This time, officials from the township, the city of Northville, and Plymouth were called to handle an apartment fire on the east side of the complex at around 7 p.m. No injuries were reported, but a host of residents milling around in the frosty night air were questioning innsbrook's to remove ice from the rooftop of build-

Galileo program brings leadership to classrooms

Martha Nield looks beyond written reports to see how well a new program for area schools works.

The Northville school board member looks to classrooms and hallways to see how teachers interact with each other and students as participants in Galileo, a program developed jointly by superintendents from Novi and Northville schools.

With an expected price tag of $2.3 million, participants attend seminars, conduct research and publish reports in areas of interest with the goal to improve education. Reports from the first round of Galileo were published last week.

But Nield said she looks beyond the reports to see how well the program benefits Northville schools.

"I can feel the leadership difference of Galileo participants," she said. That's how I judge the effectiveness of this program.

Galileo was developed in 1994 by Leonard Rezmierski, superintendent for Northville schools, and Emmett Lippe, superintendent for Novi schools.

We were just sitting around one day when we came up with the idea of having to develop teachers as leaders," Lippe said. "And when we say leaders, we're not talking about trying for administrative positions. We're talking about providing a framework for them to act as leaders in their schools and on committees.

Galileo members train for two years. Northville's team has seven members and Novi's has nine. The

Northville Record welcomes Perry as new publisher

By CHRIS C. DAVIS Staff Writer

Grace Perry, formerly the classifled director for HomeTown Newspapers, has been named as the company's Oakland County publisher. In the newly created position, Perry will manage the operations of the Northville Record and Novi News, as well as the Milford Times and South Lyon Herald, and shopping circu-lars in Walled Grace Perry Lake. Perry will be based out of the Record offices at 104 W. Main Street in Northville. That move will take place by the end of February. Prior to being appointed as publisher, Perry managed Home-Town's classified advertising department for 13 years. In that position. Perry was named the Advertising Director of the Year by the Suburban Newspapers of America.

She said she is excited about the prospect of improving the four newspapers.

'My goal is to improve the papers we have," Perry said. "I believe they're already very high quality newspapers. Now the focus is on growth and expansion, both in terms of editorial copy and our sales in the area."

Perry, who grew up in Howell, is mother to 23-year-old David, 12year-old Ryan and 8-year-old Elia. Together with her husband, Al, the five continue to live in Howell.

When she's not at her desk (which Perry freely admits isn't as often as she'd like) she's an avid golfer and bowling enthusiast. Perry said she has also become heavily involved in civic affairs in her native Howell. She has volunteered extensively in the community and has chaired the Livingston County Home Show committee.

Wayne County still digging out from winter storm

By CHRIS C. DAVIS Staff Writer

Eventually, Wayne County authorities may reexamine its snow removal policies.

For the time being, county public information director John Roach said the greater concern is just keeping roads clear, which has become an increasingly difficult task.

Following the worst snowstorm in almost a quarter of a century on Jan. 2, criticism of the county's road clearing policies have been plenty. Roach said the county has recognized the problems, but hasn't had nearly enough time to contemplate changing those policies as the snow continues to fall.

We've admittedly learned some things after that first big one hit us," Roach said. "By and large, I think most people recognize that this has been, and probably will continue to be, an unusual winter season for us."

Roach said many Wayne County officials have formed a link with the mythological Sisyphus the character who offended Zeus and was sentenced to push a heavy boulder to the top of a mountain, only to have it roll all the way back down just as it neared the summit.

"In our case, we're not fighting a boulder - we're fighting snow," Roach said.

Roach said Monday's announcement of the reopening of the Detroit salt mines was little more than a strange coincidence of the winter's heavy snowfails. He said the county is going through its supply of salt and sand at a quicker pace than expected, but that plenty of the snow-fighting material still remains.

Wayne County's first priority in snow removal is to clear the 460 miles of state freeways and trunk-

At a time when ice is trying to be removed, it wouldn't seem like -Northville Township would be going out of their way to add more.

But that's exactly what Northville Parks and Recreation director Traci Sincock said will be happening in the weeks to come, as two new ice skating rinks are installed in the communities.

The construction of the rinks is the culmination of an effort that began almost four years ago, Sincock said. The idea was generated as a partnership between Northville residents Ray and Roxanne Casterline, Kevin Hartshorne, Scott Wilson and the late Charlie Stilec.

Collectively, Collectively, the group approached members of the Northville city council and asked for permission to create one rink near Ford Field. The idea was approved, Sincock said, but the project didn't work as well as had been originally envisioned.

For one thing, the perimeter around the edge of the rink was essentially a snowbank. Additionally, the water used to flood the rink was drawn from the nearby Rouge River. The slope of the land in Ford Field had the tendency to cause the water to run back into the river.

Realizing that water needed to be kept from percolating back into the ground, Sincock said a pair of 100foot-by-100-foot liners were acquired from BFI. Skaters would have likely been able to take advantage of the rinks, were it not for the uncooperative Mother Nature, Sincock said.

"We had them last year, but El Nino was keeping us from doing much of anything," she said. "It never really got cold enough for long enough for us to flood the place.

This year, however, Sincock said all the ingredients are in place. Volunteers from 35th District Court have pledged their time to place the liners into a permanent home for the rinks, she said.

"In a few days, we should have nice skating facilities in town," she said.

The location of the second rink is still being determined, Sincock said.

The rinks will be maintained by the parks and recreation department, but day-to-day supervision of the rinks won't be available, she said.

"We don't have a Zamboni machine, but we'll do things to keep the ice scraped and in rea-sonably good shape," she said.

Outdoor ice rinks to be constructed

Sincock said the recreation department was still trying to juggle how best to address the question of figure skaters sharing time with hockey enthusiasts. She said the tentative plan didn't call for hockey goals to be installed.

"We think that most of the inline skaters probably have their own goals, anyway," she said.

Hartshorne said he was attracted to the skating rink project while walking near Ford Field one evening. He said he saw the illuminated work area and made an inquiry about the rink. 'It was a lot of fun to get involved in," he said. "In the past, it was a very difficult thing because you had to deal with weather which didn't always cooperate with you. I think we've got ideal weather for this now."

With the addition of new liners, Hartshorne was optimistic that the rinks would remain operative.

There were definitely some challenges we ran into down at Ford Field," Hartshorne said. Skating is a lot of fun. I think you'll see a lot of people at the new place."

Casterline said he was motivated to bring skating back to Northville after old skating locations like Fish Hatchery Park

"This is, after all, an outdoor facili-ty we're talking about." and the Mill Pond needed to be shut down out of concern for safety. Though no longer a skater himself. Casterline said thought outdoor skating was one of the few bona fide free activities left.

> "This was something very gratifying for me," he said. "Families could come down here, and as long as they had skates, it was free. That's something we're not very accustomed to in Northville anymore."

Northville man selected to DHS executive board

By CHRIS C. DAVIS Staff Writer

.... If there's a question about. metro Detroit's long and colorful past, there's a good chance Duane Tarnacki has an answer.

Tarnacki was appointed to a third, one-year term as vice-president for legal affairs and as a member of the executive board for the Detroit Historical Society. The organization is the principal supportive group for three city-owned museums: the Detroit Historical Museum, the Dossin Great Lakes Museum, and Historic Fort Wayne. Growing up in Dearborn,

As an example, Tarnacki point-ed to the history of the name of Wayne County. The geographical area was named after General "Mad Anthony" Wayne, who Tarnacki said was alleged to have "a reputation as being a wild person.'

"He was an interesting historical character." Tarnacki said. chuckling. "But I don't want to sling mud at the man - all I know is that he had a certain kind of reputation."

Closer to home, Tarnacki spoke of Northville's relationship to the booming automobile industry.

Tarnacki has also devoted a portion of his time to assisting Henry Ford Museum and Greenfield Village.

The Historical Board was recently noted as being one of the most efficiently-operated nonprofit organizations in the state, Tarnacki said. He said he personally was drawn to ally himself with the Historical Society because of his interest in the past.

"i've always been a bit of a history buff, both on a personal and professional level," he said.

Tarnacki said he took a particular interest in local history, which he said gave the best explanation as to why a community looks and operates the way it does today.

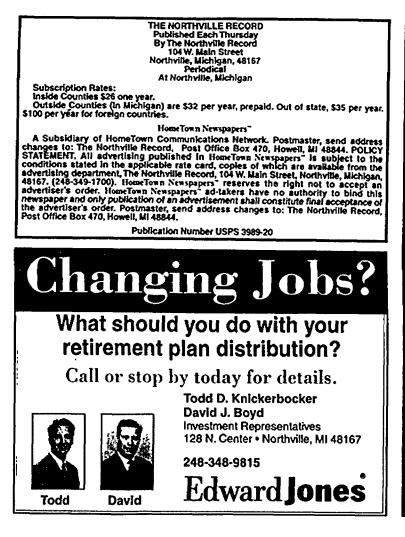

Late in Henry Ford's career, Tarnacki said the manufacturing pioneer began believing strongly in a shift from urban mega-factories to smaller plants in rural areas.

"Ford truly believed that having a series of smaller shops was really the way to go," Tarnacki said.

The net result: places like Ford's now-closed operation in Northville.

Like many rural plants, it functioned largely on water power. Hence, the remnants of the old water wheel on what is now Water Wheel Athletic Club.

Several other smaller-sized plants in the Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties testify to Ford's vision of returning operations to the outlying areas, Tarnacki said.

Where in the world?

Northville woman hosts geography contest

By CHRIS C. DAVIS Staff Writer

Allere's the question: where on Earth would you be if you could wade into the Orinoco River and see the gold-domed capitol building in the city of Caracas?

If the answer doesn't come right away, don't worry. Even some of Northville's youngest National Geography Bee contestants weren't quite certain. (You'd be in Venezuela, by the way.)

About a dozen homeschooled youths from the Northville area participated in the local-level competition last week, which tested the students' knowledge of physical and political geography.

Fifth-grader Leah Waldo hit a snag when she was asked for the technical term for "a major group or chain of islands," (it's called an "archipelago") but Benjamin Slade, a seventh grader, knew that a crater is an indentation on Earth's surface caused by the impact of a meteor.

Northville resident Jill Slater, who helped coordinate the academic competition, said winners from Thursday's competition will advance on to regional and possibly national competition later in the year.

"You could see how hard these kids were trying to come up with the answers. Even in the preliminary rounds, the questions were difficult and they got harder as time went on."

Jill Slater

Her sixth-grade son, Andrew. would up winning the bee. He knew that British Columbia is the Canadian province where the Nisga'a tribe signed a pact in August of 1998 giving the Indians land rights. As such, his score will be submitted to National Geographic.

Should it make the cut, he'll advance to the state competition, and possibly national competition thereafter.

You could see how hard these kids were trying to come up with the answers." Jill Slater said. "Even in the preliminary rounds, the questions were difficult and they got harder as time went on." Slater said her son got hooked on geography because of his interest in pro football. She said televised games piqued his curios-ity, particularly learning about the various home cities of the teams.

A map of the United States quickly became dotted with stickers marking such places as Green Bay, Wis. and Phoenix, Ariz., she said.

A moment to themselves, the participants reflected on the pace of the bee. While most of those asked said they weren't rattled by the intensity of the questions, Ian Waldo had a slightly different take on the situation.

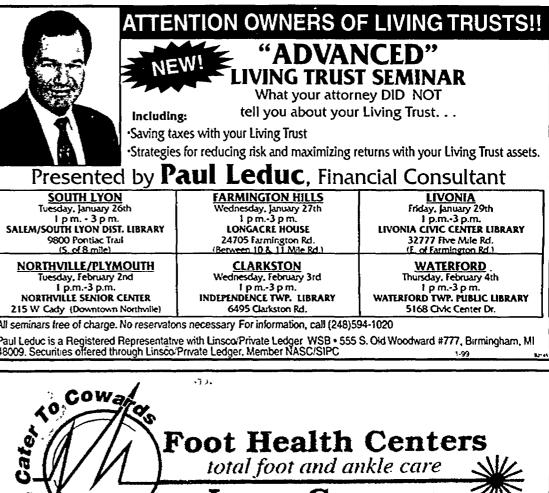

"It's been making me shake," he said.

Michael Slade, another participant, said he was drawn to the geography bee for something less than altruistic reasons.

"Mom signed us up without knowing," he said. His two cousins also participated in the event.

National Geographic is expected to notify Andrew Slater if he made the cut for Michigan competition by March, Jill Slater said.

One lucky dog

Northville presents dog, owner with award

BY ANDREW DIETDERICH Staff Writer

The city of Northville considers Amanda Wilhelm one lucky dog. And all she gets for the distinction is one box of dog biscuits. But the black labrador dog didn't mind at all after being named winner of the city's 1999 Lucky Dog contest. To win, Amanda didn't have to rescue a baby from a burning building or jump 20 feet into the air.

Amanda only had to have a responsible owner.

"All I had to do was drive downtown (Northville) and buy her a license," said Jutta Wilhelm, Amanda's owner. "I didn't even know they had the contest, I just walked in and bought her the license.

Wilhelm is 50 and lives at 46900 Chigwidden Drive.

Amanda's tag, no. 58. was picked randomly by Northville Police Chief Jim Petres.

Shari Allen, a Northville city hall clerk, said the contest was started in 1998.

"We started it as an incentive for people to come in and renew their dog licenses'," she said.

"All I had to do was drive downtown (Northville) and buy her a license. I didn't even know they had the contest, I just walked in and bought her the license."

Jutta Wilhelm

Dog licenses in Northville must be renewed annually before Dec. 31. The cost is $7 per dog. If a dog found without tags it's a $10 fine and if the dog is picked up from the police after 10 days, the owner will be fined $20. Additional fees may be assessed for impound fees since dogs caught are taken to a local boarding shelter.

About 400 dogs are registered with the city.

Tags are important, Allen said, because without them police wouldn't know if the dog had received rables vaccinations since that's the only requirement to receive a city of Northville dog license.

Also, the police wouldn't know where to return the dog. Allen said.

To give people even more incentive, the city is working with local veterinarians and pet shops to try and offer prizes bigger than a box of bones. Even so, Wilhelm said Amanda was relatively pleased with her accomplishment. "She's a dog, after all - for heaven's sake," she said. And it may be hard to tell who the more lucky of the two is. Wilhelm said when she was going through a rough divorce a few years back after being married for 23 years. Amanda was one of the only things that kept her going.

"I had to keep going for her sake," she said.

Today. Amanda vacations for three months with one of Wilhelm's friends during the summer in Boyne City, where she "loves to swim with ducks."

"When she gets back she is thin and beautiful, then gets fat during the winter with me," Wilhelm said.

Just about this time of year, the makers of one of the most common New Year's resolutions come into Kathy Mastantuono's office.

That would be the decision to turn a life around and become part of the working world.

Mastantuono is a recruiter for the KPM Group, a Livonia-based direct placement and temporary staffing agency, primarily to assist persons into getting jobs in the clerical or secretarial realm.

A fair number of those seeking help from KPM, especially in early January, Mastantuono sald, are women from disadvantaged backgrounds. For those who take the first step and make an appointment with KPM, life can become a lot sweeter in not much time.

And, she said, even those with limited experience and education can get their foot in the door - if they're willing to work their way up. From our perspective, it's all about investing in people." she said. We love the skills, we love the education, we love the solid work history, but we certainly recognize that not everyone may have that in their background."

Once an initial consultation is scheduled. Mastanuono said KPM service industry. will sit down with the client and take an inventory of the skills a person has, update their resume (or create one of none exists) and take a refresher on what and what not to do in a job interview.

So what's the difference between going through KPM and seeking out an ad through the classifieds? Mastanuono said KPM it's about minimizing the additional work needed to be done by job-seekers.

"You can certainly use the clas-sifieds if you want, but it can be a needle-in-the-haystack sort of search," she said. "Our objective is to have our clients feel good about themselves when they go in for the interview, and we can do that my cutting back on all the preparations they'd need to do if they didn't go through us.'

Clients of KPM don't pay anything for the service. Mastanuono said KPM makes its money through the companies which ultimately hire KPM referrals.

Mastanuono also said the perception that employers are only looking for long-term commitments and 9-to-5 schedules isn't the truth, nor is the idea that those employers who offer "flexible schedules" are limited to the food-

"The office environment of the 90s recognizes that people need flexibility in their scheduling," she said. "If a mom needs to be out of the office at 2 p.m. to pick up her kids from school, there are companies out there who can work around that."

But work is the big question mark, Mastanuono said. The jobs KPM referrals acquire admittedly aren't upper-level management from the start. But, she said, a positive attitude and taking pride in the first job often leads to bigger and better things.

She cited examples of clients who came into KPM with no previous office experience and within three years had taken up executive positions with the companies they hired into. One particular client, she said, spent more time in Japan working for her firm than she did in the United States.

This is all about finding the potential in the people and making in grow," she said. "So much of this depends on if the person is willing to do the work. You have to be willing to take that first step."

Chamber directory available

BY ANDREW DIETDERICH Staff Writer

Believe or not, Joseph's Coney Island and Richardson's Photography have something in common.

The two Northville businesses are both listed in the 1999 edition of the Northville Chamber of Commerce's business directory. Laurie Marrs, executive director of the Northville Chamber of Commerce. said 12,000 of the guides are "hot off the presses" and should be in the hands of most Northville residents and businesses.

We ask that Northville residents pick up the guide whether going to the restaurant or cleaners in Northville because these are the businesses that support the chamber." Marrs said.

The 32-page book lists all chamber members and is organized alphabetically and categorically. The book comes out every January with 10.000 of the books being sent into the community.

The books are free to Northville residents and cost $5 each for people outside of the community. Chamber members also receive the book at no additional cost.

Hundreds centennial celebration

By CHRIS C. DAVIS Staff Writer

The 100th anniversary celebration of Northville Township will come to a dramatic close Jan. 15. when choirs and musical groups from the township and surrounding communities perform a free concert at Ward Evangelical Presbyterian Church. Admission is free to the event.

The Plymouth Community Choirs are the featured entertainment for the night, said Northville Township Foundation director Shari Peters.

The Foundation began its 1998 centennial celebration with a procession down Six Mile, lead by a handful of lifelong township residents. Other events throughout the year included the Centennial Ball, a September golf outing and a holiday home tour in November.

Two township-related publication hit the shelves for the celebration. as well. "Northville Township: From the Beginning." a history of the township, and Recipes & Remembrances," a collection of dishes prepared by township residents. It was the creation of "Northville Township" that stirred up interest in the Foundation's major goal for 1999: the establishment of Heritage Farms - a working farm which will reflect life as it was during the township's agricultural past of the late 1800s and early 1900s. Once we got done with the book, the feeling from those who worked on it was that we had to keep this thing going — that it wasn't enough." Peters said. We're really going to try to push people to get involved with the farm project. We know it's a really pricey thing to pursue, but it's what we're working for." Peters said negotiations are ongoing to acquire donated land for the establishment of Heritage Farms. Basic architectural drawings of the farm have been drawn up, she said. Amid dances, auctions and home tours, Peters stressed that it was the friendships formed which made the Foundation a strong community group in 1998. "No matter what it was we needed, someone would come through for us," she said. "It's the kind of thing that I sometimes sit in amazement about. I would sometimes wonder how we'd be able to pull an event off, and just as soon as I'd stop, the phone would ring. Someone would come through."

The township's Centennial closeout musical celebration begins at 7 p.m. Jan. 15. Admission is free. but organizers ask that anyone interested in attending call the Foundation office at (248) 374-0200 to provide a headcount for a reception following the performance.

Police News Police investigate woman's claims of harassment by coworker

A server at Timber Creek wished to prosecute a co-worker after he allegedly publicly berated and shoved her.

The 42-year-old waitress said she was serving customers in the restaurant at around 1:45 p.m. Jan. 4 when her 41-year-old co-worker began calling out loud for her.

The woman said she returned to the kitchen and asked the coworker not to yell out her name in the presence of customers. When the woman returned to the dining room, she said the man went on a vulgar tirade against her and also accused her of stealing money from the restaurant.

The woman said she attempted to explain the situation to her manager a short while later, after which time the co-worker shoved her in the back.

Township police reports said the man admitted using profanity but denied striking the woman. The case is under investigation.

BACKFIRE: Township police received an anonymous phone call from a male at around 1:30 a.m. Jan. 7 indicating that a drug deal was in progress on Cove Drive.

Police investigated the scene and located a 37-year-old man and a 25-year-old woman with him. ing. A court date is pending. Police asked about the drug deal telephone call. Reports indicated the man acted surprised, denied such an act had taken place, said he and his girlfriend had just returned home from a bar and asked about the identity of the caller. Police responded by saying the complainant was unknown.

The woman, however, gave the name of a 30-year-old Canton man she suspected as making the call. She indicated the suspect had been making unsolicited telephone calls to her home for some time.

As the investigation continued, a man in a nearby house beckoned for the officers' attention. Reluctant to give his name at first, he eventually revealed his identity. It was the same name the woman had stated earlier. The man told police he'd seen the man and woman smoking marijuana in their home and put a large bag of the drug in their refrigerator.

Police searched the couple's home and found none. Officers returned to the complainant, who finally admitted that he had followed the girl to the neighborhood because he suspected the girl of cheating on him.

The man was arrested for prowl-

TOTALLY FREE CHECKING: Meijer store security presented 25 personal checks returned to them for purchases totaling nearly $4,700.

Store detectives said the checks were presented from Oct. 11 through Dec. 2 as payment for layaway items. All of the checks were returned to the store.

The checks were in the name of a 22-year-old Detroit woman and were drawn from a Detroit Federal Credit Union of Southfield account. Police reports said Meijer had sent a letter to the account holder on Dec. 11, asking for the woman to contact the store but no response was ever made.

Township detectives sent a letter of their own to the woman on Jan. 8 requesting the woman to make contact with the police within seven days. Detectives tried placing a telephone call to the number listed on the checks, but a recording indicated the number had been disconnected.

The investigation is continuing.

OFF ROAD VEHICLE: A 72year-old woman turned right into a guardrail on South Center Street - twice - then drove the wrong way down Seven Mile Road.

According to police reports, the Dearborn resident was lost, confused and "not used to driving at night" as she drove to her 1985 Mercury to her daughter's home in Northville at about 9:30 p.m. Jan. 9. As a result, she turned into a guardrail and was stuck in the snow. After people helped push her out of the snow, she continued on her way down the road and did the same thing. Police arrived as she as she was backing away from the guardrail the second time. The responding officer was turning around his car to better position behind the driver's car when she turned east on to Seven Mile Road, but was driving in the west bound lane.

Name that school

Entries sought for new school name, identity

By WENSDY WHITE Staff Writer

Step right up, ladies and gentlemen, it's time to play Name That School.

It's a once-in-a-lifetime chance to make history, folks, by offering an identity to the school on the hill.

Come the summer of the new millennium, the current Northville High School will be transformed into a middle school,

The staff and students from Cooke Middle School will then take over the halls, toting their Raiders nickname and colors of red, black and white.

They won't be bringing their name with them, though, and the school district is looking to the community to submit ideas for new names.

'Even though it's one of two middle schools, its public to the community. With it's location in the heart of the town I think it's important to involve everyone in naming the school," said Cooke principal Jeff Radwanski. "We want to get as many entries as we possibly can."

Before you start writing. though, consider the rules of the game as set forth by the Northville Board of Education.

The school can't be named after a person. Entries must be confined instead to reflect geographical, geological or historical characteristics.

Geographical names may take into account the earth's surface. climate, plants, animals, resources or physical characteristics that pertain to the site.

Names in this category may note such things as the building's location within Northville or the fact that the school is located on a hill, the highest point in Wayne County.

Moraine Elementary School, for example, is named after the glacial sediment it's perched on. Principal Radwanski also suggests that the community con-sider that senior citizens will be an important part of the new middle school, invited to walk the halls for morning exercise and enjoy snacks made by Life Skills students.

The principal said some of the enthusiasm about the new school was lost when construction delays to the new high school threatened to postpone the middle school's move.

"I think we had more excitement at one time. It was delayed when the high school was delayed. We're hoping this contest will start building excitement again," he said. "Let's face it, it's not everyday you get to name a school. This is something that will live on probably forever." You must be a Northville School District resident or employee to enter the contest, which runs from Jan. 11 to Feb. 10.

All appropriate entries will be voted upon by the Cooke student body, staff and parents. Then, the three entries which receive the most votes will be presented to the board of education for consideration.

Radwanski will drive the winner to lunch in his 1971 Cadillac, along with the Board of Education President. Superintendent and PTSA President.

Entries should be mailed to Dr. Je∬rey Radwanski, Principal. Cooke Middle School, 21200 Taft Rd. Northville, Mi 48167.

lines, Roach said, followed by 720 miles of county primary roads (Six and Seven Mile among them), and finishing up with 470 miles of resi-dential streets.

The reason. Roach said, had much to do with the pervasive attitudes of drivers.

Folks tend to absolutely insist on driving 60 mph on the freeway. regardless of the condition." he said. "As a result, we have to make certain that those roads are as clear to the pavement first."

And while Roach sympathized with the effort sometimes needed for residents to get out of their subdivisions, he said drivers naturally drove slower along those streets, thereby lessening the odds of accidents.

"It's a heck of an inconvenience to be trudging through residential areas when it's snowy, but as a matter of necessity we need to do the main roads first ... " he said.

Roach said Wayne County would be returning to Northville Township's residential streets, but said Tuesday and Wednesday's forecast for up to six inches of additional snow could delay that from happening until the weekend.

We're doing all we can to keep our heads above water." Roach said. "Hopefully people are getting used to the fact that this may be the sort of weather pattern we're going to be facing for the next several weeks."

The . assailants also took about six compact discs and the user's manual to the vehicle. The trunk of his car was rummaged through, as well.

Dismayed, he said he went back to his apartment where he ran into more problems. This time, it was a dip some three feet wide in his ceiling caused by water leakage the same leakage fire officials said Innsbrook maintenance workers were trying to stop by removing ice on buildings with torches.

By Monday, Williams said he discovered even more substantial water damage in his broom closet located under the stairwell. So severe was the soaking that a gentle push on the drywall caused the gypsum board to fall apart.

Shelves in the closet crashed to the floor Tuesday, unable to stay rash of incidents has him, and neighbors, concerned whether Innsbrook officials are capable of fixing the problems. That concern, he said, has him

Williams said he was forced to take a day off from his job Monday to contact insurance agents regarding the damage done to his vehicle. He also said he would take Wednesday off to pack belongings into waterproof containers, concerned about other portions of the apartment that may suffer water damage.

rooftop, causing leakage on the inside of some residents' homes.

Residents were given temporary shelter at the Northville Township Hampton Inn over the weekend and were expected to be issued new apartments within Innsbrook this week. Animals living at the complex were also saved, due in part to a tenant who worked for the Michigan Humane Society. The resident caged up dogs and cats and took them to temporary shelter in other locations in the complex.

Township fire chief Bill Zhmendak said the fire was well-developed by the time crews arrived on the scene. After evacuating residents from the building. Zhmendak said it was a matter of cutting the losses sustained in the fire.

Usually when we get a call for a fire, you write off the portion of the building that's already on fire," he said. "You want to develop a plan to stop the progress of the fire and save what you can."

Compounding the obvious problem of smoke and flame was the heavy snow that blanketed the apartment community. Water runoff from hoses sent a cascade of water and slush downhill toward units that were not directly involved in the fire. About 10 inches of standing water flooded the living room of a resident who lived some 100 yards from the site of the blaze.

One firefighter reported numbress in his foot after stepping in a deceptively deep pile of snow that had water at the bottom. The water, Zhmendak said, flooded the firefighter's boot.

Night air temperatures hovered at around 18 degrees, with wind chills making it feel like 10 degrees.

Zhmendak confirmed earlier reports that gaping holes that a person could pass through had been located in the firewall the structural element added to multi-family dwellings to slow the pace of a fire between living units and buy firefighters time to do battle with the blaze.

Friday's episode was the third fire at Innsbrook since 1994. The township was called to put out a fire at the complex over Memorial Day Weekend last year. In that incident.

Firefighters carry hoses through the snow at Innsbrook Apartments Friday. Township and city fire departments responded to the blaze, which damaged several units.

Michigan State Police deemed the matter an accidental structural fire coming from the utility closets which stored furnaces and hot water heaters.

At least two families displaced by Friday's fire was also made homeless after the Memorial Day weekend incident.

Zhmendak was all-too aware of the frequency with which the fires were being reported at Innsbrook.

"We're getting better at this," he said, wryly. "We were able to save four units this time around."

Township public safety director Chip Snider said the frequency of severe fires at Innsbrook was heavy on his mind.

"We've had three major fires there in the last five years," Snider said. "When you look across the board at locations in Northville Township, the Innsbrook Apartments seem to have a problem with fire prevention."

Snider said he was in the process of scheduling a meeting with Innsbrook management and owners to examine the safety of the complex.

"I want to see some sort of a plan worked out," Snider said. "These fires put a tremen-dous drain on the resources. This is what mutual aid is supposed to be all about, but sometimes I can't help but wonder if we're taking more than our share on account of these fires.

Zhmendak agreed. He said it was a blessing that no one had been injured the three Innsbrook fires.

We've been very lucky, and I don't deal well with luck." Zhmendak said. "You can't have this many fires and continue to be lucky."

Zhmendak said he met with those affected by the fire on Saturday at the Hampton Inn to reconstruct the prior evening's events.

Calls to Innsbrook management were not returned.

Northville City Briefs

Notes from the Jan. 4 meeting of the Northville city council:

PERFECT TIMING: The city council approved a request to clear ice and snow from the south side of Eight Mile Road between Novi Road and Center Street.

The city of Northville's Department of Public Works has cleared snow and ice from sidewalks on the north side of Eight Mile Road when additional right-of-way was acquired for the Eight Mile Road realignment project. Judith McIntyre, 100 E. Eight Mile Road, called the Department of Public Works to voice concerns that the unplowed sidewalks could be a safety hazard to students walking to school when Northville High School is converted to Cooke Middle School.

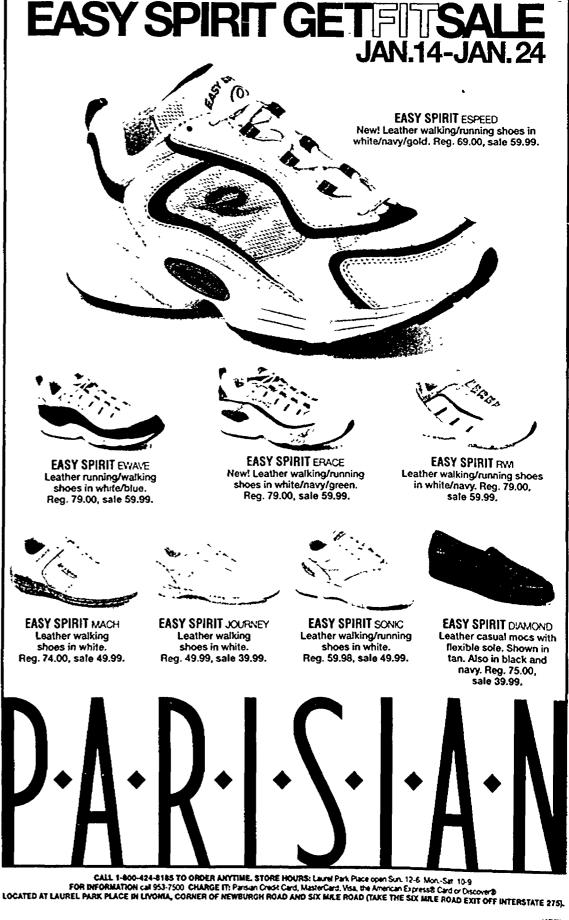

Jim Gallogly, director of the Northville Department of Public Works, said cleaning the sidewalks would take less than 30 minutes and cost about $15 per snow or ice event.

GRAVE ISSUE: The city council awarded a contract to McNeely and Lincoln Associates Inc. to survey and design an expansion at Rural Hill Cemetery.

The $18,000 contract is to develop seven acres of city property into the cemetery that has only 300 lots remaining. McNeely and Lincoln Associates Inc. beat out Finkbeiner, Pettis, and Strout Inc., which submitted a bid to the city for $33,111. In the 1998-99 budget, $20,000 was established for the proper design of the city's planned expansion.

That's the question a lot of people, including us, were asking this week, following Friday night's structural fire. It was the third one the complex had experienced since 1994 and the second in eight months.

For a moment, we'll focus on the positive. If there is any good news out of this story, it's that residents of the complex and their pets escaped the burning apartments unharmed. Whether that was due to alertness or a good evacuation job performed by public safety officials. we story, it's that residents of can't say. The bottom physically, line: everyone is okay.

But emotionally apartments unharmed. and monetarily, it's a different story altogether. For the residents of units holes some 4 feet tall were found in destroyed in the event, Friday was a away or stomped on as firefighters raced to put out yet another blaze at the complex.

We repeat — the third fire in five years.

This, we believe, has gotten out of hand, and we tend to believe the (at least unofficially) thinks the same ments? ay, by scheduling a meeting with

It could be said that Innsbrook was trying to stop water damage inside apartments and that removing the icicles was the best way to do so. Responsible decision? Before you make up your mind, consider how the ice got there in the first place.

Township fire chief Bill Zhmendak said poor insulation on windows caused snow on the very edge of eaves to melt. When it re-froze overnight, the ridge of snow created a dam. Water backlogged on the rooftop. creating standing water, which created the leakage.

In essence, Innsbrook's dilapidated structural conditions appear to be the source of all this suffering.

It doesn't stop there, though. Gaping

Then add in drug busts, stolen cars, knife assaults and indecent exposures over the last 18 months and one question comes to mind: township's public safety department what's wrong with Innsbrook Apart-

For the sake of those who pay rent

Yep...it has been one of those weeks

Things that tick me off...

You know, winter is my favorite time of year. Hockey season is in full swing. there are plenty of outdoor activities to take part in, and snow...boy I really love snow.

There comes a point in time, however, when my love of the flaky white stuff reaches a limit, and today as I sit here typing this prose. I have discov-ered that my limit has been reached!

Now it isn't the snow's fault, mind you, my angst is focused on the city of Novi. You see, the folks over in their department of public works seem to have a difficult time with snow removing it from streets, that is.

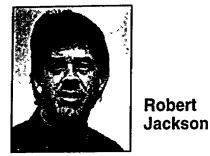

And at the same time residents of this fine community are told that they will be ticketed if they don't remove the snow from their sidewalks.

Seems a bit hypocritical doesn't it? The amazing thing is that once I cross the border into Northville, the streets are nicely cleaned, and traveling is not a problem. Drive back across the border into Novi and you find the roads so slick that you'd have an easier time cross country skiing down the street.

Why is that?

But I have a solution to my dilemma. I'll just declare a snow emergency in front of my house. That way I won't have to shovel my little 20 foot patch of concrete.

I'll make a deal with the city of Novi. You plow the streets and I'll keep my sidewalk clean as a whistle.

WAITING BY THE PHONE ...

I've come to expect, since becoming a journalist more than 16 years ago. that people aren't going to always return a reporter's phone call - especially if the story the reporter is working is a bit controversial. It still infuriates me when this happens howev-

Take Innsbrook Apartments, for example. They experience their second fire in a year - third in five years and when reporter Chris Davis made repeated attempts to reach Innsbrook management, they were nowhere to be found.

I happen to believe the public needs to hear from the folks running the complex.

After all, the public leases apartments from the company, and we think they have every right to know whether the apartment they are renting is safe.

Innsbrook's silence in this regard leaves us with no other choice than to believe they care more about profit margins and less about the safety of their tenants.

JUST A BIT OF CLARIFYING NEEDED

You know, I'm growing tired of writing about the township/school district/Woods of Edenderry lawsuit. But I just can't seem to escape it.

Everywhere I go, somebody has a comment about the ridiculous situation. The other day at Joseph's a woman told me that the newspaper's stance on the lawsuit, and my personal opinion, showed that the Record was guilty of ignoring the needs of the environment.

"How could you side with the school district after they cut down those trees?" the woman asked.

I responded with a question of my own, and it's one I've posed several times.

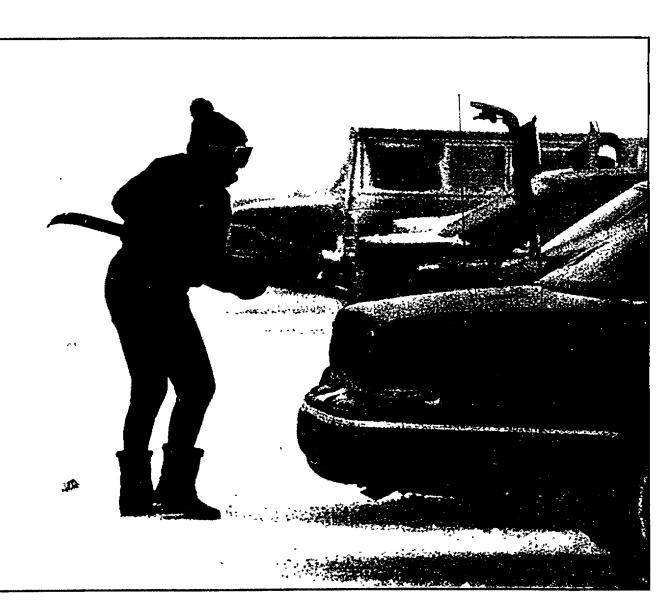

Didn't the developer cut down trees to clear plots of land for the Woods of Edenderry subdivision? And did any of those homeowners become upset when that happened?

I think not.

Which just goes to show you how short-sighted people can become when they let their emotions cloud their judgment.

i-i-i-ight face! Forward (we ten. They abhor substituting one's hope) march!!

Gov. John Engler is using his power of appointment to put an interesting new face on Wayne County's judiciary.

He elevated Court of Appeals Judge Robert Young Jr., a member of the Federalist Society, to the state Supreme Court.

He elevated Circuit Judge Brian Zahra, a member of the Federalist Society, to a 1st District Court of Appeals vacancy.

He elevated Washtenaw Judge Kurtis Wilder, a member of the Federalist Society, to another 1st District Court of Appeals vacancy.

Late last year he promoted Redford District Judge Daniel Ryan, a member of the Federalist Society, to the Wayne Circuit bench.

Also in the last year or so, he promoted Wayne Circuit Judge Michael Talbot, a member of the Federalist Society, to a 1st District Court of Appeals vacancy.

In 1997 he promoted Appeals Judge Clifford Taylor, a Federalist Society member, to the Supreme Court.

In 1998 he engineered the nomination of Appeals Judge Maura Corrigan. a Federalist Society member, for the Supreme Court and helped get her elected.

More than mere Republicanism is involved here.

The Federalist Society was founded, we are told, at Harvard University in the early 1980s. Its members lawyers, judges and the likes of U.S. Sen. Spencer Abraham - believe judges should apply the law (statutes and constitutions) as writ-personal view for the written law. It sounds close to the "strict constructionist" philosophy.

Well, we shall see. It would be unfair to judge the judges before they have done a year or two of judging

We can note, however, that Taylor and Corrigan were reversed when the state Supreme Court decided a renters' civil rights case in favor of the renters. Taylor and Corrigan were sharply reversed by the Supreme Court in a lost-pay case for a wrongly-fired janitor.

Those cases were decided prior to Jan. 1, when Corrigan joined the court and in which Taylor took no part. So the court has changed sharply as of 1999. It can be expected to be tougher on plaintiffs in civil rights and labor cases.

One can agree intellectually that judge-made law is suspect. We would point out, however, that the U.S. Supreme Court's school desegregation decision was judge-made law; that its Miranda decision regarding use of confessions was judge-made law; and that its Gideon decision, regarding appointment of lawyers for indigents facing prison terms, was judge-made law.

So judge-made law is far from all bad.

We hope the Federalist Society members, as they apply the written law, will also recognize Americans' great reverence for common-sense decency. We remind them of the question the late U.S. Chief Justice Earl Warren used to ask attorneys during oral arguments: "Yes, yes, but is it fair?

Watch out for the Novi pigment police

What's your opinion of the Best Buy store on Haggerty Road, north of Eight Mile?

Quite a few Novi residents and city officials think it's ugly, so city consul-tants were sent out a while back by the Novi City Council to draft an ordinance to regulate facades in town. Monday, they returned with new revisions to the ordinance that aims to ban architectural atrocities. Proposed changes would address issues such as the use of color and the design of canopies and roof appurtances, whatever that is.

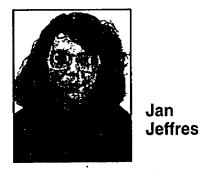

Prohibited would be "dissonant and/or intense colors.

If you've ever taken the opportunity around this time of year to head for the Caribbean, you've likely seen buildings painted all sorts of dissonant and/or intense colors, which is part of what gives the area its intense ly colorful and dissonant appeal.

It's always seemed to me that here in Michigan we need a little more color in our lives. Take any sun-challenged day, and we have many, and see how much gaping at all our tasteful white. beige, gray and griege buildings cheers you up. You'll overdose on blah

Typically, the most vivid buildings we've had around this part of the world were barns. I've always heard that barns were painted red for a purely practical reason, so that farmers could find them during blizzards.

Novi's done a pretty good quality control job with commercial buildings going into town and I don't want to pick on the consultants, who were just doing what the council asked them to do. But I can't help but deplore the drabification of America, the tuning down of everything to a perceived standard of "tastefulness."

Frankly, I was sorry to see two old houses in Northville, once glorious in dark red, renovated and painted boring white and tan respectively.

Some Novi council members question the proposed color restrictions. Council Member Craig DeRoche said that "It doesn't appear Novi is having ugly buildings pop up right and left." DeRoche called the ordinance revamp an example of how the city tends "to go down the road of more subjective rules piled up on one another." Council Member Laura Lorenzo contends that a city needs diversity in its architecture and suggested that the regulation just require that a building be in character with its neighborhood.

Taking a stand in favor of the ordinance additions, Council Member Bob Schmid argued that a community needs to set parameters for commercial buildings. He blasted the appearance of two gas stations that went up at Ten Mile and Novi Road last year.

The first reading of this new regulation passed. It'll be back for a second reading.

At the meeting, it was noted that a clone of the Total station at the southwest corner of Ten Mile and Novi Road would not be allowed under the new regulation, because the color is "intense and not harmonious." But harmonious is in the eye of the beholder. Mayor Pro Tem Hugh Crawford pointed out.

Orange is not my favorite color, although I once knew somebody who liked it. However, I will boldly admit that I think, as far as gas stations go. that the Total is rather nice looking.

It does not, however, meet the standards of my favorite building in Novi, although the two share the same brash color. That's the soon to be late Bates Hamburger stand, one of the last vestiges of the real. rather than bogus, 1950s left in Novi. Not being an architect. I call it an example of the post-war vernacular slider-serving school of architectural style. It's a cute little building.

But you'd never have another Bates in Novi. Not if the pigment police, armed with color wheels, are on the prowl.

Our society is in a sorry state of affairs

By my count, most Michigan stores started taking down their Christmas decorations at midnight on Dec. 25. Everybody knows especially kids - that the post-Christmas sales start on Dec. 26.

By Biblical count, it took 12 days for the wise men to travel to Bethlehem to pay homage to the infant Jesus. Although relatively few know it, that's the origin of the "12 days of Christmas," which ended last week on Jan. 6.

Score a small one for the progressive secularization and commercialization of our society.

More insidiously, consider the kids at Scotch Elementary School in West Bloomfield. Holiday decorations in the school halls this season consisted of Dana, the unisex styrofoam life-sized snowperson, who collects donations for needy families.

According to a story in the Detroit Free Press, Donald Cohen, director of the Michigan Anti-Defamation League, says, "It's best for schools not to focus on religion or any one particular holiday at this time of year. The only reasonable way to deal with the holidays at school is as a secular or seasonal activity. Watching 'Frosty the Snowman' is not going to violate any kid's interests."

Score a big one for the progressive purging of values from our culture.

Holidays are tough for schools. School.officials are afraid of offending parents. They don't want to exclude children who don't celebrate mainstream holidays. And they are scared of being sued by violating the constitutional separation of church and state.

When I was growing up, schools without a second thought wholeheartedly embraced Christmas as an accepted holiday of a majority Christian culture. I learned the verses (all of 'em) to the Christmas carols in school, and I'll bet most readers my age did. too.

Letters to the Editor than Christians in our nation who might want their particular holidays and culture recognized, schools tried to celebrate a variety of holidays - Christmas, Kwanzaa, Hanukkah. But such attempts at inclusion have fallen afoul of the culture police.

This year, the Anti-Defamation League sent a letter to Detroit metro area school superintendents reminding them that "religious neutrality is essential in our public schools" and lecturing them that by choos-ing to celebrate "certain religious holidays. schools run the risk of sending the message that they favor certain faiths over others."

Last year, schools in Farmington adopted a district policy on religion. Public holidays such as Christmas can be recognized with parties and parades, but not observed. The policy says that observance would "commemorate or instill commitment to the values and beliefs represented by the holiday." Score yet another big one for the progressive value-free secularization of our culture. If schools are not going to help "instill commitment to the values and beliefs represented" by religious holidays, how is it going to be done?

By the family," answer progressives. probably rightly in theory. But anybody who has tried to raise kids these days knows full well After people realized there were others there are lots more influences on the development of culture in a young person than solely the warm family hearth.

..... و سر

Answer me this: Does Mattel Corporation, the company that makes all the toys, have as much to do with the culture assimilated by young people as family discussions around the dinner table? Does watching MTV have as much impact on forming kid's cultural norms as high-minded discussions of ethics on PBS?

As long as we purge — whether by active commission or fearful omission — religious understanding from our schools, we cut ourselves off from one of a diminishing number of sources by which a culture of values can be communicated throughout our society.

I'm not about to go whole hog with the religlous right and claim that we must bring prayers back to the schools. But I must admit those folks have a real point when they talk about the progressive secularization of our culture, the elimination of values and ethics from our schools, the substitution of the common for the sublime.

As a society, we seem to be in the midst of letting the entertainment industry define our national culture because we can't find a good way to communicate values beyond the commercial and the secular without supposedly offending somebody with quick access to a lawyer.

At a time when our political system is has been brought to chaos by considering whether to remove a president who has debased his office through prosecution by the House of Representatives that has debased the Constitution, that's a sorry state of affairs.

Columnist presented confusing information

To the editor:

After reading Tim Richard's column. Tragedy points out a lesson to us all," I am left scratching my head...what is the lesson?

Mr. Richard was annoyed that city papers reported nothing about the fathers of six children who died in a Detroit fire. Like many of us, he is concerned about the life's chances of kids growing up without dads. ...

However, his column presents confusing information. It suggests that teen presidently is responsible for society's problems and that cutting funding to abortion and passing "parental consent" laws has reduced teen pregnancy. These assumptions are not based on research and allow Mr. Richard to simplify complex issues (as journalists and politicians often do).

Teens are being more responsible about sex in the age of aids. The highest teen birth rate was recorded in 1957, when nearly one in ten .

poverty with parents who have low levels of education report less use of contraception. have higher rates of pregnancy. and marry less often. Cutting abortion funding or welfare grants doesn't solve this issue. Too many teens still feel little hope for the future. Those who think they have a future will put off having babies.

Like Mr. Richard, I am saddened by the deaths of the Detroit children. I do not know their mother's situa-lion and cannot guess her reasons for continuing to have children. I hope that her surviving children receive the education and support that will offer them options in life.

All of us can support federal initiatives like President Clinton's increased funding to after-school programs and summer jobs. We can donate our money and time to nonprofit organizations that give children a broader perspective on life. We can look at problems a little bit harder and do a little bit more. I challenge Mr. Richard in future columns to spotlight organizations that are doing good for children and teens and help us to know how we can make a difference. Statistics in this letter are from The Alan Guttmacher Institute, a respected organization whose newsletter can be found in the Northville Library.

girls gave birth. In 1996, there was about one birth for every 20 girls 15 to 19 years old. Studies show that today's teens are having less sex and are more likely to use contraception, particularly condoms. The percent of girls who report using a condom at first intercourse has increased from 48 percent in 1980 to 78 percent in 1995.

However, as birth rates decline, out-of-wedlock births for all women continue to rise. In earlier years, mothers were more likely to be married. In 1950, just 23 percent of 15 to 17 year old mothers were not married; 84 percent were not married in 1996. During earlier years, young men with a high school diploma could expect to get a job with wages that would provide for his family.

The issue of out-of-wedlock births is a socioeconomic problem. Young people who live in

Moral values take a legal beating...again

The matron who was our holiday guest got into the usual subject: how (rotten) kids today behave. She refused to rent an apartment to her son while he was living with his sweetle.

'You'd have been in trouble if he took you to court," I said, citing the Dec. 22 Michigan Supreme Court decision against a Jackson landlord. Our guest asked for more information.

It seems that Mr. and Mrs. John Hoffius, landlords, refused to rent to Kristal McCready and Keith Kerr, an unwed couple, and to Rose Balz and Peter Perusse, ditto, who responded to their ad.

The apartment hunters complained to the Jackson Fair Housing Commission. Landlord Hoffius said it would violate his religious beliefs to rent to an unwed man and woman who intended to live together in what used to be known as sin. Two circuit judges agreed with Hoffius. A Court of Appeals panel upheld the circuit judges.

But the Supreme Court overturned the lower courts, 4-2, and ruled Hofflus violated the 1968 Civil Rights Act which says: "A person engaging in a real estate transaction ... shall not on the basis of religion, race, color, national origin. age, sex, familial status, or marital status ... refuse to engage in a real estate transaction ...

Justice Marliyn Kelly of Bloomfield Hills wrote the majority opinion. The case, she said, is complicated by the existence of an antiquated and rarely enforced statute" (italics added). An 1846 law makes it a misdemeanor for an unmarried man or woman to "lewdly and lasciviously associate and cohabit together ...

Kelly noted that the law hadn't been enforced since a 1940 wife-swapping case, and even then the Supreme Court ruled for the swappers. In a key sentence, she said, "Plaintiffs' marital status, and not their conduct in living together, is the root of the defendants' (landlords') objection to renting apartments to the plaintiffs .

The (1846) statute does not prohibit cohabitation per se," Kelly went on. She further found the Chill Rights Act thas no religious motivation . The state does not require that the (landlords) violate their sincerely held religious beliefs."

She was joined by Conrad Mallett Jr., Michael Cavanagh and James Brickley. If you're counting political noses, they are three Democrats and a Republican. If you're counting my way. they are two liberals (Kelly and Cavanagh) and two moderates (Mallett and Brickley).

Dissenting were Patricia Boyle (D) and Elizabeth Weaver (R). Boyle said "the fact that a criminal statute has not been successfully prosecuted does not somehow render the prohibited conduct legal or the criminal statute void." Boyle said it's declared public policy to discourage such cohabitation, even though "Unmarried cohabitation is far more common today than it was" in 1968. when Gov. George Romney signed it.

So if you refuse to rent to an unwed couple. you violate the Civil Rights Act, but there is no violation of your religious principles.

I join my guest in wincing at the majority opinion.

Footnote 1: Her son and his sweetle have been married. I gave them the chauvinist's blessing: "May you have many sons."

Footnote 2: Hoffius recently announced he's selling his apartments because he won't be associated with unwed cohabitants.

Footnote 3: Our matronly visitor will continue to rent, advertising only by word of mouth to avoid municipal oppression and civil litigation. Her name and town of residence will remain a secret.

Footnote 4: It's important that you know whom you are electing to the Supreme Court. Don't just vote for "name" candidates or on the basis of idiotic TV commercials.

Galileo program builds leadership for teachers current group ends their term as Galileo leaders in May. Shortly after, new groups will be named.

In addition to Northville and Novi, seven school districts in the area participate in Galileo including: Farmington: Oakland Community College: Oakland Schools: Schoolcraft College: Southfield Public Schools: Walled Lake Consolidated Schools; and Wayne Regional Educational Service Area.

Each district's team studies a different aspect of improving education in an effort to get teachers to "try things that are different." Team members conduct their own research.

Northville's team of seven studied the effects of intrinsic motivation on students.

James Cracraft, an eighth grade teacher at Meads Mill Middle School, studied if student-led conferencing would have a positive effect on student control over their work. According to his section of the Galileo Project report, he thought students would be better motivated to increase grades if they were included in the conferences.

He found that 59 percent of students and 62 percent of parents sampled preferred student-led conference to teacher-led conferences. What he got out of the program went beyond statistics, he said.

What I got most out of the pro-gram was an understanding of leadership styles and good expo-sure to different ideas and philosophies," Cracraft said.

Also, he said he liked the idea of practicing what you preach.

*As teachers we need to act as models for lifelong learning." Cracraft said. "By sharing what we study and what we learn from the seminars and speakers, we are doing just that."

The sharing of ideas and working together are exactly what the program aims to do.

We want to encourage teachers to share their ideas with each othter," said Linda Pitcher, assistant superintendent for instructional service in Northville schools. 'Too many times teachers think theire ideas are not valuable or innovative and that's just not true." Nield said she wants Galileo to have a domino effect on teachers who don't participate in the project.

"We want teachers to try something they may not be sure of," she said. "And let them know that even if what they're doing doesn't turn out right, that's OK too."

Galileo's $2.3 million cost is divided into two halves. One half of funding comes from the W.K. Kellogg Foundation. According to the foundation's mission statement, it's goal is to 'help people help them-selves through the practical application of knowledge and resources to improve their quality of life and that of future generations."

The other half comes from each district based on the number of people from it that participate. Nield said Northville's contribution during the six-year program is expected to be about $100,000.

Applications for the next group are being accepted. Pitcher said, and not everyone who applies will be named to the team. In the first round, 21 applications were received.

also has three uncles who are Eagle Scouts. His mother is the Girl Scout Leader for her daughter's troop and his father helps out with the Boy Scout troop.

Always remember measure twice cut once," said Mike of the second lesson he learned.

Mike went ahead and completed an earlier Eagle project creating a walking path at Mill Race along the river's edge. He put in two days and 150 man hours prior to getting approval, which was denied because he didn't follow procedure.

While in Scouting. Mike earned 24 merit badges. He also attended the Philmont Trek, Jamboree 1993 and 1997, and the Florida Seabase 1996.

Daniel Mihalik

Dan Mihalık chose a conservation project as one of the requirements for the coveted Eagle Rank.

He supervised a group of volunteers who planted native wetland shrubs, wildflowers and grasses along a 100-foot stretch of the Middle Rouge River. This stretch of the riverbank, located north of Eight Mile Road between Novi Road and Novi Street, is the property of the City of Northville.

Dan asked the Northville Department of Public Works what needed to be done and was given the conservation project along the river.

"I learned a lot about the native plants of this region, and I learned how to get people to work on a project a lot and how to get materials," said Dan, who is the son of Steve and Susan Mihalik of Northville.

He also expanded a nearby prairie garden and installed a precast concrete bench donated by gardenviews in Northville.

Scouting for the Mihaliks is a family tradition. Dan's father. Steve, and uncle Charles are both Eagle Scouts. Steve is also an assistant scoutmaster. Dan's mother is a Cub Scout den leader. Dan's brothers Jeff. 14, and Scott. 11. are also members of Troop 755. While taking a break from helping with his brother's conservation project. Scott caught a cray-fish. Dan earned 26 merit badges along with the Parvuli Dei Award.

"I've learned a lot about leadership with the Scouts and about working with other people and about serving the community and how it is important to do so," Dan said. "I learned a lot about the outdoors.

A junior at Northville High School. Dan is a member of the symphony and marching bands. past member of the Odyssey of the Mind teams, and a member of the National Honor Society.

Richard Marshall

Rick Marshall's Eagle Scout project was cleaning up the Novi Mountain Bike Trail at Lakeshore Park in Novi. The 6.2 mile long trail was built in the spring of Rick organized a group of volunteers including family, friends and scouts from Troops 54 and 407 and his former Jambo troop, to pull out about 20 tree stumps, fill in pot holes, cut back overgrown bushes, spread wood chips, install signs, plant wildflowers and make two benches.

Rick is the son of Nancy and Tom Marshall of Novi and has a sister. Katie, 16.

He did not join the Scouts until he was in eighth grade. And the thought of attaining the rank of Eagle seemed like an impossibility because he would only have four years in which to complete the requirements.

Now a senior at Novi High School. Rick is also studying culinary arts at Oakland Technical Center. He plans on attending Northern Michigan University in the fall where he will major in culinary arts, hotel and restaurant management.

Rick, 18, has been employed at Steve & Rocky's as a food prep since the Novi restaurant opened in 1998. Last summer he worked at the Grand Hotel on Mackinac Island as a food prep in the hotel's kitchen. He also worked at Guernsey's Farm Dairy in Novi for two years.

Bob Wierzbicki, shown here with his dog Rockey, are among the Michigan Anti-Cruelty Society volunteers who will man the satellite adoption center at PetSmart in Northville.

Massage therapy is topic at Voices and Visions

Massage Therapist Joyce Krause will open the Voices and Visions series for 1999 on Tuesday, Jan. 26. at 7 p.m. at the Northville District Library. Her topic will be "What Massage Therapy Is - and What It Isn't."

The nationally certified practitioner is a graduate of the Ann Arbor Institute of Massage Therapy and received her certification in August 1997. She has an associates degree in science from Schoolcraft College and is now in her last semester toward a degree in occupational therapy from Eastern Michigan University.

Krause will bring her chair for neck and shoulder massage for demonstration purposes. Volunteers are welcome to participate. To guarantee seating. registration by phone at (248) 349-3020 or in person at the library is required.

The Voices and Visions series sponsored by the Friends of the Northville District Library was started in September 1997 and has since brought a variety of speakers and hundreds of listeners to the library.

The Northville Library is located at 212 West Cady Street in downtown Northville. There is ample parking and all Voices and Visions events are free and open to the public.

By JASON SCHMITT Sports Ed.tor

The day began with 32 teams looking to take home the championship trophy at the Cereal City Invitational. The day ended with 31 unsatisfied teams, among which was Northville.

The Mustang volleyball team finished sixth in the silver bracket. and finished second out of their initial pool. Northville topped Jackson Northwest 12-15, 15-13, 15-8 in their first championship round match, but then lost to Marshall 8-battled back after losing the opening game. The match pitted Huetter against her former AAU coach. In the second game. Julie Bozyk served 10 points to help her team force a game three.

Against Jackson, the Mustangs

In that game, Betsy Goodrich had four-straight kills to lead the team to the win. "We changed the lineup a bit and the girls seemed to step up and play well, Huetter said.

In early pool play, Northville fell to Lakewood 1-15, 9-15 to open up the day. "They were our toughest opponent all day long," said the coach. We had a tough time putting the ball away, but we were passing and setting well."

The Mustangs went on to defeat North Muskegon 15-7, 15-10 and Lansing Everett 15-6, 15-3 to advance to a power pool.

There, Northville dropped consecutive matches to Potterville and Eaton Rapids. Potterville beat the Stangs 15-7, 15-7 and Eaton Rapids followed that up with a 15-7. 15-10 win.

Mentally, we weren't in those matches," Huetter said. "But those were the only two matches we weren't in all day long. Everything was off."

For the tournament, Janel Hasse led the team with 23 kills, 19 digs. five aces and five solo blocks. Meredith Hasse had 17 kills and Bozyk and Beth Gillis added 16 and 15. Christina Chase and Bozyk each had five aces and Meredith Hasse had four solo blocks.

ymnasts

By JASON SCHMITT Sports Editor

For Northville/Novi, the Salem Invite was a chance to see not how it stacked up against each other. but against some of the state's best teams

Unlike last year, the Mustang gymnastics team did not dominate the competition. But the team did find out some glaring weaknesses and some shining areas on a team trving to find its identity.

The Stangs finished sixth out of 22 teams, scoring 133.25 points. Rochester won the competition with 141.45 followed by Brighton (140.7). Troy (138.7), Holt (134.95) and Hartland's B-team (134.9).

Northville/Novi placed in two of the events, but came up flat in the other two.

Jennifer Rohlfs' 9.2 on the bars led the team to a third-place finish in the event. Also scoring for the team were Monica Fink (8.5). Undsey Carlson (8.45) and Andrea Ledbetter (8.15). The third-place finish was the best in any event for Northville/Novi.

The team also placed in the vault competition. The Mustangs' placed fifth. with Carlson's 9.15 leading the way. Rohlfs' scored an 8.8, Ledbetter an 8.3 and Julie Glock added an 8.25 to score for the team

These two events are definitely going to be a strength for us." coach Laura Moyers said. *But we still have some things to work on. Hopefully we can continue to improve each week as the season goes on."

The Mustangs struggled a bit on the beam. Rohlfs (8.7) and Carlson (8.4) fared well, but Ledbetter (7.6) and Fink (7.0) had trouble finding their balance. The team did not place in this event.

After suffering through an early-season nonconference schedule that saw the team off to a 1-3 record, the Northville basketball team welcomed its conference opener Friday night at Farmington. The Mustangs defeated the Falcons 54-47, moving to 1.0 in conference play and 2-3 overall. "We took control of the game early on and led all the way," coach Scott Baldwin said. "I think we caught them off guard a little bit. The game was never really in doubt."

Northville's game plan was to dish the ball off inside to its big players, which it did. Sophomore forward David Gregor scored a game-high 17 points and grabbed eight rebounds to lead Northville. Senior forward Marshall Knapp had 11 points and guards Ryan Eller and Brett Allen added 10 and nine respectively. Allen also dished off 13 assists from the point.

David kept scoring like he was a senior." Baldwin said. *And Brett played selflessly. We thought he'd be a force down low for us this year, but because of deficiencies at other positions, he's had to play a totally different

Following up an impressive win over Novi on Jan. 5, the Northville wrestlers manhandled league foe Farmington Hills Harrison 71-3 last Thursday on the road.

The Mustangs won 13 of 14 matches and collected seven falls en route to the demolition, which was their first conference matchup of the season.

"We tried to move the kids around a little," coach Bob Townsend said. "We were just trying to play with our lineup a bit."

After Ravi Saran won by void at 103, Jeremy Carter picked up his second pin of the week, this time at 112. He beat Harrison's Chris Yhevlon in just 51 seconds. Earlier in the week he pinned his Novi opponent.

Nick Williams and Kevin Arbuckle each picked up a major decision. Williams topped Steve Sargol 13-5 at 119 and Arbuckle topped Justin Schafer 13-1 at 125. Anant Saran pinned Chris Kuclo in just :30 at 130 pounds and Reggie Torrence won by void at the next class. Chad Neumann topped Harrison's top wrestler. Jake Taylor. 5-1 at 140 and Dan Scappaticci upped his season record to 10-1 with a pin at :43 over Mike Cripps.

Brent Warmington won by vold at 160 and John Reckoumis came through with a pin in :56 over Dominick Carduzzi at 171 pounds. Rvan McCracken remained undefeated at 12-0 this season after pinning Ian Cole in 3:21. Ryan Giles (215) and Ted Bowersox (heavyweight) each picked up falls to end the match. Giles pinned Brian Doughty in :55 and Bowersox needed just :48 to pin Francois Berreman.

Since coming back from the break, Townsend said his team has been more focused and has been practicing well.

"Our attitude is better," he said. "Coming into the season I think the guys expected to do well on talent alone. But as we always say, you wrestle like you practice. I think after a few tough matches early on, they're now motivated.

Northville will wrestle Canton tonight at Canton High School in a Western Division matchup. Saturday the team will compete in the six-team Fenton Quad.

Scholar-athlete award draws record number of student applicants

A record number of schools submitted applications for the Michigan High School Athletic Association's Scholar-Athlete Award for the 1998-99 school year. The program, which has been recognizing student-athletes since the 1989-90 school year. honors 24 individuals, one in each sport in which the association sponsors a post-season tournament.

Farm Bureau Insurance underwrites the Scholar-Athlete Award. and presents a $1,000 scholarship in each sport.

Å record 504 MHSAA member schools submitted applications for this year's awards. The total number of applications, however, fell just short of last year's record of 2,785, with 2,784 applications received.

In addition, a record 1.094 student-athletes will be recognized as Additional Qualifiers for having met the eligibility criteria for the award, even though they were not a scholarship nominee from their school. All will be presented with certificates commemorating their achievement. This year's figure tops last year's record of 997.

The overall number of students recognized in this program set a record at 3,878; besting last year's mark of 3,782.

Every MHSAA member high school is allowed to select one student-athlete to represent it in each sport, and an individual may be nominated in more than one sport. East Lansing and Troy Athens led the way in participation this year with 19 scholarship nominees each. It's the third time in e past four years that East Lansing has led the nomination field. Ökemos, Midland Dow, Grosse Pointe South and Ann Arbor Pioneer each had 18 applicants: Waterford Mott. Spring Lake and Ann Arbor Huron each had 17; Three Rivers. St. Johns. Grosse Pointe North. Flint Powers Catholic and Plymouth Canton each had 16; and Sturgis. Croswell-Lexington and Detroit Country Day each had 15 applicants.

To be eligible for the award, students must have a cumulative grade point average of 3.5 (on a 4.0 scale), and have previously won a varsity letter in the sport in which they are applying. Students were also asked to shown involvement in other school and community activities, submit two letters of recommendation and a 500word essay on the importance of sportsmanship in educational athletics.

The applications will be judged by a 58-member committee of school coaches, counselors, faculty members, administrators and board members from MHSAA member schools. Finalists in all sports will be announced by Jan. 29. Fall sports scholarship recipients will be announced on Feb. 10: winter sports recipients on Feb. 17; and spring sports winners will be announced on Feb. 24.

To honor the 24 Scholar-Athlete Award recipients, a ceremony will take place during halftime of the Class C Boys Basketball Finals at the Breslin Student Events Center in East Lansing on March 27.

No weight-loss formula is exact

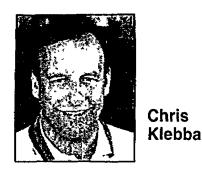

"As I reviewed the questions and concerns from our clients this week, undoubtedly the number one concern I was confronted with, as probably most fitness professionals are this time of the year, is What is the right formula to lose weight? I have tried this high protein plan or that low fat plan ..."

With the average person 5 to 10 pounds heavier after the holiday season and resolutions in full swing, this concern is certainly not a surprise. What is and continues to be a surprise year after year is our continual effort to seek out the "magic formula" or the "quicker. easier, weight loss plan."

This plan for most people ends up being what is the most heavily marketed plan at the time. which unfortunately is not always the right plan to help you reach and maintain your goals. or to move you closer to better overall health and wellness. Losing weight does not automatically indicate you are moving towards better health. Let me explain.

First off, for the record. I am not a registered dietitian or nutritionist, rather a fitness trainer with a basic understanding of how the body works. If I were to give one bit of advice to people after almost 20 years experience in the fitness field, is you must push through all these opinions and cute marketing names and ground your plan in how the human body works. Your plan must account for your individual characteristics and lifestyle. In other words, there is no one plan for everyone or else we would all have it and look and feel just how we desire.

There is one overriding process that undeniably affects all of us when it comes to body weight. It is called "thermogenisis." In simple terms, it means if we eat more calories than we expend, we will have created a surplus. If you continue this surplus, the body will store this excess body fat in those areas we do not like (side of our waist, low waist, and hip area).

The other option of course is to burn more calories than we eat and create a deficit forcing the body to use stored body fat for fuel. This in time will reduce and tone those special areas of the body that you are probably focused on.

As simple as this process seems, it is not simple to implement and continue. This involves proper guidance and counseling and lifestyle modifications which is an entire column in itself. I guess the point of this column is to get you thinking in the right direction and make you cautious about that new "super weight loss^{*} plan.

Lately, one of the most popular plans is being heavily marketed under a variety of names but is essentially a high protein. low carbohydrate plan. Think of the thermogenisis process. If it is calorie amount that affects weight, we can gain weight from too much protein, carbohydrates or fat.

There is a proper balance needed to achieve your goal if it includes (and I hope it does) being healthy. In simple terms, your body weight involves one of three areas: water, lean muscle mass, and body fat. If you lose 5 pounds for example and it is from water or muscle, you probably will not maintain this loss and you are further from excellent health. You have effectively dehydrated yourself and lost valuable muscle.

We continue to eat no- or low-fat foods, but banishing fat from your diet will not increase fat loss. It will instead deprive you of the necessary fat soluble vitamins and essential fatty acids. You will also have a tougher time feeling "full" since fat increases this sensation.

Throwing carbohydrates out is not the answer either. But do choose, carbohydrates containing the sugar fructose as much as possible. Fructose is found in fruits and high quality drinks, and fructose does not cause an insulin response.

Also, too much protein has numerous negative side effects, including the depletion of glycogen stores, which causes overeating and slows the body's metabolic rate. The increased cravings combined with burning fewer calories, usually leads dieters to regain any weight lost and more.

Your ideal balance depends on many variables. On average, protein and fat should make up between 10-30 percent of your diet and complex carbohydrates the remaining balance. Of course, total calorie intake must be lower than what you burn.

If the goal is weight loss from body fat, the bottom line is that excess calories cause excess pounds. Good luck.

Don't forget the reasons why you want to quit in the first place. When it's getting tough or you have the urge to have just one puff, there is help out there for you to turn to. Remember you can do this.

Once you decided on or are interested in quitting smoking, you have to face the barriers so you know what you are facing and how to deal with it. Have you tried to quit before? If so, what made you go back to it? Do you smoke more when you are under stress or did fear of failure or weight gain is their reason for not quitting. If you are aware that weight gain is a potential issue, prepare for it. In some people, the most that would be gained is 5 to 10 pounds. To prepare for the weight gain you could go for walks or eat healthier. According to the American Lung Association, don't go on a diet, just eat a normal balanced diet with more fruit and vegetables and fill up on starchy foods like rice, potatoes and noodles and bread without added fat.

Dealing with quitting is different for everyone. You have to decide for yourself what is the best way. According to Michigan Department of Community Health, get very serious about exercise, it's a great tranquilizer. Some other possibilities according to American Cancer Society are relaxation exercises these help relieve the urge to smoke, you close your eyes, take a deep breath and think to yourself that you can do this. You can also take a hot bath, or drink a cup of hot chocolate. You can go for walks in the evening when you have the urge to have a cigarette, it will make you feel better. If you really have the urge to have a cigarette anytime during the day or in the evening, you could chew gum, or do a crossword puzzle to keep your mind off smoking and have your hands doing something also. Remember to have a positive attitude from the beginning to the end. Being positive about quitting will result in being a successful nonsmoker.

Now with the holidays coming up, you want to make sure you follow through on your smoking cessation. According to the American Cancer Society. shopping and cooking keeps your mind off smoking. Making holiday decorations will keep your mind off smoking and keeps your hands doing something also. When having that festive dinner, remember not to overindulge and eat slowly and pause between bites. After dinner when you want to reach for a cigarette, treat yourself to a mint or drink a club soda or chew gum. There is plenty of support and ideas to help you cope with smoking cessation. Talk to your family and friends. Let them know that you are quitting and get their support. They are probably willing to help you achieve your goal. Talking with your local pharmacist can help also, they are there to help you. HOW TO

Don't try to repaint kitchen countertops

By Gene Gary COPLEY NEWS SERVICE

What is the best way to change the color of a dark laminate on kitchen cabinets and countertops? Is there a special paint for this?

A. Plastic laminate can be painted if the proper primer is applied prior to the finish coat. A primer such as Zinsser's B-I-N Primer-Sealer or Sherwin-Williams Industrial Maintenance Coatings DTM Bonding Primer can be used to coat the smooth laminate and provide a durable base coat to which a quality latex or oil-based paint will adhere. Use a solution of TSP mixed with water (trisodium phosphate available at your paint dealer) to clean all dirt and grease from the surface prior to the primer application.

Painting can be satisfactory for your cabinets, but it is not recommended for kitchen countertop surfaces. These surfaces are subject to all sorts of abuse, including food chopping and hot pots off the stove. Your counter surfaces get too much wear and tear for paint to hold up well over a plastic laminate. You can have a new plastic laminate applied over the existing surface. This is a fairly easy application for someone with carpentry skills and general know-how.

9. We purchased a house which was built in 1952. The porcelain bathtub finish is chipped, cracked and stained. Due to the bathroom layout and construction, it would be very difficult to remove this tub and replace it with a new unit. It there a durable paint that we can use to refurbish the surface? I have also heard of bathtub liners that are supposed to cover the existing tub. Would this be a good solution to our problem?

A. Porcelain bathtubs can be refinished with an epoxy-base coating, and there are kits on the market for do-it-yourselfers. However, it would not be my recommendation. This type of coating is difficult to apply and lasts only a maximum of five years, probably less with frequent use. However, there are professionals who specialize in bathtub refinishing.

The pros use a powerful etching agent in the preparation process, and the recoating they apply is very durable, lasting 10 to 12 years with normal use. The coatings the profession-als apply can also be used on wall tiles or floor tiles if a color change is desired.

A bathtub liner is another viable option. The custom-molded, one-piece liners come in hundreds of shapes and sizes, designed to fit over existing bathtubs. The material is an attractive high-impact resistant plastic that will not chip, dent, crack or peel.

Picking the right shovel can help make the task easier if not enjoyable

<None>ANNETTE JAWORSKI SPECIAL WRITER

With over a foot of snow local residents are now left with the thankless task of digging out from under mountains of the white stuff. And since recent winters have been relatively mild, many people now have to become reacquainted with their snow shovel.

You may be surprised to find that your local hardware store carries a variety of sizes and shapes.

Ann Troschinetz, clerk at Black's Hardware in Northville, says a lot depends on the size of the person and the job when choosing a shovel.

Her favorite is an ergonomically correct shovel by Ames with a bent handle, because it's easier on the back. Seniors and women tend to like it because it creates less strain on the back. It costs about $15.99.

Depending on the job, you'll need to choose whether you want metal or plastic. Plastic is lighter to handle, and is usually preferred. However Troschinetz said that in extreme cold such as below zero metal is more durable, even though it tends to be heavy.

"A metal shovel is really good to use when the snow is hard. It helps to breaks through the really hard stuff," Troschinetz said.

There are a variety of snow shovels on the market. Jessica Black, left, uses a ErgoConcert shovel, while Ann Troschinetz, demonstrates a wide blade SnowBlazer. Both are employees of Black's Hardware in Northville.

Some of the plastic models have a metal strip on the bottom for durability and to help break through frozen ice and snow.

Another factor to consider is the chore when selecting a shovel. This would help determine the best size for you.

Narrow ones are good for sidewalks, wide ones are good for driveways or large areas." she pointed out.

There's even the ultimate shovel for big areas and big snows called the PolyScoop at $34.99. It looks more like a wagon or wheelbarrow without wheels with a 26" scoop, you just push, instead of pulling and lifting.

Take a look at the handle, also. Some of them have a built in "handle" at the end, points out Troschinetz. This makes it easier to get a grip, when scooping up the snow. Some come with just a plain stick, or straight end, like the end of a broom.

The actual stick or handles are usually made out of either metal or wood. Here she prefers the metal. because after a certain amount of wear and tear the wooden ones can splinter on your hands. If you're in it for the long haul, the metal one tends to be colder to hang on to. Best to use those with insulated gloves or on a short-term project.

Last but not least, look at the length of the handle. Choose one in proportion to your size. longer for those who are taller and shorter for those of small or average height.

To be prepared for an emergency, there's even two Ames shovels at $19.99 that fit in the trunk of a car. One has a handle that folds to take up less space in the trunk.

For a good basic shovel. Troschinetz, recommends the Lantz Snowmover at $7.99. Made of lightweight red plastic, and an average length handle, it's practical and inexpensive. For those reasons, it's one of their most popular styles. The other best seller includes an Ames plastic model with a two-foot scoop and wooden handle at $13.00.

Black's also sells a gadget called the Handle Thing. which you can hook onto your shovel so that you don't have to bend over with a shovel full of snow.

supplier in your area.

G. Included in our home-remodeling project is an added bathroom. We are doing the work ourselves, and our concern is how to adequately waterproof the drywall panels in the bathroom above the tub. We are concerned that moisture will penetrate the wall and damage the insulation and wiring behind it. Is ceramic tile the answer?

A. The best solution is to use water-resistant drywall in any bath area to prevent moisture problems. This is often required by local building codes. This type of drywall is called tilebacker or greenback drywall. It's available at building supply stores for a little more than regular drywall.

It's installed in the same manner as ordinary drywall. You can paint this surface or use it as the base surface for tile. Tile alone will not protect the ordinary drywall from moisture. Moisture will seep through the grout lines and cause damage to the drywall underneath as well as impair the adhesion of your wall tiles.

Q. I have Formica countertops in my kitchen that have become dull and dingy. Is there any recommended cleaning method which can restore the original look?

A. The original patina of laminated-plastic countertops can be protected by avoiding cleaners that are abrasive or the use of strong chemicals. These cleaners destroy the glossy finish. Once destroyed, the original luster cannot be restored.

I have had some readers suggest that periodic rubbing with car wax or a silicone sealer or the use of gel gloss (often used on fiberglass) will help restore the shine. The recommended method for cleaning laminated countertops is to use a mild dishwashing detergent and warm water for regular cleaning.

Some of the milder commercial cleaners such as Fantastik, 409 or Cinch are also good for cleaning and removal of kitchen grease. Stubborn stains can be treated by scrubbing with a wet sponge and baking soda. The baking soda dissolves in water and is not abrasive enough to damage the surface.

Full-strength household bleach can also be used. Do not pour directly onto the countertop. Instead, use a soft cloth saturated in bleach to wipe the surface. Rinse with water.

Condo timeshare may be on verge of resurgence

By James M. Woodard COPLEY NEWS SERVICE

The road toward resort condo timeshare ownership has been a rocky one. High-pressure and sometimes shady marketing methods, particularly during the 1980s, left a bad impression in the minds of many consumers. But changes are in the wind.

In addition to past problem marketing techniques that tarnished the image of timesharing. many buyers faced the problem of reselling their condo timeshare unit after they realized they really didn't need or want it. They found a slim market for their unit.

Few brokers wanted to bother with it. And they often resorted to promotional auctions, set up to resell unwanted timeshare units. This usually netted the seller a small portion of the money invested.

However, recent surveys reveal a growing interest in resort condo timeshares. Some developers have cleaned up their marketing act, making their product more appealing to prospective buyers. And more consumers are indicating an active interest to acquiring a timeshare unit.

A national study shows that about 80 percent of timeshare owners are now satisfied with their timeshare purchase. And more than half (54 percent) of those surveyed expressed interest in staying in a condo resort during the next two years.

One survey, conducted by Resort Condomini-ums International, revealed that 77 percent of timeshare owners believe resort timesharing has a positive impact on their looking forward to vacations. And 73 percent of respondents agree that they have enjoyed vacations more since owning a timeshare unit.

Keep in mind that the survey and resulting report were produced by RCI, a firm that's in the business of handling timeshare exchanges. They now have 3,400 affiliated resorts in nearly 90 countries and are always looking for more. They might be just a bit biased in structuring the survey and their findings.

However, their report is interesting and consistent with other reports I've received in recent weeks.

The survey showed that 72 percent of respondents have enjoyed more vacation destinations since owning a timeshare unit (accomplished through exchanges with other owners). And 71 percent agree they have had a wider range of vacation experiences since owning a unit.

People who want the certainty of staying in quality resort condos should look into timesharing and unit exchanging." said Ron Jackson, president of RCI North America. "Although there is a more than 80 percent satisfaction rate, the more telling statistic is that more than 75 percent said they recommend resort timesharing to their friends.

He noted that there are now nearly 4 million people living in 200 countries who currently own timeshare units, and that number is growing.

Shovel before snow gets too deep

And don't forget to stock up on salt. Black's carries 50-pound bags of rock salt and potassium. Potassium is easier on concrete, she said. It's not as harsh, you don't use as much, and it works at colder temperatures. Potassium runs $9.95 for 50 pounds and rock salt $4.99 for 50 pounds. However in sub-zero temperatures. neither will melt ice, she added.

Troschinetz had a few snow shoveling tips.

1.) Use your arms and legs, not your back.

2.) Don't let it pile up. Although it might seem fruitless. Troschinetz recommends that you don't wait and shovel everything at once when there's a large snowfall.

"Shovel your snow halfway through, even though more is coming and it won't be as hard," she said.

3. Last of all, use common sense, "Get well bundled up, and take your time."

Black's True Value located at 42939 Seven Mile Road in Northville, is one of the few area stores that still have a great selection of shovels in stock. Owner's Bob and Donna Black were wise enough to stock up during the past few years, when their hasn't been as much snow and demand for shovels.

CREATIVE LIVING-January 14, 1999-3C Hull Pottery has compiled collector's encyclopedia

By Anne McCollam COPLEY NEWS SERVICE

Q. Enclosed is a picture of a pair of vases that we have had for more than 40 years. They belonged to my husband's grandmother and are in perfect condition. On the bottom are the words 'Hull U.S.A. - 502 - 6 1/2."

What are they worth today and how old are they?

A. Hull Pottery Co. in Crooksville, Ohio, made your vases in the mid 1940s. The pattern is Dogwood. The number 502 is a design number and "6 1/2" is • the size.

"The Collectors Encyclopedia of Hull "Pottery" by Brenda Roberts lists your vases at $220 to $310 each.

9. This mark is on the bottom of a hand-painted porcelain fruit bowl that I have. The bowl is decorated with handpainted cherries and foliage and trimmed in gold. The artist, Guillayme, has signed his name below the design.

Can you tell me the age and value of my bowl?

A. Tirschenreuth Porcelain Factory in Tirschenreuth. Bavaria. Germany. made your bowl in the early 1900s. They have made porcelain since 1838.

The value of your fruit bowl would probably be about $75 to $125.

Q. I have a 1960 John F. Kennedy campaign button. Does it have any value?

A. Just about anything related to Kennedy has a value. Value of political buttons is based on size, significance of political figure, condition and availability. Since you failed to provide a detailed description of your political pin-back button. I can't provide a specific answer

The following examples should give you an idea of values. The "Kennedy for President" with his portrait is listed at $10, the six-inch celluloid JFK inaugural button at $15, the red-white-and-blue "Youth for Kennedy" button at $200 and the red-onwhite "Vote the Kennedy Ticket" at $315. These prices are for buttons in near mint and excellent condition.

Q. My husband's grandmother gave us a cranberry-glass biscuit jar with pewter lid and handle. It was given to her in the late 1890s and is in excellent condition.

What can you tell us about it?

A. Cranberry glass is transparent glass that ranges from dark pink to the ruby red color of cranberry juice. It was ressed, free-blown or mold blown.

Mt. Washington, Northwood, Steuben, New England and Hawkes were some of the major American manufacturers in the 19th century. Cranberry-glass attained its height of popularity after the Civil War.

Collectors beware, there are reproductions that can be difficult to distinguish from early pieces. Values range from $250 to $695 for similar jars.

Q. Twenty-five years ago we purchased a cottage in Michigan that had a Victorian youth bed which was left behind. The headboard is decorated with a cartouche at the top along with scrolls and finials. There are burled panels on the footboard. The wood is walnut.

We were told the style is Renaissance Revival.

What is the approximate age and value? A. Your youth bed was made around 1870 to 1880. It would probably be

These Hull Pottery vases are worth about $220 to $310 each.

Body Recall course help senior citizens get fit

Exercise program is designed for the 'living longer generation'

By AMY KEMNIC

Get ready, get set, EXERCISE. For some, that means paying for a gym membership. For others, it means buying a new bike or a good pair of running shoes. For most people, it remains the "no pain, no gain" mindset.

But, move over, aerobics; there is another alternative. It's slow and gentle, non-aerobic, but still can tone and firm and provide overall flexibility. It's called Body Recall, and, while it has become popular with senior citizens. it really can benefit just about anybody. according to Brighton area resident Heather Thybault, a certified Body Recall instructor who runs classes at several Livingston County senior centers.

"It's designed for the 'living longer' population, but it works just as well for baby boomers." Thybault said. It's a safe, nonstrenuous form of exercise that promotes flexibility and strength.

"It's the only program that actually teaches how to recover (from the floor) from a fall," she added. "And, the flexibility and strength (achieved) will make the recovery period shorter."

Thybault teaches the program Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings at the Howell Senior Center and Tuesday and Thursday mornings at the Hartland Senior Center. She also teaches a class Monday and Wednesday afternoons at the South Lyon Senior Center.

The program was developed in 1979 by Dorothy Chrisman, a physical education instructor at Berea College in Kentucky. Based on the premise that a supple body can better resist injury and cope with stress, the program focuses on flexibility development. Moveand walking motions, with a chair as one of the main pieces of exercise equipment.

Body Recall was recognized by the 1995 White House Conference on Aging, and also has been noted by the American Association of Retired People (AARP), the President's Council on Physical Fitness and the United States Public Health Services Office of Disease Prevention and Health Promotion.

While anyone can benefit from the program, it's specifically targeted toward those who may be overweight: diabetic: recovering from surgery, injury or illness; recovering heart patients; and those who suffer from joint pain. ostcoporosis, fibromyalgia, Parkinson's Disease or depression.

It can be done by new mothers or mothers-to-be, as well as those who are handicapped or wheelchair bound.

"When the body is performing and moving correctly, it will function better," Thybault said. "We've had people who couldn't climb stairs or take baths (before the program) who now can (do those things).

"It's not the 'no pain, no gain, "she added. "It's isolated movement that doesn't increase the heart rate."

Body Recall classes are available at beginning, intermediate and advanced levels, and Thybault will form more classes if potential students are interested. She has taught the program for several pate in retraining programs, as years, having first heard about it from her mother, who is a senior center director in Holly. well. lege staff in 1950, and developed

Thousands expected to see the show

The Plymouth International Ice Sculpture Spectacular is the oldest and largest ice carving event in North America. Each year more than 500,000 visitors come to see hundreds of professional, amateur, college and high school students transform 400,000 pounds of block ice into works of art. Last year the event attracted more than 750,000 visitors. Attendance over the life of this 17-year-old event is more than nine million.

Carvers come from all over the United States, Canada, Japan, Norway, Russia and Switzerland.

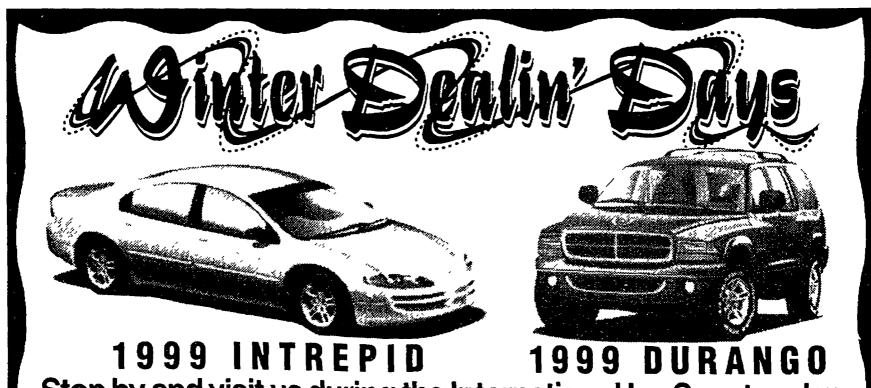

"Most people who are into ice carving want to come to this event," said organizer Mike Watts.

The event is composed of displays and competitions. The competitions are sanctioned by the American Culinary Federation. More than $10,000 in prize money, scholarships and

One man's crazy dream

By RALPH R. ECHTINAW STAFF WRITER rechtinaw@oe.homecomm.net

In a way, the CBS news program "60 Minutes" is responsible for the Plymouth International Ice Sculpture Spectacular being the huge annual event it is.

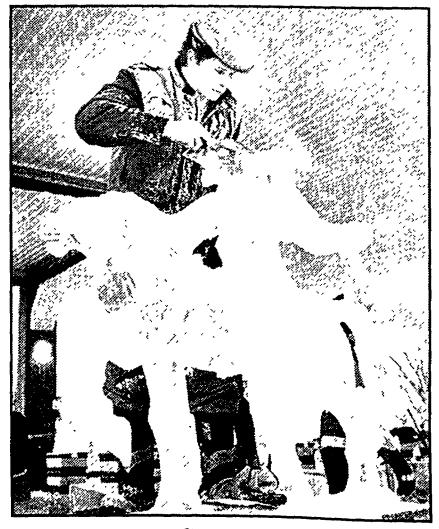

Plymouth resident Scott Lorenz was inspired to inaugurate the event in 1983 after seeing a piece "60 Minutes" did on the Sapporo Snow Festival in Japan.

"I thought it was fabulous," said Lorenz, who then thought, "If they can do it in Japan, we can do something like it in Plymouth. We've got pretty much the same lousy weather."

Lorenz pitched the idea to then-city manager Hank Graper, who scoffed at first, but later the same day phoned Lorenz to say he lined up a few thousand dollars in private donations to bankroll the show.

Lorenz and Graper bought some ice from the Midwest Ice Co. and enlisted several carvers, including culinary arts students and teachers from Schoolcraft College. They only had about a dozen sculptures that first year, but there were more than 200 in 1984.

Among the first group of carvers in 1983 was Ted Wakar, then a culinary arts student at Schoolcraft. Wakar, now a Canton resident, has participated in every Plymouth ice show "one way or another" ever since, usually with his brother-in-law, Jim Bur Jr.

You the man: Plymouth resident Scott Lorenz founded the Plymouth ice show 17 years ago.

Wakar and Bur entered the Sapporo ice carving contest two years ago and became the first non-Japanese carvers to win first place.

Nowadays, the Plymouth ice show is the oldest and largest ice carving event in North America, attracting more than 500,000 visitors to Western Wayne County.

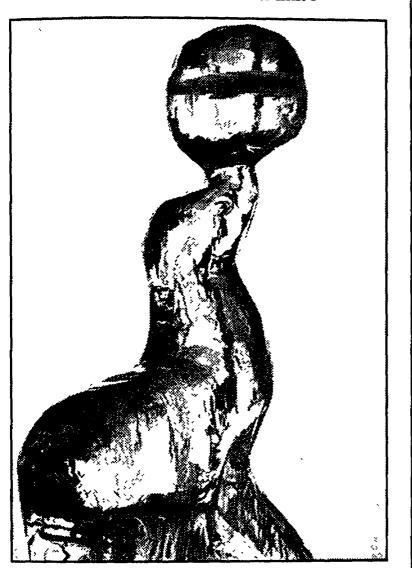

Carvers number in the hundreds now, including professionals, amateurs, college and high school students and local celebrities like Judy Coy, who does the weather on WJR radio.

Carvers from all over the United States, Canada, Japan, Norway, Russia and Switzerland routinely participate in the event. A contingent of American ice carvers, featuring a group associated with the Plymouth ice show, were invited to the 1998 Winter Olympics in Nagano, Japan. Lorenz and Graper managed the show until Graper left the city's employ in 1989. The show has been managed since 1991 by S. Michael Watts, president and owner of Watts Up of Plymouth. Lorenz still attends the ice show and enjoys seeing the wild success of something he created. "I get a warm, fuzzy feeling every January," he said. "The biggest joy I get is when I see the kids get a kick out of it."

Better off Ted: Canton resident Ted Wakar has been involved with the Plymouth ice show since its inception.

awards will be given away.

Of special interest to young visitors is the Farmer Jack Fantasyland, presented in association with First of America Bank and Media One. This year's theme is "Insects Inside" and features displays of wild and crazy bugs. Electric trains will complement the Fantasyland display, weaving in and out of the sculptures.

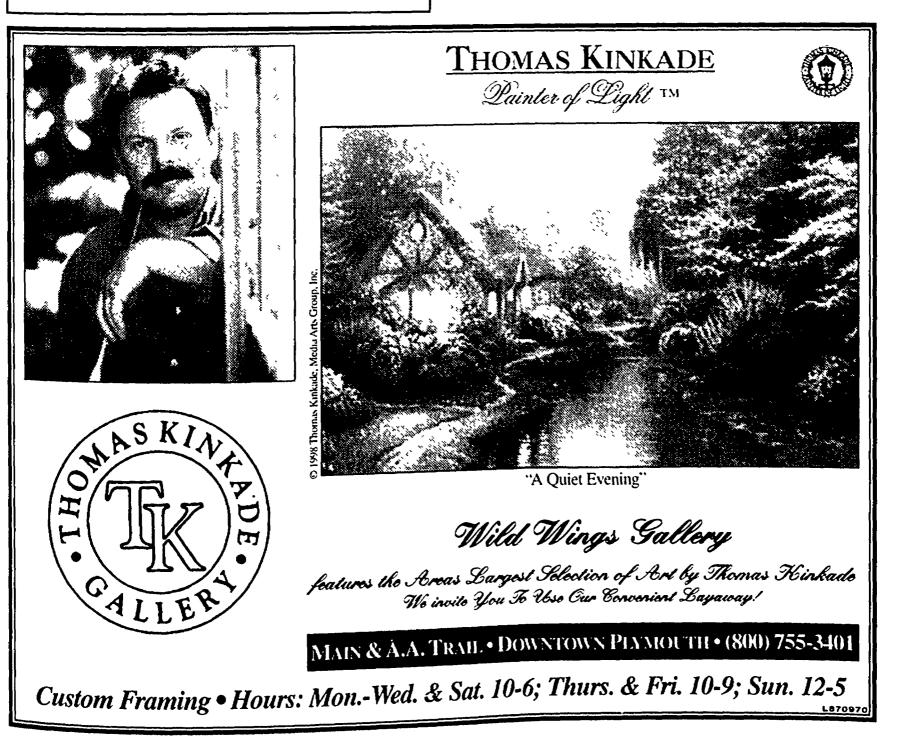

Weary ice show visitors can rest their dogs and buy something to eat Saturday and Sunday at the Family Warming Center in the Plymouth Masonic Lodge. The refreshments will be prepared by the Schoolcraft Community College Culinary Arts Department.

Unlike any other annual Plymouth event, the ice spectacular is open 24 hours a day, as many of the carvers work through the night.

Sculptures are lighted in the evening, and the Bud Light 24 Light Show gives the carvings a whole different look than sunlight does.

Watts said the show costs $150,000 to put on, with the overwhelming majority of that coming from corporate sponsors.

For more information, call the event hotline number (734) 459-9157, or visit http://oeonline.com/plymouthice on the World Wide Web.

As far as shopping weeks go, the week of the ice show is probably the best week of the year, said Plymouth Community Cham-

Community Chamber of Commerce Director Fran Toney. "The ice spectacular is economic development at its very best. People are making money right and left." Visitors spend money in stores and restaurants, and business owners in turn spend money at other businesses, Toney said. "It dominos all over the community."

Native West shopkeeper Annette Horn agreed that business booms during the ice show. "It's phenomenal," she said. "One time there were so many people in here we almost had to lock the doors." An employee going from one end of the small store to the other needed four minutes to make the trip, Horn said.

Like many Plymouth business owners, Horn pays to have an ice sculpture in front of her store, which helps get people inside where she has a special display of wood and metal Indian sculptures for sale. Many ice show visitors fall in love with Plymouth, and some of them want to move in, Toney said. "It's like they've discovered this wonderful thing," she said. "They'll come in and say to you, "This town is gorgeous! Where's a Realtor?"" RE/MAX 100 Realtor Rosemary Firestone said it's true. Every year after the ice show she gets calls from people interested in relocating to Plymouth.

The chamber works overtime during the show, and Toney recruits volunteers just to answer the Ice carving has its roots in the culinary arts, and so it's no surprise that culinary arts departments of local community colleges are heavily involved in the Plymouth ice show.

Expected to participate this year are students and chef instructors from Schoolcraft College, Henry Ford Community College, Oakland Community College, Macomb Community College and Monroe Community College.

Chef Dan Hugelier will bring 20 students from Schoolcraft College and help them build a City of Atlantis scene, including seahorses, mermaids and a sea serpent using 30-40 blocks of ice. The students represent two ice carving classes, beginning and advanced, that will meet for the first time at the ice show. About half the students will also enter individual and team ice-carving contests. They're quite a friendly and enthusiastic group, Hugelier said. "It's 'Mr. Holland's Opus.' It's become like our little football team."

HFCC will be represented by the Ice and Snow Sculpturing Club and chef Richard Teeple. Among his former students, Teeple counts world champion ice carver Ted Wakar of Canton and J.R. Lorentz of Garden City, who started carving five years ago and now has his own carving business. "Now I'm their student," Teeple said. "I go compete against them, and they beat me." About two dozen HFCC ice club students will carve a "Star Wars" scene out of 30 blocks of ice this year with Darth Vader engaged in a light saber battle with Luke Skywalker as R2D2 and C3PO look on. One reason the club is popular, Teeple said, is that ice carving tools are expensive. One chisel can cost up to $500, and a typical professional ice carver will have about $10,000 invested in tools. When the college provides the tools and the ice, students can learn without spending a lot of money.

errence Crown, the senior engineer at Plymouth-based Virtual Engineering, thought he was just airing an absurd idea when he suggested that a working clock could be built from nothing but ice.

"Then this guy picks it up and runs with it," said Crown, gesturing to sales manager

Jeff Root. "Uh-oh, we have to do it now."

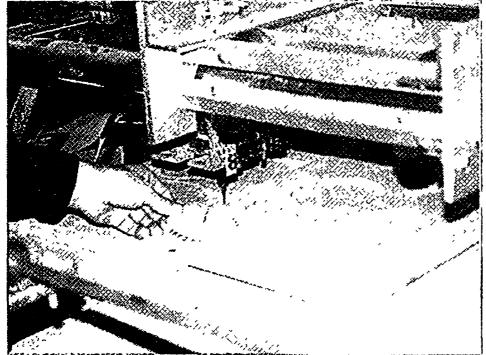

So began the Virtual Engineering ice clock odyssey, which will culminate in an ice cold timepiece this weekend.

"Our goal is that when the sun comes out there's nothing but a puddle of water left," Root said.

Working after hours in their spare time, five of Virtual Engineering's 24 engineers figured out what they'd have to do to build a clock out of ice. Besides Root and Crown, the volunteers are Chris Hill, Paul Korenkiewicz, Dave Pawczuk and Kevin Riutort.

"No one's ever done it," Root said. "We think it's kind of cool. We're all Dilberts, all geeks that are interested in this kind of stuff. We really want to get in the Guinness Book of World Records."

Root expects the gears to be about 3 feet in diameter, 4 inches thick and weigh upwards of 200 pounds.

Accuracy is important. "This stuff has to be right on or it will fall apart," Root said.

Ergo, they've built a 2,000-pound machine that cuts ice using a wooden gear as a guide. The machine, called a "gantry mill," is in Crown's garage in Plymouth. "I told my wife the other day I don't have a garage, I have a shop," he said.

"We're pretty good designers but we're not very good craftsmen," Root said.

The biggest problem they had is what to do about the "escapement." That's a piece of > a mechanical clock that rocks back and forth in the teeth of a gear, giving a clock its tick-tock sound.

A conventional escapement made of ice would break almost immediately, so engineers came up with an alternative design they hope will hold up longer. Still, they plan to replace broken escapements frequently.

If they can't get an ice escapement to work they'll make one out of clear plastic, Root said, and consider that they failed to make a 100 percent ice clock.

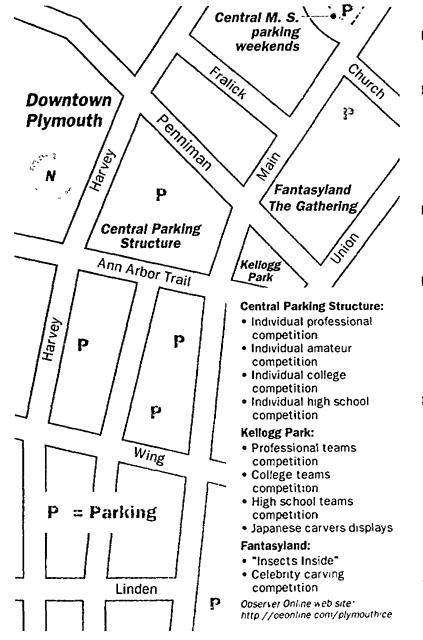

Even if their clock doesn't run they will no doubt have set a record for innovation in ice.

"We're probably the world's foremost authority on gears made of ice," Root said. "If you make your area of expertise small enough you can be an expert on anything."

Take a break at the Masonic Temple

It's become a tradition for many regular visitors of the ice show to take a break from the cold and stop in at the Masonic Temple on Penniman across from Kellogg Park.

The typical menu includes soup, hot dogs, hot chocolate and coffee.

The money raised will be funnelled into various charitable endeavors supported by the four lodges — Plymouth Rock Lodge No. 47, Tyrian Lodge No. 500, William M. Perrett No. 524 and Britannia No. 601 — that meet in the temple.

Locally, the lodges donate up to $1,200 annually to the clothing bank in Plymouth and often assist in scholarship programs for area students.

Oakland Community College culinary arts students will contribute a group of carvings representing characters from the movie "A Bug's Life."

Chef Dan Rowlson said the seven separate carvings will require 40 blocks of ice. Rowlson's theme complements the theme that ice show organizer Mike Watts chose for the children's fantasyland, which is also all about bugs. "Sounds like we're all kind of buggy this year," Rowlson said.

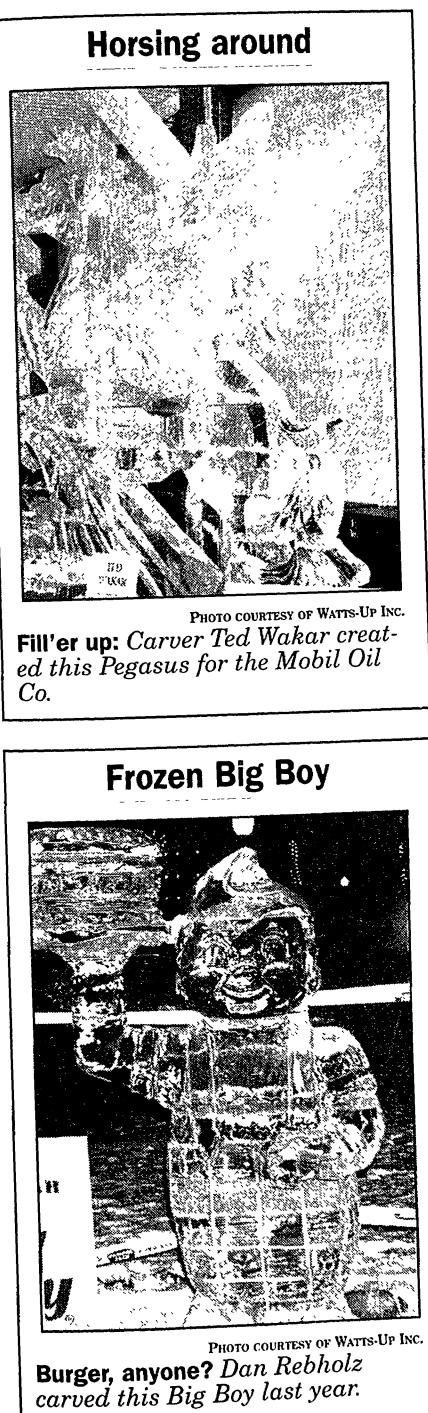

The OCC team will consist of Rowlson, chefs Kevin Enright, Jim Stawara and about 30 students. The students participate as part of their course requirements, but no coercion is necessary, Rowlson said. "They love it," he said. "They'd do it just to do it."

Rowlson likened the carving process to a "construction project" and the carvers to "architects." Everything must be sketched out in advance so a multitude of carvers know exactly what to do. Rowlson will buy "A Bug's Life" dolls to give students a physical reference for their work. Rowlson said the OCC crew will start carving Tuesday and work 12 hours a day through Thursday, when they expect to be finished. Chef Jeff Wolf plans to bring 16 culinary arts students from Macomb Community College to the Plymouth ice show. They intend to build Noah's Ark and several pairs of animals from 48 blocks of ice. "They're really intrigued by Plymouth and the pictures I showed them (of past shows)," Wolf said. "It's such a beautiful show and attracts people from all over the world." Macomb Community College has had an ice carving contingent at the Plymouth show for 15 years now.

This is the fourth year that festival information is available online. The first year, there were 5,000 visits to the Web site.

Watts offers carvers the opportunity to register online and uses computers for much of what he does. He tracks past and potential sponsors by computer. Invoicing is done efficiently with computers. Media are contacted via e-mail.

"It would take a lot more people to put this show on if it weren't for our computers," Watts said.

Ice table: Garden City resident J.R. Lorentz sits at an ice table he carved for Rochester's Winterfest last year.

From auto body man to ace ice carver

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW STAFF WRITER

rechtinaw@oe.homecomm.net

His legal name is Herbert Elibe-Lafayette Lorentz Jr., but folks just call him J.R.

Lorentz worked most of his adult life as an auto body repairman. He didn't carve his first block of ice until he was 31 years old.

Now, at the age of 36, he's got his own company, J.R.'s Ice Sculpture, and earns a living by carving ice (and a little wood) year-round.

The Garden City resident shares a studio in Plymouth with Canton resident and fellow carver Ted Wakar. He plans to carve ice in 11 cities this winter, including Medina, Ohio, and Munster, Ind.

While competing in ice shows, Lorentz usually carves several "street sculptures" which compensate for his expenses. (Those smaller sculptures you see in front of Plymouth businesses this week are street sculptures. The carvers were paid to produce them, and the businesses pay to have the carvings out front.) But Lorentz's mainstay is weddings and parties. For these events the creation is usually an ornate bowl of some kind to hold shrimp or something else that must be kept cold. Lorentz never set out to become an ice carver. He wanted to be a chef. He was training for this at Henry Ford Community College but got sidetracked by ice carving, which is part of the culinary arts curriculum.

CAB 4x4

Please see LORENTZ, PAGE 33

Lorentz trained under chef Richard Teeple at Henry Ford and is a past president of the Henry Ford Community College Ice Carving Club.

As an auto body repairman, Lorentz worked with a variety of tools and "learned a lot of artistic ability from that." But it was unfulfilling. No one oohs and ahhs when you make their fender look new again.

Once he discovered ice carving it seemed like the perfect outlet for his artistic urge. He likes the simplicity of it. "It's the only profession I know of that's biodegradable," he said. "Everything else I can think of there's some type of waste left over."

Ice work if you can get it

A chisel here: Scott Klemme of Macomb Community College works on a display for WCXI.

The French invented it

French chefs began the art of ice sculpturing more than 200 years ago. The first art sculptures were basic designs used as functional food holders to keep food cold during service time for elaborate buffets.

Russians learned the art from French chefs at the turn of the 18th century.

The first well documented ice palace was built as a setting for a monstrous joke.

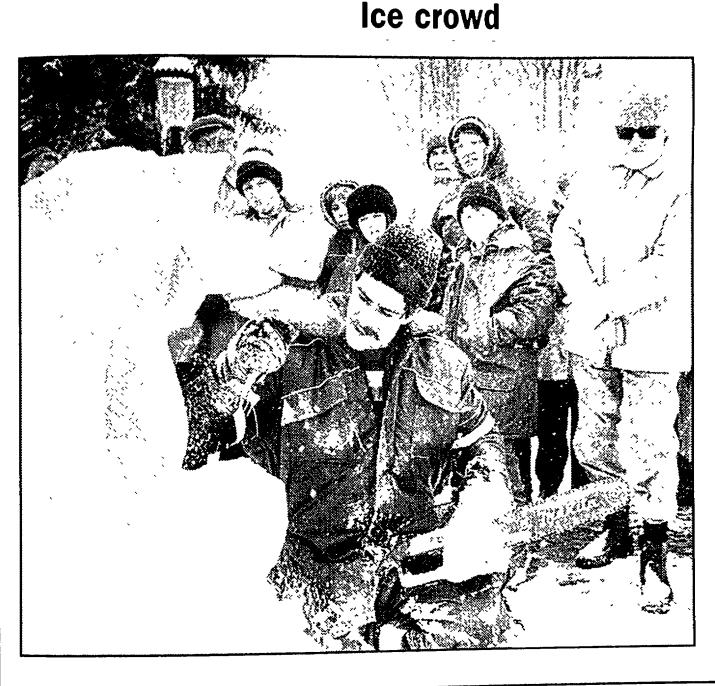

In Russia, on the frozen river Neva in the winter of 1739-40, a shivering bride and groom spent their wedding night in a building of ice. The palace was designed by an architect commissioned by the Empress Ann Ivanova. The empress built this palace to express her jealousy for an old lover who had run off with a peasant girl. This was her way of punishing the couple by making them spend their honeymoon night in an ice castle. The palace was complete with a bedroom with a vanity, dresser with mirror, table, chairs and a canopy bed all made from ice. The Japanese chefs picked up the art of ice sculpturing from the French chefs in the last 30 years, and are now considered the masters of the art form. In Japan, ice sculpturing is a full-time profession. The sculptors carve wood in the summer and ice in the winter.

If you build it they will come: Chicagoan Daniel LaVelle draws a crowd as he works on a new carving with his ice pick.

Leave pets at home

Visitors to the 17th annual Plymouth International Ice Sculpture Spectacular are urged to leave their dogs at home.

Dogs can get sick from licking some of the saltbased chemicals used in the carving process.

There are also safety concerns when thousands of people and many dogs are present.

And no ice sculptor wants to turn around to find a dog lifting a leg against the sculpture.

phone, give directions and pass out brochures, restaurant guides and maps. "Even though we start out with extras, I'm usually upstairs making more," she said.

Although one might expect hotels and motels to be filled for miles around during the ice show, Quality Inn Manager Debbie Katko reports that she expects to have vacant rooms throughout the show.

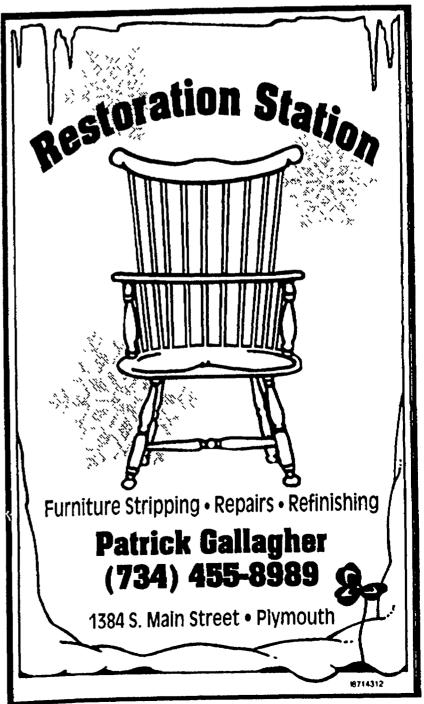

Most of the ice show visitors are from metro Detroit, so they just go home at night. Many of the carvers fly in, however, and a portion of them stay at the Quality Inn.

Waiting for oblivion: After the show the sculptures last as long as weather permits. This photo was taken early Monday morning, and the ice hadn't begun to melt.

Last chance to see museum's Lincoln exhibit

Ice show visitors might want to take in the Abraham Lincoln exhibit at the Plymouth Historical Museum because items on display will be put in storage after the ice show is over.

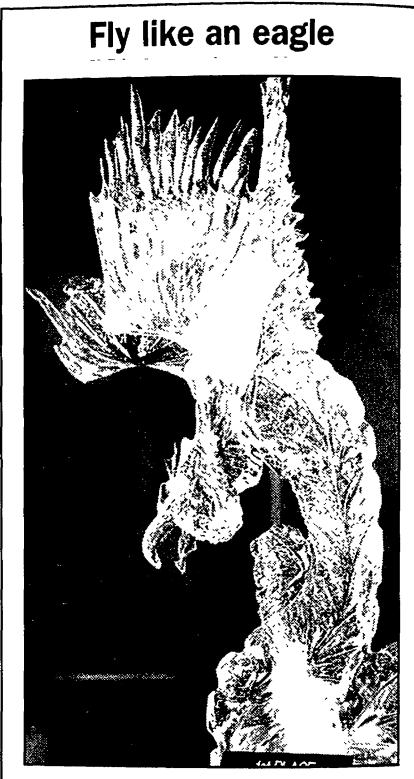

The exhibit, featuring a 10,000-piece collection of Lincoln memorabilia donated to the museum by Weldon Petz, includes statuary, a lock of Lincoln's hair and a life mask of his face and hands.

The exhibit showcases enlarged reproductions of 40 Lincoln-themed Christmas cards by artist Llovd Ostendorf.

The museum, located on the corner of South Main and Church, is open 1-4 p.m. every day of the ice show.

For more information, call (734) 416-4278.

Into the future: Canton resident Ted Wakar won first place with this eagle one year at the Plymouth ice show.

Additional parking available this year

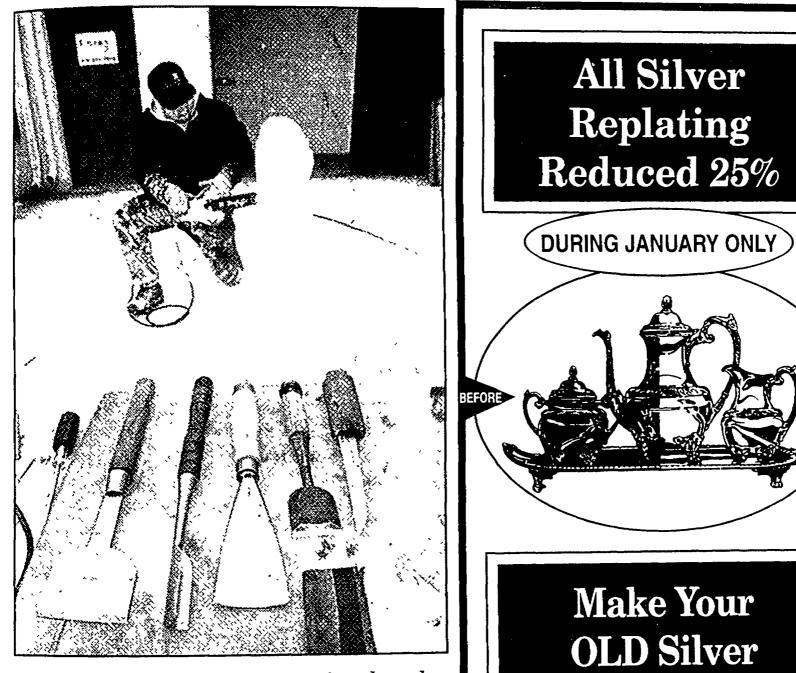

Plymouth Municipal Services Director Paul Sincock reports that there are 90 additional parking spaces to accommodate ice show visitors this year.

The new spots are near the library at Church and Main.

Visitors may also park atop the central parking structure and in the area bound by Harvey, Ann Arbor Trail, Main and Wing. Or visitors may park in lots east of Main and south of Wing. Parking will be available at Central Middle School on the weekend.

Sincock warns visitors not to park in front of fire hydrants and driveways.

Police have banned parking in certain areas and marked them clearly to maintain fire lanes in the event of an emergency.

Tooling along: These ice carving hand tools are augmented by power tools like chain saws and die grinders.

More than a few tools are needed

Ice carvers use several tools for their work, ranging from chainsaws and ice picks for the rough stuff to die grinders and steam irons for the details.

A 12-inch electric chain saw is used to rough out the shape of the sculpture. If too much ice is removed, more can be added by grafting additional ice on with water. Fine detail is then added, using up to 10 steel-bladed chisels. The finest details are carved with an electric die grinder. The steam iron comes into play when scratches must be taken out of flat surfaces. Many of an ice carver's tools can only be bought from companies in Japan, and chisels can cost up to $500 each. It's not unusual for a professional ice carver to have $10,000 invested in his tools and equipment. There are so many power tools and lights in use when the carvers swing into action that a dozen small generators and three commercial generators are needed to provide power and light.

OUR COVER STORY LET NUTRIWAY SHOW YOU THE WAY TOWARD BETTER NUTRITION AND FITNESS

A sk any of the people featured on our cover if it's easy to lose weight or start exercising, and the answer would be a definitive "No!" But ask these same people if they felt that Saint Joseph Mercy Health System's NutriWay program helped them make positive changes in their life, and the answer would be a definitive "Yes!" NutriWay's Weight and Cholesterol Control Program is unlike most "diet" programs because the focus is not on quick weight loss but on learning to make longterm changes in the way you eat and build fitness into your life (see Nutrition listings on pages 6-7.) NutriWay is taught by registered dietitians who specialize in education and consultation on weight loss and healthy lifestyle changes. Not many other programs can claim that 85 percent of their participants lost weight during a 10-week program. The average weight loss is eight pounds, but Jim Ford lost and kept oft 25 pounds, "My cholesterol dropped about 30 points, and I lowered my blood pressure."

says Jim. NutriWay also motivated him to exercise. He and Adele Criss both agree that exercise was the key to their successful weight loss.

Wanda Hunt learned the benefits of keeping a diary. She and Adele also learned the importance of reading food labels. "NutriWay puts the essentials of nutrition and fitness all together for you, so you can use what you've learned on a day-to-day basis," Adele adds.

Jeanne Christie needed the structure that a class provides for her to lose weight. Her advice to others who want to lose weight: "You need to make it a priority, and that's hard because we're all so busy." Peggy Blaisdell agrees: "I'm not saying that it's easy. I may need a refresher course down the road. This is not a quick fix. It takes every part of your life to make it work." (Cover photo by Lance Burghardt)

This season's health highlight UPDATE YOUR NEW YEAR'S RESOLUTION FOR WEIGHT LOSS AND FITNESS

by Brian Fedoronko, MD, Internal Medicine (on staff at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital and Saline Community Hospital)

Every year, about a third of Americans will make lotty goals to lose weight and/or improve their titness, only to be disappointed after a few weeks and give up. Why? The lesson so many people fail to learn is that there are no quick or easy fixes when it comes to changing your eating and exercise habits.

Here are some of the most common and important questions I get from my patients related to diet and exercise

How do I know if I'm overweight or obese?

About 55 percent of all Americans are obese or overweight. As a rough guideline, those who are over 30 pounds above their ideal body weight are considered obese.

Be sure to check out the many Support Groups starting on pg 16.

Also, look for the Health Tip throughout the calendar for useful health hints!

Remember, the health tips contained in this calendar are not intended to substitute for professional care.

Saint Joseph Mercy Health System is a health care network serving Washtenaw, Livingston, Jackson, Lenawee, Monroe and western Wayne counties. It includes St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ann Arbor, Saline Community Hospital in Saline and McPherson Hospital in Howell. Related services include outpatient health centers, home care, hospice care, senior care, long-term care, health education and preventive health care. Building upon the tradition of the Sisters of Mercy, the purpose of Saint Joseph Mercy Health System is to improve the health of the people it serves by caring for the whole person. Its core values are Service, Justice, Mercy, Human Dignity and Preferential Option for the Poor.

What is the first step I need to take to lose weight?

The very first step is to understand that obesity is a chronic disease. There is no magic diet, pill, ointment, herb or surgery. It will likely be a litelong effort, with many failures along with successes. It's important to check with your doctor to rule out possible problems with your metabolism and to help you start a safe nutrition and exercise program.

What types of health problems are common in overweight people?

Heart disease, high cholesterol, high blood pressure and diabetes are related to obesity: long-term weight loss can reduce your risk. Recent studies show that men with waistlines over 40 mches and women with waistlines over 35 mches are at greatest risk. Also, a large percentage of patients with breast and colon cancer are obese.

What are the best strategies to lose weight?

- Work with your doctor to personalize a safe plan. Discuss it nutritional counseling or a weight management class is right for you.
- Aim for a 10 percent weight loss m six to 12 months.
- "Portions, portions, and portions" are the three laws of weight loss. Most people overestimate the "normal" size of lood portions.
- Prepare your own lood as often as possible. This lets you control the ingredients and portion size. Americans are cating out more often, which may be responsible for the increasing prevalence of obesity.
- · Engage in moderate physical exercise nearly every day (discuss with your doctor),
- Cutting back on dietary fat alone without counting your calories won't work. If done correctly, maintaining a low-calorie diet should naturally reduce your fat intake.
- To help you achieve long-term weight loss, use target calorie levels set by your doctor or a dicurran.
- Weight loss medications are not appropriate for most people. They can have harmful side effects and have not shown to be safe or effective after one year of freatment.

May the New Year bring you a real New Year's resolution that you can keep and that will last well into the next millennium?

How to Prevent Repetitive Strain Injury

Repetitive motions with your hands and wrists could result in repetitive strain injury (RSI). Jobs that require typing and assembly line work and prolonged grasping while bicycling, rowing or driving are some of the most common causes of RSI. While it is difficult to cure, RSI is easy to prevent:

- · Do warm-up and stretching exercises with your fingers, hands, wrists and arms before you begin repetitive motions to ensure good blood circulation.
- Give your hands and wrists a rest every 20-30 minutes.
- Avoid leaning on armrests or wrist pads.
- · Maintain good posture by sitting straight in your chair, with your head, neck and back in alignment.
- While sitting, keep your wrists and forearms straight and parallel to the floor. There should be no

Do You Buckle Up? Every Day?

If you or a family member is one of the millions of Americans who refuse to wear seatbelts and shoulder harnesses--or you only occasionally buckle up--consider this: The impact of a mere 12-mile-per-hour car crash is enough to kill an adult or child driver or passenger. When they are worn, passengers can often survive crashes occurring at 60 or more miles per hour. Also, don't think that airbags are sufficient protection. They are designed to work with, not instead of, seatbelts and harnesses. If all Americans wore them, about 12,000 fewer people would die each year. If you have children, ensure that they are in an age-and weight-appropriate car restraint or safety seat. For car safety seats, be sure to read the instruction manual. Nationally, more than 95 percent of parents aren't properly installing child safety seats, which result in hundreds of injuries and deaths to infants and children.

MEN'S HEALTH

Health Tip

What You Need to Ask Your Dad

Like it or not men, your dad is the most perfect glimpse you will ever have into your future health and well being. Here are six questions you should ask your father so that you can take proactive steps to ensure a healthy, satisfying future.

- 1. How did your last physical go? You need to know if dad suffers from diseases such as diabetes, hypertension or high cholesterol.
- 2. At what age did you start having prostate problems? If your dad developed prostate cancer or prostatitis before age 70, it is likely that it is hereditary, and your risk of developing prostate problems may be double. If this is the case, then changing to a low-fat diet can help.
- 3. How long have you had those moles? If your father has had numerous moles throughout his life, you are at a higher risk for skin cancer.
- 4. Did you ever have vision problems, such as glaucoma? If your dad ever had glaucoma, you have a one-in-four chance of developing it, so make sure your doctor is aware of your father's history.
- 5. How do you carry your excess weight? If your dad wears most of his fat around his stomach. rather than on the hips, you are at increased risk of cardiovascular disease.
- 6. Did you ever have a drinking problem? You better learn now. For instance, having just one parent who was an alcoholic quadruples your risk of becoming an alcoholic.
