Cell tower to be reality in township?

By RANDY COBLE Staff Writer

Another wireless communication tower could be on its way to Seven Mile Road soon.

Citing a need created by the ever-increasing cellular phone market, the Sprint company wants to construct a 150-foot-high communications tower on a parcel of land that lies just east of Gerald Avenue on the north side of Seven Mile. It would stand directly across the road from the Highland Lakes Shopping Center.

Members of the Northville Township Planning Commission gave the preliminary proposal unanimous approval Tuesday night, siding with the township's planning experts who said the design sticks to the spirit of local tower regulations.

The Sprint tower would host a company antenna. allowing it to provide more complete cell phone coverage in the area. It would be a single pole design, not a latticework frame like the 400-foot Michigan State Police radio tower post just down the road.

Senior complex wins initial approval

By next year Northville Township may become the new home of a senior housing complex.

The development plan for Addington Place won unanimous preliminary approval from the township planning commission

Many communities in southeastern Michigan are fielding requests for towers from companies in the cell phone market nowadays. and local officials everywhere seem to be trying to decide what to do about them all.

and the second second

Northville Township officials are looking into creating an updated set of zoning regulations regarding large antenna towers to deal with the increase in demand.

For the moment, however, decisions about the Sprint tower must be made in accordance with current zoning ordinances. which spell out a number of conditions regarding the placement and construction of towers.

The ordinances, however, don't reflect some of the improvements in design and construction safety made in recent years, according township planning consultants.

For example, a provision in the ordinance says that a tower can be built only if it is set back from everything else around it by a distance equal to its height. The idea Continued on 8

Northville, along with most of Oakland County, will officially change its area code from 810 to 248 on May 10. meaning local businesses will be ordering new stationery, cards and promotional materials.

For four months, a permissive dialing period will be in place. During that time, phone users can dial either 810 or 248. After that, get your codes straight. The new

It's that time again that keeps numbers will become mandatory on Sept. 13.

Things could get confusing. In the past, all area codes had a 1 or a 0 as the middle digit. Ameritech advises that some older automated phone systems may not recognize 248 as an area code, because of the 4 in the middle.

Not just Oakland County is adopting this type of area code. Other communities throughout the U.S. are going through similar changes.

Because of the new code, Ameritech advises that fax machines, in-house phone systems, private branch exchanges (PBX) telecommunications systems, modems and speed dialing programs may need to be reprogrammed.

The explosive growth in telecommunications technology triggered the need for new numbers and the split of the 810 code district.

In July 1998, the 313 code district will also split, with Detroit and the Detroit zones receiving a new area code, 734. Local calling areas will be

Tuesday night. As proposed, it would be a single-story 80-resident facility located on about five acres on the north side of Seven Mile Road just across from the Michigan State Police post.

The building would be constructed in two phases, each having 40 beds. Addington Place resembles two halves of a capital "H." Each 20-bed branch of the H is intended to be a "neighborhood" for its residents, featuring such amenities as its own kitchen, dining area and outdoor patio space.

Behind the plan is Detroit-based GLD Associates, the firm that owns the Harbour Village Apartments complex next door to the proposed Addington site. Jim Pappas, the architect of the proposal, said his client wants to come out of the gate quickly.

"We're hoping to begin construction this year if all goes well," Pappas said.

Between now and the time the shovel goes into the ground a lot of sioners tacked a number of conditions onto their April 28 preliminary site plan approval. all of which must be met before the complex will be legally complete.

A final site plan design will also have to be submitted and the township board of trustees has responsibility for official approval of the project.

An interesting twist to the story lies in the fact that Addington Place could end up being located next to a 120-unit senior assisted living center.

Ownership of that facility would be separate from Addington, Pappas said, but plans are in the works to design both in a common style. Called a "campus" look, the design would feature similar architectural styles and building materials for both buildings and include common features like integrated roads and sidewalks.

No formal plans for that facility New Main Street retailer promises lots of 'good stuff'

By RANDY COBLE Staff Writer

Fun and fashion are on their way to the corner of Main and Center Streets.

Today, May 1, marks the opening of Bon-Loot, a women's fashion store at the crossroads of downtown Northville. Owner Alice Schultes says she's enjoyed a very warm welcome,

"I am just thrilled with the excitement," Schultes, who lives in Grosse Pointe, said. "I'm getting to like Northville more every time I come here.

Bon-Loot specializes in women's clothing which looks good but won't leave your purse empty.

"The majority of our clothes are very moderate (in price) but also very with it," Schultes said. "We carry mainly 'Casual Friday' styles but we also have dinner-out items, too." The name of the store, by the

Northville High School has received its annual "clean bill of health" from the North Central Association this week

According to Principal Tom Johnson the school's NCA accreditation has been extended through the 1996-97 school year. The high school received high marks from visiting NCA officials, who released the results of their on-site inspection at the NCA annual meeting in Chicago earlier this month.

To receive accreditation renewal, according to Johnson, the school hosted periodic on-site evaluations by a visiting team of educators who looked at the overall condition of the school.

"The continued accreditation means that the conditions for # effective education exist in Northville High School, Johnson added.

This is the second year in row that the high school has received exemplary marks from the NCA. which is the largest of the country's regional accrediting agencies. The organization is a voluntary coalition of more than 8,000 schools and 1,000 colleges and universities in 19 states.

The Association works with schools to improve the quality of education through a continuous process of accreditation and evaluation, Johnson explained.

Car model carries drunk driving suspects drunken Geo Prizm drivers in not want to prosecute. Northville Township.

Police arrested two women on back-to-back nights for driving while under the influence of alcohol on April 24 and 25. Both were driving the same model car, a Geo Prizm, and both claimed to have only consumed "two beers" before being taken into custody.

The first woman, a 27-year-old Livonia resident, was stopped shortly after 2:30 a.m. on April 24. A township officer said he was driving behind the woman in her 1996 Prizm on Haggerty Road near Six Mile.

The Prizm twice accelerated rapidly away after getting a green light at an intersection, according to police, and reached speeds of 60 miles an hour on the 45-mph road.

The woman failed sobriety tests after being stopped, the reporting officer in the case said, and refused to take a breathalyzer test. Police obtained a judicial search warrant for a blood sample and it was taken at St. Mary Hospital in Livonia.

The woman was held until she sobered up, then released on bond pending an upcoming court hearing. The same was true for a 48-year-old West Bloomfield woman the next night.

She was arrested on Haggerty Road shortly before 2 a.m. on April 25.

According to police the woman. driving a 1994 Prizm, ran a red light causing oncoming traffic to have to stop rapidly to avoid a collision.

The woman's blood alcohol level was allegedly measured at .10 percent, the legal limit for drunk driving.

DOMESTIC VIOLENCE: A Taylor woman said her boyfriend, a Northville resident, physically assaulted her during an argument on the night of April 23.

The woman said that the man, 25, restrained her when she tried to leave, then threw her onto a couch and onto the ground.

He struck her on her back and on the back of her head with his fists, she said, and slapped her across the face.

MAKING YOUR HOUSE ACCESSIBLE

Having your house on the market involves a certain invasion of your privacy. Realtors will be previewing it and showing it to buyers with some regularity. While you want to make your home reasonably accessible to the real estate professionals and their prospects, you don't want to run the risk of stepping out of your shower just as a Broker is bringing in buyers. In many areas Realtors use a handy little tool of the trade called a "lock box".

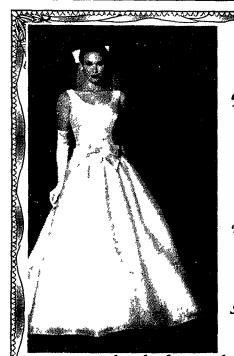

When a property is occupied, the Realtors first call to let the owner know when they will be coming by if no one is at home, the Realtor can get into the house with a key stored in the lock box.

The other extreme of accessibility is to require a day's notice before a showing, and to insist that your Realtor be present at each one. This will eliminate a lot of the inconvenience to you, but it may also eliminate a lot of showings of your house. Whatever arrangements you work out, keep in mind that the easier you make it for us to see and show your home, the easier it is for us to sell it quickly. For professional advice on all aspects of buying or selling real estate, talk to me at Coldwell Banker Schweitzer. Please come by my office at 41860 Six Mile Road, Northville, MI 48167, or phone me at 810-347-3050.

JohnLong tries out one of his "node-less" bamboo flyrods in a Northville Township park. A bamboo rod casts much slower than a rod made out of graphite - that is, it bends more during the motions it's put through in order to get the flyline out.

Come fly with me

By RANDY COBLE Staff Writer

John Long loves fishing. Really loves it. When it comes to fly fishing, this guy feels the way some peo-ple do who have a romance with art or classic cars or baseball.

Most enthusiasts wouldn't brave icy Russian rivers for their passion, though, or spend endless hours in their basements, painstakingly crafting the tools of their trade.

Long does, though. A self-confessed fly fishing addict of 25 years standing, the Northville Township resident has spent a dozen years handcrafting bamboo fly fishing rods as a hobby. Most of his creations. get donated to good causes.

"I always thought I'd build just one, just to see if I could do it," Long explained with a laugh. "But you can't do that. It's a part of me now. The only cure is when you die.

Fishing is a lot like medicine - there are many specialities to choose from. One of the most popular is fly fishing, a sport Robert Redford made famous is his film A River Runs Through It. Like any speciality, there are skills and techniques, rituals and nuances you learn only through experience. Fly fishing is the art of convincing the fish that your "fly," or lure, real$1,000 or more.

"If I build a rod to sell, it's just work. The fun of it goes," Long said.

The Macedonians were one of the earliest civilizations to engage in a crude type of fly fishing. On a more organized basis, the sport has been around for hundreds of years. For example, The Compleat Angler, an English book on fly fishing, dates from the 1400s. Fly fishing began to heat up in America in the 1800s. Long explained, and with it came an ongoing battle to develop stronger, more flexible rods.

American ingenuity has led to rods made of everything from steel to fiberglass to graphite but the choice of most traditionalists over the centuries has been bamboo.

"I think that every fly fisherman I've ever met wants to own at least one,"

Long said. "It's for the heritage of it."

It was to get in touch with that heritage that Long first decided to try his hand at rod-making. A friend at a fly fishing club who knew the game laughed when Long spoke of building just one.

"'It won't be like that," Long remembers

Northville Township resident handcrafts fly rods and goes to great lengths to use them

Long uses a lathe in his workshop to make the reel seats for his flyrods. Sometimes Long utilizes Cherry or Walnut woods.

ly is what it pretends to be, a tasty aquatic insect just waiting to become a meal.

The secret lies in your equipment - rod, line and lure - and your execution. Developing the knack takes time, a lot of it, but then that's half the fun.

Truth be told, the time Long invests in each of his rods is half the fun. At 40 to 50 work hours per piece, you can understand why he's only produced several dozen since he crafted his first in 1985.

He's not in it for the money. Long has sold a few of his rods but donates most of them to habitat conservancy organizations like Trout Unlimited. Those groups can then auction off the pieces for as much as his friend telling him. His friend was right. Long still does rods but has graduated into cedar strip canoes. pasted together piece by piece, and even has made himself a plywood kayak.

"My father was a cabinet maker. I guess some of his abilities must have rubbed off," he said.

Nowadays "I go wherever the fishing's good," Long says. That includes spots as diverse as Yellowstone National Park and, last year, Russia, where he fished for Atlantic salmon.

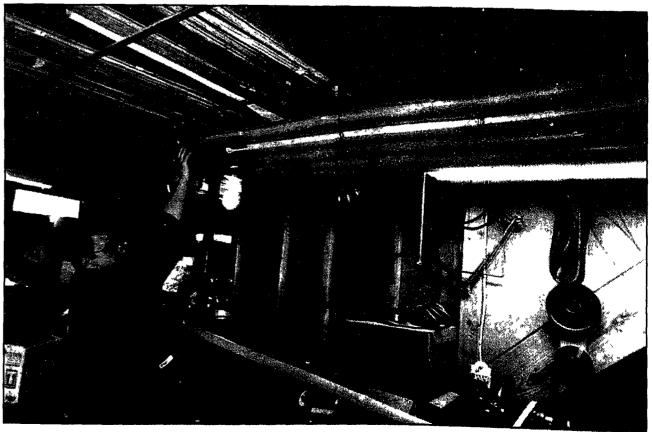

When he's not fishing, Long works as a senior relay technician for Detroit Edison. He knows what he'd like to be doing, though.

"There's a saying - I can't take credit for it - that a bad day fishing is better than a good day working," Long said with a laugh.

Above, bamboo flyrod maker Long holds up a section of almostcompleted flyrod, as the first model he ever made - in 1985 - sits on his workbench. Also seen are rings of cork (upper right hand corner) that go into making the rod's grip, a fly reel, and the rod's tips, guides and ferrules, that are wrapped along the bamboo rod to help join its sections together.

At right, Long stores culls of Tonkin Cane bamboo in the ceiling of his Northville Township workshop. Long ages these bamboo sections - which are grown only in southeastern China - for months at a time, then pulls them down and cuts very thin sections from them as he needs them.

Wynwood House to hold health day

By RANDY COBLE Staff Writer

"An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," the old saying goes

When it comes to health that's true for all of us, especially older folks. The best way to stay ahead of serious health problems is to get checked out by the experts. Senior citizens around here can do just that on May 13 during a free "health fair" to be held at Wynwood of Northville, a senior living facility located on Six Mile Road between Winchester and Haggerty in Northville Township.

"This (fair) is a proactive approach." Wynwood's Lynne Zalewski said. "We want to keep our seniors healthy so they can stay as independent as possible."

Health care professionals will be on hand from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. that day, offering everything from EKGs to cholesterol and blood pressure testing to respiratory, vision and hearing checks.

You can get valuable tips on better nutrition, have your hearing aids cleaned and learn about physical therapy. "This is based on the 'wellness' concept. a rounded. holistic approach to health." Zalewski explained.

That's not all. Bring your prescription medications in for a "brown bag" medical review by a licensed pharmacist.

Many seniors have different medications and it's important to avoid problems like drug interactions. Clean out your medicine chest and bring it with you." Zalewski advised.

You can also enter hourly drawings for valuable prizes like tickets to Tigers games and enjoy some

Rezmierski makes grade on evaluation

By ROBERT JACKSON Staff Writer

Although his evaluation marks have declined slightly, Northville School Superintendent Leonard Rezmierski has received another high rating from Northville Board of Education members.

The school board released Rezmierski's yearly evaluation at its meeting Monday. Rezmierski's overall performance rating was scored at 4.2 this year, down from last year's rating of 4.5.

Board Vice President Joan Wadsworth said the marks were done earlier this month in a closed session and are an average of the scores provided by each of the seven board trustees.

"The board requested that (Rezmierski's) evaluation be done in closed session because it allows us to discuss each portion with candor and openness," Wadsworth said. "We appreciate (Rezmierski) allowing us to go through this process in that manner."

Rezmierski will have the opportunity to respond to the evaluation in a closed session next week.

The slightly altered format of the evaluation included a section pertaining to goals. The other two sections - grading his performance as chief executive officer of the board and district performance remained the same. The evaluation was rated on a point scale from 1

A quick look at the evaluation shows Rezmierski's strengths and fairly high marks in revising a three year plan for school facilities and reevaluating the present district (school boundary) plan. Board members remarked that both were accomplished on time with the appropriate participation of building staff.

Rezmierski did receive lukewarm reviews on his support of the high school Coalition for Student Success and on directing district planning (strategic plan), earning marks of 3.8 and 3.6, respectively, on those issues.

In a team-taught class section, a wide range of abilities and interest will be recognized by sensitive, caring teachers who know how group dynamics can enhance the, communication process," White said in a report to board members.

Dropping the honors classification caused problems with some board members who felt the process for curriculum change had been compromised.

"I don't believe that the spirit of the process has been followed," board Vice President Joan Wadsworth said. "I don't believe we received enough input from parents who have some real concerns about dropping an honors course. In his report White said that research in support of honors classes reserved "exclusively" for gifted students is no more plentiful than research denouncing the value of "ability grouped" classes. Tracking has become a negative term in educational vocabulary and, in most instances, deserving of criticism for excluding rather than including able students," he said.

Board members Mike Poterala and Tom Gudritz both said they would have liked more time to study the proposed change. Gudritz added that he was surprised to see the item on the agenda for consideration.

"It took me completely by surprise and I believe it is my responsibility as a board member to vote on what I think is best for kids.

"I had no time to study this issue, and for that reason I cannot, in good conscience, vote to approve this proposal," he added. Hansen and McMahon sat in disbelief, along with 14 high school English teachers, as the debate ran more than two hours. McMahon said the proposal had been reviewed by the K-12 curriculum council and the board instructional services subcommittee before coming to the full board for consideration.

"This is the process we have always used in making changes to the curriculum," he said. "I think that we are sending a dangerous message to teachers and I don't think it is good that we begin second guessing the process.

"Again, you're sending a message that you really don't trust the professionals that you have hired. and you have insulted the 14 teachers and parents that served on the (K-12 curriculum committee)," LeBeouf said.

Parent Sharon Ferrara agreed.

You have managed to destroy the enthusiasm of these teachers, of an entire department, simply because you couldn't communicate with each other," she told board members. "Perhaps you need to look at where the mistakes were made, and what you are going to do about correcting them.

The board's decision means that the English class will retain its honors status. School officials said that teachers will still move toward team teaching within the department.

If you're a fan of fine Middle Eastern food, you don't need a magic lamp to find it. As a matter of fact, you don't even need to leave town.

Just plan to pay a visit to Aladdin's Cuisine, downtown Northville's newest restaurant. Located at 146 Mary Alexander Court (running parallel to Main between Center and Hutton), the eatery specializes in serving fresh. finely-made Middle Eastern fare. according to Zenab Ahmad.

She and her husband Mike own Aladdin's. The couple, who live in Westland, have operated restau-

Northville for their first U.S. restaurant because of the city's atmosphere. "We liked the town and figured this was a great place to start." Zenab explained.

Open since April 18, Aladdin's features many traditional Middle Eastern favorites such as hommous, sujuk, makanek and even a fattoush salad dish. An emphasis on a Lebanese style of cooking reflects the traditions and tastes of the Ahmads' native land.

The restaurant's decor features dark woods and golden accents with colorful hand-drawn murals. A special menu offering is a selection of fresh raw juices such rants in other countries but chose as carrot, orange and apple as well as unusual combinations like strawberry and honey.

Aladdin's has both a lunch and dinner menu. A lunch meal will cost at most about $10 per person, according to Zenab, while dinner will run around $16, tops.

"We've had a very good response so far," she said. "We've seen a lot of repeat customers. It's very encouraging.

Aladdin's business hours are not yet firmed up. Tentative hours are 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. on Friday and Saturday. For more information, call 380-3807 or 380-3835.

Sometimes when the rat race is driving you up a tree it can do a world of good to just stop and smell the roses - or the incense, oils, candles and soap.

Little pleasures can take away a stressful day or make a nice one all the sweeter. That's the basic idea behind The Gypsy's Light, one of Northville's newest and most unique businesses.

"We're offering something to make people's lives better in an inexpensive way," was how coowner Beverly Pierson explained it.

Open since April Fool's Day, The Gypsy's Light sits next to the Comerica Bank at 125 E. Main Street in downtown Northville.

It specializes in products that soothe the senses, from imported bath gels to fragrance oils to incense candles of all colors, sizes and descriptions.

"Life can be so hectic that we all need ways to calm down and relax," Pierson, who lives in Bloomfield Hills, said.

Methods like aromatherapy and even meditation can be explored at The Gypsy's Light, as many people find solace at the store. According to Pierson, half of the clientele are men and many customers are young adults.

"This is something I've always loved." Pierson explained as she stroked Shadow, her cat. The black and white tabby can often be see in the store's front window. giving firsthand demonstrations of just how to relax.

Some of the more exotic items for sale are "smudge sticks." These are based on a Native American tradition and are small bundles of scented sticks which you can burn in a special holder, also available at The Gypsy's Light.

Another is a collection of decorator drip candles designed specifically to melt down the edges of your favorite bottle for that oldfashioned look.

Gypsy's Light co-owner Beverly Pierson stands in front of some cat candles holding her constant companion, Shadow.

Another unusual item is handmade soap which is sold by the inch. Your order is cut from the block in front of your eyes. This week's featured soap is lavender oatmeal.

Other interesting tidbits include mini-fountains, small self-contained units which provide the relaxing sounds of gurgling water, and "cigar candles," which look like their name.

Pierson, whose business partner is her daughter, Rachel, operated The Gypsy's Light in Birmingham before deciding to close up shop there and come to Northville.

They made that choice after a visit to town to shop at Elizabeth's Bridal Manor.

"People are so nice here," Pierson said.

Since they've moved in the Piersons have done a lot of "deconstruction" at the store, removing a lot more than they've added. That includes things like taking up the carpeting and subfloor to let the original wooden floor beneath be seen again.

The business hours for The Gypsy's Light are not yet final.

If you have any questions you can call the shop at 449-3336.

Friends' auction rakes in donations for rec programs

By RANDY COBLE Staff Writer

A smashing success.

That's the verdict on Saturday night's dinner/auction fund-raiser held by the Friends of Northville Parks and Recreation.

The annual affair, held at the Waterman Center at Schoolcraft College, was the best ever for the Friends, a volunteer non-profit community organization dedicated to improving public recreation in Northville.

"It went very well and it was a lot of fun, too," was how Friends member•Marv Gans summed up the April 26 gala.

Hundreds of ticketholders enjoyed a gourmet meal prepared by several Northville merchants and the staff of Schoolcraft's culi-nary arts school. Then they enjoyed the chance to bid on a wide variety of items in the special Friends auction.

That included everything from the services of a magician for children's parties to trips to Toronto and Branson, Miss. Fetching the highest price was a baseball signed by legends like Lefty Gomez and Connie Mack.

The baseball was a donation of former Amerman Elementary principal Bill Kraft and the entire $1,500 purchase price will be donated to help fund the Northville playscape.

The playscape will also receive a special donation from the Friends: 25 percent of the net profits from the event. That amount could be as high as $8,000 to $9,000.

Final figures for the event are not in but Gans estimated that the Friends may clear somewhere in the ballpark of $38,000 from the dinner/auction. That figure would be the group's highest total ever.

Aside from the donation to the playscape, the funds are earmarked for a possible public facilities building for Community Park on Beck Road. That would include bathrooms, a concession area and space for future night lighting equipment.

The drawing for a special Friends raffle was also held at the dinner/auction. Winning the grand prize of a trip to Disneyworld in Florida was Novi resident Bob Shaw.

Winning cash prizes in the raffle were Mike Bartell, Janet Davis and Audrey Jenney.

Saturday night was the result of a lot of hard work. Gans praised the generosity of local merchants and the volunteer efforts of the Ohio auctioneer who lent his services to the event. Of Friends members Mark King, Bill Jenney and Steve Fecht, Gans said "this would not have happened without them."

Volunteers working on the playscape also lent a valuable hand, he noted, by helping to pick High School Honors Society stuup auction items and deliver them dents waited tables for the event. to Schoolcraft: Once again this year. Northville supervised by Denise Baldwin. "It was just a total community effort," Gans said.

Playscape NORTHVILLE'S steering committee cochairperson Tanya Bartelo reminds resilents that construction of the playset. scheduled for June 4-8, is an entire community effort.

"We will be building this - every thing is in place, but we have several thousand dollars left to raise and it has to be done now," she said.

Bartelo said Milford is building its playscape with several contributors of $5,000 to $10,000. Only the Friends of Northville Parks and Recreation organization and BFI Industries have contributed those amount's in Northville. The Northville playscape has depended on many much smaller contributions. like picket sales for $50 each.

Children's committee coordinator Cathy Shapero reminds community residents that the time to buy pickets is now. Any picket order received after May 15 will not part of the playscape during construction. They may be installed at a later date, but your child's or family's name will not be included on construction weekend unless the order is received by May 15. All donations are tax deductible.

In addition to buying a picket, residents are needed to contribute in the following ways:

• Buy a raffle ticket for $5 from a playscape committee member for a chance to win an autographed Al Kaline baseball card - a collector's item valued at several hundred dollars. Contact Liz Burns at 349-3354.

· Sponsor a piece of equipment. Organize your neighborhood, your company, your family and donate $200 or more to put your name on a piece of playground equipment for the playscape. Call Sue Egan at 347-4756 for details.

· Buy a beautiful commemorative Northville clock or wishing well charm in sterling silver or 14 kt. gold from Orin Jewelers and the store will donate $5 to the playscape fund.

• Flower Sale - Playscape volunteers are selling flowers to raise money for the project. Customers can select from four different types of basket arrangements, New Guinea impatiens, fuchsia baskets, ivy geraniums, and upright geraniums. The flowers are $15 per basket and come in violet, pink and red. Volunteers will be selling the flowers at Sams Warehouse on May 10 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. You can also order baskets by calling Kevin Egan at 347-4756, or Deb Reisman at 349-2469. Flats of flowers will be available at $10 per flat. • Donate your tools to the tool

Hartshorne at 348-6315, Sue drive. This is a huge need. On May 31, a collection will take place for the hundreds of drills, saws and hammers needed to build the structure. All tools will be marked, numbered, guarded around the clock and returned in as good or better condition.

Call Steve Smith at 344-7169 after you've gone through your garage, basement and workshop to see what you can loan.

• Drop change into the April Showers Guernsey containers around town. Then come to the Rec Center at 10 a.m. Saturday, May 3, and watch all the change being counted.

Weather permitting, the contents of all the containers will be emptied onto a tarp on the front lawn of the Recreation Center. then loaded into wheel barrels and taken to Community Federal Credit Union to be exchanged for bills.

In the event of bad weather, the event will take place inside the building.

· Join the construction committee which meets at the Water Wheel Health Club. 235 E. Main. on Saturday mornings at 11. For information, call Chris Klebba at the Water Wheel, (810) 449-7634.

• Attend the playscape bowl-athon at Novi Bowl on Sunday, May

The event will take place from 1 to 4 p.m. and you can register beforehand or just show up at the bowling alley.

There is a $10 registration fee, and bowlers are asked to obtain pledges of $25.

Call Cathy Shapero at 349-4579 to register.

Township Briefs

A CLOSE CALL:

Northville Township officials are uncertain if the ongoing middecade census will end up showing a hoped-for 15 percent population increase. 🤞 🌛

At stake is hundreds of thousands of dollars. A 15 percent hike in the township's population since the 1990 U.S. Census could mean as much as $300,000 in additional revenue from Lansing. More people means a larger share of state sales tax proceeds.

That 15 percent increase, the minimum anticipated to make the census worthwhile, may not be reached. As of Friday, April 25, census counters for the township had counted 17,517 of the 19,910 people needed.

That's about 89 percent of the total but census officials have just 1,331 residences left to check. Many of them are apartments that have a higher vacancy rate than condos or single-family homes.

To make the 15 percent total, the census will have to turn up an additional 2,393 people. If you live in Northville Township and you have not been contacted by a census taker please call 348-1602 or 348-5800.

POLICE JOBS:

Northville Township is now taking applications for reserve police officers. You must be at least 21 years old and have a high school diploma or equivalency certificate.

Applications are available at police headquarters, located inside Township Hall, between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Township Hall is located just off Six Mile between Winchester and Haggerty roads.

Successful candidates will have to complete the Schoolcraft College reserve officer training program. The deadline for applying is July 18.

Call the police department at 349-9400 for more information.

Bill to curb road-related lawsuits makes way through state Senate

By TIM RICHARD Staff Writer

Drivers who crash on state roads would find it tougher to sue the state, counties and cities for road flaws under a bill passed by state Senate Republicans. Too tough, say Democrats.

"Gross negligence is virtually an intentional act," objected Sen. Chris Dingell, D-Trenton.

"This could save the state $10 million a year on claims we've been paying." said the sponsor. Republican Leon Stille of Spring Lake.

The Senate passed the bill April 23 on a party-line vote - Republicans for. Democrats against - and sent it to the House, where its prospects appear dim.

'PICK' CASE

The bill was prompted by a 1996 state Supreme Court decision in the case of Pick vs. Gratiot County Road Commission. The 4-3 majority ruled that road officials can be sued if they fail to post warning signs or signals at hazardous spots such as intersections.

"We were very pleased when Pick (victory) came down," said Wayne J. Miller, Bingham Farms attorney who filed a brief on behalf of the Brain Injury Association of Michigan. "We have had one case on hold for two years pending the result of Pick.

"Motor vehicle accidents are a very significant cause of brain injuries," said Miller. "When there are less means of compensation. there is less of an incentive (for road agencies) to do a good job." Miller said previous appellate court decisions have swung "so far to the right" in favor of road agencies that it was "gratifying the Supreme Court drew the line on this insanity.

He blamed "the Engler administration and the Republican hierar-chy" in the Legislature for reducing injured people's chances to collect and taking the pressure off safety efforts

The high court decision last June 5 sent the case back to a circuit judge for trial The majority opinion was written by Justice Michael Cavanagh (D) and signed by James Brickley (R). Conrad Mallett Jr. (D) and Charles Levin (Ind.) with Patricia Boyle writing a concurring opinion.

- Give immunity unless there was "gross negligence" by the road authority, defined as "conduct so reckless as to demonstrate substantial lack of concern for whether an injury results."

- Limit damages by a person who had no auto insurance.

- Provide governments an "absolute defense" if the driver was drunk or on drugs and was more than 50 percent at fault. If the driver were less than 50 percent at fault, damages could be reduced.

"The premise of the bill," said Dingell, "is that there's a huge amount being paid to undeserving persons for imaginary negligence by MDOT (Michigan Department of Transportation).

Dingell said engineering standards are "a guide, not the final answer," in road design. Stille called his bill "a reasonable compromise" because it provides for some liability over guard rails. "We pay out more, as a state, than all Midwestern states combined. Michigan is No. 3 in the entire Union payments."

FISCAL IMPACT Democrats said the GOP exaggerated the savings in the bill.

Stille said the average payout over the last 10 years has been $16.8 million a year, and the highest payout was $28.5 million in 1985.

A Senate Fiscal Agency analysis showed that in fiscal 1995-96 the state paid out $9.1 million in road claims. In three of the last 10 years, the annual payout has been more than $20 million.

NYA says thanks to volunteers

By RANDY COBLE Staff Writer

It was a celebration and commemoration a decade in the making. Judging from those who were there, Northville Youth Assistance's 10th anniversary celebration last week was well worth the wait.

Hard to believe it's been around for 10 years now: a volunteer community service organization that started on a hope and blossomed into an essential part of Northville.

Northville Youth Assistance (NYA) matches local volunteers with "at-risk" children and young people who could benefit from spending a couple of hours a week with a positive role model. Started in 1987, volunteers, staffers and supporters came together at Chesapeake Bagel Factory in Northville on April 24 to remember and salute a decade-long campaign to help out kids.

At the center of the event were the dozens of volunteers past and present who've given their time. energy and a part of themselves. Aside from the satisfaction, the rounds of applause each received from the crowd that night were the only pay they'll get.

No matter where children live. they need fielp." NYA Director Mary Ellen King said. "We are here to say thank you to the backbone of our organization, the volunteers. "There's no way to say thank you but consider this as a small token of our appreciation," Maureen Oisecki added.

Also given a big pat on the back was Bonnie Brook Development, a local firm which has made generous donations to NYA. including a fax machine and new carpeting for the organization's office.

King has served as director and Oisecki has chaired NYA's advisory commission since the organization's founding. The two are longtime friends who have contributed untold hours to the effort.

"Did we believe it would last 10 years? I don't know. We hoped," Oisecki recalled with a smile.

The same could probably be said of the many other stalwart supporters of NYA in attendance, from members of the advisory commission to community leaders who attended the commemoration.

"Sometimes kids fall through the cracks but in this community there's a real effort to make sure that doesn't happen," Northville City Mayor Chris Johnson said.

"We are so fortunate to have this program." echoed Northville Township Supervisor Karen Woodside. "I'm terribly proud of the success we've achieved," Northville School District Superintendent Leonard Rezmierski said.

Singled out for a surprise dedication were King and Oisecki, who received gifts in honor of their service. For Oisecki it was a vase, for King, a framed artwork with a simple two-word caption which perfectly summarized the message of the night: "mentoring matters.

"This is what it's all about," King said.

NYA is all about kids, the ones who sometimes need help. Each one has a name and a face and a story. Some are lucky enough to become part of a second family through their volunteers.

"He was on my couch the other night, doing homework and watching TV." said one volunteer of his matched child.

Summing it all up was a job left to Suzy Heintz. The former Northville Township supervisor was a key player in getting NYA on its feet a decade ago.

Tax on tip earners might change

By TIM RICHARD Staff Writer

Restaurant servers wouldn't pay Michigan income tax on their first $10,000 of tips under a bill that recently won 34-4 approval in the state Senate.

Senators spent hours on April 16 deadlocking over Democratic amendments to raise exemptions for low-income workers even further. The bill is now in the House Tax Policy Committee.

"The best way to help the working poor and unemployed workers is through tax breaks that put more money in their wallets," said Sen. Gary Peters, D-Bloomfield Township. He offered many amendments that fell in 19-19 tie votes.

"We should not pit one class of workers against another by choosing winners and losers with tax breaks," said minority leader John Cherry, D-Clio, whose district includes northern Oakland County. "I don't think that's fairness in taxation." said a joint statement from Sens. Jim Berryman, D-Adrian, and Alma Wheeler Smith, D-Salem. Farmers' Market begins season today annual Northville Farmer's Market, a sure sign of spring, is now open for business.

The Market, located in the Northville Downs parking lot at Seven Mile and Center, began its 1997 season today, May 1. It'll be open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. every Thursday through October.

"Once again Northville Downs was good enough to let us use their prime location," Northville -Community Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Laurie Marrs said. "It provides excellent exposure for the farmers."

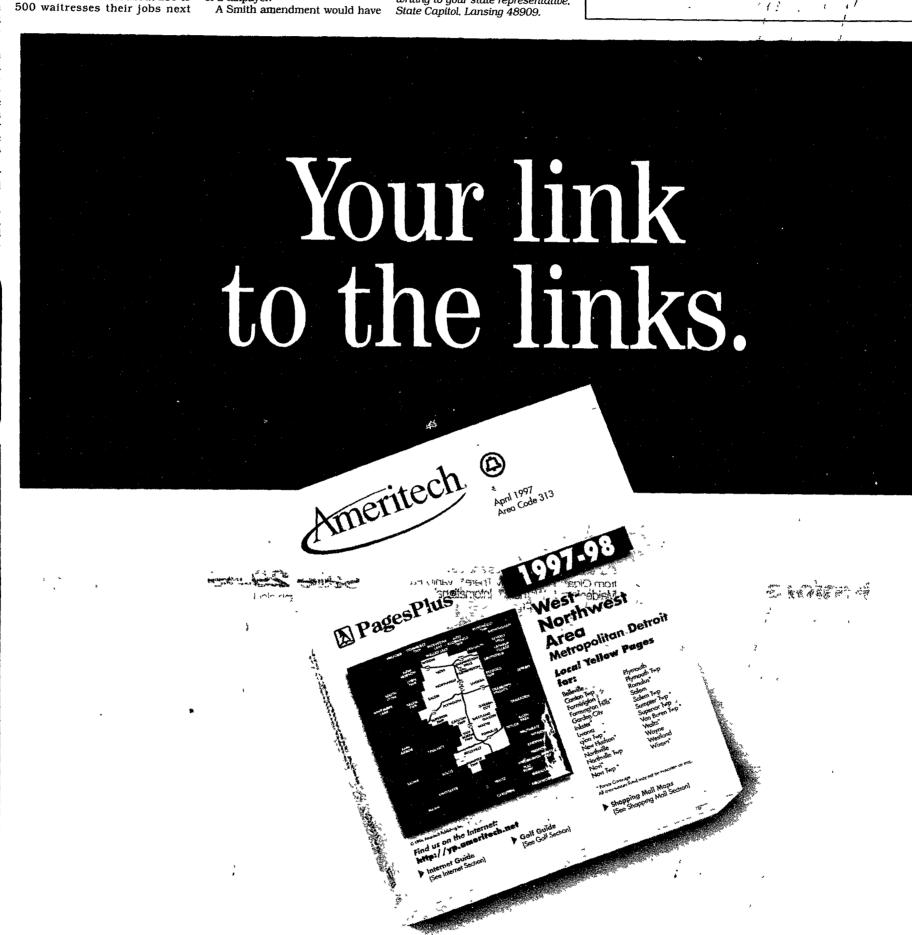

According to Marrs, farmers from all throughout southern Michigan lease roughly 44 spaces in the Downs' parking area. Many use more than one space, so the number of differ ent farmers with booths comes to about 20

Customers can expect to find, cold weather vegetables, like spinach, in addition to a color burst of flowers and plants. Perennials, annuals, herbs, bedding plants and hanging baskets will all be on sale.

"ilt's a great place to pick up a wonderful Mother's Day gift." /Marrs added.

Voter registration deadline approaches for June 9 election

Northville School District residents are reminded that the last day to register to vote in the June 9 school election is May 12.

Residents can register to vote either at Northville Čity Hall, 215 W. Main, Northville Township Hall, 41600 Six Mile, or at any Michigan Secretary of State office.

Mail-in registration forms are also available in the front offices of all eight school district buildings.

On the ballot June 9 will be a preposal to sell $61.5 million in construction bonds. Voter approval would enable the school district to construct a new high school, convert the existing high school into a middle school and

Cassis attempts to hold line on tuition

State Rep. Nancy Cassis, R-Novi, believes she helped protect Michigan families recently from skyrocketing college tuition.

The freshman lawmaker amend-ed the higher education budget, requiring state universities to hold tuition increases at the estimated Detroit Consumer Price Index, or 3 percent, whichever is greater.

The issues here are affordability and accountability," Cassis said. We have a 5 percent state funding increase in this year's budget, twice that suggested by the gover-nor. If universities are unable to hold their spending to fit within that increase and a 3 percent tuition boost, then they need to learn some fiscal responsibility.

This amendment means not putting higher education beyond the reach of middle class families." An inflationary tuition cap was removed earlier this year in a bill pushed through by the Democrat majority in the House.

That action was hidden in a bill that offers a tax credit to college students and their parents," Cassis said. If werdon't get tuition increases under control, very few students and parents will be applying for that credit. I'm pleased to see most of my coleagues realize that now.

Cassis' amendment was supported by the Democratic chairman of the House Appropriations committee and passed with a 90-🛛 vote.

"Education after high school is tremely important for the future of our children. We cannot keep couraging our kids to go to colege and then leave them standing the campus gates without the means to pay for tuition," Cassis commented.

V.F.W. honors local public safety standouts for 1996

Police, fire personnel singled out By LEE SNIDER Editor

They're on the front line of defense for the community everyday and each year V.F.W. Post 4012 thinks they deserve a pat on the back.

The Northville Veterans of Foreign Wars organization held its annual public safety appreciation dinner last Sunday, giving special recognition to members of local police and fire departments.

Under the program, one representative from each of the five local public safety departments -Northville Police, Northville Fire, Northville Township Police, Northville Township Fire and the Northville State Police Post - is singled out and honored as a public safety official of the year.

The honorees are chosen by their supervisors.

This year, the following earned recognition:

• Northville Police - Patrolman Michael Carlson.

Carlson served in the U.S. Army Military Police before pursuing a career in law enforcement. Prior to being hired by the city, he worked part-time for the Wayne County Sheriff's Department.

A graduate of the Western Wayne Regional Police Academy at Schoolcraft College, Carlson became a full-time patrolman in Northville in 1993.

Carlson now serves as the city's school liaison officer, helping educate young people about issues of safety. He is probably one of the best known members of the department because he is the city's bicycle patrol officer. The bike patrol is in its second year, and is a popular program with city residents, according to Police Chief Rodney Cannon.

'It's been very well received, due in large part to Mike's very positive outlook," Cannon said, • Northville Fire - Firefighter Tom Lenaghan.

Lenaghan retired in 1994 from his position as a full-time firefighter and captain for the city of Plymouth, but couldn't give up his calling. After battling blazes for Plymouth since 1973. Lenaghan joined Northville's naid-on-call department where he now serves as a lieutenant and a training offi-

- on the through a

According to Northville Fire Chief Jim Allen, Lenaghan has extensive training. He is an emergency medical technician and an arson investigator. He is a state certified instructor and teaches at Schoolcraft College.

Lenaghan grew up in Plymouth but now lives in Northville. His father was in firefighting and his brother, Art, is the fire chief in Novi.

• Northville Township Police -Officer Bill Helke.

Officer Helke is a nine-year veteran of the township department and has received the V.F.W. recognition award once before.

According to Helke's supervisor Sgt. Mike Panagiotides, Helke performed exceptionally during 1996, apprehending suspects in a highprofile gas station robbery and busting up a breaking-and-entering ring that was operating in the Seven Mile area.

"Bill has represented the department in the highest tradition of law enforcement," Public Safety Director Chip Snider said.

• Northville Township Fire - Tim Cowher.

Fire Chief Bill Zhmendak says Cowher is on a fast career track, working extremely hard to learn the modern science of firefighting and medical response.

"In my opinion, he's accomplished in two years what very few have been able to do in five." Zhmendak said.

Cowher worked as an insurance agent until two years ago when he joined the township fire department. Among his many accomplishments is certification as an emergency medical technician. CPR instructor, and Fire Officer I.

Cowher is currently enrolled in a paramedics program and in Fire Officer II class. In addition, he sits on the township's EMS and Safety Committees. He was promoted to sergeant's rank with the highest test score in the department and was the township's top responder for both 1995 and 1996.

School administrator pens education tome

By ROBERT JACKSON Staff Writer

The idea came to Bob Sornson a little more than three years ago.

Sornson, the director of special education for Northville Public Schools, has spent the better part of 20 years developing the habits of lifetime learning and living with joy. In his travels he has met plenty of people with the same philosophy on learning, and in the summer of 1994 an idea struck him.

Why not write a book that stresses the importance of joy in in the education process?

From that point on Sornson, along with fellow educator Jim Scott, compiled stories from educators and world renowned authors into a book.

The book is entitled Teaching and Joy, and features a collection of 25 inspiring stories by people who share a vision of schools, families, and communities where people experience joyful learning, Author and psychologist Bernie Siegal and "joyologist" Steve Wilson are just two of the many contributors to the work.

Sornson said that communities and schools across the country are filled with tangible joy, along with the common commitment to the love and growth of children.

"You can see it, feel it, and hear it when you walk into a great school or a loving home," Sornson said. "Not the momentary joy of amusement, but the life-sustaining, heartfelt joy of those who feel privileged to contribute to the development of youngsters.

He added that despite the current political debate about education, parents and teachers should remain optimistic about schools and the changing educational process

"We have many wonderful schools and teachers. We are educating an incredibly diverse student population and consistently achieving higher standardized test scores and graduation rates." "We have classrooms where joy

JOY IN THE HOME

Here are some tips from author Bob Sornson for increasing the joy in your home:

 Write a family mission statement -- Take a couple of months to do this carefully. Ask your children to contribute. Reach consensus on the purpose of your family.

• Develop family traditions - At the very least, have dinner (or breakfast) with your family every possible day, and talk about important things. Give coupons for listening time at home - The coupons entitle the bearer to 10 minutes of uninterrupted listening time no matter what. Don't solve problems for your kids, unless their lives are at stake. Practice asking, "What are you going to do?" · Develop an attitude of gratitude - Moděl it daily through ... prayer, by enjoying each other, and by thanking each member of your family for coming into your life. Notice the good.~ Learn to give energy to those, aspects of life you hope will grow.

is always present. Occasionally, we find whole schools where joy is part of the curriculum," he added. Despite the title, Sornson said the stories and vignettes in the book can be appreciated by anyone who strives to be a lifelong learner.

"We hope the stories will reinforce the perspective that great learning and great teaching can occur only in an atmosphere of

He added that he may begin working on another book sometime in the future.

Spring, they say, is a time for change.

It's certainly true this time around at the 35th District Court.

For the first time in more than a decade, a new court administrator has taken the reins. Marion Belding, who held the post since 1987, retired last month. Taking her place as head of non-judicial court operations is justice system veteran Kerry Erdman.

"Sometimes you've got to grab hold of your life and make a right turn," Belding said of her decision. I've enjoyed working with the judges and staff. We're very busy but we have a reputation for being well run."

Her career in the courts spanned almost a quarter of a century, beginning with a college internship in a district court in Grand Rapids. Now Belding, a Farmington resident, says she plans to spend more time with her husband and 10-year-old son. "I could get used to this," she said when asked how it feels not to have to report for work in the morning.

But that may change soon. The family has tentative plans to move to Manistee, which is south of Traverse City, to do environmental work on the Little Manistee River.

Erdman, who took over as administrator on April 7, was the former records manager of Detroit's 36th District Court and the former administrator of the 17th District Court in Redford.

was due to 35th's impressive credentials, he said.

"Thirty-fifth District Court is considered to be kind of like a showcase court. It's a very advantageous place to be," Erdman said. Located in Plymouth, the 35th District Court jurisdiction includes the cities and townships of Northville, Plymouth and Canton. Its two judges are elected by residents of those communities but

"I've been very impressed by him in just the short time we've worked together," the judge added. Erdman's skills will be challenged by the court's near-constant increase in caseload. For Erdman, it means working hard to manage limited funds carefully.

In his off hours, Erdman has an interesting and unusual hobby: collecting books and magazines concerning the assassination of President John Kennedy.

Both he and Belding say they're excited that the court is host to a new state pilot program which deals with juvenile offenders.

Under the new system juvenile cases are dealt with directly through 35th District Court instead of being sent off to Detroit

It's trophy time for many students, as competitions wrap up for year

Several take home honors from contests

By ROBERT JACKSON Staff Writer

With the school year drawing to a close, the wards continue to pile up in the eight schools that make up the Northville Public School District.

As in years past Northville students are walking away with state and national honors, as well as awards from local area organizations.

The following are awardees from Northville schools

V.F.W. WRITING CONTEST WINNERS

Each year the National Veterans of Foreign Wars conducts several writing contests through its local V.F.W. units.

At the high school level the contest is for broadcast script writing and at the middle school level students are asked to compose essays.

Winners of the local post, district, and state levels of competition receive further awards and recognition as they progress toward the final national competition.

Northville V.F.W. Post 4012 recently honored the following students for their efforts in the 1997-97 contest:

 Northville High School – first place, Donna Kallio; second place, Anne Wang; third place, Ron Senecal: runners up Heather Wadowski, and Sonal Prasad.

 Cooke Middle School – first place, Carrie Hosman; second place, Rachel Huang; third place. Dana Crawford. Runners up were Lindsay Dehne, Steven Rogers, Neelam Vashi, Carol Krueger, Mike Peters, Lauren Schmidt, Nick Nerio, Eric Curtis, Scott Eller, Josh Vetter, Katherine Allan, Megan Karney, Christina Kothari, Caitlin O'Neill, Katherine Houren, James Rietzke, Michael Pilarz, Danile Ferrara and Mark Corbin.

• Meads Mill Middle School - first place, Lauren West; second place, Powen Shiah; third place, Sara Sarkisian. Runners up were Doug Gibbons, Elizabeth Piet, Emily Ott, Ethan Lube, Trevor Williams, Marcy Tanski, Kyle Delaney, Joanna Lee, Adam Sinkus, Michelle Tomes, Caroline Reinhart and Beth Duey.

COOKE STUDENTS WIN STATE

FORENSICS AWARDS

Four Cooke Middle School students walked away with blue ribbons in the state Forensics Competition last week.

Bree Reisman and Stephanie Patterson captured blue ribbons in the prose interpretation category, while Mikhila Humbad and Sara Tomasik took blue ribbons in the duo interpretation category.

DISTINGUISHED YOUTH

Cooke Middle School Student Stefanie Russell has been selected to participate in the Distinguished Youth of Michigan Scholarship and Recognition program May 2-4.

The program is designed to recognize girls who rank high academically and are strong leaders in the schools and communities.

Russell could receive a $1,000 savings bond and the right to serve as a state titleholder.

MUSTACHE MADNESS

The entire student body of Silver Springs Elementary School were winners in the school's recent Mustache Madness challenge during March is Reading Month.

The students were challenged to read 20 minutes each night for a schoolwide total of 150,000 minutes.

The prize was unique, as Principal Ken Pawlowski sacrificed his mustache - which he has worn for 22 years - to Mrs. Janet Rigney's 4-5 grade class for reading the most minutes during the month.

EARTH CONSCIOUS STUDENTS

Students from Moraine Elementary School once again participated in Earth Week activities. This year students were encouraged to bring "low trash" lunches - using four or more reusable items - to school during Earth Week. Every student taking part had the opportunity to win a Beanie Baby that was raffled daily.

The program saw students cut their daily lunch trash output in half.

Kim Richardson-Hippler's class put out the least amount of trash and received an ice cream party for their efforts.

Sally Mullins class won the award for bringing the most low trash lunches. Students were rewarded for their efforts by designing and coloring mug templates that will be made into durable mugs to be used during PTA meetings

hoto by ROBERT JACKSON J

Genealogical Society to meet

The Northville Genealogy Society will meet May 4 at 1:30 p.m. in the Northville Public Library. "Flags That Have Flown Over the United States" is the program title.

Following the program, refreshments will be served and a class in genealogy will take place. For more information call 349-2094.

Kelley rules on school openness case

An advisory committee created by a board of education isn't subject to the Open Meetings Act. Michigan Attorney General Frank J. Kelley has ruled.

The Ionia board last August created an advisory committee to study academic standards and athletic participation. The panel consisted of two elected trustees, staff, parents and students. Its charge was to gather information and make recommendations to the school board, but not to alter existing policy.

The panel on Aug. 21 barred a local newspaper from attending. Kelley's ruling was sought by the prosecutor and two legislators.

The Open Meetings Act (OMA) applies to public bodies that "exercise governmental or proprietary authority or perform a governmental or proprietary function ..." Kelly noted in his April 2 ruling, adding:

"Prior opinions of this office have consistently concluded that the definition of public body does not include advisory boards.

Kelley said the 1993 Supreme Court decision that the University of Michigan Board of Regents violated OMA with its "presidential selection committee" didn't apply here because that panel reduced the number of presidential candi-dates from 250 to 12 without a public meeting.

support our children on Monday, June 9. The need for a new high school, renovations to other school buildings, and technology improvements has been carefully studied by citizen/school administrator committees for many years. I have reviewed their reports and trust their recommendations. Our children deserve adequate facilities and appropriate technology.

One of the most important things we can give our children is a sound education. Giving children excellent education requires a financial commitment. The cost of this bond to the owner of a home with a value of $250,000 is approximately $313 a year. This is less than a dollar a day, less than the cost of three happy meals a week, and far less than the average charges for use of a car phone a year.

Bond money cannot be spent on salaries or other operational needs. As the community's population continues to grow, the repayment of the bond cost to each taxpayer will go down. Senior citizens may receive tax credits for part of the tax increase.

Northville is a wonderful community that is desirable in no small measure because of our excellent school system. Please support your investment in your community and our community's future by voting yes on Monday, June 9.

Bond approval is wise investment To the editor:

On Monday, June 9, the residents of the Northville Public School District will be voting on a $61.5 million bond. Throughout the years, the district has made wise investments that have paid off in the educational and technology fields. With these investments the community has fared greatly too.

In education, of the eight Detroit-area districts scoring highest on the MEAP, Northville public schools is the lowest-spending district per pupil. Northville teachers are honored and recognized outside of the district for their skills. Also, a Northville teacher is one of only 84 teachers nationwide to be National Board Certified.

The bond approved in 1989, the district invested in technology by installing a fiber network infrastructure. This expanded distance learning and communication opportunities. With the fiber network already installed, the bond will cover equipment replacement due to use and changes in the field, and for current software.

Training and support will be needed for staff with the new equipment and software. Bond money can only be used for capital expense such as building and equipment purchases. The district, however, will commit general Diane W. Farquhar funds for the purpose of training and support for technology integration.

I believe the district's community benefits greatly with a sound school system. Yes, I do have two children attending Northville schools. Before moving here nine years ago, I did support school bonds and millages in a neighboring community I lived in, even before having children.

When selling my house, buyers inquired about a strong school system and police and fire protection. Living in a supported community, I sold my home on my own in a week's time. The value of the house doubled in the 10 years I lived there. I know the investment I made to support my com-munity paid off greatly for me.

After serving on the Future Facilities and Bond Committees, I know the bond is needed for continuing a sound educational program, relieve overcrowding by constructing a new high school, and renovation to the other school buildings. Along with a sound school district the community shares in the higher resale of their homes and a safer living environment. I will be voting "yes" on June 9 and I hope you will too.

To the editor:

Gregory W. Pelc

taken to the voters on June 9. Of that total, $5.2 million has been dedicated to technology, new computers and software systems for elementary through high school classrooms

In the April 24, USA Today, a survey of seventh through 12th grade students was done for the National Science Foundation on Technology.

Here are three of the questions/responses.

Is your computer education on track or should schools be teaching more?

Sixty-five percent said they should be teaching more.

Will having strong computer skills and an understanding of other technology be necessary for you to make a good living in the future?

Eighty-two percent said yes. If you have the choice, how would you prefer to conduct research for a school project?

Seventy-seven percent said the Internet.

Most adults grew up without computers but today they have become almost indispensable. I remember computers being used for doing massive mathematical calculations for space flight. Today, they are a tool for manipulation, assimilation and communication between people around the world.

We need the new classroom facilities that will be built as part of the bond issue but we also need the technology in the classrooms.

The people of Northville provided education for my children, today we must be the providers for the futûre.

Although my children may be out of high school when the new high school is built, I will still vote "yes" on June 9, to maintain the high level of education in the Northville District.

The children of Northville need to be competitive in their search for jobs in the global market. David Arndt

To the editor:

Last week, several letters to the editor criticized articles in The Northville Record as based on rumors, hearsay, and gossip. Your editorial of April 24 is also evidence of this.

Teachers at Northville High School are just as innovative and creative, if not more so, than their counterparts at the elementary and middle schools.

We know this to be true because our son is a member of the Northville High School Class of 2000.

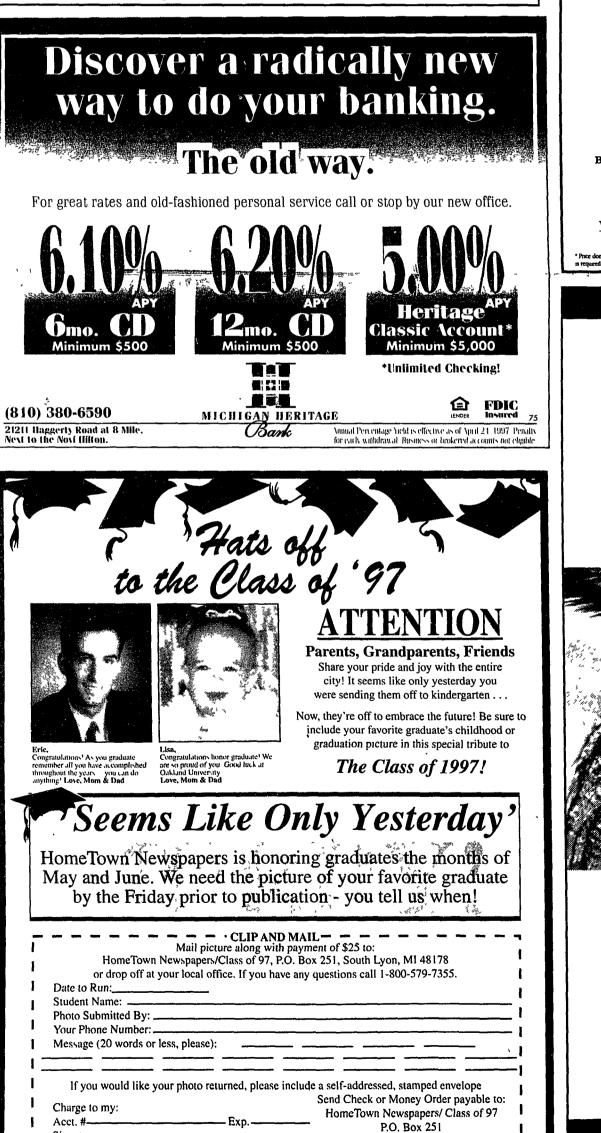

We have witnessed his progress during this past year, and know that he is able to synthesize his learning and use his critical thinking skills to the maximum extent possible.

His teachers are caring, dynamic, and well-informed as to the latest teaching methods.

We would like to use this forum to publicly acknowledge the teachers who have given so much of themselves to help our son through his freshman year. Campaign finance reform talk draws variety of views

By TIM RICHARD Staff Writer

Political campaign costs and war chests are skyrocketing. Although everybody has free speech, the rich can shout louder.

There was wide disagreement among 13 speakers about how to "reform" campaign financing at the League of Women Voters of Oakland County day-long conference. The theme seemed to be: Reform that guy – over there!

"Money misshapes the democratic process," said U.S. Rep. Sander Levin, D-Southfield, a former Democratic state chair.

"Money is participation and a right. Donation of money is a form of speech," countered Howard Simon, executive director of the American Civil Liberties Union in Michigan, citing a 1976 U.S. Supreme Court decision called Buckley v. Valeo.

Speakers disagreed on whether the public cares, spending should be capped, campaigns should be tax funded, contributions from aliens and non-residents should be curbed, and how laws should be enforced.

The forum drew 175 of the politically motivated to an all-day conference April 26 in Birmingham Unitarian Church in Bloomfield Hills:

QUESTION: DOES THE PUBLIC WANT CAMPAIGN FINANCE REFORM?

Answer: "Campaign finance reform must be addressed before other issues," said moderator Mark Armitage.

"There is less and less press coverage about who gives." said state Sen. Bill Bullard Jr., R-Milford. "There is less public interest in disclosure."

"Legislators say. 'No one calls me about campaign finance reform." said Karen Holcomb-Merrill, executive director of Common Cause.

Rep. Levin said a poll showed voters list campaign finance as the No. 2 issue behind balancing the federal budget, but 77 percent complain there's too much media coverage of it. "It takes a groundswell," said the eight-term congressman.

"There is no groundswell," said Sen. Alma Wheeler Smith, D-Salem, a first-term legislator and former South Lyon school board member. "There is a groundswell of disillusionment."

There is frustration. People are choosing not to vote, not to participate, "not to organize," said former Rep. Lyn Jondahl, D-Okemos. A 1994 gubernatorial candidate, Jondahl deplored media coverage of "what did the candidates' ads say" rather than "what do candidates stand for?"

Q: SHOULD CAMPAIGN SPEND-ING BE CAPPED?

A: "There are no limits on expenditure in Michigan," said Anne Corgan, the Michigan Department of State official in charge of enforcing campaign finance laws. "There Action, a former legislative aide now working for a non-profit, nonpartisan group. Common Cause's Holcomb-Merrill agreed.

"Public financing is so important," said Sen. Smith. "We spend a tremendous part of the electoral cycle raising funds. Support my Senate Bill 65 for public funding." The bill is in Bullard's Government Operations Committee.

Q: SHOULD NON-RESIDENT Contributors be restrict-ED?

A: Yes, said U.S. Rep. Joe Knollenberg, R-Bloomfield Township, sponsor of HR 767, "which would prohibit individuals ineligible to vote from contributing. That is doable."

He spoke against a background of congressional investigations of Chinese influence in President Clinton's White House. The thirdterm Republican said his bill would require 65 percent of funds to be raised within a candidate's state.

Knollenberg advocated incremental changes, saying the current bipartisan Senate proposal, McCain-Feingold, is too "overwhelming."

d "One problem is out-of-state money," replied Democrat Levin. It should be considered. But it's not the heart of the problem. It tilts to one party." Levin said there are abuses with foreign contributions, "but they are not the main problem." U.S. Sen. Carl Levin, D-Mich., said Republicans also are tainted by foreign money. He blistered House Republicans for selling "lunch with the committee chairman of your choice in the Washington Hilton" and "photo opportunities with Newt Gingrich and Trent Lott" for $250.000."

Q: SHOULD ENFORCEMENT OF EXISTING CAMPAIGN FINANCE LAWS BE TOUGHENED?

A: Yes, said state Democratic Party chair Mark Brewer. "We've had very partisan enforcement by this secretary of state (Republican Candice Miller). We filed a complaint (against the Michigan Chamber of Commerce) six months ago. It has not been dismissed, not investigated, not enforced."

"Six months is pretty good," countered Bob LaBrant, a state chamber vice president, saying he waited 22 months from Miller's predecessor, Democrat Richard Austin, for answers.

LaBrant called for more auditing support for the Department of State because "we don't know if the (campaign finance) numbers are legitimate in the first place."

The ACLU's Simon was more cautious about "intrusion of state machinery and criminal prosecution. A message saying 'Vote for Smith' may be free speech or a crime, depending on who said it and financed it."

A final warning from Democratic chair Brewer: "Reform' is a propaganda word. You can be deceived."

"There is a naive belief money is bad," said the ACLU's Simon. But "rich fat cats" bankroll small third parties. "A cap would open the door for wealthy candidates to fund their own campaigns," an unintended consequence. Incumbents in Congress have a built-in advantage with news coverage and the "franking" (free mail) privilege that aren't subject to spending limits.

Simon said money, like a flooding river, can't be contained if people want to spend it.

'I worry more than a little bit about a (Supreme Court) definition of money as speech, that we have free speech for those who can afford it," said ex-Rep. Jondahl. "Money is power. A few people have a great deal of influence." he said, citing a New York newspaper that supports Mayor Rudolph Guiliant editorially and with news coverage.

"Many things will become worse with term limits," said Holcomb-Merrill of Common Cause. "Costs will go through the roof" as Michigan voters replace more than 60 state representatives who will be forced to retire after three terms in 1998.

To fellow Sen. Smith's charge there is "too much money," Bullard said, "I do not agree. How much should there be? How can you limit what others raise?"

Q: SHOULD ELECTION CAM-PAIGNS BE TAX FUNDED?

A: Yes, said ACLU's Simon. "Level the playing field ... We need floors, not ceilings. We should talk seriously about public funding, but I know of no bill in the Legislature or Congress. It would cost $5 per person to fully fund congressional campaigns."

"My perception," said Sen. Bullard, "is that the public doesn't support public funding. They say, 'I don't want my tax dollars going to those politicians."

"Disclosure (of contributions) hasn't worked. We believe one solution is public funding," said Linda Teeter of Michigan Citizen

Cooperative Parents They're actively involved

Gov. John Engler has declared Parent Cooperative Nursery School Week April 27 through May 3, which concludes a series of celebrations in April when the focus was on the Month of the Youth Child.

The week is planned to showcase the 198-member parent cooperative schools around the state of Michigan, two of which are in Northville and Novi.

Cooperatives differ from regular nursery schools in that parents participate in just about every aspect of schooling, from sitting on the board of directors to pushing a broom.

Directors are nominated by the parents in their children's early education. And they just might learn a thing or two themselves along the way.

of the school. Parents evaluate the board and the school once or twice a year. The board evaluates also the teachers. There is no paid director.

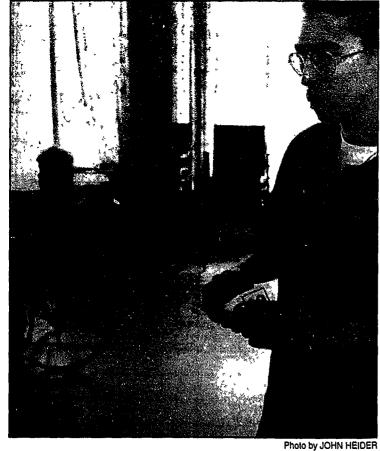

There is one teacher per classroom with two parent helpers. The teachers meet Michigan Family Independence Agency licensing requirements.

The main idea is to get the parents involved in their children's early childhood education, which includes the years up to kindergarten, according to Novi Cooperative Preschool President Joyce Engelmann.

By CAROL WORKENS Staff Writer

The search of service hours to meet National Honor Society requirements led John Mione to the Whitehall Convalescent Homes in Novi. "The opportunity was there because they didn't have many volunteers," Mione said.

A junior at Novi High School, Mione began volunteering at Whitehall during his sophomore year and stayed with it, returning this year.

"It's better to stay there than go from place to place," Mione said. "I've gotten used to it. I just like going there."

Mione helps with paperwork, decorations and with activities with the residents, like bingo once a week for a couple hours after school.

"I try to get around and talk to as many residents as possible," he said.

Besides being a member of the track and cross country teams at the high school, he holds a part-time job with Toys 'R' Us.

The son of John and Chong Mione of Novi, Mione likes to write and finds his English classes the most interesting of his academic subjects.

Whitehall also has opportunities for other volunteer positions during the day, evenings and weekends. Volunteers are needed to help take care of the courtyard doing gardening, weeding and watering. Activities like bingo and bowling can always use a few volunteers. During the evenings, volunteers are needed to help show movies and serve popcorn.

"We need people just to come and visit with the residents oneon-one and write their letters or take them for a walk," Activities Director Kathy Israel said.

People interested in doing cosmetics or nail care are also welcome.

Volunteers must be eighth graders or older.

If you are interested in volunteering, call Whitehall Convalescent Homes at (810) 349-2200.

Church to host baseball clinic

Oak Pointe Church, in cooperation with the Northville Baseball-Softball Association, is sponsoring a baseball clinic with former Detroit Tiger Pitcher Frank Tanana on Saturday, May 10, in Northville.

the support of a standard and the standard as

On April 6, Tanana, with Bible in hand, was the featured speaker at Oak Pointe Churches Sunday morning service, held at Northville High School. Now, the church is teaming up with the Northville Baseball Association for a Tanana comeback - with a baseball glove in hand.

The proceeds of the $10 clinic registration fee will go to the Field Development Fund.

A flyer announcing the clinic was sent to all youngsters on the Little League mailing list. Space in the clinic is limited to the first 100 participants who respond. "We want to let the community know that we are here and that we want to serve," said Joel Lindman, a member of Oak Pointe Church and the event organizer.

"Kids have great respect for professional athletes. Frank is a solid role model. He speaks our message: Christ changes lives."

Helping families is at the center of Oak Pointe's new "Heaven Help the Home" series. Beginning on Mother's Day, May 11, and running through Father's Day, June 15, the weekly programs will bring God's timeless truth to the various needs and challenges of the modern home.

Oak Pointe Church-meets each Sunday at 10 a.m. in the auditorium of Northville High School, located at 775 N. Center Street.

Filmmaker sees potential in shows

By CAROL WORKENS Staff Writer

Northville 10-year-old Mackenzie Fankell happily strapped on snow shoes and trekked one mile in 40 inches of snow to the den of a hibernating bear as her dad captured everything with a movie cam-

Holding bear cubs isn't something every child will experience, but kids may have a better understanding of what it feels like if a new series of outdoor shows filmed by Norm Fankell airs on television.

The pilot for the television series The Outdoors Club follows Mackenzie and a Michigan Department of Natural Resources biologist as they visit a 200-pound hibernating black bear and her two cubs in the den she had made after burrowing into the root system at the base of a fallen tree.

"The adrenaline was sure flowing that day," Fankell said.

Mackenzie held the cubs, a fivepound female they later named Mackenzie and a five-and-a-half pound male who was named for the owner of the land. Mackenzie kept them quiet while the heavily sedated mother was given an annual physical check up. The ears of the cubs were tagged.

"I liked holding them because they were so cute," Mackenzie said. That portion of the pilot has just been endorsed by Bruce Matthews. Chief of the Office of Information and Education for the Department of Natural Resources.

"Norm's presentation is both scientifically factual as well as entertaining," Matthews stated in his letter. "His approach of letting youngsters tell the story is highly effective and certainly supported by the research we've identified on effective ways of marketing to youth audiences.

Kids telling kids about enjoying Michigan's natural resources is the focus of the shows. The videos will be one way for the DNR to educate children about the opportunities available outdoors.

"The State of Michigan would like to make a bigger push to get kids more involved in Michigan's natural resources, whether it's fishing, hunting, hiking, biking, going to camps, whatever," Fankell said.

"We're hoping if this takes off we can do a lot more like it," he said. "The plan is to do 20 or 30 more like it all over Michigan."

Fankell has been doing children's programs on home safety for 20 years, including an apple cider video, which is shown to customers at the Northville Cider Mill. The national Children's Miracle Network has used it, as has WNIC-FM and the Wellness Plan.

Mackenzie will also narrate the 10-minute bear segment which will be combined with others such as one Fankell recently filmed with his 8-year-old son, William, on how to make a worm farm.

Fankell will tape Mackenzie's fourth grade classmates at Amerman Elementary School singing the song he will use on the video.

The DNR is trying to promote the historical importance of outdoor sports as a conservationist, among other things, according to Fankell. There is a noticeable decline in the number of people taking part in outdoor sports.

"They think it is part of our natural heritage in our state," he said. "I showed it to my class and they

Co-op preschools ask more of parents

The Novi Cooperative Preschool and the Northville Cooperative Preschool are both members of the Michigan Council of Cooperative Nursery Schools (MCCN). MCCN was founded in 1951 by parents and teachers interested in sharing ideas and information and in developing a state-wide network to promote a positive educational experience for young children.

The Northville Cooperative Playgroup was founded that same year and met at the Northville First Presbyterian Church until 1963. Now called the Northville Cooperative Preschool, the school moved to several locations over the next 27 years. But when the children returned to school in September 1990, they found themselves back at their original location, First Presbyterian Church of Northville, where they currently lease space. Currently, 117 children are enrolled in Northville Cooperative Preschool but that number is expected to increase next year to 126. Depending on the age group, class size is limited to eight to 15 children in the Northville preschool and 16 in the Novi co-op.

Most parents who choose a cooperative school want to be able to go to their children's first structured learning environment, according to Northville Cooperative Preschool President Renee Hunt.

Mothers, as well as fathers, can be found sitting in pint-size chairs or crossed legged on the floor helping with a variety of activities during morning or afternoon sessions. "Parents can learn an incredible amount from teachers, such as managing conflict," Hunt said. "That's the big benefit." The school families also get together in the fall and spring for activities, as well as at Christmastime. General membership meetings during the year feature speakers on a variety of topics. Co-op schools also have lending libraries for parents.

Parents help with art projects, in the large motor-development area and with the music program. They also supply and help at snack

The Northville Cooperative Preschool, where the philosophy is "learn through play," is one of the largest in the state, according to Hunt.

Northville Cooperative holds one major fund-raiser each year, which is put on by a committee of six parents. Each family donates one item or service to the auction.

Both the Northville and the Novi cooperative preschools are also members of the Greater Detroit Cooperative Nursery. Among other things, the council offers training programs to board members, parents and teachers.

At Novi Cooperative Preschool, which has been located in the United Methodist Church in Novi for 26 years, 65 families completed several projects this school year. Volunteers built steps and a deck to aid the children getting to and from the building and their cars, and installed new doors so that the children could see outdoors while in the classroom.

Husbands of board members will soon be installing a. "spider climber" which was purchased recently from money raised through fund-raising efforts.

"Nothing gets accomplished without a parent's involvement,' Engelmann said.

Engelmann and Hunt both served as board presidents for the first time this year.

"This has been one of the most rewarding years of my life," she said. "Sometimes I think the parents get more out of it than the children."

Co-op moms are highly sought after as volunteers once their children enter elementary school, according to Engelmann.

"All PTO and school committees look for co-op moms because they know we are willing to volunteer, Engelmann said.

Although their co-op days are over for Hunt and Engelmann, as their youngest children will "graduate" this year, it was a satisfying experience for both.

"The memories will live in my heart forever," Engelmann said. "The co-op spirit is contagious," Hunt added.

Carol Bowdell of Novi will be one of the more than 471 exhibitors at the second Michigan International Women's Show during its run at the Novi Expo Center May 1-4.

After 20 years as a dental hygienist, Bowdell joined the Swiss skin care firm Arbonne International and in less than two years became a regional vice president and CEO of her own company.

It took six weeks for Bowdell to decide to start at ground zero with the direct sales company. Other exhibitors from Novi include Catherine Wall of Cabou-chon, fine imported English jewelry: Dr. Karl Tarkanyi of Family Care Chiropractic; Heslop's China and Gifts; Mary Ellen Kohser of PartyLite; and the Novi Police Department.

The entries from Northville include Geri Martin and Holly Koch of Longaberger Baskets. Last year's attendance for the four day event was 23,406. Along with shopping opportunities, there will be demonstrations, giveaways, fashion shows and business opportunities.

Vicki Lawrence will be at the Fashion and Entertainment Stage at 2 p.m. Saturday, May 3.

Hours are Thursday, Friday and Saturday 10 a.m. to 9 p.m., and Sunday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Spring concert features a variety of music

The Novi Choralaires combine tache." several old favorites for this year's spring concert, "Saturday in Novi with the Choralaires!"

On Saturday, May 10, at 7:30 p.m. in the Fuerst Auditorium in Novi High School, the 55-member adult auditioned choral group will perform old favorites like Beautiful Dreamer and Bewitched, Bothered and Bewildered.

Toe-tappin', hand-clappin' songs like Blow Gabriel Blow by Cole Porter and Shine Down will be thrown together with a couple of spirituals and even a story about how 'you'll be all the rage with the girls if you'll only grow a mous-

Humorist P.D.Q. Bach also pays a visit with a Choral Cantata and a game of Jeopardy. Following the concert, the Choralaires invite every one to attend the Afterglow for refreshments.

This year's spring concert marks a special event for the local choir. Janet Wassilak is celebrating her 20th anniversary as the director. Wassilak holds a bachelor of music degree in music education and a master of music degree in applied voice from Boston University. She has been an active church musician in Massachusetts and Michigan since 1967 and is currently directing the choirs at First United Methodist Church in Farmington.

In addition to saluting Wassilak, the Choralaires have also been enjoying the musical talents of a new and wonderfully flamboyant accompanist this year. Sandy Main, a musician in the Novi Schools music program, has been with the group since September. She graduated from Moody Bible Institute in Chicago and has been taking classes at William Tyndale College in Farmington Hills.

Main is joined by Don Sill on bass and Gary Becker on drums and keyboard. Several Novi High School talents will be performing.

John Kohl, a very gifted young musician, will perform some of his best magic tricks, while Andrea Burger, Sarah McKinney and Ann Superfisky will accompany the choir on the flute. Three percussionists, Mat Crepeau, Chip Lind and James Morris, will also make contributions to the evening.

Tickets are $6 for adults and $5 for seniors and children 12 and under and may be purchased at the Novi Parks and Recreation Center, 45175 Ten Mile in Novi, or at the door at Novi High, 24062 Taft.

For details, call Choir President Larry Molloy at (810) 474-8277.

Move over Bond, Austin's been defrosted

Debonair. Defiant. Defrosted.

From the wild mind that created Wayne's World comes the sexiest secret agent since Mata Hari. He's hip, he's mod and he's got a gun, baby ... Mike Myers stars in New Line Cinema's upcoming comedy "Austin Powers; International Man of Mystery."

By day, he's a fabulously talented high-fashion photographer in swinging '60s London - by night and at other times, he's an incredibly suave undercover agent for British Intelligence. He has moves no man can match and no woman can resist. Whether he's sent into the oil fields of the Middle East. the frozen tundra of Russia, or the dark underworld of Berlin, Austin Powers never turns down a mission.

In 1967, when Austin's arch nemesis, Dr. Evil, is placed in cryogenic suspended animation and launched into orbit, Austin volunteers to be shaken, stirred and put on ice until Evil resurfaces. Now, 30 years later, the doctor has returned to earth with a fiendish plot to hold the world hostage. Obviously there's only one man who can stop him, and he must be thawed immediately.

But are the '90s ready for the likes of Austin Powers? An 8-track tape in a CD world. Austin doesn't seem to notice that the free love of the '60s is long gone. Wearing a crushed velvet suit, bell-bottoms and horn-rimmed glasses, he is a walking anachronism ready to "shag" every groovy chick he meets even if they do think he's a freak. However sidetracked he may be, he literally swings into action with Agent Vanessa Kensington (Elizabeth Hurley), a straightshooting operative and daughter of his former sidekick, who is sometimes vexed but always charmed by Austin's out-of-date sexuality, mannerisms and politics.

Austin Powers is the ultimate '60s spy. He has the flair of Matt Halm and really bad teeth. The film celebrates a time when freedom meant more than empty political rhetoric, and expressions of individuality, love and art flourished. Oh, and people shagged a lot! Featuring an all-star cast, the film includes cameo performances by Michael York, Mimi Rogers, Robert Wagner, Tom Arnold and Carrie Fisher.

Written by Mike Myers, the film is directed by Jay Roach and executive produced by Eric McLeod and Claire Rudnick Polstein. Producers are Suzanne Todd, Jennifer Todd, Demi Moore and Mike Myers.

"i've always wanted to play a swinging character who wears sideburns and skin-tight crushed velvet bell-bottoms," says Mike Myers, who plays the chronically confused main character in "Austin Powers: International Man of Mystery

Perhaps best known as the brainchild behind "Wayne's World I and II." Myers used some of the same comic principles that made Wayne Campbell a pop icon, and put them to use in his retro character Austin Powers:

"Austin is a Carnaby Street refugee who has his own style, vocabulary and view of life that resonates from Britain in the 60s," Myers adds.

Born to British parents who eventually moved to Canada, Myers has always been intrigued and fascinated by the mannerisms of the British. From their smooth and confident accent to their brash yet cunningly clever sense of humor, they have been a favorite target for the young comedian since family gatherings where he would mimic his cousins in displays that had relatives in stitches.

Those early experiences proved to be a ripe foundation for Myers, who quickly developed an unforgettable, dental-impaired look worthy of the greatest swinger to hit the screen since...Tom Jones. "Britain is interesting from a dental standpoint. They won the war, but lost their teeth," Myers said. But the look is nothing without the lingo. Austin uses words like "shag," and Powers himself is perhaps the only authority who can describe what it means.

"Shag is a many-splendored word," Austin explains. "Many times, when I'm at a loss on how to express a difficult sentiment, I just slip in the word 'shag.' and it all falls into place. Noun, verb, adjective - it doesn't matter, baby! Because when your talking Shag, you're speaking the language of love. If you're at a party, and it's really happening, you might say it's shagadelic or perhaps, shagerrific." Get the point?

Just as Wayne Campbell made party on," and "schwing" household catch phrases, Austin's dialect is peppered with hip euphemisms. While shooting principal photography in Los Angeles, Todd?" He swings upredictably (between sophisticated and juvenile, and brings a charming niaveté to the part that makes Austin utterly irresistable. From the moment we meet him on Carnaby Street, we know we're in for a retro ride back to the future."

Vers. ROLLING STONE

Hardball ups and downs representative of season

Hits are there, but runs scarce

By RANDY COBLE Staff Writer

It's been a mixed week for the Mustang varsity baseball squad, kind of like the season they've had so far Solid wins bracketed tough losses as Northville's hot bats put runners on base but couldn't always bring them home. Still, Coach Mickey Newman says the team is coming along well as the midpoint of the seasons arrives and the Mustangs head into a week of home games.

"We've made great strides improvement-wise and the schedule is definitely in our favor for the rest of the year," Newman said.

the past week. The Mustangs won two and lost three, posting a lot of hits but having trouble getting runners across home plate.

"Getting hits, especially clutch (scoring) hits, and moving people around the bases has been a challenge for us all season," Newman said. That wasn't the problem on Monday, April 21, when Northville took on the Hawks of Farmington Harrison High.

"They just outplayed us," New-man said. "They hit it all over the park.

Two days later, on April 23. Northville came up short again, this time in an away game at Westland's John Glenn. The Mustangs lost by a score of 6-3 but the team posted a season-high hit total of nine, as well as six walks and a trio of stolen bases.

"Our sticks were working that day. We missed a lot of scoring opportunities, though. We left a lot of men on base," Newman said.

The Mustang tennis team keeps racking up the wins, dispatching their opponents with relative ease.

The team's latest triumph was an 8-0 victory over Livonia Stevenson April 28. Northville athletes dominated their Spartan counterparts in almost every match.

Dave Anderson handled opponent Ryan Winkler, 6-1, 6-1, at No. 1 singles, while Mike Bush defeated Kiran Karwande at No. 2, 6-1, 3-6, 6-1.

The No. 3 singles winner for Northville was Arjun Srinivasan, who upended George Gustafik. 6-2.6-1.

Jared Cromas made it a clean sweep for the team at No. 4 singles, getting the better of Matt Hartunian, 6-4, 6-1.

The doubles matches were as lopsided as the singles contests.

Ganesh Nayakwadi and Fred Berg teamed up to beat Amit Patel and Mike Schmidt, 6-1, 6-4, at No. 1: The No. 2 team of Adam Williams and Yusuke Ishigami handled Paul Debush and Kevin Wirasik, 6-1, 6-0; No. 3 mates Matt Thomson and Derek Sokloski topped Rob Baker and Mike McGhie, 6-0, 6-3; and Paul Stachura and Anish Shah got, by score of 70-58. The victory is Northville's first over Farmington Harrison in the 1990s.

Making what could be called the best showing on a day which featured quite a few was sophomore Bridgid Bowdell. She picked up top honors in three high-speed matchups against the Hawks, a team known for its strong sprint-the long jump, Bowdell posted 16 of the Mustang $ 70 points on the day. When it came to great efforts, Bowdell wasn't alone. Sophomore Lori Delano got the Mustangs going early with a come-from-behind rally to help Northville to a win in the 3,200 meter relay. Down by 10 meters as she entered her leg of the race. Delano not only made up the gap but led the Mustangs to a three-second margin of victory over the Hawks. It was her best time ever (2:33 for a split in the 800 meter) and the team's best time so far this season.

"That really set the tone for us," Cronin said. 'We really got out of the gate quickly.'

Also posting a career-best time was Erica Winn. Beating out the junior in the 100 yard hurdles was Hawk Devron Kennedy, a top conference athlete. Winn, however, came away with a time of 16.72 seconds, her fastest showing

Softball squad breaks ice with first win

By LEE SNIDER

It was breakthrough time for the girl's softball squad, as the team recorded its first victory of the season last Friday against Livonia Churchill.

It was a thriller that the Mustangs pulled out in the bottom of the seventh, 7-6.

"It was really exciting," coach Karen Baird said.

Going into the last half of the last inning, it looked like Northville was headed for its eighth straight loss. But the offense came alive in the clutch, rallying for three runs and the home-field win.

The game ended when Marci Sabo hit one through the middle, driving home Jennifer Caverly from second.

Hurler Sarah Johnson got the victory for the persevering Mustangs.

The win improved the team's season record to 1-7 on the sea-

The Mustangs' second victory of the campaign came at the Chelsea Invitational on Saturday

After dropping contests to Holt High (12-0) and Northwest of Jackson (12-7) Saturday, the offense went back to work, pounding out 16 runs in an extra-inning affair. The final tally was 16-14 over Ann Arbor Gabriel Richard.

Among the big guns for Northville was Kellie Reichard, a slap hitter who went 4 for 6 on the game. Sarah Johnson, the pitcher who got the win for the team, also contributed at the plate, going 5 for 5. Amanda Rice was another key element, with a 4 for 6 performance, while Michelle Menghini was 3 for 6 with two RBI and a double.

The victory lifted the Mustangs to 2-7 on the season.

Other recent games saw the Mustangs lose to Farmington Harrison (12-2) on April 21, and to Westland John Glenn (6-1) on April 23.

Big contests this week were a double-header against Novi on Tuesday and a single game against state-ranked Walled Lake Central on Wednesday (both after Northville Record deadline).

The Mustangs face Livonia Franklin next on Friday.

Farmington. "They are a very good team,"

Mustang coach Doug Lyon said. "They are a team to reckon with."

But the game on Monday. April 21, ended with the Mustangs scoring four times to Farmington's none, partly because a couple of Farmington stars didn't play. "As a whole we dominated," Lyon remarked. Brigid Bowdell and Amanda DeKoker each scored, with Lyndsay Huot adding a pair of goals. "I think it could have been a lot harder for us if they had had their main players," Lyon said. "I don't think we would have walked away as easily as we did."

Two days later on Wednesday, April 23, it was a different story, as the Mustangs lost a big one to Churchill, 2 to 1.

"It was a very upsetting game," Lyon said. "They dominated most of the game."

Churchill scored 20 minutes into the contest but the Mustangs came back and tied it when Amanda DeKoker scored a fine goal with 10 minutes left in the first half.

Northville came on strong during the second half and dominated the first 15 minutes until Churchill scored again.

The Mustangs' record now stands at 6 wins and 3 losses.

Pom Pon team puts wraps on fine season

By ROBERT JACKSON Staff Writer

The 24 members of the Northville High School Pom Pon squad had a simple goal in mind when they began the 1996-97 year - improve their statewide standing.

That was a pretty tall order for the squad, which captured first place in the state Division II competition last year. To make things more difficult the team lost its coach right before the regional competition in February. None of that phased the squad, and team members achieved their goal and a whole lot more.

"We really wanted to have a successful season and that meant that we wanted to place higher in the overall statewide rankings," senior Jenny Madden said. "Our expectations were higher and the team performed a lot better this year."

The team consisted of Madden, Courtney Armstrong, Sara Cooley, Jenny McMullen, Dapne Dudek, Andrea Hanania, Stacy Ambroziak, Corinne Atty, Natalie Dickinson, Christina Farrar, Alicia Bachman, Lauren Harper, Gina Spinazze, Lauren Bethell, Dana Ghedotte, Kellie Reichard, Bethany Hall, Jodi Schodowski, Kelly Gatt, Cheryl Hackett, Sommer Scafidi, Liz Polletta, Sarah Gutowski, and Heather Qualman.

The lady Mustangs accom-plished the first part of their goal at the regional competition. They scored 154.5 points out of a possible 180 and the score was good enough to propel them into Divi-sion I competition for the first time in the team's history. The team was judged on appearance, showmanship, choreography, timing and team unity.

"We worked extremely hard at placing higher this year," Sara Cooley explained. "By moving to Division I we accomplished what we set out to do at the beginning of two RBI. Coming up with a pair and one RBI was Sweitlik. Junior Gordy McPhail had two hits as well.

Friday saw things brighten for Northville with a 5-2 win over Livo-nia Churchill. Gilchrist reined in the Chargers on the mound, pitching five innings and giving up no earned runs.

Before he was through Gilchrist struck out five batters and gave up just four hits. At the plate he went for two for four on the day, scoring two RBIs.

Senior Scott Vigh was also impressive, fanning five Charger batters as he picked up his third save of the season. Mustang batters Billy Sekerka and Kozdron did their bit as well.

Sekerka had two hits on the day, including an RBI double, while Kozdron had a two-run double in a three-run Northville fourth inning that gave the the team the lead in the game.

Northville split a double-header with Novi on Saturday, winning one and losing one against a Wildcat team which was ranked ninth in the state coming into the day.

Although they posted a new sin-gle-game hit total for the season 10), the Mustangs could only get three runners across the plate in the first game. The squad lost to Novi'by a score of 6-3.

Coming up big in the game was senior Tim Burke, who had two hits and a pair of stolen bases. Also staying solid was Gilchrist, who posted two hits, including an RBI single.

The back end of the doubleheader was a close one, staying 1-0 in favor of the Wildcats most of the way. Northville. however, scored four runs with two outs in the fifth to take the lead and the game.

Ryan Morris gave up just two hits in four and two-thirds innings on the mound for the Mustangs. The week left Northville with a 4-6 record overall and a 1-3 record in division play. Their next trio of games couldsmake for a friendlier atmosphere for the Mustangs: they're all at home.

"We've just got to battle every inning. We can't wait on a threerun homer to win the game for us,' Newman said.

Mustangs' way as well. Northville High got straight set victories over Walled Lake Western on April 25, beating their rivals 8-0. Only one match went longer than the minimum two sets.

On April 23, it was Livonia

Churchill's turn to face the heat, as a rain shortened contest went in Northville's favor, 5-1. The Mustangs took care of Farmington High School, 7-1, on April 21.

Next up for the high school racquetmen was North Farmington on Wednesday (after Northville Record deadline)

After dropping a meet to Novi on April 8, the first regular season loss for the team in almost six years, Northville has gone undefeated. Their overall record stands at 7-1 this year, while their record against Western Lakes Athletic Association opponents is 7-1.

The North Farmington contest this week was an important one for the squad, as Farmington is undefeated in conference play.

The next major tournament for the Mustangs is the Novi invitational, set for this Saturday.

Don't try to lose bulge all at once long, blustery winter. You've put on a few extra pounds and this weekend you've decided you're really getting back into shape for the summer months. We have a suggestion: don't. At least not just yet.

If you aren't careful, you could fall victim to the plight of the Weekend Warriors – people who are inactive most of the week, out-of-shape and then overexert themselves with explosive exercise binges come the weekend.

The danger is that your body isn't ready for the sudden bursts of activity exercise may require. You could not only cause orthopedic injury, but also put your cardiovascular system at risk.

Often, weekend warriors of both genders think they haven't changed much from their high school or college days just a few years ago. They think weekend sports won't be a problem. They've forgotten time has passed, and chances are they've gotten lax about a regular exercise program and maybe put on a little excess baggage. Their tendency is to overachieve, causing more harm than good with surges in their blood pressure, added stress to the heart and a real risk of heart attack – very similar to the people who suffer attacks shoveling snow or deer hunting during cold weather.

So what do you do if you want to get back in shape this summer? For starters, don't do it all Exercise wasn't a high priority during the ng, blustery winter. You've put on a few extra ounds and this weekend you've decided you're Clinic in Novi, often treats patients with athletic injuries and offers some suggestions. Sciotti urges a medical checkup and stress test before beginning any program.

Once you receive a doctor's OK, begin a regular exercise program that builds slowly and doesn't require you to do more than you can. Keep in mind that if your purpose is to increase cardiovascular health and endurance, spurts of activity on the weekend won't help and might hurt you instead.

Exercise physiologist Shel Levine of Botsford's Total Rehabilitation and Conditioning Center says, "You want to start slowly, don't overdo, and maintain a comfortable pace.

He suggests a three-point program for keeping in shape. "Begin with a warm-up period of 5-10 minutes of aerobic exercise, like walking, gradually picking up your pace. Then do your exercise, whatever it is, for about 30 minutes, four to five days a week.

"When you're done, cool down with 5-10 minutes of slower exercise. As you build up, add a few minutes to the conditioning segment every few weeks." Every phase is critical and neither warm-up nor cool-down should be skipped.

Sciotti and Levine agree that even if you can't do a regular exercise routine on a given day, anything is better than nothing. Take the stairs instead of the elevator or walk to the drugstore instead of driving.

Your body might not be ready for the sudden bursts of activity exercise may require.

They also point out the dangers of cold weather when the body's airways are constricted, adding stress to the heart as it pumps blood. In those cases, you're asking the heart to work harder than ever, not just to support an out-of-shape you, but to do it in adverse conditions.

Another important point Weekend Warriors need to consider is the concept that "fitness' and "athlete" are not always inclusive. There are athletes who aren't fit (ever looked at some of baseball's top relief pitchers?), and fit people who aren't athletes. Our suggestion: if you want to take part in athletics do your best to get physically fit, and that takes a commitment to more than just a weekend every once in a while.

Myths contribute to incidents of STDs

The subject of sexually transmitted diseases (STD) usually conjures up images of promiscuous, shadowy people. Unfortunately, two of the most common and dangerous myths about STDs are: It won't happen to me.

• I would be able to tell if I or my partner were infected. The fact is that a large percentage of people have been exposed at some time to an STD and many don't even know it. One of the most disturbing aspects of STDs is that many people who are infected have absolutely no symptoms of disease. This is particularly true for males. The infection can be passed along during sex without either partner realizing it. If certain symptoms are present, both partners should be examined at a doc-'tor's office or health clinic.

Some infections, such as gonorrhea, chlamydia and trichomonas tend to cause genital discharge, pain with urination, pelvic pain or fever. The herpes virus, on the other hand, causes painful blisters that last for about one week and may recur every few months.

Other viruses, such as hepatitis

B and HIV, usually don't cause any symptoms at all.

The human papilloma virus (HPV) is the most common sexually transmitted infection. A person can carry the virus for months, even years, before developing any symptoms such as warts or abnormal cervical cells found by a pap smear. The warts can occur anywhere in the genital area and vary in size from tiny raised bumps to large cauliflower-like masses.

One suggested solution for stemming the spread of STDs is testing large segments of the population for a number of diseases. While this will detect infection in a number of people who don't have any symptoms and may prevent progression to more serious conditions, this approach has many shortcomings.

First, there is not a good screening test for all STDs. For example, herpes can only be detected when symptoms are present, not between outbreaks. Second, screening only gives you information for one point in time. The next sexual encounter after testing puts you back at square one. In addition, with HIV there is a window period of as much as 12 weeks during which you can be infected but not test positive.

The best way to prevent STDs is to prevent contact in the first place. That may mean not having a sexual relationship. If you decide to become sexually active, you need to know as much about your partner and his or her sexual history as possible.

When you have sex with someone, you are literally trusting them with your health and life - make sure that person is worth it. A number of factors influence your risk of getting infected.

Limiting your number of sexual partners will decrease the chance of being exposed to STDs. The type of sexual activity you choose to participate in will determine your degree of risk as well.

Avoiding direct contact with body fluids lessens the risk of transmission significantly. Latex condoms are quite effective for this purpose.

If for any reason you suspect that one of your partners might have been exposed to an STD, you both should be examined. If you are found to have an infection, you should be tested for other diseases since different STDs often occur simultaneously.

If antibiotics are recommended, finish all the medicine prescribed for you since incomplete treatment can result in more serious problems such as future infertility or life-threatening illness such as cervical cancer, liver disease or AIDS.

We do not know yet how to kill viruses so if you become infected with HIV, HPV, herpes or hepatitis B, you are infected for life. Treatment of these infections is aimed at control, not cure. Sometimes surgery is required to remove abnormal cervical tissue or genital warts. Your partner may also need to be treated so that you don't get reinfected:----

You can find out more about STDs from your doctor or by calling the local health department for confidential advice, testing and treatment.

Maria Kopicki, M.D., is a practicing physician at the Northville Health Center, the University of Michigan Health System. If you have questions, please call (810) 344-1777.

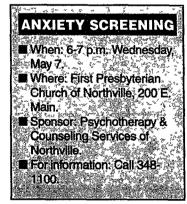

Local office takes part in anxiety screening day

More than 23 million Americans suffer from an anxiety disorder and nearly a quarter of all people in the United States will suffer from clinical anxiety at some point in their lives. Sadly, only about 25 percent of anxiety sufferers will seek treatment for their illnesses.

According to recent studies, anxiety is a major health care problem in the country, costing the economy more than $47 billion annually, nearly one-third of the nation's total mental health bill. These dollars were not spent on effective treatments, but were lost because of social and economic costs such as worker absenteeism and job loss, as well as alcohol and substance abuse.

Typical symptoms of anxiety disorders include a sudden, uncontrollable attack of terror that can manifest itself with heart palpitations and rapid heart rate, dizziness, shortness of breath, and an out-of-control or extremely frightening feeling.

Additional symptoms may include excessive worry, a general feeling of irritability and restlessness, difficulty concentrating, repeated intrusive and unwanted thoughts of ritualized behavior, and similar symptoms of anxiety.

Anxiety disorders, which include panic disorder and agoraphobia, obsessive-compulsive disorder, generalized anxiety disorder, chronic excessive worry, social phobias and post-traumatic stress disorder, are America's most common mental health concern.

On May 7, thousands of people across the country will participate in a free program which can help them learn more about panic disorder and other anxieties. The program will include viewing a video, completing a screening questionnaire and meeting with a qualified mental health professional to review the questionnaire and get information about anxiety.

Locally, Psychotherapy & Counseling Services, P.C., of Northville, has again been invited to take part in National Anxiety Disorders Screening Day.

"Abnormal anxiety is a tremendously impairing problem shared by millions, of Americans regardless of age or socio-economic background. As incredible as it may seem, nearly a quarter of the American population will have an anxiety disorder at some point in their lifetime," said Stephen Paul Stocker, who co-founded Psychotherapy & Counseling Services in 1981 and who serves as the director of its Center for Anxiety Disorders.

Stocker indicated that the screening will take place on May 7 from 6 to 7 p.m. at First Presbyterian Church of Northville, 200 E. Main.

For additional information or to register, call Stephen Paul Stocker at Psychotherapy & Counseling Services at (810) 348-1100.

New option offered in mortgages

By James M. Woodard Copley News Service

In the wake of recent stock market gyrations, including some ominous plunges, many people are taking a new look at other investment options.

One option, long established as the best form of investment for most families, is homeownership. Even though home values decreased in most regions during the early 1990s, homeownership continues to be the best, most secure of all long-term family investments. Perhaps that's why home sales remain active in most areas, despite slightly increasing mortgage interest rates.

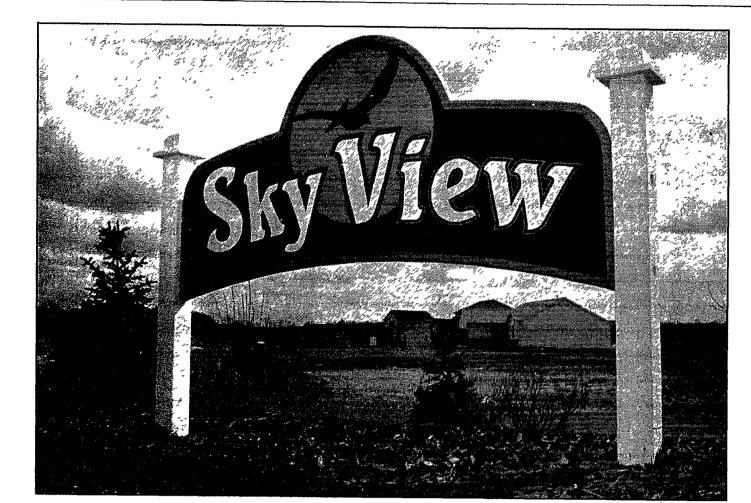

One home mortgage plan. recently introduced in the United States, makes a home purchase even more viable as an investment vehicle. It accumulates cash value with every payment. Thus, a family's investment in a home purchase pays off both in equity buildup (as home values increase) and in its home mortgage instrument.

The plan is an interest-only mortgage loan, tied to a universal moregage loan, hed to a universal life insurance policy, that accu-mulates enough value on a tax-deferred basis during its 30-year term to pay off the loan balance and provide the borrower with a substantial excess cash payment.

This mortgage concept now represents the loan of choice in the United Kingdom. The plan offered in the United States is called the "Money-Back Home Loan." Here's how it works:

The principal balance does not amortize (reduce) with each loan payment. It remains the same throughout the loan's term, even though the monthly payments are about the same as would be paid with a traditional home mortgage.

Instead, the money that would normally be used to reduce the principal is allocated to a special life insurance policy that builds cash value with each payment. At the end of the term, there is enough cash value accumulated Fowlerville has been relatively untouched by the wave of new housing developments sweeping the county. A local builder hopes to change that with plans for a new subdivision in Handy Township.

It's certainly no secret that several communities in Livingston County specifically, Brighton, Howell, Hartland and Pinckney, have been experiencing a boom in the new housing market in recent years.

Indeed, a drive through any one of those communities would confirm that trend. Subdivision developments some near completion, others just breaking ground and still others in the planning stages — are springing up everywhere.

And yet, for one community situated on the western end of Livingston County, that-hasn't quite been the case. While Fowlerville is feeling the ripple effect of the growth from its neighboring communities, thus far it has not been translated into a surge of new housing developments or a steady influx of new residents.

But a Fowlerville builder has plans to change that with a new subdivision located in Handy Township. Don Culver, owner of Culver in the fund to pay off the loan, plus provide a cash payment or income stream to the borrower.

The cash payment at the end of the term can be quite substantial. In some cases it's enough to provide the down payment on another home, but can be used for any purpose desired by the borrower.

As an alternative benefit, the borrower could use the growing fund to pay off the loan early. Typically, a 30-year loan can be paid off in about 20 years using this system.

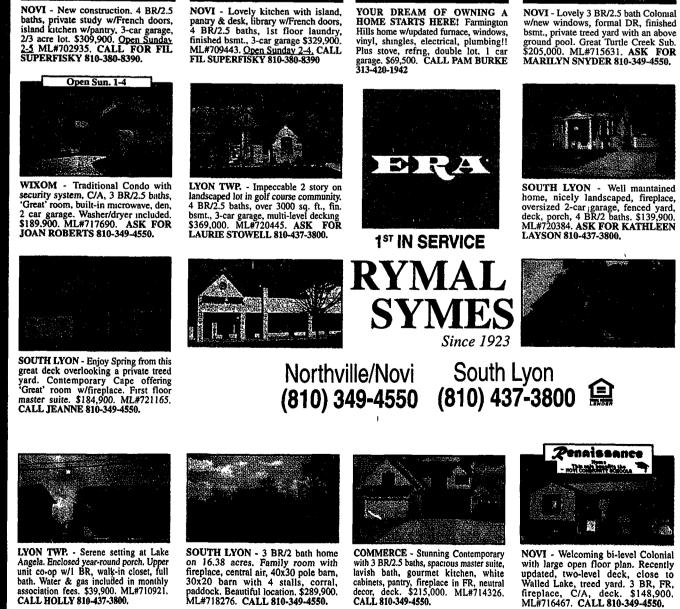

The loan also is appealing to many borrowers because of the tax benefit it offers. Since the principal balance does not reduce. the tax-deductible interest portion of each payment remains at its highest level.

These loans also are insured. If the borrower dies during the mortgage term, the loan is paid off by the insurance company. That means the family home passes debt-free to the heirs.

"The response we've been receiving to the Money-Back Home Loan in recent weeks is very encouraging," said Roger M. Pell, executive vice president of Investment Mortgage Corp., the firm offering the loan in the Unit-ed States. "And an increasing number of contacts from prospective borrowers are expressing special interest in the investment benefits of the plan."

This hydraulic barber's chair, made in the 1930s, is probably worth about $1,000 to $1,500.

Barber chair valuable garage sale find

By Anne McCollam Copley News Service

Q. Enclosed is a picture of a hydraulic barber chair that I bought at a garage sale. The frame of the chair is porcelain-covered cast iron. It appears that the upholstery has been replaced. Could you please tell me the value of my chair? A. Barbershop chairs are hot seats to collectors. They prefer chairs with no cracks in the porcelain and in a general good condition.

Your circa 1930 hydraulic chair is worth about $1,000 to $1,500. That should pump you up!

Q. Enclosed is the mark on the bottom of a flower frog that belonged to my mother around 1940. There is a blue bird with an orange beak sitting on top of an amber base. The glaze has an iridescent sheen to it.

What can you tell me about my flower frog?

A. The mark you provided is just one of the many thousand Japanese marks used in the 1900s. The luster glaze and orange beak are clues that this is an early piece.

Your circa 1940 figural flower frog would probably be worth about $20 to $30.

Q. Recently I picked up a small pottery jardiniere at a yard sale. It is round with small handles on each side. There is silver paper label on it with the word "Roseville." The jardiniere is decorated with dark-blue berries and green leaves and is about 4 inches tall.

Could you please let me know the year it was made and what value it may have?

A. Your jardiniere was made by Roseville Pottery Co., Zanesville, Ohio. The pattern is "Blackberry" and was introduced in 1933.

Its value would probably be about $125 to $225.

> Q. I hope you can tell me the age and the approximate value of my Mary Gregory vase. My grandmother bought it at an antique shop about 20 years ago. It is blue, decorated with white enamel and about 14 inches tall. On one side is a young girl holding a flower in front of a mirror and on the other side is a sprig of delicate flowers. There is no manufacturer's mark

A. Most Mary Gregory-type glass was made in Europe and exported to the United States. By the 1880s it was produced by The Boston & Sandwich Glass Co. This type of enameled glassware has been attributed to one of their employees, Mary Gregory. Some experts disagree with this claim.

One well-known antiques authority suggests using the following criteria to authenticate Mary Gregory glassware. The enameling must be white, the figure must be a child with one leg that seems longer than the other, only one arm visible, fernlike foliage in front of and behind the figure, and the child should be standing on a cloudlike patch.

In any event, your early 1900s vase is a desirable collectible. Its value would probably be about $295 to $395.

Q. I have a teapot that was purchased in the late 1900s. It is turquoise with a white handle and lid. On the bottom are the words Del Rey - Poppytrail - Metlox -Vernon.

Please provide some information on my teapot.

A. Your teapot was made by Metlox Potteries, Manhattan Beach, Calif. They were in business from 1927 to 1989.

Poppytrail, the name of a line of dinnerware that was introduced in 1932, became their trademark in 1936. The California state flower is the poppy, thus the name.

The pattern "Del Rey" was introduced in 1955. In 1958 Vernon Kilns dinnerware molds and trade name were acquired by Metlox.

Your teapot is listed at $115 to $125 in "Collector's Encyclopedia of Metlox Potteries" by Carl Gibbs Jr.

Graceful Stella well-suited to those with active lifestyle

By James McAlexander Copley News Service

An attractive lap siding, highlighted by brick and lattice trim, creates an exterior blend that enhances the curb appeal of the graceful Stella. Featuring an angled design that requires a wide lot, the floor plan of the Stella spreads 2,330 square feet of functional living space throughout a one-level home suited to an active lifestyle.

The central gathering spot in the Stella has been designated a "great space." Dividing the primary and secondary sleeping areas, the great space is perfect for casual entertaining and daily family interaction. Vaulted ceilings, skylights and lots of windows combine to make this large, bright area a sure favorite. Watch the latest video on the raised television, while the fireplace keeps the chill out of the air.

The walk-through kitchen is separated from the main section of the room by a convenient eating bar. Informal meals may be eaten here or in the adjacent breakfast nook, without the cook in the family feeling left out of the fun.

A walk-in pantry, lined with shelves, affords ample storage room for dry goods. When the sun is shining, there are two railed decks available for outdoor enjoyment.

The isolated master suite occupies the left side of the Stella. Large and well-appointed, your privacy is ensured. Amenities here include a roomy walk-in closet, vaulted ceiling and private bathroom with twin basins and a spa.

The two secondary bedrooms are on the opposite side of the home. The front one is somewhat larger and would serve nicely as guest accommodations. The smaller bedroom, if not needed as sleeping quarters, can easily be converted for use as a home office. The bedrooms are divided by a full bathroom; linen storage is available across the hall.

The formal areas are toward the front. The vaulted dining room fashions an atmosphere that will make any mealtime a pleasure. After dinner, savor coffee and conversation in the living room, where a big bay window displays an impressive view.

A very large utility room, with built-in ironing board, sink and access to the garage, completes the floor plan.

Self-sowing hollyhocks create attractive clusters

By C.Z. Guest Copley News Service

Q. I have just been given some hollyhock seeds. Please tell me when to plant them and how.

A. Hollyhocks are a cinch to plant from seed. The seeds may be planted either in a cold frame or in the open ground in late July or early August. Since hollyhocks are biennial, they'll bloom the following season. (Some of the newer dwarf varieties bloom the first year.)

Plant in full sun, 2 to 3 feet apart in Zones 3 to 9. Because they self-sow quite liberally, they often create lovely colonies in a garden.

Q. Two years ago, I started a compost pile consisting solely of grass and overripe tomatoes. This year, I put all the compost in my garden and turned it over in the soil and in the flower borders.

Now that I have planted my vegetable and flower garden I have about 100 tomato plants growing in the garden. Is it possible that the spoiled tomatoes reseeded and caused all these plants to grow?

to Gardening" A. My dear, it is true that where the seeds fall, the plants grow! Congratulations on your GARDENING new gardening system.

9. Our 23-year-old weeping willow is top tall and makes too much shade across our patio. Last spring we had it topped, without damage, and now would like to know how low we can cut it.

A. Cut and shape your willow the way you like it. To keep the strength at the top of the tree, always remove the suckers from the trunk. Spring is the best time to fertilize; water deeply two or three times a week.

Q. I have some dogwood trees that I would like to prune. What is the proper time to prune them so they won't bleed?

A. The dormant season is a good time to prune dogwoods, as well as many other landscape trees. It's a time of year you can see the branching pattern of the tree without the leaves interfering, so it's easier to make decisions as to which branches should be pruned and which should stay.

Dogwoods usually bleed if pruned in late winter. However, never fear: Bleeding will not harm the trees.

New subdivision offers moderately-priced housing

Builders, has high hopes that by offering moderately priced housing in a small country subdivision setting, he will begin to turn the tide and attract new residents to Fowlerville.

The new subdivision, Skyview, is the first of its kind for the Fowlerville area. Located approximately two miles northwest of downtown Fowlerville and four miles from I-96 (south of Converse Road and just west of Nicholson Road), Skyview is a single-family site condominium development.

While Culver points out that there has been some new home construction in the Fowlerville area, he adds that is has been restricted to a few higher-end homes constructed on large parcels out in the country, rather than in subdivision developments.

Unlike Brighton and Hartland, where new home construction frequently exceeds the $200,000 mark, Culver sees a different market for Fowlerville. Homes in Skyview will range in the "moderate to above-moderate" category, which is more in line with the Fowlerville area, says Culver.

32 "Its hard to build a, Hartland house or a ... "Brighton house down here because the money is not willing to come out here, "Culver says.

Developed by Don's brother, Dave Culver of S&D Development, the 75-acre development offers 28 lots ranging in size from eight-tenths of an acre up to 10 acres, with lot prices ranging from $32,000 to $48,000.

The parcel, a former cornfield — and incidentally, part of the Culver brothers' family farmstead — comes by its name naturally. It has a wide, open feel and fills the eye with vistas of the sky.

Construction began last fall and there are currently six spec homes up, one of which has already been sold. Harmon Real Estate of Fowlerville is listing the spec homes.

The homes range in size from a 1,350square-foot ranch (the minimum size for the subdivision) to a 1,670-square-foot, two-story model. The base prices start at $137,000 for the ranch and $165,000 for the two-story.

The base home package is fairly complete for this price range. It includes: a two-car garage, two baths, full basement, Tyvek housewrap, vinyl windows, R-11 wall insulation, R-38 ceiling insulation, insulated steel entry doors, wainscot brick, 75-foot asphalt driveway, six panel doors, base and casement moldings, oak cabinets, dishwasher and prewired cabel TV and phone. In addition, the subdivision is hooked up to natural gas.

Features like fireplaces, bay windows and decks can be added at an additional cost.

Kitchen cabinets, flooring, carpeting and the like can be upgraded, also at an additional cost.

Although Culver has several home designs to choose from, he encourages buyers to bring their own plans, and, if they choose, their own a builders. He believes that limiting the home designs in the subdivision to just a handful, they which is common among some builders, a results in a cookie-culter appearance, some thing he d like to avoid.

"Being this is our old farmstead here and " we'll probably be around here for all our lives, " it would be nice to drive through here...and see different styles of houses,"Culver said.

Culver estimates it will take several years to complete the subdivision. In the meantime, the man who once farmed the land he's now building on must be hoping there's truth in the phrase, "If you build it, they will come."

Good memories start here, in a new Adler home community. A place to enjoy life's celebrations, both large and small...birthdays, barbecues, family reunions, or just a quiet moment with someone special. Adler communities are home to people just like you. People of all ages who know the value of a well built home and good times shared by friends. So come create some memories of your own in one of Adler's fine communities.

Show Your Intentions!

How high up is up? How much earnest money is enough when buying a home? Both are questions to which answers are difficult.

Once you select a home and prepare to sign a purchase agreement, the earnest money deposit is a question begging to be answered. You may be surprised to learn the amount is negotiable between buyers and sellers. There is no set amount required.

There is, however, a rationale for determining the appropriate amount to be offered. It's a simple approach too. Offer enough to convince the sellers you are a serious motivated buyer with full intentions to complete the purchase.

Keep in mind that to the owners of a home priced at $123,000, a deposit of $300 will probably not offer much reassurance of your intentions, and may result in rejection of an other-

And a state of the second of the state of the state of the second of the wise acceptable offer.

The more complex your offer, and the more concessions expected from the sellers in your offer, the more important it is to include a hefty deposit figure, say $2,500, $5,000 or even $10,000.

If you are committed to the purchase, let your actions reflect those intentions. After all, the deposit is a portion of the down payment you will make at closing anyway.

In the case of multiple offers, sellers often accept the one which appears most committed. Let that be you.

Brickscape sets Rose Fest for coming week

Brickscape Gardens, on the border between Northville and Novi. will hold Rose Fest '97, May 10 and 11, to introduce its extensive new brick and flower garden.

HOMETOWN

EAST

To make room for the extended ardens. DiRado tore down the house that had been home for him and his wife, Diane, when they launched Brickscape Gardens 11 years ago.

More than 20,000 brick pavers are in the master design of feature circles and paths among spring flowers and plants in the almostone-acre garden. The garden is part of Brickscape's master plan. which includes adjacent property it purchased this winter.

Rose Fest '97, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. each day, will introduce Brickscape's new spring stock of 1,000 rose plants of some 100 different varieties. Brickscape handies first quality Jackson & Perkins roses exclusively. Three of the varieties - "Artistry."

'Scentimental" and Timeless" are the 1997 winners in the All-American Rose Selections Inc. competition.

Brickscape Gardens owner Joe DiRado planned the event for Mother's Day weekend because past experience shows people like to get out for a ride and go to events on that weekend.

Mother's Day gifts, and mom can select her own at the event that weekend, according to DiRado.

course - will be served each day and a harpist will provide the background music for strolling and rose viewing.

gardener. Barbara Reichard, and media celebrity gardeners will be on hand to give advice and chat with gardeners.

Rose-related items will also be featured, including special rose handling gloves of leather or rubber with cuffs and Salt Marsh pottery containing impressions of live roses.

Brickscape Gardens is located on Brickscape Drive (formerly Old Novi Road). just north of Eight Mile Road and just east of Novi Road on the border between Northville and Novi.

Further information on the festival is available by phoning (810) 348-2500.

Getting a facelift The West Oaks Shopping Center in Novi is planning a major renovation to bring the mall into the 21st century. Built in 1981, the center owned by Ramco-Gershenson will tear down and reconstructing the front facades of the center portion of the building, from Service Merchandise to K mart. The new look will resemble the Circuit City renovation on the east-end of the complex, completed last year. Office Max and Designer Shoe Warehouse will take over the spaces formerly occupied by Rite Aid and smaller shops. Half-Off Card Shop will remain. Nearly 11,000 square feet will be added.

CERTIFICATION COURSE

The Michigan Employment Security Agency, the Greater Oakland County Employers' Council and Walsh College Business and Professional Development have joined forces to offer the 1997 Basic Unemployment Insurance Certification for area employers. Three courses in taxation and three courses covering the new requirements in unemployment insurance will be offered. All six sessions are required to complete the certification. Participants are encouraged to register for all classes but may enroll for individual courses. The charge for each individual session is $45. The six course series is $240. An Employer Handbook is free to persons who enroll in a minimum of three sessions. Sessions will be held on Tuesday mornings from 8 to 10 a.m. starting on May 6, and going through June 17, on the Walsh College Troy campus, 3838 Livernois, Troy. Free parking and continental breakfast will be provided.

The instructors for these courses are Neil Zechman, administrative law examiner, chief of Appeals and Interpretative Standards, MESA, Detroit; and Carol Fletcher, director, tax services, customer services, MESA, Detroit. Individual classes offer two CPE credits or two CEU credits. Enrollment is limited. For registration or additional information call Walsh College: (810) 689-8282, extension 260.

The dates and topics for the six classes are:

 May 6 – Establishing a Claim for Benefits: Who's Covered and When You are Charged.

• May 13 - Eligibility and Qualifications for Benefits: Discover How to Avoid Charges.

• May 20 - The Appeal Process: Be the One with the Best Chance of Winning an Appeal.

• June 3 – Unemployment Tax Liabilities: What You Have to Pay and Why.

• June 10 – MESA Quarterly Reporting Requirements: Or How to Avoid Penalties.

June 17 - How MESA Determines State and Federal Tax Rates: Up-to-Date Details.

Tax planning should be a year round activity. But, if you didn't get around to doing all you had hoped, it's not too late to improve your tax life. The key is to do a thorough job of identifying deductions so you don't miss opportunities to save tax dollars. To help you get started, the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants offers the following list of dos and don'ts for making the most of deductions available to you.

Do deduct-interest you pay on home equity lines of credit. Although personal interest is no longer deductible, you may deduct interest on up to $100,000 of debt secured by your house, regardless of how you use the money. Do deduct all state and local taxes you paid. Also, if you bought or sold a house, be sure to deduct the portion of the year's real estate taxes you were charged on your closing statement. It's easy to forget this deduction because you don't write a separate check - the taxes are deducted from the sales proceeds or included in the amount you pay at settlement.

INVESTMENT INTEREST

ODYSSEV

Do deduct investment interest. If you borrowed money to buy investments, the interest is deductible as investment interest - limited to the year's net investment income.

Do claim a deduction for transportation costs and out-of-pocket expenses you incur in connection with charity volunteer work. The cost of mileage, telephone calls and supplies, such as stationery and stamps, are all deductible. If you failed to keep track last year, be sure to start a tax-deduction diary this year.

INSURANCE PREMIUMS

Do deduct your health insurance premiums if you are self-employed. You may deduct 30 percent of the premiums you paid. This amount will increase to 80 percent over a ten-year period. The deduction is treated as an adjustment to income, so you get the tax benefit whether or not you itemize. Keep in mind that the deduction is limited to the earned income from your business

Do deduct half the self-employment tax you pay if you are selfemployed. This amount is also deductible as an adjustment to gross income on your Form 1040. According to the IRS, this is one of the most frequently overlooked tax your cost basis by the amount of dividends that were reinvested. Increasing your basis reduces your taxable gain.

DONATIONS TO CHARITIES

Don't forget to take a deduction for used clothing and other property you donate to charity. The fair market value of old clothes, furniture, household items and books that you give to charity is deductible. Just be sure to have a receipt from the charity to substantiate your donation.

Don't assume that your miscellaneous expenses are not deductible. Although tax law allows you to deduct only those miscellaneous expenses that exceed 2 percent of your Adjusted Gross Income if you itemize your deductions, it is often easier to reach this threshold than you may originally think. Take the time to total unreimbursed employee business expenses like dues to unions and professional associations, tax preparation advice, and investment-related costs, such as investment advice, IRA or Keogh custodial fees, and safe deposit rentals for boxes used to store investment-related documents. You may surprise yourself with a deduction.

EDITOR'S

Letter

Dear Readers,

y mother died while I was writing this issue. It's too early to reflect on the loss, the sadness, the missing female connection that was always there. Losing a parent is a profound experience for anyone; it changes your life.

Which brings me to how I believe my mother's ended. Not the very end when doctors and nurses tried valiantly to keep her well, ensure her comfort, and try to help her recover so she could return to us. I mean the long, steady decline she experienced as a result of multiple ailments - asthma, arthritis and heart problems.

My father tells me she was frail as a young woman and her "risk factors" were serious: both her parents died young of heart disease. Yet, what I think really affected her life was the kind of health care she received -- and practiced. In her day, women were passive recipients of medicine; the doctor's opinion ruled. There wasn't the abundance of health care literature and no one promoted fitness, prevention or alternative therapies.

In addition, drugs were the main prescription for disease. My mother was treated for asthma with enormous amounts of steroids, which subsequently damaged her bones and other tissues, leaving her weak and in pain. And, she smoked, drank, ate poorly, worried a lot and probably got very little sleep. She lived life to the utmost, had tremendous drive and creativity. But she wasn't informed about her health and watched helplessly as it declined.

Today, as a result of remarkable medical advances, the life expectancy of women reaches into the 80s. A woman in her early 40s can safely have a baby, and a woman of 54 could be entering the job market for the first time or starting a college education.

The point is we're dealing with a different health care environment than my mother did. It isn't only that we're living longer, but that we have a lot to say about how we live. In terms of health and fitness, we are probably better informed than any group of people at any time in history, and therefore better able to control the quality of our lives.

It's up to us.

This issue on women's health care is dedicated to my mother. We hope it is helpful and inspiring.

In good health,

Cathy Smilie Cathy J. Smillie

BE GOOD TO YOUR BODY AND KIND TO YOUR MIND: A GUIDE TO WOMEN'S HEALTH

ary Elizabeth Roth, M.D. is chair of Family Practice at Providence Hospital and Medical Centers, where she coordinates all the privileges and activities of 75 family practice physicians and 32 residents. She is head of Family Practice at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ann Arbor, where she's responsible for ensuring the quality of medical care practiced by the physicians who report to her. She's involved in community outreach activities for Providence, and in her own practice, she specializes in women's health care, geriatrics, behavioral medicine and cancer. She is president-elect of the American Cancer Society.

And that's just her professional time.

Sound familiar? Probably. Perhaps, your job description is not as daunting as Dr. Roth's, but it's likely that each day you face as many tasks, duties, responsibilities and challenges.

What about family? Friends? Volunteering for community causes? Housework? Involvement with your children's school and extra-curricular events? And where do you find time for your own spiritual growth, social life and physical well-being?

For many of us, our schedules are so packed, our energy is so dissipated, that life becomes a struggle against stress and exhaustion.

ROLE STRAIN

"Role strain" is what Dr. Roth calls the results of the complex lives women lead these days, and role strain is making us sick.

In a U.S. Department of Labor survey, more than 60 percent of the women balancing a job and family reported that stress was a serious problem in their lives. Unhealthy responses to stress — driving too fast, drinking too much, or bottling up anger and grief — can take their toll on your health.

Automobile accidents, high blood pressure, gastrointestinal upset, headaches, chronic muscle tension, weakening of the immune system and heart disease all have been clearly linked to stress. A number of other factors also play their part in sapping our energy: smoking, drinking, convenience foods and caffeine. Our lifestyles lead to low blood sugar problems, obesity, allergies, chronic fatigue syndrome and a lowered immune system. "The lifestyles my patients live and the stresses in their lives are causing medical wear and tear," says Dr. Roth, citing high blood pressure caused by stress; gall bladder problems, obesity and health risks associated with poor diet; and increasing evidence of heart disease.

IT'S UP TO US

According to the National Center for Health Statistics, the average American woman will live to age 79. How healthy, active and productive those 79 years are is up to us.

This means reading health education literature and keeping abreast of the latest medical findings. This means taking charge of our own health — to make sure we're receiving the best treatment, to diagnose disease before it turns deadly, and to ward off illness before it strikes.

"I talk to my patients about balancing opportunities," says Dr. Roth. "I suggest they do a yearly inventory of priorities, including medical, social and community support. They should include in age-appropriate medical checks, and look at the risk factors in their family."

"It's your choice," she says. "It's never too late to start making positive changes. Empower yourself to do something for your own life." Read on to see how.

PRACTICE PREVENTION

About half of the 2.1 million deaths that occur each year in this country are preventable.

For example, the American Heart Association reports that heart attack is now the number one killer of women. In the past, most women and their physicians regarded heart problems as a minor threat, but that attitude is changing. The result: more women are becoming aware of the risks and they're changing their lives accordingly.

Everyday, the activities we engage in, the food we eat, the exercise choices we make, the medical care we seek — all determine whether we'll live longer and stay healthy. Here's how you can practice prevention:

exams every year, a blood-pressure check at least once every two years, and a total blood cholesterol reading at least once every five years. Include eye exams in your schedule, and, unless you and your partner are in a long-term, monogamous relationship, you should get tested regularly for HIV/AIDS and sexually transmitted diseases.

QUIT SMOKING

Lung cancer killed almost 65,000 women last year and has increased by more than 400 percent over the past 30 years. Lung cancer is almost always caused by smoking.

• GET HEALTH

SCREENINGS REGULARLY Whether it's for mammograms, pap tests or colon-cancer screenings, you should create a schedule with your physician and stick to it. All women should have pelvic and clinical breast

• STAY IN THE SHADE

There are more than 800,000 cases of skin cancer reported each year. When it's sunny outside, it's wise to stay inside between the hours of 10 a.m. and 2 p.m., especially in the summer.

WOMEN'S HEALTH, from page 5

That's the time when the sun is most likely to cause carcinomas - or deadly melanomas, which are increasing in number despite warnings to stay out of the sun. The American Medical Association reports that people can greatly decrease their risk of developing precancerous skin lesions by using sunscreens with an SPF of at least 15 all through the year. However, physicians are concerned that people are relying too much on sunscreen for protection; it's best to do both.

DON'T GET FAT

Obesity — being 30 percent or more over your ideal weight — increases the risk of diabetes, hypertension, high cholesterol, heart disease and possibly some cancers.

GET OFF THE COUCH

According to studies at the Cooper Institute for Aerobics Research, active people live up to two years longer than inactive ones. Thirty minutes of moderate physical activity each day can help reduce the risk of diabetes, heart disease and breast cancer.

PROTECT YOURSELF

According to an American Medical Association report on women and children, four million women are battered every year and a child is abused every 13 seconds. It takes only one slap, shove, or punch to begin a downward spiral of violence. If you are in danger because of an abusive partner or family member, contact the police, your doctor, a neighbor or friend, a domestic violence shelter or a local hotline.

• PLAY IT SAFE

Unintentional injuries, like car accidents, are the third leading cause of death in women aged 35 to 54. Resolve to wear your seat belts in the car and a helmet when biking, skating, horse-back riding or skateboarding. Install smoke detectors on each floor of your house, and you may want to get your home tested for radon, a clear, odorless gas that's responsible for thousands of lung-cancer deaths each year.

AND DON'T FORGET TO LAUGH The Journal of the American Medical Association reports that laughing can have positive physical effects on the body including increasing the amount of oxygen in the blood, providing limited muscle conditioning, and causing a temporary increase in the heart rate and blood pressure. Most important, it feels good!

CHECKING OUT YOUR DOCTOR

"Demand management" health care is what Dr. Roth sees when her patients take an active part in keeping themselves well. "These patients take responsibility for their own bodies, and they tell me what it takes to keep them healthy, rather than the other way around," she says. To become your own health care advocate, you need to establish a relationship of mutual respect with a physician you can trust.

LEARN ABOUT YOUR DOCTOR BEFORE STEPPING INSIDE THE EXAMING ROOM

What are their credentials? Check to see if they are board certified in their field of practice, which means they have met extra requirements set by the American Medical Association. Understand where they stand on medical issues such as birth control and family planning, estrogen replacement, even abortion.

April Tyler, D.O., family practice physician with Medical Associates of Grand Blanc, meets first time patients in her office before they enter the examining room and disrobe. There, she gets to know a little about their families and life styles, and she shares with them her approach to health care. This kind of respect for the patient promotes good communication and effective treatment.

Word of mouth is the number one method people use (especially women) to select doctors. Talk to your friends, they'll tell you about their experiences and recommend good doctors.

WHEN CAN YOUR DOCTOR SEE YOU?

It's no good finding a great doctor if her practice is closed for the next six months, or you can't get an appointment when you need to. Find a physician whose office hours are flexible enough to accommodate your schedule. Look for good response time: Once you get an appointment, how long do you wait to be seen? Does your doctor return your calls (or have a nurse call you) promptly? Are there simple mechanisms in place to renew prescriptions and get referrals?

MAKE SURE YOUR DOCTOR LISTENS TO YOU

According to an analysis by the American Society of Internal Medicine, as many as 70 percent of correct diagnoses depend on what the patient tells the doctor. Yet, patients are fearful of clearly describing their symptoms, and may shut down completely if the doctor interrupts or begins firing questions at them. It's a good idea to write down your symptoms and questions before you come in so you won't become distracted during your exam.

BE PREPARED

If you have been diagnosed with an illness, review a medical encyclopedia or textbook to learn as much as you can about your disease (and its vocabulary). Take notes, and be sure you understand any treatment options being prescribed for you. In some cases, it's best to think over recommendations when you get home and have time to reflect. This allows you to dialogue with your doctor in an intelligent manner, acting as a partner rather than a passive observer.

FIND OUT WHERE YOU WILL BE HOSPITALIZED

Be sure your doctor has privileges with a hospital that is high-quality, convenient and approved by your health plan.

REVIEW YOUR RECORDS

You have the right to all of your medical records. Request them if you have questions; your curiosity will reveal that you are an active participant in your own health care.

DON'T BE AFRAID OF SEEKING A SECOND OPINION

When facing a serious illness, or complicated treatment, it's a good idea to get another opinion. Don't be afraid of offending your doctor. It's your body, and as a consumer, you have a right to select options.

WE ARE WHAT WE EAT

Eating right is one of the most important things you can do to stay healthy and live longer. A balanced diet — high in grains, vegetables and fruits, and low in fat and cholesterol — can reduce the risk of premature death from our biggest killers — heart disease, stroke and some cancers.

Research shows that antioxidant-rich foods filled with beta-carotene and vita-~ C and E seem to slow aging, boost h. nity and prevent cell damage leading to ncer, cardiovascular disease and brain dysfunction. Carrots, sweet potatoes, cantaloupe, spinach, broccoli and tomatoes are rich in beta carotene and vitamin C; whole grains, nuts and seeds contain vitamin E.

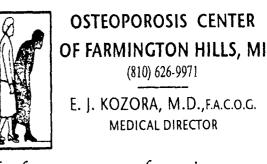

Calcium keeps bones strong and may lower blood pressure and help prevent colon cancer. Experts recommend 1,000 mg a day for pre-menopausal women and post menopausal women taking hormones, 1,200 mg for those who are pregnant and lactating, and 1,500 mg for post menopausal women not on hormone replacement therapy. Calcium is available in low-fat and nonfat dairy products, salmon and sardines (with bones) and broccoli.

If you drink, do so in moderation. Some studies show a link between alcohol and breast cancer, and drinking also raises your risk of alcohol abuse.

According to dietary guidelines published by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, maintaining a consistent weight is another way to stay healthy. If you need to lose weight, avoid crash diets and opt for changing your lifestyle to accommodate smart food choices and exercise.

EXERCISE MATTERS

At the heart of good health is exercise. It puts a spring in your step, a glow on your skin, helps keep your weight under control, and makes you sleep better. It also strengthens your bones, tones the muscles (especially the heart muscle), improves circulation, oxygenates the blood and raises the levels of endorphins, those little feel-good hormones. Exercise gives you more than fitness, it gives you freedom — to be able to run, to work unfatigued, to wear what you want because your clothes fit. When you see a woman in shape, her vitality, her energy is unmistakable.

More good news. You don't have to face exercise with: "Oh no! One more thing I have to cram into my overloaded schedule!" New physical activity recommendations made by the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and the American College of Sports Medicine state that every adult should exercise for 30 minutes seven days a week. However, you can get those 30 minutes in short bouts of activity throughout the day: taking the stairs instead of the elevator, gardening, housework, a brisk walk at lunch, stretching in the morning before your shower, parking away from a building (except at night) and walking to your car.

The idea is to move your body! The key to deriving benefits from exercise it to make sure it's done regularly, and it's robust enough to get your heart pumping.

If you do have the time and inclination to plan a fitness routine, experts recommend it consists of three components: fat burning/cardiovascular fitness (walking, running, aerobics, swimming, hiking, etc.); strength training (resistance machines and weights); and flexibility (stretching, yoga). The "perfect" workout would include all three, last from 45 minutes to an hour, and happen at least three times each week.

BEATING FATIGUE

One in seven visits to a physician concerns a chronic tiredness that won't go away. This isn't the satisfying exhaustion of healthy exercise, it's the draining weariness that leaves you feeling permanently washed out. To make matters worse, a good night's sleep fails to help you feel rested. Women who are juggling multiple demands are most prone to this kind of fatigue. The first step in recovery is understanding why you are tired:

Pathological fatigue results in weakness that can follow an illness or indicate an underlying disease such as a defective thyroid, anemia or immune system problems. If you experience prolonged fatigue of this kind, see your doctor.

Psychological fatigue affects sleeping habits — either getting too much or too little — and is accompanied by feelings of hope-lessness, bouts of sadness and crying, or frightening panic attacks. Depression may be the cause, and counseling may help. Check with your doctor to rule out physical causes, then seek counseling.

Physical fatigue comes from working too hard, not getting enough sleep or over-exercising. The solution is to slow down, relax and get more sleep. To ensure a good night's sleep, try the following:

• STREAMLINE YOUR SCHEDULE

Look carefully at your days and begin to rid yourself of extraneous activities that sap your energy and keep you distracted. Include time in your new schedule for exercising, relaxation and plenty of rest.

SHARE THE HOUSEHOLD RESPONSIBILITIES WITH YOUR PARTNER AND CHILDREN

Sit down together and divide up the chores, then stick to your plan! Your job is not to supervise their portion of the work, even if it's not done to your particular standards. The idea is to let go.

GO TO BED AT A REGULAR TIME IN A ROOM THAT IS DARK, QUIET AND WELL VENTILATED

Reserve your bedroom for sleeping and making love; don't watch TV in bed or carry your lap-top in there for more work. And, avoid using your bed as a play area where the kids and pets gather for fun.

• RELAX

Whether it's counting sheep, deep breathing, visualizing or meditation, empty the day from your head and slow yourself down. Some people enjoy flexing, then relaxing each of their muscles from head to toes. Forget the complications of the previous day and the responsibilities of the next. Then just sn-o-o-o-ze...

• WATCH WHAT YOU EAT

Some people believe that a glass of milk helps them sleep, others think carbohydrates promote drowsiness. Researchers have yet to discover any foods that really put you to sleep. The best advice is: Don't go to bed either too hungry or too full.

• AVOID SLEEPING PILLS

Fewer and fewer sleep specialists prescribe sedatives because they can be habit forming, and they replace more natural, nondrug solutions to insomnia. Even the over-the-counter brands can leave you feeling drowsy, instead of refreshed.

YOU DESERVE A BREAK

Relaxing--really taking time by yourself and for yourself-- is as vital to your health as productive activity. Learning to relax means recognizing when your body needs rest and your mind needs a break. By not paying attention, you open yourself to burn-out and chronic illness. Far from being indulgent, taking a break and letting go helps clear your mind and lift away stress and tension. Giving yourself the special gift of time and attention will help replenish your energy, fuel your creativity and leave you feeling calm and refreshed. You deserve a break! Here's how to take it: book to let yourself cry.

TAKE A NEWS FAST

Dr. Andrew Weil, in his best-seller Spontaneous Healing, suggests we take a break from the news. World events can weigh heavily on your mind and either frighten or depress you. To recover, take at least one day each week and avoid the newspapers, television and news radio.

READ FOR INSPIRATION

Dr. Weil also suggests you find books in the areas of spirituality, religion, self-help and poetry to heighten your awareness, learn something new and feel inspired.

SPEND TIME WITH PEOPLE WHO MAKE YOU FEEL GOOD

Again from Dr. Weil, avoid people who leave you feeling tired or uncomfortable. Interesting, lively, amusing friends and acquaintances can add vitality to your life.

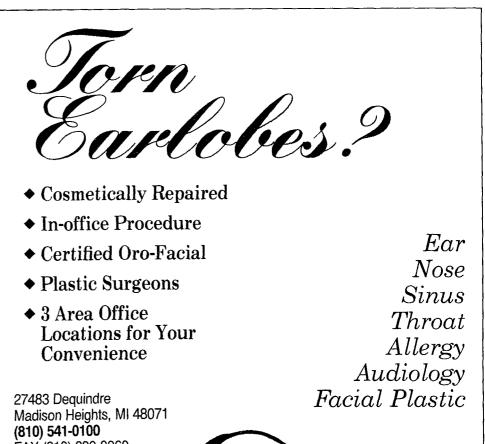

TAKE A COURSE OR DELVE INTO A NEW HOBBY

Try gardening, painting, or dance. But make sure your choice is not aimed at just improving your professional standing. Find something you truly want to learn. Tapping into your creativity can be exhilarating.

PARTNER WITH YOUR COMMUNITY

Even though you may be adding to an already tight schedule, contributing time to something you find meaningful —helping friends or amily in need, supporting a community service, or participating in church activities — can be mentally stimulating and emotionally healthy.

Anything Goes

By Phyllis Redfern

earing the doctor say the big "C" word (cancer) is a frightening experience. However, look around —- the world is filled with cancer survivors.

This year the month of May has a special meaning for me. It was five years ago when I was diagnosed as having breast cancer. In some ways it seems like a long time ago and in other ways it seems like it was only yesterday.

As I hit this five year anniversary, another "C" word will come out - CURE. With this comes a different set of emotions. From the fear and determination to fight, to the joy and celebration of knowing I can now close this chapter of my life.

As I close this chapter, I do so knowing I am a different person than I was five years ago. I have learned and experienced many wonderful things I would never have known if it wasn't for having cancer. The value of life itself is precious and what we do with it or how we experience it is not to be taken for granted. We have all been given talents to use — it is up to us to prioritize and learn how best to use those gifts.

I am not alone in celebrating this five year anniversary. A triend I met while we were having radiation treatments, Kathleen Sala, and I have promised each other a celebration lunch to honor the occasion. As I look around, I see many friends who are cancer survivors and living proof that this disease can be beat.

One of my lessons was learning to share openly with others. As I write this column, I have a good friend who is just starting this fight. I had forgotten the depth of the fear and the amount of energy it takes to deal with this fight, but it all came rushing back as I talked to my friend. I know the importance of rejuvenating her energy with a hug or sharing an experience or a tear.

Once you have experienced something, you are better able to understand how someone feels going through a similar situation. I know the importance of being totally honest about your emotions. It is okay to talk about fear and frustration. Life is about caring and sharing. A friend is a person who cares and can reach out to help someone, knowing that the best way to have the favor returned is for that person to someday be able to reach out and help someone else.

Perhaps the greatest lesson I have learned is realizing what is truly important in life and not to waste energy on those little trivial things that really don't matter. Instead of wasting that energy, turn it into a big hug for someone who can use it.

HOW TO STAY THIN, WHEN YOU DON'T EAT IN

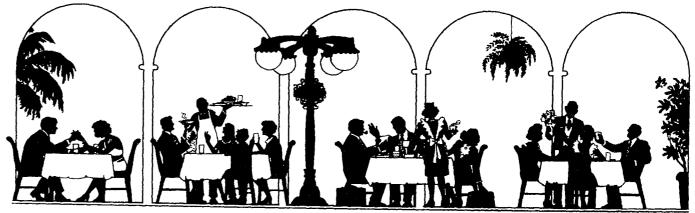

I lorine Mark, president and CEO of Weight Watchers, one of the most respected of the weight-loss programs, lost 50 pounds and has kept it off for over 30 years. Mark says that about 50 percent of Weight Watchers' members find themselves eating in restaurants more often these days. And, for some, the dining out experience can play havoc with their diet efforts.

"I face the same challenges as anyone watching their weight," Mark says, offering her own tips for staying thin when you don't eat in. "I don't ask for the menu," she says. "Instead, I'll request the special of the day to see if it fits with my diet plans. Reviewing the menu just makes me hungry."

Mark says she generally orders chicken or fish with a baked potato, and she begins the meal by asking the wait person to replace the bread basket with a dish of raw vegetables. She doesn't avoid ordering dessert, but takes only one delicious bite, and shares the rest. If she's visiting a new ethnic restaurant, or dinner is a special night out, she eats lightly the rest of the day, or tries to increase her exercise, so she can really enjoy the dinner without worrying about calories.

She implores dieters not to feel guilty if they consume a few extra calories at dinner, which can result in a binge later. As one who enjoys the luxury of restaurant dining, where someone else plans the meal, cooks and cleans up, Mark says: "Give yourself permission to enjoy yourself eating out!" Other tips for dining out:

- Don't arrive at a restaurant starving. Grabbing a small snack like an apple or some yogurt or a few vegetables beforehand will keep you from ordering a fattening appetizer or inhaling all the rolls in the bread basket.
- Create an appetizing meal. Sometimes, a low-cal appetizer, like shrimp cocktail or steamed mussels, combined with a salad, can make up a perfectly adequate meal.

fried, creamed and au gratin.

- Beware of the buffet, it's an invitation to indulgence. If you must eat buffetstyle, survey the items before putting any food on your plate, then decide which you will choose.
- Half a meal can taste twice as good. Instead of mindlessly consuming every morsel on your plate, set aside a portion you don't plan to eat and have it wrapped to take home.

FRIENDS AND FOOD

ere's how to avoid the gab and grab syndrome that sometimes occurs when you dine out with friends and family:

- Speak up. When you plan to dine at a favorite restaurant, suggest one where plenty of low-fat choices are available.
- Order first. That way you won't be tempted when your friends order the three cheese pizza with extra sausage.
- Pare down the portions. Most restaurant-size portions could feed small countries. Offer to split a meal with a friend, or follow one of the half-a-meal ideas we listed above.
- Play hostess. When you control the cooking, you can control the calories. If you like to cook, invite your friends to your house and enjoy sharing in the food preparations.

Finally, you may want to gather friends for non-eating events such as taking a walk, visiting a gallery or attending a show.

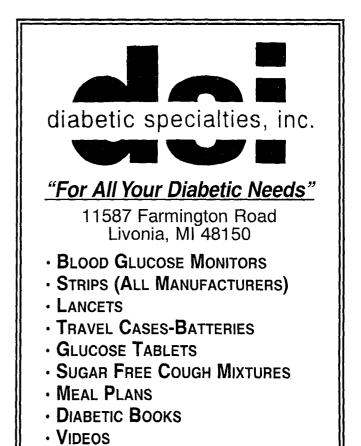

THE MEIN EVENT: LOW FAT IDEAS FOR ORIENTAL DINING

f you love the convenience and flavor of Chinese food, but cringe when you think about all the fat and calories in those fried (One-half cup of fried noodles has 8 grams of fat, and who ever eats only half a cup?)

- Ask for less oil to be used in cooking, and less soy sauce, which is high in sodium.
- Go light on anything made with lobster sauce (even vegetables), chicken with cashews, and all types of lo mein. And, you may want to pass on menu items like Peking Duck or the sweet and sour dishes made with fried meat or fish.

AND, SPEAKING OF RICE ...

This complex carbohydrate sustains 50 percent of the world's population. It has all eight essential amino acids, and with brown rice you also get magnesium, fiber and vitamin E. A half-cup of rice has only 90 calories.

- Dress carefully. Ask for sauces and dressings on the side and use the dunking-fork routine so you can control the amount you consume.
- Avoid the fancy fried stuff. Review the menu to find delicious poached, steamed or grilled dishes. Watch out for words such as sautéed, buttered, egg rolls, the American Dietetic Association has the following tips:

- When you eat Chinese, eat it the way the Chinese do. They typically consume about six cups of rice at any meal and top it with just a touch of sauce and meat along with lots of vegetables.
- Smart choices include chicken chow mein, seafood with vegetables, hot and sour soup and steamed vegetarian dumplings.
- Skip the fried noodles and fried rice.

THERE IS NO GAIN IN FEELING PAIN

any of us try to ignore pain when we're in the middle of an exercise routine. Hoping that whatever is wrong will go away, we keep going. But by doing so, we may be causing all kinds of injuries and even prolonging the time it takes them to heal.

Shin splints, stress fractures, Achilles tendinitis, tennis elbow--all are examples of overuse injuries that occur when athletes, professional and amateur, play through the pain.

"If you experience sharp or extreme pain or swelling that doesn't go away, you should see someone who can assess the problem," savs Jody Tomasic, M.S. P.T. O.C.S., director of Oakwood Healthcare System's Sports Medicine and Physical Therapy Center.

"The better clinicians won't treat you with a band-aid," Tomasic says, explaining that a specialist will identify specifically what is causing the pain and find ways to treat it — it may mean cutting back on your routine or trying a different kind of exercise that allows you to enjoy the benefits of working out while resting the injured part.

Overuse injuries result from repeated microtrauma, causing inflammation and sometimes tissue damage. Without sufficient rest between activity sessions to permit healing, these small injuries can add up to hairline fractures, inflamed joints and muscles, strained ligaments and torn tendons.

Here are some tips for avoiding them:

- Be sure you are in good enough physical shape to take up your chosen activity, be it tennis, running, biking, racquet sports or hiking. Start slowly and build up gradually.
- Be sure to do stretching exercises before and after working out.
- · Learn proper technique and the proper use of equipment so you can avoid injuries like tennis elbow, which occurs when a tendon degenerates because of repetitive use or chronic stretching beyond its ability to recover. Reducing the risk may mean changing to a racquet with a properly fitted grip and less stiff frame, along with a few lessons on proper strokes.

· You may benefit from some mechanical aids, like orthotic devices in your shoes or a brace or tape for the injured area. You also may need new shoes or a different playing surface.

THE NEW ANTI-AGING PROMISE: DHEA

he hormone DHEA, which is available in health food stores, is getting lots of press lately as a new fountain of youth. According to William Regelson, M.D., in his book Superhormone Promise, DHEA "restores energy, improves mood, increases sex drive, enhances memory, relieves stress, reduces body fat and even makes your skin softer and your hair shinier."

Dehydroepiandrosterone, the scientific name for DHEA, is produced naturally in our bodies by the adrenal glands, but tapers off as we age. Apparently, as our DHEA levels decrease, so do the youth-enhancing benefits. The National Institutes on Aging assert that not enough is known about DHEA yet to recommend it as antidote to aging, and doctors we talked to agreed

Editor's Note: Researchers at Stanford and Johns Hopkins Medical Centers have issued reports stating that DHEA can help reduce the symptoms of the autoimmune disease systemic lupus erythematosus (SLE). I have lupus, and after a good deal of research, I consulted with a holistic physician who prescribed DHEA for me. Though I haven't noticed myself growing any younger, I can report an enormous improvement in how I feel since taking the drug.

NEW MEDICAL DEVICE HELPS WOMEN WHO SUFFER FROM INCONTINENCE

romed Corporation has developed the Reliance Urinary Control Insert, a device that offers a discreet, reliable, non-surgical solution for stress urinary incontinence (SUI). According to clinical trials presented for approval by the Food and Drug Association, Reliance effectively controlled urine loss in 97 percent of the patients studied.

Reliance, which is about one-fifth the size of a tampon, is placed into the urinary channel with the help of an applicator. A push on the applicator fills the insert with air, inflating the balloon tip so that it acts as a barrier and prevents urine leakage. When a woman wishes to urinate, she pulls a string, the balloon deflates, and the insert is removed.

Over six million women suffer from SUI, which causes the involuntary loss of urine during coughing, sneezing, exercising or any physical exertion that increases abdominal pressure. For most women who experience SUI, the condition begins during child bearing years and tends to worsen during menopause.

Until recently, the only non-surgical solutions to involuntary urine leakage include adult pads and diapers, which limit physical activity and can be embarrassing and uncomfortable.

For more information about the Reliance Urinary Control Insert, you can consult your doctor or call (800) 222-4886.

MEDITATION MEETS MEDICAL SCHOOL

ast summer, a panel convened by 開きのごけたにいい the Office of Alternative Medicine at the National Institutes of Health recommended that all medical and nursing students be exposed to alternative healing theories and techniques. At this time, about 50 of the country's 135 medical schools offer courses in meditation, acupuncture, homeopathy and massage. What's happening here? It seems that medical training is finally responding to consumer demand: one in three Americans now visits alternative practitioners, and appointments with holistic healers outnumber those with conventional doctors. And, if Congress passes the Access to Medical Treatment Act, all doctors can suggest non-FDA approved remedies without fear of prosecution. This would give patients more access to alternative or "integrative" medicine.

Some treatments, such as acupuncture and chiropractic, are already fairly-well accepted medically, with insurance companies looking closely at covering these services.

But, physicians warn that quality control must be instituted with all alternative approaches to healing.

Meanwhile, many conventional practitioners now use meditation, biofeedback and visualization to relieve pain and manage stress. Also, massage therapy is employed in rehabilitation therapy and to help manage pain and stress.

STICK TO TOMATO JUICE

/ ou may have noticed some people at juice bars downing glasses of green stuff that resembles pond scum. Actually, it is pond scum, or its equivalent. The stuff is blue-green algae, which is regarded by some as a healthy supplement used to detoxify the body, boost energy, assist the immune system, improve memory and even aid in weight loss. However, according to a recent issue of the University of California at Berkeley Wellness Letter, there is no evidence that blue-green or any other algae will detoxify your body or produce any of the results promised by distributors such as Cell Tech, which sells Super Blue Green Algae pills. Better stick to tomato juice.

HOW MUCH WEIGHT DO YOU HAVE TO LOSE TO BE HEALTHY

/ hatever your guess, it's probably wrong. According to recent surveys, the majority of adult Americans believe that in order to decrease health risks associated with their weight, they need to lose approximately 30 percent of their total body weight.

However, most physicians surveyed correctly stated that modest weight loss of only 5 to 10 percent of total body weight, if maintained, can decrease health risks. These weight-related health risks include high blood pressure, hyperlipidemia, Type II diabetes, osteoarthritis and certain cancers.

The surveys polled more than 500 overweight consumers and 300 primary care practitioners about their perception of excess weight. All consumers surveyed were screened for a Body Mass Index

(BMI) of 27 or greater. Experts agree that BMI, a height/weight ratio calculation, is the measurement of choice for determining if a person is at health risk from excess weight. A BMI of 27 or greater indicates that you may be at risk from excess weight.

Another misconception revealed by the survey had to do with the perception of obesity itself, which is defined as 20 percent over ideal body weight. All of the consumers polled were obese by definition, yet only six percent of women and two percent of men identified themselves as such.

Nearly two-thirds of physicians surveved said that appearance was the key driver for women (96 percent), while improving overall health was most important for men (51 percent).

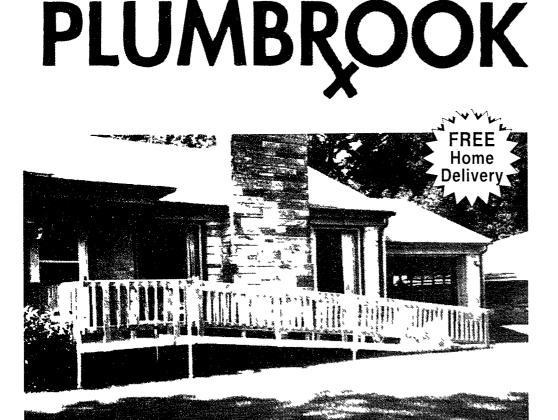

Physicians and consumers both agreed that a standard numerical indicator, such as BMI, would be beneficial in defining when excess weight puts a patient at health risk. Most of the doctors (84 percent) said that such an indicator would help them communicate with their overweight patients without having to use the term "obesity." Each vear, excess weight takes its toll on 300,000 Americans, making weight-related illness the nation's second leading cause of death after smoking-related illnesses.

SECURITY BLANKETS: FRIEND OR FOE?

ost small children become attached to a toy, blanket or diaper that, even in its advanced raggedy state, can mean the difference between a good night's sleep or a peaceful visit with the grandparents and total family chaos.

Some parents are concerned their kids will cling to this object indefinitely, but Allan Weiner, M.D., pediatrician at St. Mary Hospital, says not to worry.

"These transitional objects are sources of security to infants and toddlers, sometimes serving as parent substitutes when mom and dad aren't around," he says. "As long as they are safe (non-toxic, don't have small parts that can be swallowed, etc.), we consider them normal."

As children develop an internal sense of security, they need fewer fuzzy friends to help. By the age of six, most shed security blankets at least when interacting with other kids (though they still may want them at bedtime). "By and large kids give up transitional objects by themselves," Dr. Weiner says. "Don't force it."

NURTURING YOUR CHILD'S LOVE OF NATURE

R anger Rick, a nature magazine published by the National Wildlife Federation, is celebrating its thirtieth anniversary as one of the country's most popular children's publications. According to Editor Gerry Bishop, Ranger Rick's success comes from mixing a child's curiosity with facts and stories about the amazing variety of wildlife that surrounds them. Along with the adventures of Ranger Rick, an inquisitive little raccoon, and his friends Scarlett Fox, Boomer Badger and Punky Porcupine, the magazine combines fact-filled nature stories with gorgeous photographs that grab and hold a child's interest. Bishop says the magazine gets countless letters from former readers who were so inspired by the publication that they chose careers or lifestyles related to ecology.

To stimulate the love of nature in your child, you might try:

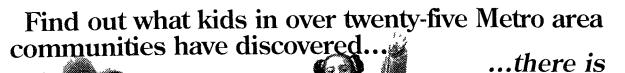

- Limiting television viewing to nature documentaries, and share these programs with your children. You can answer their questions, and your enthusiasm for the subject will be contagious.
- Putting up a bird feeder to learn about your fine feathered friends (along with those pesky squirrels).

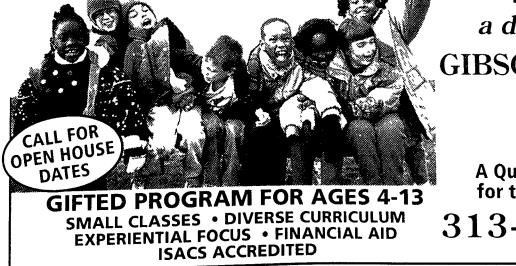

- Camping, canoeing, fishing, hiking and other outdoor activities you can do as a family.
- Taking nature walks to let your kids explore plants, bugs and other creatures that peak their interest.
- Getting to know your local nature center, and attending their programs with your kids.
- Read Ranger Rick together. A subscription costs $15 and can be ordered by calling (800) 588-1650.

SCREENING CHILDREN FOR LEAD POISONING

ot every child needs to be screened for lead poisoning. However, for children at risk for lead exposure, a simple blood test can prevent a lifetime spoiled by the irreversible damage caused by lead poisoning.

To better identify and treat more children with elevated blood lead levels, availability of new guidelines from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention has been announced in the Federal Registry for public comment. Following a 45-day comment period, CDC will consider and incorporate the information. CDC is recommending that state and local health departments plan appropriate screening and that they make sure that pediatricians and parents know whether children are at risk of lead exposure and should be screened. "By targeting screening and prevention efforts, communities will make great strides in better identifying those who need services," said Dr. Richard Jackson, Director of the National Center for Environmental Health at CDC.

One of the most important risk factors for lead exposure is the age of housing. Over 80 percent of all homes built before 1978 in the U.S. have lead-based paint in them. The older the house, the more likely it is to contain lead-based paint and a higher concentration of lead in the paint.

According to recent CDC estimates, nearly one million U.S. children ages 1-5 have elevated blood lead levels, and more than one-fifth of African-American children living in housing built before 1946 have elevated blood lead levels. These figures reflect the major sources of ڑ ابر lead exposure: deteriorated paint in older housing, and dust and soil that are contaminated with lead from old paint and from past emissions of leaded gasoline.

But lead exposure is not a problem everywhere. In a recent study, a group of children six years and younger living in Alaska, had very low lead levels, probably because much of Alaska's housing is new. Alaska is a good example of an area where it probably does not make sense to screen all children.

The ultimate goal remains the same: end the damage to children caused by lead poisoning, which includes learning disabilities, behavioral problems, and at very high levels, seizures, coma, and even death.

Here are just a few ways to tell if your one- or two-year-old child should be screened for lead poisoning:

- your health department recommends it.
- your child lives in or regularly visits a house built before 1950.
- your child lives in or regularly visits a house built before 1978 that is being or has recently been renovated or remodeled (within the last 6 months).

For more information, talk to your pediatrician or call the National Lead Information Clearinghouse toll-free at 1-800-LEAD-FYI.

IS HEARING GETTING HARDER FOR YOU?

or most people, aging affects the quality of hearing, but other factors can contribute equally to hearing loss. Disease, accidents, loud noises, even flying on a plane when you have a cold can impair hearing.

Tinnitus, or ringing in the ears, is common (about seven million people are affected), can come and go at different times, and will range from a slightly annoying hum to a high-pitched squeal. Tinnitus results from aging, high blood pressure or tension, some medications or exposure to loud noises. If ringing in your ear persists, call your doctor.

You can first notice hearing loss when conversations and noises normally clear to you begin to fade. You find yourself looking at people's lips when they talk to you, or tilting your head in the direction of the noise you want to hear. If hearing loss interferes with your job or lifestyle, seek medical help. Your doctor may recommend an exam by an audiologist to determine if you need a hearing aid. Make sure the audiologist is certified by the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association, and has a license to practice. When you get ready to buy the hearing aid, get a hearing test with the device first.

Other ways to protect your hearing include:

- If you are exposed to loud noises for long periods of time, use earplugs. They reduce noise levels significantly, but won't keep you from hearing conversations.
- Don't fly if you have a cold, or ask your doctor to prescribe medication to open the Eustachian tubes so pressure changes won't damage your eardrums.

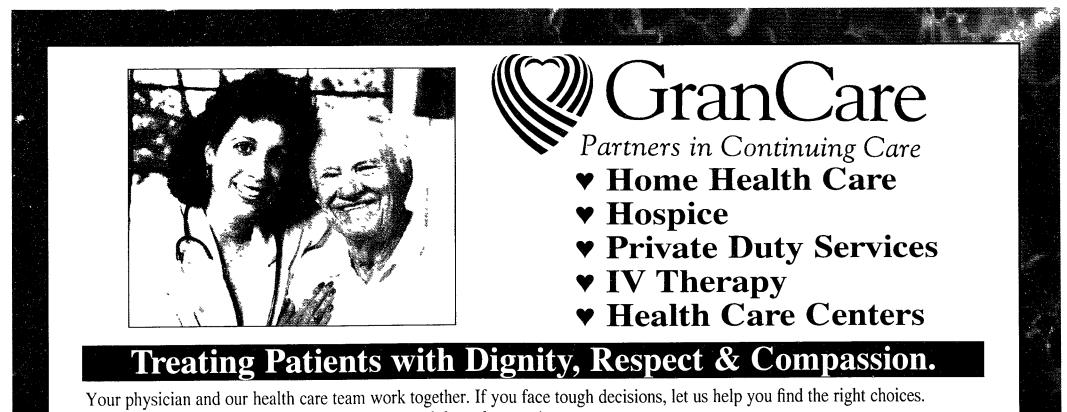

• Don't probe your ear with anything, even a cotton swab. For ear-wax buildup, try a diluted hydrogen-peroxide solution and a bulb syringe (which you can get in a kit at your drug store). Use a few drops of alcohol or a tissue in your ears if they itch after shampooing or swimming.

TELEPHONE SERVICE FOR HEARING IMPAIRED

> ecause of a new service provided by American Telephone & Telegraph (AT&T), millions of Americans, who are deaf or hard of hearing, can use the telephone as easily as anyone else. AT&T has designed 11 relay centers where special operators act as go-betweens for hearingimpaired and hearing people 24 hours a day. Hearing-impaired people use telephones with a special keyboard and the operator then speaks their type-written messages to the other party. The service is used to place any type of phone call — from contacting family members, to conducting business or ordering a pizza. There is no additional cost for the service; calls are billed at regular rates.

For information about the new service, call (800) 682-8706.

Michigan Department of Community Health • ENJOY A MASSAGE

Women instinctively understand the importance of touch in their lives, yet few have ever experienced a massage. Therapeutic massage can help you cope with stress, relieve muscle strain, heal disease, let your mind go and relax.

GET GORGEOUS

You can't buy this beauty routine, you have to change the way you think and behave. The good news it that most women already have. We're no longer interested in quick cover-up effects to make us look good, but in the education and discipline to make us feel good. I call this new approach "getting gorgeous." To me, gorgeous means beauty moving from inside out with strength and determination. Gorgeous implies an active woman, taking charge of her life. "Years ago, women pumped up their hair, put on make-up and polished their nails," says Anna DiMaria, who with Tomas Walsh, owns Capelli Spa in Bloomfield Hills. "Today, beauty starts within, by eating right, exercising and taking time for healing ourselves."

This attitude is reflected in the services Capelli provides: a day at the spa, or a customized spa package that can include massage, hydrotherapy, aromatherapy, exercise, breathing classes, skin care, a healthy lunch, even lectures on subjects like cosmetic surgery and menopause. The traditional beauty services such as manicures, pedicures, make-up consultation and hair styling are still requested, but women really enjoy the pampering and quiet time that comes with getting away even for a few hours.

Where DiMaria views make-up as "icing on the cake," Mira Linder, owner of the Southfield Mira Linder Spa in the City, believes proper care of the skin, hands and hair, can boost a woman's self-confidence. "First impressions are important," she says. "When you look in the mirror and like what you see, it makes you feel good."

She recommends that women work with specialists rather than sales people when developing beauty routines, explaining that a good skin care regimen consists of cleansing, nourishment and protection, and that products should be carefully matched with each woman's skin type. "Don't trust your face to just anybody," she says. "It's not like a pair of shoes you can replace. You wear your face from morning to night. You should expose it to the best products you can." There it is again. Give yourself the best. You deserve it.

muscles. For example, you might alternate running with cycling or swimming (Jody Tomasic says runners who are injured often run in water until recovered.)

"You may experience general muscle aches from over exercising or trying out a new activity," says Tomasic, explaining that delayed onset muscle soreness begins from 24 to 72 hours after exercising, and may take up to a week to go away. Delayed onset muscle soreness causes general discomfort, but not acute pain. If an activity leads to pain and swelling, don't ignore it. The sooner a proper diagnosis is made and treatment is begun, the faster you will be back in the game.

WHAT IS A SPORTS MEDICINE SPECIALIST?

rthopedic surgeons, sports psychologists, athletic trainers, nutritionists, chiropractors, ophthalmologists, physical therapists and a number of other qualified professionals all can practice sports medicine.

"Sports medicine is a very broad term," says Jody Tomasic, M.S. P.T. O.C.S., director of the Sports Medicine and Physical Therapy Center at Oakwood Healthcare System. "You've got to look at the athlete as a whole person and meet all of his or her needs."

"For example, with a runner, you can't just focus on the legs," she says, explaining that other factors contribute to his abilities, such as how he eats, how much water he drinks, how conditioned his muscles and joints are, what his mental and psychological motivations are, how long he has been running and what other exercises he does to balance his routine.

Tomasic says that sports medicine specialists each are trained and certified by a national organization in their own field. Tomasic has a master of science degree in physical therapy and is an orthopedic clinical specialist, which means that, in addition to her formal education, she has completed an advanced clinical exam required by the American Physical Therapy Association. She practices orthopedic physical therapy and manual physical therapy with patients who have been referred by a physician for rehabilitation.

red can eraon. ces i c raual a 1 i th vho e n physibilitanins that

She explains that professionals in the sports medicine field treat patients in all areas from prevention, such as general fitness, nutrition and strength training to intervention, which can include physical therapy, surgery and other forms of rehabilitation and training. Sports medicine specialists also work with patients on prevention areas, such as diet, exercise programs, use of proper equipment, relaxation and stress reduction techniques — all of which help patients maintain full function.

A Certificate of Added Qualifications (CAQ) in Sports Medicine allows physicians to specialize in sports medicine. CAQ means that a doctor has the appropriate knowledge and experience gained from completing an accredited sports medicine fellowship program, or has practiced for at least five years with 20 percent of the practice time devoted to sports medicine. Certification is renewed every ten years.

Primary care physicians can diagnose sports injuries and refer patients for appropriate care. For example, chest pain can be muscular, skeletal or cardiac related. Severe muscle or joint pain could mean an overuse injury or symptoms of a disease.

a guideline, areas designated "sunny" are south or west facing, with no more than three hours of shade daily; "part-shade" east facing with at least six hours of sun; and "shady" are north-facing or woodland beds with virtually no full sun.

eplanting Care: If you buy perennials and cannot plant them the same day, water them thoroughly and place them in the ade to prevent excessive wilting.

anting: Evenings and cloudy days are the best times to plant. Set the root ball deep into the ground so that all the roots e well covered and the plant itself is anchored in the soil. Water thoroughly and protect from direct sun and winds until it is established.

atering: Water perennials thoroughly to give them a good start, then only as the soil begins to dry. Do it early in the day the associated as the solution of the solution o
