Community Foundation struggles into its third year

BY ANDREW DIETDERICH
Staff Writer

Five years from inception. That's how long Shari Peters, director of the Northville Township Centennial Foundation Inc., said should pass before anyone judges the organization.

Still, it's hard to ignore many facts about the foundation after a review of the second year of the organization's two-year existence.

Facts such as a net of $52,049 from the four events held by the Foundation in 1998 while the director took home $52,000 in salary, less than 37 percent of funds spent towards its mission as opposed to the recommended 60 percent, a debt of almost $35,000, a single accomplishment toward meeting the goals of the organization last year, and no donations directly to the company from the general public.

"Give me five years to get this Foundation going," Peters said. "Then if you want to rip me apart, go ahead."

The mission of the foundation is, according to the tax form, "To benefit the community of Northville Township, Michigan and promote community education, arts, music and cultural events."

The foundation was started in 1997 to coordinate events for Northville Township's centennial celebration. However, the foundation remains in place today with the purpose of meeting its mission statement goals.

Although started by the township board of trustees, the foundation has no connection with the board today with the exception of owing it about $35,000, Peters said, and the fact Karen Woodside, township supervisor, is a member of the board of directors.

Golden dreams

Northville teen aspires to greatness, plans to compete in Winter Olympics

By B.J. HAMMERSTEIN
Staff Writer

Northville High School junior Alison Leslie MacDonald, like most high school students, spends time hanging out with her friends, listening to music and doing homework.

But that is where many of the similarities end.

MacDonald is a member of the United States Figure Skating Association and has dreams of competing in the Winter Olympic games in 2002.

By capturing the figure skating silver medal in the Senior Ladies' Free Skating competition at the 2000 Eastern Great Lakes Regional Figure Skating Championships in Huntsville, Ala., MacDonald qualified to compete in the 2000 Midwestern Sectional Championships held this past weekend at the Detroit Skating Club in Bloomfield Hills.

Competing against 14 other skaters, MacDonald placed seventh, which means she will go back into the training season now, working on perfecting different jumps and her routine.

"My goal is to skate in the 2002 Olympics," MacDonald said. "Hopefully I will be there winning the gold medal."

As part of the USFSA, which is the governing body that controls all amateur figure skating in the country, MacDonald was one of 14 girls who competed at the Midwestern section of the competition.

If MacDonald placed in the top four at the Midwestern sectional, she would have competed with 12 more girls from across the nation at the U.S. Championships held in Cleveland during the first week of February.

It is from the the U.S. Championships where skaters are invited to compete in the World Championships and the Olympic Games.

Living in the Dunbarton Pines subdivision in Novi with her parents Bill and Leslie and her younger sister Kate, it was at an early age when MacDonald first learned to skate.

"My father was coaching ice hockey and I always wanted to be a hockey player," she said.

So at the age of three, MacDonald would first see ice time when her father would let her skate after his practices.

It was at that time she joined the Livonia Ice Arena Learn-to-Skate program and found a passion for skating, which soon led to figure skating.

With her first lessons being taught by Bev Griffin at the Livonia Ice Arena, MacDonald next moved to the Plymouth Cultural Center where she was coached by Susan and Brandon Smith.

When MacDonald was 11, she began training at the Detroit Skating Club, her home rink, under the tutelage of Theresa McKendry and Gerry William.

In 1998 MacDonald, skating as a Novice Level Free Stylis, qualified and competed in her first Midwestern Sectionals.

Now William, McKendry, Clark and Marina Sheffer all help coordinate and train MacDonald.

"We are very proud of her," Bill MacDonald said. "It's a sport demanding of her time. A lot of kids quit at this age with the pressures of school and everything else."

And with 10 years of competitive skating under her belt, MacDonald abides by

Rash of burglaries prompts caution from police detectives

Northville Police report seven burglaries in the last two weeks.

BY ANDREW DIETDERICH
Staff Writer

Northville area police are warning local business owners to take extra security precautions after seven business burglaries in the last two weeks.

Four downtown businesses — two dentist offices and two beauty salons — were burglarized late Dec. 12 or early Dec. 13. Additionally, The Moose Lodge, 18418 Northville Road, Primo's Pizzeria, 41112 Five Mile Road, and beauty salon Kay and Co. 41124 Five Mile Road, were broken into during the early morning hours of Dec. 6.

City of Northville Police department Det. Dave Fendelet said he believes all of the burglaries are connected.

In all of the break-ins, the unknown suspect(s) gained entry through secluded areas such as a door or a window in a dark area.

Northville Township Det. Michael Wildt said in the township break-ins entry was gained in dark areas. Backdoors were pried opened and telephone lines and alarm lines were cut.

Fendelet said the thief or thieves appear to have been after money.

"We need business owners to be more proactive in protecting their businesses," Fendelet said.

As a result, Fendelet said business owners need to use more deadbolt locks, keep the outside of their business lit as much as possible and to keep a light on inside the business.

"By leaving interior lights on any suspicious activity could more easily be viewed from the outside," Fendelet said.

Additionally, Fendelet said bus-

Amerman teacher lauded by engineering society

By MELANIE PLEND
Staff Writer

When is a soda bottle not just a bottle? When Janice Henderson, curriculum facilitator for Northville Schools, is at the helm of her soda pop boats.

Henderson won the Society of Automotive Engineers Teaching Excellence award for her efforts in a cooperative program at Amerman Elementary School.

"It's the hands-on projects that kids remember. It is the little 'ah ha' moments that confirms what's important," she said.

Henderson, former fifth grade teacher at Amerman, won the Loyd Reuss Award for Excellence in teaching for 1999. The award recognizes teachers who have made creative and exemplary use of SAE's "A World in Motion" program. Henderson received a plaque and $2000 which will be shared equally between the school and herself.

For their project, the students designed, built and raced soda pop boats. Students worked in pairs and had to test variables to create the fastest boat, using a combination of sail and wind-up propeller. The sail hitched their hopes of making their boats float to a plastic bottle, two sticks of balsa wood and some photocopy paper, Henderson said. She said the students made many discoveries during their experiments.

"We learned you can't use the propeller and the sails at the same time, and one group learned their boat would go faster if it raced backwards," Henderson said.

"A World in Motion" is a cooperative program that brings engineers into the classroom to interact with and advise students on their projects. Additionally, the students are put into groups and work together to complete the project. There were enough materials available for students to work in teams of two, which is ideal, Henderson said.

"It was really neat because the kids had to learn how to work cooperatively. That's so important...because life is that way. We have to work cooperatively," she said.

The project turned out to be more than just for fun and science, Henderson said. Parents of many of the students also got involved in the projects and were almost as enthusiastic as the kids she said.

"It was great the parents and kids came in with these elaborately painted boats and plans. Some of them were so into the project they kept the plans secret until the day of the race. It was fun for them," she said.

Henderson said this was heartwarming to see the parents so involved and everyone working together.

"It's so neat, as a parent myself, to see the social interaction with other parents and to really see the connection between home and school being made," she said.

Additionally, she said the engineer assigned to help the class, Doug Holmes, was hooked on the project as well. The class in turn flocked to him with questions and ideas and quickly became the resident expert.

"I'm just the teacher. He's the engineer. So they didn't ask me to many questions. I think it's wonderful that the kids got to see what an actual engineer does. Many of their parents are engineers and they go off to work, but how many kids actually get to find out what they do all day? It was really wonderful," she said.

Henderson said she marveled at how well everyone worked together and hoped more hands on projects will be in store for the children in the future. In addition, she said she hopes even more parents get involved in future projects by sharing their knowledge and expertise with the students in other fields.

"I don't want to belittle the importance of learning facts, but when a kid makes that connection between fact and application what happens is amazing," Henderson said. "Imagine — a boat out of a soda bottle, who would've believed it? These experiences enrich the children, that's what we are all about."

District on guard as head lice return to Winchester

By MELANIE PLENDIA
Staff Writer

Lice are back and wreaking its tickling brand of torment in local schools. But fear not, the principals in Northville already have their plan of attack in place for these creepy critters.

"We've had a couple of cases of lice this year. We have taken the extra precaution of checking classmates, but nothing new has been reported to us," Winchester Elementary principal Nancy Raynes said.

Several students in one of the classes at Winchester Elementary School came down with a case of head lice. However, Raynes said the school and parents have taken proper precautions to ensure that there will be no more cases in the coming months.

"Parents have been informed. We certainly rely on parents to be advocates for checking at home," Raynes said.

She said the best way for parents to check for lice and their eggs — or nits — is to use a comb to go through the child's hair to locate lice and their eggs.

According to the Harvard School of Medicine website on the subject, lice (Pediculus capitis) are small parasitic insects that have adapted to living on the skin and neck hairs of human hosts. The insects grab onto the hair shaft and hold on with all six legs

"Parents have to be informed."

Nancy Raynes
Winchester Elementary principal and feed on blood.

They are known as "equal opportunity parasites," meaning anyone can get them. Their presence does not connote a lack of hygiene or sanitation practices of their host and can strike rich or poor alike, the website said.

Additionally, lice are mainly acquired by head-to-head contact with another person's hair. However, some are transferred by sharing combs, hats and other hair accessories. It is also possible for them to remain in bedding or upholstered furniture for a brief time. Pillows, nightclothes, towels and stuffed animals should be washed and dried with heat according to the web site.

Harvard experts also recommended that combs, brushes, hats, and other hair accessories in contact with an infested person should be washed in hot water every day.

The worst these lousy lice can do, the website, is cause some annoyance and sensitivity of the scalp due to louse saliva and feces. It is rare they said, for lice to cause any serious damage or illness.

However, since children are the ones most often affected by lice, schools are still concerned that a child found to have lice is treated quickly and effectively, Raynes said.

"We are following the Wayne County Department of Health's 'Nit Free' guidelines as each school does," Raynes said.

According to the Wayne County Health Department, at the first sign of lice, a child will be excluded from school until first treatment of lice removal is completed and all lice and viable eggs are destroyed. This is generally for a period of seven to 10 days. A child may be excluded again if the they are re-infested or if a second dose of the treatment does not kill all of the lice and their eggs.

"Once the child has been treated we request proof of treatment," Raynes said. "Parents can bring in the label or bottle of the treatment they used," Raynes said.

There are many treatments available for lice removal according to the Harvard website. The "old fashioned" way of "nit picking" or mechanically removing lice and nits with a louse or nit comb. This can, however, be very time consuming, often requiring several hours each night for several nights to remove all of the lice and their eggs.

When using this method, the child's hair should be washed and detangled before attempting to use a louse comb on it, according to the website.

when removing the offending insects they recommend combing from the hair shaft towards the scalp to loosen the eggs from the hair. Combs should then be cleaned frequently and thoroughly.

Special shampoos can also be used to get rid of the pests. A shampoo containing permethrin or pyrethrins specifically labeled for use on people are recommended by the Harvard experts. These treatments usually have to be repeated 10 days after the first application.

There are also several homeopathic remedies, suffocating agents, and antibiotics. However, the experts recommended consulting a physician before using any of these methods.

Raynes said more information is available at Winchester, including a video and pamphlets.

"It is very typical but it is also something we all have to keep an eye out for," she said.

Novi ahead of Michigan in education, Levin says

Senator pays visit to Novi High School social studies class

By B.J. HAMMERSTEIN
Staff Writer

Michigan is behind in education in technology, said U.S. Sen. Carl Levin, D-Mich.

But it's programs like Teach For Tomorrow that can help teachers in the state use technology as an educational tool, he added.

"We were faced with the questions of educational technology many years ago," Levin said.

"Distance-learning, software, hardware — there was a missing link everywhere. We got together in Lansing about one-and-a-half years ago and discussed numerous technology issues.

"There has been an effort for us to be supportive and make it possible for teachers to use technology."

Levin came to Novi High School on Dec. 9, and was introduced to facilitators, teachers, students and some of the developers of the TFT program.

The TFT program was developed by Merit's Center to Support Technology in Education and includes an online course that trains a local facilitator to assist teachers with the Internet.

The TFT program was developed between September 1998 and June 1999, with the intent to develop an interactive, multimedia, online learning training program for K-12 educators and to pilot the use of the materials with a set of 25 local facilitators to 250 classrooms throughout Michigan.

At Novi High, Social Studies Department Chair

Gary Kelly has just finished teaching the TFT program to 10 educators. Kelly said the course is part of an extended learning program through Central Michigan University and upon completion, students will earn three graduate hours of credit.

During the conference, a round-table discussion was held enlightening Levin about the program and allowing people who have been exposed to TFT to share their experiences.

"There has been a lot of immediate application to what has been taught," Kelly said.

"This is the kind of technology we need in education."

Some of the subjects covered in the TFT course include: the best use of the Internet with students; developing bookmarks and web pages as teacher tools for instruction; learning and teaching search strategies; curriculum planning with the Internet; and learning and teaching web page authoring.

"What started out as something so abstract has become something so concrete," Levin said.

"When talking technology with students, you can see how the kids are fascinated and thrilled when using the computers — it is really exciting for them."

Lawmakers introduce Internet legislation

By Mike Malott
 HomeTown News Service

Law enforcement officials are turning the tables on sex offenders who use the Internet to target children ... they are beginning to hunt the predators.

State Sen. Mike Rogers, R-Howell, is introducing three bills this week to assist in that pursuit.

The bills will:
 • Clarify the definition of a minor as it pertains to attempts by sex offenders to make arrangements over the Internet to meet a youngster.

It is, of course, already illegal for an adult to molest a youngster, and another of Roger's initiatives went into effect this past June adding a felony offense when a perpetrator uses the Internet to arrange a sexual encounter with a child.

"But judges and the courts have been nervous about it when undercover officers pose as 14-year-olds," Rogers' Press Secretary Sylvia Warner said. That's how police trap "cyber-predators," posing as youngsters and letting predators seek meetings for the purposes of sex. When the predators show up, police make the arrests.

• Require forfeiture of computers, computer equipment and cars used in the commission of the crimes.

• Predators who risk jail to have sex with children aren't likely to be dissuaded by such a law, Warner admitted.

• Making the cyber-predator liable for the costs of the law enforcement and prosecution efforts on him.

"The Internet has been a safe, anonymous place for criminals to hunt for potential child victims," Rogers said as he announced his proposals.

ARTICLES FOR EDUCATION FOUNDATION

The Northville school district recently received articles for the Northville Education Foundation. All the legal requirements have also been finalized. This is an historic issue and was presented at the Dec. 4 Board meeting. Several community members have agreed to serve on the Foundation Board including Richard Brown Jr., Jean Hansen, Robert McMahon, Laurie Marrs, Mike Mnich, and Jay Dunkerly.

The first foundation meeting is scheduled for Jan. 2000.

TARGET DONATES $3,000 TO BRYANT MUSIC PROGRAM

Herb Vanderploeg, Target store team leader in Livonia, donated $3,000 to the Bryant Center music program. This contribution is slated to help the Center continue weekly music enrichment.

The Bryant Center signers, the Signatories, arranged a short presentation for Vanderploeg Dec. 7 at the store in appreciation. In return parents of Bryant Center students received a 10 percent discount on purchases made at the store.

FAMILY, RACING GROUP DONATES TO OLD VILLAGE SCHOOL

Robert Sornson, executive director of special education, announced a $2,500 donation had been made by the Karoub family and the Northville Racing Association to Old Village School. The funds are to be used to support Family Centered Intervention services by Lynn Sweeney, who is a contracted specialist.

WOODS' RESIDENTS CONTINUE TREE DONATION EFFORT

Woods of Edenderry residents, Jeffrey and Heather Shulz, donated five trees of the ash and spruce variety for placement around the new high school. In total, the Shulz's donation cost an estimated $8,000, which included the trees, planting and stake, mulch and site prep. Another donation of trees came from Lynn and Ken Montemayor and cost an estimated $12,730.

DISTRICT FINALIZES TEACHER HIRES

Director of Personnel, Roy Danley said the last of the teacher hires was approved this week, bringing the total to 58 throughout the district.

The final hire is replacement Thomas Wozniak. He will be a dual diagnosed classroom teacher for the Bryant Center. He is replacing Mary Mende who transferred to the K-12 Program at Winchster Elementary School.

Wozniak recently received his bachelor's degree in special education from Wayne State University.

Prior to that, He received an associates degree in commerce from Henry Ford Community College.

Northville High grad makes waves as culinary guru

By CHRIS C. DAVIS
Copy Editor

If Scott Swamba approaches your table and asks if you enjoyed your meal, tell him the truth.

The 26-year-old culinary arts whiz values opinions. But he was warned: there's not much he'll make that won't win rave reviews.

Swamba is the executive sous chef — the second in command of the kitchen — at West Bloomfield's La Difference. The path to the kosher restaurant was long and winding, but for Swamba, the wait was well worth it.

"The payoff in this job is seeing people come in to the restaurant who are well-traveled and well-versed in quality dishes and seeing them leave here feeling true satisfaction," he said.

"That's the reward." Swamba figured from an early age that food was his calling. A resident of No-ville (that funny little parcel of land around Nine Mile and Center Street that is split between Novi and Northville), Swamba got his start in cooking at age 12, when he worked as a dishwasher at Juan Carlos. The work was arduous and certainly more than a little messy, but it beat the alternatives, Swamba said.

"What were my choices? I could either have a lemonade stand or deliver papers. I wasn't too interested in doing either one of those things," Swamba said.

"I was sort of the grunt labor." So dish washing it was. But for all the used plates and glasses he helped clean, Swamba also had some time to observe cooks in action and made mental notes along the way about how the kitchen hands made the meals people ordered.

As time went on, Swamba jumped restaurants and worked at both Northville's MacKinnon's and Crawford's. It was at Crawford's that Swamba got his first real introduction into food preparation. It happened when one of the regular cooks called in sick, forcing management at the former Northville eatery to enlist Swamba's help.

"It was something relatively simple, if I remember," Swamba said.

"A sandwich or a salad or something like that. But the big thing was getting the experience. I loved it."

Swamba continued bouncing around restaurants through his years attending Northville High School and began working at Northville High School graduate Scott Swamba holds one of the dishes he prepared at West Bloomfield's La Difference.

Meadowbrook Country Club after graduating. He said he wanted to wait and save some money so he could begin attending Schoolcraft College's School of Culinary Arts, one of the most well-regarded such places in the country.

Swamba said he was put to the test at Schoolcraft, sharpening his skills to the point where he was able to participate with his classmates at several national culinary arts competitions and managed to win a host of medals for dishes he helped prepare.

"The competitions were probably the best part about going (to Schoolcraft) Swamba said.

"We'd spend all morning long practicing and practicing the dishes until we finally got everything right."

His talents didn't go unnoticed, and after graduating from Schoolcraft in July, Swamba spent time working at the Ritz Carlton in Dearborn and The Farm Restaurant in Port Austin. He's been at La Difference for a few months now.

The restaurant specializes in high-quality kosher dishes, prepared according to Jewish custom. At La Difference, Swamba works as the executive sous chef.

"A lot of people hear the term 'kosher food' and think of potato pancakes or matzo balls, but that's just the traditional side of the foods," Swamba said.

"We specialize in fresh fish and vegetable dishes here."

Swamba said he spends a good portion of his time reading trade publications and professional journals, seeking new methods of preparing foods. All of that is done, he said, in the hope of living out his ultimate dream — to become a certified master chef. Only 55 CMCs work in the United States.

"About 15 years ago, people heard 'chef' and it didn't really mean much," he said. "More recently, people have been paying more careful attention to the title and it carries a great deal more value than it once did."

Swamba said he truly enjoyed cooking and the culinary arts, despite the long evening hours, lack of weekend time off and almost certain job responsibilities he has on holidays.

"You really have to love this job," he said. "I do. I look forward to coming in here and doing what I do."

About the only time Swamba said he didn't enjoy cooking was at the end of the day.

"I'm pretty burned out by the time I get home," he joked.

"I think I'll be asking my wife to help me out at home in the kitchen a fair amount."

La Difference is located at 7295 Orchard Lake Road. For more information, call (248) 932-8934.

"My Job Provides the Opportunity for Full Partnership."

I've been practicing OB/GYN for over 12 years. And from the beginning, it's been one of my highest priorities to approach patients as their doctor, and as their friend. This enables me to become a partner in their care through every stage of life...prenatal, pregnancy, postpartum, menopause, and for any other needs that may arise. Partnering helps establish a common bond between doctor and patient. It aids patients in feeling secure about expressing their problems. And it's important to me in helping to provide proper medical care. You see, at Botsford, we're proud to provide you with the opportunity to relate to a person who's both a doctor and a special partner, all in one.

Township, city discuss future of Rural Hill Cemetery

BY ANDREW DIETDERICH
Staff Writer

City of Northville and Northville Township officials literally are taking up a grave issue.

City officials are considering a possible expansion of Rural Hill Cemetery on the south end of the cemetery into open land in Northville Township.

If the expansion doesn't happen, Jim Gallogly, city of Northville department of public works director, said the amount of space left in the cemetery could fill within just a few years.

"It would be really tough for the whole area," he said. "People would have to go to private areas in surrounding communities like Livonia or South Lyon."

Rural Hill is located at the intersection of Fairbrook and South Rogers. The cemetery, which consists of about 18 acres of land, was started in 1885 when some local residents bought a farm and turned it into a cemetery. The city assumed responsibility for the cemetery in the 1940s.

Today, about 200 grave sites are available in the cemetery, however, about 100 sites sell annually.

Gallogly said the city wants to expand the cemetery south of the southernmost border of the cemetery. The expansion, which would include new roads and knocking down trees among other things, would expand the life of the cemetery by between 30 and 50 years.

Gallogly said the project would cost at least $100,000. If everything goes as planned, work on the project would begin late in the summer of 2000.

However, the township must approve the expansion and Gallogly said neighbors might not like the idea of the expansion.

"The public hearings for this issue should be kind of hot," he said.

Gallogly said he's been told the township will hold a public hearing on the expansion in the early part of 2000.

Andrew Dietderich can be reached via e-mail at adietderich@ht.homecomm.net.

Entertainer brings multicultural traditions to schools

By MELANIE PLENDÁ
Staff Writer

Entertainer Guy Louis already knows how he will spend Christmas.

After he trims his tree, he will light his menorah and set his dinner table with dried ears of corn all the while humming his favorite winter solstice song.

Louis shared his appreciation for the European, Jewish, African and Native American cultures in his Chautauqua Express "One World Holiday" program he did for Thornton Creek Elementary School students Dec. 8.

"I wanted to help the children celebrate people who were different than us by celebrating what we have in common," Louis said.

For more than an hour, Louis danced, sang and laughed with the students from Thornton Creek as he taught them the legends behind each of the major holiday celebrations: Christmas, Hanukkah, Kwanzaa and the Native American winter solstice.

The one-man band brings with him nearly 20 instruments which students play to help them understand the cultures behind each celebration, he said.

"If they can feel like they can be a part of the joy and fun of the celebration, if they can touch the instruments, dance and sing, they are more receptive to the message of that culture," Louis said.

Louis has been a musician for 15 years and said he got his start teaching and singing for children in college. After his college group disbanded, Louis said he discovered he loved entertaining and teaching children. He said he then formed his own traveling musical show based on a form of entertainment that was around in the early 1900s.

"Some students are exposed to music in a class and come away with the feeling that it is boring. I really want to teach them the fun and creative side of music," Louis said.

Louis' entertainment and education program is nothing new. They are based on Chautauquas, which were traveling shows, whose troupes would set up under large tents to offer various types of entertaining and educational performances. Chautauquas were largely found in North America and were sources of cultural enrichment, local color, and news and information from abroad.

Louis' Chautauqua Express is a revival of this form of entertainment. He is supported not only by the Michigan Touring Arts but also by the Wolf Trap Institute in Washington, D.C. He said he emphasizes audience interaction and participation.

At Thornton Creek, students who "smiled big, were quiet and all the way down" were chosen to be a part of the show. Louis would ask them questions about the different holidays which would segue way into a song or dance that included the students.

Some students learned how to play Louis' assortment of percussion instruments, while others strummed an African Kora and shook Native American percussion sticks.

"I liked that he let us play the instruments because even if you don't know how to play it you can still try," said second-grader Joshua Behmer, 7.

The program culminated in all of the students either playing an instrument or joining in a chant for Africa to illustrate a Kwanzaa celebration. Even principal Cheryl Johnson got in on the excitement and danced with the children.

"Again, this is helping them learn their core democratic values by teaching them about diversity. The kids are really enjoying themselves and learning at the same time," she said.

Louis said he has a number of programs including an American music tour, African-American musical influences an environmental show, as well as many others. He said he designed the holiday show by taking portions of other shows and putting them together.

"You know you go into a school, and you can't sing about Jesus anymore, and there are only so many times you can sing about Rudolph and Santa before everyone gets bored. This way I thought it would be much more interesting for everyone," he said.

More information regarding the Chautauqua Musical Express can be obtained by calling (800) 377-7113.

Smith seeks legislation to keep college affordable

By Mike Malott
 HomeTown News Service

"We have priced 44 percent or more of our residents out of higher education unless they are willing to incur huge debts," state Sen. Alma Wheeler Smith says.

Free, on the other hand, should be quite affordable for all students.

That's why Smith, D-Salem Township, is proposing to create a new tax credit for students enrolled in two-year community college programs. Keying on the federal HOPE program, which allows students to deduct $1,500 worth of tuition from their federal income taxes for their first two years of college, Smith's Higher Education Learning Promotion (HELP) program would allow community college students to take the remainder of their tuition costs from Michigan income taxes.

Typically, tuition comes to $1,900 at community colleges and $4,000 in two-year community college programs operated by four-year institutions, Smith said.

Only students who earn $50,000 per year ($100,000 if they file jointly) are not eligible for the HOPE and HELP credits. For students counted as dependents on their parents' returns, those income caps apply to the parents' income as well. Still, that covers 90 percent of current students, she explained.

Smith's proposal, Senate Bill 575, failed to get enough support from her colleagues in the spring, but she said she believes several factors may improve its chances of passage.

For one, the state can afford it. The state presently has a budget surplus of $200 million to $350 million. The actual size of that surplus depends on whether several other pending bills pass.

She admits the cost, however, doesn't come cheap. Overall, the credit would cost the state $56 million — as much as a quarter of the surplus.

Smith said she hopes to keep the tuition tax credit repeal separated from her HELP proposal, and may introduce legislation which would effectively repeal the credit — using legislative appropriations as the "trigger" rather than college tuition increases — as a compromise with the GOP.

Businesses don't fret over slower economic forecast

By MIKE MALOTT
HomeTown News Service

After nine years of economic expansion, one of the longest periods of growth in U.S. history, a slowdown could actually provide some welcomed relief.

"There is going to be a mild pull back, there is no question," Larry Yost, Chairman and CEO of Meritor Automotive, told members of the Detroit Economic Club Monday, Dec. 13, during its annual Economic Outlook Luncheon. "For those of us that are in the (auto) industry, it is expected. (Not only) expected, it is welcomed ... We look at it as an opportunity to get some breathing space ... It is time for us to get back to basics. There are a lot of things we need to work on, time to market, time to customer. And given all the overtime that we have all been putting in, it is really important that we get back into balance our work and families, because people have been spending too much time at work."

Still, that "pull back" won't necessarily be recessionary. Yost explained that while initial projections for the year 2000 had been that the economy would see at least one quarter of "negative numbers," the belief now is that overall the economy will grow 3 percent for the year. He said he could only describe that as "robust."

That was the consensus of the remainder of the panel, selected by the Economic Club to give a look ahead at business, jobs and spending for the coming year ... at least one more year of growth before any slow down is anticipated.

In fact, Eugene Miller, Chairman and CEO of Comerica Bank, said the biggest danger to the U.S. economic outlook is that "federal spending is accelerating in anticipation of the election next year. The markets no longer look kindly at election year."

Tim O'Brien, of O'Brien Waterford Construction in Pontiac, told the Economic Club he foresees a 7 percent growth in the construction industry in the Detroit area, surpassing the national expectations for the building industry. In the Detroit area, construction will continue to be dominated by "mega-projects," like casinos and sports stadiums in Detroit, he said. Housing starts will likely decline by about 7.5 percent. Despite that drop, the decline in units represents a number similar what was the entire market only a few short years ago.

The biggest obstacle to construction is a shortage of labor, O'Brien said.

Floyd Hall, Chairman, President and CEO of the Troy-based K mart Corporation, said that even if there is a slow down in the economy generally, an anticipated increase in the population in the Detroit metropolitan region will bring retailers here more customers.

The real challenge to retailers, he said, will be the growth of e-commerce, purchases made over the Internet. It won't be additional spending, he concluded. The money spent on purchases made over the World Wide Web will be money transferred from more traditional "bricks and mortar" retailers. But, he predicted, as more traditional retailers enter the e-commerce arena, there will likely be a shakeout of companies doing business on the Web. K mart, for instance, plans to jump into sales over the Web in the coming year, he said.

Growth in e-commerce was a theme echoed by the panelists. And Yost suggested that while business-to-consumer e-commerce is generally acknowledged to be a hot potential growth market, business-to-business e-commerce will have even greater growth potential in the future.

Miller said he believes the current booming economy can be sustained into the next century, as long as business and political leaders remember what brought us to this point.

Miller said the Federal Reserve's "focused resolve" at keeping fluctuations in interest rates down has had much to do with that growth.

Additionally, four factors have contributed to the length and strength of the current economic boom — declining inflation and a strong dollar; streamlining of businesses, both through mergers and internal cost cutting; waves of new technology; and increased globalization of trade.

If businesses and political leaders remain focused on those areas, Miller said, it should be "more of the same" for the economy in the future.

Condominiums worth waiting for?

Developer certain Old Novi Street project will bring in residents

BY ANDREW DIETDERICH
Staff Writer

A $9 million project likely headed to Northville brings to mind the film "Field of Dreams," when the main character is told, "If you build it, they will come."

Only in the case of Phoenix Land Development's 38-unit condominium development people are already coming, said Steve Schafer, secretary and treasurer of the company.

"We have a list of about 50 people already interested in the development who have heard about it through the newspaper or the city," he said. "We haven't even advertised it."

The project has just its one hurdle to overcome before it's officially approved - approval of the rezoning of the land. Gary Word, Northville city manager, said the item may be on the Dec. 20 council meeting.

The Northville planning commission granted Phoenix site plan approval for the tentatively named River Place condominium development.

If approved, the $9 million 38-unit development will be located at the intersection of Base Line Road and Old Novi Street, across the road from Parmenter's Cider Mill. The condos will be located on 2.7 acres where the former Warren Products factory building stands.

The project's been in the work for more than two years and the subject of countless meetings this year by the planning commission and city council.

Word said the project will be well worth the wait.

"Overall it will be an asset to the community and a great project for the Cabbagetown neighborhood," Word said. "It was a long process the city struggled with at times, but we wanted to be careful and cautious of the neighborhood."

Phoenix Land Development is a privately-owned 12-year-old company. The company has more than 30 other developments in the metro Detroit area. Recent developments similar to the River Place proposal is the West Village in Dearborn and a new condo unit in Farmington Hills.

Schafer said if things stay on track, the old factory building could come down next spring as work begins. The entire project could take between 18 months and 24 months to be fully completed, Schafer said.

"We're very excited," Schafer said. "It's been a long process and a good process that will ensure we will deliver a great project."

OPINION

Community Foundation needs to improve record

Shari Peters, director of the Northville Township Community Foundation, has asked for five years to pass before any real judgment of the organization takes place.

Fair enough. But you'd better believe we are going to be watching and waiting to see that the organization starts living up to its expectations and goals.

Northville Township Foundation's mission is, "to benefit the community of Northville Township and promote community education, arts, music and cultural events."

Don't get us wrong. We think the idea of the Northville Township Foundation, which was founded in 1997, is great and in theory can do nothing but improve the community.

But forget about ideas and theory for one minute and take a look at the facts.

Fact: According to a 1998 tax form of the organization, Peters pulled in a salary of $52,000 while the organization netted $52,049 from its four fundraising events.

Fact: About four percent of revenue spent on program services if you don't count Peters' salary in the category as the foundation accountant did. That's compared to the National Charities Information Bureau, which recommends charities spend at least 60 percent of their total income on program services. Fact: A $35,000 debt.

Fact: Only one accomplishment listed on the tax form where the IRS asks the organization to list its accomplishments.

Apparently, these problems are being dealt with. For example, Peters said her salary has been "adjusted" lower, there will be more accomplishments listed on that section of the tax form in the future, that more money will go toward benefiting the community and the debt is being chiseled away.

And to be fair, the foundation has had some success. For instance, the organization helped put on a successful centennial celebration. And the history book of the township put together by the foundation last year is full of useful and interesting information.

And we can't overlook the fact that this year's July Fourth parade wouldn't have happened were it not for Shari Peters and some dedicated volunteers.

But for the amount of money coming in from area citizens that think their donations are going to the good of the community even more needs to be done in terms of actual projects and events.

Hopefully, next time we check things will look like they're headed that way.

Don't get us wrong. We think the idea of the Northville Township Foundation, which was founded in 1997, is great and in theory can do nothing but improve the community.

Fine tuning the MEAP will enhance education

State Rep. David Woodward, D-Madison Heights, comes to the legislature with a rather unique perspective — he's the only lawmaker young enough to have taken the Michigan Education Assessment Program test in its current form and to have received, as a result, a state endorsed diploma.

At age 23, this freshman has criticisms of the way the MEAP is run presently. Not surprisingly, he plans to introduce legislation he hopes will make the educational assessment test a little better.

Among his criticisms is that the current test does little more than pit school district against school district. It doesn't provide educators with the information they really need to improve the quality of education their students are getting, he contends.

Woodward plans to include in his proposal a provision requiring that each student who takes the test be given an itemized list of their answers, along with a list of which were right and which were wrong. Woodward would like to see teachers get back copies of students' writing samples with the evaluations placed on them by the graders, so that teachers can work with the students to improve areas of weakness identified in the test.

Furthermore, he'd like to see that teachers get copies of the test so they can better teach the skills covered.

He also wants the results returned to schools more quickly, so teachers can work with students on those weaknesses. As it is, the results come too late, he said.

Now, there is a lot of room for disagreement with the representative. We don't think it's a bad thing that MEAP test scores allow people to compare one school district to another. Initially, that was one of the key purposes behind the test, giving parents a way to compare and contrast the performance of schools so that they could best choose where to place their kids when moving to a new home.

Of course we've heard the arguments from some that the MEAP is a one-dimensional way to compare districts. Parents would be better off to look at the curriculum, the services and programs offered to students, the variety of courses offered by the school districts, and the personnel that run the district, so the argument goes.

That argument has merit, but most parents really don't know what to look for or how to compare school districts. Most of us are certainly in that category and don't have any idea how to compare curricula or the quality of the teachers and administrators in various school districts.

We believe Woodward's primary suggestion of getting detailed information back to teachers and students on an individual basis so they can look at where they erred is a valid one. As he points out, seeing where you made mistakes can be a very valuable learning tool. And if MEAP administrators don't want to give the answers back with right and wrong marked, they should at least consider giving individual students a list describing the skill areas where they came up short.

That is after all what education is, a process of learning, testing and then learning again.

• Dumb comment that got laughs in our office today:

So you can imagine my surprise when I went to the post office last week and was told by the clerk on duty that the U.S. postal service wouldn't accept my credit card for payment unless it had my signature, even if I presented ID to prove I am who I say I am. Huh?

• And while I'm on the topic of quizzical methods of payment, I'm amused when I periodically come across businesses that say cash won't be accepted as payment. Last time I checked, our paper money reads, "This note is legal tender for all debts, public and private."

• I went to Greenfield Village last weekend and visited the Noah Webster home. Being the word junkie that I am, I found it interesting that the man who wrote the first American-English dictionary only coined one word himself. That word? "Manufactured."

Sounds of the season

The shoppers guide to...shopping

Give me your tired, your poor, your huddled shoppers at a checkout line yearning to breath freely the fumes of the backup of cars on the way out of the mall, and I will give you someone who has experienced true Christmas shopping.

Shopping isn't easy. It's a skill. A well earned trait that someday researchers may be able to explain. If we are lucky.

There is a beauty to shopping a rush that only the purest of wallets and the slickest of credit cards can help the shopper attain.

This is a talent Northville, that not everyone possesses but everyone secretly hopes to have.

Fortunately for those who have not learned this skill you have an expert in your midst. Yes, though I don't like to boast, I am...an expert shopper.

In the spirit of holiday giving, I have decided to disclose a list of do's and don'ts.

Do pay with credit. Everyone knows this is not real money anyway and it's so much faster than cash. Think of it, no clerks fumbling with change, no noisy coinage weighing down your purse or pockets. With one flick of the wrist that plastic beauty gets you that toy your adorable little darling has been whining about for the past six months, four weeks and five days.

Do dress for shopping success. Wear comfortable shoes, light aerodynamic clothing, and under no circumstances do you wear your coat into the mall, as most stores jack the thermostat up so high the store takes on a quality of heat that only Dante could explain.

Do go in with a list. Most expert shoppers have seen it all: the Cabbage Patch fracas of '83, the Elmo crisis of '97, Beanie Babies. Yet even the toughest most seasoned shopping vet can be broken by the phrase — quantities limited. This has brought many to their knees, often on the backs of slower shoppers as they raced to get to the last Picachoo. There is hope and the list will help you. First, it often takes you no where near situations where you are likely to get pummeled by someone else in their quest for a rare find. Second, the list gives you a focal point. Something to look at and feverishly concentrate on if you have to go into the fray. Let the list be your guide. If all else fails just remember a true shopper will not be sucked into the marketing muck. He or she will not be swayed by the salesperson yelling, "Dear God we only have two Pokemon videos left." Because a true shopper will have already bought the most wanted item three months before.

Now here are some don'ts. Don't be fooled. Just because it says sale doesn't mean it's any good. I must admit that even I have fallen for this one, when I was young and inexperienced. I used to go into a store and like a deer in headlights my eyes would glaze over and I would buy everything that had the "s" word. Do you know what this got me? A football phone, one tote, and a flowbie. Needless to say my family is just now beginning to speak to me. What is important to remember is quality not price. Besides you can always remortgage the house.

Don't shop on-line. This is a distasteful subject that I don't even like to broach. But I will, because if I can turn one e-commerce cronle around I will have done my job. My consternation is this — I have no use for people who do not put an effort into shopping, there I said it. Where are their aching feet, stiff necks, or bag burns on their hands. They bear no battle scars and consequently understand nothing of the beauty of the dance that is shopping. Never have they broken into a sweat to get to that last tube of wrapping paper. Never, have they felt the joy of realizing at 8:59 p.m. that in most malls you still have another hour to shop. No Northville, these are the lazy shoppers, the "gee I don't want get a concussion over a beanie baby at the store so I'll go on-line and auction." Cowards.

Finally, and most importantly, don't forget to enjoy the people that all of this shopping is for. The ones who warm the cockles of our hearts and whose faces light up at our purchases: the retailers.

Third terms are rough...here's the proof

The big political news last week was the legislature's failure to authorize more charter schools, despite weeks of intensive arm twisting and foot stamping by Gov. John Engler.

Amazingly, the defeat was bipartisan. Since Democrats have never been enthused by the charter school movement, though some reps from Detroit find them a better alternative than the public schools. Although most Republicans are ideologically pro-charter, the governor's key failure was to win over a handful of moderate GOP legislators, some of whom had been endorsed by the very anti-charter teachers' union, the Michigan Education Association.

Engler's spin meisters tried to put on a brave face, talking cheerily about getting back to the issue after the New Year. But this defeat, so unexpected for a politician as experienced and capable as Engler, got me to musing about this governor, now in his third term in office.

After the Republican landslide last November, everybody expected John Engler to bestir the state like a colossus. His Republican Party controlled both houses of the legislature, had a 5-2 Iron grip on the Supreme Court and won all the executive offices except for Attorney General. The governor had only to nod his head, so the conventional wisdom went, and stuff would happen. Quick.

But it hasn't quite worked out that way. Consider three examples.

First was this fall's bungled attempt to clip the wings of Attorney General Jennifer Granholm, the only Democrat to survive last year's debacle. Republican bills attempting to cut back the force of her opinions were roundly criticized as a naked power grab, and when documents were leaked proving the whole plot was initiated in the governor's office, John Engler wound up with lots of egg on his face.

Second was the Governor's attempt to persuade Secretary of State Candace Miller, to be a team player and run against popular U.S. Rep. David Bonior, the Democratic minority leader in the House of Representatives and a favorite GOP target. A component in the calculus was that such a campaign likely would have derailed Miller's interest in running for governor against Engler's hand-picked candidate, Lt. Gov. Dick Postumus.

Miller eventually said, "Thanks, but no thanks." Recently, she's been talking about her interest in running for governor.

Third is the still unresolved spat over a constitutional amendment to allow direct public support for private and religious schools. Headed by billionaire Dick DeVos, the husband of state Republican Party Chair Betsy DeVos, a bunch of hard line GOP stalwarts are hell bent to collect enough signatures to put the measure on the ballot next November. Engler has been trying his darndest to kill the drive because he's afraid passions ignited by the measure might increase turnout next November and thus jeopardize U.S. Senator Spencer Abraham's campaign for reelection.

Despite public disclosures of barbed correspondence, meetings of the Republican State Central Committee and assorted attempts to kiss and make up, the fight between the governor and some of his closest political friends and allies is still going on. It's not a pretty sight for any colossus, least of all John Engler.

All of which brings to my mind the Iron Rule of Michigan Politics: No governor in his/her right mind should run for a third term.

The reasons are compelling. After eight long years in office, all the good ideas a governor came in with are pretty much used up. Moreover, most of the bright people who had the good ideas have been drained dry after eight years and have gone on to better jobs outside state government. Finally, any governor worth his/her salt will inevitably make enemies in the course of daily governing. After eight years in office, any governor thinking third term better also think of the number of snakes lying in the high grass, ready to strike.

Worst, after eight years as governor, an office abounding with perks and awash with sycophants, even the most balanced person will be under tremendous pressure to let it go to his/her head. The ancient Greeks called it "hubris," which my dictionary defines as "over-bearing pride or presumption." Whether it's hubris or a swelled head, it's most unattractive, and you see it most in third terms.

History endorses the "no third term under any circumstances" doctrine.

William Milliken, perhaps Michigan's best loved former Governor, had a terrible time in his third term. Jim Blanchard simply ran out of gas at the end of his second term; his campaign for a third term was mishandled from start to finish.

Engler himself talked grandly about "two terms and out" at the start of his governorship. Well, he's a year into his third term. I wonder if he worries about how the next couple of years are going to turn out. Or is his heavy involvement in the presidential campaign of Texas Gov. George W. Bush his strategy for an early exit from third term woes?

Parents: they're not enemies of the state

Let's not make parents the enemy. Raising kids can be a tough job. They test boundaries. It's natural and normal for them to do so. I would argue that it is an integral part of growing up. How can you become an independent adult without occasionally pushing the limits?

So good parenting is a very fine line. One must set clear rules, enforce them consistently and fairly ... and know when to give them up as the child grows in maturity and responsibility.

I raise the point because of a set of bills proposed by Rep. Gilda Jacobs, D-Huntington Woods, and Sen. Gary Peters, D-Bloomfield Township, to address school truancy.

Overall, it's a good package. The key provision is that it would allow a judge to suspend a youngster's drivers license for failing to attend school regularly. As Peters has pointed out, youngsters value the mobility that having that driver's license allows. Often they count it more highly than anything else the authorities could offer or take away.

The bills would also require parental notification if the child is absent twice in 30 days, and would allow for court intervention if the child misses seven days in a month.

Truancy is sometimes the first sign of a troubled child who may eventually experiment with drugs, crime and gangs, and wind up another juvenile crime statistic," Jacobs said.

The part that bothers me is that parents could be held to account for their youngsters' failure to show up in school. The bills allow for fines of $500 or up to 90 days in jail for parents who fail to address the truancy problem.

And yes, I admit there are some parents who deserve such a penalty. When the Wayne County prosecutor's office called parents into meetings about their kids' truancy, fewer than half even showed up.

But there seems to be a trend of targeting parents for their kids' misbehavior. Many communities now have host ordinances, which hold parents to account when their youngsters hold raucous parties in their homes. And it wasn't long ago that a Macomb County couple was prosecuted for failing to discipline their delinquent teenager.

But there are also more prohibitions in law about what parents can do to discipline youngsters.

As a child, I knew what would happen if I was caught skipping school. Dad had a razor strap reserved for taking care of just such matters. I only got to see it once or twice in my entire childhood, and never when I didn't deserve it. But today, that would be child abuse. Keep in mind that we've seen several cases in which parents were charged for slapping their children in the face.

If you ask the authorities how far a parent can go in disciplining a youngster, you are likely to get a wide variety of answers. One judge I queried on the topic said that Michigan's domestic violence laws, which make it illegal for one member of a household to strike another, could be interpreted to prohibit spanking. But a state senator who was there for the debate on that law says it was never intended to outlaw physical discipline.

Another judge told me spanking is legal, as long as it is a swat or two on the rear or back of the legs, doesn't leave an injury, and is done with the hand rather than a paddle or strap.

When I asked a social worker the same thing, she said she refused to endorse spanking because too often child abuse begins as physical discipline.

Why such varied answers? Because the law does not clearly spell out what is legal and what isn't when it comes to disciplining children.

One lawmaker told me it wasn't spelled out for a reason. They were afraid that whatever definition of physical discipline they put in law as allowable might be carried to an abusive extreme. They like it nebulous, he said, because they can bring a case when a parent seems to go overboard. Vague laws give police and prosecutors more discretion.

What was that I said about good parenting? It is about setting clear rules and enforcing them fairly. Perhaps lawmakers should apply the same standards to their rules about parenting ... especially if they intend to hold parents accountable later for failing to discipline their kids.

Salvation Army appreciates big contribution

To the editor:
This involves both Novi and Northville.

I was doing my 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. stint as Salvation Army bell ringer Saturday, Dec. 11 in front of Great Harvest Bread Co. in Northville, as part of the crew lined up by First United Methodist Church of Northville.

A car pulled to the curb in front of me and the woman in the passenger seat got out and handed me a heavy shopping bag full of coins.

She said she and her husband save coins all year to give to the Salvation Army at Christmas time. I asked her for her name - Lisa Thomas of Novi - and if she would mind if I passed along to the local newspaper her name and what she did. She said she didn't mind.

I went into Great Harvest and asked them to weigh the bag. They said 12 1/2 pounds. I thought it was heavier, so I went across the street to the Kitchen Witch, where they weighed it for me. Still 12 1/2 pounds. It was mostly quarters.

What a nice idea Lisa and her husband had.

Busier streets endanger children

To the editor:
I don't blame the parents who have children attending the American school for wanting to have another school crossing guard. Perhaps if they paid twice as much as the school system pays now, they might find someone.

The board raised the superintendent's salary from $133,000 to over $138,000 this year, so I think they could afford to hire another guard.

When I moved to Northville almost 43 years ago, you could drive from Farmington Road to Sheldon Road and you might meet six cars.

It was a roly-poly black top road and if you didn't pay close attention to your driving, you might end up in the ditch.

Today, we have hundreds and hundreds of drivers that think a yellow light means step on the gas.

When I received my driver's license almost 63 years ago, it meant the light was going to change and if you could stop with ease, you did. Did you ever notice where there is a left turn light? When the arrow turns yellow at least three cars turn, two on the yellow and the third on the red.

Today, we have drivers that do not care what the law is but I'm in a hurry and get out of my way.

Children at Amerman don't understand the danger of speed and neither do most young people. Let the school bus drivers tell you how many drivers don't stop when their red lights are blinking.

It is a zoo out there today.

Peters: withhold judgment until Foundation's 5th year

Woodside and Peters are two of seven board of directors for the foundation.

Very little detailed information is available from the foundation itself, such as an annual report. Peters said she doesn't even have figures as to how many people attended the various fundraising events sponsored by the foundation.

The only detailed information available is in the organization's tax form.

And while Peters asks for five years before judging the organization, several problems exist now.

For instance, the National Charities Information Bureau, a charity watchdog group, recommends charities spend at least 60 percent of their total income on program services.

During 1998 the foundation took in $78,125 from fundraising events and corporate donations with the cost for putting on the fundraising events subtracted. Using the guideline of the National Charities Information Bureau, the foundation should have spent at least $46,875 on program services.

But according to the tax form from last year, only $28,333, or about 36 percent, was spent on program services.

However, in what Peters calls "an accounting thing" her salary is split between the two sections program services and management/general in the tax forms. Subtracting $26,000 from the program services leaves just $2,833, or just under 4 percent, for program services. To qualify as a private foundation, a charitable organization must distribute at least 3 percent of its gross assets annually toward fulfillment of the tax-exempt purpose.

And though the foundation spent enough to maintain its tax exempt status, the amount spent is well short of the recommended 60 percent guideline.

As for Peters' salary, she said "it has been adjusted," but wouldn't give the exact figure.

Working towards improvement

According to Tax Form 990, only one project was undertaken during 1998 to help the foundation accomplish its goals.

Through production of the book, "Northville Township ... from the beginning, a Journey recalled..." the foundation met its education goal.

The form said the book cost $28,333 to produce — $26,000 for Peters' salary, $2,176 for payroll taxes, $157 for meetings associated with the project.

The book is listed under part three of the tax form, which is the statement of program service accomplishments section. The annual auction, golf outing and holiday home tours are all considered by the IRS as special fundraising events and activities.

But Peters said the number of accomplishments should change on future tax statements.

"There will be more things on that section in the future that we're working on right now," she said.

For example, Peters said she's spent most of her time this year working to set up two endowments for the foundation. Additionally, she's spent a large amount of time working to set up an educational museum for children in the township.

Barbara Moroski-Brown, foundation board of directors member, said she's pleased with the direction of the foundation.

"It's a young organization, but I think there's been good progress," she said.

Moroski-Brown said she's particularly pleased with the work toward developing the historical museum in the township.

"Working toward trying to capture history is a very good project to undertake," she said.

As far as meeting the original goals of why the foundation was set up, Mark Abbo, Northville Township board of trustee, said the board hasn't been presented enough information.

"I know they've done some nice things," he said. "But the board hasn't been presented with enough information for me to really comment."

Cool as ice, Northville girl looks to Olympic dreams

a strict daily regimen, which will surely intensify as the 2002 Winter Olympics approach.

MacDonald gets up for school everyday at 5:45 a.m. She is at Northville High School until 11:45 a.m., and then is at the Detroit Skate Club working on her routine and skating for about four to five hours a day.

After skating, MacDonald said she comes home for dinner, does her homework and goes to bed.

Besides the daily ritual of school and practice, MacDonald has sacrificed many of the temptations that come with a being a teenager.

She is on a special diet that entails discarding carbohydrates and sugar while emphasizing the intake of protein.

"I eat eggs, meats and chicken — broiled not baked," she said. "Steamed veggies, lots of salad, water and juices. I don't drink any pop."

But she hasn't totally given up the innocence of youth in her quest to realize her Olympic dreams.

"I love to hang out with my friends," MacDonald said. "We like to go to movies and parties. We also go to a lot of the football and basketball games."

While competition has taken her across the nation, MacDonald said she has become friends with the many of the skaters she routinely rivals, including Tara Lipinski.

"At first, we always wanted to meet the big name skaters and get their autographs," MacDonald said. "Now I would kind of feel silly going up and asking them for their autographs."

With a balance of friends at school, friends from skating and a little help from Nintendo 64, MacDonald enjoys the traveling, competing, the challenge of figure skating and time on the road.

"I love when we have competitions and I get to see my friends who live in different states," she said. "It has been a lot of fun and it is always exciting."

With two more years to prepare for her Olympic run, MacDonald is still mastering her short and long programs as only four girls from Midwestern get to move on to Nationals.

While gliding along the ice through double axles and flying camels, MacDonald can take the experiences skating has already taught her and apply it to many applicable uses for her future.

She has plans on studying physical therapy or sports psychology at either Grand Valley State or Western Michigan University after high school graduation.

And the intensity of competing at a high level has helped her develop skills many people will never be able to fully understand.

"Figure skating has a team with you and your coaches," she said. "But, you are responsible for your own destiny. You can't blame anyone but yourself when you have errors or omissions during the routine."

"Skating in front of a lot of people has taught me about confidence. I have also learned about dedication while learning to stick with something for so long."

So now it is back to the ice for MacDonald at the Detroit Skate Club and the Novi Ice Arena where she is now teaching the Learn-to-Skate program that first got her interested in the sport of figure skating.

MacDonald along with 25 other skaters will perform in a holiday exhibition at the Novi Ice Arena on Dec. 18, from 1 p.m. to 2 p.m. Admission will be $1.

RECORD OUR TOWN

What I REALLY want for Christmas is...

Holding the items found at the Novi Toys R' Us location that they'd most like to receive this year are (front) Neil

Fourth grade students let their imaginations run wild at Novi Toys R' Us

Note to Santa Claus: Pokemon is sultan of the stocking this holiday season, even though he'll be getting some stiff competition from video games and recreational equipment.

Those were the top three vote-getters in a survey taken of Northville and Novi fourth grade students. Students from Northville's Silver Springs, Thornton Creek and Winchester elementary schools cast their ballots, as did those from Novi's Parkview, Orchard Hills and Novi Woods.

Students were asked to list any three gifts they would most like to receive for a birthday or the holidays. Pokemon, the Japanese toy phenomenon that has followed in the footsteps of Ninja Turtles and Power Rangers, took home the most votes with 186.

But another Japanese icon, that of Nintendo Game Boy consoles, also got a strong response from students, with 108 fourth graders hoping to have the hand-held video game unit sometime soon.

Nipping at the heels of Game Boy was miscellaneous sports equipment at 107 votes. Lumped together in one category, students said they were keeping their fingers crossed for anything from soccer nets to pool tables to ice skates.

One student from each school that responded was selected to take a trip to the Novi Toys R' Us store, find the toy of their choice off the shelf, and tell why it was the gift they were most anxious to receive.

Josh Goings, a student at Orchard Hills, grabbed hold of a Tyco radio control car.

"It's like driving without a license," Goings said. "You can control everything they do. It's really neat."

Goings said he preferred gym class at school and was looking forward to the holidays.

For Lauren Farley at Parkview Elementary, the answer to her wishes came in the form of a Nintendo 64, the highest-ranking stationary video game console of the students polled. She said she already owned another video game system, so why an N64?

"It's different," she said. "This system is more popular."

Farley, who said she wanted to be an artist when she grew up, said several of her friends already owned a Nintendo 64, which was a big part of the reason she was hoping to see the system under the tree this year.

The Scrabble board game was the item Melissa Moss at Novi Woods found in the store. The proud owner of a Winnie the Pooh doll and aspiring future first woman president of the United States, Moss said her reasons for selecting the game were simple.

"I couldn't find anything else I really wanted," she said.

Joseph Kinville needed to wait some time before he took advantage of his holiday gift — a junior golf set. The Silver Springs Elementary student said he didn't mind the delay being able to use the item at the top of his wish list.

His favorite sport wasn't golf, though.

"I like baseball a lot," he said.

Amy Johnson could be happy her favorite item was on the shelves this year. Her favorite toy, the Furby, was the toy to have for the holiday season in 1998. She said she always wanted a Furby, but the mad rush to find the jibbering critter a year ago didn't allow that to happen.

Last but not least was Neil Kollipara, whose Super Shootout electronic basketball game was a bit bulky to carry through the aisles, but was nonetheless the thing he was hoping to have at his home this year.

"It's fun because you can practice shooting all year long," said the Winchester Elementary student. "I love playing basketball."

Shoppers beware: there are only nine more shopping days until Christmas.

Neil Kollipara casts his eyes to the top of the Toys R' Us display shelves, searching for "the" item. He finally settled on an indoor electronic basketball game.

Herd thunders to Motor City Bowl

BYU accepts bid to play MAC champions at Silverdome on Dec. 27

Maybe the MAC stands for "Marshall Athletic Conference." It's starting to look that way, as the Thundering Herd from Huntington, W.V. clinched their third straight bid to the Motor City Bowl on Dec. 27. The team, led by Heisman Trophy candidate quarterback Chad Pennington, will play Brigham Young University, who accepted an at-large bid.

The Herd finished their season with a dramatic 34-30 come-from-behind victory over Western Michigan in the MAC Championship game on Dec. 3, finishing the season at 12-0 and ranked in the Associated Press Top 15. The Cougars compiled an impressive 8-3 record by their own. The Motor City Bowl was expected to generate more revenue than any other single event in metro Detroit. Invaluable for the American International Auto Show. In 1998, the game brought in nearly $30 million to the area.

Marshall is 1-1 at the Silverdome, narrowly losing to Ole Miss in 1997, followed by a defeat of Louisville last year. In its first year, some 50,000 spectators turned out for the Motor City Bowl — one of the largest crowds to ever come out for a debut bowl game. It also allowed fans the chance to see former Heisman candidate, now Minnesota Vikings wide receiver Randy Moss.

Kickoff for this year's game is slated for 1:30 p.m. It will be the first-ever meeting between Marshall and BYU. Tickets are on sale at TicketMaster, the Pontiac Silverdome box office, and all 13 Mid-American Conference schools' athletic ticket offices.

'Little' guy — big attitude

Spunky mouse embarks on adventure with humans

He's clever, enthusiastic, a 'can do' guy with attitude — and he's a mouse.

From Rob Minkoff, co-director of "The Lion King," comes the comedy adventure "Stuart Little," based on the classic book by beloved American author E.B. White ("Charlotte's Web," "The Trumpet of the Swan") who has been entertaining families for over 50 years.

A little guy with a big heart (pink nose and a really dapper wardrobe), Stuart, who is voiced by Michael J. Fox, searches for a sense of belonging and a place to call home in a decidedly oversized world.

When he's adopted by the Littles, a human family played by Academy Award winner Geena Davis, Jonathan Lipnicki and Hugh Laurie, he embarks on adventures with a variety of characters — including his nemesis, family cat Snowbell, voiced by Nathan Lane, and learns the true meaning of family, loyalty and friendship.

The Littles, in the meantime, discover there is a little "Stuart" in all of us — the spunk, spirit and courage to be true to ourselves and follow our dreams despite the odds.

The story begins in a cozy brownstone nestled among the gray monoliths along the section of Fifth Avenue that borders New York City's Central Park. Mr. and Mrs. Little bring home a surprising addition to the Little family ... Stuart.

Despite the urgings of Mrs. Stout, Bruno Kirby as the voice of Mr. Stout, Chazz Palminteri as the voice of Smokey, Steve Zahn as the voice of Monty, and David Alan Grier as the voice of Red, also starring are Julia Sweeney, Dabney Coleman, Estelle Getty and Alyce Beasley. "Stuart Little" runs for 92 minutes and is rated "PG."

art. "Stuart Little" is a film from producer Douglas Wick's Red Wagon Productions. Despite an obvious appeal to the younger set, "Stuart Little" manages to strike a balance between children's fantasy and an adult sensibility.

Combining live-action with groundbreaking visual effects technology by the artists and innovators at Sony Pictures ImageWorks, who have taken digital character creation to a bold new level with the birth of Stuart.

"Stuart Little" also features Jennifer Tilly as the voice of Mrs. Stout, Bruno Kirby as the voice of Mr. Stout, Chazz Palminteri as the voice of Smokey, Steve Zahn as the voice of Monty, and David Alan Grier as the voice of Red. Also starring are Julia Sweeney, Dab-Geena Davis, Jonathan Lipnicki and Hugh Laurie, the family who adopts Stuart Little.

Academy Award winner Tom Hanks stars in 'Green Mile'

Set on Death Row in a Southern prison in 1935, "The Green Mile" is the big-screen adaptation of Stephen King's 1996 bestselling serialized novel.

It is the remarkable story of a prison guard who develops a poignant, unusual relationship with one inmate who possesses a magical gift that is both mysterious and miraculous.

Two-time Academy Award-winner Tom Hanks stars as Paul Edgecomb, the Death Row head guard who relates in flashback a mystical account about his tour of duty at Cold Mountain Penitentiary and his watch over a quartet of convicted killers awaiting execution in the electric chair.

"The Green Mile" is told in a flashback narrated by Edgecomb to his friend Elaine Connelly. Edge-comb is now living in an old-age home some six decades after working as the head guard on Death Row at Cold Mountain Penitentiary.

Edgecomb's tour of duty at Cold Mountain in the Depression-era South included awaiting their final walk down "The Green Mile," the stretch of green linoleum flooring that took convicts from their jail cells to the electric chair.

Over the years, Edgecomb walked the mile with a variety of cons. He had never before encountered someone like John Coffey, a massive black man convicted of brutally killing a pair of 9-year-old sisters.

As the story unfolds, Edgecomb learns that, sometimes, miracles happen in the most unexpected places.

"TIM BURTON HAS TAKEN AN AMERICAN CLASSIC AND CREATED AN AMERICAN CLASSIC."

Stunningly beautiful filmmaking. Johnny Depp is amazing. GOOD MORNING AMERICA Joel Siegel

TIME Richard Corliss
"Sleepy Hollow" is a total Tim Burton experience...his richest, prettiest, weirdest film since "Batman Returns." "Sleepy Hollow" may be late for Halloween, but this trick is a real treat."

Skating team makes debut

Figure Skating

The newly formed Northville High School Figure Skating team participated in its first competition of the new season this past weekend at Wyandotte's Yack Arena, finishing 11th overall.

Allen Park won the invitational and Ann Arbor Huron and Birmingham Seaborn finished second and third, respectively.

Skaters participated in team events including jumps, spins and maneuvers both at low and high levels.

This year's Northville team consists of 12 skaters and Calynn Berry, Heather Barent, Danielle Longeway, Michelle Longeway, Lisa Longway and Emily Monforton competed at Saturday's event. Participants earned team points with each event. School teams will accumulate points during each of the four meets including the second-annual Michigan State Meet for an overall season winner.

The rest of the team includes Christina DeVincent, Megan Hughes, Erin Banner, Alison MacDonald, Kelly Modetz and Maggie Modetz.

The team is sponsored by Michele Mikonczyk, a former skater herself and a member of the high school teaching staff.

There are currently 15 high school skating teams across the state of Michigan, with more being added each year.

Upcoming meets will be held at Westland on Jan. 21, at Veterans Arena in Ann Arbor on Feb. 10 and at the state championships at the Plymouth Cultural Center on March 11. The Northville High School Figure Skating Club will also skate during the first period intermission at this Saturday's Northville game against Farmington which begins at 6 p.m.

They will also skate at home hockey games scheduled for Jan. 8 and Feb. 19.

Bump, set and SPIKE!!!

Northville's Meredith Hasse (14) goes up to spike the ball in Northville's win over Novi Monday night. The Mustangs season began this past weekend at the Gull Lake Tournament, where the team made it out of pool play before losing in the quarterfinals against Battle Lakeview. They will be previewed in next week's Northville Record.

Hockey

If there's one thing this past week's split with Howell and Livonia Stevenson proves, it's that the Western Lakes hockey league is one of the state's best.

Northville helped prove that by going outside of its conference and knocking off the Highlanders 3-1 this past Saturday. Rob Ryan and Tyler Sedam broke out of season-long scoring slumps to lead the Mustangs to their second win of the season.

Howell picked up the game's first goal, that coming in the first period, and led 1-0 after the first. But Ryan tied the game at 1-1 with his first goal of the season midway through the second period.

"He'd been snake bitten all year. He's been coming real close, but he could never put it in the net," his coach Brad O'Neill said. "It was nice for him to break through and get that first one."

A few minutes later Sedam broke a scoreless streak of his own, scoring his first of the season to put Northville up 2-1 as the second period ended.

The game began to heat up in that second period, which saw both teams take a number of penalties. And much of that abusive play continued into the third.

"It was real rough, because I think Howell was trying to get us off our game," O'Neill said. "I was really worried whether we'd get everybody through this game or not. It was on their rink and the referees were letting the kids play."

No one was seriously hurt, and Sedam went on to pick up his second goal of the game in that third period. "He had a breakout game," his coach said.

Josh Block picked up the win between the pipes for Northville.

STEVENSON 4, N'VILLE 2

Facing stiff competition from one of the perennial powerhouses in the league, Northville dropped their second-straight WLAAC game back on Dec. 8.

"Stevenson is always up there at the top of the league, and this is the closest we've played them since we became a team,"

O'Neill said. "We had chances to get back into this game in the third period. I was happy with our play."

Northville fell behind 2-1 after one period and 4-1 after two against the Spartans. O'Neill said his team dominated play for much of the third period.

"We absolutely played with them up and down the ice. I feel we played a heck of a game against them," the coach added.

Tim Hillebrand and Brandon Szatkowski each scored a goal for the Mustangs, the second of the year for each skater.

"We feel there's no one in this league that we can't play with now," O'Neill said. "Everyone is beating everyone, so we're still not out of it yet."

"We feel there's no one in this league that we can't play with now. Everyone is beating everyone, so we're still not out of it yet."

Northville hockey coach

Northville's overall record stands at 2-3-1 and their league mark is 1-2. They host Farmington Saturday at the Novi Ice Arena. The game will begin at 6 p.m.

After that the team is off until Dec. 28th and 29th when Northville and Novi will host the first-ever Christmas Tournament at the Novi Ice Arena. Northville is scheduled to play Waterford Mott at 6 p.m. on the 28th, with Novi set to take on West Bloomfield immediately following that game.

The winners advance to the championship game the following night at 8 p.m., with the losers playing in the consolation game at 6 p.m.

Redden scores 20 points, but Mustangs fall to Lions

By JASON SCHMITT
Sports Editor

With so many young players on the team, it's no wonder the Northville basketball team struggled early on against South Lyon last Friday night.

And it's also no wonder that those struggles were the main reason why the Mustangs fell to the Lions in the season opener 65-60. Northville committed 11 of its 13 turnovers in the second quarter, a quarter which saw South Lyon take charge of the game and a 42-24 halftime lead.

"We suffered the young-guy jitters in the first half," Northville coach Scott Bakwin said. "We were just a young team turning the ball over, but I guess you could just expect that from us."

South Lyon put on a full-court press the entire game, exchanging steals for points for much of the first half. Bakwin said it wasn't halftime adjustments that made the difference for Northville in the second half. Rather, it was his team's added confidence.

"I just told them to calm down," the

Northville edges Novi, 49-46

Down two points with two seconds left, Novi guard Brendan Hadley made one of two free throws. The only problem was he was supposed to make the first, not the second.

The made free throw allowed Northville to inbound the ball. Aaron Redden was fouled immediately and hit two free throws with one second remaining to give his Mustangs a 49-46 win over Novi Tuesday night.

In a game that went back and forth all night long, Northville coach said. "There really wasn't any major adjustments to be made. When we did start to calm down, we played well."

The Mustangs cut the lead down to three points in the fourth quarter, but the Lions held them at bay the rest of the game.

"Northville's a big team, but they're young," South Lyon coach Daren Clayton said. "They have a good future ahead of them and they showed a lot of mental toughness in the second half."

Junior forward Aaron Redden led the team with 20 points, seven rebounds and six steals in the game. Tim Ferrig and Gregor added eight points each and Gregor pulled down 14 rebounds and dished out four assists. Thom Knapp grabbed nine boards.

Drew Herpich and Robbie Harner played well off the bench for Northville.

took the lead for good when David Gregor hit a layup with 1:25 left to play to give Northville a 47-46 lead.

Novi led 23-22 at halftime and the game was tied at 36 at the end of three.

Novi's Chad Nadolni led all scorers with 25 points. Redden and Gregor led Northville with 16 and 12.

Thom Knapp scored nine points and Travis Bliss added eight for the victors (1-1). Novi fell to 0-3.

New additions, returning depth makes Northville/Novi team tough to beat

Northville/Novi gymnastics coach Laura Moyers knows what it's like to be there. To be at the top of the gymnastics world looking down on all the contenders

She knows what it's like to be a state champion.

But she also knows how much hard work and top-notch talent required to make it to the top. She knows how a team must come together at all the right Northville's prospects for a successful 1999-2000 season look good.

Gymnastics

times.

That's why she's trying to contain herself with her 1999-2000 Mustang team looking like it has all the right stuff to make another run at a state championship.

"It's a great team, and you hate to get too excited," Moyers said. "I can't say we'll be a state championship team, but we do have a lot of talent."

Most of the talent from last year's team returns this year, with only three departed seniors from last year's roster. Add to the returnees a few club gymnasts who decided to give high school gymnastics a try and Northville/Novi's prospects look good.

Seniors Jenny Rohlf and Tina Wild will captain this year's team, which is still very young. The captains are the only seniors on the team and are four-year letterwinners for the Mustangs. Both were on the 1997-1998 team that won the state title.

Rohlf suffered a knee injury at the end of last season, and will be limited to competition in just the bars and beam events. She was the all-around state champion in 1998 in division II.

"Even having her out there for just two events will help this team out tremendously," Moyers said.

Wild was a regional qualifier in the vault last year and will add the bars to her repertoire.

Northville/Novi's list of juniors is a long one, and very talented. Monica Fink placed at the state meet a year ago on the vault, and will be able to help the team in all events this season.

Both Allison Gillette and Kelley Phelps return to the team and will be used in all events when needed. Gillette is coming off a broken leg and the cast is expected to come off today.

Perhaps the Mustang's greatest additions come in the form of two juniors who are level nine gymnasts who have decided to join their classmates on the high school apparatuses. Katie Braine and Megan Samhat bring many years of club gymnastics experience to the team, and will be a strong addition to the team.

Moyers said Braine, who was a level nine gymnast before suffering an injury a few years ago, should be able to step right in and make a huge difference with the team. She'll compete in all events, but is especially strong in the floor exercise and on the beam and vault.

Samhat competed at nationals a year ago and brings a wealth of talent to any event she chooses.

"She's very well-rounded, and she can go up against anyone else in the state," her coach said.

Larissa Szwarz is another junior on this year's team. She is a first-year gymnast who has surprised her coach with her ability to learn things quickly.

The sophomore class is another strength to the team. With Lindsey Carlson returning as one of the top gymnasts from last year's team, Northville/Novi will have a handful of girls who can go all-around. Andrea Ledbetter and Kim Veres return to the team from last year and will be joined by fellow sophomore Mary Esper. Ledbetter has added some skills from last year and will compete in all four events. Veres' specialties are on the beam and bars and Esper's strength is on the bars.

A handful of freshmen have made the team and will try and help out the team when called upon. Catlin Miller, Sarah Nicholson, Whitney Paul, Julie Powell and Amy Wild will be competing on the beam and bars, with Nicholson also helping out on the vault.

Moyers has an added bonus of having an assistant coach along for the ride. Lindsey Crews is a new teacher at Northville High School and will help Moyers with the 17-member team.

"As long as we can pull it all together, and stay healthy, I think we'll have a chance (at a state championship)," Moyers said. "But it's difficult to tell because I haven't seen them compete yet."

She will tonight as the team will compete in its annual intrasquad meet tonight at Northville High School beginning at 7 p.m.

AAU hoop tryouts coming up

The Western Wayne Wildcats will be holding tryouts for their AAU girls basketball team the first week of January at various elementary and middle schools.

The Orange team edged out the Black squad 53-49 with the help of its captain Mike Mueller, Bobby Gulewich, Joe Lunn and Kevin Hagedorn combined to win the 200 free in 1:49.96 to help clinch the win for their team. Lunn also won the 500 freestyle (6:18.29).

The Black team was led by Anthony Serge and David Whitbeck, who each won two events. Serge took first in the individual medley (2:16.0) and 100 backstroke (1:02.08). Whitbeck won both the 50 freestyle (23:95) and the 100 free (51.95).

McDONALD FORD SALUTES NORTHVILLE ATHLETES OF THE WEEK

Chad Neumann - Junior

Northville's string of two-straight Garden City Invitational championships was broken this past weekend, but the team still managed to finish second out of 18 teams.

Junior Chad Neumann continued his string of excellence this year, winning all four of his matches to take home the title at 140 pounds. He's 8-0 on the year.

Tyler Sedam - Junior

After suffering through an early-season slump which saw him go scoreless in the team's first five games, junior Tyler Sedam broke out with a pair of goals in Northville's 3-1 win over Howell last Saturday night. He and Rob Ryan both scored their first goals of the year, as Northville broke a two-game losing streak.

Four grapplers win titles at Garden City

By JASON SCHMITT
Sports Editor

Never count out the Northville wrestling team.

Especially when it's a team with so much top-notch talent.

That's what many had done when the team won just one of four matches at the season-opening tournament at Lake Orion two weekends ago. But this past weekend the Mustangs rebounded to finish second at the 18-team Garden City Invitational.

Three Northville wrestlers brought home championships, and nine of 14 Mustangs placed among the top six wrestlers in their weight class.

"I think from the last tournament, we were 80 percent better," Northville coach Bob Townsend said. "Some of our kids wrestled extremely well. We're a team that doesn't want to settle for second, and I like that we have that attitude."

Northville had won this tournament the previous two years. Monroe stole it away this season.

Seniors Dan Scappaticci and Joe Rumbley walked away undefeated on the day, winning all four of their matches. Scappaticci wrestled consistently all day and defeated his Dearborn opponent 13-4 in the finals. Rumbley beat his Clarenceville challenger 8-4 in the championship at 189. Scappaticci was seeded first coming into the tournament, while Rumbley came through as the No. 5 seed.

Junior Chad Neumann continued his perfect season, bringing home the title at 140 pounds. In the championship match he beat Garden City 12-1 to go to 8-0 on the season.

"He's just a complete stud this year," Townsend said. "He's tough, and he's going to be tough to beat."

Senior Reggie Torrence finished runnerup to Melvindale in the tournament. He lost 3-1 in the finals in a match that went to overtime. He was the No. 1 seed coming into the tournament and finished 3-1 on the day.

"He was aggressive throughout the match, but his opponent just stayed back and wrestled defensively," Townsend said. "I really think this will be a wakeup call for him."

Three Mustangs, Brian Tran at heavy-weight, Jeremy Carter at 112 and Jason D'Anna at 119 all finished fourth in their weights. Ravi Saran (103) Matt Doyle (125) placed fifth at the tournament.

"I think that we're tough in certain areas, but we're weak at others," Townsend admitted. "But it was nice to see some of our kids win their first matches. Sometimes they're the hardest ones to win."

"This team is starting to come together. We have the potential to be a great team, and I think they're starting to realize that."

Cougars win division...

The Novi Cougars won the Mini Mite Division (ages 4-7) of the Farmington Hills Thanksgiving Tournament by defeating the Farmington Hills Charizards 4-3 in overtime. Their tournament record was 5-0. The team had to come from behind to do it too. Trailing 3-2, Frank Dreslinski scored with one second remaining to send the game to OT, where Zach Mohr scored the game winner. Other team members include Kent Burnett, Kyle Shreve, Nicholas Bageris, Matthew Bonnell, Andrew Check, Evan Cochran, Kyle Hammer, Jake Johnson, Spencer Knickerbocker, Alec Lemieux, Patrick Luther, Nolan Valleau, and Christopher VeraBurgos. The team is coached by Dan Mohr, Phil Valleau, Ra Burnett and Mike Bageris.

Time for a change?

Diapers. Oil. Smoke detector batteries.

Change the batteries in your smoke detector

Change the batteries in your smoke detector before the old ones run out. That way, your smoke detectors can warn you and your family to escape in the event of a fire. Follow these tips to keep your smoke detectors in top working shape:

- Test your smoke detectors monthly and put in new batteries at least once a year;
- Vacuum over and around detectors to keep them free from dust and debris.

When it comes to smoke detectors, a little change makes all the difference.

Health Column

Jason's Journey hits fifth week

"Jason's Journey" to reach his fitness goals is well underway. For those of you joining us with this column, allow me to review what this journey is all about.

As we all find ourselves in the "food-eating season" and for many, the result is weight gain. Many of us will be or are already beginning the thought process of, how do I get in better shape and lose some weight? (Which, by the way, consistently tops the New Year's resolutions list.)

In an effort to help you examine the smaller, personal health club option of reaching your weight and fitness goals, we are walking you through the journey of our "average guy" (volunteer Jason Schmitt), in his attempt to reach those very same goals.

Jason is following our club's 12-week individualized personal training program. This program is designed to take Jason from where he is today to where he wants his body to be, and give him the tools to keep it there for life. By including the journey from both the health professional's eyes as well as Jason's eyes, you should get a fun and realistic look at what it takes to achieve some key lifestyle changes. These lifestyle changes are the only true path to ideal weight and overall health and fitness. So when it comes to that super machine that does it all or that magic pill, save your money and more importantly, save your health.

A jury recently awarded more than $23 million to a 36-year-old woman. The woman's physician charged that Redux, an American Home Product diet pill, had done irreparable damage to his patient's heart valves. An Aug. 6 issue of The New York Times estimates that the total number of lawsuits against American Home Products has grown to more than 10,000, with analysts estimating over $5 billion in total liabilities. There is no shortcut to reaching your weight and fitness goals safely.

One comment on the previous column, Jason pointed out that his goal of a 7-pound weight loss did not seem like much. Weight is only the tip of the iceberg when it comes to your appearance goals. The percentage of weight from body fat and lean muscle is the key.

Jason's goal is a 10-pound body fat reduction, but his goal of a slight increase in lean muscle offsets the overall weight loss goal. The amount of lean muscle a person wants or needs to add will directly influence the overall weight goal. Do not use a weight scale as your only indicator of your fitness.

For example, if you lost 5 pounds, wouldn't that be nice? But, if it came from lean muscle and water, what you have lost is lean muscle and water, what you have lost is valuable muscle and dehydrated yourself. Not only is this temporary, but not healthy. Conversely, if you added two or three pounds but it was well-needed water (not to carry excess water but to be properly hydrated for health), and a little of well-placed muscle that might be fine, but if you are only using the weight scale, you will get a false reading.

The following is a recap of Jason's five visits so far. Jason's coach and trainer, Lesley Pagnucco wrote them:

• Session One
Jason and I went over his profile packet that was given to him at his initial consultation. We talked about Jason's health history, food profile (which is foods he likes and is eating now), as well as vital lifestyle questions and his specific goals. It is a key to know exactly what Jason wants to achieve.

I then began recording his starting statistics...resting heart rate of 61, pretty good. The lower the resting heart rate in general, the better. Let's get the heart to work as efficiently as possible. In other words, oxygenating the body with the least amount of effort. We have seen resting heart rate reductions up to 10-12 beats per minute.

Next, body weight and percentage of body fat,

Utilizing the caliper method (there are other methods), we obnoxiously but painlessly pinch four places on your body. This gives us a pretty good estimate of how much of your weight is body fat versus lean muscle. We also completed Jason's circumference measurements.

Finally, I completed a postural analysis and a core strength check. Jason's shoulders were slightly protracted (rounded forward). We will work on this, and his core (mid section) was strong. We concluded this session with reviewing some things for Jason to work on prior to our next appointment and gave him his exercise handbook.

• Session Two
Jason warms up on the treadmill on his own and we meet on the exercise floor. Time for a practical assessment of how ready he is on the resistance equipment. This, combined with his postural analysis, core strength test and his goals will allow me to design a safe, effective initial exercise program. We will take all the guesswork out for Jason. The last half-hour was spent going over Jason's computer printout. This is the result of inputting all of Jason's data, starting statistics, food profile, goals, etc.

This printout begins to lay out each of the five key components that it will take to achieve long term goals. The five components are resistance training, cardiovascular training, food intake, assuring he is getting all the nutrients needed, and finally, utilizing me — his coach — and the entire fitness team to help keep Jason motivated and on track.

We all have up and down times. With his data in hand, Jason was beginning to understand exactly what fuel to put in his body, how many calories, what percentages of protein, fat and carbohydrates, etc. We concluded with Jason making plans to begin to get control of his food intake.

• Session Three
We completed a full body workout today, documenting all the settings and going over the exact movements specific to Jason's body. I felt Jason wanted to do more than we did, which is typical of a lot of our clients. However, if we can focus on proper form in completing the exercise movements, the better off we will be in the long run.

which were disgustingly fatty when I started. I would say that's been the biggest change in my daily routine. But other than that the program has gone on without a hitch in it.

There is something to be said for working smart as well as hard. So many clients do not have the five components sorted out for them. They work hard, see little or no results, and drop out. Joining the "I tried the health club route and it did not work for me." This is a loss for everyone.

Find the right club for you to assure you will get what you want and need to achieve the reasons you came there in the first place. It is not just how much weight a person uses, but how he or she does the movements.

We also discussed his menu and how to exchange foods easily to give him variety, and we checked on how all this was working in Jason's lifestyle.

• Session Four
We talked about how Jason was feeling overall. A big part of the program is making it work in each of our client's life. We get our clients anywhere from two to five hours a week, while the world has them for the other 160 or so hours. We must make the connection between the club and their life, and we work hard at this.

He was feeling great, energy high and only a little sore, so we slightly increased the intensity of his workout. We covered some more education issues and wrapped the session up.

• Session Five
Big day today. Jason gets reevaluated to check our progress. Super results. In only ten days of implementing the program, he reduced his fat mass 3.7 pounds and added 3.2 pounds of lean muscle, resulting in only 1/2 pound on the scale, but as discussed earlier, he is on his way to the body he wants.

I am proud of Jason and appreciate his honesty. We don't expect our clients to comply 100 percent all the time, but hope they can realize this program is a tool on how the human body works. No gimmicks or games, just the science of the body, a little patience, hard work and determination. Great job, Jason.

Program begins to take off for Jason

Well the first three weeks of my journey through Apexville are coming to a close. And let me tell you, it hasn't been easy.

I've had to completely change my eating habits,

With calipers in hand, Lesley Pagnucco takes a tricep measurement to figure out the exact percentage of Jason's body fat. In the first two weeks, he dropped 1.6 percent.

At least from my end. I'm feeling as good as ever. Whether that's because I'm tricking myself into feeling that way, or whether I really believe it, I don't know. But I feel like I can do more, at the gym or at work. I seem to be getting more accomplished.

When I began the Apex training system, I was told it would not be easy. So none of this comes as a surprise to me. Actually, my program has become easier as the time has passed. I no longer find myself craving Whoppers, or chili-cheese french fries. The water I drink on a daily basis is actually refreshing and the white meats on my menu tend to fill me up.

Lesley Pagnucco has been wonderful to work with. She's enthusiastic, to say the least, and she actually cares about my progress. If I'm not doing it for myself, then I've got Lesley, Chris Klebba, Boo Sadikot and the rest of my readers to do it for. That's the way I look at it.

Not knowing what exactly I'd be doing throughout this program, I definitely didn't know I'd be learning so much about what I was doing. Lesley's been teaching me about my food intake, my supplements and what each of my resistance training exercises does for this. She's made me aware of why we're doing this, and where I can be if I stare to reach my goals.

In the first two weeks of the program, I lost over seven percent of my original body fat. And I feel that the first two weeks were tame compared to the workouts I've completed since then. Believe me, there's nothing more satisfying than seeing the results of your hard work on paper. Even if I don't see a big change in the mirror, I have felt a change for the better inside.

Yoho-Ho!

This Northville couple brings decorating for the holidays to a truly grand scale

By Annette Jaworski
SPECIAL WRITER

The Yoho's of Northville were always enthusiastic when it came to decorating for the holidays. But like most holiday endeavors, the more the merrier. This year, the couple enlisted the help of Lynn Paquette of Changing Seasons in Northville to help prepare their 30 room home for Northville's Christmas Home Tour result in November. The result is a fresh look blended with years of tradition.

Visitors to the tour were greeted in the foyer by a life size Victorian St. Nicholas. He stands next to an elegant stairway entwined with garland. It was one example of the combined efforts of Yoho and Paquette.

"The bows and garland were mine, but I never thought to put in berries," said Corrine Yoho.

The entry leads to the reception area which showcases the largest tree, a twelve foot beauty with Christopher Radko ornaments and a unique tree topper. It's a bow made from yards and yards of satiny fabric mixed with a gauzy gold look ribbon.

It's a popular item with Changing Seasons, according to Paquette. "It's really effective, it covers so much of your tree...It really makes it beautiful," said Paquette.

With four Christmas trees in entirely different themes, it would be hard to single one out.

"If I had to pick, I guess my favorite would be the nine foot tree," Corrine Yoho said, referring to the one in the hearth room.

Larry Yoho agrees as well. This tree contains all the ornaments connected to family and special memories. Many of these ornaments and other decorations come from Corrine's mother, who loved to decorate for the holiday as well. There are many from their children and grandchildren as well. One of Corrine's favorite is a handwritten ornament with her name that she made as a little girl.

"As many new ones I have, I still favor the old ones from my mom," she said.

Larry enjoys one embellished with the family name, Yoho. The ornament is etched in white and adorned with holly berries and a gold bell. They both appreciate a "Grandma and Grandpa's first Christmas," presented to by their first grandson, Ryan.

Antique reproductions of an old airplane and train sit under the tree, as well as a life-size doll that stands nearby. This tree also displays ornaments from the couple's travels.

Other trees in the house follow a theme. The tree is decorated in anything that's sports related, holding many "fishing and hunting ornaments" as well as soccer and golf ornaments. Underneath is a running Lionel train, and a nativity scene sits atop the fireplace.

This is the first year the couple put a tree in the bedroom, due to Paquette's suggestion. Here they decorated in soft and muted colors to coordinate with the rugs and upholstery in a blush pink and sage green.

"I never thought to put a Christmas tree in the bedroom, but it's very romantic," she said.

Some of the most fascinating decor are the miniatures done by Larry's cousin, Jean Parker, from East China, Mich. Each depicts an entire scene in amazing detail. For example, a Christ-left, the exterior of Corrine and Larry Yoho's home. The home took two years to build but the Yohos feel it's been well worth the wait.

mas scene is wired with fiber optics, complete with figurines, furniture, even tiny presents are under the tree. Another depicts a general store scene, complete with bolts of fabric and filled jars of candy.

In addition to the impressive decorations, the Yoho's set an elaborate table for 18 in the formal dining room. It features green and gold place settings by Nikko called Christmas Tradition, atop gold chargers. Gold silverware and wine glasses trimmed in gold complete the setting.

No strangers to the holiday tours, the couple opened their doors in their Livonia home where they lived previously. One benefit to the early preparations for the November holiday tour, were that the Yoho's were ready to sit back and relax and truly enjoy the season.

HOW TO

Don't let water damage butcher your block

By Gene Gary
COPLEY NEWS SERVICE

Q. We recently purchased a 15-year-old home and are making some modifications to the kitchen, updating appliances and counter tops. There is a center island which has a butcher block surface, approximately 4 feet by 6 feet. I want to retain this, but the wood is stained and scratched (not from knife marks, just general wear). I recall reading something in your column in the past concerning restoration of a butcher block counter. Can you provide me with this information?

A. This is a frequently asked question, and I am happy to repeat the information. Assuming that wood has never been varnished, your first step is to thoroughly clean the surface with a fine grade of bronze wool and mineral spirits to remove general dirt and grime. Try using a solution of diluted chlorine bleach on major stains, letting it remain on the surface a minute or two. Wash thoroughly to remove all of the bleach from the wood and let dry. If staining remains, sand the entire surface with a fine grade of sandpaper. Use a sanding block or an electric sander. A thorough surface sanding should remove surface scratches as well.

Be careful to sand evenly and avoid creating indentations that will cause water and other liquids to puddle on the board and create even greater problems. If the chlorine bleach and sanding fail to remove dark stains, a stronger bleach solution recommended for wood is an oxalic acid solution (one ounce oxalic acid mixed with one quart of water). Pour acid into water, never the reverse. Wear rubber gloves, protective clothing and take care not to splash the solution on the surrounding area. Apply this solution to the stained areas and allow to set for one hour, then rinse with clean water. Deep stains may require a second application. The bleaching process may raise the grain of the wood somewhat and a final light sanding may be

Cutting edge butcher block care

Once the stains have been removed and the surface has been sanded smooth, the final step is to apply a sealer. I would recommend one of the commercial non-toxic finishes that are safe for food contact. This would be similar to tung oil, but non-toxic. Unlike vegetable oil or mineral oil (often recommended for butcher block), this type of product will seal the wood without leaving an oily surface which tends to collect dirt. Two applications may be required. Follow manufacturer's directions on drying times between applications. Use lemon oil (which will penetrate the wood and sealer without leaving an oily residue) after the tung oil treatment. To maintain the finish, clean the board after each use with soap and hot water, rinse with clear water and dry completely.

Stains can be treated with lemon juice and the board can be scrubbed with a nylon scouring pad. Reapply lemon oil periodically to maintain the surface. If the wood becomes stained again, a light sanding and new application of the finishing oil will restore the finish. Look for non-toxic tung oil at a wood-craft supplier if you are unable to locate it at a home center or hardware store. Contact Leichtung Workshops, a firm specializing in woodcrafts and products, 4944 Commerce Parkway, Cleveland, OH 44128; (800) 321-6840, if you are unable to find this product in your area.

If the wood surface has already been varnished, you will have to use a varnish stripper as the first step in this restoration project. Another note of caution: Although the steps outlined here call for the use of water in solutions and for rinsing, do not let an excessive amount of water stand on the wood surface for any period of time. Water penetrating the wood can cause swelling, warping and other damage.

Q. I often use your household cleaning suggestions with great success. Maybe you can advise me on this quandary. To protect against germs and infection, is it best to use a wood cutting board or a plastic cutting board in the kitchen? I prefer wood because it does not dull the edge of my knives. But, some of my friends are adamant that wood collects germs that cause health problems. Can you give me your opinion?

A. For years there have been conflicting reports about bacteria growth on cutting boards and which surfaces are the safest. Various studies have been made. Basically, while bacteria seems to dissipate and die faster on a wood surface than plastic, bacteria can become embedded in a wood cutting board and is more difficult to remove by washing than the plastic counterpart.

Bottom line, whichever type of board you choose, the cleaning and sanitizing process after use is what makes the difference. You need to be particularly cautious when cutting meat or poultry products on a board. In fact, it is best to keep a separate cutting board available for this use only (do not mix it with other chopping and cutting chores). After each use your cutting board should be scrubbed with a brush or similar scrubber with hot, soapy water. The friction ruptures the cells of micro-organisms and the detergent helps lift and remove the debris that may harbor pathogens. Rinse and air-dry or pat dry with clean paper towels.

When using the cutting surface for chicken, beef, fish or any other meat, sanitize it by flooding the surface for a minute with a solution of 1 teaspoon chlorine bleach per quart of water. Rinse it well immediately afterward and dry. Do not store the chlorine solution for future use; because chlorine evaporates, mix up only enough for one application. Washing your plastic boards in an automatic dishwasher is another safe method of sanitizing. However, wood boards should not be exposed to this type of moisture saturation which will cause warping and deterioration.

Dressing with a Western flair

Highland shop keeps customers well dressed

ANNETTE JAWORSKI
Staff Writer

It gives Leslie Marsac, owner of Saritas Equine, Etc. in Highland a lot of satisfaction to see a well dressed rider wearing an outfit from their store.

"We go to a lot of shows, and I noticed a lot of customer wearing outfits that we helped put together," Marsac said proudly. "They're always the best dressed."

Owners, Sara Crites and Leslie Marsac aim to provide the highest quality of merchandise and personal service at Saritas. Marsac uses her years of experience to help customers select exactly what they may need.

Different classes require different looks. For example, with halter classes, a jacket is preferred. For pleasure or riding classes a tucked in blouse or vest is appropriate. Top off the look with a great looking pair of boots. Saritas carries the top names in boots, such as Justin and Ariat.

"We can outfit a person from top to bottom to give them a winning look," Marsac said.

The clothing is only a small part of the store's offerings, which is located next to the Detroit Polo Club in Highland offers.

Saritas also carries a complete selection of tack. Marsac notes that they carry only quality brand names such as Circle Y and Dale Chavez, for western tack. For English tack, their merchandise includes Stubben bridles and Crosby saddles. You'll find

Saritas provides apparel to keep riders looking good

English riding apparel for show and casual wear.

There's lots of things for the well dressed horse as well, like show stalls and halters with silver accents. Other accessories are available such as saddle pads, and a wide supply of grooming supplies, including brushes. You'll also find cleaning supplies, hats, books, videos and magazines. There's also casual clothing, such as sweatshirts, T-shirts and baseball hats, T-shirts and polos with Detroit Polo Club insignia. A storewide sale will be held in September with 10 to 20 per cent off.

Tack repair and custom saddle fitting are other services that Saritas offers their customers. They offer a pony and 4-H discount to encourage young riders.

With a large horse population in the surrounding area, it's no surprise that customers have discovered them in the short time they've been open from April 15 of this year. Riders come from near and far, including the South Lyon, Howell, Flint and Bloomfield areas.

"We've got a three county draw," she notes. "Once people know we're here, they come back. We have a nice selection with quality merchandise."

The store plans to offer monthly clinics in various areas including showmanship, dressage and saddle fitting. The next event scheduled is a dressage clinic for September 11.

"It's nice to have it here, people can bring the horses right here into the ring," Marsac said.

Call (248) 684-2888 for more information. Saritas Equine is located at 2770 South Millford Road in Highland as part of the Detroit Polo Club.

With winter around the corner it's time to check smoke detectors

When it comes to fire safety, "home sweet home" can be more dangerous than expected - especially without working smoke detectors.

Last year, 163 people died in Michigan home fires. That's 76.5 percent of the 213 fire fatalities.

"Many of those deaths may have been prevented if working smoke detectors had been available," said Jerry Basch, AAA Michigan community safety services manager.

The 1998 Fire in Michigan Annual Report, compiled and published by the Fire Marshal Division of the Michigan State Police, shows that 43.1 percent of the 13,095 homes did not have detectors. Another 10.3 percent had detectors that did not work.

"Tragically, over half of the residential fire deaths occurred in homes without detectors or with ones that failed," said Basch.

"When seconds count, smoke detectors are your best early-warning system that a fire is underway," added Basch. "Smoke and poison gases can kill after a few breaths." Three-quarters of fire deaths occur between 8 p.m. and 8 a.m., with 8 p.m. to 4 a.m. being the most dangerous period.

Basch noted that smoke detectors can wake a person while there is still time for life-saving action, especially for young children who need adult guidance in an emergency situation.

Of the total 1998 Michigan fire deaths, children under age 10 accounted for more than a third (35.2 percent) - 75 of the 213 fatalities - the most for any age group. Children playing with fire was the most common cause of home fire deaths.

AAA Michigan advises that smoke detectors should be placed on every level of the home and ideally, in every common "area of origin" for fires such as the kitchen, bedroom and living room. Smoke detectors are available at most hardware, department and discount stores, often for less than $15. Many fire departments have programs to provide smoke detectors for people with financial needs. Before purchasing a detector, check with your fire department to comply with local codes.

To help Michigan residents learn how to develop a fire escape plan, AAA Michigan branch offices across the state offer a free brochure titled, "Planning for Home Fire Emergencies."

The brochure has special sections on the value of smoke detectors, escape plans and special plans for children, the elderly and disabled.

AAA introduces new member cards

AAA Michigan has introduced a new member benefit - just in time to help out with the holidays. The AAA MemberOne Stored Value card is an innovative, prepaid card that can be used for travel, shopping or emergency purposes.

The prepaid cash cards also make excellent gifts, since they are accepted for payment at more than 16 million Visa merchants and can be used at more than 480,000 ATMs worldwide.

"The AAA MemberOne Card gives you the versatility of cash, the convenience of a credit card, and the security of traveler's checks," said Sandra Maxwell, business development manager for AAA Michigan.

"Use it on family vacations, to pay expenses for kids away at college, or as a great gift idea for family and friends near and far."

According to Maxwell, the MemberOne card is currently available for no fee to AAA members and non-members alike. It can be loaded with funding up to $10,000 and is reloadable.

The AAA MemberOne Card can be used over and over by simply reloading over the phone or the Internet. You can even check the amount remaining by phone or ATM.

If lost or stolen, members have access to 24-hour, toll-free customer support, so the original card can be deactivated and a replacement card issued. Cards are embossed with the member's name and mailed within 24 hours of the order.

As further incentive, AAA Michigan is piloting the purchase of its MemberOne cards by cash and check at three of its Michigan branch offices:

- Macomb Township, 21851 Hall Road, (810) 469-4050;
- Ann Arbor-Ypsilanti, 2650 Carpenter Road, (734) 973-2800; and
- Ann Arbor Travel Agency, 1200 S. Main St., (734) 930-2250.

For additional information or to order a AAA MemberOne card, call (877) 848-4886.

"Give me one good reason to contribute to the Red Cross."

- The American Red Cross helps people prevent, prepare for and respond to emergencies
- We unite families and loved ones separated by war and disaster.
- We're in your neighborhood every day, providing disaster preparedness information and teaching classes in first aid, lifesaving and water safety, to help keep families like yours safer.
- We're not a government agency, but an independent organization that depends on donations from people you to survive.
- Our volunteers give their time to help others

There are many reasons to contribute to the Red Cross. Then again, one reason is all it takes.
