District court finds temporary home in office building on Sheldon Road

By RANDY COBLE Staff Writer

More than a month, after losing its last one to fire, the 35th District Court has found a new home.

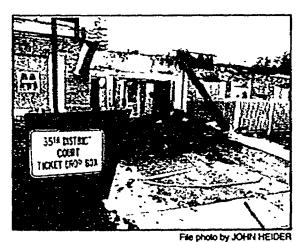

By mid-September, mid-October at the latest, the court will move into the former Highland Appliance headquarters building on Sheldon Road in Plymouth Township. Members of the court's advisory board made that decision Monday afternoon after rejecting other, more expensive alternatives.

Thirty-fifth District Court serves five communities including the city and township of Northville. Until the night of July 2 it was located on Plymouth Road at Haggerty, near the old Burroughs smokestack that's a local landmark.

The powerful storm claimed the lives of several people in the metro Detroit area and caused hundreds of millions of dollars in damages. It sparked a fire which destroyed the court building by downing a power line. causing a loss expected to run into the millions of

Since then court employees have been carrying on business as best they could while spread out in sevtral locations. Administrative workers have moved into space in the Unisys plant located near the old court site. Meanwhile, judges and magistrates have been been holding court everywhere from Plymouth City Hall to Redford and Romulus.

The court's advisory committee has spent the last six weeks hunting for a temporary new home for the bourt. According to Judge John MacDonald, commit-

Township census could result in six-figure pay-off from state

THURSDAY, AUGUST 14, 1997 - NORTHVILLE, MICHIGAN

An ongoing population boom in Northville Township will bring more state tax money into the coffers of local government.

State officials say the township's in line for $130,000 additional dollars generated by the state sales tax this year. The boost is due to the results of this spring's community census.

Conducted in April, the township census puts the community's overall growth rate at a whopping 17.5 percent compared to the last count, taken in 1990 as part of the last official U.S. Census.

Lawmakers in Lansing use census figures to determine each Michigan community's share of tax revenues that the state government distributes to local municipalities. Betting that a new census would show strong growth, township officials earlier this year authorized a new community-wide population count.

POPULATION BOOM

Northville Township is in line for a larger slice of the state pie due to this spring's community census. The census, conducted in March, showed a 17.5 percent population increase since the official 1990 U.S. Census. The chart below shows the increase by both residential population and the township's "involuntary" population (those living in mental health or prison facilities).

POPULATION	1990	1997	% CHANGE
Residential	15,711	18,991	20.9
Involuntary	1,602	1,357	-15.3
TOTAL	17,313	20,336	17.5

They were right. State officials last month certified a new township population figure: 20,336, up from the 1990 count of 17.313.

Township Treasurer Dick Henningsen cautioned that state legislators can reduce that increase for the purpose of calculating how much more tax money should come to the township.

I don't know yet what number the state will choose to use in actual fact." Henningsen said.

Lawmakers can shave off some of the 17.5 percent growth rate for several reasons, depending, for example, on how they count "involuntary" township residents (prison inmates and psychiatric

Rezmierski passes up salary hike

By LINDA GAITHER ARNOLD

Northville school superintendent Leonard Rezmierski has refused an increase in pay, even as his contract was approved Tuesday night by the Northville Board of Education.

For the 1997-98

year, Dr. Leonard Rezmierski Rezmierski will receive a total compensation package worth about $127,210, the same as last year. Rezmierski had been offered a salary increase of 2.5 percent, but he declined the raise.

Administrators who did receive a 3 percent salary increase included assistant superintendent for administrative services David Bolitho ($106,230), executive director of special education Robert Sornson ($99,114), director of business and finance John Street ($96,335), and director of personnel Roy Danley ($95,257).

In other school board business, Bolitho announced that the high school design team is "on its way" and running on schedule. The next meeting of the team, which is open to the public, will be held on Tuesday, August 19, at 6 p.m. in the high school library.

The team is working on the plans for the new high school which will be built from the sale of the construction bonds approved by voters June 9.

Raymond Balutowicz was named the new assistant principal of Meads Mill Middle School. Since 1984. Balutowicz has been a mathematics teacher at the school.

Thirty-two new teachers were granted contracts by the board. The new instructors introduced themselves Tuesday and told where they would be teaching.

The board voted to hold the line on school lunch prices for the coming school year, but Northville lunch prices still rank among the three highest in the tri-county area. Current daily lunch prices are $1.80 at the elementary schools. At the middle and high schools, lunch prices range from $2.05 to $2.25, depending on what students choose to eat.

Finally, the board adopted the administration's recommendation for user fees for school facilities. The fees range from $26 an hour for the high school pool to $3 an hour for classrooms and the Winchester Little Theater.

Parking woes eased by completion of lot resurfacing

By RANDY COBLE Staff Writer

Ah, sweet relief.

Downtown Northville became a lot easier to park in last week. Spaces have been a mite hard to find for the past month while construction workers rebuilt the city-owned parking lot at the northeast corner of Main and Wing streets.

They finished the job last week, laying down the new parking stripes on Friday afternoon. Now the lot's back in business with more than 30 additional spaces, thanks to a new design used during the reconstruc-

When it comes to pizza, there's a new player in town.

Anyone who longs for a slice of heaven has got a new choice in the area: Jet's Pizza, located on Novi Road just across the street from Guernsey's.

'It's a really, really great pizza at a fair price, said Luigi Tomassini, who runs the new pizzeria along with partner Paul Dudgeon.

Stop by to order a pie and you'll probably end up shooting the breeze with Luigi. That's the idea, as he and his team are out to give their customers the kind of friendly, old-fashioned service that you don't always find today.

Jet's is a Michigan-based company that started in Sterling Heights in 1978. Today it boasts over 40 stores in the metro area and branches are opening as far away as Las Vegas and San Diego.

The success has come from sticking to the basics, Luigi said: making really good pizza, including Jet's signature square deep dish pie.

"I call it a mother's pizza. We're like a mom and pop operation in quality. Luigi said.

That shows up in things like the ingredients, he said.

If all four win their cases their assessments would drop by more than $3.6 million to a combined total of about $6.1 million.

The total decline in property tax revenue would amount to roughly $161,000. Northville Township's share of that figure would be ábout $16,000.

While it is responsible for assessing properties and collecting all property taxes, the township actually gets only a few pennies of each property tax dollar collected.
Most goes to the public schools and to Wayne County.

Legal proceedings in the Michigan Tax Tribunal are usually lengthy. If no out-of-court settlement can be reached it will take a year and a half or longer for the Township officials say they've given formal responses to the assessment complaints the property owners filed in June and July.

The one with the highest assessment is Detroit Edison. The utility's land carries a total taxable value of just over $5.7 million. Seeking the largest reduction is Ward Church. It wants its current assessment of $3.15 million lowered to about $1.17 million.

Property used by a religious institution is exempt from taxation. That rule won't apply to Ward, however, until its new church building is completed and occupied, a move expected to take place next year.

Paul Bibeau, a Farmington Hills attorney representing Ward, said

A 95-acre parcel is in question. Bibeau said that several factors have combined to reduce the market value of the property, factors not taken into account in the township's tax assessment.

"I don't think anyone has taken a good look at this," he said.

For example, Bibeau in the Tribunal petition cites the fact that the development of the Ward site is governed by a special contract signed last year by church representatives and township officials.

That contract, according to Bibeau, restricts the possible uses of the land and makes it less valuable to potential buyers. While cases to be given a trial date before the church filed its petition after. Ward has no plans to sell its new church, site assessments are based on what an owner could get for property on the open market.

One example of a restriction is a provision which permanently preserves 41 acres of the site as open space that's never to be developed. Bibeau alleges that they're assessed at a rate comparable to developable property.

The attorney also contends that the township's assessment exceeds a cap in the Headlee Amendment to the Michigan constitution which sets limits on how much an assessment can increase each year.

Ward has asked the Tribunal to reduce its assessment and order the township to refund the extra tax money the church has paid because of the original assess-

ASSESSMENT APPEALS

Here's a list of Northville Township property owners who've appealed their 1997 property tax assessments to the Michigan Tax Tribunal.

The list includes the township's official assessment, the owner's contended value and the approximate decrease in taxes to the township if the Tribunal approves the full reduction.

OWNER	ASSESSMENT	CONTENDED VALUE	TAX DIFFERENCE
Consumer's :	$396,000	$164,000	$1,050
Detroit Edison	$5.71 million	$4.37 million	$6,025
Country · Club Village	$462,000	$402,500	$270
Ward Church	$3.15 million	$1.17 million	$8,700

But that won't be easy. Under Michigan law a property owner has to prove that an assessment is faulty - the local government doesn't have to prove it is correct. We have the burden of proof here," was how Bibeau put it.

Those familiar orange dots will soon be seen in the newly-reconstructed city parking lot at the corner of Main and Wing streets.
Initiated in 1992, Northville's orange dot program aims to

That's where the orange dot spaces come in. Those who work downtown are asked to use them instead of the spaces closest to business areas, leaving those spots free for customers. It's all voluntary; the city has no ordinance in place requiring people to do it and even if it did that law would be hard to enforce due to sheer numbers. Word urged downtown business owners, and employees to remember the orange dot program's slogan when they're looking for a space to park: park on the dot

Knollenberg: Everyone wins with tax law

By TIM RICHARD Staff Writer

"It's a good, strong half-loaf. We all won," said U.S. Rep. Joe Knollenberg, R-Bloomfield Township, of the new income tax law passed by Congress and signed by President Bill Clinton.

Knollenberg, a third-term lawmaker and still a Speaker Newt Gingrich loyalist, has dropped talk of running for governor now that Michelle Engler says her husband will seek a third term. And Knollenberg hasn't made up his mind yet about a year 2000 GOP presidential candidacy but is closely watching Ohio's U.S. Rep. John Kasich, chair of the budget com-

The congressman, whose 11th Congressional District includes much of Oakland and northwestern Wayne countles; including Oakland County Northville and Novi, was interviewed in his Farmington Hills office at the end of the congressional session. Highlights:

9. This tax law has been called the Accountant's Full Employment Act. Is that justified?

Knollenberg: Any time you have changes of the magnitude you have here - tax cuts, capital gains cuts, child tax credits, estate tax relief, educational credits, IRAs with more people striving to take advantage of these - that's going to greatly expand the involvement of filing. There's some truth it will increase some paperwork.

At the same time, it's going to benefit the American people. Anybody concerned about the paperwork ought to be thankful because they'll get one heckuva benefit from 28 to 20 percent on capital gains; some folks earning less than $41,000 will see it cut from 28 to 10. It's certainly worthwhile to take the time to file.

9. From a Republican point of view, what policy goals have you accomplished?

Knollenberg: It's the first tax cut in 16 years. We've balanced the budget, and that hasn't been done in 28 years; we've reduced the (annual) deficit to a point the president is even saying it's less than $40 billion. There's talk of bringing it to zero, even next year. Pile that on top of the fact that we've already cut some 292 programs, some $53 billion, out of discretionary spending. That's one-third of the budget. The discretionary part will slow down to 0.5 percent growth a year.

The other thing is the Contract with America, pretty much inspired by Newt Gingrich, but we all contributed - 85 percent is now in force.

I went to Congress in 1993. We had no power. The president rolled out a tax increase, the largest in history. Four years later, the same president is willing to cut taxes, reduce the size of government, slow down the growth.

Q. There's an impression, right or wrong, that Speaker Newt Gingrich has done more to give younger guys and newer members
- yourself and Pete Hoekstra and (former Rep.) Dick Chrysler - exposure and leadership than speakers in the past. Correct?

Rnollenberg: I believe he has. I haven't made a study of previous speakers. But maybe to a fault, Newt has brought in more and more people to the leadership, giving them chairmanships of task forces. He's been very open and that had started years ago. Any interested in expanding roles for people.

9. My impression of the Contract with America is not just that it was a program, but a lot of these things had never even been voted Knollenberg: I believe (your memory is correct). He talked about congressional accountability (applying the laws of the nation to Congress and its staffs).

He himself can't serve more than four terms as speaker. Removing proxy voting. Reducing the size of committees by almost 25 percent.

Strange to me, these went through with overwhelming They could never get out of committee before.

9. Joe, you were elected in those who say the stock market is 1992. You had some thoughts on overheated? term limits then (he said he would observe the Michigan decision to limit U.S. representatives to three terms, but that was overturned in court). What are your thoughts on term limits now.

Knollenberg: In my brochure, I pledged to serve no more than six two-year terms, 12 years total. I still hold to that.

That vote (to amend the U.S. Constitution for congressional term limits) was held, but there wasn't a two-thirds vote. We couldn't guarantee its passage, but we did bring it up.

g. You supported NAFTA (North American Free Trade Agreement). Age you happy or ...

Knollenberg: Happy. We said at the beginning this would not be without some dislocations, but That's why Chile is on a fast track for consideration in NAFTA this fall.

I'll be supporting that. The Boniors out there and Gephardt (House minority leader) will fight.

Clinton's on this. We have a friend in Bill Clinton when it comes to trade. He's turning more and more Republican.

There's also the CBI. Caribbean Basin Initiative. I was on a subcommittee trip down there. The economic and foreign ministers very much want that.

That was in the bill, but it was taken out. I don't know the story behind that.

Q. Do you share the concerns of Knollenberg: When we took over in 1994, the stock market (Dow Jones Industrial Average) was 3,900. Now it's over 8,000. Unemployment is low, employment is high, interest rates are down 2 percent. Inflation is holding. There aren't those factors that induce

The growth in the stock market is real: I don't think it's superficial.

Q. Who is on your short list of presidential nominee prospects for Knollenberg: I haven't made a decision. (Sen.) Fred Thompson (of Tennessee) could be attractive. You have the usual: Steve Forbes, Jack Kemp, Gov. George Bush of Texas; John Engler could emerge.

I'm forgetting John Kasich, and I

Center Street building gets historic makeover

There's a lot going on in Northville's central business district, and one of the more exhaustive projects is the renovation of the building at 128 N. Center.

Owned by Todd Knickerbocker, an investment representative for Edward Jones, the building is now undergoing a major overhaul and refurbishing.

Knickerbocker says he plans to add about 3,800 square feet to the building, 1,000 toward the back and 2,800 on the second

Work started about three weeks ago, and should be finished by the end of November or early December.

Knickerbocker purchased the building back in 1993 and said he made a wise business move in doing so.

This is my eighth year in business and I feel the community's very viable." he remarked. "I expect it'll continue to improve."

Knickerbocker's definitely put his money where his commitment is. The work on the structure, which will include a new brick facade, new entrance doors and windows, and limestone detail work, will run roughly $400,000.

All the improvements were approved by the city planning and historic district commis-

Knickerbocker said Center Street pedestrians won't notice much activity from the sidewalk, and the front exterior improvements should be completed by Victorian Festival weekend, Sept. 12-14.

In addition to the Edward Jones office, the building also includes the addresses of the Pickety Patch, 124 and 126 N.

Big changes could be in the works for the R&D Enterprises building (the old Ford plant) at the corner of Griswold and S. Main.

The two men who own the establishment. Rick Cox and Bob Seaman, appeared before the Northville Planning Commission recently to give officials a

The owners say they have changes in mind for the building that will require rezoning for a planned unit development use in order to allow for such things as an Uno's restaurant.

The owners said they're talking over the idea with the pizza chain

The plan is to gradually phase out the industrial operation in the building and bring in more commercial tenants.

McDonald Ford is proposing an expansion. The Northville Planning Commission next month will hold a public hearing on issuing the dealership a needed special land use permit for the proposal.

Basically, the dealership would lease the Northville NewsPrint building located right next door to the dealership and turn it into a small showroom for new and used trucks in the front portion (facing S. Main), a metal-only body shop (no painting of cars) in the middle, and a new car prep area in the back (washing bays,

The deal would involve remodeling the building to make it more closely match the look of the dealership.

Members of the commission urged McDonald Ford reps to work hard on a first-rate landscaping plan for the frontage on S. Main and Seven Mile.

Town hall planned to take seniors' input

By JAN JEFFRES

On August 19, the folks from ansing will hold a town hall meeting for area senior citizens in Novi, o find out just what they think about current state issues.

Among the concerns the state representatives may hear is that the city's older generation is tired of violating the law on at least a weekly basis, in their unlicensed ames of Bingo.

State Rep. Nancy Cassis, R-Novi. member of the House Republian Task Force On Senior Citiens, set up the noon session at he Novi Civic Center, which will Iso draw other state elected offi-

Roads, roads, roads, that's what everybody is talking about, when will they ever get done," said Recreation Coordinator Kathy Crawford, who runs the program at the Novi Senior Center.

That, and of course health insurance issues and affordable housing.

But Crawford said she has to look the other way when the seniors get together for smallstakes Bingo at the center, because technically a state license is required for the game. A move's afoot among senior centers to ask the state to waive the licensing requirement.

Cassis said Crawford helped her reach other senior centers throughout southeast Michigan. The Novi town meeting is a first in a series planned for other locations, including Birmingham.

"We're saying, 'whatever's on your mind, how can we help?' if people would rather not talk, they can hand in their concerns and recommendations on a card.

The end result will be a task force report on the needs and desires of today's older set. Crawford said she expected a

City calls for more details on Hutton St. plan

Consequences for traffic one area of concern

By RANDY COBLE Staff Writer

On hold.

That's where a proposal for shops, homes and parking spaces on the slopes bordering Ford Field now stands and where it's likely to stay for some time to come.

Northville city officials say they'd like to see a lot more information, especially about current and future traffic conditions in the downtown area, before making a decision about a plan for a new development on Hutton Street.

The call for additional background will likely shelve the proposal for several months while city officials consider speeding up a traffic study originally planned for 1998 and waiting for its conclu-

The unique proposal was put forward earlier this year by Bob haves that calls for them to pick and Margene Buckhave, owners of The Stampeddler Plus on Mary Alexander Court. Involved is about 12,000 square feet of land on the steep slope of the western edge of Ford Field.

The property is owned by the City of Northville and runs alongside Hutton Street. The Buckhaves would like to buy it and build a multi-level structure there. Four or five shops would sit at street level on Hutton Street. Above them would be three to five condo-style homes. Below the shops and the level of the street would be parking for about 50 cars.

A key factor that could influence the city council's eventual decision about the plan surfaced last week. Parks and Rec officials announced a tentative deal with the Buckup $110,000 of a $160,000 local match needed to gain a $400,000 state grant.

If it approves the grant request the Michigan Department of Natu-ral Resources (MDNR) would kick in $240,000 to help fund a comprehensive renovation of Ford Field. It would include everything from lighting and drainage improvements to a relocated ball diamond and soccer field.

The grant application will be sent off in a few weeks but it will likely be several months before the MDNR notifies city officials about any decision.

As in the past, the Hutton Street proposal had its supporters and critics at last week's meeting of the city's Downtown Development Authority (DDA). In some ways the debate over the plan reflects a when the storefronts are all larger battle of ideas about the empty? another man asked. future of the business district.

The bottom-line issues are: what makes Northville a great place to live? What do we need more of and what do we need to avoid?

A lot of it comes down to the trade-off between residential and business interests. Some who attended the Aug. 6 DDA meeting said that Northville has enough commercial space already. To them, more business space means more traffic and a loss of smalltown quaintness, especially with a development bordering Ford Field.

"The ambiance is totally changed," was how one man put

This land was donated to the city (by Ford Motor Co.) for recreational purposes. I don't see how we can consider changing that," a woman added.

Where do you stop building,

To other residents, including some city officials, more business space is something that has to be considered to keep the downtown economically sound. If it's not, the argument goes, the tax base that pays for city services is in danger, as are community property values themselves.

"What is our critical mass?" was how Mayor Chris Johnson put it. referring to the right mix of shops that will keep customers and merchants coming to Northville.

What we're ultimately trying to do is make our downtown more competitive." Johnson said.

One woman at the meeting supported the Hutton Street proposal. suggesting it could be used as an experiment for more downtown development.

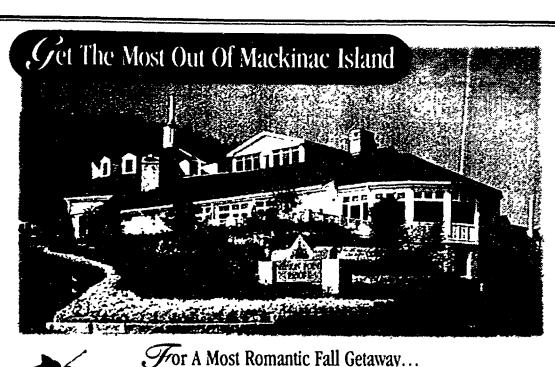

"I see it as a small step so we can see if this works," she said.

"What we're ultimately trying to do is make our downtown more competitive."

-Northville Mayor Chris Johnson 1

Besides waiting for the results of a the traffic study, the Hutton plan must jump through a number of hoops before winning final city approval. The land is currently zoned for residential use and rezoning to a business classification would be necessary for the proposal to proceed.

Besides that there will be reviews by the DDA, the planning and historical commissions and the city council itself, which will have the final say.

Police break up suspected ring

By RANDY COBLE

Northville Township police this week arrested five men they believe were looking to break into a string of cars in the area.

Ranging in age from 17 to 27, the five were arrested just before 3 a.m. Tuesday in a parking lot in the Northridge apartment complex on Seven Mile Road. Two are from Highland Park, the other three from Detroit.

A woman awakened by the sound of a loud vehicle in the parking lot called police, saying she saw two men get out of a late

According to Northville Township Police Detective Fred Yankee, authorities found all five of the men in the area. One was inside a Ford Taurus he'd broken into, Yankee said, and three more were inside the van.

The fifth man was near the Taurus when police arrived, he added, and tried to flee the scene. Northville city officers allegedly chased him down and took him into custody.

All five are scheduled to be arraigned this week. Until that court hearing they are being held in the township's lockup facility at police headquarters.

Yankee said that the investigation is in its early stages but added that he's already recovered possible stolen property from the

Residents call on officials for help

By JAN JEFFRES Staff Writer

When the owners of large-lot residences in the Nine Mile and Beck Road area describe how they're spending their summer, it sounds like a horror story.

From May through July, gypsy moths deforested wooded yards over an area of 35 to 40 acres. The large, hairy caterpillars have meant the simple pleasures of the season - sitting outdoors, barbecuing, practicing golf swings were impossible for the homeown-

"It made the movie 'The Birds' look like a joke," said Laura Steiner, who lives on Nine Mile Road. one-half mile west of Beck.

"It's just so gross. You don't have any cookouts unless you like food additives.

On their yard alone, 40 oaks were defoliated in a week and a half, then the caterpillars headed to the evergreens.

Monday, the owners of 24 homes in the area met with Novi City Forester Chris Pargoff and Carol Lenchek, coordinator for Oakland County's gypsy moth suppression efforts. Eight resi-dences have been particularly hard hit.

At Novi Council Member Richard Clark's request, the council voted Monday to ask Oakland County to helicopter spray the area with Bacillus thuringiensis, known as in addition, the council agreed that in areas that show signs of infestation but may not be bad enough for the county program. the city may contract for spraying.

The Nine Mile/Beck Road area didn't qualify for the county's spraying program last year, Pargoff said last week, because there weren't enough egg masses over a 25-acre region. This year, he described the situation as a "major infestation.

"It has just about turned a lot of that area to what I would call winter in July," Pargoss added.

Lenchek told the council she had "no doubt" that this portion of Novi would qualify for the county's suppression program.

Bt won't eradicate the moths, but it will help reduce the damage. "It is the best pesticide you can use because it does not affect birds, it does not affect fish, dogs or cats or bables. Lencheck said.

Because it's environmentally friendly, it is only 60 to 70 percent effective.

The city has been monitoring gypsy moths since 1991. Pargoff said the egg mass counts in 1996 were higher in the Haggerty Corridor than in the Nine Mile and Beck Road area, but that area wasn't devastated by the insects.

Nobody knows how the gypsy moths got to Novi. Possibly on the wheels of a car or in a load of firewood.

Nine Mile resident Susan Couzens, a Northville High School instructor, said they asked the city last year to have their area sprayed in 1997.

"We called and nothing happened. It's twice as bad this year. Novi's done nothing for us," she said.

In a letter her husband, James Couzens, wrote to the Novi City Council, he noted that: The caterpillars are everywhere, hundreds on each tree, hundreds all over our house and hundreds all over the driveway. The caterpillars attach to our vehicles and we carry them throughout the metropolitan

At their worst in July, the caterpillars became moths in August.

A Northville Township resident reported a gypsy moth infestation problem on her property last March.

While the damage to much-loved and property value-enhancing trees is the biggest concern, a gypsy moth caterpillar infestation is a disgusting thing to live through. Not only are the caterpillars swarming all over the exterior of homes, trees and shrubs, but they create a steady rain of their fecal material, known as "frass" to the experts.

The porch was so brown with caterpillar droppings it took straight bleach to clean it. Steiner

In early May, the county conducts aerial sprayings of regions over 25 acres that are judged infested enough to qualify. The spraying is done by a contractor who operates a Huey helicopter. The cost is $22 per acre for the ing program.

PREPARE YOURSELF is a service mark of The Sports Authority.

Super developer had modest beginnings

Robert A. DeMattia, the man who dotted southeastern Michigan with a new style of industrial park, was raised on a farm in an idyllic setting of what is now Farmington Today, his companies operate or are developing idyllic settings for clean industry in Plymouth Township, the Wisne Center in Novi, Trans West I and II in Howell. Green Oak Township in Livingston County - more than 20 places throughout the region.

His specialty is being an international generalist: The DeMattia Group is a $100 million operation that will: 1) design and do the engineering work (DeMattia & Associates), 2) build (R.A. DeMattia Co.) and 3) buy land, improve it, lease the buildings and manage property (DeMattia Development). Many Japanese company names grace the buildings in his parks.

RAISED ON FARM

"I was born in Dearborn and raised in Farmington Township. on a farm at Twelve Mile and Drake Road," he said in an interview in his Plymouth Township headquarters as renovators worked in the corridors.

We grew all there was - specifically chickens, sheep, horses and corn. I was from a family of nine kids. My father was not a farmer but a refrigeration contractor. He just wanted to be out in the country. It was great, great fun.

'I could ride my horse to school - for pleasure, not because I had to. It was five miles, but it seemed like 25. In inclement weather, we took a school bus. As soon as the weather got nice. I could ride the horse to Farmington Road, Power and Shiawassee. There were fields. up where the public school is now, and you could tether your horse. It was fun. There was nothing. On Grand River at Novi Road and the railroad tracks, there was a butcher. and he would butcher our cows for us. My mother would have to drive to Redford to go grocery shopping.

MANCENS AVAILABLE.

"There was nothing. On Grand River at Novi Road and the railroad tracks, there was a butcher, and he would butcher our cows for us."

To get to Detroit to go shopping. you took a Greyhound bus from the southwest corner of Grand River and Farmington Road.

I went to Our Lady of Sorrows (Catholic school). I went to a boarding school in Wisconsin -Campion; it's a Jesuit boarding school. Then I went to college -University of Detroit; engineering. Back in college, I started working construction, as a laborer."

After college, DeMattia spent three and a half years in the Army. serving in Europe and Vietnam and emerging in 1970 as a captain and combat company commander.

NIGHT SCHOOL

"I came back to no jobs," he

No jobs? He worked three jobs while going to U-D's school of commerce and finance five nights a week to get a master of business administration degree. He was married in 1967 and had two of three daughters by then.

Today Amy is in medical school. Margaret is involved in art in Chicago, and Lizzy, working on a Ph.D. at Duke University. "is on a biology expedition in the jungles of Venezuela." He chuckles with pride. *While she was going to school, she spent two years in South America.

NO ADVERSARIES

"At that time, construction had an adversarial approach. You had the owner, the contractor and the architect. The architect designed the building, and then it was bid out to a contractor. There was no responsibility for making sure the project was right.

Everybody hated each other. It was a very adversarial relationship. I said there has to be a better way. The other way was design-build, where the designer and contractor are all one. You say, 'Hey, we'll take responsibility.' I'd read about some very, very successful design-build companies, top firms in the world like Bechtel. They're at $10 billion, and I was at $100,000, so we were close in size," he chuckled.

STARTED IN 1977

Then a Northville Township resident, DeMattja started his own company in Livonia in March of 1977. His first employee was Joan Hoffman, wife of the the late Jack Hossman, a former editor of The Northville Record. The Hoffman and DeMattia kids were friends. *She was one of the most amazing persons I've ever met - a human computer - could type at full speed and answer the phone.

The man who provides homes for international corporations still recalls Northville as a "first-name" kind of town. "A lot of those people are gone. I hardly know anybody there anymore.

My first major job was in a Perry Drug Stores' office and distribution center in Waterford. The second was a Chrysler-Plymouth dealership in Rochester Hills." He hadn't hired his own architects yet but worked with other architects. But there was a single contract. with a single company in charge.

A big person in his life was Angelo Evangelista, better known as Tony Angelo, the paving con-

ON EMU BOARD

One big DeMattia booster is retired U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell of Plymouth Township. "Good man." DeMattia says of Pursell. They serve together on the Eastern Michigan University Board of Regents.

"It's a highly accredited school. It's not a University of Michigan research institution, but it's a real benefit to the state. They're a force in the educational community by the graduates they put out. They've learned what they're supposed to learn."

In December he and retired Plymouth Township Police Chief Carl Berry will open a Harley-Davidson motorcycle dealership in Taylor.

DEATH ON TAX DEALS

State Rep. Jerry Law, R-Plymouth, is a DeMattia booster. "He's very competitive, understands engineering and business. Ask him about government subsidies and abatements."

DeMattia is opposed to tax abatements.

"Tax abatements are good for the people that get them and bad for the people who subsidize them. They are the dirge of the United States.

"We have government coming up and saying one doesn't have to pay as much as another. You have one company that's been here for 25 years on one side of the street. Then you have a competitor come in across the street, gets a 50 percent tax abatement - that's a helluva competitive advantage - and tries to put you out of business.

The funny thing is, the compamonth.' Which was hard. He went ny would have come anyway."

Commercial and real estate developer Robert DeMattia looks over plans for a Motown Harley-Davidson Motorcycle shop in the architectural room of his DeMattla Associates Plymouth business.

Engler vetoes could pay off state settlement

There are two primary results of Michigan's new school aid law:

• Public schools have $9.2 billion for operations - more than the entire general fund budget. Gov. John Engler points out. Per-pupil aid was raised 2.9 percent to $5,462 with no district receiving less than $5,124.

• House Democrats got the campaign issue they were looking for when Engler vetoed $304 million in line items, including $20 million for smaller class sizes in selected districts and $252 million for "at-risk" students! "1"

"Heavy-handed," said Rep. Bob Brown. "John Engler is robbing from the poor to give to the rich.
"Irresponsible," said Rep. James

Agee, D-Muskegon, a former school superintendent.

Altogether Engler vetoed $304 million in line items. That will be enough to pay a court judgment against the state in favor of 84 school districts which won a 17year lawsuit for special education and other mandated service.

Northville was awarded almost $3.8 million from the state from

The state Supreme Court decision in the so-called Durant case will cost the treasury $210 million. Engler's action came one day after the high court's decision.

"Robin Hood in reverse," said Rep. Lingg Brewer, D-Holt. "John Engler is robbing from the poor to give to the rich. Many of these school districts - including Birmingham, West Bloomfield, Farmington and Troy - are among the most well-off in Michigan."

Other parties in the lawsuit. besides Northville, included Novi. South Lyon, Walled Lake and Huron Valley in Oakland County: Livonia, South Redford and Plymouth-Canton.

No explanation was available on when the state treasurer will mail the victors their Durant money -Pontiac is high with $12 million. Livonia second with more than $10 million. But Engler's message called on the Legislature to make a one-time appropriation from the savings in his vetoes. That would likely come in the fall session starting Sept. 23. My actions today ensure that schools can open their doors in the coming weeks and proceed immediately with basic program-ming by this budget's full funding of the foundation grant, special education and adult education.

Engler said.

And so a pattern is developing in Lansing: House Democrats write pet projects for their constituents into education and health bills; Republicans go along, just to get the bill passed; Engler uses his line-item veto and wins the battle; Democrats use the issue for their continuing war to block his election to a third term.

There still was plenty left for

"John Engler is robbing from the poor to give to the rich."

-Rep. Lingg Brewer

Engler to boast about, including: · Success of Proposal A, the 1994 referendum on school finance reform. • A career preparation initiative to enhance technical skills of high school graduates. • $8.7 million for student assessment and $50,000 to publish and distribute a "school report card" of data for parents.

Governor ready to fight hospitals in court

By TIM RICHARD .

Gov. John Engler wants a court fight to the finish over two hospital expansions - Pontiac Osteopathic in Clarkston and Providence in

The governor and Community Health Director James Haveman asked attorney general Frank Kelley to appeal two certificate-ofneed decisions to higher courts.

The additional hospital beds are unnecessary, Engler said, because the county is already overbedded, resulting in higher operating costs.

He said his view is supported by the Big Three automakers, Detroit Edison Co., the Greater Detroit Area Health Council, the metropolitan AFL-CIO, the United Auto Workers and other health systems in Oakland County. A Court of Appeals decision Supreme Court and the Providence-Novi case to go to the Court

Attorney general Kelley's office already has asked the Court of Appeals for a rehearing of the POH decision. Kelley argued that the court lacked all the facts in its 2-1 decision May 16 in favor of the hospital's expansion.

While the matter has been pending in the courts, said Kelley's brief, 'POH has obtained and acted upon a certificate of need to construct a new patient tower adjacent to its original hospital in

"As a result, POH is not cramped for space, affecting patient care. It does not have license and code violations of significance ... In conclusion, this court has been factually misled."

Japanese student says goodbye Maybury State Park

It was with regret that the members of the Northville Rotary Club said goodbye to Japanese exchange student Yuka Omi at the club's regular meeting held on Tuesday, July 15.

Yuka spent the past year with four host families from the Northville area, the Chases, the Whichellos, the Heimans, and the Lee-Abbeys.

"All of them are really nice and understanding about me." Yuka said of her host families. They were always trying to be helpful and gave me a lot of experiences. And also they treated me as one of family member. I love all of my host families, they are so special to Yuka thanked all of her Rotarian friends, host families, and new friends for making this last year one she will never forget.

RECORD OPINION

Our Opinion

Township census was penny wise, pound wiser

You've got to spend money to make

So the saying goes, and the Northville Township Board of Trustees has proven the expression true.

Like most skeptics, we grimaced a little when township officials decided to commit $25,000-$30,000 to conduct a mid-decade census to learn about population growth in the township since the last U.S. census was conduced in 1990. Maybe it's just instinct, but our knee tends to jerk whenever governmental officials reach down into taxpayers' pockets.

But our knee missired, as it turned out. The board indeed acted wisely in voting to proceed with the census. According to a front-page story in today's edition, the 17.5 percent population increase the census uncovered entitles the township to an additional $130,000 in state revenue sharing money. The funds are apportioned on the basis of population.

Smart move, plunking down roughly $26,000 to get $130,000. So smart, in fact, maybe the feds ought to think about holding the census every five years, instead of ten.

In any case, surveying the township's population was a great idea, and the community as a whole will reap the

Dots help prevent car chaos

"Park on the dot. It means a lot." If you work in downtown Northville's business district, keep that rhyme in mind the next time you're looking for a parking space. Using the ones with those familiar orange dots will help keep the downtown strong and healthy. The city's orange dot program is entirely voluntarily. Initiated in 1992, the idea is to keep the downtown's prime parking space open and available for folks who come to Northville to visit the shops and restaurants.

Owners and employees of downtown businesses are asked to park only in spaces bearing an orange dot. Those spaces are set at the farthest edges of lots, leaving the closest stalls open for shoppers.

The reason for the program is a lack of sufficient parking downtown. Rough estimates put the deficit at about 350 spaces fewer than what parking planning experts think we should have.

Workers who take up a close spot for eight hours a day leave customers cruising longer for a space and walking further to spend their money in our stores. Some of them won't come back because of it.

Let's get behind our downtown,

Park on the dot. It means a lot.

Get message out to students early

There is bipartisan agreement: A university degree isn't quite as important as we thought it was. Job training is more important than we expected.

To the surprise of many, Michigan recently was shown to rank 38th among the 50 states in the proportion of students earning four-year baccalaureate degrees from universities.

The fear is ill-placed. What we need to be looking at is the quality of high school education and the quality of job preparation students get before they start their careers.

No longer can a young man of dubious academic skills swagger out of the classroom and into a factory job. No longer can a young woman marry at 18 and be secure for life. She must be prepared to work in case there's a separation, divorce, loss of a husband's job, or if the couple wants that vacation home.

Last week many western Wayne County residents were shocked at the 1997 Michigan Annual Report issued by the governor's office. It showed dropout rates rising. It shocked many local school officials, too, who had spotted no such increase in dropouts. Fortunately, the dropout rate in the Northville School District is a barelyvisible fraction of a percentage point.

This newspaper's experience tells us to trust local statistics over Lansinggenerated figures. Odds are the dropout numbers aren't nearly as bad as the governor's distillation suggests.

But let us keep a key point in mind: High school, community college and trade school educations are far more important to success in the global economy than they were in 1945.

Every parent, counselor and teacher needs to make sure young people understand the importance of education and job skills while they're still in high school, and not 10 years later when they find themselves at a minimum wage dead-end.

Shooting from hip gives city bad rap

Coble

Residents took the council's five members to task over everything from problems with the City Hall renovation plan and the proposed reconstruction of Center Street to rising water bill rates.

You've read at length about those first two. It's that last one that I'd like to fill you in on so I can keep a promise I made to a woman who called me last charge at the meeting, waging a verbal jihad against the council. The gentleman at one point called all five of them, "crooks" and more or less accused them of running a taxpayer-leeching cabal for fun and profit here in our quiet little borough.

Her husband was leading the

One of his complaints was about a recent hike in the fee for city water service and he wasn't alone in not liking it. I can understand that: when government today takes 40 percent or more of the average family's income, it's easy to get angry.

My job as a reporter is to work for the people, not for the system, because the system has most of the power. However, I think the five members of the council got the shaft on this one.

This all started with a Channel 7 (WXYZ-TV) news report earlier this month about the City of Detroit giv-

It was a not a good night for the Northville City ing water rate breaks to communities in Wayne Council Monday of last week. by Detroit, if you don't know, supplies water to communities all over southeastern Michigan, including Northville and even towns all the way up near Flint.

The report came on the heels of folks getting their latest water bills from the City of Northville, said bills reflecting a 7 percent rate hike. That led to some residents accusing the council of chicanery.

Not true. For the record, here's what I've learned:

• I was not able to get through to the Channel 7 reporter who did the story. Another person in the news department, however, said that Detroit gave the water rates break to only a couple of communities. Northville not being one of them.

Those reductions were a fluke, according to a guy I talked to in the Detroit Water Department. He said that basically everyone's water rates are on the rise. including Northville's by 4.5 percent this summer.

• As I said before, the hike in city water bill rates was 7 percent. City Manager Gary Word chalks up the 2.5 percent addition to money needed to keep the water delivery system up and running. It costs money to have city workers maintain the system and money for them to maintain, repair and replace things when something goes awry.

Like I said, I can understand the anger all of us can have with the government. However, let's get the facts right before pulling the trigger on it or the people who work in it.

Household hazards have their own history

Back in what we may sometimes think of as the use of lead in such items. "simpler" days, many everyday items actually posed threats to the health of early residents.

Barbara Louie

Such seemingly mundane items as wall paint, calling cards and oil lamps could prove hazardous to one's health. The reports of the Michigan State Board of Health in the late 1800s revealed to the public for the first time some of these dangers.

Dr. R.C. Kedzie, one of the University of Michigan's first medical school graduates, wrote:

"The color green, so abundant in nature, so pleasing to the eye, and so readily combining with other colors to produce softened shades, was early adopted by decorators of house walls and papers for ornamenting our houses. The chemist knew that this most beautiful green was formed by a combination of arsenic and copper," but as it was considered "non-volatile," safe. On learning of its devastating lethal effects, one Michigan senator quickly voted to outlaw the use of anything green because it was dangerous to the public health." They merely got rid of the green paint

In 1872, "Another senator asked whether the white enamel so largely used in surfacing visiting cards was poisonous." The reply was affirmative. The innocentlooking cards - often given to toddlers to play with and inevitably ending up in their mouths - contained a carbonate of lead, what Dr. Kedzie called "an insidious

The result of these studies was a bill passed by the two houses of the Michigan Legislature to prohibit the

By the mid-19th century, the use of petroleum products, such as kerosene, for household lighting was commonplace. According to Dr. Kedzie, "Even in homes of wealth where gas was in use, in kitchen or garret, the unsafe oil lamp was still to be found. Not only was its use general, but very unsafe.

"The headline 'Another Kerosene Horror' was seen in nearly every daily paper, with sickening details of some poor woman roasted like a martyr at the stake, set on fire by a 'lamp explosion.' When the Michigan oil tester adopted by the board (of heath) was made the legal method of testing, and a state oil inspector to have charge of this business, then the people found a safe light."

It took a long time, however, to get legislative approval to ban these ordinary items.

The battle ... went on for nearly 20 years," wrote Dr. Kedzie, "in newspapers and legislative halls, often with great bitterness and frequent changes of the law, but three legislative sessions have passed without serious efforts to change the law, and people are forgetting the dangers of former years.'

It wasn't until 1869, after many years of debate, that the first county oil inspector was appointed. This decision was considered by Dr. Kedzie and his contemporaries as the single most important act of legislation created to protect the lives and persons of our peo-

As health care continued to improve, so did public awareness.

By 1878, citizens were urged to keep their houses clean, their utensils sanitary, and to refrain from using 'tinned ware' for fear of lead poisoning.' The quality of life was indeed improving.

Why should Novi pay so Northville can play?

After reading Mr. Toth's Aug. 7 letter to The Novi News, I too would like to express my concern about the expenditure of public tax funds without voter approval.

Why are the taxpayers of Novi paying for an ice arena and Avenue No. 6 without getting the chance to express their pleasure at the ballot box? Both of these developments mainly benefit private business interests.

The ice arena, especially, will serve a relatively small portion of the community and is an extremely expensive proposition to operate. I personally resent having to turn over city funds for an arena for the Northville High School hockey team at a time when Novi does not seem to have the money to operate its own water system at current rates. Talk about priori-

If these projects are so worth-while for the general public, then we citizens should have been allowed to evaluate and vote on them. I challenge anyone on the Novi City Council to write this paper and explain why the citizens of Novi have been disenfranchised regarding these expenditures.

Reading program was great success

To the editor:

The Youth Services Department of the Northville District Library wishes to thank the community for its support of the summer reading program, Be Eager About Read-

Contributions were received from the following businesses: Papa Romano's of Northville, gardenviews, Ultimate Toys & Gifts, Baby Baby, and the Marquis Theatre. All of these businesses thoughtfully donated children's prizes for our summer reading drawings.

We would also like to thank Hiller's Market for their donation of refreshments for our end-ofsummer reading programs, Meijer's for their donation of treats for our Teddy Bear picnic, and all the community businesses that allowed us to display posters announcing the summer reading program and final party.

Additional help was received from the many volunteers who made themselves available to help at library programs throughout the summer. Friends of the Northville Library and volunteer coordinator Rosalind Fink helped with matching volunteers with activities where they were most needed. She also worked with local food stores to provide refreshments for several of the programs. Thanks Roz.

Thanks to each and every person who helped in any way with the summer reading programs. We couldn't have done it without you.

Sometimes, government can do it better

Reader Arlene Victor wrote in response to my column castigating Mackinac Center for saying business always does things better than government: "I'm always looking for cogent arguments in defense of government roles with the (smug) entrepreneurs I know who believe anything government can do. they can do better. How do you reply to their somewhat justifled claim that government employees are often inefficient, ineffective and unmotivated? My sishin' buddy, an insurance claims adjuster, and I explored this at length when they weren't biting one Saturday morning.

His work experience is that 85 percent of insurance claimants just want their losses restored; 10 percent will try to chisel a few extra bucks; and 5 percent are crooks.

I had already come up with identical numbers: 85 percent of people want to do an honest day's work, pay their share of taxes and raise their families in peace; 10 percent goof off and cut corners on their work and taxes; and 5 percent are evil and should be imprisoned or dis-

These percentages hold, we agreed, whether the group is Catholic, Buddhist, Baptist, white,

No religious, ethnic or economic group has a monopoly on virtue. None is totally rotten. Business and government are different.

First, businesses seek market niches. Private freight companies carve out small package markets over frequently used routes. They don't attempt to do what Congress, 200 years ago, said the post office should do: unify the nation politically by delivering a one-ounce letter for the same price to any corner of the con-

Government serves everyone. Public schools take anyone who can walk or be wheeled in the door. Private schools tend to skim the cream.

Second, government's powers - hence its flexibility - are limited by constitutions and laws. To offer a new product, such as a state park, it must go through two legislative chambers, an annual appropriations battle or the Government can't make a snap decision the way a business executive can - and in a republic, we wouldn't want it to have that power. Nor can government raise its prices, in secret and overnight, as business does.

Government was decades ahead of business in lowering hiring bars on the basis of race and of being. Ditto with the Mackinac Center, which believes with rock-headed firmness that government is always wrong and business always

The profit motive doesn't always motivate managers to treat customers right. I'll always remember the GM service department manager who practically laughed me out the door when I asked if he had touch-up paint for an 8-yearold Chevy. And every K mart shopper has horror stories about unresponsive or invisible

Remember the old-time public librarians who always "sh-h-h'd" you, and sneered and scowled? Nowadays, even without the profit motive, public librarians knock themselves out to be helpful.

The state Department of Natural Resources, under two governors, has made an effort to teach field staffers to be nicer to the public: Gov. Engler holds, and insists his department heads hold, public office hours; and the U.S. Postal Service clerks are either mellowing or being trained in courtesy.

The most fouled-up service in government, to my knowledge, is the Michigan State Parks campground reservation system, which is run by a private contractor.

There are good businesses and bad ones. There are good public servants and bad ones. Stick with the 85-10-5 rule.

Within a month, my wife understood my odd Many others were badly thinned out. Those nasty little caterpillars were everywhere, climbing trees and dangling from branches on threads of silk. One evening, I counted about 50 hanging over my driveway.

The worst part, though, was that as caterpillars eat all those leaves ... well, what goes in must come out. Caterpillar poop literally rained from the trees.

The kids weren't allowed out of the house without hats or shoes. Eating outside was strictly banned. I'd sweep the driveway every-day, only to find it covered with more when I'd get home the next evening.

One sunny spring morning this year, I awoke to the thwak-thwak-thwak sound of a helicopter flying nearby. Air support had arrived.

I went outside to watch it make bombing runs back and forth across my neighborhood while what I took to be a spotter plane circled higher overhead. The place sounded like Vietnam. My kids and I cheered when the Oakland County-coordinated Bacillus thuringiensisspraying chopper made a direct pass over the worst infested line of trees on our property.

"I love the smell of Bt in the morning," I said, even though the spray was actually odorless and invisible. My kids didn't get the joke.

Bt has proven quite effective. Yes, we did see a number of caterpillars this year, but nothing like last year. The trees are lush again. Most impressively, so far I've been able to find only a moths that made it to the egg laying

Of course, I realize the war's not over. They'll be back next year. So will the chopper if I have anything to say about it.

Novi residents who this year got to experience first hand the nastiness of a gypsy moth infestation can rest assured that relief is on the way, now that the county has agreed to con-duet aerial spraying.

Northville Township residents this year also saw the arrival of gypsy moths in their fair community, but Wayne County has no suppression program. Northville residents and officials should hound those guys at the county to get moving on a control program before these little critters spread even further, and do even

Caution: Reading may be advantageous to your health

The man who does not read good books has no advantage over the man who cannot read them.

Abbott ing to many studies.

There are programs beyond what the schools are doing that attempt to promote reading and develop reading skills.

A number of commercial programs promise great results for reading problems. The most obvious is Hooked on Phonics. More altruistic programs such as Teach ing.

America are also trying to make a difference. Even House Speaker Newt Gingrich has put aside his conservative misgivings about throwing money at problems to head up an effort that offers $2 for each book an inner city kid

But none of this makes much difference if families don't help their children. Parents and guardians, the one or two most powerful people in a child's life, can do more than any school and all the packaged programs combined to help their sons and daughters acquire an interest in reading.

We can get the fall semester off to a good start by encouraging reading in our families. Here are some ideas:

 Regularly read children's books to babies, long before they can understand them. More than anything, this sets the stage for reading. • Regularly read to young children who can't yet read. • Buy books and magazine subscriptions as presents.

 Set a good example by reading yourself. · Save articles your child may find interest-

• Leave inviting reading material at the breakfast table, on the coffee table, in the bath-

 Talk up the power of reading in a competitive world.

 Encourage the habit of bringing reading material along so that whenever there's an opportunity - standing in a line, waiting for a friend, waiting for the doctor - there's always something to read.

· Most important: Let them see you reading often. Discuss your reading with them.

HEALTH NOTE

by Dennis E. Engerer, P.T. and Patricia Westerbur, P.T.

BACK TO THE FUTURE Women who want to avoid the fractures associated with osteoporosis should invest in strong back muscles. That is the recommendation that follows a Mayo Clinic study of 36 women between the ages of 47 and 84 with osteoporosis. When researchers measured their back strength and bone density, they found that those with stronger back muscles were less stooped and had lewer fractures. An earlier study by the same researchers of women without the bone-thinning disease of osteoporosis revealed that those who did back exercises had stronger backs and better posture. Women with osteoporosis would also likely benefit from simple back exercises, provided they are not so frail that the effort required by the exercises puts too much strain on their bones.

To strengthen your back muscles, you need to strengthen your abdominal muscles because strong abdominals support the back. Talk to the therapists at Northville Physical Therapy & Rehabilitation Inc. about learning how to use the back strengthening equipment property to avoid injury. We now offer memberships to our fitness center, which provides supervised care for those who have completed formal rehabilitation or for those who want more personal and professional care than a traditional gym. To learn more about this new service, call 349-3816. Located at 215 E. Main St., Suite B, we offer early and late business hours.

Legal assistant positions expanding

By TIM RICHARD

"It's one of the top 10 or 15 growth professions in Michigan," says Sarah Keidan, who heads the Legal Assistant Program at Oakland Community College.

"I would agree," added Oakland Circuit Judge Fred Mester, who teaches with enthusiasm in the program at the Orchard Ridge Campus in Farmington Hills.

"The lawyer needs that legal assistant. There have been a number of class-action lawsuits where attorneys have been asked to use legal assistants rather than $250-per-hour attorneys," Mester said.

"The cost of litigation - that's what's driving this program."

Legal assistants - also known as paralegals - aren't licensed to practice law, but they do much of the same research and writing work as attorneys, and the OCC program includes doses of ethical funeral arrangements

FRED A. CASTERLINE 1920 - 1992 "There's no licensure'or central registry, so we don't know how many there are." Keidan said. Mester guessed there are about half as many legal assistants as lawyers.

With 7,500 lawyers in Oakland County and nearly as many in Wayne, that adds up to more than 7,000 legal assistants.

"It's relatively new," said Mester, explaining the slowness of the profession's growth. "In law, you look at precedents - you look behind. But the legal assistant is now recognized as a vital partner of the lawyer." He credits former Oakland Bar president George Googasian and former judge Dan Devine with wise and excellent use of legal assistants.

Paralegals also find jobs in hospitals, in risk-management settings, in insurance and title companies, in real estate - not just the classical law firm and court, adds Keidan. *A lot of the work is trackqualified entry-level employees with advanced computer skills are boosting the job prospects and starting salaries for recent college graduates in southeast Michigan, according to a newly released survey by the American Society of Employers (ASE).

Prospects good for grads

The 1997 Starting Salaries for Recent College Graduates Survey reports that new-hire average salaries this year are up 5.2 percent over 1996 levels. In addition, 72 percent of the 145 firms surveyed indicate they have recently hired or plan to hire new college graduates in 1997, compared to only 68 percent in 1996.

"Average starting salaries for college graduates are not only outpacing inflation (3 percent). but also southeast Michigan salary movements (3.5 percent) as a whole, says Dave Girolamo, survey analyst for ASE. "In addition to tightening jobmarket conditions, employers are seeing the advantage of hiring a work force that has the computer skills they need."

Computer skills were ranked as the single most important

Tightening job-market conditions and a growing demand for lowed by internship/work experience, college-degree level, and related coursework.

Computer skills also paid off handsomely for new hires in terms of salary levels. In the technical sector, graduates with degrees in computer engineering received the highest average starting salary ($41,290), followed by chemical engineering ($38,747), metallurgical engineering ($38,072), and mechanical engineering ($37,966).

In non-technical fields, newhire salary averages were highest for international business degree holders ($33,691), followed human resources/labor relations ($30.114). sales/marketing ($28.735), and accounting ($28,265). According to the ASE survey, southeast Michigan employers are cutting back on widespread national recruiting, preferring to target specific schools. Local recruiting is on the rise, with 50 percent of the surveyed firms reporting they are recruiting from Metro Detroit colleges and universities this year, up from 39 percent last year.

Drunk driving lawyers must face disciplinary boards

By TIM RICHARD Staff Writer

Two Oakland County attorneys will have to go before professional disciplinary boards because of their drunk driving convictions. the Michigan Supreme Court

The attorneys are:
• Martin G. Deutch, who practices in Southfield. He was convicted in mid-1993 in West Bloomfield Township on a misdemeanor charge of operating a motor vehicle while visibly impaired.

• Vicky O. Howell, who practices in Birmingham. She pleaded guilty in mid-1992 in Bloomfield Township to the misdemeanor of driving while impaired. While on probation, she was convicted in mid-1993 of a second drunk driving

The Supreme Court ruled three panels of the Attorney Grievance Commission improperly dismissed, and the Attorney Discipline Board improperly upheld dismissal of. charges brought by grievance administrator Philip J. Thomas.

Three justices ruled against the lawyers and were joined by a fourth justice. Two justices signed a dissent. "We find that the board's practice is contrary to the express procedure provided by the court rules," said the opinion signed by Justices Elizabeth Weaver, James Brickley and Dorothy Comstock

They said the drunk driving convictions showed evidence of misconduct *regardless of whether these convictions, on their face, reflected adversely on the attorneys' honesty, trustworthiness, or fitness as lawyers" under state court rules.

The threesome rejected the Grievance Board's finding that Howell's offense, though "regretful," followed "an after-hours social event, with friends, unrelated to her status as an attorney, not on 'company business,' and not acting in an official capacity in any way.

The three quoted a 1982 ruling: "A lawyer is a professional '24 hours a day, not eight hours, five days a week."

They remanded (returned) the cases to the Attorney Discipline Board with instructions to determine the appropriate level of discipline to impose.

Justice Patricia Boyle agreed with the result but wrote a separate opinion. She said the rule is not well tailored to the system, pointing out that other states distinguish between offenses that are and aren't related to the practice

Dissenting were Chief Justice Conrad Mallett Jr. and Justice Michael Cavanagh. An attorney committing a felony should be subject to discipline, but not necessary for a misdemeanor, they wrote, adding:

"We simply have not established that all misdemeanors are misconduct per se that automatically warrant the application of professional sanctions. In fact, we have stated almost the opposite.

(C)ertain offenses by themselves may not require professional disci-

"A violation of the criminal law very well may be misconduct, but it only becomes professional misconduct when it reflects adversely on the lawyer in his capacity as a lawyer ... We must not forget that there has already been a criminal procedure and a sentence entered in these cases.

Of the Howell case, Mallett and Cavanagh said that "one incident of misconduct may not reflect on attorney fitness, but a pattern of repeated minor offenses might be indicative of a problem that requires further investigation." In a footnote they added:

This is certainly true in the case of respondent Howell, who had two drunk-driving convictions, the second occurring while she was on probation for the first. The fact that she violated her probation may indicate a certain lack of respect for the law as well as other serious problems."

Justice Marilyn Kelly took no part in the case, which was argued in December before she took office.

Mad about Medieval

Spirit of middle ages is alive in Hollygrove and in one actor's heart

Novi resident Chad D'Algie (right) plays the role of Sir Gallo Rhynalhyde during the Michigan Renaissance Festival in Holly.

The Michigan Renaissance Festival gives patrons an opportunity to experience life in a 16th century village and participate in theater and games, and enjoy art, crafts and foods which may have been found 400 years ago. Visitors and performers return to the festival year after year for a chance to escape from the 20th century, if only for a day.

e's one guy who's been able to get his old job back year after year just by asking for it. Chad D'Aigle, a new resident of Novi, is no stranger to the 18th annual Michigan Renaissance Festival in Holly, Mich. D'Aigle is returning for his seventh season, his second as a Royal Court Guard.

As Sir Galio Rhynalhyde, (pronounced rhino hide) D'Aigle's job is to protect King Morgan and Queen Eleanor, in a bumbling kind of way.

Guarding the king and queen from the throngs of visitors all anxious to see the royal couple, he lets out a grunt here and there when they get too close.

Last year he scared the court half to death. During a procession to the king's joust. D'Aigle walked into a tree and fell down and let out a big "ouch.

They all thought it was an accident, but I knew it was coming.

"One of my specialities is pratfalls," said D'Aigle who wants to do a lot of the physical comedy done by the Three Stooges and Charlie Chaplin. Whenever D'Algle wants to try for bigger and better roles, he will audition. Previously he has portrayed street characters, body puppets and an inventor.

He began acting while in the ninth grade at Waterford Mott High School when he won the lead role in Teen Three, When the Chips are Down.

"I found my love, my passion, right there," he said.
"I enjoyed being on stage and performing, making people happy and laugh. Through the stage I found my new home.

Other roles in plays and musicals in high school included the Tin Man in The Wizard of Oz, the King in

The King and I and a role in Little Shop of Horrors.

He won an award for his part as an addict in the drama Addict during a high school dramatic competi-

During the summer after high school, D'Aigle went to California and attended the American Academy of Dramatic Arts in Pasadena.

Some of the biggest names in Hollywood graduated from the academy or hold teaching positions there. according to D'Aigle.

D'Aigle has also performed with the Novi Youth Theatre in Sleeping Beauty and Look Homeward Angel, and with the Novi Players in Master's Degree, which was performed at the Novi Expo Center.

D'Aigle, 23, will be attending Wayne State University in the fall and plans on majoring in theater.

"I'll minor in political science or literature in case my acting career doesn't take off," he said. "I'll have something to fall back on."

After college, D'Aigle plans to go to California and start working on an acting career. Hopefully, my ultimate goal is to give my acceptance speech for winning the Academy Award," he said. "It is a far-away goal but a goal none the less." He begins a new job with General Cinema at the Novi Town Center this week. The Michigan Renaissance Festival is basically improvisational theater." D'Aigle said.

Known as hit and runs, characters will interact with a group of people and say a few lines, usually insults, then run off.

"If you were to do that in the normal world you'd probably get shot or beat up," he said. "That's the wonder of the festival, if you go up and are rude to someone, they just laugh."

But it's all in the spirit of medieval times. D'Aigle's character. Sir Gallo Rhynalhyde, is the same one he portrays with the non-profit organization, Kanar Gaming Enterprises, to which he belongs. Members of the group take part in fantasy role playing games once a month on property they own in Milan.

Dressed in Renaissance costumes, members develop and play their character and gain experience by role playing or acting.

D'Aigle's character is big and tough and doesn't get hurt.

"I took that character and brought it to the Renaissance Festival," he said. During an average day, the festival may have 75,000 visitors, according to D'Aigle.

Working 12 hour days for seven weekends, festival entertainers stay in character even while on breaks, which during hot weather can be frequent. "We walk very slowly in the Royal Court," D'Aigle

"Most of what we're doing is sitting down anyway, so it's not that bad.

We all work really hard to make the environment the real thing so that (visitors) feel like they've gone back in time to medieval England."

The Michigan Renaissance Festival is open 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. weekends and Labor Day, Aug. 16 through Sept. 28. one mile north of Mount Holly on Dixle Highway between Pontiac and Flint. Tickets at the gate are $12.95 for adults and $5.95 for children ages five to 12. Advance tickets are $11.50 for adults and $5 for children ages five through 12.

Children ages four and under are admitted free of charge.

Movie to have limited engagement

By CAROL WORKENS Feature Editor

It's finally ready. A limited engagement showing of the Make Believe Productions film The Incorporated will take place this week-

Movie buffs who have been following the progress of the Michigan-based film will have a chance to view it this weekend at the Millennium Theater in Southfield. Shot locally in Novi and Northville, as well as Ann Arbor. Detroit, Fenton, Linden, Hartland. Farmington Hills, Livonia, Grosse Pointe, Dearborn and St. Clair Shores, the movie is about an inventor, Alan Freeling, who is on the verge of developing a new energy source when his financial investor backs out. Undaunted by the setback, the inventor continues with his project and succeeds.

As it turns out, the investor is a front for The Incorporated, a secret government agency whose purpose is to suppress any inventions that could jeopardize the profits and future of large oil companies. The Incorporated sets gut to destroy and his family.

The movie's director, Kenneth Guertin, grew up in Northville. Others in the film include Northville residents Melanie Meadows, and Louise and Doug Meadows. James Chappell, the production designer and an actor, is a 1986 graduate of Northville High School.

Sinister plots uncovered in 'Conspiracy Theory'

By Amanda Cuda SPECIAL WRITER

Do you ever have the feeling you're being watched? Do you sometimes believe your fate is being controlled by an unseen power? Do you ever think those around you are trying to hide. something?

Such fears are everyday concerns for Jerry Fletcher, the hero of Richard Donner's new romantic thriller "Conspiracy Theory." Jerry (played by Oscar-winner Mel Gibson) is a cynical New York cabdriver who sees evidence of sinister plots in even the most innocent and unlikely of places. He's convinced he's the target of an elaborate conspiracy — but, of course no one believes his far-fetched, paranold theories.

The only person who takes Jerry

Julia Roberts in Warner Bros.' suspense-thriller, "Conspiracy Theory."

"I don't know what I know. but I know that it's big..."

--- Jerry Fletcher

somewhat seriously is bright, skeptical Justice Department attorney Alice Sutton (played by Julia Roberts). At first, Alice thinks Jerry is just another paranoid crackpot, but likes him enough to at least listen to his wild theories. Eventually, she realizes, horrified, that his ideas are a lot more plausible than she originally thought.

Soon, Alice and Jerry are thrown together in a run for their lives from the threatening, enigmatic Dr. Jonas (Patrick Stewart), who might hold the key to a terrifying conspiracy.

Conspiracy Theory reunites Gibson with director Donner, who directed the actor in the phenomenally successful "Lethal Weapon" trilogy, and in the hit western comedy "Maverick." Gibson's role in "Conspiracy Theory" follows his performance as a distressed dad in the Ron Howard-directed thriller "Ransom," and his Oscarwinning stint as director of the epic adventure "Braveheart," which the actor also starred in and produced.

Gibson is not the film's only high-powered star. His on-screen love interest. Roberts is one of America's most talented and beloved film actresses. She is probably best remembered for her warm, charming performances in such hit films as 'Pretty Woman,' and "Steel Magnolias." both of which earned Roberts Oscar and Golden Globe nominations. "Conspiracy Theory* is not Roberts' first thriller. She's starred in the adaption of John Grisham's bestselling novel "The Pelican Brief" and the domestic-abuse drama "Sleeping with the Enemy." "Conspiracy Theory" is the second Roberts film to be released this summer, as she also stars in the romantic comedy "My Best

Friend's Wedding* with Dermot Mulroney and Cameron Diaz.

Stewart, who plays the sinister Dr. Jonas, is best know for his work as Capt. Jean-Luc Picard on the popular, award-winning televi-sion series "Star Trek: The Next Generation," and two films based on the series, including 1996's 'Star Trek: First Contact.'

Stewart is also an accomplished stage actor, spending 25 years with the Royal Shakespeare Com-and Drama Desk Awards for his one-man interpretation of Charles Dickens' "A Christmas Carol," which toured in London. New York and Los Angeles.

Together, the three actors paint a breath-taking portrait of a society overrun by lies and corruption and the few brave individuals who dare to fight to expose the truth. "Conspiracy Theory." is a Warner Brother's release and is Silver Pictures Production, in association with Donner-Schuler-Donner Productions.

Sinister plots uncovered in 'Conspiracy Theory'

By Amanda Cuda SPECIAL WRITER

Do you ever have the feeling you're being watched? Do you sometimes believe your fate is being controlled by an unseen power? Do you ever think those around you are trying to hide. something?

Such fears are everyday concerns for Jerry Fletcher, the hero of Richard Donner's new romantic thriller "Conspiracy Theory." Jerry (played by Oscar-winner Mel Gibson) is a cynical New York cabdriver who sees evidence of sinister plots in even the most innocent and unlikely of places. He's convinced he's the target of an elaborate conspiracy — but, of course no one believes his far-fetched. paranoid theories.

The only person who takes Jerry

Julia Roberts in Warner Bros.' suspense-thriller, "Conspiracy

"I don't know what I know, but I know that it's big..."

Jerry Fletcher

somewhat seriously is bright. skeptical Justice Department attorney Alice Sutton (played by Julia Roberts). At first, Alice thinks Jerry is just another paranoid crackpot. but likes him enough to at least listen to his wild theories. Eventually, she realizes, horrissed, that his ideas are a lot more plausible than she originally thought.

Soon, Alice and Jerry are thrown together in a run for their lives from the threatening, enigmatic Dr. Jonas (Patrick Stewart). who might hold the key to a terrifying conspiracy.

"Conspiracy Theory" reunites Gibson with director Donner, who directed the actor in the phenomenaily successful "Lethal Weapon" trilogy, and in the hit western comedy "Maverick." Anderson earns national honor in diving

By SCOTT DANIEL Sports Editor

Add All-American to the list of Chris Anderson's accomplishments.

The recent Northville High graduate earned that status in diving, the sport he made All-State twice in as a Mustang. Anderson was one of 40 nationally to make All-American.

"I wasn't even sure I'd make it," Chris said. "I didn't have the best year."

Maybe not by his own standards, but the judges thought he was pretty darn good. Video tapes of Anderson's performances in last season's league, regional and state meets were sent to be analyzed and compared against other top divers.

According to his mentor and high school coach Mark Heiden, Anderson placed 20th in the country when the judging was completed.
It's quite an honor for him, said Heiden.

It's no accident that Anderson made All-American. He has spent countless hours practicing and competing since he first took up the sport nearly a decade ago. "I've been diving since I was in fifth grade." Chris said. I always liked to play around on the diving board."

Heiden actually encouraged him to give diving a try all those many years ago. Anderson

"At first I didn't have (Clemson) in mind. But after I took a trip down, I saw that the campus was gorgeous and that they had a good program."

Over the years, Anderson has developed quite a repertoire of dives.

Whether it's front or back, twisting or spinning, Chris is confident in his abilities. He said he doesn't have one stand-out dive, though. "All of my dives are pretty much the same," Anderson commented. "All are good, strong

One area he does excel in, even by his own standards, is getting height on his dives. A powerfully built young man. Anderson said his strength allows him to get more height, which in turn lets him make the moves he needs to make to execute his dives.

"It's tougher to get velocity on spins," Anderson said of his size. "But it kind of balances out because I am able to get more height."

The NHS grad will attend Clemson University

this fall on a partial diving scholarship. Anderson had looked at several colleges. including the University of California at Santa Barbara, before going with the Tigers.

"At first I didn't have them in mind," Anderson said of the South Carolina institution. "But after I took a trip down, I saw that the campus was gorgeous and that they had a good pro-

He'll get a chance to compete for Clemson as a freshman. He'll have to get used to a longer season, from September to March.

"I think it should be very interesting." Chris said of diving at the collegiate level.

Anderson plans to major in biology or wildlife management.

Maples Country Club more than pitch, putt

This week The Northville Record continues a series of weekly golf reviews. Our purpose is to provide the reader with useful information and tips on playing the favorite courses in the area.

Maples Country Club is the subject of this week's review. If you would like to see a particular course reviewed this summer, please contact us at (248) 349-1700.

By SCOTT DANIEL

If you go to the Maples Country Club expecting something akin to Augusta National you'll be greatly disappointed.

But if you take the course for what it is, an inexpensive, decently kept executive golf course, chances are you'll walk away satisfied.

According to course professional Todd Gerhart, Maples has more than a pitch-and-putt layout.

"It's not easy," he said. "We've lengthened a few of the holes and toughened it up.

Our greens are in excellent shape. They are very fast."

Located at the corner of Novi Road and Thirteen Mile, Maples Country Club is in its second full season. The course, which measures 1.692 yards from the back tees, first opened late in the 1995 season.

Gerhart joined the club last year and has had the job of smoothing out the rough edges of the course. Keeping the nine-hole course in shape isn't easy, he said, with much of its soil being clay.

We have to water constantly to keep the grass growing," he added. We're also constantly reseeding the tees.

The executive course sees plenty of action each week. Leagues play Monday through Thursday while club members play a scrambles tournament each Friday.

At just $11 for nine holes (not including power cart). Maples is definitely a golfing bargain. Gerhart said a lot of players new to the game come to Maples. It's not a bad place for more experienced golfers to sharpen their games, either. Take the first hole, for example. Playing at 216 yards from the back tees, par is no gimmle here. A narrow fairway is lined by condominiums on both sides. Golfers hit into a long, narrow green. At least a 5-wood for most players. this hole requires accuracy, accuracy, accuracy. Maples' second hole, a 118-yarder, is a lot of fun. The green is elevated some 40 or 50 feet from the teeing area.

Golfers can really only see the top half of the flag. The templation here is to use more club than you normally would for 120 yards. Don't, but make sure you hit the shot firmly to reach the middle of the green. The green slopes down toward the fairway making a rear pin placement very difficult to get

At 229-yards, No. 3 is the second longest hole. It features a rolling fairway with several bunkers.

The length of the hole is the main obstacle. It's probably between a driver and a three-wood for most golfers.

If Maples has a signature hole, No. 4 is probably it. The 137yarder tests golfers' accuracy and

A large wooded area protects a medium-size green. From the elevated tee, golfers must be precise with their shot or lose it in the woods or in someone's backyard. Of the remaining holes, No. 6 and No. 9 offer the most challenges. Both holes almost require that golfers lay up. The sixth is a 208-yard dog leg right. About 150 yards from the tees, a wetlands area divides the fairway and hides the green. Hitting the green from the tee is possible, but not likely. Two short irons into the green are the smart play on No. 6. Maples' finishing hole is a 276yard par 4. It features a slight dog leg to the right and water. A large pond lies 200 yards from the tee. Unless you hit like Tiger Woods, lay up off the tee and keep your ball dry.

In general, putting greens at Maples are in fine shape. A lot of time and effort has obviously been paid to the greens. Golfers are rewarded with true-rolling surfaces that allow for a true putting test.

That's what a trip to the state baseball finals was for the Northville Dodgers. The squad of 13-14-year-old boys represented the city at the Michigan Recreation and Parks Association meet in early August.

It turned out to be a short stay for the Dodgers. A team from Saginaw ousted Northville in the first round on a mercy-shortened five inning game.

They were like an all-star travel team." Dodgers' manager Bob Gutowski said. They were a topnotch club.

Foot odors can be a problem

The topic of foot odors is obviously a personal and sensitive subject. Rarely is it the primary discussion at an evening party and when brought up between intimate friends, only occasionally does it receive more than a bashful grin.

In all seriousness, offensive foot odors can be a real problem. Most often those afflicted either choose to ignore the condition or accept it as one would accept hair loss or freckles. It is here that the distinction must be made and it should be emphasized that usually one need not have this problem.

Professional care is available which involves treating the causes and effects of foot odors. In the majority of cases, a successful resolution of the problem is attainable.

Foot odors in general are usually a manifestation of excessive perspiration. For many, the hands and feet are frequent sites of pooling with resultant wet areas and occasional skin discoloration. Thus, our first line of attack in treating the problem is to effectively reduce or minimize excessive perspiration.

An attempt is made to limit the use of nylon stockings and socks that traditionally promote perspiration. Shoes should be changed rather frequently and the use of breathable leathers, as opposed to the more occlusive synthetic shoe materials, is encouraged.

Topical applications, soaking, and occasional oral medications are given for the purpose of reducing the output of perspiration.

Perhaps the most important factor involved in this condition is the make up of sweat itself, for it is this which causes odor. The old saying "You are what you eat," certainly applies in this case.

Dietary intake modifications are essential in order to bring about the end result. Obviously, garlic.

onions, and other highly spiced foods must be greatly curtailed until the condition is under con-

It is important to keep in mind that offensive foot odor is a treatable condition, and once the causative factor is identified, can usually be remedied.

Immunizations protect against vaccine-preventable diseases

Immunizations are the most powerful way to protect against vaccine-preventable disease. The widespread use of vaccines, particularly among children, has resulted in continuing low levels of disease, disabilities and death.

Vaccine-preventable diseases are still with us. While it is true that diseases such as diphtheria, whooping cough (also known as pertussis). tetanus, polio, measles, mumps, rubella and hoemophilius influenza type B are at an alltime low, outbreaks continue to occur in undervaccinated populations. In 1995, for example, 103 cases of whooping cough were reported.

The Centers for Disease Control has estimated that Michigan immunization rates for 2year-olds in 1995 were the lowest in the nation. In Detroit, the level was 52 percent, compared to 75 percent nationally. A 1996 survey showed that Michigan's immunization rate among 2year-olds had risen to 74.1 percent.

Low immunization levels put our communities - especially young children - at risk for diseases which carry high social and economic costs. Many of the diseases can cause permanent disabilities and can even be fatal.

The cost of immunization, though, remains a barrier for many families. Many insurance plans do not cover the cost of vaccines or their administration. Many physicians, however, participate in a state-funded program, Vaccines for Children, which offers vaccines for a minimal

Adequate immunization requires only five visits to a health care provider during the first two

There are common misconceptions about

• Diseases had already begun to disappear before vaccines were introduced, because of better hygiene and sanitation.

The real decrease in rates of these diseases only occurred with widespread use of the vac-

• The majority of people who get diseases have been vaccinated. Statistically, 100 percent of the unvaccinated will get the disease, while a small percentage of the vaccinated will become infected. · Vaccines may cause many harmful side-effects and perhaps longterm effects. A child is far more likely to be seriously injured by disease than by any vaccine. Wellcontrolled studies have found no additional risk, or a decreased risk, of Sudden Infant Death Syndrome, for example, among immunized children. • Vaccine-preventable diseases have been virtually eliminated from the United States, so there is no need for a child to be vaccinated.

The truth is that travelers can bring diseases into the U.S. and epidemics could occur here. Also, the few cases we currently have in the U.S. could very quickly become tens or hundreds of thousands without the protection we get from vaccines.

· Giving multiple vaccinations for different reasons at the same time increases the risk of side effects.

Studies by both the American Academy of Pediatrics and the Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices have shown that the recommended vaccines are as effective in combination as they are individually and that such combinations carry no greater risk for adverse side effects.

Michigan law requires children ages 4-6 (either entering preschool or kindergarten) to Four doses of diptheria-pertussis-tetanus (DTP) vaccine, including one dose on or after the fourth birthday; three doses of polio vaccine with a booster dose on or after the fourth birthday; two doses of measles-mumps-rubella vaccine after the first birthday, with one dose on or after the 15th month; three doses of any appropriate hepatitis B vaccine.

Many physicians will give a combination of injectable polio and oral polio vaccine. The use of either vaccine or a combination is acceptable. Also, the acellular pertussis vaccine is preferred, but not required.

We recommend the chicken-pox vaccine be administered after the first birthday and that adolescents get a DT booster five years after starting school and then every 10 years. In addition, influenza vaccine is to be given to children who have pulmonary or cardiac diseases as well as to all seniors. Don't miss any opportunity to have your child immunized. A state registry is now on-line in southeast Michigan. Widespread use of this registry will assist you and your doctor and

Always bring your immunization record when you visit your physician or the emergency room.

GARDENING

Fresh-cut flowers make every room beautiful

By C.Z. Guest Copley News Service

One of the best reasons for having a flower garden is having the ready supply of flowers just waiting to be cut for vase and container. However, when the garden is looking especially dazzling, nobody wants to spoil the effect by cutting the finest blooms.

So what to do? This is especially true when company is expected for the weekend.

The obvious solution of course is to plant a separate group of flower beds for cutting. You can accomplish this by digging a new beds in a part of the garden where they will compliment the landscape, or better still, by using part of the vegetable garden.

Flowers can be a crop just like vegetables, the more they are cut, the more blooms they will produce, this applies especially to annuals.

A carefully planned cutting garden can provide flowers throughout the growing season. The same applies to flowers grown in winter. All of this can be accomplished without disturbing your display garden.

Ideally, a cutting garden should be in full sun. Well-drained soil is a must for success. If these conditions can't be met, plants that will grow in partial shade or moist soil can be grown. Don't give up if you can't find a sunny.

When conditions are marginal — due to excessive moisture — building raised beds could solve the problem. A 12 by 24 foot rectangle makes a good size cutting bed; large enough to plant a generous selection of annuals. Of course, there are a large number of plants that can be grown in much smaller plots. Don't feel the cutting garden has to be huge, since there are tricks for getting the most out of a small space bed.

The garden bed doesn't have to be square or , Teclangle. Just choose a shape that works for working cutting garden (similar to a kitchen garden) anything fussy will make harvesting difficult. you, but keep it simple. Remember, this is a Once you've decided the site, preparing the bed is next. Assuming the area is presently lawn, the best way to do this task is to remove the sod, leaving as much topsoil as possible. Dig or rototill to loosen the soil and add a lot of manure and compost to make it even lighter. Next, add a dash of organic fertilizer made especially for flowers.

In choosing flowers for the cutting garden. start with varieties you are familiar with. Choose colors based on personal favorites and compatibility with the colors used in the house.

A variety of colors is usually best. I always plant a lot of white flowers, including fillers like baby's breath and statice. White blends perfectly with other colors, brightening dark arrangements and softening intensely colorful ones. Another consideration is the shape and size of your blooms. There again, a mixture is best. It should include eye-catchers like tall spikes, daisy-like blooms and dainty fillers.

And of course the leaves (foliage) play a big part, too. Some plants have marvelous leaves that look great in arrangements. Coleus and amaranthus come to mind. The ideal cut flower has a tall, stiff stem, a lovely fragrance and lasts at least a week after being cut. Oriental lillies, peonles, asters, Shasta dalsy and hydrangeas come to mind.

This is what florists insist upon, because the time between cutting and selling can be several days, with a lot of handling in between. This is where home gardeners have an advantage over florists. Their flowers are fresh.

You can also experiment with favorite types considered too delicate for the florist trade. For instance, cut a bunch of daylilles for a special event in the evening, knowing the blooms will be wilted by the next day and not worry about cost, although buds or the stems will continue to open.

Even though height is not always crucial, a bowl of short-stemmed flowers makes a nice table arrangement that won't obstruct a dinner partner's view. And a small bouquet of roses, violets or lily-of-the-valley can be a delightful touch for a bed-side table or bathroom.

Perennial or annuals? The ultimate cut-flower garden should have both, but for beginners, I suggest starting with annuals. They are a cinch to grow from seed, mature swiftly and bloom for a long time - and some even reseed themselves and show up again the following spring.

There are many annuals that make the perfect cut flower. Annuals provide blooms all through the growing season, from early summer through fall, in a nice mix of shapes and colors for bouquets. They will last at least five days after being harvested, often longer.

High-tech communications boost luxury home sales

By James M. Woodard Copley News Service

A current real estate trend is closely tied to high-tech communications advances.

Luxury homes are becoming hot selling properties across the country - homes being purchased for a primary residence and for second or vacation homes.

Their increased popularity is spurred by recent technological developments that make it possible to perform many working assignments from a home office.

In some cases, business leaders who are grabbing the opportunity to spend more working hours at home believe they can afford a larger, better home in which they now live and work.

And vacation homes are taking on more importance, as business people spend more time in their second home while continuing to work via high-tech communicaREAL ÉSTATE

Therefore, buyers are willing to spend more money on their getaway home in the mountains or on the shore of a lake or ocean. This is beginning to push up the values (prices) of these properties.

Another contributing factor to the increasing sales of high-end homes is the continuing good health of our economy - rising stock market, high employment and income, etc.

More than 11 million people now work and telecommunicate a portion of their work from their primary or second home. It equally involves men and women at this point, with the most rapid growth represented by women.

On the subject of telecommuting growth, one of the most active business niches is government employment. It's estimated that is seen in the distribution of about 160,000 government employees will be telecommunicating work from their home by 2002.

We're entering a new era in residential real estate where luxury homes will be in greater demand," said Tom duPont, publisher of the duPont Registry, a Buyers Gallery of Fine Hornes. 'And we're finding that the popularity of luxury vacation homes is growing most dramatically.

These are not really just vacation homes any longer. They are alternative homes. They're being used more frequently as both a getaway and working site."

Marketing luxury homes in today's market requires special expertise. It's important to expose the property's availability to strategic people in a large area, not just the local market. This could be statewide, nationwide or duPont's publication. About 100,000 copies are printed every other month. Gratis copies are mailed to such groups as Fortune 500 top executives, well-known celebrities and athletes. They send a box of the publications to the locker rooms of major-league sports teams.

A survey revealed the typical reader of the publication is a male with a yearly income of $172,280, and a net worth of $1.2 million.

It's essential for the marketing of newly built luxury homes to be equipped with state-of-the-art telecommunicating facilities - adequate power and wiring, special ports, satellite dish, et al. If these capabilities are lacking, today's prospective buyer will probably keep looking for a home that will satisfy his telecommunicating

Q. I was interested in your recent column about buyer's brokers. But I'd like more information about their fees. How and what do they normally charge?

A. The buyer's broker fee is normally paid by the home seller. If the home is listed with a broker. the normal commission will be shared by the listing and buyer's broker. If the home is being sold directly by its owner (a "for sale by owner"), about half the normal sales commission is often paid by

In other words, if the prevailing commission rate in the area is 6 percent, the owners selling their own home might be required to pay the buyer's broker a fee of 3 percent of the sales price. But that is negotiable between the parties.

In some cases, the buyer's broker is retained with a flat fee (paid by the buyer). But it's more common for the fee to be generated via the shared commission, or from the seller. However, it's important to remember that all arrangements are negotiable.

A word of caution: Some brokers work as "dual agents," working as the agent for both sellers and buyers, as opposed to working as an exclusive buyer's broker.

The dual-agent broker might start discussions by representing himself as representing a buyer who might be interested in your property. Subsequently, he might change hats and solicit a listing of the property. However, most brokers do not engage in such trickery. They've learned it's just good business to keep their ethics on a high professional level.

Round Lake) communities behind Oak Pointe. The new road, which should be complete by the end of August, will be an improvement over the old one, says McDonald.

The lots in Oak Pointe Hills are heavily treed and will average completed, those prices will

Although three or four builders have reserved lots in the development thus far, the bulk have been reserved by home buyers, and they will be able to use their own builders.

As for the homes in Oak Pointe Hills, they will be restricted to the architectural standards set by preceding phases in Oak Pointe: custom, grand and - most definitely Bohlen puts the starting prices for homes in Oak Pointe Hills at $350,000 and estimates some homes could go up to as much as $1 million.

In addition to the wooded lots and nice topography, it's a sure bet that the buyers who have been snatching up the lots in Oak Pointe Hills find the lifestyle that Oak Pointe offers quite appealing.

Amenities include two top-rated

18-hole golf courses, an all-sports lake, a beach, a private marina, a pool, a country club, tennis courts and walking trails.

Other features in the new development will include sewer, water and underground utilities.

Oak Pointe Hills is the final single-family phase in a project which began over 10 years ago, transforming a Detroit company's private resort area (the former Burroughs Farms) into one of Brighton's most recognized com-

Asked if Oak Pointe Hills, as the last phase, will be the "star," McDonald replied, "It's a very nice piece of property, it's got a lot of nice wooded areas, a lot of topography, and Oak Pointe in general has all that, but this is going to be one of our nicer ones. There's no doubt about that."

comfortable in your hand) to cut the stems. Don't pluck the flowers by hand, since you can easily damage or uproot your precious

I like to carry a bucket of water into the garden, especially during the hot days of July and August. so I can plunge the cut stems immediately into the bucket.

You can also take a shallow basket lined with a damp cloth and sprinkle a little water on the flower stems. After picking, strip all the lower leaves that would be under water and trim the stem shorter, if

Many people like to do a little basic conditioning with their flowers, before arranging them. They will look better and last longer if you do. Here's how to do

To condition most kind of flowers, such as perennials, annuals and buib flowers, plunge the neck deep (never cover the flowers!) in a pall of lukewarm water and let them soak overnight or all day. You can do this indoors or in a shady spot.

 For flowers that have milky sap, such as poppies and daffodils, hold their freshly cut stems over a candle flame for 30 seconds. Then place the flowers in

For flowers with woody or tough stems that often wilt fast, such as lilacs, roses or hydrangeas, simply make a clean diagonal cut across the bottom of the stem, then slit the stem lengthwise for an inch or two, scraping the bark off the slit

For a minute or so, dip the base of the woody stems (inch deep) in scalding water. The last step is to condition the flowers by immersing the stems in a pail of warm water all day or overnight.

For best results, basic conditioning should be done the day before you arrange the flowers. that's what I do and the flowers last for at least a week.

When caring for a bouquet, one should remove any faded or wilted flowers, pronto. Check the container or vase daily and add water as needed.

Some flowers drink more water than others - roses and peonles are continually thirsty, for example. After each use, be sure to wash vases or containers thoroughly, washing away any smelly residue. They should be pristine clean at all times.

Know The Difference

FACTS

The homebuying process includes plenty of appointments to see and compare homes. Making those comparisons leads to making the final choice. When you do, how can you be sure what stays with the house, and what doesn't?

First, ask the real estate agent. When the property owners first listed the home with their agent, they explained whether any personal property was to remain at sale time. The agent will have that Information, and share it with you.

Keep in mind the difference between real property and personal property. Real estate is defined as "the land and all improvements permanently affixed to the land." Personal property is defined as "everything else." For example. curtain rods mounted to the walls are considered real estate. The hanging curtains and drapes are "personal property.

personal property, while one mounted under a cabinet would be real estate. A rule of thumb might be "If its nailed down, it's real estate."

Can buyers ask sellers to include other Items of property? Of course, but it would be subject to negotiation, and must be written into any purchase agreement. One example might be a free-standing swing set in the yard. If the item is to be left at no charge to the buyers, that should also be written into the agreement.

When buying a home, ask the agent what personal property is included. Then, put it in writing for a no surprises home purchase.

LET'S TALK Real Estate

FINANCING PROPERTIES THAT NEED REPAIR The FHA-insured 203(k) mortgage has become increasingly popular in recent years because it is designed to assist buyers who wish to purchase properties that require repair or rehabilitation. This mortgage is unusual in that it offers a loan amount that exceeds the current appraised value of the home. To qualify, the home must be in need of at least $5,000 of repairs. Although cosmetic repairs are not counted toward this amount, they may be funded after the minimum is met. The minimum may be satisfied in categories that include structural work, plumbing, heating, wiring, roofing, exterior siding, energy conservation, accessibility, etc. Appraisals are required for the as-is value and the value after the proposed repairs are made. Alerting you to the possibilities of some little known nancing opportunities that can save you money is just one of the many ways a knowledgeable. Realtor earns his or her commission. Aside from a host of traditional mortgages and derally subsidized loans, there are many interest of alternative financing arrangements that might be appropriate in any particular case. If you think a conv loan isn't for you, you might ask me to show you FHA 203(k) eligible properties. For personal and qualified service, call me at the Coldwell Banker/Schweitzer Real Estate office at 41860 W. Sox Mile Rd., Phone 347-3050.

HINT: The 203(k) loan amount cannot exceed the FHA maximum for the home's market area

Taking pizza orders worldwide by Internet

By ANNETTE JAWORSKI Special Writer

Just when you thought fast food couldn't get more convenient, there's now a new way to enjoy pizza that doesn't require baking or refrigeration.

Mark O'Brien, of Pizza Maker in White Lake Township takes tredit for breaking the convenience barrier with his cheese pizza.

And ordering is as easy as logging onto the Internet. When it came to offering his new product. O'Brien wanted to think big. In marketing his new product, he didn't want to set limits. It seemed only logical that he set up his own website.

"I said to myself, you have to keep up with the times and change with the times," said O'Brien.

It goes something like this: you log onto the Pizza Maker web site. and a color photo of the product is displayed, showing the cases in which the product is shipped in the background. Put your check in the mail, and you receive the order in 24 to 48 hours from receipt of

What you get is a package of twelve six-by-five-inch wedgeshaped slices for $19.95, plus $5 shipping and handling. Each is vacuum packed, precooked and individually wrapped. It comes with cheese, sauce and dough. This seemed the most logical approach, since pizza can offer thousands of combinations, he

"The reason we don't put meat products on is because there are state laws that say you can't ship meat products over state lines," he

Don't expect the usual pizza, though. The product is not like vour traditional gooey pie. He says to think of it as a pizza cracker. O'Brien calls it more of a snack than a meal, which makes it a perfect take-with treat.

'You don't have to cook it. microwave it or refrigerate it." he said. "It's kind of like Pringle's potato chips. People used to say, this isn't a chip. Now they're on every grocery shelf."

An alternative use for his invention is to crumble the pizza "chip" as a salad crouton. O'Brien works as a consultant for some chains in the food service industry, and is currently working on a pizza salad. which would include shredded mozzarella cheese, green peppers, onion, lettuce and a package of his new cheese pizza slices crumbled up as croutons.

By using the Internet. O'Brien has expanded his market to a worldwide audience.

We're hoping, through the internet access, that not only local customers will use us, but throughout the United States and world wide."

So far, O'Brien has mailed his product to every state and to numerous countries around the world. A customer from Nigeria enjoyed the cheese pizza, and a resident of Turkey not only placed an order, but asked about franchise rights.

Since you don't need to bake or refrigerate the product, it opens up all kinds of possibilities. O'Brien finds it a popular item for fruit baskets. It stays fresh packed in lunch boxes. And he'll even be happy to send the pizza to that college student for you. All he requires is the complete name and address to ship it.

O'Brien Entrepreneur of the Year by Entrepreneur magazine in 1987 and is a 15-year veteran of the food service industry. He's a former student of Lakeland and Milford High Schools, Oakland Technical Center's Culinary Arts program, Northwood Institute (now Northwood University) and Oakland Community College.

There are now two ways to order pizza from Pizza Maker. Inc.; via computer, or by phone. To order via the Internet, log on to his website at www.pizzamaker.com, or call (248) 698-1414. Mail checks to Pizza Maker at 9366 Elizabeth Lake Road in White Lake, MI 48386. Delivery takes 24-48 hours Pizza Maker in White Lake Township, will take care of your late night munchles with cheese pizza mailed directly to you from orders placed on the Internet.

DETROIT P13963-8959

It seems selling a Saturn is as rewarding as buying one.

Saturns come with a bunch of neat things that help them maintain their value. For one, the polymer bodyside panels resist dents, dings and corrosion. It probably explains why so many Saturns stay looking new five or maybe even ten years down the road and have some of the highest resale values in their classes.* Of course, keeping the inside looking as good is up to you. SATURN.

That's the M.S.R.P. of this 1997 Saturn SL, including AC, retailer prep transportation. Of course, total cost will vary seeing how other options and state-required equipment are extra, as are things like tax and license. Each retailer sets its own price, which may differ from the price above. ©1997 Saturn Corporation.

Perhaps you've reached that point in your life where your dream home is just a step away from becoming a reality; that point where you can consider a home for its uniqueness and beauty not just its practicality. If that time is now, Cambridge Homes, Inc. is here to cater to your needs.

"Out team has worked hard to create what we think is one of the highest levels of customer satisfaction in the business," says Mark Guidobono CEO of Cambridge Homes. After growing up with both a father and grandfather in the cement business, it was a natural step for Mark and his brother Eric to establish Cambridge Homes in 1979. They have dedicated the last ten years to building top quality, high-end homes and today their reputation certainly succeeds them. "By blending all the right architecture with all the right amenities, we are able to design and build homes that perfectly fit our customer's tastes," says Guidobono.

While Cambridge Homes offers a variety of existing floor plans, including first floor master suites and two story colonials, customization is key.

Cambridge Homes is extremely successful in this realm because they take the time to listen to their customers. "The builder meets with every client to make sure they get exactly what they want from start to finish," says Sales and Marketing Manager, Matt Hatz. "Customers are more educated, more knowledgeable these days. We cater to those needs."

Buyers at Cambridge Homes' latest and most spectacular community, the "Woods of Edenderry" in Northville, are truly pampered. Located at the highest elevation point in the area, these homes provide fantastic views of western Wayne and eastern Washtenaw counties. Inside, the eighty acre community boasts wooded landscaping, rolling homesites, a sixteen acre park, and convenient sidewalks on both sides of the street. There are over one hundred sites available, each covering at least one-half acre or larger. Forty of the homesites back up to the naturalistic park. "This is going to be one of the finest developments in the entire metropolitan area," says Guidobono.

While Cambridge Homes offers a variety of existing floor plans, including first floor master suites and two story colonials, customization is key. "We can design a plan to fit just about anyone's needs," says Hatz. "Woods of Edenderry" will sport some of the finest homes ranging from a minimal 3,000 square feet and up. With prices starting in the mid-$400's, homebuyers at "Edenderry" expect quality and they receive it. "We really pay attention to detail," says Hatz. Cambridge Homes offers beautiful brick architectural styles with masonry fireplaces rather than prefabricated sets, solid core doors and detailed moldings are just a few of the outstanding features included.

To further accommodate their

Cambridge Homes from pg. 4 clients, Cambridge Homes is opening a new design center. This design center has an elaborate display of interior selections available, from cabinets to flooring all under one roof. "Most builders offer an interior allowance but the client is still required to do the legwork at the various vendors," says Hatz. "Our goal is to create a more relaxed environment for today's buyer." Personal assistance is available during the selection process.

If you are interested in experiencing a Cambridge home first-hand, come visit their latest model, the Monticello. Composed of over 5,000 square feet, this amazing old world-style home offers a unique and lovely floor plan. "You can see almost every first floor room from the foyer," says Hatz. "It's absolutely gorgeous."

This model will open in concurrence with Phase III of "Edenderry." "Woods of Edenderry" is convenient to 1-275, Ann Arbor and the airport and is in the Northville school district.

A HISTORY OF OUR SITE

In 1825, pioneers came from New York State to lay claim to Northville. Abraham B. Markham settled on 180 acres of land bounded by Six and Seven Mile and Beck and Northville Roads. The area was heavily timbered and home to wildlife. To make room for his cabin and crop, Markham cleared the trees by ax. After logging 7 acres of forest, he sowed the ground with oats, wheat, corn, potatoes and hay. In 1826, he built his log cabin on the north side of Six Mile and 1/2 mile west of Sheldon. On the site of the old farmland now flourishes "Woods of Edenderry."

Second Homes: Your Perfect Vacation Getaway

verloaded with our busy day to day schedules, many Southeastern Michigan residents are turning to second homes for a guaranteed vacation spot. Michigan is one of the only states that uses the term "up north" to describe where we often spend our three day weekends. Many of us are attracted to its beautiful and serene natural landscape; others to its bountiful lakes.

Traverse City is certainly an ideal example and perhaps one of the fastest growing areas in Michigan. Vacation home buyers are seeking property on its many lakes, among the favorites are Long Lake, Glen Lake and Grand Traverse Bay.

Chalets, especially those with plenty of glass, are the current homes of choice for both visitors and retirees. "Most vacationers are looking for a small chalet or a ranch that is energy efficient and easy to close in the winter," says Jim Bremer of Eastwood Custom Homes. Log cabins are also popular, however they can be an expensive investment when used as a vacation home.

If you're looking for something a bit closer to home, consider the west side of the state. The Canadian Lakes resort, located 1/2 way between Mt. Pleasant and Big Rapids, offers property owners a fun-filled, private retreat. Diversified recreation is the cornerstone of this 6,000 acre community. There are 1,200 acres of waterways, 8 lakes in all, nine tennis courts and 54-holes of golf. Activities are dispersed between five on-site clubhouses, including the Mayfair complete with restaurant, main pro shop and an indoor pool (there is also a seasonal pool by the central office). Alpine Village is the hub of much of the organized activities at Canadian Lakes and also has a large hall for dances and gatherings.

Canadian Lakes is located among woods and rolling terrain reminding visitors of up north. However, it is conveniently located just 2 1/2 hours from many Detroit suburbs. It is also a brief fifty-five miles from downtown Grand Rapids and less than a hour from major Michigan snow resorts. While Canadian Lakes is a resort, complete with permanent homes as well as rentals, it is reserved for lake access property owners only. Available lots average 1/2 an acre, prices range from $6,900 to waterfront starting at $50,000.

For those of you that are interested in something out of state, consider Arizona, a popular vacation retreat for Michiganians. "The lifestyle Scottsdale [Arizona] has to offer is very special," says Marcia Fenton of Diamond Realty, who fell in love with the city twenty six-years ago. "It's very casual, very laid back. People don't realize that Arizona has all four seasons at one time. You can ski in one area and three hours away you'll find 80 degree weather."

The Scottsdale/Phoenix area offers a mix of entertainment ranging from cultural events to major league sports and is relatively close to many exciting cities. Las Vegas, Los Angeles, Aspen and Mexico are all just an hour's flight away. Marcia helps people in Michigan find homes and properties in Northern Scottsdale by determining their needs and wants. In Arizona, her associates then research builders, local golf courses, and available properties.

Regardless of what town or state you want your vacation home in, take the time to do your homework. You should not only inspect the house and property but also its surroundings. Do the recreational activities in the area fulfill your needs? Are the residents friendly? Do you feel comfortable with your neighbors? What are the rules and regulations of the community? Is the property equipped for vacation use? Most important, make sure your home will be safe if left unattended for months at a time. If you check on the issues that concern you most before you buy, you'll have less to worry about when you're not on vacation and more to enjoy when you are.

For more information on these properties, you can call Diamond Realty at (248) 855-1116, or Canadian Lakes at (800) 722-5549.

This Month's Community Profile: DOURDAN PLACE

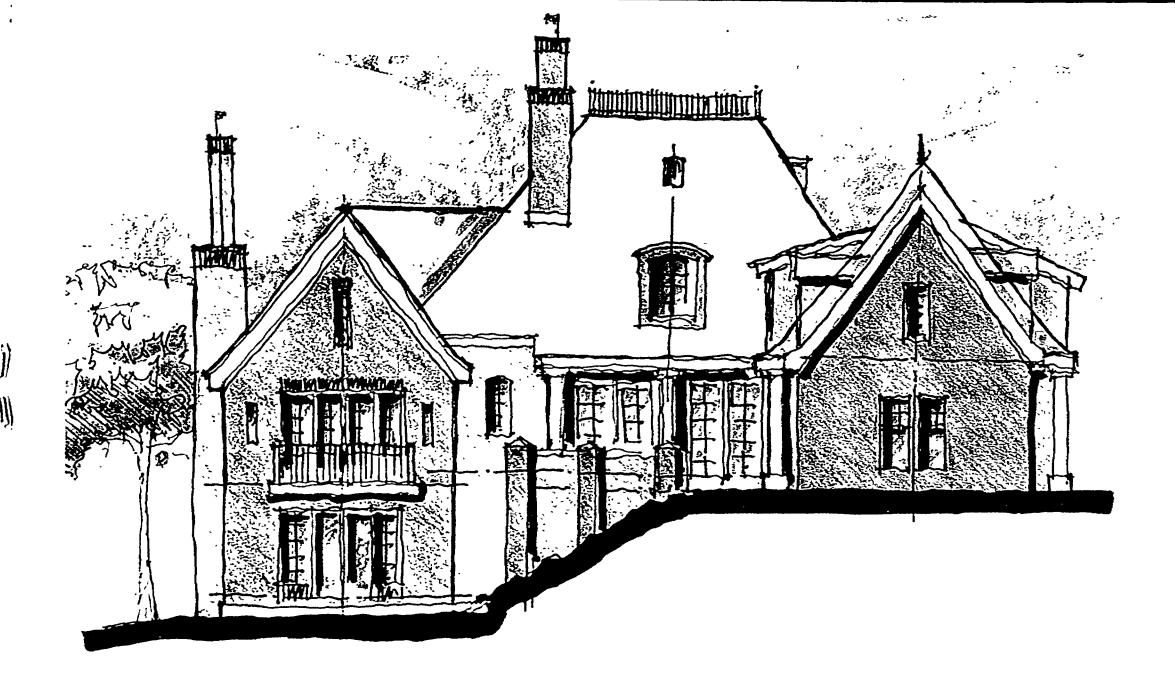

ourdan Place is an inviting new community of elegant homes reminiscent of the French countryside, located in Bloomfield Township. Sixteen homesites are carefully planned around a French Country estate designed by renowned Detroit architect Albert Kahn and built in 1919. Faithfully restored to its original splendor, the mansion now serves as the inspiration for custom homes which will reflect European design themes.

A select group of architects has been commissioned to create a series of plans patterned after the timeless Kahn home featuring European influence. Homes will be built according to established architectural guidelines which ensure that Dourdan Place will ultimately become one of the area's most prestigious residential neighborhoods.

Each of the homes will reflect the elements of European style and design-the characteristic strength of stone and wood, steeply rising roof lines, French doors opening to elegant gardens, the old world craftsmanship of cedar and slate roofs, along with traditional detailing. Interiors will include such features as solid oak bookshelves, leaded glass windows, marble flooring with individually controlled radiant heating underneath, and natural stone fireplaces. Indeed, sumptuous living, inspired by the French countryside, will prevail.

Dourdan Place affords a secluded intimacy. Tucked into a private parcel of land off Hickory Grove Road, the community is secluded behind an enchanting stone gatehouse entryway and encircled by dense White and Austrian pine trees. A stately pillared pergola serves as the focal point for the community and sets the tone for classic elegance.

The warm glow of gas street lanterns welcomes residents and guests with a timeless elegance.

Three model homes are currently under construction at Dourdan Place; two designed by Victor Saroki & Associates Architects, P.C. and one by Alexander V. Bogaerts & Associates. Conti Construction Company is building the homes, ranging from 4,800 to 5,300 square feet. Craig Steinhaus of Perlmutter-Freiwald will oversee the interior design.

Dourdan Place is located on the north side of Hickory Grove Road between Woodward Avenue and Opdyke Road in Bloomfield Township. For more information contact Kathy Wilson at Hannett, Wilson & Whitehouse at (248) 646-6200.

Hardwood Floors

by Susan Graham

"For a reasonable price, homeowners can customize their floor and have a real showpiece."

ardwood floors offer beauty, warmth and durability that's hard to match. It's no wonder then, we're experiencing a long-lasting resurgence in its popularity. Because, hardwood matches well with any decor including country and contemporary, as well as traditional, you'll find them in a wide range of new construction and existing homes. "Wood flooring is one of the cheapest ways to remodel a home," says Jim Moody of Paynter Floors in Novi.

In fact, homeowners can often add hardwood for around $8 to $11 a square foot, that's less than ceramic tile and some carpeting.

Today, because of its elegance and affordability, many homeowners are opting to finish their whole lower level in hardwood rather than just one or two rooms. "Any room on the first floor is fair game," says Mike Kramer of A.R. Kramer in Livonia. "Dens, dining rooms, great rooms."

Kitchens also look beautiful with wood floors, however, pay attention to the amount of traffic this room receives. High heels, chair legs and heavy traffic can be hard on the floor. Consider using area rugs in busy sections and add felt pads to the bottoms of tables and chairs. Oak is a harder wood and is often used in high traffic areas.

For great aesthetic results, select a wood species for your floor that is different then what was used for your cabinets. "Many woods go well together. Oak flooring is often used with maple cabinets," says Dave Munn of Riemer Floors in Bloomfield Hills. "White wash cabinets with oak floors are also great."

According to Munn, long strip hardwood patterns are most in demand as well as lighter colors. And many homeowners are opting to enhance the natural beauty of the wood by applying a clear top coat in place of a stain.

Traditional oak flooring is still the most popular and most affordable hardwood available. "People are

Wood floor requires minimal maintenance, including vacuuming. You may wipe it with a cloth of vinegar and water but do not flood the floor or mop it. Large amounts of water can seep into the wood and cause unsightly warping and cracking. Also, avoid using wax, Murphy's oil and dish soap.

Repairing a wood floor is also one of the easier tasks. If you happen to have a damaged board, simply remove it, sand it down and drop it back into its original place.

Recoating your floor every five years or so, especially if you have high traffic, will remove scratches and help renew the appearance of the floor.

also b

familiar with it," says Sharene Smith of Laurel's Floors in Brighton. "It's what grandma and great grandma used. It's also been a plentiful wood for years."

Even so, there is a definite trend toward the exotics such as maple, Brazilian cherry, Australian cypress, and pine. "Maple is perhaps second to oak (in popularity)," says Mike Kramer of A.R. Kramer. "The grain and appearance is much more clear and sleek."

The variation of color of hardwood floors is created by stains. The selection of colors people can choose from today has increased dramatically with everything from pastels to green and black. But even with these varieties available, the natural wood tones are still the most popular. And if your home already has a hard wood floor and just needs a facelift, restaining the surface could be a very economical alternative.

"The upgrade is really not that expensive and can make a difference," says Moody. "For a reasonable price, homeowners can customize their floor and have a real showpiece."

For a price comparison, consider that maple will run approximately $1 to $2 more a square foot than oak, while the Brazilian cherry will run about $2 to $4 dollars more.

If you're looking for something even more unique, detailed inserts and decorative borders, such as braided borders, are available. Using a different species and color of wood helps make these special additions stand out even more.

nly rarely will you encounter neighborhoods that embody the excellence found in two world-class communities created by Moceri Development Corporation – Kingspointe and The Hills of Oakland. Located in highly desirable Oakland Township, both offer some of the most noteworthy custom residences in the nation.

The Monarque II, featured here, is one of the most dynamic floor plans at Kingspointe and is typical of the grandeur offered at both communities. A dramatic two story foyer showcases a spectacular formal staircase and the incomparable artistry evidenced in every Moceri home. Formal rooms display Old-World craftsmanship and finishing details seldom seen in today's new homes. Rich oak paneling provides a welcoming warmth in a traditional library with a stately double door entry.

An expansive 4,500 square feet, the Monarque II deftly balances elegance with family convenience. A two-story family room shares a two-way fireplace with the spacious kitchen and sunny nook. A second staircase entrance from the kitchen and a large mud/service room offer practical solutions to the needs of active family life.

Upstairs, the master suite provides an unparalleled private oasis. A two-way fireplace sheds its light on the spacious bedroom and on a cozy retreat that offers its own wet bar. An opulent compartmentalized bath pampers with the luxury of a whirlpool tub. Three additional bedrooms offer plenty of room for today's kids with their computers and entertainment systems. Each offers direct access to a bath.

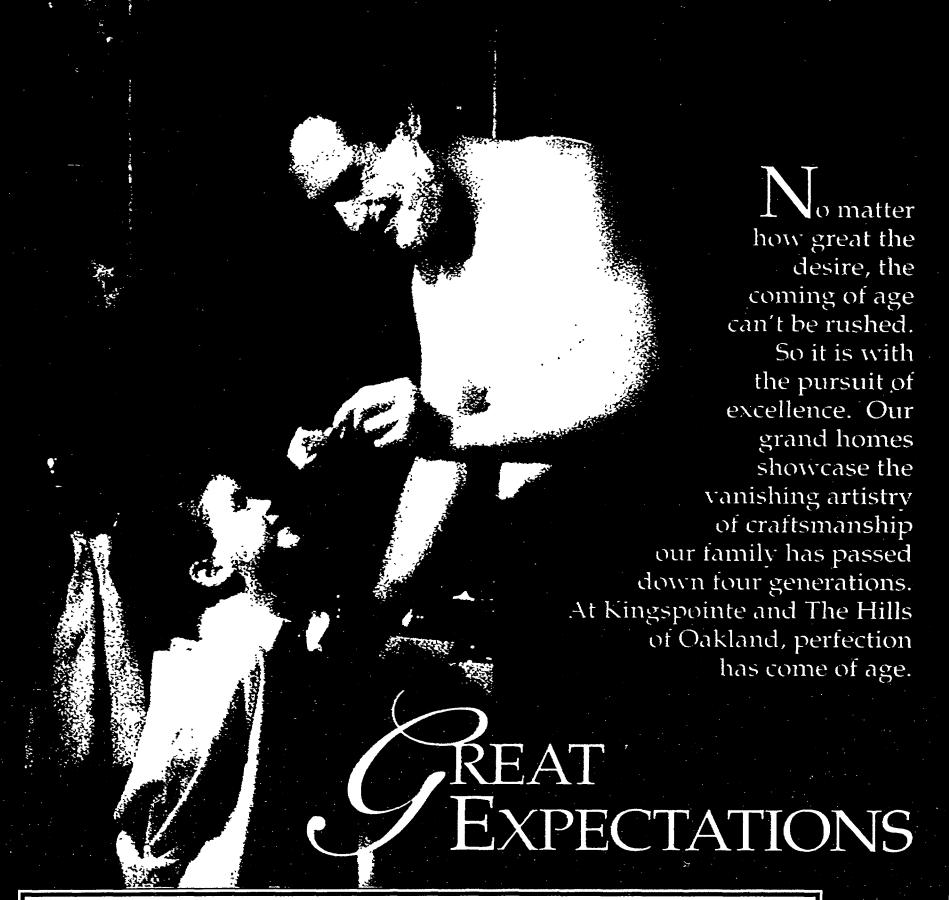

All plans at Kingspointe and

The Hills of Oakland offer a wide array of options for custom finishings. At Kingspointe, homes from 4,000 to 5,500 square feet plus walkout level are priced from $530,000 to $925,000. Homes in The Hills of Oakland span 4,800 to 10,000 square feet and range from $725,000 to $1.2 million.

The elegant master bedroom suite in Robert R. Jones Associates' Carlton Model.

The majority of the living spaces in our homes are open to the public. We enjoy having guests congregate in our kitchens, cheer for sporting events on the big screen TV in our family rooms, chat in our comfortable living rooms, celebrate holidays and special occasions with festive meals in our formal dining rooms-even check out the ways in which we've finished our basements!

There is one room in our homes, however, which inspires a certain feeling of possessiveness. The master bedroom is a place we prefer to call our own. We are happy to offer others a brief glimpse of our personal domain, but we prefer that they don't linger too long.

For most of us, whether or not we have children living at home, the master bedroom is the room that is uniquely ours-and ours alone. It is our stress-free haven, our splendid hideaway, our safe harbor. We can close the door of our master bedroom and retreat from the trials and tribulations of the day.

Because of the relaxing role the master bedroom can play in relation to the rest of the home, I invite you, our Home Spotlight readers, to take a moment to evaluate how you feel within the confines of your master bedroom. Does your decor create a sense of serenity? Do your surroundings inspire a feeling of comfort and joy?

Let's explore some decorating and design ideas to help you transform your master bedroom into a more pleasurable personal paradise.

A simple yet stunning Robert R. Jones Associates' master bedroom suite in Oakland Township.

Lap of Luxury

Give thought to some of Robert R. Jones the 'personal luxuries' that you enjoy in your life, and then think about some of the simple ways in which you can more completely savor these activities in the privacy of your master bedroom.

For example if you enjoy spending time reading good books, consider adding a comfortable, overstuffed chair in a corner of the room where you can curl up with your favorite novel. If space is limited, consider adding some cushy throw pillows on your bed which you can place under your head and neck to enhance your comfort when you recline to read. Also, evaluate whether you have appropriate and ample lighting for reading in your bedroom. You may find the time has come to invest in a good reading lamp.

If you enjoy nature, bring the outdoors inside and surround yourself with glorious green plants and fragrant flowers. Placing plants in decorative pots around your room, both on the floor and atop dressers, desks, nightstands and shelves, will make the room itself, as well as your spirits, come alive.

If you have boxes filled with cherished family photos and other personal treasures stacked in your closet, empty them out and place these special heirlooms and mementos in special spots throughout the room. This is a wonderful way to surround yourself with your family while still enjoying your privacy!

If you have a home office or conduct some of your business from home, try to keep any business-related papers, products or phone calls elsewhere in you home. Doing this helps to maintain the proper function of your master bedroom: to provide a leisurely retreat.

If your favorite pastime is to plop down on your bed with the remote control in hand, make sure that your television set is strategically located so that you can watch it comfortably. It's not relaxing if you have to strain your neck because your TV is located in an odd or inconvenient spot in your bedroom.

Bed & Breakfast Charm

It's no coincidence that so many couples today plan vacations at peaceful, secluded Bed & Breakfast Inns. They are looking for relaxing getaways that allow them to get away from it all. With a little imagination and creativity, the master bedroom in your own home can be transformed into your own private vacation spot and romantic refuge:

- Select color schemes that are soothing to your senses and reflect a feeling of relaxation. Soothing colors include shades of white, rose, blue and green.
- Choose bedding that exudes both charm and comfort. If you've always dreamed of sleeping under a down comforter, by all means treat yourself to one! If you've been sleeping on the same lumpy pillow for ten years, toss it and pick out a new pillow to rest your head on each night.
- Shop around until you find the perfect bedspread, accessories and window treatment pattern that are pleasing to your eye. Each time you walk into your master bedroom, you should experience great pleasure and pride in the beautiful accents you have selected.
- Select a headboard for your bed that reflects your personal taste and style. Whether you choose one of sculpted wood, graceful metal or brass, or an upholstered version, an attractive headboard can become a special focal point of your master bedroom.
- Look up-and don't overlook the ceiling in your master bedroom as an area to decorate! Unique moldings, decorative paint patterns and overhead light fixtures can work together to add an elegant or eclectic touch to the room.

Sweet dreams!

ou've seen them-and so have your kids. Most likely they've already played on them at a friend's house and now they're begging for their own backyard playsets.

Nowadays that means more than your basic flimsy swingset. It means a solid imaginative structure with all the bells and whistles a kid could ever want. Some come with swings and some with slides and trapezes. And wonderfully the wood playsets of today allow for the easy attachment of numerous play accessories such as a fireman's pole, ropes, punching bags, tire swings, toddler swings and adult swings-just to name a few.

Many of these sets are great for children's imagination to run wild. There may be swinging walkways or twisting tunnels that lead from one section to the other. Even smaller swing sets offer children a favored playtime sport. These wood structures will not rust and are more sturdy and permanent than metal playsets of the past.

At Sun Valley Casual Furniture in Clarkston, they sell playsets made of white cedar logs because of its durability and resistance to slivering. Sun Valley offers three different sets with a variety of accessories from slides and towers to safety rails and platforms. Their largest set is 18' x 14' and is great for big yards, but the 12' x 8' A-frame swing set fits well anywhere.

"Because of their weight, these wood sets do not need to be anchored," says Kay Brown of Sun Valley Casual Furniture. In addition, wood sets stand up much better to both Michigan weather and kids.

Another wonderful benefit is that while these sets are more sturdy than their traditional metal counterparts, they are still transportable. Parents don't have to leave them behind when they move.

When you are choosing the right set for your kids, the following tips may help you in selecting the right set for your perfect play area:

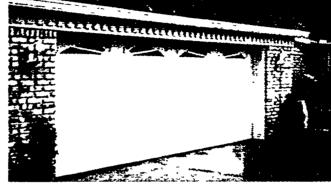

- The area you choose to put the playset should be free of obstructions; a minimum of 10 feet in any direction would be ideal. Also, 6 feet is recommended at the end of any slide. These two factors will help determine what size playset your area will accommodate.
- Buy a set that will accommodate your child when they are older: they may seem young now, but your money will be well spent if they are still able to grow into the set rather than grow out of it.
- A soft surface under the playset is the best deterrent of injuries. Materials such as wood chips or pea Ladders and railings should be angled for easy climbing with the ladder rungs at a recommended 9 inches apart. Keep an eye out for areas that a child may get their head trapped, such as railing slats; make sure they are no more than three inches apart.

What's New In Childrens' Playsets from Pg. 37

- All bolts and chains should be covered with a protective plastic to avoid scratches and pinching.
- Swings should not be mounted under a monkey bar which will create a conflict-of-play area. Legs can be easily tangled in the swing chains.
- · Wood roofs are attractive, but may lend to a safety concern when children climb to these areas. Inquiry about different style canopys.

Since many companies offer a variety of playsets and a mix and match assembly, your options can be created to fit your child's needs.

Many of these sets are great for children's imagination to run wild. There may be swinging walkways or twisting tunnels that lead from one section to the other.

For example, if you're not sure if a wood roof is the best option for your child, Rainbow Recreation in Northville offers a line of vinyl canopy roof playsets. Aside from being colorful, they are made of a high-quality, weather resistant vinyl.

To prepare for these sets, homeowners simply need to make sure that the ground is level. While some companies may handle minor leveling, local landscapers can handle larger jobs often within a few hours. If you have a slope in your yard that you don't want to level, it may be possible to secure with anchors or by digging a hole for the legs of the playset to rest in.

To resist some of the weather wear-and-tear, some sets come pre-stained. For best results a wood playset should be restained overtime.

Another thing to inquire about a newly purchased playset is a warranty. What does it cover, do you have to maintain the set for warranty, is the warrant pro-rated? Most warranties should cover structural failure as well as wood rot and termites. Find a company that stands behind their products.

If you buy quality and follow these few safety tips, your children will enjoy years of safe playground fun. Once you have their new playset your kids won't know how to thank you enough. They'll be too busy having fun.

FINANCIAL EDGE

Mortgages For Second Homes

by Susan Graham

re your neighbors always visiting their cabin up north? Are your best friends flocking to Florida for the winter again? Perhaps you've had your eye on a fantastic vacation home. If a second mortgage is stopping you from moving forward, consider these helpful hints:

Interest rates are currently near twenty-year lows, making this a great time to invest in that vacation home you've always wanted. Lower rates mean a significant increase in buying power which may lead to a more accommodating second home or one with more property.

In general, the same rules and regulations apply to second home mortgages as they do to standard home loans. However, without the pressure associated with a first home mortgage, you often have some additional time to do your homework.

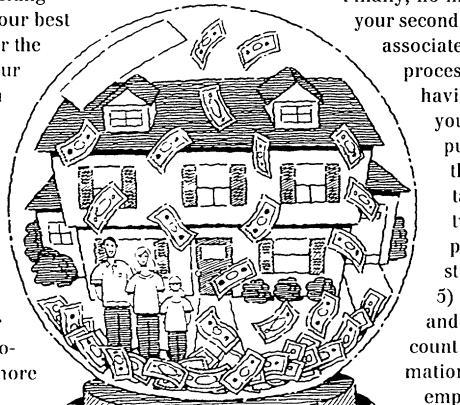

The best place to start is with your current lender, especially if you have maintained a good relationship with them over the years. Not only will they be familiar with your finances, including your payment history, they may be able to approve your loan faster. In some instances, given a solid payment record, your lender will allow you to negotiate for lower rates, waive some fees or even disregard minor requirements.

Even if you feel confident with your current lender, it would be worthwhile to get additional quotes. "Everyone's situation will be different," says Melissa Beyer of Norwest Mortgage in Novi. "Consumers should shop around to make sure their needs are being met."

For example, if your property is out of state, consult with a lender in that area. They will be familiar with the local requirements and may offer a better rate. Check to see if your current lender has convenient branches out of state.

A low rate is important, but you should also make sure your lender takes the time to help you understand and determine the best program to fit your needs. "We are loan counselors," says Beyer of Norwest representatives. "We take buyers from the beginning to the end of their loan process."

At Norwest, borrowers have the same options available to them for second loans as they do for first. For example, a homeowner can still obtain a second mortgage, even if they don't have the twenty percent down payment. This is especially helpful for second home borrowers because they aren't able to count on the sale of their initial home to provide the down payment.

Finally, no matter who you choose to obtain your second mortgage from, reduce the stress associated with a lengthy approval process. Norwest Mortgage suggests having these items available when you apply: 1) a copy of the signed purchase agreement, 2) W-2's for the past two years (or complete tax returns if self-employed), 3) twelve months mortgage or rent payment receipts, 4) recent pay stubs covering the last thirty days, and 6) the names, addresses and account numbers of creditors. This information generally helps lenders verify employment, retrieve an appraisal of the property and obtain the necessary credit documentation without having to go through a third party service.

With the proper information, many lending institutions including Norwest Mortgage can approve a loan in less than fifteen days. ■

Q: What are the professional guidelines regarding kitchen design. We don't cook all the time, but would like to have an attractive kitchen design.

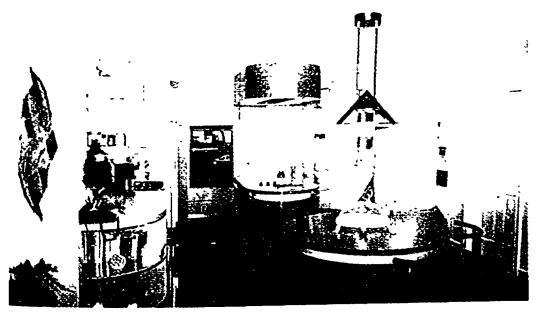

A: For research value as well as for your personal use, it is important to make our kitchens a more enticing, fun place to work. Kitchens have become preparation centers. Current technology enables us to prepare food, save time and energy, and maintain a safe environment.

The basic triangle concept of kitchen design refers to the placement of your three basic appliances: stove, sink, and refrigerator. Perhaps the Bermuda triangle is less disputed than the placement of kitchen appliances especially when the kitchen has an island.

It helps talking to experts like Elan Bauer of Elan Design in Pontiac, in his 5,000 sq. ft. new fabricating and manufacturing facility. Elan produces custom kitchen cabinets with laminates as well as entertainment centers and bathrooms. He specializes in a contemporary European style. About trends: He believes that the white Euro kitchen is still popular, yet light wood grained laminate are gaining popularity. More gadgets are better, that goes from corner-smart lazy-susans to foldable pantries for canned goods. Also desirable are hidden hinges and undercounter lighting.

Today, kitchens are open and visible from other areas of the home. Walls, floors, and windows need to be harmonious with adjoining areas, which does not necessarily mean a "coordinated to death" look in colors or materials.

The Madison Design Group at the Michigan Design Center in Troy is an excellent resource. Owner Gary Fried, Certified Kitchen Designer (CKD), maintains a beautiful display specializing in Classical and Traditional Kitchen Design. According to Janice Steinhard at the showroom, upscale materials like beveled glass display cabinets and woodgrains with painted doors are new design elements. The kitchen cabinets at Madison resemble custom furniture rather than plain cabinets. Larger homes often use islands.

To get a visual update on "What's cooling" go to builders' model homes and kitchen design showrooms to see the total picture. Make a wish-list for your dream kitchen. Last but not least, include in your budget a professional Interior Designer, ASID or CKD. The money you spend on a consultation or a layout will be your insurance of doing a proper job that you will enjoy for years to come.

Anna Kenedi, ASID, a Birmingham resident, is an interior designer and consultant with over 20 years experience. You may mail in your questions with a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Anna Kenedi, ASID — Warm Regards, Specialty Communications, Inc., 32431 Schoolcraft Rd., Livonia, MI 48150, or call the studio at (248) 642-6677.

Home Products: Made to last?

With the new homes being built today and everyone upgrading to keep up with the technology, knowing the life expectancy of the products you have and the products you will buy is valuable information. Even if you are having a new home built, or if you are buying a pre-owned home, this acquired knowledge will help you throughout your entire life in buying and selling property.

Many homes today have been reaching the 50-year mark making the replacement of parts and appliances a bigger consideration. Although people tend to change their decor more readily due to fashion trends, the actual products and materials will out last trends if maintained as recommended by the manufacturers.

In a survey done by the National Association of Home Builders (NAHB), they questioned experts from various fields, including trade association representatives, manufacturers, installers and repair people, to calculate the life longevity of more than 100 items and materials used in a home. Many will tell you that a new product is only as good as you maintain it, and homeowners shouldn't be displeased if they haven't held up their ownership responsibilities. Most all manufacturers know how to maintain their products to have them perform at their highest capacity.

The following is a list of the most common materials and items in a home that may require replacing, and their life expectancy. (Duration in years)

O'OFF

The advantages of our fully assembled in-stock cabinetry.

The disadvantages of their cabinets you have to put together yourself.

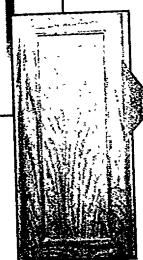

Here is what that means to you...

1. No hidden costs for assembling cabinets saving you time & money...

2. We offer cabinetry that's doweled, glued and nailed for long-life & stability.

3. Unassembled limits value to your home as opposed to our fully constructed wood frame cabinets.

4. Difficult to inspect products in a box. Ours are built and easy to inspect.
