Shaken, not stirred

Northville, Novi uneffected by 'wimpy' Ohio earthquake

For former Californian Christine Greene, who's a receptionist in the Novi City Manager's office, the Sept. 25 earthquake was, well, kind of wimpy.

"We were always getting them up there. The shaking is a lot longer there than it was here," she said.

However, most of the employees at the Novi Civic Center were well aware that – although the Michigan 50s Festival is but a memory – the town was rocking just an hour before quitting time on Friday.

Greene said the tremor at the Ten Mile Road building was noticeable.

Others in Novi and Northville were hardly aware anything had happened at about 3:37 p.m. Some felt a bit of action, but the inexperienced Midwesterners hardly knew what hit them.

Brian Lassise, geophysicist at the National Earthquake Information Center in Boulder, Colo., said the quake was centered out of Sharon, Pennsylvania and registered 5.2 on the Richter Scale.

Novi's police department was notified via Teletype by Oakland County's Emergency Management

Feds order OIS to reopen plant

■ Commerce Department threatens sanctions if company doesn't fulfill defense contracts.

By CHRIS C. DAVIS

With the possibility of stiff fines and jail time as a leverage against the company, Northville Township's Optical Imaging Systems, Inc. was ordered back to work Tuesday by the U.S. Department of Commerce.

The Five Mile Road company closed its doors Sept. 16 after less than a decade of doing business in Northville Township. An estimated 220 employees were notified their positions would be immediately laid off.

A statement from the Commerce Department said OIS was "the only qualified U.S. manufacturer" of flat panel screens used in several key pieces of military hardware. The release said OIS would have until yesterday to demonstrate how it would meet its contractual obligations.

Exactly what methods were employed by OIS to fulfill its contract were up to the company, said Commerce Department spokesperson Susan Hofer.

"It's up to them how they do it," Hofer was quoted as saying in a Tuesday Detroit Free Press article. "We're just telling them to get it done."

Hofer also indicated in the article that a group of defense contractors who utilize the displays would pay the costs of operating OIS until the company's restructuring or sale is complete. Those contractors were not provided.

The order was being handed down under the Defense Production Act and Selective Service Act.

NORTHVILLE HIGH SCHOOL CELEBRATES HOMECOMING 1998

Students on the senior class tug-of-war team dig in against the Northville High School faculty team during spirit week activities Friday. The senior class dominated the tug-of-war, and captured many of the other Homecoming 1998 activities.

"Under the Sea" was a fitting theme for Northville's Homecoming as the high school's football team sunk Livonia Churchill 21-0 Friday night, and the seniors drowned their classmates in contests all week long.

What has traditionally been a football game followed by a formal dance has expanded over the years into six days of celebrating school spirit.

This year was no exception.

"It truly was excellent," said principal Tom Johnson. "It was probably one of the nicest Homecomings we've had."

Assistant principal Dennis Colligan oversaw the activities but said he left most of the planning up to student leaders Conor Sedam, Kevin Wood, Jeff Scott, Shannon McBride, Emily Bartlett and Christina Chase.

"Student leadership was great," Colligan said. "I put a lot of responsibility on some of the seniors to handle things and they did a wonderful job."

During the week, seniors also prevailed in lunchtime relays and costume competitions, all based on the underwater theme.

On orange and black day, students painted their faces and wore outrageous accessories like striped knee-socks and afro wigs or orange crinolines and leopard prints like senior Sara

Pigeon brings family values to township police career

Though you probably wouldn't know it, the photo of Kelly Pigeon that accompanies this story was taken only a few hundred yards away from a gas line leak. A very dangerous situation, to be sure.

So why is this woman smiling? Because for her, there's no job she'd rather be doing.

"I really like what I do," said the grinning administrative assistant for Northville Township's police department. "I enjoy having the opportunity to help people. It makes me feel good."

Northville's Treasures

She's helped a lot of people in her police career, but it was her father's help which got Pigeon into law enforcement. Pigeon's father was a police officer for the city of Detroit. His experience, she said, spurred her on to follow in his footsteps.

"He was thrilled to learn I wanted to go into police work, too," she said.

Pigeon wasted no time in getting on with her career, as she started as a police dispatcher immediately after graduating from Plymouth Canton High School in 1985. One year later, she found herself moved back into her old stomping grounds when she was picked up by the city of Plymouth, also in the dispatching realm.

Not much after that, Pigeon's life took a slight detour when she began considering other job options.

"I thought I might want a Monday through Friday, nine-to-five life," she said, then laughed sarcastically. "I was wrong."

She landed a position working for an insurance company. Not wanting to stray too far from her field of expertise, she was responsible for researching driving records.

"That didn't last too long," Pigeon said. "It just wasn't my thing."

Northville Township's Kelly Pigeon enjoys her work in the township public safety department. "I enjoy having the opportunity to help people. It makes me feel good," she said.

She was then beckoned back to police work, only this time it was on the east side of Haggerty Road, where she became a dispatcher for the Livonia police. The position was made available because the former dispatchers needed time off for maternity leave.

Once they returned, though, Pigeon needed to find yet another job. This time, it was right back where she started: Northville Township.

"Director (Chip) Snider wanted me to do the records over here," she said. "It was neat being able to come right back where I started. Everything came around full-circle."

Since returning to the town-

Hydrants scheduled for annual flushing

■ Officials warn residents to expect some sediment in city water lines.

By CHRIS C. DAVIS
Staff Writer

Word to the wise: if you live in the central portion of Northville, avoid tossing that gleaming white set of sheets into the washer over the next few days.

That's because the city will begin a hydrant flushing program this Monday, which may churn up orange or brown sediment in the process. That, said public works director Jim Gallogly, could translate into tinted laundry.

Though the majority of the sediment is cleared when fire hydrants are opened, Gallogly said residences and businesses that run their water during the flushing process may draw in some of the churned-up cloudy water.

The program will run through Oct. 16 and cover around 30 streets in the north and central areas of Northville.

"The purpose of this program is to clear the city's watermains of sediment that accumulates over

Clean-up continues at Mill Pond site

■ Department of Environmental Quality mulls next step in restoration plan.

By CHRIS C. DAVIS
Staff Writer

Environmental experts are considering upping the ante in the fight to preserve Northville's Mill Pond, following the discovery of petroleum products in the water last year.

Department of Environmental Quality geologist Steve Hoin said water and soil experts were trying to figure out their next move in cleaning up the much-loved pond

The DEQ determined the petroleum by-products were seeping from underground lagoons of the now-closed Ely Fuel facility, which operated until the early 1970s. Residents have commented that an oily shine can be seen on the surface of the water in still weather.

Since the discovery of the seepage, the DEQ has set up a capture trench and oil booms to skim off the oil. Now, Hoin said, it's a matter of figuring out which of those methods are particularly effective.

The effectiveness will likely be spelled out in a report about the Mill Pond that Hoin said he would be reviewing shortly.

The contours and make-up of the soil in and around the Mill Pond present some complications in studying it, Hoin said.

"The hydrogeology and geology of the Mill Pond are tricky," he said. "It's a body of water where you have gravel layers terminating nearby the Mill Pond, which presents some challenges from our perspective."

Since the study of the Mill Pond began, geologists have learned the petroleum flows from the nearby CSX railroad tracks and into the Mill Pond. As such, "free product" is flowing through the soil and is not being absorbed.

Placement of the booms and capture trench, Hoin said, aren't cure-alls.

"We consider those to be interim solutions," he said. "What we need to ask ourselves now is, how effective is the trench? We feel that it's working, but it's not working as well as we'd like."

Depending on the findings released in the report, Hoin said the DEQ may consider more extensive extraction methods, such as digging out the soil or using thermal technology to heat the ground.

Though only a small amount of the oil is seeping into the water and the nearby soil, Hoin said the DEQ has concerns regarding the level of PCB in the oil. Those chemicals, he said, aren't easily broken down in the environment.

Another concern, Hoin said, is that the by-products may make their way to the famed city water well at the corner of Main Street and Northville Road. Hoin said the DEQ doesn't suspect that the material is in the well yet, but could eventually.

"A lot of people think that's still an artesian spring — it isn't," Hoin said. "There's a pump down there bringing the water up. We just want to make sure the water source is still clean well into the future."

Approximately $900,000 has been allocated for further cleanup efforts, and around $100,000 has been spent on Mill Pond pollution research already.

Continuing efforts by southeast Michigan communities to clean up the beleaguered Rouge River and its tributaries is one of the reasons the DEQ has such an interest in maintaining the Mill Pond, Hoin said.

Air Force band to perform Oct. 10

By JAN JEFFRES
Staff Writer

There's a simple explanation as to why Garden City musician Timothy Collins and his euphonium made a safe landing into the Air Force Band of Flight.

The Marines kept losing his audition tapes.

Collins, now a master sergeant, was a student at Schoolcraft College 23 years ago when he decided that the best way to pursue a music career would be enlisting in the armed forces. Now, he's stationed at Wright Patterson Air Force Base near Dayton.

"You're a full-time musician. In some of the other services, you're a soldier first and you can play the horn in concerts," said Collins, a graduate of Garden City East High School.

"Being a euphonium player, the only place you'd get to work is in a concert band."

On Oct. 10, at 7:30 p.m., Collins will be one of 60 members of the Air Force Band of Flight concert band performing at the Fuerst Auditorium in Novi High School. The concert is free, but tickets must be reserved in advance. Clip the coupon on page 14. You may request up to four tickets by the Oct. 2 deadline.

The prospect of a Novi audience shouldn't be daunting to Collins, who performed for both President Bush and President Reagan, while they were in office.

"It's really great when you get the chance to be up close and see them," he said.

Collins has also appeared with the band at the Indianapolis 500 races and each year is in the parade for the Pro Football Hall of Fame in Canton, Ohio, along with July 4 and Memorial Day parades all over the country.

Major Kelly Bledsoe will conduct the USAF Band of Flight on Oct. 10, at Novi High School's Fuerst Auditorium.

The band appears about 500 times a year and Collins is with them for about 200 of those performances.

As an Air Force Band, you'd assume they wing it from gig to gig. No way. The band goes mostly by bus, occasionally taking to the air when a location is not readily accessible by land.

Collins started out playing the trombone in sixth grade. Moving up in school, there were no trombones available, so the band director switched him to baritone trombone, which is similar to the euphonium.

He tried Schoolcraft College for one semester, before deciding to make music his life. In joining the Air Force Band, he became part of a tradition that dates to 1942.

The band is under the leadership of Major Kelly G. Bledsoe, who started his Air Force career as a a French Hornist and bagpiper in 1977. In May 1992, Bledsoe and the band marched in the Peace Victory Parade in Moscow, the first foreign military personnel to march in Red Square. Three years later, he led the band in performances in honor of V-E Day in Turkey, Italy and St. Petersburg, Russia.

Not many job openings are available in the U.S. for musicians who want to build a career that's not in the fields of pop or rock. Collins recommends the armed forces for any young musician who wants to pursue the career.

"It's got job security. You're able to do what you enjoy doing," he said.

"The travel is a great part of the job, seeing different parts of the country you might not normally get to. It really makes the job most enjoyable."

Next week's concert will appeal to all tastes, Collins said. The program ranges from John Philip Sousa to Lerner and Lowe's "My Fair Lady."

"I think they're going to enjoy what they hear. We play a wide variety of music. I don't think anyone will come away disappointed," he added.

Parents express concerns over ALPS teacher changes

By WENSDY WHITE
Staff Writer

For elementary school students, losing their teacher well into the semester has emotional impact. For students in Northville's gifted program, it may have academic implications as well.

Students in the Alternative Learning Program for Students may face those challenges for the second year in a row as their fifth grade teacher Janice Henderson prepares to assume a new job in the district.

Rebecca Connell is among a group of parents protesting the transfer of Henderson to Curriculum Resource Facilitator.

Her son Josh, 10, was one of nine students who lost their fourth grade teacher Bruce Ricketts last year when Ricketts became a technology facilitator at Northville High School.

"We're so angry this is happening two years in a row. It is disruptive to them," Connell said. "It will be a wash for Josh in the ALPS program again."

Although Connell said she is happy for Henderson's career she faults the timing of the switch.

Administrators posted two Curriculum Resource Facilitator positions in June and interviews were held September 10 during the third week of school.

After Henderson proved to be the best candidate to move between the district's eight schools and demonstrate new teaching techniques, she was offered the job and accepted it the following week. The other position remains open.

According to Dr. Linda Pitcher, assistant superintendent for instructional services, Henderson will not begin until the district locates a teacher to take her place.

"If we do not find a qualified candidate who meets every expectation Mrs. Henderson will remain in the class for the remainder of the semester," she wrote in a letter to parents.

If a qualified candidate is found, Pitcher, Amerman principal Dr. Stephen Anderson, Henderson and the new teacher will meet with parents to smooth the transition.

The new instructor will team up with Henderson's current teaching partner Wendy LaValle and continue the ALPS curriculum already in place, Pitcher said.

Still, Connell isn't satisfied. Last year her son wasn't challenged after the switch and even the most qualified teachers need time to learn the ALPS program, she said.

"I really have no animosity towards a person or towards the circumstances of what's happening. My whole issue is that Josh is getting ripped off again. Even the children going through it the first time are going to be ripped off," she said. "I'm faulting the school board and their decision and the timeliness of this. They knew Dr. Pitcher needed help last year."

Pitcher recommended that a curriculum specialist be hired at both the elementary and secondary level to replace the post of Director of Curriculum that was abandoned five years ago.

The philosophy was to hire teachers to lead curriculum instead of creating another administrative position.

District officials maintain they will hold out for the best candidate to fill Henderson's shoes so that the education of the children won't be compromised.

"They will not be affected academically in any way, shape or form. Emotionally children adjust to change more quickly than adults," she said. "They'll miss Mrs. Henderson but they're not going to be harmed in any way."

Woman assaults co-worker

Police charged a 47-year-old Inkster woman with assault with intent to murder after she lunged at a co-worker wielding a pair of 4 1/2" shears.

Police were called to Balenger Inc. by the plant manager, who reported that the assembly worker had gotten into a verbal fight after her co-worker made comments about her boyfriend.

The manager said he stopped the argument and had a 15-minute conversation with the Inkster woman in his office then followed her down to the plant floor where he expected her to punch out and leave.

Instead, she ran toward her co-worker, reportedly swearing and threatening to kill her. She grabbed a pair of scissors off the work table and thrust the shears at the woman in an underhand lunge.

The manager reported that he grabbed her arm and prevented her from stabbing the woman.

The worker then dropped the shears in a bin. When police arrived she was sitting in her car. They arrested her and took her to the Northville Township jail. At an arraignment, her bond was set at $5,000 and charges of Great Bodily Harm Less than Murder were enhanced to Assault With Intent to Murder.

CUTTING EDGE: Police were informed by Guardian Alarm of a burglary at Cutting Edge salon, 135 E. Dunlap, close to 3 a.m September 26.

They arrived to find the $400 plate glass window at the front of the building smashed with a cinder block that was lying on the floor in the reception area. The $300 cash register was missing from the counter and items were in disarray.

As police carefully checked for persons in the building, an officer spotted a pick-up truck that pulled into the parking lot across from the scene, paused a moment, and moved on.

Police stopped the truck in front of the Marquis Theater on Main Street.

The 28-year-old driver's hand was bleeding profusely from two deep cuts on the back of the fingers of his right hand.

He said he'd gotten the wounds during a bar altercation and agreed to let police search his car.

Drops of blood dotted the upholstery and glove box, a bloody towel was found in the backseat and unpaid bills and samples of hair care products were found in the console, police said

Later in the evening, police visited the man's home on Fairbrook Rd. Although he denied any involvement in the crime, he became very agitated that police were persisting to question him at 5 in the morning.

The case is still under investigation and no arrests have been made pending comparison of fingerprints.

The cash register was empty save for $3 in change and some rent checks

BUD BREAK: A 40-year-old Northville resident was charged with a misdemeanor for drinking in public on a bench outside of Inn on the Main around 8:30 p.m. September 26.

Following up on a citizen's report, police discovered a half empty 40-ounce bottle of beer and a plastic cup at the man's feet.

He admitted to drinking the beer and asked police if they would permit him to finish it in his room.

They confiscated the beer and issued him a ticket

A portable breathalyzer revealed his blood alcohol level at .25 percent.

FAX SNATCH: A resident on the 400-block of Dubuar reported that his fax machine was stolen while he was away on a business trip between September 14 and 16.

His wife had been in and out of the house but didn't notice that the fax was missing.

The couple reported that the door should have been locked but police found no evidence of forced entry. A neighbor and the couple's daughter denied borrowing the machine. There are no suspects in the case.

CIVIC UNCONCERN: The director of Northville Civic Concern called police to the group's offices at the Northville Senior Center on September 25 on a report of attempted breaking and entering.

He insisted that someone had tried to drill through the newly replaced locks securing the rooms where the charity group stores food for the poor.

Police determined the locks were simply worn from use and closed the case.

Body of Livonia man found at Maybury State Park

The body of a Livonia man was found hanging from a rope in a tree at Maybury State Park Sunday afternoon.

Township public safety director Chip Snider said the body of Ronald Gibbons, 48, was discovered two days after township police located a red Buick parked overnight at Maybury.

Snider said officers placed a 48-hour removal notice sticker on the car. When they returned, the car was still there.

Suspicious, officers examined the area and located Gibbons' body.

"At this point, it doesn't appear to be anything but a suicide," Snider said, adding that Gibbons' body had indications it had been in the forest for some time prior to being discovered.

The case has been turned over to the Michigan State Police for further investigation. State police troopers could not be reached for comment.

Well-traveled suitcase returned

By WENSDY WHITE
Staff Writer

Because one of their suitcases was snagged while they were traveling in Europe, Don and Joan Moyland dismissed their carry-on case as stolen, too.

That is until it arrived via air mail from Germany – two years later.

"Everything was in place," Joan said. "It was remarkable."

Inside the blue cloth bag were the usual travel items: clothing, a portable iron, four pairs of eyeglasses, $4.50 in coins and some jewelry.

The stuff wasn't expensive, according to Don, but it had some sentimental value.

Especially the gold watch Don had given his wife as an anniversary gift.

"I got my watch back. That was the main thing that I really missed," Joan said.

The Moylands ventured on their one-month trip last August. It included a cruise through the Baltic Sea with a day trip to Moscow. Then, a tour of Germany, Austria and Switzerland followed.

Apparently the couple had left the bag in a bed and breakfast in Gammelsbach, Germany, south of Frankfurt, where it remained until someone who spoke English took some initiative.

"They were holding this case waiting for someone to show up that could read the names on the tag," Don said. "When they found someone who could go both ways they took it from there."

Don speculates the bag traveled on a slow-moving freighter from a European port to New York, where it was sent Federal Express to their Northville Township home.

The Moylands acknowledge that more than one person had a hand in recovering their luggage, but they don't know who.

On an envelope which held the postage receipt, the return address read John & Best BBQ Partyservice in Mannheim-Käfertal.

That's who the Moyland's addressed their thank-you letter which included postage reimbursement and a small reward for the kindness of strangers.

6 Mistakes to Avoid When Moving Up to a Larger Home

A new report has just been released which identifies the 6 most common and costly mistakes that home buyers make when moving to a larger home.

Unlike the experience of buying a first home, when you're looking to move-up, and already own a home, there are certain factors that can complicate the situation. It's very important for you to understand these issues before you list your home.

Not only is there the issue of financing to consider, but you also have to sell your present home at exactly the right time in order to avoid either the financial burden of owning two homes or, just as bad, the dilemma of having no place to live during the gap between closings.

In answer to these issues, industry insiders have prepared a FREE special report entitled "6 Mistakes to Avoid When Moving Up to a Larger Home."

The information contained in this report will help you make informed choices before you put your home on the market in anticipation of moving to a larger home.

To hear a brief recorded message about how to order your FREE report, call 1-800-779-8619 and enter Ext. #7060. You can call anytime, 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.

BUNIONS, BUNIONS, BUNIONS

Bunions are easy to spot. the inside edge of the foot juts out at the base of the big toe, forming a triangular shape. This enlargement of the large toe joint is a deformity that often develops over time - and time can be the key to "treating this painful even crippling conditon If a bunion is diagnosed early enough, a podiatrist can evaluate the underlying structured weakness and prescribe a course of action that may stabilize the foot with minimal intervention Treatment may include padding, prescription orthotics (footwear inserts), wearing wider shoes to avoid pressure on the bunion, and inflammatory medication. If the deformity continues to progress surgery may be necessary

When surgery is recommended to get rid of bunions, you'll be glad to know that todays' techniques make the process easier and faster and recovery is quite a bit more comfortable than just a few years ago If you are one of the unfortunate victims of bunion pain consider professional help Our techniques are up-to-date with three basic goals to relieve pain, restore function, and improve appearance. Bunions can be corrected in our office or on an out patient basis at the hospital.

If you are the victim of bunions you don't have to let foot pain slow you down The relief you are seeking is available Our facility is fully equipped and our staff is particularly skilled in helping with all kinds of foot conditions, including bunions, corns, calluses, nail problems, diabetic feet, and ankle problems For an appointment for foot care for adults and children, please call FOOT HEALTH CENTERS for Total Foot and Ankle Care We specialize in all types of foot surgery including laser surgery

Local outdoorsman coordinates food, clothing drive for needy

By WENSDY WHITE
Staff Writer

Michigan outdoorsmen are all too familiar with the affect of cold temperatures, and they've already begun preparing for winter.

They're not only readying warm clothes for themselves, however. They're collecting gear for those less fortunate as well.

For the second year in a row, Ted Nugent's United Sportsman of America are holding a food and clothing drive for the poor.

A collection site will be stationed at the Northville Downs parking lot, at the northwest corner of Seven Mile and Sheldon, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Oct. 11.

"There's a lot of people that think hunters are just out for themselves, as they would say, to kill game," said Jim White, a Northville Township bow hunter who is regional director for the group. "There's a lot of us that have hearts too. These organizations do other things. We like to give back."

Clothing for men, boys, women and girls will be collected for Native Americans in Southeastern Michigan, along with blankets, coats, jackets, shoes, hats and gloves of all sizes.

Non-perishable food items are also welcome, as are donations of cash or returnable cans and bottles. Those proceeds will go to buy toys for patients at the Mott's Children's Hospital in Ann Arbor, which will be delivered by a sportsman Santa Claus.

The annual collection effort was spearheaded by Pete and Liz Aberhart, club members who live in Wyandotte. Last year's donations went to area homeless people.

This year, collections have already been held in Dearborn Heights and Southgate. Others are scheduled November 8 in Southgate and November 27 at Southland Mall in Taylor.

Even if citizens can't make it to any of the designated collections, they can still donate.

"If they can't make the drop-offs, if they're in the general area I'll go pick them up," White said. "If they have donations, call me."

Receipts are available on demand as all the contributions are tax deductible.

White said many of the club's 2,000 regional members got involved in the drive to help out the needy.

"To show these people who are less fortunate that we care," White said. "That's what we're doing it for. Plus it makes you feel good to see how happy people are when they get that stuff."

For more information, call White at 348-7728.

Special fixed introductory rate applies through statement period ending in 13th month after account is opened. APR can then change monthly based on "Prime" + 0%. "Prime" is the "Bank Prime Loan" rate published by the Federal Reserve Board from time to time. Use of "Prime" does not imply rate is best or lowest rate offered by any lender. APR will never exceed 18%. Current minimum monthly payment amount without special introductory offer is $71. This minimum amount pays interest only and will not repay principal that is outstanding on the line. If you pay only minimum payment each month, you will have to pay entire balance in single payment when account ends. Annual fee waived first year; $96 thereafter. Maximum Loan to Value ratio is 89.9%. Offer not to be used for existing accounts. Payments may include other charges due in addition to interest. Insurance must be carried on real property securing the account. All accounts subject to application, credit approval, and acceptable property appraisal and title search. ●. Delays plague new high school construction

By WENSDY WHITE
Staff Writer

Plagued by a lawsuit and previously delayed by a stop work order over drainage facilities, the frantic pace of construction on the site of the future Northville High School has been halted once more by the state fire marshal until public health codes are met.

Contractors are prepared to pour the concrete foundation for the 350,000 square foot building but are on hold while plans for sewerage, water and food service are reviewed at the county level.

The review process will take days, time that school officials say the district doesn't have.

"One day's delay now does not necessarily mean one day's delay at the end, moving in. It probably means a week," said Dave Bolitho, assistant superintendent of administrative services. "It's a major, major setback to this project."

> "One day's delay now does not necessarily mean one day's delay at the end, moving in. It probably means a week."
> assistant superintendent

The $52 million high school on Six Mile Road is slated to open in the fall of 2000. In turn, Cooke Middle School will take over the high school and the Bryant Center for special education will move out of Livonia and into Cooke.

Bolitho said the city of Livonia is set take over the Bryant Center forcing the program to move. Cooke Middle School is already operating with portable classrooms and with more than 20 subdivisions in development before the year 2000 the school population in Northville will continue to grow.

"I'm not sure we can fit kids into the cafeterias according to fire codes even if we figure out what to do with the Bryant kids," Bolitho said.

The high school site has been graded, the drainage pond completed and contractors who had won bids to lay the foundation are waiting for the go-ahead.

According to the Michigan Public Health Code, county officials must approve every aspect of the plan that impacts public safety, including kitchen equipment, water pipes and sewerage systems.

After learning of the requirements, A. J. Etkins construction company and Bolitho compiled the paperwork and dropped it off for review at the Wayne County Health Department.

"Normally the turn around time in this office for 70 pounds of material would be two to three weeks but we understand some of the construction workers are sitting around waiting for this process to be completed," said Dr. Don Lawrenchuk, medical director for the department.

In order to expedite the process, Lawrenchuk said he made the job a top priority and has members of his staff working overtime to review the plans.

In the meantime, Lawrenchuk sent written approval to the fire marshal that preliminary work not directly impacting public health, such as the foundation, could proceed.

The fire marshal rejected the letter and is waiting for complete approval, which Lawrenchuk said may come within the week.

"The Northville Public Schools have an outstanding reputation not just in Wayne county but statewide and nationally. We're very confident these plans will be approved," Lawrenchuk said. "We've had other school districts that have not gone through the process, open the doors prematurely and people have gotten sick."

Complete approval will be phoned into the fire marshal who will then give permission for work on the site to continue.

Meanwhile, school officials are watching the last days of prime building weather slip away.

Since construction began last spring, a stop work order was issued by the Land Resource Management Division of the Wayne County Department of Environment in July over conditions of soil stabilization and drainage for a detention pond.

Homes were flooded in the adjacent Woods of Edenderry before the conditions were met.

Residents of the subdivision had already joined a lawsuit filed against the school district by Northville Township to decide matters of jurisdiction.

While the township claimed school construction must follow local ordinances, the district maintained it is regulated by state building and site requirements.

Lawyers for the township have filed for a judge in Wayne County Circuit Court to decide the issue. The district has the option to answer their motion and appear in circuit court or appeal it.

NATIONAL FLOOD INSURANCE PROGRAM PROPOSED FLOOD ELEVATION DETERMINATIONS FOR THE CITY OF NORTHVILLE, WAYNE AND OAKLAND COUNTIES, MICHIGAN

AGENCY: Federal Emergency Management Agency
ACTION: Proposed rule.
SUMMARY:

Technical information or comments are solicited on the proposed modified base (1% annual chance) flood elevations shown on your community's preliminary Revised Flood Insurance Rate Map. These base flood elevations are the basis of the floodplain management measures that the community is required to either adopt or show evidence of being already in effect in order to qualify or remain qualified for participation in the National Flood Insurance Program (NFIP). The proposed base flood elevations modify the base flood elevations shown on your community's presently effective Flood Insurance Rate Map.

DATES:

The period for comment will be ninety (90) days following the second publication of this proposed rule in a newspaper of local circulation in the community.

ADDRESSES:

Preliminary Revised Flood Insurance Rate Maps showing the proposed modified base flood elevations and their delineation are available for review at the Northville City Hall, 215 West Main Street, Northville, Michigan.

Send comments to:
The Honorable Christopher J. Johnson
Mayor of the City of Northville
215 West Main Street
Northville, Michigan 48167

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT:
Matthew B. Miller, P.E., Chief Hazards Study Branch
Mitigation Directorate
Federal Emergency Management Agency
Washington, DC 20472
(202) 646-3461

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION.

The Federal Emergency Management Agency gives notice of the proposed determinations of modified base flood elevations, in accordance with Section 110 of the Flood Disaster Protection Act of 1973 (Pub. L. 93-234), 87 Stat. 980, which added Section 1363 to the National Flood Insurance Act of 1968 (Title XIII of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 (Pub L. 90-448)), 42 U.S.C. 4001-4128, and 44 CFR 67.4(a).

These elevations, together with the floodplain management measures required by Section 60.3 of the program regulations, are the minimum that are required. They should not be construed to mean the community must change any existing ordinances that are more stringent in their floodplain management requirements. The community may at any time enact stricter requirements on its own, or pursuant to policies established by other Federal, State, or regional entities. These proposed elevations will also be used to calculate the appropriate flood insurance premium rates for new buildings and their contents.

Pursuant to the provisions of 5 USC 605(b), the Administrator, to whom authority has been delegated by the Director, Federal Emergency Management Agency, hereby certifies that the proposed floor elevation determinations, if promulgated, will not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities. A flood elevation determination under Section 1363 forms the basis for new local ordinances, which, if adopted by a local community, will govern future construction within the floodplain area. The elevation determinations, however, impose no restriction unless and until the local community voluntarily adopts floodplain ordinances in accord with these elevations. Even if ordinances are adopted in compliance with Federal standards, the elevations prescribe how high to build in the floodplain and do not prohibit development. Thus, this action only forms the basis for future local actions. It imposes no new requirement; of itself it has no economic impact.

Proposed base flood elevations along flood sources studied in detail are shown on the Preliminary Revised Flood Insurance Rate Map. Lessees and owners of real property in the City of Northville, are encouraged to review these maps and related materials at the address cited above. The proposed base flood elevations are as follows:

Middle River Rouge	*819	*820
	*822	*824
Thornton Creek Overflow	*821	*823
	*822	*823

NOTICE CITY OF NORTHVILLE WATER CUSTOMERS

The Northville Public Works Department will soon begin a two week Hydrant Flushing Program in the City.

Residents in the area of the flushing operation will receive notices in their doors a few days in advance of actual hydrant flushing. Homeowners, even those outside of the flushing area may notice rusty water as a result of this program. If this occurs, utility crews are urging residents to run their cold water faucets until the water is no longer cloudy.

Flushing operations will take place at night between the hours of 8:00 p.m. and 12:00 a.m. on weekdays, from October 5 to October 16, 1998. These hours should minimize any impact on residents. However, check your water in advance of doing laundry to prevent your clothes from receiving an undesirable orange tinge.

City officials believe it is important to remove the build-up of sediment in our watermains. This effort will improve taste and odor problems, as well as the system's fire fight capabilities.

The Department of Public Works would like to thank Northville residents for their cooperation on this important matter.

Will officials levy additional mill?

Township trustees balk at making 'no mill levy' promise to voters

By CHRIS C. DAVIS
Staff Writer

Regardless of the outcome of Northville Township's Nov. 3 millage election, township officials could still levy one mill without voter approval.

It's an option, however, many on the board said last week they'd need to think about long and hard before doing.

In 1994, the township board struck a deal of sorts with voters, deciding not to levy the one mill allowed under township charter — except in an emergency situation — if voters approved the dedicated millage.

The millage was ultimately approved, though it required two attempts — one in August and a second in November — to pass the entire package.

Making that sort of commitment again just couldn't be guaranteed in the mind of township supervisor Karen Woodside, who said the dynamics of Northville Township in 1998 made it too risky to almost entirely write off making a one-mill levy for the duration of the millage.

"We can't possibly promise that again," she said."There are so many unforeseen things that can come up."

Woodside said several township projects have had to be put off because of the one-mill pledge.

"We constantly have to assess what our needs are in the township," she said. "Our hope has always been to pass as much of the additional costs on to our new developments, because we know people don't want to shoulder more costs. We're taking every pro-active step we can to enhance the township without increasing taxes."

Township clerk Sue Hillebrand said that that while levying the one mill wasn't totally out of the question, it would be something she'd do only after research and conversation with residents.

"If the voters approved the shared services millage, I'd be adamantly opposed to levying that one mill — no way," she said. "On the other hand, if the shared services issue is approved and we decide that we'd still like to fund those things, then we need to figure out how we're going to pay for them."

Hillebrand said that as a clerk, she believed the 25 percent turnout at the polls on Aug 4 had a disproportionately small number of voters making a decision for the community. She was hopeful the state's gubernatorial race would be a guiding force to bring people to the polls later this year.

So was township treasurer Dick Hennigsen, who believe the slow turnout had much to do with the mid-summer timing of the election.

"This time around, you've got everyone back from vacation," he said. "I've been telling people who've asked that we need to put this issue back on the ballot because we had a real lack of participation at the polls. I'd like to have more than one out of four residents at the polls."

Hennigsen suspected that voter approval of the millage would make it extremely unlikely that the one-mill levy would be put in place. Turning it down, however, would probably get a different reaction, he said.

"If it fails, you're going to see a lot of people on that board have to put their heads together and do some soul-searching about this issue," he said.

Trustee Russ Fogg said he wouldn't favor making a no-one-mill-levy commitment this time around. He said the best policy was to present residents with the needs of the township and allow voters to make up their minds without the distraction of deal-making.

"Suppose some real emergency pops up," Fogg said. "We're going to need that money, and it would be a problem for us if we made that sort of promise to the residents not to use that one mill."

Fogg, who served on the board in 1994, said that based on his interpretation, no promise was made by the board to not levy the one mill.

Trustee Mark Abbo said he would almost certainly not vote to levy the 1 mill should the millage election be passed. If the millage failed, Abbo said he could possibly support using a portion of the mill for shared services, but not for park land aquistion and development.

"I think these are very vital to our community, but my preference has always been to let the voters do the choosing," Abbo said.

Township voters narrowly approved the police and fire portion of the millage in August, but soundly turned down funding for services shared with the city of Northville, as well as three-quarters of 1 mill over four years for park land acquisition and development.

Pigeon enjoys police career ship. Pigeon said her duties have expanded beyond working the dispatch operations. Now she's in charge of coordinating police and fire department budgets, typing, records organization, and handling phone messages when Snider is away from his desk.

"I get to do bit of everything," she said, then laughs again. "And next month, I get to start over at the fire station. I'll be able to do everything I do now...plus more."

Though everything Pigeon does helps make the township police department operate efficiently, it's communications which are clearly her forte'. Nobody knows that quite as well as Snider.

"Kelly's success as a dispatch supervisor has been based on her strong interpersonal skills," he said. "She's built up a very strong rapport with everyone in this department."

Rapport notwithstanding, Snider said Pigeon's dependability has shone through time and time again.

"She's proven herself over the last few years to be absolutely irreplaceable," Snider said. "It's difficult for the fire chief and myself to communicate a lot because we're in two different buildings, but Kelly has managed to bridge the gaps for us a great deal. And she's not a clock-watcher, either; she stays until the job gets done."

One of the most challenging jobs Pigeon has encountered was the Johnson Controls standoff in 1997. In that instance, as in crisis situations since that time, it was Pigeon's responsibility to relay information between crisis negotiators and swat team members.

"I'm far enough away so there's no immediate risk for me, but the team members are counting on me to keep them informed on what everyone's doing," she said. "It definitely keeps me on my toes."

Fortunately, Friday afternoon wasn't going to be quite as busy for the smiling dispatch supervisor.

"I've got some typing and weekly summaries to do," she said with a sigh. "Each day's a little different around here. Some days are a little quieter than others."

NORTHVILLE HIGH SCHOOL CELEBRATES HOMECOMING 1998

Northville high school alumni Lou Tiffin, class of 1930, watches the parade from Main Street, above. At right, seniors pull their prize-winning float, a 28-foot yellow submarine billed as the longest float in NHS history. The parade also included a procession of the Homecoming Court and the 235-member marching band.

Northville High School Homecoming King and Queen Conor Sedam and Kelly Deleonardis, both seniors, pose for a quick photo after Friday's pep assembly.

Northville's Homecoming is a hit

Rumbley.

They flooded the bleachers under clear, warm skies for the second annual outdoor pep assembly.

Highlights included the Northville High School marching band, performances by the cheerleaders and pom pon squad and a series of games that pitted the classes against each other.

Seniors remained valiant throughout the water balloon toss, swim flipper relay and tug-of-wars against the junior class and teachers.

Assistant football coach Jeff Brinningstool anchored the staff end of the rope, but said his 250-pound frame couldn't hold the line.

"The seniors worked real hard. They dug deep and got it done," Brinningstool said.

His competition was senior anchor Ted Bowersox, the 270-pound offensive and defensive tackler who Brinningstool said is a major college football prospect.

After the tug-of-war, cheerleaders escorted the members of the Homecoming court onto the football field and last year's winning couple returned for the coronation of the 1998 Homecoming King and Queen.

Matt Gillis passed the crown to Conor Sedam, while Sarah Yageman set her diamond tiara on the head of Kelly Deleonardis.

Deleonardis, a cheerleader, softball player, senior class president and National Honor Society member, gasped in classic Miss America reaction when she found out she'd won.

"I'm so excited," she said, shaking and surrounded by friends. "I don't win things like this."

Sedam looked forward to attending the dance with his date Lauren DeBoyer.

"This is the greatest thing that ever could have happened to me," he said.

But the student congress president, hockey player and Backbeat singer didn't have much time to bask in the limelight.

"We've gotta go back to my house and finish the float. We've got a lot of work to do," Sedam said.

The senior class float, "1999 Leagues Under the Sea," was a 28-foot-long yellow submarine and octopus which took top prize.

Second Place went to the junior class for their huge sea chest spilling with treasure visible only from one side of the street.

Freshmen won third place for their volcano island float while the sophomores scored fourth place with the sinking of the Titanic.

"Although there was a tremendous amount of school spirit in the ninth through twelfth grades, seniors always seem to have an edge," Colligan said.

The floats and Homecoming Court followed the 235-member Northville High marching band down Main Street and up Center Friday night through a crowd of residents that lined the street.

Lou Tiffin, a 1930 Northville High alumni and football player who graduated in a class of 27 students, was among them.

"I went here, my son went here," said Tiffin. "I just have a soft spot for the Mustangs."

After hot dogs and pop at the second-annual tail gate party, students headed to the stands to watch Northville take on Livonia Churchill (see page B-9 for more coverage of the game.)

The bleachers were so crowded that school board trustee Dick Brown said he couldn't find a seat five minutes into the game.

The Homecoming Dance was the culmination of the week as 800 students crowded the high school cafeteria, which was decorated in undersea colors by a committee headed by juniors Christina Mimikos and Janel Hasse.

"Typically kids will start drifting out of the dance at about 10 o'clock but there were still about 550 kids taking pictures at 11," Johnson said. "I bet they would have stayed all night if we hadn't pulled the plug. It was a wonderful evening."

In keeping with requests from administrators not to make the dance overly extravagant, Johnson said he only saw a few limos pull up to the door.

Some kids topped even the stretch sedans, renting Northville's horse and carriage for the night at a cost of around $550, Johnson estimated.

The night was well organized and the kids were well behaved, according to administrators and the 12 chaperones who worked at the dance.

All in all, Johnson said, it was an elegant end to a successful homecoming week.

Fire marshall investigation complete in Innsbrook blaze

By CHRIS C. DAVIS
Staff Writer

Final reports from the Michigan State Police fire marshal division retold the nerve-racking account of an accidental structural fire that occurred Memorial Day weekend at the Innsbrook apartment complex.

The incident happened in the late evening hours of Memorial Day, forcing the evacuation of tenants from one of the complex's buildings to relocate to other units within Innsbrook. No injuries were reported in the incident.

The report said fire investigators traced the blaze back to the furnace utility closet, but were unable to determine what malfunction may have occurred to generate the fire in the first place.

The report, obtained by the Record through the Freedom of Information Act, indicated the 40-year-old tenant of the unit where the fire was believed to have originated contacted the complex maintenance staff at around 8 p.m. when she activated the thermostat in the apartment.

Temperatures in Northville dipped into the 50s that evening, prompting the woman to do so, the report said.

Shortly after turning on the heat, the woman smelled something akin to dust burning off a heating element, which the report said was not unusual.

Fifteen minutes later, however, the scent remained in the apartment, only this time it was stronger and resembled burning rubber.

At that time, the report said, the woman contacted a member of the Innsbrook maintenance staff and advised him of the problem. The worker told the tenant that shutting off the furnace, resetting it to 70 degrees and placing the thermostat to the automatic setting would likely correct the trouble.

The report said the tenant followed the directions, but could still smell the odor and felt the room warming to approximately 80 degrees. She then shut the furnace off and left to pick up her children from another location.

When she returned, the report said, the woman's children also smelled the burning odor. The family then gathered to watch television, which was provided to the home through a cable provider. The report said the reception went in and out for several minutes. As the woman put her children to bed, she noticed the picture had gone completely out.

Around midnight, the report said the tenant smelled the odor of burning wood and got out of bed to inspect the apartment. When she looked around in the room, she noticed the room was hazy but not smoke-filled. Reports said she tried activating a light in her room, but there was no power in the apartment.

The woman then got her children out of bed and prepared to leave the apartment, but first attempted to telephone emergency crews. The phone lines were dead, the report said.

Fire crews were on hand at Innsbrook until around 3 a.m. the next morning fighting the blaze, which tore through the apex of the roof and got behind the walls inside the apartment. Several apartments suffered fire damage, while others nearby reported mild smoke and water damage.

Jaycees chapter could return to warm welcome in Northville

By CHRIS C. DAVIS
Staff Writer

If all goes as planned, a new service organization may have its emblem placed on Northville city signs.

The organization? The Jaycees, otherwise known as the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Northville used to have a Jaycees chapter of its own, but loss of interest caused the group to fade out of sight. Now, with the help of the Farmington chapter of the Jaycees, Northville is hoping to resurrect the organization.

"We're trying to get the group chartered late this month or sometime in October, said Farmington membership development vice president Carrie Hale. "As a Farmington chapter, we decided we'd like to take on a responsibility of extending ourselves into another community."

Several options for new neighborhoods were considered, but the Farmington Jaycees decided on Northville, as it was learned no chapter existed there.

The Jaycees are a national nonprofit volunteer organization that provides leadership training through community involvement to young individuals from ages 21 to 39. The group focuses on community, management and individual development.

In order to obtain a charter, the Northville group must have at least 20 members. Hale said the Farmington chapter would assist the Northville bunch early on.

As for the community service projects the Northville group will tackle, Hale said those are issues which will mostly left up to the Northville resident members.

"Each chapter of the Jaycees is a little different," Hale said. "What they do will depend on the personalities and talents of the people in the group."

Hale said Northville mayor Chris Johnson has endorsed the establishment of the chapter. Though news of the formation of the Jaycees came as something of a surprise to Chamber of Commerce director Laurie Marrs, she was nonetheless pleased.

"I was sorry to see the group's demise a few years ago, but we'd certainly welcome them back into the community," she said.

For more information on Northville Jaycees membership, call the information line at (248) 735-8179.

Trustees ratify contracts for professional personnel

By WENSDY WHITE
Staff Writer

It takes more than just teachers to educate Northville youth.

Secretaries, clerics, occupational therapists and nurses are also integral parts of the school system.

Those employees just got new three year contracts ratified by the Northville Board of Education at a regular board meeting on Sept. 22.

The contracts gave them a 3percent raise this year, with raises the next two years guaranteed to be at least 2 percent.

It also increased some of their fringe benefits to more closely resemble teachers'.

"In most instances the components mirror what the teachers get," director of personnel Roy Danley said of the contracts. "I feel that they feel they have been treated fairly."

The contracts were drawn up during talks between representatives of each group and school administrators. Danley said the negotiating process was not as formal as it was with the Northville Education Association because none of the employees have union representation.

"It's more relaxed, more conversational. They're certainly not skilled negotiators and they don't have a profession negotiator to come in for them," Danley said. "We sit down. They discuss what their concerns and needs are and I share with them the district's concerns."

In the final documents, the district's 44 secretaries, two occupational therapist assistants and four nurses saw the following changes:

•Secretaries and Clerical workers who were formerly allowed to bank 180 sick days will be able to bank 212 days by the third year of the contract. Upon retirement, they may cash those days in for $30 each, totaling a maximum of $6,360. Secretaries work between 212 to 256 days a year and receive one sick day a month.

•Nurses and COTAs, who work 221 days a year, will be able to bank 190 sick days by the year 2001. Upon retirement, they may also collect $30 a day for each day banked, for a total of $5,700.

•Where secretaries holding an Associate's Degree or higher formerly received an extra $400 a year, that amount will increase in increments of $100 a year until it reaches $700. A total of 14 secretaries currently receive the stipend.

•The district currently employs a COTA at the Bryant Center and one at Old Village School. Tuition reimbursement for these employees will be increased from $400 to $700 a year in increments of $100 each year.

For nurses, tuition reimbursement will be increased to $750 over the next three years. Teachers receive $950 tuition reimbursement annually.

•By the year 2001, COTAs and nurses will receive $1,500 after 20 years of employment. After 25 years of employment, they will receive $1,800.

•Like the teachers, the cost for them to keep Blue Cross / Blue Shield went up from one-quarter of 1 percent of their salaries to one-half of 1 percent. However, they may opt to switch to the Blue Cross Community Blue HMO or HAP plan and continue to pay the same rate.

Nurses in Northville Public Schools earn between $36,689 and $65,575 annually. COTAs make between $23,991 and $37,553 each year and secretaries start at an hourly rate of $9.79. After six years, secretaries reach the top of their pay scale, earning $19.01 an hour.

Still to be negotiated are contracts for school principals, paraprofessionals, and operations employees including bus drivers and food service professionals.

Northville Public School Briefs

PHONE TAG: Although it may cause your teenager to be on the phone even more, the Northville High School student directory is a must-have for the entire family.

Inside, parents will find useful phone numbers for school counselors and administrators. The names and titles of all Northville High faculty are also listed, as are the names and addresses of all Northville high students and their parents.

The directories are available for $3 at the school's main office or from PTA member Kay Rankin, 349-8051.

MARK YOUR CALENDAR: Be sure to tell prospective Christmas gift buyers that you won't be needing a calendar this year.

The Northville School District Calendar for 1998-99 is now available from the co-council of PTA's.

The calendar lists all the board meetings, open houses and ice cream socials you'd ever want to attend. Plus, it now has expanded squares for writing in doctor appointments.

Available through October for $4, the calendar is available at open houses and PTA meetings. Contact the main office at your child's school for more information.

CODE OF CONDUCT: Students involved in sports or extra-curricular activities at Northville High School will soon be getting copies of the revised code of conduct in the mail.

The code outlines the rules of the district and the procedures for dealing with violations.

As a condition of participation, students in choir, band or after school clubs are now subject to the more stringent code that athletes have been held to.

School officials advised parents and students to read the agreement thoroughly before signing it and sending it back to school.

MEETINGS: The next meeting of the Northville Board of Education will take place at 7:30 p.m. on Tuesday, October 13. It will be held at Old Village School, 450 W. Main Street, in the third floor meeting room.

Show us the money

State lawmakers grant schools one time increase

By WENSDY WHITE
Staff Writer

Districts across the state will receive an extra $51 for each student, thanks to state lawmakers who decided to grant the increase Sept. 24, before the close of the legislative session.

The fund allotment was part of House Bill 5654.

For Northville's estimated 5,000 students, that means a one-time influx of $255,000 for the 1998-99 school year.

The money supplements the district's Foundation Grant from the state, which is $7,012 per student, or about $35 million this year.

The bill also provided for the Foundation Grant to increase for the 1999-2000 school year by $190, increasing it to $7,202 per Northville student.

"It puts more money toward our programs," said John Street, director of business and finance for the district.

Street said the 1998-99 budget will be revised to account for the $225,000 this year and said planning for next year will be easier now that he knows how much to expect from the state.

"This is as concrete as it's been," he said.

Although residents used to pay their property taxes directly to the local school district, since the passing of Proposal A in 1994, they now pay them directly to the state.

The money supplements the district's Foundation Grant from the state, which is $7,012 per student, or about $35 million this year.

The state then allocates the revenue to each district based on a formula put in place at the time the proposal went into effect.

"Essentially whatever the district's revenue for each pupil was at that point was where they began. It was capped at $6,500 per pupil so the real well off district's wouldn't be getting more money," Street said.

Districts that were spending more than $6,500 were given the option of levying additional millages on their residents.

Northville was not among them.

Therefore, although Northville spent $6,568 per pupil for operating expenses during the 1996-97 school year, the Farmington School District spent $9,129 and Birmingham spent $9,962.

Of eight area school districts surveyed by Plante & Moran for a recent budget audit, only Plymouth-Canton spent less per student.

"Northville has a decent amount of money to work with but if you look at surrounding school districts, we don't have an extremely high amount of money per pupil," Street said.

The year before Proposal A went into effect, Northville received less than 1 percent of its revenue from the state, as opposed to more than 80 percent now.

With the passing of Proposal A Northville residents saw their property taxes decreased from 29 mills levied by the school district to 6 mills levied by the state.

For a family that owned a $100,000 home, that meant a decrease from $2,900 a year to $600.

Those residents now pay more in sales tax, however, which Proposal A raised from 4 to 6 percent.

According to Rep. Gerry Law (R-Plymouth), the discrepancy between the amount districts receive can create animosity.

"The problem is when you get districts that are next to each other with the same type of people living there, getting different amounts of money," Law said. "It's a reflection of what people did to run their school systems for the last 20 years."

Arrowhead Alpines

With Michigan's Largest selection of...
Perennials, Woodland Wildflowers, Rare Alpines, Dwarf Conifers, Unusual Shrubs, and Plants for Butterfly Gardens

Fall is rapidly approaching and it's a great time to add some late color to your garden or perhaps a few hostas or ornamental grasses. It's also the best time to plant trees and shrubs and perennials. Our shrub and dwarf conifer selection is outstanding and of course we have thousands of potted perennials to choose from; sun or shade, dry or pond, old favorites to rarities found nowhere else, we have it all with over 6000 species and varieties to choose from. We are a production nursery not a garden center and we propagate most everything ourselves so our inventory is at maximum in late summer. Why not buy direct from the source for the best selection and price. It's a huge place and we are always happy to tell you where to find something or offer suggestions, but we are a working nursery not a garden center and it's up to the customer to go and fetch it, so don't expect to be led by the hand (besides, exploring is half the fun)

Take I96 to the Fowlerville exit go south 100 yds. to Van Buren Rd Turn west on Van Buren and go 1 Mi to Gregory Rd. and go South 1.75 mi to #1310. (long driveway)

We are rapidly becoming a Mecca for plant lovers from around the world, supplying everyone from the Smithsonian and New York Botanical Garden to some of the finest private gardens in the U.S., but surprisingly many local gardeners don't yet know about us. Come out and see for yourself the incredible selection we offer. The diversity can be a bit overwhelming so you may want to bring reference books. Don't forget a camera for the display gardens and a checkbook because we don't accept credit cards.

Schools receive favorable opinion on budget audit

By WENSDY WHITE
Staff Writer

Northville Public School administrators are good stewards of the district's funds, according to a recent budget audit by Plante & Moran.

"This year we were able to issue an unqualified opinion, which is the highest opinion we can offer," said Marna Tarducci of the Southfield-based firm.

The news came as no surprise to the school district's business office, which manages the district's $39 million dollar budget.

"It's the product of the year-round work we do," said John Street, director of the business office. "It's what should be expected."

Northville's $3.8 million share of the Durant settlement provided a boon to the budget and helped bring the district's fund balance up from 7.4 to 11.7 percent of the total budget.

The fund balance is set aside to cover unforeseen costs, and the district had pledged to bring the number more in line with the state average of around 11 percent by the year 2000.

Durant funds, combined with a decrease in the amount the district was required to pay the state for employee retirement funds, meant the Northville Public Schools reached that goal two years in advance.

The savings provide Northville with a cash cushion that would cover operating expenses for six weeks.

More than 80 percent of Northville's school funding came from the state last year while about 13 percent came from local sources. The federal government contributed 1.8 percent to cover special education and subsidized lunches.

According to the audit, the district's biggest expenditure was employee salaries and benefits. Classroom teachers accounted for 53.7 percent of the budget, costing the district $22,173,851. Benefits for teachers added another $6,995,049 onto the bill.

Public entities are required to have their books audited by an objective outside company each year. On a sample basis, Plante & Moran tested financial statements and accounting procedures carried out by the district's business office.

Because the company cannot audit every item in the extensive budget, their findings are issued in the form of an opinion.

The firm also pledged to keep the district informed of changes at the state level that will impact the district.

"Financial management issues continue to increase in complexity for school districts," the audit stated. "This is especially true in an election year."

Local Rotary club seeks host family

The Rotary Club is searching for exchange student host families

Experiencing another culture by traveling to a different country requires thousands of dollars and a commitment to live away from job, family and friends.

The Northville Rotary Club is offering families that experience without ever leaving their homes.

The Northville Rotary Club is searching for one host family interested in hosting David Cruz, a 17-year-old, Mexican high school senior from April 1, 1999 to July 15, 1999. David is currently attending Northville High School and staying with his first host family. David plays tennis, soccer, golf and enjoys traveling. He is known for his friendliness, open mindedness, compatibility and self confidence. His interest includes the English language, chemistry, sports and helping others. He is very proficient in the English language, having studied English for eight years.

The Rotary Club's exchange program is the largest of its kind in the world. David speaks excellent English and underwent a stringent application process to be eligible to attend an American high school and be sponsored by the Rotary Club. "You have to go through a pretty strict interview process to be selected," David said. "One of the criteria is that you speak English very well."

Host families do not have to belong to the Rotary Club. The host family provides meals, lodging, along with love and understanding. The student is not to be considered as a guest, but as a family member. They are to be treated like another member of the household, including chores and other responsibilities. The goal is for him to learn how people in America live. David has a student visa; he can't work or drive. He must follow strict rules. He may not consume alcohol, drive or use drugs, or he will be sent home.

David is covered by a comprehensive health insurance plan. He is responsible for his personal expenses such as clothing and entertainment. The Northville Rotary Club provides the student and the host family with counseling and support throughout the exchange experience.

For information about becoming a host family, call Dick Milder at (248) 478-7330 or (248) 348-3590.

Parks and Rec offers programs

Northville Parks and Recreation will be offering open and lap swimming on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 7:30-8:30 p.m. at the Northville High School pool. Fee is $2 per person payable to the lifeguards. No swimming Oct. 15 and 16. Ending date for open and lap swim is Tuesday, Nov. 24.

Energetic aerobics and step program will also be offered. The classes run everyday with the exception of Sunday. Participants can sign up for a set number of classes. For a nominal fee, babysitting is available at certain classes. For more information on these programs call (248) 349-0203.

SOUND TREATMENT

One of the many modalities that physical therapists can utilize to treat soft tissue injuries is ultrasound. By holding a device over the injured area that shoots high-frequency sound waves into the muscle tissue, the therapist can induce vibration, which produces heat and increases circulation. Ultrasound, which stands among the most commonly prescribed of healing strategies, sends heat deeper into the tissues than any other treatment. It also offers the advantages of being painless and accurately aimed at the injured tissue. Ultrasound is administered in a series of 6 to 10 minute treatments during which the recipient of the therapy feels a deep warmth within the injured tissue.

Physical therapy has a long history and is as old as pain and impairment. Physical means to treat injuries and relieve pain such as massage, heat, water and exercise are well documented in ancient Chinese and Roman history. Scientific advances introduced sound waves, electricity and light. For more information about ultrasound and how it might help you, call NOVACARE at 349-3816. Located at 215 E. Main St., Suite B (across from our previous location), we have early and late business hours, including weekends.

Ohio earthquake has little effect on Northville, Novi department that the earth had adjusted its crust. The county got the data from the Boulder center.

"As soon as they take the reading, they send these warnings out. Needless to say, we don't get too many notifications for an earthquake," said Novi Sergeant Phillip Schoen.

He was sitting in a chair in a meeting when the quake hit.

"You don't believe it. It starts out very subconsciously and you feel movement. I was wiggling back and forth," Schoen said.

At Manor Motorcar on Grand River Avenue Novi, Kathy Powell, who handles the bills and office manager Jennifer Nason summed up the incident in one word – "eerie."

"Our desks moved. The roof and everything moved. We thought at first it was a wind gust," Powell said.

"We just said 'wow, what was that?"

Media reports of an earthquake explained everything.

"We're glad we're not hallucinating. The whole building creaked. This is Michigan. We're not supposed to have earthquakes," Powell added.

A customer reported seeing the glass walls of the Mercedes dealership's showroom shivering.

Although no one at Northville City Hall reported noticing the quake, it rumbled the floor at the Board of Education offices.

"Everyone's talking about it. I missed it. I was running down the hallway," said Gale Jelics, secretary for the superintendent.

"Various ones of us felt, like, the earth move," said secretary Lola Nestor.

At the moment the action hit, Northville school officials were discussing contract negotiations.

"Mr. Bolitho and I were meeting with the superintendent in his office and we felt the tremor. We immediately looked at each other and said 'earthquake'," said director of personnel Roy Danley.

"Wouldn't that have been great if it had happened at Homecoming tonight, when we scored a touchdown?"

In Novi, even the massive Twelve Oaks Mall felt the force of nature. Peggy Hayes, the mall's marketing director, felt the building tremble and several store owners called in to report the same. Hayes said she realized immediately it was an earthquake.

"I remember the the one we had in '85. It felt the same. I was sitting at my computer and all of a sudden, the computer started shaking back and forth," she added.

"It was pretty mild."

Ceramic tiles made by artists adorn the walls of the Dancing Eye Art Gallery in downtown Northville, but although the building at Main and Center streets shook, nothing tumbled down. Gallery owner Theresa Schierloh wasn't even aware that a natural phenomenon was occurring. She thought the people upstairs in the office of The Northville Record/Novi News were just stomping around.

"I heard something like people running down the stairs. I just felt you guys were being obnoxious again," she laughed.

Folks at the Library Sports Pub & Grill and Mr. B's Goat Farm in Novi were apparently too busy enjoying the Friday Happy Hour to notice anything unusual.

At the Library Pub, bartender Julie Sherwood first heard about the event on the radio and asked customers if they'd noticed anything.

"We didn't feel it here. I didn't feel it at all and I've been standing all this time," she said.

Reports from local commuters weren't different from what the folks went through back home.

Northville resident Bob Mathews, general manager of East Michigan Trailer, works in downtown Detroit near the Ambassador Bridge. He's used to feeling his office building quiver as heavy truck traffic rolls by on Fort Street, but this time, the movement felt a little bit different.

"The building was just kind of swaying and vibrating. Things were swinging back and forth for 10 to 15 seconds," Mathews said.

"I felt my chair was rolling at first. I wouldn't want to be in one that was any worse."

The Novi Fire department was notified of the local incident by the police.

Novi Fire Chief Art Lenaghan was at the scene of an agricultural combine fire at Ten Mile and Wixom roads when all the seismic action happened, but he missed the geological action. But that was not loss for the fire chief; he lived through one in 1961. A soldier on the way to Korea, he was filling out form at a school desk in Japan when he thought the person behind him was kicking his chair.

"I thought I'd let it go because he was nervous. Then I turned around to say something and everyone in the room was just looking around," Lenaghan said.

"The sergeant said 'just keep working, this happens all the time.'"

City schedules annual flushing of fire hydrants

time," Gallogly said. "If residents don't check before they do their laundry, the result may be orange-tinged socks or undershirts."

Gallogly said most of the work is hoped to be completed between 8 p.m. and midnight to avoid daytime disruption of service.

Flushing is necessary to ensure the reliability of the city's water system, both for the taste and odor of water and also as a means of keeping the fire fighting ability of the city in check, Gallogly said. Valves and fire hydrants can sometimes become blocked with sediment backup, he said.

Despite the possibility of discoloration, Gallogly said residents won't need to boil their water before drinking it. He said simply running the cold water tap until the water runs clear will solve the problem.

"We expect to receive some complaints regarding stained laundry, but there's nothing we can do short of informing the public so that they can run their cold water faucets and flush their lines before they do their laundry," Gallogly said.

Gallogly said residents with questions or comments about the flushing program can call (248) 449-9930.

There has been little activity at the OIS facility in Northville Township since the company closed its doors two weeks ago. The Commerce Department has since ordered OIS to reopen.

OIS ordered back to work

which authorize the President to take steps to assure the availability of goods considered vital to national defense.

Rex Tapp, chief executive officer at OIS, said the company was a bit surprised at the directive. He also said OIS officials were preparing a response to the order, though he declined to elaborate as to what the response might address.

"There are always two sides to every story," Tapp said. "We're working hard on our response right now."

Tapp also expressed concern about the likelihood of calling back the laid-off employees, as the majority of them had found other jobs since being pinkslipped.

Stock for the company, which had been as low as a dime a share, moved up on the NASDAQ market Tuesday afternoon, though it was still being sold at slightly more than 30 cents a share.

While the Commerce Department wanted to settle the matter amicably, assistant secretary for Exporting Administration R. Roger Majak said the OIS matter was being taken very seriously for the defense program.

"This is a company that has had a special relationship with the federal government for some time," Majak said, adding that a $60 million payment was made to OIS by the Defense Advance Project Agency early on. "When you have money like that, a company takes on certain obligations they need to fulfill. It places them in a special category."

Majak said the federal government wanted to work with OIS to help it ride out the remainder of its contractual obligations, which he said could take between six and 18 months to complete.

"(OIS is) already behind schedule after their closure," Majak said. "We sympathize with their situation, but there are hundreds of millions of dollars worth of defense contracts we have to look out for."

Majak said OIS was working closely with defense contractor giants Boeing and Lockheed-Martin. Given all the financial backing OIS was granted along the way, Majak said he could only speculate as to why the company ran into such difficult financial times.

Majak said OIS was integral to the production of the M-1 Abrams tank, the F-16 fighter jet and Apache attack helicopter because no other flat-screen manufacturer in America constructed items which could stand up the defense department standards. He said the sort of product made by OIS was not "some off-the-shelf" screen used in laptop computers.

And the military does have a need for OIS's screens. Majak said the Defense Department's production personnel recently determined there was "an immediate need" for the flat-screen displays made by OIS.

A few other screen-making companies were "waiting in the wings" to potentially take over for OIS in the future, Majak said, but he declined to specify which ones.

"It may be that OIS will pull out of this and re-open. We certainly hope so," Majak said. "It's important to note here that we're not asking OIS to enter into any new contracts or obligations — only that they complete the work they agreed to do."

When asked if some sort of scaled-back contract or leniency could be established between OIS and the federal government, Majak said leniency already had been granted to some extent, as OIS's production had fallen behind scheduled following the Sept. 16 closure.

Should OIS not be able to finish out the remainder of the contract, Majak said the next logical step would be for the Commerce Department to conduct an audit of OIS's finances and determine the extent of OIS's money hardships.

Township clerk Sue Hillebrand said township officials had had little communication with OIS representatives since the closure. However, Hillebrand also said that the township's economic development corporation, which had been fairly quiet for several years, may be called into action to deal with the OIS matter.

"We're obviously disappointed and saddened that they closed their doors," Hillebrand said.

Even if a new buyer for the $100 million facility could be located, Hillebrand was skeptical that a company of OIS's magnitude would take up residency.

"I don't think we're going to find a business that has this kind of tax valuation tacked onto itself," she said. "Even with the tax abatement factored in, that was still an extremely valuable piece of property to us."

OPINION

Township trustees need to strike deal with voters

So what has changed?

In 1994, the township board of trustees struck a deal with voters, vowing not to levy one additional mill allowed under township charter — except in an emergency situation — if voters approved the dedicated millage.

The millage was ultimately approved, though it required two attempts — one in August and a second in November — to pass the entire package.

At the time of the first vote, The Record did not endorse the package because the proposal had been put together at the last minute, and voters didn't have time to digest the ramifications of a yes vote.

The second time around, this newspaper was still leery about endorsing the request. That is, until the board promised not to levy the additional mill. We believed then that the board's pledge was a show of good faith – that trustees were truly concerned about raising taxes unnecessarily.

We still believe that today.

So we have to admit we're a bit puzzled at the current board's reluctance to make the same type of promise to voters this time around.

Township supervisor Karen Woodside said this week that making that sort of commitment again just couldn't be guaranteed because the dynamics of Northville Township in 1998 make it too risky to almost entirely write off making a one-mill levy for the duration of the millage

"We can't possibly promise that again," she said. "There are so many unforeseen things that can come up."

Woodside also said several township projects have already had to be put off because of the one-mill pledge made in 1994. That may be true, but the supervisor and board have already told us that passage of the shared services and park land ballot proposals are essential to the growth and prosperity of the township. If that is indeed the case then shouldn't those ballot items be viewed as a higher priority?

> To be sure, township officials still have the right to levy one mill without voter approval, and they want to keep that mill in their back pockets, just in case an emergency arises – a wise and prudent thing to do.

To be sure, township officials still have the right to levy one mill without voter approval, and they want to keep that mill in their back pockets, just in case an emergency arises – a wise and prudent thing to do.

So they are asking voters to approve a millage proposal to pay for shared services and land acquisition to alleviate the need to levy that additional mill. In a sense they are asking voters if these services are worthy of your tax dollars. It's a fair question, and voters will get a chance to give their answer on Nov. 3.

With that said, however, we return to the question of a simple promise. Do township officials promise taxpayers they won't levy that additional mill unless there's a catastrophic emergency?

That too, is a fair question, and one we believe township officials should answer positively.

Don't hamper learning with mid-semester change

The Northville Public School District is committed to educating students at all levels, as evidenced by the extensive Early Childhood Education services and the special education programs at Old Village and the Bryant Center.

The Advanced Learning Programs for Students also serves a special population of students, those with high IQs.

Gifted and talented students who have a tendency to get bored, restless and lazy in a regular classroom are challenged and inspired in the small K-5 ALPS program housed at Amerman Elementary School.

But a recent decision made by school officials threatens to be a double-edged sword that may enhance education for all students in the long run, but lose a few through the cracks along the way.

In a progressive move, the district budgeted for two new full-time Curriculum Resource Facilitators this year. One will work at the elementary schools and the other at the secondary level, circulating through classrooms to demonstrate innovative ways to teach.

Administrators are excited about having educators free to work as leaders, honing the district's curriculum at every level and in every subject.

In the long run, the move will extend the challenges offered in the ALPS program to the middle schools, where unchallenged children have a tendency to become at-risk.

However, the district hired Janice Henderson, an ALPS fifth-grade teacher, to fill one of the posts. Don't take us wrong, we're pleased for Henderson.

She is indeed one of the district's finest teachers

Assistant Superintendent for Instructional Services Dr. Linda Pitcher said that as soon as a qualified candidate is found to take over Henderson's class, she will move into an office at the board of education and begin her new job.

We're sure Henderson is well qualified for the position but we think it would be a mistake for her to be pulled from her classroom midsemester.

It could adversely impact all 21 of her students and for nine children in the class, it will be the second time in two years that they've had to adjust to a new ALPS teacher midyear.

Rather than put the ALPS students through a readjustment process and run the risk that they won't get the level of education the district has promised them, Henderson should stay put.

We believe the district should fill the other position as soon as possible and operate with one Curriculum Resource Facilitator until Mrs. Henderson's fifth-graders graduate to middle school next spring.

Potholes, politics and Donald Duck

Robert Jackson

Please allow me to rant and rave for a moment.

I've been thinking about the upcoming November elections quite a bit lately. Usually I don't really begin thinking about my ballot box selections until the middle of October, but you see I've got plenty of time on my hands as I drive the seven miles from home to work every morning – about 35-40 minutes.

It's not necessarily the traffic. I'm used to the large volume of cars. It's the road construction, which seems to be taking place at every bloody intersection I drive through.

Don't get me wrong, I'm glad these roads are finally getting some attention. For years I've gotten pretty adept at maneuvering my car around pot holes that could swallow an elephant.

No, the reason I'm upset is before leaving my home for work this particular morning I happened to catch a campaign ad for Gov. Engler, who essentially claims he is the man to thank for the repair work being done to Michigan roads.

I have to admit I was offended. Yes plenty of work is being done on Michigan roads, and yes Engler happens to be the governor of our state, and okay the two happen to be taking place at the same time.

But that's about it.

The question I have for our illustrious governor is what the heck took you so long? Those roads didn't turn to horse dung overnight. I want to know why this governor waited close to eight years to rectify a problem that has plagued this state for the better part of two decades.

It has been embarrassing. Here we have a state that is the automobile capitol of the world and our roads are worse than war-torn Beirut – during a cease fire.

And we're just getting around to fixing the problem now? Well that's something to campaign about governor, there's something you can hang your hat on.

Sorry gov, I subscribe to the adage that if it walks like a duck and talks like a duck, then you've got a...duck! And I'm awfully tempted to pencil Donald's name in as a write-in candidate for governor.

While we're on the topic of politics I've had the time to come up with a few questions for our congressional representatives – oh did I happen to mention that my seven mile drive to work takes me 35-40 minutes? I thought I did.

Anyway I've been wondering when congress is going to actually return to working for the people they represent. Hey I know this Clinton thing has been a distraction, but what exactly has congress done for the past eight months?

What about tax cuts for the middle class? Or how can Michigan, a state that exports millions in tax dollars, receive only a fraction back to fix infrastructure problems?

Oh but we can use those Michigan tax dollars to build dams and water delivery systems in the middle of a desert. Sure that's fair.

Has health care improved for Americans? Having gone through the stress of a father with heart problems and a wife with throat problems I can truly say that from my perspective this system of managed health care really...well...stinks (I would use stronger terms but this is a family newspaper).

And what about our decaying system of mental health care. Here in Northville we have a wonderful psychiatric facility, which unfortunately has endured budget cuts after budget cuts. The end result is that patients who really need help are discharged and walking the streets or ending up in our prison system?

Where's the fairness? Where's the compassion? Most of all where is the representation in our halls of government?

In my opinion there seems to be very little these days.

The long and short of it is that, for me, come Nov. 3, I'm going to be making some pretty radical selections in the ballot box. It's only one vote, I know, but I'm so disgusted with the current level of service I'm receiving, I can't bring myself to cast a vote for mediocrity anymore.

I didn't happen to mention that my seven mile drive to work takes 35-40 minutes, did I?

Outrageous!

Students participing in Friday's pep assembly tug-of-war contest celebrate their victory. The seniors won the event.

Random observations and football picks

Chris C. Davis

More random thoughts and observations on life...

• You've probably noticed a new feature in the sports section of the Novi News and Northville Record in the last few weeks — the football picks. I'll be honest with you. I'm torn between my old stomping grounds in Wildcatland and my adopted home of Mustangville. When that annual battle for the Baseline Jug renews this year, it's going to be a tough call.

• Football, Part II: This may just be Optimistic Me thinking here, but I really believe CMU may stand a chance against the mighty Spartans this weekend. The Chips are coming into this one at 2-1, while MSU stands at a weak 1-3. I know, I know...the MAC (Mediocre Athletic Conference) playing a Big 10 school. Guess what? I don't care! Maroon and gold, 27-24.

• Another excerpt from the Bachelor's Guide to Living: It's time to consider another plan when you go to apply duct tape to a leaky drainpipe and discover the leak is already coming through eight layers of old duct tape.

• You can keep Hawaii. Give me the four seasons, especially autumn. God seems to have a special affinity for Northville Township and Northville, where the Mill Pond and wide-open spaces along Six Mile still teem with color. There's just nothing like it in the world.

• Sorry, folks. Varsity jackets for academic achievement doesn't fly with me. No, I'm not knocking those who exceed in the classroom. On the contrary, it's minds — not muscles — which will truly make a difference in our world. If you're looking at a 3.98 GPA and admission into Harvard's medical program, congratulations and best wishes. But the jacket represents success in another light — physical activity. You can have all the plaques, trophies, medals and certificates you want if scholastics is your strength. Do me a favor and let sports have its own symbol, too.

• Am I the only one who's something less than impressed by the Downtown Novi project? With all due respect to people who've put in hours and maybe years of effort to the job, Downtown Novi just doesn't look like a downtown to me, and after much thought, I've finally figured out the reason why: the major roads don't run through the middle of it. My sneaking suspicion is that the novelty of this thing is going to run out in a few years' time.

• I'm no fan of our beloved Chief Executive right now, but even I draw the line at the broadcasting of grand jury testimony. I don't care how much this investigation cost us. The release of the report is one thing, but the release of statements given which are traditionally held in the strictest of confidence between a jury, prosecutors and the witness is just plain ridiculous.

To those who think I'm giving the President too much leniency, I ask one question: what greater good has been served by having disgusting, animalistic personal behavior televised into America's living rooms? Didn't we know all this before? If I get one decent answer, I'll change my mind.

• I hear a lot of knocks on Northville Township officials from people I speak with, but in my experience, the folks over at 40600 Six Mile Road are professional and helpful to me just about every time I'm working on a story. We live in a world where criticism flows much more free than does praise. If you see someone doing good, it's worth letting them know about it.

I'll start it off: thanks, Northville Township staff. I appreciate your efforts.

AAUW offers voters an informed choice

Phil Power

The American Association of University Women has always occupied a warm place in my heart. My late mother was an early member, and through her I formed the impression that if there was something important to be done, the AAUW was likely involved in doing it.

So it was with a lift to my step that I went over to the Livonia city hall last Thursday to participate in a taped question and answer session for all statewide education candidates, sponsored by (who else?) the Livonia Branch of the AAUW.

Unusually informed readers may remember that I am a candidate this year for re-election to the University of Michigan Board of Regents. So, in addition to being alert for any hint of bias that might slip into this column, readers should realize that I am writing from direct personal experience.

Running for something like the Board of Regents (or for the Board of Governors of MSU, Trustees of Wayne State University of members of the State Board of Education) has been problematic ever since the present Michigan Constitution was adopted back in 1963.

Before that, Michigan held education elections in April in odd-numbered years. Statewide education boards, local school boards and various local millage and bonding proposals were all on the ballot at a time when educational issues were not competing for attention with elections for president, U.S. Congress, governor, the state Legislature and so forth. This meant that the news media had enough time to get focussed on the issues and, accordingly, the voters were reasonably well informed.

But today's state Constitution lumps everybody into November elections in even-numbered years. With so many races to cover, the news media lack the resources to report on and to scrutinize the records and views of education candidates. The result? Voters lack confidence in voting knowledgeably in such races, as demonstrated by the very large falloff in vote from governor to state education candidates.

So we education candidates mill around in relative anonymity, faintly hopeful that somebody might notice who we are, what we are running for, even what positions we stand for.This is too bad. Education boards like the U-M Regents have an enormous (and mostly hidden) impact on the state. They pick presidents, set tuition rates and allocate money for financial aid. They help define policies for their universities, from setting admissions standards to designing ways to move discoveries from labs into high-tech, spin-off companies.

And there are significant differences between the candidates on these and other issues, as well as sharp disparities in experience and qualifications.

Some years ago, I suggested that the Michigan Press Association sponsor what amounts to an education meat market, inviting all the statewide candidates to one place to allow easy poking and convenient prodding by reporters and editorial writers. For whatever reason, MPA turned down the idea.

Enter the good people at the Livonia branch of the AAUW. Beginning in 1996, they offered to tape education candidates responding to questions and to bicycle the tapes around the state to be aired on the public access channels of local cable television systems. They did so again last week.

Three out of four major party candidates for U-M Regent showed up. Sitting under the hot TV lights, we tried to answer the questions put to us by Yvonne Constas, the moderator. The questions were tough but fair. And anyone who looks at the half-hour program will find it easy to make an informed choice on the ballot - we appear under "State Boards," just below candidates for state legislature - on Nov. 3.

To find out when the program is being aired, just call your local cable television provider.

The 'how' is as important as the 'what'

G. Michael Abbott

I told my wife, Cindy – also a teacher – that I had solved a minor problem in teaching: I labeled a can "Pencils-pens, help yourself," and kept it stocked with every pencil stub and chewed up ball point I could find. I invited any student who needed one to borrow a pen or pencil. It was an honor system; they were to return it at the end of the period. I took the caps off the ball points to reinforce the honor system. "It's a great idea," I explained. "Think about it, no arguments. No lectures about what happens to carpenters who don't bring their tools. No delaying class while we haggled over writing utensils. No bruised feelings. It becomes an inviting atmosphere. We could focus directly on the work and not let this get in the way."

"You're an enabler," Cindy snapped. "Think about what you are teaching those kids. They are learning that they are helpless little nothings who need to depend on you for things. They need to learn that they are responsible for bringing their pens and pencils, not you. That carpenter's tools story is right. Students need to understand responsibility, and you're helping them to avoid it. That's called enabling."

"But don't you find that there's always someone without a pen or pencil? And wouldn't it save you a lot of grief if you simply had them available? I find it saves a lot of time and trouble. What do you do when you have a test. Flunk them?"

"Yes, I do. If my students come in without a pen or pencil, they know that they simply can't do the assigned work, test or not. They know that it's their fault because they didn't bring their work tools. After a failed test or two because of nothing to write with, they get the idea."

She has a point. I agree with her. Still, I continued to use my method. The disruptions weren't worth it, in my mind.

Who helped kids the most? My guess is that some kids benefited from my way and some from her way. But it made me think.

How we teach is as important as what we teach. This is sometimes called the "hidden curriculum."

For instance, what is the message I give to students if I lecture all the time? It's that I, the sage on the stage, know everything that you need to learn and I'll tell it to you. I am the fountain of all knowledge. By my example, students may learn that they are incapable of finding information on their own, and they will not experience the thrill in discovery.

In fact, they may think that they are incapable of thinking through complex ideas because the ideas always come predigested – in my wonderful lectures. More likely, my lectures will teach students how to fake showing attention, while their minds are miles away. Others, finding that school's a colossal bore, and the the teacher's a pompous ass, may disrupt the class and get applause from their classmates.

"This is going to be a democratic classroom, where thinking is respected, where ideas are considered in a civil manner, where everyone is treated with dignity," began the government teacher. "Oh, yes. And no talking is allowed."

See what I mean?

Letters to the Editor

It is true compassion to relieve the suffering

To the editor:

In response to Steve Lawrence's letter regarding physician-assisted suicide, I would like to clear up a few misconceptions. I would also like to offer a few points to ponder.

• It was stated that doctors have a duty to continue to search for a treatment or cure that will prolong a patient's life regardless of the patient's wishes. It was further stated that patients are being treated even if treatments don't work because of some rigid adherence to the Hippocratic Oath. This simply is not true. It is also against the law. The wishes of the patient are always relevant. We are allowed "do-not-resuscitate" orders. Upon admittance to a hospital, we are asked to sign whether we want certain treatments. At any time patients have the right to refuse any medical treatment.

• "Mind your own business" is the mantra of those who would prefer the acceptance of physician-assisted suicide. It is my business, and also the business of my children and all future generations. In allowing a doctor the right to help us kill ourselves we change society forever. How comfortable will we feel confiding our deepest fears and frustrations to a medical person? How much protection will "safe-guards" offer when people like Jack Kevorkian routinely flout current laws without legal penalty? How high will suicide rates climb among high-risk groups like teens and the elderly when suicide becomes the courageous, noble and, more sadly, normal choice? How will health care economics be affected? Suicide may be seen as more cost effective than palliative or rehabilitative care. Is your doctor an agent of some managed care conglomerate?

The AMA has come out strongly against this. They have stated that this act is "fundamentally incompatible with the physician's role as healer." They have also repeatedly stated that "abandoning the prohibition on physician-assisted suicide will undermine efforts to expand the provisions of palliative care to all patients." Palliative care offers spiritual comfort and the control of physical and mental pain, without seeking to hasten or postpone death.

It may be interesting to note that after wrestling with this topic, the Canadian, Australian, and British Medical Associations have also come out in opposition to euthanasia. Doctors don't want this responsibility. It is not why they have devoted their lives to medicine.

It is true compassion to seek the cause and relieve a person's suffering. It is not true compassion to eliminate the person doing the suffering.

NCBA ready for christmas

To the editor:

The downtown holiday season kicks off this year with Northville Central Business Association's annual "Hometown Holiday Lighted Parade" Friday, Nov. 20 at 6:30 p.m. All businesses, civic and school organizations, non profit groups and private citizens are invited to present a float or a marching group for the parade. We are looking for decorated vehicles, equestrian units, canine corps, precision marchers, carolers, bell ringers; anyone and everyone who wants to join in the fun of ushering in the holiday season in Northville. There is only one requirement: all participants and floats or vehicles must be lit up – safely. We are asking all previous participants and newcomers to call 344-4321 or 349-7640 to register for the parade as soon as possible.

Please urge your organization to participate in the parade. It is easy to do and will help to bring the holidays back to our hometown as well as Santa to his newly redecorated house in the Bandshell Park. The holiday season is a wonderful, joyous time and as with any parade – the more the merrier.

Tomorrow will be too late

To the editor:

It's now or never. Tomorrow will be too late. Northville Township's development means we just can't wait. At least not to acquire land for parks and recreation in the Northville community.

On behalf of the children who already need more space for baseball, softball and soccer fields, and those who will soon be moving into the new homes currently being built all over Northville Township, and those who are destined to live in the few remaining residential parcels that await future development – we urge yes votes on both the parklands acquisition/development and the community/shared services millages at the November 3 election.

For the many adults and senior citizens who visit parks and use the green space for picnics, casual walks, exercise or to watch their children or grandchildren participating in and enjoying recreation programs and games that are the essence of youthfulness (and among its fondest memories), it's now or never.

And what is the additional cost of such experiences and memories? For owners of homes with a taxable value of $200,000 (about average in Northville Township) – the cost is a quarter a day, less than $100 a year. That sounds like a real bargain to us.

Perhaps for some it should be viewed as "insurance" to sustain the quality of life in our community or to maintain the value of the local housing market. What a shame it would be to risk either for such a modest investment in our collective future.

Tomorrow really will be too late. The available land for parks and recreational development is literally disappearing before us (a drive around the township is proof enough). For our children, seniors and ourselves, please vote yes on both millages. It's now or never.

Bill, Carol, Alison
and Jeff Richards

NYA worthy of fund request

To the editor:

The residents of Northville are very fortunate to have had the services of the Northville Youth Assistance program for 10 years.

Northville was one of the first Wayne County communities to recognize the need for early intervention with young people as a means of preventing more serious problems with school, home or community at a later gage.

Recidivism checks with the Wayne County Juvenile Court will attest to the success of the Northville Youth Assistance program, as 97 percent of the youth who have participated in Northville Youth Assistance have not had Juvenile Court involvement since being in Youth Assistance.

This program is an important resource for the Northville community and I urge the voters to give it a strong vote of confidence on Nov. 3 by voting yes to the millage renewal.

Ronaele Bowman

Thanks for the many contributions

To the editor:

On Saturday, Sept. 19 the Northville-Novi branch of the American Association of University Women held its fourth annual historic home tour. Once again it was a sell-out. We are sorry everyone was not able to get tickets who desired them, but we made every effort to be fair and make it a first come, first serve basis.

We would especially like to thank the five homeowners who so graciously opened their homes for the tour: Bruce and Johnelle Brewster, Dan and Nancy Hackett, David and Sarah Marino, Jerry and Sandi Maynard, and Lou and Debbie Washburn-Ronayne.

Our thanks also to the florists who donated their work to help beautify the homes: Bea's Flowers, Carmine Bossio, Emerald City Designs, Flowers & More, and Sparr's. The owners and staff of both Gardenviews and the Kitchen Witch deserve many kudos for all of their efforts in selling the tickets...thank you, thank you. Printing costs were donated by Kelly & Kelly, and bags by Hiller's Shopping Center Market. We thank them for that contribution.

My special thanks to my committee and the many, many hosts and hostesses, including members of AAUW and friends and neighbors from the community, who helped make each house special. Without all of you it couldn't be done.

All of these contributions of time and talent allow the Northville-Novi branch of AAUW to continue its scholarships, both locally and nationally, and all of its programs which benefit women and girls.

Personal trainers help clients get on, and stay on, the right track

By CAROL DIPPLE
Feature Editor

The thought of joining a fitness club can be intimidating to most who need to get in shape. The equipment looks high tech. The members are all toned and tan.

An orientation session will help new members with the proper use of the equipment.

Once a member, the fitness clubs have floor instructors who answer clients' questions about the proper use of equipment. Some clubs have certified personal trainers who rotate as floor instructors. Asking them a question while they are on the floor is not the same as 'hiring' a personal trainer who will work just for you.

The advantage of working with a personal trainer is that they are qualified to take a complete look at a client's lifestyle with it comes nutrition, fitness and exercise.

"That's the hard part of it initially is the there are so many myths people believe in — spot reduction, heavy weight-less time, less weight-more time," said Brian Wolverton, certified personal trainer with Bally Fitness in Novi. "It is so hard. I can understand how a person can get confused."

But all personal trainers and the clubs they are affiliated with are not alike.

A session with a personal trainer may be included in a new member's package, or it be optional and at an additional cost. If an initial session is included, also ask about the costs of working with a personal trainer after the initial session is over.

But first, clients should look at four areas when considering a personal trainer.

Find out from what organization they received their certification. Some certification organizations are the National Academy of Sports Medicine, National Strength and Conditioning Association, American College of Sports Medicine and American Council on Exercise.

Personal trainers who have received certification from the American Academy of Sports Medicine, for example, have read a textbook covering topics like biomechanics, exercise physiology, and nutrition; attended an intensive two or five day workshop; passed a closed-book test; and are CPR certified. To retain their certification, personal trainers must complete a minimum number of approved course hours every two years.

"Unfortunately, the problem with personal training is that you can get certified and call yourself a personal trainer over the mail in a couple of days," said Chris Klebba, manager of Water Wheel Health Club, Inc. in Northville.

Also ask about formal education and determine the personal lifestyle of the trainer.

"Do they practice what they preach?" said Klebba. "You're not going to listen to someone who never works out telling you you should (workout)."

Finally, look at their people skills. If you have decided to hire a personal trainer, you must feel completely comfortable communicating with that person.

"You can be the most knowledgeable trainer in the world but if people don't like you and you can't communicate you may as well forget it," Klebba said.

Fitness clubs have their own niches. Determine the age group and fitness level of their members. Listen to the music. Make sure you find out what is included with the membership. Ask about the club's certification and philosophy in terms of training. Some clubs employ their own personal trainers.

"We don't just do training where we move the pin for you and count repetitions," Chris Klebba, manager of Water Wheel Health Club, Inc. in Northville. "We do training where we educate and take the guesswork out of the entire program for our clients."

Once a client has selected a club and if they have selected to use a trainer, it now becomes the trainer's turn to interview the client.

The trainer will ask the client about their background, experience, limitations, goals, and nutrition.

"People walk into gyms thinking 'I want to loose weight and tone up,' but that's only part of the equation," said "Boo" Sadikot, certified personal trainer with Water Wheel. "Food intake is very, very important. You'd be surprised how many people are very naive in that area."

Personal trainers help individuals stay motivated and provide guidance.

"Most people find it difficult to stay motivated on a program, they become very bored," Sadikot said.

When a client is not seeing results after a given period of time, their interest wanes.

"About 60 percent of the population drop out of health clubs in the first three months across the country ," Klebba said. "The reason for that is they don't see their body changing as they desire so something else fills their time and they are gone."

A personal trainer will try to add variety to their client's program to keep things interesting.

The goal of the personal trainer is not to put people on a regimented regime, according Wolverton.

"We do want to make sure they are improving their health," Wolverton said. "The overall goal of personal training should be to point people in that direction."

Wolverton said that there is nothing wrong with exercising outside a facility, but that clients may be subject to interruptions like children and phones.

"When you're personal training with that person, as long as they're giving you their heart and soul in terms of dedication and guidance, there's no reason that they can't start seeing results, that is what personal training is about," said Wolverton.

Left: Customers at Bally Fitness in Novi can sign up to have a certified personal trainer like Brian Wolverton set up a program specifically for them.

Resident participates in 'The March'

Sheldon Schwartz is a cancer patient advocate

By CAROL DIPPLE
Feature Editor

"As long as we get the word out that early detection saves lives, that's all that I care about."

-Sheldon Schwartz

Sheldon Schwartz was one of 100 cancer survivors who participated in The March on Cancer pregame program held at the University of Michigan/Michigan State University game in Ann Arbor on Saturday, Sept. 26.

The 100 participants were chosen from 600 entries.

As the U-M marching band formed a circle on the field, the cancer survivors walked across the circle.

"It was the thrill of a lifetime," said Schwartz, a Novi resident.

With temperatures over 90 degrees, cheerleaders held up face cards which read "No More Cancer" followed by the crowds chanting "no more cancer."

"To hear 111,000 people shouting 'no more cancer,' all the survivors started crying," said Schwartz, a double cancer survivor himself, "It was very moving."

Saturday's pregame program was part of a nationwide awareness campaign with events in Washington, D.C., as well as state capitols, and local cities and counties.

"As long as we get the word out that early detection saves lives, that's all that I care about," said Schwartz.

The nationwide programs are trying to bring awareness to cancer research and funding for cancer, according to Schwartz.

Schwartz was also recently appointed to Prostate Cancer Action Committee of the Michigan Cancer Consortium of the Michigan Department of Community Health. The committee's first meeting is scheduled for Oct. 5 in Brighton.

"He is the perfect person for it," said Brooke Moran, formerly with the American Foundation of Urologic Diseases.

In August, Schwartz was one of four people recognized at the 1st International Prostate Cancer Symposium for the Patient which was also held at the University of Michigan.

"In all these seminars I've attended on cancer it is one of the best I've attended," Schwartz said. "This was strictly on a patient level."

Keynote speaker Bob Novak of CNN addressed 1,400 attendees at the two and a half day symposium just prior to Moran presenting the first annual Prostate Cancer Patient Advocate Award to Schwartz.

"He got the award because of his extraordinary efforts helping other prostate cancer survivors deal with their issues," said Moran. "It was really an honor for me to be able to present the award to him because there is no one in the State of Michigan more deserving or humble. He echoes the voice of many, many prostate cancer survivors."

Schwartz develop the model for a resource guide for prostate cancer patients which the American Foundation for Urologic Disease used to develop a national resource guide.

"Sheldon has been totally dedicated to the issues," Moran said.

Schwartz is the only patient advocate on the Michigan Prostate Cancer Task Force and has helped develop support groups, according to Moran.

"He deals in the whole range of advocacy support," said Moran who met Schwartz shortly after his radical prostatectomy in 1992. "We are extremely proud of all the work he has done and the energy he has contributed to men and their families."

Barnes & Noble to host book fair fund raiser

Carol Dipple

The Barnes and Noble Bookstore located at Six Mile and Haggerty Road in Northville will be the site for a book fair to benefit the Livonia Branch of the American Association of University Women's scholarship program.

The fund raiser will be held on Saturday, Oct. 10, from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. The Livonia Branch of the AAUW will receive a percentage of the sales rung up at cash registers designated with balloons.

If you have information for the In Our Town column, call Carol Dipple at (248) 349-1700.

'SHOFAR' won Juror's Choice at "Sharing the Gift" show.

YWCA is seeking nominations for outstanding women

Nominations are being sought for the 7th annual Women of Achievement Awards Luncheon, sponsored by the YWCA of Western Wayne County.

Women who have demonstrated qualities of outstanding leadership and excellence in their professional and personal lives are eligible for nomination in one of six categories: Arts/Communications; Business/Industry; Government/Law; Professions; Volunteer Service; or Young Woman. All nominations must be received by 5 p.m. on Friday, Oct. 2.

Northville resident Jennifer Mulhern Granholm received the Women of Achievement Award in Government and Law in 1996. Angela DeAngelis, a 1991 graduate of Novi High School, received the award in the Young Woman category in 1995.

The Arts/Communications category honors women who have achieved success in the arts, media or public relations. Such fields include visual, literacy and performing arts.

The Business/Industry category honors women who have displayed outstanding abilities and accomplishments as an entrepreneur or in the management, executive or technical/professional roles.

The Government/Law category honors women in the legal profession or in government leadership either in an elected or career capacity.

Honorees in the Professions category are women who have demonstrated commitment and excellence as a professional in the field of education, health, human services, religion or research.

Volunteer Services nominees are women who have made significant contributions to the community through volunteer efforts.

Young Woman nominees are between the ages of 16 and 23. They have demonstrated leadership qualities, participate in community service and project a positive image of "tomorrow's woman."

A one-page narrative outlining the areas of the nominee's achievements, along with a biographical sketch, not to exceed two pages should be mailed to YWCA of Western Wayne County, 26279 Michigan Avenue, Inkster, MI 48141. The only requirement is that nominees either work, live or volunteer in Western Wayne County.

Awards will be presented to the winners at the luncheon to be held Friday, Nov. 6, at the Fairlane Club in Dearborn.

The Women of Achievement Awards Luncheon is the YWCA of Western Wayne County's principal fund raising event. Proceeds help to support the various programs offered by the YWCA. The major program emphasis includes: Children and Youth in Crisis, Teen Pregnancy and Parenting, Successful Child Development, Women's Health Empowerment and Positive Use of Leisure Time.

Call the YWCA of Western Wayne County at (313) 561-4110 for more information.

Adjudication complete, art show is set to open

"SHOFAR," a spiritually inspired metal sculpture depicting rabbis at worship is the Juror's Choice Award winner at the First Presbyterian Church of Northville's 6th Annual Juried Fine Art Show "Sharing the Gift Within You."

Adjudication was held on Monday by William Bostick who is well known regionally as an artist, consultant, instructor, author, calligrapher, book illustrator, graphic artist and lithographer.

A Shofar is the Ram's Horn blown by rabbis to announce the Jewish New Year Rosh Hashanah, as well as other religious occasions.

The artist, Henry Friedman of West Bloomfield, is a Holocaust survivor and an active retiree from the Robotics Division of General Motors. His knowledge of metal working is now combined with his creativity. Working in his home studio, he creates unique metal sculpture pieces each of which may required eight to 12 months to complete. The individual, handmade elements are joined by a special and difficult silver soldering process. Friedman says that his extra time is evenly divided between his metal sculpture and speaking to individuals and groups about the Holocaust. Friedman's highly acclaimed work is widely shown, most recently at the 1998 exhibition "Celebrate Life" at the Congregational Church of Birmingham.

Northville winners in 'Sharing the Gift" include former resident and art commissioner, Art Rockall, Merit Award-Mixed Media; and July Kohl, Special Recognition-Photography. Novi residents Linda McVicar won an Outstanding Merit Award-Collage Mixed Media and Betty Lewis received Special Recognition-Mixed Media. Jill Hamilton of Wixom won Special Recognition-Paperclay Over Cloth.

"SHOFAR" and a second impressive metal sculpture "Jacob" with bronze angels climbing Jacob's Ladder can be seen along with 178 multi-media works of art from Saturday, Oct. 3, through Thursday, Oct. 8, from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. and on Friday, Oct. 9, with extended evening hours and piano entertainment by Mike Vartanian from 11 a.m. until 8 p.m. Admission is free.

Proceeds from the exhibition will be given to the church's mission, Habitat for Humanity.

The church is located at 200 E. Main Street in downtown Northville.

Food safety next topic at Woman's Club meeting

The Northville Woman's Club will learn all about "How Safe is Our Food" from Robert Craig at their next meeting which will be held on Friday, Oct. 16, at 1:30 p.m. in Boll Fellowship Hall at the First Presbyterian Church of Northville, 200 East Main Street.

Craig joined the Michigan Department of Agriculture in 1991 and served for six years in the Executive Office as Director of Agriculture Policy and Special Projects. He served as a member of MDA's top management team for decision making and policy development. He represented the department director on a number of state government commissions and task forces involving economic development, natural resources and environmental management, tax reform and others. He provided leadership on a number of department programs, including the Michigan Right to Farm Program and establishing a cranberry industry in Michigan.

In April 1997 he became Director of the Office of Agriculture Development. His office focuses on enhancing production agriculture, rural development, the expansion of food and agricultural value-added processing, rural health issues, sustainable agriculture and promoting the use of composting on farms and in communities.

Prior to joining MDA, Craig was manager for over 10 years of the Commodity Activities and Research Department for the Michigan Farm Bureau. His accomplishments there included the development of an on-farm, computerized marketing information and education service that increased average farm profits by $4,000. Michigan Farm Bureau was subsequently recognized nationally for outstanding commodity and marketing programs.

Craig holds a bachelor of science degree in agricultural economics from Michigan State University and a master of science in the same subject from Cornell University.

Craig grew up on a dairy farm in Shiawassee County.

Walk to benefit canine companions

The third Annual Howl-O-Ween Dog Walkathon has moved to Maybury State Park. This year's event is scheduled for Sunday, Oct. 4, at 1 p.m. Previously the walkathon had been held at Kensington Metro Park.

Former Novi resident Fay Ann Johnson, Canine Companions for Independence (CCI) group president and a CCI recipient, is the local volunteer representative organizing the walkathon.

The event consists of a fun-filled 2K walk with treat stops, a costume contest (human and canine), and a raffle drawing. Walkers are welcome without dogs.

The top pledge earner in the region will win a limited edition autographed Charles Schulz print. There will be prizes awarded to the top pledge earners of each walk and free refreshments for all.

A former occupational therapist, the 1974 Novi High School graduate was diagnosed with Multiple Sclerosis in 1991 and became homebound four years ago.

Funds raised from the Annul Howl-O-Ween Dog Walkathons help breed, train and place a canine companion like Duke, Johnson's four and a half year old male golden retriever. A CCI dog costs about $10,000. Each canine companion lives with volunteer puppy raisers for a year and a half to learn socialization and basic obedience training. During the following eight months they are returned to one of CCI's regional centers for advanced training where they will learn up to 50 additional commands.

During Team Training, an intensive two to three week training session, "students" like Johnson are matched with canine companions. They learn the skills necessary to command the dogs. Graduating the program is one of the requirements to qualify for a canine companion.

Fay Johnson and Duke will be at the third Annual Howl-O-Ween Dog Walkathon at Maybury.

CCI trains four types of dogs — service dogs, hearing dogs, assisted service dogs and facility dogs.

A service dog, like Duke, increases the physically disabled's independence by performing practical tasks while providing companionship.

CCI was founded in 1975 and is funded by donations, group and service club contributions, grants and ongoing fund raising activities. They receive no government funding.

The annual walk is held in six Midwestern cities including Columbus, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago, Indianapolis and Detroit.

A state park sticker is required to enter Maybury State Park. Use the Eight Mile Road entrance.

For more information, or to register for the third Annual Howl-O-Ween Dog Walkathon, call Johnson at (734) 671-7576.

Weddings

Ricardo and Amy Joaquin

Dara and Gregory Olson

Ricardo and Amy Joaquin

Amy Sue Poster and Ricardo Jose Joaquin were married March 28 in the Little Wedding Chapel Heritage Park Historical Village, in Taylor, Mich. Soloist was Gina Mathews of Northville who sang "Unchained Melody" and "I Believe In You and Me." The bride was given in marriage by her father, and presented to her at the double ring ceremony was an original set of rings belonging to the groom's mother.

A reception for 150 guests followed at the Regency West in Redford, where the bride dedicated Lee Greenwood's "Proud to be an American" to her new husband, father, father-in-law, and all other vets. The mother of the bride designed and made the wedding cake.

The bride, daughter of Terry and Sue Poster of Northville, is a 1993 graduate of Northville High School. She is currently a server at the Oaks Grille in the DoubleTree Hotel, Novi.

Attending as maid of honor was friend, Melissa Hileman. Bridesmaids were friends Christine Potter and Kay Myers; cousins, Dawn Fuhrman, Jennifer Hatcher, and Nanette Poster, and sister-in-law, Tina Poster. Serving as flower girl was Alyssa Joaquin, niece of the groom.

The bridal gown of satin was designed with an 8-foot train, beaded sequin bodice and full skirt.

The headpiece, created by the bride's mother, was a headband of beads, handmade satin roses, and puffs of beaded tulle.

The bridal bouquet of Stargazer lilies, white roses and freesia was designed by Dewey Gardner and Mary Lane of IV Seasons.

The groom is the son of Fernando and Connie Joaquin of Taylor. A veteran of Desert Storm and Desert Shield, he is employed as a salesman with Trico Tools. Ricardo is a 1988 graduate of Franklin High School in Taylor.

Fernando Joaquin Jr. served as best man. Groomsmen were friends, Eugene Blevins, Rob Holloway, Peter Grant, Dennis Nadeau and Jeff Brielmaier; and brother of the bride, T.J. Poster. The ring bearer was the groom's son, Brandon Wade Joaquin.

The newlyweds have made their home in South Lyon and plan to take a wedding trip to the Florida Keys sometime in October.

Dara and Gregory Olson

Dara Ellen Crowfoot and Gregory John Olson were united in marriage on June 13 at Webster Church near Dexter. The Rev. Ann and the Rev. Don Coleman of Chicago officiated at the double ring ceremony. Sister of the groom, Jennifer Olson of New York City and cousin of the bride, Leslie Hendrickson of Santa Fe, N.M., presented readings to the couple during the ceremony.

A reception for guests followed at the Portage Lake Yacht Club in Pinckney.

The bride is the daughter of Dale Crowfoot and Jim Crowfoot, both of Ann Arbor. She is a graduate of Pioneer High School, Ann Arbor, and the University of Michigan. A recent graduate of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, with a master's degree in business administration, she is currently employed by Kraft Foods in Glenview, Ill.

Attending as matron of honor was friend of the bride, Alison Hafner of Chicago. Serving as bridesmaids were friends, Emily Melnick of Chicago, Julie Agranoff of Boston and Estee Segal of Portland, Ore.

The groom, son of Karen and Jerry Olson of Northville, is a graduate of the International School of Brussels and the University of Michigan. He received his master's degree from Spertus College in Chicago.

David Smith of Chicago served as best man. Groomsmen were Chris Olson of Chicago, brother of the groom; Wade Crowfoot of San Francisco, brother of the bride; and friend of the groom, Scott Edmonds of Tallahassee, Fla.

After an extended trip through the northwest area of the United States and the Canadian Rockies, the couple is now making their home in Chicago.

In Order To Treat It...You've Got To Understand It.

Botsford General Hospital Is Offering

A DEPRESSION SCREENING DAY

Thursday, October 8, 1998 • Livonia Mall

Why depression? Because it affects over 17 million Americans of all ages. Because it is often missed or misdiagnosed. Because people believe it is something to be ashamed about. Botsford General Hospital is participating in National Depression Screening Day because we believe this is about mental health – not mental illness. Caring for your emotional health is as important as taking responsibility for your physical health. Did you know...one out of every five Americans may experience depression at some point during his or her life. And like high blood pressure or diabetes, if not diagnosed and properly treated, the long-term consequences can become life-threatening. Depression is a disease – not a fault, failing or weakness. If you or someone you know experiences the signs or symptoms of depression – depressed mood over prolonged period of time; loss of interest in activities; changes in appetite or weight; sleep disturbances; feelings of worthlessness; lack of concentration – an anonymous, free, confidential screening test may help identify if treatment would help. Botsford General Hospital will be conducting information sessions and screenings at Livonia Mall (near the Sears court, by the fountain), Thursday, October 8, 1998. The sessions will begin at 10 a.m., 12 noon, 2 p.m., 4 p.m. and 6 p.m. For more information please call Botsford General Hospital Community Relations Department (248) 442-7986.

Park supervisor to address group

Anna Sylvester, supervisor of Maybury State Park, will be the next speaker at the Northville District Library on "The Best Kept Secrets at Maybury State Park" on Tuesday, Oct. 6, at 7 p.m. in the Carlo Meeting Room.

The program is sponsored by the Friends of the Northville District Library in a continuation of its Voices and Visions series.

In addition to the living farm and playground area for children, the park at Beck Road and Eight Mile Road boasts many other attractions. Sylvester is aware of them all because she and her husband and three children live at the park.

Sylvester brings to her job a lifelong love of nature and the outdoors. She is a graduate of Detroit elementary school and Cody High School. She has a degree in agriculture from Michigan State University.

Summer jobs at Island Lake Recreation Area between semesters in college was a time to discover that her other skills include teaching and leading. After jobs in the Pinckney area and Mitchell State Park in Cadillac, where she was assistant manager, she came to Maybury in 1990.

She works closely with science teachers in the Northville schools on teaching materials and curriculum. She is a recipient of the Community Enrichment Award from the Northville/Novi branch of the American Association of University Women.

Anna Sylvester

Reservations for the evening are required by phone at (248) 349-3020 or in person at the Northville Library.

Attendance is limited.

In Service

MICHELE SPLAN has graduated from the Army Reserve Officer Training Corps Advanced Camp at Fort Lewis, Tacoma, Wash. She completed a five-week course in intensive military leadership training, evaluation exercises in communications, management, and survival training. The cadet will be commissioned as a second lieutenant to serve in the U.S. Army, National Guard, or Reserve.

The cadets are generally between their third and fourth year of college when attending camp. Splan is currently a student at Eastern Michigan University.

She is the daughter of Robert M. and Johanna R. Splan of Northville and a 1994 graduate of Northville High School.

SARAH S. HOFFMEIER has completed basic cadet training and received the rank of cadet fourth class at the U.S. Air Force Academy, Colorado Springs, Colo.

Hoffmeier completed a five-week orientation program and was accepted into the cadet wing. By having completed basic cadet training, trainees are prepared to enter their first academic year as "doolies" at the academy and graduate as the class of 2002.

There were two phases to the program. Phase one was focused on the transition from civilian to military life; phase two involved a two-week outdoor stay on the academy grounds, participating in activities extending their physical limitations and building self and group confidence.

Hoffmeier is the daughter of Willis L. and Barbara A. Hoffmeier of Northville. She graduated this year from Lutheran High School in Westland.

Navy Lt. DONALD A. LEWIS recently completed the officer indoctrination course.

The first five weeks of studies included naval history and traditions, personnel administration, military law, close-order drill, and other general military subjects.

During the final week, studies concentrated on the application of civilian professions within the Navy.

Lewis graduated in 1992 from the University of Washington, Seattle, with a bachelor of science degree. He is the son-in-law of Gordon D. and Karen E. Rogers of Northville.

'Mars and Venus' workshop to give singles hands-on practice

The Single Place Ministries at First Presbyterian Church of Northville is offering a unique workshop on Saturday, Oct. 24.

Amy M. Owens will show videotaped segments of "Mars and Venus on a Date" by author Dr. John Gray; mini-lectures; small group discussions; as well as structured one-on-one conversations during the all-day workshop.

Owens is a licensed Mars/Venus Counselor, a marriage and family counselor specializing in single adults in private practice in Indianapolis. She also developed and teaches a how-to course "Advanced Relationship Strategies" for singles who are looking for life partners.

The workshop is designed specifically for singles and offers 101 places to find your soul mate; warning signals to help you avoid getting involved with the wrong person; how complementary roles in dating rituals create lasting romance; the four elements of lasting chemistry; and how to prepare for a marriage made in heaven.

The day will begin at 8:30 a.m. with registration followed by the workshop which includes the Concept of Soul Mate, the Stages of Dating – attraction, uncertainty, exclusivity, intimacy, and engagement; and concluding exercises. The workshop adjourns at 5:30 p.m.

The cost is $49 and includes the workbook, lunch and morning and afternoon breaks. Early bird price is $42 for those who register prior to Oct. 15.

The First Presbyterian Church is located at 200 East Main Street in Northville.

To register, or for more information, call the First Presbyterian Church of Northville at (248) 349-0911.

Program to include advice for continued growth after divorce

The First Presbyterian Church is offering a seven-week program to help individuals grow through a divorce, not just get through a divorce.

Single Place Ministry is presenting "Starting Over Single," a divorce recovery workshop on seven Thursday evenings Oct. 8 through 19 from 7 until 9 p.m. in the library/lounge of the First Presbyterian Church of Northville, 200 East Main Street in Northville.

Topics to be covered include "Networking" with Jim Russell, "Stages of Grief" with Dick Todd, "Legal Aspects of Divorce", "Helping Children through Divorce" with Marci Fishman, a panel discussion on "Passage of Divorce," "Church and Divorce: Spiritual Help and Forgiveness" with W. Kent Clise, and "Relationships Old and and New" with Lynn Vaughn.

Workshop leaders have many years and a variety of professional experience between them.

Dr. Dick Todd is a clinical psychologist and a United Methodist minister and frequently speaks as single ministry functions throughout the Detroit area.

David Jerome is an attorney in Northville who has given a great deal of support to the Divorce Recovery Program at the church.

Jim Russell has been a strong advocate for singles ministry and is one of the leaders in the Starting Over Single program. He has been a pastor for 25 years and is associate pastor of First Presbyterian Church of Northville.

W. Kent Clise is the senior pastor at the church and is also highly committed to its single ministry program.

Lynn Vaughn, Ph.D. has been a practicing psychologist in Livonia for over 13 years. She specializes in working with individuals in transition and children. She is divorced and has a son who is 20.

Marci Fishman, Ph.D., is also a psychologist. She works at the Northwestern Community Services where she deals with children and parents.

The cost of the workshop is $30 and includes Growing Through Divorce by Jim Smoke, notebook, refreshments and child care. Make child care arrangements two days prior to each workshop.

For scholarship details call Jim Russell or for more information, call the First Presbyterian Church of Northville at (248) 349-0911.

Novi hosts annual mom/son dance

Moms and their sons will be kicking up their heels for the Novi Parks and Recreation Department annual Mother/Son dance.

The theme this year is 50s Sock Hop.

On Friday, Oct. 2, attendees may see a little bubble gum blowing, hoola hoop and limbo, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m.

Ticket includes hot and cold hors d'oeuvres, picture of mom and son, and comfortable seating for everyone.

Tickets are $6 per person for residents and $7.20 for non-residents. Tickets are limited to 275 people.

The Mother/Son 50s Sock Hop will be held at the Novi Civic Center, 45175 West Ten Mile Road in Novi.

For more information, call (248) 347-0400.

On Campus

JESSICA A. SCHEIDT, a junior at Kalamazoo College, is participating in the study abroad program by spending the fall and winter quarters in Beijing, China.

She will have the opportunity to understand how people in other cultures live out their everyday lives at work, in their communities, and at home.

Scheidt is the daughter of Linda Lee and Steven Jerry Scheidt of Northville.

Jessica graduated from Northville High School.

'What Dreams May Come'

Striking effects, outstanding cast makes this poignant film a fascinating ride into the far reaches of heaven

Chris (Robin Williams) and Annie Nielsen (Annabella Sciorra) take a walk through paradise together in "What Dreams May Come."

"To sleep: perchance to dream...For in that sleep of death what dreams may come...Must give us pause."

-William Shakespeare, Hamlet, Act III, Scene I

For those who believe in eternal love, no explanation is necessary; for those who do not, no explanation is possible.

For Chris Nielsen (Robin Williams), his love for his wife Annie (Annabella Sciorra) defines the core of his being and completes his very soul. When they met, they were conjoined as soul mates in a divine love to exist no longer as two, but as one.

If Destiny decrees that Chris must journey through Paradise and the very depths of the Underworld to find her, then he will...and he does!

A love so powerful it defies the bounds of heaven and earth leads Robin Williams on a remarkable, visually dazzling adventure unlike any ever seen before on film in "What Dreams May Come."

The exuberant Robin Williams heads an outstanding cast that also includes Cuba Gooding, Jr., Annabella Sciorra and Max Von Sydow in this epic romantic drama. Directed by Vincent Ward, the film was written by Academy Award winner Ron Bass ("Rainman") from the novel by fantasist Richard Matheson ("Somewhere In Time," "The Incredible Shrinking Man").

"What Dreams May Come" is a tale of one man's journey to the ends of a the afterworld to save his beloved wife, who, he is told, can never join him in his side of Paradise. He embarks on an epic odyssey to unite her with him once again for eternity.

The inspired collaboration of a visionary director, an acclaimed novelist, a distinguished screenwriter and an award winning cast gave birth to the courageous exploration of worlds heretofore only imagined. It is a singular, stunning and ambitious depiction of the afterlife, combining elements of fantasy, drama and spectacle.

"The idea that soul mates exist and that love goes on after death is a powerful, compelling, wonderful idea," states Executive Producer Scott Kroopf. "To make a move about the things that everyone is most afraid of...and to make you think about those possibilities is the power of film."

The history of bringing the mystery and adventure of "What Dreams May Come" to the big screen began in 1978 when producer Stephen Simon (then Stephen Deutsch) received a gift that would take him two decades to unwrap.

While Simon was in pre-production on the theatrical adaption of another Matheson work, "Somewhere In Time," the author handed him the galleys of a now work in progress, "What Dreams May Come," a book Matheson had written for his wife. Simon snapped up the rights.

For 16 years Simon tried many times to get the project made, until 1994 when he met writer-producer Barnet Bain at a conference on metaphysics and the two discovered a mutual interest in stories about the afterlife.

Two years later they formed Metafilmics, a production company focused on exploring the metaphysical realm through film.

Robin William ability to capture audiences with his child-like wonderment and empathy made him the perfect choice to play the lead of Chris.

"I knew I had to do this role the first time I read the script," said Williams. "Because my wife is an artist, the story had a very strong connection for us."

As Williams' Chris ascends into his celestial world, Executive Producer Erica Huggins explains the critical devotion of afterlife guide Albers, played by Academy Award winner Cuba Gooding, Jr. "He is, as Vincent used to say, 'The Amateur's Guide to Heaven.' In life, he was Chris' mentor. In Heaven, he is friend and escort."

Gooding's flamboyant and adventurous Albert was offset by Max Von Sydow's coolly composed Tracker. William likens his co-star to "granite. Max gives you this great power, but very simple, which is wonderful."

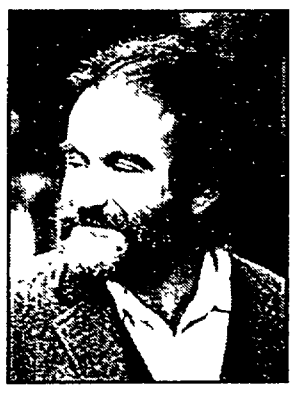
Sciorra, who plays Chris' wife Annie, sees her character as somewhat of a lost soul until she meets Chris.

"When they have children, that really fulfills her," she notes. "The connecting tissue to her life is her children and her husband. As they get taken away from her one by one, she falls into a very emotionally and physically lost area. She doesn't really accept the natural course of things."

"The technical effects are one thing," comments Williams, "but this movie works because of the kind of humanity that permeates from the children, the Tracker, the Guide, the world. It works on the human connection of the things that people say: 'That's my life' or 'I miss that love.' That's where it works."

Williams has audiences laughing and crying for well over a decade

Robin Williams, who is one of the most gifted and beloved actors of our time, received the 1997 Academy Award for Best Supporting Actor for his outstanding performance as Dr. Sean McGuire in "Good Will Hunting;" a role for which he also received the Screen Actors Guild "Actor" Award.



Robin Williams

He earned his first Oscar nomination for Barry Levinson's "Good Morning Vietnam," his second nomination for Peter Weir's "Dead Poet's Society" and his third Academy Award nomination for Terry Gilliam's "The Fisher King."

Among his other accomplishments, Williams was honored with a Golden Globe Award for his unforgettable performance in "Mrs. Doubtfire," four Grammy Awards, and two Emmy Awards for the television specials "Carl, Carol, Whoppi and Robin" and "ABC Presents a Royal Gala."

He also garnered a Special Achievement Award from the Hollywood Foreign Press Association for his vocal contributions a s "Genie" in Walt Disney Pictures' now-classic animated blockbuster "Aladdin," a special honor from the National Board of Review for his role opposite Robert De Niro in Penny Marshall's "Awakenings," and was crowned E! Entertainment Television's 1996 "Celebrity of the Year"

Williams first captured the attention of television audiences when he landed a guest-starring role on the hit situation comedy television series "Happy Days" as "Mork," the manic, hilarious extraterrestrial. His rapid fire, sharp wit brought him instant stardom, with viewer response so great that he was quickly signed for the now legendary spin-off series, "Mork and Mindy."

In 1980, Williams made the leap to feature film, debuting in Robert Altman's "Popeye." He then went onto portray T.S. Garp in George Roy Hill's "The World According to Garp" which was followed by Paul Mazursky's "Moscow on the Hudson."

He also starred in such films as "Flubber," Barry Levinson's "Toys," Steven Spielberg's "Hook," Mike Nichols' "The Birdcage," Kenneth Branagh's "Hamlet" and Woody Allen's "Deconstructing Harry."

Born in Chicago in 1951, his family later moved to Marin County in Northern California. By the time he graduated high school, Williams was already known for his innate comedic talents and was voted "Most Humorous" and "Most Likely To Succeed" by his senior classmates.

After a short stint studying political science at Claremont Men's College in Southern California, he entered the College of Marin to study theater.

His natural theatrical abilities led to his acceptance at The Juilliard School in New York where he spent three years under the tutelage of acclaimed actor John Houseman and other noted professionals. In 1988, he co-starred with Steve Martin and Mike Nichols' off-Broadway production of Samuel Beckett's "Waiting for Godot."

Williams is active in several humanitarian organizations and has been a primary force in "Comic Relief" an annual benefit to aid the homeless which has raised America's consciousness and $38 million to date.

Northville defenders, like number 12 Eric Cooley, limited the Chargers to just 113 yards of total offense in Friday night's homecoming shutout.

Welcome home

Defense, ball control leads Northville to win

By JASON SCHMITT
Sports Editor

It seemed the only thing that could stop the Mustang football team Friday night was its own crowd. A delay of game penalty caused by loud music and lights from the senior float cost Northville five yards, but in no way changed the reflection of the game.

The defense was invincible and the offense shined when it needed to in a 21-0 homecoming romp Friday night.

"I thought we had their backs to the wall," Northville coach Darrel Schumacher said. "Our defensive line stepped it up for us when Steve Jameson went down. I thought Ryan Giles did an excellent job, especially being double and triple teamed. (Ryan) McCracken was the unsung hero for us."

Northville scored all of its points in the first half, the last seven coming on an impressive last minute drive.

After taking over the ball on downs at their own 30 yard line, the Mustangs had 1:11 to move the ball down the field.

Quarterback Rob Reel found Ben Keetle on a pair of passes to move the ball out to midfield. On the next play, Reel hit Justin Dilley for 16 yards to put the ball on the Churchill 36. After three-straight incompletions, Reel rolled out of the pocket and found Keetle in the back of the end zone for the touchdown. The drive took just 52 seconds and gave Northville a 21-0 lead.

"We felt that if we could get the little completions, five or six yards, we could control the ball and the clock," Schumacher said. "Justin had a big catch for us and Keetle made a great grab in the end zone."

Reel was 14 of 24 for 147 yards and two touchdowns to Keetle. But the big story of the game was the play of the defense.

Northville held the Chargers on three fourth-down plays and forced them to punt once in a dominating first-half performance. Churchill couldn't get anything going in the second half either. It had just three possessions and turned the ball over on downs two more times. Northville allowed just 113 total yards of offense to the Chargers.

We didn't want them to come in and get any momentum going," the coach said. "We felt we needed to dominate them."

Tailback Dan Scappaticci carried much of the load on offense. The junior rushed the ball 27 times for 85 yards and scored the game's first touchdown with 3:17 left in the first quarter. He had eight carries for 27 yards in the drive.

"We feel he's going to be a good back. He's has a work ethic that is unbelievable and he works to get better," Schumacher said. "He put that together with our offensive line Friday. We wanted to show them that we can shove the ball down their throat. We felt we were a bigger, more physical team than them."

Northville's other touchdown came with 3:43 left in the second quarter. Reel found Keetle on a slant pattern to give the Stangs a 14-0 lead.

"I felt that Rob Reel played an excellent game. He was able to find many different receivers," the coach said.

Dan Rohrhoff caught four passes for 31 yards and kicked the three extra points. Brandon Jones had three receptions for 37 yards.

Defensively Jonah Sabin had eight first hits and five assisted tackles. Nick Spasovski had six solos and four assists, two for losses. Giles had two first hits, eight assisted tackles and a sack.

The win moves Northville to 1-1 in the Western Lakes and 2-2 overall. The Mustangs play Canton on the road tomorrow.

"They have a new coach and a new program over there," Schumacher said. "They are still trying to get their feet on the ground. But they do have two running backs that we're going to have to control."

Swimmers handle Churchill, look to Canton

By JASON SCHMITT
Sports Editor

With all of the homecoming festivities taking place last week, the Northville swim team found it less hectic to swim just one meet.

And the scheduling paid off as the Mustangs defeated Churchill 107-79 in a meet closer than the score would indicate.

"None of the races were blowouts," coach Bill Dicks said. "Every race was close and we swam pretty well."

Northville had 36 personal-best times in the meet and took home nine first-place finishes at the dual meet.

Leah Voytal, Deirdre Schwiring, Jessica Hrivnak and Stephanie Sabo teamed up to win the medley relay with teammates Heather Rudy, Nicole Sprader, Laura Sheppard and Allison Greenlee taking third.

Sabo, Hrivnak, Schwiring and Ohlgren won the 200 freestyle relay.

Sabo also took first in the 50 and 100 freestyles. Kathryn Ohlgren was third in the 50 and Voytal and Greenlee were third and fourth in the 100.

"All the dual meets really are are practices for the bigger meets. Our goal is to swim our best times at the conference meet or to taper well and swim fast times at the state meet."

Bill Dicks

Schwiring was also a four-time winner after winning the 100 breaststroke and 200 IM. Voytal was third in the IM.

Jackie Sallotte and Rudy finished first and third in the 100 backstroke and Hrivnak and Lara Lea Roney were 1-2 in the 100 butterfly.

Also winning for Northville was the 400 free relay team of Greenlee, Voytal, Monica Black and Ohlgren. Becky Tracz, Lauren Phillips, Michelle Longeway and Stefanie Nurmi took third in the event.

The Mustangs grabbed second and third in the 500 freestyle with Black and Ali Stewart swimming personal-bests. Black also had a personal best in her second-place finish in the 200 freestyle.

Tracey Crawford was third in the diving competition.

"All the dual meets really are are practices for the bigger meets," Dicks said. "Our goal is to swim our best times at the conference meet or to taper well and swim fast times at the state meet."

Northville takes on Canton tonight (Thursday) and are off until it faces North Farmington in a meet that was postponed earlier this season.

Chase, Lindholm bring home title

By JASON SCHMITT

Facing as tough of competition as it did at the state meet last year, the Northville tennis team held its own at the Holly Invitational with a runnerup finish Saturday afternoon.

The Mustangs tallied 15 points, tying them with Ann Arbor Huron and Portage Northern for runnerup honors. Port Huron Northern won the invite with 19 points. Traverse City Central was fifth with 14 points and Rochester Adams (8), Holly (8) and St. Clair (2) rounded out the eight-team field.

Christina Chase and Nicole Lindholm won the lone championship for Northville, which brought home five medals. The third-doubles team beat Traverse City's Lauren Weber and Laura Nichols 6-3, 6-2 in the championship. Earlier in the day the duo beat St. Clair 6-1, 6-2 and Port Huron Northern 2-6, 6-3, 7-6 (3).

The fourth doubles tandem of Joanna Lee and Lauren Farris won its first two matches before falling to Port Huron Northern's Kristy Constantine and Stephanie Bleasdale 7-5, 6-7 (4), 4-6. They beat Holly 6-2, 6-2 and Ann Arbor Huron 6-4, 4-6, 7-6 (4) to get to the finals.

Freshman Marta Walasek had the toughest draw of the day at fourth singles. She defeated Port Huron Northern 6-1, 7-5, but fell to Portage Northern 2-6, 3-6 in her second match. She came back to finish third by crushing Ann Arbor's Julia Carolan 6-2, 6-0.

At second singles Jessie Mills finished fourth after taking her first-round Holly opponent out 4-6, 6-2, 6-1. She then fell to Port Huron Northern 6-7 (4), 2-6 and Portage Northern's Malena Remynse 1-6, 0-6.

Kara Anderson and Julie Glock won their first match as well. They defeated Rochester Adams 6-2, 6-3. Traverse City topped the pair 6-4, 4-6, 6-1 before Laura Mattzk and Elaina Blackmon beat them in their third match.

Kerry Woolfall and Lauren West won two matches each at first and third singles. Woolfall lost to Ann Arbor Huron 2-6, 1-6 to open the day, but came back to beat Holly 7-6 (2) , 6-3 and St. Clair's Lindsey Moore 6-0, 6-2.

West fell to Portage Northern 1-6, 4-6 before bouncing back with wins over St. Clair 6-0, 6-1 and Traverse City's Melissa Spencer 6-0, 6-1.

At second doubles Kristin Potchynok and Angela Trapnell fared the same. The team defeated Erin Kummer and Jenny Swindlehurst of Adams 6-3, 6-1 after beating Portage Northern 6-2, 7-5 and losing to Traverse City 3-6, 6-4, 6-1.

"Just like the Rochester Tourney, it was much tougher than last year," coach Uta Filkin said. "That's why we schedule tournaments like these."

Earlier last week the team picked up two more easy conference wins. They beat Farmington 8-0 with everyone picking up easy wins.

Winners were; Woolfall 6-0, 6-0, Mills 6-2, 6-2, West 6-2, 6-2, Walasek 6-0, 6-1, Glock and Anderson 6-4, 6-2, Potchynok

Chargers edge out Mustangs in WLAA matchup

In what proved to be the deciding match for the Western Division title, the Northville golf team fell to Livonia Churchill 200-203 last Friday at Fox Creek in Livonia.

Tom Borda collected team medalist honors after shooting a 38. Justin Temple broke 40 with a 39 and Dean Conway had a 40. Brian Arndt fired a 42 and Marc Olin rounded out the scoring with a 44. Churchill's golfers shot a 37, 38, 40, 40 and 44 in the win.

"They used their home course advantage," Northville coach Brad Stedry said. "With this win they have clinched the division because of the tie breaker."

Churchill concluded its division season at 4-1. Northville was 3-1 heading into Tuesday's match with Walled Lake Western (after The Northville Records' deadline).

"If we play good at the conference meet, we still have a chance (at a conference title)," Stedry said. "We've got three more matches that are going to be very important to how we finish in the conference."

N'VILLE 229, FARMINGTON 229

The Mustangs needed their sixth man to come through, and he did, in a narrow win over the Falcons Sept. 24 at Tanglewood.

Greg Rankin and Arndt each shot a 47, two better than Farmington's sixth man, to lead his team to the win. Borda again led the team with a 44 and Adam Webb, Mike Heyer and Temple each shot a 46.

"I can definitely tell a difference of where we play, especially at home," Stedry said. "Everyone who comes in tends to shoot higher at our course."

JOHN GLENN 195, N'VILLE 211

The Rockets received a 36 and 37 from their top two golfers while the Mustangs didn't have anyone break 40 in this non-conference loss.

Borda led the team with a 40. Olin shot a 41, Kris Betker a 42, Rankin a 43 and Arndt a 45 for Northville.

"It was just one of those days where everybody has a rough day at the same time," the coach said.

Northville concludes its regular season tomorrow against North Farmington at Tanglewood. The conference meet will be Tuesday at Hudson Mills.

Cagers hit shots when they counted

Northville was limited to just 21 percent shooting from the field, but it was enough to beat Walled Lake Central in a Western Lakes Activities Association contest last Thursday.

The Mustangs also shot poorly from the line (44 percent), but still came away with a 29-23 win.

"We had tons of good looks at the basket, but we just couldn't make our shots," coach Pete Wright said "We smothered them pretty good and we were able to hold them defensively."

Central actually jumped out to an 11-4 lead after one quarter and led 15-8 at halftime.

But Northville went on a 20-4 run in the first 14:30 of the second half to take control of the game. The Mustangs front-line of Mary Tanski and Meredith and Janel Hasse were able to control the Vikings' two big guns, Leah Douglas and Michelle Bortz.

Meredith Hasse and Tanski were able to limit Bortz to just six points and Janel Hasse held Douglas to just eight. The two were averaging a combined 35 points per game coming into the game.

"They tried to clear out the whole side of the floor for Bortz and Douglas, but we were able to make some adjustments," Wright said.

Despite the poor shooting, Northville hit 7 of 12 free throws in the fourth quarter.

"It's nice to win a game like this, where both teams are struggling to score and playing good defense," the coach said. "It's a different way to win."

Janel Hasse and Emily Carbott, who the coach praised for her ball handling, each scored seven points to lead the 'Stangs. Hasse also had 10 rebounds, five steals and four blocked shots. Sara Cox had five points and pulled down seven boards

Girls finish fifth

By JASON SCHMITT

Tremendous team depth helped the girls' cross country team to a fifth-place finish at the Shamrock Invitational Saturday morning.

The Mustangs finished with 112 points, falling just short of Edsel Ford (111) and Fordson (109). Grosse Pointe South won the invite and Stevenson was runnerup.

Despite coming off of an injury, sophomore Alyson Flohr led Northville with her 9th-place finish (20 minutes, 56 seconds.) Christin Kolarchick was 17th overall (21:39) to finish second on the team.

"Alyson still isn't 100 percent, but it was good to see her up near the front pack," coach Chris Cronin said. "Christin is right on schedule for her 'big' race in the next few weeks. She is in great shape, no injuries and her confidence grows daily."

Amanda Sprader (23rd in 22:05), Karen Loeffler (29th in 22:20) and Hillary McCrumb (34th in 22:36) rounded out the scoring for Northville.

"The difference between third and fifth was a matter of seconds and realizing that now will only help us in the future," Cronin said.

Lorianne Blair was sixth for Northville with her 37th-place finish (22:40).

"Today we ran hard and as a coach that's all you can ask. I think our conditioning showed up in the last 1.1 miles," the coach said.

Harriers bring home two Shamrock medals

By JASON SCHMITT

Northville grabbed two medals at last Saturday's Shamrock Invitational at Catholic Central High School.

Kevin Arbuckle led the cross country team with a 16th place finish overall. The senior had a team-best time of 17 minutes, 52 seconds.

Sophomore Brian Bilyk was the other medalist for the Mustangs. He finished 33rd overall in a time of 18:23.

The next three Northville runners came in just 12 seconds apart. Brian Wilson finished in a time of 19:38, good for 75th overall. Phil Santer was 77th (19:43) and Jim Morrison 80th (19:50) to round out the top five.

Ben Flood was right behind Morrison, 81st overall, in a time of 19:54.

"It was a real tough field," coach Ed Gabrys said. "We're looking at the long view of it. We're confident we can get our times down by the end of the season."

For now Gabrys said he'd like to get his third man under the 18-minute mark and all of his top five in the 18s.

"If we can get that to happen, we're looking at a successful season," he said.

Gabrys said today's meet against divisional foe Canton is a must-win situation for the 'Stangs. Northville is 1-0 in the division.

"We just have to run our own race and not panic," he said. "If we can do that things will take care of themselves at the finish line."

League Line

Editor's note: All coaches should report scores to their league commissioners no later than Sunday of each week. Only those scores reported to the commissioners on time can be printed in The Northville Record the following Thursday.

U-9 GIRLS

The Lightning fell to Livonia #1 3-2. Robyn Baldas and Gracey Booth each scored a goal and O'Malley King and Caitlin Robertson were named MVPs of the game.

Anne Tasse turned in a hat trick and Booth added another goal as the Lightning picked up a 4-0 win over the United. Baldas and Rachel Ronk were the MVPs.

Natalie Mozier scored twice and Sarah Rush once to lead the Hot Spurs to a 3-1 win over Livonia #1. Lisa Kozub and Kristin Hnatio were the MVPs.

The Cosmos beat Livonia #2 2-0 on goals by Hannah Gill and Kristin Nuyen. Gill was the offensive MVP and Sarah Stern's defense earned her defensive MVP honors.

Allyson Varley's goal was not enough for the Cosmos in a 2-1 loss to Farmington #2. Varley and Nuyen were the MVPs.

U-10 GIRLS

Alex Posa scored a pair of goals to lead the Rockers over Plymouth #6. She was the offensive MVP and Kate Bezak was the defensive MVP. The Rockers crushed Plymouth #9 6-0. Posa had three goals and Chelsea Janer scored two of her own. Lauren Switalski scored the other goal. Janer and Courtney Williams were the games' MVPs.

In the Lightning's 7-1 win over Farmington #2, Kirstyn Wildey had a hat trick and Jessica Boerger and Melissa Chase each had two goals. Wildey and Laura Moehle were the MVPs. Wildey scored the team's only goals in a 2-2 tie with South Lyon. She and Moehle were the MVPs.

The Storm were shutout 4-0 by Plymouth #4 despite the strong play of MVPs Julie Fouchere and Jackie Kelly. The next time out the result was quite different. Meredith Ponder had a hat trick, Fouchere scored twice and Kelly added another in a 6-0 shutout against Plymouth #1. Ponder was the offensive MVP and Stephanie Kozak received defensive honors.

U-12 GIRLS

The Lightning shut out the Rockers 5-0 last week. Erin Gruley had a hat trick and Kim Bagian and Caitlin Wixted each added a goal for the Lightning. Mackenzie Fankell was the offensive MVP and Jennifer Harkness was the most valuable defensive player. The Lightning annihilated Plymouth earlier this season 11-0. Seven players tallied goals in this contest. Bagian, Becca McNellance and Jane Kruszewski all had two goals and Shannon Farris, Wixted, Brooke Ziomek, Becky Kempa and Allie Spencer each had one. Kempa and Katie Rashid were the games' MVPs.

The Hot Spurs defeated Novi 2-1 behind goals by Alicia Criswell and Heather Cox. Picking up an assist was Jenny Donahue. The team tied Novi's #4 team 2-2. Criswell scored both of the team's goals.

Five players scored for the Arsenal in the team's 7-0 shutout of Plymouth #3. Jackie Demmer and Jessica Swancutt each had two goals and Kate O'Donnell, Margaret Byal and Keli Bowen each added one. Swancutt and Demmer shared offensive MVP honors and Byal was the defensive star.

The United picked up a 4-2 win over Plymouth #3. Jesica Reuter scored a pair of goals and Stephanie Flager and Lauren Holden each had one.

U-14 GIRLS

The Arsenal suffered a 7-0 shutout at the hands of Farmington #2. Katie Hietala and Katie McBride were the Arsenal's MVPs.

Plymouth #1 handed the Lightning its second-straight loss 5-1. Emily Dixon picked up the lone goal for the Lightning.

Katie Beger had the game-winner in the Express' 1-0 shutout of Farmington #1. Andrea Watts, Danielle Rabahy and Molly McClymont were named MVPs.

The Express outlasted Plymouth #2 9-6 on the strength of two players. Beger had five goals and Watts had the other four in the season-opening win. McClymont was the MVP.

Courtney Bzymek scored the lone goal in the United's 1-0 win over Livonia #1. Susan Slepetski and Stacey Taylor were the MVPs.

Susan Slepetski scored a pair of goals and Carmen Gillespie and Kelsey Gunn-Boyar both added one in the United's 4-1 win over Plymouth #2. Julie Melonio and Whitney Forsthoeful were the MVPs.

Novi beat the Arsenal 3-0 in the first game of the year. Erin Wilkinson and Heather Moehle were the games' MVPs.

Livonia #2 shutout the Lightning 2-0 in the Lightning's first game of the year. Mary Schubert and Emily Dixon were the team's MVPs.

U-16 GIRLS

Six different Lightning players scored goals in the team's 8-1 win over the Redford United. Katie Jones and Maria LaBeau had two goals each and Rebecca Eley, Jennifer Tucker, Andrea Peacock and Calynn Berry each added one. Peacock and Jessie Manniston were the games' MVPs.

In their next game out, the Lightning had a bit more trouble in a 6-3 loss to the Westland Sidekicks. Michelle Garcia had a pair of goals and Jones added one for the team. Suzie Taepke and Sarah Hesse were the games' MVPs.

The United fell to the Farmington Flames 2-0 despite the MVP efforts of Anna Watkins and Kristine Kalso.

and Trapnell 6-0, 6-0, Chase and Lindholm 6-0, 6-1, and Farris and Lee 6-0, 6-1.

The same could be said in an 8-0 win over John Glenn. All of the singles players picked up straight-set wins. Chase and Lindholm won 6-0, 6-2 at first doubles. Lee and Farris had an identical win at two. Gina Halicki and Sarah Poirer won 6-1, 6-0 at third dubs and Rachel Huang and Rebecca Hullman picked up a 6-1, 6-0 win as well.

The team played Churchill Monday and Western yesterday (both after The Northville Records' deadline) and wrap up the regular season at Stevenson Monday.

McDONALD FORD SALUTES NORTHVILLE ATHLETES OF THE WEEK

Jonah Sabin - Senior

The senior linebacker had eight solo tackles and five assists in Northville's 21-0 shutout of Churchill Friday night.
Sabin and his defensive mates held the Chargers to just 113 total yards of offense in the homecoming victory.

Christina Chase - Senior
Nicole Lindholm - Junior

The third doubles team took home the championship at the Holly Invitational this past week. The pair beat Traverse City Central in the championship 6-3, 6-2. Chase and Lindholm picked up tow conference wins last week as well and are undefeated in conference play.

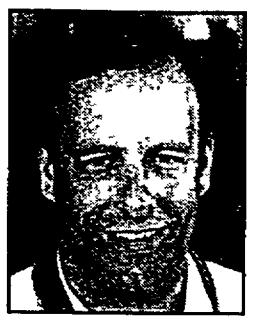
Fall and winter months can cause depression and anxiety to rise



Chris Klebba

Each day is growing a little shorter and unfortunately what daylight we do have will soon become grayer and grayer. The exaggerated Michigan fall and winter months typically bring with them the urge to become a little less active. The late evening walks, bike rides, or just being outside with the kids quickly fade away. With all these changes, the symptoms of depression and anxiety can elevate. More than one out of ten adults suffer from a depressive disorder in any given year; between 13 and 17 percent suffer from an anxiety disorder. Mental disorders cost $148 billion per year (National Advisory Mental Health Council 1993).

Henri Woodworth, an M.D. with a private practice in Northville and the assistant medical director at Havenwick Hospital states, "This time of year definitely increases the symptoms of depression and anxiety. SADS, or Seasonal Affective Disorder Syndrome, is real. Lack of sun and activity can affect people. About 50 percent of people with depression have a seasonal component involved with their condition. Exercise is a cornerstone of recovery from all degrees of depression." The percentage of people without symptoms of depression ranges from 66 percent of people with low activity levels to 89 percent in highly active people. (Medicine and Science in Sports and Exercise, February 1996.)

In a study of 10,201 Harvard alumni, the risk of depression was 27 percent lower for men who played three or more hours of sports each week than for men who played none. Dr. Woodworth agrees, "The key components of depression ... loss of energy, sleep disturbance, loss of feeling of pleasure, nervous eating, feeling of helplessness, can all be positively affected by exercise. Exercise increases energy and helps you sleep since you gain some level of physical exhaustion other than just mental fatigue. Exercise releases endomorphines which increase your feeling of pleasure. It naturally acts as an appetite control and can help you feel empowered and in control. Dr. Woodworth goes on to say, "Find an activity you enjoy and if you can, use a trainer to overcome the urge to give up and keep you focused."

Make exercise a regular part of your life and get a head start on feeling happy, energetic and healthy this gray sky season. Good luck.

HOW TO

Carpet selection requires wall-to-wall wisdom

By Gene Gary
Copley News Service

Q. We need new carpet for our home. Of course, we want to get the maximum return for our money. Literature on purchasing quality carpet is scarce. I have looked and found none. How do we compare carpets and what constitutes quality?

A. There's no denying that the range of colors and textures, as well as the different kinds of fibers and their various promises, can be overwhelming when shopping for carpeting.

An important factor before you even start looking at different carpet selections is a full analysis of your particular needs. Start by drawing up a list of conditions in which the carpet will be used. You can legitimately save money by installing cheaper carpet in rooms that don't get much traffic - like a guest bedroom, for example. But when it comes to the busier areas of the home - living room, halls, stairways, etc. - you will need carpet that will perform and stand up to the traffic it gets.

Every situation involves a set of variables that include the function of the room, personal preference and lifestyle. Although there are thousands of brands, only five different types of fibers are commonly used: wool and four man-made fibers - nylon, polyester, acrylic and propylene.

Unfortunately, the promotional names many companies use in their marketing efforts can confuse the basic buying choices. All man-made fibers have certain characteristics in common. They clean well, are mildew-resistant, mothproof and non-allergenic. At the same time, each fiber has specific characteristics which can affect its level of performance, in addition to manufacturing variables in type of construction, texture, backing, pile thickness, weight and density.

Wool, a natural fiber, is well-known for its excellent qualities - resistance to soiling, durability, good cleanability, cushiony with excellent resilience. It should have an anti-moth treatment and should not be used in an area where dampness can be excessive. The major drawback to wool carpeting is its expense when compared to the man-made products.

Nylon is considered the strongest of the synthetic fibers and is by far the most popular choice in today's market. However, the quality and durability of nylon carpets can vary greatly depending on pile constructions, backing and padding.

There are three basic types of pile construction: cut pile, loop pile or cut-and-loop pile.

Cut-pile carpeting is created when the top is cut off a loop stitch leaving two individual yarns. If these yarns are twisted slightly and blend together to form a smooth surface, the carpet is referred to as a plush or velvet. These carpets are luxurious and perform best in low-traffic areas. Adding a tighter twist to the yarns gives the surface a pin-point definition, to create saxony carpets, which are suitable for most applications. If the yarns are tightly twisted and create a nubby, low pile surface, the carpet is called a frieze (free-zay). These are very durable and perform well in high-traffic areas.

Loop pile produces a woven or tufted carpet texture where the surface consists of uncut pile loops. The carpet face may be level - often referred to as industrial - or multi-level, having two or three different loop heights. Often, a multi-level loop pile forms a pattern that is called sculptured or carved. Random-sheared carpet has the tops of the highest loops sheared off. Loop-pile carpets, which include the popular berber carpets, are very durable.

Cut-and-loop pile carpets are a combination of cut and looped yarns. This creates a variety of surface textures that are slightly more durable than the saxony and plush carpets, and slightly less durable than the multi-level loop carpets.

Regardless of the category, the quality in any of these different pile treatments can vary greatly. For instance, in saxony carpets, the fibers are crimped. They can be low-crimp fibers twisted snugly and firmly together in a twisted yarn or they can have high-crimp fibers which capture air between the crimps, creating a bulkier yarn with the same amount of fiber. The drawback to the "poofier" looking carpet is that the captured air actually weakens the fiber's ability to stand up under pressure.

To assure that you get the best quality for your money, it's best to go to a reputable dealer who is willing to discuss carpet fibers and the characteristics. Better yet, check two or three different outlets. Check each store you are considering dealing with to be sure that there are recognizable brand names on the backs of the carpet samples. Since carpeting represents a sizable investment, it is important to buy the best quality you can afford.

Density of pile is one test of quality. Check pile density by bending back a corner of the carpet sample to see how much of the backing shows through. The more backing you see, the less fiber there is to walk on and the less durable the carpet will be.

It's important to clean your carpet regularly and tend to any spots immediately. However, not all carpets are cleaned the same way.

A palette of Light

The artistry of Northville resident George Jewell brings a lively interaction between glass and light

By ANNETTE JAWORSKI
Special Writer

About 10 o'clock in the morning sunlight streams through the dining room windows in Rita and John Cunningham's Northville home. The rays of light scatter through the beveled glass window forming rainbows. Their two year old granddaughter enjoys the play of lights, trying to grasp them as they dance on the dining room floor.

Northville resident and glass cutter George Jewell created the impressive piece for the Cunningham's dining room. The result is a traditional look embellished with groups of Victorian clusters. This elegant treatment lets the outdoors in to their home, yet gives enough privacy so that window treatments aren't needed. In fact, the beveled glass can be made in varying degrees of coverage, depending on the privacy needed.

Most importantly, it lets in the sunshine and a view of the trees overlooking their Northville home.

"It's a great setting with the trees, it almost looks like stained glass ... It depends on where you put it. I've done some great stuff and without the light it just dies," Jewell said.

Jewell's talent lies not only in cutting the glass, but how to capture the beauty of light to make the glass come alive.

Quality glass adds to the beauty of the piece. The Cunningham's chose a high quality German antiqued glass. Faceted jewels give a shimmery look to the window.

Although he's reserved the title of artist for the masters in the very strictest sense, the glass cutter has created a few masterpieces of his own, including the Cunningham's dining room window.

Jewell began cutting glass after retiring from Di-Coat where he used to work with diamond wheels for grinding. And though his work is in great demand, not only by friends and neighbors, he wants to keep this pastime a hobby, preferring to concentrate on quality not quantity.

John and Rita Cunningham can't get enough of his glass in the new home they built a year ago.

"I just wanted something different, and I didn't want drapes. Then I saw something George did and bingo," said Rita Cunningham.

They started with a transom over the front door, a window off the dining room and even one in the laundry room. He's currently cutting glass to fit in the upstairs bathroom.

The laundry room piece is also beveled glass in Victorian clusters, specifically designed to shine light on the deck in the evenings.

Most of his pieces work like an insert fitting over an existing piece of glass or can be insulated between two panes of glass.

Although the Cunningham's prefer a traditional look, there are others who opt for a clean, contemporary line. Jewell has done many Frank Lloyd Wright pieces with special handmade glass by the same company that made it in the late 1800's and early 1900's.

"It's all handmade. It's difficult to get. They don't make much of it. They use the original colors. They're very stark," he said.

The biggest challenge for Jewell is piecing together the glass once the design is cut.

"It's actually simple to cut the glass. It's the fitting the pieces together that's hard."

The best results come from a project where customer and designer work together, according to him.

"Getting the design together is the hardest part ... A lot of input has to come from the homeowner. But they have to give you some leeway. If it's halfway done and they look at it, it's too late to change. You have to be able to read people."

In the Cunningham's projects, as well as many others, the goals were to achieve an antique look.

"I try to get it to look old. I try to accomplish that it doesn't look brand new, it looks like it's been there."

About half of his work is stained glass. Here he's careful not to get flowery with the pattern. Jewell's work is familiar to those who dined at the former Rose Cottage Tea Room in Northville. Some of his glasswork can also be found in the Atrium Gallery in Northville as well as many states across the country and overseas.

Definitely computer literate, Jewell designs some of his projects by e-mail. He also catalogs his work with digital photography.

The Northville resident can be reached at (248) 349-3619.

Yearly inspections help spot home safety hazards

By James M. Woodard
Copley News Service

Your home could be a very dangerous place. Most accidents causing injury or death occur in the home. But there are steps you can take to minimize the likelihood of a serious accident happening in your home.

In recent years, there have been about 7 million injuries and 26,000 deaths in homes per year throughout the United States, according to the National Safety Council And it doesn't always involve kids. All age groups are represented in those figures, but youngsters and senior adults are most vulnerable.

Ideally, a homeowner should examine his home every year to spot potential problem areas and maximize safety for family members. Here are a few areas that should receive special attention, according to a report from Criterium Engineers, a national group of registered engineers and architects.

Look at your stairs and railings. All interior stairs should have a railing on at least one side. All exterior stairs, even those few steps going from one level of your lawn to another, should have a railing on at least one side.

Stairs wider than 36 inches should have railings on both sides. And those railing should be sound and securely mounted.

Most national building codes now require that a railing shall be constructed so that no space in the railing is larger than 4 inches. This is to prevent children from getting through the railing.

Take special note of all glass and windows. All glass that's close to the floor, or otherwise vulnerable to impact, should be rated as safety glass (look for a small, etched label, usually in the lower right hand corner). Check the sill height of your windows. If it's less than 18 inches above the floor, most national building codes require that the glass be safety glass. If it's less than two feet above the floor, it's relatively easy for a child to crawl up on the windowsill and fall out of the window.

As a fire precaution, the clearance between any wood or coal stove and adjacent combustible materials should be at least 36 inches. And there should be hard-wired smoke alarms in all sleeping areas and near any combustion equipment.

There should also be carbon monoxide detectors in sleeping areas And be sure to have a fire extinguisher in the kitchen area - also in the garage and workshop area.

Be sure all flammable materials are stored outside or in a well-ventilated area If you have gas appliances, have all the gas connections and fittings checked by a properly qualified technician. If you have a gas water heater in or near your garage, it should be at least 18 inches off the floor.

If you have a swimming pool, there should be a fence at least 42 inches high around the entire pool. Any gates through that fence should be equipped with childproof latches. Also, the pool should be equipped with an alarm to alert you if a child falls into the pool.

Your garage door opener should have both an automatic reverse and a photocell to detect people who might be in the door's way. If you have a laundry chute, be sure its access is controlled by a childproof latch.

There are many such ways you can make your home a safer place for family and friends. Make periodic "safety examinations," and use common sense to minimize risks.

Q. Would purchasing a well-located lot in a popular resort area be a good investment?

A That, of course, depends on price, terms and potential value increases. But some lots in these areas are indeed exceptionally good investments.

An example of how local resort property sales increase compared with other resort areas was noted in the Investment Monitor newsletter. A real estate professional who observes trends in sales of Colorado ski resort properties in Vail, Beaver Creek and Aspen made this observation: In 1996, lots of less than an acre in one area sold for $850,000 and sold a year later for $950,000. Now, speculators are selling similar lots for $1.1 million or more. He also reported that a condominium development still under construction sold all 110 of its 1,000-square-foot units in one weekend for $350 per square foot.

During the last year alone, the professional reported, the overall unit sales increases in Charleston, S.C., beach resorts jumped 23 percent, but the total value of those sales increased nearly 69 percent, he said.

YOUR REAL ESTATE EXPERIENCE KEEPS GETTING BETTER...
...AND SO DOES OURS.

Coldwell Banker Schweitzer Real Estate is pleased to announce that Debbie Emrich has joined our team of real estate professionals.

Debbie has worked in real estate for 4 years and has been a multimillion dollar producer in Dearborn Heights where she began her career. She has relocated to Salem Township, where she is now focusing her business on, for the same reasons many others are attracted to the area- fresh air, wide open spaces and an enjoyable rural lifestyle. In order to better serve her customers, Debbie has attended several real estate seminars and continues to educate herself on the technical advances in the real estate indusrty.

Debbie has been married for 16 years and has an 11 year-old daughter. She is a member of St. Joseph church, and also serves as Cheers Coordinator at the South Lyon Middle School. "Friends of Salem" also calls Debbie a member.

Walled Lake spot renovated as Lakeview Bar

By JASON SCHMITT
Staff Writer

Walled Lake is not the only picturesque view available to Novi residents on the north side these days. The Lakeview Bar and Grill recently opened and numerous renovations have the establishment looking brand new.

"We have remodeled both the inside and the outside," co-owner Jay Igol said. "There's a new bar and floor and we even renovated the bathrooms."

Formerly known by such names as the Sunset Bar and Grill and Helen's Hideaway, Igol said he and co-owner Boris Griesdorf hope to attract customers from the surrounding areas.

"Novi is growing, and the people are very nice around here," Igol said. "This is a popular location around the lake and the surrounding neighborhood is very nice."

Six televisions distributed around the room and a 10-foot projection screen makes the bar a great place to watch Sunday and Monday football games as well as other sporting events, Igol added.

Both owners said one of the biggest attractions to the restaurant is the food. Lakeview has a big menu, two cooks and specials every day of the week.

"We have great food at very reasonable prices," Igol said.

Every Friday the restaurant has a fish and chips dinner special all day long for $4.95. On Saturdays, customers can buy a one-pound choice New York Strip dinner for just $7.95.

There is also live entertainment every Saturday night free of charge. Comedian and singer Ron Coden performs all kinds of music each week.

Lakeview Bar and Grill opened in July and is open Monday through Sunday from 11 a.m. to 2 a.m. The restaurant is located at 43393 West Thirteen Mile Road at the corner of Thirteen and Old Novi Road.

For those coming from I-96, take Novi Road north until you reach Old Novi Road. Take a left and the restaurant is 1/2 mile on the right hand side of the road.

For more information about the Lakeview Bar and Grill please call (248) 624-2800.

Lakeview Bar and Grill owner Jay Igol and his crew Lynn Smith, Richard Wright, Dan Dreher and Debbie Chapman.

Business Briefs

Five local oral and maxillofacial surgeons, David A. Bloom, D.D.S. M.S., Edward M. Royal D.M.D., Mark A. Azzopardi D.D.S., Lawrence H. Lublin D.M.D., and Jack F. Moores D.D.S., formed the Tri-County Dental Implant Study Group over three years ago. The following local general dentists comprise the balance of the study group: Drs. Mark Angelocci, John Artemenko, Larry Ashman, Richard Bernstein, Howard Berris, James Bumford, Alan Cirilli, Dennis Cowles, Paul Darmon, James DeCapite, Jeffery Escote, Pat Genrich, Michael Girskis, Steven Gluck, Gary Golasa, Craig Goldin, Ronald Goodman, Steven Gustafson, Landi Heller, Jerrold Herman, Brian Jacobson, Leslie Lazarchuk, Paul Mansky, Thomas McLean, Jerry Mehler, Leslie Metzgar, Mary Parise, Diane Pitak, Donald Quinn, Stephen Riedy, Ken Roberts, David Salah, Paul Simon, Robert Skinner, Lawrence Spillane, Allen Tuchklaper, Stephen Vosko, Jeffery Weinfeld, Nancy Zellin and Angela Stevers, professional relations coordinator. The Tri-County Dental Implant Study Group meets monthly to learn about cutting edge developments in implant dentistry and new advances in implant technology. Dental implants are permanent tooth replacements that look and function like your original teeth. They allow you to eat and chew the foods you love.

On Aug. 14, the International Congress of Oral Implantologists recognized the Tri-County Dental Implant Study Group by presenting it with a "platinum status" certificate at the Implant Prosthodontic Symposium in Dearborn.

632 In Memoriam

FROM THE family of Charles M Garwood (Mike) who passed away on Aug 21, 1998 in Tacoma Wa Survivors are a son, Michael A Garwood, mother, Lita Joy Garwood 4 brothers, 1 sister, 4 nieces Remembering Mike with love High atop a mountain he stood, he looked around & it looked good I must see more of this great land, his travels lead him to a shore of sand. The breaking sea washed over his feet, but the beauty of this was not complete So he traveld by boat across the sea, could this be the light for me? Again the stirring, he could not rest, the mountains calling him out west From high atop his mountain crest, he knew this was his final quest For God called him to come on home, there was no time for him to roam. But we said "wait, do not go for all of us will miss you so" We think of you not gone away, for you've been given a greater place to stay And when we meet again someday, you'll be there to light our way

Then it s National SIDS Awareness Month There s perhaps nothing more terrifying to a parent than the thought of losing a child There are however, many new findings about lowering your risk of having a SIDS baby – we describe those in this issue

Finally it s also Breast Cancer Awareness Month a cruel and frightening disease that has taken the lives of far too many of our wonderful mothers sisters and aunts Again though, there are concrete ways to catch the disease and have nearly a 100 percent chance of survival The key, as you ll read is early detection, which means getting a mammogram

I hope you find this issue informative Please let us know what you d like to see covered in LifeLine

What's Fact and True-

One of the worst things about breast cancer is the mythology surrounding it. People believe it's the No. 1 killer in women (heart disease actually is more deadly, by a long shot). It's not even the most common cancer among women (lung cancer has that horrific honor).

October is National Breast Cancer Awareness Month, so in recognition of that, here are some facts about the disease:

- Some women feel breast cancer is at epidemic levels, particularly among younger women. The truth is, the number of women diagnosed with the disease increased in the 1980s because experts say, more women were screened [illegible] mammography machines were better at detecting the disease than in the past. Since the late 1980s, the percentage of new breast cancer cases has actually been stable.
- Women sometimes think if they don't have the risk factors of breast cancer, they don't need to bother with a mammogram. Simply put, the risk of disease increases with age and since every woman ages, every woman has the single most important risk factor. Other factors - such as a personal or family history of breast cancer, early menstruation, late menopause, recent use of oral contraceptives, never having children or having them after age 30 and later life weight gain - are good to recognize but are in most cases out of a person's control. Since you can't do much about many of those factors, it's best to protect yourself with mammography.

The best way to combat breast cancer is through early detection, which means mammography. Mammograms can detect cancer the size of a period point. When the disease is caught this soon, five year survival is 97 percent. As the tumor gets larger and spreads, survival decreases.

- Mammography, though reliable, still misses 20 percent of breast cancer. A new device just approved in June - will help radiologists detect more tumors on mammograms. The M1000 ImageChecker can help radiologists detect eight of every 20 cancers they would have otherwise overlooked.
- Women who have mammograms in their 40s have a much lower chance of dying from breast cancer than women who don't receive mammograms, studies show. The American Cancer Society recommends women age 20 and older perform a breast self-exam monthly. Women age 20-39 should have a physical exam of the breast every three years by a health care practitioner. Women age 40 and older should have a yearly physical exam. Women age 40 and older should have a mammogram every year. Check with your doctor when you should get a mammogram.

What the numbers say

According to the American Cancer Society:

- About 180,000 people (including 1,600 men) are diagnosed with breast cancer each year.
- Around 44,000 people, including 300 men, die from breast cancer annually.
- The five year survival rate for localized breast cancer is 97 percent - that's up from 72 percent in the 1940s.

'Chilihead' Horn casts a net over the cookoff

By Ralph R. Echtinaw
Staff Writer

Plymouth's leading chilihead, Annette Horn, is the proud organizer of two world-championship qualifying chili cookoffs in 1998.

The Native West shopkeeper, Plymouth chamber board member, Downtown Business Association board member and the chamber retail committee chairwoman recently completed the Michigan State Chili Championship cookoff at the Plymouth fall festival and now embarks on the third annual Plymouth Chili Cookoff Oct. 4.

"It's been chili central here," she said of her store recently as six phone calls came in an hour regarding the cookoff.

A competition chili cook since 1983 and Plymouth Chili Cookoff organizer since 1996, Horne received word from the International Chili Society that this October's chili cookoff will be a world championship qualifier.

Cooks from all over the Midwest are expected to compete. The winner receives a $850 cash

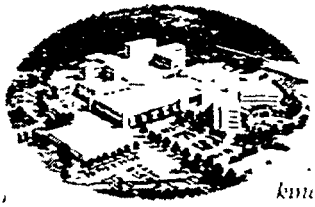
New Prompt Care Area

My Emergency. My Health. My Hospital.

"St. Mary Hospital's Emergency Center now provides the convenience of Prompt Care."



My daughter fell off the jungle gym a couple of weeks ago and broke her arm. I'm so glad we chose St. Mary Hospital's Emergency Center, where she was treated in the new Prompt Care area. We didn't know it, but Carly also hit her head. The doctors — board certified in emergency medicine — were able to detect her minor concussion in time to prevent further damage.

St. Mary Hospital's Emergency Center has dedicated x-ray equipment and a casting room where Carly's arm was taken care of quickly. While waiting, we appreciated the private Prompt Care area which shielded us from other people's emergencies. And the staff was professional, kind and compassionate.

It was also comforting to know that if Carly's injury was more serious, or she needed to be admitted, we were already at our hospital of choice. Close to home.

Convenience in an emergency. That's why St. Mary Hospital is our hospital.

St. Mary Hospital's Emergency Center is open 24 hours a day, 365 days a year. Prompt Care hours are 1 p.m. to 11 p.m. every day.

COL. JIM'S BUTT SMOKIN' CHILI

By James G. Sholar of Canton Township

3 pounds beef chuck cut into 1/2-inch cubes
1 pound chorizo sausage with skin removed and crumbled
1 whole Spanish onion finely chopped
1 finely chopped medium green pepper
3 finely chopped jalapeno peppers with seeds
8 cloves of finely minced garlic
2 chipoltle peppers in adobo sauce finely minced
1 4 ounce can of Old El Paso chopped green chilies
1 4 ounce can of Hunt's tomato sauce
2 32 ounce cans of Hunt's whole tomatoes
1 12 ounce bottle of beer
4 cups of chicken stock (or 2 15-ounce cans of chicken broth)
1 15-ounce can of beef broth
3 bay leaves
4 tablespoons of Gebhardt's chili powder
3 tablespoons of New Mexican chili powder
2 tablespoons of pasilla powder
2 tablespoons of cumin
1 teaspoon of cayenne pepper
1 1/2 tablespoon of garlic powder
1 1/2 tablespoon of onion powder
1 tablespoon of brown sugar
1 tablespoon of dried Mexican oregano salt and fresh ground black pepper to taste
4 tablespoons of virgin olive oil for frying
1 table spoon of fresh ground coriander seed

Heat a 16-quart stock pot till hot. Add olive oil till hot. Season the beef chuck with salt and fresh ground black pepper to taste. Brown the beef in the hot oil one pound at a time. Remove browned beef and set aside. Add chorizo sausage to the pot and additional oil as needed. Cook the sausage and set aside. Add chopped onion, green pepper, jalapeno peppers, chipoltle peppers, chopped green chilies to the pot, salt and pepper to taste. Saute for five minutes. Add garlic, bay leaves, Gebhardt's chili powder, New Mexican chili powder, pasilla powder, cayenne pepper and cumin. Continue to saute for three minutes. Add the beef, chorizo, chicken stock, beef broth, beer, tomato sauce, whole tomatoes, brown sugar, ground coriander, garlic powder and onion powder. Raise heat and bring to a slow boil. Reduce heat and simmer. Reseason with salt and pepper to taste. About 30 minutes before chili is finished cooking, add the Mexican oregano (crush the dried oregano between fingers to enhance the flavor). The chili should simmer two hours or until beef is tender. Stir often.

■ 'I've been bringing chili to work (at Durr Industries of Plymouth) for 20 years in a crock pot and everybody loves it.'

James G. Sholar
Chili cook

Although competition chili cooking is a hobby for participants, it's often an expensive hobby The cost of making one pot of competition chili is $100 to $150, said Horn, but some cooks can do it for $50 Even the equipment gets pricey Horn just spent $300 on a chili pot

Attendance is usually huge at Horn's events, which is good because proceeds for all chili cookoffs benefit charities (in this case Make-A-Wish Foundation of Michigan and the Plymouth Salvation Army) and because competition chili cooks almost always start out as competition chili spectators the more people will want to cook," Horn said. "The whole idea is to bring new cooks in."

Samples will be sold to the public for 50 cents each beginning at 2 p.m., and Horn recommends getting an early start if you want to sample the chili. Past experience shows that demand exhausts supply after 15-30 minutes.

However, four local restaurants have donated at least 30 gallons each to the chili cookoff that will be sold by the bowl for $2. The restaurants are Vassel's of Plymouth, Harvest Moon, Busch's Marketplace and Chili's Grill & Bar.

Chili posters by R.C. Gorman will be on sale for $10.

Local participants include Ken Brundage of Northville, James Glenn Sholar of Canton, Gary Ray of Livonia and Shawn Booth of Garden City.

Sholar entered his first chili cookoff last year in Plymouth. His "Col. Jim's Butt Smokin' Chili" didn't win, but his booth was voted best-dressed.

Why did he enter? "I've been bringing chili to work (at Durr Industries of Plymouth) for 20 years in a crock pot and everybody loves it," he said.

The winner of the world championship receives $25,000, which is quite an incentive to make the trip to Las Vegas if he wins in Plymouth, Sholar said. "I think I'd have better luck there than I do in the Lotto," he said.

Brundage and his partner Chuck Provis have been cooking in a non-sanctioned chili contest at Dakota Inn Rathskeller of Detroit for 10 years

The partners have been in both previous Plymouth Chili Cookoffs, placing fourth in 1996 with their chili called "Fubar." Brundage believes he may be the only chili cook who also ran in the 10-kilometer race at last year's cookoff.

Brundage won't be able to attend the world championship if he wins Sunday because he's having surgery Monday. Just drink plenty of Gatorade afterwards, he said his doctor told him

Chili cooks must bring everything they need with them: stove, utensils, ingredients, etc. They'll each create at least one and a half gallons of chili right there in the Gathering next to the Penn Theater. Thirty-two ounces are for the judges and the rest for samples.

By Ralph R. Echtinaw
Staff Writer

Most people think of the Plymouth Chili Cookoff as being supplemented by a Harley Davidson motorcycle show but some people see it as a bike show accompanied by a chili cookoff.

"It was unbelievable," said Redford resident Carl Giuffre who attended last year's show with five buddies. "It was huge."

Giuffre particularly liked the G-rated aspect of the show as compared with some of the other bike shows he's seen. "The whole atmosphere was family comfortable," he said, adding that he plans to take his son to the show this year.

Last year's bike show attracted more than 8,000 bikes, said organizer Mike "Fiz" Przybylo, owner of Fiz's Customs of Garden City, when more than $500 were raised for the Make-A-Wish Foundation.

"Every street around there was packed with motorcycles," he said

Przybylo estimates that about 80 of those 8,000 motorcycles will be entered in the actual bike show

Harleys are the focus, but all motorcycles are welcome Harley categories include stock, FXR, early model FL, late model FL, dresser, modified, Sportster and soft tail Other bikes are eligible to win trophies in the categories

■ All the money raised by the chili cookoff will be split 50/50 between the Make-A-Wish Foundation of Michigan and the Plymouth Salvation Army.

One of the trademarks of International Chili Society cookoffs is that all profits are donated to a charity.

Each cookoff's organizer picks the charity or charities that will get the money.

Plymouth's organizer, Annette Horn, has given 100 percent of her cookoff's profit to Make-A-Wish Foundation of Michigan in the first two years of the event's life.

Now she's added a more local component. This year half the profit will go to the Salvation Army's Plymouth office. The rest goes to Make-A-Wish as usual.

"I thought that some of the money should also stay in Plymouth," Horn said.

Plymouth Salvation Army Lt. Jim Spencer was pleased to be included. "It means a great deal to us," he said. "It gives us an opportunity to get exposure in the community. It was quite a surprise when she called."

The Salvation Army, located at 9151 South Main, is involved in charitable activities in Plymouth, Northville and Canton year round.

Some of the organization's activities include paying rent for poor people, providing food baskets, prescription assistance, emergency disaster services, running an eight-week summer day camp and a pre-school program.

Last year the Plymouth Salvation Army's adopt a family program provided food and Christmas gifts to almost 400 families.

The army's meeting rooms and gymnasium is used for meetings of the Alcoholics Anonymous, Narcotics Anonymous, knitting guild, education intervention program, senior citizen volleyball

The Make-A-Wish Foundation's mission is to fulfill personal wishes of Michigan people age 2 1/2 to 17 who have been diagnosed with a life-threatening illness

More than 1,800 wishes have been granted in Make-A-Wish of Michigan's history More than 230 wishes have been granted in the last year

A 16-year-old Canton Township girl who has kidney disease is among the latest beneficiaries of the organization's charitable endeavors She will receive a new home computer system this month.

Make-A-Wish of Michigan was founded in 1981 when the Foundation granted a wish to Joshua, a young boy with leukemia who dreamed of going to Walt Disney World He and his family enjoyed a vacation there, and Joshua died five months later The Foundation granted 15 wishes that first year.

The national organization, Make-A-Wish Foundation of America began in 1980 in Phoenix when a member of the U.S. Customs Service learned of the wish of 7-year-old Chris, who dreamed of becoming a police officer Chris soon became the first honorary highway patrolman in Arizona history Two days later he died and the Make-A-Wish movement was born

The average value of a wish is $4,500. At Make-A-Wish of Michigan more than 85 percent of donations directly support program expenses

Make a wish Michigan employs more than 350 volunteers throughout the state

The Foundation is supported entirely through donations and in-kind gifts from individuals, organizations and corporations

Referrals

A wish request (referral) may be made by a parent, legal guardian, the wish child, or a medical professional. Wish referrals should be directed to Jennifer Van Valkenburg, Manager of Program Services, at (800) 622-9171 Ext 101

After a child's eligibility is determined by his/her primary care physician, a wish team of two volunteers is assigned to the child. The team visits the child and family to determine the child's personal wish, with the only considerations being that the wish be reasonable, attainable, and appropriate for the child's age.

Line dancers queuing up

STAFF WRITER

Since the chili cookoff (as we know it) began 31 years ago at Carroll Shelby's ranch in Texas, it has been a natural adjunct to and companion of country music.

The Plymouth Chili Cookoff is no exception, as two troupes of country line dancers will perform to the accompaniment of live country bands.

The Wild West Dancers, led by Lorene and Bob Newsom, will bring eight couples and the 10 and 11-year-old sons of one couple to the cookoff, where they will dance in the road.

Lorene Newsom said their routine includes couples dancing, and the line dancing will take about one hour. At one point the boys will dance with their parents.

Bob Newsom often acts as a DJ for the group, but they'll perform with a live band at the cookoff.

"It's a lot of fun," Lorene Newsom said. "We get a lot of compliments."

Please see DANCERS, A22

The dance team sometimes gets paid and sometimes performs for free. Gratis performances include gigs at nursing homes and hospitals But the dancers get paid when they work private parties. All the money they make from dancing goes back into the group to pay for costume cleaning and replacement and to buy compact discs for Bob Newsom's DJ work

The Wild West Dancers have been together for six years

The Lonestar dance team is led by Gary and Judy Reno of Northville.

The Lonestar dancers have a 40-minute routine they do, Judy Reno said, but they will break it up to teach line dancing to audience members if necessary.

Judy Reno used to work for an opthamologist but fell in love with line dancing and quit her job to teach it full time

"You're never going to get rich doing this," she said. But "It does a lot for your mental well being."

Not to mention one's physical condition. Reno recalls one student who started dancing five years ago and has lost more than 30 pounds because of it "It's gratifying to sit back and watch the students after you've taught them."

Check out this book if you're into chili recipes

If there aren't enough chili recipes to suit you in this booklet, pick up a book called "The All-American Chili Cookbook: The Official Cookbook of the International Chili Society."

Authors Jenny Kellner and Richard Rosenblatt provide more than 175 recipes, including 28 winning recipes from the annual World Championship Chili Cookoff.

Celebrity contributors include former President Lyndon Johnson, chef Mark Miller, wrestler Adam Bomb and Miami Dolphins Coach Jimmy Johnson.

Also included are recipes for dips, drinks and desserts

WHITE CHILI

By Sheila Radke of Westland

1.5 pounds of ground turkey
1 cup of chopped onion
1/2 cup of diced green peppers
1 tablespoon of oil
1 teaspoon of oregano
2 teaspoons of cumin
1 teaspoon of crushed chili peppers
1/2 teaspoon of garlic granules
3 15-ounce cans of white beans
1 cup of chicken broth
salt and white pepper to taste

Brown the first five ingredients in a four-quart sauce pan. Add two cans of beans (undrained). Drain and blend the third can of beans in a food processor and use for thickening. Add remaining ingredients and summer 30 minutes. For best results, refrigerate, then reheat.

perform for pay, or for charity, depending on the venue. They appeared at the Livonia Spree earlier this year, the Novi '50s festival and the Michigan State Fair.

Lonestar dance classes are taught at the Knights of Columbus hall in Garden City, the Bailey Center in Westland, Hosanna-Tabor Lutheran School in Redford and Summit center in Canton. GOLD MINER'S CHILI

1997 world champion chili by Stephen Falkouski of Hopewell Junction NY

1 tablespoon of Wesson oil
3 pounds of beef, cut into 1/4 inch cubes
1 1/2 cups of white onion, finely minced
8 garlic cloves, finely minced
3/4 teaspoon garlic powder
2 cans (15 1/2 ounces) of chicken broth with fat removed
4 ounces of Hunt's tomato sauce
3 tablespoons of ground cumin
10 1/2 tablespoons of Gebhardt chili powder
OR 5 tablespoons of California chile powder (mild)
4 1/2 tablespoons of New Mexico chile powder
1 tablespoon of New Mexico chile powder (hot)
2 teaspoons of salt
1/2 teaspoon of meat tenderizer
1 1/2 teaspoon of light brown sugar
1 teaspoon of Tabasco brand pepper sauce

In a large pot simmer onion and minced garlic in 2 cups of chicken broth for 10 minutes. Add Hunt's tomato sauce and all dry spices except the tenderizer and sugar. Mix well. Brown the meat in Wesson oil using a separate pan and drain well. Sprinkle meat with tenderizer. Add meat to the onion/spice mixture. Add remaining broth and simmer for 2 1/2 hours. Mix in brown sugar and Tabasco brand pepper sauce just before serving.
