Class of 1998 bids farewell to Northville High School

Cold weather and cloudy skies didn't dampen the spirits of the members of Northville High School class of 1998, who tossed their mortar board hats in the air at the conclusion of commencement ceremonies Friday. Hundreds of people turned out for the ceremony, which was held at the high school football stadium. For more on graduation please turn to 11A.

Grads leave legacy of involvement

he Class of 1998 from Northville High School is nothing more than a memory to us now. The 339 graduates have joined a long, illustrious list of students who have graduated from this fine institution. The class photograph will be placed on a hallway wall next to class photos from the 1930s, 60s, and 80s. . That, however, is where the similarity ends. You see, the students who made up the class of 1998 are special. Not because they received more scholarships - more than $1-million in educational funds were carned - and not because of their scholastic achievement - four abuse, and teen suicides have dominated the headlines and society has begun to seriously question whether these young men and women will be able to step up when they are called upon to lead in the future. Fear not. I am convinced that society will be in good hands when that time comes.

Just ask Josh Brugeman. The graduate and about 200 of his classmates came to the aid of an elderly Northville Township woman, whose half-acre yard had become overgrown. The students cut grass, trimmed bushes, planted flowers and shrubs, cleaned storm gutters, and hauled away trash. The important thing to note is these young people didn't have to be coerced to lend a hand — they volunteered their time. The reward was not monetary. Josh explained to me as I watched him work away, it was all about giving back to the community.

For Brugeman and many of his classmates this was the second year they volunteered to help a neighbor in need. I hope the legacy of their "Paint the Town" project continues well into the next century.

Just ask the senior members of the Rotary Interact Club. These enterprising students tackled a project that stretched across the globe. Learning that a school in Ghana had no textbooks, the students coordinated a collection of thousands of used textbooks and sent them to the school.

Just ask senior Karla Kalso, who along with so special. Their actions will forever stand out in my mind. And as I stood out in the cold watching the commencement ceremony with hundreds of proud family members and friends. I was almost saddened to see this group of young people leave us. Many will be heading to various colleges in the fall, and some will enter the workforce or serve in the armed forces. Despite their diverging paths I am sure we will hear word of their accomplishments, and over time we will greet their return to our community - happy with the knowledge that they will make a difference in our future and the future of others.

School millage approved by voters Gudritz, Nield reelected to four year terms on school board

By WENSDY WHITE Staff Writer

Yes. Yes. Yes.

All three issues on the annual school election ballot were approved by voters Monday. including the renewal of a nonhomestead millage and the reelection of school board members Tom Gudritz and Martha Nield.

But the election booths didn't draw much of a crowd.

This is probably gonna be one of the slowest days in history." said Dorothy Hadac, an inspector at Precinct No. 5 at the Northville Recreation Center, where only 17 people had voted by 1:30 in the afternoon.

Election inspectors at the recreation center's two precincts passed the time by doing crosswords or reading the newspaper while the polling booths stood empty.

By the time ballots closed at 8 p.m., a total of 762 voters turned out to Northville's eight precincts. with 96 more casting absentee bal-

"And the proposition, because it doesn't affect the average homeowner, it doesn't interest them either. It doesn't cost them so they're not here. It's a slow day. We've had about six an hour but we're here if they want to come."

Still, the voters who did come out approved the renewal of 18 mills on non-homestead property by a 648 to 219 margin. That will bring an estimated $4.8 million annually to the dis-to occupy their school board seats. Each was reelected to a second four year term.

"I'm just extremely pleased that the voters approved the renewal of the 18 mills, that's very important, Gudritz said. "I'm also delighted to spend another four years continuing to work on the projects we started and to see them through, primarily the high school and other building projects and seeing the block schedule

"I'm very anxious to continue to get this high school built on time and on budget. That's a huge project. I'm very concerned that this litigation with the township will derail it."

Volunteers from Northville Christian Assembly mix and pour concrete which was used in the construction of a youth home outside San Salvador, El Salvador in January.

Local church gives assistance during travels in El Salvador

When Matthew Rojek sits down to breakfast, he takes a few moments to say grace. Doing so serves two purposes: Rolek is a steady member of Northville Christian Assembly, and also because it's a subtle daily reminder of what citizens of El Salvador sometimes need to do for food.

Rojek and 41 others from NCA spent two weeks outside the capital city of San Salvador this winter working on a children's camp. The name of the camp, when translated in English, means "King's Paradise." Along the way, Rojek gained a new appreciation for what life is like outside the comfortable confines of southeast Michigan.

Rojek and the group spent their time in a relatively civilized portion of the community which had stores, running water and even a Pizza Hut. But only a stone's throw away was the other portion of San Salvador.

The portion he and the group went to serve.

it was amazing," Rojek said. "You'd see people rummaging for through the garbage looking for scraps of anything to eat. It was such a wake-up call."

Rojek also described seeing a makeshift city of tar-paper shacks with tin roofs. Trash was strewn throughout the alleys and dirty water flowed freely.

But none of this mattered to the group. Rojek said. The NCA members visited the Latin American city and worked in both practical and evangelical fields.

The group began its day with a meal and morning devotions, followed by a full eight hours of work in the lush hills of the outlying urban areas.

"We're blessed at Christian Assembly because we have people who come from so many backgrounds," Rolek said.

Several members of one of the two mini-teams were accompanied by Northville American doctors and dentists, who went on excursions into the surrounding villages to offer free medical and dental assistance.

The medical "office" was a converted school bus.

Rojek's team devoted itself to construction of the camp, which bore a striking resemblance to a medieval castle. All the work needed to be done by hand, as no earth-moving equipment existed in the community. The arduous labor didn't scare the team, which was comprised of people from virtually every age group, Rojek said.

Still another team did its work through acting and song by performing Christian dramas for the villagers.

Rojek recalled the response from the San Salvador residents after the performance concluded.

"We asked by show of hands how many people were ready to give their lives to Jesus Christ. Rojek said. "Every hand in the place shot up. Then we told them that raising a hand didn't mean they were going to receive anything for their answer, and asked the question again. Every hand went up. It was just unbelievable."

The entire cost for the trip. including the medicine and supplies brought in, was paid for by the members at around $1,000 per person. The expense, Rojek said, was secondary.

There are a lot of people who can't wait to go down there again and continue what they've begun,"

Once again, Northville students' MEAP scores rank them at the top in Wayne County and are 20 points higher than the statewide average.

Of the 48 school districts in Wayne county, Northville ranks number one in eighth grade science scores, with 42.7 percent of students proficient.

In fifth grade writing, Northville is also at the top with 92.6 percent of students scoring proficient. Only the Martin Luther King Jr. and Nataki Talibah charter schools are ahead, both with 100 percent proficiency.

In fifth grade science (65.3) and eighth grade writing (87.3), the district is in the top five.

The teachers are doing a good job and I think parents really value education in this community. It's a team approach," said assistant superintendent for instructional services Dr. Linda Farr. I think they're going to be pretty happy in Northville."

the test except eighth grade writing, which dropped 8.6 percent from last year.

Farr said the tests are useful in measuring how a student's knowledge evolves throughout their school career. They also provide a way to gauge how well a district is meeting state standards of education.

But while she said she is a proponent of the tests. Farr cautioned that the results have a measure of error.

"I can't stress that enough. There are a lot of variables that go into the scores. Each class has a different ability." Farr said. "Certainly we strive to constantly improve our teaching, but each class is differ-

The MEAP test is formulated by the State Department of Education and based on benchmarks in the state's core curriculum.

Farr credits Northville's success on the MEAP in part to the district's commitment to meeting those benchmarks by adding Scores improved in all areas of hands-on activities and outside materials to textbook curriculum.

We feel the teachers are better at writing curriculum than the publishers," Farr said.

MEAP scores are sent to building principals who in turn send a copy to parents. Schools keep individual results in student files at least five years beyond graduation, as required by state law.

At the end of their school careers, students may trace their progress through MEAP scores from 4th. 5th. 7th, 8th and 11th grades.

However, the MEAP has only existed in its current form for three years. As the test has been revamped by the state board of education, inconsistent results have led to protests that the test is not serving its intended purpose.

Some educators believe that inconsistency in scores from one year to the next make the tests unreliable indicators of a student's achievements.

This year, two-thirds of Northville High eleventh-graders were excused by their parents from the last battery of MEAP tests, to avoid having misleading scores on their permanent academic transcripts.

But Northville school administrators maintained that by boycotting the tests, students make the whole battery of MEAP's ineffective by removing the last signpost of measurement.

"I think it's unfortunate because it doesn't allow us to provide analysis on every student. As a district, as a system, it is terribly important for us to know longitudinally how we are doing," schools superintendent Leonard Rezmlerski said. "I just want to have this data point to know what students are doing well, and conversely what they are not doing well, in order to take steps to remedy that.

•In the fifth grade, 22 percent of students missed proficiency by four points, while 8 percent missed it by one.

•Science writing improved by 13 percent at the eighth grade level and three percent at the fifth grade level. This gain is significant, according to Farr, because it indicates students are better able to express their views in written form.

Local medical supply store specializes in care, prosthetics

By WENSDY WHITE Staff Writer

A mastectomy may seem like a nightmare, but the fact is, 190,000 women lose a part of themselves to breast cancer each year.

Instead of breast reconstruction, many of them opt to use prosthetics after the surgery. Made of silicone, the breast forms come in all shapes and sizes. Some fit inside special bras, others are applied to velcro strips that adhere directly to the breast wall.

Owners of a trio of area medical supply stores that carry the prosthetics recently revamped the fitting room at the Northville loca-

After the coldest outdoor graduation ceremony on record. Northville High School's class of 1998 was jetted off into the sunshine of Hollywood and the French Riviera.

Playing off the theme of Lifestyles of the Rich and Famous," parents transformed the high school into exotic locales for the Senior All Night Party.

Students passed a Porsche and a Prowler parked outside the school's entrance, over a plush red carpet, through a silver mylar curtain and into the completely unrecognizable halls of the high school.

After picking up photo identification, they boarded a massive cardboard jet that symbolically transported them around the world for

Northville High Principal Tom

Every year the parents work so hard to match the previous years and move it up a notch," he said. The purpose is to celebrate in a momentous manner this occasion."

The party was chaperoned in shifts by parents like Don Flis.

"I'm here to help out the school and the kids and make sure everyone has a good time, and a safe time," Fils said. "I'm on the nine to midnight shift. We get to go home and sleep, but I probably won't sleep well until Julie gets home. But that's part of being a parent."

The party ended at 4 a.m. While inside students had a seemingly unending array of things to do. On hand were a caricaturist, a hypnotist, a masseuse and a psychic.

City greets new postmaster during post office ceremony

"integrity, honesty, loyalty

Michael Taurence

operations manager USPS

and truthfulness are the

what Belinda Coakley

brings to the table."

By CHRIS C. DAVIS Staff Writer

Don't ask Belinda Coakley if she knows Cliff from from TVs "Cheers" or Neuman of "Seinfeld" fame. She

But Coakley, a U.S. Postal Service veteran, does know a good number of other postal employees and will be getting to know more in the weeks to come. now that she's been brought on as postmaster of the Northville post office.

Coakley was given the keys to 212 West Cady Street in a halfhour installation ceremony Monday afternoon. Though she appeared poised and delighted at the podium, Coakley told the 100 or so who turned out for the installation that she had been nervous in the hours leading up to the event.

Just the same, Coakley said she would bring team ideals to the Northville office.

"I've come to believe anything is possible with the right attitude," Coakley said. "I've come a long way, and happily, I'm still climbing. I have no intention of stopping.

Coakley's career with the post office began in November of 1968 while she worked as a casual clerk on the afternoon shift with the Detroit post office. A year later, she became a letter carrier at the Detroitarea northwestern station, which eventually won her a promotion to supervisor of customer service at the city's Mount Elliot Station in 1987.

Prior to coming to Northville, Coakley held other managerial positions in Highland Park and Hamtramck and Dearborn Heights, among others.

Coakley's mentor, post office operations manager Michael Taurence, spoke to Coakley's character and background before administering Coakley's oath of Coakley's son, Jerome Coakley, held the Bible, which was used for the swearing-in.

"Integrity, honesty, loyalty and truthfulness are the things I stand for, and that's what Belinda Coakley brings to the table." Taurence said. "I've always viewed Belinda as someone who doesn't know the meaning of 'no'. What you see is what you get in Belinda. You're getting a great lead-

Coakley spoke briefly after being formally introduced as the new postmaster. The ceremony concluded with Coakley's friend Josephine Merchant singing I Believe I Can Fly," which Coakley said was a reflection of a childhood dream.

Coakley said she had been able to take what she learned from staff meetings in her previous positions and was able to implement those ideas into practical changes in the way in which local service was given.

In addition to her son. Coakley was joined by dozens of close friends, relatives and work associates. City manager Gary Word, mayor Chris Johnson and township supervisor Karen Woodside were on hand for the ceremony, as were members of the Vietnam Veterans of America Chapter No. 528 from Canton.

Though Tuesday marked Coakley's first official day in her new position, she has been working at the Northville post office for about two months. Coakley replaces former postmaster Tony Hubbard.

Alleged shoplifter fights with store security

Farmer Jack store security managed to bring a 33-year-old Detroit man under control after he put up a fight at the store at 2:45 p.m. June 8. Reports said the man was seen scanning the over-the-counter flu and cold medications when a store employee noticed items he had selected were no longer in his hands.

Upon further inspection, the employee could see the man was concealing the items inside his sweatpants. Security was called to the scene, at which time the man attempted to flee the store. The man put up a fight, forcing employees to physically restrain the man. He was eventually tackled, but not before he was able to scratch a 27-year-old employee across the face.

The man had managed to conceal $67 worth of drugs and later admitted in a written statement that he had a drug addiction. He was scheduled to be in court Tuesday afternoon.

CALLER ID:Township police were summoned to Meijer at around 5:30 p.m. June 2 after store employees reported a white male wearing a purple polo shirt and blue jeans was seen fleeing the store with a $50 caller ID unit.

Upon arrival at the scene, store employees told police the man had been seen exiting the building after concealing the item, at which time detectives identified themselves. The man fled the area for a wooded area nearby the store. Employees did not give chase, but instead established a perimeter around the woods.

Shortly thereafter, police made visual contact with a man emerging from the woods, closely matching the description given by the store employees. The man was asked what he was doing in the woods, to which the man replied he was waiting for his father.

"Your father lives in the woods?" police asked. The man said he was waiting for his father to pick him up to give him a ride home. Upon further questioning, the man told police he was in the woods looking for deer antiers, which he said were often shed by the animals around this time of year. The man gave his name and date of birth, but when asked for it a second time, gave a different birth date.

Strongly suspicious, police summoned store detectives to the scene, who identified the man as the assailant. Police handcuffed the man and placed him in a patrol car for transport to the township police station. While en route, police asked the man if he had given correct information to officers.

"What's it worth to you?" the man asked, to which police responded by saying providing false information to a police officer was another charge which could be brought. The man said he "was just f—ing with you" because of his alcohol consumption.

Once at the station, police again requested the true name and birth date of the man.

"I'll tell you after I get something to eat," the man replied. After multiple refusals, the man eventually allowed himself to be fingerprinted. A check on the prints revealed he was a 30-year-old Redford man who had been stopped by Meijer store security in March of 1997, also on larceny charges.

Court dates are pending.

MDOP: A flower planter appeared to be used to smash in the rear window of a vehicle belonging to a 41-year-old Scenic Harbor Drive man. The man told police he heard a loud sound near-by during the middle of the night. When he awoke June 6, he found the window destroyed. Police examined the car and saw that the planter apparently glanced off the window and put a deep scratch in a 1997 Oldsmobile Aurora parked nearby. Both vehicles sustained around $500 in damage.

DREAMY DOPERS: Police came across a 1994 Ford Ranger at around 2:45 a.m. on June 6. whose motor was running but was at a standstill in the middle of Beck Road near Red Oak Drive. Officers awoke the driver, a 26year-old Plymouth man and passengers. A half-filled cup of beer was found in the truck, which was dumped out at the scene. A more extensive search of the vehicle turned up a marijuana cigarette. rolling papers, a scale used for measuring marijuana and several baggies with marijuana residue in

The suspects were arrested at the scene.

GRADUATION THREAT: Security was stepped up at Northville High's commencement ceremonies after a senior threatened to "kill everyone at graduation."

In light of a spate of fatal shootings that have occurred at public schools across the nation, local police officials said they could not take the threat lightly.

instead, they obtained a search warrant to check the student's home for weapons, put officers on duty at the ceremonies and forbade the student from leaving his home the day of the event.

Three seniors told the school's principal around noon on June 1 that their classmate had made numerous disturbing comments. Among others, he said he wanted to "kill the Jews," "become more like Hitler," and claimed he would be in jail for 10 years for what he planned to do at graduation.

The 17-year-old, who had a 1.6 grade point average, was expelled from school for making death threats, threatening to stalk one of the girls, disrupting school, hazing, harassment and violation of building rules and regulations and other infractions.

A search of his home turned up no weapons and graduation went off without incident.

The student was not charged with a crime by police. He told police he realized the statements were stupid and apologized.

RACIAL GRAFFITI: After a six month investigation. Northville High School administrators pinpointed three students involved in spraying a racial epithet on an outside wall of the school last November.

Two of the students have confessed to applying the spray paint and were suspended, fined and charged restitution for the graffiti removal.

In addition, school officials want to prosecute for racial intimidation and malicious destruction of property.

One of the students said he told two friends that he had been repeatedly bullied by a classmate, and the three hatched a plan to paint the name of the student on the wall along with a racial slur.

After one of the students purchased a can of spray paint at a nearby hardware store they went to the school.

According to agreeing statements from the 15- and 16year-old students, two of them painted the wall while the one who had complained of the bullying watched.

All three were charged with misdemeanor Malicious Damage by Northville Police and face juvenile court dates.

RECKLESS DRIVING: A 16-year-old was charged with reckless driving after he made a dangerous maneuver on the way home for forgotten golf shoes the evening of Wednesday. May 28. The young driver was reported by a crossing guard at Cooke Middle School who said he ran off Taft road, through a ditch, down the sidewalk and past two or three cars stopped in front of him before crossing the ditch again and continuing on his way.

The guard said he just missed hitting a student. She managed to get his license number as he drove off.

The student was called to the police station with his father and explained that the driver ahead of him had slammed on the brakes and he had no choice but to veer off the road. He said he first made sure no students were in the way.

Reckless driving is a misdemeanor.

According to the unanimous vote at a June 8 meeting, the money will fund four areas:

•Instruction and Technology. $1.5 million was set aside for instructional supplies, textbooks and computer software and hardware that was not covered by the $5.2 million technology bond approved by voters last June. The money will also be used to hire •Facilities. Another $1.5 million was earmarked to offset construction costs for the projects funded by the $61.5 million bond issue. The bond was meant to cover construction of the new high school and renovations at virtually every school in the district. But with impending delays to the high school project and construction costs skyrocketing, the district anticipates running over budget.

"We are aware that the bond projects, due to cost and timing, will be higher than we thought," Rezmierski said. The money will be used to protect our investments in all these facilities and to cover whatever may come up down the road."

•Innovative Grants. More than $270,000 was allocated for experimental projects in the district. The Innovative Grants program for years with an annual $20-$25,000 allocation. The Galileo Project, a teacher leadership program funded for two years by the Kellogg Foundation, will receive another $20-25,000 per year. The rest will go to other innovative ideas such as a Health and Wellness program for district staff.

"There's some very exciting possibilities looking at wellness as a concern we would like to encourage in our staff, Rezmierski said.

•Fund Balance. The rest, $500,000, would be reserved for fund equity to bring the district's fund balance up to its established

Three finance subcommittee meetings and one school board meeting were opened to comment along with phone and e-mail hot lines. Groups like the Northville Rotary and PTSAs were also consulted.

All of the input was considered before the recommendation was made to the board, according to school board president Joan Wadsworth. But she said specific requests, like putting more money into the ALPS program for gifted students, won't be immediately granted.

"We're not going to dip into the Durant money to change one area of the curriculum without going through the standard review process. Over the course of the five years we'll be looking at a lot of the curriculum areas and if we find things that the Durant funds could support, that's what we'll

The Durant settlement money arrived in April, after school districts won a 17-year court battle against the state of Michigan. Northville was one of more than 80 districts that sued to recover money spent on special programs mandated by the state from 1978 to 1996.

Northville is now participating in another lawsuit, dubbed Durant II, which aims to reclaim special program funds from 1996 to the pre-

Township begins campaign for millage attempt

Having filed all the necessary paperwork, Northville Township officials have begun the long process of getting the word out on its upcoming millage election.

The township is seeking voter approval Aug. 4 on an eight-year, 6.34-mill ballot issue, which will primarily fund police, fire and emergency services.

The miliage includes 0.75 mills over four years for park land acquisition and improvements. At the conclusion of those four years, the millage rate will drop to 5.59.

It's a significant boost from the old millage rate, but one which township authorities maintain is being requested only to maintain the level of service amid a sea of

Bill Brown, chairman of the Say 'Yes' To Northville Township committee, said approval for the millage is critical during one of the township's most active periods of growth and development.

Pursuant to state law, Brown is not receiving township compensation for his work. He said some township officials belong to the committee, but are working for the group during their own personal

"We have a very good community here," Brown said Tuesday. "If you want to sustain the way of life we have here, you should be voting

Brown explained several reasons

why approval was needed, not the least of which was the rapid expansion in the west and southwest portions of the township.

'Up until now, one-half of the township had been vacant land," Brown said. "That's all about to change.

Brown said the tax increases brought on by new businesses and residential development would certainly add to revenues over time. but pointed out that demand for police and fire services would go up from the moment development begins.

Essentially, you're spreading the same number of resources over a wider area," Brown said.

Then there's the financial dent created in the wake of last year's fire at 35th District Court, Brown ments wouldn't be handed out this year, as the court needed to retain the money for reconstruction because of being under-

In the township, that $230,000 can go a long way." Brown said. "It means a lot."

A third element, Brown said, is that the township's public safety department is underfunded. He added that the public safety department has received $1 million in revenue from the township's general fund, which was not designed for such a purpose.

Add to that an aging rescue and patrol vehicle fleet, and the situation needs to be rectified all the more, Brown said.

"Plain and simple, police and fire is underfunded," Brown said. Good common-sense management says you set up a system where there will be some kind of cyclical replacement of your vehicles and supplies over time."

That doesn't mean public safety hasn't been creative in seeking ways to save money, Brown added. A fire department water pumping truck, which has been part of the department's fleet for some years, finally broke down. Though the estimated replacement cost for a brand new Item was upwards of $100,000, Brown said the department was able to refurbish a used pumper at a cost of $30,000. The millage is not just about police and fire services. Brown explained. It is also about services shared between the township and the city of Northville - youth assistance, senior citizens programs and parks and recreation. Combined, these services cost each township resident approximately 4 cents per day to operate. *When you consider all that these agencies do for our way of living, you realize they're doing a lot with the resources they have."

Parks and recreation had more than 14,000 participants involve themselves in activities in 1997. according to Brown, and 160 youths became involved with the youth assistance program.

Where Northville Youth Assistance is concerned, I think we're discovering that prevention really is the best policy." Brown said.
"Youth assistance has been an integral part of keeping Northville Township a nice place to live. If passed, the new millage would cost the owner of a $200,000 home around 55 cents per day. It would replace the old four-year millage passed in November of

Jennifer Knapp headlines concert

"Funny where a guitar and a song and a little faith in God can take a girl from a small Kansas town. One need look no further than Jennifer Knapp for an exam-

Back in 1992, Knapp, fresh out of Chanuto High School, enrolled on a music scholarship at Pittsburgh State University. She played the trumpet, but by 1993, she began to play her guitar and sing at Fellowship of Christian Athletes meetings on campus.

The word was soon out on Knapp's musical talents. Through her singing at FCA meetings, Knapp began getting invitations to perform 30-minute concerts in local churches. By 1994, she joined a Christian band. Knapp went on to play 80 concerts as a solo artist in 1995 and hardly had time to keep up with her classes.

She put down her trumpet, changed majors from music to psychology, and kept on strumming her guitar for the Lord. By 1996, it became clear to Knapp that she was one of the fortunate few who had a chance to make it as a professional musician. She was already supporting herself through her music and Nashville record people were starting to call. That meant it was decision time."

The decision came when Toby McKeehan, leader of the nationally acclaimed Christian rock group de Talk, heard one of Knapp's demo tapes and offered her a contract with Gotee Records.

Up until then, Gotee had been known for attracting hip-hop. rhythm-and-blues, rap and youthrock Christian bands. The offer surprised Knapp, since she played a guitar-driven mix of alternative folk rock reminiscent of mainstream artists such as Natalie Merchant. Sarah McLachlan, and Jewel.

On June 14. Knapp will stop to perform at Ford Field in downtown Northville for the city's first-time outdoor Christian rock concert. Appearing with All Star United and The Oak Pointe Band beginning at 4 p.m., the event is being sponsored by Planet 96.3 and Oak Pointe Church of Northville.

Dave Johnson, an elder at Oak Pointe Church, hopes to attract as many as 3,000 teens and their families to this event on Sunday. We are praying for a sunny afternoon and lots of families who like listening to great Christian contemporary music.

Johnson added that the church. which has been meeting in Northville High School since April 1997, is a reflection of the support the church has felt from the local and surrounding communities. ### City mulls water meter plan

Dual meters considered in effort to reduce city water rates

"That's why I believe we need to approach this matter

By CHRIS C. DAVIS

Hear that squeak? It's the sound foutdoor water spigots being urned, and the Northville city ouncil is discussing a more equi-able way of billing the water from hose pipes.

The solution proposed by city nanger Gary Word, could rest on a ouchy idea of allowing some resiients the opportunity to utilize a econd water meter for their outdoor water usage.

The concern. Word explained, is this - about one-third of the city's sewer charge is levied by Wayne county for the transmission of anitary water to the Detroit treatment plant. If the water being frawn out of the county's water ystem isn't going back into it. hen why make them pay for it?

I'm aware it's a sensitive issue ith many people," Word said. That's why I believe we need to pproach this matter very delicate-

Word is recommending a maxinum of 20 homes be given permits for the meters per year if the plan was approved. That didn't sit water meter question, but council members called for a special meetwell with some residents attending last week's council meeting. Some residents disagreed with the proposal, saying the only truly fair way to go about allowing dual meters would be to open the "I'm aware it's a sensitive option up to everyone. Northville issue with many people.

draws its water from the city of Detroit and in turn bills its residents for very delicately." water and sewer service. Northville is near the termination point of the water network and has one of the oldest local portions of the underground pipe in the system. A 1997 engineering study of Northville's water system estimated that $5 million in upgrades were necessary to completely modernize the system.

No vote was taken on the dual ing June 22 to discuss the pros and cons of such an idea.

· Another concern raised at the meeting had to do with the possibility of dishonest homeowners signing up for the dual system, then rerouting their indoor water system to draw from the outdoor source thereby cheating the sewer meter. Public works director city manager Jim Gallogly said periodic checks of dual-meter homes could be arranged to make certain the system was being used correctly.

In addition, Gallogly said a simple look at the amount of water being drawn through the outdoor meter could reveal an inconsisten-

Gary Word

"If we see someone's outdoor meter is showing a lot of use in the middle of January, I think we'll know something is wrong," he said. Not every city official is happy with the proposal. Council member Kevin Hartshorne recently voiced his opposition to the plan. stating that allowing the installation of two meters was a bandage to a much larger problem, the cost of which would be borne by those who didn't have two meters.

"What we'd be doing is asking a large group to pick up the tab for a much smaller group who benefits from having the two meters," he said. "I can't see the fairness in that."

Instead, Hartshorne said he believed restoring Northville's aging water system to acceptable levels was the more appropriate route to go.

As an example, Hartshorne cited the estimated 30 percent water loss, which goes unaccounted within Northville's water system. Though all municipal water systems experience some kind of water loss. Northville's was exceptionally high - which accounted in no small part for the expense of water for residents.

Farmington Hills is the only community in the immediate area that allows dual meters, but on a very limited basis. That community draws its water from Oakland

WATER ON THE BRAIN

As a Northville resident, what's the composition of my water bill right now?

About 33 cents of every dollar on the water bills goes to Wayne County for waste water treatment, which is handled by the city of Detroit. The other portion of the bill goes for the pumping-in of fresh water to your

So what's the problem?

If you never use water for outdoor uses, there is no problem. But since summertime draws people outside to water their lawns or wash their cars, most people are being billed by the county — at least to a certain extent —for treating water which doesn't re-enter the county's sewer system. That doesn't seem very fair. What are the solutions?

There are essentially two. With permission from the city, you could put in your own well. But city leaders are looking at allowing residents to use two water meters. One would measure water use on the inside of a home (which would re-enter the sewer system) and a second to measure outdoor water use which would percolate back into the ground or evaporate.

I use quite a bit of water in the summer months on my lawn, and a second meter could really benefit me. How can I get in on

At this point, you can't. The idea is still in the developmental stages, and city council is trying to devise a fair way allow residents to use dual meters. Public works director Jim Gallogly suggested keeping the number of eligible homes limited to 20 per year on a first-come, first serve basis. Other ideas have included a lottery or opening the option up to as many residents as are interested.

OPINION

Down the drain: proposal doesn't solve water woes

they have a plan to lower the water rates of some residents dual water meters.

The concept was discussed at the last meeting of the city council and a plan proposed by city manager Gary Word could allow some residents to utilize a second water meter that would gauge their outdoor water

Here's the problem. Northville draws its water from the city of Detroit and once used, the water is carried through a sewer system to be treated by Wayne County. That means we get charged for the water coming into our system and for the wastewater that leaves the system.

There's a catch, however. Northville's Sooner or later city offiwater system leaks like a sieve and even cials are going to have to though the water that deal with the problem. It has leaked into the ground is not used by doesn't serve anyone to city water customers, keep applying quick fix those same customers foot the bill methods to a system that for the unused water.

To say that system is unfair is an under- hauled a decade ago. statement. If the water being drawn out of the county's water system Northville's is exceptionally high, isn't going back into it, then why should residents have to pay for it?

That's certainly a good question. Under Word's proposal, 20 residents per year could receive a second accurate accounting of how much water was actually being used.

But we're only talking about a benefit to a small fraction of Northville's water users, which doesn't sit well with city councilman Kevin Hartshorne.

According to Hartshorne the proposal is only a quick fix that doesn't come close to solving the larger problem - correcting the many deficiencies of Northville's aging water

'What we'd be doing is asking a much smaller group that benefits from having the two meters," orthville city officials believe Hartshorne said. "I can't see the fairness in that."

Neither can we.

Instead, we believe it is time for city officials to seriously consider restoring Northville's aging water system to acceptable levels is the more appropriate route to go. Our community is near the termination point of the water network and has one of the oldest local portions of the underground pipe in the system. A 1997 engineering study of Northville's water system estimated that $5 million in upgrades were necessary to completely modernize the system.

That is where city officials need to focus their attention, despite the $5 million price tag.

And they need to start now. Because according to the city's recent water study Northville's water system experienced an estimated 30 percent water loss last year. That's right — 30 per-should have been over-Though all municipal water systems experience some kind loss, water > and continues to grow at an alarming rate.

Sooner or later city officials are going to have to deal with the problem. It doesn't serve anyone to keep water meter, which would give an applying quick fix methods to a system that should have been overhauled a decade ago.

That is why we urge the city council to commission a panel of citizens and officials to devise a reasonable plan to replace Northville's water delivery and drainage system. Though such an undertaking would be costly in the short term, real long term benefits would be enjoyed by every resident in this community.

A special meeting of the city council has been scheduled for June 22 to address this issue. We encourage large group to pick up the tab for a residents to attend this meeting and voice their opinions on this impor-

All-night party a success thanks to efforts of parents

fter 13 years of school clothes end of a child's school career is a sudden jolt to many parents.

The whirlwind of commitments and tradition that make senior year go by in a blur is compounded in Northville by the Senior All Night Party.

But once again, the more than 150 parent volunteers who worked behind the scenes to pull the party together deserve a standing ovation.

All night long the grads danced and let loose together with their classmates in a safe and supervised

And that's the point. The Senior All Night Party is a tradition so long-standing that school officials can't pinpoint just how or when it began.

This year, with the theme of "Lifestyles of the Rich and Famous," parents of the class of 1998 sacrificed countless hours of free time to exceed the party's reputation.

They began working in the fall, soliciting volunteers and prize donations from the community.

They painted and nailed decorashopping and PTA meetings, the tions in their garages or toiled evenings in the basement of Northville High. The whole time they kept the party's theme a secret.

> Then, the day of graduation, they loaded hundreds of pounds of plasterboard and cardboard, painted signs and burlap trees, posters and trellises and lights and balloons, into their cars.

Working frantically, they set everything up in time to go home, freshen up and return to watch their children accept their diplomas.

Many parents said they never thought the party would be so much work. Many said they're glad they'll never have to do it again.

That's what they say every year. But we say way to go.

All that work paid off when students opened the doors of the school, where they spent the last four years, to find it transformed into a giant playground.

Their memories from that night will last forever, and what they'll remember most is that their parents cared enough to make it an extra special event.

My opinion is my own...ask my wife

Sometimes people just crack me up. You'll notice two letters to the editor written about the current controversy surrounding Northville Township and the Northville Public School District.

I draw your attention to the letters for one reason, and one reason only the letter writers have chosen to bring my wife into the controversy.

Now I didn't realize my wife's occupation had anything to do with setbacks and state law, but apparently it does. You see, my wife, Katherine, is a secretary at the high school.

Now most of you have known that fact for some time. We began dating close to four years ago when I became a reporter for the Record, and we got married two years after that. We never hid our relationship from those in town or from our employers. It is no big deal to us and we've always believed we had nothing to hide.

But the letter writers intimate that my criticisms of the township in this issue stem directly from my involvement with my wife, and that a conflict of interest exists.

Hmm, interesting plot line, but pitifully flawed.

If that is indeed the case then I should alert you of other conflicts that exist due to my relationships with people in town. If we follow the letter writers' logic I shouldn't be able to comment on anything pertaining to this town at all.

Let me give you some examples. I happen to consider Chamber of Commerce executive director Laurie Marrs a good friend. Does that mean I can't comment on Chamber business? I enjoy a great working relationship with Northville Township Foundation director Sherri Peters. Should that relationship stop me from commenting about the good things the Foundation has planned for our community?

Township public safety director Chip Snider is a trusted associate. He's a straight shooter and I have enjoyed working with him on various issues. Does that mean I shouldn't tell the community that the upcoming millage request for public safety is a fair and reasonable one?

Or how about Traci Sincock? I have enjoyed my relationship with our Parks and Recreation Director for several years now, and I have written quite a bit about the department's quest for improved recreational facilities. Again, because of that friendship should I stay mum about the department's request for taxdollars?

There are countless others I have developed positive, trusting relationships with in our community. I could list them all, if asked, just so everyone would know of all the possible conflicts that could potentially exist.

And just so we all understand, in the case of the township/school district controversy, a conflict of interest would mean that my wife and I would derive some sort of benefit. That would mean that high school principal Tom Johnson would base Katherine's pay and benefits on the number of positive editorials I would write for the high school or school district. (If that's the case. Katherine is going to owe the district quite a bit of money this year, because I certainly have been critical of the school district).

Oh and just so you know. Tom Johnson is also a good friend of mine. In fact we're planning to take a motorcycle trip to South Dakota in August.

The point I am trying to make here is simple. I believe in getting involved in the community I work in. My occupation is that of newspaper editor, and in that capacity I have made it my business to work and develop relationships with as many people as possible. That's the only way I know how to do my job, and in my opinion my involvement is not only important, but crucial.

With that said, if there are people out there who believe my recent criticisms of the township have been influenced by my wife, so be it. I'm certainly not going to worry about something I have no control over. But to intimate that I have hidden my relationship with my wife as an ulterior motive, is just plain pathetic.

I always believed that the people of this community were smarter than

Using words correctly ain't so easy

"Whenever I hear 'ain't' I think of that person picking his nose," said a teacher friend of mine, commenting on the language choice of a student she'd overheard on a toboggan hill speaking to his friends.

"Let's see," I say, trying to understand her concern, "ain't" rhymes with "paint" and "saint," right?

"Yes," she answered.

Then it isn't the sound of the word that offends, is it?" I thought I'd won that round, but she argued that the word itself is offensive, whether or not it rhymes, that there is something inherently wrong with the sound of the word.

"Is there something offensive about 'aren't,' or 'isn't,' or 'haven't?" I asked. choosing words that "ain't" sometimes replaces.

No." she answered. "They are contractions of real words. "What makes a word a 'real' word?" I

"Well, it should be a word," she said, becoming a bit defensive. "and it should communicate a meaning or

"So if someone says, 'He ain't here," you would be confused and wouldn't know what that meant," I pressed.

"I'd know what that means, but there are some uses of 'ain't' that aren't so easy to understand," she said.

"As in, 'I ain't got any?' or 'Ain't you late?" I asked. Well, I understand the meanings. but the sentences are wrong," she

I knew I'd pressed enough. To sum up our conversation, a word that communicates meaning, that rhymes with acceptable words, that generally patterns with words such as "isn't." is, for some reason, wrong and not even given the dignity of being called a word. "Ain't" is easier said than the contractions it may replace. It's easier, for instance, to say "ain't" than "isn't" or "haven't." And, yes, it is in the dictionary: "...used orally in the U.S. by cultivated speakers," (Merriam-Webster's Third International Dictionary, unabridged).

"Ain't" ain't along in being despised. Double negatives, "like" for "as," "irregardless," ending sentences with prepositions, "due to," "finalize," the "who-whom" distinctions, and not understanding the rule that "a pronoun, when governed by a preposition must be in the objective case," (gag) and on and on.

Do you see the trap set for us? The language police (we're all language police to some extent) are all around watching our every utterance. No wonder people, on learning that I am an English teacher, would often say, "Oops, I better not say anything." Right. All I do is listen to how you say something, not to whether you have something to say. Is this what we've done as English teachers? Shut people up?

The fact is that language has a moral component. We use social dialects to sort people into categories. We often feel superior to people who don't speak as we do. We even categorize whole regions by dialects, often making assumptions about intelligence based only on dialect.

We need to understand this. We need to know when our language use offends someone. We need to know that our language use labels us, categorizes us, sorts us. We need to know that someone who says "ain't" is not necessarily ignorant, even though our prejudices may say so.

Knowing this, we are free to communicate effectively. Want to offend someone? Want to turn off some people to our ideas? Want to look ignorant to some people? Want to miss an opportunity for a good job? Saying "ain't" may do it. Fair or not, that's a fact of language. On the other hand, "ain't" may be the most effective word to use to show humor or folksiness, or to fit in with certain groups. In short, we need to be "multilingual" within our own language. We must learn to use the appropriate language to achieve our purposes.

That's being rational.

Peters' legislation makes lots of sense

You're a wealthy business owner. You give big bucks to politicians and political parties. in return, you get favorable treatment from state government. That's the way many folks think the political-business complex operates these days.

That's why some Michigan Senate Democrats stirred up such a hornets' nest last week when they released research contending that big GOP contributors are getting big bucks back from the state.

They released a list of 53 people who contributed $50,000 or more to the Republican Party from 1994-97. Of these, 36 are affiliated with companies that received state contracts worth a total of $758.613,307 and various grants including job training amounting to $41,900,032, according to the Democrats.

"The massive donations by those individuals whose companies do business with the state clearly create the potential for a conflict of interest," according to Sen. Gary Peters. D-Bloomfield Township. When you find this correlation between big contributors and the amount of the contracts, it just leaves open the door for charges of conflict of interest and abuse of the system.

Peters also introduced legislation modeled on laws prohibiting investors in casinos in Detroit from contributing to political parties or candidates. The package would also:

· Cap donations by individuals to state parties at $5,000 annually.

· Cap total contributions by an individual to all political campaigns at $50,000 or $100,00 per election cycle.

Response from Republicans was furious.

Phil Power

"This is sleazy research that should never have seen the light of day," charged Jim Tobin, spokesman for the Michigan Jobs

John Truscott, spokesman for Gov. John Engler, asserted the state runs the cleanest contracting process in history. "The governor's office doesn't know who's getting the contracts," Truscott argued. "Contracts are competitively bid and, besides, most of the bureaucrats making those decisions are

During the administration of Gov. James

First, there is no doubt the potential for abuse exists, whether in Republican or in Democratic administrations. Big contributors are always going to get access to the system; they certainly aren't making those big contributions for nothing.

John Truscott is being disingenuous when he claims nobody in the governor's office knows who's applying for state contracts and grants. The Engler Administration is one of the most efficiently managed political opera-tions in Michigan history, and if you believe nobody in the administration knows who has contributed to the Republican Party. I've got a very nice bridge I can sell you.

It's never cut and dried in these matters. As I remember it, we gave some big job training grants to the Chrysler Corp. Why not? The company was among Michigan's largest employers, fully entitled to legal job training help. And some Chrysler executives made big contributions to Gov. Blanchard's campaigns. Why not? He helped save the Peters' legislation makes lots of sense, although I doubt it will go anywhere in the GOP-controlled Senate. Short of that, one useful step might be to require full disclosure of just who gets what state grants and contracts from the state and what their record of political giving might be. This, at least, might reduce the appearance of conflict of interest.

Commission, which awards most of the job training grants to companies.

Blanchard back in the 1980s, I served as chair of the Michigan Job Training Coordinating Council. The council worked closely with the governor's office for job training. Together, we did much the same things the Michigan Jobs Commission does today, so I know something about what reality lies behind the partisan sound and fury.

Township's ordinances should be followed

To the editor:

We have read your last two columns concerning the dispute between school and township officials over zoning issues for the new Northville High School with disbelief.

As residents of the Woods of Edenderry subdivision that abuts the new high school, we support the township's decision to enforce their ordinances. We do not believe that township officials want "control" of the school system's plans as you put it. All along, they have requested that Northville schools follow the local zoning ordinances. These are the very same ordinances that every developer of property in Northville Township must abide by. If these ordinances are so tough to meet, how do you explain the current explosion of growth in the township and plans or even more in the future?

Thomas Gudritz, school board treasurer, is quoted in your newspaper last week as saying that the school district has already voluntarily agreed to 78 issues raised by the township. Does not the sheer volume of changes indicate the level of poor planning and design the school district and its architects have done with this project? Yet it seems you believe that school officials should be given free rein to develop their site as they see fit. The township has been working with school officials since last year to resolve their concerns. Residents in our subdivision have also been in contact with the school district for months to address our issues with the project including the following items:

 a setback from neighboring residential properties of only 20 feet, township requirements are a 200 foot setback;

• eighty foot light poles for a competition soccer field, ordinances allow a maximum of 25

· a storm water detention pond that is not adequately sized, incorrectly sloped and does not provide for an emergency overflow structure per the township's engineering consultants. If the pond was to overflow or fail, water would flood neighboring residences.

• the school district plans to clear-cut the entire site including over 250 trees regulated under the township's woodlands ordinance. We have recently learned that the plans to landscape the property are contingent upon availability of funds at the completion of the project. What is the likelihood of that happening when school officials already state that the project is over budget?

We have been unable to resolve even one of our concerns. Every alternative we have proposed to school administrators, they rejected due to cost restraints or possible delays in their time schedule. Some of the suggestions would have reduced costs like continuing to play soccer games at the current high school as they plan to do with football games. The township has also offered trees from their tree bank for landscaping and use of their land for athletic fields in a park to be built directly across from the new high school on the south side of Six Mile Road. Northville schools has not pursued any of these options.

Dr. Leonard Rezmierski, superintendent of Northville Public Schools, specifically stated in a letter dated May 22 to township officials that the school district has no intentions to alter the plan to address any of the concerns raised by the township and residents. School representatives are planning a ground breaking ceremony and awarding contracts to commence site work this month. Yet you believe the township should continue to negotiate with the school district. It takes two parties to negotiate - something that is clear to us that Northville Public Schools does not want or plan to do.

You suggest that school board members should get involved in reaching a settlement. Have you contacted each school board member individually on this subject? The residents did months ago and the overwhelming feedback we received is that the plans for the new high school are a done deal.

You also suggest contacting the Michigan Department of Education to mediate this dispute. Have you contacted state officials to see what the process is in approval of construction of new schools? We have and were told that any problems should be addressed at the local level. We have also learned from a high ranking official that the state approval process is just a rubber stamp of any plans submitted by the local school district. We were shocked to discover that several aspects of the plans for the new high school do not meet the state's recommendations and guidelines for school site development. Do you have any more suggestions?

We feel that the decision by the township to enforce their ordinances was their only available option at this time. We are sure that taking legal action is not something they "wished" for as you state. This was not the township's choice. The school district forced their hand by deciding to ignore the ordinances enacted by the very community it serves. We will agree with you on one point - this whole chain of events is indeed a shame. Whose fault is it? Maybe school officials and board members should take a look in the mirror. Our children deserve a high school built to the highest standards, not the lowest.

In regard to your comments relative to the upcoming township millage election, maybe you should mention to school officials that this is a two-way street. School board members and school millages are also subject to public election last time we checked.

Lastly, do you know what we wish for - beside the school district complying with township zoning ordinances - that in the future you would preface your columns regarding the school district with a statement that your wife is cur-

Resident discovers quiet spot in heavily traveled area

To the editor:

Inadvertently, with the help of my two preschool grandchildren. I discovered a new eco-park in Northville - a very peaceful piece of nature right in the heart of the busy Six Mile Road, Haggerty area.

We parked in the shopping center parking lot and walked over to the retention pond to see the ducks with their ducklings. My three- and five-year-old not only enjoyed watching them, but also enjoyed being able to walk around the pond; it was so nice and quiet (we were totally oblivious to the traffic on Six Mile).

Then we spotted a goose sitting on her nest, with her mate standing ready to protect her. We watched the goose tend to her nesting duties, when my fiveyear-old similarly began to fashion a nest out of the wood chips in the shrub area: then he suggested to his sister that she sit in the nest, and she happily obliged him. Then he took up his post and "stood guard." What a wonderful nature lesson, and right at one of the busiest corners of town, but we felt like it was our private place. In fact, when I mentioned that it was time to go home for lunch, they asked if we could instead come back for a picnic, which we did.

I also learned something from this - development, in and of itself should not be considered in a negative way. Done properly with nice design, it becomes an asset to the community as has this northwest corner. What a lovely entrance we have into our township with the pleasant landscaping and the multiple ponds, one even featuring four fountains. I always enjoy driving past this intersection; the architecture of the buildings. topped off by the Williamsburg clock provide a beautiful backdrop to the natural areas.

Perhaps we should react to the word/concept, "development." more with an attitude of how can we assure that any change be designed to enhance the community, rather than just be negative. Change will inevitably come; all we need to do is be sure it is designed well. Some day when you feel you'd like to retreat to a peaceful place or wish to take your children to a quiet spot, please think of the northwest corner of Six Mile and Haggerty roads; you'll be both happily surprised and glad you did. #### Editor's wife poses possible conflict

To the editor:

I read with interest Robert Jackson's recent editorial attacking the actions of the Northville Township Board in filing a court injunction to block the construction of the new Northville High School. Mr. Jackson said that this concerned him. Well, in fairness, it concerns me that Mr. Jackson failed to disclose that a family member is an employee of the school district administration. Full disclosure of possible conflict of interests by The Record editorial staff would be helpful in accessing the merits of its writings.

To the editor:

I agree with Steve Shank's letter of last week. The high school should be built to our ordinances because of the moral obligation that the school board has to us and our environment.

The idea of a power play never entered my mind. Common sense however did. When I read that the present high school was built for 1350 students and 1362 are projected for next year, complaining about 12 extra students blows my mind.

Reminds me of a joke. A newlywed returned from her honeymoon and called her mother to tell her what a wonderful cruise they had. She wanted her mother to come and pick her up because as soon as they were home, her husband started to use four letter words. When her mother asked what they were, she said they were too horrible to tell her. The mother said she was not going to pick her up unless she knew what they were. #### Reader angered over controversy

To the editor:

I have lived in Northville for seven years and have two children ages 11 and 8 that have gone to school here at Silver Springs all their lives. I have read your paper every week since I moved here and have never written a letter to the editor. The controversy about the high school is something I cannot because of schools. People move to Northville because of the schools, period. There are a lot of other suburbs that provide more shopping, a more vibrant downtown and access to lakes that we do not have. We do have, however, an excellent school system. I am constantly amazed at what my chil-dren are learning in their early years in these schools. I have been a room parent and have volunteered at their school in many capacities during the years and have found the staff and facilities at Silver Springs Elementary to be outstanding. I want my children to attend the new high school. We worked hard to pass the millage for it. I am sick to death of listening to Lenheiser lament about his taxes. I have yet to hear him say how much his house is worth today compared to 1966, when I was a teenager and the only reason you came to Northville from northwest Detroit was for the Cider Mill in the fall. I live in a condo that is about $100,000. If someone is egomaniacal enough to pay $600,000 plus for a house in northwest Wayne County, and then complain because there is a soccer field flood light in their backyard, then they need to spend a week in the

"Get Me to Reality" clinic.

After volunteering at the elementary school for years, I believe many more parents in this town need to be active with their children and spend less time waiting

And while I am at it, I want to say that the Memorial Day parade in Northville was an exercise in futility. I brought my children and we were the only ones that stood when the color guard and servicemen walked by. Everyone else just sat on their Docker covered bottoms on the curb and my son was appalled that I demanded he stand when everyone else was sitting. He was embarrassed that I made him stand. Something is wrong with this picture.

Safety course was a huge success

To the editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank everyone who participated in the first Northville Community Bicycle Safety Course on Saturday, May 30. The event was a huge success and we plan on making it an annual event.

In addition, I would like to thank the Northville Rotary Club and Northville Township, who along with the City of Northville sponsored the event.

The event would not have been successful without the contributions of Ron Bodnar of Copy Boy Printers. McDonald Ford, Simkins & Simkins, D&D Bicycles, Town & Country Cyclery, Tuffy Muffler, Northville Publie Schools, Northville Fire Department, Northville DPW, Northville Recreation Department, McDonald's Restaurant at Six Mile and Haggerty. Northville Meijer's, and Toys R Us in Novi. I would also like to thank William Braund, Mike Gatliff, Lisa Milnes, and Linda Adkins.

We hope to see more youngsters at next year's rally...and please remember to always wear your helmet.

There's a lot of paper, garbage, even milk cartons. There's not a problem with rats or anything, or health problem, but it still looks trashy," Kornak said.

Six days a week the high school junior walks a loop starting from her home at Eight Mile Road and Tast. She said she sees waste along Taft and Beck Roads, and along Nine and Ten Mile Roads.

I noticed the problem last summer. I've just begun taking a dif-ferent route and there's garbage laying around everywhere basically," she said. "There's trash that people throw out their windows

Michigan State Trooper from the Northville Post Lorenzo Veal, left, and his wife Fran, represented the Black Western Historical Society of Michigan in Michigan Parades into the 21st Century parade held in Lansing in May.

Residents participate in Lansing parade

Area residents were riding high during the Michigan Parades into the 21st Century parade held in Lansing in May.

Among those from Northville were Lorenzo Veal, a Michigan State Trooper stationed at the Northville Post and his wife, Fran of Ypsilanti, who represented the Black Western Historical Society of Michigan.

The society portrays historically correct military, law enforcement, and cowboys of the 1870s. The organization is dedicated to the presentation of researched and verified documentation of the contributions and struggles of Civil War era and westward bound post Civil War era African-Americans.

The equestrian ethnic groups brought colorful authentic tack and costumes from other countries into this year's event. Ethnic units included Harmony Acre Arabians owned by Parade Equine Coordinator Nancy Harm of Northville. Harm's Arabian geldings, Harmony Diamond and Harmony Tarifa are veterans of over 130 parades and are part of a volunteer group that has participated in high school and college equestrian team activities, therapeutic riding programs, neighborhood mounted watch patrols, horse shows and trail riding.

The horses were ridden by Harm and Salem resident Laura Roberts. Horses and riders were attired in authentic imported tack and costumes from Saudi Arabia and Egypt.

The equine parade entrants, all of which were Michigan horses. represented some of the best and rarest horses in the country and the world, according to Harm.

Novi High School alumna and Canine Companion Independence volunteer Fay Johnson and her companion Duke led the new Canine Hero Unit which included Paws for a Cause and Leader Dogs for the Blind representatives and dogs.

This year's parade featured the decade of the 1980s, the Annual Salute to Michigan's Mothers, recognition of the Michigan's horse industry, a tribute to Michigan law enforcement agencies and honored American sports heroes with Michigan connections.

The parade Grand Marshall was Tom Izzo, National College Basketball Coach of the Year; Chad Alban, All American Goalie; Mateen Tleaves, All American Basketball Player of the Year: Milt Wilcox, former pitcher for the Detroit Tigers; and Bob Reynolds, WJR sportscaster recently inducted into Michigan Sports Hall of Fame.

In addition, there were 18 bands, military and veteran units, fraternal and service clubs, historical units, floats, queens, antique farm tractors and equipment, and plenty of Michigan clowns.

Just before the parade began, a UH1 Huey rescue helicopter from the 238th Unit of the Michigan National Guard and other airplanes flew over the parade site.

The Michigan Parade Committee hopes to make the Michigan Parades into the 21st Century

Equine Division one of the country's top equine parades. The new Equestrian Legends Unit provides an opportunity for parade riders with out a group to participate and be with other horses. Schoolcraft College in Livonia offers classes on parade training. drill formations, and costume making through its Equine Certificate Program for those who want to prepare and participate in this and other parades.

For more information, contact Nancy Harm, equine coordinator, at (248) 437-5672 or fax at (248) 437-1636 or visit the Michigan Parade booth at the North American Horse Exposition, held in at the Novi Expo Center Nov. 6-

Applications are now being accepted for the 1999 Michigan Parades into the 21st Century parade to be held May 15, 1999 beginning at 11 a.m. and proceeding down a one-and-a-half mile route down Grand River to the State Capitol Building in Lansing.

Academic team members share secrets of success

By CAROL DIPPLE Feature Editor

Just what makes the All-Area Academic Team members tick?

They have a lot in common. Novi High School's Julie Namm, Rory Pheisser, Stephanie Perry, Sophie Liao and Sara Heusel, and Northville High School's Stephen Traicoff and Keith Droz all have 4.0 grade point averages. They're not exactly couch potatoes either. They're all involved in either sports, music, honor society, clubs and volunteer work and have supportive parents or family members.

Here's how they responded to a few questions on career choices, study habits, and juggling academics and extracurricular activi-

Was your career choice born out of an experience at Novi High School?

Although the seed for Rory Pheiffer's decision to pursue a career as a patent attorney came in the sixth grade from his father, Robert, he knew taking a debate class in high school would be of benefit to him.

The whole point of debate is to speak really, really fast," Rory said, which he doesn't expect will come into play in his future career. The research and preparation skills I learned from debate will help me in my future for preparing any type of case I would have to a handle has a patent attorney."

Julie Namm's decision to be a doctor was influenced by her church, Detroit Korean Seventh Day Adventist in Livonia, and her parents, Myung and Eunbok Namm.

"It's an Asian thing," she said. "A lot of Asian parents want their kids to be doctors, that kind of influenced it too.

How did your parents help you develop good study habits?

Stephen Traicoff definitely credits his parents for developing his good study habits as early as first grade when he began to get homework.

They always forced me to do it and when the good grades came back I saw that they were right," Stephen said. "They wouldn't let me do anything fun until I finished my homework for the night. They would also support me and help me with homework when I was lit-

For Julie, it was her brother, 19year-old Jukes, who set high academic standards that she wanted to reach also.

Sophie Liao's was also influenced by a sibling. Sophie said through her 21-year-old sister Peggy's achievements, she was inspired most in working toward where she is today.

Stephanie Perry said that her parents always expected her to give her best effort.

Keith Droz credits his teacher at Silver Spring Elementary School, Pat Stringer, as the one who influenced his academic career the most because she taught him to take school seriously at a very young age.

Did you have to sacrifice other things like your social life, sports or other activities, to get those grades?

Rather than being a hindrance to getting good grades, Julie saw her participation in varsity basketball, volleyball and softball as a benefit.

*Being involved in the extracurricular activities helped me manage my time," she said.

With games twice a week and a one-and-a-half-hour daily practice, Julie said that "athletics really took time out of my day.

On away game nights, Julie said it is pretty common for her and other athletes to do their homework on the bus. On home game days, she would sandwich study time between school and the 5:30 p.m. JV game which the varsity athletes are required to attend.

What teacher at the high school had the most impact on you and why?

Stephanie decision to consider pursuing music education so that she can become a band leader came just a couple of months ago. Her main influence was the high school's band leader Scott Boerma whom she had for four years while in the marching and symphony bands.

"I learned a lot about playing my instrument, obviously, but also about working with a bunch of different people working toward a common goal," Stephanie said. We were very successful. We saw that all the work and effort we put into things really paid off."

Does school work come naturally or did you have to work

Julie found homework wasn't that challenging and academics came easy.

"I like the teachers," Julie said. They taught me well.

In her freshman and sophomore years. Julie studied one hour every night. She hardly had any homework after school during her senior year because she was able to do homework during a one hour long study hall also called a seminar during school and during her lugch hour.

For Sara Heusel about an hour a night, not always in every class. was all that was necessary to get good grades.

"I would say that it usually comes fairly easy," Sarah said of her grades.

Sara's involvement in varsity basketball, volleyball and soccer teams and in her youth group at New Horizon Community Church where her father Mike Heusel is the pastor, did not take a back seat to academics, either.

Along the way Sara learned a valuable lesson.

"It is really bad to compare yourself to other people," Sara said, *because I found that I started doing that and it is not a good idea. You can only determine yourself by how much you want to put into it. It is kind of silly to try and accomplish what the next person is trying to accomplish because they might have different goals and priorities. You can only be as good as you want to be."

Carriers' food drive is a success

By CAROL DIPPLE Feature Editor

Two local charities have full cupboards thanks to the National Association of Letter Carriers Food Drive held in May.

The Northville Civic Concern received about 6,000 pounds of canned goods collected by the Northville postal carriers. Last year's food drive in Northville brought in an estimated 5,300 pounds.

"One hundred pounds would have been successful to us," said Trish Kero, Northville city carrier, who left food on her porch and then helped the carrier in her Westland neighborhood pick up

It took two weeks for the volunteers of Northville Civic Concern to sort through all the donated food.

We really feel it was very successful," said Sally Rigo of Northville Civic Concern. Those postal workers are so great. This is a big source of our food."

Just as Carol Ann Donnelly was ready to leave with volunteers and two trucks to pick up the donated food from the Novi postal carriers, eight postal employees pulled up to Novi's Church of the Holy Family in four postal trucks packed with food for Donnelly. who coordinates the food program at the church.

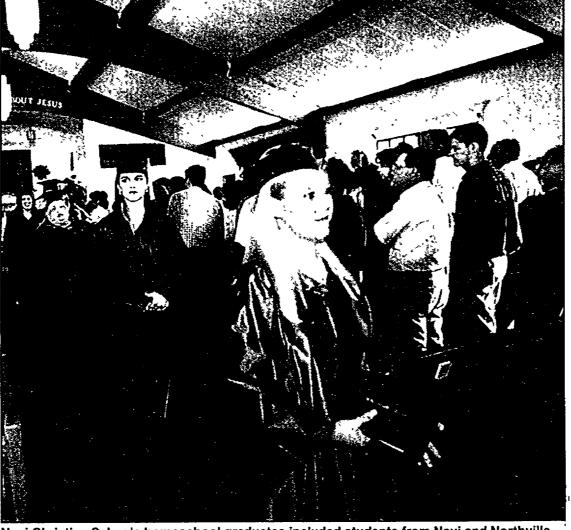

"It was wonderful." Donnelly said. They saved us a lot of time and energy.

Volunteers from the church who were working on the food drive included students doing service work and members of the church.

The quality, it's great stuff spaghetti and noodles, boxes of pasta, soup," Donnelly said. "Only had to pitch three cans so far.

Some of the donations, which Donnelly estimates will keep them in cans through the summer, were given to families with a week.

"It is wonderful to give away such a wonderful variety that people can make meals with for a couple of weeks," Donnelly said. "Our program was very glad to be the recipient

Dial 'S' for suspense

Hitchcock suspense thriller revived in 'A Perfect Murder'

Three people. One triangle. A wealthy and powerful husband, an intelligent, beautiful, young wife and a soulful and attractive lover. A dangerous combination, to be sure. Perhaps a deadly one...

Millionaire industrialist Steven Taylor (MICHAEL DOUGLAS) is a man who has everything except for what he craves most-the love and fidelityof his wife. A huge success in the high-stakes New York financial world. Taylor considers Emily Bradford Taylor (GWYNETH PAL-TROW) his most treasured acquisition. However, beneath Taylor's controlled exterior, he loves his wife-needs her, though he could never tell her just how much.

But Emily desires more than just her role as a dazzling accessory in her husband's world. Emily, a brilliant and sophisticated multilingual translator, has been involved David Shaw (VIGGO MORTENSEN), a talented but struggling downtown artist who provides emotional fulfillment to Emily, something Steven cannot

For months, Emily and David's affair, carried out in secret encounters in a Brooklyn loft, has been leading to what David hopes will be the end of Emily's marriage and the beginning of their new life together.

It's only a matter of time before Steven learns the truth behind his wife's peculiar behavior toward him. When he does find out, he sets in motion a complex scheme to carry out the perfect murderaimed at his wife.

But a perfect murder may be as impossible to achieve as a perfect has a screenplay by PATRICK SMITH KELLY with STEPHEN

> -Patrick Smith Kelly on "A Perfect Murder"

Entertainment Production was inspired by Frederick Knott's classic play, "Dial 'M' for Murder." Utilizing the earlier work as a spring-board, "A Perfect Murder" updates, expands, and considerably alters the plot, characters and settings, while retaining its stylish approach to the suspense-thriller Supporting cast of "A Perfect Murder includes DAVID SUCHET as Mohamed Karaman, a smart and empathetic New York detective; and SARITA CHOUDHURY as Raquel, Emily's colleague. Also appearing are MICHAEL P. MORAN, NOVELLA NELSON, and CONSTANCE TOWERS.

"This film is not a who done it." says "A Perfect Murder" cast member David Suchet, "it's a how done

Indeed, the film does not rely on keeping the audience in the dark about sinister events, rather, it lets them in on the lethal mischief step by step, as the story weaves a twisted plot of love, passion, deception, sexual jealousy and Kopelson explains. There's an old adage about there only being about two dozen stories in the world and they're re-told in every culture. A really good story is full of potential, and this is a firstrate story-full of glamour, dramatic tension, interesting characters, unexpected plot twists and suspenseful thrills."

"It's a puzzle piece," adds Davis, a triangle about three people who seemingly love and hate each other. The possibility of exploring this incredible tension and puzzling twists and turns really lured me into directing this film.

Screenwriter Patrick Smith Kelly felt that at the heart of "Dial M for Murder are themes which are both timeless and timely.

The basic thrust is about pos-session and that it's hard to kill someone perfectly. And if you plan to murder someone, and you involve a third party, it's a quantum leap in what can happen," he

Even the actors were drawn to the characters and the challenging aspects of a complex role.

Michael Douglas, who portrays Steven said, "Steven is a real mixture: a successful, charming man and a conniving, potentially lethal

He added, "This character is the first villian I've played since "Wall Street," and it was fun to revisit the type: I usually think the bad guy is the most interesting character in the story. Of course, in this story we're all villians, so maybe that's the best part of it."

This film was also a perfect choice for Gwyneth Paltrow, playing the role of Emily Bradford Taylor, Steven's beautiful and resilient wife. Paltrow was drawn to the script's roller-coaster twists, and turns and to the validity of its characters.

The nice thing about Emily is that she's an intelligent woman who's also emotionally motivated. Emily's emotions catalyze almost everything she does. She's very aware of what's going on, but so much has been hidden from her...it takes a long time for her to uncover what's really happening," said Paltrow.

Paltrow added, "But when she does, she responds with strength and character."

Brighton's dominance in the Kensington Valley Conference (KVC) was tampered with as Novi tied the Bulldogs for the conference title after knocking off Brighton in the first of two meetings this season. It marked the first time Novi has won the KVC soccer title.

*Brighton has been dominating the KVC and this was just the year we were able to break through," Novi coach Larry Christoff said. We play an emotional brand of soccer and we had a number of girls who have really worked hard Novi placed the most girls on this year's first team (4). This reflected the fact that the 'Cats were a perfect 10-0 against Milford, Lakeland, Northville and South Lyon, outscoring their area opponents 53-1.

Here's a look at the team, which includes a few future collegiate

A four-year letterwinner for Christoff's Wildcat teams, Raburn leaves as one of the school's alltime greats. As a senior, she scored 30 goals and added 26 assists. Last year she earned all-state, area and district honors and has already earned all-area and district honors this season. She has been a first-team all-KVC pick all four years. She also graduated with a perfect 4.0 grade point average.

Kenny stepped up her game and led Novi to the district finals this year. The senior midfielder scored 13 goals and assisted on 11 others. She was named to the firstteam all-KVC and is a repeat HomeTown selection.

Country Club feels like home

This week's Northville Record continues a series of weekly golf reviews.

Our goal is to provide you, the reader, useful information and tips on playing favorite courses in the

Although it is not usual practice to feature country clubs, the subject of this week's review is Ann Arbor Country Club at Lock Alpine.

If you would like to see a particular course reviewed this summer, please contact us at (248) 437-2011 or (810) 349-1700.

COURSE NOTES

To reach Ann Arbor Country Club, take US 23 south to North Territorial Road. Go west 3 miles and turn left on Webster-Church Road. Travel south 2.5 miles and turn left on Joy. Turn immediately right on Aberdine and the clubhouse can be seen at the top of the hill.

The course measures 6.420 yards in length from the back tees, 6,145 from the white and 5,011 from the front tees.

The course is private and family memberships cost a onetime initiation fee of $3,500 plus $236 per month. The cost of a single membership is $2,400 phis $173 per month. There is also a food and beverage mini-

If you're a golfer who likes a challenge at a deceptively short course. then the Ann Arbor Country Club was made with you in mind.

The course, 6.420 yards from the back tees, plays a lot longer than the yardage indicates. There are several dog-legged holes which require maximum distance as well as precision

"It's not necessarily the longest course, but there is a lot of target golf involved, a lot of shot positioning." said general manager Jonathan

"You don't get a lot of roll," club PGA golf professional Frank McAuliffe said. You just can't get up there and swing away at the ball."

That advice is no more evident than on the first two holes. Hole number one is a dogleg left, par-5. 473 yards long from the white tees. To swing away with a driver could be a mistake. Any drives too long end up in the road or in a fairway trap 240 yards out. This makes for a long, difficult second shot. As one approaches the green, sloped down from back to front, the safest play is to try and keep it below the hole for easier putting.

Hole number two is similar to number one in that it's a par-5 dogleg hole. But number two is a dogleg right, 543 yards from the white tees. It could easily take the average golfer three shots to have a shot at the green. Women, too, have to hit long to be successful on the first two holes. The first hole is 454 yards and the second 468 for the ladies.

The course straightens out and shortens up a little, but small greens, difficult pin placements and a number of traps and water hazards (water comes into play on 12 holes) make the course challenging and fun. The club winds its way through Loch Alpine.

Called "The Valley", Ann Arbor Country Club's with little margin for error. This view from the par-4, fourth hole, provides a narrow fairway tee shows just how narrow the fairway plays.

The course is a private club, but Nii said there are just 200 members so there is little trouble finding a tee

"We have a lot of die-hard golfers who can come out and get a lot of golf in in just 3 1/2 hours," he said.

The club also includes four tennis courts, a 50-meter pool, clubhouse, restaurant, bar and pro shop. The swim/tennis memberships are sepa-

The cost for a family membership is a one-time initiation fee of $3,500 and $236 per month. For a single membership, the cost is $2,400 and $173 per month. There is also a food and beverage minimum applied to both rates.

Anderson, who has been a member for 16 years and has served on the board of directors for the club, said it's only a 20-minute trip for him living in South Lyon.

You go out to a public course on a Saturday or Sunday and you wait around. This club sure beats the six-hour rounds at other courses," he said. "Here it's like a family, my home away from home. I don't know what I'd do without this place."

Anderson is not the only member who drives a distance to the club. Nil said he's got members from as far away as Farmington Hills, Pinckney, South Lyon and Rochester.

HomeTown's second team looks deep

While Brighton and Novi ran away with the Kensington Vailey Conserence, everyone else was left to fight in out.

South Lyon suffered through illness and injury. Milford struggled to score goals and Lakeland worked to rebuild a team. Northville again had to battle their way through arguably the toughest conference in the state to finish a respectable third in their division.

Through all the adversity, we were able to find a group of players who stood out above the rest.

Here's a closer look at HomeTown Newspapers' all area soccer, second-

Her desire to play physical soccer is an asset. She took punishment on the field that most girls wouldn't be able to take," Lyon said. Novi's offensive depth was epitomized by Gibson, who scored 10 goals and had 14 assists from her halfback position. Gibson, a transfer

Enjoy summer, but be careful

Ah, summer. What's more American than the family in the backyard roasting hot dogs on an open grill or watching the fireworks bursting in the night sky?

Hopefully not visiting the emergency room with a nasty case of food poisoning or first- or second-degree burns. What can you do to make sure that this summer is safe and healthy? Think ahead.

Take for example the backyard barbecue. The biggest danger when grilling either beef or poultry is bacteria contamination, says Gale Cox, wellness program's coordinator at Botsford's Health Development Network (HDN). Here's a few of her rules of thumb for your cook-out:

· Always wash your hands after handling raw meat to reduce the risk of contamination.

· Never use the same utensils and plate for uncooked as well as cooked food.

· Always make sure that the grill is hot enough to cook meat. Just remember that three-fourths of the coals should be ash white

 Always make sure meat is cooked properly, and that meat juices run clear before you serve it. Ideally, you should partially microwave the meat and then immediately transfer it to a grill with coals at cooking temperature, advises

· Always use a thermometer to check for internal meat temperature - which should be 180 degrees F for chicken or 160 degrees F for Summer also wouldn't be complete without fireworks. However, Sanford Vieder, D.O., a physician in the Botsford General Hospital Emergency Department, treats a variety of firework-related injuries every year.

"I can't emphasize enough the importance of proper supervision and common sense," he says. "Although it's really just a matter of maturity and proper supervision, it's best if children aren't allowed to light or handle fireworks at all."

The most common fireworks-related injuries are first- and second-degree burns to the hands and feet. The most serious accidents can result in scarring or amputation, and explosions near the face can lead to corneal burns and potential blindness.

Dr. Vieder has a few suggestions on how you can avoid meeting him in the emergency room this summer:

• Never purchase or use homemade fire-works. If you do buy them, make sure it's from a reputable outlet, says Dr. Vieder. And always read and follow the directions.

· Never use fireworks in windy conditions and always make sure you're in a cleared area, away from dry grass or other objects that could catch fire.

· Never point fireworks in the direction of people, buildings, trees or overhead wires.

· Children handling sparklers should wear loves, made from a material such as leather, that are flame resistant. If a child touches the wire, reminds Dr. Vieder, they could be badly burned.

· Never wear loose clothing which may catch fire. And always wear shoes, not sandals or sneakers, says Dr. Vieder.

Enjoy your summer in the sun. Keep safety in mind whatever you do.

Solar tubes let the sun shine in

By Gene Gary Copley News Service

Q. I have read several advertisements on solar tubes compared with conventional skylights. Since I was considering a skylight in a windowless bathroom, I am now wondering if one of these new solar tubes would work just as well and save me money? The ads sound like they are a snap to install, but I would like an unbiased opinion.

A. As a light source, solar tubes have a number of advantages over standard skylights. They are less expensive, easier to install, do not leak, won't heat up the room and are energy-efficient. They may not be as cosmetic as a standard skylight. Solar tubes, or light tubes. are essentially a metal tube with a plastic dome top that is mounted with special flashing in the roof. The reflective interior surface of the tube channels light to the room below where it enters the room through a diffuser that is installed in the ceiling.

A 10-inch diameter pipe can cast as much light as a 300- to 600-watt light bulb. A light tube can be installed in any room as long as there is an unused attic overhead. A professional can handle the installation in about an

If you plan to install the unit yourself, follow manufacturer's directions carefully. Remember that working in an attic filled with insulation can be tricky and scaling the rooftop is an added danger.

Select the site for the interior fixture on the ceiling so that it is positioned between ceiling joists (locate the joists with a stud finder or by rapping the drywall with your knuckle to find the solid-sounding spots that identify the joist). . Poke a hole in the celling and run a wire or line Through the ceiling and the attic insulation in a straight line to the underside of the roof.

The roof location should avoid shade from nearby trees, chimney or peaks. South-facing locations receive more light than north-facing locations. It is best to have a straight run through the attic to the ceiling below. Pipe runs can be angled and extensions provided, but this can reduce the transmission of light.

Installation will require drilling a hole through the roof and cutting a hole through the shingles and roof sheathing to fit the interior diameter of the flashing mount. The flashing is placed under the shingles with the center over the hole, and sealed with silicone applied underside (the sides and upp The bottom edge is secured with nails or screws. The upper swivel tube, seals, reflector and plastic dome are installed on top of the flashing mount, according to manufacturer's

The interior fixture is installed in the ceiling. This requires cutting a hole to fit the lower end of the pipe. The bottom swivel pipe and ceiling gasket fit into this opening and are fastened to the ceiling. The diffuser attaches to the ceiling gasket. Pipe sections connect the bottom swivel pipe (this comes through the attic floor and insulation) with the rooftop swivel pipe. The joints are taped with foil-backed tape supplied with the solar tube kit. Silicone is used to caulk joints.

It's important to make the assembled tube airtight to keep out moisture and dust. It's important that your dealer provide the correct flashing for your roof (asphalt shingles, wood shakes, tile, etc.), and for its slope, to assure a leakproof installation.

During installation, be sure to remove the film from the interior of the piping that protects the reflective surfaces before final assem-

Q. I want to make a tile backsplash in my existing kitchen (behind the sink and between the bottom of the cabinets and countertops). The wall is painted with a latex semigloss. Is it OK to tile over the paint? If so, does the wall need any special prepping?

A. To ensure a strong bond between the tile and the wall, it's best to remove the paint with a commercial paint stripper. Another option would be to install cement "tile-backer" board over the wall in the areas to be tiled. It comes in both 1/2-inch and 1/4-inch boards. This will provide a solid base for tile installation, as well as protection from moisture, which is prevalent in a kitchen environment. The two most common types of adhesive for securing tiles to a substrate are ready-to-use organic mastic and powdered cement-base (thin-set) adhesive. Mastics, which are less strong than thin-set, are more easily affected by heat or water, so thin-set would be preferable in your kitchen area.

Custom design and energy efficiency help popularize wooden windows

By Suzanne Smith Staff Writer

Within any home, windows bring in the natural light adding definition, warmth and the illusion of space to the rooms. Oxbowindo in White Lake is a leader in providing premier wood windows for homeowners and builders in southeastern Michigan for 50 years.

Specializing in elegant, yet affordable, windows. Oxbowindo manufactures and carries quality products such as Anderson and Lincoln windows. They also carry new, energy efficient simulated divided light (SDL) windows.

Co-owner Todd Burmeister said the new SDL is quickly becoming one of the most popular window options for homeowners and builders. They are an improvement of an old design," he said. They give the same look to the inside and outside of the glass."

The SDLs have been accepted by the National Historic Society to be used in renovations of historic houses. They have a wood exterior and meet the 7/8-inch profile requirements for historical detail.

"It's best to check with your local historic society when you begin a renovation." Burmeister said, "to ensure you maintain the historic integrity of the home." He said it can be a costly mistake for do-it-yourselfers if they install the wrong windows in an historic district.

Burmeister said his company works directly with contractors and homeowners to offer on-site custom design. They check and double check window dimensions and offer many different cuts and shapes.

"Windows today are more energy efficient than ever before," Burmeister said. He noted the new Low-E filters for ultraviolet rays improves energy efficiency by up to 40 percent and increases the home's value. Another home innovation is the number one selling Wilsonart Solid Surface Veneer (SSV) counter top. L. Rogers Associates, Inc. has been serving Oakland County since 1978. They specialize in elegant yet affordable counter tops, said owner Lee Rogers. The new SSV counter tops are great because they provide the luxurious look and feel of sculpted stone, yet they are more affordable at 75 percent the price of traditional solid-surface products." Rogers said. "Our customers love the versatility and durability of the product as well."

Q. The ornately carved Oriental desk in this photo is marked "Made in Japan." It was given to my motherin-law at least 50 years ago by her mother and is still in excellent condition. The image of a mountain can be seen in the carving at the top left portion of the desk.

What is the age and value of our desk?

A. Your Japanese desk was made around 1900 for the Western market. Its value would probably be about $1,200 to $1,800.

Could you please tell me something about my vase?

Jewel-like metallic tones of rose, blue, green, bronze, purple and crimson that melt into one another characterize the Sicardo line. As a rule, the vases have a floral or geometric pattern, and they were fired at a high temperature. Because there was no way of completely controlling the firing, there always was a risk of the kiln exploding, and only about 30 percent of the pieces were marketable. Sicard and his assistant. Henri Gellie, went to great lengths not to reveal their formula. To avoid detection, they worked behind closed doors and spoke in a French-Swiss dialect. Each day they examined the walls to make certain there were no "peep holes."

The Sicardo pieces were Weller's most expensive line and were marketed through Tiffany's and Wannamaker's for at least $300 a vase. Roseville Pottery produced a similar line called "Mara." Most Sicardo vases were signed on the body of the ware near the lower portion. When Sicardo and Gellie returned to France in 1907, they left Weller with a huge overstock that continued to increase in value.

Your vase was made around 1900 and would probably be worth about $350 to $450.

Please tell me more. A. Hallmark made a Mickey

Aspen's high living demands high prices

By James M. Woodard Copley News Service

You say the prices of homes and rents are just too darn high in your area. After reading this column, you may think your local figures are bargain-basement values.

Consider Aspen, Colo. - the town named as the nation's top affluent community by (beginital) The Robb Report (endital) publication. It's the highest priced real estate market in the country, with the average home price at nearly $2 million.

"Aspen ranks No.1 on our list for very good reasons," the Robb Report states. This town of 5.400 has the highest residential home prices in the country. Homes currently being built on spec range from $4 million to $12 million. Development is limited in Aspen both by restrictive geography - it's surrounded on three sides by mountains - and stringent building controls."

Very limited growth potential keeps the land values strong, it was noted in (beginital) The Robb Report, (endital) quoting W. Zackary Wright, senior vice president and Western regional manager of Sotheby's International Realty.

"The quality of life in Aspen - if you can afford it - is the highest Robert Ritchie, broker-partner with Coates, Reid & Waldron, a leading real estate firm in Aspen and Snowmass for the past 30 years, and a Sotheby's affiliate. This community has everything. Year-round recreational opportunities and cultural events make Aspen a true four-season worldclass resort area.

It was recently announced that a World Cup ski racing event will be held this year in Aspen in late November. Other special events are scheduled throughout the year.

Real estate prices and rents are generally high in Aspen compared with many other markets, but many property owners have found that their investment in Aspen real estate has been notably profitable," said Mickey Spalding. president of Coates, Reid & Waldron Property Management Inc.

"An owner of a housing unit we manage (as a rental offering) purchased his property three years ago for $270,000. He just sold it for $520,000 and has purchased another residence, now being renovated. The rental income he received from his previous property more than covered his ownership expenses and, of course, he made a handsome capital gain on his investment."

told Spalding he thought this was a great time to invest in Aspen real estate, due to the steadily growing international interest in this Rocky Mountain community. Currently, about 22 percent of Aspen visitors during the ski season are from foreign countries. And that proportion is growing.

"I recently had to park my car four blocks from my destination point in downtown Aspen," Spalding said. I heard many groups visiting with one another during that walk, all in various foreign languages. It was then I realized how cosmopolitan our community has become."

There is an increasing demand for rentals in the Aspen area. Spalding noted. And a wide range of rental unit types is now available. Coates, Reid & Waldron Property Management now offers 175 condo and town house units. and 50 single-family homes in Aspen and Snowmass, he said.

Not all those units have high

Anexample of a group with a very limited budget that consistently rent units in Aspen is The Fund for Public Interest, based in Los Angeles. This organization has been sending about 100 young people to Aspen for a five-day visit each year for the past decade.

Q. Are condo sales on the increase or decrease?

A. Condominiums are becoming more popular in today's real estate market. During the first quarter of this year, condo sales reached a new all-time record, with more than half a million units sold nationwide.

The first-quarter condo sales volume was 1.6 percent more than the previous quarter, and 15. 3 percent

PC Technology updates computers in your home

The outdating of computers is no secret. Everyone knows if you buy a computer today, it will most likely be outdated in a year or two.

In actuality, computers, or at least certain parts of computers, can be outdated or modified in just six months, according to PC Technology founder and owner David S.

*Easily between three to six months there's something coming out that your computer doesn't have," Bush said. "I wouldn't say that your computer is outdated. To me I think a computer's lifespan lasts two years, and then at that point technology has advanced so much that you can make a huge jump by upgrading your comput-

PC Technology in Novi is focused on bringing new technologies to computer owners for a fraction of the cost of buying a new computer.

"It's something that I feel I'm really helping people," Bush said. "You've got a lot of people out there who are lost and just don't know what to do.

"The components in your computer, your CD Rom, your floppy drives, your modems, all that stuff is reusable. Why would you want to go out and buy this stuff all over again?"

There are other companies that perform this relatively new service, but Bush said he offers something that other companies don't. We come out to the customer's home and perform the upgrades there," Bush said. "Computers are supposed to be more efficient, supposed to make your life easier. If you have to unplug it and take it in to get it fixed, that's not easy. There may be companies out there that can provide this service a little cheaper, but they won't do it any easier.

The entire process takes less than two hours.

"We'll go out to their home, ask them what they want their computer to do, analyze their computer and give them a quote of the cost," Bush said. "If they say yes we'll go ahead and install it right on the spot. There's no waiting. PC Technology is an Intel Processor dealer and will soon be a Microsoft A+ Certified company. It is capable of performing full data backups on-site, so the customer won't lose any data.

"I won't install something unless its a good, quality component," Bush said. "A lot of companies make their money by putting cheap components in computers. I don't care so much about the big name (companies), I care about partnering up with a processor company that is going to stand behind its processors.

We can cater to anything the customer needs, but my biggest goal out there is to try and provide something that's going to prevent them from spending an ungodly amount of money every two years, Bush said. "You'll never be able to keep up with the advances, but you can extend the life of the computer you have."

Businesses will soon pay taxes by wire

∃ if your business is among the more than one million targeted by the IRS as likely to be subject to the Electronic Filing Tax Payment System (EFTPS), chances are you have a number of questions regarding this new payment pro-

To help you prepare, the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants provides answers to the following frequently asked questions about EFTPS.

WHAT IS THE ELECTRONIC FILING TAX PAYMENT SYSTEM?

EFTPS is a system for initiating and paying federal taxes electronically. The system was designed in response to legislation enacted by Congress requiring the Internal Revenue Service to transform the Federal tax Deposit paper coupon system to a more efficient electronic system. Businesses should note that the Electronic Filing Tax Payment System is for any federal tax payments (e.g., employment taxes) - it has nothing to do with filing tax returns.

WHO IS REQUIRED TO PAY TAXES ELECTRONICALLY?

All employers who paid more than $50,000 in federal employment taxes in 1995 are required to make electronic tax payments for all deposits beginning July 1, 1997. The $50,000 total includes all withheld income, FICA, Social Security, Medicare and railroad retirement taxes you pay. Once a business meets the employmenttax threshold and is required to use the electronic system, all future deposits must be made electronically. If your payroll taxes do not meet the $50,000 threshold, participation in the EFTPS system is voluntary.

WHAT IF I MISSED THE DEAD-LINE FOR MAKING ELECTRONIC PAYMENTS?

If, based on your 1995 employment tax deposits, you are required to make your tax payments electronically by July 1. 1997, you should start doing so immediately. However, in response to pressure from small businesses for more time to understand and implement the new electronic system, the IRS extended to Jan. 1, 1999, the date on which it will begin imposing a 10 percent penalty for noncompliance.

DO I NEED A SOPHISTICATED COMPUTER SYSTEM TO COM-

No. You may make the transfer through a personal computer using banking software, but you are not required to do so. If you prefer, you can make your payment by phone, either using a touch-tone phone and following the instructions or conferring with a representative.

HOW DO I ENROLL IN THE EFTPS?

To enroll in the EFTPS, you should contact one of the two banking agencies with whom the department of the Treasury contacted to manage the system. You may call First National Bank of Chicago at 1-800-945-8400 or NationsBank at 1-800-555-4477. Both banks provide customer service to answer taxpayers' questions on the enrollment and payment processes. You may select either bank. Neither bank requires that you open an account in order to enroll in the system.

WHAT HAPPENS ONCE I'M ENROLLED IN THE SYSTEM?

After the bank processes your form (which may take six to eight weeks), it will send you a personal identification number and payment instructions. Basically, you have two choices for making your pay-known as the ACH debit method. you instruct the agent bank you select to withdraw funds from your account and route them to the Treasury's account at the Federal Reserve Bank. With the second option, the ACH credit method. you instruct your own bank directly to withdraw funds from your account for transfer to the Treasury Department's account. Not all banks offer this service, so you'll need to check with your bank before selecting the credit method.

You will not be charged any fees by the First National Bank of Chicago, NationsBank or the IRS for their services, but your bank may charge for the services it pro-

IS THE ELECTRONIC FILING PAYMENT

Yes. EFTPS has undergone extensive testing, including security testing, by the government and an individual contractor. And using EFTPS does not give the IRS access to your bank account, since only you and your bank have your personal identification number.
