

Thumbs down: 2 of 3 millage requests nixed

Voters say yes to Public Safety, defeat remaining proposals

By CHRIS C. DAVIS
Staff Writer

Northville Township voters let their voices be heard Tuesday night, narrowly approving an eight-year millage request for police and fire protection but soundly turning down a similar request for services shared with the city of Northville.

A total of 6.34 mills was being sought by township leaders. Of that, three-quarters of 1 mill was asked over four years' time to fund park land acquisition and development.

At the conclusion of those four years, the rate would have dropped to 5.59 mills.

Statistics showed that around one-fourth of Northville Township's 16,035 voters turned out at the polls, down slightly from the 1996 primaries when the township had a 32 percent turnout.

Township officials gathered at Bushwood Country Club to await the results, which were tabulated around midnight Tuesday.

Township supervisor Karen Woodside said she was upbeat about the 33 percent of the millage request which passed, but cautioned that township board members would need to take another look at budgeting for the services the township provides.

"We're very pleased the public safety portion was approved," Woodside said.

Law, McCotter and Poenisch win primary nominations

By CHRIS C. DAVIS
Staff Writer

Democrat Carol Poenisch emerged as the victorious Democratic candidate for the 15th State Senate district race Tuesday, while Thaddeus McCotter was the voters' favorite in primary election. Gerry Law emerged the winner for the 20th State House district.

Poenisch, the Northville Township mother of two children, beat out fellow democrat Marc Susselman by more than a 2-to-1 margin. Poenisch also did well across the entire district, winning more than 10,000 popular votes.

Senate candidate Deborah Whyman campaigned outside of Silver Springs Elementary School in the early hours of the election, as did representatives for fellow Republican candidate Jim Ryan. Whyman, who serves as the 21st State House Representative, finished last for the Republican ticket.

But it was McCotter who stood heads and tails above everyone, bringing in more than 38,000 votes. McCotter was also smiling about the approval of the "supermajority" ballot proposal. The proposal requires that two-thirds of county commissioners approve a tax-levying measure before being placed on a ballot, and further requires a 60

The write stuff

Galli keeps people guessing with witty, sarcastic prose

Translated, his name means "roosters." In the most roundabout sense, that's a somewhat accurate description of 85-year-old Northville Township resident Al Galli.

Like the curious barnyard bird, Galli has done his share of pecking, though it hasn't been at seed.

It's been at a typewriter, and more recently, his WebTV keyboard.

"It's a marvelous invention," Galli said. "I get to send mail to my relatives back in Italy and it doesn't take two weeks to get there."

He paused, then laughed. "I still have to mail them real American currency. They like the way it looks."

If Galli's name isn't familiar to you, you probably don't read the Letters to the Editor portion of the Record. His signature has graced the bottom of the opinion page more often than just about any other person. Using flowery language and citing national or international publications, Galli has shared his musings on almost every topic from religion to politics to government to philosophy.

Galli's apartment is as unique as his personality.

The top portion of his bedroom bookshelf holds three-ring binders filled with each letter he's submitted to a newspaper that has been published. Galli even wrote an autobiography, which he says only his children have seen.

There's a lava lamp atop his television. Personal thank-you notes from President and Mrs. Clinton have been taped to the wall in both his living room and bedroom. His bathroom mirror is dotted with three-by-five cards bearing thoughts like, "When you speak to God, it's prayer — when God speaks to you, it's schizophrenia."

"My kids will visit from time to time and say, 'For Pete's sake, Dad, not another one!'" Galli chuckled.

Life for Galli hasn't always been so jovial. Born in Europe, Galli spent his early years in the outskirts of Pittsburgh in a very modest immigrant family. As a teenager, he lived

School still slated to begin Aug. 24

By WENDY WHITE
Staff Writer

Although parents continued to protest the date set for the first day of school this year, school officials said it won't likely be changed.

Four parents attended a special call meeting of the Board of Education July 28 to protest a school start date they said was too early and announced too late.

Among them was Mary Rupley, a representative of the Northville Co-council of PTA's who authored a survey about the school calendar in 1997 and assisted on another in 1995.

Rupley said she was representing more than 900 parents who said in the surveys they wanted the start date scheduled later than the designated Aug. 24.

Rupley accused the school board of ignoring parents' wishes when they negotiated the new three year contract with the Northville Education Association.

The contract will be tentative until it is approved by the 368-member NEA at an Aug. 19 meeting and subsequently by the board of education at a regularly scheduled meeting Aug. 25.

"Ninety-one percent of these people did not want an early start date," Rupley said. "We totally expect that people we have elected, our trustees, our school board members and the people they have hired should back us on this."

She accused the board of wasting hundreds of hours of the co-council's time by asking them to write and conduct the surveys.

"We have already lived for three years with a contract that didn't consider our wishes and now we're going to have to do that again."

Motorcycles give police option for patrol

By WENDY WHITE
Staff Writer

Some ride Harley Davidsons for recreation, others for thrills.

But for a team of Northville Township police officers, the motorcycles are tools for law enforcement.

"What they offer us is an opportunity for selective traffic enforcement. They allow us to get into areas of difficulty that would prevent automobiles. We can get back in there quickly and get out quickly," said Lieutenant John Sherman, who is in charge of the township's five-member police motorcycle team.

Sherman said he once used a motorcycle to access a 10-year-old child who was injured on a bike path in the Northville Commons subdivision.

"The patrol vehicle couldn't get back there but I was able to move off the roadway and begin rendering aid to the youth," he said.

The Electra Glide Classic police bikes are equipped with flashing lights, radios and cargo saddlebags and every officer trained to ride them is issued knee-high leather boots, helmets and leather jackets.

In the third year of a five year agreement with the manufacturer, Northville Township leases the Harleys for a yearly fee of $300 apiece. Each year, the department trades the bikes in for the latest models at the Town & Country Sport Center dealership outside of Jackson, Michigan.

Northville Township Police Officer Chuck Cole sits astride his 1,250 cc Harley Davidson Motorcycle which will now be used by his department for regular patrol duty.

Seven / Haggerty theater preparing for fall opening

By CHRIS C. DAVIS
Staff Writer

Move over, Southfield Star. The new king of the motion picture mountain has set up camp at Seven Mile and Haggerty roads.

That's because AMC is in the home stretch of building a new 20-screen multiplex theater just inside Livonia city limits. And according to AMC's facilities manager Jim Wilkie, when the mega-theater development is opened Oct. 9, it could very well be the most well-attended movie house in the northeast United States.

"This is going to be something spectacular — I can guarantee you of that," Wilkie said. "This is going to be a theater people will have to come out and see."

The AMC Livonia 20 is the prototype for a new breed of AMC theaters which will be constructed across the country, he said.

"It's only a matter of time before you won't see an AMC theater with less than 10 screens," he said. "This is just the way of the future."

The Livonia complex, as its name implies, has 20 theaters, all with stadium seating and an ultra-modern Sony digital sound system, Wilkie said. The theaters will range in size from rooms which seat 55 people all the way up to the 440-seat monster for first-runs and blockbuster titles.

Stadium seating, unlike traditional movie theaters, is set up with a much steeper slope, preventing the problem of people one row in front blocking a view of the screen. Wilkie said the seats will be set into wider aisles and also have arm rests which fold back to allow patrons — who so wish — to get closer to each other.

As for motif, AMC spokesperson Tina Voccia said the AMC Livonia 20 would have a classic but more subdued feel to itself than the Star, which made headlines last summer for its flashy Hollywood decor.

"We'd describe this as the sort of look you'd have in a nice hotel or a casino," she said.

The walls of the theater's main lobby and hallways will be a dark shade of dusty pink, while the carpeting will carry a blue, green and burgundy swirl pattern.

Ten ticket windows will sell passes to the theater, but if a patron would rather just pay for the ticket and go, an automated ticket purchase booth will be installed, allowing patrons to pay for tickets with their debit or credit cards and pick them up at a will-call booth, Wilkie said.

Getting refreshments won't be a problem, either, as nearly 40 locations will be set up throughout the theater.

As for AMC's other theater in Livonia — the AMC Laurel Park — Voccia said plans are underway to renovate that location to have six screens versus the existing 10. The Laurel Park location may carry limited engagement films or children's movies, she said.

The two venues may appear in movie listings under the name AMC Livonia 26, she said.

Voccia also said AMC is hoping to establish packages or discounts through other businesses in the area. A 128-room AmeriSuites hotel is also under construction at the Seven / Haggerty location, just to the south of the AMC site.

Though it's anticipated the AMC Laurel 20 will be the hot spot for moviegoers, Wilkie said ticket prices will be the same as the Laurel Park location: $6.50 for adult evening admission, $4.50 for senior citizens, children under 12 or students with student ID, $4.50 for matinees, and $3.50 for twilight shows.

"It's definitely one of the best values for your dollar in theaters," Wilkie said. "I think people will be pleasantly surprised."

More information on the theater can be obtained by calling (734) 462-, or by checking out the Livonia 20 Website at www.amclivonia20.com.

A BETTER UNDERSTANDING OF ABS

The Highway Loss Data Institute (a nonprofit research group funded by insurance companies) reported early in 1994 that anti-lock braking systems (ABS) were not preventing crashes. Further research by the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety helps to explain HLDI's findings. The fact is that researchers have concluded that half of the owners of cars with ABS do not know how to use it. Most importantly, ABS requires steady, firm pressure on the brake pedal; no pumping of the brake pedal by the driver is necessary. In addition, owners of cars with ABS should not see it as a license to drive irresponsibly. ABS is not an anti-skid system. It is an anti-lock system that prevents the wheels from locking and permits drivers to steer their cars during hard braking on slippery surfaces.

If your vehicle has anti-lock brakes, be sure to apply firm pressure on the brake pedal rather than pumping in order to maximize benefits. MARTY FELDMAN CHEVROLET is committed to your personal safety and can provide you with

Northville teens embark on long road to license

By WENDY WHITE
Staff Writer

As soon as Jessica De Los Santos is done with Northville High School's four-week driver's training session, she'll be able to drive with supervision.

But instead of getting a "permit," she'll get what's called a Level 1 license.

To move on to Level 2, she'll have to wait six months and log 50 hours of driving with a parent.

Then she'll have to return for six more hours of classes in the fall and take a written exam.

The Level 2 license will enable her to drive without supervision except from midnight to 5 a.m..

If she makes it through one year without a crash or traffic violation, she'll get a full-fledged Level 3 license at age 17.

The new licensing process is in its first year of application since Michigan legislators signed it into law.

"There's more responsibility now placed on the student and the parent," said Roy Danley, who oversees the driver's training program as director of personnel for the Northville Public Schools.

He said there have been a few minor glitches in the new system, like students not adhering to the extended time line or losing paperwork that should have been turned in to the Secretary of State.

Overall, though, he said the changes to the law are appropriate.

"The changes are certainly designed to give the young driver more experience behind the wheel before granting a license," he said.

Jessica's mother, Anita De Los Santos, said the new process is very different from when her son, J. Albert, 18, and daughter, Mishelle, 25, took driver's training at Northville High.

"I'm learning something new every week. I just realized they have to take another session in November," she said. "It's a little confusing. I have to read through the paper two or three times before I understand it."

Because she has to wait six months before she upgrades her Level 1, the changes mean Jessica will have to wait until January to get her Level 2 license, instead of when she turns 16 in November.

Roy Danley
Northville Public Schools

But Anita said Jessica isn't really disappointed that she has to wait, and as a parent, she thinks the new law is a good idea.

"I just want her to be a good driver when she gets on the road. In a way it's better. Before, the kids turned 16 and boom, they were out on the road," she said. "In this city they have a car before they're 16. If we can guide them longer, in the long run I think they're better off. They might not agree."

Although changes to the state law have made driver's education longer and more costly, the Northville public school district saw virtually no change in the number of teens who signed up for the public program that used to be free.

Before last year, the state mandated that public schools offer free driver's training, but the new law gave schools three options. They could either continue to offer it without cost to the student, offer it for a fee or not offer it at all.

After deliberating, the Northville Board of Education opted to offer the classes during the summer for a fee of $120, which is still cheaper than many private driving schools.

For each student that signed up, the district received $75 from the state. The state gave a $75 voucher directly to students who opted to take the training through private programs.

Now, De Los Santos joins other students in a Northville High School classroom where they spend the morning watching videos and going over homework.

Then, they take turns in one of the district's two Ford Escorts, which are leased by the week from McDonald Ford on Seven Mile Road in Northville.

Three kids join one teacher in each car.

During each 40-minute turn behind the wheel students practice parallel parking in a lot at the Northville Downs, tracking the center line on Hines Drive and turning through the streets downtown.

They may drive to four lane roads in Livonia to practice changing lanes and even venture onto area freeways.

Driving instructor Steve Pilon said the new system requires parents to spend more time in the car with their teens after they complete the stages of formal training.

"I'm sure research will come out to show any changes in accident and ticket rates," Pilon said.

The teacher from the Wayne-Westland district said parents shouldn't keep their eyes on the road when accompanying new drivers.

"Parents don't need to watch the road at all times," Pilon said. "Instead they should check their son or daughter's hands for proper positioning on the wheel and make sure they're letting the wheel slide through their hands on turns. Also watch their feet preparing for stops and laying off the gas when needed."

Jessica De Los Santos is looking forward to passing all the tests and someday getting a BMW or Sable.

"I'm excited I've always wanted to drive," she said. "When I get my license I'll probably go to pick up my friends and go out somewhere."

She said she hasn't had any trouble driving at night or parallel parking. Instead, she described her biggest driving challenge as "being able to turn the radio on or switch the channel and not swerve on the road."

Northville car used in Novi theft

A green Jeep Cherokee that was borrowed from a 67-year-old Horton Avenue resident on July 27, was later used in a retail theft at Builder's Square in Novi and tailed by three police departments.

Witnesses reported that on July 28 four people loaded the Jeep with six to eight stolen power tools, after throwing them over the fence of the garden shop area of Builder's Square on Novi Road.

The Jeep's license plate was traced to Horton Avenue, where its owner said he'd loaned the vehicle to his roommate, a 31-year-old employee of his.

Although the roommate said he was going to an Alcoholics Anonymous meeting in Livonia, he hadn't returned.

He told police his roommate was addicted to crack cocaine, which he often purchased at Eight Mile Road and Grand River. In fact, the man said he had driven to that area looking for his car and spotted it pulling out of a hotel with a couple in the front seat and two children in the rear.

None of the passengers were his roommate.

Police Reports

cle stolen, they discovered Southfield police had run a check on the license plate while it was in the parking lot of the Residence Inn at Eleven Mile and Greenfield Roads the previous evening, but it hadn't been reported stolen at the time.

Two days later, the roommate returned with the car, which was missing only its keys.

The man didn't press charges against his roommate, who is now his ex-roommate, according to police.

ANOTHER JEEP: The teen was pulled over at Eight Mile and Center Street around 7:30 p.m. July 28 because his plates were expired. At first, the license plates on the 17-year-old Detroit's car turned up stolen when police checked their Law Enforcement Information Network.

It turned out they had been recovered by the driver's father, who owned the 1993 Chevy, but police soon realized the teen had never obtained a driver's license.

He was arrested on misdemeanor charges for never having acquired a license and of driving with expired plates. Released on $100 bond, he faces a date in court.

DOMESTIC CHARGE: A Novi man ran a red light at Beck and Novi Roads around 12:30 a.m. on July 29, and ended up getting arrested.

The police that pulled him over found a warrant out of Detroit for domestic assault and battery charges.

In addition, they found the man's license had been suspended three times in Michigan and once in Tennessee.

He was taken into custody and then released on a $100 bond. He was also ticketed for running the red light.

DAZED AND CONFUSED: Northville Fire Chief James Allen witnessed a 1995 gray Dodge back into a car parked on Main Street and leave the scene.

Police soon caught up with the driver, who lingered at a green light for at least ten seconds and didn't pull over until police supplemented the emergency flashers with a siren.

The driver turned out to be a 77-year-old Northville woman who claimed she hadn't realized she had hit anything.

She acted very confused when asked for her license and registration and police finally had to remove the documents from her wallet.

Although she said she was very familiar with the area, she couldn't tell police where she was.

While talking, police said her mind wandered and they had to constantly get her attention back. They cited her for improper backing.

PULL OUT THE STOPS: An accident resulted when a 16-year-old West Bloomfield driver pulled around a car that was stopped in front of him and proceeded through a red light on Griswold.

His car struck a Cadillac that was passing through the intersection on Main Street and was driven by a 74-year-old West Bloomfield man.

The driver was cited for disobeying a red signal.

Drunk driver waives exam

Pontiac resident Gregory Horner waived his right to a preliminary exam last week, two weeks after being stopped for drunk driving in Northville Township—his 11th such arrest and 13th overall driving infraction.

Horner's attorney asked that the $10,000 bond be reduced, saying his diabetic condition warranted special consideration. Judge John Macdonald turned down the request.

At an earlier date, township detective Fred Yabke said Horner's lengthy driving record was a strong indication Horner represented a threat to safety. Based on records maintained by the Michigan Secretary of State office, Horner should not have been eligible to apply for license reinstatement for another 23 years.

Horner was hauled over for trial in Wayne County Circuit Court for a date later this month.

Bracket signs hang from outside the nearly-completed CadyCentre building to let city leaders know what such decorations would look like. The signs will be taken down shortly.

Experimental bracket signs posted

By CHRIS C. DAVIS
Staff Writer

Just pretend the signs hanging from the west side of the CadyCentre building aren't there, because sometime later this week, they won't be.

The signs have been hung as a sort of demonstration project to let residents and business owners know what bracket signs would look like in Northville.

Northville city manager Gary Word said the signs have been posted on a temporary basis after Northville's downtown development authority and planning commission decided to experiment with the aesthetics of bracket signs.

At present, the city's signage ordinance is a bit fuzzy on permitting bracket signs to be posted, Word said.

"Basically, the ordinance allows the signs to be placed, but only under specific size guidelines and only after a proposal has been brought to the city council for approval," he said. "Historically, the council has been reluctant to allow those sorts of signs to be installed. In this case, the DDA is paying for the experiment, while the planning commission is taking a leadership role in having the signs hung."

Northville Camera owner Bill Richardson said he supported permitting bracket signs to be placed on downtown buildings. Richardson said the Gibbs-Green report, a comprehensive study of Northville's residential and business landscape, indicated bracket signs would be a positive step forward for the city.

Richardson also said planning commission members of two years ago seemed to have an interest in promoting bracket signs.

The sign bearing Northville Camera's name now in place on CadyCentre, Richardson said, is the sign he'd like to have installed over his business, presently located at 117 E. Main Street.

With or without the ordinance, Richardson said customers have inquired heavily about what's happening to Northville Camera.

"I'm getting a million calls a day from people asking if I'm moving. I'm not," he said. "But if people walk past the new signs and like what they see, I hope they call city hall and let them know."

CadyCentre nears completion; lease space going fast

By CHRIS C. DAVIS
Staff Writer

Northville's newest large-scale commercial and office development is in the home stretch of completion and should be ready for occupancy by early fall, the building's developer said last week.

CadyCentre, located on the east side of Center Street just south of Main Street, has been under construction for about a year.

Workers spent the fall and winter months assembling the steel and concrete portions of the structure.

The steel framework has been covered with a sandy brick facade, and according to project coordinator Mike Kahm, the entire project should be done by mid-September.

The project is being undertaken by Bloomfield Hills group Singh Development.

"The outside shell is all done," Kahm said. "We're concentrating on the interior of the building and getting it ready for the tenants we'll have in there."

The sister building to Main Centre Apartments, CadyCentre will house commercial and office tenants, Kahm said. An elevated walkway will join the building and the nearby parking structure.

The lower level has five available retail spots, while the second level and third levels — all 16,000 square feet of them — have been leased out by Century 21. The entire building is 23,800 square feet in size.

The architecture, Kahm said, seems to work well with the existing appearance of the city.

"Our goal has always been to pull the downtown character into the building's design," Kahm said.

Northville city manager Gary Word expressed interest in developing a CadyCentre-like structure near the intersection of Church and Griswold Streets, which could be accomplished by selling contiguous pieces of property at the location.

ALL IN THE WRIST

There are two simple tests that can be used to help determine whether a person has carpal tunnel syndrome (CRT), the wrist malady that produces numbness and pain in the hand. These tests measure wrist shape and the strength of certain muscles in the palm. According to a study in the American Journal of Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation, a wrist that is square, rather than rectangular (as measured by a caliper), may predispose a person to CRT. In addition, having weak thenar muscles, gauged by holding the thumb and pinky finger together while a doctor pushes on the thumb, may also be indicative of CRT. However, neither test is as good at diagnosing the problem as a nerve conduction study. Repetitive stress injuries such as carpal tunnel syndrome are the fastest growing health concern in the U.S. If you believe you may have this disorder, call NOVACARE at 349-3816 to schedule a diagnostic test. HEEL PAIN

Heel spurs have their name for good reason. The bone growth that forms on the bottom or back of the heel often has the sharp, pointed appearance of a spur, and like that boot attachment worn by horseback riders, it can inflict serious pain. In mild cases, the discomfort of heel spurs may be eased with warm soaks, rest, prescription orthotics (shoe inserts), injections, strappings, or oral medication. If the growth has reached the stage where such measures are ineffective, surgery may be necessary. Fortunately, improved techniques have made such procedures less traumatic and recovery quicker. Using a tiny lighted tool called an "Endoscope," a podiatrist can both examine the deformity and treat it through the smallest of incisions. This heel spur surgery can be performed in our office.

If you are the victim of heel spurs, you don't have to let foot pain slow you down. The relief you are seeking is available. Our facility is fully equipped and our staff particularly skilled in helping with all kinds of foot conditions, including bunions, corns, calluses, nail problems, warts, heel pain, sports injuries, hammertoes, diabetic feet, and ankle problems. For an appointment for foot care for adults and children, please call FOOT HEALTH CENTERS - Total Foot and Ankle Care. We specialize in all types of foot surgery including laser surgery.

P.S. One of the advantages of endoscopic surgery is the minimal amount of post-operative scarring, which can be a source of pain and irritation.

CREDIT CARD FRAUD

Novi woman deals with headache of stolen credit card

By CHRIS C. DAVIS
Staff Writer

Superstitious hockey fan that she is, Karen Kasnaic didn't want to purchase Stanley Cup merchandise too early, fearing to do so would jinx the Red Wings' chances of a championship repeat.

So when she went to Meijer the evening of June 16 — with the Wings' sitting on a 3-0 series lead — she felt comfortable in buying a rally flag.

Her comfort ended there.

Kasnaic, a Novi resident, became aware of the dangers associated with stolen credit cards when she left her wallet behind at the store that night. Hundreds of dollars in charges were racked up to her card when store employees took it and went on a mid-night shopping spree.

Luckily, she said, store security was wise to the situation and helped intervene, but her sense of trust of others isn't what it used to be.

"I felt dumb because I couldn't believe I'd done that, but I also feel angry that someone would use something that wasn't theirs," she said.

Kasnaic said she went to the store expecting to make only a couple of purchases. Realizing more goods were needed, she quickly had a shopping cart filled with more items than she'd anticipated buying. Kasnaic said she wanted to pay by writing a check, which required her to produce identification.

After running the check through the authorization computer and ringing up her total, Kasnaic said she made her way for the exit — unaware the wallet containing her credit cards, about $120 in cash and personal items had been left behind.

"I found out later the lady who was standing in line behind me tried calling me to get my wallet back to me, but I was already out the door," Kasnaic said.

The woman behind Kasnaic turned the wallet over to the cashier, who placed it under the register for safe keeping.

But it wasn't safe for long. According to store surveillance tape and police reports, the cashier removed a credit card from the wallet before turning it over to store security at the end of her shift. The cashier then went to visit her boyfriend, who worked in the delicatessen section of the store, and gave him the credit card.

Later in the evening, reports said, the boyfriend came through his girlfriend's checkout lane, using the stolen credit card to purchase around $120 in clothing.

Meanwhile, the next morning, Kasnaic said she was in her home and needed to make a telephone call to a person whose number was kept in her wallet. Unable to locate it in her house, Kasnaic said she first thought the wallet must have been left overnight in her car.

—Karen Kasnaic

It wasn't there, she said. "I knew that I must have left it at Meijer, because that was the only place I'd been with it the previous night," she said.

Kasnaic said she telephoned Meijer management to ask if the wallet had been located. Apparently, the word hadn't fully circulated through the store, and the person Kasnaic spoke with hadn't seen the wallet. She then began the process of canceling her credit cards.

"It was frustrating, because you had to remember all the things that were in there," she said.

Paying attention to receipts, statements key to avoiding many credit card woes

By CHRIS C. DAVIS
Staff Writer

Though there's no exact figure for what credit card fraud costs Americans each year, U.S. Secret Service agent Dave Scouler says it can be summed up in two words:

A lot.

And in the metro Detroit area, it's become an especially bad problem.

"We get a lot of calls from people saying they've been hit, and we're getting more each year," Scouler said. "It's definitely something on the rise."

Scouler said there's good news and bad news when it comes to credit card fraud. The bad news, he said, is that most credit card issuers won't investigate cases where the spending amounts to less than $30,000.

But that shouldn't deter people from filing complaints with the Secret Service, which not only protects the life of the President, but also investigates counterfeiting and credit card cons, Scouler said.

"Maybe someone charged $1,000 to your card," Scouler said. "In and of itself, that's probably not enough to have an investigation done. But if we get reports of $1,000 from you and $1,000 in charges on the cards of other people near you, we can get a case together which could very well be more than $30,000."

Scouler said there are any of a number of ways to scam credit card-holders out of their money, but southeast Michigan has been hit by a few in particular.

One of the more unfortunate tricks pulled by credit card issuers comes from the issuers themselves, Scouler said. Once in a while, employees will search the bank's computer database and pull identifier information — social security numbers, addresses, and mother's maiden names.

With that information in hand, employees can obtain a false identity and possibly begin making charges to unsuspecting people.

"The bottom line is that when someone gets a hold of your personal information, they can go a long way with it," Scouler said. "You really need to be careful protecting that information."

Another more elaborate scam involves altering the actual credit card. Scouler said some con artists will use a computer and a scanning machine to recode the magnetic strip on the backside of the card.

Though it sounds complex, Scouler said the alterations can be made with equipment purchased through electronics stores.

Still other thieves will use receipts printed from credit card purchases and use the number printed on the receipt to run up purchases, Scouler said.

And as for those pre-approved credit card applications which arrive in the mail periodically, Scouler said there isn't much that can be done — except to tear up the application before it's thrown away.

"Banks routinely check the demographics of a certain area to mass-mail those applications to people they think would be good customers to have," Scouler said. "If you're not interested in the offer they have, the best thing you can do is completely destroy the application before you dispose of it."

Scouler said getting in touch with the Secret Service gives a complainant the legal advantage of dealing with an entity that has the authority to investigate not just between cities, but also across state lines.

"If you're from Northville Township and discover there have been charges rung up on your card in Sterling Heights and Toledo, you may run into some jurisdictional roadblocks," Scouler said. "You don't want to discount local authorities, of course, but the Secret Service has the authority to work through situations like these."

Scouler or other U.S. Secret Service agents make themselves available for presentations before community, business or civic groups regarding credit card scams. If you're interested, call the Secret Service office at (313) 226-6400.

CHECK YOUR STATEMENTS

Does your credit card statement have charges that don't add up? Here's the advice the U.S. Secret Service has for you to avoid getting stung:

- Call your credit card company immediately. You won't be responsible for the fraudulent charges and your card will be de-activated so further charges can't be posted.
- Contact the merchants where the purchases were made from. Ask them to send you a fraud affidavit. Filling it out and returning it can keep your credit rating intact.
- Get in touch with the three credit companies: Equifax (800-525-6285), TransUnion (800-680-7289) and Experian, formerly TRW (800-301-7195).
- Call the Secret Service office closest to you. You may have information needed to spearhead an investigation.

By CHRIS C. DAVIS
Staff Writer

The window in Candy Lamb's office overlooks Twelve Oaks Mall, where almost anything you could ever want is for sale. Unfortunately, the things people want aren't always the things that people can afford.

Enter: credit card debt.

Lamb is a credit counselor for Consumer Credit Counseling of Michigan, a state-licensed, non-profit agency. The service has won the endorsement of several state and national companies and has been featured on "The Oprah Winfrey Show" in the last month.

And in recent years, the number of people Lamb has assisted has been on the rise.

"We're always busy here, but we've seen more people here lately," she said.

Lamb said she's had clients from almost every socioeconomic group around, from 18-year-olds who've gotten off on the wrong foot, to engineers and attorneys with $70,000 in bills hanging over their head.

"From what I've seen, people in the Novi area who come in here are just poor money managers," she said. "We take the non-judgmental approach. We want to fix the problem if it's at all possible."

Consumer Credit has fixed its share of problems. Lamb said she's saved people from having utilities turned off or cars or homes repossessed. As a whole, Consumer Credit's branch offices across the Midwest have helped people pay back more than $500 million in debt.

But how does the debt amass in the first place? Lamb said it often starts with credit cards and the minimum monthly payments tied with them.

"A lot of people we see in here are under the impression that if they just make the minimum payment, they'll stay afloat," Lamb said. "That's not the case. You're not digging into the principle, and the interest from that starts adding up in a real hurry."

After a while, the principle grows, inflating the minimum monthly payment.

"Pretty soon, that $15 minimum payment becomes $40 and then $60 and before you know it, you can't even make the minimum payment," Lamb said. "That's a dangerous time."

Another poor strategy some credit card holders use, Lamb said, is to make a cash withdrawal from one credit card to pay the minimum payment of another.

"You know you're in trouble if that starts happening," Lamb said.

Consumer Credit's role is to act as an intermediary between a client and the creditor, Lamb said. Consumer Credit will make arrangements with a credit card issuer to have the monthly payments reduced as much as possible. In some cases, interest may be entirely eliminated and annual fees waived, she said.

Fees to clients are charged based on the amount of debt which needs to be liquidated, though first consultations with Consumer Credit are free of charge, she said.

Experts give advice on common debt questions

Wondering what to do about your credit card debt? Here are some suggestions from Consumer Credit Counseling of Michigan:

Q: The bills are mounting and I'm not sure I've got enough money to cover them. What should I do?

A: The key word here is "do." Not doing anything is about the worst inaction to take. Your first step should be to contact the credit card companies to let them know about your situation and ask what can be done. Be honest in your communication, and don't be muscled into pledging something you can't do, such as making a bigger payment than you can afford. Keep a record of who you talked to (including last names) at the companies, and send any written correspondence as certified mail.

Q: I called the companies and they didn't really help. Now what?

A: Get in touch with a licensed credit counseling company. They're different than credit repair agencies, which generally aren't what they're cracked up to be, according to Consumer Credit Counseling. Ask about getting enrolled in a debt repayment program, which can lower your monthly payments. In the meanwhile, pay those things which take priority in life — the house, utilities, auto payments and insurance premiums.

Q: How does Consumer Credit Counseling Service make their money? They're a business, too, aren't they?

A: CCCS is a non-profit agency which gets its money through grants from credit card companies and from fees charged to clients based on their ability to pay and amount of debt they're bringing to the table. First consultations are free.

Q: What about bankruptcy? Is that a good option?

A: Only in the most absolutely dire of situations. Bankruptcies cause serious damage to credit reports, and remain on those reports for seven years' time. You're almost always better off to schedule some kind of repayment with creditors. Besides that, the fees charged by attorneys to file for bankruptcy usually can't be among the debts forgiven should a bankruptcy be granted.

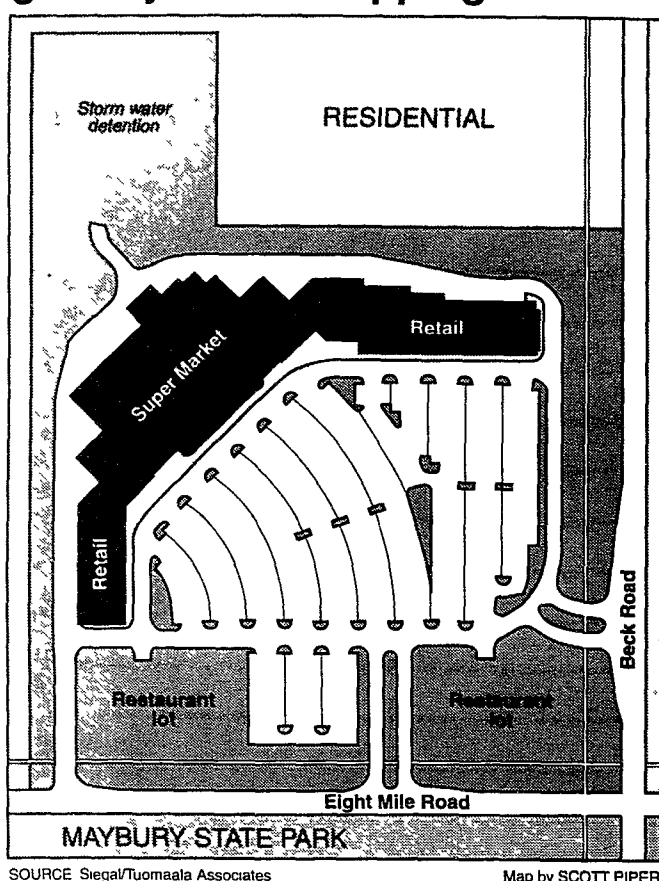

Q: If I enroll with Consumer Credit, what will happen to my credit report?

A: It varies on a case-to-case basis. In some cases, companies which extend credit may look at you unfavorably if you've signed up with CCCS, believing you've not been responsible in your spending habits. However, many companies view a debt repayment program as a good response to financial pressure. Your best bet is to request copies of your credit report from the three credit reporting agencies and to verify that the information contained therein is accurate: Equifax (800-525-6285), Experian (800-301-7195) and TransUnion (800-680-7289). Be warned — you may be asked to enter a credit card number to obtain a copy of the report and then be told your card has been charged to do so.

Novi, Northville residents join against Kroger plans

SOURCE: Siegal/Tuomala Associates

Map by SCOTT PIPER

By JAN JEFFRES
Staff Writer

Novi and Northville residents are uniting in opposition to a Kroger-anchored shopping center proposed for the northwest corner of Beck and Eight Mile Road.

Petitions protesting the rezoning needed for the project are now circulating in both communities.

Representatives from nine subdivisions met at the Northville home of Lindsey Scheinberg last week to organize their campaign. They're concerned about what they describe as the increase in traffic, the loss of the rural feel of the area and the near proximity of a commercial development to their homes and Maybury State Park, if the Kroger opens its doors at the corner.

Scheinberg and her husband, David, are both runners who already find the area increasingly treacherous due to traffic.

"Everytime he's going to the park to run, I say, 'be careful when you cross Beck,'" Scheinberg said Monday.

Currently, the 24 acres at the corner, now occupied by J. J. Zayti Inc. Sand and Gravel, are zoned for residential-agricultural, permitting 15 homes. The Stuart Frankel Development Company seeks a rezoning to the B-2 business-commercial category to make way for a 141,000 square foot strip shopping center, two restaurants and 793 parking spaces.

On Aug. 19, the rezoning will come before the Novi Planning Commission.

This week, the developer has been meeting informally with members of the planning commission and city council. Novi Planning Commission Chair Eda Weddington spoke with Frankel on Tuesday morning and said afterwards she wasn't convinced by his position.

"I wasn't in favor of the proposed grocery store at Ten and Beck. I'm not very positively predisposed to the one at Eight and Beck," Weddington said.

"It's inconsistent with our master plan. I believe that the people who have done their homework and purchased in an area that was masterplanned for residential have a right to expect it will be developed as residential."

Weddington explained that her concern is that if the rezoning is approved, anything permitted under the business category could be built, including a gas station.

In early 1997, Frankel appeared before the Novi Planning Commission to discuss building a convenience shopping center with supermarket at Ten Mile and Beck roads. At that time, 100 residents turned out in opposition.

At least 12 petitions opposed to the latest concept are now circulating and Scheinberg said she's already gathered 130 signatures on hers.

Subdivisions represented in the petition drive include North Beacon Woods, Northville Estates, Abby Knoll, Pheasant Hills, Lexington Commons, Barclay Estates, Autumn Park, Beckingham and Edinborough.

"I believe that the people who have done their homework and purchased in an area that was masterplanned for residential have a right to expect it will be developed as residential."

Eda Weddington
Novi Planning Commission Chair

acquired experience in organizing homeowners when they battled the site plan for the neighboring Dunnabeck Estates.

"A strip mall across from Maybury Park is so incongruous. It just really defiles the area," Dembicki said.

"This just gets so frustrating. Everyone wants to build another strip mall on another corner. There's tons of corners where it's commercial that they should be looking at."

The residents say they don't mind driving to other grocery stores in the area, including two Meijer's, two Farmer Jacks, two Hiller's Shopping Center Markets and one Busch's.

As Barbara Lucas of Northville's

Westview Drive sees it, not only is there no need for retail in the Eight Mile/Beck Road area, but a shopping center would damage a rural neighborhood.

She said she's happy to drive ten or twenty minutes to do her grocery shopping.

"Telling us we could keep Maybury a park area and build around it, hurts the animals that live there. They won't have anywhere to roam to look for food and to find mates," Lucas said.

"This issue is going to come up again and again on the west side of Eight Mile as the people sell. If they have to sell to developers, I would like to see developers come in that would be more appropriate to the area."

Scheinberg said she didn't agree with what she termed "the mind set that says it's not convenient if it's not one-half mile from your house."

However, Weddington said she agrees with Frankel that there may be a need for some convenience shopping opportunities somewhere in western Novi.

She serves on a committee that aims to have Novi's master plan updated by next July.

In the western side of Novi, plans are underway for another grocery. Providence Hospital, in partnership with the Jonna company, has discussed with the city a possible 200,000 square foot commercial complex, to potentially include a hotel, a grocery store and other uses, across from the Grand River Avenue medical center.

Mill Race Matters

Teachers are already preparing for the next school year by booking school tours of Mill Race Village grounds and one-room school house. Marietta Rathbun is looking for additional people to train as school docents. If you would be interested in volunteering, please call the office at (248) 348-1845, Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. This doesn't require a major commitment; however, it is rewarding when you see how much the children enjoy learning a little bit of history in such pleasant surroundings.

The City of Northville is accepting proposals for the sale and development of a parcel of land in Downtown Northville. The City wishes to sell the property in order to achieve a high quality development that will contribute to the vitality of the downtown, be architecturally compatible with the rest of the neighborhood, and advance the goals of the Development Plan and Tax Increment Financing Plan and the City's Master Plan for the area. Development of this under-utilized property will achieve several goals: return the property to the tax roll, provide revenue for other infrastructure and enhancement projects, create additional jobs in the downtown, and contribute to the character and economic health of the Downtown. It is the intent of the City and the DDA to select a proposal, and negotiate a sales and development agreement with a qualified applicant who will develop the land in a manner consistent with the objectives outlined above.

The site is located in the Central Business District, City of Northville, County of Wayne, State of Michigan, Lots 55 and 56 are located on the north side of Cady Street between Church Street and Griswold. Sanitary sewer, water, and storm water utilities are available to the site along both Church and Cady Streets. The property is currently vacant, and is maintained by the City. The property is located within the boundaries of the Downtown Development Authority's district, and is included in the City of Northville's Historic District.

Central Business District (CBD)

ZONING: PROPOSAL REQUIREMENTS:

Proposals must be submitted on the Proposal Form provided in this package. The proposal must include a good-faith deposit in the amount of twenty percent (20%) of the purchase price and a description of the proposed development of the property as explained in the Proposal Form. Prospective developers must be willing and able to commence the construction phase of the proposed project within twelve (12) months of acceptance of the proposal by the City Council and be willing to enter into a development agreement.

SITE DEVELOPMENT GOALS:

The City and the DDA wish to advance a number of goals outlined in the Downtown Development Plan and Tax Increment Financing Plan, the Commercial Planning Study, and the City's Master Plan through the sale and development of the Cady Street properties. The desirable elements for any proposal include:

1. Commercial use, either as the sole use or as a component of a mixed use project including residential use.

The applicant may be asked to provide additional financial information to allow the City and the DDA to make this determination.

BASIS OF SELECTION:

The City's purpose in selling the property is to encourage a development project which will be compatible with the current development mix and will contribute to the general economic vitality of the downtown development district. The City and the DDA, in their reviews, will determine which proposal is in the best interest of the Downtown and the City of Northville considering the following factors as a whole:

1. The project's contribution to the vitality and stability of Downtown Northville.
2. Ability to assemble additional adjacent parcels to maximize project viability.
3. Tax base value of the proposed project.
4. Purchase price.
5. Project schedule.

E. coli keeps local swimmers at bay

By CHRIS C. DAVIS
Staff Writer

Following a trend in many metro Detroit lakes, Silver Springs Lake was cordoned off to swimmers by Wayne County officials last week after high levels of E. coli bacteria were detected, but officials stressed the bacteria found "wasn't the nasty stuff."

E. coli is a bacteria which appears naturally in the environment and is present in humans. E. coli appears in several forms, or strains, including the type found in the digestive tracts of humans. However, biologists assume the appearance of the more tempered variety of E. coli as an indication that other, more damaging bacteria may be present.

Wayne County environmental health department spokesperson Tom McNulty said sampling of the lake's water had been taking place since June. During the testing period, McNulty said bacteria levels had shown a slow but steady increase.

Though the exact cause of the rising bacteria count wasn't known, McNulty said waterfowl droppings were strong suspects.

Aside from allowing nature to run its course, McNulty said there are very few options available for treatment.

"It's basically a matter of just wait-and-see," McNulty said. "We're testing on a weekly basis now. The kind of E. coli we have in Silver Springs Lake is an indicator bacteria, and we're watching it."

If there's good news to be had out of the announcement, McNulty said it's that boaters and fishing enthusiasts can still pursue their leisure.

"We don't want to see people swimming, wading, or — obviously — drinking the water," McNulty said.

Though Silver Springs Lake was hit with the non-fatal strain of E. coli, other forms can cause severe illness or even kill.

Hidden Lakes subdivision representatives could not be reached for comment.

Perennials, Woodland Wildflowers, Rare Alpines, Dwarf Conifers, Unusual Shrubs, and Plants for Butterfly Gardens

It's been a crazy spring. In more ways than one, but we're finally done with our mail order shipping and can now accommodate walk in trade. We are pleased to be able to offer one of the largest selections of wildflowers in the U.S. Trilliums, Lady's Slippers, Bloodroot and rarities like Shorea and Ansaema sikokianum. There are thousands of potted perennials to choose from, sun or shade, dry or pond, old favorites to rarities found nowhere else, we have it all with over 6000 species and varieties to choose from. We are a production nursery not a garden center so our inventory is at maximum in late summer. Why not buy direct from the source for the best selection and price. It's a huge place and we are always happy to tell you where to find something or offer suggestions, but we are a working nursery and it's up to the customer to go and fetch it, so don't expect to be led by the hand (besides, exploring is half the fun and you can find rare plants without having to eat yak jerky).

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

by John Goodman
Coldwell Banker Preferred

WHEN IT'S YOUR INVESTMENT

When you own an investment property, your goal is to get the highest monthly rental with the lowest vacancy rate and to keep quality tenants. How can you pull it all together?

It pays to keep your property in good condition, not only while you are trying to rent it out, but after the tenants move in. You obviously want the property to look its best while it is being shown, but if you work at keeping it in top condition when tenants are living there, they are likely to stay around for a while. When something needs to be repaired, be sure they know whom to call to get the job done. Arrange for periodic inspections of the property to check for leaking roofs or pipes, defective wiring or malfunctioning appliances. If you are an absentee landlord, it makes sense to hire professionals to keep a close eye on your investment for you.

For professional advice on all aspects of buying or selling real estate, contact John Goodman, one of the top 9 sales agents internationally out of 60,000 Coldwell Banker agents for 1994, 1995, 1996, and 1997. Call 810-908-2789.

Police, fire get by; park land, shared services rejected

"Our residents have always been very proud of the service our police and fire departments provide, and I think that showed at the polls yesterday."

But Woodside also said some misleading information from other news agencies may have been the culprit in the 'no' votes for shared services and park land acquisition and development. Woodside said some reports indicated the 6.34 mills being requested would be added on to the existing 4 mills being paid by township residents, for a grand total of more than 10 mills.

"That misunderstanding may have caused a problem," she said.

In addition, Woodside said other confusion may have arisen with the term "shared services."

Woodside said she fielded phone calls from residents asking questions about the program, one of whom asked if it involved Wayne County bus service.

Public safety director Chip Snider said he was relieved and happy to have police and fire services funded for the next eight years, but said the cheer was tempered with the knowledge that other township services didn't fare as well.

With funding in hand, Snider said fire and police patrols would be able to begin providing services to the newly-developed portions of Northville Township, per the guidance of the township's finance office.

"We're going to begin targeting those areas immediately that need improvement," Snider said. "In public safety, planning your strategies is a team effort. The finance director is the captain in this case. We'll take her direction."

Though the parks land acquisition and shared services portions of the millage were defeated, director Traci Sincock remained upbeat Wednesday morning.

"As far as we're concerned, it's business as usual here," Sincock said. "We're planning fall programs, and we're going to do that until we're told to do otherwise. Obviously, the township board will have some decisions to make."

Township clerk Sue Hillebrand said she looked to election results as a gauge for measuring residents' sentiment.

"We can't ask our 20,000-plus residents what they want all the time, so I really put a lot of faith in what happens in our elections," she said.

Youth assistance director Mary Ellen King could not be reached for comment.

Despite protests, board holds fast on start of class

Rupley said. "People are tired of having the teachers dictate, the unions dictate when we go to school and when we have breaks."

She and other parents urged the board to rethink the start date before signing the new contract.

Board members responded that the start date reflects this year's late Labor Day, which falls on Sept. 7.

The surveys were meant to determine how mid-year breaks should be altered as the state increases the amount of days and hours required during the school year, school officials said.

They also said the survey was somewhat vague.

In the 1997 survey, 53 percent of parents said they wanted school to start after Labor Day, while 37 percent said they'd like to see school begin late August. School officials said Aug. 24 could very well be considered "late August."

The survey had a 32 percent response rate and was sent to all 2,865 families in the district.

The calendar is the only aspect of the tentative contract that has been announced so far.

"This was a total shock," said parent Judy Enderle. "I hope you can do something to stop this this year. If not this year than the next or the parents will have to take further action. That's all I have to say."

Under the Public Employment Relations Act, passed in 1965, the school board has unequivocal power to set the start date of school although it has no power to set the rest of the calendar.

Teachers could choose not to show up after the first day of school, but that's unlikely according to David Hershey, Assistant Director for the Michigan Association of School Boards.

"Theoretically that could happen. I can't really see the parties agreeing to that in a final document," he said.

Aside from the first day, all other days of the calendar are negotiable.

"It is a mandatory topic of bargaining and with the increased requirement for days and hours in the calendar it is becoming more and more difficult to start after Labor Day and get out the traditional first or second week in June."

Some members of the board expressed concern that if they set the start date without negotiating, they would risk losing ground on the rest of the contract.

"Using that chip, if you will, may affect negotiations elsewhere. The calendar is a visible item but there are a lot of other aspects of the contract that are important," said school board vice-president Joan Wadsworth. "We can't go nitpicking every step of the negotiations. The issue was to try to look at the big picture to do good for the kids in the district in ways that may be just as important as the calendar."

Negotiations between the NEA and school administrators are conducted in secrecy and the board became reluctant to discuss the calendar further at the public meeting when the contract became an issue.

The previous contract is set to expire Aug. 31, and contains agreements over pay rates, hours, wages and other conditions of employment through the Great Depression. Because money and resources were at a premium, Galli said he and his family needed to use some creative means of getting by.

Writing, reading Galli's passions

"The coal trains used to stop in my town at around 4 a.m.," Galli said. "My friends and I would climb on top of the train and throw down a few lumps of coal that we'd collect in a burlap bag and use to heat the home later that day."

Things got better for Galli in 1937 when he met Freda Brady — the woman who would eventually become his wife. The two met while Galli was working through his educational program at the Mercy School of Nursing.

"It was a blind date," Galli said. "She didn't even want to go out with me that night, but she decided to tough it out and we spent the whole night dancing and listening to the band play. It was a great time."

Galli made the move from the Keystone State to the Motor City in 1941 after one of his friends, James Mulroy, encouraged Galli to head to Detroit and go to work as an industrial nurse. The labor needs in the U.S. were at a premium as America moved into a wartime economy.

In 1946, Galli said he left Chrysler and began a seven-year stint with the Upjohn company as a pharmaceutical representative. Along the way, he and Freda moved to St. Clair Shores and later to Grosse Pointe Woods, where the couple's first two children, Roberta and Susan, grew up.

But it was in 1953 that Galli took up a job at Northville Psychiatric Hospital as assistant director of Nursing. At his post, Galli said he was responsible for 800 patients and a staff of 200 aides.

"It was a lot of work — a lot of rewarding work, but a lot of work just the same," Galli said.

Galli teamed up with then NPH nursing services director John Wick in 1977 to create an outpatient surgical suite at Borgstrom Hospital, where he stayed for the final two years of his career.

Poetry was always one of Galli's big interests, but he said the conflict in Vietnam concerned him enough to write some of his most powerful material, including a 16-line poem which described the visions of war as seen through the eyes of a child.

"It was an awful time in American history," Galli said. "That period really got to me."

On a happier note, Galli has also come up with his own definition of God, which has been framed and sits above his bed.

"I don't think of God as a person," Galli said. "God, to me, is the collective compassionate and caring conscience of humankind."

Reading has also been one of Galli's loves, and although he said he doesn't read as much now as he did when he was younger, the listing of books Galli has polished off looks more like something you'd expect a Yale graduate student to work on. The names Steele and Grisham take a backseat to Aristotle and Jung.

"I'm not that much into novels," he said. "It's hard to find a Stephen King piece in here."

There are more questions you want to ask Galli once you sit down and talk with him, but he's only got so much time to spend.

"I've got to get to the library to see if they have the new copy of New Republic," Galli said, followed by a smile. "There might be some good material to write letters about in there."

percent approval by the voters for the measure to be enacted.

For the 20th State House race, Law, the incumbent, easily beat out fellow Republican challenger K. C. Mueller. Democratic candidate Fred Dilacovo ran unopposed for his party, and finished second overall in balloting.

For the city of Northville, incumbent Republican Bill Bullard emerged victorious over challenger Barbara Dobb. Bullard, however, finished second in overall balloting to Ruth Fuller.

Northville Township clerk Sue Hillebrand reported about a 25 percent turnout among the eligible voters, while Northville City clerk Delphine Gutowski reported similar statistics. Gutowski said both the Wayne and Oakland County portions of the city had a 22 percent turnout at the polls.

More extensive coverage, including comments from election winners and losers, will appear in next week's edition of the Record.

Police, residents enjoy cycle patrol

"We've received a great deal of public support for the vehicles," Sherman said. "People tend to relate to us more as we drive through the subdivisions. Quite honestly, if I pull up to you in the street, we don't have a door or window between us. We can form a much more personal relationship with the people we're talking to."

You can see the Harleys on patrol whenever the pavement is dry.

The bikes' speedometers register up to 120 miles per hour, but officers are forbidden to use them for high speed pursuit because of safety reasons.

If a motorcycle officer makes an arrest, they must call for a patrol unit to transport the suspects, but the bikes are used for back-up, traffic stops and especially public relations.

"You'd be surprised how many Harley owners are in the township who enjoy talking to officers about bikes and end up talking about community issues. I think it's certainly a plus to the agency and I certainly think the citizens support the presence of the bikes. It's a very good tool," he said.

Marquis Theater camps bring drama to summertime

Every weekday every summer, a group of kids have camp out in Northville's downtown gazebo.

But it isn't a traditional summer camp.

At the Marquis Theater day camp, kids from age 7-15 learn to sing, dance and pretend they're someone else entirely.

They rehearse in the gazebo across the street from the renovated vaudeville theater, located at 133 E. Main St.

At the end of each two week camp sessions, students get the chance to strut their stuff in front of an audience.

This year the Day Camp set presented "The Magic Attic," a medley of skits and songs, while the more advanced Star Campers acted out scenes from plays and more intricate songs and choreography in a Cabaret-style musical review.

"This is beginning level work, mostly company numbers, a few solos. The kids learn about acting and they can begin auditioning for regular stuff," said Day Camp director Debbie Tedrick-Ackerman.

Many of the campers learned about the camping opportunity at Marquis during school field trips to see the theater's productions of children's plays.

The summer workshops are a chance for kids to get exposure to drama and perhaps give them the skills to audition and land a spot in a regular production.

Most of the children are enthusiastic about their role in the productions.

"I went last year. I wasn't too sure about it but after the first week out I was so excited about it I couldn't wait to go back," said Sarah Frazer, 11, of Livonia. "We learn about the songs we do, staging, theater, how to be a good actor or actress, stuff like that."

Frazer said the camp helps her with off-stage public speaking as well.

"You get less afraid once you get up on stage and look at all these people. You aren't as afraid the next time you do something like that," she said.

Michael Howell, 11, of Northville, also attended Day Camp.

"I like how the teachers always play games with us to build up our confidence. They're just real supportive. That's the reason I come here," he said.

But Scott Adams, 9, of Livonia, summed up the reason many kids attend the camp.

"It's super fun here. They show you how to do shows. You can be in shows and it's a beautiful theater to come to," he said. "And we get pizza."

This year, the Marquis theater company actors will be performing Raggedy Ann and Andy and Cinderella.

For more information, call the Marquis Theater at 349-8110.

Court's in session for teens

New program gives youth opportunity to sit as jurors for peers

By CHRIS C. DAVIS
Staff Writer

Picture this: you're 14 years old and have been caught puffing cigarettes by a police officer. You fill out the paperwork for the court system. The date for your appearance finally comes around, and sitting in the jury box is...

...the girl in your biology class.

No, it's not a joke. In fact, 35th District Court judge Ron Lowe wants it made clear that the forthcoming "teen court" is far from a joke, and that's why such an immense amount of preparation will be made for the program to get off the ground in time for fall classes at both Northville and Plymouth-Canton schools.

The teen court concept is still relatively new, but has made waves in its short life span across the U.S. More than 400 such courts now exist, in which juries comprised of persons similar in age to the defendants determine which, of a series of possible sentences, be handed down for misdemeanor violations.

That's the starting point, but Lowe said he hoped to have the program expanded to the point where teens would not only comprise juries, but also take on the roles of attorneys and ultimately, judges.

That's down the road, though, Lowe said. For now, the focus is on sentencing.

"I think the biggest challenge we're going to face is convincing people that we're not kidding around with this," Lowe said. "This isn't play court. This is the real thing. Real people will have real things happen in their lives as a result of what goes on in this court."

Though judges are making periodic arrangements with high schools to conduct hearings in school auditoriums, Lowe said he planned on holding teen court within the actual courthouse. Youths selected for jury duty would be brought in during regular school hours and sent back to their schools by the end of the day.

"We want to lend a certain air of austerity to the event so that kids learn from it," Lowe said. "I think it would be more difficult to take seriously if you were doing this in a classroom."

The project was given a boost courtesy of a visit by Tracy Godwin, a member of the American Probation and Parole Association of Lexington, Ky. She visited Lowe and members of the court's probation department in April to set up a plan to bring the court into being.

As it stands, Lowe said the court has been in communication with practical law teachers at Plymouth-Canton High School. Together with Northville High School teachers, the three groups are developing modules to help teach students what's involved.

The curriculum may be incorporated into existing classes, or a brand-new class devoted to teaching teen court jurors how to do their jobs may be created.

"It's very important that the youths who come through the classes also understand that this isn't a sham," Lowe said. "They need to understand they'll be dealing with their peers."

The students selected to serve on the court will do so in a juror capacity and will be made responsible to select an appropriate sentence from a list of potential ones. Lowe said the jury will be advised by the probation and juvenile divisions to take into consideration past behaviors and mitigated and aggravated circumstances.

"This should be a very good program that I think kids will be able to benefit from," Lowe said.

It's hoped to have the teen court program launched sometime in early to mid-October.

Time has come for city to embrace bracket signs

If you've taken a walk past the CadyCentre building any time in the last two weeks, you've probably noticed the signs hanging from the west wall. We've made two observations: a) the businesses listed aren't necessarily moving into the building, and b) the signs look sharp.

People are clearly taking notice of the signs because of their prominence and appearance. That, and the fact that very few bracket signs are located downtown. Their rarity makes them special.

Technically speaking, bracket signs are permitted in Northville. However, they require the seal of approval from city leaders before going up, and the city council has historically shied away from letting those sorts of signs be posted.

The reasons may be well-founded. Northville has a certain "feel" which the council wishes to preserve. The council may be concerned about visibility and safety issues. Having said all that, we're convinced that with good planning and quality craftsmanship, many of those worries could be alleviated.

Assuming ample safeguards are put in place, we believe the posting of bracket signs in Northville would not only be a help for business, but also add a sense of liveliness to the central business district.

Many communities similar to Northville have permitted bracket signs for a long time. Northville has the advantage of being able to start fresh and learn from the successes — and failures — of other towns.

But don't take our word for it. Ask the owners of businesses on Main Street, Center Street and Mary Alexander Court. They'll tell you they feel the heat from retail developments in other communities.

It's tough and getting tougher to compete in the northwest Wayne / southeast Oakland County area.

If downtown Northville businesses are to continue to thrive in an ever-growing competitive market, city leaders need to give them the tools they need to stay afloat. In our estimation, loosening up and allowing bracket signs to be posted is a fairly simple and inexpensive way to let that happen.

A sign may not seem like much of a weapon in a business war, but we believe every advantage we can give our businesses is one more dollar that stays close to home.

For township officials to go almost one year without filling this critical position is a disservice to township taxpayers — the same people currently being courted to approve a tax increase in August.

Township's cable station promotes public access

Okay, so it's not "Seinfeld," "ER," or "Masterpiece Theater." It's not supposed to be. But one thing "Northville Township Insights" is, is informative, available and — here's the nice part — free of cost to the taxpayers.

The show began airing last week, and though it probably didn't do quite as well in the Nielsen ratings as say, "60 Minutes," it's encouraging to see the township make an attempt to make viewers more aware of their town's leaders.

"Insights" has introduced viewers to fire chief Bill Zhmendak and public safety director Chip Snider — people quoted often in the Record, but not nearly as often photographed. They're the heads of the agency responsible for making bad days better.

Allowing viewers to see and hear Mr. Zhmendak and Mr. Snider, we believe, brings community members closer together with those in positions of power, and makes the township a friendlier place to live.

This newspaper has long supported open government, and believes the township is taking strides to making itself more accessible to its residents by producing the show. This, combined with the township's World Wide Web site and township newsletter, are providing residents with more information about how their community is operated.

For that matter, we hope creative and ambitious members of our community will take advantage of local access television and produce shows of their own.

The airwaves belong to all of us. We encourage the township and residents abroad make the most of advancements in broadcast technology.

Television, after all, wasn't just made for music videos and infomercials.

Dances, motorcycles and golf games

I know it's too early to be talking about the Victorian Festival — heck we're not even through the summer yet — but I just learned something troubling.

The Victorian Ball may be canceled. I know, I know, you're thinking hey, big deal it's only a dance, but for me, the Victorian Ball is one of the highlights. It's an event I look forward to every year. It's one heck of a good time.

And most importantly, my wife Katherine already bought her ball gown, and she's going to be ripped if she doesn't get to wear it.

For me that's cause for concern.

So why are festival planners thinking about nixing this all-important portion of the annual fall festival? To put it bluntly, nobody has stepped forward to take on the challenge of running the ball.

According to Laurie Marrs, the Chamber of Commerce wants to give up the responsibility of running the event. It's a time consuming task that Laurie can't handle by herself — after all, she's got the rest of the festival to worry about, a big enough chore of its own.

She's been courting other local organizations to take the ball over, but has had little luck.

So, unless a group of people steps forward to volunteer, the 10th anniversary of the festival will go on without one of its prize events.

Which is why I am making this appeal on Laurie's behalf — besides it gets me off the hook with my wife, whom I encouraged to purchase an expensive gown not more than a month ago.

Did I say I'm appealing? Sorry, I meant to say begging.

Think of it this way. You and your group can continue a time-honored tradition, have a little fun, and save my marriage, all at the same time.

BORN TO BE WILD

While you are reading this missive, I will be on the last leg of a Harley road trip with Northville High School principal Tom Johnson. We're part of a group that is traveling to Sturgis, S.D. for the largest annual motorcycle gathering in the United States.

Although I don't own a Harley Davidson motorcycle — Johnson got his earlier this year — I'll be driving the "chase vehicle" for the group.

The trip will last eight days and take us through Illinois, Minnesota, Iowa, Wisconsin, and Montana.

People who've made the pilgrimage to Sturgis tell me it's an eye-opening experience, and I'm looking forward to the trip.

FORE...

I promised Northville Township Foundation director Sherri Peters that I'd include information on the foundation's first ever golf outing, scheduled for Sept. 11 at Fox Hills Country Club at 10 a.m.

The outing will be the last in a long string of outings this summer and the proceeds will fund various foundation projects.

If you haven't signed up yet, contact Sherri at 374-0200.

Robert Jackson is the editor of the Northville Record. You can reach him at 349-1700 or email him a message at jackson@ht.hometown.net.

In Focus

by John Heider

Looking for adventure...

Mike Johnson, a member of the local contingency on its way to the Harley Davidson rally in Sturgis, S.D., photographs a sign at Northville High School that reads "Sturgis or Bust" moments before leaving on the trip. Sturgis is the oldest meeting point for motorcycle buffs from across the country. Studies suggest that contrary to popular belief, today's bikers tend to be middle-aged, white-collar types who ride for recreational purposes. A new Harley Davidson runs as much as $17,000.

Roving reporter bids fond farewell

This week I've found the answers to the following questions:

How many folders of notes can one reporter accumulate over three years? Seven file cabinet drawers.

How many names can be squeezed into a Rolodex?

So many they don't all fit.

How hard is it to say goodbye to the number of people this reporter has met along the way?

Pretty darn hard.

When I was offered the job here at The Novi News in November of 1995, I had reservations. Could I be taken seriously as a professional in a town that watched me grow up?

Now I know the answer to that question, too.

Absolutely.

The people here in Novi; the leaders, the residents, the business owners, the teachers, embraced me with welcome arms. To some I was literally a hometown girl, and that worked to my advantage.

It was fun for me to call my former teachers by their first names. To learn how the city really worked. To meet residents I'd never known.

While most of what I wrote over the years was less than controversial, I hope the stories that leaned toward investigative or the not-so-happy were seen by readers as positive because of their honesty and informative nature.

Wendy Pierman-Mitzel

I say all this because I'll be moving in August to be the editor of a new newspaper within the HomeTown chain.

Pinckney may be growing, as is Novi, but it's definitely going to take some getting used to. No malls, ice arenas, 50s Festival, you get the picture.

And no corporate jet rides like the one I took in July with City of Novi officials to see a plastics machinery manufacturing plant in Canada. Instead of muffins on fine china and no long check-in lines, I'll have to go back to peanuts and cramped quarters I guess.

Back to saying good-bye, I never know quite how to do it gracefully.

I'll miss the many people I talk to every day at the school district, city hall, the police station.

I'll miss my co-workers who've become my friends and confidants, enduring many years of my asking out loud in the newsroom "How do you spell ...?"

In particular, I'll miss reporter Jan Jeffres' eclectic desk and witty comments.

And I'll no longer hear daily stories from editor Mike Malott on the adorable antics of his three kids.

Of course, I've promised them I'll pop in when I can. Just to get my fixes of Novi News from time to time.

I need to say thank-you to all those people I've worked with here in Novi. My last minute calls for information were always taken gracefully by everyone.

Assistant Superintendent Jim Koster talked me through many a hairy budget review.

Evie and Brenda at the police station kept me company each Tuesday morning I sorted through police reports.

I hate to mention a few because it leaves out so many, but I think everyone knows my fondness for the people and the community of Novi.

And who knows? Someday I may be back. After coming back to Novi once, I'll never say never.

Taxpayers save through collaboration

The language was dry as dust. The typography and graphics weren't much better. But the content was significant, even exciting.

It's a publication entitled "Award Winning Joint Projects," a little booklet put out jointly by SEMCOG (the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments) and MAC (Metropolitan Affairs Coalition). It describes a variety of award-winning joint projects undertaken at the local level in communities the seven-county region.

Ho-hum, you say. How come this stuff is "significant, even exciting"?

Here's why. The historic problem of all governments — whether local, state or even federal — is that they are very good at doing more when they get more revenue. But over the years, governments have proven mostly clueless at figuring out how to do more with less revenue.

Hence the term (thanks to Tim Richard, who covers state and regional government for this newspaper) "Entrepreneurial Government," the idea that governmental bodies ought to think and act like entrepreneurs. Be innovative. Experiment. Try to redeploy existing resources and revenues so as to get a better return. Even take risks.

The "Award Winning Joint Project" publication offers up a whole slew of wonderful examples. As we approach the August primary, they should be at the top of the mind of every candidate for public office and every voter.

A good example comes from the little town of South Lyon, happily perched just off I-96 in Oakland County.

Phil Power

Turns out that both the city of South Lyon and the South Lyon Community Schools needed new administration buildings. Now the usual relationship in Michigan between local government and local schools is like a dysfunctional family — they occupy the same space at the same time, but nobody's talking back and forth.

They decided to do things differently in South Lyon. In August 1996 the city and school district agreed to share development costs and use of the same administration building. The school district provided the site, while the city's Building Authority financed the construction with municipal bonds. The $2.6 million project cost was divided — 42 percent by the city, 58 percent by the schools.

The taxpayers of South Lyon got a good deal. They paid no site acquisition costs, because the site was on school district property. Financing was by low-interest, 15-year municipal bonds. Both city and school groups share use of conference rooms, parking lots and lobbies, while overhead costs such as maintenance and repair are reduced. Moreover, folks living in South Lyon gain the convenience of going to a single building to transact their business with both the city and the school district.

Jeff Potter, the mayor of South Lyon, is bubbling with enthusiasm about the award winning project. "It's bizarre that someone has to give local governments an award to do something like this," he said.

For years, turfing between cities and schools or between differing departments within one governmental structure has been the bane of cost-effective government. Sometimes turfing is disguised as a commitment to local autonomy, going it alone regardless of how cost-inefficient that may be.

Potter provides this example: "You have a joint emergency medical service program, and some guy has a heart attack. The team goes to his house and finds him gasping for breath. The guy with the heart attack will never say, 'No; go away. Local autonomy.'"

The joint project in South Lyon is a perfect example of how collaboration between governmental units makes everybody — city, schools, taxpayers — better off. No wonder both South Lyon and Potter won their awards. They deserve them.

Guest Editorial - Rebuttal

Township board is fighting for residents

The Northville Township board of trustees was elected by the voters of the township and hold their offices as a public trust. One of the responsibilities of the board is to provide for the enforcement of township ordinances, including those that relate to zoning. The zoning ordinances allow the township to regulate the use of land in order to prevent overcrowding, and among other things, to enhance property values, as well as natural resources. These ordinances are applicable as uniformly as possible to all property owners, whether individuals, families, corporations or schools.

Northville Township is now in the midst of the most active land development it has experienced in its 100 year history. It is for that very reason that enforcement of the zoning ordinances is so important. Good communities are no accident. They are the result of careful planning and adherence to local zoning ordinances. When a local government abandons enforcement, it also abandons its trust and the results are evident. The board of trustees is dedicated to improving the quality of life in our community and for us, that includes regulating land development.

The Northville school board, led by Dr. Leonard Rezmierski, who is not an elected official, has taken the position that the new high school being built in the township is exempt from local zoning ordinances. Dr. Rezmierski issued a press release in which he cites a statute which indicates that the state school superintendent has sole jurisdiction over the review and approval of plans for the construction of schools for support of the position he has led his board to take. He ignores that part of the state construction code which specifically states: "Construction regulation does not include a zoning ordinance or rule issued pursuant to a zoning ordinance." — MCLA 125.1502(m).

The cost to the community of abandoning zoning ordinances is steep, and even more so for the adjacent property owners, who now face the specter of 80-foot light towers 10 feet from their property lines. The first thing the school board did after Judge McDonald denied the township's request for a preliminary injunction was to clear-cut nearly all the trees on the property, particularly mature trees that only served to buffer the school from the adjacent property owners, in violation of the township's woodlands ordinance. There is little indication that the trees will ever be replaced.

Bill Selinsky

Dr. Rezmierski states that the school board "has acted in the best interest of the entire community," but if that were its goal, why has it spent almost $30,000 fighting local ordinances, instead of following them like every other property owner, including — most recently — two private schools? You have to ask what (the board is) trying to do that would not be permitted under the township ordinances and how that would be in the "best interest of the community."

The two boards — board of trustees and school board — are now parties to a lawsuit to determine whether the new school is subject to township zoning ordinances. The board deeply regrets that it was forced to commit public funds to litigation, particularly here, where the other party is another public entity. Dr. Rezmierski, however, left the board with no other choice. He made it clear that the school board would not be bound by any local zoning ordinances and would only comply with them when convenient, or consistent with the school board's previous plans.

The dispute the board of trustees has with the school board hinges on legal issues that may only be resolved in court. While it was previously believed that a face-to-face meeting, initiated by the board of trustees, would facilitate resolution of this dispute, that seems less probable now. Little will be gained by battling press releases, not would the public be adequately informed of the issues this way.

We do not intend to issue a release separate from this response and ask for your patience during this difficult time until these issues are resolved.

Bill Selinsky is a member of the Northville Township board of trustees.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The press release Selinsky refers to appeared in the July 30 edition of the Record.

Graduate thanks Northville for skills and schools

My name is Adam Tibble and I just graduated from Northville High School and will attend the University of Notre Dame in the fall.

This past week I had the opportunity to play in the Michigan High School All-Star football game coached by Northville's very own Darrel Schumacher and Brian Masi. It was an incredible experience for me and at the same time, a humbling one. There were 88 great athletes from numerous cultural backgrounds in the state of Michigan. After playing some wide receiver for Northville,

I figured it was okay to consider myself an athlete. However, after running some scout offense plays, I realized that these players were the real deal. I obviously concentrated on place kicking the rest of the week.

These great athletes with high confidence levels make coaching a tough job. The East coaching staff found a way to bring vastly different personalities together. Coach Schumacher created the right mix of fun and businesslike calmness to satisfy both the inner city defensive back and the fullback from Monroe, who had been bailing hay since age four. We thank and congratulate Coach Schumacher and his staff and wish him luck with Northville football this year. The program is in good hands with a caring coach.

Furthermore, over the week, I came to truly appreciate the community in which I was raised. I believe that in Northville we live somewhat of a "sheltered life."

When we are overly concerned with a new millage, where to build a new high school, or the negative actions of Northville students, we must remember how lucky we are to have a loving community and a first class school district.

At this football camp, I felt fortunate to be a well-educated individual with a good moral sense. I cannot take full credit for this level of sophistication. Much of this comes from my upbringing in Northville and education in the Northville public schools. So many friends, fans, coaches, and especially teachers have shaped me into the person I am today. So whenever we get fed up with our "sheltered Northville," we must realize how many advantages this community has.

A Northville education can produce a level of maturity and sophistication that can take one far in life. It is up to the students to use these resources and so they can make a difference in the world.

The Northville School District says its goal is to produce a world class citizen. It has certainly sent me and many other students in the right direction. I would like to thank my parents, Uncle David, family, teachers, coaches, and friends for their support thus far in my life.

As I head off to school to take on the academic and athletic challenges that lie ahead, I won't forget Northville, because it's an education and a community to be proud of.

Adam D. Tibble

District needs to listen to families

To the editor:

Where does one begin? Our school district officials claim they did us a favor by not increasing their request on the second bond attempt, knowing full well that the amount approved did not cover the amount needed (wanted). The tone of an article in The Northville Record, July 30, suggests we should have sympathy for Dave Bolitho for the difficult task of overseeing the numerous construction projects currently underway in our district.

That is precisely the job he is paid very well to do. The taxpayers are supposed to willingly accept expenditures that are hugely over budget as a normal part of business.

What business, or household for that matter, could survive such fiscal irresponsibility, not to mention that the Durant money is already being chipped away at to cover the administration's miscalculations.

Now, we get to look forward to our summer being cut short with no changes in the school calendar for the upcoming year.

Why is our school calendar a contract issue? The teachers and school district workers of all levels are employees.

It would seem appropriate that the employers (taxpayers) would have a voice in setting the calendar. Furthermore, the issue of the calendar should not be a closed subject, since the teacher's contract has yet to be signed.

The most recent survey conducted by the Council of PTAs in the fall of 1997 was clear.

Of the parents responding to the survey (a copy of which I supplied to The Record on Tuesday, July 28), the majority wanted significant changes made to the school calendar.

This is even more disturbing since, apparently this survey was suggested by our superintendent. Here's a lesson learned. If you don't really want to know the answer, don't ask the question.

Surprised? No.

Disappointed? Yes.

Time and again we are reminded that what we want as a school community really isn't important. However, it is evident during the school year that much of this district's success is due to the tremendous support it receives from its parents (in time and money).

Is this the role we are supposed to play? You bet.

Should we be respected as the true custodians of our children's schools? Absolutely.

It is not too late to let our school board and the administration know that we are very upset.

We need to hold them accountable for these ridiculous financial mistakes, and total disregard for the parents that offer them so much support.

A work in progress

Volunteers pitch in to give home for the developmentally disabled a well-deserved new look — but the work's not finished yet

Sr. Linda Willette can get Adriana Williams, 24, in and out of the administration building at Our Lady of Providence Center much easier now that the Michigan Regional Council of Carpenters built the accessibility ramp.

Turning an institutional-looking setting into a more home-like environment takes a lot of manpower.

With the help of masonry volunteers and carpenters, garden clubs and retired special education teachers, Our Lady of Providence Center in Northville is beginning to sport a new look and completing some of the projects on its "wish list."

"After 41 years of being here people are finally beginning to figure out we are here," said Sr. Linda Willette, OLP administrator.

OLP provides both residential and day programs for the developmentally disabled in a home-like atmosphere. It currently cares for 87 females ages 10 to 45 in six different settings.

"We're a well kept secret," said Cynthia Grzelak who is a Development Council board member who volunteers her expertise in public relations and fund raising.

"We are always looking for new members for that voluntary board which helps with a variety of projects and public awareness," said Sr. Willette. The board meets once a month.

One of the projects on the "wish list" was restoring the Blessed Virgin Shrine in front of the building on Beck Road.

The shrine was built on Oct. 7, 1962 with funds from friends of OLP and had been deteriorating for some time.

The concrete walk round the shrine was cracked. The retaining walls of the bed were in disrepair. There was also a leak in the water system.

A Working Wish List

- Repair the Blessed Virgin statue which is missing fingers.
- ✓ (done) Repair the stone/brick retaining walls of the raised flower bed, which are loose and cracked.
- Investigate adding a fountain to some portion of the Shrine area.
- ✓ (done) Replace the cracked concrete sidewalk in front of the Shrine.
- ✓ (done) Transplant overgrown shrubs to other sites on OLP property.
- (in progress) Install new plantings: low maintenance shrubs, perennials and annuals that would provide four seasons of spectacular color and bloom.
- ✓ (done) Install a sprinkler system around the Shrine.
- ✓ (done) Install a new roof on one of the residences.
- ✓ (done) Install new gutters on the main office building.
- Purchase new furniture for three of the residences.
- ✓ (done) Establish a Horticultural Therapy Program.

How OLP came to be

Our Lady of Providence Center in Northville is run by the Daughters of St. Mary of Providence, a Catholic order founded in Northern Italy by Blessed Aloysius Guanella.

OLP was established in 1957 at the request of Cardinal Edward Mooney and does not receive any financial support from the Archdiocese. Its funding sources include Supplementary Security Income, Social Security Benefits, Department of Social Services, and the Department of Mental Health. Only one third of the residents receive even close to the $105 per day actual costs for their care. One third receive about $89 per day while two-thirds receive supplementary security and/or social security benefits which is $600 per month.

The main contributors to OLP are the Knights of Columbus Councils, the annual parents' fund raiser called Susie's Dance, grants and other donations.

OLP provides both residential and day programs for the developmentally disabled in a home-like atmosphere. It currently cares for 87 females ages 10 to 45 in six different settings. A children's building houses 16 girls, an adult foster care building has room for 64 women. A small group home in Northville and an apartment at OLP as facilities for six women each. A supportive independent program houses three women and an apartment in Plymouth where two women live.

OLP also enrolls boys and men from Chelsea's St. Louis Center in its workshop program.

Scout's project enhances playscape

By CAROL DIPPLE
Feature Editor

At first Karl Stockhausen was just following in the footsteps set by generations of family members before him.

"Over time it became something I really liked and more a part of me than a part of what my parents were," said Karl. "They gave me the opportunity and I took up on it. It was always up to me."

The 17-year-old son of William and Carole Jean Stockhausen of Northville was presented with the Eagle Scout Award at a Court of Honor held on June 13 at Maybury State Park.

For his Eagle project, Karl, a member of Troop 755, chose an erosion control project at the Fort Griswold Playscape.

Karl supervised fellow scouts and family members over a 10-day period in the fall.

Karl's crew, which ranged from five volunteers on a cold, rainy day to as many as 30 on a bright sunny day, removed railroad ties from the steep embankment on the south side of the playscape so that they could install chain-link fencing and plant myrtle groundcover to prevent surface erosion. The railroad ties were secured with reroed at the base of the embankment to not only help with erosion but to serve as a seat for parents.

"That way they can stay out of their children's way and still be there to watch them," Karl said.

Flower beds were created with the remaining railroad ties in three separate areas around the playscape.

"It all still looks really, really good," said Karl of the project which was completed in November.

"You can never really have enough help and enough work to do," Karl said of the lesson he learned most from the project along with general leadership skills. "I would think I'd have a lot of work then I would run out and I'd have to call it a day."

Karl joined the Cub Scouts in 1992 and has enjoyed the high adventure programs the most.

One recent trip was a two-week backpacking adventure in north eastern New Mexico where he went on an 80 mile trek through the mountains. Last Christmas Karl camped on an island off the Florida Keys.

"Both of those were wonderful," he said. "It is beyond words how wonderful they were."

A senior at University of Detroit Jesuit High School and a member of Our Lady of Victory Parish, Karl's maternal grandfather Harry James Walker became the second Eagle Scout in Whiting, Ind. in 1925.

Karl's sister, Juliet, designed and sketched her brother's Court of Honor program cover based on the sash Walker wore which contained the 65 merit badges and ribbons he had earned. Only 69 badges were possible in the mid 1920s. There are about 100 today, of which Karl earned 44. A scout is required to earn 21 merit badges to achieve his Eagle rank today.

Karl's older brother Luke, and his father both earned their Eagle Scout Awards.

Julie and her sister, Rachel, have both earned the Girl Scout equivalent of the Eagle, the Gold Award.

William received Distinguished Eagle in 1994 and his father Frank, held several positions in Scouting and received the St. George Award for being the Ad Altare Dei Catholic religious counselor.

Karl's mother, Carole Jean, was a den leader for both Karl and Luke.

Residents benefit from help

Dan Zechmeister, P.E., Civil Engineer and Executive Director of the Masonry Institute of Michigan gathered a crew to help with rebuilding the retaining wall and laying brick pavers.

"We contacted them for a referral with the full intention of paying for that work and they just got together and volunteered the labor and materials," said Sr. Willette. "So it was better than a $5,000 project they just took on and did themselves."

Jack Ford at T & M Asphalt of Milford ripped up the concrete walk in front of the statue to make way for the brick pavers donated by Lafarge Corporation of Wixom and Lansing.

Ken Pollack of Clark Block & Supply in Canton delivered the brick pavers.

Zechmeister, along with Wesley Nutt, of Leidal and Hart Mason Contracting of Livonia; Arnold Henry, of J & J Construction in Brighton; Mariano (Skip) DiGiovanni, of Central Masonry, Inc. of Rochester Hills; and Brian Mlynarek, of Masonpro, Inc. of Northville, put in the man hours to accomplish the job working about 20 hours over a two day period at the end of May.

"The wonderful thing about this is Dan Zechmeister's immediate commitment to this project because so often when you work with an organization who has access to membership if the leader isn't fully committed it takes so much longer to get something going," Grzelak said. "He was the linchpin in all of this. They just did a wonderful job."

The crew removed all the dirt from around the immediate wall area and dug down a couple of feet. In some areas the brick facing had to be removed entirely and rebuilt because it was so bad. Tar was applied to the inside of the wall and the outside bricks were acid washed.

The capstones were removed, cleaned underneath and remortared back in place.

The sidewalk by the shrine was graded and slag was added so the brick pavers could be laid.

When they were all done laying the brick pavers the crew noticed there was a gap between the brick and the grass so they went out and bought sod so that it would look finished.

"I have never been party to a transaction like this where there was such extreme generosity and such heart-felt emotion about what they were doing," said Grzelak, who has been involved in some very large projects since she began working in fund raising in 1980. "The money was smaller, but the generosity was bigger and the emotion was greater too. The commitment was just superb."

OLP received a major donation from Ann Arbor residents Ann and Joe Edwards in memory of their daughter Susan who was a former resident which will be used for the remainder of the project.

Employees of Ford Motor Company involved in the Vision 2000 training program began volunteering at OLP.

Every Monday afternoon since March 35 to 70 volunteers have met at OLP and taken care of all of the grounds keeping this summer, completed major painting jobs, washed windows and helped with spring cleaning.

"They have done an invaluable service," said Sr. Willette. "We couldn't have done what we have this summer without them."

Vision 2000 is a three-day training program for Ford employees in plants and offices state-wide which includes a half day dedicated to community service.

Through the Michigan Regional Council of Carpenters' Project RAMP, OLP received a wheelchair ramp for the disabled residents.

The Carpenters' Project RAMP donated the labor and skill necessary to build the ramp.

OLP has received a personal donation of $1,000 and a $500 donation from the Northville Rotary Foundation towards the materials cost of $3,270.

"The ramp benefits not only the girls but even visitors that needed to get into this administration building," said Sr. Willette. "They had to go to quite extremes to get up to the office area. Those with wheelchairs or motorized vehicles can come in much more easily now."

For over 10 years, the Michigan Regional Council of Carpenters has been building ramps without charge wherever needed.

The Plymouth Farm and Garden Association has donated money which will be used to purchase shrubs and perennials.

Another project is coming to fruition thanks to a $7,500 donation for permanent landscaping plants from the Ann Arbor Farm and Garden Association for a horticultural therapy program.

Two retired special education teachers, Erika Gans of Northville and June Brown of Livonia began working with the residents one morning a week in March planting seeds and transplanting the plants in the courtyard.

The girls participating in the horticultural therapy program are normally working in the sheltered workshop program.

"I have been told by supervisors in that program that they love this and are beginning to understand and to take pride in what they're doing," Grzelak said.

"If the therapy program is to continue and grow as time goes on we do need volunteers to come in to help because when you are working outside and you've got 10 girls and only two special education teachers and the girls scattered doing things. They're at all different skill levels. So they need help and supervision."

Another organization which made a significant donation to OLP this year was the International Order of Alhambra, Manresa Caravan of Northville.

The $8,000 donation was used for campships for 25 women to attend St. Francis Camp in Jerome, Mich.

The women attended the camp for persons with developmental disability the week of July 5.

"They were talking about it months before and they are still talking about it now that they are back," said Sr. Willette. "Most of these are women who don't have any family involvement, so this is sort of their summer vacation."

Volunteers need only be patient, friendly people willing to give one or two hours a week on Wednesday morning during the course of the program.

"It is just wonderful the persons who have come forward to help us," said Sr. Willette. "This year we have really blossomed in that area."

For more information about volunteer possibilities or to make a monetary donation, call Our Lady of Providence Center at (734) 453-1300.

Santino's schedules pasta eating contest

By CAROL DIPPLE
Feature Editor

Seven pounds of pasta is the record to beat this year at the Pasta Eating Contest which is held annually at Santino's Place for Pasta in Novi on Wednesday, Aug. 12 at 5 p.m.

"So far 10 able bodies are entered in the contest," said Santino's owner Scott Longas.

Mike Stutzman, last year's champ lost 40 pounds and will be back, according to Longas.

Stutzman, an account manager with Johnson Press in Novi, became the reigning champ when he ate the equivalent of three-and-a-half dinner plates covered with about two-and-a-half inches of pasta.

Steven Spiegel, who held the record of six pounds of pasta in 1996, will also be returning, according to Longas.

"There's still room for more people," said Longas.

Contestants are allowed to put anything they want on the pasta to make it palatable for the 30-minute contest. The pasta will be cooked with a little olive oil and butter substitute.

The Pasta Eating Contest is a fund raiser for the Make A Wish Foundation. Employees will donate that day's wages, along with 100 percent of the restaurant sales, to the fund-raising event.

Last year's pasta contest raised $1,200.

This charity was chosen because 83 percent of the monies it receives goes to the cause, according to Longas.

This year's celebs include Bob Rouse of the San Jose Sharks, Michigan State University hockey star Mike Donnelly who is with the New York Islanders, and Terry Foster, a sports columnist with the Detroit News.

For more information, interested contestants can call Longas at 380-3232.

Blues weekend planned at Hennessey's

By CAROL DIPPLE
Feature Editor

Blues bands are booked to belt out a few tunes at Bluestock '98 on Aug. 15 and 16 at Hennessey's Pub in Wixom.

It's the first big bash for Nick Yaksick, and his brother Zachary, who purchased the pub at Grand River and Wixom Road about a year ago.

Yaksick is expecting between 1,500 and 2,000 people at Bluestock '98.

Entertainers performing in the large tent which will be set up include Johnny Bassett and the Blues Insurgents, Blind Tiger Band, Boogie-men, Bugs Beddow Band, James Cloyd Group, John Cook Blues Band, The Dogs w/Harmonica Shah, Motor City Josh, Robert Noll, Steve Somers Band with Valerie Barrymore with M.C. Dan McNall on Saturday.

On Sunday, the M.C. will be Mike Shannon. Taking to the stage will be Alligators, Catfish Hodge, City Limits Blues Band, Curtis Sumter Project with Ms. Cathy Davis, Glen Eddy Band, Tim Flaherty Trio with Nancy, Bobby Murray Band, Mystery Train with Jim McCarty, Mojo Rattle and Val Vento Band.

Apparel and food vendors including Beale Street Barbecue from Pontiac, Buddy's Barbecue as well as Hennessey's Pub will be in smaller tents.

A major sponsor is Coca-Cola.

Individuals under 21 are welcome, said Yaksick, but they will be given a wristband designating they are under age.

Yaksick decided to put together the event as a way to get Hennessey's Pub on the map as a "nice play to hang out."

The Yaksicks, who live in West Bloomfield, have owned Zax Car Wash next door at the corner of Wixom Road and Grand River for eight years.

"On snowy and rainy days I figured we could make money," Yaksick said. "I always wanted a bar restaurant. Basically my brother said if you want to do it let's do it."

Yaksick kept after the previous owners Frank Cleary and Bill O'Shea for eight years.

"They wanted to pass it on to two people who would take care of," Yaksick said.

O'Shea's was a rock and roll type bar, according to Yaksick. The brothers like a variety of music but settled on blues for the pub.

"My brother and I decided to change the image and get a different crowd," he said.

"A lot of people asked for it when we bought the bar. It's not heavy blues but a little oldies and blues. That's the way it's sort of leaning right now."

Bluestock '98 hours on Saturday will be noon until 2 a.m. and on Sunday from noon until 1 a.m. Tickets are $10 if purchased at Hennessey's, $12.50 through Ticketmaster, and $15 at the gate.

For information on Bluestock '98, call (248) 348-4404.

Style to burn

Steed and Emma return in 'The Avengers'

London, the 1960s—the epicenter of a cultural revolution shakes the world with mod clothes, the Beatles, pop art and "The Avengers."

Thirty-some years later, London is once again a hotbed of activity, signaling the coming millennium. Fin-de-siecle nihilism runs alongside revisionist spiritualism, old-guard capitalism clashes with global-concern idealism, a nostalgia for the past returns to serve the present.

It's time once again for heroes with style to burn. Enter John Steed and Emma Peel.

In The Avengers, legendary producer Jerry Weintraub and director Jeremiah Chechik reinvent the inimitably British Steed and his deadly smart partner, Mrs. Peel, pitting them against the devilishly clever and completely evil Sir August De Wynter. The Avengers teams Academy Award nominees Ralph Fiennes and Uma Thurman as Steed and Peel opposite Oscar-winner Sean Connery as De Wynter.

The Ministry, Britain's top-secret agency, has summoned John Steed (Fiennes) to investigate some strange goings-on in Her Majesty's Kingdom. The weather storms, hail of epic proportions, and temperatures that fluctuate wildly from arctic to blast furnace plague normally temperate England. Someone is out to control the weather and bring the country and the world to its knees. Who could master such a brilliant and demonic attempt to extort the riches of nations in return for a temperate day? All bets are on Sir August De Wynter (Connery), former Ministry man, who is very rich, very odd, and entirely too intelligent.

Preparing to fight fire (or snow or hail) with fire, Steed teams up with the unflappable Mrs. Emma Peel (Thurman), a master of jujitsu and doctor in meteorological science in a body made for haute couture.

Steed and Peel, with martini-dry wit and icy sizzle, have returned from sixties Britain for a new age of cool.

In the late 1960s, American television aired a show that had been running in its native Great Britain since 1961. The show featured a wry English gentleman named John Steed, played by Patrick Macnee, who possessed a sense of humor as dry as his champagne. Steed effortlessly battled villains that appeared ordinary at first glance—nannies, members of Parliament, apothecaries, country vicars. Somewhere in the first half of the program, however, these foes revealed maniacal plans to take over Westminster Abbey using an army of hypnotized soldiers or to kidnap a visiting dignitary by pumping nerve gas into his train compartment.

Aiding Steed in his battle against the bizarre in battle clothes, was a female sidekick of a different sort. Mrs. Emma Peel, as played by Diana Rigg, was an icy combination of smarts, beauty, and girl power. While Steed used his trademark bowler hat and bumpershoot to combat his adversaries, Mrs. Peel utilized her well-placed jujitsu kick or karate flip to fell her foe. With the bad guys neatly dispatched, Steed and Peel would trade smirks and quips over a cocktail and part ways. That is, until evil reared its ugly head in London the following week and Steed would announce, "Mrs. Peel, we're needed."

The Avengers suitably enamored American viewers. Thirty seven years after its initial run on British television, the show remains that country's most popular exported serial, sold to 120 countries to date.

Producer Jerry Weintraub (Karate Kid, Nashville) was one of the show's original aficionados who eagerly awaited "The Avengers" each week. He remembers, "I was working in the music business in London in the '60s. I was one of those millions of guys around the world who was in love with Emma Peel."

Weintraub's infatuation with the show and with Emma Peel never faded. He eventually purchased the rights to the series in 1985 and made a commitment to bring Steed and Peel to the big screen.

From the beginning, he intended to retain the British flavor of the series in his film. "I wanted to do it right," he said. "When you're making a big action-adventure movie, your natural tendency is to Americanize it. I didn't want to. I knew John Steed and Emma Peel had a worldwide audience."

The producer added, "This script is character led. It's an adventure and a romance, very British, very funny, and a little surreal. I think it's a new formula, a great blend of character and action." Weintraub worked closely with British screen writer Don Macpherson to retain the crisp style of the original series.

Uma Thurman is cast as Emma Peel in Warner Bros.' stylish action-adventure, "The Avengers."

Costume designer combined looks of pinstripes and leather

Almost as memorable as the stark design of the original "The Avengers" show was the look of the avenging duo — Steed in his traditional to-the-extreme tailored suit and Emma (some of the time anyway) in a leather catsuit.

Costume designer Anthony Powell, a three-time Academy Award winner, admits, "Since it's a classic, you have to start from what everybody knows. Steed was dressed in a way that was already anachronistic in the '60s. It's interesting that today, apart from the bowler hat, a beautifully-cut Saville Row suit is the height of fashion again. Given that Steed is a veritable poster image of tradition, it seemed to me to have everything connected with him made in Saville Row."

Powell used tailors from the shops along the world-famous district in London, many of the historic establishments dating back to Queen Victoria's early days on the throne, to create Steed's pinstripe suits, shirts, shoes, umbrellas and signature bowler hats.

Powell's job was a bit less cut and dried when it came to creating Emma Peel's wardrobe.

Powell turned to the decades that surrounded the original television icons, studying back issues of Vogue from the period. "I was astonished by the quality of innocence and freshness of the clothes then," he said. "But the look was sort of a dolly bird, Lolita look — Twiggy and Jean Shrimpton — and that simply isn't Uma."

"In film you can't impose an image on any actor, you have to work with what is there. Uma is tall with her own personal sense of style. So we started over with the clothes that were right for Uma, right for the '90s and with a flavor of the '60s."

And for the famous leather catsuit? "At my first meeting with Uma, she asked where the catsuit would hang in Emma's wardrobe," said Powell. "That's a very good question. For costumes to be successful, they have to look inevitable, as though they are part of an actor's body. So, to resolve it, I made sure that everything else leads up to the famous catsuit, that everything has an echo of it — either it's something formfitting or made of suede or leather. That way, the suit at the end becomes almost inevitable."

Bayside wins sixth straight NABF, Northville finishes an impressive 2-2

By JASON SCHMITT

Fighting back all the odds and making it as difficult as it could, the Bayside Yankees bounced back and proved they are the best junior baseball team in America, for the sixth-straight year.

After losing their opening round game to the Fort Wayne Indians 3-1 Thursday, the Yankees bounced back to outscore their opponents 45-4 in five straight wins to take the double-elimination tourney. The championship was Bayside's eighth in the last 16 years. Pitcher Kyle Rybak was the tournament MVP, pitching 14 innings and allowing just one earned run in two victories.

The Northville Broncos posted a 2-2 record in the tournament and finished among the top five teams, making it into the fourth round.

The Chattanooga Colonels, coached by former Major League pitcher Rick Honeycutt, defeated the Broncos 3-2 to eliminate coach Stan Szostek's team from the tournament.

"Without a question their strength was in their pitching," Szostek said. "I told the kids if we could start hitting the ball, we could win the game."

But Northville could muster up just one hit, and that was a grounder to the Colonel's short stop by Kevin Justusson, who beat out the throw to first.

Northville used two Chattanooga errors, Justusson's hit and a wild pitch to score their lone runs of the game. The Colonels scored on a three-run homer by Michael Percy that barely cleared the fence.

"We had opportunities to win the game, but we just didn't do it," the coach said. "It was a matter of lost opportunities."

Corey Farmer, a pick-up player from the Detroit Bulls, pitched a complete-game four hitter for the Broncos. Defensively short stop Jason Sanheu led a great defensive effort by Northville, which didn't commit an error in the game.

Prior to the loss, the Broncos stormed past Ft. Wayne in third-round action 4-2. Catcher Tim Edick hit a game-tying solo home run in the sixth inning to tie the game at 2-2 and Northville used three more key hits in the seventh to put the game out of reach. Robbie Hudson opened the rally with a one-out triple. Brian Boyes followed up with a RBI single to give Northville the lead. The Broncos added another when Borda's grounder to second was botched, scoring Boyes.

David Cerda pitched a complete game to get the victory for Northville. He allowed just two runs on four hits.

"We had some very timely hits against some outstanding pitching," Szostek said.

In the second round, Northville ran into a tough Indiana Bulls team. The Bulls stymied the Broncos 7-0 to remain in the undefeated bracket. Northville did have its chances, though, loading the bases in the fifth inning while trailing by just three.

"Our bats were just silent," Szostek said. "We were hitting the ball hard, but they were just making the plays."

Hudson struggled a bit on the mound, but Matt Hare and Andy Reibling came in to close things out for Northville.

Offensively for the tournament, Joey Wilson of the Lexington Dixie led all batters with a .583 average. Jason Connell of the Gambrell A's hit .562 with a series leading 3 home runs, including a crowd-aweing two grand slams in the first inning of his teams 18-2 win over the Livingston County Bulls.

Farner was second among all pitchers with 11 strikeouts and the Northville team posted a 2.43 earned run average throughout the tournament. The Indiana Bulls led the way with a 1.04 ERA in four games.

"The kids never gave up. They had great attitudes and deserved to be here," Szostek said. "This was the third world series for many of these kids, so they weren't intimidated by anyone. If you can be the host team in the world series and perform like this, I think we can hold our heads high."

Rochester course offers Scottish style of play just an hour away

This week's Northville Record continues a series of weekly golf reviews. Our goal is to provide you, the reader, useful information and tips on playing favorite courses in the area.

BlackHeath is the subject of this week's review. If you would like to see a particular course reviewed this summer, contact us at (248) 437-2011 or (248) 349-1700. By JASON SCHMITT Sports Editor

For those who take time out to watch the British Open each year and shake their heads in disbelief of the 40 mile per hour winds or the giant mounds and deep rough of the courses, now there's a chance to experience that challenge first hand.

At BlackHeath Golf Club, located four miles north of Rochester, golfers are given the unique experience of golfing a Scottish style course. With hundreds of small and large rolling mounds and tall heather grass lining the fairways, the course challenges players to play it safe and smart.

"This is definitely a players golf course," BlackHeath general manager Bill Jardine said. "The whole theme of this course is out of 1920. You have to play by feel. If you can hit the ball straight, you'll be OK."

The course, which opened in early June, was built on an old farm and contains very few trees. Jardine said that owner Kevin Aldridge, who was heavily involved with the construction of the course, cut down just six trees in building the course. "It took him 20 minutes to clear the trees," Jardine said.

To offset the lack of trees standing in the way of the golfers, Aldridge strategically placed bunkers on every hole and brought in over 750,000 cubic yards of dirt to give the course its rolling topography. The tall fescue grass provides an even greater challenge to hackers and keeps the longer hitters honest.

One of the few holes where trees come into play is the 151-yard par-3 third hole. It may be hard to find the tee boxes, but once you walk up to the elevated tees, a stiff challenge awaits you.

The hole plays through a line of trees and swamp area, leaving little room for error. If the drive is long, to the left or short, the golfer may be in trouble. Depending on the pin placement, this deceptive hole could turn into an instant bogey hole. Women get a break and tee off in front of the marsh 70 yards from the green.

BlackHeath's par threes are very difficult, especially when the wind picks up. With no trees around and the length from the back tees averaging a mammoth 188 yards, golfers must be accurate or pay the price. Several deep sand traps don't help either.

One of the most scenic holes on the course, as well as one of the most difficult, is the par-5 eighth hole. This dog-leg left plays over water from all of the tees. Big hitters may challenge themselves and play over the water, but the safe play is to hit an accurate drive over the short water. This

Three local athletes collected medals at the 1998 AAU National Championship Taekwondo Karate Tournament in Boca Raton, Fla., last month.

Stephen Wegener, a freshman at Northville High School, won a gold medal in international sparring and two bronze medals in point sparring and forms. Wegener competes in the 15-16 year old black belt lightweight class.

Eight-year-old Patricia Eichholtz won a silver medal in point sparring and a bronze in forms. She competed in the 7-8 year-old girls heavyweight class and has been training for two years.

Her older brother, Joseph Eichholtz, won a bronze medal in point sparring after losing his third match by a point. He also placed fifth in forms, competing against 35 other athletes in the 9-10 year-old division. He has been training for three years. All three are coached by Doug Bourgeois in the Northville recreation department.

will cut the chances of getting wet, but will make it tougher to reach the green in two shots. The hole plays 517 yards from the back tees and 399 from the women's tee boxes. Marking down a score of par can be admirable on this hole.

Another tip for the first-time golfers: the greens play extremely fast. The course is set up for bump and run shots. At last check, the greens received a rating of nine on GAM's stimp meter.

BlackHeath plays 6,851 yards from the black tees, 6,078 from the blue, 5,507 from the white tees and 4,646 from the front tees.

"Even though it's only 6,000 yards (from the blue tees), it's the toughest 6,000 yards you'll ever play," Jardine said.

The course is open to the public, but there is talk of making the course private.

"It's a risky thing to do," Jardine said of the conversion. "If you do it, you have to take it all the way. Right now we're talking with people and getting a feel for the number of members we might have."

Currently BlackHeath is using its golf cart barn as its clubhouse. Construction for an 8,000 square foot clubhouse is underway and is set to open possibly next year or the year 2,000.

Although just over a month old, the club was selected to host the US Amateur Sectional Qualifier, which was played Tuesday.

The cost varies with a round of 18 holes and a cart from Monday through Thursday running $50. To walk the course on weekdays is $40. Friday through Sunday and on holidays the cost is $60 and $50, respectively.

Twilight golfing after 4:30 p.m. is $35 for 18 holes and a cart and $25 to walk. Seniors receive a discount price of $25 before 11 a.m. on weekdays only

Time to... Play ball!

The Northville Broncos take on the Indiana Bulls Friday afternoon at Northville High School baseball field in the second round of the NABF World Series. Beautiful weather and top-quality competition helped draw crowds of up to 300 people per game. The Bayside Yankees won their sixth NABF title in a row with a 6-0 win over the Gambrills A's in the championship game Sunday afternoon. Northville finished a very respectable 2-2 and finished in the top five.

ADHD affects many American children

The essential feature of Attention Deficit/Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD) is a pattern of inattention, hyperactivity and/or impulsivity that is more frequent and severe than typically observed in individuals at a comparable level of development. The criteria for the disorder are that some symptoms must have been present before age 7, some impairment must be present in at least two settings, and there must be evidence of interference with social, academic or occupational functioning. Also, the disturbances must not occur exclusively with a psychiatric disorder, and the symptoms must be persistent for six months.

The disorder of inattentiveness, impulsivity, and hyperactivity was first described in 1902 and has been given many names. Since the 1980, it has been called Attention Deficit/Hyperactivity Disorder or ADHD.

ADHD affects between 3 and 5 percent of all American children. Without early identification and proper treatment it can have serious consequences, including school failure, depression, failed relationships, and even substance abuse. And there is certainly a lack of self-esteem.

It was formerly believed that these symptoms disappear in adolescence, but it is now known that many symptoms continue into adulthood for 30-70 percent of individuals with this disorder. Adults with ADHD may experience difficulties at work and in relationships, as well as other emotional difficulties.

Children with ADHD generally fall into two categories - those who are mainly hyperactive or impulsive and those who are predominantly inattentive. Some have a mixture of both types.

Perhaps 50 percent of children with ADHD are never properly diagnosed. ADHD is not a specific learning disability. These children are not unable to learn, but they do have difficulty performing due to poor organization, impulsivity and inattention. However, some children with ADHD also have a learning disability.

This disorder also involves an impairment in the individual's ability to use rules and instructions to guide his or her behavior. As a result, they seem to always be at the mercy of what is happening at any given moment and are less able to work persistently toward long term goals.

Between 70-80 percent of children with ADHD respond positively to psychostimulant medications. These medications decrease impulsivity and hyperactivity, increase attention and, in some children, decrease aggression.

However, drug therapy should not be used as the only intervention. Classroom success may require a range of interventions and children may respond to different teachers in a variety of fashions. Usually a structured classroom is best.

Parents, who frequently benefit from a support group such as CHADD, can be trained to provide consistent structure and clearly defined expectations and limits for children with ADHD. They should use charting of behavior, positive reinforcement, and time-out. Parents also should be instructed to help their child with peer relationships.

Above all, parents need to be their child's best advocate. Keep in mind that a child may have certain legal rights. The Individuals with Disabilities Education Acts require that special education and related services be made available to any child with a disability that impairs the child's educational performance. Children who have informed, effective parents are better prepared to meet life's challenges.

Children with ADHD do not routinely show signs of serious emotional disturbance. However, if not properly diagnosed and treated, these children can develop significant emotional difficulties.

Adults with ADHD, meanwhile, often experience career difficulties. On the other hand, adults who learn to adjust and to harness their energy and creativity can thrive professionally.

The cause of ADHD is believed to be a slower metabolism of glucose. This is the most evident in the portion of the brain that is important for attention, handwriting, motor control and inhibition of responses. Brain metabolism studies combined with family history studies and drug response studies suggest ADHD's a neurobiological disorder, not a result of a chaotic home environment.

A comprehensive evaluation is necessary to establish a diagnosis, rule out other causes and determine whether conditions are present. Such an evaluation will often include intelligence testing plus the assessment of academic, social and emotional functioning, and developmental abilities. Measures of attention span and impulsivity will also be used, as well as parent and teacher rating scales. A medical exam by a physician is also important.

Ultimately, treating children with ADHD requires a combination of psychological and educational intervention and behavior management techniques.

Dr. Allan Weiner is a medical director at the University of Michigan Middlebelt Pediatrics Center. For more information or to make an appointment, call (810) 477-1122.

HOW TO

Copper sulfate clears concrete of algae

By Gene Gary
Copley News Service

Q. We purchased our current home a year ago. Since then, our outside steps leading to a basement, which faces east and does not get direct sunlight, has become covered with a greenish residue embedded in the cement.

This residue has resisted our removal efforts. Do you have any suggestions?

A. Yours is a common problem. Copper sulfate, also called bluestone or blue vitriol, is a chemical you can use to get rid of moss and algae on masonry. This chemical can be safely used with minimal damage to grass or garden plants nearby. Sold at feed stores and some nurseries, copper sulfate is available in both powdered and crystal form.

The powder is easier to dissolve in water: mix 1 pound in 20 gallons of water and spray over the mossy area. Copper sulfate may seem to be staining the masonry, but the color is easily hosed off.

If the concrete remains stained once the moss residue has been removed, you can give it a deep cleaning with dry sal-soda concentrate. Hose the whole area thoroughly, preferably in the evening, and then sprinkle the entire surface uniformly with the dry sal-soda concentrate. Allow to stand overnight. Then go over the area with a broom or even better, a stiff-bristle scrubbing brush (do not use a wire brush which will leave rust stains). Hose off the area and repeat as necessary.

If grass grows at the edges of the area you are cleaning, it will be necessary to mop up the wet sludge after scrubbing. Don't hose it off into the grass. Wear rubber gloves when cleaning up the sludge. Protect your eyes from splatters. After removal, flush the area with clear water. Check either a chemical supply company or janitorial supply house that handles cleaning chemicals as a source for sal-soda concentrate.

Once the masonry is clean, apply a good masonry sealer over the surface for future protection. Since the area is shaded, it is very likely you will experience regrowth of moss during moist weather conditions. This will require additional treatments with blue vitriol and reapplication of a masonry sealer, but shouldn't require the deep-cleaning process with sal-soda concentrate.

Q. I recently repaired cracks in my ceiling and several walls, which I believe were caused by the foundation settling. I used spackle and repainted. The cracks are now reappearing. The walls and ceiling are plaster. How can these cracks be permanently repaired?

A. If your plaster is sound overall (i.e. not breaking away from the wall and crumbling), you should be able to successfully make repairs and repaint. Repair larger surface cracks by digging a channel along each one about 3/16 inch wide and 3/16 inch deep with an old screwdriver. Clean the area by washing with TSP (trisodium phosphate) or a cleaner like Spic & Span. Next, apply some fiberglass mesh drywall tape, available at hardware stores, over the crack, then moisten the area with water. Mix a batch of setting-type joint compound in a pail to the consistency of whipped cream. Spread the compound over the crack and into the mesh evenly. Setting-type joint compound chemically hardens, unlike regular joint compound, which air dries. As a result, setting compound makes a stronger repair.

Once the compound is dry, apply a second coat, feathering the edges, let it dry, then sand it to conform to the wall surface. Check to be sure it's smooth and apply another light coat if necessary. Spackle used on smaller crack lines should also work. To assure that these stress cracks do not reappear, you can use an elastic, spray-on product, Good-Bye Cracks. Two coats sprayed on the repaired surface of either drywall or plaster help prevent cracks from reappearing.

Be sure to prime the surface prior to repainting. Contact the manufacturer, Guardsman Products Inc., 2960 Lucerne S.E., Grand Rapids, MI 49518; phone: (616) 940-2900, fax: (616) 285-7870, for a source of Good-Bye Cracks in your area.

Q. I have a Baccarat crystal vase that I use for fresh roses. Someone told me that adding a little bleach and sugar to the water would prolong the longevity of the roses. Well it did that, but it also put a film on my vase. I have tried everything I know to try to eliminate this dull film, but to no avail. Is there something I can do to remove this film?

A. Most likely the film is due to chemical deposits from the water. There are several cleaning methods that might work. Fill the vase with water and drop in a denture cleaning tablet such as Polident. Let soak overnight. Heat a solution of white vinegar diluted with some water and let this soak overnight.

The best commercial products I know of for this type of stain removal are: CLR Jelmar, 6600 N. Lincoln Ave., Lincolnwood, IL 60465; and De-Solv-it (Orange-Sol), phone: (602) 4997-8822. Both products are available at grocery and hardware stores, and home centers. If unavailable in your area, contact the manufacturer.

Robin Egg Estates

in Livingston County's Hamburg Township

By Rachel Sprovtsoff
Staff Writer

When buying a house, making a connection between the price and quality may be a good indicator of what you are getting yourself into. With that in mind, Robin Egg Estates in Pinckney is right on target.

"These are priced right for quality of the units," said Jon Queen, builder with the Elkhorn Corporation, the company developing the site.

Robin Egg Estates can be found just off Cordley Lake Road and a half a mile east of Whitewood Road, located in Hamburg Township and the Pinckney Community Schools District.

The project for the site condominiums began in October 1996 and has produced 35 units, of which four have been sold. Queen said when a unit is sold, the buyer is provided with a plan or the Elkhorn Corporation will build to suit with square footage starting at 2,000.

The units are on roughly a half acre with a price range starting in the mid-$230,000s and capping off at about $310,000. The water-supply is well and septic, he said.

The scenery surrounding the subdivision is approximately 26 acres of wooded lots. To help residents appreciate the landscape, there is a trail system and nature areas.

"We've got great topography," Queen said.

Robin Egg Estates is only 20 minutes from Ann Arbor and has convenient access to U.S. 23 and I-96.

The plans Elkhorn brings to the table are two-story colonial style homes, story-and-a-half master suites and Ranch style layouts. Queen said appliances are figured into the selling price, but they are willing to work with the buyer on any changes they desire.

These reasonably priced site condominiums fit anybody's needs, he said.

For a look at this developing subdivision, Queen said there are open houses every other Sunday, with the next one being set for Aug. 9. There is a model to walk through so potential residents can get a good feel for the floor plan.

For more information, call Queen at (734) 878-1871 or Greg Johnson at the Michigan Group at (734) 662-8600.

Feng shui creates harmonious spaces

By Rose Bennett Gilbert
Copley News Service

Q. I've read just enough about feng shui to think I'd like to put some of its principles into practice. Unfortunately, we live in an apartment so I can't rearrange the walls, cart in a fountain or make other big physical changes.

If you know anything about feng shui, maybe you could give me some ideas for simple applications that would make for better feng shui.

A. I, too, have read, seen and heard enough to convince me of the enrichments that the Eastern art of feng shui can offer the Western home ... or apartment, in your case.

For anyone out there who doesn't yet know, the essence of feng shui lies in placement or arrangement of objects within a space so they are pleasing, harmonious and balanced.

Although feng shui seems to have arrived only recently in the consciousness of the West, it is in fact an ancient art that involves the psychological as well as the practical. And while the basic objective is simple - to put you in harmony with your surroundings - there are many subtle nuances involved.

Moreover, there are numerous different schools of feng shui in practice today, so I'm going to bow politely and refer you to a master, feng shui geomancer, R.D. Chun, who has written a comprehensive book called "Feng Shui Revealed" (Clarkson Potter).

DECORATING

The photo we show here comes from Chin's book: It's a sleeping loft built inside a high-ceilinged loft apartment in New York.

Flanked by sensible bookshelves and reached by steps inspired by the Japanese Tansu design (they hold CDs), the high loft represents the mountain that stands for spirituality, knowledge and contemplation, according to Chin. It also adds visual excitement and great personality to what might have been an overwhelmingly large space had it been left unbroken.

P.S.: Although this is an apartment in a big city, there's a great feeling for nature, always good feng shui. A plug-in fountain murmurs in the entrance foyer; the reading area by the bookcase (known in feng shui as the "knowledge corner") is outdoorsy with vines and dried flowers, and the furniture is arranged on an angle, the better to enhance the light and view from the owner's personal mountaintop.

Q. I'm really confused about wall coverings. We're thinking of papering our living/dining room, but I don't know what to buy. What is the difference between rotary screen printing, rotogravure and silk-screening? Besides the price, that is!

A. Price is generally an indication of how much hand labor has gone into your wallpaper. Although this may be more than the average home decorator wants to know, here's a thumbnail sketch of printing processes (courtesy of the experts at Gramercy Wallcoverings):

Rotary screen printing is the mechanized version of screen printing by hand, the oldest and most expensive method. With rotary screens, colors and repeat sizes are more limited than in hand-screen printing, but can be deep and rich or tonal.

Rotogravure is pretty much state-of-the-art printing, with the design engraved onto a roller, registered precisely by computer and printed at high speeds. Look for extremely fine detailing.

Two other printing methods are flexographic and surface-printing. In flexo printing, the design is raised on the roller (like a rubber stamp) and the surface is finished with an acrylic topcoat, either matte or glossy.

Surface-printing involves traditional machinery and a lot of skill to register the designs by hand. Look for a painterly, rich surface with subtle texture that looks like classic wood-block printing.

This Colonial Revival-style settee, circa 1900, is probably worth about $800 to $1,200.

By Anne McCollam
Copley News Service

Q. Enclosed is a picture of my solid mahogany Chippendale settee. It measures 38 inches high and 45 inches wide. I would appreciate any information you can give me.

A. Your circa 1900 settee is an example of Colonial Revival furniture. It was inspired by 18th century Chippendale designs.

The value would probably be about $800 to $1,200.

Q. This mark is on a set of dishes that my daughter inherited from her great-grandmother. The set consists of 12 place settings. Each dish is decorated with a multicolored band against a white background.

Please provide any information that you can about the set.

A. New York and Rudolstadt Pottery used the mark you provided.

ed. The pottery was founded in Thuringia, Germany, in 1720. There has been a succession of owners, and it is still in business.

Your dinnerware was made in the early 1900s and would probably be worth about $900 to $1,500 for the set.

Q. Could you please give the approximate age and value of our barrister bookcase? It is 60 inches high, 34 inches wide and has a label with the words "Globe-Wernicke Sectional Bookcase - Made in Cincinnati."

There are four stackable sections each with glass doors that pull up and slide into the case. The wood is oak with a rich golden finish.

A. Globe-Wernicke was one of the best-known manufacturers of sectional bookcases. The Gunn Co., located in Grand Rapids, Mich., actually patented one of their bookcases. The sections, the top and the base were all sold separately. A family could purchase as many sections as they wanted or could afford.

Your bookcase was made around 1900 and would probably be worth about $800 to $1,500.

Q. I have a toy popgun that is more than 60 years old. On the side of the gun are the words "Buck Rogers 25th Century - Daisy Mfg. Co., Plymouth, Mich. - U.S.A."

I was wondering if there is any value to my toy, other than sentimental.

A. You'll get a bang out of this! Your popgun would probably be worth about $200 to $215.

Buck Rogers was the hero in the science fiction comic strip that began in 1929. It was originally written by Phil Nowlan and illustrated by Dick Calkins. The popularity of the adventures of Buck and his pals in the 25th century inspired the radio series, TV series and movies.

Q. We have a small metal toy tank. It is three inches long, and the front and back tires spin on axles. On the top is a gun that revolves. On the bottom are the words "Dinky Toys - Armoured Car - Meccano Ltd. - Made in England - 670."

Is our tank of any value?

A. Meccano made die cast toy vehicles from the early 1930s until around 1979. Those made in the 1950s and 1960s are the most sought after by collectors.

"Schroeders' Collectible Toys - Antique to Modern" lists a Meccano armored car, number 670, at $45.

Address your questions to Anne McCollam, P.O. Box 490, Notre Dame, IN 46556. For a personal response, include picture(s), a detailed description, a stamped, self-addressed envelope and $10 per item (one item at a time).

More buyers opt for a spot in the 'exurbs'

By James M. Woodard
Copley News Service

One of the most significant trends in today's real estate market is the changing locations of homes that appeal to prospective buyers.

For some buyers, the closer they can locate to the downtown area and the point of their employment the better. That means a housing unit in the downtown core area or nearby suburbs. But an increasing number of buyers are looking for homes in the "exurbs" - beyond existing suburbs.

High-tech communications capabilities are having a major impact on the choice and locations of most desirable homes in today's market. With a state-of-the-art computer, business affairs can often be handled from a home office, and an increasing number of corporate execs and employees are taking advantage of that capability.

Therefore, distance of home to point of employment is decreasing in importance. Now families can often get more home for their money and enjoy a better lifestyle by selecting a home outside a metro area.

"We find that corporate employees are now working from home a day or more per week," said Michael Evans with Kenneth Leventhal, the real estate group of Ernst & Young LLP. "As a result, they just don't seem to mind driving farther on the days they do commute - as long as they can buy 'more house' for their money further out."

For builders, the trend suggests that even more housing will be developed in the exurbs.

"It's time to rethink the typical home and diversify housing even further than we already have," said Steve Friedman, director of housing for Kenneth Leventhal.

"Nationally, conditions are now reminiscent of the late 1980s when housing prices skyrocketed in many markets while new construction slowed.

"Given these conditions, home builders may need to look closer at market niches, such as vacation homes, second homes, housing in exurbs (beyond the suburbs), and even multi-family housing."

The Leventhal firm recently completed a study of home affordability in the United States. They found the three most affordable markets are Oklahoma City, Richmond and Kansas City. Here, the average proportion of a family's income going for housing costs ranged from 17.4 percent to 18.4 percent.

The least affordable housing markets are New York City, San Francisco and Los Angeles. Here, housing costs cobble up from 37.2 percent to 43.5 percent.

Homeowners in New York and coastal California pay roughly twice as much of their income to acquire housing as those in many urban areas in the Central and Southeast United States.

It's interesting to note that geographical "affordability pockets" are sometimes located very close to areas with super-high housing costs. For example, in both Sacramento and Riverside-San Bernardino, Calif., housing requires less than 24 percent of the median family income.

Incidentally, the amount of money paid for homes in California exceeded $10 billion in May, the second time ever that threshold has been crossed. A total of $10.24 billion was spent on 44,657 new and resale homes and condos.

Better home values may soon surface in Hawaii where home ownership hasn't exactly been accessible in recent years, the Leventhal report noted. "The value of a Honolulu mid-management home has dropped $100,000 in just the past two years."

Q. Is it legal for a bank to engage in real estate brokerage activities?

A. A federal law was recently passed by the House of Representatives that allows financial institutions to offer consumers a broad array of financial services, but restricts their ability to engage in real estate brokerage and title activities.

The Financial Services Act of 1998 would permit banks to affiliate with securities firms, insurance companies and other entities that are "financial in nature" under a Financial Holding Company structure that would be regulated by the Federal Reserve Board.

BE A HEAD START VOLUNTEER

Save for retirement with U.S. Savings Bonds. They'll mature before you do.

Exactly what are you waiting for? The first day of your retirement, when you find yourself with no more job and no more paychecks?

Give your retirement savings program a solid foundation by investing in U.S. Savings Bonds. They're backed by the full faith and credit of the United States and guaranteed to earn interest.* And they're easy to buy for just a few dollars each payday through your employer's U.S. Savings Bonds Payroll Savings Plan. Or buy them at your bank.

Plus, the interest earned on U.S. Savings Bonds is exempt from state and local income taxes and can be deferred for federal income tax purposes for up to 30 years.

Ask your banker or your employer about including U.S. Savings Bonds in your retirement savings program. Even if you call it "saving for a rainy day."

Reupholstery lets you keep best furniture

By JASON SCHMITT
Staff writer

Although manufactured goods may never be made "the way they used to," at Carol's Upholstery in Novi they can be restored to make the customer feel like he just walked out of a furniture store with a quality product.

With advanced technology, good, quality furniture can be hard to come by. But Ann Ray and Carol Morrissey, co-owners of Carol's Upholstery, have worked to restore furniture for nearly 50 years combined and believe almost any piece of furniture can be made new.

"These are our parents' pieces of furniture," Ray said. "You can't go out and buy that type of quality anymore. Now days they cut corners at the factories just to make a profit. Customers must be wise. In the old furniture, the wood is thicker and it's not just stapled together."

Aside from reupholstering all kinds of furniture, Ray and Morrissey also custom build furniture and offer slip covers, upholstered cornices and vinylizing to their customers.

"The attitude today is that everything is disposable and 'make it convenient for me.' If people only had a clue as to what some of that furniture is worth," Ray said. "Today it costs people double to purchase the same quality of furniture as companies used to build. By upholstering furniture, you're holding on to the better pieces."

Both Ray and Morrissey, along with part-time employee Bill Alger, have spent nearly their entire lives in and around the business.

Morrissey began cutting and sewing clothes at the age of 10 and furthered her education in interior design and textiles at Central Michigan University. She also worked in a drapery department for a few years.

Ray worked for her father at Ray Interiors in Farmington for 20 years until her father retired six years ago. Since then, she and Morrissey have owned their own shop in Novi.

"Basically after so long you wonder why you're working for someone else for so long," Ray said. "So I talked with Carol and we decided to do it. We both had tons of experience and it was just a matter of finding a place to open up shop."

Ray said that when the two opened up their shop five years ago, they took the positives and negatives of their past experiences and applied them to the business. So far it has seemed to work.

"I'm here for the long haul," Ray added. "I really care about them (customers) and helping them learn about the characteristics of fabrics. When our parents bought their furniture, it was a life purchase. Those pieces of furniture are still good today."

Carol's Upholstery is located at 44480 Grand River between Novi Road and Taft Road. The shop is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays and 9 a.m. to noon on Saturdays. For more information about Carol's please call (248) 347-0940.

When refinancing makes sense

Money Management

features (such as a lower rate cap).

If you're looking to raise cash to pay tuition bills, improve your home, or pay off high-interest debt, you might consider "cashing out." That's the term lenders use for refinancing a mortgage for more than its current balance, allowing the borrower to walk away with extra cash for other purposes. Cash-out refinancing is generally limited to 75 percent of the total value of the refinanced home. If a mortgage-free retirement sounds attractive, consider taking advantage of lower rates to restructure the financing terms, perhaps scaling down from a 30-year loan to a 15-year loan. With shorter term loans, a greater percentage of your monthly payment pays off the principal — which means you build equity faster, pay less interest over the life of the loan, and free up retirement income for other purposes.

ESTIMATING THE BENEFITS

As attractive as refinancing may sound, one precept remains true: if you're refinancing to save money, you want to be sure the costs associated with getting a new loan do not outweigh what you save on your monthly mortgage payment.

This outcome can result from your not staying in your house long enough to recoup your refinancing costs. There are many online calculators on the Internet that make it very simple for you to determine whether you're likely to come out ahead by refinancing. If you prefer to do your calculations on paper, follow this simple formula:

- Add up the costs associated with refinancing.
- Determine the amount of your new monthly payment.
- Divide your total refinancing costs by your monthly savings.

The result tells you how many months you need to stay in your home to reach your break-even point.

SHOPPING FOR THE BEST DEAL

An important factor in deciding whether or not you should refinance is understanding what the process involves and how much it will cost. For an accurate comparison of refinancing costs, it's a good idea to look beyond interest rates and compare fees and related expenses as well. Start your search close to home. Lenders who value their existing customers are sometimes willing to give them better deals. However, it's always a good idea to get quotes from several lenders, just to be sure.

The Internet can be a great resource for collecting rate information, particularly during high-volume periods when overworked lenders might not be able to respond to your request for information as quickly as you may like.

If timing is important to you — for example, if you're trying to nail down a good rate — find out if your current lender offers "streamlined" refinancing. They require less paperwork and reduce processing time. Additionally, because the lender already has your mortgage documentation on file, you can sometimes get away with simply confirming and updating the information rather than starting from scratch.

ASSESSING TAXES

CPAs say it's important that you consider the tax implications of refinancing. First, unlike points for an original mortgage which are fully deductible in the year of purchase, points paid in connection with refinancing must be deducted over the life of the loan (unless you use the funds for home improvements). Also, keep in mind that since a lower interest rate means a smaller mortgage interest deduction on your tax return, you need to factor in this reduction when calculating withholding and estimated tax payments.

GM strike not harming retail sales

Michigan's retail industry reported its best overall sales performance of the year in June despite the start of the General Motors strike and resulting layoffs, according to the latest statistics available.

Sixty-two percent of retailers reported increased year-to-year sales for the month, the highest figure since last December, according to the Michigan Retail Index, a joint project of the Michigan Retailers Association and Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago. It was also the best June since the Index was established in July 1994.

Retailers were optimistic, too, for sales in the third quarter, including back-to-school shopping. Seventy-two percent said they expect increased sales for the July-September period, up from 68 percent who had a positive outlook for the June-August period.

"Michigan's retail sales appear to be stronger than national figures, in part because of a hot summer and strong tourism," said Larry Meyer, CEO of the Michigan Retailers Association and former director of the Michigan Department of Commerce.

"There also was no indication in the numbers that the beginning of the GM strike and related plant closings were having an adverse effect on overall sales in Michigan. We'll be watching that for July."

dise retailers followed at 67 percent and gift retailers at 65 percent.

All regions of the state reported positive numbers, led by West Michigan at 67 percent and Northern Michigan at 65 percent. Apparel trailed at 48 percent.

The MRA is the voice of retailing in Michigan and the nation's largest state trade association of general merchandise retailers.

New home can be a smart purchase

A new home is one of the smartest purchases you can make. If you're like most people, you spend half of your time at home — enjoying leisure time, raising a family, working in a garden or entertaining friends.

But beyond the "basic" pleasure and security that a home provides, it can also enhance the quality of life. New homes typically increase in value, provide considerable tax advantages and — most important — are designed to offer comfort and convenience.

"One of the best things about owning a home is that each monthly payment buys you more and more of that home, while its value typically continues to increase," said Mark F. Guidobono, president of the Building Industry Association of Southeastern Michigan and chief executive officer of Cambridge Homes in Northville. "That increase in value belongs to you, and you can borrow against it, or use it to increase your own net worth. Home ownership, also brings you income tax savings each year because you can still deduct mortgage interest and property taxes."

Today's new homes are more comfortable and convenient than ever before. Today's home builders use smart design and the latest amenities to bring buyers homes with maximum style and convenience since tastes and needs of homeowners change over time. Successful builders study changes in consumer lifestyles and incorporate features into their new homes which accommodate the changes. For instance, houses built in the 1960s catered to the needs of people in that time when a smaller percentage of couples had two wage earners, and households were likely to have a larger average number of children. In the 1990s, household sizes have fallen, and there are more two-income families.

To accommodate the needs of a 1990s household, a house might need two bathrooms off the master bedroom or a bathroom with two sinks to allow both members of the couple to get ready for work at the same time. Fewer children might mean that houses should have fewer but larger rooms.

In addition, today's homes are much more energy efficient than homes built ten or 20 years ago. Extra insulation, double-glazed windows, tighter construction and more energy efficient appliances are just a few of the features that will save you money in heating and cooling bills. And because everything in the house is new, maintenance costs will be low.

- Other advantages include:
- Better designed kitchens with new appliances.
- More energy efficient heating and cooling systems resulting in lower monthly energy bills.
- More electrical outlets.
- Safety glass in safety-critical areas.

"It's a great time to buy a new home," concluded Guidobono. "There's an ample supply of new homes on the market. Interest rates are still historically low, and the benefits of homeownership are many." So invest your money wisely and get ready for moving day.

What is a Durable Power of Attorney for Health Care

And Why Do I Need One?

What is a Durable Power of Attorney for Health Care?

A Durable Power of Attorney is an important legal document that expresses wishes about your health care and appoints someone to speak for you if you become seriously ill or injured and cannot speak for yourself. Once signed by you and witnessed, this document, the person you name, and your wishes about health care become part of your medical record. You are not required to sign such a document, nor do you need a Durable Power of Attorney for Health Care to receive medical treatment at Botsford General Hospital.

Why do You Need a Durable Power of Attorney for Health Care?

Under Michigan Law, it is your right to name someone to speak for you about your medical treatment in case you are unable to speak for yourself. A Durable Power of Attorney for Health Care document can protect your right to refuse medical care.

Such a legal document can help you protect your right to make medical choices that influence your life and the lives of your loved ones. It can protect your family from the stress and responsibility of having to make difficult choices about your medical care. It can even help your physician by providing specific guidelines for your care.

For More Information

If you'd like more information about establishing a Durable Power of Attorney for Health Care, talk to your physician, attorney, or other appropriate person. If you would like a Durable Power of Attorney for Health Care form, please call the Botsford General Hospital Community Relations/Marketing Department at (248) 442-7986.

EDITOR'S LETTER

Some last summer flings with fun before the school bell rings!

August is a month in the middle. It is blazing hot, summer vacations are still in full swing and Michigan's best produce is dangling from the vine. Yet, the school bells will be ringing for most students in just a few weeks, which forces everyone to acknowledge that vacation is almost over and fall is just around the corner.

So, in the month that offers a little bit of everything, we will, too. In this issue of LifeLine, we'll help you stifle your hay fever sniffles of fall, but still offer you sunburn stoppers after you've taken a few final dips in the lake. You'll find tips on heading out on the open road for a last family trek over Labor Day, and a list of immunizations your kids will need before they head back into the classroom. There's lots more info for readers of all ages and with all interests, plus more photos and graphics to make LifeLine an easier read. Enjoy!

When children say "no" to school

Going to school usually is an exciting, enjoyable event for young children. For some it brings fear or panic. Parents have cause for concern when their child regularly feels sick from tension, "plays sick" or with minor physical complaints wishes to stay home from school.

Unreasonable fear of school usually surfaces in nursery school, kindergarten or first grade, and it peaks in second grade. Your child may complain of a headache, sore throat or stomach-ache shortly before it is time to leave for school. The "illness" subsides after he or she is allowed to stay home, only to reappear the next morning before school. In some cases your child may simply refuse to leave the house.

Your child may refuse to go to school following a period at home when he or she has become closer to mom or dad, such as a summer vacation, a holiday break or a brief illness. It also may follow a stressful occurrence, such as the death of a pet or relative, a change in schools or a move to a new neighborhood.

Children with an unreasonable fear of school may feel unsafe staying in a room by themselves and may display clinging behavior, shadowing mom and dad around the house. Such fears are common among children with separation anxiety disorder.

Other signs:

- constant thoughts and fears about the safety of themselves and their parents
- extreme worries about sleeping away from home
- panic or tantrums at times of separation from parents

Anxious children are often overly tense or uptight. Some may seek a lot of reassurance. Because anxious children may also be quiet, compliant and eager to please, their difficulties may be missed.

If your child has persistent fears, call your doctor, or your child may develop serious educational or social problems if away from school and friends for a long time. You and your child can benefit from seeing a child and adolescent psychiatrist, who will work with you to immediately return your son or daughter to school and other important daily activities. Since the panic comes from leaving home rather than being in school, frequently your child is calm once in school.

For some children, the more fundamental causes of fear will need to be treated at greater length. Refusal to go to school in the older child or adolescent is generally a more serious illness and often requires more intensive treatment. In any case, unreasonable fears about leaving home and parents can be successfully treated, so don't hesitate to call your doctor. **!

A shot in the arm

When we talk of school boosters, your child is praying we mean those energetic little money-raisers, but you know better. There's no easy way to break it to your kids that they have to get their immunizations. But if they're cranky when they get a cold, imagine how feisty they'll be with the measles. Let's get those shots and how!

Immunization schedules have changed in recent years and there may be different requirements for your school as well, so be sure and check with your school - then make an appointment with your child's doctor. Please review the childhood immunization schedule recommended by the Michigan Department of Community Health at the bottom of the page.

When prevention is worth a pound of cure

if they don't receive their shots, according to the Michigan Department of Community Health.

Pertussis (whooping cough) - This disease is caused by a bacteria and is quite common in the United States. It's very easily spread through coughing and sneezing and results in severe coughing, loss of breath and sometimes death. One in 100 babies who gets pertussis dies or is left with permanent brain damage.

Polio - This virus is somewhat contagious but is rarely seen in the United States since the vaccine was developed decades ago. It causes paralysis and sometimes death.

Measles - This virus is still seen in the United States though a vaccine has been available for years. It's spread by sneezing, coughing and through saliva and can result in possible brain damage. Babies and adults are at particular risk.

Mumps - This virus is quite contagious through coughing and sneezing and causes fever, headaches, swollen glands and hearing loss.

Rubella - This mild disease, also known as German measles, is rarely seen in the United States. It's contagious, being spread through saliva, sneezing and coughing. While in most people it simply causes a mild fever and rash, for pregnant women it can be deadly to their unborn babies. Babies born with rubella can have heart disease, be blind or deaf, or have learning problems.

Haemophilus influenzae Type B (Hib) - This disease is spread through coughing and sneezing and can result in meningitis and infections in the blood and skin, or even death.

Hepatitis B - This common virus infects the liver. It is spread through sexual contact and in the household and can cause liver failure or even death. Each year more than 240,000 people get infected and 1 million people already carry Hepatitis B.

Tetanus - This also is called lockjaw and can occur when a wound or cut gets infected. Tetanus makes a person unable to open his or her mouth or swallow. The disease kills three of every 10 people who get it in the United States.

Diphtheria - A bacteria causes this rare disease that is spread through coughing and sneezing. It causes severe breathing problems, paralysis and heart failure.

Chicken pox - This common virus is very contagious, passed on through sneezing and saliva. While it usually is not life-threatening it does cause an itchy rash that covers the body for several weeks. A child is contagious for a week or more and so must stay home from school during that time. Once someone has had chicken pox the virus stays in the body and can reappear and cause shingles (numbness, itching or severe pain) later in life. Unlike the other vaccines, the chicken pox vaccine is not required for school or day care. It is, however, recommended by the American Academy of Pediatrics.

The heads-up on lice

Among the many things your child will bring home from school that probably won't please you—a C on the spelling test, some new slang you don't understand but know is offensive, a tattoo-covered friend, perhaps—nothing will be more uninvited than head lice. Yet your kid may be one of the thousands with good health and hygiene habits who will traipse home one day with the claws of these tiny brown insects attached to their scalps. During August, which is National Pediculosis (head lice) Month, the focus is on avoiding the critters. Here's how to do that and how to get rid of them if your prevention efforts fail:

- Don't let your child share hats, scarves, combs, brushes or towels with friends and classmates. Slumber party makeovers can still go on if everyone uses their own stuff!
- If an outbreak occurs at school, check your child's head right away for nits, the white eggs laid by lice, that look like dandruff. You'll find them above the ears and at the back of the neck. Another sign of head lice is an itchy scalp.
- If your child does get lice, remember, they're good hoppers, so don't let them do the long jump to others in the household. Keep the rest of the family bug-free by treating everyone with anti-lice shampoo prescribed by your doctor.
- Wash clothing, toys, bed linens, combs, brushes and towels in hot water.
- Place unwashable items in a plastic bag for seven days or at a freezing temperature for 24 hours. Furniture and rugs that can't be washed (or frozen!) may be sprayed with RID spray and vacuumed daily for a week.

Make your Labor Day vacation work-free

What could be more fun than loading up the family for a Labor Day car trip to Yosemite? Major dental work, perhaps? Scrubbing your bathroom grout to a gleaming white, you say? Just joking! Actually, packing up the kids and taking off by plane, train, car or any other mode of transportation can really be a great time. It just takes planning to make the trip run smoothly. Here are some good general tips to keep your vacation, well, a vacation.

- Go to the library together to research your destination and any side trips or stops you'll be making to interesting towns. One child could learn about the unusual topography; the other could look up unusual sites to see. Get together as a family to discuss what you'll do and see so everyone feels a part of the adventure.
- Make several lists of things the kids must spot along the way (sort of a mini scavenger hunt). Whoever is first to find everything on their list wins a small prize from a "prize bag" filled with dime-store purchases. You can have many lists for various points throughout the trip, so "city" sites would be listed as you travel through congested areas, while "country" lists would be for when you're out on the open road.
- Hand each child a map and highlighter so they can track progress. (This also helps them learn about distances and map-reading, and cuts down on "how much longer 'til we're there?" questions.)

- Give each child a large bag or box. Have them collect something of interest from each stop along the way and label the item - whether it's a pine cone from the state park you visited or a shell from the small seaside town you passed through. It's a fun way to keep them busy and they'll remember where they've been.
- Another way to record the trip is to give everyone a disposable camera and have them shoot sites of interest along the way. Then, when you return home and have the pictures developed you can compare your individual "views" of the trip.
- Give each child a backpack filled with plenty of supplies - new crayons, colored pencils, paper, books or small toys. Or, wrap various new surprises and dole them out along the way as the kids seem to get bored. They'll enjoy unwrapping each gift as well as playing with the new item.
- Play classic travel games such as "I Spy," or finding items starting with all the letters of the alphabet. A great book for no- and low-cost games to play all vacation long is I Saw a Purple Cow by Ann Cole, Carolyn Haas, Faith Bushnell and Betty Weinberger ($10.95, Little, Brown and Company).

Leave your allergies in the dust

Got your dander up about your annual soggy nose and drippy eyes? Spring marked the start of hay fever season, resulting in a nasally chorus of sneezes, sniffles and nose-blowing across the country. This year will be particularly troublesome because the heavy rains caused by El Nino last winter resulted in a perfect setting for budding plants (and higher pollen counts).

Here are a few simple ways to help stifle the stuffiness and irradiate the itching:

- Avoid the irritant. Easier said than done when pollen from a weed in Livonia can tickle the nose of someone in, say, Cadillac. But, you can limit outdoor activities on warm, windy days and stay inside when pollen levels are highest (check your weather channel). Keep windows closed and the house vacuumed and dusted to prevent pollen build-up.
- Use over-the-counter antihistamines and decongestants to relieve sneezing; reduce nasal swelling and drainage; and control itchy eyes, nose and throat. Allergy drugs are better now than in the past: They get rid of symptoms more effectively and they have fewer side effects.
- Take a vacation during high pollen times - maybe to a seaside spot.
- Wear a face mask outdoors while working to filter out pollen and keep nasal passages clear.

- If you're really bugged by your allergies (3.5 million work days are lost to hay fever maladies each year), consider seeing your doctor about getting prescription medications such as topical nasal steroids or cromolyn sodium that stop the allergic reaction and cut nasal swelling. Or, you might try immunotherapy (also known as allergy shots). A few skin tests can help pinpoint what's causing your hay fever havoc so you can get the shots you need to relieve symptoms.

Some information reprinted from the University of Michigan Health System and the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Disease.

What's the reason for your sneezin'?

Every fall you seem to come down with that same rotten cold. Suddenly, it hits you: maybe it's not a cold at all, but an allergic reaction to pollen. Here are the signs of hay fever:

- A pattern to your symptoms (same time each year, especially during key times when airborne allergens take flight).
- Your symptoms last more than a week or two and they are relieved by an over-the-counter or prescription antihistamine.

- You experience:
 - clear mucus discharge from your nose sneezing, often accompanied by a runny or clogged nose
 - coughing and postnasal drip
 - itching eyes, nose and throat
 - allergic shiners (dark circles under the eyes caused by increased blood flow near the sinuses)
 - the "allergic salute" (in a child, persistent upward rubbing of the nose that causes a crease mark on the nose)
 - watering eyes
 - conjunctivitis (an inflammation of the membrane that lines the eyelids, causing red-rimmed, swollen eyes and crusting of the eyelids.)
 - no fever

Your doctor can diagnose you by looking at your mucous membranes, which often appear swollen and pale in people with allergies. With a cold, you probably will have cloudy or discolored nasal mucus and a fever and your symptoms usually clear in about a week. In addition, decongestants relieve your symptoms. **||

Exercise your options

If all those quickie cellulite creams worked, heck, you'd see people lounging in tubs of that stuff for miles around and there wouldn't be a smelly jogging shoe insight. Alas, the goo doesn't work but the exercise does. Here's some info to help you get started in your quest for a healthier heart and thinner thighs:

- Use strength training, aerobic exercise and regular activity to aid in weight management.
- To lose one pound, you must burn 3,500 calories. Just 30 minutes of aerobic exercise three times a week can burn more than 1,500 calories.
- Aerobic activities include bicycling, jogging, racquetball, brisk walking and aerobic dance. Vary your activity to keep your workouts interesting.
- Increase your everyday activity level by taking the stairs at work, parking further from stores or the office and refusing to use labor-saving devices such as electric hedge trimmers or leaf blowers.
- Use the talk test to tell if you're exercising at the proper intensity. You should be able to carry on a normal conversation while exercising without feeling out of breath.
- Make sure you warm up for five or 10 minutes, exercise, then cool down for another five or 10 minutes. Finally, stretch after both your warm-up and cool-down to maintain your mobility and agility.
- Couple your exercise with healthy eating (see the produce article, this issue). Your diet should be high in complex carbohydrates and include nutrients from the six basic food groups of the Food Guide Pyramid. This includes:
 - 2 to 4 servings of fruit
 - 3 to 5 servings of vegetables
 - 6 to 11 servings of breads and cereals
 - 2 to 3 servings of meat
 - 2 to 3 servings milk products
 - Fats, oils and sweets used sparingly
- Know that eating right and exercising more will help you sleep better, be more alert, handle stress better and look and feel better. If you have medical problems, or are over age 35, see your doctor before beginning an exercise and weight-loss program. ■■

Move it!

Despite the overwhelming evidence that exercise reduces the risk of many health problems, the Surgeon General's recent report on physical activity and health finds that 60 percent of Americans still are not exercising regularly.

Fresh produce bears fruit with no labor

Cantaloupe . . . mango . . . papaya . . . eggplant . . . No, they're not slipcover hues described in the latest Pottery Barn catalogue—we're actually talking about nature's bounty this time! These and other fruits and veggies pack a powerful one-two punch: they're great-tasting and fight disease! Antioxidants—a group of vitamins and minerals found in fruits and vegetables—may protect against heart disease and cancer. Certainly, eating a low-fat diet that includes lots of fiber-filled produce does lessen your risk of both cancer and heart disease.

Summer produce is the ultimate lazy cook's meal because it tastes great all on its own—no need to slather on heavy sauces or butter. So, indulge in:

- Strawberries, blueberries, cherries and raspberries.

Put them on cereal, mix them with yogurt or eat them by the handful. When the kids start the cherry-pit spitting contest, run for cover. Since berries don't last long, enjoy them year-round by freezing them: Wash them and remove their caps. Let them dry, then place berries on a cookie sheet and freeze. Later, you can put them in plastic freezer bags.

- Sweet corn. One-third cup provides 12 percent of the U.S. Recommended Daily Allowance for folic acid (a nutrient that helps prevent birth defects and heart disease) and 9 percent of the U.S. RDA for magnesium. Studies have found eating corn may lower blood cholesterol. Stop by a roadside stand to get the absolute-freshest there is. Then, drop the corn in boiling water for just a few minutes to retain its sugary sweetness. No need for butter!

- Tomatoes and sweet onions. Tomatoes are the No. 1 vegetable favored by backyard gardeners.

They contain vitamins A and C and something called lycopenes, a substance believed to cut your cancer risk. Slice them up, mix them up then toss them with some balsamic vinegar, a touch of olive oil and some fresh basil and ground pepper. Don't refrigerate the tomatoes before you slice them—they taste most flavorful at room temperature. Tomatoes slice easiest lengthwise to prevent the membrane from puncturing and juice and pulp from pouring out. Keep your eyes dry when you cut into the onions by sticking the onions in the freezer for 15 minutes before you slice.

- Cantaloupe. The mild, cream-colored skin belies this fruit's powerful punch inside: It is one of the most nutrient-dense fruits available. Chock-full of beta carotene (a cancer-fighter), one cup contains more than 100 percent of the vitamin A and C you need daily, with just 55 calories.

- Asparagus. Eight little green spears meet 30 percent of the U.S. RDA for folic acid, plus 18 percent of the vitamin A, 55 percent of the vitamin C, and 20 percent of the vitamin E you need - all for just 22 calories.

- Sweet bell peppers. One cup of these provides all the vitamin A you need for the entire day and more than three times the vitamin C you need. Grill them up to bring out their sweetness. **||

- get a cancer check today

Your kids are drawing connect-the-dot pictures with the moles on your back—and you're thinking it's probably a good time to go in for that skin cancer check. Good move! Really, though, even one mole or strange growth is a risk and skin cancer is the most common of all cancers, so get a yearly check-up.

See your doctor if:

- A mole changes in size, shape or color
- You have an unusual growth on your skin
- Your skin changes color in certain spots
- A sore won't heal

You're at greatest risk if you:

- sunburn easily
- have fair skin
- have red or blond hair and blue, green or gray eyes
- work or play outdoors frequently
- spent a lot of time in the sun as a child and had blistering sunburns before age 20
- have a family history of melanoma
- have more than 100 moles on your body, or 50 if you're under age 20.

Save your skin by:

- Wearing sunscreen (see related article) with an SPF of 15 and applying it 30 minutes before going outside. New, invisible sunscreens offer even more protection against the sun's damaging rays. Some products that have this broad protection: BioSun Oil-free Gel SPF 30, Ombrelle Sunscreen Lotion SPF 15, Iguana Sunblock, Ban de Soleil UV Sense SPF 50 and Hawaiian Tropic Super Waterproof Sunblock Lotion. Reapply the sunscreen often, especially after swimming. Remember, children under 6 months old should be kept out of the sun completely.
- Avoiding sunlamps and tanning parlors.
- Maintaining a diet with less than 20 percent of calories from fat; studies show that may cut your risk of some skin cancers. Vitamin E- and C-packed foods (see related article, this issue) also may protect you.

Some information provided by the National Cancer Institute.

Anti-sunscreen report could leave you half-baked

Don't skip the sunscreen—despite a recent report suggesting that sunscreens don't protect people from skin cancer, Henry Ford physicians say. While sunscreens seem to help prevent sunburn, they appear ineffective in curbing the growing number of skin cancer cases, according to researchers. It is projected that if the incidence of melanoma cases continues at the current pace, by the year 2000, one in 75 people risk developing the deadly form of skin cancer. Many doctors agree that data needs to be compiled over the long-term to determine the full effects of sunscreen, and the American Academy of Dermatology still supports the use of sunscreen.

Sun blocks work. They aren't perfect but they help protect the skin, says Tor Shwayder, M.D., a Henry Ford Hospital dermatologist. Failure to apply sunscreen can enable the sun's rays to age skin, making it look wrinkled. Liver spots and freckles also are a result of too much sun. II

There's no question people are living longer, healthier lives. The question is, where are they living?

While it's true many older Americans continue to live in their homes, others are choosing retirement residences and some require the services of nursing homes or assisted living facilities. Here's a look at a few options available to the elderly population:

There's no place like home

be, but for many seniors, they know right away that they prefer to live in their own homes. For those who need assistance to do so, there are numerous services.

Care management is a program that links frail older people with community services so they can stay in their homes. After a preliminary qualification screening over the phone, an in-home assessment is conducted by a registered nurse and social worker team.

Chore services and chore referral offers assistance with household tasks such as lawn mowing, leaf raking and snow removal.

Congregate meals allows seniors to get a hot lunch on weekdays at 43 sites in the region. Home delivered meals allows homebound seniors to receive a hot meal every weekday.

Homemaker services help people with tasks such as laundry, ironing, meal preparation, shopping for necessities and light housekeeping.

A declaration of independence

For those seniors who demand independence but want to give up such chores as cooking, cleaning house and doing their laundry, retirement residences are a good choice. The apartments often feature kitchenettes, and laundry and housekeeping services. The entire community features a dining facility, social activities and a host of other amenities for older people who want time to relax and enjoy their retirement. Monthly rates can run $2,000.

A helping hand

Some older people require more assistance; assisted living facilities and nursing homes offer this added care.

Nursing homes provide round-the-clock nursing care; assisted living facilities are for more independent people who don't need such care.

Assisted living facilities often offer help with feeding, bathing and dressing though those services might cost extra (in nursing homes that's part of the routine care provided).

Adult day care is a daytime program of social, rehabilitative and maintenance services for functionally impaired elderly people.

Subsidized housing offers low and moderate income seniors a place to live.

For more information on any of these programs or many others, contact The Senior Alliance, a private, non-profit agency designated as an Area Agency on Aging at 800-815-1112. Anyone age 60 and over who lives in southern and western Wayne County is potentially eligible for services funded by The Senior Alliance. No fees are charged for services but recipients are asked to make a donation. Most of the funding for The Senior Alliance comes from the Older Americans Act and the Older Michiganians Act. ■

When you visit us, we'll assign you to your own Home Construction Financing Professional, one of five people who will work exclusively with you. They have the expertise to help you with the financing details and the construction of your new home from start to finish. There is one person who is directly responsible for answering all your questions. You'll get as much or as little help as you want...just stop in or call toll free 1-800-875-9126 or 475-9126 locally.

Why consider a Construction Financing Plan?

- Banks provide dollars for a final mortgage, but not money during construction.
- You will save money by being your own general contractor and by providing some of the labor yourself or by using your relatives' and friends' help.

Why select Chelsea Lumber Company's Construction Financing Plan?

- Experience! Ours is the original. Others have unsuccessfully tried to copy ours!

For more than 30 years, we've been financing new-home construction, making it possible for over 3,000 homes to be built in a 17-county area.

- We make it simple! When you talk with us, the whole process shifts from complicated to do-able. All the estimating, qualifying and arranging for any outside contracting you'll need is done with the help of your personal, Chelsea Lumber construction professional.
- We provide financing. Cash to assist you in building your home is provided and no payments are due until your home is completed. We are your one-stop source for all your materials - you will get our lowest cash 'n carry prices, but you don't have to buy the materials from us.

How important is this decision?

Building your home is the most important financial decision you'll ever make - it's that important! Come learn the facts...see our facilities...meet our people at our FREE CLINICS Monday or Tuesday, August 10th or 11th at 7:00 PM, and then make an informed decision.

Joists

Jager Super I Joists

WE'VE SWITCHED! Why did

Chelsea Lumber switch to Jager Super I Joists?

- Provable better quality — EVERY joint in EVERY joist is tested for strength!
- More builder-friendly — 2½ inch nailing flange rather than 1½" flange makes nailing the subfloor easy.
- Mechanicals can be cut in to the floor system rather than suspended below it.
- Stronger — will span further and reduce deflection, vibration and floor squeaks.
- Codes and standards — Meets the latest revisions of all applicable codes and standards.

Jager Super I products are guaranteed to be free from defects in workmanship and materials and will carry the loads specified provided they are used under normal service conditions and in accordance with the instructions and specifications as referenced in our literature.
