.

Yet, more than 2,000 Michiganians are awaiting organ transplants, and more than 600,000 Americans could benefit if enough organs and tissues were available.

We all can help. In this year's federal tax refund checks, Michigan residents will receive organ donation cards urging you and your family members to consider donation. Anyone can donate, you simply need to make your wishes known to your family, then sign the donor card in the presence of two witnesses and carry it with you at all times.

Becoming a donor does not affect your medical treatment; organ donation is considered only after every attempt has been made to save the life of the donor. The distribution of donated organs is handled through a national computer system for organ sharing, and transplant recipients are selected on the basis of medical criteria, urgency of need and length of waiting.

To explore the issue further, you may want to attend a presentation held April 25 at the Ritz Carlton Hotel in Dearborn.

The conference, sponsored by Henry Ford Health System and the Transplant Society of Michigan, will focus on ways to improve organ donation through education, allocation and legislation. For more information about the presentation, call Henry Ford Health System Office of Public Affairs at (313) 876-2882.

For more information about organ donation, call Gift of Life at (800) 482-4881.

DIAGNOSING YOUR DOCTOR

ach year, approximately 80,000 people die from doctors' negligence, says a recent study from Harvard University. And thousands more just get bad care. You can improve your health care treatment by taking steps to find quality medical services, and then being assertive about your needs.

Word of mouth among friends and family members is the number one way people choose doctors. Most hospitals have referral services, based on the kind of specialty you are looking for (pediatrics, general medicine, obstetrics and gynecology, etc.). If you want detailed information on the physician before you make a call, most health care centers have biographies available that help "introduce" new doctors to the community.

You can also contact Medi-net, a $15 phone service from the American Medical Association. Medi-net provides information on every doctor licensed to practice in the United States. Here, you can find out where a physician went to medical school, what his or her research interests are, or if the doctor has ever received disciplinary action. Phone number is (800) 972-MEDI.

Once you've found a doctor you like, it's important to become a partner in your health care, and that requires communication and respect between you and your doctor. Don't be afraid to ask specific questions, including the meaning of unfamiliar terms, the availability of alternative treatment options, and the potential side effects of any medications being prescribed.

MORE GOOD NEWS ABOUT ANTIOXIDANTS

L ach year, Americans suffer from an estimated 500,000 strokes and 1.5 million heart attacks, and it looks like antioxidants, such a beta carotene and vitamin E, may help reduce the risk of these diseases. Antioxidants appear to prevent biochemical changes that make cholesterol easier to deposit in blood vessel walls, where buildup of plaque can eventually block blood flow, potentially contributing to stroke and heart disease.

Jim White and his family understand the value of time. They waited a long time for a liver donor. However, Jim was fortunate - Every year, an estimated 3,000 people die while waiting for organ transplants.

"When the call came about the organ donation I was shocked and surprised," said Jim. "I looked at Sandy's face (his wife) and she was flushed. I knew the wait was over."

As any transplant patient could tell you, time is not an unlimited resource. One day you might find yourself as one of the approximately 47,000 Americans waiting for an organ transplant. Become an organ donor simply by signing a donor card, and by telling your family. Then, contact the Transplant Society of Michigan. To register your gift, call: 1-800-482-4881.

hearty conversation at the dinner table may be as important to chil-A dren as a healthy meal. Researchers at Harvard University found that introducing new (even rare) words at mealtimes helped kids improve their reading skills. After tape-recording mealtime conversations of a number of families with three and four year old children, researchers found that kids who were exposed to unusual words had better vocabularies at age five than those who were not. New words can include anything that lies outside of children's daily communications. This means adults should pepper their conversations with interesting, adult words, rather than trying to talk at what we think is the child's level. Preschoolers can learn as many as 8 to 28 new words each day, and better vocabulary, usually means better reading.

SWITCH OFF THAT JUNK FOOD!

ave you watched TV with your kids? Crammed between the cartoons, at what sounds like bomb-level decibels, are advertisements for fast foods, sugary cereals, neon-colored drinks and snacks, snacks, snacks. According to the Council of Better Business Bureaus, these advertisements account for almost half of the commercials run during children's television shows.

How to turn off all that junk?

The most obvious way is to limit your children's television time to no more than two hours each day. And don't let your child eat while watching TV. If he or she wants a snack, offer nutritious foods, such as fruits and vegetables, and serve them at the table. Introduce your children to commercialfree programs, such as The Learning Channel or public television. Even videos can be more interesting than commercial television. Television is a great way for kids and adults to relax. But it is a passive activity, that should be balanced with plenty of interactive play, imaginative play and active play.

GREAT IDEA!

The Children's Hospital of Michigan, part of the Detroit Medical Center, has created a Baby-sitter checklist, which is colorful, laminated and designed to include pertinent information all baby-sitters should have. Included are places for the names and ages of the children; emergency phone numbers, such as doctor, police, fire and poison control; phone numbers of parents (including car phone and beeper); and, it even leaves room to list bedtime instructions and favorite toys.

To get one, you can call the Children's Hospital at (313) 745-5000 and ask for the Baby-sitter checklist.

TEN SAFETY TIPS THAT COULD SAVE YOUR CHILD

hen a child is seriously injured or ill, you want to be prepared. Here's some advise from Emergency Medical Services for Children (EMSC) on what to do in emergency situations.

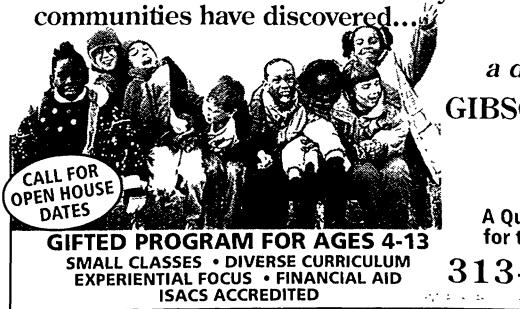

- In an emergency the first thing to do is dial 911 or your local emergency numbers. By simply dialing those numbers in an emergency connects you to the police and fire department and the EMS. If your area doesn't have 911 service available, find out what your local emergency numbers are and keep them by all of the phones ready to be used.
- Many people may not know when a true emergency exists. If a situation arises and you are unsure, make the call. Many times a child could die or suffer permanent harm unless prompt care is given. And the golden rule of "better safe than sorry" still holds true.

- Knowing how to perform CPR procedures on a child who has stopped breathing is a very good skill to learn. Understanding the basic choking procedures is essential to saving the life of any child whose airway is blocked by objects lodged in their throat. Check with your local hospitals for CPR training, first aid and child safety courses.
- Failure to get all of your child's immunizations on time can put your child at risk of permanent disability. Parents don't want to place their kids at risk of death from a preventable illness.
- If your child is involved in a car crash, do not move them unless they are in further danger. Try to keep the child warm and if they are conscious, keep them still until emergency services arrive.
- If your child has been poisoned, bring the poison and the child to the phone when you call the poison control center in your area. Have syrup of ipecac on hand, but use only if directed to do so.
- If your child has a serious fall, do not move them if they are unconscious. Call 911 or the emergency number. Cover them with a blanket and keep them still.
- In the case of a burn, do not use butter or petroleum jelly. For a minor burn, place area under cold water for 15 minutes and call the doctor. For large or deep burns with blisters, make an immediate call to emergency services. Keep your child warm with a clean sheet and then a blanket until help arrives.

In the case your child has a seizure, perform rescue breathing if they are not breathing. If they are breathing, lay the child on their side, and move them away from dangerous objects. Call emergency services.

IMMUNIZE YOUR LITTLE MICHIGANDER.

To make sure your child is protected against serious diseases like polio, whooping cough and diphtheria: ask your doctor to check that your baby's shots are up-to-date. Call your physician, your local health department, or 1-800-26-BIRTH.

SOME FACTS ABOUT THOSE COLORFUL, CRUNCHY BELL PEPPERS

- Bell peppers are bred to be colorful. They start out green and then mature into a variety of rich colors — red, yellow, orange and purple.
- The difference in color comes from the presence of different (and valuable) carotenoids, those phytochemicals that help fight disease.
- The colored ones tend to cost more because they are harder to grow and require more care after harvesting.

BROCCOLI: THE VEGETABLE WORTH STALKING

K! We all know that broccoli is rich in vitamins and loaded with fiber, but we also know that if it's stale, limp and overcooked, eating broccoli is about as delicious as chewing on a shoe. So, how do we get the best out of broccoli?

- Buy broccoli with dark green, firm florets. You can store the bunch in a sealed plastic or vegetable bag in the crisper for at least one week.
- Wash as much broccoli as you plan to cook, and cut off the florets. Trim the end of the stalk and cut it into spears. Using a vegetable peeler, remove the tough outer skin of each spear.
- For each stalk, bring a quart of lightly salted water to a boil in a deep pot. Cook the broccoli for three minutes uncovered.
 Drain it and serve immediately.
- If you wish to stir-fry the broccoli, use it in a cold pasta salad, or store it for tomorrow's dinner,

'shock' it in ice water for three to five minutes, or until it has completely cooled. This method will help preserve the nutrients, taste and color.

WATER AND Your Health: Wetter is better!

Vou've heard it before. It's hard to believe, but it's true. Our bodies are 70 percent water. And, without water, for even a short time, we will die.

So, now that we've gotten your attention, it's we can get fluid from food like vegetables and fruits, we still need to drink.

Here's why:

- Water acts as the medium for all chemical processes that take place in the body to repair, to renew, and to maintain cells.
- Water comprises 80 percent of the blood that carries food to all body tissues, and, on its return, transports waste to be eliminated by the liver, kidneys, lungs and skin.
- The gray matter in our brains is about 85 percent water.
- Cells that contain adequate amounts of 1-800-310-9507 Northwestern Hwy. Just South of 12 Mile important to stress that water is not just a cureall for losing weight, or an excuse for posing as a movie star toting around the ubiquitous bottle of Evian.

"We do need to drink 8 to 10 cups of water each day," says Pamela Savage-Marr, R.D., regional community health educator for Oakwood Healthcare System, and spokesperson for the National Dietetics Association.

"Our bodies use water for all functions from assisting with digestion to cushioning joints," she adds, explaining that even though water keep skin moist and fresh-looking. During exercise, sweating stimulates the oil-producing glands that keep hair moisturized.

• Water keeps the kidneys from over-concentrating particles that might otherwise crystallize and clog up the urinary tract. Water also helps prevent constipation by keeping fluids in the digestive track.

• Water is vital for helping to flush out toxins that result from the body breaking down proteins and bacteria.

 Water can help with weight loss because the more you drink, the better your body is hydrated, which lubricates the cells that are involved in fat-burning. Drinking water also creates a feeling of fullness, and since it contains no fat, sugar or caffeine, water represents a healthy, no-calorie alternative to pop, coffee or other drinks.

If you work out regularly, water is especially important because the exercising body loses more fluids through urination and perspiration. Exercise also requires a higher level of energy. Without sufficient water, your body becomes dehydrated and fatigued, which makes it difficult to perform even the simplest routines.

Savage-Marr savs that thirst is not a reliable indication of how much water we need.

"Once you're thirsty, you are already depleted by almost two cups of water," she says, emphasizing the importance of drinking throughout the day. She suggests carrying a bottle of water, for convenience and for the hand to mouth gratification sipping allows.

"Keep a bottle at your desk and in your car, and don't forget to stop at the drinking fountain."

THE BOTTLED WATER DILEMMA: WHAT'S ACTUALLY IN THOSE FANCY CONTAINERS?

Ithough general standards for water quality are monitored by the Environmental Protection Agency, people are concerned about contaminants such as lead, chlorine, aluminum sulfate and pesticides. As a result, thousands of Americans have turned to bottled water. However, between the cost and inconvenience of buying those bottles, as well as recent publicity questioning the exact content and purity of bottled water, it's hard to decide where to get good drinking water.

In 1996, the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) established national standards for labeling different types of bottled water, making water one of the most regulated food products sold to consumers. According to the FDA, here's what the labels mean:

- Artesian water: bottled water from a well that taps a confined aquifer (an underground layer of rock or sand containing water). Unlike spring water, which must flow to the surface naturally, artesian water can be pumped to the surface for use.
- Mineral water: bottled water containing at least 250 milligrams of minerals per liter. No minerals can be added to this product.
- Purified water: produced by distillation, de-ionization, reverse osmosis and other suitable purifying processes.
- · Sparkling water: after treatment, including possible replace-

JUST GET OUT THERE AND MOVE!

'ou don't have to work out long and hard to reap the benefits of exercise--just about any activity is healthy if it gets your heart pumping. The American College of Sports Medicine and the President's Council on Physical fitness have reduced their exercise recommendations to 30 minutes of moderate activity five or six days a week. The 30 minutes don't even have to be consecutive: a 10-minute walk, 5 minutes climbing the stairs, and 15 minutes gardening can meet your exercise requirements for the day.

STRENGTH COMES WITH TRAINING

hese days, more and more fitness experts are recommending that you add strength training to your exercise program. Touted to help young athletes improve physical prowess, and recommended to help older people remain active and independent, strength training is called the "training trend of the '90s." "Cardiovascular exercise can condition your heart and lungs," says Dan Toigo, director of sales at American Exercise, a fitness equipment company located in Farmington Hills. "But without strengthening the other muscles in your body, your muscles atrophy and you become prone to injury."

Toigo defines strength training as that which involves resistance, either from free weights, dumbbells or specialized equipment. Lifting weights at home is fine, he says, but if you are unfamiliar with strength training, the fitness consultants at American Exercise recommend that you either work with a personal trainer, or use strength training equipment, where there is less room for injury because of the machine's controlled movements.

In addition to the increased energy and self-confidence that comes with a strong body, working out with weights and other resistance equipment can result in:

Today, using a high energy beam of light from the CO² laser, we can restore younger healthier looking skin by gently removing facial lines and skin imperfections. This amazing technology can also be used to perform NO-STITCH Eyelid Surgery!

 Greater endurance and stamina in both recreational activities and the chores of daily life, such as carrying groceries, running up and down stairs and playing with your kids.

- Improved performance in sports like tennis, golf, basketball and swimming
- A greater sense of power, both physical and emotional
- Reduced risk of heart disease, diabetes, osteoporosis, back problems and joint injuries

Probably most enticing of all, strength training can make it easier to shed unwanted pounds and inches. By helping you build muscle tissue and lose body fat, strength training revs up your metabolic rate so you burn more calories in whatever you are doing, even sitting or sleeping.

To reap these benefits, you may not have to add extra time to your current exercise schedule, you can simply supplement your aerobic program with strength training sessions.

"Don't train the same muscle group two days in a row," Toigo says, explaining that the most efficient program calls for alternating days of cardiovascular conditioning with resistance training.

SO, HOW DO YOU GET STARTED?

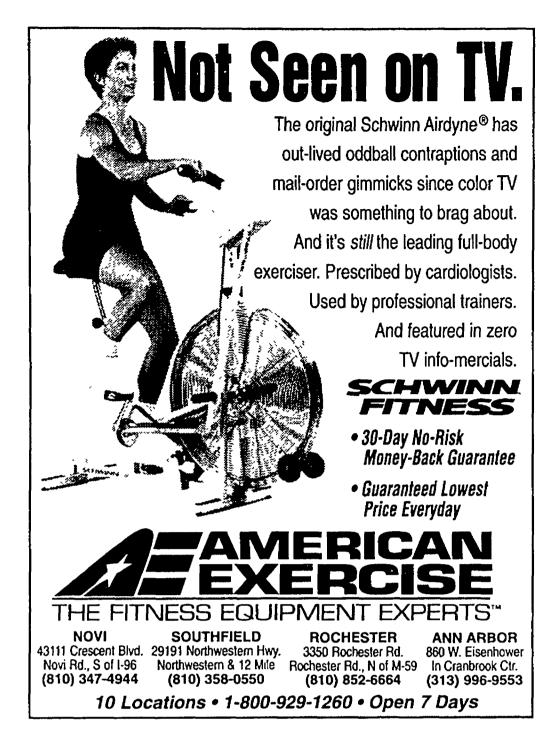

When someone asks about strength training, the American Exercise fitness consultants spend time analyzing that customer's fitness level and limitations before making recommendations. Toigo says the equipment most requested are multi-station machines where users can work all muscle groups. These range from about $800 to more than $5,000. Some customers purchase a weights and bench package, but Toigo recommends that those lifting weights should take time to learn the movements. Often a personal trainer is assigned (first session is free), or people are directed toward educational books and tapes.

For more information about strength training, you can contact your own fitness club or your local YMCA/YWCA.

EXERCISE CAUTION WHEN JOINING A GYM

ost strength training exercises are done in health clubs or gyms. If you're thinking of joining one, the Federal Trade Commission Reports offer the following tips:

- Find a club that promotes a discounted or free trial period. Use this time to check out the equipment, see how helpful the staff is, and look for classes or other programs that will help you reach your fitness goals.
- Ask about the ratio between members and the staff and equipment available to them. Some clubs would rather have too many members rather than more satisfied customers.
- Check out the hours available for you to work out, and make sure they accommodate your schedule and temperament. The match is important so you actually go to the club!
- It's important to investigate the education and training of the staff. Most health clubs now employ at least a few staff members who have formal training. These professionals can help you build an appropriate fitness plan, and steer you away from injury.

• Ask what the stipulations are for canceling your membership. What happens if you are injured? Can you cancel if you move away?

Most importantly, look around the facilities to see if they are clean and well organized. Talk to the staff—from fitness instructors to office people—to see if they are friendly and professional. And watch to see how members interact. Does it seem like the kind of place you'll want to spend several hours each week?

MEDICARE SCARE

S enior citizens may wonder if Congress' Medicare reform plan will change the level of benefits they now receive. Here's some good news:

- Medicare's own Trustees say Medicare is "clearly unsustainable" in its present form. Reform is needed whether or not taxes are cut. If nothing is done, it will run out of money.
- Medicare spending would continue to increase from $4,800 to $7,100 per beneficiary in the year 2002.
- The new plan would allow beneficiaries the opportunity to choose a plan that increases their benefits and reduces their out-of-pocket costs.

The new plan would allow seniors more benefits than Medicare does now, such as prescription drugs.

WATCH FOR SIGNS OF CONGESTIVE HEART FAILURE

ongestive heart failure, caused by coronary artery disease, uncontrolled high blood pressure or structural abnormalities in the heart, is the number one cause of death in Americans over 65.

According to the Alliance for Aging Research, seniors should be aware of the signs of congestive heart failure, which include:

- shortness of breath
- swollen legs, ankles or abdomen
- weight gain from fluid retention
- cool, pale hands and feet
- increased night-time urination
- fatigue and weakness
- confusion and memory problems

CAREFULLY CONTAIN YOUR MEDICATIONS

Good advice from Health after 50: Clear plastic dispensers that organize medications into daily doses do not protect photo-sensitive drugs from light. If you use such drugs (which generally come in opaque containers), try preparing a weekly checklist instead, and leave the drugs in their labeled containers, where they are best protected and identified. Also, do not store any drugs in the bathroom or near a window, where their effectiveness can be diminished by steam or light.

A ccording to the Journal of the American Medical Association, there may be truth in the assumption that cranberry juice can prevent urinary track infections (UTIs) in older women. Ira Katz, MD, co-chair of the Geriatric Psychiatry Alliance's Initiative on Depression in Late Life says that depression is not a natural part of aging. "It is normal for people to feel sad or blue about certain life events," he said. "But when someone can't get un-sad, when someone is stuck in a depression, then it is an illness requiring medical attention."

Sadness is not the only sign or symptom of depression. In fact, in the older adult, other than 120,000 people, it was found that those who took vitamin E supplements for more than two years had a 40 percent lower risk of developing major heart disease.

GIVE YOUR SKIN THE TREATMENT IT DESERVES

Does your skin make the grade? Take a look at the grading scale many dermatologists use to evaluate the degree of photoaging (the premature aging of skin due to ultraviolet light exposure), and see how affected your skin may be and what you can do about it.

First, determine your skin type with the following classification scale developed by San Francisco dermatologist Dr. Richard Glogau. Choose the skin type that best reflects how your skin feels and appears.

- Skin type I: "No Wrinkles" minimal to no discoloration or wrinkling, no keratoses (skin overgrowths), foundation or makeup not needed.
- Skin type II: "Wrinkles in Motion" skin wrinkles when it moves, slight lines near the eyes and mouth, no visible keratoses, some foundation is usually worn.

- Skin type III: "Wrinkles at Rest" visible wrinkles at all times, notice able discolorations, visible keratoses, may need heavy foundation.
- Skin type IV: "Only Wrinkles" wrinkled throughout, yellow/gray color to skin, prior skin cancer, can't wear make up because it "cakes and cracks."

Once you have determined your specific skin type, you can start to develop a skin-care plan that is best for you. Here are some recommendations and options a dermatologist might recommend to you:

Practice daily skin protection with a moisturizer containing a sunscreen with an SPF of at least 15. Try a lotion containing alpha hydroxy acid (AHA) and antioxidants.

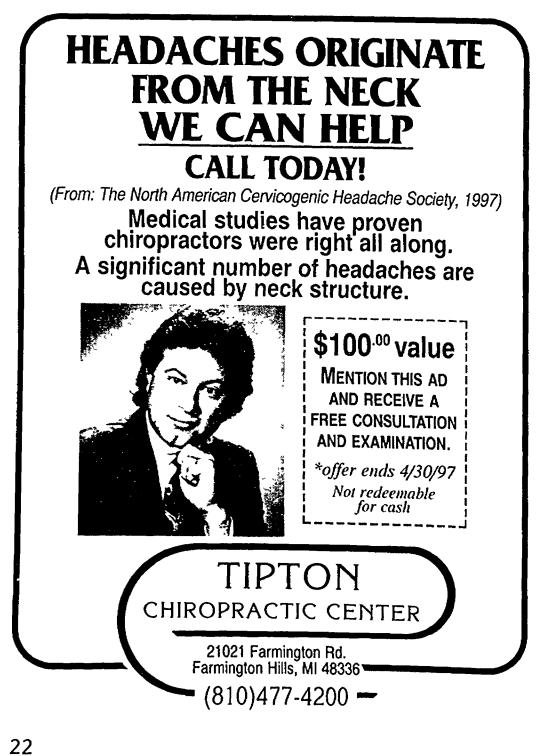

For skin types II and III, doctors may prescribe medication, like tretinoin or hydroquinone. These skin types also may benefit from light chemical peels, dermabrasion or laser resurfacing to remove lines, wrinkles and discolorations.

Caption: Help our skin make the grade with the proper skin-care regimen. Whether you have skin type I, left, with "no wrinkles" or skin type IV, right, with "only wrinkles," you can have healthy skin. Consult your doctor about possible treatments that can help you look your best.

For skin type IV, many of the same recommendations as skin types II and III will apply, but doctors may offer additional options, like soft-tissue augmentation procedures (injections of collagen or fat transfer).

Before starting a new skin-care procedure or changing your present skincare routine, and for the highest degree of accuracy in determining your skin type, consult your dermatologist. Then, talk to your doctor about possible treatment options that can keep your skin looking its healthy best.

symptoms such as weight loss and feeling "slowed down" may be more pronounced. It is important for people to recognize all of the symptoms of depression and report any that last two weeks or more to the doctor.

Common symptoms include:

- persistent sadness
- feeling slowed down
- excessive worries about finances and health problems
- frequent tearfulness
 feeling worthless on
- feeling worthless and helpless
- weight changes
- pacing and fidgeting
- difficulty sleeping
- difficulty concentrating

· physical symptoms such as pain or gastrointestinal problems Another sign of depression is when people withdraw from regular social activities or neglect their personal appearance. Sometimes people ignore the signs of depression in later life because they seem like reasonable reactions to things such as a serious medical illness or the death of a loved one. "But even when it seems to make sense for a person to be depressed," said Dr. Katz, "it can still be a disease." The consequence of untreated depression are severe. The disease causes disability, worsening of other concurrent medical illnesses, and can lead to premature death or even suicide. According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, the over-65 age group has the highest rate of suicides-more than 20 percent of the national total-although they make up only 13 percent of the population. When diagnosed and treated properly, depression can be treated successfully in more than 80 percent of patients.

My Delivery. My Physician. My Hospital.

"St. Mary Hospital offered so many choices for me, my baby and my family."

When I first thought about where to have my baby, I was sure of a few things: I didn't want to be moved from room to room, I wanted my family to stay with me, and I wanted the back up of a full-service hospital. St. Mary Hospital's new Miracle of Life Maternity Center offered me the choices I was looking for.

My doctor told me about the new maternity center's private, single-room suites, designed to help me feel at home. I'll stay in the same room for labor. delivery, recovery and postpartum care – they're called LDRPs.My best friend, Nancy, and her little girl can visit when it's convenient for me. I can even have someone stay overnight in my room.

And, the bospital's new Marian Women's Center offers education like Infant Care and Safety classes and a Breast-feeding Program to belp us make the adjustment to bome life.

For my peace of mind there's 24-bour obstetrical coverage, and neonatology service is available if my baby needs it. State-of-the-art technology includes epidural anesthesia for comfort, and advanced fetal monitoring. All the while feeling very much at home. Close to home.

That's why St. Mary Hospital is my hospital.

wood floors

How much does it cost? Oak floors cost about twice as much as good carpeting, but last forever! In kitchens, an oak floor costs about the same as a floor by "Armstrong Solarian".

New Floors

1reat

New floors cost between $6.00 - $8.00 per square foot, depending on the size, color and finish.

Refinishing old floors

The cost of refinishing is between $1.50 - $2.50 per square foot depending on the size, color and finish.

Re-coating Existing Floors

To re-coat an existing floor will cost only about .50 per square foot.

Why a wood floor?

A wood floor a is 100% natural, warm & rich looking surface. If properly maintained, it will last as long as the house. Initial costs are slightly more than linoleum and carpeting, but long term costs are much less. In the long run, the resale value and permanence of a wood floor makes it much more valuable.

How do I maintain a wood floor?

Today's urethane finishes are as easy to maintain as any tile or vinyl "no wax" floors. Vacuuming and damp mopping with clear warm water works fine. For more thorough cleaning, we recommend a diluted solution of white vinegar or "Windex" and water. DO NOT use Murphy's Oil Soap, Endust or wax because a new coat of urethane will not bond to the surface.

Should I put wood in the kitchen?

Kitchens are one of the most popular areas to install a wood floor because of the low maintenance. Dents and cuts caused by dropping heavy pans, cans or knifes will ruin a vinyl floor, but not a wood floor.

Why do wood floors have gaps?

Even though flooring has been kiln dried, it will continue to absorb and release moisture. In the winter months, it can be extremely dry and separations or "cracks" may occur. Make sure your humidifier is working correctly and turn it up to 40%-55% relative humidity.

Do wood floors scratch?

Today's finishes are very hard, however, scratches can occur if you have grit on the bottom of your shoes or unprotected furniture. We recommend felt floor protector pads and proper chair rollers. Rugs in high traffic areas, such as under tables, in front of the sink, and at exterior doors, will extend the life of your finish.

Can my urethane be re-applied?

The biggest mistake people make with a wood floor is not re-coating it. If you haven't used an oil soap or wax, we can screen and re-coat your floor quickly and economically and you can walk on it in two hours. If you wax it or wait until scratches are through the finish and into the wood, it will have to be refinished.

What about refinishing?

You can change the color of your floor or refurbish an old beat up floor. We sand the old finish off, re-stain it, and put a premium urethane "top coat" on it. Homes built before the "sixties" usually have wood floors under the carpeting. Refinishing is cheaper than re-carpeting and will add to the resale value of the home.

How long does it take?

Re-coating takes a few hours. Refinishing takes one to two days. A new floor takes two to three days. These times are approximate and depend on the size of the job.
