

Voters to decide millage, primary races

By CHRIS C. DAVIS
Staff Writer

It's time to choose. Northville and Northville Township voters will be heading to the polls this Tuesday to make their picks for several key legislative positions at the county and state level.

But as far as many in Northville Township are concerned, the focus of the ballot is on the township's request for an eight-year, 6.34-mill ballot proposal to fund public safety and services shared with the city of Northville.

The first four years of the millage request also ask for three-quarters of 1 mill for parks and recreation land acquisition and development. At the conclusion of those four years, the millage rate would drop to 5.59 mills.

For a house valued at $200,000, the millage would cost around $634 per year.

Though the request is an increase of about 30 percent over what township residents are currently paying, township leaders said the millage would maintain the present level of service being provided to the community.

Should the millage fail, the township would have the option of making another request in the November election. If the November vote would be turned down, the township's police and fire services would be provided by the county, or could be contracted out through a nearby township.

Township clerk Sue Hillebrand said township staff mailed out just under 1,600 absentee ballots earlier this month. About half of those have been returned, she said.

Absentee ballots can be accepted up until 4 p.m. Tuesday.

"We had a few cases in prior elections where the postmark was stamped on the day of the election, but we didn't get it into our office until four or five days after the elec-

School calendar draws protest from area parents

By WENDSY WHITE
Staff Writer

The first day of school in Northville was scheduled too early and announced too late, according to a group of parents, who believe their input on surveys was ignored when the tentative school calendar was formulated.

This year, the first half day for students falls on Monday, August 24. That's 13 days before Labor Day and four days earlier than the Tuesday, August 28 start date last year.

It's also contrary to what a majority of parents told the district they wanted in surveys conducted by Northville PTA's in 1995 and 1997.

"We're unhappy with the early start. After filling out survey after survey after survey, nobody listens. They say 'We want the parents to be a part of this, to have a say,' and then it doesn't make a difference," said Jeanette Myers, a mother of five whose youngest child is entering her junior year at Northville High School. "We have no summer anyway and they just keep taking away more and more and more."

In the same survey, 53 percent said they would like to see classes start after Labor Day, while 37 percent said a late-August start would be preferred.

'Fluffy' the bird rules the roost in Northville

By WENDSY WHITE
Staff Writer

A wild Starling nicknamed Fluffy has tamed the neighbors in the Hills of Crestwood subdivision in Northville Township, which is located off Beck Road near Six Mile.

As he flits through various garages, touches down on people's heads and bathes with children in a neighborhood pool, some residents are growing to love him while others think Fluffy the Bird is just a pest.

"People started getting a little scared because they see a black dot coming at them. He tends to land on your head. It can be a little unnerving," said resident Glen Kruse.

"One of the neighbors called me screaming about a bird in her garage," said neighbor Lori Stapp. "I'm part of the whole neighborhood Fluffy watch. I protect this one woman who's afraid of Fluffy. Now I have to walk her to her car."

Lori's son Brandon, 8, has also noticed some hard feelings cropping up against the brown speckled bird with the pointy black beak who's been known to chirp in people's ears.

"He loves everyone in the neighborhood but some people are beginning to hate Fluffy because he comes into their garage and attacks them. That's his way of begging for food. He's just so cute you have to feed him," Brandon said.

But Fluffy's chumming doesn't end there. Lately he's taken to perching atop cars and hitching rides out to Beck Road. Then he flies right back to his community.

"We almost missed the Fourth of July parade. We didn't know it was a game and we kept driving up and down the street trying to shake him off," Glen Kruse said.

It all began when the Kruse family found the bird in their driveway as they pulled out in their mini-van this spring.

"My dad thought it was a rock but he got out just to check," said Stephen Kruse, a fourth-grader at Silver Springs Elementary School.

"When we found him, his eyes were closed. He fell out of the nest and the mom was nowhere around," said Rebecca Kruse, who just months ago moved to Northville Township from Chicago with her husband Glen and sons Stephen, 8 and Bobby, 6.

The family found an abandoned nest in a nearby tree and set it in a shoe box for Fluffy. They fed the scrawny, bald bird with worms that they found in hay bales leftover from recent yard work.

Fluffy has since lived in a Pop Tart box, a garbage can and in various garages.

"We built him a bird house but he wants nothing to do with it," Rebecca Kruse said.

Bobby Kruse, a first-grader at Silver Springs, decided on the bird's name.

"Cause he was fluffy. Well, he wasn't, but I just thought it was a good name. Stephen wanted to call him Bernard," Bobby said.

Now, to a group of neighbors whose homes ring a cul-de-sac at the end of Tall Pines Court, Fluffy is a household name.

The bird recently greeted each guest the Simonian family reunion.

NABF World Series slated to begin today

By JASON SCHMITT
Sports Editor

The teams are set, the fields are ready — it's time to "Play ball."

The National Amateur Baseball Federation (NABF) Junior World Series begins today with games being played at Northville High School (NHS) and Madonna University.

The Northville Broncos will be representing the Northville area and will be joined by fellow Little Caesar's League foe the Livingston County Bulls out of Hartland. The Bulls won the Toledo, Ohio regional to advance to the World Series.

Due to the drop out of the Norman, Okla., regional winner, the tournament has been changed to a double-elimination format. Previously the tournament had a round-robin format with the teams with the best records advancing to the semifinals. The tournament draw took place last night (after The Northville Record deadline.)

Joining the Broncos and the Bulls will be the five-time defending champion Bayside Yankees, the Chattanooga Colonels, Fort Wayne Indians,

Former foreign exchange student pays visit to Northville host family

By JIM TOTTEN
Staff Writer

Bill Bowman arrived in Michigan during the blizzard of 1978 and was greeted with three feet of snow and blustery cold winds.

It was a stark change for the 18-year-old Australian used to warm temperatures, sun and sailing. Yet Bowman took the climate change in stride just like he has done everything else in life.

During his one-year stay as an exchange student through the Northville Rotary Club, Bowman attended Northville High School as a senior, lived with three local families, did some traveling, and charmed many Northville residents with his friendly nature. His easy-going personality made him a favorite among the Rotary Club, whose members held a special send-off when he left.

Now 20 years later, Bowman stopped in Northville last week for two days while he was in Chicago on a business trip. Bowman, 38, is a finance director for Baxter Healthcare - a U.S. company which produces medical products - and oversees its Asian operation. Bowman lives and works in Singapore which is where the company's regional offices are located.

"It's a lot of worrying," Bowman said about his job as finance director. Especially due to the financial crisis in the Asian market these days, he said much of his work is done by the "seat of the pants."

What's Singapore like? "It's hot, hot, hot," Bowman said while visiting with members of two families he stayed with as an exchange student. They included Northville residents Carolyn Totten and her four sons and Janet Malinowski and her one son.

Although his curly dark hair has receded and turned gray, and his running physique is gone, Bowman still hasn't lost his charm and laid back ways. He joked with Carolyn and Janet that his first goal after getting off his 28-hour flight from Singapore wasn't touring Northville, but getting a shower.

Carolyn Totten said Bowman hasn't changed his relaxed ways and remembers his favorite line which was "tons of time, tons of time." He used this when asked if he wanted to call someone in town.

Bowman did notice the changes in downtown Northville during a quick drive-through.

"It's much more arts and craft oriented," he said.

Bowman is married and has a three-year-old son. He often spends his weekends traveling to Hong Kong, which is where his wife, Olivia, and son, Nicholas, currently live. Bowman used to live in Hong Kong with his family when he worked for another company. Yet he moved to Singapore when he started working for Baxter Healthcare. His wife - who works in Hong Kong - is planning to move to Singapore as soon as she finds a job there.

BECOMING RATTLED?

One of the most common noises that drivers hear coming from their engines is a rattling sound that occurs upon acceleration. This noise, known as ping, results when the moisture in the combustion chamber explodes before or after it should. If left unchecked, ping (detonation) can lead to serious damage to the pistons. The first step to find a cure involves a check of the owner's manual to make sure that the car is using the correct octane gas. If ping persists, the car should be checked for overheating. A faulty thermostat or loss of pressure in the cooling system can cause the engine to run so hot that it pings. Proper engine timing is also critical in preventing ping. Ping can also result from a hose or wire disconnected from an emission-control device.

Early detection of a mechanical problem can save you time, money, and aggravation. Protect your vehicle by having routine evaluations every 3,000 miles. If you hear noises such as ping, bring your vehicle to MARTY FELDMAN.

Northville man has fond memories of famous astronaut

Below, Northville resident Bill Phillips chats with Alan Shepard over a round of golf in 1995. At right, an autographed photograph of Shepard, that the famous astronaut gave to Phillips before his historic flight to the moon on Apollo 14.

By CHRIS C. DAVIS
Staff Writer

He was eulogized by President Clinton and thought of fondly by past and present members of the American space program. But Alan Shepard's death earlier this month also meant something special to Northville resident Bill Phillips.

"I was shocked," Phillips said. "He's only a few years older than I am. He's one of those people who'll be sorely missed."

Shepard became the first American to go into space in 1961 and a decade later walked on the moon as part of the Apollo 14 mission — the first lunar expedition since the near-disaster one mission before, involving astronauts Jim Lovell, Fred Haise and John Swigart.

Phillips and Shepard worked together in the mid-1950s, while Phillips was a field service representative for Holley Carburetor of Warren. The two were both working together at a Patuxent River, Md., naval base.

Phillips said the first significant memory he had of Shepard was in 1956, when tests were being conducted on the engine for the F-94 Cougar. Engineers had run into a snag — fuel inside the jet was crystallizing and causing a drop in power to the planes. The crystallization was being generated from the extremely cold temperatures planes encountered when flying through the jet stream.

At the time, Phillips was a field service representative for Holley Carburetor of Warren. A fellow naval officer volunteered to test the plane and write a follow-up report, but the effort bore little fruit, Phillips said.

"It was useless — zilch," he said. "There was nothing in there that I needed."

It just so happened that Shepard was within earshot of Phillips and overheard him bemoaning the outcome of the tests.

"He came up to me and asked if I'd like him to do the tests," Phillips said. "He did the work and wrote the reports. They were just fantastic. It was just what I wanted."

While Phillips admitted he and Shepard didn't have a particularly tight bond, he did say the two had admiration for one another's work and a strong working relationship.

"Alan wasn't one of these cocky, brash types. He was quiet and reserved — more of a family man," Phillips said.

Years passed before Phillips was able to meet Shepard again. The two had their most recent — and final — face-to-face encounter at Rochester's Great Oaks Country Club in 1995. Shepard, Phillips said, was making a celebrity appearance to raise money for children to be sent to U.S. space camp.

Phillips said he arrived at the course and asked how he might be able to golf with Shepard. After a bit of checking, staff members escorted Phillips out onto the course.

"There was this man a few yards in front of us wearing this big, wide-brimmed hat; I didn't recognize him," Phillips said. "I asked the staff member if he knew where Alan Shepard was. Then the guy in the hat turned around and told me he was Alan Shepard. It was a pretty funny moment."

"Alan wasn't one of these cocky, brash types. He was quiet and reserved — more of a family man,"

A LESSON FROM THE PRO'S

Lessons learned from rehabilitating injured professional athletes have filtered down to the rest of the population with the use of immediate and aggressive rehabilitation. This includes a regimen to retrain such key faculties as balance, reaction, and timing. To understand the importance of this concept, consider the case of a sprained ankle, which results in a slightly torn ligament. After the swelling subsides and the pain recedes, the injury heals — but not totally. Damage to some very tiny receptors in the muscles and in the joint cause disruption in the joint's stability that creates the need for retraining. Before the importance of retraining neuromuscular pathways was understood, athletes would reinjure themselves even though their strength had returned to normal.

If you are in need of rehabilitation for a sports injury, call NOVACARE at 349-3816. Stressing simple common sense treatment techniques, our therapists offer individualized treatment programs that focus on returning patients to their highest level of function. In addition, we work closely with referring physicians and provide timely initial evaluations and routine progress correspondence. Located at 215 E. Main St., Suite B (across from our previous location), we have early and late business hours, including weekends.

You want to sell your house, and you are fortunate because buyers have made you an offer that you couldn't refuse. Once the ink dried on the contract forms, however, it seemed like everything threatened to come unraveled.

Once the buyers' earnest money check cleared their account, they came up with a list of concerns that never occurred to their structural expert. Their fears and demands caused you to see them more as an adversary rather than the sweet young couple who want to start a family in your house. How could the atmosphere have changed so quickly?

School board strengthens athletic code of conduct

By WENDY WHITE
Staff Writer

Northville High School students who participate in any after-school programs may soon be held to higher standards than their uninvolved peers when it comes to drug and alcohol abuse.

A new document currently under review by the Board of Education expands the school's Athletic Code of Conduct to include all extra- and co-curricular activities including band, choir, drama, clubs and associations.

If the document wins approval by the board in late August, it will redefine the punishment for students involved in after-school activities who are caught possessing, selling or manufacturing illegal substances.

"If you were performing in a play after school, that's a privilege not a right, just like participation in sports is a privilege above and beyond everyday school," said Bob Sornson, the director of special education for the district. "I think it's a strong move in the right direction. It sends a stronger statement that substance abuse is inappropriate."

Under the innovative document:

•Students involved in sports would be suspended from the team for the rest of the season. If they are caught off-season, they would be reinstated for the next season upon completion of a Student Assistance Program.

•For a second violation, athletes would be suspended from the team for the remainder of the season and half of the following season.

•A third violation will prohibit the student from participating in any interscholastic athletic competition and suspend them from all student activities for one calendar year.

•Students involved in extra- or co-curricular activities will be suspended from the activity for the next scheduled event.

•On a second violation, students would be suspended from all activities for the remainder of the semester.

•For the third violation, students would be suspended from all activities for one calendar year.

•In all cases, students would be required to attend SAP to be reinstated.

•Students involved in co-curricular activities, which supplement required classes like choir or marching band, would be allowed to remain in the class during their suspension from after-school events.

•The punishment would apply all year, including the summer.

•Any punishment could be appealed in writing within five school days based on questions of fact or due process.

•A special "self-disclosure" section allows students who admit they have a problem with drugs or alcohol before they are caught with the substances to avoid punishment if they complete a Student Assistance Program.

"We don't want this to just be a punitive approach to dealing with kids. First and foremost we want to give these kids help," Sornson said. "If a student is willing to follow through and get help, that's what we want to see and we don't want to stand in the way of that."

The Extra/Co-Curricular Student Activity Code of Conduct was formulated by a committee made up of 13 people, including students, parents, teachers, administrators and police.

It was based in part on a document from the Traverse City School District, which is the only other comparable code of its kind in Michigan.

The policy subcommittee, led by board trustee Bob McMahon, approved the code in June and it was presented to the Board of Education July 14.

Now it is being tweaked by the school district's attorney Bob Lusk, and school officials said they hope it will be in the mail to parents before the school year begins on August 24.

"I really think when this gets into print there are some parents who are going to question whether this is legal, whether the board has the authority to do this," McMahon said.

Controversy may arise, for example, if a student is suspended from choral performances but must still attend vocal music classes.

"I think it's been studied carefully enough that all of the teachers understand it and want it to work. I'm real proud, particularly of the high school administration and the athletic director. They put a lot of effort into it and a lot of thought and it's hard for them because it requires them to do more monitoring. They're taking on more responsibility but it's the right thing to do for kids, obviously."

Athletic director Larry Taylor said the document is more lenient in some ways than the current Athletic Code of Conduct, which mandates that students be suspended from sports for the entire season after a first offense.

"It's been softened to say that they will be able to play half the semester if they get drug counseling but it's tougher in the sense that they're only allowed four offenses during their entire school career. They were allowed eight offenses prior."

If the code garners board approval, the next step will be to expand it to include middle school students, school officials said.

BUNIONS, BUNIONS, BUNIONS

Bunions are easy to spot: The inside edge of the foot juts out at the base of the big toe forming a triangular shape. This enlargement of the large toe joint is a deformity that often develops over time - and time can be the key to treating this painful, even crippling condition. If a bunion is diagnosed early enough, a podiatrist can evaluate the underlying structural weakness and [prescribe a course of action that may stabilize the foot with minimal intervention. Treatment may include adding, prescription orthotics (footwear inserts), wearing wider shoes to avoid pressure on the bunion, and inflammatory medication. If the deformity continues to progress, surgery may be necessary. When surgery is recommended to get rid of bunions, you'll be glad to know that today's techniques make the process easier and faster, and recovery is quite a bit more comfortable than just a few years ago. If you are one of the unfortunate victims of bunion pain, consider professional help. Our techniques are up-to-date, with three basic goals: To relieve pain, restore function, and improve appearance. Bunions can be corrected in our office or on an out-patient basis at the hospital.

If you are the victim of bunions, you don't have to let foot pain slow you down. The relief you're seeking is available. Our facility is fully equipped and our staff is particularly skilled in helping with all kinds of Foot conditions, including bunions, corns, calluses, nail problems, diabetic feet, and ankle problems. For an appointment for foot care for adults and children, please call FOOT HEALTH CENTERS for that Total Foot and Ankle Care. We specialize in all types of foot surgery including laser surgery.

Unusual auto theft: thieves make off with dump truck

A dump truck valued at $40,000 was stolen from McDonald Ford sometime between Saturday, July 18 and Monday morning, July 20.

Police said the suspect may have used the radio antennae from a nearby truck to jimmy open the door and gain access to the dump truck, which was described as a 1989 Freightliner with a white cab and a black dump bed and body.

A lock that secured the fencing around the car dealership's storage lot on Griswold was twisted and the suspect may have gained entry without a key, police said.

The same weekend, $900 worth of spare tires and rims were stolen from McDonald Ford's show lot on Seven Mile Road. Two of the spares were stolen from Jeep Wranglers on display while the third was stolen from a car that a customer had dropped off for service.

The tires had been secured to the vehicles with bolts which had been removed by the suspect, suggesting the bolts had been removed and a lack of damage around the bolt area suggests the suspect used a master key or the key for the trucks.

DRUNK 180: A Milford man was pulled over around 2:40 a.m. on July 21 after he pulled a U-turn on Eight Mile Road. The only explanation the 25-year-old driver had for making the illegal maneuver was "because my friend didn't think he could do it."

Police smelled alcohol on his breath but he only admitted to having one beer ten minutes prior and refused a breathalyzer test.

The officer arrested him and obtained Judge John MacDonald's signature on a search warrant via fax.

Then the driver was taken to Novi Providence Hospital for a blood withdrawal.

Results of the alcohol-blood ratio analysis are pending.

Police charged him with a mis-

Police Reports

demeanor for drunk driving, another misdemeanor for violation of license restrictions and a civil infraction for refusing a breathalyzer test.

It was his third alcohol related violation.

STOLEN PHONE: A Sony cell phone valued at $400 was either taken from a 1996 Oldsmobile Aurora or lost sometime between 9 a.m. July 20 and 5 p.m. July 21.

The missing phone was reported by a resident from the 47000-block of Elmsmere Drive in Northville.

PAST CURFEW: A Northville High School 11th grader was charged with a misdemeanor for violating curfew after police pulled her over for crossing the white line and veering onto the right shoulder of the road around 1:15 a.m. July 22.

An 18-year-old passenger in her car was charged with a misdemeanor for underage consumption of alcohol.

Both denied drinking after a police officer questioned the alcohol smell emanating from her car.

Sobriety tasks and breathalyzer tests proved that the 16-year-old driver hadn't been drinking, although her companion registered a .107 percent blood-alcohol ratio.

The driver was released to her parents and the passenger was jailed pending sobriety and payment of a $100 cash bond.

POSSESSED: A Livonia minor was charged with possession of alcohol after police found four bottles of cold beer on the passenger-side floor of her car around 1:30 a.m. July 24. She was also ticketed for rolling through the stop sign at Hines Drive and Seven Mile Road.

The 18-year-old registered .000 percent on a portable breathalyzer test. Nonetheless, she was arrested and transported to the Northville City Police Department for processing.

She faces a morning in court.

WARRANTED: A resident of Inn on the Main, 111 N. Center St., turned himself in to Northville City Police.

He was wanted for failing to appear for probation out of Redford Township, which he incurred by driving while impaired.

STOP SIGN: After running the stop sign at Seven Mile Road and Hines Drive at an estimated speed of 25 mph, a 41-year-old Lincoln Park woman was pulled over.

She was then arrested after failing to produce her driver's license. It had been suspended in Allen Park after she failed to pay a ticket.

MAILBOX BASHED: An unknown object inflicted an estimated $100 in damage to a metal and wooden mailbox on the 900-block of Whitegate Drive last week. There were no suspects or witnesses.

TOWNSHIP POLICE REPORTS

FORE! Township police on stationary patrol near the intersection of Six Mile and Sheldon Roads July 20 observed a vehicle traveling 65 mph in a 45 mph zone.

The incident occurred at around 11:30 p.m.

According to reports, officers pursued the speeding vehicle northbound on Sheldon and initiated a traffic stop.

The man, whose breath smelled of alcohol, told police he was on his way home from a golf outing earlier in the day, and "knew he was alright" because he'd paced his drinking during the day.

The golf outing started at 7:30 p.m., the man said.

Field sobriety tasks were asked of the man, and a breathalyzer test checked in at a .16 blood alcohol level.

The man was transported back to the township police station, where he asked that a blood sample be drawn from him. That request was withdrawn, however, when the man's attorney advised against doing so.

SCAMMERS: A 50-year-old man and 46-year-old woman, both from Clinton Township, hit the Northville Township Meijer July 21, continuing what police found was a string of scams at area Meijer locations.

According to reports, the pair operated the scam by having one person purchase a cartload of merchandise from the store, then hand the goods off to his or her partner for cash return, made possible with fraudulent receipts.

The Northville Meijer was hit when the man purchased a $120 garbage disposal unit, which was returned a few minutes later by the woman.

Police suspect the pair have 17 fraudulent slips, all bearing the same transaction number.

MASTERFRAUD: A 36-year-old East Fonger Court man told township police someone was apparently trying to use his name to obtain a credit card under false pretenses.

The man made the report to police July 23.

The man said representatives from MasterCard contacted him, inquiring about an application they had received that appeared suspect.

The man told the representative he had never applied for a credit card, and did not know the person who police suspected in making the application.

No card was issued to the suspect, who is believed to be a male from Detroit.

BAG IT: A $7 container of car wax and $3 key ring were confiscated by Meijer store security July 24 when a 32-year-old Taylor man was seen attempting to exit the store without paying for the items.

Store security told police they spotted the man returning items at around 6:30 a.m., July 24, but retained the bag used to carry the items into the store.

The man then placed the wax and key ring into the bag and left the store.

A dumpster sits in the parking lot of the Northville District Public Library (seen in the background) filled almost to overflow with books that the library has discarded.

All options exhausted, library pitches old books

Even prison had no use for Northville's most dated titles

By WENDY WHITE
Staff Writer

Friends of the Northville District Library jettisoned cart loads of books into the library's dumpster Wednesday, July 22.

It was an act disturbing to at least one resident who said, "I think that is just a crime to throw good books away."

But the librarians didn't want the tomes.

The Friends of the Northville District Library didn't want them.

They weren't even claimed by the Scott Correctional Facility where they were offered up for free.

"If they fail all the tests we throw them away," said library director Julie Herrin. "We try to do it when no one's watching because for some reason it drives them crazy."

Included in the discards were outdated textbooks and encyclopedias or books damaged beyond repair, she said.

"Some of them even had mouse droppings in them. Quite literally no one would want them," Herrin said. "We get cart loads every day in every imaginable condition, although everyone thinks they're the most wonderful books."

Some textbooks were so outdated, Herrin said the library couldn't sell them with a clear conscience.

"Letting them get into some hands we believe is just immoral. Medical texts from twenty years ago...what if someone believed it?" Herrin said.

Kathryn Stewart, a new member and first vice-president of the Friends of the District Library, said she dumped about eight boxes of books that were donated Saturday.

"They're donations from people who knew that we were having a used book sale and some of them were stored, I would say, improperly," Stewart said. "We request that people don't give us textbooks, magazines and condensed books but we still get that so we end up discarding those. If a textbook is more than five years old it's usually obsolete."

Stewart said the discards were a small percentage of the thousands of titles that came in throughout the year.

"These are not library books. They were never library books. They were personal belongings of people who donated them to the library," she said. "I feel like it's my responsibility, if the books are dirty, physically unclean, to get rid of them. Certainly if there's animal excrement on them I wouldn't feel good about cleaning them up and selling them. Books do become obsolete and they're not really saleable. You can't even give them away."

Friends member and past president Betty Griffin asked that people who wish to donate books consider the library's requests and avoid donating old textbooks, encyclopedias or moldy tomes.

"Since the Internet has replaced encyclopedias, we have every right to ask that encyclopedias not be given that are more than 10 years old. They're not useful," Griffin said, adding that some donations make the work of putting on the book sale more difficult.

"This is a back-breaking job. Books are very heavy. The fewer discards we have, the better it is."

Griffin also said the Friends do try to donate useful books when they can.

Their most recent donation was six cartons of books to an after-school tutoring program in Detroit called the Mercy Education Project.

"Some of them had mouse droppings on them. Quite literally, no one would want them."

Julie Herrin
director, Northville District Library

Maybury State Park announces full event schedule for August

By CHERYL VATCHER
Special for the Record

Maybury State Park's Karen Gourlay is presenting a fun-filled schedule at the park for the month of August.

Gourlay, who serves as the park interpreter, is responsible for taking the resources of the park and interpreting its usage for those who use the facilities.

"We will have a lot of programs focused around the farm," she said.

Programs at the park include those that are young and those that are young at heart.

"We have a senior stroll for senior citizens. The nature hike is located at the handicap access site which is on pavement. It is good for those who use walkers or ride scooters," she said.

The seniors usually are bused through the Senior Center in Northville. The hike will take place on Aug. 4 at 9 a.m. the hike takes approximately an hour to an hour and a half.

"This senior hike program was started two years ago by another park interpreter," she said.

She said that the hikes have been popular.

"Last month it rained. We usually have between a half-dozen and a dozen participants," she said.

In order for the park to offer these programs, they hire seasonal help for the summer months, according to Gourlay.

"During the year, we have school groups that visit us. The park is open year round," she said.

Maybury State Park will host a couple of busy weekend programs. For the second year, Garden Day will be offered on Aug. 22., from 2-4 p.m.

"We will set up activities for the kids to do. There will be crafts and learning stations. They can go through this on their own, and they will receive stickers to put on their passports that they'll receive," she said.

In this program, the children will learn about plants and gardens as well as the beneficial insects that are needed to keep plants and gardens healthy. Gardenviews is sponsoring the prizes for this activity. The children 12 and younger will be eligible for door prizes.

On Aug. 29, there will be a scarecrow workshop which requires advanced registration. The program starts at 2 p.m. and the park will supply the clothes and frames to make the scarecrows. This is the fifth year of the scarecrow workshop. All ages are welcome. Youngsters need to be accompanied by an adult.

"After the scarecrows are made, they will go up around our gardens and on the demonstration plots," she said.

These demonstration plots have wheat, rye, beans, and other crops to feed the animals on the farm.

Every Thursday evening, there is an informational program followed by a hike. On Aug. 6, the topic is Maybury History; on the 13th, Trees of Southeastern Michigan; and on the 20th, Bats. This program starts at 7 p.m. and meets at the farm Demonstration Building.

On Aug. 1, 8, and 15, a fishing program will be held from 7-9 p.m. A fishing license is required for those 17 years and older, Gourlay said.

Another educational program is called Birds of Prey, sponsored by the Bird Rescue of Huron Valley.

"They will bring birds that have been either injured or orphaned and show us how they have survived," she said.

This program will be offered toward the end of August.

The park is open from 8 a.m.-10 p.m. during the summer months. The farm is open until 5 p.m. For more information, call (248) 349-8390.

Committee mulls new recreation center

By CHRIS C. DAVIS
Staff Writer

A five-year projection of capital improvements to the Northville Parks & Recreation department said the department would like to either renovate the existing community center or building a new one.

But Traci Sincok, Recreation department director, said that whether voters say yes or no to a 6.34-mill ballot issue next month, a 20-member committee appointed to study a community center's feasibility will go on with their work.

"They're two separate issues," Sincok said.

The committee, which has been meeting twice monthly for the last few months, has been broken down into smaller groups and assigned to handle various elements of the project. Sincok said the committee took tours of community centers in Lapeer, Canton and Washtenaw County.

While all three centers toured were public, no two were paid for using the same method of financing, Sincok said.

Sincok said the committee was organized based on three main factors — the bullish economy and relatively low loan prices; recommendations outlined in the township's master plan (which indicated a desire to construct a recreation facility in the southern portion of the Northville community); and fairly solid support from residents polled, asking if they believed additional indoor recreational space was necessary.

Renovations of the existing Community Center, located at 303 West Main Street, carry an estimated price tag of $700,000, while new construction, the report said, will run around $7 million. Funding, Sincok said, could come from municipal general funds of the city or township, corporate grants, millages, donations and the Northville school district.

As for what might be in store at a new facility, Sincok said the answers are varied and plentiful.

"They sky's really the limit right now," she said. "It's everything from outdoor to indoor pools to skating rinks. We haven't sat down to start eliminating things yet. That will come later in the process."

Sincok said she had received word from Northville school district officials indicating a willingness to hand over up to 55,000 square feet of the existing Northville High School's recreational space in 2000. Those contributions, she said, could affect whatever design is developed for the project.

Sincok said the group plans on making a formal proposal before the township and Northville city leaders sometime around December.

The Community Recreation Center group meets every other Tuesday at 5 p.m. at the Northville Township Hall. All meetings are open to the public, and Sincok encouraged participation in the committee.

The committee will next meet this Tuesday at 5 p.m.

Mill Race Matters

With July coming to a close, we realize summer is hastily passing us by.

Before we let all the beauty of summer pass us by, pick up your camera and capture some of the beauty and history available at Mill Race Park.

Stroll along the paths and enjoy the beauty of the flowers.

During the week you can learn the history of the buildings by reading the storyboards near each of the buildings.

On Sundays the buildings are open and you can get a more detailed history from our docents.

Mill Race has enjoyed having Rob Sivy, a 1998 Northville High School graduate, on board this summer helping to maintain the appearance of the park.

It's blue-green and cherry for interior of new school

By WENDY WHITE
Staff Writer

The interior of the new Northville High School will be a study of blue-green, purple, terra cotta and cherry-stained wood.

Through a series of meetings, the high school's design team settled on the wall colors, flooring and structural fixtures for the new school, which is set to open on Six Mile Road between Sheldon and Beck Roads in the fall of 2000.

Led by interior design coordinator Diane Vandevrede, the design team chose four colors that will be used against a neutral background throughout the school.

Those colors, a light blue-green, purple, blue and terra cotta, will be stressed in different areas of the building.

For example, the cafeteria will be teal while the theater, music and performance areas will be purple. The pool and auditorium will feature blue and the gymnasiums will highlight terra cotta, a variation of orange consistent with the school's colors, orange and black.

Visitors through the main entrance of the future high school will enter a lobby with a vaulted cathedral ceiling. To their right, they will see the offices of administration while to their left will be the 1,000 seat theater and a hallway leading to the cafeteria and athletic wing.

Past the main office to the right will be a wide hallway leading to the academic wing classrooms. The hallway has been dubbed Main Street by the architectural firm Fanning/Howey Associates, Inc.

Main Street will be painted a neutral tone and will integrate all four of the school's featured colors in a confetti effect.

Banners of each color will also be woven through the exposed ceiling structure overhead, lit by clerestory windows.

"It'll be very festive and very colorful," Vandevrede said.

The flooring for Main Street has yet to be decided but options include porcelain tile, genuine linoleum or carpet.

In order to preserve an airy, open feeling, the design team opted not to install lockers down Main Street.

Instead, spruce green lockers will line the hallways of the academic wing. Blue-green was chosen for the study areas of the school to foster focus and calm.

The classrooms will feature blue-green carpet and the second-floor library will also feature the rich blue-green scheme.

"The media center is accented with green and apricot colors and the the walls will be white. There will be a significant amount of wood to step up the quality and richness of the space," Vandevrede said.

The wood, a red oak with a light cherry stain, will be used on the furnishings and perhaps the book stacks, Vandevrede said, although the furnishings will be decided upon later in the design process.

A stand-out feature meant to lead people into the library is a circular bulkhead built into the ceiling at the top of the open stairway outside the media center entrance. The dropped ceiling will continue into the library, with a mirrored pattern of contrasting color in the carpet.

In the academic wing, the pool will feature state-of-the-art non-slip floor tile.

Pull-out bleachers will say "NHS" while "Home of the Mustangs" will be inlaid in tile on one wall.

Banners and flags may be hung from the ceiling in front of a circular wall of glazed windows.

The Design Team also discussed having murals of mascots or swimmers painted on the walls of the pool area but will have to reconcile fitting them in with the necessary acoustic tiles.

Northville High School is Vandevrede's first school project since she began working with the firm Fanning/Howey but she said she has coordinated "dozens" of school designs with her former employer, TMP Associates.

"I wouldn't say it was elaborate because that sometimes has a bad connotation," Vandevrede said. "I would say it's state-of-the-art, incorporating the latest technology in order to foster a progressive learning environment for students."

The $54 million planned high school is in the first stages of land preparation.

It is to be funded by the $61.5 million bond issue passed by voters in June, 1997, along with renovation and construction projects at each district school building.

Already, projects at three elementary schools are more than $500,000 over-budget in total, but school board president Tom Gudritz said the high school is within budget so far.

"We're in really good shape in terms of the budget for the high school," Gudritz said, adding that it was too soon to tell how the interior plans would fit into the budget. "I haven't seen anything concrete in relation to costs. I think it's premature for me to comment."

Township board stalls MediaOne plans

By CHRIS C. DAVIS
Staff Writer

Representatives from cable television giant MediaOne learned earlier this month their wish to install phone lines in Northville Township wouldn't happen as quickly as had been planned.

On the advice of township attorney Jim Tamm, the township board voted to table the move until more investigation could be done into the financial soundness of the decision.

The arrangement would have given MediaOne the right to add phone lines as part of their broadband network. Mike Haverland, a representative from MediaOne, said the project was needed to keep pace with technology upgrades in the last few years, and was also part of MediaOne's plan to bring phone and cable service closer together.

A motion and a second were in place to establish the agreement between the township and MediaOne, when Tamm spoke up, saying he had problems with the arrangement.

Tamm said MediaOne's proposal would have allowed the company a free ride through the township's land.

"I would not recommend (the township) do this," Tamm said. "Media One is essentially trying to do this for free."

Tamm went on to say that other cable companies traditionally paid municipalities by the foot for the right to install cable equipment.

When asked, Haverland said that while other companies might give money to communities for the laying-in of phone lines, MediaOne did not. He further said the proposal would make Northville Township one of the first municipalities to have integrated phone lines with its cable service.

The added presence of MediaOne in Northville Township would give residents an option to Ameritech for local phone service, Haverland said.

Despite the project's hitting a bump, Haverland indicated he would cooperate with the board's wishes.

Here we go again

Supreme Court to mull Durant II

By WENDY WHITE
Staff Writer

Following in the footsteps of its big brother, the Durant II lawsuit was heard in the Michigan Supreme Court on Tuesday after being dismissed from the Michigan Court of Appeals.

The lawsuit alleges the state underfunded programs that it mandated, including special education and driver's training.

The original Durant suit alleged the same thing, and after a 17-year court battle, Northville was among more than 80 state school districts that received monetary damages.

On April 15, the state of Michigan cut a check for the Northville Public School District in the amount of $3.8 million.

But after the checks went out, the state allegedly continued to underfund the same programs.

Now, Northville is among 125 school districts that sued the state again.

The case was led by Bloomfield Hills attorney Dennis Pollard, who spent the last 17 years of his life on Durant I.

He said he doesn't expect it to take as long for the courts to come to a conclusion this time around.

"The Supreme Court said in the future they don't want these cases to be delayed and they were going to work with us to make sure that wouldn't happen," Pollard said. "We showed, based on the state's own data, they have underfunded schools statewide to the amount of $350 million for the 1997-98 fiscal year alone."

The 1998-99 fiscal year the underfunding will amount to $375-380 million.

But Pollard said the districts aren't seeking financial damages yet. They just want to force the state to budget the money to cover the special programs next year.

"What we're trying to do is get a declaratory ruling so that the legislature can react appropriately to either apply another $350 million in the next year or eliminate the mandate," Pollard said. "The local schools today have no choice. They have to provide these services."

But he said if the case ends up lasting a long time, the districts will try to recover lost funding.

"If this case becomes protracted we will seek damages," Pollard said. "We tried throughout the seventeen-eighteen years to try to end the case so the damages wouldn't keep accruing but the attorney general waltzed it around, and the courts as well."

Durant I went in front of the Michigan Supreme Court four times before it was decided.

"It's obscene that a case could take 17 years. We did everything we could to move it and we couldn't get the thing brought to fruition," Pollard said.

He said he expects it will be at least a month before the Supreme Court justices offer an opinion after hearing the Durant II case July 21.

Flaw delays grand opening of the new Novi Ice Arena

By JAN JEFFRES
Staff Writer

The Novi Ice Arena did not open as scheduled, due to a shifting in the front wall of the $8.5 million building.

A mid-August opening date is now anticipated, Terry Seyler, chief of Center Ice Inc., the management firm said.

Youth hockey camps scheduled for this summer with a Russian coach and figure skating classes were canceled.

Novi Parks and Recreation Director Dan Davis said the source of the movement in the wall is now being researched. The building was designed by Seyler and Jim Smith, architects with Arche-nomics

"We weren't satisfied with it. We wanted an opportunity to correct the wall," Davis said Tuesday.

"Through a regular inspection, we noticed it didn't look like it was straight up and down and there was a crack in the wall."

Soil borings were to be taken this week.

"Right now, we want to make sure the foundation didn't sink," Davis explained.

Research may show the problem came from the soil banked against the building, he added.

Corrections to the facility will not be the financial responsibility of the city, Davis said. The Ice Arena's funding came from the sale of revenue bonds, which are then to be paid back through profits made by the non-profit enterprise.

Once the course of the wall's movement is determined over the next few weeks, repairs will be made. The two-story structure is built into the ground.

However, prior to this, the construction was well ahead of schedule. When the project was let in September 1997, a completion date of 11 months was targeted.

"All the programs being offered in July were a bonus," Davis said.

"It's a little bit of a disappointment, but at the same time, nothing that can't be corrected."

Originally, plans called for a summer on ice, with youth hockey camps with coach Vladimir Barinov, open skating and the first enrollments in the Learn To Skate program. Refunds are expected to be sent to the parents of some 200 kids enrolled in the programs.

Both Novi and Northville high schools will have hockey teams based at the Novi/Ten Mile Road site.

Some of the Novi Youth Hockey travel teams had booked ice time at the new facility and alternative ice times are being sought for them at other area rinks.

While owned by the Novi Building Authority, overseeing the operations of the ice arena, including programming, is handled by the Community Clubs of Novi.

Community Clubs Trustee Thomas Kenney said they were informed last week that the facility's opening date would not be met due to the structural fault. The board knew about the problem, but the later opening date was "somewhat unexpected," he said.

But he said it's not anticipated that the August opening will impact upcoming fall programming, such as Novi Youth Hockey.

"There is no delay at this point, as far as I can see," Kenney added.

The Novi building features two National Hockey Association size, 17,000 square foot ice rinks. Interior work is continuing in the building.

The first layers of ice have already been poured over the sand base on the rinks and this week, the ice will be painted white overall and the blue and red lines for hockey will be drawn.

Sterling Heights man busted for OUIL

By WENDSY WHITE
Staff Writer

Just minutes after a group of special education students had arrived and entered Old Village School, their school bus was rear-ended by a drunk driver.

According to Northville police, it was 8:30 a.m. when a Ford Ranger pick-up drove left of center on Main Street and collided with the bus on July 20.

When police arrived to the scene, the 42-year-old driver from Sterling Heights told them he had been run off the road. He also said the bus had cut him off, even though it had been parked in front of Old Village the entire time.

"It's an unfortunate situation. We were lucky that the bus had already been deboarded and there weren't kids in the area. During the school year there could have been a lot more serious consequences," said Sergeant Jim Marks of the Northville City Police Department. "This type of driver is out there during the day as well as night."

Although the driver told police he hadn't been drinking, his blood alcohol registered .33 percent, or three times the legal limit.

"It's been years since I've had had results that high, even at night," Marks said. "That high in a person who didn't drink a lot, (he) would have been in a lot worse shape."

The driver of the vehicle was a land surveyor who worked for McNeely & Lincoln of Livonia and was driving a company car. A passenger in the vehicle at the time told police he didn't know his co-worker was under the influence of alcohol behind the wheel.

"We're currently investigating the accident," said Mike Dwyer, a spokesperson for the company.

No one was injured in the crash, but police said it sends a message that drivers should be on guard even in the morning.

Police urged motorists to call the police if they notice any unusual driving patterns.

"Cell phone holders have a big advantage. It's always a good idea to report that so we can get them off the road," Marks said.

After sobering up and paying a $100 bond, the driver was released from the Northville Township Police Department. He was charged with a misdemeanor that carries 90 days in jail or up to a $500 fine. His license may be suspended up to two years.

The driver had been arrested for and OUIL in 1993, and for driving while impaired in 1990

Northville neighborhood adopts 'Fluffy' the bird

"All the adults fed him, he was there for lawn darts, it was just hilarious," Rebecca Kruse said.

Fluffy often sleeps in a wreath on the Gerish family's front door and frequents the Tucker's swimming pool.

"I was in the pool and Fluffy landed on my head and the only way I could get him off was to go under water," said Brandon Stapp, a third-grader at Our Lady of Victory. "One time my dad was mowing the lawn and Fluffy was sitting between his hands getting a free ride all around the yard. He's just one crazy bird."

Lori Stapp said Fluffy also loves to perch on windowsills.

"He'll watch you through the glass as you move from room to room. He just wants to be petted. I think he thinks the neighbors are his true family."

But other neighbors don't think Fluffy's motives are so innocent.

Glen Kruse, for one, said he may be out for food alone.

The Kruses have been feeding him moistened bread supplemented lately with corn, peas and bugs. A new favorite of Fluffy's are country mashed potatoes.

"He eats anything except, like, a brick," said Bobby.

"Once he ate my finger," Brandon added.

Although Fluffy doesn't seem to recognize his name, he'll come to the sound of clapping hands. No one really knows what he does all day but every evening, if you stand outside, he'll coast in for a visit.

Since he lost his mother, the Kruses had to teach him how to fly, by tossing him into the air and shouting encouragement. Still, they sometimes feel like they've failed because he prefers to walk whenever he can.

That might just be because he's a tad overweight from all the attention.

"We just started talking to each other, 'Oh you feed him too? And you feed him too?'" Lori Stapp said. "We've come to find out he's very well fed."

The neighbors don't anticipate that Fluffy will move out of the subdivision anytime soon.

And it's just as well. He's done wonders to foster a community spirit in the subdivision of newly built homes.

"It's a nice story. Neighbors talk to each other because of a bird. He's our first real pet who's not really a pet," Rebecca Kruse said.

School start date enrages parents

of the 2,865 surveys mailed, were returned.

In 1995, a survey conducted by the Northville PTA Coordinating Council showed similar findings.

Mary Rupley, who was a member of the PTA when school superintendent Dr. Leonard Rezmierski asked the group to conduct the latest survey, said parents reported that the Christmas break and spring break were too long, while the mid-winter break was unnecessary.

"These mini-breaks are destructive. The days before the breaks, you know the kids are just goofing around, having parties. When they come back they just get readjusted to the schedule and there's another break. Quit chopping up the school year," Rupley said. "Michigan doesn't have good weather much of the year and we should be able to use what we have and that's in the summertime."

She said many parents agreed. "We were so heartened by the fact that Dr. Rezmierski asked us to conduct (the survey) but it's clear to me they didn't take any of the parents' concerns into consideration when they made the calendar," Rupley said. "I'm just totally disgusted. My husband and I have worked so hard in this district in so many ways. I think the calendar is one thing the parents can speak of. They understand it and it directly affects their lives."

The calendar and start date weren't announced until contract negotiations between the Northville Education Association and school administrators were tentatively settled July 21.

"To wait to release the information that we're starting in a month is just unconscionable," Rupley said.

The Rupley family has rented a cottage in Frankfurt at the end of August for the last eleven years. The start date infringes on their trip this year, but she said she hasn't yet canceled it.

"We've never started this early. Never. I can't even think straight because of this. It's so irritating and it's opposite to what the parents said. Opposite."

But Roy Danley, the director of personnel for the district who represented the administration during negotiations, said the start date has hardly changed.

"It's not moved up. If you look at last year and the year before that it's the same calendar. Labor Day is very late this year," Danley said.

In the 1995-96 school year, students returned to class on August 28. In 1996-97, the start date was August 26.

"It's within one to two days every year for the past, probably six or seven years. I think the discrepancy is people looking at Labor Day that late and that we started the week before Labor Day in the past and assuming that would occur again," Danley said. "It's basically the same identical calendar the district has had for the past six years, maybe longer."

Although the NEA and administrators settled on a three year contract, they only planned the calendar for the next two years, because they anticipate changes in state calendar requirements.

For the 1999-2000 school year, Northville is required to add a staff development day. The start date is set for August 23 that year.

By the year 2000-2001, the state will require all school districts in Michigan to add 51 hours of student instruction to the calendar, which will amount to approximately six more days.

By 2006-2007, the state will require 190 days a year up from 182 currently, plus additional hours within those days.

As the days are added, Danley said the district will have to make significant changes to the calendar.

At that time internal breaks may be reduced.

"We'll soon be to a position where the traditional breaks will be drastically modified from what they are now," Danley said. "The eventual goal that the governor has announced is to have 210 days a year, which approaches what the Japanese and some of the European schools offer. I can understand how people want to start after Labor Day but they don't want to go until the end of June. Where do you make it up?"

Both sides must approve the three year contract before it becomes final. The NEA is tentatively set to vote on it August 19 and the school board will vote after that, most likely at the August 25 meeting of the board of education, according to Danley.

Danley said he doesn't anticipate any changes.

OPINION

We recommend 'Yes' vote for township millage plan

Should voters renew the public safety millage and add enhancement funds? Should voters support additional funding for shared services — Parks and Recreation, Senior Citizens programs, and Northville Youth Assistance? Should voters approve funding for land acquisition and development of parks?

Voters are being asked these fundamental questions as they ponder the merits of the township's eight-year, 6.34-mill ballot proposal, which will be decided at the polls Aug. 4.

We believe the answer to all of those questions is YES, but not without some qualifications. The township's recently enacted Special Assessment District should not be expanded into already developed areas — essentially taxing residents twice for the same level of service.

Nor should the proceeds from this millage request be used to construct a lavish new community center, which is currently being studied by a committee organized by township officials.

What will taxpayers receive for the additional funding? Well the lion's share of the tax increase would go towards public safety (police and fire). The department's request for additional funding is essentially a reflection of a growing population. The fire department, which has had to tangle with two major fires within the last year, is using fire fighting equipment that is 30-plus-years-old — well beyond the recommended lifespan. Because of the increase in fire and emergency runs the department also needs to aggressively hire new firefighters.

The Police department has seen an overall increase in activity, putting strains on the department's ability to keep patrol officers on the street.

We believe and increase in funding for public safety makes perfect sense if we want to maintain the level of service currently provided by our police and fire departments.

Next are the shared services. We begin with Parks and Recreation, and although the services provided by this department are not considered essential, they do improve the quality of our lives and are considered important in maintaining the character of our community.

We believe the Parks and Recreation Department has issued a fair request. Along with the addition of programming, the department is requesting three-quarters of 1 mill for four years to fund park land acquisition and development. We believe the acquisition of park land is important if this community is serious about improving the quality of life for residents for years to come.

Improvements to Senior citizens programs are also part of the shared services question. The department would like to improve the quality of service to his growing membership and we believe that the small funding request would do wonders for the department and would improve the quality of lives for all senior citizens in our community.

Last but not least is Northville Youth Assistance. This shared services seems to reaching out to more troubled teens each year, and if city and township residents are indeed serious about supporting programs that offer assistance to these youths, than NYA's funding request should be approved without thought.

In the final analysis, Northville Township taxpayers are faced with a decision about where their priorities lie. Is it important for the township to continue to improve and provide better services for current and future residents? If so, the vote must be YES on Aug. 4.

We endorse McCotter, Poenisch, Law, Bullard

There may be three seasoned politicians vying for voter approval in the Republican primary for the Ninth District senate seat, but only one stands out as the best person to represent Northville city and township — Thaddeus McCotter.

Opposing McCotter for the Republican nomination Aug. 4 are Deborah Whyman, a state representative who has met her term limit, and Jim Ryan, state representative looking to move to a senate seat.

McCotter, a Livonia resident who has represented the city and township as a Wayne County Commissioner, is known around here as a competent legislator who often finds himself in the minority on county issues.

On the Democratic side Northville's Carol Poenisch and Marc Susselman are vying for the senate seat.

Because she is willing to voice her opinion on issues that concern our communities Carol Poenisch gets our endorsement.

Poenisch also believes thoughtful development will protect land and save the beauty of natural resources. She opposes closing Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital, supports merging probate and circuit courts, believes young offenders of violent crime should be tried as adults, and supports qualifications for persons wishing to carry concealed weapons.

Voters living in Northville Township and Wayne County Northville will choose between incumbent Gerald Law and Plymouth Township Trustee K.C. Mueller in balloting for the 20th District House seat.

We're encouraging voters to select Gerald Law at the polls Aug. 4.

He has been extremely responsive to the needs of our communities in the areas of education, tax reform, and roads. He has also been an advocate for the Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital.

He supports building juvenile prison for young offenders of violent crime, does not support school vouchers, supports requiring uniformity among all county gun boards, and supports merger of probate and circuit courts.

Our endorsement for the 15th Senate District comes with a qualification.

We're again urging voters to select Willis Bullard at the polls Aug. 4.

Bullard faces current state Representative Barbara Dobb in the Republican primary.

As was the case two years ago Bullard has more experience than Dobb. But his attacks on the state's Freedom of Information Act casts a pall on his first term senate record.

Barbara Dobb is a lukewarm legislator at best, and her views on issues seem somewhat vague. Just as in her last attempt to secure the approval of voters for this senate seat, Dobb does not display the real leadership qualities or experience voters are looking for.

Bullard, however, does possess the experience and leadership qualities the communities of the 15th senate district need. Voters would be best served by selecting Willis Bullard as the Republican nominee for the 15th District Senate seat Aug. 4.

We shouldn't shoot the messenger

Boy, am I glad I'm not in Dave Bolitho's shoes right now.

Bolitho, the assistant superintendent for administrative services for Northville Public Schools, has the unenviable task of managing all of the construction projects funded by last year's $61.5 million bond initiative.

The projects number close to 100, including the construction of the new Northville High School, but for Bolitho, juggling that many projects at once may not necessarily be the hard part.

You see, Dave only has $61.5 million to spend and just weeks after the ceremonial ground breaking at the new high school site, it looks as if that amount isn't going to be enough to complete the many other projects on his list.

So as the bids for work come in, Bolitho has had to break the bad news to school board members. Last week he told the board that construction and renovation projects at three elementary schools are already seriously over-budget.

Down the list he went — Air conditioning at Moraine Elementary School is $411,000 over budget; the addition of six classrooms at Silver Springs Elementary School is $150,000 to $200,000 over budget; and projects at Amerman Elementary School are $135,000 over-budget as well.

The solution, Bolitho explained, would be to use almost half of the portion of the district's $3.8 million Durant windfall.

And remember, the district hasn't even begun construction for the new high school.

In fairness to Dave, we need to look back about a year ago. The school board, still smarting over the defeat of the first bond initiative, decided to bring the proposal back to the voters. Even though some time had passed from the first election, board members chose, against conventional wisdom, to keep the request at the initial funding level — $61.5 million.

"The board consciously decided not to raise the $61.5 million any higher when it went to the vote a second time. If we would have raised it the 6 percent it would have netted us $3 million more," Bolitho said. "We knew it would be tight."

Tight indeed. With that in mind, it should come as no surprise to board members that the cost of construction in today's dollars is a bit higher. Following that logic, one could surmise that $61.5 million will not fund everything on the list.

Enter the Durant settlement. Now, I can appreciate that board members would like to keep some of this money around for awhile. I can also understand that other programs could flourish if some of the Durant proceeds were used.

Heck — I can even appreciate the board's desire to increase the fund balance.

But the fact of the matter is, unless they use the Durant proceeds, some of the bond projects that were promised voters could fall by the wayside.

And that is unacceptable.

But it is also unacceptable to grill Bolitho for the heavy cost overruns. Bidding small projects in today's market is very expensive because with so much construction going on in the metro-Detroit area, most contractors already have more than enough projects.

The contractors who don't have much work, subsequently, can bid much higher knowing the school district needs to get the work done, and done quickly.

It's a simple concept we all learned in our high school economics class — the law of supply and demand.

There is hope, however. Bolitho said the high school project has brought in bids that are under what the district budgeted for because the multi-million dollar, long-term project is more attractive to contractors.

That could mean that the $61.5 million target is still attainable.

Granted, the chance is slight, and I can understand board trustee Dick Brown's concern. It would be nice to use some of the Durant money on other things. But in the final analysis, it may be the Durant money that saves the day.

Whatever the case, the board needs to live with the decision it made more than a year ago.

And as for Dave, well board members need to remember that he's only delivering the message, and despite how bitter it may taste, there's not a lot he's going to be able to do about it.

Should you accept this assignment...

If you've ever watched the old "Mission Impossible" series on television, you're familiar with the line — "Your assignment, should you choose to accept it is ..."

Well, it doesn't always work that way here at the newspaper. Managing Editor Mike Malott says something like "I think this would be a great assignment, Carol, I've been wanting somebody to do this story for quite a while" i.e. I won't take no for an answer, now get right on it.

So one Tuesday morning I hung out with Novi's road repair crew for an upcoming story.

I don't think I would have come up with this story, but it turns out it was a good idea.

I learned a few things I didn't know about, such as why it only looks like there's more guys not working, or hardly working, than working.

I'd been with the crack seal crew for almost an hour and had just inquired about the pipe wrapping on the rubberized compound applicator when a few minutes later, the pipe sprung a leak.

As a puddle of hot compound began to build up on the road, the guys grabbed some boxes to contain the mess.

This problem would mean shutting down for the day until a new hose could be purchased. In the meantime, the crew foreman Tim Wright thought they would head back to the garage and tackle some equipment maintenance.

Carol Dipple

A 90 degree day and they had to cut it short. Gee guys, I hope I didn't jinx it for you.

Hoping for another breakdown, they invited me back. Really, guys, it was just a coincidence.

Another assignment this year involved hanging out with a young pathology assistant at the Wayne County Medical Examiners Office. This one came across my desk so I pursued it.

I'm not sure I knew what to expect but I thought going down to Detroit's morgue and learning about a pathology assistant's job would be pretty interesting. I made all the arrangements and was told our photographer John Heider could take all the photos he wanted.

A similar type of thing happened that day too.

As soon as the medical examiner heard that a news crew was in the morgue, he came down to give us instructions on what types of photos were acceptable to use in our newspaper, and which were not.

It was also such a slow day the employees told me I could come back anytime, thinking maybe I had something to do with their light work load. Once again, I didn't have anything to do with it. A slow day is good for statistics though.

You never know where I may turn up next.

If you've seen something going on around town that you've been wondering about, give me a call. Maybe it's a story others would like to read about too.

If you are in an interesting line of work that you think other readers would like to hear about, call me about that too.

I make no guarantees about being able to get you off work early or being able to telepathically cause equipment malfunctions.

August isn't the time to hold elections

"Sec. 534. A general primary of all political parties ... shall be held in every election precinct in this state on the Tuesday after the first Monday in August before every general November election. ..."

So speaks the electoral law of the State of Michigan. And, to quote Charles Dickens in Oliver Twist, "If the law supposes that, ... the law is an ass. ..."

Certainly, anybody contemplating the primary election next Tuesday must wonder just why we in Michigan have chosen to place this significant voting day in early August. Kids are out of school, often in camp or making things tough at home for parents. Parents, in turn, are either on vacation or wishing they were. The weather is hot, often humid. The sweet corn is coming in, or else the season would have nothing whatsoever to recommend it.

But as a season to prick up the public conscience and spark voter interest? Well ... forget it. That's why voter turnout is so low.

It turns out we have held our primary elections in early August at least since 1954, when the major state laws on elections were codified. It's no secret that August is a lousy time to hold primary elections. So how come we continue to do it?

Because it's in the interests of determined, organized interest groups, which have learned that the dog days of August are wonderful times to turn out the motivated faithful minority at times of general public political boredom and so achieve disproportionate influence on the public political life of our state.

In the old days, it used to be the solid business constituency represented by the Michigan Chamber of Commerce. Then organized labor, especially the UAW, discovered that the rank and file could be turned out in early August, especially as plants were often shut down for model changeover. School folks, both administrators and teachers unions, discovered the same thing, only to be joined in recent years by the Christian right wing, ever vigilant.

Put all these together, and there is no way this particular law is going to get changed, no matter how sensible it would be to hold primary elections in May or September.

This recital is of particular concern to the three Democratic candidates for governor who face the judgment of the voters next Tuesday. The subtle, complex dynamics of voter turnout in August primary election time will likely determine the result.

Geoffrey Fieger, who earned early notoriety by being Jack Kevorkian's lawyer, has been the surprise of the campaign. His bombastic rhetoric ("sniveling weasel," "barnyard mis-cegenation") has succeeded in cutting through the general boredom, to the point that he has partially succeeded in making his opponents look like Tweedle Dum and Tweedle Dee.

The problem for Fieger, who hopes to get substantial support in Detroit, is that the electorate in that city is preoccupied with the contest over gambling casino licenses between Mayor Dennis Archer and businessman Don Barden. That struggle has to do with serious things - turf, power - which have nothing to do with the trivial matter of who will face Gov. John Engler in November.

Larry Owen, the designated front runner by virtue of locking up the most endorsements of party and organized labor grandees, has only one problem. The UAW leadership - understandably - is much, much more interested in the strike against General Motors than it is in turning out the faithful for Owen's electoral success.

Only Doug Ross, who has been struggling to propose new ideas in earnest attempt to break through the prevailing media presumption that there is nothing going on in this campaign, has developed a constituency that is not heavily cross-cut by turf wars.

We shall see.

In any case, please do vote. Especially in August primaries, one vote can make a big, big difference.

Lawsuit a needless waste of time, money

As is now well known, Northville Township and approximately 26 of its residents made the unfortunate decision to sue Northville Public Schools over the construction of its new high school.

Northville Public Schools believes it is important for the public to understand the events which preceded the filing of this suit, the present status of this dispute, and the district's plans for proceeding with construction.

On June 9, 1997, voters approved the sale of $61.5 million in bonds by the district to pay for infrastructure and technology improvements. Approximately $48 million was earmarked for the construction of a new high school on land already owned by the district.

On June 23, 1997, the board of education authorized the formation of a high school design team comprised of staff, students, parents and community members, to insure all interested persons were given an opportunity to assist in designing the new high-school building and site.

Membership on the design team was open to all members of the community and was publicized in the local media and school newsletters. A total of 87 people took advantage of this opportunity.

The design team worked with the district's architect and construction manager, over several months and 21 meetings, to design the building and site requirements presented in the bond application and approved by the state Department of Treasury. The design team's schematic design recommendation was approved by the board on Sept. 8, 1997. On March 9, 1998, the board approved the design team's design development phase report.

Over the last several months, the district has received several communications from Northville Township and certain township residents either requesting or demanding that the new high school building and site be changed. In response, the district informed the township of a Michigan statute which provides that the state superintendent of schools "...has sole and exclusive jurisdiction over the review and approval of plans and specifications for the construction, reconstruction, or remodeling of school buildings used for instructional or non-instructional school purposes and of site plans for those school buildings."

Leonard Rezmierski

In spite of this clear state law, township officials continued to demand that the district change its new high school site plan. The district and its experts spent countless hours attempting to satisfy these demands and, in fact, voluntarily made numerous changes to the site plan in the spirit of being good neighbors. In all cases, the district has met or exceeded all ordinances that relate to safety issues. The district refused, however, to make changes to the site plan which would (a) fundamentally affect the educational program offered to students or (b) in any way delay construction of the new high school.

Unfortunately, the township and some of its residents decided to sue the district in Wayne County Circuit Court and asked Judge Kathleen MacDonald to prevent the district from beginning construction on the new high school until township zoning ordinances were satisfied. On June 11, 1998, Judge MacDonald denied the township's request for a preliminary injunction, agreeing with the district's position that the above state statute clearly exempted the district from having to comply with township zoning ordinances.

In making her ruling, Judge MacDonald specifically stated that she did not believe it was likely the township was going to succeed on the merits of its lawsuit.

The practical effect of Judge MacDonald's ruling is that the district may proceed with construction of the new high school. This is important because the need for a new facility, along with steadily rising construction costs, has put great pressure on the district to complete the new high school on schedule and within budget.

Any further delays will ultimately cause the new high school to be diminished in size and features, thereby permanently reducing the scope and quality of educational programs offered to students.

As an educational institution which seeks to have its graduates become "world class citizens," the district strives to conduct its affairs in an open, honest, and responsible manner which it believes is demanded by the citizens of this community.

The district believes it has acted in the best interests of the entire community throughout all of the foregoing events and will continue to do so after the new high school is opened in the Fall 2000.

To date, the district has spent over $29,000 defending this action; funds which otherwise would have been available to provide educational opportunities for students.

This amount will increase needlessly if the township and residents continue to pursue the lawsuit. In light of the recent announcement by the Michigan Township Association of their intent to join this lawsuit and to contribute funds to Northville Township for legal fees, it appears this suit will cost Northville School District even more.

It is time for the parties to put this matter behind them, and return to the business of making Northville both a community and a school district of which we all can be proud.

Dr. Leonard R. Rezmierski is the superintendent of Northville Public Schools.

Letters to the Editor

Letter writer questions new school schedule

To the editor:

I was reading two articles in last week's Northville Record when a solution suddenly came to me. Perhaps if there wasn't a whole week off before next Christmas and perhaps if there wasn't a full week of February winter break, school wouldn't need to start three weeks into August (with a scant four weeks notice, no less) and wouldn't need to end halfway into June.

Perhaps then the school system wouldn't be hundreds of thousands of dollars over budget (and considering dipping into other funds) for air conditioning that wouldn't be needed.

Please, no more strip malls

To the editor:

Just a short note to lodge my protest voice (however small) against the development of yet another strip mall/shopping center/grocery store at Eight Mile and Beck. Whether local residents realize it or not, it is sure to both make surrounding residential property values plummet, and crime, noise, and vandalism rise. Here's hoping the Novi Planning Commission will show some common sense and restraint on this one, and ash can the developer's petition.

Art in the sun was excellent

To the editor:

On behalf of our company, Community Stained Glass Inc., I would like to express our appreciation to the Northville Chamber of Commerce for sponsoring the Art In The Sun art and craft show held on June 20 and 21, and to all the businesses and residents who helped make it a success.

Our impression of the show can be expressed in just one word: "excellent." The organization was in place, the setup was flawless, the volunteers answered our questions quickly, the people came to buy our art, and the weather was perfect.

Thank you to all who made this show a success for downtown Northville. We look forward to participating in next year's show.

Police news helps parent recover bike

To the editor:

We wish to take a moment and say "Thank You" for the police report feature in your newspaper. Several weeks ago, while at driver's training, our son had his Mon-goose bicycle stolen from the high school.

Before we had a chance to make a police report, your newspaper included a paragraph in the July 16 edition about a Mon-goose bicycle that had been found in the bushes near Cooke Middle School.

When we provided the description of the bike to the Northville Police, they immediately had us follow them to the DPW yard, where our grateful son could retrieve the bike he had purchased with his own money just the year before.

We attempted to obtain the wonderful lady's name and address who had called the police and reported the bike, but she wishes to remain anonymous.

So, we would like to publicly say thank you to her and The Northville Record for assisting us in locating our son's bike.

THURSDAY
July 30, 1998

Crew members like Marc Tolsdorf go through one pair of work boots each summer because of the intense heat of both the torch and applicator used in the hot patch road repair. Right: Bob West uses the torch to remove old tar, debris, and moisture from cracks that have formed in the road surface.

ROAD WARRIORS

Crew leader Tim Wright, right, puts the hot tar applicator hose into a box to contain the spill caused by the hose springing a leak, that stalled the patching efforts for morning.

They work outdoors during the hottest days of the year with equipment and materials that generate thousands of degrees of heat and can literally melt the soles off their boots as they wage war against cracks and potholes.

They're the City of Novi's road repair crew.

Left: Bob West is required to wear a protective vest and boots; safety vest, glasses and ear muffs; and long sleeve shirt and pants when working the torch which has an exhaust gas of 2,200 degrees. Above: Marc Tolsdorf works the applicator on a road behind Novi's West Oaks Mall to apply the rubberized compound which is 370 degrees.

nice part about it," West said.

West, who lives in Wixom, has done road repair work in previous summers for the City of Wixom, but never on a Novi crew. He plans on going to Oakland University in the fall.

Sitting in the truck is no picnic. There is no air conditioning. The trucks are constantly overheating because they have to be kept running.

"With the temperature up you're not getting enough airflow through the radiator to cool the system down properly," Wright said. "We've had a lot of problems with overheating this year."

Sometimes the guys have to take off their boots while in the truck to hasten their cooling time.

"If you are real careful you can make (the boots) last one summer," Wright said. "They summer has been the hottest on record. Some employees may be thankful they have jobs which keep them in an air conditioned building. Then there's a road repair crew in Novi that says one of the perks of the job is working outdoors.

Of course, they operate equipment that can melt skin instantly. Their boots literally fall apart. Motorists sometimes drive by shouting obscenities.

Welcome to a day in the life of a City of Novi Department of Public Works road repair crew.

The repair crew was using a hot rubberized compound to seal cracks in a stretch of road behind West Oaks Mall in mid-July.

Combine the record-breaking temperatures with equipment that generates even more heat and you have a crew of seven men who, out of necessity, switch assignments about every hour to hour and a half.

When you see a crew member sitting in a pickup truck, you may think, "What a cushy job." But he may have just finished a shift on the torch or applicator equipment. The guy holding the stop sign or waving the directional flag has not been doing that all day. He also takes turns on the torch and applicator.

Starting pay is $7.50 an hour for seasonal workers with returning college students earning $8.

The road repair foreman, Mike Deaton, periodically drives to the site.

"He handles all work assignments and keeps track of the crews," said Craig Smith, DPW superintendent.

Tim Wright, the crew leader, is on the site at all times.

The day begins as the crew checks in at 6 a.m. to start up the double boiler machine which heats the rubberized compound. It takes one and a half hours to get the machine up to operating temperature. Boxes totaling about 1,000 pounds of rubberized compound which will be used throughout the day are loaded into the truck. About 200 pounds of propane is required each day to power both the torch and applicator machines.

The crew heads out to the road at 7:30 a.m. and works until 2:30 or 3:30 p.m. depending on the weather.

The maintenance program of applying the hot patch follows the pavement improvement program where patches of concrete have been cut out and replaced.

"I like to follow behind that pavement improvement program with these guys, they seal up the pavement good," Smith said.

Certain roads are targeted each year and Smith says to go through the entire city takes between three and four years.

Bob West was working the torch, which puts out between 375,000 to 400,000 BTUs. The exhaust gas is 2,200 degrees.

West wore the required ear muffs, safety glasses, hat, safety vest, long sleeve shirt and pants, and protective boots.

"For this crew, that's about the nastiest because of the heat by your feet," Wright said.

The torch blows all the debris and moisture out of the cracks to be sealed, sometimes embedding it into the operator's work boots.

West alternates with the driver of the pickup truck who is pulling the torch's generator at a snail's pace. The hotter the day, the more often they switch.

"Just being outside is what I like. I like doing different stuff every day, that is the

Beautiful day for a walk

There was not a drop of rain in sight when the Country Garden Club of Northville hosted their annual Garden Tour on July 15. Plenty of water was on hand though for about 700 visitors who toured seven gardens, as well as those at Mill Race Village, where they sipped lemonade and ice tea, ate plates of cookies, and viewed the wares of vendors. Monies raised from the Garden Tour help support the club's projects.

Winners announced in Brickscape's rose contest

First place winner of the "Rose by Any Other Name" story contest sponsored by Brickscape Gardens was Mary Ann Schuckel, who won a rose trellis and a Jackson & Perkins climbing rose at a combined value of $100.

Schuckel cut the contest article out of the paper, got the list of 115 rose names from Brickscape and took them to work at Anchor Laminat in Bellaire. Schuckel, a cost accountant, took only 15 minutes to write her story. She encouraged co-worker Dawn Hurd to enter the contest also and she turned out to be the second place winner - Corona pruning shears valued at $35.

Mary Ann Wade of Farmington Hills won third place in the contest, which kicked off at Brickscape's Rose Fest '98 on Mother's Day and ran throughout May 31. Wade won a pair of thorn resistant rose gloves worth $20.

Winners were announced by the chief judge of the contest, Carol Dipple, feature editor of The Northville Record and The Novi News, and Brickscape Gardens owner Joe DiRado.

Brickscape provided a list of 115 registered rose names, any of which could be used to "Write a captivating short story of 100 words or less, capitalizing the rose names."

Brickscape Gardens specializes in first quality Jackson & Perkins roses.

Schuckel's following rose story won first place:

ABRAHAM DARBY was sitting in the TROPICANA'S VODOO lounge listening to the INK SPOTS sing SWEET SURRENDER for their GRAND FINALE when EVELYN strolled by in a FRAGRANT CLOUD of FRENCH PERFUME. He downed his glass of WHITE LIGHTNING then crossed the WHITE FLOWER CARPET to the side of the RAVEN-haired beauty. With a TOUCH OF CLASS he took her BLACK GARNET ringed wrist as he BREATHLESSLY asked the TIMELESS question, "Will you HONOR my request for this dance?" She closed her eyes and inhaled his ALLSPICE cologne as the rays of the WHITE DAWN streaked across the sky.

Crew cranks out the heat during hot patch road repair

hose. "You learn to keep it away from your leg," Wright said. "Even if you try your hardest to keep it away from your feet, your feet get really hot," said Wright. "It gets so hot it burns the soles off your shoes."

The torch and applicator crews also alternate every other day.

"For as long as we've been doing it I'd say we have an excellent safety record as far as injuries, being burned," Wright said.

It takes about 20 to 30 minutes for the compound to set up enough so that vehicles can drive over it. That's why the street may still be closed off a block away from where the torch and applicator guys are working. The hotter it is outside, the longer the compound takes to cool down.

When it is 85 degrees outside it takes about an hour to cool down.

"If a car drove over this right now it would peel the whole thing up and it would just wrap around the tire," Wright said of recently applied compound.

It is slow, tiresome work.

One or two miles of two-lane road that just has linear cracks will take about one day to complete. In about three hours, the crew was able to patch less than a one block stretch of road behind West Oaks Mall because of its deteriorating condition.

"When the road begins to look like it has more patch than road, it's time to redo the road," Wright said.

Being a sign guy means putting up with obscenities from motorists.

"The motorist public is the worst," Wright said. "It's like it's a big inconvenience with us. I guess that goes with everybody."

Rich Kendra has heard his share of profanities while doing the sign detail.

"We're not allowed to say anything, if somebody yells at us we just smile and bear it," said Kendra, a 1993 graduate of Novi High School. Kendra has worked as a seasonal employee of Novi's DPW for five summers to put himself through college in two in lawn cutting and three in road repair. He returns to Michigan State University in the fall for his final semester of studies for a degree in electrical engineering.

Motorists slowing down in a temporary moving road work area.

according to Wright.

"We get people flying by us at 40 and 50 miles an hour," he said. "You have to be pretty conscious about what's going on around you. You have to have eyes all the way around your head."

The road repair crew began its work this year right after Memorial Day. The road temperature has to be at least 45 degrees for the compound to properly cure. The ideal temperature for the compound to set is 80 to 85 degrees. In the afternoon, once the temperature gets to between 85 and 90, especially with high humidity, the crew can't work because the compound won't set.

"We'll just pack it up and look for something else to fill in for the rest of the day, which is mainly just maintenance on the machines," Wright said.

If it rains, the torch guy would have to blow out all the cracks again. If they put the hot patch in a crack which has any moisture, as soon as the compound cools off, it would peel right out of the crack.

The guys don't take a lunch break. If it's getting around lunch time, they begin taking shorter shifts on the applicator and torch so they can sit in the truck and eat and keep right on moving.

The road repair crew work four, 10-hour days so that they can have three day weekends.

"It's kind of like an incentive to come out and do this," Wright said.

Even after the last of the compound is down, the crew will still have to wait for the most recently applied compound to cool before they can open the street up to traffic.

"To the public they don't understand the operation," Wright said. "We have to stand here. We can't just open it up to traffic."

The crew is used to one or two minor breakdowns per summer.

About 11 a.m., only a few hours into their day, the applicator hose sprung a leak mainly from continually rubbing against the road. There were no extra hoses at the DPW facility on Delwail Drive in Novi so a crew member would have to go buy one. Hoses usually last two years and cost about $600.

"This is major enough that it shuts the whole job down," Wright said.

Provided they can get the parts and put them on in the afternoon, they were hoping to get back out on the road the next day. An air compressor had broken down about three weeks ago so the crew had resorted to renting a compressor.

After the day is done, the crew tries to scrape compound off the machine and blow out the hose as much as possible so that it doesn't get clogged up once the compound cools.

"Needless to say you don't wear your work boots in the house," Wright said of the compound they find on the soles of their boots at the end of the day.

Youth will present 'Cinderella' with a twist

The Novi Theatres concludes its seventh season with "Cinderella" on July 31 and Aug. 1 and 2.

Those looking for the usual 'Cinderella' story won't be disappointed in this original adaptation of the favorite fairy tale about a mistreated young girl who meets her Prince at the Ball.

They are all there - Cinderella (Lauren Oates), The Evil Step Mother (Lindsay Anan), the Two Step Sisters (Amy Stanis and Katie Hoeg), The King (Kyle Shull), the Queen (Katie Johnson) and even the mice.

It is in the search for the woman to fit the slipper that the story takes a turn.

Prince Hubert (Kirk Jones), his servant Simon (Nate Mitchell) and the footman (Josh Glomb) travel through the entire second act knocking on door after door.

The opening of each door reveals a different fairy tale - there is Bo Peep and big Sammy (The Lambie), Baby Bear and his babysitter Goldilocks, Miss Muffet who now lives with Chuckie (a spider) and Snow White and the seven dwarfs, just to name a few.

Set Designer is Timothy Amrhein of the Hilberry Theatre. Costume Designer is Shelley Dzwonkowski and Mark Magni is the Lighting

'Negotiator' reunites Spacey, Jackson

Police choppers circle the 20th floor of the Chicago Internal Affairs Division's downtown headquarters. SWAT marksmen stand ready on nearby rooftops, their high-powered weapons targeted on Danny Roman (Samuel L. Jackson), who is holding the chief of the I.A.D. and his staff at gunpoint.

Roman's desperate gambit has been triggered by an equally desperate situation: his world has been destroyed by false charges of murder and embezzlement brought against him. Roman knows that people listen when lives are at stake; he knows that he has a chance to prove his innocence if he can just buy a little time—time that he urgently needs to find out who's behind the frame-up.

He understands all of this implicitly—because Danny Roman is a Chicago Police officer—and the best hostage negotiator in the department.

But right now, Roman is a hostage-taker—and he needs someone who will listen to him. So he asks that Chris Sabian (Kevin Spacey), a respected negotiator from another precinct, be brought in to mediate. The cool, cerebral Sabian squares off with, is formidable and furious opponent, a man he knows only by reputation, as he attempts to understand and defuse the explosive situation.

Although he begins his task convinced that Roman has had a complete breakdown, Sabian starts to wonder whether this hostage-taker is indeed a man gone mad or, instead, what Roman claims to be—an honest cop who must break the law to find justice for himself. Ultimately, Sabian is driven to answer the same questions that are obsessing Danny Roman. Who's behind the frameup? And where does Roman fit into the scheme?

Bringing "The Negotiator" to the screen was a labor of love for producer David Hoberman since the idea was first presented to him by executive producers Robert Stone and Webster Stone, two brothers who find true stories suitable for adaption into books, films and television programs.

"Their idea was based on an actual event that took place in St. Louis," says Hoberman. "The best hostage negotiator in St. Louis alleged he was framed by people within the police department and ended up taking hostages to smoke out the people he said were the real culprits. And the only guy he felt he could trust was a stranger, so he called in the second-best hostage negotiator in St. Louis to work with him."

What so attracted Hoberman to the project was the story's inherent contradiction of "somebody who epitomizes the law having the break the law in order to prove his innocence; a police officer who commits a crime to prove that he didn't commit the crime they're saying he did. I always thought that was a really interesting premise and moral dilemma."

The prospect of playing opposite Kevin Spacey was a big part of what excited Samuel L. Jackson about the project. "I'd read the script and really respond to the role of Danny Roman, but when the combination of Kevin and myself was presented to me I just broke out into a big smile," says Jackson.

"Sam and I have known each other for more than 18 years," says Kevin Spacey. "I used to see Sam in plays and we used to be at the same auditions. And when we did 'A Time to Kill' we had a really great opportunity to sort of feel what it's like to work together. We decided that we wanted to do something together again, and when 'The Negotiator' presented itself we both eagerly agreed to do it."

KevinSpacey plays Chris Sabian, a cop called to negotiate a hostage situation involving a fellow hostage negotiator.

Tibble ready for challenges of D-1 football

By JASON SCHMITT
Sports Editor

For Northville place kicker Adam Tibble, so much has happened in the last year he can't hardly keep up with it all.

As Saturday's Michigan High School Football Coaches Association All-Star game nears, Tibble will get a chance to associate himself with some of the players he will be suiting up against in the near future. The game will begin at 1:35 p.m. at Spartan Stadium in East Lansing. Tickets can be purchased at the door.

Tibble will walk on at Notre Dame this fall and fight for one of the two kicking scholarships on the Fighting Irish football squad.

He originally wanted to earn an athletic scholarship, but many of the schools that showed great interest were Ivy League schools. Unfortunately for Tibble, there are no athletic scholarships offered in the Ivy League and he didn't meet the financial hardship requirements of the schools.

"This was the school I wanted to go to," Tibble said of Notre Dame. "I had sent out tapes to about 22 or 23 schools, and (Notre Dame assistant) coach Bob Chmiel had contacted me and offered me a spot at summer camp."

There will be 99 players at the camp, of which 85 will be on scholarship. Tibble is currently one of five kickers in the program.

Just a few short years ago, as a freshman, Tibble broke his leg and doctors told him he wouldn't be able to play football or soccer again. Using that as a challenge, the 4.0 student rehabilitated himself and earned numerous honors as a senior place kicker and midfielder on the soccer team. He was a first-team HomeTown selection in each sport and was one of just 10 kickers selected to the USA Today national honorable mention team. The Detroit Free Press named him first-team all-state as a kicker. He nailed 8 of 10 field goals including three of over 44 yards (44, 48, 50).

Tibble was high on Michigan's list, but the Wolverines opted for one of the nation's top two kickers. Syracuse, North Carolina, Northwestern and Virginia were among the other schools that showed interest as well.

"Being a kicker you have to advertise yourself to schools," he said. "It's somewhat of an under appreciated position."

Along with the interest Chmiel and head coach Bob Davie showed in Tibble, Notre Dame's excellent academics was the deciding factor. Tibble will enroll in an arts and letters program, which will help satisfy his medical school requirements prior to graduation. He plans to study psychology while at Notre Dame.

"Education was very important for me, especially with my mom being a teacher," Tibble said. "It would have been nice to get a scholarship, but if I kick well maybe someday I'll earn a scholarship. I've got my work cut out for me."

Adam Tibble poses with Northville coaches Brian Masi and Darrel Schumacher.

U-11 team wins last tourney

The Northville Broncos won their final tournament of the year by winning six straight games in Grand Blanc.

In Game 1, Northville faced Brighton. Tim Stewart started and allowed just two hits in three innings. Northville was down 2-1 after four innings but scored three times in the 5th inning to go ahead of Brighton by a score of 4-2. Charlie Thomas held Brighton scoreless in the 6th and finished the game allowing just one hit in three innings of relief for the win.

In game two, Northville again had a hard time starting their offense against Novi. Going into the bottom of the 6th inning, the Broncos found themselves down by a score of 6-1. With one out and trailing by one, Eric Simcox, Jimmy Cicala and Tyler Laing followed with consecutive singles. Charlie Thomas came to the plate with bases loaded and hit a grand slam to tie the game. Josh Szatkowski walked, stole second and scored on a ground rule double by Matt Williams. The win assured the Broncos of making the championship round by winning their first two games.

In the final game of the qualifying round, Northville faced another undefeated team in Windsor, Ontario. Once again, Northville was slow to start and found themselves with a slim 5-4 lead after four innings. However, the Broncos turned the offense on and scored three times in the fifth and seven times in sixth to pull out a 15-5 victory. Eric Simcox had three hits including a home run and Jimmy Cicala had two hits. Tyler Laing and Brian Tellish each had home

Old tennis coach, friend taught this sports writer how to win

Jason Schmitt

But for myself, my summer suffered a sour note last week after learning that my

The summer seems to be fading away just as fast as my first 11 months here at the Novi News/Northville Record. Many kids are preoccupied with summertime sports and family outings as August is prepared to roll in.

former tennis coach and good friend had passed away. He had been battling a heart condition for several years, finally succumbing at the age of 73.

Rarely would I talk about a person that I hadn't seen in at least two years, but this was not your ordinary person. Jack Davis exemplified everything that is good in sports. Competitiveness, kindness, the best of sportsmanship, everything young people of today should focus on while competing in athletics.

But for me, he was much more important than that. He taught me how to win, and more importantly, how to win and be happy with myself regardless of the outcome. This wasn't easy for a young tennis player who went through rackets like a Major League Baseball game goes through baseballs. He taught me patience, although rarely did he get a chance to witness it.

A former sergeant in the armed forces, Jack was as good a motivator as there was. You had just one option when you went out on that court and that was to win or face him after the match. And it wasn't a pretty sight.

But for all the motivational speeches he gave in his 12 years of coaching, it was his humor that everyone will miss the most. He was always able to get a smile out of everyone, including me, a red-headed Irish-tempered 15-year-old.

For that I will be forever grateful. And somehow I feel my tennis rackets would be the first ones to agree with me on that one.

■ Just a reminder that the National Amateur Baseball Federation Junior World Series begins today here in Northville. Some of the countries best young baseball players will be competing against each other at two different sites. Northville High School will be the main site, while Madonna University will also host some games. Due to the withdrawal of the Norman, Okla., representative, the tournament has been changed to double-elimination format.

■ Not to be outdone, Novi and Farmington Hills will be co-hosts for the Amateur Softball Association Girls 16 & Under fast pitch national championship Aug. 4-9. The tournament will be held at Powers Park in Novi and at Founders Sports Park in Farmington Hills.

■ As a reminder as August is but two days away, many of the high school athletic teams are holding tryouts in the next few weeks for the fall sports season. The Northville girls tennis team will be having their tryouts Aug. 11 at Northville High School while the Novi girls team will be holding their tryouts at Novi High School Aug. 10. Physical slips are required to participate.

Michael Marques putts on the second green of Indian Springs golf course.

White Lake course offers challenge to long hitters

This week's Northville Record continues a series of weekly golf reviews. Our goal is to provide you, the reader, useful information and tips on playing favorite courses in the area.

Indian Springs is the subject of this week's review. If you would like to see a particular course reviewed this summer, please contact us at (248) 437-2011 or (248) 349-1700.

By Julie Kempainen

Tucked away near the center of Oakland County is a jewel of a golf course with something for every level of golfer, and nature enthusiast.

Indian Springs Metropark boasts the longest of the eight metropark golf courses with some of the most challenging holes.

"We have a number of people that come out and golf it for the first time and say that it's one of the best kept secrets in Oakland County," Indian Springs Manager Al Gapske said. "We pride ourselves in the maintenance and the operation itself."

Indian Springs offers a combination of both challenging and easy holes in the middle of a nature area that will get you a glimpse of wildlife you just don't see everyday.

"The difference between Indian Springs and the other metropark courses is that we are the longest," Manager Al Gapske said. "I wouldn't say it's any tougher than the other metropark courses but we do have three very unique holes that separate us from the other courses."

Indian Springs measures 6,688 from the championship tees and it doesn't take long to get to the toughest hole on the course. The third hole measures 442-yards from the championship tees and provides golfers of any skill a challenge.

It takes a long tee shot to hit the center of the fairway. Any shots meandering right set up a second shot blocked by woods. Thick woods follow the left fairway as well.

Approaching the green provides a trick in itself. Guarded by both a left and right bunker, the green is severely undulating. Any shot to the green that doesn't land in front is rolling off the back and creating a big uphill putt.

Indian Springs second signature hole is the 425-yard, par-4 sixth hole. Pull out the big driver on this wide open fairway but be careful approaching the finicky green. A long second shot is required to reach the green. But, even a well played shot from the fairway can end up in trouble when hitting the green. It's necessary to bump-and-run when approaching the putting surface or risk rolling off the back of the green.

"The green is also undulated and is a challenge to the putters," Gapske said. "What separates us from a lot of the other (Metropark) courses is our greens are a challenge to the putter. There are some undulated and some are sloped

Over 1,100 runners took part in the 15th annual RoadRunner Classic last Saturday night.

Classic draws a big crowd

By JASON SCHMITT
Sports Editor

The day couldn't have gone any better for Doug Kurtis and the rest of the coordinators of the 15th annual RoadRunner Classic in downtown Northville Saturday.

The weather was great, the atmosphere was festive and the races turned out to be competitive, making the Classic one of the most memorable in recent history.

Ann Arbor's Laurel Park won the women's 8K race for the sixth-straight year while Kalamazoo's Brad Kirk bumped off two-time defending champion Paul Aufdemberge of Novi to win his first RoadRunner Classic.

Kirk won his race in 24 minutes, 10 seconds to edge out Aufdemberge, who finished second. Aufdemberge actually led with a half a mile left, but Kirk came back for the win down the stretch.

"I've been having excellent workouts and I'm in excellent shape right now," the former Western Michigan standout said. "All I could hear the entire race was 'Paul, Paul, Paul.'"

"I usually like to finish hard and I knew Paul had an excellent finish. But I had a long, extended kick in the last half a mile to win it."

Aufdemberge, who led most of the race, said he felt pretty good and felt he ran hard.

"I really expected his kick at the end, but he made a move at a good spot and it turned out he got away from me," Aufdemberge said.

Park led the entire race and finished in a time of 28:44.

Southfield's Alan Vanmeter won the men's masters race while Laurel Cihak of North Muskegon won the women's. Danny and Jeanette Wineland of Swartz Creek won the 5K walk and Nick Liverseege of Ada and Sarah Kosteva of Canton won the kids 1-mile fun run.

Along with the races, this year's Classic included a whole day of festivities in the gazebo area in downtown Northville. Northville's own Superdot performed in the early afternoon and Joyride finished the night away later on.

Detroit Red Wing national anthem singer Karen Newman did the honor of singing the anthem prior to the race. Detroit Free Press writer Mitch Albom's appearance had to be canceled due to last-minute scheduling problems.

"I definitely want to keep these things going," Kurtis, the race coordinator, said. "It was fun to see the kids get up on stage and sing along with the band. It was nice to see all of the community involvement."

Kurtis said he plans on keeping the event in downtown Northville and hopes to create more public awareness for next year.

"We would like to continue what we have and hope that we can get more people down here next year," he said.

Tigers finish strong

The 7/8 year old girl's Tiger softball team finished with a brilliant 8-1-1 record in their league this season.

In a league where the inning ends when either a team scores five runs or makes three outs, the Tigers showed their dominance by collecting 75 put outs to only 36 for their opponents. There were only four innings the entire year where the Tigers didn't score five runs in an inning. Robin Baidas, Brittany Birdsall, Krysta Cicala, Annie Tasse and Kelsey Whelan combined for five doubles plays this year. Afton Absalom and Emily Jankowiak also turned in some great defense this year.

The team outscored their opponents 205-168. Gabrielle Castrodale, Nara DeMuro, Kelsey Floyd, Josie VanLoosen and Emily

The 1998 Tigers team finished with an impressive 8-1-1 record.

Visides provided good hitting for the team in just their first season. These girls, along with Lela Ostrowski all had doubles in the last two games of the season. Cicala and Tasse led the team in doubles. The team was sponsored by Signature & Associates.

Broncos get one last chance

Another season has nearly passed the team by, but for the Broncos, the season is not over yet.

The junior world series representative will have one last shot as the NABF Junior World Series gets underway today at Northville High School and Madonna University. With just four teams returning from last year's tournament, Northville's odds look pretty good in this double-elimination tournament.

Last year Northville won a game and finished 1-2 in the tournament. This year the Broncos may have the depth to win a couple of games.

Northville has depth at the pitching position, with Andy Borda, Kip Szostek, Matt Hare and Andy Reibling. But the team's hitting has been inconsistent all year. When the team hits, it is nearly unstoppable.

"If we can continue to hit the ball as well as we did last week, I think we can make some noise," coach Stan Szostek said.

TENNIS TRYOUTS

The Northville High School girls tennis team try-outs begin Aug. 11 at 9 a.m. at the Northville High School tennis courts. Anyone interested in trying out for the team should attend.

SZOSTEK SELECTED TO ALL-STAR TEAM

Kip Szostek, a junior forward for the Northville Mustangs varsity basketball team and a member of the Western Lakes Metro Magic AAU team, was selected to the American Youth Basketball Tour National Tournament All-Star Team. The tournament was held in Bloomington, Ind., from July 22-26. Forty seven teams from seven states were represented in the boys 10th-11th grade division. The all-star game was played in Assembly Hall. Szostek scored nine points in the game. Other Mustang members of the metro Magic Team are Aaron Redden, Travis Bliss and Brett Allen. The Magic went 5-3 in the tournament.

Drivers needed at Indian Springs

The third unique hole at Indian Springs is the 481-yard, par-5 17th hole. The fairway slopes towards a wooded area on the left on this dogleg left hole. An inaccurate tee shot could run towards woods on left or a sliced shot from the tee will put a golfer in the marshy area on the right.

Even if you were fortunate to hit a solid tee shot there is still work to be done. Two trees in the fairway must be maneuvered. A small white stone creek bed is just beyond the trees. A third shot to the green must be carefully placed on the tiered green, depending on pin placement.

Reaching the dance floor at Indian Springs can be both a blessing and a curse but Gapske doesn't want to scare golfers away. Not all the holes are tough ones.

"The remainder of the holes are very playable, even on those challenging holes, they're very enjoyable," he said. "The variety (of holes) is one reason why people come back. The maintenance and condition of our course is constantly being complemented by our golfers. The par fives, with a well played tee shot, are holes than can be easily birdied as well as getting into trouble easily."

Many holes at Indian Springs will remind golfers of other metropark courses with a wide open fairway, allowing golfers to go for it with big drives. Another similarity is the wildlife. While this golfer was out on the links she came face to face with three sandhill cranes. Not one, but three.

Gapske said the birds have recently returned to the area and he hopes even more will take up residence at the park.

"They started migrating here, just two of them, several years ago and last year they were joined by the third bird," Gapske said. "They seem to be thriving here and our naturalists keep an eye on them. They won't go out on the fairways but they go about their business on the side of the fairways."

Broncos win in Grand Blanc

runs. Tellish was the starter and winner and Charlie Thomas and Andrew Smith pitched well in relief.

Northville did not draw a bye in the finals and was faced with winning three straight games for the championship. First, Northville beat Fenton by a score of 5-1. Tyler Laing was awarded the win allowing just two hits in three innings and Tim Stewart the save allowing no hits in three innings. Charlie Thomas had a home run and Dave Van Horn had two hits and three RBI in the effort.

Next, with the field down to three teams, Northville faced the home team, Grand Blanc. Grand Blanc jumped off to an early lead with three runs in the first inning. Northville came back with four in the second but found themselves tied at 5-5 after 4 1/2 innings. The Broncos posted three more runs in their half of the fifth inning and won the game, 8-6. Dave Van Horn started, Brian Tellish earned the win with three strong innings of middle relief and Tyler Laing received the save.

In the final game, Northville faced a rival in Clio. The Broncos jumped out to an early lead with six runs in the first inning and seven runs in the second. When it was all over, Northville scored 28 runs on 28 hits and beat Clio 28-8 for the championship. Jimmy Cicala was 4 for 5 with a home run. Tyler Laing was 3 for 5 with a home run. Matt Williams went 4 for 4 with a home run. Charlie Thomas was the starter and winner.

Health Column

Health promotion is the future

As if we have not covered the multitude of proven benefits of exercise from many angles in an attempt to increase public awareness with this column over the last couple of years, let's try another one - the economic benefits of exercise. Yes, this does affect each and every one of us.

Health care costs are rising at an alarming rate, representing an ever increasing portion of the gross national product. Medical costs have risen from $247 billion in 1973 to approximately $1 trillion by the end of 1993. Worth noting is the fact that 30-40 percent of that $1 trillion was paid by businesses. This fact, coupled with the Surgeon General's report, (along with the department of Health and Human Services) report, which states 70 percent of all illnesses are due to lifestyle related causes, with one-half of all medical costs attributable to illnesses that could be prevented, clearly points out the need for continued integration of upstream health care programs and incentives. In other words, place some focus and resources on preventative measures versus all on treating and paying for only the downstream illnesses or symptoms. Programs like exercise and fitness, smoking cessation, nutrition and weight control, back care, stress control, etc.

In yet a final set of words, let's put at least as much effort and incentive on preventing as we do on treatment and prescriptions.

There is documented proof of the many positive benefits of this approach. Coors Brewing Co. spent $585,900 on its employee wellness program in 1990. The company saved at least $1.9 million as a result of lower medical costs, reduced absenteeism, and increased productivity. The Traveler's Insurance Co. claims that it receives a $3.40 return for every dollar it invests in health promotion, which yields $146 million in total corporate savings per year. Waste Management Inc.

health programs resulted in an estimated savings of between $3,750 and $15,000 per participant, per year. Bank of America realized a return of $6 for every $1 spent on its health-promotion programs. How is that for a return on investment? If that was a mutual fund, we would have a line of people ready to get involved. Better decision making, improved productivity, and morale all are documented benefits. The list goes on and on. Tenneco Co. found employees who participated in a corporate fitness program were 13 percent less likely to leave the company than those who did not.

The bottom line is the evidence pointing to the success of fitness and health programs in improving employee practices, reducing medical and disability costs, and improving productivity is indisputable. Hopefully the insurance companies, medical field and corporate America will continue to notice.

Finding the right doctor for your baby

An important task for new parents is the selection of a pediatrician and it should be done even before their baby is born. Delaying the choice can result in confusion during those first days and can leave parents without a familiar face to consult should they face a medical emergency.

It is a decision that may remain with you through 18 years of earaches, sore throats and numerous parenting decisions, so take the time to make a selection that feels comfortable to you. A good way to begin the process is to make a list of potential physicians, then refine the list, and interview your final candidates before making a choice.

Talk to as many sources as you can. Your obstetrician, an obstetrics nurse, friends whose child rearing philosophy and temperament is similar to your own, your hospital physician referral service, or your insurance directory can provide possible candidates for you.

In evaluating the list of potential pediatricians, new parents need to weigh some basic points:

Hospital affiliation can be important for several reasons. It is helpful if the pediatrician you select has privileges the hospital where you plan to deliver so that the baby can be examined before discharge. It is also advantageous if the physician is affiliated with a nearby hospital so emergency treatment is easily accessible.

Look for a physician whose credentials include completion of a residency in pediatrics and who is board certified or board eligible.

Location is another factor to think about. When you are dealing with a sick or injured child, an office near your home is a convenience. Keep in mind that a truly exceptional pediatrician may be worth a longer trip.

Your own schedule will determine what are convenient office hours. If you have a nine-to-five job, it's important to find someone who offers early morning, evening or weekend hours.

Does the pediatrician offer a payment plan or other flexibility in dealing with financial matters? Make sure you understand your insurance plan's requirements and determine if your pediatrician must be a plan provider or participant.

Learn everything that you can about the physician's practice. If you call after the office is closed, will you speak with a pediatrician or a nurse from an answering service? Does the office use pediatric nurse practitioners or are there only pediatricians in the office?

When you reach the interview stage, compile a list of questions that will help you judge whether you and your prospective physician can agree on most issues in child rearing. Breastfeeding, bottle feeding, nutrition, circumcision, and approach to discipline are among the discussion topics that can help to determine your ability to build a successful doctor-patient relationship. A few very simple questions like "What should I do in an emergency if I am unable to reach you?" or "How do you feel about being consulted over the phone?" will give you a good idea if you can work together or not.

First impressions are very important, and if you have reservations, there is probably a good reason. You have to feel comfortable with the office as well as the pediatrician you have selected. If you find that you have made a mistake after the first of second visit, never feel that you are stuck with that decision. Some managed care plans may make it difficult to change but there is always a way. Your child may be the one seeing the doctor, but you are the one who is driving, waiting, and then communicating with the physician.

You and the pediatrician are a team working on behalf of your child. The pediatric office staff help make the team complete. It is your responsibility to make the best, well-rounded team you can. Good luck and choose wisely.

Ian Fox D.O. is on the medical staff at Botsford General Hospital. He is part of Botsford Pediatric Associates located in the Botsford Professional Center South on Grand River in Farmington Hills. The number is (248) 476-1350.

HOW TO

Wall improvements that help restore the sounds of silence

By Gene Gary
Copley News Service

Q. In a two-story row house, we share a common wall with the adjoining house next door. Our problem is noise coming through the walls from barking dogs - two of them - and children running up and down the stairs. The hallways and stairs that abut this wall are not wide enough to construct soundproofing walls with a dead air space. Our side of this common wall is brick covered with plaster. I do not know about the neighbor's wall. Do you have any recommendations that might help deaden the sound.

A. A quick way to improve the sound resistance is to use a manufacturer's recommended adhesive to attach a second layer of drywall over the original (preferably your neighbor's side of the wall as well as yours). If the first layer of drywall is installed vertically, the new layer should be installed horizontally, and vice versa.

In your case, remove the plaster finish and install two layers of drywall. You can include the installation of a sound-deadening board under the dry wall for further noise protection. Or if you have the room, added soundproofing can be gained by nailing furring strips to the first drywall layer and putting insulation between the strips before attaching the second layer of drywall.

As you mentioned in your letter, a better way to achieve sound resistance is to build a free-standing wall two inches away from the existing one, which leaves a dead airspace and provides a barrier to traveling sounds.

This requires five to six inches of floor space and although you don't have the required space, I want to cover this soundproofing method for other readers.

In construction of a second wall, it is important that there is no connection between it and the first wall. The framing of the second wall should be from wall to wall and ceiling to floor, leaving one to two inches of dead air space as a buffer for sound transmission. A blanket of insulation between the framing members will also help.

Additional sound resistance can be obtained by installing resilient metal channels to the studs of the new (second) wall. These channels are installed horizontally and screwed to the studs. The dry wall is attached to the opposite side of the channel. Although builders frequently use these, they are not always readily available in hardware stores or home supply centers. You may have to check with a building supply dealer.

Q. Our front steps - concrete - are 20 years old and have become stained, steaked, very dirty and look awful. Scrubbing and strong soap and water, rubbing with abrasive cleaners and pads has done nothing to change the appearance. Just to have it uniform would be great. Color doesn't really matter. Do you have any suggestions?

A. Resurfacing can make your concrete look like new. For do-it-yourselfers, I would suggest Mr. Mac's Concrete Resurfacer which restores discolored, pitted and flaking concrete to its original, consistent finish. The Resurfacer is a thin polymer layer (1/16 to 1/32 inch in thickness) that bonds to the existing concrete, fills in small holes, pits and low spots, and levels out the damaged surface. If your concrete surface has holes and pits greater than 1/8 inch, use Mr. Mac's Concrete Fix as a filler before going over the area with the resurfacer. These products are easy to use and provide durable, lasting finishes. Follow manufacturer directions carefully. Mr. Mac's Concrete Products are available at paint and hardware stores and home centers nationwide. For a dealer in your area call (800) 348-3571.

Q. The acoustic ceiling tiles in our bathroom are stained, probably from excessive humidity in the room and years of neglect (lack of cleaning by previous owners). How can I clean them? Is it possible to paint them?

A. You can remove surface dirt by washing the tiles with a mixture of chlorine bleach and trisodium phosphate. Or try a commercial product, Acoustic Ceiling Cleaner & Whitener marketed by Gamma Laboratories (840 Arroyo Ave., San Fernando, CA 91340; phone: (818) 365-7500).

If the stains remain, it's probably because they've penetrated the tile fibers. In that case, your best bet is to paint them, which shouldn't be a problem once the tiles have been completely cleaned of surface dirt. Use a shellac-based, stain-killing, primer-sealer such as B-I-N (Wm. Zinsser & Co. Inc., 173 Belmont Drive, Somers, NJ 08875-1285; phone: (908) 469-4367) to prevent surface staining from bleeding through the finish coat of paint.

Because the bathroom environment is subject to mildew-causing moisture, consider using Zinsser's Perma-White mildew-proof paint, which has a 5-year-mildew-proof guarantee. These products are readily available at paint stores and home centers, or contact the manufacturer directly for a source in your area.

BRICK by BRICK

How-to classes help homeowners create their own brick landscaping

By ANNETTE JAWORSKI
Special Writer

If you like the look of custom brick paving in landscaping, but don't like the price, there are solutions as Jim Baal of Novi discovered. After attending a do-it-yourself class at Brickscape Garden's of Northville, Baal installed landscape brick paver sidewalks which lead to the front entry of his home and to the backyard. All in all, he has laid about 500 square feet of brick pavers at less than half the cost of a contractor.

The class is called Brickscape, Step by Step - and that's exactly what they do. They show the experienced handyman as well as a first timer how to install their own brick landscaping.

Although Baal had a good idea of how he wanted to design his landscape, help is available for those who aren't sure how come up with their own design. "They'll help you design it, draw it all out, estimate the cost and even get the materials shipped," he said.

Patterns are used to help ensure a professional look.

Brickscape sells circular, square, rectangle and half moon patterns of brick pavers as well as herringbone and symmetry patterns. Baal chose circular patterns for the sidewalks and front entry. He especially liked the tight fit of the bricks in the circular pattern.

Circle patterns are a popular choice, according to Sandy White, sales associate at Brickscape. The brick pavers styles of Vintage, Carousel, and Romanesque are big sellers because they are adaptable to the circle pattern.

Baal was inspired by a friend's landscape project and decided he wanted to do the same.

A casual visitor could never tell the sidewalks and entry weren't a custom builder's package since the brick matches the Baal's home perfectly. "He brought samples of the exterior of his home with him when selecting the brick pavers so that he would get it right. Many people are intimidated at the thought of laying their own brick pavers. Laying the brick is the fun part, you can see the results of your hard work. That's what makes it worthwhile," said White. The toughest part of the project is digging out the dirt. Make no mistake, the project takes lots of manual labor. "I know. I've got 20 yards of dirt in the back yard to prove it," Baal said. All in all he's spent a couple of months on the project, pacing himself through the physical labor. After his daughter Paige went to bed, Baal worked for a couple hours in the evening until it got dark. On weekends, he worked for about two or three hours a day. "There's only so many hours you can put in before your body tells you to stop,"

Manufactured housing sales have doubled last 6 years

By James M. Woodard
Copley News Service

The stigma of manufactured homes being low quality products stamped out in a factory production line is changing. The factory production line is still there, but the product is better designed, includes higher quality materials and is produced by more efficient and precise high-tech methods.

When today's new homes are completed and landscaped, it's hard to discern between a custom-designed home built on-site and a manufactured home trucked to the site in sections. Yet, the price of the manufactured unit is considerably less, and financing is now readily available.

During the past year, more manufactured homes were sold than in any previous year - more than 353,000 homes. That represents about one of four new single-family housing starts in the United States. Its share of the market jumped 32 percent during that year, according to a report in (beginital) Urban Land (endital) magazine, published by the Urban Land Institute.

Most of the new manufactured homes delivered last year were multisection homes, meaning they came in two or more sections and joined under one roof. Those homes account for 58 percent of all delivered units.

"The increasing popularity of manufactured homes seems to be a trend that will continue, especially as the industry opens new suburban and urban markets for manufactured housing," the publication stated. "For the longer term, this shift to multisection homes should fuel market share growth in total single-family housing starts and sales. It also should help make the industry less susceptible to the 'boom-bust' cycles of the past."

Manufactured housing sales have more than doubled during the past six years. One reason is what the industry refers to as "the improved aesthetic appeal of the homes."

Another key factor is affordability. Depending on the region of the country, manufactured homes cost 15 percent to 40 percent less than traditional site-built homes, with the average manufactured home costing $38,400 - or $27.83 per square foot.

A study conducted by Carol Meeks of the University of Georgia determined that new year-round occupied manufactured homes have a life expectancy of 56 years.

Improved financing for manufactured homes is also a factor in their growing popularity. A wide range of conventional mortgages are now available for buyers of these homes. Also, progress is being made in developing a secondary mortgage market specifically for manufactured homes, making still more money available for buyers.

It should also be noted that zoning barriers that have blocked manufactured homes are now being eliminated. About two-thirds of new homes are being placed on individual lots. The days of relegating manufactured homes to less-than-desirable locations appear to be ending.

Demographic factors are also fueling the growth of manufactured housing. Retirees have long been a strong market for these homes. With baby boomers now approaching retirement age, this market could experience dramatic growth in coming years.

Housing experts are now pointing to new market niches for manufactured homes, such as single-parent families looking for an alternative to escalating apartment rents, and housing for employees in resort settings.

As new markets open for these homes, new designs are coming off the manufacturing firm drawing boards. For example, two-story homes are now offered, providing flexibility and aesthetics beyond the long-established designs. And high-pitched roofs consisting of hinged roof panels that are unfolded and finished on-site give a more traditional appearance to manufactured homes.

Q. Can Realtors submit their listed properties to several Web sites on the Internet or are they limited to the site owned by the National Association of Realtors?

A. As it now stands, Realtors can and do submit their listings to several key Web sites that provide services for home buyers and sellers. However, at a recent convention of the National Association of Realtors it was announced that a new Gold Alliance Program was being introduced. This would involve an exclusive listing licensing agreement, requiring participating multiple listing services to terminate all other national licensing arrangement within 18 months and make RealSelect their exclusive listing site.

RealSelect operates the Realtor.com site, owned by the National Association of Realtors.

This proposal is, of course, opposed by owners and operators of other real estate related Web sites. Several key real estate industry leaders have composed a letter outlining why this type of exclusionary licensing arrangement is a bad idea. The letter has been sent to many real estate leaders nationwide.

Signing the letter were the presidents of Better Homes and Gardens Real Estate Service, Prudential Real Estate Affiliates, Re/Max International, Home Shark/Home Scout, HomeAdvisor, Cyberhomes and HomeSeekers.

he said. Actually, Baal is just getting warmed up, he's got much more extensive work planned. He's building a patio made out of two large circles, for an additional 450 square feet of brick in his back yard. Next there will be a planting area, followed by a retaining wall. Brickscape recommended the two-foot planting area in the event the retaining wall shifts, it won't buckle into the patio area. The Baal patio will provide a beautiful view of a wooded nature preserve on the edge of their back yard. For those who don't mind using some elbow grease, it's a great way to accent a home. Baal has even convinced a friend at work into doing his own brick landscaping.

"A lot of people find the class helpful. Sometimes when you explain something and you show it, it doesn't seem as hard," Sandy White of Brickscape said.

Her advice? "Don't be intimidated by it. Try it. It's real good for people that like to do things around the home and create."

Brickscape also rents any and all equipment necessary to complete the project, including saws and compactors or power tampers. The power saws are used to cut the bricks to shape, and the power tamper packs the sand in between the bricks for a tight finish.

For complete instructions on the do-it-yourself classes, call Brickscape Garden Center and Brick Paving Headquarters at (248) 348-2500. Brickscape is located at 21141 Brickscape Drive in Northville.

The next class will be held on Saturday, Aug. 1 and 15 at the Michigan State University Tollgate Center at 28115 Meadowbrook Road in Novi.

20th century table reflects 17th century influence

By Anne McCollam
Copley News Service

Q. We purchased the table in this photo at auction, and it is in perfect condition. It stands 28 inches high. Could you tell us its age, value and origin?

A. Your table is an example of early 20th century Colonial Revival furniture. Jacobean and William and Mary furniture, both 17th century designs, inspired the style. Turned trumpet legs and the centered underbracing are typical of the William and Mary period. The flat geometric carving and applied carving reflect the Jacobean influence.

Without knowing the manufacturer it can be impossible to identify the origin. Your table would probably be worth about $450 to $650.

Q. This mark is on each piece of a service for 12 porcelain dinnerware set. It was purchased in Japan in 1949 and is still in the original box it was packed in for shipment to the United States.

The dishes are white and decorated with multicolored floral sprays around the borders.

We are curious about what the mark represents and what the value of the set is since we are thinking about giving it to our granddaughter as a gift.

A. Nippon Toki Kabushiki Toki in Japan used the mark you provided.

They have made Noritake porcelain since the early 1900s.

Your set would probably be worth $1,000 to $1,500.

Q. I have some Big Little Books that were published in the 1930s. "Little Orphan Annie and Punjab the Wizard," "Popeye Sees the Sea" and "The Lone Ranger and the Black Shirt Highway Man" are some of the titles. They have been well preserved.

What are they worth?

A. Whitman Publishing Co. in Racine, Wis., published the first Big Little Book in 1933. These chunky books chock-full of adventure originally sold in dime stores for 10 cents apiece. As a rule, the text appeared on the left-hand page and the illustrations on the right. Having big appeal for preteen children, they were bought, traded and kept for rereading.

ANTIQUES

Many have survived and show up on the secondary market. The more rare, the more valuable they are. For example, if you have a copy of the circa 1940 "The Green Hornet Strikes" in excellent condition, it is in the $140 to $150 range.

Although Whitman held the trademark on Big Little Books, other publishers jumped on the bandwagon. All are eagerly sought after by collectors.

The titles that you inquired about are in the $15 to $30 range.

Q. I have a box of building blocks. The words "Star Building Blocks Made by American Novelty Works - Herndon, PA." are on the box. They are hardwood wagon blocks and architectural blocks.

Could you tell me what year these building blocks were made and their value?

A. Your building blocks were made around 1920. Collectors love them at $125 to $150 for a set in mint condition and with the original box.

Braun loves auctioneering

By ANNETTE JAWORSKI
Special Writer

When you're in the auction business for 27 years, like Lloyd Braun, you make a lot of friends along the way. Enough friends, it seems, to be inducted into the Michigan State Auctioneers Hall of Fame.

Only nine members have been honored with induction by the Michigan Auctioneers Association. And though he was amazed, those who know him aren't nearly as surprised since he was nominated for the honor by his peers.

He recently received the award at the 1998 Michigan State Auctioneers Association Convention in January.

"It's something you dream about," Braun said, but admits he was stunned when it became a reality.

What makes a good auctioneer? A love of the auction sale, says Braun, who switched careers from barbering 28 years ago, after attending a two week class at Worldwide Auctioneer's School in Iowa.

During those years, there isn't much that he hasn't sold. He's sold homes, property, airplanes, classic cars, and industrial machines. But the bulk of Braun and Helmer's business could be classified as estate sales.

When it comes to gathering and selling a person's lifetime possessions, an auctioneer has to develop a great deal of trust and tact to deal with their clients during an emotional time in their life. Particularly sad are estate sales from deaths or foreclosures.

"Some people are happy to get rid of the stuff, some aren't. It can be sad, like a funeral," Braun said.

There's a lot involved in this profession. To begin with, you need to know how to price almost anything - and Braun means everything. If you don't know, you need to research it. Then, a lot of plain old elbow grease is necessary in setting up and preparing the merchandise.

Their business covers a wide territory, a 50-mile radius from Ann Arbor. They're known throughout South Lyon, Milford, Northville and Brighton. The sales go on regardless of weather. Even rain doesn't stop the show. "The worst thing is when it's so blamed hot you can't breathe," he said.

If you go to one of Braun and Helmer's auction sales, you'd better keep your eyes or ears open. The firm keeps two rings going at once. And if you're a little shy or confused about bidding, experience has given Lloyd has a sixth sense that tells him when someone wants to bid.

"It's body language. I can tell just by looking at them if they want to bid," he said.

Braun and his son, Brian, form half the team of Braun & Helmer Auction Service, Inc. along with his partner Jerry Helmer, and son, David Helmer.

The partnership of 28 years has been a satisfying and mutually supportive relationship, says Braun, where everyone pitches in.

This includes donating their time to a lot of charity work. The firm has volunteer its services at auctions like Gabriel Richard High School in Ann Arbor's Vision's of Sugar Plums, Barton Hills Cadillac golf outing which raises money for Mott's Children's Hospital, Hearts for Arts for the Ann Arbor Symphony, or the Hands On Museum in Ann Arbor.

In addition to volunteer work, Braun was actively involved on a statewide level with the Michigan State Auctioneers Association as president and member of the Board of Directors.

The senior partners, Lloyd Braun and Jerry Helmer carry real estate licenses as part of their service. They also take care of advertising and cashier items at the sale. That's where the partner's wives, Joyce Braun and Ruthann Helmer come in. They handle the substantial amount of paperwork the business generates.

Lloyd Braun has been inducted into the Michigan State Auctioneers Hall of Fame.

Braun has had a lot of accomplishments this past year. He successfully endured a bout of multiple myeloma. A bone marrow transplant kept him hospitalized for a month in July 1997. Three months later, he was back to work.

Braun and Helmer Auction Service Inc. covers auctions throughout a wide area of southeast Michigan. They can be contacted at (734) 665-9646 in Ann Arbor and (734) 994-6309 in Saline.
