Northville's finest citizen

Northville Chamber of Commerce director Laurie Marrs presents Elaine Witzke with the Citizen of the Year award last week at Genitti's Hole in the Wall.

Witzke named Citizen of the Year

By CHRIS C. DAVIS
 Copy Editor

If Eraine Witzke had a nickel for every loaf of cinnamon bread she's baked through the years, she'd knock Bill Gates from his pedestal.

If she had a quarter for every verse of poetry she'd written for birthdays, anniversaries and other personal holidays, she could put her five grandchildren through college.

Never mind all that, she says — the big thing is what she does, which is volunteer at St. Paul's Lutheran Church in St. Paul and cater to the needs of home-bound individuals. And for her efforts, Witzke was given the Northville Area Chamber of Commerce's 1999 "Citizen of the Year" award.

The surprise — which was so great Witzke nearly collapsed out of her chair at the meeting where the winner was announced — was almost blown, when Witzke opted not to retrieve the mail which had been delivered to her home only minutes before she left for the luncheon.

"It was an absolutely tremendous honor. I was truly humbled by all that was going on. I've been blessed with so much in my life already."

She later learned the mailbox contained the congratulatory letter from the Chamber announcing her winning.

But Witzke went straight to the luncheon, noticing that several friends she hadn't seen in some time had showed up for the event, but thinking nothing of it.

"I kept waiting for the guest of honor to show up," she said. "I never, in my wildest dreams, would have thought that I was the winner."

When her name was announced, though, the flood of emotion got the best of her.

"I couldn't stop crying," she said. "It was an absolutely tremendous honor. I was truly humbled by all that was going on. I've been blessed with so much in my life already."

Witzke has been heavily involved at St. Paul's in the bell choir, women's guild and other church function. She personally telephoned church members to sing them "Happy Birthdays" when the special once-a-year day arrived.

On top of that, Witzke teaches about nature at St. Paul's school.

Should city and township merge fire departments?

BY ANDREW DIETDERICH
 Staff Writer

The Plymouth Community Fire Department couldn't save much of an area business that caught fire in January, even with a staff of nine firefighters.

But it was the fire there were nine firefighters at the scene that Plymouth Community Fire Department Chief Larry Groth said made him feel a bit better about the situation.

It was due to the fact the city of Plymouth and Plymouth Township had combined fire departments there were nine firefighters instead of the perhaps two or three that might have been able to respond under the old system — a system that very much resembles the existing way the city of Northville and Northville Township respond to fire emergencies today.

"The whole area has benefited tremendously from this merger," Roth said. "It is much safer."

But could — or more importantly, should — a merger between the Northville Township Fire Department and city of Northville Fire Department benefit area residents?

Officials from both sides have different views, but seem to agree on one thing: they are willing to address the issue.

"Any time is a good time to discuss this issue," said Chip Snider, director of public safety in Northville Township. "It helps

Township police investigate explosive threat by student

BY ANDREW DIETDERICH
 Staff Writer

A Northville Township police investigation may have stopped one Northville High School student from harming a middle school student with a small explosive device.

But strong intervention on the part of parents involved in the case may have played an even larger role, said Detective Paul Sumner, Northville Township police.

According to Sumner, a Northville Township parent brought in his/her son who knew of another 14-year-old in the township who had made a small explosive device and threatened to use it against a middle school student. The names of the juveniles weren't released because of their age.

Police contacted the other 14-year-old and his parents about the explosive, which they brought in to township police when they went in for an interview, Sumner said. The device subsequently was turned over to the Michigan State Police bomb squad for dismantling.

The explosive taken by police was extremely small, but state police told Sumner the device would have caused harm, he said.

Either way, he said, township police took the investigation seriously.

"If anyone is manufacturing explosives in the township we are going to pursue it to the fullest extent possible," Sumner said.

Sumner said police learned the 14-year-old and the middle school student allegedly were in a verbal argument. The 14-year-old subse-

Record to form advisory committee

Citizens sought to help guide community newspaper into next century.

By CHRIS C. DAVIS
 Copy Editor

Beginning early next year, the Northville Record will be asking for more than just 50 cents for the paper.

For a few readers, an additional two cents will be sought, as in two cents for their opinion and feedback about the newspaper, its content and appearance.

Managing Editor Bob Jackson

announced last week that a community editorial board would be forming at the Record. Created from a cross-section of readers from all socioeconomic backgrounds, the board will provide advice to the editors of the Record to create a greater product.

All subscribers to the Record, except public officials, will be able to apply to a membership on the board, which will meet on the last Friday of each month at the Record office for one year.

"The fact of the matter is that our communities are changing and we need to keep pace with them," said Jackson.

"This is one of the best ways we can think of to keep our finger on the pulse of Northville and its readers."

Jackson said applicants will need to send in their name, age, address, telephone number, gender, occupation and a 200-word essay describing what they'd like to see in the Record by Nov. 26. Applicants will then be judged and contacted in mid-December to let them know if they've been accepted to the board, he said.

The position is strictly advisory and is non-compensated, Jackson

Device encourages pets at parks

By MELANIE PLEND
Staff Writer

Proud puppy parents can take their precious pooches to the Northville Fish Hatchery, 641 Fairbrook, without fear - thanks to the Mutts Mitt, a new pooper scooper designed for pet cleanup at the park.

"We're hoping that it will encourage families to come and bring their pets," said park maintenance director, Matt Wiktorowski.

The white plastic bags are specially designed for carrying little puppy presents. They are located next to the trash cans in the park for easy disposal, Wiktorowski said.

Northville Parks and Recreation director Traci Sincock said this was an excellent way to maintain the park.

"I'll keep everything cleaned up that shouldn't be left there," she said.

With the invention, pups no longer have to suffer the embarrassment of their owners chasing after them with plain brown bags. They are now free to do as nature intended in style.

Wiktorowski said the park offers families and their dogs a nice place for recreation.

"We have a playscape, tennis courts, baseball diamonds, nature trails, and kids can come and throw a line into our pond if they want" he said.

"It's really one of Northville's premiere parks."

In addition to innovative beagle bags, the Fish Hatchery has quite a history, Sincock said.

"The city purchased the park from the federal government who at the time used it as an active fish hatchery," she said.

Over the years many of the hatching ponds have been filled in, however, Sincock has high hopes for a fishing future.

"We'd like to see the last existing pond dredged, filled with water and fish," she said.

"We would also like to have some fishing docks built."

Sincock said this won't be anytime soon because of funding factors.

"It costs a lot to dredge a lake and have everything hauled away, but we would like to see that happen some day," she added.

City asks customers to disconnect downspouts

BY ANDREW DIETDERICH
Staff Writer

City of Northville officials don't want any more money to go down the drain due to illegally connected downspouts.

The city is asking the more than 80 home and business owners with downspouts that run directly into the ground to disconnect them.

The downspouts may empty in the city's sanitary sewer, contributing to the amount of waste water the city sends elsewhere for treatment and drive prices straight up.

"Some of them go into the ground and lead to the backyard or creek and that's fine," said Jim Gallogly, City of Northville Department of Public Works director. "There are a bunch though that lead into the sanitary sewer."

City officials conducted a survey during the summer and learned more than 80 buildings have rainwater downspouts running directly into the ground. Gallogly said previous to the 1960s, such hookups of downspouts were common.

Today, however, downspouts that lead to the sanitary sewer are considered illegal.

"They used to be allowed and that was OK, it made sense," Gallogly said.

"But today its so expensive to treat water and it's just rain water."

Water in the sanitary sewer is sent to the Detroit waste water treatment plant and the city is charged.

Rain water is supposed to funnel into the storm sewer, which collects the excess water and discharges it in streams and rivers. Additionally, if too much water is running into the sanitary sewer during storms, basements may backup and flood.

Downspouts that lead to the sanitary sewer should be disconnected and the hole capped, Gallogly said.

"Right now we're just asking residents to take a look at their downspouts and deal with it on their own," he said.

LET'S TALK Jewelry WITH GARY S. WEINSTEIN GEMOLOGIST

DAZZLING, DANGLING EARRINGS.

The first pair of earrings with which women adorn their newly pierced ears are a simple pair of gold studs. After that, they are likely to upgrade to elegant diamond studs or other precious gemstone earrings. Certainly, these pieces are part of a wise accumulation strategy for a basic jewelry wardrobe, but the big news in earrings this season involves drop earrings. These long shoulder-skimming earrings are favored for the ethnic look that they bring to wardrobes. Whether they incorporate diamonds, semiprecious stones, or beads, these long-stranded earrings are the au courant definition of chic. The more exotic the look, the more preferable the earrings in today's fashion sense.

The important thing to keep in mind when it comes to buying gemstones or jewelry such as earrings, is that one should choose a true professional, one who knows and loves his art. For anyone not totally familiar with fine jewelry and gemstones, knowing and having confidence in his jeweler is of the utmost importance. Here at WEINSTEIN JEWELERS OF NOVI, at 41990 Grand River Ave. (248-347-0303), and with 3 generations of experience, Gary Weinstein we are your area "professionals." Most major credit cards accepted. We are now licensed by the city of Novi to offer loans on jewelry. We are "The name you know, the name you trust."

PS Enamel is also quite in vogue at the moment for earrings.

It must be located in a rolling and hilly country, where there is a continual circulation of the life giving oxygen surcharged with the odorous perfumes of the new mown hay and broad sweet scented fields of clover. to avoid a situation of being reactive rather than proactive."

However, Jim Allen, city of Northville fire chief, takes on the attitude of the saying, "If it ain't broke, don't fix it."

"There has to be a benefit for the city to consider something like this," he said. "Right now I don't see a great benefit for the city and bigger isn't always necessarily better."

If it ain't broke ...

The issue of combining fire departments has come up before. The last time was in 1994.

Several meetings were held between township and city officials before interest in the subject gave way to politics, Snider said.

Questions on who would answer to whom, who would pay for what, and would anything be closed were main issues discussed at the time.

Other factors played into the decision to abandon discussion, he said.

"All the right conditions have to exist for the communities to consider this," Snider said. "Last time we talked about this, there wasn't a driving financial need for either department and neither department was on the brink of a public safety emergency."

And those conditions don't really exist today, but for a slightly different cast of decision-makers and safety officials in place.

For example, Allen said he has no difficulty at all bringing recruits to work for the city that also is adequately stocked with equipment to cover the two square miles within the city.

"I don't see a need for change right now," Allen said.

The township also is adequately staffed, has enough equipment and even recently bought a new ladder truck.

"If there was sincere initial interest and I was directed by the elected officials to reinvestigate a merger, I could provide the staff resources and time to do so," Snider said.

A safer Plymouth

A merger between the City of Plymouth and Plymouth Township was looked at several times since the late 1950s, Groth said. The only thing that kept the two departments from merging anytime before 1990 was politics, he said.

However, that changed in 1990 when officials from both camps, along with firefighter union officials, agreed to look into the issue. Two years were spent examining the pros and cons. After it was agreed to form a community department by the governmental bodies, more time was spent on coming up with operational procedures.

For instance, it was determined city equipment and manpower would transfer to the township, no jobs were to be lost during the merger, and that the city would fund 25 percent of the department.

When negotiations ended, the community fire department was put in place in 1995.

Both communities stand to gain financially and safety-wise, Groth said.

"We have significant projected cost savings that are based on the life of the merger," he said.

And while no real savings have been felt yet, he said, safety dividends began to pay off immediately.

One city station closed, but the main downtown station stayed open. With the three stations, almost a perfect triangle was formed to cover the Plymouth area. As a result, response times were cut, Groth said.

With the additional staff and equipment, the department was better prepared to handle emergencies such as the fire last January at Glassline Inc.

"That was a call at about 8:30 a.m., at a time when many of the volunteers were at work and may have had a harder time getting to the scene," Groth said. "With the merger, we were guaranteed seven full-time workers plus two chiefs would be on the scene."

Willing to talk

Any attempt to bring Northville Township and the city of Northville Fire Departments together would be a large and lengthy task.

However, it is one that many officials agreed would be worthy of looking into including emergency officials.

"The city of Northville is getting a very good service right now," Allen said. "But I'm not going to say any kind of merger is out of the realm of reality. Besides that really isn't my decision."

Snider said he would rather take a proactive approach to the situation rather a reactive one.

"I don't see one downside to a merger," he said. "But the big thing is for the parties involved not to see what they agree on, but what they disagree on."

Some government officials said they would be willing to reexamine a merger of fire departments.

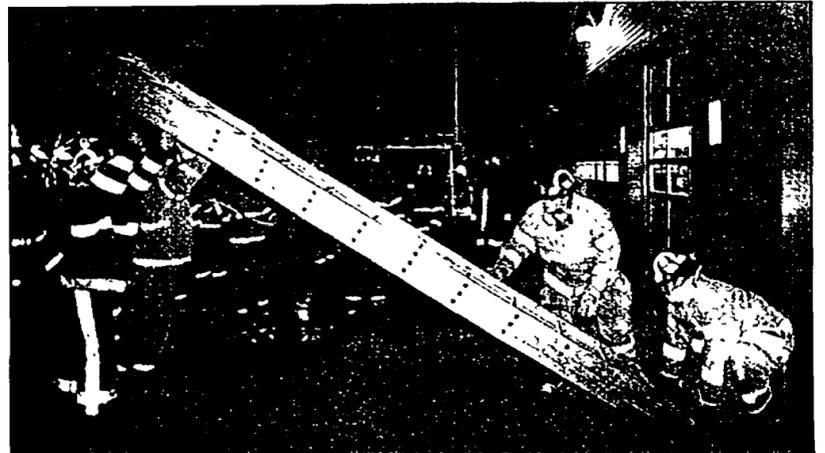

"We have to continually challenge ourselves to find ways to better serve our residents," said Sue Hillebrand, Northville Township board of trustee member and clerk. "We have got to keep looking a ways to provide the best quality service for the best cost."

Kevin Hartshorne, Northville city council member, said he continually is monitoring the city's fire department situation.

He also wants to avoid the situation of reacting to a problem.

"I can see the time will come when we won't have the base of volunteers during the day that we now have," he said. "What would happen if we have a big fire during the day? I would hate to answer that question after the fact."

Council modifies solid waste program

BY ANDREW DIETDERICH
Staff Writer

Northville City Council has modified its downtown commercial solid waste program for the second time this year.

Council has approved a recommendation from City Manager Gary Word to lower the cost to individual accounts if it is more "prudent" do so.

"In a genuine effort to improve on the fairness of the new system, individuals cases brought to the city by businesses or property owners should be promptly reviewed and addressed," Word said in a report to city council.

"There will be circumstances that may warrant a modification to the commercial solid waste charge. Therefore, a policy should be established to efficiently deal with these individual cases."

The city council approved a six-tiered pay program in May. The system charged restaurants $140 per month, food sales establishments $60 a month, churches, theaters and halls $60 a month, retail $45 a month, service providers $30 a month and residential units $15 a month.

Previous to the six-tiered program, billing was based on the recorded usage of the compactors. However, that system did not pay for itself because users would just set garbage near the compactors.

Some users contend they are being charged too much.

For instance, Geri Turnbull, owner of Your Michigan Connection, 136 N. Center St., wrote a letter to city council detailing how her business generates one bag of trash a week, yet was being charged $45 per month for trash pick up.

"I hope you will reconsider the amount of $45 per month for solid waste pick up," she said in a letter to the council.

Additionally, letters were received by the owner of Painter's Place, 140 N. Center St., which showed she does not use the city's system at all and a landlord from the downtown area that indicates her tenants don't use more than one or two garbage bags a week.

"My tenants should not be paying more, because they are receiving the same service," said Kay Kehoe, the landlord. "They are very nice, responsible, young people and I do not want to see them paying a trash fee that is too high."

According to a report by Word to the council, "it is proposed that the city manager review individual cases brought forward by downtown business owners, property owners and residents and that the city manager be authorized to modify an individual commercial solid waste charge when presented a unique situation which warrants an adjustment."

Appeals to the city manager's decision, will go before the Northville City Council.

Members of the Michigan Regional Council of Carpenters Union picket outside the township's Cascade development. The union claims that its workers are not being paid the prevailing wage by the development's sub-contractor, Livonia-based Hi-Craft.

Union carpenters strike at township development

BY ANDREW DIETDERICH
Staff Writer

Union carpenters continue to picket a Northville Township development to nail home the point they oppose non-union workers at the site.

And Doyle Goble, spokesman for United Brotherhood of Carpenters of America Local 1234, said the union is prepared to picket the entrance to the Cascades of Northville as long as it takes to get the message across that the union opposes work being done in the subdivision by non-union workers.

An average of between 50 and 60 union members have picketed Cascade Road, just east of the intersection of Six Mile Road and Northville Road, since Oct. 25.

"The issue simply is that Hi-Craft is not paying prevailing carpenter's wages," Goble said.

Livonia-based Hi-Craft is a sub-contractor doing work for the developer of the subdivision, Tri-Mount Homes. Hi-Craft didn't return telephone calls and Tri-Mount officials were unavailable for comment.

"The issue simply is that Hi-Craft is not paying prevailing carpenter's wages."

Doyle Goble
UBCA spokesman

Non-union Hi-Craft is paying workers in the subdivision about $15 an hour instead of the prevailing union wage of $20.34 an hour, Goble said. The prevailing wage is what the union determines carpenters should be paid for their work based on location and type of job.

Goble said the union is concerned about the use of non-union workers because it gives the non-union subcontractors an unfair advantage in bidding for jobs, which may take work away from union workers.

"Being a carpenter is a very stressful thing on your body," he said. "That's why we try to give these people a better life and hope they can eventually retire comfortably."

Goble said the union will stop picketing the site only if an injunction is filed to make them stop. If the union felt the picketing was unsuccessful, or if Hi-Craft would meet with union officials.

Thomas Lutz, a member of the Michigan regional carpenter's council, was one of the picketers on Cascade Road last week.

"Basically we want these guys working under these conditions to know they can do better," Lutz said. "When they join the union we can raise the standards across the board."

Goble said he's talked to one of the non-union workers making $15 an hour and is working to help the man find another job with a union contractor.

Lutz said such activities are exactly what the union hopes to accomplish through the picket in Northville Township.

"Really it gives us a level playing field," he said. "And brings more fairness into the workplace."

Northville's clock returns to downtown

BY ANDREW DIETDERICH
Staff Writer

A handful of Japanese tourists in Northville Nov. 9 probably didn't know how close they came to not seeing one of the city's landmarks.

The tourists posed for a picture in front of the city's downtown clock, less than one week after it was installed Nov. 5. The clock had been missing for four months ever since a Livonia woman who "was lost" drove her car on to the Main Street island and into the clock at about 40 mph.

The clock was damaged beyond repair in the accident and as a result had to be removed from Main Street. A second clock had to be manufactured and sent from California to replace the first one.

"I'm glad it's back," said Ronnie Cambra, owner of The Kitchen Witch, 134 E. Main St. "I've had a lot of people come into my store and say 'My God, where's the clock?'"

The clock was being made in California by the company that made the original clock for the Main Street Island. The original clock was installed in 1982.

Clock number two cost almost the same of the original clock, said Jim Gallogly, director of the Northville department of public works, with a price tag of about $17,500 not including the about $5,000 in shipping and installation. Although city officials are glad the clock is back, it took a bit longer than expected. Gallogly said the city was told it would take two to three months to rebuild the clock but it took four.

"They make all their clocks from scratch and custom make them," Gallogly said. "And they've just been real busy."

Transportation and installation of the clock was "a little scary," Gallogly said.

"There's always the fear that something will happen during shipment or installation," he said.

However, the clock was hoisted flawlessly Nov. 5.

No parts from the original clock were used in the new one, Gallogly said. However, all of the features are the same including the holiday songs, with no religious references, that chime every 15 minutes during the season.

Joe Spagnuolo, owner of several downtown buildings, said he's "always liked the clock" and that it really adds something to downtown Northville.

"When you're walking it tells you what time it is so you can get the hell out of town," he said.

Township to begin naming public parks

Trustees vote to enact new policy for naming public properties

BY ANDREW DIETDERICH
Staff Writer

Northville Township residents soon may be able to refer to community parks by name instead of "that one park" or "the other park."

The Northville Township board of trustees has put a policy in place to name public properties including monuments, parks, places and buildings.

"When the township started buying land about nine or 10 months ago, the questions were raised about how are we going to go about naming parks and do we have a policy in place," said Sue Hillebrand, board member and chair of the park naming committee.

The committee formed around the same time all the land was starting to be purchased, Hillebrand said. Three members of the board were the committee.

During the process of putting the policy together, Hillebrand

"When the township started buying land about nine or 10 months ago, the questions were raised about how are we going to go about naming parks and do we have a policy in place."

Sue Hillebrand

said, the committee looked at many different naming policies including local and out-of-state policies.

Hillebrand said the most important and simple ideas were taken from the reports the committee went over.

The policy says the township "wishes to establish a policy for the naming of public places. Consideration will be given to geographic features, indigenous plant or animal life, historical significance and people or events associated with the Northville communitrustees. Nominations may be made by township residents or board members, a local charitable, civic or other non-profit organization, a person or organization proposing to donate a facility or other significant functional improvement.

After the application is received, the item would go on the regular board of trustee meeting where the board will review the request and adopt, modify or reject it.

Additionally, names will only be changed to reflect extreme conditions or reasons.

"Since a lot of land was purchased during this board's tenure, we wanted to be sure all of the parks weren't name after its members," Hillebrand said. "I think the policy we put in is fair, easy to administer and will help develop names that mean something to the community."

Northville Community Briefs

STELLAR RECEIVES CONDITIONAL APPROVAL OF STORAGE BUILDING

The owner of the building that houses Stellar Materials, 777 Baseline Road, has received conditional approval for a new 4,000 square foot storage shed.

The City of Northville planning commission has given approval to the $72,000 improvement for the concrete-making business with the following conditions: all storage will be in the building; additional lighting will be provided; a sealed copy of the property survey; no temporary storage will be in the parking lot; a secondary containment curb be added to the storage building.

OUTCAST TREES TO STAY IN PHEASANT HILLS

Three trees the Pheasant Hills Homeowners Association requested be removed will remain standing as long as the trees are alive, city officials said.

Gary Word, Northville city manager, said he made the decision to keep the trees in place after the Pheasant Hills association asked for the removal, because they didn't conform to the other trees in the neighborhood.

All but three homes have Debra Norway maples as part of the site plan for the subdivision. The developer paid a certain amount to the city, which then bought and planted the trees. The three homes had different trees planted for various reasons, among them that the owners felt the city took too long to plant the trees and they wanted something different.

As city manager, Word has the authority over trees in the city.

NORTHVILLE UPDATES LIST OF AUTHORIZED FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS

The City of Northville has expanded the list of financial institutions it may do business with, as part of a desire to expand its portfolio.

The Northville City Council increased the list at the suggestion of Gary Word, Northville city manager, after he expressed the desire of the city to expand its investment portfolio.

City council must approve the list of institutions the city may use.

The list includes: Bank One; Comerica Bank; Comerica Securities; First of Michigan Corp. Michigan National Bank; Old Kent Bank; Republic Bank; Standard Federal.

PUBLIC HEARING SET UP FOR HOW TO HANDLE COMMUNITY GRANTS

According to Gary Word, Northville city manager, the city is expected to receive about $8,000 from the Oakland County Community Development Block Grant for the 2000 block grant year.

A public hearing is required as part of the process whereby citizen input is allowed.

The city plans to dole out the money as follows: $1,600 to program administration costs; $4,000 to senior services; $2,400 for senior citizen housing support.

The hearing will be held 7:30 p.m. Nov. 15 at Northville City Hall.

SANTA CLAUS IS COMING TO TOWN IN DECEMBER

ment at (248) 349-0203.

The department has put together an evening that promises to be "10 times more fun" than shopping. Crafts, movies, games and snacks will be among the events kids will be able to take part in.

Preregistration is necessary by Dec. 15 and the fee is $10.

Parents Night Out is geared towards children five years old and up.

NORTHVILLE NITE 1999 PLANNED FOR NEW YEAR'S EVE

The Northville Parks and Recreation Department once again will

The department is calling the event "the biggest party in Northville's history." Last year, almost 600 people attended the event, with more than 800 expected at this year's Northville Nite.

The event will be held 5 p.m. to 9 p.m. Dec. 31 at the Northville High School.

Plans for the evening include The Oak Pointe Fair, human bowling, a velcro obstacle course, an open swimming pool and arts and crafts projects to take part in.

Winchester Elementary School French teacher Thuan Tran watches Krista Crawford carefully prepare her crepe during the classes taste of France program last week.

Winchester celebrates French week

By MELANIE PLENDIA
Staff Writer

Winchester Elementary students got a taste of cuisine au France during National French week. The students were treated to French pastries and songs in an effort to broaden their understanding of the culture, said French teacher Thuan Tran. "This is a time to acknowledge the French culture and the common bond we are cultivating through language," Tran said. He said it was more important than ever for students to develop another language early. Tran, who learned French when he was growing up in Vietnam, said it is much easier for younger students to learn a language than at an older age. "Kids generally pick up on a language more," he said. "They are generally more enthusiastic and are not afraid of it." Additionally, he said with society become more global, knowing another language is key in the job market. "There is still not one common language, so the more languages people know the more in demand they are in the business world," he said. The object of his classes though are to have fun in learning the language and the culture, he said. His students agreed, saying they enjoyed the fact that they were learning something different from the norm. "It's really fun," fourth grader Scott Lee said. "It makes me want to learn other some other languages." As for indulging in the tasty pastries, the students agreed it was the best part of French Week. "I had never tried them before," fourth grader Laura Cattalano said. "I'm going to try to make them at home."

Schools earn high marks for annual financial audit

By MELANIE PLENDIA
Staff Writer

The Northville Public School District will be saving taxpayers money this year, according to a favorable audit report from accounting firm Plante & Moran.

With a surplus of $8.1 million in savings in the general fund's coffers, superintendent Leonard Rezmierski said the school board will be able to keep its 1996 promise of lowering the taxpayers' contribution by 1 mill three years ahead of schedule.

"Thanks to some wise management by (finance director) John Street and the schools living within their means, we were able to set aside and accumulate enough to be able to retire a one-half debt mill this year," Rezmierski said.

Street said this means if a taxpayer's house is worth $100,000, the owner will pay $50 less in taxes, $100 less for a $200,000 residence, $150 less for a 300,000 home and so on.

All of it, Rezmierski said, means more money in taxpayers' pockets.

Plante & Moran, an independent firm, is hired once a year to analyze the budget, cost, and management procedures of the district.

Their findings resulted in an "unqualified opinion."

"It is the highest rating that we can give a district," said Dennis Lesnau, an accountant for Plante & Moran.

"It means that we found no problems in the way they manage the district or in the way they appropriate their funds."

The positive rating also comes from having a surplus of funds in the general fund balance. Street said there were several factors that helped the savings without sacrificing programs.

"There was an increase in state aid, we saved some on medical insurance and because we have a good-sized fund balance, we didn't have to borrow and saved on interest rates," Street said.

He also said the $3.7 million received from the Durant lawsuit settlement, where courts found the government was underfunding schools by 23 percent, will be helping the budget for the next several years.

According to Plante & Moran's analysis, the general fund balance holds the monies that go to instruction and support services. Of the $35.68 million budgeted, $23.72 million pays for salaries in the district, $6.51 million goes to benefits, while $5.42 million is applied to other areas, including instructional tools and programs.

The analysis further showed that 81 percent of the district's money comes from the government, 13.8 percent comes from local business, and property taxes. This translates to roughly $30 million from the government and only $4.7 million from local pockets. This is a decrease of $12,869 in property taxes since 1990.

In turn, that breaks down to the district receiving $6,768 per student this year and a projected increase to $7,416 by 2001.

"We are totally dependent on the state, so it is good that we have money set aside for the future in case the unpredictable happens," Rezmierski said.

However, Rezmierski said this surplus also allows them some luxuries as well.

"We don't have to borrow, we can invest in that risky idea, or buy more books," Rezmierski said. "We have a lot of options."

Rezmierski said the district is already working on the budget for next year which has to be ready by June. He said they were already looking into ways of getting gas and electric in bulk to help further reduce costs.

Overall, administrators were happy with the results as well as local parents.

"It is an overall warm fuzzy," parent Robin Benjamin said. "I have always thought they were doing a good job and this confirms it."

District officials displeased with new kindergarten bill

By MELANIE PLENDIA
Staff Writer

Sen. Joanne Emmons has proposed a bill which would require a child to be at least five years old by Sept. 1 to be eligible to start kindergarten.

While Northville schools' central office is concerned about the issue, some teachers in the district want the new policy.

"The curriculum in kindergarten is a little more demanding than it used to be," Silver Springs kindergarten teacher Debra Kontry said. "This would give the kids a little more time to mature."

Emmons, R-Big Rapids, said under the school code, a child is entitled to enroll in kindergarten if he or she is at least five years of age by Dec. 1. She said because of this, kindergarten classes often include children who range in age from four to six years.

The bill Emmons has proposed, Senate Bill 447, would require a child to be five years old by Sept. 1 of the year the child is to start kindergarten. However, the change would be gradual, she said. It would start at Nov. 1 and would gradually roll back to Sept. 1 by 2002. Emmons was hoping that the law would be effective by July of 2000.

"Teachers from my district have told me that many of the younger children have not progressed sufficiently in their emotional or intellectual development and are not ready to start school," she said.

Superintendent Leonard Rezmierski disagreed and said it would be detrimental to the district.

"In the long run, this is going to cost the district money because less students will be enrolling which means less funding," Rezmierski said.

He said parents who want their child to start earlier may be forced to choose a private or parochial school to begin their school careers. He said the logical conclusion of that was the district may end up losing the student for the rest of their school years.

However, Silver Springs kindergarten teacher Angie Krzeczowski said financing should not be the issue.

"We need to do what is best for the students to give them the best education we can," she said. "I don't think the money should be our priority."

She said it was more important to focus on the development of the student and the impact that starting school too soon has on a student.

Krzeczowski said in her three years of experience with teaching kindergarten it was difficult to have such an age difference in a classroom.

"If the community of the classroom is more cohesive, the teaching will naturally be more cohesive," Krzeczowski said. "That can only benefit the student."

Rezmierski said he did not dismiss the idea that there was merit in discussing the pros and cons of this issue. He said if research showed that it would be better for students to start earlier, the district would discuss it. However, Rezmierski said, attention needs to be paid to the bigger picture.

"If a child starts their school careers earlier and ends up graduating at 16, we have to consider if the universities, armed forces, society, et cetera, are prepared for that," he said.

It was that type of debate Rezmierski said he was hoping to be in on at the government level. He said the state government was once again leaving the school and district administrations out of the equation.

"I still wonder what the reason for all of this legislation is," Rezmierski said. "It's just one thing after another."

The bill has been through the Senate Education committee already, and is now on the way to the Senate Floor. If the Senate passes it, the House education committee gets it. The bill would then be sent to the House floor.

Barring further revisions, the bill would become law sometime before the end of 2000.

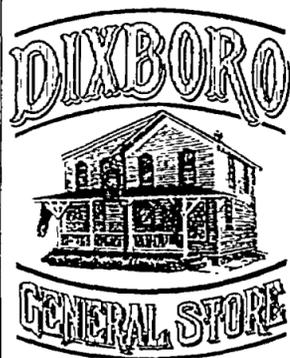

Further information can be obtained by calling Emmons office at (517) 373-3760. Information about this and other bills can be obtained by going to www.michiganlegislature.org.

Council OKs standards for city construction

BY ANDREW DIETDERICH
Staff Writer

Building in the City of Northville should be a lot easier after 1999.

The Northville City Council has approved a guideline that outlines the minimum design standards for the construction of streets, storm sewer, sanitary sewer, water main, parking lots, sidewalks and bike paths within the city.

A similar guide was put together earlier this year by the historic district commission for home and business repairs made in the historic district.

The guidelines are part of the Manual of Uniform Criteria and Design Standards for Construction, which took effect Nov. 1.

According to a report to Northville City Council from City Manager Gary Word, "proposed projects that do not meet or exceed these standards will not receive approval for construction from the city engineer, building officials or the planning commission."

All developers, engineers and architects who undertake work in the city are required to follow the guidelines, Word said. The manual was put together at the request of the Northville Planning Commission.

"We want to make sure everything that gets built in the city is constructed correctly and can accommodate the amount of usage it will receive," said Planning Commission Chairman Jim Allen.

Allen said putting together the manual was prompted by not having a clear and definitive distinction in city ordinance between a private drive and private road.

Word said the document will give planners a better direction of what city officials envision for Northville.

"This document has been written to meet the high standards expected in our community and they shall prevail in cases where they provide a greater restriction than is provided by other regulations or laws," Word said in his report.

The report includes such detail as minimum grades for parking lots and driveways to where fire hydrants will be located on properties to sidewalk and bike path standards.

The Manual of Uniform Criteria and Design Standards for Construction and the historic district guides are available at the Northville City Hall, 215 W. Main St. There is a fee for the historic district guidelines.

Helping to give comfort

Comfort Zone Center provides caring spirit for mentally ill

By WENDY PIERMAN MITZEL
Staff Writer

"You know how the rich have their social clubs? Well, this is ours."

That's Director Brenda Hoffman's take on the Comfort Zone Drop-In center. The center, located at 39575 Ten Mile Road in Novi, serves the social and recreational needs of some of the county's mentally ill residents.

Open since June, the center's 100-plus "consumers" are referred from local mental health agencies and other counselors and doctors. At the Comfort Zone they can find solace, a listening ear and a lot of stuff to do.

"When we got sick we became so disillusioned, afraid of the world. We closed ourselves off from the world," explained Hoffman, who is herself manic depressive.

"This is a place we can come out without stigma."

Within the center's walls are various areas sectioned off for arts and crafts, computer use, shooting pool, pingpong, reading in the library and chatting in the comfy couch and coffee table area. There's also refreshments on hand (and hot meals in the future).

board games to play and karaoke in the kitchen.

The center even has shower facilities for "consumers" who need to use them. As Hoffman explained, some of the members survive on Social Security or other small means and can really use a place to clean up and feel better. The center's staff of Hoffman and four others can even throw a load of clothes in the washing machine.

Transportation is available upon request with a two-day notice.

The center is funded by the Oakland County Community Mental Health Authority and affiliated with Mercy Network West part of St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Pontiac. The center serves residents all over the county from Farmington to Highland to Clarkston in the north.

On any given day the center sees about 15 people. They are from all walks of life, Hoffman explained and are all battling a form of mental illness.

Some are from group homes or assisted living situations. Some live on their own. Some live with families.

"If you saw (a typical member) walking down the street or in a shop they look like everybody else. The only difference is they might have a sad look on their face or they might have been crying," said Hoffman.

Hoffman herself has fought manic depression for nearly two decades and is now back on track thanks to medication, therapy and places like the drop-in center.

"Anyone with emotional illness, sadness in their life, stress. Anyone who has or thinks they have an emotional illness" is welcomed to be a guest at the center.

"There's a feeling of having people who understand you. A lot of times the people in your family or your circle don't understand your mood swings," Hoffman explained.

Pam Alexander agrees. She's been coming to the center for solace from her since it opened and says it has changed her life.

"It's helped me build my self-esteem," Alexander explained. She now has a job at Walgreen's and is also going to school. She was diagnosed with Schizo-effective disorder in 1993.

"The people are great," she added. "Everyone's easy to talk to.

Whenever I have a problem there's always someone there staff-wise that I can talk to," she explained.

While the center is not counseling nor therapy, it is a place to go to talk.

"I'm a listener," said Hoffman. "People confide in me and my staff. But if we hear something that seems like they're in a dangerous situation we get them help. We get a hold of their family or a case manager."

The consumers think of the center as their home, their place, said Hoffman. The members help keep the place clean, they help move furniture and most importantly, they help each other. Some members may start tutoring each other in such skills as computers.

Alexander said giving back to other consumers is part of the healing process.

"I try to help support (others at the center) with their illness and tell them what I went through," she said.

Alexander said if she didn't have the center to drop into from time to time she "would probably just stay at home and close myself off from the rest of the world."

Northville resident helps others in need

By WENDY PIERMAN MITZEL
Staff Writer

It was when the color came back into her life that Brenda Hoffman knew she was going to be okay.

Diagnosed a manic depressive, Hoffman had closed herself off from the world. Life existed only in black and white and shades of gray. But one day, as she was driving down a road, the sky turned blue. The grass became green.

"I saw color. Life was coming back to me," she said.

No one knows better than Hoffman what the guests of the Comfort Zone Drop-In Center need.

The Northville resident and director of the center has battled manic depression since the early

"The main thing that helped me to gain my self esteem back is to show I could help others."

Brenda Hoffman
director, Comfort Zone

1980s when a series of events beginning with bankruptcy sent her on a downward spiral. After many attempts, Hoffman finally gained control over her illness with therapy, medication and learning skills and coping methods from other drop-in centers in the area. She also became involved in those centers serving on boards and committees around the county.

Which is how she landed at the Comfort Zone. Hoffman was hired because she is manic depressive. The theory is the center needs a director who can immediately identify with the clientele.

"They hired a consumer because a consumer knows what other consumers go through," she explained.

Not only does her job help others, it helps her, too.

"The main thing that helped me to gain my self esteem back is to show I could help others," Hoffman said.

Hoffman spends her days doling out hugs, lending a sympathetic ear and going for walks with her consumers. She tells others of her fight to stay healthy.

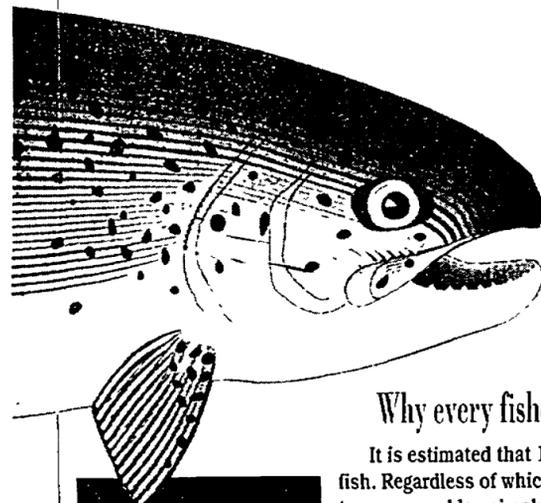

"I consider myself a winner, or victorious over this," she explained. "I've run the race. I am a survivor. There's a lot of people here who are survivors and when I hear of people who are survivors it just thrills me."

Her husband of 25 years and her family have stuck with her through it all. And she can't wait to spend the next 25 seeing it all in color.

"I'm taking charge of my illness. I have to. No one else is going to take charge for me," she said.

quently made a threat or threats to "blow up" the middle school student and/or some of his property. Additionally, he said, the parents of the 14-year-old allowed their home to be searched for additional explosive-making material. A small amount of related material was found in the home by police, Sumner said. "All of the parents involved in this case bent over backwards to help us," he said. During the investigation, seven juveniles and parents were interviewed with the end result being a juvenile petition filed against the 14-year-old in the Wayne County Prosecutor's office. Sumner said rumors began to spread as more people were interviewed. "When dealing with explosives, weapons and young people there are so many rumors that start that are not true," he said. "It's our job to confirm whether the rumors are valid or not." The rumors, of which none proved to be true, prompted Northville High School to investigate the matter, Sumner said. Sumner said it's up to the prosecutor's office to what kind of punishment the 14-year-old may face and it could include community service, fines and/or the requirement to take a fire safety course. Sumner said the investigation might not have happened and progressed as effectively if the parents didn't get involved and cooperate with police. "This investigation shows how important it is to keep a line of communication open between parents and their children," he said. Witzke has also eaten her share of cookies, usually after donating blood to the American Red Cross. She has donated more than 100 pints of blood to the charity in her life, and also volunteers at Star Manor Nursing Home. Chamber of commerce director Laurie Marrs said Witzke — also her next-door neighbor — had fully earned the Citizen of the Year honor.

"One of the things we look for when we take nominations are the unsung heroes in our community," she said. "These are people who aren't looking for accolades or a pat on the back. They do what they do because they love doing it. To give her this award is really an honor for us." Marrs was acutely aware of Witzke's reaction to her being named. "She literally collapsed," Marrs said. "Her mouth dropped to the floor. She never did this sort of thing for the recognition, so this was obviously a huge surprise for her."

Witzke and her husband, Art, came to Northville in 1965 and have been residents ever since. Art Witzke is a retired Ford Motor Company employee. The couple has three children and five grandchildren. On Monday, the Witzkes were preparing to go out on the town for their 52nd wedding anniversary. The night was going to be cut short, however. "I'm singing for the choir tonight," she laughed. "This is going to be an early-bird dinner for us."

NCBA plans for 'Hometown Holidays 1999'

The Northville Central Business Association is a distinct organization which represents the more than 125 merchants, restaurateurs and service business owners in downtown Northville. The membership's purpose is to plan activities and provide printed information which promote the downtown retailers and services. They are currently planning for "Hometown Holidays 1999." The downtown holiday season kicks off this year with the annual "Hometown Holidays Lighted Parade 1999" on Nov. 19 at 6:30 p.m. along Main and Center streets. Planned are some 25 entries including decorated vehicles and floats, equestrian units, canine corps, precision marchers, carolers, a marching band, a callope, clowns and grand marshal, Michigan Attorney General Jennifer Granholm. Prior to the parade, spectators can enjoy the community carol sing along the parade route. ## OPINION

Cooperative effort spared Northville potential tragedy

No one should care if the explosive device built by a 14-year old Northville student and turned over to Northville Township police was small.

On the other hand, the fact that the item carried potentially deadly power and was even built in the first place should send chills up anyone's spine. How unfortunate it is that youth would feel so much angst as to actually want to do great bodily harm against fellow human beings.

It's difficult in stories like this one to find a silver lining in the middle of a very dark cloud. We think we've found one, though: the collective effort between parents, school administrators and the law enforcement community.

The fact that three separate entities were able to pool their resources and weed their way through rumors and dead-end leads to arrive at the truth is admirable, and we give a strong salute to those who worked for the greater good.

Anyone who has been through the adolescent years knows about the unwritten code of silence among students: don't rat on your friends. In the wake of headline-making school violence across the country, however, that policy can no longer be tolerated.

Mumbled threats and brooding comments overheard in the hallways need to be taken seriously, and we commend the student who spoke up and his or her parents for doing the right thing by stepping forward.

Where human life is concerned, passing information on to the authorities isn't squealing. It's a moral and ethical obligation that requires bravery. Our only wish is that more students who had heard of similar rumblings would have the courage to tell what they've heard.

We hope this event serves as a unsettling reminder to parents to talk with their children, to school officials to keep a watchful eye over potential hotspots in class and to police departments to continue to strive for being responsible liaisons in the community.

We don't want to add Northville to the growing list of cities whose names have been stained with the blood of school violence.

Northville: better safe than sorry with fire protection

Let's face it — maintaining the status quo is easy.

For instance, it's easy to look at the city of Northville Fire Department and apply the adage "If it ain't broke don't fix it."

Personnel numbers are up, equipment runs soundly and both appear ready to take on any emergency that may come before the city.

The same may be said for the Northville Township Fire Department.

So why even consider making drastic changes such as those discussed in today's article about the possibility of combining the Northville Township Fire Department and the city of Northville Fire Department?

There really are two answers to this question.

The first answer is that it simply makes sense to be proactive rather than reactive as suggested by Chip Snider, Northville Township director of public safety.

In the "olden" days, the volunteer fire department consisted of the local mechanics, gas station attendants or mercantile peddlers. These days, though, more and more people who live in Northville travel outside of the city during weekdays. Who's to say where responders may be if a fire breaks out downtown at noon on a Monday?

Additionally, who knows what kind of financial hardship the city may see in the future? Sure, we can afford new planters, garbage cans and light poles today, but what about 10 years down the line when funds for whatever reason dry up and the ladder truck the city has needs fixing? It could happen.

The second answer to the question about why combining fire departments should be discussed now is because it falls in line with how the city appears to be planning ahead.

Vast amounts of time are spent considering what kind of building and business should go where and who can add on to what with consideration to future needs and trends. Why not take a look at how combining fire departments could play into the equation and if the city could benefit?

Plymouth Community Fire Department Chief Larry Groth said the Plymouth area is the safest from fire than it ever has been. Response times are down and there are more guaranteed personnel on emergency scenes than ever.

But the most telling thing Groth had to say was that the key to making the Plymouth Community Fire Department a reality was a decision on the part of politicians in the area to discuss the issue with current and future residents in mind.

Hopefully, Northville area elected officials can do the same.

Our community has some real gems

You know, we need more people in our community like Elaine Witzke. The long-time Northville resident (she and her husband Art have lived in our community for close to 40 years) spends her days getting involved in this community in a variety of ways.

When she's not teaching children about nature at St. Paul's School, or volunteering at the Star Manor Nursing Home, she's donating blood to the Red Cross, or even personally singing birthday greetings to parishioners at St. Paul's Lutheran Church.

In short Elaine Witzke cares about Northville and the people who live here. I've often thought that people like her should be recognized more than those who hold elected office or serve on city or township commissions. People need to see the Elaine Witzke's of our community, they need to learn from them. We need to celebrate the community minded spirit that people like Elaine possess.

Last week Elaine received the highest honor. I believe anyone in our community can achieve. She was named Citizen of the Year by the Northville Chamber of Commerce. Some pretty impressive people have received the award over the years, according to Chamber director Laurie Marrs the award goes to the "unsung heroes of our community."

"These are people who aren't looking for accolades or a pat on the back. They do what they do because they love doing it. To give (Witzke) this award is really an honor for us."

Robert Jackson

An honor indeed. After reading what this resident gives our community every day it's a wonder she hasn't won this award several times. Witzke would tell you, however, that the true gift is in the doing, not the receiving.

"It was an absolutely tremendous honor. I was truly humbled by all that was going on. I've been blessed with so much in my life already."

That statement says all you need to know about Elaine Witzke.

And I guess what really makes me feel good about being a journalist in this town, is that despite all the problems I write about each week, I can always find a story about a person in Northville that makes me smile.

Take Jeanette Moore, for instance. The name might not be familiar to many of you, but if you happen to travel through the intersection of Seven Mile and Northville roads, you can thank Jeanette for you smooth sailing across the railroad tracks. It was Moore who came to us a few months back concerned about the tracks and what it was doing to her car. That got our reporters working on the story, which led us to Joe Macura — a retired railroad worker and Northville resident — who told us the tracks weren't safe. That led us to CSX, and eventually to the solution to the problem.

So today, you can thank Jeanette and Joe for making our community safer, and your drive through that crossing smoother.

And while you're at it, you might give a quick thanks to Northville resident Bob Russell. He's the guy who got the old waterwheel turning again at the old Ford Valve Plant. Bob passed by the plant everyday, and one day decided to see what he could do about the waterwheel. He formed a small committee, began researching the wheel, made dozens of phone calls, asked hundreds of questions, and about eight months after he started his project, Bob got the pleasure of starting up the old wheel, which now turns as easily as it did years ago.

Yes, people like Elaine and Jeanette and Joe and Bob might not get as much attention as the city mayor or township supervisor, but without people like them our community would be a woeful place to live. In my estimation they all deserve to be citizens of the year.

More random thoughts, observations

More random thoughts and observations on life...

- I've been trying to think of a job where critics tear you apart more than in journalism. Here's my complete list of the possible contenders: 1) PR person for a tobacco company. 2) Geoffrey Fieger.

- I have determined that the hope of the return of even an isolated 80-degree day is completely vanquished once you've scraped frost off a windshield for the first time in a season. Any meteorologists want to back me up on this? (By the way — why don't meteorologists study meters?)

- Someone pinch me...is Interstate 275 actually complete?

- About six months ago, I did a story on a Northville dentist who swore by the Dr. Atkins eat-a-lot-of-meat-and-lose-weight diet. It was the first time I'd heard of such a thing and based on the phone calls I received from running it, I daresay it was the first time for a lot of readers, too. Well, it's October and Dr. Carnivore is everywhere you turn. I bet Ponderosa couldn't be happier.

- I didn't need to read those stories about how using a cell phone might cause damage to the brain. If you're driving a car and yapping on your cell phone, you're already halfway there.

- If Coke is going to create a pop machine that jacks up the cost of a can when it gets hotter, does that mean we can purchase a Sprite for nickel in February?

- Here's what I think — if you're in an elevator at midnight this New Year's Eve, and the Y2K doomsdayers are proven to be correct (i.e.: the car gets stuck), then you deserve to be there. It's the biggest moment in the last thousand years. What were you doing in an elevator?

- Halloween is now a three-week holiday. Christmas is up to six weeks. Yet Thanksgiving is still one day.

(Okay, maybe two, but that's if you're one of those loonies who heads to the malls at the crack of dawn.) I say this only because Thanksgiving is the one day when everyone, regardless of religious affiliation or nationality, should take the time and count our blessings, rather than our number of miniature candy bars or presents under the tree.

- That must have been some crash. It's November, and the Northville city clock still hasn't been repaired and replaced. I'm starting to miss it.

- Another excerpt from the Newby's Guide To Living: If you ever want a clean house, just invite company over.

- I miss seeing the clubhouse for the old Slinger's Driving Range on the north side of Grand River in Novi. I used to go there with my dad when I was younger, then to some little dairy a little further west. I was told the place had great buttermilk, but since I couldn't stand the stuff (still can't), I wouldn't know. I do know the chocolate milk was second to none.

The littlest people need the most help

The findings of a decade of medical and scientific research on how babies develop are perfectly clear and undisputed:

- A child's intelligence arises from the set of sensory experiences during the first 10 years of life, with the most crucial period being from birth to age three.

- If the very early years are squandered, the ability to learn is forever after compromised.

- What parents of newborns should do is hardly rocket science: Talking, singing and reading to them, tickling them while changing their diapers, helping them draw with chalk, holding and snuggling them. What's new is the intuition and experience that guided parents in the past are today being validated by hard science.

Despite overwhelming evidence, today's reality in Michigan remains stubbornly deficient in focusing on the needs of children, parents and child care providers during the key, early years.

- A study by the Lansing-based Public Sector Consultants found that children in Michigan who are in kindergarten after age five receive three times the public and private support that pre-kindergartners get: $7,200 per year versus $2,200 per year.

- The same study found that 96 percent of Michigan workers have no employer-sponsored early childhood benefits, whether paid family leave or subsidized child care.

- Over the weekend, the Detroit News reported that the people who care for children in Michigan often make less than a hamburger flipper at the local fast food. Median per hour wages for child care workers are $7.03, compared to a bus driver's $11.55 or a kindergarten teacher's $19.85.

Phil Power

What we have here is a classic disconnect between what we know — we should focus our resources on our children from birth to the time they enter kindergarten — and what we actually do. I can forgive people or societies for not doing the right thing when they don't know any better. But it's hard to forgive when people persist knowingly in dumb behavior.

There are signs wise people in Michigan are beginning to take this situation seriously.

In the Michigan legislature, of all places, a bipartisan Children's Caucus is beginning to look hard at what the state can do to help the development of very young children. Caucus leaders include Reps. Patricia Godchaux, R-Birmingham, Hubert Price, D-Pontiac, Lynne Martinez, D-Lansing, and Edward LaForge, D-Kalamazoo.

The first meeting last month attracted around 25 Representatives and Senators. Rather than jumping to develop specific legislative proposals, the caucus is intended to provide lawmakers with information about early childhood development they can use later in weighing policy responses.

Roots for the caucus lie in the Ready-To-Learn Leadership Summit, which took place in June and gathered some 50 leaders from all sectors of the state. The group listened to a report by Joan Lessen-Firestone, an early childhood expert and consultant for Oakland Schools, who presented a summary of what scientists have learned about child development over the past 20 years.

The impact of what Firestone and other experts had to say was head-spinning. For example, one study suggested that the return on investment in early child development could be enormous. If society were willing to spend $12,000 per child for the years from birth, total social spending (in reduced crime, prisons, and other social ills stemming from incomplete childhood development) could be cut by $88,000.

The best perspective for me (I attended the Summit and was fascinated) was a quote from Becky Beauchamp, of Traverse City's United Way: "The most important thing that can come out of this is to realize that children are a priority. We revere youth in this country, but we do not value children. We've proven again and again that if something is a priority, we can find a solution. If we decide a $6 million football stadium is a priority, we find a way to build it."

I wouldn't be at all surprised if concerns about early childhood development wind up to be a central issue in Michigan public policy over the next decade.

It's not what you get...it's what you give

Aaron Morehead wanted a birthday party. After all, you only turn eight once.

But mom Joan Morehead was none to thrilled about the idea in the beginning. "Do you really need more toys?" she asked.

Aaron said he really didn't care about getting gifts, he just wanted a get-together with his buddies from school. As Joan later put it, kids love to play with their pals, and they love to host parties in their own homes.

What came of the dilemma was a truly unique event. Aaron, Joan and dad Kurt Morehead hosted a birthday shindig earlier this fall with all the usual trappings — cake, pop, balloons and party games.

Except there was one big difference — no gifts.

Instead, this Walled Lake area family took donations for a favorite charity. They asked guests to bring toys, living necessities — like washclothes and towels — or cash donations to be given to HAVEN, Oakland County's shelter for battered and abused spouses and children.

Joan — Kurt gives her all the credit for coming up with the idea — explained that she tries to get her son involved several times a year in volunteer activities like the CROP Walk and Clean Sweep in Detroit. She wants him to know there are children who are less fortunate and get some hands-on experience helping others.

When it came time to host the birthday party, HAVEN was chosen because kids would get the benefit. Aaron and Joan wanted it to be a matter of "kids helping kids."

When the family headed off to HAVEN to hand over what they had collected — a sizable collection of toys and necessities as well as $90 in donations — Aaron got a tour of the facility. He learned about the shelter, what it does for its users, and why such shelters are needed.

But it still begs the question, did Aaron miss getting gifts? Was his birthday diminished at all by not getting presents from all his pals?

Not all at, reports Joan. The party was big hit with the kids. They got to do all the things party-goers do. And after all, Aaron still got presents from mom and dad, grandpa and grandma.

Aaron's reaction to the idea was one of excitement. Says Kurt, when it was explained to Aaron that they might be doing something unique, untried before, Aaron's responses was that "they couldn't stop him." He was genuinely excited about the prospect of helping out a charity that in turn would help other children.

The party was hit with other parents too. I've heard from a number of those whose boys were at the get-together, and they all have given the idea very positive reviews. Most say they plan to do something similar.

And why not? Most kids these days have toys in great abundance. I know it is certainly true at my house. With three youngsters, our family has bedrooms full of toys, closets full of toys. The garage is half taken over by them, and from time to time they seem to spill out on the lawn.

We live in prosperous times. Parents and relatives lavish gifts on their kids. At Christmas, especially, but during birthdays too, toys arrive at our homes literally by the carload. Of course, they never quite seem to leave in the same volumes.

So when it came time for my son, Charlie, to host his birthday party recently for his eighth birthday, we too talked to him about collecting donations. He eagerly agreed. The charity we chose was Ronald McDonald House of Ann Arbor, which puts up family members so they can be close by when kids are sick and in the hospital at the University of Michigan Medical Center.

Did Charlie miss getting gifts? He didn't seem to. He got play time with a bunch of his pals, pizza and a trip with friends to a hockey game. It seems to me that makes life pretty good. And Charlie agrees.

When Aaron and Kurt arrived at Charlie's get-together, I confessed we were stealing their idea, shamelessly ripping off their concept.

"That's OK. We want people to steal it," Kurt said. "Use it cookie-cutter fashion. Just pick your favorite charity, something your child can connect to, and do it."

"This is one time you can steal and not have to worry about being prosecuted," Joan said.

Every once in a while an idea comes along that's worth copying. And this appears to be one of them.

Letters to the Editor

Downs support keeps Farmer's Market thriving

To the editor:
The Northville Chamber of Commerce has been the proud sponsor of the Farmer's Market for the past 18 years. Customers from the surrounding areas, classrooms from local schools and, of course, Northville residents flock to the corner of Seven Mile and Sheldon Road to buy their plants, perennials and produce. The popularity of the market continues to grow because it offers an opportunity for socialization and conversation while shopping for the best produce and products found in southeast Michigan.

Northville Downs and the Northville Driving Club have graciously allowed the chamber to use this prime piece of land every Thursday from May through October. The Downs has supported this popular event because they believe in giving back to our community and for this we owe them a round of applause.

Thank you from the Chamber of Commerce, thank you from the Michigan farmers and crafters, thank you from the community.

Dynamic Duo

After 25 years of adventure, Chris and Ellie Hammond have come back to Northville...but not necessarily to relax

By MELANIE PLENDI
Staff Writer

Crispin and Eleanor Hammond have seen it all. They have been to the four corners of America, knowing at least one person in every state of the Union.

For three quarters of a century they have had countless adventures and have seen the many wonders of the American countryside — all of it done, seen and experienced side by side.

Now "Chris" Hammond, 90, and "Ellie" Hammond, 86, have decided to end their nomadic retirement and spend the remainder of their lives in Novi, close to family and their long time haunt, Northville.

"It's like coming home, but it's so different," Eleanor Hammond said.

Their beloved Northville has changed from the tiny farming community it once was to a thriving and bustling metropolis.

The Hammonds described Northville as being a very rural community filled with farms and apple orchards. One of their favorite spots was the pond near their home on Beck Road where their six children would ice skate in the winter.

Since then, however, farms have been replaced by buildings, and most of their dirt roads have been paved.

"The one thing that impressed me was all the traffic and the expressways," Chris Hammond described a time when he would leave his home, which was "one of the first houses built in one of the first subdivisions," and drive to work in Dearborn using Hines Park Drive.

"It was a lovely drive," he said. "There were never any other cars."

Eleanor Hammond, on the other hand, remembered the political climate of the 1960s in Northville when she became the Northville Township clerk.

"I was the only woman on the board at the time and I remember feeling very naive," she said. "I got the feeling women's opinions were not that important, but I formed a lot of [opinions] anyway."

She said over time she began to notice the change moving through society. Eleanor Hammond said very slowly but surely, the harder she worked, the more she made them listen to and eventually respect her.

Though she saw the beginnings of the women's movement and experienced some of its impact first hand, she doesn't believe things have come all that far from her time.

"I don't think it has changed much," Eleanor Hammond said. "I think women still get paid less for doing more, as I did, but the more women take political jobs the more things will change."

The Hammonds decided to retire in 1972. With a pension in their pockets and a desire to never be bored, they embarked on a journey that would last more than 25 years.

They contracted builders to build them a house in Cheboygan. One day they decided the builders were taking too long, so they built it themselves.

"We'd work on it a little bit here and a little bit there, and when we got bored we'd just go on vacation," Eleanor Hammond said.

These "vacations" were often six-week long expeditions by trailer across the country. Chris Hammond said he and his wife have camped from the coasts of New Hampshire to the shores of California.

"We wanted to get it out of our systems," he said.

In the last two years, it's been more and more difficult for the Hammonds to travel as much as they would like.

They have traded their trailer for rail passes and their home in Cheboygan for a smaller place in a new retirement village in Novi.

"As you get older it's more difficult to take care of a house, so we have to live in something smaller," Eleanor Hammond said.

The Hammonds have spent a lifetime together. They created a family and a life and said they still enjoy the little joys of sharing a lunch together on their back porch.

But the Hammonds are not suddenly becoming inactive.

Chris Hammond is an avid amateur meteorologist and spends his days tracking and recording the weather with his new computerized weather station, while Eleanor Hammond is already planning the long list of activities she and her husband are going to try. They include trips to the theater and joining volunteer organizations.

Of the abundance of activity, Eleanor Hammond said simply, "We just hate to be bored."

Whatever the activity however, they made it clear they would do it as they have for the better part of their lives — together.

Northville Boy Scout Ben Maxim of Troop 755 sits on the bridge he built for his Eagle project. It spans a seasonal creekbed along a walking trail in Maybury State Park.

Northville Boy Scout bridges path to Eagle

By CHRIS C. DAVIS
Copy Editor

The leaves in Maybury State Park have completely hidden the trail leading from the horse stables, but Ben Maxim doesn't care. He's already walked the path so much he could do it with his eyes closed.

Maxim, a sophomore at Northville High School, spent several weeks in May and June building a foot bridge in Maybury to cross over seasonal streambeds in the woods. It came into use only moments after being completed, as a group of runners trotted across it as Maxim and other members of Troop 755 packed up their belongings.

"We had decent weather to build it," Maxim said. "It was a little breezy when we started, but that was about it."

The service project is the last major hurdle needed to clear before a Boy Scout advances to the rank of Eagle, the highest rank in Scouting. Before setting to work on it, however, Maxim needed to obtain a wetland permit from the state Department of Natural Resources and design a bridge that would comply with the Americans With Disabilities Act.

The bridge is about 15 feet long and 4 feet wide, constructed from pressure-treated lumber. Because of its remote location within Maybury, all the supplies needed to be brought in with wagons. In total, some 120 hours of work were logged on the project.

Though the bridge is the culmination of Maxim's work in the troop, it's hardly his only endeavor. He is also a brotherhood member of the Order of the Arrow — a service fraternity within the Scouts — and has had three years of perfect attendance at troop meetings.

Aside from Scouting, Maxim is a member of the Northville High mens' soccer, swimming and track teams, is in the school's German Club, and is involved with his church's youth group program.

And aside from all that? "I just sleep and watch TV," he laughed. Maxim credited his success in Scouting to his parents, Bruce and Norma Maxim.

"They really pushed me to continue on in the program," he said.

Maxim moved to Northville at age three. Prior to that, he lived in Ann Arbor, just around the corner from Michigan Stadium.

"I was really bummed about that MSU game," he joked.

Maxim's father, Bruce, is Scoutmaster in Troop 755. Ben Maxim has a sister, 10-year-old Katherine. Ben Maxim is the Troop 755's 87th Eagle Scout.

Why drive? E-commerce makes life simpler

In Service

Packing up nine-month-old twins for a quick trip to the store takes nearly as much time as the actual shopping involved.

There's the scheduling that needs to be taken into consideration.

Do I have an hour in between naps, meals and snack times?

Then the diaper issue.

Is everybody clean or do we need a change? And please don't go the minute you get in the car seat.

Then the mood issue.

Is anybody crabby?

Then the clothes issue.

Did either one of you spit up so bad we need new outfits? And please don't get hot with your coat on while I put the other guy in his. (See the mood issue above.)

Then the diaper bag issue?

Do I have enough diapers, wipes, bottles, toys and where is that absentminded pacifier anyway?

Well, you get the idea.

Parenting

That's why I love e-commerce! I just don't know what the world ever did without it. I just don't know what busy moms and dads ever did without it.

I didn't believe it before I tried it but shopping over the Internet is as exhilarating as hauling two kids in a double stroller through a hot and crowded store trying to pick out the optimal car seat from a choice of dozens.

Let's see, just last month I ordered over the Internet from babycenter.com a high chair for nearly $15 less than it would have cost me to buy it at the store. The discount was from a site called cool-savings.com. The chair was shipped for free and delivered to my house in a week. All I had to do was put it together, and trust me that takes up enough of my time.

I also ordered a baby video from wonder.com and got it free thanks to a coupon I found in a magazine. All I had to do was pay $4 shipping. Not bad.

Then, thanks to another coupon we got a 40 pound bag of dog food free when we purchased another 40 pound bag of dog food from petsmart.com. And I don't need to haul it from the store to the car, and the car to the basement. Of course, now that I think of it 80 pounds of dog food is a lot.

Oh, and I also order books over the Internet with amazon.com.

And the next time I have to send a gift out of state I'll do it over the Internet. Many sites offer free gift wrapping and shipping. I just saw on Oprah a pair of women who developed a wedding registry over the Internet which accesses all the popular stores brides normally hit anyway. What an idea.

There's a .com for just about everything. It just takes a little maneuvering over the web to find them all.

It's probably a good thing I don't have a lot of time to spend searching the Internet for good buys. But the time I do spend saves me time to take the boys and the dog for a long walk among the falling leaves. Of course first I have to change diapers...

Hunters get fired up for deer season

State report finds southeast Michigan good for deer hunters

With Nov. 15 not far away, outdoors enthusiasts are gearing up for another big firearms deer season. The Michigan Department of Natural Resources has taken stock of the deer herds across the state, including what's to be found in the southeastern Lower Peninsula. Here's the latest from the DNR:

SOUTHEASTERN MANAGEMENT UNIT: Genesee, Lapeer, Macomb, Monroe, Oakland, St. Clair, and Wayne counties

Overall, hunters should have a good deer season this year. Deer numbers are starting to stabilize in most areas of the Management Unit. This is still above the desired levels, and there will be continued efforts to reduce deer numbers in some areas.

In the northern portion of the Management Unit, especially north St. Clair, Lapeer, and Genesee counties, the populations are still higher than desired. The DNR has issued many private land permits for this area to reduce crop damage and car/deer crashes.

The Lapeer and Port Huron State Game Areas are large public hunting areas, but they carry lower deer numbers than the surrounding private agriculture lands. Regarding Sunday hunting in Lapeer County, hunters should know that the law was changed to allow hunting on Sunday on private lands with the permission of the landowner.

In the townships of western Oakland and northern Oakland and Macomb counties, deer numbers are up in areas of good cover. Deer move to these areas of good cover when the surrounding area gets developed, and lots of development has occurred in the last few years.

This can result in isolated pockets of good deer numbers that can provide hunting opportunities if you can get access to the land. It is difficult to get access to these private lands, and it takes a while for hunters to cultivate a relationship with the landowner to get it. It is also where archery hunting is an important tool for taking deer to help control deer numbers.

The agriculture lands in southwest Wayne and Monroe counties have fair deer numbers with the area almost entirely private lands. However, development also is shrinking the habitat base for deer in these areas.

Hunters are reminded that many of the more urban southeastern communities have various forms of firearm closures. Hunters should contact their local units of governments for questions dealing with these closures. Hunters should be especially careful in hunting these more urban areas and be thinking safety at all times.

Respecting the property rights of others is the best way to ensure future hunting privileges for you and others. Before hunting on private lands, obtain the landowner's permission. Hunting is still the most efficient method for controlling deer numbers and is an essential method for managing the Management Unit's population.

Hunters need to scout potential hunting areas early as it is often difficult, if not impossible, to gain access to private lands once the season starts.

There are some private lands open to hunting under the Hunting Access Program. Hunters are encouraged to check the HAP Guide for these locations.

SOUTH CENTRAL MANAGEMENT UNIT: Clinton, Eaton, Gratiot, Hillsdale, Ingham, Ionia, Jackson, Lenawee, Livingston, Montcalm, Shiawassee, and Washtenaw counties

Deer hunting in 1999 should be similar to our record year in 1998. The DNR is expecting an antlerless harvest similar to our all-time record harvest in 1998. The buck harvest expectations are similar to the excellent year we had in 1998. The counties with the highest deer populations are Montcalm, Ionia, Gratiot, Jackson, and Hillsdale. The mid-north/south corridor of Livingston and Shiawassee counties should also be excellent.

The DNR has set unlimited quotas for private land antlerless deer licenses in hopes of lowering the deer population in problem areas. Private land access is the key to any success the DNR has on lowering the deer population, and hunters need to start early scouting and acquiring access to these lands.

Hunting conditions should be excellent. The agricultural crops are being harvested on schedule, and in some areas the corn harvest is ahead of schedule.

The archery season should be very good also, due to the early corn harvest in some areas.

The natural foods, especially the fruits, are plentiful, but the acorn crop is spotty.

Academy Award winner Al Pacino portrays '60 Minutes' producer in 'The Insider'

Story based on "The Man Who Knew Too Much"

Jeffrey Wigand (Russell Crowe) was a central witness in the lawsuits filed by Mississippi and 49 other states against the tobacco industry which were eventually settled for $246 billion.

Wigand, former head of research and development and a corporate officer at Brown & Williamson, was a top scientist, the ultimate insider. No one like him had ever gone public before.

Meanwhile, Lowell Bergman (Al Pacino), investigative reporter and "60 Minutes" producer, mostly for Mike Wallace (Christopher Plummer) segments, taped the famous Wallace interview with its devastating testimony, and arranged a legal defense team for Wigand.

However, before the most newsworthy "60 Minutes" segment in years could air, Bergman would lose to a CBS corporate decision to kill it and would experience the fracturing of loyalties and bitter divisions within "60 Minutes."

Wigand would find himself sued, targeted in a national smear campaign, divorced and facing possible incarceration.

Wigand, having wagered so much and now unable to deliver his testimony to the American people, and Bergman trying to defeat the smear campaign and fighting to force CBS to air the interview, are two ordinary men in extraordinary circumstances.

They find themselves in a fight from which no one will emerge as he entered and nothing will be the same again.

Touchstone Pictures presents a Mann/Roth Production, A Forward Pass Picture, "The Insider." Directed by Michael Mann, written by Eric Roth and Michael Mann, based on the article, "The Man Who Knew Too Much," by Marie Brenner.

The film is produced by Michael Mann and Pieter Jan Brugge, distributed by Buena Vista Pictures Distribution.

It runs two hours and 38 minutes and is rated "R."

Production pays attention to detail

Principal photography on "The Insider" commenced in Louisville, Ky., where the historic Seelbach Hotel served as a key shooting location.

A local bank building stood in for the site of Brown & Williamson's home office.

The company also filmed in the suburban neighborhoods of Hurstbourne and Seneca Park where Wigand lived, and at DuPont Manual High School, where he worked after leaving Brown & Williamson.

Looking at the movie set in the temporary courtroom in Pascagoula, where the deposition actually took place, Mississippi Attorney General Michael Moore was surprised by the attention to detail, both in the set and the depiction of courtroom activity.

"There were about 50 or 60 tobacco lawyers piled up over there," he recalled, pointing to the far side of the room. "Some of them were actually smoking cigarettes, blowing smoke rings. They were the most arrogant bunch I've ever seen. But when we finally got the word that Jeffrey would give his deposition, I walked in and gave the signal. And all these guys went nuts."

Attorney General Moore appreciated director Mann's scope of knowledge on the issue and history of the case.

When asked to play himself in the movie, Moore laughed. "I guess it does add a dose of reality. It was the most important thing I'll ever do as a lawyer, so I guess I saw it as a chance to have some fun and be a part of history again."

Richard Scruggs also remembers reading for the director to play himself in the movie.

"I auditioned with Michael Mann and Al Pacino, reading lines with them one day in Washington. After we did it, Michael Mann put his hand on my shoulder and said, 'Dick, that was really a good job,' but I think we're going to get a professional actor to play you."

Scruggs volunteered to be an extra in the courtroom, becoming, in his words, "One of the guys that follows Dick Scruggs around."

In addition, key scenes around Wigand's momentous decision to testify were recreated where they actually happened, at Scruggs' home on the Gulf.

The best of the best

'Stangs dominate all-area first team

Tennis is expanding, and this season was evidence that the competition in the metro-Detroit area will continue to grow as indoor tennis facilities are being constructed.

Milford took big steps in asserting itself as a force in the Kensington Valley Conference, finishing 8-3-1 in conference duals and tying Novi the second time around. They, along with Hartland, made perennial powers Novi and Brighton take notice of things to come.

Northville continued its dominance of the Western Lakes Activities Association, winning seven of eight flights at the conference tournament and finishing with a perfect regular season. The team finished 11th at the Division II state tournament.

After calculating all of the head-to-head matchups, combined with the overall records and accomplishments of area netters, here's what HomeTown Newspapers' all-area first team looks like:

Jessie Mills Northville senior

Having been a huge part of the most recent success of the Northville tennis program, Mills again displayed her brilliance on the court in her senior season. Her record of 19-5 stands above the rest, and her Western Lakes' title at the top singles spot showed her dominance throughout the season.

She was a regional finalist and bowed out against Okemos at the state tournament. Mills beat Novi's Sarah Holt 6-2, 6-1 in Northville's 6-2 win over the Wildcats early in the season.

"She improved a lot from last season," her coach Uta Filkin said. "She was more powerful this year, that was the biggest difference. She's always had great ground strokes."

Kerry Woolfall Northville junior

After having held down the No. 1 singles spot her sophomore year, Woolfall had few problems adjusting down to the second slot. The junior finished the season with a remarkable 24-4 record, which included a loss to Farmington by default. She was the WLAA champion and went on to win a regional title as well.

But Woolfall has always been at her best at the state meet.

She won the state title at third singles as a freshman, and reached the state semifinals this year before losing to Portage Northern's Ashley Smith.

"Only her knee problems in the off-season kept her from playing No. 1 this year," her coach said. "She's a tremendous athlete."

Lauren West Northville sophomore

A victim of a talented team, West could have played No. 1 singles on most others. She had a near flawless 25-2 record. Her only losses were to Birmingham Marian at the state tournament and against former teammate, Marta Walasek, who transferred to Ann Arbor Huron and won a state title in Division I.

"She was just outstanding for us," Filkin said. "We were hoping she'd go far in the state tournament, but she just had a bad day at states."

West was the WLAA champion and did not lose a game in three matches en route to capturing the regional title.

Carolyn Vermeulen Novi sophomore

Like most fourth-singles players, Vermeulen's best asset was her competitive nature, her ability to give 110 percent every time she stepped out onto the court.

Because of that, Vermeulen finished the season with a 17-7 record at both third and fourth singles. The sophomore split her two matches with Lakeland's Jessica Hunt, defeating her in straight sets in their first meeting and falling in three sets in the conference finals.

She went on to reach the regional semifinals before bowing out to Ann Arbor Huron.

Nicole Lindholm Northville senior

Joanna Lee Northville junior

Continued on 2 Kerry Woolfall finished the season with just four losses, and a 24-4 record.

KVC tennis power Novi commands respect on 2nd team

Just because Northville dominated the all-area first team doesn't mean that's the end of great tennis in this area. Novi shared the Kensington Valley Conference title with Brighton this year, marking the fifth-straight year the school has won or shared the title.

"From top to bottom, this was the best the KVC's ever been," Novi coach Jim Hanson said. "With the addition of Pinckney into the league, it'll be an interesting season."

Here's a look at HomeTown Newspaper's all-area second team.

Sarah Holt Novi Sophomore

A wrist injury halfway through the season was just about the only thing stopping Holt from battling Brighton's Dana Krozek for the league title. She finished the year 7-3, with wins over No. 1 singles players from Milford, South Lyon, Hartland and Howell. Her only losses came to Jessie Mills of Northville, Krozek and Battle Creek Central's Meaghan Clark.

Melissa Roemer Novi Sophomore

It's not easy stepping up and playing in someone else's position, especially when it's at No. 1 singles. But Roemer did so in impressive fashion.

Roemer posted a 9-5 record at No. 1 singles after Holt went down with a wrist injury. She lost to Milford's Molly Heyn twice at No. 1 singles, but beat the Redskins' Meg Lowry in the first dual meet of the season. Roemer was a regional semifinalist and had a 15-9 record overall.

AnneMarie Jasieniecki Milford Freshman

Jasieniecki played beyond her years, losing only two matches all season as Milford's third singles player. She was KVC champion, then won her first round match at the regional tournament. Her final record was 17-2.

Jessica Hunt Lakeland Junior

"She ended up being our best player by the time the end of the season rolled around," Lakeland coach Gerhard Schubert said.

Though she finished up at .500, Hunt played her best tennis when it mattered. At the KVC tournament she averaged two regular season losses to clinch the league title at fourth singles. During the regular season.

Tara Stevens Novi Senior

Christina Cypher Novi Junior

Bilyk takes 59th at state

By JASON SCHMITT
Sports Editor

It was a lonely state meet for Northville's Brian Bilyk. He was the lone representative of the school at the biggest cross country meet in the state.

But Bilyk didn't fold, finishing 59th out of 284 runners at Michigan International Speedway last Saturday. His time of 16 minutes, 41 seconds was a career best.

"He ran his best time ever, but I thought he could have run 10 or 15 seconds better," his coach Chris Cronin said. "But it's so tough, and the competition is so tough. He's had a great, great season and will be back."

Without a team, Bilyk turned his focus on Churchill's runners, specifically John Richmond. Bilyk's seen Richmond on several different occasions this year, and felt if he could stay with him he would accomplish his goal of a top 50 finish.

"The only problem was that Richmond didn't necessarily have his best race," Cronin said. "At a meet this big, running just 10 seconds faster or slower can really make a big difference in your finish. If Brian would have run 10 seconds faster, he would have placed in the upper 30s."

Rockford's Dathan Ritzenhein won the individual title with a time of 15:05.4. Neighboring Novi won the team title with 68 points to Rockford's 90. Tim Moore finished third overall and fellow Wildcats Chris Toloff (7th), Mark Aventus (17th) and Eric Walle (22nd) also earned all-state honors.

Livonia Churchill, who edged out Northville for the division title, finished 18th in the team standings. Walled Lake Central's Todd Mobley was the WLAA's best individual, finishing runnerup to Ritzenhein. Charlie Stambouljan of North Farmington, Donald Warner of Plymouth Salem and Richmond were the only others from the conference to better Bilyk.

"He really put in a lot of miles this summer and it paid off for him," Cronin said. "He medaled at every meet this season and that's a tremendous accomplishment."

Senior Meredith Hasse looks to get off a shot in a 47-44 loss to canton last Thursday night.

Chiefs knock off Northville, 47-44

By JASON SCHMITT
Sports Editor

Despite its second seed at the Western Lakes tournament, it was not to be for the Northville basketball team.

It was not to be because a team from Plymouth Canton came into Northville's gym and stopped the home team from having a chance at their first championship game appearance since the tournament started in the early 1990s. The Chiefs won the game 47-44, and thus advanced to the finals where it will face rival Salem for the conference championship. Northville, meanwhile, will play Farmington Hills Harrison in the consolation finals.

"We haven't been in the championship game before, and they and Salem seem to get there a lot," Northville coach Pete Wright said.

The game was tied at the half, thanks in part to Northville forward Kate Hammond. The senior scored all of the Mustangs 15 points in the half, taking advantage of Janel Hasse being double teamed down low.

"She was dominating in the first half," Wright said of Hammond. "She got a lot of her points on putbacks down low."

The big blow for Northville came midway through the third quarter as Canton's Katie Schwartz hit her only basket of the game, a three pointer that upped her team's lead from two points to five. Canton went on to take a six-point lead heading into the fourth quarter.

"She hadn't hit a three pointer all night, and when it went in it kind of sunk us," Northville's coach said. "When you're down by two points to Canton, it feels like four or six because of the way they slow the ball down so much. They put a lot of pressure on you and they're constantly bodying you in the post."

"They make it tough for us to get the ball where we want to."

Canton made adjustments in the second half to better cover Hammond, and that freed up Hasse, who scored 13 points in the half. Hammond finished up with a game-high 17 points, which matched the total of Chiefs' guard Janine Guastella. Hammond also pulled down 11 rebounds, while Hasse grabbed seven.

N'VILLE 46, FRANKLIN 30

A balanced scoring attack and hot starts at the beginning of each half propelled the Mustangs past the Patriots in this first-round WLAA matchup.

Northville jumped out to a 13-7 first quarter lead before outscoring Franklin 15-7 in the third. Meredith Hasse led the team offensively, netting 14 points and pulling down seven boards. Janel Hasse had 12 points and five rebounds and Hammond also reached double digits with 10.

Wright said his half-court trap and 1-3-1 zone did the Patriots in. Northville was the No. 2 seed coming into the tournament after a 9-2 record in the regular season. Their overall record is 12-7, not including last night's game against Harrison (after The Northville Record's deadline). Northville drew a bye in the district tournament and will play the winner of the Novi/Churchill game next Wednesday at 7:30 at Novi High School.

They lost just two games at the regional tournament, taking that title as they did at the WLAA tourney. Although they didn't play as a pair against Novi, Lindholm and Lauren Farris teamed up to top Novi's No. 1 team 6-2, 6-3 in their dual match.

"Joanna didn't want to play doubles at first, she wanted to play singles," Filkin said. "So it took her a little bit of time to get used to it." The pair went on to reach the state quarterfinals before falling to Birmingham Seaholm 1-6, 5-7.

Sarah Poirer
Northville sophomore

Lauren Farris
Northville sophomore

Best friends in school and on the court, this Northville team posted a 22-3 record this year. Farris and Poirer played every match but one (Novi) together, winning the conference and regional titles with relative ease. Actually, it did take them three sets to defeat Harrison in the regional finals.

"They adjusted to each other and played well together," Filkin said. "They played the most three-set matches on the team, but they always told me, 'Don't worry coach, we have a plan.'" Rachel Huang

Northville junior
Emily Stevenson
Northville junior

A prototypical doubles team — when one needed to be picked up, the other one was there for her. Stevenson and Huang picked up 22 wins in 1999, against just six defeats. A team that "hit it off very well," according to their coach, this pair won the WLAA title and went on to finish as regional runnerups to North Farmington.

They fought hard, but lost to Grand Rapids Forest Hills Central 5-7, 3-6 in the second round of the state tournament.

Emily Krywko
Northville junior
Jamie Lindholm
Northville freshman

Not too many teams were able to beat this duo in 1999. Krywko and Lindholm were 16-2 at fourth doubles and epitomized the depth of Northville's tennis program. They were Western Lakes' champions at the flight.

"Jamie has very nice volleys," Filkin said. "I can see her following in the footsteps of her sister (Nicole). And Emily can play singles if needed, but is a more productive doubles player."

Novi can't keep up with Northville, but earns respect

has seen. Cypher could match Steven's efforts by the time she graduates next season.

The duo were 17-2 at first doubles this year, winning the KVC crown and failing to lose a set. In fact, Stevens and Cypher lost just six sets all season long, and just one in 14 conference matches.

Stevens has a 55-16 career mark at Novi, one less win than 1999 graduate Sarah Pipas, who holds the school record with 56 wins. Cypher was 21-2 overall this season.

Karen Andrews
Novi Junior
Emily Dinsmore

Novi Junior

This doubles team really got it clicking after the halfway point of the season. They racked up nine straight wins before bowing out to Ann Arbor Pioneer in the regional semifinals. Along the way the pair won the KVC title with wins over Howell, Milford and Brighton. The latter two wins came in three sets.

Both junior varsity members last year, Andrews and Dinsmore posted a 17-5 record together. Dinsmore was 19-6 overall and Andrews had an 18-6 record.

Novi Junior

After seeing time with many other partners throughout the season, this pair combined efforts to finish runnerup at the KVC meet. Hahn finished the season with a 7-6 record and Hapanowicz was 10-9 overall.

Mami Ito
Novi Senior
Sarah Ehlers
Novi Sophomore

They didn't play the entire year together, but when they did they were impressive. As a unit, Ito and Ehlers were 7-1 and KVC champions. The defeated Brighton in three sets to help propel the Wildcats to the league tournament win and a share of the league title.

Swimmers take 2nd in WLAA, prepare for state meet

By JASON SCHMITT
Sports Editor

It's really too bad that Livonia Stevenson was in the same swimming conference as Northville, mostly because the Mustangs swam great at the conference meet last Thursday, yet they finished a distant second to the Western Lakes' elite member.

Northville took second place with 415 points, no match for the Spartans 691. North Farmington totaled 356 for third place and Salem (339) and Walled Lake (295) rounded out the top five.

Three different Mustang individuals or teams won conference championships.

Freshman Jenny Carr won the 50 freestyle in a time of 25.08 seconds, which was good enough for her state cut. She was nearly joined by co-captain Stephanie Sabo, who won the 100 freestyle in 1:01.96. That time was just off of the state cut time she needed to qualify.

Jessica Hrivnak, Erin Schubert, Deirdre Schwiring and Carr teamed up to finish first in the 200 freestyle relay. Their time of 1:42.49 met the state qualifications and was good enough for All-American consideration.

"I think we can go faster at the state meet," coach Bill Dicks said. "If everyone is on."

Diver Kim Veres finished seventh overall, which qualified her for the diving regionals next Thursday.

Amy Black, Schwiring, Hrivnak and Sabo finished third in the medley relay, but their time of 1:56.54 was a state-qualifying time.

Schwiring capped off a good day by finishing third in the 100 breaststroke in 1:11.86.

Northville is now qualified in six different state events, and Dicks said he is trying to find a second shave meet where his girls can try to qualify in one or two more events.

"They swam very fast and tapered well for the meet," Dicks said. "I don't know how you can ask for any more than that."

Hot Picks

The second season of football picks has begun, and everyone will be trying to top the defending champion, Jason Schmitt. This year we've even given the coach a chance, so hopefully, everyone has at least a 50 percent chance of finishing out of last place...we hope!

Technology turned into our friend

Imagine sitting down to relax and watch any of 30 to 50 television stations. Imagine sitting down and signing on to the Internet and surfing the web or playing a video game. Imagine sitting down and playing the slot machines. Now, imagine all of this being accomplished while you are exercising.

Fresh back from Club Industry '99 (the single largest health and fitness show in the U.S. displaying the latest in fitness equipment and accessories), I am happy to report the fitness equipment manufacturers are taking the No. One enemy in our fight against inactivity - technology - and turning it into an opportunity. The latest much improved fitness equipment is not only easier to use and burns more calories while minimizing the risk of impact, it has blended technology with exercise. You can find any of 20 to 30 different types of fitness equipment from more traditional bicycles and treadmills, to the latest and hottest elliptical fitness machines integrated with television, video games, Internet access and yes, slot machines.

We are not only eating 300 calories more than a decade ago, we are moving our bodies substantially less and that is where our enemy, technology, is partly to blame. Heck, who wants to actually, physically, play a game and get - sweaty - when we can sit in the comfort of our homes and play it on our Internet or big screen TV with all the cool graphics and chips and pop nearby. And who really walks briskly anymore, other than when we can't get a close enough parking spot at the mall and it is closing soon. Modern technology, as wonderful as it is, certainly has had a negative effect on us humans physically.

There is no better time to evaluate your strategy to improve or at least maintain your current fitness level as we begin what I call the food-eating season. You know, the season that is kicked off by stealing our kids' Halloween candy (to check it for safety, of course), moving right into the Thanksgiving feast through Christmas cookies and finally, the big New Year's eating, snacking and drinking, bring the food-eating season to a close with an average 10- to 12-pound weight gain. Checking out some of the new exciting fitness equipment either for home use or at your local health club might be a good start and we can combine exercise with some fun and efficient technology options.

To help you begin your review, let's categorize and outline cardiovascular equipment for you.

• Treadmills - Rate very high both in ease of use and cardiovascular workout efficiency. Walking is still the exercise of choice since it is relatively simple. Americans utilizing treadmills rose sharply from 4 million walkers in 1987 to 37.1 million in 1998.

• Stair Steppers - These units perform a stepping movement. Workout efficiency is high but ease of use is a little lower here since stepping is more difficult than walking. Stair stepper units have decreased in popularity over the last decade.

• Stationary Bicycle - High efficiency available with the bike and simple to use as well. Popularity has decreased with boredom being stated as the No. One reason. The new technology integration mentioned earlier could spice this up.

• Elliptical Climbers - This is the new kid-on-the-block and has unquestionably cornered a growing share of the exercise equipment market. According to the Sporting Goods Manufacturing Association, its popularity soared 61 percent, from 1997-98. This is a newer movement combining walking, running, bicycling and stair stepping all into a new low impact motion called elliptical. There is a lot of variety with these units and they burn a lot of calories.

Each of these units have the technological integration available to make time on these units much more efficient and fun. As one client put it, "I can get caught up on the stock market, daily news and events and burn 300 calories doing it."

Helpful hints for hiring help

By Gene Gary
COPLEY NEWS SERVICE

Q. I am a fairly experienced do-it-yourselfer for around-the-house projects, but I am currently considering a large project and don't quite know where to begin in hiring a contractor or subcontractors who I can supervise. I want to get the most for my money and still have quality work performed. I have heard a number of horror stories from friends and associates connected with building projects and would like to avoid the pitfalls. Do you have a list of guidelines for hiring professionals in construction?

A. Getting involved in major construction or remodeling can seem overwhelming to most of us. Finding a reliable contractor who can complete the project on time, at a reasonable cost and deliver the end results that you expect is a challenge. Consumer protection groups report that each year the greatest number of complaints they receive are about contractors. Tales of scams, overcharges, and shoddy and incomplete work abound. But this needn't be the story. There are plenty of qualified, reliable contractors out there, and it's worth the effort to find the one that's best for your project. Self-protection starts with planning.

If the project is a major remodel at considerable expense, it is often wise to hire a qualified architect to help in the planning process. Many architects will also help you select a qualified contractor. When selecting either an architect or a contractor, get references from previous customers and inspect recent jobs they have completed. A number of cities and states have consumer protection agencies which offer free literature containing guidelines to contractor selection and hiring. It's a good idea to check and see if this applies in your area, as often local laws, codes and permit requirements will be included. A typical list of guidelines designed to protect consumers follows:

1. Have a precise plan, i.e. know exactly what you want done. If you have in mind more than one project, make a complete list with specifics.
2. Get at least three written estimates, each of which should be based on the same building specifications and materials.
3. Get references from contractors, and inspect jobs they have previously done.
4. Before starting, check with the Office of Consumer Protection to see if contractors are licensed, bonded and insured and if there are complaints about them on file.
5. Get a written, detailed contract. Changes to the contract should be in writing and signed.
6. Limit your deposit (other than payment for materials) to 15 percent of the total or $1,500, whichever is less.
7. The contract should include a full description of work to be done, a one-year workmanship warranty, and specific start and completion dates. Payment installments during construction should not exceed the cost of time and materials on work completed.
8. Make sure your contractor gets all necessary building permits, unless otherwise stated in the contract.
9. Protect yourself from liens, in the event your contractor fails to pay a subcontractor or materials suppliers, by adding a release-of-lien clause to the contract. Or, arrange to pay subcontractors and suppliers directly.
10. Thoroughly inspect work before making final payment or signing completion certificate. Never pay cash to a contractor. Use checks or money orders for payment.
11. Beware of scams involving discounts in exchange for cash deposits, bargains on leftover materials, rebates for using your home as a model, and trades for products or services.

For more information on how to hire a contractor, how to finance your project and details on what is involved on specific projects - materials, workmanship, pitfalls - consider purchasing a copy of the book, "How to Hire a Home Improvement Contractor Without Getting Chiseled," by Tom Philbin (St. Martin's Press). Another excellent reference book is "How To Hire The Right Contractor," by Paul Blanchina and the Editors of Consumer Reports Books.

Q. I am considering a concrete-slab addition, which will function as a patio and outdoor eating area. I don't want the standard dull gray finish. I have seen some information on colored and textured concrete in brochures, but they didn't include enough detail. Do you have any information on concrete treatments that might be suitable?

A. The Portland Cement Association offers a series of informative books and videos on subjects dealing with concrete construction. Included in this series is a 40-page book, "Finishing Concrete Slabs With Color and Texture."

The book describes how to create decorative surfaces on cast-in-place concrete slabs including: exposed aggregate finishes; textured finishes; stamped impressions; colored finishes, including integral colors, dry shakes and stains; proper jointing and curing practices; and combinations of color and texture to create attractive surfaces. Contact PCA to order this book, or obtain a free catalog listing other informational materials at Portland Cement Association, P.O. Box 726, Skokie, IL 60076-0726, or call (800) 868-6733.

Howell couple give house new look with upstairs addition

By Debi Drick
LIFESTYLE SECTION COORDINATOR

Howell residents Les and Jackie Stiner loved their downtown Howell neighborhood. They were happy with their 300-foot-deep lot, and enjoyed the relationships they had with their neighbors. There were sidewalks to walk on, and a stroll to town meant only a few blocks.

The only difficulty they had was that their one-story, two-bedroom, one-bathroom house was smaller than the couple wanted. "We wanted a larger, more spacious house," said Jackie. "We always wanted to have a bedroom suite."

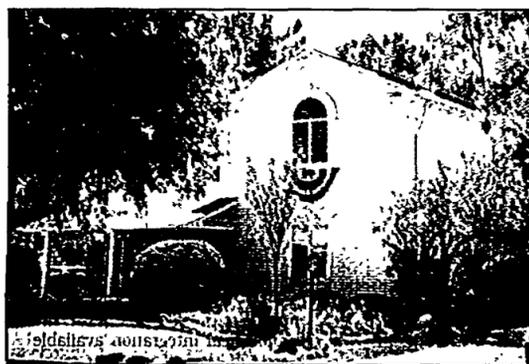

The Stiners collected their ideas for over three years before making any decisions.

They looked around at other homes that had comparable lots and neighborhoods. What they learned was that it was a much better buy to add on to their current home than to purchase another one.

The couple spent months discussing different ways to expand — both enlarging the ground level and building a second story — but nothing seemed to be the perfect answer.

However, while in northern Michigan, an old Greek revival farmhouse caught Les' eye. "I saw that house," said Les. "and it clicked in my mind right then exactly how to go up. I took pictures and and sketched areas of that house and tried to develop a plan."

Add-on blends well with original architectural style

The couple later found an abandoned Greek revival farmhouse in Livingston County, took more photos and copied details about the house.

Finally, the Stiners took all their ideas, pictures and drawings to a local builder.

Two months later, the Stiners had a 20-by-29-foot upstairs bedroom suite, which includes a full bathroom. The room comfortably accommodates a queen-size bed, a full-size wardrobe, a triple-dresser, a chest and two nightstands.

The sitting area has a couch, two chairs and a coffee table. Les made by refinishing an antique steamer-trunk. Additionally, the couple has an 8-by-17-foot walk-in closet, two skylights and a 4-by-10-foot balcony.

The couple advises anyone thinking of expanding to take the time to make certain that your extra space isn't obvious as an addition.

"Spend the extra money on the architectural details," advises Les. "This is what gives the house curb appeal. You'll always get that money back in the value of the house."

Les and Jackie said that the most work came from the wording in the contract stating "owners will paint and stain." The couple painted the entire upstairs as well as the main floor. They then replaced the downstairs trim with material matching the new addition and added new carpeting on both floors.

In spite of all the work, the Stiners have absolutely no regrets about adding on instead of purchasing a new home.

"By the time we added new wiring, a furnace, carpeting, central air, insulation and paint, we had a new house anyway," said Jackie.

"Just after we finished, a woman drove by while I was in the front yard and asked me if we were settled in yet. I just told her we were. She didn't realize we'd already lived here 22 years."

Above is the Stiner home before the renovation project which added a second floor bedroom suite.

Comic strip doll valuable 60 years later

This circa 1920 doll was based on the comic strip of the same name, Barney Google. It is probably worth about $500.

Address your questions to Anne McCollam, P.O. Box 490, Notre Dame, IN 46556. For a personal response, include picture(s), a detailed description, a stamped, self-addressed envelope and $10 per item (one item at a time).

By Anne McCollam
COPLEY NEWS SERVICE

Q. The wooden Barney Google doll seen in this photo belonged to my wife when she was a child. He stands about 8 inches tall and has a jointed body. The top hat and shoes are made of wood. My wife believes he is at least 60 years old.

Any information you can give me will be appreciated.

A. Billy DeBeck created the Barney Google comic strip in 1919. The likable main character wasn't always known as Barney. He first appeared in a strip called "Married Life" as Aleck. He became Barney Google in 1919. DeBeck introduced Barney's racehorse, Spark Plug, in 1922. DeBeck added the hillbilly character, Snuffy Smith, in 1934. When DeBeck included Snuffy's name in the strip title in the late 1930s, it was the beginning of the end for Barney. By the mid-1940s, Snuffy replaced Barney as the main character.

ANTIQUES

Your circa 1920 doll would probably be worth about $500.

Q. A friend gave us a porcelain cake plate and six matching dessert plates. They are decorated with yellow and red roses against a white background. The edges are scalloped and trimmed in gold.

We have no intention of selling the dishes, but would like to know if they are worth anything and if they are rare.

A. Carl Schumann Porcelain Factory in Arzberg, Germany, has made porcelain from 1881 to the present. Ebeling and Reuss Company in Devon, Penn., has been a major importer of porcelain from Europe since the 19th century.

Many similar sets were imported to the United States. Yours would probably be worth about $100 to $150.

Q. Could you tell me about four hostess sets that I have?

We found them in my grandmother's home after she passed away. My father has no idea of where or when she acquired the sets.

The set includes four plates and four cups. They are clear glass decorated with a tree pattern. Each box has the words "Orchard Hostess Set."

A. Hostess/snack sets are a 20th century innovation. China sets were first seen in the late 1930s, and glass sets followed in the 1940s. A plethora of sets were made in the United States by several companies and sets were also imported from Japan and Europe.

Some of the U.S. manufacturers of glass hostess sets include Anchor Hocking, Hazel Atlas, Indiana Glass and Jeannette Glass. Your circa 1950 sets would probably be worth $20 to $25 each.

Q. I have a sheet-metal weather vane that was handmade by an old blacksmith in the 1920s. It is a rooster standing on an arrow and crowing at the rising sun. The overall dimensions are 33 inches high by 26 inches wide.

I would like to know what it would be worth today.

A. Wind direction has been an important part of predicting the approaching weather for farming and seafaring families for centuries. Weather vanes have been made of copper, wood, zinc, cast iron and metal. They were often fashioned in the images of angels, fish, roosters, horses, and ships. Although most were commercially manufactured, many were crafted by local blacksmiths. Collectors often find vanes created by an individual charming and appealing. A value of about $300 to $400 should have a collector crowing over your weather vane.

Old Kent Bank opens doors in Northville

By JASON SCHMITT
Staff Writer

Many times a business will say they're looking out for your best interest, in the most convenient way possible.

At Old Kent, they really mean it. With current local locations in Northville (Six Mile and Haggerty) and Novi (Novi Town Center), the bank's newest location in downtown Northville was opened for just those reasons.

"Basically what Old Kent was looking for was convenience for the customer," branch manager Terry Higgins said. "That's why they looked into moving to Northville as a whole, because of the community aspect and the growth that we can have here with the expanding area."

The bank is located just off the corner of Center and Main streets at 125 Cady Centre, next to Mailboxes Etc. The Cady Centre location opened its doors for business Nov. 1.

Located between Northville's two biggest parking structures and less than a block off of Main Street, the bank is easily accessible to its patrons.

"That's what we think is going to be really nice about this location is that the businesses and people that live right here in Northville can be downtown, park in the parking garage, come in here and do their banking and go shopping," assistant branch manager Melissa Brudzinski said.

Brudzinski brings with her many years of experience with the company, having come from the Novi Town Center Old Kent location. Higgins has a reputable career in sales, knowing how to serve his customers.

The new location offers a full line of banker's needs, including a full range of checking, savings and other investment services as well as certificates of deposits. It also has a full line of loans, home equities, mortgage loans, installment loans — just about anything you'd want. There is also a walk-up automated teller machine and night depository box.

"Anything that one of those big banks can do for you, we can do it with our full-service settings," Higgins said. "We're large enough to compete with them, but small enough to make a hometown feel like you're in a hometown bank."

Just about the only thing the downtown Northville location does not offer is safe deposit boxes. "That's the only service that people may want that we do not have at this location," Brudzinski said. "But they are available at the Novi Branch and our other traditional locations."

This location is not the only new Old Kent opening up. The company is also opening up locations in Livonia and Canton. Currently there are over 250 Old Kent locations in Michigan, Illinois and Indiana.

"We wanted to have a presence in Northville, itself, the city," Brudzinski said. "It's a nice community. I live in Northville and it has a great historic downtown shopping community, wonderful schools and parks."

The bank is open six days a week. From Monday through Thursday, the bank's hours are 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. On Friday the bank is open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. and on Saturday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. For more information about Old Kent or its new downtown Northville location, please call (248) 374-2560.

Remember to claim medical charges

One aspect of tax law that has remained unchanged is the rule governing the deductibility of medical expenses. Uncle Sam allows a tax deduction only for medical expenses that exceed 7.5 percent of your adjusted gross income. The Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants points out that despite this high threshold, some taxpayers may find, surprisingly, that they qualify for a deduction. For example, those that paid for the expenses of major surgery on their own, picked up a large medical tab for a dependent, or required private nursing care for a period of time may well have expenses that exceed the 7.5 percent threshold. For this reason, it's wise to add up what you spent before signing off on your tax return. Here's a rundown of expenses you shouldn't overlook.

DEPENDENT CARE EXPENSES

Uncle Sam allows you to deduct eligible medical expenses for yourself, your spouse (if you file jointly), and your dependents. Dependents may include not only your children, but also other relatives, such as parents, grandparents, and brothers and sisters, as long as you provide more than half of their support and meet other requirements.

Money Management

PREMIUMS OF MEDICAL CARE POLICIES

You may deduct as medical expenses all premiums paid for medical care policies. Also deductible are payments for membership in an HMO or other medical association as well as premiums for health insurance providing reimbursements for hospital, surgical and drug costs, contact lens replacement and other medical expenses.

Those who were self-employed in 1997 may claim a special deduction from gross income on Form 1040 for 40 percent of health insurance premiums paid in 1997 for themselves, spouses, and dependents. Depending on your age, you also may deduct premium costs for qualified long-term care policies as a medical expense itemized deduction, subject to the 7.5 percent floor. For 1997, deductible premium amounts are $200 if you are age 40 or younger at the end of 1997; $375 for those age 41 through 50; $750 for those age 51 through 60; $2,000 for those age 61 through 70; and $2,500 for those over age 70.

LONG-TERM CARE COSTS

Qualified medical expenses also include long-term care expenses for yourself, a spouse or dependent who is chronically ill. Qualifying long-term care expenses for someone who is chronically ill are generally those which are necessary for diagnostic, preventive, therapeutic and rehabilitative services. All such services must be prescribed by a licensed health care practitioner in order to be deductible.

MEDICAL EQUIPMENT

Unreimbursed expenses for such medical equipment as hearing aids, false teeth, eyeglasses, leg or back braces and prostheses qualify as medical expenses for tax purposes. So, too, do special mattresses, reclining chairs and other items required for therapeutic reasons. In most cases, the determining factor is whether the equipment was prescribed by a physician.

Internet Can Make Your New Home Search Easier

If you're thinking about buying a new home, but are unsure where to start, the solution could be as near as your personal computer. If you have internet access, a wealth of information that will help you in the home buying process is right at your fingertips.

The Home Builders Association of Livingston County's web site, www.hbalc.com, provides information about Livingston County, including a comprehensive list of members - builders, subcontractors, suppliers and service organizations. From the HBALC web site you can link to other sites that can help you in your search for a new home. For example, the National Association of Home Builders' web site at <http://www.nahb.com> has a detailed guide to buying a new home, tips on selecting and working with a home builder and much more. At the NAHB site you can also find news and information about events, issues and legislation that affect homeownership and housing affordability. Also featured on the NAHB web site is the Housing Opportunity Index, which rates housing affordability in about 200 major markets on a quarterly basis.

Another excellent source of home buying information is the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development web site at <http://www.hud.gov>. Here you can find consumer information on buying, owning, renting, fair housing and much more, including FHA low downpayment mortgage insurance for home buyers.

At <http://www.homepath.com>, which is operated by Fannie Mae, you can find several mortgage calculators to help you determine what your monthly payments might be or how much you can afford to spend for a home. And if you're not convinced that homeownership is the right course for you to pursue, you will find information that can help you evaluate your options.

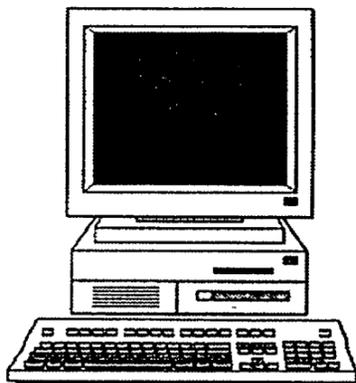

Freddie Mac's site at <http://www.freddiemac.com> also includes useful mortgage calculators, information about home buying and a consumer home inspection kit that can be printed from the site.

Numerous U.S. government publications on housing subjects ranging from different types of mortgages to selling a home, residential energy efficiency and the home buying process are available at <http://www.pueblo.gsa.gov>.

One of the most important aspects of the home buying process is financing, and the national mortgage providers have taken advantage of the internet in their marketing efforts. Through just a simple search, you can find numerous sites where rates are posted daily so you can compare terms and select the mortgage that best suits your needs. On some of these sites, it is even possible to apply for a mortgage online.

There are just a few of the many online resources available to you as you begin your search for a new home. With a little time and the assistance of any of the popular web search engines, you can find a wealth of information to make the process easier and more comprehensive.

NOVEMBER 1999

This year's Thanksgiving tip: Wrap turkey leftovers in some aluminum foil, and throw them out. — Nicole Hollander

July 20th, 1999 marked the 30th anniversary of the lunar landing. To commemorate the event, Neil Armstrong, "Buzz" Aldrin and Michael Collins arrived at Cape Canaveral in a limousine. Neil and Buzz got out to walk around; Michael stayed behind in the car.

It's true: to provide incentive for airlines to have the Y2K bug problem solved, Chinese officials are requiring all of their airline executives to be actually on a plane January 1, 2000.

Computer users are being warned about the Monica Virus. Luckily, it only affects laptops.

Seen on a billboard in South Carolina: "Don't make me come down there." —God

It was reported recently that a woman working at the South Pole Scientific Station found she had cancer. Because of the severe winter conditions, she could not be evacuated. So the Air Force, in a daring maneuver, airlifted a ton of equipment, including two complete ultrasound scanners, videoconferencing gear and medical supplies, so doctors at the station could better treat her.

Phone lines became jammed with callers wanting to know how to join her HMO.

Q: What's the difference between an HMO and the PLO?

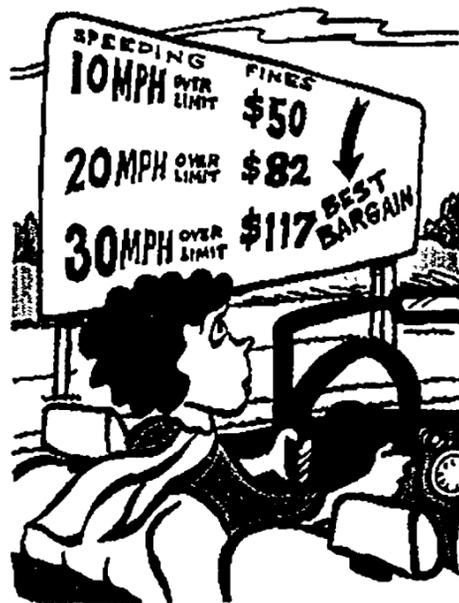

A: It's possible to negotiate with the PLO.

Oklahomans never lose their sense of humor. After the May 3rd tornadoes, one man posted this sign on his flattened property: "Open House."

Sign we saw in a Cincinnati sporting goods store window:
NOW IS THE DISCOUNT
OF OUR WINTER TENTS

Two goats were out behind a studio, eating old movie film.

"Pretty good, huh?" said one.

"Yeah," the second goat replied, "but it's not as good as the book."

During a particularly violent thunderstorm, a mother was tucking her small boy into bed. "Mommy," he asked with a tremor in his voice as she was about to turn off the light, "will you sleep with me tonight?"

"I can't, dear," she said, giving him a reassuring hug. "I have to sleep with Daddy."

A long silence was broken at last by his shaky little voice: "That big sissy."

Classified ad we saw:
"For Sale: complete set of encyclopedias, perfect condition. No longer needed—new wife knows everything."

~ ~ ~

So far today I've done all right. I haven't gossiped, I haven't lost my temper, I haven't been greedy, grumpy, nasty, selfish or overindulgent. I'm very thankful for that. But sooner or later I'm going to have to get out of bed.

Sign we saw on a parking space at a garden supply store:
RESERVED FOR PLANT MANAGER.
A little boy getting ready for kindergarten was whimpering because his shoes hurt. "Honey," his mother said as she inspected them, "you've got them on the wrong feet."

"But Mom," the boy wailed even louder, "I don't have any other feet!"

A group of boys had gathered at the candy store, and they were ruthlessly teasing one little fellow named Andy. They would offer him the choice of a nickel or a dime, and Andy would always choose the nickel because it was bigger. The boys would hoot with laughter, pointing and slapping each other on the back.

The store owner finally had enough, and chased the boys off. Then he took Andy aside. "Son, those kids are making fun of you, don't you see?" he explained as he offered the little boy a treat. "They laugh at you because they think you don't know a dime is worth more than a nickel. You're old enough to know better—why do you choose the nickel?"

"If I choose the dime, sir," Andy replied politely, "they'll quit playing the game."

At the new Sunrise Assisted Living home opening in Northville in January of 2000, you can see the latest in non-institutional care for seniors. Furnished models are now open for tours.

Approximately seven million older people (55% of the 85+ population) need daily assistance with physical tasks and mobility. In the past, the only care alternative available to seniors has been nursing home care. Sunrise—in a home-like atmosphere—provides assistance with bathing, dressing, medication monitoring and incontinence management. Residents also benefit from three daily meals, housekeeping and scheduled transportation.

Sunrise Assisted Living can make a dramatic difference in a senior's quality of life. There's always something to do—and always someone to help. With social interaction and enriching activities that are tailored to individual interests and abilities, seniors can live life to its fullest.

Sunrise offers comprehensive care for residents with Alzheimer's disease or other types of memory impairment in a separate, secure area—our Reminiscence Neighborhood. This specialized care encourages residents with cognitive difficulties to live with as much dignity and independence as possible.

Assisted Living was pioneered by Sunrise as an alternative to living at home or to moving to a costly institutional setting designed for medical care. For seniors who cannot or choose not to live at home, Assisted Living expands their ability to live dignified, meaningful lives in a home-like environment.

MOST COMMONLY ASKED QUESTIONS ABOUT ASSISTED LIVING

Q. What sets Sunrise Assisted Living apart from other assisted living alternatives?

A. Sunrise Assisted Living provides a home-like quality care alternative.

- Residents experience the warmth and charm of a gracious home—unlike the more institutional environments of many traditional long-term care settings.
- To allow residents to continue living in their Sunrise homes despite increasing health care needs, Sunrise provides programs such as the Medication Management Program, the Incontinence Care and Products Programs and partnerships with other providers of services such as behavioral health, rehabilitative therapies and hospice.
- Care is provided by staff members who, first and foremost, have a heart for service to seniors. These caring individuals fine-tune their professional skills through an intensive Five Star Training Program.

Q. What does Sunrise Assisted Living offer to those with Alzheimer's disease?

A. Sunrise's innovative Reminiscence Program for those with memory impairment begins with providing a secure, home-like environment based on creating a pleasant day for each resident. Specially designed environmental benefits such as a multi-sensory "Snoezelen" room for individual retreat, the use of color for cueing, and enclosed outdoor garden areas enhance the quality of life for this special population.

Within the specialized environment, activities are tailored to each resident's cognitive level with emphasis on activities the resident found enjoyable before moving to this new home. Lifeskills™ activities such as household chores, office-type work or quiet infant nursery visits, increase self-esteem and a sense of purpose. Families participate in the preparation of a 24-hour calendar to help staff know each resident's unique background, likes and dislikes, calming influences and preferred routine. The Sunrise staff is highly trained in combining good physical care with empathy and respect for each resident.

Q. What about costs?

A. Costs vary according to the type of suite selected and the level of assistance required.

Fees are generally less than the cost of home health services or nursing home care in the same geographic area. At Sunrise Assisted Living, no long-term lease or endowment is required. One monthly fee covers just about everything.

Q. Who pays the bill for an Assisted Living residence?

A. Residents and their families generally pay for the cost of care from their own financial resources. Depending on the nature of an individual's health insurance program or long-term care insurance policy, costs may be reimbursed. In addition, due to the recently passed Kennedy Kassebaum Act regarding the deductibility of Assisted Living costs, residents and their families are encouraged to check with their own tax advisor regarding the appropriateness of deducting these costs from their federal income tax.
