Tragedy struck Northville's downtown 34 years ago

1999 CENTURY IN REVIEW 2000

Warren Robert Wright, the gunman who shot (Northville city) police chief Eugene King twice in the abdomen last Wednesday returns to Northville Friday.

Last Wednesday afternoon, a few hours after he'd seriously wounded Chief King, Wright was arraigned in Judge McDonald's court on the charge of assault with intent to kill and murder.

An FBI agent said Wright was charged by the U.S. attorney on two counts, holding up the Northville branch of Detroit Federal Savings on June 8, 1964 and Sept. 22, 1964.

Now, Wright faces 25 years imprisonment for each robbery and possibly a life term for shooting King.

The Detroit Federal Savings Bank at Dunlap and Center Streets now goes by the name of the Northville Executive Center.

These days, hundreds of cars drive through the intersection of Northville Road and Seven Mile.

And yet, 34 years ago this week, both locations looked vastly different than what they do now. That's because 34 years ago this week, Northville's then police-chief, Eugene King, felt the slicing heat of two bullets driving into his abdomen while trying to bring a suspected bank robber to justice.

King survived, but blood transfusions taken during operations to save his life caused damage to his liver. King died from cirrhosis and hepatitis 11 years later.

For the longest time, the best King's family could do to remember the police chief's bravery was to reminisce. All that changed last week, when King's son, Greg, learned his father's application had been

Despite snags, bond projects move forward

School officials report construction work $85,000 over project budget

BY ANDREW DIETDERICH
Staff Writer

The absence of students from Northville schools hasn't lessened the amount of activity going on in the facilities this week.

Construction workers and some school administrators continue to work on projects approved in a bond in 1997 by Northville voters.

Progress is flowing nicely, said David Bolitho, assistant superintendent for administrative services, as the total construction is just about $85,000 over budget with most projects underway. The district is managing 85 school improvement projects.

"We are bound and determined to complete everything on the list," he said.

Northville voters approved a $61.5 million bond in June of 1997 after it was voted down in September of 1996. The money was to be used for more than 85 school improvement projects throughout the district.

The district hopes to have all projects from the bond issue done by the summer of 2000, Bolitho said.

The most significant progress so far has been made on the elementary schools, according to a report by the Northville Public School District.

At Amerman all projects are either done, planned or scheduled with the exception of replacing the roof and cafeteria tables and

Township couple unharmed in assault by despondent son

By CHRIS C. DAVIS
Staff Writer

A 22-year-old Plymouth man was arraigned Monday on two counts of felonious assault and one felony firearm charge after being involved in an altercation with his parents.

According to Northville Township police reports, the man visited his 52-year-old mother's home on Beck Road at around 1:30 p.m. Feb. 14. The man told of being depressed because he was alone on Valentine's Day. The man appeared to be intoxicated at the time, the report said.

The man then became vulgar with his mother and made several insulting comments about her. The mother asked her son to leave. The man responded by walking downstairs into the basement of the home — his mother following him — and pulled out a shotgun and ammunition belt from a gun cabinet.

The son then pointed the shotgun at his mother and ordered her to kneel. He was reportedly laughing at the time and continuing to throw insults at his mother. He then ordered his mother to walk back upstairs.

As the mother tried walking

Kunz shows compassion for the needy

Up until age 19, Marlene Kunz hadn't even seen an expressway.

When she moved from her native Ironwood — some 580 miles from Northville — that was just one of the culture shocks the former "Yoooper," now director of Northville Civic Concern, had to deal with.

Among the others: not knowing every person on the street and breaking out of saying things like "yous guys" and "oh, yah." That, and learning that smoked fish may be a staple on the other side of the Mackinac Bridge, but not so much down here.

But now, some 30 years since she left behind the western U p p e r Peninsula town and 15 since she became director of the community food pantry and emergency relief group, she's adapted to life in suburban Detroit.

"This is my home now," said Kunz. "I've never met such giving people in all my life."

Kunz isn't one who actively seeks publicity, either for herself or for the group she heads up. In fact, she doesn't do much in the way of advertising Civic Concern because she's learned word-of-mouth does much of the work for her.

"There's nothing really special about me," she says, wearing black tights and an ash-gray U-M sweatshirt.

She chuckles. "I suppose that if there's one asset about me it's that I've got a big smile...and a big mouth."

Be it through those methods or otherwise, Kunz has built an organization with one of the most solid reputations for financial

Local Dads and their daughters crowded the gymnasium for the annual Daddy Daughter Dance, sponsored the the Northville Parks and Recreation Department. The event continues to draw large crowds, and this year's dance was a huge success according to organizers. Photographer John Heider was on hand to capture the event on film. # Slow progress made on $11M plan, as planning commission mulls design suggested hed: Slow progress being made on $11 million development

subhead: Planning commission wants to see another conceptual design
BY ANDREW DIETDERICH
Staff Writer

An eyesore in Northville may get some relief from a Farmington Hills developer, but the process could take a while.

Phoenix Land Development, 32000 Northwestern Highway, Farmington Hills, presented a revised development plan to Northville's planning commission Feb. 16 for an $11 million 52-unit condominium project at the intersection of Old Novi Road and Baseline Road.

The planning commission voted by a vote of 5-1 that it felt the sketch proposal of the development meets would qualify for planned unit development zoning from its current industrial zoning. Approval means the development must follow specific guidelines to the site not covered by any other kind of zoning.

Commission John Kaloustian cast the vote against the proposed land use. He said the use of the land for residential goes against the city's master plan.

"If we take away another spot for commercial or industrial use, we begin to head toward not being a well-rounded community," he said, "Because we head toward become just residential."

Site proposed for condo development

The planning commission also voted on whether or not to approve the sketch plan so that the developers could come up with a final proposal. Although the final plan could have been referred back to the developers the commission voted to refer the sketch plan back to the developer.

The developers will again present a sketch plan to the commission, which would carry less detail than a final plan.

The development is tentatively called River Place.

The proposal on 2.7 acres of land includes knocking down the former Warren Products plant at 637 Base Line Road and rezoning the area from industrial to residential.

"It (Northville) is an excellent community and I think this is a diversity of housing that would fit in well with the area," said Steven Schafer, secretary and treasurer of Phoenix Land Development.

Schafer said his company has been working on the Northville project for about a year-and-a-half. The company put forth another proposal for the site last fall, but the planning commission had some problems with the original plan.

Schafer said he believes those issues have since been addressed.

"This plan is more sensitive to the area," he said. "We're hoping this will be the sensible solution to the development of that property."

The new plan has reduced the number of units from 56 to 52 but an increase in the number of buildings to six. Additionally, the new site plans call from redesigned walkways and parking areas "and a building arrangement that is more sensitive to the Middle Rouge River."

An existing building on the property, formerly Warren Products, was built in 1906 with additions in 1929, 1949 and 1952. According to a study done by Birmingham-based Dean Appraisal Co. for Phoenix that was submitted to the city, the building is in poor condition and "there is considerable functional obsolescence."

Further, the study says, the property "is in below average to poor condition, has poor functional utility and access to the site is poor as it traverses through a residential area."

Phoenix Land Development is a privately-owned 12-year-old company. The company has more than 30 other developments in the metropolitan Detroit area. Recent developments similar to the River Place proposal is the West Village in Dearborn and a new condo unit in Farmington Hills.

Harry Millman, coowner of the building at 637 Base Line, said he wants to sell the building. Additionally, he said a waste management company and a man who wants to develop at body shop at the location have shown interest in the project.

"There are more benefits to the community to what they're (Phoenix) proposing though," he told the commission. "I would like to sell it to them."

The Dean Appraisal Co. said "a higher and better use for the subject site would be residential ... There is greater demand for a residential use than an industrial use. A residential use would be a more attractive use and fit in better at this location."

Custom car owner, and Northville resident, Shawn Deron poses with his Pontiac Fiero that he will be exhibiting at Cobo Hall.

Local man exhibits car at Cobo

By CHRIS C. DAVIS
Staff Writer

Lime green isn't the color for everyone's car, but it suits Shawn Deron just fine. What better hue to give a car which had only two years ago been gathering dust in a scrap heap?

"It's something you understand once you get into it," said Deron, 24.

His 1985 Pontiac Fiero has been almost entirely rebuilt and will be on display at the Detroit Autorama this weekend at Cobo Center. It's the first show for the Northville resident.

Deron and his 28-year-old brother, Duane, began work on the Fiero in January of 1998. Deron said he was lured into rebuilding the Fiero because of its unique status as being the only mid-engine two-seater American car ever made. A popular vehicle when it first hit sales floors, Pontiac discontinued the Fiero in 1988.

When he liberated the Fiero from the junkyard, Deron said the car was in "some pretty sad shape."

"It was missing a lot of body panels when we got it," Deron said. "It was definitely in there for a reason."

The car was stripped down to almost nothing and was reconstructed with some personal touches. Deron said he added a 3.1-liter ram air engine and a completely customized interior.

Deron said the idea for the unorthodox color of the car was generated for a love of Mountain Dew. Not only is the base paint job the familiar iridescent yellow-green, but a mountain graphic has been painted on the hood of the car.

"We drank a lot of the stuff when we were kids," Deron said. "Duane is the better painter between the two of us. I handled the mechanical work on the car."

A member of the Michigan Fiero Club, Deron said he gathers almost weekly with other Fiero buffs to talk shop on their favorite car. He said he's fallen in love with the Fiero so much that he's already begun work on another Fiero. The new one is bright purple, he said.

The lime green Fiero may be the first car Deron will have on display at Autorama, but it's not the first converted car he's tackled. He said about a dozen specialty vehicles are part of the Deron fleet.

But if Deron had a choice of any car in the world — price being no object — he said he'd take the one he has.

"I've already got the one I want," he said.

Autorama runs Friday through Sunday. Deron's car will be located near the entrance of the show. For more information on admission and hours, call (248) 650-5560. Celebrity appearances will include the World Wrestling Federation's Sable, Detroit Lions quarterback Charlie Batch and CART driver Christian Fittipaldi.

Dad, Daughter: Dance

Northville's popular Valentine's Day Dance for Dads and daughters

More than a hundred couples attended Saturday evening's Daddy Daughter Valentines' Day Dance at the Northville Community Center. The affair, sponsored annually by the Northville Recreation Department, features dancing to pop, rock-a-billy, and square dance tunes, refreshments, a balloon-tyer, and a Polaroid portrait to keep of all couples. As the event was once again very popular, two sessions were held Saturday, one at four pm., and another at seven.

Police News

Three high school students cited for illegal alcohol use

Three Northville High School freshmen girls received misdemeanor violations after being caught drunk at a school dance.

According to Northville police reports, the department was called to Northville High School at about 11 p.m. Feb. 12. Police were called after Dennis Colligan, assistant principal, gave a saliva test to four freshmen who each tested positive for alcohol.

Colligan told police he was drawn to the group when one of them injured her head. The girls admitted to drinking rum before attending the dance, the report said.

After arriving on the scene, Northville police gave the girls preliminary breath tests.

A 14-year-old girl who lives on Ridge blew a 0.071. A 14-year-old who lives on East Glen Haven blew a 0.114. A 14-year-old who lives on Sunnydale was about to take her PBT when she started to vomit. After waiting the required 15 minutes, she took her PBT and blew a 0.112. The three girls were each given misdemeanor violations, sent home with their parents and their cases have been turned over to juvenile court.

A fourth girl in the group, a 15-year-old who lives on Crystal Lake Drive, blew a .008.

CLEANED OUT: A Northville man who lives on Whitegate reported a mysterious disappearance of a $2,000 piece of jewelry.

The event was reported Feb. 13 at 1:15 p.m. According to Northville police reports, the man last saw his 18-carat gold chain link bracelet in a jewelry box on top of his dresser. But the man told police he has "no idea where it went."

The man also told police his home is cleaned weekly by a maid service, but that he has no proof that anyone from the business may have taken the bracelet.

OUIL: A 28-year-old Novi man was arrested for operating a vehicle with an illegal level of alcohol Feb. 12.

According to Northville police reports, the Novi man was west-bound on Eight Mile Road near Randolph when a police officer clocked the man driving 56 miles per hour in a 40-mile-an-hour zone. The man was being followed by another car about 150 yards behind it. When the police officer turned on his overhead lights, both cars pulled over.

The driver of the second car said he was following his friend home. When the 28-year-old man was asked for his driver's license, registration and proof of insurance the man turned over his Michigan State University Identification card.

Northville police officers then conducted the series of sobriety tasks on the man including an alphabet test, a backwards counting test, a heel-to-toe test and a preliminary breath test on which the man blew a 0.201.

The man was arrested and released on $100 bond and cited for operating a vehicle under illegal levels of alcohol and unlawful blood alcohol level.

MAN SERVES BAD PLATE: A 23-year-old Farmington Hills man's car was impounded after he was discovered driving through Northville with license plates from another car.

According to Northville police reports, the man was driving a 1989 Ford Escort that had plates on it for a 1982 Toyota. The man said he had been driving with a 14-day permit but it had expired Jan. 11 so he attached some other plates to the car.

The Escort was impounded and the license plates were confiscated. The man was cited for improper plates and driving with no proof of insurance.

TOWNSHIP POLICE REPORTS

FOILED FAKEY: Management at Mr. Z's party store stopped an 18-year-old Plymouth man from purchasing beer with a fake ID card the evening of Feb. 12.

Township police reports said the man entered the store at around 10:30 p.m. and selected three bottles of beer he wished to purchase. The man told the sales clerk he couldn't extract his driver's license from his wallet.

The clerk took hold of the wallet and pulled out the license, which was lacking the state seal. The clerk also said it appeared as if the license's birthdate had been altered.

The suspect left the store, but was later tracked down based on the address placed on the fake. When questioned by police, the man admitted to forging the license with his home computer. He will be in court March 12.

OH, BABY: Township police were dispatched to Babies R Us at around 2 p.m. Feb. 16 after two females had been seen exiting the store with unpaid merchandise.

Interviews with store management said a woman entered the store and began browsing for items on display near the special order desk of the store.

The woman selected a five-piece crib set, which she placed in her cart.

She then proceeded to the checkout aisle to pay for the set, but the cashier realized other merchandise was in the cart which had not been presented for purchase.

The suspect then rushed out the exit of the store into a waiting blue Mercury Cougar.

Witnesses said the car drove in reverse for some 200 feet in the parking lot before finally proceeding forward. It was believed the maneuver was made to hide the license plate of the car.

While police were interviewing store management, Livonia police contacted Northville Township to inform them that the suspects had been stopped along eastbound Interstate 96.

In addition to the known crib, police also recovered $200 in clothes, a $28 diaper stocker, a $15 crib sheet and a $15 wallpaper border.

The suspects, age 32 and 34, will be in court later this month.

Parks programs seek to regroup after costly year

BY ANDREW DIETDERICH
Staff Writer

At first glance the bottom line of many Northville Parks and Recreation programs appear to have struck out in 1998.

But officials said steps have been taken to ensure the program hits a home run in the future.

Overall, the Northville Parks and Recreation finished about $109,000 over budget, according to the 1998 end of the year budget report of the program, with nine of 14 fitness categories in the red. Two of the nine programs, soccer and baseball, are separate entities with only administrative duties performed by the Northville Parks and Recreation.

But Traci Sincok, director of Northville Parks and Recreation, said the year wasn't too atypical.

"The overall goal of each program is to break even," Sincok said. "But it's sometimes hard to predict what might happen during the year."

Because the department is a governmental body, the purpose of the program isn't to raise a profit, Sincok said. That's how the program remains operational even after losing money.

"People believe in this program and want this service," she said. "And as long as programs continue to be viable we're going to offer them."

But some of those "viable" programs are losing money.

The program's aerobics, volleyball, and basketball categories, for example, all lost money.

Baseball, softball and soccer are separate entities with their own boards of directors. Only administrative duties are conducted by Northville Parks and Recreation for those two programs, but the department list the sports as categories in its budget that lost money.

So how are the programs in the Northville Parks and Recreation programs losing money with more than 17,000 participants?

Sincok said it's a combination of "not wanting to gouge participants" on registration costs and the inability to forecast some expenses incurred during the year.

For example, the soccer program incurred an unanticipated expense in fertilizer. Because the budget for each program is worked on during February, the soccer program was forced to delve into its funds from registration to come up with the money for the program.

That was part of the reason the program finished the year almost $7,000 in debt and there are other ways that programs end up in debt.

Equipment costs and repairs, low enrollment and rental costs of area fields can throw a wrench into a program's budget wheel.

*Only administrative duties performed by Northville Parks And Recreation

"There's no way to tell if you're going to have a drop in enrollment from one year to the next," Sincok said.

The bottom line of the department this year may be slightly better due to increases in funding from Northville Township.

The department receives money from the city of Northville and Northville Township, but in the past has been limited. Last year, the department received a total of $245,000 from the city and township. That money didn't even cover the entire cost of the department's administrative operations that includes the wages of those in office operations and other miscellaneous costs such as postage, printing and telephone which was $284,000.

Last year, though, township voters approved a 0.4 mill for recreation use that will give $312,000 to Northville Parks and Recreation.

Additionally, Bill Jenney, Northville Parks and Recreation board member, said adjustments have been made to try and make sure programs don't lose money in 1999.

He said he expects all programs to finish closer to budget this year.

"I think everybody on the board feels that if they see something out of whack we need to make adjustments to bring budgets back in line," he said.

Committee formed to refocus efforts of Recreation dept.

BY ANDREW DIETDERICH
Staff Writer

The seed was planted with the idea of building a new community recreation center but continues to blossom into much more.

A new committee formed through the Northville Parks and Recreation department plans to brainstorm during the next few months on what direction the department should head.

Originally, the group was formed to address the need of a new community center.

Northville resident Tom Swigart said the committee was formed late in 1998.

"We started to look at the idea of building a new community center and when we did that we saw that there are so many other things going on that we need to look at this from a broader view," he said.

As a result, the committee will use a process called futuring.

Swigart said. It's a step process that includes: assembling groups of people that have an interest in parks and recreation; having the groups brainstorm; sorting out the ideas; presenting what needs to be done and, most importantly Swigart said, the plans to accomplish the goals.

The final step, expected to happen in late April, will be a meeting that brings together the ideas from each group and how the members of the group will work to possibly make their vision a reality.

"We want to try and take this a little bit beyond pure visioning," Swigart said. "This is a different process."

Examples of groups that may do the brainstorming may be senior citizens, youth from the area or even landowners. Those who simply have an interest in helping develop and carry out recreation plans also are invited to participate, Swigart said.

Swigart said he doesn't know how many groups will be interested in participating.

A meeting will be held Feb. 27 to find volunteers who will help with public relations, facilitators, identify possible groups to participate in brainstorming, form steering and logistics committees and put in place a scenarios development team.

The event will be 9 a.m. at the Northville District Library John Carlo meeting room.

Karen Woodside, right, and Sue Hillebrand sign the official papers for the acquisition of the former Fairweather property this week.

Township acquires Fairweather land

By CHRIS C. DAVIS
Staff Writer

Gracing her signature over a few pages of otherwise-unassuming paper, Northville Township supervisor Karen Woodside signed the documents to take ownership of the former Fairweather property.

In doing so, the short ceremony brought to an end a two-year-plus effort to dismantle the building.

A small but significant number of township officials and employees, as well as Lansing representatives were on hand for the event. After placing her signature on the papers, Woodside addressed the small crowd in attendance.

"When we first started this project, we didn't think we'd have the chance to get this done before 2002."

ject, we didn't think we'd have the chance to get this done before 2002," she said. "We've beaten the clock. This was a big opportunity for us to acquire land for the township."

Trustee Marv Gans, a known promoter for parks and recreation, also spoke.

"This is the first time the governor's signature has had to be notarized," Gans quipped. "This was a demolition project that cost $400,000 — that the township didn't have to pay for."

Gans also said he hoped to secure an additional parcel of land for the township in the near future. Woodside said as many as five land parcels are being secured by the township.

Getting the Fairweather building razed wasn't an easy task. A Farmington Hills man fell from the building to his death in the early January of 1997 and was the site of hundreds of incidents of vandalism and other crimes.

But township public safety director Chip Snider said the number of Part I offenses in the township dropped 34 percent in 1998 — a decline he attributed largely to the absence of the building.

Woodside said she wasn't shedding any tears in the absence of the building.

"We got rid of something we thought was an eyesore and hope to turn it into something beautiful," she said.

Nearly a dozen other vacant buildings remain nearby the Fairweather property.

Plymouth resident charged in assault

away from the situation, the man fired one round in the direction of his mother, which the woman later said she felt blow past her ear.

When the two arrived back in the living room, the mother pleaded that her son put the gun away, but the son retorted by telling his mother to keep silent. The man ordered his mother to sit at the kitchen table and begin writing out his last will and testament.

At the same time, he began commenting how he wasn't certain if he wanted to kill his mother, commit suicide, kill both himself and his mother, or do nothing. Shortly thereafter, the man handed the ammunition belt to his mother, but retained possession of the gun.

Minutes later, the man's father arrived home. Reports said the husband didn't see his son brandishing the shotgun, but did see that his wife appeared distraught. When the husband finally did make eye contact with his son, the suspect pointed the gun at his father.

The two men wrestled for the gun, which the husband eventually obtained. He ordered his son to sit on the couch while the woman contacted police via a 911 emergency telephone call.

The suspect soon left the scene, but was arrested hours later by Plymouth Township authorities at the man's home and was later turned over to Northville Township police. Reports said that as he was being arrested, the man requested to have an attorney appointed to his case.

The man's bond was set at $50,000. He is currently being lodged at the Wayne County jail. He has pleaded not guilty to the charges.

The name of the suspect is being withheld by the Record to protect the identity of the parents.

School board sets policy to curb student use of lasers

BY ANDREW DIETDERICH
 Staff Writer

Some Northville students who get the point also may get in trouble.

The point in this case are laser pointers. The pointers produce a red laser beam used to point out things on larger items such as maps.

The Michigan Association of School Boards recently sent a warning to state school districts including Northville about improper use of the pointers.

Tom Johnson, principal at Northville High School, said he's already confiscated four of the pointers this year.

"There is no reason for a student to have one of these pointers on campus," Johnson said. "Students don't have a reason in any one of their classes to have one of these."

Pointers, which once cost between $60 and $100 each, have dropped in price to a range between $10 to $50. They come in

"It (the punishment) depends on the circumstance. If it's been observed that the student is trying to shine the laser in the eyes of someone else we're going to take the necessary discipline action."

a variety of styles such as bullet-shaped key chains, necklaces, pens and wands.

In the press release to state districts, the Michigan Association of School Boards said laser pointers are "showing up in the hands of student mischief-makers who bring them to school to distract and even injure teachers and classmates."

Getting lasered has become such a serious problem that dozens of U.S. school districts have restricted or banned the use of pointers altogether, said the Michigan Association of School Boards.

Johnson said one teacher's eyes were damaged by one of the pointers during the last school year. The teacher's eyes weren't damaged permanently, but he required medical attention, Johnson said.

The punishment for that student was a suspension.

"It (the punishment) depends on the circumstances," Johnson said. "If it's been observed that the student is trying to shine the laser in the eyes of someone else we're going to take the necessary discipline action."

Johnson said otherwise the laser pointer will be confiscated.

Laser pointers will be banned from Northville schools.

City council to study water issues, solutions

BY ANDREW DIETDERICH
Staff Writer

The flow of Northville dollars to the city of Detroit for water bills will increase.

But how much money comes from your wallet, if any, will be among the high priority issues the city council will deal with this year.

The council also has named two other issues that it will handle during the remainder of 1999: ensuring that all equipment is year 2000 compliant; and updating the city's master plan.

Gary Word, Northville city manager, said the Northville master plan hasn't been updated since 1989.

"This has to do with a number of studies that have been done since 1989 that council feels need to be incorporated into the plan," he said.

A master plan provides a general statement of the city's goals and also includes a land use plan. All municipalities in Michigan are required to have a master plan.

Word said master plans typically are updated at least every decade. Additionally, he said, the timing is right to update Northville's master plan because of the studies that have been done in the last few years.

The Racetrack Land Use Study, Street/Sidewalk Improvement Study, Bracket Sign Study, Downtown Parking Study, Gibbs-Green Group Report and the 1998 Traffic Study report have all been completed within the last few years.

The studies will affect the master plan. For example, Word said, if an area has seen increased traffic the city may want to consider acquiring land and widening a road to accommodate the increased traffic. That goal would be placed into the master plan.

"This is not a wholesale rewrite of the plan," Word said. "But we have some changes to make that will give us a good, solid plan that reflects 1999 instead of 1989."

Chris Johnson, Northville mayor, said the master plan is the "most important thing the council's done in a while."

"We put the focus on the master plan last year, but based on the size of staff and other things that come up we weren't able to finish it," he said.

Johnson said with the focus on the plan continuing for a second year and the studies that were completed last year should facilitate completion of the plan this year.

"I would like to think that it would happen this year," he said. "There are a number of pieces that are falling into place."

Another high priority goal for the year will be to address water and sewage problems.

Among the problems are to find a way to get costs down for area residents, Word said.

"As a result of a public hearing we've learned that a general consensus exists that we are too high," he said. "That needs to be addressed."

Last week the Detroit Water and Sewerage Department proposed a 2.9 percent raise in water rates for Northville residents. Currently, residents pay $31.11 per 7,500 gallons of water.

Figuring out how to pay for the proposed increase will be discussed.

"There is more than one way to solve this," he said. "Those are some of the issues that will be looked into."

Additionally, the city will continue to work toward maintaining a water loss rate as close to 15 percent as possible. January through June of 1998 the water loss rate was 17.19 percent. Word said a loss rate of between 15 percent and 20 percent is acceptable.

'A' for academics

Students can earn academic letter for high achievement in the classroom

BY ANDREW DIETDERICH
Staff Writer

Students are used to getting letters on their report cards.

The best students, however, are going to start getting letters for their efforts that they can wear.

The academic letter program at Northville High School begins immediately with the first letters to be given out during spring. The Northville board of education approved the program Feb. 9.

Under the program, students who earn at least four semesters of a cumulative 3.5 grade point average will receive the letter, which can be worn on a varsity jacket. The cumulative grade point average is the career grade point average and not just the previous semester's.

Johnson said he feels the letters, whatever they're earned for, are important to students.

"It's the epitome of what a student can achieve," he said. "Whether it be in sports, music or academics it symbolizes that you've invested time and effort."

Also, he said, the letters recognize a group of students who may not be involved in music or sports.

"It gives us an opportunity to celebrate more students than we do now," Johnson said.

The letters will be slightly different than the sports letters or music letters currently given, said Tom Johnson, principal of Northville High School. Students who have music or sports letters already may chose to have a patch signifying their academic achievements.

The patches and letters are going to cost about $5 each and Linda Jo Hare, president of the Northville High PTSA, said she's trying to drum up interest from local businesses to donate funds.

The PTSA is involved because that's the group that came up with the idea for the letters.

Hare said the idea for academic letters at Northville High came about after a meeting with other local PTA groups.

"We learned that Northville was almost the only high school in the area that didn't have an academic letters program," Hare said.

After the first round of letters are given out this spring, letters will be given out during the fall semester of the following school year, Johnson said.

OPINION

Ceremony closes the book on Northville Twp. eyesore

A fairly low-key ceremony at the the Northville Township finance department Friday afternoon marked the end of a blighted portion of the township's past: state ownership of the Fair-weather building.

There weren't any showy oversized documents, it wasn't a black-tie affair, and it wasn't even very well-attended. But a dozen or so happy faces lined the finance office lobby, realizing a bitter chapter in Northville's history had finally come to an end and a new era had begun.

In the past, anyone who had driven past the pock-marked building along Sheldon near Six Mile Road understood that the aged building needed to come down. The death of Farmington Hills resident Scott Brown, when he fell from the building in January of 1997, put a huge exclamation point on the need to raze the vacant property. Brown's death was in addition to hundreds upon hundreds of incidents of crime at the site.

Finally, someone got the message and decided enough was enough. Without knowing for certain the names of all the behind-the-scenes players in making the demolition happen, we think it's only right to give the township board of trustees a round of applause.

It's easy to appreciate the effort put forth by the board. Working through the mess of bureaucracy at the local, county, and state levels is about as easy as loosening a knotted-up string of Christmas lights. To persevere as they did speaks to the dedication the board has toward the safety of its residents, not to mention the the land acquisition which will come with the deal.

As we said in an editorial after Brown's death, government officials had been playing a dangerous lottery game for years, and we suspected that if a resident were to let his property fall into such a state of disrepair, that government would waste no time in ordering him to clean it up.

Finally, folks on the board, former Wayne County commissioner and current state Senator Thaddeus McCotter, former Senator Bob Geake, attorney Frank Kelley and even Gov. John Engler put their heads together, rolled up their sleeves and got the job done. The heavy equipment tore down the eyesore and paved the way for something beautiful to be put in its place.

There are nearly a dozen other such weed-covered eyesores we believe need to submit to the wrecking ball, as well, and we're certain the board is aware of that need. And we caution that unless those buildings are also leveled, tragedies like the Brown incident might happen again.

But for now, we think it's fitting to focus on the positive and on what has been accomplished. Hats off to the board for coming through on this issue. The township will be a better place to live and work because of their efforts in this regard.

Random acts of...you name the week

The strangest thing happened to me when I was in the checkout lane at the supermarket last week.

I was patiently waiting, my basket half-full with groceries, when I noticed the woman behind me only had two items in her hand.

"Why don't you go ahead," I said to the woman. "You've only got a couple items."

The woman looked at me gratefully and as she moved in front of me, she said, "You must be getting in your random acts of kindness points today."

"What?" I wondered to myself, puzzled.

It happened again at a local restaurant. I got to the restaurant door first and opened it for my wife. Another couple was right behind us, and without thinking much, I held the door for them as well.

The man brushed by me in a hurry, but not before I heard him say to his companion, "Boy you can tell this is random acts of kindness week."

Random acts of kindness week. Nobody told me about there was a random acts of kindness week. What's this all about anyway?

You mean to tell me our society has sunk so low that we actually need to dedicate a week so people can be nice to one another?

The very thought troubles me.

You see, I always let people cut in line at the supermarket when they only have a few items. I always hold the door for people, and yes I always open the car door for my wife, or anyone who is riding with me.

Not because I need a week to remind me to do so. I do it because that's how I was brought up. My parents made sure that their three children had a healthy respect for others.

I can still remember, as a small child, my mother having me hold the door for people coming into the beauty salon while she was getting her hair done. "When you open that door for someone, it tells them that they are important," she used to tell me.

Now, some 35 years later, it has become second nature to me.

I don't need a week, or a month, or a day to be dedicated for me to show some courtesy. The very fact that such a week exists is, to me, a sad commentary on how we all relate as people. It also tells me that parents today do very little in teaching their kids how to respect others, or show compassion.

That is, indeed, very sad to learn. But heck, in today's world of political correctness, it only makes sense to have a "random acts of kindness week." As a matter of fact I believe we should broaden the scope a bit.

How about a national "I won't drive like a maniac week," or perhaps an "I won't break the law this week, week."

Our president could institute the "random acts of honesty week," or "I'll be faithful to my spouse week."

Yeah...I think I could get into this politically correct kind of stuff. Maybe I'll get a huge following for "be kind to your local newspaper editor week."

Politicians: less noise, more substance

As someone who doesn't spend much time in Lansing, I really couldn't recognize former Michigan Lieutenant Governor Connie Binsfield if I ran into her at Twelve Oaks Mall.

But when Novt's own State Rep. Nancy Cassis recently invited me to a tribute to Binsfield at Laurel Manor in Livonia, I thought, what the heck, it might be interesting.

And it was. Cassis invited a contingent from her district. Novt folks included Cassis's husband, Victor, Ruth Elrod, Melissa O'Rear and Rita Traynor, Assistant Superintendent for Instruction at Novt schools.

Binsfield was a high school social studies teacher in 1974 when friends urged her to run for the Leelanau County Commission. The first woman elected to that post, she went on to make history as the only woman in Michigan to hold leadership positions in the state house, senate and the executive office.

Binsfield was Assistant Republican Leader in the house and Assistant Majority leader in the senate, where she was referred to as the den mother of the senate. Then, this grandmother went on to serve as Lieutenant governor from 1990 to 1998.

Binsfield sponsored the first domestic violence legislation in Michigan.

She broke, Gov. John Engler said, many glass ceilings.

"A lot of glass has been around Connie's feet," he told the crowd at the event.

Binsfield, who confessed to feeling "humbled" by the event, said that: "Politics is an honorable profession ... politics is about helping people."

Funny to hear the words politics and honorable linked with what's been going on in Washington, D.C., but there's no reason the concepts can't be paired.

For a crasher of glass ceilings, Binsfield's primary focus has been on something historically labeled a woman's issue, child welfare. Yet, what could be of greater importance to everybody than successfully raising our young.

This week's event was a benefit for Binsfield's pet project, the Chance At Childhood Endowment Fund, a joint program of Detroit College of Law at Michigan State University and the MSU School of Social Work. The program will train master's level social work students and law students who plan to work with abused and at-risk children. The goal is to provide stronger advocates for kids.

A few words kept popping up as speakers talked about Binsfield.

Quiet. Compassionate. Motherly. Persistent. Aren't these great words? Especially when applied to a politician.

I think we need fewer politicians who dazzle us with their charisma in front of TV cameras, a little less noise and a heck of a lot more substance.

I'm don't care for the trend of ostracizing lawyers, but it seems to me instead of mostly attorneys running the state and especially the national government, more school teachers, den mothers, CPAs and grandmothers should be drafted to do the job. Maybe they'd get things right.

Jan Jeffres is a staff writer for The Novt News and The Northville Record.

Want to see priorities? look at the budget

If you want to know what a politician's real priorities are, forget the window dressing contained in the State of the (you fill in the blank) Speech. Instead, look to the budget when it's finally submitted.

Gov. John Engler provides an instructive example.

In his widely praised State of the State speech at the end of January, the governor made education his top priority, arguing that Michigan had to be a "smart state" to succeed in the economic competition of the future and proposing all manner of innovations in education.

His budget, unveiled last week, had a distinctly different emphasis. In it, Engler recommended giving state prisons a budget hike nearly four times bigger than the one for public universities.

Engler called on the Legislature to increase appropriations to the Department of Corrections by $110 million, more than 8 percent, much of the money going to open 4,712 new prison beds. Fifteen public universities would be guaranteed increases of $24 million - a 1.5 percent increase - while another seven schools would divvy up an extra $14 million from a new funding formula.

If adopted, Engler's proposed budget would put total state spending on prisons at nearly $1.57 billion, nearly equal to the $1.63 billion he wants to spend on higher education. If past priorities are any guide to the future, the Engler budget for 2000 will be the first in Michigan history to spend more money to warehouse criminals than to educate young people.

I don't get it. Or, more accurately, I didn't get it until I read a series of articles recently published in the Atlantic Monthly magazine written by Eric Schlosser.

Taking his text from the famous warning about the "military-industrial complex" in President Eisenhower's 1961 farewell address, Schlosser suggests the real reason behind the enormous increase in prison spending nationwide is the workings of the "prison-industrial complex" - a set of bureaucratic, political and economic interests that encourage increased spending on imprisonment, regardless of the actual need. Not a conspiracy, the prison-industrial complex is "a confluence of special interests that has given prison construction in the United States a seemingly unstoppable momentum."

Schlosser cites these components:

- Politicians, both liberal and conservative, who regularly pander to a public fearful of crime by voting for new prisons. If you can get them to stand still for a moment, ask your state representative and senator under what circumstances they would vote against prison construction and staffing and for more money for colleges and universities. Don't hold your breath.

- Poor rural areas, where prisons have become the main engine of economic growth. There are legislators from northern Michigan and the UP who never met a prison they - and their unemployed constituents - didn't like.

- Private companies riding the current fad for privatization, that regard the $1.57 billion spent in Michigan on prisons not as a burden on our taxes but as a lucrative market.

- State government bureaucrats, in charge of ever-increasing pots of money and power. The data are clear. Nationwide since 1991, the rate of violent crime in America has fallen by about 20 percent, while the number of people in prison has risen by 50 percent.

The logic is unstoppable. If crime is going up, we need to build more prisons. But if crime is going down, it's because we have built more prisons. And, most certainly, building yet more prisons will drive the crime rate down even more.

When the Legislature finally passes the Engler budget, you'll see that growth in state spending on prisons easily will surpass spending on colleges and universities. You may not like it, but at least you'll understand why.

Letters to the Editor

Your (alcohol) article has tarnished a business

To the editor:

I guess you could say that I am part of the "silent majority" as I read the paper, listen to the news, and keep my feelings to myself.

After reading your article, No "Minor Offense," I had to leave the silent majority and speak my piece.

Your article has tarnished a business that I frequent on an almost daily basis. During my visits to the Cap N Cork I have observed numerous occasions where people are asked for ID when they attempt to purchase alcohol or cigarettes.

I have also observed numerous letters from our public safety director commending them for their diligence in not selling these types of products to minors in other sting operations.

There was no mention of this in any area of your article. Instead your writer left the impression that this business has a history of selling to minors.

I would be willing to bet that your writer never set foot in the Cap N Cork to ask their side of the story before he sat down and wrote this one-sided article. I would hope that this is not how all of the stories in your paper are written.

I am not saying that the sale was correct, as we all know it is not. But what I am saying is that if the people quoted in your article have never had an employee make a mistake or if they themselves have never erred then they would be entitled to voice their opinion as strongly as they did.

To use their position to get a public forum and smear a business, and the owners of that business, is not the way I would like to see our public officials act. I would bet that they have all done things that, looking back on, they wish they could have done differently.

There was a mention that Arbor Drugs was not notorious for selling to minors yet no mention of any other establishments.

The chart printed along side the article showed that Arbor has been cited twice in a 12-month period where the Cap N Cork has been cited twice in 42 months.

I would assume that the same type of endorsement should have been given to the Cap N Cork.

City's tactics are disappointing

To the editor:

I've lived in the city of Plymouth for about 56 years. I visit and shop in the Northville area because of what both our communities stand for. However, I was very disappointed when I read the article written by Andrew Dietrich with regards to the method Northville is using to trap different business establishments.

It appears that the fine city of Northville is no longer interested in working with people to better their community. The Youth Forum group should better use their efforts to working with the community business owners in a truly sincere effort to prevent such unfortunate actions as indicated in your paper. I have patronized the Cap N Cork establishment for many years and have been fortunate to know the owners quite well. By no means do they condone what recently happened and will take whatever additional steps to prevent this from happening again. I believe in the interest of your paper, along with the rest of your community, a follow-up with those accused and what actions they are taking would be well received by all of us. I truly believe by working together is more beneficial than the tactics now being used by the city.

Dave Palmer

Outdoor cafe is enjoyable

To the editor:

In response to your article where Northville resident Beth Beson and a city council member expressed concern over Poole's Tavern, I must say we couldn't disagree more with her point of view. My wife and I and our one-year-old son had dinner there several times this past summer, always opting to eat outside because of the wonderful atmosphere. We couldn't help but notice the many other families that dine there with their small children. Poole's seems to have a family atmosphere.

If Ms. Beson doesn't want to see people drinking then perhaps she should change her route. She should also avoid walking past Mackinnon's because one can view the people drinking inside. Maybe we should make Mackinnon's move their tables away from the front windows so people walking by can't see those patrons sipping a glass of wine either.

Outside of fastfood chains, what restaurant doesn't serve alcoholic beverages? Shielding our children from the view of people enjoying alcoholic beverages will not teach them to drink responsibly. Parents educating their children about alcohol will.

Police item smacks of racism

To the editor:

I am surprised and offended that my hometown paper, The Northville Record, reported the race of a person who was apprehended at a local store. The race of no other suspects was mentioned in "police news" on Feb. 11. Is this The Record's feeble racist attempt at tabloid journalism, or is racism alive and shouting in our town?

Marshall Blondy M.D.

Religion should be dealt with openly

To the editor:

There are some subjects that for one reason or another we do not wish to deal with openly. As an octogenarian, I feel free to bring up the subject of religion.

I've often been asked which, if any, religion I subscribe to and why. I can only report on what I have come across in my continuing search for an answer to what I've come to believe to be unanswerable. In Churchill's words Religion is a "riddle wrapped in a mystery inside an enigma." In short, what do we mean when we say that we believe in "God?"

Rabbi Richard Hirsch once wrote, "...if we conceive of 'God' as, for example, a power or force with in Creation which makes for justice, freedom, when we show kindness, and when we display courage, then we can be said to believe in 'God'."

George Santayana, philosopher, writer, critic, writes, "God" is not the name of an actual being or reality. It is a name for the highest ideal of man. It is a symbol for perfect truth, beauty, and goodness, for the ideal of happiness."

Thomas Kirk of Detroit wrote, "Some find a world without divine significance 'terrifying,' but I find it exhilarating and liberating. The absence of divine purpose does not mean that nothing matters, but only that we are free to define what does matter. A desperate search for cosmic significance reveals a disturbing disregard for the importance of human existence, and a fear of facing the unpleasant reality of one's mortality. If one is afraid of taking responsibility for living the real world, he will no doubt find, in philosophy or religion, a comforting illusion."

For myself, I have worked out a simplified, rational conception of "God": "God" is the collective, compassionate and caring conscience of humankind

Alfred P. Galli

'Odyssey' judges deserve thanks

To the editor:

On behalf of the Northville Odyssey of the Mind students, coaches and parents, I would like to thank the following Northville High School National Honor Society members who acted as judges for our recent Spontaneous Workshop and Mock competitions: Martin Lenardon, Aron Grajek, Margaret Myers, Adam Melvin, Brad Wilhelm, Aditya Prasad, Dave Handley, Sarah Matusz, Alex Lucas, Peter Law, David Whitbeck, Scott Whitbeck, Steve Yutzy, Andy Leeds, Amanda Halash, Angie Mathews, Jenny Llewellyn, Clark Kirkman, Dan Michalik, Mindy Marburger and Shalene Jha

Through the efforts of these students each of our ten Odyssey of the Mind teams was able to participate in 15 verbal and hands-on activities as well as perform their long-term problem. These evenings were very beneficial in preparing our teams for the up-coming March 6 Regional Competition in Grosse Pointe. Throughout each of these evenings, I received many compliments as to how kind and helpful these high school students were and what fine examples they set for our youngsters.

Again, thanks. We couldn't have run these two successful evenings without your help

A COLD, WARM WINTER DAY

The weather was unseasonably mild mid-day on Feb. 10, 1965. Temperatures hovered into the mid-50s and residents were getting their first hints of spring.

Business was somewhat slow inside the Detroit Federal Savings bank, but teller Judith Hedlund noticed something wasn't quite right. A green Dodge had been circling the brick building for some time. She couldn't be certain, but to her, the driver of the car looked strikingly similar to a man who had held up the bank twice in the last couple of years, making off with nearly $15,000 in the process.

Concerned, she notified branch manager John Macauley, who placed a call to Northville Police dispatch. Troopers William McGee and Louis Westfall were sent to the bank. McGee had been helping a cat down from a high branch and Westfall was at home.

King was also called. He had been having a lunch meeting to discuss purchase of new uniforms for the department.

Hedlund watched as Wright, a 29-year-old Corunna resident, parked the vehicle in nearly the same spot as the car had been in on the two other heists. He was starting on foot for the bank lobby, but when Wright saw the police car approach, he headed back to his car and began driving through town.

McGee and Westfall followed Wright all through town. Eventually, King joined the slow-speed pursuit near the intersection of Dunlap and Hutton. The three-car caravan began making its way south on Northville Road near Seven Mile, when a traffic stop was finally initiated.

McGee approached the car with his gun drawn and ordered Wright — who was described as being "jumpy" — to keep both his hands on the steering wheel of his car. The officers assured Wright that they only wanted to talk with him.

Wright was eventually extracted from his car. King notified the police department that Wright would be brought in for questioning. He was then placed in King's patrol car, but wasn't frisked or handcuffed beforehand.

Once alone in the car with King and en route to the station, Wright reached down toward his shoe and pulled out a .25-caliber Colt pistol.

"I'm a two-time loser. I'm not going in," Wright was rumored to have told the chief. Not wanting to stop the patrol car in the middle of the city, King kept driving along past the police station. Once the two were on the dirt portion of Main Street, Wright shot King twice in the abdomen.

McGee and Westfall arrived on the scene moments later and struggled to subdue Wright. McGee suffered a deep laceration across his forehead as Wright fought with the officers.

Hours later, Wright emerged from the jail to be arraigned for assault with intent to murder. Wright shielded his face from flashbulbs, but reporters learned the married father of two had only recently lost his job outside Owosso. King had been rushed by Castorline Funeral Home ambulance to St. Mary Hospital in Livonia. He was bleeding profusely.

At the time all this was going on, 12-year-old Greg King was in his sixth grade classroom.

"I remember hearing all the sirens going off outside and the class clown making some comment about how they were coming to get him," Greg King said. "It wasn't until I got home that I really understood what was happening."

Time slowed down for the King family. Greg King said his only real exposure to gunfights had been in the cops-n-robbers movies and television shows of the day. This was altogether different, he said.

"It seemed like this lasted a lifetime," King said. "This was definitely not the Roy-Rogers-riding-off-into-the-sunset sort of script."

THE AFTERMATH

Eugene King survived Wright's attack, but Greg said his father was never the same. Released from St. Mary a few days later and treated to a hero's return, King only stayed on as police chief for a few months thereafter. Doctors determined the placement of the bullets — one near his heart and one near his spine — didn't pose any immediate threat to his health. They were left inside his body until the day he died.

Strangely enough, Greg King said the bullets didn't routinely show up on X-rays taken in the years following the incident.

In the initial operation, nearly 30 pints of blood needed to be used to stabilize King. One of those units was apparently contaminated. From that blood supply King contracted hepatitis, which put a heavy strain on his body in the years to come.

Repeated surgeries to correct King's injuries and the hepatitis didn't work as well as had been hoped, and he eventually took a position as special assistant to the Northville City Manager before retiring and moving out to Arizona, where he was hired as city manager of Hayden, a small town about 70 miles north of Tucson.

In March of 1976, King was scheduled for a "supersurgery" of sorts which would supposedly take care of all the flaws in the dozen surgeries he'd had since the shooting.

Unfortunately, being on the operating table placed too much of a strain on the former chief's body and he died a few hours later.

For Greg King, though, his father's death had started a long time earlier.

"He had to die one day at a time for a decade," he said. "It's hard to watch someone play baseball with you at family picnics one day and see them lose weight and have their skin turn yellow the next. He really was killed the day he got shot — he was just too stubborn to die."

When King finally did die, letters poured in from friends and former co-workers abroad, but no lasting memorial to him was made. The deaths of police officers, while important, lacked a lasting visible memorial.

THE MEMORIAL

The National Law Enforcement Officer's Memorial got its start in 1991. The King family heard of the memorial through newspaper reports and began working to get Eugene King's name placed on the memorial.

As the family soon learned, though, it was a task easier talked about than accomplished.

"They needed a lot of information from us that was difficult to get," King said.

Chairman Craig Floyd said it's easier obtaining medical information on the deaths of law enforcement officials now that the memorial is up and operating. In cases like King's, however, unearthing records from 30 or 40 years ago was a tedious task that required a lot of detective work.

"Chief King's case was probably more involved than most of the ones we've seen," Floyd said. "It's a thicker-than-average file."

Floyd said the memorial opened with much fanfare to the families of the first inductees, but few beyond those initial numbers were aware it existed. Floyd said letters were sent to every law enforcement agency in the U.S., asking if it was home to any officers slain in the line of duty. Most responded by saying they were aware of no such incidents occurring in their jurisdiction.

Gradually, however, word circulated, and the names of officers who were attacked from decades ago began making their way to Washington, Floyd said.

Today, just under 15,000 names have been registered in the memorial. Annually, about 300 names are added each year, about half of those from backdated cases like King's. One of the first officers to be placed on the memorial was a U.S. Marshal hired during the George Washington presidency, who was shot and killed while trying to serve an arrest warrant.

"Because of our research efforts, we've located a lot of officers who have fallen through the cracks of history," Floyd said. "We want to make sure they're never forgotten again."

Older cases present special challenges to the memorial group because of the amount of detective work necessary to verify the claims being made by the survivors of the applicant, Floyd said.

"In this case, because there was a long period of time between the incident and the death, we had to look at it very carefully and find some medical experts' opinions to verify Chief King had actually died from complications stemming from the gunshot wounds," he said.

A check with the Michigan Department of Corrections showed Wright was sentenced for 3 to 10 years in prison for assault / less than murder for shooting King, and was paroled in May of 1970. Records showed he had not returned to the state justice system since then.

Greg King said he's looking forward to making the trip to Washington this spring, and is planning on making a return trip with his family to Northville sometime in the next year or so.

"It'll be neat. We'll be with a lot of other people and families," King said. "My dad will have plenty of company with all those other police officers whose names they'll be reading off."

Currently, Greg King works as a trooper for the Tucson branch of the Arizona Department of Public Safety. His wife, Diane, works as a paralegal for the Arizona department of Economic Security, an office of welfare-related issues.

Sons Brian, 7, and Steven, 10, have both taken an interest in public service. Brian is apparently taking a look at being a firefighter or pilot, while Steven has sent a letter to the U.S. Marshal service asking about the program.

Eugene King's widow, Lorna, is living in Pima, Ariz., and has since remarried.

"They want to see this community I keep talking about with the tree-lined streets," King said. "It means a lot to them to see the place where all this happened so long ago."

Bond projects still on course

chairs. The same holds true at Moraine Elementary with the exceptions of buying a new conference table and chairs, which is still in the design development phase, and completing the water main loop to the school.

Thornton Creek only had one bond project which was to replace playground safety equipment and that was completed. All projects for Winchester Elementary School are completed or planned.

All projects at Silver Springs Elementary are in progress or planned with the exception of replacing classroom furniture.

Chalkboards and a band room instrument storage area are in the schematic design phase but all other projects at the school have been completed, are in progress or scheduled.

"The two question marks we have in the budget is the (Cooke)

Middle School modification and the high school," Bolitho said.

Of 19 projects scheduled for Cooke expected to cost about $1.2 million, only one has been completed, the replacement of band instruments. Bids for the other projects have recently gone out but none have been received yet.

Also, converting the existing high school into a middle school is expected to cost about $3.8 million, but no bids have been accepted for the projects.

The majority of bids for the new high school have been awarded, but Bolitho said it's hard to tell what projects may cost more once work begins.

Projected cost for the school is estimated to be about $45.9 million and the cost of the project so far is about $119,000 under budget.

Additionally, construction is still nine weeks behind because of permit problems the district ran into when the project began.

Thomas Gudritz, Northville board of education president, said he's disappointed with the delays the high school ran into but overall he's pleased with progress on bond projects.

"I'm real happy with the pace," he said. "They've been moving forward nicely."

Gudritz said he credits Bolitho and his crew for the relatively smooth flow of the projects.

"It's a difficult task to manage that many tasks and I think they're doing a good job of doing that," he said.

Martha Nield, school board trustee, said when the projects are done, the whole area will benefit.

"The community is going to be real pleased with the projects," she said. "I don't see any cheapening of the projects to save money."

Kunz spends time helping needy

soundness in Northville. Now actively serving around 35 to 40 persons each month, Civic Concern assists people who were referred to the group through Northville-area churches.

Shelves are stocked with in the basement of the Northville Community Center. But the bulk of the food is stored at Northville High School.

When an accidental power loss at the high school caused nearly $7,000 in food to spoil, Kunz said contributors not only restocked the shelves, but replaced the bad food with three times as many new items. That sort of response was due mainly to the solid reputation Civic Concern has, built on that reputation of being fiscally responsible.

"People can give to this organization knowing the money is being spent correctly," she said. "We have virtually no overhead in this group."

By her own admission, Kunz doesn't accept the applications of every person who walks in the door. In some rare instances, an unscrupulous individual will provide information that doesn't entirely check out. Kunz credits that sixth sense to her husband, John.

"He's the complete opposite of me," she said. "By that I mean he complements me. I'd give someone the shirt off my back if they asked for it, but from John I get a more objective way of looking at things."

The two grew up not 10 houses from each other in Ironwood and began dating in their college years. Before settling in Northville, the couple moved to Dearborn and Inkster. Along the way, they had three children, now all grown.

Jeff works as an airline mechanic, John, Jr., is a financial officer for Ford Motor Company, and Jeannine is a financial planner for sports franchises.

With the children out of the house and her husband having a job which can support the family, Kunz said she's more fully able to dedicate herself to the business of running Civic Concern.

Never one to pull punches, Kunz said it angers her deeply when food contributions are made that have very dated food items. In one instance, she recalled receiving a can of food dated 1980, better than a decade old.

When Kunz said she questioned the woman about the appropriateness of giving food so old, she said the woman responded with, "If they're hungry, they'll eat it."

"That made me so angry," Kunz said. "When you're poor, the last thing you want to lose is your dignity. Just because you're down on your luck doesn't mean you deserve that kind of second-class treatment."

Fortunately, Kunz said the overwhelming majority of those who contribute to Civic Concern give products that aren't shelf-dated from 15 years ago. In fact, Kunz said contributions come to her almost anywhere she goes.

"I could be filling my car up with gas and someone will call over to me and hand me money for Civic Concern," she said. "People know this a group that can be trusted and relied upon."

And yet, for as pleased Kunz is with the way Civic Concern has assisted dozens upon dozens of needy people in Northville, she said the group has more to do with the residents than it does with her.

"Civic Concern belongs to Northville," she said. "I just happen to be the conductor of a big orchestra."

The Thin Mint Girl Scout Cookie is the most popular of the eight varieties being sold now through March 12.

Girl Scout
Cookies

Purchasing at least one box of Girl Scout Cookies is as American as apple pie.

We hear the announcement of some sales events so frequently we tend to tune them out. But for many, the Girl Scout Cookie Sale is one of the most anticipated events of the year.

Whether you prefer them better frozen, or right out of the box, it's a sale that most do not want to miss.

If you are an average household, according to Huron Valley Girl Scout Council statistics, you will purchase approximately five boxes of cookies.

Booth sales began Feb. 13 and will continue through March 12. Cookies ordered between Dec. 17 and Jan. 17 are being delivered through Saturday.

Girl Scouts in both Northville and Novi are offering eight varieties of cookies. The five standard varieties baked by either ABC or Little Brownie, which is why some cookies have different names, are Caramel Delites or Samoas, Shortbreads or Trefolls, Peanut Butter Patties or Tagalongs, Peanut Butter Sandwiches or Do-St-Dos and Thin Mints. The other three varieties vary by council.

In Northville, which falls in the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council, along with the five standard varieties, Reduced Fat Lemon Pastry Cremes and Five World Cinnamons as well as the new Upside-Downs Frosted Oatmeal will be offered. The Michigan Metro Girl Scout Council, which includes the Novi troops, have two new varieties, the Lemon Drops, which are a vanilla cookie with lemon flavored chips, and a Low-Fat Apple Cinnamon. All cookies are $3 per box.

Depending on the variety, boxes contain about a dozen to just over 40 cookies.

There are about 35 troops in Novi. Troops use the money they raise from the cookie sale towards a variety of activities.

Troops keep a minimum of 42 cents from each box sold. There are incremental increases based on sales over 115 boxes per girl.

Pat Hudson who is a co-leader with Lenora Woloszyn of Silver Spring Elementary School's Brownie Troop 1155 said the nine girls usually sell more during the pre-sale than they do during the booth sale event.

Girls in the Huron Valley Council are 95.3 percent toward their goal of selling one million boxes. During the booth sale event, they anticipate selling an additional 46,864 boxes or about four boxes per girl scout.

The younger girls plan more close-to-home activities from the profits.

"Brownies really don't go that far," Hudson said. "We'll probably just have a camp out."

Catherine Campbell-Terrell, Novi troop leader, is funneling profits to an international, wider-opportunity trip to Africa.

Resident is coordinating equine units for 'Michigan Parades Into the 21st Century'

By CHRIS C. DAVIS
Staff Writer

Saddle up!

Those words will take on a special meaning for participants in the Michigan Horse Council's Horse Exposition next month — particularly by Nancy Harm, director of Northville Township's Harmony Acres.

Harm, parade coordinator for equine and other animals, will have a chance to enlighten the public about show horses at Michigan State University on March 12, 13, and 14. Already a participant in many parades in Northville, Harm said Harmony Acres' horses take a long time getting ready for the big show.

"People have no idea how much work is involved with one of these animals," she said. "We spend about six hours on each of the eight horses we have. That's more time than Miss America spends getting ready for her pageant."

The horses in her stable are decked out in Arabic, American Western and Victorian garb.

The popularity of parade horses has climbed such that participation in last year's "Michigan Parades Into the 21st Century" parade had 40 units walking the streets of Lansing. Harm coordinated that event.

"Forty units is more than what they have in Pasadena for the Tournament of Roses Parade," she said. "That's how big this thing has gotten over time."

The March horse expo at MSU is designed to help give animal lovers a chance to see what show horses are all about. A scaled-back parade will take place at the expo this year.

"It's a chance for us to give back to the community, as well as recruit new people who may have an interest in horses," she said. "All breeds of horses will be out there."

Harm said the group is comprised entirely of volunteers, and that more are needed to help with parading the eight horses she has. However, she also said those volunteers need to be trained in horsemanship and need to know basic commands of horseback riding before taking on the responsibility.

Teen takes to the sky

By ANDREW DIETDERICH
Staff Writer

Jim Spiewak II looked forward to being able to drive after his last birthday.

But he wasn't excited about driving the family car or truck, he was excited about driving the family airplane.

The 16-year-old Northville resident recently flew one of the family's two airplanes solo for the first time. To be able to do so, he had to earn his solo certificate by spending a minimum of 10 hours flying an airplane with a copilot training him.

He can now work toward obtaining the necessary amount of experience to obtain his pilot's license when he turns 17.

But learning to take off and land in an airplane isn't like parallel parking so his dad, Jim Spiewak, 46, made sure his son was ready to take to the air.

"I was 200 percent sure he was 300 percent ready to fly," Spiewak said. "When he flew, he was more than ready."

Flying airplanes is a family tradition for the Spiewaks. Jim Spiewak is a commercial pilot for Federal Express and the family owns two airplanes, a Cessna 172 and and Volmer Amphibian plane. The Volmer once belonged to Jim Spiewak's father.

Jim Spiewak II made his solo flight almost exactly 27 years to the day that his father made his.

Additionally, Spiewak's 20-year-old daughter Danielle is attending flight school to become a professional pilot.

For the youngest Spiewak to obtain his solo certificate Jan. 30, he had to successfully take off and land three times at Plymouth's Mettetal Airport.

"I felt nervous but I had the experience," he said. "I went out with my dad so many times I felt real, real comfortable."

Spiewak said he only really got into flying last year. The Redford Catholic Central High School student said he will continue his training through longer flights and ground school with hopes of obtaining his pilot's license after his 17th birthday Dec. 20.

He has to make three cross-country trips before he receives his license, he said. A cross-country trip is classified as going to a destination 50 miles or more away, Spiewak said. Additionally, he has to rack up a minimum of 40 hours of solo flying time.

He said he and some of his friends will take some trips to the Spiewaks' cottage in Hillsdale and may fly to some distant golfing facilities during the summer.

Spiewak said he isn't sure if he will pursue a career in flight.

"I'm leaving all my doors open right now," he said. "But I'll have the experience if I feel like I want to go into it."

He father said he will encourage his son to do whatever he wants, but that he wouldn't exactly be disappointed if his son chooses a career in flight.

"It's been a very lucrative career for me," he said. "I've seen most countries around the world a number of times."

Spiewak said there's another reason he would encourage his son to fly - it's fun.

"Where else do you do something at work and come home and do it as a hobby?" he said.

LaCrosse team is being formed by Parks and Rec

CAROL DIPPLE
Feature Editor

If you like hockey, you'll love Lacrosse.

A Lacrosse team of boys and girls going into 5th, 6th, 7th grades is now being formed by the Northville Parks and Recreation Department.

"If you like hockey, Lacrosse is a fun game to watch," said Joe Barberio, athletic programs supervisor with the Northville Parks and Recreation Department. "We're trying to start it up in Northville. Once it starts, there will be more impetus to get it into the high school."

Boys and girls currently in 4th through 6th grades are eligible to register.

There are currently six people from Northville playing in the Novi league, according to Barberio.

"Novi is trying to get Northville to form a league here so they don't have to travel so far to play a team."

The boys and girls will learn fundamentals like catch, cradle, scoop, shoot and pass.

Equipment needed will be a helmet (an approved ice hockey helmet is acceptable), shoulder/elbow pads, Lacrosse stick, gloves and a mouth piece. A Lacrosse jersey will be provided.

The cost is approximately $90 to $100.

A team will be formed that will compete against Novi, Fenton and Utica, and possibly against Ann Arbor, Birmingham and Bloomfield.

Practice begins in mid-April. The season will consist of approximately 10 games - one per week during the months of May and June.

More more information, call Tom Horrigan at (248) 348-8590 or Kathy Coupal at (248) 305-9776.

Girl Scouts cookie sale is almost over

Council, the average girl scout sells 85 packages. Over 28 girls sold over 1,000 packages with one girl selling $5,000 last year.

In the first quarter of 1997 according to the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council, Girl Scout Cookies had 25 percent of the market share and were second only to Nabisco which had 27 percent.

The most popular cookie is still the Thin Mint, which accounts for over 25 percent of all cookies sold.

The first commercially-baked Girl Scout Cookie was distributed in Philadelphia in 1934, although the organization's founder, Juliette Gordon Low, helped girls make and sell cookies as early as the 1920s.

Weddings

Dr. and Mrs. Jeffrey Wisser

Ryan and Susan Robison

Romi Aliza Piazza and Dr. Jeffrey Michael Wisser were married Oct. 24, 1998, at St. Hugo of the Hills Catholic Church in Bloomfield Hills. The Rev. Jack Baker officiated the ceremony; the bride was given in marriage by her father. A reception for 400 guests followed at Glen Oaks Golf and Country Club.

The bride is the daughter of Anthony and Patricia Piazza of Warren. She is a 1992 graduate of Marian High School, Bloomfield Hills and a 1996 graduate of Michigan State University, from where she received her bachelor's degree in marketing.

Romi will graduate with her master's degree from Oakland University, Rochester in August. She is currently employed at Valassis Communications Inc. in Livonia.

Attending as maid of honor was Laura Chin. Serving as bridesmaids were Melissa Piazza, Kristi Woods, Theresa Romanelli, and Michelle Kozyra.

The bride wore a sleeveless and backless gown of white beaded silk. Her bridal veil was of beads and she carried a bouquet of assorted brightly colored roses.

The groom is the son of Michael and Sheri Wisser of Brighton. He graduated in 1988 from Brighton High School and in 1992 from Michigan State University with a degree in biology.

Jeff graduated in May 1997 from Michigan State University College of Osteopathic Medicine and is presently doing his residency at Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital.

Matt Kato served as best man. Groomsmen were Anthony Piazza, Sean Harrington, Neal Thompson, and Hugh Churchill.

The couple went to Hawaii for their honeymoon and now reside in West Bloomfield.

Pet of the Week

Antonia Nagy adopted Kali during January's showing.

Who's to say whether it was the big brown eyes or the floppy ear, but Antonia Nagy went into PetSmart to buy cat food and walked out with a puppy.

Nagy adopted Kali in January during the Michigan Anti-Cruelty Society's monthly adoption held at the Northville pet store.

"I had been thinking about a dog in the back of my mind," Nagy said. "I went in there for cat food and then I went to just look (at the pets up for adoption)."

Nagy is a four and a half month old border collie and terrier mix.

Kali gets along with Nagy's four cats, and has learned a few commands like no, down and stay.

"In the short time she's been here, she's learned a lot," said Nagy. "She is really a smart dog."

A typical little puppy, Kali has brought all Nagy's slippers, the cats' toys and tissues and put them in the middle of the living room.

"I think for the first full year her name will be 'No Kali,'" said Nagy.

Now both ears are up and Kali is having fun just doing what comes natural to puppies. She's mischievous, loves to dig, go for walks, and chase the cats, according to Nagy.

"She is wonderful, she's got a real personality," said Nagy who has been a resident of Novi for 18 years and is also a volunteer with the Michigan Anti-Cruelty Society.

The next adoption day is scheduled for Saturday, Feb. 20.

The Michigan Anti-Cruelty Society has adoptions at the PetSmart located at 17677 Haggerty Road in Northville on the third Saturday of every month from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Both dogs and cats will be available for adoption. Before an animal can be adopted from the Society, the new owners are required to sign an agreement to have the pet sterilized. The adoption fee is $100.

For more information, call the Michigan Anti Cruelty Society at (313) 891-7188.

DOES LIFE BEGIN AT 65?

It is larger than ever before. The number of people aged 65 and older is at a record high, and the "oldest-old" (the over-85 group) is the fastest growing segment of our population. It is certainly an exciting time. Watching senator and astronaut John Glenn at 77 pushing the boundaries with his remarkable return to space is a landmark. Advanced age may represent an opportunity to do the things that people always wanted to do at an earlier busier time in their lives but did not have the chance to do.

On the other hand aging has usually made people, even some health professionals, uncomfortable. The aging process has been associated with sickness and decreased physical and mental abilities. We tend to concentrate on the downside of aging when in fact 95 percent of Americans over 65 live independently and many with preventive care are maintaining healthy active lives. Aging successfully or maturing (if you prefer) is not just good genes. A recent 10-year study showed how lifestyle choices rather than heredity influence one's health and well-being.

Older adults need to continue to maintain active physical and mental engagement in life. When planning for healthy senior years one should eat more fruits and vegetables, avoid smoking, get a yearly physical exam and have a regular moderate exercise routine.

Truth be known...

Television reporters' efforts to divulge truth systematically thwarted by resourceful alien

In this intergalactic comedy based on the classic television series "My Favorite Martian," ambitious television reporter Tim O'Hara (Jeff Daniels) stumbles upon a real-life Martian (Christopher Lloyd) whose space ship has crash-landed on Earth. Believing this is the story of the millennium and his chance for a Pulitzer Prize, Tim makes plans to expose the Martian who, posing as Tim's Uncle Martin, takes human form with plans of his own.

Obviously, Uncle Martin doesn't want to be identified. In fact, all of Tim's efforts to divulge the truth are systematically thwarted by the resourceful alien who ultimately recruits Tim to help him repair his ship for a return to Mars. They eventually become pals and join together to overcome the many hilarious obstacles that confront them along the way.

"It was a lot of fun creating the character of the Martian," Lloyd said. "Ray Walston did such a clear and specific kind of characterization of that role that I felt it was incumbent upon me to try to bring to it not only what he brought to it, but what I wanted to bring to the part as well."

Daniels said he plays a television reporter down on his luck who falls into the story of the century — an alien lands in his living room.

"The strength of the story focuses on the heart of the relationship between these guys. As I recall the television show, the technology consisted primarily of a couple of antennas coming out of Ray Walston's head. We've come a long way in that department," Daniels said. "We kind of took their premise and story and said 'thanks, I appreciate it,' and turned it into something else. Chris Lloyd and I seem to bounce off each other easily."

The Walt Disney Pictures live-action comedy, "My Favorite Martian" is based on the television series "My Favorite Martian," created by John L. Greene and produced by Jack Chertok.

In addition to Daniels and Lloyd, the cast of "My Favorite Martian" includes Elizabeth Hurley, Darryl Hannah, Wallace Shawn, Christine Ebersole, Michael Lerner, Jeremy Hotz, Shelley Long, T.K. Carter and Ray Walston.

The film runs 93 minutes and is rated "PG."

In Walt Disney Pictures' live-action intergalactic comedy, "My Favorite Martian," Christopher Lloyd (left) stars as an alien whose space ship crash-lands on Earth. When ambitious television reporter Tim O'Hara (Jeff Daniels) uncovers the story, his efforts to divulge the truth, and become rich and famous, are systematically thwarted by the resourceful Martian.

Getting even

In Paramount Pictures latest release, "Payback," the heist goes smoothly enough. The cash is already hot. So when Porter (Mel Gibson, left) and Val (Gregg Henry, right) are in the clear. But when the time comes around to split the take Val makes three grave mistakes: he takes Porter's cut, he takes Porter's wife and he tries to take Porter's life. Problem is, when you kill this guy, you better make sure he's dead. Porter soon resurfaces, reborn with a serious case of tunnel-vision. He wants his cut and doesn't care what he has to do to get it. Now, everyone in the city's criminal underworld, including an air-tight syndicate called The Outfit, have Porter's cross-hairs trained on them. "Payback" is rated "R."

Wrestlers win 2nd-straight conference championship Saturday at Walled Lake

By JASON SCHMITT
Sports Editor

It wasn't supposed to be this easy. The wrestling team was picked to win the Western Lakes Activities Association title when the season began. Three of five state placers from a year ago were returning to a potent lineup that saw very little turnover from last year's state semifinalist squad.

But with the mid-winter flu taking its toll on the Mustangs the past few weeks, no one really knew what was going to happen.

In the end, Northville ran over Plymouth Salem in the first-place crossover match and then dominated the conference meet Saturday at Walled Lake Central High School. The Mustangs accumulated 254.5 points, easily outdistancing runnerup Salem (181.5) and third-place Stevenson (164.5). Western (142) was followed by Central (127.5) and Canton (121.5). Farmington (111.5), John Glenn (101), Franklin (66), Harrison (38) and North Farmington (36) followed up in that order.

Northville sent 11 of its 14 wrestlers to the championship match, and four came away as conference champions. Reggie Torrence, Chad Neumann, Ryan McCracken and Ted Bowersox each finished perfect for the day, posting 3-0 records in their respective weight classes.

Bowersox came into the tournament as the number one seed, and had to top the defending state runnerup Charlie Hamblin of Plymouth Salem in the finals. He did, 6-0, and improved his season record to 28-2.

After a scoreless first period, Bowersox picked up a three-point near fall in the second period and then added a takedown and escape for the final margin of victory. He beat North Farmington and Walled Lake Central en route to the finals.

McCracken (171 pounds) came in as the No. 2 seed, and defeated the top seeded wrestler from Western, Norm Wroblewski, by medical default. He was leading by a wide margin in

The opening-round match of the South Lyon district will pit Northville and the host school, beginning at 7 p.m. tonight. The winner of that match will square off against Novi, beginning at approximately 8:30 p.m.

After picking up big wins over Berkley and Walled Lake last week, the Northville/Novi gymnastics team faced a stiffer challenge Monday against John Glenn.

But the end result was the same.

The Mustangs edged the Rockets 135.15-134.05 to win its third-straight league meet. The wins move Northville/Novi to 5-2 overall, 4-2 in the conference.

Jennifer Rohlfis picked up the lone victory for Northville/Novi, scoring a 9.2 on the bars. Teammate Allison Gillette was third overall with an 8.55.

Rohlfis was second on both the floor exercise and the beam. She scored a 9.15 on the floor and an 8.8 on the beam. She tied teammates Kelley Phelps and Andrea Ledbetter for third place on the vault (8.35).

The Northville junior placed second all-around with a score of 35.5.

NORTHVILLE/NOVI 127.00, BERKLEY 113.95

The Mustangs finished first and second in all four events, as well as in the all-around to pick up this non-league win.

Phelps was first in the all-around, aided by a pair of wins. Her score of 8.2 won the vault, while teammate Liel Switzer was second at 8.05. She also took first on the floor with an 8.1. Switzer was second with another 8.05 and Shawna Roby and Kim Veres were third with a 7.8.

Gillette took first on the bars with an 8.5 and Veres and Phelps were second and third with 7.85 and 7.6. Monica Fink won the beam competition with an 8.5 and Veres was second with an 8.1.

Phelps scored a 31.85 in the all-around competition. Switzer was runnerup with a 31.5 and Veres third with a 30.9.

As the season continues to roll along for the Northville swim team, the schedule has been a bit kinder.

The Mustangs have been on a winning streak as of late, with their latest victory coming in their lone home meet of the year against Walled Lake 57-45 last Thursday.

The meet's scoring format was altered for the four-lane pool. First-place finishes received four points, second three and third one. Relay scoring was on a 6-3-1 format.

Both teams had six first-place finishes, but Northville mustered up eight of 12 runnerups.

"Every race was a battle, but those three events where we went 1-2 really helped us out," Northville coach David Wayne said. "I thought this meet was going to be within 10 points."

Anthony Serge picked up a win in the 200 individual medley, swimming a season-best time of 2:14.81. Serge made it a double with his win in the 100 backstroke (59.91).

Teammate Adam Melvin was second in 1:01.86. Both swimmer's times were season bests. Scott Whitbeck and John Moors were 1-2 in the 100 freestyle. Whitbeck won the event in :52.50 and Moors finished in :54.61. Mark Kowalski was the winner of the 100 breaststroke, finishing in a time of 1:04.26 and Dave Whitbeck was first in the 100 butterfly (59.98).

Leading 46-44, the Mustangs nailed the coffin shut with a 1-2 finish in the 400 freestyle relay. Scott and Dave Whitbeck, Moors and Kowalski teamed up for the win (3:37.29) and Kevin Hagedorn, Kevin Stuart, Jason Ballou and Serge were runnerup in 3:46.16. Stuart's split of :54.36 was a season best.

200 freestyle (1:54.36), as was Kowalski in the 50 freestyle (24.59). Melvin was runnerup in the 500 free (5:21.53) and both of Northville's other relay teams were also runnerup.

The 200 medley relay team of Serge, Kowalski, Dave Whitbeck and Brett Johnson finished in 1:48.22 and Scott Whitbeck, Moors, Dan Myers and Johnson were second in the 200 free relay in 1:39.30.

"I think being at home is an advantage with the fan support we received," Wayne said. "The girls swim team and the kids parents decorated the pool and really cheered the team on, which really got our guys pumped up."

The lone home meet of the season also served as senior night for the team's four seniors: Johnson, Kowalski, Melvin and Matt Schlanser. All received recognition for their achievements in a short ceremony.

Northville will wrap up its regular season with a meet with Farmington Hills Harrison tonight on the road. The Western Lakes Activities Association meet will start next Thursday Feb. 25.

Lackluster play leads to two defeats

By JASON SCHMITT
Sports Editor

Despite playing well at times throughout the season, the Northville High School Mustang basketball team has taken its lumps of late.

This past week those lumps were courtesy of Livonia Churchill and North Farmington. The Chargers built a 17-point lead after three quarters, and held on for the Western Lakes win.

Coach Scott Baldwin's squad attempted a comeback, cutting the lead to two points with :30 remaining in the game. But Churchill hit its free throws down the stretch to hold on for a 77-73 win.

"We came out and didn't play very well," a frustrated Baldwin said. "Our performance was a lackluster one and we just under performed the whole game. We waited way too long to mount a comeback."

Northville held a 13-12 lead after one quarter, but the Chargers outscored the Mustangs 22-11 in the second, and 26-19 in the third to build their lead. One of Northville's problems was its inability to score inside.

"We wanted our big guys to score and everything pointed to the fact that we should have had a big game down low," Baldwin said. "But we just couldn't get it done."

"Our performance was a lackluster one and we just under performed..."

Scott Baldwin
Northville Basketball Coach

The starting backcourt of Ryan Eller and Brett Allen provided most of the scoring for their team. Allen scored a game-high 27 points and Eller added 20.

Allen also had a team high 10 rebounds and seven assists. Marshall Knapp and Kip Szostek pulled down six boards each. Tom Knapp hit four of six from the field for a career-high nine points. Northville hit just 10 of 21 free throws in the game.

N. FARMINGTON 53, NORTHVILLE 34

The Raiders put a close game out of reach with back-to-back three pointers and clutch free-throw shooting down the stretch.

The Mustangs trailed by just four with four minutes to play, but two straight three pointers gave North Farmington a double-digit lead and the Raiders extended the lead to a final margin of 19 points.

"We were doing great against a far-better team, and it could have been anybody's game," Baldwin said. "We were down 34-30 after three quarters, and we wanted to slow the game down. They are a good transition team and can score quickly, which they did."

Szostek had a team-high 10 points and Marshall Knapp added eight. Allen led the team with six rebounds.

The losses drop the Mustangs to 4-5 in the Western Lakes and 5-10 overall.

Northville wraps up its season with John Glenn this past Tuesday (after The Northville Record's deadline) and Plymouth Canton at home tomorrow. The game is scheduled to start at 7 p.m.

the time of the default. He topped Canton and Central in the quarterfinals and semifinals.

"It was very nice to see Ryan to step up as a senior," Northville coach Bob Townsend said. "Both he and Teddy wrestled very well. And to see Ted dominate the state runnerup from a year ago was really great."

Torrence (130) dominated John Glenn's Jeff Albriecht 13-2 to take the conference title at 130 pounds. The junior also beat Salem and Western in the earlier rounds to improve his record to a near-perfect 29-2.

Neumann (140) came through as he has for much of the year, defeating Stevenson's Mike Falvon 4-0 in the championship. He beat Farmington and Canton in the quarters and semis.

Senior captain Anant Saran was nearly the fifth WLAA champion at 135, but Central's Scott Aubrey caught him in a throw in and was pinned at 3:35. Saran, who won the conference title a year ago, was leading 12-7 when he was caught. "It's just too bad, because he was dominating the match at the time," Townsend said. "He was wrestling up a weight, and he really took one for the team. Had he wrestled at 130, he would have dominated his way to the title."

Joining Saran as runnerups were Ryan Giles (189), Joe Rumbley (215), Dan Scappaticci (145), Kevin Arbuckle (119), Matt Tarrow (112) and Jeremy Carter (103).

Carter fell to Stevenson's Joe Moreau in the championship after beating North Farmington and Canton in his first two matches. Tarrow defeated North Farmington and Stevenson, but fell to Salem's John Mervyn 21-4 in the finals. Arbuckle lost a close championship to Salem's Ron Thompson 5-3. He defeated John Glenn and Churchill in the quarters and semis. Scappaticci lost to Churchill's Mike Carter 10-4 in the finals. He, too beat John Glenn in the quarterfinals before topping Canton in the semifinals.

Giles and Rumbley, who have moved back and forth throughout the season, both grabbed runnerup finishes up top. Giles lost to Franklin's Steve Mysloski 7-2 in his championship match. Earlier in the day he beat North Farmington and Stevenson.

Rumbley was pinned by Central's Joe Higgins in the first period of his match. He beat Salem and Churchill in the first two rounds.

Ben Ashby took fourth place at 125 pounds finishing with a 2-2 record. He beat Franklin, lost to Western, topped Harrison before falling to Canton's Greg Musser 5-2.

John Rekoumis also finished 2-2, defeating Central's JD Zlarkowski 7-0 in the fifth-place match.

"It was basically us against the conference all-star team," Townsend said. "We were happy with the way we wrestled, but after the match we told the kids that we're gonna have to win those finals matches if we want to advance very far in the states."

The WLAA championship was the second-straight for Northville.

N'VILLE 38, SALEM 28

Avenging last year's loss in the crossover matchup between the two teams, Northville had plenty to spare this time around. The Mustangs won nine of 14 weights, and voided at heavyweight. Carter pinned Jeff Bennett in 1:23 at 103 to get things going for Northville. Salem won the next three matches and built an 11-6 lead.

But back came Northville. Torrence won 19-3 over

Junior Dan Scappaticci (right) has his Salem opponent, Josh Henderson, in a tough spot. Scappaticci won 5-3.

Steve Dendrinis at 130 and Saran pinned in just :23 to give his team a 17-11 lead. After back-to-back wins by Scappaticci and Neumann, Rekoumis picked up a 7-3 win at 160.

McCracken, Rumbley and Giles each picked up a fall before Northville voided at heavyweight.

"It was nice to see the captains, Anant and Ryan, take care of business and pin their guys quickly," Townsend said. "Salem came in thinking we had a few good wrestlers, but were weak everywhere else. I know the guys wanted to prove them wrong and that we're strong as a whole team. This year even our studs have a chance to lose. That's why it's nice to have a deep team."

District pits 'Stangs against the Lions in first round

Lions in 1998-99.

"We're not looking past South Lyon at all," Northville coach Bob Townsend said. "If we do get past South Lyon, you can throw everything out the window against Novi."

Novi coach Brad Huss said he knows his team would be the underdog if Northville wins.

"We're definitely the underdogs, but we can beat them," he said. "But it's gonna take a great match like we had against Hartland to beat them. Hartland beat Northville by eight, so maybe we can pull off an upset."

When the two schools met back in January, Northville walked away with a 38-22 win in its own gym. But both schools were missing members of their current lineups.

"We're not going to do anything tricky," Townsend said. "There are a few weights where I think we can wrestle better at."

Huss agreed, and felt that his team was going to have to do three things to pull off the upset. "We have to stay off our backs, pin where we can pin and pick up a surprise win or two somewhere."

Huss said two weight classes he is looking at is at 103 and 160 pounds. Northville picked up two big pins the first time around.

South Lyon poses a threat at several weights throughout its lineup. The Lions had three Kensington Valley Conference winners and four finalists in all at last weekends' KVC championships. Novi also had three winners and four finalists.

Northville had 11 of its 14 wrestlers qualify for the finals of the Western Lakes championships. Four of those wrestlers won conference crowns.

Netters top Western, fall to Livonia Churchill

By JASON SCHMITT
Sports Editor

After taking its lumps with early-season powerhouses on its schedule, the Northville volleyball team is showing it may have learned a thing or two along the way.

The Mustang netters defeated Walled Lake Western 15-10, 12-15, 15-12 Feb. 12 to move its record up to 5-4 in conference play and 6-4 overall.

"I think if we'd have played them a little more spread out, we'd have given them a better run for their money," Northville coach Lara Huettner said of Western Lakes' powerhouses Livonia Franklin, Walled Lake Central and Plymouth Salem. The Mustangs dropped each of those matchups, as well as their meeting with Livonia Churchill Feb. 8 by a score of 12-15, 5-15.

Against the Warriors, Northville came out strong in the first game, only to have a let down in the second.

"We started those games with a 5-1 formation, but switched to a 6-2 in the third game," the coach said.

Huettner said her team has played the 6-2 formation, which has two setters on the floor at once, the last three or four matches.

"I think the 6-2 works well with our team because its gets more hitters in the game, and let's our setters do their thing," she said.

For the match, Janel Hasse led the team with 14 kills and Meredith Hasse added 13. Meredith also had five aces and four blocks, while Janel added 10 digs. Christina Chase led the team defensively, collecting 16 digs to go along with two kills. Kara Anderson added 13.

"This year we're beating the teams we should be beating, but we're not beating the teams we should be competing with," Huettner said. Northville played Stevenson Monday night (after The Northville Record's deadline) and conclude the regular season with a match on the road Monday night at Farmington Hills Harrison

Health Column

There are limits to physical workouts

Exercise addiction can cause physical and psychological damage.

Consider it a good thing gone bad.

While doctors and public health officials stress the importance of exercise, some people go too far with their physical workouts. They are exercise addicts, at risk of physical and psychological damage no less harmful than that afflicting drug or alcohol addicts.

"If your life is altered, is harmed, is damaged by your commitment to excessive exercise, then you should consider that to be a problem," said Thomas L. Schwenk M.D., chairman of the University of Michigan Health System's Department of Family Medicine.

Exercise addiction can lead to broken marriages, neglected work responsibilities and ignored friendships. There also is a physical toll, as the body is so overworked it can no longer adequately fight disease and infection.

Physicians don't want to downplay the need for exercise. In Michigan, 56 percent of adults are physically inactive; 23 percent of Michigan adults had no regular exercise at all in 1996, according to the state Department of Community Health. One-third of Michiganians are overweight - more than in any other state, according to the Michigan Governor's Council on Physical Fitness, Health and Sports.

Nationwide, the U.S. Surgeon General has reported that more than 60 percent of adults neglect getting the recommended level of physical activity. In particular, women, blacks, Hispanics and older adults do not exercise enough.

"An increasing number of people are not exercising, a small number of people are exercising more, and a very small number of people are actually exercising too much and overdoing it," Schwenk said.

There is no medical test to determine exercise addiction, but there are signs to watch for. People who over-exercise will continue to work out even if they're hurt or sick. Those who jog or exercise outdoors will ignore storm warnings and bad weather. Others will neglect their family and friends, isolating themselves solely to exercise.

"You're gone so much or you organize your life around either training or competition, to the exclusion of the people around you or the responsibilities around you," Schwenk explained.

Control may be a motivating factor in exercise addiction, he said. "Exercise is something that one can control. You can control the time, you can control how much you do, you can actually measure distance, time and weight. If you look at one's day-to-day life, there aren't too many places where you have that sort of certainty," Schwenk said. "I think control is a big issue in exercise addiction."

Over-exercising also can be related to eating disorders, such as anorexia nervosa and depression.

The greatest physical harm of over-exercising is that it creates fatigue and wears down the body's immune system.

"You're just more susceptible to infection - just more infections, more colds, more upper respiratory infections, always sort of sick," Schwenk explained. Psychological signs of over-exercising include fatigue, depression, irritability and lack of concentration.

Schwenk said it is best for people to use moderation when exercising.

"The biggest problem, by far, is that too few people exercise. In terms of numbers and in terms of impact on health, too little exercise is far more important than too much exercise," he said.

HOW TO

Two essentials for a good concrete patch

By Gene Gary
COPLEY NEWS SERVICE

9. We have wide concrete steps which lead to a porch at the entrance of our home. Through the years, the front edges developed a number of chips, some rather large ones. I attempted to patch these with an epoxy concrete mix. The results are less than satisfactory. The patch areas show and in a number of places the patching material crumbled and fell off. Do you have any recommendations for a do-it-yourself fix that wouldn't look like a patching job?

A. Chips and some disintegration of concrete step edges is common. These can often be repaired without going to the extreme of total replacement. Patching materials vary and individual experts will have their favorites.

However, whether the patching material is concrete, premixed sand mix, epoxy, epoxy mortar, vinyl concrete patching compound or latex concrete, there are two essentials for success.

For a durable lasting repair, the damaged area must first be clean, rough and sound. Secondly, the patching material must be designed for minimal shrinkage.

The first step is to remove all cracked and crumbled concrete from the damaged area. Chip away any loose concrete using a 3-pound maul and brick chisel. You must get back to solid concrete so that the patch will hold. Where possible, chisel the sides of the damaged area so they are flatter apart at their base than at the surface of the concrete. This process, keying, lets the sides wedge in place the patching compound, which expands slightly as it cures.

Be sure to wear goggles and work gloves for protection. Use a stiff brush to dislodge fragments and vacuum or airblast any loose particles and dust from the surface. It is important in the chiseling process to slightly roughen the entire surface to be patched. Any grease or oil present in areas you are patching should be removed by scrubbing the surface with detergent and rinse with clear water.

Once the surface is clean and slightly rough, subsequent steps in the patching process vary according to the type of patch you are applying. It is important to follow manufacturer directions carefully for any commercial products you might choose.

One method of repair, simple enough for most do-it-yourselfers, would be the use of premixed sand mix (not concrete mix) which requires a liquid bonding agent to help the patching material stick to the old concrete. Sand mix will give you a smoother, easier-to-finish surface than concrete mix.

You will need to build a form to support the patch on the front surface of the step. Cut a board to the height of the step. Place this snugly against the face of the step and brace with bricks or some heavy object which will hold it tightly in place. If you are patching a corner area, you will have to build a form to fit the right angle of the corner and secure it firmly during the patching process. Coat the inside of the boards you use for forms with clean, unused motor oil to act as a release agent and prevent the patching material from bonding with the wood.

When the forms are in place, prepare the sand mix by adding just enough water to form a workable consistency (be sure and set some dry mix aside first to use in the grout mixture). When the moistened sand mix can be formed into a ball in your hand and doesn't crumble apart, it's the right consistency. It should be stiff without excess moisture.

Next prepare a grout by mixing the liquid bonding agent with some of the dry sand mix (sift sand mix first using a wire screen to obtain a fine consistency). The grout mixture should be creamy, not stiff, similar to the flour and water mixture you would use to make gravy. Dampen the area to be patched with water from a spray bottle (this area should be damp, not wet with standing water) and apply the grout to the surface. Make sure that the grout coating is still wet when you begin filling the area with the stiffer sand mix. Fill with a trowel, being sure to pack down the mixture as you go to remove any air bubbles (use a small board or flat object for packing). Finish filling the area slightly higher than the existing concrete. Pack down the mixture with a flat board or wood float to level off any excess patching material.

When the concrete has set for approximately five minutes, use an edging tool to form a curved surface on the front of the step. Move the edging tool back and forth between the patch material and the wood form.

Next, go over the top surface with a magnesium float. Let the patch set until you can push your fingers into it and leave only light finger prints, approximately 45-50 minutes.

If water pools in the area, the patching material is still too wet. When the finger test is right, use a stiff brush to roughen the surface of the patch so it will match the finish of the old concrete (most concrete steps are roughened to avoid a surface that is too slippery). After you have roughened the surface, wait another 30 minutes before removing the forms.

Keep the patched area wet so it cures properly. This usually takes about a month. For the first week, use a spray bottle with a fine mist to keep the area moistened, applying several times a day. Covering the area with plastic is another method of preventing the concrete patch from drying out too quickly. Proper curing adds to the durability of the patch. Keep foot traffic off the patched areas for at least a week.

Hannah Rogers (6) and her brother Matthew (4) get a hug from grandmother Millie Rogers in the room designated "Grandma's room", since she decorated that room of the old schoolhouse.

This historic schoolhouse has been maintained as a residence by the Rogers family who've gone to great pains to ensure that the building will hold up another 100 years.

History Lesson

Milford couple makes the grade by preserving former school building

By Annette Jaworski
SPECIAL WRITER

The way Vivian and Dan Rogers see it, they own a little bit of history. Actually, they see themselves more as caretakers, rather than property owners of the former Ward School No. 1 on the south end of Milford.

The couple hopes to leave the place they call home ready for future generations to enjoy. It's a tall order to fill, but they've worked hard at it.

"We told the tile guy he needed to make it last for the next 100 years," Dan Rogers said. "We're preserving this house. It's going to outlast us."

The Rogers have used 28 tradesmen since 1990 to make sure that the school house is standing 100 years from now. After a bathroom renovation, the ceiling in the grade room was replaced and the entire home was rewired, among other improvements.

Rogers combine Victorian decorating scheme with original schoolhouse charm

"It's neat to imagine you're in a school house where children learned 100 years ago," Dan Rogers said.

While there is a sprinkling of school paraphernalia, the lush Victorian interior leaves no doubt that a family lives here. This includes Vivian and Dan; their children, Hannah, 6, Matthew, 4; Dan's mother, Millie, and their dog, Kazan.

Lace panels and a tone-on-tone wallpaper set the theme. Twelve foot ceilings throughout the first floor and mahogany wood trim adds to the home's elegance.

Vivian's antique doll collection is sprinkled throughout the home.

The focal point of the grate room is the fireplace, which was installed in 1925 with a mantle made of mahogany from a Detroit mansion. The hearth and front of the fireplace is done in forest green Chinese marble. The same marble is also used throughout the foyer, making a smooth transition between the rooms.

A rose print love seat and rose wing back chair sit in front of the fire. An antique tea set, all ready to pour, is placed atop a lace tablecloth.

Victorian reproductions were chosen carefully. Vivian points out that they wanted to feature the rooms, not the walls.

The Rogers' sizable collection of antiques has found fitting spots. Millie Rogers' pumper organ is perfectly suited to the grate room. Vivian's great grandmother's sewing machine graces the foyer.

Another nice touch are Millie Rogers' floral arrangements, including wreaths and potted silk flowers.

"I think they make a house a home," Vivian Rogers said.

The kitchen formerly served as the cloak room in the old school. Although it's not large, it's efficiently planned. Italian marble was laid here, which matches the tone-on-tone wallpaper in the adjoining grate room. Beams saved from the grate room were used in the kitchen, giving it a rustic look. The room is done with a grape motif, which flows through the dining area, to the fabric on the dining room chairs.

You can find the most obvious clue that this home was a school, in the foyer, where the stairway is painted with the ABC's. The upstairs bedrooms are also furnished with antiques, all the way down to the children's beds.

Atop the home, the couple added a cupola with a school bell. Dan is trying to figure out a way to hook up the school bell to the front door bell.

The Rogers have also added an detached garage, being careful that it would blend with the original architecture of the home.

The family's love and respect for history is evident throughout the home. On one side of the fireplace mantle hang pictures of three generations of grandmothers from Dan's side of the family. Vivian's ancestors occupy the other side. Throughout the home, Lincoln portraits and memorabilia pay respect to one of Dan's ancestors who met the president as a youngster.

The Rogers enjoy sharing the home that was a school long ago. One gentleman, who was a former student, came by and asked to see the home.

He recalled the exact spot the floor creaked. Before that, they planned to fix the floor, but after the visit from the former pupil, the Rogers decided to leave it just as it was.

"It's neat to imagine you're in a school house where children learned 100 years ago."

Glass lustres graced Victorian mantels

By Anne McCollam
COPLEY NEWS SERVICE

ANTIQUES

Q. The glass lustres seen in this photo I found in a dry cleaner's window 40 years ago. He also had a matching compote, but refused to sell it. They stand 15 inches tall and are ruby-red glass with white overlay. The prisms are in excellent condition.

What is the value of my lustres?

A. Lustres are vases decorated with hanging glass prisms that reflected light, thus the name. They were designed to be placed on Victorian mantels. Many were made in Europe as well as the United States. Your late 1800s lustres would probably be worth about $425 to $525 each.

Q. I have a seven-piece service for 12 set of dishes. They are decorated with orange, yellow and blue nasturtiums against a cream background. Enclosed is the mark that is on each piece.

Could you please provide information on the manufacturer and the value of my set?

A. Ridgways in Staffordshire, England, made your Bedford Ware dishes. The pattern is Everglades and the number is a design number. They have made earthenware from 1879 to the present. Your set was made around 1920 and would probably be worth $50 to $75 each place setting.

Q. My father has three woven coverlets that belonged to his grandmother. They are red, white and indigo blue with geometric patterns and fringe. One of them is around 80 inches wide and more than 70 inches long. Two of them are around 60 inches wide and more than 70 inches long. They all are in very good condition.

Can you tell us what their value is?

A. Most coverlets with overall geometric patterns were made before the Civil War. Owner's names, rather than the weaver name's, and dates were frequently woven into the corner or along the borders. Your early to mid-1800s coverlets are in the range of $365 to $500.

Q. I have an earthenware jug that was given to me in 1947 by my husband's aunt. The height is five inches. It is decorated with a Dutch windmill scene. On the bottom is a stylized building and the words "Gouda - Holland" and some numbers.

Any information would be appreciated.

A. Dutch pottery has been made in Gouda, Holland, since the 1600s. There were several potteries in the region, including Plazuid, Regina and Zenith. South Holland Pottery Manufactory and Plazuid Factory used similar marks. Pottery isn't the only thing Gouda is famous for. It is also known for its cheese. Your jug would probably be worth about $95 to $125.

Q. A friend of mine was going to sell a Royal Doulton porcelain figurine in a rummage sale for 50 cents. It belonged to her grandmother and she thought it was ugly. I thought it was beautiful so she gave it to me for helping her with the sale. The figurine is marked with a lion and a crown and the words "Made in England - Royal Doulton - Bone China - Autumn Breezes - HN 1911."

She has blond hair and is wearing a green bonnet with a red ribbon. Her jacket is green and her skirt is pink and green.

Although I was very fond of her grandmother and would never think of selling, I would like to know if it's worth anything.

A. Royal Doulton made Autumn Breezes figurine with the number HN1911 from 1939 to 1976. Leslie Harradine designed it. Your figurine would probably be worth about $150 to $225.

Address your questions to Anne McCollam, P. O. Box 490, Notre Dame, IN 46556. For a personal response, include picture(s), a detailed description, a stamped, self-addressed envelope and $10 per item (one item at a time).

These vases with hanging glass prisms are worth about $425 to $525 each.

Dick's brings sporting goods to Novi area

By JASON SCHMITT
Staff Writer

It doesn't matter what time of the year it is, there's always a sport to be played.

Whether its 20 degrees and snowing, or 90 degrees and humid, having access to all your sporting goods needs is of utmost importance.

So when Dick's Sporting Goods opened up a new location last November in Novi, northwest-metro Detroiters were given an alternative for sporting goods.

"We have stores in Rochester, Ulica, Troy, Taylor and Westland, but we didn't have one in the northwest area of Detroit," store manager Tom Klein said. "We wanted to have visibility and we found that this location is easily accessible from I-96 and I-275."

Klein said the elevated location of the store (just north of the corner of Haggerty and Eight Mile roads) makes it stand out. He also like the fact that it is sandwiched between Office Max and Best Buy.

"We have a very good marriage," Klein said. "We are three strong retail stores, and I think we play off each other well."

The store covers 42,000 square feet, which allows Dick's to stock just about any type of sporting good item. Each corner of the store is anchored by a specialty shop. There's a golf shop, a bike shop, a tennis corner and a hunting, fishing and camping shop. There's also an exercise/weights department and a shoe section. The center of the store displays all of Dick's clothing and other sports apparel.

"We are three strong retail stores, and I think we play off each other."

Tom Klein
Dick's Store Manager

"We try to be all things for all people," Klein commented. "We're a big-box retailer with a specialty store mentality."

The golf pro shop is run by teaching professional Don Cece. Dick's offers lessons through Cece, and has a miniature driving range and putting green. And don't worry about missing the big game while you're out. Dick's is stocked with a big screen television and nine smaller sets throughout the store.

The bike shop has anywhere from 140-250 bicycles in stock at any one time, depending on the season. The store includes brandnames such as Nike, Adidas, Wilson, Easton, Remington, Callaway, Taylor-Made, Roller-Blade, Mon-goose, Spalding and many others.

Dick's is part of a national chain which includes 75 stores throughout the Northeastern United States.

"This corner of Detroit needs a sporting goods store," Klein said. "Right now there is no Dunhams or MC in this area."

The store's address is 21061 Haggerty Road, located just off I-275 at the Eight Mile Road/Northville exit. For more information, or for store hours, call (248) 735-8180.

Dick's Sporting Good employee Charles Provan demonstrates the store's putting green. There is also a miniature driving range for customers to try out equipment before they buy.

Start the millenium with career goal setting strategies

With the millennium less than a year away, many of us are thinking about making changes in our lives in preparation for the year 2000. Some of the changes we want to make involve our career. Either we want to change jobs, or move ahead in the one we have. Often, we don't know where to begin.

Start by developing a "career planning strategy" ... that is, design or create your own career.

Career design is the process of assuming total responsibility for determining your future by creating your ideal career opportunities. No one else cares about your career as much as you do. So be active in choosing your career and life goals, and then move toward them with absolute certainty.

Sometimes we spend more time planning our vacation than we spend planning our life. How many of us would get into an airplane with a pilot to just fly around with no place to go? Not many. But how many of us go through life not knowing where we are going? Usually, if we have no destination in mind, we end up going nowhere.

The best way to obtain success, is to set goals. Goals are important because of the following:

- When something interests us, our mind filters out other things and tends to draw into it only those things of interest to us - we have selective perception, but we must choose a goal before our mind knows what to select.

- When we are striving toward something, our behavior expresses certainty.

- Our mind acts as a self-propelling device that always moves us toward the target we set for ourselves - whether it is good or bad.

Goal setting is not something most of us are used to and so we don't do it. It takes time and energy and we really have to think about what we want. When we write goals, we expand our mind to new possibilities. It is exciting to envision what we would like to do. We can do just about anything we want, but we tend to hold ourselves back with negative self-talk. How many times have we talked ourselves out of something that we would really like to do? I know I have.

Do you want your circumstances to determine your career and your future, or do you want to control what happens to you? Goal setting puts the control in your hands.

Whatever it is you want to do, goal setting will help you get there.

And, you can do about anything you want to, by just following a simple plan.

Today: By the end of the day write down your most important goal, along with the steps you need to take to achieve it and the resources you will need along the way. This doesn't have to be a new goal, but it does have to be one that is important to you. Also, it has to be your goal, not someone else's. Write down these plans very carefully and completely, because they will enforce your commitment to your goal.

If you can't reach your goal in one year, that's okay. Maybe you want to earn a college degree to further your career, or become the head of your department. In that case, decide what you need to accomplish this year in order to eventually reach your goal and form your one-year plan.

One Week: By the end of the first week, take a specific step toward your goal. Whatever it is, do it. Whether it entails making a phone call, talking with your boss or joining a health club, taking action will strengthen your commitment to your goal.

Every Week: Check up on yourself every week to make sure you stay on track. Life can get so busy, you can forget your plan for days or weeks. A great way to stay on track with your goals is to have what I call a "success partner." This is a person you meet with every week to share your goals. This person also holds you accountable for what you say you strive to attain your goals.

Every Month: Each and every month, your plan should include specific tasks to be accomplished in order to reach your goal. Follow-up on previous steps and make any adjustments as needed.

Six Months: Evaluate your progress. Are you at least halfway to your goal? If not, make adjustments. If you're behind, that's okay. The important thing is you're headed toward your goal and you will make it.

Setbacks: Don't beat yourself up. Treat setbacks as a learning experience and adjust your goals accordingly.
